Although the California Legislature has expressed its intent to remove barriers to adoption by relatives of children who are in, or at risk of entering, the dependency system, and to preserve existing family relationships in adoptions [see Fam. Code § 8714.5(a); Relative Adoptions and Kinship Adoption Agreements, in Subpart A of Part II, above], the adoption statutes give no automatic preference to relatives over other persons petitioning to adopt [but see Fam. Code § 8710 (placement preference for relatives in agency adoptions), discussed in Subpart D, below]. The best interests of the child are the only consideration. Thus, as between competing concurrent petitions, there is no preference for blood relatives over nonrelatives [In re Fahlman (1927) 84 Cal. App. 248, 250-251, 257 P. 893] . Nevertheless, in determining the best interests of the child, the court may consider the effect of any blood relationship that exists between the child and the petitioners for adoption, and adoption by a relative has been favored by some courts [see, e.g., Adoption of Berth (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 221, 224-225, 179 P.2d 572 ; see also Adoption of Lenn E. (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 210, 220, 227 Cal. Rptr. 63 (blood relation was one of several factors in permitting intervention in adoption proceeding)].

The court may consider the impact of adoption on the right of the child to inherit by intestacy from blood relatives [see Reeves v. Bailey (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 1019, 1023 n.3, 126 Cal. Rptr. 51 (grandparent adoption results in loss of half of child's possible lines of inheritance)]. If the financial benefits of maintaining certain inheritance rights make it in the best interests of the child that adoption be denied, the petitioners may be appointed as the child's guardians in a probate proceeding [In re Jacqueline G. (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 582, 596-597, 211 Cal. Rptr. 827] . For discussion of the effect of adoption on inheritance rights, see Ch. 12.

The adopting petitioners must execute or acknowledge a written agreement that the child will be treated in all respects as their lawful child [Fam. Code § 8612(b); see § 12B.301[1]]. Courts generally prefer that the adoption agreement be executed at the hearing, and the governing statute appears to imply that execution or acknowledgment is to take place then [*see Fam. If the prospective adoptive parent is permitted to appear by counsel [see § 12B.52], the agreement may be executed and acknowledged by the counsel for the absent party, or may be executed by the absent party before a notary public, or by any other person authorized to take acknowledgments [*Fam. [1] Contents

If satisfied that the interests of that child will be promoted by the adoption, the court may make and enter an order of adoption of the child by the petitioners [Fam. Code § 8612(c)]. The document is referred to in the statutes as an "order of adoption." It is commonly referred to as a "decree of adoption," and is, in effect, a judgment [see Adoption of Bird (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 140, 144-146, 6 Cal. Rptr. 675] . Thereafter, the child and the adoptive parents sustain toward each other the legal relationship of parent and child and have all the rights and are subject to all the duties of that relation [Fam. Code § 8616]. The order of adoption must contain the adopted name of the child, but may not contain the name that the child had before adoption except in a relative adoption, in which the order may contain the child's prior name if requested by the adopting relative or by the child if 12 years or older [Fam. Code §§ 8714(e), 8714.5(g), 8802(e), 8912(d), 9000(e); see § 12B.17[4]].

[2] Preparation, Presentation, and Entry

Although the practice may vary in some courts, an adoption decree is generally prepared by the petitioner's attorney for submission to the court at the time of hearing. The trial judge will execute the decree at the conclusion of the hearing, unless the matter is taken under submission. The judge will then present it to the court clerk for filing and entry as a judgment. However, the petitioner's attorney should take into consideration local practice and rules of court in determining the process for filing and entry. For an illustrative version of the mandatory Judicial Council form of order of adoption, see § 12B.303[1].

An adoption decree is not effective until it is entered as a judgment [Adoption of Bird (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 140, 144-146, 6 Cal. Rptr. 675 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 664]. Entry is a ministerial act by the clerk and is deemed made when the signed decree is filed with the clerk for entry [see Code Civ. Proc. § 664; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590); Brown v. Superior Court (1925) 70 Cal. App. 732, 735, 234 P. 409] .

Major revisions to independent adoption procedures became operative on January 1, 1995 [see Stats. 1993, ch. 758]. The new procedures apply to all petitions for independent adoption that are filed on or after that date. Petitions filed before, and pending on January 1, 1995, are still governed by the law in effect on December 31, 1994 [see Stats. 1993, ch. 758, § 17]. This section summarizes the law applicable to petitions filed before 1995. The remainder of this Subpart describes the law governing independent adoptions beginning January 1, 1995.

Under prior law, a birth parent's consent to the adoption is not given until after the child has been released to the prospective adoptive parents. The birth parent retains all responsibility for the child's custody and control until the court issues its adoption decree. The birth parent also retains the right to reclaim the child at any time before signing the consent to adoption [In re Timothy W. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 437, 442, 272 Cal. Rptr. 906 ; In re Baby Boy M. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 475, 478-479, 272 Cal. Rptr. 27 ; Rogers v. Platt (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1204, 1207-1208, 245 Cal. Rptr. 532 ; see former Fam. Code § 8804(c), (d) (repealed January 1, 1995)].

Nevertheless, the birth parent may authorize the hospital to release the child to the prospective adoptive parents soon after birth and before consent is signed on Form AD 22 (see § 12B.75). A birth parent who changes his or her mind and refuses to consent [see, e.g., In re Baby Boy M. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 475, 479, 272 Cal. Rptr. 27] may execute Department of Social Services Form AD 20, Refusal to Consent to Adoption.

The rights of a birth parent whose consent is required and who refuses to give that consent are virtually absolute. The statutory mandate for return is unequivocal, and there is no discretion to consider whether the child has bonded with the prospective adoptive family or which family will provide a better home [In re Timothy W. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 437, 445-446, 272 Cal. Rptr. 906 ; In re Baby Boy M. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 475, 485, 272 Cal. Rptr. 27 ; but cf. In re Bridget R. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1483, 1515-1521, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 507 (custody hearing required despite ICWA mandate to return child to birthparents)]. The adoption may not proceed [Fam. Code § 8604(a)], and the child must be returned to the care and custody of the birth parent [former Fam. Code § 8804(c), (d) (repealed January 1, 1995)].

There is no statutory time limit within which the birth parent must act to reclaim the child. However, if the birth parent fails to act within six months of birth, he or she risks having his or her parental rights terminated on the ground of legal abandonment [see Fam. Code § 7822(a) (discussed in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights)]. The birth parent's signing of Form AD 20 (Refusal to Consent) tolls any period of potential abandonment [In re Timothy W. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 437, 446, 272 Cal. Rptr. 906 ; In re Baby Boy M. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 475, 481-483, 272 Cal. Rptr. 27] , and is sufficient to compel the return of the child. There is no requirement that the birth parent demand return of the child directly from the adoptive parents [In re Timothy W. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 437, 446 n.2, 272 Cal. Rptr. 906 ; In re Baby Boy M. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 475, 485, 272 Cal. Rptr. 27] .

Different standards are involved if a birth parent refuses to consent to adoption after independent placement, not because he or she wants the child returned to his or her custody, but rather to make a different independent adoptive placement [see, e.g., In re Brittany H. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 533, 542-543, 243 Cal. Rptr. 763] , or to relinquish the child to an agency for an agency adoption [see, e.g., San Diego County Dep't of Public Welfare v. Superior Court of San Diego County (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 1, 6, 101 Cal. Rptr. 541, 496 P.2d 453] . The refusal of a birth parent to consent to an adoption after independent placement in order to make a different independent placement can support a finding of abandonment as a ground to terminate his or her parental rights [In re Brittany H. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 533, 547-551, 243 Cal. Rptr. 763 ; see Fam. Code § 7822 (discussed in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights)]. If the parent refuses to consent and then relinquishes the child to an agency for a new adoptive placement, the relinquishment establishes a ground to dispense with consent [see Fam. Code § 8606(d) (discussed in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights)]. The petition of the original adoptive parents may still be granted on a showing that the adoption is in the best interests of the child [San Diego County Dep't of Public Welfare v. Superior Court of San Diego County (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 1, 15-16, 101 Cal. Rptr. 541, 496 P.2d 453 (construing substantially similar prior law)].

However, once consent has been given, it may not be withdrawn except with court approval [former Fam. Code § 8815(a), (f) (repealed January 1, 1995)]. If the court finds that withdrawal of the consent to adoption is reasonable, in view of all the circumstances, and will be in the best interests of the child, the court must approve it and dismiss the adoption petition [former Fam. Code § 8815(d), (f) (repealed January 1, 1995)]. The court must then order the child restored to the care and custody of the birth parent [former Fam. Code § 8804(c), (d) (repealed January 1, 1995); cf. In re Bridget R. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1483, 1515-1521, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 507 (requiring custody hearing to consider best interests of the children if birthparents' voluntary relinquishments were invalid under ICWA)]. Otherwise, the court must deny the withdrawal and act on the adoption petition [see former Fam. Code § 8815(d), (f) (repealed January 1, 1995)].

Relevant factors in considering the best interests of the child with regard to withdrawal of consent include, but are not limited to, the child's age, the extent of bonding with the prospective adoptive parents, the extent of bonding or the potential to bond with the birth parents, and the ability of a birth parent to provide adequate and proper care and guidance to the child [former Fam. Code § 8815(d), (f) (repealed January 1, 1995); see Adoption of Matthew B. (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1239, 1263-1266, 284 Cal. Rptr. 18] . The court may compare and judge the quality of life that the child may anticipate in the respective homes [In re Timothy W. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 437, 445, 272 Cal. Rptr. 906] . It is not necessary to prove fraud, duress, or coercion [Adoption of Jennie L. (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 422, 430-431, 168 Cal. Rptr. 695 ; Guardianship of Baby Boy M. (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 254, 268-272, 135 Cal. Rptr. 866 (construing prior but substantially similar law)].

In determining whether to approve withdrawal of consent, the parental-preference standard [see Fam. Code §§ 3040, 3041 (parent is preferred custodian of child, and court may not award custody to nonparent over parent unless it finds that parental custody would be detrimental)] has been held not to apply [see Adoption of Jennie L. (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 422, 429-430, 168 Cal. Rptr. 695 ; cf. In re B.G. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 679, 694-699, 114 Cal. Rptr. 444, 523 P.2d 244 (parental preference applies in all custody proceedings; decided under former Civ. Code § 4600(c))]. In structuring the Family Code, the Law Revision Commission and the legislature did not include adoption proceedings among those to which the parental preference doctrine is expressly made applicable [see Fam. Code § 3021]. Even if the doctrine is applied, detriment may be found solely on the ground that it would be detrimental to the child to uproot him or her from the adoptive home and to grant custody to a parent with whom the child has had little or no contact [In re Volkland (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 674, 679-680, 141 Cal. Rptr. 625 ; In re Reyna (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 288, 302-303, 126 Cal. Rptr. 138 ; see Guardianship of Marino (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 952, 956-961, 106 Cal. Rptr. 655] . For further discussion if the parental preference doctrine, see Ch. 394, Parent and Child .

2-12B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 12B.72

§ 12B.72 Selection of Prospective Adoptive Parents

The primary aspect that distinguishes an independent adoption from an agency adoption is that the placement of the child in the prospective adoptive home is made by the birth parents rather than by an adoption agency [see Fam. Code §§ 8539, 8801(a)]. The selection of prospective adoptive parents is to be made personally by a birth parent of the child and may not be delegated to an agent. The act of selection must be based on personal knowledge of the prospective adoptive parents [Fam. Code § 8801(a)].

"Personal knowledge" includes, but is not limited to, substantially correct knowledge of all of the following regarding the prospective adoptive parents [Fam. Code § 8801(b)]:

- Their full legal names, ages, religion, race or ethnicity;
- Length of current marriage and number of previous marriages;
- Employment;
- Whether other children or adults reside in the home;
- Whether there are other children who do not reside in their home and the child support obligations for these children and any failure to meet these obligations;
- Any health conditions curtailing their normal daily activities or reducing their normal life expectancies;
- Any convictions for crimes other than minor traffic violations;
- Any removals of children from their care due to child abuse or neglect; and

- Their general area of residence or, on request, their address.

Both of the child's birth parents may place the child directly with a person or couple whom they know and select. If one parent has custody of the child, that parent may directly place the child with prospective adoptive parents, subject to obtaining the other parent's consent to adoption or following other prescribed procedures that dispense with the consent requirement, as discussed in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights .

Placement of a child for adoption requires completion of an adoptive placement agreement on a form prescribed by the department [Fam. Code § 8539; see Fam. Code § 8801.3]. Adoption placement agreements are discussed in § 12B.93.

If a child has been relinquished to the California Department of Social Services or a licensed adoption agency for adoptive placement, an independent adoption of that child is no longer possible. Only the prospective adoptive parents with whom the child has been placed by the department or agency may file a petition for adoption of that child [see Fam. Code § 8704(b)]. For discussion of agency adoptions, see Subpart D.

§ 12B.73 Dual Representation of Birth and Adoptive Parents

An attorney's dual representation of both the birth and prospective adoptive parents of a child is permitted subject to stringent limitations [see Fam. Code § 8800]. Notwithstanding any other provisions of the law, it is unethical for an attorney to undertake the representation of both the prospective adopting parents and the birth parents of a child in any negotiations or proceedings in connection with an adoption unless a written consent is obtained from both parties [Fam. Code § 8800(d)]. In the initial communication between the attorney retained by or representing the prospective adoptive parents and the birth parents, or as soon thereafter as is reasonable but before obtaining any written consent for dual representation, the attorney must advise the birth parents of their rights regarding independent counsel and that it is possible to waive independent representation [Fam. Code § 8800(g); see Fam. Code § 8800(f) (birth parent may have separate counsel to advise them fully of adoptive procedures and legal rights)]. For a form for an agreement for dual representation of both the prospective adoptive parents and the birth parents, see § 12B.330[1].

On the petition or motion of any party, or on motion of the court, the court may appoint an attorney to represent the birth parent or parents in negotiations or proceedings in connection with the child's adoption [Fam. Code § 8800(e)]. The court may award attorneys' fees and costs for just cause, based on the ability of the parties to pay [Fam. Code § 8800(f)].

The attorney retained by or representing the prospective adoptive parents must inform them in writing that a birth parent may revoke consent to the adoption and that any moneys expended in negotiations or proceedings in connection with the child are not reimbursable. The prospective adoptive parents must sign a statement to indicate their understanding of this information [Fam. Code § 8800(h)]. Such a written provision and statement are included in § 12B.330[1].

Whether or not written consent is obtained, multiple representation should be avoided whenever a birth parent displays the slightest reason for the attorney to believe any controversy might arise. If a conflict occurs, it is the duty of the attorney to withdraw promptly from the case, advise the parties to retain independent counsel, refrain from taking positions in opposition to any of the former clients, and thereafter maintain an impartial, fair, and open attitude toward the new attorneys [Fam. Code § 8800(c)].

Courts have not viewed multiple representation kindly when disputes have arisen between birth and prospective adoptive parents. Several opinions have chastised attorneys for continuing to represent the interests of the prospective adoptive parents (who are paying substantial attorneys' fees) against the birth parents after a birth parent has changed his or her mind and refused to consent to the adoption [see In re Timothy W. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 437, 447, 272 Cal. Rptr. 906 (attorney presumably advised adoptive parents to refuse to relinquish child); In re Baby Boy S. (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 925, 931-933, 240 Cal. Rptr. 60 (attorney failed to advise birth parents of right to independent counsel and of right to have child returned)].

§ 12B.75 Release of Child to Adoptive Parents by Medical Facility

It is common practice in an independent adoption for the birth mother to deliver the child to the prospective adoptive parents immediately after birth. However, no health facility [see Health & Safety Code § 1250] may surrender the physical custody of a child under 16 years to any person unless the surrender is authorized in writing by the parent (and certain other persons prescribed by statute who would not ordinarily be involved in this context) [Health & Safety Code § 1283(a)]. Thus, before a hospital will release a child to the prospective adoptive parents, a parent must execute a written consent to release on Department of Social Services Form AD 22, Health Facility Minor Release Report (see § 12B.331[1]).

As is made clear on the face of the form [see Fam. Code § 8607], execution of Form AD 22 is not itself a consent to adoption. The consent of a birth parent who is placing the child for adoption is included in the adoption placement agreement, which must be signed before the child is deemed to have been placed for adoption [Fam. Code § 8801.3(b)(5); see § 12B.90].

12B.76 Care and Custody of Child Pending Adoption

During the pendency of a proceeding for an independent adoption, the legal right to custody and control of the child remains with the child's birth parent or parents, even though the prospective parents usually have actual physical custody [see Fam. Code § 3010; Guardianship of Baby Boy M. (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 254, 271, 135 Cal. Rptr. 866] . Furthermore, the child's parent or parents must bear ultimate financial responsibility for the child's care [see Fam. Code § 3900], although the prospective adoptive parents customarily assume the financial obligations incident to their care of the child.

§ 12B.77 Postadoption Contact ("Contact After Adoption") Agreement

Nothing in California's adoption laws prevents the adopting parents, the birth relatives (including the birth parents), and the child from entering into a written agreement to permit continuing contact between the birth relatives (including the birth parents), and the child, if the agreement is found by the court to have been entered into voluntarily and to be in the best interests of the child at the time the adoption petition is granted [Fam. Code § 8616.5(b)(1)]. The Judicial Council forms and court rules now refer to these agreements as "contact after adoption" agreements. However, under the authorizing statute, such an agreement is called a "postadoption contact agreement," and, operative January 1, 2001, is available in relative and nonrelative adoptions alike [see Stats. 2000, ch. 910]. From January 1, 1998, through December 31, 2000, "postadoption contact agreements" were known as "kinship adoption agreements," and were only available in relative adoptions]. Although the provisions for postadoption contact agreements are set forth in Chapter 2 of Part 2 of the Fam. Code governing agency adoptions, there is nothing in the text of the statutes that would prohibit such an agreement in an independent adoption [see Fam. Code § 8616.5].

If the petitioner has entered into a postadoption contact agreement with the birth parent, the agreement, signed by the participating parties, must be attached to and filed with the petition for adoption [Fam. Code § 8802(a)(3); see Fam. Code § 8616.5(c)].

§ 12B.90 Placement for Adoption

Beginning January 1, 1995, a child may not be considered to have been "placed for adoption" until (1) each birth parent placing the child for adoption has been advised of his or her rights, and if desired, provided with counseling [Fam. Code § 8801.3(a), (e); see § 12B.92], and (2) each prospective adoptive parent, each birth parent placing the child for adoption, and the "adoption service provider" [see Fam. Code § 8502, discussed in § 12B.91] has signed an "adoption placement agreement" on a form prescribed by the California Department of Social Services [Fam. Code §§ 8539, 8801.3(b)(5); see § 12B.93; see § 12B.332[1]]. Both or only one birth parent may place the child for adoption [see Fam. Code § 8801.3(a), (b)]. If only one birth parent places the child, the consent of the other birth parent must be obtained subsequently [see Fam. Code § 8814, discussed § 12B.95] unless his or her parental rights have been terminated or grounds can be established to dispense with consent (see Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights).

The legal significance of failing to meet the statutory requirements for placement is not totally clear from the statutes. While the child is not "deemed" to be placed for adoption with the prospective adoptive parents [see Fam. Code § 8801.3(b)(5)], it appears that a hospital may release the child to the prospective adoptive parents (see § 12B.75), even if the adoption placement agreement has not yet been signed. However, no decree of adoption may be granted until all required consents have been given [see Fam. Code § 8604(a)], and the consent of a parent who is placing the child for adoption is a component of the agreement [see Fam. Code § 8801.3(c)(5), discussed in § 12B.93]. Although an adoption placement agreement is not a condition precedent to the filing of a petition for adoption in all cases, it appears that most prospective adoptive parents cannot file a petition unless the child has been placed with them for adoption as required by statute [see Fam. Code § 8802(a), discussed in § 12B.110[1]].

§ 12B.91 Adoption Service Provider

The independent adoption procedures operative January 1, 1995 revolve around a position called an "adoption service provider." An adoption service provider may be any of the following [Fam. Code § 8502(a)]:

(1) A licensed private adoption agency;

(2) An individual who has presented satisfactory evidence to the department that he or she is a licensed clinical social worker who also has a minimum of five years of experience providing professional social services while employed by a licensed California adoption agency or the department;

(3) In a state other than California, or a country other than the United States, an adoption agency licensed or otherwise approved under the laws of that state, or an individual who is licensed or otherwise certified as a clinical social worker under the laws of that state or country; or

(4) An individual who has presented satisfactory evidence to the department that he or she is a licensed marriage and family therapist who has a minimum of five years experience providing professional adoption casework services while employed by a licensed California adoption agency or the department.

Independent legal counsel for the birth parent may serve as an adoption service provider if the requirements discussed below are met [see Fam. Code § 8502(b)]. Independence requires that there be no contractual relationship with the adoptive parents, attorney for the adoptive parents, or any other individual or organization performing any type of services for the adoptive parents [see Fam. Code §§ 8502(b), 8801.5(e)].

In the case of a birth parent located in California, independent counsel may serve as the adoption service provider if at least three adoption service providers are not reasonably available. In the case of a birth parent located outside of California or outside of the United States, independent counsel may serve if the parent has contacted at least three potential adoption service providers and been unsuccessful in obtaining the services of an adoption services provider who is reasonably available and willing to provide services. "Reasonably available" means that an adoption service provider is all of the following [Fam. Code § 8502(b)]:

(1) Available within five days for an advisement of rights [see Fam. Code § 8801.5] or within 24 hours for the signing of the adoption placement agreement [see Fam. Code § 8801.3(b)(3)];

(2) Within 100 miles of the birth mother;

(3) Available for a cost not exceeding $500 to make an advisement of rights and to witness the signing of the placement agreement.

If an attorney acts as adoption service provider, the fee to make an advisement of rights and to witness the signing of the placement agreement may not exceed $500 [Fam. Code § 8502(c)].

The adoption service provider owes a very high duty of care to the birth parent being advised, regardless of who pays the provider's fees. The duty of care specifically does not include a duty to investigate information provided by the birth parents, prospective adoptive parents, or their attorneys or agents [Fam. Code § 8801.7(c)].

No adoption service provider may have a contractual relationship with prospective adoptive parents, an attorney or representative for prospective adoptive parents, or any individual or organization providing services of any type to prospective adoptive parents for which the adoptive parents are paying a fee, except as relates to the payment of the fees for the advising and counseling of the birth parents [Fam. Code § 8801.7(c)].

§ 12B.92 Advisement of Rights and Counseling

Each birth parent placing the child for adoption must be advised of his or her rights by an adoption service provider at least 10 days before signing the adoption placement agreement. However, the adoption service provider may find exigent circumstances, which must be set forth in the adoption placement agreement [Fam. Code §§ 8801.3(b)(1), 8801.5(a)]. It is not clear whether the exigent circumstances may justify dispensing with the advisement of rights entirely, or only justify not meeting the 10-day requirement. Note that while the adoption placement agreement may not be signed until the time of discharge from the hospital, that is, after the birth of the child [see Fam. Code § 8801.3(b)(2)], the requirement that the advisement of rights take place at least ten days before the agreement is signed means that it should be done before birth.

The birth parent must be advised of his or her rights in a face-to-face meeting in which the birth parent may ask questions and have questions answered [Fam. Code § 8801.5(b)]. The department must prescribe the format and process for advising birth parents of their rights, the content of which must include, but not be limited to, the following [Fam. Code § 8801.5(c)]:

(1) The alternatives to adoption;

(2) The alternative types of adoption, including a description of the full procedures and timeframes involved in each type;

(3) The full rights and responsibilities of the birth parent with respect to adoption, including the need to keep the department informed of his or her current address in case of a medical emergency requiring contact and of providing a full health history;

(4) The right to separate legal counsel paid for by the prospective adoptive parents on the request of the birth parent [see Fam. Code § 8800];

(5) The right to a minimum of three separate counseling sessions, each to be held on different days, to be paid for by the prospective adoptive parents upon the request of the birth parents.

If the offer of counseling is accepted, each counseling session must be not less than 50 minutes in duration. The counseling may be provided by an adoption service provider or by a licensed psychotherapist [see Evid. Code § 1010] as elected by the person [Fam. Code § 8801.5(d)]. The advisement and counseling fees must be paid by the prospective adoptive parents at the request of the birth parent [Fam. Code § 8801.5(f)].

The counselor owes a duty of care to the birth parent being counseled, similar to the duty of care established by a psychotherapist-patient relationship, regardless of who pays the fees of the counselor. No counselor may have a contractual relationship with the adoptive parents, an attorney for the adoptive parents, or any other individual or an organization performing any type of services for the adoptive parents and for which the adoptive parents are paying a fee, except as relates to payment of the birth parents' fee [Fam. Code § 8801.5(e)]. The failure to fulfill advisement and counseling duties may not be construed as a basis for setting aside the consent or the adoption, but may give rise to a cause of action for malpractice or negligence against those professionals or agencies serving as adoption service providers that are responsible for fulfilling the duties [Fam. Code § 8801.5(f)].

§ 12B.93 Adoption Placement Agreement

The adoption service provider, each prospective adoptive parent, and each birth parent placing the child must sign an adoption placement agreement on a form prescribed by the department [Fam. Code § 8801.3(b)]. The consent of the parent or parents placing the child for adoption is a component of the agreement [Fam. Code § 8801.3(c)(5)].

The agreement may not be signed by either the birth parents or the prospective adoptive parents until the time of discharge of the birth mother from the hospital. However, if the birth mother remains hospitalized for a period longer than the hospitalization of the child, the agreement may be signed by all parties at the time of or after the child's discharge from the hospital but before the birth mother's discharge from the hospital if her competency to sign is verified by her attending physician and surgeon before she signs the agreement [Fam. Code § 8801.3(b)(2)].

The birth parents and prospective adoptive parents must sign the agreement in the presence of an adoption service provider [Fam. Code § 8801.3(b)(3)]. If the birth parent is not located in California, the adoption placement agreement must be signed before an adoption service provider or a notary or other person authorized to perform notarial acts in the state where the birth parent is located [Fam. Code § 8801.3(b)(6)]. The adoption service provider who witnesses the signatures must keep the original of the adoption placement agreement and immediately forward it and supporting documentation as required by the department to the department or delegated county adoption agency [Fam. Code § 8801.5(b)(4)].

The adoption placement agreement must be on a form prescribed by the department containing statutory requirements [Fam. Code § 8801.3(b), (c)]. It must also meet the requirements of the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children [Fam. Code § 8801.3(d); see Fam. Code § 7901, discussed in Subpt. E]. The department's form is set forth in § 12B.332[1]. The attorney should not draft an alternate form even if it contains the required contents.

Special rules apply with respect to American Indian children. When a parent seeks to execute an adoption placement agreement under Fam. Code § 8801.3, and there is information that the child is, or may be, an Indian child, the Department must obtain specified information about the child, the child's family members, and the child's tribe, and must send a special notice to any parent and any custodian of the child, and to any tribe of which the child is, or may be, a member or eligible for membership [Fam. Code § 8620(a)(2), (3)(A); see § 12B.273[7]].

The adoption service provider must offer to interview the birth parent after the placement of the child with the prospective adoptive parents. The interview must occur within 10 working days after the placement of the child for adoption and must include a consideration of any concerns or problems the birth parent has with the placement, a readvisement of the rights of the birth parent, and the taking of the health and social history of the birth parent, if not taken previously [Fam. Code § 8801.7(a)].

The adoption service provider must immediately notify the department or delegated county adoption agency if the birth parent is not interviewed after placement, or if there are any concerns regarding the placement. If the birth parent wishes to revoke the consent (see § 12B.96), the adoption service provider must assist the birth parent in obtaining the return of the child [Fam. Code § 8801.7(b)].

2-12B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 12B.95

§ 12B.95 Consent of Parent Not Placing Child for Adoption

[1] Generally

The consent to an adoption of a birth parent who did not place the child for adoption (see § 12B.90) must be signed in the presence of an agent of the department or of a delegated county adoption agency on a form prescribed by the department (such as the department's Form AD 1A, reproduced in § 12B.334[1]). The consent must be filed with the clerk of the appropriate superior court [Fam. Code § 8814(a) (excepting from its requirements provisions of Fam. Code § 7662, concerning termination of father's parental rights)]. The consent of a birth parent who is a minor is not subject to revocation by reason of minority [Fam. Code § 8814(d)].

Of course, the consent of the birth parent may not be required because his or her parental rights have previously been terminated or there are grounds to dispense with consent [see Fam. Code §§ 7660 et seq., 8604-8606]. These grounds are considered in detail in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights .

Parental consent is obtained in the course of the official department or agency investigation [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35095; see also § 12B.111]. If the agency fails or refuses to accept the parent's consent within certain time limits, it may be obtained in a court proceeding [see Fam. Code § 8820 (discussed in § 12B.95[4])].

[2] Parent Outside of California

If the birth parent is located outside of California for an extended period of time unrelated to the adoption at the time of signing the consent, the consent may be signed before a notary or other person authorized to perform notarial acts. In that case, the consent of the department or of the delegated county adoption agency is also necessary [Fam. Code § 8814(c); see § 12B.101].

If the department or an agency initiates the consent, the official form will be sent to an accredited agency having jurisdiction over the place where the parent is located, with instructions to have it executed and returned. On verification that there is no accredited agency available to obtain consent, the consent form must be sent directly to the consenting parent [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35113]. By contrast, if a request for consent directed to a parent in another state has not been initiated by the department or agency, the consent must be accepted if it is properly notarized and is completed on a form that contains the same contents as that prescribed by the Department of Social Services [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35111].

[3] Effect of Consent by Parent Claiming Entitlement to Sole Custody

If the written consent of a birth parent who did not place the child for adoption recites that the person giving it is entitled to the sole custody of the child and is duly acknowledged before an agent of the Department of Social Services or a delegated county adoption agency, it is prima facie evidence of the right of the person making it to the sole custody of the child and that person's sole right to consent [Fam. Code § 8814(b)]. The evidentiary effect is to raise a rebuttable presumption with respect to sole custody and the need for the consent of the other birth parent [see Evid. Code § 602]. But despite this presumption, both constitutional principles [see Adoption of Kelsey S. (1992) 1 Cal. 4th 816, 849, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615, 823 P. 2d 1216] and statutes [see Fam. Code §§ 7660 et seq., 8604, 8605] require that both parents consent unless a ground for dispensing with consent and terminating parental rights is established (see Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights). The forms of consent presently prescribed by the department for use by natural parents in California do not contain any representations concerning the parent's entitlement to sole custody (see, e.g., Form 56).

[4] Agency's Failure or Refusal to Accept Consent Within 180 Days of Filing

The birth parent or parents, or the petitioner, may appeal if for a period of 180 days from the date of paying 50 percent of the fee, or on the expiration of any extension of the period the court has granted, the California Department of Social Services or delegated county adoption agency fails or refuses to accept the consent of the birth parent or parents to the adoption [Fam. Code § 8820(a)(1)]. The birth parent or parents, or the petitioner, may also appeal in a case in which the consent of the department or delegated county adoption agency is required and the department or agency fails or refuses to file or give its consent to the adoption after full payment has been received [Fam. Code § 8820(a)(2)].

The 180-day period coincides with the period within which the investigating agency's report must be submitted to the court [see Fam. Code § 8807(a) (discussed in § 12B.111)]. Therefore, the procedure of Fam. Code § 8820 may be used either if the agency does not complete its investigation and report on time, or if it refuses to accept a consent for reasons stated in the report.

In determining whether to appeal the investigating agency's refusal to accept a birth parent's consent, the ground for the agency's position is the important consideration. If the case worker is exercising discretion on the basis of his or her conclusion that the adoption is not in the best interests of the child, [see, e.g., San Diego County Dep't of Public Welfare v. Superior Court of San Diego County (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 1, 9-10, 101 Cal. Rptr. 541, 496 P.2d 453] , an appeal is an effective way to have the matter reviewed by the court in the most timely manner. On the other hand, if the case worker determines that there is a legal bar to accepting consent, for example, that the birth parent lacks the mental capacity to give a valid consent [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35097(a) (discussed in § 12B.100[2])], the matter is unlikely to be resolved by appeal. In such a case, the appropriate approach is to determine if there is a ground to dispense with the consent of the birth parent or to terminate his or her parental rights (see Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights).

[5] Effect of Refusal to Consent; Return of Child

If the consent of a birth parent who did not place the child for adoption is required but not given, the adoption may not proceed, [Fam. Code § 8604(a)], and the child must be restored to the care and custody of the birth parent or parents subject to the provisions of Fam. Code § 3041 [Fam. Code § 8804(c)].

There is no statutory time limit within which the birth parent must act to reclaim the child. However, if the birth parent fails to act within six months of birth, he or she risks having his or her parental rights terminated on the ground of legal abandonment [see Fam. Code § 7822(a) (discussed in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights)]. Also, a birth father who is not a presumed father [see Fam. Code §§ 7611, 8604(a)] must promptly come forward and demonstrate a full commitment to his parental responsibilities in order to receive constitutional protection of the right to withhold consent to the adoption [see Adoption of Kelsey S. (1992) 1 Cal. 4th 816, 849, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615, 823 P. 2d 1216 , discussed in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights].

The birth parent's signing of Form AD 20 (Refusal to Consent to Adoption; see § 12B.335[1]) tolls any period of potential abandonment [In re Timothy W. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 437, 446, 272 Cal. Rptr. 906 ; In re Baby Boy M. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 475, 481-483, 272 Cal. Rptr. 27] and is sufficient to compel the return of the child. There is no requirement that the birth parent demand return of the child directly from the adoptive parents [In re Timothy W. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 437, 446 n.2, 272 Cal. Rptr. 906 ; In re Baby Boy M. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 475, 485, 272 Cal. Rptr. 27] .

§ 12B.96 Revocation of Consent; Return of Child

After a consent to the adoption is signed, a birth parent may revoke his or her consent within 30 days by signing and delivering a written statement of revocation and request for return of the child to the department or delegated county adoption agency. This 30-day period applies both to a parent who has placed the child for adoption [see Fam. Code § 8801.3; § 12B.90] and to a parent who did not place the child for adoption [Fam. Code § 8814.5(a)(1); see Fam. Code § 8814; § 12B.95]. The department's form of Revocation of Consent is set forth in § 12B.336[1]. Note, however, that the revocation of consent need not be made on a department form or in the presence of any department or agency employee or other adoption service provider [see Fam. Code § 8814.5(a)(1)].

If a birth parent revokes consent and requests return of the child before the time when a revocable consent becomes permanent, as provided in Fam. Code § 8814.5, the child must be immediately returned to the birth parent or parents so requesting [Fam. Code § 8815(b); but cf. In re Bridget R. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1483, 1515-1521, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 507 (custody hearing required despite ICWA mandate to return child to birthparents)]. Note that there is an apparent conflict in the statutes regarding whether any consideration may be given to the fitness of the parent or parents to whom the child is to be returned. Under Fam. Code § 8815(c), if the prospective adoptive parents with whom the child has been placed have concerns that the birth parent or parents requesting return of the child are unfit or present a danger of harm to the child, their only option is to report their concerns to the investigating adoption agency and the appropriate child welfare agency. These concerns may not be a basis for failure to immediately return the child [Fam. Code § 8815(c)]. However, under Fam. Code § 8804(c), if a birth parent revokes consent as specified in Fam. Code § 8814.5, the court must order the child restored to the custody of the birth parent or parents, but subject to the provisions of Fam. Code § 3041--which opens the possibility of a court awarding custody to a nonparent on the basis that granting custody to a parent would be detrimental to the child and granting custody to the nonparent is required to serve the best interest of the child [Fam. Code § 8804(c)].

A parent who has revoked consent may reinstate consent by means of a written statement. After revoking consent, in cases in which the birth parent or parents have not regained custody, or the birth parent or parents have failed to make efforts to exercise their rights under Fam. Code § 8815(b) (requesting return of the child), a written statement reinstating the original consent may be signed and delivered to the department or delegated agency--in which case the revocation of consent will be void and a the remainder of the original 30-day period will commence. However, in cases in which the birth parent or parents have regained custody, or made efforts to exercise their rights to request return of the child on delivery of such a statement to the department or delegated county adoption agency, the revocation of consent will be void and a new 30-day period will commence. The birth mother must be informed of the operational timelines associated with these provisions at the time of signing of the statement reinstating the original consent [Fam. Code § 8814.5(a)(1)].

§ 12B.97 Waiver of Right to Revoke Consent

Before the 30-day period for revoking consent expires, a birth parent may sign a waiver of the right to revoke consent. If a valid waiver of the right to revoke is signed, the consent may not be revoked [Fam. Code § 8814.5(b)]. An adoption service provider may assist the birth parent in "any activity where the primary purpose of that activity is to facilitate the signing of the waiver" (of right to revoke consent) with the Department of Social Services, a delegated county agency, or a judicial officer. The adoption service provider or any other person designated by the birth parent or parents may also be present to provide support to that parent or parents at any interview in connection with signing of the waiver, except when the interview is conducted by independent legal counsel for the birth parent or parents [Fam. Code § 8814.5(a)(2)(B)].

The waiver must be signed on a form prescribed by the department [see § 12B.337[1]] in the presence of a representative of the department or delegated county adoption agency, a judicial officer of a court of record if the birth parent is represented by independent legal counsel, or an adoption service provider if the birth parent or parents are represented by independent legal counsel. The adoption service provider must ensure that the waiver is delivered to the department, the petitioners, or their counsel no earlier than the end of the business day following the signing of the waiver. It must inform the birth parent that during this time period, he or she may request that the waiver be withdrawn and that, if he or she makes that request, the waiver must be withdrawn [Fam. Code § 8814.5(a)(2)(A)].

The waiver of the right to revoke consent may not be signed until an interview has been completed by the department or delegated county adoption agency unless the waiver of the right to revoke consent is signed in the presence of a judicial officer of a court of record or an adoption service provider. If the waiver is signed in the presence of a judicial officer, the interview and the witnessing of the signing of the waiver must be conducted by the judicial officer. If the waiver is signed in the presence of an adoption service provider, the interview must be conducted by the independent legal counsel for the birth parent or parents, and the waiver must be reviewed by the independent legal counsel who must counsel the birth parent or parents about the nature of the intended waiver and must sign and deliver to the birth parent or parents and the department a certificate in the form specified in Fam. Code § 8814.5(a)(2)(C). Within 10 working days of a request made after the department or the delegated county adoption agency has received a copy of the petition for the adoption and the names and addresses of the persons to be interviewed, the department or the delegated county adoption agency must interview, at the department or agency office any birth parent requesting to be interviewed [Fam. Code § 8814.5(a)(2)(C)].

The interview, and the witnessing of the signing of a waiver of the right to revoke consent of a birth parent residing outside of California or located outside of California for an extended period of time unrelated to the adoption may be conducted in the state where the birth parent is located, by any of the following [Fam. Code § 8814.5(a)(2)(C)]:

(1) A representative of a public adoption agency in that state.

(2) A judicial officer in that state if the birth parent is represented by independent legal counsel.

(3) An adoption service provider.

§ 12B.98 Permanent Consent; Equitable Motion to Set Aside

If 30 days pass and consent is not revoked (see § 12B.96), or if a waiver of the right to consent is signed before 30 days (see § 12B.97), the consent becomes permanent and may no longer be revoked or withdrawn [Fam. Code § 8814.5(a)(3), (b); but see Fam. Code § 8814.5(a)(1) (special provisions for reinstating consent after revocation)]. At that point, the birth parent has no further statutory remedy to attempt to block the adoption; there is no longer any statutory procedure by which a consent once given may be withdrawn with judicial approval if found to be in the best interests of the child [see Fam. Code § 8815(a); cf. § 12B.71 (prior law)].

However, proof that a consent was obtained by mistake, fraud, duress, undue influence, or coercion renders the consent invalid and deprives the court of jurisdiction to grant the adoption [see Arnold v. Howell (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 202, 206-208, 219 P.2d 854] . Such a jurisdictional defect may be raised by any appropriate equitable motion or proceeding, before or after a decree of adoption is entered [see Arnold v. Howell (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 202, 206-208, 219 P.2d 854] . Under prior law, it has been held that the court's consideration in such a case is not constrained by the statutory requirements for withdrawal of consent [see Guardianship of Baby Boy M. (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 254, 271-272, 135 Cal. Rptr. 866 ; see also Adoption of Alexander S. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 857, 861-862, 245 Cal. Rptr. 1, 750 P.2d 778 (in which Supreme Court noted and stressed trial court's distinction between rescission of consent on grounds of coercion, duress, or undue influence, and withdrawal of consent under former statutory standards)].

Therefore, it may be possible for a birth parent to bring an equitable motion to set aside, revoke, or withdraw consent on the grounds of mistake, fraud, duress, undue influence, or coercion after the consent has become permanent under the statutes. For further discussion, see Ch. 12E, Adoptions: Attack on Decree .

§ 12B.99 Interview by Department or Agency

The department or delegated county adoption agency must interview the petitioners within 45 working days, excluding legal holidays, after the filing of the adoption petition [Fam. Code § 8808(a)].

The department or agency must interview all persons from whom consent is required and whose addresses are known as soon as 50 percent of the fee has been paid to the department or agency. The interview with the placing parent or parents must include, but not be limited to, a discussion of any concerns or problems that the parent has with the placement and, if the placing parent was not interviewed as provided in Fam. Code § 8801.7, the content required in that interview. At the interview, the agency must give the parent an opportunity to sign either a statement revoking consent, or a waiver of the right to revoke consent, as provided in Fam. Code § 8814.5 [Fam. Code § 8808(b)].

To facilitate the interview, at the same time the petition is filed with the court, the petitioners must file with the district office of the department or with the county adoption agency responsible for the investigation of the adoption, a copy of the petition, 50 percent of the fee, and the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of all parties to be interviewed, if known [Fam. Code § 8808(c)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Independent Adoptions
2. Adoption Placement Agreement and Parental Consent

§ 12B.100 Prerequisites to Consent

[1] Generally

Under prior law, all required consents were obtained in the course of the agency investigation after the child was placed for adoption. Under the law operative January 1, 1995, the consent of a parent who is placing the child for adoption must be included in the adoption placement agreement, which is to be executed at the time of discharge from the hospital [see Fam. Code § 8801.3(b)(2), (c)(5), (e), discussed in § 12B.93]; only the consent of a parent who is not placing the child for adoption is to be obtained later [see Fam. Code § 8814, discussed in § 12B.95]. Therefore, many of the concerns about the validity of consent that were previously addressed in the post-placement investigation must now be addressed by the adoption service provider in the course of executing the adoption placement agreement.

The investigating agency (and presumably now also the adoption service provider) should take a parent's consent only if it appears that the adoption should proceed [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35095]. Under its statutory duty to ascertain whether the child is a proper subject for adoption, the agency must determine that the consent is knowingly and voluntarily given. Under its duty to determine whether the proposed home is suitable for the child, the agency has the discretion to refuse to accept the consent if it determines that the adoption is not in the best interest of the child [San Diego County Dep't of Public Welfare v. Superior Court of San Diego County (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 1, 9-10, 101 Cal. Rptr. 541, 496 P.2d 453 (construing prior but substantially similar law); see Fam. Code § 8806].

The agency representative must also verify that a birth parent personally placed the child with the prospective adoptive parents [see Fam. Code § 8801(a), discussed in § 12B.72]. If the agency determines that the placement was not lawful, it must advise the birth parent that the placement was improper and file a preliminary court report [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35095(b)(6)].

[2] Capacity

The agency representative must determine that the consenting birth parent has the ability to understand the nature, content, and effect of signing a consent to adoption [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35109]. If the representative questions the parent's capacity to consent, the consent may be accepted only if an evaluation by a physician or clinical psychologist establishes that the parent has the ability to understand the nature, content, and effect of signing a consent to adoption [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35097(a)]. Special procedures must be followed to obtain the consent of a birth parent who is a patient in, or on leave from, a psychiatric facility or under psychiatric treatment for mental illness, or under a conservatorship, or if there is otherwise a question of the mental competency of the parent [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35101 et seq.].

[3] Required Statements and Disclosures

[a] Statement of Understanding

Documentation of a birth parent's understanding of the information required to give consent is accomplished by having the parent sign a "statement of understanding" [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35095]. Its extensive contents are prescribed by regulation and essentially summarize the law of independent adoptions [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35095.1].

For a reproduction of the Department of Social Service's form of Statement of Understanding, see § 12B.333[1]. For a reproduction of the department's form of consent to adoption, see § 12B.334[1].

[b] Right to Information on Status of Child

On or before the time a consent to adoption is signed, the birth parent signing the consent must be advised verbally and in writing by the department or the delegated county adoption agency, that he or she may, at any time in the future, request from the department or agency all known information about the status of the child's adoption, except for personal, identifying information about the adoptive family. The birth parent must be advised that this information includes, but is not limited to, all of the following: (1) whether the child has been placed for adoption; (2) the approximate date on which an adoption was completed; and (3) if the adoption was not completed or was vacated for any reason, whether adoptive placement of the child is again being considered [Fam. Code § 8813]. For further discussion of access to information regarding adoptions, see Ch. 12D, Adoptions: Amendment and Inspection of Records .

[c] Statement Regarding Future Communication and Confidentiality

A statement must be presented to the birth parents at the time the consent to adoption is signed (and to prospective adoptive parents at the time of the home study) that, in a clear and concise manner, in words calculated to assure the confidence of the birth parents in the integrity of the adoption process, must communicate to the birth parent of a child who is the subject of an adoption petition all of the following facts [Fam. Code § 8818(a)]:

> (1) It is in the best interest of the child that the birth parents keep the department informed of any health problems that the parent develops that could affect the child.
> (2) It is extremely important that the birth parent keep his or her address current with the department in order to permit a response to any inquiries to the department or delegated county adoption agency concerning medical or social history.
> (3) Fam. Code § 9203 authorizes a person who has been adopted and who attains the age of 21 to petition the department to obtain the name and address of his or her birth parents. Therefore, it is of the utmost importance that the birth parent indicate whether or not he or she wishes his or her name and address to be so disclosed by checking the appropriate box provided on the form.
> (4) The birth parent may change his or her decision as to whether or not he or she wishes his or her name and address disclosed, at any time, by sending a notarized letter to that effect, by certified mail, return receipt requested, to the department.

(5) The consent will be filed in the office of the clerk of the court in which the adoption takes place. The file is not open to inspection by any persons other than the parties to the adoption proceedings, their attorneys, and the department, except on order of the judge of the superior court.

Confidentiality and procedures for obtaining information concerning completed adoptions are discussed in Ch. 12D, Adoptions: Amendment and Inspection of Records .

§ 12B.101 Official Consent in Certain Cases

In all independent adoptions in which the consent of the birth parent or parents is not necessary [see Fam. Code §§ 7600 et seq., 7800 et seq., 8604-8606, discussed in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights], the Department of Social Services or the delegated county adoption agency must, before the hearing of the petition, file its consent to the adoption with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the petition is filed. That consent may not be given unless the child's welfare will be promoted by the adoption [Fam. Code § 8816].

However, this official consent is not indispensable [see Adoption of McDonald (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 447, 457, 274 P.2d 860] . If the department or agency fails or refuses to consent, the statutory provisions of Fam. Code § 8820 apply [see discussion in § 12B.112], and the court may grant the adoption petition without the consent if it deems that the child's welfare will be promoted by adoption [Fam. Code § 8820(c)].

§ 12B.110 Filing of Adoption Petition

[1] Persons Who May Petition for Independent Adoption

A petition for an independent adoption of a child may be filed by any of the following who desires to adopt a child [Fam. Code § 8802(a)]:

(1) An adult who is related to the child or the child's half sibling by blood or affinity, including all relatives whose status is preceded by the words "step," "great," "great-great," or "grand," or the spouse of any of these persons, even if the marriage was terminated by death or dissolution;

(2) A legal guardian who has been the child's legal guardian for more than one year; or, if the court has found under Fam. Code § 7822 that the child was abandoned, a legal guardian who has been the child's legal guardian for more than six months; or, if the birthparent nominated the guardian for a purpose other than adoption for a specified time period, or if the guardianship was established under Welf. & Inst. Code § 360, the guardianship must have been in existence for at least three years;

(3) A person named in the will of a deceased parent as an intended adoptive parent if the child has no other parent;

(4) A person with whom a child has been placed for adoption.

Note that the above limitations on who may petition for adoption are more restrictive than prior law [cf. former Fam. Code § 8802(a), repealed January 1, 1995 ("A person desiring to adopt a child may, for that purpose, file a petition ... ")]. If the child has not been "placed for adoption" in the manner required by law [see Fam. Code § 8801.3, discussed in § 12B.90], the prospective adoptive parents may not petition for adoption unless they fall within categories 1, 2, or 3, above.

Persons not designated in Fam. Code § 8802(a) lack standing to file a petition for an independent adoption [In re Michael R. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 126, 137-138, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 773) (long-term caretaker may proceed with adoption only after obtaining guardianship of child; rejecting contention that under Fam. Code § 7822) any person who has cared for child for six months should have standing to file adoption petition)].

[2] Jurisdiction, Venue, and Notice to Department

The petition is to be filed in county where the petitioner resides [Fam. Code § 8802(a)]. Alternative locations of filing are provided by statute and are discussed in § 12B.30 [see Fam. Code §§ 8802(a)(1), 9211]. All jurisdiction under the Family Code is in the superior court [Fam. Code § 200]. For further discussion of jurisdictional requirements in adoption matters, see § 12B.30. The court clerk must immediately notify the California Department of Social Services at Sacramento in writing of the pendency of the proceeding and of any subsequent action taken [Fam. Code § 8802(a); § 12B.310[1]].

For a form of a petition of adoption, now termed an "adoption request" that may be adopted for use in an independent adoption, see § 12B.302[1].

[3] Time Limitations

No express time limitations are provided by statute for filing a petition for independent adoption relative to the birth of the child who is sought to be adopted. Filing the adoption petition starts the period within which the investigating adoption agency must interview the petitioners and all persons whose consent is required [see Fam. Code § 8808].

3. Procedure

2-12B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 12B.111

§ 12B.111 Investigation and Report

[1] Duty to Investigate and Report

Within 180 days after receiving 50 percent of the fee, the department or county adoption agency must investigate the proposed adoption and, after the remaining balance of the fee is paid, submit to the court a full report of the facts disclosed by its inquiry with a recommendation regarding the granting of the petition. The court may allow such additional time for the filing of the reports as in its discretion it may see fit, after at least five days' notice to the petitioners and opportunity for the petitioners to be heard with respect to the request for additional time [Fam. Code § 8807(a), (c)].

If the investigation establishes that there is a serious question concerning the suitability of the petitioners or the care provided the child or the availability of the consent to adoption, the report must be filed immediately [Fam. Code § 8807(b); see Adoption of Michelle T. (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 699, 703, 117 Cal. Rptr. 856 (agency must shorten 180-day period in which to submit full report of facts disclosed by inquiry)]. A preliminary report must be filed immediately if there is a serious question as to whether the placement of the child for adoption was made according to law [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35123(f); see Fam. Code § 8801.3]. Proceedings after a negative investigative report has been filed are discussed further in § 12B.112.

If there are concurrent petitions pending for adoption of the same child [see discussion in § 12B.54[4]], the respective investigating agencies must exchange information on the petitions, determine which of the petitioners will best meet the needs of the child, and report to the court [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35079(b)].

The report must contain a summary of the pertinent facts disclosed by the investigation, an evaluation of these facts, and a recommendation regarding the disposition of the adoption petition. The information included in the report must be current and substantiated in the case record [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35123]. The agency must submit a complete report of the facts discovered; that is, the report must be comprehensive to the extent of the investigation, even if the investigation is not complete. It may not be pared down to set forth only adverse facts [Adoption of Michelle T. (1975)

If the petitioner resides in a state other than California, an updated and current home study report conducted and approved by a licensed adoption agency or other authorized resource in that state must be reviewed and endorsed by the department or agency, if the standards and criteria established for a home study report in the other state are substantially commensurate with the home study standards and criteria established in California's adoption regulations [Fam. Code § 8807(d)].

[2] Required Documentation and Role of Counsel

The petitioner's attorney may be able to help reduce the time required for the investigation by furnishing the investigator with all required documentation. This documentation includes release-of-information authorizations, medical reports, school reports, letters of reference, criminal records, and a certificates that each adult in the household is free from communicable tuberculosis [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35087].

[3] Assessments of Petitioners and Child

[a] Assessment Requirements

The investigating agency must make a written assessment of the petitioners to determine their suitability as adoptive parents [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35081]. An interview must be conducted in the home of the petitioners as soon as possible, but no later than 30 days after the receipt of a copy of the adoption petition [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35083(a)(1)]. Each petitioner must be interviewed separately, and they must also be interviewed jointly [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35083(a)(2), (3)]. The agency must also interview any other adults who live in the home and have contact with all children who live in the home [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35083(a)(4)].

The assessment of the petitioners will involve the following matters relating to the petitioners' suitability as adoptive parents [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35089]:

(1) Obtaining the following identifying information on the petitioners and any children or adults residing in their home:

(a) Name, date of birth, and sex;

(b) Current address and telephone number;

(c) Blood relationship to child to be adopted, if any;

(d) Race and ethnic background;

(e) Religion;

(f) Current employment information;

(g) Verification of marital status and verification of termination of any previous marriages; and

(h) Personal and biological relationship of the petitioners to any other individuals residing in their home.

(2) Evaluation of the following for the petitioner and any children and adults residing in their home:

(a) General characteristics;

(b) Feelings and attitudes that may affect the adoption;

(c) Social background;

(d) Educational background;

(e) Financial stability; and

(f) Adequacy of housing.

(3) Evaluation of the full state criminal record, if any, of the petitioners, and the Federal Bureau of Investigation criminal record, if any, if a petitioner has resided in California for less than two years or if information gathered in the assessment has given the agency reason to believe that the petitioner may have committed a crime in another jurisdiction [see Fam. Code § 8811; 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35087(a)(8)].

The investigating agency must obtain a medical report on each petitioner, made on the basis of an examination that was conducted no earlier than six months before the petition was filed. This requirement must be waived if the petitioners are members of a religion that relies on faith and prayer for healing [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35087(a)(3)].

The investigating agency must also assess the child. This assessment must include the child's background, development, health [see Fam. Code §§ 8806, 8817 (requirement of medical report on child and birth parents, discussed in § 12B.34], religion, readiness for adoption and willingness to be adopted if appropriate, adjustment in the petitioners' home, and any other examinations and reports, as necessary [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35093].

[b] Preplacement Evaluation by Private Agency

Prospective adoptive parents can be certified as suited to be adoptive parents by a preplacement evaluation conducted by a licensed private or public adoption agency of the state of the petitioners' residency. [Fam. Code § 8811.5(a)]. The evaluation is conducted pursuant to standards for investigations of independent adoptions by the department. The fee for a preplacement evaluation must be commensurate with the fees charged by the department or delegated county investigating agency for a comparable investigation [Fam. Code § 8811.5(b)]. An initial or renewal certification is valid for one year--that is, the evaluation must be completed no more than one year before the signing of an adoption placement agreement [Fam. Code § 8811.5(c)].

[4] Interviews of Persons Whose Consent Is Required

It is the duty of the department or delegated agency to accept required parental consents if it finds that the proposed adoptive home is suitable for the child [see Fam. Code § 8806]. Persons whose consent is required must generally be interviewed within 45 working days after the date the petition was filed [see Fam. Code § 8808]. For further discussion of the available procedures if the investigating agency refuses to accept a consent [see Fam. Code § 8820], see § 12B.95[4].

[5] Fingerprints and Criminal Record

The Department of Social Services or its delegated county adoption agency must require all persons filing a petition to adopt a child to be fingerprinted, and must secure from an appropriate law enforcement agency any criminal record of that person to determine whether the person has ever been convicted of a crime other than a minor traffic violation. The department or agency may also secure the full criminal record, if any, of those persons. Any criminal record must be taken into consideration in evaluating a prospective adoptive parent. An assessment of the effects of any criminal history on the ability of a prospective adoptive parent to provide adequate and proper care and guidance to the child must be included in the report to the court [Fam. Code § 8811(a), (b)].

Under no circumstances may the department or agency give final approval for an adoptive placement in any home where the prospective adoptive parent or any adult living in the prospective adoptive home has a felony conviction that occurred within the last five years for physical assault, battery, or a drug- or alcohol-related offense, or a felony conviction for child abuse or neglect, spousal abuse, crimes against a child, including child pornography, or for a crime involving violence, including rape, sexual assault, or homicide, but not including other physical assault and battery [Fam. Code § 8811(c)].

Any fee charged by a law enforcement agency for fingerprinting or for checking or obtaining the criminal record of the petitioner must be paid by the petitioner. However, the department or agency may defer, waive, or reduce the fee (1) if payment would cause economic hardship to the adoptive parents that is detrimental to the child's welfare, (2) if the child has been in the foster care of the prospective adoptive parents for at least one year, or (3) if necessary for the placement of a "special needs child" [Fam. Code § 8811(d)]. A "special needs child" is one whose adoption without financial assistance would be unlikely because of adverse parental background; ethnic background; race; color; language; membership in a sibling group that should remain intact; mental, physical, medical, or emotional handicaps; or age of three years or more [Fam. Code § 8545].

[6] Copy of Report to Petitioner

Whenever any report or findings are submitted to the court by the investigating agency, a copy of the report or findings, whether favorable or unfavorable, must be given to the petitioner's attorney of record, if any. If the petitioner has no attorney of record, the copy must be given to the petitioner [Fam. Code § 8821]. No specific time limit is prescribed for giving copies of reports to petitioners or attorneys.

[7] Fee to Fund Independent Adoption Programs

Whenever a petition is filed in an independent adoption for the adoption of a child, the petitioners must pay a nonrefundable fee to the Department of Social Services or to its delegated county adoption agency for the cost of investigating the adoption petition. Fifty percent of the payment must be made to the Department or adoption agency at the time the adoption petition is filed, and the remaining balance must be paid no later than the date determined by the department or agency [Fam. Code § 8810(a)]. The amount of the fee is $4,500 for petitions filed on or after October 1, 2008 [Fam. Code § 8810(a)(1)]. For petitioners who have a valid preplacement evaluation at the time of filing a petition under Fam. Code § 8811.5, the fee is $1,550 for a postplacement evaluation under Fam. Code §§ 8806 and 8807 [Fam. Code § 8810(a)(2)].

The Department or adoption agency may reduce the fee to not less than $500 if the prospective adoptive parents are very low income according to the income limits published by the Department of Housing and Community Development, and making the required payment would be detrimental to the child's welfare [Fam. Code § 8810(c)].

Revenues produced by fees collected by the department must be used, when appropriated by the Legislature, to fund only the state program for independent adoptions. Revenues produced by fees collected by a delegated county adoption agency must be used by the county to fund the county program for independent adoptions [Fam. Code § 8810(b)].

§ 12B.112 Judicial Review of Adverse Investigative Findings

If the Department of Social Services or the delegated county adoption agency finds that the petitioner's home is not suitable for the child or that the required consents are not available and recommends that the petition be denied, or if the petitioners desire to withdraw the petition and the Department or agency recommends that the petition be denied, the county clerk must immediately on receipt refer the report to the court for review. On receipt of the report, the court must set a date for a hearing of the adoption petition and must give reasonable notice of the hearing to the Department of Social Services or delegated county adoption agency, the petitioners, and the birth parents, by certified mail, return receipt requested, to the address of each as shown in the proceeding [Fam. Code § 8822(a), (b)]. The department or delegated county agency must appear to represent the child at the hearing [Fam. Code § 8822(c)]. Failure of the court to hold a trial-like evidentiary hearing is a violation of the Family Code subject to reversal [Adoption of Baby Girl B (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 43, 55, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 569 (affording petitioner opportunity to respond to department's recommendation that petition be denied does not satisfy statutory requirement of evidentiary hearing); Fam. Code § 8822(b)].

Unless the reason for the negative recommendation is that a required consent is not available, the court is not bound to follow the department or agency recommendation. It may grant the petition if it finds the adoption to be in the best interests of the child [Adoption of McDonald (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 447, 456-457, 274 P.2d 860 ; Adoption of Backhaus (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 13, 19-20, 25 Cal. Rptr. 581 (both construing substantially similar prior law)].

If a birth parent whose consent is required has refused to give that consent and demanded the return of the child [see Fam. Code § 8814, discussed in § 12B.95[5]] or if a birth parent revokes his or her consent within the 30-day period allowed by law [see Fam. Code § 8814.5, discussed in § 12B.96], the petition must be denied and the child returned to the birth parent [Fam. Code § 8804(c)]. There is no discretion to consider the best interests of the child [In re Timothy W. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 437, 445-446, 272 Cal. Rptr. 906 ; In re Baby Boy M. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 475, 485, 272 Cal. Rptr. 27 (both construing substantially similar prior law); but cf. In re Bridget R. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1483, 1515-1521, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 507 (custody hearing required if relinquishments are invalid despite ICWA mandate to return child to birthparents)].

If the department or agency recommends that the petition be denied, it must file a full report with the court recommending a suitable future custodial plan for the child [Fam. Code § 8804(a)]. If the court sustains the recommendation of the department or agency that the petition be denied and the child removed from the home (on grounds other than the birth parent's refusal to consent), the court must commit the child to the care of the department or agency, whichever made the recommendation, in order to arrange another adoptive placement or to make a suitable plan [Fam. Code § 8805].

§ 12B.113 Petitioner's Dismissal or Withdrawal of Petition

A petitioner for adoption may move to withdraw the adoption petition or to dismiss the proceeding [see Fam. Code § 8804(a)]. While proceedings on the motion are required, the purpose is to make future arrangements for the child. Notwithstanding withdrawal or dismissal, the court may retain jurisdiction over the child for the purpose of making any order for the child's custody as the court may deem to be in the best interests of the child [Fam. Code § 8804(b)].

On the filing of a motion to dismiss or withdraw, the clerk must immediately notify the Department of Social Services at Sacramento of that action. The department or its delegated county adoption agency must file a full report with the court recommending a suitable plan for the child. The department or agency must appear before the court for the purpose of representing the child [Fam. Code § 8804(a)].

If the reason that the petition is dismissed or withdrawn is that a birth parent has refused to give a required consent [see Fam. Code § 8814, discussed in § 12B.95[5]], or if a birth parent revokes his or her consent within the 90-day period allowed by law [see Fam. Code § 8814.5, discussed in § 12B.96], and has demanded return of the child, the court must order the child restored to the care and custody of the birth parent or parents subject to the provisions of Fam. Code § 3041 [Fam. Code § 8804(c)].

If the child is not to be returned to a birth parent, the court must commit the child to the care of the department or delegated agency to arrange another adoptive placement or to make a suitable custodial plan [Fam. Code § 8805].

§ 12B.114 Setting Adoption Petition for Hearing

Unless a hearing has already occurred because of the filing of an investigative report recommending denial of the petition [see Fam. Code § 8822, discussed in § 12B.112], the petitioners' attorney should schedule a hearing. The hearing should be set promptly after the investigative report is filed or as soon thereafter as the petition is ready to be heard.

In selecting a hearing date, notice or citation requirements must be considered [see Fam. Code §§ 8604-8606, discussed in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights]. By the time a petition receiving a favorable recommendation in the investigative report is set for hearing, all necessary parental consents should have been obtained, or have been determined to be unnecessary, or parental rights of a nonconsenting parent should have been terminated, as discussed in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights .

§ 12B.131 "Stepparent" Defined

A stepparent adoption is an adoption of a child by a stepparent, in which the birth parent who is the spouse of the adopting stepparent retains his or her custody and control of the child [Fam. Code § 8548]. The stepparent must be the lawful spouse of the child's birth parent who will retain parental rights, as opposed to a person in some other relationship with the parent, such as an unmarried cohabitant [see Adoption of Bird (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 140, 147, 6 Cal. Rptr. 675] . An unmarried cohabitant's adoption of the minor child of the other cohabitant would be handled asa general independent adoption, and would follow the procedures discussed in Subpart B, above [see Sharon S. v. Superior Court (Annette F.) (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 417, 422 n.2, 437-438, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 699, 73 P.3d 554 ; see also § 12B.13[2]]. Counsel in a surrogacy situation should also review a 1998 case that held divorcing parents to be the legal parents of a child who was conceived through implantion into a surrogate mother of fertilized ovum from anonymous donors, to see if the intended parents are the legal parents, and no stepparent adoption is necessary [In re Marriage of Buzzanca (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1410, 1428-1429, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 280 ; see § 12.16].

A stepparent adoption may also be a relative adoption that would support a postadoption contact agreement if that right applies outside of agency adoptions [see Fam. Code § 8616.5(c)]. For further discussion, see § 12B.145.

§ 12B.132 Considerations in Stepparent Adoptions

A stepparent adoption involves elements that are different in nature from those present in which persons who seek to adopt a child are not related to the child by blood or affinity [see Adoption of Bird (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 140, 147, 6 Cal. Rptr. 675] . The child is often older than is the case with other kinds of adoptions. The purpose of the adoption is usually to legally confirm a parent-child relationship that already exists in fact. The child has almost always been in his or her custodial situation for some time, living with the custodial parent and the adopting stepparent. Therefore, a determination of the suitability of the adoptive home is not really needed. Further, a denial of the adoption petition does not result in the removal of the child from the home [see ten Broek, California's Adoption Law and Programs, 6 Hastings L.J. 261, 268 (1955)].

§ 12B.134 Effect on Inheritance

Unlike other adoptions, a stepparent adoption does not always terminate the child's right of inheritance by intestacy from and through the parent whose rights are being terminated. Generally, if the birth parent and child lived together at any time during the child's minority, the parent-child relationship continues to exist for the purposes of intestate succession [see Prob. Code § 6451(a)]. This matter is discussed further in Ch. 12. Consent forms promulgated by the Department of Social Services [see § 12B.350[1]] are required to give notice of this effect to the parent who is giving up parental rights [see Fam. Code § 9004].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Stepparent Adoptions

§ 12B.135 Consent Requirements

[1] Petitioner's Spouse

A stepparent may not adopt his or her stepchild without the consent of the birth parent to whom he or she is married [see Fam. Code § 8603, discussed in § 12B.15[3]]. Conceptually, that parent must consent both as a parent and as a spouse of a petitioner for adoption [see Fam. Code §§ 8603-8606].

[2] Noncustodial Parent

The consent of the noncustodial birth parent is the important concern in any stepparent adoption, because his or her parental rights will be terminated pursuant to the adoption [see Fam. Code §§ 8548, 8617; Adoption of Christopher S. (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 433, 242 Cal. Rptr. 866] . In this regard, a stepparent adoption involves the same consent requirements as any other kind of adoption. These requirements are discussed in detail in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights .

Generally, if the noncustodial parent is the child's mother or presumed father [see Fam. Code § 7611, discussed in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights], his or her consent is required unless a statutory ground to dispense with the consent requirement can be established [see Fam. Code §§ 8604-8606]. These exceptions, the most common of which is willful failure to communicate with and support the child for a period of one year, are discussed in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights . If the father was married to and cohabiting with the mother at the time of conception, he is a presumed father [see Fam. Code §§ 7540, 7611], and his consent is required absent proof of a statutory ground to dispense with it. Thus, it is not generally possible after a dissolution of marriage for the custodial parent's new spouse to adopt a child of the previous marriage without the consent of the noncustodial parent, as long as the noncustodial parent has maintained some contact with the child [see, e.g., In re Hickson (1940) 40 Cal. App. 2d 89, 91-93, 104 P.2d 411] .

If the noncustodial parent is not a presumed father, the procedures of the Uniform Parentage Act [see Fam. Code § 7660 et seq.] must be followed to terminate his parental rights or to proceed with the adoption without his consent. The parental rights of any birth parent may also be terminated under Fam. Code § 7800 et seq. These procedures are discussed in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights .

[3] Child

If the stepchild to be adopted is over the age of 12 years, his or her consent to the adoption is required [Fam. Code § 8602]. For further discussion of this requirement and a sample form of written consent, see §§ 12B.13[2], 12B.300[1].

§ 12B.137 Investigation and Report

Neither the Department of Social Services nor licensed county adoption agencies are involved in the investigation of stepparent adoptions. Rather, a probation officer, qualified court investigator, licensed clinical social worker, licensed marriage family therapist, or, at the option of the county board of supervisors, the county welfare department in the county in which the proceeding for adoption is pending must investigate a stepparent adoption [Fam. Code § 9001(a)]. A qualified court investigator is a superior court investigator with the same minimum qualifications as a probation officer or county welfare worker who is designated to conduct stepparent adoption investigations [Fam. Code § 8543]. No order of adoption may be made by the court until after the investigating officer has filed a report and recommendation and it has been considered by the court [Fam. Code § 9001(a)].

No home study of the petitioner's home is required unless ordered by the court. The agency conducting the investigation or any interested person may request the court to order a home study or the court may order such a study on its own motion. A "home study" means a physical investigation of the premises where the child is residing [Fam. Code § 9001(b), (c)].

The adopting stepparent is liable for all reasonable costs incurred in connection with the adoption, including but not limited to, costs incurred in the investigation, up to a statutory maximum amount [see Fam. Code § 9002]. The court, probation officer, qualified court investigator, or county welfare department may defer, waive, or reduce the fee for costs if payment would cause economic hardship to the prospective adoptive parent that would be detrimental to the welfare of the adoptive child [Fam. Code § 9002].

§ 12B.138 Manner of Obtaining Consent

In a stepparent adoption, the consent of either or both parents must be signed in the presence of a notary public, court clerk, probation officer, qualified court investigator, or county welfare department staff member of any county in California. The person before whom it is signed must immediately file the consent with the clerk of the superior court of the county where the petition is filed. The clerk must immediately notify the investigating officer of the same county. If the birth parent of a child to be adopted is outside the State of California at the time of signing consent, his or her consent may be signed before a notary or another person authorized to perform notarial acts [Fam. Code § 9003(a), (b)].

A birth parent who is a minor has the right to sign a consent for the adoption of the birth parent's child and the consent is not subject to revocation by reason of the minority [Fam. Code § 9003(d)].

Consent must be given on a form prescribed by the Department of Social Services [see Fam. Code § 9004]. The department has promulgated several forms for use to obtain parental consent in stepparent adoptions. The various forms suit particular circumstances, such as a parent's presence in, or absence from, California, or service in the armed forces. Form AD 2A, Stepparent Adoption: Consent to Adoption by Parent Giving Custody to Husband or Wife of Other Parent, is reproduced as § 12B.350[1].

An acknowledged consent form that recites that the person giving it is entitled to sole custody of the child is prima facie evidence of the right of the person making it to the sole custody of the child and that person's sole right to consent [Fam. Code § 9003(c)]. However, statutory requirements must be met [see Fam. Code §§ 7600 et seq., 7800 et seq., 8604, 8605] before the adoption may proceed without the consent of a birth parent.

Once given, consent of a birth parent to the adoption of the child by the stepparent may not be withdrawn except with court approval [Fam. Code § 9005(a)]. The procedures and standards regarding withdrawal of consent in a stepparent adoption are essentially the same as those that applied under prior law in an independent adoption [compare Fam. Code § 9005 (stepparent adoptions) with former Fam. Code § 8815 (before revision operative January 1, 1995); see Summary of Independent Adoptions Procedures Applicable to Petitions Filed Before January 1, 1995, in Subpart A of Part III, above]. A request for approval of withdrawal of consent may be made by motion, or the birth parent seeking to withdraw consent may file a petition for approval of withdrawal of consent with the clerk of court where the adoption petition is pending. The motion or petition must be in writing, and must set forth the reasons for withdrawal of consent. Otherwise, it may be in any form [Fam. Code § 9005(a)]. No fee is to becharged for the filing of the request for approval to withdraw consent [Fam. Code § 9005(a)].

The court clerk must set the matter for hearing and must give notice at least 10 days before the time set for the hearing, to the probation officer, qualified court investigator, or county welfare department, to the prospective adoptive parent, and the birth parent or parents by certified mail, return receipt requested, to the address of each as shown in the proceeding [Fam. Code § 9005(b)].

Before the hearing, the probation officer, qualified court investigator or county welfare department must file a full report with the court. During the hearing, he or she must appear to represent the interests of the child [Fam. Code § 9005(c)].

The parties may appear in person or with counsel at the hearing. The hearing must be held in chambers. However, the court reporter, whose fee shall be paid from county treasury upon court order, shall report the proceedings. The court must approve withdrawal of the consent if it finds that withdrawal is reasonable in view of all the circumstances and is in the child's best interest. Otherwise, the court must withhold its approval [Fam. Code § 9005(d)].

Consideration of the child's best interest must include, but is not limited to, an assessment of the child's age the extent of bonding with the prospective adoptive parent, the extent of bonding or the potential to bond with the birth parent, and ability of the birth parent to provide adequate and proper care and guidance to the child [Fam. Code § 9005(d)].

Once the court approves the withdrawal of consent, the adoption proceeding must be dismissed [Fam. Code § 9005(d)]. A court order granting or withholding approval of a motion or petition for withdrawal of consent to stepparent adoption may be appealed in the same manner as an order of the juvenile court declaring a person to be a ward of the court [Fam. Code § 9005(e)].

However, since a stepparent adoption seldom involves any change in the child's legal or physical custodial arrangement, the investigator is not required to take any steps regarding the custody of the child on receiving notice that the petition has been withdrawn.

§ 12B.144 Visitation Rights of Deceased Parent's Family

If an unemancipated minor's birth parent is deceased, the children, parents, and grandparents of the deceased parent may be granted visitation rights with the child [Fam. Code § 3102(a)], and these rights may be continued after the child has been adopted by a stepparent [Fam. Code § 3102(c)]. The court must find that visitation rights would be in the best interests of the child [Fam. Code § 3102(a)]. In making this determination, except when granting visitation rights to a grandparent, the court must consider the amount of personal contact between the visiting persons and the child before the application for the order for visitation [Fam. Code §§ 200, 3102(b)].

However, any visitation rights granted to the parents of the child's noncustodial birth parent may be terminated by a stepparent's adoption of the child [*Lopez v. Martinez (2000) 85 Cal. § 12B.145 Postadoption Contact ("Contact After Adoption") Agreement

Nothing in California's adoption laws prevents the adopting parents, the birth relatives (including the birth parents), and the child from entering into a written agreement to permit continuing contact between the birth relatives (including the birth parents), and the child, if the agreement is found by the court to have been entered into voluntarily and to be in the best interests of the child at the time the adoption petition is granted [Fam. Code § 8616.5(b)(1)]. The Judicial Council forms and court rules now refer to these agreements as "contact after adoption" agreements. However, under the authorizing statute, such an agreement is called a "postadoption contact agreement," and effective January 1, 2001, is available in relative and nonrelative adoptions alike [see Stats. 2000, ch. 910]. From January 1, 1998, through December 31, 2000, "postadoption contact agreements" were known as "kinship adoption agreements," and were only available in relative adoptions. Although the provisions for postadoption contact agreements are set forth in Chapter 2 of Part 2 of the Fam. Code governing agency adoptions, there is nothing in the text of the statutes that would prohibit such an agreement in an independent adoption [see Fam. Code § 8616.5].

If the petitioner has entered into a postadoption contact agreement with the birth parent, the agreement, signed by the participating parties, must be attached to and filed with the petition for adoption [Fam. Code § 9000(f); see Fam. Code § 8616.5(c)].

§ 12B.161 Roles of Attorney and Agency

In agency adoptions, the attorney for the prospective adoptive parents has traditionally served primarily as a monitor and facilitator of the process. However, the attorney's role in dealing with agencies is an evolving one. Amendments to procedures for independent adoptions that became operative in 1995 have made independent adoptions more cumbersome, from the attorney's perspective [see Summary of Independent Adoptions Procedures Applicable to Petitions Filed Before January 1, 1995, Subpart A, Part III, above]. The ease with which agencies can comply with requirements of the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children [see § 12B.251], for example, have made the use of agency procedures, especially "identified adoptions," another option available to complete an adoption. Similarly, "attorney assisted adoptions" are recognized by many agencies in which the attorney performs a role very similar to that in an independent adoption, with the agency's role more confined to such traditional functions as evaluation, supervision, and the taking of relinquishments of the birth parents. Thus, while the attorney's role differs in agency situations, the roles traditionally played have begun to blur, and the discussion that follows should be viewed in this context.

In an agency adoption, the relationship between the agency and the prospective adoptive parents is more extensive than in an independent adoption. The agency has selected the attorney's clients as prospective adoptive parents, has placed the child in their home, and is supervising the placement on an ongoing basis. Therefore, the agency case worker is in a position to provide much of the nonlegal advice and support needed by the parents. Further, the agency has the responsibility of freeing the child for adoption by resolving all issues related to the birth parents [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35128, discussed in § 12B.163] so that the attorney need not be directly concerned with matters such as relinquishment, consent, and termination of parental rights.

In an agency adoption, the assessment of the prospective adoptive parents is completed while they are applicants to adopt, that is, before a child is actually placed in their home for adoption [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35180 et seq., discussed in § 12B.188]. Thus, the attorney will assist in compiling all of the information required for the assessment [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35180 et seq.] only in cases in which persons seeking to adopt through an agency seek legal services at the application stage, which is not common, considering the significant time that usually passes between application and placement.

[1] In General

The Department of Social Services or a licensed adoption agency receives a child for adoptive placement in one of several ways. First, the child may be relinquished to the department or an agency by one or both birth parents [see Fam. Code § 8700(a), discussed in Subpart 2, below]. Second, the child may be referred to the agency by the juvenile court after the parental rights of the birth parents have been terminated pursuant to juvenile court child dependency law [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 366.26(i) (applicable to minors adjudged dependents of juvenile court after 1988)]. Termination of parental rights in juvenile court is considered in detail in Ch. 328, Juvenile Courts: Dependency Proceedings . Third, the child may have been ordered into the custody of the agency because one or both parents is deceased [see Fam. Code § 8705(a), discussed in § 12B.162[2]]. Fourth, the child may be referred to the agency for adoptive placement after the child is declared free from the custody and control of both parents (or of one parent if the other no longer has custody and control) [Fam. Code § 7893].

The department or licensed adoption agency to which a child has been freed for adoption by either relinquishment or termination of parental rights is responsible for the care of the child and is entitled to the exclusive custody and control of the child until an order of adoption has been granted [Fam. Code § 8704(a); cf. Fam. Code § 7893(b)(1)]. The agency has the exclusive right to select the home for both temporary care and adoptive placement, subject only to review by the court for abuse of discretion [In re Harry N. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 1378, 1395-1398, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 46 (juvenile court order keeping minor placed with foster parents reversed when DSS recommended adoption by parental aunt and uncle); Los Angeles County Dept. of Children and Family Services v. Superior Court (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1, 9-10, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 369 ; Department of Social Services v. Superior Court (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 721, 732-734, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 239] .

[2] Action for Custody of Child With Deceased Parents

If, in the case of a child in the custody of a public agency or licensed adoption agency, it has been established that the persons whose consent to the adoption of that child is required by law are deceased, an action may be brought by the Department of Social Services or a licensed adoption agency to request the court to make an order establishing that the requesting agency has the right to custody and control of the child and the authority to place the child for adoption. The agency bringing the action must provide notice of the action, in such form as prescribed by the court, to all known relatives of the child up to and including the third degree of lineal and collateral consanguinity [Fam. Code § 8705(a)]. This action may not be brought if a guardian of the person of the child has been appointed pursuant to nomination by a will [Fam. Code § 8705(b)].

1. Preliminary Considerations

§ 12B.163 Freeing Child for Adoption

In agency adoptions, a birth parent voluntarily gives up his or her rights with regard to the child to be adopted by "relinquishing" the child to an agency rather than by "consenting" to the adoption [see Fam. Code § 8700(a), discussed in Subpart 2, below]. A valid relinquishment, under California law or the law of any other jurisdiction, makes further consent to the adoption by the relinquishing parent unnecessary [see Fam. Code § 8606(e)]. However, consent becomes an issue if only one birth parent agrees to relinquish the child [Adoption of Daniele G. (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 1392, 1401-1408, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341 (unwed biological father has constitutionally protected interest in opportunity to form relationship with child, and therefore may block adoption proceedings)]. Whether an agency adoption may proceed in such a case depends on whether the legal relationship between the child and the nonrelinquishing parent can be terminated [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35128].

The agency to whom the child has been relinquished by only one birth parent has the responsibility of terminating the parental rights of the other parent [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35128]. The department requires that the child be freed for adoption by a subsequent relinquishment by the nonrelinquishing parent, or by court action terminating parental rights [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35128]. These proceedings are discussed in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights . The agency must identify and attempt to contact, if possible, all parents who may have a potential legal claim to the child [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35128].

Although an adoption can be granted by an order dispensing with a parent's consent [Fam. Code §§ 8604-8606], the regulations contemplate an order terminating parental rights [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 35128, 35199].

Termination of the parental rights of an alleged natural (not presumed) father under the Uniform Parentage Act may be easier than terminating the rights of a nonrelinquishing mother or presumed father [see Fam. Code §§ 7662, 7664]. These proceedings are discussed in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights .

The filing of a relinquishment document with the Department of Social Services terminates the relinquishing parent's rights and responsibilities with regard to the child [Fam. Code § 8700(j); see Fam. Code § 8700(g); for discussion, see § 12B.172]. Legal custody of the child then vests in the agency [Guardianship of Baby Boy M. (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 254, 270, 135 Cal. Rptr. 866 ; see Fam. Code § 8704, discussed in § 12B.162]. No further consent by the relinquishing parent to an adoption is required [see Fam. Code § 8606(e)].

Relinquishment also affects the process of petitioning for a change of name for minors age 12 years or older. If an agency has custody of a relinquished child in that age group who desires to change his or her name, the petition for change of name must be signed both by the child and the adoption agency Code Civ. Proc. § 1276(d)]. For a discussion of procedure and forms suitable for use in a change of name proceeding, see Ch. 377, Name, Change of.

§ 12B.171 Services Before Accepting Relinquishment

Before accepting a relinquishment from a birth parent, an adoption agency must provide a minimum of two face-to-face interviews over a period of two or more days. During these interviews, the agency must explain the purpose of the agency and the services it provides. It must provide a sample copy of the Statement of Understanding [see § 12B.361[1]] and relinquishment document [see § 12B.360[1]] at the first interview [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35129 et seq. (requirements for advisements and interviews); Fam. Code § 8700(d) (same counseling and advisement services must precede taking relinquishment from out-of-state parent)]. The documents may be signed at the end of the second interview [Tyler v. Children's Home Society (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 511, 530, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 291] .

Before accepting a parent's relinquishment, the agency must also provide counseling to the parent [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35129(a)(2)]. The counseling is intended to assist the parent to understand his or her feelings about relinquishing the child for adoption and the long range implications of relinquishment, and also to assist the parent freely to make his or her choice regarding relinquishment of the child to the agency for adoption [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35129(a)(2)].

If the child is not then placed in the home of the named persons, or the child is later removed from that home before the adoption decree is granted, the department or agency must give the birth parent notice of the decision not to place the child in that home or to remove the child from the home. The notice must be given by certified mail, return receipt requested, within 72 hours after the decision [Fam. Code § 8700(g); 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35156(a)]. 2. Relinquishment of Child to Agency

§ 12B.173 Procedure for Accepting Relinquishments

[1] In General

Relinquishment must be by a written statement, signed by two subscribing witnesses and acknowledged before an authorized official of the Department of Social Services or the licensed adoption agency to which the child is being relinquished [Fam. Code § 8700(a)]. The witnesses must be at least 18 years of age [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35151].

The relinquishment must be signed and acknowledged on forms provided by the department [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35143; see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35145 (required contents and list of applicable forms)]. One of these forms, AD 501 for use by a birth mother or presumed father who is a resident of California and of the same county in which the agency is located, is reproduced as § 12B.360[1]. The parent must be given a copy of the completed relinquishment document [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35151].

If the relinquishing birth parent resides outside of California and the child is being, or will be, cared for and is, or will be, placed for adoption by the department or a licensed adoption agency, the birth parent may relinquish the child to the department or agency by a written statement signed before a notary on a form prescribed by the department, and previously signed by an authorized official of the department or agency. The form must signify the willingness of the department or agency to accept the relinquishment [Fam. Code § 8700(c)].

If a relinquishing parent and child reside outside California and the child will be cared for and placed for adoption by the department or a licensed adoption agency, the relinquishing parent may relinquish the child to the department or agency by a written statement signed by that parent [Fam. Code § 8700(d)]. Before signing the relinquishment, the parent must have received from a representative of an agency licensed or approved to provide adoption services under the laws of the parent's state of residence the same counseling and advisement services as if the parent resided in California [Fam. Code § 8700(d)(1)]. The relinquishment must be signed before a representative of an agency licensed or approved to provide adoption services under the laws of the parent's state of residence if possible or before a licensed social worker on a form prescribed by the department, and previously signed by an authorized official of the department or agency, that signifies the department's or agency's willingness to accept the relinquishment [Fam. Code § 8700(d)(2)].

Although not presently reflected in the department's relinquishment forms, there is a statutory provision that if a duly acknowledged relinquishment recites that the person making it is entitled to the sole custody of the child, it is prima facie evidence of that person's right to sole custody and sole right to relinquish [Fam. Code § 8700(a)]. However, the statutory requirements of Fam. Code §§ 7600 et seq., 7800 et seq., and 8604-8606, discussed in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights , must be met before the adoption may proceed without the consent of a birth parent who does not join in the relinquishment [see discussion in § 12B.163].

[2] Relinquishment Only After Child Is Born

An agency may accept a relinquishment only after the child is born. Furthermore, a mother's relinquishment of a newborn may be accepted only after she has been medically discharged from the hospital after childbirth. However, if the mother is hospitalized more than five days, a relinquishment may be taken if the mother's attending physician signs a written statement that she is not suffering from a known physical or mental impairment that would preclude the mother's ability to relinquish the child for adoption [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35139].

[3] Prior Determinations

[a] Capacity

A birth parent who is a minor may relinquish his or her child for adoption to the Department of Social Services or to a licensed agency. The relinquishment is not subject to revocation by reason of the birth parent's minority [Fam. Code § 8700(b)].

An agency may accept a relinquishment only if it determines that the parent has the ability to understand the content, nature, and effect of signing the relinquishment. If the agency representative's observation or knowledge of the parent's history or current condition indicates that the parent may not have this ability, he or she must refer the parent to a licensed physician or to a licensed clinical psychologist for an evaluation of the parent's ability to understand. An evaluation is indicated under circumstances including, but not limited to, the following: (1) the parent is receiving public assistance on account of mental illness or developmental disability, or (2) the parent has received psychiatric treatment or medication for mental illness or disease in the past two years [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35135(a)(5)].

The agency may accept the relinquishment only if the evaluation establishes the parent's ability to understand the content, nature, and effect of signing the relinquishment. It must be accepted no later than 30 days after the evaluation is completed. If the parent has a court-appointed conservator, a relinquishment may not be accepted unless the order appointing the conservator specifically allows the parent to relinquish his or her child for adoption [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35137].

[b] Other Matters

Before accepting a parent's relinquishment of a child for adoption, the agency must determine that the parent has chosen the plan of adoption for the child and freely chooses to relinquish the child. It must also determine that the agency is able to place the child for adoption, whether the child is subject to the provisions of the Indian Child Welfare Act [25 U.S.C. § 1901 et seq., discussed in § 12B.270 et seq.], and that the parent has received the required counseling [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35135; see discussion in § 12B.171].

[4] Required Statements and Disclosures

[a] Statement of Understanding

A companion form, called a Statement of Understanding, must be signed before the relinquishment form is signed [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 35149, 35351]. Its extensive contents are prescribed by regulation and essentially summarize the law of agency adoptions [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 35152.1, 35152.2]. If the Statement of Understanding is signed in California, it must be signed in the presence of an agency representative and two witnesses at least 18 years of age. Other procedures apply if it is signed outside of California. The parent must be given a copy of the signed form [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35149]. A Department of Social Services form of a Statement of Understanding is reproduced in § 12B.361[1].

[b] Right to Information on Status of Child

On or before the time when a relinquishment is signed, the birth parent signing the relinquishment must be advised verbally and in writing by the Department of Social Services or the licensed adoption agency, that he or she may, at any time in the future, request from the department or agency all known information about the status of the child's adoption, except for personal, identifying information about the adoptive family. The birth parent must be advised that this information includes, but is not limited to, all of the following: (1) whether the child has been placed for adoption; (2) the approximate date that an adoption was completed; and (3) if the adoption was not completed or was vacated for any reason, whether adoptive placement of the child is again being considered [Fam. Code § 8701].

[c] Statements Regarding Future Communication and Confidentiality

A statement must be presented to the birth parents at the time the relinquishment is signed (and to prospective adoptive parents at the time of the home study) that, in a clear and concise manner, in words calculated to assure the confidence of the birth parents in the integrity of the adoption process, must communicate to the birth parent of a child who is the subject of an adoption petition all of the following facts [Fam. Code § 8702]:

> (1) It is in the best interest of the child that the birth parents keep the Department of Social Services or agency to which the child was relinquished informed of any health problems that the parent develops that could affect the child.
> (2) It is extremely important that the birth parent keep his or her address current with the department in order to permit a response to any inquiries to the department or licensed adoption agency concerning medical or social history.
> (3) Fam. Code § 9203 authorizes a person who has been adopted and who attains the age of 21 to petition the department to obtain the name and address of his or her birth parents. Consequently, it is of the utmost importance that the birth parent indicate whether or not he or she wishes his or her name and address to be so disclosed by checking the appropriate box provided on the form.
> (4) The birth parent may change his or her decision as to whether or not he or she wishes his or her name and address disclosed, at any time, by sending a notarized letter to that effect, by certified mail, return receipt requested, to the department or to the licensed adoption agency that joined in the adoption petition.
> (5) The relinquishment will be filed in the office of the clerk of the court in which the adoption takes place. The file is not open to inspection by any persons other than the parties to the adoption proceedings, their attorneys, and the department, except on order of the judge of the superior court.

Confidentiality and procedures for obtaining information concerning completed adoptions are discussed in Ch. 12D, Adoptions: Amendment and Inspection of Records .

When the parental rights of a birth parent are terminated under Fam. Code § 7800 et seq., discussed in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights , the Uniform Parentage Act [see Fam. Code § 7660 et seq., discussed in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights], or juvenile court dependency law [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 366.25, 366.26, discussed in Ch. 328, Juvenile Courts: Dependency Proceedings], the licensed adoption agency or the Department of Social Services must send a written notice to the birth parent, if his or her address is known, that contains the following statement: "You are encouraged to keep this agency informed of your current address in order to permit a response to any inquiry concerning medical or social history made by or on behalf of the child who was the subject of the court action terminating parental rights" [Fam. Code § 8703].

[5] Holding Period and Filing Relinquishment

A relinquishment is not final and effective to terminate parental rights until a certified copy of the relinquishment is sent to and filed with the Department of Social Services [Fam. Code § 8700(e)(1), (j); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35000(f)(3) (DSS regulations define "filing" as "receipt and acknowledgment")]. Therefore, a relinquishing parent is permitted to indicate whether the relinquishment form is to be filed with the Department of Social Services immediately or only after a "holding period" of up to 30 days [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35141]. The parent may wish to request such a holding period in order to give further thought to the matter of relinquishment and adoption.

The licensed adoption agency must send the certified copy of the relinquishment by certified mail, return receipt requested, or by overnight courier or messenger, with proof of delivery, to the department no earlier than the end of the business day following its signing. The agency must inform the birth parent that during this time period, he or she may request that the relinquishment be withdrawn and that, if he or she makes the request, the relinquishment will be withdrawn [Fam. Code § 8700(e)(1)].

There may be an extended holding period beyond 30 days if questions about the right of the other parent to the custody of the child have not been resolved [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35141; see discussion in § 12B.163]. The regulation would appear to require that the agency and parent agree to any such extended holding period. However, unless there is a judicial determination that the nonrelinquishing parent's consent is not required or that his or her parental rights are to be terminated, no adoption may be granted [see Fam. Code §§ 7660 et seq., 8604-8606, discussed in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights ; see also 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35128]. If the relinquishment is filed with the department anyway, it would appear that the relinquishing parent's rights are terminated, even though there will be no adoption [see Fam. Code § 8700(h), (j)]. The nonrelinquishing parent might obtain custody of the child, but the child would have no other legal parent.

Within 10 working days of the expiration of any holding period, or within 10 working days after execution if no holding period is requested, the agency must submit the relinquishment and Statement of Understanding to the department for filing. The agency must certify in writing that the parent did not request return of the child during any holding period. Any psychiatric or psychological evaluation and conservator's statement must also be submitted. The relinquishing parent must receive a copy of the filed relinquishment form [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35151(a)(3)(D)].

The relinquishment is final 10 business days after the department receives the filing unless the department sends written acknowledgment of receipt of the relinquishment before the expiration of the 10-day period (at which time the relinquishment is final), or a longer period of time is necessary due to a pending court action or some other cause beyond the department's control [Fam. Code § 8700(e)(1)]. After the relinquishment is final, it may be rescinded only by the mutual consent of the department or licensed adoption agency to which the child was relinquished and the birth parent or parents who relinquished the child [Fam. Code § 8700(e)(2)].

Notwithstanding Fam. Code § 8700, the court may uphold the validity of an otherwise defective relinquishment when there is substantial compliance with the statute and the relinquishment was valid, that is, a knowing, intelligent waiver of parental rights [Adoption of Baby D. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 1, 11, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 760 (valid relinquishment despite DSS finding it was defective because birth mother inadvertently failed to initial box 20 on form generated Statement of Understanding)].

[6] Required Notices for Dependent Child

If a child relinquished by a parent has been found to be a dependent child of the juvenile court, or if dependency proceedings are pending, the Department or agency accepting the relinquishment must provide written notice of the relinquishment within five court days to the following [Fam. Code § 8700(i)]:

- The juvenile court having jurisdiction of the child;
- The child's attorney, if any; and
- The relinquishing parent's attorney, if any.

[7] Required Notices for Indian Child

The Department of Social Services, a licensed adoption agency, or adoption service provider must ask the child and the child's parent or custodian whether the child is, or may be, a member of, or eligible for membership in an Indian tribe or whether the child has been identified as a member of an Indian organization [Fam. Code § 8620(a)(1)]. If there is any oral or written information that indicates that the child is, or may be, an Indian child, the Department must obtain specified information about the child, the child's family members, and the child's tribe, and must send a notice, including this information, and a request for confirmation of the child's Indian status to any parent and any custodian of the child, and to any tribe of which the child is, or may be, a member or eligible for membership [Fam. Code § 8620(a)(2), (3)(A); see § 12B.271].

The notice must be sent by registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, to all tribes of which the child may be a member or eligible for membership [Fam. Code § 8620(d)(1)-(3)]. Notice must be sent whenever there is reason to believe the child may be an Indian child, and for every hearing thereafter, including, but not limited to, the hearing at which the final adoption order is to be granted [Fam. Code § 8620(d)(5)]. For further discussion of adoption of Indian children, see §§ 12B.270, 12B.271.

§ 12B.174 Revocation of Relinquishment

Revocation is an action taken by the parent who has signed a relinquishment to nullify the relinquishment before it has been filed with the Department of Social Services [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35000(r)(11)]. Revocation generally occurs during a holding period before the agency submits the relinquishment to the department for filing [see discussion in § 12B.173[5]].

An oral or written declaration by a relinquishing parent that he or she wishes to revoke the relinquishment and have the child returned must be treated as an expression of intent to revoke the relinquishment if it is made before the relinquishment is filed with the Department of Social Services. On receipt of the declaration, the agency must cease all adoptive planning for the child and give the parent the revocation form prescribed by the department [see § 12B.362[1]]. The agency must also advise the parent that he or she has 14 days from the date on which the agency provided the form within which to provide the agency with a written request for revocation and specify the date by which the form must be completed and returned to the agency [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35153].

Subject to the exceptions discussed below, the agency must return the child to the relinquishing parent who gave physical custody of the child to the agency within seven working days following receipt of the parent's completed revocation form. If the other parent joined in the relinquishment, he or she must be notified immediately that the child is being returned to the revoking parent [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35155]. If a relinquishment is revoked by a parent who did not give physical custody of the child to the agency, the agency must initiate court proceedings to determine custody of the child and whether a plan for adoption may proceed. If the other parent has also relinquished the child, that parent must be notified immediately of the revocation and the initiation of court proceedings [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35157].

If the agency suspects that the parents to whom the child is to be returned have endangered the physical or mental health of a child by abuse or neglect, the agency must immediately file a Suspected Child Abuse Report (Form SS 8572) [22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 35153.1, 35155]. If the relinquishment is revoked by a parent of a child who is a dependent child of the court or the subject of a juvenile court petition, the agency shall notify the supervising county welfare department; unless the child was detained, or was a dependent child in out-of-home care, the child must be returned to the relinquishing parent who gave physical custody of the child to the agency [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35159].

2. Relinquishment of Child to Agency

§ 12B.175 Rescission of Relinquishment

[1] By Mutual Agreement of Parent and Agency

Rescission is an action taken by mutual agreement of the relinquishing parent and the agency that accepted the relinquishment to nullify the relinquishment after it has been filed with the Department of Social Services [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35000(r)(8); see Fam. Code § 8700(h)]. Absent such a mutual rescission, the relinquishment is final on filing to terminate the parental rights of the relinquishing parent [Fam. Code § 8700(h), (i); but see discussion in § 12B.176].

An oral or written declaration by a relinquishing parent that he or she wishes to revoke the relinquishment and have the child returned must be treated as a request for rescission if it is made after the relinquishment is filed with the department [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35169(b)]. On receipt of the declaration, the agency must cease all adoptive planning for the child and give the parent the rescission form prescribed by the department [see § 12B.363[1]]. The agency must also specify the date by which the form must be completed and returned to the agency and inform the parent that if the form is not completed and returned to the agency by that date, the request for rescission will be nullified [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35169(b)(1)].

In considering a request to rescind, the agency must provide the parent with an opportunity to present the reason for rescission and the parent's plan for the care of the child. It must also consider the child's needs, the adequacy of the parent's plan, and the public and community resources and services available to assist the parent in caring for the child [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35170(a)].

If the agency agrees to rescind the relinquishment, it must mutually agree with the parent regarding the time and place for return of the child, which must be within seven days from the time when the decision to rescind is made. If the other parent also relinquished the child, the agency must inform him or her that he or she may also rescind the relinquishment. The agency must also notify the department of the rescission within three working days [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35170(b)].

If the agency knows or reasonably suspects the parent has endangered the physical or mental health of the child by abuse or neglect, the agency must contact the appropriate child protective agency and file a Suspected Child Abuse Report (Form SS 8572) [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35170(b)(1)(A)(2); Penal Code § 11166(a)].

When the child whose relinquishment is rescinded is a dependent of the juvenile court, the juvenile court with jurisdiction, the child's attorney, and the relinquishing parent's attorney must be notified of the agency's decision to rescind the relinquishment, and the agency must make a recommendation regarding the return of the child [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35170(b)(1)(B)]. Further placement of the child would be determined in the juvenile court.

If the agency's decision is not to rescind the relinquishment, the agency director or his or her designee must review the decision. Within three days, a copy of the decision must be sent to the department, and to the rescinding parent together with the reasons for the agency's decision. If the child was a dependent of the juvenile court, the agency must notify the juvenile court and the attorneys for the child and the relinquishing parent of the request to rescind the relinquishment and the agency's decision not to rescind [22 Cal. Code Reg. 35170(c)].

[2] On Failure of Identified Adoption

If a relinquishing birth parent specifies the name of the person or persons with whom he or she wants the child to be placed, and the child is not placed with (or later is removed from the home of) those persons, the birth parent has a right of rescission [see Fam. Code § 8700(f)-(j), discussed in § 12B.172]. The Department of Social Services or agency that accepted the relinquishment must rescind the relinquishment if the parent rescinds within 30 days after the mailing of notice of the decision not to place the child with the identified persons or to remove the child from that home [Fam. Code § 8700(h)(1); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35170(d) (procedures that department or agency must follow to rescind reliquishment)]. If the birth parent does not rescind within 30 days, the department or agency must select other adoptive parents for the child [Fam. Code § 8700(h)(2)]. If the birth parent and the department or agency wish to identify a different person or persons during the 30-day period with whom the child is intended to be placed, the initial relinquishment must be rescinded and a new relinquishment identifying the persons must be completed [Fam. Code § 8700(h)(3)].

If the child was a dependent of the juvenile court, the agency must notify the juvenile court, and the attorneys for the child and the relinquishing parent that the relinquishment has been rescinded [22 Cal. Code Reg. 35170(d)].

§ 12B.176 Equitable Action to Set Aside Relinquishment

Despite the statutory language that a relinquishment may be rescinded only by the mutual consent of the agency and parent [see Fam. Code § 8700(e), discussed in § 12B.175], a parent may bring an action or proceeding to set aside a relinquishment for cause [Tyler v. Children's Home Society (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 511, 529, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 291 ; Brooks v. Los Angeles County Bureau of Adoptions (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 732, 733-734, 32 Cal. Rptr. 466 ; see Fiske v. Director, Dep't of Public Welfare (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 31, 36-37, 236 P.2d 427] . Such an action is a nonstatutory equitable proceeding [Guardianship of Baby Boy M. (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 254, 271, 135 Cal. Rptr. 866 , and the granting or withholding of equitable relief is a matter within the discretion of the court [Tyler v. Children's Home Society (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 511, 529, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 291] . Grounds for rescission include fraud, misrepresentation, duress, undue influence, or constructive fraud [see Tyler v. Children's Home Society (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 511, 548-551, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 291 (relinquishment may be set aside for constructive fraud on proof that parents were mislead to their prejudice, but facts failed to show any prejudice); In re Cheryl E. (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 587, 599-602, 207 Cal. Rptr. 728 (misrepresentation that mother could get child back within one year); Brooks v. Los Angeles County Bureau of Adoptions (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 732, 734, 32 Cal. Rptr. 466 ; see also Civ. Code §§ 1566, 1567 (duress, menace, fraud, undue influence, or mistake vitiates consent in contract law); Fiske v. Director, Dep't of Public Welfare (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 31, 36-37, 236 P.2d 427] .

In such an action, the best interests of the child are not necessarily the overriding consideration or even at issue [Tyler v. Children's Home Society (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 511, 541, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 291 ; In re Cheryl E. (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 587, 603, 207 Cal. Rptr. 728] . An adoption agency may not be permitted to abridge a birth parent's fundamental right to raise his or her own children free from unwarranted state intrusion [see In re Carmaleta B. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 482, 489, 146 Cal. Rptr. 623, 579 P.2d 514] by deceitful acts, solely because, in the view of the agency, the acts are in the best interests of the child [In re Cheryl E. (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 587, 606, 207 Cal. Rptr. 728] .

However, there is a strong public policy in favor of giving effect to relinquishments because of the disruptive effect that rescission will have on the child and on the adoptive parents [Tyler v. Children's Home Society (1994) 29 Cal. App.

4th 511, 529, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 291] . Therefore, the principle of liberal construction of adoption laws in order to promote the welfare of children applies to relinquishments [Tyler v. Children's Home Society (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 511, 551, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 291] . It must be the conduct of the adoption agency that constitutes cause to set aside the relinquishment. Duress or fraud by a third party is sufficient grounds only if the agency was in some way connected with, or at least knew of, the conduct [see Hall v. Department of Adoptions (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 898, 902-903, 121 Cal. Rptr. 223] . If fraud is alleged as the basis for rescission, the facts that constitute the fraud must be specifically pleaded [Hall v. Department of Adoptions (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 898, 904, 121 Cal. Rptr. 223] . The facts must show that the parent would not have relinquished the child but for the fraud or undue influence [Tyler v. Children's Home Society (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 511, 529, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 291] .

Noncompliance with the regulations governing agency adoptions and relinquishment does not automatically vitiate a relinquishment. Noncompliance will constitute a ground for a birth parent's unilateral rescission of a relinquishment, regardless of the lack of fraudulent intent, only if it rises to the level of constructive fraud; that is, if the violation causes prejudice to the relinquishing parents that affects their decision to relinquish. The parent bears the burden of proving all aspects of constructive fraud, including prejudice [Tyler v. Children's Home Society (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 511, 529, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 291] .

If both parents have relinquished the child and one parent subsequently attempts to set aside the relinquishment, the other parent is an indispensable party to the proceeding. That parent's rights and responsibilities regarding the child will be affected by the resolution of the matter [see Hall v. Department of Adoptions (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 898, 905-906, 121 Cal. Rptr. 223] .

The Department of Social Services is required by statute to establish a statewide photo-listing service to serve all licensed adoption agencies in the state as a means of recruiting adoptive families for children who have been legally freed, and whose case plan goal is adoption. The photo-listing service must maintain a book that contains a photograph and description of all such children. Registration of children with the photo-listing service and notification by the licensed adoption agency of changes in a child's photo-listing status must be reflected in the book within 30 working days of receipt of the registration or notification [Fam. Code § 8707; see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 35017, 35019].

The photo-listing service must be provided to all licensed adoption agencies; adoption support groups; and state, regional, or national photo-listings or exchanges requesting copies of the photo-listing service [Fam. Code § 8707(c)]. Licensed adoption agencies must send a recent photograph and description of each legally freed child to the photo-listing service within 15 working days of the time a child is legally freed for adoption. When adoption has become the case plan goal for a particular child, the agency may photo list that child before the child's becoming legally freed for adoption [Fam. Code § 8707(d)].

All legally freed children for whom adoption is the case plan must be photo-listed, unless deferred [Fam. Code § 8707(d)]. A child must be deferred from the photo-listing service if that child's foster parents or other identified individuals who have applied to adopt the child are meeting the adoption agency's requests for required documentation and are cooperating in the completion of a home study being conducted by the agency [Fam. Code § 8707(e)]. A child who is 12 years old, or older, may be deferred from the photo-listing service if the child does not consent to being adopted [Fam. Code § 8707(f)].

The department must review semiannually the photo-listing status of children registered with the photo listing service and those whose registration has been deferred [Fam. Code § 8707(i); 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35019(d)]. Within 15 working days following a one-year period in which a child is listed in the book, the agency must submit a revised description and photograph of that child [Fam. Code § 8707(g)]. Licensed adoption agencies must notify the photo-listing service, by telephone, of any adoptive placements or of significant changes in the child's photo-listing status within two working days of that change [Fam. Code § 8707(h)].

§ 12B.181 Consideration of Race, Ethnicity, and Location

Federal law entitled "Removal of Barriers to Interethnic Adoption" requires that an agency or entity that receives federal funds and is involved in adoption or foster care placements may not: (1) deny to any person the opportunity to become an adoptive or a foster parent on the basis of the race, color, or national origin of the person, or of the child; or (2) delay or deny the placement of a child for adoption or into foster care, on the basis of the race, color, or national origin of the adoptive or foster parent, or the child [Pub. L. 104-188, § 1808 (amending 42 U.S.C. §§ 671, 674, 996b, and repealing 42 U.S.C. § 5115a]. States must bring their programs into compliance by January 1, 1997 [42 U.S.C. § 671(a)(18)]. State programs that are found to violate the requirement, or that fail to implement a corrective program within 6 months, face reduction in federal aid [42 U.S.C. § 674(d)(1)]. Other entities may be required to repay all funds of federal origin received from the State [42 U.S.C. § 674(d)(2)].

The "Removal of Barriers to Interethnic Adoption" legislation repealed and replaced the substantially similar federal Multiethnic Placement Act of 1994 (MEPA) [former 42 U.S.C. § 5115a]. MEPA had previously qualified the first prohibition listed above by the initial word categorically, and limited the violation to a denial solely on the basis of race, and the like. In MEPA, the second prohibition listed above was worded slightly differently, and also limited to denials or discrimination solely on the basis of race, and the like. Further, MEPA expressly allowed consideration of the cultural, ethnic, or racial background of the child, and the capacity of the prospective adoptive parents to meet the needs of a child of that background, as one of a number of factors in determining a placement decision [former 42 U.S.C. § 5115a(a)(2)]. The intent of the Removal of Barriers legislation appears to be to require adoption and foster care placement decisions to be even more color-blind than was permitted under MEPA. The legislation states it has no effect on the Indian Child Welfare Act [Pub. Law 104-88, § 1808(c)(3)].

Guidelines under MEPA had found violations of MEPA in common practices such as ethnic matching requirements, or placement preferences based on the child's race, culture or ethnicity [see, e.g., pre-1996 Fam. Code §§ 8708, 8709 (agency adoptions); see also pre-1996 Fam. Code § 7950 et seq. ("Priorities for Foster Care Placement")]. Such practices should continue to be prohibited under the Removal of Barriers legislation.

California repealed its race, color and ethnic background placement preference statutes to conform its legislation to MEPA requirements [Stats. 1995, ch. 884]. The replacement legislation virtually tracked the wording of MEPA [Fam. Code §§ 8708, 8709 (agency adoptive placements); Fam. Code §§ 7950 (foster care placements)]. Further revision in the California statutory plan and the related regulations [Fam. Code § 8711.5] will be necessary to conform California prohibitions on racial and ethnic discrimination in making adoptive and foster care placements to the requirements of the Removal of Barriers legislation.

Any individual aggrieved by a violation of the prohibitions of the Removal of Barriers legislation may bring a civil action in any United States district court within 2 years after the violation. [42 U.S.C. § 674(d)(3)]. The Removal of Barriers prohibitions are also codified in the Civil Rights portion of Title 42 of the United States Code as prohibited conduct for any person or government that is involved in adoption or foster care placements [42 U.S.C. § 1996b]. Noncompliance is deemed to constitute a violation of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 [42 U.S.C. § 2000d et seq.].

Apart from these provisions, neither the Department of Social Services nor any licensed adoption agency to which a child has been freed for adoption may delay or deny the placement of a child for adoption solely because the approved prospective adoptive family resides outside the jurisdiction of the agency. For out-of-state prospective parents, however, the agency may consider whether the other state's standards substantially meet the standards and criteria established in California adoption regulations [Fam. Code § 8708(a)(3)].

Family Code § 8708, prohibiting discrimination in placement, does not affect the application of the Indian Child Welfare Act (25 U.S.C. § 1901 et seq.) [Fam. Code § 8708(b); see §§ 12B.270 -12B.271].

§ 12B.182 Religious Matching

The child's religious background may be considered in determining an appropriate adoptive placement [Fam. Code § 8709(a); see Scott v. Family Ministries (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 492, 505-506, 135 Cal. Rptr. 430] . This provision does not affect the application of the Indian Child Welfare Act (25 U.S.C. § 1901 et seq.) [Fam. Code § 8709(b); see §§ 12B.270, 12B.271].

However, an agency may not go beyond matching and specify the religious affiliation of the adoptive home. A policy that denies an opportunity to adopt to persons because of their religion violates the free exercise clause of the U.S. Const., amend. I [Scott v. Family Ministries (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 492, 505-506, 135 Cal. Rptr. 430] . This constitutional limitation applies to private, religiously affiliated adoption agencies, as well as to public agencies. In placing children for adoption, a private agency is acting for and on behalf of the state [Scott v. Family Ministries (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 492, 507, 135 Cal. Rptr. 430] .

§ 12B.183 Marital Status

An adoption agency must inform unmarried applicants that the ability to adopt is not limited by the applicant's marital status [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35011(a)(2)]. Historically, however, there has been considerable agency opposition to placing children in single-parent homes [see, e.g., County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 1059, 1061, 82 Cal. Rptr. 882] . This resistance is lessening, at least with regard to placement of "special needs" children [see discussion in § 12B.184].

§ 12B.184 Adoption Assistance Program

An Adoption Assistance Program is administered by the Department of Social Services to facilitate the adoption of children with special needs [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 16115 et seq.; 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35325 et seq.]. A child is eligible for program benefits if certain conditions are satisfied [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 16120], one being that the child's adoptive placement without financial assistance to the adopting family would be unlikely because of the child's membership in a sibling group that should remain intact or by virtue of race, ethnicity, color, language, age of three years or more, or parental background of a medical or behavioral nature that can be determined the adversely affect the development of the child [Welf. & Inst. Code § 16120(b)(1); see Fam. Code § 8545 (definition of "special-needs child" for purposes of Family Code division on adoption)].

The program involves governmental payments to the adopting parents for the adoption of special-needs children. Payments include an amount for the reasonable nonrecurring expenses incurred in completing the adoption [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 16120.1; 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35352]. The adopting parents may also receive further payments based on need and circumstances, not to exceed the foster care maintenance payment and any applicable specialized care increment that the child received while placed in a foster home [Welf. & Inst. Code § 16121(a)(1); see Welf. & Inst. Code § 11461 (foster care placement); see also 42 U.S.C. § 673 (Adoption Assistance and Child Welfare Act of 1980)].

§ 12B.185 Rights of Relatives and Foster Parents

If a child is being considered for adoption, the department or agency must first consider placement in the home of a relative [Fam. Code § 8710(a); see also Fam. Code § 8714.5(a) (legislative intent to remove barriers to adoption by relatives of children who are, or who are at risk of becoming, dependent children, and to preserve existing family relationships, including extended families); cf. Mullins v. State of Oregon (9th Cir. 1995) 57 F.3d 789 (no constitutional right of grandparent, on basis of biological connection alone, to preferential adoptive placement of grandchild)]. However, if a relative is not available, or if placement with an available relative is not in the child's best interests, or if placement would permanently separate the child from other siblings who are being considered for adoption or who are in foster care and an alternative placement would not require the permanent separation, then the child's foster parents or parent must be considered [Fam. Code § 8710].

Postadoption contact agreements, which provide for enforceable privileges of postadoption continued contact between the birth relatives (including the birth parents), the adopting parents, and the child are permitted if found by the court to have been entered into voluntarily and to be in the best interests of the child [Fam. Code § 8616.5; see § 12B.18]. With the adoptive parents' consent, provisions for postadoptive contact with the child's siblings are also permitted in adoptions of dependent children of the juvenile court [see Fam. Code § 8715(c); Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 366.29, 16002, 16501].

Foster parents are not entitled to exclusive second preference after relatives; they must be considered along with all other prospective adoptive parents [Fam. Code § 8710(a); see Jinny N. v. Superior Court (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 967, 973, 241 Cal. Rptr. 95] . Further, the following conditions must be present: (1) the child must have been in foster care for a period of more than four months; (2) the child must have substantial emotional ties to the foster parents; (3) the child's removal from the foster parents would be seriously detrimental to the child's well being; and (4) the foster parents must have made a written request to be considered to adopt the child [Fam. Code § 8710(a)].

In the case of an Indian child, the department or agency must consider the placement preferences and standards set out in subdivisions (c) through (i) of Welfare and Institutions Code Section 361.31, including placement with a member of the child's extended family, other members of the child's tribe, or another Indian family, or placement according to the order of preference established by the tribe [see Fam. Code § 8710(a)]. If the foster parents or other prospective adoptive parents do not fall within these placement preferences, they may only be considered if the court finds, by clear and convincing evidence, that good cause exists to deviate from the placement preferences [Fam. Code § 8710(b)].

These statutory rights of foster parents do not apply to a child who has been adjudged to be a dependent of the juvenile court [Fam. Code § 8704(e); see Welf. & Inst. Code § 300]. However, juvenile court law provides an even stronger preference for adoption by a foster parent or by the child's current caretaker [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 366.25(g), 366.26(k), (n)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 328, Juvenile Courts: Dependency Proceedings .

The conversion of a foster care arrangement to an adoptive placement does not necessarily require that the foster parents and agency execute an adoptive placement agreement [see § 12B.191]. If it is clear from its words and conduct that the agency is treating the placement as one for adoption, the foster parents are entitled to all of the rights and remedies of prospective adoptive parents [Jinny N. v. Superior Court (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 967, 971-973, 241 Cal. Rptr. 95] .

Despite the many statutory and regulatory requirements placing duties on adoption agencies with regard to adoptive placement, an adoption agency has no duty to a child in its custody to place him or her in an adoptive home. Thus, there can be no tort liability in negligence for the failure to successfully place a child for adoption [*see Smith v. Alameda County Social Services Agency (1979) 90 Cal. § 12B.187 Assessment of Child

An adoption agency must assess each child accepted for adoption services [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35127.2]. The scope of the assessment is far more extensive than the scope of the required child assessment in an independent adoption [see discussion in § 12B.111[3]] because the agency must determine the most appropriate adoptive placement and disclose as much information as possible to the prospective adopting family about the child [*compare 22 Cal. § 12B.188 Assessment of Applicants

An adoption agency must require a written application before conducting an assessment of an applicant to adopt [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35177]. The agency must assess each applicant in order to determine the applicant's suitability as a prospective adoptive parent. An applicant may be disapproved at any point in the assessment process [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35177(e)].

The assessment must include at least one interview with the applicant in his or her home. Each applicant must be interviewed separately and also jointly in the case of joint applications. Each individual in the applicants' household must also be interviewed [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35181(a)(2)(D)]. An abbreviated assessment is allowed whenever the applicant has successfully completed another adoption in California within the prior five years and the prior assessment is available to the agency, or when the applicant is the child's current care giver, licensed or certified as a foster family home, and has cared for the child under the supervision of an adoption or child welfare agency for at least six months [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35183].

Matters to be covered in the assessment [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 35181 (full assessment), 35183 (abbreviated assessment)] and required documentation [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35195] are similar to the requirements in independent adoptions [see discussion in § 12B.111]. Fingerprints and criminal records are similarly required [see Fam. Code § 8712; 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35184].

If the applicant is a foster parent with whom the child has lived for at least six months or a relative caregiver who has had an ongoing and significant relationship with the child, an assessment or home study of the applicant may, at the discretion of the department or agency, require only the following, unless a court with jurisdiction over the child orders otherwise [Fam. Code § 8730]:

1. A criminal records check of the applicant as provided in Fam. Code § 8712(a);

2. A determination that the applicant has sufficient financial stability to support the child and ensure that any adoption assistance program payment or other government assistance to which the child is entitled is used exclusively to meet the child's needs;

3. A determination that the applicant has not abused or neglected the child while the child has been in his or her care, and has fostered the healthy growth and development of the child;

4. A determination that it is unlikely the applicant will abuse or neglect the child in the future, and that the applicant can protect the child, ensure necessary care and supervision, and foster the child's healthy growth and development;

5. A determination that the applicant can address racial and cultural issues that may affect the child's well-being; or

6. An interview with the applicant, with each individual residing in the home, and with the child.

If the applicant is a foster parent, the assessment or home study may not be initiated until the child has resided in the applicant's home for at least six months [Fam. Code § 8731]. A report of a medical examination of the applicant must be included in the assessment, unless the department or agency determines that this report is unnecessary based on other available information. The assessment must require certification that the applicant and each adult residing in the applicant's home has been tested for communicable tuberculosis [Fam. Code § 8732].

If the petitioner resides in a state other than California, an updated and current home study report conducted and approved by a licensed adoption agency or other authorized resource in that state must be reviewed and endorsed by the department or agency, if the standards and criteria established for a home study report in the other state are substantially commensurate with the home study standards and criteria established in California's adoption regulations [Fam. Code § 8715(e)].

Under no circumstances may the department or agency give final approval for an adoptive placement in any home where the prospective adoptive parent or any adult living in the prospective adoptive home has a felony conviction that occurred within the last five years for physical assault, battery, or a drug- or alcohol-related offense, or a felony conviction for child abuse or neglect, spousal abuse, crimes against a child, including child pornography, or for a crime involving violence, including rape, sexual assault, or homicide, but not including other physical assault and battery [Fam. Code § 8712(c)].

A must provide the applicant with written notification of its decision regarding an adoptive placement of a child with him or her. A favorable notice must include identification of age, race, gender, and characteristics of children considered for placement. An unfavorable notice must include identification of the factors that led to the agency's decision. The applicant must be informed of the agency's grievance review procedure [see § 12B.202[4]] and of the right to file a grievance within 30 days of receipt of the decision [*22 Cal. § 12B.191 Adoptive Placement Agreement and Other Reports

After a decision is reached by an adoption agency and adoptive parents regarding the placement of a child, the agency and the adoptive parents must enter into a written agreement that sets forth the rights and responsibilities of the agency and adoptive parents [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35201]. However, the failure to formally execute an adoptive placement agreement does not automatically deprive the applicants of legal status as prospective adoptive parents, if it is clear from the agency's actions that it is treating a placement as one for adoption [Jinny N. v. Superior Court (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 967, 971-973, 241 Cal. Rptr. 95] .

Before or at the time of placement, the agency must give the prospective adoptive parents the required medical background report and obtain a written statement from them acknowledging receipt of the report [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35195(a); see Fam. Code § 8706; *Tyler v. Children's Home Society (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 511, 537-538, 35 Cal. It must also provide a written report that sets forth the information gathered in the assessment of the child [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35195; see § 12B.187].

§ 12B.192 Interstate Placements

The Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children [Fam. Code § 7900 et seq.; Cal. Rules of Ct. Rule 5.616 (juvenile court placements)] applies if an agency desires to bring a child to, or send a child from, California for an adoptive placement [see Fam. Code § 7901, art. 3]. For discussion of the general procedures for interstate placement of children, see § 12B.250 et seq.

Note that neither the Department of Social Services nor a licensed adoption agency to which a child has been freed for adoption may delay or deny the placement of a child for adoption solely because the prospective approved adoptive family resides outside its jurisdiction. An "approved adoptive family" means a family approved under the California adoptive applicant assessment standards. If the adoptive applicant assessment was conducted in another state according to that state's standards, the California placing agency must determine whether the standards of the other state substantially meet California's standards [Fam. Code § 8708(c)].

When there is no adoptive placement plan for a child with an approved adoptive family within the Department's or licensed adoption agency's jurisdiction, the Department or agency must register the child with a statewide exchange system that interjurisdictionally matches waiting children and approved adoptive families [Fam. Code §§ 8710.1, 8710.2]. In addition, if the Department or agency has approved a family for adoption and that family may be appropriate for placement of a child who has been adjudged a dependent child of the juvenile court, the Department or agency must register the family with the statewide exchange system [Fam. Code § 8710.3].

§ 12B.200 Six-Month Supervision Period

The adoption agency must supervise the adoptive placement [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35203(c)]. The supervisory period may not be less than six months unless one of the following exceptions applies [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35203(c)]: (1) the prospective adoptive parent has successfully completed the adoption of another child in California in the past five years; (2) the prospective adoptive parent is in the military service of the United States or is employed by the American Red Cross, and completion of the six-month supervisory period would delay completion of an adoption that the agency has determined should be completed; or (3) the child is a foster child of the prospective adoptive parent in a foster care placement supervised by an agency, in which case the supervisory period may be shortened by the same number of months that the child was in foster care with the family.

During the supervisory period, the agency must conduct a minimum of four interviews with the prospective adoptive parents and the child [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35203(d)]. The number of interviews may be reduced if one of the above exceptions to the six-month supervisory period applies [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35203(d)(1)]. At least one interview must be in the home with the child and the adopting family, and this requirement may not be waived under any circumstances [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35203(d)(2)].

§ 12B.201 Removal of Child From County

In no event, nor for any period, may a child who has been relinquished for adoption be removed from the county in which the child was placed by any person who has not petitioned to adopt the child without first obtaining the written consent of the Department of Social Services or the licensed adoption agency responsible for the child [Fam. Code § 8713(a)]. This prohibition applies to the prospective adoptive parents before they file their petition for adoption [see discussion in § 12B.211] and to all other persons both before and after filing. After filing, there is a procedure for the petitioners to obtain court approval to remove the child if the agency objects [see Fam. Code § 8713(b)]. For discussion of this procedure, see § 12B.36.

§ 12B.202 Termination of Placement Before Adoption Petition Is Filed

[1] Right of Agency to Terminate Placement

Any placement for temporary care or for adoption made by the Department of Social Services or by a licensed adoption agency may be terminated at the discretion of the department or agency at any time before the granting of an order of adoption. However, once an adoption petition has been filed, court approval is required [Fam. Code § 8704(a), (b); see § 12B.215].

Nevertheless, an agency may not arbitrarily terminate an adoptive placement. Due process [see U.S. Const., amend. XIV] requires that the prospective adoptive parents be given notice of the termination of placement [see § 12B.202[2]] and an opportunity to be heard at a time when the deprivation can still be prevented [C.V.C. v. Superior Court (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 909, 914-918, 106 Cal. Rptr. 123] . This constitutional right is almost certainly applicable to placement terminations by private adoption agencies, which have been held to be exercising delegated state power with regard to agency adoptions [see Scott v. Family Ministries (1976) 65Cal. App. 3d 492, 506-507, 135 Cal. Rptr. 430 ; see also Tyler v. Children's Home Society (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 511, 545, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 291] .

Regulations provide for a right to be heard through a grievance review procedure [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 35207, 35233-35239, discussed in § 12B.202[4]].

[2] Prior Notice

Unless the agency believes that the child is in imminent danger, it must give the prospective adoptive parents seven days' prior written notice of the termination of placement [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35207(b); see C.V.C. v. Superior Court (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 909, 914-918, 106 Cal. Rptr. 123 (notice constitutionally required); see also § 12B.202[1]]. A prior regulatory definition of "imminent danger" was broadly construed to include the risk of injury or projected danger that existed because a prospective adoptive parent was likely to flee with the child if given notice of removal [see Marten v. Thies (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 161, 171-172, 160 Cal. Rptr. 57 (construing former 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 30684(b)(2); child in "imminent danger" is one whose health and safety are in jeopardy)].

The notice must state the agency's reasons for terminating the placement and the specific conditions that led to the agency's decision to remove the child. The notice must also inform them of their right to a grievance review [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35207(b); see § 12B.202[4]].

[3] Removal of Child From Home

If the department or licensed adoption agency terminates the placement, the child must be returned promptly to the physical custody of the agency [Fam. Code § 8704(a)]. If necessary, the agency may bring a habeas corpus proceeding to compel return of the child [see, e.g., C.V.C. v. Superior Court (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 909, 912, 106 Cal. Rptr. 123] . In a directed or identified placement in which the relinquishment names the prospective adoptive parents, the relinquishing parents must be notified of the right to rescind the relinquishment and reclaim the child under Family Code Section 8700(g), (h) [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35297(c)].

Nevertheless, case law strongly suggests that, except in the case of a child in imminent danger, the prospective adoptive parents must be afforded their due process rights before the child is removed from the home [see C.V.C. v. Superior Court (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 909, 917-918, 106 Cal. Rptr. 123] . The regulations also provide that notice be given stating the reasons for removal at least seven days prior to removal if the agency has no reason to believe the child is in imminent danger [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35207(b)], but do not require that the grievance procedure be completed before the child may be removed [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 35233, 35237, 35239]. This suggests that even without any continuances, a decision may not be forthcoming in the ordinary course of the grievance procedure until more than 7 weeks after the removal. If an adoption petition has been filed, a court hearing is used to seek review of the request to remove the child, rather than the grievance procedure [Fam. Code § 8704(b)].

If the child is removed, there is no statutory or regulatory restriction on the agency's making a new adoptive placement before all hearing and review rights have been exhausted. Nevertheless, such a placement has been labeled "precipitate and unfortunate" by one court [C.V.C. v. Superior Court (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 909, 913 n.1, 106 Cal. Rptr. 123] .

[4] Grievance Review Hearing

[a] Reviewable Grievances

Administrative regulations require adoption agencies to provide a grievance review hearing for applicants and prospective adoptive parents to resolve disputes over any action taken by the agency before a petition for adoption is filed [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35233]. The adoptive placement agreement must include a statement regarding this procedure [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35201(b)(1)(G)].

A "grievance" is a written complaint about any procedures, actions, or determinations made by an agency before the filing of an adoption petition [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35000(g)(1)]. A grievance is not reviewable if it is based solely on any of the following [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35233(a)(2)]:

(1) Any action of the agency in compliance with a court order;

(2) A question regarding the validity of a statute or regulation; or

(3) Any issue for which a state hearing is available under Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950 (relating to applications for, or receipt of, aid from county governments).

[b] Procedure on Request for Review

An applicant or prospective adoptive parent may obtain grievance review by making a written request within 30 days of the date of the action that is the subject of the complaint. The request must be signed by the grievant or his or her authorized representative, and must state specifically the facts surrounding the action complained of. The request must be submitted to the agency that took the action unless the grievance concerns an action taken by a licensed private adoption agency based on the FBI criminal record, in which case the request must be submitted to the Department of Social Services [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35233].

The agency must schedule the grievance review hearing to be held within 10 working days from the date on which the written request is received by the agency. Notice of the date, time, and place for the hearing must be sent to all parties to the grievance review no less than five working days before the hearing [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35235].

The hearing must be conducted by a "grievance review agent" in a nonadversary atmosphere insofar as possible [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35237]. A grievance review agent is a person or panel designated by the director of the agency to conduct the grievance review and render a recommended decision to the director [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35000(g)(2)]. The parties, their authorized representatives, if any, and the witnesses while testifying are the only persons authorized to be present at the hearing unless all parties and the grievance review agent agree to the presence of other persons. The agency must provide for the recording of the hearing [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35237].

If the grievance review agent determines that additional evidence or witnesses are necessary in order to make a recommenda tion, the hearing must be continued for a period not to exceed 10 working days [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35237]. Otherwise, the agent must make a written recommendation to the agency director within five working days after completion of the hearing. The director must then make a written decision within five working days of receipt of the recommendation, based on the evidence presented at the hearing. The written decision must summarize the facts and issues involved and make specific findings regarding the issues. It must be sent to each party to the grievance, to each authorized representative of each party, if any, and to the department [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35239].

[c] Judicial Review

Some form of judicial review of an agency's termination of an adoptive placement is constitutionally required by due process [C.V.C. v. Superior Court (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 909, 918-920, 106 Cal. Rptr. 123 ; see discussion in § 12B.202[1]]. An agency's decision after a grievance review hearing is subject to judicial review by writ of mandate [see Marten v. Thies (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 161, 164, 160 Cal. Rptr. 57] . However, the court has no jurisdiction to consider an adoption petition that was not filed by the prospective adoptive parents until after the placement was terminated [Rodriguez v. Superior Court (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 510, 512, 95 Cal. Rptr. 923] .

In light of the mandatory administrative grievance review, it would seem that the proper vehicle for judicial review of an adoptive placement termination is administrative mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5. Despite the opportunity for a later judicial hearing, the prospective parents should attack the agency's decision on all possible grounds in the grievance review hearing. The general rule of administrative mandate is that an aggrieved person may not raise a question on judicial review that was not presented to the agency [see Morris v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 1002, 1008, 110 Cal. Rptr. 630] . For a form for a petition for a writ of administrative mandate, see § 12B.365[1]. For general discussion of administrative mandate and appropriate forms, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq.

§ 12B.210 Right to Petition for Adoption

No petition may be filed to adopt a child who has been relinquished to the Department of Social Services or a licensed adoption agency, or who has been declared free from the custody and control of either or both birth parents and referred to the department or agency for adoptive placement, by anyone except the prospective adoptive parents with whom the child has been placed for adoption by the department or agency [Fam. Code § 8704(b); see Adoption of Runyon (1969) 268 Cal. App. 2d 918, 921, 74 Cal. Rptr. 514 (prior identical statute held constitutional)]. If a petition for adoption of such a child is filed by someone other than a person with whom the child has been placed for adoption, the agency must immediately file a court report and include a request that the adoption petition be dismissed [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35213].

If a child has been placed with a married couple, either spouse has standing to petition for adoption without being joined by the other. Thus, if spouses separate after an adoptive placement and only one wishes to complete the adoption, the other spouse need not be joined in the proceeding [County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 1059, 1062-1066, 82 Cal. Rptr. 882] .

§ 12B.211 Time to File Petition and Joinder of Agency

An agency adoption is defined as one (other than an intercountry adoption) in which the Department of Social Services or an agency licensed by the department is a party to, or joins in, the petition for adoption [Fam. Code § 8506]. Further, by regulation, the placing agency must join in the petition, but only if it first approves and consents to the adoption [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35211]. This generally will not be until after the six-month supervisory period is completed [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35203, discussed in § 12B.200]. The regulations contemplate that the agency's Consent and Joinder (form AD 824) [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35001(a)(37)] will be filed together with the report to the court [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35211(c)(8)], which is only filed after the prospective adoptive parents have filed an adoption petition [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35211(a)].

Note that the petition for adoption may be filed immediately after the placement for adoption, which usually is marked by the signing of an adoptive placement agreement [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35201]. Because the filing of an adoption petition affords the prospective adoptive parents greater protection under Fam. Code § 8704 against the agency's removal of the child, there is reason to file the petition promptly on placement. When that is not done, if any problems with the agency are anticipated or develop, the petition should be filed at once.

A formal pleading of joinder is not required. If the agency approves the adoption and offers no timely objection to the filing of the petition, it may be said to have joined in the petition [see Jinny N. v. Superior Court (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 967, 972-973 n.4, 241 Cal. Rptr. 95] .

§ 12B.212 Petition to Adopt

The prospective adoptive parents with whom the child has been placed [see Fam. Code § 8704(b), discussed in § 12B.210] initiate the proceeding by filing a petition in the superior court in the county of their residence. A petition to adopt a child who was adjudged a dependent child of the juvenile court and thereafter freed for adoption by the juvenile court (see Ch. 328, Juvenile Courts: Dependency Proceedings) may be filed in either the county where the prospective adoptive parents reside or the county where the child was freed for adoption [Fam. Code § 8714(a)]. If the petitioner has entered into a postadoption contact agreement with the birth parent under Fam. Code § 8616.5, the agreement, signed by the parties must be attached to and filed with the petition [Fam. Code § 8714(c)].

The clerk of court must immediately give written notice to the Department of Social Services at Sacramento of the pendency of the action and of any subsequent action taken [Fam. Code § 8714(b); see 12B.310[1]]. For a form of petition that may be adopted for use in an agency adoption, see § 12B.302[1]. Jurisdiction and venue in adoption matters are discussed in § 12B.30. Notice requirements to birth parents are discussed in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights .

Code Reg. § 35211*; see Fam. Code § 8715]. If the report is submitted by an agency, the Department of Social Services may also submit a report [Fam. Code § 8715]. A copy of the report must be given to the petitioners, or to their attorney [Fam. Code § 8717; see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35211(c)].

A standardized consent and joinder form has been promulgated by the Department of Social Services [see Department of Social Services Form AD 824]. It may be used for official purposes only. Some agencies may have their own forms of joinder and consent.

§ 12B.214 Payment of Fees

Whenever a petition for an agency adoption is filed, the county adoption agency or the Department of Social Services may, at the time of filing a favorable report in the superior court, require the petitioners to pay to the agency, as agent of the state, or to the department, a fee in an amount set by statute [see Fam. Code § 8716]. The agency or the department may defer, waive, or reduce the fee if its payment would cause economic hardship to the prospective adoptive parents detrimental to the welfare of the adopted child, if the child has been in the foster care of the prospective adoptive parents for at least one year, or if necessary for the placement of a special needs child [Fam. Code § 8716].

There is also a fee that must be paid at the time of filing and forwarded by the clerk to the State Registrar of Vital Statistics [see discussion in § 12B.31]. If the agency fee is waived and its statement of waiver is filed with the petition, this fee is also waived [Health & Safety Code § 103730].

§ 12B.215 Opposition of Agency After Petition Is Filed

[1] In General

Even though only the prospective adoptive parents with whom the agency placed the child may file a petition for adoption [Fam. Code § 8704(b)], the agency sometimes opposes the petition [see, e.g. County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 1059, 1061, 82 Cal. Rptr. 882 (agency originally approved adoption, but withdrew consent after petitioners filed for divorce)]. This is uncommon, because the most usual practice is for the petition, and the agency's court report and Consent and Joinder, to be filed at about the same time, at the end of the supervision period.

[2] Termination of Placement

After a petition for adoption has been filed, the Department of Social Services or licensed adoption agency may no longer remove the child from the home of the prospective adoptive parents without the approval of the court [Fam. Code § 8704(b)]. The grievance review hearing procedure [see discussion in § 12B.202[4]] is then inapplicable [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35233 (permitting grievance review with respect to child for whom adoption petition has not been filed)].

To terminate the placement, the department or agency must bring a motion supported by affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) stating the grounds on which removal is sought. Notice must be given to the prospective adoptive parents [Fam. Code § 8704(b)].

[3] Effect of Revocation of Consent

The consent of the adoption agency that placed the child in the home of the petitioners is not a prerequisite to an agency adoption, and revocation of agency consent does not deprive the court of jurisdiction to consider the petition [see Fam. Code § 8704(b); Adoption of McDonald (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 447, 460, 274 P.2d 860] . If the Department of Social Services or adoption agency refuses to consent to the adoption by the petitioners, the court may nevertheless order the adoption if it finds that the refusal to consent is not in the best interests of the child [Fam. Code § 8704(b)]. For discussion of factors that the court may consider in determining the best interests of the child, see § 12B.55.

If the agency solicits and confirms a foster parent as a prospective adoptive parent, the foster parent is entitled to the rights of a prospective adoptive parent in an agency adoption. If after an agency petition for adoption has been filed the agency determines that the foster parent adoption is not in the best interests of the child, its remedy is to oppose the petition on its merits. The agency may not obtain the dismissal of the petition and foreclose judicial consideration of whether the adoption is in the best interests of the child [Jinny N. v. Superior Court (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 967, 971-973, 241 Cal. Rptr. 95] .

