vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE
as DIRECTOR OF THE DEPARTMENT OF AL-	)
COHOLIC BEVERAGE CONTROL,	)
Respondent.	)

TO THE HONORABLE _____ [CHIEF or PRESIDING] JUSTICE AND TO THE ASSOCIATE JUSTICES OF THE _____ [CALIFORNIA SUPREME COURT or COURT OF APPEAL OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA, _____ APPELLATE DISTRICT]:

Petitioner alleges:

1. Petitioner is the party beneficially interested in the relief sought in this petition in that _____[set forth facts showing beneficial interest].

2. The Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (hereinafter called "Department") is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a duly and regularly constituted agency and Department of the State of California. Respondent _____[name] (hereinafter called "Director") is the duly appointed, qualified, and acting director of Department, serving as its civil executive officer.

3. [Set forth facts showing that petitioner is a party entitled to a right or office from which he or she is unlawfully precluded by respondents].

4. [Set forth administrative duties sought to be enforced by writ of mandate, e.g., Section _____ of the Business and Professions Code specifically enjoins respondent to _____ (specify)].

5. At all times herein mentioned respondent has been and is, fully able to perform such duties.

6. On or about _____[date], petitioner issued a demand to respondent that he/she perform such duties.

7. Petitioner has fully performed all acts required of him/her, and all conditions and events precedent to respondent's responsibilities and duties under the law, and, specifically, to _____[specify].

8. Respondent has failed and refused, and still fails and refuses, to perform his duties under the aforementioned law, and, specifically, to _____[specify].

9. Petitioner has no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law in that _____[set forth supporting facts].

10. [If petition is filed in the Supreme Court set forth circumstances that render it proper that the writ should issue originally from that court rather than from a court of appeal.]

WHEREFORE petitioner prays judgment against respondent as follows:

1. That the court issue an alternative writ of mandate commanding respondent to _____[state duties to be performed], or to show cause before this court at a specified time and place why he/she has not done so.

2. That, on the hearing of this petition and the return thereto, if any, this court issue its peremptory writ of mandate commanding respondent to _____[state duties to be performed].

3. For costs of this proceeding and such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[Verification; see § 18.70[1]]

SUPPORTING MEMORANDUM

[Proof of service; see § 18.70[11]]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a petition for writ of mandate for use to compel the Director of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control to perform duties imposed on the Department by law [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.5].

For discussion of a writ of mandate to compel the Department to act, see § 18.20[3].

[3] Compared With Petition for Writ of Review

A petition for writ of mandate is used when judicial review is sought of the orders, rules, decisions, or other actions of the director in the performance of his or her duties when acting in an administrative rather than a limited judicial capacity [see Samson Market Co. v. Kirby (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 577, 581, 68 Cal. Rptr. 130 ; see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.5]. A petition for writ of mandate may also be used to prohibit official conduct, ministerial in nature, that is based on an unconstitutional statute [see Sail'er Inn, Inc. v. Kirby (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 1, 7, 95 Cal. Rptr. 329, 485 P.2d 529] .

When judicial review is sought for a final order by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board, either affirming or reversing a quasi judicial decision of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, a petition for writ of review should be used [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090; for appropriate forms, see §§ 18.70 -18.72]. For forms and procedure for use in extraordinary writ proceedings generally, see Ch. 292, Habeas Corpus , Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition , and Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari) Writ of.

[4] Proceedings in Supreme Court

A petition for writ of mandate to compel administrative action by the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control must be filed in the court of appeal or the Supreme Court [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090.5]. If the petition is to be heard by the Supreme Court, it must set forth the circumstances which render it appropriate that the writ issue originally from that court, rather than from a court of appeal (Paragraph 10) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)]. If legal issues of statewide significance are raised in the petition, the Supreme Court might entertain original jurisdiction to issue the writ [see Sail'er Inn, Inc. v. Kirby (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 1, 6-7, 95 Cal. Rptr. 329, 485 P.2d 529] . Otherwise it will generally transfer the case to a court of appeal [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 12; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 10.1000 (transfer of causes from the Supreme Court to a court of appeal)].

[5] Allegations

The form alleges:

- The identity of the petitioner as the real party in interest (Paragraph 1) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086].

- The identity and capacity of the respondents Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control and Director (Paragraph 2) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 (parties to whom writ may be issued)].

- The right or office to which petitioner is entitled and from which he or she is unlawfully precluded by respondent (Paragraph 3) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1085].

- Respondent's duties enjoined by law (Paragraph 4) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1085].

- Respondent's ability to perform such duties (Paragraph 5) [see Tevis v. City & County of San Francisco (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 190, 200, 272 P.2d 757] .

- Performance and/or occurrence of conditions and events precedent (Paragraph 7).

- Demand for performance (Paragraph 6) [see Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Rolph (1920) 184 Cal. 557, 559-560, 194 P. 1005 (demand must be alleged when it is condition precedent to existence of respondent's duties).

- Failure and refusal by respondents to perform duties (Paragraph 8).

- Absence of plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law (Paragraph 9) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086].

[6] Prayer

The prayer of the petition requests that a writ be issued directing respondent to perform the duties required (or to show cause at a hearing why he or she has not done so), and that a peremptory writ be issued after a hearing commanding that the duties be performed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1087]. The prayer also contains a request for costs of suit [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1029 (allowance of costs against public agency), 1095 (allowance of costs against public agency in mandate proceeding)].

[7] Verification

A petition for a writ of mandate must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086].

For a form of verification, see § 18.70[1].

[8] Memorandum and Proof of Service

The petition must be accompanied by a memorandum supporting, the Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons [see § 18.70[7a]], and by proof of service of copies of the petition and accompanying memorandum on the respondent and any real party in interest named in the petition [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069, 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486].

For further discussion of memoranda, and proof of service requirements, see § 18.70[7], [11].

§ 18.85 Complaint for Recovery of Excise Taxes Illegally Collected and Paid Under Protest--By Licensee Against State Board of Equalization [Rev. & Tax Code § 32413]

[1] FORM Complaint for Recovery of Excise Taxes Illegally Collected and Paid Under Protest--By Licensee Against State Board of Equalization [Rev. & Tax Code § 32413]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
BOARD OF EQUALIZATION OF THE STATE OF	)	COMPLAINT FOR RECOVERY OF EXCISE CALIFORNIA,	)	TAXES PAID UNDER PROTEST
Defendant.	)

Plaintiff(s) allege(s):

1. Plaintiff is, and at all times herein mentioned was, the owner and holder of a _____ [state type of liquor license, e.g., on sale general] liquor license under which petitioner operated a _____ [describe nature of business, e.g., cocktail lounge] located at _____[address], California.

2. On _____[date], plaintiff filed a return for alcoholic beverage taxes due for the month of _____[date] on sales of _____ [specify, e.g., distilled spirits] and at the same time paid the sum of $_____ as the tax due and payable thereon.

3. On _____[date] defendant served on plaintiff a notice of deficiency in the amount of $_____, claiming that plaintiff underpaid his taxes for the month of _____[date] in that amount and demanding payment therefor.

4. On _____[date] plaintiff paid the amount of $_____ under protest.

5. On _____[date] plaintiff filed a written claim for refund, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof, stating as grounds for refund that the amount of such deficiency collected by defendant exceeded the amount of taxes owed by plaintiff for the month of _____[date] and that the deficiency collected by defendant was excessive and illegal.

[EITHER]

6. On _____[date] defendant notified plaintiff that such claim was disallowed.

[OR]

6. Defendant failed to mail any notice of action on plaintiff's claim within six months after the claim was filed, and plaintiff therefore considers his claim disallowed.

[CONTINUE]

7. For the month of _____[date] plaintiff owed no more than the sum of $_____ for alcoholic beverage taxes. That amount was paid in full as herein alleged. The sum of $_____ paid by plaintiff under protest constituted an overpayment and was illegally collected by defendant in the same manner and to the same extent alleged in plaintiff's claim for refund.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For the sum of $_____ with interest thereon at the rate of 12 percent per annum.

2. For costs of suit herein incurred.

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

Attorney for Plaintiff_____ [name]

[Verification, if desired; for discussion of the implications of verifying the complaint, see [5], below; for a form of verification, see § 18.70[1] .]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a complaint for use in recovering an overpayment of taxes under the Alcoholic Beverage Tax Law (Rev. & Tax Code § 32001 et seq.).

For discussion and forms for use in actions involving excise taxes generally, see Ch. 540, Taxes and Assessments .

[3] Contents of Form

The complaint alleges:

- Overpayment of taxes (Paragraph 4),
- Filing of a claim for refund (Paragraph 5) [see Rev. & Tax Code § 32412],
- Actual or implied disallowance of such claim (Paragraph 6), [see Rev. & Tax Code §§ 32413, 32414], and
- Illegality of the excessive tax on the same grounds set forth in the claim submitted to the Board of Equalization (Paragraph 7) [see Rev. & Tax Code § 32413].

[4] Time and Place to File

No suit or proceeding may be maintained in any court for the recovery of any amount of taxes alleged to have been erroneously or illegally assessed or collected unless a claim for refund or credit has been duly filed [Rev. & Tax Code § 32412]. Within 90 days after the mailing of the notice of the Board of Equalization's action on a claim for refund or credit, or if there is no notice mailed within six months (in which event, plaintiff may consider the claim disallowed [Rev. & Tax Code § 32414]), the claimant may bring an action against the Board of Equalization on the grounds set forth in the claim in a court of competent jurisdiction in Sacramento County for the recovery of the whole or any part of the amount disallowed [Rev. & Tax Code § 32413]. The claimant may, alternatively, commence the action in any city or city and county in which the Attorney General has an office, rather than in Sacramento County [see Code Civ. Proc. § 401(1)]. In this event the caption should be modified accordingly.

[5] Verification

A public entity need not verify its answer even though the complaint is verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. The verification of a complaint against a public entity does, however, preclude a general denial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)].

§ 18.86 Complaint for Restitution [Civ. Code §§ 1689, 1692] Based on Rescission and for Money Had and Received--By Transferee Against Transferor of Liquor License and Business and Escrow Holder After Disapproval of Transfer by Department

[1] FORM Complaint for Restitution [Civ. Code §§ 1689, 1692] Based on Rescission and for Money Had and Received--By Transferee Against Transferor of Liquor License and Business and Escrow Holder After Disapproval of Transfer by Department

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR RESTITUTION
_____ [name], [and DOES I through	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

Plaintiff alleges:

FIRST COUNT
(Restitution)

1. [Allege corporate or other capacity of defendant transferor, e.g., Defendant _____[name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a California corporation with its principal place of business in _____ County, California.]

2. Defendant _____[name of escrow holder] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a California corporation organized, and licensed by the Commissioner of Corporations, to engage in the business of handling escrows, and acting as such in _____ County, California.

[3. Defendants Doe I through Doe _____, inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names. Their true names and capacities are unknown to plaintiff. When their true names and capacities are ascertained, plaintiff will amend this complaint by inserting their true names and capacities herein. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges, that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those defendants.)]

[4. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that [A]t all times herein mentioned each of the defendants was the agent and employee of each of the remaining defendants, and in doing the things hereinafter alleged, was acting within the course and scope of that agency and employment.]

5. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____[name of transferor] was the owner of the business of a certain _____ [describe, e.g., cocktail lounge] located at _____[address], California, operated under the fictitious business name of _____[specify]. Defendant's ownership of such business included a _____ [type of license, e.g., on sale general] license for the sale of alcoholic beverages at such premises.

6. On _____[date], plaintiff and defendant _____[name of transferor] entered into a written agreement in which plaintiff agreed to purchase, and defendant agreed to sell, the described defendant's business and liquor license. Plaintiff and defendant agreed to sell the business and license for a purchase price of $_____, subject to approval by the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control. The agreement provides that the consideration for the transfer of the business and license is to be paid to defendant _____[name of transferor] only after the transfer is approved by the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control. The agreement also provide for the establishment of an escrow with defendant _____[name of escrow holder] for the purpose of holding and disbursing the funds deposited as the purchase price and directs that escrow holder to pay claims of _____[name of transferor], duly filed, out of such funds.

7. On _____[date], plaintiff deposited the full amount of the purchase price of $_____ with defendant _____[name of escrow holder], together with a copy of the aforementioned agreement.

8. Plaintiff duly recorded notice of intended transfer on _____[date], in _____ County as required by Section 24073 of the Business and Professions Code, and thereafter filed an application for transfer of defendant's liquor license with the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control in due form and accompanied such with the required transfer fees. Within 30 days after filing the application, plaintiff filed with the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control a statement under penalty of perjury that the agreed purchase price and consideration had been deposited with the escrow holder, and submitted copies of the statement to defendant _____[name of transferor]. Plaintiff has performed everything required by the agreement, and by the laws of the State of California.

9. On _____[date], the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control disapproved the transfer and gave notice thereof to plaintiff and defendant _____[name of transferor]. Plaintiff thereafter instructed defendants _____[name of transferor] and _____[name of escrow holder] by written notice to return forthwith all funds deposited by plaintiff with defendant _____[name of escrow holder] for the reason that the agreement could not be completed due to the Department's disapproval. By such notice plaintiff rescinded the contract for failure of consideration.

10. Defendants, and each of them, failed and refused, and continue to fail and refuse, to restore the described funds to plaintiff. Neither the full amount of $_____, nor any part of that amount, has been returned to plaintiff by defendants or either of them, and plaintiff has been damaged in that sum and by loss of interest on such amount at the legal rate percent per annum from the date of plaintiff's notice of rescission.

SECOND COUNT
(Common Count)

11. Plaintiff refers to and herein incorporates Paragraphs 1-4 of the First Count.

12. On _____[date], defendants _____[name of transferor] and _____[name of escrow holder], and each of them, became indebted to plaintiff in the sum of $_____ for money had and received by such defendants, and each of them, for plaintiff's use and benefit.

13. Neither that sum, nor any part thereof has been paid although demand therefor has been made, and there is now due, owing, and unpaid the sum of $_____, with interest thereon at the legal rate percent per annum from _____[date].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendants and each of them as follows:

1. For the sum of $_____, with interest thereon at the legal rate percent per annum from _____[date].

2. For costs of suit herein incurred.

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff_____ [name]

[Verification, if desired; for discussion of the implications of verifying the complaint, see [4], below; for a form of verification, see § 18.70[1] .]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a complaint seeking restitution of an amount paid in escrow on the purchase price of a liquor business and license, on the ground that the transfer was disapproved by the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, resulting in a failure of consideration (First Count). The form also alleges a common count (Second Count).

For discussion relating to a complaint for restitution in this context, see § 18.21. For a complaint for interpleader by an escrow agent holding funds in connection with the transfer of a liquor license, see Ch. 253, Escrows . For discussion and other forms relating to the causes of action alleged in this complaint, see generally Ch. 121, Common Counts , Ch. 140, Contracts , and Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution .

For a memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion for summary judgment on the cause of action alleged in this complaint, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 15, Alcoholic Beverages .

[3] Allegations

The First Count of the complaint, for restitution, alleges:

- The agreement to transfer the license (Paragraph 6),
- Plaintiff's performance under the agreement (Paragraph 8),
- Disapproval of the transfer by the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (Paragraph 9),
- Plaintiff's rescission of the agreement for failure of consideration and demand for restitution (Paragraph 9) [see Civ. Code §§ 1689, 1691], and
- Defendants' refusal to repay (Paragraph 10) [see Civ. Code § 1692].

The Second Count of the complaint, for money had and received, a common count, alleges:

- The indebtedness and when it accrued (Paragraph 12), and
- Nonpayment (Paragraph 13).

[4] Verification

Verification of this complaint is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer in a superior court action other than a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446] and precludes a general denial in superior court and some limited civil cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

§ 19.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter covers liability for injuries caused by intoxicated persons, an intoxicated persons capacity to contract, and abatement of unlawful liquor sales.

The chapter discusses actions for injuries caused by intoxicated persons in § 19.10 et seq. and provides the following forms:

- A complaint for damages for personal injury against intoxicated driver and automobile owner [see § 19.70].

- Complaints for damages for personal injury against seller of alcoholic beverages [see §§ 19.75 -19.77].

The chapter discusses an intoxicated person's capacity to contract in § 19.16 and provides forms of affirmative defense to a contract action based on incapacity due to intoxication in § 19.90.

The chapter discusses actions to abate a building or place used for unlawful selling or serving alcoholic liquor as a nuisance in § 19.30 et seq. and provides a form of complaint to abate unlawful sale of liquor in § 19.100.

A. Civil Liability for Acts of Intoxicated Persons

3-19 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 19.10

§ 19.10 Drinker's Liability

[1] Damages Due to Negligence

A person is responsible for an injury occasioned to another by his or her want of ordinary care or skill in the management of his or her person [Civ. Code § 1714]. The absence of volition in becoming intoxicated, as in the case of the habitual drunkard who is unable to resist temptation when liquor is offered, generally does not exonerate the drinker from liability for his or her negligence or contributory negligence [Carlisle v. Kanaywer (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 587, 591-592, 101 Cal. Rptr. 246 ; see also Mullen v. Bruce (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 494, 496, 335 P.2d 945 (person suffering delirium tremens as civilly liable for wrongful acts under Civ. Code § 41)].

For a form of complaint for damages by an automobile driver for personal injuries and property damage against an intoxicated person and automobile owner, see § 19.70 1 . For further discussion and forms relating to actions for negligence, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

[2] Costs of Emergency Response

Any person under the influence of an alcoholic beverage or any drug, or the combined influence of an alcoholic beverage and any drug, who, because of that influence, negligently operates a motor vehicle, boat or vessel, or civil aircraft that proximately causes any incident resulting in an appropriate emergency response is liable for the expense of a public agency's emergency response to the incident [Gov. Code §§ 53150-53152]. The liability is limited to $12,000 for a particular incident [Gov. Code § 53155].

For purposes of this liability, a person is under the influence of an alcoholic beverage or drug, or the combined influence of an alcoholic beverage and a drug, if, as a result of drinking an alcoholic beverage alone or in combination with a drug, his or her physical or mental abilities are impaired to a degree that he or she no longer has the ability to operate a motor vehicle, boat or vessel, or aircraft with the caution characteristic of a sober person of ordinary prudence under the same or similar circumstances. The inferences regarding alcohol levels in a driver's blood at the time of an accident described in Veh. Code §§ 23152 and 23155 apply [Gov. Code § 53153].

§ 19.11 General Rule of Nonliability for Furnishing Alcoholic Beverages

[1] Furnishing to Drunkard or Intoxicated Person

No person who sells, furnishes, gives, or causes to be sold, furnished, or given away, any alcoholic beverage pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602(a) (person furnishing alcoholic beverage to habitual or common drunkard or obviously intoxicated person as guilty of misdemeanor) is civilly liable to any injured person or the estate of that person for injuries inflicted on him or her as a result of intoxication by the consumer of the alcoholic beverage [Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602(b)].

The legislative intent of Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602(b) was to abrogate the holdings in cases such as Vesely v. Sager (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 153, 95 Cal. Rptr. 623, 486 P.2d 151 (commercial vendor of alcoholic beverages subject to liability for injuries to third persons resulting from vendor's sale of alcohol to an obviously intoxicated person), Bernhard v. Harrah's Club (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 313, 128 Cal. Rptr. 215, 546 P.2d 719 , cert. denied, 429 U.S. 859, 97 S. Ct. 159, 50 L. Ed. 2d 136 (no bar to civil liability under modern negligence law against a defendant commercially providing alcohol in Nevada to an obviously intoxicated person), and Coulter v. Superior Court (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 144, 145 Cal. Rptr. 534, 577 P.2d 669 (extending liability to noncommercial providers of alcohol, such as social hosts, discussed below), and to reinstate the prior judicial rule that the consumption of alcoholic beverages rather than the serving of them is the proximate cause of injuries inflicted by an intoxicated person [Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602(c); see Civ. Code § 1714(b) (containing similar declaration of legislative intent); Strang v. Cabrol (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 720, 724-727, 209 Cal. Rptr. 347, 691 P.2d 1013 ; Zieff v. Weinstein (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 243, 246-247, 236 Cal. Rptr. 536 ; Bass v. Pratt (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 129, 132-133, 222 Cal. Rptr. 723] .

Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602(b) also exempts from liability a person who simply permits the consumption of alcoholic beverages, even though the person neither sold, furnished, or gave the alcoholic beverage [see Leong v. San Francisco Parking, Inc. (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 827, 832, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 41] .

Not only are suits by third persons injured by the intoxicated consumer against the supplier of the alcohol barred, but suits by the intoxicated consumer for injury to himself or herselfagainst the supplier are barred as well [Cory v.

Shierloh (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 430, 437, 174 Cal. Rptr. 500, 629 P.2d 8 ; see Strang v. Cabrol (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 720, 727-728, 209 Cal. Rptr. 347, 691 P.2d 1013] .

[2] Furnishing to Person Under 21 Years of Age

Bus. & Prof. Code § 25658(a) provides that every person who sells, furnishes, or gives away any alcoholic beverage to a person under the age of 21 years is guilty of a misdemeanor. One who furnishes an alcoholic beverage to a person under the age of 21 in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 25658(a), however, is not civilly liable to any person for injuries resulting from the minor's intoxication.

Although Bus. & Prof. Code § 25658(a) does not contain an express provision for civil immunity such as that expressed in Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602(b) (discussed under 1 , above), immunity is implied in the legislative declarations of Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602(a) and Civ. Code § 1714(b) [Strang v. Cabrol (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 720, 722-728, 209 Cal. Rptr. 347, 691 P.2d 1013 ; see Rogers v. Alvas (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 997, 1000-1004, 207 Cal. Rptr. 60] .

Chapter 19 ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES: CIVIL LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Civil Liability for Acts of Intoxicated Persons

3-19 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 19.12

§ 19.12 Liability for Sale or Furnishing to Obviously Intoxicated Minor

[1] Right to Bring Action

A person who has sold an alcoholic beverage to an obviously intoxicated minor may be liable for negligence if his or her conduct is the proximate cause of personal injury or death [Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1; Strang v. Cabrol (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 720, 724, 725, 209 Cal. Rptr. 347, 691 P.2d 1013 (involving statute prior to its 1986 amendment); see also Cory v. Shierloh (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 430, 439-441, 174 Cal. Rptr. 500, 629 P.2d 8 (same; upholding constitutionality of Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1 against challenge that it denied equal protection of the laws)].

The cause of action may be brought by or on behalf of any person who has suffered injury or death [Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1]. For a form of complaint for damages for personal injuries or wrongful death against a seller of alcoholic beverages for furnishing, sale, or giving of a alcoholic beverages to a minor, see § 19.75 1 .

[2] Proper Defendant

[a] Any Person Who Sells or Causes Sale

A defendant may be any person who sells, or causes to be sold, any alcoholic beverage to any obviously intoxicated minor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1].

[b] Licensee Who Sells, Furnishes, or Gives Away to

The defendant may also be any person who sells, furnishes, or gives away any alcoholic beverage, and who is [Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1]:

- Licensed, or required to be licensed, pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 23300 (alcoholic beverage licenses), or

- Authorized by the federal government to sell alcoholic beverages on a military base or other federal enclave.

[3] Meaning of "Obviously Intoxicated"

"Obviously intoxicated," for purposes of a liquor licensee's civil tort liability, and "driving under the influence" of alcohol as used in connection with a driver's responsibility when driving a vehicle [see Veh. Code § 23152] do not mean the same thing. "Under the influence" is defined by a person's capability to drive safely, whereas "obvious intoxication" is defined by a person's appearance. Ability to drive safely is usually related to blood alcohol level, whereas outward appearance depends in part on a person's tolerance to alcohol. Evidence of blood alcohol level may be circumstantial evidence of a minor's outward appearance, but it is not dispositive, as reaction to alcohol and tolerance differ among persons and change even within a person, depending on that person's physical condition and other factors at any particular time [Jones v. Toyota Motor Co. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 364, 368, 370, 243 Cal. Rptr. 611] .

The obviously intoxicated minor is included within the meaning of the term "any person" as used in Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1, and, hence, under the statute, a minor who suffers injuries as a proximate result of having been sold alcoholic beverages while obviously intoxicated may state a cause of action against the purveyor of the alcoholic beverage [Chalup v. Aspen Mine Co. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 973, 975-979, 221 Cal. Rptr. 97 ; see Jones v. Toyota Motor Co. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 364, 369, 243 Cal. Rptr. 611] . The word "minor," as used in Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1, is not limited to persons under the age of 18, but means any person under the age of 21 [Chalup v. AspenMine Co. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 973, 975 n.2, 221 Cal. Rptr. 97 (see Civ. Code § 25, defining minor as person under age of 18, through December 31, 1993; operative January 1, 1994, see Fam. Code § 6500)].

[4] Proximate Cause Narrows Scope of Liability

The persons described in 1 , above, may be liable if the furnishing, sale, or giving of that beverage to the minor is the proximate cause of the personal injury or death sustained by that person [Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1; Strang v. Cabrol (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 720, 724, 725, 209 Cal. Rptr. 347, 691 P.2d 1013 (involving statute prior to its 1986 amendment); see also Cory v. Shierloh (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 430, 439-441, 174 Cal. Rptr. 500, 629 P.2d 8 (same; upholding constitutionality of Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1 against challenge that it denied equal protection of the laws)].

The term "proximate" in Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1 was intended to restrict, rather than to expand, potential application of this exception to liability [Salem v. Superior Court (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 595, 603, 259 Cal. Rptr. 447] . Hence, injury resulting from intoxication of a person to whom an intoxicated minor (as described in Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1) gives liquor is not injury proximately resulting from the sale to the intoxicated minor [Salem v. Superior Court (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 595, 603, 259 Cal. Rptr. 447] .

[5] Lone Statutory Exception to Immunity

Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1 contains the only statutory exception to the rule of immunity expressed in Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602(b),(c) and Civ. Code § 1714(b),(c) (discussed under 1 , above), and no other statutory exceptions exist [Strang v. Cabrol (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 720, 728, 209 Cal. Rptr. 347, 691 P.2d 1013 (disapproving Burke v. Superior Court (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 570, 579, 181 Cal. Rptr. 149); Bass v. Pratt (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 129, 134, 222 Cal. Rptr. 723] .

The 1986 amendment to Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1 does not have retroactive effect, and the prior version governs a cause of action accruing during the time it was in effect [Baker v. Sudo (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 936, 943-945, 240 Cal. Rptr. 38 (effect of 1986 amendment was to broaden exception to immunity)].

3-19 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 19.13

§ 19.13 Liability of Social Host for Furnishing to Person With Exceptional Condition

[1] General Rule of Social Host Immunity

No social host who furnishes alcoholic beverages to any person is legally accountable for damages suffered by that person or for injury to the person or property or death of any third person, resulting from the consumption of the beverages [Civ. Code § 1714(c)]. In amending Civ. Code § 1714 in 1978, the Legislature, in language substantially identical to that set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602(c) (discussed under 1 , above), declared its intent to reinstate the prior judicial interpretation of Civ. Code § 1714 that the consumption, not the furnishing, of alcoholic beverages is the proximate cause of injuries resulting from intoxication [Civ. Code § 1714(b)].

Civ. Code § 1714(b),(c), together with Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602(b),(c), immunizes a social host against civil liability for furnishing alcoholic beverages to any person, including an intoxicated minor [Bass v. Pratt (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 129, 132, 137, 222 Cal. Rptr. 723] . This rule applies even if the host orders an intoxicated minor to leave the premises knowing that the minor will be driving a vehicle [see DeBolt v. Kragen Auto Supply, Inc. (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 269, 272-276, 227 Cal. Rptr. 258 (after driving away from party, intoxicated minor guest was involved in traffic accident in which two people were killed)]. Further, this immunity may not be circumvented by alleging that the social host is liable for failing to supervise guests to whom he or she furnished alcohol [Biles v. Richter (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 325, 327, 253 Cal. Rptr. 414] .

[2] Furnishing to Person With Exceptional Physical or Mental Condition

In Cantor v. Anderson, a Third Appellate District court of appeal held that a social host who furnishes a guest with alcoholic beverages knowing that the guest, because of some exceptional physical or mental condition, is one who should not be served alcoholic beverages and is or should be aware of the risks involved in providing the person with alcohol may be held liable for any resulting damages despite Civ. Code § 1714(b),(c) [Cantor v. Anderson (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 124, 132, 178 Cal. Rptr. 540 ; see Strang v. Cabrol (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 720, 726, 209 Cal. Rptr. 347, 691 P.2d 1013 (citing Cantor regarding potential limitation on immunity if person had some exceptional condition); Bass v. Pratt (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 129, 222 Cal. Rptr. 723] .

Other courts of appeal, however, have rejected the conclusion of Cantor v. Anderson, above, on the ground that a common law action based on injuries caused by the foreseeable effect of alcohol on an individual with a mental disability is precluded by Civ. Code § 1714 and Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602 [see Cardinal v. Santee Pita, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1676, 1682, 286 Cal. Rptr. 275 (Fourth Appellate District; stating that Cantor was wrongly decided); Hepe v. Paknad (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 412, 417-419, 244 Cal. Rptr. 823 (Sixth Appellate District; criticizing Cantor reasoning for creating exception without statutory basis and rejecting as dictum favorable citation to Cantor in Strang v. Cabrol)].

An employer may be held liable under the doctrine of respondeat superior for the damages caused by an intoxicated employee if it is shown that the employee's state of intoxication occurred within the scope of his or her employment [Harris v. Trojan Fireworks Co. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 157, 163-165, 174 Cal. Rptr. 452 (alleged intoxication occurring at Christmas party on company time); for discussion of doctrine of respondeat superior, see Ch. 380, Negligence].

Neither Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602(b) nor Civ. Code § 1714(c) immunize the employer from respondeat superior liability. However, if the injured party is a coemployee, workers' compensation may be the exclusive remedy [see Childers v. Shasta Livestock Auction Yard, Inc. (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 792, 798, 235 Cal. Rptr. 641 (workers' compensation exclusive remedy for injuries sustained in automobile accident after leaving premises following customary after-hours drinking on premises, which was encouraged by management); see Ch. 577, Workers' Compensation].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Civil Liability for Acts of Intoxicated Persons

3-19 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 19.15

§ 19.15 Liability for Breach of Independent Duty

[1] Limited Scope of Immunity

Civ. Code § 1714(b),(c) and Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602(b),(c) (discussed under § 19.11 and § 19.13 1) afford immunity only against risks directly flowing from the supplying of liquor. These provisions do not apply to insulate a furnisher of the alcohol from liability arising from the furnisher's breach of an independent duty [see Blake v. Moore (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 700, 702, 208 Cal. Rptr. 703] .

[2] Breach of Duty to Maintain Safe Premises

The proprietor of a place where intoxicating liquors are dispensed owes his or her patrons a duty to exercise reasonable care to protect them from injury at the hands of fellow patrons, whether drunk or sober [Cantwell v. Peppermill, Inc. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1797, 1801-1803, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 246 ; see also Saatzer v. Smith (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 512, 518, 176 Cal. Rptr. 68 (noting limits on duty)].

A proprietor who breaches this duty is not immune from liability under Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602 for injuries sustained as a proximate result of the breach. A license to sell alcoholic beverages does not confer a grant of immunity to the innkeeper who permits the premises to be used as an arena for aggressive tortfeasors [Cantwell v. Peppermill, Inc. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1797, 1801-1803, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 246 ; see also Saatzer v. Smith (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 512, 518, 176 Cal. Rptr. 68 ; Slawinski v. Mocettini (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 192, 196, 31 Cal. Rptr. 613 (setting forth circumstances that must exist for duty to arise)].

For forms of complaint against a tavern proprietor by a patron injured by a third party on the premises, see § 19.77. For further discussion of the duty of the owner or possessor of real property to persons on the premises, see Ch. 421, Premises Liability .

[3] Negligent Entrustment

A social host who supplies a guest with liquor and then furnishes the guest with a car to drive may be liable to the guest for injuries the guest sustains in an accident involving the car, on a theory of negligent entrustment [see Blake v. Moore (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 700, 702-707, 208 Cal. Rptr. 703] . Similarly, an innkeeper who loans a vehicle to a drunken patron to drive home is not shielded by Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602 from liability based on negligent entrustment if the patron injures a third person with the vehicle [see Cantwell v. Peppermill, Inc. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1797, 1803, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 246] .

[4] Voluntary Assumption of Duty or Special Relationship

A tavern owner may, by acting as a so-called "Good Samaritan," make the liability limitations of Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602 and Civ. Code § 1714 inapplicable. If the tavern owner (or the owner's employee) has undertaken to provide a service to another that the owner or employee should recognize as necessary for the protection of a third person, and the failure of the owner or employee to exercise due care in providing the service has increased the risk of harm to that third person, liability for injury caused by that increased risk can be imposed based on that breach of duty, independent of the furnishing of alcohol [see Williams v. Saga Enterprises, Inc. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 142, 151, 274 Cal. Rptr. 901 ; Restatement (Second) of Torts § 324A].

ILLUSTRATION:

Tavern Returns Keys to Intoxicated Driver who Allegedly Injures Plaintiff. A plaintiff was injured in an automobile accident allegedly caused by an intoxicated driver and sued both the driver and a tavern. Plaintiff opposed the tavern's summary judgment motion by producing evidence that employees of the tavern customarily took the car keys of the patron who injured plaintiff and returned them only on the determination that the patron could drive safely. Was there a triable issue of material fact? Yes. The court held that pursuant to Restatement (Second) of Torts § 324A, this evidence was sufficient to raise an issue of material fact whether defendant has assumed a duty to plaintiff [Williams v. Saga Enterprises, Inc. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 142, 153-154, 274 Cal. Rptr. 901] .

In contrast, a commercial server of alcohol has no duty to arrange transportation home for an intoxicated patron on request, even though the establishment accommodated the patron's wishes in the past by asking other patrons to drive him or her home, unless some special relationship exists that gives rise to an affirmative duty of assistance [Andrews v. Wells (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 533, 541-542, 251 Cal. Rptr. 344] .

For a form of complaint alleging a cause of action against a seller of alcoholic beverages based on Restatement (Second) of Torts § 324A, see § 19.76 1 . For further discussion of negligent breach of duty based on a voluntary assumption of duty or a special relationship, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Civil Liability for Acts of Intoxicated Persons

3-19 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 19.16

§ 19.16 Intoxicated Person's Capacity to Contract

Generally, a person of unsound mind is incapable of entering into a contract [Civ. Code § 1556]. Persons who are entirely without understanding have no power to make contracts of any kind; however, they are liable for the reasonable value of things furnished to them that are necessary for the support of themselves or their families [Civ. Code § 38]. A person who has been adjudicated to be of unsound mind cannot make a conveyance or contract, delegate any power, or waive any right, until he or she has been restored to capacity [Civ. Code § 40; see Ch. 140,Contracts]. However, persons of unsound mind who are not entirely without understanding and who have not been adjudicated to be of unsound mind may rescind their conveyances or contracts [Civ. Code §§ 39, 1689(b)(7); see Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution].

Intoxication is proof of want of mental capacity. A completely intoxicated person is generally placed on the same footing as a person of unsound mind. One deprived of reason and understanding by drunkenness is, temporarily, as unable to consent to the terms of a contract as a person who lacks mental capacity because of insanity or idiocy. Therefore, a person who was completely intoxicated when he or she entered into a contract may avoid that contract even though his or her voluntary act, and not the contrivance of the other party to the contract, caused his or her intoxication [Guidici v. Guidici (1935) 2 Cal. 2d 497, 502, 41 P.2d 932] . If a person is unable to understand the nature or quality of his or her act and does not seek affirmative relief, that person's intoxication at the time of making a contract is a defense to an action on the contract, and rescission need not be pleaded as an element of the defense [Mundorff v. Ramm (1924) 66 Cal. App. 553, 566-567, 226 P. 820] .

Whenever the existence of a nuisance is shown in an action brought under Penal Code § 11200 et seq. to the satisfaction of the court or judge thereof, either by verified complaint or affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5), and the court or judge is satisfied that the owner of the property has received written notice of the existence of the nuisance, signed by the complainant or the district attorney at least two weeks prior to the filing of the complaint, the court or judge shall allow a temporary writ of injunction to abate and prevent the continuance or recurrence of the nuisance. On granting the writ, the court or judge must require an undertaking to the effect that the applicant will pay to the party enjoined such damages, not exceeding an amount to be specified, as the opposing party may sustain by reason of the injunction, if the court finally decides that the applicant was not entitled to the injunction [Penal Code § 11202]. The undertaking must be in writing and signed by the sureties under oath [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.320(a)]. It must be executed by two or more sufficient personal sureties, by one sufficient admitted surety insurer, or by any combination of sufficient personal sureties and admitted surety insurers [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.310]. An undertaking is not required of a public entity [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.220].

§ 19.52 Decisions

[1] Contracts

Lack of capacity due to complete intoxication is ground for avoidance of contract. Guidici v. Guidici (1935) 2 Cal. 2d 497, 502, 41 P.2d 932 ; Mundorff v. Ramm (1924) 66 Cal. App. 553, 566-567, 226 P. 820

Rescission of contract is not necessary to defense of incapacity when there was no rational understanding of contractual act and when no affirmative relief is sought. Mundorff v. Ramm (1924) 66 Cal. App. 553, 566-567, 226 P. 820

[2] Liability

[a] Tavern Owners

Duty of bar proprietor to protect patrons from third parties. Cantwell v. Peppermill, Inc. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1797, 1801-1803, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 246 ; *Saatzer v. Smith (1981) 122 Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602 does not immunize proprietor of bar from liability for injuries of patron assaulted by another patron; proprietor has duty as premises owner or possessor to take reasonable steps to protect patrons from reasonably foreseeable aggressive conduct of other persons on premises. Cantwell v. Peppermill, Inc. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1797, 1801-1803, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 246

Seller of alcoholic beverages to minor is not liable unless outward manifestations of intoxication were sufficient to cause a reasonable person with normal powers of observation to believe the minor was intoxicated. Schaffield v. Abboud (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1133, 1140-1141, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 205

Complaint states cause of action against tavern owners for wrongful death of habitual drunkard by alleging that defendants negligently served liquor to deceased and then failed to render aid when he or she became sick and helpless on premises and strangled on his own vomit. Carlisle v. Kanaywer (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 587, 592, 101 Cal. Rptr. 246

Allowing person with known propensity for fighting on tavern premises is grounds for liability of tavern owner to injured patron. Slawinski v. Mocettini (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 192, 196, 31 Cal. Rptr. 613

[b] Alcoholic of Unsound Mind

Alcoholic suffering delirium tremens is person of unsound mind within meaning of Civ. Code § 41 (providing that such persons are civilly liable for wrongful acts). Mullen v. Bruce (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 494, 496, 335 P.2d 945

[c] Motor Vehicle Owner for Negligent Entrustment

Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602 and Civ. Code § 1714 does not preclude action based on negligent entrustment of motor vehicle to intoxicated person is concurrent cause of injuries to driver who was furnished alcohol and automobile by defendant. Blake v. Moore (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 700, 703-705, 208 Cal. Rptr. 703

[d] Social Host

Effect of Civ. Code § 1714(b),(c) is not avoided by alleging that defendant's wrong was in forcing intoxicated person to leave party or in failing to provide intoxicated person safe transportation, rather than in furnishing alcohol. DeBolt v. Kragen Auto Supply, Inc. (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 269, 274, 227 Cal. Rptr. 258

Social host who furnishes alcoholic beverages to intoxicated minor is immune from liability under Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602(b),(c) and Civ. Code § 1714(b),(c) for injuries to third parties subsequently caused by minor while driving. Bass v. Pratt (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 129, 135-137, 222 Cal. Rptr. 723

Under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 25602, 25602.1 and Civ. Code § 1714, social host who furnishes alcoholic beverages to any person is not legally accountable for damages or injury resulting from consumption of those beverages. Andre v. Ingram (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 206, 209-210, 210 Cal. Rptr. 150

[3] Obviously Intoxicated Person

Depending on individual and his or her condition, individual may have blood alcohol level at which "under the influence" is statutorily presumed [see Veh. Code §§ 23152, 23155] but not manifest behavior so as to be considered obviously intoxicated; although obviously intoxicated person is under influence of intoxicating liquor, reverse is not necessarily true. Jones v. Toyota Motor Co. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 364, 369-370, 243 Cal. Rptr. 611

"Obvious intoxication" is defined by person's appearance. Jones v. Toyota Motor Co. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 364, 368, 243 Cal. Rptr. 611

[4] Proximate Cause

"Proximate" in Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1 construed is intended to restrict, rather than to expand, potential application of exception to liability. Salem v. Superior Court (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 595, 603, 259 Cal. Rptr. 447

Consumption, not furnishing, of alcoholic beverages is proximate cause of injuries resulting from intoxication. Andre v. Ingram (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 206, 209, 210 Cal. Rptr. 150

Rule of Taylor v. Superior Court (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 890, 894-897, 157 Cal. Rptr. 693, 598 P.2d 854 , that punitive damages are recoverable from intoxicated driver who causes personal injuries, applies retroactively. Peterson v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 147, 150, 152-158, 181 Cal. Rptr. 784, 642 P.2d 1305 (disapproving Mau v. Superior Court (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 875, 882, 161 Cal. Rptr. 895)

Punitive damages are recoverable from intoxicated automobile driver because person who voluntarily drinks to point of intoxication, knowing he or she must drive motor vehicle, demonstrates such conscious and deliberate disregard of others that his or her conduct is willful or wanton. Taylor v. Superior Court (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 890, 894-897, 157 Cal. Rptr. 693, 598 P.2d 854

[6] Statutory Immunity and Liability

Under Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1, making California-licensed seller of alcoholic beverages who furnishes liquor to obviously intoxicated minor subject to liability for injuries proximately caused thereby, club for U.S. Marines located in federal enclave is not subject to liability because it was not licensed under California law. Gallea v. United States (9th Cir. 1986) 779 F.2d 1403, 1405, 1406 (decided prior to 1986 amendment of Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1 to such cases)

Licensed alcoholic beverage dealers who provide alcoholic beverages to sober minors are statutorily immune (under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 25602(b) and 25602.1) from claims by third parties injured as result of intoxication of those minors. Strang v. Cabrol (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 720, 722-728, 209 Cal. Rptr. 347, 691 P.2d 1013 ; Rogers v. Alvas (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 997, 1000-1004, 207 Cal. Rptr. 60

Statutory amendments abrogating civil liability of furnishers of alcoholic beverages (Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602(b),(c)) is valid and not violating equal protection, even though statute preserves liability against licensed providers serving obviously intoxicated minors. Cory v. Shierloh (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 430, 438-441, 174 Cal. Rptr. 500, 629 P.2d 8

Statutory amendments abrogating civil liability of furnishers of alcoholic beverages (Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602(b),(c)) bars suit by intoxicated consumer as well as by injured third persons. Cory v. Shierloh (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 430, 437, 174 Cal. Rptr. 500, 629 P.2d 8

Security company hired to provide additional security at club party could not be liable under Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1 for death of two minors who drove away from club while intoxicated, because security company did not sell, furnish, or cause alcohol to be sold or furnished to minors. Elizarraras v. L.A. Private Security Servs., Inc. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 237, 243, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 302

Injury resulting from intoxication of person to whom intoxicated minor gives liquor does not constitute injury proximately resulting from sale to intoxicated minor. Salem v. Superior Court (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 595, 603, 259 Cal. Rptr. 447

Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602 confers sweeping immunity on servers of alcoholic beverages through legislative determination that consumption of alcoholic beverages, rather than service thereof, is proximate cause of injuries inflicted on another by intoxicated person, regardless of whether injuries inflicted negligently or recklessly. Hepe v. Paknad (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 412, 416, 421-422, 244 Cal. Rptr. 823

Unlicensed party who sells liquor to obviously intoxicated minor is not civilly liable to person later injured by minor. Zieff v. Weinstein (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 243, 245-249, 236 Cal. Rptr. 536 (decided prior to 1986 amendment of Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1 imposing such liability)

Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602(b) has no effect on respondeat superior liability because that liability is not premised on employer's selling, furnishing, or giving alcohol to another; rather, respondeat superior liability is premised on employee's consumption of alcohol is customary incident of employment. Childers v. Shasta Livestock Auction Yard, Inc. (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 792, 808, 235 Cal. Rptr. 641

Passengers in car who furnished minor driver with liquor are not liable to victims injured in subsequent car accident because passengers were not liquor licensees selling to obviously intoxicated minor pursuant to exception to immunity under Bus. &Prof. Code § 25602.1. Cully v. Bianca (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1172, 1175, 231 Cal. Rptr. 279 (decided before 1986 legislation expanding statutory exception to immunity)

Obviously intoxicated minor who was served alcohol by California-licensed purveyor of liquor is able under Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1 to sue purveyor in negligence for subsequent injuries. Chalup v. Aspen Mine Co. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 973, 975-979, 221 Cal. Rptr. 97

Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602 and Civ. Code § 1714, limiting civil liability for furnishing alcoholic beverages, are not applicable when injury occurred before effective date of amendments. Clendening v. Shipton (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 191, 197, 196 Cal. Rptr. 654

[7] Jury Instructions

In action against liquor licensee for damages sustained by plaintiff for serving alcohol to allegedly obviously intoxicated minor driver, jury instruction upheld that instructed jury to consider outward manifestations of obvious intoxication, including incontinence, unkempt appearance, alcoholic breath, loud or boisterous conduct, bloodshot or glassy eyes, incoherent or slurred speech, flushed face, poor muscular coordination or unsteady walking, loss of balance, impaired judgment, or argumentative behavior. Jones v. Toyota Motor Co. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 364, 370, 243 Cal. Rptr. 611

In action against liquor licensee for damages sustained by plaintiff as passenger in single vehicle accident for serving alcohol to allegedly obviously intoxicated minor driver, jury instruction that use of alcohol and its effect required to place person in violation of Veh. Code § 23152 ("under the influence" of intoxicating liquor) is substantially less than that required to be "obviously intoxicated" pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1, is error because there is no ranking of the two standards in language of statutes or otherwise and they are applied in different situations; moreover, instruction did not permit jury to give proper weight to blood alcohol evidence. Jones v. Toyota Motor Co. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 364, 368-370, 243 Cal. Rptr. 611 (noting instruction was taken from dicta in Paula v. Gagnon (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 680, 686, 146 Cal. Rptr. 702 and holding error was harmless under facts of case)

[8] Abatement of Unlawful Liquor Sales

Abatement proceeding under former Unlawful Liquor Sales Abatement Act [now see Penal Code §§ 11200-11207] does not constitute "adequate remedy" in ordinary course of law within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1086 for purpose of denying petition for writ of mandate to compel State Board of Equalization (predecessor of Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control) to revoke liquor license. Covert v. State Board of Equalization (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 125, 130, 173 P.2d 545

Reliance on mistaken advice of counsel that caterer's permit under Bus. & Prof. Code § 23999 was not revoked along with on-sale license is no defense to criminal charge of selling liquor without valid license in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 23300. People v. Guinn (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 10-11, 149 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 196 Cal. Rptr. 696

Individuals relying on Bus. & Prof. Code § 23999 (caterer's permit to sell alcoholic beverages after on-sale liquor license revoked) violates Bus. & Prof. Code § 23300, prohibiting sale of liquor without license, because caterer's permit is dependent on existence of on-sale license. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Locker (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 381, 385, 181 Cal. Rptr. 55

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] by Automobile Driver for Personal Injuries and Property Damages Based on Negligence [Civ. Code § 1714(a)] Against Intoxicated Person and Against Owner of Automobile Driven by Intoxicated Defendant

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES
_____ [name], [and DOES I	)	(Negligence)
through_____,]	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

Plaintiff(s) allege(s):

1. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as Does I-_____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges, that each of the fictitiously named defendants is negligently responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's injuries as herein alleged were proximately caused by that negligence.)

2. At all times herein mentioned, the defendant _____ [name of vehicle owner] was the owner of the motor vehicle referred to herein and generally described as a _____ [year, make, and model], California license number _____.

3. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [name of drunk driver] was driving that vehicle with the consent and permission and knowledge of the remaining defendants, and at all times herein mentioned, was the agent and employee of each of the remaining defendants, and was at all times acting within the purpose and scope of that agency and employment.

4. At all times herein mentioned, _____ [specify e.g., _____ Road] was and is a public street and highway in the County of _____, California.

5. On or about _____ [date], at approximately _____ [time], plaintiff _____ [name] was operating his/her motor vehicle, a _____ [year, make, and model], California license number _____, in a general _____ [specify, e.g., northerly ascending] direction on the that _____ [specify, e.g., _____ Road] approximately _____ [state, e.g., two miles north of _____ Road]. At that time and place defendant _____ [name of drunk driver] was operating his/her motor vehicle in the opposite direction on that _____ [specify, e.g., _____ Road]. At that time and place, defendants, and each of them, negligently entrusted, managed, maintained, operated, and drove that motor vehicle so as to proximately cause the motor vehicle to collide with the motor vehicle being driven by plaintiff, thereby causing the injuries and damages herein described.

6. As a proximate result of this negligence of the defendants, and each of them, plaintiff was hurt and injured in his/her health, strength, and activity, sustaining injury to his/her body and shock and injury to his/her nervous system and person, all of which these injuries have caused and continue to cause plaintiff great mental, physical, and nervous pain and suffering. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that these injuries will result in some permanent disability to plaintiff, all to plaintiff's general damage.

7. As a further proximate result of this negligence of the defendants, and each of them, plaintiff was required to and did and continues to incur medical and incidental expenses.

8. As a further proximate result of the negligence of the defendants, and each of them, plaintiff was prevented from attending to his/her usual occupation [as a _____ (specify)] for a period of time, sustaining a loss of earnings.

9. As a further proximate result of this negligence of the defendants, and each of them, the vehicle owned and operated by plaintiff was damaged, and plaintiff thereafter was denied the use of that vehicle, to plaintiff's further damage.

10. The aforementioned acts of defendant [s, and each of them,] were willful and wanton in that defendant demonstrated a conscious and deliberate disregard of the rights, safety, and interests of others by voluntarily commencing, and thereafter continuing, to consume alcoholic beverages to the point of intoxication, knowing from the outset that he/she must thereafter operate a motor vehicle.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays for judgment as follows:

1. For general damages according to proof;

2. For medical and related expenses according to proof;

3. For loss of earnings according to proof;

4. For damages to plaintiff's automobile in the sum of $ _____;

5. For damages for loss of use of plaintiff's automobile in the sum of $_____;

6. For punitive damages in an amount appropriate to punish defendants and deter others from engaging in similar wrongful conduct;

7. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

8. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters that are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in an action by a party involved in an automobile accident with an intoxicated person against the intoxicated driver and owner of the vehicle. The basis of the complaint is the negligence of the driver in operating the vehicle in an intoxicated condition. For discussion of a drinker's liability for negligence generally, see § 19.10.

[3] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded for this cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case or whether it is a limited civil case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115].

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

Nevertheless, defendant _____ (licensee or bartender) continued until _____ [time] to sell and serve the minor alcoholic beverages, all of which the minor drank].

[7. Plaintiff(s) is/are further informed and believes/believe and thereon alleges/allege, that at the time the minor was being sold and served alcoholic beverages as herein alleged, defendants were fully aware _____ (specify facts showing conscious disregard of the rights or safety of others, e.g., (a) that the minor was celebrating his/her 17th birthday, (b) that he/she had arrived at the tavern driving a new Ford Mustang convertible that he/she had received as a birthday gift from his/her parents, (c) that the minor intended to drive the vehicle when he/she left the tavern, and (d) that to reach his/her home, the minor would be required to drive _____ [specify, e.g., along city streets through heavy and erratic traffic or along a narrow, winding, and dangerous mountain road] in order to reach his/her home). The conduct of defendants in continuing to sell and serve alcoholic beverages to the minor who had become obviously intoxicated as herein alleged was despicable, and was carried on by defendants with a willful and conscious disregard of the rights and safety of all others using the _____ (streets or highways or roads) along which the minor would be driving after leaving the tavern.]

8. Plaintiff(s) is/are further informed and believes/believe and thereon alleges/allege that the minor left the _____ [e.g., tavern] at approximately _____ [time]. _____ [Specify manner of his/her leaving, if known, e.g., and, with the help of defendant _____ (licensee or bartender), got into his/her car, got the car started, got it headed in the direction of his/her home, and drove off].

9. Approximately _____ [specify time, e.g., 15 minutes] later, to wit, at about _____ [time], the car, with the minor at the wheel, was careening in a _____ [specify, e.g., northerly] direction over and along _____ [name and description of street, road, or highway, e.g., Main Street, that was and is a four-lane undivided public highway running in a generally northerly-southerly direction in _____ (city), _____ County, California, with two lanes running in each direction]. At that time and place, as a proximate result of the defendants' having sold and served alcoholic beverages to the obviously intoxicated minor as herein alleged, the minor was driving _____ [describe erratic driving, e.g., at a high rate of speed, was weaving erratically in and out of traffic, was swerving from lane to lane, and had little if any control over the car]. Immediately before the impact hereinafter alleged, the minor's vehicle was _____ [describe location on street, road, or highway, e.g., moving north in the northbound inside lane].

10. At the above-stated time, _____ [plaintiff or the decedent] was _____ [describe plaintiff's or decedent's proximity to the scene of the accident, e.g., riding as a passenger in a 1994 Chevrolet sedan that was traveling in a southerly direction over and along _____ (name of street, road, or highway) in the southbound inside lane].

11. As a proximate result of the defendants' having sold and served alcoholic beverages to the minor and the minor's intoxication as herein alleged, _____ [describe accident, e.g., at a point approximately _____ feet from the point at which the two vehicles would have passed each other, the minor's car suddenly swerved into the southbound inside lane and crashed head-on into the vehicle in which _____ (plaintiff or the decedent) was riding].