[4] Review of Agency Recommendation and Hearing

If the findings of the Department of Social Services or the licensed adoption agency are that the home of the petitioners is not suitable for the child or that the required agency consents are not available and it recommends that the petition be denied, the county clerk, on receipt of the report, must immediately refer it to the superior court for review. On receipt of the reports, the court must set a date for a hearing of the petition and must give reasonable notice of the hearing to the department or agency, the petitioners, and, if necessary, the birth parents. Notice must be by certified mail, return receipt requested, to the address of each as shown in the proceeding. The department or the agency must appear to represent the child [Fam. Code § 8720].

If the petitioners move to withdraw the petition for the adoption or to dismiss the proceeding, the clerk of the court in which the proceeding is pending must immediately notify the Department of Social Services at Sacramento of the action [Fam. Code § 8719]. Although Fam. Code § 8720 can be construed to require a hearing and court approval to dismiss or withdraw the petition, in reality the petitioners will be allowed to withdraw their petition. The court will not force an unwanted child on persons who change their minds about an adoption.

§ 12B.230 Governing Law

Intercountry adoptions are primarily controlled by the visa eligibility requirements of federal immigration law [see 8 U.S.C. § 1101(b)(1)(F); 8 C.F.R. § 204.3]. State intercountry adoption procedures are set forth in the Family Code [Fam. Code § 8900 et seq.], in addition to statutory provisions applicable to all adoptions, including intercountry adoptions [see Fam. Code §§ 8500 et seq., 8600 et seq.]. State regulations regarding intercountry adoptions are found in 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35241 et seq.

§ 12B.231 Intercountry Adoption Defined

Under California law, an "intercountry adoption" is the adoption of a foreign-born child for whom federal law makes a special immigration visa available [see § 12B.233]. It includes the completion of an adoption in the child's native country or in California [Fam. Code § 8527].

§ 12B.232 Required INS Determinations

Child eligibility for immigration to the United States is governed by federal immigration law. Unless the child is eligible for an immigrant visa through classification as an immediate relative (child) of a United States citizen, the child may not lawfully enter the United States [see 8 U.S.C. §§ 1101(b)(1)(F), 1151(b)(2)(A)(i)].

The processing and adjudication of an adoption case by the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) involves two distinct determinations [8 C.F.R. § 204.3(a)(2)]. The first is on the ability of the prospective adoptive parents to provide a proper home environment and their suitability as parents (see § 12B.234[2]). The second concerns whether the child is an "orphan" as defined by statute (see § 12B.233).

The first determination is usually made on the basis of an advanced processing application [8 C.F.R. § 204.3(a)(2)], which may be submitted to the INS before any particular child has been identified for adoption [8 C.F.R. § 204.3(c)]. The second determination is made on the submission of the petition to classify the child as an immediate relative who is thereby eligible for a visa [8 C.F.R. § 204.3(a)(2), (b) (definition of "orphan petition")]. The two determinations may be made at one time if the child has been identified before the process is begun [see 8 C.F.R. § 204.3(a)(2)].

Detailed procedures relevant to both determinations are set forth in federal immigration regulations, primarily 8 C.F.R. § 204.3. For more detailed discussion, see Gordon, Mailman & Yale-Loeht, Immigration Law and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

§ 12B.233 Child Eligibility for Immigrant Visa

Under the immigration statutes, a child who is eligible for an immigration visa as an immediate relative must be an unmarried person who is under the age of 16 at the time the petition for classification is filed. The child must also be either (1) an orphan because of the death, disappearance of, abandonment or desertion by, or separation from or loss of both parents; or (2) a child for whom the sole or surviving parent is incapable of providing the proper care, and has in writing irrevocably released the child for emigration to the United States and adoption [8 U.S.C. § 1101(b)(1)(F)]. All of the component terms of the statutory definition of "orphan" are further defined in more detail by regulation [see 8 C.F.R. § 204.3(a)], and evidence of the child's status as an orphan is required [see 8 C.F.R. § 204.3(d)(1)(ii)].

Further, the child must either (1) have been adopted abroad by a United States citizen and his or her spouse jointly, or by an unmarried United States citizen at least 25 years of age, who personally saw and observed the child before or during the adoption proceedings; or (2) be coming to the United States for adoption by a United States citizen and spouse jointly, or by an unmarried United States citizen at least 25 years old, who have complied with the preadoption requirements, if any, of the child's proposed residence [8 U.S.C. § 1101(b)(1)(F)]. Whether the adoption is to be finalized abroad or in the United States may depend on the law of the situs of the child's birth, which may control whether a child will be allowed to emigrate from the native country for the purpose of adoption abroad.

As further requirements, the United States Attorney General must be satisfied that proper care will be furnished the child if admitted to the United States. No natural parent or previous adoptive parent of the child may, by virtue of the parentage, be accorded any right, privilege, or status under Ch. 12 of Title 8 of the United States Code, governing immigration and nationality [8 U.S.C. § 1101(b)(1)(F)]. Nor are the adopted child's biological siblings entitled to an immigration preference as siblings of a citizen [Young v. Reno (9th Cir. 1997) 114 F.3d 879, 883-887] .

Note that visa eligibility under the above requirements does not include a foreign-born child with two parents who are willing to surrender the child to a United States citizen for emigration and adoption [see 8 C.F.R. § 204.3(b) (definition of abandonment; a relinquishment or release by birth parents to prospective adoptive parents or for specific adoption does not constitute abandonment)]. However, if such a child under the age of 16 years is adopted abroad by a United States citizen, he or she becomes their "child," within the meaning of immigration law, after two years during which the child has been in the legal custody of, and has resided with the adopting parents [see 8 U.S.C. § 1101(b)(1)(E); see also § 12B.236].

The adoptive parents must provide evidence that the child was adopted abroad or that they have, or a person or entity working on their behalf has, custody of the child for emigration and adoption in accordance with the laws of the child's country [8 C.F.R. § 204.3(d)(1)(iv); see 8 C.F.R. § 204.3(a) (definition of "foreign sending country")]. Further, a visa may be denied if the prospective adoptive parents, or a person or entity working on their behalf, have given or will give money or other consideration, either directly or indirectly to any individual or entity, as payment for the child or as an inducement to release the child. This prohibition does not extend to the reasonable cost of necessary activities such as administrative, court, legal, translation, or medical services related to the adoption [8 C.F.R. § 204.3(i)]. For more complete discussion of immigration law requirements regarding adopted children, see Gordon, Mailman, & Yale-Loeht, Immigration Law and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

2-12B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 12B.234

§ 12B.234 Role of California Adoption Agencies

[1] Relationship With Foreign Agencies

Intercountry adoption services in California must be exclusively provided by private adoption agencies that are licensed by the Department of Social Services specifically to provide these services [Fam. Code § 8900]. These agencies must meet specified licensing requirements [see Fam. Code §§ 8521(b), 8533(b), 8900, 8900.5; see also Fam. Code § 8921 (requirements for adoption facilitators)]. These agencies must also work only with domestic and foreign agencies with whom they have written agreements that specify the responsibilities of each. The agreements may not violate any federal or California statute or regulation [Fam. Code § 8905]. Foreign agencies with whom California agencies have a written agreement must be authorized to place children for intercountry adoption under the laws of their country [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35243]. The agency abroad is responsible for obtaining children who are legally free for adoption under the laws of its country [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35297(a)(1)], and who are eligible under United States immigration law [see discussion in § 12B.233].

[2] Home Study and Assessment of Applicants

A home study of the prospective adoptive parents must be completed before the INS will approve a visa petition for the child [8 C.F.R. § 204.3(c)(2), (d); see 8 C.F.R. § 204.3(e) (required contents of home study), (h) (adjudication)]. If the child is to reside in California, the home study must be made by an entity that is licensed under California law, whether or not the adoption is to be completed abroad or in California [8 C.F.R. § 204.3(a) (definition of "home study preparer")].

For adoptions to be completed in California, or if readoption is required (see § 12B.236[2]), California's preadoption requirements must be met [8 C.F.R. § 204.3(f)(1)]. Under California law, a California adoption agency is responsible for the assessment of applicants, whether or not the adoption is to be finalized in California or abroad [Fam. Code §§ 8902, 8904; see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35257 et seq.]. Interview requirements [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35263], matters to be discussed with the applicants [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 35265, 35267], required documentation [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35195], and notification requirements [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35273] are similar to the requirements in independent and agency adoptions [see discussion in Subparts B and D, above]. Fingerprints and criminal records are similarly required [see Fam. Code § 8908]. The grievance review procedure [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35233 et seq., discussed in § 12B.202[4]] applies to persons whose applications are not approved [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35273(b)].

Under no circumstances may a licensed adoption agency give final approval for an adoptive placement in any home where the prospective adoptive parent or any adult living in the prospective adoptive home has a felony conviction that occurred within the last five years for physical assault, battery, or a drug- or alcohol-related offense, or a felony conviction for child abuse or neglect, spousal abuse, crimes against a child, including child pornography, or for a crime involving violence, including rape, sexual assault, or homicide, but not including other physical assault and battery [Fam. Code § 8908(c)].

[3] Medical Background Report

In an intercountry adoption, the California agency is required to submit the medical background report on the child and birth parents to the prospective adoptive parents [Fam. Code § 8909(a)]. This report is discussed in § 12B.34.

The California agency must attempt to obtain documentation of the required information from the agency abroad that is responsible for the child [22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 35279, 35291]. If the information is unavailable, the California agency must document the reasons for the unavailability [22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 35281, 35293].

[4] Other Required Actions

For cases in which a child is emigrating from California to another convention country, the California agency must perform a background study on the child, obtain all required consents, give due consideration to the child's wishes or opinions (if the child is 12 years of age or older) before determining that an intercountry adoption is in the child's best interests, and transmit to the State Department or accredited bodies of the convention country the child background study, proof that the necessary consents have been obtained, and the reasons for its determination that the placement is in the child's best interests [Fam. Code § 8924(a)]. The agency must also comply with all placement standards set forth in 22 C.F.R. § 96.54 for children emigrating from California to a convention country [Fam. Code § 8924(b)].

[5] Agency Fees

The costs incurred by licensed adoption agencies pursuant to intercountry adoption programs must be funded by fees charged by those agencies for the required services. The agency's fee schedule must be approved by the Department of Social Services initially and whenever it is altered [Fam. Code § 8907].

2-12B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 12B.235

§ 12B.235 Adoptions Finalized in California

[1] Custody and Financial Responsibility

For adoptions to be finalized in California, once the visa is issued and the child arrives in California, the agency assumes all responsibilities for the child, including care, custody, and control, as if the child had been relinquished for adoption in California [Fam. Code § 8903(a)]. There is an exception if the native country requires and has given full guardianship to the prospective adoptive parents, in which case they assume all responsibilities, including care, custody, control, and financial support [Fam. Code § 8903(b)]. Further, the agency and the prospective adoptive parents may enter into an agreement to share or transfer financial responsibility for the child [Fam. Code § 8906].

If the prospective adoptive parents or agency fail to meet their responsibility for the care, custody, control, and financial responsibility of the child and the child becomes a dependent of the juvenile court under Welf. & Inst. Code § 300, discussed Ch. 328, Juvenile Courts: Dependency Proceedings, the state must assume responsibility for the cost of care for the child. If the child becomes a dependent of the court and, for any reason, is ineligible for Aid for Dependent Children under Welf. & Inst. Code § 14005.1 and loses Medi-Cal eligibility, the child is deemed eligible for Medi-Cal under Welf. & Inst. Code § 14005.4. The State Director of Health Services then has the authority to provide payment for the medical services to the child that are necessary to meet the child's needs [Fam. Code § 8903(c)].

Once the child arrives for adoption in California, an intercountry adoption proceeds much as any other agency adoption. The agency places the foreign-born child in the approved home and supervises the placement [see Fam. Code § 8902(b), (c)]. These matters are governed by regulations [see Fam. Code § 8901 (Department of Social Services must adopt regulations to administer intercountry adoption program)], which essentially mirror the regulations for agency adoptions [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35297 et seq., discussed in Subpt. D, above]. There are similar restrictions on removing the child from the county in which the adoption proceeding is pending [see Fam. Code § 8910, discussed in § 12B.36].

Unlike other agency adoptions, however, in an intercountry adoption, as a condition of placement, the prospective adoptive parents must file a petition to adopt the child within 30 days after placement [Fam. Code § 8911]. The agency is not required to join in the petition, but if it joins in the petition or otherwise is a party to the adoption, it must submit a full report of the facts of the case to the court [Fam. Code § 8914]. The supervisory period is six months in most cases [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35303].

For forms of petition for adoption and decree of adoption that may be adapted for use in intercountry adoptions, see Forms 31 and 38, respectively.

[3] Report to Court

The adoption agency must submit a report to the court on the adoptive placement with a recommendation regarding the petition [Fam. Code §§ 8902(d), 8914; see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 35315, 35317 (contents of report)]. The Department of Social Services may also submit a report [Fam. Code § 8914]. A copy of the report, whether the recommendation is favorable or unfavorable, must be given to the attorney for the petitioners, if any, or to the petitioners [Fam. Code § 8915].

The report must be submitted within 180 days of placement unless time is extended by the court [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35313]. However, whenever the agency has a question concerning the suitability of the petitioners or the care provided to the child, it must immediately file the report. A question regarding the suitability of the petitioners or the care provided to the child must be documented in the report. The agency must recommend either that the court give it direction regarding the situation giving rise to the agency's question, or that the petition be denied [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35319].

[4] Withdrawal of Petition

If the petitioners move to withdraw the petition for the adoption or to dismiss the proceeding, the clerk of the court in which the proceeding is pending must immediately notify the Department of Social Services at Sacramento of that action. Notwithstanding the withdrawal or dismissal by the petitioners, the court may retain jurisdiction over the child for the purpose of making any order or orders for its custody as the court may deem to be in the best interests of the child [Fam. Code § 8916].

[5] Review of Negative Report and Hearing

If the findings of the adoption agency are that the home of the petitioners is not suitable for the child and it recommends that the petition be denied, the county clerk, on receipt of the report, must immediately refer it to the superior court for review. On receipt of the report, the court must set a date for a hearing of the petition and must give reasonable notice of the hearing to the agency and the petitioners by certified mail, return receipt requested, to the address of each as shown in the proceeding [Fam. Code § 8917(a), (b)]. The agency must appear at the hearing to represent the child [Fam. Code § 8917(c)].

[6] Custodial Plan

If the petitioners move to withdraw or dismiss the petition, or if the agency recommends denial of the petition, the agency must file a full report with the court recommending a suitable custodial plan for the child [Fam. Code § 8916(a)]. At the hearing, if the court sustains the recommendation that the child be removed from the home of petitioners because the agency has recommended denial or the petitioners desire to withdraw the petition, or the court dismisses the petition, the court must commit the child to the care of the agency to arrange another adoptive placement or to make a suitable custodial plan [Fam. Code § 8918]. Federal immigration law does not expressly require automatic revocation of the child's visa and immediate return to his or her native country [see 8 C.F.R. §§ 205.1, 205.2; see also 8 C.F.R. § 204.3(k)(3)]. However, approval of an orphan-classification petition must be revoked if the INS becomes aware of information that would have resulted in denial had it been known at the time of adjudication [8 C.F.R. § 204.3(h)(14)]. It is not clear whether this mandatory revocation applies only to matters that were not disclosed at the time of approval, or also to subsequent events, such as the denial of the petition for adoption.

[7] Adoption of Related Children Living Abroad

By statute, California agencies that provide intercountry services for adoptions to be finalized in California must provide services to applicants seeking to adopt related children living in foreign countries. The Legislature has declared its recognition that these children have a compelling need for adoptive placement with their relatives [Fam. Code § 8902(e)]. Nevertheless, such children are eligible for an immigrant visa for adoption by a relative in California only if they meet the eligibility requirements of federal immigration law. Children who have two living parents, or whose sole living parent is capable of providing for the child are not eligible for a visa [see 8 U.S.C. § 1101(b)(1)(F), discussed in § 12B.233]. Therefore, the California Legislature's recognized compelling need must be construed as extending only to eligible children. As such, it should be viewed as an exhortation to the licensed agencies to quickly approve applications in those cases.

A child who was adopted as part of a sibling group, and who has been separated from his or her siblings because of readoption by a California resident, may petition the court to enforce any visitation agreement to which the siblings' separate adoptive families subscribed before the child's readoption. If there is no agreement, the child may petition the court to order visitation [Fam. Code § 8920(a)]. The term "sibling" means full-siblings and half siblings [Fam. Code § 8920(c)]. "Readoption" means the process by which a child who belongs to a foreign-born sibling group that was adopted together through an intercountry adoption is subsequently adopted by a different set of adoptive parents who are California residents [Fam. Code § 8920(d)].

The court may order enforcement of the visitation agreement or grant visitation rights if it finds that visitation is in the child's best interest [Fam. Code § 8920(a)]. In making a finding that enforcement of a visitation agreement or the granting of visitation rights is in the child's best interest, the court must consider the nature and extent of the child's sibling relationship, including, but not limited to, whether the child was raised with a sibling in the same home, whether the child shares significant common experiences or has close and strong bonds with a sibling, and whether ongoing contact with a sibling is in the child's best interest, including the child's long-term interest [Fam. Code § 8920(b)].

§ 12B.236 Adoptions Finalized in Foreign Country

[1] Adoptions Determined Sufficient by INS

California adoption law defines intercountry adoptions to include adoptions completed in the child's native country [Fam. Code § 8527]. California law provides that for adoptions that will be finalized in a foreign country, the licensed adoption agency must provide all of the following services: (1) assessment of the suitability of the applicant's home, (2) certification to the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) that California's adoption requirements have been met, and (3) readoption services as required by the Immigration and Naturalization Service [Fam. Code § 8904]. However, immigration regulations do not require certification that state requirements have been met in the case of a child whose foreign adoption is determined to be valid by the INS [see 8 C.F.R. § 204.3(f)].

California adoption regulations do not attempt to assert any state role over an adoption finalized abroad once the parents and child arrive in or return to California. Regulations regarding placement [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35297(a)] and supervision [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35299] exclude adoptions completed abroad from their scope.

California probably has no role in an adoption finalized in a foreign country by a United States citizen for which an immigrant visa may be issued under 8 U.S.C. § 1101(b)(1)(E), discussed in § 12B.233. A visa under this provision requires that the adopted child (not necessarily an orphan) have been in the legal custody of, and have resided with, the adopting parents for a two-year period. There are no other requirements, such as a home study or a favorable agency recommendation, that might give California some say as to whether an immigrant visa should be granted.

A California resident who adopts a child through an intercountry adoption that is finalized in a foreign country may readopt the child in California, even if readoption is not required by the INS [Fam. Code § 8919(b); see § 12B.236[2]].

[2] Adoptions Determined Insufficient and Requiring Readoption

Even if a child has been adopted abroad under the laws of the foreign country, the INS may require that the child be processed as coming to the United States to be adopted [see 8 C.F.R. § 204.3(f)(2)]. This may be the case if the petitioners did not or will not personally see the child before or during the adoption proceeding, or if the adoption will not be, or was not, full and final [8 C.F.R. § 204.3(f)(2); see 8 U.S.C. § 1101(b)(1)(F)]. In such a case, the child must be readopted in the United States [see 8 C.F.R. § 204.3(d)(1)(iv)(B)(4)], and all California preadoption requirements must be met [8 C.F.R. § 204.3(d)(1)(iv)(B)(3); see § 12B.235].

California law requires readoption of a child whose intercountry adoption was finalized in a foreign country if it is required by the Department of Homeland Security [Fam. Code § 8919(a)]. The readoption must include, but is not limited to, at least one postplacement in-home visit, the filing of an adoption petition under Fam. Code § 8912 (see § 12B.301[1]), an intercountry adoption court report, accounting reports, the home study report, and the final adoption order. If the adoptive parents have already completed a home study as part of their adoption process, a copy of that study must be submitted in place of a second home study. No readoption order may be granted unless the court receives a copy of the home study report previously completed for the international finalized adoption by an adoption agency authorized to provide intercountry adoption services under Fam. Code § 8900. The court must consider postplacement visits and the previously completed home study when deciding whether to grant or deny the petition for readoption [Fam. Code § 8919(a)].

A California resident who adopts a child through an intercountry adoption that is finalized in a foreign country having adoption standards that meet or exceed those of California, as certified by the Department of Social Services, may readopt the child in California if (1) the readoption includes at least one postplacement in-home visit, (2) the adoption was finalized in accordance with the laws of the foreign country, and (3) the resident has filed a petition to readopt that includes a copy of the child's birth certificate and visa, and a copy of the decree, order, or certificate of adoption evidencing finalization of the adoption in the foreign country, and has provided a certified translation of any of these documents that are not in English [Fam. Code § 8919(c)(1), (2)]. A court that denies a petition for readoption must summarize its reasons for doing so on the record [Fam. Code § 8919(c)(3)].

Each state resident who adopts a child through an intercountry adoption that is finalized in a foreign country may obtain a birth certificate in California in accordance with the provisions of Health & Safety Code § 103450 [Fam. Code § 8919(e)].

§ 12B.237 Naturalization

Lawful immigration and adoption by a United States citizen does not automatically make the child a United States citizen. Rather, the child must be naturalized [see 8 U.S.C. § 1433(a)]. There is no durational residency requirement for an adopted child who is residing in the United States in the custody of the adoptive parents pursuant to a lawful admission for permanent residence [8 U.S.C. § 1433(b)]. Therefore, the naturalization petition may be submitted as soon as the adoption is finalized. Naturalization is discussed further in Ch. 12.

§ 12B.238 Adoption Certificate or Custody Declaration

A Hague adoption certificate or, in outgoing cases, a Hague custody declaration, obtained under Part 97 of Title 22 of the Code of Federal Regulations, must be recognized as a final valid adoption for purposes of all state and local laws [Fam. Code § 8925].

Nothing in California's adoption laws prevents the adopting parents, the birth relatives (including the birth parents), and the child from entering into a written agreement to permit continuing contact between the birth relatives (including the birth parents) and the child, if the agreement is found by the court to have been entered into voluntarily and to be in the best interests of the child at the time the adoption petition is granted [Fam. Code § 8616.5(b)(1)]. The Judicial Council forms and court rules now refer to these agreements as "contact after adoption" agreements. However, under the authorizing statute, such an agreement is called a "postadoption contact agreement" [see Statutes 2000, ch. 910].

If the petitioner has entered into a postadoption contact agreement with the birth parent, the agreement, signed by the participating parties, must be attached to and filed with the petition for adoption [Fam. Code § 8912(e); see Fam. Code § 8616.5(c)].

§ 12B.251 Application of Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children

California has adopted the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children [see Fam. Code § 7901; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.616], which governs adoption of minor children between states that have entered into the Compact [Fam. Code § 7900]. The Compact applies both when children are brought into California and when they are sent from California to other participating states. In particular, it applies to adoption agencies, individuals, and others, who are termed "sending agencies" under the Compact. A "sending agency" may be a party state, a subdivision or court of such a state, or a person, corporation, association, charitable agency, or other entity that sends, brings, or causes to be sent or brought, any child to another party state [Fam. Code § 7901, art. 2(b)].

A "receiving state" under the Compact is the state to which a child is sent, brought, or caused to be sent or brought, whether by public authorities or private persons or agencies, and whether for placement with state or local public authorities or for placement with private agencies or persons [Fam. Code § 7901, art. 2(c)].

The Compact does not apply to the following [Fam. Code § 7901, art. 8]:

(1) The sending or bringing of a child into a receiving state by his or her parent, stepparent, grandparent, adult brother or sister, adult uncle or aunt, or guardian and leaving the child with any such relative or nonagency guardian in the receiving state; or

(2) Any placement, sending, or bringing of a child into a receiving state pursuant to any other interstate compact to which both the state from which the child is sent or brought and the receiving state are party, or to any other agreement between such states that has the effect of law.

A child who is born in this state and placed for adoption in this state with a resident of this state is not subject to the provisions of the compact [Fam. Code § 7907.5(a)]. A child who is born in this state and placed for adoption with a person who is not a resident of this state is, however, subject to the provisions of the compact, regardless of whether the adoption petition is filed in this state. In interstate placements, this state isdeemed the sending state for any child who is born here [Fam. Code § 7907.5(b)].

It is not clear whether the compact applies to independent adoptions between private parties [see Adoption of Zachariah K. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1025, 1038, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 423] . A birth parent who privately surrenders a child for adoption to prospective adoptive parents in another state would seem to fall within the definition of "sending agency" [Fam. Code § 7901, art. 2(b)]. Fam. Code § 8801.3(d) requires that the adoption placement agreement meet the requirements of the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children [Fam. Code § 8801.3(d)]. However, the adoptive parents might be, by decree, or otherwise, considered "nonagency guardians" within the exclusion of Article 8(a) [see Adoption of Zachariah K. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1025, 1038, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 423] .

The Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children contains additional provisions regarding the placement of children in out-of-state group homes [see Fam. Code §§ 7911-7912].

The Department of Social Services assumes that the ICPC applies to private adoptions. Unless the placement for adoption is with a relative within the ICPC exclusions, it is recommended that counsel satisfy the ICPC requirements before allowing the child (or the pregnant birth mother) to cross state lines for the adoption placement. Most other states also interpret the ICPC as applying to private adoptions. A failure to obtain approval from the Compact Administrators of the involved states may expose the parties to criminal penalties, greatly complicate the adoption process, and potentially invalidate the relinquishment or consent to adoption.

§ 12B.252 Jurisdiction Under Compact

Under the interstate compact, the sending agency retains sufficient jurisdiction over the child to determine all matters in relation to the custody, supervision, care, treatment, and disposition of the child that it would have had if the child had remained in the sending agency's state, until the child is adopted, reaches majority, becomes self-supporting, or is discharged with the concurrence of the appropriate authority [see Fam. Code § 7904 (in California, "appropriate authority" is Department of Social Services)] in the receiving state. This jurisdiction also includes the power to effect or cause the return of the child or the child's transfer to another location and custody under law [Fam. Code § 7901, art. 5(a)].

For purposes of an interstate adoption placement, "jurisdiction" as used in Fam. Code § 7901, art. 5 means "jurisdiction over or legal responsibility for the child" [Fam. Code § 7908.5 (statute merely makes technical clarification, not substantive change)].

Specific jurisdictional requirements set forth in Fam. Code § 9210 apply to interstate adoptions if the prospectiveadoptive parents reside outside of California [Fam. Code § 9212(a)]. These requirements were apparently enacted in response to California's earlier passage of the UCCJEA, which removed references to adoption that formerly were contained in the UCCJA (discussed hereafter).

Before California's repeal of the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act (UCCJA), and enactment of the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act (UCCJEA--Fam. Code § 3400 et seq.), operative January 1, 2000, case law held that retention of jurisdiction under the compact should be yielded if another jurisdiction was a more convenient forum under the (now former) UCCJA [In re Gloria F. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 576, 586-588, 260 Cal. Rptr. 706] . Because the UCCJEA now expressly excludes adoptions from its provisions, it would appear that this holding no longer obtains [see Fam. Code § 3404]. For further discussion of the UCCJEA, see Ch. 394, Parent and Child .

However, the federal Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act (PKPA; 28 U.S.C. § 1738A) preempts state law on the issue of jurisdiction by a state to render a valid custody decree. Therefore, jurisdictional provisions of the interstate compact cannot take precedence over any conflicting provisions in the PKPA [Adoption of Zachariah K. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1025, 1036, 1038, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 423] . For further discussion of the PKPA, see Ch. 394, Parent and Child .

§ 12B.253 General Procedures Under the Compact

Under the Compact, before sending, bringing, or causing any child to be sent or brought into a receiving state for placement in foster care or as a preliminary to a possible adoption, the sending agency must furnish the appropriate public authorities [see Fam. Code § 7903 (in California, the Department of Social Services)] in the receiving state with written notice of the intention to send, bring, or place the child in the receiving state [Fam. Code § 7901, art. 3(b)]. The notice must contain the following information [Fam. Code § 7901, art. 3(b)]:

(1) The name, date, and place of birth of the child;

(2) The identity and address or addresses of the parents or legal guardian;

(3) The name and address of the person, agency, or institution to whom or with which the sending agency proposes to send, bring, or place the child; and

(4) A full statement of the reasons for the proposed action and evidence of the authority pursuant to which the placement is proposed to be made.

Any public officer or agency in a receiving state that is in receipt of such a notice may request of the sending agency, or any other appropriate officer or agency of, or in, the sending agency's state, and is entitled to receive therefrom, such supporting or additional information as it may deem necessary under the circumstances to carry out the purpose and policy of the Compact [Fam. Code § 7901, art. 3(c)]. The child must not be sent, brought, or caused to be sent or brought into the receiving state until the appropriate public authorities [see Fam. Code § 7903 (in California, the Department of Social Services)] in the receiving state notify the sending agency, in writing, to the effect that the proposed placement does not appear to be contrary to the interests of the child [see Fam. Code § 7901, art. 3(d); see also In re Eli F. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 228, 239, 260 Cal. Rptr. 453 (juvenile court placement order reversed for failure to comply with required procedures)].

Within 60 days of receiving a request from another state to conduct a study of a home environment for purposes of assessing the safety and suitability of placing a child in the home, a county child welfare agency must conduct and complete the study, and return a report to the requesting state on the results of the study, which must address the extent to which placement in the home would meet the child's needs [Fam. Code § 7901.1(a)].

The sending agency will continue to have financial responsibility for the support and maintenance of the child during the period of placement [see Fam. Code § 7902 (financial responsibility initially determined under Fam. Code § 7901, art. 5; but if partial or complete default of performance thereunder, provisions of other state laws possibly invoked)]. However, these provisions will not defeat a claim of jurisdiction by a receiving state sufficient to deal with an act of delinquency or crime committed therein [see Fam. Code § 7901, art. 5(a); see also Fam. Code §§ 7901, art. 6, 7908 (relating to institutional care of delinquent children)].

A placement in violation of the Compact constitutes a violation of the laws of both the sending and receiving states and is also grounds for suspension or revocation of any license, permit, or other legal authorization held by the sending agency that allows it to place or care for children [see Fam. Code § 7901, art. 4]. A placement by court order in violation of the Compact's requirements may be reversed on appeal [see In re Eli F. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 228, 239, 260 Cal. Rptr. 453] .

A Compact administrator has the power to promulgate rules and regulations to carry out the terms and provisions of the Compact [see Fam. Code § 7901, art. 7; 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35400 et seq.]. The Compact administrator must not grant approval of an interstate placement of a child for adoption if the placement is in violation of either Fam. Code § 8801(a) (improper placement of child for independent adoption, discussed in § 12B.90) or Penal Code § 273 (paying parent for adoption of child, discussed in § 12B.14[2]) [Fam. Code § 7910]. However, no provision of law restricting out-of-state placement of children for adoption is applicable to placements made pursuant to the Compact [Fam. Code § 7907].

In order to obtain consent for the interstate placement, the ICPC form 100A is filed with the sending state by the sending agency (who is usually the birth mother in an independent placement), together with the other information required by the sending and receiving states [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 35401 et seq. (California regulations)]. The California Department of Social Services also publishes a pamphlet to guide ICPC applications. Outside California, the Compact Administrator may be contacted to ascertain that state's requirements. A preplacement home study of the prospective adoptive parents will be necessary [22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 35401, 35403, 35407, 35409]. The approval process may take up to several weeks.

For agency adoptions, California has delegated the tasks of the Compact Administrator to the licensed agency [22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 35401, 35403]. As a result, obtaining ICPC approval in agency adoptions is normally automatic. For independent adoptions, the tasks of the Compact Administrator have been delegated to the county adoption agency, or the local adoptions branch of the Department of Social Services, whichever would investigate an adoption in that county [22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 35407, 35409].

§ 12B.270 Indian Child Welfare Act

Adoption of American Indian children is subject to both federal and California law. Federal provisions concerning custody proceedings involving unmarried Indian children [see 25 U.S.C. § 1903(4) ("Indian child" defined)] are contained in 25 U.S.C. § 1901 et seq., which is a portion of the Indian Child Welfare Act of 1978 (ICWA) [Pub. L. No. 95-608]. An "Indian child" is a child who is either (1) a member of an Indian tribe, or (2) eligible for membership in an Indian tribe and the biological child of a member of an Indian tribe [see In re Shane G. (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1532, 1539, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 513 (agency's inquiry produced no information that child was Indian child); In re Jose C. (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 844, 849, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 355 (child's membership in tribe or biological parent's membership in tribe is requirement for child to qualify as Indian child)] The term "Indian tribe" under the ICWA only includes federally recognized tribes [25 U.S.C. § 1903(4), (8); In re Jonathon S. (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 334, 339, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 495); see In re A.C. (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 282, 287, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 767 (notice of proceedings need not be sent to tribe that is not federally recognized)]. A non-Indian parent has rights under the ICWA, which defines "parent" to include any biological parent or parents of an Indian child [25 U.S.C. § 1903(9); In re Jonathon S. (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 334, 339, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 495) (non-Indian mother had standing to raise contention that notice of proceeding to terminate parental rights to child was not given in accordance with ICWA)].

The ICWA provides for tribal jurisdiction over certain Indian child custody proceedings and includes transfer to state courts in appropriate cases [see 25 U.S.C. § 1911(a), (b); see Adoption of Hannah S. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 988, 993, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 605 , (only child custody proceedings excluded from ICWA are custody disputes resulting from divorce proceedings between parents of Indian child and placements of Indian children as result of juvenile delinquency proceedings; judicial creation of additional exceptions of any kind are not permitted); In re M.A. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 567, 572, 576, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 439 (transfer of juvenile dependency proceeding to tribal court when no statutory "good cause" to reject transfer was shown and neither parent objected to transfer; Interior Department's approval of tribal court is not required)].

It also contains procedures for notice of, and appointed counsel in, a state court proceeding involving foster care placement or termination of parental rights, as well as for placement of Indian children [see 25 U.S.C. §§ 1912(a), (b), 1913, 1915; In re Shane G. (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1532, 1538, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 513 (notice need not be given when there is insufficient reason to believe child is Indian child); Justin L. v. Superior Court (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 1406, 1410, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 884 (noting that remand for limited purpose of ICWA notice compliance "is all too common" and that "prevalence of inadequate notice remains disturbingly high"); In re I.G. (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1246, 1254, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 427) (emphasizing importance of strict compliance with ICWA notice requirements, and noting that noncompliance with ICWA has been continuing problem in state court proceedings); In re X.V. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 794, 799 , 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 893 (ICWA's notice requirements are intended to ensure child's tribe will have opportunity to assert its rights to intervene in proceedings, irrespective of position of child's parents or state agency); In re S.B. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1148, 1154, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 726 (ICWA applies to any state court proceeding involving foster care or adoptive placement of, or termination of parental rights to, an Indian child); In re D.T. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1449, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 893 (failure to give adequate notice requires reversal of order terminating birth parent's parental rights); In re Karla C. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 166, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 205 ; see also Nicole K. v. Superior Court (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 779, 783, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 251 (notice sent to tribe at incorrect address is inadequate); In re Merrick V. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 235, 241-242, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 490 (case remanded with directions for court to assure compliance with ICWA's notice requirements and California case law interpreting ICWA, when county health and human services agency that filed dependency petitions did not submit to court proof of notice to tribe or to BIA); In re Miguel E. (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 521, 550, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 530 (case remanded for compliance with ICWA when notice was apparently sent to wrong tribe, no notice was sent to BIA, there was no indication notices were sent by registered mail with return receipt requested, and notices omitted much of required information); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.481(a)(4) (required inquiry)]. For the form of notice, see § 12B.384.

The Indian status of the child need not be certain to invoke the notice requirement of the ICWA; because the question of membership rests with each Indian tribe, when the court knows or has reason to believe the child may be an Indian child, notice must be given to the particular tribe in question or the Secretary of the Interior [Nicole K. v. Superior Court (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 779, 783, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 251 ; In re Joseph P. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 1524, 1529, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591 ; In re Francisco W. 2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 695, 701, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 171 ; In re S.B. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1148, 1154, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 726); In re O.K. (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 152, 156-158, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 276 ; see In re Robert A. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 982, 989, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 74 (suggestion of Indian ancestry is sufficient to trigger notice requirement); but see In re Jose C. (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 844, 848, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 355 (enrollment of child or parents in tribe is not prerequisite for giving notice)]. The circumstances under which a court has reason to believe that a child is an Indian child include, but are not limited to, the following [In re O.K. (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 152, 156, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 276 ; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.481(a)(5)]:

- Any party to the case, Indian tribe, Indian organization or public or private agency informs the court that the child is an Indian child.

- Any public or state-licensed agency involved in child protection services or family support has discovered information that suggests that the child is an Indian child.

- The child who is the subject of the proceeding gives the court reason to believe he or she is an Indian child.

- The residence or the domicile of the child, his or her biological parents, or the Indian custodian is known by the court to be or is shown to be a predominantly Indian community.

- An officer of the court involved in the proceeding has knowledge that the child may be an Indian child.

A court satisfies its initial and continuing duty to inquire into a child's status as an Indian child by asking the parents at each hearing to disclose membership in any Indian tribe. In such event, it is incumbent on each parent to disclose any Indian ancestry. If no disclosure is made, the court may properly conclude that the ICWA does not apply [In re E.H. (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 1330, 1334, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 787 ; see In re A.B. (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 832, 839-840, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 580 (when both biological parents deny any Indian heritage, there is no tribe to notify of the proceedings, but when parent indicates he or she may have Indian heritage, it is preferable to err on side of giving notice)].

If the court has reason to know that the proceedings involve an Indian child, it has a duty to give the requisite notice itself or to ensure the social service's agency's compliance with the notice requirements [Justin L. v. Superior Court (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 1406, 1410, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 884 ; In re X.V. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 794, 801, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 893 ; see In re Aaron R. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 697, 707, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 921 (grandmother's brief allusion to her membership in Indian historical association, which was not itself a tribe, did not give court reason to know child might be an Indian child)]. This duty is sua sponte, because notice is intended to protect the interests of Indian children and tribes despite the parents' inaction [In re X.V. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 794, 801, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 893] .

Notice must be sent to all tribes of which the child may be a member or eligible for membership. The notice must include the names of the child's ancestors and other known identifying information, and be sent by registered mail, return receipt requested [In re Francisco W. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 695, 702, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 171 ; In re Brooke C. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 377, 384, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 590] . If the identity or location of the child's tribe cannot be determined, notice of the proceedings need only be given to the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA).

No proceeding involving the custody of an Indian child may be held until at least 10 days after receipt of notice by the child's parent, Indian custodian, tribe, or the BIA [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.482(a)(1); In re X.V. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 794, 800, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 893 ; In re S.B. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1148, 1154, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 726)]. If a tribe responds indicating that the child is eligible for membership if certain steps are followed, the court must proceed as if the child is an Indian child and direct the appropriate individual or agency to provide active efforts to secure tribal membership for the child [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.482(c); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.484(c) (affect efforts that must be undertaken)]. If neither the tribe nor the BIA provides a determinative response within 60 days after receiving the notice, the court may determine that the ICWA does not apply to the proceedings [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.482(d)(1); In re Francisco W. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 695, 703, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 171 ; In re Jasmine G. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1109, 1118, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 394] . The court must reverse its determination and must apply the ICWA prospectively if a tribe or the BIA subsequently confirms that the child is an Indian child [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.482(d)(1)]. Based on the petition or other information, if the court knows or has reason to know at any time that the child is an Indian child, it must proceed as if the child were an Indian child [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.482(d)(2)]. Otherwise, the court is not required to delay the proceedings until a response to the notice is received [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.482(d)(3)].

The notices, return receipts, and response of the BIA and the tribes must be filed with the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.482(b); In re Robert A. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 982, 989, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 74 ; In re X.V. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 794, 800, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 893 ; Alicia B. v. Superior Court (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 856, 865, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 ; see In re Mary G. (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 184, 211, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 703 (all responses must be filed)]. The court may not rely on mere representations that proper notice was given; there must be a court record of the notice documents [In re Glorianna K. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1443, 1449, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 582] .

When proper notice is not given under the ICWA, a court's order terminating parental rights is voidable [Justin L. v. Superior Court (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 1406, 1410, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 884 ; In re Glorianna K. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1443, 1449, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 582] . However, a failure to comply with the notice provisions of the ICWA may be held to be harmless error when the child's tribe has actually participated in the proceedings or when, even if notice had been given, the child would not have been found to be an Indian child and, therefore, the substantive provisions of the ICWA would not have applied [In re S.B. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1148, 1158, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 726 ; see In re Cheyanne F. (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 571, 577, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 189 (deficiencies in ICWA notice are generally prejudicial, but may be deemed harmless when there is no basis to conclude that including omitted information would have produced different results concerning child's Indian heritage)]. Moreover, when proper notice has been given to the BIA, a court is not required to suspend the proceedings because a parent belatedly comes forward and claims to have Indian heritage [In re Joseph P. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 1524, 1531, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591] .

The notice requirements are mandatory and cannot be waived by the parties [In re Justin S. (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 1426, 1435, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 376 ; In re Robert A. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 982, 989, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 74].

In any child custody proceeding, the court may not order placement of an Indian child unless it finds by clear and convincing evidence that continued custody with the parent or Indian custodian is likely to cause the child serious emotional or physical damage, and considers evidence regarding the prevailing social and cultural standards of the child's tribe, including that tribe's family organization and child-rearing practices [25 U.S.C. § 1912(e); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.484(a); Adoption of Hannah S. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 988, 994, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 605 ; In re S.B. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1148, 1155, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 726]. This is because the ICWA presumes that it is in the best interests of an Indian child to retain tribal ties and cultural heritage and in the interest of the tribe to preserve its future generations, a most important resource [In re A.B. (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 832, 838, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 580]. Testimony by a qualified expert witness is required before a court may order a child placed in foster care or may terminate parental rights [25 U.S.C. § 1912(e), (f); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.484(a)(1)]. A stipulation by the parent, Indian custodian, or tribe, or a failure to object, may waive the requirement of producing evidence as to the likelihood of serious damage only if the court is satisfied that the person or tribe has been fully advised of the requirements of the ICWA and has knowingly, intelligently, and voluntarily waived them. The stipulation must also be in writing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.484(a)(2)].

A court may only terminate parental rights to an Indian child or declare an Indian child free of the custody and control of one or both parents if the court finds by clear and convincing evidence that active efforts to provide remedial services and rehabilitative programs designed to prevent the breakup of the Indian family were made, and determines, based on evidence beyond a reasonable doubt, including the testimony of one or more qualified expert witnesses, that the continued custody of the child by the parent is likely to result in serious emotional or physical damage to the child [25 U.S.C. § 1912(f); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.485(a)]. A court may not terminate parental rights to an Indian child or declare the child free from the custody and control of one or both parents if the court finds a compelling reason for determining that termination of parental rights would not be in the child's best interest, for example, if termination of parental rights would substantially interfere with the child's connection to his or her tribal community or the child's tribal membership rights, or if the child's tribe has identified guardianship, long-term foster care with a fit and willing relative or another planned permanent living arrangement for the child [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.485(b)].

On the petition of an Indian child, a parent from whose custody an Indian child has been removed, of the Indian child's tribe, any court of competent jurisdiction must invalidate any action for foster care placement or termination of parental rights that violated the notice provision or any of the substantive provisions of the ICWA [25 U.S.C. § 1914; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.486].

§ 12B.271 California Adoption Law

California law regarding the adoption of Indian children is largely contained in Fam. Code §§ 170-185, 3041(e), 7822(e), 7892.5, 8606.5, 8619, 8619.5, and 8620, and in 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35353 et seq. Fam. Code § 8619 requires the Department of Social Services adopt rules and regulations to assure that a parent of Indian ancestry who seeks to relinquish a child for adoption provides sufficient information to the Department of Social Services so that a certificate of degree of Indian blood can be obtained from the Bureau of Indian Affairs. Obtaining this information will, among other things, determine the adopted person's eligibility to receive services or benefits because of his or her status as an Indian [see Fam. Code § 8619].

Special notice provisions apply under the Family Code if a parent is seeking to relinquish a child under Fam. Code § 8700 or to execute an adoption placement agreement under Fam. Code § 8801.3 and there is information that the child is, or may be, an Indian child [see Fam. Code §§ 180, 8620(a)(1)]. The notice must describe the nature of the proceeding and advise the recipient of the Indian tribe's right to intervene in the proceeding on its own behalf or on behalf of a tribal member relative of the child [Fam. Code § 8620(a)(3)(B)]. For discussion of this notice, see § 12B.173[7].

If a child who is the subject of an adoption proceeding after being relinquished for adoption under Fam. Code § 8700 is an Indian child, the child's Indian tribe may intervene in that proceeding on behalf of a tribal member relative of the child [Fam. Code § 8620(c)].

In addition, state courts must comply with the Indian Child Welfare Act of 1978 (ICWA--25 U.S.C. 1901 et seq.) in all Indian child custody proceedings [see Fam. Code § 175]. For example, if the child is an Indian child and an allegation is made that parental custody would be detrimental to the child, before making an order granting custody to a person or persons other than a parent, over the parent's objection, the court must apply the evidentiary standards prescribed in the ICWA [Fam. Code § 3041(e)].

Consent to adoption given by an Indian child's parent is not valid unless the consent is executed in writing at least 10 days after the child's birth and recorded before a judge, and the judge certifies that the terms and consequences of the consent were fully explained in detail in English and were fully understood by the parent or that they were interpreted into a language that the parent understood [Fam. Code § 8606.5(a)]. The parent may withdraw his or her consent to the adoption for any reason at any time before entry of a final decree of adoption, and the child must be returned to the parent [Fam. Code § 8606.5(b)]. After entry of a final decree of adoption, a parent may withdraw consent to the adoption on the grounds that consent was obtained through fraud or duress, and may petition the court to vacate the decree. On finding that consent was obtained through fraud or duress, the court must vacate the decree and return the child to the parent, as long as the adoption has not been in effect for more than two years [Fam. Code § 8606.5(c)].

A presumed father's waiver of the right to notice of the adoption proceeding under Fam. Code § 7660 must be executed in accordance with the requirements of voluntary adoptions set forth in 25 U.S.C. § 1913, and does not affect the rights of any tribe from which the child or the presumed father may be descended to notification of, or participation in, adoption proceedings as provided by the ICWA [Fam. Code § 7660.5]. Notice that a waiver has been executed must be given to any known federally recognized Indian tribe or tribes from which the child or the presumed father may be descended, as required by the ICWA [Fam. Code § 7660.5].

The department or agency must consider the placement preferences and standards set out in subdivisions (c) through (i) of Welfare and Institutions Code Section 361.31, including placement with a member of the child's extended family, other members of the child's tribe, or another Indian family, or placement according to the order of preference established by the tribe [see Fam. Code § 8710(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.484(b)]. If the prospective adoptive parents do not fall within these placement preferences, they may only be considered if the court finds, by clear and convincing evidence, that good cause exists to deviate from the placement preferences [Fam. Code § 8710(b)].

Before issuing an order of adoption in a proceeding involving an Indian child, the court may, on petition of the birth parent, birth relative, or Indian tribe, order the parties to engage in family mediation services for the purpose of reaching a postadoption contact agreement if the prospective adoptive parent fails to negotiate in good faith to enter into an agreement, after having agreed to enter into negotiations; the parties' failure to reach an agreement is not, in and of itself, proof of bad faith [Fam. Code § 8616.5(k)(1)]. Before issuing the order of adoption, if the parties fail to negotiate in good faith to enter into a postadoption contract agreement during the negotiations, described above, the court may modify prior orders or issue new orders as necessary to ensure the best interest of the Indian child is met, including, but not limited to, requiring parties to engage in further family mediation services for the purpose of reaching a postadoption contact agreement, initiating guardianship proceedings in place of adoption, or authorizing a change of adoptive placement for the child [Fam. Code § 8616.5(k)(2)].

The clerk of the court that enters a final order of adoption concerning an Indian child must provide the Secretary of the Interior (or his or her designee) with a copy of the order within 30 days of the date of the order, along with any information necessary to show the child's name and tribal affiliation, the biological parents' names and addresses, the adoptive parents' names and addresses, and the identity of the agency having files or information relating to this adoptive placement [Fam. Code § 9208(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.487(a)]. If the court records contain an affidavit of the biological parents that their identity remain confidential, the court must include that affidavit with the other information [Fam. Code § 9208(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.487(b)].

When a final decree of adoption of an Indian child has been vacated or set aside, or the adoptive parent voluntarily consents to termination of his or her parental rights to the child, a biological parent or prior Indian custodian may petition for return of custody, and the court must grant the petition unless it is shown that return of custody is not in the child's best interests [Fam. Code § 8619.5].

On application of an Indian individual who has reached the age of 18 years and who was the subject of an adoptive placement, the court that entered the final decree of adoption must inform that individual of the tribal affiliation (if any) and of the individual's biological parents, and must provide any other information as may be necessary to protect any rights flowing from the individual's tribal relationship, including tribal membership rights or eligibility for federal or tribal programs or services available to Indians [Fam. Code § 9209(a)]. If the court records contain an affidavit of the biological parents that their identity remain confidential, the court must inform the individual that the Secretary of the Interior may, on request, certify to the individual's tribe that the individual's parentage and other circumstances of birth entitle the individual to membership under the criteria established by the tribe [Fam. Code § 9209(b)].

The California Code of Regulations provides for a certification procedure with respect to Indian ancestry, for an adoption study, specific advisements to be provided to the child's natural parents, and the method of relinquishment and consent [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35357 et seq.]. It also specifies the method by which parental rights may be terminated, the information required to be given to prospective adoptive parents, and the method of placement of the child [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35375 et seq.].

In the absence of a signed relinquishment or consent, parental rights over an Indian child may be terminated only by a legal action that complies with the ICWA [22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 35373, 35377].

The Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children does not apply to any placement, sending, or bringing of an Indian child into another state under a transfer of jurisdiction to a tribal court under the ICWA [Fam. Code § 7907.3].

§ 12B.285 Decisions

[1] Adoption in General

[a] Abuse of Discretion

No abuse of discretion when trial court denied adoption petition of older guardians who had cared for child from birth and granted petition of younger out-of-state relatives, even though court's action was contrary to agency report and desires of child. Adoption of Berth (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 221, 224-225, 179 P.2d 572

Court as assumed to have found everything necessary to support its judgment if findings were waived. In re Campbell (1935) 9 Cal. App. 2d 622, 623, 51 P.2d 138

[b] Adoption Agreement

Enforceability of adoption agreements. Estate of Grace (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 956, 962-966, 200 P.2d 189

[c] Consent of Spouse

Married person granted interlocutory decree of divorce as lawfully separated from her husband within meaning of former Civil Code provisions superseded by Fam. Code § 8603 and able to adopt child without his consent. Stauter v. Carithers (1921) 185 Cal. 160, 163, 196 P. 37 (woman); Adoption of Shook (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 287, 289, 276 P.2d 839 (man) Joint adoption petition of husband and wife as proper. In re Williams (1894) 102 Cal. 70, 77, 36 P. 407

Effect of advanced age of adoptive parents. San Diego County Dep't of Public Welfare v. Superior Court of San Diego County (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 1, 16, 101 Cal. Rptr. 541, 496 P.2d 453 ; Adoption of Driscoll (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 735, 737, 75 Cal. Rptr. 382

Effect of poor health of adopting parents. Adoption of Driscoll (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 735, 737, 75 Cal. Rptr. 382

Effect of adoptive parents' emotional problems. Adoption of Schroetter (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 365, 368-369, 67 Cal. Rptr. 819 ; Adoption of Lingol (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 457, 459-460, 237 P.2d 57

Petitioners as denied due process and equal protection under U.S. Const., amend. XIV because petition for adoption was denied on sole ground that petitioners were deaf-mute persons. Adoption of Richardson (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 222, 239-240, 59 Cal. Rptr. 323

[e] Interest of Child

Court's primary concern in adoption proceeding as determining best interests of child; question of clean hands in proceeding involving writ of mandate as subordinate thereto. San Diego County Dep't of Public Welfare v. Superior Court of San Diego County (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 1, 9, 101 Cal. Rptr. 541, 496 P.2d 453

[f] Jurisdiction

Adoption proceeding as essentially in rem; jurisdiction of subject matter and essential parties as not lost because one adopting parent, through death or divorce, ceases to be petitioner. Adoption of Barnett (1960) 54 Cal. 2d370, 376-377, 6 Cal. Rptr. 562, 354 P.2d 18 (independent adoption); see also County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 1059, 1061-1063, 82 Cal. Rptr. 882 (agency adoption; amended petition as single parent applicant filed one week after complaint for divorce)

California court as having jurisdiction, which attached at time petition was filed, in adoption proceeding when children were residents of California. Morrisette v. Superior Court (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 597, 599, 46 Cal. Rptr. 153 ; Adoption of Burton (1956) 147 Cal. App. 2d 125, 130, 305 P.2d 185

[g] Multiple Petitions

When adoption proceedings were commenced by different parties in two different counties, fact that children had lived most of their life in one county as not determinative of which county should have preference. Morrisette v. Superior Court (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 597, 602, 46 Cal. Rptr. 153

Paternal grandparents seeking to adopt grandchildren in their custody as not having preference over maternal grandparents also seeking to adopt children. Morrisette v. Superior Court (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 597, 601, 46 Cal. Rptr. 153

When two adoption petitions were filed in different counties, writ of prohibition as proper to restrain second proceeding until completion of hearing on first petition. Morrisette v. Superior Court (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 597, 600-601, 46 Cal. Rptr. 153

When two petitions for adoption of same child are pending, and court denies first petition, court as not required to wait until those petitioners have exhausted their appellate remedies before granting second petition. Adoption of Berth (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 221, 223, 179 P.2d 572

[h] Statement of Decision

Adoption proceedings as not actions but special proceedings not requiring findings (now supplanted by statement of decision). In re Helen J. (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 238, 243-244, 107 Cal. Rptr. 106

[i] Who May Adopt

Natural mother divorced from child's natural father as not able to adopt their natural child for purpose of severing parental relationship between child and its father. Marshall v. Marshall (1925) 196 Cal. 761, 766, 239 P. 36

[2] Idependent Adoptions

[a] Consent

[i] In General

Consent to adoption as waiving important statutory rights; such waiver as required to be voluntary and knowing, intelligent act done with awareness of circumstances and consequences. San Diego County Dep't of Public Welfare v. Superior Court of San Diego County (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 1, 10, 101 Cal. Rptr. 541, 496 P.2d 453

Consent of natural parents, when required by statute, as jurisdictional prerequisite to adoption. Adoption of Barnett (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 370, 377, 6 Cal. Rptr. 562, 354 P.2d 18

Requirement of modification of consent when adoptive parents to whom original consent was given were divorced and one adoptive parent proceeded alone. Adoption of R.R.R. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 973, 985 n.3, 96 Cal. Rptr. 308

Freeing child from control of parent as prerequisite to adoption of that child without consent of parent. Adoption of Hinman (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 211, 215, 94 Cal. Rptr. 487

[ii] Signing and Filing

Generally, consent of parent as required to be signed before agent of Department of Social Services or in open court. Adoption of Parker (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 608, 613-614, 191 P.2d 420

Consent signed in presence of agent of Department of Social Services as not effective until accepted. Adoption of Parker (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 608, 613, 191 P.2d 420

[iii] Pre-1995 Withdrawal

Parental preference standard of former Civil Code provisions superseded by Fam. Code § 3040 applicable in custody disputes, as not applying in proceeding under former Civil Code provisions superseded by Fam. Code § 8815 to withdraw consent to adoption because statutory standard is whether or not withdrawal is reasonable and in best interests of child. Adoption of Jennie L. (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 422, 429-430, 168 Cal. Rptr. 695

Mother as entitled to transcripts prepared at county expense on appeal from order denying her motion to withdraw her consent to adoption. Smith v. Superior Court (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 109, 113, 115 Cal. Rptr. 677

In proceedings on petition to withdraw consent, whether consent was obtained under mistake, fraud, or undue influence and best interests of child as factual questions for trial court. Adoption of Schroetter (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 365, 371, 67 Cal. Rptr. 819 ; Adoption of Pitcher (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 859, 864, 230 P.2d 449

Natural father who subsequently legitimates child as able to petition to withdraw consent of mother on court approval. Adoption of Laws (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 494, 501, 20 Cal. Rptr. 64

Motion for new trial in proceeding to withdraw consent. Adoption of Curtis (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 179, 184, 15 Cal. Rptr. 331

On appeal from denial of petition to withdraw consent, trial court as assumed to have considered agency report filed pursuant thereto if no contrary showing appeared in record. Adoption of Curtis (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 179, 182, 15 Cal. Rptr. 331

Former Civil Code provisions superseded by Fam. Code § 8815 as vesting in trial court discretion to allow withdrawal of consent and exercise thereof as not to be interfered with on appeal without clear showing of abuse. Adoption of Curtis (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 179, 181, 15 Cal. Rptr. 331

Restoring child to custody of parent after adoption petition dismissed. Adoption of Cox (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 434, 439-442, 24 Cal. Rptr. 864, 374 P.2d 832

Legal custody of child in independent adoption as remaining in natural parent unless and until adoption is granted. Adoption of Driscoll (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 735, 738-739, 75 Cal. Rptr. 382

[c] Petition

Petitioners who were not selected by adoption agency as not prohibited from filing petition for independent adoption of child before child's relinquishment to agency. San Diego County Dep't of Public Welfare v. Superior Court of San Diego County (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 1, 14-15, 101 Cal. Rptr. 541, 496 P.2d 453

[3] Stepparent Adoptions

Standard to be applied in determining facts relating to parent's willful neglect of child in stepparent adoption proceeding under former Civil Code provisions superseded by Fam. Code § 8604 as proof by clear and convincing evidence. In re Jay R. (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 251, 265, 197 Cal. Rptr. 672

In stepparent adoption proceeding under former Civil Code provisions superseded by Fam. Code § 8604 when petitioner alleges noncustodial parent's consent is unnecessary because of his or her wilful failure to communicate with and provide for child for period of one year, noncustodial parent as required to be informed of specific factual allegations supporting petition; citation simply ordering appearance as inadequate notice of issues to be met. In re Jay R. (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 251, 260, 197 Cal. Rptr. 672

Due process as requiring appointment of counsel for indigent noncustodial parent accused of neglect in stepparent adoption proceedings if indigence is demonstrated and appointment of counsel is requested. In re Jay R. (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 251, 260, 197 Cal. Rptr. 672

Sole issue in stepparent adoption proceeding under former Civil Code provisions superseded by Fam. Code § 8604, other than child's best interests, as whether noncustodial parent had ability to communicate with and provide for child but wilfully failed to do so for period of one year; distinguishing abandonment procedure pursuant to former Civil Code provisions superseded by Fam. Code § 7800 et seq. In re Jay R. (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 251, 258, 197 Cal. Rptr. 672

Adoption by stepparent as not invalidated by annulment of marriage. Adoption of Jason R. (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 11, 16, 151 Cal. Rptr. 501

Grandparents as lacking standing to attack stepparent adoption; grandparents as not required to be given notice of adoption proceeding. Adoption of Berman (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 687, 691-695, 118 Cal. Rptr. 804

Nature of stepparent adoption. Adoption of Bird (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 140, 147, 6 Cal. Rptr. 675

[4] Agency Adoptions

[a] Guardianship

Appointment of guardian for child after child has been relinquished to licensed adoption agency as improper unless extraordinary circumstances indicate it is in child's best interest. San Diego County Dep't of Public Welfare v. Superior Court of San Diego County (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 1, 12-13, 101 Cal. Rptr. 541, 496 P.2d 453 ; Guardianship of Henwood (1958) 49 Cal. 2d 639, 644-646, 320 P.2d 1

Trial court as not in error in failing to limit inquiry in guardianship proceeding (when adoption is also pending) to whether agency is unfit or adoption improbable. Terzian v. Superior Court (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 286, 291-292, 88 Cal. Rptr. 806

[b] Interest of Child

Once child has been relinquished, sole determination of court on petition for adoption properly filed as whether or not granting petition will promote welfare, and is in best interests, of child. San Diego County Dep't of Public Welfare v. Superior Court of San Diego County (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 1, 16, 101 Cal. Rptr. 541, 496 P.2d 453

[c] Proper Petitioners

Trial court as not required to dismiss adoption petition because petitioners with whom relinquished child was placed for adoption were divorced after adoption petition was filed and one petitioner filed amended petition as single parent applicant. County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 1059, 1063-1065, 82 Cal. Rptr. 882

Former Civil Code provisions superseded by Fam. Code § 8704, prohibiting anyone but prospective adoptive parents selected by agency to which child was relinquished from petitioning to adopt child, as constitutional. Adoption of Runyon (1969) 268 Cal. App. 2d 918, 921, 74 Cal. Rptr. 514

Adoption petition by foster parents with whom child was placed as barred under former Civil Code provisions superseded by Fam. Code § 8704(c) after agency removed child and placed it in home of prospective adoptive parents. Adoption of Runyon (1969) 268 Cal. App. 2d 918, 920, 74 Cal. Rptr. 514

[d] Relinquishment

Relinquishment signed by natural mother as not invalidated because it was obtained during pendency of guardianship proceedings. San Diego County Dep't of Public Welfare v. Superior Court of San Diego County (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 1, 9, 101 Cal. Rptr. 541, 496 P.2d 453

Former Civil Code provisions superseded by Fam. Code § 2346, authorizing nunc pro tunc entry judgment of dissolution, as not invalidating relinquishment made before entry of final judgment; relinquishment as vested right. Adoption of Graham (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 899, 904-905, 27 Cal. Rptr. 163, 377 P.2d 275

Certified copy of relinquishment as not required to be filed immediately after it is signed. Adoption of Pior (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 472, 475, 274 P.2d 637

If relinquishment was signed by parent but not filed with Department of Health (now Department of Social Services), parent as still entitled to custody of child. Adoption of Pior (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 472, 475, 274 P.2d 637

Relinquishment of custody as valid when mother agreed to do so in exchange for visitation rights with her children. In re Ruby T. (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 1201, 1204, 227 Cal. Rptr. 8

Order of court declaring relinquishment "null and void" as proper when misrepresentation of fact led petitioner to believe relinquishment was not final. Fiske v. Director, Dep't of Public Welfare (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 31, 37, 236 P.2d 427

[e] Responsibility of Agency

County agency as immune from liability for negligence in selecting abusive adoptive parents for orphans but as not immune from liability for negligence in transferring children's funds to adoptive parents. Ronald S. v. County of San Diego (1993) 16 Cal. App. th 887, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 418

Adoption agency as having no duty to warn natural parent of genetic disease of adoptive child, and parent may not maintain wrongful death action against person who fails to take affirmative action to protect against peril person did not create, unless a special relationship, generally involving dependency or reliance, gives rise to duty to act. Olson v. Children's Home Society (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1362, 1367, 252 Cal. Rptr. 11

Adoption agency as required to make good faith, full disclosure of material facts concerning existing or past conditions of the adopted person's health. Michael J. v. Los Angeles County Dept. of Adoptions (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 859, 875, 247 Cal. Rptr. 504

Adoption agency as liable for intentional misrepresentation or fraudulent concealment regarding adopted person's medical condition. Michael J. v. Los Angeles County Dept. of Adoptions (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 859, 872, 875, 247 Cal. Rptr. 504

Agency as not liable to adoptive parents for negligent misrepresentation or breach of warranty if child later found not to be in good health. Richard P. v. Vista Del Mar Child Care Service (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 860, 866-868, 165 Cal. Rptr. 370

Minor as having no cause of action against agency for agency's negligent or intentional failure to take reasonable steps to bring about minor's adoption. Smith v. Alameda County Social Services Agency (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 929, 935-939, 153 Cal. Rptr. 712

[f] Right to Petition and Other Relief

Prospective adoptive parents with whom child had resided on probationary basis as not precluded from petitioning to adopt child because they signed agreement that they would not petition without consent of local agency. Adoption of McDonald (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 447, 461, 274 P.2d 860

[g] Termination of Placement

Cause for removal without notice as existing not only if there is immediate physical danger, but also whenever there is risk of injury or potential danger to child's health or safety. Marten v. Thies (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 161, 171, 160 Cal. Rptr. 57

Agency order to terminate adoptive placement as reviewable administrative order under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1084 and 1085 (mandate). Rodriguez v. Superior Court (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 510, 513, 95 Cal. Rptr. 923

[2] Use of Form

This form is an is an illustration of the mandatory Judicial Council form of Adoption Agreement (renamed from "Petitioner Consent and Agreement to Adoption") [Cal. Judicial Council Form ADOPT-210]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

This form is designed to enable the petitioning adopting parent(s) to meet the statutory requirements of (1) agreeing to adopt the child who is the subject of the adoption proceeding and of treating the child in all respects as a natural child of the adopting parent(s), (2) obtaining the agreement to the adoption by the spouse or domestic partner of the adopting parent, and (3) obtaining the child's agreement to the adoption if the child is 12 years of age or older [see Fam. Code §§ 8602-8606, 8612(b), 9000(b)]. It also enables a child of 12 years of age or older to request contact with siblings after an adoption is finalized.

The form should not be signed by the petitioning adoptive parent(s) or the child until they are in the presence of the judicial officer hearing the matter. Local rules of practice should be consulted concerning any particular requirements or procedures concerning the signing [cf. Estate of Sharon (1918) 179 Cal. 447, 455, 177 P. 283 (under prior statute, necessary consents of petitioners or child had to be signed in judge's presence)].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

In completing the form, the type of adoption proceeding should be indicated by marking the appropriate check-off box in Paragraph 2. Identifying information concerning the petitioning adopting parent(s) and the child are set forth in Paragraphs 1 and 3. If the adoption is an independent, relative, or stepparent or domestic partner adoption, the child's name before adoption should be set forth in paragraph 4. If a guardianship over the child has been established, Paragraph 5 should be completed, and a copy of the letters of guardianship should be attached. If the child is a dependent of the juvenile court, the county in which the dependency proceeding was filed and the case number must be set forth in Paragraph 6. American Indian children should be identified by marking the check-off box "Yes" in Paragraph 7, and attaching the Judicial Council form of Adoption of Indian Child [Cal. Judicial Council Form ADOPT-220]. The birth parents' names (if known) should be specified in Paragraph 8.

Paragraph 9 should be completed for an agency adoption. Paragraph 10 should be completed for an independent adoption, and a copy of the adoption placement agreement should be attached. Paragraph 11 should be completed for a stepparent or domestic partner adoption.

If the consent of the birth mother or the presumed father is unnecessary, the appropriate boxes in Paragraph 14 should be checked and the statutory exception to the consent requirement should be indicated. If the parental rights of the birth mother, presumed father, or biological father have been terminated, the appropriate boxes in paragraph 15 should be checked, and a copy of the order should be attached (if available). If the child was conceived by artificial insemination, Paragraph 12 should be checked. If the adopting parents are requesting that the court terminate the parental rights of the birth mother, presumed father, or biological father, the appropriate box(es) in Paragraph 16 should be checked.

The appropriate box(es) in Paragraph 17 should be checked if the birth mother, presumed father, or biological father has not contacted the child for one year. The appropriate box(es) in Paragraph 18 should be checked if the birth mother, presumed father, or biological father has died.

Each petitioning adopting parent and the attorney for the adopting parent must execute the adoption request.

This form is an illustrative version of the mandatory Judicial Council form of Adoption Order [Cal. Judicial Council Form ADOPT-215], for use in proceedings to adopt unmarried minors. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form consists of three parts. The first part is completed by the petitioning adopting parent(s). The same identifying information concerning the adopting parent(s) that is set forth in Paragraph 1 of the Adoption Request (see § 12B.302) must be included in Paragraph 1 of the order. Identifying information concerning the child is set forth in Paragraph 3, including the child's name after adoption. If the adoption is an agency adoption, the name of the agency must be specified in Paragraph 4. Paragraph 6 must be completed to indicate the persons present in court at the adoption hearing.

The second part of the form is completed by the judge or, at the judge's request, may be completed by the adopting parent(s) following the hearing and submitted to the judge for signature. The appropriate boxes in Paragraph 7 should be marked to indicate the child's agreement to the adoption if the child is 12 years of age or older. The appropriate boxes in Paragraph 9 should be checked in the case of a relative adoption, when the relative or the child who is 12 years of age or older desires to indicate the child's name before adoption in the order [see Fam. Code § 8714.5(g)]. The appropriate box in Paragraph 11 should also be marked when there is a contact after adoption agreement. If the child is an American Indian child, the box in Paragraph 10 should be marked. The child's name after adoption should be specified in Paragraph 12.

The third part of the form is the clerk's certificate of mailing, which is completed only in the case of an adoption of an American Indian child. It certifies that the clerk has mailed copies of the adoption request, adoption order, adoption of Indian child and contact after adoption agreement, to the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

This form is the Department of Social Services Form (AD 3) for use for the court clerk to give the department notice of the filing of an adoption petition. Such a notice is required in all adoption matters [see Fam. Code §§ 8714(b), 8802(a), 8912(a)] except stepparent adoptions [see Fam. Code § 9000 et seq.].

Use of the department's form is not required by statute, but is highly recommended. Typically, the court clerk will expect the petitioner's attorney to prepare the notice, ready for the clerk's use, when the petition is filed. Counsel should check with the court clerk as to where a copy of the form may be obtained.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an illustration, of the mandatory Judicial Council form of Adoption Expenses [Cal. Judicial Council Form ADOPT-230], for use as the petitioning adopting parent(s)' report of expenditures, which must be prepared in any adoption matter except a stepparent adoption. The report must be submitted to the court on or before the date set by the court for the hearing on the adoption request, unless an extension of time is granted by the court. It must be made under penalty of perjury [see Fam. Code § 8610(a)]. This form is available in electronic format in LexisNexis Automated California Judicial Council Forms.

[3] Contents of Report

The report of expenditures must be itemized in detail and show the services relating to the adoption or to the placement of the child for adoption that were received by the petitioning adoptive parent(s) (petitioners), by either birth parent of the child, by the child, or by any other person for whom payment was made by or on behalf of the petitioners. The report must also include the dates of each payment, the names and addresses of each attorney, doctor, hospital, licensed adoption agency, or other person or organization who received any funds of the petitioners in connection with the adoption or the placement of the child with them, or participated in any way in the handling of those funds, either directly or indirectly [Fam. Code § 8610(b)]. In addition, the amount of fees paid to an adoption facilitator in connection with the adoption, and any fees or expenses the adoption facilitator paid to any third party must also be included in the report of expenditures [Fam. Code § 8630]. In an independent adoption, the written receipts provided by the birthparents for payments by the adoptive parents of attorney's fees, medical expenses, counseling fees, or the birth mother's living expenses should be attached to the report [Fam. Code § 8812]. The report is not required for stepparent adoptions [Fam. Code § 8610(c)].

Because of space limitations on the form, additional pages should be attached, as needed to fully explain items listed on the form.

[1] FORM Notice of Intent to Obtain Court Approval to Remove Child From County [Fam. Code §§ 8713(b), 8803(a), 8910(b)]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

In the Matter of the Adoption Petition of _____ [name(s)], Adopting Parent[s].	))))))	NO. _____ NOTICE OF INTENT TO OBTAIN COURT APPROVAL TO REMOVE CHILD FROM COUNTY

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that petitioner(s) _____[name(s)] intend to request and obtain a court order permitting them to remove the child, _____[name], whose adoption is at issue in the above-entitled proceeding from the County of _____ for _____ days, beginning _____[date]. Approval is sought on the ground that the removal of the child is reasonable and for the purpose of _____ [specify, e.g., permitting the child to accompany petitioners on a vacation tour of Europe].

If no objection is filed with the court within 15 days after the date of service of this notice, the order may be granted without further proceeding.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]

_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner[s]

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use in giving advance written notice to the appropriate custodial or investigating agency of intent to obtain the court's permission to remove a child from the county in which an adoption is pending. Court permission to remove the child from the county is required in all adoption matters except stepparent adoptions [see Fam. Code §§ 8713(b), 8803(a), 8910(b)]. For further discussion, see § 12B.36.

[3] Procedure

Only proof that notice has been given need be filed with the court. No noticed motion procedure is required. The burden is then on the department or agency to file its objections with the court, which then places the burden on the persons seeking removal to request the court to set the matter for hearing. On receiving such a request, the court must set a hearing [see Fam. Code §§ 8713(b), 8803(a), 8910(b)].

The notice should set forth sufficient facts as to why the person wishes to take the child out of the county to allow the agency to determine whether it has any objection. A notice that lacks any factual support is more likely to be objected to. The petitioners should ascertain from the court clerk whether any appearance is required by local rule or practice if no objections have been filed.

The petitioner may wish to submit a proposed order to the court for signature, even though the court may rule by minute order. Local practice and rules should be confirmed with the court clerk in that regard. Once the order is signed, the petitioner should obtain a certified copy of it and keep it in his or her possession while out of the county with the child, in the event that the child's presence there is officially questioned.

This form is for use as a power of attorney authorizing appearance by counsel in an adoption matter on behalf of a petitioner for whom, because of serving in the armed forces or the American Red Cross or for some other specified reason, a personal appearance is impossible or impracticable because of absence from California [see Fam. Code § 8613(a)]. The attorney may execute an adoption agreement [see § 12B.300[1]] on behalf of the absent petitioner [see Fam. Code § 8613(b)], or the adoption agreement may be included with the power of attorney [see Fam. Code § 8613(a)].

The law does not provide that the power of attorney should bear an acknowledgment, but it is recommended that the petitioner's signature be acknowledged. The certificate of acknowledgment will be taken as prima facie evidence of the facts recited in it and of the genuineness of the petitioner's signature [Evid. Code § 1451]. If a combined form of power of attorney and adoption agreement is used, the petitioner's signature should be acknowledged by a notary public or other person authorized to take acknowledgments [Fam. Code § 8613(b); see Civ. Code §§ 1183, 1183.5 (authority of officers in foreign countries and military officers to take acknowledgments)]. An acknowledgment can be given by an officer in the armed services who has the general powers of a notary public [Civ. Code § 1183.5]. For forms of acknowledgment, see Ch. 9, Acknowledgments .

This form is an illustration of the mandatory Judicial Council form of Contact After Adoption Agreement, which has been adopted for use in adoptions by relatives or nonrelatives [see generally Cal. Judicial Council Form ADOPT-310; Fam. Code §§ 8616.5, 8714.5; Welf. & Inst. Code § 366.26; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.400]. For discussion of postadoption contact agreements see § 12B.17. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The agreement must be attached to and filed with the petition for adoption [Fam. Code §§ 8616.5(c), 8714(c), 8714.5(d), 8802(a)(3), 8912(e), 9000(f)]. All parties to the agreement must sign and date it, including the child who is the subject of the adoption if he or she is at least 12 years of age [see Fam. Code § 8616.5(d); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.400]. The agreement is subject to the approval of the court at the time of the adoption hearing. The court will only approve the agreement if it finds that doing so is in the best interests of the child [Fam. Code § 8616.5(b)(1); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.400(c)]. The court that grants an adoption petition and approves a postadoption contact agreement must retain jurisdiction over the agreement [Fam. Code § 8616.5(f); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.400(h)].

Once a decree of adoption is entered, the court may not set it aside, rescind any relinquishment, modify or set aside any order terminating parental rights, or modify or set aside any other orders related to granting the adoption petition, on the ground of a failure of any party to comply with a postadoption contact agreement or of any later modification of it [Fam. Code § 8616.5(k); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.400(k)]. The remedy for noncompliance is to seek to enforce, modify, or terminate the agreement [Fam. Code § 8616.5(f), (h); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.400(h), (i); see § 12B.321[1]].

Identifying information concerning the adopting parent(s) and the child is set forth in Paragraph 1 and 2. The persons who may have contact with the child after adoption are listed in Paragraph 3 by name, relationship to the child, and type of contact. If the agreement is confidential, in place of the person's name, specify "Confidential." Types of contact other than telephone, letter, visits, shared information, and e-mail, must be explained in an attachment to the agreement. An illustrative attachment follows the agreement form. If the adopting parent(s) and the persons who may have contact with the child after adoption have signed a written agreement about this contact, a copy of the agreement should be attached, and the number of pages specified in Paragraph 4.

This form contains also the mandatory warnings of a postadoption contact agreement [see Fam. Code § 8616.5(e)].

For further discussion, see § 12B.17[2].

This form is the mandatory Judicial Council form of Request to: Enforce, Change, End Contact After Adoption Agreement [Cal. Judicial Council Form ADOPT-315; see Fam. Code § 8616.5; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.400(h), (i)]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form should not be used until the petitioning adoptive parents first participated in, or attempted to participate in, good faith mediation or other appropriate dispute resolution with the other parties to the agreement [see Fam. Code § 8616.5(e)(3)]. The form will not be accepted for filing unless it is accompanied by (1) a copy of Cal. Judicial Council Form ADOPT-310 (Contact After Adoption Agreement), (2) a copy of the agreement, and (3) proof of service of the petition and a blank response form [see § 12B.322[1]], showing service on each party to the agreement, including the child [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.400(i)]. Therefore, the form contemplates service of a copy of the petition and its attachments, along with the blank response form, prior to filing the original petition in court. Note that a court rule also provides that "[t]he form must not be accepted for filing unless completed in full, with documentary evidence attached of participation in, or attempts to participate in, mediation or other appropriate dispute resolution" [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.400(h), (i)].

For related discussion, see § 12B.18[5], [6].

In addition to requiring basic identifying information about the petitioning adopting parent(s) and child (Paragraphs 1-2), the form contains checkoff boxes by which counsel can indicate whether the petition (now termed a "request") is being brought to enforce, modify, or terminate an existing contact after adoption agreement (Paragraph 3). The name and relationship to the child of each person who signed the agreement must be specified in Paragraph 4. A copy of the agreement must be attached to the request, along with a copy of any signed, written agreement about contact after adoption, and proof of service of the request and a blank answer form [see § 12B.322] on each person listed in Paragraph 4 (Paragraph 5). If any of these persons was not served, an explanation must be attached to the request (Paragraph 6). If the persons who signed the contact after adoption agreement agree with the request, the box in Paragraph 6(b) should be marked. The requested relief must be specified in Paragraph 8. The form must be signed by the adopting parent(s).

The form contains checkoff boxes by which counsel can indicate whether the order pertains to a request to enforce, modify, or end an existing contact after adoption agreement. That selection will, in turn, determine which of several paragraphs are completed to state the court's ruling on the petition (Paragraphs 4-6). Standard findings are included in the preprinted order.

If the court takes the matter under submission and orders an investigation or evaluation, the appropriate checkoff boxes in Paragraph 7 must be marked, and counsel must also mark the boxes indicating the scope of the investigation or evaluation, the agency to whom it is referred, who will bear the costs, when the report is to be completed and when the court will render a decision or hold a further hearing (Paragraph 7(c)-(g)). An evaluation or investigation will only be ordered, however, if the court finds by clear and convincing evidence that (1) the best interests of the child may be protected or advanced by that inquiry, and (2) the inquiry will not disturb the stability of the child's home to the child's detriment [Fam. Code § 8616.5(f), (h); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.400(h)]. Monetary damages must be ordered by the court [Fam. Code § 8616.5(g); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.400(h)]. RECITALS

This agreement is entered into among _____[name of attorney] (Attorney); _____[name of proposed adoptive mother] and _____[name of proposed adoptive father] (together, Adoptive Parents); and _____[name of birth mother] and _____[name of birth father] (together, Birth Parents). This agreement is entered into to provide legal representation for Adoptive Parents and Birth Parents with regard to the proposed adoption by Adoptive Parents of the natural child of Birth Parents. This child is due to be born approximately _____[date]. Birth Parents intend to sign an adoption placement agreement no earlier than 10 days after the release of the birth mother from the hospital and will then release this child into the temporary custody of Adoptive Parents.

DISCLOSURES

1. Birth Parents understand that they have a right to have an independent attorney advise and represent them in the adoption proceedings and that Adoptive Parents may be required to pay the reasonable attorney's fees, up to a maximum of $500 (unless a higher fee is agreed to by the parties) for that representation.

2. Birth Parents may waive their right to an independent attorney and may be represented by Attorney.

3. Adoptive Parents understand that if either Birth Parent either subsequently refuses to consent to the adoption or revokes his or her consent to the adoption as permitted by California law, Attorney is required by California law to withdraw as counsel for all parties, to refrain from taking positions in opposition to any party to this agreement, and to maintain an impartial, fair, and open attitude toward any new attorney for any party.

4. If either Birth Parent changes his or her mind and refuses to consent to the adoption within a reasonable time after the birth of the child, or revokes his or her consent within 90 days of the date on which it is given, California law requires Adoptive Parents to return the child to the custody of Birth Parents. In such a case, Adoptive Parents understand that any moneys expended in negotiations or proceedings in connection with the child's adoption are not reimbursable.

WAIVER

5. Birth Parents hereby acknowledge that they fully understand their right to be represented by counsel other than counsel representing Adoptive Parents, and hereby waive the right of representation by an independent attorney.

6. Adoptive Parents understand that all moneys expended, including attorney's fees, are not reimbursable should the adoption not be completed because Birth Parents refuse to consent or revoke their consent to the adoption.

AGREEMENT FOR REPRESENTATION

7. Attorney agrees to represent Adoptive Parents and Birth Parents with regard to the adoption for as long as all parties agree that the adoption should proceed. Pursuant to this legal representation, Attorney agrees to take all acts necessary to complete the adoption, including, but not limited to the following: _____[specify]. Under this agreement, Attorney is not required to take any of the following acts: _____ [specify, e.g., provide any assistance to any party after entry of a decree of adoption regarding disclosure of any information contained in the court file of the adoption or the file of any agency regarding the adoption].

ATTORNEY'S FEES

8. In consideration for the legal representation provided for in Paragraph 6, Attorney shall receive a fee of $_____, to be paid _____ [specify, e.g., entirely by Adoptive Parents, 50 percent as an advance, due on the execution of this agreement by all parties to it, and 50 percent on the granting of a decree of adoption by the court, or the dismissal of the proceedings]. Attorney's right to receive this fee is not contingent on the completion of the adoption and the granting of a decree of adoption.

[OTHER PAYMENTS]

[9. _____ (Set forth any other payments that are required to be made, e.g., Adoptive Parents shall pay to Birth Parents the reasonable maternity-connected medical and hospital expenses and necessary living expenses of Birth Parents preceding and during confinement, in a sum not to exceed $_____. Birth Parents' right to receive this payment is not contingent on the placement with Adoptive Parents of the child for adoption, consent to adoption, or cooperation in the completion of an adoption).]

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use as a complete attorney-client agreement for dual representation of prospective adoptive parents and birth parents with regard to a proposed independent adoption. The form contains both the statutory requirements of

Fam. Code § 8800(d), discussed below, and other provisions applicable to the three-sided relationship among attorney, birth parents, and prospective adoptive parents.

The provision disclosing the attorney's obligations if an actual conflict of interest occurs (Paragraph 3) is based on Fam. Code § 8800(a) [see discussion in § 12B.73].

The provision disclosing the legal obligation of the adoptive parents to return the child to the birth parents should a birth parent subsequently revoke his or her consent or refuse to consent to the adoption (Paragraph 4) is based on Fam. Code § 8804(c) (see discussion in §§ 12B.95[5], 12B.96). The provisions disclosing that moneys expended are not reimbursable should a birth parent subsequently refuse to take the necessary steps to complete the adoption (Paragraphs 4, 6) meet the requirements of Fam. Code § 8800(h). The provision for payment of maternity-related expenses (Optional Paragraph 8) is drafted to meet the statutory requirements of Penal Code § 273 [see § 12B.14[2]].

If written consent for dual representation is obtained, it must include all of the following [Fam. Code § 8800(d)]:

(1) A notice to the birth parents of their right to have an independent attorney advise and represent them in the adoption proceedings, and that the adoptive parents may be required to pay the reasonable attorney's fees up to a maximum of $500 (unless a higher fee is agreed to by the parties) for that representation (Paragraph 1);

(2) A notice to the birth parents that they may waive their right to an independent attorney, and may be represented by the attorney representing the adoptive parents (Paragraph 2);

(3) A waiver by the birth parents of representation by an independent attorney (Paragraph 5); and

(4) An agreement that the attorney representing the adoptive parents will represent the birth parents (Paragraph 6).

[4] Filing Requirement

The consent for dual representation must be filed with the court before the filing of the birth parent's consent to adoption [Fam. Code § 8800(i)]. Therefore, counsel may wish to draft two separate documents, one containing the statutory requirements of Fam. Code § 8800(d) and another containing the other matters, which will not be filed.

The consent of the placing birth parent is now contained in the adoption placement agreement if the child was placed for an independent adoption (see § 12B.332[1]). The adoption placement agreement must be attached to the petition [Fam. Code § 8802(a)(2)]. Thus, the consent to dual representation must be filed with the petition for adoption.

This form is the California Department of Social Services four-part Form AD-22, Health Facility Minor Release Report. A birth mother must execute this form before a health facility may release the child to the adoptive parents (see § 12B.75). The original should be mailed to the State Department of Social Services in Sacramento. Copies go to the hospital file, the birth parent, and the person who receives the minor.

All forms adopted by the department authorizing the release of an infant from a health facility to the custody of persons other than a person entitled to custody [see Fam. Code § 3010] and authorizing these other persons to obtain medical care for the child must contain a statement, in boldface type, delineating the various types of adoptions available, and the birth parents' right with regard to them. The statement must include an explanation of rights with regard to revocation of consent to adoption and a statement regarding the authority of a court to declare that a child who has been placed for adoption may be declared abandoned by a birth parent under Fam. Code § 7822 after six months [Fam. Code § 8607].

This form is the California Department of Social Services form of Independent Adoption Placement Agreement (AD 924), for use in independent adoptions [see Fam. Code § 8801.3(b), (c)]. Also included is the department's form of Independent Adoption Placement Agreement Transmittal (AD 930), by which the adoption service provider forwards the original and supporting documentation to the department or its delegated county adoption agency [see Fam. Code § 8801.3(b)(4)].

The adoption placement agreement may be signed at the hospital when the newborn child is released to the prospective adoptive parents for placement, or any time thereafter [see Fam. Code § 8801.3(b)(2); see also § 12B.331[1] (Health Facility Minor Release Report)]. It must be signed by each birth parent who is placing the child for adoption and by each prospective adoptive parent in the presence of an adoption service provider [see Fam. Code § 8801.3(b)(3)], who must also sign [see Fam. Code § 8801.3(b)]. For further discussion, see §§ 12B.91, 12B.93.

The adoption placement agreement must include all of the following [see Fam. Code § 8801.3(c)]:

(1) A statement that the birth parent received the advisement of rights [see Fam. Code § 8801.5] and the date on which it was received;

(2) A statement that the birth parent understands that the placement is for the purpose of adoption and that if the birth parent takes no further action, on the 31st day after signing the agreement, it will become a permanent and irrevocable consent to the adoption;

(3) A statement that the birth parent signs the agreement having personal knowledge of certain facts regarding the prospective adoptive parents [see Fam. Code § 8801];

(4) A statement that the adoptive parents have been informed of the basic health and social history of the birth parents; and

(5) A consent to the adoption, which may be revoked within 30 days [see Fam. Code § 8814.5].

§ 12B.333 Statement of Understanding--CDSS Form AD 926

[1] FORM Statement of Understanding--CDSS Form

This form is the California Department of Social Services form of Statement of Understanding for use by a parent who places the child with the adoptive parents by signing an adoption placement agreement (Form AD 926). Variations of the form for use with a birth parent who did not place the child for adoption are AD 887 (Parent Who Gave Physical Custody of the Child to the Petitioner(s)), AD 887A (Parent Who Did Not Give Physical Custody of the Child to the Petitioner(s)) and AD 887B (Alleged Natural Father).

Form AD 887 would be used with a birth parent who gave her or his child to a prospective adoptive parent, but did not execute an adoption placement agreement. Designated relatives, a legal guardian, or a person nominated by will may adopt a child without entering into an adoption placement agreement [see Fam. Code § 8802(a), discussed in § 12B.110[1]].

The statement of understanding assures that the birth parent has the information about the law of independent adoptions needed to give a valid consent. Therefore, it is to be presented to the parent before consent is signed [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35095]. In the case of a parent who is placing the child for adoption, it must be presented by the adoption service provider before the adoption placement agreement is signed [see Fam. Code § 8801.3].

This form is Department of Social Services Form AD 1A, Consent to Adoption by Parent(s) in California [see Fam. Code § 8814(a)]. The consent of a birth parent who places the child for adoption must be contained in an adoption placement agreement executed at the time when the child is ready to be released from the hospital [see Fam. Code § 8801.3(b), (c)(5), (e); see also § 12B.332[1]]. After that date, use of this form should be limited to a birth parent who did not place the child for adoption [see Fam. Code § 8814].

This form is reproduced here for informational purposes and may be used only by authorized state or county personnel. It must be signed by the consenting parent in the presence of an agent of the department or county adoption agency [Fam. Code § 8814(a)]. If the consenting parent does not understand the English language, a form in the parent's native language must be used if one is available from the department. If unavailable, the English version must be translated into the consenting parent's language [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35003].

The prescribed statement is specific in referring to adoption by the petitioner or petitioners named in the form. Thus, the scope of the birth parents' consent is limited to the persons listed in the form as prospective adoptive parents, as opposed to giving a general consent to have the child adopted by anyone [see Fam. Code § 8806 (limited to adoption by petitioners); see also Adoption of Driscoll (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 735, 739, 75 Cal. Rptr. 382 (consent to adoption by named prospective parent not equivalent to general consent); but see Adoption of Barnett (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 370, 377-379, 6 Cal. Rptr. 562, 354 P.2d 18 (consent to adoption by named spoused effective, on the facts, for adoption by one spouse alone)]. When taking the consent, the department or agency representative must not cover or delete the names of the adopting parents on the consent form [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35109].

The California Department of Social Services has prescribed other forms of parental consent for official use that are designed to apply in special situations. For example, there are forms of consent for a parent residing outside of California [see AD 1C, California Department of Social Services]; for a parent who is in the armed forces outside California [see AD 1F, California Department of Social Services]; for a presumed father who denies being the biological father [see AD 165 (inside California), AD 166 (outside California, California Department of Social Services]; and for an alleged natural father [see AD 594, California Department of Social Services].

Different forms are used if the child is an Indian child who comes within the provisions of the federal Indian Child Welfare Act [see Department of Social Services forms AD 859, AD 861, AD 925; see generally 25 U.S.C. § 1901 et seq.].

This form is a reproduction of the California Department of Social Services three-part form of Revocation of Consent (AD 928) for use in an independent adoption. This form may be executed by a birth parent who placed the child for adoption and executed an adoption placement agreement containing her or his consent to the adoption, or by a birth parent who did not place the child for adoption, but subsequently consented to the adoption [Fam. Code § 8814.5(a); see Fam. Code §§ 8801.3, 8814]. The original is filed with the court in the adoption proceeding, with copies to the birth parent executing the form and to the adoption agency investigation file.

Use of the department's form is not required [compare Fam. Code § 8814.5(a)(1) with Fam. Code § 8814.5(a)(2) (consent need only be written; waiver of right to revoke must be on form prescribed by department)]. However, a parent who wishes to revoke his or her consent to an adoption must sign and deliver a written statement of revocation to the department or delegated county adoption agency within 30 days of the date on which he or she signed the consent [Fam. Code § 8814.5(a)(1)]. For further discussion of revocation of consent, see § 12B.96.

This form is a reproduction of the California Department of Social Services three-part Form of Waiver of Right to Revoke Consent (AD 929) for use in an independent adoption. This form may be executed by a birth parent who placed the child for adoption and executed an adoption placement agreement containing her or his consent to the adoption, or by a birth parent who did not place the child for adoption, but subsequently consented to the adoption [Fam. Code § 8814.5(a); see Fam. Code §§ 8801.3, 8814]. The original is filed with the court in the adoption proceeding, with copies to the birth parent executing the form and to the adoption agency investigation file. Use of the department's form is required [Fam. Code § 8814.5(a)(2) (waiver of right to revoke must be on form prescribed by department)].

Subject to certain exceptions, a waiver of the right to revoke consent must be signed in the presence of a representative of the department or delegated county adoption agency and only after the department or agency has completed an interview with the birth parent [see Fam. Code § 8814.5(a)(2)]. For further discussion, see § 12B.97.

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Plaintiff _____[name] is the birth _____ [mother or father] of _____[name], a minor child, born _____[date] in _____[place].

2. On _____[date], plaintiff executed her/his written relinquishment of the above child to _____[name of adoption agency], a licensed adoption agency, for adoptive placement. _____ [If appropriate, add: A true copy of this relinquishment document is attached as Exhibit A to this complaint and made a part hereof.]

3. On _____[date], the above-named adoption agency filed a certified copy of this relinquishment form with the State Department of Social Services, as required by Family Code Section 8700.

4. Plaintiff executed this relinquishment document because _____[name of agency employee], an employee and agent of defendant, represented to plaintiff _____ [specify misrepresentation, e.g., that the child would only be placed for "open" adoption and that plaintiff would retain the right to have an ongoing relationship with the child, including, but not limited to a right of continued visitation with the child throughout the child's minority].

5. The representations made by defendant were in fact false. The true facts were that _____ [specify, e.g., defendant has no right or ability to compel an adoptive family to grant open adoption, and that once an adoption is decreed, plaintiff will have no enforceable right to visitation or any other relationship with the child. Defendant has, in fact, placed the child for adoption with a family that refuses to afford plaintiff any visitation rights or other contact with the child].

6. When defendant made these representations, it knew them to be false, or had no reasonable ground for believing them to be true. These representations were made by defendant with the intent to deceive plaintiff and with the intent to induce plaintiff to execute her/his relinquishment of the child.

7. At the time these representations were made, and at the time when plaintiff executed her/his relinquishment of the child,plaintiff was ignorant of the falsity of defendant's representations and believed them to be true. In reliance on these representations, plaintiff was induced to, and did execute the relinquishment document. Had plaintiff known the actual facts, she/he would not have relinquished the child for adoption. Plaintiff's reliance on defendant was justified because _____ [specify, e.g., plaintiff is a minor who has not yet graduated from high school and has no knowledge of adoption laws and procedures. Defendant, as an adoption agency providing counseling and other adoption-related services, had a confidential relationship with and fiduciary duties toward plaintiff, and is required by law to provide complete and accurate information to persons such as plaintiff with regard to the legal effects of relinquishing a child for adoption].

8. On _____[date], [immediately on learning the true facts,] plaintiff gave written notice to defendant of her/his desire to rescind her/his relinquishment. Thereafter, plaintiff executed her/his formal rescission of relinquishment on the proper State Department of Social Services form within 14 days of receipt of the form, as required by Title 22, California Code of Regulations, Section 35169. On _____[date], defendant notified plaintiff in writing that it would not consent to a mutual rescission of the relinquishment. A true copy of defendant's notice is attached to this complaint as Exhibit _____ and made a part hereof. Plaintiff has no further administrative remedy to obtain the return of her/his child.

9. Unless defendant is immediately subject to mandatory injunctive relief requiring it to deliver the child to plaintiff, plaintiff will suffer great and irreparable injury arising from the deprivation of the right to custody of the child and other parental rights. Further, the child will suffer great and irreparable injury from remaining in a custodial arrangement in which he/she may bond with persons who are not entitled to his/her custody. Plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law for these injuries.

1. That plaintiff's relinquishment of her/his child _____[name] to defendant be declared to be null and void and that the same be vacated and set aside;

2. For an order requiring the defendant to show cause, if any it has, why it should not be enjoined as hereinafter set forth, during the pendency of this action;

3. For a temporary restraining order, a preliminary injunction, and a permanent injunction, all ordering defendant to immediately return the child to the legal and physical custody of plaintiff, and enjoining defendant, its agents and employees, and all persons acting under, in concert with, or for them, from enforcing any right to custody of the child that arises from the relinquishment referred to herein;

4. For costs of suit herein incurred;

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint to set aside a birth parent's relinquishment of his or her child to an adoption agency for adoptive placement. Such an action is a nonstatutory equitable proceeding [Guardianship of Baby Boy M. (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 254, 271, 135 Cal. Rptr. 866] .

This form is for use after the relinquishment form has been filed with the Department of Social Services [see Fam. Code § 8700(d)] but before a decree of adoption has been entered. After a decree is entered, a parent must proceed by motion or action to have the decree set aside [see Adoption of Sewall (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 208, 218-221, 51 Cal. Rptr. 367] . Setting aside a decree of adoption is discussed, and forms are provided, in Ch. 12E, Adoptions: Attack on Decree.

This complaint alleges as grounds for the action the agency's misrepresentation of fact with regard to the relinquishment. For further discussion of grounds for setting aside a relinquishment, see § 12B.176. For further discussion of the essential allegations of intentional or negligent misrepresentation, see Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit .

This complaint alleges compliance with administrative regulations providing for the mutual rescission of a relinquishment by the parent and agency, and the agency's refusal to rescind the relinquishment (Paragraph 8) [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 35169, 35170]. Compliance with this procedure has not yet been held to be an essential exhaustion of administrative remedies, but is recommended in any event.

[3] Mandatory Injunction

This complaint seeks injunctive relief compelling the return of the child to the parent (Prayer, Paragraph 3). As such, the prayed-for injunctive relief is mandatory (requiring defendant to do a particular act), rather than prohibitory (restraining them from doing an act) [see People v. Mobile Magic Sales, Inc. (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 1, 13, 157 Cal. Rptr. 749] . Preliminary mandatory injunctive relief is rarely granted; a very urgent case is required [Alvarez v. Eden Township Hospital Dist. (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 309, 312, 12 Cal. Rptr. 661] . Nevertheless, it should always be sought if the child has been placed in a prospective adoptive home. Because of the probability of parent-child bonding, the longer the child remains in the home, the less likely a court may be to eventually order the child removed from the home. If the child has not yet been placed for adoption, the plaintiff should seek a prohibitory injunction enjoining the agency from making a placement during the pendency of the action. For further discussion of the procedures for obtaining injunctive relief, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[4] Verification

A complaint seeking a temporary restraining order and showing therein, rather than in an affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]), that sufficient grounds exist is required to be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527].

[5] Certification of Notice Regarding Temporary Restraining Order

Whenever a temporary restraining order is sought without formal notice, the applicant or the applicant's attorney is required to certify to the court under oath that either (1) within a reasonable time before the application he or she informed the opposing party (or his or her attorney, if any) of the time and place where the application would be made, or (2) he or she in good faith attempted to inform the opposing party (or attorney) but was unable to do so, specifying the efforts made to do so, or (3) for reasons specified he or she should not be required to inform the opposing party (or attorney) [see Fam. Code § 240 et seq.].

[1] FORM Petition for Writ of Administrative Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] to Restrain Agency From Terminating Adoptive Placement

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [names],	)
Petitioners,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE
Respondent.	)

Petitioners respectfully represents:

1. Petitioners _____[name] and _____[name] are the prospective adoptive parents of _____[name of child].

2. Respondent _____[name of agency] is a licensed adoption agency that accepts custody of relinquished and other children, assesses applicants for adoption, and makes adoptive placements of children in the homes of approved applicants.

3. On _____[date], respondent placed the above-named child in petitioners' home for the purposes of adoption by petitioners.

4. On _____[date], respondent served petitioners with notice that the adoptive placement was being terminated under the authority of Family Code Section 8704 and demanded that the child be returned to the physical custody of respondent. [The child was removed from petitioners' home on _____ (date)].

5. On _____[date], petitioners made a written request to respondent for a grievance review under the authority of Title 22, California Code of Regulations, Section 35233.

6. On _____[date], a hearing was held, as required by Title 22, California Code of Regulations, Section 35235, and evidence was presented, as required by Title 22, California Code of Regulations, Section 35237, to determine whether grounds exist to terminate the adoptive placement and to remove the child from petitioners' home. Petitioners' attended the hearing and presented evidence that the adoptive placement should not be terminated.

7. On _____[date], _____[name], the director of respondent agency, in the exercise of his/her discretion, determined that sufficient facts exist to support the termination of the adoptive placement and denied petitioners' grievance in writing, pursuant to Title 22, California Code of Regulations, Section 35239. A copy of the director's written decision is attached as Exhibit _____ to this petition and made a part hereof.

8. Respondent's director's decision is invalid for the following reasons: _____[in lettered subparagraphs, set forth all facts and legal conclusions that support continuance of adoptive placement, such as the following]

[a. The sole ground on which the adoptive placement was terminated was that petitioners' are affiliated with no religious group and have stated their intent to respondent that the child shall not be baptized into any religion and shall not receive religious instruction of any kind. The director found that it was in the best interests of the child that he/she receive religious instruction, and that petitioners' refusal to provide it constituted sufficient grounds to terminate the placement.]

[b. Respondent's acts are in violation of petitioners' constitutional rights under the Free Exercise Clause of the First Amendment to the United States Constitution, which protects petitioners' right not to practice any religion from coercive state action.]

9. The grievance review proceedings were recorded by respondent, as required by Title 22, California Code of Regulations, Section 35237(a)(1). The recording method used was _____ [specify, e.g., audio cassette recording]. _____ [If appropriate, add: Petitioners have obtained a transcript of the grievance review proceedings, which is attached as Exhibit _____ to this petition.]

[10. _____ (If appropriate, add: Petitioners have the following relevant evidence that was not presented at the hearing: _____ (describe completely). This evidence could not be produced at the hearing because _____(specify why, in the exercise of reasonable diligence, petitioners could not produce evidence). This evidence shows that _____(specify, e.g., that petitioners are proper and fit persons to adopt the child).]

11. Petitioners meet all of the qualifications and criteria for adoptive parents as established by law.

12. Petitioners have no further administrative remedy under law and have no other plain and speedy remedy in the ordinary course of the law in that no administrative appeal can be taken from the decision of the director of respondent agency.

13. Due to respondent's arbitrary and capricious acts, petitioners have become and are obligated to personally pay attorney's fees to their counsel _____[name].

WHEREFORE, petitioners pray judgment as follows:

1. For a peremptory writ of mandate directing respondent to set aside its decision of _____[date] terminating the adoptive placement of _____[name of child] in petitioners' home [and to order the return of the child to petitioners' home], or in the alternative, to show cause why a peremptory writ of mandate to the same effect should not be issued;

2. For a temporary restraining order, and preliminary and permanent injunctions _____ [restraining respondent from removing the child from petitioners' home or ordering respondent to return the child to petitioners' home];

3. For attorney's fees in an amount not to exceed $ _____[specify statutory limit under Gov. Code § 800];

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use as a petition for a writ of administrative mandate to compel an adoption agency that has placed a child with petitioners and then terminated the adoptive placement to continue with the adoption [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5]. This form is for use after petitioners have exhausted their rights to administrative grievance review under 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35233 et seq. For discussion of the grievance review procedure, see § 12B.202[4]. Petitions for administrative mandate are considered in detail, and additional possible form provisions are provided, in Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions, et seq.

[3] Administrative Mandate

Before the adoption of the administrative grievance review procedure, the method to review an agency's termination of an adoptive placement was by traditional mandate [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1084, 1085; Rodriguez v. Superior Court (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 510, 513, 95 Cal. Rptr. 923] . In light of the subsequent regulations requiring mandatory administrative review, it appears that the proper vehicle for review is now administrative mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5. Administrative mandate is the remedy to review a final administrative decision made as a result of a proceeding in which, by law, a hearing must be given, evidence must be taken, and discretion in the determination of facts is vested in the reviewing agency or officer [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a); see C.V.C. v. Superior Court (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 909, 918, 106 Cal. Rptr. 123] . The grievance review procedure would appear to meet all of these criteria [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 35235, 35237, 35239 (agency must provide hearing; evidence must be received at hearing; final decision rests in discretion of agency director)].

The inquiry in an administrative mandate proceeding extends to the questions of whether the respondent agency has proceeded without, or in excess of jurisdiction; whether there was a fair trial; and whether there was any prejudicial abuse of discretion. Abuse of discretion is established if the agency has not proceeded in the manner required by law, the order or decision is not supported by the findings, or the findings are not supported by the evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5]. These standards are more fully considered in Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq. The court is required to exercise its independent judgment on the evidence to determine whether the agency's decision to terminate the placement was justified by the best interests of the child [C.V.C. v. Superior Court (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 909, 918-920, 106 Cal. Rptr. 123 ; see Marten v. Thies (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 161, 167, 160 Cal. Rptr. 57] .

Attorneys' fees up to a statutory limit are available in a proceeding for administrative mandate if petitioners prevail and establish that the agency acted in an arbitrary or capricious manner (Paragraph 14) [see Gov. Code § 800]. For further discussion, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq.

[5] Verification

A petition for writ of mandate must be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086].

Furthermore, this petition prays for injunctive relief either restraining the agency from removing the child from petitioners' home or ordering the agency to return the child, if the child has already been removed. A complaint seeking a temporary restraining order and showing therein, rather than in an affidavit (declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]), that sufficient grounds exist is required to be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527]. For further discussion of the procedures to obtain injunctive relief, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[2] Use of Form

This form is the mandatory Judicial Council form of Adoption--Adoption of Indian Child [Cal. Judicial Council Form ADOPT-220], for use in providing identifying information concerning a Native American (Indian) child who is the subject of an adoption. The form is designed to be attached to the Judicial Council's form of adoption request [see § 12B.302[1]]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Contents of Form

The form requires that counsel set forth identifying information concerning the child, his or her biological parents and grandparents, as well as the child's tribal affiliation and, if known, his or her tribal enrollment number (Paragraphs 2-7). It also requires that the names and addresses of the adoptive parents and of any agency having relevant information about the adoptive placement (Paragraphs 1, 8). The name and relationship to the child of each other person who has information about the child's Indian ancestry must be set forth in Paragraph 9. It also requires a statement of information about whether parental rights of the biological parents have been terminated involuntarily by court action or voluntarily relinquished (Paragraph 10). If voluntary relinquishment of the child has taken place, a separate Judicial Council form of Parent of Indian Child Agrees to End Parental Rights [Cal. Judicial Council Form ADOPT-225] must either have been already filed in the proceeding or be attached to the form illustrated above. The voluntary termination form is illustrated in § 12B.381[1].

A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form is designed to enable a biological parent of an Indian child to (1) consent to the termination of his or her parental rights over the child, or to the child's adoption, (2) to express a preference for placement of the child with particular persons as adoptive parents, and (3) to represent that he or she understands the nature of the relinquishment, and of various associated rights (see Paragraphs 5), including the right to withdraw consent prior to entry of an order terminating parental rights or of adoption [see 25 U.S.C. § 1913]. While the form may be filed in the adoption proceeding either by itself, or as an attachment to the form entitled Adoption of Indian Child [see § 12B.380[1]], it apparently must be signed at the time of the adoption hearing, before the judicial officer who hears the adoption proceeding [see 25 U.S.C. § 1913(a)].

The form also contains a certification, to be signed by the judicial officer at the time of hearing, that the parent who executed the consent form did so in writing before that officer, that the terms and consequences were explained in detail to the parent, and that he or she understood them--both in the sense of grasping the consequences and understanding the language (English, or through an interpreter).

This form must be completed by a party who is seeking a foster-care placement, guardianship, conservatorship, custody placement under Fam. Code § 3041, declaration freeing a child from the custody or control of one or both parents, termination of parental rights, or adoption, when the proceeding involves an Indian child [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 5.480, 5.481(a)(1)]. This form must be attached to the petition unless the party is filing a subsequent petition, and there is no new information [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.481(a)(1)].

The petitioning party must ask the child, if the child is old enough, and the parents, Indian custodian, or legal guardians whether the child is or may be an Indian child [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.481(a)(1)]. California Judicial Council Form ICWA-005-INFO provides information on completing the Indian Child Inquiry Attachment.

This form must be completed by an Indian child's parent, Indian custodian, or guardian. At the initiation of any guardianship, conservatorship, proceeding for custody under Fam. Code § 3041, proceeding to terminate parental rights, proceeding to declare a child free of the custody and control of one or both parents, or adoption proceeding that involves an Indian child, the court must order the parent, Indian custodian, or guardian, if available, to complete this form [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 5.480, 5.481(a)(2)]. When the parent, custodian, or guardian does not appear at the first hearing, or is unavailable at the initiation of the proceeding, the court must order the person or entity that has the inquiry duty to use reasonable diligence to find and inform the parent, custodian, or guardian that the court has ordered this individual to complete the Parental Notification of Indian Status form [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.481(a)(3)].

If it is known or there is reason to know that an Indian child is involved in a guardianship or conservatorship proceeding, proceeding for custody under Fam. Code § 3041, proceeding to terminate parental rights, proceeding to declare a child free of the custody and control of one or both parents, or adoption proceeding, the social worker, petitioner, or the court in a probate guardianship or conservatorship proceeding in which the petitioner is unrepresented must send this form to the parent or legal guardian and Indian custodian of the Indian child, and to the child's tribe, as specified in Fam. Code § 180, Prob. Code § 1460.2, and Welf. & Inst. Code § 224.2 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.481(b)(1)].

If it is known or there is reason to know that an Indian child is involved in a wardship proceeding under Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 601 and 602 et seq., and the probation officer has determined that it is probable the child will be entering foster care, or if the child is already in foster care, the probation officer must send this form to the parent or legal guardian, Indian custodian, and the child's tribe in accordance with Welf. & Inst. Code § 727.4(a)(2) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.481(b)(2)].

Circumstances that may provide reason to know the child is an Indian child the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.481(a)(5), (b)(3)]:

- The child or a person having an interest in the child, including an Indian tribe, an Indian organization, an officer of the court, a public or private agency, or a member of the child's extended family, informs or otherwise provides information suggesting that the child is an Indian child to the court, the county welfare agency, the probation department, the licensed adoption agency or adoption service provider, the investigator, the petitioner, or any appointed guardian or conservator;

- The residence or domicile of the child, the child's parents, or an Indian custodian is, or was, in a predominantly Indian community; or

- The child or the child's family has received services or benefits from a tribe or services that are available to Indians from tribes or the federal government, such as the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Indian Health Service, or Tribal Temporary Assistance to Needy Families benefits.

If the social worker, probation officer, licensed adoption agency, adoption service provider, investigator, or petitioner knows or has reason to know that an Indian child is or may be involved, that person or entity must [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.841(a)(4)]:

- Interview the parents, Indian custodian, and extended family members to gather the information that is required to complete the Notice of Child Custody Proceeding for Indian Child;

- Contact the Bureau of Indian Affairs and the California Department of Social Services for assistance in identifying the names and contact information of the tribes in which the child may be a member or eligible for membership; and

- Contact the tribes and any other person that reasonably can be expected to have information about the child's membership status or eligibility.

California Judicial Council Form ICWA-005-INFO provides information on determining whether a child is an Indian child and, if so, on notifying the appropriate parties.

Notice to an Indian child's tribe must be sent to the tribal chairperson, unless the tribe has designated another agent for service [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.841(b)(4)].

The proof of notice filed with the court must include Form ICWA-030, with pages 9 and 10 completed and signed, return receipts, and any responses received from the Bureau of Indian Affairs and tribes [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.842(b)].

§ 12C.10 Governing Law

The procedures for the adoption of an adult or a married minor are set forth in Fam. Code § 9300 et seq. Because the procedure for the adoption of an adult or married minor is purely statutory, there can be no adoption except by compliance with statutory formalities [see Estate of Taggart (1923) 190 Cal. 493, 498-500, 213 P. 504 (decided before enactment of statutes permitting adult adoption in California and rejecting adoption by estoppel)].

§ 12C.11 Adoptions of Adults and Minors Compared

It is considerably easier to adopt an adult or a married minor than an unmarried minor. There are two significant differences between the adoption of an unmarried minor and the adoption of an adult or married minor.

(1) No parental consent is required for the adoption of an adult or a married minor [see Fam. Code §§ 9300, 9302(b), discussed in § 12C.15], and notice is not even required to be served on a natural parent [see Fam. Code § 9323, discussed in § 12C.19].

(2) No investigation by any agency or public officer is generally required, although the court has discretion to order such an investigation if the circumstances warrant it [see Fam. Code § 9325, discussed in § 12C.20].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 12C.12 Reasons for Adult Adoption

The reported cases on adult adoptions have generally involved adoptions undertaken for the purpose of comprising a class of "children" or "issue" who are to take under a will or trust [see, e.g., Estate of Moulton (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 1, 133 Cal. Rptr. 500 ; Abramovic v. Brunken (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 719, 94 Cal. Rptr. 303 ; Williams v. Ward (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 381, 93 Cal. Rptr. 107 ; Estate of McCormack (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 492, 82 Cal. Rptr. 651 ; Adoption of Sewall (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 208, 51 Cal. Rptr. 367 ; see also § 12C.13[3]]. However, there may be less mercenary reasons for an adult adoption that do not come to the attention of the appellate courts. For example, the parties may wish to legally establish a parent-child relationship that has existed in fact but could not be completed during the child's minority because a natural parent whose consent was required for adoption would not give it. Such a situation might arise with regard to a stepparent, a foster parent, or a relative functioning as a de facto parent [see Estate of Joseph (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 203, 212, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 619, 949 P.2d 472 (decedent's failure to adopt foster child or stepchild as adult may disqualify child from inheriting as child who would have been adopted by the decedent "but for a legal barrier")].

Under federal immigration law, only children who were under the age of 16 years when adopted [see 8 U.S.C. § 1101(b)(1)(E)] or at the time when an "orphan" adoption petition was filed for classification as an immediate relative [see 8 U.S.C. § 1101(b)(1)(F)] are entitled to obtain an immigrant visa. Thus, the lawful entry of an adult alien into the United States cannot be accomplished by an adult adoption. Immigration aspects of adoption are discussed further in Ch. 12, Adoptions: Nature and Effect. Intercountry adoptions of minors are discussed in Ch. 12B, Adoptions: Unmarried Minors .

Volume 2: Adoptions thru Airplanes and Airports-Chs. 12-17
Chapter 12C ADOPTIONS: ADULTS AND MARRIED MINORS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 12C.13 Effect of Adult Adoption

[1] On Parent-Child Relationship

After adoption, the adopting parent and adopted person sustain toward each other the legal relation of parent and child. They have all the rights and are subject to all of the duties of that relation [Fam. Code § 9305; see Ch. 394, Parent and Child (discussion of parent-child support obligations with regard to adults)]. The natural parents of the adopted person are relieved of all parental duties towards and all responsibility for the adopted person from the time of adoption. They have no further rights over the adopted person [Fam. Code § 9306(a)], except in the case of a step-parent adoption [Fam. Code § 9306(b)].

Thus, any support obligation that a natural parent may have toward his or her adult child [see Fam. Code § 3910, discussed in Ch. 394, Parent and Child] is terminated by the adoption and potentially transferred to the adopting parent. However, when adults are adopted, the usual duty of support [see Fam. Code §§ 3900, 4000], as distinguished from one arising from extraordinary circumstances [see Fam. Code § 3910(a)], is not assumed by the adopting parent [Williams v. Ward (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 381, 386, 93 Cal. Rptr. 107] .

[2] Intestate Succession

For the purpose of determining intestate succession by, through, or from a person, the relationship of parent and child includes the relationship between an adopting parent and adopted person [Prob. Code § 6450(b)]. Subject to certain exceptions, adoption terminates inheritance rights by intestate succession arising from the blood relationship between the adopted person and his or her natural family [see Prob. Code § 6451]. For further discussion, see Ch. 12, Adoptions: Nature and Effect , Through Ch. 12E, Adoptions: Attack on Decree.

Nothing in the statutes differentiates between persons adopted as adults and persons adopted as minors. Thus, courts have assumed that they have the same rights [see Estate of Moulton (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 1 ; Estate of Goulart (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 808, 819-824, 35 Cal. Rptr. 465 (both decided under prior law)].

[a] Rule of Prob. Code § 21115

Prob. Code § 21115 appears to govern the construction of wills, trusts, and other instruments with regard to adult adoptees and class gifts unless the intention of the transferor is expressed in the instrument [see Prob. Code §§ 21101, 21102]. The statute applies to all instruments, regardless of when they were executed, and regardless of the date of death of the testator or other transferor [Prob. Code § 21140]. Former Prob. Code § 6152, the predecessor statute to Prob. Code § 21115, applied only to wills, and only to testators dying on or after January 1, 1985. Wills executed by testators dying before that date were construed under the law applicable before that date [see Prob. Code § 6103; Estate of Heard (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 514, 518-523, 319 P.2d 637 ; Estate of Pierce (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 265, 269, 196 P.2d 1 ; Estate of McCallen (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 142, 152, 125 Cal. Rptr. 645 ; Estate of McCormack (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 492, 497-499, 82 Cal. Rptr. 651] . 1994 legislation [Stats. 1994, ch. 806, § 41] repealed former Prob. Code §§ 6140-6179 and reenacted those provisions as Prob. Code § 21101 et seq., now applicable to transfers by all instruments, not just wills [see Prob. Code § 21101] and regardless of the date of death of the transferor [see Prob. Code § 21140]. Therefore, it is theoretically possible that a will that was not governed by former Prob. Code § 6152 because the testator died before January 1, 1985 is now governed by Prob. Code § 21115 [but see Newman v. Wells Fargo Bank (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 126, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 926 P.2d 969 ; Estate of Joslyn (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1428, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 616] .

Under Prob. Code § 21115, the rules of intestacy (see [2], above) apply to determine whether adopted persons are included in a gift to a class, such as to a class of "children" or "issue" [Prob. Code § 21115(a); see also Prob. Code §§ 21114, 21115(c)(3) (other testamentary terms to which rules apply)]. Thus, adoptees, whether adopted as minors or adults, are generally considered as the children of their adopting parents for purposes of determining who is a member of a class [Prob. Code §§ 21115(a), 6450(b); see Estate of Heard (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 514, 522, 319 P.2d 637 ; Estate of McCallen (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 142, 152, 125 Cal. Rptr. 645 (prior common law in accord with regard to children adopted as minors); see also Ch. 12, Adoptions: Nature and Effect, Through Ch. 12E:, Adoptions: Attack on Decree].

There is, however, a statutory exception that operates to reverse this rule with regard to some adult adoptions. In construing a devise by a testator who is not the adoptive parent, a person adopted by the adoptive parent is not considered the child of that parent unless the person lived, while a minor (either before or after the adoption), as a regular member of the household of the adopting parent, or of that parent's parent, brother, sister, or surviving spouse [Prob. Code § 21115(b)]. For example, if testator T devises a life estate to his son S with remainder to the children of S, a person adopted by S as an adult is within the class only if the cohabitation requirement is met [but see Estate of Joslyn (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1428, 1438-1440, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 616] .

The statute appears to establish a conclusive presumption as to the testator's intent with regard to adult adoptees and the class, depending on the cohabitation requirement. If the requirement is met, the adult adoptee is included; if not, he or she is excluded. As so construed, the statute would change the prior common law rule, under which the actual intent of the testator controlled to determine who was within a class [Williams v. Ward (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 381, 384, 93 Cal. Rptr. 107] , and extrinsic evidence of the relationship, if any, between the testator and the adult adoptee was admissible to show intent [see Estate of McCormack (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 492, 498-499, 82 Cal. Rptr. 651] . Under current law, the statute applies unless the testator's intent is expressed in the instrument [Prob. Code § 21102].

Note that the cohabitation requirement extends to persons who lived during their minority in the household of the adopting parent's spouse, even if the spouse was not married to (and the child never resided with) the adopting parent during the minority of the child [see Prob. Code § 21115(b)]. Thus, under the above example, S might marry W and adopt W's adult child C after the death of the testator. Despite the fact that S and C never lived in the same household during the minority of C, and even if T never met C during his lifetime, C would still be a member of the class of the children of S based on C's cohabitation during minority with his or her natural parent W. Such a result would be highly unlikely under the prior common law [see Abramovic v. Brunken (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 719, 721-722, 94 Cal. Rptr. 303 ; Estate of McCormack (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 492, 498-499, 82 Cal. Rptr. 651 ; but see Estate of Moulton (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 1, 6-8, 133 Cal. Rptr. 500 (stepdaughter included who was 10 at time of marriage and adopted 30 years later)].

If the testator dies without a will, the rules for determining intestate succession under Prob. Code § 21115 are those in effect at the time the transfer is to take effect in enjoyment [Prob. Code § 21115(d)].

[b] Applicability of Prior Law

Under prior law, courts were to take into account the general body of law and public policy in existence when the will was executed, including judicial decisions, intestacy succession laws, and other statutes, and impute knowledge of this law and policy to the testator [In re Estate of Pittman (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 288, 292-293, 163 Cal. Rptr. 527] . Also, extrinsic evidence of the relationship, if any, between the testator and the adult adoptee was admissible to show intent [see Estate of McCormack (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 492, 498-499, 82 Cal. Rptr. 651] . The prevailing view was that it was highly unlikely that a testator would intend to favor a person on the basis of a parent-child relationship that was created long after the execution of the instrument (and maybe even long after the testator's death), and that bore little or no similarity to the parent-child relationship created by the adoption of a minor [see Abramovic v. Brunken (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 719, 722-723, 94 Cal. Rptr. 303 ; Williams v. Ward (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 381, 384-385, 385 n.1, 93 Cal. Rptr. 107 ; Estate of McCormack (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 492, 498-499, 82 Cal. Rptr. 651] . There was, however, an exception for adult adoptees who had actually been taken into the adoptive parent's home and family as minors and who were reared by the adoptive parent in loco parentis [Estate of Pittman (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 288, 294-295, 163 Cal. Rptr. 527] . Thus, the results reached in looking for the testator's intent under prior law closely approximated the result seemingly compelled by Prob. Code § 21115.

Despite the fact that Prob. Code § 21115 applies to all instruments, regardless of when they were executed [Prob. Code § 21140], courts, including the California Supreme Court, have either failed to note or ignored the statute and decided cases under prior law. In 1996, the Supreme Court decided Newman v. Wells Fargo Bank, a case involving the adoption of a minor that would seem to be squarely within Prob.Code § 21115, and neither the majority nor the dissent even mentioned that statute. The Court held that in construing a will that created a class of "issue" of the testator's children, the law of intestacy in effect in 1972 when the will was executed determined whether a grandchild who had been adopted by his stepfather remained in the class of the issue of the testator's children. The testator's son was the adoptee's biological father [Newman v. Wells Fargo Bank (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 126, 129, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 926 P.2d 969] . The Court agreed that the testator's intent as expressed in the will would apply under Prob. Code § 21102, but found no intent expressed therein with regard to adopted grandchildren [Newman v. Wells Fargo Bank (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 126, 134-136, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 926 P.2d 969] . Instead of then determining the adoptee's status under § 21115, the Court applied the presumption that a testator is aware of the public policy reflected in the statutory definitions of the terms used in a will at the time the will is executed and to intend that those definitions be followed in construction of the will unless a contrary intent is expressed in the will [Newman v. Wells Fargo Bank (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 126, 136-138, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 926 P.2d 969] . Finally, it held that the law to which the court must look to find the presumed intet of a testator with regard to adopted children is the law in effect when a will is executed [Newman v. Wells Fargo Bank (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 126, 139, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 926 P.2d 969] .

Although it did not mention Prob. Code § 21115(a), the majority was of the view that whether an adoptee was within a class was to be in accordance with the laws of intestacy, which is the basic rule of § 21115(a) [Newman v. Wells Fargo Bank (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 126, 138-139, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 926 P.2d 969 . It would seem that the rule of Prob. Code § 21115(b) should have applied because the court was construing a transfer by a transferor who was not the adoptee's natural parent]. But it was the 1972 law of intestacy that was determinative. Because under that law, a stepparent adoption severed the right of the adoptee to inherit from the natural parent [see former Prob. Code § 257], the adoptee was not within the class of "children" or "issue" in the will [Newman v. Wells Fargo Bank (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 126, 142, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 926 P.2d 969] . Had Prob. Code § 21115(b) been applied, the adoptee would have been within the class because he had lived, while a minor, as a regular member of the household of the natural parent (the testator's child) for four years [Newman v. Wells Fargo Bank (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 126, 144, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 926 P.2d 969 (opinion of Kennard, J., dissenting)].

Also, in Estate of Joslyn, the court reached the exact result provided for by Prob. Code § 21115 without mentioning its existence. The testator executed her will in 1937 and her codicil in 1945 without mentioning adoptees in any manner. She died in 1949. In 1964, one of her children adopted an adult stepdaughter who had been a member of his household as a minor and with whom he had had a legitimate parent-child relationship. The court conducted a laborious search of the stautory law and public policy of two states and three generations in search of the testator's intent, finally determining that the adult adoptee should be included in the class. It held that children reared within the family, even though not adopted until adulthood, were compatible with the intent of the testator in creating the class gift [Estate of Joslyn (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1428, 1438-1440, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 616] . In Newman, the Supreme Court disagreed with the court in Joslyn to the extent that it stood for the proposition that a legislative change in public policy that is enacted after the death of a testator may fairly be deemed to reflect the intent of the testator [see Newman v. Wells Fargo Bank (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 126, 140, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 926 P.2d 969] . The court could have simply noted the lack of any express indication of intent in the will and then applied the statute.

The court went on to reject a limitation expressed in a prior case that an adult adoptee who had been a member of the adopting parent's household as a minor should be deemed to come within the class only if it is shown that the purpose of the adoption was not to diminish or defeat the income and remainder interests of other beneficiaries [Estate of Pittman (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 288, 295, 163 Cal. Rptr. 527] . The court held that an adopted stepchild should not have to refute an element of financial gain in order to come within the class because a valid reason for establishing a legally-recognized parent-child relationship between adults is to ensure the orderly transfer of the family estate. The acknowledgment of an additional child necessarily diminishes the estate of any other children. Again, this is the result that would have ensued had the court simply applied Prob. Code § 21115.

Thus, Newman and Joslyn are strong authority for the proposition that the inclusion of adoptees within a class of children or issue is to be based on the law in effect at the time of execution of the instrument. But the failure of either court to consider the effect of Prob. Code §§ 21115 and 21140 leaves the matter in considerable doubt.

[c] Antilapse Statute

The rules of Prob. Code § 21115(a) and (b) also apply to California's antilapse statute [Prob. Code § 21115(c)(1),(2); see Prob. Code § 21110 (antilapse statute)]. Thus, if an adopted adult is a "child" for the purposes of a class gift, he or she is also a "kindred" devisee [see Prob. Code § 21110(c)] and "issue" of a deceased devisee [see Prob. Code § 21110(a)] within the meaning of the antilapse statute [Prob. Code § 21115(c)(1), (2)].

§ 12C.14 Persons Who May Adopt and Be Adopted

Subject to the statutory limitations discussed below, any adult person or married minor child may be adopted by any other adult person [Fam. Code § 9300]. However, no person may adopt more than one unrelated adult person within one year of his or her adoption of another unrelated adult unless the person to be adopted is the sibling by birth of a previously adopted person, or unless the person to be adopted is disabled or physically handicapped. No person may adopt an unrelated adult person within one year of any adoption of an unrelated adult by his or her spouse, unless the person to be adopted is the sibling by birth of a previously adopted person [Fam. Code § 9303].

The adopting parent must be older that the adopted person, but there is no express age differential [Fam. Code § 9320; cf. Fam. Code § 8601 (10-year age differential generally required to adopt minor)]. One may not adopt his or her spouse [Fam. Code § 9320(a)].

§ 12C.15 Consent Requirements

A married person who is not lawfully separated from his or her spouse can neither adopt an adult nor be adopted as an adult without the consent of his or her spouse, if the spouse is capable of giving the consent [Fam. Code §§ 9301, 9302(a)]. Likewise, a married minor cannot be adopted without the consent of his or her spouse [Fam. Code §§ 9300(b), 9302(a)]. For forms for spousal consent, see §§ 12C.50, 12C.51.

Fam. Code §§ 9301 and 9302 do not expressly require that the spouses be separated pursuant to a decree of legal separation [see Fam. Code § 2310] or a written separation agreement [see Fam. Code § 3580]. In general, "lawful" denotes something that, in its substance, is sanctioned or permitted by law, as distinguished from conformity to positive rules of law [see Stauter v. Carithers (1921) 185 Cal. 160, 163, 196 P. 37] . In that it is lawful for spouses to live apart from each other, regardless of their legal status, it appears that spouses who have physically separated withoutan intent to reunify can probably adopt an adult or be adopted by an adult without the consent of the other spouse.

Neither the consent of a birth parent of the adopted person, nor of the Department of Social Services, nor of any other person is required [Fam. Code § 9302(b)].

If a husband and wife jointly seek to adopt an adult, it may be assumed that each consents to adoption of the person in question by the other [see, e.g., In re Williams (1894) 102 Cal. 70, 79, 36 P. 407] . Nevertheless, jointly adopting spouses may sign reciprocal written statements of consent.

The adoption agreement must be approved by a decree of adoption of the superior court of the county in which either the adopting parent or the adopted person resides [Fam. Code §§ 9320(a), 9321]. To obtain court approval, the adopting parent and the proposed adopted person may jointly file a petition [Fam. Code § 9321(a)]. Although not expressly considered in the statutes, the right of a married couple to petition jointly to adopt an adult or unmarried minor may be inferred from the language that an "adult may be adopted by another adult" [Fam. Code § 9300(a)] and a "married minor may be adopted in the same manner as an adult" [Fam. Code § 9300(b)]. In such a case, there would be three petitioners: the two spouses and the adopted person. § 12C.21 Developmentally Disabled Adopted Person

The person seeking to adopt an adult must give notice of the hearing to the director of the regional center for the developmentally disabled, established pursuant to Chapter 5 of Division 4.5 of the Welfare and Institutions Code [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 4620 et seq.], and to any living birth parents or adult children of the proposed adopted person if both of the following circumstances exist [Fam. Code § 9326]:

(1) The proposed adopted person is an adult with developmental disabilities.

(2) The person seeking to adopt is a provider of board and care, treatment, habilitation, or other services to persons with developmental disabilities, or is a spouse or employee of a provider.

The adopting parent must mail or personally serve the notice and a copy of the petition at least 30 days before the day of the hearing on the petition [Fam. Code § 9326]. In such a case (unless the adopting parent and adopted person are related), the regional center for the developmentally disabled must file a written report with the court regarding the suitability of the proposed adoption in meeting the needs of the proposed adopted person, and regarding any known previous adoption by the petitioner [Fam. Code § 9327].

[1] Setting, Privacy, and Appearances

The court clerk must fix a time and place for a hearing on the petition, once it is filed [Fam. Code § 9322]. The hearing may be open to the public at the discretion of the court [Fam. Code § 9307].

Both the adopting parent and the adopted person must personally appear at the hearing unless an appearance is impossible, in which case an appearance may be made for either or both by counsel. The counsel must be empowered in writing to make the appearance [Fam. Code § 9324]. For a form for a power of attorney authorizing counsel to appear for a party, see § 12B.313[1].

[2] Examination and Evidence

At the hearing, the court must examine the parties, or the counsel of any party not present in person. The court may consider evidence, oral or written, whether or not it is in conformity with the Evidence Code [Fam. Code § 9328(a), (c)].

Subject to the usual limitations on the reach of a subpoena [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1989 (subpoena may compel attendance if witness is a resident in the state at the time it is served)], the court may require the appearance of any person able to give evidence that would assist the court in determining whether to grant the petition [see In re Adoption of Bewley (1914) 167 Cal. 8, 10, 138 P. 689 (information from all proper sources should be sought)].

[3] Grounds for Approving or Disapproving Agreement

If the court is satisfied that the adoption is in the best interests of the parties and in the public interest, and that there is no reason why the petition should not be granted, it must approve the agreement of adoption and make an order of adoption declaring that the adopted person is the child of the adopting parent. Otherwise, the court must withhold approval of the agreement and deny the petition [Fam. Code § 9328(b)].

Reasons that might persuade the court to deny the petition might include the following:

(1) The fact that the prospective adopted person is seeking to evade a support duty with regard to a natural parent [see Fam. Code §§ 4400, 4401 (duty of adult child to support indigent parent), discussed in Ch. 394, Parent and Child];

(2) Evidence of emotional or mental instability on the part of either party, or evidence of fraud, coercion, or undue influence exercised by either party in securing the other's consent to the adoption [see Adoption of Sewall (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 208, 211, 217-222, 51 Cal. Rptr. 367] ; or

(3) A purely economic motive, such as to comprise or enter a class of "children" or "issue" referred to in a will or trust provision [see Estate of Moulton (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 1, 8 n.2, 133 Cal. Rptr. 500 (court found motive to be proper); see also § 12C.13[3]].

§ 12C.24 Confidentiality of Court Records

The governing statutes [Fam. Code § 9300 et seq.] make no provision for restricting access to the records of the court in a proceeding for adoption of an adult or a married minor. In the reorganization of adoption law effective January 1, 1994 [see discussion in Ch. 12, Adoptions: Nature and Effect], the statutory provisions regarding disclosure of information [Fam. Code § 9200 et seq.] were placed in the Family Code part governing adoption of unmarried minors. Therefore, it appears that these statutory limitations on access to and disclosure of information in adoption files (which are discussed in Ch. 12D, Adoptions: Amendement and Inspection of Records) do not apply to adult adoptions.

§ 12C.25 Termination of Parent-Child Relationship Created by Adult Adoption

Any person adopted under Fam. Code § 9300 et seq. may file a petition to terminate the relationship of parent and child created by the adoption. The petition must indicate the name and address of the petitioner, the name and address of the adoptive parent, the date and place of the adoption, and the circumstances on which the petition is based. Notice must be given to the adopting parent [Fam. Code § 9340(a)].

If the adoptive parent consents in writing to the termination, an order terminating the relationship of parent and child may be issued by the court without further notice [Fam. Code § 9340(b)]. If the adoptive parent does not consent to the termination, a verified, written response must be filed within 30 days after the date of mailing of the notice, and the matter must be set for hearing. The court may require an investigation by the county probation officer or the Department of Social Services [Fam. Code § 9340(c)]. The hearing may be open to the public at the discretion of the court [Fam. Code § 9307].

A statutory motion to terminate an adult adoption under Fam. Code § 9340 (available only to the adopted person and not to the adopting parent) should be distinguished from a proceeding to vacate, set aside, or collaterally attack the adoption on a ground such as incapacity, fraud, misrepresentation, coercion, duress, or undue influence. Such a proceeding is available to the adopting parent during his or her lifetime [see Adoption of Sewall (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 208, 211, 219-222, 51 Cal. Rptr. 367] . California will give full faith and credit to an out-of-state adult adoption decree that was valid where rendered even if the procedures followed are different from those prescribed by California law [see Estate of Morris (1943) 56 Cal. App. 2d 715, 720-723, 133 P.2d 452 (decided before California statutes permitted adult adoptions)]. Full faith and credit attaches even if there were some minor irregularities in the out-of-state proceeding, provided they are not sufficient to subject the foreign decree to collateral attack in the state where it was rendered [see Estate of Stanford (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 120, 142, 315 P.2d 681] . However, California will refuse to recognize, and will permit collateral attack on, any adoption decree, including an adult adoption decree of a sister state or foreign country, if it was obtained in violation of the due process clauses of the state and federal constitutions [*Estate of O'Dea (1973) 29 Cal. In the Matter of the Adoption of _____ [name], _____ [An Adult Person or A Married Minor].	))))))	NO. _____ PETITION FOR APPROVAL OF ADOPTION AGREEMENT

1. Petitioner _____[name of adopted person] is _____ [an adult person or a married minor], who is_____ years of age, born on _____[date], in _____[place of birth], and now residing at _____[address]. Petitioner _____[name of adopted person] _____ [is single or was married to _____ (name of adopted person's spouse) on _____ (date) in _____ (place) and is still married to _____ (and not or but) lawfully separated from _____ (name of adopted person's spouse)].

2. Petitioner _____[name of adopting parent] is an adult person who is _____ years of age, born on _____[date], in _____[place of birth], and now residing at _____[address]. Petitioner _____[name of adopting parent] _____ [is single or was married to _____ (name of adopting parent's spouse) on _____ (date), in _____ (place) and is still married to _____ (and not or but) lawfully separated from _____ (name of adopting parent's spouse)].

3. On or about _____[date], petitioners entered into and executed a written adoption agreement in which petitioner _____[name of adopting parent] agreed to adopt petitioner _____[name of adopted person], petitioner _____[name of adopted person] agreed to be adopted by petitioner _____[name of adopting parent], and both petitioners agreed to assume towards each other the legal relation of parent and child and to have all the rights and be subject to all the duties and responsibilities of that relation. A copy of the Adoption Agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.

[4. The spouse of _____ (name of adopted person), _____ (name of spouse), has duly consented in writing to the adoption sought herein. A copy of his/her consent is attached hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof.]

[5. The spouse of _____ (name of adopting parent), _____ (name of spouse), has duly consented in writing to the adoption sought herein. A copy of his/her consent is attached hereto as Exhibit C and made a part hereof.]

6. Petitioner _____[name of adopting parent] desires to adopt petitioner _____[name of adopted person], and petitioner _____[name of adopted person] desires to be so adopted.

8. Petitioner _____[name of adopting parent] has known _____[name of adopted person] _____ [specify length and nature of relationship between parties, e.g., for 10 years. Petitioner _____ (name of adopted person) came to live with petitioner _____ (name of adopting parent) at the age of 14 when her mother married petitioner, and resided in his home until her marriage. No adoption was completed during the minority of _____ (name of adopted person) because the birth father would not give his consent to the adoption].

9. _____ [State reasons why adoption is sought and is in best interests of the parties and the public, e.g., Petitioners seek this adoption in order to establish in law a relationship that exists in fact, and because it is in their best interests that petitioners have between them the legal rights and obligations of parent and child, including rights relating to inheritance and duties of support. This adoption is in the public interest for the same reasons, and particularly because it will create legal duties of support between the petitioners and thereby reduce the likelihood of either petitioner becoming a public charge in the future].

[11. _____ (Name of adopting parent or of spouse of adopting parent) has previously adopted _____ (name of previous adult adopted person), an adult person, on _____ (date of previous adoption) at _____ (place of previous adoption).]

12. Petitioner _____[name of adopted person] wishes to _____ [continue to be known by that name or be known by the name of _____(new name)].

WHEREFORE, petitioners pray that the court permit all persons concerned in this matter to attend and be heard, and that the court examine all persons appearing before it as required by law, and if satisfied that the best interests of the parties and the public interest will be promoted by the proposed adoption, grant the petition, approve the agreement of adoption, and make a decree that _____[name of adopted person] hasbeen duly and legally adopted by petitioner _____[name of adopting parent].

This form is for use as a petition for the adoption of an adult or a married minor [see Fam. Code §§ 9300-9302, 9321(b)].

The Judicial Council has not prescribed forms for use in adult adoption proceedings, although it has prescribed a mandatory form for adoption of unmarried minors, as discussed in Ch. 12B, Adoptions: Unmarried Minors . However, local court rules may require certain forms or suggest certain language. Counsel should ascertain whether such forms have been adopted in the county in which the petition will be filed.

Note that this form assumes that the attorney represents both petitioners. Because this is a joint representation, the attorney should secure written informed consent from each client [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct Rule 3-310(C)], and carefully explain to each client the effects of adoption on inheritance rights, support obligations, the parent-child relationship with the child's natural parents, and the like.

[3] Contents

The caption should contain the name of each petitioner. In describing the nature of the document, counsel should indicate the character of the proceeding [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111] by specifying that it is a petition for approval of adoption agreement adoption.

The petition for adoption must state the following matters: (1) the length and nature of the relationship between the person seeking to adopt andthe proposed adopted person (Paragraph 8); (2) the degree of kinship between them, if any (Paragraph 7); (3) the reason why the adoption is sought (Paragraph 9); (4) a statement as to why the adoption would be in the best interests of the prospective adoptive parent, the proposed adopted person, and the public (Paragraph 9); (5) the names and addresses of any living birth parents or adult children of the proposed adopted person (paragraph 10); and (6) whether the prospective adoptive parent or prospective adoptive person's spouse has previously adopted any other adult person and, if so, the names of any such person, together with the date and place of the adoption (Paragraph 11) [Fam. Code § 9321(b)].

The petition should also allege the date of birth, marital status, and place of residence of each petitioner (Paragraphs 1 and 2). Date of birth is important to show that the adopted person is an adult and that the adopting parent is older than the adopted person [see Fam. Code §§ 9300(a), 9320(a)]. Marital status is relevant to indicate whether spousal consent is required (Paragraphs 4 and 5) [see Fam. Code §§ 9301, 9302] and that a minor adopted person is married [see Fam. Code § 9300(b)]. Place of residence shows that the petition has been filed in the proper court, that is, one in which either petitioner resides [see Fam. Code § 9321(a)].

[4] Prayer and Verification

To conform to the governing statute, the prayer should ask that the court "approve the agreement of adoption, and make a decree of adoption declaring that the person adopted is the child of the person adopting" [Fam. Code § 9328(b)]. The prayer should specify the name by which the adopted person will be known after adoption, even if there will be no change of name [see Fam. Code § 9304]. All petitions filed under the Family Code must be verified [Fam. Code § 212; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 446].

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form is for use as an order of adoption of an adult or a married minor [see Fam. Code § 9328(b)].

The petitioners' counsel should prepare an order of adoption and present it to the judge at the close of the hearing. The law does not require that the order state any findings; but because a judgment should be self-sustaining, findings should be included. The order will not be effective until it is entered [Code Civ. Proc. § 664].

This chapter discusses postadoption procedures regarding official records, and contains related official and attorney-drafted forms. It discusses the amendment of an adopted child's birth records with the State Registrar of Vital Statistics. It also considers the inspection of the birth records of the State Registrar, the inspection of court records regarding an adoption matter, and inspection of adoption records of the Department of Social Services and licensed adoption agencies.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 12D.11 Report of Adoption to Vital Statistics Bureau

Within five days after a decree of adoption has been entered, the clerk is required to send a "Court Report of Adoption" (Department of Health Form VS-44) to the Registrar of Vital Statistics in Sacramento [Health & Safety Code § 102625; see § 12D.40[1]]. The governing statute does not specifically limit this reporting requirement to adoptions of unmarried minors. Thus, a report is required in any adoption case, including one for adoption of an adult or a married minor, whether or not the adopted person desires the issuance of a new birth certificate.

Chapter 12D ADOPTIONS: AMENDMENT AND INSPECTION OF RECORDS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 12D.12 Amendment of Birth Certificate

[1] Adoption in California

[a] Existing Record of In-State Birth

If the adopted person was born in California, and there is a record of the birth, the Registrar of Vital Statistics will establish a new birth certificate on receiving the clerk's report of the adoption [see § 12D.40[1]], unless the report instructs the registrar that the existing record is not to be amended [Health & Safety Code §§ 102635, 102640].

[b] Missing Record of In-State Birth

If the adopted person was born in California, but there is no record of the birth, the clerk's report of adoption will be treated as an application for delayed birth registration [see Health & Safety Code § 102525 et seq.], provided that the clerk's report states the date and place of birth [Health & Safety Code § 102690].

[c] Out-of-State Birth

If the adopted person was born in another state, the District of Columbia, a territory of the United States, or Canada, the state registrar will forward the court clerk's report of adoption to the registration authority for the place of birth [Health & Safety Code § 102630]. If the adopted person was born outside of the United States, its territories, or Canada, the clerk's report of adoption will be treated as an application for delayed birth registration [see Health & Safety Code § 102525 et seq.], provided that the clerk's report states the date and place of birth [Health & Safety Code § 102695].

[2] Adoption Outside California

If a person born in California is adopted outside the state, a report of adoption from any court of record having jurisdiction in the place of adoption will be handled by the registrar in the same way as the clerk's report for a person adopted in California [Health & Safety Code §§ 102635, 102690; see discussion in [1], above].

[3] New Birth Certificate

[a] Contents

The new birth certificate will not indicate that the subject is an adopted person. It will be indistinguishable from an ordinary birth certificate and will bear the subject's name after adoption, the adoptive parents' names, and the date and place of birth, unless, in an adoption by an unmarried person, the adoptive parent elects to have the birth certificate state "Single Parent Adoption" [Health & Safety Code § 102650]. If the adopting parents request, the name and address of the hospital or other place where the birth occurred will be omitted [Health & Safety Code § 102645]. If a child has been adopted by an unmarried person, the new certificate will, if the adopting parent so requests, reflect that it is a single-parent adoption [Health & Safety Code § 102650].

[b] Action to Include Name of Deceased Person

If both adopting parents were in the home at the time of the initial placement of a child for adoption, but one died before the adoption was completed, the amended birth certificate may include the names of both adopting parents [Health & Safety Code § 102660]. An action may be brought in the superior court of the county in which the petitioner resides for the purpose of obtaining a court order directing the State Registrar to issue such a certificate [see Fam. Code § 8615(a)]. Alternatively, the inclusion may be requested in the adoption proceeding [Fam. Code § 8615(b)]. The inclusion of the name of a deceased person on a birth certificate issued pursuant to a court order does not affect any matter of testate or intestate succession, and is not competent evidence on the issue of the relationship between the adopted child and the deceased person in any action or proceeding [Fam. Code § 8615(c)].

[c] Subsequent Amendment

At any time after issuance of a new birth certificate, another amended certificate may be issued, at the request of an adoptive parent, omitting the name and address of the hospital or other place where the birth occurred or the city or county where the birth occurred [Health & Safety Code § 102675]. An amended birth record may also be subsequently amended to conform with a court order that an adoptive parent's deceased spouse's name be included, as a parent [Health & Safety Code § 102670; see Fam. Code § 8615 (authorizing proceeding for such order)].

[d] Fee for Issuance or Certified Copy

A new birth certificate will be issued without charge [Health & Safety Code § 102710], except that a fee will be required for subsequent amendment to conform the amended record with a later court order that an adoptive parent's deceased spouse's name be included [Health & Safety Code §§ 102670, 103705]. There is a fee prescribed for amending a birth record after adoption [see Health & Safety Code § 103710], but it will have been paid or waived when the petition for adoption was filed [see Health & Safety Code § 103730]. A fee is charged for a certified copy of a birth certificate [Health & Safety Code § 103625].

[4] Previous Birth Certificate

[a] Effect of Amendment

The new birth certificate supplants any birth certificate previously registered for the child and is the only birth certificate open to public inspection without a court order [Health & Safety Code §§ 102680. 102705].

[b] Correction at Local Level

When a new birth certificate is established for an adopted person, the Registrar of Vital Statistics must require the local registrar and county recorder whose records contain copies of the previous birth certificate to forward those copies to the registrar (who will file them with the original) or, if that is impracticable, to seal those copies and forward a verified statement of this action to the registrar [Health & Safety Code § 102685].

[c] Maintenance Under Seal

The previous birth record will be maintained as part of the records of the state registrar, along with copies of it forwarded from the local registrar and county recorder, and along with the clerk's report of adoption [see § 12D.40[1]]. It is open to public inspection only on a court order [Health & Safety Code §§ 102700, 102705]. For discussion of inspection of these records, see § 12D.14.

On the request of the adoptive parents or the child, a clerk of the superior court may issue a certificate of adoption that states the date and place of adoption, the birthday of the child, the name of the adoptive parents, and the name that the child has taken. Unless the child has been adopted by a stepparent, or other relative [see Fam. Code § 8616.5(c) (persons considered as "relatives" for purposes of relative adoption), the certificate may not state the name of the birth parents of the child [Fam. Code § 8614 (amended, operative January 1, 1998, to add exception for adoption by relative; Fam. Code § 9200(c), previously identical in wording to § 8614, was not amended)].

§ 12D.14 Inspection of Birth Records of State Registrar

The state registrar's sealed birth record of an adopted person may be opened for inspection only on order of the superior court. Anyone seeking such an order must file a verified petition in the superior court in the county where the adopted person resides or in the county where the adoption was decreed. The petitioner must set forth facts showing both "necessity" and "good and compelling cause" for issuance of the order [Health & Safety Code § 102705]. For a form for a petition to inspect birth records of the State Registrar, see § 12D.41[1].

The clerk will send a copy of the petition to the Department of Social Services, which must send a copy of all records and information that it has concerning the adopted person to the court. The names and addresses of the natural parents must be deleted. The court must review the records before making its decision [Health & Safety Code § 102705].

The decision is entirely within the court's discretion. If the petition is by or on behalf of an adopted person who has attained the age of majority, the court must give this fact great weight, but this fact alone does not require granting of the petition. The names and addresses of the natural parents will not be disclosed unless the petitioner shows a need for this information to assist in establishing a legal right [Health & Safety Code § 102705].

§ 12D.15 Confidentiality of Court Records

The petition for adoption, relinquishment or consent, agreement, order, report to the court from any investigating agency, any power of attorney, and any deposition filed in the office of the clerk of the court an adoption proceeding must not be open to inspection by anyone other than the parties to the proceeding, their attorneys, and the Department of Social Services, except on the written authority of a superior court judge. A judge may not authorize anyone to inspect any of these documents, or any portion of them, unless there are exceptional circumstances and "for good cause approaching the necessitous." The petitioner may be required to pay the clerk's expenses of preparing copies of the documents to be inspected [Fam. Code § 9200(a); see Hubbard v. Superior Court (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 741, 747-748, 11 Cal. Rptr. 700 (explaining legislative policy in favor of confidentiality)]. For a form for a petition to inspect court records, see § 12D.42[1].

On written request of any party to the proceeding and on the order of the court, the county clerk may not provide any of the above documents for inspection or copying to any other person unless the name of the birth parents of the child or any information tending to identify the birth parents is deleted from the documents or copies [Fam. Code § 9200(b)]. For a form of petition to delete all information identifying the birth parents, see § 12D.43[1].

Fam. Code § 9200 does not specify who is a "party to the proceeding" for the purpose of examining an adoption court file. Decisions viewing "parties" expansively with regard to rights to appeal or attack the decree [see, e.g., In re Jay R. (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 251, 257 n.2, 197 Cal. Rptr. 672 (birth parent); Adoption of Martin (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 133, 134, 172 P.2d 552 (grandparent); see also Ch. 12E, Adoptions: Attack on Decree] may not control, given the protective policy behind the confidentiality requirement [see In re Maria V. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1099, 1104, 213 Cal. Rptr. 733] . Most likely, an adopted minor is not a party to the proceeding for his or her own adoption within the meaning of the statute [see Fam. Code §§ 8714(c), 8802(c), 8912(b), 9000(c) (caption to adoption petition must contain names of petitioning adopting parents but not name of child)]. For discussion of an adopted person's right to obtain information about his or her own adoption, see § 12D.16[2].

The court's disposition of the adoption petition makes no difference with regard to the confidentiality of the file. The records in a case in which the petition for adoption was denied have the same protected status as those in a case in which the petition was granted [Hubbard v. Superior Court (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 741, 752, 11 Cal. Rptr. 700] .

[1] Confidentiality

The adoption records of the Department of Social Services or of the licensed adoption agency that was involved in an adoption are confidential [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35049(b); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35047 (contents of adoption case record); see also Fam. Code § 9201(a)]. However, they are only conditionally privileged if subpoenaed pursuant to judicial proceeding, and information may be disclosed if fundamental interests are at stake [In re Maria V. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1099, 1104, 213 Cal. Rptr. 733 (approving court's in-camera inspection and limited disclosure in proceeding to terminate parental rights under Fam. Code § 7800 et seq.)]. They are also subject to limited rights of disclosure [see Fam. Code §§ 9202, 9203, discussed under [2], below].

[2] Disclosure of Information

[a] In General

Family Code provisions on the disclosure of information [see Fam. Code § 9200 et seq.] were enacted for several purposes. One purpose is to ensure that complete medical background information of an adopted person and an adopted person's birth parents will be transmitted to the adopting parents at the time of adoptive placement [see Fam. Code §§ 8608(b), 8706, 8817, 8909]. This requirement is discussed in Ch. 12B, Adoptions: Unmarried Minors . Another purpose is to ensure that medical background information is available to the adopted person when he or she reaches 18 years of age or when he or she presents a certified copy of the person's marriage certificate [see Fam. Code § 9202(a)]. This is discussed in [b], below. In addition, the Family Code establishes a procedure by which birth parents who gave up a child for adoption and the adopted child, on reaching age 21, may obtain information about each other, including current addresses, based on their mutual consent and waiver of confidentiality [see Fam. Code § 9203(a)]. The procedure is discussed in [c], below.

For discussion of liability for misrepresentation of a child's medical condition, see Ch. 12B, Adoptions: Unmarried Minors .

[b] Release of Medical Background Report

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Department of Social Services, or the licensed adoption agency that prepared a medical background report on an adopted child and his or her birth parents [see Fam. Code §§ 8706, 8817, 8909, discussed in Ch. 12B, Adoptions: Unmarried Minors] must provide a copy of the report on the request of any of the following persons: (1) a person who has been adopted and who has attained the age of 18 years, (2) a person who has been adopted and who presents a certified copy of his or her marriage certificate, or (3) the adoptive parent of a person under the age of 18 who has been adopted. The report must be provided in the manner that the department has prescribed by regulation [Fam. Code § 9202(a); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35051]. A person who is denied access to a medical report pursuant to the regulations may petition the superior court for review of the reasonableness of the department's or agency's decision [Fam. Code § 9202(b)]. The names and addresses of any persons contained in the report must be removed from the report unless the person requesting the report has previously received the information pursuant to Fam. Code § 9203(a), discussed in [c], below [Fam. Code § 9202(c)].

[c] Disclosure of Identity of Birth Parent and Adopted Person

Disclosure to an adopted person of the names of his or her birth parents, or to a birth parent of the adopted name of his or her natural child, requires the consent of the person whose identity is requested [Fam. Code § 9203(a)(1)]. The provisions of Fam. Code § 9203 apply only to those adoptions in which the relinquishment for adoption or consent to adoption was signed, or the birth parent's rights were involuntarily terminated by court action, on or after January 1, 1984 [Fam. Code § 9203(g)].

On request of a person who has been adopted and who has attained the age of 21, the Department of Social Services or a licensed adoption agency must disclose the identity of a birth parent, and the most current address of the birth parent as shown in the records of the department or agency, if the birth parent has consented to the disclosure in writing. Similarly, on request of a birth parent of a person who has been adopted and who has attained the age of 21, the department or agency must disclose the adopted name of the adopted person and his or her most current address as shown in the records of the department or licensed adoption agency if the adult adopted person has indicated in writing, pursuant to a registration program developed by the department, that he or she wishes his or her name and address to be disclosed [Fam. Code § 9203(a)(1), (2)].

The department or agency also must disclose the identity of a birth parent, and his or her most current address as shown in the records of the department or agency, on the request of the adoptive parent of an adopted person under the age of 21 if the department or agency finds that a medical necessity or other extraordinary circumstance justifies the disclosure. However, even disclosure to the adoptive parents on account of medical necessity or other extraordinary circumstances is prohibited if the birth parent has indicated that he or she does not wish his or her name or address to be disclosed [Fam. Code § 9203(a)(3), (c); 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35057].

The right to maintain or waive confidentiality must be disclosed to a birth parent when a relinquishment for or consent to adoption is signed [Fam. Code §§ 8702(a)(3), 8818(a)(3)]. The birth parent may change his or her decision at any time by sending a notarized letter to that effect, by certified mail, return receipt requested, to the department or agency [Fam. Code §§ 8702(a)(4), 8818(a)(4)]. The birth parent must sign a form at the time of relinquishment or consent on which he or she checks a box indicating waiver, nonwaiver, or uncertainty as to future disclosure of his or her identity to the child [Fam. Code §§ 8702(b), 8818(b)].

The form of request must be prescribed by the department, and must provide for an affidavit to be executed by the requester that to the best of his or her knowledge he or she is an adopted person, or the birth parent of an adopted person, or the adoptive parent of an adopted person. The department may adopt regulations requiring any additional means of identification from a requester as it deems necessary [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 35049-35065]. The request must advise an adopted person that if he or she so consents, his or her adoptive parents will be notified of the filing of the request before the release of the name and address of his or her birth parent [Fam. Code § 9203(b)].

The department may forward requests for information to any licensed adoption agency that was a party to the adoption [Fam. Code § 9203(d); see Fam. Code § 8506 (agency is party to agency adoption); see also discussion of agency adoptions in Ch. 12B, Adoptions: Unmarried Minors]. The department must either respond to a request for information or forward the request to an agency within 20 working days of its receipt of the request [Fam. Code § 9203(d)].

The department or licensed adoption agency may charge a reasonable fee in an amount established by department regulation to cover the costs of processing requests for information. However, the fees must be waived for persons receiving public assistance [Fam. Code § 9203(f)].

[d] Disclosure to Juvenile Court, Agencies and Others

Except as otherwise permitted or required by statute, neither the Department of Social Services (DSS) nor a licensed adoption agency shall release information that would identify persons who receive or have received, adoption services [Fam. Code § 9201(a)]. Notwithstanding this general rule, employees of the DSS and licensed adoption agencies must release to the DSS at Sacramento any requested information, including identifying information, for the purpose of record-keeping and monitoring, evaluation, and regulation of the provision of adoption services [Fam. Code § 9201(b)].

Before a child is placed for adoption, the DSS or licensed adoption agency, may, on written request of both a birth and prospective adoptive parent, arrange for contact between the birth and prospective adoptive parents that may include the sharing of identifying information regarding these parents [Fam. Code § 9201(c)].

The DSS and any licensed adoption agency may, on written authorization for the release of specified information by the subject of that information, share information regarding a prospective adoptive parent or birth parent with other social service agencies, including the DSS and other licensed adoption agencies, or providers of health care (as defined by the Civil Code) [Fam. Code § 9201(d)].

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Department of Social Services and any licensed adoption agency may furnish information relating to an adoption petition or to a child in the custody of the DSS or any licensed adoption agency to any of the following, whenever it is believed that the welfare of the child will be promoted by the release [Fam. Code § 9201]:

(1) The juvenile court;

(2) Any county welfare department;

(3) Any public welfare agency;

(4) Any private welfare agency licensed by the Department of Social Services;

(5) Any provider of foster care services;

(6) Any potential adoptive parent; or

(7) Any provider of health care (as defined in the Civil Code).

Furthermore, the DSS and any licensed adoption agency may make adoption case records, including identifying information, available for research purposed, provided that the research will not result in the disclosure of identity of the child or parties to the adoption to anyone other than the entity conducting the research [Fam. Code § 9201(f)].

[3] Release of Information on Adopted Person's Sibling

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Department of Social Services or an adoption agency that joined in a petition for an agency adoption must release to both an adopted person and the adopted person's sibling each other's name and address if prescribed criteria are met. The department or agency may charge a reasonable fee for providing this service [see Fam. Code § 9205(a), (b)]. The term "sibling" means a biological sibling, half-sibling, or step-sibling of the adoptee [Fam. Code § 9205(h); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.410(b)(6)]. The term "adoptee" means any person adopted under California law [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.410(b)(1)].

For release of this information, both the adopted person and the sibling must be at least 18 years old and have filed his or her current address and a written request for contact with any sibling that is known to him or her with the department or agency. Also, the adopted person must have filed and, if applicable, the sibling must also have filed, a written waiver of rights regarding disclosure of his or her respective name and address to a sibling. On inquiry and proof that a person is a sibling of an adopted person who has filed a waiver, the department or agency may advise him or her that such a waiver has been filed by the adopted person [Fam. Code § 9205(a), (b); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35063]. An adopted person may revoke this waiver by giving written notice to that effect to the Department of Social Services or agency [Fam. Code § 9205(c)].

The department must adopt a form for the request for sibling information [Fam. Code § 9205(d); see § 12D.44[1]].

The department may not solicit the execution of a waiver authorizing disclosure of sibling information. However, the department must announcethe availability of the procedure, using a means of communication appropriate to effectively inform the public [Fam. Code § 9205(e)].

An adoptee or sibling who is under 18 years of age may file with the department or adoption agency a written waiver of confidentiality for the release of his or her name, address, and telephone number. An adoptee must have the adoptive parent's consent, and a sibling must have a legal parent's or guardian's consent. A sibling, who is under the jurisdiction of the dependency court and who has no legal parent or guardian able or available to provide consent, must have the consent of the dependency court [Fam. Code § 9205(f); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.410(b)(7), (8), (c)].

An adoptee or sibling who seeks contact with the other for whom no waiver is on file may petition the court to appoint a confidential intermediary to help locate the other sibling [Fam. Code § 9205(g); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.410(d)]. The sibling who is requesting contact must file a petition [see Cal. Judicial Council Form Adopt-330; see also § 12D.45] and submit a blank order [see Cal. Judicial Council Form Adopt-331; see also § 12D.46] to the court that finalized the adoption of either sibling [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.410(b)(9), (10), (d)(1)(A)]. If the sibling who is requesting contact is under 18 years of age, the petition must be filed through the sibling's duly appointed guardian ad litem under Code Civ. Proc. § 373 or through the sibling's attorney [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.410(d)(1)(B)]. If the sibling being sought is the adoptee, the intermediary must be the department or licensed adoption agency that provided adoption services. If the sibling being sought was formerly under the jurisdiction of the juvenile court, but is not an adoptee, the intermediary must be the department, the county child welfare agency that provided services to the dependent child, or the licensed adoption agency that provided adoption services to the sibling seeking contact, as appropriate [Fam. Code § 9205(g); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.410(b)(4), (d)(2)(B), (4)]. If the court finds that the licensed adoption agency that conducted the adoption is unable, due to economic hardship, to serve as the intermediary, then the agency must provide all records related to the adoptee or the sibling to the court and the court must appoint any one of the following who agrees to serve as an alternate confidential intermediary: (1) a CASA volunteer or program staff member; (2) a court-connected mediator; (3) an adoption service provider under Fam. Code § 8502(a); (4) an attorney; or (5) another California licensed adoption agency or the California Department of Social Services' Adoptions Support Bureau when no other individuals are available [Fam. Code § 9205(g); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.410(b)(5), (d)(2)(C), (D)]. The court must grant the petition unless it finds that it would be detrimental to the adoptee or the sibling with whom contact is sought. In making this determination, the court may consider any and all relevant information, including, but not limited to, a review of the court file [Fam. Code § 9205(g); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.410(d)(2)(A)]. The intermediary must have access to all records of the adoptee or the sibling (including the court adoption file and department or adoption agency files of either sibling), and must make all reasonable efforts to locate and attempt to obtain the consent of the adoptee, the sibling, or the adoptive or birth parent, as required to make the authorized disclosure. The confidential intermediary must notify any located adoptee, sibling, or adoptive or birth parent that consent is optional, not required by law and does not affect the status of the adoption [Fam. Code § 9205(g); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.410(d)(3)(A)]. When an individual denies a request for consent, the confidential intermediary may not make any further attempts to obtain consent. The confidential intermediary may use the information found in the records of the adoptee or the sibling for authorized purposes only, and may not disclose this information without authorization [Fam. Code § 9205(g); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.410(d)(3)(B), (C)].

[4] Contact Arranged by Department or Agency

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, if an adult adopted person and his or her birth parent have each filed a written consent with the Department of Social Services or licensed adoption agency, the department or agency may arrange for contact between those persons [Fam. Code § 9204(a); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35065.1(a) (agency "shall arrange for contact ... as required by" governing code section); see also Fam. Code § 9201(c)]. However, the department must announce the availability of the present method of arranging contact among an adult adopted person and his or her birth parent using means of communication appropriate to effectively inform the public [Fam. Code § 9203(e)].

The written consent must be in the form prescribed by the department [Fam. Code § 9204(b)].

[5] Release of Personal Property

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Department of Social Services and any licensed adoption agency must release any letters, photographs, or other items of personal property in their possession on written request of any of the following parties [Fam. Code § 9206(a)]:

(1) The adopted person, provided that he or she has become 18 years old;

(2) The adoptive parent or parents, on behalf of an adopted person under the age of 18 years, as long as instructions to the contrary have not been made by the depositor of the property; or

(3) The birth parent or parents.

All identifying names and addresses must be deleted from these items before delivery to the person requesting them [Fam. Code § 9206(b)]. The term "photograph" means a photograph of the person depositing the photograph or a photograph of the person making the request for the release [Fam. Code § 9206(f)].

Any letters, photographs, or other items of personal property deposited on or after January 1, 1985, must be accompanied by a release form or similar document signed by the person depositing the material, specifying to whom the material may be released. At its discretion, the department or agency has the right to refuse for deposit items of personal property that, because of value or bulk, would pose storage problems [Fam. Code § 9206(c)].

Only the following photographs deposited before 1985 may be released: (1) photographs of the adopted person that the adopted person has requested; or (2) photographs that have been deposited by the adoptedperson, an adoptive parent or parents, or the birth parent or parents, and for which there is a letter or other document on file indicating that person's consent to release of the photographs [Fam. Code § 9206(d)].

The department or agency may charge a fee to cover the actual costs of any services required with regard to the release of personal property in excess of normal postadoption services provided by the department or agency. The department must develop a fee schedule that is to be implemented by the department and agencies in assessing charges to persons who deposit the material or to whom the material is released. The fee may be waived by the department or agencies if it is established that financial hardship exists [Fam. Code § 9206(e)].

This form is Department of Health Services VS 44, Court Report of Adoption. It is for use by the clerk of the court in which an adoption is decreed to provide information to the State Registrar of Vital Statistics from which an amended birth certificate will be prepared [see Health & Safety Code § 102625].

In the case of adoption of an unmarried minor, a copy of the report form will be filled out by the adoption agency, if any, or the official investigator, and delivered to the court clerk. If the adoption petition is granted, the clerk will complete the form by adding the data about the court proceeding and will then mail it to the State Registrar.

Information to be recorded on the form will be obtained by interviewing the parties or may be supplied by counsel. A client should be advised as to what information and instructions to give when interviewed. Counsel should check the report form for accuracy promptly after the decree is filed.

In the case of adoption of an adult or a married minor, counsel for the petitioners should obtain a blank copy of the report form, fill out all parts except the lines to be completed by the clerk, and deliver it to the clerk when the petition is filed. Blank copies of the form are available from the Department of Health Services, Office of State Registrar, in Sacramento.

[3] Contents of Report

The report form has space (lines 1A-7C) to record the following information, which the registrar will use to locate the existing birth record (if any) for the purpose of sealing it:

(1) Name of the adopted child before adoption (that is, the name that would appear on any existing birth record);

(2) Sex of the child;

(3) Date and place (hospital, if any, and address) of birth;

(4) Name of the physician or other person attending the birth; and

(5) Names of the "natural" parents.

The parents' names should be given as they would appear on any existing birth record. The form calls for the "natural" parents' names, but if the adopted child was previously adopted and the existing birth record shows the name of an adoptive parent, that name, instead of the name of the child's biological parent, should be given [see Fam. Code § 8512 ("birth parent" means the biological parent, or, in the case of a child previously adopted, the adoptive parent)].

The report form also provides space (lines 8A-13) to record the full names, states of birth, and dates of birth of the child's legal parents after adoption. In most cases, these will be the two adopting parents. However, in a stepparent adoption, the custodial birth parent retains his or her parental rights; thus, he or she is the natural parent whose information should be entered. The registrar will use this information to amend the existing birth record (if any), provided that the parent or parents by adoption want the existing record amended.

The report form also provides space for certain instructions to the registrar regarding amendment of the existing birth record and issuance of a new birth certificate. An existing birth record is not required to be amended if the adoptive parent or parents request that it not be amended (line 14) [Health & Safety Code §§ 102635, 102640]. In the case of adult adoptions, the parties frequently decide against issuance of a new birth certificate.

The name and address of the hospital or other place where the adopted child was born will be omitted from the amended record if the registrar is so instructed (line 15) [see Health & Safety Code § 102645].

One of the parents must sign the report form to verify the information recorded on it (line 16A). The report form also has space to record the adoption agency or state or local governmental agency that investigated or handled the case (lines 18A, 18B), the name and address of counsel (lines 19A, 19B), and the person (parent or attorney) to whom a certified copy of the new birth certificate should be sent. The new name of the child, as set forth in the decree of adoption, is to be entered by the clerk in the clerk's certification part of the form (line 21).

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use as a petition to inspect sealed birth records of the State Registrar of Vital Statistics that have been amended to reflect the adoption of a child [see Health & Safety Code § 102705]. The petition must be verified. It may be filed in the superior court of the county of residence of the adopted child or in the superior court that granted the decree of adoption [Health & Safety Code § 102705]. For further discussion, see § 12D.14.

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use as a verified petition to inspect the court records of an adoption matter [see Fam. Code § 9200; see also Fam. Code 212 (all petitions under Fam. Code must be verified)]. It is for use by a nonparty to the adoption, which presumably includes the adopted person. For further discussion, see § 12D.15.

Under Fam. Code § 9200, the written "authority" of a judge of the superior court is required in order to inspect sealed court adoption records. No particular procedures are set forth to obtain this authority. A petition or motion for a court order may reasonably be assumed to effect the statute. Counsel should consult local court rules and procedures to determine if there are any specific local requirements in the county where the adoption proceeding was filed. All petitions filed under the Family Code must be verified [Fam. Code § 212; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 446].

1. Petitioners _____[names] are the adoptive parents of _____[name] and parties to this matter.

2. A petition has been filed by _____[name], the _____ [specify status, e.g., adopted person] in this matter to inspect the court records on file in the matter.

3. Petitioners do not want the names of the birth parents of the adopted person, or any information tending to identify them, to be disclosed to any nonparty, including the adopted person.

WHEREFORE: Petitioners hereby pray for a court order, pursuant to Family Code Section 9200, directing the clerk of the court not to provide for inspection or copying any of the documents that are listed below to any nonparty, unless the names of the birth parents of the adopted person, and all information tending to identify those parents, are first deleted from the documents.

This form is for use as a verified petition for a court order directing the clerk not to provide sealed court records for inspection unless all information identifying or tending to identify the adopted person's birth parents is first deleted [see Fam. Code § 9200(b); see also Fam. Code § 212(all petitions under Fam. Code must be verified)]. It is for use to respond to a petition to inspect sealed court adoption records [see § 12D.42[2]].

It is not clear from *Fam. Code § 9200*whether the right of a party (that is, the adopting parents) to prevent disclosure of the identity of the birth parents to a nonparty (that is, the adopted person) is absolute, or whether the court has discretion to permit disclosure on a showing of necessity [see Fam. Code § 9200(b)]. For this reason, the objecting parties may wish to set forth any facts that support nondisclosure in their petition.

All petitions filed under the Family Code must be verified [Fam. Code § 212; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 446].

This form is the Department of Social Services form for use to waive confidentiality of the adoption records of the department or a licensed adoption agency for the purpose of allowing release of identifying information between an adult adopted person and his or her natural siblings [see Fam. Code § 9205]. Both the adopted person and the sibling must execute the form before information may be released [Fam. Code § 9205(a); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 35063].

The form must provide for an affidavit to be executed by persons seeking to employ the procedure that, to the best of his or her knowledge, he or she is an adopted person or a sibling of an adopted person. The form must also contain a notice of an adopted person's rights to revoke waiver and a statement that information will be disclosed only if there is a currently valid waiver on file with the department or agency [Fam. Code § 9205(c), (d)]. For further discussion, see § 12D.16[3].

§ 12E.10 Governing Law

Statutes governing vacation of adoption are found in Division 13, Part 2, Chapter 6 of the Family Code [Fam. Code § 9100 et seq.]. A motion to vacate an order or judgment within six months of entry on grounds of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 473. Case law governs equitable proceedings, by motion or action, to set aside a decree of adoption.

§ 12E.11 Appeal From Judgment

[1] Review by Writ Preferred

Normal appellate procedures [see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1] are generally inadequate in adoption matters because of the delays involved. By the time the appeal is ready to be heard, the child will have been in his or her custodial home for such a long period that an appellate court will be hesitant to disturb the status quo. Further, there is a strong policy in favor of placing the child in a permanent and stable environment as soon as possible [see San Diego County Dep't of Public Welfare v. Superior Court of San Diego County (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 1, 9, 101 Cal. Rptr. 541, 496 P.2d 453] . Thus, a temporary placement for the duration of the appeal process is not really an option.

For this reason, review by extraordinary writ is looked on favorably in adoption matters. A writ of mandate [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1084] or prohibition [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1102] is considered a proper proceeding to test the jurisdiction of the superior court to decide an adoption [San Diego County Dep't of Public Welfare v. Superior Court of San Diego County (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 1, 9, 101 Cal. Rptr. 541, 496 P.2d 453] . In this regard, it is sometimes said that the statutory requirements for an adoption are jurisdictional [see Estate of Sharon (1918) 179 Cal. 447, 454, 177 P. 283 ; In re Brittany H. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 533, 553, 243 Cal. Rptr. 763] . Counsel for a party to an adoption proceeding who is aggrieved by an order or decree of the superior court may attempt to characterize the court's act as in excess of its jurisdiction and seek immediate review by extraordinary writ [see, e.g., Jinny N. v. Superior Court (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 967, 969, 241 Cal. Rptr. 95 (dismissal of petition for agency adoption after agency refused to consent reviewed by writ of mandate; court did not discuss any jurisdictional issue)]. However, if the judgment or order is appealable, review by writ should be sought before the period for appeal has expired [see Mauro B. v. Superior Court (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 949, 956-957, 281 Cal. Rptr. 507] . For discussion of the writs of mandate and prohibition and appropriate forms, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

[2] Persons Entitled to Appeal

A party aggrieved by the judgment in a special proceeding, such as adoption, may appeal from it by filing a notice of appeal within the prescribed period [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 902, 904.1; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.100, 8.104, 8.108 (manner of and time for filing appeal)]. Technically, the petitioners may be the only parties to an adoption matter [see Fam. Code §§ 8714(c), 8802(c), 8912(b), 9000(c) (caption to adoption petition must contain names of petitioning adopting parents but not name of child); see also Fam. Code §§ 9321(a), 9324 (in adult adoption, adopted person and adopting person are both petitioners)]. There are no express statutory procedures for filing responsive pleadings to oppose the adoption [but see Adoption of Lenn E. (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 210, 218-220, 227 Cal. Rptr. 63 (allowing grandparents to intervene under unique circumstances)]. Nevertheless, individuals and agencies have often been permitted to appear and present evidence in opposition to the adoption and to appeal from a decree of adoption.

A natural parent who must be cited to appear in a stepparent adoption [see Fam. Code §§ 8604, 8605] has been afforded the right to oppose the petition and to appeal from the decree of adoption [see In re Jay R. (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 251, 257 n.2, 197 Cal. Rptr. 672 ; Adoption of Coffee (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 593, 595-596, 130 Cal. Rptr. 887 ; see also Adoption of Pierce (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 244, 246-247, 93 Cal. Rptr. 171 (appeal from denial of motion to vacate decree by natural father alleging legal status of presumed father so that his consent to adoption was required)]. Also, a licensed adoption agency that placed the child for adoption but subsequently withdrew its consent has been allowed to appeal the decree [see Adoption of McDonald (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 447, 451-452, 274 P.2d 860] , and the Department of Social Services has been afforded the status of "objector" to an adoption and permitted to appeal [see Adoption of S. (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 211, 213, 236 P.2d 821] . In none of these cases was the standing of the nonparty appellant to appear and appeal questioned.

The standing of nonparent relatives has presented greater difficulty. In several older cases, grandparents were afforded the right to appeal a decree of adoption without consideration of their standing to do so [see Adoption of Martin (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 133, 134, 172 P.2d 552 ; In re Fahlman (1927) 84 Cal. App. 248, 250, 257 P. 893] . However, in a more recent case, the court held that grandparents have no standing to contest a stepparent adoption [see Adoption of Berman (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 687, 691-695, 118 Cal. Rptr. 804 ; but see Adoption of Lenn E. (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 210, 215-220, 227 Cal. Rptr. 63 (trial court's grant of intervention to maternal grandparents affirmed); Reeves v. Bailey (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 1019, 1022-1023, 126 Cal. Rptr. 51 (grandparents have standing to appeal on ground of fraud but not on ground of lack of notice)].

[3] Stay; Supersedeas

In the case of a proceeding for adoption of an unmarried minor, the perfecting of an appeal from the judgment (whether granting or denying the petition) does not automatically stay proceedings insofar as the judgment affects the custody of the minor [see Code Civ. Proc. § 917.7]. However, the superior court may grant a stay pending appeal or for some other appropriate period [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 917.7, 918], and the appellate court may issue a writ of supersedeas in an appropriate case [see, e.g., Adoption of Pierce (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 316, 318-321, 85 Cal. Rptr. 104 (writ issued to compel evidentiary hearing on continuation of appellant's visiting rights with daughter that were suspended in adoption proceeding)].

§ 12E.12 Motion to Vacate Decree Made Within Six Months of Entry

Code Civ. Proc. § 473 provides that within a reasonable period, but in no event more than six months, after entry of the judgment in a civil action, the party against whom the judgment was rendered may move to have the judgment vacated if it was rendered against the party because of his or her "mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect" [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. This statute has been held applicable in an adoption proceeding. It has also been held to permit a parent who is not a party to move for vacation of a judgment decreeing the adoption of his or her child if the parent's consent was obtained by material misrepresentation, that is, extrinsic fraud [In re Yoder (1926) 199 Cal. 699, 701, 251 P. 205 ; see In re Bartholomew (1938) 29 Cal. App. 2d 343, 347, 84 P.2d 199 (motion used by parent, but without success on merits)].

If a motion made under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is denied, the order denying the motion may be appealed [In re Yoder (1926) 199 Cal. 699, 702-703, 251 P.205 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(2) (order made after appealable judgment is itself appealable)]. For a form for a notice of motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, see § 12E.40[1]. PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 12E.13 Equitable Motion or Action to Vacate Decree

[1] Nature of Remedy

A decree of adoption may be attacked in equity either by a motion brought in the original adoption matter or by an independent action to vacate the decree [see Adoption of Sewall (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 208, 218-221, 51 Cal. Rptr. 367] . Such a motion or action might be brought by the petitioner [see, e.g., Adoption of Jason R. (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 11, 14, 151 Cal. Rptr. 501 (stepfather petitioner moved to set aside decree, alleging fraud of mother)], by a nonparty who appeared and actively opposed the adoption proceeding [see, e.g., Adoption of Pierce (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 244, 248, 93 Cal. Rptr. 171 (motion by natural father, alleging that his consent was required)], or by a nonparty who did not participate in the adoption hearing for some reason such as lack of notice [see, e.g., Reeves v. Bailey (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 1019, 1020-1024, 126 Cal. Rptr. 51 (action by grandparents, alleging lack of notice and fraud)]. For further discussion of who may bring the motion or action, see [2], below.

A prior motion to vacate the decree in the trial court is not a prerequisite to an equitable action to vacate [Baker v. Baker (1933) 217 Cal. 216, 217, 18 P.2d 61] . However, if the aggrieved person elects to proceed by motion, the denial of the motion is appealable [Coughlin v. Coughlin (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 294, 295, 276 P.2d 844 ; see Estate of Partridge (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 58, 61, 67 Cal. Rptr. 433 (nonparty may obtain review of judgment by moving to set aside judgment and then appealing from denial of motion)]. On failure to appeal, the denial becomes res judicata with regard to any subsequent action to set aside the decree [Coughlin v. Coughlin (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 294, 295, 276 P.2d 844] . For a form for a complaint to bring a separate equitable action to vacate an adoption, see § 12E.41[1].

[2] Persons Entitled to Relief

The availability of a procedure by which a nonparty may obtain review of an adoption decree does not necessarily entitle the nonparty to review on the merits. The appellate court may dismiss the appeal if it finds that the nonparty has no standing to attack the decree [see Adoption of Berman (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 687, 691-695, 118 Cal. Rptr. 804 (grandparents have no standing to attack stepparent adoption)].

Although no case has actually equated standing to attack an adoption decree with standing to appeal the decree [see discussion in § 12E.11[2]], the results have been essentially parallel. Thus, birth parents have been permitted to attack the decree on various grounds [see Sweeney v. Bowles (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 196, 10 Cal. Rptr. 240 (attack by independent action on ground of lack of notice in termination of parental rights proceeding); Arnold v. Howell (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 202, 207, 219 P.2d 854 (attack by independent action on grounds of invalid or fraudulently obtained consent); see also discussion in § 12E.14[2]]. Also, a county adoption agency has been allowed to attack the decree [see Adoption of Emery (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 428, 430-432, 12 Cal. Rptr. 685 (attack by motion on ground of petitioner's misrepresentations in investigation)].

The question of the standing of grandparents has been addressed on appeals directly from the decree and on appeals of denied motions or actions to vacate without distinguishing the particular avenue by which the issue reached the court [see Adoption of Lenn E. (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 210, 215-220, 227 Cal. Rptr. 63 (on direct appeal from judgment); Reeves v. Bailey (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 1019, 1022-1023, 126 Cal. Rptr.51 (on appeal from demurrer in independent action to vacate decree); Adoption of Berman (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 687, 691-695, 118 Cal. Rptr. 804 (on appeal from denial of motion to vacate decree)]. For further discussion of this issue, see § 12E.11[2].

A petitioner has been permitted to attack his stepparent adoption decree on the ground that the spouse-natural parent induced the adoption by misrepresentation [see Adoption of Jason R. (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 11, 14, 151 Cal. Rptr. 501] . Further, it has been held that the adopting parent of an adult adopted person may attack a decree of adoption, and that in light of such a right, the parent's heirs may attack the decree after the parent's death [Adoption of Sewall (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 208, 219-222, 51 Cal. Rptr. 367] .

[3] Grounds for Attack

[a] Lack of Jurisdiction

Lack of subject matter jurisdiction renders an adoption decree void for all purposes and subject to attack by parties or by strangers to the decree [Estate of Smith (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 456, 468, 195 P.2d 842] . It is said that all statutory requirements for an adoption are jurisdictional, and unless they are met, the proceeding for adoption is insufficient, the court is without power to approve it, and there is no lawful adoption [Estate of Sharon (1918) 179 Cal. 447, 454, 177 P. 283 ; In re Brittany H. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 533, 553, 243 Cal. Rptr. 763] . Thus, for example, the failure to obtain a required consent is a jurisdictional defect [Adoption of Barnett (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 370, 377, 6 Cal. Rptr. 562, 354 P.2d 18 ; In re Brittany H. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 533, 553, 243 Cal. Rptr. 763] .

Personal jurisdiction requirements in adoptions are not clearly established in that there are no defendants on whom summons must be served. However, because personal rights are involved, it is necessary to secure personal jurisdiction over the birth parents in order to terminate these rights (assuming that these rights were not validly terminated in a prior proceeding) [see Estate of Smith (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 456, 468, 195 P.2d 842] . The failure to give a required notice to a birth parent is both a jurisdictional defect and a violation of due process [see Armstrong v. Manzo (1965) 380 U.S. 545, 550, 85 S. Ct. 1187, 14 L. Ed. 2d 62 (notice to birth parent is required by federal due process, and adoption decreed in absence of notice must be set aside); Estate of Hampton (1942) 55 Cal. App. 2d 543, 562-563, 567, 131 P.2d 565] . However, a lack of notice to and consent by a natural parent does not render the decree void for all purposes. Rather, the decree is voidable and only subject to attack by any person not served, actually or constructively, and by a minor adopted person [Walter v. August (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 395, 397-398, 8 Cal. Rptr. 778 ; Estate of Smith (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 456, 468, 195 P.2d 842] . Persons who participated in the proceeding, those claiming through them, or strangers to theproceeding may not attack an adoption decree on the basis of a lack of notice to someone else, if the court had subject matter jurisdiction [Estate of Smith (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 456, 468, 195 P.2d 842] .

Jurisdictional requirements in adoption matters are discussed further in Ch. 12B, Adoptions: Unmarried Minors.

[b] Fraud, Duress, or Mistake

The traditional rule is that a final judgment of a court having jurisdiction over persons and subject matter can be attacked in equity after the time for appeal or other direct attack has expired on the ground of fraud or mistake only if the alleged fraud or mistake is extrinsic rather than intrinsic. Fraud or mistake is extrinsic if it deprives one of an opportunity to present his or her case to the court [Westphal v. Westphal (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 393, 397, 126 P.2d 105 ; see generally Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders]. Thus, the setting aside of a decree of adoption would require a showing of lack of jurisdiction or extrinsic fraud or mistake if the traditional rule were to be applied [see, e.g., Wells v. Zenz (1927) 83 Cal. App. 137, 140-143, 256 P. 484 (lack of notice due to fraud involving omissions in declaration in support of service by publication)].

But because adoption involves the welfare of children, adherence to a distinction between extrinsic and intrinsic fraud in adoption cases has not been controlling. The usual equity requirement of extrinsic fraud does not apply to adoption proceedings, and an adoption decree may be set aside if consent is obtained through fraud, duress, or mistake, without further need to inquire into the character of the fraud [Arnold v. Howell (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 202, 206-208, 219 P.2d 854 ; see Walter v. August (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 395, 398, 8 Cal. Rptr. 778 (lack of natural parents' consent does not make decree void, but only subject to attack by parents or child); but see In re David H. (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 368, 381-383, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 313 (adhering to distinction between intrinsic and extrinsic fraud in motion to set aside termination of parental rights under juvenile court law)]. Further, an adopting parent of an adult adopted person may vacate a decree of adoption on the grounds of his or her own mental incompetence or the adopted person's duress or undue influence [Adoption of Sewall (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 208, 218-221, 51 Cal. Rptr. 367 (parent's heirs accede to his rights on his death)].

[c] Best Interests of Child

In one case, a decree of adoption was vacated solely because it was in the best interests of the child [see Adoption of Jason R. (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 11, 151 Cal. Rptr. 501] . The case involved a stepparent adoption and a subsequent annulment of the marriage between the stepparent and the custodial birth parent. The applicability of such a rule beyond these unusual facts is doubtful, given the policy in support of finality of judgments [see In re Issac J. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 525, 535 (only under most compelling circumstances should postjudgment events be considered)]. If nothing more than the best interests of the child is required to set aside an adoption, an adoption might be subject to attack at any time on the basis of changed circumstances [see Adoption of Bird (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 140, 6 Cal. Rptr. 675 (natural mother died between date on which court granted stepfather petition and date on which judgment was entered)]. Such a situation would blur the distinction between the legal establishment of the parent-child relationship involved in adoption and the related but separate question of the custody of the child.

[d] Breach of Postadoption Contact Agreement

In relative adoptions in which a postadoption contact agreement provides for continuing contact between the birth relatives and the adoptive parents and the child [see Fam. Code § 8616.5], a decree of adoption may not be set aside, nor a relinquishment rescinded, nor an order terminating parental rights or any other prior court order in the adoption modified, because of the failure of a party to comply with any or all of the original or modified terms of the agreement [Fam. Code § 8616.5(k)]. Warnings must be included in the postadoption contact agreement that (1) after the adoption has been granted, the adoption cannot be set aside due to a failure of a party to follow the terms of the agreement; and (2), a disagreement between the parties or litigation brought concerning the agreement shall not affect the adoption nor serve as a basis for orders affecting custody of the child [Fam. Code § 8616.5(e)].

It remains to be seen whether the inability to set aside an adoption for failure to perform under a postadoption contact agreement also insulates the adoption from an attack grounded in fraud on a theory that the placement was induced by the false promise of the agreement, which the adoptive parents never intended to perform.

[e] Effect of Lack of Postadoption Sibling Contact if Dependent Adopted

After an adoption of a dependent child of the juvenile court in which, with the consent of the adoptive parent or parents, the order of adoption includes provisions to facilitate postadoptive sibling contact [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 366.29], the continuing validity of the adoption is not contingent on the postadoptive contact [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 366.29(a)]. Thus, it appears that a failure to allow the contact provided for in the order would not be a ground on which to set aside the adoption.

[4] Limitation Period; Laches

Any action or proceeding of any kind to vacate, set aside, or otherwise nullify a decree of adoption on any ground except fraud must be commenced within one year after entry of the decree [Fam. Code § 9102(a)].If the alleged ground is fraud, the action or proceeding must be commenced within three years after entry of the decree [Fam. Code § 9102(b); see Walter v. August (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 395, 398-400, 8 Cal. Rptr. 778 (upholding constitutionality of former statute)].

Similar prior law (former Civ. Code § 227(d)) has been construed as applying only to adoptions of unmarried minors [Adoption of Sewall (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 208, 222-226, 51 Cal. Rptr. 367] . It applies only to actions or proceedings that directly attack the adoption decree. It does not apply to assertions of the invalidity of the decree in a collateral proceeding [Estate of O'Dea (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 759, 774-775, 105 Cal. Rptr. 756 (heirship proceeding); see discussion in § 12E.14].

Although the periods specified in the statute have been characterized as periods of limitation [see Estate of O'Dea (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 759, 774-775, 105 Cal. Rptr. 756] , it is not clear whether they are subject to suspension because of minority, insanity, or other reasons under Code Civ. Proc. § 350 et seq. [compare Adoption of Sewall (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 208, 222-226, 51 Cal. Rptr. 367 (implying no suspension possible) with Walter v. August (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 395, 400, 8 Cal. Rptr. 778 (surmising suspension might be possible in appropriate case)].

In cases in which the statute does not apply (for example, adult adoptions), the limitation period begins to run when the fraud that gives right to vacate the decree is or reasonably should be discovered [Adoption of Sewall (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 208, 226, 51 Cal. Rptr. 367] .

Because the proceeding is equitable, the plaintiff or moving party may be denied relief on the ground of laches. Laches consists of an unreasonable delay in commencing the action (even if the period of limitation has not expired), accompanied by the plaintiff's acquiescence in the acts complained of or prejudice to the defendant. Lapse of time is not as important as whether prejudice to the defendant has resulted. If the delay in commencing the action has caused no detriment to the defendant, his or her plea of laches will be disregarded [see generally Conti v. Board of Civil Service Commissioners (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 351, 359-360, 82 Cal. Rptr. 337, 461 P.2d 617 (defining laches and citing numerous cases); Brown v. State Personnel Board (1941) 43 Cal. App. 2d 70, 79, 110 P.2d 497] .

[5] Effect of Vacating Decree on Parental Rights of Birth Parents

In some adoptions, the parental rights of the birth parents are terminated in a separate proceeding before the decree of adoption is granted [see Fam. Code § 7800 et seq., discussed in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights ; Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 366.25, 366.26, discussed in Ch. 328, Juvenile Courts: Dependency Proceedings]. In an agency adoption, the filing of a properly executed relinquishment form with the Department of Social Services terminates the parental rights of the birth parents by operation of law [see Fam. Code § 8700(j)]. If the birth parents' parental rights were previously terminated in a separate proceeding by one of the above means, the vacation of the decree of adoption presumably would not automatically reinstate those rights [see In re Randi D. (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 624, 627-628, 257 Cal. Rptr. 421 (dismissal of petition for adoption does not require reversal of judgment terminating parental rights)]. However, there is some judicial authority for the proposition that termination of parental rights and adoption are interdependent acts, and that the abandonment of an adoption should reinstate parental rights, particularly if the result is that otherwise the child will be left with no parent or guardian and will become a ward of the court [see In re Elise K. (1982) 33 Cal. 3d 138, 145-151, 187 Cal. Rptr. 483, 654 P.2d 253 (dicta of Bird, C.J., concurring); In re Randi D. (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 624, 631-634, 257 Cal. Rptr. 421 (Wallin, J., dissenting); see also Welf. & Inst. Code § 366.26(c)(1) (requiring finding of adoptability for termination of parental rights with regard to dependent child of juvenile court; fact that child is not yet placed in preadoptive home or with relative or foster family prepared to adopt child is not basis for court to conclude that it is unlikely child will be adopted)]. For this reason, it is probably wise to join the natural parents, if possible, as defendants in any action to vacate a decree of adoption.

If the birth parents' rights were not previously terminated by one of the above means, they are terminated by the decree of adoption [see Fam. Code § 8617], through a finding that consent has either been validly given or is not required [see Fam. Code §§ 7664, 8604-8606, discussed in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights]. In such a case, the vacation of the decree of adoption should have the effect of reinstating those parental rights, along with the duties and obligations that go along with the rights [see Adoption of Jason R. (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 11, 17, 151 Cal. Rptr. 501 ; see also Fam. Code § 3900 (duty of parent to support child)]. If a birth parent is not the party seeking to vacate the decree, and he or she continues to desire to relinquish these rights and avoid these duties, his or her interests may be impeded or impaired if the decree is vacated in his or her absence. Therefore, the birth parents may be essential parties subject to compulsory joinder in an equitable action to vacate the decree [see generally Code Civ. Proc. § 389]. The same may be true of the birth parents of an adult child for whom a duty of support may exist [see Fam. Code §§ 3901, 3910 (circumstances under which parent may owe duty of support to adult child); see also Ch. 394, Parent and Child].

[6] Effect of Vacating Decree on Adoption Agency

In an agency adoption [see generally discussion in Ch. 12B, Adoptions: Unmarried Minors], the Department of Social Services or a licensed adoption agency to which a child has been freed for adoption, either by relinquishment or termination of parental rights, is responsible for the care of the child and is entitled to the exclusive custody and control of the childuntil a final decree of adoption is granted [Fam. Code § 8704(a)]. Thus, the vacation of a decree of adoption would restore the agency's rights and duties of custody and control, including its right to select the succeeding home placement of the child [Department of Social Services v. Superior Court (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 721, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 239] . For this reason, the placing agency should be joined as a defendant in an equitable action to set aside an agency adoption.

[7] Procedure

[a] Jurisdiction and Venue

Because subject matter jurisdiction over adoptions is in the superior court [see Fam. Code §§ 200, 8714(a), 8802(a), 8912(a), 9000(a), 9321(a)], an equitable action to set aside an adoption decree should be brought in the superior court as other than a limited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86]. A judgment rendered by the superior court in one county may be invalidated by that in another county [see Young v. The Young Holdings Corp., Ltd. (1938) 27 Cal. App. 2d 129, 146-147, 80 P.2d 723] . Therefore, the general venue rules of the Code of Civil Procedure may apply [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395]. However, adoption has been viewed as a quasi-in rem proceeding [see Walter v. August (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 395, 397-398, 8 Cal. Rptr. 778] . Therefore, the best practice is probably to bring the action in the superior court of the county where the child is domiciled.

At least prior to January 1, 2000, when the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act (UCCJEA-- Fam. Code § 3400 et seq.) became operative, if a child was not domiciled in California, the jurisdiction of California courts to vacate the decree could be controlled by the (now former) Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act [see former Fam. Code § 3400 et seq.], as well as by the federal Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act of 1980 [see 28 U.S.C. § 1738A].

This is because the vacation of a decree of adoption is arguably a "modification decree" within the meaning of those statutes [see 28 U.S.C. § 1738A(b)(5); former Fam. Code § 3402(g) (modification decree is a custody decree that modifies or replaces a prior decree, whether made by the court that rendered the prior decree or by another court)].

However, on and after January 1, 2000, the UCCJEA expressly excludes adoptions from its coverage [Fam. Code § 3403], and would appear, therefore, to no longer apply to collateral attack on an adoption decree. The extent to which the PKPA may continue to apply is presently unclear. For further discussion of these laws, see Ch. 394, Parent and Child .

[b] Relief

Because the action is equitable, the court may give any relief consistent with the case made out by the plaintiff or moving party. The plaintiff should plead whatever facts can be proved, in addition to the defect in the decree, to support complete relief. The jurisdiction of equity to afford appropriate relief from void or voidable judgments generally on a showing of proper circumstances is well settled [see Caldwell v. Taylor (1933) 218 Cal. 471, 475, 23 P.2d 758] .

If the child is an unmarried minor, the question of custody may arise. The vacation of a decree of adoption that restores the parental rights of the birth parents [see [5], above] does not require the court to return the child to a birth parent if it is in the child's best interests that the adopting family retain custody. However, before the court may give custody of an unmarried minor child to someone other than a parent without the parent's consent, the court must find that giving custody to the parent would be detrimental to the child and giving custody to a nonparent would be in the child's best interest [Fam. Code § 3041; see In re G. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 679, 695-696, 114 Cal. Rptr. 444, 523 P.2d 244 ; In re Reyna (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 288, 295-296, 126 Cal. Rptr. 138 (former Civil Code section superseded by *Fam. Code § 3041*applies in any proceeding, not just proceeding under earlier Family Law Act, in which custody of child is at issue)]. If, before the adoption proceeding, custody and control of the child's natural parents were validly terminated in a proceeding pursuant to Fam. Code § 7800 et seq. [see discussion in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights], the custody of the child should be returned to the court-appointed guardian [see Fam. Code § 7893(a)(1)].

Various postjudgment proceedings may also have occurred that should be reversed or nullified after the adoption decree is vacated. Primarily, if the child's birth certificate was amended [see discussion in Ch. 12D, Adoption: Amendment and Inspection of Records], it should be amended again to restore the original record. For a form for an order vacating a decree of adoption, see § 12E.42[2].

Chapter 12E ADOPTIONS: ATTACK ON DECREE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

2-12E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 12E.14

§ 12E.14 Collateral Attack

[1] Direct and Collateral Attack Distinguished

A direct attack is a proceeding instituted for the specific purpose of vacating, reversing, or otherwise attacking a judgment. Examples include a motion for new trial, a motion to vacate the judgment, an appeal, an independent action in equity to vacate the judgment, and proceedings for certiorari or other writs. By contrast, a collateral attack is made not in a proceeding brought for the specific purpose of attacking the judgment, but in some other proceeding having a different purpose. It is an attempt to avoid the effect of the judgment in some other context [Gonzales v. State of California (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 621, 632, 137 Cal. Rptr. 681] .

Adoption decrees are commonly attacked collaterally in a probate proceeding in which the invalidity of the parent-child relationship that wasestablished by the adoption is asserted [see, e.g., Estate of O'Dea (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 759, 761, 105 Cal. Rptr. 756 (petition to determine heirship filed by adopted person in estate of natural mother, alleging invalidity of adoption decree); Estate of Hampton (1942) 55 Cal. App. 2d 543, 547, 567-568, 131 P.2d 565] . Adherence to the distinction between direct and collateral attack has not been universally observed, and motions to vacate judgments have often been referred to as collateral attacks [see, e.g., Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 489, 492-493, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915 ; Adoption of Jason R. (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 11, 14, 151 Cal. Rptr. 501] .

[2] Grounds for Collateral Attack

Collateral attack is proper to contest a judgment void on its face for lack of personal or subject matter jurisdiction or for the granting of relief that the court has no power to grant [Armstrong v. Armstrong (1976) 15 Cal. 3d 942, 950, 126 Cal. Rptr. 805, 544 P.2d 941 ; see generally discussion in Ch. 12B, Adoptions: Unmarried Minors]. Whether other equitable grounds that would be sufficient to vacate the decree in an independent action or motion, such as fraud, could be asserted in a collateral attack appears not to have been addressed by any reported California appellate decision. It has been held that the ineffective assistance of counsel in failing to perfect an appeal is not a proper ground for collateral attack [In re Issac J. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 525, 531-532, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 65 (judgment freeing child from parental custody and control under former Civil Code section superseded by Fam. Code § 7800 et seq.)].

The invalidity of a former California judgment must appear on the face of the record, and if the invalidity or lack of jurisdiction does not so appear, it will be presumed in favor of the judgment [Gonzales v. State of California (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 621, 632, 137 Cal. Rptr. 681] . The record, or judgment roll, includes the pleadings, proofs of service, findings or verdict, and judgment [Swain v. Swain (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 1, 10, 58 Cal. Rptr. 83] . However, a foreign judgment may be collaterally attacked with extrinsic evidence [Estate of Smith (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 456, 467, 195 P.2d 842 ; see Estate of O'Dea (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 759, 765, 105 Cal. Rptr. 756 (Canadian divorce decree collaterally attacked by private legislative bill declaring adoption decree to have been entered without jurisdiction); see also [3], below].

[3] Decree of Other Jurisdiction

Under rules of conflict of laws and principles of comity, the status of adoption is determined by the laws of the jurisdiction where the adoption was effected [Estate of O'Dea (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 759, 774, 105 Cal. Rptr. 756] . The full faith and credit clause of the United States Constitution requires one state to recognize the validity of the judicial orders, decrees, and judgments of sister states [see U.S. Const., art. IV, § 1]. Comity extends the same recognition to other foreign jurisdictions [see Estate of O'Dea (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 759, 773-774, 105 Cal. Rptr. 756] . Thus, it has been stated that one state may not consider a collateral attack on a decree of adoption entered in another state on any ground, jurisdictional or otherwise [Hubbard v. Superior Court (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 741, 749-751, 11 Cal. Rptr. 700 (involving attempted collateral attack on California decree in New York)].

Nevertheless, California courts have permitted collateral attacks on the adoption decrees of other jurisdictions in several cases. It has been held that the jurisdiction of a sister state to enter a decree of adoption may be questioned collaterally in another state, notwithstanding the full faith and credit clause and notwithstanding the jurisdictional recitals in the judgment [Estate of Hampton (1942) 55 Cal. App. 2d 543, 552, 131 P.2d 565] . If it appears that no notice was given to a birth parent, the decree is void for lack of jurisdiction and as a violation of due process [Estate of Hampton (1942) 55 Cal. App. 2d 543, 552-563, 131 P.2d 565 (upholding collateral attack by adopted person); see also Estate of O'Dea (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 759, 773, 105 Cal. Rptr. 756 (same rule applies to adoption decrees of foreign countries)].

This rule applies whether or not notice is required by the jurisdiction in which the adoption was decreed because notice to a birth parent is indispensable under the due process clause [Estate of Martin (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 474, 477, 195 P.2d 839 ; see Armstrong v. Manzo (1965) 380 U.S. 545, 550, 85 S. Ct. 1187, 14 L. Ed. 2d 62 ; see generally discussion in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights]. However, a defect in personal jurisdiction may only be raised by the adopted person or by a person over whom the court was required to, but did not have, personal jurisdiction. Persons over whom the court had jurisdiction, persons claiming through them, or strangers to the proceeding may not collaterally attack the decree if the court had jurisdiction over the subject matter [Estate of Smith (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 456, 467-468, 195 P.2d 842] .

The Full Faith and Credit Clause establishes the prima facie validity of a sister-state adoption decree. The burden is on the person attacking the decree to establish its invalidity. If a jurisdictional defect does not affirmatively appear on the face of the record, extrinsic evidence must be presented [Estate of Smith (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 456, 467, 195 P.2d 842] .

[4] Habeas Corpus

An adoption may be attacked by a writ of habeas corpus brought by the person who is entitled to custody of the child if the decree of adoption is void [see, e.g., Ex parte Clark (1891) 87 Cal. 638, 640, 25 P. 967 (overruled on other grounds in Adoption of Barnett (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 370, 378, 6 Cal. Rptr. 562, 354 P.2d 18); but see Lycoming County Children's Services (1982) 458 U.S. 502, 513-514, 102 S. Ct. 3231, 73 L. Ed. 2d 928 (federalhabeas corpus is not available as a remedy in child custody matters)]. Habeas corpus is a form of collateral attack in that its purpose is to obtain custody of the child from another, but the granting of the writ requires that the court refuse to recognize the validity of a decree of adoption [see Adoption of Alexander S. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 857, 866-867, 245 Cal. Rptr. 1, 750

P.2d 778] .

Habeas corpus is not a substitute for appeal and is not generally available to attack an appealable order from which no appeal was taken. Habeas corpus may not be used to collaterally attack a final nonmodifiable judgment in an adoption-related action if the trial court had jurisdiction to render the final judgment [Adoption of Alexander S. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 857, 865, 866-868, 245 Cal. Rptr. 1, 750 P.2d 778 (parent seeking to withdraw consent may not seek habeas corpus after failing to pursue appeal after motion was denied); In re Issac J. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 525, 531-535, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 65] . Thus, the grounds for relief from an adoption decree through habeas corpus are the jurisdictional grounds generally required for collateral attack [see [2], above]. For discussion of the procedure for bringing a habeas corpus proceeding, see Ch. 292, Habeas Corpus .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

2-12E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 12E.15

§ 12E.15 Setting Aside Adoption for Child's Mental Illness or Developmental Disability

If any child adopted pursuant to California law shows evidence of a developmental disability or mental illness after the adoption decree is final, the adopting parents may petition the court that granted the adoption to have the adoption set aside. The disability or mental illness must have resulted from conditions that existed before the adoption, of which the adopting parents had no knowledge before the entry of the decree. The conditions must be of such extent that the child cannot be relinquished to an adoption agency on the grounds that the child is considered unadoptable [Fam. Code § 9100(a); see Adoption of Katherine A. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 200, 204, 185 Cal. Rptr. 101 (court must expressly find that child is not adoptable); see also Adoption of Kay C. (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 741, 747-757, 278 Cal. Rptr. 907 (upholding constitutionality of statute)].

The petition must be filed within five years after the entry of the decree of adoption [Fam. Code § 9100(b); see Adoption of Katherine A. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 200, 203, 185 Cal. Rptr. 101] . In the case of a joint adoption by husband and wife, one parent may petition to set aside the adoption with regard to him or her, leaving the parent-child relationship to continue with respect to the other parent. The other is, however, an indispensable party [Department of Social Welfare v. Superior Court (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 1, 4-6, 81 Cal. Rptr. 345, 459 P.2d 897 (adopting parents subsequently divorced)].

The clerk of court must immediately notify the Department of Social Services of the action. Within 60 days after notice, the department must file a full report with the court and must appear before the court for the purpose of representing the adopted child [Fam. Code § 9100(c)].

The granting of the petition is within the discretion of the court, even if all of the statutory requirements are present. Factors to be considered include the welfare of the child; the extent, nature, and duration and prognosis of the disability; the degree of dependency; the length of time of the adoption; and the bonds of affection or attachment. If only one adopting parent petitions, the court should also consider the effect of any divorce of the parents, the sources of support for the child that may be available to the nonpetitioning parent, and the ability of that parent to care for the needs of the child [Department of Social Welfare v. Superior Court (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 1, 6, 81 Cal. Rptr. 345, 459 P.2d 897] .

If the decree of adoption is set aside, the court must direct the district attorney, the county counsel, or the county department of social welfare to take appropriate proceedings under the Welfare and Institutions Code, presumably, to have the child declared a dependent of the court under Welf. & Inst. Code § 300 [see generally Ch. 328, Juvenile Courts: Dependency Proceedings]. The court may also make orders relative to the care, custody, or confinement of the child, pending the proceedings, as it sees fit [Fam. Code § 9101(a)]. The county in which the proceedings for adoption occurred is and remains liable for the support of the child until the child is able to support himself or herself [Fam. Code § 9101(b)]. Thus, it seems clear that the granting of a *Fam. Code § 9100*petition does not reestablish the parental rights of the natural parents.

For a form for a petition to set aside an adoption under Fam. Code § 9100, see § 12E.43[1]. For a form for the order setting aside the adoption under that statute, see § 12E.44[1].

This form is for use as a notice of motion for relief from judgment (decree of adoption) based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473(b), 1003, 1010]. Such a motion may be made in an adoption matter [see Adoption of Emery (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 428, 431-432, 12 Cal. Rptr. 685] . For further discussion, see § 12E.12.

A motion for relief from an adoption decree appears not to be a "law and motion" proceeding within the meaning of the California Rules of Court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103(a) (defining proceedings subject to rules)], and would therefore not be subject to the provisions of those rules governing the format of papers and requiring a memorandum of points and authorities to accompany notices of motion [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1110, 3.1113]. Nevertheless, it is strongly recommended that counsel serve and file a memorandum of points and authorities with the notice of motion, along with affidavits or declarations establishing the grounds for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b).

For further discussion of proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders . For motion practice, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[1] FORM Birth Parent's Complaint in Equity [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10] to Set Aside Decree of Adoption and for Injunctive Relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 526]--Fraudulently Induced Consent

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name(s)],	)	COMPLAINT TO SET ASIDE DECREE OF AD-Defendant[s].	)	OPTION

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Plaintiff _____[name] is the birth _____ [mother or father] of _____[name], a minor child, who was born on _____[date] at _____[place].

2. On _____[date], a decree of adoption was entered in _____ [this court or specify court in which adoption was granted] in proceeding No. _____, entitled _____[title of adoption proceeding], wherein defendant(s) _____[name(s)], as petitioner(s), adopted the above-named child of plaintiff. A true copy of that decree is attached as Exhibit A to this complaint and is incorporated herein by reference as if fully set forth at this point.

3. The above decree of adoption was entered pursuant to plaintiff's written consent, signed in the presence of _____[name], an employee of the _____[name of investigating agency], in conformity with the procedural requirements of Family Code Section _____ [8814 or 9003]. A true copy of this consent is attached as Exhibit B to this complaint and is incorporated herein by reference as if fully set forth at this point.

4. _____ [Set forth representations of defendants or others that induced plaintiff to consent to adoption, e.g., Before plaintiff agreed to the adoption of the child by defendants and gave written consent as alleged above, _____ (name), counsel who was representing both plaintiff and defendants at the time, represented to plaintiff that as an unwed teenage father, he would never be granted custody of his child, and unless he consented to the adoption, the child would be made a dependent child of the juvenile court and placed in an orphanage. _____ (Name) further represented to plaintiff that if he would consent to the adoption of the childby defendants, his parental rights and responsibilities would not actually be affected in any way regardless of the technical legal effect of the adoption, that plaintiff would be permitted to exercise visitation rights with the child, and that he would be permitted a parental role in the care and upbringing of the child].

5. _____[Name] made these representations to plaintiff, knowing them to be false, for the purpose of inducing plaintiff to consent to the adoption of the child by defendants. In truth, _____ [set forth actual facts, e.g., no grounds existed on which the child could have been made a dependent child of the court. Before the decree of adoption was entered, plaintiff was entitled to establish his paternity and seek custody of the child under the Uniform Parentage Act. Defendants had no intention of granting plaintiff parental rights, including visitation, with the child, and once the adoption was decreed, plaintiff had no further legal recourse to establish parental rights].

6. At the time these representations were made, and at the time when plaintiff executed his/her consent to the adoption, plaintiff was ignorant of the falsity of _____'s [name(s)] representations and believed them to be true. In reliance on the fraudulently made representations, plaintiff did agree to the adoption and sign the form of consent to adoption filed in the adoption matter. Had plaintiff known the true facts, he/she would not have consented to the adoption.

7. Plaintiff's reliance on _____[name of person making misrepresentations] was justified because _____ [specify, e.g., plaintiff is a minor who has not yet graduated from high school and has no knowledge of adoption or child welfare laws and procedures. _____ (Name), as an attorney at law representing plaintiff, had a confidential relationship with and fiduciary duties toward plaintiff, and should reasonably have been expected to provide complete and accurate information to clients with regard to adoption].

8. Unless defendant(s) _____ [is or are] immediately subject to mandatory injunctive relief requiring him/her/them to deliver the child to plaintiff, plaintiff will continue to suffer great and irreparable injury arising from the continued deprivation of his/her right to custody of the child and other parental rights. Further, the child will suffer great and irreparable injury from continuing to remain in a home where he/she will bond with defendant(s), even though he/she/they _____ [is or are] not entitled to the child's custody. Plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law for these injuries.

1. That the decree of adoption [and the order declaring the aforementioned minor free of the custody and control of plaintiff], and all proceedings appertaining thereto, be declared to be null and void and that the same be vacated and set aside;

2. For an order requiring the defendant(s) to show cause, if any he/she/they _____ [has or have], why he/she/they should not be enjoined as hereinafter set forth, during the pendency of this action;

3. For a temporary restraining order, a preliminary injunction, and a permanent injunction, all ordering defendant(s) to immediately return the child to the legal and physical custody of plaintiff, and enjoining defendant(s), and all persons acting under, in concert with, or for him/her/them, from enforcing any right to custody of the child that arises from the adoption referred to herein;

4. For costs of suit herein incurred;

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint in equity to set aside an adoption decree on the ground that the consent of the plaintiff birth parent was obtained by fraudulent misrepresentation. For further discussion of grounds for setting aside a decree of adoption, see § 12E.13[3]. For further discussion of the essential allegations of intentional or negligent misrepresentation, see Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit .

[3] Mandatory Injunction

This complaint seeks injunctive relief compelling the return of the child to the parent (Paragraph 8). As such, the prayed-for injunctive relief is mandatory (requiring defendants to do a particular act), rather than prohibitory (restraining them from doing an act) [see People v. Mobile Magic Sales, Inc. (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 1, 13, 157 Cal. Rptr. 749] . Preliminary mandatory injunctive relief is rarely granted; a very urgent case is required [Alvarez v. Eden Township Hospital Dist. (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 309, 312, 12 Cal. Rptr. 661] . Nevertheless, it should always be sought in an action to set aside an adoption. Because of parent-child bonding, the longer the child remains in the adoptive home, the less likely a court may be to eventually order the child removed from the home. For further discussion of the procedures for obtaining injunctive relief, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[4] Verification

A complaint seeking a temporary restraining order and showing therein, rather than in an affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]), that sufficient grounds exist is required to be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527].

[5] Certification Regarding Notice

Whenever a temporary restraining order is sought without formal notice, the applicant or the applicant's attorney is required to certify to the court under oath that (1) within a reasonable period before the application he or she informed the opposing party (or his or her attorney, if any) of the time and place where the application would be made; (2) he or she in good faith attempted to inform the opposing party (or attorney) but was unable to do so, specifying the efforts made to do so; or (3) for reasons specified he or she should not be required to inform the opposing party (or attorney) [Code Civ. Proc. § 527].

The complaint of _____[name of plaintiff] to set aside and vacate the decree of adoption entered in _____[name of court] proceeding No. _____, entitled _____[title of adoption proceeding] came on regularly to be heard on _____[date], in this court. Plaintiff appeared in person and by counsel _____[name]. _____[Specify other appearances]. The court having heard the evidence and the matter being duly submitted for decision, and good cause appearing therefor, the court finds and determines that the decree of adoption heretofore made on _____[date] was procured by fraud and misrepresentation practiced by _____ [identify person making representations, e.g., counsel for petitioners for adoption, defendants herein] on plaintiff, in that _____[state facts constituting fraud]. By reason of the foregoing;

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED:

1. The decree of adoption entered on _____[date] in _____[name of court] proceeding No. _____, entitled _____[title of adoption proceeding] is hereby vacated and set aside;

[2. The order terminating the parental rights of _____ (name of plaintiff) with regard to _____ (name of child) contained in the above decree is also vacated and set aside, and _____ (name of plaintiff) is and always has been the lawful _____ (father or mother) of _____ (name of child).]

3. Judge of the Superior Court

This form of judgment is for use in setting aside a decree of adoption rendered due to fraud or misrepresentation [see Arnold v. Howell (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 202, 206-208, 219 P.2d 854] . For a form for a complaint to set aside a decree of adoption, see § 12E.41[1]. For further discussion of the grounds for setting aside the decree, see § 12E.13[3]. For further consideration of judgments, see Ch. 318, Judgments .

[3] Restoration of Parental Rights

The judgment setting aside the adoption must also address the status of the parental rights of the birth parents, particularly if only one parent has attacked the decree. If parental rights were terminated expressly or by operation of law in the adoption decree [see Fam. Code § 8617], the judgment setting aside the decree should specify that parental rights are restored. If parental rights were previously terminated in another proceeding [see, e.g., Fam. Code § 7800 et seq.; Welf. & Inst. Code § 366.26], the final judgment of that proceeding must also be set aside before parental rights are restored [see In re Randi D. (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 624, 627-628, 257 Cal. Rptr. 421] . For further discussion, see § 12E.13[5].

[4] Custody of Child

A judgment that vacates a decree of adoption must address the custody of the child. While the court undoubtedly has the equitable authority to grant custody immediately to the plaintiff [see Caldwell v. Taylor (1933) 218 Cal. 471, 475, 23 P.2d 758] , further proceedings may be necessary to determine the proper custodial arrangement. Such a proceeding might be one for guardianship under Prob. Code § 1510, discussed in Ch. 280, Guardianship and Conservatorship: Appointment of Guardians, §§ 280.60 -280.70 dependency proceedings under Welf. & Inst. Code § 300, discussed in Ch. 328, Juvenile Courts: Dependency Proceedings , or proceedings under the Uniform Parentage Act to establish paternity and custody of the child [see Fam. Code §§ 7630, 7631, 7634; see also discussion in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights]. In an agency adoption, vacation of the decree would restore custody of the child to the agency that made the adoptive placement [see Fam. Code § 8704(a), discussed in the § 12E.13[6]].

This form of verified petition is for use in setting aside the adoption of a developmentally disabled or mentally ill child [see Fam. Code § 9100; see also Fam. Code 212(all petitions under Fam. Code must be verified)]. It alleges the adoption of the minor (Paragraphs 1, 2), that the minor has since shown signs of developmental disability or mental illness (Paragraph 3), that the disability or illness is the result of conditions that existed before the adoption (Paragraph 4), that the child cannot be relinquished to an adoption agency on the grounds that the minor is considered unadoptable (Paragraph 5), and that petitioners had no previous knowledge of the disability or illness (Paragraph 6).

The petition must be filed with the court that granted the petition for adoption [Fam. Code § 9100(a)]. The statute does not address whether the petition should be filed as a postjudgment paper in the adoption matter or as a separate action. Local rules should be consulted for any applicable procedures. All petitions filed under the Family Code must be verified [Fam. Code § 212; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

In the Matter of the Adoption Petition of _____ [name(s)], Adopting Parent[s].	))))))	NO. _____ ORDER VACATING DECREE OF ADOPTION (Developmental Disability or Mental Illness)

The petition of _____[name(s) of petitioner(s)] for an order setting aside the decree of adoption of _____[name of child], entered herein on _____[date], came on regularly for hearing by the court on this date. Petitioners appeared by counsel _____[name]. The State Department of Social Services appeared on behalf of the child, _____[name], through counsel _____[name], and filed a full report as required by law.

The court received testimony and documentary evidence. Having considered the evidence, including the report of the Department of Social Services, and the arguments of counsel, the court finds that the allegations of the petition are true and that good cause exists for relief under Family Code Section 9100.

IT IS ORDERED that:

1. The decree entered herein on _____[date] is vacated and set aside pursuant to Family Code Section

9100.

2. From and after the date of entry of this order, _____[name of child] shall not be, and is not, the child of _____[name(s) of petitioner(s)], and shall henceforth be known by his former name, _____[name].

3. Custody of _____[name of child] is hereby awarded to _____ [the State Department of Social Services or specify agency], pending further order of this court.

4. The _____ County counsel shall commence appropriate proceedings under the Welfare and Institutions Code respecting the care and custody of _____[name of child].

Judge of the Superior Court

This form is for use as an order vacating a decree of adoption on account of the child's preexisting developmental disability or mental illness [see Fam. Code § 9100]. If a decree of adoption is set aside under Fam. Code § 9101, the court must direct the appropriate county authority to initiate dependency proceedings under the Welfare and institutions Code. The court should also make appropriate custody orders. The county in which the adoption was decreed is responsible for the child until he or she becomes self-supporting [see Fam. Code § 9101]. For further discussion, see the §§ 12E.15, 12E.43[2].

§ 13.01 Scope

This chapter discusses adverse possession and prescriptive use of real property. The chapter contains the following forms:

- A complaint to quiet title based on adverse possession [§ 13.40].
- A demurrer, based on the statute of limitation, for use by an adverse possessor, against a complaint to quiet title by the holder of the legal title [§ 13.41].
- An affirmative defense to such a complaint, based on the statute of limitation [§ 13.42].
- A complaint to quiet title to a prescriptive easement appurtenant [§ 13.43].
- A judgment quieting title based on adverse possession or prescriptive use [§ 13.44].
- An allegation for use in a complaint in the nature of ejectment, that the defendant will acquire a prescriptive easement unless enjoined from trespassing on the plaintiff's land [§ 13.45].

§ 13.11 Definitions

Adverse possession is possession that is, as to the true owner, wrongful, without his or her authority, consent, or permission [Beckett v. Petaluma (1915) 171 Cal. 309, 316, 153 P. 20]. Possession is ordinarily synonymous with occupancy and is defined as "having and holding or retaining ... property in one's power or control" [Nathan v. Dierssen (1905) 146 Cal. 63, 66, 79 P. 739].

Prescription in its broadest sense means the effect of lapse of time in the creation or extinguishment of a property interest, whether corporeal or incorporeal [see Civ. Code §§ 1006-1008]. The word is usually applied to the creation of incorporeal interests, that is, easements [see Civ. Code §§ 813, 1008], servitudes, or the like, by use without permission over time, whereas adverse possession refers to the acquisition and extinguishment of corporeal interests [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 321-326]. The one deals with an adverse right of use, the other with title to the land acquired by adverse possession [Cleary v. Trimble (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 1, 6, 39 Cal. Rptr. 776].

Title may be defined generally as a person's legal or equitable ownership interest in property [see generally Estate of Baldwin (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 586, 591-592, 134 P.2d 259; Adams v. Hopkins (1904) 144 Cal. 19, 33, 77 P. 712; California v. Walker (1939) 33 Cal. App. 2d 18, 20, 90 P.2d 854; Smith v. Bank of America etc. Ass'n (1936) 14 Cal. App. 2d 78, 85-86, 57 P.2d 1363].

To establish title by adverse possession, the claimant must prove the following facts [see, e.g., Dimmick v. Dimmick (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 417, 421-422, 24 Cal. Rptr. 856, 374 P.2d 824]:

- The claimant occupied the land for a minimum period by actual occupancy in circumstances providing reasonable notice to the owner (in other words, open and notorious occupancy) [see § 13.14].

- The claimant's occupancy was continuous and uninterrupted for five years (prescriptive occupancy) [see § 13.15].

- The claimant's occupancy was under color of title or claim of right (proprietary occupancy) [see § 13.16].

- The claimant's occupancy was exclusive and hostile to the owner's title (hostile occupancy) [see § 13.17].

- The claimant together with predecessors and grantors paid all taxes levied and assessed on the property during the prescriptive period [see § 13.18].

[2] Action to Quiet Title

[a] Claimant's Right of Action

The Code of Civil Procedure authorizes an action to establish a claimant's title against adverse claims to real property

[Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020(a)], known as a quiet title action. For a form of complaint, see § 13.40. For general discussion and additional forms, see Ch. 482, Quieting Title .

Unless the claimant proves each of the elements [see [1], above] by the evidence in the quiet title action, the claimant has not proved a title by adverse possession [Dimmick v. Dimmick (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 417, 421-422, 24 Cal. Rptr. 856, 374 P.2d 824; see Laubisch v. Roberdo (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 702, 706, 277 P.2d 9; West v. Evans (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 414, 417, 175 P.2d 219; Kunza v. Gaskell (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 201, 210, 154 Cal. Rptr. 101; Harvey v. Nurick (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 213, 214-215, 74 Cal. Rptr. 94].

[b] Failure or Omission to Sue

California law does not require a claimant to bring any kind of action to perfect the title acquired by adverse possession [see Comstock v. Finn (1936) 13 Cal. App. 2d 151, 155, 56 P.2d 957]. Therefore, a quiet title action based on adverse possession cannot be barred by the doctrine laches [see Marriage v. Keener (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 186, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 511]. Moreover, the claimant could await an ejectment action by the holder of the legal title [see Ch. 241, Ejectment] and then defend with a counterclaim to quiet title based on the adverse possession [see Code Civ. Proc. § 321; see, e.g., Grimm v. Curley (1872) 43 Cal. 250, 252-253].

[c] Jury Trial

Whether the claimant's occupancy amounted to adverse possession is a question of fact [Kendrick v. Klein (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 491, 496, 150P.2d 955] on which the claimant is entitled to a jury trial [Arciero Ranches v. Meza (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 114, 124-126, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 127 (prescriptive easement)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Summary Judgment Still Available. Notwithstanding that occupancy is a factual question, summary judgment/adjudication is still available in the right circumstances. Under amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 437c, as amplified by case law, a plaintiff may still obtain judgment if his or her case for occupancy is proven by competent evidence on all elements of the adverse possession claim. Once this has been done, the burden shifts to the defendant/record owner to rebut the adverse possession claimant's title claim through evidence establishing there is a triable issue of fact. Unless the defendant comes forward with such a rebuttal showing, a plaintiff would be entitled to summary judgment or summary adjudication. Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(p)(1), (2). By William M. Hensley

For forms of jury instructions for use in an action to quiet title based on adverse possession, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 63, Acquiring Title to Real Property, pt. C (Matthew Bender).

[3] Property Exempt From Adverse Possession

No possession by any person, firm, or corporation, no matter how long continued, of any land, water, water right, easement, or other property whatsoever, ever ripens into any title, interest, or right against the owner, in the following cases [Civ. Code § 1007]:

- The property is dedicated to a public use by a public utility [see, e.g., Southern Pac. Co. v. Hyatt (1901) 132 Cal. 240, 241-244, 64 P. 272 (railroad right-of-way); Breidert v. Southern Pac. Co. (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 398, 407, 77 Cal. Rptr. 262].

- The property is dedicated to or owned by the state or any public entity [see, e.g., City of Berkeley v. Gordon (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 461, 464-465, 70 Cal. Rptr. 716 (private owner who extended his basement under city street could not acquire prescriptive title to extended area); cf. City of Los Angeles v. Coffey (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 121, 125, 52 Cal. Rptr. 218 (prescriptive ownership rights as to specific parcel cease to exist on acquisition of parcel by public entity)].

§ 13.13 Prescriptive Easements

[1] Proof of Prescriptive Easement

[a] Elements

The elements that must be proved to establish a prescriptive easement are basically the same as to establish title by adverse possession [Taormino v. Denny (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 679, 686, 83 Cal. Rptr. 359, 463 P.2d 711; Mesnick v. Caton (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1248, 1260-1261, 228 Cal. Rptr. 779; see § 13.12[1]], but there are some slight modifications arising from the essential difference between an easement (which confers a right of use) and a title (which confers the right of possession) [see [b]-[d], below].

[b] Proprietary Use

To establish a prescriptive easement the claimant's use must be proprietary but need not be exclusive [see, e.g., Applegate v. Ota (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 702, 709-710, 194 Cal. Rptr. 331 (exclusive use is not required as long as use is under claim of right; use by family, friends, and business invitees is evidence that use is adverse)]. A prescriptive easement may exist even though the easement is also used by the landowner [Marangi v. Domenici (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 552, 557, 326 P.2d 527] or by others [Sufficool v. Duncan (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 544, 549, 9 Cal. Rptr. 763], including the public [O'Banion v. Borba (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 145, 151, 195 P.2d 10].

The phrase "claim of right" does not require a belief or claim that the use is legally justified--it simply means that the property was used without permission of the land's owner. Thus, landowners and their tenants who used a bank parking lot to receive deliveries to a restaurant established a prescriptive easement for deliveries over the lot, even though one tenant testified that he did not believe he had the right to use the bank's property and never claimed the right [Felgenhauer v. Soni (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 445, 450, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 135].

PRACTICE TIP:

Claimant Must Distinguish Himself or Herself From Public. Although a prescriptive easement can be created in favor of a claimant where the land is used by the public, the claimant must establish his or her right to use the easement from his or her own proprietary use as distinguished from use as a general member of the public. By William M. Hensley

[c] Continuous Use

Continuous use of an easement over a long period of time without the landowner's interference is presumptive evidence of the existence of a prescriptive easement. The burden then shifts to the landowner to establish that the use was permissive [Applegate v. Ota (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 702, 708-709, 194 Cal. Rptr. 331; MacDonald Properties, Inc. v. Bel-Air Country Club (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 693, 702-703, 140 Cal. Rptr. 367].

Adverse use may be deemed to be continuous if the claimant has used the easement only when he or she needed it, but not otherwise [Hesperia Land etc. Co. v. Rogers (1890) 83 Cal. 10, 11, 23 P. 196 (irrigation ditch); Twin Peaks Land Co. v. Briggs (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 587, 593-594, 181 Cal. Rptr. 25 (use of road for access from time to time when needed for prescriptive period); Reinsch v. City of Los Angeles (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 737, 747, 52 Cal. Rptr. 613].

When a divorced husband and wife owned adjacent parcels of property and their sons lived on the mothers' parcel, the sons' use of a road over the father's parcel did not establish an easement by prescription that could be enforced by a subsequent owner of the property. The sons' use was an accommodation to the family, and therefore a presumption of adverseness did not arise from the son's open, notorious, and continuous use of the road [Grant v. Ratliff (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 1304, 1310, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 902]. In Grant, the court noted that there appears to be a split of authority as to whether there is a presumption that open, notorious, and continuous use of another's land is adverse to the owner [Grant v. Ratliff (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 1304, 1308, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 902 ; compare O'Banion v. Borba (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 145, 149, 195 P.2d 10 ("There seems to be no apparent reason for discussing the matter from the standpoint of presumptions. For the trial court the question is whether the circumstances proven do or do not justify an inference showing the required elements.") and Warsaw v. Chicago Metallic Ceilings, Inc. (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 564, 570, 199 Cal. Rptr. 773, 676 P.2d 584 ("continuous use of an easement over a long period of time without the landowner's interference is presumptive evidence of its existence and in the absence of evidence of mere permissive use it will be sufficient to sustain a judgment")]. Grant concluded that Warsaw did not override O'Banion, but that in any event, the evidence that the alleged adverse users were the landowner's sons traveling to and from their former family home was more than sufficient to rebut a presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence, and even sufficient to rebut a presumption affecting the burden of proof [Grant v. Ratliff (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 1304, 1309-1310, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 902].

[d] Payment of Taxes

The payment of property taxes [see § 13.18] is not required to establish a prescriptive easement [see, e.g., Holmes v. Harlan (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 209, 213-215, 187 Cal. Rptr. 708 (prescriptive easement established when disputed strip was occupied, cultivated, and improved even though adverse possession was not established because taxes were not paid)], unless the easement itself is separately assessed [Gilardi v. Hallam (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 317, 322, 178 Cal. Rptr. 624, 636 P.2d 588; Taormino v. Denny (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 679, 686 n.3, 83 Cal. Rptr. 359, 463 P.2d 711; Glatts v. Henson (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 368, 372, 188 P.2d 745].

PRACTICE TIP:

Payment of Taxes Required for "Exclusive" Prescriptive Easement. Four decisions in the prescriptive easement area, Mehdizadeh v. Mincer (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1296, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 284, Silacci v. Abramson (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 558, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 37, Kapner v. Meadowlark Ranch Assn. (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1182, 1187, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 138, and Harrison v. Welch (2004) 116 Cal.

App. 4th 1084, 1094, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 92, have rejected the notion that there can be an "exclusive" prescriptive easement granting the equivalence of title ownership. Those courts have concluded that payment of taxes is required and that the claimant should pursue an adverse possession claim if the equivalence of ownership (or exclusive occupancy) is sought. By William M. Hensley

[e] Prescription Against Public Body

If a public body holds an easement, a private person may not acquire that easement by prescription [see Civ. Code § 1007]; however, prescription is not barred when the public body holds only a license [Guerra v. Packard (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 272, 284, 46 Cal. Rptr. 25]. Regarding the difference between an easement and a license, see Ch. 240, Easements .

Because the purpose of the doctrine prohibiting adverse possession of public property is to protect a public entity from loss of publicly owned rights through suffering an encroachment, it has no application to the loss of rights of an underlying private owner. Thus, Civ. Code § 1007 did not bar the implied dedication of a public easement for a right-of-way and recreation along an irrigation district canal and a road used by the district to access the canal and adjacent facilities. Prescription against the landowner was not barred even though the irrigation district maintained and operated the canal pursuant to a written easement of record [Friends of the Trails v. Blasius (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 810, 827, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 193].

[f] Terminating Easement by Nonuse

A prescriptive easement may be extinguished or terminated by nonuse of the easement by the owner for the five-year period prescribed for acquiring the right of use [Civ. Code §§ 811, 1007; Code Civ. Proc. § 321; Zimmer v. Dykstra (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 422, 434, 114 Cal. Rptr. 380].

[2] Financial Aspects of Use

[a] Effect of User's Attempt to Pay

Use during the prescriptive period without interference by the owner is sufficient even though the user made attempts during the period to purchase a granted easement [Warsaw v. Chicago Metallic Ceilings, Inc. (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 564, 571-572, 199 Cal. Rptr. 733, 676 P.2d 584].

[b] Compensation for Taking Not Required

When the plaintiff has acquired a prescriptive easement, the court cannot require the plaintiff to pay anything for the easement to the defendant. The title acquired is complete and sufficient and compensation to the defendant is not necessary [Warsaw v. Chicago Metallic Ceilings, Inc. (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 564, 571-572, 199 Cal. Rptr. 733, 676 P.2d 581].

PRACTICE TIP:

Settlement of Prescriptive Easement Disputes Through Payment for Ceded Land. Even though a prescriptive easement claimant who prevails through a judgment owes no compensation for the taken land, this practitioner has found that many easement disputes can be settled when the prescriptive easement claimant pays the fair market value of the land at issue (or less) to the other party. Such a payment frequently avoids expensive litigation for both sides. By William M. Hensley

[c] Duty to Maintain Easement

The easement's owner ordinarily has the duty to keep the easement in repair [Reinsch v. City of Los Angeles (1966) 243

Cal. App. 2d 737, 747, 52 Cal. Rptr. 613 (prescriptive easement)].

[3] Scope of Prescriptive Easement

[a] Limited to Original Use

The scope of a prescriptive easement is limited to the uses made during the prescriptive period [O'Banion v. Borba (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 145, 155, 195P.2d 10; Hannah v. Pogue (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 849, 854-855, 147 P.2d 572 (no right to change easement's location even if beneficial to landowner)]. However, the easement may be changed or enlarged by different or additional use for another prescriptive period [Hill v. Allan (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 470, 485, 66 Cal. Rptr. 676; see [c], below].

[b] Secondary Easements

Every easement includes "secondary easements" consisting of the right to do those things that are necessary to the full enjoyment of the easement. This right is limited and must be exercised in a reasonable manner so as not to place an undue burden on, go beyond the boundaries of, or make any changes, in the servient tenement [Costa v. Fawcett (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 695, 702, 21 Cal. Rptr. 143 (prescriptive easement)].

[c] Expansion by Additional Use

In determining whether a particular use is within the scope of a prescriptive easement, a comparison is made between that use and the use by which the easement was created, considering the physical character of the land, the purpose of the easement, and the relative burden on the servient tenement [Pipkin v. Der Torosian (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 722, 727, 111 Cal. Rptr. 46]. The needs that result from a normal evolution in the use of the dominant tenement and the extent to which the satisfaction of those needs may increase the burden on the servient tenement also are considered. The new use resulting from normal development, however, must be consistent with the pattern formed by the adverse use by which the easement was created [Hill v. Allan (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 470, 484, 66 Cal. Rptr. 676].

If a change in use is merely one of degree, imposing no greater burden on the servient tenement, the right to use the easement is not affected. A substantial change in the nature of the use--one that increases the burden on the servient tenement--is not allowed, however. For example, a driveway easement acquired by prescription and used for residential and farming purposes cannot subsequently be used in connection with the operation of a trailer park, since the change in use would involve a change in the physical objects passing over the road and consequently would constitute a substantial change increasing the burden on the servient tenement [Gaither v. Gaither (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 782, 785, 786, 332 P.2d 436; see Pipkin v. Der Torosian (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 722, 728, 111 Cal. Rptr. 46; see also Cushman v. Davis (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 731, 735-737, 145 Cal. Rptr. 791].

[d] Exclusive Prescriptive Easement

Although one court has held that a prescriptive easement can be exclusive [see Otay Water Dist. v. Beckwith (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 1041, 1047, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 223], it is doubtful that an exclusive prescriptive easement can exist [see Pasadena v. California-Michigan etc. Co. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 576, 578-579, 110 P.2d 983]. Adverse use can lead to either a prescriptive easement, which confers no exclusive right of use, or, with the payment of taxes [see § 13.18], a title by adverse possession, which does confer an exclusive right of use. However, a court's recognizing a so-called exclusive prescriptive easement would be equivalent to determining a title by adverse possession even though one of the requirements--to pay taxes--was not met [see Raab v. Casper (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 866, 876, 877, 124 Cal. Rptr. 590 (unlimited use or enjoyment is in effect ownership of fee, not easement); see also Mehdizadeh v. Mincer (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1296, 1308, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 284; Silacci v. Abramson (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 558, 564, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 37; Kapner v. Meadowlark Ranch Assn. (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1182, 1187, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 138; Harrison v. Welch (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1084, 1094, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 92]. The concept of an exclusive prescriptive easement appears to be simply a misbegotten attempt to apply one of the rules governing relations between a landowner and the owner of an easement [see, e.g., Otay Water Dist. v. Beckwith (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 1041, 1047, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 223], that the landowner may not unreasonably interfere with the established use to which the easement is dedicated [see, e.g., Scruby v. Vintage Grapevine, Inc. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 697, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810; City of McCann v. Los Angeles (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 112, 116, 144 Cal. Rptr. 696; cf. Civ. Code § 809 (owner of dominant tenement may maintain action to enforce easement appurtenant); see generally Ch. 240, Easements].

PRACTICE TIP:

No "Fencing Easements" Allowed. Mehdizadeh v. Mincer (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1296, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 284 and Silacci v. Abramson (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 558, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 37 are two of the most important prescriptive easement decisions of import in the last few years. This practitioner used Silacci to defeat a "fencing easement" claim when the claimant had not paid taxes and wanted to obtain adverse possession under the prescriptive easement rubric. Since Mehdizadeh and Silacci, two more decisions have rejected prescriptive easement claims [see Kapner v. Meadowlark Ranch Assn. (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1182, 1187, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 138; Harrison v. Welch (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1084, 1094, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 92]. These decisions are powerful tools for preventing prescriptive easement claimants from obtaining ownership rights without paying taxes on the parcels at issue. By William M. Hensley

[4] Prescription by Owner of Granted Easement

The grant of an easement does not preclude the grantee's acquisition of greater rights of use by prescription [Kerr Land & Timber Co. v. Emmerson (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 200, 228, 43 Cal. Rptr. 333]. Acts of dominion inconsistent with permissive use may show a hostile claim [see Gaut v. Farmer (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 278, 284, 30 Cal. Rptr. 94 (repair); LeDeit v. Ehlert (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 154, 163, 22 Cal. Rptr. 747]. However, use of an easement within the scope of the landowner's expressed or implied permission cannot be adverse [see Carroll v. Agliano (1947) 80 Cal. App. 2d 46, 47, 180 P.2d 747 (signs as evidence of permission to use roadway)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Express Easement Usually Precludes Prescriptive Easement Claim. Although an express easement is not mutually exclusive of a prescriptive easement, it is this practitioner's experience that courts are loathe to find a prescriptive easement when there is an express one. Rather, courts tend to find that a "prescriptive" use is within the purview of the express easement. By William M. Hensley

[5] Landowner's Prevention of Easements

[a] Posting Notice

No use by any person or persons, no matter how long continued, of any land, ever ripens into an easement by prescription, if the landowner posts at each entrance to the property, or at intervals of not more than 200 feet along the boundary, a sign reading substantially as follows [Civ. Code § 1008; see Civ. Code § 1009 (protection for landowners making land available for public use)]:

"Right to pass by permission, and subject to control, of owner: Section 1008, Civil Code"

To be legally operative, the "permission to pass" sign must be posted by the landowner or by the landowner's authorized agent [Aaron v. Dunham (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 1244, 1252, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 32 (posting by tenant of "permission to pass" sign on private road did not prevent acquisition of prescriptive easement because sign was not posted by property owner or owner's authorized agent)].

For a form of notice, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 28A, Easements and Licenses, § 28A.236 (Matthew Bender).

[b] Recording Notice

The holder of record title to land may record in the office of the recorder of any county in which any part of the land is situated and may serve by registered mail on the user a description of the land and a statutory notice to the effect that any use of the land is by permission and subject to the owner's control. Thereafter, in any judicial proceeding involving the issue of whether or not any user has a prescriptive right, the recorded and served notice is conclusive evidence that subsequent use of the land during the time the notice is in effect by any user for any purpose, other than a use expressly allowed by a written or recorded map, agreement, deed, or dedication, is permissive [Civ. Code § 813; see Civ. Code § 1009 (protection for landowners making land available for public use)]. For a form of notice, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 28A, Easements and Licenses, § 28A.234 (Matthew Bender).

[c] Enjoining Adverse Use

Even though the immediate damage is not appreciable, an injunction may be issued to prohibit the continuance of a wrongful act or trespass that, if continued, would ripen into a prescriptive easement [Fairrington v. Dyke Water Co. (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 198, 201, 323 P.2d 1001; Lindsay-Strathmore I. Dist. v. Superior Ct. (1920) 182 Cal. 315, 327, 187 P. 1056] or would expand an existing easement [Bartholemew v. Stuheli (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 844, 856, 195 P.2d 824 (injunction to prevent overburdening of existing easement and to prevent use from ripening into larger prescriptive easement)]. For allegations that a landowner may use in such a case, see § 13.45.

§ 13.14 Open and Notorious Occupancy

[1] Notice to True Owner

[a] Requirement to Give Notice

The would-be adverse possessor is required to show his or her occupancy in such a way that the holder of the legal title (the true owner) has reasonable notice of the occupant's claiming the property as his or her own [Dimmick v. Dimmick (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 417, 421, 24 Cal. Rptr. 856, 374 P.2d 824; West v. Evans (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 414, 417, 175 P.2d 219; Ikola v. Goff (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 872, 877, 107 Cal. Rptr. 663].

[b] Occupancy Sufficient to Give Notice

In determining the sufficiency of acts to constitute open and notorious occupancy of the land in question, courts may consider the land's character, the locality, and the community's customs. It is generally sufficient to occupy and use the land in the manner that owners of land of like character in the vicinity normally occupy and use their property [Landini v. Day (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 278, 282-283, 70 Cal. Rptr. 260].

Further, to satisfy the notice requirement for adverse possession, the occupancy must be sufficiently open and notorious to notify an ordinarily prudent owner of its existence, unless the owner is otherwise actually notified of the facts [Saecker v. Cohn (1919) 180 Cal. 151, 156, 179 P. 890; Sevenman v. Long Bell Lumber Co. (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 528, 533-534, 277 P.2d 510]. Clandestine occupancy is not sufficient [Unger v. Mooney (1883) 63 Cal. 586, 595; Meier v. Meier (1945) 71 Cal. App. 2d 502, 505, 162 P.2d 950].

[c] Knowledge of Adverse Claim Not Necessary

Actual knowledge by the owner of the adverse claim is not required; occupancy that is so open, visible, and notorious as to raise a presumption of an adverse claim is the equivalent of actual knowledge [Chapman v. Sky L'Onda etc. Water Co. (1945) 69 Cal. App. 2d 667, 678-679, 159 P.2d 988; Wood v. Davidson (1944) 62 Cal. App. 2d 885, 889-890, 145 P.2d 659]. Thus, in one case, claimants who fenced in the subject property, irrigated it, maintained structures on it, and paid property taxes satisfied the "open and notorious" requirement for adverse possession so that the owner, who was in Ireland, was presumed to have had notice of the adverse claim [Nielsen v. Gibson (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 318, 327, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 335].

The fact that the true owner is unaware of his or her ownership is irrelevant [Sorensen v. Costa (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 453, 461, 196 P.2d 900].

[2] Occupancy by Tenant as Inuring to Claimant

The adverse claimant need not directly occupy the property. Occupancy by a tenant holding under the claimant is deemed to be occupancy by the claimant [Code Civ. Proc. § 326; Palin v. Sweitzer (1937) 8 Cal. 2d 329, 331, 65 P.2d 351; Weyse v. Biedebach (1927) 86 Cal. App. 712, 721-722, 261 P. 1086].

[3] Permitted Occupant Must Become Usurper

An occupant with the true owner's permission, such as the holder of a granted easement [see generally Ch. 240, Easements], can become an adverse possessor only on giving the true owner clear and actual notice of claiming the title [Johnson v. Ocean Shore Railroad Co. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 429, 436, 94 Cal. Rptr. 68] or on beginning to use the property in a way so inconsistent with the scope of the permitted use, and consistent with a claim of title, that the true owner has constructive notice of the adverse claim [Southern Pac. Co. v. City & County of San Francisco (1964) 62 Cal. 2d 50, 54-55, 41 Cal. Rptr. 79, 396 P.2d 383; People v. Ocean Shore R.R. Co. (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 406, 415-416, 196 P.2d 570].

An isolated or insignificant act may not be sufficient to give the true owner constructive notice of an adverse claim [see, e.g., Southern Pac. Co. v. City & County of San Francisco (1964) 62 Cal. 2d 50, 56, 41 Cal. Rptr. 79, 396 P.2d 383 (appearance on assessment rolls as assessee did not give constructive notice of claim of ownership)].

§ 13.15 Prescriptive Occupancy

[1] Requirement and Effect

Occupancy of real property for five years--which is the period prescribed by law as sufficient to bar an action for recovery of the property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 318]--confers a title to the property, denominated a title by prescription, that is sufficient against all [Civ. Code § 1007], provided the property is not exempt from prescription [see § 13.12[3]]. However, in any action for the recovery of real property:

- The person establishing a legal title to the property is presumed to have been in possession for the five-year period preceding commencement of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 321]. In other words, the holder of the legal title is presumptively the holder of the most recent title-by-prescription, which is sufficient against all [but see Gwin v. Calegaris (1903) 139 Cal. 384, 387-388, 73 P. 851 (purchaser whose offer required perfect or record title was not required to accept title depending on adverse possession)].

- Occupancy of the property during that period by any other person is deemed to have been under and in subordination to the legal title, unless it appears that the property has been held and possessed adversely to the legal title for five years before the action's commencement [Code Civ. Proc. § 321]. In other words, the presumption that the legal title holder has the superior title-by-prescription is conclusively rebutted, and a prior title-by-prescription held by the adverse claimant is established--sufficient against all, including the legal title holder--by proof of adverse possession for five years [see, e.g., Langford v. Poppe (1880) 56 Cal. 73, 75, appeal dismissed, 104 U.S. 770, 26 L. Ed. 922 (1882)].

The prescriptive-occupancy period need not be the five-year period immediately preceding the commencement of the action; any five-year period of adverse possession suffices [see Civ. Code § 1007; Southern Pac. R.R. Co. v. Whitaker (1895) 109 Cal. 268, 273, 41 P. 1083; Webber v. Clarke (1887) 74 Cal. 11, 19, 15 P. 431]. Also, occupancy for that period must have been continuously adverse but need not have been solely by the claimant (and tenants under the claimant); occupancy by the claimant together with predecessors and grantors (and their tenants) suffices [see [3], below (tacking periods of occupancy)].

Whether the property was adversely possessed for the five-year period asserted by the claimant depends on the nature of the occupancy. That is, whether the occupancy was open and notorious [see § 13.14], proprietary [see § 13.16], and hostile to the legal title [see § 13.17].

[2] Occupancy for Less Than Prescriptive Period

Occupancy for any period less than the five-year prescriptive period confers a title sufficient against all except the state and those having title by prescription, accession, transfer, will, or succession. However, a title by occupancy, which has not ripened into a title by prescription, is not a sufficient interest in the property to enable the occupant or his or her privies to commence or maintain an action to quiet title [Civ. Code § 1006].

[3] Tacking Periods of Occupancy

[a] Adverse Possession Cases

The claimant's period of occupancy, if less than five years, may be "tacked" to the period of the claimant's grantor or immediate predecessor, and that period may be tacked to the next preceding period in the claimant's line of succession, and so on, as necessary to make an aggregate occupancy period of five years or longer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 318; Meier v. Meier (1945) 71 Cal. App. 2d 502, 506, 162 P.2d 950; see, e.g., Von Neindorff v. Schallock (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 44, 48, 68 P.2d 278 (claimant had deed describing property and identifying previous owner, whose occupancy period was added to claimant's)].

[b] Privity as Essential

To tack one person's period of occupancy to that of another, some form of privity must exist between the successive occupants. This requirement is based on the theory that the several occupancies must be so connected that each occupant can go back to the original entry or holding as a source of title. The successive occupants must claim through and under their predecessors, not independently, so as to make a continuous holding period. Without privity there may be an immediate succession of occupancies but not a continuity of possession [San Francisco v. Fulde (1869) 37 Cal. 349, 353-354].

The privity necessary to support the tacking of successive occupancies may arise from any connecting relationships that will prevent a break in the adverse possession. A deed to the claimant, describing the property claimed [see Von Neindorff v. Schallock (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 44, 48, 68 P.2d 278 (deed cannot create privity if claimed property is not within bounds of legal description in deed)], establishes sufficient privity to permit tacking the grantor's period of occupancy to the claimant's period [Meier v. Meier (1945) 71 Cal. App. 2d 502, 506, 162 P.2d 950; Saner v. Knight (1927) 86 Cal. App. 347, 351-352, 260 P. 942]. However, no written transfer or agreement is necessary. In a case when possession of the land in question was actually transferred to each successive occupant during the five-year period, even though by deeds mistakenly describing land adjacent to the land claimed, the requirement for five-year continuous occupancy was met [Sorensen v. Costa (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 453, 461, 463-464, 196 P.2d 900].

In addition to privity based on conveyances and transfers, privity has been held to exist between ancestor and heir [Meier v. Meier (1945) 71 Cal. App. 2d 502, 506, 162 P. 950] and between family members [Park v. Powers (1935) 2 Cal. 2d 590, 594-595, 42 P.2d 75] (sometimes called privity of blood).

PRACTICE TIP:

Privity Arising From Nonhostile Relationships. It would be logical and reasonable to contend (although there are no California cases so holding) that the necessary privity must exist between others, such as spouses or a life tenant and the remainderman [see Restatement of Property § 464; Powell on Real Property, § 413 (Matthew Bender)], whose relationships are held normally to preclude the possibility of hostile occupancy as between themselves [see § 13.17[3]]. By Publisher's Editorial Staff

[c] Prescriptive Easement Cases

Tacking periods of use so as to establish a prescriptive easement [see generally § 13.13] can be compared to tacking periods of occupancy so as to establish title by adverse possession [see, e.g., McMorris v. Pagano (1944) 63 Cal. App. 2d 446, 450, 146 P.2d 944 (plaintiff and predecessors in interest used passageway for access to garage for more than 20 years)]. Successive periods of use may be tacked only if they are continuous and adverse. Tacking may not include any period during which the use was permissive [Guerra v. Packard (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 272, 287, 46 Cal. Rptr. 25].

[4] Tolling Statute of Limitation

[a] Filing of Action

Ordinarily, the filing of an action, either by the person asserting a prescriptive right or by the person against whom the five-year period is running, will interrupt the running of the prescriptive period, and the statute will be tolled while the action is pending. An action that has been dismissed or abandoned does not continue to interrupt the running of the prescriptive period [Yorba v. Anaheim Union Water Co. (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 265, 270, 259 P.2d 2; see Knoke v. Swan (1935) 2 Cal. 2d 630, 632, 42 P.2d 1019; Dong Chun Len v. Luke Kow Lee (1935) 7 Cal. App. 2d 194, 196, 45 P.2d 827 (unsuccessful action leading to no change of possession did not toll running of statute of limitation)].

[b] Minority or Insanity

If a person entitled to commence an action for recovering real property, or for recovering the possession of real property, is, at the time title first descends or accrues, either a minor or insane, the time, not exceeding 20 years, during which the disability continues is not deemed any portion of the five-year period limited for the action's commencement. However, the action may be commenced within five years after the disability ceases, or after the death of the person entitled, who dies under the disability. The action may not be commenced after that period [Code Civ. Proc. § 328].

When adverse possession commences against a minor owner of property, the owner has until five years after he or she attains majority to recover the property [Akley v. Bassett (1922) 189 Cal. 625, 643-644, 209 P. 576; Westphal v. Arnoux (1921) 51 Cal. App. 532, 535, 197 P. 395].

However, when a trustee is barred by the statute of limitation from quieting title as against an adverse possessor, the cestui que trust, or beneficiary, is likewise barred, even though an infant [Patchett v. Pacific Coast Ry. Co. (1893) 100 Cal. 505, 509-510, 35 P. 73]. In addition, if adverse possession against the ancestor begins before his or her death, the statute of limitation is not tolled even though the heir is a minor [Westphal v. Arnoux (1921) 51 Cal. App. 532, 535, 197 P. 395].

[c] Imprisonment

If a person entitled to commence an action for recovering real property, or for recovering the possession of real property, is, at the time the title first descends or accrues, imprisoned on a criminal charge, or in execution on conviction of a criminal offense, for a term less than life, the time, not exceeding two years, during which imprisonment continues is not deemed any portion of the five-year period limited for the action's commencement. However, the action may be commenced within five years after the imprisonment ceases, or after the death of the person entitled, who dies while imprisoned. The action may not be commenced after that period [Code Civ. Proc. § 328.5].

[5] Effect of Reentry by Owner

Reentry on the land by the legal owner will interrupt adverse possession if it is open, notorious, and under claim of right and equal in dignity and character to that required to begin an adverse possession [Smith v. Southern Pac. R.R. Co. (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 272, 275, 34 P.2d 713; Kendrick v. Klein (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 491, 496, 150 P.2d 955].

§ 13.16 Proprietary Occupancy

[1] Requirement for Claim of Title

The property adversely claimed must be occupied "under claim of title" [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 322, 324]. The acts of occupancy and use that are sufficient to constitute adverse possession will depend on the nature of the claim of title. The claim may be founded on a written instrument, and is said to be based on color of title [see [2], below], or not founded on a written instrument [see [3], below].

[2] Occupancy Under Color of Title

[a] Occupancy Sufficient for Adverse Possession

When the claim of title is based on a written instrument purporting to be a conveyance or on a judgment or decree, it is said to be under color of title [Sorensen v. Costa (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 453, 458, 196 P.2d 900; Wilson v. Atkinson (1888) 77 Cal. 485, 489, 20 P. 66 (color of title is apparent title, which is not legal title because of some defect)]. Continued occupancy "of the property included in such instrument, decree, or judgment, or of some part of the property," for the prescribed five-year period is sufficient to establish adverse possession (other requirements being met) if any of the following conditions are satisfied [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 322, 323(1)-(3)]:

- The property has been usually cultivated or improved.
- The property has been protected by a substantial enclosure.
- Although not enclosed, the property has been used for any of these uses:
    - The supply of fuel.

- The supply of fencing timber for the purposes of husbandry.
- Pasturage.
- The occupant's ordinary use [see [c], below].

If the property is a known farm or single lot that has been partly improved, any portion that may have been left not cleared, or not enclosed according to the usual course and custom of the adjoining country, is not deemed to have been occupied for the same period as the part improved and cultivated [Code Civ. Proc. § 323(4)].

If the property consists of a tract divided into lots, the possession of one lot is not deemed a possession of any other lot of the same tract [Code Civ. Proc. § 322].

[b] Occupant's Good Faith

The occupant under color of title must enter and hold the land in good faith, believing the conveyance or judgment to be valid. Knowledge that it is void will vitiate the claim of title, but the knowledge must be actual knowledge of a vitiating fact, rather than knowledge based on the instrument's legal construction. Without such actual knowledge, even a tax deed void on its face may qualify as color of title [Wilson v. Atkinson (1888) 77 Cal. 485, 487, 492-494, 20 P. 66].

Knowledge that would vitiate the claim of title may be imputed from an agent to a corporation claiming title by adverse possession [see Nutting v. Herman Timber Co. (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 650, 658, 29 Cal. Rptr. 754; see also Yuba River Sand Co. v. Marysville (1947) 78 Cal. App. 2d 421, 427, 430, 177 P.2d 642].

[c] Occupant's "Ordinary Use"

"The ordinary use of the occupant" [see Code Civ. Proc. § 323(3)] means a use that is appropriate considering the location and character of the property. If only slight use can ordinarily be made of the property, then occupancy to the extent of that use is sufficient [see, e.g., Posey v. Bay Point Realty Co. (1932) 214 Cal. 708, 712, 7 P.2d 1020 (refuge for livestock during part of the year)]. However, if the claimant makes only slight use of the property because of some extraneous reason such as illness, distance, or other business, that use is not sufficient as "ordinary use" [Klein v. Caswell (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 774, 779, 199 P.2d 689].

The concept of "the ordinary use of the occupant" allows for continuity of possession even if actual occupancy is not constant; for example, normal intervals between occupancies by tenants would not be taken as evidence that the claimant's possession was not continuous [Montgomery & Mullen Lumber Co. v. Quimby (1912) 164 Cal. 250, 253, 254, 128 P. 402; Newman v. Cornelius (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 279, 290, 83 Cal. Rptr. 435].

[3] Occupancy Under Claim of Right

Adverse possession under claim of right means occupancy of the land under a claim of title, exclusive of any other right [see § 13.17], that is not founded on a written instrument or any judgment or decree [see Code Civ. Proc. § 324; Brown v. Berman (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 327, 329, 21 Cal. Rptr. 401]. Only the land actually so occupied, and no other, is deemed to have been adversely possessed [Code Civ. Proc. § 324]. For the purpose of establishing adverse possession under claim of right, land is deemed to have been possessed and occupied only in one of the following cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 325]:

- The claimant protected the land by a substantial enclosure [see, e.g., Palin v. Sweitzer (1937) 8 Cal. 2d 329, 331, 65 P.2d 351 (fence, plus natural barriers, is sufficient enclosure)].

- The claimant cultivated the land in a usual way [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1928) 93 Cal. App. 512, 514, 269 P. 767 (occupancy at all times and seasons appropriate to regular and usual cultivation is sufficient)] or improved the land [see, e.g., Gray v. Walker (1910) 157 Cal. 381, 385, 108 P. 278 (maintaining existing improvements is sufficient)].

Although the occupant must claim a title, the claim need not be based on a good faith belief in the title [see Brown v. Berman (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 327, 329, 21 Cal. Rptr. 401] or may be based mistakenly on a deed that does not describe the land being occupied [see Sorensen v. Costa (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 453, 458-460, 196 P.2d 900].

§ 13.17 Hostile Occupancy

[1] Nature of Hostility

The claimant must occupy the property not only under claim of title [see § 13.16] but also "exclusive of any other right" [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 322, 324]. This is the requirement of hostility. The claimant's possession must be unaccompanied by any recognition, express or inferrable from the circumstances, of the right in the holder of the legal title [see Sorensen v. Costa (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 453, 459, 196 P.2d 900; Kunza v. Gaskell (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 201, 210-211 154 Cal. Rptr. 101]. To be considered hostile, the acts relied on must operate as an invasion of the right of the holder of the legal title [Laubisch v. Roberdo (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 702, 706, 277 P.2d 9].

[2] Mistake

Mistaken occupancy can be the basis for adverse possession. For instance, when a person occupies part of a neighboring lot based on an erroneous survey, the requisite hostility exists [Gilardi v. Hallam (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 317, 322-326, 178 Cal. Rptr. 624, 636 P.2d 588; see Newman v. Cornelius (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 279, 289, 83 Cal. Rptr. 435 (mistaken belief that United States owned property was no bar to adverse possession as against all others)]. Occupancy based on mistake was not hostile, however, when substantial evidence established that the occupan t recognized the record owner's potential claim and expressly or implicitly intended not to claim the occupied land if the record title was held by another [Mesnick v. Caton (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1248, 1259, 228 Cal. Rptr. 779].

PRACTICE TIP:

Importance of Not Communicating With Record Owner. In mistaken occupancy cases (usually involving an erroneous survey), it is critical that the adverse claimant not communicate with the record owner or others in a way that indicates the claimant intends to respect the actual legal boundaries. This practitioner beat an adverse possession claim based on admissions a claimant made to other neighbors negating he had any hostility to the record owner's title despite an erroneous survey. By William M.

Hensley

[3] Relationships Negating Hostility

[a] Spouses

Adverse possession cannot exist between spouses during coverture [Madden v. Hall (1913) 21 Cal. App. 541, 550, 132 P. 291].

[b] Life Tenant and Remainderman

A life tenant cannot establish title by adverse possession as against a remainderman, since the remainderman cannot assert a right of possession or attack the life tenant's possession until after the termination of the life estate [Missionary Soc'y v. Bank of America (1936) 15 Cal. App. 2d 682, 684-686, 59 P.2d 1060; see Civ. Code § 741 (protecting future interests)].

[c] Mortgagor and Mortgagee

A mortgagor cannot be in adverse possession as against the mortgagee until the mortgagor openly and notoriously denies the mortgagee's rights after the mortgagee's right to possession arises [see Comstock v. Finn (1936) 13 Cal. App. 2d 151, 156-158, 56 P.2d 957].

[d] Vendor and Purchaser

Where entry into occupancy of land by a purchaser under an executory contract is in subordination to the legal title of the vendor and in accordance with the terms of the contract, the purchaser's occupancy cannot become adverse until in some manner the purchaser repudiates the vendor's title and asserts an exclusive right outside the contract. In that case, actual or constructive notice of the repudiation must be given to the vendor [Beagle v. Hanks (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 298, 300, 270 P.2d 113; see Perry v. Bedford (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 6, 14-15, 47 Cal. Rptr. 461 (no adverse possession by conditional vendor as against purchaser, in absence of explicit disclaimer of relationship)].

Exclusive occupancy by a cotenant generally is deemed to be with the permission of the other cotenants. It does not become adverse until the other tenants have actual or constructive notice that the cotenant in occupancy is hostile. This notice must be by acts of ownership of the most open, notorious, and unequivocal character; the evidence must be stronger than what would be required to establish adverse possession by a stranger [West v. Evans (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 414, 418, 175 P.2d 219; Akley v. Bassett (1922) 189 Cal. 625, 641-642, 209 P. 576; Wilkerson v. Thomas (1953) 121 Cal. App. 2d 479, 487, 263 P.2d 678]. However, when the cotenancy does not arise until after one of the cotenants has entered into possession under an instrument purporting to convey the whole title to him or her, the above rules do not apply [Akley v. Bassett (1922) 189 Cal. 625, 641-642, 209 P. 576; Zolezzi v. Michelis (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 827, 830-831, 195 P.2d 835].

A plaintiff who held title to property as tenants in common with his niece and sought to quiet title based on adverse possession failed to carry his burden of proving ouster [Preciado v. Wilde (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 321, 325, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 792] . The niece testified that she had no notice that the plaintiff wanted to interfere with her right to possession and title. The plaintiff admitted he had never excluded his niece from the property, never restricted her access, or informed her he was challenging her ownership. The plaintiff constructed fences, but admitted they were not designed to exclude family members. In addition, some of the changes to the property made by the plaintiff were remote in time or involved only a small area, while other changes were not initiated by the plaintiff until after he had consulted the niece or her father, which refuted the plaintiff's claim of hostility [Preciado v. Wilde (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 321,

The cotenant in occupancy may record a deed to the property, and that act would be notice of hostility if he or she knew nothing of the existence of the other cotenants when his or her exclusive occupancy began [Johns v. Scobie (1939) 12 Cal. 2d 618, 624, 86 P.2d 820], but probably not otherwise [see West v. Evans (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 414, 418, 175 P.2d 219]. A cotenant out of occupancy does not have any duty of surveillance of public records so as to ensure that a cotenant in occupancy is not acquiring adverse rights [Wilkerson v. Thomas (1953) 121 Cal. App. 2d 479, 488, 263 P.2d 678].

§ 13.18 Payment of Taxes

[1] Requirement to Pay Taxes

[a] Statutory Requirement

In no case is title by adverse possession considered established under any sections of the Code of Civil Procedure unless it is shown that the claimant together with predecessors and grantors paid all state, county, and municipal taxes that were levied and assessed on the land during the five-year prescriptive period [Code Civ. Proc. § 325].

[b] Both Levy and Assessment Essential

The taxes that must have been paid are only the taxes that were both levied and assessed during the prescriptive period [see Allen v. McKay & Co. (1898) 120 Cal. 332, 335, 52 P. 828; Brown v. Clark (1891) 89 Cal. 196, 201-202, 26 P. 801; Smith v. Byer (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 118, 120-121, 3 Cal. Rptr. 645 ("levied" refers to act of board of supervisors or city council; "assessed" refers to assessor's act)]. Those taxes must have been paid even if not actually due and payable until after the end of the period [Smith v. Byer (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 118, 120-121, 3 Cal. Rptr. 645].

[c] Actual Payment Essential

If the adverse claimant offered to pay taxes, but the tax collector refused to accept payment because the taxes had already been paid by another (the true owner), the claimant failed to meet the taxpaying requirement [Glowner v. de Alvarez (1909) 10 Cal. App. 194, 195-196, 101 P. 432]. On the other hand, if the adverse claimant had the land assessed and paid the taxes levied on it, the fact that the land was also assessed to another (the true owner), who also paid the taxes, is immaterial [Kendrick v. Klein (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 491, 497, 150 P.2d 955; see Cummings v. Laughlin (1916) 173 Cal. 561, 564-565, 160 P. 833].

[d] Burden of Proof

The burden is on the adverse claimant to show either that no taxes were levied and assessed or that the claimant (together with predecessors and grantors) paid the taxes that were levied and assessed [Glatts v. Henson (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 368, 372, 188 P.2d 745].

PRACTICE TIP:

Taxation Exceptions. There are a couple of exceptions to the general rule that adverse claimants are required to pay taxes. This practitioner has litigated one case in which he was successful in prosecuting an adverse possession claim on behalf of an irrigation district, which does not have to meet the taxation payment requirement. In addition, school districts are exempt from meeting this element of an adverse possession claim. By William M. Hensley

[2] Unusual Facts

[a] Assessor's Error

When the claimant, by constructing buildings or other improvements or fences, visibly occupied a disputed strip of land along the boundary with an adjacent parcel, the California Supreme Court inferred that the assessor did not base assessments on the record boundary but valued the land and improvements visibly occupied by each landowner. Thus, it was shown that the claimant paid taxes levied and assessed on the disputed strip even though taxes on that strip were not clearly assessed to the claimant [Gilardi v. Hallam (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 317, 326-327, 178 Cal. Rptr. 317, 636 P.2d 588].

[b] Delinquency and Redemption

Redemption is a payment of taxes meeting the statutory requirement when, while the redeemer and successors in interest are in undisturbed occupation of the property, taxes on the property in question become delinquent, a sale takes place, and a redemption is made, and this is done in good faith [Owsley v. Matson (1909) 156 Cal. 401, 405, 104 P. 983].

[c] Misdescription on Tax Roll

As long as the adverse claimant paid the taxes actually levied and assessed on the property occupied, a misdescription of the property on the tax assessment roll or in the tax receipts will not generally affect the efficacy of the payments for purposes of adverse possession [Sorensen v. Costa (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 453, 466, 467, 196 P.2d 900].

§ 13.33 Decisions

[1] Adverse Possession

[a] Generally

Right of possession in executor or administrator was barred by adverse possession in same way as right of possession in any other trustee. Webb v. Winter (1902) 135 Cal. 455, 457, 67 P. 691

When there was judgment for plaintiff in ejectment action and eviction of defendant under this action, defendant was precluded from later asserting adverse possession based on events before judgment. Breon v. Robrecht (1897) 118 Cal. 469, 471-473, 51 P. 33

Adverse possessor has right equal to that of actual title holder to place tenant in possession of the property and collect rent from that tenant; thus, adverse possessor could not be found guilty of grand theft as to rent received, but was subject to obligation under Civ. Code § 890 to apply that rent to mortgage encumbrance. People v. Lapcheske (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 571, 576, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 565

No title by adverse possession arose when possession was not hostile because parties agreed to have disputed boundary area surveyed and they acquiesced in results of survey; when there was confusion as to boundary of land and occupancy under mistake was without intention to claim land of another, intention was to claim only to true line wherever it may be, and occupancy was not adverse. Ikola v. Goff (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 872, 875-879, 107 Cal. Rptr. 663

[b] By Private and Municipal Corporations

Adverse possession by corporation was defense to ejectment suit. Lawrence v. Ballou (1875) 50 Cal. 258, 264

Railroad was entitled to acquire fee title by adverse possession. California v. Ocean Shore R.R. Cal. (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 406, 415, 196 P.2d 570

[2] Claim of Title

[a] Generally

One is entitled to adversely possess as against private persons even if there is superior title in governmental entity. Allen v. McKay & Co. (1898) 120 Cal. 332, 338, 52 P. 828 (federal claims to tidelands); Abar v. Rogers (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 506, 513, 100 Cal. Rptr. 344; LeFevre v. Borwick (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 786, 789, 254 P.2d 626

[b] Color of Title

Deed from partners conveying interest in partnership property, including adversely claimed land, did not change possession by grantee into claim founded on written instrument. Allen v. McKay (1903) 139 Cal. 94, 102, 72 P. 713

[c] Claim of Right

[i] Constructive Possession

Without color of title, constructive possession is insufficient to show adverse possession, and only land actually possessed is subject to acquisition by adverse possession. Mattes v. Hall (1913) 21 Cal. App. 552, 558, 132 P. 295

[ii] Enclosures

Substantial enclosure requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 325 is satisfied by employing natural barriers for completing enclosure, provided they are effective as part of actual enclosure. Mountain Club v. Pinney (1924) 67 Cal. App. 225, 246, 227 P. 630

Fencing land is insufficient alone to establish adverse possession under claim of right; evidence of actual occupancy is required. Mattes v. Hall (1913) 21 Cal. App. 552, 560-561, 132 P. 295

[3] Continuous Occupancy

[a] Generally

Infrequent visits to land are not sufficient to establish adverse possession under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 322, 323, if owner would not be put on notice of hostile claim. Wareham v. Randolph (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 218, 224-225, 7 Cal. Rptr. 483 (three visits in five or six years)

Even though land can be put to little or scant use, adverse claimant is not excused from exercising these acts of occupancy as would give notice of hostility. Sevenman v. Long Bell Lumber Co. (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 528, 533, 277 P.2d 510 (acts of occupancy scarcely averaged one day a year)

Continuity of possession is not interrupted by temporary periods of vacancy, not evincing any intention of abandonment of possession. Merrill v. Hooper (1932) 125 Cal. App. 80, 84, 13 P.2d 786

[b] Easements

If servient-tenement owner recognizes adverse claimant's right to control location of easement, ensuring change of easement route by mutual consent carries forward existing prescriptive rights. Zunino v. Gabriel (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 613, 618, 6 Cal. Rptr. 514

[4] Hostility

[a] Generally

Declarations of adverse claimant about claim made while in occupancy and before action was commenced were admissible verbal acts tending to show adverseness of possession. Weller v. Chavarria (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 234, 245, 43 Cal. Rptr. 364

Doctrine of agreed boundary is incompatible with adverse possession rule, since one acquiring title under former enters into occupancy by permission of adjoining landowner. Janes v. LeDeit (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 474, 488-489, 39 Cal. Rptr. 559

[b] Cotenants

Whether cotenant's possession was open, notorious, and hostile to other cotenants so as to achieve ouster is question of fact. Weller v. Chavarria (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 234, 248, 43 Cal. Rptr. 364 (maintaining road and signs was insufficient to oust)

[c] Heirs and Administrator of Estate

When one of decedent's heirs claimed he had established adverse possession of parcel formerly owned by decedent, period in which that heir acted as executor of estate could not be considered in determining whether five-year limitations period had run. Estate of Seifert (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 64, 68, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 560

Heirs or transferees of heirs were not able to possess property in estate, pending completion of administration, in hostility to estate. Marsh v. Edelstein (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 132, 138-139, 88 Cal. Rptr. 26

Administrator was not barred from acquiring prescriptive title to estate assets, after probate court purported to finally dispose of assets and furnished administrator, as individual, with color of title. Satariano v. Galletto (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 813, 816-817, 153 P.2d 201

[d] Liens and Foreclosure

Grantee of one holding property subject to mortgage, when conveyance was made during pendency of foreclosure suit, held pendente lite (subject to suit's outcome), not adversely. Dobbins v. Economic Gas Co. (1920) 182 Cal. 616, 638-639, 189 P. 1073

[e] Litigants

When spouse remained in possession despite judicial decree awarding property to other spouse, occupying spouse's possession was subordinate to other spouse until express notice was given of adverse claim. Buic v. Buic (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 1600, 1605, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 738

After decree in quiet title action vested title, losing party's continued possession was not adverse unless express notice of adverse claim was brought home to owner. Jaffray v. Mies (1947) 80 Cal. App. 2d 291, 293, 181 P.2d 672

[f] Prescriptive Easements

Dominant-tenement owner's improvement of easement does not automatically extinguish easement or show permissive use. Walner v. City of Turlock (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 399, 411, 41 Cal. Rptr. 29

Posted sign near claimed easement reading "Private Entrance, Revocable to Pass at any Time," did not preclude prescription when user did not believe sign applied to him. Pratt v. Hodgson (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 401, 403, 405, 204 P.2d 934

[g] Vendor and Purchaser

Possession while possessor had option to purchase was not deemed adverse, absent clear notice to optionor of adverse claim. Chapman v. Sky L'Onda etc. Water Co. (1945) 69 Cal. App. 2d 667, 674-675, 159 P.2d 988

That grantor (father) remained in possession of premises after grant to his children was not evidence of adverse possession. Tully v. Tully (1902) 137 Cal. 60, 66, 69 P. 700

When grantor held over after conveyance and then conveyed to second grantee larger area than he had left, second grantee and successors were able to adversely possess such area under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 322, 323. Harvey v. Berry (1927) 201 Cal. 74, 77-79, 255 P. 509

[5] Payment of Taxes

[a] Generally

Payment of taxes and mistaken belief of ownership did not establish adverse possession when there was no substantial enclosure nor any usual cultivation or improvement. Safwenberg v. Marquez (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 301, 123 Cal. Rptr. 405

Code Civ. Proc. § 325 does not require that taxes be paid with money obtained from sources other than property adversely claimed. Kraemer v. Kraemer (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 291, 310, 334 P.2d 675

Issue of whether taxes have been paid is issue for trier of fact, not matter of law. Finley v. Yuba County Water Dist. (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 691, 698, 160 Cal. Rptr. 423

PRACTICE TIP:

Uncontroverted Tax Payment Issue May Still Allow for Summary Judgment/Adjudication.