12. As a further proximate result of the defendants' having sold and served alcoholic beverages to the minor, the minor's intoxication, and the collision as herein alleged, _____ [plaintiff or the decedent] was _____ [specify result of collision and injuries, e.g., thrown from the vehicle in which he/she was riding, thereby sustaining serious and permanent injuries to his/her body, including broken bones, lacerations, contusions, and abrasions], _____ [all of which have caused, cause, and will continue to cause plaintiff great physical, mental, and nervous pain and suffering or from which he/she died].

13. As a further proximate result of defendants' acts, the minor's intoxication, the collision, and the injuries sustained as herein alleged, plaintiff was required to, did, and continues to incur medical and related expenses all to his/her damage.

14. As a further proximate result of defendants' acts, the minor's intoxication, the collision, and the injuries sustained by plaintiff as herein alleged, plaintiff was prevented from attending to his/her usual _____ [business or profession or occupation] as _____ [specify] _____ [specify period, e.g., from the date of the accident on _____ (date) to and including _____ (date)], all to his/her further damage.

[OR, if action is for wrongful death]

13. As a further proximate result of defendants' acts, the minor's intoxication, the collision, and the death of the decedent as herein alleged, _____ [plaintiff(s) or the entitled person(s) on whose behalf this action is brought] [, and each of them,] has/have been deprived of the decedent's support, services, society, comfort, love, and attention, all to his/her/their general damage.

14. As a further proximate result of defendants' acts, the minor's intoxication, the collision, and the death of the decedent as herein alleged, _____ [plaintiff(s) or the entitled person(s) on whose behalf this action is brought] has/have incurred funeral and burial expenses to his/her/their further damage.

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff(s) pray(s) for judgment as follows:

1. For general damages according to proof.

2. For medical and related expenses according to proof.

[3. For loss of earnings according to proof.]

[4. For funeral and burial expenses according to proof.]

[5. For punitive damages.]

6. For costs of suit herein incurred.

7. For such other and further relief as the court may deem just.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in an action for damages against a defendant or defendants who sold, or caused to be sold, alcoholic beverages to an obviously intoxicated minor when the sale proximately caused injury to the plaintiff or, in a wrongful death action, the death of the decedent. For further discussion relating to the furnishing of alcoholic beverages to an obviously intoxicated minor, see § 19.12.

The form may be modified for use when the alcohol was furnished or given or caused to be furnished or given, rather than sold, to an obviously intoxicated minor [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1; see also § 19.11 3]:

- By a person licensed or required to be licensed by the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, or

- By a person authorized by the federal government to sell alcoholic beverages on a military base or other federal enclave.

The fact situation illustrated in this form is an automobile accident. Liability is not limited to automobile accidents, however, but is imposed whenever personal injury or death is the proximate result of a person's having supplied alcoholic beverages to an obviously intoxicated minor as provided in Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1.

When the plaintiff is a minor, a guardian ad litem will have to be appointed for the purposes of the action, unless the minor already has a guardian [see Code Civ. Proc. § 372]. For discussion and forms relating to appointment of a guardian ad litem generally, see Ch. 291, Guardians ad Litem .

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- For use in a personal injury action, the capacity and residence of the individual plaintiff, which, although not required, is frequently included to identify the plaintiff at the beginning of the complaint (first Paragraph 1); or, alternatively, for use in a wrongful death action, the basis for plaintiff's entitlement to bring the action (second Paragraph 1) [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60 (permitting decedent's surviving spouse, domestic partner, children, and issue of deceased children to bring action without qualification and permitting others to bring action under specified circumstances); see Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions for alternative forms of allegations establishing standing to bring wrongful death action];

- The status of the defendant as a person licensed by the California State Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, giving rise to the statutory duty not to sell alcoholic beverages to a person under the age of 21 [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 25602.1, 25658(a)] (Paragraph 2);

- The identity of the person who actually sold the alcohol to the minor if not the licensee, and his or her relationship to the licensee (Paragraph 3) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1];

- The status of the purchaser of the alcoholic beverages as a minor (Paragraph 4) [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 25602.1, 25658(a)];

- Fictitiously named defendants (Paragraph 5) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 474];

- The sale of alcoholic beverages to the minor when the minor was obviously intoxicated, giving rise to civil liability for personal injuries or death proximately resulting from that breach (Paragraph 6) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1; Civ. Code § 3333];

- Defendants' knowledge of facts that made their breach of duty conduct carried on in conscious disregard of the rights or safety of others, constituting the basis of a claim for punitive damages (Paragraph 7) [see Civ. Code § 3294(c)(1)];

- Proximate cause (Paragraphs 8, 9, and 11-14) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1; Civ. Code § 3333]; and

- Plaintiff's or the decedent's location within the zone of danger created by defendants' breach of duty (Paragraph 10).

The complaint also alleges plaintiff's injuries or the death of the decedent (Paragraph 12) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1; Civ. Code §§ 3282, 3333] and damages (Paragraph 12-14) [Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3333].

[4] Alleging Amounts Claimed

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual damages demanded [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)]. No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought [Civ. Code § 3295(e); Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)]. Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

For forms and procedure for use in requesting notice of the specific amount sought, see Ch. 177, Damages .

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Other Causes of Action

[a] Joinder of Minor as Party Defendant

The intoxicated minor may be joined as a party defendant in the same complaint as the action against the seller of the alcoholic beverages [see Fam. Code § 6600; Code Civ. Proc. § 379; Strang v. Cabrol (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 720, 725-726, 209 Cal. Rptr. 347, 691 P.2d 1013 (consumption of alcoholic beverages is proximate cause of injuries resulting from intoxication)]. If this is done, the cause of action alleged in the form should be titled First Cause of Action, and a Second Cause of Action added to state a cause for relief against the minor. Punitive damages might also be recovered in that action.

Other persons who might be joined in an action against the minor include:

- The minor's parents or guardian [see Veh. Code § 17708].
- The owner if other than the minor of the car the minor was driving [see Veh. Code § 17154].
- Any person who signed for the minor's driver's license, except specified public entities, officers, and workers [Veh. Code § 17707].

For discussion of above persons or others who might be joined, see Ch. 83, Automobiles: Bringing the Action, § 83.12.

[b] Survival Action

A survival action under Code Civ. Proc. § 377.30 may be joined with a wrongful death action under Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60 arising out of the same wrongful act or neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.62(a)]. For discussion, procedure, and forms, see Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions .

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use by a plaintiff to bring an action for damages against a defendant or defendants who have undertaken to render a service to another, such as to a patron, to whom the defendant has sold, furnished, or given alcoholic beverages, under circumstances in which the defendant should have recognized that the services were necessary for the protection of a third person, the defendant was negligent in the performance of that undertaking, and the negligence resulted in injury to the plaintiff or the death of the plaintiff's decedent. For further discussion relating to liability based on a voluntary assumption of duty or special relationship, see § 19.15 4 .

The fact situation illustrated in the form involves an automobile accident, and was adapted from the facts in Williams v. Saga Enterprises, Inc. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 142, 274 Cal. Rptr. 901 . The allegations are based on the principles stated in Restatement (Second) of Torts § 324A. Counsel should note, however, that liability would not be limited to automobile accidents, and may be imposed under other circumstances.

The complaint in 1 , above, alleges that:

- The defendant seller of alcoholic beverages has undertaken, gratuitously or for consideration, to render services to another that he or she should recognize as necessary for the protection of a third person or his or her things (Paragraph 4);

- The seller failed to exercise reasonable care to protect the undertaking (Paragraph 5);

- Either the seller's failure to exercise reasonable care increased the risk of harm of physical injuries to the third person, the seller has undertaken to perform a duty owed by the other to the third person, or the harm is suffered because of reliance of the other or the third person on the undertaking (Alternative Paragraphs 6); and

- The seller's failure to exercise reasonable care was the proximate cause of the third-person plaintiff's or decedent's physical injuries (Paragraphs 7-9).

For discussion of allegations relating to damages and verification in a personal injury or wrongful death action, see the discussion in § 19.75 4 and 5 , respectively.

§ 19.77 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for Personal Injuries--By Patron Against Tavern Proprietor for Negligence [Civ. Code § 1714] in Failing to Protect Plaintiff From Intoxicated and Dangerous Patron on Premises (First Cause of Action)--And Against Intoxicated Patron for Assault and Battery (Second Cause of Action)

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for Personal Injuries--By Patron Against Tavern Proprietor for Negligence [Civ. Code § 1714] in Failing to Protect Plaintiff From Intoxicated and Dangerous Patron on Premises (First Cause of Action)--And Against Intoxicated Patron for Assault and Battery (Second Cause of Action)

[Caption. See § 19.75 1 .]

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION
(Negligence)

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____ [name of proprietor] is, and at all times mentioned was, the owner and proprietor of a tavern known as _____ [name of tavern], located in _____ County, California, and engaged in the business of selling alcoholic beverages to the general public therein.

2. [Fictitious name and agency allegations, if appropriate. See §§ 19.75 1 , Paragraph 5, 19.76 1 , Paragraph 3].

3. Defendant knew, or in the exercise of ordinary care should have known, that _____ [name of person who injured plaintiff] was a person of violent, vicious, and dangerous character and disposition while intoxicated, and a person whose presence in defendant's tavern while intoxicated would be a danger and hazard to the tavern's patrons, including plaintiff. Given this knowledge, defendant _____ [name of tavern proprietor] had a duty to protect other patrons from that danger.

4. On or about _____ [date], while plaintiff was present in defendant's tavern as a patron, defendant _____ [name of tavern proprietor] negligently owned, operated, controlled, managed, and maintained those premises by permitting _____ [name of person who injured plaintiff] to enter the premises while in an obviously intoxicated condition, to remain on the premises, and _____ [specify conduct that injured plaintiff, e.g., to attack, assault, batter, and stab plaintiff in a brutal and unprovoked manner]. Defendant _____ [name of tavern proprietor] failed to warn or take appropriate action to protect the tavern's patrons, including plaintiff, from the assaultive conduct of _____ [name of person who injured plaintiff], and failed to provide those patrons with a safe environment.

5. As a proximate result of defendant's negligence, plaintiff _____ [specify injuries and/or damages, e.g., was beaten and stabbed, sustaining bodily injuries and shock and injury to his/her nervous system that have caused, and continue to cause, him/her great mental and physical pain and suffering]. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and on this information and belief alleges that these injuries will result in permanent disability to him/her.] As a result of these injuries, plaintiff has suffered general damages in an amount according to proof.

6. As a further proximate result of defendant's negligence, plaintiff has incurred [, and will continue to incur,] medical and related expenses in an amount according to proof.

7. As a further proximate result of defendant's negligence, plaintiff's earning capacity has been greatly impaired, both in the past and present, in an amount according to proof.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION
(Assault and Battery)

8. Plaintiff refers to and herein incorporates Paragraphs 1, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7 of his/her First Cause of Action.

9. On _____ [date], at _____ [name of tavern] in _____ County, California, defendant _____ [name of patron who injured plaintiff] _____ [state all acts of defendant that placed plaintiff in fear of a harmful or offensive contact, e.g., threatened to strike plaintiff, drew a knife from his coat pocket, and threatened to kill plaintiff].

10. In acting as alleged above, defendant _____ [name of patron who injured plaintiff] intended to place plaintiff in apprehension of _____ [a harmful or an offensive] contact with plaintiff's person.

11. As a result of the acts of defendant _____ [name of patron who injured plaintiff] as alleged above, plaintiff was, in fact, placed in great apprehension of _____ [a harmful or an offensive] contact with his/her person.

12. Immediately thereafter, defendant _____ [name of patron who injured plaintiff] _____ [state all acts of defendant that constituted a harmful or offensive contact with plaintiff, e.g., struck plaintiff with his fists, and then stabbed plaintiff in the chest].

13. In acting as alleged above, defendant _____ [name of patron who injured plaintiff] acted with the intent to make a contact with plaintiff's person.

14. At no time did plaintiff consent to any of the acts of defendant _____ [name of patron who injured plaintiff] alleged above.

15. The aforementioned conduct of defendant _____ [name of patron who injured plaintiff] was willful and malicious and was intended to oppress and cause injury to plaintiff, in conscious disregard of plaintiff's rights, thereby warranting an assessment of punitive damages in an amount appropriate to punish defendants and deter others from engaging in similar misconduct.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. Against defendants, and each of them, for general damages;

2. Against defendants, and each of them, for medical and related expense;

3. Against defendants, and each of them, for loss of earnings;

4. Against defendant _____ [name of defendant who injured plaintiff], for punitive damages.

5. Against defendants, and each of them, for costs of suit incurred herein;

6. Against defendants, and each of them, for such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for negligence and assault and battery. The complaint is for use in an action by a tavern patron against both the tavern's proprietor and an intoxicated patron for personal injuries resulting from the intoxicated patron's assault on plaintiff.

For discussion relating to a duty of a seller of alcoholic beverages to maintain safe premises, see § 19.15 2 .

[3] Allegations

The first cause of action, negligence, is against the tavern's proprietor and alleges:

- That plaintiff was a patron of defendant proprietor's tavern (Paragraph 1);

- That defendant proprietor knew or should have known of the intoxicated patron's dangerous character (Paragraph 3);

- That defendant negligently operated the tavern by permitting the intoxicated patron to enter the premises in an intoxicated condition, to remain on the premises, and to attack plaintiff, without warning or taking appropriate steps to protect plaintiff, and by failing to provide a safe environment for the tavern's patrons (Paragraph 4); and

- That plaintiff suffered injuries and damages as a proximate result of that negligence (Paragraphs 5, 6, and 7).

The second cause of action, assault and battery, is against the intoxicated patron and alleges:

- Defendant's acts that constituted an assault, that is, the acts that placed plaintiff in apprehension of a harmful or offensive contact (Paragraph 9);

- Defendant's intent to cause the apprehension (Paragraph 10);

- Plaintiff's actually feeling apprehension (Paragraph 11);

- Defendant's acts that constituted a battery, that is, the acts of harmful or offensive contact (Paragraph 12);

- Defendant's intent to actually make the contact (Paragraph 13);

- Plaintiff's lack of consent to defendant's acts (Paragraph 14); and

- The willfulness and maliciousness of defendant's conduct entitling plaintiff to punitive damages (Paragraph 15).

PRACTICE POINT: Insurance Considerations in Alleging Intentional Torts. Counsel should remember that, in cases in which a defendant's assets are primarily insurance coverage, allegations that defendant intentionally injured plaintiff are likely to preclude insurance coverage, under Ins. Code § 533. In such a case, counsel may wish to allege negligence in addition to, or instead of, intent to injure plaintiff, in order to preclude the possibility of obtaining a larger judgment that is unlikely to be collectable. Practice Point by Professor Neil Levy

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115], see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments .

A. Civil Liability for Acts of Intoxicated Persons

3-19 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 19.90

§ 19.90 Affirmative Defense to Action on Contract

[1] Incapacity to Contract Due to Intoxication

[a] FORM Affirmative Defense to Action on Contract--Incapacity to Contract Due to Intoxication

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state to THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that the time defendant signed and executed the contract sued on in this action, defendant was intoxicated from the use of alcoholic beverages to such an extent that [his reason was impaired and] he/she was of unsound mind and unable to understand the nature or consequences of his act.

[b] Use of Form

The allegation in a , above, states, as an affirmative defense [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)] to an action on a written contract, that defendant was incapacitated at the time he or she executed the contract due to intoxication [see Guidici v. Guidici (1935) 2 Cal. 2d 497, 502, 41 P.2d 932] . If defendant was "not entirely without understanding" at the time he or she executed the contract, he or she may rescind it [see Civ. Code § 39] and plead that rescission as an affirmative defense [for such a form see Ch. 140, Contracts . When, as alleged in the form in a , above, he or she was unable to understand the nature or quality of his or her act and does not seek affirmative relief, rescission need not be pleaded as a necessary element of the defense [see Mundorff v. Ramm (1924) 66 Cal. App. 553, 566-567, 226 P. 820] .

For further discussion relating to an intoxicated person's capacity to contract, see § 19.15.

[2] Alternative Form

[a] FORM Affirmative Defense to Action on Contract--Alternative Form

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND)

CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that prior to and at the time of the making and delivery of the contract alleged in the complaint, defendant was under the influence of intoxicating liquors to such an extent as to make him/her mentally incompetent and of unsound mind, and by reason thereof he/she was unable to understand the nature or quality of his act and was incapable of making or executing that contract.

When appropriate, the form of affirmative defense in a , above may be used in lieu of the form in 1 a , above.

Plaintiff(s) allege(s):

1. Plaintiff is a citizen of the State of California residing in _____ County, California.

2. Defendant is _____ [allege capacity, e.g., a domestic corporation] engaged in the business of selling and furnishing alcoholic beverages and liquors to the general public and maintains, owns, and operates a building and place [known as the _____ (name)] that is located in _____ County at _____ [address].

3. [Fictitious name and agency allegations, if appropriate. See §§ 19.75 1 , Paragraph 5, 19.76 1 , Paragraph 3].

4. Defendant, through its agents and employees, is maintaining that building and place as a nuisance, as defined by Section 11200 of the Penal Code, by unlawfully _____ [selling or serving or giving away or any combination of these] spirituous, vinous, malt, or other alcoholic liquor in that _____ [set forth unlawful acts].

5. [On or about _____ (date), which was (more than) two weeks prior to filing this complaint, plaintiff served, and defendant received, written notice signed by plaintiff of the existence of that nuisance demanding that it be discontinued. Despite that notice defendant maintained and continues to maintain the nuisance in the same manner and fashion described herein. A copy of the notice is attached hereto as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For an order requiring defendant to show cause, if any he/she has, why he/she should not be enjoined as hereinafter set forth, during the pendency of this action.

2. For [a temporary writ of injunction and] a permanent injunction, all enjoining defendant, his or her agents, servants, and employees, and all persons acting under, in concert with, or for him or her from _____ [set forth unlawful acts to be enjoined with clarity and detail].

3. For costs of suit herein incurred.

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in an action to enjoin unlawful selling or serving of liquor as a nuisance under the Unlawful Liquor Sale Abatement Law [Penal Code § 11200 et seq.].

For further discussion relating to the abatement of unlawful liquor sales, see § 19.30 et seq.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges that:

- Plaintiff is a citizen of the state and resident of the county in which the nuisance is maintained (Paragraph 1) [see Penal Code § 11201 (who may bring action)];

- The unlawful selling of liquor by defendant constituting a nuisance within the meaning set forth in Penal Code § 11200 (Paragraph 4) [see Penal Code § 11200]; and

- Defendant received written notice of the existence of the nuisance, signed by plaintiff, at least two weeks prior to filing of the complaint, to support a request for a temporary writ of injunction (Paragraph 5) [see Penal Code § 11202; see also Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Locker (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 381, 385, 181 Cal. Rptr. 55 (required two-week notice is of the existence of the nuisance, not of the proceeding; formal notice was not required where defendanta had actual notice)].

[4] Verification and Separate Declaration

The complaint must be verified [Penal Code § 11201]. Unless the complaint sets forth evidentiary facts to justify issuing a temporary writ ofinjunction, plaintiff should set forth those facts in a separate affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury executed in California) that may be served and filed with the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5; Penal Code § 11202].

[5] Written Undertaking

If the temporary writ of injunction is granted, the court or judge must require an undertaking on the part of the applicant to the effect that the applicant will pay to the party enjoined those damages, not exceeding an amount to be specified, as the opposing party may sustain by reason of the injunction, if the court finally decides that the applicant was not entitled thereto [Penal Code § 11202].

If Penal Code § 11202 is construed as authorizing issuance of the temporary writ of injunction without notice to, and opportunity to be heard by, the defendant [see In re Brambini (1923) 192 Cal. 19, 25-26, 218 P. 569] , it may be held to violate the requirements of procedural due process [see, e.g., Blair v. Pitchess (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 258, 276-277, 96 Cal. Rptr. 42, 486 P.2d 1242 (provisional remedy of claim and delivery held unconstitutional absent probable cause, notice, and hearing); Randone v. Appellate Dep't of Superior Court (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 536, 541, 96 Cal. Rptr. 709, 488 P.2d 13 (prejudgment attachment held unconstitutional as violating procedural due process)].

The procedure for execution and filing of undertakings is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 995.310 et seq., and is discussed in Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

Chapter 20 ALLEGATIONS COMMONLY USED
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

3-20 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 20.12

§ 20.12 Fictitiously Named Defendants

[1] Suing Defendants by Fictitious Names Authorized

When the plaintiff is ignorant of the name of a defendant, the plaintiff must state that fact in the complaint, or the affidavit if the action is commenced by affidavit [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 116.320 (claim under oath in small claims court); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (use of declarations in lieu of affidavits)], and that defendant may be designated in any pleading or proceeding by any name. When the defendant's true name is discovered, the pleading or proceeding must be amended accordingly [Code Civ. Proc. § 474]. The most commonly used name is Doe.

For forms of Doe allegations, see §§ 20.30 -20.33.

[2] Purpose of Fictitious Defendant Allegations

[a] Commencing Action to Stop Statute of Limitations

The purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 474 [see [1], above] is to enable a plaintiff who is ignorant of the true name of a defendant to bring an action against that defendant before it is barred by the statute of limitations [Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Insurance Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 596, 602, 15 Cal. Rptr. 817, 364 P.2d 681 ; see Smeltzley v. Nicholson Mfg. Co. (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 932, 939 n.1, 136 Cal. Rptr. 269, 559 P.2d 624 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 350 (action is commenced when complaint is filed); Stephens v. Berry (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 474, 477, 57 Cal. Rptr. 505] . If the defendant's name is not discovered until after thestatute of limitations has expired, the plaintiff's amended complaint naming the defendant may "relate back" to the time the original complaint was filed so as to avoid the bar of the statute of limitations if the requirements of the doctrine of relation back are satisfied [see Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Insurance Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 596, 599, 15 Cal. Rptr. 817, 364 P.2d 681 ; for discussion of relation back, see Ch. 21, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings].

In an action under the Medical Injury Compensation Reform Act of 1975 (MICRA), giving the required Code Civ. Proc. § 364(d) and (e) 90 days notice of intent to commence a medical malpractice action to only known potential defendants serves to extend the statute of limitations for commencing an action against both the known defendants and unknown defendants designated in the action as "Does." In this regard, Code Civ. Proc. § 364 is read together with Code Civ. Proc. § 474, to provide this workable and common-sense rule [Camarillo v. Vaage (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 552, 562-570, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 26] .

When a named defendant is substituted for a Doe defendant before the statute of limitations has expired, Code Civ. Proc. § 474 analysis is irrelevant [see Davis v. Marin (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 380, 386-387, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 896] .

[b] Statement of Cause of Action Against Fictitious Defendants Is Necessary

If a defendant is designated by a fictitious name in a complaint and no attempt is made to state any cause of action against him or her, the statute of limitations is not tolled as to that defendant [Williams v. Goodman (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 856, 861, 29 Cal. Rptr. 877] . If the complaint merely alleges plaintiff's ignorance of the true names of fictitiously named defendants without including them in any way in the charging allegations, any attempt to assert a cause of action by amendment against such a defendant will fail if the amended complaint is filed after the statute of limitations has expired [Williams v. Goodman (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 856, 861-862, 29 Cal. Rptr. 877 ; Kolodziejski v. Hover (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 731, 732-733, 269 P.2d 163] .

However, a charging allegation in a complaint that refers to "defendants" in the plural necessarily includes fictitiously named defendants, and amendment is permitted to state a new theory of liability based on those facts alleged in the original complaint [see Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Insurance Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 596, 598-603, 15 Cal. Rptr. 817, 364 P.2d 681 ; Breceda v. Gamsby (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 167, 173-179, 72 Cal. Rptr. 832 ; Garrett v. Crown Coach Corp. (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 647, 650-651, 66 Cal. Rptr. 590 ; Mishalow v. Horwald (1964) 231 Cal. App. 2d 517, 520, 41 Cal. Rptr. 895 ; Johnson v. Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 133, 136-139, 30 Cal. Rptr. 650] .

[a] Identity of Defendant or Existence of Cause of Action

Code Civ. Proc. § 474 [see [1], above] states that when a plaintiff is "ignorant of the name" of a defendant, that defendant may be sued by a fictitious name. This phrase has been liberally construed so that even though a plaintiff knows the true name of another, the plaintiff is still ignorant of the name within the meaning of Section 474 if he or she lacks knowledge of facts necessary to state a cause of action against that person [General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 580, 593-594, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 871 ; Mishalow v. Horwald (1964) 231 Cal. App. 2d 517, 521-522, 41 Cal. Rptr. 895] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Lack of Knowledge of Cause of Action. Plaintiffs bring an action for wrongful death against three doctors who treated their son. The medical malpractice complaint names Drs. A, B, and C, plus Does, and charges that negligent delay in operating caused death during surgery. The complaint does not name the attending anesthesiologist, Dr. D, whose name is known to the plaintiffs. Nothing in the facts known when the complaint was filed revealed any cause other than delay in performing the surgery. After the statute of limitations has run, plaintiff's counsel discovers that the cause of death may have been respiratory arrest during surgery. May the anesthesiologist be served as Doe I? Yes. Even though Dr. D's name was known, there was nothing in the information available when the complaint was served to indicate that the anesthesiologist may have been negligent in treating a respiratory arrest during the surgery [see Mishalow v. Horwald (1964) 231 Cal. App. 2d 517, 41 Cal. Rptr. 895] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 474 also allows the designation of a defendant by a fictitious name in a situation where plaintiff knew the defendant's true name and knew all of the facts giving rise to a cause of action against the defendant, but was unaware at the time of filing that the cause of action existed [Johnson v. Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 133, 136-139, 30 Cal. Rptr. 650] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Later Discovery of Cause of Action. Plaintiff is injured in an automobile accident. He sues the manufacturers of the car and tires in federal court based on negligent testing and manufacture of a wheel and tire. He subsequently files an action in California superior court for breach of warranty against the dealer from which he bought the car and Does one to ten. Plaintiff's attorney later becomes aware, through decisions and text writings that were not available when the complaint was filed that the plaintiff has a cause of action for breach of warranty against the manufacturers. Canthe manufacturers be served as Does one and two? Yes. Even though the plaintiff was aware of the identity of the manufacturers, he was unaware of the existence of the cause of action, and they could properly be sued and served as fictitious defendants [Johnson v. Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 133, 136-139, 30 Cal. Rptr. 650] . In this particular case, the trial court had granted the manufacturer's motion to quash on the ground that the manufacturer's names were known to the plaintiff, and court of appeal. The court of appeal specifically noted that it was not concerned with the statute of limitations [Johnson v. Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 133, 134 n.1, 30 Cal. Rptr. 650] .

This broad interpretation of the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 474 is based on the modern rule of relation back with respect to an amended complaint [see Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Insurance Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 596, 600-603, 15 Cal. Rptr. 817, 364 P.2d 681] . The rule is that an amendment relates back when recovery is sought on the same general set of facts as those alleged in the original complaint, which is in accordance with the basic principle of code pleading that a litigant need only allege the facts warranting recovery [Smeltzley v. Nicholson Mfg. Co. (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 932, 940, 136 Cal. Rptr. 269, 559 P.2d 624 ; Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Insurance Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 596, 601, 15 Cal. Rptr. 817, 364 P.2d 681 ; see also Breceda v. Gamsby (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 167, 173, 179, 72 Cal. Rptr. 832] .

Plaintiff's ignorance of defendant's identity is measured as of the time the complaint is filed [Streicher v. Tommy's Electric Co. (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 876, 882, 211 Cal. Rptr. 22 ; Mishalow v. Horwald (1964) 231 Cal. App. 2d 517, 522, 41 Cal. Rptr. 895] .

[c] Genuine Ignorance Required; No Duty of Diligence

Plaintiff's ignorance of the identity of a fictitiously named defendant must be genuine, and that fact must be clearly stated in the complaint [Streicher v. Tommy's Electric Co. (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 876, 882, 211 Cal. Rptr. 22 ; Nissan v. Barton (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 76, 79-81, 84 Cal. Rptr. 36] .

Ignorance of the facts is the critical issue; whether the ignorance results from misinformation or negligence is not relevant [General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 580, 592-594, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 871 ; Balon v. Drost (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 483, 488, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12] . Code Civ. Proc. § 474 imposes no duty of inquiry. The pivotal question is "did plaintiff know of facts?" not "did plaintiff know or believe that plaintiff had a cause of action based on those facts?" To defeat a claim of ignorance, it must be shown that the plaintiff had actual knowledge of the basic facts [General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 580, 594,55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 871 ; see also Woo v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 169, 179-180, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20 (Fourth Dist., Div. One; criticizing Balon; plaintiff who forgot defendant's identity required to resort to readily available information)].

Because a plaintiff has no duty to exercise even reasonable diligence to discover a defendant's name, a plaintiff may act unreasonably in failing to ascertain a defendant's name and still claim the benefit of Section 474 [General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 580, 592, 596, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 871 (no duty imposed on plaintiff to search for facts the plaintiff does not actually have at time plaintiff files original pleadings); Balon v. Drost (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 483, 488-489, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12 (plaintiff could substitute named defendant for Doe defendant when she had lost paper with driver's name on it and forgot name)]. Thus, the fact that the plaintiff has means of discovering the defendant's identity and does not do so, does not in and of itself bar application of Code Civ. Proc. § 474 [Garrett v. Crown Coach Corp. (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 647, 650, 66 Cal. Rptr. 590 ; see General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 580, 592, 596, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 871] .

The courts of appeal are split on the extent of the duty of a plaintiff who knew, but forgot, the defendant's identity.

Under one view, unless the evidence demonstrates that the plaintiff willfully or intentionally misused Section 474, a plaintiff's failure to inquire as to the defendant's name or identity will not bar the statute's application [see Balon v. Drost (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 483, 488-490, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12 (First Dist., Div. Two; forgetting name reflected negligence, not willful or intentional misuse; attorney moved promptly to obtain name and amend complaint)]. Balon criticized dicta in Schroeter v. Lowers (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 695, 67 Cal. Rptr. 270 , which would require a plaintiff to resort to easily accessible information, as being contrary to controlling Supreme Court authority in Irving v. Carpentier (1886) 70 Cal. 23, 26, 11 P. 391 [Balon v. Drost (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 483, 488, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12 ; but see dissenting opinion in Balon, arguing that Irving is consistent with requiring plaintiff to resort to readily accessible information].

Under the other view, the plaintiff must at least review readily available information likely to refresh his or her memory to use the Code Civ. Proc. § 474 relation back doctrine to avoid the bar of the statute of limitations. If the defendant cannot be identified from readily available information, section 474 is available [Woo v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 169, 180, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20 (Fourth Dist., Div. One; plaintiff was not entitled to amend complaint after statute of limitations had run; under circumstances, there was no good faith, bona fide ignorance as required by Section 474)]. Woo criticized and declined to follow Balon as establishing an undesirable rule, and suggested that a rule requiring a plaintiff who knew but forgot a defendant's identity to review readily available information that discloses the defendant's identity is not inconsistetnt with casesimposing no duty of inquiry on plaintiffs who never knew the defendant's identity and assures plaintiff's good faith [Woo v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 169, 180, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 474 does not require the plaintiff to exercise reasonable diligence after filing the complaint to discover the true identity of fictitiously designated defendants or of facts giving rise to a cause of action against those defendants [Streicher v. Tommy's Electric Co. (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 876, 883, 211 Cal. Rptr. 22] .

[4] Default

No default or default judgment may be entered against a defendant sued under a fictitious name, unless it appears that the copy of the summons or other process, or, if there be no summons or process, the copy of the first pleading or notice served on that defendant, bore on the face thereof a notice stating in substance: "To the person served: You are hereby served in the within action (or proceedings) as (or on behalf of) the person sued under the fictitious name of (designating it)" [Code Civ. Proc. § 474]. The form of summons used in California is intended to facilitate compliance with the § 474 notice requirement by providing a checkbox with which the serving party can indicate that the recipient is being served as a person sued under a fictitious name, with the name to be written on the form at that point [Carol Gilbert, Inc. v. Haller (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 852, 858, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 843] .

(process is means whereby court compels compliance with its demands)]. The function of the phrase "or other process" in § 474 is to address situations in which the defendant is served with an instrument, other than a summons, by which the court commands some action. The statute embraces a third situation, i.e., when the paper served is neither a writ nor a summons, but the operation of that phrase is limited to situations in which "no summons or process" is served. When a writ or summons is served, the notice must appear in that document, and its appearance in some other document will not comply with the statute [Carol Gilbert, Inc. v. Haller (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 852, 859, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 843] .

A summons completely lacking the required notice cannot be found to substantially comply with the statutory notice requirement [Carol Gilbert, Inc. v. Haller (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 852, 862-866, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 843] . A finding of substantial compliance requires three preconditions [Carol Gilbert, Inc. v. Haller (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 852, 865-866, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 843] :

- There must have been some degree of compliance with the offended statutory requirements.

- The objective nature and circumstances of the attempted service must have made it highly probable that it would impart the same notice as full compliance.

- It must in fact have imparted notice, or at least sufficient notice to put the defendant on the defense. It is not enough that the process inform the defendant of the fact of a lawsuit, or even of a lawsuit in which defendant's name appears. Due process requires notice of "the duty to defend."

The certificate or affidavit (or declaration under penalty or perjury executed in California [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) of service must state the fictitious name under which the person was served and the fact that notice of identity was given by endorsement on the document served as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 474.

These requirements for entry of a default or default judgment apply only to defendants sued by fictitious names designated pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 474 and not to a defendant sued by an erroneous name; nor do they apply to entry of a default or default judgment based on service, in the manner otherwise provided by law, of an amended pleading, process, or notice designating defendant by his or her true name [Code Civ. Proc. § 474].

[1] Ignorance of Identity or of Liability of Fictitious Defendant

Code Civ. Proc. § 474 is to be liberally construed; even though plaintiff knows existence of defendant sued by fictitious name and defendant's actual identity (his or her name), plaintiff is "ignorant" within meaning of statute if he or she lacks knowledge of that person's connection with case or with his or her injuries; ignorance of facts giving rise to cause of action is the ignorance required by section 474 and pivotal question is "did plaintiff know of facts?" not "did plaintiff know or believe that plaintiff had a cause of action based on those facts?" General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 580, 593-594, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 871

Code Civ. Proc. § 474 only allows substitution of named defendants for fictitious defendants when plaintiff was unaware of named defendant's identity or of facts giving rise to cause of action prior to filing complaint. Optical Surplus, Inc. v. Superior Court (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 776, 782-784, 279 Cal. Rptr. 194

Even though identity of person is known to plaintiff at time of filing complaint, if plaintiff is ignorant of basis of liability against that person, joinder as fictitiously named defendant is proper. Oakes v. McCarthy Co. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 231, 253, 73 Cal. Rptr. 127

Plaintiff who knows true name of person is still "ignorant of his name" if plaintiff lacks knowledge of facts giving him or her cause of action against that person. Breceda v. Gamsby (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 167, 174, 72 Cal. Rptr. 832

[2] Genuineness of Plaintiff's Ignorance re Doe Defendant

Plaintiff who knew but forgot defendant's identity and did not avail herself of readily available information that would have refreshed plaintiff's recollection of defendant's identity, was not entitled to use Code Civ. Proc. § 474 to amend her complaint after statute of limitations had run; under these circumstances, there was no good faith, bona fide ignorance as required by Section 474. Woo v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 169, 180, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20 (Fourth Dist., Div. One; criticizing Balon v. Drost (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 483, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12 (First Dist., Div. Two))

No duty imposed on plaintiff under Code Civ. Proc. § 474 to go in search of facts plaintiff does not actually have at time plaintiff files original pleadings; whether ignorance from misfortune or negligence, plaintiff is ignorant alikewithin meaning of statute. General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 580, 592, 596, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 871

Failing to inquire as to defendant's name or identity is "ignorance" for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 474. Balon v. Drost (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 483, 488-490, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12

Question of plaintiff's good faith in alleging ignorance of defendant's true name is for trial court to determine. Hazel v. Hewlett (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 1458, 1465, 247 Cal. Rptr. 723

*Code Civ. Proc. § 474*does not require plaintiff to exercise reasonable diligence prior to filing complaint to discover defendant's identity or facts giving cause of action against defendant; plaintiff's ignorance is required to be real, not merely feigned. Dover v. Sadowinski (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 113, 116-118, 194 Cal. Rptr. 866

Plaintiff's genuine ignorance of defendant's identity and clear statement of that fact in complaint are mandatory requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 474. Nissan v. Barton (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 76, 79, 84 Cal. Rptr. 36

Fact that plaintiff has means of discovering defendant's identity at time complaint is filed does not necessarily bar application of Code Civ. Proc. § 474. Garrett v. Crown Coach Corp. (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 647, 650, 66 Cal. Rptr. 590

Plaintiff's willful or feigned ignorance of defendant's identity is insufficient to meet requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 474 for suing such defendant under fictitious name. Stephens v. Berry (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 474, 477, 57 Cal. Rptr. 505

Joinder of defendants by fictitious names on plaintiff's mere pretense that defendants' names are unknown does not toll running of statute of limitations as to them. Noble v. Merchants Nat. Realty Corp. (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 48, 51, 56 Cal. Rptr. 253

[3] Default

Complete absence of notice required by Code Civ. Proc. § 474 to notify defendant that he was served as person sued under specified fictitious name, because it was only marked to show service on defendant "as an individual defendant" and plaintiff failed to check box and fill in blank so as to state in substance that defendant was sued as person named in accompanying pleadings as Doe 1, was violation of Code Civ. Proc. § 474, and service of amended pleading did not serve as "process" under § 474 to satisfy requirement. Summons did not substantially comply with notice requirement, where nothing in summons hinted to defendant, let alone "made clear" to him, that summons was served on him as Doe 1, where summons made no reference to statute governing service, and where nothing in his conduct showed defendant knew summons did, or was intended to, hale him personally into court, as his very inaction, leading to entry of default judgment, suggested that he did not understand summons required him to answer on pain of adverse judgment, and, at best, question of his understanding and belief was open to doubt and dispute. Carol Gilbert, Inc. v. Haller (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 852, 858-866, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 843

§ 20.30 Fictitiously Named Defendants (Doe Allegations) [Code Civ. Proc. § 474]--General Form

[1] FORM Fictitiously Named Defendants (Doe Allegations) [Code Civ. Proc. § 474]--General Form

[EITHER]

Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as DOES 1-_____ [numeral, e.g., 50], inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by such defendants.]

[OR]

Defendants DOE 1 through DOE _____ [numeral, e.g., 50], inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names. Their true names and capacities are unknown to plaintiff. When said true names and capacities are ascertained, plaintiff will amend this complaint by inserting their true names and capacities herein. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by such defendants.]

[OR]

DOE 1 through DOE _____ [numeral, e.g., 50], inclusive, are fictitious names of defendants sued herein under the provisions of Section 474 of the Code of Civil Procedure. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by such defendants.]

[2] Use of Form

The allegations in the form in [1], above, are for use in a complaint when plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of one or more defendants and to name such defendants by fictitious names [see Code Civ. Proc. § 474].

For discussion of Doe allegations, see § 20.12.

[3] Contents of Allegation

The allegation must state plaintiff's ignorance of the defendant's true name [Code Civ. Proc. § 474; see Dieckmann v. Superior Court (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 345, 351-364 , 220 Cal. Rtpr 602 (allowing amendment of complaint to add allegation of ignorance required by Section 474); for discussion, see § 20.12 [1]]. This requirement may be satisfied by stating that the fictitiously named defendant is sued pursuant to provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 474 [Motor City Sales v. Superior Court (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 342, 347-348, 107 Cal. Rptr. 280] .

The form includes bracketed optional language which charges the fictitiously named defendants, in a general way, with responsibility for plaintiff's damages. This or similar language must be included unless the remainder of the complaint states a cause of action against all defendants, which would include the fictitiously named ones [see Breceda v. Gamsby (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 167, 171-172, 72 Cal. Rptr. 832 ; Garrett v. Crown Coach Corp. (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 647, 649, 66 Cal. Rptr. 590] . Failure to state a cause of action against the fictitiously named defendants renders the allegation ineffective to toll the statute of limitations [Williams v. Goodman (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 856, 861, 29 Cal. Rptr. 877] . For discussion, see § 20.12[2][b].

[1] FORM Fictitiously Named Defendants (Doe Allegations) [Code Civ. Proc. § 474]--Tort Action Based on Negligence

The true names or capacities, whether individual, corporate, associate, or otherwise, of defendants DOE 1 to DOE _____ [numeral, e.g., 50] are unknown to plaintiff, who therefore sues such defendants by such fictitious names, and will amend this complaint to show their true names and capacities when ascertained. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the defendants designated as a DOE is negligently responsible in some manner for the events and happenings herein referred to, and thereby proximately caused injuries and damages to the plaintiff as herein alleged.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use in a complaint for damages for injuries based on negligence where unknown defendants are to be sued by fictitious names [see Code Civ. Proc. § 474]. The purpose of the allegation is to prevent the running of the statute of limitations as to a fictitiously named defendant [see Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Insurance Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 596, 602, 15 Cal. Rptr. 817, 364 P.2d 681] .

This form is based on the fictitious name allegation in the complaint filed in Garrett v. Crown Coach Corp. (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 647, 66 Cal. Rptr. 590 .

§ 20.34 Fictitious Business Name [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17910 et seq.]--Individual as Plaintiff

[1] FORM Fictitious Business Name [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17910 et seq.]--Individual as Plaintiff
[EITHER]

At all times herein mentioned plaintiff _____[name] is and was an individual doing business under the fictitious business name of _____[name], and plaintiff has filed the statement and published the notice as required by Sections 17910 through 17917 of the Business and Professions Code.

[OR]

Plaintiff is an individual residing in [_____ (city),] _____ County, California, and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____[name]. Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Sections 17910 through 17917 of the Business and Professions Code with respect to this fictitious business name.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use when the plaintiff is an individual person transacting business under a fictitious business name and seeks to maintain an action on, or on account of, a contract made, or a transaction had, in the fictitious business name [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17910-17918].

[3] Fictitious Business Name

A "fictitious business name," in the case of an individual, is a name that does not include the surname of the individual or a name that suggests the existence of additional owners [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(b)(1)].

A name that suggests the existence of additional owners within the meaning of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(b)(1), above, is one which includes such words as "Company," "& Company," "& Son," "& Sons," "& Associates," "Brothers," and the like, but not words that merely describe the business being conducted [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(c)].

[4] Action Barred Until Statement Filed

No person transacting business under a fictitious business name, or as assignee, may maintain any action on, or on account of, any contract made, or transaction had, in the fictitious business name in any court of California until the fictitious business name statement, in the form required by Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17910-17913, has been executed [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17914], filed with the clerk of the county in which the individual has his or her principal place of business in California, or if the individualhas no place of business in California, with the clerk of Sacramento County [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17915, 17916], and published as provided in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17917 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17918].

[5] Allegation of Compliance

If the complaint shows that plaintiff does business under a fictitious business name [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17910-17918], but does not affirmatively allege compliance with the requirements of those sections, it is subject to demurrer on the ground of lack of capacity to sue pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b) [Pleaters & Stitchers Assn. v. Davis (1934) 140 Cal. App. 403, 406, 35 P.2d 401 (construing former Civ. Code § 2468, which is the predecessor statute to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17918); see also Rivers v. Beadle (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 691, 700-701, 7 Cal. Rptr. 170 (objection waived; also plaintiff found not to have been using fictitious name)].

[1] FORM Fictitious Business Name [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17910 et seq.]--Partnership or Unincorporated Association as Plaintiff

Plaintiff is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [a partnership or an unincorporated association] with its principal place of business in [_____ (city),] _____ County, California, and it has filed and published the fictitious business name statement as required by Sections 17910 through 17917 of the Business and Professions Code.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use when the plaintiff is a partnership or an unincorporated association [see Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5(a)] doing business under a fictitious business name [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900 et seq.]. It alleges plaintiff's capacity as a partnership or an unincorporated association, and its compliance with the statutory requirements for filing and publishing a fictitious business name statement [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17910-17917].

[3] Fictitious Business Name

In the case of a partnership or other association of persons, with the exceptions noted below, a fictitious business name is a name that does not include the surname of each general partner or a name that suggests the existence of additional owners [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(b)(2)].

A name that suggests the existence of additional owners within the meaning of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(b), above, is one which includes words such as "Company," "& Company," "& Son," "& Sons," "& Associates," "Brothers," and the like, but not words that merely describe the business being conducted [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(c)].

The following types of partnerships are excepted from the rule of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(b)(2) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(b)(2)]:

- A limited partnership that has filed a certificate of limited partnership with the Secretary of State pursuant to Corp. Code §§ 15621 or 15902.01.

- A foreign limited partnership that has filed an application for registration with the Secretary of State pursuant to Corp. Code §§ 15692 or 15909.02.

- A registered limited liability partnership that has filed a registration pursuant to Corp. Code § 15049 or Corp. Code § 16953.

- A foreign limited liability partnership that has filed an application for registration pursuant to Corp. Code § 15055 or Corp. Code § 16953.

In the case of a limited partnership or a foreign limited partnership, a "fictitious business name" is any name other than the name of the limited partnership as on file with the Secretary of State [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200(a)(4)]. Section 17200 does not provide a definition for what constitutes a "fictitious business name" of a limited liability partnership.

[4] Suit in Name of Partnership or Association

Any partnership or other unincorporated association, whether organized for profit or not, may sue and be sued in the name which it has assumed or by which it is known [Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5(a)].

§ 20.53 Business License--Contractor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 7031]

[1] FORM Business License--Contractor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 7031]

At all times mentioned herein, plaintiff _____[name] was a contractor duly licensed as such by the State of California.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use in an action by a licensed contractor based on an act or contract for which he or she was licensed [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 7031].

[3] Allegation and Proof of Contractor's License

No person engaged in a business or acting in the capacity of a contractor [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 7026 et seq.] may bring or maintain any action, or recover in law or equity in any action, in any court of California for the collection of compensation for the performance of any act or contract for which a license is required by Bus. & Prof. Code § 7000 et seq. without alleging that he or she was a duly licensed contractor at all times during the performance of that act or contract. This requirement does not apply to contractors who are each individually licensed but who fail to comply with the joint venture licensing requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code § 7029 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 7031(a); see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 7031(d) (proof of licensure if controverted); see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 143 (pleading and proof requirement of any license required by Business and Professions Code)].

Bus. & Prof. Code § 7031(e), (f) limits application of the judicial doctrine of substantial performance to the requirements of Section 7031. For discussion, see Ch. 104, Building Contracts, § 104.90 et seq.

§ 20.55 Agency--Generally

[1] FORM Agency--Generally
[EITHER to allege all defendants are agents of their codefendants]

[Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that] at all times herein mentioned each of the defendants was the agent and employee of each of the remaining defendants, and in doing the things alleged below, was acting within the scope of such agency.

[OR to allege that multiple defendants were agents of their codefendants]

[Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that] at all times herein mentioned defendants _____[names of agents] were the agents, servants, and employees of their codefendants, and [in doing the things alleged below] were acting in the scope of their authority as such agents, servants, and employees with the permission and consent of their codefendants].

[OR to allege specific defendant was agent of another defendant]

[Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that] at all times herein mentioned defendant _____[name of agent] was the agent of defendant _____[name of principal], and [in doing the things alleged below] was acting in the scope of such agency and with the permission and consent of his/her codefendant].

[OR alternative to allege specific defendant was agent of another defendant]

[Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that] at all times herein mentioned defendant _____[name of agent] was authorized and empowered by defendant _____[name of principal] to act and did act as the agent of defendant_____[name of principal], and each and all of the things herein alleged to have been done by him/her were done in the capacity of and as agent for defendant _____[name of principal].

[2] Use of Form

The alternative allegations in the form in [1], above, are for use to allege agency between or among defendants to an action. The first alternative, by broadly alleging the agency of all defendants for their codefendants, would extend to fictitiously named defendants [for allegations naming Doe defendants, see §§ 20.30 -20.33, for an allegations specifically alleging the agency of Doe defendants, see § 20.56].

[3] Sufficiency of Allegation

A general allegation that defendants were agents and employees of their codefendants is a sufficient allegation of actual agency to withstand general demurrer [Meyer v. Graphic Arts International Union (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 176, 178, 151 Cal. Rptr. 597] . An allegation of agency in terms of "scope of employment" and "line of employment" constitutes conclusions of fact, but is sufficient to allow admission of evidence supporting the issue [May v. Farrell (1928) 94 Cal. App. 703, 707-708, 271 P. 789] .

Chapter 21 AMENDED AND SUPPLEMENTAL PLEADINGS
PART I. SCOPE

§ 21.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses amended and supplemental pleadings. It covers the procedure for drafting, serving, and filing amended and supplemental pleadings.

Forms relating to amended pleadings include the following:

- An amended pleading [see § 21.60].
- Amendments to pleadings [see §§ 21.61 -21.69].
- Stipulations [see §§ 21.70 -21.75].
- An ex parte motion [see § 21.76] and notices of motion to amend [see §§ 21.77, 21.78, 21.84], with supporting declarations [see §§ 21.79 -21.82] and orders [see §§ 21.83, 21.85].

Forms relating to supplemental pleadings include the following:

- A skeletal example of the format of a supplemental complaint [see § 21.90].
- A stipulation to allow filing of a supplemental pleading [see § 21.91].
- A notice of motion with supporting declaration [see § 21.92], and order [see § 21.93] for leave to file supplemental pleadings generally.

Forms relating to supplemental pleadings in connection with substituting parties are also included. They are:

- Notices of motion [see §§ 21.100, 21.103 -21.105], supporting declarations [see §§ 21.101, 21.102, 21.106], and an order [see § 21.107] to substitute a personal representative or successor in interest for a deceased party, and a related form of supplemental complaint [see § 21.108].

- A notice of motion and supporting declaration [see § 21.109] and order [see § 21.110] to substitute a personal representative for an incompetent party.

- A notice of motion and supporting declaration [see § 21.112] and an order [see § 21.113] to substitute an assignee or other successor in interest in an action or proceeding.

Forms of notice of motion [see § 21.94] and order [see § 21.95] to strike a portion of a supplemental pleading are also provided.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 21.10 Governing Statutes

Amendment of pleadings as a matter of course is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 472. Amendment of pleadings after a demurrer or motion to strike has been sustained is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 472a. Amendments of pleadings in the furtherance of justice and on any terms as the court may deem proper are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473(a) and 576, and amendments to substitute a true name for a fictitious name by Code Civ. Proc. § 474.

Filing, service, and response to amended complaints and amended answers are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 471.5.

Supplemental pleadings are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 464.

Substitution of parties on death, disability, or devolution of interest is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 368.5, 375, 377.20 et seq.

Chapter 21 AMENDED AND SUPPLEMENTAL PLEADINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 21.11 Amended and Supplemental Pleadings Distinguished

Amended pleadings and amendments to pleadings serve to correct errors in pleadings and are to be distinguished from supplemental pleadings, which do not supersede the original pleadings, but are used to allege facts material to the case that occurred after the former complaint or answer was filed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 464]. A supplemental pleading, thus, brings to the notice of the court and the opposite party things that occurred after the commencement of the action and that do or may affect the rights asserted and the relief sought in the action as originally instituted [California etc. Co. v. Schiappa-Pietra (1907) 151 Cal. 732, 743, 91 P. 593] .

Chapter 21 AMENDED AND SUPPLEMENTAL PLEADINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 21.12 Amendment of Course

Any pleading may be amended once by the party of course, without costs, at any time before the answer or demurrer is filed or entered in the docket, or after demurrer and before the trial of the issue of law thereon, by filing the pleading as amended and serving a copy on the adverse party. The time in which the adverse party must respond to the amended pleading is computed from the date of notice of the amendment [Code Civ. Proc. § 472; for discussion of the time within which responses to amended pleadings must be served and filed, see §§ 21.19, 21.20]. A party is authorized to make one such amendment of course, without leave of court, including the addition of new parties, before any defendant has filed an answer or demurrer [Gross v. Department of Transportation (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1102, 1105, 226 Cal. Rptr. 49 ; see also National Secretarial Service, Inc. v. Froehlich (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 510, 519, 258 Cal. Rptr. 506] .

One defendant's filing of an answer does not divest a plaintiff of the right to amend the complaint with respect to causes of action brought against other demurring defendants [Barton v. Khan (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1216, 1222, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 238].

When a pleading is sought to be amended of course, that is, without permission of the court, for a purpose other than merely to substitute the true name of a defendant for a fictitious name [see Code Civ. Proc. § 474], an amended pleading, rather than amendments to the pleading or alteration on the face, is required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 472; for discussion of the distinction between amended pleadings and amendments to pleadings, see § 21.18].

Chapter 21 AMENDED AND SUPPLEMENTAL PLEADINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

3-21 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 21.13

§ 21.13 Amendment Allowed in Court's Discretion

[1] Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473

[a] Amendments Authorized in Furtherance of Justice

The court may, in furtherance of justice and on any terms as may be proper, allow a party to amend any pleading or proceeding by adding or striking out the name of any party or by correcting a mistake in the name of a party or a mistake in any other respect; and may, on like terms, enlarge the time for answer or demurrer. The court may likewise, in its discretion, after notice to the adverse party, allow, on any terms as may be just, an amendment to any pleading or proceeding in other particulars; and may, on like terms, allow an answer to be made after the time limited by the Code of Civil Procedure [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a)(1)]. For a form of ex parte motion for leave to amend, see § 21.76, and for forms of notice of motion, see §§ 21.77 and 21.78.

Leave to amend a complaint is entrusted to the sound discretion of the trial court. The exercise of that discretion will not be disturbed on appeal absent a clear showing of abuse. More importantly, the discretion to be exercised is that of the trial court, not that of the reviewing court. Thus, even if the reviewing court might have ruled otherwise in the first instance, the trial court's order will yet not be reversed unless, as a matter of law, it is not supported by the record [Branick v. Downey Savings & Loan (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 235, 242, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 66] .

[b] Correction of Mistake in Party's Name

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a) [see [i], above], a plaintiff with standing may be substituted for one who is not the real party in interest [California Air Resources Bd. v. Hart (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 289, 300, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 153] . Whether amendment will be allowed turns on whether the mistake is merely a misnomer in the description of the party or a substitution or entire change of parties. Thus, amendment is generally proper if leave is sought to substitute a new party based on a technical defect in the party's status, such as an honest mistake in naming a party, but may not be used to interject a new party into the litigation for the first time under the guise of a misnomer [California Air Resources Bd. v. Hart (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 289, 300-301, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 153 ; Kerr-McGee Chemical Corp. v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 594, 598-599, 206 Cal. Rptr. 654 ; see Meller & Snyder v. R & T Properties, Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1303, 1313 n.5, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 740 (questioning whether it could be seriously argued that R & T Properties, Inc. was the same entity as an individual doing business as R & T Properties)].

For example, an amendment substituting the People of the State of California for a state agency as plaintiff is a technical one that is properly allowed [California Air Resources Bd. v. Hart (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 289, 301, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 153] . However, substituting "Kerr-McGee Chemical Corporation, doing business as Trona Medical Clinic" for "Trona Medical Clinic" would improperly allow the addition of a new party for a named party defendant [Kerr-McGee Chemical Corp. v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 594, 599, 206 Cal. Rptr. 654 (distinguishing cases that allowed substitution of ("Southern Pacific Company" for "Southern Pacific Railroad Company" and "Clio Mining Company" for "Clio Mill and Mining Company," among other evident misnomers that could be corrected as clerical errors)].

[c] Postponement of Trial

When the amendment appears, to the court's satisfaction, to render postponement of the trial necessary, the court may postpone the trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a)(2)], even if the case is on a "fast track" pursuant to the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act [Honig v. Financial Corp. of America (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 960, 967, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 922] . If postponement is necessary, the court may require, as a condition to allowing amendment, that the party seeking to amend pay the adverse party any costs as may be just [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a)(2); see also Ch. 136, Continuances].

[2] Under Code Civ. Proc. § 576

Any judge, at any time before or after trial commences, in the furtherance of justice and on such terms as may be proper, may allow the amendment of any pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 576; see also City of Stanton v. Cox (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1557, 1563, 255 Cal. Rptr. 682] . The amended pleading must, however, be based on the same general set of facts as those on which the cause of action or defense as originally pleaded was grounded [City of Stanton v. Cox (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1557, 1563, 255 Cal. Rptr. 682] . In ruling on a Section 576 motion to amend during trial, trial courts should be guided by two general principles:

- Whether facts or legal theories are being changed; and
- Whether the opposing party will be prejudiced by the proposed amendment.

Frequently, each principle represents a different side of the same coin. If new facts are being alleged, prejudice may easily result because of the other party's inability to investigate the validity of the factual allegations while engaged in trial or to call rebuttal witnesses. If the same set of facts supports merely a different theory, for example, an easement as opposed to a fee, no prejudice can result [City of Stanton v. Cox (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1557, 1563, 255 Cal. Rptr. 682 (plaintiff city's request to amend its complaint during trial to raise new issue was properly denied, although evidence on issue had been introduced at trial over defendant's objection, because city failed to seek to amend its pleading until conclusion of trial and it offered no excuse for delay)].

For forms of notice of motion, see §§ 21.77 and 21.78.

[3] Denial for Failure of Amended Pleading to State Cause of Action or Defense

Failure of a proposed amendment to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action or defense may support an order denying a motion to amend [see California Casualty Gen. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 274, 280, 218 Cal. Rptr. 817] . However, when the legal sufficiency of the proposed defense is a novel question almost certain to be tested in an appellate court, the preferred practice is to permit the amendment and allow the parties to test its legal sufficiency by demurrer, motion for judgment on the pleadings, or other appropriate proceedings [California Casualty Gen. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 274, 281, 218 Cal. Rptr. 817 ; see also Kittredge

[4] Denial for Delay

A court may deny an amendment to a pleading that would add a new cause of action or defense involving facts and theories not included in the original pleading, especially when inexcusable delay and prejudice to the opposing party are indicated [see Green v. Rancho Santa Margarita Mortgage Co. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 686, 692-693, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706 ; Avedissian v. Manukian (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 379, 383, 190 Cal. Rptr. 291] .

Thus, despite the policy of great liberality in allowing amendment, the trial court may properly deny a motion for leave to amend a complaint on the eve of trial when the delay is unexplained and the amendment opens an entirely new area of inquiry [Magpali v. Farmers Group, Inc. (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 471, 486-487, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 225] .

For example, when an amendment sought to add a cause of action based on a company's alleged system-wide discrimination to an original complaint based on breach of contract, misrepresentation, and intentional infliction of emotional distress, prejudice to the defendant was clearly shown because the defendant had not discovered or deposed witnesses who would support the new allegations and had not marshaled evidence to oppose the new claim. The amendment would have changed the tenor and complexity of the action, and would have required a continuance to allow further discovery. When the trial date has been set, the jury is about to be impaneled, counsel, the parties, the court, and the witnesses have blocked the time, and the only way to avoid prejudice to the opposing party is to continue the trial date to allow further discovery, the trial court does not abuse its discretion by denying leave to amend [Magpali v. Farmers Group, Inc. (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 471, 486-488, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 225] .

A motion to amend a complaint to be heard at the same time as a summary judgment motion may be subject to the principle that even if a good amendment is proposed in proper form, unwarranted delay in presenting it may itself be valid reason for denial [see Record v. Reason (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 472, 486, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 547] . Thus, a trial court that granted summary judgment in defendant's favor based on primary assumption of risk did not abuse its discretion in denying leave to amend a complaint to allege intentional or reckless conduct when the plaintiff had knowlege of the circumstances that were the basis of the amended complaint on the day he was injured, nearly three years before seeking leave to amend the complaint [Record v. Reason (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 472, 486-487, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 547] .

Chapter 21 AMENDED AND SUPPLEMENTAL PLEADINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

3-21 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 21.14

§ 21.14 Amendment Substituting True Name for Fictitious Defendant

[1] Requirement of Alleging Unknown Defendants in Complaint

When the plaintiff is ignorant of the defendant's name, plaintiff must state that fact in the complaint, or in the affidavit if the action is commenced by affidavit, and that defendant may be designated in any pleading or proceeding by any name (Doe allegations). When the defendant's true name is discovered, the pleading or proceeding must be amended accordingly [Code Civ. Proc. § 474; for forms of amendment to a complaint substituting a defendant's true name for a fictitious name, see § 21.65 et seq.]. However, a plaintiff who substitutes a defendant's true name after failing to allege in the original complaint that the true names of the fictitiously named defendants were unknown, as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 474, may amend the complaint to include the required allegation of ignorance [Dieckmann v. Superior Court (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 345, 351-364, 220 Cal. Rptr. 602] .

Amending a complaint to allege the true name of a fictitiously named defendant is improper if the plaintiff was aware of the named defendant's identity and of facts giving rise to the claim against that defendant when the plaintiff filed the original complaint [Optical Surplus, Inc. v. Superior Court (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 776, 782-784, 279 Cal. Rptr. 194] .

On the other hand, if the plaintiff was ignorant of the facts giving rise to a cause of action against a defendant whose name was known at the time of filing the complaint, amendment may be proper even though Code Civ. Proc. § 474 refers literally only to ignorance of the defendant's name [Parker v. Robert E. McKee, Inc. (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 512, 516-517, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 347 (plaintiff could amend after belatedly learning that previously named and mistakenly dismissed defendant acted in different capacity)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 474 is to be liberally construed. Even though the plaintiff knows of the existence of the defendant sued by a fictitious name and the defendant's actual identity (i.e., the defendant's name), the plaintiff is "ignorant" within the meaning of the statute if the plaintiff lacks knowledge of that party's connection with the case or with the plaintiff's injuries. Ignorance of the facts giving rise to a cause of action is the ignorance required by Code Civ. Proc. § 474, and the pivotal question is "did plaintiff know of facts?" not "did plaintiff know or believe that plaintiff had a cause of action based on those facts?" [General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 580, 593-594, 55 Cal.

Rptr. 2d 871] .

Because the purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 474 is to enable the plaintiff to avoid the bar of the statute of limitations when the plaintiff is ignorant of the defendant's identity, the analytical approach of Section 474 is irrelevant if amendment is sought before the period of limitation has expired [Davis v. Marin (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 380, 386-387, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 896] . Thus, if a plaintiff amends a complaint to substitute a named defendant for a Doe before the statute of limitations has expired, the amendment to the complaint should be treated the same as if the plaintiff had simply filed an amended complaint naming the defendant, in which case Section 474 analysis would have been irrelevant [Davis v. Marin (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 380, 387, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 896] .

For forms of pleading fictitiously named defendants and further discussion of what constitutes "ignorance of the defendant's name," see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used .

[2] Effect of Delay in Making Amendment

Unreasonable delay in amending the complaint after plaintiff has actually acquired knowledge of the identity of the fictitiously named defendant may bar plaintiff's resort to the fictitious-name procedure [A.N. v. County of Los Angeles (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 1058, 1068-69, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 293 ; Barrows v. American Motors Corp. (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 1, 8, 192 Cal. Rptr. 380] . However, for a defendant to challenge successfully a plaintiff's use of the procedure, the defendant must show not only that the plaintiff was dilatory, but also that the defendant suffered specific prejudice, beyond the general policy of the applicable statute of limitations, from the delay. An example would be substantial and demonstrable prejudice by loss of evidence during the period after the statute of limitations has run [Barrows v. American Motors Corp (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 1, 9-10, 192 Cal. Rptr. 380 (amendment allowed)]. Where counsel did not state the dates upon which he learned the names of the Doe defendants and did not explain why their identities could not have been discovered sooner, as the record indicated that counsel had access to the information sooner, and Doe defendants were brought into the case less than one month before the case was set to begin trial, a two-year delay was unreasonable and prejudicial [A.N. v. County of Los Angeles (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 1058, 1068-69, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 293].

Chapter 21 AMENDED AND SUPPLEMENTAL PLEADINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 21.15 Statute of Limitations; Relation-Back Doctrine

Once an action has been timely commenced by the filing of a complaint, the filing of an amended pleading that does not introduce a new cause of action is not subject to the statute of limitations [Hutnick v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 456, 464, 253 Cal. Rptr. 236, 763 P.2d 1326] . An amendment relates back to the time the original complaint was filed when the amendment is based upon the same general set of facts contained in the initial complaint; and it is essential to distinguish between a new cause of action arising out of "the same general set of facts" and a new cause arising out of different facts [Wiener v. Superior Court (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 525, 528, 130 Cal. Rptr. 61] . Moreover, as a general rule, the statute of limitations provides no defense to the successor of a party timely sued [Hutnick v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 456, 467, 253 Cal. Rptr. 236, 763 P.2d 1326 (citing former Code Civ. Proc. § 385 (now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 368.5, 375); Code Civ. Proc. § 1908)]. Thus when an individual defendant dies or becomes incompetent, title to property at issue is transferred, or a corporate defendant is merged or dissolved, the substitution of a representative or successor in place of the named defendant may not be challenged on the ground that the statute of limitations has expired as to the representative or successor [Hutnick v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 456, 467, 253 Cal. Rptr. 236, 763 P.2d 1326 ; for further discussion, see § 21.27].

However, if an amended complaint adds a new cause of action or new party, other than to identify fictitiously named defendants pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 474 [see § 21.14], it will be barred by the statute of limitations unless the amended pleading can be said to relate back to the time the original pleading was filed [see Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Insurance Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 596, 599-600, 15 Cal. Rptr. 817, 364 P.2d 681 ; Woo v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 169, 176, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20] . For discussion of the relation-back doctrine, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.25.

Chapter 21 AMENDED AND SUPPLEMENTAL PLEADINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 21.16 Amendment of Cross Complaint to Plead Compulsory Cross Claim

A party who fails to plead a cause of action subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 426.10 et seq. (compulsory cross complaints), whether through oversight, inadvertence, mistake, neglect, or other cause, may apply to the court for leave to amend the pleading, or to file a cross complaint, to assert that cause at any time during the course of the action. The court, after notice to the adverse party, grants, on terms as may be just to the parties, leave to amend the pleading, or to file the cross complaint, to assert the cause if the party who failed to plead the cause acted in good faith. These provisions are liberally construed to avoid forfeiture of causes of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.50].

The determination of what constitutes good faith, or lack of it, under Code Civ. Proc. § 426.50 must be made in light of and in conformity with the liberality conferred on the trial courts by that section and by prior law. Generally, the principle of liberality requires that a strong showing of bad faith be made in order to support a denial of the right to amend a pleading or file a cross complaint under Code Civ. Proc. § 426.50 [Foot's Transfer & Storage Co. v. Superior Court (1980) 114 Cal. App. 3d 897, 902, 171 Cal. Rptr. 1] . Mere delay in amending a pleading or filing a cross complaint is generally insufficient to constitute the requisite bad faith, absent a showing that the amendment of the pleading or filing of the cross complaint would work a substantial injustice to the opposing party and would prejudice that party's position in some way [see Foot's Transfer & Storage Co. v. Superior Court (1980) 114 Cal. App. 3d 897, 903, 171 Cal. Rptr. 1] .

Chapter 21 AMENDED AND SUPPLEMENTAL PLEADINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

3-21 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 21.17

§ 21.17 Amendment After Demurrer or Motion to Strike

[1] Demurrer Sustained With Leave to Amend

[a] Specific Amendment Is Not Approved

This leave to amend does not constitute an approval of a particular amendment that the pleader has submitted to the court. Rather, it is permission to the pleader to amend the cause of action or defense in the pleading to which the demurrer has been sustained [People ex rel. Dept. Pub. Wks. v. Clausen (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 770, 785, 57 Cal. Rptr. 227] .

[b] Time to Amend

When a demurrer is sustained, unless the court otherwise orders, leave to amend within 10 days is deemed granted, except in actions in forcible entry, forcible detainer, or unlawful detainer, for which five days are granted [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(g); see Code Civ. Proc. § 472a(c)]. If a demurrer to any pleading is sustained or overruled, and time to amend or answer is given, the time given runs from the service of notice of the decision or order, unless notice is waived in open court and the waiver is entered in the minutes or docket [Code Civ. Proc. § 472b].

While leave to amend within 10 days is standard under California Rules of Court, Rule 3.1320(g), the court may grant leave to amend "upon any terms as may be just and shall fix the time within which the amendment or amended pleading shall be filed" [Code Civ. Proc. § 472a(c)]. In fact, even if the court has not ordered additional time beyond the standard 10 days, the court has the discretion to accept a late filing even after the 10 days has expired, effectively fixing a new time for amendment [Harlan v. Department of Transportation (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 868, 873, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 912 (court properly accepted pleading filed eight days late without a request for extension of time)]. The late filing may be accepted even without noticed motion requesting an extension of time [Harlan v. Department of Transportation (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 868, 873-876, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 912] .

[c] Dismissal for Failure to Timely Amend Complaint After Demurrer to it Is Sustained

If the plaintiff fails to timely amend the complaint after a demurrer has been sustained with leave to amend, the trial court has discretion to grant or deny defendant's motion to dismiss under Code Civ. Proc. § 581(f)(2) if plaintiff opposes the motion and promptly submits an amended complaint. The court is not required to dismiss action, subject to a subsequent Code Civ. Proc. § 473 motion by plaintiff to set aside and vacate order of dismissal for excusable neglect [Contreras v. Blue Cross of California (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 945, 948, 245 Cal. Rptr. 258 (applying former Code Civ. Proc. § 581(c))].

[d] Entry of Default on Failure to Timely Amend Answer After Demurrer to it Is Sustained

Similarly to the rule in § 21.19[3], the plaintiff may take the defendant's default if the court sustains a demurrer to the answer and the defendant fails to amend the answer within the time allowed by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(5)].

[2] Demurrer Sustained Without Leave to Amend

If any court makes an order sustaining a demurrer without leave to amend, the question as to whether the court abused its discretion in making the order is open on appeal even though no request to amend the pleading was made [Code Civ. Proc. § 472c(a); see Kolani v. Gluska (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 402, 411-412, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257 (trial court should have granted leave to amend when it knew of potentially viable claim when it sustained demurrer, even though plaintiff did not request leave to amend); Galligan v. City of San Bruno (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 869, 876, 183 Cal. Rptr. 466 (applying rule to motion for judgment on pleadings)].

If an order sustaining a demurrer without leave to amend is reversed or otherwise remanded by any order issued by a reviewing court, any amended pleading must be filed within 30 days after the clerk of the reviewing court mails notice of the issuance of the remittitur [Code Civ. Proc. § 472b].

[3] Motion to Strike

If a motion to strike is granted under Code Civ. Proc. § 436, the court may order that an amendment or amended pleading be filed on terms that it deems proper [Code Civ. Proc. § 472a(d)].

Default proceedings may be had if a motion to strike the answer in whole or part, of the character specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 585, is granted and the defendant fails to amend the answer within the time allowed by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(7)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

3-21 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 21.18

§ 21.18 Method of Amending Pleading; Amended Pleading Versus Amendment to Pleading

A pleading may be amended by filing an amended pleading or by filing an amendment to the pleading, or making alterations on the face of the pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 472; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1324]. An amended pleading is one that is entirely rewritten and completely supersedes the original or prior pleading but relates to facts occurring before the action was begun. An amendment to a pleading is the addition, substitution, or change of only a part of a pleading [Cohen v. Superior Court (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 650, 657, 53 Cal. Rptr. 378] .

An amendment, as distinguished from an amended pleading, designates the pages and lines of the prior pleading that is thereby amended. No amendment may be made by alterations on the face of a pleading except by permission of the court, and all alterations must be initialed by the court or clerk [Cal. Rules of Ct., 3.1324(d)].

The court may deem a motion to file an amendment to a pleading to be a motion to file an amended pleading and require the filing of the entire previous pleading with the approved amendments incorporated into it [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1324(c)].

For a form of amended pleading, see § 21.60, and for forms of amendments to pleadings, see § 21.61 et seq.

[1] Service

If the complaint is amended, a copy of the amendment must be filed, or the court may, in its discretion, require the complaint as amended to be filed, and a copy of the amendments or amended complaint must be served on the defendants affected by it [Code Civ. Proc. § 471.5(a); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 670(b), providing that judgment roll includes all pleadings and does not distinguish original from amended or supplemental pleadings].

If a defendant has not previously been served with a summons, a copy of the amended complaint or amendment to the complaint and a summons are served on the defendant in the manner provided for service of summons in civil actions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 415.10 et seq., and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers]. The summons may refer to the complaint on file or to the amended complaint [see Dowling v. Comerford (1893) 99 Cal. 204, 206, 33 P. 853 ; Koeper v. Koeper (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 118, 119, 269 P.2d 905] .

For discussion of the relation between an amended complaint and the mandatory period for completing service [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210], see Ch. 212, Dismissal .

If a defendant has previously been served with a summons but failed to make an appearance in the action, service of an amended complaint in the manner provided for service of summons, although not required for personal jurisdiction, is an essential prerequisite to a valid default judgment [Engebretson & Co. v. Harrison (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 436, 441-442, 444, 178 Cal. Rptr. 77 ; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 413.10-417.40]. However, if a defendant has made an appearance, service of an amended complaint by mail under Code Civ. Proc. § 1012 is probably sufficient to support a default judgment [see Engebretson & Co. v. Harrison (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 436, 441, 178 Cal. Rptr. 77] .

[2] Answer to Amended Complaint

The defendant or cross defendant is required to answer the amendments, or the complaint or cross complaint as amended, within 30 days after service, or by such other time as the court may direct, and judgment by default may be entered on failure to answer as in other cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 471.5(a)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 471.5(a) refers only to the filing of an answer to the amended complaint and does not authorize the filing of a demurrer. This was also true of its predecessor statute, former Code Civ. Proc. § 432. Nevertheless, a demurrer, with or without an answer, may be filed [see Johns v. Mongan (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 94, 97, 11 Cal. Rptr. 673] , since the filing of a demurrer as well as an answer prevents entry of default [see Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(1)].

[3] Entry of Default on Failure to Answer Amended Pleading

Default proceedings and judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 585, 585.5] may be had if the complaint has been amended, and the defendant fails to answer it as amended, or to demur to it, or to file a notice of motion to strike of the character specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 585, within 30 days after service thereof or within the time allowed by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(1); see also Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments , and California Points and Authorities, Ch. 70, Defaults and Default Judgments (Matthew Bender)]. When the amendment is merely as to formal or immaterial matters, however, and does not change the cause of action, the defendant does not have to answer. Default entered under those circumstances should be set aside [Gray v. Hall (1928) 203 Cal. 306, 310-311, 265 P. 246 ; Carrasco v. Craft (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 796, 808-811, 210 Cal. Rptr. 599] .

If the answer is amended, the adverse party has 10 days after service, or such other time as the court may direct, in which to demur to the amended answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 471.5(b)]. Service is made in the manner provided for service of papers [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 465, 1010-1020, and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

§ 21.21 Striking Amended Pleadings

A court may, by virtue of its inherent power to prevent abuse of its processes, strike an amended pleading that is filed in disregard of established procedural processes. For example, if a motion to strike an amended complaint is made by only one defendant, the court may strike the amended pleading as to all defendants because no request for permission to amend was sought. An order striking an amended pleading may be made without prejudice to the rights of the pleader to file another amended pleading with permission of the court [Loser v. E.R. Bacon Co. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 387, 390, 20 Cal. Rptr. 221 (recognizing noticed motion as proper procedure to add cause of action based on breach of warranty)].

§ 21.22 Inconsistency With Previous Pleadings

A plaintiff may not discard factual allegations of a prior complaint, or avoid them by contradictory averments, in a superseding, amended pleading [Richelle L. v. Roman Catholic Archbishop of San Francisco (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 257, 282, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 601] . Where it is inconceivable that a trial court would accept any effort to omit or avoid facts central to complaint where a demurrer has been sustained with leave to amend, a superseding, amended pleading will not be permitted [Richelle L. v. Roman Catholic Archbishop of San Francisco (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 257, 282, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 601] .

When an amended pleading attempts to avoid defects revealed in a previous pleading by ignoring those defects, a court may examine the prior pleading or pleadings to ascertain whether the amended pleading is merely a sham [Amid v. Hawthorne Community Medical Group, Inc. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1383, 1387, 261 Cal. Rptr. 240 ; Kiseskey v. Carpenters' Trust for So. California (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 222, 228-229, 192 Cal. Rptr. 492] . That is, when a party files an amended complaint and attempts to avoid the defects of the original complaint by either omitting the facts that made the prior pleading defective or by adding facts inconsistent with those of the prior pleading, the court may take judicial notice of the prior pleading and disregard any inconsistent allegations in the amended pleading [Colapinto v. County of Riverside (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 147, 151, 281 Cal. Rptr. 191] .

When an amendment contradicts earlier allegations, the moving party must clearly show, by very satisfactory evidence, that the earlier allegation was the result of mistake or inadvertence, whereas the amendment has been presented in good faith [Savage v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 434, 441, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 ; American Advertising & Sales Co. v. Mid-Western Transport (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 875, 878-880, 199 Cal. Rptr. 735] . For example, when plaintiffs could offer no explanation for a proposed omission of allegations destructive of their cause of action, other than a desire to avoid the pertinent statute, the court properly sustained a demurrer without leave to amend [Leong v. San Francisco Parking, Inc. (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 827, 832 n.5, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 41] .

On the other hand, the fact that a prior pleading may have contained true, but irrelevant, matters does not render the proposed amended complaint a sham. The sham pleading rule should not be applied in a case in which the plaintiff seeks to change the legal theory of recovery and the legal conclusions the plaintiff seeks to draw from the underlying factual events, and also seeks to omit factual allegations that are irrelevant and immaterial to the new legal theories asserted [Berman v. Bromberg (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 936, 948-949, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777] . Under these circumstances, the sham pleading rule does not apply and there is no need for the plaintiff to explain the reasons for the amended pleading because there are no inconsistencies in the underlying material or relevant factual allegations [Berman v. Bromberg (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 936, 949, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777] .

Although a trial court has good reason to be hesitant to accept new factual allegations from the plaintiff, at least to the extent they are inconsistent with prior allegations, the court may not demand the production of admissible evidence, specifically excluding plaintiff's own testimony, to support the proposed amendment to the complaint while at the same time preventing plaintiff from conducting any discovery. Although a trial court has powerful tools to shield parties and nonparties from abusive litigation tactics, it does not have the power to demand, as the condition for leave to amend, that a party present admissible evidence sufficient to withstand summary judgment [Sanai v. Saltz (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 746, 770, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 673].

For further discussion of the effect of the inconsistency in pleadings on the court's ruling on a demurrer, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

§ 21.23 Effect of Case Management Conference and Order

The necessity of a case management conference and the matters to be determined at this conference, including amendments to pleadings, are now governed by rules of court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.720 et seq.]. After a pretrial conference order has been issued, any judge may, in the furtherance of justice and on such terms as may be proper, allow the amendment of any pleading or pretrial conference order, such as a case management order, either before or after commencement of trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 576]. Thus, a pretrial conference order, if any, does not foreclose the trial court from permitting an amendment to the pleadings [Feykert v. Hardy (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 67, 74, 28 Cal. Rptr. 510] .

An amendment to a pleading made after the pretrial order is filed may constitute a modification of the pretrial order [see Arthur v. New House Building Corp. (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 526, 534, 31 Cal. Rptr. 868] . Counsel is advised to move for an amendment of the pretrial conference order in addition to a motion to amend the pleadings so that the advantages of the pretrial conference in clearly defining the issues and in eliminating unnecessary and time consuming allegations of fact might be preserved [Posz v. Burchell (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 324, 335, 25 Cal. Rptr. 896] . For further discussion relating to amendment of pleadings and the pretrial conference order under Code Civ. Proc. § 576, see Ch. 425, Pretrial Proceedings .

§ 21.24 Oral Motion to Amend During Trial

The allowance or disallowance of amendments to pleadings during the course of the trial rests largely in the discretion of the trial court whose ruling will not be disturbed on appeal unless it clearly appears that such discretion has been abused. The trial court has a wide discretion in such matters in which the purpose of the amendment is to raise new issues after the pleadings have been settled and the trial has commenced [Garcia v. Roberts (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 900, 909, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 286 ; Walter v. Rollins International, Inc. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 1, 23, 215 Cal. Rptr. 59 ; *Del Pino v. Gualtieri (1968) 265 Cal. Chapter 21 AMENDED AND SUPPLEMENTAL PLEADINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 21.25 Amendments to Conform to Proof

Motions and orders to conform a pleading to proof are generally made orally at trial. When the variance is not material, the court may direct the fact to be found according to the evidence, or may order an immediate amendment, without costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 470; see Walker v. Belvedere (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1663, 1670, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 773 (court erred in not directing fact to be found according to evidence when variance was not material, defendant was not prejudiced, even though plaintiff did not ask to conform to proof)]. No variance between the allegation in a pleading and the proof is to be deemed material, unless it has actually misled the adverse party, to his or her prejudice, in maintaining the action or defense on the merits. Whenever it appears that a party has been so misled, the court may order the pleading to be amended, on such terms as may be just [Code Civ. Proc. § 469]. If the allegation of the claim or defense to which the proof is directed is unproved, not in some particular or particulars only, but in its general scope and meaning, it is not to be deemed a case of variance [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 469, 470], but a failure of proof [Code Civ. Proc. § 471].

Amendments to conform to proof should not be granted at trial if by permitting the amendment new and substantially different issues are introduced in the case or the rights of the adverse party prejudiced; amendments of pleadings to conform to the proofs should not be allowed when they raise new issues not included in the original pleadings and upon which the adverse party had no opportunity to defend [Garcia v. Roberts (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 900, 909, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 286 , citing Trafton v. Youngblood (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 17, 31, 69 Cal. Rptr. 568, 442 P.2d 648 ; see South Bay Building Enterprises, Inc. v. Riviera Lend-Lease, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1111, 1124, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 647].

The basic rule applicable to amendments to conform to proof during trial is that the amended pleading must be based upon the same general set of facts as those upon which the cause of action or defense as originally pleaded was grounded, and trial court should be guided by two general principles [Garcia v. Roberts (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 900, 910, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 286]:

- Whether facts or legal theories are being changed, and
- Whether the opposing party will be prejudiced by the proposed amendment.

Frequently, each principle represents a different side of the same coin: If new facts are being alleged, prejudice may easily result because of the inability of the other party to investigate the validity of the factual allegations while engaged in trial or to call rebuttal witnesses. If the same set of facts supports merely a different theory--for example, an easement as opposed to a fee--no prejudice can result [Garcia v. Roberts (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 900, 910, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 286].

For a form of notice of motion that may be used if the motion is not made orally, see § 21.84.

Chapter 21 AMENDED AND SUPPLEMENTAL PLEADINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

3-21 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 21.26

§ 21.26 Supplemental Pleadings

[1] Authorized on Motion

The plaintiff and defendant, respectively, may be allowed, on motion, to make a supplemental complaint or answer alleging facts material to the case occurring after the former complaint or answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 464(a); for special considerations in family law matters, see §§ 21.28 and 21.29]. A supplemental complaint must be in furtherance of and consistent with the action asserted in original complaint [Gonzales v. Arbelbide (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 721, 726-727, 318 P.2d 746 ; Erickson v. Boothe (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 644, 647, 274 P.2d 460] .

A motion to file a supplemental complaint is addressed to the trial court's discretion [American Aeronautics Corp. v. Grand Cent. Aircraft Co. (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 69, 83, 317 P.2d 694] . A trial court does not abuse that discretion when the motion is not timely and the delay is not explained [American Aeronautics Corp. v. Grand Cent. Aircraft Co. (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 69, 83, 317 P.2d 694 (denying motion to file supplemental complaint made on third day of trial when eight months and numerous depositions had been taken between filing of complaint and the trial)].

[2] Effect of Statutes of Limitation

Once an action has been timely commenced by the filing of a complaint, the filing of a supplemental complaint that does not introduce a new cause of action is not subject to the statute of limitations [Hutnick v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 456, 464, 253 Cal. Rptr. 236, 763 P.2d 1326] .

The relation back doctrine can apply to supplemental, as well as amended complaints. Whether a supplemental complaint may encompass the entire period following commencement of suit depends on the nature of the claims raised in the supplemental pleading. If the claims are unrelated to those alleged in the initial complaint or rely on conduct or events different from those involved in the original action, the statute of limitations should be applied. If however, the original pleading gave notice that the alleged wrongful conduct was of a continuing nature, supplemental pleadings addressed to the same conduct should not encounter statute of limitation questions [Bendix Corp. v. City of Los Angeles (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 921, 925-926, 198 Cal. Rptr. 370 (disagreeing with ITT Gilfillan, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 581, 586, 185 Cal. Rptr. 848 to the extent that case appears to have concluded that supplemental and amended pleadings must always be accorded different treatment regardless of the circumstances of the individual case)].

[3] Issuance of Summons

When a supplemental complaint is filed, the clerk is required to issue an amended or supplemental summons pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 412.10. Service of the supplemental summons and complaint must be made in the manner provided for the initial service of a summons by the Code of Civil Procedure [Code Civ. Proc. § 464(c)].

For discussion of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

3-21 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 21.27

§ 21.27 Substitution of Personal Representative or Transferee as Party

[1] Transfer of Interest

[a] At Transferee's Option After Transfer

An action or proceeding does not abate by the transfer of an interest in the action or proceeding or by any other transfer of an interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 368.5]. The action or proceeding may be continued in the name of the original party, or the court may allow the person to whom the transfer is made to be substituted in the action or proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 368.5].

A transferee of an interest in a pending action has the option of being substituted in the action or continuing it in the name of his or her transferor [Code Civ. Proc. § 368.5; see Casey v. Overhead Door Corp. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 112, 121-122, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 603 (plaintiffs' attorney had actual authority to act on settling defendant's behalf regarding cross complaint for indemnity against third party that defendant assigned to plaintiffs even though plaintiffs failed to substitute attorney as attorney of record for cross complainant; cross defendant was not misled or prejudiced by lack of substitution)]. The transferee has the right to control the further proceedings in the action [Davis v. Rudolph (1947) 80 Cal. App. 2d 397, 401, 181 P.2d 765 ; see Casey v. Overhead Door Corp. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 112, 122, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 603] .

If a transferee elects to continue the action in the name of the original party, the court may give judgment according to the conditions existing at the time the case was begun [Knobloch v. Associated Oil Co. (1915) 170 Cal. 144, 147, 148 P. 938] .

A transferee's right of substitution is permissive, resting in the discretion of the court [Hogan v. Superior Court (1925) 74 Cal. App. 704, 713, 241 P. 584] .

[b] Transfer of Interest to Coplaintiff

Substitution is not required when one who is already a party, pending trial, acquires by purchase and assignment the balance of the joint interest of his or her coplaintiff, either from the coplaintiff in his or her lifetime, or from his or her executor or administrator in the event of death [Miller v. Bank of America (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 512, 516, 126 P.2d 444] .

[c] Transfer Before Death

If a decedent transferred his or her interest during the course of the trial, his or her executor or administrator is not a proper party to be substituted. The action may continue in the decedent's name or the grantee may be substituted [Tuffree v. Stearns Ranchos Co. (1899) 124 Cal. 306, 308, 57 P. 69] .

[2] Substitution of Bankruptcy Trustee

When a bankruptcy petition is filed under Title 11 of the United States Code, all legal and equitable interests of the debtor and certain community interests, including a cause of action, become property of the estate [11 U.S.C. § 541(a)]. The bankruptcy trustee is the representative of the bankruptcy estate, and has the capacity to sue and be sued [11 U.S.C. § 323]. However, the bankrupt is not divested of his or her right to continue to prosecute a state cause of action, pending assertive action by the bankruptcy trustee [Kaley v. Catalina Yachts (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1187, 1194-1195, 232 Cal. Rptr. 384 ; cf. 11 U.S.C. § 362(a)(1) (automatic stay of any judicial action or proceeding against debtor to recover claim against debtor)]. Until the bankruptcy trustee intervenes and substitutes himself or herself in the action, the trustee is not the real party in interest. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 368.5, the bankrupt remains the real party in interest even after the cause of action is transferred to the bankruptcy estate by operation of law, until the time that the trustee seeks, and is allowed, to substitute in by the state court [Kaley v. Catalina Yachts (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1187, 1194-1195, 232 Cal. Rptr. 384 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 387 (intervention)].

Once the bankruptcy trustee has assumed all authority in the litigation, however, the bankrupt ceases to have standing in the action. Thus, for example, if a bankruptcy trustee has represented a bankrupt's interest in litigation by or against the bankrupt and the trustee chooses not to appeal the judgment, the bankrupt has no standing to bring an appeal. Instead, the bankrupt's remedy is to petition the bankruptcy court to compel the trustee to file an appeal or to authorize the bankrupt to file an appeal on its own behalf [People v. Kings Point Corp. (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 544, 549, 233 Cal. Rptr. 227] .

If a plaintiff, after filing a bankruptcy petition, files a complaint alleging causes of action that accrued before the filing of the bankruptcy petition, there may be instances when a court will permit the complaint to be amended to substitute the trustee in bankruptcy as plaintiff even thought at that time the statute of limitations has run [see, e.g., Haley v. Dow Lewis Motors, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 497, 506-509, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 352 (plaintiffs did not act in bad faith); for discussion of relation-back doctrine, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.25)].

[3] Disability of a Party

An action or proceeding does not abate by the disability of a party [Code Civ. Proc. § 375]. The court, on motion, must allow the action or proceeding to be continued by or against the party's representative [Code Civ. Proc. § 375].

[4] Death of a Party

[a] Effect of Death

A pending action or proceeding does not abate by the death of a party if the cause of action survives [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.21; for discussion of survival of actions, see Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions].

On motion after the death of a person who commenced an action or proceeding, the court must allow a pending action or proceeding that does not abate to be continued by the decedent's personal representative or, if none, by the decedent's successor in interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.31; for further discussion, see [b], below].

Conversely, on motion, the court must allow a pending action or proceeding against the decedent that does not abate to be continued against the decedent's personal representative or, to the extent provided by statute, against the decedent's successor in interest, except that proof of compliance with the creditor claims statute is required before the action or proceeding can be continued against the personal representative [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.41; see Prob. Code § 9000 et seq.; for further discussion, see [c], below].

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(a), a party's death tolls the Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 five-year period for bringing the case to trial. The tolling lasts until a personal representative is substituted for deceased defendant pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 377.31 or an insurer is served with copy of complaint if case comes within Prob. Code § 550 et seq. [Pham v. Wagner Litho Machinery Co. (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 966, 970-974, 218 Cal. Rptr. 476 (death of plaintiff; construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 583(f)); Herring v. Peterson (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 608, 613-616, 172 Cal. Rptr. 240 (death of defendant; construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 583(f) and predecessor statutes to Sections 377.31 and 550 et seq.)]. These cases are based on the premise that the party's death deprives the court of jurisdiction to try a case [see Pham v. Wagner Litho Machinery Co. (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 966, 970-974, 218 Cal. Rptr. 476 ; Herring v. Peterson (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 608, 611-612, 172 Cal. Rptr. 240 , both cited by the Supreme Court as consistent with its decision in Watts v. Crawford (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 743, 759 n.14, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 81, 896 P.2d 807] . For additional discussion of tolling the involuntary dismissal statutes, see Ch. 212, Dismissal .

As a general proposition, judgment cannot be rendered for or against a decedent, or for or against a personal representative of a decedent's estate, until the representative has been made a party by substitution [Sacks v. FSR Brokerage, Inc. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 950, 957, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 306] . Sacks traced this rule back to Judson v. Love (1868) 35 Cal. 463 , and concluded that the rule has not been applied blindly, but has acted to prevent prejudice to the parties because of lack or notice, lack of proper representation, or some other disadvantage [Sacks v. FSR Brokerage, Inc. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 950, 957, 959, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 306 (distinguishing cases that state a broader rule as actually involving prejudice, or in the case of Bliss v. Speier (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 125, 13 Cal. Rptr. 847 , as failing to consider the issue of prejudice)].

The personal representative of a deceased party who has been substituted in a case must take the situation as he or she finds it as of decedent's death, and is not, for example, entitled to a new trial [Bliss v. Speier (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 125, 127, 13 Cal. Rptr. 847] .

[b] Substitution on Plaintiff's Death

[i] Personal Representative

The personal representative of the estate of a person who has filed suit before death has by custom and practice a firm right to expect and demand a substitution if the cause of action survives or continues [Majors v. County of Merced (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 427, 434, 24 Cal. Rptr. 610 ; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 377.20, 377.21 (survival of actions), 377.31 (substitution of personal representative or, if none, successor in interest)]. For a form of notice of motion to substitute the plaintiff's personal representative for the plaintiff, see § 21.105.

If the decedent's gross estate, as defined, does not exceed $100,000, and there is no administration of the decedent's estate, or if there is administration and the personal representative consents, the decedent's successor to the property involved in the litigation may obtain substitution as plaintiff [see Prob. Code § 13107.5; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 377.31 (continuation of action by of successor of decedent)]. For discussion of this procedure, see [ii], below.

The refusal to permit a substitution of a personal representative finally eliminates him or her as a party. The refusal is treated as a final judgment from which an appeal can be taken [Majors v. County of Merced (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 427, 432, 24 Cal. Rptr. 610 ; Walsh v. Superior Court (1928) 92 Cal. App. 454, 456, 268 P. 442] .

[ii] Successor of Decedent Under Summary Procedure

If the money or personal property claimed in an affidavit or declaration executed under the summary provisions for the collection or transfer of personal property of a decedent (Prob. Code § 13100 et seq.) is the subject of a pending proceeding or cause of action in which the decedent was a party, the successor of the decedent (defined in Prob. Code § 13006) is entitled to be substituted as a party in place of the decedent by making a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 377.31, without procuring letters of administration or awaiting probate of the will [Prob. Code § 13107.5]. This procedure is only available if the gross value of the decedent's estate, excluding property listed in Prob. Code § 13050, does not exceed $100,000 [Prob. Code §§ 13100, 13101(a)(5)] and either no administration of the decedent's estate has been or is being conducted in California or the personal representative consents to use of the procedure [Prob. Code § 13108]. For discussion of this affidavit or declaration procedure, see Ch. 441, Probate: Disposition Without Administration . If this summary procedure is not available, the decedent's personal representative will be the appropriate party to substitute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.31; for discussion, see [i], above].

Under the summary procedure, the successor of the decedent must file the affidavit or declaration with the court when the motion is made. For purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 377.31, a successor of the decedent who complies with the affidavit or declaration procedure of Prob. Code § 13100 et seq. is considered a successor in interest of the decedent [Prob. Code § 13107.5]. For a form of notice of motion that may be used to substitute decedent's successor for the plaintiff, see § 21.100.

[c] Substitution on Defendant's Death

[i] To Proceed Against Personal Representative

An action or proceeding pending against the decedent at the time of death may not be continued against the decedent's personal representative unless all of the following conditions are satisfied [Prob. Code § 9370(a)]:

- A claim is first filed as provided in Prob. Code § 9000 et seq.
- The claim is rejected in whole or in part.
- Within three months after the notice of rejection is given, the plaintiff applies to the court in which the action or proceeding is pending for an order to substitute the personal representative in the action or proceeding. This requirement, however, applies only if the notice of rejection contains a statement that the plaintiff has three months within which to apply for an order for substitution.

The plaintiff must prove compliance with Prob. Code § 9370 to recover in the action against property in the decedent's estate [Prob. Code § 9370(b)].

For discussion and forms for filing creditor claims under Prob. Code § 9000 et seq., see Ch. 454, Probate: Claims Against the Estate . For a form of notice of motion to substitute the personal representative for a deceased party, see § 21.103. For a form of supplemental complaint alleging the defendant's death and compliance with the claims procedure, see § 21.108.

[ii] Decedent's Liability Covered by Insurance

An action to establish a decedent's liability may be continued against the decedent's estate without the need to join as a party the decedent's personal representative or successor in interest if the decedent's liability was protected by insurance [Prob. Code § 550(a)]. If, however, the personal representative is not substituted in the action, the plaintiff cannot recover damages in excess of the insurance policy limits [see Prob. Code § 554]. The plaintiff need not file a claim in the decedent's estate if the plaintiff pursues only the potential insurance proceeds, but must file a claim to proceed against the personal representative and property in the estate [Prob. Code §§ 554, 9370, 9390(b)]. If the plaintiff does file a claim, the personal representative may either be joined as a party to the Prob. Code §§ 550-555 action against the insurer, or the Prob. Code §§ 550-555 action against the insurer may be consolidated with an action against the personal representative [Prob. Code §§ 552(c), 554(b)(1), 9390(b); see Prob. Code § 550(b) (remedy as cumulative)].

The plaintiff must name as the defendant, "Estate of (name of decedent), Deceased" and must serve a summons on a person designated in writing by the insurer or, if none, on the insurer. Further proceedings are in the name of the estate, but otherwise are conducted in the same manner as if the action was against the personal representative [Prob. Code § 552(a)]. The insurer may deny or otherwise contest its liability either under Prob. Code § 550 et seq. or by an independent action. Unless the personal representative is joined as a party, a judgment in either action does not adjudicate rights by or against the estate [Prob. Code § 553].

In an action being continued or commenced against an insurer under Prob. Code § 550 et seq., the court may order the appointment and substitution of a personal representative as the defendant for good cause, either on motion of an interested person or on its own motion [Prob. Code § 552(b); see Prob. Code §§ 550(a), 551 (commencing as well as continuing an action authorized)]. For forms of notice of motion, declaration, and order for the appointment and substitution of a personal representative, see §§ 21.105 -21.107; for a form of supplement complaint, see § 21.108. For discussion of commencing an action against an insurer under Prob. Code § 550 et seq. as opposed to continuing a pending action, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions .

These procedures apply to cases commenced on or after July 1, 1989 [Prob. Code § 555(a)]. If the action was commenced before July 1, 1989, the law in effect prior to that date continues to apply to the action [Prob. Code § 555(b); see former Code Civ. Proc. § 385(b); former Prob. Code §§ 709, 709.1, 721; see also Recommendations Relating to Probate Law, 19 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 701, 904-905 (1988)].

[5] Death After Submission of Case

If a party dies after trial and submission of the case to a judge sitting without a jury for decision or after a verdict on any issue of fact, and before judgment, the court may nevertheless render judgment in the case [Code Civ. Proc. § 669; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 686.010, 686.020; Prob. Code §§ 9002, 9150, 9300-9304, 9391, 9399 (enforcement of judgment after death of judgment debtor or judgment creditor); see also 15 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports (1979) 1331-1345].

[6] Notice of Motion

In substituting parties, use of a noticed motion is the preferred practice. However, there is generally no requirement that notice be given, and an order of substitution may be obtained by stipulation or by ex parte application [Campbell v. West (1892) 93 Cal. 653, 656, 29 P. 219 ; Chatten v. Martell (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 545, 553, 333 P.2d 364 ; Macmillan Petroleum Corp. v. Griffin (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 523, 526, 222 P.2d 69] . However, if the motion is made by an adverse party, a noticed motion is required [Higgins v. Kay (1914) 168 Cal. 468, 471-472, 143 P. 710] .

In any action in which the support of children is an issue, the plaintiff and defendant, or petitioner and respondent, may file a supplemental complaint seeking a judgment or order of paternity or support for another child of the parents of the child whose paternity and support are already in issue before the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 464(b)].

A supplemental complaint for paternity or child support may be filed without leave of court either before or after final judgment in the underlying action [Code Civ. Proc. § 464(b)].

Amendments to pleadings, amended pleadings, and supplemental pleadings under the Family Law Rules [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.10 et seq.] may be served and filed in conformity with the provisions of law applicable to those matters in civil actions generally, but the petitioner is not required to file a reply if the respondent has filed a response. If both parties have filed pleadings, no default may be entered on an amended pleading of either party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.108(b)].

In any proceeding for legal separation in which neither party, at the time the proceeding was commenced, has complied with the residence requirements of Fam. Code § 2320, either party may, on complying with the residence requirements, amend his or her petition or responsive pleading in the proceeding to request that a judgment decreeing the dissolution of the marriage be entered. The date of the filing of the amended petition or pleading is deemed to be the date of commencement of the proceeding for the dissolution of the marriage for the purposes only of the residence requirement [*Fam. § 21.30 Amendments in Joint Debtor Proceedings

Joint debtor proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 989-994 are authorized when an alleged joint debtor was named or joined as a party and a joint liability cause of action was stated against it, but it was not served with summons [Meller & Snyder v. R & T Properties, Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1303, 1307-1310, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 740] . For discussion and forms relating to these proceedings, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.340 et seq.

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 993, parties in joint debtor proceedings can amend their pleadings to cure technical defects or matters of form such as to substitute the true names of parties sued as fictitious defendants, but Section 993 does not authorize a plaintiff to amend the complaint to raise new issues of fact giving rise to a different legal obligation [Meller & Snyder v. R & T Properties, Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1303, 1311-1312, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 740] .

When an alleged join debtor is sued under a fictitious name, the complaint must be amended to substitute its true identity, otherwise a court is without power to enter a judgment against it under Code Civ. Proc. § 989 et seq. [Meller & Snyder v. R & T Properties, Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1303, 1311, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 740] . The trial court must rule on the question whether the plaintiff has complied with Code Civ. Proc. § 474 before the court may enter judgment against the defendant in joint debtor proceedings [Meller & Snyder v. R & T Properties, Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1303, 1311-1312, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 740] .

§ 21.31 Reclassification of Case by Amended Pleading

If a case is reclassified by an amended complaint, cross-complaint, amended cross-complaint, or other pleading under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 403.020 or 403.030 and the reclassification fee, if required, is paid, the clerk will promptly reclassify the cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.020(a)], and the caption must indicate that the action or proceeding is reclassified by this pleading [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(11)]. If a case is reclassified by stipulation under Code Civ. Proc. § 403.050, the title of the stipulation must state that the action or proceeding is reclassified by the stipulation. The caption or title must state that the case is a limited civil case reclassified as an unlimited civil case, or an unlimited civil case reclassified as a limited civil case, or other words to that effect [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)].

An amendment to an initial pleading is treated the same manner as an amended initial pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.020(b)].