Language from older cases may be deceptive as far as summary judgment/adjudication availability is concerned. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(p), a plaintiff may get judgment, as a matter of law, in situations when uncontroverted evidence of tax payment is accepted by the law-and-motion judge. Thus, under the right circumstances, an unrebutted, competent factual showing may make the issue one for resolution at a pre-trial stage as a matter of law. By William M. Hensley

[b] Burden of Proof

Burden is on adverse claimant of fee title to show that no taxes were assessed or that if they were assessed, claimant paid them. Glatts v. Henson (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 368, 372, 188 P.2d 745

[6] Possession and Use

Facts pertaining to adverse claimant's family's occupancy before start of running of statute of limitation were material to character of claimant's possession. Park v. Powers (1935) 2 Cal. 2d 590, 594-595, 42 P.2d 75

[7] Prescriptive Easement

[a] Limits on Scope

Holder of prescriptive easement is not allowed to alter place, mode, or manner of its enjoyment substantially, but immaterial change is not barred. Ward v. Monrovia (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 815, 821, 108 P.2d 425

Property owner could not assert exclusive prescriptive easement for improvements he enclosed on parcel held in common with other owners; such claim was in nature of adverse possession, which property owner failed to establish. Kapner v. Meadowlark Ranch Assn. (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1182, 1187, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 138

Homeowner who placed woodshed and landscaping on neighbor's property made exclusive use of land's surface and therefore could not acquire prescriptive easement, but had to meet requirements for adverse possession. Harrison v. Welch (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1084, 1094, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 92

Easement by prescription for passage of cattle and horses did not include right of passage for motorcycles when only use of motorcycles had been clandestine. Connolly v. McDermott (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 973, 977-999, 208 Cal. Rptr. 796

Easement in nature of profit a prendre to take nuts from trees included right to enter on land to care for trees but ended when trees die. Costa v. Fawcett (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 695, 702-703, 21 Cal. Rptr. 143

[b] Prevention by Injunction

Prescriptive easement could be acquired by use of defendant's driveway to gain access to plaintiff's parking, and proper remedy was injunction to force removal of newly constructed fence. Bennett v. Lew (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 1177, 1183-1187, 199 Cal. Rptr. 241

[c] Relation to Easement by Necessity

Use of way by necessity does not ripen into easement by prescription, at least while necessity continues. Martinelli v. Luis (1931) 213 Cal. 183, 184-185, 1 P.2d 980

[d] Requirement to Use Land

Third party was able to acquire prescriptive rights in land subject to limited easement by maintaining nonconforming use for necessary period. Faus v. City of Los Angeles (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 350, 362, 62 Cal. Rptr. 193, 431 P.2d 849

Award of prescriptive easement that precluded owner's access to disputed property was error when adequate legal description was available. Mehdizadeh v. Mincer (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1296, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 284

Constructing fence around neighbor's property and using property as backyard did not entitle user to exclusive prescriptive easement when all elements of adverse possession were not established. Silacci v. Abramson (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 558, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 37, 39

Principles of easement by prescription were used to establish public rights in mean high tide mark at Lake Tahoe. Fogerty v. State of California (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 224, 238-240, 231 Cal. Rptr. 810

Lack of use of disputed property not only prevents prescriptive easement from arising but also precludes its enforceability. Mesnick v. Caton (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1248, 1261, 228 Cal. Rptr. 779

Prescriptive easement requires use of claimed easement, and mistakenly fencing neighbor's property without using it was not sufficient to establish easement. Mesnick v. Caton (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1248, 1261-1262, 228 Cal. Rptr. 779

Fact of use and not of trespass is significant element in establishing easement by prescription, so that only use need be open and notorious. Dooley's Hardware Mart v. Trigg (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 337, 341, 75 Cal. Rptr. 745

One is entitled to use real property both as member of public and under private prescriptive easement. Morse v. Miller (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 237, 249-250, 275 P.2d 545

[e] Tenant's Use Adverse to Landlord

Prescriptive easement is not available against landlord because landlord, who is not in possession, cannot bring action to prevent use that establishes easement, and reversionary interest of landlord cannot be defeated by actions of tenant. Dietrich Internat. Truck Sales v. J.S. & J. Services, Inc. (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 1601, 1608-1610, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 388

[f] Treatment of Easement in Bankruptcy Case

Fact that claimant of prescriptive easement in property of debtor in bankruptcy knew that parcel was being sold and did not file objection or otherwise participate in bankruptcy court hearings authorizing sale was not sufficient to imply consent necessary under 11 U.S.C. § 363(f)(2) for bankruptcy court to sell property free of liens and encumbrances; subsequent state court action by claimant against purchaser was not barred by res judicata. Scheidel v. Lister (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 657, 661-667, 227 Cal. Rptr. 510

Hostility inherent in claim of prescriptive easement did not establish bona fide dispute necessary under 11 U.S.C. § 363(f)(4) for bankruptcy court to sell property of estate free of liens and encumbrances, when right to easement had not been asserted by claimant or rejected by debtor in bankruptcy before sale. Scheidel v. Lister (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 657, 663, 227 Cal. Rptr. 510

[g] Use by Mistake

Occupancy of easement by mistake was sufficient to be adverse and created easement by prescription. Otaly Water Dist. v. Beckwith (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 1041, 1046, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233

[h] Use Equivalent to Public Taking

Aviation easement was acquired by prescription when noise, vibration, fumes, fuel particles, and inconvenience interfered with use and enjoyment of property to extent that amounted to taking. Baker v. Burbank-Glendale-Pasadena Airport Authority (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1602, 1609, 270 Cal. Rptr. 337

[8] Property Exempt From Adverse Possession

[a] Public Property

Statutory provisions on adverse possession do not apply to property devolved to public use. California v. Chambers (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 552, 556-557, 233 P.2d 557

Title by prescription cannot be acquired against city or other public body on land dedicated for public use. Oakland v. Burns (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 401, 406, 296 P.2d 333 (airport land); City of Berkeley v. Gordon (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 461, 464-465, 70 Cal. Rptr. 716 (basement under street)

Civ. Code § 1007, prohibiting acquisition of title to public property by adverse possession, eliminates statute of limitation as defense in action by city for recovery of land. Noble v. Merchants Nat'l Realty Corp. (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 48, 51, 56 Cal. Rptr. 253

[b] Public Use

Property held for public use is not subject to acquisition by adverse possession. Mosk v. Summerland Spiritualist Ass'n (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 376, 381, 37 Cal. Rptr. 366

[9] Quiet Title Actions

[a] Generally

Nature of actions. Thomson v. Thomson (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 671, 681, 62 P.2d 358

Action to quiet title to easement against known defendants sued by fictitious names, on false pretense that names are unknown, does not stop statute of limitation [Code Civ. Proc. § 318] from running. Noble v. Merchants Nat'l Realty Corp. (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 48, 51, 56 Cal. Rptr. 253

[b] Judgment

Injunction in judgment is modifiable, given changed conditions, when it is no longer essential to preserve prescriptive easement recognized in judgment. Little v. Schwartz (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 594, 599-601, 6 Cal. Rptr. 40

[9. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as DOES I-_____ and therefore sues those defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants claims some right, title, estate, lien, or interest in the Property adverse to plaintiff's title, and their claims constitute a cloud on plaintiff's title.]

10. Plaintiff is seeking to quiet title against all adverse claims of defendant(s) ("the Adverse Claims"), to wit:

[a. The claims of the fictitiously named defendants described in Paragraph 9;]

[b. The claims of the Unknown Defendants described in Paragraph 8, whether or not any such claim is known to plaintiff;]

[c. The claims of the Successor Defendants described in Paragraph 7;]

[d. The unknown, uncertain, or contingent claims, if any, of defendant _____ (name) described in Paragraph 6;]

e. The claim of defendant _____ [name of defendant] described in Paragraph 5; and

f. The claim of defendant _____ [name of defendant] as holder of the legal title.

11. The Adverse Claims are without any right whatever. Defendants have no right, title, estate, lien, or interest whatever in the Property adverse to plaintiff's title [except _____ (set forth any claims that plaintiff admits are valid, e.g., the utility easement held by Pacific Gas and Electric Company)].

12. Plaintiff seeks to quiet title as of _____ [date]. [That date should be the effective date because _____ (if date is other than date complaint is filed, allege why determination as of that date is sought).]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays for judgment as follows:

1. That plaintiff is the _____ [specify interest claimed, e.g., owner in fee simple] of the Property and that _____ [no defendant has any or defendant has no] interest in the Property adverse to plaintiff;

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a complaint for use by a person seeking to quiet title to real property based on adverse possession. It may be necessary to file an affidavit with the complaint, if an adverse claimant is dead [see [4][b], below].

PRACTICE TIP:

Obtaining Title Report. The plaintiff may wish to obtain a title report before commencing the action. If the plaintiff intends to add unknown persons as defendants [see [4], below], an examination of the record title and an inspection of the property will be necessary [see Code Civ. Proc. § 762.060(b)]. Also, the court may order the plaintiff to obtain a title report and keep it available for inspection and copying by the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.040(b)]. By Publisher's Editorial Staff

[3] Allegations

The statutes governing quiet title actions [see generally Code Civ. Proc. § 760.010 et seq.] prescribe that the complaint must include the following allegations [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020]:

- A description of the property that is the subject of the action. The description must include both the legal description and the street address or common designation, if any (Paragraph 1).

- The title of the plaintiff as to which a determination is sought and the basis of the title. The complaint must allege the specific facts constituting the adverse possession (Paragraph 2).

  - To establish a title by adverse possession, the plaintiff must prove payment of taxes and occupancy that is open, notorious, continuous, hostile to the true owner, and under a claim of title [Mesnick v. Caton (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1248, 1258, 228 Cal. Rptr. 779; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 322-325].

  - The title that an occupant gains by merely occupying the land for less than the period required for adverse possession is not sufficient to maintain a quiet title action [see Civ. Code §§ 1006, 1007].

- The adverse claims to the title of the plaintiff against which a determination is sought (Paragraphs 3 through 11).

  - If the claim or the share or quantity of the claim of a person required to be named as a defendant is unknown, uncertain, or contingent, the plaintiff must state this in the complaint. If the lack of knowledge, uncertainty, or contingency is caused by a transfer to an unborn or unascertained person or class member, or by a transfer in the form of a contingent remainder, vested remainder subject to defeasance, executory interest, or similar disposition, the plaintiff must also state in the complaint, as far as is known to the plaintiff, the name, age, and legal disability, if any, of the person in being who would be entitled to the claim if the contingency, on which the claim depends, had occurred before the action's commencement (Paragraph 6) [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.020(b)].

  - If the plaintiff admits the validity of any adverse claim, the complaint must state this (Paragraph 11) [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.060(c)].

- The date as of which the determination is sought. If the determination is sought as of a date other than the date the complaint is filed, the complaint must include a statement of the reasons why a determination as of that other date is sought (Paragraph 12).

- A prayer for the determination of the plaintiff's title against the adverse claims.

[4] Selection of Defendants

[a] Who Must Be Made Defendants

The plaintiff must name as defendants all persons having claims adverse to the plaintiff's title and against which a determination is sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.010].

The court on its own motion may, and on the motion of any party must, make appropriate orders for the joinder of additional parties as necessary or proper [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.040(a)].

[b] Decedents and Personal Representatives

If a person required to be named as a defendant is dead, the plaintiff must either join the personal representative as a defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.030(a)] or state, in an affidavit filed with the complaint, that the person is required to be named as a defendant, but the person is dead (or is believed by the plaintiff to be dead), and the plaintiff knows of no personal representative [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.030(b)(1)]. In that event the plaintiff may join as defendants "the testate and intestate successors of [name of person required to be named as defendant], deceased [or believed to be deceased], and all persons claiming by, through, or under such decedent [or person]" [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.030(b)(2), (3)].

[c] Unknown Defendants

The plaintiff may name as defendants "all persons unknown, claiming any legal or equitable right, title, estate, lien, or interest in the property described in the complaint adverse to the plaintiff's title, or any cloud upon the plaintiff's title thereto," naming them in that manner [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.060(a)]. If unknown defendants are named, the plaintiff must take care to name as defendants all persons having adverse claims that are of record or known to the plaintiff or reasonably apparent from an inspection of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.050(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Binding Unknown Claimants to Judgment. Naming unknown defendants and serving them by publication [see [7], below] will entitle the plaintiff to an in rem judgment against all persons known and unknown who were parties to the action and all persons not parties to the action and unknown to the plaintiff who had a claim that was not recorded when the complaint or required lis pendens [see [8], below] was filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 764.030]. By Publisher's Editorial Staff

[d] Fictitious Defendants

Testate and intestate successors and persons unknown could be designated as "DOE" defendants, although that is not recommended because it would depart from the statutory language of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 762.030(b)(2), (3) and 762.060 by which those defendants are to be designated [see [b], [c], above] and so could limit the in rem effect of the judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 764.030(b)]. However, fictitious defendants may be named as "DOE" defendants under Code Civ. Proc. § 474, since rules governing civil actions generally are applicable in quiet title actions unless they are inconsistent with quiet title provisions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 760.060].

[5] Verification

The complaint must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020].

[6] Jurisdiction and Venue

The superior court has jurisdiction of quiet title actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 760.040(a)]. The actions are not limited civil cases [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86]. Subject to the power of the court to transfer actions, the proper county for the trial of an action to quiet title to real property is the county in which the real property, or part of it, is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 760.050(a)].

[7] Service of Summons

The form, content, and manner of the service of summons is the same as in civil actions, generally [Code Civ. Proc. § 763.010(a)]. The procedure for service of summons is set forth in Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers . Unknown defendants may be served by publication and posting [Code Civ. Proc. § 763.010(b)]. The requirements for service by publication and posting are discussed in Ch. 482, Quieting Title .

[8] Lis Pendens

Immediately on commencing a quiet title action, the plaintiff must file a lis pendens in the office of the county recorder of each county in which any real property described in the complaint is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.010(b)]. The lis pendens gives constructive notice of the pendency of the action to subsequent purchasers or encumbrancers [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.24]. For discussion and forms of lis pendens, see Ch. 348, Lis Pendens .

§ 13.41 Demurrer--Quiet Title Action by Holder of Legal Title Barred by Statute of Limitation [Code Civ. Proc. § 318]

[1] FORM Demurrer--Quiet Title Action by Holder of Legal Title Barred by Statute of Limitation [Code Civ. Proc. § 318]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name of defendant] [et al.],	)	DEMURRER TO COMPLAINT
Defendant(s).	)

Defendant demurs to the complaint on the following ground:

The complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that it appears on the face of the complaint that the action is barred by the provisions of Code of Civil Procedure Section 318.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that this demurrer has been set for hearing on _____ [date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in _____ [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] the above-entitled court, located at

Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Use of Form

[a] Ground for Demurrer

The form in [1], above, is for use in objecting by demurrer to a complaint (or cross complaint) by which the plaintiff, as holder of the legal title, seeks to quiet title to the real property, or eject the defendant from possession of the real property, that the defendant owns by adverse possession [see Civ. Code § 1007; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 318, 321-325]. The demurrer is based on the ground that the plaintiff's pleading does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] because the action is barred by the statute of limitation [see Code Civ. Proc. § 318].

[b] Defect Apparent on Face of Complaint

When a complaint shows on its face that the cause of action is barred by the statute of limitation, a demurrer on the ground of failure to state a cause of action is acceptable, but the statute must be pleaded as well [Bank of America etc. Ass'n v. Ames (1936) 18 Cal. App. 2d 311, 313-315, 63 P.2d 1208]. The defect must appear on the face of the complaint (or cross complaint), otherwise the objection must be taken in the answer [see § 13.42] instead of a demurrer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a), (b)].

[3] Supporting Papers

The defendant is required to serve and file with the demurrer a notice of hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(c), (d)], which may be included in the demurrer as shown in this form. A memorandum in support of the demurrer is not required [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1113(a), 3.1320].

§ 13.42 Affirmative Defense--Quiet Title Action by Holder of Legal Title Barred by Statute of Limitation [Code Civ. Proc. § 318]--Adverse Possession by Defendant

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense--Quiet Title Action by Holder of Legal Title Barred by Statute of Limitation [Code Civ. Proc. § 318]--Adverse Possession by Defendant

AS A [_____ [if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state: TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES:

[EITHER]

The cause of action alleged in the complaint is barred by Code of Civil Procedure Section 318.

[OR]

Defendant held and possessed the property, described in the complaint, adversely to plaintiff's title, for five years before the commencement of this action.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an affirmative defense [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)] for use in the answer to a complaint (or cross complaint) by which the plaintiff, as holder of the legal title, seeks to quiet title to the real property, or eject the defendant from possession of the real property, that the defendant owns by adverse possession [see Civ. Code § 1007; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 318, 321-325]. The bar of the statute of limitation may be pleaded either by reference to the statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 458], as in the first alternative, or by alleging all of the facts necessary to establish that the action is barred [see Brown v. World Church (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 684, 691, 77 Cal. Rptr. 669], as in the second alternative. For a form of demurrer asserting the bar of the statute of limitation, see § 13.41.

PRACTICE TIP:

Cross Complaint to Quiet Title. If answering a complaint, the defendant should consider filing a cross complaint to quiet title to the property by adverse possession under Code Civ. Proc. § 761.040 [see § 13.40], since otherwise a quiet title action by the defendant may be barred [see Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30(a) (compulsory cross complaint)]. By Publisher's Editorial Staff

[3] Defendant's Burden of Pleading and Proof

In every action for the recovery of real property (that is, a quiet title action) or the possession of real property (an ejectment action), the person establishing a legal title to the property is presumed to have been in possession within the five-year limitation period prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 318, and the occupancy of the property by any other person is deemed to have been under and in subordination to the legal title, unless it appears that the property has been held and possessed adversely to the legal title for five years before the action's commencement [Code Civ. Proc. § 321; see Webber v. Clarke (1887) 74 Cal. 11, 19, 15 P. 431 (these five years need not be those immediately preceding action's commencement); see also Gerhard v. Stephens (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 864, 904, 69 Cal. Rptr. 612, 442 P.2d 692 (laches does not bar quiet title action against adverse possessor if defendant fails to demonstrate that he or she was in adverse possession of property during period of delay)].

The burden is on the defendant to plead and prove title by adverse possession if the plaintiff pleads and proves legal title [Schoenfeld v. Pritzker (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 117, 121-122, 64 Cal. Rptr. 592; Guerra v. Packard (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 272, 288, 46 Cal. Rptr. 25 (prescriptive easement)]. Pleading the statute of limitation is a good pleading of the defendant's prescriptive right [Patchett v. Webber (1926) 198 Cal. 440, 451, 245 P. 422; Alhambra Water Co. v. Richardson (1887) 72 Cal. 598, 600-601, 14 P. 379]. Evidence of adverse possession is admissible under a pleading of Code Civ. Proc. § 318 in the answer to a quiet title complaint by the holder of the legal title [Hagely v. Hagely (1886) 68 Cal. 348, 352, 9 P. 305]; however, evidence of adverse possession is not admissible if the answer merely denies the complaint's allegations [Warden v. Bailey (1933) 133 Cal. App. 383, 388-389, 24 P.2d 192; see McCreery v. Duane (1877) 52 Cal. 262, 263 (ejectment action)] or alleges merely that the defendant was entitled to possess the property for five years before the action's commencement [McCreery v. Sawyer (1877) 52 Cal. 257, 262 (ejectment action)].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a complaint to quiet title to a prescriptive easement. The facts necessary to establish a prescriptive easement are basically the same as the elements of adverse possession, but there is no requirement that taxes be paid [Taormino v. Denny (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 679, 686, 83 Cal. Rptr. 359, 463 P.2d 711; Mesnick v. Caton (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1248, 1260-1261, 228 Cal. Rptr. 779; see § 13.13[1]]. For a discussion of a quiet title complaint based on adverse possession, see § 13.40[2] -[8].

PRACTICE TIP:

Judicial Hostility to Exclusive Prescriptive Easement Claims. This form should only be used in those cases involving true prescriptive easements. As explained in § 13.13[3][d], the courts have shown judicial hostility towards extending prescriptive easement treatment to situations effectively giving ownership rights to claimants, especially in the context of residential fence enclosure disputes. The form complaint here should not be used when the claimant is seeking to obtain ownership rights through prescriptive easement when there is no showing that taxes were paid. By William M. Hensley

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use as a judgment in favor of the plaintiff in an action to quiet title to a fee acquired by adverse possession or title to a prescriptive easement.

[3] Trial and Judgment

[a] Evidentiary Hearing as Required

The court must examine into the plaintiff's title and determine the plaintiff's title against the claims of all defendants. The court must not enter judgment by default but must in all cases require evidence of the plaintiff's title and hear such evidence as may be offered regarding the claims of any of the defendants, other than claims that the plaintiff, in the complaint, admits are valid. The court must render judgment in accordance with the evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 764.010].

Whenever the court orders service by publication [see § 13.40[7]], the court, before hearing the case, must require proof that the summons has been served, posted, and published as required and that a lis pendens [see § 13.40[8]] has been filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 763.040].

[b] Unambiguous Property Description Essential

The judgment in a quiet title action should be certain and specific. An impossible, wrong, or uncertain description of the property or easement, or the absence of a description, renders the judgment void [Newport v. Hatton (1924) 195 Cal. 132, 156, 231 P. 987 (quiet title judgment based on tax sale); Newman v. Cornelius (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 279, 284, 83 Cal. Rptr. 435 (judgment quieting title to mining claims unclear as to location of claims); see Guerra v. Packard (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 272, 296, 46 Cal. Rptr. 25 (judgment quieting title to easement by prescription)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Copy of Description From Title Insurance Policy. Some lawyers believe that the risk of a potentially fatal error in the description in the judgment is minimized by using the property's legal description copied from a title insurance policy. By Publisher's Editorial Staff

[4] Effect of Judgment

[a] Parties and Uncognizable Claimants Are Bound

The judgment in the action will be in rem, binding and conclusive on all of the following persons, regardless of any legal disability [Code Civ. Proc. § 764.030]:

- All persons known and unknown who were parties to the action and who have any claim to the property, whether present or future, vested or contingent, legal or equitable, several or undivided.

- Except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 764.045 [see [b], below], all persons who were not parties to the action and who have any claim to the property that was not of record at the time the lis pendens was filed [see § 13.40[8]] or, if none was filed, at the time the judgment was recorded.

[b] Cognizable Claimants Are Not Bound

Except to the extent provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1908 (relating to the conclusiveness and effect of a judgment, generally), the judgment does not affect a claim to the property or part of the property by any person who was not a party to the action if either of the following conditions were satisfied at the time the lis pendens was filed [see § 13.40[8]] or, if none was filed, at the time the judgment was recorded [Code Civ. Proc. § 764.045]:

- The claim was of record.
- The claim was actually known to the plaintiff or would have been reasonably apparent from an inspection of the property.

However, a claimant may be bound by the judgment if the claim was acquired from a party after the action's commencement and with actual knowledge of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1908(a)(2)].

[c] Good Faith Purchaser May Rely on Judgment

Any relief granted in a subsequent action or proceeding directly or collaterally attacking the judgment in the quiet title action, whether based on lack of actual notice to a party or otherwise, would not impair the rights of a purchaser or encumbrancer for value of the property acting in reliance on the judgment without knowledge of any defects or irregularities in the judgment or action [Code Civ. Proc. § 764.060]. Nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 764.045(b) may be construed to impair the rights of a good faith purchaser or encumbrancer for value dealing with the plaintiff or the plaintiff's successors in interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 764.045(b)].

[5] Costs

If the defendant disclaimed in the answer any interest or estate in the property involved, or suffered judgment to be taken without an answer, the plaintiff may not recover costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.030(b)]. However, if the defendant filed an answer denying all of the allegations of the complaint and then disclaimed any interest in the property, costs are properly entered against the defendant [McMorris v. Pagano (1944) 63 Cal. App. 2d 446, 452, 146 P.2d 944 (prescriptive easement)].

Except as otherwise expressly provided by statute, the prevailing party is entitled as a matter of right to recover costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(b)]. "Prevailing party" is defined as including the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(a)(4)]:

- The party with a net monetary recovery;
- A defendant in whose favor a dismissal is entered;
- A defendant when neither party obtains any relief; and
- A defendant as against the plaintiffs who do not recover any relief against that defendant.

When any party recovers other than monetary relief and in situations other than as specified, the "prevailing party" is determined by the court, and in that case, the court in its discretion, may allow costs or not and may apportion costs between the parties on the same or adverse sides in accordance with rules adopted by the Judicial Council under Code Civ. Proc. § 1034 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(a)(4)].

§ 13.45 Allegations in Complaint--Defendant Will Acquire Prescriptive Easement [Civ. Code § 1007] Unless Enjoined From Trespassing on Plaintiff's Land

[1] FORM Allegations in Complaint--Defendant Will Acquire Prescriptive Easement [Civ. Code § 1007] Unless Enjoined From Trespassing on Plaintiff's Land

1. Defendant claims an easement _____ [specify, e.g., to take wood and minerals or to use a right of way], which defendant asserts is a burden on plaintiff's land previously described in this complaint. Under claim of ownership of the easement, defendant has entered plaintiff's land without plaintiff's permission and _____ [describe acts, e.g., driven through the land and taken wood from it without plaintiff's consent], and defendant threatens to continue those acts.

2. Defendant's acts, if they are permitted to continue, will cause great and irreparable injury to plaintiff because defendant threatens to acquire a prescriptive easement over plaintiff's land. Plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law for the continuing injury caused by defendant's acts. Damages will be inadequate if plaintiff must yield to an easement to defendant over plaintiff's land. The only other remedy that plaintiff could have before a prescriptive easement is created by defendant would be to commence serial actions for damages each time defendant trespasses on plaintiff's land, which would result in a multiplicity of actions.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, contains allegations for use in a complaint for an injunction against trespasses on the plaintiff's land to prevent the creation of a prescriptive easement [see Civ. Code §§ 1007, 3422; Code Civ. Proc. § 526; see also § 13.13[5][c]].

[3] Landowner's Request for Injunction

[a] Right to Relief

Even if no other harm is shown, an injunction is properly granted to prohibit the continuation of acts that obstruct a landowner's free use of the land, if those acts might otherwise ripen into a prescriptive easement [Vestal v. Young (1905) 147 Cal. 715, 719, 82 P. 381; see Lindsay-Strathmore I. Dist. v. Superior Ct. (1920) 182 Cal. 315, 327, 187 P. 1056; Bartholomew v. Staheli (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 844, 856, 195 P.2d 824 (injunction to prevent overburdening of existing prescriptive easement and creation of larger prescriptive easement)].

[b] Tolling Effect of Complaint

Filing a complaint that seeks appropriate injunctive relief ordinarily interrupts the running of the prescriptive period, which remains suspended while the action is pending [Yorba v. Anaheim Union Water Co. (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 265, 270, 259 P.2d 2; Knoke v. Swan (1935) 2 Cal. 2d 630, 632, 42 P.2d 1019; Welsher v. Glickman (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 134, 137-138, 77 Cal. Rptr. 141].

Chapter 14 ADVERTISING
PART I. SCOPE

2-14 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 14.01

§ 14.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses actions, remedies, and penalties available under California statutes defining and prohibiting false, misleading, and deceptive advertising. It also discusses regulation of outdoor and on-premises commercial advertising. The chapter includes the following forms:

- A complaint for injunction and restitution for violation of false advertising statutes [see § 14.60].
- A complaint, allegation, and affirmative defense for use in an action for damages for negligent or intentional fraud [Forms 2, 3, 10].
- A complaint for losses, expenses, and a statutory penalty for failing to disclose a limitation on the quantity of an advertised article available for sale to any one customer [see § 14.63].
- Complaints for damages for false advertising of prizes or gifts [Forms 5, 6].
- A complaint for damages for invasive advertising by e-mail messages sent in violation of an e-mail service provider's policy (which may be the policy of an entity, such a corporation or firm, that maintains an internal e-mail system) [see § 14.66].
- A complaint for the recovery of actual and statutory damages from a person who sent unsolicited e-mail (spam) advertising to or from California in violation of the law [see § 14.67].
- Affirmative defenses to actions by a local government to compel compliance with an outdoor advertising ordinance [see §§ 14.69 -14.71].

For discussion of regulation of advertising by attorneys, see Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics . For forms for use in consumer's actions generally, see Ch. 127, Consumer Contracts and Loans . For forms for use in actions concerning sale of consumer goods, see Ch. 500, Sales: Sales Under the Commercial Code through Ch. 504, Sales: Consumers Legal Remedies Act . § 14.10 Governing Statutes Statutes governing false or misleading advertising generally are contained in Bus. & Prof. Code*§ 17500 et seq. Bus. & Prof. Code* §§ 17200 and 17203, 17204 authorize an action for unfair competition against a person or business that engages in false or misleading advertising. Consumer remedies for certain deceptive advertising practices are set forth in Civ. Code §§ 1770(a), 1780, 1781. Civ. Code § 3345 trebles a discretionary civil penalty in any other statute in an action brought by, on behalf of, or for the benefit of, senior citizens or disabled persons to redress unfair or deceptive acts or practices or unfair methods of competition. Billboard and other outdoor advertising is regulated by Bus. & Prof. Code § 5200 et seq.

A contract for the placement of advertising does not involve the sale of goods under Division 2 of the Commercial Code, which therefore has no application to a case involving or arising from such a contract [Wall Street Network, Ltd. v. New York Times Co. (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 1171, 1186-1187, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 6 (contract obligated one party to place popup ads at web sites of its marketing partners, and then to relay to other party certain information provided by potential customers who responded to those ads; party that placed those ads could not argue that Commercial Code was applicable based on party's theory that it was delivering goods when it relayed that information, since that party was only providing service)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

2-14 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 14.11

§ 14.11 Government Regulation of Advertising

[1] Exercise of State's Police Power

Under the police power reserved to the states by U.S. Const., amend. X, the exercise of the right to advertise commercially is subject to state and local government regulation that reasonably relates to the public health, safety, morals, or general welfare [see Metromedia, Inc. v. City of San Diego (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 848, 858, 164 Cal. Rptr. 510, 610 P.2d 407 , rev'd on First Amendment grounds, 453 U.S. 490, 101 S. Ct. 2882, 69 L. Ed. 2d 800 (1981) (billboards)]. In reviewing legislation for the purpose of testing its propriety as an exercise of the police power, the power of the court is limited to determining whether the subject of the legislation is within the state's power and, if so, to determine whether the means adopted to accomplish the result are reasonably designed for that purpose, and have a real and substantial relation to the objects sought to be attained. It is presumed that the legislative body acted within its powers; the burden is on those attacking the statute to make a showing that it is unconstitutional [Serve Yourself Gas etc. Assn. v. Brock (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 813, 817-818, 249 P.2d 545] .

Before 1975, when the United Supreme Court extended First Amendment protection to commercial speech in Bigelow v. Virginia (1975) 421 U.S. 809, 818, 95 S. Ct. 2222, 44 L. Ed. 2d 600 , the only constitutional restraints on governmental regulation of advertising, other than the prohibition against arbitrary exercise of the police power, were the principles of equal protection and due process. For example, the equal protection guarantee mandates that classification of advertising for purposes of regulation cannot be made arbitrarily, but must be based on natural, intrinsic, or constitutional distinctions that suggest reasons for and justify the particular legislation [Carlin v. City of Palm Springs (1971) 14 Cal. App.3d 706, 712, 92 Cal. Rptr. 535] . For application of the principles of equal protection and due process to governmental regulation of outdoor advertising, see the discussion in § 14.19[1][b].

[2] First Amendment Protection for Commercial Speech

Commercial speech is not stripped of First Amendment protection merely because of its commercial nature, although commercial speech may be made subject to more stringent governmental regulation than noncommercial speech [Va. Pharmacy Bd. v. Va. Consumer Council (1976) 425 U.S. 748, 770-773, 96 S. Ct. 1817, 48 L. Ed. 2d 346 ; Bigelow v. Virginia (1975) 421 U.S. 809, 818, 95 S. Ct. 2222, 44 L. Ed. 2d 600] . The First Amendment protects commercial speech that concerns lawful activity and is not misleading. A governmental restriction on otherwise protected commercial speech is valid under U.S. Const., amend. I, only if it (1) seeks to implement a substantial governmental interest, (2) directly advances that interest, and (3) reaches no farther than necessary to accomplish the given objective [Posadas de Puerto Rico Assoc. v. Tourism Co. (1986) 478 U.S. 328, 340, 106 S. Ct. 2968, 92 L. Ed. 2d 266 ; Central Hudson v. Public Serv. Comm'n (1980) 447 U.S. 557, 566, 100 S. Ct. 2343, 65 L. Ed. 2d 341] . The dispositive test often will be whether the governmental restriction reaches beyond what is necessary. The government has the burden of proving that its restriction, such as an ordinance banning signs, is narrowly tailored to achieve the desired objective. A relevant consideration for a court is whether there are numerous and obvious alternatives that would be less burdensome on affected persons, such as local merchants, than the existing restriction. If that restriction is not a neutral restriction based on time, place, and manner of advertisin,g but rather is content-based--for instance, banning all signs except certain ones described according to their content--it indicates that the government has not carefully calculated the costs and benefits associated with the burden on speech imposed by its restriction [Ballen v. City of Redmond (9th Cir. 2006) 466 F.3d 736, 742-744 (ordinance banning all portable signs except certain ones was unconstitutional; merchant, who was thus prohibited from advertising by portable sandwich-board sign in front of store and who sued for relief under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, was entitled to recover substantial attorney's fees in addition to nominal damages and injunction)].

Although in some contexts the California free speech clause, Cal. Const., art. I, § 2, is more inclusive than the U.S. Const., amend. I, there is no indication that the California Constitution affords pure commercial speech greater protection than that accorded by the U.S. Const., amend. I [People v. Superior Court (Olson) (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 181, 195, 157 Cal. Rptr. 628] .

For application of these general principles to governmental regulation of billboard advertising, see discussion in § 14.19[1][a].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

2-14 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 14.12

§ 14.12 False and Misleading Advertising

[1] General Prohibition Under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 makes it unlawful for any person, firm, corporation, or association, or an employee thereof, to make or disseminate or cause to be made or disseminated, either to the public in California or from California to the public in any state, any statement concerning real or personal property or services, professional or otherwise, or concerning any circumstance or matter of fact connected with the proposed performance or disposition of the property or services, if the statement (1) is untrue or misleading, (2) is known, or by the exercise of reasonable care should be known, to be untrue or misleading, and (3) is made or disseminated or caused to be made or disseminated with intent directly or indirectly to dispose of the property, to perform the services, or to induce the public to enter into any obligation relating thereto. The prohibition extends to statements in any newspaper or other publication, or any advertising device, or by public outcry or proclamation, or in any other manner or means whatever, including over the internet. It is also unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation to make or disseminate, or cause to be made or disseminated, any such statement as part of a plan or scheme with the intent not to sell the personal property or services so advertised at the price stated therein, or as so advertised. Violation of the statute is a misdemeanor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500].

The prohibition in Bus. & Prof. Code 17500 against untrue or misleading advertising extends to the use of oral statements [People v. Bestline Prod., Inc. (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 879, 906-909, 132 Cal. Rptr. 767] . A statement is untrue or misleading for purposes of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 if members of the public are likely to be deceived. Actual deception or confusion is not required. Therefore, a violation of the statute is actionable without individualized proof of deception, reliance, and injury [Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 211, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660 ; see § 14.43[8]]. On the other hand, when it is evident that no likelihood of deception could be shown, there is no actionable violation of the statute, and a defendant should be entitled to summary judgment [Wayne v. Staples, Inc. (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 466, 484, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 544 (retailer was entitled to summary judgment in consumer's action asserting violation of statute, since retailer clearly disclosed price of service and retailer's omission to reveal that price included 100 percent profit margin was not misleading or deceptive)].

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 will not support a claim, based on false or misleading advertising, against a savings association (or any other financial institution) that is subject to regulation by the federal Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS). Through its regulations in 12 C.F.R. Part 560, the OTS occupies the entire field of lending regulation for federal savings associations. Federal savings associations may extend credit as authorized under federal law, including 12 C.F.R. Part 560 without regard to state laws purporting to regulate or otherwise affect their credit activities [12 C.F.R. § 560.2(a)]. Examples of state laws that are thus preempted include state laws purporting to impose requirements regarding disclosure and advertising [12 C.F.R. § 560.2(b)(9)]. Because a claim under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 based on false or misleading advertising would be "entirely based on ... [the defendant's] disclosures and advertising," Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 would be, in that case, a law of the kind listed in the OTS regulations as intended to be preempted. Therefore, Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 as applied in such a case would be preempted by federal law [*Silvas v. E*Trade Mortgage Corp. (9th Cir. 2008) 514 F.3d 1001, 1006*].

[2] Creates Duty of Reasonable Care

The prohibition in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 against false or misleading advertising extends to negligent as well as intentional dissemination of such advertising [People v. Forest E. Olson, Inc. (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 137, 140, 186 Cal. Rptr. 804] . The statute establishes a duty of reasonable care that is not satisfied by unquestioning reliance on representations made by others. The duty of care is breached by a failure to verify and investigate representations when facts are present that would put a reasonable person on notice that the representations are possibly false [People v. Forest E. Olson, Inc. (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 137, 139, 186 Cal. Rptr. 804] . On the other hand, the statute does not impose strict liability on an owner of a business who has no knowledge of and did not participate in an employee's illegal conduct [People v. Regan (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 4 , 157 Cal. Rptr. 62] .

[3] Equivalent to Unfair Competition

As used in the unfair competition law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq.], "unfair competition" means and includes unfair, deceptive, untrue, or misleading advertising and any act prohibited by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq., the false advertising laws [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200]. Therefore, the remedies available to competitors and consumers under the unfair competition laws are applicable to actions for false advertising [see Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 209-210, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660] .

For a complaint that is based on false advertising and incorporates a cause of action for unfair competition, see § 14.60. For discussion and forms relating to statutory unfair competition generally, see Ch. 565, Unfair Competition .

[4] Other Theories of Recovery

[a] Fraud

False and misleading advertising may constitute the tort of fraudulent misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation, or fraudulent concealment [Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 215-221, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660 ; see Civ. Code § 1710(1), (2), (3)]. The elements of intentional fraud generally are [Molko v. Holy Spirit Assn. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1092, 1108, 252 Cal. Rptr. 122, 762 P.2d 46 ; see Civ. Code § 1710(1)]:

- A misrepresentation;
- Knowledge of its falsity;
- Intent to induce reliance on the misrepresentation;
- Justifiable reliance; and

- Resulting damage.

Negligent fraud arises from making the misrepresentation with no reasonable ground for believing it to be true [Civ. Code § 1710(2)]. Fraudulent concealment includes concealment of a fact by one who gives information of other facts that are likely to mislead in the absence of communication of the concealed fact [Civ. Code § 1710(3)].

If the misrepresentation in an advertisement is mere "puffing," or a statement of opinion, there cannot be liability for fraud [see Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 111, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377] . However, courts are narrowing the scope of "puffing" in favor of injured consumers, especially when the misrepresentation concerns safety [see Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 112, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377] . If the defendant had superior knowledge regarding the subject matter of the representations, and the other party is so situated that he or she may reasonably rely on that supposed superior knowledge or special information, the representations may be construed as fact, not opinion [Toole v. Richardson-Merrell, Inc. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 689, 706, 60 Cal. Rptr. 398 (manufacturer's oral and written statements to physicians and advertisements in medical journals concerning safety of drug)].

In an action for fraud based on false advertising, the element of intent is satisfied by alleging facts that show that defendant made the misrepresentations with the intention of inducing the public to purchase defendant's product or services [see Wennerholm v. Stanford Univ. Sch. of Med. (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 713, 716, 128 P.2d 522] .

The element of justifiable reliance requires that the plaintiff allege that he or she saw and relied on the defendant's advertisements [Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 218-219, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660] . Although generally there is a strict requirement that fraud be pleaded factually and specifically, this requirement may be relaxed when circumstances make specific pleading impossible and impractical, such as when many television commercials appear in a long-term advertising campaign and the defendant, not the plaintiff, has information concerning the time, place, and content of each commercial [Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 217-218, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660] .

Unlike a statutory action for false advertising [see [1], above], damages to an individual plaintiff must be pleaded to state a cause of action for fraud [Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 219-220, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660] .

For a complaint for damages for intentional and negligent fraud in advertising, see § 14.61. For a form for an affirmative defense based on "puffing," see § 14.68. For further discussion and forms relating to actions for fraud generally, see Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit .

[b] Consumer Legal Remedies Act

The Consumer Legal Remedies Act (Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.) provides remedies to consumers in the form of damages, including punitive damages, and attorneys' fees for particular kinds of false advertising practices [see Civ. Code §§ 1770(a), 1780(a),(e)]. The Act contains special procedural requirements, including a requirement that the consumer notify a potential defendant of the alleged violation at least 30 days before commencing an action for damages [Civ. Code § 1782] and special hearing and notice requirements for class actions [Civ. Code § 1781; see Clemons v. Western Photo Camera Hut (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 392, 394-396, 172 Cal. Rptr. 782 (class action brought for violation of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17533.8, 17537 and Civ. Code § 1770)].

The unlawful advertising practices prohibited by the Act include the following:

- Passing off goods or services as those of another [Civ. Code § 1770(a)(1)];

- Misrepresenting the source, sponsorship, approval, or certification of goods or services [Civ. Code § 1770(a)(1)];

- Representing that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, or quantities that they do not have [Civ. Code § 1770(a)(5)];

- Representing that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality or grade if they are not [Civ. Code § 1770(a)(7)];

- Making false or misleading statements of fact concerning reasons for, existence of, or amounts of price reductions [Civ. Code § 1770(a)(13)];

- Advertising goods or services with intent not to sell them as advertised [Civ. Code § 1770(a)(9)];

- Advertising goods or services with intent not to supply reasonably expectable demand, unless the advertisement discloses a limitation of quantity [Civ. Code § 1770(a)(10)];

- Advertising unassembled furniture without certain information required by statute [see Civ. Code § 1770(a)(11), (12)]; and

- Advertising that a product is being offered at a specific price plus a specific percentage of that price, unless (1) the total price is set forth in the advertisement, which may include, but is not limited to, shelf tags, displays, and media advertising, in a size larger than any other price in that advertisement, and (2) the specific price plus a specific percentage of that price represents a markup from the seller's costs or from the wholesale price of the product; except in the case of in-store advertising by businesses that are open only to members or by certain cooperative organizations if more than 50 percent of purchases are made at the specific price set forth in the advertisement [Civ. Code § 1770(a)(20)].

For a detailed discussion of the Consumers Legal Remedies Act, its procedural requirements, and related forms, see Ch. 504, Sales: Consumers Legal Remedies Act .

[c] Breach of Warranty

When a manufacturer engages in advertising in order to bring its goods and their quality to the attention of the public and thus to create a consumer demand, the representations made constitute an express warranty running directly to a buyer who purchases in reliance on the representations [Gherna v. Ford Motor Co. (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 639, 652, 55 Cal. Rptr. 94] . Therefore, when misrepresentations are made in advertising, labels, or disseminated literature, the advertiser may be held liable for damages for personal injuries suffered by a consumer who relies on the express warranty [see Lane v. C. A. Swanson & Sons (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 210, 211, 216, 278 P.2d 723 (newspaper advertisements stating that defendant's boned chicken had "no bones")].

For discussion and forms relating to liability on an express warranty, see Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties.

[d] Strict Products Liability

A plaintiff who suffers personal injuries as a result of using a defective product as directed in the manufacturer's advertisements may be able to recover under a theory of products liability, or strict liability in tort. Even if the plaintiff does not read and rely on false or misleading advertising statements but suffers personal injuries as a result of using a defective product, he or she can recover in strict liability on a showing that he or she was injured while using the product in the way it was intended to be used and as a result of a defect in design and manufacture of which plaintiff was not aware that made it unsafe for its intended use [Greenman v. Yuba Power Products, Inc. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 57, 64, 27 Cal. Rptr. 697, 377 P.2d 897 (plaintiff relied on manufacturer's brochure attesting to "ruggedness" of power lathe)].

For discussion and forms relating to strict products liability, see Ch. 460, Products Liability .

[e] Federal Trademark Law

Federal trademark law provides remedies for false or misleading advertising. The Lanham Act [15 U.S.C. § 1051 et seq.] creates civil liability for commercial advertising or promotions that misrepresent the nature, characteristics, qualities, or geographic origin of the advertiser's goods, services, or commercial activities, or of the goods, services, or commercial activities of another person, such as a competitor [see 15 U.S.C. § 1125(a)(1)(B)]. Remedies available for violation of the statute include both an injunction and monetary relief, consisting of defendant's profits, plaintiff's damages, costs, and, in exceptional cases, reasonable attorney's fees [15 U.S.C. § 1116(a) (injunction), 15 U.S.C. § 1117(a) (monetary relief)]. For further discussion of the Lanham Act and its application to false advertising, see Ch. 549, Trademarks and Trade Names .

False credit advertising is specifically prohibited by the federal Truth-in-Lending Act (15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.). For further discussion, see Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

2-14 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 14.13

§ 14.13 Types of False and Misleading Advertising

[1] Unadvertised Limitations on Quantity of Sales

[a] In General

It is unlawful for any person, firm, corporation, or association to falsely advertise the quantity of any article that will be sold to any one customer on demand in a single transaction, and willfully or negligently to fail to disclose in the advertisement any restriction that is in fact put on the quantity of the article that is sold or offered for sale to any one customer on demand in a single transaction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.5(a)]. This prohibition does not affect any right a seller may have to refuse to extend credit to a customer, and is not applicable to a customer purchasing for resale [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.5(c)].

The Consumers Legal Remedies Act makes a person liable to a consumer for advertising goods or services with intent not to supply reasonably expectable demand, unless the advertisement discloses a limitation of quantity [see Civ. Code §§ 1770(j), 1780]. For further discussion of prohibitions and remedies under the Act, see § 14.12[4][b].

[b] Damages Recoverable by Individual Plaintiff

Anyone who, by means of a false or negligent advertisement or publicity prohibited by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.5(a), induces any individual retail purchaser and consumer to enter any place of business designated in the advertisement or publicity seeking to buy an advertised article in any quantity then available for sale on the premises, is liable to each such person so induced and refused for his or her resulting losses and expenses, and the additional sum of $50 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.5(b)]. This liability applies only to actions brought in the name of, and on behalf of, a single plaintiff and are not applicable in multiple plaintiff or class actions [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.5(d)].

For a form for a complaint based on Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.5 for losses, expenses, and the statutory penalty, see § 14.63.

[2] Advertised "Former Price"

No price may be advertised as a former price of any advertised thing, unless the alleged former price was the prevailing market price within three months immediately preceding the publication of the advertisement, or unless the date when the alleged former price did prevail is clearly, exactly, and conspicuously stated in the advertisement. The worth or value of any thing advertised is the prevailing market price, wholesale if the offer is at wholesale, retail if the offer is at retail, at the time of publication of such advertisement in the locality wherein the advertisement is published [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17501].

[3] Misrepresentation of Control, Character, or Volume of Business

No person may state, in an advertisement of his or her goods, that he or she is a producer, manufacturer, processor, wholesaler, or importer, or that he or she owns or controls a factory or other source of supply of goods, when such is not the fact, and no person may in any other manner misrepresent the character, extent, volume, or type of his or her business [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17505].

[4] Deceptive Pricing

The general prohibition of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 includes a provision making it unlawful to advertise personal property or services as part of a plan or scheme with the intent not to sell the property or services so advertised at the price stated therein, or as so advertised [see discussion under § 14.43[7]].

It is also unlawful for any person, firm, corporation, or association to make an advertising claim or representation pertaining to more than one article of merchandise or type of service, within the same class of merchandise or service, if any price set forth in the claim or representation does not clearly and conspicuously identify the article of merchandise or type of service to which it relates. Disclosure of the relationship between the price and particular article of merchandise or type of service by means of an asterisk or other symbol, and corresponding footnote, does not meet the requirement of clear and conspicuous identification when the particular article of merchandise or type of service is not represented pictorially [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17507].

It is also unlawful for a retail seller, when selling a consumer good or service that is sold only in multiple units and that is advertised by price, to advertise those goods or services at any price other than the price of the minimum multiple unit in which they are offered [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17504(a)]. However, a retail seller may advertise a consumer good or service for sale at a single unit price if the goods or services are sold only in multiple units and not in single units, as long as the advertisement also discloses, at least as prominently, the price of the minimum multiple unit in which they are offered [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17504(b)]. Consumer goods and services are articles or services obtained for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, but do not include food items [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17504(c), (d)]. Retail sellers include any person, partnership, corporation, firm, joint stock company, association, or organization engaged in business in California and selling consumer goods or services to retail buyers [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17504(a), (e)].

[5] Transaction Conditioned on Sale or Lease of Different Product or Service

Any advertisement, including any advertisement over the internet, soliciting the purchase or lease of a product or service (or any combination of product and service), requiring as a condition of sale the purchase or lease of a different product or service (or any combination of product and service), must conspicuously disclose the price of all such products or services in the advertisement [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17509(a)]. This does not affect the provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 16726 and 16727 regarding unlawful buying arrangements [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17509(a)]; for discussion, see Ch. 565, Unfair Competition .

Certain contractual plans or arrangements, however, are exempt from the disclosure requirement. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17509(a) does not apply to contractual plans or arrangements in which the seller periodically provides the consumer with a form or announcement card that the consumer may use to instruct the seller not to ship merchandise offered by the seller [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17509(b)]. For this exemption to apply, the seller must comply with the following requirements [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17509(b)(1)]:

- The instructions not to ship merchandise must be printed on the form or card in type as large as all other instructions and terms stated on it.

- The form or card must specify a "mailing date" by which it must be mailed by the consumer or a "return date" by which it must be received by the seller to prevent shipment of merchandise.

- The consumer must be afforded at least 10 days in which to mail the form or card. The seller must mail the form or card either at least 25 days before the return date or at least 20 days before the mailing date, or provide a mailing date at least 10 days after receipt by the consumer.

- The form or card must be preaddressed to the seller to serve as a postal reply card, or must be accompanied by a return envelope addressed to the seller.

- On the membership contract or application form or on the same page and immediately adjacent to the contract or form (and in clear and conspicuous language), the material terms of the plan or arrangement must be disclosed, including the following:

  - That aspect of the plan under which the subscriber must notify the seller, in the manner provided for by the seller, if the subscriber does not wish to purchase or receive the selection;

  - Any obligation assumed by the subscriber to purchase a minimum quantity of merchandise;

  - The right of a contract-complete subscriber to cancel his or her membership at any time; and

  - Whether billing charges will include an amount for postage and handling.

The disclosure requirement also does not apply to other contractual plans or arrangements not covered under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17509(a), such as continuity plans, subscription arrangements, standing-order arrangements, supplements, and series arrangements under which the seller periodically ships merchandise to a consumer who has consented in advance to receive that merchandise on a periodic basis [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17509(b)(2)].

Finally, Bus. & Prof. Code § 17509 does not apply to the publisher of any newspaper, periodical, or other publication, to any radio or television broadcaster, or to the owner or operator of any cable, satellite, or other medium of communication who broadcasts or publishes, including over the internet, an advertisement or offer in good faith without knowledge of its violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17509(a) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17509(c)].

[6] Factual Claims and Brand Comparisons

It is unlawful for any person doing business in California and advertising to consumers in California to make any false or misleading advertising claim, including claims that (1) purport to be based on factual, objective, or clinical evidence, (2) compare the product's effectiveness or safety to that of other brands or products, or (3) purport to be based on any fact [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17508(a)]. The Director of Consumer Affairs, the Attorney General, or, with prior notice to the Attorney General, any city attorney, or any district attorney may, within one year of the last day on which the advertising claims were made, make a written request that the advertiser substantiate the claims. In response to the request, the person on whose behalf the claims are made must provide evidence of the facts on which the advertising claims are based [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17508(b)]. If the advertiser fails to respond by adequately substantiating the claim within a reasonable time, or if the public official has reason to believe that the advertising claim is false or misleading, the public official may do either or both of the following: (1) seek an immediate termination or modification of the claim in accordance with Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535, and*(2)* disseminate to California consumers information concerning the truth of the claims or why they are misleading, taking due care to protect legitimate trade secrets [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17508(c); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17508(f) (public official's burden of proof to establish violation); for remedies under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535, see § 14.43[8]].

With Bus. & Prof. Code § 17508, the Legislature established an administrative procedure by which prosecuting authorities may demand substantiation of advertising claims. The statute, however, is expressly applicable only to prosecuting authorities. Private plaintiffs are not authorized to demand substantiation for advertising claims [National Council Against Health Fraud, Inc. v. King Bio Pharmaceuticals, Inc. (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 1336, 1345, 1348, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 207 (holding that it would be inappropriate to shift burden of proof to defendant in private plaintiff false advertising action when private plaintiff is not authorized by statute to seek substantiation of advertising claim from defendant)].

A newspaper publisher or radio or television broadcaster is not liable for publishing or broadcasting advertising claims that violate Bus. & Prof. Code § 17508(a) unless the publisher or broadcaster is the person making the claims [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17508(e)].

Violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17508(a) is not a misdemeanor, but otherwise the relief provided for violation of the statute is in addition to any other relief that may be sought for a violation of the false advertising statutes contained in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq. [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17508(d)]. If the advertising claims also violate both Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 [see § 14.12[1]] and Bus. & Prof. Code § 17508, however, the court may only impose a civil penalty under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17536 for the violation of one or the other statute, but not for both [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17508(g); for imposition of civil penalties under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17536, the discussion in § 14.44[1][b]].

It is unlawful for any person, firm, corporation, or association to sell or offer for sale in California any merchandise if there appears on the merchandise or its container the words "Made in U.S.A.," "Made in America," "U.S.A.," or similar words, and the merchandise or any article, unit, or part thereof has been entirely or substantially made, manufactured, or produced outside of the United States [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17533.7; Colgan v. Leatherman Tool Group, Inc. (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 663 (fact that product may have been designed, processed, and assembled in United States would not prevent conclusion that some part of it was substantially made, manufactured, or produced outside United States; tools were unlawfully claimed to be "Made in U.S.A." since significant working parts were investment cast, fineblanked, formed, hardened, cut, forged, polished, or machined in various foreign countries and plier jaws that were investment cast in Mexico had letters "USA" stamped onto them); see Benson v. Kwikset Corp. (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1254, 1268-1269, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 284 , reh'g granted, depublished, 2004 Cal. App. Lexis 1274 (statute is not unconstitutional; does not have a chilling effect on constitutionally protected speech, and is not void for vagueness)].

Merchandise has been "substantially made, manufactured, or produced outside the United States" when foreign operations, processes, or activities employed to create the merchandise are found to be considerable in either amount, value, or worth. When the merchandise consists of two or more physical elements or pieces, Bus. & Prof. Code § 17533.7 applies to any distinct component of the merchandise that is necessary for its proper use or operation [Benson v. Kwikset Corp. (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1254, 1272-1273, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 284 , reh'g denied, 2007 Cal. App. LEXIS 1229 (screws and pins made in Taiwan were distinct components clearly necessary to proper use or operation of lockset because without them one could not install or operate that product; partial assembly of lockset latches in Mexico was part of manufacturing process)].

[8] Used, Defective, or "Seconds" Merchandise

It is unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation, in any newspaper, magazine, circular, form letter, or any open publication, published, distributed, or circulated in California, including over the internet, or on any billboard, card, label, or other advertising medium, or by means of any other advertising device, to advertise, call attention to, or give publicity to the sale of any merchandise that is secondhand or used merchandise, that is defective in any manner, that consists of articles or units or parts known as "seconds," or blemished merchandise, or that has been rejected by the manufacturer as not first class, unless there is conspicuously displayed directly in connection with the name and description of that merchandise and each specifie d article, unit, or part of it, a direct and unequivocal statement, phrase, or word that clearly indicates that the merchandise or each article, unit, or part so advertised is secondhand, used, defective, or consists of "seconds," or is blemished merchandise, or has been rejected by the manufacturer, as the fact may be [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17531].

[9] Labeling as Products of Blind Workers

No goods or articles that are determined by label, symbol, trade name, or name of the manufacturer to indicate they are made by blind workers may be delivered or offered for sale in California unless at least 75 percent of the total hours of direct labor of producing the goods have been performed by workers who are blind, as defined in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17521(a) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17522; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17523 (contents of labels)].

[10] Surplus Materials

Advertising surplus materials, as defined in the Federal Surplus Property Act of 1944 [50 U.S.C. § 1622 et seq.], is unlawful unless there is conspicuously displayed directly in connection with the name and description of the merchandise a direct unequivocal statement clearly indicating that the merchandise advertised is or consists of surplus materials [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17531.5]. It is also unlawful to sell or offer for sale any surplus materials if words, such as "Army" or "Navy," are used that tend to lead the purchasing public to believe, contrary to fact, that the offering establishment has some official relationship to the United States government, or that all of the articles sold or offered are surplus materials, or that they are of a higher quality and lower prices than obtainable elsewhere [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17533.5].

[11] Prizes or Gifts

[a] In General

It is unlawful for any person to use the term "prize" or "gift" or other similar term in any manner that would be untrue or misleading [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537(a)]. This general prohibition includes, but is not limited to, an offer of a conditional prize as part of an advertising plan (discussed in § 14.13[12][b] below) and an offer of a conditional gift in certain circumstances (discussed in § 14.13[12][b]). A person who violates Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537 is liable in a civil action for damages [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.4; see the discussion in § 14.13[12][b], [d]].

In addition, it is generally unlawful for any person to offer by mail, by telephone, in person, or by any other means or in any other form, including over the internet, a prize or gift, with the intent to offer a sales presentation, without disclosing at the time of the offer of the prize or gift, in a clear and unequivocal manner, the intent to offer the sales presentation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17533.8(a)]. An advertiser who violates this prohibition is subject to an injunction, the general remedy for violations or proposed violations of the false advertising statutes [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535; see the discussion in § 14.18[2][a]]. The prohibition does not apply, however, to a media publisher, broadcaster, or owner who broadcasts or publishes, including over the internet, an advertisement or offer in good faith, without knowledge that it violates the statute [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17533.8(b)].

It is specifically unlawful for any person, or an employee, agent, or independent contractor employed or authorized by that person, to offer, as part of an advertising program, any incentive as an inducement to the recipient to visit a location, to attend a sales presentation, or to contact a sales agent in person, by telephone, or by mail, unless the offer meets statutory disclosure and other requirements [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(a); see also discussion in § 14.13[12][e]. A person who violates Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1] is liable in a civil action for damages [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.4; see discussion in § 14.13[12][d]].

Contests in which money or other valuable consideration may be solicited and the winning of prizes offered are regulated by Bus. & Prof. Code*§ 17539 et seq. Bus. & Prof. Code* § 17539.1(a) states what constitutes unfair acts or practices in relation to contests, but it does not apply to an advertising plan or program regulated by and in compliance with Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17539.1(b); see discussion in § 14.13[12][e]].

[b] Conditional Prizes

It is unlawful to notify any person by any means, as a part of an advertising plan or program, that he or she has won a prize and that, as a condition of receiving the prize, he or she must pay any money or purchase or rent any goods or services [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537(a), (b)].

If a person making an offer subject to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537, or any employee or agent of such a person, violates any provision of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537, the recipient of the offer who is damaged by the violation may bring a civil action against the person making the offer for, and may be awarded, treble damages. The court may award reasonable attorney's fees to the prevailing party [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.4]. For a complaint for a violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537, see § 14.64.

[c] Conditional Gifts

[i] When Unlawful

It is unlawful for any person to use the term "gift" or other similar term in any manner that would be untrue or misleading [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537(a)]. Under certain circumstances, this general prohibition includes, but is not limited to, notifying a person by any means that he or she will receive a gift and that, as a condition of receiving the gift, he or she must pay any money, or purchase or lease (including rent) any goods or services, when specified conditions exist [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537(b), (c)]. Unlike the prohibition against conditional prize offers, Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537(c) makes conditional gift offers unlawful only when specified conditions exist, as discussed in § 15.13[12][c][ii]-[vi] [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537(c)(1)-(5)].

A violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537 is a misdemeanor [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17537(e)].

[ii] Excessive Shipping or Handling Charges

A conditional gift offer is unlawful if the shipping charge, depending on the method of shipping used, exceeds either (1) the average cost of postage or the average charge of a delivery service in the business of delivering goods of like size, weight, and kind for shippers other than the offeror of the gift for the geographic area in which the gift is being distributed, or (2) the exact amount for shipping paid to an independent fulfillment house or an independent supplier, either of which is in the business of shipping goods for shippers other than the offeror of the gift [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537(c)(1)]. A conditional gift offer is also unlawful if the handling charge (1) is not reasonable, or (2) exceeds the actual cost of handling, or (3) exceeds the greater of $3 in any transaction or 80 percent of the actual cost of the gift item to the offeror or its agent [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537(c)(2)].

[iii] Overcharge for Goods or Services

A conditional gift offer is unlawful if any goods or services that must be purchased or leased by the offeree of the gift in order to obtain the gift could have been purchased through the same marketing channel in which the gift was offered for a lower price without the gift items at or proximate to the time the gift was offered [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537(c)(3)]. The marketing channel is the method of retail distribution, including, but not limited to, catalog sales, mail order, telephone sales, and in-person sales at retail outlets [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537(d)(1)].

[iv] Majority of Sales or Leases Involve Offer

A conditional gift offer is unlawful if, of the total sales or leases made by the gift offeror (1) within the preceding year, (2) through the marketing channel in which the gift is offered or through in-person sales at retail outlets, and (3) of the type of goods or services that must be purchased or leased in order to obtain the gift item, the majority was made in conjunction with the offer of a gift [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537(c)(4)].

[v] False Claim That Offeree Was "Specially Selected"

A conditional gift offer is unlawful if the gift offeror represents that the offeree has been specially selected in any manner, unless (1) the representation is true, and (2) the offeree made a purchase from the gift offeror within the six-month period before the gift offer was made or has a credit card issued by, or a retail installment account with, the gift offeror [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537(c)(5)].

[vi] General Merchandise Retailers

The prohibition against conditional gift offers applies to a general merchandise retailer, which is any person or entity, regardless of the form of organization, that has continually offered for sale or lease more than 100 different types of goods or services to the public in California throughout a period exceeding five years [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17537(c), (d)(2)].

In addition to the generally applicable prohibition on excessive handling charges, it is unlawful for a general merchandise retailer who offers a conditional gift to impose a handling charge exceeding the actual amount for handling that is paid to an independent fulfillment house or supplier, either of which is in the business of handling goods for businesses other than the general merchandise retailer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537(c)(2)(D)].

Under certain circumstances, a general merchandise retailer is not subject to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537(c)(4), which makes a conditional gift offer unlawful when similar offers constitute the majority of the offeror's sales or leases. The prohibition does not apply to a gift offer made by a general merchandise retailer in conjunction with the sale or lease through mail order of goods or services (excluding catalog sales) if the following conditions exist [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537(c)(4)]:

- The goods or services are of a type unlike any other type of goods or services sold or leased by the general merchandise retailer at any time during the period beginning six months before and continuing six months after the gift offer;
- The gift offer does not extend for a period of more than two months; and
- The gift offer is not untrue or misleading in any manner.

[d] Civil Action for Treble Damages

If a person making an offer subject to Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17537 or 17537.1(a), or any employee or agent of such a person, violates any provision of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17537 or 17537.1, the recipient of the offer who is damaged by the violation may bring a civil action against the person making the offer for, and may be awarded, treble damages. The court may award reasonable attorney's fees to the prevailing party [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.4]. For a form of complaint for a violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537, see § 14.64.

[e] Inducement to Visit Location, Attend Sales Presentation, or Contact Sales Agent

[i] Restrictions

It is unlawful for any person, or an employee, agent, or independent contractor employed or authorized by that person, by any means, as part of an advertising plan or program, to offer any incentive as an inducement to the recipient to visit a location, to attend a sales presentation, or to contact a sales agent in person, by telephone, or by mail, unless the offer clearly and conspicuously discloses in writing, in readily understandable language, all of the information below [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(a)].

Disclosures that must appear on the front or first page of the offer include the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(a)(1)]:

- The name and street address of the owner of the real or personal property or the provider of the services that are the subject of the visit, sales presentation, or contact with a sales agent. If the offer is made by an agent or independent contractor employed or authorized by the owner or provider, or is made under a name other than the true name of the owner or provider, the name of the owner or provider shall be more prominently and conspicuously displayed than the name of the agent, independent contractor, or other name.

- A general description of the business of the owner or provider identified pursuant to paragraph (A), and the purpose of any requested visit, sales presentation, or contact with a sales agent, which must include a general description of the real or personal property or services that are the subject of the sales presentation and a clear statement, if applicable, that there will be a sales presentation and the approximate duration of the visit and sales presentation.

- If the recipient is not assured of receiving any particular incentive, a statement of the odds of receiving each incentive offered or, in the alternative, a clear statement describing the location in the offer where the odds can be found. The odds must be stated in whole Arabic numbers in a format such as: "1 chance in 100,000" or "1:100,000." The odds and, when applicable, the alternative statement describing their location must be printed in a type size that is at least equal to that used for the standard text on the front or first page of the offer.

- A clear statement, if applicable, that the offer is subject to specific restrictions, qualifications, and conditions and a statement describing the location in the offer where the restrictions, qualifications, and conditions may be found. Both statements must be printed in a type size that is at least equal to that used for the standard text on the front or first page of the offer.

Disclosures that must appear in the offer, but need not appear on the front or first page of the offer, include the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(a)(2)]:

- Unless the odds are disclosed on the front or first page of the offer, a statement of the odds of receiving each incentive offered, printed in the size and format set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(a)(1)(C).

- All restrictions, qualifications, and other conditions that must be satisfied before the recipient is entitled to receive the incentive, including but not limited to (1) any deadline by which the recipient must visit the location, attend the sales presentation, or contact the sales agent in order to receive an incentive, and (2) any other conditions, such as a minimum age qualification, a financial qualification, or a requirement that, if the recipient is married, both husband and wife must be present in order to receive the incentive. Any financial qualifications must be stated with a specificity sufficient to enable the recipient to reasonably determine his or her eligibility.

- A statement that the owner or provider identified pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(a)(1)(A) reserves the right to provide a raincheck, or a substitute or like incentive, if those rights are reserved.

- A statement that a recipient who receives an offered incentive may request and will receive evidence showing that the incentive provided matches the incentive randomly or otherwise selected for distribution to that recipient.

- All other rules, terms, and conditions of the offer, plan, or program.

In addition, it is unlawful for any person making an offer subject to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(a), or any employee, agent, or independent contractor employed or authorized by that person, to do any of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(g)]:

- Use any printing styles, graphics, layouts, text, colors, or formats on envelopes or on the offer that implies, creates an appearance, or would lead a reasonable person to believe that the offer originates from or is issued by or on behalf of a government or public agency, public utility, public organization, insurance company, credit reporting agency, bill collecting company, or law firm, unless the same is true.

- Misrepresent the size, quantity, identity, value, or qualities of any incentive.

- Misrepresent in any manner the odds of receiving any particular incentive.

- Represent directly or by implication that the number of participants has been significantly limited or that any person has been selected to receive a particular incentive unless that is the fact.

- Label any offer a notice of termination or notice of cancellation.

- Misrepresent, in any manner, the offer, plan, program or the affiliation, connection, association, or contractual relationship between the person making the offer and the owner or provider, if they are not the same.

[ii] Randomly Selected Recipients

If the major incentives are awarded or given at random, by the assignment of a number to the items, that number must be actually assigned by the party contractually responsible for doing so. The person making an offer subject to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(a), or the offeror's agent, employee, independent contractor, must maintain records showing that the winning numbers or opportunity to receive the incentives have been deposited in the mail or otherwise made available to recipients in accordance with the odds disclosure statement required by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(a)(1)(C). The records must be maintained for a period of one year after the date the offer is made. Postal receipt records, affidavits of mailing, or a list of winners or recipients of the major incentives satisfy the recordkeeping requirement. The records must be made available to the Attorney General within 30 days after written request for them [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(h)].

[iii] Failure to Provide Prize or Gift

It is unlawful for any person making an offer subject to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(a), or any employee, agent, or independent contractor employed or authorized by that person, to offer any incentive when the person knows or has reason to know that the offered item will not be available in a sufficient quantity based on the reasonably anticipated response to the offer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(b)].

In addition, it is unlawful for any person making an offer subject to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(a), or any of the offeror's employees, agents, or independent contractors, to fail to provide any offered incentive that any recipient who has responded to the offer in the manner specified in the offer, who has performed the requirements disclosed in the offer, and who has met the qualifications described in the offer is entitled to receive. Failure to provide the incentive is not unlawful, however, if the offered incentive is not reasonably available and the offer discloses the reservation of a right to provide a raincheck, or a like or substitute incentive, if the offered incentive is unavailable [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(c)].

If the person making an offer subject to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(a) is unable to provide an offered incentive because of limitations of supply, quantity, or quality that were not reasonably foreseeable or controllable by the person making the offer, the offeror must inform the recipient of the recipient's right to receive a raincheck for the incentive offered, unless the offeror knows or has reasonable basis for knowing that the incentive will not be reasonably available. The offeror must also inform the recipient of the recipient's right to receive at least one of the following additional options: (1) a like incentive of equivalent or greater retail value or a raincheck; (2) a substitute incentive of equivalent or greater retail value; or (3) a raincheck for the like or substitute incentive [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(d)].

If a raincheck is provided, the offeror must, within a reasonable time, and in no event later than 80 days, deliver the agreed incentive to the recipient's address without additional cost or obligation to the recipient, unless the incentive for which the raincheck is provided remains unavailable because of limitations of supply, quantity, or quality not reasonably foreseeable or controllable by the offeror. In that case, the offeror must, not later than 30 days after the expiration of 80 days, deliver a like incentive of equal or greater retail value. If a like incentive is not reasonably available to the offeror, a substitute incentive of equal or greater retail value must be provided [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(e)].

[iv] Other Deceptive and Unfair Trade Practices

When used as part of an advertising plan or program defined in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1, the following acts constitute deceptive and unfair trade practices [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.2]:

- When, to utilize the incentive, the recipient is requested to pay any money to any person or entity named or referred to in the offer or to purchase, to rent, or otherwise to pay that person or entity for any product or service including a deposit, whether returnable or not, whether payment is for an item, a service, shipping, handling, insurance or payment for anything. However, if the offered incentive is a certificate or coupon redeemable for transportation, accommodations, recreation, vacation, entertainment, or like services, the offer may place a condition on the use of the incentive that requires the recipient to pay directly to the direct provider of services a refundable deposit, not to exceed $50, to reserve space availability or admission, only if the deposit will be returned immediately on the recipient's arrival at the location of the direct provider. Further, if government-imposed taxes directly related to the service being provided are not included in the incentive, the offer itself, in close proximity to the description of the incentive, must disclose those government-imposed taxes that will be the recipient's responsibility and their approximate dollar amount. A deposit may be collected from the recipient to cover the cost of those government-imposed taxes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.2(a)]. This prohibition aldo does not apply to an incentive constituting an opportunity to stay at a hotel or other resort accommodations at a discount from the standard rate for the hotel or resort accommodations if [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.2(f)]:

- The fee to utilize the incentive and the requirement, if any, to attend a sales presentation are clearly and conspicuously disclosed in close proximity to the description of the offered incentive;

- A statement appears in close proximity to the description of the offered incentive in substantially the following form: "The recipient is responsible for payment of any government-imposed taxes directly related to the service being provided d any personal expenses incurred when utilizing this offer";

- The accommodations to be occupied are within a 20-mile radius of the property on which the accommodations offered for sale are located or, if not within that radius, the accommodations offered for sale are managed and operated by the manager and operator of the accommodations to be occupied or an affiliate [Corp. Code § 150] or a franchisee [Bus. & Prof. Code § 20002] of the manager and operator, and the manager and operator of the accommodations offered for sale, or of the accommodations to be occupied, is an issuer or subsidiary of an issuer that has a security listed on a national securities exchange or designated as a national market system security on an interdealer quotation system by the National Association of Security Dealers, Inc., and the exchange or interdealer quotation system has been certified by the Commissioner of Corporations under Corp. Code § 25100(o). A subsidiary of an issuer that qualifies under this exception does not itself qualify under this paragraph unless 60 percent or more of the voting power of its shares is owned by the qualifying issuer or issuers; and

- The offer of any additional incentive, if made in conjunction with the original incentive, complies with Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1, is typically and customarily included in a vacation package (and may include transportation, dining, entertainment, or recreation), and clearly and conspicuously discloses, in close proximity to the offer's description of the additional incentive, the fee and additional requirements, if any, to use the additional incentive.

- Stating or implying in the offer that the recipient is one of a selected group to receive one or more of a group of incentives, without clearly and conspicuously disclosing in close proximity to the statement or implied statement of selection the total number of persons in that select group or the odds of receiving the incentives. Statements of selection that require such disclosure include such phrases as "you are a finalist," "we are sending this to a limited number of people," "either you or another named person has won the major prize," and "if you do not respond your incentive will be given to someone else" [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.2(b)].

- Stating or implying in the offer that the recipient is likely to receive one or more of the offered incentives because other named people have already received other named incentives, unless the offer clearly and conspicuously discloses in close proximity to the statement the recipient's odds of receiving the identified incentive [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.2(c)].

- When the solicitation states or implies that the recipient is likely to receive an incentive that has a normal retail price that is higher than that of another named incentive unless that statement is true. A list of incentives implies that the incentives are in descending or ascending order of value unless the solicitation clearly and conspicuously negates the implication in close proximity to the list [Bus. & Prof.

Code § 17537.2(d)].

- Describing an incentive in an untrue or misleading manner, including descriptions that imply that the incentive is of greater fair market value or of a different kind or nature than a recipient would be led to believe from a reasonable reading of the offer or that lists the recipient's name in close proximity to a specific incentive unless the offer clearly and conspicuously discloses immediately next to the recipient's name the recipient's odds of receiving the specific incentive.

[v] Treble Damages

If a person making an offer subject to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(a), or any employee or agent of such a person, violates any provision of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1, the recipient of the offer who is damaged by the violation may bring a civil action against the person making the offer for, and may be awarded, treble damages. The court may award reasonable attorney's fees to the prevailing party [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.4]. For a form of complaint for a violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1, see § 14.65.

[12] Coupons

It is unlawful for any person to offer a coupon, as defined, that is untrue or misleading in any manner [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.11(a)], or that describes the coupon as free, a gift or prize, or uses words of similar import, if the recipient has to pay money or buy goods or services to obtain or use the coupon and the person offering the coupon, or anyone honoring the coupon, made the majority of his or her sales during the preceding year in connection with one or more similarly described coupons [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.11(b)].

[13] Real Estate

It is unlawful for any person, firm, corporation, or association, or any employee or agent of such an entity, to make or disseminate any statement or assertion of fact in a newspaper, circular, form letter, or other publication published or circulated, including over the internet, in any language in California concerning the extent, location, ownership, title, or other characteristic, quality, or attribute of any real estate located in California or elsewhere, that is known to him or her to be untrue and that is made or disseminated with the intention of misleading. This rule is not construed to hold the publisher of any newspaper or any job printer liable for any such publication unless the publisher or printer has an interest either as owner or agent in the real estate so advertised [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17530].

Civil and criminal penalties for violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17530 are mutually exclusive [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17536(e); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17536 (civil penalties), discussed under § 14.44[7][a][i]].

[14] Unassembled Toys

Every manufacturer, wholesaler, jobber, distributor, or other person who packages children's toys for sale to any retailer is required to clearly state on the outside of the package that the toy is unassembled if that is the case. If children's toys are packaged outside California, the first wholesaler, jobber, distributor, or other person who has possession or control of the toys in California in the course of distribution or marketing for sale to any retailer may not further distribute or market the toys if they are unassembled unless and until the outside of each package clearly states that the toys are unassembled [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17531.1].

[15] Newspapers and Periodicals

It is unlawful for any proprietor or publisher of any newspaper or periodical, including any newspaper or periodical published over the internet, willfully and knowingly to misrepresent the circulation of the newspaper or periodical for the purpose of securing advertising or other patronage [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17533].

[16] Charitable Solicitations

California law requires that prior to any solicitation or sales solicitation for charitable purposes the solicitor or seller must make certain written disclosures to the prospective donor or purchaser. The required disclosures include (1) the non-tax-exempt status of the soliciting organization or fund, if the organization or fund for which the money or funds are being solicited does not have a charitable tax exemption under both federal and state law, and (2) the percentage of the total gift or purchase price that may be deducted as a charitable contribution under both federal and state law [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17510.3(a)]. Individual volunteers making nonsales solicitations and volunteers under 18 years of age are exempted from the full disclosure requirement [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17510.3(c), (d)]. However, it appears that the validity of several provisions of the disclosure requirement is in doubt in light of the United Supreme Court's decision in Riley v. National Federation of Blind (1988) 487 U.S. 781, 108 S. Ct. 2667, 101 L. Ed. 2d 669 , in which the court struck down a state's charitable solicitations statute that required professional fundraisers to disclose to potential donors, before an appeal for funds, the percentage of charitable contributions collected during the previous 12 months that were actually turned over to charity. The court held that the statute was a content-based regulation that impermissibly burdened free speech [Riley v. National Federation of Blind (1988) 487 U.S. 781, 795, 798-801, 108 S. Ct. 2667, 101 L. Ed. 2d 669] .

[17] Telephone Solicitations

[a] In General

Telephonic sellers, as defined in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17511.1, are required to register with the Department of Justice. Registration and filing requirements are set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17511.3, 17511.4, and 17511.6. They are also required to make the following disclosures to each prospective purchaser at the time the solicitation is made and before consummation of any sales transaction [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17511.5]:

- If the seller represents or implies that the purchaser will receive an item free of charge, then the seller's address and the address from which the call is made; the manner of selecting items the purchaser is to receive; the odds that the purchaser will receive the described item; and the number of individuals who, during the preceding 12 months, have actually received the item having the greatest value and the item with the smallest odds of being received and all rules, regulations, terms, and conditions a prospective purchaser must meet in order to receive the item. In addition, each time the telephonic seller makes reference to an item or items, he or she must state that no purchase is necessary, and that a purchaser of goods will have no greater chance of receiving the more valuable item or items than a person who does not purchase. The seller must state, in a manner enabling a consumer to copy the information, the method, including the telephonic seller's address, for obtaining without purchase the item or items or for a chance to obtain the item or items. The provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.2 (discussed in § 14.13[12][e][iv]) apply to all offers.

- If the seller offers any metal, stone, or mineral, then the seller's address and the address from which the call is made; the address and name of the owner of the premises where the offered item will be kept; and information specified by statute to substantiate any claim as to the earning or profit potential of the offered item.

- If the seller offers an interest in oil, gas, or mineral fields, wells, or exploration sites, then the seller's address and the address from which the call is made; the seller's ownership interest in the field, well, or site; the total number of interests to be sold in the field, well, or site; the credentials of any investigator of the field, well, or site; and information specified by statute to substantiate any claim as to the earning or profit potential of the purchase.

- If the seller represents that office equipment or supplies being offered are offered at prices below those usually charged, then the seller's address; the address from which the call is made; and the name of each manufacturer of each item represented for sale in which the prospective purchaser expresses interest.

- If the solicitation is a "home solicitation contract" [see Civ. Code § 1689.5 (home solicitation contract defined)], the seller must inform the buyer orally that (1) the buyer has the right to cancel the contract or offer until midnight of the third business day after the day on which the buyer receives the product ordered or the notice of confirmation of services ordered; and (2) a written notice of cancellation will be sent with the product ordered or, in the case of services ordered, the written notice of cancellation will accompany the notice of confirmation, that will be sent to the buyer immediately after the telephonic agreement to purchase those services. This right of cancellation begins to run from the date of the buyer's receipt of the product ordered, or in the case of services ordered, from the buyer's receipt of the notice of confirmation of services ordered.

The seller also must provide the buyer with a written notice of cancellation (in duplicate, in specified language and type size, with no other information or statement) that will accompany and be attached to any product sent to the buyer in response to a telephone solicitation, or in the case of services ordered, will accompany the notice of confirmation of the agreement [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17511.5(e)(2)].

In addition to any other remedies allowed by law, criminal penalties are set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17511.9 for any person, including but not limited to the seller, a salesperson, agent, or representative of the seller, or an independent contractor, who willfully violates Bus. & Prof. Code § 17511 et seq., who directly or indirectly employs any device, scheme, or artifice to deceive in connection with the offer or sale by any telephonic seller, or who willfully, directly, or indirectly, engages in any act, practice, or course of business that operates or would operate as a fraud or deceit on any person in connection with a sale by any telephonic seller [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17511.10 (criminal remedies not exclusive)]. In addition, any salesperson who solicits prospective purchasers on behalf of a telephonic seller who is not currently registered is guilty of a misdemeanor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17511.8].

In any civil proceeding alleging a violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17511 et seq., the burden of proving an exemption or an exception from a definition is on the person claiming it, and, in any criminal proceeding, the burden of producing evidence to support a defense based on an exemption or an exception from a definition is on the person claiming it [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17511.1(f)].

A person who sends a solicitation by mail that solicits a recipient to consent to receive information via telephone, where that recipient's telephone number is not listed on the national "do not call" registry established and maintained by the Federal Trade Commission, as described in 16 C.F.R. § 310.4(b)(1)(iii)(B), must include in the solicitation a clear and conspicuous disclosure of the following information [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17514(a)]:

- Identification of the name of the sender of the mailing and of the entity that is requesting permission to call;

- The telephone number to which calls are to be placed; and

- Notice that the recipient may be contacted by a telephone solicitor.

A violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17514(a) is not a crime, notwithstanding Bus. & Prof. Code § 17534; however, all available civil remedies that are applicable to a violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17514(a) may be employed [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17514(b)].

Telephonic sellers may also be subject to liability under the Consumer Legal Remedies Act (Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.) if they disseminate an unsolicited prerecorded telephone message without first obtaining the consent of the listener [see Civ. Code § 1771(v)].

For discussion of legal remedies under the Consumer Legal Remedies Act and of the regulation of home solicitation practices by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.3, see Ch. 128, Consumer Contracts: Statutes Regulating Specific Types of Contracts .

[b] Information-Access Service Business

In addition to the regulation of telephonic sellers by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17511 et seq., regulations of the information-access service business are set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17539.5-17539.6. "Information-access service" is defined as any telecommunications service that permits individuals to access a telephone number and for which the caller is assessed, by virtue of placing or completing the call, a charge that is greater than, or in addition to, the charge for the call's transmission. Information-access service includes telephone numbers with the prefix 900 or 976 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17539.5(a)(6)]. The regulations provide a detailed list of unlawful practices, such as soliciting callers by using an automatic dialing device, requiring callers to call more than one 900 number to receive goods or services represented in the initial solicitation, and advertising that the information-access service is free [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17539.5(b)].

The regulations also make it unlawful for any person to solicit or sell an information-access service without making the required disclosures, including an accurate description of the service; the name, address, and non-900 telephone number of the information provider; and the cost of the call [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17539.5(c)]. In addition, the solicitation or sale of an information-access service in any manner related to a sweepstakes is prohibited [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17539.5(d); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17539.5(a)(12) ("sweepstakes" defined)]. An information provider who operates a sweepstakes in California through the use of a 900 number must register with the Department of Justice within 10 days after causing any advertisement for the sweepstakes to be directed to any person in California [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17539.55(a)]. The registration must include all required information, including each 900 number used in the sweepstakes, the information provider's name and address, and a copy of the sweepstakes' official rules [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17539.55(b)]. The information provider must pay an annual registration fee of $50 for each 900 number used for sweepstakes purposes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17539.55(c)]. It is unlawful for any information provider that operates a sweepstakes to make reference to the fact that the information provider is registered with the Department of Justice, or in any other manner imply that the registration represents approval of the sweepstakes by the Department of Justice [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17539.55(d)].

The law exempts a regional telephone operating company, interexchange carrier, or local telephone company operating in those capacities that, in good faith, telecommunicates an information-access program without knowledge that the program or related advertising violates Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17539.5-17539.6 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17539.5(k)].

Finally, any broadcast or print advertisement or notice that contains a 900 number must be written or spoken in the same language as the language used in a recorded message or by a live operator of the 900 number call [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17539.6].

[18] Water Treatment Devices

[a] In General

In connection with a sale, lease, or rental, or an offer to sell, lease, or rent, or any other disposition of, a water treatment device [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17577.1(b) (definition)] for use on residential real property primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, it is unlawful to do any of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17577.2]:

- Use untrue or misleading statements regarding the presence of contaminants in water or the performance of a water treatment device;

- Use graphics, endorsements, or testimonials in an untrue or misleading manner;

- Perform precipitation tests other than to demonstrate hardness or nonhealth-related characteristics of the consumer's water;

- Make performance claims regarding a device that has not been certified by the State Department of Health Services [see People ex rel. Brown v. PuriTec (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1524, 1528, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 270 (provision did not violate U.S. Constitution's Commerce Clause or First Amendment, as applied to health claims made by non-California defendant on its website, concerning uncertified water treatment devices that it offered for sale to California consumers)]; or

- Fail to disclose the importance of proper maintenance, including replacement of filters and screens.

A contract or offer for the sale, lease, or rental of a water treatment device that is "subject to approval" is deemed a home solicitation contract or offer as defined in Civ. Code § 1689.5(a), regardless of where the contract or offer is made. Such an offer or contract is subject to Civ. Code § 1689.5 et seq. if the contract or offer arises out of a scheduled presentation to promote the sale, lease, or rental of a water treatment device to a person invited to attend the presentation at a location other than a private residence [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17577.3(a)]. Therefore, a homeowner who enters a transaction for the acquisition of a water treatment device has the right to cancel the transaction within three days of its consummation [see Civ. Code § 1689.6; Bus. & Prof. Code § 17577.3(b)]. For discussion and forms relating to home solicitation contracts, see Ch. 128, Consumer Contracts: Statutes Regulating Specific Types of Contracts .

No contract or offer for the sale, lease, or rental of a home water treatment device may provide for a purchase money lien, other than a mechanic's lien, on real property. Any lien taken in violation of this provision is void and unenforceable [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17577.5].

[b] Civil Action for Damages

In addition to any other rights and remedies provided by law, any buyer, lessee, or renter of a water treatment device may bring an action against any person who violates Bus. & Prof. Code § 17577 et seq. for recovery of actual damages, exemplary damages, reasonable attorney's fees and costs, and appropriate equitable relief [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17577.6(a), (b)]. The action must be commenced within three years of the discovery of the alleged violation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17577.6(c)]. Any waiver of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17577 et seq. is void and unenforceable as contrary to public policy [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17577.6(d)].

[19] Live Musical Performance by Group

No person may advertise or conduct a live musical performance or production through the use of a false, deceptive, or misleading affiliation, connection, or association between a performing group and a recording group unless at least one of the following conditions is satisfied [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.12(c); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.12(b) (definitions of "performing group" and "recording group"); see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.12(a) (this code section may be cited as Truth in Music Advertising Act)]:

- The performing group is the authorized registrant and owner of a federal service mark for the group registered in the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office.

- At least one member of the performing group was previously a member of the recording group and has a legal right by virtue of use or operation under the group name without having abandoned the name or affiliation of the group.

- The live musical performance or production is identified in all advertising and promotion as a salute or tribute, and the name of the vocal or instrumental group performing is not so closely related or similar to that used by the recording group that it would tend to confuse or mislead the public.

- The advertising does not relate to a live musical performance or production taking place in California.

- The performance or production is expressly authorized by the recording group.

[20] Automatic Purchase Renewals

[a] Legislative Intent

It is the intent of the Legislature to end the practice of ongoing charging of consumer credit or debit cards or third party payment accounts without the consumers' explicit consent for ongoing shipments of a product or ongoing deliveries of service [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17600]. On and after December 1, 2010 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17606], the provisions discussed in § 14.13[20][b] -[g] are applicable.

[b] Prohibited Acts

It is unlawful for any business making an automatic renewal or continuous service offer [see § 14.13[20][c]] to a consumer in California to do any of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17602(a)]:

- Fail to present the automatic renewal offer terms [see § 14.13[20][c]] or continuous service offer terms in a clear and conspicuous manner [see § 14.13[20][c]] before the subscription or purchasing agreement is fulfilled and in visual proximity, or in the case of an offer conveyed by voice, in temporal proximity, to the request for consent to the offer;

- Charge the consumer's credit or debit card or the consumer's account with a third party for an automatic renewal or continuous service without first obtaining the consumer's affirmative consent to the agreement containing the automatic renewal offer terms or continuous service offer terms; or

- Fail to provide an acknowledgment that includes the automatic renewal or continuous service offer terms, cancellation policy, and information regarding how to cancel in a manner that is capable of being retained by the consumer.

If the offer includes a free trial, the business must also disclose in the acknowledgment how to cancel and allow the consumer to cancel before the consumer pays for the goods or services [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17602(a)(3)]. This disclosure may be made after completion of the initial order [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17602(d)(1)].

[c] Definitions

"Automatic renewal" means a plan or arrangement in which a paid subscription or purchasing agreement is automatically renewed at the end of a definite term for a subsequent term [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17601(a)].

"Automatic renewal offer terms" means the following clear and conspicuous disclosures [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17601(b)]:

- That the subscription or purchasing agreement will continue until the consumer cancels;

- The description of the cancellation policy that applies to the offer;

- The recurring charges that will be charged to the consumer's credit or debit card or payment account with a third party as part of the automatic renewal plan or arrangement, and that the amount of the charge may change, if that is the case, and the amount to which the charge will change, if known;

- The length of the automatic renewal term or that the service is continuous, unless the length of the term is chosen by the consumer; and

- The minimum purchase obligation, if any.

"Clear and conspicuous" or "clearly and conspicuously" means in larger type than the surrounding text, or in contrasting type, font, or color to the surrounding text of the same size, or set off from the surrounding text of the same size by symbols or other marks, in a manner that clearly calls attention to the language. In the case of an audio disclosure, "clear and conspicuous" and "clearly and conspicuously" means in a volume and cadence sufficient to be readily audible and understandable [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17601(c)].

"Consumer" means any individual who seeks or acquires, by purchase or lease, any goods, services, money, or credit for personal, family, or household purposes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17601(d)].

"Continuous service" means a plan or arrangement in which a subscription or purchasing agreement continues until the consumer cancels the service [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17601(e)].

[d] Obligations

A business making automatic renewal or continuous service offers must, prior to the completion of the initial order for the automatic renewal or continuous service, provide a toll free telephone number, electronic mail address, a postal address only when the seller directly bills the consumer, or another cost effective, timely, and easy to use mechanism for cancellation that must be described in the acknowledgment specified in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17601(a)(3) as discussed in § 14.13[20][b] [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17602(b), (d)].

In the case of a material change in the terms of the automatic renewal or continuous service offer that has been accepted by a consumer in California, the business must provide the consumer with a clear and conspicuous notice of the material change and provide information regarding how to cancel in a manner that is capable of being retained by the consumer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17602(c)]. The notice and information must be provided prior to implementation of the material change [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17602(d)(2)].

[e] Unordered Goods Are Gifts

In any case in which a business sends any goods, wares, merchandise, or products to a consumer, under a continuous service agreement or automatic renewal of a purchase, without first obtaining the consumer's affirmative consent [see Bus. & Prof Code § 17602], the goods, wares, merchandise, or products are deemed to be an unconditional gift to the consumer, who may use or dispose of them in any manner he or she sees fit without any obligation whatsoever on the consumer's part to the business, including, but not limited to, bearing the cost of, or responsibility for, shipping any goods, wares, merchandise, or products to the business [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17603].

[f] Civil Liability

All available civil remedies that apply to a violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17600 et seq. may be employed [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17604(a)]; however, if a business complies with the provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17600 et seq. in good faith, it is not subject to civil remedies [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17604(b)]. Notwithstanding Bus. & Prof. Code § 17534 [see § 14.17], a violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17600 et seq. is not a crime [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17604(a)].

[g] Exemptions

The following are exempt from the requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17600 et seq. [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17605]:

- Any service provided by a business or its affiliate where either the business or its affiliate is doing business pursuant to a franchise issued by a political subdivision of the state or a license, franchise, certificate, or other authorization issued by the California Public Utilities Commission (CPUC);

- Any service provided by a business or its affiliate where either the business or its affiliate is regulated by the CPUC, the Federal Communications Commission, or the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission;

- Any entity regulated by the Department of Insurance;

- Alarm company operators, as defined in Bus. & Prof. Code § 7590.2, and regulated pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 7590 et seq.;

- A bank, bank holding company, or the subsidiary or affiliate of either, or a credit union or other financial institution, licensed under state or federal law; and

- Service contract sellers and service contract administrators regulated by the Bureau of Electronic and Appliance Repair pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855 et seq.

§ 14.14 Miscellaneous Advertising Regulations

False or misleading representations made in the solicitation of sales or orders of energy conservation products or services, including over the internet, are unlawful, and are subject to the measure of damages provided by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.3(c) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.5].

Specified statements in connection with the offering or performance of a homestead filing service, as defined, are misleading and unlawful [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.6].

Using certain terms that refer to a dealer's, manufacturer's, or distributor's cost for a motor vehicle in an advertisement for the sale or lease of a vehicle is unlawful [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.7].

Making any untrue or misleading statement in any manner is unlawful in connection with the offering or performance of a homeowners' exemption filing service [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.8] or an assessment appeal application filing service [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.9].

Disclosures required to be made in any advertisement by a seller concerning an open-end credit plan are set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.7(a)-(c). It is unlawful for a seller to advertise terms that actually are not or will not be arranged or offered by the creditor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.7(d)].

Travel promotions, including advertising the availability of air or sea transportation, are governed by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17540 et seq.

Fraudulent advertising of coal is prohibited by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17532.

False or misleading advertising by motels and motor courts is governed by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17560 et seq.

It is unlawful to offer for sale or trade any article represented as made by authentic American Indian labor or workmanship unless the basic article was produced wholly by American Indian labor or workmanship [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17569].

Chapter 14 ADVERTISING
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

2-14 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 14.15

§ 14.15 Invasive Advertising Practices

[1] In General

California law regulates three general types of invasive advertising practices. One type is telephone solicitation [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17590 et seq.], discussed in § 14.15[5]. The second is the practice of sending unsolicited advertising messages to e-mail accounts (discussed in § 14.15[2][a]) as well as to wireless communication access points that can receive text messages, specifically cell phone numbers and pager numbers (discussed in § 14.15[4]). Third, California law regulates unsolicited advertisements sent to fax machines, discussed in § 14.15[6].

[2] Unsolicited E-Mail Advertising

[a] California Statutory Scheme

Former Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.4, governing unsolicited commercial e-mail advertising, was repealed effective January 1, 2004. However, a cause of action in existence before that date will be governed by the law that was in effect when that cause of action arose [see Stats. 2003, ch. 487, § 4; see also Ferguson v. Friendfinders, Inc. (2002) 94 Cal. App. 4th 1255, 1266, 1269, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258 (holding that former Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.4 did not violate dormant commerce clause of United States Constitution)]. The former statute was replaced with a law creating an "opt-in" scheme for regulating unsolicited commercial e-mail [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529 et seq.]. Under that scheme, it is unlawful to advertise to or from a California e-mail address in an unsolicited commercial e-mail [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.2(a), (b)]; that is, an e-mail as to which the recipient neither (1) has provided direct consent to receive advertisements from the advertiser, nor (2) has a preexisting or current business relationship with the advertiser [Bus & Prof. Code § 17529.1(o); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.1(l) (defining preexisting or current business relationship)]. Thus, the California statute is an "opt-in" statute; that is, one that generally requires the recipient take some affirmative step before a sender may lawfully send unsolicited commercial e-mail messages to the recipient [see § 14.15[2][c], below].

In contrast, the federal CAN-SPAM Act of 2003 [see Pub. L. No. 108-187, discussed under § 14.15[3][a], below] takes an "opt-out" approach to spam. Under the California law, marketers would have to prove the "direct consent" of the recipients either in response to a clear and conspicuous request for the consent or on the recipient's own initiative [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.1(d)]. The federal act simply requires a business to stop sending e-mails to those who request to be removed from a list [see 15 U.S.C. § 7704(a)(3), (4)].

[b] Preemption by Federal Law

It appears probable that the California opt-in law has been preempted by the federal CAN-SPAM Act of 2003 [see Pub. L. No. 108-187, 107 Stat. 2669, discussed under § 14.15[3][a], below]. The CAN-SPAM Act generally provides that it supersedes any statute, regulation, or rule of a state or political subdivision that expressly regulates the use of electronic mail to send commercial messages, except to the extent that any such statute, regulation, or rule prohibits falsity or deception in any portion of a commercial electronic mail message or information attached to such a message [15 U.S.C. § 7707(b)(1)]. It appears probable, therefore, that the federal statute preempts all or at least most of the California legislation. Since the California legislation remains in effect, however, and since preemption has not yet been judicially confirmed, the California requirements are discussed in detail below.

Although the CAN-SPAM Act's text, in excluding state laws from preemption, refers to state laws that prohibit "falsity or deception in any portion of a commercial electronic mail message or information attached thereto" [15 U.S.C. § 7707(b)(1)], the Ninth Circuit has concluded (in a case involving Washington's Commercial Electronic Mail Act) that it must interpret the quoted language as saving from preemption "only" state statutes, rules, and regulations "that target fraud or deception" [Gordon v. Virtumundo, Inc. (9th Cir. 2009) 575 F.3d 1040, 1061 (original emphasis)]. In the Ninth Circuit's view, a state law respecting e-mail is preempted to the extent that the law creates liability for anything less than fraud [Gordon v. Virtumundo, Inc. (9th Cir. 2009) 575 F.3d 1040, 1063 (CAN-SPAM Act "left the individual states free to extend traditional tort theories such as ... fraud or deception to commercial e mail communication")]. This does not address the question of whether a state law is preempted if, assuming that it is appropriately limited to creating liability only for fraud, the law mandates an "opt-in" standard rather than the "opt-out" standard adopted in the CAN-SPAM Act.

[c] Proscription Against Sending to or From California

Under the California statute, notwithstanding any other provision of law, a person or entity may not initiate or advertise in an unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisement to a California electronic mail address, or advertise in an unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisement sent to a California electronic mail address [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.2(b); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.2(c) (provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.2 are severable)]. Conversely, notwithstanding any other provision of law, a person or entity may not initiate or advertise in an unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisement from California or advertise in an unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisement sent from California [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.2(a); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.2(c) (provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.2 are severable)].

These prohibitions do not limit or restrict the adoption, implementation, or enforcement by a provider of internet access service of a policy of declining to transmit, receive, route, relay, handle, or store certain types of electronic mail messages [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.3].

[d] Definitions

"Initiate" means to transmit or cause to be transmitted a commercial e-mail advertisement or assist in the transmission of a commercial e-mail advertisement by providing electronic mail addresses where the advertisement may be sent, but does not include the routine transmission of the advertisement through the network or system of a telecommunications utility or an electronic mail service provider through its network or system [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.1(i); see § 14.67[5]].

"Commercial e-mail advertisement" means any electronic mail message initiated for the purpose of advertising or promoting the lease, sale, rental, gift offer, or other disposition of any property, goods, services, or extension of credit [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.1(c)]. An "unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisement" is a commercial e-mail advertisement sent to a recipient who meets both of the following criteria [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.1(o)]:

- The recipient has not expressly consented to receive e-mail advertisements from the advertiser, either in response to a clear and conspicuous request for the consent or at the recipient's own initiative [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.1(d), (o)].

- The recipient does not have a preexisting or current business relationship with the advertiser promoting the lease, sale, rental, gift offer, or other disposition of any property, goods, services, or extension of credit [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.1(o)].

"Recipient" means the addressee of an unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisement. If an addressee of an unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisement has one or more e-mail addresses to which an unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisement is sent, the addressee must be deemed to be a separate recipient for each e-mail address to which the e-mail advertisement is sent [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.1(m)].

"Preexisting or current business relationship," as used in connection with the sending of a commercial e-mail advertisement, means that the recipient has made an inquiry and has provided his or her e-mail address, or has made an application, purchase, or transaction, with or without consideration, regarding products or services offered by the advertiser. Commercial e-mail advertisements sent pursuant to the exemption provided for a preexisting or current business relationship must provide the recipient of the commercial e-mail advertisement with the ability to "opt-out" from receiving further commercial e-mail advertisements by calling a toll-free telephone number or by sending an "unsubscribe" e-mail to the advertiser offering the products or services in the commercial e-mail advertisement. This opt-out provision does not apply to recipients who are receiving free e-mail service with regard to commercial e-mail advertisements sent by the provider of the e-mail service [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.1(l); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.1(a) (definition of advertiser)].

A "California electronic mail address" (or "California e-mail address") is any of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.1(b); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.1(f)-(h) (definitions for electronic mail, electronic mail address, and electronic mail service provider)]:

- An e-mail address furnished by an electronic mail service provider that sends bills for furnishing and maintaining that e-mail address to a mailing address in California.

- An e-mail address ordinarily accessed from a computer located in California.

- An e-mail address furnished to a resident of California.

[e] Unlawful Acts

It is unlawful for any person or entity to:

- Collect electronic mail addresses posted on the internet if the purpose of the collection is for the electronic mail addresses to be used to do a proscribed activity, below [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.4(a); see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17529.1(k), 17538(e)(6) (definition of internet)];

- Use an electronic mail address obtained by using automated means based on a combination of names, letters, or numbers to do a proscribed activity, below [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.4(b)]; or

- Use scripts or other automated means to register for multiple electronic mail accounts from which to do, or to enable another person to do, a proscribed activity, below [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.4(c)].

The proscribed activities referred to in the preceding paragraph are:

- Initiating or advertising in an unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisement from California, or advertising in an unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisement sent from California [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.4(a)(1), (b)(1), (c)(1)].

- Initiating or advertising in an unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisement to a California electronic mail address, or advertising in an unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisement sent to California electronic mail address [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.4(a)(2), (b)(2), (c)(2)].

It is unlawful, and a misdemeanor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.5(c)], for any person or entity to advertise using a commercial e-mail advertisement either sent from California or sent to a California electronic mail address under any of the following circumstances:

- The commercial e-mail advertisement contains or is accompanied by a third person's domain name without the permission of the third person [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.5(a)(1); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.1(e) (domain name is alphanumeric designation that is registered with or assigned by any domain name registrar as part of electronic address on internet)].

- The commercial e-mail advertisement contains or is accompanied by falsified, misrepresented, or forged header information. This paragraph does not apply to truthful information used by a third party who has been lawfully authorized by the advertiser to use that information [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.5(a)(2)].

- The commercial e-mail advertisement has a subject line that a person knows would be likely to mislead a recipient, acting reasonably under the circumstances, about a material fact regarding the contents or subject matter of the message [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.5(a)(3)].

Nothing in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529 et seq. limits or restricts the adoption, implementation, or enforcement by a provider of internet access service of a policy of declining to transmit, receive, route, relay, handle, or store certain types of electronic mail messages [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.3].

[f] Cause of Action for Damages

In addition to any other remedies provided by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529 et seq. or by any other provisions of law, a recipient of an unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisement transmitted in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529 et seq., or an electronic mail service provider, or the attorney general, may bring an action against an entity that violates any provision of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529 et seq. to recover either or both of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.8(a)(1)]:

- Actual damages.

- Liquidated damages of $1,000 for each unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisement transmitted in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.2 [see § 14.15[2][c]], above, up to $1,000,000 per incident.

However, if the court finds that the defendant established and implemented, with due care, practices and procedures reasonably designed to effectively prevent unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisements that are in violation of Bus. &

Prof. Code § 17529 et seq., the court must reduce the liquidated damages recoverable to a maximum of $100 for each unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisement, or a maximum of $100,000 per incident [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.8(b)].

"Incident" means a single transmission or delivery to a single recipient or to multiple recipients of unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisement containing substantially similar content [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.1(j)].

The recipient, an electronic mail service provider, or the attorney general, if the prevailing plaintiff, may also recover reasonable attorney's fees and costs [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.8(a)(2)].

In addition to any other remedies provided by any other provision of law, the Attorney General, an electronic mail service provider, or a recipient of an unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisement [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.1 (definition)] may bring an action against a person or entity that violates any provision of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.5. The person or entity bringing the action (1) may recover actual damages as well as liquidated damages of $1,000 for each unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisement transmitted in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.5, up to $1,000,000 per incident, and (2) if prevailing as plaintiff, may also recover reasonable attorney's fees and costs [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.5(b)(1)]. If the court finds that the defendant established and implemented, with due care, practices and procedures reasonably designed to effectively prevent unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisements that are in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.5, the court must reduce the liquidated damages to a maximum of $100 for each unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisement, or a maximum of $100,000 per incident [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.5(b)(2)].

A person who has brought an action under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.5 may not bring an action against the same defendant under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.8 or under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45 [see § 14.15[3][i] below], for the same commercial e-mail advertisement [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.1(c) (definition)], and a person who has brought an action under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.8 or 17538.45 may not bring an action against the same defendant under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.5 for the same commercial e-mail advertisement [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.5(b)(3)].

[g] Immunity for Service Providers

There is no cause of action against an electronic mail service provider that is only involved in the routine transmission of the unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisement over its computer network [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.8(a)(3)]. "Routine transmission" means the transmission, routing, relaying, handling, or storing of an electronic mail message through an automatic technical process. "Routine transmission" does not include the sending, or the knowing participation in the sending, of unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisements [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.1(n)].

There is no cause of action under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.5 against an electronic mail service provider that is involved only in the routine transmission of the e-mail advertisement over its computer network [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.5(b)(1)].

[h] Severability of Provisions

The provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529 et seq. [see § 14.15[2][c], above] are severable. If any provision of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529 et seq. or its application is held invalid, that invalidity will not affect any other provision or application that can be given effect without the invalid provision or application [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.9; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529 (statement of legislative findings)].

[3] CAN-SPAM Act of 2003

[a] Application and Purpose

A federal law, the Controlling the Assault of Non-Solicited Pornography and Marketing Act of 2003 [Pub. L. No. 108-187], also known as the CAN-SPAM Act of 2003, effective January 1, 2004, supersedes any California statute or state or local regulation or rule that expressly regulates the use of electronic mail to send commercial messages, except to the extent that the statute, regulation, or rule prohibits falsity or deception in any portion of a commercial electronic mail message or information attached to it [15 U.S.C. §§ 7701, 7707(b)(1)]. As discussed in § 14.15[2][b], above, it appears probable that the federal law preempts the comparable California requirements, except to the limited extent discussed below.

Congress made numerous specific findings in support of the CAN-SPAM act [see 15 U.S.C. § 7701(a)(1)-(12)]. On the basis of those findings, Congress determined that (1) there is a substantial government interest in regulating commercial electronic mail on a nationwide basis, (2) senders of commercial electronic mail should not mislead recipients as to the source or content of that mail, and (3) recipients of commercial electronic mail have a right to decline to receive additional commercial electronic mail from the same source [15 U.S.C. § 7701(b)]. To that end, the law has three principal purposes:

- Enacting 18 U.S.C. § 1037, which criminalizes fraud and related activity in connection with electronic mail, as a means of prohibiting predatory and abusive commercial e-mail, commonly known as "spam" [see, e.g., Pub. L. No. 108-187, § 4(c)(1) (sense-of-Congress statement about "spam" as method of choice for distributing pornography, perpetrating fraudulent schemes, and introducing viruses, worms, and Trojan horses into personal and business computer systems)].

- Implementing other protections for users of commercial electronic mail [see 15 U.S.C. § 7704; see also § 14.15[3][g], below].

- Suppressing the promotion of businesses by electronic mail with false or misleading transmission information [see 15 U.S.C. § 7705; see also § 14.15[3][h], below].

Although the CAN-SPAM Act generally supersedes state and local regulations, it does not apply to the following extent:

- Other California laws. It does not preempt the applicability of California laws that are not specific to electronic mail (including trespass, contract, and tort laws) or other California laws to the extent that those laws relate to acts of fraud or computer crime [15 U.S.C. § 7707(b)(2); see, e.g., Powers v. Pottery Barn, Inc. (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1039, 1041, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 693 (Song Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971, Civ. Code § 1747 et seq., is not preempted)].

- Policies of internet service providers. Nothing in the federal law has any effect on the lawfulness or unlawfulness, under any other provision of law, of the adoption, implementation, or enforcement by a provider of internet access service of a policy of declining to transmit, route, relay, handle, or store certain types of electronic mail messages [15 U.S.C. § 7707(c)].

- FTC's enforcement power. Nothing in the federal law affects in any way the FTC's authority to bring enforcement actions under the Federal Trade Commission Act for materially false or deceptive representations or unfair practices in commercial electronic mail messages [15 U.S.C. § 7707(a)(2)].

- FCC's oversight of communications. Nothing in the federal law precludes or overrides the applicability of the FCC's telemarketing rules prescribed under the Telemarketing and Consumer Fraud and Abuse Prevention Act [see 15 U.S.C. § 6102] or the applicability of 47 U.S.C. § 227, concerning restrictions on the use of telephone equipment [15 U.S.C. § 7712(a)]. Moreover, the FCC is directed to promulgate rules to protect consumers from unwanted mobile service commercial messages [15 U.S.C. § 7712(b)-(d)].

- Enforcement of federal anti-obscenity laws. Nothing in the federal law impairs the enforcement of any federal criminal statute, particularly the statutes respecting the following [15 U.S.C. § 7707(a)(1)]:

  - Obscene or harassing telephone calls in interstate or foreign communications [see 47 U.S.C. § 223].

  - Restriction of access by minors to materials that are commercially distributed by means of the internet and that are harmful to minors [see 47 U.S.C. § 231].

  - Obscenity in general [see 18 U.S.C. § 1460 et seq.].

  - Sexual exploitation and other abuse of children [see 18 U.S.C. § 2251 et seq.].

[b] Definitions

The definitions included in this section apply to the requirements of the CAN-SPAM Act:

"Affirmative consent," when used with respect to a "commercial electronic mail message," means that the "recipient" expressly consented to receive the message, either in response to a clear and conspicuous request for consent or at the recipient's own initiative. If the message is from a person to whom the recipient did not communicate the consent, the recipient must have been given clear and conspicuous notice at the time the consent was communicated that the recipient's "electronic mail address" could be transferred to that other person for the purpose of "initiating" commercial electronic mail messages [15 U.S.C. § 7702(1)].

"Commercial electronic mail message" means any "electronic mail message" the primary purpose of which is the commercial advertisement or promotion of a commercial product or service (including content on a website operated for a commercial purpose) [15 U.S.C. § 7702(2)]. The term does not include a "transactional or relationship message" [15 U.S.C. § 7702(2)(B)]. The FTC is directed to issue regulations defining the relevant criteria to facilitate the determination of the primary purpose of an electronic mail message [15 U.S.C. § 7702(2)(C)]. The inclusion of a reference to a commercial entity or a link to the website of a commercial entity in an electronic mail message does not, by itself, cause the message to be treated as a commercial electronic mail message for purposes of the anti-spam act if the contents or circumstances of the message indicate a primary purpose other than commercial advertisement or promotion of a commercial product or service [15 U.S.C. § 7702(2)(D)].

"Domain name" means any alphanumeric designation that is registered with or assigned by any domain name registrar, domain name registry, or other domain name registration authority as part of an electronic address on the internet [15 U.S.C. § 7702(4)].

"Electronic mail address" means a destination, commonly expressed as a string of characters, consisting of a unique user name or mailbox (commonly referred to as the local part) and a reference to an internet domain (commonly referred to as the domain part), whether or not displayed, to which an electronic mail message can be sent or delivered [15 U.S.C. § 7702(5)].

"Electronic mail message" means a message sent to a unique electronic mail address [15 U.S.C. § 7702(6)].

"Header information" means the source, destination, and routing information attached to an electronic mail message, including the originating domain name and originating electronic mail address, and any other information that appears in the line identifying, or purporting to identify, a person initiating the message [15 U.S.C. § 7702(8)].

"Initiate," when used with respect to a commercial electronic mail message, means to originate or transmit the message or to "procure" the origination or transmission of the message, but does not include actions that constitute "routine conveyance" of the message. More than one person may be considered to have initiated a message [15 U.S.C. § 7702(9)].

"Internet" means collectively the myriad of computer and telecommunications facilities, including equipment and operating software, composing the interconnected world-wide network of networks that employ the transmission-control protocol/internet protocol (TCP/IP), or any predecessor or successor protocols to that protocol, to communicate information of all kinds by wire or radio [15 U.S.C. § 7702(10); Pub. L. 105-277, div. C, tit. XI, § 1105(4) (Oct. 21, 1998)].

"Internet access service" means a service that enables users to access content, information, electronic mail, or other services offered over the internet, and may also include access to proprietary content, information, and other services as part of a package of services offered to consumers. The term does not include telecommunications services [15 U.S.C. § 7702(11); 47 U.S.C. § 231(e)(4)].

"Materially," when used with respect to false or misleading header information, includes the alteration or concealment of header information in a manner that would impair the ability of an internet access service processing the message on behalf of a "recipient," a person alleging a violation of the anti-spam act, or a law enforcement agency, to identify, locate, or respond to a person who initiated the electronic mail message or to investigate the alleged violation, or the ability of a recipient of the message to respond to a person who initiated the electronic message [15 U.S.C. § 7704(a)(6)].

"Procure," when used with respect to the initiation of a commercial electronic mail message, means intentionally to pay or provide other consideration to, or induce, another person to initiate the message on one's behalf [15 U.S.C. § 7702(12)].

"Protected computer" means a computer that is used in or affects interstate or foreign commerce or communication, including a computer located outside the United States that is used in a manner that affects interstate or foreign commerce or communication of the United States [15 U.S.C. § 7702(13); 18 U.S.C. § 1030(e)(2)(B)].

"Recipient," when used with respect to a commercial electronic mail message, means an authorized user of the electronic mail address to which the message was sent or delivered. If a recipient of a commercial electronic mail message has any electronic mail address in addition to the address to which the message was sent or delivered, the recipient is to be treated as a separate recipient with respect to each additional address. If an electronic mail address is reassigned to a new user, the new user is not to be treated as a recipient of any commercial electronic mail message sent or delivered to that address before it was reassigned [15 U.S.C. § 7702(14)].

"Routine conveyance" means the transmission, routing, relaying, handling, or storing, through an automatic technical process, of an electronic mail message for which another person has identified the recipients or provided the recipient addresses [15 U.S.C. § 7702(15)].

Generally, "sender," when used with respect to a commercial electronic mail message, means a person who initiates the message and whose product, service, or web site is advertised or promoted by the message [15 U.S.C. § 7702(16)(A)]. If an entity operates through separate lines of business or divisions and holds itself out to the recipient throughout the message as that particular line of business or division rather than as the entity of which the line of business or division is a part, then the line of business or the division is to be treated as the sender of the message for purposes of the CAN-SPAM Act [15 U.S.C. § 7702(16)(B)].

"Sexually oriented material" means any material that depicts "sexually explicit conduct" [see 18 U.S.C. § 2256 (definition)], unless the depiction constitutes a small and insignificant part of the whole, the remainder of which is not primarily devoted to sexual matters [15 U.S.C. § 7704(d)(4)].

"Transactional or relationship message" means an electronic mail message the primary purpose of which is any of the following [15 U.S.C. § 7702(17)(A)]:

- To facilitate, complete, or confirm a commercial transaction that the recipient has previously agreed to enter into with the sender;

- To provide warranty information, product recall information, or safety or security information with respect to a commercial product or service used or purchased by the recipient;

- To provide information directly related to an employment relationship or related benefit plan in which the recipient is currently involved, participating, or enrolled;

- To deliver goods or services, including product updates or upgrades, that the recipient is entitled to receive under the terms of a transaction that the recipient has previously agreed to enter into with the sender; or

- To provide any of the following with respect to a subscription, membership, account, loan, or comparable ongoing commercial relationship involving the ongoing purchase or use by the recipient of products or services offered by the sender:

    - Notification concerning a change in the terms or features.

    - Notification of a change in the recipient's standing or status.

    - At regular periodic intervals, account balance information or other type of account statement.

The FTC, by regulation, may modify the preceding definition to expand or contract the categories of messages that are treated as transactional or relationship messages for purposes of the CAN-SPAM Act, to the extent that the modification is necessary to accommodate changes in electronic mail technology or practices and accomplish the purposes of the act [15 U.S.C. § 7702(17)(B)].

[c] FTC Regulations

The FTC is empowered to issue regulations implementing the law. No regulation can require the inclusion of any specific words, characters, marks, or labels in a commercial electronic mail message, nor can a regulation require that a mandated identifier [see 15 U.S.C. § 7704(a)(5)(A)] be included in any particular part of a mail message (such as the subject line or body) [15 U.S.C. § 7711].

[d] Do-Not-E-Mail Registry

The FTC is directed to submit to Congress a plan and a timetable for establishing a nationwide marketing Do-Not-E-Mail registry, which the FTC may establish and implement at any time more than nine months after enactment of the law [15 U.S.C. § 7708].

[e] FTC Reports to Congress

The FTC is directed to submit to Congress a detailed analysis of the effectiveness and enforcement of the federal law over a two-year period and the need (if any) for Congress to modify the law [15 U.S.C. § 7709(a)]. Further, the FTC is directed to submit (1) within nine months, a report on how to implement a reward scheme for enforcement of the law and (2) within 18 months, a plan for requiring commercial electronic mail to be identifiable from its subject line, whether by means of compliance with Internet Engineering Task Force Standards, or by the use of the characters "ADV" in the subject line, or by some other comparable identifier; or, in lieu of a plan, an explanation of any concerns the FTC has that cause the FTC to recommend against such a plan [15 U.S.C. § 7710].

[f] Enforcement

[i] Recipients of Spam; Internet Access Service Providers

Recipients of spam do not have any enforcement rights under the CAN-SPAM Act of 2003. Congress intended that the rights of recipients should be vindicated and protected by Internet access service providers, to a limited extent (see below), and by federal and state agencies and officials [see § 14.15[3][f][ii], below; see also Gordon v. Virtumundo, Inc. (9th Cir. 2009) 575 F.3d 1040, 1049 ("We surmise that Congress's intent was to limit enforcement actions to those best suited to detect, investigate, and, if appropriate, prosecute violations of the CAN-SPAM Act--those well-equipped to efficiently and effectively pursue legal actions against persons engaged in unlawful practices and enforce federal law for the benefit of all consumers")].

An Internet access service provider that is adversely affected by specified violations of the CAN-SPAM Act has a right to sue for injunctive relief, damages, and attorney's fees [see 15 U.S.C. § 7706(g)]. The action may be commenced "in any district court of the United States with jurisdiction over the defendant" [15 U.S.C. § 7706(g)(1)].

In any private action claiming CAN-SPAM Act violations, a threshold issue is whether the plaintiff meets the statutory standing requirements, that is, (1) whether the plaintiff is an "Internet access service" provider and (2) whether the plaintiff was "adversely affected by" actionable statutory violations [Gordon v. Virtumundo, Inc. (9th Cir. 2009) 575 F.3d 1040, 1048-1049 ("Beyond that, however, the statutory standing provision read as a whole is ambiguous")].

As to whether the plaintiff is an "Internet access service" provider, while Congress did not intend to limit standing to providers of fee-for-service operations, it did intend to exclude plaintiffs who did not provide the actual, bona fide service of a legitimate operation [Gordon v. Virtumundo, Inc. (9th Cir. 2009) 575 F.3d 1040, 1049 (Congress's clear intention to restrict private actions must guide proper standing analysis)]. The statutory definition of "Internet access service" [15 U.S.C. § 7702(11); see § 14.15[3][b], above] is ambiguous. The Ninth Circuit has not yet clarified that definition by setting forth a general test or defining the outer bounds of what it means to be a provider of "Internet access service," but the court has concluded in one case that the plaintiff did not fit any reasonable definition of that term [Gordon v. Virtumundo, Inc. (9th Cir. 2009) 575 F.3d 1040, 1052 (plaintiff was registered owner of domain name and had merely created e-mail accounts, which were hosted on leased servers, for himself, his wife, and some other individuals; moreover, this minimal effort to be "provider" of "Internet access service" lacked any hallmarks of bona fide service by e-mail provider; in fact, plaintiff was self-styled "professional plaintiff" who had commenced many civil anti-spam actions)].

The requirement that the plaintiff must be "adversely affected" by an actionable statutory violation does not encompass the ordinary inconveniences experienced by consumers and end-users who unwillingly deal with spam. Congress had in mind harms that might befall Internet service providers such as network crashes, higher bandwidth utilization, and increased costs for hardware and software upgrades, network expansion, and additional personnel. At minimum, the harm must be both real and of the type experienced by ISPs. While the harm need not be significant in the sense that it is grave or serious, the harm must be of significance to a bona fide provider of Internet access service--something beyond the mere annoyance of spam and greater than the negligible burdens typically borne by such a provider in the ordinary course of business. In most cases, evidence of some combination of operational or technical impairments and related financial costs attributable to unwanted commercial e-mail would suffice [Gordon v. Virtumundo, Inc. (9th Cir. 2009) 575 F.3d 1040 (court should "take an especially hard look at the cited harm if it suspects at the outset that a plaintiff is not operating a bona fide Internet access service, as is the case here")].

To give the statutory text meaning, moreover, there must be, at bare minimum, a demonstrated relationship between purported harms and the type of e mail practices regulated by the CAN-SPAM Act, that is, a showing that the identified concerns are linked in some meaningful way to unwanted spam and, in turn, represent actual harm. The e mails at issue in a particular case must, at the very least, have contributed to a larger, collective spam problem that caused ISP-type harms [Gordon v. Virtumundo, Inc. (9th Cir. 2009) 575 F.3d 1040, 1054]. It remains an open question whether a private-action plaintiff must allege and prove that the defendant's particular e-mails caused ISP-type harms. The Ninth Circuit has not been presented with that issue but is "troubled by the possibility" that imposing a direct-causation requirement, although not inconsistent with the statutory text, might create an unworkable standard for private-plaintiff standing, given the impracticability of tracing a harm to a specific e-mail or batch of e-mails [Gordon v. Virtumundo, Inc. (9th Cir. 2009) 575 F.3d 1040, 1054].

The threshold issue of standing should not pose a high bar for the legitimate service operations contemplated by Congress. In some civil actions--when, for example, well-recognized ISPs or plainly legitimate Internet access service providers file suit--adequate harm might be presumed because any reasonable person would agree that such entities dedicate considerable resources to and incur significant financial costs in dealing with spam. When, on the other hand, a private plaintiff's status as an Internet access service provider is questionable and reasonably contested, courts should not only inquire into the plaintiff's purported Internet-related service operations but also closely examine the alleged harms attributable to spam. A district court must review the individual characteristics of the plaintiff in each case and make a reasoned decision whether a purported provider is truly the type of bona fide Internet access service provider adversely affected by commercial e-mail messaging that Congress envisioned when it enacted the CAN-SPAM Act [Gordon v. Virtumundo, Inc. (9th Cir. 2009) 575 F.3d 1040, 1054-1055].

[ii] Federal and State Agencies and Officials

Generally, the law is to be enforced by the FTC under the Federal Trade Commission Act [see 15 U.S.C. § 57a(a)(1)(B)], as if a violation of the CAN-SPAM Act were an unfair or deceptive act or practice [15 U.S.C. § 7706(a), (d)]. However, enforcement against many various kinds of federally regulated (or related) businesses will be undertaken by the several regulatory agencies instead of the FTC; for instance, the FDIC will enforce the law against banks and savings associations, and the SEC will enforce it against securities brokers and dealers, investment companies, and investment advisers [see 15 U.S.C. § 7706(b), (c)].

The California Insurance Commissioner is empowered to enforce the law against insurance companies that are subject to regulation by the Department of Insurance, but the FTC will have this power whenever the Insurance Commissioner fails to use it [see 15 U.S.C. § 7706(b)(6)].

Except to enforce section 6 of the CAN-SPAM Act [see § 14.15[3][h], below], the California Attorney General or any other appropriate state official or agency, "as parens patriae, may bring a civil action on behalf of the residents of the State in a district court of the United States of appropriate jurisdiction," suing for an injunction, actual damages, and statutory damages [see 15 U.S.C. § 7706(f)(1)-(3)] as well as attorney's fees [15 U.S.C. § 7706(f)(4)]. The FTC or another appropriate federal regulatory agency may intervene in the action and then will be entitled to be heard on all matters arising in the action; may force a change of venue; and may file petitions for appeal [15 U.S.C. § 7706(f)(5)]. No action by the attorney general or another state official or agency may be commenced against a defendant or respondent in a civil action or administrative proceeding already underway by the FTC or another federal regulatory agency [15 U.S.C. § 7706(f)(8)].

[g] Protection Provisions

[i] False or Misleading Transmission Information

It is unlawful for any person to initiate the transmission, to a protected computer, of a commercial electronic mail message, or a transactional or relationship message, that contains, or is accompanied by, header information that is materially false or materially misleading. For this purpose [15 U.S.C. § 7704(a)(1)]:

- Header information that is technically accurate but includes an originating electronic mail address, domain name, or internet protocol address the access to which for purposes of initiating the message was obtained by means of false or fraudulent pretenses or representations is materially misleading.

- A "from" line (the line identifying or purporting to identify a person initiating the message) that accurately identifies any person who initiated the message is not considered materially false or materially misleading.

- Header information is materially misleading if it fails to identify accurately a protected computer used to initiate the message because the person initiating the message knowingly uses another protected computer to relay or retransmit the message for purposes of disguising its origin.

[ii] Deceptive Subject Headings

It is unlawful for any person to initiate the transmission to a protected computer of a commercial electronic mail message if such person has actual knowledge, or knowledge fairly implied on the basis of objective circumstances, that a subject heading of the message would be likely to mislead a recipient, acting reasonably under the circumstances, about a material fact regarding the contents or subject matter of the message (consistent with the criteria used in enforcement of 15 U.S.C. § 45, which is part of the Federal Trade Commission Act) [15 U.S.C. § 7704(a)(2)].

[iii] Return Address in Commercial Electronic Mail

It is unlawful for any person to initiate the transmission to a protected computer of a commercial electronic mail message that does not contain, clearly and conspicuously displayed, a functioning return electronic mail address or other internet-based mechanism, commonly called an opt-out mechanism, that [15 U.S.C. § 7704(a)(3)(A)]:

- A recipient may use to submit, in a manner specified in the message, a reply electronic mail message or other form of internet-based communication requesting not to receive future commercial electronic mail messages from that sender at the electronic mail address where the message was received; and

- Remains capable of receiving such messages or communications for at least 30 days after the transmission of the original message.

The person initiating a commercial electronic mail message may comply with the requirement for an opt-out mechanism by providing a list or menu from which the recipient may choose the specific types of commercial electronic mail messages the recipient wants to receive or does not want to receive from the sender, if the list or menu includes an option under which the recipient may choose not to receive any commercial electronic mail messages from the sender [15 U.S.C. § 7704(a)(3)(B)].

A return electronic mail address or other mechanism does not fail to satisfy the requirement for an opt-out mechanism if it is unexpectedly and temporarily unable to receive messages or process requests because of a technical problem beyond the control of the sender, if the problem is corrected within a reasonable period [15 U.S.C. § 7704(a)(3)(C)].

[iv] Transmission of Commercial Electronic Mail After Objection

If a recipient makes a request using an opt-out mechanism [see § 14.15[3][g][iii]] not to receive some or any commercial electronic mail messages from the sender, then [15 U.S.C. § 7704(a)(4)(A)]:

- It is unlawful for the sender to initiate the transmission to the recipient, more than 10 business days after receiving the request, of a commercial electronic mail message that falls within the scope of the request.

- It is unlawful for any person acting on behalf of the sender to initiate the transmission to the recipient, more than 10 business days after the receipt of the request, of a commercial electronic mail message with actual knowledge, or knowledge fairly inferred on the basis of objective circumstances, that the message falls within the scope of the request.

- It is unlawful for any person acting on behalf of the sender to assist in initiating the transmission to the recipient, through the provision or selection of addresses to which the message will be sent, of a commercial electronic mail message with actual knowledge, or knowledge fairly inferred on the basis of objective circumstances, that the message would violate either of the foregoing proscriptions.

- It is unlawful for the sender, or any other person who knows that the recipient has made such a request, to sell, lease, exchange, or otherwise transfer or release the electronic mail address of the recipient (including through any transaction or other transfer involving mailing lists bearing the electronic mail address of the recipient) for any purpose other than compliance with the anti-spam act or other provision of law.

However, these proscriptions do not apply if there is affirmative consent by the recipient subsequent to the request [15 U.S.C. § 7704(a)(4)(B)].

The FTC has power to modify, by regulation, the 10-business-day period mentioned above, if the FTC determines that a different period would be more reasonable [15 U.S.C. § 7704(c)].

[v] Identifier, Opt-Out Mechanism, and Physical Address in Commercial Electronic Mail

It is unlawful for any person to initiate the transmission of any commercial electronic mail message to a protected computer unless the message provides all of the following [15 U.S.C. § 7704(a)(5)(A)]:

- Clear and conspicuous identification that the message is an advertisement or solicitation.

- Clear and conspicuous notice of the opportunity, using the mandated opt-out mechanism [see § 14.15[3][g][iii]], to decline to receive further commercial electronic mail messages from the sender.

- A valid physical postal address of the sender.

However, this proscription does not apply to the transmission of a commercial electronic mail message if the recipient has given prior affirmative consent to receipt of the message [15 U.S.C. § 7704(a)(5)(B)].

[vi] Aggravated Violations

Acts and practices that are classified as aggravated violations of the CAN-SPAM Act are described below. In a civil action by the California Attorney General or another state official or agency, or by an internet access service provider, to enforce the anti-spam act [see 15 U.S.C. § 7706(f), (g); see also § 14.19[3][f]], treble damages may be awarded for an aggravated violation [see 15 U.S.C. § 7706(f)(3)(C), (g)(3)(C)].

Address Harvesting and Dictionary Attacks. It is unlawful for any person to initiate the transmission, to a protected computer, of a commercial electronic mail message that is unlawful [see 15 U.S.C. § 7704(a); see also § 14.15[3][g]], or to assist in the origination of such a message through the provision or selection of addresses to which the message will be transmitted, if the person had actual knowledge, or knowledge fairly inferred on the basis of objective circumstances, of either of the following facts [15 U.S.C. § 7704(b)(1)(A)]:

- The electronic mail address of the recipient was obtained using an automated means from a website or proprietary online service operated by another person, and the website or online service included, at the time the address was obtained, a notice stating that the operator of the website or online service will not give, sell, or otherwise transfer addresses maintained by the website or online service to any other person for the purposes of initiating, or enabling others to initiate, electronic mail messages.

- The electronic mail address of the recipient was obtained using an automated means that generates possible electronic mail addresses by combining names, letters, or numbers into numerous permutations.

This proscription does not create an ownership or proprietary interest in any electronic mail addresses [15 U.S.C. § 7704(b)(1)(B)].

Automated Creation of Multiple Electronic Mail Accounts. It is unlawful for any person to use scripts or other automated means to register for multiple electronic mail accounts or online user accounts from which to transmit to a protected computer, or enable another person to transmit to a protected computer, a commercial electronic mail message that is unlawful [15 U.S.C. § 7704(b)(2); see 15 U.S.C. § 7704(a) (unlawful messages); see also § 14.15[3][g]].

Relay or Retransmission Through Unauthorized Access. It is unlawful for any person knowingly to relay or retransmit a commercial electronic mail message that is unlawful [see 15 U.S.C. § 7704(a); see also § 14.15[3][g]] from a protected computer or computer network that the person has accessed without authorization [15 U.S.C. § 7704(b)(3)].

Additional Activities. The FTC is empowered to use its rulemaking authority to specify additional activities or practices that are classified as aggravated violations, if the FTC determines that those activities or practices are contributing substantially to the proliferation of commercial electronic mail messages that are unlawful [15 U.S.C. § 7704(c)].

[vii] Commercial Electronic Mail Containing Sexually Oriented Material

No person may initiate, in or affecting interstate commerce, the transmission, to a protected computer, of any commercial electronic mail message that includes sexually oriented material unless the person both [15 U.S.C. § 7704(d)(1)]:

- Includes in the subject heading of the message certain marks or notices prescribed by the FTC [see 15 U.S.C. § 7704(d)(3)]; and

- Makes provision so that the matter in the message that is initially viewable, when the message is opened by any recipient and without any further actions by the recipient:

  - Includes only those marks or notices, to the extent required or authorized, and the information required to be included in the message pursuant to 15 U.S.C. § 7704(a)(5) [see § 14.15[3][v]]; and

- Includes nothing more except instructions on how to access, or a mechanism to access, the sexually oriented material.

However, the above proscription does not apply to the transmission of an electronic mail message if the recipient has given prior affirmative consent to receipt of the message [15 U.S.C. § 7704(d)(2)].

[h] Businesses Promoted With False or Misleading Transmission Information

It is unlawful for a person to promote, or allow the promotion of, that person's trade or business, or goods, products, property, or services sold, offered for sale, leased or offered for lease, or otherwise made available through that trade or business, in a commercial electronic mail message the transmission of which is in violation of 15 U.S.C. § 7704(a)(1) of the CAN-SPAM Act [see § 14.15[3][g]] if that person meets all of the following criteria [15 U.S.C. § 7705(a)]:

- The person knows, or should have known in the ordinary course of that person's trade or business, that the goods, products, property, or services sold, offered for sale, leased or offered for lease, or otherwise made available through that trade or business were being promoted in such a message;

- The person received or expected to receive an economic benefit from the promotion; and

- The person took no reasonable action to prevent the transmission or to detect the transmission and report it to the FTC.

Generally, a third person who provides goods, products, property, or services to another person that violate the foregoing proscription is not to be held liable for the violation [15 U.S.C. § 7705(b)(1)]. However, liability for a violation will be imputed to such a third person who owns, or has a greater than 50 percent ownership or economic interest in, the trade or business of the person who committed the violation. Also, liability for a violation will be imputed to such a third person who (1) has actual knowledge that goods, products, property, or services are promoted in a commercial electronic mail message the transmission of which is in violation of section 5(a)(1) of the CAN-SPAM Act and (2) receives, or expects to receive, an economic benefit from the promotion [15 U.S.C. § 7705(b)(2)].

Only the FTC may enforce the foregoing provisions of the CAN-SPAM Act; enforcement through a civil action by the California Attorney General or another state official or agency or a civil action by an internet access service provider [see 15 U.S.C. § 7706(f), (g); see also § 14.19[3][c]] will not be allowed [see 15 U.S.C. § 7706(c)].

[i] Violation of E-Mail Service Provider's Policy

Under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45, no registered user [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45(a)(5)] of any electronic mail service provider [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45(a)(3)] may use or cause to be used that electronic mail service provider's equipment located in California in violation of that electronic mail service provider's policy prohibiting or restricting the use of its service or equipment for the initiation of unsolicited electronic mail advertisements [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45(b)]. No individual, corporation, or other entity may use or cause to be used, by initiating an unsolicited electronic mail advertisement, any electronic mail service provider's equipment located in California in violation of that electronic mail service provider's policy prohibiting or restricting the use of its equipment to deliver unsolicited electronic mail advertisements to its registered users [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45(c)].

Note, however, that Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45 may be preempted by the federal CAN-SPAM Act of 2003 [see P.L. 108-187, 107 Stat. 2669, discussed in § 14.15[3][a]]. The preemption provisions of the CAN-SPAM Act apply to any California statute that expressly regulates the use of electronic mail to send commercial messages, except to the extent that the statute, regulation, or rule prohibits falsity or deception in any portion of a commercial electronic mail message or information attached to it [15 U.S.C. § 7707(b)(1)]. However, the federal preemption provisions do not affect the lawfulness or unlawfulness of the adoption, implementation, or enforcement by internet access service providers of a policy of declining to transmit, route, relay, handle, or store certain types of electronic mail messages [15 U.S.C. § 7707(c)].

An electronic mail service provider may not sue a specific defendant under both Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.8 [§ 14.15[2][f]] and Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45 for the same unsolicited commercial electronic mail advertisement [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45(f)(4)]. For a form for a complaint for violation of this statute, see § 14.66.

For purposes of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45, an unsolicited electronic mail advertisement is any electronic mail message, the principal purpose of which is to promote, directly or indirectly, the sale or other distribution of goods or services to the recipient, that is (1) addressed to a recipient with whom the initiator does not have an existing business or personal relationship and (2) not sent at the request of or with the express consent of the recipient [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45(a)(1), (2)]. "Initiation" of an unsolicited electronic mail advertisement refers to the action by the initial sender of the electronic mail advertisement. It does not refer to the actions of any intervening electronic mail service provider that may handle or retransmit the electronic message [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45(a)(4)].

An electronic mail service provider is not required to create a policy prohibiting or restricting the use of its equipment for the initiation or delivery of unsolicited electronic mail advertisements [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45(d)]. However, nothing in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45 limits or restricts the rights of an electronic mail service provider under 47 U.S.C. § 230(c)(1), or any decision of an electronic mail service provider to permit or to restrict access to or use of its system, or any exercise of its editorial function [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45(e)].

[4] Unsolicited Text Message to Cell Phone, Pager, or Similar Device

Generally, no person, entity conducting business, candidate, or political committee in California may transmit, or cause to be transmitted, a text message advertisement to a mobile telephony services handset (i.e., a cell phone or similar device; see definition below), pager, or two-way messaging device that is equipped with short-message capability or any similar capability allowing the transmission of text messages. A "text message advertisement" is a message, the principal purpose of which is to promote the sale of goods or services, or to promote a political purpose or objective, to the recipient, and consisting of advertising material for the lease, sale, rental, gift offer, or other disposition of any realty, goods, services, or extension of credit, or advertising material for political purposes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.41(a)(1)]. This proscription applies when a text message advertisement is transmitted to a number assigned for mobile telephony service, pager service, or two-way messaging service to a California resident [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.41(a)(2)].

References to "mobile telephony services" (a term in use at the Public Utilities Commission and the Federal Communications Commission) mean commercially available interconnected mobile phone services that provide access to the public switched telephone network (PSTN) via mobile communication devices employing radio wave technology to transmit calls, including cellular radiotelephone, broadband Personal Communications Services (PCS), and digital Specialized Mobile Radio (SMR) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.41(g)].

The general prohibition referred to above does not apply to any of the following:

- Text messages transmitted at the direction of a person or entity offering mobile telephony service, pager service, or two-way messaging service if the subscriber is offered an option to not receive those text messages [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.41(b)].

- Text messages transmitted by a business, candidate, or political committee that has an existing relationship with the subscriber if the subscriber is offered an option not to receive text messages from that business, candidate, or political committee [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.41(c)].

- Text messages transmitted by an affiliate of a business (that is, any company that controls, is controlled by, or is under common control with, another company) that has an existing relationship with the subscriber, but only if the subscriber has provided consent to the business with which the subscriber has that relationship to receive text messages from affiliates of that business [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.41(d)].

- Electronic mail messages that are forwarded, without the knowledge of the sender, to a mobile telephony services handset, pager, or two-way messaging device [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.41(e)].