Proc. § 474* to amend her complaint after statute of limitations had run; under these circumstances, there was no good faith, bona fide ignorance as required by Section 474. Woo v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 169, 180, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20 (Fourth Dist., Div. One; criticizing Balon v. Drost (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 483, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12 (First Dist., Div. Two))

Failing to inquire as to defendant's name or identity constitutes "ignorance" for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 474. Balon v. Drost (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 483, 488-490, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12

Trial court abused its discretion in denying plaintiff's motion to amend to name correct defendant after statute of limitations expired when defendants conducted themselves for three years as though properly named, and defense counsel took willful action to mask plaintiff's error from plaintiff until eve of arbitration. Cuadros v. Superior Court (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 671, 677, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 18

Plaintiff's ignorance of insurance assets in decedent driver's estate, revealed only during discovery in motor vehicle action against owner, did not constitute ignorance of facts giving rise to cause of action; therefore, plaintiff was not allowed to substitute estate for Doe defendant after applicable statute of limitations had expired. Von Gibson v. Estate of Lynch (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 725, 729-730, 243 Cal. Rptr. 50

Sustaining demurrer without leave to amend complaint was abuse of discretion when plaintiff moved to amend to cure

failure to allege that defendants' true names were being substituted for fictitious names, since plaintiff's prior act of naming defendants as if they were new parties after statute of limitations had expired was procedural error and easily curable by amendment. Streicher v. Tommy's Electric Co. (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 876, 884-885, 211 Cal. Rptr. 22

Plaintiff cannot avoid statute of limitations by naming fictitious defendant and then, after statute has run, add by amendment defendant whose identity and capacity were known from outset. Pabitzky v. Frager (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 401, 403-404, 210 Cal. Rptr. 426

Plaintiff is not precluded from substituting true name of Doe defendant after statute of limitations has run, even though plaintiff originally knew of defendant's existence, when plaintiff was originally ignorant of facts giving rise to cause of action against that defendant. Scannell v. County of Riverside (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 596, 616-617, 199 Cal. Rptr. 644

Plaintiff is not precluded from using fictitious name procedure [Code Civ. Proc. § 474] because of unreasonable delay in amending complaint unless defendant suffered specific prejudice from the delay. Barrows v. American Motors Corp. (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 1, 9-10, 192 Cal. Rptr. 380

Time for return of summons under former Code Civ. Proc. § 581a (now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.210, 583.240) starts from time of filing original complaint and not from time of filing amended complaint substituting defendant's true name for fictitious name. Nelson v. State of California (1982) 139 Cal. App. 3d 72, 76, 188 Cal. Rptr. 479

[2] Amendment Conforming Pleadings to Proof

Amendment of complaint to conform to proof is not allowed to inject new issue that would substantially prejudice defendant. Trafton v. Youngblood (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 17, 32, 69 Cal. Rptr. 568, 442 P.2d 648

Amendments at and after trial. Mountain States Creamery Co. v. Tagerman (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 355, 356-357, 246 P.2d 21

Pleading may be amended at trial unless adverse party can establish prejudice; when party allowed to prove facts to establish one cause of action, amendment that would allow same facts to establish another cause of action is favored, and trial court abuses discretion by prohibiting amendment when it would not prejudice another party; variance between pleading and proof does not justify denial of amendment unless unamended pleading misled adverse party to his or her prejudice in maintaining his or her action or defense on merits. South Bay Building Enterprises, Inc. v. Riviera Lend-Lease, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1111, 1124, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 647

Trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying defendant's motion made at trial to amend answer to conform to proof to allege defense that action sued on was barred by mandatory cross complaint statute (Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30), when motion was made more than three years after defendant answered amended complaint and plaintiff was prejudiced by delay. Hulsey v. Koehler (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1150, 1159, 267 Cal. Rptr. 523

Amendment to allege new cause of action to conform to facts that were proved to establish pleaded cause of action is favored unless amendment would mislead other party in maintaining action or defense on merits. Brady v. Elixir Industries (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1299, 1303, 242 Cal. Rptr. 324 , disapproved on other grounds Turner v. Anheuser-Busch, Inc. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1238, 1251, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 223, 876 P.2d 1022

Amendment of cross complaint to conform to proof was improperly allowed when facts alleged in amendment were entirely outside cause of action stated in original cross complaint in that facts had not even occurred at time original cross complaint was filed; such facts must be brought in, if at all, by supplemental cross complaint. Earp v. Nobmann

(1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 270, 286-287, 175 Cal. Rptr. 767 , disapproved on other grounds Silberg v. Anderson (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 205, 219, 266 Cal. Rptr. 638, 786 P.2d 365

Amendment to conform to proof properly denied when there is complete failure of proof at trial. Johnston v. County of Yolo (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 46, 51, 79 Cal. Rptr. 33

Amendment to conform to proof properly denied when evidence is received on issue involved in amendment and court determines that no relief should be given. Amerson v. Christman (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 811, 822-824, 68 Cal. Rptr. 378

Motion to amend complaint to conform to proof to increase damages was deemed granted for purpose of appeal when judgment was rendered for higher amount. Harm v. Frasher (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 405, 420, 5 Cal. Rptr. 367

Amendment to conform to proof is proper when evidence is sufficient to support amendment. Clark v. Pullins (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 703, 711, 341 P.2d 73

[3] Failure to Amend to Conform to Proof

In contested cause, absent amendment to complaint to conform to proof, court is not permitted to award plaintiff sum in excess of amount of damages claimed to have been sustained; allegations in pleading, and not prayer, determine maximum amount of compensatory damages that may be awarded; however, since parties actually tried issues of damages above limits stated in complaint, there was no surprise or prejudice to defendant, and although it is lamentable that plaintiff failed to move to amend to conform to proof, judicial economy would be ill served by requiring retrial because of that technicality. Castaic Clay Manufacturing Co. v. Dedes (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 444, 449, 240 Cal. Rptr. 652

Amendment of pleadings to conform to proof is not necessary when trial court properly received evidence on pleadings as filed from which relief sought by proposed amended pleadings could be granted; when case is tried as though issues were before the court, parties waive any defect in pleadings. Amerson v. Christman (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 811, 822-824, 68 Cal. Rptr. 378

[4] Leave of Court to Amend Pleading

[a] Discretion to Be Liberally Exercised

Leave to amend a complaint is entrusted to the sound discretion of the trial court. The exercise of that discretion will not be disturbed on appeal absent a clear showing of abuse. More importantly, the discretion to be exercised is that of the trial court, not that of the reviewing court. Thus, even if the reviewing court might have ruled otherwise in the first instance, the trial court's order will yet not be reversed unless, as a matter of law, it is not supported by the record. Branick v. Downey Savings & Loan (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 235, 242, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 66

Leave to amend complaint entrusted to trial court's sound discretion; there is liberal policy permitting amendment. Haley v. Dow Lewis Motors, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 497, 506-507, 510, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 352

Generally, leave to amend must be granted liberally, provided there is no statute of limitations concern, nor any prejudice to opposing party, such as delay in trial, loss of critical evidence, or added preparation costs. Solit v. Tokai Bank (1999) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1435, 1448, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 243

Leave to amend is in general required to be liberally granted provided there is no statute of limitations concern; leave to amend may be denied however, if there is prejudice to opposing party, such as delay in trial, loss of critical evidence, or added costs of preparation. Kolani v. Gluska (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 402, 412, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257

At each stage in proceedings policy is one of great liberality in allowing amendments to pleadings; application to amend pleading addressed to trial court's sound discretion. Berman v. Bromberg (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 936, 945, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777

Trial court has discretion to allow amendments to pleading in furtherance of justice (Code Civ. Proc. § 473); discretion is to be exercised liberally in favor of amendments, because judicial policy favors resolution of all disputed matters in same lawsuit. Kittredge Sports Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 1045, 1047, 261 Cal. Rptr. 857

General rule as one of great liberality in allowing amending pleadings prior to and even during trial. Hooper v. Romero (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 574, 580, 68 Cal. Rptr. 749

[b] Amendment During Trial

Allowance of amendments to conform to the proof rests largely in the discretion of the trial court, and its determination will not be disturbed on appeal unless it clearly appears that such discretion has been abused. Such amendments have been allowed with great liberality, and no abuse of discretion is shown unless by permitting the amendment new and substantially different issues are introduced in the case or the rights of the adverse party prejudiced. Conversely, amendments of pleadings to conform to the proofs should not be allowed when they raise new issues not included in the original pleadings and upon which the adverse party had no opportunity to defend. Trafton v. Youngblood (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 17, 31, 69 Cal. Rptr. 568, 442 P.2d 648

The basic rule applicable to amendments to conform to proof during trial is that the amended pleading must be based upon the same general set of facts as those upon which the cause of action or defense as originally pleaded was grounded, and trial court should be guided by two general principles: 1) whether facts or legal theories are being changed, and 2) whether the opposing party will be prejudiced by the proposed amendment. Garcia v. Roberts (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 900, 910, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 286

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 576, providing in part that any judge after commencement of trial in furtherance of justice may allow amendment of any pleading, trial judge has discretion to permit amendment to pleadings during course of trial; in exercising discretion, trial court as required to consider (1) whether facts or legal theories are being changed and (2) whether opposing party will be prejudiced by proposed amendment; amended pleading must be based on same general set of facts as those on which cause of action or defense as originally pleaded was grounded. City of Stanton v. Cox (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1557, 1563, 255 Cal. Rptr. 682

Amendment of complaint after plaintiff rests case in chief is within discretion of trial court. Oakes v. McCarthy Co. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 231, 262, 73 Cal. Rptr. 127

[c] Effect of Delay

Even if good amendment proposed in proper form, unwarranted delay in presenting it may itself be valid reason for denial. Record v. Reason (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 472, 486, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 547

Courts ordinarily exercise liberality in permitting amendments at any stage of proceeding; in particular, liberality is displayed in allowing amendments to answers, because defendant denied leave to amend is permanently deprived of defense; but whether amendment will be allowed rests in sound discretion of court, and courts are much more critical of proposed amendments to answers when offered after long unexplained delay or on eve of trial, or when there is a lack of diligence, or there is prejudice to other party. Hulsey v. Koehler (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1150, 1159, 267 Cal. Rptr. 523

Trial court's denial of motion to file amended cross complaint for delay in making motion as abuse of discretion when delay was caused by cross defendant's failure to deliver discovery materials. Arthur L. Sachs, Inc. v. City of Oceanside (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 315, 319-320, 198 Cal. Rptr. 483

Long unexcused delay as basis to deny permission to amend to interject new issue requiring discovery. Nelson v. Specialty Records, Inc. (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 126, 139, 89 Cal. Rptr. 540

[d] Denial for Failure to State Cause of Action

Leave to amend was properly denied to a group of governmental entities in a class action suit against lead manufacturers. The plaintiffs sought leave to file an amended complaint adding a cause of action for continuing trespass. The trial court denied leave on the ground that the proposed allegations did not state a cause of action. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that there was no cause of action for trespass in this instance because the pleadings clearly established that the lead was placed on plaintiffs' property either by the plaintiffs or with their consent. Where the owner has consented to the entry of the product onto the land there can be no cause of action for trespass. The court of appeal held that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying leave to file an amended pleading adding the proposed trespass cause of action because the proposed allegations did not, in fact, state a trespass cause of action. County of Santa Clara v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 292, 315, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 313

While amendments are generally liberally construed, failure of proposed amendment to state facts sufficient to constitute cause of action supports order denying motion to amend. La Jolla Village Homeowners' Assn. v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1131, 1141, 261 Cal. Rptr. 146

Leave to amend pleading is properly denied when facts are not in dispute and nature of plaintiff's claim is clear, but, under substantive law, no liability exists. Central National Ins. Co. v. California Ins. Guarantee Assn. (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 453, 460, 211 Cal. Rptr. 435

[e] Examples of When Granting Leave to Amend Is Proper or Denying Leave Is Abuse of Discretion

Civ. Code § 714.10(b) does not divest the trial court of its authority, under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, to grant leave to amend; in appropriate circumstances, amendment after a sustained demurrer is permissible. Central Concrete Supply Co., Inc. v. Michael Bursak (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1092, 1103, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 909

Where plaintiffs presented factual assertions in their original Government Code claim to defendant city that fences erected upon city property prevent access to the sidewalk area, and block the sight lines upon entering and exiting their garage, these assertions support both a public nuisance per se and specific injury and plaintiffs are entitled to amend their complaint to allege a valid cause of action for public nuisance. Kempton v. City of Los Angeles (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 1344, 1348, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 852

The mantra "incorporated by reference" is not sacrosanct and under the rule of liberal construction cannot defeat otherwise adequate pleading; if all that was needed was to state words "incorporated by reference," trial court should have allowed cross complainant to amend further its fifth amended cross-complaint to add those words; denying cross complainant opportunity to amendment was abuse of discretion. Ludgate Ins. Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 592, 609, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 277

of which accrued before filing of bankruptcy petition, trial court erred in granting defendants' motion for judgment on the pleadings and denying plaintiffs' motion to amend complaint to substitute bankruptcy trustee as plaintiff; causes of action that accrue after filing bankruptcy petition are not property of bankruptcy estate, and thus, granting defendants' motion as to them was improper; plaintiffs were ignorant of viability of causes of action accruing before filing of bankruptcy petition because of what they were told by their bankruptcy attorney and leave to amend as to those causes of action should have been granted. Haley v. Dow Lewis Motors, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 497, 503-509, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 352

Trial court erred in denying cross-complainant's motion for leave to file second amended cross-complaint when trial court erroneously concluded that cross-complainant's earlier release of mechanic's lien prevented cross-complainant from filing any valid mechanic's lien thereafter; trial court should have considered cross-complainant's motion for leave to file amended pleadings on merits, to wit, on whether cross-complainant, the party seeking to amend, was not diligent in offering amendment after knowledge of facts, or whether delay prejudiced adverse party. Solit v. Tokai Bank (1999) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1435, 1448, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 243

Absent statute of limitations concern or prejudice to opposing party such as delay in trial, loss of critical evidence, or added cost of preparation, trial court should have granted leave to amend, rather than sustaining demurrer without leave to amend, when it knew of potentially viable claim at time of sustaining of demurrer, even though plaintiff did not request leave to amend. Kolani v. Gluska (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 402, 405, 412, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257

Leave to amend complaint was proper when circumstances surrounding motion for judgment on pleadings showed that plaintiff's complaint excusably confused similar names of seller and manufacturer of automobile, and no prejudice to defendant was shown. Prince v. Jensen Motors, Inc. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 653, 655-656, 188 Cal. Rptr. 911

Refusal to allow amendment of pleading to correct minor technical error (wrong document attached) was error when no significant delay or prejudice to adverse parties was suffered. Higgins v. Del Faro (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 558, 565-566, 176 Cal. Rptr. 704

Denial of motion before trial to amend complaint in action by purchaser against seller of real property for damages for fraud and breach of warranty contained in sales agreement to correct misdesignation of zoning and change values of property at time of sale was error; amendment for such purpose as commonly granted even after commencement of trial. Szabo v. Superior Court (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 839, 845, 148 Cal. Rptr. 837

Trial court's order substituting correct name of plaintiff was proper. Bank of America v. Superior Court (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 555, 557, 110 Cal. Rptr. 709

Trial court is not allowed to summarily enter judgment of dismissal in sustaining objection to introduction of evidence on ground that complaint fails to state cause of action without allowing plaintiff leave to amend, if leave is requested and if it appears defect in pleading can be remedied. McFaddin v. H. S. Crocker Co. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 585, 594, 33 Cal. Rptr. 389 (criticized on other grounds in DeCesare v. Lembert (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 20, 23-24, 192 Cal. Rptr. 354)

[f] Procedure

Party requesting leave to amend required to disclose nature of amendment either in notice of motion or by presenting proposed amendment. Stockton v. Newman (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 558, 562, 307 P.2d 56

Notice of motion and supporting affidavit are prerequisites of leave to amend complaint after complaint has been amended once as of course. Citizens' etc. Pensions v. Bd. of Supervisors (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 658, 661, 205 P.2d

[5] Motion to Strike if Leave Not Obtained

Motion to strike amended pleading filed without leave of court. Loser v. E.R. Bacon Co. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 387, 390, 20 Cal. Rptr. 221

[6] Inconsistency With Previous Pleadings

Sham pleading doctrine does not allow a trial court to demand the production of admissible evidence, specifically excluding plaintiff's own testimony, to support the proposed amendment to the complaint while at the same time preventing plaintiff from conducting any discovery. Although a trial court has powerful tools to shield parties and nonparties from abusive litigation tactics, it does not have the power to demand, as the condition for leave to amend, that a party present admissible evidence sufficient to withstand summary judgment. Sanai v. Saltz (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 746, 770, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 673

Sham pleading doctrine did not apply where plaintiff offered a plausible explanation for the amendment and demonstrated that a mistake had been made in drafting the original pleading. The sham pleading doctrine, under which plaintiffs are precluded from amending complaints without explanation to omit harmful allegations, is not intended to prevent honest complainants from correcting erroneous allegations or to prevent correction of ambiguous facts; instead, it is intended to enable courts to prevent an abuse of process. Deveny v. Entropin, Inc. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 408, 426-427, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 807

Sham pleading rule should not be applied when plaintiff seeks to change legal theory of recovery and legal conclusions plaintiff seeks to draw from underlying factual events, and also seeks to omit factual allegations irrelevant and immaterial to new legal theories asserted; third amended complaint alleged different legal theories based on same set of general facts as set out in superseded pleadings and prior omitted allegations pertaining to plaintiff's lack of intent and lack of agreement to sell plaintiff's partnership interest, even if true and read into the third amended complaint, were immaterial to the legal theories set out in that complaint and thus did not undermine or destroy causes of action in third amended complaint; under these circumstances, sham pleading rule inapplicable and no need for the plaintiff to explain reasons for amended pleading because there were no inconsistencies in underlying material or relevant factual allegations. Berman v. Bromberg (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 936, 946-949, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777

Plaintiff may not discard factual allegations of prior complaint, or avoid them by contradictory averments, in superseding, amended pleading; even if appellant were given leave to amend, it would not be allowed to amend complaint to state fact directly contradictory to one previously stated. Continental Ins. Co. v. Lexington Ins. Co. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 637, 646, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 116

After amended pleading has been filed, courts generally disregard original pleading, but not when amended complaint attempts to avoid defects set forth in prior complaint by ignoring them; court may examine prior complaint to ascertain whether amended complaint is merely sham. Amid v. Hawthorne Community Medical Group, Inc. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1383, 1387, 261 Cal. Rptr. 240

Allegations of fact in verified complaint that are subsequently omitted or contradicted in amended complaint continue to bind plaintiff; rule is useful to defeat abuses of privilege to amend and to discourage sham and untruthful pleadings, but is not intended to prevent honest plaintiffs from correcting erroneous allegations of generic terms or to prevent correction of ambiguous statements of fact. Contreras v. Blue Cross of California (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 945, 950, 245 Cal. Rptr. 258

Leave to amend is not allowed when amendment contradicts earlier allegations absent very satisfactory evidence that clearly shows mistake or inadvertence as to earlier allegation. American Advertising & Sales Co. v. Mid-Western Transport (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 875, 879, 199 Cal. Rptr. 735

Trial court did not abuse discretion in denying leave to amend when amendments contradict earlier allegations and ample evidence supports conclusion that moving party had not acted in good faith. American Advertising & Sales Co. v. Mid-Western Transport (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 875, 878-880, 199 Cal. Rptr. 735

Court ordinarily inclined to grant leave to cure mistaken or inadvertent allegation by amendment, but not required to accept bad faith, frivolous, or sham amendment. American Advertising & Sales Co. v. Mid-Western Transport (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 875, 878, 199 Cal. Rptr. 735

Trial court is allowed to examine superseded pleadings to determine whether or not amended pleading merely ignored defects in prior pleadings. Kiseskey v. Carpenters' Trust for So. California (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 222, 228-229, 192 Cal. Rptr. 492

Trial court allowed to refer to inconsistent allegations in original verified complaint in ruling on demurrer to amended verified complaint. Arthur v. Oceanside-Carlsbad Junior College Dist. (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 656, 665, 31 Cal. Rptr. 177

Reference to purchase order set forth verbatim in original unverified complaint for damages for breach of contract was properly considered by court in ruling on demurrer to unverified amended complaint. Continental Nut Co. v. Slate (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 264, 270-271, 217 P.2d 673

[7] Jurisdiction to Amend Pending or After Appeal

Trial court has same authority to allow amendments after general reversal as in case not yet tried. Slaughter v. Legal Process & Courier Service (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1236, 1252-1253, 209 Cal. Rptr. 189

Trial court lacks jurisdiction to allow amendment to pleading after appeal from judgment has been taken from judgment on the pleadings. Olson v. Superior Court (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 311, 312-314, 79 Cal. Rptr. 136

[8] Effect of Amendment

Second amended complaint that omitted name of one defendant of initial complaint effected dismissal of action with respect to that defendant; court's grant of motion to strike third amended complaint that reinstated that defendant was erroneous because dismissal was without prejudice. Kuperman v. Great Republic Life Ins. Co. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 943, 947, 241 Cal. Rptr. 187

Amended pleading constitutes abandonment of issues raised by original pleading and is subject to demurrer by defendant who filed answer to original complaint. Tushinsky v. Arnold (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 666, 669 n.1, 241 Cal. Rptr. 103

Amended complaint supersedes original complaint and grant of summary judgment on first complaint is therefore erroneous. Perry v. Atkinson (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 14, 18, 240 Cal. Rptr. 402

When complaint was amended by interlineation to delete cause of action, remaining paragraph not deleted but relating only to that cause of action became nullity. Burge v. Krug (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 201, 206

Amended complaint frames issues of case; after trial, leave may be granted to file second amended complaint. Foster v. Keating (1953) 120 Cal. App. 2d 435, 444-445, 452, 261 P.2d 529

[9] Amendment by New Counsel When No Substitution Filed

When original complaint was filed but not served, amended complaint served and filed by plaintiff's new attorney who had not filed and served formal substitution of attorneys in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 284(1), 285 was not rendered inoperative; rather, where actual authority of new or different attorney appears, courts regularly excuse absence of record of formal substitution and validate attorney's acts, particularly where adverse party has not been misled or otherwise prejudiced. Baker v. Boxx (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1303, 1308-1309, 277 Cal. Rptr. 409

[10] Review

[a] Leave to Amend Denied

An order denying leave to amend a complaint is not appealable, unless it has the effect of eliminating all issues between the plaintiff and a defendant so that there is nothing left to be tried or determined [Figueroa v. Northridge Hospital Medical Center (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 10, 13, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 677] .

Trial court has wide discretion in allowing amendment of any pleading, and as matter of policy, trial court's ruling in such matters will be upheld unless manifest or gross abuse of discretion shown. Record v. Reason (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 472, 486, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 547

Motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. 473(a)(1) is addressed to trial court's sound discretion; exercise of that discretion will not be reversed on appeal absent clear showing of abuse; more importantly, discretion to be exercised is that of trial court, not reviewing court; thus, even if reviewing court might have ruled otherwise in first instance, trial court's order will not be reversed, unless as matter of law, it is not supported by record. Haley v. Dow Lewis Motors, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 497, 506, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 352

On appeal, trial court's ruling will be upheld unless a manifest or gross abuse of discretion is shown; plaintiff has burden to show that trial court abused its discretion. Berman v. Bromberg (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 936, 945, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777

Denial of motion to amend pleading is reviewable on appeal from final judgment. Northridge Hospital Foundation v. Pic'N' Save No. 9, Inc. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1088, 1102

Appellate court may not interfere with denial of motion to amend unless abuse of discretion is manifest. American Advertising & Sales Co. v. Mid-Western Transport (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 875, 880, 199 Cal. Rptr. 735

Order denying leave to amend is generally not appealable unless order in effect is final determination of plaintiff's rights. American Advertising & Sales Co. v. Mid-Western Transport (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 875, 877 n. 1, 199 Cal. Rptr. 735

On appeal from denial of leave to amend complaint after sustaining demurrer, court is not concerned with plaintiff's possible difficulty or inability in proving allegations of complaint. Johnson v. County of Los Angeles (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 298, 306, 191 Cal. Rptr. 704

Writ of mandate is appropriate remedy to compel trial court to allow amendment when denial was abuse of trial court's discretion. Dunzweiler v. Superior Court (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 569, 573, 581, 73 Cal. Rptr. 331 ; Vedder v.

Superior Court (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 627, 628, 62 Cal. Rptr. 222 (stating rule but denying writ); Morgan v. Superior Court (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 527, 530-531, 343 P.2d 62

Issue of court's abuse of discretion in not granting permission to amend after sustaining demurrer or granting judgment on pleadings is preserved for appeal without request for leave to amend in trial court. Dobbins v. Hardister (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 787, 797, 51 Cal. Rptr. 866 ; Greninger v. Fischer (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 549, 551, 184 P.2d 694

[b] Leave to Amend Granted

Trial court's action in permitting amendment is upheld on appeal absent clear showing of abuse of discretion. People ex rel. Dept. Pub. Wks. v. Jarvis (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 217, 222, 79 Cal. Rptr. 175

Permission to file amendment as assumed on appeal where amendment is filed and trial court made decisions thereon. Harm v. Frasher (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 405, 420, 5 Cal. Rptr. 367

[11] Supplemental Pleadings

[a] Subject Matter

Plaintiffs may bring, but are not required to bring, events occurring after filing of complaint into scope of litigation by filing supplemental complaint with leave of court (Code Civ. Proc. § 464). Los Angeles Branch NAACP v. L.A. Unified Sch. Dist. (9th Cir. 1984) 750 F.2d 731, 739

Supplemental pleading is not required to obtain damages to date of trial in equitable action. Hutcherson v. Alexander (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 126, 136, 70 Cal. Rptr. 366

Supplemental complaint must state matter in furtherance of and consistent with original action. Gonzales v. Arbelbide (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 721, 726-727, 318 P.2d 746 ; Erickson v. Boothe (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 644, 647, 274 P.2d 460

Supplemental answer alleges occurrences material to defense happening after commencement of action and prior to judgment. Security-First Nat. Bank v. Hauer (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 302, 307, 117 P.2d 952

[b] Effect of Delay

Unexplained delay is basis for refusal of permission to file supplemental complaint. American Aeronautics Corp. v. Grand Cent. Aircraft Co. (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 69, 83, 317 P.2d 694

[c] Inconsistency With Prior Pleadings

Trial court is not bound to accept as true allegations in supplemental pleadings that are contrary to factual allegations in former pleadings. Potter v. Arizona So. Coach Lines, Inc. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 126, 133 n. 2, 248 Cal. Rptr. 284

[d] Relation to Statute of Limitations

Supplemental complaint relates back to date of original complaint when original complaint gave defendant notice that wrong was of continuing nature and supplemental complaint only addresses later instances of same continuing conduct as that alleged in original complaint. Bendix Corp. v. City of Los Angeles (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 921, 926, 198 Cal. Rptr. 370 (disagreeing with ITT Gilfillan, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 581, 589, 185 Cal. Rptr. 848)

Supplemental complaint does not relating back to date of filing of original complaint and thus not allowed after statute of limitations expires. ITT Gilfillan, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 581, 586-589, 185 Cal. Rptr. 848

[e] Procedure

Filing of supplemental complaint or cross complaint requires noticed motion. Earp v. Nobmann (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 270, 287, 175 Cal. Rptr. 767 , disapproved on other grounds Silberg v. Anderson (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 205, 219, 266 Cal. Rptr. 638, 786 P.2d 365

[12] Substitution of Parties

[a] Unnecessary When Party Acquires Coplaintiff's Interest

Substitution is unnecessary when one already a party acquires coplaintiff's interest. Miller v. Bank of America (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 512, 516, 126 P.2d 444

[b] Granting Motion

Amendment naming State of California as plaintiff in place of state agency was proper as technical amendment not affecting nature of the action. California Air Resources Bd. v. Hart (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 289, 301, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 153

Substitution of successor of public officer is allowed on death of officer sued in official capacity. Ott Hardware Co. v. Holmberg (1918) 36 Cal. App 402, 405, 179 P. 422

[c] Denial of Motion

Motion to substitute assignee is properly denied when purpose of assignment is to permit layperson to practice law. Ruby v. Superior Court (1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 175, 176, 230 P.2d 860, 231 P.2d 868

[d] Time for Motion

Motion for substitution may be granted after trial concluded, judgment entered, and motion for new trial denied. Erickson v. Boothe (1949) 90 Cal. App. 2d 457, 459, 203 P.2d 122

Transferee's right of substitution is permissive, resting in court's discretion, and under some circumstances may be granted following rendition of judgment; when judgment was entered in favor of plaintiff as administratrix of estate and as sole heir, judgment debtor could not collaterally attack judgment based on plaintiff's obtaining ex parte order substituting herself, individually, as plaintiff after entry of judgment and seeking to execute the judgment in the name of the substituted plaintiff. Hogan v. Superior Court (1925) 74 Cal. App. 704, 713, 241 P. 584

[e] Notice

Notice of application for substitution must be given to party being substituted when that party is not making the application. Higgins v. Kay (1914) 168 Cal. 468, 471-473, 143 P. 710

Courts allow substitution of executor or administrator of estate of deceased on ex parte motion. Campbell v. West (1892) 93 Cal. 653, 656, 29 P. 219

Notice of application for substitution is better practice, although not required. Chatten v. Martell (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 545, 553, 333 P.2d 364 ; Macmillan Petroleum Corp. v. Griffin (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 523, 526, 222 P.2d 69

[f] Continuation of Action in Original Party's Name

[i] Transferee's Option

Trial court has discretion to allow action to continue in name of original party when interest is voluntarily transferred. Alameda County Home Inv. Co v. Whitaker (1933) 217 Cal. 231, 234, 18 P.2d 662

Grantee's option to continue action in name of original party or substitute. Tuffree v. Stearns Ranchos Co. (1899) 124 Cal. 306, 308, 57 P. 69

Action by court is unnecessary to continue case in name of original party after assignment of interest in the action. Malone v. Big Flat Gravel M. Co. (1892) 93 Cal. 384, 390, 28 P. 1063 ; Cleverdon v. Gray (1944) 62 Cal. App. 2d 612, 616, 145 P.2d 95

On transfer of party's interest in subject matter of pending action, proceeding may, under former Code Civ. Proc. § 385(a) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 368.5), be continued in name of original party. Knapp Development & Design v. Pal-Mal Properties, Ltd. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 786, 793, 240 Cal. Rptr. 920

[ii] Effect

When transferee elects to continue action in name of original party, court may give judgment according to conditions existing at time case was begun. Knobloch v. Associated Oil Co. (1915) 170 Cal. 144, 147, 148 P. 938

When action is continued in name of original party after transfer in interest, nominal party's stipulation for entry of judgment is fraudulent and may be set aside. Crescent Canal Co. v. Montgomery (1899) 124 Cal. 134, 142, 56 P. 797

Assignee's right to control further proceedings in action continued in name of assignor. Davis v. Rudolph (1947) 80 Cal. App. 2d 397, 401, 181 P.2d 765

[g] Waiver of Objection

Filing answer to supplemental complaint bringing in substituted party constituted waiver of right to object to substitution. Dougherty v. California Kettleman etc. (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 58, 85, 69 P.2d 155 ; see Ford v. Bushard (1897) 116 Cal. 273, 276, 48 P. 119

[h] Appeal

Order of substitution after judgment is appealable. Erickson v. Boothe (1949) 90 Cal. App. 2d 457, 460, 203 P.2d 122

Refusal to permit substitution of administrator, which eliminated her as party, is final judgment from which appeal can be taken. Majors v. County of Merced (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 427, 432, 24 Cal. Rptr. 610 ; Walsh v. Superior Court (1928) 92 Cal. App 454, 456, 268 P. 442 (executor)

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

3-21 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 21.50

§ 21.50 Checklist for Amending Pleading

NOTE:
Illustrative List. The following checklist is illustrative only and is not exhaustive.

[1] Preliminary Determinations and Matters to Be Ascertained

☐ On becoming aware of facts, law, or a development in the case requiring a change in a pleading, determine whether an amended or supplemental pleading is required:

☐ If new facts to be alleged occurred after original pleading was filed, a supplemental pleading is required rather than an amended pleading [see Code Civ. Proc. § 464(a); Cohen v. Superior Court (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 650, 657, 53 Cal. Rptr. 378 ; for a checklist, see § 21.51, below].

☐ Determine applicable time limits:

☐ For amendment as of course:

☐ Any time before the answer or demurrer is filed, or after demurrer and before the trial of the issue of law thereon [Code Civ. Proc. § 472; see § 21.12].

☐ For amendment to substitute true name for fictitious name of defendant:

☐ Promptly after learning true name [see § 21.14].

☐ For amendment based on development in case:

☐ After demurrer is granted with leave to amend either [for discussion, see 21.17[1][b]]:

☐ If forcible entry, forcible detainer, or unlawful detainer action, within 5 calendar days [Code Civ. Proc. § 472a(c); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(g)],

☐ If action is will contest, within 15 days [Prob. Code § 8251(b)], or ☐ Otherwise, within 10 days, or other period as ordered by the court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 472a(c); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(g)].

☐ After motion to strike is granted with leave to amend:

☐ Within period ordered by the court, [see Code Civ. Proc. § 472a(d)].

☐ After change of venue:

☐ As ordered by the court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 399].

☐ To plead omitted cause of action subject to compulsory cross complaint requirements:

☐ Any time during the course of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 426.50].

☐ To conform to proof:

☐ When variance between pleading and proof appears [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 469, 470].

☐ In furtherance of justice:

☐ At any time as allowed by court [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473, 576].

PRACTICE TIP:

Do Not Delay Amending Pleading. Once the need to amend becomes apparent, counsel should amend the pleading promptly. Counsel will need to explain any long, unexcused delay, and if the amendment is subject to the court's discretion, the court may refuse to allow the amendment, particularly if allowing it will require further discovery [Nelson v. Specialty Records, Inc. (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 126, 139, 89 Cal. Rptr. 540 (no abuse of discretion to deny leave to amend); see also Dunzweiler v. Superior Court (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 569, 577, 73 Cal. Rptr. 331 (issuing writ of mandate directing trial court to allow amendment)].

☐ Consider potential problems raised by amendment.

☐ If a party is to be joined, determine where the party resides or has a principal place of business and whether the party is subject to the court's jurisdiction.

☐ Will the proposed amendment affect the jurisdictional classification of the case [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 32.5 (jurisdictional classification), 85.1 (jurisdiction in limited civil cases), 403.010 et seq. (motion to reclassify case), 396 (transfer of an action from a court lacking to a court having jurisdiction); for discussion, see Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter].

☐ Determine whether there has been such delay in seeking to amend a pleading that an explanation will be required.

☐ Determine whether the filing of the proposed pleading requires court permission.

☐ Leave is not required for:

☐ One amendment before answer or demurrer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 472].

☐ Amendment to substitute true for fictitious name [see Code Civ. Proc. § 474].

☐ Amendment to change proceeding from legal separation to dissolution of marriage if residence requirements for the latter were not met when the proceeding commenced [see Fam. Code § 2321(a)].

☐ Leave is required in all other cases.

☐ If leave of court is required, ascertain whether counsel for opposing parties will stipulate to the proposed amendment.

☐ Determine whether an amended pleading [for a form, see § 21.60] is required or whether an amendment to the pleading [for forms, see § 21.61 et seq.] may be used [see § 21.18]:

☐ Does the court require an amended complaint rather than an amendment to a complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 471.5]?

☐ Does local court rule or practice express a preference for an amended pleading over an amendment to a pleading?

☐ If amendment to the pleading can be used, weigh, as a practical matter, the effort involved in preparing a complete new pleading and the difficulty in reading the original and the amendment together.

☐ If leave of court is required and counsel will not stipulate to the pleading, determine manner of making request:

☐ By ex parte motion.

☐ By noticed motion.

☐ Orally in open court [see, e.g., State Medical Education Bd. v. Roberson (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 493, 502, 86 Cal. Rptr. 258 (amendment to conform to proof)].

NOTE:
Local Practice. Consult local court rules regarding ex parte motions.

[2] Amendment Without Leave of Court

☐ Prepare an amended pleading [for a form, see § 21.60] or an amendment to the pleading [for forms, see § 21.61 et seq.] in the following number of copies:

☐ Original for filing.

☐ Copy for each named party.

☐ Office copy.

☐ Copy for client, if desired.

☐ Additional copies as desired.

☐ Prepare summons if [see § 21.19[1]]:

☐ New party is named.

☐ Party has not appeared (to ensure ability to take default).

☐ Prepare proof of service.

☐ File the amendment or amended pleading and serve copies of it, along with any summons required, on the other parties.

☐ In case of complaint, serve on the defendants affected by it [Code Civ. Proc. § 471.5].

☐ In case of all pleadings subsequent to complaint, except with leave of court, serve the adverse party or his or her attorney in the manner provided for the service of papers generally, unless service of summons is required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 465].

NOTE:
For a procedural guide and for forms of summons and proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[3] Stipulation to Amendment

☐ Prepare the proposed amendment [for forms, see § 21.61 et seq.] or amended pleading [for a form, see § 21.60] in the following number of copies:

☐ Original for filing.

☐ Copy for each party.

☐ Copy for client, if desired.

☐ Additional copies as desired.

☐ Prepare the stipulation in the same number of copies.

☐ Attach one copy of the proposed amendment to the original and to each copy of the stipulation.

☐ Date and sign the original stipulation and transmit it and one copy of it, to the other party to the stipulation with request that he or she sign and return the original.

☐ Present the original executed stipulation to the clerk of the judge who will sign the order allowing the amendment.

☐ After the order is signed, prepare the amendment or amended pleading in the following number of copies:

☐ Original for filing.

- ☐ Copy for each party (unless stipulation has waived service).
- ☐ Office copy.
- ☐ Copy for client, if desired.
- ☐ Additional copies as desired.

☐ Prepare proof of service (unless stipulation has waived service).

☐ Prepare summons if [see § 21.19[1]]:

- ☐ New party is named.
- ☐ Party has not appeared (to ensure ability to take default).

For procedure and forms relating to issuance and service of summons, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[4] Ex Parte Motion for Leave to Amend

☐ Check local ex parte practice if not familiar with it, including any preference for the motion and order to be separate papers.

☐ Prepare papers:

- ☐ Proposed amendment [for forms, see § 21.61 et seq.] or amended pleading [for a form, see § 21.60] in the following number of copies:
  - ☐ Original for submitting to judge.
  - ☐ Office copy.
  - ☐ Copy for client, if desired.
  - ☐ Additional copies as desired.

☐ Motion [for a form, see § 21.76] and order [forms, see §§ 21.76, 21.83] in a same number of copies.

☐ Reasonable time before making application either:

☐ Inform opposing party or opposing party's attorney when and where application will be made, or ☐ Determine not to do so.

☐ Prepare declaration [for a form, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders] to accompany motion stating that either:

☐ The moving party informed the opposing party or opposing party's attorney of the time and place of the application a reasonable time before it was made, or

☐ The moving party attempted to inform the opposing party and the opposing party's attorney of the time and place of the application, but was unable to do so, specifying the efforts made, or

☐ For specified reasons, the moving party should not be required to notify the opposing party or the opposing party's attorney.

☐ Deliver the original of the motion and accompanying papers to the court clerk for presentation to the judge.

☐ If the motion is granted, prepare the amendment to the pleading or amended pleading, if not already done, and the proof of service in the same number of copies indicated above.

☐ Attach a copy of the court's order (or motion and order where they are combined) to the original of the amendment to, or amended, pleading, and attach the original of the proof of service.

☐ Serve a copy of each of these papers on the adverse party and present the originals (with the copy of the court's order attached) to the court clerk for filing.

[5] Noticed Motion

NOTE:
This checklist briefly outlines the steps in proceeding by a noticed motion. For a more detailed checklist and additional forms for use in making a noticed motion, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

☐ Prepare papers:

☐ Proposed amendment [for forms, see § 21.61 et seq.] or amended pleading [for a form, see § 21.60] in the following number of copies:

☐ Original for filing.

☐ Copy for each party to be given notice.

- ☐ Office copy.
- ☐ Copy for client, if desired.
- ☐ Additional copies as desired.

☐ Notice of motion [for forms, see §§ 21.77, 21.78, 21.84] in the same number of copies.

☐ Supporting affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury [for forms, see §§ 21.79 -21.82] in same number of copies and have the original executed.

☐ Proposed order [for a form, see § 21.83], if required by local practice.

☐ Proof of service.

☐ Attach the original and copies of the proposed amendment or pleading to the original notice of motion and the copies to the copies of the notice of motion.

☐ Present the original notice and supporting papers to the clerk of the court for filing and request that the hearing be calendared if that has not already been done.

☐ Lodge proposed order with court, if required by local practice.

☐ Serve a copy of notice of motion and supporting papers on each party who has appeared in the action.

For a checklist and for forms of proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

☐ Follow local practice regarding tentative rulings.

☐ Attend the hearing, if any, and present argument in support of the motion.

☐ If the motion is granted:

- ☐ If proposed order was not adequate, prepare revised order.
- ☐ Prepare amendment to the pleading, or the amended pleading in the same number of copies as proposed amendment or amended pleading.

☐ Present the order to the judge for signing.

☐ Present the original order and the original pleading to the court for filing.

☐ Prepare proof of service, attach the original to true copies of the order and pleading for filing, and attach a copy to each copy of the order and pleading to be served.

☐ Serve the copies of the order, pleading, and proof of service on the other parties.

☐ If the amendment adds a party, a summons will also have to be served on that party.

For a checklist and forms, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[6] Oral Motion

☐ Make the motion orally in open court.

☐ If the motion is granted, prepare the amendment or amended or supplemental pleading in the same number of copies as in [4], above.

☐ Present the original to the court clerk for filing and serve the copies on the parties.

For a checklist and forms of proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

3-21 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 21.51

§ 21.51 Checklist for Supplemental Pleading

NOTE:
Illustrative List. The following checklist is illustrative only and is not exhaustive.

[1] Preliminary Determinations and Matters to Be Ascertained

☐ On becoming aware of facts, law, or development in the case requiring a change in a pleading, determine whether an amended or supplemental pleading is required:

☐ If the new facts to be alleged occurred before the original pleading was filed, an amended pleading is required rather than a supplemental pleading [see Code Civ. Proc. § 464(a); Cohen v. Superior Court (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 650, 657, 53 Cal. Rptr. 378 ; for a checklist, see § 21.50, above].

☐ Consider potential problems raised by supplemental pleading.

☐ If a party is to be joined, determine where the party resides or has a principal place of business and whether the party is subject to the court's jurisdiction.

☐ If a defendant or cause of action is to be added to a complaint, determine whether the statute of limitations has run, and if so, whether the amended complaint will relate back to avoid the statute [see § 21.26[2]].

☐ Will the proposed supplemental pleading affect the jurisdictional classification of the case [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 32.5 (jurisdictional classification), 85.1 (jurisdiction in limited civil cases), 403.010 et seq. (motion to reclassify case), 396 (transfer of an action from a court lacking to a court having jurisdiction); for discussion, see Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter].

☐ Determine whether there has been such delay in seeking to amend a pleading that an explanation will be required.

☐ If supplemental pleading is to allege death of defendant and substitute in personal representative, follow procedure for filing a claim against estate [see Ch. 454, Probate: Claims Against the Estate].

☐ Determine whether the filing of the proposed pleading requires court permission.

☐ Leave is not required for:

☐ Supplemental complaint when child support is at issue [Code Civ. Proc. § 464(b); for discussion, see § 21.28].

☐ Leave is required in all other cases.

☐ If leave of court is required, ascertain whether counsel for opposing parties will stipulate to the proposed supplemental complaint.

[2] Stipulation to Supplemental Pleading

☐ Prepare the supplemental pleading [for a form, see § 21.90] in the following number of copies:

☐ Copy for each party.

☐ Copy for client, if desired.

☐ Additional copies as desired.

☐ Prepare the stipulation [for a form, see § 21.91] in the same number of copies.

☐ Attach one copy of the proposed pleading to the original and to each copy of the stipulation.

☐ Date and sign the original stipulation and transmit it and one copy of it, to the other party to the stipulation with request that he or she sign and return the original.

☐ Present the original executed stipulation to the clerk of the judge who will sign the order allowing the supplemental pleading.

☐ After the order is signed, prepare the supplemental pleading in the following number of copies:

☐ Copy for each party (unless stipulation has waived service).

☐ Office copy.

☐ Copy for client, if desired.

☐ Additional copies as desired.

☐ Prepare proof of service (unless stipulation has waived service).

☐ Prepare summons if [see § 21.19[1]]:

☐ New party is named.

☐ Party has not appeared (to ensure ability to take default).

For procedure and forms relating to issuance and service of summons, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[3] Noticed Motion

NOTE:
Although Code Civ. Proc. § 464 does not expressly require use of a noticed motion, that appears to be the usual practice. This checklist briefly outlines the steps in proceeding by a noticed motion. For a more detailed checklist and additional forms for use in making a noticed motion, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

☐ Prepare papers:

☐ Proposed supplemental pleading [for a form, see § 21.90 (general) or § 21.108 (substitution for deceased defendant)] in the following number of copies:

- ☐ Original for filing.
- ☐ Copy for each party to be given notice.
- ☐ Office copy.
- ☐ Copy for client, if desired.
- ☐ Additional copies as desired.

☐ Notice of motion and supporting declarations in the same number of copies:

- ☐ General form [see § 21.92].
- ☐ Substitution for Deceased Plaintiff [see §§ 21.100 -21.102].
- ☐ Substitution for Deceased Defendant [see §§ 21.103 -21.105].
- ☐ Memorandum in support of the motion in the same number of copies.

☐ Proposed order, if required by local practice.

☐ Proof of service.

☐ Attach the original and copies of the proposed pleading to the original notice of motion and the copies to the copies of the notice of motion.

☐ Present the original notice and supporting papers to the clerk of the court for filing and request that the hearing be calendared if that has not already been done.

☐ Lodge proposed order with court, if required by local practice.

☐ Serve a copy of notice of motion and supporitng papers papers on each party who has appeared in the action.

For a checklist and for forms of proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

☐ Follow local practice regarding tentative rulings.

☐ Attend the hearing, if any, and present argument in support of the motion.

☐ If the motion is granted:

☐ If proposed order was not adequate, prepare revised order.

☐ Prepare supplemental pleading in the same number of copies as proposed pleading.

☐ Present the order to the judge for signing.

☐ Present the original order and the original pleading to the court for filing.

☐ Prepare proof of service, attach the original to true copies of the order and pleading for filing, and attach a copy to each copy of the order and pleading to be served.

☐ Serve the copies of the order, pleading, and proof of service on the other parties.

☐ If the pleading adds a party, a summons will also have to be served on that party.

For a checklist and forms, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, shows the format for an amended pleading and is for use when a pleading is to be entirely rewritten and will completely supersede the preceding pleading. By contrast, an amendment to a pleading merely adds to or otherwise changes part of an existing pleading [Cohen v. Superior Court (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 650, 657, 53 Cal. Rptr. 378 ; for forms of amendments to pleadings, see §§ 21.61, 21.63 -21.69].

[3] Determining Whether to Use Amended Pleading or Amendment to Pleading

An amended pleading is required when a party seeks to amend of course under Code Civ. Proc. § 472.

A court may, in its discretion, require that an amended pleading, rather than an amendment to a pleading, be filed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 471.5 (complaints); Spreckels v. Ord (1887) 72 Cal. 86, 88, 13 P. 158 (applying predecessor of Code Civ. Proc. § 471.5 to answers)]. When an amended pleading is not required, counsel, in determining whether to file an amended pleading or an amendment to the pleading, should consider the complexity of the amendment and the ease with which the pleading may be read after amendment. An amended pleading may be preferred over an amendment to a pleading [see, e.g. Siskiyou Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 3.04(B)(2)].

[4] Format of Amended Pleading

The format of an amended pleading follows the format of the original pleading, with the exception of the caption. The caption in the amended pleading should indicate that the pleading is an amended one, for example, in the case of a complaint, by writing "AMENDED COMPLAINT" below the number of the action. If there is more than one amended pleading filed, the second will be denoted, for example, "SECOND AMENDED COMPLAINT." Subsequent amended pleadings will be denoted "THIRD," "FOURTH," etc.

While the title of the case on each initial complaint or cross-complaint requires that the name of each party be listed on a separate line at the left margin of the page, on any subsequent pleading or paper it is sufficient in the title of the case to (1) state the name of the first party on each side, with appropriate indication of other parties, and (2) state that a cross-action or cross-actions are involved, if applicable [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(4)].

If a case is reclassified by an amended complaint, cross-complaint, amended cross-complaint, or other pleading under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 403.020 or 403.030 and the reclassification fee, if required, is paid, the clerk will promptly reclassify the cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.020(a)], and the caption must indicate that the action or proceeding is reclassified by this pleading [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(11)]. If a case is reclassified by stipulation under Code Civ. Proc. § 403.050, the title of the stipulation must state that the action or proceeding is reclassified by the stipulation. The caption or title must state that the case is a limited civil case reclassified as an unlimited civil case, or an unlimited civil case reclassified as a limited civil case, or other words to that effect [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(11)].

An amendment to an initial pleading is treated the same manner as an amended initial pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.020(b)].

[5] Verification

There is no requirement that an amended pleading not otherwise required to be verified be verified because the original pleading was verified.

For a discussion of when verification is required and for alternative forms of verification, see Ch. 572, Verification .

[6] Application of Rules to Special Proceedings

Although the rules relating to amendment of pleadings are found in Part Two of the Code of Civil Procedure, and therefore are expressly applicable only to the pleadings permitted in civil actions, namely, complaints, demurrers, answers, and cross complaints [see Code Civ. Proc. § 422.10], amendments to pleadings in special proceedings are generally made in compliance with these rules, particularly when the statutes governing the special proceeding include incorporate the provisions of Part Two of the Code of Civil Procedure to the extent they are not inconsistent with provisions expressly governing the particular special proceeding [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 1109 (rules of practice in proceedings involving writs of review, mandate, and prohibition)].

[2] Use of Form

The form of amendment to a pleading in [1], above, is for use in deleting a paragraph of the original pleading and adding a new paragraph.

The amendment must designate the pages and lines of the pleading which are being amended. No amendment is to be made by alterations on the face of a pleading without the court's permission. All alterations must be initialed by the court or clerk [Cal. Rules Ct., Rule 3.1324(d)].

An amendment to a pleading is not used where the pleader seeks to amend of course under Code Civ. Proc. § 472 or where the court directs that an amended pleading be filed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 471.5; Spreckels v. Ord (1887) 72 Cal. 86, 88, 13 P. 158 (decided under predecessor of Code Civ. Proc. § 471.5)]. For a form of amended pleading and further discussion, see § 21.60.

An amendment should be executed in the same manner as the original pleading, and, thus, if the original pleading was verified, the amendment should be verified [see Placer Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 20.2.4(E)(3)].

If the effect of the amendment is to reclassify the case, the caption or title must state that the case is a limited civil case reclassified as an unlimited civil case, or an unlimited civil case reclassified as a limited civil case, or other words to that effect [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(11)].

[3] Verification

There is no requirement that an amended pleading not otherwise required to be verified be verified because the original pleading was verified.

For a discussion of when verification is required and for alternative forms of verification, see Ch. 572, Verification .

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use as an amendment to a complaint to substitute the defendant's correct name for an incorrect name [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473; for discussion of this type of amendment, see § 21.13[1] [b]]. The form may be adapted for use as an amendment to a cross complaint or a petition by appropriate designation of the parties and by use of the proper caption.

The court may, in furtherance of justice, and on such terms as may be proper, allow a party to amend any pleading or proceeding by correcting a mistake in the name of a party [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. Most courts do not require a separate application for leave to file the amendment. However, where a court does require a separate application, it may be made ex parte [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473].

Plaintiff was ignorant of a defendant's name, stated that fact in the complaint, and designated the defendant by a fictitious name. That defendant's true name has now been discovered and plaintiff hereby amends the complaint, as follows:

True Name Fictitious Name

_____ [name] to substitute for _____ [fictitious name]

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use as an amendment to a complaint to substitute the true name of a defendant for the fictitious name by which that defendant was sued [see Code Civ. Proc. § 474]. The form may be adapted for use as an amendment to a cross complaint or a petition by appropriate designation of the parties and by use of the proper caption.

When a defendant is sued by a fictitious name and the true name is subsequently discovered, the pleading or proceeding must be amended accordingly [Code Civ. Proc. § 474]. Code Civ. Proc. § 474 contains no express requirement that leave of court be obtained before filing the amendment; however, some court forms [see § 21.66] have a space provided for granting such leave, and counsel should determine whether the clerk will require leave before filing the amendment.

Some courts have printed forms that should be used for this purpose [for illustrations of some of those forms, see §§ 21.66, 21.67].

[3] Fictitious Name Allegation Requirement

The requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 474 are mandatory, including the requirement that the complaint allege the plaintiff's ignorance of the true name of a defendant [Kerr-McGee Chemical Corp. v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 594, 598, 206 Cal. Rptr. 654] .

A plaintiff is not allowed to substitute the true name of party for a fictitious name if the plaintiff was not ignorant of the true name when complaint was filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 474; see, e.g., Woo v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 169, 177-180, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20 (declining to follow Balon v. Drost); Balon v. Drost (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 483, 488-490, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12 (allowing amendment); Optical Surplus, Inc. v. Superior Court (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 776, 782-784, 279 Cal. Rptr. 194] . However, even though the plaintiff knows of the existence of the defendant sued by a fictitious name and the defendant's actual identity (i.e., his or her name), the plaintiff is "ignorant" within the meaning of the statute if he or she lacks knowledge of that person's connection with the case or with his or her injuries. Ignorance of the facts giving rise to a cause of action is the ignorance required by Code Civ. Proc. § 474 and the pivotal question is "did plaintiff know of facts?" not "did plaintiff know or believe that plaintiff had a cause of action based on those facts?" [General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 580, 593-594, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 871] . For further discussion of what constitutes "ignorance" of a defendant's name, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used, § 20.12.

A plaintiff cannot amend under Section 474 to substitute one party for another named party. For example, even though the complaint included a Doe allegation, the plaintiff could not use Section 474 to amend the complaint to name Kerr-McGee Chemical Corp. as "the person sued under the fictitious name of: Trona Medical Center" because Trona Medical Center was not identified as a fictitious name in the original complaint [Kerr-McGee Chemical Corp. v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 594, 597-601, 206 Cal. Rptr. 654 (also rejecting use of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to bring a new party into the action; service was properly quashed)].

[4] Timing

A plaintiff is not precluded from using the fictitious name procedure [Code Civ. Proc. § 474] because of unreasonable delay in amending the complaint unless defendant suffered specific prejudice from the delay [Barrows v. American Motors Corp. (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 1, 9-10, 192 Cal. Rptr. 380] . For discussion of the effect of delay, see § 21.14[2].

[2] Use of Form

The form of stipulation and order in [1], above, is for use to amend a pleading [see Code Civ. Proc. § 283(1) (attorney's authority to bind client)]. The stipulation is not necessary if leave of court is not required to amend [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 472 (amendment of course), 474 (fictitiously named defendant)]; or if notice to the adverse party is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473].

If a case is reclassified by stipulation under Code Civ. Proc. § 403.050, the title of the stipulation must state that the action or proceeding is reclassified by this stipulation; and the caption or title must state that the case is a limited civil case reclassified as an unlimited civil case, or an unlimited civil case reclassified as a limited civil case, or other words to that effect [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(11)].

The stipulation is to the filing of a particular amendment. A copy of that amendment is attached to the stipulation and is identified as a proposed amendment or amended pleading, for example, "PROPOSED AMENDED COMPLAINT" or "PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO ANSWER." For a form of an amended pleading, see § 21.60; for forms of amendments to pleadings, see §§ 21.61, 21.63 -21.69.

The optional second paragraph of the stipulation waives notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473] and service of the amendment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 471.5] and concludes with a further optional clause, for use if the amendment is to a complaint or cross complaint, that an answer to the amendment need not be filed. These stipulations are to be used only in appropriate situations.

Additional stipulations may also be added as desired by the parties, such as a stipulation that the period between the filing of the complaint and the time of adding a new party will not be included in computing the time during which summons must be served [see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.230(a)] or the time during which an action must be brought to trial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.330(a)]. For further discussion of these periods, see Ch. 212, Dismissal .

[2] Use of Form

The form of stipulation in [1], above, is for use to amend a complaint, to limit the time within which an answer to the amendment must be served and filed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 471.5 (defendant required to answer amendment to complaint within 30 days after service thereof)], and to extend the time within which the action must be prosecuted [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.230(a), 583.330(a)].

A stipulation to extend the time for prosecution of an action beyond the 5-year period provided by former Code Civ. Proc. § 583(b) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310] does not permit the plaintiff to amend the complaint to add a new cause of action warranting a series of new facts and theories not included in the original complaint filed more than five years previously [Avedissian v. Manukian (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 379, 383, 190 Cal. Rptr. 291] .

If a case is reclassified by stipulation under Code Civ. Proc. § 403.050, the title of the stipulation must state that the action or proceeding is reclassified by this stipulation; and the caption or title must state that the case is a limited civil case reclassified as an unlimited civil case, or an unlimited civil case reclassified as a limited civil case, or other words to that effect [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(11)].

[2] Use of Form

The form of ex parte motion in [1], above, is for use when leave of court is required to amend a pleading, but notice to the adverse party is not required. A party may amend a pleading by adding or striking out the name of any party, or by correcting a mistake in the name of a party, or a mistake in any other respect without notice to the adverse party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a)]. However, leave of court is required if the period specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 472 (amendment of course) has elapsed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a)]. For discussion, see §§ 21.12, 21.13[1].

This motion need not be made in writing and preparation of this form may not be necessary if counsel is otherwise before the court and can make the motion orally.

[3] Contents of Motion

A motion to amend a pleading before trial must include a copy of the proposed amendment or amended pleading, which must be serially numbered to differentiate it from previous pleadings or amendments [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1324(a)(1)]. It must state what allegations in the previous pleading are proposed to be deleted, if any, and where, by page, paragraph, and line number, the deleted allegations are located; and it must state what allegations are proposed to be added to the previous pleading, if any, and where, by page, paragraph, and line number, the additional allegations are located [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1324(a)(2), (3)]. The form includes an optional sentence for attaching a copy of the proposed amendment, but local practice should be checked as to whether the amendment should be bound with the motion or submitted under separate cover.

The motion must be accompanied by a declaration which specifies, 1) the effect of the amendment; 2) why the amendment is necessary and proper; 3) when the facts giving rise to the amended allegations were discovered; and 4) the reasons why the request for amendment was not made earlier [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1324(b)].

For a declaration that may be incorporated in or submitted with this form that both states the effect and details changes made by the amendment, see § 21.79.

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion in [1], above, is for use when notice to the adverse party is required to obtain leave of court to amend a pleading. Notice is required after the period specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 472 (amendment of course) has passed, unless the amendment seeks merely to add or to strike a pary's name or to correct a mistake in the pleading [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a)].