A person or entity offering mobile telephony service, pager service, or two-way messaging service has no obligation to control the transmission of a text message unless the message is transmitted at the direction of that person or entity [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.41(f)].

[5] Unwanted Telephone Solicitations

[a] Definitions

[i] Subscriber

For the purposes of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17590 et seq. (providing for a California do-not-call list), a residential or wireless telephone subscriber is referred to as a subscriber [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17590(a)]. The legislature has declared that the act of becoming a subscriber should not undermine or lessen a person's right of privacy as guaranteed under Cal. Const. art. I, § 1 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17590(b)]; and there is a compelling state interest to protect the privacy of residential and wireless telephone subscribers who wish to avoid unsolicited and unwanted telephone solicitations [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17590(a); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17590(c) (intent of legislature is to provide for California do-not-call registry by referring to, and adopting, all California telephone numbers on FTC's national do-not-call registry)].

[ii] Do-Not-Call List

"Do-not-call list" means the California telephone numbers on the national do-not-call registry established and maintained by the FTC, as described in 16 C.F.R. § 310.4(b)(1)(iii)(B) (in the FTC's telemarketing sales rule). A do-not-call list is current if it was obtained from the FTC no more than three months before the date a call is made [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(a)(2)].

[iii] Telephone Solicitor

A "telephone solicitor" is any person or entity who, on his or her own behalf or through salespersons or agents, announcing devices, or otherwise, makes or causes a telephone call to be made to a California telephone number and thereby does any of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(a)(1)]:

- Seeks to offer a prize or to rent, sell, exchange, promote, gift, or lease goods or services or documents that can be used to obtain goods or services [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(a)(1)(A)];

- Offers or solicits or seeks to offer or solicit any extension of credit for personal, family, or household purposes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(a)(1)(B)];

- Seeks marketing information that will or may be used for the direct solicitation of a sale of goods or services to the subscriber [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(a)(1)(C)];

- Seeks to sell or promote any investment, insurance, or financial services [Bus. & Prof. Code §

17592(a)(1)(D)]; or

- Seeks to make any telephone solicitation or attempted telephone solicitation as described in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17511.1 (defining "telephonic seller") [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(a)(1)(E)].

A person or entity does not necessarily qualify as a telephone solicitor if the products or services of the person or entity are sold or marketed by an independent contractor whose business practices are not controlled by the person or entity [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(b)].

[b] Unlawful Acts

It is unlawful for any person to do any of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17591]:

- Use the do-not-call list for any purpose other than to comply with Bus. & Prof. Code § 17590 et seq. or applicable federal laws;

- Deny or interfere in any way, directly or indirectly, with a subscriber's right to place a California telephone number on the do-not-call list;

- Cause a subscriber to participate in and be included on the do-not-call list without the subscriber's knowledge or consent;

- Sell or lease the do-not-call list to a person other than a telephone solicitor (nor may a telephone solicitor sell or lease the do-not-call list); or

- Charge a fee to place a California telephone number on the do-not-call list.

It is unlawful for a telephone solicitor, either directly or indirectly, to persuade a subscriber with whom it has an established business relationship to place his or her telephone number on the do-not-call list, if the solicitation has the effect of preventing competitors from contacting that solicitor's customers [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17591].

[c] Prohibited Acts

No person or entity that sells, leases, exchanges, or rents telephone solicitation lists may include in those lists those telephone numbers that appear on the current do-not-call list, except that this prohibition does not apply to lists used for directory assistance and numbers published in telephone directories that list substantially all publicly available telephone numbers in a specific geographic area [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(d)].

Except for telephone calls described in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(e) [see § 14.15[4][d]], beginning on the 31st day after the FTC makes its first do-not-call list available to telephone solicitors, no telephone solicitor may call any telephone number on the then-current do-not-call list and do any of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(c)]:

- Seek to offer a prize or to rent, sell, exchange, promote, gift, or lease goods or services or documents that can be used to obtain goods or services [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(c)(1)];

- Offer or solicit or seek to offer or solicit any extension of credit for personal, family, or household purposes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(c)(2)];

- Seek marketing information that will or may be used for the direct solicitation of a sale of goods or services to the subscriber [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(c)(3)];

- Seek to sell or promote any investment, insurance, or financial services [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(c)(4)]; or

- Seek to make any telephone solicitation or attempted telephone solicitation as described in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17511.1 (defining "telephonic seller") [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(c)(5)].

[d] Permitted Contacts With Persons on Do-Not-Call List

[i] In General

The general prohibitions [see § 14.15[4][c]] do not apply to:

- Telephone calls made in connection with the collection of a debt or the offer by a creditor to the subscriber of an extension of credit to pay a delinquent obligation owed by the subscriber to that creditor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(e)(3)];

- A telephone call made solely to verify that a subscriber, and not an unauthorized third person, has terminated an established business relationship [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(e)(6)];

- Telephone calls made by a tax-exempt charitable organization [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(e)(7)]; or

- A telephone call made for the purpose of soliciting a donation without the purchase of goods or services [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(e)(8)].

Nothing in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592 prohibits a telephone solicitor from contacting by mail a subscriber whose telephone number appears on the "do not call" list to obtain the subscriber's express written permission [see [ii], below] allowing the telephone solicitor to make the calls, described in § 14.15[4][c], that are generally prohibited [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(f)(1)]. An express written permission must include a clear and conspicuous disclosure of all of the following, except where there is an established business relationship [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(f)(2)]:

- Identification of the name of the sender of the mailing and of the entity that is requesting permission to call;

- The subscriber's telephone number to which the calls may be placed;

- The signature of the subscriber authorizing the call; and

- Notice that the subscriber may be contacted by a telephone solicitor or someone calling on behalf of the specific party identified in the request for permission, even if the subscriber's telephone number is listed on the federal "do not call" registry.

When there is an established business relationship, as defined under state or federal law, between a subscriber and a telephone solicitor, express written permission is not required [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(f)(3)]. In any dispute regarding whether a subscriber has provided express written permission, the telephone solicitor has the burden of proving that the subscriber has provided that permission by producing the original or a facsimile document, signed by the subscriber, evidencing that permission [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(f)(4)].

[ii] Calls Made Pursuant to Express Agreement

The general prohibitions [see § 14.15[4][c]] do not apply to telephone calls made pursuant to the express agreement, in writing, of the subscriber to place calls to that California telephone number. This written agreement must clearly evidence the person's authorization that calls made by or on behalf of a specific party may be placed to that California telephone number, and must include the signature of that person. In any dispute regarding whether a subscriber has provided this express written permission, the telephone solicitor has the burden of proving that the subscriber has provided this permission by producing either (1) the original or a facsimile document, signed by the subscriber, evidencing that permissions or (2) an advertisement by the subscriber. "Express agreement" does not include any consent or permission included in any contract of adhesion [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(e)(1)].

[iii] Calls Made Pursuant to Express Request

The general prohibitions [see § 14.15[4][c]] do not apply to telephone calls made pursuant to the express request of the subscriber. "Express request" may include a telephone call from a person or entity who has been provided the subscriber's telephone number and name as a referral from a solicitor with which the subscriber has an established business relationship, if that solicitor has obtained the subscriber's express request for the referral [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(e)(2)].

"Express request" does not include any consent or permission included in any contract of adhesion. A telephone call is presumed not to be made at the express request of a subscriber if one of the following occurs, as applicable [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(e)(2)].

- The call is made 30 business days after the last date the subscriber contacted a business with the purpose of inquiring about the potential purchase of goods or services [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(e)(2)(A)].

- The call is made 30 business days after the last date the subscriber consented to be contacted [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(e)(2)(B)].

- The call is made after the subscriber has requested that no further telephone calls be made to him or her [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(e)(2)(C)].

- The call is made 30 business days after a product or service becomes available where the subscriber has made a request to the business for that product or service that is not then available, and requests a call when the product or service becomes available [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(e)(2)(D)].

[iv] Calls Made Because of Established Business Relationship

The general prohibitions [see § 14.15[4][c]] do not apply to telephone calls made to a subscriber if the telephone solicitor has an established business relationship with the subscriber. "Established business relationship" means a relationship between a seller and a subscriber based on the subscriber's purchase, rental, or lease of the seller's goods or services or a financial transaction between the consumer and seller, within the 18 months immediately preceding the date of a telemarketing call. If a subscriber purchases or obtains a product or service through a licensed agent or broker, an established business relationship is created with the licensed agent or broker individually, apart from and in addition to, any established business relationship that may have been created by a licensed agent or broker acting on behalf of another, and the licensed agent or broker is a telephone solicitor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(e)(4); see § 14.15[4][a][iii]].

An established business relationship does not exist between the subscriber and any separate legal entity associated with the telephone solicitor not acting as an agent or vendor on behalf of the telephone solicitor, unless the separate legal entity shares the brand name of a business with which the subscriber has an otherwise established business relationship.

If the subscriber instructs the telephone solicitor to place the subscriber on the telephone solicitor's list pursuant to 16 C.F.R. § 310.4(b)(1)(iii)(A) (in the FTC's telemarketing sales rule) and 47 C.F.R. § 64.1200 (the FCC's restrictions on telephone solicitation), that instruction is binding on the entity with which the subscriber has the established business relationship, and on any entity that has the shared brand name, and on all other entities that share that brand name, none of whom may initiate further telephone solicitation calls to that subscriber. Separate legal entities include, but are not limited to, any parent company or entity, any subsidiary company or entity, any partnership or copartner, any joint venture or venturer, association member, or co-member, or any affiliated company or entity [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(e)(4)].

[v] Calls Made by Individual Entrepreneur or Very Small Business

The general prohibitions [see § 14.15[4][c]] do not apply to telephone calls made by an individual businessperson or a small business if the following conditions are satisfied [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(e)(5)].

- The individual businessperson or small business employs no more than five full-time or part-time employees or independent contractors.

- The individual businessperson or a principal of the small business makes the telephone calls himself or herself for the sale of goods or services offered by that individual businessperson or small business.

- The telephone calls are made to subscribers within a 50-mile radius of the location of the individual businessperson or small business.

The services offered by the individual businessperson or small business cannot be telemarketing services. Any independent contractor or employee with whom an individual businessperson or a small business is required to have a written independent contractor or employment agreement, pursuant to a regulatory scheme to ensure regulatory accountability of the independent contractor or employee, are not counted against the total referenced above [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592(e)(5)].

[e] Enforcement

[i] Action for Injunction and Civil Penalty

The attorney general, a district attorney, or a city attorney may bring a civil action in any court of competent jurisdiction against a telephone solicitor to enforce Bus. & Prof. Code § 17590 et seq. and to obtain the following remedies [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17593(a)]:

- An order to enjoin the violation;

- A civil penalty of up to the penalty amount that the FTC may seek pursuant to 15 U.S.C. § 45(m)(1)(A) as specified in 16 C.F.R. § 1.98; or

- Any other relief that the court deems proper.

[ii] Small Claims Action

Any person who has received a telephone solicitation that is prohibited by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17592 [see § 14.15[4][c]], or whose telephone number was used in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17591, may bring a civil action in small claims court for an injunction or order to prevent further violations. If a person obtains an injunction or order, and service of the injunction or order is properly effected, a person who thereafter receives further solicitations in violation of the injunction or order within 30 days after service of the initial injunction or order, may file a subsequent action in small claims court seeking enforcement of the injunction or order and a civil penalty to be awarded to the person in an amount up to $1,000. A person's claims may not be aggregated to establish jurisdiction in a court other than small claims court. A defendant is not required to appear personally, but may appear by affidavit or by written instrument [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17593(b)].

[iii] Other Remedies

The rights, remedies, and penalties established by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17590 et seq. are in addition to the rights, remedies, or penalties established under other laws [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17593(c)].

[iv] Affirmative Defense

It is an affirmative defense to any action brought under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17590 et seq. that the violation was accidental and in violation of the telephone solicitor's policies and procedures and telemarketer instruction and training [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17593(d)].

[f] Confidentiality of Information

Any information regarding any California telephone number that appears on the do-not-call list in the possession of the attorney general, whether obtained from the FTC or submitted to the attorney general by a subscriber for inclusion in the do-not-call list, may not be disclosed pursuant to a request made under the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6250 et seq.] and also is privileged under Evid. Code § 1040 (creating a privilege for official information) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17594]. However, the attorney general is not prevented from providing a certificate stating whether a specific telephone number was on the do-not-call list that was effective on the specified date or range of dates in response to [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17594]:

- An inquiry from any law enforcement agency that is investigating, prosecuting, or responding to an allegation of a violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17590 et seq. [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17594(a)]; or

- An inquiry from an individual who is investigating or litigating an alleged violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17590 et seq. and who seeks the certificate regarding his or her telephone number or to an inquiry from the person who is responding to the allegation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17594(b)].

[g] Unlawful Contracts

A contract for the purchase of goods or services primarily for personal, family, or household use, that is made with a consumer located in California and made in connection with a telephone solicitation (whether made in or from outside California) is unlawful if, with respect to that telephone solicitation, the telemarketer is in violation of 16 C.F.R. § 310.4(a)(6)(i) or has not complied with 16 C.F.R. § 310.5(a)(5) (both of which are in the FTC's telemarketing sales rule) as published at 68 Fed. Reg. 4580 (Jan. 29, 2003) . This applies only to entities that are subject to the FTC's telemarketing sales rule as published there, and it does not apply to any transaction exempted under 16 C.F.R. § 310.6 of that rule [Civ. Code § 1670.6].

[6] Unsolicited Advertisement Received by Fax

[a] Scope of Regulation

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.43 regulates unsolicited advertising by sending messages to fax machines, called "telephone facsimile machines" in the statute. A fax machine is any equipment that has the capacity to do either or both of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.43(a)(1)]:

- Transcribe text or images, or both, from paper into an electronic signal and to transmit that signal over a regular telephone line; and

- Transcribe text or images, or both, from an electronic signal received over a regular telephone line onto paper.

An unsolicited advertisement is any material advertising the commercial availability or quality of any property, goods, or services that is transmitted to any person or entity without that person's or entity's prior express invitation or permission. Prior express invitation or permission may be obtained for a specific or unlimited number of advertisements and may be obtained for a specific or unlimited period of time [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.43(a)(2)].

[b] Remedies for Harmful Fax Advertising

It is unlawful for a person or entity, if either the person or entity or the recipient is located in California, to use any fax machine, computer, or other device to send, or cause another person or entity to use such a device to send, an unsolicited advertisement to a fax machine [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.43(b)(1)]. In addition to any other remedy provided by law, including a remedy provided by the Telephone Consumer Act [see 47 U.S.C. § 227 et seq.], a person or entity may bring an action seeking the following relief [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.43(b)(2)]:

- Injunctive relief against further violations;

- Actual damages or statutory damages of $500 per violation, whichever amount is greater; or

- Both injunctive relief and damages.

If the court finds that the defendant willfully or knowingly violated Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.43(b), the court, in its discretion, may increase the award to equal not more than three times the amount otherwise available as actual or statutory damages [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.43].

[c] Duty to Disclose Sender's Identity and Related Facts

It is unlawful for a person or entity, if either the person or entity or the recipient is located in California, to initiate any communication using a fax machine that does not clearly mark, in a margin at the top or bottom of each transmitted page or on the first page of each transmission, the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.43(c)(1)]:

- The date and time sent.

- An identification of the business, other entity, or individual sending the message.

- The telephone number of the sending machine or of the business, other entity, or individual.

It is unlawful for a person or entity, if either the person or entity or the recipient is located in California, to use a computer or other electronic device to send any message via a fax machine unless it is clearly marked, in a margin at the top or bottom of each transmitted page of the message or on the first page of the transmission, to show the information listed above [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.43(c)(2)].

[d] Exemption for Faxes Sent by Tax-Exempt Organizations to Members

The statute prohibiting unsolicited advertising fax transmissions does not apply to a fax sent by or on behalf of a professional or trade association that is a tax-exempt nonprofit organization and in furtherance of the association's tax-exempt purpose to a member of the association, provided that all of the following conditions are satisfied [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.43(d)]:

- The member voluntarily provided the association the fax number to which the fax was sent.

- The fax is not primarily for the purpose of advertising the commercial availability or quality of any property, goods, or services of third parties.

- The member to whom the fax is sent has not requested that the association stop sending faxes for the purpose of advertising the commercial availability or quality of any property, goods, or services of third parties.

§ 14.16 Grey Market Goods

Every retail dealer who offers "grey market goods" for sale or for lease of more than four months is required to make conspicuous, specified disclosures in any advertisement of those goods [Civ. Code § 1797.82; see Civ. Code § 1797.8(b) ("sale" defined)]. "Grey market goods" are consumer goods, bearing a trademark, that are imported through channels other than the manufacturer's authorized distributor and which are not accompanied by the manufacturer's express written warranty [Civ. Code § 1797.8(a)]. The required disclosures, which must also be conspicuously posted at the product's point of display and affixed to the product or to its package, generally put the consumer on notice that the manufacturer's normal warranties do not apply to the goods [see Civ. Code § 1797.81]. A seller who does not comply with the disclosure requirement is liable to the buyer who returns the product for a refund, or for credit on credit purchases, if the product purchases has not been used in a manner inconsistent with any printed instructions the seller provided [Civ. Code § 1797.85]. Furthermore, noncompliance constitutes unfair competition under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200, grounds for rescission under Civ. Code § 1689, and an unfair method of competition or deceptive practice under Civ. Code § 1770 [Civ. Code § 1797.86]. Although the grey-market statute does not expressly state that failure to make the required disclosures constitutes a violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500, such nondisclosure clearly falls within the general statutory prohibition of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 (discussed in § 14.12[1]), which prohibits misleading advertising.

For discussion of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200, see Ch. 565, Unfair Competition . For discussion of rescission under Civ. Code § 1689, see Ch. 128, Consumer Contracts: Statutes Regulating Specific Types of Contracts .

Any person, firm, corporation, partnership, or association, or any employee or agent, who violates the False Advertising Law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq.] is guilty of a misdemeanor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17534; but see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17508(d), discussed in § 14.13[7]]. In addition, particular statutes prohibiting false advertising expressly state that violation of the statute is a misdemeanor and specify maximum fines and terms of imprisonment [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17500 (general prohibition), 17531 ("seconds" merchandise), 17537(e) (conditional prizes or gifts)].

§ 14.18 Action for Statutory False Advertising and Unfair Competition

[1] By Attorney General or Private Plaintiff

Remedies for violations or proposed violations of the false advertising statutes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq.] are provided for in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535. This statute provides that an action for an injunction may be brought by any person who has suffered injury in fact and has lost money or property as a result of a violation of the False Advertising Law; but the plaintiff may pursue representative claims or relief on behalf of others only if the plaintiff meets that standing requirement and complies with Code Civ. Proc. § 382 concerning class-action certification [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535; see Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 215, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660] . A "person" for purposes of the statute includes any individual, partnership, firm, association, or corporation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17506]. The action may also be prosecuted by the Attorney General, or any district attorney, county counsel, city attorney, or city prosecutor in the name of the people of California on their own complaint or on the complaint of any board, officer, person, corporation, or association [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535].

Both private persons and prosecuting authorities bear the burden of proving the advertising claims to be false or misleading. Prosecuting authorities, but not private plaintiffs, have the administrative power to request advertisers to substantiate advertising claims before bringing actions for false advertisement [see Bus & Prof. Code § 17508; § 14.13[7]], but the prosecuting authorities retain the burden of proof in the false advertising actions [National Council Against Health Fraud, Inc. v. King Bio Pharmaceuticals, Inc. (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 1336, 1344-1345, 1348, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 207 (holding that it would be inappropriate to shift burden of proof to defendant in private plaintiff false advertising action when private plaintiff is not authorized by statute to seek substantiation of advertising claim from defendant)].

Remedies for violations or proposed violations of the unfair competition statutes, including false advertising, are provided for in Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17203 and 17204 [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 (false advertising is unfair competition)]. Private actions for injunctions are authorized, as well as actions brought by the Attorney General and other specified public officers. For further discussion of remedies under the unfair competition statutes (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq.), see Ch. 565, Unfair Competition .

[2] Remedies

[a] Injunction

Any person, corporation, firm, partnership, joint stock company, or any other association or organization that violates or proposes to violate the false advertising statutes (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq.) may be enjoined by any court of competent jurisdiction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535]. All that is needed to state a cause of action for injunctive relief is an allegation that members of the public are likely to be deceived [see, e.g., Day v. AT&T Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 325, 335-337, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 55 (action that sought only to enjoin misleading practices in advertising of phone card rates and sought no monetary recovery did not come within federal "filed rate doctrine" of 47 U.S.C. § 203 and stated cause of action under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200, 17500)]. Allegations of actual deception, reasonable reliance, and damages are not necessary [Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 211, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660] . If the unlawful advertising practice has already ceased, an injunction will not issue without a showing that past violations will probably recur [People v. Toomey (1985) 157 Cal. App. 3d 1, 20, 203 Cal. Rptr. 642] .

Claims for injunctive relief under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 are not subject to arbitration [Cruz v. Pacificare Health Systems, Inc. (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 303, 307, 316, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 58, 66 P.3d 1157 (finding an inherent conflict between arbitration and underlying purpose of statutes designed to prevent further harm to the public at large)]. In Cruz v. Pacificare Health Systems, Inc. [Cruz v. Pacificare Health Systems, Inc. (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 303, 307, 316, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 58, 66 P.3d 1157] , the California Supreme Court extended its earlier holding in Broughton v. Cigna Healthplans of California [Broughton v. Cigna Healthplans of California (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1066, 1082, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334, 988 P.2d 67 ; for discussion of Broughton; see Ch. 504, Sales: Consumers Legal Remedies Act, § 504.13[2]], regarding non-arbitrability of public injunctions under the Consumers Legal Remedies Act [Civ. Code § 1770], to include claims to enjoin unfair competition under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. and misleading advertising under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq. For discussion and forms for initiating or resisting arbitration pursuant to an arbitration agreement between the parties, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration .

Any person who intentionally violates an injunction issued under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535 is liable for a civil penalty of up to $6,000 for each violation, or up to $6,000 per day in some circumstances. The penalty may be assessed and recovered in an action brought by the Attorney General or by any district attorney, county counsel, or city attorney [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535.5].

For a complaint to enjoin false or misleading advertising, see § 14.60.

[b] Restitution and Other Equitable Remedies

As a further remedy for violation of the false advertising statutes, Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535 authorizes a court to make such orders or judgments, including the appointment of a receiver, as may be necessary to (1) prevent the use or employment of any practices that violate Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq., or*(2)* restore to any person in interest any money or property acquired by unlawful practices [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535; see People v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 283, 286-287, 107 Cal. Rptr. 192, 507 P.2d 1400 (1972 amendment adding remedy of restitution only clarified inherent powers of court)]. The court is authorized to award restitution without individualized proof of deception, reliance, and injury if it determines that such a remedy is necessary to prevent the use or employment of the unfair advertising practices [Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 211, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660] .

For a complaint for restitution of money paid as a result of false or misleading advertising, see § 14.60.

[c] Damages Generally Not Available

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535, which provides remedies for violations of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq., does not expressly authorize recovery of damages by private individuals. Therefore, private relief is limited to actions for injunctive relief under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535, and only the specified public officers may recover the civil penalties [Chern v. Bank of America (1976) 15 Cal. 3d 866, 875, 127 Cal. Rptr. 110, 544 P.2d 1310] .

Damages are also unavailable under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203, which authorizes an action for acts of unfair competition, including false advertising, and is nearly identical to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535 [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200; Heller v. Norcal Mutual Ins. Co. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 30, 45, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 200, 876 P.2d 999 ; Bank of the West v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1254, 1266, 1270-1271 & n.7, 2 Cal. 4th 1254, 833 P.2d 545 (holding that disgorgement of wrongfully obtained money under Bus. & Prof Code § 17203 does not constitute damages covered by an insurance policy); for further discussion, see Ch. 565, Unfair Competition].

Damages are expressly authorized in some instances, however. Several of the false advertising statutes making particular acts unlawful also provide for a private right of action to recover damages [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.5(b) (unadvertised limitations on quantity of sales, discussed in § 14.13[2]); Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.4 (conditional prizes or gifts, discussed in § 14.13[12][e][v]); Bus. & Prof. Code § 17577.6 (water treatment devices, discussed in § 14.13[19][b])].

In addition, damages may be available to a plaintiff who has a cause of action for fraud [see Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 219-220, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660 ; see also § 14.12[4]].

[d] Civil Penalties

[i] In General

Any person who violates any provision of the false advertising statutes (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq.) is liable for a civil penalty not to exceed $2,500 for each violation. The penalty is recoverable in a civil action brought in the name of the people of the State of California by the Attorney General or by any district attorney, county counsel, or city attorney in any court of competent jurisdiction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17536(a)]. The statute authorizes penalties up to $2,500 for each person to whom the advertiser made misrepresentations [People v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 283, 289, 107 Cal. Rptr. 192, 507 P.2d 1400] . Therefore, for example, a single false or misleading publication in a newspaper advertisement constitutes a minimum of one violation with as many additional violations as there are persons who read the advertisement, or who responded to the advertisement by purchasing the advertised product or service or by making inquiries concerning the advertised product or service [People v. Superior Court (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 181, 198, 157 Cal. Rptr. 628] . In determining the reasonableness of a penalty, the court must consider all pertinent factors, including the kind of misrepresentations or deceptions, whether they were intentionally made or the result of negligence, the number of people reached by the advertising medium, the nature and extent of the public injury, and the size and wealth of the advertising enterprise [People v. Superior Court (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 181, 198, 157 Cal. Rptr. 628] .

In assessing a civil penalty, a court must consider any one or more of the following: the nature and seriousness of the misconduct, the number of violations, the persistence of the misconduct, the length of time over which the misconduct occurred, the willfulness of the defendant's misconduct, and the defendant's assets, liabilities, and net worth [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17536(b); see Stats. 1992, ch. 430, § 6 (1992 amendment was not intended to change decisional law regarding the methods of determining the number of violations on which an award of civil penalties is based)].

Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17205 (unfair competition) and 17534.5 (false advertising) provide that the remedies under their respective statutory schemes are cumulative. Therefore, a person whose false or misleading representations violate both the false advertising statutes and the unfair competition statutes may be liable for penalties under both Bus. & Prof.

Code §§ 17206 and 17536 for each violation [People v. Toomey (1985) 157 Cal. App. 3d 1, 21-22, 203 Cal. Rptr. 642 ; for further discussion of civil penalties under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206, see Ch. 565, Unfair Competition, § 565.10 et seq.]. The remedies provided by Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17536 and 17534 are mutually exclusive, however, as applied to the penalties for acts in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17530 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17536(e); see also § 14.43[18]].

[ii] Treble Penalty for Senior or Disabled Plaintiff

In an action brought by, on behalf of, or for the benefit of, senior citizens or disabled persons to redress unfair or deceptive acts or practices or unfair methods of competition in which the trier of fact is authorized by a statute to impose a fine, a civil penalty or other penalty, or any remedy to punish or deter, the amount of which is left to the trier of fact's discretion, the penalty may be trebled in accordance with Civ. Code § 3345(b) [Civ. Code § 3345; see Civ. Code § 1761(f), (g) ("senior citizen" and "disabled person" defined)]. Civ. Code § 3345(b) sets forth factors that the trier of fact must consider in determining the amount of the penalty and provides that, if one or more of the required findings are made, the trier of fact may impose a penalty up to three times greater than authorized amount. For a discussion of the finding required to justify a treble penalty under Civ. Code § 3345(b), see Ch. 504, Sales: Consumers Legal Remedies Act .

[3] Time for Bringing Action

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535, which authorizes an action by a public official or private person for an injunction or restitution, contains no express limitation period. However, an action on a liability created by statute must be commenced within three years [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a)]. To determine when the cause of action accrues, a useful analogy may be found in the statute of limitations governing actions brought under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17536, which is discussed below. That action must be brought by a public official within three years, and the cause of action is not deemed to have accrued until discovery of the facts constituting grounds for commencing the action [Code of Civ. Proc. § 338(h)].

An action brought to enforce any cause of action for unfair competition under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. must be commenced within four years after the cause of action accrued [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17208]. Because Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 provides that a violation of the false advertising statutes constitutes unfair competition, the limitation period applicable to an action brought under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203 and based on false or misleading advertising is four years. In addition, it could be argued that the specific limitation period for unfair competition should govern over the general limitation period applied to actions under the false advertising statutes, resulting in a four-year limitation period for action for Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535.

When a public official brings an action under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17536 to recover civil penalties for violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq. (false advertising), the action must be commenced within three years. The cause of action is not deemed to have accrued until the discovery by the aggrieved party, the Attorney General, the district attorney, the county counsel, the city prosecutor, or the city attorney of the facts constituting grounds for commencing the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(h)].

[4] Class Actions

A private plaintiff--that is, a person who has suffered injury in fact and has lost money or property as a result of a violation of the Unfair Competition Law or the False Advertising Law--may pursue representative claims or relief on behalf of others only if the plaintiff complies with Code Civ. Proc. § 382 concerning class-action certification [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17203, 17204, 17535].

If the class action seeks restitution of money obtained through a defendant's use of false or misleading advertising, the trial court can order restitution without proof that an individual class member was deceived by the advertising, as long as the court determines that such a remedy is necessary to deter future violations of the unfair trade practice statute or to foreclose the defendant's retention of any ill-gotten gains [Fletcher v. Security Pac. National Bank (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 442, 454, 153 Cal. Rptr. 28, 591 P.2d 51 (applying former Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535 before amendment expressly authorizing restitution)]. For discussion of required allegations to obtain an injunction, see § 14.18[2][a].

For discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 382, the statute governing class actions generally, and for complaints and notices relating to class actions, see Ch. 120, Class Actions . The Consumers Legal Remedies Act [Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.] imposes special procedural requirements for class actions [see Civ. Code § 1781; see also Ch. 504, Sales: Consumers Legal Remedies Act].

[5] Exceptions From Liability

[a] Media

The provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq. do not apply to any visual or sound radio broadcasting station, to any internet service provider or commercial online service, or to any publisher of a newspaper, magazine, or other publication who broadcasts or publishes, including over the internet, an advertisement in good faith, without knowledge of its false, deceptive, or misleading character [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17502]. The provisions include prohibitions against the following:

- Unadvertised limitations on quantity of sales [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.5].
- Certain statements as to "former price" [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17501].
- Deceptive pricing of goods or services sold only in multiple units [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17504].
- Misrepresentation of control, character, or volume of business [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17505].
- Deceptive pricing of different articles of merchandise or types of service within the same class of merchandise or service [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17507].
- Certain factual claims and brand comparisons [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17508].
- Certain transactions conditioned on the sale or lease of a different product or service [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17509].

In addition, particular false advertising statutes exempt from their terms publishers or broadcasters who act in good faith [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17533.8, discussed in § 14.44[7][a][i]], or publishers who have no interest in the property advertised [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17530, discussed in § 14.43[18]].

[b] Political Election Campaign Practices

The false advertising statutes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq.] do not apply to political election campaign practices [O'Connor v. Superior Court (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 1013, 1014, 1019-1020, 223 Cal. Rptr. 357] . Because it is the context in which the speech is made, rather than the status of the speaker, that determines whether or not speech is protected under the First Amendment, these statutes are inapplicable to regulate conduct in a political campaign even when the conduct arises in the arguably commercial context of statements made about a candidate for political office by a paid political consulting firm [O'Connor v. Superior Court (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 1013, 1018-1019, 223 Cal. Rptr. 357] . The complete and carefully limited scheme of election regulation and enforcement provided by the Legislature in the express penal provisions of the Elections Code do not include a private cause of action for damages and injunctive relief based on false and misleading statements made in an election campaign. Thus, it is apparent that the Legislature recognized that any attempt at wholesale regulation of, or government intrusion into, the content of political literature is constitutionally impermissible [O'Connor v. Superior Court (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 1013, 1019-1020, 223 Cal. Rptr. 357 ; see Elec. Code § 29000 et seq.; see also Ch. 243, Elections].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

2-14 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 14.19

§ 14.19 Billboards and Other Outdoor Advertising

[1] Constitutional Limits on Government Regulation

[a] Right to Free Speech

The extent to which the First Amendment allows government to restrict outdoor advertising was first addressed by the United States Supreme Court in Metromedia, Inc. v. City of San Diego (1981) 453 U.S. 490, 101 S. Ct. 2882, 69 L. Ed. 2d 800 . The advertising restriction consisted of a local ordinance that banned all outdoor advertising signs, with the exception of (1) "on-site" signs, or signs that were located on the premises where the advertised goods or services were made or sold, and (2) a group of other very limited exceptions such as commemorative historical plaques and temporary political campaign signs. After the California Supreme Court held, in Metromedia, Inc. v. City of San Diego (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 848, 866-871, 164 Cal. Rptr. 510, 610 P.2d 407 , that the ordinance neither exceeded the city's police power nor violated U.S. Const., amend. I, the United States Supreme Court struck down the ordinance on First Amendment grounds, but a majority was unable to agree on the rationale for its decision. A plurality concluded that the ordinance could constitutionally ban all off-site commercial signs to achieve the goals of traffic safety and improved aesthetics [Metromedia, Inc. v. City of San Diego (1981) 453 U.S. 490, 507, 512, 101 S. Ct. 2882, 69 L. Ed. 2d 800 (plurality opinion of White, J.)]. However, billboards can carry noncommercial, as well as commercial, messages. Therefore, the plurality found that the ordinance was invalid because it exempted on-site commercial signs from the general ban without making any comparable exception for on-site signs carrying noncommercial messages, thereby impermissibly "affording a greater degree of protection to commercial than to noncommercial speech" [Metromedia, Inc. v. City of San Diego (1981) 453 U.S. 490, 513, 101 S. Ct. 2882, 69 L. Ed. 2d 800] . The plurality also found the ordinance unconstitutional because it permitted some off-site signs carrying certain types of noncommercial messages, such as historic plaques, thereby impermissibly choosing "the appropriate subjects for public discourse" [Metromedia, Inc. v. City of San Diego (1981) 453 U.S. 490, 514-515, 101 S. Ct. 2882, 69 L. Ed. 2d 800] .

Two other Justices concurred in the judgment but reached their conclusion on the ground that the city failed to demonstrate that the ordinance directly furthered the asserted interest in traffic safety or that the city's interest in aesthetics was substantial enough in the commercial and industrial areas of the city to justify the prohibition of billboards there [Metromedia, Inc. v. City of San Diego (1981) 453 U.S. 490, 528-534, 101 S. Ct. 2882, 69 L. Ed. 2d 800 (concurring opinion of Brennan, J.)]. They also disagreed with the plurality's view that an ordinance totally banning commercial billboards, but allowing noncommercial billboards, would be constitutional because such an ordinance would give city officials the right, before approving a billboard, to determine whether the proposed message is commercial or noncommercial [Metromedia, Inc. v. City of San Diego (1981) 453 U.S. 490, 536-540, 101 S. Ct. 2882, 69 L. Ed. 2d 800 (concurring opinion of Brennan, J.)].

Three Justices dissented in separate opinions, each expressing the view that the city's ban on billboards was justified by its interest in traffic safety and aesthetic improvement and that the limited exceptions contained in the ordinance did not offend the First Amendment [Metromedia, Inc. v. City of San Diego (1981) 453 U.S. 490, 548-555, 555-569, 569-570, 101 S. Ct. 2882, 69 L. Ed. 2d 800 (dissenting opinions of Burger, C.J.; Stevens, Rehnquist, JJ.)]. One Justice asserted that an aesthetic justification alone is sufficient to sustain a total prohibition of billboards within a community [Metromedia, Inc. v. City of San Diego (1981) 453 U.S. 490, 570, 101 S. Ct. 2882, 69 L. Ed. 2d 800 (dissenting opinion of Rehnquist, J.)]. Another justice asserted that a total ban on billboards to improve the quality of the environment is permissible as long as the ordinance is wholly impartial, without bias in favor of one point of view or another, and the overall market for communication remains open for the communication of ideas [Metromedia, Inc. v. City of San Diego (1981) 453 U.S. 490, 552-553, 101 S. Ct. 2882, 69 L. Ed. 2d 800 (dissenting opinion of Stevens, J.)].

Therefore, it appears that, despite the emergence of three distinct schools of thought in Metromedia, a majority of the United States Supreme Court expressly concluded that a city's interest in safety and aesthetics justified an absolute ban on all commercial, off-site outdoor signs. One appellate California has concluded that such a ban on off-site commercial signs is constitutionally valid, even if it allows a city official to determine what is commercial and what is noncommercial speech. The court reasoned that city officials have sufficient guidance from the various court decisions relating to billboards and commercial speech with which to make that determination [City of Salinas v. Ryan Outdoor Advertising, Inc. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 416, 429-430, 234 Cal. Rptr. 619] .

The plurality in Metromedia held that an outdoor advertising ban cannot impermissibly discriminate between different types of noncommercial messages [Metromedia, Inc. v. City of San Diego (1981) 453 U.S. 490, 514-515, 101 S. Ct. 2882, 69 L. Ed. 2d 800 (plurality opinion of White, J.)]. One California court of appeal has subsequently applied this principle to an ordinance that banned all off-site signs, thereby permitting on-site signs, without regard to whether the signs were commercial or noncommercial. The court concluded that such a content-neutral ban on all off-site signs is justified by the city's interests in reducing traffic hazards and improving aesthetics [City and County of San Francisco v. Eller Outdoor Advertising (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 643, 659, 237 Cal. Rptr. 815] . However, the court held that the ordinance was facially invalid because it exempted from the off-site ban certain signs such as historic plaques, temporary political posters, and temporary signs of a patriotic, religious, charitable, or civic character. The exemptions for many, but not all, categories of signs displaying noncommercial speech impermissibly discriminated based on the content of the noncommercial speech [City and County of San Francisco v. Eller Outdoor Advertising (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 643, 662, 237 Cal. Rptr. 815 (upholding ordinance with saving construction)].

For a form of affirmative defense for use in an action by a local government seeking to enforce an outdoor advertising ordinance that violates the owner's free speech rights, see § 14.69.

[b] Due Process and Equal Protection

Before the United Supreme Court ruled in Bigelow v. Virginia (1975) 421 U.S. 809, 818, 95 S. Ct. 2222, 44 L. Ed. 2d 600 , that commercial speech is entitled to some First Amendment protection, state and local regulation of billboards and other outdoor advertising was typically challenged on the ground that the regulating entity had exceeded the police power reserved to the states by U.S. Const., amend. X. In reviewing legislation for the purpose of testing its propriety as an exercise of the police power, the court determines whether the subject of the legislation is within the state's power and, if so, whether the means adopted to accomplish the result are reasonably designed for that purpose, and have a real and substantial relation to the objects sought to be attained [Serve Yourself Gas etc. Assn. v. Brock (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 813, 817-818, 249 P.2d 545] . The California Supreme Court has made clear that, under this standard, the goals of eliminating traffic hazards and improving the appearance of a city are proper objectives for the exercise of the city's police power, and an ordinance that virtually eliminates billboards designed to be viewed from streets and highways bears a reasonable relationship to those objectives [Metromedia, Inc. v. City of San Diego (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 848, 855, 859, 164 Cal. Rptr. 510, 610 P.2d 407 , rev'd on First Amendment grounds, 453 U.S. 490, 101 S. Ct. 2882, 69 L. Ed. 2d 800 (1981)] .

In addition, federal and state equal protection guarantees require that classification of advertising for purposes of regulation must not be arbitrarily made, but must be based on natural, intrinsic, or constitutional distinctions that suggest reasons for and justify the particular legislation [see Carlin v. City of Palm Springs (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 706, 712, 92 Cal. Rptr. 535] . A sign company's right to equal protection also mandates even-handed enforcement of legal requirements for erecting billboards. For instance, if a city has in force a procedure for granting a permit after construction of a billboard has been commenced (where normally a sign company must obtain a permit before beginning construction), then the city may not arbitrarily refuse to follow that procedure in a particular case, as a tactical maneuver to prevent erection of a billboard [ Valley Outdoor, Inc. v. City of Riverside (9th Cir. 2006) 446 F.3d 948, 956] **.

Finally, due process requires that a local government may not require the removal of outdoor advertising without either (1) payment of just compensation, or (2) the allowance of a reasonable amortization period, commensurate with the owner's investment [Metromedia, Inc. v. City of San Diego (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 848, 881-882, 164 Cal. Rptr. 510, 610 P.2d 407 , rev'd on First Amendment grounds, 453 U.S. 490, 101 S. Ct. 2882, 69 L. Ed. 2d 800 (1981) ; Tahoe Regional Planning Agency v. King (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1365, 1396-1400, 285 Cal. Rptr. 335] . A sign owner who challenges an amortization period has the burden of proving that the period is unreasonable as applied to the particular sign [Tahoe Regional Planning Agency v. King (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1365, 1396, 285 Cal. Rptr. 335] , taking into account the cost of the billboard, its depreciated value, remaining useful life, length and remaining term of the lease under which it is maintained, and the harm to the pubic if the structure remains standing beyond the prescribed amortization period. A one-year period is generally unreasonable, with the possible exception of signs that have been fully depreciated for federal income tax purposes. In contrast, amortization periods ranging from two years and eight months to three years have been upheld [see, e.g., Metromedia, Inc. v. City of San Diego (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 848, 883-884, 164 Cal. Rptr. 510, 610 P.2d 407 , rev'd on First Amendment grounds, 453 U.S. 490, 101 S. Ct. 2882, 69 L. Ed. 2d 800 (1981) ; see also Tahoe Regional Planning Agency v. King (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1365, 1402, 285 Cal. Rptr. 335 (other factors to be considered)].

For forms of affirmative defense for use in an action by a local government seeking to enforce an outdoor advertising ordinance that violates the owner's right to equal protection or due process, see §§ 14.70 -14.71.

[c] Fifth Amendment "Takings" Challenge

Since First Lutheran Church v. Los Angeles County (1987) 482 U.S. 304, 107 S. Ct. 2378, 96 L. Ed. 2d 250 , and Nollan v. California Coastal Comm'n (1987) 483 U.S. 825, 107 S. Ct. 3141, 97 L. Ed.2d 677 (hereinafter " First English" and " Nollan," discussed in Ch. 247, Eminent Domain and Ch. 579, Zoning and Planning), the reasonableness test of an amortization period for discontinuance of nonconforming signs has taken on aspects of the traditional Fifth Amendment (U.S.) "takings" challenge [Tahoe Regional Planning Agency v. King (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1365, 1399, 1401, 285 Cal. Rptr. 335] . This analysis seems to apply not only to the sign, but also to the land on which it is situated [see Tahoe Regional Planning Agency v. King (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1365, 1402, 285 Cal. Rptr. 335 (at least when interest of owner of real property on which nonconforming sign is located is at issue)].

Without a reasonable amortization period, the ordinance goes too far and becomes a "taking" rather than a valid noncompensable regulatory action. A taking occurs if the owner has been deprived of "all economically viable use of the property" [Tahoe Regional Planning Agency v. King (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1365, 1399, 1401, 285 Cal. Rptr. 335] . In order for an amortization period to be upheld as a reasonable alternative to compensation, it is not necessary that the nonconforming property have no value at the end of the termination period [Tahoe Regional Planning Agency v. King (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1365, 1396-1397, 285 Cal. Rptr. 335] .

An amortization period does not automatically immunize a land-use ordinance from a takings challenge. Thus, the amortization period cannot be viewed in isolation but is only one of the facts that the court should consider in defining the character of the government action as a valid regulation or a compensable taking [Tahoe Regional Planning Agency v. King (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1365, 1400, 285 Cal. Rptr. 335 (citing Georgia Outdoor Advertising, Inc. v. City of Wayneville (4th Cir. 1990) 900 F.2d 783, 786-787 (only previous case applying First English criteria in context of amortization vs. compensation issue)]. To survive a takings challenge under Nollan, the interest sought to be advanced by a land-use ordinance or regulation, including those with legitimate aesthetic purposes, must be substantially advanced by the regulation [Tahoe Regional Planning Agency v. King (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1365, 1401, 285 Cal. Rptr. 335 (ordinance substantially and directly advanced TRPA's legitimate interest in maintaining natural scenic quality of region)]. The issue of taking versus an amortization period as an alternative to compensation requires a fully developed factual record with regard to the specific property and the particular estimates of economic impact and ultimate valuation relevant in the unique circumstances, and often cannot be determined from a joint stipulation of facts or on a motion for summary judgment [Tahoe Regional Planning Agency v. King (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1365, 1401-1402, 1401 n.25, 285 Cal. Rptr. 335] .

Thus, although allowance of an amortization period does not establish the validity of an ordinance as a matter of law, it is one of the relevant facts to be considered in determining the character of the governmental action. Other factors to be considered include the following [Tahoe Regional Planning Agency v. King (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1365, 1402, 285 Cal. Rptr. 335] :

- The number of billboards that can economically be used for permitted advertising and the number that are economically useless.
- The terms of leases for billboard locations.
- The land owned for billboard locations and whether it has any other economic use;
- The cost of the billboards that can and cannot be used.
- The depreciation taken on the billboards and their actual life expectancy.
- The income expected during the amortization period, and when a challenge is brought after expiration of the amortization period, the income earned through the time of judicial resolution.
- The salvage value of the billboards that cannot be used.
- The percentage of affected signs compared to remaining signs in the owner's business unit.
- The relative value of affected and remaining signs.
- Whether the amortization period is reasonable.
- Any other facts the court deems relevant.

[2] Federal and State Restrictions

[a] In General

Billboard advertising is regulated by both federal and state law. The Highway Beautification Act of 1965 (23 U.S.C. §§ 131, 136, 319) restricts outdoor advertising by tying the allotment of federal highway funds to specific controls that individual states should impose on the placement of advertising signs, displays, and devices along interstate or primary highways [23 U.S.C. § 131(b)]. The Act generally encourages the states to prohibit such advertising within 660 feet of any interstate or primary highway or, if outside of urban areas, anywhere in view of an interstate or primary highway, except for displays advertising the sale or lease of property on which they are located or advertising activities conducted on the property on which the displays are located [see 23 U.S.C. § 131(c)]. The Act permits certain signs consistent with customary use to be erected and maintained along highways in commercial and industrial areas [23 U.S.C. § 131(d)].

The Highway Beautification Act, including its just compensation provisions, does not fully occupy the field, is not mandatory, and does not preempt conflicting state laws [Tahoe Regional Planning Agency v. King (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1365, 1386-1387, 1390, 285 Cal. Rptr. 335 (however, land within TRPA, an agency created by multistate compact approved by Congress, would be limited exception to HBA anyway)].

In California, the Outdoor Advertising Act [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5200-5486] regulates outdoor advertising. The provisions of the California Act generally apply to advertising located in unincorporated areas of the state and advertising located near interstate or primary highways [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 5271; but see Bus. & Prof. Code § 5274 (limited application to on-premises advertising display for business center adjacent to or visible from interstate or primary highway); see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 5275 (Director of Transportation is precluded from regulating noncommercial, protected speech contained within any advertising display authorized by, or exempted from, Outside Advertising Act)]. Like the federal Highway Beautification Act, the California law generally prohibits the placement of outdoor advertising displays within 660 feet from the edge of the right of way of an interstate or primary highway, or, if outside of an urban area or within that portion of an urban area that is not a business area, anywhere in view of an interstate or primary highway, except for displays that advertise the sale or lease of property on which they are located or that advertise activities conducted on the property on which the displays are located [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5405, 5408.1, 5271]. The California law makes additional exceptions for electronic message displays and for displays advertising the locations of farm produce outlets [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5405, 5405.5]. Temporary political signs are prohibited within 660 feet of a landscaped freeway [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5405.3]. In business areas, outdoor advertising displays are permitted within 660 feet of an interstate or primary highway if they conform to the size, spacing, and lighting requirements set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 5408 [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5408, 5408.1].

The Outdoor Advertising Act also generally prohibits advertising displays on property adjacent to a section of "landscaped freeway" if the display is designed to be viewed primarily by persons traveling on the main-traveled way of the landscaped freeway [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5440]. However, this prohibition does not apply to advertising displays used exclusively to designate the name of the occupant of the premises, or to advertise goods manufactured or produced, or services rendered, on the property where the display is placed [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5442; see People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Maldonado (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1225, 1230-1233, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 66 (affirming trial court's judgment enjoining property owner from violations of Bus. & Prof. Code § 5440; challenged advertising did not fall within Bus. & Prof. Code § 5442 exception)].

The California Act's limitations also include a requirement that the name of the person owning or maintaining the advertising structure be plainly displayed thereon [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 5400], specification of wind resistance [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 5401], prohibition of obscene words or pictures on advertising displays [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 5402], and prohibition of displays that create an unsafe condition [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 5403]. In addition, the Act makes it unlawful for any person to place or cause to be placed, or to maintain or cause to be maintained, any advertising display without the lawful permission of the owner or lessee of the property on which the display is located [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5460].

[b] Preemption

The federal Highway Beautification Act does not prohibit a state from establishing standards imposing stricter limitations [23 U.S.C. § 131(k)]. The California Act's regulations governing advertising displays within view of state highways in unincorporated areas preempt local regulation of such displays [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 5270]. No city, county, or city and county may allow an advertising display to be placed or maintained in violation of the California Act, which in general applies only to advertising located in unincorporated areas of the state and advertising located near interstate or primary highways [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5230; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 5271 (application of Act)]. However, preemption by the California Act is limited and selective [see generally Viacom Outdoor, Inc. v. City of Arcata (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 230, 236-241, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 300 (overview of nature and extent of preemption by California Act)]. Local governing bodies may enact ordinances imposing restrictions on roadside advertising displays if the restrictions are equal to or greater than those imposed by the Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5230]. Local bodies may also enact ordinances requiring licenses and permits, in addition to those imposed by the Act, for the placing of advertising displays in view of any highway within its boundaries [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5231]. For instance, a local building permit could be required, not only for erecting a new billboard, but also for reconstructing a billboard if it has been destroyed or substantially damaged [Viacom Outdoor, Inc. v. City of Arcata (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 230, 243-244, 246, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 300 (California Act cannot be deemed either expressly or implicitly to displace traditional regulatory power of cities and counties, and therefore it does not preempt city's efforts to enforce permit requirements of its building code and sign code)].

Under statutory provisions conferring on cities power to regulate public nuisances [Gov. Code § 38771 et seq.], the legislative body of a city may regulate the exhibition, posting, or carrying of advertisements on the street, and on buildings and other structures [Gov. Code § 38774(a)] and the suspension of advertisements over public places [Gov. Code § 38774(b)]. In addition, the legislative body of any county or city by ordinance may regulate signs and billboards under its statutory power to enact zoning ordinances [Gov. Code § 65850(b)]. It appears that Gov. Code § 38774, which authorizes local government to regulate advertising by general ordinance, conflicts with Gov. Code § 65850(b) because local government cannot regulate advertising under Gov. Code § 65850(b) unless it complies with the special procedures applicable to the enactment of zoning ordinances [see Gov. Code § 65850 et seq. (adoption of zoning regulations); see also City of Escondido v. Desert Outdoor Advertising, Inc. (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 785, 789-790, 106 Cal. Rptr. 172, 505 P.2d 1012 (Gov. Code § 38774 does not conflict with former zoning law, which contained no express reference to advertising signs and billboards), disapproved on other grounds in San Diego Bldg. Contractors Assn. v. City Council (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 205, 216 n.6, 118 Cal. Rptr. 146, 529 P.2d 570 (rejecting idea that statutory procedures are constitutionally required)]. For discussion of enactment procedures applicable to zoning ordinances generally, see Ch. 579, Zoning and Planning .

[c] Enforcement

A violation of the California Outdoor Advertising Act is a misdemeanor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5464]. In addition, all advertising displays that violate the Act are public nuisances and may be removed by any public employee as provided in the Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5461]. A legislatively declared public nuisance constitutes a nuisance per se, against which an injunction may issue without allegation or proof of irreparable injury [People ex rel. Dep't of Transportation v. Outdoor Media Group (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1067, 1076, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 19 ; People ex rel. Dept. Pub. Wks. v. Adco Advertisers (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 507, 511, 110 Cal. Rptr. 849] . Thus, when the advertiser admits it has not obtained permits to erect or maintain the billboards, entry of summary judgment on a Caltrans complaint for an injunction requiring removal of the signs is proper, even though a cross complaint is pending alleging their permits were wrongfully denied. Nor is grant of an injunction precluded by Caltrans' past practice of issuing permits retroactively for previously-constructed signs [People ex rel. Dep't of Transportation v. Outdoor Media Group (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1067, 1076-1079, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 19] . Nevertheless, dismissal of the cross complaint in that situtation is improper [People ex rel. Dep't of Transportation v. Outdoor Media Group (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1067, 1083, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 19].

A conditional use permit of a specific duration for a billboard, coupled with a written agreement between the city and the owner requiring the owner to remove the billboard on the expiration of the permit, does not confer a fundamental vested right in continued use and maintenance of the billboard [Metropolitan Outdoor Advertising Corp. v. City of Santa Ana (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1401, 1403-1404, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 664] .

In addition, the Department of Transportation is authorized to remove and destroy any advertising display placed or maintained in violation of the Act after 30 days written notice is forwarded by mail to the permit-holder at his or her last known address. If no permit has been issued, a copy of the notice must be forwarded by mail to the display owner, property owner, or advertiser at his or her last known address. Temporary displays may be summarily removed and destroyed. The Director or an authorized agent may enter on private property for the purpose of removing and destroying unlawful displays [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5463]. While the statute is silent on whether there is an opportunity to correct a violation after notice, the Director has interpreted the statute to provide an opportunity to object to the notice of violation, request a hearing, correct the violation, remove the display, or appeal the notice to the Director [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 2441; see Pallco Enterprises, Inc. v. Beam (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 1482, 1493, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 490 (this administrative interpretation is not clearly erroneous and is proper)].

Billboards and billboard permits are protectible property interests and accordingly, due process requirements must be met before Caltrans can remove or destroy an advertising display [Traverso v. People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 1152, 1163, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 217, 864 P.2d 488] . Although Bus. & Prof. Code § 5463 does not expressly provide for a hearing, the California Supreme Court determined that a 10-day notice period (as formerly prescribed by Bus. & Prof. Code § 5463) was adequate to satisfy due process requirements. The Court determined that, although 10 days is a short period, it is sufficient to impart notice to the sophisticated entities that engage in outdoor advertising. In addition, the right to a hearing may be inferred when there is some language from which a hearing requirement may be implied. The Court found that the 10-day period served only the purpose of allowing the billboard owner time to investigate and contest Caltrans' determination of a violation [Traverso v. People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 1152, 1163-1167, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 217, 864 P.2d 488] .

Advertising displays that violate the Act but that were in compliance with state and local law when erected cannot be removed without the payment of compensation [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 5412]. For a discussion of the institution of civil proceedings to compel the removal of such displays, see § 14.19[3][d].

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, as to an advertising display in place as of August 12, 2004, a cause of action for the erection or maintenance of an advertising display that violates the Outdoor Advertising Act or the laws of a local governmental entity may not be brought by a private party against an advertising display that has been in continuous existence in its current location for a period of five years. However, if the advertising display has been illegally modified, the cause of action for the illegal modification may be brought by a private party if it is filed within five years of the date the modification was made [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5466(a)]. This does not apply, however, to a cause of action that is brought by a governmental entity and is based on the erection or maintenance of an advertising display that violates the Outdoor Advertising Act or the laws of the governmental entity [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5466(b)].

[d] Compensation for Restriction or Removal

[i] In General

The federal Highway Beautification Act provides for just compensation to be paid on the removal of outdoor advertising signs, displays, and devices that were lawfully erected under state law. The owner of the sign is entitled to compensation for his or her interest in the sign, and the owner of the real property on which the sign is located is entitled to compensation for the right to erect and maintain such signs on his or her property [23 U.S.C. § 131(g)].

However, the HBA does not mandate the statutory payment of just compensation, but merely provides a powerful incentive for doing so. Thus, no private cause of action for compensation may be inferred from the HBA [National Advertising Co. v. City of Ashland Or. (9th Cir. 1982) 678 F.2d 106, 109 ; Tahoe Regional Planning Agency v. King (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1365, 1390, 285 Cal. Rptr. 335 (note, however, that TRPA, as agency created by multistate compact approved by Congress, would be limited exception to HBA anyway)].

Under California's Outdoor Advertising Act, compensation must be paid for the compelled removal of, or for limitations placed on the customary maintenance or use of, advertising displays that were "lawfully erected" [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5412]. "Lawfully erected" means advertising displays that were erected in compliance with state laws and local ordinances in effect at the time of their erection or that were subsequently brought into full compliance with state laws and local ordinances, except that the term does not apply to any advertising whose use is modified after erection in a manner that causes it to become illegal. There is a rebuttable presumption pursuant to Evid. Code § 606 that an advertising display is lawfully erected if it has been in existence for a period of five years or longer without the owner having received written notice during that period from a governmental entity stating that the display was not lawfully erected [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5216.1]. The compensation provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 5412 do not apply to displays that were erected pursuant to a written agreement with a government entity providing for the removal of displays after a fixed time [Metropolitan Outdoor Advertising Corp. v. City of Santa Ana (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1401, 1405, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 664] .

Legislative intent is not clear as to what sort of governmental action could trigger the duty to pay compensation under the statutory proscription against an advertising display's "customary maintenance or use be[ing] limited" by a governmental entity without the payment of compensation [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 5412]. The California Supreme Court has concluded that the statute does not encompass every governmental action with the effect of restricting a billboard's customary maintenance or use, including actions that incidentally impair a billboard's visibility. For instance, roadway beautification projects that may affect the visibility of nearby billboards, but are not undertaken for the purpose of limiting the customary maintenance or use of the displays, do not trigger the statutory compensation requirement [Regency Outdoor Advertising, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 507, 525-528, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 742, 139 P.3d 119] .

The Act also exempts local entities from the compensation requirement when a city, county, or city and county requires the removal of certain types of advertising displays in residential or agricultural areas [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5412.1-5412.3]. As with the HBA, there is a limited exception to the OAA's statutory compensation requirement for the land within the Tahoe Region, which is governed instead by the Tahoe Regional Planning Agency, an entity formed by a multistate compact approved by Congress [Tahoe Regional Planning Agency v. King (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1365, 1390-1392, 285 Cal. Rptr. 335] .

State compensation is payable to the owner or owners of the advertising display and to the owner or owners of the land on which the display stands [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5412]. A government entity's requirement that a lawfully erected display be removed as a condition or prerequisite for the issuance or continued effectiveness of a permit, license, or other approval for any use, structure, development, or activity other than a display constitutes a compelled removal requiring compensation under Bus. & Prof. Code § 5412, unless the permit, license, or approval is requested for the construction of a building or structure that cannot be built without physically removing the display [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5412.6]. This compensation requirement is applicable whether or not the government entity that compels removal has the power of eminent domain. For instance, the owner of a billboard is entitled to compensation when the Coastal Commission, which lacks the power of eminent domain, requires removal of the billboard as a condition of a construction permit issued to the landowner, and the landowner duly terminates the billboard lease in order to effect removal (and removal is not actually necessary to proceeding with the permitted construction) [Patrick Media Group, Inc. v. California Coastal Com. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 592, 601-604, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 824 ; cf. Pub. Res. Code § 30010 (compensation required whenever administration of Coastal Act permit provisions results in taking or damaging of private property for public use)]. For discussion of the billboard owner's remedy when the responsible government entity rejects a claim for compensation, and for related forms, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency

Decisions , et seq. regarding a petition for administrative mandate [Patrick Media Group, Inc. v. California Coastal Com. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 592, 606, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 824] .

The Director of the Department of Transportation may elect to negotiate the amount of compensation to be paid on removal of an advertising display with the person entitled to it. If the negotiations are unsuccessful, or if the director elects not to negotiate, civil proceedings to compel the removal of the display may be instituted and are to be conducted under the procedure for eminent domain provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.010 et seq. [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5413, 5414]. For forms for use in eminent domain proceedings generally, see Ch. 247, Eminent Domain .

[ii] Displays in Residential or Agricultural Areas

A city, county, or city and county can require removal of an advertising display in a residential or agricultural area without compensation if the display meets all the following requirements [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 5412.1]:

- It is located within an area shown as residential or agricultural on a local general plan as of the date an ordinance or regulation that incorporates the provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 5412.1, 5412.2, or 5412.3 is either enacted or becomes applicable to the area;

- It is located within an area zoned for residential or agricultural use either on the date the removal requirement is adopted or becomes applicable to the area;

- It is not located within 660 feet from the edge of the right-of-way of an interstate or primary highway with its copy visible from the highway and is not placed or maintained beyond 660 feet from the edge of the right-of-way of an interstate or primary highway with the purpose of its message being read from the main traveled way;

- It is not required to be removed because of an overlay zone, combining zone, or any other special zoning district whose primary purpose is the removal or control of signs; and

- It is allowed to remain in existence for a specified amortization period after the enactment or amendment after January 1, 1983, of any ordinance or regulation necessary to bring the entity requiring removal into compliance with Bus. & Prof. Code § 5412, and after giving notice of the removal requirement.

The amortization period varies in accordance with the fair market value of the sign and is longer in unincorporated agricultural areas than in residential or incorporated agricultural areas [compare Bus. & Prof. Code § 5412.3 with Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5412.1, 5412.2].

[3] Inverse Condemnation Issues

In support of a complaint for inverse condemnation, a billboard owner must demonstrate that the government has taken or damaged a cognizable property right. However, a billboard owner cannot establish that property has been taken or damaged merely by showing that government action somewhat decreased the market value of the billboard--for instance, the planting of trees on government-owned land pursuant to a beautification plan, which resulted in reduced visibility of the billboard from a nearby road. Owners and occupiers of roadside property do not possess a "right to be seen" that requires the payment of compensation for municipal landscaping efforts having no injurious effect on any property rights other than the claimed right to visibility. When an impairment of a billboard's visibility is the sole harm alleged from a municipal landscaping project occurring on city-owned property, eminent domain and inverse condemnation principles do not require the payment of compensation [Regency Outdoor Advertising, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 507, 513, 516, 523, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 742, 139 P.3d 119 (billboard owner, complaining of reduced visibility of billboards after city carried out beautification plan by planting trees on city property alongside major street and on median strip, had no inverse condemnation claim)].

For discussion of inverse condemnation generally, and related forms, see Ch. 247, Eminent Domain, § 247.190 et seq.

Chapter 14 ADVERTISING
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

2-14 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 14.20

§ 14.20 On-Premises Advertising

[1] State Restrictions

"On-premises advertising" means any structure, housing, sign, device, figure, statuary, painting, message placard, or other display or part of a display that was designed to have a useful life of 15 years or more and that advertises the name or business of the owner or occupant of the premises on which the display is located, or advertises the business conducted, services available or rendered, or the goods produced, sold, or available for sale on the property where the display is located [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5490(b); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 5490(g) (term includes on-premises advertising display located within boundaries of development project defined by Gov. Code § 65928]. It does not include advertising displays used exclusively for outdoor advertising pursuant to the Outdoor Advertising Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5490(d)].

An on-premise advertising display is illegal if any of the following applies [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5499.1(a)]:

- It was erected without first complying with all ordinances and regulations in effect at the time of its construction.

- It was legally erected but its use has ceased, or the structure on which the display is placed has been abandoned by its owner, not maintained, or not used to identify or advertise an ongoing business for a period of not less than 90 days.

- It was legally erected but later became nonconforming as a result of the adoption of an ordinance, when the amortization period for the display provided by the ordinance rendering the display nonconforming has expired, and conformance has not been accomplished.

- It is a danger to the public or is unsafe.

- It is a traffic hazard not created by relocation of streets or highways or by acts of the city or county.

Legally erected but nonconforming displays for which the applicable amortization period has not expired are not illegal [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5490(e)].

[2] Removal of Illegal Display

The legislative body of a city or county, by resolution, may declare an illegal on-premises advertising display located within its jurisdiction to be a public nuisance and abate it [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5499.2(a)]. The procedure for declaring displays to be nuisances and abating them is set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5499.2-5499.7, and includes the posting of notice of the resolution and a meeting at which objections may be heard [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5499.2-5499.7]. The enforcement officer may enter the property to abate the nuisance [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5499.8], the property owner may remove the display at his or her own expense [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5499.9], or the legislative body may hire a contractor to abate it [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5499.11]. The city or county may also impose a special assessment on the parcels on which the display was located to recoup its costs [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5499.9-5499.14].

[3] Compensation for Removal or Restriction

Generally no city or county ordinance may compel the removal or abatement, or limit the customary maintenance, use, or repair, of any on-premises advertising display without the payment of fair and just compensation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5491]. Certain ordinances and regulations are exempt from the compensation requirement [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5494-5498]. Fair and just compensation is presumed to consist of payment of the fair market value of the on-premises display as of the date written notice is given to the owner of the display requiring conformance or removal of the display, or by payment of the actual cost to the owner of replacing the illegal display with a conforming on-premises display [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5492, 5493]. Fair market value is defined as the actual cost of removing the display, the cost of repairing any damage to the real property or improvements as a result of removal, and the cost as of the date of the notice of duplicating the advertising display required to be removed [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 5492].

[4] City or County Ordinances

No city or county may require removal of an on-premises advertising display on the basis of its height or size by requiring conformance with an ordinance or regulation if special topographic circumstances would result in a material impairment of visibility of the display or the owner's or user's ability to adequately and effectively continue to communicate with the public through the use of the display [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5499]. Bus. & Prof. Code § 5499 imposes a two-part test [Denny's v. City of Agoura Hills (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1312, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 382 (construing Bus. & Prof. Code § 5499 and holding that plaintiffs' preexisting business signs were protected under from city signage ordinance)]:

- Whether the local ordinance requires removal of a sign based on its height or size.

- Whether special topographic circumstances cause a conforming sign to be materially less visible or less effective at communicating the owner's message to the public.

§ 14.44 Decisions

[1] Actions for False and Misleading Advertising Under False Advertising and Unfair Competition Statutes

[a] In General

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 contains broad language that has been broadly interpreted by California courts. Audio Fidelity, Inc. v. High Fidelity Recordings, Inc. (1960) 283 F.2d 551, 554

Any statement that is deceptive or merely misleading, even though made without intent to deceive, violates Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500, irrespective of statement's truth or falsity. Audio Fidelity, Inc. v. High Fidelity Recordings, Inc (1960) 283 F.2d 551, 555 ; People ex rel. Mosk v. Lynam (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 959, 965-966 61 Cal. Rptr. 800

Claims for injunctive relief under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 are not subject to arbitration; holding in Broughton v. Cigna Healthplans of California (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1066, 1082, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334, 988 P.2d 67 , regarding non-arbitrability of public injunctions under Consumers Legal Remedies Act, should be extended to include claims to enjoin unfair competition under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. and misleading advertising under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq. Cruz v. Pacificare Health Systems, Inc. (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 303, 307, 316, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 58, 66 P.3d 1157

Description of advertising scheme is sufficient to allege false or misleading advertising in that scheme; pleading exact language of every deceptive statement is not necessary. Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 211, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660

Statement of cause of action for false or misleading advertising requires only allegation that members of public are likely to be deceived, but not allegations of actual deception, reasonable reliance, or damage. Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 211, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660

Under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500, statement is false or misleading if members of public are likely to be deceived, because both Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 and former Civ. Code § 3369 (now see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200) afford protection against probability or likelihood, as well as actuality, of deception or confusion. Chern v. Bank of America (1976) 15 Cal. 3d 866, 876, 127 Cal. Rptr. 110, 544 P.2d 1310

Under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500, deceptive intent of disseminator and knowledge of customer are both irrelevant. Chern v. Bank of America (1976) 15 Cal. 3d 866, 876, 127 Cal. Rptr. 110, 544 P.2d 1310

Civil action by People alleging deceptive advertising and seeking penalties provided in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17536 (deceptive advertising) and Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206 (unfair competition, formerly set out in Civ. Code § 3370.1) does not violate defendant's privilege against self-incrimination. People v. Superior Court (Kaufman) (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 421, 433, 115 Cal. Rptr. 812, 525 P.2d 716

Burden of proving that false advertising claims were false or misleading properly rests with plaintiff; it would be inappropriate to shift burden of proof to defendant in private plaintiff false advertising action when private plaintiff is not authorized by statute to seek substantiation of advertising claim from defendant. National Council Against Health Fraud, Inc. v. King Bio Pharmaceuticals, Inc. (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 1336, 1345, 1348, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 207

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 requires only likelihood of confusion, not individual proof of actual deception or confusion. People v. Dollar Rent-A-Car Systems, Inc. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 119, 128-129, 259 Cal. Rptr. 191

Trial court's directed verdict in favor of defendants in civil action for misleading advertising was error when evidence showed that although no individual employee connected with ad campaign had actual knowledge of misrepresentations, knowledge was imputed to defendants since three employees had information among them to prove that ads were misleading. People v. Forest E. Olson, Inc. (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 137, 139-140, 186 Cal. Rptr. 804

Statement that is deceptive or merely misleading violates Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500, irrespective of truth or falsity, or absence of intent to deceive. People ex rel. Mosk v. Lynam (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 959, 966, 61 Cal. Rptr. 800

[b] Civil Penalties

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17536 authorizes civil penalty, up to maximum amount, for each person to whom advertiser made misrepresentations. People v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 283, 288-289, 107 Cal. Rptr. 192, 507 P.2d 1400

Evidence of number of solicitations mailed and of defendant's wealth was properly considered in determining civil penalty for false advertising under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17536. People v. Morse (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 259, 271-272, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 816 .

$100,000 penalty was justified by evidence of 500,000 misleading and deceptive contracts over four-year period and 1,500 false repair invoices. People v. Dollar Rent-A-Car Systems, Inc. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 119, 132, 259 Cal Rptr. 191

Imposition of civil penalty for each violation is mandatory. People v. Custom Craft Carpets, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 676, 686, 206 Cal. Rptr. 12

Advertiser whose false advertisement violates Bus. & Prof. Code § 17205 (unfair competition) and Bus. & Prof. Code § 17534.5 (false advertising) is liable for penalties under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17206 and 17536 for each violation. People v. Toomey (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 1, 21-22, 203 Cal. Rptr. 642

Factors to be considered in determining reasonableness of civil penalty. People v. Superior Court (Olson) (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 181, 198, 157 Cal. Rptr. 628 .

Defendant's finances are relevant and subject to discovery in action charging false and misleading advertising and unfair business practices. People v. Superior Court (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 710, 712-714, 111 Cal. Rptr. 14

[c] Class Actions

Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17204 and 17535 authorize filing of action by any person on behalf of general public. Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 215, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660

In class action for injunctive relief under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17203 and 17535, plaintiff is not required to plead exact language of every deceptive statement if plaintiff describes scheme to mislead customers and alleges that each misrepresentation to each customer conformed to that scheme. Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 212-213, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660

In class action for injunctive relief and restitution under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535, language of statute was unquestionably broad enough to authorize trial court to order restitution without requiring showing of individual class member's lack of knowledge of fraudulent practice in each transaction. Fletcher v. Security Pac. National Bank (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 442, 451, 153 Cal. Rptr. 28, 591 P.2d 51

Right of trial court to use procedural provisions of Consumers Legal Remedies Act [Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.] in consumer's class actions brought under other laws. Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 820, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964

Even if plaintiffs established, class-wide, that drug manufacturer misrepresented cardiovascular risks of drug in manner that was likely to deceive plaintiffs and their prescribing physicians, no plaintiff would be able to recover without first identifying proper comparator drug, cost of which would provide actual value to patient of drug received; trial court properly concluded that issue of proper comparator was patient-specific issue, incorporating patient's medical history, treatment needs, and drug interactions, and that, therefore, restitution could not be computed on class-wide basis. In re Vioxx Class Cases (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 116, 136, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 83

In view of requirements for standing and representative actions under False Advertising Law [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535, as amended by Proposition 64 in 2004], relief--in particular, restitution--cannot extend beyond named parties, and attorney's fees cannot be recovered by successful plaintiffs, unless trial court certifies action as class action.

Harper v. 24 Hour Fitness, Inc. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 966, 975-976, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 532

[d] Criminal Penalties

Strict criminal liability is not imposed by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500; business owner is not criminally responsible for employee's clear violation without evidence of knowledge or control of employee's activities. People v. Regan (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 4 , 157 Cal. Rptr. 62

[e] Federal Preemption

Frequent flyer claims against airline under state consumer fraud law, but not breach of contract claims, were preempted by provision of Airline Deregulation Act, former 49 U.S.C. § 1305(a)(1) (later reenacted without substantive change as 49 U.S.C. § 41713(b)(1)). American Airlines, Inc. v. Wolens (1995) 513 U.S. 219, 226-229, 232-233, 115 S. Ct. 817, 130 L. Ed. 2d 715

Consumer's false and misleading advertising cause of action against national bank, which was predicated in part on bank's violation of federal banking laws and regulations concerning required disclosures and prohibited misleading or misrepresentative advertising, was not preempted by federal law. Smith v. Wells Fargo Bank (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 1463, 1487-1488, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 653 Federal statute 47 U.S.C. § 332(c)(3)(A), which prohibits states from regulating rates charged by a wireless telephone service provider, does not preempt a state court from awarding monetary relief based on false advertising; "rate regulation" refers to direct price controls, and section does not disclose Congressional intent to preempt state court monetary awards that require determination of value of services provided but that do not directly regulate rates. Spielholz v. Superior Court (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1366, 1373-1376

Action against telephone carriers and phone card retailers that sought only to enjoin misleading practices in advertising of phone card rates and sought no monetary recovery did not come within federal "filed rate doctrine" set forth in 47 U.S.C. § 203 and action could proceed under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200, 17500); plaintiffs could not seek to recover money from respondents, as net effect of imposing monetary sanction would be to effectuate rebate, a matter which is strictly of federal concern under Federal Communications Act and therefore barred by filed rate doctrine. Day v. AT&T Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 325, 335-337, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 55

Action against interstate air carrier under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200 et seq. and 17500 and Civ. Code § 1770(m) for false and misleading advertising was not preempted by former 49 U.S.C. § 1305 because federal statute provides only for exclusive federal regulation of interstate air carrier's rates, routes, or services, not manner in which they are advertised, and former statutes do not otherwise conflict with federal legislation or constitute undue burden on interstate commerce. People v. Western Airlines (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 597, 600-601, 202 Cal. Rptr. 237

[f] Persons Liable

Majority shareholder and chief executive officer who was responsible for ambiguous written contracts and misleading presentations of selling agents was personally liable for violations of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200 and 17500. People v. Dollar Rent-A-Car Systems, Inc. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 119, 132, 259 Cal. Rptr. 191

[g] Political Campaigns

Broadly drawn state statutory prohibitions against false or misleading commercial advertising are inapplicable to regulate statements made in course of political campaign, even when statements are prepared and made by paid political consultant. O'Connor v. Superior Court (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 1013, 1019-1020, 223 Cal. Rptr. 357 (Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200 et seq. and 17500 et seq. are inapplicable to political election campaign practices)

[h] Standing

Organizational plaintiffs acting on behalf of general public have standing to sue concerning public advertising campaign alleged to be false and misleading. Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 215, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660

[2] Actions for False and Misleading Advertising Under Other Theories for Recovery

Cause of action for violation of consumer statutes and intentional and negligent fraud based on fraudulent advertisement of children's breakfast cereals. Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 209-221, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660

Strict requirement that fraud be pleaded factually and specifically is relaxed when circumstances make specific pleading impossible and impractical; in such cases, plaintiff is able to allege that he or she acted in response to advertising campaign, even if plaintiff cannot recall specific advertisements. Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 216-219, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660

Cause of action for personal injuries based on fraudulent advertisement of drug. Wennerholm v. Stanford Univ. Sch. of Med. (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 713, 715-716, 128 P.2d 522

Absent endorsement or sponsorship for economic gain, publisher of advertisement has no duty to investigate safety of advertised product and no liability for injuries sustained from use of product. Walters v. Seventeen Magazine (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1119, 1121-1122, 241 Cal. Rptr. 101

Cause of action for personal injuries based on advertising endorsement of defective product. Hanberry v. Hearst Corp. (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 680, 683, 81 Cal. Rptr. 519

[3] Billboards and Other Outdoor Advertising

[a] Classification of Signs

Ordinance permitting all on-site and many, but not all, categories of off-site noncommercial signs was facially invalid discrimination prohibited by First Amendment; however, ordinance was saved by construing it to allow all noncommercial off-site signs. City and County of San Francisco v. Eller Outdoor Advertising (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 643, 662-665, 237 Cal. Rptr. 815

Whether purpose of outdoor sign is to advertise or merely to identify owner's property is issue to be determined on basis of objective facts and on reading text of sign in light of existing physical circumstances rather than on basis of owner's subjective intent. People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Harris (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 264, 269, 180 Cal.

Rptr. 148

Hotel rate signs and nonrate signs have no constitutional distinction to justify prohibition of rate signs under exercise of police power. Carlin v. City of Palm Springs (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 706, 714, 92 Cal. Rptr. 535

Ordinance classifying and regulating moving signs as opposed to flashing signs, was unconstitutional, being based on no natural intrinsic or constitutional distinction. City of Santa Barbara v. Modern Neon Sign Co. (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 188, 193, 11 Cal. Rptr. 57

[b] Compensation for Removal

Compensation provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 5412 were inapplicable to display that was erected pursuant to written agreement with government entity providing for removal of display after fixed time. Metropolitan Outdoor Advertising Corp. v. City of Santa Ana (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1401, 1405, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 664

Conditional use permit of specific duration for billboard, coupled with written agreement requiring owner to remove billboard on expiration of permit, did not confer fundamental vested right in continued use and maintenance of billboard. Metropolitan Outdoor Advertising Corp. v. City of Santa Ana (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1401, 1403-1404, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 664

Even though billboard was nonconforming and subject to removal at time owner purchased it, under 1978 amendments to Federal Highway Beautification Act, owner was entitled to compensation for removal of sign that was covered by Act; California Outdoor Advertising Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5200 et seq.] requires compensation whenever taking, as defined by federal Act, occurs. City of Salinas v. Ryan Outdoor Advertising, Inc. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 416, 426, 234 Cal. Rptr. 619

[c] Delegation of Discretion

Ordinance did not unconstitutionally delegate policy-making to city director because it specified standards, including compatibility with surroundings, and standards for abstract concepts like aesthetics are difficult to articulate. Rodriguez v. Solis (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 495, 507-511, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 50

[d] Scope of Permissible Restrictions

Trial court properly granted motion for summary judgment against billboard owner because owner could not prove claims that Outdoor Advertising Act, as amended by addition of Bus. & Prof. Code § 5275 in 2008, is overbroad and vague, is enforced by imposition of unconstitutional prior restraints, violates equal protection, and violates suppression doctrine and substantive due process; and billboard owner could not show that trial court's injunction, barring him from engaging in offsite advertising on his billboard, effectively barred him from exercising his First Amendment right of free speech. Maldonado v. Morales (9th Cir. 2009) 556 F.3d 1037, 1046-1048

Advertising display was not located in "business area" within definition of Bus. & Prof. Code § 5205 and so was not exempt from ban on displays within 660 feet of highway because area was not zoned for commercial activity, although commercial activities were allowed by issuance of conditional use permits. United Outdoor Advertising Co., Inc. v. Business, Transportation & Housing Agency (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 242, 244-248, 242 Cal. Rptr. 738, 746 P.2d 877

Restrictions on commercial outdoor advertising to advance substantial governmental interests of traffic safety and appearance of city were proper object for exercise of police power. Metromedia, Inc. v. City of San Diego (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 848, 858-865, 164 Cal. Rptr. 510, 610 P.2d 407 , rev'd on other grounds, 453 U.S. 490 (1981)

Power of city under Gov. Code § 38774(a) to enact ordinance prohibiting placing or maintaining signs or billboards on property adjacent to freeway and declaring such to be public nuisance. City of Escondido v. Desert Outdoor Advertising, Inc. (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 785, 787-788, 106 Cal. Rptr. 172, 505 P.2d 1012

Removal of nonconforming outdoor advertising billboards under zoning ordinance was required to await expiration of reasonable amortization period in order to permit plaintiff owner to recover original cost. National Advertising Co. v. County of Monterey (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 875, 880, 83 Cal. Rptr. 577, 464 P.2d 33 ; National Advertising Co. v. County of Monterey (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 375, 381, 27 Cal. Rptr. 136

Ordinance banning all mobile billboard advertising (except on buses and taxicabs), which had no definition of advertising, was applicable equally to both commercial and noncommercial speech and was not unconstitutional as applied to nonprofit organization's vehicle that, while on city streets, presented messages, in both videos and sound recordings, against cruelty to animals. Showing Animals Respect & Kindness v. City of West Hollywood (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 815, 819-825, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 134

Trial court properly sustained Caltrans demurrer to individual's action seeking to revive, renew, or have reissued permits for billboards that were canceled during the 1970s; causes of action were barred by statutes of limitation and by Bus. & Prof. Code § 5360(b) providing that permits not renewed after 1993 are deemed revoked. Traverso v. Department of Transportation (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 1142, 1143, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179

Property owner violated Outdoor Advertising Act's restriction on displays adjacent to "landscaped freeway" [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5440, 5442] when all lessees of billboard used it to advertise goods or services provided at other sites; fact that billboard lease included lease of office in building at billboard site did not transform lessees into occupants for purposes of the Act. Dep't of Transportation v. Maldonado (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1225, 1230-1233, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 66

City spacing ordinance requiring 600 foot space between off-site signs of particular size located on same side of same street was inapplicable to billboard that was not on same side of same street as an existing sign. Van Wagner Communications, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 499, 511, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 922

Caltrans is not authorized by Bus. & Prof. Code § 5358 to condition issuance of billboard permit on demonstrated compliance with local zoning ordinances; language requiring Caltrans to grant permit for billboard only if billboard will not be in violation "of any other state law" was inapplicable to local ordinances. Traverso v. People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1197, 1210, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 434

New permit for billboard is required under Outdoor Advertising Act if owner relocates billboard for any reason and regardless of whether new location is negligible distance from old location. People ex rel. Dep't of Transportation v. Ad Way Signs, Inc. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 187, 196-197, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 496 ; People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation

v. Ad Way, Inc. (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 309, 314-315, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407

Traffic hazards and beautification were sufficient fundamental interests to require prohibition of all off-site signs. City and County of San Francisco v. Eller Outdoor Advertising (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 643, 659, 237 Cal. Rptr. 815

Restriction of off-site commercial billboards to specified zoning districts was permissible; no constitutional issue was raised by economic impact of permitted locations. City of Salinas v. Ryan Outdoor Advertising, Inc. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 416, 432-433, 234 Cal. Rptr. 619

Injunction to compel removal of outdoor advertising billboards on ground that billboards constitute public nuisance was in violation of Outdoor Advertising Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5200 et seq.]. People ex rel. Dept. Pub. Wks. v. Adco Advertisers (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 507, 511-512, 110 Cal. Rptr. 849

Reasonable regulation of signs and billboards was valid exercise of police power. Carlin v. City of Palm Springs (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 706, 712, 92 Cal. Rptr. 535

Enforcement of advertising sign ordinance to require defendants to bring nonconforming signs into compliance without allowing reasonable amortization period was unconstitutional taking of property without compensation and without due process of law. City of Santa Barbara v. Modern Neon Sign Co. (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 188, 195, 11 Cal. Rptr. 57

[e] Summary Judgment

Fact that permit was not renewed did not determine that it had been revoked because statute does not provide for automatic revocation for failure to pay renewal fee; thus, summary judgment was improper. People ex rel. Dep't of Transportation v. Ad Way Signs, Inc. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 187, 198-200, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 496

Owner's admission to interrogatory that Department had canceled permit is not sufficient for entry of summary judgment on that issue when there is credible evidence on both sides of issue. People ex rel. Dep't of Transportation v. Ad Way Signs, Inc. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 187, 200-201, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 496

On city's motion for summary judgment, when opposing party's declarations were not disputed by city, trial court erred in considering constitutionality of sign ordinance as question of fact so as to deny summary judgment; constitutionality of ordinance was matter of law that should have been resolved by trial court on motion for summary judgment. City and County of San Francisco v. Eller Outdoor Advertising (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 643, 657-658, 237 Cal. Rptr. 815

[f] Dispute Between Landowner and Billboard Owner

Lessor was entitled, under Civ. Code § 3334(b), to recover billboard owner's profit from advertising on billboard during period of billboard owner's wrongful occupancy of land after lease expired. Bailey v. Outdoor Media Group (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 778, 787-789, 796, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 322

[4] Contract Formation

Advertisements are mere preliminary invitations that create no power of acceptance in recipient. Foremost Pro Color, Inc. v. Eastman Kodak Co. (9th Cir. 1983) 703 F.2d 534, 539

Envelope offering free prize "just for opening envelope" was offer for unilateral contract; contract was accepted when recipient opened envelope, but notice of performance was required to be given by recipient to advertiser in order to claim prize or state cause of action for damages for breach of contract. Harris v. Time, Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 449, 455-458, 237 Cal. Rptr. 584

[5] Definitions

"Advertisement" defined. People v. McKean (1925) 76 Cal. App. 114, 118, 243 P. 898

[6] Federal Law

Prohibition against "electioneering communications"--that is, candidate-focused advertisements paid for by corporations, national banks, or labor organizations and transmitted by cable or satellite communication or broadcasted within specified period before federal election [2 U.S.C. § 441b]--is unconstitutional. Citizens United v. FEC (2010) 130 S. Ct. 876, 913, 175 L. Ed. 2d 753

Although jurisdiction of Federal Trade Commission extended to California Dental Association, abbreviated or "quick look" analysis by federal appeals court was no t sufficient to justify finding that certain advertising restrictions adopted by Association violated antitrust laws. California Dental Assoc. v. FTC (1999) 526 U.S. 756, 119 S. Ct. 1604, 143 L. Ed. 2d 935, 944, 950

In challenge by California tree fruit growers, handlers, and processors to validity of various regulations contained in marketing orders under Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act (7 U.S.C. § 601 et seq.), which imposed assessments including cost of generic advertising of California fruit, imposition of assessments held not to violate First Amendment. Glickman v. Wileman Brothers & Elliott, Inc. (1998) 521 U.S. 457, 117 S. Ct. 2130, 138 L. Ed. 2d 585

Section 5(b) of Public Health Cigarette Smoking Act of 1969 [15 U.S.C. § 1334(b)] preempts state law damage claims against cigarette manufacturers and sellers for fraudulent misrepresentation based on state statute or on allegation that advertising "neutralized" warnings required by Act, but does not preempt state law damage claims for conspiracy to misrepresent or conceal health hazards of smoking. Cipollone v. Liggett Group, Inc. (1992) 505 U.S. 504, 524-530, 112 S. Ct. 2608, 120 L. Ed. 2d 407

Enforcement of National Association of Attorneys General guidelines through state's consumer protection laws to regulate air fare advertising and frequent flyer programs is preempted by Airline Deregulation Act, specifically 49 U.S.C. § 1305(a)(1). Morales v. Trans World Airlines, Inc. (1992) 504 U.S. 374, 391, 112 S. Ct. 2031, 119 L. Ed. 2d 157

Mere funding connection between excise tax imposed on tobacco industry and government-sponsored advertising campaign against tobacco industry, in absence of any claim that tax or advertising is unconstitutional, does not violate First Amendment. R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. v. Shewry (9th Cir. 2005) 423 F.3d 906, 914

15 U.S.C. § 45 authorizes Federal Trade Commission to determine standard of and to prohibit deceptive advertising practices. Sterling Drug, Inc. v. F.T.C. (9th Cir. 1984) 741 F.2d 1146, 1148-1150

Federal Trademark Act [15 U.S.C. § 1125(a)] authorizes damaged party to bring civil action based on false description or representation in connection with goods and services; Act was applied to false advertising regarding goods and services of advertiser in interstate commerce. U-Haul Int'l, Inc. v. Jartran, Inc. (9th Cir. 1982) 681 F.2d 1159, 1160-1162

Statute of limitation for action in California court under Telephone Consumer Protection Act of 1991 (TCPA) [47 U.S.C. § 227] is 28 U.S.C. § 1658 (four years), not Code Civ. Proc. § 338 (three years), because (1) TCPA does not clearly indicate otherwise, (2) California principles regarding limitation of actions do not necessarily favor shorter period under state statute, as opposed to longer period under federal statute, and (3) policy for disposition on merits is as strong as policy favoring disposition of stale claims. Sznyter v. Malone (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 1152, 1168, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 633

Action under TCPA [see 47 U.S.C. § 227(b)(3)(A)-(C)], which restricts unsolicited facsimile (fax) advertisements, may be maintained in state court because California Legislature has not prohibited those suits despite fact that TCPA permits states to prohibit private TCPA actions in their courts; TCPA is constitutional and TCPA claims may be brought as class action. Kaufman v. ACS Systems, Inc. (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 886, 890, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 296

Under 23 U.S.C. § 131(b), billboard angled so that its copy could not be read from interstate highway was exempt from provisions of Federal Highway Beautification Act. City of Salinas v. Ryan Outdoor Advertising, Inc. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 416, 425, 234 Cal. Rptr. 619

[7] Free Speech

[a] Commercial Messages

[i] In General

Restriction may be upheld only if it advances substantial governmental interest advanced and goes no further than is necessary to effect that interest. Rodriguez v. Solis (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 495, 513, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 50

Commercial speech is protected by First Amendment but also is subject to reasonable time, place, and manner restrictions. Virginia State Bd. of Pharmacy v. Virginia Citizens Consumer Council (1976) 425 U.S. 748, 770, 771, 96 S. Ct. 1817, 48 L. Ed. 2d 346

Compelling advertiser, found to have previously misled public, to substantiate future advertising claims was constitutionally permissible. People v. Custom Craft Carpets, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 676, 683, 206 Cal. Rptr. 12

State has substantial interest with respect to regulation of advertising in protecting members of public from merchants who would deceive and cheat them. People v. Custom Craft Carpets, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 676, 683, 206 Cal. Rptr. 12

[ii] Content Restrictions

Township ordinance that prohibited posting of "For Sale" and "Sold" signs on real estate was violation of First Amendment. Linmark Associates, Inc. v. Willingboro (1977) 431 U.S. 85, 91-97, 97 S. Ct. 1614, 52 L. Ed. 2d 155

Abortion advertisement having commercial purpose but containing factual material of clear public interest was protected by First Amendment from state law forbidding such advertisements. Bigelow v. Virginia (1975) 421 U.S. 809, 822-824, 95 S. Ct. 2222, 44 L. Ed. 2d 600

First Amendment protection of free speech and press is not surrendered merely due to commercial nature of newspaper advertisement concerning out-of-state abortion services. Bigelow v. Virginia (1975) 421 U.S. 809, 819-822, 95 S. Ct. 2222, 44 L. Ed. 2d 600

Statute and regulations prohibiting unlicensed persons from using terms "accounting" and "accountant" are constitutionally valid when potential was established for misleading public, who generally presume those terms indicate individual offering services is licensed. Moore v. California State Bd. of Accountancy (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 999, 1020-1025, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358, 831 P.2d 798

Fact that ordinance limits owner to one sign on property was not impermissible favoring of commercial over noncommercial speech; ordinance was not required to define commercial and noncommercial speech, since case law has adequately done so. City of Salinas v. Ryan Outdoor Advertising, Inc. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 416, 428-429, 234 Cal. Rptr. 619

Ordinance prohibiting advertisement intended to promote sale of drug paraphernalia did not violate constitutional guarantee of free speech merely because such advertisement encouraged criminal activity. Bamboo Brothers v. Carpenter (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 116, 132, 183 Cal. Rptr. 748

State prohibition against intentional or negligent dissemination of false and misleading commercial advertising did not violate First Amendment. People v. Superior Court (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 181, 191, 195, 157 Cal. Rptr. 628 (upholding civil penalties for violation of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200 and 17500)

Publication of beneficial information about drugs or treatments was protected by constitutional guarantees of free speech and press. In re Schillaci (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 591, 594, 16 Cal. Rptr. 757

[iii] Time, Place, and Manner Restrictions

Ban on all off-site, commercial outdoor signs was permissible to achieve goals of traffic safety and improved aesthetics. Metromedia, Inc. v. City of San Diego (1981) 453 U.S. 490, 507, 512, 570, 101 S. Ct. 2882, 69 L. Ed. 2d 800 (plurality opinion of White, J.; dissenting opinion of Rehnquist, J.)

Ordinance prohibiting off-site commercial billboards while permitting on-site commercial billboards was proper; only restriction was that noncommercial messages must be permitted where commercial messages are permitted.

Metromedia, Inc. v. City of San Diego (1981) 453 U.S. 490, 512-517, 101 S. Ct. 2882, 69 L. Ed. 2d 800 ; City of Salinas v. Ryan Outdoor Advertising, Inc. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 416, 430-432, 234 Cal. Rptr. 619

Ordinance banning all off-site commercial advertising, with exception of advertising placed on bus stop benches and shelters by agency that won open-bid contract to furnish and maintain benches and shelters in exchange for exclusive right to place advertising, was not unconstitutional under First Amendment. Metro Lights, L.L.C. v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir. 2009) 551 F.3d 898, 900, 914

Ban on all off-site signs, whether commercial or noncommercial, was permitted because regulation is content-neutral. City and County of San Francisco v. Eller Outdoor Advertising (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 643, 660-661, 237 Cal. Rptr. 815

City ordinance prohibiting parking of vehicle on street to display it for sale was violation of First Amendment because, although it supported significant municipal interests, it was not necessary to achieve those interests. People v. Moon (1978) 89 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 5-6 , 152 Cal. Rptr. 704

[b] Political Messages

City operating public rapid transit system and selling advertising space for car cards on its vehicles was not required by First and Fourteenth Amendments to accept paid political advertising on behalf of candidate for public office. Lehman v. Shaker Heights (1974) 418 U.S. 298, 299, 302, 94 S. Ct. 2714, 41 L. Ed. 2d 770

City's ordinance that prohibited "throw[ing] or deposit[ing] any commercial or noncommercial advertisement in or upon any vehicle" violated free-speech rights, under California Constitution, of individual who tried to distribute leaflets, which expressed disagreement with immigration policy, by placing them under windshield wipers of parked cars; city could not show that ordinance was "narrowly tailored" to advance its asserted interests to prevent littering, promote esthetic values, and prevent unauthorized use of private property. Klein v. City of San Clemente (9th Cir. 2009) 584 F.3d 1196, 1207

Ordinance prohibiting posting of political signs on public property within city was not overly broad in contravention of First Amendment rights. Sussli v. San Mateo (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 1, 10, 173 Cal. Rptr. 781

[8] Types of False and Misleading Advertising

[a] Alcohol

Application of Bus. & Prof. Code § 25503(h) to restrict advertising of alcoholic beverages on supermarket shopping carts did not violate First Amendment under standards of Central Hudson v. Public Serv. Comm'n (1980) 447 U.S. 557, 563-566, 100 S. Ct. 2343, 65 L. Ed. 2d 341 . Actmedia, Inc. v. Stroh (9th Cir. 1986) 830 F.2d 957, 965-968

[b] Automobile Dealers

Department of Motor Vehicles properly revoked appellant's automobile dealer's license for violations of Veh. Code § 11713(m) (prohibiting licensed dealer from allowing another to use name, books, and license for selling vehicles) and

Veh. Code § 11705(a)(3) (knowingly making false statements or concealing material facts in applications for vehicle registration); Veh. Code § 11713(m) is not unconstitutionally vague. Valiyee v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1026, 1032-1034, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 508

Regulations promulgated by Department of Motor Vehicles in connection with Veh. Code § 11713, penalizing misleading statements of automobile dealers and their employees, were valid. Ford Dealers Ass'n v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 347, 356-369, 185 Cal. Rptr. 453, 650 P.2d 328

[c] Charitable Solicitors

Commercial fundraisers intentionally deceived public by inaccurate and misleading solicitation, reporting, and accounting techniques in violation of Uniform Supervision of Trustees for Charitable Purposes Act [Gov. Code § 12580 et seq.] and charitable solicitation statutes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17510 et seq.]. People v. Orange County Charitable Services (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1054, 1074, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 253

[d] Gasoline Dealers

Bus. & Prof. Code § 13470.5, requiring gasoline dealer advertising price per liter to also display price per gallon, was not preempted by federal law [15 U.S.C. §§ 204, 205a-205k] making use of metric system lawful. People v. Choi (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 6, 9-10 , 213 Cal. Rptr. 205

[e] Misleading Language

Use of double-meaning words in advertising was misleading. Garvai v. Board of Chiropractic Exmrs. (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 374, 379, 31 Cal. Rptr. 187 ; Smulson v. Board of Dental Examiners (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 584, 590, 118 P.2d 483

Advertising that member of medical profession is specialist was misleading and unprofessional when member had no special training or experience in field of alleged specialty. Gustason v. Bd. of Osteopathic Exmrs. (1935) 10 Cal. App. 2d 436, 438-440, 51 P.2d 1106

[4] Labels

Label was advertisement within meaning of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17508; applicability of section must be determined on individual basis. 58 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 297 (1975)

[5] Labor Practices

Newspaper violated Fair Employment Practices Act (superseded by California Fair Employment and Housing Act [see Gov. Code § 12900 et seq.]) by printing "Help Wanted" ads in columns segregated by sex. 55 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 53 (1972)

[6] Outdoor Advertising

Power of county to adopt zoning ordinances removing certain advertising displays without payment of compensation was not prohibited by fact that Highway Beautification Act of 1965 regulates such displays [23 U.S.C. § 131(g)]. 55 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 1 (1972)

Outdoor Advertising Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5200 et seq.] was applicable to signs relating to political campaigns. 50 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 3, 4 (1967)

Right of county to enact ordinance prohibiting billboards within distance of freeways in unincorporated areas. 21 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 43 (1953)

[7] Political Advertising

Penal Code § 556 (prohibiting placement of advertising on public property) applies only to commercial advertising, not to campaign signs of candidates for public office. 70 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 296 (1987)

[8] Professions

Certified acupuncturist not licensed as physician or surgeon under Medical Practice Act was prohibited from using initials "O.M.D." or title "Oriental Medical Doctor" without additional information, in advertising acupuncture practice. 71 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 54 (1988)

Plaintiff alleges:

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION
(Untrue or Misleading Advertising)

1. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of California with its principal place of business in _____ [city], _____ County, California [or allege other capacity and residence of defendant as appropriate].

[2. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as DOES 1-_____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's damages as herein alleges were proximately caused by their conduct.)]

[3. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that) (D)efendant _____ (name) was, at all times herein mentioned, the _____ (specify position, e.g., advertising agent) of defendant _____ (name), was acting as the agent of defendant _____ (name), and in doing the things herein alleged was acting within the course and scope of such agency and with the permission and consent of defendant _____ (name). (Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of California with its principal place of business in _____ [city], _____ County, California.)]

4. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [specify defendant's business, e.g., owned and operated a retail store known as "_____" (name) and located at _____ (street address and city), _____ County, California], in which defendant engaged in the _____ [specify sale, lease or other disposal of real or personal property, or performance of services, e.g., retail sale of handbags and luggage]. [Defendant has filed and published the fictitious business name statement as required by Business and Professions Code Sections 17910-17917.]

5. Beginning on or about _____[date(s)] and continuing to the present time, defendant has engaged in advertising to the public, including plaintiff, and offering for _____ [specify sale, lease or other disposal of real or personal property, or performance of services, e.g., sale certain luggage known as "_____" (brand name)]. The advertising consists of _____ [specify advertising medium, e.g., consecutive weekly advertisements published in a daily newspaper, "_____" (name of newspape r)]. The advertisements are disseminated to and received by the public _____ [in California or in _____ (name of state) from California].

6. Defendant has engaged in the advertising herein alleged with the intent to directly or indirectly _____ [dispose of the property or perform the services] described herein and/or to induce the public to enter into an obligation relating to _____ [the property or the services] described herein.

7. Defendant's advertising was untrue or misleading and likely to deceive the public in that _____ [specify one or more untrue or misleading statements concerning the advertised property or service, or concerning any circumstance or matter of fact connected with defendant's proposed disposition of the property or defendant's proposed performance of the service, e.g., it states that defendant's entire stock of "_____" (brand name) luggage is currently on sale at 50% off of the manufacturer's recommended retail price. However, the advertisements fail to state that the luggage consists of the manufacturer's rejects, or "seconds," which are of a quality inferior to the manufacturer's first-line regular quality luggage. Furthermore, the advertisements fail to state, or to imply, that the luggage is anything other than the manufacturer's first-line regular quality merchandise being offered for sale at a substantial discount in price]. [A true and correct copy of defendant's _____ (specify advertising, e.g., newspaper advertise ments) is attached hereto, marked Exhibit "_____," and incorporated by reference.]

8. In making and disseminating the statement(s) herein alleged, defendant knew, or by the exercise of reasonable care should have known, that the statement(s) was/were untrue or misleading and so acted in violation of Business and

Professions Code Section 17500. _____ [Defendant's advertising further violates _____ (specify one or more of remaining false-advertising statutes, Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17500.5-17577.6, and allege facts showing violation of specified statute)].

9. Plaintiff has suffered injury in fact and has lost _____ [money or property] as a result of the violation[s] alleged above in this complaint, in that _____ [specify, e.g., plaintiff bought four items of the advertised luggage at the advertised price without knowing that the items were not in fact the manufacturer's first-line regular quality luggage].

10. Unless restrained by this court, _____[specify grounds for injunctive relief, e.g., defendant _____ (name) will continue to engage in untrue and misleading advertising, as alleged above, in violation of Business and Professions Code Section 17500 (and in violation of _____ [specify one or more of remaining false advertising statutes, Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17500.5-17577.6]), thus tending to render judgment in the instant action ineffectual]. Plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law in that _____[specify, e.g., defendant _____ (name) will continue to engage in untrue and misleading advertising, as alleged above, in violation of Business and Professions Code Section 17500 (and in violation of _____ [specify one or more of remaining false advertising statutes, Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17500.5-17577.6), thus engendering a multiplicity of judicial proceedings]).

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION
(Unfair Competition)

11. Plaintiff refers to and incorporates herein Paragraphs 1 through 10 of the First Cause of Action.

12. Defendant's advertising, as alleged above, constitutes unfair competition in violation of Business and Professions Code Section 17200.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant [s, and each of them,] as follows:

1. For an order requiring defendant _____[name] to show cause why he/she/it should not be enjoined as hereinafter set forth, during the pendency of this action;

2. For a temporary restraining order, a preliminary injunction, and a permanent injunction, all enjoining defendant and his/her/its agents, servants, and employees, and all persons acting under, in concert with, or for him/her/it from:

Making, disseminating, or causing to be made or disseminated _____ [specify public, e.g., before the public in this state], in any newspaper, other publication, or advertising device, by public outcry or proclamation, or in any other manner whatever, any statement concerning _____ [specify product, e.g., the "_____" (specify brand name) luggage] sold in "_____" [name of defendant's store], or concerning any circumstance or matter of fact connected with the proposed performance thereof, that is untrue or misleading, and that is known, or by the exercise of reasonable care should be known, to be untrue or misleading;

3. For an order requiring defendant _____ [name] to _____ [specify mode of restitution, e.g., accept a return of the rejected luggage purchased by plaintiff and to refund to plaintiff the purchase price of $_____ paid for the reject luggage];

4. For costs of suit incurred herein; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

Attorney for Plaintiff

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

CAUTION:

A complaint seeking preliminary injunctive relief must be either verified or accompanied by affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) in support of the allegations of the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 7 L.R.R.M. (BNA) 686(1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . For discussion, a procedural checklist, and additional forms necessary in order to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by a plaintiff to state a cause of action for restitution and injunctive relief for false advertising and for unfair competition based on violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500, the general statutory prohibition on false or misleading advertising. The complaint includes a cause of action for unfair competition because any violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq. (regulation of advertising) is, by definition, unfair competition under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200; Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 210, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660] .

The form may be used to incorporate a cause of action based on violation of any of the remaining false advertising statutes, Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.5 et seq. [see §§ 14.63 -14.65].

The form may also be combined, when appropriate, with a form of complaint for damages for fraud based on false advertising [see §§ 14.61 -14.62] or a form of complaint for damages under the Consumer Legal Remedies Act (Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.). Counsel should note that an action brought under the Consumers Legal Remedies Act is subject to special procedural requirements, which are discussed in Ch. 504, Sales: Consumers Legal Remedies Act .

Finally, the form may be adapted for use by plaintiffs bringing a class action for injunctive relief and restitution under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17500, 17531, and 17200 [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17203, 17535, and § 14.18[4]]. For a general discussion and forms relating to class actions, see Ch. 120, Class Actions .

[3] Allegations

The complaint states two causes of action. The first is for untrue or misleading advertising, and alleges:

- The identity, capacity, and principal place of business of defendant, if not sued as an individual (Paragraph 1) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500].

- The fictitious names of defendants sued pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 474, if applicable (Paragraph 2).

- An agency or employment relationship between defendants, if applicable (Paragraph 3).

- That defendant made or disseminated an advertisement for the sale of a product or performance of a service before the public in California, or made and disseminated an advertisement from California before the public in any state (Paragraphs 4, 5) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500].

- Defendant's intent, directly or indirectly, to dispose of the advertised property or perform the advertised service or to induce the public to enter into any obligation concerning it (Paragraph 6) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500].

- The untrue or misleading nature of statements in the advertisement (Paragraph 7) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500].

- Defendant's knowledge, or reason to know, the statements were untrue or misleading (Paragraph 8) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500; see People v. Forest E. Olson, Inc. (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 137, 139, 186 Cal. Rptr. 804] .

- Facts showing that the plaintiff was injured in fact and lost money or property as a result of the alleged violations [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535; see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17203, 17204 (same requirement for obtaining relief under unfair competition law)].

- Grounds for injunctive relief (Paragraph 10) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535; Civ. Code § 3422(3) (permanent relief); see Code Civ. Proc. § 526 (a)(1), (3), and*(6)* (preliminary relief)].

The second cause of action for unfair competition incorporates the allegations of the first cause of action (Paragraph 11), and then alleges that defendant's acts constitute unfair competition under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 (Paragraph 12).

For further discussion and forms relating to injunctive relief and unfair competition in general, see Ch. 303, Injunctions , and Ch. 565, Unfair Competition , respectively.

[4] Jurisdiction

An action seeking permanent injunctive relief is in the jursdiction of the superior court and is not a limited civil case [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8)].

[5] Statute of Limitations

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535, which authorizes an action by a public official or private person for an injunction or restitution, contains no express limitation period. Therefore, it appears that such an action comes under the general three-year limitation period for actions based on a liability created by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a)]. However, an action brought to enforce any cause of action for unfair competition under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. must be commenced within four years after the cause of action accrued [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17208]. Therefore, the second cause of action in the complaint, which incorporates the first cause of action, has a four-year limitation period. It appears that the entire action may be brought within four, rather than three, years. For further discussion of the statutes affecting the limitation period, see § 14.18[3].

[6] Pleading Exact Language of Advertising Not Required

Plaintiff need not plead the exact language of every deceptive statement. It is sufficient to describe a scheme to mislead customers, and to allege that each misrepresentation to each customer conforms to that scheme [Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983)35 Cal. 3d 197, 211-213, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660 (class action involving numerous television commercials)].

[7] Allegations of Actual Deception, Reasonable Reliance, and Damage Not Required for Class-Action Relief

A court may order restitution without individualized proof of deception, reliance, and injury if the court determines that restitution is necessary to prevent the use or employment of practices prohibited by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq. [Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 211, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660 ; Fletcher v. Security Pacific National Bank (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 442, 453, 153 Cal. Rptr. 28, 591 P.2d 51] .

[8] Injunctive Relief May Require Showing that Unlawful Practices Will Continue

Ordinarily injunctive relief is not available when the allegedly false or misleading advertising has ceased. However, a showing that past violations will probably recur is sufficient to warrant the issuance of an injunction [People v. Toomey (1985) 157 Cal. App. 3d 1, 20, 203 Cal. Rptr. 642 (permanent injunction properly issued when defendant continued to sell different products using same deceptive marketing techniques and also violated terms of preliminary injunction)].

[9] Other Equitable Relief

In addition to an injunction and restitution, Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535 authorizes a court to make any orders or judgments, including the appointment of a receiver, as may be necessary to prevent the use or employment by defendant of any practices that violate the false advertising statutes. When appropriate, relief may include a requirement that defendant establish a fund to be used to provide refunds to purchasers and maintain records of complaints, refunds, and customer correspondence [see People v. Toomey (1985) 157 Cal. App. 3d 1, 20-21, 203 Cal. Rptr. 642] .

A court's power under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17203 and 17535 is sufficient to allow it to require a warning to be placed on product packaging when necessary to correct or avoid the fraudulent and deceptive consequences of prior advertising [Consumers Union of U.S., Inc. v. Alta-Dena Certified Dairy (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 963, 973-975, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 193] .

[10] Notification Requirement

When a violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. is alleged or the application or construction of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. is in issue in any proceeding in the California Supreme Court, a California court of appeal, or the appellate department of a superior court, each person filing a brief or petition with the court in that proceeding must serve, within three days of filing with the court, a copy of that brief or petition on the Attorney General, directed to the attention of the Consumer Law Section at a service address designated on the Attorney General's official web site for service of papers under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17209 or, if no service address is designated, at the Attorney General's office in San Francisco, and on the district attorney of the county in which the lower court action or proceeding was originally filed. On the Attorney General's or district attorney's request, each person who has filed any other document, including all or a portion of the appellate record, with the court in addition to a brief or petition must provide a copy of that document without charge to the Attorney General or the district attorney within five days of the request. The time for service may be extended by the Chief Justice or presiding justice or judge for good cause shown. No judgment or relief, temporary or permanent, may be granted or opinion issued until proof of service of the brief or petition on the Attorney General and district attorney is filed with the court [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17209].

[11] California Statutes

Violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq. (prohibited advertising practices) is unfair competition. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200

Action brought to enforce any cause of action Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. (unfair competition) required to be commenced within four years after cause of action accrued. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17208

Injunctive and other equitable relief, including restitution, available in actions for violation of Bus. & Prof. Code*§ 17500 et seq. Bus. & Prof. Code* §§ 17203, 17204, 17535

Relief available under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203 is cumulative to remedies available under all other laws. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17205

Untrue or misleading advertising prohibited. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500

Action on liability created by statute must be commenced within three years. Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a)

Action brought under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17536 (civil penalties) must be commenced within three years. Code Civ. Proc. § 338(h)

[12] Decisions

Claims for injunctive relief under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 are not subject to arbitration; holding in Broughton v. Cigna Healthplans of California (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1066, 1082, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334, 988 P.2d 67 , regarding non-arbitrability of public injunctions under Consumers Legal Remedies, extended to include claims to enjoin unfair competition under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. and misleading advertising under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq. Cruz v. Pacificare Health Systems, Inc. (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 303, 307, 316, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 58, 66 P.3d 1157

In class action for injunctive relief under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17203, 17535, plaintiff is not required to plead exact language of every deceptive statement if plaintiff describes scheme to mislead customers and alleges that each misrepresentation to each customer conforms to that scheme. Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 212-213, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660

In class action for injunctive relief and restitution under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535, language of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535 is unquestionably broad enough to authorize trial court to order restitution without requiring showing of individual class member's lack of knowledge of fraudulent practice in each transaction. Fletcher v. Security Pacific National Bank (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 442, 451, 452, 153 Cal. Rptr. 28, 591 P.2d 51

Burden of proving that false advertising claims were false or misleading properly rests with plaintiff; it would be inappropriate to shift burden of proof to defendant in private plaintiff false advertising action when private plaintiff is not authorized by statute to seek substantiation of advertising claim from defendant. National Council Against Health Fraud, Inc. v. King Bio Pharmaceuticals, Inc. (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 1336, 1345, 1348, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 207

Action that sought only to enjoin misleading practices in advertising of phone card rates and sought no monetary recovery did not implicate federal "filed rate doctrine" [47 U.S.C. § 203] and stated cause of action under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200, 17500. Day v. AT&T Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 325, 335-337, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 55

Consumers' class action for injunction of false advertising and damages for breach of contract arising from opening envelope that offered free prize "just for opening envelope" although interior required recipient to subscribe to receive prize was properly dismissed even though claims were technically correct, because law disregards trifles (Civ. Code § 3533). Harris v. Time, Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 449, 455-458, 237 Cal. Rptr. 584 .

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION
(Negligent Misrepresentation)

[1. Identity and capacity of defendant. see § 14.60, Paragraph 1.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. see § 14.60, Paragraph 2.]

[3. Agency allegation, if appropriate. see § 14.60, Paragraph 3.]

4. At all times herein mentioned, defendant was engaged in the [manufacturing, marketing, distributing for sale, selling, and] advertising of _____ [specify product or service advertised, e.g., a breakfast cereal bearing the name "_____"] to the public.

5. On or about _____ [specify, e.g., January 1988 to August 1989], defendant represented to the public, including plaintiff(s), by means of advertisements _____ [published or broadcast] _____ [specify advertising medium, e.g., on television station _____ (identify station)], that _____[specify representations of fact, e.g., "_____" (name of cereal), when eaten in moderate amounts, would reduce the risk of heart disease in adults]. A _____ [true and correct copy or representative selection] of defendant's advertisements is attached as Exhibit "_____."

6. Defendant's representations were untrue in that _____[specify, e.g, an average male adult would in fact need to consume _____ (amount) of defendant's breakfast cereal per day to achieve any appreciable reduction in the risk of heart disease].

7. Defendant made the representations herein alleged with the intention of inducing the public to purchase defendant's _____[specify product or service, e.g., breakfast cereal].

8. On or about _____ [specify, e.g., January 1988 to August 1990], plaintiff saw, believed, and relied on defendant's advertising representations and, in reliance on them, purchased _____[specify product or service, e.g., approximately one _____ (size) box of defendant's breakfast cereal per week].

9. At the time defendant made the misrepresentations herein alleged, defendant had no reasonable grounds for believing the representations to be true.

10. As a proximate result of defendant's negligent misrepresentations, plaintiff was induced to spend a total of $ _____ on defendant's _____ [specify product or service, e.g., breakfast cereal].

[11. As a further proximate result of defendant's negligent misrepresentations, plaintiff suffered personal injury in the following respects: _____(specify, e.g., plaintiff has suffered an increase rather than a reduction in his cholesterol level, is at increased risk for disabling heart disease, and has incurred medical expenses for treatment of his condition).]

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION
(Intentional Misrepresentation)

12. Plaintiff refers to and herein incorporates Paragraphs 1-8, inclusive, of the First Cause of Action.

13. At the time defendants made the representations herein alleged, defendants knew the representations were false.

[14. Defendant made the misrepresentations herein alleged with the intention of depriving plaintiff of property or legal rights or otherwise causing injury, and was guilty of fraud.]

15. As a proximate result of defendant's intentional misrepresentations, plaintiff was induced to spend a total of $ _____ on defendant's _____ [specify product or service, e.g., breakfast cereal].

[16. As a further proximate result of defendant's intentional misrepresentations, plaintiff suffered personal injury in the following respects: _____(specify, e.g., plaintiff has suffered an increase rather than a reduction in his cholesterol level, is at increased risk for disabling heart disease, and has incurred medical expenses for treatment of his condition).]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant [s, and each of them,] as follows:

1. For general damages in the sum of $ _____;

2. For damages for _____ [specify] in the sum of $_____;

[3. For punitive damages;]

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in an action for negligent or intentional misrepresentation in advertising [see Civ. Code § 1710(1), (2); Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 215-221, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660] .

This form may be combined with a complaint for injunctive relief and restitution for violation of the false advertising statutes [see Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 209-221, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660 ; see also § 14.60]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with form of complaint for damages under the Consumers Legal Remedies Act (Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.). Counsel should note that an action brought under the Consumers Legal Remedies Act is subject to special procedural requirements, which are discussed in § 14.43[4] and in Ch. 504, Sales: Consumers Legal Remedies Act.

Finally, this form may be adapted for use by plaintiffs bringing a class action for damages [see Code Civ. Proc. § 382; for general discussion and forms relating to class actions, see Ch. 120, Class Actions].

[3] Allegations

The first cause of action in this complaint is for negligent misrepresentation and alleges:

- The identity, capacity, and principal place of business of defendant, if not sued as an individual (Paragraph 1)

- The fictitious names of defendants sued pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 474, if applicable (Paragraph 2)

- An agency or employment relationship between defendants, if applicable (Paragraph 3)

- Defendant's misrepresentation of fact to plaintiff (Paragraphs 4-6) [Civ. Code § 1710(1); Hauter v.

Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 111, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377] .

- Defendant's intent to induce reliance (Paragraph 7) [see Wennerholm v. Stanford Univ. Sch. of Med. (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 713, 716, 128 P.2d 522] .

- Plaintiff's justifiable reliance (Paragraph 8) [Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 218-219, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660] .

- Defendant's negligence (Paragraph 9) [Civ. Code § 1710(1)]; and

- Plaintiff's damages (Paragraph 10) [Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 219-220, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660] .

The second cause of action, which is for intentional misrepresentation, incorporates the allegations of the first cause of action and also alleges (1) defendant's knowledge of the falsity of the representations (Paragraph 13) [Civ. Code § 1710(1)]; (2) defendant's fraudulent intent, as a basis of a request for punitive damages (Paragraph 13) [Civ. Code § 3294(a), (c)].

[4] Statute of Limitations

The statute of limitations for an action for fraud is three years from the time the cause of action accrues [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)]. For discussion of how accrual of a cause of action for fraud is affected by delayed discovery of the fraud, see Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit .

[5] Damages

For a discussion of the amount and type of damages recoverable in an action for fraud, see Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit .

[6] Verification

Verification of this complaint is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer in an action in superior court other than a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92, 446] and precludes a general denial in superior court and some limited civil cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

PART IV. FORMS

2-14 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 14.62

§ 14.62 Allegation--Negligent Endorsement of Defective Product

[1] FORM Allegation--Negligent Endorsement of Defective Product

1. At all times herein mentioned, defendant was engaged in the endorsement of _____ [describe defective product, e.g., women's shoes] by means of _____ [specify form of endorsement, e.g., a seal entitled "Family Journal Consumers' Guaranty Seal"], which represents that _____ [set forth relevant portions of endorsement, e.g., the products and services endorsed are good ones and the advertising claims made for them are truthful].

2. On or about _____ [date(s)], defendant's endorsement as herein alleged was made to the public, including plaintiff(s), by means of advertisements _____ [published or broadcast] _____ [specify advertising medium, e.g., in "Family Journal Magazine"]. A _____ [true and correct copy or representative selection] of defendant's endorsement is attached hereto as Exhibit "_____." In so advertising and endorsing _____ [describe defective product, e.g., the women's shoes], defendant represented that this product bearing defendant's endorsement had been examined, tested, and inspected by defendant and were of good quality and safe for their intended uses.

3. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that the use of defendant's endorsement was paid for by _____ [name of advertiser] and that defendant endorsed _____[describe defective product] for its own economic gain.

[2] Use of Form

This allegation is for insertion in see § 14.61 in lieu of Paragraphs 4 and 5 in that form. The allegation is for use in an action for negligent misrepresentation against one who advertises and endorses the quality and fitness of a defective product [see Hanberry v. Hearst Corp. (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 680, 682, 81 Cal. Rptr. 519] .

[3] Allegations

This form alleges (1) defendant's business of endorsing the quality of consumer products (Paragraph 1); and (2) that in its endorsement defendant represented to plaintiff that the product had been examined, tested, and inspected by defendant and was of good quality and safe for its intended uses (Paragraph 2) [see Hanberry v. Hearst Corp. (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 680, 683-684, 81 Cal. Rptr. 519] ; and defendant made the endorsement for his or her own economic gain (Paragraph 3) [see Hanberry v. Hearst Corp. (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 680, 683, 81 Cal. Rptr. 519] .

[4] Decisions

Absent endorsement or sponsorship for economic gain, publisher of advertisement has no duty to investigate safety of advertised product and no liability for injuries sustained from use of product. Walters v Seventeen Magazine (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1119, 1121-1122, 241 Cal. Rptr. 101

Product endorser is liable to purchaser who relies on endorsement and is injured because product is defective and not as represented in endorsement. Hanberry v. Hearst Corp. (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 680, 683, 81 Cal. Rptr. 519

[A true and correct copy of defendant's advertisement is attached hereto as Exhibit "_____."]

6. On or about _____ [date(s)], plaintiff, in response to the advertisement of defendant herein alleged, entered defendant's place of business seeking to buy _____ [specify quantity of advertised article, e.g., 100 videocassette tapes]. Defendant refused to sell to plaintiff the article at the price advertised in the quantity plaintiff wished to buy. Plaintiff alleges on information and belief that the article in that quantity was then available for sale on the premises.

7. In doing the acts herein alleged, defendant _____[willfully or negligently] failed to include in the advertisement a statement that a restriction was in fact put on the quantity of the article that would be sold to any one customer on his or her demand in a single transaction.

8. As a result of defendant's false representation by advertisement of the quantity of the article to be sold, plaintiff incurred losses and expenses in the sum of $_____.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant [s, and each of them,] as follows:

1. For losses and expenses in the amount of $ _____;

2. For the sum of $50 pursuant to Section 17500.5(b) of the Business and Professions Code;

3. For costs herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by plaintiff to recover losses, expenses, and a penalty for false advertising against a seller who willfully or negligently fails to include in an advertisement a restriction that is in fact put on the quantity of any article offered for sale to any one customer on demand in a single transaction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.5(a), (b)]. The form is not for use by a customer who purchases for resale or who is refused credit by a seller who otherwise may lawfully do so [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.5(c)].

The form may be combined with a general complaint for injunction and restitution under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17535, and 17203 for violation of the false advertising laws [see § 14.60].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- The identity, capacity, and principal place of business of defendant, if not sued as an individual (Paragraph 1)

- The fictitious names of defendants sued pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 474, if applicable (Paragraph 2)

- An agency or employment relationship between defendants, if applicable (Paragraph 3);

- Defendant's business of advertising and retail sale of the advertised article (Paragraph 4) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.5(b)].

- Defendant's false representation concerning the quantity of the article that would be sold to any one customer on his or her demand in a single transaction, and defendant's willful or negligent failure to include in the advertisement a statement that there is in fact a quantity restriction (Paragraphs 5 and 7) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.5(a)].

- Plaintiff's inducement to enter defendant's business seeking to buy the article and defendant's refusal to sell the article at the price advertised in any quantity available for sale on the premises (Paragraph 6) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.5(b)]; and

- Losses and expenses incurred by plaintiff (Paragraph 8) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.5(b)].

[4] Statute of Limitations

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.5 does not specify the limitation period within which an action brought under the statute must be commenced. Therefore, it appears that such an action comes under the general three-year limitation period for actions based on a liability created by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a)]. For further discussion, see the Comments to see § 14.60.

[5] Action by Individual Consumer Only

An action under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.5 can only be brought in the name of, and on behalf of, a single plaintiff and not as multiple plaintiff or class actions [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.5(d)]. The cause of action is available to any individual retail purchaser and consumer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.5(b)].

Counsel should note that a class action may be brought under the Consumers Legal Remedies Act (Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.), which makes a person liable to a consumer for advertising goods or services with the intent not to supply reasonably expectable demand, unless the advertisement discloses a limitation of quantity [see Civ. Code §§ 1770(j), 1780, 1781]. An action brought under the Consumers Legal Remedies Act is subject to special procedural requirements, which are discussed in § 14.43[4] and in Ch. 504, Sales: Consumers Legal Remedies Act.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by a private plaintiff to bring an action for treble damages and attorney's fees against a person, or the employee or agent of a person, who violates Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537 when making an offer subject to that statute [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.4]. An offer of a "prize" is subject to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537 when it is part of an advertising plan or program and notifies the recipient that he or she must pay money or purchase or rent goods or services as a condition of receiving the prize [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537(b)]. An offer of a "gift" is subject to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537 when it notifies the recipient that he or she must pay money or purchase or lease goods or services as a condition of receiving the gift, and one of the other statutorily specified conditions exist [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537(c); for further discussion, see § 14.13[12][c]].

This form may be combined with a general form of complaint for injunction and restitution under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17535 and 17203 for violation of the false advertising laws [see § 14.60]. For a form alleging unlawful advertising as an inducement to visit a location, attend a sales presentation, or contact a sales agent, see § 14.65.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- The identity, capacity, and principal place of business of defendant, if not sued as an individual (Paragraph 1).

- The fictitious names of defendants sued pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 474, if applicable (Paragraph 2).

- An agency or employment relationship between defendants, if applicable (Paragraph 3).

- That defendant owned and operated a business (Paragraph 4).

- That defendant notified plaintiff by some means, as part of an advertising plan or program, that plaintiff had won a "prize" and that, as a condition of receiving the prize, plaintiff had to pay money or purchase or rent goods or services (first alternative Paragraph 5) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537(b)].

- That defendant notified plaintiff by some means that plaintiff would receive a "gift" and that, as a condition of receiving the gift, plaintiff had to pay money or purchase or lease goods or services, and one of the conditions specified by statute existed (second alternative Paragraphs 5-6) [Bus. & Prof. Code §

- That defendant used a term similar to "prize" or "gift" in a manner that was untrue or misleading (third alternative Paragraph 5) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537(a)].

- That the offer was made to plaintiff in a particular location (three alternative Paragraphs 5-6) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395(a), 395.5 (venue)].

- That plaintiff was damaged by defendant's violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537 (Paragraph 6/7) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.4].

[4] Statute of Limitations

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.2 does not specify the limitation period within which an action brought under the statute must be commenced. Therefore, it appears that such an action comes under the general three-year limitation period for actions based on a liability created by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a)]. For further discussion, see § 14.60.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by a private plaintiff to bring an action for damages against a person, or the employee or agent of a person, who violates Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1 when making an offer subject to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(a) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.4]. An offer of any incentive is subject to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(a) when it is made as part of an advertising plan or program and as an inducement to the recipient to visit a location, to attend a sales presentation, or to contact a sales agent in person, by telephone, or by mail [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(a)].

This form may be combined with the general complaint for injunction and restitution under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535 and Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203 for violation of the false advertising laws illustrated in see § 14.60. For a form alleging unlawful advertising in relation to a conditional offer of gifts or prizes, see § 14.64.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- The identity, capacity, and principal place of business of defendant, if not sued as an individual (Paragraph 1).

- The fictitious names of defendants sued pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 474, if applicable (Paragraph 2).

- An agency or employment relationship between defendants, if applicable (Paragraph 3).

- That defendant owned and operated a business (Paragraph 4).

- That defendant offered plaintiff by some means, as part of an advertising plan or program, an incentive as an inducement to plaintiff to visit a location, to attend a sales presentation, or to contact a sales agent (Paragraphs 5-6) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(a)].

- That the offer was made to plaintiff in a particular location (Paragraph 6) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395(a), 395.5 (venue)].

- That the offer did not clearly and conspicuously disclose in writing, in readily understandable language, each of the disclosures required by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(a) (Paragraph 7) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(a)].

- That defendant, or defendant's employee, agent, or independent contractor, made a representation in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(g) (Paragraph 8) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(g)].

- That defendant, or defendant's employee, agent, or independent contractor, failed to provide the offered item even though plaintiff responded to the offer in the manner specified therein, performed the requirements disclosed in the offer, and met the qualifications described in the offer (Paragraphs 9-10) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(c)].

- That plaintiff was damaged by defendant's violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1 (Paragraph 15) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.4].

Optional Paragraphs 11-13 may be used either together or individually, as appropriate, when plaintiff anticipates that defendant will assert that the offered item was not reasonably available. These paragraphs allege that:

- Defendant, or defendant's employee, agent, or independent contractor, knew or had reason to know that the offered item would not be available in a sufficient quantity based on the reasonably anticipated response to the offer (optional Paragraph 11) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(b)].

- Defendant's offer did not disclose the reservation of a right to provide a raincheck, or a like or substitute item, if the offered item was unavailable (optional Paragraph 12) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(c)].

- Defendant did not inform plaintiff of plaintiff's right to receive a raincheck for the item offered or of the right to receive one of the options provided for in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(d) (optional Paragraph 13) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(d)].

Paragraph 14, which is for use when defendant provided a raincheck in lieu of the offered item, alleges that defendant failed to deliver to plaintiff's address, without additional cost or obligation, either the agreed item or a like or substitute item of equal or greater value within the time requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(e) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.1(d)].

[4] Statute of Limitations

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.4 does not specify the limitation period within which an action brought under the statute must be commenced. Therefore, it appears that such an action comes under the general three-year limitation period for actions based on a liability created by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a)]. For further discussion, see § 14.60.

[5] Request for Evidence

An additional allegation may be included under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17537.1(f) and 17537.4 when defendant fails to provide, at plaintiff's request, sufficient evidence showing that the item defendant provided to plaintiff matched the item selected for distribution to plaintiff.

[6] California Statutes

Offer of prize or gift without disclosure of intent to offer sales presentation is unlawful. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17533.8

Plaintiff alleges:

[1. Identity and capacity of defendant. see § 14.60, Paragraph 1.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. see § 14.60, Paragraph 2.]

[3. Agency allegation, if appropriate. see § 14.60, Paragraph 3.]

4. Plaintiff is _____ [describe plaintiff as business, or organization qualified to do business, in California]. Plaintiff has approximately _____ [number] employees who are California residents, for whom plaintiff provides the ability to send and receive electronic mail (hereafter called e-mail) through equipment located in California. For that purpose plaintiff is an intermediary in sending and receiving e-mail. Each of those employees maintains an e-mail address with plaintiff, in the general form of _____ [specify, e.g., "surname.initial@plaintiff.name.com"(and use actual domain name in lieu of "plaintiff.name.com" in this example)].

5. On _____ [date] plaintiff sent to defendant _____ [specify, e.g., both an e-mail message addressed to _____ (specify) and a registered letter addressed to defendant at _____ (specify)] stating that plaintiff has a policy against employees receiving unsolicited e-mail advertising at their e-mail addresses maintained with plaintiff and further stating that any unsolicited e-mail advertising sent to any e-mail address ending with _____ [specify plaintiff's domain name as used in e-mail addresses, e.g., "@plaintiff.name.com"] would use plaintiff's equipment located in California, or would cause that equipment to be used.

6. On or about _____ [subsequent date] defendant had actual notice of plaintiff's policy and the fact that plaintiff's equipment in California would be used as described in the preceding paragraph. Nevertheless, starting on or about that date and continuing more or less daily since then, defendant has initiated numerous e-mail messages, the principal purpose of which is to promote, directly or indirectly, the sale or other distribution of goods or services to the recipients, and defendant has used plaintiff's equipment located in California, or caused that equipment to be used, for delivering the messages to many of plaintiff's employees. Each of the messages has been addressed to a recipient with whom defendant does not have an existing business or personal relationship. None of the messages has been sent at the recipient's request of or with the recipient's express consent. Representative examples of the messages are attached as Exhibits _____ through _____.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant[s and each of them] as follows:

1. For statutory damages of $50 for each unsolicited e-mail advertisement received at _____ [specify e-mail addresses or use generic form of address, e.g., any e-mail address ending with "@plaintiff.name.com"] in violation of plaintiff's policy, pursuant to Business and Professions Code Section 17548.45;

2. For reasonable attorney's fees and costs of suit incurred herein; and

CAUTION:

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45 appears to be preempted by the federal CAN-SPAM Act of 2003 [*see P.L.108-187, 107 Stat. 2669, discussed in § 14.15[3]]. The preemption provisions of the CAN-SPAM Act apply to any California statute that expressly regulates the use of electronic mail to send commercial messages, except to the extent that the statute, regulation, or rule prohibits falsity or deception in any portion of a commercial electronic mail message or information attached to it [15

U.S.C. § 7707(b)(1)]. However, the federal preemption provisions do not affect the lawfulness or unlawfulness of the adoption, implementation, or enforcement by internet access service providers of a policy of declining to transmit, route, relay, handle, or store certain types of electronic mail messages [15 U.S.C. § 7707(c)]. The precise effect of the CAN-SPAM Act on Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45 has not yet been judicially determined.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by an e-mail service provider (including any entity, such as a corporation or firm, maintaining an internal e-mail system) for damages based on invasive e-mail advertising contrary to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45.

[3] Damages for Unsolicited E-mail

No individual, corporation, or other entity may use or cause to be used, by initiating an unsolicited electronic mail advertisement, any electronic mail service provider's equipment located in this state in violation of that electronic mail service provider's policy prohibiting or restricting the use of its equipment to deliver unsolicited electronic mail advertisements to its registered users [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45(c)].

In addition to any other action available under law, any electronic mail service provider whose policy on unsolicited electronic mail advertisements is violated as provided in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45 may bring a civil action to recover the actual monetary loss suffered by that provider by reason of that violation, or liquidated damages of $50 for each electronic mail message initiated or delivered in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45, up to a maximum of $25,000 per day, whichever amount is greater [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45(f)(1)].

This complaint seeks only statutory damages. Proof of actual damages would be difficult in any case, and normally the actual damages would not exceed the maximum obtainable statutory damages.

[4] Requirement that Defendant Be Aware of Service Provider's Policy

The electronic mail service provider must establish as an element of the cause of action that before the alleged violation, the defendant had actual notice of both the electronic mail service provider's policy on unsolicited electronic mail advertising and also the fact that the defendant's unsolicited electronic mail advertisements would use or cause to be used the electronic mail service provider's equipment located in California [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45(f)(3)(A)]. In this regard, the legislature has found that with rapid advances in internet technology, and electronic mail technology in particular, internet service providers are already experimenting with embedding policy statements directly into the software running on the computers used to provide electronic mail services in a manner that displays the policy statements every time an electronic mail delivery is requested. While the state of the technology does not support such a finding at present, the legislature believes that, in a given case at some future date, a showing that notice was supplied via electronic means between the sending and receiving computers could be held to constitute actual notice to the sender [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45(f)(3)(B)].

[5] Allegations

The following allegations are essential for a claim for damages under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45:

- The plaintiff is an electronic mail service provider [Paragraph 4]. Any "business or organization qualified to do business in California that provides registered users the ability to send or receive electronic mail through equipment located in this state and that is an intermediary in sending or receiving electronic mail" is an electronic mail service provider [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45(a)(3)]. A registered user is "any individual, corporation, or other entity that maintains an electronic mail address with an electronic mail service provider" [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45(a)(5)]. These definitions are patently broad enough to cover the case of the usual business internal e-mail system; that is, a system provided by a "business or organization qualified to do business" in California, through "equipment located in" California, for the purpose of being "an intermediary in ... receiving electronic mail" addressed to individuals (employees) who "maintain[] an electronic mail address with" the business (employer).

- The defendant had actual notice of both (1) the plaintiff's policy on unsolicited electronic mail advertising and also (2) the fact that the defendant's unsolicited electronic mail advertisements would use, or cause to be used, the plaintiff's equipment located in California [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45(f)(3)(A); see Paragraphs 5, 6]. The complaint should not state that the defendant had "actual or constructive" notice, since if the defendant had only constructive notice, there would be no cause of action, and the complaint would be demurrable.

- The defendant initiated an unsolicited electronic mail advertisement and, in connection with it, used, or caused to be used, the plaintiff's equipment located in California, in violation of the plaintiff's policy prohibiting or restricting the use of its equipment to deliver unsolicited electronic mail advertisements to its registered users [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45(c); see Paragraph 6]. The defendant must be the initial sender of the advertisement [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45(a)(4)]. An electronic mail advertisement is an electronic mail message, the principal purpose of which is to promote, directly or indirectly, the sale or other distribution of goods or services to the recipient [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45(a)(1)]. It is "unsolicited" if it is both (1) addressed to a recipient with whom the defendant does not have an existing business or personal relationship and (2) not sent at the request of or with the express consent of the recipient [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45(a)(2)].

[6] Attorney's Fees

In an action for damages under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45, the court may award reasonable attorney's fees to a prevailing party [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17538.45(f)(2)].

[7] Cause of Action for Injunctive Relief

Any act prohibited by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq. constitutes unfair competition [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200] and, as such, may be enjoined in an action maintained by a public attorney or by any any person who has suffered injury in fact and has lost money or property as a result of the unfair competition [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17203, 17204, 17535].

Plaintiff alleges:

[1. Identity and capacity of defendant. See § 14.60, Paragraph 1.]

[3. Agency allegation, if appropriate. See § 14.60, Paragraph 3.]

4. Plaintiff [is a resident of California and] has an electronic mail address ("plaintiff's e-mail address") _____ [if plaintiff is not California resident, add: that is furnished by an electronic mail service provider that sends bills for furnishing and maintaining that electronic mail address to a mailing address in California or that is ordinarily accessed from a computer located in California].

5. On at least _____ [number] occasions starting _____ [date], defendant[s jointly or severally] transmitted a commercial e-mail advertisement ("the advertisement") to plaintiff's e-mail address, or caused the advertisement to be transmitted, or assisted in the transmission of the advertisement by providing electronic mail addresses where the advertisement may be sent.

6. On each such occasion, the advertisement was initiated for the purpose of advertising or promoting the lease, sale, rental, gift offer, or other disposition of property, goods, services, or an extension of credit.

7. On each such occasion, the advertisement either (a) contained or was accompanied by falsified, misrepresented, obscured, or forged header information or (b) had a subject line that a person knows would be likely to mislead a recipient, acting reasonably under the circumstances, about a material fact regarding the contents or subject matter of the advertisement or (c) contained or was accompanied by a third person's domain name without the permission of the third person.

8. On each such occasion, plaintiff did not have a pre-existing or current business relationship with [any of the] defendant[s] and had not expressly consented to receive e-mail advertisements from [any of the] defendant[s], either in response to a request for the consent or at plaintiff's own initiative.