[3] Contents of Motion

A motion to amend a pleading before trial must include a copy of the proposed amendment or amended pleading, which must be serially numbered to differentiate it from previous pleadings or amendments [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1324(a)(1)]. It must state what allegations in the previous pleading are proposed to be deleted, if any, and where, by page, paragraph, and line number, the deleted allegations are located; and it must state what allegations are proposed to be added to the previous pleading, if any, and where, by page, paragraph, and line number, the additional allegations are located [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1324(a)(2), (3)]. The form includes an optional sentence for attaching a copy of the proposed amendment, but local practice should be checked as to whether the amendment should be bound with the motion or submitted under separate cover.

The motion must be accompanied by a declaration which specifies, 1) the effect of the amendment; 2) why the amendment is necessary and proper; 3) when the facts giving rise to the amended allegations were discovered; and 4) the reasons why the request for amendment was not made earlier [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1324(b)]. For forms of declarations under penalty of perjury that support a motion, see §§ 21.79 et seq.

Filing the proposed amendment as an attachment to the notice of motion must be distinguished from the actual filing of the amendment after obtaining leave of court; if leave of court is obtained, the amendment or amended pleading must then be filed and served [see Code Civ. Proc. § 471.5].

[4] Memorandum

A supporting memorandum must be filed and a copy served with this notice of motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005, 1010; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)].

[5] Compulsory Cross Complaint

A party who fails to plead a cause of action subject to the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 426.10-426.60 (compulsory cross complaint), whether through oversight, inadvertence, mistake, neglect, or other cause, may apply to the court for leave to amend his or her pleading, or to file a cross complaint, to assert that cause of action at any time during the course of the case [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.50]. Code Civ. Proc. § 426.50 provides that the court, after notice to the adverse party, shall grant, on such terms as may be just to the parties, leave to amend the pleading, or to file the cross complaint, to assert the cause of action if the party who failed to plead the cause acted in good faith. Section 426.50 is to be liberally construed to avoid forfeiture of causes of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.50]. For a further discussion of compulsory cross complaints, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

[2] Use of Form

The form of declaration in [1], above, is for use to support a motion to amend a complaint [for forms of notice of motion, see §§ 21.77, 21.78]. For an additional form of declaration that must accompany the motion, see § 21.79.

[3] Contents of Declaration

Leave to amend a pleading is granted where the amendment is in furtherance of justice [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473(a), 576] and this form should be filled in to show facts in support of this ground. Motions to amend should be made promptly when the need to amend is discovered, and reasons for delay, if any, should be contained in the declaration. If the motion is made after the trial date has been set, the papers accompanying the motion should set forth in special detail the reasons therefor and a clear explanation as to why the matter has been delayed.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, indicates the format of a supplemental pleading. Code Civ. Proc. § 464(a) provides that the plaintiff and defendant, respectively, may be allowed, on motion, to make a supplemental complaint or answer, alleging facts material to the case occurring after the former complaint or answer. Although this rule is only expressly applicable to complaints and answers in civil actions, supplemental pleadings are generally allowed in special proceedings, particularly where there is a provision incorporating the provisions of Part Two of the Code of Civil Procedure (in which Code Civ. Proc. § 464, is found) to the extent that they are not inconsistent with provisions expressly governing the particular special proceeding [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 1109 (rules of practice in proceedings involving writs of review, mandate, and prohibition)].

For a special rule allowing supplemental pleadings without leave of court in actions involving child support, see § 21.28.

[3] Verification

There is no express statutory requirement that a supplemental pleading not otherwise required to be verified be verified because the original pleading was verified.

For a discussion of when verification is required and for alternative forms of verification, see Ch. 572, Verification .

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a notice of motion to strike portions of a supplemental complaint on the ground that the motion is irrelevant, false, or improper [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 435, 436]. This form may be used only in superior court and is not a limited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 92(d) (motions to strike in limited civil cases are allowed only on the ground that the damages or relief sought are not supported by the allegations of the complaint)].

[3] Memorandum

A supporting memorandum is required to be filed and a copy served with this notice of motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005, 1010; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

SUPPORTING MEMORANDUM

[Add memorandum supporting motion.]

[2] Use of Form

[a] Substitution of Personal Representative or Successor in Interest

The form of notice of motion in [1], above, is for use when a plaintiff in an action or proceeding has died to substitute for the deceased plaintiff his or her duly appointed, qualified, and acting personal representative or successor in interest and to allow the action or proceeding to be continued by the personal representative or successor in interest [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.31; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 377.11 ("successor in interest" defined); Prob. Code § 58 ("personal representative" defined)]. For discussion of the right to substitution, see § 21.27[4].

[b] Leave to File Supplemental Pleading

The form may also be used to obtain an order permitting the filing of a supplemental complaint if one is required. For a form of supplemental complaint, see § 21.90.

[c] In Proceedings as Well as Actions

In addition to substituting a plaintiff in a pending action, the form may also be used to substitute a petitioner in a pending proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.31]. In that situation, modify the form by replacing the words "plaintiff," "action," and "complaint" with "petitioner," "proceeding," and "petition," respectively, and as appropriate, based on the papers previously filed in the proceeding.

[3] Nonabatement of Actions on Party's Death

An action or proceeding does not abate by the death of a party if the cause of action survives or continues [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.21]. As to survival of actions, no cause of action is lost by reason of the death of any person, but may be maintained by or against the party's personal representative [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.20]. For further discussion of survival of actions, see Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions .

[4] Accompanying Papers

[a] Supporting Declarations

[i] Attorney's Declaration When Substituting Personal Representative

For a form of supporting declaration to use if the decedent's personal representative is being substituted for the decedent, see § 21.101.

[ii] Declaration of Successor in Interest

A person who seeks to continue a pending action or proceeding as the decedent's successor in interest must execute and file an affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury under the law of California, stating the basis for the declarant's status as successor in interest [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.32]. For a form of declaration of the successor in interest to accompany this notice of motion, see § 21.102.

In addition, if the property that is the subject of the action or proceeding is claimed by the decedent's successor in interest under the Prob. Code § 13100 et seq. affidavit procedure for collecting or transferring personal property, that affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury) must also be filed when the motion to substitute the successor for the decedent is made [Prob. Code § 13107.5]. For a form of declaration under *Prob. Code § 13100 et seq.*and discussion of that procedure, see Ch. 441, Probate: Disposition Without Administration .

[b] Memorandum

A supporting memorandum is required to be filed and a copy served with this notice of motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005, 1010; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)].

[5] Continuance

If the death occurs before trial but after a trial date has been set or during trial, a continuance of the trial date or trial will be required to allow time for the appointment of a personal representative. For discussion and forms relating to motions for continuances, see Ch. 136, Continuances .

[2] Use of Form

The form of declaration in [1], above, is for use to support a motion to substitute the successor in interest of a deceased plaintiff under Code Civ. Proc. § 377.31, and to continue the action in the name of the successor in interest [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.32(a)]. It supports the notice of motion in § 21.100.

[3] Contents of Form; Attachments

The form includes the statements required by Code Civ. Proc. § 377.32(a):

- Decedent's name and date and place of death (Paragraph 2) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.32(a)(1), (2)].

- That no proceeding is pending in California for administration of the dececent's estate (Alternative Paragraph 3) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.32(a)(3)].

- That the declarant is the decedent's successor in interest or authorized to act for the successor in interest (Alternative Paragraph 4) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.32(a)(5)].

- That no other person has a superior right to commence or be substituted into the action or proceeding (Paragraph 5) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.32(a)(6)].

First alternative Paragraph 3 is for use if the decedent's estate was administered. When the estate has been administered, a copy of the final order showing the distribution of the cause of action to the successor in interest must be attached [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.32(a)(4)].

Second alternative Paragraph 3 is for use if the decedent's estate was not, and will not be, administered.

A certified copy of the decedent's death certificate must be attached to the declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.32(c)].

If the successor in interest claims the property under the affidavit procedure for collecting or transferring personal property established by Prob. Code § 13100 et seq., that affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury) must be be filed when the motion to substitute the sucessor for the decedent is made [Prob. Code § 13107.5]. That affidavit or declaration must comply with Prob. Code § 13101 and is in addition to the form set out in [1], above. For a form of Prob. Code § 13101 declaration, see Ch. 441, Probate: Disposition Without Administration .

[2] Use of Form

The notice of motion in [1], above, is for use by a plaintiff when a defendant in an action or proceeding has died and the decedent's property is transferred without probate, to substitute for the deceased defendant his or her successor in interest. A cause of action that survives may be asserted against the decedent's successor in interest to the extent provided by statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.41; see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.11 ("successor in interest defined")]. A person to whom the decedent's property is transferred without probate is personally liable, within limits, for the decedent's unsecured debts [see, e.g., Prob. Code §§ 13109 (persons taking personal property under affidavit procedure), 13156 (persons taking property under court order determining succession), 13204 (persons taking real property under affidavit procedure), 13500 et seq. (surviving spouse)]. For additional discussion, see § 21.103 [2] et seq.

[3] Memorandum

A supporting memorandum is required to be filed and a copy served with this notice of motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§

1005, 1010; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

SUPPORTING MEMORANDUM

[Add memorandum supporting motion.]

[2] Use of Form

[a] Substitution of Personal Representative

The form of notice of motion in [1], above, is for use in a pending action or proceeding to substitute, or to appoint and substitute, a duly appointed, qualified, and acting personal representative of the deceased defendant's estate when the plaintiff is seeking recovery against the insurance carrier of the deceased defendant in an action that was pending at the defendant's death and was continued against the insurer or in an action commenced against the insurer after the decedent's death [see Prob. Code § 552(b)]. If the action was pending prior to July 1, 1989, the law then in effect continues to control, and the form would have to be modified to conform to the requirements of those provisions [see Prob. Code § 555(b); former Code Civ. Proc. § 385(b); former Prob. Code §§ 709.1, 721(c)].

[b] Leave to File Supplemental Complaint

The form is also for use to obtain an order permitting the filing of a supplemental complaint. When the filing of a claim against the defendant's estate is a condition of recovery in the action or proceeding against the personal representative [see Prob. Code § 9370], a supplemental complaint will be required to allege the defendant's death, the substitution of the personal representative, and the filing of the claim [see Wood v. Brown (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 232, 240, 114 Cal. Rptr. 63] . For a form of supplemental complaint, see § 21.108.

[3] Action Pending at Decedent's Death

Prob. Code § 550 et seq. apply to an action that is commenced on or after July 1, 1989, and is pending against a decedent at the time of his or her death to establish the decedent's liability for which he or she was protected by insurance [see Prob. Code § 555(a)]. This type of action may be continued against the decedent's insurer without the need to join as a party the decedent's personal representative or successor in interest [see Prob. Code § 550(a)]. However, on the motion of an interested person, or on its own motion, the court in which the action is pending may, for good cause, order the appointment and substitution of a personal representative as the defendant [Prob. Code § 552(b)].

For further discussion of practice and procedure under Prob. Code § 550 et seq., see § 21.27[4][c].

[4] Action Commenced After Decedent's Death

Prob. Code § 550 et seq. apply to an action commenced after a decedent's death and on or after July 1, 1989, to establish the decedent's liability for which the decedent was protected by insurance [see Prob. Code §§ 550(a), 555(a)]. The action must be commenced against "Estate of (name), Deceased," but, as in an action pending at the time of decedent's death and continued thereafter, the court in which the action is pending may, for good cause, order the appointment and substitution of a personal representative as the defendant [see Prob. Code § 552]. The procedure for commencing an action under Prob. Code § 550 et seq. is parallel to that for continuing an action under those sections. For further discussion of that procedure, see § 21.27[4][c].

[5] Filing Claim Against Estate

Whether an action is continued or commenced against the insurer after the decedent's death under Prob. Code § 550 et seq., the plaintiff is excused from filing a claim in probate against the decedent's estate if the damages sought in the action are within the limits and coverage of the insurance or if the plaintiff waives recovery outside the limits or coverage of the insurance [Prob. Code §§ 554, 9370, 9390]. If the amount of damages sought exceeds the insurance coverage, the personal representative must be joined as a party to the action and the plaintiff must file a claim against the estate under Prob. Code § 9390 [see former Prob. Code § 707; Prob. Code § 554]. Thus, if the plaintiff seeks damages in excess of the insurance coverage, the plaintiff should file a claim against the estate. Even if the the damages are for less than the insurance coverage, counsel should carefully consider whether or not to file a claim, particularly if the insurer contests coverage of the decedent's liability [see Prob. Code § 553]. For further discussion of claim filing requirements, see Ch. 454, Probate: Claims Against the Estate .

[6] Memorandum

A supporting memorandum is required to be filed and a copy served with this notice of motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005, 1010; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

I, _____ [name], declare:

1. I am an attorney at law, duly admitted to practice before all the courts of the State of California, and the attorney [of record] for _____ [the plaintiff or the defendant or _____ (name and status of interested party)].

2. This _____ [action or proceeding] was commenced on _____ [date].

3. On _____ [date], _____ [name of deceased party], the defendant in this _____ [action or proceeding], died. A certified copy of the death certificate relating to this death is attached hereto as Exhibit "A."

[EITHER, if motion is to appoint and substitute personal representative for decedent]

4. To date, no personal representative of the estate of the deceased defendant has been appointed.

[OR, if motion is to substitute previously appointed personal representative for decedent]

4. On _____ [date], _____ [name of personal representative] was duly appointed _____ [e.g., executor of the will of _____ (name), deceased,] by order of the Superior Court of California, County of _____, in proceeding No. _____. Thereafter, _____ [name] qualified to act as such, and on _____ [date], letters _____ [e.g., testamentary] were duly issued to him/her. A certified copy of those letters is attached hereto as Exhibit "B."

5. _____ [Name] has ever since been, and now is, the duly appointed, qualified, and acting _____ [e.g., executor of the will] of _____ [name], the deceased defendant, in this action.

[2] Use of Form

The form of declaration in [1], above, is for use to support a motion to substitute a personal representative for a deceased defendant under Code Civ. Proc. § 377.41, and to continue the action by or against the personal representative [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.41].

It is also for use to support a motion to appoint and/or substitute the personal representative as the defendant in the action that is being continued or was commenced against an insurance carrier that covers the decedent's liability after the insured's death, and to continue that action against the personal representative under Prob. Code § 552(b) and Prob. Code § 9390 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2009 (use of affidavits), Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (declarations in lieu of affidavits)]. Because Prob. Code § 552(b) and Prob. Code § 9390 apply only in actions commenced on or after July 1, 1989, and former Code Civ. Proc. § 385(b) and former Prob. Code § 709.1 and former Prob. Code § 721 apply in actions commenced before that date, it may be necessary to modify the form if the older statutes apply [see Prob. Code §§ 555, 9399].

[3] Contents of Declaration

First alternative Paragraph 4 is for use under any of these statutes except Code Civ. Proc. § 377.41. It is used when the action has been commenced or continued against an insurance carrier and there is a subsequent motion to appoint and substitute a personal representative for the defendant in the action or proceeding.

Second Alternative Paragraph 4 and Paragraph 5 are for use when a personal representative has already been appointed and the motion is simply to substitute him or her for the defendant, regardless of which of the statutes is the basis for the motion.

Paragraph 6 is for use when the moving party is proceeding under Prob. Code § 552(b). Under that statute, the moving party is required to show good cause for the appointment and/or substitution for the defendant.

[2] Use of Form

The form of order in [1], above, is for use when a motion is granted under Code Civ. Proc. § 377.31 to substitute a personal representative or successor in interest for a deceased plaintiff and to permit the personal representative or successor in interest to continue the action.

The form is also for use when a motion is granted under Prob. Code § 552(b) or Prob. Code § 9370 to appoint and/or substitute a personal representative for a deceased defendant or the defendant's estate and continue the action against the personal representative. When the moving party is proceeding under Prob. Code § 552(b), good cause must be shown for the appointment and/or substitution of the personal representative. The form may also be used to grant leave to file a supplemental complaint if sought in the notice of motion.

[EITHER, if claim was rejected by personal representative]

4. On _____ [date], defendant rejected the claim _____ [in its entirety or in the amount of $_____ and allowed it in the amount of $_____], filed the [allowance and] rejection with the clerk of the court in the estate proceeding, and served plaintiff with written notice of the [partial] rejection on _____ [date].

[OR, if claim was rejected by court]

4. On _____ [date], defendant allowed the claim in its entirety and filed the allowance with the clerk of the court in the estate proceeding. The clerk, in turn, presented the allowance to the judge of that court who endorsed a rejection on the claim [after _____ (describe court action, e.g., examining plaintiff and others on oath and receiving evidence relevant to the validity of the claim)]. On _____ [date], defendant served plaintiff with written notice of the rejection.

[OR, if plaintiff treats inaction on claim as rejection of claim]

4. Thirty days have passed since _____ [plaintiff or _____ (name), on plaintiff's behalf,] filed the claim with the clerk of the court in the estate proceeding and provided defendant with a copy of the claim. _____ [Defendant and/or the judge in the estate proceeding] has/have refused or neglected to act on the claim. Pursuant to Section 9256 of the Probate Code, plaintiff elects to treat this inaction on the claim as equivalent to notice of rejection of the claim.

[CONTINUE]

5. _____ [No part or Only $_____] of plaintiff's claim as filed, the total amount of which is $_____, has been paid by the decedent, by the defendant as the personal representative of the decedent's estate, or otherwise.

6. On _____ [date], this court granted plaintiff's motion for an order to substitute the personal representative for the deceased in this _____ [action or proceeding].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment, as asked for in the complaint on file herein, against defendant, as the _____ [describe capacity as personal representative, e.g., executor of the deceased's will], to be paid out of the estate in due course of administration.

[Verification, if desired. See § 21.90[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The form of supplemental complaint in [1], above, is for use to file in an action or proceeding, with the court's permission, after the substitution of a personal representative for a deceased defendant. The purpose of the supplemental complaint is to allege any conditions precedent to recovery or any other matters affecting the case arising after the original complaint was filed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 464]. The fact situation illustrated in the form is the filing of a claim against the estate as a condition precedent to recovery. However, any condition precedent to recovery that must be pleaded and that arises after the filing of the original complaint may be set forth in a supplemental complaint [see, e.g., Hibernia etc. Soc. v. Wackenreuder (1893) 99 Cal. 503, 509-510, 34 P. 219] . Filing a supplemental complaint to substitute a personal representative for deceased defendant is proper [Clary v. Miller (1951) 101 Cal. App. 2d 790, 793, 226 P.2d 32] .

[3] Claim-Filing Requirement

If recovery is sought from the decedent's estate, a claim generally must be filed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.41; Prob. Code §§ 554, 9370, 9390(b)]. However, a claim need not be filed against the estate if recovery is sought only from defendant's insurance carrier and is limited to the amount of insurance coverage. A claim must be filed if recovery in excess of the insurance coverage is sought [see Prob. Code §§ 554, 9390]. For discussion of claim requirements, see § 21.27[4][c].

[4] Necessary Allegations

Unless the action or proceeding was commenced against the decedent's insurer after the death occurred [see Prob. Code § 550], the defendant's death should be alleged as having occurred after the original complaint (Paragraph 1).

The appointment of a personal representative for the deceased defendant is alleged to identify the personal representative (Paragraph 2).

If the plaintiff is (1) substituting a personal representative for a deceased defendant to continue a claim against the personal representative [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.41; Prob. Code § 9370], or (2) seeking the appointment and/or substitution of a personal representative to allow recovery of an amount in excess of the insurance that covers a decedent's liability in an action or proceeding that was continued or commenced against the decedent's insurance carrier after the decedent's death [see Prob. Code §§ 554, 9390(b)], plaintiff must allege the filing of a claim against the estate for the amount claimed or, if insurance partly covers the claim, for the amount in excess of the insurance coverage (Paragraph 3) [see Prob. Code §§ 554, 9370, 9390(b); see also Prob. Code § 9150 et seq. (claim filing procedure); see also Wood v. Brown (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 232, 240, 114 Cal. Rptr. 63] .

The plaintiff must also allege the rejection of the claim in whole or in part (alternative Paragraphs 4) [see Prob. Code § 9370; see also Prob. Code §§ 9250, 9251, 9256 (rejection of claims)].

The form alleges that the amount claimed remains unpaid in whole or in part (Paragraph 5).

The form finally alleges that the court granted plaintiff's motion for substitution of the personal representative for the defendant (Paragraph 6).

[5] Prior Law

The statutes cited in [2]-[5], above, apply to actions commenced on or after July 1, 1989. If the action was commenced prior to that date, claims for damages in pending litigation and/or in excess of insurance coverage are governed by former Code Civ. Proc. § 385(b) and former Prob. Code §§ 709, 709.1, 721 [see Prob. Code §§ 555, 9399].

SUPPORTING MEMORANDUM

[Add memorandum supporting motion]

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion and supporting declaration in [1], above, is for use to obtain an order substituting a personal representative for an incompetent party. An action or proceeding does not abate by any disability of a party if the cause of action survives or continues [Code Civ. Proc. § 375].

The motion requests an order substituting the personal representative in place of the incompetent party and allowing a supplemental pleading to be filed showing the substitution [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 375, 464]. For a form of supplemental pleading, see § 21.90. Copies of the order declaring incompetency and the letters issued thereon are also attached to this notice.

The declaration [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009, 2015.5] shows the fact of incompetency and the appointment, qualification, and present status of the moving party as the personal representative of the incompetent party. The form calls for the attachment of certified copies of the order of appointment and letters. Although there is no requirement that these copies be attached, they support the statements of the declaration.

[3] Memorandum

A supporting memorandum is required to be filed and a copy served with this notice of motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005, 1010; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

§ 22.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the procedure under which a person or entity may obtain permission, from a state or federal court, to participate in a state trial court proceeding, or in a state or federal appeal, as amicus curiae.

The chapter includes the following forms:

- A request to participate as amicus curiae in an action or proceeding in a California municipal or superior court [see § 22.40].

- A request for leave to file a brief as amicus curiae in an appeal before the California court of appeal, or before the appellate division of the superior court [see § 22.41[1]].

- A request for leave to file a brief as amicus curiae in an appeal before the California Supreme Court [see § 22.41[2]].

- A notation for using in preparing the cover of an amicus curiae brief that is to be filed in a state reviewing court [see § 22.42].

§ 22.11 Definitions

[1] Amicus Curiae

"Amicus curiae" is a Latin expression meaning "friend of the court" [Black's Law Dictionary 75 (5th ed. 1979)]. The plural of amicus curiae is "amici curiae." Amicus curiae presentations assist the court by broadening its perspective on the issues raised by the parties. Among other services, they facilitate informed judicial consideration of a wide variety of information and points of view that may bear on important legal questions [Connerly v. State Personnel Bd. (2006) 37 Cal. 4th 1169, 1179-1183, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 788, 129 P. 3d 1 ; Bily v. Arthur Young & Co. (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 370, 405 n.14, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 51, 834 P.2d 745].

[2] Amicus Curiae Distinguished From Party or Intervenor

An amicus curiae is not a party to the action [see In re Veterans' Industries, Inc. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 902, 916, 88 Cal. Rptr. 303 ; Estate of Thomas (1946) 74 Cal. App. 2d 389, 390, 168 P.2d 773]. Therefore, he or she does not have the rights of an adversary in the litigation [see In re Pina (1896) 112 Cal. 14, 16, 44 P. 332]. In particular, an amicus curiase has no right to take exception or to appeal the court's orders or decision [see In re Veterans' Industries, Inc. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 902, 916, 88 Cal. Rptr. 303]. In addition, an amicus curiae may not be held liable to a prevailing party for attorney's fees [Connerly v. State Personnel Bd. (2006) 37 Cal. 4th 1169, 1179-1183, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 788, 129 P.3d 1] .

An intervenor is a third person permitted to become a party to an action or proceeding between other persons, either by joining the plaintiff in claiming what is sought in the complaint, uniting with the defendant in resisting the claims of the plaintiff, or demanding anything adverse to both the plaintiff and the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]. Intervention is proper only when authorized by law, or when the person seeking to intervene has an interest in the matter in litigation or the success of either of the parties, or an interest against both such that he or she will gain or lose by the direct legal operation and effect of the judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 387; People v. City of Long Beach (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 271, 275, 6 Cal. Rptr. 658]. When a person's interest in the case does not meet these criteria, the court may allow him or her to file an amicus curiae brief [Jersey Maid Milk Products Co. v. Brock (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 661, 665, 91 P.2d 599].

Unlike an amicus curiae, an intervenor is a party to the action and has the same procedural rights and remedies as does an original party [People v. Perris Irrigation District (1901) 132 Cal. 289, 290-291, 64 P. 399 ; Corridan v. Rose (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 524, 528, 290 P.2d 939]. Nevertheless, a person who qualifies as an intervenor may instead act as an amicus curiae [see Golden Gate Bridge etc. Dist. v. Felt (1931) 214 Cal. 308, 319, 5 P. 2d 585].

For discussion and forms relating to parties and intervenors generally, see Ch. 395, Parties .

§ 22.12 Participation Allowed or Requested by Court

Although an amicus curiae generally participates in an appellate court proceeding at his or her own request [see § 22.16], the trial court may request him or her to seek permission to participate from the appellate court [see Marshall v. Marshall (1931) 212 Cal. 736, 737-738, 300 P. 816 (trial court requested that certain attorneys seek permission from appellate court to file amicus curiae briefs when defendant failed to appear on appeal or file a brief; trial court's action justified by sufficiently public nature of matter involved)]. A trial court may not appoint an amicus curiae to represent it on appeal, however, since the court itself is not a party to the appeal [In re Pina (1896) 112 Cal. 14, 16, 44 P. 332].

The appellate court may also invite amicus curiae briefs [see Royal Globe Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 880, 153 Cal. Rptr. 842, 592 P.2d 329 (Supreme Court requested amicus briefs relating to construction of disputed insurance statute), *overruled on other grounds in Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 22.14 Rights and Powers Conferred on Amici Curiae

An amicus curiae appears at the discretion of the court [see In re Veterans' Industries, Inc. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 902, 924, 88 Cal. Rptr. 303], and his or her powers are prescribed by the court in which he or she appears [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.520(f), 8.706(b)]. In an appellate court action or proceeding, an amicus curiae's rights and powers generally extend only to filing a brief and arguing orally to the court [see, e.g., U.S. Sup. Ct. Rules, Rule 28.7].

A California trial or appellate court may, however, grant to an amicus curiae the power to participate in a court proceeding to the extent that the court itself has power to participate [see Code Civ. Proc. § 187 (court is allowed to use any suitable process to carry into effect its jurisdiction)]. Thus, a court may appoint an amicus curiae to examine witnesses when the court itself has the power to examine witnesses [see Evid. Code §§ 732, 775; Estate of Clark (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 110, 117-118, 208 P.2d 737]. A court may also entertain a motion by an amicus curiae to take action that the court may take on its own motion [see Golden Gate Bridge etc. Dist. v. Felt (1931) 214 Cal. 308, 315-320, 5 P.2d 585 (court heard and denied motion by amicus curiae to dismiss action on ground of collusion between parties); Tomkin v. Harris (1891) 90 Cal. 201, 206, 27 P. 202 (action dismissed for want of prosecution on motion of amicus curiae; decided prior to enactment of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 581a, 583.310 et seq.); In re Frowenfeld (1935) 3 Cal. App. 2d 576, 579, 40 P.2d 552 (amicus curiae, with consent of trial court, filed motion to set aside void order of appointment of trustee)].

Chapter 22 AMICUS CURIAE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

3-22 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 22.15

§ 22.15 New Issues, Arguments, or Material on Appeal

[1] Raising New Matters Generally Not Permitted

As a general rule, an appellate court will consider only those questions properly raised by the parties; an amicus curiae in an appellate court must accept the issues as framed and propositions as set forth by the appealing parties. Any additional questions presented in a brief filed by an amicus curiae will generally not be considered by the court [White v. Davis (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 528, 553, n. 10, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 648, 68 P.3d 74 (court refused to consider amicus curiae argument regarding payment to lawyers appointed to represent indigent defendants when argument was not previously raised); Strong v. State Board of Equalization (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 1182, 1191, n.6, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 657 ; Berg v. Traylor (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 809, 823, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 140 ; Big Creek Lumber Co. v. County of Santa Cruz (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 952, 966, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 356 (court refuses to hear constitutional issue raised solely by amicus curiae); Rieger v. Arnold (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 451, 461, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295 (court rejected amicus curiae argument urging court not to consider plaintiff's actions in sexual harassment cause of action because parties did not raise argument); see also Knetsch v. United States (1960) 364 U.S. 361, 370, 81 S. Ct. 132, 5 L. Ed. 2d 128 (additional questions presented in amicus curiae brief filed in U.S. Supreme Court not considered); City of Los Angeles v. Standard Oil Co. (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 118 , 127, 68 Cal. Rptr. 512 (amicus curiae who filed brief in appellate court declaratory relief action to determine constitutionality of a statute was not allowed to seek relief based on hypothetical construction of statute not asserted by parties)].

[2] New Arguments or Issues Sometimes Allowed

Generally, courts will consider an issue raised only by amicus curiae only in the following situations [Costa v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1177, 1187-1188, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 289]:

- The issue supports affirmance.
- The issue concerns the jurisdiction of the court.

For example, the Supreme Court considered an issue first raised by an amicus curiae on appeal because a jurisdictional question was involved, and the appeal was also from judgment of dismissal after the trial court sustained a general demurrer without leave to amend, in which situation an appellate court is required to affirm the judgment if it is correct on any theory, including one first raised by amicus [see E. L. White, Inc. v. City of Huntington Beach (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 497, 510-511, 146 Cal. Rptr. 614, 579 P.2d 505].

An amicus curiae may also be permitted to raise a new issue on appeal when the issue arises from a United States Supreme Court opinion decided during pendency of appellate court action, the parties do not inform the appellate court of that decision, and the appellate decision does not address the particular issue [see Fisher v. City of Berkeley (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 644, 209 Cal. Rptr. 682, 693 P.2d 261 , aff'd, 475 U.S. 260, 106 S. Ct. 1045, 89 L. Ed. 2d 206]; the issue is a purely legal issue of statutory interpretation and is not dependent upon the development of a factual record in the trial court [see California Highway Patrol v. Superior Court (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 488, 498, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 16] ; the issue presented is of statewide importance and capable of being presented repeatedly [see Lavie v. Procter & Gamble Co. (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 496, 503, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 486 (court considered amicus argument because standard for evaluating whether advertisement is deceptive under Unfair Competition Law is question of law with important public policy implications); People v. Niebauer (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1278, 1291, 263 Cal. Rptr. 287 (court considered argument of amicus curiae not raised by either party, relating to constitutionality of statute prohibiting dark-tinted windows in motor vehicles)]; the lower court had a duty to take judicial notice of the material forming the basis of the amicus curiae's argument, and the material can therefore be considered part of the record on appeal [see Pratt v. Coast Trucking, Inc. (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 139, 143-149, 39 Cal. Rptr. 332 (Public Utilities Commission as amicus curiae permitted to raise argument not raised by either party)]; or the interests of justice dictate that the amicus be allowed to present the issue [see People v. Coleman (1942) 53 Cal. App. 2d 18, 32, 127 P.2d 309 (allowing amicus curiae in criminal action to raise objections to instructions not objected to by defendant)].

[3] Improper Matter Ignored or Stricken

The rules and practices of reviewing courts accord wide latitude to interested and responsible parties who seek to file amicus curiae briefs, in order to further the purpose of these briefs in assisting the court [Bily v. Arthur Young & Co. (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 370, 405 n.14, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 51, 834 P.2d 745 ; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.520(f); see also discussion in § 22.11[1] (purpose of participation by amicus curiae)]. The reviewing court may choose to ignore, however, improper material such as unreliable and irrelevant information [Bily v. Arthur Young & Co. (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 370, 405 n.14, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 51, 834 P.2d 745].

Improper material may be stricken from an amicus brief in extreme cases of obvious abuse of the amicus curiae privilege. Otherwise courts are not inclined to control the contents of amicus curiae briefs by use of orders to strike [see Cornette v. Department of Transp. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 63, 77, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 26 P.3d 332 ; Bily v. Arthur Young & Co. (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 370, 405 n.14, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 51, 834 P.2d 745 ; Matuz v. Gerardin Corp. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 203, 206-207].

For further discussion of improper content of appellate briefs generally, and a form of motion to strike a defective brief, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs .

Chapter 22 AMICUS CURIAE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

3-22 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 22.16

§ 22.16 Procedure for Participation in Proceeding or Appeal

[1] Trial Court

Although not specifically authorized by statute or the California Rules of Court, an amicus curiae may be permitted to appear, to cross examine witnesses, and to submit a brief to a trial court at the discretion of the trial judge [see Jersey Maid Milk Products Co. v. Brock (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 661, 665, 91 P.2d 599 ; In re Veterans' Industries, Inc. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 902, 924-925, 88 Cal. Rptr. 303 ; Estate of Thomas (1946) 74 Cal. App. 2d 389, 390, 168 P.2d 773]. This practice is most often appropriate when the case is of particular importance to the amicus curiae, for example when the case is a test case [see La Mesa etc. Irr. Dist. v. Halley (1925) 195 Cal. 739, 235 P. 999 (mandamus action by irrigation district to compel its president and secretary to sign and attest bonds authorized by the district)]. Procedure varies among trial courts, and counsel is advised to consult local court rules. For a form of motion for leave to appear as an amicus curiae in a state trial court, together with an order granting the motion, see § 22.40.

An amicus curiae is not a party and has no independent right to appeal a court's decision [see § 22.11[1]]. Thus, one who appears at the trial level and desires to participate in the action or proceeding on appeal must apply to the appropriate appellate court for permission to appear in that court [Estate of Bodger (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 710, 716, 276 P.2d 83 ; see also In re Pina (1896) 112 Cal. 14, 16, 44 P. 332].

[2] Appellate Division of Superior Court

In an appeal to the appellate division of the Superior Court, an amicus curiae may file a brief after permission is obtained from the presiding judge, subject to any conditions that he or she may prescribe. If the brief supports one of the parties' position, that fact must be noted in its heading [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.706(b); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.706(c), (d) (contents and format of briefs filed in appellate division of superior court); for a form of such notation, see § 22.42].

The Attorney General may file an amicus curiae brief without obtaining the presiding judge's permission, unless the Attorney General is presenting the brief on behalf of another state officer or agency. The presiding judge may prescribe reasonable conditions for filing and answering such a brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.706(b)].

For a form of request for leave to file a brief as amicus curiae in the appellate division of the superior court, see § 22.41[1]. For further discussion relating to the requirements governing the content and format, and filing of a brief, including an amicus curiae brief, in an appeal before the appellate division of the superior court, see Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases, § 345A.56.

An amicus curiae brief must be served on all parties before it is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.706(e)]. To demonstrate compliance with this requirement, it is recommended that proof of service accompany the filing copies of the brief. For forms of proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers, § 518.90 et seq.

[3] California Court of Appeal

A brief of amicus curiae in a court of appeal on the merits of an action or proceeding may be filed after permission is first obtained from the presiding justice, subject to any conditions that may be prescribed. To obtain permission, within 14 days after the last appellant's reply brief is filed or could have been filed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.212, whichever is earlier, the applicant must file with the clerk of the reviewing court a signed request that states the nature of the applicant's interest and explains how the proposed amicus curiae brief will assist the court in deciding the matter [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.200(c)(2)]. For good cause, the presiding justice may allow later filing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.200(c)(1)]. The proposed brief must be served and must accompany the application, and may be combined with the application [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.200(c)(4)]. The covers of the application and proposed brief must identify the party the applicant supports, if any [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.200(c)(5)]. The application must also identify any party or any counsel for a party in the pending appeal who authored the proposed amicus brief in whole or in part, or made a monetary contribution intended to fund the preparation or submission of the brief. It must also identify every person or entity who made a monetary contribution intended to fund the preparation or submission of the brief, other than the amicus curiae, its members, or its counsel in the pending appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.200(c)(3)]. For a form of request for leave to file a brief as amicus curiae in the court of appeal, see § 22.41[1].

The Attorney General may file an amicus curiae brief without obtaining the presiding justice's permission, unless the Attorney General is presenting the brief on behalf of another state officer or agency. The Attorney General must file the brief within 14 days after the last appellant's reply brief is filed or could have been filed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.212, whichever is earlier. The brief must contain the information otherwise required in a request for permission to file an amicus brief in the court of appeal. Any party may file an answer to an amicus curiae brief of the Attorney General within 14 days after it is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.200(c)(7)].

If the court grants the application of an amicus curiae to file a brief, any party may file an answer within the time the court specifies [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.200(c)(6)]. Before any answer to an amicus curiae brief is filed, it must be served on all parties and on the amicus curiae [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.200(c)(6)]. To demonstrate compliance with this requirement, it is recommended that proof of service accompany the filing copies of such briefs. For forms of proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers, § 518.90 et seq. The filing copies of the brief must also be accompanied by proof of deposit of one copy with the clerk of the superior court for delivery to the judge who presided at trial [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.212(c)].

The covers of the amicus curiae application and brief must identify the party, if any, that the brief supports [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.520(f)(6); for a form of such notation, see § 22.42]. Whenever practicable, the cover of an amicus curiae brief should be gray [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.40(b)].

For further discussion and forms relating to the format, content, and other procedural requirements governing briefs generally, including amicus curiae briefs, filed in a civil appeal before the court of appeal, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs .

[4] California Supreme Court

[a] Letter Supporting or Opposing Grant of Writ or Petition for Review

An individual or entity desiring to support or oppose either (1) the granting of a petition for review or original writ in the Supreme Court, or (2) the accepting of a request for an answer to a certified question under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.548, must send a letter to that court in lieu of a brief of amicus curiae [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.500(g)(1)]. The letter must state the nature of the applicant's interest and conform to the requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.504(e), regarding incorporation of documents by reference and annexed material [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.500(g)(3); for discussion relating to the requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.504(e), see Ch. 54, Appeal: California Supreme Court Review]. Prior to January 1, 2003, the rules required that the letter be accompanied by proof of service on each party to the action or proceeding [see former Rule 28(f); revised Rule 8.500(g) does not require proof of service. For discussion and forms relating to proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers, § 518.90 et seq.].

The fact that a person has lodged such a letter, however, does not constitute leave for that person to file an amicus curiae brief on the merits of the case if the petition is granted or if the request is accepted. All persons seeking to file an amicus curiae brief on the merits must comply with the requirements applicable to those briefs (discussed in [b], below) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.520(f)].

For discussion and forms relating generally to petitions for review and requests for an answer to a certified question, see Ch. 54, Appeal: California Supreme Court Review .

[b] Brief on Merits

A brief of amicus curiae on the merits of an action or proceeding may be filed after permission is obtained from the Chief Justice, subject to any conditions that may be prescribed. To obtain permission the applicant must file with the clerk of the Supreme Court a signed request, accompanied by the proposed brief, stating the nature of the applicant's interest and explaining how the proposed brief will assist the court in deciding the matter [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.520(f)(3)].

The request and proposed brief must be received by the court no later than 30 days after all briefs, other than supplemental briefs, which the parties are entitled to file pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.520(f), either have been filed or can no longer be filed within the time limits prescribed by that rule. For good cause, the Chief Justice may allow later filing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.520(f)(2)]. For a form of request for leave to file a brief as amicus curiae in an appeal before the Supreme Court, see § 22.41[2].

The Attorney General may file an amicus curiae brief without obtaining the Chief Justice's permission, unless the Attorney General is presenting the brief on behalf of another state officer or agency. The Attorney General must file the brief within the time required for receipt of a request for permission to file an amicus brief. The brief must contain the information otherwise required in a request for permission to file an amicus brief in the Supreme Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.520(f)(8)].

Before any amicus curiae brief is filed, it must be served on all parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.520(f)(1)]. To demonstrate compliance with this requirement, it is recommended that proof of service accompany the filing copies of such briefs [cf. discussion in [a], above (proof of service expressly required for amicus curiae letter supporting or opposing petition for review); for forms of proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers § 518.90 et seq.]. The filing copies of the brief must also be accompanied by proof of deposit of one copy with the clerk of the superior court for delivery to the judge who presided at trial [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.212(c)].

Any party may file an answer to an amicus brief within 20 days after it is filed. Before any answer is filed, it must be served on all parties and on the amicus curiae [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.520(f)(7)].

Amicus curiae briefs on the merits in the Supreme Court must conform as nearly as possible to the requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.520(b), relating to form and content. The cover of an amicus curiae brief must identify the party, if any, that the brief supports [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.520(f)(6); for a form of such notation, see § 22.42]. In addition, whenever practicable, the cover of an amicus curiae brief should be gray [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.40(b)].

For further discussion and forms relating to the format, content, and other procedural requirements governing briefs generally, including amicus curiae briefs, filed in a civil review proceeding before the Supreme Court, see Ch. 54, Appeal: California Supreme Court Review .

§ 22.17 Recovery of Attorney's Fees

Generally, an amicus curiae is not permitted to recover his or her attorney's fees [Universal Oil Products Co. v. Root Ref. Co. (1945) 328 U.S. 575, 581, 66 S. Ct. 1176, 90 L. Ed. 1447]. Nevertheless, an amicus curiae may be awarded a fee for services to the court if he or she is appointed by the court, renders services that help to resolve the question presented, and the party required to pay the fee caused the situation prompting the appointment [see Miller-Wohl Co. v. Comm'r of Labor (9th Cir. 1982) 694 F.2d 203, 205]. In addition, an amicus curiae may not be held liable to a prevailing party for attorney's fees [Connerly v. State Personnel Bd. (2006) 37 Cal. 4th 1169, 1179-1183, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 788, 129 P.3d 1] . However, when a party is an amicus curiae in one case and a party defending the same issue in another case, it may be liable for attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 to a plaintiff under the private attorney general theory [Ramon v. County of Santa Clara (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 915, 921-925, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 278].

§ 22.31 Decisions

[1] Amicus Curiae in Trial Courts

Amicus curiae permitted to appear and file briefs in trial court at discretion of trial judge. Jersey Maid Milk Products Co. v. Brock (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 661, 665, 91 P.2d 599 ; In re Veterans' Industries, Inc. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 902, 924-925, 88 Cal. Rptr. 303 ; Estate of Thomas (1946) 74 Cal. App. 2d 389, 390, 168 P.2d 773

[2] Amicus Curiae Distinguished From Party or Intervenor

Amicus curiae distinguished from party to action. Connerly v. State Personnel Bd. (2006) 37 Cal. 4th 1169, 1179-1183, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 788, 129 P.3d 1

Intervenor compared with amicus curiae. Jersey Maid Milk Products Co. v. Brock (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 661, 663-664, 91 P.2d 599 ; Golden Gate Bridge etc. Dist. v. Felt (1931) 214 Cal. 308, 319, 5 P.2d 585

Amicus curiae do not have rights of an adversary in litigation. In re Pina (1896) 112 Cal. 14, 16, 44 P. 332

Amicus curiae distinguished from party to action. In re Veterans' Industries, Inc. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 902, 916, 88 Cal. Rptr. 303 ; Estate of Thomas (1946) 74 Cal. App. 2d 389, 390, 168 P.2d 773

[3] Powers and Rights of Amicus Curiae

Amicus curiae is permitted to make motion that requests court to take action that court itself may take on its own motion. Tomkin v. Harris (1891) 90 Cal. 201, 206, 27 P. 202 (motion to dismiss for want of prosecution); In re Frowenfeld (1935) 3 Cal. App. 2d 576, 579, 40 P.2d 552 (motion to set aside void order); cf. Golden Gate Bridge etc. Dist. v. Felt (1931) 214 Cal. 308 , 315-320, 5 P.2d 585 (motion to dismiss action on ground of collusion between parties)

Amicus curiae is permitted to examine witnesses if court itself has power to examine witnesses. Estate of Clark (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 110, 118, 208 P.2d 737

[4] Impartiality of Amicus Curiae Not Required

Amicus curiae need not be totally disinterested. Funbus Systems, Inc. v. California Public Utilities Commission (9th Cir. 1986) 801 F.2d 1120, 1125

Amicus curiae is allowed to be interested in outcome of litigation and is not required to be impartial. McAllister v. Drapeau (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 102, 113, 92 P.2d 911 (supporting one side); La Mesa etc. Irr. Dist. v. Halley (1925) 195 Cal. 739, 743, 235 P. 999 (opposing both sides)

[5] Raising New Matter on Appeal

[a] General Prohibition

Amicus curiae generally not permitted to raise new issues in appellate court. White v. Davis (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 528, 553, n. 10, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 648, 68 P.3d 74 ; Eggert v. Pacific States S. & L. Co. (1943) 57 Cal. App. 2d 239, 251, 136 P.2d 822 ; see also Knetsch v. United States (1960) 364 U.S. 361, 370, 81 S. Ct. 132, 5 L. Ed. 2d 128

Amicus curiae must accept the issues made and propositions urged by the appealing parties, and any additional questions presented in a brief filed by an amicus curiae will not be considered. Strong v. State Board of Equalization (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 1182, 1191, n.6, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 657

Courts refuse to consider arguments raised by amicus curiae when those arguments are not presented in the trial court, and are not urged by the parties on appeal. Amicus curiae must accept the issues made and propositions urged by the appealing parties, and an appellate court will not consider any additional questions presented in a brief filed by an amicus curiae. Berg v. Traylor (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 809, 823, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 140

Amicus curiae's argument (urging court not to consider plaintiff's actions in sexual harassment cause of action) rejected by appellate court because parties did not raise argument. Rieger v. Arnold (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 451, 461, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295

Rule that amicus curiae may not raise issues not raised by parties is especially applicable when appellants initiate appeal with express decision not to address issue raised by amicus. San Franciscans for Reasonable Growth v. City and County of San Francisco (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1502, 1515 n.10, 258 Cal. Rptr. 267

[b] Exceptions

Amicus curiae permitted to raise new issue on appeal if issue arises from United States Supreme Court opinion decided during pendency of appellate court action, parties do not inform appellate court of decision, and appellate decision does not address issue. Fisher v. City of Berkeley (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 644, 209 Cal. Rptr. 682, 693 P.2d 261 , aff'd, 475 U.S. 260, 106 S. Ct. 1045, 89 L. Ed. 2d 206

Amicus curiae is permitted to raise issue not raised by either party if jurisdictional question involved, appeal is from judgment of dismissal following sustaining of general demurrer without leave to amend, and Court therefore is required to affirm judgment if correct on any theory, including that of amicus curiae. E. L. White, Inc. v. City of Huntington

Beach (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 497, 510-511, 146 Cal. Rptr. 614, 579 P.2d 505

Amicus curiae is permitted to raise new issue on appeal when issue is of statewide importance and capable of being presented repeatedly. People v. Niebauer (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1278, 1291, 263 Cal. Rptr. 287

Amicus curiae is permitted to raise new issue on appeal if lower court had duty to take judicial notice of material forming basis of amicus curiae's argument and material can therefore be considered part of record on appeal. Pratt v. Coast Trucking, Inc. (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 139, 143-149, 39 Cal. Rptr. 332

[6] Appeal by Amicus Curiae

Order denying permission to appear as amicus curiae not appealable. In re Veterans' Industries, Inc. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 902, 924, 88 Cal. Rptr. 303 ; People v. City of Long Beach (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 271, 276, 6 Cal. Rptr. 658

Amicus curiae may not appeal from decision of court contrary to position advocated by him or her. In re Veterans' Industries, Inc. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 902, 916-917, 88 Cal. Rptr. 303

Amicus curiae appearing in trial court is not allowed to appear on appeal without permission of appellate court. Estate of Bodger (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 710, 716, 276 P.2d 83 ; see also In re Pina (1896) 112 Cal. 14, 16, 44 P. 332

[2] Use of Form

This form of application is for use in a California trial court by an individual or entity requesting leave to participate in an action or proceeeding as amicus curie, by either filing an amicus curiae trial brief, or by appearing in the action or proceeding as well as filing a trial brief. For discussion of amicus curiae in trial courts, see § 22.16[1].

[3] Procedure and Contents of Request

There are no express statutes or court rules governing such requests, and counsel should consult local rules and practice, if any. The rules governing such requests in the reviewing courts, however, uniformly permit the presiding judge or justice to permit the filing of an amicus curiae brief on any conditions that he or she may set, usually after the applicant files a signed request with the clerk of the court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.200(c), 8.706(b)]. By analogy with these rules, it appears that a noticed motion, with notice to the parties and a hearing, is not necessary. Therefore it is recommended that an applicant file a signed request, such as this application, with the clerk of the court.

The application follows the content requirements for a request made in a state court of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.200(c)]. These requirements provide the most relevant guidelines, because the procedure applicable in the appellate divisions of the superior court provide no express guidelines [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.200(c), 8.706(b)], and a trial court is unlikely to require an applicant to satisfy the more stringent content requirements that apply only to signed requests filed with the California Supreme Court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.200(c), 8.706(b)].

The application includes an order to be signed by the judge of a type typically appended to ex parte applications. In this instance, the order includes language allowing the judge to specify the time for serving and filing the amicus curiae brief, as well as the language permitting answers by the parties. This language, too, is recommended by analogy to the rules governing the procedure in reviewing courts [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.200(c), 8.706(b)]. Some courts may prefer to prepare their own order, however, and local practice should be consulted.

While not required, the applicant may wish to include a memorandum of points and authorities citing the analogous procedures and any other authorities that would support an order granting leave in a particular case [see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities (general discussion and forms relating to memoranda of points and authorities)]. A declaration under penalty of perjury may also be desirable if the applicant is seeking to introduce new issues [see discussion in § 22.15[2] (introducing new matter); see also Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations (general discussion and forms relating to declarations)].

[b] Use of Form

This form is for use by a person or entity to request leave to file a brief as amicus curiae in an appeal before either the appellate division of the California superior court or the California court of appeal.

[c] Procedure and Contents of Request

This application conforms to the procedures governing requests to file amicus curiae briefs with the California Court of Appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.200(c)], which are discussed in see § 22.16[3]. The proposed brief must accompany the application and may be combined with it [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.200(c)(4)]. The application and proposed brief must be served [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.200(c)(4)].

In the appellate division of the superior court, there is no express mention of a written request or its contents, filing, and other procedures. The applicable rule merely provides that a brief of amicus curiae may be filed after first obtaining permission from the presiding judge, on such terms as that judge may set [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.706(b); see discussion in § 22.16[2]]. Counsel should consult local practice if any when filing a request in the appellate division of a superior court. Otherwise, however, it is recommended that the applicant use the requirements applicable in the court of appeal as a guideline, and file a signed request, such as this application, with the clerk of the court.

If the court grants the application, any party may file an answer within the time the court specifies [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.200(c)(6)]. It must be served on all parties and the amicus curiae.

§ 23.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter covers injuries to, and conversion of, animals, injuries by animals to people, and trespassing and estray animals.

The chapter discusses injuries to, and conversion of, animals in § 23.10 et seq. and provides a research guide in § 23.70 et seq. Related forms include the following:

- Forms of complaint for damages for injuries to animals based on negligence [see §§ 23.120 -23.123, 23.125 -23.127].

- A form of complaint for damages for injuries to animals based on breach of a bailment contract [see § 23.126].

- Forms of complaint for damages for conversion of animals [see §§ 23.126, 23.127].

- A form of complaint for recovery of possession of, and for damages to, animals [see § 23.128].

- Forms of complaint for damages for injuries to animals based on strict liability [see §§ 23.129, 23.130].

- A form of complaint for damages for injuries to animals based on willfulness [see § 23.131].

- A form of complaint against a breeder or dealer for illness or death of a dog [see § 23.134].

- A form of affirmative defense based on contributory negligence [see § 23.124].

- Forms of affirmative defenses based on the dangerous acts of a dead animal when it was killed [see §§ 23.132, 23.133].

The chapter discusses injuries by animals to people in § 23.30 et seq., with a research guide in § 23.90, and the following related forms:

- Forms of complaints for damages for injuries based on strict liability [see §§ 23.140 -23.144, 23.159, 23.160].

II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Injuries to, and Conversion of, Animals

3-23 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 23.10

§ 23.10 Governing Statutes

[1] Ownership of Animals

The ownership of animals is authorized by Civ. Code §§ 655 (domestic animals), 656 (wild animals). The duty to avoid injuring, and liability for injury to, another's property is governed generally by Civ. Code §§ 1708, 1714(a) and, in the case of livestock, by Civ. Code § 3341 and Food & Agric. Code §§ 31501-31508.

[2] Injury to Property or Animals

Damages for injury to property generally are governed by Civ. Code §§ 3333, 3354, 3355, and exemplary damages for injuries to animals are governed by Civ. Code § 3340. The remedies for unlawful taking and detaining of animals are set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 667 (claim and delivery) and Civ. Code § 3336 (conversion).

Authorization to kill or seize animals threatening other animals is governed by Civ. Code § 3341(2) and Food & Agric. Code §§ 31102-31104, 31151-31153. Seizure and disposition of neglected animals is governed by Penal Code §§ 597f and 597.1.

[3] Bailees of Animals

The duties, liabilities, and rights of bailees of animals are governed generally by Civ. Code §§ 1834-1836, 1838-1840. Civ. Code § 1844 defines a gratuitous deposit, Civ. Code § 1851 defines a deposit for hire, Civ. Code § 1884 defines a loan for use, and Civ. Code § 1925 defines a hiring. The degree of care required is governed by Civ. Code §§ 1846 (gratuitous bailee), 1852 (bailee for hire), 1886-1888 (loan for use), and 1928 (hirer).

[4] Common Carriers

The definition, duties, and liabilities of common carriers are set forth in Civ. Code §§ 2168-2178, 2194-2203.

The duties of railroads to animals along their rights of way are governed by Pub. Util. Code §§ 7626-7631.