9. _____ [Allege facts supporting claim for actual damages proximately caused by receipt of advertisement as described in preceding paragraphs].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant[s and each of them] as follows:

1. For actual damages in the sum of $_____;

2. For statutory damages in the sum of $1,000,000 or less, but at least $1,000, according to proof;

3. For reasonable attorney's fees and costs of suit incurred herein; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[Verification, if desired. see § 14.60.]

CAUTION:

Although it has not yet been judicially determined, it appears probable that Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529 et seq. have been preempted by the federal CAN-SPAM Act of 203 [see P.L. 108-187, 107 Stat. 2669, discussed in § 14.15[3]]. Potential users of this form should be aware of the probability of federal preemption.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by any person who received unsolicited e-mail (spam) advertising sent to or from California in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529 et seq. [see § 14.15[2][c]]. In addition to any other remedies provided by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529 et seq. or by any other provisions of law, the recipient may bring an action against an entity that violates any provision of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529 et seq. to recover either or both of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.8(a)(1)]:

- Actual damages;

- Liquidated damages of $1,000 for each unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisement transmitted in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.2, up to $1,000,000 per incident.

"Incident" means a single transmission or delivery to a single recipient or to multiple recipients of unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisement containing substantially similar content [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.1(j)].

An action may also be brought by an electronic mail service provider or the attorney general [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.8(a)(1)].

[3] Limitation on Damages

If the court finds that the defendant established and implemented, with due care, practices and procedures reasonably designed to effectively prevent unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisements that are in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529 et seq., the court must reduce the liquidated damages recoverable to a maximum of $100 for each unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisement, or a maximum of $100,000 per incident [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.8(b)].

[4] Attorney's Fees

The plaintiff, if the prevailing party, may recover reasonable attorney's fees and costs [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.8(a)(2)].

[5] Immunity for Service Providers

There is no cause of action against an electronic mail service provider that is only involved in the routine transmission of the unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisement over its computer network [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.8(a)(3)]. "Routine transmission" means the transmission, routing, relaying, handling, or storing of an electronic mail message through an automatic technical process. "Routine transmission" does not include the sending, or the knowing participation in the sending, of unsolicited commercial e-mail advertisements [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.1(n)].

§ 14.68 Affirmative Defense--Action for Damages for Negligent or Intentional Misrepresentation of Fact [Civ. Code §§ 1709, 1710]--Advertisement Was Mere "Puffing"

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense--Action for Damages for Negligent or Intentional Misrepresentation of Fact [Civ. Code §§ 1709, 1710]--Advertisement Was Mere "Puffing"

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

1. The representation that _____ [specify representations of fact, e.g., defendant's real estate would be an excellent investment if plaintiff were to purchase it and receive the rents contemplated by defendant], which was made in advertisements disseminated by defendants on or about _____[date], by means of _____ [specify advertising medium, e.g., newspaper advertisements in _____ (name of newspaper)], was a statement of opinion rather than a statement of fact, and therefore was mere "puffing."

2. At the time defendant made the statement of opinion herein alleged, defendant in fact held that opinion.

3. The statement of opinion made by defendant as herein alleged was not expressed in a manner implying that the opinion had a factual basis that in fact did not exist.

4. The statement of opinion made by defendant as herein alleged contained no representation concerning the safety of any product or service of defendant.

5. The statement of opinion made by defendant as herein alleged was not based on any superior knowledge or special information of defendant such that plaintiff could have reasonably relied on the statement of opinion.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense is for use by defendant in an answer to a complaint for damages for fraud based on false advertising. The form may not be used in answer to a complaint alleging fraud by a negligent endorser [see § 14.62] because, by representing to the public that he or she possesses superior knowledge and special information concerning the product endorsed, the endorser is liable for misrepresentations of either fact or opinion [see Hanberry v. Hearst Corp. (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 680, 686, 81 Cal. Rptr. 519] .

This form alleges that the representation made in defendant's advertising was a statement of opinion, not of fact (Paragraph 1) [see Civ. Code § 1710(1), (2); Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 111, 120 Cal. Rptr.681, 534 P.2d 377] . In addition, the form anticipates the exceptional circumstances under which courts have treated expressions of opinion as misrepresentations of fact, and so also alleges:

- That defendant did in fact hold the opinion (Paragraph 2) [Pacesetter Homes, Inc. v. Brodkin (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 206, 211, 85 Cal. Rptr. 39] .

- That the opinion was not expressed in a manner implying a factual basis that did not exist (Paragraph 3) [Pacesetter Homes, Inc. v. Brodkin (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 206, 211, 85 Cal. Rptr. 39] .

- That the representation did not concern the safety of defendant's product or services (Paragraph 4) [see Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 112, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377] .

- That defendant did not have superior knowledge or special information regarding the subject matter of the representations (Paragraph 5) [Pacesetter Homes, Inc. v. Brodkin (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 206, 211, 85 Cal. Rptr. 39 ; see Toole v. Richardson-Merrell, Inc. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 689, 706, 60 Cal. Rptr. 398] .

[3] Decisions

Mere "puffing" is not a basis for liability for fraud in advertising. Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 111, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377

Seller's representation that real property would be excellent investment "if you receive the rents as we contemplate" constituted an opinion concerning future estimated rentals, not representation of fact. Pacesetter Homes, Inc. v. Brodkin (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 206, 211, 85 Cal. Rptr. 39

Exceptional circumstances resulting in expressions of opinion being treated as misrepresentations include (1) person expressing opinion does not in fact entertain it; (2) opinion amplifies false representations of fact; (3) opinion is express in manner implying factual basis that does not exist; and (4) expression of opinion is made by party possessing superior knowledge. Pacesetter Homes, Inc. v. Brodkin (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 206, 211, 85 Cal. Rptr. 39

Representations construed as fact when defendant drug manufacturer, who advertised in medical journals concerning drug's safety, had superior knowledge regarding subject matter of representations, and when plaintiff was so situated that she could reasonably rely on supposed superior knowledge or special information. Toole v. Richardson-Merrell, Inc. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 689, 706-707, 60 Cal. Rptr. 398

§ 14.69 Affirmative Defense--Action to Compel Compliance With Advertising Sign Ordinance--Ordinance Impermissibly Infringes on Protected Speech [U.S. Const., amend. I; Cal. Const., art. I, § 2]

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense--Action to Compel Compliance With Advertising Sign Ordinance--Ordinance Impermissibly Infringes on Protected Speech [U.S. Const., amend. I; Cal. Const., art. I, § 2]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

1. _____ [Cite ordinance], which plaintiff seeks to enforce against defendant, makes unlawful the _____ [specify restriction, e.g., maintenance of off-site outdoor advertising displays] while allowing the _____ [specify, e.g., maintenance of on-site outdoor advertising displays].

2. The ordinance exempts _____ [specify signs carrying noncommercial messages e.g., historical plaques and temporary political posters], but not all noncommercial signs, from its prohibition against the _____[specify restriction, e.g., maintenance of off-site outdoor advertising displays].

3. The allowance of some, but not all, noncommercial outdoor advertising displays constitutes a content-based restriction on noncommercial speech in violation of the free speech guarantees of the First Amendment to the United States Constitution and of Article I, Section 2, of the Constitution of the State of California.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense is for use by the owner of a sign to contest an action by a local government seeking to enforce an unconstitutional advertising sign ordinance. The specific ground of unconstitutionality alleged is that the ordinance restricts some, but not all, signs that do or might carry noncommercial messages, thus violating the free speech guarantees of U.S. Const., amend. I, and of Cal. Const., art. I, § 2 [*see Metromedia, Inc. v. San Diego (1981) 453 U.S. 490, 513, 536-540, 101 S. Ct. 2882, 69 L. [2] Use of Form an unconstitutional advertising sign ordinance. The specific ground of unconstitutionality alleged is that the ordinance makes a classification in prohibiting defendant's signs while allowing other signs (Paragraph 1) that has no natural, intrinsic, or constitutional distinction (Paragraph 2), rendering such classification arbitrary and unreasonable in violation of U.S. Const., amend. XIV, and of Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(a) [see City of Santa Barbara v. Modern Neon Sign Co. (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 188, 193, 11 Cal. Rptr. 57] .

This affirmative defense is for use by the owner of a sign to contest an action by a local government seeking to enforce

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense--Action to Compel Compliance With Advertising Sign Ordinance--Enforcement of Ordinance Constitutes Taking of Private Property Without Compensation in Violation of Due Process Guarantee [U.S. Const., amend. XIV; Cal. Const., art. I, §§ 7, 19]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

1. Defendant's advertising sign, which is the subject of this action, was erected at its present site on or about _____ [date], prior to the enactment of _____ [cite ordinance sought to be enforced]. At that time and thereafter until the ordinance was enacted on _____ [date], defendant's sign was lawfully erected, placed, and maintained in full compliance with all laws of the State of California, [and City and] County of _____ [, and City of _____]. [Defendant obtained a permit to erect, place, and maintain the sign from the _____ (specify agency issuing permit) in accordance with then existing ordinances.]

The entire value of the sign to defendant depends wholly and entirely on the continued use in the same manner, fashion, and style as it is currently maintained.

3. Enforcement of the ordinance against defendant as sought by plaintiff will require defendant to _____ [remove or alter] the sign so that it will become valueless as an advertising medium for defendant's business.

4. Plaintiff has offered no payment, and the ordinance makes no provision for payment, to defendant in compensation for the loss of value that defendant will incur as a result of _____ [removing or altering] the sign.

[EITHER]

5. The ordinance makes no provision for an amortization period, applicable to defendant, during which defendant may recover all or a portion of the value of the sign before defendant is required to _____ [remove or alter] the sign.

[OR]

5. _____ [Cite section of ordinance] of the ordinance provides that: _____ [set forth amortization provision(s) of ordinance]. By the terms of the ordinance, defendant is required to _____ [remove or alter] the nonconforming sign after a period of _____ [length of amortization period prescribed by ordinance] had passed from the date of enactment of the ordinance. This period is unreasonable as applied to defendant because it has not allowed defendant to recover the remaining depreciated value of the sign as alleged above. Furthermore, the public will suffer only minimal harm if defendant's sign remains _____ [standing or unaltered] beyond the prescribed amortization period in order that defendant receive the full value of defendant's investment in the sign.

[CONTINUE]

6. Enforcement of the ordinance against defendant in the manner sought by this action will constitute an unlawful taking and damaging of private property without just compensation or due process of law in violation of United States Constitution, Amendment XIV, and Article I, Sections 7(a) and 19, of the Constitution of the State of California.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense is for use by the owner of a sign to contest an action by a local government seeking to enforce an unconstitutional advertising sign ordinance. The specific ground of unconstitutionality alleged is that enforcement of the ordinance constitutes an unconstitutional taking of private property because the ordinance does not provide for either (1) payment of just compensation, or (2) the allowance of a reasonable amortization period, commensurate with the owner's investment.

The form alleges that prior to enactment of the ordinance defendant's sign was lawfully erected and maintained (Paragraph 1), the value and remaining useful life of the sign as currently maintained (Paragraph 2), that enforcement of the ordinance will cause defendant to lose such value (Paragraph 3), that there has been no offer to compensate defendant for the loss of value (Paragraph 4), that either there is no amortization period provided in the statute, or that the amortization period provided is unreasonable as applied to defendant (alternative Paragraphs 5), and that enforcement of the ordinance constitutes an unlawful taking without just compensation or due process of law (Paragraph 6) [see U.S. Const., amend. XIV; Cal. Const., art. I, §§ 7, 19; Metromedia, Inc. v. San Diego (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 848, 881-882, 164 Cal. Rptr. 510, 610 P.2d 407 , rev'd on First Amendment grounds, 453 U.S. 490, 101 S. Ct. 2882, 69 L. Ed. 2d 800 (1981)] .

The substance of this form could be used as the basis of affirmative relief for compensation under the law of inverse condemnation if the sign owner elects to comply with the ordinance. Such relief could not be asserted by answer to a complaint, however [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(c)], but may be claimed in a complaint or cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10]. For a complaint for inverse condemnation, see Ch. 247, Eminent Domain .

Counsel may wish to modify this form to assert a violation of U.S. Const., amend. V, or for use by the owner of the real property on which the billboard is located if that property will have no viable economic use after the termination. For discussion, see § 14.19[2].

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense--Action to Compel Compliance With Advertising Sign Ordinance--Immunity in Action by Private Party [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5466]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

Defendant's advertising sign, which is the subject of this action, was in place as of August 12, 2004, and has been in continuous existence in its current location since _____ [date more than five years before action was commenced]. A cause of action for the erection or maintenance of defendant's advertising display, on the ground that it violates the laws of a local governmental entity, may not be brought by a private party, pursuant to Business and Professions Code Section 5466.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense is for use by the owner of a sign to contest an action by a private party seeking to enforce an advertising sign ordinance. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, as to an advertising display in place as of August 12, 2004, a cause of action for the erection or maintenance of an advertising display that violates the Outdoor Advertising Act or the laws of a local governmental entity may not be brought by a private party against an advertising display that has been in continuous existence in its current location for a period of five years. However, if the advertising display has been illegally modified, the cause of action for the illegal modification may be brought by a private party if it is filed within five years of the date the modification was made [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5466(a)]. This does not apply, however, to a cause of action that is brought by a governmental entity and is based on the erection or maintenance of an advertising display that violates the Outdoor Advertising Act or the laws of the governmental entity [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5466(b)].

[3] California Statutes

Immunity for advertising sign in place as of August 12, 2004, and at current location for period of five years, in suit by private party. Bus. & Prof. Code § 5466

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

2-15 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 15.11

§ 15.11 Declaration Under Penalty of Perjury

Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 renders a declaration under penalty of perjury the legal equivalent of an affidavit [People v. Griffini (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 581, 587, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 590] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 provides that whenever, under any law of California or under any rule, regulation, order, or requirement made pursuant to the law of California, any matter is required or permitted to be supported, by the sworn statement, declaration, verification, certificate, oath, or affidavit, in writing of the person making the same (other than a deposition, or an oath of office, or an oath required to be taken before a specified official other than a notary public), the matter may with like force and effect be supported by the person's unsworn written declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5].

The declaration must recite that it is declared by the person to be true under penalty of perjury, be subscribed by him or her and [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]:

- If executed in California, state the date and place of execution [for a form, see § 15.58], or

- If executed at any place, within or without California, state the date of execution and that it is so declared under the laws of the State of California [for forms, see §§ 15.59 -15.62].

For a declaration to comply with the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5, the declaration must either state on its face that it was executed in California or state that it is declared under the laws of the state of California [Kulshrestha v. First Union Commerical Corp. (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 601, 618, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 793, 93 P.3d 386 (declaration signed outside California must state they were made "under the laws of the State of California" in order to satisfy section 2015.5 and to be used as evidence)].

"Subscribe" means signed by oneself with his or her hand [In re Marriage of Reese & Guy (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1214, 1222, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 339 (attorney's custom of signing declarations under penalty of perjury on behalf of clients and witnesses improper)]. There is no compliance with Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 where a transcript reflects that a witness was asked verbally by plaintiff's investigator, at the end of a telephone conversation, if his or her statements were true and correct under penalty of perjury [Stockinger v. Feather River Community College (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1014, 1026-1027, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 385] .

In some circumstances, a declaration that is not subscribed in compliance with Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 may be deemed harmless error if another properly subscribed declaration is concurrently filed with the defective declaration [see Hearn v. Howard (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1193, 1204, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 642 (where declaration of due diligence neither indicated that it was executed in California nor provided that it was executed under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California, the defect was found to be harmless where the declaration was attached to, expressly referenced in, and filed with the proof of service, which was properly executed under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California)].

§ 15.12 Certificate

A certificate is a written testimony to the truth of any fact [People v. Griffini (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 581, 586-587, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 590] . An affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury which certifies to the truth or authenticity of something is sometimes called a certificate [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5].

The term certificate frequently refers to the written statement of an officer of the court which, unless an affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury is expressly required, need not be made under oath or under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a(2) (attorney's certificate proving service); Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a(4) (clerk's certificate proving service); Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.3 (certificate of sheriff, marshal, or court clerk as being of same force and effect as affidavit)].

§ 15.13 Acknowledgment and Certificate of Acknowledgment Distinguished

An acknowledgment is not a written statement under oath as is an affidavit [see Civ. Code §§ 1180-1193; Code Civ. Proc. § 2003]. An acknowledgment is an oral statement by a person who has executed an instrument that he or she is the person who executed the instrument. It is made to an officer authorized to take acknowledgments [see Civ. Code §§ 1180-1184] who coincidentally may also be authorized to administer oaths [see § 15.15]. The officer then affixes his or her certificate of acknowledgment [see Civ. Code § 1188 and Ch. 9, Acknowledgments]. The certificate of acknowledgment is a recitation that a particular person appeared before the certifying officer and acknowledged that he or she executed the document to which the certificate is attached [see Civ. Code § 1189 (required form of acknowledgment; forms in former Civ. Code §§ 1189-1192 remain valid for acknowledgments provided before January 1, 1993)]. It is not a jurat and is in no way the equivalent of an affidavit or even a declaration made under penalty of perjury pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 [Palm Springs Alpine Estates, Inc. v. Superior Court (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 883, 888, 63 Cal. Rptr. 618] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

2-15 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 15.14

§ 15.14 Who May Make

[1] Any Competent Witness With Knowledge of Facts

By analogy to Evid. Code § 700, which provides that except as otherwise provided by statute, every person, irrespective of age, is qualified to be a witness, any person is qualified to make an affidavit [McLellan v. McLellan (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 343, 359-360, 100 Cal. Rptr. 258] . Persons who are incapable of expressing themselves concerning the matter so as to be understood (directly or through interpretation by one who can understand) and persons who are incapable of understanding the duty of a witness to tell the truth are disqualified [Evid. Code § 701]. For futher discussion of witnesses, see Ch. 551, Trial .

Generally, an affidavit, or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5], is made by any person competent to swear to, or affirm the truth of, the facts contained in it [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2003, 2094; see Evid. Code § 702] and who is capable of being prosecuted for perjury if those facts are false [see Mack v. Superior Court (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 7, 10, 66 Cal. Rptr. 280 (test of sufficiency of affidavit); see also In re Marriage of Reese & Guy (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1214, 1223, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 339 (oath or declaration must be in form that would allow criminal sanctions if material declared to be true is not true or is not known to be true)].

Under certain circumstances, however, the person authorized to make a particular affidavit (declaration) is specified by statute [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 2010 (proof of publication by printer); Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a(1) (proof of mailing by person residing or working in county of mailing and over 18)].

[2] On Behalf of Business Entity

Subject to the requirements of the articles of incorporation and bylaws, an affidavit or declaration on behalf of a corporation may be made by any one of its officers or agents [Old Settlers Investment Co. v. White (1910) 158 Cal. 236, 246, 110 P. 922] , as directed by the board of directors [see Civ. Code § 1190.1; Corp. Code §§ 207(a), 300(a)].

In the case of a partnership, it has been held that one of the partners must make an affidavit or declaration on behalf of the partnership [Gee Chong Pong v. Harris (1918) 38 Cal. App. 214, 217-218, 175 P. 806] . The modern trend has been to treat partnerships and other unincorporated associations as legal entities [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 369.5, 416.40].

Therefore, in the case of a partnership or unincorporated association, it would seem that an affidavit or declaration could be executed in its behalf by a general manager or officer, if authorized by the partnership or unincorporated association.

§ 15.15 Who May Take

An affidavit to be used before any court, judge, or officer of California may be taken before any officer authorized to administer oaths [Code Civ. Proc. § 2012]. Officers authorized to administer oaths include every court, every judge or retired judge, every clerk of any court, every justice or retired justice, every notary public, every shorthand reporter certified under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 8020-8027, and every officer or person authorized to take testimony in any action or proceeding, or to decide on evidence [*Code Civ. § 15.16 Foreign Affidavit

[1] Affidavit Taken in Another State

An affidavit taken in a state other than California, to be used in California, may be taken before a commissioner appointed by the Governor of California to take affidavits and depositions in such other state, or before any notary public in that state, or before any judge or clerk of a court of record having a seal [Code Civ. Proc. § 2013].

[2] Affidavit Taken in Foreign Country

An affidavit taken in a foreign country to be used in this state, may be taken before an ambassador, minister, consul, vice consul, or consular agent of the United States, or before any judge of a court of record having a seal in such foreign country [Code Civ. Proc. § 2014].

[3] Certificate Authenticating Foreign Affidavit

When an affidavit is taken before a judge or a court in a state other than California, or in a foreign country, the genuineness of the signature of the judge, the existence of the court, and the fact that the judge is a member that court, must be certified by the clerk of the court, under the court's seal [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015; see §§ 15.53, 15.54].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

2-15 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 15.17

§ 15.17 Formalities of Affidavit

[1] Venue

A recitation of the state and county of execution, called the venue, traditionally appears in an affidavit as an introductory phrase followed by "ss," which is an abbreviation for "scilicet" and means "to wit" [see Black's Law Dictionary (4th ed)]. The absence of a statement of venue does not invalidate an otherwise sufficient affidavit [County Bank v. Jack (1906) 148 Cal. 437, 440, 83 P. 705] .

[2] Defective or Missing Title

An affidavit without the title of the action or proceeding in which it is made, or with a defective title, is as valid and effectual for any purpose as if duly entitled, if it intelligibly refers to such action or proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1046 (civil action or proceeding); Penal Code § 1401 (criminal action)].

[3] Oath or Affirmation

The oath or affirmation is made before an officer authorized to administer oaths [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 2093], unless this requirement is dispensed with by statute [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.6 (unsworn written affirmation by personal representative made under penalty of perjury in lieu of oath of office)]. The oath or affirmation (or a declaration) may be administered by receiving an affirmative response to one of the following questions [Code Civ. Proc. § 2094(a)]:

- "Do you solemnly state that the evidence you shall give in this issue [or matter] shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?"

- "Do you solemnly state, under penalty of perjury, that the evidence that you shall give in this issue or matter shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth?"

In the alternative to the forms prescribed in Code Civ. Proc. § 2094(a), the court may administer an oath or affirmation (or declaration) in an action or proceeding in a manner that is calculated to awaken the persons's conscience and impress the person's mind with the duty to tell the truth. The court must satisfy itself that the person testifying understands that his or her testimony is being given under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2094(b)].

For discussion of use of an unsworn written declaration under penalty of perjury, see § 15.11, above.

[4] Signature of Affiant

Absent a statute or a rule of court requiring it, the affiant's signature to an otherwise regular affidavit is not necessary, although it is customarily included [City of Petaluma v. White (1907) 152 Cal. 190, 195, 92 P. 177 ; Pacific States S. & L. Co. v. Hoffman (1933) 134 Cal. App. 601, 602, 25 P.2d 1006] .

[5] Jurat

A jurat is a certificate of the officer who administered the oath that the affiant subscribed and swore to the affidavit before him or her [United States v. McDermott (1890) 140 U.S. 151, 153, 11 S. Ct. 746, 35 L. Ed. 391 ; see §§ 15.56, 15.57]. In addition to certifying that the affidavit was made under oath, the purpose of the signature of the officer to the jurat is to witness the signature of the affiant to the affidavit [People v. McDaniels (1903) 141 Cal. 113, 115, 74 P. 773] and to evidence the fact that the affidavit was made before a duly authorized officer [Reavis v. Cowell (1880) 56 Cal. 588, 589-591] . Because an affidavit by definition is a written declaration under oath [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2003] made before an officer authorized to administer oaths [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2012], a jurat is an indispensable element of an affidavit [see People v. United Bonding Ins. Co. (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 441, 443, 77 Cal. Rptr. 310] .

§ 15.18 Seal

A public seal in California is a stamp or impression made by a public officer with an instrument provided by law, to attest the execution of an official document [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1931; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 14, 1930]. Generally, an affidavit made before a judge or clerk of a court in California need not be under seal [see Code Civ. Proc. § 153]. However, if an affidavit is made in California before a notary public, his or her jurat is required to be sealed [Gov. Code §§ 14, 8207]. If an affidavit is made in a foreign state or country before a judge or court clerk, it would seem that the jurat of the judge or clerk is to be sealed [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2013, 2014]. However, the absence of the seal of the officer before whom the affidavit was made is an irregularity that does not invalidate an otherwise valid affidavit [Reclamation District v. Snowball (1911) 160 Cal. 695, 697, 117 P. 905, 118 P. 514] .

§ 15.19 Use of Affidavits or Declarations

[1] Authorized Uses

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) may be used in a variety of situations [Code Civ. Proc. § 2009]:

- To verify a pleading or a paper in a special proceeding.
- To prove the service of a summons, notice, or other paper in an action or special proceeding.
- To obtain a provisional remedy.
- To obtain the examination of a witness.
- To obtain a a stay of proceedings.
- In uncontested proceedings, to establish a record of birth.
- As evidence on a motion.
- In any other case expressly permitted by statute.

Code Civ. Proc. § 2009 was not intended to change the general rules of evidence by substituting voluntary ex parte affidavits or declarations for the testimony of a witness. The section applies to matters of procedure, to matters collateral, ancillary, or incidental to an action or proceeding. It has no relation to proof of facts that are in issue in the case, and that it is necessary to establish to sustain a cause of action [Lacrabere v. Wise (1904) 141 Cal. 554, 556-557, 75 P. 185] .

[2] Not Used to Prove Facts Directly in Controversy in Action

Affidavits and declarations fall within the statutory definition of hearsay evidence [see Evid. Code § 1200(a)]. Therefore, except as provided by law [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 417.10, 1013a, 2009; for discussion, see [1], above] they are not admissible in evidence [Evid. Code § 1200(b); see Estate of Fraysher (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 131, 135, 301 P.2d 848 ; Estate of Horman (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 796, 805, 71 Cal. Rptr. 780] .

At the trial of an action, a witness may be heard only in the presence and subject to the examination of all the parties to the action, if they choose to attend and examine [Evid. Code § 711; but see Evid. Code § 712 use of affidavit in criminal proceeding as evidence of the technique used in taking blood samples)]. The use of an affidavit or declaration precludes cross examination and therefore the general statute authorizing their use [Code Civ. Proc. § 2009] does not apply to the proof of facts that are directly in controversy in the action [Lacrabere v. Wise (1904) 141 Cal. 554, 556-557, 75 P. 185 (holding fact not proved by affidavit; opposing party had objected to admission of affidavit)]. In that case, it is error to admit an affidavit or declaration in evidence over obejection [Estate of Fraysher (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 131, 135, 301 P.2d 848 (affirming judgment based on affidavits when used by both parties and not objected to in trial court)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

2-15 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 15.20

§ 15.20 Content of Affidavit or Declaration

[1] Personal Knowledge of Facts

An affidavit, or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5], must normally set forth facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant or declarant, and show that the affiant or declarant, if sworn as a witness, would be comptent to testify to the facts stated [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002, 2003 (discussed under § 15.10); Evid. Code § 702(a) (testimony inadmissible unless the witness has personal knowledge), Evid. Code § 702(b) (personal knowledge may be shown by any otherwise admissible evidence, including the witness's own testimony), Evid. Code § 1200(b) (except as otherwise provided by law, hearsay evidence is inadmissible)].

[2] Facts Stated on Information and Belief

Some statutes expressly allow an affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) to be made on information and belief [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 431.30(d) (denial of allegations of complaint in civil actions), 446 (verification of pleadings in civil actions)]. The verification of a petition for writ of mandate (a special proceeding), on the other hand, must be based on personal knowledge [Star Motor Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204-205, 151 Cal. Rptr. 721 ; see also City of Santa Cruz v. Municipal Court (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 74, 87, 260 Cal. Rptr. 520, 776 P.2d 222] .

In the absence of statutory authority to the contrary, an affidavit (declaration) to be used as evidence must normally be positive, direct, and not based on hearsay [see Star Motor Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 151 Cal. Rptr. 721] . And an affidavit (declaration)based on information and belief is generally disregarded as incompetent evidence [Franklin v. Nat C. Goldstone Agency (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 628, 631, 204 P.2d 37 ; Kellett v. Kellett (1934) 2 Cal. 2d 45, 48, 39 P.2d 203] . However, if a statute requires expressly or by implication a statement that by its very nature can be made only on information and belief, an affidavit (declaration) in that form may be sufficient. Affidavits (declarations) on information and belief may also be sufficient in a variety of contexts in which the facts would otherwise be difficult or impossible to establish [City of Santa Cruz v. Municipal Court (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 74, 87, 260 Cal. Rptr. 520, 776 P.2d 222] . Thus, it is incorrect to suggest that a statute that requires the filing of an affidavit necessarily implies a requirement of personal knowledge on the part of the affiant, and it is a common legislative as well as judicial practice to allow the filing of affidavits on information and belief [City of Santa Cruz v.

Municipal Court (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 74, 88, 260 Cal. Rptr. 520, 776 P.2d 222] .

[3] Conclusions of Law and Ultimate Facts

The opinions and conclusions of an affiant (or declarant) [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are considered insufficient and generally disregarded [Tri-State Mfg. Co. v. Superior Court (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 442, 445, 36 Cal. Rptr. 750] . Alleging necessary ultimate facts in the language of the statute that sets forth what must be proved is also insufficient [Tilton v. Russek (1916) 171 Cal. 731, 736, 154 P. 860] , as are conclusions of law [Taylor v. Randall (1855) 5 Cal. 79, 80] . What must be set forth are evidentiary facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant [see Ware v. Stafford (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 232, 238, 24 Cal. Rptr. 153] , except to the extent that statements on information and belief are permitted [see [2], above].

A declaration that is conclusory in nature is insufficient to establish the nonexistence of any triable issue of material fact, and thus may not serve as a basis for granting summary judgment [Johnson v. Superior Court (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 297, 308, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 52] .

[4] Chief Test for Sufficiency

The chief test of the sufficiency of an affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) is whether it is so clear and certain that an indictment for perjury could be sustained on it if it were found to be false [Mack v. Superior Court (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 7, 10, 66 Cal. Rptr. 280] . However, if a statement is not required to be under oath in the first place, a false statement under oath or penalty of perjury does not give rise to prosecution for perjury [People v. Barajas (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 750, 751-752, 78 Cal. Rptr. 647] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

2-15 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 15.21

§ 15.21 Contents When Used With Noticed Motions

Although there are exceptions, an affidavit or declaration is normally presumed to state matters personally known to the affiant or declarant and lacks evidentiary value, in a variety of contexts, when based on information and belief or on hearsay [City of Santa Cruz v. Municipal Court (1989) 49Cal. 3d 74, 87-89, 49 Cal. 3d 74, 260 Cal. Rptr. 520, 776 P.2d 222 ; see discussion in § 15.20].

With regard to motions, some statutes expressly require that affidavits or declarations filed on a motion be based on personal knowledge [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(d) (motion for summary judgment)]. Other statutes permit facts to be shown by information or belief [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 482.040 (application for attachment orders)]. Still other statutes are silent as to whether the affidavits or declarations submitted on a motion must be based on personal knowledge or may be made on information and belief [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 418.10 (motions to quash service of a summons for lack of jurisdiction or to stay or dismiss an action for inconvenient forum), 2009 (general statute, authorizing the use of affidavits on a motion); see City of Santa Cruz v. Municipal Court (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 74, 260 Cal. Rptr. 520, 776 P.2d 222 (a motion under Evid. Code § 1043, relating to discovery or disclosure of peace officer personnel records, may be made on information and belief)].

With respect to those statutes that are silent as to whether the affidavit or declaration must be based on personal knowledge, unless the facts come within one of the exceptions discussed in § 15.20[2], the prudent practice would be to submit affidavits or declarations based on personal knowledge; and, if two or more affidavits or declarations are required to establish the facts necessary to support or oppose the motion, to obtain and submit as many as are necessary to show all the facts by personal knowledge. Furthermore, it might save time later if documents to be attached to the affidavits or declarations are properly authenticated [see Evid. Code § 1400 et seq. (writings); see also Evid. Code §§ 1151-1158 (specific matters), 1200 et seq. (hearsay rule and exceptions)].

On the other hand, by analogy to Evid. Code § 702, an affidavit or declaration setting forth facts on information and belief is competent evidence unless an objection is interposed on the ground that the affiant or declarant has no personal knowledge of the matter [McLellan v. McLellan (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 343, 359-360, 100 Cal. Rptr. 258 ; see Evid. Code § 702 (stating personal knowledge requirement, but also providing that, against the objection of any party, personal knowledge must be shown before the witness may testify concerning the matter)]. Moreover, hearsay or other incompetent evidence in an affidavit or declaration received without a proper objection or motion to strike is to be regarded as competent evidence in support of the subsequent order [Flood v. Simpson (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 644, 649, 119 Cal. Rptr. 675 ; see also Kroopf v. Guffey (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1351, 1358-1360, 228 Cal. Rptr. 807 (motion to quash service of summons may be heard and determined on unobjected to hearsay affidavits)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

2-15 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 15.22

§ 15.22 Perjury and Attempted Perjury

Perjury is committed by every person who, having taken an oath that he or she will testify, declare, depose, or certify truly before any competent tribunal, officer, or person, in any of the cases in which the oath may by law of the State of California be administered, willfully and contrary to the oath, states as true any material matter which he or she knows to be false [Pen. Code § 118].

For purposes of establishing the crime of perjury, Pen. Code § 124 provides that the making of a deposition, affidavit or certificate is deemed to be complete from the time when it is delivered by the accused to any other person, with the intent that it be uttered or published as true. For depositions, affidavits, and certificates, it is the finality of the writing and its delivery, and not merely speaking the false words, which constitutes an essential element of the crime of perjury, and the mere making of the affidavit or giving testimony at a deposition cannot constitute the crime of perjury [Collins v. Superior Court (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 1244, 1247, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 123 (purportedly false deposition taken under oath but not signed and delivered), citing People v. Robles (1897) 117 Cal. 681, 682, 49 P. 1042 (allegedly false affidavit not delivered by defendant)]. This delivery requirement also applies to declarations under penalty of perjury [People v. Griffini (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 581, 594-595, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 590 (relying on Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5, which renders declaration legal equivalent of affidavit; false state application for registration as a private security guard signed and given to company but not delivered to state)].

As of December 2001, California case law recognizes the crime of attempted perjury [People v. Post (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 467, 482, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 356] (quoting Justice Black: "All perjured relevant testimony is at war with justice"). While demonstrably untrue deposition testimony taken under oath cannot support a perjury conviction where the deposition is neither signed nor delivered, it will support a conviction for attempted perjury [People v. Post (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 467, 480-484, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 356] (attempted perjury issue raised by appellate court, perjury conviction reduced to attempted perjury, and court urges Legislature to adopt federal standard that the crime of perjury is complete once a materially false statement is spoken at a deposition). By establishing the new crime of attempted perjury, the question remains whether the abrogation of the delivery requirement of Pen. Code § 124 of Post is restricted to undelivered false deposition testimony or if the making of false affidavits, certificates, and declarations without delivering them will support an attempted perjury conviction.

2-15 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 15.41

§ 15.41 Decisions

[1] Acknowledgement Distinguished

Certificate of acknowledgement as not equivalent of jurat, affidavit, or declaration under penalty of perjury. Palm Springs Alpine Estates, Inc. v. Superior Court (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 883, 888, 63 Cal. Rptr. 618

[2] Affidavit as Evidence

Affidavits as not usable in evidence unless authorized by statute. Estate of Fraysher (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 131, 135, 301 P.2d 848 ; Estate of Horman (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 796, 805, 71 Cal. Rptr. 780

Rule that trial judge is not required to accept as true sworn testimony of witness, even in absence of evidence directly contradicting it, as applying to affidavit. Bank of America v. Salinas Nissan, Inc. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 260, 274, 254 Cal. Rptr. 748

Affidavits as competent evidence where authorized by statute or where not objected to on proper grounds by party against whom they are offered. Safeway Stores, Inc. v. City of Burlingame (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 637, 646, 339 P.2d 933

Use of affidavit as precluding cross examination and, therefore, as unavailable to prove facts directly in controversy in action. Lacrabere v. Wise (1904) 141 Cal. 554, 556-557, 75 P. 185 ; see also Eagle Oil & Ref. Co. v. Prentice (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 553, 556, 122 P.2d 264 (summary judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 437c)

Affidavits as not in nature of best evidence by which to prove issuable facts. Lacrabere v. Wise (1904) 141 Cal. 554, 556, 75 P. 185

[3] Conflict Between Testimony and Declaration

Trier of fact as not required to accept as true sworn testimony of witness where there is variance between testimony of witness and his declaration. Kaslavage v. West Kern County Water Dist. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 529, 535, 148 Cal. Rptr. 729

[4] Conclusions, Opinions, and Ultimate Facts

A declaration that is conclusory in nature is insufficient to establish the nonexistence of any triable issue of material fact, and thus may not serve as a basis for granting summary judgment. Johnson v. Superior Court (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 297, 308, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 52

Affidavit or declaration setting forth conclusions, opinions, or ultimate facts only as ordinarily insufficient evidence. Fuller v. Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 690, 693, 86 Cal. Rptr. 705

Opinions and conclusions in affidavit as incompetent evidence. Mack v. Superior Court (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 7, 10, 66 Cal. Rptr. 280 (affidavit containing conclusion); Tri-State Mfg. Co. v. Superior Court (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 442, 445, 36 Cal. Rptr. 750 (affidavit containing opinions and conclusions)

Affidavits drawn in conclusionary terms as insufficient to create conflict in facts. Petri Cleaners, Inc. v. Automotive Employees, etc., Local No. 88 (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 455, 469 n. 5, 45 L.R.R.M. (BNA) 2664, 2 Cal. Rptr. 470, 349 P.2d 76

Language of statute repeated in affidavit as ultimate fact and incompetent. Tilton v. Russek (1916) 171 Cal. 731, 736, 154 P. 860

Clear and certain statement of facts and circumstances as required to prove ultimate facts in issue. Ware v. Stafford (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 232, 238, 24 Cal. Rptr. 153

[5] Form and Content of Affidavits

Introductory phrases, such as affiant's title, which precede sworn statement as not under oath. Old Settlers Investment Co. v. White (1910) 158 Cal. 236, 246, 110 P. 922

Date of affidavit as presumed to be same as date of its presentation. Bank of Venice v. Hutchinson (1912) 19 Cal. App. 219, 222, 125 P. 252

Absence of venue as not invalidating otherwise sufficient affidavit. County Bank v. Jack (1906) 148 Cal. 437, 440, 83 P. 705 ; Reavis v. Cowell (1880) 56 Cal. 588, 590-591

Affidavit with title of action missing or defective as valid where affidavit intelligibly refers to action. Watt v. Bradley (1892) 95 Cal. 415, 417, 30 P. 557 ; McCrary v. Beaudry (1885) 67 Cal. 120, 122, 7 P. 264

Signature of affiant as not required absent statute or rule of court. City of Petaluma v. White (1907) 152 Cal. 190, 195, 92 P. 177 ; Pacific States S. & L. Co. v. Hoffman (1933) 134 Cal. App. 601, 602, 25 P.2d 1006

Absence of seal as irregularity which does not invalidate otherwise sufficient affidavit. Reclamation District v. Snowball (1911) 160 Cal. 695, 697, 117 P. 905, 118 P. 514

[6] Jurat

Jurat as essential part of affidavit. People v. United Bonding Ins. Co. (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 441, 443, 77 Cal. Rptr. 310

Jurat as certificate of officer who administered oath that affiant subscribed and swore to affidavit before him. United States v. McDermott (1890) 140 U.S. 151, 153, 11 S. Ct. 746, 35 L. Ed. 391 ; People v. McDaniels (1903) 141 Cal. 113, 115, 74 P. 773

Jurat as certificate evidencing fact that affidavit was properly made before duly authorized officer. Reavis v. Cowell (1880) 56 Cal. 588, 589-591 ; Hoffman v. City of Palm Springs (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 645, 650, 337 P.2d 521

Affidavit subscribed and sworn to before officer outside jurisdiction for which he was appointed as being nullity incapable of correction by amendment. Fairbanks, Morse & Co. v. Getchell (1910) 13 Cal. App. 458, 462, 110 P. 331

Notary's certification that affidavit was subscribed and sworn to as prima facie evidence that it was made under oath. People v. McDaniels (1903) 141 Cal. 113, 114-116, 74 P. 773

[7] Form and Content of Declarations

For a declaration to comply with the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5, the declaration must either state on its face that it was executed in California or state that it is declared under the laws of the state of California Kulshrestha v. First Union Commerical Corp. (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 601, 618, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 793, 93 P.3d 386 (declaration signed outside California must state they were made "under the laws of the State of California" in order to satisfy section 2015.5 and to be used as evidence)

End of document is preferred, if not required, place for recitation that declaration is under penalty of perjury. People v. Pierce (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 53, 59, 56 Cal. Rptr. 817, 423 P.2d 969

Where declaration of due diligence neither indicated that it was executed in California nor provided that it was executed under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California, the defect was found to be harmless where the declaration was attached to, expressly referenced in, and filed with the proof of service, which was properly executed under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California. Hearn v. Howard (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1193, 1204, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 642

"Subscribe" means signed by oneself with his or her hand; attorney's custom of signing declarations under penalty of perjury on behalf of clients and witnesses improper. In re Marriage of Reese & Guy (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1214, 1222, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 339

Failure to recite that facts in declaration are true is inconsequential to sufficiency of declaration under penalty of perjury. Pacific Air Lines, Inc. v. Superior Court (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 587, 588-589, 42 Cal. Rptr. 68

Venue stated in form usually used for affidavit as satisfying place of execution requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (declaration). McCauley v. Superior Court (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 562, 564-565, 12 Cal. Rptr. 119

[8] Incorporation by Reference

Incorporation by reference of papers on file is appropriate in affidavit for use in same action. Newport v. City of Los Angeles (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 229, 234, 7 Cal. Rptr. 497 (motion for summary judgment)

[9] Information and Belief

Affidavits made solely on information and belief, except where allowed by statute, are unavailing for any purpose. Gay v. Torrance (1904) 145 Cal. 144, 151, 78 P. 540

Allegations on information and belief in affidavit as hearsay, to be disregarded. Franklin v. Nat C. Goldstone Agency (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 628, 631, 204 P.2d 37 ; Kellett v. Kellett (1934) 2 Cal. 2d 45, 48, 39 P.2d 203 ; Tracy v. Tracy (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 359, 362, 28 Cal. Rptr. 815 ; Jeffers v. Screen Extras Guild, Inc. (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 622, 623, 286 P.2d 30 ; see also West Romaine Corp. v. Cal. State Bd. of Pharmacy (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 901, 906-907, 72 Cal. Rptr. 569

Information and belief allegation in affidavit as prima facie evidence where facts required by statute are necessarily outside affiant's personal knowledge. Brown v. Happy Valley Fruit Growers (1939) 206 Cal. 515, 520, 274 P. 977 (allegations re third party's intent required by statute)

Statements in affidavit are presumed to be made on personal knowledge of affiant. Weathers v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 98, 106, 95 Cal. Rptr. 516, 485 P.2d 1132

Code Civ. Proc. § 446, providing for verification of pleading on information and belief, applies to pleadings that join issues but not where verification or affidavit is to be used as evidence of facts. Star Motor Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 151 Cal. Rptr. 721

[10] Motions

Motions are normally heard on affidavits alone. Crocker Citizens Nat. Bank v. Knapp (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 875, 880, 60 Cal. Rptr. 66

[11] Perjury

Affidavit is complete for purpose of prosecution for perjury when delivered to any other person with intent that it be published as true. People v. Pierce (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 53, 60, 56 Cal. Rptr. 817, 423 P.2d 969 (declaration under penalty of perjury); see also Penal Code § 124

A declaration that was not signed under penalty of perjury is not admissible evidence as required to support a summary judgment motion. Gonzalez v. Kalu (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 21, 26, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 866

There is no compliance with Code of Civil Procedure section 2015.5 where a transcript reflects that a witness was asked verbally by plaintiff's investigator, at the end of a telephone conversation, if his or her statements were true and correct under penalty of perjury. Stockinger v. Feather River Community College (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1014, 1026-1027, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 385

While demonstrably untrue deposition testimony taken under oath cannot support a perjury conviction where the deposition is neither signed nor delivered, it will support a conviction for attempted perjury. People v. Post (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 467, 480-484, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 356 (crime of attempted perjury recognized in California as of December, 2001)

Before a party may be convicted of perjury in making a false affidavit, he must either use the affidavit for a purpose contemplated by Penal Code § 118, or deliver it to some one for such use. Collins v. Superior Court (2001) 89 Cal.

App. 4th 1244, 1247, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 123 , citing People v. Robles (1897) 117 Cal. 681, 682, 49 P. 1042

Whole point of permitting declaration under perjury, in lieu of sworn statement, is to help insure that declarations contain truthful factual representation and are made in good faith; oath or declaration must be in form that criminal sanctions of perjury might apply when material so declared to be true, are in fact not true or are not known to be true. In re Marriage of Reese & Guy (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1214, 1223, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 339

Purpose of declaration under penalty of perjury is to assure good faith in statements of party signing declaration; indictment for perjury as permissible when declaration is false. Self-Insurers' Security Fund v. ESIS, Inc. (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1148, 1160, 251 Cal. Rptr. 693

False statement under oath or penalty of perjury as not giving rise to prosecution for perjury where statement was not required to be under oath in the first place. People v. Barajas (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 750, 751-752, 78 Cal. Rptr. 647

[12] Presumption on Appeal

In review on appeal of order made on affidavits factual conflicts as resolved in favor of respondent. Fuller v. Lindenbaum (1938) 29 Cal. App. 2d 227, 230, 84 P.2d 155

[13] Sufficiency

Sufficiency of affidavit as tested by whether it has been drawn in such manner that perjury could be charged thereon if any material allegation contained therein is false. Mack v. Superior Court (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 7, 10, 66 Cal. Rptr. 280 ; Borders v. Civil Service Commission (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 678, 684, 27 Cal. Rptr. 490 ; Hoffman v. City of Palm Springs (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 645, 648-649, 337 P.2d 521

Sufficiency of affidavit as tested by same rules as applicable to oral testimony. Mayo v. Beber (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 544, 551, 2 Cal. Rptr. 405 ; Jeffers v. Screen Extras Guild, Inc. (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 622, 623, 286 P.2d 30

Officer or agent of corporation as proper person to make affidavit in behalf of corporation. Old Settlers Investment Co. v. White (1910) 158 Cal. 236, 246, 110 P. 922

Partner as proper person to make affidavit in behalf of partnership. Gee Chong Pong v. Harris (1918) 38 Cal. App. 214, 217-218, 175 P. 806

[2] Use of Form

The skeletal form in [1], above, illustrates the various parts of the affidavit. It is included as a guide for drafting affidavits to be executed in California.

[3] Format and Contents of Affidavit

An affidavit is required to be in writing and to be made under oath [Code Civ. Proc. § 2003]. An affidavit should have a title, but an affidavit without a title or with a defective title is still valid and effective if it intelligibly refers to the action or proceeding in which it is made [Code Civ. Proc. § 1046 (civil actions or special proceedings); Penal Code § 1401 (criminal actions)]. An affidavit also contains a recitation of the place of execution, called the venue [Black's Law Dictionary (4th ed); see also County Bank v. Jack (1906) 148 Cal. 437, 440, 83 P. 705 (effect of absence of venue)].

The body of the affidavit contains a statement of the necessary and related facts [see Ware v. Stafford (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 232, 238, 24 Cal. Rptr. 153] . An affidavit based on information and belief is generally disregarded as incompetent evidence [Franklin v. Nat C. Goldstone Agency (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 628, 631, 204 P.2d 37] , unless a statute requires a statement which by its very nature can be made only on information and belief [Brown v. Happy Valley Fruit Growers (1929) 206 Cal. 515, 520, 274 P. 977] . Likewise, opinions and conclusions of an affiant are considered insufficient and generally disregarded [Tri-State Mfg. Co. v. Superior Court (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 442, 445, 36 Cal. Rptr. 750] .

A jurat appears at the end of the affidavit, certifying that the affidavit was made under oath [People v. McDaniels (1903) 141 Cal. 113, 114-116, 74 P. 773] and that the oath was administered by a person with authority to do so [Reavis v. Cowell (1880) 56 Cal. 588, 589-591] .

[2] Use of Form

The skeletal form in [1], above, is for use in drafting an affidavit to be executed in a state other than California for use before a court, judge, or state officer of California. For discussion of the form and content of an affidavit, see § 15.50[3], [4].

When an affidavit is taken before a judge or a court in another state, the genuineness of the signature of the judge, the existence of the court, and the fact that the judge is a member of that court must be certified by the clerk of the court, under the court's seal [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015; see § 15.53[1]].

[3] Who May Take Affidavit

An affidavit taken in another state of the United States, to be used in California, may be taken before any notary public in another state or before any judge or clerk of a court of record having a seal [Code Civ. Proc. § 2013]. Code Civ. Proc. § 2013 also provides that such an affidavit may be taken before a commissioner appointed by the Governor of California to take such affidavits.

_____ (political subdivision)
_____ (type of government) of
_____ (name of country)]

[2] Use of Form

The skeletal form of affidavit in [1], above, is for use as a guide in drafting an affidavit for execution in a foreign country for use before a court, judge, or state officer of California. For discussion of the form and content of an affidavit, see § 15.50[3], [4].

When an affidavit is taken before a judge or a court in a foreign country, the genuineness of the signature of the judge, the existence of the court, and the fact that the judge is a member of that court must be certified by the clerk of the court, under that court's seal [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015; see § 15.53[1]].

[3] Who May Take Foreign Affidavit

An affidavit taken in a foreign country to be used in California may be taken before an ambassador, minister, consul, vice consul, or consular agent of the United States, or before any judge of a court of record having a seal in that foreign country [Code Civ. Proc. § 2014].

[1] FORM Jurat of Commissioned Officer in Military Service

Subscribed and sworn to before me on this _____ day of _____ [month and year].

_____ [signature of officer]
_____ [rank, branch of service, and capacity in which officer signed]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is prescribed by Civ. Code § 1183.5 as the jurat of a commissioned officer taking the affidavit of a person serving in or with the armed forces of the United States located within or outside of California, or any spouse of a member of the armed forces located within or outside of California.

[3] Power to Administer Oath

Any officer on active duty or performing inactive-duty training in the armed forces having the general powers of a notary public pursuant to 10 U.S.C. §§ 936 or 1044a (Pub. L. Nos. 90-936, 101-510) and any successor statutes may perform all notarial acts for any of the following [Civ. Code. § 1183.5]:

- Any person serving in the United States armed forces, wherever he or she may be.
- The spouse of any person serving in the armed forces, wherever he or she may be.
- Any person eligible for legal assistance under laws and regulations of the United States, wherever he or she may be.
- Any person serving with, employed by, or accompanying the armed forces outside the United States and outside the Canal Zone, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands.

- Any person subject to the Uniform Code of Military Justice outside of the United States.

[4] Omissions and Presumptions

The failure to state the place of execution in an affidavit taken before a military officer does not render it invalid. The recitals in a certificate or jurat of a military officer are prima facie evidence of their truth, and any oath or affirmation purporting to have been made by any commissioned officer of the Army, Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard constitutes presumptive evidence of the existence of the facts necessary to authorize the taking of the oath or affirmation by the officer, notwithstanding the omission of any specific recitals [Civ. Code § 1183.5].

[2] Use of Form

The skeletal form in [1], above, is for use in drafting a declaration under penalty of perjury, to be used in lieu of an affidavit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]. This form is only appropriate if the declaration is signed in California [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]. For a form that may be used whether or not it is signed in California, see § 15.59.

[3] Declaration in Lieu of Affidavit

Whenever under any law, rule, regulation, order, or requirement of California, any matter is required or permitted to be supported, evidenced, established, or proved by affidavit, a declaration under penalty of perjury in substantially the same form may be executed with the same force, and effect as an affidavit [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5; see also §§ 15.50[2], [3], 15.59[2]].

_____ [Set forth facts. See § 15.50[1].]

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

[2] Use of Form

The form of declaration in [1], above, is for use whenever California law requires or permits a declaration to be used in lieu of an affidavit [see § 15.58[2], [3]]. The last paragraph is in the form suggested by Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 for certifications or declarations executed anywhere within or without California for use in California [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5].

A person who, while outside of California, executes such a declaration for use in California, is subject to prosecution for perjury in the jurisdictional territory in California in which the act, transaction, matter, action, or proceeding in relation to which the certification or declaration was made occurs [Penal Code §§ 118(a), 777b].

For a declaration to comply with the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5, the declaration must either state on its face that it was executed in California or state that it is declared under the laws of the state of California [Kulshrestha v. First Union Commerical Corp. (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 601, 618, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 793, 93 P.3d 386 (declaration signed outside California must state they were made "under the laws of the State of California" in order to satisfy section 2015.5 and to be used as evidence)].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an alternative form of declaration under penalty of perjury to be used in lieu of an affidavit. It may be used within or outside of California [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5].

Before using this form, counsel should note that, while this form is similar to the statutory form set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5, the text of the form in § 15.59 more closely tracks the statutory form, and counsel may prefer to use it for that reason.

For a declaration to comply with the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5, the declaration must either state on its face that it was executed in California or state that it is declared under the laws of the state of California. [*Kulshrestha v. The form in [1], above, is an illustrative filled-in reproduction of the Judicial Council approved form of declaration under penalty of perjury for optional use when California law requires a matter to be established by affidavit or declaration and the declaration is to be filed or submitted to the court and not to be attached to other papers.

The fact situation illustrated is based on Evid. Code §§ 1560, 1561, relating to the production of business records by a nonparty to the action. The form may be executed at any place within or outside of California [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustrative filled-in reproduction of the Judicial Council approved form of declaration under penalty of perjury for use when California law requires or permits use of an affidavit or declaration in support of a proceeding and the declaration is to be attached to another court paper, such as a notice of motion. The form should be attached to another document that requires a declaration but does not contain one. It may be executed at any place within or outside of California [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5].

The fact situation illustrated is a motion to dismiss an action under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.360(a) for failure to bring the action to trial within five years after it was commenced [see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310].

This chapter discusses the law of torts as it applies in cases involving aviation. General theories of liability for personal injury or wrongful death in the context of airplane accidents are discussed, including various methods of establishing negligence as well as strict products liability. The chapter also briefly discusses airport liability for nuisance and inverse condemnation, air carrier liability for miscellaneous passenger complaints such as overbooking and loss of luggage, and issues relating to aviation insurance. In addition, certain procedural aspects of aviation tort law, as well as choice of law problems, are discussed.

The chapter includes forms of complaint for use in wrongful death actions [§ 16.40] and in negligence actions involving a variety of factual situations [§§ 16.41-16.45, 16.47, 16.49-16.55]. Also included is a complaint for damages in both negligence and breach of contract for loss of luggage and refusal to carry plaintiff [§ 16.46], and a complaint for breach of contract and indemnity [§ 16.48]. In addition, the chapter includes an illustrative Judicial Council form of answer [§ 16.70], and allegations of affirmative defenses for use in a variety of situations [§§ 16.71-16.82]. Finally, the chapter includes forms of complaint for use by passengers against airport operators (as well as against an airline, as appropriate) for injuries suffered at the airport [§§ 16.90-16.91].

§ 16.02 Air Carrier Versus General Aviation Accidents

[1] Air Carrier Accidents

Litigation arising from major air carrier accidents, involving injury or death to hundreds of people, has generated what amounts to its own body of law and procedures under the federal rules for multidistrict litigation [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1407]. Under the multidistrict litigation procedures, the average practitioner representing a plaintiff will not actively participate in discovery, as the court will appoint a committee of experienced aviation lawyers who will act on behalf of all plaintiffs. In addition, the defense of the airline and the manufacturers will be controlled by insurance companies whose attorneys are experienced in such litigation. Thus, a detailed discussion focusing on major carrier accidents is omitted from this chapter [see Kreindler, Aviation Accident Law, Ch. 3 (Matthew Bender), for in-depth discussion of this type of litigation]. Many of the substantive rules of liability discussed in this chapter, however, apply to both major airline litigation and litigation involving privately-owned aircraft.

[2] General Aviation Accidents

In 2005, there were 1,670 accidents involving general aviation [N.T.S.B. Annual Review of Aircraft Accident Data, U.S. General Aviation, Calendar Year 2005 (2009)]. The substantive law applicable to these accidents is generally the same as that which applies to accidents on the ground [see Pub. Util. Code § 21404]. However, aviation, unlike many earthbound pursuits, is highly regulated by the federal government. The Federal Air Regulations [14 C.F.R. Part 1 et seq.] detail the obligations of pilots, controllers, mechanics, and manufacturers. Familiarity with the Federal Air Regulations is essential to the preparation of general aviation cases.

§ 16.10 Applicable Law

[1] Jurisdiction, Choice of Forum, and Venue

Aviation cases are controlled by the same choice of forum and venue considerations as any other tort action in a state-court system. Issues of forum non conveniens may arise. In addition, since many aircraft are of foreign manufacture, and the manufacturer may be state owned, basic jurisdictional issues of foreign sovereign immunity may need to be considered. For discussion of these issues, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal , and Ch. 571, Venue . In a major air disaster, it is highly likely that the federal Multi-District Litigation procedures will be used and all cases arising from an accident will be removed by the Judicial Panel, pursuant to the Manual for Complex Litigation, to a chosen district court for all purposes other than trial. The Judicial Panel will usually choose the court nearest to the site of the accident.

If more than one case arises in California from the same accident, questions of consolidation of actions (for two or more actions in the same court), and of coordination of actions (if actions have been properly filed in different jurisdictions) will usually arise. Consolidation is usually granted as a matter of routine. In coordination actions, the Judicial Council will appoint a superior court judge to determine if coordination is appropriate (it usually is) and to recommend which court should receive the coordinated cases. In coordination determinations deference is usually given to the site of the accident if one of the cases has been filed there [see Code Civ. Proc. § 404 et seq; Cal. Rules Ct., Rule 3.501 et seq.].

[2] State Versus Federal Substantive Law

The application of state tor law to aviation cases is limited by federal preemption of aviation in the area of safety regulations, regulation of rates, routes, and services, the existence of a federal statute of repose exempting the manufacturers of general aviation aircraft from liability, and bars against suing government contractors and against suits brought by governmental employees [see World Airways, Inc. v. Intern. Broth., Etc. (9th Cir. 1978) 578 F.2d 800, 803 ; Pub. Util. Code § 21404; see also Cummins v. Sky Cruisers, Inc. (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 983, 986-988, 130 Cal. Rptr. 897 (ownership for purposes of determining vicarious liability determined by state law)]. There is no federal common law of aviation [see, e.g, Rogers v. Ray Gardner Flying Service (5th Cir. 1970) 435 F.2d 1389, 1394] . However, the government contractor defense, discussed below, is an example of how federal common law can affect aviation. The same statutory [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 1714(a) (general duty of care)] and case law thatapplies to torts in other fields applies to aviation [Pub. Util. Code § 21404; Nachsin v. De La Bretonne (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 637, 639, 95 Cal. Rptr. 227 ; Spaulding v. United States (9th Cir. 1972) 455 F.2d 222, 226] . Although the Federal Air Regulations [14 C.F.R. Part 1et seq.] do not directly create tort liability, they are like the provisions of the Vehicle Code in that they provide "rules of the road" that establish standards of care and a basis for presuming negligence [Rudelson v. United States (C.D. Cal. 1972) 431 F. Supp. 1101, 1107 , aff'd, 602 F.2d 1326 ; Stevens v. Cessna Aircraft Co. (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 431, 433, 170 Cal. Rptr. 925 ; for discussion of presumption of negligence, see § 16.11[2][b]]. An attorney handling an aviation matter should realize that aircraft operated by the U.S. government, state governments, or local governments, are generally "public aircraft" as defined by the Federal Aviation Act, and are by definition not subject to many, if not most, of the Federal Air Regulations.

Although there is no general federal substantive tort law that directly applies to aviation cases, liability for injuries sustained on international flights is governed by treaties, such as the Warsaw Convention [Warsaw Convention, 49 Stat. 3000, T.S. 876 (1934), reprinted as note following 49 U.S.C.S. § 40105], which have the force of law [see United States v. Belmont (1937) 301 U.S.324, 330-332, 57 S. Ct. 758, 81 L. Ed. 1134] . The Federal Tort Claims Act [see 28 U.S.C.S. §§ 1291, 1346(b), 1402(b), 1504, 2110, 2401(b), 2401, 2402, 2411, 2412, 2671-2680; for a discussion of litigation under the Federal Tort Claims Act, see The Ins and Outs of Filing a Claim Under The Federal Tort Claims Act, 45 J. of Air Law and Commerce 41 (1979); see also Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 8, General Rules of Pleading (3rd ed. Matthew Bender) (pleading claim against United States); Jayson, Handling Federal Tort Claims: Administrative and Judicial Remedies (Matthew Bender)] governs tort claims against the United States, but applies substantive state law in determining liability [28 U.S.C.S. 1346(b); Rayonier, Inc. v. United States (1957) 352 U.S. 315, 318-319, 77 S. Ct. 374, 1 L. Ed. 2d 354] .

Finally, although there is no general federal substantive law, the practitioner should realize that the majority of aviation related cases are federal, and that these cases may be persuasive in state court, especially if there is little state case law on significant issues.

[3] Choice of State Law in Airplane Accident Cases

Choice of law problems often occur in airplane accident cases, due to the fact that flights often cross state lines and plaintiffs and defendants are often not residents of the same state, or may be foreign. This section discusses California's treatment of choice of law issues under the principles of governmental interest analysis. California's choice of law rules apply to cases filed in California in both state court actions and federal court actions based on diversity of citizenship [see In re Aircrash in Bali Indonesia on April 22, 1974 (9th Cir. 1982) 684 F.2d 1301, 1307 ; Browne v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (N.D. Cal. 1980) 504 F. Supp. 514, 516 , aff'd, 698 F.2d 370 (9th Cir. 1982)] . For a discussion of choice of law issues under approaches used in other jurisdictions, see Kreindler, Aviation Accident Law, Ch. 2 (Matthew Bender).

As a general rule, a court will apply the law of the forum, even in cases with foreign parties or other foreign connections, unless one of the parties shows that the law of another state is more appropriate [Hurtado v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 574, 579-580, 114 Cal. Rptr. 106, 522 P.2d 666 ; Beech Aircraft Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 501, 522, 132 Cal. Rptr. 541 ; see Steering Committee v. U.S. (9th Cir. 1993) 6 F.3d 572 (applying California law in suit against Mexican airline)]. In order to determine which state's law applies in cases of conflict, California uses the "governmental interest analysis" approach [Offshore Rental Co. v. Continental Oil Co. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 157, 164-165, 148 Cal. Rptr. 867, 583 P.2d 721 ; Bernhard v. Harrah's Club (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 313, 316-318, 128 Cal. Rptr. 215, 546 P.2d 719 ; Hurtado v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 574, 579-580, 114 Cal. Rptr. 106, 522 P.2d 666 ; see In re Aircrash in Bali Indonesia on April 22, 1974 (9th Cir. 1982) 684 F.2d 1301, 1307] . Under this approach, California will apply its own substantive law unless it is shown that another state has a greater interest in having its laws applied [Hurtado v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 574, 581, 114 Cal. Rptr. 106, 522 P.2d 666 ; see also In re Paris Air Crash of March 3, 1974 (C.D. Cal. 1975) 399 F. Supp. 732, 745 (stating that if choice of law is between California law and foreign law and interests are equal, California law will apply)].

Of course, if the laws of the two states are identical, no choice is required [Hurtado v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 574, 580, 114 Cal. Rptr. 106, 522 P.2d 666] . Furthermore, if only one state has a valid interest in the application of its laws to the controversy (sometimes called a "false conflict" situation), that state's law applies [Hurtado v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 574, 580, 114 Cal. Rptr. 106, 522 P.2d 666] . However, if a conflict of governmental interests exists, that is, if more than one state has an interest in applying its law, the choice of law is determined by a "comparative impairment" approach [Offshore Rental Co. v. Continental Oil Co. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 157, 164-165, 148 Cal. Rptr. 867, 583 P.2d 721] . Under this approach, the court seeks to determine which state's interest would be more impaired if its policy were subordinated to the policy of the other state [Offshore Rental Co. v. Continental Oil Co. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 157, 164-165, 148 Cal. Rptr. 867, 583 P.2d 721] .

In cases in which the standard of care varies between interested jurisdictions, the court will look to the basic governmental policies involved. Rules related to tort liability in the area of negligence or products liability generally are based on a dual policy of compensating plaintiffs who have been injured by a violation of the standard of care, and deterring the conduct of defendants who violate that standard [Reyno v. Piper AircraftCo. (3d Cir. 1980) 630 F.2d 149, 167 , rev'd on other grounds, 454 U.S. 235, 102 S. Ct. 252, 70 L. Ed. 2d 419 (1981)] . As a general rule, the state of residence of the manufacturer of a defective product has a strong interest in the application of its products liability rules [In re Paris Air Crash of March 3, 1974 (C.D. Cal. 1975) 399 F. Supp. 732, 745-747 ; see also Reyno v. Piper Aircraft Co. (3d Cir. 1980) 630 F.2d 149, 167-168 , rev'd on other grounds, 454 U.S. 235, 102 S. Ct. 252, 70 L. Ed. 2d 419 (1981)] . In Beech Aircraft Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 501, 523, 132 Cal. Rptr. 541 , a California court of appeal suggested that California products liability rules should be applied to cases in which the defendant is a California resident, regardless of the place of the crash or the status of the plaintiffs. Similarly, in a case in which an aircrash in Yugoslavia was allegedly due in part to a defective design of the plane by the manufacturer in California, a federal district court held that California products liability law applied [Browne v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (N.D. Cal. 1980) 504 F. Supp. 514, 517-518 , aff'd, 698 F.2d 370 (9th Cir. 1982)] .

It is often important in aviation accident cases to determine which state's wrongful death statute applies. In resolving this issue, the courts follow the interest analysis approach and apply the law of the jurisdiction with the greatest interest in the outcome [see Hurtado v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 574, 584, 114 Cal. Rptr. 106, 522 P.2d 666] . Wrongful death statutes express three basic governmental interests: (1) they are designed to compensate plaintiffs, (2) to the extent that they limit damages to a stated amount, they are designed to protect defendants from large verdicts, and (3) they are designed to deter the wrongful conduct of defendants [see Hurtado v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 574, 584, 114 Cal. Rptr. 106, 522 P.2d 666] . As a general rule, these policies are local in nature. Thus, the state is concerned with deterring wrongful conduct within its border, compensating resident plaintiffs, and protecting local business [Browne v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (N.D. Cal. 1980) 504 F. Supp. 514, 517 , aff'd 698 F.2d 370 (9th Cir. 1982) ; see Hurtado v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 574, 582-586, 114 Cal. Rptr. 106, 522 P.2d 666] .

The doctrine of res ipsa loquitur, which may vary from jurisdiction to jurisdiction, is also important in aviation accident cases where proof of fault may be difficult due to lack of evidence [see discussion in § 16.11[5]]. A federal case has held that under California law, the application of res ipsa loquitur is procedural and thus the law of the forum should always apply [see United Air Lines, Inc. v. Wiener (9th Cir. 1964) 335 F.2d 379, 390-391] . It should be noted, however, that under developing choice of law rules, procedural rules may now be subject to governmental interest analysis in the same manner as rules that are clearly substantive in nature [see Hawley v. Beech Aircraft Corp. (10th Cir. 1980) 625 F.2d 991, 993-994 ; Ashland Chemical Co. v. Provence (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 790, 793-794, 181 Cal. Rptr. 340] .

In determining choice of law issues, each issue of substantive law must be analyzed separately [Beech Aircraft Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 501, 518 , 132 Cal. Rptr. 541] . It is thus possible that the law of different states will apply to different issues within a single action [see Reyno v. Piper Aircraft Co. (3d Cir. 1980) 630 F.2d 149, 167 , rev'd on other grounds, 454 U.S. 235, 102 S. Ct. 252, 70 L. Ed. 2d 419 (1981) (applying California conflicts law)].

As a general rule, procedural issues are governed by the law of the forum regardless of whether another state's substantive law applies [Pfingsten v. Westenhaver (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 12, 19, 244 P.2d 395 (rules of evidence governed by forum law); Marquis v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co. (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 335, 341, 44 Cal. Rptr. 367] . Although older case law holds that the period of limitation is a procedural matter governed by the law of the forum [see Grant v. McAuliffe (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 859, 865, 264 P.2d 944] , it appears that later authority has analyzed conflicts of limitation periods under an interest analysis approach [see Hawley v. Beech Aircraft Corp. (10th Cir. 1980) 625 F.2d 991, 993-994 ; Ashland Chemical Co. v. Provence (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 790, 793-794, 181 Cal. Rptr. 340] .

Although the place of the wrong is no longer controlling for the purposes of choice of law, it is a relevant consideration, and with respect to regulating conduct within its borders, the place of the wrong is of prime importance [Hernandez v. Burger (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 795, 799-804, 162 Cal. Rptr. 564] .

The interest analysis approach may apply to conflicts with the laws of foreign nations as well as states [Hurtado v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 574, 580 fn. 2, 114 Cal. Rptr. 106, 522 P.2d 666] .

[4] General Aviation Revitalization Act of 1994

The General Aviation Revitalization Act of 1994 ("GARA") [Pub.L. 103-298, 108 Stat. 1552, codified as 49 U.S.C.S. § 40101 Note] became effective on August 17, 1994. GARA specifically preempts any state law to the extent that the law permits a civil action to be brought in a situation barred by GARA [GARA, § 2(d)]. GARA acts as a statute of repose to bar civil actions against the manufacturer of an aircraft, or of a new component, system, subassembly, or other part of an aircraft. GARA bar applies when the accident from which the claim arises occurred more than 18 years after the delivery of the aircraft, part or component. GARA bars suits for damages for death or injury involving a general aviation aircraft [GARA §§ 2(a), 3(3)]. The date on which the 18 year period begins depends on the circumstances under which the aircraft is placed in the stream of commerce and may be difficult to determine in practice. There are also a number of exceptions to the GARA bar. For example, GARA does not bar written warranty actions [GARA § 2(b)(4)], nor does it bar actions brought by people who are not on board the aircraft at the time of the accident [GARA § 2(b)(3)], or are passengers for the purpose of receiving medical or other emergency treatment [GARA § 2(b)(2)].

GARA applies only to aircraft holding an FAA type or airworthiness certificate, with a maximum seating capacity of less than 20 passengers per the aircraft's certification [GARA § 2(c)]. GARA does not apply to accidents that occur when the aircraft is engaged in scheduled passenger-carrying operations [GARA § 2(c)].

GARA does not apply to a situation in which a claimant pleads with specificity that the manufacturer knowingly made misrepresentations to, or concealed facts from, the FAA and the concealed material is related to the cause of the accident [GARA § 2(b)(1); see, e.g., Butler v. Bell Helicopter Textron, Inc. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1073, 1082-1087, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 762 (exception for concealing facts applied even though concealed facts concerned part failures on military aircraft not subject to jurisdiction of FAA)]. However, if a claim against the original aircraft manufacturer is otherwise barred, the limitations period of GARA may not be avoided merely through the artful pleading practice of labeling the claim as a failure to warn claim [Campbell v. Parker-Hannifin Corp. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1534, 1546-1547, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 202 (claim against aircraft manufacturer could not avoid statute of repose based on theory that manufacturer failed to warn of defective replacement parts)].

A successor manufacturer who takes over the duties and obligations of a product line from the original manufacturer is protected from suit after expiration of the 18-year period of repose to the same extent as the original manufacturer would be [Burroughs v. Precision Airmotive Corp. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 681, 692-695, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 124] .

Moreover, GARA preempts any state-law tort claim brought against a successor corporation that is based on a duty that is imposed under federal law, including a claim alleging a failure to warn [Burroughs v. Precision Airmotive Corp. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 681, 698-699, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 124] .

GARA, therefore, essentially precludes any product liability, crashworthiness, or similar suits against general aviation and helicopter manufacturers if the aircraft is more than 18 years old. However, a new limitations period may be triggered when component parts are replaced [see GARA § 2(a)], although any such period affects only an action against the manufacturer of the component part and does not extend to an action against the original aircraft manufacturer [Campbell v. Parker-Hannifin Corp. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1534, 1545-1546, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 202] . Moreover, the court of appeal has held that the replacement of less than all the components of a system does not trigger a new limitations period under GARA with respect to defects in those parts of the system that were not replaced [Hiser v. Bell Helicopter Textron, Inc. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 640, 651, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 249] . It does not appear, however, that GARA provides any bar against suing those in the chain of distribution of the product, and there is concern that GARA will evolve into a burden shifting statute.

There are a number of questions that await resolution in California with regard to GARA. For example, how does GARA interact with apportionment of fault under Proposition 51 (Civ. Code § 1431 et seq.)? Can a trier of fact jury compare the fault of the manufacturer as a tortfeasor? Should the jury be informed of the reason for a manufacturer's absence due to GARA? Can the manufacturer be an "empty chair" for the defense? These, and perhaps other issues, await resolution.

[5] Governmental Contractor Immunity

The "government contractor" defense is an affirmative defense arising in situations where the defendant, who must show that his or her actions were pursuant to U.S. governmental specifications or contract, has been sued for personal injuries and/or property damage. The test for the defense is set forth in Boyle v. United Technologies Corp., (1988) 487 U.S. 500, 108 S.Ct. 2510, 101 L.Ed. 2d. 442 .

In Boyle, a wrongful death action was brought by the co-pilot's estate, alleging that the co-pilot drowned because the emergency escape hatch of his helicopter opened outward and could not be opened against water pressure as the helicopter sank. The Supreme Court held that the procurement of equipment by the United States is an area of "uniquely federal interest," and that "a few areas, involving 'uniquely federal interest,' [citation omitted] are so committed by the Constitution and laws of the United States to federal control that state law is pre-empted and replaced, where necessary, by federal law of a content prescribed (absent explicit statutory directive) by the courts--so-called 'federal common law' " [Boyle v. United Technologies Corp. (1988) 487 U.S. 500, 504, 108 S.Ct. 2510, 101 L.Ed. 2d. 442] .

The Court set forth three conditions that the contractor must demonstrate to evoke the defense in cases involving the liability for design defects for military equipment (including aircraft). These are [Boyle v. United Technologies Corp. (1988) 487 U.S. 500, 512, 108 S.Ct. 2510, 101 L.Ed. 2d. 442] :

- The United States approved reasonably precise specifications;
- The equipment conformed to those specifications; and
- The supplier warned the United States about the dangers in the use of the equipment that were known to the supplier, but not to the United States.

The Court explained that the first two prongs of the test ensure that the defense is applicable because it involves an area in which the discretionary functions of the government would be frustrated absent the defense. The Court noted that the third prong was necessary to create a disincentive for manufacturers to withhold information [Boyle v. United Technologies Corp. (1988) 487 U.S. 500, 504, 108 S. Ct. 2510, 101 L. Ed. 2d. 442] . The application of the Boyle test is shown in Sundstrom v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1993 N.D. Cal.) 816 F. Supp. 587 , a wrongful death case alleging a design defect in the ejection seat of an F-16C fighter aircraft.

The government contract defense set forth in Boyle has been held to apply to design defects in nonmilitary equipment, as in a case in which a shipyard painter sued the paint manufacturer for injuries alleged to have occurred while painting Navy ships [see, e.g., Garner v. Santoro (1989 5th Cir.) 865 F.2d 629 ; see also Burgess v. Colorado Serum Co. Inc. (11th Cir. 1985) 772 F.2d 844 (involving injury to veterinarian due to accidental injection of cattle vaccine originally developed by government)]. In the Ninth Circuit, however, the Court of Appeals rejected the government contractor defense in a nonmilitary setting, another painting case involving a painter working on a civilian federal dam [Nielsen v. George Diamond Vogel Paint Co. (9th Cir. 1990) 892 F.2d 1450] . In Jackson v. Deft, Inc. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1305, 273 Cal. Rptr. 214 , yet another shipyard painting case, the court reversed a summary judgment granted on the government contractor defense and preserved state causes of action for failure-to-warn. In struggling with the breadth of application, the courts are mindful of the concepts of sovereign immunity articulated in the Federal Tort Claims Act and the application of the Feres doctrine [see § 16.15[2][b]].

Thus, in cases involving a military aircraft that was designed to government specifications, the defense will probably apply. However, if the aircraft was an original civil design, later purchased by the military, the defense may not apply, particularly if failure to provide adequate warning is at issue [Jackson v. Deft, Inc. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1305, 1318-1319, 273 Cal. Rptr. 214] . The same arguments can be made for aircraft components such as engines.

[6] Airline Deregulation Act

The Airline Deregulation Act of 1978 (ADA) provides limitations on state court actions. The preemption clause of ADA prohibits a state (except Alaska) or other political entity from enacting or enforcing a law or regulation relating to rates, routes, or services of an air carrier [49 U.S.C.S. § 41713].

There has been a growing body of law attempting to expand the scope of that preemption, and thereby limit state court causes of action. For example, a plaintiff's claim that airline personnel failed to stop or identify a passenger who opened an overhead bin, injuring plaintiff, was preempted by the ADA [Costa v. American Airlines (C.D. Cal. 1995) 892 F. Supp. 237] . The California Public Utilities Commission's regulation of the trucking side of an airfreight operation was deemed preempted as well [Federal Exp. Corp. v. California Public Utilities Com'n. (9th Cir. 1991) 936 F.2d 1075] .

On the other hand, there are cases that seem factually similar, but in which no preemption has been found. The Ninth Circuit has held that the ADA does not preempt claims dealing with the dispensing of food and drinks or flight attendant assistance, or passengers' commonplace injury claims [Charas v. Trans World Airlines, Inc. (9th Cir. 1998) 160 F.3d 1259, 1266] . The California court of appeal has relied on this Ninth Circuit precedent to hold that Congress did not intend to preempt state court negligence claims based on injury caused by falling luggage [Vinnick v. Delta Airlines, Inc. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 859, 868-869, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 471 ; see also Hodges v. Delta Airlines, Inc. (5th Cir. 1995) 44 F.3d 334, 340] . Another California court opinion has held that the ADA does not preempt the personal injury action of a passenger who was battered by another passenger while onboard a flight [Romano v. American Trans Air (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 1637, 1641, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 428] . Yet another has held that personal injury or discrimination actions based on the refusal to transport a passenger are not preempted [Aquino v. Asiana Airlines, Inc. (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 1272, 1285, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 223] . These cases seem to represent an emerging, prevailing view that the ADA does not preempt commonplace personal injury suits.

The United States Supreme Court has also distinguished contract claims from other claims arising under state law, on the grounds that contract actions merely enforce private obligations, in contrast to state-imposed obligations [American Airlines, Inc. v. Wolens (1995) 513 U.S. 219, 228-233, 115 S. Ct. 817, 130 L. Ed. 2d 715] . However, if the dispute is at its heart a contractual dispute, the ADA preempts an action to recover state law tort damages for the bad faith refusal to perform under the contract [Power Stds. Lab, Inc. v. Federal Express Corp. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1039, 1048-1049, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 202 (no recovery for airline carrier's bad faith delay in paying for damage to transported goods)].

[7] California State Statutes Relating to Aircraft Operation

In addition to the federal statutes regarding the operation of aircraft, the California State Aeronautics Act [Pub. Util. Code § 21001 et. seq.] establishes the basic structure for management of aircraft and aircraft accidents within California. In contrast to other states, California does not have an active aviation management program, and many of the elements of the Aeronautics Act are implemented on paper only.

Of particular interest to practitioners are the limits of liability for owners found in Pub. Util. Code § 21404.1 that limit the liability of an owner, bailee of an owner, or personal representative of a decedent not arising from a situation of master-servant or principal-agent to $15,000 per person, and $30,000 in one accident for personal injury and limit property damage to $5,000. Further, punitive damages are only allowed as a result of the personal conduct of the owner, bailee, or personal representative [Pub. Util. Code § 21404.1(b)].

[1] Proof of Negligence in General

General rules of negligence normally apply in aviation accident cases [Mittelman v. Seifert (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 51, 68, 94 Cal. Rptr. 654 ; see Pub. Util. Code § 21404]. The elements of actionable negligence are a legal duty to use due care, breach of that duty, and the breach as proximate or legal cause of the resulting injury [United States Liab. Ins. Co. v. Haidinger-Hayes, Inc. (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 586, 594, 83 Cal. Rptr. 418, 463 P.2d 770] . For a complete discussion of issues relating to proof of negligence, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

[2] Duty of Care

[a] Ordinary Care

Under California law generally, every person is liable for an injury occasioned to another by his or her lack of ordinary care or skill in the management of his or her property or person [Civ. Code § 1714(a); see generally discussion in Ch. 380, Negligence]. While ordinary care is normally defined as the care of a reasonable, prudent person under similar circumstances [Kopfinger v. Grand Central Pub. Market (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 852, 857, 37 Cal. Rptr. 65, 389 P.2d 529] , this definition is not adequate for most aviation cases. Air personnel (including pilots, mechanics, air traffic controllers, and other Federal Aviation Administration (F.A.A.) certificate holders) [14 C.F.R. § 61] have knowledge, skills, and experience beyond those of the "ordinary person," and are expected to exercise care commensurate with that special knowledge, skill, and experience [see Allred v. Bekins Wide World Van Services (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 984, 989, 120 Cal. Rptr. 312] . In essence they are experts, and as such are required to exercise the ordinary skill and competence of an ordinary person within their field of expertise [see Gagne v. Bertran (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 481, 489, 275 P.2d 15 (test hole driller); Ales v. Ryan (1936) 8 Cal. 2d 82, 107, 64 P.2d 409 (physicians as experts); Lindner v. Barlow, Davis, & Wood (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 660, 665, 27 Cal. Rptr. 101 (accountants as experts)]. While there are few cases, the minimum standard applied is generally that of compliance with Federal Air Regulations [Stevens v. Cessna Aircraft Co. (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 431, 434, 170 Cal. Rptr. 925 ; see also discussion in [3][b], below]. Violation of good operating practices as specified in the Aeronatical Information Manual (published by the U.S. Dept. of Transportaion, Federal Aviation Administration) can be evidence of a lack of due care, but does not give rise to a presumption of negligence [Diamond v. Grow (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 396, 401, 52 Cal. Rptr. 265] .

[b] Utmost Care--Common Carriers

Civ. Code § 2100 provides that common carriers owe their passengers the duty of utmost care. While this duty is substantially higher than ordinary care, it does not impose absolute liability, and the carrier is not an insurer of the passenger's safety [Simmons v. F.W. Woolworth Co. (1958) 163 Cal. App. 2d 709, 710, 329 P.2d 999] . The law applicable to common carriers generally is discussed in detail in Ch. 109, Carriers .

The test of a common carrier is whether there is a general undertaking to transport the public at large for hire [Samuelson v. Public Utilities Com. (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 722, 729-733, 227 P.2d 256 ; see Dziura v. California Aviation Service, Inc. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 191, 197, 84 Cal. Rptr. 191 (flight school not common carrier as matter of law under facts of case)]. In aviation cases, a major issue is often whether the operator is a common or private carrier. While scheduled airlines are clearly common carriers, the status of charter operators and air taxis is sometimes uncertain [see Roberts v. Trans World Airlines (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 344, 352, 37 Cal. Rptr. 291 ; see also Executive Aviation, Inc v. National Ins. Underwriters (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 799, 805, 94 Cal. Rptr. 347 (common carrier airline may become private carrier for certain purposes)]. When a carrier contracts to render a special service for a group of individuals, it becomes a private carrier [Hopkins v. Yellow Cab Co. (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 394, 398, 250 P.2d 330 (cab company common carrier as private carrier for purposes of transporting handicapped children to school under contract with school board); see discussion in Ch. 109, Carriers , General Introduction]. In Gradus v. Hanson Aviation, Inc. [Gradus v. Hanson Aviation, Inc. (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1047-1049, 205 Cal. Rptr. 211] , the court held that the defendant, who was engaged in the charter and lease business, was not a private carrier as a matter of law.

For discussion of the liability of a carrier under Civ. Code § 2101 relating to unsafe vehicles, see § 16.12[2].

[3] Breach of Duty of Care

[a] Generally

[i] Pilots

In the air, as on the ground, the duty of care is breached by failing to exercise the care of a reasonable person under the circumstances [Spaulding v. United States (9th Cir. 1972) 455 F.2d 222, 226 ; Sanbutch Properties, Inc. v. United States (N.D. Cal. 1972) 343 F. Supp. 611, 613-614 ; see discussion in [2][a], above]. Determining the proper standard of care requires almost constant reference to the Federal Air Regulations in the case of pilots and mechanics and to the various official manuals in the case of air traffic controllers, weather briefers, and other government employees. As discussed in [b], below, while the violation of a statute or regulation may give rise to a presumption of negligence, the violation of a manual directive or good operating practice is only evidence of negligence [Diamond v. Grow (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 396, 401, 52 Cal. Rptr. 265 ; McDaniel v. United States (N.D. Cal. 1982) 553 F. Supp. 910, 916] . A pilot may breach the duty of care by either operating a plane in a negligent manner [see Robart v. Brehmer (1949) 92 Cal. App. 2d 830, 831-833, 207 P.2d 898 (failing to avoid a collision at takeoff)], or by exceeding his or her capabilities as demonstrated by license limitations [Hall v. Osell (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 849, 851-852, 228 P.2d 293 (pilot violation of ceiling and cloud license requirements as cause of accident)].

A pilot has a duty to plan his or her flight and obtain all available information about it [14 C.F.R. § 91.103]. Breaches of this duty include failing to obtain weather forecasts, failing to properly compute the amount of fuel necessary, and failing to ascertain the expected performance of the aircraft given the conditions prevalent at the time. Aircraft performance varies depending on the load, the elevation of the airport, the runway surface (pavement or grass), the runway slope, the direction and velocity of the wind, and the temperature. The pilot can predict the performance by reference to the FAA approved pilot's operating handbook that must be aboard the aircraft at all times [14 C.F.R. §

Once airborne, the pilot has a duty to maintain vigilance so as to avoid colliding with other aircraft [14 C.F.R. § 91.113(b); Rudelson v. United States (9th Cir. 1979) 602 F.2d 1326, 1330 (no exception for blind spot under facts of case); see also Steering Committee v. U.S. (9th Cir. 1993) 6 F.3d 572, 576-580 (pilots were "vigilant" notwithstanding lack of evasive action before midair collision; "vigilance" of pilots under 14 C.F.R. § 91.113(b) denotes care that reasonably prudent pilot would exercise under circumstances; reasonably prudent pilot is required to search thoroughly and diligently for other aircraft, scanning sky with such frequency, and responding with such precision, as possible)]. Only when in instrument due to meteorological conditions (flying in clouds) under an instrument flight plan does this duty become exclusively that of the air traffic controllers, and if the weather permits visual contact with other aircraft, even on an instrument flight plan the pilot retains his or her duty of vigilance [14 C.F.R. § 91.113(b)]. A pilot is not required to see an aircraft that his or her own aircraft's structure makes impossible to see. For example, a helicopter pilot is not obliged to see an overtaking aircraft approaching from above and behind [Nakajima vs. United States (11th Cir. 1992) 965 F.2d 987] .

Pilots must operate within the privileges granted by their certificate and ratings. Among the most common accidents are thse that occur when pilots who lack an instrument rating continue into weather below visual minimums [see 14 C.F.R. § 91.155(a); Spaulding v. United States (9th Cir. 1972) 455 F.2d 222, 227] .

Pilots must avoid wake turbulence (the often violent turbulence caused by the passage of heavy aircraft) [see Sanbutch Properties, Inc. v. United States (N.D. Cal. 1972) 343 F. Supp. 611, 616] , and land obstructions [see McDaniel v. United States (N.D. Cal. 1982) 553 F. Supp. 910, 915-916] . As a general rule, when natural conditions such as wind or turbulence combine with pilot negligence to produce an accident, the pilot is liable [see Halbert v. Berlinger (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 6, 16-17, 273 P.2d 274] . In addition, the violation of any of the numerous provisions contained in the Aeronatical Information Manual may be evidence of pilot negligence [see McDaniel v. United States (N.D. Cal. 1982) 553 F. Supp. 910, 915-916] . In Mittelman v. Seifert (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 51, 68-81, 94 Cal. Rptr. 654 , the court found as a matter of law that a pilot's violation of a number of aerial flight rules constituted not only negligence, but willful misconduct.

[ii] Ground Personnel

Ground aviation personnel, such as air traffic controllers and aircraft mechanics, may be liable for an airplane accident [see Spaulding v. United States (9th Cir. 1972) 455 F.2d 222, 226] . For example, an air traffic controller may be liable for negligent failure to give all information in the controller's manual (FAA Order 7110.65), and in addition, for failure to give warnings not in the manuals when there is an immediate and extreme danger [see Spaulding v. United States (9th Cir. 1972) 455 F.2d 222, 226] . Air traffic controllers may also be liable for failing to warn pilots of other traffic [Mattschei v. United States (9th Cir. 1979) 600 F.2d 205, 208 ; but see Hamilton v. United States (9th Cir. 1974) 497 F.2d 370, 374-375 (air traffic controller as not negligent under facts of case)] and of wake turbulence [Lightenburger v. United States (9th Cir. 1972) 460 F.2d 391] . Flight service specialists may be liable for negligent delivery of current weather information or for miscommunication of a forecast [see Spaulding v. United States (9th Cir. 1972) 455 F.2d 222, 227] . For a further discussion of the liability of F.A.A. personnel, see § 16.15.

[iii] Manufacturers

The manufacturer of an airplane may be liable for negligence in design or manufacturing defect which is the proximate cause of an airplane accident [see Elsworth v. Beech Aircraft Corp. (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 540, 551, 208 Cal. Rptr. 874, 691 P.2d 630] . In the alternative, a manufacturer may be liable under a strict products liability theory [see McGee v. Cessna Aircraft Co. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 179, 187-191, 188 Cal. Rptr. 542 , discussed in § 16.12]. For discussion of theories under which manufacturers may be held liable for injuries caused by defective products, see Cotchett and Cartwright, California Products Liability Actions, Ch. 2 (Matthew Bender).

[b] Violation of Statutes, Regulations, and Official Manuals

[i] Statutes and Regulations

Under the doctrine of negligence per se, the failure of a person to exercise due care may be presumed if the person violated a statute, ordinance, or regulation [see Evid. Code § 669(a); for a complete discussion of the doctrine of negligence per se, see Ch. 380, Negligence]. In the context of aviation injuries, the applicable state statutes are found in the Aeronautics Act [see Pub. Util. Code § 21001 et seq.]. Violation of one of the provisions of the act may in an appropriate case give rise to a presumption of negligence [see Ayer v. Boyle (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 822, 828, 112 Cal. Rptr. 636 ; Evid. Code § 669(a)]. For example, Pub. Util. Code § 21407.1 makes it unlawful to operate an aircraft while under the influence of alcohol or drugs or any combination of alcohol and drugs, or to operate an aircraft while having an alcohol blood content of 0.04 percent or more. (This also a violation of 14 C.F.R. § 91.17.) Because flying while intoxicated violates a statute, a presumption of negligence arises [see Evid. Code § 660(a); for discussion relating to the violation of a statute as proof of negligence, see Ch. 380, Negligence]. Case law governing the award of punitive damages against intoxicated motor vehicle drivers, which may be useful by analogy, are discussed in Ch. 19, Alcoholic Beverages: Civil Liabilities .

In addition, the Federal Air Regulations [14 C.F.R. Part 1 et seq.] provide a comprehensive set of rules governing virtually every aspect of aviation. Aircraft [14 C.F.R. Parts 23-31], airports [14 C.F.R. § 151.1 et seq.], mechanics [14 C.F.R. §§ 65.71-65.95], pilots [14 C.F.R. Parts 61, 91], controllers [14 C.F.R. §§ 65.31-65.50], parachutists and parachute riggers [14 C.F.R. §§ 65.111-65.133, 105], and even unmanned rockets and balloons [14 C.F.R. Part 101] are all intensely regulated. The regulations are often very specific. For example, pilots are told what they must do before each flight [14 C.F.R. § 91.103], how much fuel they must have [14 C.F.R. §§ 91.151, 91.167], what altitudes to use [14 C.F.R. §§ 91.119, 91.159, 91.177, 91.179], who has the right of way [14 C.F.R. § 91.113], and what the speed limit is [14 C.F.R. § 91.117]. Additionally, pilots are required to maintain vigilance so as to see and avoid other aircraft [14 C.F.R. § 91.113(b); see Steering Committee v. U.S. (9th Cir. 1993) 6 F.3d 572, 576-580 ("vigilance" under regulation denotes care that reasonably prudent pilot would exercise under circumstances; reasonably prudent pilot is required to search thoroughly and diligently for other aircraft, scanning sky with such frequency, and responding with such precision, as possible)]. The violation of a Federal Air Regulations will normally entitle the plaintiff to a negligence per se instruction under Evid. Code § 669 [see Elsworth v. Beech Aircraft Corp. (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 540, 547-553, 208 Cal. Rptr. 874, 691 P.2d 630] .

The Federal Air Regulations were designed for the purpose of protecting those who fly in airplanes or those affected by their flight [see Elsworth v. Beech Aircraft Corp. (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 540, 551, 208 Cal. Rptr. 874, 691 P.2d 630] . The violation of these regulations may raise a presumption of negligence [see Rudelson v. United States (C.D. Cal. 1972) 431 F. Supp. 1101, 1107 , aff'd 602 F.2d 1326 (1979) ; Evid. Code § 669(a)]. However, not every violation of a Federal Air Regulation creates a presumption of negligence. The violation must have proximately caused the damage in question [Evid. Code § 669(a)(2)]. For example, unless a violation of the regulations requiring licensing and annual inspections of aircraft [see 14 C.F.R. §§ 47.3(b), 91.405; see also Pub. Util. Code § 21411] caused the accident, such a violation will not create a presumption of negligence [Ayer v. Boyle (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d. 822, 828, 112 Cal. Rptr. 636] . In addition, the damage must be of a type the regulation was designed to prevent [Evid. Code § 669(a)(3)], and the plaintiff must be within the class of persons for whose protection the regulation was adopted [Evid. Code § 669(a)(4)]. Furthermore, the fact that the regulations hold a pilot in command directly responsible for the safety of the flight [14 C.F.R. § 91.3(a)] does not mean that the pilot is strictly liable in the event of an accident [Foss v. United States (9th Cir. 1980) 623 F.2d 104, 106] .

The doctrine of negligence per se may also be used in products liability cases. Violation by a manufacturer of one of the safety regulations of the F.A.A. [see 14 C.F.R. §§ 21.1-35.47] may give rise to a presumption of negligence in the design or manufacture of the aircraft [see Elsworth v. Beech Aircraft Corp. (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 540, 547-551, 208 Cal. Rptr. 874, 691 P.2d 630 ; McGee v. Cessna Aircraft Co. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 179, 186-190, 188 Cal. Rptr. 542] .

The fact that the F.A.A. has certified the airplane design as safe does not preempt the state from presuming negligence based on a violation of the regulations [see Elsworth v. Beech Aircraft Corp. (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 540, 547-551, 208 Cal. Rptr. 874, 691 P.2d 630] .

[ii] Violation of Official Manuals

Government manuals give detailed instructions on how pilots, air traffic controllers, flight service specialists, and medical and flight examiners should perform their duties. Another type of manual that specifies standards of care, the breach of which can be negligence, is the operation or maintenance manual of a certificated facility. These manuals are individually prepared by flight schools, repair shops, air taxis, and airlines, subject to F.A.A. review and approval. The manuals set forth in great detail how the operation is to be run, what inspection and review procedures will be followed, and which employees will have what duties [see, e.g., 14 C.F.R. §§ 135.21-135.23]. Failure of the certificate holder to comply with its own manual is a violation of Federal Air Regulations [14 C.F.R § 135.5].

Technically, the manuals are not regulations and thus cannot form the basis for presuming negligence [Diamond v. Grow (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 396, 401, 52 Cal. Rptr. 265] . Violation of a manual directive or good operating practice is only evidence of negligence [Diamond v. Grow (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 396, 401, 52 Cal. Rptr. 265 ; McDaniel v. United States (N.D. Cal. 1982) 553 F. Supp. 910, 916] . For example, violation of good operating practices as specified in the Aeronatical Information Manual can be evidence of a lack of due care by a pilot, but does not give rise to a presumption of negligence [Diamond v. Grow (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 396, 401, 52 Cal. Rptr. 265] .

[c] Effect of Administrative Actions

Federal Air Regulations are enforced by administrative actions under 49 U.S.C.S. § 44709. The F.A.A. can seek suspension or revocation of a certificate or a civil penalty. The aviator may appeal to the National Transportation Safety Board (N.T.S.B.) and have the matter heard by an N.T.S.B. administrative law judge with a right of appeal to the full N.T.S.B. under 49 U.S.C.S. § 1133(1) [see 49 C.F.R. Part 821].

Because it is very difficult to have an accident without violating the Federal Air Regulations, many cases (when the pilot survives) will result in a certificate action by the F.A.A. Counsel on both sides should be aware of such cases. No California appellate decision has ever held that a certificate action by the F.A.A. is sufficiently judicial in nature to constitute a basis for collateral estoppel on the issue of the violation in a subsequent civil trial [see People v. Sims (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 468, 477-490, 186 Cal. Rptr. 77, 651 P.2d 321 (collateral estoppel effect of administrative hearings in general)]. However, one federal court of appeals, applying Indiana law, has held that collateral estoppel may apply in such a situation [Bowen v. United States (7th Cir. 1978) 570 F.2d 1311, 1322-1323] . No other court has followed Bowen.

In any event, the hearings are useful both as a source of prior testimony and for discovery of percipient and expert witnesses. Live testimony of current N.T.S.B. officials in civil actions is prohibited [see 49 C.F.R. § 849.5], although their testimony may be made available through depositions or written interrogatories [see Loftleidir Icelandic Airlines, Inc. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 83, 90-95, 204 Cal. Rptr. 358] . In addition, the testimony of former N.T.S.B officials may be limited [see Loftleidir Icelandic Airlines, Inc. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 83, 90-95, 204 Cal. Rptr. 358] .

Administrative hearings before the N.T.S.B. can provide useful interpretation of Federal Air Regulations and insight into the meaning of words of art used in the Regulations. A searchable database of N.T.S.B. decisions rendered since 1992 may be found on the N.T.S.B. website at http://www.ntsb.gov/. Older cases may be found in bound volumes available in many law libraries. These older volumes are also available for purchase from the U.S. Department of Commerce. The FAA also has adminstrative procedures to enforce civil penalties [14 C.F.R. § 13.201 et seq.]; these cases are harder to obtain but are being published by Clark Boardman Callaghan.

[d] Expert Witnesses

Although there are no cases that expressly require expert testimony to establish a breach of the duty of care of aviation personnel, as a practical matter such a witness is required in all but the simplest case. In cases in which the determination of whether or not an accident was the result of negligence must be based on technical understanding beyond the common knowledge among laypersons, expert testimony may be necessary to a finding of fault [cf. Tomei v. Henning (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 319, 322, 62 Cal. Rptr. 9, 431 P.2d 633 (requiring expert testimony to to establish presumption of negligence in medical malpractice case)].

The testimony of experts in aviation accident cases is competent evidence even though it embraces their opinions on the ultimate facts in issue [Mittelman v. Seifert (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 51, 69, 94 Cal. Rptr. 654] . An opinion based on speculation or even the law of probabilities is entitled to no weight, however, against direct evidence [Roberts v. Trans World Airlines (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 344, 354, 37 Cal. Rptr. 291] .

An expert is entitled to base an opinion on matter ordinarily relied on by such experts whether or not the matter is admissible [Buckwalter v. Airline Training Center (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 547, 553-554, 184 Cal. Rptr. 659] . If there is no direct evidence as to the matter in issue, experts are granted greater latitude to rely on circumstantial evidence [Buckwalter v. Airline Training Center (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 547, 553-554, 184 Cal. Rptr. 659 (holding that due to lack of more direct evidence, expert should have been allowed to rely on pilot's training records in constructing probable flight path of airplane)].

[4] Proximate Cause

Recovery for negligence is available only if the act of the defendant was the proximate cause of the injuries to plaintiff [see Rudelson v. UnitedStates (C.D. Cal. 1972) 431 F. Supp. 1101, 1107 , aff'd 602 F.2d 1326 (1979)] . Generally, proximate cause is found when a natural and continuous sequence produces the injury, or is a substantial factor in producing the injury, and without which the injury would not have occured [see Rudelson v. United States (C.D. Cal. 1972) 431 F. Supp. 1101, 1107 , aff'd 602 F.2d 1326 (1979)] . For discussion of proximate cause, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

Aircraft accidents usually have more than one cause, and usually more than one party is at fault. It thus is often found that actions of a number of different parties each constituted a proximate cause of a collision. For example, in Rudelson v. United States (C.D. Cal. 1972) 431 F. Supp. 1101 , aff'd 602 F.2d 1326 (1979) , a case involving a mid-air collision of two airplanes, the court held that the negligence of both pilots as well as that of the air traffic controller were proximate causes of the accident [see Rudelson v. United States (C.D. Cal. 1972) 431 F. Supp. 1101, 1107-1109 , aff'd 602 F.2d 1326 (1979) ; see also USAir Inc. v. U.S. Dept. of Navy (9th Cir. 1994) 14 F.3d 1410, 1413 (flight attendant's negligence in opening overhead compartment, allowing unstable luggage to fall out, was not superseding cause, under California law, to passenger's negligence in storing luggage in a precarious, unstable position; each person's negligence was concurrent or contributing cause)]. In such cases, principles of comparative negligence and indemnity apply. Comparative negligence is discussed in [6], below, and in Ch. 380, Negligence. For general discussion of comparative indemnity, see Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution .

[5] Res Ipsa Loquitur

The doctrine of res ipsa loquitur has been codified as a presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence [see Evid. Code § 646]. This doctrine, which is discussed in detail in Ch. 380, Negligence , is applicable when the accident is of such a nature that it can be said, in light of past experience, that the accident probably was the result of negligence by someone and that the defendant is probably the one responsible [Newing v. Cheatham (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 351, 359, 124 Cal. Rptr. 193, 540 P.2d 33] .

The doctrine of res ipsa loquitur can be very helpful to plaintiff in establishing fault in cases of aviation accidents. The leading case is Newing v. Cheatham [Newing v. Cheatham (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 351, 124 Cal. Rptr. 193, 540 P.2d 33 ; see also Kohler v. Aspen Airways, Inc. (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 1193, 1198-1202, 214 Cal. Rptr. 720 (listing numerous res ipsa loquitur cases involving aviation accidents)], in which the aircraft departed in clear weather with the pilot and three passengers aboard. The wreck of the plane was later found in the mountains of Mexico with all occupants deceased. There was no solid evidence of the cause of the plane crash. The front seat occupants of the plane smelled of alcohol, however, and the local authorities who investigated the wreckage believed that the aircraft had run out of fuel [Newing v. Cheatham (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 351, 355-358, 124 Cal. Rptr. 193, 540 P.2d 33] . Suit was brought by the heirs of the passengers, claiming pilot negligence. At trial, there was considerable dispute over the reliability of the investigation, but the court entered a directed verdict in favor of the plaintiff on the issue of liability based on the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur [Newing v. Cheatham (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 351, 355-358, 124 Cal. Rptr. 193, 540 P.2d 33] .

The California Supreme Court upheld the action of the trial court. It stated that under the facts surrounding the crash, it seemed reasonably clear that the accident would not have taken place in the absence of negligence [Newing v. Cheatham (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 351, 361, 124 Cal. Rptr. 193, 540 P.2d 33] . The Court then applied the traditional three-part test necessary to establish the application of the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur. Under this test, the plaintiff must establish (1) that the accident is of a type that ordinarily does not occur in the absence of negligence, (2) that the accident must be caused by an instrument or agency in the exclusive control of the defendant, and (3) that the accident must not have been due to any voluntary action or contribution on the part of the plaintiff [Newing v. Cheatham (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 351, 359, 124 Cal. Rptr. 193, 540 P.2d 33 ; for discussion of the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur, see Ch. 380, Negligence]. After applying this test to the facts of the case, the Court held that the trial court had properly granted a directed verdict on the issue of negligence [Newing v. Cheatham (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 351, 359-364, 124 Cal. Rptr. 193, 540 P.2d 33] . In reaching this conclusion, the Court noted that there was no evidence of any external cause such as weather or a midair collision and that the defendant owner-pilot would bear responsibility for any mechanical defect [Newing v. Cheatham (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 351, 361-363, 124 Cal. Rptr. 193, 540 P.2d 33] .

The result of Newing is that the defendant pilot (or his or her legal representative) will, as a practical matter, normally have to carry the burden of producing evidence that the cause of the accident was other than the pilot's negligence.

The doctrine of res ipsa loquitur does not apply, however, when the defendant does not have exclusive control of the airplane [see Parker v. James Granger, Inc. (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 668, 674-676, 52 P.2d 226 (plane equipped with dual controls)]. The application of the doctrine to mid-air collisions is also somewhat uncertain. In Gotcher v. Metcalf (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 96, 102-104, 85 Cal. Rptr. 566 , a divided court held that res ipsa loquitur could not be applied to a mid-air collision in which the plaintiff sued the party responsible for one of the planes, but not the other. The court's holding was limited, however, to situations in which it was equally probable that the person responsible for the other plane, rather than the defendant, was at fault in causing the accident [see Gotcher v. Metcalf (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 96, 102-104, 85 Cal. Rptr. 566] . The dissent argued that the doctrine should apply when the evidence warrants a finding by the jury that it was more probable than not that the collision could have been avoided by the defendant, regardless of the fault of the other pilot [see Gotcher v. Metcalf (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 96, 107-111, 85 Cal. Rptr. 566 (Gargano, J., dissenting)]. When the defendant is a common carrier, however, the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur applies to all mid-air collisions [see Irwin v. Pacific Southwest Airlines (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 709, 715-716, 184 Cal. Rptr. 228 ; see also Dieterle v. Yellow Cab Co. (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d 97, 100-101, 93 P.2d 171 (motor vehicle accident)]. This is apparently because a common air carrier, unlike a private pilot, is under a duty to exercise the utmost care to avoid collisions [see Irwin v. Pacific Southwest Airlines (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 709, 715-716, 184 Cal. Rptr. 228 ; see also discussion in § 16.11[2] [b]; for general discussion of duties of common carriers, see Ch. 109, Carriers]. The doctrine of res ipsa loquitur also dos not normally apply in aviation cases in which the accident was caused by air turbulence [Kohler v. Aspen Airways, Inc. (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 1193, 1198-1202, 214 Cal. Rptr. 720] .

When res ipsa loquitur applies, a defendant has alternative methods by which to rebut the presumption of negligence. The first method is by offering a satisfactory explanation of the accident, which shows that it was caused by a reason other than his or her negligence [Roberts v. Trans World Airlines (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 344, 352, 37 Cal. Rptr. 291] . Under this method, the presumption of negligence is not rebutted by an explanation based on theory or conjecture. In order to overcome the presumption of negligence, an explanation must offer a definite cause for the accident [Roberts v. Trans World Airlines (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 344, 352-354, 37 Cal. Rptr. 291 (testimony by expert witness that accident probably was caused by "wind shear" was not sufficient to rebut presumption of negligence)]. The second method is by showing such care in all respects that it necessarily follows that the accident could not have happened from want of care, but must have been due to some unpreventable cause [Roberts v. Trans World Airlines (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 344, 352, 37 Cal. Rptr. 291] . The presumption of negligence may be rebutted under this method by showing that the defendant complied in all respects with reasonable safety procedures [Roberts v. Trans World Airlines (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 344, 352-354, 37 Cal. Rptr. 291] .

[6] Negligent Entrustment

There are few cases on the issue of negligent entrustment of aircraft. Under the doctrine of negligent entrustment, an aircraft owner may be liable if he or she provides an aircraft to a person with knowledge (or reason to know) that the person is incompetent to operate it [see White v. Inbound Aviation (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 910, 920, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 71 ; Johnson v. Central Aviation Corp. (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 102, 111-112, 229 P.2d 114 ; see also Mettelka v. Superior Court (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1245, 1247-1250, 219 Cal. Rptr. 697 (co-owner of automobile may be liable for negligent entrustment of automobile to other owner); Perez v. G. & W. Chevrolet, Inc. (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 766, 768, 79 Cal. Rptr. 287 (negligent entrustment of automobile); for a discussion of negligent entrustment of motor vehicles, see Ch. 82, Automobiles: Causes of Action, § 82.11]. This is to be contrasted with the vicarious liability of an owner for the negligent acts of a pilot, under which the owner is liable even if he or she was not personally negligent [see White v. Inbound Aviation (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 910, 930-931, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 71 ; Nachsin v. De La Bretonne (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 637, 639-640, 95 Cal. Rptr. 227 ; Pub. Util. Code §§ 21404, 21404.1. see discussion in § 16.11[8]; see also Ch. 427, Principal and Agent , for discussion of vicarious liability in general].

As a general rule, liability under a theory of negligent entrustment must be based on evidence that the owner knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known, that the operator was incompetent to operate the vehicle or craft in question [see Perez v. G. & W. Chevrolet, Inc. (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 766, 768, 79 Cal. Rptr. 287 (negligent entrustment of automobile)]. In aviation, documentary proof of incompetency, on which liability for negligent entrustment may be based, is complicated. A pilot certificate is issued for life unless suspended or revoked [14 C.F.R. § 61.19]. However, before carrying passengers, a pilot must meet certain recent proficiency requirements including three landings and takeoffs within the last 90 days in the same category and class of aircraft [14 C.F.R. § 61.57(a)]. Likewise, if the flight is to be at night, the three landings and takeoffs must be accomplished at night [14 C.F.R. § 61.57(b)]. There are additional requirements for instrument flying, complex aircraft, or high performance aircraft [14 C.F.R. §§ 61.31(e), (f), 61.57(c), (d)]. Thus, it appears that the owner of an aircraft who lends or rents his or her aircraft to another must at least review the pilot's certificate and log book to see that the entries are consistent with the mission proposed, although no cases in California establish such a rule.

A pilot is not necessarily "competent" to fly an aircraft merely because he or she was licensed to fly an aircraft of that type [White v. Inbound Aviation (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 910, 921, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 71] . The purpose or destination of the flight may be considered when determining competency. In one case, for example, an aircraft rental company was liable for negligent entrustment of an aircraft, although the pilot was licensed and legally qualified to fly the aircraft. Liability was based on evidence that the rental company knew that the young, inexperienced pilot would be flying into a challenging and dangerous high altitude airport surrounded by mountains, although, contrary to industry practice, the pilot had not been tested on high altitude takeoffs and landings [White v. Inbound Aviation (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 910, 921-923, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 71] .

The owner may also be required to review the potential user's medical certificate. While the pilot's certificate need not be renewed, all pilots must take and pass a medical examination at intervals dependent upon the grade certificate and the type of operation conducted. Private pilots, who may not conduct commercial operations, must take and pass a third class medical examination every five years, or every two years after reaching the age of 40 [14 C.F.R. §§ 61.3(c)(1), 61.23(a)(3)(i), (d)(3)]. Commercial pilots must take and pass a more rigorous second class medical examination every year [14 C.F.R. § 61.23(d)(2)(i)]. Airline transport pilots must take and pass a first class medical examination every 12 months, or every six months if the pilot was 40 or older on the date of examination for the most recent medical certificate [14 C.F.R. § 61.23(a)(1), (d)(1)]. Holders of advanced ratings may exercise the privileges of lower ratings on expired medical certificates so long as the period since expiration does not exceed the normal period of expiration for the certificate they would otherwise require for the privileges being exercised [see 14 C.F.R. § 61.23]. Thus, an airline captain holding an airline transport pilot certificate and a first class medical certificate, may fly as a private pilot for two years after taking his or her first class medical exam, even though the first class certificate would expire after six months.

[7] Comparative Fault

An aircraft accident seldom has one cause, but is most frequently the result of a series of problems that ultimately overcome the capability of the pilot to avoid the trouble. For this reason, aviation cases typically have numerous defendants and the jury must apportion fault among them. There are no special rules for aviation cases. General principles of comparative fault and comparative indemnity apply [see Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696 ; American Motorcycle Assn. v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899 ; Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 829, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226 , discussed in Ch. 380, Negligence]. In addition, under the rule of Daly v. General Motors Corp. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 725, 734-738, 144 Cal. Rptr. 380, 575 P.2d 1162 , liability is apportioned in cases of strict products liability. In some cases, liability must be apportioned between the manufacturer of a defective product and a negligent pilot or other party. In other cases, apportionment of liability requires a comparison between the negligence of pilots, who are each charged with responsibility for the safety of their flight by Federal Air Regulations [14 C.F.R. § 91.3(a)] and others who may provide information, guidance, or instruction to the pilot such as air traffic controllers [Spaulding v. United States (9th Cir. 1972) 455 F.2d 222, 226-228] .

[8] Vicarious Liability of Aircraft Owners

[a] Aircraft Maintenance--Nondelegable Duties

An unanswered question in California is whether or not the doctrine of vicarious liability arising from nondelegable duties applies to aircraft. The doctrine has been applied most frequently to automobile brake failure cases [see Maloney v. Rath (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 442, 446, 71 Cal. Rptr 897, 445 P.2d 513 ; Clark v. Dziabas (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 449, 451, 71 Cal. Rptr. 901, 445 P.2d 517] . As a general rule, a person who employs an independent contractor is not vicariously liable for the torts of the contractor [see Anderson v. Chancellor Western Oil Dev. Corp. (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 235, 239, 125 Cal. Rptr. 640 ; see also discussion in Ch. 427, Principal and Agent]. The doctrine of vicarious liability arising from nondelegable duties is an exception to this rule. In essence, it provides that one who carries on an activity that threatens serious injury unless the instrumentality is carefully maintained is vicariously liable for the negligence of the independent contractor who actually did the maintenance [Rest. Torts 2d §§ 423, 424; Maloney v. Rath (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 442, 447-448, 71 Cal. Rptr. 897, 445 P.2d 513] .

While there is no case that applies the doctrine to aviation, the doctrine of nondelegable duties may someday be applied to the negligent maintenance of an aircraft by an independent contractor of the owner. Flying is an activity in which negligent maintenance can easily result in serious or fatal injuries, and Federal Air Regulations state, in part, that the owner or operator of an aircraft is primarily responsible for maintaining that aircraft in an airworthy condition [14 C.F.R. § 91.403(a)]. It should be noted, however, that aircraft mechanics must be licensed and are subject to strict regulatory control in the performance of their work. Public safety therefore may not require the same degree of legal protection from certificated aircraft mechanics as it does from automobile mechanics, who are not generally subject to such rigid regulatory control.

[b] Statutory Vicarious Liability for Negligent for Wrongful Act of Pilot

Pub. Util. Code § 21404 provides, in part, that the owner of an aircraft is liable and responsible for death or injury to person or property resulting from a negligent or wrongful act or omission in the operation of the aircraft, whether in the business of the owner or otherwise, by any person using or operating the aircraft with the express or implied permission of the owner [Pub. Util. Code § 21404]. This statute abrogates the common law rule that held that the negligence of a permissive user of a vehicle could not be imputed to an owner [see, e.g., Boyd v. White (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 641, 647-648, 276 P.2d 92] .

The Code limits the vicarious liability of aircraft owners under Pub. Util. Code § 21404 to $15,000 for death of or injury to one person in any one accident, $30,000 for death of or injury to more than one person in any one accident, and $5,000 for property damage in any one accident [Pub. Util. Code § 21404.1(a)]. The owner is not liable under the statute for punitive damages imposed on the operator of the aircraft [Pub. Util. Code § 21404.1(b)]. However, the owner is not immune from liability for punitive damages that are imposed on the owner for his or her own wrongful conduct [Pub. Util. Code § 21404.1(b)]. The Aircraft Financial Responsibility Act [Pub. Util. Code §§ 24230-24410] mandates insurance coverage, within limits, and requires that owners provide to renters a certificate that at least discloses the amount of insurance, if any, available [Pub. Util. Code § 24362]. Insurance is not required for claims by passengers. The failure of the owner to provide such a certificate to a renter does not, however, create a cause of action against the owner in favor of the passengers of the person who rented the airplane (or their heirs) [Franks v. Amelia Reid Aviation (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1207, 1209-1210, 210 Cal. Rptr. 127] .

The limit on the vicarious liability of aircraft owners set forth in Pub. Util. Code § 21404.1 applies only when the owner bears no independent responsibility for the accident, other than mere ownership of the aircraft. These limits do not apply if the owner is independently negligent, either through maintenance, entrustment, or other affirmative act or omission [see Pub. Util. Code §§ 21404.1, 21405; Gradus v. Hanson Aviation, Inc. (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1047-1049, 205 Cal. Rptr. 211 (owner liable for failure to inspect helicopter); see also White v. Inbound Aviation (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 910, 930-931, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 71 (limits applied to owner's vicarious liability for pilot's negligence, but not to owner's liability for damages apportioned to negligent entrustment by aircraft rental company)]. In addition, the limits do not apply when the owner is vicariously liable for the acts of another under the common law doctrine of respondeat superior [see Pub. Util. Code § 21404.1(a)]. For a full discussion of vicarious liability, see Ch. 427, Principal and Agent . For discussion of vicarious liability under a similarly worded statute that applies to owners of motor vehicles [see Veh. Code § 17150], see Ch. 82, Automobiles: Causes of Action, § 82.16.

While California courts have held that ownership of an aircraft is determined by the California statutes and the common law governing the ownership of chattels and not by the federal registry [Cummins v. Sky Cruisers, Inc. (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 983, 986-988, 130 Cal. Rptr. 897] , the United States Supreme Court has held that the contents of the federal registry govern, at least when the rights of innocent third party purchasers are at stake [see Philko Aviation, Inc. v. Shacket (1982) 462 U.S. 406, 103 S. Ct. 2476, 76 L. Ed. 2d 678, 681-685] . How this will affect California vicarious liability where ownership is disputed is unclear.

[9] Property Damage Claims Against Manufacturers of Damaged Product

Claims for property damage, made against the manufacturer of the damaged product, often arise in aircraft cases. The basic rule in California is that such claims are available [Seely v. White Motor Co. (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 9, 19, 45 Cal. Rptr. 17, 403 P.2d 145 ; see also Aris Helicopters, Ltd. v. Allison Gas Turbine (9th Cir 1991) 932 F.2d 825, 827-828 (summarizing California law on this issue)].

Manufacturers have attempted to eliminate such claims by requiring waivers of claims for negligence in the purchase contracts. So long as they are not ambiguous, such clauses will be upheld [Philippine Airlines Inc. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 234, 234 Cal. Rptr. 423] . Similarly, liability for strict product liability can be disclaimed in a commercial setting [Appalachian Ins. Co. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1, 262 Cal. Rptr. 716] . However, the scope of negligence will be narrowly construed. For example, in Continental Airlines v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 388, 264 Cal. Rptr. 779 , the court rejected the manufacturer's attempt to avoid liability following a landing gear failure on a DC-10 following a runway over-run despite a clause in the purchase contract waiving all claims for negligence. Continental had sued for fraud and negligent misrepresentation citing sales brochures touting the crash worthiness of the gear. The court held that negligent misrepresentation is a form of fraud, and, relying on Civ. Code § 1668, voided that portion of the contract on the grounds that a contract can not exempt a party from a claim for fraud.

[9A] Notification Concerning Damage Likely to Affect Airworthiness

Any person who causes damage that may reasonably be expected to affect the airworthiness of an aircraft must either [Pub. Util. Code § 24450]:

- Locate and notify the owner or person in charge of the aircraft of his or her name and address, and, on request, present his or her driver's license or pilot's license for identification purposes; or

- Leave a written notice giving the person's name, address, and telephone number, and a statement of the circumstances of the damage, in a conspicuous place on the aircraft, and without unnecessary delay notify the nearest FAA safety representative.

Violation of the notification requirement is a misdemeanor, punishable by imprisonment of up to six months, or a fine of up to $1,000, or both [Pub. Util. Code § 24451].

[10] Death on the High Seas Act

Occassionally aircraft crash in the ocean, more than 3 miles from shore. Such cases are controlled by the Death on the High Seas Act [46 U.S.C.S. § 30301 et seq.], which has far different, and far more restricted, recoverable damages than California's wrongful death statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.40 et seq.]. For discussion of the Act, see Ch. 100, Boats and Boating .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

2-16 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 16.12

AUTHOR: By Peter Axelrod, J.D. and George M. Moore, J.D.

§ 16.12 Strict Liability

[1] International Flights

Under the Warsaw Convention and the Montreal Agreement [see discussion in § 16.17], an airline on an international flight may be held liable for an injury to a passenger even though the airline was in no way negligent [Day v. Trans World Airlines (2d Cir. 1975) 528 F.2d 31, 33 ; see Air France v. Saks (1985) 470 U.S. 392, 105 S. Ct. 1338, 84 L. Ed. 2d 289, 300-302 (stating that airline liability is absolute in sense that airline cannot defend claim on ground that it took all necessary measures to avoid injury)]. Airlines on domestic flights, while held to the standard of utmost care, are not absolutely liable for passenger safety [Roberts v. Trans World Airlines (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 344, 352, 37 Cal. Rptr. 291 ; see discussion in § 16.11[2][b]].

Whether a passenger is on an international flight or a domestic flight is determined by the ticketing for the flight, not the points of takeoff and landing for the specific flight on which the accident occurs. For a "domestic" flight between New York and San Francisco, some of the passengers may be domestic (non-Warsaw) and other passengers may be on tickets covered by the Warsaw Convention. For example, if one passenger was flying only from New York to San Francisco, their flight would clearly be domestic and therefore the Warsaw Convention would not apply. If another passenger's ticket was from London to San Francisco (from the territory of one Warsaw signatory to another) and the New York to San Francisco flight was a segment of the trip, then they would be on an international flight covered by the Warsaw Convention. Therefore, two passengers on the same flight may have entirely different abilities to bring a strict liability claim against the airline operating the aircraft.

[2] Common Carrier Liability for Unsafe Vehicles Under Civil Code Section 2101

Civ. Code § 2101, when read literally, appears to hold common carriers absolutely liable for the safety of the vehicle used to provide carriage. The statute provides that a common carrier is bound to provide vehicles which are safe and fit for the purposes to which they are put, and is not excused for default in this respect by any degree of care [Civ. Code § 2101; see discussion in Ch. 109, Carriers].

Early cases suggested that this is not a standard of absolute liability. In 1891, the California Supreme Court, in a case involving a railroad, held that Civ. Code § 2101 enjoins the carrier to provide safe and fit vehicles, and declares that it is not excused for default in this respect by any degree of care; the section must not receive a construction so absolute as to practically prohibit railroad passenger traffic, or such useful and common convenience as a mixed accommodation train [Fisher v. Southern Pacific Railroad Co. (1891) 89 Cal. 399, 406, 26 P. 894] . Since then several courts have refused to hold common carriers absolutely liable for safety defects [see, e.g., Greyhound Lines, Inc. v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 356, 358-360, 83 Cal. Rptr. 343] , but none has confronted the statutory issue squarely [see Nelson v. American Airlines, Inc. (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 742, 748, 70 Cal. Rptr. 33] . At this point, the courts have held it is not error to refuse to instruct on Civ. Code § 2101 [Powell v. Dell-Air Aviation, Inc. (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 451, 456-458, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3] , nor to instruct on both Civ. Code §§ 2100 (common carrier's duty of utmost care) and 2101 despite the potential conflict between the sections [see Gradus v. Hanson Aviation, Inc. (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1049-1050, 205 Cal. Rptr. 211] , but the issue is far from settled and should not be overlooked in cases involving airlines or other common carriers.

In dealing with an accident, the attorney should be aware of the type of operation being conducted. Many helicopter, corporate, or other light aircraft operations are performed for hire under 14 C.F.R. Part 135. Part 135 covers Air Taxi operations, and these are "common carrier" operations as defined by Advisory Circular 120-12A [Woolsey v. NTSB (5th Cir. 1993) 993 F.2d 516] .

[3] Ultrahazardous Activities

Aviation is not currently deemed to be an ultrahazardous activity under California law, and it is thus not subject to strict liability on that basis [Boyd v. White (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 641, 653-655, 276 P.2d 92 ; Johnson v. Central Aviation Corp. (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 102, 111, 229 P.2d 114 ; see Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Coleman (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 829, 830-831 , 310 P.2d 504] . The issue has been consistently raised, however, with respect to certain aviation operations, most prominently crop dusting. Several other jurisdictions have held crop dusting to be an ultrahazardous activity under Restatement (Second) of Torts § 520 [see Loe v. Lenhardt (1961) 227 Or. 242, 362 P.2d 312, 318 ; Langan v. Valicopters, Inc. (1977) 88 Wash. 2d 855, 567 P.2d 218, 223 ; see also Ch. 380, Negligence].

There is no California case that has held crop dusting to be an ultrahazardous activity. In SKF Farms v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 902, 905-906, 200 Cal. Rptr. 497 , the court declined to sustain a demurrer to a complaint that raised an ultrahazardous activity cause of action, stating that the trial court failed to fully apply the factual analysis required by Restatement (Second) of Torts § 520. The court also specifically refused to hold that crop dusting is ultrahazardous as a matter of law [SKF Farms v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 902, 906 n.2, 200 Cal. Rptr. 497] . It is therefore possible that a court will find crop dusting to be ultrahazardous if the facts meet the test of the Restatement [see Restatement (Second) of Torts § 520].

For further discussion of strict liability for ultrahazardous activities, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

[4] Manufacturer of Defective Product

The vast majority of aviation cases involve at least the claim that the accident was caused by a defect in a product, either the aircraft itself or some component part thereof. However, as noted above, the General Aviation Revitalization Act of 1994 [see § 16.10[4]], and the government contractor defense [see § 16.10[5]], may limit the ability to sue the manufacturer. In addition, while the Federal Aviation Act [see 49 U.S.C.S. § 40101 et seq.] itself contains no express preemption clause, it may impliedly preempt a products liability action against a manufacturer if the specific part or component alleged to be defective is the subject of pervasive federal regulation [Martin ex rel. Heckman v. Midwest Exp. Holdings (9th Cir. 2009) 555 F.3d 806, 811-812 (action based on defective airstairs not preempted when stairs not pervasively regulated)].

For plaintiffs whose recovery against the operator is limited by the Warsaw Convention, claims of product defect or negligent design by the manufacturer or component supplier may be plaintiff's only hope for adequate compensation. If a defective product is a substantial factor in causing the harm to the plaintiff, the manufacturer may be liable under a theory of strict products liability [see McGee v. Cessna Aircraft Co. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 179, 190-191, 188 Cal. Rptr. 542 (providing comprehensive review of aircraft crashworthiness cases)]. The number of potential defendants in this regard can be large because general aviation aircraft are made up of components manufactured by different companies. For example, air frame manufacturers typically do not manufacture engines and vice versa. Likewise, the various electronic instruments are generally each manufactured by separate companies. For a complete discussion of products liability law, see Cotchett and Cartwright, California Products Liability Actions (Matthew Bender).

Aviation product cases often emphasize crashworthiness, that is, the ability of an aircraft to withstand some of the foreseeable consequences of a crash. Under a crashworthiness theory, manufacturers have been held liable for failing to provide aircraft which protect the occupants in survivable accidents. The cases typically involve inadequate seatbelts or seat structures, flammable or hazardous interior materials, and unsafe fuel systems [see McGee v. Cessna Aircraft Co. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 179, 184-190, 188 Cal. Rptr. 542 (providing comprehensive review of aircraft crashworthiness cases)].

In addition to the classic concept of products, the charts and navigational materials prepared for pilots subject their publishers to strict products liability. In Brocklesby v. U.S. (9th Cir. 1985) 767 F.2d 1288 , the Ninth Circuit ruled that an aircraft navigation chart, printed by a private publisher based on government data, was a "product" within the meaning of strict product liability in California [Brocklesby v. U.S. (9th Cir. 1985) 767 F.2d 1288 ; accord, Fluor Corp. v. Jeppesen & Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 468, 216 Cal.Rptr. 68] .

The practitioner should also be aware of the regulatory environment for the certification of aircraft. A manufacturer can be held liable for failing to meet the design, construction, or performance requirements of the Federal Aviation Administration [Elsworth v. Beech Aircraft Corp. (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 540, 547-552, 208 Cal. Rptr. 874, 691 P.2d 630 ; see also McGee v. Cessna Aircraft Co. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 179, 185-186, 188 Cal. Rptr. 542] . While these standards [see 14 C.F.R. Parts 23, 25, 27] are minimum standards, there have been cases in which the plaintiff was able to demonstrate that the aircraft did not meet even these standards and was thus able to recover. In some cases this has been on a theory of strict liability and in others on negligence per se [see Elsworth v. Beech Aircraft Corp. (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 540, 547-552, 208 Cal. Rptr. 874, 691 P.2d 630 (upholding jury instructions on doctrine of negligence per se where manufacturer allegedly failed to adhere to F.A.A. design requirements notwithstanding fact that type certificate was issued by F.A.A.); McGee v. Cessna Aircraft Co. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 179, 186-191, 188 Cal. Rptr. 542] .

§ 16.13 Airport Liability

[1] Towers and Unicom Operators

Airports can be divided into two major classifications: controlled and uncontrolled. Controlled airports are defined as those having an operating control tower [14 C.F.R. § 91.126(d)], and uncontrolled airports are all others [14 C.F.R. § 91.126(d)]. Airport control towers have historically been operated by the United States government, and the tower personnel are employed by the Federal Aviation Administration. Therefore, if there is an error in the control of air traffic, the party liable is the United States and not the airport management, which does not employ the tower personnel and has no direct control over the tower operation [see Rudelson v. United States (C.D. Cal. 1972) 431 F. Supp. 1101, 1107 , aff'd 602 F.2d 1326 (1979)] .

There is a small but growing trend for nonfederal control towers, which are towers operated by private companies using personnel licensed by the F.A.A., but who are employed by private corporations or the airport management itself to provide the same service that an F.A.A. control tower would provide [see 14 C.F.R. § 91.87(c)]. There are no cases in California arising out of errors by nonfederal control tower personnel, but it seems safe to assume that the standards governing these controllers would be the same as those governing F.A.A. employees. For discussion of the law applicable to federally-employed controllers, see § 16.15[1][a].

At uncontrolled airports, there is often a two-way radio service called Unicom. This is officially described as an airport advisory service [Aeronatical Information Manual, P 4-9]. The Unicom operator is generally a businessperson on the field who operates either a flight school, fixed base operation (FBO), or fuel concession. An F.A.A. flight service station, if located on the field, will provide similar service. While FAA flight service stations usually tape record their radio communications, Unicom operators virtually never do.

The Unicom operator is not permitted to provide air traffic control, but may only report information given to him by other aircraft. Aircraft are encouraged but are not required to make a radio call to the Unicom operator on approaching the airport to advise of their position and to request information concerning the airport. The Unicom operator will usually provide information regarding the current wind, the runway that the wind favors, and whether any other airplanes have reported that they are in the approach pattern.

The pilot of the approaching aircraft thereafter reports its position periodically as he or she makes the approach to landing. Other aircraft calling in are advised of these reports, but there is no attempt made by the Unicom operator to provide any sequencing, warnings, or control. Often the Unicom operator is in an office and is unable to see the airport environment. It is not required that pilots communicate with the Unicom operator, nor that the Unicom operator even have his or her radio turned on at any given time. Pilots are urged to use the Unicom frequency (or the Common Traffic Advisory Frequency (CTAF) at airports with a tower when the tower is closed) to communicate with each other to advise each other of their position even when no one is operating the Unicom base on the ground [see U.S. Dept. of Transportation, F.A.A. Aeronatical Information Manual, Paragraph 4-9].

Because one of the attractions of an uncontrolled field is the lack of a need for a radio, usage of the Unicom is often spotty, incomplete, or ignored entirely. While there are few cases to provide guidance, it is safe to assume that the Unicom operator will be held to the same standards of care as any other person in that he or she is not obliged to render a service, but when he or she does so, he or she should do so in a careful manner [see, e.g., Schwartz v. Helms Bakery Limited (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 232, 238, 60 Cal. Rptr. 510, 430 P.2d 68] . One would expect a Unicom operator to be held liable, for example, for negligence in inaccurately relaying information transmitted to him or her, or for providing incorrect information concerning the status of the runway if he or she volunteers to provide that information.

[2] Tie Downs and Hangers

Airport operators often provide tie down or hanger facilities for resident and transient aircraft. A tie down is nothing more than an anchor point with which a pilot may use ropes or chains to attach the aircraft to the ground to prevent it from being disturbed by strong winds. In general practice, the airport provides the anchor point on the ground as well as the ropes or chains. The practice varies regarding who has the responsibility (between the pilot and the airport operator) to secure the aircraft to the tie down. At smaller airports or privately rented tie down areas, the pilot will have the responsibility for securing the aircraft using the materials furnished by the airport operator. At large airports, often the concessionaire with the aircraft parking rights will need to move the aircraft about the field and will take control of the aircraft much as in a valet parking lot for automobiles.

In the former situation, the law only requires that ordinary care be exercised so that the materials furnished must be safe and adequate for the purpose [see Odle v. Dunbar (1955) 129 Cal. App. 2d 466, 470, 277 P.2d 418] . In the latter category, a bailment is generally created, and the usual laws of bailment apply [see Gordon H. Ball, Inc. v. Parreira (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 697, 29 Cal. Rptr. 679 ; Windeler v. Scheers Jewelers (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 844, 850, 88 Cal. Rptr. 39] . If the bailment is for mutual benefit, as would be the case in the typical situation, the bailee is held to a standard of ordinary care [see Windeler v. Scheers Jewelers (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 844, 850, 88 Cal. Rptr. 39] .

When aircraft are sheltered in group hangers, it is almost always the responsibility of the operator to move the aircraft within the hanger, so a bailment is created [cf. Gordon H. Ball, Inc. v. Parreira (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 697, 29 Cal. Rptr. 679 ; Windeler v. Scheers Jewelers (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 844, 850, 88 Cal. Rptr. 39] . Many airports will provide individual hanger space. In that case, the situation is more analogous to the rental of a building or other facility than it is to a bailment.

[3] Lighting, Obstructions, Markings, and Clear Zones

A potential source of liability for airport operators may involve the lighting, marking, obstructions, and clear zones on and around the airport. While the Federal Aviation Administration provides guidelines [see 14 C.F.R. Parts 77, 151-169], it is the responsibility of the airports to properly light and mark the airport, protect against obstructions, and maintain clear zones [see generally Kreindler, Aviation Accident Law, Ch. 9 (Matthew Bender)].

The clear zone presents the most difficult problem. The Federal Air Regulations provide certain standards for approach and departure corridors as well as lateral protection along runway sidelines [14 C.F.R. Part 77]. In general, the regulations provide for a 20 to 1 slope at either end of the runway and a 5 to 1 slope along the sides, which is to be kept free of obstructions to allow for the safe arrival and departure of aircraft [14 C.F.R. § 77.25]. However, the F.A.A. has no power to compel local governments to enforce such guidelines or to themselves prevent the construction of nonconforming buildings or towers. In the case of a county-owned airport, often it can protect its clear zone by zoning ordinances which mirror the federal regulations. In the case of privately-held airports, it is often impossible for the airport owner to enforce the restriction on its neighbors without the active cooperation of local government. A tort liability problem may arise when an aircraft arriving or departing at an airport strikes an obstruction that falls within the clear zone area. Resolution of the issue of the county government's liability may revolve around the power of the county government to enforce the protection of the clear zone as to whether or not it is liable to the pilot or occupants of the aircraft.

In the case of transmitting towers, the Federal Communications Commission (F.C.C.), which regulates such towers, has cooperated with the F.A.A. by refusing to issue licenses to operators of communications antennas that violate clear zones or that are otherwise hazardous to air navigation. The F.C.C. is not, however, required to do this and will occasionally deviate from this standard. Thus, the F.A.A. and airport operator are generally without power to prevent erection of these structures in airport clear zones.

The tort liability of airport operators for obstructions on the ground or defective marking or lighting is governed by the same general rules that are applicable to the operator of any other premises [for a general discussion of premises liability, see Ch. 421, Premises Liability], but F.A.A. regulations may set forth the applicable standard of care.

[4] Nuisance and Inverse Condemnation

Aircraft noise and vibration cases are the single largest source of liability claims made to airport operators, particularly airports that permit large, jet-powered aircraft to land and take off. The cases sound in inverse condemnation, nuisance, and trespass, and may involve violations of federal and local noise control regulations. For a complete discussion of the torts of nuisance and trespass, see Ch. 391, Nuisance , and Ch. 550, Trespass . The United States Supreme Court has held that local governments cannot impose operational limits on airports, as that function had been preempted by federal law [City of Burbank v. Lockheed Air Terminal (1973) 411 U.S. 624, 640, 93 S. Ct. 1854, 36 L. Ed. 2d 547] .

An airport is not a nuisance per se, but it may be a nuisance in fact because of improper operation or unsuitable location or both [see Anderson v. Souza (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 825, 838, 243 P.2d 497] . Although the aviation industry is subject to heavy federal regulation, the doctrine of preemption does not prohibit a suit against an airport under a theory of nuisance or an action against an airport owned by a public entity for inverse condemnation [Greater Westchester Homeowners Asso. v. Los Angeles (1979) 26 Cal. 3d 86, 93-102, 160 Cal. Rptr. 733, 603 P.2d 1329] .

In one case, which involved both property and personal injury damages due to noise, vibration, and fumes from the operation of defendant's airport, the court upheld both a nuisance count and a negligence count for essentially the same harm [Nestle v. City of Santa Monica (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 920, 937-940, 101 Cal. Rptr. 568, 496 P.2d 480] . In another case, the court affirmed a finding that a municipal owner of an airport was liable under a theory of inverse condemnation for a taking or damaging of property due to airport operation [Aaron v. City of Los Angeles (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 471, 483-484, 115 Cal. Rptr. 162] . Public entities are entitled to condemn aircraft noise easements to protect against noise damage actions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.110(a); Greater Westchester Homeowners Asso. v. Los Angeles (1979) 26 Cal. 3d 86, 99, 160 Cal. Rptr. 733, 603 P.2d 1329] .

An injunction is not a permissible remedy in a nuisance action against an airport that is operating within its proper zone, except in an action by the state [see Code Civ. Proc. § 731a]. In addition, as long as an airport is within a permissible zone, it may not be deemed a nuisance without proof of the employment of unnecessary and injurious methods of operation [see Code Civ. Proc. § 731a]. If an airport has been in existence for three years, there is a rebuttable presumption that the airport is not a nuisance [see Code Civ. Proc. § 731b].

[5] Federal Preemption of State-Law Tort Action Against Airport

A claim against the owner of an airport, based on allegedly unsafe airport navigation facilities that are federally regulated and controlled, is preempted by federal law) [Bethman v. City of Ukiah (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1395, 1405, 265 Cal. Rptr. 539] . Inasmuch as the Federal Aviation Administration and the United States Secretary of Transportation have exclusive authority to regulate and control an airport's navigation facilities, the airport owner, for example, a municipality, has no degree of control over factors inherent in those facilities, and therefore cannot be held liable in negligence for conditions that meet federal standards yet are alleged to be inadequate in a state-law action [Bethman v. City of Ukiah (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1395, 1408, 265 Cal. Rptr. 539 (decided under Federal Aviation Act of 1958 (see former 49 U.S.C.S. § 1301 et seq.; now see 49 U.S.C.S. § 40101 et seq.))].

The scope of preemption does not include those aspects of an airport that are outside exclusive federal domain, for example, state or municipal regulation of the location and environmental impacts of airports, safety of ground maintenance facilities, and the manufacture of aircraft [see Elsworth v. Beech Aircraft Corp. (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 540, 549-550, 208 Cal. Rptr. 874, 691 P.2d 630 ; see also Bethman v. City of Ukiah (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1395, 1406, 265 Cal. Rptr. 539] .

§ 16.14 Experimental Aircraft, Homebuilts, Ultralights, and Parachutes

[1] In General

While it was once accurate that homebuilt aircraft (the government prefers the term "amateur built") and ultralight aircraft were on the fringe of the aviation mainstream, they are now more in the mainstream of general (non-airline) aviation. It can be argued that federal regulators have failed to adequately deal with the increasing proliferation of homebuilts.

The decrease in the production of smaller general aviation aircraft that took place in the 1980s and 1990s resulted in an increase in the number and sophistication of homebuilt aircraft. Many are now sold as sophisticated "kits" that allow the buyer to meet the criteria of homebuilding by assembling the aircraft from a kit. The issue of whether the builder can hire others to actually perform the construction and/or assembly, and how much can be done, is an open issue. The regulations require that "a major portion" of the fabrication or assembly be done by "persons who undertook the construction project solely for their own education or recreation" [14 C.F.R. 21.191(g)].

Because production of cheaper general aviation aircraft fell to nearly zero, demand drove the price of used aircraft up dramatically. The increased costs of aircraft, and the increased regulation of flying, resulted not only in an increase in homebuilts, but also in an increased interest in ultralight aircraft. The current situation is one where many of the homebuilts, employing modern production techniques such as composite construction materials, outperform the commercially manufactured single-engine aircraft, few of which are still being produced.

The law applicable to homebuilts, experimental aircraft, ultralights and parachutes is the same as for any other aviation activity except that it is less regulated.

Certification of homebuilt aircraft is governed by 14 C.F.R. § 21.191(g). Generally speaking, the aircraft will be certified for flight if the owner/builder built more than 50% of the aircraft. Part 21 of the Federal Air Regulations restricts the use and operation of these aircraft and provides for inspection by federal officials [14 C.F.R. § 21.191].

Ultralights, which for a long time were ignored by federal regulations, are now covered by Part 103 of the Federal Air Regulations [14 C.F.R. Part 103; see 14 C.F.R. § 21.191], which essentially provides an exemption from the certification regulations for this category of aircraft. An ultralight is defined as a single occupant vehicle, used for recreation or sport purposes only, which does not have an airworthiness certificate, and which weighs less than 254 pounds empty and carries less than five gallons of fuel, if powered, or weighs less than 155 pounds, if unpowered. Aircraft with greater capability must be certificated like any other aircraft [14 C.F.R. § 103.1].

Certification of experimental aircraft is governed by 14 C.F.R. § 21.191. Experimental aircraft are those used for research and development, conducting flight tests, crew training, exhibitions, air racing, and the like [14 C.F.R. § 21.191(a)-(f)]. Large commercial and ex-military aircraft may fall into the experimental category. Aircraft may also be licensed in restricted and limited categories [14 C.F.R. § 21.184-21.189].

Parachutes and parachuting are regulated by Part 105 of the Federal Air Regulations [14 C.F.R. Part 105], which restricts the packing and maintenance of parachutes and provides rules for sport parachuting.

One quirk in the regulations is that the pilot in command of an aircraft is held responsible to enforce the regulations concerning proper packing of parachutes [14 C.F.R. § 105.43]. This may lead to an unanticipated result that the otherwise innocent pilot of an aircraft may be found liable for a defectively packed parachute because the pilot failed to ascertain that the chute had been packed by a certificated person within the required period of time [14 C.F.R. § 105.43(a)].

[2] Assumption of the Risk and Pre-Accident Releases

The California Supreme Court has reaffirmed that, under Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 824-825, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226 , assumption of the risk, to the extent that it is applied to a situation in which the defendant has breached a duty owed to the plaintiff, has been subsumed within comparative negligence [Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 310, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696 (secondary assumption of risk)]. On the other hand, if the plaintiff's assumption of the risk was such that it relieved the defendant of a duty of care to prevent the injury, the cause of action is barred [Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696 (primary assumption of risk)]. For discussion of the doctrine of assumption of the risk, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

Pre-accident release clauses in contracts may be relied on by defendants in an attempt to avoid liability. Such clauses, which purport to exculpate a party from future negligence, are strictly construed against the party attempting to avoid liability [see Powers v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 318, 321-322, 242 Cal. Rptr. 55 (two exculpatory provisions, one in ultralight rental agreement and one in realty waiver and release, with different but not conflicting language, may both be valid); Ferrell v. Southern Nevada Off-Road Enthusiasts, Ltd. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 309, 317-320, 195 Cal. Rptr. 90 ; Celli v. Sports Car Club of America, Inc. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 511, 518-519, 105 Cal. Rptr. 904] .

Releases are subject to public policy limitations, particularly when there is a disparity of bargaining power between the plaintiff and the defendant [see Tunkl v. Regents of University of California (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 92, 98-101, 32 Cal. Rptr. 33, 383 P.2d 441 ; but see Hulsey v. Elsinore Parachute Center (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 333, 341-344, 214 Cal. Rptr. 194 (upholdng validity of release signed by first-time parachute jumper because parachute jump school is not essential public service and jump school had no decisive bargaining advantage)].

In a wrongful death action, the issue of whether or not a release by the decedent can bar the action has been an issue in controversy. One line of cases held that the releasor could bind himself or herself and therefore would be barred from bringing a personal injury accident against the released party or parties if the release was not obtained under conditions violative of public policy. However, this line of cases held that the release was not binding against the survivors and therefore a wrongful death action could be brought regardless of the release [see Madison v. Superior Court (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 589, 250 Cal. Rptr. 299] .

It appears that the modern trend in California is that a release can act to bar a wrongful death action. In Paralift, Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 23 Cal. App. 4th 748, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 177 , a release signed three years before the fatal jump was held binding in a wrongful death action brought by the heirs of a skydiver. As mentioned above, the relative bargaining power of the releasee and releasor are relevant in determining if a release is valid. For example, it is well established that a "common carrier" cannot compel passengers to release the carrier from liability [Curtiss-Wright Flying Service v. Glose (3rd Cir. 1933) 66 F.2d 710] .

For a further discussion of assumption of risk and the effect of releases from liability, see Ch. 380, Negligence , and Ch. 520, Settlement and Release .

§ 16.15 Liability of the United States

[1] Activities Creating Liability

[a] Air Traffic Control

The F.A.A. operates three categories of air traffic control facilities: towers, approach controls, and en route air traffic control centers. The tower provides visual separation and assists in the orderly flow of air traffic in and around airports. It provides sequencing to all aircraft operating within controlled air space and on the ramps and runways of the field itself [see 14 C.F.R. §§ 91.126(d), 91.127(c)]. An approach control, generally a radar facility, provides radar sequencing of aircraft in the airport environment from 25 to 50 miles from the airport up to, but not including, the traffic pattern at the airport itself. The air route traffic control center (ARTCC) provides separation of aircraft on instrument flight plans in the en route stage of flight. The radar facilities at centers and approach controls are primarily responsible for separation of aircraft operating under instrument flight rules. Instrument aircraft are those operating in weather that does not permit visual separation. All air carrier flights are conducted under instrument flight rules, regardless of the weather. The pilots operating in instrument flight conditions rely on the center to prevent collisions with other instrument aircraft. The centers and approach controls will also, on request and on a time available basis, provide advisories to aircraft operating in visual conditions (that is, aircraft not operating under instrument flight rules) of other aircraft that might pose a collision risk.

The United States government, which employs most air traffic control personnel, is subject to liability under the doctrine of respondeat superior for the torts of its employees [Rudelson v. United States (C.D. Cal. 1972) 431 F. Supp. 1101, 1107 , aff'd 602 F.2d 1326 (1979) ; see also Ch. 427, Principal and Agent , for a general discussion of vicarious liability]. Not all towers are staffed by government employees. There is increasing use of non-federal controlers working for private contractors providing air traffic services at FAA facilities. In California these non-federal towers include those at San Luis Obispo, Salinas, Modesto, and Santa Maria airports.

Air traffic control personnel (whether they work for the FAA or a private contractor) are under a duty to exercise ordinary care in their work [McDaniel v. United States (N.D. Cal. 1982) 553 F. Supp. 910, 916] . Air traffic controllers are required to transmit all information required by the manuals [see Spaulding v. United States (9th Cir. 1972) 455 F.2d 222, 226] . In addition, they must give warnings beyond those specified in the manuals when an immediate and extreme danger exists, when a dangerous condition is known only to federal personnel, and when the controller is better qualified or in a better position than the pilot to evaluate the situation [see Spaulding v. United States (9th Cir. 1972) 455 F.2d 222, 226 n.8].

The liability of air traffic control, whether radar or visual, approach control or tower, usually arises from mid-air collisions. Cases hold that in visual weather, the pilots and air traffic controllers are concurrently responsible for separation [see Spaulding v. United States (9th Cir. 1972) 455 F.2d 222, 226 ; Hamilton v. United States (N.D. Cal. 1971) 343 F. Supp. 426, 432 , aff'd 497 F.2d 370, 374 (1974) ; McDaniel v. United States (N.D. Cal. 1982) 553 F. Supp. 910, 916] . A radar facility that is able to see a potential traffic conflict and fails to advise or take other actions to avoid it may also be liable for negligence [see Rudelson v. United States (C.D. Cal. 1972) 431 F. Supp. 1101, 1107-1108 , aff'd 602 F.2d 1326 (1979)] .

With the increasing popularity of jumbo jetliners such as the Boeing 747, the McDonnell Douglas DC-10, and the Lockheed L-1011, a new threat has been posed to light aircraft in the form of wake turbulence. These large aircraft create horizontal air vortices, called "wing tip vortices," which are sufficient to cause a complete loss of control or even structural damage to an aircraft following below and behind the large airliner [The Aeronatical Information Manual, P 7-3, provides an excellent introduction to the theory of wake turbulence]. Air traffic control towers are required to provide warnings of possible wake turbulence to small aircraft when such turbulence is reasonably foreseeable, and to provide minimum separation standards for instrument aircraft following behind heavy jets [see, e.g., Lightenburger v. United States (9th Cir. 1972) 460 F.2d 391, 394 ; Richardson v. United States (N.D. Cal. 1974) 372 F. Supp. 921, 926] . However, there is no absolute duty on the part of air traffic control to warn of wake turbulence, and the pilot of a small plane is under a duty to be aware of the hazards of wake turbulence [Sanbutch Properties, Inc. v. United States (N.D. Cal. 1972) 343 F. Supp. 611, 616] .

There are numerous cases and regulations on the respective duties of pilots and controllers [see, e.g., 14 C.F.R. §§ 91.3 (pilot has final responsibility for aircraft), 91.111(a) (pilot must keep distance from other craft), 91.113(b) (pilot must keep vigilant watch); Irwin v. Pacific Southwest Airlines (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 709, 716, 184 Cal. Rptr. 228 ; United Air Lines, Inc. v. Wiener (9th Cir. 1964) 335 F.2d 379, 389 ; Mattschei v. United States (9th Cir. 1979) 600 F.2d 205, 208] . As a general rule, the federal courts tend to place the primary responsibility for an aviation accident on the pilot [see Spaulding v. United States (9th Cir. 1972) 455 F.2d 222, 226 ; Mattschei v. United States (9th Cir. 1979) 600 F.2d 205, 208 ; Hamilton v. United States (9th Cir. 1974) 497 F.2d 370, 374-375 ; Hall v. Osell (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 849, 851-852, 228 P.2d 293] . For example, a pilot's breach of his or her duty to be aware of his or her location or altitude and the weather conditions is normally deemed to be the proximate cause of an accident, rather than any breach of duty by air traffic control personnel to warn a pilot of such an unsafe condition [see McDaniel v. United States (N.D. Cal. 1982) 553 F. Supp. 910, 915-916 ; Sanbutch Properties, Inc. v. United States (N.D. Cal. 1972) 343 F. Supp. 611, 616] . In McDaniel v. United States (N.D. Cal. 1982) 553 F. Supp. 910, 915-916 , the court held that the failure of an air traffic controller to transmit a discretionary advisory or warning to a pilot of the hazard of wake turbulence when the traffic controller was engaged in higher priority duties was not the proximate cause of an accident when the pilot should have been aware of the tubulence. Federal courts have also applied the "discretionary function" doctrine to immunize air traffic controllers from certain acts of liability, such as for negligence in their exercise of judgment over airport design, creation departure procedures for airports, night lighting, or test flights [see, e.g., West v. Federal Aviation Admin. (9th Cir. 1987) 830 F.2d 1044, 1047-1049 ; see also United States v. S. A. Empresa de Viacao Aerea Rio Grandense (Varig Airlines) (1984) 467 U.S. 797, 813-814, 104 S. Ct. 2755, 81 L. Ed. 2d 660 ("discretionary function" doctrine)]. For further discussion, see [2][a], below.

[b] Weather Briefing

Thus far, meteorology has been considered a sufficiently inexact science so that errors in forecasting have not given rise to tort liability. On the other hand, the government does have the responsibility to correctly transmit forecasts and, more importantly, to accurately report existing weather and to relay that information to pilots [see Spaulding v. United States (9th Cir. 1972) 455 F.2d 222, 227 ; but see Budden v. United States (8th Cir 1993) 15 F.3d 1444, 1450-1451 (pilot's conduct in flying into bad weather was sole proximate cause of injury, superseding potential negligence of failure to advise pilot of nature of weather conditions)].

[c] Certification of Airmen and Aircraft

Plaintiffs have long argued that since the federal government takes an active role in certifying aircraft and airmen, it should bear liability should such certification proves erroneous, such as when an inadequate air frame or pilot escapes detection. The United States Supreme Court has held that the government is not liable for such conduct and that certification falls within the discretionary function exception to the Federal Tort Claims Act [United States v. S. A. Empresa de Viacao Aerea Rio Grandense (Varig Airlines) (1984) 467 U.S. 797, 104 S. Ct. 2755, 81 L. Ed. 2d 660, 678 ; see 28 U.S.C.S. § 2680(a); see also Nat. Gas Pipeline Co. v. United States (9th Cir. 1984) 742 F.2d 502, 504] .

Just because an FAA employee is involved in a certification process does not provide complete immunity. In Hayes v. United States (5th Cir 1990) 899 F.2d 438 , the court held that an FAA inspector conducting a check ride was liable for negligence in asking an applicant for a pilot's certificate to attempt a failed manuever a second time, which attempt ended in a crash. The court rejected the FAA's assertion of the discretionary function defense holding that the inspector was not making policy but merely carrying out his day to day function.

The FAA relies heavily on designees to perform certification functions. These are private individuals, not employed by the government, who are designated to conduct check rides for pilot's licenses (Designated Pilot Examiners), conduct physical examinations for airmen's medical certificates (Aviation Medical Examiners), certify that aircraft designs meet airworthiness standards (Designated Engineering Representatives), and conduct the required annual inspection of aircraft to assure continued airworthiness (Authorized Inspectors). They are employed by those seeking certification, but must follow the federal guidelines. The courts have held that these individuals are not government employees and do not expose the United States to liability under respondeat superior [see, e.g., Leone v. United States (2nd Cir. 1990) 910 F.2d 46] .

[2] Defenses Available to United States

[a] Discretionary Function Immunity

The United States is immune from tort liability when it exercises a discretionary function [28 U.S.C.S. § 2680(a)]. Although the Federal Tort Claims Act provides for a limited waiver of the federal government's immunity to allow suits against federal employees, that waiver of immunity does not apply to any claim that is based on the exercise of or failure to exercise or perform a discretionary function or duty [see 28 U.S.C.S. §§ 1346(b), 2671-2680]. This "discretionary function" exception is applied whenever the employee has exercised his or her discretion by acting as a regulator of the conduct of private individuals for social, political, or economic considerations [United States v. S. A. Empresa de Viacao Aerea Rio Grandense (Varig Airlines) (1984) 467 U.S. 797, 813-814,104 S. Ct. 2755, 81 L. Ed. 2d 660] , including those of safety [West v. Federal Aviation Admin. (9th Cir. 1987) 830 F.2d 1044, 1047-1049] . Thus, the "discretionary function" has been applied to immunize the certification of aircraft [United States v. S. A. Empresa de Viacao Aerea Rio Grandense (Varig Airlines) (1984) 467 U.S. 797, 813-814, 104 S. Ct. 2755, 81 L. Ed. 2d 660] , as well as to immunize FAA employees from negligence in their exercise of judgment over departure procedures for airports, night lighting, or test flights [West v. Federal Aviation Admin. (9th Cir. 1987) 830 F.2d 1044, 1047-1049].

[b] Feres Doctrine

The military services operate numerous aviation facilities, and active members of the military service often operate civil aircraft. In 1952, the United States Supreme Court held in Feres v. United States (1950) 340 U.S. 135, 146, 71 S. Ct.

153, 95 L. Ed. 152 , that the Federal Tort Claims Act did not apply to military personnel acting incident to their military service. The Feres doctrine applies regardless of the status of the alleged tortfeasor. Thus, the doctrine precluded the widow of a Coast Guard helicopter pilot killed while on a rescue mission from suing the United States under the Federal Tort Claims Act even though the complaint alleged that a civilian FAA flight controller negligently caused her husband's death [United States v. Johnson (1987) 481 U.S. 681, 107 S. Ct. 2063, 95 L. Ed. 2d 648, 655-657] . In addition, the Feres doctrine precludes liability of a government contractor for strict products liability when the United States set or approved the design specifications for an aircraft [McKay v. Rockwell Intern. Corp. (9th Cir. 1983) 704 F.2d 444, 448-449] .

The Feres doctrine has been extended to include servicemen injured or killed while operating aircraft in United States Air Force aero clubs. The clubs are non-appropriated instrumentalities of the Air Force and only active-duty military personel may be members. The clubs otherwise operate much like civilian flying clubs and are used for personal, pleasure flying by servicemen. In Walls v. United States (7th Cir 1987) 832 F.2d 93 , the court held that even the though the soldier was on leave or off duty he was still considered to be on active duty and subject to military discipline. He could not have been a member of the aero club without being part of the Air Force and thus his participation was directly related to his military status [see also Herreman v. United States (7th Cir 1973) 476 F.2d 234, 235] .

[3] Suits Against the United States--Federal Tort Claims Act

In any suit involving the federal government as a defendant, the plaintiff must comply with the provisions of the Federal Tort Claims Act [28 U.S.C.S. §§ 1291, 1346(b), 1402(b), 1504, 2110, 2401(b), 2401, 2402, 2411, 2412, 2671-2680]. In general, the Federal Tort Claims Act provides a limited waiver of sovereign immunity for tort claims against the United States and establishes the procedure for perfecting such claims. Because of the substantial involvement of the United States in aviation from air traffic control to dissemination of weather information, a large number of aviation tort cases include the United States as a defendant.

The Federal Tort Claims Act provides that the United States will be liable for acts and omissions of its employees in the same manner and under the same circumstances as a private person [28 U.S.C.S. § 1346(b)]. The law to be applied will be the law of the state in which the act or omission occurred or in which the accident took place [28 U.S.C.S. § 1346(b); Rayonier, Inc. v. United States (1957) 352 U.S. 315, 318-319, 77 S. Ct. 374, 1 L. Ed. 2d 354] .

Before suit can be filed, a claim must be presented to the agency involved [28 U.S.C.S. § 2675(a)]. If the claim is rejected, the injured party is entitled to bring action against the United States. The suit must be filed in the United States District Court for the district in which the plaintiff resides or in which the accident took place [28 U.S.C.S. § 1402(b)]. The Federal Tort Claims Act does not allow for trial by jury, and thus any case against the United States will be tried to the court [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 2402].

§ 16.16 State and Local Government Liability

Many airports in California are operated by local governments, mainly counties. The liability of a local public entity in the capacity of airport operator is governed by the same rules that apply to any other governmental entities [see Gov. Code § 810 et seq.; see also Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act]. In practice, such liability is limited by the fact that the public entity normally lacks control over the actual operation of aircraft using the airport except, in some cases, in the hanger or ramp areas. The operation of aircraft on the surface at tower-controlled airports is controlled by the federal regulations [see 14 C.F.R. § 91.87], as are fields that lack a control tower [14 C.F.R. § 91.89].

The primary area of state and local government liability arises from two sources. The first is obstructions in the airport environment that violate the clear zone requirements of Federal Air Regulation part 77 [14 C.F.R. § 77; see also § 16.13[3]]. The second is collisions between county operated vehicles, most notably fuel trucks, and aircraft. A third, and increasingly controversial, area of governmental liability for the operation of airports concerns an airport's liability for noise from aircraft. For a discussion of an airport's liability for nuisance and inverse condemnation based on airport noise, see § 16.13[4].

§ 16.17 Warsaw Convention and Montreal Convention of 1999

[1] Warsaw Convention and Subsequent Amendments

[a] Scope and Constitutionality

For injuries occurring prior to November 4, 2003, the liability of airlines operating on international flights is governed by the Warsaw Convention and its subsequent amendments [Warsaw Convention, 49 Stat. 3000, T.S. 876 (1934), reprinted as note following 49 U.S.C.S. § 40105]. The Warsaw Convention is an international treaty, which preempts local laws [P. T. Airfast Services, Indonesia v. Superior Court (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 162, 166, 188 Cal. Rptr. 628 ; see O'Rourke v. Eastern Air Lines, Inc. (E.D. N.Y. 1982) 553 F. Supp. 226, 228] .

The Montreal Agreement [C.A.B. Agreement 18900; see 31 Fed. Reg. 7302 (1966) (containing complete text of agreement); the important provisions of the Montreal Agreement are outlined in a 1966 order of the Civil Aeronautics Board, which is printed following the text of the Warsaw Convention following 49 U.S.C.S. § 40105], which contains several major modifications of the Warsaw Convention, is an agreement of international air carriers reached in private agreement with the participation of the United States Department of State [see In re Aircrash in Bali Indonesia on April 22, 1974 (9th Cir. 1982) 684 F.2d 1301, 1305] . The Agreement applies to international transportation, as defined in the Warsaw Convention, on airlines signatory to the agreement, provided that the intended journey includes a point of departure or agreed stopping place in the United States [Montreal Agreement, C.A.B. Agreement 18900, 31 Fed. Reg. 7302 (1966) ; see In re Aircrash in Bali Indonesia on April 22, 1974 (9th Cir. 1982) 684 F.2d 1301, 1305] .

As discussed in [d], below, the Warsaw Convention and the Montreal Agreement limit the liability of air carriers to a certain amount. The constitutionality of the Warsaw Convention has been challenged in an attempt to circumvent these limits. In In re Aircrash in Bali Indonesia on April 22, 1974 [In re Aircrash in Bali Indonesia on April 22, 1974 (9th Cir. 1982) 684 F.2d 1301, 1308-1312] , the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit analyzed the constitutionality of the Convention, but ultimately did not decide the issue. The court stated that while the arguments of the plaintiffs against the constitutionality of the Convention were substantial, it could not find the treaty unconstitutional if another remedy existed that would provide the plaintiffs with full compensation [In re Aircrash in Bali Indonesia on April 22, 1974 (9th Cir. 1982) 684 F.2d 1301, 1310] . The court then held that the impairment of the plaintiffs' claim by the Convention was potentially a taking by the United States government [In re Aircrash in Bali Indonesia on April 22, 1974 (9th Cir. 1982) 684 F.2d 1301, 1310] . However, in Trans World Airlines v. Franklin Mint Corp. (1984) 466 U.S. 243, 104 S. Ct. 1776, 80 L. Ed. 2d 273 , the United States Supreme Court, rejecting a prospective ruling by the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, upheld the validity of Warsaw Convention's limits for loss of cargo. The holding of the Court in Franklin Mint would also seem to overrule a federal district court decision that had held that the personal injury limits of the Warsaw Convention are invalid [In re Aircrash at Kimpo International Airport (C.D. Cal. 1983) 558 F. Supp. 72, 75]. This is due to the fact that the district court based its opinion on the declaration of the lower court in Franklin Mint, which was subsequently rejected by the Supreme Court.

The Warsaw Convention does not govern the liability of potential defendants other than air carriers [see In re Paris Air Crash of March 3, 1974 (C.D. Cal. 1975) 399 F. Supp. 732, 747] . As a result, the litigation of almost every major aircraft accident involving the Warsaw Convention results in claims against manufacturers of the aircraft and/or its components in an attempt to get around the Warsaw Convention's limitations on damages recoverable. In addition, there are frequent attempts to use the exception to liability limits set forth in Article 25 of the Convention that lifts the liability limits of Article 22 in the event of willful misconduct by the carrier. For example, cases involving the Soviet shootdown of Korean Airlines Flight 007 and the terrorist bombing of Pan American's Flight 103 near Lockerbie, Scotland have resulted in findings of willful misconduct against the carrier.

The following brief summary of the current state of the law is not meant to be exhaustive. For a comprehensive treatment of the Warsaw Convention and its progeny, see Kreindler, Aviation Accident Law, Ch. 10 (Matthew Bender).

[b] Applicability

[i] International Flights

The Warsaw Convention applies only to international transportation [Warsaw Convention, Art. 1, 49 Stat. 3000, T.S. 876 (1934), reprinted as note following 49 U.S.C.S. § 40105]. This is defined as a flight which, according to the contract between the passenger and the airline, begins in one country that has signed the treaty and ends in another [Warsaw Convention, Art. 1(2), 49 Stat. 3000, T.S. 876 (1934), reprinted as note following 49 U.S.C.S. § 40105]. In addition, an international flight occurs if the flight commences and terminates in a country that has signed the treaty if there is a stopover in any other country [Warsaw Convention, Art. 1(2), 49 Stat. 3000, T.S. 876 (1934), reprinted as note following 49 U.S.C.S. § 40105]. Flights that have intermediate stops within the same country are international flights even if the crash occurred before a border was crossed [see Stratis v. Eastern Air Lines, Inc. (2d Cir. 1982) 682 F.2d 406, 409-414] . The general rule is that the nature of the flight is determined by the ticket held by the passengers [see Warsaw Convention, Art. 1(2), 49 Stat. 3000, T.S. 876 (1934), reprinted as note following 49 U.S.C.S. § 40105; see also Stratis v. Eastern Air Lines, Inc. (2d Cir. 1982) 682 F.2d 406, 409-414] . This can lead to the result that passengers flying on a domestic leg of an international flight will have different remedies from those whose ultimate destination was a foreign country.

The Montreal Agreement applies to an international flight if the intended journey includes a point of departure or agreed stopping place in the United States [Montreal Agreement, C.A.B. Agreement 18900, 31 Fed. Reg. 7302 (1966) ; see In re Aircrash in Bali Indonesia on April 22, 1974 (9th Cir. 1982) 684 F.2d 1301, 1305] .

An extremely important issue in dealing with the Warsaw Convention is whether the Convention provides the exclusive remedy in situations where it applies. The Supreme Court has added definition to the term "accident" as used in Article 17, but the Court failed to address the issue of whether, if a claim is caused by an Article 17 "accident," the Convention provides the exclusive remedy [see Air France v. Saks (1995) 470 U.S. 392, 105 S. Ct. 1338, 84 L. Ed. 2d 289] . Various other courts have held that a state law cause of action can be brought if the claim does not result from an Article 17 "accident" [see, e.g., Tandon v. United Air Lines (S.D.N.Y. 1996) 926 F. Supp. 366] . In one case, a federal district court in New York concluded that Warsaw Convention was the exclusive remedy in an aircraft accident and that state law causes of action were preempted [Jack v. Trans World Airlines, Inc. (N.D.Cal. 1993) 820 F. Supp. 1218] .

[ii] Scope of Coverage

The Warsaw Convention provides that an air carrier is liable for damages sustained in any accident in which the passenger sustains bodily injury as long as the injury occurred on board the aircraft or in the course of any of the operations of embarking or disembarking [Warsaw Convention, Art. 17, 49 Stat. 3000, T.S. 876 (1934), reprinted as note following 49 U.S.C.S. § 40105].

An accident is defined as any unexpected or unusual event or happening that is external to the passenger [Air France v. Saks (1985) 470 U.S. 392, 105 S. Ct. 1338, 84 L. Ed. 2d 289, 301-302 (issue of whether injury resulted from accident is for trier of fact if there is contradictory evidence)]. Thus, the term "accident" is broadly defined, and may cover injuries resulting from a hijacking [see Day v. Trans World Airlines (2d Cir. 1975) 528 F.2d 31] , as well as cases in which a passenger slips and falls [Bradfield v. Transworld Airlines, Inc. (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 681, 684-687, 152 Cal. Rptr. 172 ; see Williams v. Fidelity & Cas. Co. of New York (E.D. La. 1977) 442 F. Supp. 455, 456-457] . The term has also been applied to a flight attendant's refusal to assist an asthmatic passenger, who was sensitive to secondhand cigarette smoke, in finding a different seat farther away from the smoking section, which refusal resulted in the passenger's death from a severe asthma attack. In that case, the trial court concluded as a factual matter that the attendant's refusal to assist under the circumstances was unexpected and unusual, and the United States Supreme Court held that this refusal was as much a cause of the passenger's death as the ambient cigarette smoke [Olympic Airways v. Husain (2004) 540 U.S. 644, 652-656, 124 S. Ct. 1221, 157 L. Ed. 2d 1146] .

Although the term accident must be flexibly applied, it does not cover situations in which an injury indisputably results from the passenger's own internal reaction to the usual, normal, and expected operation of the aircraft [Air France v. Saks (1985) 470 U.S. 392, 105 S. Ct. 1338, 84 L. Ed. 2d 289, 301-302] . For example, although an airline may properly be held liable for a passenger's loss of hearing due to a sudden dive of the plane, causing an abrupt change in air pressure, it is not liable for such an injury in the absence of proof that the air pressure in the plane was abnormal in some way [Air France v. Saks (1985) 470 U.S. 392, 105 S. Ct. 1338, 84 L. Ed. 2d 289, 301-302] . Similarly, neither the development of deep vein thrombosis during a long flight [Rodriquez v. Ansett Australia, Ltd. (9th Cir. 2004) 383 F.3d 914, 917], nor the failure to warn of its risk [Twardowski v. American Airlines, Inc. (9th Cir. 2008) 535 F.3d 952, 958 ; Caman v. Continental Airlines, Inc. (2006) 455 F.3d 1087, 1092], is an event for purposes of establishing an "accident" under the Warsaw Convention.

The term "bodily injury" contemplates a narrow definition that excludes purely mental injuries [Eastern Airlines, Inc. v. Floyd (1991) 499 U.S. 530, 542-553, 111 S. Ct. 1489, 113 L. Ed. 2d 569] . For this reason, passengers aboard an international airline flight who suffer mental distress as a result of being informed that the engines have failed, and that the airplane will crash-land in the ocean, have no cause of action under the Warsaw Convention if the plane recovers power and ultimately lands safely at the airport without causing any physical injuries [Eastern Airlines, Inc. v. Floyd (1991) 499 U.S. 530, 542-553, 111 S. Ct. 1489, 113 L. Ed. 2d 569] . Similarly, recovery for Post Traumatic Stress Disorder ("PTSD"), a physiological disorder defined in the American Psychiatric Association's Diagnostic and Statistical Manual, DSM-IV may not be allowed under the Warsaw convention in situations in which there is no discernable physical injury [Doe v. United Airlines (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1500, 1512-1513, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 541]. The term "bodily injury" also does not extend to physical conduct by another, however offensive, that does not result in some physical injury [Doe v. United Airlines (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1500, 1514, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 541].

In determining whether a person is in the process of embarking or debarking, the control of the airline, as well as the place of the injury and the activity the passenger was engaged in at the time, are all important factors [see Evangelinos v. Trans World Airlines, Inc. (3d Cir. 1977) 550 F.2d 152, 155-158] . As a general rule, the passenger falls under the control of the airline and thus, under the protection of the Warsaw Convention, when he or she surrenders the ticket or takes the last act necessary prior to actually boarding the aircraft [see Day v. Trans World Airlines (2d Cir. 1975) 528 F.2d 31, 34-35 ; see also Aquino v. Asiana Airlines, Inc. (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 1272, 1280-1281, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 223 (plaintiffs were not engaged in embarking when they were in common passenger area attempting to check in, had not passed through security, and had not yet checked luggage or received boarding passes)]. Disembarking is normally completed after the passenger leaves the plane and reaches a safe place in the terminal [see MacDonald v. Air Canada (1st Cir. 1971) 439 F.2d 1402, 1404-1405] . It is thus not necessary for the passenger to actually be on board the airplane for the Warsaw Convention to apply [Day v. Trans World Airlines (2d Cir. 1975) 528 F.2d 31] .

The Warsaw Convention also governs cases of injury or loss of luggage or goods during an international flight [Warsaw Convention, Art. 18, 49 Stat. 3000, T.S. 876 (1934), reprinted as note following 49 U.S.C.S. § 40105; see also Johnson v. American Airlines, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 834 F.2d 721, 723-725 (action in California state court against airline for negligent infliction of emotional distress and loss of property, stemming from damage to dead body's remains incurred during international flight from California to Ireland, as preempted by Warsaw Convention, which applies to all international air transportation of "goods" performed by aircraft for hire; plaintiffs did not have standing to sue because funeral homes, not plaintiffs, were signatories to air waybill)].

[iii] Notice Requirement

Passengers often seek to avoid the damage limitation of the Warsaw Convention [see [d], below] to achieve the higher verdicts available through the American tort litigation system. One of the most frequent avenues of escape from the Warsaw Convention is the notice requirement, which requires that before an airline can rely on the limits of the Warsaw Convention, it must notify the passenger of the limits before the journey begins [Warsaw Convention, Art. 3(1)(e), (2), 49 Stat. 3000, T.S. 876 (1934), reprinted as note following 49 U.S.C.S. § 40105; 14 C.F.R. § 221.175(a)]. While virtually all airplane tickets include some form of notification on the back side, some courts have been most liberal in allowing plaintiffs to avoid these limitations and seek redress under conventional negligence theories [see In re Air Crash Disaster at Warsaw, Poland (2d Cir. [N.Y.] 1983) 705 F.2d 85, 89-90 (avoiding application of damage limits where type size on ticket too small)].

[c] Standard of Care and Defenses

Under the Warsaw Convention, as unmodified, there is a rebuttable presumption of negligence when a passenger is injured during an international flight [Warsaw Convention, Art. 17, 49 Stat. 3000, T.S. 876 (1934), reprinted as note following 49 U.S.C.S. § 40105; see In re Aircrash in Bali Indonesia on April 22, 1974 (9th Cir. 1982) 684 F.2d 1301, 1305] . The Montreal Agreement has changed this rule with respect to flights starting and stopping in the United States to provide that an airline is liable without regard to fault for injuries during an international flight [see Montreal Agreement, C.A.B. Agreement 18900; 31 Fed. Reg. 7302 (1966) ; In re Aircrash in Bali Indonesia on April 22, 1974 (9th Cir. 1982) 684 F.2d 1301, 1305 ; see also Air France v. Saks (1985) 470 U.S. 392, 105 S. Ct. 1338, 84 L. Ed. 2d 289, 301-302 (stating that airline liability is absolute in sense that airline cannot defend claim on ground that it took all necessary measures to avoid injury)]. However, it appears that comparative negligence by a passenger, which was available as a defense under the original Warsaw Convention [see Warsaw Convention, Art. 21, 49 Stat. 3000, T.S. 876 (1934), reprinted as note following 49 U.S.C.S. § 40105 (providing that defense available in same manner as under state law)], is available under the Montreal Agreement as well [see Bradfield v. Transworld Airlines, Inc. (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 681, 685, 152 Cal. Rptr. 172 ; Windbourne v. Eastern Air Lines, Inc. (E.D. N.Y. 1979) 479 F. Supp. 1130, 1141] .

[d] Limited Damages

[i] Amounts and Constitutionality

Under the original Warsaw Convention, liability for injury was limited to approximately $8,300. This was raised in the Hague Protocol (to which the United States does not adhere) to roughly $16,600 [In re Aircrash in Bali Indonesia on April 22, 1974 (9th Cir. 1982) 684 F.2d 1301, 1305] . Under the Warsaw Convention as modified by the Montreal Agreement, damages for personal injury or wrongful death are limited to $75,000 [Montreal Agreement, C.A.B. Agreement 18900; 31 Fed. Reg. 7302 (1966) ; see In re Aircrash in Bali Indonesia on April 22, 1974 (9th Cir. 1982) 684 F.2d 1301, 1305] . As noted in [a], above, the constitutionality of these limits is uncertain [compare In re Aircrash in Bali Indonesia on April 22, 1974 (9th Cir. 1982) 684 F.2d 1301, 1308-1312 (impairment of the plaintiffs' claim by the Convention limits was potentially compensable under theory of taking) with Trans World Airlines v. Franklin Mint Corp. (1984) 466 U.S. 243, 104 S. Ct. 1776, 80 L. Ed. 2d 273, 278 (upholding limits on liability for lost cargo under Warsaw Convention)].

Recently there have been major changes underway in the limitations on liability under the Warsaw Convention. These changes are occurring not due to changes to the Warsaw Convention protocols made by the signatory governments, but from either unilateral decisions of the signatory states such as Japan to waive liability limitations, or from agreements by the carriers themselves to waive the liability limits.

The Intercarrier Agreement on Passenger Liability was adopted unanimously at the October 1995 IATA Conference in Kuala Lumpur and purports to waive the liability limitations subject to various provisions set forth in the Agreement related to where suit may commence, and other procedural provisions.

[ii] Avoidance of Warsaw Limits: Willful Misconduct

Willful misconduct of an airline removes the liability ceiling and subjects the airline to unlimited damages [Warsaw Convention, Art. 25, 49 Stat. 3000, T.S. 876 (1934), reprinted as note following 49 U.S.C.S. § 40105; see In re Aircrash in Bali Indonesia on April 22, 1974 (9th Cir. 1982) 684 F.2d 1301, 1305-1306] . Willful misconduct may also prevent an airline from claiming protection under the Warsaw Convention, thus subjecting it to suit in state court [see Johnson v. American Airlines, Inc. (9th Cir.1987) 834 F.2d 721, 724 (although Convention provides that carrier is not entitled to avail itself of Convention provisions if damage was caused by willful misconduct, exemption does not apply when plaintiffs pleaded negligence rather than willful misconduct in original complaint)]. Willful misconduct may include acts of reckless disregard for the consequences [Maschinenfabrik Kern, A.G. v. Northwest Airlines (N.D. Ill. 1983) 562 F. Supp. 232, 240] . Willful misconduct is an issue for the trier of fact [In re Pago Pago Aircrash of Jan. 30, 1974 (C.D. Cal. 1976) 419 F. Supp. 1158, 1160] .

[iii] Damages Limitation Unaffected by Inadequate Liability Limitation Notice

The United States Supreme Court has held that an air carrier's failure to provide an adequate statement that the transportation is subject to the rules relating to liability of the Warsaw Convention is not grounds for refusing to apply the damages limitation of the Warsaw Convention as a sanction [see Chan v. Korean Air Lines, Ltd. (1989) 490 U.S. 122, 109 S. Ct. 1676, 104 L. Ed. 2d 113, 123-127] . In the case before it, the air carrier had delivered the required statement on its passenger tickets in eight-point rather than 10-point type. The Court stated that neither the Convention nor the Montreal Agreement provided for the elimination of the liability limitation as a sanction for failure to provide the proper notice, and that as long as the ticket itself was delivered, defective notice would not cause the carrier to lose the benefit of the damages limitation [see Chan v. Korean Air Lines, Ltd. (1989) 490 U.S. 122, 109 S. Ct. 1676, 104 L. Ed. 2d 113, 123-127] .

[2] Montreal Convention of 1999

[a] Replacement of Warsaw Convention

The "Convention for the Unification of Certain Rules for International Carriage by Air signed at Montreal Convention on 28 May 1999" (a copy may be obtained at http://www.dot.gov/ost/ogc) provides a comprehensive revision and consolidation of many of the provisions of the Warsaw Convention, particularly with regard to damages and jurisdiction. This convention, generally referred to as the Montreal Convention of 1999, went into effect under its own terms on November 4, 2003, after the United States became the thirtieth nation to file an instrument of ratification. As of mid-2004, there were 34 ratified parties to the Convention, including other nations such as Japan, Canada, and Mexico, although the European Union had not yet ratified the Convention. The Montreal Convention of 1999 is not an amendment to the Warsaw Convention, but a new agreement that replaces the Warsaw Convention and its various amendments [Ehrlich v. Am. Airlines, Inc. (2d Cir. 2004) 360 F.3d 366, 371 n.4].

Unlike the Warsaw Convention, which was designed originally to limit airline liability for injuries, the Montreal Convention of 1999 is designed to ensure fair and adequate compensation for injured passengers. The Montreal Convention makes the airline liable for injury up to a certain amount, although the airline may be absolved from liability for damages beyond that base amount if the airline proves that it did not cause the accident [Montreal Convention, Art. 21 (1999); see [c], below].

[b] Applicability

The Montreal Convention of 1999 applies to "international carriage" performed under contract for carriage by an "aircraft for reward," and to gratuitous carriage by aircraft provided by an "air transport undertaking" [Montreal Convention, Art. 1, § 1 (1999)]. Under the definition of "international carriage," the Montreal Convention applies to the same types of international flights as did the Warsaw Convention--that is, flights that, according to the contract between the airline and the passenger, either begin in one country that has ratified the agreement and end in another country that has also ratified the agreement, or begin and end in a single country that has ratified the agreement with an agreed stopover in any other country [see Montreal Convention, Art. 1, § 2 (1999)]. Carriage by several airlines in succession is considered one undivided carriage, if it was the intent of the parties that the transportation would be regarded as a single operation [Montreal Convention, Art. 1, § 3 (1999)]. So long as these conditions for applicability are met, carriage that is provided by a ratifying nation or other public body is generally covered by the Montreal Convention [see Montreal Convention, Art. 2 (1999)].

[c] Limits on Liability

Under the Montreal Convention of 1999, the airline is presumed liable for damages sustained if a passenger dies or suffers bodily injury while on the aircraft or in the course of embarking or disembarking [Montreal Convention, Art. 17, § 1 (1999)]. The Convention also provides for liability for loss of or damage to baggage under specified conditions, as well as for the loss of or damage to cargo and for delays in transportation [see Montreal Convention, Arts. 17-19 (1999)].

Despite these general provisions for liability, the Montreal Convention imposes limits on an airline's liability. For example, the Convention provides for a comparative negligence defense applicable to all damage claims under the Convention. Therefore, if the passenger's negligence or other wrongful act or omission contributed to the damage claimed, the airline's liability will be reduced by the percentage of fault allocated to that passenger [Montreal Convention, Art. 20 (1999)].

Subject to this comparative negligence defense [Montreal Convention, Art. 20 (1999)], in claims for the death of or injury to passengers not exceeding 100,000 Special Drawing Rights for each passenger, an airline does not otherwise have the right to limit its liability [Montreal Convention, Art. 21, § 1 (1999)]. A "special drawing right" (SDR) is a monetary exchange unit calculated by the International Monetary Fund [Montreal Convention, Art. 23, § 1 (1999)], and current exchange rates are available at the Fund's web site, www.imf.org. As of mid-2004, 100,000 SDRs were equivalent to about $150,000 in U.S. dollars. Article 23 of the Convention provides further rules for calculating and converting SDRs [Montreal Convention, Art. 23 (1999)].

For injury or death claims above 100,000 SDRs per passenger, an airline may be exonerated from liability in excess of that amount if it proves either that the damage was not caused by the negligence or other wrongful act or omission of the airline or its servants or agents, or that the damage was caused solely by the negligence or other wrongful act or omission of a third party [Montreal Convention, Art. 21 (1999)]. Therefore, unlike under the Warsaw Convention, a plaintiff is not required to prove willful misconduct to recover an amount in excess of the base damages cap [see [1][d][ii], above]. The Montreal Convention does not allow the recovery of punitive damages or other noncompensatory damages [Montreal Convention, Art. 29 (1999)]. The Convention also places specified limits on liability for damage caused to damage or cargo, and for damage caused by delay [see Montreal Convention, Art. 22 (1999)].

If an action is brought against servants or agents of the airline arising out of damage within the coverage of the Convention, these servants and agents are entitled to invoke the full conditions and liability limits of the Convention, so long as they prove they acted within the scope of their employment [Montreal Convention, Art. 30, § 1 (1999)]. In those cases, the aggregates of the amounts recoverable from the airline and its servants and agents may not exceed the limits specified in the Convention [Montreal Convention, Art. 30, § 2 (1999)]. However, except for claims relating to cargo damage, a servant or agent who acts with intent to cause damage, or recklessly and with knowledge that damage will probably result, is not protected by the limits and conditions of the Convention [Montreal Convention, Art. 30, § 3 (1999)].

Although the Montreal Convention provides that passengers must be notified in advance of the applicability of the liability limits of the Convention, failure to comply with this notice requirement does not affect the applicability of the Convention or its liability limits [Montreal Convention, Art. 9 (1999)].

An airline is free to contract with passengers to provide for higher limits of liability than those specified in the Convention [Montreal Convention, Art. 25 (1999)]. However, any contractual provision attempting to relieve the airline of liability, or to fix a lower limit of liability than what is specified in the Convention, is void, although in those instances other provisions of the contract that do not run afoul of the terms of the Convention may still be enforced [Montreal Convention, Art. 26 (1999)]. All actions that fall within the scope of the Montreal Convention are subject to its conditions and limitations, regardless of whether the action is brought under the Convention, under contract law, or under tort law [Montreal Convention, Art. 29 (1999)].

Under the Montreal Convention of 1999, an action for damages must be brought in the territory of a ratifying nation in one of the following jurisdictions [Montreal Convention, Art. 33 (1999)]:

- The domicile of the airline.
- The airline's principal place of business.
- The place where the airline has a place of business and through which the contract for carriage was made.
- The place of destination.
- If the action is for damages for death or injury to a passenger, the principal and permanent residence of the passenger, so long as the airline operates passenger services in that jurisdiction, either on its own planes or on the planes of another carrier through a commercial agreement, and the airline conducts its business from premises leased or owned by the airline or by another airline with which the airline has a commercial agreement.

The parties to the carriage contract may also stipulate in writing that any dispute relating to the liability of the carrier under the Convention will be settled through arbitration, although arbitration must still take place in one of the jurisdictions described above [Montreal Convention, Art. 34, § 1 (1999)].

[e] Statute of Limitations

A plaintiff must bring an action under the Montreal Convention of 1999 within two years after the date of arrival at the destination, the date the aircraft ought to have arrived, or the date on which the carriage stopped, calculated according to the laws of the court with jurisdiction over the action [Montreal Convention, Art. 35 (1999)].

§ 16.18 Airline Passenger Complaints

[1] Denial of Boarding

Airlines routinely provide reservations for more passengers than there are seats on the aircraft. The airline tries to compute how many no-shows will occur on each flight, and then overbooks sufficient seats to allow a full airplane on each flight. The predictions occasionally miscarry and more passengers with confirmed reservations present themselves for boarding than the aircraft can accommodate. A judicial remedy was first established when a gate agent attempting to deal with an overbooked flight made perhaps the worst decision in the history of customer relations by electing to bump consumer activist Ralph Nader. In Nader v. Allegheny Airlines (1976) 426 U.S. 290, 292-307, 96 S. Ct. 1978, 48 L. Ed. 2d 643 , the United States Supreme Court established a judicial remedy for denied boarding.

The Department of Transportation has since established regulations for airlines to follow in such circumstances. These regulations have been held not to pre-empt certain state law remedies, and a passenger may decline the airline's offer of cash or free tickets and file suit [West v. Northwest Airlines (9th Cir. 1993) 995 F.2d 148, 151] . The federal Airline Degregulation Act (49 U.S.C.S. § 41713(b)) may also preempt some disputes, depending on the legal theory on which the dispute rests [see American Airlines v. Wolens (1995) 513 U.S. 219, 232-233, 115 S. Ct 817, 130 L. Ed. 2d 715 (breach of contract claims were not preempted, but action under state consumer fraud statute was preempted); Margolis vs. United Airlines (E.D. Mich. 1993) 811 F. Supp 318 ; see discussion in § 16.10[6]].

In addition, federal law authorizes an airline to refuse to transport a passenger if the carrier believes that passenger is or might be inimical to safety [49 U.S.C.S. § 44902]. However, although an airline has broad discretion under this statute in deciding when to refuse to transport a passenger for safety reasons, an airline's refusal to transport can give rise to a claim for damages if the refusal is arbitrary or capricious [Rubin v. United Air Lines, Inc. (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 364, 378, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 109 (airline's refusal to transport passenger was reasonable)].

[2] Lost Luggage

Airlines attempt to limit their baggage liability by the contract printed on the ticket. Although the courts will enforce such limitations, they will hold the carrier strictly to its published tariff rules. For example, a passenger sued for loss of her late husband's ashes, which had been checked as luggage. The airline was not entitled to partial summary judgment to limit its exposure to $1,250, its published tariff, because it had breached its own rule--that valuables should be carried on rather than checked--by not allowing the passenger to carry the remains as carry-on luggage (the package met all size requirements) [Coughlin v. Trans World Airlines, Inc. (9th Cir. 1988) 847 F.2d 1432] .

In another human remains case, in which the plaintiff claimed emotional distresss arising from the alleged mishandling of a corpse and casket, the airline was entitled to summary judgment because it established that it had complied with its tariff. The plaintiff had been properly notified of the tariff and had not taken the opportunity to declare a higher valuation than the $0.50 per pound provided on the airbill [Reece v. Delta Air Lines, Inc. (D. Me. 1990) 731 F. Supp. 1131] .

Even in factually compelling cases, the courts have enforced the tariff. In one cae, for example, Federal Express lost a blood sample necessary to match bone marrow for a waiting 13-year-old cancer patient. The lost sample prevented a timely bone marrow transplant, and the child died. Because Federal Express had presented the shipper with the opportunity to declare a higher value, the court limited the plaintiffs' damages to that printed on the waybill: $100 [Hampton v. Federal Express (8th Cir. 1990) 917 F.2d 1119], When that opportunity has not been available the courts have allowed recovery of the full value of the goods [Welliver v. Federal Express (S.D. N.Y. 1990) 737 F. Supp. 205] .

[3] Injuries Due to Falling Carry-On Bags

Many frequent flyers, apparently believing that there are two kinds of luggage, carry-on and lost, routinely bring as much luggage on board as possible. While FAA regulations require airlines to limit the size, number, and weight of carry-on luggage [14 C.F.R. § 121.589], the overhead bins are often filled to and beyond capacity. Periodically, luggage falls from the bin and injures a passenger.

The courts have been reluctant to hold airlines liable for such claims, despite the high duty of care imposed on air carriers [see § 16.11[2][b]]. In Haley v. United Airlines (D. Md. 1989) 728 F. Supp 374 , a passenger rushing to get up before the plane had stopped at the gate opened a bin, allowing a briefcase to fall and strike another passenger. The court held that the airline had met its duty of care, because the flight attendants had made the proper announcements warning passengers to remain seated and had attempted to stop the eager passenger from opening the bin [Haley v. United Airlines (D. Md. 1989) 728 F. Supp 374 ; see also Ginter v. TWA (3rd Dept. 1989) 148 A.D. 2d 787, 538 N.Y.S.2d 638, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2137 (plaintiff had failed to prove negligence when airline established that luggage in question complied with size and weight limitations, that flight attendants had made proper announcements, and had ensured that bins were closed prior to flight)].

The Ninth Circuit has held that it is a jury question whether or not the airline has a duty to install netting in the overhead bins given numerous prior reports of falling bags or whether the standard pre-landing warnings given by the flight attendants are sufficient [Andrews v. United Airlines (9th Cir. 1994) 24 F.3d 39] .

§ 16.19 Aviation Insurance

Aviation insurance, while similar in broad concept to that available for automobiles, contains many differences of which counsel should be aware [see Ch. 308, Insurance , and California Insurance Law and Practice, Ch. 41, Liability Insurance in General (Matthew Bender), for a discussion of liability insurance in general; for discussion of aviation insurance, see California Insurance Law and Practice, Ch. 45, Aviation Insurance (Matthew Bender)]. The typical coverages available under an aviation policy are public liability for personal injury, public liability for property damage, first-party hull coverage, and medical payments. The public liability for personal injury may either include or exclude coverage for claims made by passengers, or may have lower liability limits for claims by passengers.

The first-party hull coverage is analogous to automobile collision insurance, but will often have a split deductible which is higher or lower depending upon whether or not the aircraft is in motion at the time of the loss.

The most significant differences between aircraft insurance and automobile insurance are that there is no required policy language and that the omnibus clause which provides coverage to permissive users is not nearly as broad for aircraft insurance. Typically, in policies on individually owned aircraft, renter pilots, or anyone else using the aircraft under the terms of a rental agreement or other compensatory scheme, are not insureds under the primary policy unless the rental agreement or lease is expressly disclosed to the company. Likewise, permissive users are often not insured under the hull provisions, and the insurance company reserves the right to subrogate against a permissive user who damages the aircraft. In addition, several classes of permissive users are routinely excluded, such as those in aviation businesses providing pilot or flight instruction services and mechanics on test flights.

Apart from insurance available to aircraft owners, policies are available to hanger keepers and maintenance facilities, and these policies are similar to garage keepers' policies. The lack of coverage to renter pilots has created "non-ownership coverage," which provides renter and other nonowner pilots with coverage while flying airplanes owned by others. These coverages may contain both personal liability and protection for claims by a subrogating hull insurer. The Public Utilities Code requires that renters be advised of the coverage available to them [see Pub. Util. Code § 24362]. There is no requirement, however, that the insurance be provided by the owner. The Code also requires that renters either have insurance or post a bond in the event of an accident [see Pub. Util. Code §§ 24326, 24327, 24350, 24362(b)]. Such insurance need not cover claims by guest passengers [Pub. Util. Code § 24351(c); see Grubb v. Ranger Ins. Co. (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 526, 532, 143 Cal. Rptr. 558] . Similarly, the insurance or bond need not cover any liability for bodily injury or death associated with skydiving or sport parachuting, if the injury or death is solely related to the hazardous risks associated with those activities [Pub. Util. Code § 24351(d)].

Primary aviation liability policies generally come in two types. The first provides a relatively low coverage per occupant ($100,000 is typical) with a total occurrence coverage equal to the number of seats (often excluding the pilot seat) times the occupant limit. A second common limit is a high combined single limit (typically $1,000,000), which may or may not have a lower sublimit (typically $100,000) for claims made by passengers. It is rare to find primary insurance coverage for general aviation aircraft exceeding $1,000,000. Excess insurance is, however, readily available.

Aviation policies are substantially more restrictive than automobile policies. These restrictions are found in three areas. First, the pilot warranty clause will limit, either expressly by name or at least by qualifications, the pilots who may operate the aircraft without voiding the policy. California courts have enforced pilot warranty clauses so long as the restrictions are unambiguous [National Ins. Underwriters v. Carter (1976)17 Cal. 3d 380, 385, 131 Cal. Rptr. 42, 551 P.2d 362] . The failure of the pilot to have a current medical certificate as required by the policy can bar coverage even without a causal connection between the pilot's health and the accident [National Union Fire Insurance Co. v. Estate of Meyer (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 866, 872, 237 Cal. Rptr. 632] .

The use of the aircraft may be limited to a particular stated F.A.A. category or use, and the violation of the use provision need not be causally related to the accident to bar coverage [Ins. Code § 11584; Middlesex Mutual Ins. Co. v. Bright (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 282, 165 Cal. Rptr. 45 ; see also Roberts v. Underwriters at Lloyds London (S.D. Idaho 1961) 195 F. Supp. 168, 171] . Policies also require that the aircraft be either the specific aircraft insured or a temporary substitute aircraft used for a limited period of time, unlike auto insurance aviation policies do not cover an aircraft owner regardless of what airplane is being flown.

Aviation policies inevitably require that the aircraft have a current airworthiness certificate and have complied with the other Federal Air Regulations concerning airworthiness [see Ins. Code § 11584; Threlkeld v. Ranger Insurance Co. (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 1, 6-8, 202 Cal. Rptr. 529] . California law generally prohibits exclusion of losses simply because a Federal Air Regulation was violated, except that certain regulations pertaining to the qualifications of the pilot or the aircraft or the use of the aircraft (as noted above) are specifically excluded from this restriction [Ins. Code § 11584].

§ 16.20 September 11 Victim Compensation Fund of 2001

On September 11, 2001, terrorists hijacked four airplanes bound for California from the East Coast. Two, designated as American Airlines Flight 11 and United Airlines Flight 175, were flown into the twin towers of the World Trade Center in New York City, destroying both buildings and killing approximately 3,000 people. Another, designated as American Airlines Flight 77, was flown into the Pentagon in Arlington, Virginia, killing approximately 200 people. The fourth, designated as United Airlines Flight 93, crashed in a field near Shanksville, Pennsylvania, killing all on board, after the passengers apparently overpowered the hijackers.

Eleven days after the attacks, Congress enacted and the President signed the Air Transportation Safety and System Stabilization Act [Pub. L. No. 107-42 (H.R. 2926), 115 Stat. 230 (Sept. 22, 2001), codified at 49 U.S.C.S. § 40101 note]. Along with compensating air carriers for losses incurred as a result of the attacks, the bill established the "September 11 Victim Compensation Fund of 2001" [Title IV of Pub. L. No. 107-42, §§ 401-409, 115 Stat. 237-241]. On December 19, 2001, the Department of Justice filed interim final regulations governing administration of the Fund, which allowed the Fund to begin operating and to pay benefits [September 11th Victim Compensation Fund of 2001; Interim Final Rule, 66 Fed. Reg. 66273-66291 (Dec. 21, 2001) , published at 28 C.F.R. Part 104]. Final regulations were published on March 13, 2002 [September 11th Victim Compensation Fund of 2001; Final Rule, 67 Fed. Reg. 11233-11247 (Mar. 13, 2002) , amending certain sections of 28 C.F.R. Part 104].

The purpose of the September 11th Victim Compensation Fund is "to provide compensation to any individual (or relative of a deceased individual) who was physically injured or killed as a result of the terrorist--related aircraft crashes of September 11, 2001" [Pub. L. No. 107-42, § 403]. Eligibility for benefits is limited to (1) the personal representatives of those, other than the hijackers, on board the hijacked planes; (2) those who were physically present at the World Trade Center, the Pentagon, or the Shanksville, Pennsylvania crash site at the time of the crashes, within 12 hours after the crash, or, in the case of rescue workers, 96 hours after the crash, and who suffered personal injury as a result of the crash; and (3) the personal representatives of those physically present at the crash sites who died as a result of the crashes [Pub. L. No. 107-42, § 405(c)(2); 28 C.F.R. § 104.2(a), (b), (e)]. Those claiming physical injury must verify with contemporaneous medical records that they received medical treatment within 24 hours of injury or rescue, or within 72 hours for those victims unable to receive medical attention immediately or to realize the extent of their injuries [28 C.F.R. § 104.2(c)]. They must also show that they either suffered physical disability, incapacity, or disfigurement, or were hospitalized as an in-patient for at least 24 hours [28 C.F.R. § 104.2(c)]. Those suffering only emotional distress are not eligible for compensation.

The Fund is intended to provide a no-fault administrative remedy as an alternative to tort litigation arising from the crashes. Accordingly, in making compensation determinations, the Fund is not to consider negligence or any other theory of liability [Pub. L. No. 107-42, § 405(b)(2)]. In addition, anyone seeking compensation under the Fund waives the right to file suit in any state or federal court for damages suffered as a result of the crashes, except for actions to recover collateral source obligations or suits against those knowingly involved in the hijackings or other terrorist acts [Pub. L. No. 107-42, §§ 405(c)(3)(B)(I), 408(c); 28 C.F.R. § 104.61(a)]. The exception allowing suits against the terrorists responsible for the attacks did not appear in the interim final regulations, nor does it expressly appear in the waiver provision in § 405(c)(3)(B) of the Act, despite the statement in the final regulations to the contrary [see 28 C.F.R. § 104.21(d)]. Any claimant who has filed such an action must have withdrawn it by March 21, 2002, to retain eligibility under the Fund [Pub. L. No. 107-42, § 405(c)(3)(B)(ii); 28 C.F.R. § 104.61(b)].

An injured party or personal representative who decides to forgo compensation under the Fund and pursue a tort action instead must file the action in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, pursuant to an exclusive federal cause of action for damages [Pub. L. No. 107-42, § 408(b)]. Borrowing the Federal Tort Claim Act's choice-of-law scheme, the Act provides that tort suits must be governed by the substantive law, including choice of law principles, of the state in which the crash occurred, unless inconsistent with or preempted by federal law [Pub. L. No. 107-42, § 408(b)(2)]. The liability of any air carrier for all such tort claims is limited to the amount of liability insurance coverage that it maintains [Pub. L. No. 107-42, § 408(a)].

Those choosing to pursue administrative compensation from the Fund must submit a claim by December 22, 2003 [Pub. L. No. 107-42, § 405(a)(3); 28 C.F.R. § 104.62]. Only one claim may be filed by an injured person or on behalf of a decedent [Pub. L. No. 107-42, § 405(c)(3)(A)]. A claim is deemed "filed" for purposes of the two-year limitations period when a Claims Evaluator for the Fund determines that the claimant has submitted a substantially complete "Eligibility Form," or, if the claimant does not submit an "Application for Advanced Benefits" along with the Eligibility Form, when the Claims Evaluator determines that the claimant has submitted a substantially complete "Personal Injury Compensation Form" or "Death Compensation Form" along with the Eligibility Form [28 C.F.R. § 104.21(a)]. If the Claims Evaluator does not deem the forms submitted to be complete, and therefore "filed," the Evaluator must notify the claimant of any deficiency [28 C.F.R. § 104.31(a)]. These provisions raise the possibility that a claim will be found untimely, even if submitted by the due date, because insufficient information was provided before the deadline of December 22, 2003.

A copy of the Eligibility Form and Application for Advanced Benefits may be obtained by calling (202) 305-1352 or (888) 714-3385, or may be obtained on-line at www.usdoj.gov/victimcompensation. The Personal Injury Compensation Form and Death Compensation Form will also be available through these sources. Claimants are required to provide proof of eligibility--that is, proof that they or their decedents were in the area of the crashes and suffered injury or death--as well as tax returns for the years 1998, 1999, and 2000, and information as to any funds received from collateral sources of compensation [Pub. L. No. 107-42, § 405(a)(2)(B); 28 C.F.R. §§ 104.31(b)(3), 104.31(c)(1)]. Claimants may also submit other evidence that they deem relevant to the determination of their economic and noneconomic losses [28 C.F.R. § 104.31(c); 28 C.F.R. § 104.31(c)(2)].

The information submitted by the claimant will be used by the Special Master administering the Fund, or the Special Master's designee, to calculate a presumed award for economic and noneconomic loss [28 C.F.R. §§ 104.43-104.46]. The Special Master has issued Presumed Economic and Noneconomic Loss Tables to guide this process, and to give potential claimants an idea of the awards they are likely to receive. These tables, which may be accessed at http://www.usdoj.gov/victimcompensation/vc_matrices.pdf, set forth a number of assumptions as to wage growth, expected work life, consumption factors, and the long-term, risk-free interest rate. Noneconomic losses are presumed to be $250,000 for decedents, plus an additional $100,000 for the spouse and each dependent of the deceased victim [28 C.F.R. § 104.44]. For example, the presumed award for a 45-year-old married decedent with two dependent children, earning $100,000 per year, is approximately $1.8 million.

Claimants may opt for one of two procedural tracks. Under "Track A," a Claims Evaluator will determine the claimant's eligibility and the amount of the presumed award within 45 days after the claim is filed. The claimant may then either accept the presumed award as the final determination, or request a hearing before the Special Master or the Special Master's designee [28 C.F.R. § 104.31(b)(1)]. Under "Track B," the Claims Evaluator will notify the claimant of eligibility but will not calculate a presumed award, and the claim will proceed directly to a hearing [28 C.F.R. § 104.31(b)(2)]. Thus, under both tracks, the claimant will have a chance at some point to present evidence specific to his or her particular situation that calls for an award different from the presumed award, and there is no cap placed on the compensation that can be received.

As required by the enabling statute, the amount of any award must be reduced by any compensation received from a collateral source, such as life insurance, death benefits, pension funds, or payments by government agencies [Pub. L. No. 107-42, § 405(b)(6); 28 C.F.R. § 104.47(a)]. Charitable donations are not considered collateral sources subject to this offset [28 C.F.R. § 104.47(b)]. The awards are not subject to federal taxation [26 U.S.C.S. § 139(f)].

The determination of the Special Master following a hearing is final and is not subject to review or appeal [Pub. L. No. 107-42, § 405(b)(3); 28 C.F.R. §§ 104.31(b)(2), 104.33(g)].

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

2-16 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 16.33

AUTHOR: By Peter Axelrod, J.D. and George M. Moore, J.D.

§ 16.33 Decisions

[1] Damages

Measure of damages for negligent injury to personal property (airplane) as reasonable market value of property destroyed. Shook v. Beals (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 963, 974, 217 P.2d 56

[2] Defenses

Release signed by passengers 30 minutes before taking sightseeing tour over Santa Barbara was enforced as defense to suit for injuries suffered when plane malfunctioned; no public policy reason existed for not enforcing release, as public interest was not implicated by activity of sightseeing tours. Booth v. Santa Barbara Biplane Tours, LLC (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1173, 1179, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 660

Availability of defense of contributory negligence to defendant air carrier in action by passenger. Dziura v. California Aviation Service, Inc. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 191, 197-198, 84 Cal. Rptr. 191

Action of plaintiff as required to be as reprehensible as that of defendant to constitute defense to willful misconduct. Dziura v. California Aviation Service, Inc. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 191, 198, 84 Cal. Rptr. 191

Passenger as not contributorily negligent in riding with pilot where pilot was experienced expert licensed to operate plane and able to determine if weather conditions permitted safe trip. Doyle v. Hamren (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 733, 737, 55 Cal. Rptr. 84

Victim's actual knowledge of particular danger (knowledge of magnitude of risk involved) as necessary element of proof in doctrine of assumption of risk. Vierra v. Fifth Avenue Rental Service (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 266, 271, 32 Cal. Rptr. 193, 383 P.2d 777 (plaintiff injured by piece of flying metal from tool)

Requirement of actual appreciation of known danger in defense of assumption of risk. Dziura v. California Aviation Service, Inc. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 191, 202, 84 Cal. Rptr. 191

[3] Ground Accidents

Liability for collisions of aircraft on ground. Johnson v. Central Aviation Corp. (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 102, 110-111, 229 P.2d 114 ; Robart v. Brehmer (1949) 92 Cal. App. 2d 830, 833, 207 P.2d 898

Mere fact airplane crashes into field as not subjecting owner of field to any liability for plane's safekeeping; pilot as responsible to owner for any damage caused by crash, but not for trespass. Gordon H. Ball, Inc. v. Parreira (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 697, 702, 29 Cal. Rptr. 679

Owner of field in which airplane crashes as having right to lien [Code Civ. Proc. § 1208.61] for storage and safekeeping of airplane. Gordon H. Ball, Inc. v. Parreira (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 697, 703, 29 Cal. Rptr. 679

Owner of field as implied bailee of downed airplane, bound to exercise reasonable care for safekeeping, where such owner refuses to permit removal of the airplane until damages are paid. Gordon H. Ball, Inc. v. Parreira (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 697, 704-705, 29 Cal. Rptr. 679

[4] Jurisdiction

State court as having in personam jurisdiction over financing institution conducting financing of purchase and sale of aircraft within state. Michigan Nat. Bank v. Superior Court (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 1, 6, 99 Cal. Rptr. 823

[5] Interest in Aircraft

Federal law as preempting inconsistent state law in area of recordation of interests in aircraft and components. International Atlas Services, Inc. v. Twentieth Century Aircraft Co. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 434, 440, 59 Cal. Rptr. 495

[6] International Travel

Effect of Montreal Agreement [CAB 18,900] on Warsaw Convention [49 Stat. 3000]. Mathias v. Pan--American World Airways, Inc. (W.D. Pa. 1971) 53 F.R.D. 447, 449 n.4

[7] Liability

[a] Ordinary Rules Apply

Ordinary rules of negligence as applicable to airplane accident cases. Boyd v. White (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 641, 651, 276 P.2d 92

[b] Crop Dusting

Liability for negligent crop dusting. Lenk v. Spezia (1949) 95 Cal. App. 2d 296, 300, 213 P.2d 47 ; Miles v. A. Arena & Co. (1937) 23 Cal. App. 2d 680, 683, 73 P.2d 1260 ; see also Adams v. Henning (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 376, 378,

255 P.2d 456

[c] Ground Personnel

Federal air traffic controller as required to give all information and warnings specified in his or her manuals, and in certain situations to give warnings beyond those manuals. Spaulding v. United States (9th Cir. 1972) 455 F.2d 222, 226

Standard of care required of ground personnel. Spaulding v. United States (9th Cir. 1972) 455 F.2d 222, 226

[d] Manufacturers, Retailers, Bailors

Requirements for imposing strict liability in tort. Greenman v. Yuba Power Products, Inc. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 57, 62, 27 Cal. Rptr. 697, 377 P.2d 897 (against manufacturer for defective power tool); Vandermark v. Ford Motor Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 256, 263, 37 Cal. Rptr. 896, 391 P.2d 168 (against retailer for defective auto)

Aircraft manufacturer as liable for negligence in producing defective product. North American Aviation v. Hughes (9th Cir. 1957) 247 F.2d 517, 521

Liability of aircraft manufacturer for breach of warranties. Delta Air Lines, Inc. v. Douglas Aircraft Co. (1956) 238 Cal. App. 2d 95, 98, 47 Cal. Rptr. 518 (express warranty); Lindberg v. Coutches (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 828, 831 , 334 P.2d 701 (implied warranty)

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as applicable to bailors and lessors of personal property. Price v. Shell Oil Co. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 245, 253, 85 Cal. Rptr. 178, 466 P.2d 722

Civil remedy based on imputed negligence against owner of plane not provided by Federal Aviation Act [former 49 U.S.C.S. §§ 1301-1542]. Nachsin v. De La Bretonne (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 637, 638, 639, 95 Cal. Rptr. 227

Evidence of compensation or tangible benefit flowing to, or authorization by, employer as necessary to avoid directed verdict in favor of defendant on issue of whether negligent pilot was acting within scope of employment. Broyles v. Jess (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 841, 846-847, 20 Cal. Rptr. 355

[f] Pilot

Pilot as directly and finally responsible for operation of aircraft, but as dependent on ground personnel for those facts that are material to operation of plane. Spaulding v. United States (9th Cir. 1972) 455 F.2d 222, 226

Recovery by passenger from pilot on basis of negligence. Doyle v. Hamren (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 733, 739, 55 Cal. Rptr. 84

[g] Property Damage

Shipper's action against air carrier for property damage as barred by failure to present timely claim when shipper failed to make written claim for destroyed goods within seven days of receipt of shipment and notice of claim limitation in carrier's air tariff and in Warsaw Convention (49 Stat. 3000); fact that shipper did not receive actual notice of limitation period as not violative of due process. Talei v. Pan American World Airways (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 904, 909-911, 183 Cal. Rptr. 532

[8] Passenger's Valuables

Air carrier as entitled to limit its liability for loss or destruction of luggage only if it allows passenger to protect luggage by either carrying it on board or purchasing excess valuation insurance; ticket agent's refusal to allow widow to carry husband's cremated remains on board as violative of foregoing rule and of tariff requiring that valuables be personally carried by passenger, and as rendering unenforceable tariff's limitation on airline's liability. Coughlin v. Trans World Airlines, Inc. (9th Cir. 1988) 847 F.2d 1432, 1433-1434

[9] Res Ipsa Loquitur

[a] Availability and Elements

Res ipsa loquitur applied as matter of law to wrongful death action arising out of airplane crash. Newing v. Cheatham (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 351, 364, 124 Cal. Rptr. 193, 540 P.2d 33

Application of doctrine if airplane has dual controls. Parker v. James Granger Inc. (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 668, 675-676, 52 P.2d 226 ; Ayer v. Boyle (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 822, 828-829, 112 Cal. Rptr. 636

Doctrine as unavailable in action regarding injury arising from encounter with air turbulence. Kohler v. Aspen Airways, Inc. (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 1193, 1202, 214 Cal. Rptr. 720

Elements of doctrine of res ipsa loquitur. Gotcher v. Metcalf (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 96, 102, 85 Cal. Rptr. 566

Unavailability of res ipsa loquitur in action involving midair plane crash where plaintiff sues only one of two pilots. Gotcher v. Metcalf (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 96, 104, 85 Cal. Rptr. 566

Availability of res ipsa loquitur in action against carrier for personal injuries suffered by passenger. Roberts v. Trans World Airlines (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 344, 351-352, 37 Cal. Rptr. 291

[b] Rebutting Presumption

Evidence of specific negligence by defendants as not depriving plaintiff of res ipsa loquitur presumption; presumption of negligence raised by violation of statute as coexisting with res ipsa loquitur presumption. Mittelman v. Seifert (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 51, 80, 94 Cal. Rptr. 654

Alternative methods of rebutting res ipsa loquitur presumption. Roberts v. Trans World Airlines (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 344, 352, 37 Cal. Rptr. 291 ; see also Mittelman v. Seifert (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 51, 80, 94 Cal. Rptr. 654

Conjecture or speculation by defendant as insufficient to rebut res ipsa loquitur presumption. Roberts v. Trans World Airlines (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 344, 353-355, 37 Cal. Rptr. 291

Evidence that airline employees conformed with standard operating procedures as not per se rebutting res ipsa loquitur presumption since carrier's own rules do not fix standard of care. Roberts v. Trans World Airlines (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 344, 356, 37 Cal. Rptr. 291

Necessity of substantial evidence to rebut res ipsa liquitur presumption to support defense verdict on appeal. Roberts v. Trans World Airlines (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 344, 353, 37 Cal. Rptr. 291

[10] Standard of Care

Common carrier by air as required to use utmost care for safe carriage of passengers. Smith v. O'Donnell (1932) 215 Cal. 714, 720, 12 P.2d 933

Operation of unlicensed aircraft [Pub. Util. Code § 21411] as creating rebuttable presumption of failure to exercise due care; proof thereof as shifting burden of proof to defendant [Evid. Code § 669]. Ayer v. Boyle (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 822, 828, 112 Cal. Rptr. 636

Evidence of custom in industry or business as not establishing standard of care in aircraft accidents. Diamond v. Grow (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 396, 401-402, 52 Cal. Rptr. 265

Standard of care required of private aircraft operators as ordinary care. Boyd v. White (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 641, 651, 276 P.2d 92 ; also Robart v. Brehmer (1949) 92 Cal. App. 2d 830, 832-833, 207 P.2d 898

[11] State Regulation

State Aeronautics Act (Pub. Util. Code § 21001 et seq.) as not improper delegation of legislative power. People v. Valenti (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 35, 37-39 , 200 Cal. Rptr. 862

[12] Violation of Statutes and Regulations

Jury finding that airplane design violated FAA regulations as sufficient to impose liability on manufacturer based on presumption of negligence [Evid. Code § 669(a)], notwithstanding FAA certification of compliance with standard. Elsworth v. Beech Aircraft Corp. (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 540, 549-552, 208 Cal. Rptr. 874, 691 P.2d 630

Application of California law's presumption of negligence [Evid. Code § 669] for violation of FAA design standard in action against manufacturer of airplane as not preempted by federal law when application of state law neither poses irreconcilable conflict with federal standard nor frustrates objectives of federal law. Elsworth v. Beech Aircraft Corp. (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 540, 549-550, 208 Cal. Rptr. 874, 691 P.2d 630

Violations of applicable state or federal flight rules as bearing on existence of negligence or willful misconduct; general law of negligence as applying to any matter not covered by specific law or applicable regulation. Mittelman v. Seifert (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 51, 68, 94 Cal. Rptr. 654

Negligence per se as not established by evidence of noncompliance with advisory safety orders of federal agency. Diamond v. Grow (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 396, 400, 52 Cal. Rptr. 265

Compliance with FAA regulations as element of proof to overcome res ipsa loquitur presumption. Roberts v. Trans World Airlines (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 344, 357, 37 Cal. Rptr. 291

[13] Wrongful Death

Federal court jurisdiction as concurrent with state jurisdiction to hear Death on High Seas Act (DOHSA; 46 U.S.C.S. § 30301 et seq.) actions; thus, state court has jurisdiction to hear cause of action under DOHSA for accidents occurring more than one marine league from shore; however, state statutes as preempted by DOHSA whenever it applies. Offshore Logistics v. Tallentire (1986) 477 U.S. 207, 221, 232-233, 106 S. Ct. 2485 91 L. Ed. 2d 174

Flight attendants actively working on aircraft that crashed as not receiving "transportation as passengers" within meaning of Warsaw Convention, 49 U.S.C.S. § 40105, so that personal representatives not entitled to bring wrongful death action against airline. In re Mexico City Aircrash of October 31, 1979 (9th Cir. 1983) 708 F.2d 400, 417

In wrongful death action against owner of rented airplane that crashed, summary adjudication of no liability as proper in cause of action for negligence per se based on owner's noncompliance with Pub. Util. Code § 24362 (requiring written notice of insurance coverage), because owner had met minimum insurance requirements of Pub. Util. Code § 24350 and had filed certificate of insurance, so that, under Pub. Util. Code § 24243(f), notice requirements of Pub. Util. Code § 24362 were not applicable. Franks v. Amelia Reid Aviation (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1207, 1209-1210, 210 Cal. Rptr. 127

Meretricious spouse (unmarried cohabitant) is not heir who may bring action for wrongful death under former Code Civ. Proc. 377 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60). Harrod v. Pacific Southwest Airlines, Inc. (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 155, 157, 173 Cal. Rptr. 68 (action for wrongful death of person killed in airplane crash)

Former Code Civ. Proc. § 377 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60) as only statute creating right to cause of action for wrongful death, limiting recovery to heirs of decedent. Knowlton v. Pacific Southwest Airlines (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 152, 154, 169 Cal. Rptr. 668 (employer as having no cause of action under former Code Civ. Proc. § 377 (*now see Code Civ. [15] Duties and Liability of Airport

Liability of owner or operator of airport as governed by general rules of negligence. Pignet v. City of Santa Monica (1938) 29 Cal. App. 2d 286, 287, 84 P.2d 166

Duty to provide safe premises. Gray v. America West Airlines, Inc. (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 76, 85-88, 256 Cal. Rptr. 877 ; Strong v. Chronicle Pub. Co. (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d 335, 339-340, 93 P.2d 649

Complaint for damages for injury to lessee's property by airport fire as not subject to general demurrer by defendant public entity when it charges nonpublic entity with negligent conduct in starting fire and public entity defendant with permitting dangerous condition of storage of gasoline and other highly combustible chemicals on its property without fire protection, with notice of such condition, and alleges such dangerous condition to be nuisance. Vedder v. County of Imperial (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 654, 658-661, 111 Cal. Rptr. 728

Duty to keep runways free from obstructions. Pignet v. City of Santa Monica (1938) 29 Cal. App. 2d 286, 288, 84 P.2d 166 ; Miller v. County of Contra Costa (1951) 106 Cal. App. 2d 304, 306, 235 P.2d 76

[16] Eminent Domain and Inverse Condemnation

Actual diminution in value of property due to frequent low takeoffs as entitling landowner to compensation under theory of inverse condemnation. United States v. Causby (1946) 328 U.S. 256, 261, 66 S. Ct. 1062, 90 L. Ed. 1206 ; City of Oakland v. Nutter (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 752, 762-763, 92 Cal. Rptr. 347 ; Sneed v. County of Riverside (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 205, 210, 32 Cal. Rptr. 318

Municipality is not liable for inverse condemnation when interference is so insubstantial that it does not result in measurable diminution of property's market value. Andrews v. County of Orange (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 944, 961-962, 182 Cal. Rptr. 176

In action against municipal airport for inverse condemnation for damages to vacant property caused by noise from aircraft overflights, statute of limitations commenced to run on date plaintiff attempted to sell property rather than on date when noise from overflying aircraft stabilized. Smart v. City of Los Angeles (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 232, 235-239, 169 Cal. Rptr. 174

Cause of action based on avigation easement obtained by defendant city without just compensation. Sneed v. County of Riverside (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 205, 209, 32 Cal. Rptr. 318

Counties as empowered to obtain air easements through eminent domain proceedings to protect approaches to airports [former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1239.2, 1239.4]. Sneed v. County of Riverside (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 205, 208, 32 Cal. Rptr. 318

[17] Federal and State Regulation

Citizens' group consisting mainly of persons who live under flight paths of airport, whose purpose is to reduce airplane noise and danger by balancing service among two other nearby airports, as having standing to challenge constitutionality of statutory condition to transfer of operating control of two airports from federal government to local governments; statutory condition as creation of review board composed of members of Congress, having veto power over municipal board of directors; invalidation of condition would prevent enactment of proposed airport plan, implementation of which would would result in personal injury to them that is fairly traceable to review board's veto power; inasmuch as invalidation of veto power will prevent enactment of plan, requested relief as likely to redress group's alleged injury. Metro. Wash. Airports Auth. v. Citizens for Abatement of Aircraft Noise (1991) 501 U.S. 252, 263-266, 111 S. Ct. 2298, 115 L. Ed. 2d 236

Statutory condition to transfer of operating control of two airports in Washington D.C. area from federal government to local governments, consisting of creation of review board composed of members of Congress having veto power over municipal board of directors, as unconstitutional violation of separation-of-powers doctrine, despite provision that members of Congress serve in their individual capacities, as representatives of users of airports, and despite fact that condition was created by state government. Metro. Wash. Airports Auth. v. Citizens for Abatement of Aircraft Noise (1991) 501 U.S. 252, 266-276 . 111 S. Ct. 2298, 115 L. Ed. 2d 236

Federal preemption of right of city to enforce local ordinance prohibiting aircraft takeoffs at certain times. City of Burbank v. Lockheed Air Terminal (1973) 411 U.S. 624, 638-639, 93 S. Ct. 1854, 36 L. Ed. 2d 547

Pub. Util. Code §§ 21690.5-21690.10 and Gov. Code §§ 50470, 50474 as comprehensive scheme enunciating state policy to displace competition at municipal airports; airport facilities leased by city prohibiting lessee's sale of petroleum products at price in excess of that charged by city as protected by state action immunity and as not illegal restraint of trade. California Aviation, Inc. v. City of Santa Monica (9th Cir. 1986) 806 F.2d 905, 907-908

No conflict as existing between Pub. Util. Code § 21690.8 grant of authority to fix prices and Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act (15 U.S.C.S. §§ 751-760) as long as price fixed under authority of Pub. Util. Code § 21690.8 does not exceed federal guideline; thus, no preemption issue as presented. California Aviation, Inc. v. City of Santa Monica (9th Cir. 1986) 806 F.2d 905, 908-909

Pub. Util. Code §§ 21690.5-21690.10 as extending retroactive immunity to lease signed before enactment that fixed price of petroleum products. California Aviation, Inc. v. City of Santa Monica (9th Cir. 1986) 806 F.2d 905, 909

Federal law as not preempting all airport noise reduction ordinances enacted by municipal airport proprietor. Santa Monica Airport Ass'n v. City of Santa Monica (9th Cir. 1981) 659 F.2d 100, 104

Federal law as not preempting action for nuisance against city operating airport based on airport noise. Greater Westchester Homeowners Asso. v. Los Angeles (1979) 26 Cal. 3d 86, 93-100, 160 Cal. Rptr. 733, 603 P.2d 1329

State law negligence or other personal injury tort actions brought against airlines as not preempted by federal law if they do not interfere with federal regulation of rates, routes, and services. Romano v. American Trans Air (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 1637, 1644-1646, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 428 .

Federal law as preempting action for damages based on state tort law against city in city's capacity as owner of airport, when claim of dangerous condition of property is based on airport navigation facilities that, as matter of law, are regulated, approved, and controlled pursuant to Federal Aviation Act of 1958 (former 49 U.S.C.S. § 1301 et seq.) and its corresponding federal regulations. Bethman v. City of Ukiah (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1395, 1398, 1407-1409, 265 Cal. Rptr. 539

Federal regulation of airports engaged in interstate or foreign commerce; state regulation of intrastate operations of airports. Strother v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 525, 532-534, 211 P.2d 624

Doctrine of federal preemption in regulation of air traffic. Stagg v. Municipal Court (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 318, 321, 82 Cal. Rptr. 578

Neighboring community as having standing to sue under Airport and Airway Development Act [49 U.S.C.S. §§ 1701-1742], where city and federal government enter grant agreement for improvement of airport. City of Inglewood v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir. 1972) 451 F.2d 948, 955

[18] Municipal Regulation

Municipal ordinance requiring franchisees and lessees at city-owned airport to pay workers "no less than the prevailing rate of wage" as invalid when ordinance was impliedly inconsistent with original lease and use agreements and when city, by charter, had vested its limited proprietary powers over airport in Airports Commission. Air Cal, Inc. v. City and County of San Francisco (9th Cir. 1989) 865 F.2d 1112, 1115

[19] Nuisance

Nuisance cause of action against municipality for personal injuries and emotional distress caused by aircraft noise as not preempted by federal air space regulation. Greater Westchester Homeowners Asso. v. Los Angeles (1979) 26 Cal. 3d 86, 93-100, 160 Cal. Rptr. 733, 603 P.2d 1329 ; Smart v. City of Los Angeles (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 232, 239, 169 Cal. Rptr. 174

Nuisance action against airport as not precluded by Civ. Code § 3482, providing that things done under express authority of statute cannot be nuisance, because statute does not authorize maintaining airport that is so noisy as to be nuisance. Greater Westchester Homeowners Asso. v. Los Angeles (1979) 26 Cal. 3d 86, 100-102, 160 Cal. Rptr. 733, 603 P.2d 1329

Liability for nuisance based on Civ. Code § 3479 as not barred because defendant is governmental unit. Nestle v. City of Santa Monica (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 920, 937, 101 Cal. Rptr. 568, 496 P.2d 480 ; see also Mulloy v. Sharp Park Sanitary Dist. (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 438, 441, 330 P.2d 441

Public policy of state as against restrictions or interference with operations of airports which meet federal standards. Loma Portal Civic Club v. American Airlines, Inc. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 582, 589-590, 39 Cal. Rptr. 708, 394 P.2d 548

[3] Contents of Form

The complaint alleges:

- The identity of persons entitled under the statute to bring a wrongful death cause of action and their relationship to the decedent and, if the action is brought by the personal representative of the decedent's estate on behalf of these entitled persons, the capacity of the personal representative to do so (Paragraph 1) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60].

- The identity and capacity of the defendant and its agents and employees and any fictitiously named defendants (Paragraphs 2-4).

- A legal duty of care pursuant to Civ. Code § 2100 (Paragraph 5).

- A breach of duty (Paragraph 6).

- Injury to plaintiff's decedent proximately caused by such breach (Paragraph 7).

- General damages (pecuniary loss) [see Fields v. Riley (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 308, 313, 81 Cal. Rptr. 671] and funeral expenses (Paragraphs 8-10) [see Adams v. Southern Pacific Co. (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 731, 743-744, 53 P.2d 121] .

The allegation in Paragraph 6 that the accident occurred over California is not required to maintain the action. However, if the action arises from an accident on the high seas (more than three nautical miles from shore), it must be brought under the Death on the High Seas Act [see 46 U.S.C.S. § 30301 et seq.].

If the plaintiff is a minor, a guardian ad litem must be appointed for the purposes of the action, unless the minor already has a guardian [see Code Civ. Proc. § 372(a)]. For discussion and forms relating to appointment of a guardian ad litem generally, see Ch. 291, Guardians ad Litem .

[4] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded for this cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115].

[5] Wrongful Death Action

When the death of a person is caused by the wrongful act of negligence of another, certain persons, or a personal representative on their behalf, may bring an action for damages against the person causing the death and any other person responsible (or their personal representatives) [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60]. Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60 permits decedent's surviving spouse, domestic partner, children, and issue of deceased children to bring a wrongful death action without qualification and permits others to bring an action under specified circumstances. For forms of allegations establishing that specific classes of persons are entitled to bring a wrongful death action, including allegations that are required of plaintiffs who are not the decedent's surviving spouse, domestic partner, children, or issue of deceased children, see Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions . If the plaintiff is a minor, a guardian ad litem must be appointed for the purposes of the action, unless the minor already has a guardian [see Code Civ. Proc. § 372(a)]. For discussion and forms relating to appointment of a guardian ad litem generally, see Ch. 291, Guardians ad Litem .

In a wrongful death action, damages may be awarded that, under all the circumstances of the case, may be just, but may not include damages recoverable under Code Civ. Proc. § 377.34 (survival actions). The court must determine the respective rights in an award of the persons entitled to assert the cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.61].

[6] Survival Action

A cause of action that survives the death of the person entitled to commence an action or proceeding passes to the decedent's successor in interest, subject to Prob. Code § 7000 et seq. (governing succession to property on death of owner), and an action may be commenced by the decedent's personal representative or, if none, by the decedent's successor in interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.30]. In an action or proceeding by a decedent's personal representative or successor in interest on the decedent's cause of action, the damages recoverable are limited to the loss or damage that the decedent sustained or incurred before death, including any penalties or punitive or exemplary damages that the decedent would have been entitled to recover had the decedent lived, and do not include damages for pain, suffering, or disfigurement [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.34].

An action under Code Civ. Proc § 377.30 (survival actions) may be joined with a wrongful death action arising out of the same wrongful act or neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.62(a)]. In addition, a wrongful death action and an action under Code Civ. Proc § 377.31 (action commenced by decedent prior to death and continued by personal representative) arising out of the same wrongful act or neglect may be consolidated for trial as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1048 [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.62(b)]. For discussion, procedure, and forms, see Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions .

[7] Joinder of Parties Defendant

Plaintiff may join as a party defendant any agent or employee of the airline whose negligence proximately caused or contributed to decedent's death, since everyone is responsible for the consequences of his or her own wrong [see Herrero v. Atkinson (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 69, 74, 38 Cal. Rptr. 490 (involving negligent operation of motor vehicle and subsequent medical malpractice)]. Moreover, an employer who is held liable under the doctrine of respondeat superior has the right of recoupment against his or her negligent employee [Continental Cas. Co. v. Phoenix Constr. Co. (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 423, 428, 296 P.2d 801 ; Popejoy v. Hannon (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 159, 173, 231 P.2d 484] .

But, unless the employee is financially able to pay any judgment that might be obtained or unless there is some persuasive reason other than the mere obtaining of a judgment against him or her for doing so, such as, for example, if the joinder of the agent or employee as a defendant is necessary for venue purposes [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395, 395.2, 395.5], it is seldom to the plaintiff's advantage, in a jury trial at least, to join the agent or employee as a defendant. A jury, for whatever reason, might be disposed to award a larger judgment against a large airline than it would award against a mere agent or employee of that airline.

On the contrary, it is usually to the defendant's advantage, rather than that of the plaintiff, that its agent or employee be joined, and the employer will frequently seek to have him or her joined by filing a cross complaint for declaratory relief [see Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(7), 1060] for indemnity [see, e.g., Linday v. American President Lines, Ltd. (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 146, 147-149, 29 Cal. Rptr. 465 (cross complaint by employer against employee for intentional tort); Herrero v. Atkinson (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 69, 75, 77, 38 Cal. Rptr. 490 (cross complaint by original tortfeasor, the driver of a vehicle, against subsequent tortfeasors (doctors and hospital) and cross complaint by one doctor against his agents for medical malpractice)] to secure the benefit of any sympathetic feelings the jury might entertain towards the employee in fixing the amount of judgment.

[8] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 16.40[1], Paragraph 2.]

2. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 16.40[1], Paragraph 3.]

3. [Agency allegation, if appropriate. See § 16.40[1], Paragraph 4.]

4. On or about _____ [date], at or about the hour of _____ [time of accident], plaintiff was a paying passenger on a passenger flight that left from _____ [starting point] at about _____ [departure time] with a destination of _____ [destination]. At that time and place defendants so carelessly and negligently owned, operated, maintained, and controlled the airplane as to cause a ceiling light to fall from the airplane, striking plaintiff violently on his/her _____ [describe, e.g., right front forehead].

[5. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____, through its agents and employees, had exclusive control and management of the airplane, and the falling of the ceiling light and resulting damages as set forth below are such that in the ordinary course of things they would not have occurred if defendants had exercised ordinary care in the maintenance and operation of the airplane; because of the exclusive control and management, defendants are possessed of superior, if not exclusive, access to information concerning the precise cause of the accident, and plaintiff relies on the negligence of defendants as inferred from the general situation alleged in this complaint.]

6. As a proximate result of the negligence of defendants and plaintiff's injuries as alleged above, plaintiff was caused great physical and mental pain and suffering and plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that the injuries will result in some permanent disability, all to his/her general damage.

7. As a further proximate result of the negligence of the defendants plaintiff has incurred and will continue to incur medical and related expenses, the full amount of which is not now known. Plaintiff will move to amend this complaint to allege such amount when ascertained.

8. As a further proximate result of the negligence of defendant _____ [airline], and of its agents and employees, plaintiff was prevented from attending to his/her usual occupation as a _____ [state occupation] for a period of _____ [number of days, weeks, or months] [to the date of the filing of this complaint], and thereby lost earnings.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For general damages according to proof.

2. For medical and related expenses according to proof.

3. For loss of earnings according to proof.

4. For costs of suit herein incurred.

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by a passenger against a carrier of passengers for reward to recover damages for personal injuries based on negligence.

[3] Contents of Form

The form alleges:

- The identity and capacity of the defendant and its agents and employees and any fictitiously named defendants (Paragraphs 1-3).

- The duty owed by defenant to plaintiff, and breach of duty, including reliance on res ipsa loquitur (Paragraphs 4-5) [see Civ. Code §§ 1714(a), 2100; Evid. Code § 646(res ipsa loquitur presumption); Nelson v. American Airlines, Inc. (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 742, 745-746, 70 Cal. Rptr. 33 (res ipsa loquitur in action by passenger injured when plane nosed down sharply requires defendant to show either definite cause of accident unconnected with his or her alleged negligence or such care as would imply accident due to unknown, unpreventable cause)].

- Injury to plaintiff proximately caused by such breach and damages (Paragraphs 6-8).

[4] Specification of Damages

A complaint for personal injuries may not state the amount of actual or punitive damages sought to be recovered [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)]. For forms for use in ascertaining damages sought in such personal injury actions, see Ch. 177, Damages .

[Caption. See § 16.41[1].]

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 16.40[1], Paragraph 2.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 16.40[1], Paragraph 3.]

3. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff was a passenger for reward on a certain _____ [type] airplane, No. _____ [registration number], operated by, and under the exclusive control of defendant and of its agents, servants, and employees, on defendant's flight No. _____ [flight number], from _____ [starting point] to _____ [destination point].

4. The airplane was equipped with seat belts at each seat for the safety of passengers, and with a sign at the front of the airplane reading "Fasten Seat Belts," which was to be illuminated by defendant's agents, servants, and employees to warn and direct passengers to fasten their seat belts for their safety when the airplane was taking off and landing and when advisable for their safety by reason of climatic conditions or otherwise.

5. Plaintiff was not an experienced air traveler and relied on defendant and its agents, servants, and employees to warn and direct him to fasten his seat belt when necessary for his safety and protection.

6. While the airplane was flying over _____ [location], California, the air and weather through which it was flying became rough and turbulent. Defendant and its agents, servants, and employees then and there negligently, recklessly, carelessly, and unlawfully failed to warn or direct plaintiff to fasten his seat belt, either by illuminating the sign reading "Fasten Seat Belts" or by any other means, and failed to take any other precautions for the safety of plaintiff, with the result that plaintiff was thrown out of his seat and to the floor of the airplane.

7. As a proximate result of defendant's negligence, recklessness, carelessness, and unlawful conduct as aforesaid, and by reason of plaintiff's being thrown from his seat to the floor of the airplane, plaintiff was hurt and injured in his health, strength, and activity, sustaining _____ [describe injuries], all to his damage.

8. [Medical and incidental expenses. See § 16.41[1], Paragraph 7.]

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use to recover damages for personal injuries based on negligence by an airline passenger against an airline consisting of the failure of defendant's agents and employees to warn the plaintiff to fasten his seat belt in rough weather [see Small v. Transcontinental & Western Air (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 408, 410-411, 216 P.2d 36 (airline liable for failure to turn on "Fasten Seat Belt" sign in rough weather); cf. Powell v. Dell-Air Aviation, Inc. (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 451, 455-458, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3 (judgment for defendants was proper in action for injuries sustained during air turbulence where evidence showed seat belt was loosely fastened)]. For discussion of the allegations of a complaint for personal injury, see § 16.41(2) et seq.

[3] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded for this cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115].

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for Personal Injuries Based on Negligence [Civ. Code §§ 1714(a), 2100]--By Passenger Against Airline [Civ. Code § 2338] and Its Agents [Civ. Code § 2343]--Leading Plaintiff Passenger to Believe Plane Was Going to Crash

[Caption. See § 16.41[1].]

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____ [airline] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of _____ [state or foreign country], and authorized to do business in California as a commercial air carrier of passengers for hire. Its principal place of business in California is at _____, _____ County. [Or, allege other capacity and residence.] Defendant _____ [airline], at all times herein mentioned, owned, maintained, and operated the airplane referred to in this complaint.

2. At all times herein mentioned, defendants _____, _____, and _____ [names] were the agents, servants, and employees of defendant _____ [airline], and in doing the things herein alleged were acting within the course and scope of their employment.

[3. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 16.40[1], Paragraph 3.]

4. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff purchased from defendant _____ [airline] a ticket by which plaintiff contracted with defendant for a round trip flight to _____ [destination point], and return to _____ [starting point], California.

5. Pursuant to the ticket, plaintiff was a paying passenger _____ [going or returning] to _____ [city], California on defendant _____'s [airline] flight number _____. The flight departed from _____ [starting point] at approximately _____ [departure time] on _____ [date].

6. On the [return] flight when the airplane was approximately _____ [e.g., 45 minutes] flight time outside of _____ [destination], California and over the State of California, defendants, and each of them, so carelessly, recklessly, and negligently maintained, owned, operated, and controlled the airplane so as to lead plaintiff to believe that it was in mechanical trouble and that it was going to crash, when in fact the airplane was not in mechanical trouble and was not going to crash.

7. As a proximate result of the carelessness, recklessness, and negligence of defendants, and each of them, as herein alleged, plaintiff was caused great grievous mental suffering, anguish, and anxiety, and suffered severe shock to his nerves and nervous system and suffered other injuries [the exact nature and extent of which are unknown at this time to plaintiff who prays leave to amend the complaint to allege the same when ascertained] all to his general damage.

8. [Medical and incidental expenses. See § 16.41[1], Paragraph 7.]

9. [Loss of earnings. See § 16.41[1], Paragraph 8.]

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by a passenger against a defendant airline and its employees to recover damages for shock to the nervous system based on negligence. The form is adapted from the complaint filed in Vanoni v. Western Airlines (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 793, 794, 56 Cal. Rptr. 115 and names the employees as defendants. For discussion of whether the employees should be joined as parties defendant, see the notes to § 16.40[2] et seq.

[3] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded for this cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [*Code Civ. § 16.45 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for Personal Injuries Based on Negligence [Civ. Code §§ 1714(a), 2100]--By Passenger Against Airline [Civ. Code § 2338] and Its Agents [Civ. Code § 2343]--Fall of Passenger in Washroom Caused by Sudden Drop of Airplane

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for Personal Injuries Based on Negligence [Civ. Code §§ 1714(a), 2100]--By Passenger Against Airline [Civ. Code § 2338] and Its Agents [Civ. Code § 2343]--Fall of Passenger in Washroom Caused by Sudden Drop of Airplane

[Caption. See § 16.41[1].]

Plaintiff alleges:

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION

1. [Capacity and residence of defendants. See § 16.40[1], Paragraph 2, and § 16.43[1], Paragraphs 1, 2.]

3. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 16.40[1], Paragraph 3.]

4. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff was a fare paying passenger on an airplane owned and operated by defendant _____ [airline], as the airplane was flown under the control of defendants, and each of them, from _____ [starting point] to _____ [destination point].

5. At that time, defendant _____ [name] was the pilot of the plane and was acting in the course and scope of his/her employment with defendant _____ [airline]; while the airplane was in flight between _____ [starting point] and _____ [destination point], it dropped in such a precipitous and sudden manner that plaintiff was caused to be thrown about violently, sustaining the injuries hereinafter set out.

6. Plaintiff is informed and believes, and on that ground alleges, that defendants _____ [airline] and _____ [pilot], and each of them, negligently caused the airplane to drop in this precipitous and sudden manner, causing injury to the plaintiff as set out below.

7. As a proximate result of the negligence of defendants, and each of them, plaintiff incurred the following injuries: _____ [describe injuries], all to his general damage.

8. [Medical and incidental expenses. See § 16.41[1], Paragraph 7.]

9. [Loss of earnings. See § 16.41[1], Paragraph 8.]

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION

1. Plaintiff incorporates Paragraphs 1 through 5 and 7 through 9 of the First Cause of Action as though set forth fully herein.

2. Plaintiff is informed and believes, and on that ground alleges, that defendants _____ [airline] and _____ [pilot], and each of them, knew, or, in the exercise of that high degree of care for plaintiff's safety owed by them to the plaintiff herein, should have known, that the airplane would drop in a sudden and precipitous manner. Defendants, and each of them, failed to warn the plaintiff that such would occur, with the result that the plaintiff was not prepared for the dropping and was caused injury as hereinabove set out.

THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION

1. Plaintiff incorporates Paragraphs 1, 3 through 5, and 7 through 9 of the First Cause of Action as though set forth fully herein.

2. Defendant _____ [airline] knew that its airplanes were subject to sudden dropping in flight and also knew that passengers aboard its airplanes were likely to be in the rest room of the airplane at the time such dropping occurred. Defendant in the exercise of the degree of care owed by it to its passengers should have anticipated that passengers would be thrown against the washbowls and commodes located therein.

3. At the time of the dropping of the airplane, plaintiff was in the rest room aboard the plane; the dropping of the airplane caused the plaintiff to be thrown with violent force against the washbowl and commode located therein, and the washbowl and commode were of a hard substance and not covered with any padding of any sort.

4. Although defendant _____ [airline] knew that passengers were likely to be thrown against the washbowl and commode located in the plane, it had negligently failed to cover the hard substance of which the washbowl and commode were made with any padding. Defendant's negligence was the proximate cause of injuries received by the plaintiff as set out herein.

FOURTH CAUSE OF ACTION

1. Plaintiff incorporates Paragraphs 1, 3 through 5, and 7 through 9 of the First Cause of Action and Paragraphs 2 through 4 of the Third Cause of Action as though set forth herein.

2. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [name] was the flight attendant aboard the plane and was acting within the course and scope of his/her employment with defendant _____ [airline].

3. When the airplane was stationary on the ground in _____ [location], plaintiff told defendant _____ [name of flight attendant] that he/she wanted to use the rest room; defendant, acting in the course and scope of her employment with defendant _____ [airline], refused to let him/her use the rest room and told plaintiff that it would be safe to use the rest room when the plane was in the air; plaintiff relied on defendant _____'s [name of flight attendant] assurance that it would be safe to use the rest room when the airplane was in the air.

4. In fact the use by plaintiff of the rest room while the airplane was in the air was not safe for the plaintiff by virtue of the facts set out in Paragraphs 2, 3, and 4 of plaintiff's Third Cause of Action, incorporated herein.

5. Plaintiff's injuries as set out herein were caused by his/her reliance on the negligent statement of defendant _____ [name of flight attendant] and that negligent statement was made by defendant _____ [name of flight attendant] in the course and scope of her employment with defendant _____ [airline]. This statement was the proximate cause of the injuries received by the plaintiff as set out herein.

_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[Verification, if desired. See § 16.40[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by a passenger against a defendant airline and its agents to recover damages based on negligence and, as in form in § 16.43, illustrates the joinder of the airline's employees as defendants. For discussion of whether the employees should be joined as defendants, see § 16.40[7].

[3] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual damages demanded [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)]. No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought [Civ. Code § 3295(e); Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)]. Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

For forms and procedure for use in requesting notice of the specific amount sought, see Ch. 177, Damages .

Plaintiff alleges:

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION

1. At all times herein mentioned, defendants _____ [names] were and are corporations engaged, in California and elsewhere, in the business of common carriers by air of passengerers and goods; at all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [name of ticket agency] was and is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of California, at all times herein mentioned was acting as the duly authorized and constituted agent and representative of the other defendants herein, and maintained and now maintains an office, among other places, in _____ [city], California [or allege other capacities and residences of defendants].

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 16.40[1], Paragraph III.]

3. Plaintiff applied to defendant _____ [ticket agency] on _____ [date], at its office in _____ [city], California for a ticket for transportation from _____ [starting point] to _____ [destination]. Plaintiff was issued a ticket, numbered _____ [number], and he/she paid for the ticket; the ticket was for a flight from _____ [starting point] to _____ [changeover point] via defendant _____ [airline]; at the same time and place, defendant _____ [ticket agency] also issued to plaintiff a connecting carrier ticket for transportation from _____ [changeover point] to _____ [destination] via defendant _____ [airline].

4. On _____ [date], at _____ [departure point] Airport, plaintiff delivered to defendant _____ [ticket agency] two pieces of baggage containing certain medicines, clothing, jewelry, money, and other valuables, and was given baggage checks therefor; the baggage was delivered to that defendant, then and there acting as the duly authorized agent of defendant carriers, for carriage to _____ [changeover point] and thereafter to _____ [destination], and for redelivery to plaintiff, and such carriage and such obligation of redelivery was then and there undertaken by defendants.

5. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff suffered from _____ [specify illness] and required the use of the medicine contained in the baggage for the maintenance of his/her life and health.

6. On _____ [date], at _____ [departure point] Airport, plaintiff boarded a plane owned, maintained, and operated by defendant _____ [airline] and was transported to _____ [changeover point].

7. On his/her arrival at _____ [changeover point], plaintiff went to the office there of defendant _____ [ticket agency], presented his ticket, and inquired as to his/her time of departure for _____ [destination]; plaintiff was informed of the departure time and presented himself/herself at the designated departure gate shortly before the designated time; at that time, plaintiff was informed by an employee of defendant _____ [airline], who was attending the departure gate in the course and scope of his employment, that plaintiff's seat on the flight had been sold and that he could not board the plane.

8. At that time and place plaintiff demanded of defendants, and each of them, the return of his/her baggage and told defendants' employees of his/her need for the medicines contained therein; defendants, and each of them, then and there failed and refused to return the baggage.

9. By reason of the failure and refusal of defendant _____ [ticket agency] and defendants _____ [airlines] to comply with their agreement and undertaking with plaintiff, plaintiff was deprived of the necessary medicine which was in his/her baggage; plaintiff became ill, required the attention and services of a physician, was deprived of his/her planned vacation, and had to return home, and plaintiff suffered great discomfort, annoyance, and vexation, both of body and mind.

10. By reason of the foregoing, plaintiff has suffered damages.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION

1. Plaintiff refers to and incorporates herein Paragraphs 1 through 9 of his First Cause of Action.

2. Thereafter, on or about _____ [date], one of plaintiff's luggage cases, and a portion of the contents, were redelivered to him/her, at _____ [city of departure], but despite [numerous] demand[s] therefor, defendants, and each of them, have failed, neglected, and refused, and continue to fail, neglect, and refuse, to redeliver to plaintiff the balance of plaintiff's luggage, and defendants, and each of them, have thereby breached the contract of carriage; the value of the luggage and its contents, delivery of which is refused, was and is $_____; and plaintiff is thereby damaged in that amount.

THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION

1. Plaintiff refers to and incorporates herein Paragraphs 1 through 9 of his First Cause of Action and Paragraph 2 of his Second Cause of Action.

2. Defendants, and each of them, so negligently conducted themselves and so misbehaved in regard to the carriage that a portion of the luggage was lost to plaintiff; the value of the lost luggage and its contents was and is $_____; by reason of the premises plaintiff has been damaged in the sum of $_____.

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by a passenger to recover damages for negligence and breach of contract from airlines and a ticket agency. It alleges the failure of one airline to carry plaintiff [see Civ. Code § 2169 (duty of carrier to serve public)] and loss of plaintiff's baggage [see Civ. Code §§ 2194, 2195 (carrier's liability for safe transportation of goods)].

[Caption. See § 16.40[1].]

Plaintiff(s) alleges/allege:

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION

(Strict Liability)

1. [Capacity of plaintiff(s). See § 16.40[1], Paragraph 1.]

2. Defendant _____ [name of manufacturer] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of California, with its principal office for the transaction of business in this state in _____ County [or allege other capacity and residence].

3. Defendant _____ [name of manufacturer] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, engaged in the manufacturing, designing, assembling, and selling of aircraft for use by members of the general public, and [plaintiff is informed and believes, and thereon alleges, that], as a part of its business, defendant designed, manufactured, and assembled the specific _____ [type of airplane] airplane, Registration No. _____ [number], hereinafter referred to as "the airplane."

4. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 16.40[1], Paragraph 3.]

5. At all times herein mentioned, the airplane manufactured, designed, and assembled by defendant _____ [name of manufacturer] was used for the purpose for which it was designed and intended to be used, namely, transporting persons and property from one place to another in the air by operation of a pilot.

6. Defendant _____ [name of manufacturer] at all times herein mentioned knew, or should have known, that the airplane would be used without inspection for defects by the decedent.

7. At the time it was placed on the market and delivered by defendant _____ [manufacturer] to _____ [airline], the airplane was defective [as a result of the defendant's failure to give directions or warnings as to its use to prevent it from being defective] and unsafe for its intended purpose in that _____ [state defect or the reason that failure to direct or warn as to use of product made it defective].

8. On or about _____ [date], at or about _____ [time of accident], decedent was a passenger for reward on the airplane, operated by _____[airline], on its flight from _____ [departure point] to _____ [destination].

9. On or about _____ [date], while the plane was in the vicinity of _____ [location], during the course of the flight and as a proximate result of the defect herein described, the airplane [suddenly] crashed to the ground.

10. As a proximate result of the defect herein described and the resulting crash, decedent suffered injuries that resulted in his/her death.

11. Immediately prior to death, decedent was _____ [an adult or a minor] person, age _____ [in good physical and mental condition] [and was a faithful and dutiful _____ (husband or wife)] [and the sole source of support for plaintiff(s)].

12. As a proximate result of the defect in the airplane manufactured by defendant, and the death of the decedent, plaintiff(s) has/have been deprived of the society, comfort, protection, services, and support of the decedent and thereby has/have sustained pecuniary loss, to his/her/their damage.

13. As a further proximate result of the defect in the airplane manufactured by defendant, and the death of decedent, plaintiff(s) has/have incurred [and paid] funeral and burial expenses to his/her/their further damage.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION

(Negligence)

14. Plaintiff(s) herein incorporates Paragraphs 1, 4, 7, 8, and 11 of the First Cause of Action.

15. Defendant _____ [airline] is, and at all times mentioned herein was, a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of California, with its principal place of business in _____ County, California, and doing business as a [common] carrier of persons for reward [or allege other capacity and residence].

16. Defendant _____ [airline] and its agents, servants, and employees so carelessly and negligently controlled, maintained, and operated the airplane on which decedent was a passenger that, while the airplane was flying in the vicinity of _____ [location], California, it was caused to crash to the ground.

17. As a proximate result of the negligence of defendant _____ [airline], and of its agents, servants, and employees, and the resulting crash, as alleged above, decedent suffered injuries that resulted in his/her death.

18. As a further proximate result of the negligence of defendant _____ [airline] and its agents, servants, and employees, and the resulting crash and death of the decedent, plaintiff(s) has/have been deprived of the society, comfort, protection, services, and support of the decedent and thereby has/have sustained pecuniary loss, to his/her/their damage.

19. As a further proximate result of the negligence of defendant _____ [airline] and of its agents, servants, and employees, and resulting crash and death of the decedent, plaintiff(s) has/have incurred [and paid] funeral and burial expenses.

_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[Verification, if desired. See § 16.40[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action under Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60 for damages for the wrongful death of an airline passenger. The first cause of action is based on strict liability in tort [see Cronin v. J.B.E. Olson Corp. (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 121, 127-129 ns.5-9, 104 Cal. Rptr. 433, 501 P.2d 1153 ; see also Ch. 460, Products Liability]. The second cause of action is based on negligence by the airline. For discussion of joinder of a wrongful death action with a survival action, see § 16.40[7].

If the plaintiff is a minor, a guardian ad litem must be appointed for the purposes of the action, unless the minor already has a guardian [see Code Civ. Proc. § 372(a)]. For discussion and forms relating to appointment of a guardian ad litem generally, see Ch. 291, Guardians ad Litem .

[3] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded for this cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages, and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115].

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code §§ 3287, 3300] for Breach of Contract and Indemnity--By Airline Against Maintenance Company--Loss of Airplane and Liability to Passengers

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES; BREACH OF
_____ [name(s)],	)	CONTRACT
Defendant(s).	)	(Indemnity)
	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASES]

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____ [name of maintenance company] is, and at all times mentioned herein was, a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of California, with its principal place of business in _____ County, California [or allege other capacity and residence].

2. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [maintenance company] was engaged in the business of manufacturing, repairing, altering, and reconditioning airplanes.

3. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff was, to the knowledge of the defendant, engaged in a business of common air carrier of passengers for reward.

4. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff was the owner and operator of a certain _____ [type] airplane, No. _____ [registration number], hereinafter referred to as "the airplane."

5. The airplane was manufactured and sold by the defendant for use as a transport plane for carrying passengers for reward.

6. The defendant held itself out to be fully qualified and equipped to inspect, repair, alter, and recondition airplanes of the type and model of the airplane.

7. At all times mentioned herein, the airplane was, to the knowledge of the defendant, used and to be used by the plaintiff for carrying passengers for reward.

8. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff and defendant entered into _____ [an oral or a written] contract [, a copy of which is attached hereto, marked Exhibit A, and made a part hereof]. The contract provided that for a valuable consideration to be paid by plaintiff, defendant agreed to and would inspect, repair, and overhaul the airplane and put the airplane in all respects in first class condition [and make certain alterations therein] defendant undertaking to use all due and reasonable care inspecting, servicing, repairing, overhauling, and rendering the airplane in first-class condition, and in determining and deciding on the replacement of such parts as were dangerous, improper, or insufficient for use in the airplane, and installing safe, proper, and sufficient parts in replacement thereof.

9. The defendant failed and omitted to perform its contract as aforesaid in the following respects: _____ [specify, e.g., a. It failed and omitted to ascertain that the airplane was equipped with propeller hubs of the type, model, and composition designated and known as Design No. _____ (identification number of design) which propeller hubs were, to the knowledge of the defendant, unsafe and improper for continued use in the airplane.

b. It failed and omitted to change the propeller hubs to a safe and proper type or to install safe and proper propeller hubs in the airplane.

c. It failed and omitted to properly and carefully inspect the propeller hubs with which the airplane was equipped.

d. It failed and omitted to ascertain that the propeller hub of the right outboard motor was defective, insufficient, improper, and unsafe.

e. It failed and omitted to replace the propeller hub of the right outboard motor with a sufficient and proper hub.

f. It failed and omitted to notify the plaintiff of the presence in the airplane of propeller hubs that, to its knowledge, were dangerous, defective, and improper for use therein.

g. It failed and omitted to recommend and install in the airplane safe and proper propeller hubs.]

The plaintiff has duly performed its contract with defendant herein, and on redelivery to the plaintiff of the airplane duly paid the amount demanded by defendant for its services.

10. After the redelivery to plaintiff of the airplane by the defendant on or about _____ [date], and without any knowledge on the part of the plaintiff of the _____ [specifiy defect, e.g., insufficiency, inadequacy, and weakness of the propeller hubs], and relying on the superior knowledge and skill of the defendant in inspecting, repairing, and overhauling the airplane, plaintiff used and operated the airplane for carrying passengers from _____ [date], until on or about _____ [date].

11. On or about _____ [date] at or near _____ [location of accident], while the airplane was being operated by the plaintiff in the carriage of passengers for reward, and while the plaintiff was flying and operating the airplane _____ [describe accident, e.g., the hub of the right outboard propeller fractured and broke and, by reason thereof, the right outboard motor tore loose from its mountings,] causing the airplane to crash and become a total loss. _____ [Number] of passengers who were then in the airplane, as well as the two pilots employed by the plaintiff who were in charge of the airplane, were killed in the crash.

12. The destruction of the airplane and the death of the pilots and passengers were due to the failure on the part of the defendant properly to perform its contract as aforesaid, and were the proximate consequence and result of the defendant's breach of the agreement.

13. The airplane was of the reasonable value of $_____ [amount] at the time of its destruction.

14. As a proximate result of the failure on the part of defendant properly to perform its agreement as aforesaid, the plaintiff became liable for and was required and compelled to pay or incur the payment of the sum of $_____ as damages for the death of the passengers in the plane, and to expand or incur expenses for legal and other services in connection therewith in the sum of $_____. Plaintiff has duly demanded payment to it of said sum by defendant, but defendant has failed and refused, and continues to fail and refuse, to pay said sum or any part thereof.

15. As a result of the foregoing plaintiff has sustained damage.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For damages in the sum of $_____.

2. For interest on said sum for and after _____ [date].

3. For costs of suit herein incurred.

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by an airline to recover damages from a maintenance company for the loss of an airplane and for indemnification of liability to passengers killed in the crash of the airplane. Indemnification is based on breach of implied contractual promise to perform work in a reasonably safe manner [Aerojet General Corp. v. D. Zelinsky & Sons (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 604, 609, 57 Cal. Rptr. 701] .

Plaintiff(s) alleges/allege:

1. [Capacity of plaintiff. See § 16.40[1], Paragraph 1.]

2. At all times herein mentioned, a certain _____ [type] airplane was owned and operated by defendants in connection with _____ [specify type of business]. During all of the times herein mentioned, the airplane was being operated by defendant _____ [name] for and on behalf of himself and the other defendants in connection with the business. Defendant _____ [name] is a resident of _____ County, California. [Or allege other capacity and residence of defendants.]

3. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 16.40[1], Paragraph 3.]

4. On or about _____ [date], at about _____ [time], decedent was a passenger in a certain _____ [type] airplane that was waiting in and on _____ [name] Airport, in _____ [location], California. At that time and place, defendants, and each of them, so negligently and carelessly piloted and operated the _____ [type] airplane as to cause the _____[type] airplane violently to collide with the _____ [type] airplane in which decedent was riding. As a proximate result of the collision and of the negligent and careless piloting and operation of the _____ [type] airplane by defendants, and each of them, decedent suffered injuries that resulted in his death.

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action under Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60 for damages for wrongful death of an airplane passenger injured in a collision on an airport runway, pursuant to Pub. Util. Code § 21405 [see Pub. Util. Code § 21407 (careless or reckless operation of aircraft unlawful; federal statutes and regulations as standards for safe operation); see also Boyd v. White (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 641, 651, 276 P.2d 92 (liability of owner or operator of airplane for injuries inflicted on another)]. The named defendants are the owner and operator of the other airplane.

If the plaintiff is a minor, a guardian ad litem must be appointed for the purposes of the action, unless the minor already has a guardian [see Code Civ. Proc. § 372(a)]. For discussion and forms relating to appointment of a guardian ad litem generally, see Ch. 291, Guardians ad Litem .

Plaintiff alleges:

FIRST COUNT

(Breach of Contract)

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 16.50[1], Paragraph 1.]

[2. Agency allegation, if appropriate. See § 16.40[1], Paragraph 4.]

[3. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 16.40[1], Paragraph 3.]

4. At all times herein mentioned plaintiff was the owner and entitled to the possession of a certain _____ [type] airplane, Registration No. _____ [number].

5. On _____ [date], at _____ [city], California, at the request of defendant and for his sole benefit, plaintiff delivered possession of the airplane to defendant who promised and agreed to return the same to plaintiff in sound condition on or before _____ [date].

6. On _____ [date], plaintiff demanded that defendant return the airplane, and since that date, plaintiff has continued to so demand. Defendant failed and refused to return the airplane on the date and continues to fail and refuse to do so.

7. At all times herein mentioned the fair and reasonable value of the airplane together with extra equipment contained thereon, was $_____ [amount] and by reason of the failure and refusal of defendant to return the airplane, plaintiff has been damaged in that sum.

8. At the time of this occurrence, the airplane was in use in the business of the plaintiff. As a proximate result of defendant's failure and refusal to return the airplane, as aforesaid, plaintiff suffered a business loss and in addition was deprived of the use of the airplane to his further damage in the sum of $_____.

SECOND COUNT

(Negligence)

1. Plaintiff herein incorporates Paragraphs 1 through 5 of the First Count.

2. On or about _____ [date], defendant negligently operated the airplane, negligently flew the same in a locality for operation in which the airplane was not equipped, and negligently undertook to fly the airplane in a manner and under conditions with respect to which defendant was not qualified. As a proximate result of defendant's negligence, the airplane was destroyed on _____ [date].

3. At all times herein mentioned the fair and reasonable value of the airplane, together with extra equipment contained thereon, was $_____ [amount], and as a proximate result of defendant's negligence, as aforesaid, plaintiff has been damaged in that sum.

4. At the time of the occurrence the airplane was in use in the business of the plaintiff. As a proximate result of defendant's negligence, as aforesaid, plaintiff sustained a business loss and in addition was deprived of the use of the aircraft to his further damage.

THIRD COUNT

(Conversion)

1. Plaintiff herein incorporates Paragraphs 1 through 5 of the First Count.

2. Defendant further promised and agreed, at the aforementioned time and place, that he would not operate the airplane beyond _____ [number] miles from _____ [agreed location].

3. Contrary to the agreement defendant operated the airplane to a point at or over _____ [location], which is more than _____ [number] miles from _____ [agreed location], and then and there wrecked and destroyed the same, and converted the same to his own use.

4. At all times herein mentioned the fair and reasonable value of the airplane, together with extra equipment contained therein, was $_____ [amount], and by reason of defendant's conversion, as aforesaid, plaintiff has been damaged in that sum.

5. At the time of the occurrence the airplane was in use in the business of plaintiff. As a proximate result of defendant's conversion of the airplane to his own use, as aforesaid, plaintiff sustained a business loss and in addition was deprived of the use of the airplane to his further damage.

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by the bailor of an airplane to recover damages from the bailee based on three theories [see Civ. Code §§ 1836, 3300 (liability for damage to bailed property); Martin Sch. of Aviation v. Bank of America (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 689, 694, 312 P.2d 251 ; Odle v. Dunbar (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 466, 470, 277 P.2d 418 ; Hall v. Osell (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 849, 852, 228 P.2d 293] :

- Breach of the bailment contract.
- Negligence.
- Conversion.

Under the third theory, or count, expenses incurred in pursuit of the property may also be recovered [see Civ. Code § 3336].

Damages for loss of use of the plane are available in addition to damages for the value of the plane [Reynolds v. Bank of America (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 49, 50, 51, 345 P.2d 926] .

Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR
_____ [name],	)	DAMAGES
Defendant(s).	)	(Negligence)

Plaintiff alleges:

FIRST COUNT

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 16.50[1], Paragraph 1.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 16.40[1], Paragraph 3.]

3. On or about _____ [date], defendant was the owner of a certain _____ [make]

Model _____ airplane, Serial Number _____ [, F.A.A. Registration Mark _____].

4. On or about _____ [date], defendant invited plaintiff to accompany him on a flight from _____ [starting point] to _____ [destination] in the airplane. Plaintiff accepted defendant's invitation and became a passenger on the flight.

5. During the flight the airplane was under the exclusive control, operation, and maintenance of defendant who was the pilot in command. [On or about _____ [date], defendant was a duly licensed airplane pilot; plaintiff was not a pilot and had never taken flying lessons.]

6. On or about _____ [date] while the airplane was in flight in the vicinity of and above _____ [location], defendant so negligently, recklessly, carelessly, and unlawfully piloted, controlled, operated, and maintained the airplane that it was caused to, and then and there did, suddenly crash into the ground.

7. As a proximate result of defendant's negligence, recklessness, carelessness, and unlawful conduct, and by reason of the resulting crash, plaintiff sustained the following injuries: _____ [describe injuries], all to his damage.

8. [Medical and incidental expenses. See § 16.41[1], Paragraph 7.]

9. [Loss of earnings. See § 16.41[1], Paragraph 8.]

SECOND COUNT

1. Plaintiff refers to Paragraphs 1 through 5 of the First Count herein, and by reference makes them a part hereof.

2. Prior to _____ [date of crash], defendant performed and supervised repairs to the airplane in an attempt to restore it and put it in a safe, operable condition so that it could be inspected and licensed by the Federal Aviation Administration as being safe and fit to be flown. Prior to said date, the airplane had last been inspected and licensed by the Federal Aviation Administration on _____ [date].

3. On or about _____ [date], the airplane was inspected by the Federal Aviation Administration and found to be unlicensed, the repairs to the airplane incomplete, and the airplane unsafe to be flown.

4. On _____ [date of crash], the airplane was in a defective, unsafe, and improper condition to be flown by reason of the failure and neglect of defendant to make the required and necessary repairs to the airplane in order for it to be inspected, approved, and licensed by the Federal Aviation Administration as being safe and fit to be flown.

5. On _____ [date of crash], and while plaintiff was a passenger in the airplane over the vicinity of _____ [location], the airplane crashed to the ground.

6. As a direct and proximate result of the negligent, careless, unlawful conduct of defendant, and by reason of the resulting crash, plaintiff sustained the following injuries: _____ [describe injuries], all to plaintiff's damage.

7. [Medical and incidental expenses. See § 16.41[1], Paragraph 7.]

8. [Loss of earnings. See § 16.41[1], Paragraph 8.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For general damages according to proof.

2. For medical and related expenses according to proof.

3. For loss of earnings according to proof.

4. For costs of suit herein incurred.

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, may be used in an action for damages resulting from an airplane crash. This form assumes the owner and pilot of the airplane are the same defendant. The First Count is based on a general allegation of negligence, and the Second Count is based on defendant's violation of Pub. Util. Code § 21411 and 14 C.F.R. § 47.3(b) (licensing statutes and regulations). A defendant's violation of such a statute or regulation creates a rebuttable presumption of failure to exercise due care, and shifts the burden of proof to the defendant under Evid. Code § 669 [Ayer v. Boyle (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 822, 828, 112 Cal. Rptr. 636] .

The form is adapted from the complaint filed in Ayer v. Boyle (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 822, 112 Cal. Rptr. 636 .

For general information and cross references relating to wrongful death and personal injury complaints, see §§ 16.40[2] et seq. and 16.41[2] et seq.

[3] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded for this cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115].

[4] Guest Statute

The airplane "guest statute" [Pub. Util. Code § 21406] barring a right of action for personal injuries not resulting from defendant's intoxication or willful misconduct was repealed by the Legislature in 1973 following the automobile guest statute being declared unconstitutional in Brown v. Merlo (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 855, 863, 106 Cal. Rptr. 388, 506 P.2d 212 . The application of Pub. Util. Code § 21406 prior to its repeal has also been held unconstitutional [Ayer v. Boyle (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 822, 824, 112 Cal. Rptr. 636] . Therefore, a guest in an airplane may state a cause of action based on negligence [Ayer v. Boyle (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 822, 828, 112 Cal. Rptr. 636] .

[5] Willful Misconduct

Allegations of willful misconduct [for a form of allegation, see § 16.53] may be substituted for Paragraphs 5-7 of the First Count in this complaint or be stated as a separate count. Such allegations, while not now required by statute, may be directed to stripping the defendant of the defense of contributory negligence and invoking the legal consequences of an intentional tort [see Mahoney v. Corralejo (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 966, 973, 112 Cal. Rptr. 61] . As a general rule, contributory negligence on the part of an injured plaintiff is no defense to an action based on a claim of the defendant's willful misconduct. However, willful misconduct of the plaintiff will ordinarily bar an action for willful misconduct of the defendant [Williams v. Carr (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 579, 583-584, 68 Cal. Rptr. 305, 440 P.2d 505] . In addition, a discharge in bankruptcy will not release a debtor from liability on a debt or judgment for willful and malicious injury by the debtor to another entity or to the property of another entity [see 11 U.S.C.S. §§ 101(15), 523(a)(6); Collier, Bankruptcy, §§ 17.17, 17.26A (Matthew Bender)].

§ 16.53 Allegations for Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for Personal Injuries Based on Willful Misconduct--By Guest in Airplane Against Pilot--Airplane Crash

[1] FORM Allegations for Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for Personal Injuries Based on Willful Misconduct--By Guest in Airplane Against Pilot--Airplane Crash

1. During the flight, and while the airplane was in the vicinity of and over _____ [location], defendant _____ [name] then and there became intoxicated from excessive use of alcoholic liquor, and began to pilot the airplane in so reckless and willful a manner and with such wanton disregard for plaintiff's safety that the airplane was caused to then and there crash into the ground. Further, and more particularly, defendant was guilty of willful misconduct as follows:

a. Operating the airplane only a few yards above houses, wires, buildings, and other ground installations, and too close to the ground and the installations for the safety of the airplane and its passengers, including plaintiff;

b. Engaging in acrobatics, "stunting," and other unsafe maneuvers;

c. Willfully operating the airplane in such a manner that it went into a stall and spin so that he/she was unable to control the airplane or prevent its crashing to the ground, all contrary to the objections and remonstrances of plaintiff and contrary to the rules and regulations of the Civil Aeronautics Administration duly promulgated.

2. As a proximate result of the willful misconduct of defendant, and by reason of the resulting crash of the airplane, plaintiff sustained the following injuries: _____ [describe injuries], all to his/her damage.

[2] Use of Form

The allegations in [1], above, are for use in a complaint by a guest injured in an airplane crash to recover damages for personal injuries from the defendant pilot based on the willful misconduct of the defendant. The allegations may be substituted for Paragraphs 5-7 of the First Count in of the form of complaint in § 16.52, or may be included in that form as the basis of a separate count.

§ 16.54 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for Personal Injuries Based on Negligence [Civ. Code §§ 1714(a), 2100]--By Passenger Against Airline--Trip and Fall by Passenger Boarding Airplane

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for Personal Injuries Based on Negligence [Civ. Code §§ 1714(a), 2100]--By Passenger Against Airline--Trip and Fall by Passenger Boarding Airplane

[Caption. See § 16.41[1].]

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 16.40[1], Paragraph 2.]

2. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 16.40[1], Paragraph 3.]

3. At all times herein mentioned, defendant was and now is a common air carrier of passengers for hire on regular schedules, over definite designated routes, including the route to be traveled by plaintiff as hereinafter alleged, soliciting the patronage of the traveling public, and advertising schedules for routes, times of leaving, and rates of fare.

4. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff purchased from defendant, through its officers, agents, representatives, and employees, a ticket from _____ [starting point] to _____ [destination point], on Flight No. _____ [number], scheduled to leave _____ [location] on _____ [date], at approximately _____ [departure time], and paid defendant therefor the sum of $_____, the sum requested.

5. At the time and place the flight was called, defendant, through its officers, agents, representatives, and employees, received plaintiff as a passenger on the flight and plaintiff proceeded to board the _____ [type] airplane of defendant.

6. Defendant had agreed to carry plaintiff safely and was bound thereby to furnish suitable and proper means whereby plaintiff could safely enter the airplane of defendant.

7. Plaintiff boarded the airplane by [specify, e.g., walking up a metal stairway, on wheels, placed outside and against the airplane. On the top step of the stairway, defendant, acting through its officers, agents, employees, and representatives, negligently had placed a mat of fibrous material that protruded and extended over the edge of the top step on the stairway side. Defendant, through its officers, agents, employees, and representatives, knew or should have known, that the mat made the top step higher than the other steps, and that it protruded and extended over the edge of the top step, but negligently failed to advise plaintiff thereof].

8. At the time and place while plaintiff was boarding the _____ [type] airplane, on Flight No. _____ [number], as a proximate result of the negligence of defendant, plaintiff stumbled and fell, proximately causing plaintiff to sustain the following injuries: _____ [describe injuries], all to his/her general damage.

9. [Medical and incidental expenses. See § 16.41[1], Paragraph 7.]

10. [Loss of earnings. See § 16.41[1], Paragraph 8.]

[Verification, if desired. See § 16.40[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by a passenger to recover damages from an airline for personal injuries suffered in a fall on a boarding ramp caused by its negligence.

For general information and cross references relating to personal injury complaints, see § 16.41[2] et seq.

[3] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded for this cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115].

§ 16.55 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for Personal Injuries Based on Negligence [Civ. Code §§ 1714(a), 2100]--By Passenger Against Airline--Slip and Fall on Loading Ramp by Debarking Passenger

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for Personal Injuries Based on Negligence [Civ. Code §§ 1714(a), 2100]--By Passenger Against Airline--Slip and Fall on Loading Ramp by Debarking Passenger

[Caption. See § 16.41[1].]

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 16.40[1], Paragraph 2.]

2. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 16.40[1], Paragraph 3.]

3. At all times herein mentioned, defendant was a carrier of passengers for reward and was the owner of a certain _____ [type] aircraft used to carry passengers from place to place and of the loading and unloading ramps necessary for passengers to gain ingress and egress from the aircraft.

4. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff was a passenger for hire aboard the aircraft hereinbefore described.

5. On or about _____ [date], at the defendant's landing facility located in _____ [location], plaintiff was attempting to alight from the airplane by means of the loading and unloading ramp, and, at that time and place, defendant so negligently maintained the loadingng ramp in a dangerous condition by allowing grease and other substances to remain thereon that plaintiff slipped and fell on the ramp and suffered serious and grievous injuries.

6. As a proximate result of the negligence of the defendant, and the resulting accident, plaintiff sustained the following injuries: _____ [describe injuries], all to his damage.

7. [Medical and incidental expenses. See § 16.41[1], Paragraph 7.]

8. [Loss of earnings. See § 16.41[1], Paragraph 8.]

[Prayer. See § 16.41[1].]

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[Verification, if desired. See § 16.40[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by a passenger to recover damages from an airline for personal injuries suffered in a fall from a debarking ramp caused by the airline's negligence.

For general information and cross references relating to personal injury complaints, see § 16.41[2] et seq.

[3] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual damages demanded [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)]. No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought [Civ. Code § 3295(e); Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)]. Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

For forms and procedure for use in requesting notice of the specific amount sought, see Ch. 177, Damages .

[2] Use of Form

This form is the Judicial Council Answer form for use in responding to a complaint based on personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death. The Judicial Council approved this form effective January 1, 1982, with a nonsubstantive revision effective January 1, 2007. Use of the form is optional [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.35(b)]. Before using this form, counsel should verify whether or not it has been modified.

For general information relating to the use of Judicial Council answer forms, see Ch. 26, Answers . For a complete set of Judicial Council forms in electronic fillable format, see LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexis.com/forms.

[3] General Denial

The defendant may make a general denial if the complaint is not verified or if the complaint is subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 90 et seq. (limited civil cases generally) [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)], or if the demand or the value of the property in controversy does not exceed $1,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.40(a)]. The Judicial Council has adopted a form of general denial for this purpose [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.40(c)]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[4] Number of Pages and Use of Attachments

The total number of pages submitted must be indicated in Paragraph 1. Each attachment should comply with the form requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Title 2, Div. 2, Ch. 1, and should contain the short title of the case and a space for the case number at the top [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(c)].