[5] Dog Breeders and Pet Dealers

The duties of dog breeders and dog and cat dealers are described, respectively, in the Pet Breeder Warranty Act (Health & Safety Code § 122045 et seq.) and the Pet Protection Act (Health & Safety Code § 122125 et seq.) [see Health & Safety Code §§ 122045(b), 122125(b)]. These provisions, as added or amended in 1991, apply to sales occurring on or after January 1, 1992 [see Stats. 1991, ch. 1128, § 20]. The provisions do not apply to publicly operated pounds or humane societies [Health & Safety Code §§ 122045(d), 122125(d)] or, in the case of the Pet Breeder Warranty Act, to privately operated rescue organizations [Health & Safety Code § 122045(d)]. Nothing in either Act limits the rights or remedies that are otherwise applicable to a consumer under any other law. In addition, any agreement or contract by the purchaser to waive any rights under the Acts are null and void and are unenforceable [Health & Safety Code §§ 122105, 122195]. The provisions of these two Acts are substantially similar to each other, and are discussed in § 23.14.

Dog breeders and dealers are also governed by a third set of provisions regulating dog pedigree registration, set forth in Health and Safety Code § 122300 et seq. These provisions are discussed in § 23.14[6].

[6] Pedigreed Animals

Disclosure of pedigree registration is governed by Health & Safety Code § 122300 et seq. The Pet Breeder Warranty Act regulating dog breeders is contained in Health & Safety Code § 122045 et seq. The Pet Protection Act regulating dealers of cats and dogs is contained in Health & Safety Code § 122125 et seq.

[7] Cruelty to Animals

Prohibitions against cruelty to animals are found in Penal Code §§ 537b, 596-600; Food & Agric. Code § 19348.5; Health & Safety Code §§ 1650-1677; and 45 U.S.C.S. §§ 71-74. However, a violation of these statutes is not necessarily enforceable through a private right of action [see, e.g., Animal Legal Defense Fund v. Mendes (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 136, 145, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 553 (no private right to enforce violation of Pen. Code § 597t)].

Chapter 23 ANIMALS: CIVIL LIABILITY
II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Injuries to, and Conversion of, Animals

3-23 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 23.11

§ 23.11 Statutes of Limitations

An action against any person who boards or feeds an animal or fowl or who engages in the practice of veterinary medicine as defined in Bus. & Prof. Code § 4826 (including a person who represents himself or herself as so engaged) for such person's neglect resulting in injury or death to an animal or fowl in the course of boarding or feeding such animal or fowl or in the course of the practice of veterinary medicine on such animal or fowl must be commenced within one year [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 312, 340(c)].

An action for injury or death against a veterinarian based on alleged professional negligence, or for rendering professional services without consent or for error or omission in such person's practice, must be commenced within three years after the date of injury or one year after the plaintiff discovers or, through the use of reasonable diligence, should have discovered the injury, whichever first occurs [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 312, 340.5]. Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 enumerates several health care providers such as physicians, dentists, nurses and opticians and includes veterinarians. It refers to actions for injury or death but apparently would apply only to the injury or death of a person and not to an animal so that Code Civ. Proc. § 340(c) would govern such cases.

An action for taking, detaining, or injuring any goods or chattels, including actions for the specific recovery of personal property, must be commenced within three years [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 312, 338(c)].

An action for injury to or for the death of one caused by the wrongful act or neglect of another must be commenced within two years (within one year prior to January 1, 2003) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 312, 335.1; see former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3); see also Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.14], and an action for trespass on or injury to real property must be commenced within three years [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 312, 338(b)], after the cause of action has accrued.

§ 23.12 Ownership of Animals

All domestic animals are subject to ownership [Civ. Code § 655]. Animals wild by nature are subject to ownership, while living, only when on the land of the person claiming them, or when tamed, or taken and held in possession, or disabled and immediately pursued [Civ. Code § 656; see also People v. Kasold (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 891, 892-893 , 314 P.2d 241 (involving bees)].

3-23 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 23.13

§ 23.13 Duty to Avoid Injury to Animals

[1] General Responsibilities

Every person is bound, without contract, to abstain from injuring the property of another or infringing on any of his or her rights [Civ. Code § 1708]. Everyone is responsible, not only for the result of his or her willful acts, but also for an injury occasioned to another by his or her want of ordinary care or skill in the management of his or her property or person, except so far as the latter has, willfully or by want of ordinary care, brought the injury on himself or herself. The extent of liability in such cases is defined by Civ. Code §§ 3281-3360 (compensatory relief) [Civ. Code § 1714; see also Smith v. Finley (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 599, 601, 246 P.2d 989 (negligent injury of horse by motorist)]. For a form of complaint based on this general duty, see § 23.120.

[2] Railroads

[a] Duty of Railroad

Every railroad corporation must make and maintain a good and sufficient fence on both sides of its track and property. If it does not and if its engine or cars kill or maim any cattle or other domestic animals on its line or road, except, if the road runs through or on public land, it must pay to the owner of the cattle or other domestic animals a fair market price for them, unless the killing or maiming occurred through the neglect or fault of the owner of the animal [Pub. Util. Code §§ 14, 7626].

The railroad is bound to use reasonable diligence in keeping its right of way fences in repair, and it need not resort to extraordinary means, such as the maintenance of a special patrol, to ensure that its fences will not be broken or that they are promptly repaired, if broken. If animals escape onto the track as a result of the giving way of a part of the fence that was neither defective nor unfitted for any other reason for the task imposed on it under ordinary conditions, the railroad is not liable for any resulting harm [Jesus Maria Rancho v. South. Pac. Co. (1918) 36 Cal. App. 375, 379, 384, 172 P. 183 (decided under former Civ. Code § 485)]. For a form of complaint against a railroad based on the failure to properly fence a right-of-way, see § 23.121.

[b] Duty of Landowner

A railroad corporation that pays to the owner of the land through or along which its road is located an agreed price for making and maintaining a good and sufficient fence, or that pays the cost of such a fence with the award of damages allowed for the right of way for the railroad, is relieved and exonerated from all claims for damages arising out of the killing or maiming of any animals of persons who fail to construct and maintain the fence. The owners of these animals are responsible for any damages or loss that may accrue to the corporation from the animals being on its railroad track as a result of the failure to construct such a fence, unless it is shown that the loss or damage occurred through the negligence or fault of the corporation or its officers, agents, or employees [Pub. Util. Code § 7627; see also Pub. Util. Code §§ 7628-7631 (procedure before Public Utilities Commission to obtain order directing railroad to erect and maintain fences along track to protect domestic animals)].

[3] Bailees

[a] Duty of Care

A depositary of living animals must provide them with suitable food and shelter, and treat them kindly [Civ. Code § 1834; see also Civ. Code §§ 1834.5, 1834.6 (treatment by animal care facilities of abandoned animals); Cox v. Pithoud (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 571, 573-575, 34 Cal. Rptr. 582 (liability of for negligent failure to provide cattle with food)].

A contract of deposit for mutual consideration is a deposit for hire, under which the depositary has a duty of ordinary care with respect to the thing deposited. The depositor is entitled to recover damages in an action for breach of the deposit contract if the depositary fails to redeliver the thing deposited because of the depositary's want of ordinary care. In such an action, once the depositor establishes the fact of the deposit, the burden then shifts to the depositary to establish his or her lack of negligence [Gebert v. Yank (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 544, 551-555, 218 Cal. Rptr. 585 (upholding award against depositary for loss of horse deposited for sale on commission)].

For a form of complaint seeking damages based on the death of an animal during the course of a bailment, see § 23.126.

[b] Gratuitous Deposit

Gratuitous deposit is a deposit for which the depositary receives no consideration beyond the mere possession of the thing deposited [Civ. Code § 1844]. A gratuitous depositary must use, at least, slight care for the preservation of the thing deposited [Civ. Code § 1846; see also Davis v. National Lumber Co. (1913) 22 Cal. App. 111, 113, 133 P. 509 (nonliability of bailee, absent gross negligence, for death of bailed mule killed by another animal)].

[c] Loan for Use

A loan for use is a contract by which one gives to another the temporary possession and use of personal property and the latter agrees to return the same thing to the lender at a future time, without reward for its use [Civ. Code § 1884]. A borrower for use must use great care for the preservation in safety and in good condition of the thing lent [Civ. Code § 1886]. One who borrows a living animal for use must treat it with great kindness and provide everything necessary and suitable for it [Civ. Code § 1887]. A borrower for use is bound to have and to exercise such skill in the care of the thing lent as the borrower causes the lender to believe the borrower to possess [Civ. Code § 1888].

[d] Contract for Hire

Hiring is a contract by which one gives to another the temporary possession and use of property, other than money for reward, and the latter agrees to return the same to the former at a future time [Civ. Code § 1925]. The hirer of a thing must use ordinary care for its preservation in safety and in good condition [Civ. Code § 1928; see also Lintott v. San Francisco etc. Co. (1909) 10 Cal. App. 372, 373, 375, 101 P. 1064 (liability for injury to horses due to hirer's negligence)].

[4] Common Carriers

A passenger, consignor, or consignee, by accepting a ticket, bill of lading, or written contract for carriage, with a knowledge of its terms, assents to the limitation stated therein to the common carrier's liability for loss or injury to live animals carried [Civ. Code § 2176]. But a common carrier cannot be exonerated, by any agreement made in anticipation thereof, from liability for the gross negligence, fraud, or willful wrong of the carrier or its servants [Civ. Code § 2175]. For a form of complaint against a carrier based on the death of an animal during transit, see § 23.122.

[5] Animal Owners, Possessors, and Harborers

The owner, possessor, or harborer of any dog or other animal that, on the premises of any person other than the owner, possessor, or harborer of such dog or other animal, kills, worries, or wounds any bovine animal, swine, horse, mule, burro, sheep, angora goat, cashmere goat, or poultry is liable to the owner of the same for the damages and costs of suit, to be recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction. In the prosecution of actions for damages, it is not necessary for the plaintiff to show that the owner, possessor, or harborer of such dog or other animal had knowledge of the fact that such dog or other animal would kill, wound, or worry bovine animals, swine, horses, mules, burros, sheep, goats, or poultry. This does not render an owner, possessor, or harborer of a dog liable for the accidental or unavoidable killing or injury of any bovine animal, swine, horse, mule, burro, sheep, angora goat, cashmere goat, or poultry that occurs in connection with or as an incident to the driving or herding the same from the premises of the owner, possessor, or harborer of the dog, whether such killing or injury occurs on such premises or off of such premises [Civ. Code § 3341].

The owner of any livestock or poultry that is injured or killed by any dog may recover as liquidated damages from the owner of the dog twice the actual value of the animals killed or twice the value of the damages sustained by reason of the injuries, as the case may be [Food & Agric. Code § 31501; Haworth v. Lira (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1362, 1372, 284 Cal. Rptr. 62 ; see also § 23.129 [1]]. If two or more dogs kept by two or more owners or keepers injure or kill any livestock or poultry at the same time, the owners or keepers of the dogs are jointly and severally liable for the damage [Food & Agric. Code § 31502].

The liability of an owner, possessor, or harborer of an animal for injury to an animal other than poultry or livestock [see Civ. Code § 3341; Food & Agric. Code §§ 31501, 31502] is apparently governed by the general rules of negligence [see Roos v. Loeser (1919) 41 Cal. App. 782, 785-786, 183 P. 204 (plaintiff's dog killed by defendant's dog)].

For a form of complaint seeking damages for an animal killed by a dog, see § 23.125

[6] Defenses

When the negligence of an owner of animals contributes proximately to their injury or death, the owner's recovery of damages therefor will be reduced by his or her proportion of fault [see Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 809-825, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226]. The owner is guilty of contributory negligence when, despite his or her full knowledge of anticipated or actual performance of acts that will result in injury, the owner fails to exercise reasonable precaution to protect his or her animals [Lenk v. Spezia (1949) 95 Cal. App. 2d 296, 305-306, 213 P.2d 47 (failure to protect bees during crop dusting)]. For a form of affirmative defense alleging that plaintiff's negligence should reduce his or her recovery under comparative fault principles, see § 23.124.

Chapter 23 ANIMALS: CIVIL LIABILITY
II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Injuries to, and Conversion of, Animals

3-23 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 23.14

§ 23.14 Duties of Dog Breeders and Pet Dealers

[1] Disclosures and Health Conditions

At the time of sale of a cat or dog, retail dealers are obligated to provide written disclosure to the purchaser of information, including the breeder's name and address, and certain health information [see Health & Safety Code § 122140; see also Health & Safety Code §§ 122210(a) (sale of dog prohibited unless it has been examined by licensed veterinarian), 122215, 122220 (notices or information that must be posted or provided on request by pet dealers)]. Dog breeders must provide a similar disclosure to each purchaser of a dog [see Health & Safety Code § 122050]. The dealer or breeder must maintain a written record on the health, status, and disposition of each animal for a period not less than one year after disposition of the animal [Health & Safety Code §§ 122055, 122145].

In addition, for the sale of dogs, breeders and dealers are obligated to maintain specified healthy conditions for the dogs [Health & Safety Code §§ 122065, 122165] and to provide an oral and written summary of the purchaser's rights under California law on the illness or death of a dog from any known disease, illness, or congenital or hereditary condition that adversely affects the dog's health at the time of sale or that is likely to affect the dog's health in the future [Health & Safety Code §§ 122100, 122190].

[2] Purchaser's Rights on Illness or Death of Dog

[a] Illness of Dog

If a licensed veterinarian states in writing that, within 15 days (or one year for certain congenital or hereditary conditions) after the purchaser has taken physical possession of a dog sold by a breeder or dealer, the dog has become ill due to the illness or condition of the dog, the purchaser may elect one of the following remedies [Health & Safety Code §§ 122070(a), 122160(a); see Health & Safety Code §§ 122075(a), 122165(a) (rebuttable presumption of illness)]:

- Return the dog to the breeder or dealer for a refund of the purchase price, plus sales tax, and reimbursement of reasonable veterinary fees not to exceed the original purchase price, including sales.

- Exchange the dog for one of equivalent value, providing a replacement dog is available, and receive reimbursement of reasonable veterinary fees not to exceed the original purchase price, plus sales tax on the original purchase price.

- Retain the dog and receive reimbursement for reasonable veterinary fees not to exceed 150 percent of the original purchase price, plus sales tax.

[b] Death of Dog

If a dog has died and a licensed veterinarian states in writing that the dog has died because of an illness or disease that existed within 15 days after the purchaser obtained possession, or because of a congenital or hereditary condition that was diagnosed within one year after obtaining possession, then regardless of the date of death, the purchaser may elect to obtain a refund or a replacement dog of equivalent value of the purchaser's choice and reimbursement of reasonable veterinary fees not to exceed the original purchase price, plus sales tax [Health & Safety Code §§ 122070(b), 122160(b)].

A refund, replacement, or reimbursement of veterinary fees is prohibited if any of the conditions listed in Health & Safety Code § 122085 or 122175 exist. A veterinarian's statement and itemized bill of fees is governed by Health & Safety Code § 122090(a) and (b) or 122180(a) and (b). The reasonableness of the value of veterinarian services is governed by Health & Safety Code § 122075(c) or 122165(c).

[3] Purchaser's Duties Prior to Initiating Action

To obtain the remedies discussed in [2], above [Health & Safety Code §§ 122070, 122160] or to file a civil action [Health & Safety Code §§ 122095(b), 122185(b)], a purchaser must substantially comply with certain requirements, including the following:

- Notify the breeder within five days of a licensed veterinarian's diagnosis of a medical or health problem [Health & Safety Code §§ 122080(a), 122170(a)].

- Return the dog to the breeder or dealer with a copy of the veterinarian's statement, within five days of receipt of the statement [Health & Safety Code §§ 122080(b), 122170(b)].

- In the event of the dog's death, provide a statement by a licensed veterinarian that the dog died from an illness that existed on or before the delivery of the dog to the purchaser [Health & Safety Code §§ 122080(c), 122170(c)].

The purchaser must also provide a dealer or breeder contesting the purchaser's demand for refund or reimbursement with the opportunity to have the dog examined by a licensed veterinarian of the dealer's or breeder's choice and at the dealer's or breeder's own expense [Health & Safety Code §§ 122095(a), 122185(a) (not applicable if dog has died)].

[4] Civil Action or Arbitration

If the purchaser and the dealer or breeder are unable to reach an agreement within 10 business days following receipt by the dealer or breeder of the veterinarian's statement, or following receipt of the dog for examination by a veterinarian designated by the dealer or breeder, whichever is later, the purchaser may initiate an action in a court of competent jurisdiction to resolve the dispute. Alternatively, the parties may submit to binding arbitration if mutually agreed on by the parties in writing [Health & Safety Code §§ 122095(b), 122185(b); see § 23.134 [1]; see generally Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration].

For a form of complaint for use in an action against a dog breeder or dealer, see § 23.134.

[5] Civil Penalties and Injunction

Breeders or dealers who knowingly sell a dog that is diseased, ill, or has a condition, any one of which that requires hospitalization or surgical procedures (sale by pet dealer) or nonelective surgical procedures (sale by breeder), are also subject to civil penalties up to $10,000 (depending on number of violations) or a prohibition from selling dogs at retail for up to one year, or both [see Health & Safety Code §§ 122060, 122205 (action by county district attorney or city attorney)]. Any person violating any provision of the Pet Breeder Warranty Act or Pet Protection Act other than Health & Safety Code § 122060 or 122205 are subject to civil penalties of up to $1,000 per violation [see Health & Safety Code §§ 122110, 122150 (action by county district attorney or city attorney)].

[6] Dog Pedigree Registration

Dog breeders and dealers who sell a dog represented to be registered or registrable with a dog pedigree registry are obligated to provide the purchaser with a notice to the effect that dog pedigree registration does not guarantee a healthy dog, the quality of the lineage, the accuracy of lineage recorded, or that the dog is purebred [Health & Safety Code § 122310; see Health & Safety Code §§ 122300 (defining "dog dealer," "dog breeder," and "dog pedigree registry"), 122305 (dealer's duty to post notice regarding pedigree registration)]. A breeder or dealer failing to comply with this disclosure requirement is liable to the retail purchaser for civil damages in an amount equal to three times the cost of the dog. Claim for payment must be made within one year from the date of the purchase of the dog [Health & Safety Code § 25996.953(a)]. These remedies are in addition to any other remedies or penalties authorized by other provisions of law [Health & Safety Code § 25996.953(b)].

Under the Pet Protection Act, a pet dealer may not state or represent that a dog is registered or capable of being registered unless the dealer provides the purchaser with the appropriate documents necessary for registration [see Health & Safety Code § 122200(a)]. The purchaser has the right to a partial refund or to return the dog for violation of this provision [see Health & Safety Code § 122200(b)].

§ 23.15 Damages

[1] General Noncontract Measure

For the breach of an obligation not arising from contract, the measure of damages, except if otherwise expressly provided by the Civil Code, is the amount that will compensate for all the detriment proximately caused thereby, whether it could have been anticipated or not [Civ. Code § 3333].

[2] For Loss by Buyer or Owner

In estimating damages, except as provided by Civ. Code §§ 3355 (peculiar value) and 3356 (value of written instrument), the value of property to a buyer or owner thereof deprived of its possession is deemed to be the price at which he or she might have bought an equivalent thing in the market nearest to the place where the property ought to have been put into his or her possession, and at such time after the breach of duty on which his or her right to damages is founded as would suffice, with reasonable diligence, for him or her to make such a purchase [Civ. Code § 3354; see also Wilkinson v. Singh (1928) 93 Cal. App. 337, 342, 269 P. 705 (damages for loss of dogs)]. A pet owner may not recover for loss of the companionship of a pet, nor for negligent or intentional infliction of emotional distress based on veterinary malpractice that is not outrageous [McMahon v. Craig (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 222, 229-238, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 555] .

[3] Peculiar Value

If certain property has a peculiar value to a person recovering damages for deprivation thereof or injury thereto, such may be deemed to be its value against one who had notice thereof before incurring a liability to damages in respect thereof, or against a willful wrongdoer [Civ. Code § 3355; see also King v. Karpe (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 344, 348-349, 338 P.2d 979 (peculiar value of Hereford cow and knowledge thereof by defendant)]. Peculiar value under Civ. Code § 3355 refers to a property's unique economic value, not its sentimental or emotional value [McMahon v. Craig (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 222, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 555]. In an early case considering an animal's peculiar value, the plaintiff sought damages for the death of his dog caused by the defendant's negligence. On the amount of damages sought, the court observed the elements of the dog's peculiar value to include its pedigree, reputation, age, health, and ability to win dog shows [Roos v. Loeser (1919) 41 Cal. App. 782, 183 P. 204].

[4] Exemplary

For wrongful injuries to animals being subjects of property, committed willfully or by gross negligence, in disregard of humanity, exemplary damages may be given [Civ. Code § 3340; see also Dreyer v. Cyriacks (1931) 112 Cal. App. 279, 284, 297 P. 35 (gross excessiveness of punitive damages for killing of dog)].

[5] Damages for Taking or Killing Cattle

In any action for the wrongful taking, possessing, harboring, or transporting of cattle, for the driving of cattle off their usual range, or for the killing or slaughter of cattle without the consent of the owner or the person lawfully in possession of such cattle, the detriment caused thereby to the plaintiff is measured as four times the value of the cattle at the time of the taking, possessing, harboring, transporting or driving, or killing or slaughtering thereof, with interest from that time, plus an amount in fair compensation for the time and money properly expended by the plaintiff in pursuit of the cattle [Food & Agric. Code § 21855]. In certain cases in which a secured party [see Com. Code § 9102(a)(72)] takes possession of cattle pursuant to a security agreement, Food & Agric. Code § 21855 does not apply. Also, in a proper case, exemplary damages may be awarded pursuant to Civ. Code § 3340, and the commencement of a criminal action for grand theft of cattle is no impediment to commencing a civil action for damages [see Food & Agric. Code § 21855].

[6] Limit Against Dog Breeders and Dealers

In an action against a dog breeder or dealer for illness or death of a recently purchased dog [see Health & Safety Code §§ 122095(b), 122185(b)], damages are limited by Health & Safety Code §§ 122070 and 122160(a). For further discussion, see § 23.14[2].

[7] Attorney's Fees

If a plaintiff brings an action to recover damages to personal or real property resulting from trespassing on lands either under cultivation or intended or used for the raising of livestock and the plaintiff prevails, he or she is entitled to reasonable attorney's fees in addition to other costs and in addition to any liability for damages imposed by law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.9].

In an action against a dog breeder or dealer for illness or death of a recently purchased dog, the prevailing party has the right to collect reasonable attorney's fees if the other party acted in bad faith in seeking or denying the requested remedy [Health & Safety Code §§ 122095(c), 122185(c)].

§ 23.16 Conversion of Animals

The detriment caused by the wrongful conversion of personal property is presumed to be both of the following [Civ. Code § 3336; see also Kane v. County of San Diego (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 550, 552-553, 83 Cal. Rptr. 19 (interest awarded to owner of dogs from date of their wrongful destruction by animal shelter)]:

- The value of the property at the time of the conversion, with the interest from that time, or an amount sufficient to indemnify the party injured for the loss that is the natural, reasonable, and proximate result of the wrongful act complained of and that a proper degree of prudence on his or her part would not have averted.

- A fair compensation for the time and money properly expended in pursuit of the property.

For a form of complaint alleging conversion, see § 23.128.

§ 23.18 Killing Depredator

[1] Depredator on Other's Premises

Any person on finding any dog or dogs or other animal, not on the premises of the owner or possessor of such dog or dogs or other animal, worrying, wounding, or killing any bovine animals, swine, horses, mules, burros, sheep, or angora or cashmere goats may, at the time of finding such dog or dogs or other animal, kill the same, and the owner or owners thereof sustains no action for damages against any person so killing such dog or dogs, or other animal [Civ. Code § 3341(2); see also Food & Agric. Code §§ 31102-31104, 31151-31153 (similar provisions, but limited to when dogs are the aggressors)].

The victimized animal need not belong to the person killing the depredator for Section 3341(2) to apply [Sabin v. Smith (1915) 26 Cal. App. 676, 678, 147 P. 1180].

The depredator must be actually be worrying, wounding, or killing the animal protected by Civ. Code § 3341 for the defendant to be protected from liability; a defendant who acts on appearances, believing the depredator to be worrying, wounding, or killing an animal, acts at his or her peril, and must prove that the depredator was doing so in fact [Johnson v. McConnell (1889) 80 Cal. 545, 550-552, 22 P. 219]. The depredator must be caught in the act; killing it to prevent it from returning later to continue its harm is not authorized [Johnson v. McConnell (1889) 80 Cal. 545, 550-551, 22 P. 219 (reversing judgment for defendant; dicta that killing is justifiable if one finds a dogs in the act and immediately pursues and kills them without allowing them to escape or get out of sight)].

For a form of affirmative defense alleging that the killing of a dog was done while the dog was worrying, wounding, or killing other domestic animals, see § 23.132.

[2] Defense of Domestic Animals

The remedy set forth in [1], above, does not abridge the common law right of a person to defend his or her domestic animals, including poultry (not mentioned in Civ. Code § 3341(2)), against the attacks of dogs, or to kill such dogs when the circumstances warrant the belief that his or her domestic animals are in peril. At common law, the justification for the killing was complete when it appeared that the dog was engaged in worrying and terrifying domestic animals in their own lawful enclosure and when the necessity of the killing in order to protect the property was apparent [Sabin v. Smith (1915) 26 Cal. App. 676, 678-679, 147 P. 1180 ; see also Devincenzi v. Faulkner (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 250, 253-254, 344 P.2d 322].

For a form of affirmative defense alleging that the killing of a dog was done while the dog was worrying, wounding, or killing other domestic animals, see § 23.132.

[3] Loss or Damage to Livestock or Poultry

If any person sustains any loss or damage to any livestock or poultry that is caused by a dog, or if any livestock of any person is necessarily destroyed because of having been bitten by a dog, the person may file a complaint in the superior court of the county within which the damage occurred [Food & Agric. Code § 31503; see also Food & Agric. Code §§ 31504-31507 (requirements of complaint, issuance and service of summons)]. The proceeding is a limited civil case [Food & Agric. Code § 31503]. On the return day fixed in the summons, the court proceeds to determine whether the loss or damage to the livestock was caused by the dog. If the court finds that it was caused by the dog, the court notifies the person who owns the dog or was in charge of it when the loss or damage was sustained to kill the dog. Failure of that person to kill the dog as directed renders the owner subject to the penalties that are prescribed in Food & Agric. Code § 30501 et seq. [Food & Agric. Code § 31508].

For forms of complaint for damages based on allegations that livestock or poultry were killed by an aggressor animal, see §§ 23.129 (livestock), 23.130 (poultry).

Chapter 23 ANIMALS: CIVIL LIABILITY
II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Injuries to, and Conversion of, Animals

3-23 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 23.19

§ 23.19 Cruelty to Animals Prohibited

[1] Penalty

Except as provided in Penal Code § 597(c) or 599c, every person who maliciously and intentionally maims, mutilates, tortures, or wounds a living animal or maliciously and intentionally kills an animal is guilty of an offense punishable by imprisonment in the state prison, by a fine of not more than $20,000, or by both, or, alternatively, by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than one year, by a fine of not more than $20,000, or by both [Penal Code § 597(a); but see Church of Lukumi v. Hialeah (1993) 508 U.S. 520, 537-546, 113 S. Ct. 2217, 124 L. Ed. 2d 472 (ordinance forbidding ritual sacrifice of animals violates First Amendment guarantees of free exercise of religion)].

Whoever, having the charge or custody of any animal either as owner or otherwise, subjects any animal to needless suffering, or inflicts unnecessary cruelty on the animal, or in any manner abuses any animal, or fails to provide the animal with proper food, drink, shelter, or protection from the weather, or who drives, rides, or otherwise uses the animal when unfit for labor, is for every such offense guilty of a crime punishable as a misdemeanor or as a felony or alternatively punishable as a misdemeanor or a felony and by a fine of not more than $20,000 [Penal Code § 597(b); see also Food & Agric. Code § 19348.5 (other cruelty to animals provisions); Health & Safety Code §§ 1650-1677 (humane treatment of animals in medical research); Health & Safety Code § 25990 et seq. (prohibition on cruel confinement of farm animals, effective Jan. 1, 2015); Penal Code §§ 537b, 596 et seq.; Humane Society etc., California Branch, Inc. v. Merrill (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 115, 118-120, 18 Cal. Rptr. 701 (procedure for revoking or suspending facility's animal research certificate)].

Animal cruelty under Penal Code § 597(a) is a general intent crime. Therefore, in the trial of a defendant who was accused of killing two dogs, the trial court properly refused to the instruct the jury that defendant had to have acted with the specific intent to maim, mutilate, torture, wound or kill a living animal [People v. Alvarado (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1179, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 391].

[2] Mandatory Seizure and Impoundment of Animal

On the conviction of a person charged with violating Penal Code § 597 by causing or permitting an act of cruelty as defined in Penal Code § 599b, all animals lawfully seized and impounded with respect to the violation by a peace officer, officer of a humane society, or officer of a pound or animal regulation department must be adjudged forfeited and awarded to the impounding officer for proper disposition, except that mandatory seizure and impoundment does not apply to animals in properly conducted scientific experiments performed under the authority of the faculty of a regularly incorporated medical college or university [Penal Code § 597(f)].

In addition, every owner, driver, or keeper of any animal who permits that animal to be in any building, enclosure, lane, street, square, or lot of any city, county, city and county, or judicial district without proper care and attention is guilty of a misdemeanor, and law enforcement and animal control officers have specified duties relating to seizure or impoundment of the animals [see Penal Code §§ 597f, 597.1; see also § 23.20].

[3] Treatment of Livestock by Interstate Carriers

The Federal Cruelty to Animals Act (45 U.S.C.S. § 71 et seq.), relating to transportation of animals and imposing a penalty of not less than $100 nor more than $500 for each violation of the act, occupies the entire field of regulating the treatment of livestock carried by interstate carriers and therefore precludes the application of Penal Code § 597 to such a carrier. This includes the situation in which the animals are at the point of destination, but there has not yet been a delivery to the consignee and a complete surrender of dominion and control over the goods by the carrier [People v. Southern Pacific Co. (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 745,747-752, 25 Cal. Rptr. 644].

Chapter 23 ANIMALS: CIVIL LIABILITY
II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Injuries to, and Conversion of, Animals

3-23 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 23.20

§ 23.20 Seizure of Neglected Animals

[1] General Duties of Public Authorities

[a] Animal Kept Without Proper Care and Attention

It is a misdemeanor to permit an animal to be kept without proper care and attention [see Penal Code §§ 597f, 597.1; see also discussion in § 23.19]. Specified law enforcement and animal control officers have a duty to take possession and care of an abandoned or neglected animal and care for it until it is redeemed by the owner or claimant. Any necessary expenses incurred for care of the animal is a lien on the animal, to be paid before the animal may be lawfully recovered [Penal Code § 597f(a)].

[b] Injured and Abandoned Animal

On information of abandonment, the officer is required to cause a sick, disabled, infirm, or crippled animal, except a dog or cat, to be killed [Penal Code § 597f(a)]. The officer must convey, or cause to be conveyed, all injured dogs and cats found in a public place without their owners, directly to a veterinarian for a determination of whether the animal must be immediately and humanely destroyed or hospitalized under proper care and given emergency treatment. If the owner does not redeem the animal within the locally prescribed waiting period, the veterinarian may personally perform euthanasia on the animal, or, if the animal is treated and recovers from its injuries, the veterinarian may keep the animal for purposes of adoption, provided the responsible animal control agency has first been contacted and has refused to take possession of the animal [Penal Code § 597f(b) (also providing for transfer to other facility, payment of costs, and veterinarian immunity); see also Penal Code § 597f(c) (records on whereabouts of animal transferred by veterinarian to other facility)]. A veterinarian is immune from civil or criminal liability for any decision made or services provided pursuant to Penal Code § 597f [Penal Code § 597f(b)].

[c] Animal Unfit for Labor

Specified law enforcement and animal control officers may take charge of any animal, including a dog or cat, that is unfit for the labor it is performing by reason of lameness, sickness, feebleness, or neglect, or that is in any other manner is being cruelly treated. If the animal is not in the custody of its owner, the officer is required to give notice of this action to the owner, if known, and may provide suitable care for the animal until it is deemed to be in suitable condition to be delivered to the owner [Penal Code § 597f(a)].

[d] Destruction of Severely Injured Animal

Notwithstanding the provisions set forth in [1]-[3], above, a specified law enforcement or animal control officer may, with the approval of his or her immediate superior, humanely destroy any abandoned animal in the field if the animal is too severely injured to move or if a veterinarian is not available and it would be more humane to dispose of the animal [Penal Code § 597f(d)].

[2] Procedures

[a] Seizure of Animal and Right to Hearing

[i] Postseizure Hearing

If a peace officer, humane society officer, or animal control officer has reasonable grounds to believe that very prompt action is required to protect the health or safety of an abandoned, stray, sick or infirm, or cruelly treated animal or the health and safety of others, the officer is required to immediately seize the animal [Penal Code § 597.1(a), (b)]. Prior to the commencement of any criminal proceedings authorized by Penal Code § 597.1, the officer is required to provide the owner or keeper of the animal, if known or ascertainable after reasonable investigation, with the opportunity for a postseizure hearing to determine the validity of the seizure or impoundment or both [Penal Code § 597.1(a), (b), (f)].

[ii] Preseizure Hearing

If the need for immediate seizure is not present, prior to the commencement of any criminal proceedings authorized by Penal Code § 597.1, the agency is required to provide the owner or keeper of the animal, if known or ascertainable after reasonable investigation, with the opportunity for a hearing prior to any seizure or impoundment of the animal. The owner must produce the animal at the time of the hearing unless, prior to the hearing, the owner has made arrangements with the agency to view the animal on request of the agency, or unless the owner can provide verification that the animal was humanely destroyed. Any person who willfully fails to produce the animal or provide the verification is guilty of an infraction, punishable by a fine [Penal Code § 597.1(g)].

[iii] Animal Seized as Evidence

Penal Code § 597.1 does not prohibit the seizure or impoundment of animals as evidence as provided for under any other provision of law [Penal Code § 597.1(k)].

[b] Notice of Hearing

The agency is required to cause a notice to be affixed to a conspicuous place where the animal was situated or personally deliver a notice of hearing as required [Penal Code § 597.1(f)(1), (g)(1)]. In the case of an immediate seizure or impoundment, the notice must be given within 48 hours, excluding weekends and holidays [Penal Code § 597.1(f)(1)]. In the case of a possible seizure or impoundment, the notice must state the grounds for believing the animal should be seized under Penal Code § 597.1(a) or (b) [Penal Code § 597.1(g)(1)].

The notice must include all of the following [Penal Code § 597.1(f)(1), (g)(1)]:

- The name, business address, and telephone number of the officer providing the notice.

- A description of the animal seized, including any identification on the animal.

- The authority and purpose for the seizure or impoundment, or possible seizure or impoundment; and, in the case an immediate seizure, the time, place, and circumstances under which the animal was seized.

- In the case of an immediate seizure, a statement that, in order to receive a postseizure hearing, the owner or person authorized to keep the animal, or his or her agent, must request the hearing by signing and returning an enclosed declaration of ownership or right to keep the animal to the agency providing the notice within 10 days, including weekends and holidays, of the date of the notice [Penal Code § 597.1(f)(1)(D)]. The declaration may be returned by personal delivery or mail.

- In the case of a possible seizure or impoundment, a statement that, in order to receive a hearing prior to any seizure, the owner or person authorized to keep the animal, or his or her agent, is required to request the hearing by signing and returning the enclosed declaration of ownership or right to keep the animal to the officer providing the notice within two days, excluding weekends and holidays, of the date of the notice [Penal Code § 597.1(g)(1)(D)].

- A statement that the cost of caring for and treating any animal properly seized under Penal Code § 597.1 is a lien on the animal and that the animal may not be returned to the owner until the charges are paid. Further, in the case of an immediate seizure, the failure to request or to attend a scheduled hearing will result in liability for that cost [Penal Code § 597.1(f)(1)(E)]. In the case of a possible seizure, the failure will result in a conclusive determination that the animal may properly be seized and that the owner will be liable for the charges [Penal Code § 597.1(g)(1)(E)].

[c] Hearing and Decision

[i] Timing of Hearing

The hearing is to be conducted within 48 hours of receipt of the request, excluding weekends and holidays [Penal Code § 597.1(f)(2), (g)(2) (preseizure hearing to be conducted within 48 hours "after receipt of the request")].

[ii] Hearing Officer

The seizing agency may authorize its own officer or employee to conduct the hearing if the hearing officer is not the same person who directed the seizure or impoundment of the animal (or, in the case of a possible seizure, is not the same person who requests the seizure or impoundment), and is not junior in rank to that person. The agency may utilize the services of a hearing officer from outside the agency for the purposes of complying with Penal Code § 597.1 [Penal Code § 597.1(f)(2), (g)(2)].

[iii] Forfeiture of Right to Hearing

Failure of the owner or keeper, or of his or her agent, to request or to attend a scheduled hearing will result in a forfeiture of any right to a postseizure or preseizure hearing, as the case may be, or the right to challenge his or her liability for costs incurred [Penal Code § 597.1(f)(3), (g)(3)].

[iv] Determination in Postseizure Hearing of Liability for Care of Animal

In the case of postseizure hearing, the agency, department, or society employing the person who directed the seizure is responsible for the costs incurred for caring and treating the animal, if it is determined in the postseizure hearing that the seizing officer did not have reasonable grounds to believe very prompt action, including seizure of the animal, was required to protect the health or safety of the animal or the health or safety of others. If it is determined the seizure was justified, the owner or keeper is personally liable to the seizing agency for the cost of the seizure and care of the animal. The charges for the seizure and care of the animal is a lien on the animal, and the animal may not be returned to its owner until the charges are paid and the seizing agency or hearing officer has determined that the animal is physically fit or the owner demonstrates to the seizing agency's or the hearing officer's satisfaction that the owner can and will provide the necessary care [Penal Code § 597.1(f)(4)].

[v] Authority of Hearing Officer After Preseizure Hearing

In the case of a preseizure hearing, the hearing officer, after the hearing, may affirm or deny the owner's or keeper's right to custody of the animal and, if reasonable grounds are established, may order the seizure or impoundment of the animal for care and treatment [Penal Code § 597.1(g)(4)].

[d] Conditions for Return of Animal

[i] Liability for Cost of Seizure and Care of Animal

The owner or keeper is personally liable to the seizing agency for the cost of the seizure and care of the animal. If all charges are not paid within 14 days of the seizure, or within 14 days of notice of availability of the animal to be returned, the animal is deemed abandoned and may be disposed of by the impounding officer [Penal Code § 597.1(h)].

[ii] Animal Requiring Veterinary Care

If the animal requires veterinary care and the agency or society is not assured, within 14 days of seizure, that the owner will provide the necessary care, the animal will not be returned to the owner, and will be deemed to have been abandoned and may be disposed of by the impounding officer. An animal may be destroyed without regard to the holding period if the animal has incurred severe injuries or is incurably crippled. An animal afflicted with a serious contagious disease may also be immediately destroyed unless the owner or his or her agent immediately authorizes treatment by the veterinarian at the expense of the owner or agent [Penal Code § 597.1(i)].

A seized animal may not be returned to its owner until the seizing agency or hearing officer determines that the animal is physically fit, or the owner can demonstrate that he or she can and will provide the necessary care [Penal Code § 597.1(j)].

[e] Disposition of Seized Animal After Conviction

On the conviction of a person charged with a violation of Penal Code § 597.1, all animals lawfully seized and impounded with respect to the violation are to be adjudged by the court to be forfeited and are to thereon be transferred to the impounding officer for proper disposition. A person convicted of a violation of that section is personally liable to the seizing agency for all costs of impoundment from the time of seizure to the time of proper disposition [Penal Code § 597.1(k)].

§ 23.30 Governing Statutes

The liability for injuries to others is governed generally by Civ. Code § 1714(a). As to dog bites, liability is governed by Civ. Code §§ 3342, 3342.5. The duty to control livestock along a highway is governed by Food & Agric. Code §§ 16902-16904. The regulation and control of potentially dangerous or vicious dogs is governed by Food & Agric. Code § 31601 et seq. The presumption of failure to exercise due care that arises from violation of law is governed by Evid. Code § 669.

Criminal liability of animal owners, or those in custody or control of a mischievous animal, for human deaths caused by their animals is governed by Penal Code § 399. Criminal liability of an owner, custodian, or person in control of a dog trained to fight, attack, or kill whose bite causes a human injury is governed by Penal Code § 399.5. The requirement that an animal owner or custodian provide identifying and other contact information when the person knows or has reason to know that the animal bit another person is contained in Pen. Code § 398 (effective January 1, 2008).

In addition, Penal Code § 245, governing assault with a deadly weapon, has been construed to include dogs trained to attack humans on command within the meaning of "deadly weapon or instrument" [see People v. Nealis (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 6 , 283 Cal. Rptr. 376 , discussed in § 23.36[2]]. Criminal liability for violations involving vicious or potentially dangerous dogs are governed by Food & Agric. Code § 31662.

§ 23.31 Negligent Maintenance or Handling of Animals

[1] Extent of Liability

Everyone is responsible not only for the result of his or her willful acts, but also for an injury occasioned to another by his or her want of ordinary care or skill in the management of his or her property or person, except so far as the latter has, willfully or by want of ordinary care, brought the injury on himself or herself. The extent of liability in such cases is defined by Civ. Code §§ 3281-3360 (compensatory relief) [Civ. Code § 1714(a)]. There are other factual contexts that can lead to liability for negligent maintaining or handling of an animal [see § 23.32]. These include public exhibitions of animals [Porter v. Thompson (1946) 74 Cal. App. 2d 474, 477-478, 169 P.2d 40 (injury to spectators at cattle auction)], animals in stores [Baley v. J. F. Hink & Son (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 102, 108-109, 111, 283 P.2d 349 (potential liability to injured customer of both the store and the customer bringing in the animal)], animals on public conveyances [Westwater v. Southern Pacific Co. (1940) 38 Cal. App. 2d 369, 371-372, 101 P.2d 154 (passenger bitten on train)], animals startled into uncharacteristic violence by an unusual spectacle [Darnold v. Voges (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 230, 243-247, 300 P.2d 255 (cow, photographed in barn, was startled by flash bulb, causing injury to milker)].

For forms of complaint seeking recovery of damages based on negligence in the maintenance or handling of animals, see §§ 23.143, 23.145 -23.158.

[2] Violation of Statute, Ordinance, Regulation

The failure of a person to exercise due care is presumed if all of the following are met [Evid. Code § 669(a); Delfino v. Sloan (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1429, 1433-1434, 1438, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 265 (violation of leash law ordinance did not require proof that dog's owner willfully caused dog to run loose; ordinance applied to bicyclist injured by dog knocking her off bicycle); see also Hagen v. Laursen (1953) 121 Cal. App. 2d 379, 385-386, 263 P.2d 489 (no liability if the ordinance violated is intended to protect livestock, not social guests such as plaintiff, from attack by dogs); Rollins v. Hedin (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 488, 490, 250 P.2d 728 (dog owner liable to pedestrian injured as proximate result of violation of leash ordinance); Brotemarkle v. Snyder (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 388, 389-390, 221 P.2d 992 (purpose of leash ordinance as not restricted to preventing dog bites; motorcyclist as allowed to recover for injury resulting from collision between his motorcycle and unleashed dog)]:

- The person violated a statute, ordinance, or regulation of a public entity.

- The violation proximately caused death or injury to person or property.

- The death or injury resulted from an occurrence of the nature that the statute, ordinance, or regulation was designed to prevent.

- The person suffering the death or the injury to his or her person or property was one of the class of persons for whose protection the statute, ordinance, or regulation was adopted.

This presumption may be rebutted by proof of either of the following [Evid. Code § 669(b)]:

- The person violating the statute, ordinance, or regulation did what might reasonably be expected of a person of ordinary prudence, acting under similar circumstances, who desired to comply with the law.

- The person violating the statute, ordinance, or regulation was a child and exercised the degree of care ordinarily exercised by persons of his or her maturity, intelligence, and capacity under similar circumstances, and the violation did not occur in the course of an activity normally engaged in only by adults and requiring adult qualifications.

- Even if the presumption is not rebutted, there is no liability if the evidence fails to show any causal connection between the alleged violation of law and the injuries sustained. The violation must have proximately caused the injury [Eigner v. Race (1942) 54 Cal. App. 2d 506, 512-513, 129 P.2d 444 (actions of friendly dog on leash held by small girl who bumped into woman as unavoidable accident)].

[3] Failure to Prevent Foreseeable Harm by Dog

Keepers of dogs not known to be abnormally dangerous are not required to keep them under constant control. However, they are required to realize that even ordinarily gentle dogs may cause harm under certain circumstances, and they must exercise reasonable care to prevent foreseeable harm. Harm may be foreseeable because of the characteristics of the particular dog, even if they are not abnormal characteristics. The owner of a dog known to be prone to potentially harmful behavior, such as jumping on people and knocking them down, is liable for injuries caused by this behavior, if the owner failed to exercise reasonable care to control the dog. A plaintiff seeking recovery for injuries under a theory of negligence, as opposed to a theory of strict liability [see § 23.33 [1]], is not required to plead or prove that the dog had vicious or dangerous propensities [Drake v. Dean (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 915, 931-932, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 325 , rejecting dicta to contrary in Hagen v. Laursen (1953) 121 Cal App. 2d 379, 381-382, 263 P.2d 489].

However, a dog owner's duty to exercise reasonable care to prevent foreseeable harm requires knowledge, either actual or constructive, of the particular harm. Thus, the duty does not require the owner to warn a house guest not to allow the dog on the guest's lap to prevent the possible transmission from the dog to the guest of a tick carrying Lyme disease, if the owner did not know, and could not reasonably be expected to have known, that ticks carrying the disease were present in the area [see Butcher v. Gay (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 388, 405-406, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 771].

Absent evidence sufficient to create a triable issue of fact that the neighboring unit owner had actual knowledge his tenant's dog was dangerous, he owed no duty to plaintiff to protect her from his tenant's dog. Although the neighboring unit owner knew the tenant owned a Jack Russell terrier, prior to the incident in which plaintiff was injured, the unit owner had never seen the dog or received any complaints about the dog. The neighboring unit owner had no knowledge that the dog had any dangerous propensities or posed any threat of bodily harm [Chee v. Amanda Goldt Property Management (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1360, 1375, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 40].

Conversely, the court concluded that a homeowner was aware of the risk posed by the dog that belonged to the homeowner's gardeners after an employee working on a remodeling project at the homeowner's residence told the homeowner that the dog looked dangerous and should not be loose on the job site. The employee was subsequently attacked by the dog. The court stated that the homeowner's continued control over the premises distinguished the situation from case law involving a landlord's failure to inspect or take security measures to protect third parties from a dangerous condition on a tenant's property. The gardeners were temporary invitees who kept the dog on the premises with the homeowner's express permission. The homeowner could have prevented the attack simply by directing his gardeners to keep their dogs away from the construction site [Salinas v. Martin (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 404, 412, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 735].

For a form of complaint for damages based on the negligence of an owner of a dog prone to harmful conduct, see § 23.143.

[4] Assumption of Risk

Assumption of risk may be a complete defense to an action for negligence brought against a dog owner by a veterinarian or veterinarian's assistant who is bitten by a dog that is receiving care and treatment while under the veterinarian's or assistant's control. The risk of being attacked or bitten by a dog is an occupational hazard that veterinarians and their assistants accept when they undertake this occupation; they are in the best position to guard against this hazard by taking the necessary precautions. This so-called veterinarian's rule (a variant of the fireman's or firefighter's rule) applies even if the dog owner knew that the dog had previously bitten other people and failed to warn the veterinarian or assistant about the dog's history [Cohen v. McIntyre (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 650, 654-655, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 143 ; Nelson v. Hall (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 709, 714, 211 Cal. Rptr. 668].

The California Supreme Court extended this rationale to an injury suffered by a kennel worker who was bitten while tending to a dog under the kennel's care [Priebe v. Nelson (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 1112, 1132, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 553, 140 P.3d 848] . The Court held that the assumption of risk doctrine was a defense to the imposition of strict liability under the dog bite statute [Civ. Code § 3342; see § 23.33[5]], but remanded the case for retrial on common law claims that were beyond the scope of the Court's review [Priebe v. Nelson (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 1112, 1132, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 553, 140 P.3d 848] .

At least one court of appeal opinion has applied this general rule in a case involving, not a veterinarian, but the assistant of a professional shark handler who was bitten by defendant's shark while being employed to move the shark. The court of appeal analogized the situation to that of the veterinarian and concluded that defendant owed no duty to protect a professional shark handler or his or her crew from the very danger defendant employed the handler to confront [Rosenbloom v. Hanour Corp. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1477, 1480-1481 & n.4, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 686]. For further discussion of primary and secondary assumption of risk, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

§ 23.32 Livestock on Highway

Food & Agric. Code § 16902 provides that a person who owns or controls any livestock must not willfully or negligently permit any of the livestock to stray on, or remain unaccompanied by a person in charge or control of the livestock on, a public highway, if both sides of the highway are adjoined by property that is separated from the highway by a fence, wall, hedge, sidewalk, curb, lawn, or building. However, a livestock owner who negligently fails to keep his or her cattle from straying on a highway may be held liable for damages in a civil action arising from a collision with his or her livestock, even if the collision occurs at a point where the highway is unfenced, in open range country [Summers v. Parker (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 214, 216, 259 P.2d 59 ; Jackson v. Hardy (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 6, 14, 160 P.2d 161]. The "open range" law [Food & Agric. Code § 17123], which provides that persons grazing cattle in counties devoted chiefly to grazing are not required to fence in their cattle, does not absolve cattle owners of their duty under Civ. Code § 1714 to exercise reasonable care in the management of their animals; that duty may include keeping them off well-traveled highways, especially at night, to avoid collisions with automobiles [Shively v. Dye Creek Cattle Co. (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1620, 1629-1631, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 238].

It is unlawful for any person to drive any livestock on, over, or across any public highway between the hours of sunset and sunrise unless he or she keeps a sufficient number of herders on continual duty to open the road so as to permit the passage of vehicles [Food & Agric. Code § 16903].

In any civil action that is brought by the owner, driver, or occupant of a motor vehicle, or by his or her personal representatives or assignees, or by the owner of livestock, for damages that are caused by collision between any motor vehicle and any domestic animal on a highway, there is no presumption or inference that the collision was due to negligence on behalfof the owner or the person in possession of the animal [Food & Agric. Code § 16904; see also Pepper v. Bishop (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 731, 734, 15 Cal. Rptr. 346 (decided under former Food & Agric. Code § 423)].

For a form of complaint by a motorist to recover for damages sustained in a collision with livestock in the highway, see § 23.153.

Chapter 23 ANIMALS: CIVIL LIABILITY
II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Injuries by Animals to People

3-23 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 23.33

§ 23.33 Strict Liability

[1] Injury by Dangerous Animal

The keeper of an animal of a species dangerous by nature, or of any animal that he or she knows, or has reason to know, to have dangerous propensities, is liable, without wrongful intent or negligence, for damage to others resulting from such a propensity. The liability of the keeper is absolute, for the gist of the action is not the manner of keeping the vicious animal, but keeping it at all with knowledge of the vicious propensities. In these instances the owner is an insurer against the acts of the animal to one who is injured without fault, and the question of the owner's negligence is not in the case [Hillman v. Garcia-Ruby (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 625, 626, 283 P.2d 1033 (dog); see also Palmquist v. Mercer (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 92, 99, 272 P.2d 26 (implied warranty of stablekeeper against defects or vicious habits of his horses of which he knows or by reasonable care should know; liability for injury caused to rider by defect or habit); Talizin v. Oak Creek Riding Club (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 429, 437, 1 Cal. Rptr. 514 (controllers had reason to know their horse's propensity to jump out of ring at horse shows); Baugh v. Beatty (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 786, 791-792, 205 P.2d 671 (chimpanzee; wild animals presumed to be vicious)].

For forms alleging strict liability, see §§ 23.140 -23.142.

[2] Dangerous Propensity Defined

A dangerous, or vicious, propensity within the meaning of the law means any propensity on the part of a domestic animal that is likely to cause injury to human beings under the circumstances in which the party controlling the animal places it [Talizin v. Oak Creek Riding Club (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 429, 435, 1 Cal. Rptr. 514].

However, one prior incident involving the animal does not constitute a dangerous propensity [Harrold v. Rolling J Ranch (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 578, 588, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671 (no liability for horse "spooking" when rider removed coat even though stables knew horse had "spooked" once before when rider waved hat)].

[3] Employee's Knowledge of Dangerous Propensity Imputed to Employer

The knowledge of the propensities of an animal by an employee to whom the care of the animal is intrusted is knowledge by the employer sufficient to render the latter liable for injuries to others caused by the propensities [Barrett v. Metropolitan Contracting Co. (1916) 172 Cal. 116, 119, 155 P. 645].

[4] Normal, Justified, or Harmless Behavior Not Evidence of Viciousness

The viciousness of an animal is not evidenced by behavior that is justified or normal under the circumstances or is basically harmless. Thus, a dog bite occurring while the dog is chasing the victim away from its nursing pups is not evidence the dog is vicious and likely to bite again after its nursing period is over. That a dog chases a cyclist and merely snaps at the rear tire is not viciousness, but rather a sign of playfulness [Chandler v. Vaccaro (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 786, 789-790, 334 P.2d 998].

[5] Dog Bite

[a] Liability for Damages

The owner of any dog is liable for the damages suffered by any person who is bitten by the dog while in a public place or lawfully in a private place, including the property of the owner of the dog, regardless of the former viciousness of the dog or the owner's knowledge of the viciousness. A person is lawfully on the private property of the owner if he or she is on the property in the performance of any duty imposed by the laws of California or by the laws or postal regulations of the United States, or if he or she is on the property on the invitation, express or implied, of the owner [Civ. Code § 3342(a); for forms of complaint, see § 23.159 (private place) and § 23.160 (public place)].

One court of appeal opinion, relying on the dictionary definition of the term, held that a "bite" does not actually require that the skin of the victim be broken or a teeth wound inflicted. In that case, the court concluded that the statute applied, even absent an actual piercing by the dog's teeth, when the defendants' dog clamped the plaintiff's clothed leg between its jaws, causing the plaintiff to fall off a ladder [Johnson v. McMahan (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 173, 176, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 173].

Although Civ. Code § 3342 withholds the benefits of strict liability from those who are guilty of trespassing, the statute does not abrogate any common-law remedies that might also be available to a dog bite victim [Stats. 1988, ch. 298, § 2; People v. Berry (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 778, 787, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 416]. Thus, any other cause of action predicated on common-law theories such as negligence or intentional tort is unaffected by the legislation [Stats. 1988, ch. 298, § 2; see People v. Berry (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 778, 788, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 416].

[b] Nonliability of Government Entities

The strict liability of the owner of a biting dog is subject to limitations in the case of a governmental-entity dog owner. No action based on strict liability may be brought against a governmental agency that uses a dog in military or police work if the bite occurred while the dog was defending itself from an annoying, harassing, or provoking act, or assisting an employee of the agency in any of the following [Civ. Code § 3342(b)]:

- The apprehension or holding of a suspect if the employee has a reasonable suspicion of the person's involvement in criminal activity.
- The investigation of a crime or possible crime
- The execution of a warrant.
- The defense of a peace officer.

This limitation does not apply if the victim of the bite was not a party to, or a participant in, or was not suspected to be a party to or a participant in, the act that prompted the use of the dog [Civ. Code § 3343(c)]. Also, the limitation is applicable only if the governmental agency using the dog has adopted a written policy on the necessary and appropriate use of a dog for police or military work [Civ. Code § 3342(d)].

[c] Defense of Assumption of Risk

Although Civ. Code § 3342 imposes absolute liability on the owner of a biting dog, the defense of assumption of risk applies to actions brought under that statute [Priebe v. Nelson (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 1112, 1132, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 553, 140 P.3d 848 (assumption of risk by kennel worker); Gomes v. Byrne (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 418, 420, 333 P.2d 754 ; Davis v. Gaschler (1992) 11 Cal App. 4th 1392, 1399, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 679 ; Nelson v. Hall (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 709, 713, 211 Cal. Rptr. 668]. The risk of a dog bite has been viewed as an occupational hazard to those in the veterinary profession, and assumption of the risk may be a complete defense to an action brought under Civ. Code § 3342 by one in that profession [Gomes v. Byrne (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 418, 420, 333 P.2d 754 ; Davis v. Gaschler (1992) 11 Cal App. 4th 1392, 1399, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 679 ; Nelson v. Hall (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 709, 714, 211 Cal. Rptr. 668 (likening concept of occupational risk inherent in the veterinary profession to occupational risk inherent in firefighting); see also Willenberg v. Superior Court (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 185, 187, 229 Cal. Rptr. 625 (veterinarian assumed risk that dog brought for treatment would jump on him); Cohen v. McIntyre (1993) 16 Cal App. 4th 650, 654-655, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 143 ; for further discussion, see § 23.31[4]].

§ 23.34 Control of Biting Dog

[1] Owner's Duty to Prevent Further Biting

The owner of any dog that has bitten a human being has the duty to take all reasonable steps necessary to remove any danger presented to other persons from bites by the animal [Civ. Code § 3342.5(a)].

[2] Action to Remove Danger of Biting Dog

If a dog has bitten a human being on at least two separate occasions, the district attorney, the city attorney, or any person, may bring an action as a limited civil case against the owner of the animal to determine whether conditions of the treatment or confinement of the dog or other circumstances existing at the time of the bites have been changed so as to remove the danger presented by the animal to other persons [Civ. Code § 3342.5(b), (g)]. This action shall be brought in the county where a bite occurred. The court, after hearing, may make any order it deems appropriate to prevent the recurrence of such an incident, including, but not limited to, the removal of the animal from the area or its destruction if necessary [Civ. Code § 3342.5(b)]. If the dog involved was trained to fight, attack, or kill, the action may be brought whenever the dog has bitten a human being, causing substantial physical injury [Civ. Code § 3342.5(c)].

Nothing in Civ. Code § 3342.5(c) authorizes the bringing of an action pursuant to Civ. Code § 3342.5(b) based on a bite or bites inflicted on a trespasser, or by a dog used in military or police work if the bite or bites occurred while the dog was actually performing in that capacity [Civ. Code § 3342.5(d)]. Furthermore, nothing in Civ. Code § 3342.5 is to be construed to prevent legislation in the field of dog control by any city, county, or city and county, or to affect the liability of the owner of a dog under Civ. Code § 3342 (dog bite statute) or any other provision of law [Civ. Code § 3342.5(e), (f)].

A proceeding under this section is a limited civil case [Civ. Code § 3342.5(g); see Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. § 85 et seq.]. For further discussion of limited civil cases, see Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter .

§ 23.35 Control of Potentially Dangerous or Vicious Dog

[1] In General

The Legislature has determined that potentially dangerous and vicious dogs have become a serious and widespread threat to the safety and welfare of California citizens [see Food & Agric. Code § 31601], and enacted Food & Agric. Code § 31601 et seq. to regulate and control these animals. The legislation does not prevent a city or county from adopting or enforcing its own program to control potentially dangerous or vicious dogs or to punish as a misdemeanor a violation under Food & Agric. Code § 31601 et seq. [Food & Agric. Code § 31683]. However, except as authorized by Food & Agric. § 122331, which allows cities and counties to enact breed-specific spay or neutering and breeding requirements, no program may regulate potentially dangerous or vicious dogs in a manner that is specific to breed [Food & Agric. Code § 31683].

For forms for use in proceedings to determine if a dog is potentially dangerous or vicious, see § 23.166.

[2] Potentially Dangerous Dog

[a] Definition

"Potentially dangerous dog" means any of the following [Food & Agric. Code § 31602]:

- Any dog that, when unprovoked, on two separate occasions within the prior 36-month period, engages in any behavior that requires a defensive action by any person to prevent bodily injury when the person and the dog are off the property of the owner or keeper of the dog.

- Any dog that, when unprovoked, bites a person causing a less severe injury than muscle tears or disfiguring lacerations or one requiring multiple sutures or corrective or cosmetic surgery [see Food & Agric. Code § 31604].

- Any dog that, when unprovoked, on two separate occasions within the prior 36-month period, has killed, seriously bitten, inflicted injury, or otherwise caused injury when attacking a domestic animal off the property of the owner or keeper of the dog.

[b] Consequence of Potentially Dangerous Dog Designation

Any dog that is determined (pursuant to the procedures set forth in Food & Agric. Code §§ 31621-31626, discussed in [5], below) to be potentially dangerous must be properly licensed and vaccinated [see Food & Agric. Code § 31641]. In addition, a potentially dangerous dog, while on the owner's property, must at all times be kept indoors, or in a securely fenced yard from which the dog cannot escape and into which children cannot trespass. A potentially dangerous animal may be off the owner's premises only if it is restrained by a substantial leash of appropriate length, and if it is under the control of a responsible adult [Food & Agric. Code § 31642].

If the dog in question dies or is sold, transferred, or permanently removed from the city or county where the owner or keeper resides, the owner of a potentially dangerous dog must notify the animal control department of the changed condition and new location of the dog in writing within two working days [Food & Agric. Code § 31643; see also Food & Agric. Code § 31606 (definition of "animal control department")].

[3] Vicious Dog

[a] Definition

"Vicious dog" means any of the following [Food & Agric. Code § 31603]:

- Any dog seized under Penal Code § 599aa (animals used for fighting) and on the sustaining of a conviction of the owner or keeper under Penal Code § 597.5 (training, conducting, attending dog fight).

- Any dog that, when unprovoked, in an aggressive manner, inflicts severe injury on or kills a human being [see Food & Agric. Code § 31604 (defining "serious injury" as any physical injury to a human being that results in muscle tears or disfiguring lacerations or requires multiple sutures or corrective or cosmetic surgery)].

- Any dog previously determined to be and currently listed as a potentially dangerous dog that, after its owner or keeper has been notified of this determination, continues behavior described in Food & Agric. Code § 31602 [see discussion in [2] [a], above] or is maintained in violation of Food & Agric. Code § 31641 (licensing and vaccination of potentially dangerous dog), 31642 (keeping potentially dangerous dog), or 31643 (change of condition or location of potentially dangerous dog).

[b] Consequence of Vicious Dog Designation

[i] Destruction of Vicious Dog

A dog that is determined to be a vicious dog may be destroyed by the animal control department when it is found, after proceedings conducted under Food & Agric. Code §§ 31621-31626 [see discussion in [5], below], that the release of the dog would create a significant threat to the public health, safety, and welfare [Food & Agric. Code § 31645(a); see also Food & Agric. Code § 31606 (definition of "animal control department")].

[ii] Conditions of Ownership of Vicious Dog

If it is determined that the dog found to be vicious is not to be destroyed, the judicial authority is required to impose conditions on the ownership of the dog that protect the public health, safety, and welfare [Food & Agric. Code § 31645(b)]. These requirements are met by an enclosure that consists of a fence or structure suitable to prevent the entry of young children, and that is suitable to confine a vicious dog in conjunction with other measures that may be taken by the owner or keeper of the dog. The enclosure must be designed in order to prevent the animal from escaping and the animal must be housed as required by Penal Code § 597t (providing for care of confined animals) [Food & Agric. Code § 31605].

[iii] Owner Temporarily Prohibited From Future Ownership

The owner of a dog determined to be a vicious dog may be prohibited by the city or county from owning, possessing, controlling, or having custody of any dog for a period of up to three years, when it is found, after proceedings conducted under Food & Agric. Code §§ 31621-31626 [see discussion in [5], below], that ownership or possession of a dog by that person would create a significant threat to the public health, safety, and welfare [Food & Agric. Code § 31646].

[4] When Dog Cannot Be Declared Potentially Dangerous or Vicious

No dog may be declared potentially dangerous or vicious if any injury or damage is sustained by a person who, at the time the injury or damage was sustained, was committing a willful trespass or other tort on the premises occupied by the owner or keeper of the dog, or was teasing, tormenting, abusing, or assaulting the dog, or was committing or attempting to commit a crime. No dog may be declared potentially dangerous or vicious if an injury or damage was sustained by a domestic animal that, at the time the injury or damage was sustained, was teasing, tormenting, abusing, or assaulting the dog [Food & Agric. Code § 31626(a)].

No dog may be declared potentially dangerous or vicious if the injury or damage to a domestic animal was sustained while the dog was working as a hunting, herding, or predator-control dog on the property of, or under the control of, its owner or keeper, and the damage or injury was to a species or type of domestic animal appropriate to the work of the dog [Food & Agric. Code § 31626(b)].

[5] Proceedings to Determine if Dog Is Potentially Dangerous or Vicious

[a] Petition by Public Pound, Animal Control, or Law Enforcement Officer

If an animal control officer or a law enforcement officer has investigated and determined that there exists probable cause to believe that a dog is potentially dangerous or vicious, the chief officer of the public pound or animal control department or his or her immediate supervisor or the head of the local law enforcement agency, or his or her designee, must petition the superior court for a hearing for the purpose of determining whether or not the dog in question should be declared potentially dangerous or vicious. A city or county is permitted to establish an administrative hearing procedure to hear and dispose of petitions filed pursuant to Food & Agric. Code §§ 31601-31683 [Food & Agric. Code § 31621].

Whenever possible, any complaint received from a member of the public that serves as the evidentiary basis for the animal control officer or law enforcement officer to find probable cause must be sworn to and verified by the complainant and must be attached to the petition [Food & Agric. Code § 31621].

The Judicial Council has promulgated a Petition to Determine If Dog Is Potentially Dangerous or Vicious [see § 23.166[1]] for use by an animal control or law enforcement officer.

[b] Notice to Owner

The chief officer of the public pound or animal control department or head of the local law enforcement agency is required to notify the owner or keeper of the dog that a hearing will be held by the superior court or the hearing entity, as the case may be, at which time he or she may present evidence as to why the dog should not be declared potentially dangerous or vicious. The owner or keeper of the dog must be served with notice of the hearing and a copy of the petition, either personally or by first-class mail with return receipt requested [Food & Agric. Code § 31621].

The Judicial Council has promulgated a Notice of Hearing [see § 23.166 [2]], which is served with the petition on the owner or keeper of the dog. The Notice instructs the owner or keeper not to bring the dog to the hearing.

[c] Seizure of Dog Pending Hearing

If, on investigation, it is determined by the animal control officer or law enforcement officer that probable cause exists to believe the dog in question poses an immediate threat to public safety, the animal control officer or law enforcement officer may seize and impound the dog pending the hearings to be held pursuant to Food & Agric. Code §§ 31621-31626 [see discussion in [d], below]. The owner or keeper of the dog is liable to the city or county where the dog is impounded for the costs and expenses of keeping the dog if the dog is later adjudicated potentially dangerous or vicious [Food & Agric. Code § 31625(a)].

When a dog has been impounded pursuant to Food & Agric. Code § 31625(a) and it is not contrary to public safety, the chief animal control officer is required to permit the animal to be confined at the owner's expenses in a department-approved kennel or veterinary facility [Food & Agric. Code § 31625(b)].

[d] Hearing

The hearing must be held promptly within no less than five working days or more than 10 workings days after service of notice on the owner or keeper of the dog. The hearing is to be open to the public. The court may admit into evidence all relevant evidence, including incident reports and affidavits of witnesses, limit the scope of discovery, and may shorten the time to produce records or witnesses. A jury shall not be available. The court may find, on a preponderance of the evidence, that the dog is potentially dangerous or vicious and make other orders authorized by Food & Agric. Code §§ 31601-31683 [Food & Agric. Code § 31621].

The court or hearing entity of original jurisdiction may decide all issues for or against the owner or keeper of the dog even if the owner or keeper fails to appear at the hearing [Food & Agric. Code § 31623].

[e] Disposition After Hearing

After the hearing conducted under Food & Agric. Code § 31621 [see discussion in [d], above], the owner or keeper of the dog must be notified in writing of the determination and orders issued, either personally or by first-class mail postage prepaid by the court or hearing entity. If a determination is made that the dog is potentially dangerous or vicious, the owner or keeper must comply with Food & Agric. Code §§ 31641-31646 in accordance with a time schedule established by the chief officer of the public pound or animal control department or the head of the local law enforcement agency, but in no case more than 30 days after the date of the determination or 35 days if notice of the determination is mailed to the owner or keeper of the dog [Food & Agric. Code § 31622(a)].

The Judicial Council has promulgated an Order After Hearing [see § 23.166 [3]] for use by the court or hearing officer. The form sets out the requirements of the Food and Agricultural Code depending on whether or not the dog is determined to be potentially dangerous or vicious [see discussions in [2][a] and [3][a], above].

[f] Appeal

[i] Court Authorized to Hear Appeal

If the petitioner or the owner or keeper of the dog contests the determination, he or she may, within five days of the receipt of the notice of determination, appeal the decision of the court or hearing entity of original jurisdiction to a court authorized to hear the appeal. If the original hearing held under Food & Agric. Code § 31621 [see discussion in [d], above] was before a hearing entity other than the court of the jurisdiction, appeal is to the superior court. If the original hearing was held in the superior court, appeal is to the superior court before a judge other than the judge who originally heard the petition [Food & Agric. Code § 31622(a)].

[ii] Filing Fee

The fee for filing an appeal is $30, payable to the clerk of the court [Food & Agric. Code § 31622(a); see Gov. Code § 70626(b)].

[iii] Notice of Appeal

The petitioner or the owner or keeper of the dog must serve, personally or by first-class mail, postage prepaid, notice of the appeal on the other party [Food & Agric. Code § 31622(a)]. The Judicial Council has promulgated a form of notice of appeal for use by the petitioner or owner [see § 23.166[4]].

[iv] Hearing de Novo

The court hearing the appeal is required to conduct a hearing de novo, without a jury, and make its own determination as to potential danger and viciousness and make other orders authorized by Food & Agric. Code §§ 31601-31683, based on the evidence presented. The rules governing admission of evidence, scope of discovery, shortening of time for production of records and witnesses, and standard of proof are the same as those provided for the initial hearing under Food & Agric. Code § 31621 [see discussion in [d], above] [see Food & Agric. Code § 31622(b)].

The determination of the court hearing the appeal is final and conclusive on all parties [Food & Agric. Code § 31624].

[v] Owner's Appearance Not Required

The court hearing the appeal may decide all issues for or against the owner or keeper of the dog even if the owner or keeper fails to appear at the hearing [Food & Agric. Code § 31623].

[vi] Time Schedule for Compliance When Dog Is Potentially Dangerous or Vicious

If the court rules that the dog is potentially dangerous or vicious, the court may establish a time schedule to ensure compliance with Food & Agric. Code §§ 31601-31683, but in no case more than 30 days subsequent to the date of the court's determination or 35 days if the service of the judgment is by first-class mail [Food & Agric. Code § 31622(b)].

[g] Removal From List of Potentially Dangerous Dogs

If there are no additional instances of the behavior described in Food & Agric. Code § 31602 [defining "potentially dangerous dog"; see discussion in [2][a], above] within a 36-month period from the date of designation as a potentially dangerous dog, the dog must be removed from the list of potentially dangerous dogs. The dog may, but is not required to be, removed from the list of potentially dangerous dogs prior to the expiration of the 36-month period if the owner or keeper of the dog demonstrates to the animal control department that changes in circumstances or measures taken by the owner or keeper, such as training of the dog, have mitigated the risk to the public safety [Food & Agric. Code § 31644; see also Food & Agric. Code § 31606 (definition of "animal control department")].

[6] Proceedings Distinguished From Action to Control Biting Dog

[a] In General

There are a number of differences between the provisions of Civ. Code § 3342.5, which allow actions against an owner of a dog that has bitten a human being on at least two separate occasions, or against an owner of a dog trained to fight, attack, or kill, and the provisions of Food & Agric. Code §§ 31601-31683, which provide for a hearing to determine whether a dog is vicious or potentially dangerous.

The former are actions to determine if circumstances have changed after the animal has bitten a human being, so as to remove danger to other persons [Civ. Code § 3342.5(b), (c)], whereas the latter provide for control of animals that are potentially dangerous or vicious as defined [see Food & Agric. Code § 31601]. The latter also provide for a system of licensing, vaccination, and confinement of potentially dangerous animals as well as for the prohibition of dog ownership in certain instances [see Food & Agric. Code §§ 31641-31646]. The former apply after a dog has bitten a human being on at least two separate occasions, or if it has been trained to fight, attack, or kill, and has bitten a human being [Civ. Code § 3342.5(b), (c)], whereas the latter apply even if the dog has never actually bitten a person [see Food & Agric. Code § 31602(a)].

It is conceivable that a case may fall under both statutory schemes, such as a case in which a dog has bitten another human being on two separate occasions and, after investigation, an animal control or law enforcement officer has determined that the dog is potentially dangerous or vicious. None of the statutes address the relationship between the two schemes. If an action has been commenced under the former scheme against an owner of a dog and a petition has been filed under the latter scheme, however, the cases may qualify for consolidation under Code Civ. Proc. § 1048(a) for the purpose of trying issues common to both proceedings. For discussion of consolidation, see Ch. 125, Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions .

[b] Who May Bring Action

The provisions governing actions against an owner of a dog that has bitten a human being on at least two separate occasions, or against an owner of a dog trained to fight, attack, or kill permit any person, district attorney, or city attorney to bring the action [Civ. Code § 3342.5(b), (c)], whereas the provisions providing for a hearing to determine whether a dog is vicious or potentially dangerous permit only specified public pound, animal control department, or law enforcement officials to petition the court [Food & Agric. Code § 31621]. The former require the action to be brought as a limited civil case [Civ. Code § 3342.5(g)], whereas the latter permit a city or county to establish an administrative procedure to hear and dispose of petitions filed [see Food & Agric. Code § 31621].

Chapter 23 ANIMALS: CIVIL LIABILITY
II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Injuries by Animals to People

3-23 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 23.36

§ 23.36 Criminal Liability

[1] Mischievous Animal

The owner of a mischievous animal, knowing its propensities, is guilty of a felony if the owner willfully suffers it to go at large, or keeps it without ordinary care, and the animal, while at large or while not kept with ordinary care, kills any human being who has taken all the precautions that the circumstances permitted or that a reasonable person would ordinarily take in the same situation [Penal Code § 399].

"Mischievous" animals for purposes of Penal Code § 399 are animals that possess mischievous propensities by their very nature and therefore put their owners on notice that they must be confined lest they injure a human being. The term does not refer to animals that are not mischievous per se but might be dangerous to people if allowed to run free; animals are not made mischievous by the mere fact of their roaming free. Therefore, the owner of a horse that escaped through a fence, ran onto a nearby highway, and collided with a car, killing the car's passenger, was not guilty of violating Penal Code § 399 because the horse was not a mischievous animal; a tendency to bite, gore, or kick is a mischievous propensity, not a tendency to roam, stray, or walk on a highway [Sea Horse Ranch v. Superior Court (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 446, 460-461].

[2] Dog Trained to Fight, Attack, or Kill

[a] Misdemeanor/Felony Violation

Any person owning or having custody or control of a dog trained to fight, attack, or kill is guilty of a misdemeanor or, effective January 1, 2000, a felony if, as a result of that person's failure to exercise ordinary care, the dog bites a human being on two separate occasions, or on one occasion causing substantial physical injury. No person is criminally liable under this provision, however, unless he or she knew or reasonably should have known of the vicious or dangerous nature of the dog, or unless the victim failed to take all precautions that a reasonable person would ordinarily take in the same situation [Penal Code § 399.5(a)].

[b] Hearing Following Conviction

Following an individual's conviction for violation of Penal Code § 399.5(a), the court must hold a hearing to determine if conditions of treatment or confinement of the dog or other circumstances existing at the time of the bite or bites have changed so as to remove the danger to other persons presented by the animal. The court, after the hearing, may make any order it deems appropriate to prevent the recurrence of such an incident, including, but not limited to, the removal of the animal from the area or its destruction if necessary [Penal Code § 399.5(b)].

[c] Limitations on Liability

Penal Code § 399.5 does not affect the liability of a dog owner under Penal Code § 399 or under any other provision of law, or authorize the bringing of an action pursuant to Penal Code § 399.5(a) based on a bite or bites inflicted on a trespasser, on a person who has provoked the dog or contributed to his or her own injuries, or by a dog used in military or police work if the bite or bites occurred while the dog was actually performing in that capacity. "Provocation" as used in this statute, includes, but is not limited to, situations in which a dog held on a leash by its owner or custodian reacts in a protective manner to a person or persons who approach the owner or custodian in a threatening manner [Penal Code § 399.5(c), (d)]. In addition, effective January 1, 2000, Penal Code § 399.5 does not apply to a veterinarian or an on-duty animal control officer while in performance of his or her duties [Penal Code § 399.5(e)].

[d] Dog as Deadly Weapon or Instrument

In addition to the criminal provisions contained in Penal Code § 399.5 relating to ownership, custody, or control of a dog trained to fight, attack, or kill, Penal Code § 245 provides that every person who commits an assault on the person of another with a deadly weapon or instrument other than a firearm or by any means of force likely to produce great bodily injury is punishable by imprisonment in the state prison or county jail for specified periods, or by a specified fine, or both [Penal Code § 245]. In a given situation, a dog may come within the definition of a "deadly weapon or instrument." Depending on the circumstances of each case, a dog trained to attack humans on command, or one without training that follows such a command, and that is of sufficient size and strength relative to its victim to inflict death or great bodily injury, may be considered a "deadly weapon or instrument" within the meaning of Penal Code § 245 [People v. Nealis (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 5-6 , 283 Cal. Rptr. 376].

Penal Code § 399.5 is to be distinguished from Penal Code § 245, in that the former expressly penalizes dog owners or custodians who are negligent in caring for their dog that then bites a human as a result of that negligence. The bite must be a "result of the owner's or custodian's failure to exercise ordinary care" [Penal Code § 399.5(a)]. The latter, however, governs the intentional act of assault with a deadly weapon, such as when the defendant orders the dog to attack the victim [People v. Nealis (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 6 , 283 Cal. Rptr. 376].

[3] Violation of Statute Controlling Vicious or Potentially Dangerous Dog

Any violation of Food & Agric. Code §§ 31601-31683 (governing vicious and potentially dangerous dogs) involving a potentially dangerous dog is punished by a fine not to exceed $500. Any violation involving a vicious dog is punished by a fine not to exceed $1,000 [Food & Agric. Code § 31662].

§ 23.37 Rabies Control

Whenever any case of rabies is reported as existing in any county or city, the State Department of Public Health makes, or causes to be made, a preliminary investigation as to whether the disease exists and the probable area of the state in which the population or animals are endangered [Health & Safety Code § 121595]. If in the investigation the Department finds that rabies exists, a quarantine is declared against all animals designated in the quarantine order and living within the area specified in the order [Health & Safety Code § 121600]. The Department may substitute for the quarantine order those regulations deemed adequate for the control of the disease in that area [Health & Safety Code § 121610; see also Health & Safety Code §§ 121575 et seq., 1904, 1906-2000 (other rabies control provisions); *Dept. § 23.51 Definition

For purposes of *Food & Agric. An estray has also been defined as an animal found wandering at large outside of the premises and beyond the restraint of its owner [*Yraceburn v. Cape (1923) 60 Cal. § 23.52 Taking Up and Caring for Estray Animal

Except as noted in § 23.53 any person who finds any estray domestic animal on his or her premises, or on premises to which he or she has the right of possession, or on any highway which is adjacent to such premises, may take up the animal and have a lien for all expenses which are incurred in taking up, keeping, and caring for it [Food & Agric. Code § 17041]. He or she must confine the animal in a secure place, and within five days file with the Director of Food and Agriculture a notice [see Food & Agric. Code §§ 35, 47, 50, 17042]. The taker-up of an estray animal must use reasonable care to preserve it from injury. If it dies or escapes from him or her at any time while he or she is holding it pursuant to Food & Agric. Code §§ 17001-17128, he or she must not be held liable in any manner therefor [Food & Agric. Code §§ 47, 17043].

Except as otherwise provided in Food & Agric. Code §§ 17001-17128, it is unlawful for any person to remove any animal from the possession of the taker-up [Food & Agric. Code § 17045].

A person does not have the right to take up any estray animal found on his or her premises, or on premises to which he or she has the right of possession, nor does he or she have a lien thereon, unless the premises are entirely enclosed with a good and substantial fence, in the following places [*Food & Agric. - Parts of Trinity and Shasta Counties.

- All of Siskiyou, Lassen, and Modoc Counties.

- All or part of a county which is declared by its board of supervisors by ordinance to be devoted chiefly to grazing. These are "fence law" counties [see 39 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 75 (1962)].

Two acts relating to lawful fences, passed in 1850 and 1859, insofar as the provisions of each of the acts apply to or affect the Counties of Trinity and Siskiyou and part of Shasta County are continued in force, except as to goats, swine, or hogs, which may be taken up in the counties when the goats, swine, or hogs estray or trespass on lands of others. The provisions of Food & Agric. Code §§ 17001-17128 apply to goats, swine, or hogs in such counties, but in all other respects the acts of 1850 and 1859 specified above are continued in full force therein, it being determined that the conditions prevailing in the Counties of Trinity and Siskiyou and part of Shasta County demand the continued application of the acts in the counties until such time as action is taken pursuant to Food & Agric. Code § 17124 (ordinance enacted by county supervisors) [Food & Agric. Code § 17128].

II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Trespassing and Estray Animals

3-23 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 23.54

§ 23.54 Procedure for Handling Estray Animal

[1] Delivery of Animal to Inspector

On demand of any authorized inspector, the taker-up must deliver possession of the animal to the inspector [Food & Agric. Code §§ 47, 17061]. Except as otherwise provided in Food & Agric. Code §§ 17001-17128, it is unlawful for any person to remove from the possession of an inspector any animal so delivered to him or her [Food & Agric. Code § 17062].

[2] Search for Owner of Branded Animal

If the animal is branded, the Director of Food and Agriculture causes a search to be made of the brand records to ascertain the owner [Food & Agric. Code §§ 35, 50, 17063]. If the brands or marks are recorded, the Director immediately, by letter, notifies the person in whose name the brands or marks are recorded [Food & Agric. Code § 17064]. If the owner is not found, notice is posted and sometimes also published [see Food & Agric. Code §§ 17065-17067].

[3] Proving Ownership of Estray Animal

Any person that claims ownership in the animal may, at any time, but no later than 30 days after the first posting of notice, file his or her proofs of ownership with the Director, and the Director proceeds to hear and determine the claim of ownership [Food & Agric. Code § 17068]. If ownership is proved to the satisfaction of the Director, the animal is turned over to the owner on payment by the owner of all expenses which were incurred in the handling of the animal [Food & Agric. Code § 17069].

[4] Sale of Estray Animal

If after 30 days from the date of the first posting of notice no satisfactory proof of ownership of the animal has been made, or if the owner fails or refuses to pay all expenses which were incurred, the Director sells the animal at public sale [Food & Agric. Code § 17092] or at private sale [Food & Agric. Code § 17093; see also Food & Agric. Code §

17091 (disposal of animal if its condition so requires)]. All sales which are made pursuant to Food & Agric. Code §§ 17001-17128 convey a good and valid title to the purchaser. The former owner of the animal so sold is thereafter barred from all right to recover it [Food & Agric. Code § 17092]. But if any person, within one year after the date of the sale, proves to the satisfaction of the Director his or her ownership of an animal which was sold pursuant to Food & Agric. Code §§ 17091-17096, the Director orders the net proceeds of the sale of the animal to be paid to such person [Food & Agric. Code § 17096].

[5] Proceeds of Sale

The proceeds from the sale of any animal are paid into, and the expenses of holding, advertising, sale, and other incidental expenses are paid from, the Department of Food and Agriculture Fund. For the keeping and care of the estray animal, the taker-up is entitled to a per-day payment based on the prevailing rates charged by commercial enterprises which feed livestock on a custom basis. In no event is the taker-up to be paid for feed and care for more than five days prior to the date the notice which is required by Food & Agric. Code § 17042 is made to the Director [Food & Agric. Code §§ 50, 17095; see also Food & Agric. Code § 17044 (taker-up entitled to sum prescribed by Food & Agric. Code § 17095 for keeping and care of estray animal)].

C. Trespassing and Estray Animals

3-23 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 23.55

§ 23.55 Animal Trespasses

At the common law no one is bound to fence his or her lands against the livestock of another, but each owner is bound to restrain his or her own livestock and is answerable for any trespass they may commit on the lands of another [Meade v. Watson (1885) 67 Cal. 591, 593-594, 8 P. 311 ; see also Blevins v. Mullally (1913) 22 Cal. App. 519, 524, 135 P. 307]. This rule applies in most of California.

Remedies under the common law rule include injunctive relief [Montezuma Improvement Co. v. Simmerly (1919) 181 Cal. 722, 726, 189 P. 100 (decided under former statute)] and damages [Moran v. Freeman (1920) 48 Cal. App. 514, 515-516, 192 P. 155 ; see also Waters v. Lanigan (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 268, 269, 275, 290 P.2d 370 (granting damages to landowner against livestock owner who allowed his stock to trespass on plaintiff's unfenced real property) (the preceding two cases were decided under former statutes)]. For forms of complaint for injunctive relief and damages, see § 23.180 et seq.

If a plaintiff brings an action to recover damages to personal or real property resulting from trespassing on lands either under cultivation or intended or used for the raising of livestock, and the plaintiff prevails, he or she is entitled to reasonable attorney's fees in addition to other costs, and in addition to any liability for damages imposed by law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.9].

3-23 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 23.56

§ 23.56 Destruction of Pasturage and Crops

The measure of damages for the appropriation or destruction of pasturage which is used for grazing purposes, where the grass cannot be reasonably severed and marketed separate from the land, is the reasonable rental value thereof in that vicinity for pasture purposes [Murphy v. Nielsen (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 396, 399, 282 P.2d 126 (trespass by cattle); Maddalena v. LeDuc (1938) 29 Cal. App. 2d 211, 212, 84 P.2d 254 (trespass by sheep); Miller & Lux Inc. v. Pinelli (1927) 84 Cal. App. 42, 51, 257 P. 573 (trespass by cattle)].

In contrast, the measure of damages for destruction of annually planted crops raised to be harvested is the market value of the estimated product at the time of destruction, less the cost of producing and marketing the crops [Crofoot Lumber, Inc. v. Ford (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 238, 249, 12 Cal. Rptr. 639 (wrongful removal of timber by loggers)].

3-23 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 23.75

§ 23.75 Decisions

[1] Conversion

Destruction of impounded dogs by county animal shelter in violation of notice and time requirement of former Agric. Code § 439.26 (now see Food & Agric. Code §§ 31107, 31108) is conversion under Civ. Code § 3336. Kane v. County of San Diego (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 550, 552, 83 Cal. Rptr. 19 ; see also Romero v. County of Santa Clara (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 700, 702, 83 Cal. Rptr. 758

Individuals have no personal property ownership rights in wild animals or fish unless animals or fish are captured, tamed, or otherwise reduced to possession; abalone caught in state's coastal waters belong to people of California in their collective, sovereign capacity, and may not be construed to be "property of another" for purpose of obtaining conviction for larceny. People v. Brady (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 954, 957, 286 Cal. Rptr. 19

[2] Cruelty to Animals

If owner leaves on trip and animals fails to receive adequate food, drink, and shelter, Penal Code § 597(b), prohibiting neglect of animals, requires proof of owner's criminal intent or criminal negligence. People v. Brian (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 3 , 168 Cal. Rptr. 105

Federal Cruelty to Animals Act (45 U.S.C.S. § 71 et seq.) precludes application of Penal Code § 597 (cruelty to animals) to common carrier engaging in interstate commerce. People v. Southern Pacific Co. (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 745, 747-752, 25 Cal. Rptr. 644

Procedure for revoking or suspending research facility's animal research certificate after investigation by State Board of Public Health [Health & Safety Code § 1668]. Humane Society etc., California Branch, Inc. v. Merrill (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 115, 118-120, 18 Cal. Rptr. 701

[3] Damages

Measure of damages in action to recover possession of animal. Drinkhouse v. Van Ness (1927) 202 Cal. 359, 374-376, 378-380, 260 P. 869 (necessity of pleading special damages)

One with dominion over animals is entitled to recover possession of their skins under Code Civ. Proc. § 667 from one who killed them without permission. Garcia v. Gunn (1897) 119 Cal. 315, 321-322, 51 P. 684 (goats)

Admissibility of "peculiar value" of animal [Civ. Code § 3355] in action for damages for its negligent destruction. King v. Karpe (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 344, 348-349, 338 P.2d 979 (cow); see also Drinkhouse v. Van Ness (1927) 202 Cal. 359, 378-379, 260 P. 869 (action for recovery of horse)

Damages for negligent injury to animal is difference between its reasonable value before and after injury. Smith v. Finley (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 599, 601, 246 P.2d 989 (horse hit by car)

Civ. Code § 3355 deals with property which has market value and also peculiar value to owner and not with property having no market value. Zvolanek v. Bodger Seeds Ltd. (1935) 5 Cal. App. 2d 106, 110, 42 P.2d 92 (sweet peas)

Gross excessiveness of compensatory and exemplary damages awarded for killing of animal. Dreyer v. Cyriacks (1931) 112 Cal. App. 279, 284, 297 P. 35 (dog)

Valid tender of full amount due to agister by livestock owner discharges agister's lien on livestock, and agister's failure to deliver animals makes him liable for all damages accruing therefrom. Bogue v. Roeth (1929) 98 Cal. App. 257, 261, 276 P. 1071 (action to recover possession of cattle); see also Esponda v. Kelly (1922) 57 Cal. App. 766, 768, 207 P. 939 (failure of agister to redeliver cattle to owner on demand makes agister liable for damages for conversion)

Measure of damages for lost animals is their replacement value [Civ. Code § 3354]. Wilkinson v. Singh (1928) 93 Cal. App. 337, 342, 269 P. 705 (dogs); see also Wells v. Brown (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 361, 365, 217 P.2d 995 (dog)

[4] Endangered Species

Governmental entity is subject to Fish & Game Code § 2080 prohibition against possessing or taking endangered species; specific intent to hunt or fish is not required under section and statute prohibits killing endangered species in course of lawful activity. Department of Fish & Game v. Anderson-Cottonwood Irrigation Dist. (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1554, 1562, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 222

State is not precluded from obtaining injunctive relief against governmental entity whose operations kill fish that are endangered species under Fish & Game Code § 2014, which permits state to recover damages for wrongful taking or destruction of protected living creatures except for destruction of fish in irrigation canals or works or irrigation drainages. Department of Fish & Game v. Anderson-Cottonwood Irrigation Dist. (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1554, 1564, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 222

[5] Injury to Animals

[a] By Bailees and Carriers

In action for breach of bailment contract, brought against bailee for loss of bailor's horse, bailee has burden of proving that loss did not result from his or her negligence once bailor established fact of bailment. Gebert v. Yank (1985) 172

Cal. App. 3d 544, 551-555, 218 Cal. Rptr. 585

Liability of agister to animal owner for loss occasioned by agister's negligent treatment of animals entrusted to him by owner. Cox v. Pithoud (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 571, 573-575, 34 Cal. Rptr. 582 (insufficient feed for cattle); see also Monroe v. Owens (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 23, 28, 172 P.2d 110 (inaccessibility of feed for cattle); Vaughn v. Bixby (1914) 24 Cal. App. 641, 643-645, 142 P. 100 (inaccessibility of water for horses)

Liability of private carrier under Civ. Code § 2114 to shipper for failure to use ordinary care to prevent damage to freight. W.C. Cook & Co. v. White Truck etc. Co. (1932) 124 Cal. App. 721, 725, 13 P.2d 549 (fruit); Klein v. Baker (1931) 112 Cal. App. 157, 161, 296 P. 631 (household goods)

Only slight care for preservation of thing deposited is required of bailee without reward under Civ. Code § 1846. Davis v. National Lumber Co. (1913) 22 Cal. App. 111, 113, 133 P. 509 (deposited mule killed by other animal; bailee not liable absent gross negligence by him)

Failure of common carrier to feed and water animal during its transit is gross negligence. Mering v. Southern Pacific Co. (1911) 161 Cal. 297, 302-303, 119 P. 80 (contract relieved carrier from liability for any damage to horse not proved to have been caused by gross negligence)

Liability of hirer of animal to its owner for injury to animal due to hirer's negligence. Lintott v. San Francisco etc. Co. (1909) 10 Cal. App. 372, 373, 375, 101 P. 1064 (horses)

[b] By Collision

Railroad's liability to animal owner for destruction of animals on its right of way due to its negligent failure to properly maintain fence under former Civ. Code § 485 (now see Pub. Util. Code §§ 7626-7631). Jesus Maria Rancho v. South. Pac. Co. (1918) 36 Cal. App. 375, 379-384, 172 P. 183 ; see also Staggs v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 492, 505, 287 P.2d 817 (prima facie case of liability made out by injury to animal by train and absence of fence); Johnson v. Southern Pacific Co. (1909) 11 Cal. App. 278, 284-285, 104 P. 713 (liability of lessee of railroad under former Civ. Code § 485); but see Bell v. Southern Pacific Co. (1922) 189 Cal. 421, 424-425, 208 P. 970 (nonliability of railroad under former Civ. Code § 485 where its property was under federal government control at time of injury to livestock)

Liability of railroad to owner of animal for negligently killing animal at crossing. Barbee v. Southern Pacific Co. (1908) 9 Cal. App. 457, 461, 99 P. 541 (failure to sound whistle or ring bell)

[c] By Poisoning

Crop owner or crop duster is not liable to animal owner for poisoning of his animal during dusting when animals are not on their owner's property when poisoned and duster does not intend to injure them. Lenk v. Spezia (1949) 95 Cal. App. 2d 296, 302-303, 213 P.2d 47 (bees); see also Jeanes v. Holtz (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 826, 829-830, 211 P.2d 925 (bees)

Liability of crop owner and crop duster to animal owner for death of his animals resulting from crop dust that floated into animals' enclosures. Miles v. A. Arena & Co. (1937) 23 Cal. App. 2d 680, 683-685, 73 P.2d 1260 (bees); see also Lenk v. Spezia (1949) 95 Cal. App. 2d 296, 302-303, 213 P.2d 47 ; Jeanes v. Holtz (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 826, 829-830, 211 P.2d 925

Liability to animal owner of one whose negligence causes poisoning of owner's animals. Wolfsen v. Wheeler (1933)

130 Cal. App. 475, 481-484, 19 P.2d 1004 (sheep killed by rodent poison); see also Selby v. County of Sacramento (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 94, 98-100, 294 P.2d 508 (horses killed by contamination of water and forage by escaping sewage); Brady v. Sutter Butte Canal Co. (1929) 99 Cal. App. 368, 371-372, 278 P. 505 (sheep killed or injured by weed killer sprayed on pastureland)

[d] By Vaccinator

Vaccinator impliedly warrants, not that animal will be rendered immune, but only that reasonable skill and care will be exercised in selecting and applying vaccine. Simons Brick Co. v. Wiglesworth (1920) 184 Cal. 390, 394, 193 P. 947 (hogs)

[e] Defenses

Owner of animals whose negligence contributes proximately to their injury or death is barred from recovering damages therefor. Lenk v. Spezia (1949) 95 Cal. App. 2d 296, 305-306, 213 P.2d 47 (bee owner failing to protect bees during periods of crop dusting)

[6] Insurer's Liability for Failure to Defend Liability of insurer under farmer's comprehensive personal liability policy where it refused to defend action arising from escape of horse. Wint v. Fidelity & Casualty Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 257, 261-265, 107 Cal. Rptr. 175, 507 P.2d 1383

[7] Killing Depredators

Food & Agric. Code § 31103 privilege to kill is extended to shooting that is intended to kill but that does not result in death, and immunizes poultry owner whose employee shoots and wounds trespassing dog that subsequently bites veterinary assistant during treatment of dog's injuries. Scozzafava v. Lieb (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1575, 1577, 1581, 236 Cal. Rptr. 129

Food & Agric. Code § 31103 provides privilege with regard to damages and negligent infliction of emotional distress actions for defendant who killed neighbor's dogs for entering land on which livestock were confined, but does not provide privilege with regard to action for intentional infliction of emotional distress for lying in response to owner's direct questions over course of 10-day period regarding whereabouts of dogs. Katsaris v. Cook (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 256, 266-267, 225 Cal. Rptr. 531

[8] Vicious Animals

Scope of authorization to kill animal threatening livestock under Civ. Code § 3341(2). Johnson v. McConnell (1889) 80 Cal. 545, 550-552, 22 P. 219 ; see also Sabin v. Smith (1915) 26 Cal. App. 676, 678, 147 P. 1180 (under Civ. Code § 3341(2), victimized animal is not required to belong to person killing depredator)

Landlord has neither statutory duty under Civ. Code § 1714(a) nor common law duty to warn prospective tenant of presence of vicious dog in neighborhood when dog is kept by persons who are strangers to landlord on premises over which landlord has no control. Wylie v. Gresch (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 412, 414, 420, 424, 236 Cal. Rptr. 552

Right to destroy animal for purpose of defending oneself or third persons against harm threatened by animal.

Devincenzi v. Faulkner (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 250, 254-255, 344 P.2d 322 (dog)

Liability of owner of animal to owner of animal killed by first animal if first animal is vicious and owner has notice of that fact. Roos v. Loeser (1919) 41 Cal. App. 782, 785, 183 P. 204 (one dog killed another dog)

Common law right of person to defend his or her domestic animals against attacks of dogs is not abridged by Civ. Code § 3341(2) (authorization to kill depredators). Sabin v. Smith (1915) 26 Cal. App. 676, 678-679, 147 P. 1180

[9] Wild Animals

Honey bees are close to dividing line between wild and domestic animals but are classified as wild animals. People v. Kasold (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 891, 892-893 , 314 P.2d 241

Duties of persons owning, controlling, or driving livestock in areas which are adjacent to public highways. Food & Agric. Code §§ 16902, 16903

No presumption or inference that collision between motor vehicle and domestic animal on highway was due to negligence of owner or person in possession of animal. Food & Agric. Code § 16904

[4] Penal Provisions

Criminal liability of animal owner or custodian who fails to provide identifying and other contact information when person knows or has reason to know that animal bit another person. Pen. Code § 398 (effective January 1, 2008)

Criminal liability of owner, or those in custody or control, of mischievous animal that kills person. Penal Code § 399

Criminal liability of owner, custodian, or person in control of a dog trained to fight, attack or kill, whose bite causes a human injury. Penal Code § 399.5

[5] Threats From Animals

[a] To Human Health

Criminal liability for wrongful dumping or destruction of animal carcass. Fish & Game Code § 5652; Health & Safety Code §§ 117475-117500, 116975-116985, 117530; Penal Code §§ 374(b), 374a, 374d, 374.3, 374.4, 374.7; Pub. Res. Code § 49620

Pollution of water supply by animals. Health & Safety Code §§ 116990, 116995, 117005; see also Health & Safety Code §§ 41704(h), 41705, 41861 (inapplicability of restrictions on air pollution in Health & Safety Code §§ 41700, 41701, to raising of fowl or animals)

Destroying, quarantining, disinfecting animals by State Department of Public Health. Health & Safety Code §§ 120135-120150, 120210; see also Health & Safety Code §§ 121775-121870

Rabies control. Health & Safety Code § 121575 et seq.

Bovine tuberculosis. Food & Agric. Code §§ 9901-10152

Rodent infestation. Health & Safety Code §§ 116102-116250

[b] Impure Food Supply

Commercial feed. Food & Agric. Code §§ 14901-15092

Meat and Poultry Inspection Act. Food & Agric. Code §§ 18650-18935

No live animal, bird, or fowl allowed in food facility, or certified farmer's market (except guide, service, or signal dogs). Health & Safety Code §§ 114190, 114320, 114350

Holding, segregation, and disposal of animals unfit for human food purposes. Food & Agric. Code §§ 19051-19056

[6] Traffic Rules and Animals

Stock trails. Sts. & Hy. Code §§ 104(i), 105

Person in charge of animal is required to obey traffic signals and rules. Veh. Code §§ 21050, 21462

Restrictions on driving or parking animals on public premises, Veh. Code § 21113

Animals being led or driven are not permitted on vehicular crossing. Veh. Code § 23330(a)

3-23 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 23.94

§ 23.94 Decisions

[1] Criminal Liability

Owner of horse that strayed onto highway and collided with car, killing the passenger, not guilty under Penal Code § 399; horse is not mischievous animal merely because it was roaming free. Sea Horse Ranch v. Superior Court (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 446, 460-461

[2] Defenses

[a] Assumption of Risk

"Primary" assumption of risk by plaintiff, which bars negligence cause of action, exists when nature of activity and plaintiff's relationship to that activity are such that defendant owed no legal duty to protect plaintiff from particular risk of harm. Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 314-315, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696

"Secondary" assumption of risk, when plaintiff proceeds to encounter known risk caused by defendant's breach of duty of care, is merged into comparative negligence system. Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 315, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696

Assumption of risk and plaintiff's negligence as defenses to action for injuries by horseback rider. Palmquist v. Mercer (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 92, 99-100, 272 P.2d 26 ; Kersten v. Young (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 1, 6-9, 125 P.2d 501

Assumption of risk and willfully invited injury are available defenses under Civ. Code § 3342 (dog bites). Gomes v. Byrne (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 418, 420-421, 333 P.2d 754 ; see also Smythe v. Schacht (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 315, 321-322, 209 P.2d 114 (decided under former statute) commercial operator of horse-riding facility has no duty to provide customers with ideal horses that never engage in sudden movements. Harrold v. Rolling J Ranch (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 578, 588-589, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671

Primary assumption of risk bars recovery of rider for injuries suffered when horse "spooked" and threw her;

Assumption of risk available as defense to actions brought under Civ. Code § 3342; person in veterinary profession assumes risk of dog bite that is inherent in that profession. Cohen v. McIntyre (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 650, 654-655, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 143 ; Nelson v. Hall (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 709, 713-715, 211 Cal. Rptr. 668

Assumption of risk is no defense under Civ. Code § 3342 (dog bites) against child who is too young to be capable of contributory negligence. Greene v. Watts (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 103, 105-107, 26 Cal. Rptr. 334 ; see also Vierra v. Fifth Ave. Rental Service (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 266, 271, 32 Cal. Rptr. 193, 383 P.2d 777

Victim of animal attack who voluntarily or consciously had done something that brought injury on himself or herself is precluded from recovering damages from animal owner or keeper. Baugh v. Beatty (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 786, 791, 793, 205 P.2d 671 (chimpanzee); Heath v. Fruzia (1942) 50 Cal. App. 2d 598, 600, 123 P.2d 560 (horse)

[b] Negligence of Plaintiff

System of comparative negligence established. Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 828-829, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226

Defense of plaintiff's negligence in action for injuries caused by animal's viciousness, of which its owner or keeper knew or should have known, is permitted. Palmquist v. Mercer (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 92, 99-100, 272 P.2d 26 ; Whalen v. Streshley (1928) 205 Cal. 78, 79-82, 269 P. 928, 60 A.L.R. 445 ; Kersten v. Young (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 1, 7-8, 125 P.2d 501 ; Opelt v. Al. G. Barnes Co. (1919) 41 Cal. App. 776, 780, 183 P. 241

Contributory negligence is no defense in action under former Dog Bite Statute [now see Civ. Code § 3342]. Smythe v. Schacht (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 315, 322, 209 P.2d 114 ; see also Gomes v. Byrne (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 418, 422, 333 P.2d 754 ; but see Burden v. Globerson (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 468, 470-471, 60 Cal. Rptr. 632 (contributory negligence is defense in Civ. Code § 3342 dog bite action); Ellsworth v. Elite Dry Cleaners, etc., Inc. (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 479, 484, 274 P.2d 17 (treating contributory negligence is defense under Dog Bite Statute, but equating it with provoking attack and inviting injury) (case decided under former statute)

[c] Relationship Between Defenses

Defenses of contributory negligence and assumption of risk overlap. Dorobek v. Ride-A-While Stables (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 554, 559-560, 68 Cal. Rptr. 774 (injuries resulting from being thrown by rented horse)

[d] Release From Liability

Person signing instrument releasing another from liability is bound by its contents (where he can read and understand instrument), but not where other is guilty of fraud. Palmquist v. Mercer (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 92, 98-100, 272 P.2d 26 (stablekeeper allegedly assigned horse he knew to be vicious to rider without informing him of viciousness)

[3] Dog Bite Statute

Only limited immunity is provided from strict liability under Civ. Code § 3342 (owner liable for dog bite to person lawfully in private place); any other cause of action predicated on common-law theories of negligence, intentional tort, or other theories are unaffected. People v. Berry (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 778, 788, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 416

Risk that any dog will bite and injure is so great that California statutes impose strict liability on dog owners for injuries their dogs cause; even tamest household pet is deemed dangerous enough to justify strict liability. Walker v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1393, 1403-1404, 238 Cal. Rptr. 146 (citing Civ. Code § 3342)

Occupational risk of dog bite is known by those in veterinary profession; veterinarian's assumption of that risk is complete defense to absolute liability imposed by Civ. Code § 3342. Nelson v. Hall (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 709, 713-715, 211 Cal. Rptr. 668

Former Dog Bite Statute [now see Civ. Code § 3342] makes owner of dog that bites person lawfully in public or private place liable for damages whether or not owner wrongfully or negligently permits dog to be at large. Goldberg v. Rabuchin (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 111, 113-114, 149 P.2d 861

Dog bite occurring at any point after transfer of ownership of dog does not make former owner liable to injured party under former Dog Bite Statute [now see Civ. Code § 3342]. Menches v. Inglewood Humane Soc. (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 415, 417-418, 124 P.2d 870

Implied invitation under Civ. Code § 3342 (liability of dog owner for dog's biting of person who is on owner's property on owner's implied invitation). Bauman v. Beaujean (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 384, 387-388, 53 Cal. Rptr. 55 (no implied invitation); see also Smythe v. Schacht (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 315, 319-321, 209 P.2d 114 (use of uncustomary entrance does not preclude implied invitation)

[4] Fighting Animals

Owner of dog confiscated under fighting dog statutes (Penal Code §§ 597.5, 599aa) has standing to bring action for return of puppies born to impounded dog when unborn puppies were not listed in search warrant, nor considered as fighting dogs in criminal prosecution. Zuniga v. County of San Mateo Dep't of Health Services (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1521, 1527, 267 Cal. Rptr. 755

[5] Fraud

Elements of fraud. Ach v. Finkelstein (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 667, 674, 70 Cal. Rptr. 472 (sale of apartment building)

Person signing instrument releasing another from liability as bound by its contents (where he can read and understand instrument), but not where other is guilty of fraud. Palmquist v. Mercer (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 92, 98-100, 272 P.2d 26 (stablekeeper allegedly assigned horse he knew to be vicious to rider without informing rider of viciousness)

[6] Liability for Dangerous Propensity

[a] Generally

Homeowner was aware of the risk posed by the dog that belonged to the owner's gardeners after an employee working on a remodeling project at the owner's residence told the homeowner that the dog looked dangerous and should not be loose on the job site. The court stated that the homeowner's continued control over the premises distinguished the situation from case law involving a landlord's failure to inspect or take security measures to protect third parties from a dangerous condition on a tenant's property. Salinas v. Martin (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 404, 412, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 735

Absent evidence sufficient to create a triable issue of fact that the neighboring unit owner had actual knowledge his tenant's dog was dangerous, he owed no duty to plaintiff to protect her from his tenant's dog. Chee v. Amanda Goldt Property Management (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1360, 1375, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 40

Negligence action for injuries caused by dog prone to harmful behavior does not require pleading or proof of dog's abnormal or vicious propensity. Drake v. Dean (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 915, 931-932, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 325 (rejecting dicta to contrary in Hagen v. Laursen (1953) 121 Cal App. 2d 379, 381-382, 263 P.2d 489)

Keeper of animal of species dangerous by nature, or of animal keeper knows, or has reason to know, to have dangerous propensities, is absolutely liable for damage to others resulting from those propensities. Hillman v. Garcia-Ruby (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 625, 626, 283 P.2d 1033 (dog); see also Gooding v. Chutes Co. (1909) 155 Cal. 620, 624-625, 102 P. 819 (camel); Talizin v. Oak Creek Riding Club (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 429, 437, 1 Cal. Rptr. 514 (horse's jumping out of ring during horse shows); Northon v. Schultz (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 488, 489, 279 P.2d 103 (dog's jumping on people); Baugh v. Beatty, (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 786, 791, 793, 205 P.2d 671 (chimpanzee; wild animals are presumed vicious or dangerous); Buffington v. Nicholson (1947) 78 Cal. App. 2d 37, 42-43, 177 P.2d 51 (liability of bailor to bailee injured by dog bailor knew to be vicious); Heath v. Fruzia (1942) 50 Cal. App. 2d 598, 600, 123 P.2d 560 (horse); Hicks v. Sullivan (1932) 122 Cal. App. 635, 638-639, 10 P.2d 516 (dog); Hackleberry v. Sherlock Land etc. Co. (1919) 39 Cal. App. 764, 770, 180 P. 37 (horse)

Stablekeeper warrants against horses defects or vicious habits, of which stablekeeper knows, or by exercise of reasonable care could know, and is liable to customer injured due to those habits or defects. Palmquist v. Mercer (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 92, 99, 272 P.2d 26 ; Dam v. Lake Aliso Riding School (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 395, 399-400, 57 P.2d 1315 ; see also Dorobek v. Ride-A-While Stables (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 554, 561-562, 68 Cal. Rptr. 774 ; Estes v. Smith (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 529, 533, 282 P.2d 534 ; Kersten v. Young (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 1, 6, 125 P.2d 501 ; but see O'Brien v. Gateway Stables (1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 317, 319-320, 231 P.2d 524 (no liability if no knowledge, or reason to know, of horse's dangerousness)

Knowledge of employee, to whom care of animal is entrusted, of animal's vicious propensities is knowledge of employer sufficient to render employer liable to persons injured by those propensities. Barrett v. Metropolitan Contracting Co. (1916) 172 Cal. 116, 119, 155 P. 645 ; see also Gooding v. Chutes Co. (1909) 155 Cal. 620, 623, 102 P. 819

Commercial operator of horse-riding facility as having no duty to provide customers with ideal horses that never engage in sudden movements; recovery of rider for injuries suffered when horse "spooked" and threw her as barred by primary assumption of risk. Harrold v. Rolling J Ranch (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 578, 588-589, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671

"Dangerous or vicious propensity" means any propensity of domestic animals likely to cause injury to human beings under circumstances in which party controlling animal places it. Talizin v. Oak Creek Riding Club (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 429, 435, 1 Cal. Rptr. 514

Victim of injury by vicious animal is not required to prove ignorance of its viciousness prior to injury to recover damages for injury. Bowden v. Herberger (1920) 47 Cal. App. 555, 556-557, 191 P. 32 (dog bite); but see Haneman v. Western Meat Co. (1908) 8 Cal. App. 698, 699, 97 P. 695

[b] Evidence

Viciousness of animal is not evidenced by behavior which is justified or normal under circumstances or basically harmless. Chandler v. Vaccaro (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 786, 789-790, 334 P.2d 998 (dog bite occurring while dog was chasing person away from her nursing pups); Haneman v. Western Meat Co. (1908) 8 Cal. App. 698, 701, 97 P. 695 (horse kicking when struck with whip or pitchfork)

Vicious propensities and dangerous character of dog and knowledge thereof by its owner is inferable from evidence it was kept tied as watchdog and from its size and breed. Radoff v. Hunter (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 770, 773-774, 323 P.2d 202 (German shepherd of between 80 and 100 pounds); Frederickson v. Kepner (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 905, 908-909, 187 P.2d 800 (75 pound German police dog)

[7] Local Regulation

Local police power to regulate uses of animals on private property in interest of public health and welfare is unquestioned. In re Ellis (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 571, 574, 81 P.2d 911 (ordinance prohibiting beekeeping within most of city upheld); People v. Johnson (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 1, 6-7, 277 P.2d 45 (injunction issued to prohibit violation of county ordinance restricting keeping of hogs); In re Jones (1943) 56 Cal. App. 2d 658, 663, 133 P.2d 418 (county ordinance requiring permit to maintain commercial hog ranch upheld)

Violation of leash law ordinance does not require proof that dog's owner willfully caused dog to run loose; ordinance is applicable to bicyclist injured by dog knocking her off bicycle. Delfino v. Sloan (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1429, 1433-1434, 1438

Ordinance permitting county to destroy dog that has bitten people without noticed hearing to dog owner is constitutionally infirm; due process require that owner have opportunity to be heard prior to destruction of dog unless prompt governmental action needed; courtesy hearing granted as matter of discretion is no substitute for due process. Phillips v. San Luis Obispo County Dept. etc. Regulation (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 372, 376-377, 380, 228 Cal. Rptr. 101

[8] Negligence

[a] Generally

Landlord not liable for attack by residential tenant's dog in absence of actual knowledge of dog's alleged vicious tendencies; mere fact that landlord may have observed dog barking and jumping at inside door of tenant's residence did not establish that landlord had actual knowledge of dog's vicious propensities. Yuzon v. Collins (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 149, 164, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 18

Bank that purchased property at foreclosure owed no duty to third party injured by dogs on property because possessors of property were contesting bank's unlawful detainer proceeding and bank lacked both actual knowledge of danger from dogs and ability to control dogs. Martinez v. Bank of America (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 883, 890-894, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 576

"Open range" law [Food & Agric. Code § 17123], which provides that persons grazing cattle in counties devoted chiefly to grazing are not required to fence in their cattle, does not absolve cattle owners of duty under Civ. Code § 1714 to exercise reasonable care in management of animals; that duty includes keeping them off well-traveled highways, especially at night, to avoid collisions with automobiles. Shively v. Dye Creek Cattle Co. (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1620, 1629-1631, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 238 .