§ 16.71 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Negligence of Plaintiff--Pilot as Plaintiff

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Negligence of Plaintiff--Pilot as Plaintiff

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that any and all events and happenings in connection with the accident complained of in plaintiff's complaint and the resulting injuries and damages, if any, referred to therein, were proximately caused and contributed to by the negligence of plaintiff in the operation of his _____ [type] airplane [, for the reason that plaintiff did not exercise ordinary care on his own behalf in the management and maintenance of the airplane in that _____ (specify)].

[2] Use of Form

The form of affirmative defense of plaintiff's negligence in [1], above, may be set forth in the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30] to a complaint by a pilot for damages resulting from an airplane accident. It alleges plaintiff was negligent about those matters alleged in the complaint, the negligence proximately caused and contributed to his injury, and facts on which defendant relies to support his defense [see Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 828-829, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226 (comparative negligence established)].

An owner's liability for aircraft collisions is determined by th rules of law applicable to torts on land [Pub. Util. Code § 21405].

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Negligence of Plaintiff--Passenger Misadvising and Interfering With Pilot

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that plaintiff, during the flight referred to in the complaint, gave improper advice and instructions to the pilot of the airplane and interfered with the operation of the airplane by the pilot and shouted at and pounded on the pilot, and such acts by plaintiff proximately contributed to any and all consequences alleged to have been sustained by plaintiff.

[2] Use of Form

The form of affirmative defense of plaintiff's negligence in [1], above, may be set forth in an answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30] to a complaint by a passenger seeking damages for injuries resulting from an airplane accident. It alleges improper instructions to the pilot and interference with the operation of the airplane as acts of negligence by the plaintiff passenger. In an action for wrongful death arising out of an airplane crash, a passenger was not negligent where the evidence failed to show that he had the practical knowledge to determine whether the trip was safe or that he attempted to operate airplane [*Doyle v. § 16.74 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Negligence of Pilot and Control Tower Operator

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Negligence of Pilot and Control Tower Operator

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

1. At all times herein mentioned and prior to the accident in question, _____ [name of pilot] was an agent of the plaintiff and as such agent was operating the airplane described in paragraph _____ [number] of the complaint, and at all times herein mentioned the control tower and its employees, particularly on the date and at the time of the accident, were agents, servants, and employees of the plaintiff and operating under the direction and control of the plaintiff.

2. Under and by virtue of the rules and customs of the airport and of the Civil Aeronautics Authority in charge of the flight of airplanes in and around airports and in the air throughout the United States and the operation of airplanes in general, the parking of an airplane on or near the runway of an airport without immediately moving the same out of the runway and into a proper place for storage, was forbidden. Contrary to the rules and regulations, the agent of the plaintiff, _____ [name of pilot], did knowingly violate the rule and did park the _____ [type] airplane on or near the runway of the _____ [name] Airport just prior to the accident sued on by the plaintiff in plaintiff's complaint, and continued to park the airplane there for some time thereafter and until the time of the accident, contrary to the rules.

3. The tower which was controlled by the agents, servants, and employees of the plaintiff also controlled the incoming and outgoing traffic at the airport and the actions of the owners and pilots of airplanes at the airport, and the agents, servants, and employees of the plaintiff in the tower knew that _____ [name of pilot] had improperly parked and kept his _____ [type] airplane on the runway at the airport and continued to permit him to park the airplane, and despite this knowledge ordered the defendant's employee, _____ [name], who was piloting the _____ [type] airplane belonging to the defendant _____ [name] to land on the runway where the airplane of the plaintiff was parked, and to proceed up the runway to the proper place to store and park the _____ [type] airplane, well knowing that the airplane piloted by _____ [name of defendant's agent] was one which prevented the pilot from looking directly forward on the runway on which he was proceeding or on any runway on the ground because of the nature of the construction of the airplane with its nose up in the air hiding from view the ground directly ahead of the airplane as it proceeded, and negligently failed to warn _____ [name of defendant's agent] of the parking of the _____ [type of plaintiff's airplane] thereon; and despite this knowledge the tower at the field operated by the agents, servants, and employees of the plaintiff or under their direction and control, negligently ordered _____ [name of defendant's agent] to proceed on the runway, and _____ [name of plaintiff's agent] did negligently continue to park his airplane on the runway, and such negligence on the part of plaintiff, its agents, servants, and employees proximately caused and contributed to the accident and damages to plaintiff's property.

[2] Use of Form

The form of affirmative defense of negligence in [1], above, may be set forth in an answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30] to a complaint for damages resulting from an airplane accident. It alleges the negligence of other pilots and the control tower operator [United States v. Douglas Aircraft Co. (9th Cir. [Cal] 1948) 169 F.2d 755, 758 (action of air traffic control tower as negligence)].

§ 16.75 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Assumption of Risk--Airplane Accident

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Assumption of Risk--Airplane Accident

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

1. Plaintiff was familiar with the weather conditions and with the equipment and instruments of the airplane at the times and places referred to in the complaint. Plaintiff consented to the operation of the airplane at the times and places referred to in the complaint and under the conditions then existing and consented to each and all of the things done in the course of the operation of the airplane at these times and places.

2. At all times relevant on and before the date of the accident alleged herein, plaintiff knew the hazards involved in _____ [set out what plaintiff did, e.g., riding in aircraft under adverse weather conditions] and had full knowledge of the condition existing and appreciated the danger thereof.

3. Plaintiff voluntarily assumed the risks in _____ [set out what plaintiff did, e.g., riding in aircraft under adverse weather conditions], and his assumption of the risks was the sole proximate cause of his alleged injuries and damages, if any.

[2] Use of Form

The form of defense of assumption of the risk in [1], above, may be set forth in an answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30] to a complaint by a plaintiff for damages based on negligence arising from the operation of an airplane. The answer alleges consent by the plaintiff to the defendant's operation of the plane pursuant to Civ. Code § 3515 (Paragraph 1), and the elements of assumption of risk, i.e., knowledge and appreciation of the particular danger and the magnitude of the risk involved and assumption thereof (Paragraphs 2, 3) [Vierra v. Fifth Avenue Rental Service (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 266, 271, 32 Cal. Rptr. 193, 383 P.2d 777 (flying metal from tool)].

The adoption of comparative negligence may have merged the type of assumption of risk illustrated by the facts of this form into the general scheme of assessment of liability in proportion to negligence. That is, where plaintiff unreasonably undertakes to encounter a specific known risk imposed by defendant's negligence and even encounters the risk in a prudent manner, his recovery is not barred but merely reduced in proportion to his own negligence. However, if the defendant can prove that plaintiff agreed to relieve him of an obligation of reasonable conduct, plaintiff's recovery is barred [see Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 824-825, 829, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226] .

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Limitation on Liability--Plaintiff Injured in Crash of Airline Engaged in International Travel

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that a written contract of transportation between plaintiff and defendant under which the transportation described in the complaint was performed was subject to the rules relating to liability established by _____ [specify applicable international convention, e.g., the Convention for Unification of Certain Rules Relating to International Transportation by Air signed at Warsaw], and adhered to by the United States, and that the rules of the Convention limit the liability of defendant to plaintiff for personal injuries, if any there be, to the sum of _____ [specify sum to which applicable international convention limits liability].

[2] Use of Form

The form of affirmative defense in [1], above, may be set forth in an answer to a complaint for damages arising from an airplane crash by a plaintiff engaged in "international transportation" as defined and governed by the Warsaw Convention [49 Stat. 3000], or "international carriage," as defined in the Montreal Convention of 1999.

The proviso of the Warsaw Convention limiting liability of an airline company does not apply if the passenger tickets embodying limitation are not delivered sufficiently in advance of flight so that the passenger may, if he or she wishes, obtain additional insurance [Warren v. Flying Tiger Line, Inc. (9th Cir. [Cal] 1965) 352 F.2d 494, 498] . No such waiver of the limitations on liability for failure to notify exists under the Montreal Convention [see Montreal Convention, Art. 9 (1999)].

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Limitation of Liability by Baggage Check Under Warsaw Convention [49 Stat. 3000]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

1. On or before _____ [date], a baggage check was issued by the defendant, _____ [name], to the decedent for each article of baggage tendered by him for transportation in accordance with the contract hereinabove set forth, other than such articles as were retained in the personal custody and control of the decedent; the total weight of the decedent's baggage covered by the checks was _____ [weight]; a duplicate of each of the checks was likewise issued by the defendant and retained in its custody; the checks were all in writing, each in the same form, and contained the number of the decedent's passage ticket, together with the following provisions:

"Transportation hereunder is subject to the rules relating to liability established by the Convention of Warsaw of 12th October, 1929, unless under the provisions of the Identification Coupon of the above-numbered ticket the transportation under the Flight Coupon(s) of such ticket is not subject to such rules relating to liability."

2. In accordance with the aforesaid agreement, the rights of the parties herein were and are governed by and subject to the rules relating to liability established by the Convention, the conditions and requirements of which were in all respects duly complied with by the defendant, _____ [name]. Defendant and its agents took all necessary measures to avoid the damage claimed by the plaintiffs, except for such measures as were impossible for it or them to exercise; and the defendant claims exemption from, and limitation of, liability in accordance with the rules relating to liability for loss of, or damage to, baggage, established by the Convention and referred to in Paragraph I, above.

[2] Use of Form

The form of affirmative defense in [1], above, may be set forth in an answer to a complaint for loss of baggage by a plaintiff engaged in "international transportation" as defined and governed by the Warsaw Convention. Recoverable loss is 250 francs per kilogram of property lost [49 Stat. 3000]. The text of the Warsaw Convention may be found at 49 U.S.C.S. § 40105.

1. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [name] was and now is a political subdivision of the state of California, duly created, organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the state.

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 16.40[1], Paragraph 3.]

3. At all times herein mentioned, defendant owned, operated and maintained in _____ County, California, a certain airport for public use. The airport was more commonly known and designated as _____ [name] Field. At that field, defendant operated and maintained a certain runway area, No. _____ [number of runway], which was designated by defendant as a runway on which descending airplanes should land.

4. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff owned a certain _____ [type] airplane, bearing identification No. _____ [number], and was operating the same at and over the airport.

5. At that time and place, defendant negligently operated, maintained, and conducted the airport and particularly the area immediately adjacent to runway No. _____ [number], by placing or piling, and allowing to remain along the edge of the runway, a pile or mound of dirt, proximately resulting in the runway being rendered unsafe, unfit, dangerous, and hazardous to persons and airplanes descending and landing thereon.

6. By reason of the carelessness and negligence of defendant and as a proximate result thereof, on _____ [date], while plaintiff was effecting a landing of his airplane, it came in contact with and struck the mound or pile of dirt as a proximate result of which, the airplane crashed, proximately resulting in the wrecking of the airplane and proximately resulting in plaintiff's being rendered sick, sore, lame, disabled and disordered, both externally and internally, and proximately causing plaintiff to suffer grave and serious personal injuries, more particularly described as follows, to wit: _____ [describe injuries], all to his damage.

7. [Medical and incidental expenses. See § 16.41[1], Paragraph 7.]

8. [Loss of earnings. See § 16.41[1], Paragraph 8.]

9. Immediately prior to the happening of the accident, the reasonable market value of the plaintiff's airplane was $_____ [amount]. Immediately after the happening of the accident and collision, the reasonable market value of the plaintiff's airplane was $_____ [amount] and no more. By reason thereof, plaintiff has been damaged.

10. On or about _____ [date], and prior to the commencement of this action, plaintiff presented to defendant his claim for the damages sought in this action. A copy of the claim is attached hereto as Exhibit "'A" and made a part hereof.

11. On or about _____ [date], defendant _____ [rejected the claim in its entirety or allowed the claim in the amount of $_____ and rejected it as to the remainder].

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[Verification, if desired. See § 16.40[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by the owner of an airplane to recover from a municipal airport damages based on negligence [see Pignet v. City of Santa Monica (1938) 29 Cal. App. 2d 286, 287, 84 P.2d 166 ; Coleman v. Oakland (1930) 110 Cal. App. 715, 719-720 (liability of cities operating airports);. Miller v. County of Contra Costa (1951) 106 Cal. App. 2d 304, 307, 235 P.2d 76 (standard of care in airport cases involving maintenance of runways)].

The form includes allegations that the plaintiff complied with the requirements for filing a tort claim against the public entity that owns and operates the airport (Paragraphs 10-11) [see Gov. Code §§ 905, 905.2; for discussion of claims against public entities, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act].

[3] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded for this cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115].

[4] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for Personal Injuries Based on Negligence [Civ. Code §§ 1714(a), 2100]--By Airline Passenger Against Airport and Airline--Fall on Ramp by Passenger

[Caption. See § 16.90[1].]

Plaintiff alleges:

1. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [name of public entity that owns airport], hereinafter referred to as defendant _____ [specify, e.g., Ocean County], was the owner of certain land premises known as the _____ [name of airport] Airport, located in _____, California.

2. [Capacity and residence of defendant airline. See § 16.40[1], Paragraph 2, and § 16.43[1], Paragraph 1.]

[3. Fictitious name allegations, if appropriate. See § 16.40[1], Paragraph 3.]

4. Prior to _____ [date of accident], defendant _____ [name of entity, e.g., Ocean County] leased to defendant _____ [name of airline], a common carrier, hereinafter referred to as defendant airline, for the operation of its aircraft transportation system and accommodation of passengers, certain parts, facilities, and services of the airport, including all means of access from the waiting room in the terminal to the loading ramps to defendant airline's airplanes, and on that date defendant airline was in possession and control thereof.

5. In the lease from defendant _____ [specify, e.g., Ocean County] to defendant airline it was provided that defendant _____ [specify, e.g., Ocean County] reserved the right to enter into and on the premises leased to defendant airline for the purpose of making such repairs or alterations therein as might be necessary for the safety and preservation thereof.

6. On the above date and long prior thereto the access ramp to loading gate number _____ [number], and particularly the threshold through to the north door of the waiting room to the ramp was, and had been permitted to remain, in a dangerous and defective condition for use by passengers in that a board on the threshold had become worn and unfastened at one end and a hole or depression and a rough and irregular surface had developed.

7. Defendants knew, or in the exercise of ordinary care should have known, of this dangerous and defective condition of the threshold, but defendants negligently, carelessly, and unlawfully permitted the threshold to be and remain in the dangerous and defective condition.

8. At or about _____ [time of accident] on _____ [date of accident], plaintiff was a passenger for hire on defendant airline's flight number _____[number]. Defendant airline and its agents, servants, and employees directed plaintiff to use the access ramp number _____ [number], to reach the plane. Because of the negligence and unlawful conduct of defendants, and each of them, in constructing, maintaining, and repairing, or failing to repair, the threshold, as above stated, plaintiff was caused to and did trip and fall at the threshold.

9. As a proximate result of the negligence of defendants, and each of them, and by reason of the fall so negligently caused by defendants, plaintiff sustained the following injuries: _____ [describe injuries], all to his/her damage.

10. [Medical and incidental expenses. See § 16.41[1], Paragraph 7.]

11. [Loss of earnings. See § 16.41[1], Paragraph 8.]

12. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff presented to defendant _____ [specify public entity, e.g., Ocean County] a claim for the damages sought in this action. A copy of the claim is attached hereto as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof. [2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [2], above, is for use by a passenger to recover from an airport and an airline company damages for personal injuries based on negligence in maintaining an access ramp in an airport.

The form includes allegations that the plaintiff complied with the requirements for filing a tort claim against the public entity that owns and operates the airport (Paragraph 12) [see Gov. Code §§ 905, 905.2; for discussion of claims against public entities, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act].

[3] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual damages demanded [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)]. No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought [Civ. Code § 3295(e); Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)]. Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [*Code Civ. Plaintiff alleges:

1. At all times herein mentioned, defendant was, and is, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of California with its principal office in _____County. [Or allege other capacity and residence.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 16.40[1], Paragraph 3.]

3. [Agency allegation, if appropriate. See § 16.40[1], Paragraph 4.]

4. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [name] was engaged in the business of operating an airpark, located in _____, California, wherein, on the payment of consideration, the defendant provided space, equipment, and facilities for the use and convenience of airplane owners who desired to store and maintain airplanes at the defendant's place of business.

5. In connection with defendant's place of business, defendant provided a stepladder for persons maintaining aircraft on the premises for use of the person in climbing on and about their airplanes while servicing and maintaining them. The stepladder was so carelessly and negligently maintained and allowed to become so defective that it was incapable of supporting the weight of an ordinary individual in the use for which it was to be put. Such defect was not open and obvious.

6. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff stored his airplane at the airpark, paying a valuable consideration therefor.

7. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff obtained from defendant the stepladder for the purpose of cleaning his airplane.

8. Then and there, plaintiff climbed to the _____ [e.g., third] step of the ladder, which due to its defective condition and defendant's negligence, broke, causing plaintiff to fall to the ground, resulting in the following injuries: _____ [describe injuries], all to his damage.

9. [Medical and incidental expenses. See § 16.41[1], Paragraph 7.]

10. [Loss of earnings. See § 16.41[1], Paragraph 8.]

_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[Verification, if desired. See § 16.40[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by the patron of an airpark against the airpark operator for damages based on negligence arising from a defective stepladder provided for the patron's use in servicing and maintaining his or her aircraft [see Quinn v. Whiteman Airport Co. (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 374, 376, 282 P.2d 88 (no liability to patron of airpark for injuries resulting from use of defective ladder belonging to airpark when defective condition of ladder is open and obvious)].

[3] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded for this cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115].

[4] Ensuing Liability

The fact situation used in this form may give rise to a cause of action based on strict liability in tort against the airpark operator as bailor or lessor of the stepladder [see Price v. Shell Oil Co. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 245, 249-250, 85 Cal. Rptr. 178, 466 P.2d 722] or against the manufacturer, retailer, or others in the chain of distribution, and counsel will want to consider the feasibility of such an action [see generally Ch. 460, Products Liability].

§ 18.10 Governing Law

Transportation and importation of alcoholic beverages into any state, territory, or possession of the United States in violation of the local laws of those entities is prohibited by U.S. Const., amend. XXI, § 2 [see Granholm v. Heald (2005) 544 U.S. 460, 492, 125 S. Ct. 1885, 1907, 161 L. Ed. 2d 796 (U.S. Const., amend. XXI, § 2 does not allow states to regulate wine shipments on terms that discriminate in favor of in-state producers)]. Interstate transportation of alcoholic beverages for possession, use, or sale in violation of state or territorial laws is prohibited by 27 U.S.C. § 122. Intoxicating liquors transported into any state or territory become subject to the laws of that state or territory under 27 U.S.C. § 121. Interstate commerce laws affecting alcoholic beverages are contained in 27 U.S.C. §§ 201-211. Laws governing customs inspection and branding of imported liquors are contained in 19 U.S.C. §§ 467, 468.

The State of California has the exclusive power, subject to the United States internal revenue laws, to license and regulate the manufacture, sale, purchase, possession, and transportation of alcoholic beverages within the state under Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22. That provision also establishes the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control as the agency authorized to license the manufacture, importation, and sale of alcoholic beverages in the state, and to collect license fees in accordance with laws enacted by the state Legislature. Legislation providing for licensing and regulation of alcoholic beverages is contained in the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 23000 et seq.).

Statutory provisions that govern the transfer or exchange of liquor licenses are contained in Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 24070-24082. Provisions regarding transferability of licenses for certain purposes and between certain parties are set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 24070.1-24071.1.

Statutes applying to administrative proceedings generally are contained in Gov. Code § 11500 et seq. Administrative regulations governing those licenses and proceedings are set forth in 4 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1-145, 178 et seq.

§ 18.11 Application for License

[1] Requirements Generally

Applications for licenses are made to the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control on a prescribed form, and must be accompanied by information that the Department requires to assist it in determining whether the applicant and the premises qualify for a license [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23950]. The requirements for the contents of an application are set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 23951-23954. The application must be accompanied, at the time of filing, by the necessary application fees [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 23954.5-23957].

[2] Posting of Notice

After filing an application to engage in the sale of any alcoholic beverage at any premises, the applicant must post a notice of intention to commence in a conspicuous place at the entrance to the premises. No license may be issued for the premises until the notice has been posted for at least 30 consecutive days [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23985].

If the application is for a retail license at a premises that is not currently licensed, or is licensed for a different retail license, the applicant must also [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23985.5]:

- Mail notification of the application to every resident of real property within a 500-foot radius of the premises for which the license is to be issued; and

- Submit proof of compliance to the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control prior to license approval.

If the application was for an on sale license (a license to sell alcoholic beverages for consumption on the licensed premises [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 23396, 23396.5, 23399]), the applicant must publish a notice of the application in a newspaper of general circulation and file an affidavit of publication with the Department [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23986(a); Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 2010 (proof of publication by printer)].

Any applicant for an on-sale or off-sale license at a premises that is located in a census tract that has an undue concentration of licenses must cause a notice of the application to be published in a newspaper of general circulation other than a legal or trade publication [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23986(b); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 23958.4(a)(2), (3) (definition of "undue concentration of licenses")].

The publication must be made in the city in which the premises are situated. If the premises are not in a city, the publication must be made in a newspaper of general circulation nearest the premises where the business is to be conducted. The form of the notice shall be prescribed by the Department. An affidavit of publication must be filed with the Department before a license is issued [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23986(b)].

§ 18.12 Investigation of License Applicants

When the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control receives the applicable fee and an application for a license or for the transfer of a license, it makes a thorough investigation to determine whether the applicant and the premises qualify for a license and whether the applicant has complied with the provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 23000 et seq. Investigation includes all matters connected with the application that may affect the public welfare and morals. The Department may deny an application for a license if issuance of the license would tend to create a law enforcement problem, or if issuance would result in or add to an undue concentration of licenses, and the applicant fails to show that public convenience or necessity would be served by issuance [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23958; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 23958.4(b) (exceptions); see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 23958.4(a), (c) (definitions)].

§ 18.13 Protest Against License

[1] Procedure

A person may file a protest against issuance of a license at any office of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control within 30 days from the first date of posting the notice of intention to engage in the sale of alcoholic beverages at the premises, within 30 days of the mailing of the notification pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 23985.5, or within 30 days of the mailing of the notices of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control to public officials as required by Bus. & Prof. Code § 23987, whichever is later [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24013(a)]. The time within which a local law enforcement agency may file a protest may be extended by the period prescribed in section Bus. & Prof. Code § 23987, pursuant to a request made under that section [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24013(a)].

The protest must state the name of the applicant, the exact address of the proposed premises, and must be signed by the protestant [Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control Publication ABC-510-A (11/03)].

For a form of protest against issuance of license, see § 18.50.

A protest by any person other than an employee of the Department or a public officer must be verified. Verification may be on information and belief [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24014]. For a form of verification, see § 18.70[1].

[2] Grounds

The protest must set forth the particular ground of objection, and also specify the facts that support these objections [Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control Publication ABC-510-A (11/03)].

A city or county does not have the right to make a general or blanket protest against the policy of issuing licenses [San Diego v. State Board of Equalization (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 453, 464-465, 186 P.2d 166] . A city or county official, school official, church representative, or other interested person who desires to protest the granting of a license in a specific case is required by law to state in the protest a valid ground of denial relating to the particular application [

San Diego v. State Board of Equalization (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 453, 464-465, 186 P.2d 166] .

Some of the grounds of protest which could relate to public welfare and morals are as follows [Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control Publication ABC-510-A (11/03); see SP Star Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 459, 474-477, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 152 (looking at factors to deny license)]:

- The premises are located within the immediate vicinity of a school, church, hospital, or children's public playground and the normal operation of the licensed premises would interfere with their respective functions. It will be necessary to establish specifically the detrimental factors which would affect the facility. However, mere proximity to such consideration points is not sufficient grounds in and of itself to support a denial.

- The premises are located in a residential area, and the normal operation of the licensed premises would interfere with the quiet enjoyment of their property by the residents of the area. It will be necessary to identify specifically how the residents will be affected.

- Licensing the premises would create a public nuisance as defined in Penal Code § 370. The specific facts leading to this conclusion must be stated.

- Issuance of the license to the premises would tend to create a law enforcement problem or aggravate an already existing police problem.

- Issuance of the license to the premises would result in or add to undue concentration of licenses.

- Licensing the premises would be contrary to the provisions of a valid zoning ordinance.

- The applicant is not the true or sole owner of the business to be licensed. It will be necessary to present evidence and/or testimony as to the true ownership.

- The applicant has been convicted of a felony or of a crime involving moral turpitude, or of one of the offenses listed in Bus. & Prof. Code § 24200(b) (Alc. Bev. Control Act).

- The applicant has a record of chronic insobriety.

- The applicant has a police record that disqualifies him/her for a license.

[3] Hearing

A hearing must be held on a valid protest so as to afford the applicant the right to meet the objections with whatever appropriate evidence he or she may have available [Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control Publication ABC-510-A (11/03)]. The mere submission of a protest against issuance of a particular license does not complete the matter. The protestant must attend the hearing to present testimony and/or evidence to substantiate the protest [Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control Publication ABC-510-A (11/03)].

The applicant bears the burden of proof regarding the applicant's eligibility for a liquor license from the start of the application process until the Department makes a final determination [Coffin v. Alcoholic Bev. Control Appeals Bd. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 471, 473, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 420] .

Any hearing held in response to a protest must be held no later than 60 days after receipt of the protest by the State Office of Administrative Hearings [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24015].

The applicant must be furnished with a statement of issues to be determined at the hearing, which must set forth the specific objection or objections to the granting of the license [Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control Publication ABC-510-A (11/03)]..

[4] Rejection of Protest

The Department may reject any protest at any time before a hearing, except a protest by a public agency or a public official or protests by the governing body of a city or county, at any time after determining that the protest is false, vexatious, or without reasonable or probable cause [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24013].

If the Department rejects a protest and issues a license, a protestant whose protest has been rejected may, within 10 days after the issuance of the license, file an accusation with the Department alleging the grounds of protest as a cause for revocation of the license, and the Department will then hold a hearing as provided in the Administrative Procedure Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24013]. This procedure does not restrict any right that the individual making the protest might have to any judicial proceeding [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24013].

If, after investigation, the Department recommends issuance of a license notwithstanding a protest by a public agency, public official, or the governing body of a city or county, the Department must notify that agency, official, or governing body in writing of its determination and its reasons for the determination, in conjunction with the notice of hearing provided to the protestant according to the Administrative Procedure Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24013; see also Gov. Code § 11509; § 18.16[2], for discussion relating to notice].

[5] Withdrawal of Application

If an application is withdrawn as a result of any protest being filed opposing issuance of the license, the applicant may not refile an application for the same location for a period of one year from the date of the withdrawal [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24013.1]. Furthermore, all verified protests filed against the issuance of the license remain valid against any subsequent applications filed for the premises for a period of one year from the date of withdrawal [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24013.2].

[6] Interim Retail Permit

The Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, in its discretion, may issue an interim retail permit to an applicant for any retail license to operate the premises during the period an application for a license is pending, and when all of the following conditions exist [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24044.5]:

- The application has been protested.
- The Department has made a determination based upon its investigation that the license should be issued.
- The applicant for the interim retail permit has filed with the Department an application for issuance of a license at the premises to himself or herself.
- The application for the interim permit is accompanied by a fee of $100.

An interim retail permit is for a period not to exceed 120 days, and may be extended at the discretion of the Department for an additional 120 day period upon payment of an additional fee of $100 and compliance with all conditions set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 24045.5 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24044.5(b)]. An interim retail permit may be canceled or suspended summarily at any time if the Department determines that good cause for the cancellation or suspension exists [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24044.5(h)].

§ 18.14 Denial of License

[1] Authority of Department

The Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control has the power, in its discretion, to deny a license application or suspend or revoke an issued license if it determines on good cause that [Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22]:

- Granting the application or allowing the license to remain in force would be contrary to public welfare or morals; or

- The applicant or licensee has violated any law prohibiting conduct involving moral turpitude.

The Department's constitutional discretion is not absolute but must be exercised in accordance with the law. The requirement to act on good cause necessarily implies that decisions must be based on sufficient evidence and that the Department may not act arbitrarily in determining what is contrary to public welfare or morals [Kirby v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 433, 436-437, 102 Cal. Rptr. 857, 498 P.2d 1105 ; Department of Alcoholic Bev. Control v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 549, 557, 175 Cal. Rptr. 342] .

[2] Petition Following Denial of License

The Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control must immediately notify the applicant in writing after denying an application for a license. Within 10 days after the Department mails the notice, the applicant may present his or her written petition for a license to the Department [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24011]. The petition is set for hearing on receipt by the Department of a petition for a license in proper form [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24012]. The proceedings under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 24011-24016 (denial of licenses) are conducted in accordance with Gov. Code § 11500 et seq., and the Department has all the powers granted therein [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24016].

For a form of petition following denial of application for license, see § 18.52.

§ 18.15 Suspension or Revocation of License

[1] Authority of Department

A license to sell liquor is a privilege that can be granted or withheld by the state. This is true even though a license to practice a trade is generally considered a vested property right. Revocation of a liquor license is expressly authorized in Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22. A license may be revoked to protect the public welfare and morals even in the absence of any showing of fault on the part of the licensee [Yu v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 286, 297, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 280] . A finding that a licensee has violated provisions of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act is tantamount to a finding of injury to public welfare and morals [Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1195, 1217, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 766] . For a discussion of licensing generally, see Ch. 471B, Licensing by Public Agencies , et seq.

[2] Grounds

[a] Discretionary Suspension or Revocation

The Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control may suspend or revoke a license on any of the following grounds [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24200]:

- Allowing the license to remain in force is contrary to the public welfare or morals [Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22].

- The licensee has violated, or caused or permitted a violation of, the Alcohol Beverage Control Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23000 et seq.], any rules of the State Board of Equalization adopted under Rev. & Tax. Code § 32001 et seq. (excise tax provisions), any rules of the Department of Alcohol Beverage Control adopted under the Alcohol Beverage Control Act, or any penal provisions prohibiting or regulating the sale, use, possession, giving away, adulteration, dilution, misbranding, or mislabeling of alcoholic beverages or intoxicating liquors. This ground is subject to any limitations in Bus. & Prof.

Code § 25000 et seq. (beer price posting and marketing regulations).

- The licensee misrepresented a material fact in obtaining any license.

- The licensee has been convicted on a plea, verdict, or judgment of guilty, or a plea of nolo contendere, of any public offense involving moral turpitude or under any federal law prohibiting or regulating the sale, exposing for sale, use, possession, or giving away of alcoholic beverages or intoxicating liquors or prohibiting the refilling or reuse of distilled-spirits containers.

- The licensee has failed to take reasonable steps to correct objectionable conditions on the licensed premises or an adjacent area owned, leased, or rented by the licensee, that constitute a nuisance, within a reasonable time after receipt of notice to make those corrections from a district attorney, city attorney, county counsel, or the Department, under Penal Code § 373a (maintaining or permitting nuisance).

- The licensee has failed to take reasonable steps to correct objectionable conditions that occur during business hours on any public sidewalk abutting the licensed premises and that constitute a nuisance, within a reasonable time after receipt of written notice to correct these conditions from the Department.

The Department will issue this written notice on its own determination, or on a request from the local law enforcement agency in whose jurisdiction the premises are located, if there is substantial evidence that persistent objectionable conditions are occurring on the public sidewalk abutting the licensed premises [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24200; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 24200(f)(1)-(3) (definitions); see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 24200(g) (exceptions)].

[b] Mandatory Revocation

The Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control must revoke a license on either of the following grounds [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24200.5]:

- A retail licensee has knowingly permitted the illegal sale, or negotiations for illegal sales, of controlled substances or dangerous drugs on the licensed premises.

- The licensee has employed or permitted any persons to solicit or encourage others, directly or indirectly, to buy them drinks on the licensed premises under any commission, percentage, salary, or other profit-sharing plan, scheme, or conspiracy.

[c] Automatic Suspension on Cancellation of Bond, or Failure to Pay Taxes

[i] Security Requirements

The State Board of Equalization, whenever it deems it necessary, may require any licensee to place with it, in the form and amount that the Board prescribes, any security in the form of cash, insured deposits in banks and savings and loan institutions, or a bond or bonds executed by an admitted surety insurer, payable to the state, conditioned upon faithful performance of all of the requirements of Rev. & Tax Code § 32001 et seq., and expressly providing for the payment of all license taxes, penalties, and other obligations of the person arising out of Rev. & Tax Code § 32001 et seq., to be held in trust and used solely in the manner provided [Rev. & Tax Code § 32102].

The State Board of Equalization fixes the total amount of the security required of any licensee, and may increase or reduce the amount at any time [Rev. & Tax Code § 32103]. In fixing the total amount, the Board may set an amount which is not less than $500, and not more than [Rev. & Tax Code § 32103]:

- Twice the licensee's estimated monthly tax for the tax reporting period, for taxpayers reporting monthly, or

- Twice the licensee's estimated tax for the tax reporting period, for taxpayers reporting for periods longer than one month.

Every bond must contain a provision substantially that when the surety exercises his or her right to withdraw as surety, the withdrawal is to be effective [Rev. & Tax Code § 32104]:

- If the notice is received on or before the 15th day of the month, on the first day of the calendar month after receipt of the notice by the State Board of Equalization.

- Otherwise, on the first day of the second calendar month after receipt of the notice by the Board.

[ii] Automatic Suspension of License

A license is automatically suspended [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24205]:

- Upon cancellation of the licensee's bond (if, as required security, the licensee has elected to post a bond) [see Rev. & Tax Code § 32102];

- If the licensee's bond becomes void or unenforceable for any reason; or

- If the licensee fails to pay any taxes or penalties under the Sales and Use Tax Law [see Rev. & Tax Code § 6001 et seq.], the Bradley-Burns Uniform Local Sales and Use Tax Law [see Rev. & Tax Code § 7200 et seq.], the Transactions and Use Tax Law Law [see Rev. & Tax Code § 7251 et seq.], when that liability arises in whole or in part from exercising the privilege of an alcoholic beverage license, or the Alcoholic Beverage Tax Law [Rev. & Tax Code § 24205; see Rev. & Tax Code § 32001 et seq.].

A suspension for tax delinquency may only be imposed if the taxpayer is at least three months delinquent [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24205].

The license is automatically reinstated if the licensee files a valid bond, or pays the delinquent taxes, as the case may be [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24205].

On the suspended licensee's petition, a hearing may be held to determine whether the suspension in valid, after five days' notice of the time and place of hearing [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24205]. For a petition for hearing on automatic suspension of license for cancellation of bond or failure to pay taxes, see § 18.55.

[3] Accusations to Suspend or Revoke License

[a] Right to File Accusation

Any person may make an accusation against any licensee to the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control. Accusations must be in writing and state one or more grounds that would authorize the Department to suspend or revoke the license or licenses of the licensee against whom the accusation is made [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24201]. For a form of accusation, see § 18.56.

The accusation must set forth, in ordinary and concise language, the acts or omissions with which the respondent is charged, to the end that the respondent will be able to prepare his defense [Gov. Code § 11503]. It must specify the statutes and rules which the respondent is alleged to have violated, but must not consist merely of charges phrased in the language of those statutes and rules [Gov. Code § 11503].

The accusation must be verified unless made by a public officer acting in his official capacity, or by and employee of the Department [Gov. Code § 11503]. The verification may be on information and belief [Gov. Code § 11503].

An accusation may also be filed by the legislative body, or chief of police, of any city in which the premises in question are located, or if the premises are in unincorporated territory, then by the board of supervisors, or the sheriff, of the county, requesting the suspension or revocation of any retail license [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24203].

On the filing of the accusation, the Department provides for a public hearing in the county in which the premises are located and determines whether or not the license should be revoked or suspended [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24203]. Whenever the local legislative body, chief of police, or sheriff certifies that the public safety, health, or welfare requires an immediate hearing of the accusation, the public hearing is held within 60 days after the filing of the accusation with the Department [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24203].

At any time before the matter is submitted for decision, the Department may file or permit the filing of an amended or supplemental accusation [Gov. Code § 11507]. If the amended or supplemental accusation presents new charges, the Department must afford the respondent a reasonable opportunity to prepare a defense, but the respondent is not entitled to file a further pleading unless the Department, in its discretion, permits otherwise [Gov. Code § 11507]. Any new charges are deemed controverted, and any objections to the amended or supplemental accusation made be made orally and must be noted in the record [Gov. Code § 11507].

[b] Notice of Defense

[i] In General

The licensee may file with the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control a notice of defense within 15 days after service on the licensee of the accusation, in which he or she may [Gov. Code § 11506(a)]:

- Admit the accusation in whole or in part.
- Request a hearing.
- Object to the accusation on the ground that it does not state acts or omissions on which the Department may proceed.
- Object to the form of the accusation on the ground that it is so indefinite or uncertain that he or she cannot identify the transaction or prepare a defense.
- Object to the accusation on the ground that, under the circumstances, compliance with the requirements of the regulation on which the accusation is based would result in material violation of another regulation enacted by another department that affects substantive rights.
- Present new matter by way of defense.

Within the time specified, the licensee may file one or more notices of defense upon any or all of these grounds, but all such notices must be filed within that period, unless the Department, in its discretion, authorizes the filing of a later notice [Gov. Code § 11506(a)].

The notice of defense must be in writing signed by or on behalf of the respondent and must state his or her mailing address. It need not be verified or follow any particular form [Gov. Code § 11506(c)]. For a form of notice of defense, see § 18.57.

[ii] Right to Hearing

The licensee is entitled to a hearing on the merits if he or she files a notice of defense, and any such notice is deemed a specific denial of all parts of the accusation not expressly admitted [Gov. Code § 11506(b)]. Failure to file the notice constitutes a waiver of respondent's right to hearing, but the Department has discretion, nevertheless, to nevertheless grant a hearing [Gov. Code § 11506(b)].

[iii] Statement by Way of Mitigation

The licensee may file a statement by way of mitigation even if he does not file a notice of defense [Gov. Code § 11506(d)].

[4] Offer in Compromise in Lieu of Suspension

Whenever a decision suspending the petitioner's license for 15 days or less becomes final, whether by failure of the licensee to appeal the decision, or by exhaustion of all appeals and judicial review, the licensee may, before the operative date of the suspension, petition the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control for permission to make an offer in compromise, to be paid into the Alcohol Beverage Control Fund, consisting of a sum of money in lieu of serving the suspension [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23095]. For a form of petition to make offer in compromise, see § 18.58.

Upon receipt of the petition, the Department may stay the proposed suspension and cause any investigation to be made which it deems desirable, and may grant the petition if it is satisfied that the following conditions are met [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23095]:

- The public welfare and morals would not be impaired by permitting the licensee to operate during the period set for suspension, and the payment of the sum of money will achieve the desired disciplinary purposes, and

- The books and records of the licensee are kept in such a manner that the loss of sales of alcoholic beverages which the licensee would have suffered had the suspension gone into effect can be determined with reasonable accuracy.

The amount of the offer in compromise is the equivalent of 50 percent of the estimated gross sales of alcoholic beverages for each day of the proposed suspension, and the offer is subject to certain minimum and maximum amounts [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23095].

For retail licensees, the offer in compromise must be either:

- Not less than $1,500 and not more than $6,000 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23095(a)].

- Not less than $750 and not more than $3,000, if the petitioning retailer has had no other accusation filed against him or her by the Department during the preceding three years from the date of the petition that resulted in a final decision to suspend or revoke the retail license concerned [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23095(b)].

For nonretail licensees, the offer in compromise must be not less than $750 and not more than $10,000 [Bus. & Prof.

Code § 23095(c)(1); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 23095(c)(2) (exception)].

§ 18.16 Hearings on Protest, Accusation, or Petition for License

[1] Place

Hearings on a protest, accusation, or petition for a license are held at the county seat of the county in which the premises or licensee are located [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24300(a)]. If a protest is filed against an application for a license and the proposed premises are located within a city, however, the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control may, in its discretion, hold the hearing within that city, unless the protest is filed by the governing body of the city, in which case the Department must hold the hearing within that city [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24300(b)].

Hearings before the Department on reconsideration, or after the Department has rejected a proposed decision by an administrative law judge [see Gov. Code § 11517(c)], may be held at any place in California where the Department is meeting [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24300(a)].

The Department, in its exclusive discretion, must consider scheduling the hearing at a time, including evening hours, at a place convenient to all parties, including any witnesses required to be present, and the public affected [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24300(a)].

[2] Conduct of Hearing

Generally, the proceedings are conducted in accordance with Gov. Code § 11500 et seq., and in all cases the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control has all the powers granted therein [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24300(a)]. For discussion of the conduct of administrative proceedings, see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication , et seq.

[3] Notice

The Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control must deliver or mail a notice of hearing to all parties at least 10 days prior to the hearing. The hearing may not be prior to the expiration of the time within which the respondent is entitled to file a notice of defense [Gov. Code § 11509].

The notice of hearing must include the substance of respondent's rights with respect to representation by counsel, the presentation of evidence, the cross examination of witnesses, and the issuance of subpoenas [Gov. Code § 11509; see [6], below, regarding corporation's right to representation by counsel]. For further discussion of hearing notices, see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication , et seq.

[4] Discovery Rights

A party is entitled to have discovery from another party [Gov. Code § 11507.6]. The provisions of Gov. Code § 11507.6 provide the exclusive right to and method of discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.5]. For discussion of discovery in administrative proceedings, and for appropriate forms, see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication , et seq.

[5] Evidence

At administrative hearings oral evidence is taken only on oath or affirmation [Gov. Code § 11513(a)]. Each party has the right to call and examine witnesses, to introduce exhibits, to cross examine opposing witnesses on any matter relevant to the issues, to impeach any witness regardless of which party first called him or her to testify, and to rebut the evidence against him or her [Gov. Code § 11513(b)].

If the respondent does not testify in his or her own behalf the respondent may be called and examined as if under cross examination [Gov. Code § 11513(b)].

With limited exceptions, the hearing need not be conducted according to technical rules relating to evidence and witnesses. Any relevant evidence must be admitted if it is the sort of evidence on which responsible persons are accustomed to rely in the conduct of serious affairs, regardless of the existence of any common law or statutory rule that might make improper the admission of certain evidence over objection in civil actions [Gov. Code § 11513(c); see also Big Boy Liquors, Ltd. v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 1226, 1230, 81 Cal. Rptr. 258, 459 P.2d 674 (applying Gov. Code § 11513(c) to a hearing before the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control)].

A corporate licensee appearing as a party in an adjudicatory administrative hearing need not be represented by counsel and is entitled to be represented by a nonattorney officer of that corporation [Caressa Camille, Inc. v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1103, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 758 (administrative tribunal is not "court of record" as defined by Cal. Const., art. VI, § 1 in which corporation must be represented by counsel)].

Hearsay evidence may be used for the purpose of supplementing or explaining other evidence by is not sufficient in itself to support a finding unless it would be admissible over objection in civil actions. The rules of privilege are effective only to the extent that they are otherwise required by statute to be recognized at the hearing, and irrelevant and unduly repetitious evidence must be excluded [Gov. Code § 11513(c)].

For further discussion of the conduct of administrative proceedings, see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication , et seq.

[6] Representation of Corporation

A court of appeal has held, as a matter of first impression in California, that the general common law rule requiring corporations to be represented by counsel in proceedings before courts of record other than small claims courts does not extend to proceedings before administrative agencies and tribunals [Caressa Camille, Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1103, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 758 (department's decision, upheld by board, to revoke corporation's liquor license was not void for lack of jurisdiction when corporation was represented by nonattorney president at evidentiary administrative hearing before ALJ)].

Chapter 18 ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGE LICENSES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

3-18 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 18.17

AUTHOR: Ralph Barat Saltsman Stephen Warren Solomon of Solomon, Saltsman & Jamieson Editorial Consultants

§ 18.17 Decision of Department

[1] Requirements

The decision must be in writing and contain findings of fact, a determination of the issues presented, and the penalty, if any. The findings may be stated in the language of the pleadings or by reference to the pleadings. Copies of the decision are delivered to the parties personally or sent to them by registered mail [Gov. Code § 11518]. The department prosecutor may not have ex parte communications with the department decision-maker about the substance of the case until after the decision is issued [Dept. of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2006) 40 Cal. 4th 1, 8-17, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 585, 145 P. 3d 462 ; Chevron Stations, Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 116, 125-131, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 6] .

Although administrative findings must conform to the statutes governing the particular agency, they need not be stated with the formality required in judicial proceedings. In connection with the action of an administrative board, the fact that certain action is taken or recommendation made may raise a presumption that the existence of the necessary facts was ascertained and found [Martin v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 259, 264, 341 P.2d 291] . Administrative findings may be general as long as they satisfy the dual requirements of making intelligent review by the courts possible and apprising the parties of the basis for administrative action [Stoumen v. Munro (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 302, 311, 33 Cal. Rptr. 305] .

For further discussion of administrative decisions, see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication , and subsequent chapters.

[2] Reconsideration

The Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control itself may order a reconsideration of all or part of the case on its own motion, or on petition of any party [Gov. Code § 11521(a); see Bonnell v. Medical Board of California (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1255, 1259-1261, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 532, 82 P.3d 740 (interpreting statute)]. The power to order a reconsideration expires [Gov. Code § 11521(a)]:

- 30 days after the delivery or mailing of a decision to respondent, or
- On the effective date of the decision if it occurs before the 30-day period elapses, or
- At the termination of a stay of the decision (which cannot exceed 30 days) granted by the Department to enable the respondent to file a petition for reconsideration.

If additional time is needed to evaluate a petition for reconsideration filed prior to the expiration of any of the applicable periods, the Department may grant a stay of that expiration for no more than 10 days, solely for the purpose of considering the petition [Gov. Code § 11521(a)]. If no action is taken on a petition within the time allowed for ordering reconsideration, the petition is deemed denied [Gov. Code § 11521(a)].

The case may be reconsidered by the Department itself on all pertinent parts of the record, and on any additional evidence and argument as may be permitted, or may be assigned to an administrative law judge, whose reconsideration is subject to the procedure provided in Gov. Code § 11517 [Gov. Code § 11521(b)].

If oral evidence is introduced before the Department itself, no member of the Department may vote unless he or she heard the evidence [Gov. Code § 11521(b)].

[3] Review of Penalty

The Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control may order a reconsideration of all or part of the case on its own motion or on petition of any party [Gov. Code §§ 11501, 11521]. Further, the Department may, on its own motion at any time before a penalty assessment is placed into effect, and without any further proceedings, review the penalty [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24211]. Review of the penalty, however, is limited to its reduction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24211]. This applies only to a reduction of a penalty at a time after the penalty is actually set by administrative action, and before it is placed in effect by the Department. An offer of settlement by the Department does not "set" the penalty so as to cause application of Bus. & Prof. Code § 24211 [Kirby v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 255, 261-262, 94 Cal. Rptr. 514] .

For a form of petition for reconsideration of penalty assessment, see § 18.59.

[4] Stay of Decision

No decision of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control is effective during the period in which an appeal may be filed, and the filing of an appeal stays the effect of the decision until such time as a final order is made by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23082].

§ 18.18 Administrative Appeal to Appeals Board

[1] Scope of Review

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board determines the appeal on the record of the Department and on any briefs that may be filed by the parties [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23083]. The Appeals Board may not receive any evidence other than that contained in the record of the proceedings of the Department [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23083]. If any party to the appeal requests the right to appear before the Appeals Board, the Board fixes a time and place for argument [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23083].

The review by the Appeals Board of a decision of the Department is limited to the following questions [Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22; Bus. & Prof. Code § 23084]:

- Whether the Department proceeded without, or in excess of, its jurisdiction.
- Whether the Department proceeded in the manner required by law.
- Whether the decision is supported by the findings.
- Whether the findings are supported by substantial evidence in the light of the whole record.
- Whether there is relevant evidence, which, in the exercise of reasonable diligence, could not have been produced or which was improperly excluded at the hearing before the Department.

The Appeals Board may not reweigh the evidence or exercise independent judgment to overturn the Department's factual findings to reach a contrary, although equally reasonable, result [Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1429, 1437, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 826 (court reversed Board when Board overruled Department's determination of factual issue)].

[2] Notice of Appeal

[a] Requirements for Appeal

On or before the tenth day after the last day on which reconsideration of a final decision of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control can be ordered, any party aggrieved by a final decision of the Department may file an appeal with the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board on such decision [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23081; see Reimel v. House (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 173, 175, 70 Cal. Rptr. 224 (holding that notice of appeal must be filed on or before 10th day following 30th day after delivery or mailing of decision)]. For discussion of reconsideration of a decision, see Gov. Code § 11521; see also § 18.16[2].

An appeal to the Appeals Board is deemed filed on the date it is received in the principal office of the Appeals Board, except that an appeal mailed to the Board by means of registered mail is deemed filed on the date of the registry with the United States Post Office [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23081.5].

A copy of the appeal must be mailed by the appellant to each party who appeared in the proceeding before the Department, including the Department which is thereafter treated in all respects as a party to the appeal [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23081]. The right to appeal is not affected by failure to seek reconsideration before the Department [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23081].

[b] Form of Notice of Appeal

The appeal must be typewritten or printed upon paper 81/2 x 11 inches in size and be double spaced [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 183]. It must be signed by the appellant or his authorized agent, and should state the general grounds for appeal, and the specific questions to be considered by the Appeals Board on review [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 184]. For discussion of the grounds for appeal, see § 18.18[1].

The original and three copies of the notice of appeal must be filed with the Appeals Board, and a copy must also be served upon all parties to the proceeding before the Department, including the Department at its principal office in Sacramento [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 184]. Service must be made by delivering or mailing a copy of the notice of appeal to each party [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 184]. Proof of service must be filed with the original notice of appeal [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 184].

For a form of notice of appeal, see § 18.65.

[3] Record on Appeal

[a] Request for Preparation of Transcript and Record

When a notice of appeal has been filed with the Appeals Board, the Board is to request the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control to furnish the appellant an itemized statement of the estimated cost of the record on appeal in accordance with the fee schedule provided in Gov. Code § 69950 [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 187]. The cost is to include filing of the original and three copies of the transcript and record, including the original exhibits, with the Appeals Board [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 187]. The statement of costs is to include the cost of preparing and delivering to the appellant a copy of the reporter's transcript, exhibits, and file transcript, if any or all are requested by the appellant [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 187]. If the Department previously ordered a transcript because of action it took under Gov. Code § 11517(c), the appellant need only pay for the copies [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 187]. The Department is to calculate the cost, notify the appellant of the cost, and demand payment [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 190]. The appellant must make payment to the Department within 15 days after the Department issues the demand [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 190].

On payment by the appellant of the amount specified, the Department is to forthwith arrange for the preparation and delivery of the record on appeal [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 187].

For a form of request for transcript and record, see § 18.66.

PRACTICE TIP:

On payment by the appellant of the amount specified, the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control forthwith arranges for the preparation of the record on appeal, and delivers a copy of the record to the appellant, including copies of exhibits. A lengthy administrative hearing can result in transcripts not being prepared for several months. By Solomon, Saltsman & Jamieson

[b] Content of Record

The record on appeal consists of [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 188]:

- The file transcript, including all pleadings and correspondence by a party; notices and orders issued by either the administrative law judge or the Department, including any proposed decision by an administrative law judge and the final decision issued by the Department; and notices, orders, pleadings, and correspondence relating to reconsideration.
- The hearing reporter's transcript of all proceedings.
- Exhibits admitted or rejected.

The notice of appeal, any papers, petitions, affidavits, declarations, or documents received by the Appeals Board in connection with the appeal become part of the record [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 189].

[4] Briefs

If the parties desire to submit written argument, the appellant may file an opening brief, the respondent may file a reply brief, and the appellant may file a closing brief [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 193]. The format and filing requirements of briefs are specified in 4 Cal. Code Reg. § 193(a).

The opening brief is required to be served and filed within 15 days after notice by the Appeals Board that the record on appeal has been filed with the Board [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 193(b)]. The reply brief is required to be served and filed within 15 days after the filing of the opening brief with the Board [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 193(b)]. The closing brief is required to be served and filed within five days after the filing of the reply brief with the Board. No extension of time to file briefs will be granted except for good cause [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 193(b)].

[5] Motions

Any motion filed with the Appeals Board must comply with the format and filing requirements of 4 Cal. Code Reg. § 193(a) [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 198.1]. Any showing in opposition to the motion of a party must be served and filed within 10 days after the date on the notice by the Appeals Board providing therefor [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 198.1]. The Board may place any motion on the calendar for hearing or may otherwise dispose of the motion [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 198.1].

[6] Oral Argument

Unless otherwise ordered by the Appeals Board [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 197(a)]:

- Each party is allowed a maximum of 30 minutes for oral argument.

- Not more than one person on a side need be heard.

- The appellant or the moving party has the right to open and close.

PRACTICE TIP:
It is rare that an appellant requires more than 30 minutes for oral argument, but the forum is generally fairly relaxed about this limitation. By Solomon, Saltsman & Jamieson

[7] Continuances

Continuances of oral argument will be granted only on a showing of good cause [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 197(b)].

[8] Dismissal of Appeal

The Appeals Board may issue an order dismissing an appeal [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 199]:

- On the filing by appellant with the Board a request to dismiss the appeal.

- On motion of a party, or the Board itself, that appellant has failed to perfect the appeal by failure to timely file appeal or to pay the amount specified pursuant to 4 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 187 and 190.

- On certification by the Department that reconsideration has been granted in the case, in which case dismissal is to be without prejudice to the filing of a subsequent appeal.

- On motion by the Department or other party, or on the Board's own motion, if sufficient cause exists for dismissal [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 199].

[9] Settlement Pending Appeal

Whenever any matter is pending before the Appeals Board or a court of record involving a dispute between the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control and a licensee, petitioner or protestant, and the parties to the dispute agree on a settlement or adjustment, the tribunal must, on stipulation by the parties that an agreement has been reached, remand the matter to the Department [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23087].

[10] Decision of Appeals Board

[a] General Requirements

[i] Time and Form

In all cases, the Appeals Board must enter its order within 60 days after the filing of the appeal [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23086]. Each order of the Appeals Board on appeal from a decision of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control must be in writing [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23088].

[ii] Filing and Service

The order of the Appeals Board is filed by delivering copies to the parties personally, or by mailing copies to them by certified mail [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23088].

[iii] Finality

The order becomes final on being filed, and there may be no reconsideration or rehearing by the Appeals Board [Bus. &

Prof. Code § 23088].

[b] Remand on Grounds of New Evidence

If the Appeals Board finds there is relevant evidence which, in the exercise of reasonable diligence, could not have been produced or was improperly excluded at the hearing before the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, the Board may enter an order remanding the matter to the Department for reconsideration in the light of the evidence [Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22; Bus. & Prof. Code § 23085; 4 Cal. Code Reg. § 198]. Cumulative evidence does not constitute a valid ground for remand [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 198].

The party making the request must set forth the following in the form of a declaration or affidavit [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 198]:

- The substance of the newly discovered evidence.
- Its relevancy and that part of the record to which it pertains.
- The names of witnesses to be produced and their expected testimony.
- The nature of any exhibits to be introduced.
- A detailed statement of the reasons why the evidence could not, with due diligence, have been discovered or produced at the hearing before the Department.

For a form of declaration of merits in support of a request to remand proceedings to the Department on the grounds of newly discovered evidence, see § 18.67.

[c] Affirming or Reversing Department Decision

In all appeals (other than those which the Appeals Board remands to the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control on the grounds of new evidence [see [b], above]) the Appeals Board must enter an order either affirming or reversing the decision of the Department [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23085]. When the order reverses the decision of the Department, the Appeals Board may direct the reconsideration of the matter in the light of its order, and may direct the Department to take such further action as is specially enjoined on it by law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23085]. The order may not limit or control in any way the discretion vested by law in the Department [Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22; Bus. & Prof. Code § 23085].

§ 18.19 Stay of Administrative Proceedings

The mere filing of a petition for, or the pendency of, a writ of review does not of itself stay or suspend the operation of any order, rule, or decision of the Department [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.6]. The court before which the petition is filed may, however, stay or suspend, in whole or in part, the operation of the order, rule, or decision of the Department subject to review, on the terms and conditions that the court by order directs [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.6].

No decision of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control that has been appealed to the Appeals Board, and no final order of the Board, is effective during the period in which application may be made for a writ of review [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.7].

§ 18.20 Judicial Review of Appeals Board Orders

[1] Right to Judicial Review

Orders of the Appeals Board are subject to judicial review on petition of the Director of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, or any party aggrieved by the order [Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22].

[2] Writ of Review

[a] Requirements

Any person affected by a final order of the Appeals Board, including the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, may apply to the Supreme Court or to the court of appeal for the appellate district in which the proceeding arose for a writ of review of the final order [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090]. The application must be made within 30 days after filing of the final order of the Appeals Board [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090].

A person whose complaint seeking revocation of another's liquor license has been denied probably has a sufficient beneficial interest to petition for a writ of review [see Covert v. State Board of Equalization (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 125, 130, 173 P.2d 545 (holding that such a person had standing to petition for writ of mandate prior to enactment of Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090, changing procedure from mandate to review)].

Judicial review of cases in which the Appeals Board has reversed the Department is necessarily directed at the decision of the Appeals Board, but any judicial determination of whether the Board exceeded its limited powers incidentally requires a review of the decision of the Department and of the record on which the Department's decision was based [Martin v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 867, 871-872, 13 Cal. Rptr. 513, 362 P.2d 337] .

Writs of certiorari, or review [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1067], generally, are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1067-1077. These provisions, insofar as applicable, apply to writs of review of decisions and orders of the Appeals Board [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.4]. If a writ petition is filed in superior court, the court must transfer the writ to the Court of Appeal under the statute mandating that a court lacking subject matter jurisdiction over an action transfer it to a court with jurisdiction [Padilla v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1151, 1157-1158, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 133 (when bar owner filed petition for writ of mandate pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 in superior court, challenging ABC's decision to revoke alcoholic beverage license, appellate court treated writ as writ of review and denied it); see Code Civ. Proc. § 396].

For forms relating to proceedings on petition for writ of review of order by the Appeals Board, see §§ 18.70 -18.72. For procedure and forms relating to writs of certiorari generally, see Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of.

[b] Return of Writ

The writ of review is made returnable at a time and place specified by court order, and must direct the Appeals Board to certify the whole record of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control in the case to the court, within the time specified [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.1]. No new or additional evidence may be introduced in such court, but the cause is heard on the whole record of the Department as certified by the Appeals Board [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.1].

[3] Writ of Mandate

A writ of mandate lies only from the Supreme Court or the courts of appeal in any proper case [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.5]. Thus, while under Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090 "final orders" of the Appeals Board are subject to review by writ of review, under Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.5 the appellate courts may issue a writ of mandate when otherwise appropriate to compel the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control to perform its duties [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1084-1097 (governing writ of mandate generally); see also Sail'er Inn, Inc. v. Kirby (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 1, 7, 95 Cal. Rptr. 329, 485 P.2d 529 (preemptory writ of mandate issued to compel Department to cease enforcing Bus. & Prof. Code § 25656, which prohibits employment of women as bartenders, on the ground that such statute is unconstitutional)].

For a form of petition for writ of mandate to compel the Department to perform administrative duties, see § 18.80. For procedure and forms relating to writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

[4] Scope of Judicial Review

The review by the court may not extend further than to determine, based on the whole record of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, as certified by the Appeals Board, whether [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.2]:

- The Department has proceeded without or in excess of its jurisdiction [see, e.g., Caressa Camille, Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1103, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 758 (department did not proceed without or in excess of jurisdiction by permitting corporation's nonattorney president to represent it at administrative hearing on accusation)].

- The Department has proceeded in the manner required by law [Dept. of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2006) 40 Cal. 4th 1, 8-17, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 585, 145 P. 3d 462] .

- The decision of the Department is supported by the findings.

- The findings in the Department's decision are supported by substantial evidence in the light of the whole record.

- There is relevant evidence which, in the exercise of reasonable diligence, could not have been produced, or which was improperly excluded at the hearing before the Department.

The court is not permitted to hold a trial de novo, to take additional evidence, or to exercise its independent judgment on the evidence [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.2; see SP Star Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 459, 468-470, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 152 (application for permit to sell alcohol at topless bar did not involve fundamental vested right or right of free speech and thereby require court's independent judgment); Chevron Stations, Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 116, 124, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 6 ; Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1195, 1204-1205, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 766 (scope of review is "narrow one"); Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1429, 1437, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 826 (court may not interpose its independent judgment on evidence, and must accept as conclusive the Department's findings of fact)].

The findings and conclusions of the Department on questions of fact are conclusive and final, and are not subject to review [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.3; Chevron Stations, Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 116, 124, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 6 ; Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1195, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 766] . Questions of fact include ultimate facts and the findings and conclusions of the Department [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.3]. The Appeals Board, the Department, and each party to the action or proceeding before the Appeals Board, has the right to appear in the review proceeding [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.3]. Following the hearing, the court must enter judgment either affirming or reversing the decision of the Department, or the court may remand the case for further proceedings before, or reconsideration by, the Department [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.3].

Insofar as the Department's factual findings are concerned, the scope of review is strictly limited [Boreta Enterprises, Inc. v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 85, 94, 84 Cal. Rptr. 113, 119, 465 P.2d 1] . Since the Department is an agency on which the California Constitution has conferred limited judicial powers [see Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22], the reviewing court is not entitled to exercise its independent judgment on the effect or weight of the evidence, but is simply called on to determine whether the findings are supported by substantial evidence in the light of the whole record [Boreta Enterprises, Inc. v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 85, 94, 84 Cal. Rptr. 113, 119, 465 P.2d 1 ; Caressa Camille, Inc. v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1104, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 758 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(c)].

A different set of principles governs judicial review of administrative action to the extent that it consists of declarations or applications of legal rules or is the statement of the conclusions of law that are drawn from facts found in an adjudicatory proceeding [Boreta Enterprises, Inc. v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 85, 95, 84 Cal. Rptr. 113, 119, 465 P.2d 1] . In that respect, the decisions of the Appeals Board are subject to review for excess of jurisdiction, errors of law, abuse of discretion, and insufficiency of the evidence [Boreta Enterprises, Inc. v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 85, 95, 84 Cal. Rptr. 113, 119, 465 P.2d 1 ; Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1429, 1437, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 826 (court may not interpose its independent judgment on evidence, and must accept as conclusive Department's findings of fact); Department of Alcoholic Bev. Control v. Alcoholic Bev. Control Appeals Bd. (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 549, 554, 175 Cal. Rptr. 342 ; Kirby v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 331, 334-335, 101 Cal. Rptr. 815] .

In determining whether the decision of the Department is arbitrary, its action is measured by the standard set by reason and reasonable people [Kirby v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 119, 122, 67 Cal. Rptr. 628, 630] . The court may not substitute a decision contrary to that made by the Department, even though such decision is equally reasonable, or more reasonable, if the determination by the Department is one that could have been made by reasonable people [Kirby v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 119, 122, 67 Cal. Rptr. 628, 630] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

3-18 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 18.21

AUTHOR: Ralph Barat Saltsman Stephen Warren Solomon of Solomon, Saltsman & Jamieson Editorial Consultants

§ 18.21 Transfer and Exchange of Licenses

[1] In General

Each license is separate and distinct, and is transferable from the licensee to another person, and from one premises to another premises, on approval by the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24070; 4 Cal. Code Reg. § 60]. The requirement for approval by the Department is an implied condition of all agreements for the transfer of alcoholic beverage licenses, whatever the context, and whatever the nature of the consideration [Greve v. Leger, Ltd. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 853, 859, 52 Cal. Rptr. 9, 415 P.2d 824] .

A notice of intended transfer is required to be recorded at the county recorder's office prior to filing an application for transfer of certain specifiedtypes of licenses [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24073]. Transfer fees charged by the Department are specified in Bus. & Prof. Code § 24072.

Exchanges of certain licenses for other types of licenses are permitted as provided in Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 24072.2 and 24072.5.

[2] Procedure

The transferee must apply to the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control for a license of the type to be transferred, and is required to meet all the qualifications required of an original applicant for the license [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 60(b)]. The transferor is also required to join in the application [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 60(b)]. The transfer fee is to be paid by the transferee, and must accompany the application [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 60(c)]. No license may be issued or transferred to any person unless the transferee owns or otherwise has possession and control, or a right to possession and control, of the premises for which he or she makes application for a license, evidenced by an instrument in writing or by other clear and convincing proof [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 60(m)].

Every application filed by the intended transferee for the transfer of an on sale or off sale general license (for definitions of these terms see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 23394, 23396, 23399) must indicate whether the consideration, if any, to be paid to the transferor includes payment for any or all of the following, and if so, the actual amount of the consideration [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24080]:

- Inventory.
- Fixtures.
- Transfer of the license.

If an intended transfer of a license involves a purchase price or a consideration, the licensee and intended transferee must establish an escrow before filing a transfer application with the Department, and the intended transferee must deposit with the escrow holder the full amount of the purchase price or consideration [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24074]. An exception to this rule applies in the case of certain fiduciaries [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24075]. The licensee and intended transferee must also enter into an agreement directing the escrow holder, after the state taxes referred to in Bus. & Prof. Code § 24049 have been satisfied, to pay the claims of the licensee's bona fide creditors who have filed claims with the escrow holder before the Department notifies the escrow holder that the transfer has been approved [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24075]. The agreement must also provide for distribution of the consideration in accordance with the priorities set out in Bus. & Prof. Code § 24074, if the purchase price or consideration is insufficient to pay the claims in full [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24074].

This procedure constitutes a mandatory and exclusive scheme for payment of creditors of liquor license transferors, giving creditors that comply with Bus. & Prof. Code § 24074 priority over creditors that effect any form of levy on the proceeds [Grover Escrow Corp. v. Gole (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 61, 62, 77 Cal. Rptr. 21, 453 P.2d 461] .

For a form for a complaint for restitution of purchase price against transferee and escrow holder, after disapproval of transfer by the Department, see § 18.86.

[3] Temporary Permit

The Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, in its discretion, may issue a temporary permit to the transferee of any license to continue the operation of the premises during the period a transfer application for the license from person to person at the same premises is pending, and when all of the following conditions exist [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24045.5]:

- The premises have been operated under a license within 30 days of the date of filing the application for a temporary permit.
- The license for the premises has been surrendered pursuant to the rules of the Department.
- The applicant for the temporary permit has filed with the Department an application for transfer of the license to himself or herself.
- The application for the temporary permit is accompanied by a temporary permit fee of $100.

A temporary permit is for a period not to exceed 120 days, and may be extended at the discretion of the Department for an additional 120 day period upon payment of an additional fee of $100 and compliance with all conditions set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 24045.5 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24045.5]. A temporary permit may be canceled or suspended summarily at any time if the Department determines that good cause for the cancellation or suspension exists [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24045.5(d)].

[4] License as Security

A licensee may not pledge the license as security for a loan, or as security for the performance of any agreement [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24076]. No license may be transferred for any of the following purposes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24076]:

- To satisfy or to fulfill an agreement entered into more than 90 days before the date the transfer application is filed.

- To gain or establish a preference to or for any creditor of the transferor (except as provided in Bus. & Prof. Code § 24074).

- To defraud or injure any creditor of the transferor.

Notwithstanding the prohibition of pledging a license as security, a party agreeing to purchase licensed premises may grant, and the vendor may take, an option to buy back the liquor license for a substantial consideration in the event the purchaser defaults under the agreement [Greve v. Leger, Ltd. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 853, 860, 52 Cal. Rptr. 9, 415 P.2d 824] .

Once the 90-day window for filing a transfer application is closed, the transfer of a license pursuant to an agreement is unlawful. Therefore, an agreement entered into more than 90 days before the filing of a transfer application may not be specifically enforced. However, the agreement is not for that reason illegal, and the impossibility of performance because of failure to meet the 90-day requirement is not a defense to an action for damages [Greve v. Leger, Ltd. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 853, 862, 52 Cal. Rptr. 9, 415 P.2d 824] .

§ 18.37 Decisions

[1] Constitutionality

[a] In General

U.S. Const., amend. XXI, § 2 does not allow states to regulate wine shipments on terms that discriminate in favor of in-state producers. Granholm v. Heald (2005) 544 U.S. 460, 492, 125 S. Ct. 1885, 1907, 161 L. Ed. 2d 796

Rule of Bacchus Imports, Ltd. v. Dias (1984) 468 U.S. 263, 104 S. Ct. 3049, 82 L. Ed. 2d 200 , is applicable retroactively to permit out-of-state liquor manufacturer to recover refund of excise taxes paid. James B. Beam Distilling Co. v. Georgia (1991) 501 U.S. 529, 532, 544, 111 S. Ct. 2439, 115 L. Ed. 2d 481 (plurality opinion)

City ordinance banning nude dancing as part of liquor license control program is constitutional under U.S. Const., amend. XXI, which gives broad powers to states to regulate sale of liquor, even though state Constitution delegates part of regulatory power to electorate. City of Newport v. Iacobucci (1986) 479 U.S. 92, 95-97, 107 S. Ct. 383, 93 L. Ed. 2d 334

State law imposing excise tax on imported liquor at rate more than that imposed on liquor manufactured in state is violation of Commerce Clause (U.S. Const., art. I, § 8, cl. 3). Bacchus Imports, Ltd. v. Dias (1984) 468 U.S. 263, 274-277, 104 S. Ct. 3049, 82 L. Ed. 2d 200

State statute prohibiting topless dancing in establishment licensed by state to serve liquor is within state's constitutional authority under U.S. Const., amend. XXI. New York State Liquor Auth. v. Bellanca (1981) 452 U.S. 714, 715-718, 101 S. Ct. 2599, 69 L. Ed. 2d 357

Application of Bus. & Prof. Code § 25503(h) to restrict advertising of alcoholic beverages on supermarket shopping carts is not violative of U.S. Const., amend. I, under standards of Central Hudson v. Public Serv. Comm'n (1980) 447

U.S. 557, 563-566, 100 S. Ct. 2343, 65 L. Ed. 2d 341 . Actmedia, Inc. v. Stroh (9th Cir. 1986) 830 F.2d 957, 965-968

Use by police of underage decoys to enforce laws prohibiting sales of alcoholic beverages to minors is not unconstitutional under Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22, and therefore is not an excuse or defense to charge of unlawful sales to minors; use of underage decoys promotes purpose of liquor laws, which is to protect minors. Provigo Corp. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 561, 566, 567 , 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 638, 869 P.2d 1163 ; see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 25658(e); 4 Cal. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 575, 581, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126

Local ordinances prohibiting nonobscene nude dancing, which extend beyond establishments serving alcohol, are presumptively overbroad infringements on constitutionally protected expression. Morris v. Municipal Court (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 553, 564-565, 186 Cal. Rptr. 494, 652 P.2d 51 (overruling to the extent inconsistent Crownover v. Musick (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 405, 423-425, 107 Cal. Rptr. 681, 509 P.2d 497)

Rules 143.3 and 143.4 of the Alcoholic Beverage Commission prohibiting certain sexually explicit live entertainment or films in licensed establishments are constitutional. California v. LaRue (1972) 409 U.S. 109, 93 S. Ct. 390, 34 L. Ed. 2d 342 , reh. den. 410 U.S. 948, 93 S. Ct. 1351, 35 L. Ed. 2d 615 ; Dep't Alcoholic Bev. Control v. Alcoholic Bev. Control Appeals Bd. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 880, 887-888, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 729 (annulling order of Board, which reversed Department's decision to suspend bar's liquor license for violation of Cal. Code Reg. § 143.3)

Statute [former Bus. & Prof. Code § 25656 (repealed 1971)] prohibiting hiring of women as bartenders is unconstitutional. Sail'er Inn, Inc. v. Kirby (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 1, 22, 95 Cal. Rptr. 329, 485 P.2d 529

Municipal purchase and use tax imposed on sales of alcoholic beverages does not enter field of taxation preempted by state under Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22 (giving state exclusive power to collect license fees or occupation taxes on liquor business). Ainsworth v. Bryant (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 465, 475, 211 P.2d 564

Local ordinance entirely prohibiting alcohol sales within jurisdiction is unconstitutional under Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22; however, zoning ordinance directed at abating nuisance on premises licensed to sell alcoholic beverages for off-site consumption is valid. Korean American Legal Advocacy Foundation v. City of Los Angeles (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 376, 390-393, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 530

City ordinance regulating both possession and consumption of alcohol is preempted by Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22 regarding regulation of possession, but not regarding regulation of consumption; provisions regulating consumption are severable and constitutionally valid. People v. Brewer (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 909, 913-914, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 146

City's authority to regulate conduct in establishments licensed by state of California to sell alcoholic beverages derives solely from city's general police power, not from delegation of state regulatory powers under the Twenty-first Amendment (U.S. Const., amend. XXI); city is required to justify ban on topless dancing in such establishments under traditional First Amendment (U.S. Const., amend. I) analysis. City of Rancho Cucamonga v. Warner Consulting Services, Ltd. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 1338, 1345-1346, 262 Cal. Rptr. 349

City ordinance requiring places where alcoholic beverages are sold to post warnings that drinking alcohol during pregnancy can cause birth defects is not expressly preempted by Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22 or impliedly preempted by provisions of Alcoholic Beverage Control Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 23000 et seq.). California Restaurant Assn. v. City of Los Angeles (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 405, 409-414, 237 Cal. Rptr. 415

Segregation in petitioner's premises of patrons between ages of 18 and 21 is permissible to promote constitutional objective of preventing alcoholic beverage consumption by persons under age 21, if petitioner cannot otherwise control underage drinking on premises. Reilly v. Stroh (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 47, 53, 207 Cal. Rptr. 250

County ordinance prohibiting persons possessing, consuming, using, or being under influence of alcoholic beverage from attending model studio, but permitting nondrinking, sober persons to attend does not deny equal protection or due process of law guaranteed by U.S. Const, Amend XIV. Cristmat, Inc. v. County of Los Angeles (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 590, 598-599, 93 Cal. Rptr. 325

Jurisdiction of superior courts to issue writs of mandate is not unconstitutionally curtailed by Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.5 (giving appellate courts exclusive jurisdiction over review of rules and decisions by the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control). Kirby v. Superior Court of Santa Clara County (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 975-976, 275 Cal. App. 2d 975, 976, 80 Cal. Rptr. 381 ; Dept. of Alcoholic Bev. Control v. Superior Court (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 67, 75, 73 Cal. Rptr. 780

Bus. & Prof. Code § 25601 (misdemeanor to keep disorderly house in conjunction with licensed premises) is not unconstitutional. Los Robles Motor Lodge, Inc. v. Dept. of Alcoholic Bev. Control (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 198, 203, 54 Cal. Rptr. 547

Right to engage in liquor business is subject to regulation by state in exercise of police power. Sibert v. Dept. Alcoholic Bev. Control (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 563, 566, 337 P.2d 882 ; see also Premier-Pabst Sales Co. v. State Board of Equalization (SD Cal. 1935) 13 F. Supp. 90, 93-94

State has power to regulate and even prohibit business of manufacturing and selling alcoholic beverages. Shaub's Inc. v. Dept. Alcoholic Bev. Control (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 858, 866-867, 315 P.2d 459 ; see also Premier-Pabst Sales Co. v. State Board of Equalization (SD Cal. 1935) 13 F. Supp. 90, 93-94

[b] Power of Department

[i] In General

Department prosecutor may not have ex parte communications with department decision-maker about substance of the case until after the decision is issued. Dept. of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2006) 40 Cal. 4th 1, 8-17, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 585, 145 P. 3d 462

Agency prosecutor cannot secretly communicate with the agency decision maker or the decision maker's adviser about the substance of the case prior to issuance of a final decision. Chevron Stations, Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 116, 125-131, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 6

Limitation on review of penalty by Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control under Bus. & Prof. Code § 24211 only applies after penalty is set by administrative action; penalty is not "set" when Department makes offer of settlement prior to assessing penalty. Kirby v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 255, 261-262, 94 Cal. Rptr. 514

Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control's power over denial, suspension, or revocation of licenses is subject to reasonable legislative enactments, and is not absolute. Kirby v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 1200, 1203, 81 Cal. Rptr. 241, 459 P.2d 657

Right of administrative agency to order stay of decision after filing of position for reconsideration. Koehn v. State Board of Equalization (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 109, 114, 333 P.2d 125

Though final determination of State Board of Equalization (predecessor of Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control) denying liquor license may be binding on Appeals Board and not subject to rehearing, determination is binding only as to time at which, and proceeding during which, such determination was made. Altadena Church v. St. Bd. Equalization (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 99, 105, 240 P.2d 322

Plenary jurisdiction of State Board of Equalization (predecessor of Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control) under Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22 to license and regulate sale of liquor is not to be exercised without notice and hearing required by statute when revoking license. Irvine v. State Board of Equalization (1940) 40 Cal. App. 2d 280, 285, 104 P.2d 847

[ii] Discretion

Propriety of penalty imposed on licensee in disciplinary proceedings is matter vested in discretion of Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control; its determination is not to be disturbed unless there is clear abuse of discretion. Harris v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 589, 594, 43 Cal. Rptr. 633, 400 P.2d 745

Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control is bound to exercise "legal discretion" in passing on license applications; meaning of legal discretion. Martin v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 867, 875-876, 13 Cal. Rptr. 513, 362 P.2d 337

Decision of Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control to deny license because of undue concentration of licenses is abuse of discretion because there was no evidence of undue concentration within immediate vicinity of proposed premises. Department of Alcoholic Bev. Control v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 315, 321, 186 Cal. Rptr. 189

Penalty of suspension of license for accidental violation is abuse of discretion by Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control. Joseph's of California v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 785, 789, 97 Cal. Rptr. 183

Decision of Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control is measured by standard set by "reason and reasonable people" in determining whether decision is arbitrary. Kirby v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 119, 122, 67 Cal. Rptr. 628

Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control is bound to exercise judicial discretion in imposing penalties in disciplinary proceedings. Harris v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 589, 594, 43 Cal. Rptr. 633, 400 P.2d 745

Covenant against sale of intoxicating liquors is not binding on Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control in exercising its discretion whether to issue license in area subject to covenant. Board of Trustees v. Munro (1958) 163 Cal. App. 2d 440, 447-448, 329 P.2d 765 (license granted); see Hansen v. State Board of Equalization (1941) 43 Cal. App. 2d 176, 178-180, 110 P.2d 453 (license denied)

[c] Search and Seizure

Warrantless inspection of licensee's premises to investigate suspected sale of controlled substances or dangerous drugs on premises is authorized under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 24200.5, 25753, 25755 and permissible under U.S. Const., amend. IV. People v. Paulson (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1480, 1487-1490, 265 Cal. Rptr. 579

Warrantless inspection of liquor-selling business is unreasonable unless substantial governmental interest informs regulatory scheme pursuant to which inspection is made; warrantless inspection is necessary to further regulatory scheme; and statutory inspection program, in terms of certainty and regularity of its application, provides constitutionally adequate substitute for warrant [People v. Paulson (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1480, 1485, 265 Cal. Rptr. 579]

[2] Antitrust

Bus. & Prof. Code § 23672, restricting a licensed importer from purchasing or accepting delivery of any brand of distilled spirits unless he or she is designated as an authorized importer, does not conflict with the Sherman Act (15 U.S.C. § 1) so as to be unenforceable because it merely enforces distiller's decision to restrain intra-brand competition. Rice v. Norman Williams Co. (1982) 458 U.S. 654, 661-662, 102 S. Ct. 3294, 73 L. Ed. 2d 1042

[3] Selling Without License

Reliance on mistaken advice of counsel that caterer's permit under Bus. & Prof. Code § 23999 was not revoked along with on-sale license is no defense to criminal charge of selling liquor without valid license in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 23300. People v. Guinn (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 10-11 , 196 Cal. Rptr. 696

Individuals relying on Bus. & Prof. Code § 23999 (caterer's permit to sell alcoholic beverages after on-sale liquor license revoked) violates Bus. & Prof. Code § 23300, prohibiting sale of liquor without license, because caterer's permit is dependent on existence of on-sale license. Department v. Locker (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 381, 385-387, 181 Cal. Rptr. 55

[4] Tied House Restrictions

Historical development of "tied house" restrictions [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 25500-25511]. California Beer Wholesalers Assn., Inc. v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 402, 407-408, 96 Cal. Rptr. 297, 487 P.2d 745

Alcoholic beverage wholesaler's sponsorship of restaurant's athletic events was not permitted by 4 Cal. Code Reg. § 106(e)(1) when wholesaler paid intermediary established to provide marketing services, not to promote athletic events. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1195, 1209, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 766

Bus. & Prof. Code § 25503(h) prohibits payments for privilege of placing advertising in retail establishments; it does not specify recipient of payment. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1195, 1213-1214, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 766

Promotion whereby licensee gave cash rebates to consumers of nonalcoholic products for purchase of alcoholic beverages did not violate 4 Cal. Code Reg. § 106 or Bus. & Prof. Code § 25600. People ex rel. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Miller Brewing Company (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 1189, 1194-1200, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 861 (noting legislature's distinction between premium, which is not permitted, and rebate)

Placing advertisements in a licensed retailer's exclusive sales catalog violates prohibition in Bus. & Prof. Code § 25502(a)(2) against a winegrower furnishing anything of value to a retailer. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1066, 1074-1079, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 278

Amended regulation [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 106] that prohibits alcoholic beverage licensees from continuing to conduct promotional contests in which cash prizes are given to consumers, notwithstanding that Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control authorized sweepstakes in past, held valid; regulation does not exceed scope of its enabling statute [Bus. & Prof. Code § 25600]. Coors Brewing Co. v. Stroh (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 768, 771, 778, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 570

Regulation that authorizes supplier to give retailers free "advertising specialties" (supplies bearing advertising, such as coasters, beer mats, and menu cards) up to $50 in value [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 106(e)(1)] is invalid because it conflicts with Bus. & Prof. Code § 25501(a) prohibiting beer supplier from making gift of "supplies" for use by owner or operator of establishment where alcoholic beverages are sold for consumption on the premises. California Beer & Wine Wholesalers Assn. v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 100, 101-102, 106, 109, 247 Cal. Rptr. 60

Ownership, by officers and directors of corporate subsidiary which held wholesaler's license, of interest in parent corporation which held off sale general licenses violates Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 23779 and 25502 (tied house restrictions) and are grounds for revoking subsidiary's license under Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22 and Bus. & Prof. Code § 24200(a), (b). Borun Bros. v. Department Alcoholic Beverage Control (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 503, 507, 510, 511, 30 Cal. Rptr. 175

Subsidiary of corporation holding off sale retail license is precluded under Bus. & Prof. Code § 25502 from acquiring wholesaler's license. California Beer Wholesalers Assn., Inc. v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 402, 412, 96 Cal. Rptr. 297, 487 P.2d 745

[5] Policing Premises

Applicability of Penal Code § 303, forbidding liquor licensee from employing person for purposes of encouraging sale of alcoholic beverages, to bartender who asks patron if he or she wants to buy drink for employee of licensee. Kirby v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 732, 737-738, 109 Cal. Rptr. 291

Acts of employee in operation of liquor license are imputed to licensee. Kirby v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 732, 737, 109 Cal. Rptr. 291

Licensee is required to police his premises against successive offenses by employees and patrons. Kirchhubel v. Munro (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 243, 249, 308 P.2d 432

[6] Grounds for Denial, Suspension, Revocation of License

[a] In General

Federal law does not preempt Bus. & Prof. Code § 25241, prohibiting use of word "Napa" in wine brand names when grapes are not from Napa Valley. Bronco Wine Company v. Jolly (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 943, 988-989, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 180, 95 P. 3d 422

That premises might present, or have presented, law enforcement problem is ground for denial of liquor license. Kirby v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 433, 440-441, 102 Cal. Rptr. 857, 498 P.2d 1105

Bus. & Prof. Code § 25241, prohibiting use of word "Napa" in wine brand names where grapes are not from Napa Valley, does not violate wine bottler's free speech rights, commerce clause, or takings clause. Bronco Wine Co. v. Jolly (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 988, 1013-1014, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 462

Duplicate license is not one of statutory rights or privileges of on-sale general license, and club license holder is therefore not entitled to duplicate license. Outdoor Resorts etc. Owners' Assn. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 696, 701-702, 273 Cal. Rptr. 748

Licensee conducting sale of beverages under on-sale license was charged, under penalty of suspension, with active duty to prevent minors from consuming intoxicating liquor on licensed premises, and active duty to prevent its continuance immediately arises if licensee, through its employee, has knowledge that consumption is taking place. Reilly v. Stroh (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 47, 51, 207 Cal. Rptr. 250

Licensee's failure to prevent minors from consuming intoxicating liquor on licensed premises, when licensee was conducting sale of beverages under on-sale license, is within statutory meaning of "permitting" unlawful consumption, for violation of which suspension of alcoholic beverage license is authorized. Reilly v. Stroh (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 47, 51, 207 Cal. Rptr. 250

Criminal conviction involving fraud necessarily involves moral turpitude for purposes of suspension and revocation of liquor licenses under Bus. & Prof. Code § 24200(d). Kirby v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 535, 540, 542, 75 Cal. Rptr. 823 (filing fraudulent federal income tax returns)

Licensee is subject to disciplinary action by Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control for unlawful acts of employees while engaged in conduct and operation of business even though licensee did not authorize or have actual knowledge of activities. Mack v. Dept. Alcoholic Bev. Control (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 149, 152-153, 2 Cal. Rptr. 629

[b] Sales to Intoxicated Persons

In hearing to determine whether bar served alcohol to obviously intoxicated person, admission of witness's expert opinion testimony that customer was "obviously" intoxicated when served is not error because, under Evid. Code § 805, opinion testimony that is otherwise admissible is not objectionable because it embraces ultimate issue to be decided by trier of fact. Paez v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1025, 1026, 272 Cal. Rptr. 272 (overruling People v. Johnson (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 973, 81 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 973, 185 P.2d 105 , and People v. Smith (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 975, 219 P.2d 98 , to extent they hold otherwise)

Franchisor, when found to be neither colicensee nor in principal-agent relationship with franchisee, is not under duty to prevent franchisee's sale of alcohol to intoxicated persons; franchisor is not under nondelegable duty to prevent such sales simply because of status as franchisor. Wickham v. Southland Corp. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 49, 55-61, 213 Cal. Rptr. 825

Statutes prohibiting sales to obviously intoxicated persons and providing for suspension or revocation of license for violations [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 24200, 25602] apply to persons who are obviously intoxicated regardless of whether caused by alcohol alone or other drugs or combinations of substances. Rice v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 30, 38, 173 Cal. Rptr. 232

[c] Public Welfare and Morals

Role of Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control in evaluating application for license to sell alcoholic beverages is to assure that public welfare and morals are preserved from probable impairment in future. Kirby v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 433, 441, 102 Cal. Rptr. 857, 498 P.2d 1105

Undercover police officer's request to licensee's exotic dancer to show "more skin" did not constitute entrapment. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1094,

1099-1101, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 854

Department did not abuse its discretion in revoking liquor license when evidence established third violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 25658.1(b) (sales to minors); Constitution vests department with broad discretion to revoke when continuing license would be contrary to public welfare or morals. Caressa Camille, Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1103-1105, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 758

4 C.F.R. § 143.3(1)(b), which prohibits "touching, caressing or fondling of the breast, buttocks, anus or genitals," and 4 C.F.R. § 143.3(2), which prohibits exposing a breast or buttock unless the dancer is on a raised stage at least six feet from patrons in an establishment licensed to serve alcoholic beverages are constitutional limitations on free speech. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 880, 887-895, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 729

Sexually discriminatory admission policy is sufficient ground for revocation of license. Easebe Enterprises, Inc. v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 981, 985-986, 190 Cal. Rptr. 678

Determination that license issuance was contrary to public welfare and morals is overbroad analysis of good cause requirement and unsupported by facts. Department of Alcoholic Bev. Control v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 549, 557-558, 175 Cal. Rptr. 342

Types of misbehavior of licensees justifying disciplinary action by Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control under "public welfare or morals" clause of Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22. H.D. Wallace & Assoc., Inc. v. Dept. of Alcoholic Bev. Control (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 589, 592-593, 76 Cal. Rptr. 749

"Public welfare or morals" clause of Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22 permits license termination for law violations not involving moral turpitude but having rational relation to operation of licensed business. H.D. Wallace & Assoc., Inc. v. Dept. of Alcoholic Bev. Control (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 589, 593, 76 Cal. Rptr. 749 ; see also Kirby v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 126, 128-129, 86 Cal. Rptr. 433

Factors considered in determining whether issuance of license would be inimical to general welfare or public morals. Koss v. Dept. Alcoholic Beverage Control (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 489, 495-496, 30 Cal. Rptr. 219

[d] Disorderly House

Liquor license is revocable for keeping disorderly house absent findings by Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control and Appeals Board that licensee knew of illegal drug activity occurring on premises given ample evidence that premises were law enforcement problems, owners were actually or constructively aware of problems, and owners were not effective in controlling rampant drug trade on premises. Yu v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 286, 289, 294-298, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 280

Proof of illegal acts such as pandering, attempted pandering, and conspiring to operate house of prostitution on licensed premises is evidence of conducting disorderly house in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 25601. Kirby v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 331, 337, 101 Cal. Rptr. 815

Meaning of term "disorderly house" as used in Bus. & Prof. Code § 25601 (misdemeanor to keep disorderly house in conjunction with licensed premises). Boreta Enterprises, Inc. v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 85, 97-99, 84 Cal. Rptr. 113, 465 P.2d 1 ; Kirby v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 331, 336-337, 101 Cal. Rptr. 815 ; Los Robles Motor Lodge, Inc. v. Dept. of Alcoholic Bev. Control (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 198, 203-204, 54 Cal. Rptr. 547 ; Stoumen v. Munro (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 302, 307-311, 33 Cal. Rptr. 305

Term "disorderly house" as used in Bus. & Prof. Code § 25601 (prohibiting licensee from keeping disorderly house) is not unconstitutionally vague. Los Robles Motor Lodge, Inc. v. Dept. of Alcoholic Bev. Control (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 198, 203-204, 54 Cal. Rptr. 547

Affirmative duty to maintain lawfully conducted premises is required by Bus. & Prof. Code § 25601 (prohibiting keeping disorderly house in connection with licensed premises); active participation is unnecessary on part of license holder in acts rendering premises injurious to public morals. Coleman v. Harris (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 401, 404, 32 Cal. Rptr. 486 ; see also Morell v. Dept. of Alcoholic Bev. Control (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 504, 514, 22 Cal. Rptr. 405 ; Munro v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 162, 164, 5 Cal. Rptr. 527

Repeated instances of intoxicated persons found on premises is evidence that premises were permitted to be kept and used as disorderly house. Harris v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 106, 123, 28 Cal. Rptr. 74

Condition of licensed premises rendering it disorderly house denounced by Bus. & Prof. Code § 25601 is not required to be knowingly created by licensee to constitute violation. Harris v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 106, 123, 28 Cal. Rptr. 74 ; Morell v. Dept. of Alcoholic Bev. Control (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 504, 511-512, 22 Cal. Rptr. 405

[e] Drug Sales

Licensee's general affirmative duty to maintain lawful establishment becomes specific and focused on eliminating violation of law on premises once licensee knows of particular violation; licensee's failure to prevent recurring violation "permits" violation to occur by failure to take preventive action. Laube v. Stroh (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 364, 377, 379, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 779 (drug sale case) (interpreting McFaddin, below, and good cause requirement of Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22 to require licensee to have actual or constructive knowledge of illegal activity on premises before licensee can be found to have "permitted" that activity)

Licensee's failure to prevent sale of illegal drugs on nightclub premises does not support determination in license revocation proceeding that licensee "permitted" such sales when licensee did not reasonably know of specific drug transactions and took all reasonable measures to prevent such transactions. McFaddin San Diego 1130, Inc. v. Stroh (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1384, 1392, 257 Cal. Rptr. 8

[f] Bookmaking

Bookmaking and gambling on licensed premises constitutes conditions contrary to public welfare and morals and is grounds for discipline under Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22; Mack v. Dept. Alcoholic Bev. Control (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 149, 154-155, 2 Cal. Rptr. 629

[g] Proximity to Church

Proximity to church or school coupled with additional evidence disclosing potential threat to public welfare or morals is sufficient to justify denial of liquor license. Kirby v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 433, 440, 102 Cal. Rptr. 857, 498 P.2d 1105

Denial of license for premises located within immediate vicinity of churches [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23789] is required to be based on good cause under Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22. Martin v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 867, 875, 13 Cal. Rptr. 513, 362 P.2d 337

Mere fact that church is located near proposed licensed premises does not require finding as matter of law that issuance of license would be contrary to public welfare or morals. Koss v. Dept. Alcoholic Beverage Control (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 489, 495, 30 Cal. Rptr. 219

Breach of discretion by Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control is required to be shown in contesting issuance of liquor license for premises in proximity to church. Altadena Church v. St. Bd. Equalization (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 99, 104, 240 P.2d 322

[h] Topless Waitresses

Employment of topless waitresses alone is not sufficient basis for suspension or revocation of license. Boreta Enterprises, Inc. v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 85, 99, 106, 84 Cal. Rptr. 113, 465 P.2d 1

Conclusion that topless waitresses in bar are per se contrary to public welfare or morals and cause for suspending liquor license under Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22 is arbitrary and abuse of discretion by Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control. Boreta Enterprises, Inc. v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 85, 103, 84 Cal. Rptr. 113, 465 P.2d 1

Application for permit to sell alcohol at topless bar did not involve fundamental vested right or right of free speech and thereby require court's independent judgment. SP Star Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 459, 468-470, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 152

Board's order reversing Department's decision to suspend liquor license, based on ALJ's finding that adult entertainment business violated Rule 143.3 [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 143.3 (indecent exposure)], was annulled by court of appeal; undercover officer's conduct with respect to exotic dancer did not amount to entrapment as a matter of law. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1099-1101, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 854

Portions of 4 Cal. Code Reg. § 143.2, prohibiting, among other things, employment of person in sale or service of alcoholic beverages on licensed premises while unclothed or in such attire as to expose to view any portion of female breast below top of areola or any portion of pubic hair, anus, cleft of buttocks, vulva, or genitals, are constitutional on its face. Locker v. Kirby (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 520, 522, 107 Cal. Rptr. 446

[7] Department Review

[a] Pleading

In administrative proceedings accusation is required to give fair notice to accused to enable him or her to prepare defense; technical rules of pleading are inapplicable. Stoumen v. Munro (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 302, 306-307, 33 Cal. Rptr. 305

Pleading and burden of proof requirements in proceedings involving applications for licenses are distinguished from such requirements in revocation proceedings. Martin v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 259, 264-265, 341 P.2d 291

Accusation is required to disclose to licensee particular offense charged at least to extent of stating essential elements of offense. Greenblatt v. Munro (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 596, 604, 326 P.2d 929

[b] Hearing

Because procedure by which Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control adjudicated whether licensee violated terms of license had two phases in which functions of prosecution and adjudication were not kept strictly separate, that procedure contravened Administrative Procedure Act's proscription against ex parte communications. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (Quintanar) (2006) 40 Cal. 4th 1, 5 (APA was violated by Department's practice of having Department's prosecuting attorney send report of hearing to Department's decision maker before final decision was made; Department's decision maker rejected ALJ's proposed decision); Chevron Stations, Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 116, 121, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 6 (same; Department's decision maker adopted ALJ's proposed decision)

Technical rules of evidence are not applicable to administrative hearings before Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control. Big Boy Liquors, Ltd. v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 1226, 1230, 81 Cal. Rptr. 258, 459 P.2d 674 (applying Gov. Code § 11513)

When court reviews Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control decision to revoke license, department has "burden of demonstrating that it employed an effective ethical wall" to keep functions of prosecution and adjudication strictly separate in administrative license proceeding, in accord with California Supreme Court's Quintanar opinion, above. Rondon v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1274, 1288, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 295

Applicant bears burden of proof regarding eligibility for liquor license from start of application process until Department makes final determination. Coffin v. Alcoholic Bev. Control Appeals Bd. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 471, 473, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 420

General common law rule requiring corporations to be represented by counsel in proceedings before courts of record other than small claims courts does not extend to proceedings before administrative agencies and tribunals; department's decision, upheld by board, to revoke corporation's liquor license was not void for lack of jurisdiction when corporation was represented by nonattorney president at evidentiary administrative hearing before ALJ. Caressa Camille, Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1103, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 758

Error by Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control in failing to rule on statement of objections filed by licensees is non-prejudicial and is waived by licensees when, among other things, no objections were made to accusation at hearing, and licensees were able to adequately prepare defense to charges. Rolfe v. Munro (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 726, 728-729, 332 P.2d 404

Consideration of prior disciplinary proceedings is proper in administrative hearing before Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control; prior record of licensee is relevant and material evidence of his knowledge and compliance with pertinent laws. Reimel v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 158, 175, 64 Cal. Rptr. 26

[c] Findings

Administrative findings are not required to be stated with formality required in judicial proceedings, though they must conform to statutes governing particular agency. Martin v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 259, 264, 341 P.2d 291

Action or recommendation by Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control raises presumption that existence of necessary facts was ascertained and found by Department. Martin v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 259, 264, 341 P.2d 291

Finding by Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control on ultimate fact includes finding on all special facts necessary to sustain it that are supported by substantial evidence. Koss v. Dept. Alcoholic Beverage Control (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 489, 493, 30 Cal. Rptr. 219

Administrative findings are required to satisfy dual requirements of making intelligent review by courts possible and apprising parties of basis for administrative action. Stoumen v. Munro (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 302, 311, 33 Cal. Rptr. 305

[d] Estoppel

Former order of Appeals Board denying liquor license does not prevent, by estoppel, reexamination of same questions between same parties when in interval facts have changed that may alter legal rights. Hasselbach v. Dept. Alcoholic Bev. Control (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 662, 665, 334 P.2d 1058

[8] Administrative Appeal

[a] Scope of Review

Scope of administrative and judicial review of decisions of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control. Kirby v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 433, 436-437, 102 Cal. Rptr. 857, 498 P.2d 1105 ; Boreta Enterprises, Inc. v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 85, 94-96, 84 Cal. Rptr. 113, 465 P.2d 1 ; Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1066, 1071-1072, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 278 ; Donia v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 588, 595, 213 Cal. Rptr. 447 ; Department of Alcoholic Bev. Control v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 549, 554, 175 Cal. Rptr. 342

Limited powers of Appeals Board in reviewing decisions of Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control. Martin v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 238, 242-243, 340 P.2d 1 ; Department of Alcoholic Bev. Control v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 315, 318, 186 Cal. Rptr. 189

Appeals Board has jurisdiction to review determination by Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control of fee applicable to transfer of liquor license, whether or not Department conducts formal hearing, when correspondence between Department and transferor provides sufficient record, with stated findings and decision, for review under Bus. & Prof. Code § 23084. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 812, 818-820, 240 Cal. Rptr. 915

Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, not Appeals Board or courts, determines whether good cause exists for denying license on ground that issuance would be contrary to public welfare or morals; Appeals Board or courts determines whether Department acted arbitrarily in making decision. Department of Alcoholic Bev. Control v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 814, 817, 184 Cal. Rptr. 367

Scope of judicial review of administrative rule making by Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control. Schenley Affiliated Brands Corp. v. Kirby (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 177, 196-198, 98 Cal. Rptr. 609

[b] Time to Appeal

Time to file appeal from decision of Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control under Bus. & Prof. Code § 23081.

Reimel v. House (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 173, 174, 70 Cal. Rptr. 224 ; Reimel v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 340, 346, 62 Cal. Rptr. 54 ; Harris v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 563, 570-572, 35 Cal. Rptr. 865

[c] Injunction Pending Appeal

Bus. & Prof. Code § 23053.1, which empowers superior court to enjoin violations of rules of Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control occurring after revocation of liquor license and pending administrative appeal, is constitutional when narrowly construed to allow injunction only when licensee continues to violate same rules after license revocation. Stroh v. Midway Restaurant Systems, Inc. (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1040, 1049-1050, 226 Cal. Rptr. 153

[d] Evidence on Appeal

Due process does not require Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control to produce internal documents regarding decision on review by Appeals Board because Department does not have to present argument to support decision, Appeals Board is limited to review of record. Department of Alcoholic Bev. Control v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 720, 725-726, 727 n.3, 173 Cal. Rptr. 582

[e] Substantial Evidence

"Substantial evidence rule" is applicable to review of decisions of Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control under Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22. Martin v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 238, 246, 340 P.2d 1

Appellate court is required to sustain discretionary decisions of Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control unless Department proceeds without jurisdiction, acts in manner contrary to law, or makes finding unsupported by substantial evidence. Outdoor Resorts etc. Owners' Assn. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 696, 700, 273 Cal. Rptr. 748

[f] Legal Malpractice on Appeal

Legal malpractice action falls within two year limitation of Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1). Neel v. Magana, Olney, Levy, Cathcart & Gelfand (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 176, 182, 98 Cal. Rptr. 837, 491 P.2d 421

Liability of attorney for negligence in prosecuting appeal. Croce v. Sanchez (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 680, 683, 64 Cal. Rptr. 448 ; Pete v. Henderson (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 487, 489-490, 269 P.2d 78

Elements of actionable negligent malpractice against attorney. Ishmael v. Millington (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 520, 523, 50 Cal. Rptr. 592

[9] Judicial Review

Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 23090-23090.7 (conditions for writ of review) is exclusive avenue to judicial review following final order of Appeals Board. Top Hat Liquors v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 107, 111, 118 Cal. Rptr. 10, 529 P.2d 42

Either writ of mandate or review is proper procedure to review exercise of quasi judicial power by Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control. Sail'er Inn, Inc. v. Kirby (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 1, 7,

95 Cal. Rptr. 329, 485 P.2d 529

Court is entitled to take judicial notice of matters not judicially noticed by Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control on review of Department's decision. Harris v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 589, 596-597, 43 Cal. Rptr. 633, 400 P.2d 745

Judicial review is directed at decision of Appeals Board but incidentally requires review of Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control's decision in determining whether Appeals Board exceeded its limited powers. Martin v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 867, 871-872, 13 Cal. Rptr. 513, 362 P.2d 337

Person whose complaint seeking revocation of liquor license was rejected after hearing by State Board of Equalization (predecessor of Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control) is proper party "beneficially interested" under Code Civ. Proc. § 1086 to seek writ off mandate to compel such board to revoke license. Covert v. State Board of Equalization (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 125, 130, 173 P.2d 545 (now see Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090 designating writ of review is proper procedure to review final orders of Department)

Application for permit to sell alcohol at topless bar did not involve fundamental vested right or right of free speech and thereby require court's independent judgment. SP Star Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 459, 468-470, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 152

Exclusive jurisdiction of Supreme and appellate courts to review actions of Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control is not subject to circumvention by filing superior court challenge to prospective action styled as claim for declaratory or injunctive relief. American Drug Stores, Inc. v. Stroh (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1446, 1449-1452, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 432

Court of appeal's refusal to treat appeal from superior court judgment sustaining demurrer of Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control is petition for writ of mandate under Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.5 when request to treat appeal as petition for extraordinary relief was raised for first time in reply brief. American Drug Stores, Inc. v. Stroh (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1446, 1453, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 432

Supreme and appellate courts has exclusive jurisdiction under Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.5 to review disciplinary orders of Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control; jurisdiction may not be circumvented by filing superior court action to prospective disciplinary action styled is claim for declaratory or injunctive relief. American Drug Stores, Inc. v. Stroh (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1446, 1449-1452, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 432

Jurisdiction of Supreme Court and courts of appeal under Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.5 is not limited to review of quasi judicial acts of Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control but is designed to channel into appellate courts proceedings challenging rules and regulations of Department. Schenley Affiliated Brands Corp. v. Kirby (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 177, 196, 98 Cal. Rptr. 609

Court has no jurisdiction for judicial review of decisions of Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control unless administrative remedy is exhausted by appeal to Appeals Board. Greenblatt v. Munro (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 596, 605, 326 P.2d 929 ; Miller v. Dept. Alcoholic Bev. Control (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 658, 661-663, 325 P.2d 601 ; Fiscus v. Dept. Alcoholic Bev. Control (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 234, 236, 317 P.2d 993

[10] Transfer of License

[a] In General

Transfer of priority liquor licenses from subsidiary to parent corporation into which licensee had been merged is not prohibited by Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 24070(c), 24071, which generally prohibit transfer within two years after issuance. Foodmaker, Inc. v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 605, 609-610, 111 Cal. Rptr. 553, 517 P.2d 817

Holders of liquor licenses are able to contract freely to transfer licenses to other persons subject to official approval by Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control. Greve v. Leger, Ltd. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 853, 857, 52 Cal. Rptr. 9, 415 P.2d 824

Matters of aesthetics and predicted mode of operation are factors rightly considered by Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control when applicant for transfer of liquor license alleges public convenience or necessity in effort to obtain license in area of undue concentration of licenses [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23958]. Sepatis v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 93, 101, 167 Cal. Rptr. 729

Liquor license is transferable property when licensee and third party are concerned. Belle'Isle v. Hempy (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 14, 16, 23 Cal. Rptr. 599

Federal tax lien on liquor license attaches to proceeds of sale of such license. Golden v. State of California (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 640, 645-646, 285 P.2d 49

[b] Contracts

Contracts to transfer liquor license subject to approval by Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control are specifically enforceable. Greve v. Leger, Ltd. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 853, 857, 52 Cal Rptr 9, 415 P.2d 824 ; Campbell v. Bauer (1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 740, 743-744, 232 P.2d 590

Requirement of approval by Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control of transfer of liquor license is implied condition of all agreements for transfer regardless of context or nature of consideration. Greve v. Leger, Ltd. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 853, 859, 52 Cal. Rptr. 9, 415 P.2d 824

Option agreement repudiated by optionor more than 90 days after execution is not specifically enforceable due to Bus. & Prof. Code § 24076 but is subject to cause of action for damages for breach of contract. Greve v. Leger, Ltd. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 853, 862, 52 Cal. Rptr. 9, 415 P.2d 824

Contract rights involving transfer of liquor license is not subject to deprivation by retroactive operation of statute; such rights are unenforceable if accruing after effective date of statute and violative thereof. Belle'Isle v. Hempy (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 14, 16-17, 23 Cal. Rptr. 599

Illegality is no defense to action for damages for breach of contract to transfer license when contemplated performance was not illegal, but manner of performance attempted by defendant was illegal. Du Pre v. Bogumill (1959) 173 Cal. App. 2d 406, 412-414, 343 P.2d 415

Inability to transfer liquor license, due to denial by Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control of application for transfer, is total failure of consideration as to agreement to transfer liquor business that included license. Lenchner v. Chase (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 794, 802, 220 P.2d 921

[c] Criminal Violations

Violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 24079 (limiting purchase price paid by license transferee or received by transferor) is misdemeanor. People v. Anderson (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 1084, 1089-1090, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 247

[d] Escrow

Bus. & Prof. Code § 24074 (governing transfers in escrow of liquor licenses) represents mandatory and exclusive scheme for payment of creditors of liquor license transferors, giving creditors who comply with that section priority over those who employ any form of levy on proceeds. Grover Escrow Corp. v. Gole (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 61, 62, 77 Cal. Rptr. 21, 453 P.2d 461

Attempted garnishment of escrow funds held in connection with sale of liquor license creates priority over bona fide creditors of seller who filed timely claims with escrow holder pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 24074. Grover Escrow Corp. v. Gole (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 61, 66, 77 Cal. Rptr. 21, 453 P.2d 461

Bus. & Prof. Code § 24070 et seq., instead of general escrow law, governs escrow for transfer of liquor license; on transfer of license by state, escrow money belongs to seller and seller's timely-filing creditors; U.S. government is not entitled to taxes accrued against buyer after transfer. Doyle v. Coughlin (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 911, 916-917, 919, 112 Cal. Rptr. 701

Federal government collecting on tax lien against proceeds of sale of liquor license is not bound by state law requiring filing claim with escrow holder. Golden v. State of California (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 640, 648, 285 P.2d 49

[e] Security Agreements

Agreement incident to lease of business premises that lessee would retransfer liquor license to lessor on termination of lease is unenforceable "pledge" in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 24076 when entered into more than 90 days prior to filing of any application for such retransfer. Citrigno v. Williams (9th Cir. [Cal] 1958) 255 F.2d 675, 678-679

Option to repurchase liquor licenses for substantial consideration on default by buyer to complete purchase of the licensed premises does not constitute security device within meaning of Bus. & Prof. Code § 24076 (prohibiting pledges of licenses as security). Greve v. Leger, Ltd. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 853, 860, 52 Cal. Rptr. 9, 415 P.2d 824

Term "pledge" as used in Bus. & Prof. Code § 24076 (prohibiting licensee to pledge transfer of license as security) is construed to embrace all promises or undertakings to transfer license is security. Greve v. Leger, Ltd. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 853, 857, 52 Cal. Rptr. 9, 415 P.2d 824

[1] FORM Petition for Hearing on Automatic Suspension of License for Cancellation of Bond or Failure to Pay Taxes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24205]

Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control
3810 Rosin Court, Suite 150
Sacramento, California 95834

Re: Petition for hearing under Section 24205 of the Business and Professions Code

Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control:

Under Section 24205 of the Business and Professions Code, the undersigned hereby petitions for a hearing on the suspension of his/her license under that statute on _____[date], on the grounds that _____ [petitioner's bond has _____ (been canceled or become void or become unenforceable) or petitioner has failed to pay _____ (taxes or penalties) due under Rev. & Tax Code § 6001 et seq., Rev. & Tax Code § 7200 et seq., Rev. & Tax Code § 7251 et seq., or Rev. & Tax Code § 32001 et seq.].

_____[Allege filing of valid security or payment of taxes or penalties, as the case may be].
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Petitioner

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a petition used to seek a hearing under Bus. & Prof. Code § 24205 after an automatic suspension of a license for cancellation of the petitioner's bond, or when the bond becomes void or unenforceable, or for failure to pay taxes or penalties under the Sales and Use Tax Law, the Transactions and Use Tax Law, the Bradley-Burns Uniform Local Sales and Use Tax Law, or the Alcoholic Beverage Tax Law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24205]. For further discussion of automatic suspension, including suspended licensee's petition for hearing, see § 18.15[2][c].

Since the license is automatically reinstated if the taxpayer files a valid bond or pays the delinquent taxes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24205], a hearing is useful to obtain a ruling from the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control declaring or acknowledging the automatic reinstatement, and any rights and duties incident to the reinstatement.

To the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control:

I hereby complain and accuse the above respondent(s), holding the above license(s), based on the following statement of facts: _____[specify grounds on which accusation is based].

By reason of the foregoing facts, grounds for suspension or revocation of such license(s) exist and the continuance of the license(s) would be contrary to public welfare and morals, as set forth in Article XX, Section 22 of the California State Constitution, and Section(s) _____[specify section numbers] of the Business and Professions Code.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an accusation to suspend or revoke a license [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 24201]. For further discussion relating to accusations to suspend or revoke license, see § 18.15[3].

[3] Service

On the filing of an accusation, the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control serves a copy on the respondent [Gov. Code § 11505(a)]. The Department may include with the accusation any information that it deems appropriate, but it must include a post card or other form entitled, "Notice of Defense" [see § 18.57] which, when signed by or on behalf of the respondent and returned to the agency, will acknowledge service of the accusation and constitute a notice of defense under Gov. Code § 11506 [Gov. Code § 11505(a)].

[4] Statement to Respondent

The copy of the accusation must include or be accompanied by a statement that respondent may request a hearing by filing a notice of defense within 15 days after service of the accusation, and that failure to do so will constitute a waiver of the respondent's right to a hearing [Gov. Code § 11505(a)]. The statement must also include or be accompanied by copies of Gov. Code §§ 11507.5, 11507.6, and 11507.7 [Gov. Code § 11505(a)].

The statement to respondent must be substantially in the following form [Gov. Code § 11505(b)]:

> "Unless a written request for a hearing signed by or on behalf of the person named as respondent in the accompanying accusation is delivered or mailed to the agency within 15 days after the accusation was personally served on you or mailed to you, _____ [name of agency] may proceed on the accusation without a hearing. The request for a hearing may be made by delivering or mailing the enclosed form entitled 'Notice of Defense,' or by delivering or mailing a notice of defense as provided by Section 11506 of the Government Code to: _____ [name and address of agency]. You may, but need not, be represented by counsel at any time at any or all stages of these proceedings.
> "If you desire the names and addresses of witnesses or an opportunity to inspect and copy the items mentioned in Section 11507.6 in the possession, custody, or control of the agency, you may contact _____[name and address of appropriate person]. The hearing may be postponed for good cause. If you have good cause, you are obliged to notify the agency within 10 working days after you discover the good cause. Failure to notify the agency within 10 days will deprive you of a postponement."

[5] Verification

The accusation must be verified, unless made by a public officer acting in his official capacity, or by an employee of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control [Gov. Code § 11503]. The verification may be on information and belief [Gov. Code § 11503].

For a form of verification, see § 18.70[1].

To the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control:

_____[name of licensee], the licensee and respondent in the above-entitled proceeding ("Respondent"), hereby acknowledges receipt of a copy of the Accusation and accompanying statement, and responds as follows, pursuant to Section 11506 of the Government Code:

[1. Respondent objects to the Accusation on the grounds that Respondent has not operated the establishment in such a way that continuance of its license would be contrary to public welfare and morals.]

[2. Respondent objects to the Accusation on the grounds that the form of Accusation is so indefinite and uncertain that he/she cannot identify the transactions or prepare a defense.

[3. Respondent objects to the Accusation on the grounds that it does not state acts or omissions upon which the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control can proceed.]

[4. Respondent objects to the Accusation on the grounds that there is no factual basis in support of the allegations contained therein.]

[5. Respondent objects to the Accusation on the grounds that, under the circumstances, compliance with _____ (identify offending regulation section) would result in a material violation of _____ (identify regulation section) in that: _____ (specify grounds).]

[6. Respondent objects to the Accusation on the grounds that: _____ (state other grounds).]

For all of the foregoing reasons, Respondent requests that the Accusation be dismissed in its entirety. In the event that the above-enumerated defenses are overruled, in whole or in part, Respondent respectfully requests a hearing pursuant to Sections 11505 and 11506 of the Government Code.

[1] FORM Petition to Make Offer in Compromise [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23095]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use in petitioning the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control for permission to make an offer in compromise by payment of a sum of money in lieu of suspension of the petitioner's license [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23095]. The petition may be used when a decision suspending the petitioner's license for 15 days or less becomes final, but before the operative date of suspension [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23095].

For further discussion of offers in compromise, including required monetary amounts, see § 18.15[4].

The form is a reproduction of Form ABC-162(1/95) prepared by and available from the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control.

[3] Amount of Offer

For retail licensees, the offer in compromise must be either:

- Not less than $1,500 and not more than $6,000 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23095(a)].

- Not less than $750 and not more than $3,000, if the petitioning retailer has had no other accusation filed against him or her by the Department during the preceding three years from the date of the petition that resulted in a final decision to suspend or revoke the retail license concerned [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23095(b)].

For nonretail licensees, the offer in compromise must be not less than $750 and not more than $10,000 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23095(c)(1); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 23095(c)(2) (exception)].

To the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control:

The undersigned hereby petitions that the Department reconsider its decision in this matter under Section 11521 of the Government Code for the purpose of reducing the penalty assessed under such decision, as authorized by Section 24211 of the Business and Professions Code. The following reasons are offered in support of this petition:
_____[specify].
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Petitioner

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use in seeking reconsideration by the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control of the penalty assessed [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 24211; see also Gov. Code § 11521].

For discussion relating to reconsideration of the Department's decision, see § 18.16 [2]. For forms of petition for reconsideration in administrative proceedings generally, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq.

[3] Department Authority

The Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control may order a reconsideration of all or part of the case on its own motion or on petition of any party [Gov. Code §§ 11501, 11521]. Further, the Department may on its own motion, at any time before a penalty assessment is placed into effect and without any further proceedings review the penalty, but such review is limited to its reduction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24211].

[4] Time to File Petition

The power to order a reconsideration expires [Gov. Code § 11521(a)]:

- Thirty days after the delivery or mailing of a decision to respondent,
- After the effective date of the decision if it occurs before that 30-day period elapses,
- At the termination of a stay of the decision (which cannot be longer than 30 days) granted by the agency to enable the respondent to file a petition for reconsideration, or
- At the termination of a stay (which cannot be longer than 10 days) granted by the agency for the purpose of evaluating a petition that was filed prior to the expiration of any of the applicable time periods.

If no action is taken on the petition within the time allowed, the petition is deemed denied [Gov. Code § 11521(a); see Bonnell v. Medical Board of California (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1255, 1261-1263, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 532, 82 P.3d 740 (interpreting statute)].

- 30 days after the delivery or mailing of a decision to respondent, or
- On the effective date of the decision if it occurs before the 30-day period elapses, or
- At the termination of a stay of the decision (which cannot exceed 30 days) granted by the Department to enable the respondent to file a petition for reconsideration.

For further discussion of reconsideration of a final decision of the Department, see § 18.16[2].

The appeal is deemed filed on the date it is received in the principal office of the Appeals Board, except that an appeal mailed to the Appeals Board by registered mail is deemed filed on the date of registry with the United States Post Office [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23081.5].

Appellant

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use in requesting the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control to prepare a transcript and record of proceedings before the Department after an appeal has been filed [see 4 Cal. Code Reg. § 187].

For further discussion of request, content, and cost of record on appeal, see § 18.18[3].

[3] Cost and Delivery of Transcript and Record

The Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control informs appellant of the estimated cost of the record on appeal and arranges for the preparation of the record on payment of such costs [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 187]. A copy of the record is delivered to appellant within 30 days or as soon thereafter as the records become available [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 187]. At the same time the copy is delivered to appellant, the original and three copies of the transcript and record, including original exhibits, are filed by the Department with the Appeals Board [4 Cal. Code Reg. § 187]. For further discussion of this procedure, see § 18.18[3].

[EITHER]

TO THE HONORABLE _____, CHIEF JUSTICE, AND TO THE HONORABLE ASSOCIATE JUSTICES OF THE CALIFORNIA SUPREME COURT:

[OR]

TO THE HONORABLE PRESIDING JUSTICE AND ASSOCIATE JUSTICES OF THE COURT OF APPEAL, _____ APPELLATE DISTRICT, OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA:

Petitioner alleges:

1. Petitioner is the person aggrieved and affected by a final order of Respondent Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board ("the Board"), and is a party beneficially interested in these proceedings in that such order by the Board affirmed a decision of Respondent Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control ("the Department") denying petitioner's application for issuance of a _____[specify type of license] liquor license for certain premises located at _____[address], California.

2. On _____[date], petitioner filed with the Department an application for issuance of a _____[type of license] liquor license to petitioner for premises located at _____[address], California.

3. On _____[date], the Department denied petitioner's application and mailed notice of the same to petitioner. Within 10 days after such mailing of notice, petitioner presented a written petition for a license with the Department on _____[date]. Thereafter petitioner was served with a notice of hearing and statement of issues by the Department. The issues stated as affecting issuance of a license to petitioner were whether the described premises are in proximity to a church and whether, if such was the fact, issuance of a license would be contrary to the public welfare or morals.

4. At the conclusion of a hearing on these matters, the Department decided against the issuance of a license to petitioner for the described premises, and _____ [delivered or mailed] its decision to petitioner on _____[date].

5. On _____[date] petitioner filed an appeal of such decision by the Department by filing a notice of appeal with the Board, setting forth as grounds for the appeal that:

[INCLUDE any or all of the following:]

(a) The findings of the Department are not supported by substantial evidence in the light of the whole record viewed in its entirety, including the body of evidence opposed to the Department's findings.

(b) The decision is not supported by the findings.

(c) The Department proceeded in excess of its jurisdiction.

(d) The Department did not proceed in the manner required by law.

(e) There is relevant evidence which, in the exercise of reasonable diligence, could not have been produced at the hearing.

(f) There is relevant evidence that was improperly excluded by the Department at the hearing.

[CONTINUE]

6. On _____[date], a final order of the Board affirming the decision of the Department denying petitioner's application for issuance of a _____[specify type of license] liquor license for described premises. Petitioner has exhausted all administrative remedies available.

7. The order by the Board is in error and the decision by the Department should be _____ [reversed or reversed and remanded for consideration of evidence] on the following grounds: _____[specify applicable grounds as set out in Paragraph 5, above].

8. There is no appeal from such decision and order and petitioner has no other plain, speedy, or adequate remedy, or any remedy, unless the court grants a writ of review.

[9. If the petition is filed in the Supreme Court rather than a court of appeal, the following should be included: The following circumstances render it proper that the writ be issued by the Supreme Court rather than the court of appeal: _____ (specify).]

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays:

1. That a writ of review issue out of this court to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board, commanding it to certify fully to this court at a specified time and place the records and proceedings in this cause so that the same may be inquired into, reviewed, and determined by this court.

2. That pending the judgment of this court, the operation of the order and decision sought to be reviewed be stayed by order of this court.

3. That following the inquiry, review, and determination by this court, the _____ [order of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board and the decision of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control be reversed or matter be reversed and remanded to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board for the purpose of _____ (specify)].

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner_____ [name]

VERIFICATION

I, _____[name], am the petitioner in the above-entitled proceeding. I have read the foregoing petition and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters that are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

[Add memorandum of points and authorities]

PROOF OF SERVICE

I, _____[name], declare that I am, and was at the time of the service hereinafter mentioned, at least 18 years of age and not a party to the above entitled proceeding. My _____ [residence or business] address is _____, California. I am _____ [a resident of or employed in] _____[county where mailing occurred] County, California.

On _____[date], I served the foregoing petition for writ of review on _____[name of attorney served], attorney for _____[name of party represented by attorney served], by depositing copies thereof together with copies of the memorandum of points and authorities in the United States mail in _____, California, enclosed in sealed envelopes, with postage fully prepaid, addressed to: _____[address of Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board] and to _____[address of Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a petition for use in seeking review of an order by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board affirming denial by the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control of issuance of a license for premises in proximity to a church [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090].

For legal background related to a petition for writ of review of an order by the Appeals Board, see § 18.20. For a procedural guide and forms for use in proceedings involving writs of review, see Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of. For a memorandum of points and authorities in support of the petition, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 15, Alcoholic Beverages .

[3] Allegations

The form alleges:

- Petitioner's standing to seek review (Paragraph 1) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090; Code Civ. Proc. § 1069],

- Facts concerning the Department's action denying the license (Paragraphs 3, 4),

- That the order by the Appeals Board is a final order (Paragraph 6) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090],

- That petitioner has exhausted his or her administrative remedies (Paragraphs 5 and 6) [see Greenblatt v. Munro (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 596, 605, 326 P.2d 929] ,

- The grounds for review (Paragraph 7) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.2],

- The lack of appeal or other remedy except writ of review (Paragraph 8) [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 23090, 23090.2; Code Civ. Proc. § 1069].

[4] Parties

If the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board reverses the decision of the Director, and the Director petitions for writ of review, the Director is the petitioner, the Appeals Board is the respondent, and the licensee (or applicant) is the real party in interest.

If, however, the Appeals Board affirms the order of the Director, and the licensee petitions for review, the licensee is the petitioner, and the Director and the Appeals Board are the respondents. There is no real party in interest.

[5] Additional Allegations for Petition to Supreme Court

If a petition for writ of review might lawfully be made to a lower court in the first instance, the petition must set forth the circumstances which render it proper for the writ to issue originally from the higher court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b)(1)]. These additional allegations would be necessary if the petition is filed in the Supreme Court, rather than in a court of appeal, since a court of appeal also has original jurisdiction to review orders of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control and the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 23090, 23090.5]. It is, however, rare for the Supreme Court to assume original jurisdiction over the review of this type of decision, and those petitions that are filed with that court are almost always transferred to a court of appeal [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 12 on power of Supreme Court to transfer cases from itself to a court of appeal].

[6] Verification

The application must be made on the verified petition [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1069] of a person aggrieved [Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22] or affected by the order [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090].

[7] Points and Authorities, and Proof of Service

The petition must be accompanied by a supporting memorandum and by proof of service of copies of the petition and accompanying memorandum on the respondent and any real party in interest named in the petition [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069, 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b), (e)].

[7a] Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons

If a party files a motion, application, or opposition to a motion or application in the Court of Appeal before filing its principal brief, the party must serve and file its Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons at the time it files the first such motion, application, or opposition, and must include a copy of this certificate in the party's principal brief. If no motion, application, or opposition to a motion or application is filed before the parties file their principal briefs, each party must include its certificate in its principal brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(d)(1)]. If the identity of any party or any entity or person subject to disclosure has not been publicly disclosed in the proceedings and a party wants to keep that identity confidential, the party may serve and file an application for permission to file its certificate under seal separately from its principal brief, motion, application, or opposition. If the application is granted, the party must file the certificate under seal and without service within 10 days of the court's order granting the application [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(d)(2)].

If a party is an entity, the certificate must list any other entity or person that the party knows has an ownership interest of 10 percent or more in the party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(e)(1)]. All parties must also list any person or entity, other than the parties themselves, that has a financial or other interest in the outcome of the proceeding that the party reasonably believes the justices should consider in determining whether to disqualify themselves under Canon 3E of the Code of Judicial Ethics [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(e)(2)]. If the party knows of no entity or person that is required to be disclosed under the rule, he or she must so state in the certificate [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(e)(3)]. Furthermore, if a party learns of changed or additional information that must be disclosed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208, he or she must promptly serve and file a supplemental certificate [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(f)].

The petitioner's certificate must be included in the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(c)(1)]. The certificates of the respondent and real party in interest must be included in their preliminary opposition or, if no such opposition is filed, in their return, if any [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(c)(2)]. The certificate must appear after the cover and before the tables [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(c)(3)]. If the identity of any party has not been publicly disclosed in the proceedings, the party may file an application for permission to file its certificate under seal separately from the petition, preliminary opposition, or return [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(c)(4)]. If a party fails to file a certificate, the clerk must notify the party by mail that the party must file the certificate within 10 days after the clerk's notice is mailed and that failure to comply will result in one of the following sanctions: (A) If the party is the petitioner, the court may strike the petition; (B) If the party is the respondent or the real party in interest, the court may strike the document [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(d)].

[8] Cover, Index, and Table

The cover of the petition must contain the title of the case, the name of the trial judge and county, the designation of the paper, and the name, address, and telephone number of the attorney filing it, and the California State Bar membership number of that attorney and of every attorney who joins in the petition [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.212(b)(6), 8.40(a)].

Insofar as practicable, the cover of the petition should be red [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.40(b)]. While there is no express requirement that the petition contain a topical index or table of authorities, the better practice is to include them [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(a) (requiring such index and tables in briefs)].

[9] Time and Place to File

The petition is filed with the Supreme Court or the court of appeal for the appellate district in which the proceeding arose [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090]. No other court has jurisdiction to review orders by the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.5]. A writ filed in superior court must be transferred to the court of appeal under the statute mandating that a court without jurisdiction transfer the action to a court with jurisdiction [Padilla v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1151, 1157-1158, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 133 (owner's petition for writ of mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 treated as writ of review and denied); see Code Civ. Proc. § 396]. The petition must be filed within 30 days after the Appeals Board has filed its final order [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090].

[10] Service

A copy of the pleading must be served on the Appeals Board, the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, and on each party who entered an appearance before the Appeals Board [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.4]. In addition, the petition must be accompanied by points and authorities, the Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons [see § 18.70[7a]], and by proof of service of copies of the petition and accompanying points and authorities on the respondent and any real party in interest named in the petition [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069, 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e), (j)]. However, a court may, in its discretion and for good cause, grant the petition ex parte without notice or service of the petition on the respondent and any real party in interest [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069, 1107].

Service on the Appeals Board is made by service on its presiding officer (that is, the chairperson), or its secretary, or on a majority of its members [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107]. Service may be made by personal delivery of a copy of the petition to each respondent, or by substituted service, or by mailing a copy of the petition to each respondent [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.4; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1011, 1012, 1109].

[11] Proof of Service of Petition

In addition to complying with the requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.25, the proof of service must give the telephone number of each attorney served [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e)]. A petition accompanied by a defective proof of service must be filed, but if a proper proof of service is not filed within five days after the clerk gives notice of the defect, the court may strike the petition or impose a lesser sanction [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e)]. However, a court may, in its discretion and for good cause, grant the petition ex parte without notice or service of the petition on the respondent and any real party in interest [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069, 1107].

The proof of service contained in the form is for use when service is made by mail by a nonattorney [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1013a(1), 1015, 1109]. For forms of proof of service by mail by an attorney [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1013a(2), 1015, 1109], proof of personal or substituted service [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1011, 1015, 1109], acknowledgment of service [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 417.10(d) (relating to proof of service of summons), 1015, 1109], or proof of service by affidavit or declaration, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[EITHER]

TO THE HONORABLE _____, CHIEF JUSTICE, AND TO THE HONORABLE ASSOCIATE JUSTICES OF THE SUPREME COURT OF CALIFORNIA:

[OR]

TO THE HONORABLE PRESIDING JUSTICE AND ASSOCIATE JUSTICES OF THE COURT OF APPEAL, _____ APPELLATE DISTRICT, OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA:

Petitioner alleges:

1. Petitioner is, and at all times herein mentioned was, the _____ [title, e.g., pastor] of _____[name of church], authorized to represent that church in this proceeding. Petitioner did so represent the church in proceedings before Respondent Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control ("the Department") and before Respondent Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board ("the Board"). In those proceedings, petitioner protested the issuance of a liquor license to _____[name of licensee] for the premises located at _____[address], California. Petitioner is a person aggrieved and affected by the final order of the Board affirming the issuance of that license by the Department over petitioner's protest.

2. _____[Name of licensee] ("Real Party") is the real party in interest in this proceeding because by this proceeding petitioner seeks review of an order by the Board affirming the Department's decision overruling the protest of petitioner and granting the license to Real Party.

3. _____[Name of licensee] applied to the Department for issuance of a _____ [type of license, e.g., on sale general] license to operate a _____ [e.g., night club] at _____[address], California. Real Party first posted his/her notice of intention to engage in the sale of alcoholic beverages at those premises on _____[date].

4. Within 30 days of such posting, petitioner filed a protest at the office of the Department at _____[address], California on the grounds that issuance of the license for the described premises would be contrary to the public welfare and morals because the proposed licensed premises are _____[specify distance] from petitioner's church, and that there was good cause to deny the license under Section 23789 of the Business and Professions Code. Petitioner's protest was rejected by the Department and a license was issued to Real Party. Within ten days after the rejection, petitioner filed an accusation.

5. Following a hearing on petitioner's accusation, the Department decided that the license should not be revoked.

6. Within ten days after the last day on which reconsideration of the Department's decision could be ordered, petitioner appealed the decision by filing a notice of appeal with the Board on _____[date]. As grounds for the appeal, petitioner contended, as he/she does in this petition, that the decision of the Department in failing to revoke Real Party's license was arbitrary and capricious because_____ [state grounds, e.g., the Department's findings were without the support of any substantial evidence and do not support the Department's decision].

7. On _____[date], the Board filed its final order affirming the Department's decision.

8. The Board's order is in error and the decision by the Department should be reversed on the grounds that the Department acted arbitrarily and capriciously in refusing to revoke Real Party's license for the described premises because _____ [specify grounds, e.g., the Department's findings were without the support of any substantial evidence and do not support the decision].

9. There is no appeal from the final order of the Board and petitioner has no plain, speedy, or adequate remedy, nor any remedy, unless the court grants a writ of review.

10. [If petition is filed in Supreme Court, allege circumstances rendering it proper that writ issue from that court rather than from Court of Appeal. See § 18.70[1], Paragraph 9.]

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays:

1. That a writ of review issue out of this court to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board, commanding it to certify fully to this court at a specified time and place the records and proceedings in this cause so that the same may be inquired into, reviewed, and determined by this court.

2. That following the inquiry, review, and determination by this court, the decision of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board, and the decision of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, be reversed and that the license issued to _____[name] be revoked.

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

SUPPORTING MEMORANDUM

[Add supporting memorandum]

[Proof of service; see § 18.70[11]]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a petition for use in seeking review of an order by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board affirming a decision by the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, whereby a license was permitted to issue over protest that the premises are in proximity to a church [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 23789].

For legal background related to a petition for writ of review of an order by the Appeals Board, see § 18.20. For a procedural guide and forms for use in proceedings involving writs of review, see Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of. For a memorandum of points and authorities in support of the petition, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 15, Alcoholic Beverages .

[3] Allegations

The form alleges:

- Petitioner's standing to seek a writ of review (Paragraph 1) [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 23090, 23090.4; Code Civ. Proc. § 1069; see also Covert v. State Board of Equalization (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 125, 130, 173 P.2d 545 (complainant in administrative proceedings whose accusation seeking revocation of license was denied has standing to seek review),

- Identification of the licensee as a real party in interest (Paragraph 2) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)],

- That the order to be reviewed is a final order (Paragraph 7) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090],

- The grounds for review (Paragraph 8) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.2; Altadena Church v. St. Bd. Equalization (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 99, 104, 240 P.2d 322 (abuse of discretion as basis for review)],

- That petitioner has exhausted his or her administrative remedies (Paragraphs 4-6) [see Greenblatt v. Munro (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 596, 605, 326 P.2d 929] , and

- That petitioner has no appeal from the order or any other plain, speedy, or adequate remedy except judicial review (Paragraph 9) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1069].

[4] Verification

The application for review must be on the verified petition [Code Civ. Proc. § 1069] of a person aggrieved [Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22] or affected by the order [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090].

[5] Memorandum and Proof of Service

The petition must be accompanied by a supporting memorandum, the Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons [see § 18.70[7a]], and by proof of service of copies of the petition and accompanying memorandum on the respondent and any real party in interest named in the petition [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069, 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486].

For further discussion of memoranda, and proof of service requirements, see § 18.70[7], [11].

§ 18.72 Petition for Writ of Review [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.4; Code Civ. Proc. § 1069] to Review Order of Appeals Board [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090]--By Licensee--Review of Suspension or Revocation of License

[1] FORM Petition for Writ of Review [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.4; Code Civ. Proc. § 1069] to Review Order of Appeals Board [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090]--By Licensee--Review of Suspension or Revocation of License

[Cover, topical index, and caption. see § 18.70[1].]

Petitioner alleges:

[EITHER]

1. Petitioner was at all times herein mentioned the owner and holder of a _____ [identify type of license, e.g., on sale general] liquor license under which petitioner operated a _____ [e.g., cocktail lounge] located at _____[address], California. As disclosed more fully herein, petitioner is the party aggrieved and affected by the final order of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board herein referred to.

[OR]

1. Petitioner at all times herein mentioned was a licensee of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control and conducted a business known as _____[specify], located at _____[address], California. Petitioner is the party aggrieved and affected by a final decision of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board.

[CONTINUE]

2. The Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control ("the Department") is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a duly and regularly constituted agency of the State of California. Respondent _____[name] is the duly appointed, qualified, and acting Director of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control.

3. The Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board ("the Board") is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a duly and regularly constituted agency of the State of California.

4. On _____[date], an accusation was filed with the Department by _____[name], charging petitioner with violations of Sections _____[specify] of the Business and Professions Code [and Article XX, Section 22 of the California Constitution]. A copy of the accusation is attached hereto as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof.

5. On _____[date] petitioner filed with the Department his/her notice of defense specifically denying all parts of the accusation and requesting a hearing.

6. At a hearing held on _____[date], the Department found that petitioner had violated Sections _____[specify] of the Business and Professions Code [and Article XX, Section 22 of the California Constitution], and by decision of the Department, petitioner's license was _____ [revoked or suspended for a period of _____ (specify)]. A copy of the Department's opinion is attached hereto as Exhibit "B" and made a part hereof.

[7. If a petition for reconsideration was filed include either the following: On _____ (date), petitioner filed a petition for reconsideration with the Department, and the petition was denied on _____, (date).]

[OR]

[7. On _____ (date) petitioner filed a petition for reconsideration with the Department, and the petition was granted and heard on _____ (date). At the conclusion thereof the Department reaffirmed its decision of _____ (date) by which it _____ (revoked or suspended) petitioner's license as herein alleged.]

[CONTINUE]

8. [Allege appeal of Department's decision and grounds for the appeal. see § 18.70[1], Paragraph 5.]

9. On _____[date], a final order of the Board affirming the decision of the Department _____ [revoking or suspending] petitioner's license was filed. Petitioner has exhausted all administrative remedies available.

10. The order by the Board is in error and the decision by the Department should be _____ [reversed or reversed and remanded for consideration of evidence] on the following grounds: _____ [specify applicable grounds as set out in § 18.70[1], Paragraph 5.]

11. Petitioner has invested large sums of money in the establishment of the licensed premises, has a valuable patronage and goodwill in the pursuit thereof, and receives his/her livelihood therefrom. Unless stayed by order of this court, the _____ [suspension or revocation] of petitioner's license will be effective on _____[date], and will cause the loss of petitioner's investment and the destruction of petitioner's patronage and goodwill, and petitioner will suffer great and irreparable injury and loss for which petitioner will have no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy at law.

12. There is no appeal from these decisions and order and petitioner has no other plain, speedy, and adequate remedy, nor any remedy, unless this court grants a writ of review.

[13. If petition is filed in Supreme Court, allege circumstances rendering it proper that writ issue from that court rather than from Court of Appeal. see § 18.70[1], Paragraph 9.]

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays:

1. That a writ of review issue out of this court to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board, commanding it to certify fully to this court at a specified time and place the records and proceedings in this cause so that the same may be inquired into, reviewed, and determined by this court.

2. That pending the judgment of this court, the operation of the order and decision sought to be reviewed be stayed by order of this court.

3. That following the inquiry, review, and determination by this court, the _____ [order of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board and the decision of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control be reversed or matter be reversed and remanded to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board for the purpose of _____ (specify)].

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.