Dog owner not liable to visitor claiming to have contracted Lyme disease from tick carried by dog; because evidence showed that owner did not know, and could not reasonably be expected to have known, that ticks carrying disease were present in area, owner had no duty to warn visitor not to allow dog to sit on her lap. Butcher v. Gay (1994) 29 Cal.

App. 4th 388, 405-406, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 771

Landlord liable for injuries caused by commercial tenant's guard dog, despite no actual knowledge of dog's disposition, if landlord could have discovered dog's nature by reasonable inspection; court distinguished between guard dogs on commercial premises and family pets at single family residences. Portillo v. Aiassa (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1134-1135, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 755

Livestock owner who negligently fails to keep stock from straying on highway as liable to one injured in collision with stock even at point where highway unfenced. Shively v. Dye Creek Cattle Co. (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1620, 1629-1631, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 238 ; Summers v. Parker (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 214, 216, 259 P.2d 59 ; Jackson v. Hardy (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 6, 14, 160 P.2d 161

Liability of hirer of chattel under Civ. Code § 1955 to renter injured by chattel as finding its basis in duty to exercise ordinary care under Civ. Code §§ 1708 (avoiding injury to another), 1714(a) (negligence), 3281 (damages). Holmes Packaging Mach. Corp. v. Bingham (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 862 (involving unfitness of vulcanizing equipment to perform work for which hired.)

Exhibitors are liable for injuries to others resulting from negligence in supervising and managing exhibited animals. Barnett v. La Mesa Post No. 282 (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 191, 194, 99 P.2d 650 (horse in parade); see also Porter v. Thompson (1946) 74 Cal. App. 2d 474, 477-478, 169 P.2d 40 (duty of cattle auctioneers to protect customers from cattle)

Property owners with no previous knowledge of vicious nature or dangerous propensities of dog owned by their tenant is not liable for injuries suffered by plaintiff, on premises rented to tenant, from attack by tenant's dog. Lundy v. California Realty (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 813, 821, 216 Cal. Rptr. 575

Fact that passerby frightened by mere presence of dogs behind chain link fence does not give rise to liability of owner either in strict liability or negligence. Nava v. McMillan (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 262, 264-268, 176 Cal. Rptr. 473

Presumption of negligence arising from violation of leash ordinance is not rebutted by showing that unleashed and hitherto well-behaved dog had received obedience training and had never before been vicious or disobedient, since ordinance only mentioned physical, and not psychological, restraints; sudden, unforeseeable attack as embodying situation intended to be prevented by leash ordinance. Garson v. Juarique (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 769, 774, 160 Cal. Rptr. 461

Landlord has duty of ordinary care to child injured by tenant's dog if landlord has control over premises and has actual knowledge of dog and its dangerous propensities. Uccello v. Laudenslayer (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 504, 514, 118 Cal. Rptr. 741

Owner of animal is negligent in telling another person to handle animal without warning him of known habit of animal that creates possibility of serious injury to person. Dolieslager v. Excelsior Farms (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 565, 567, 37 Cal. Rptr. 567 (bull); see also Bocker v. Miller (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 345, 348, 28 Cal. Rptr. 818 (horse)

If animal previously of peaceable disposition suddenly and unexpectedly inflicts injury, person in control of animal is not responsible if at time he or she was exercising due care. Mann v. Stanley (1956) 141 Cal. App. 2d 438, 441-442, 444, 296 P.2d 921 (bull); see also Hagen v. Laursen (1953) 121 Cal. App. 2d 379, 383, 263 P.2d 489 (that dogs at play would run into person is unforeseen)

Unless animal has established reputation for phlegmatic behavior in sudden appearance of unusual spectacle, its unpredictability is assumed by reasonably prudent people. Darnold v. Voges (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 230, 243-247,

300 P.2d 255 (cow, photographed in barn, startled by flash bulb, causing actionable injury to milker)

Liability of storeowner and customer bringing animal into store for negligent injury to another customer from animal. Baley v. J. F. Hink & Son (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 102, 108-109, 111, 283 P.2d 349 (dog)

[b] Carriers

Common carrier is required under Civ. Code § 2100 to exercise utmost care in selecting and training animals used as agency for carriage. McIntyre v. Smoke Tree Ranch Stables (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 489, 493-494, 23 Cal. Rptr. 339 (operator of mule train is common carrier)

Railroad is required to use utmost care to safeguard passengers if it allows animal to ride in coach set apart for passengers. Westwater v. Southern Pacific Co. (1940) 38 Cal. App. 2d 369, 371-372, 101 P.2d 154 (dog)

[c] Employer's Liability

Employer is liable for injuries caused by employee's negligent supervision of animal within scope of employment. Bulow v. Dawn Patrol (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 721, 728-730, 31 Cal. Rptr. 132 (plant guard's dog)

[d] Livestock

Livestock owner who negligently fails to keep stock from straying on highway is liable to one injured in collision with stock even where highway is unfenced and in open range country. Davert v. Larson (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 407, 410, 209 Cal. Rptr. 445 ; Summers v. Parker (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 214, 216, 259 P.2d 59 ; Jackson v. Hardy (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 6, 14, 160 P.2d 161

[e] Res Ipsa Loquitur

Former Agric. Code § 423 [now see Food & Agric. Code § 16904] (no presumption or inference of negligence of livestock owner from fact of collision of vehicle and animal) bars application of res ipsa loquitur. Pepper v. Bishop (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 731, 734, 15 Cal. Rptr. 346 ; see also Burnett v. Reyes (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 878, 880 , 256 P.2d 91

Applicability of res ipsa loquitur in negligence action arising out of fall from horse. Rafter v. Dubrock's Riding Academy (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 621, 625-627, 171 P.2d 459 (rider thrown when saddle came off horse rented from stable)

Owner of animal that runs away unattended in city streets and in its course injures person, is held negligent under res ipsa loquitur principles. Breidenbach v. McCormick Co. (1912) 20 Cal. App. 184, 188-190, 193, 128 P. 423 (horse)

[f] Violation of Ordinance

One injured by dog as proximate result of violation of leash ordinance is entitled to recover damages against dog owner. Rollins v. Hedin (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 488, 490, 250 P.2d 728 (pedestrian); see also Brotemarkle v. Snyder (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 388, 389-390, 221 P.2d 992 (driver of vehicle)

Violation by dog owner of leash ordinance does not make owner liable to person injured by dog if injury was not proximately contributed to by such violation. Eigner v. Race (1942) 54 Cal. App. 2d 506, 512-513, 129 P.2d 444

Violation of statute or ordinance is actionable negligence only as to those persons for whose benefit or protection law was enacted. Hagen v. Laursen (1953) 121 Cal. App. 2d 379, 385-386, 263 P.2d 489 (ordinance to protect livestock, not social guests such as plaintiff, from attacks by dogs)

[9] Nuisance

Action by private persons to abate public nuisance involving raising of animals. Wade v. Campbell (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 54, 58-63, 19 Cal. Rptr. 173, 92 A.L.R.2d 966 (operation of dairy)

[10] Public Employees and Entities

By asking citizen to perform public function that is for benefit of general public and that involves foreseeable risk of injury, public employee creates "special relationship" with citizen to whom he or she owes duty of due care; both public employee and public entity are liable to private citizen for injuries caused by employee's negligence. Walker v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1393, 1395, 1397, 1402-1405, 238 Cal. Rptr. 146 (plaintiff's thumb was bitten off by stray dog he was attempting to capture at request of county's animal control officer who failed to give him proper equipment and support and otherwise to exercise due care in connection with his attempt to capture dog)

[11] Rabies Control

Local agencies are not entitled to notice and hearing before state officer's determination that rabies control is required. Dept. Pub. Health v. Board of Supervisors (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 99, 105-106, 339 P.2d 884

[1] Animal Trespasses

Factors justifying injunctive relief against animal trespasses. Montezuma Improvement Co. v. Simmerly (1919) 181 Cal. 722, 726-727, 189 P. 100 (repeated damage suits and distraints); Huffman v. Coulter (1921) 55 Cal. App. 173, 174-175, 203 P. 125 (trespasses would prevent putting in crop for that year); Blevins v. Mullally (1913) 22 Cal. App. 519, 534, 135 P. 307 (property destroyed not subject to replacement to accomplish its purpose)

Elements of trespass. Gomez v. Reed (1918) 178 Cal. 759, 763, 174 P. 658 (human trespass); Morgan v. French (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 785, 787, 161 P.2d 800 (human trespass)

Common law rule that one is liable for injuries resulting from his animals being permitted to range or run at large. Blevins v. Mullally (1913) 22 Cal. App. 519, 524, 135 P. 307 ; see also Montezuma Improvement Co. v. Simmerly (1919) 181 Cal. 722, 726, 189 P. 100 ; Hahn v. Garratt (1886) 69 Cal. 146, 148-149, 10 P. 329 ; Meade v. Watson (1885) 67 Cal. 591, 593-594, 8 P. 311

Measure of damages for destruction of pasturage, where grass cannot be reasonably severed and marketed separate from land, is reasonable rental value thereof in that vicinity for pasture purposes. Murphy v. Nielsen (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 396, 399, 282 P.2d 126 (trespass by cattle); Maddalena v. LeDuc (1938) 29 Cal. App. 2d 211, 212, 84 P.2d 254 (trespass by sheep); Miller & Lux Inc. v. Pinelli (1927) 84 Cal. App. 42, 51, 257 P. 573 (trespass by cattle)

Measure of damages for destruction of annually planted crops raised to be harvested is market value of estimated product at time of destruction, less cost of producing and marketing crops. Crofoot Lumber, Inc. v. Ford (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 238, 249, 12 Cal. Rptr. 639 (wrongful removal of timber by loggers)

[2] Definition

"Estray" means animal found wandering at large outside of premises and beyond restraint of its owner. Yraceburn v. Cape (1923) 60 Cal. App. 374, 381, 212 P. 938 (term does not include animal in the charge of herder)

[3] Distrained Animals

Distraining statutes [now see Food & Agric. Code §§ 17001-17128] replace common law remedy, wherein impounded animals were held by distrainer until owner made satisfaction or contested his right to animals by replevin. Chase v. Putnam (1897) 117 Cal. 364, 366, 49 P. 204

[4] Injunctions

Factors justifying injunctive relief against animal trespasses. Montezuma Improvement Co. v. Simmerly (1919) 181 Cal. 722, 726-727, 189 P. 100 (repeated damage suits and distraints); Huffman v. Coulter (1921) 55 Cal. App. 173, 174-175, 203 P. 125 (further trespasses would prevent putting in crop for that year); Blevins v. Mullally (1913) 22 Cal. App. 519, 534, 135 P. 307 (property destroyed not subject to replacement)

[5] Personal Injuries

Owner is liable for infliction of personal injury by bull on occupier of land as direct result of trespass by bull on that land. Williams v. Goodwin (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 496, 507, 116 Cal. Rptr. 200

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ County, California [or other capacity and residence of defendant].

2. [Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as Does I-_____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges, that each of the fictitiously named defendants is negligently responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's injuries as herein alleged were proximately caused by that negligence.)]

3. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff was the owner of a certain _____ [specify animal, e.g., German shepherd dog], which, at the time of its death as herein alleged, was of the value of $_____ [allege any additional facts relating to the animal's value].

4. At all times herein mentioned, _____ [name of street] and _____ [name of street] were and are public streets and thoroughfares in _____ [city], California.

5. On or about _____ [date], defendant was the owner of a certain _____ [specify vehicle, e.g., truck], California license No. _____. On or about _____ [date], defendant was operating the vehicle along _____ [name of street] in a _____ [describe direction, e.g., northerly] direction. At that time plaintiff's animal was at the intersection of _____ [name of street] and _____ [name of street].

6. At the aforementioned time and place, defendant so negligently, carelessly, and recklessly owned, operated, and maintained the vehicle so as to cause it to strike and kill plaintiff's _____ [animal].

7. As a proximate result of defendant's negligence, carelessness, and recklessness, plaintiff has been damaged in the amount of $_____ [value of animal].

[8. _____ Allege special damages, if any.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For the value of the animal at the time of its death [in the sum of $_____];

[2. _____ (Special damages, if any)];

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in an action by an animal owner against the owner/operator of a vehicle. Plaintiff seeks damages for the loss of the animal caused by defendant's negligent operation of the vehicle. For discussion of the generally applicable duty to avoid injuries to animals, see § 23.13[1].

When the owner and the operator of a vehicle are two different persons, counsel may want to sue both of them in the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 379 (joinder of defendants)], in which case the form should be modified accordingly.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- A legal duty to use due care (Paragraphs 3-5).
- A breach of that duty (Paragraph 6).
- Injury proximately caused by the breach (Paragraph 7).
- Damages (Paragraph 7) [see Dillon v. Legg (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 728, 733-734, 69 Cal. Rptr. 72, 441 P.2d 912 ; Smith v. Johnson (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 20, 23, 313 P.2d 7 (both cases involving negligent injury to persons)].

[4] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)(1)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case and must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

[6] Venue

Complaints are filed in the court having jurisdiction of the subject matter in the county declared by statute to be the proper county for trial of the action.

The proper county for trial of actions for injury to real property is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1), for trial of actions to recover a statutory penalty or against a public officer by Code Civ. Proc. § 393, for trial of actions against a county, city, or local agency by Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a), and for trial of actions on contract for injury to person or personal property by Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a), (b).

The venue of an action against an executor, administrator, guardian, conservator, or trustee on a claim for the payment of money or for the recovery of personal property is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 395.1. The venue of actions against certain unincorporated associations and against corporations is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395.2 and 395.5, respectively.

For discussion of selecting venue, see Ch. 571, Venue .

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in an action by a livestock owner against a pest control operator for damages for injury to plaintiff's animals caused by defendant's negligent pest control operation.

A crop crop owner and crop duster may be liable to an animal owner for the death of animals resulting from a pesticide which floated into the animals' enclosure [Miles v. A. Arena & Co. (1937) 23 Cal. App. 2d 680, 683-685, 73 P.2d 1260 (bees); see also Lenk v. Spezia (1949) 95 Cal. App. 2d 296, 302-303, 213 P.2d 47 (bees; no liability when dust did not invade enclosure and bee owner failed to act to protect bees from pesticide); Jeanes v. Holtz (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 826, 829-830, 211 P.2d 925 (bees; no liability when bees encountered poison beyond the confines of their owner's property)].

A person whose negligence causes the poisoning of animals may be held liable to the animal owner in situations other than crop dusting [Wolfsen v. Wheeler (1933) 130 Cal. App. 475, 481-484, 19 P.2d 1004 (sheep killed by rodent poison); Brady v. Sutter Butte Canal Co. (1929) 99 Cal. App. 368, 371-372, 278 P. 505 (sheep killed or injured by weed killer sprayed on pastureland); see also Selby v. County of Sacramento (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 94, 98-100, 294 P.2d 508 (horses killed by contamination of water and forage by escaping sewage)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in an action by the owner of an animal against the animal's bailee. The form is based on the fact situation in King v. Karpe (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 344, 338 P.2d 979 . It illustrates the common practice of pleading a cause of action on alternative theories in separate counts. Of course, counsel need not do so. In this complaint, for example, on the basis of the fact situation stated, counsel might prefer to set forth a cause of action for conversion only, since of the three counts, the count for conversion alone allows him or her to recover interest on the value of the animal from the time of its destruction [see Civ. Code § 3336].

If the destruction were intentional and defendant was guilty of oppression, fraud, or malice, he or she could also be liable for punitive damages [see Civ. Code § 3294]. In that case, this form of complaint may be modified to so allege. For discussion of punitive damages and allegations that may be used with this form, see Ch. 177, Damages .

For discussion of the liability of bailees of animals generally, see § 23.13[3].

[3] Allegations

In the complaint in [1], above, plaintiff seeks damages for the animal's killing, based on three counts: negligence, conversion, and breach of a bailment contract. For a discussion of the allegations for negligence, see § 23.120[3].

The second count, for conversion, alleges:

- The ownership by plaintiff of the animal (Paragraph 1).
- Conversion by the defendant of the animal (Paragraph 2).
- Damages (Paragraphs 2, 3) [see Wendling etc. Co. v. Glenwood etc. Co. (1908) 153 Cal. 411, 415, 95 P. 1029].
- Special damages sustained in pursuit of the animal (Paragraph 4).

The third count, for breach of a bailment contract, alleges:

- The making of the contract and its terms (Paragraph 2).
- Plaintiff's performance or tender of performance (Paragraph 2).
- Defendant's breach (Paragraph 3).
- Damages to plaintiff therefrom (Paragraphs 4, 5) [see M. G. Chamberlain & Co. v. Simpson (1959) 173 Cal. App. 2d 263, 274, 343 P.2d 438 (contract to pay finder's fee in connection with purchase of business); for discussion of a bailee's duty of care, see § 23.13[3]].

Recovery of a fair compensation for any time and money properly expended in pursuit of the property is expressly authorized by Civ. Code § 3336 in an action for conversion.

8. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that defendant _____ [shelter] was told at the time the dogs were delivered to them that _____ [name of lessee] was not the owner of the dogs.

9. On receipt of the dogs, as alleged above, defendant _____ [shelter], without giving notice to plaintiff or waiting the statutory period of _____ [six days or four days], forthwith destroyed the dogs, thereby converting them and depriving plaintiff of his/her ownership in, and rights to, the dogs, all to plaintiff's damage in the amount of $_____ [value of dogs at time of their destruction].

10. Plaintiff presented a claim for damages sought in this action to _____ [name], on _____ [date]. This claim was rejected by the Board of Supervisors of _____ County on _____ [date], and the notice of rejection was mailed to plaintiff's attorney under date of _____ [date]. A copy of this notice of rejection is attached hereto as Exhibit "B" and made a part hereof.

1. Plaintiff incorporates Paragraph 1-7 and 10 of his/her First Count.

2. On receipt of the dogs, as alleged above, defendant _____ [shelter], negligently and carelessly and without further inquiry as to the ownership of the dogs, without notice to plaintiff, and without waiting the statutory period of _____ [six days or four days], forthwith destroyed them; as a proximate result of the negligence of defendants, and each of them, plaintiff's dogs are dead.

3. The fair market value of the dogs at the time of their destruction on _____ [date] was $_____ [allege any additional facts relating to the dogs' value].

4. As a proximate result of the negligence of defendant _____ [shelter], as hereinbefore alleged, plaintiff was damaged in the sum of $_____.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendants, and each of them, as follows:

1. For damages in the sum of $_____, and interest thereon from _____ [date dogs were destroyed] at the legal rate.

2. For costs of suit herein incurred.

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in an action for conversion and negligence by a dog owner against a county and county agencies. The plaintiff seeks damages for the killing of his or her dogs by the county animal shelter without following statutorily prescribed procedure [see Food & Agric. Code § 31108 (statutory waiting period)].

This form is adapted from the complaint filed in Kane v. County of San Diego (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 550, 83 Cal. Rptr. 19 .

For discussion of the procedures applicable to the seizure of neglected animals, see § 23.20.

[3] Statutory Waiting Period

A pound or shelter must hold a stray dog impounded under Division 14 of the Food and Agriculture Code (commencing with Food & Agric. Code § 30501) for six business days, not including the day of impoundment [Food & Agric. Code § 31108(a)]. The period is reduced to four business days if the pound or shelter has made the dog available for owner redemption on one weekday evening or one weekend day, or in some cases if the pound or shelter has has an appointment procedure for owners to reclaim their dogs [Food & Agric. Code § 31108(a)].

The dog must be held for owner redemption during the first three days of the holding period, and for the remainder of the period must be available for either owner redemption or for adoption [Food & Agric. Code § 31108(a)].

Rather than killing a dog for any reason other then irremediable suffering, a pound or shelter must release the dog to a nonprofit animal rescue or adoption organization on the organization's request prior to the scheduled killing [Food & Agric. Code § 31108(b)].

[4] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is in the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ County, California [or other capacity and residence of defendant].

2. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 23.120 [1], Paragraph 2.]

3. Plaintiff was at all times herein mentioned, and is now, the owner of _____ [number] _____ [describe, e.g., Hereford cows], valued in the sum of $_____, and is now entitled to their possession.

[EITHER]

4. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff delivered these _____ [e.g., cows] to defendant. Defendant agreed to pasture them for plaintiff. Plaintiff agreed to pay defendant $_____ for this service. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff tendered defendant $_____ and demanded delivery of his/her _____ [e.g., cows], but defendant refused this demand and still retains possession of the _____ [e.g., cows] and unjustly claims to be their owner.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in an action by the owner of livestock against one who is wrongfully detaining them. Plaintiff seeks to recover possession of the animals, or their value if delivery cannot be had, and damages for their detention [see Code Civ. Proc. § 667].

For discussion of conversion and recovery of possession issues, see §§ 23.16 and 23.17.

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges:

- Title in plaintiff to the property demanded and his or her right to possession when the action began (Paragraph 3).

- Actual possession of the property by the defendant (Paragraph 4).

- Demand for possession and refusal by defendant to deliver (Paragraph 4) [Stockton M.P. Co. v. Mariposa County (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 210, 213, 221 P.2d 232 (road equipment)].

If the original taking was not unlawful, as in a bailment situation, but the detention is, possession by defendant must be proved; however, it is not necessary that possession be continued up to the time of the commencement of the action for return of the property [Faulkner v. First National Bank (1900) 130 Cal. 258, 264-266, 62 P. 463 (promissory notes)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in an action by the owner of livestock against the owner of another animal. Plaintiff seeks damages, based on strict liability, for the killing of his or her livestock by defendant's animal [see Civ. Code § 3341]. Civ. Code § 3341 covers worrying or wounding as well as killing, and the form may be modified for use in that situation. Under Civ. Code § 3341(1) the plaintiff need not prove that the owner of the predator had knowledge of the vicious habits of his or her animal [Sabin v. Smith (1915) 26 Cal. App. 676, 678, 147 P. 1180].

The statute protects bovine animals, swine, horses, mules, burros, sheep, and angora or cashmere goats [Civ. Code § 3341].

If the aggressor is a dog, recovery is for twice the value of the animals killed [see Food & Agric. Code § 31501].

If the action is to recover damages to personal or real property resulting from trespassing on lands either under cultivation or intended or used for raising livestock, the plaintiff, on prevailing in the action, is entitled to reasonable attorney's fees in addition to other costs, and in addition to any liability for damages imposed by law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.9]. An optional prayer for attorney's fees is provided in the form for requesting these fees.

For further discussion and cross references relating to complaints generally, see § 23.120[2] et seq.

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 23.120 [1], Paragraph 1.]

2. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 23.120 [1], Paragraph 2.]

3. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff was the owner of a certain _____ [animal, e.g., collie dog] [which was well trained and good natured and which _____ (e.g., was accustomed to and did drive cows from the pasture on the farm owned by plaintiff as hereinafter alleged to the stable) and did many other things of a similar character of service to the plaintiff]. The _____ [e.g., dog] was of the value at the time of its death, of $_____ [allege any additional facts relating to animal's value].

4. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff owned a farm [under cultivation] in _____ County, California. On or about _____, [date], plaintiff's _____ [e.g., dog] was on this farm. At this time, defendant came [and trespassed] onto plaintiff's _____ [farm or cultivated farmland] and willfully and maliciously and without just cause, shot and killed plaintiff's _____ [e.g., dog].

5. By reason of the foregoing, and as a proximate result thereof, plaintiff has sustained damages in the sum of $_____.

6. In doing the acts herein complained of defendant acted willfully, maliciously, and in complete disregard of humanity. By reason thereof, plaintiff is entitled to an award of exemplary damages in the amount of $_____;

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For the value of the _____ [e.g., dog] at the time of its death in the sum of $_____;

2. For exemplary damages;

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in an action by an animal owner against one who willfully killed his or her animal. Plaintiff seeks compensatory [see Civ. Code § 3333; see also Johnson v. McConnell (1889) 80 Cal. 545, 548-549, 22 P. 219 (dog is property and action may be brought for the malicious destruction or injury of it)] and exemplary [Civ. Code § 3340] damages for the killing. Counsel should note that, if the facts support an award of exemplary damages, an action in tort may also be maintainable, as for intentional infliction of emotional distress. For discussion and forms regarding such an action, see Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress .

If the action is to recover damages to personal or real property resulting from trespassing on lands either under cultivation or intended or used for the raising of livestock, the plaintiff on prevailing in the action is entitled to reasonable attorney's fees in addition to other costs, and in addition to any liability for damages imposed by law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.9]. An optional prayer for attorney's fees is provided in the form for requesting these fees.

AS A [(if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that at the time and place alleged in plaintiff's complaint, defendant knew that plaintiff's _____ [describe animal] would inflict serious harm on _____ [identify person threatened], because plaintiff's _____ [describe animal] _____ [was attacking or was, in the reasonable belief of defendant, about to attack] _____ [identify person threatened]. Defendant reasonably believed this harm could be prevented only by defendant's immediate destruction of plaintiff's _____ [describe animal]. Such destruction was reasonable in view of the gravity of the harm threatened.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an affirmative defense for use by the defendant in an action by the owner of an animal that defendant killed. Plaintiff seeks damages for the killing, but defendant asserts that the killing occurred for the purpose of defending himself or herself or a third person against harm threatened by the animal. A person is privileged to destroy an animal to defend oneself or a third person against harm threatened by animal [Devincenzi v. Faulkner (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 250, 254-255, 344 P.2d 322 (dog; approving jury instruction based on Restatement of Torts, § 275, comment c)]:

- If the animal's actions led the person to know or reasonably believe that the animal would inflict such harm,

- The destruction was reasonable in view of the gravity of the harm threatened, and

- The person reasonably believed that the harm could be prevented only by the immediate destruction of the animal.

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant breeder or dealer. See § 23.120 [1], Paragraph 1.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation. See § 23.120 [1], Paragraph 2.]

3. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff purchased from defendant _____ [breeder or dealer] a dog, purportedly free from any known disease, illness, or congenital or hereditary condition that adversely affected the dog's health. At the time of purchase, defendant provided a written disclosure that included a statement that the dog was free from any known disease, illness, or congenital or hereditary condition that adversely affected the dog's health. Plaintiff took possession of the dog on or about _____ [date].

[EITHER]

4. The dog was unfit for sale according to _____ [name], a licensed veterinarian, in that, within 15 days of when plaintiff took possession of the dog, the dog suffered from a disease or illness that existed in the dog on or before delivery of the dog to plaintiff. The written statement of _____ [name of licensed veterinarian] is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.

This form is a complaint for use in an action by a dog owner against the breeder or dealer who sold plaintiff a dog that was unfit for sale as defined in Health & Safety Code § 25989.530 or 25995.70 [see Health & Safety Code §§ 25989.555(b), 25995.75(b)]. Plaintiff seeks compensatory damages [see Health & Safety Code §§ 25989.530, 25995.70] for the ill or dead dog. For further discussion of dog breeders and dealers, see § 23.14.

For further discussion and cross references relating to complaints generally, see § 23.120[2] et seq.

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges the following:

- Plaintiff's purchase of the dog from defendant, and defendant's disclosures at time of sale (Paragraph 3) [Health & Safety Code §§ 25989.505, 25995.3].

- The dog's unfitness for sale within 15 days of purchase pursuant to the diagnosis of a licensed veterinarian (alternative Paragraphs 4) [Health & Safety Code §§ 25989.530(a), 25995.70(a)].

- If applicable, the dog's death because of its health or condition within 15 days of purchase (optional Paragraph 5) [Health & Safety Code §§ 25989.530(b), 25995.70(b)].

- Plaintiff's election of a remedy (Paragraph 6) [Health & Safety Code §§ 25989.530, 25995.70].

- Plaintiff's compliance with statutory requirements to obtain relief (Paragraph 7) [Health & Safety

Code §§ 25989.540, 25995.72].

- The inability of plaintiff and defendant to resolve the dispute (Paragraph 8) [Health & Safety Code §§ 25989.555(b), 25995.75(b)].

- Plaintiff's damages (Paragraph 9) [Health & Safety Code §§ 25989.530, 25989.535(c), 25995.70, 25995.71(c)].

- Plaintiff's claim for attorney's fees based on defendant's bad faith conduct (Paragraph 10) [Health & Safety Code §§ 25989.555(c), 25995.75(c)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in an action against an owner or keeper of a wild animal by one who has been injured by the animal. A wild animal is presumed vicious and its owner is an insurer against its acts to anyone who is injured by it [Baugh v. Beatty (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 786, 791, 205 P.2d 671 (chimpanzee); see also Opelt v. Al. G. Barnes Co. (1919) 41 Cal. App. 776, 778-779, 183 P. 241 (leopard)].

For further discussion and cross references relating to complaints generally, see § 23.120 [2] et seq. For discussion of strict liability for injuries from animals, see § 23.33.

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges the following [see Baugh v. Beatty (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 786, 791, 205 P.2d 671]:

- That defendant owned or was the keeper of the animal (Paragraph 3).
- That the animal was wild (Paragraph 4).
- That the animal caused personal injury to plaintiff (Paragraph 5).
- That plaintiff sustained damages (Paragraphs 6-8).

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action unless it is a limited civil case (amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less) [Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

[4] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded for this cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case or whether it is a limited civil case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq., and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115].

FIRST COUNT
(Strict Liability)

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 23.120 [1], Paragraph 1.]

2. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 23.120 [1], Paragraph 2.]

3. At all times herein mentioned, defendant was the _____ [owner or keeper] of a certain domestic animal, namely, a _____ [animal, e.g., horse].

4. The _____ [e.g., horse] was possessed of _____ [vicious or dangerous] propensities and was inclined _____ [describe e.g., to kick persons in its vicinity].

5. Defendant knew of the _____ [viciousness or dangerousness] of the _____ [e.g., horse] and of its inclination, or reasonably should have known these facts.

6. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff was _____ [location, e.g., walking on and along _____ (name of road) in _____ County]. Defendant's _____ [e.g., horse], at that time and place, and as a proximate result of the propensity mentioned above _____ [describe animal's actions e.g., kicked plaintiff].

7-9. [Injuries and damages. See § 23.140 [1], Paragraphs 6-8.]

(Negligence)

1. Plaintiff incorporates Paragraphs 1-5 of his/her First Count.

2. Defendant negligently and carelessly permitted the _____ [e.g., horse] to go _____ [location, e.g., on the public roads in _____ County]. Defendant knew that persons were likely to be in the vicinity of the _____ [e.g., horse] while it was on these roads.

3. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff was _____ [e.g., walking on and along _____ (name of road) in _____ County]. Defendant's _____ [e.g., horse], at this time and place and as a proximate result of the aforementioned propensity, _____ [e.g., kicked plaintiff].

4. As a proximate result of the negligence and carelessness of defendant as alleged above, plaintiff sustained _____ [describe injuries], all to his/her damage.

5. As a further proximate result of the negligence of defendant, as alleged above, and of the injuries, plaintiff was required to and did employ physicians and surgeons to examine, treat, and care for him/her, and incurred additional medical expenses for hospital bills [and other incidental medical expenses].

Plaintiff is informed and believes, and on such information and belief alleges, that he/she will incur some additional medical expenses.

6. As a further proximate result of the defendant's negligence and of the injuries alleged above, plaintiff has suffered a loss of income and earnings, and his/her earning ability is, and will remain, impaired and diminished by reason thereof, and he/she will continue to suffer a further loss of earnings and income.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in an action by a person injured by a domestic animal with vicious or dangerous propensities against the owner or keeper.

Because the defendant is liable under a strict liability theory, his or her negligence is immaterial, but plaintiff may wish to allege it nevertheless. The second count is included for this purpose.

For further discussion and cross references relating to complaints generally, see § 23.120[2] et seq.

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges in the first count (strict liability):

- That defendant is the owner or keeper of a domestic animal (Paragraph 3).
- That the animal had vicious or dangerous propensities (Paragraph 4).
- That defendant knew or should have known of the propensities (Paragraph 5).
- Injury to plaintiff and damages (Paragraphs 7-9) [see Hillman v. Garcia-Ruby (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 625, 626, 283 P.2d 1033 (dog); Talizin v. Oak Creek Riding Club (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 429, 437, 1 Cal. Rptr. 514 (horse jumping out of ring during horse show); Northon v. Schultz (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 488, 489, 279 P.2d 103 (dog jumping on people); Heath v. Fruzia (1942) 50 Cal. App. 2d 598, 600, 123 P.2d 560 (horse kicking people)].

[4] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded for this cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case or whether it is a limited civil case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq., and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115].

Plaintiff alleges:

FIRST COUNT
(Strict Liability)

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 23.120 [1], Paragraph 1.]

2. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 23.120 [1], Paragraph 2.]

3. At all times herein mentioned defendant was, and still is, the owner of a certain _____ [breed] dog, which caused the injuries and damage complained of below. This dog had a vicious nature, disposition, and propensity, which was known or should have been known by defendant.

4. On or about _____ [date], at about _____ [time], the dog was in the rear of the premises owned by defendant. The dog was on a leash at this time and place, but was not under any form of restraint or control of a competent person. At this time and place, there were certain trash cans in the rear of the premises that concealed the dog. The area is open and exposed and is connected by two alleys and is heavily traveled by pedestrians and business people. At this time and place, plaintiff proceeded to put a piece of waste paper in the trash can and, on moving away therefrom, was suddenly and with no warning viciously attacked by the dog. The dog knocked him/her to the ground and severely bit him/her about the legs.

5-7. [Injuries and damages. See § 23.140 [1], Paragraphs 6-8.]

(Negligence)

1. Plaintiff incorporates herein Paragraphs 1-4 of his/her First Count.

2. Defendant negligently failed to have the dog under restraint or to take any other precautions to prevent the dog from attacking plaintiff or other persons. Defendant was also negligent in that he/she failed to post a sign or take other measures to warn of the presence of a vicious dog.

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times mentioned herein was, a resident of _____ County, California.

2. At all times mentioned herein, defendant was the [owner or keeper] of a certain _____ [specify breed, e.g., American Staffordshire terrier] dog, which caused the injuries and damages hereinafter complained of.

3. The dog posed a risk of harm to others because _____ [specify facts that support allegation, e.g., he/she had a habit of jumping on people and knocking them down].

4. Defendant knew or reasonably should have known that the dog posed a risk of harm.

5. Defendant did not exercise reasonable care to avert that risk of harm, because _____ [specify facts that support allegation, e.g., the defendant kept the dog specified in Paragraph 2 on a leash that was long enough to give him/her access to the entire front yard and the driveway of defendant's house and failed to post any signs warning of the dog's presence].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use to obtain damages from a person who owns or keeps a dog prone to harmful behavior, who has not adequately controlled the dog, and who thereby has failed to take reasonable care to prevent that harm. It differs from complaints arising from a dog bite, which are based on the strict liability of the dog's owner or keeper and therefore need not allege any lack of reasonable care in maintaining the dog (merely owning or keeping the dog creates the liability), but which must allege the dog's vicious nature or propensity and the defendant's knowledge of that nature or propensity [see, e.g., § 23.142 [1]. Rather, this complaint need not allege any vicious propensity, but must allege the defendant's knowledge that the dog was prone to behavior that (despite being normal for dogs with no vicious propensities) could foreseeably harm people, and the defendant's failure to exercise reasonable care to avoid that harm [Drake v. Dean (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 915, 931-932, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 325 (rejecting dicta to contrary in Hagen v. Laursen (1953) 121 Cal App. 2d 379, 381-382, 263 P.2d 489)].

Plaintiff alleges:

FIRST COUNT
(Negligence)

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 23.120 [1], Paragraph 1.]

2. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 23.120 [1], Paragraph 2.]

3. At all times mentioned herein, defendant was the owner and proprietor of a riding stable, _____ [name], and engaged in the business of furnishing horses for hire to members of the general public.

4. At all times mentioned herein, plaintiff was an unskilled rider incapable of riding any horse other than a gentle and dependable horse, which fact was well known to defendant.

5. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff requested defendant to furnish him/her with a horse suitable for him/her to ride.

6. Defendant thereon negligently furnished to plaintiff a horse for hire which had a _____ [dangerous or vicious] propensity for _____ [state, e.g., plunging, lunging, rearing, jumping, shying, and bolting] and which was entirely unsuitable for plaintiff to ride. Defendant knew or should have known of such _____ [dangerous or vicious] propensity and that the horse was unsuitable for plaintiff, as an inexperienced equestrian, to ride and yet he/she negligently furnished such horse to plaintiff without warning plaintiff of such propensity.

7. On the aforementioned date, plaintiff took the horse out and rode it on a nearby trail in _____ [city], _____ County, California, where defendant knew [, or should have known,] plaintiff would ride. While plaintiff was riding, the horse _____ [state, e.g., ignored plaintiff's rein directions, veered, and turned toward an embankment on the side of the trail. The horse then proceeded to shy, rear, plunge, lunge, jump, and bolt in such a manner that plaintiff was violently thrown to the ground].

8. [Injuries and damages. See § 23.141 [1], Second Count, Paragraphs 3-5.]

SECOND COUNT
(Fraud)

1. Plaintiff hereby incorporates herein Paragraphs 1-3, 7 of his/her First Count.

2. Defendant thereon produced a horse and, to induce plaintiff to hire it, stated to plaintiff that the animal was suitable for him/her to ride. Defendant then well knew that the horse had previously demonstrated a _____ [dangerous or vicious] propensity for _____ [state, e.g., plunging, lunging, rearing, jumping, shying, and bolting] and that the horse, because of these traits and disposition, was unsafe for an unskilled rider such as plaintiff. Defendant, in falsely representing to plaintiff that the horse was suitable for him/her to ride, intended that plaintiff rely on the representation by hiring and riding the horse and thereby patronizing defendant's riding academy and not a competitive riding academy.

3. Plaintiff was unaware of the horse's _____ [dangerous or vicious] propensities and accepted the animal in justifiable reliance on defendant's representation that the horse was one suitable for him/her to ride. Had plaintiff known the true facts about the horse, he/she would not have hired the animal to ride.

On the aforementioned date, plaintiff took the horse out and rode it on a nearby trail in _____ [city], California, where defendant knew [, or should have known], plaintiff would ride. While plaintiff was riding, the horse ignored plaintiff's rein directions, veered, and turned toward an embankment on the side of the trail. The horse then proceeded to shy, rear, plunge, lunge, jump, and bolt in such a manner that plaintiff was violently thrown to the ground.

4. Defendant did the things herein alleged with intent to defraud plaintiff. Plaintiff therefore is entitled to exemplary and punitive damages.

5. By reason of the facts alleged, plaintiff has sustained _____ [describe injuries].

6. By reason of the facts alleged, plaintiff was required to and did employ physicians and surgeons to examine, treat, and care for him/her, and incurred additional medical expenses for hospital bills [and other incidental medical expenses].

Plaintiff is informed and believes, and thereon alleges, that he/she will incur some additional medical expenses.

7. By reason of the facts alleged, plaintiff has suffered a loss of income and earnings, and his/her earning ability is, and will remain, impaired and diminished by reason thereof, and he/she will continue to suffer a further loss of earnings and income.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For general damages according to proof.

2. For medical [and incidental] expenses according to proof.

3. For damages for loss of income and earnings and impairment of earning ability according to proof.

4. For exemplary and punitive damages.

5. For costs of suit herein incurred.

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in an action by a bailee of a horse against the animal's bailor. Plaintiff seeks damages for injuries he or she suffered when he or she was thrown by the horse. The complaint sets forth two theories of recovery: negligence and fraud [see Palmquist v. Mercer (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 92, 99, 272 P.2d 26 ; Estes v. Smith (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 529, 533, 282 P.2d 534 ; see also Bocker v. Miller (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 345, 348, 28 Cal. Rptr. 818 (negligent failure to inform rider of dangerous propensity)].

A contract for the hire of a horse for riding contains an implied warranty to the rider that the stable keeper knows or has exercised reasonable care to determine the horse's habits and that the horse is safe and suitable for the purpose for which it is hired. Thus, if the stable keeper knows a horse is not tame and gentle and that the rider is inexperienced, a release will not necessarily protect the stable keeper [see Palmquist v. Mercer (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 92, 98-99, 272 P.2d 26].

[3] Allegations

The first count alleges negligence; for discussion of allegations for negligence, see § 23.141[3].

The second count, for fraud, alleges [see Civ. Code §§ 1710, 3294; Ach v. Finkelstein (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 667, 674, 70 Cal. Rptr. 472 (elements of fraud; sale of apartment building)]:

- A false representation or the concealment of a matter of fact, material to the transaction (Paragraph 2).
- Knowledge of the falsity (Paragraph 2).
- Intent to induce another into relying on the representation (Paragraph 2).
- Reliance by one who has a right to rely (Paragraph 3).
- Resulting damage (Paragraphs 5-7).
- That plaintiff is entitled to punitive damages (Paragraph 4).

PRACTICE TIP:

Insurance Considerations. Counsel should be aware that, if the defendant's main assets are insurance coverage, pleading that defendant's conduct was intended to injure plaintiff may preclude coverage under Ins. Code § 533. In such a case, it may well be prudent to be sure that the complaint alleges negligent conduct as an alternate basis of liability. Practice Tip by Professor Neil Levy

[4] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded for this cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case or whether it is a limited civil case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq., and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115].

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 23.120 [1], Paragraph 2.]

2. At all time herein mentioned, defendants were the owners and proprietors of a riding academy known as _____ [name], located in _____ [city], _____ County, California and were engaged in the business of furnishing horses for hire to members of the general public.

3. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff and defendants entered into _____ [an oral or a written] contract of hire of a horse at the riding academy. Under this contract, defendants [impliedly] warranted that the horse had no defects or vicious habits which defendants knew about or by the exercise of proper care could know about and that, as far as they knew, or, by the exercise of proper care, could know, the horse was a gentle, dependable animal, safe and suitable for plaintiff to ride.

4. § 23.148 Allegation--Horse Inclined to Kick

[1] FORM Allegation--Horse Inclined to Kick

The horse had a _____ [dangerous or vicious] propensity to kick at both human beings and other horses, thereby creating a hazard to the riders of any horses which came near this horse. Defendant knew [or should have known] of this propensity, but failed to warn plaintiff.

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, is for use in a complaint in an action by one injured by a horse against the horse's owner or keeper. The allegation is used to allege the horse's dangerous or vicious propensity. Kicking at human beings and other horses is a dangerous or vicious propensity in horse [Heath v. Fruzia (1942) 50 Cal. App. 2d 598, 600-601, 123 P.2d 560]. It may be used in conjunction with the complaints in §§ 23.141, 23.143-23.147.

§ 23.150 Allegation--Horse Inclined to Bolt

[1] FORM Allegation--Horse Inclined to Bolt

The horse had a dangerous propensity to bolt and attempt to unseat its rider. This propensity constituted a peril to anyone riding the horse who was unaware of it. Defendant knew of the propensity [, or should have known of it], but he/she failed to warn plaintiff of the danger.

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, is for use in a complaint in an action by a bailee of a horse against the bailor of the horse for damages for injuries caused to plaintiff by the horse. The allegation is used to allege the horses dangerous or vicious propensity. It may be used in conjunction with the complaints in § 23.141, 23.143-23.147.

Bolting is a dangerous propensity [Palmquist v. Mercer (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 92, 99, 272 P.2d 26]. However, the fact that a horse has only "spooked" and thrown its rider once before does not establish a dangerous propensity to do so [Harrold v. Rolling J Ranch (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 578, 588, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671].

§ 23.151 Allegation--Horse High-Spirited and Inclined to Run Away

[1] FORM Allegation--Horse High-Spirited and Inclined to Run Away

The horse had a dangerous propensity to be high spirited and inclined to run away. This propensity created a danger to unskilled riders, and defendant knew that plaintiff was not a skilled rider and that plaintiff was unaware of the horse's propensity. Defendant knew [, or should have known,] of the propensity but failed to warn plaintiff thereof.

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, is for use in a complaint in an action by a bailee of a horse against the bailor of the horse for damages for injuries caused to plaintiff by the horse. The allegation is used to allege the horses dangerous or vicious propensity. Restiveness and high spiritedness is a vicious propensity in horse. [Barrett v. Metropolitan Contracting Co. (1916) 172 Cal. 116, 118-119, 155 P. 645]. It may be used in conjunction with the complaints in §§ 23.141, 23.143-23.147.

Plaintiff _____ [name], a minor, through his/her guardian ad litem, alleges:

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a minor of the age of _____ years. On _____ [date], _____ [name] was, by order duly made and entered by this court, appointed guardian ad litem of plaintiff _____ [minor] for the purpose of bringing this action.

2. Defendants are, and at all time herein mentioned were, residents of _____ County, California [or allege other capacity and residence of defendants].

3. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 23.120 [1], Paragraph 2.]

4. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [name] was the owner and operator of a certain amusement park in _____ [city], California.

5. At all times herein mentioned, defendants _____ [names] were the agents, servants, and employees of defendant _____ [name], and, in doing the things hereinafter alleged, were acting within the course and scope of such agency and employment.

6. On or about _____ [date], defendants, and each of them, maintained in the amusement park a concession which, for a consideration, was offered to children of the general public for the purpose of riding a pony around a circular track. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff accepted defendants' invitation, paid the consideration required, mounted the pony provided by defendants, and began to ride around the track.

7. Defendants, and each of them, so negligently and carelessly selected the pony which was provided for plaintiff's use, and so negligently operated and maintained the circular track, and so negligently and carelessly supervised the riding of the pony, that this pony pulled out of plaintiff's control, throwing plaintiff heavily to the ground, and causing plaintiff the injuries complained of below.

8. As a proximate result of the negligence and carelessness of defendants, and each of them, plaintiff was injured in his/her health, strength, and activity, sustained bodily injury, and shock and injury to his/her nervous system, these injuries have caused, and continue to cause, plaintiff great mental and physical pain and suffering. Plaintiff [is informed and believes and thereon] alleges that these injuries will result in his/her permanent disability, all to his/her damage.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For general damages according to proof.

2. For costs of suit herein incurred.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in an action by a minor against an amusement park owner and operator and his or her agents. Plaintiff seeks damages for injuries he or she suffered when plaintiff was thrown from the amusement park's pony as a result of defendants' negligence. If plaintiff's parents seek recovery of medical expenses or other losses sustained by them, as opposed to losses sustained by the minor, they may join as plaintiffs, in which case the complaint should be modified accordingly and set forth a second cause of action on behalf of the parents.

[Caption. See § 23.120[1].]

Plaintiff alleges:

1. At all times herein mentioned _____ [name of road, highway, etc.] was, and is, a public thoroughfare in _____ County, California.

2. At all times herein mentioned, defendant was the _____ [owner or occupant] of certain real property that fronted for _____ [e.g., one-half mile] on the _____ [e.g., south] side of _____ [name of road, highway, etc.] in _____ County. Defendant kept _____ [e.g., cattle] on his/her/its property, including the animal hereinafter referred to.

3. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff was the owner of a _____ [describe vehicle] _____ [e.g., California] license number _____.

4. On or about _____ [date], at or about _____ [time], plaintiff was driving his/her _____ [e.g., automobile] in a _____ [e.g., westerly] direction on _____ [name of road, highway, etc.] where it passes alongside defendant's property.

5. At the above-mentioned time and place, defendant so negligently owned, and controlled his/her/its _____ [e.g., cattle] as to allow one of them to enter on _____ [name of road, highway, etc.] and _____ [e.g., lie down].

6. As a direct and legal result of defendant's negligence, plaintiff's vehicle was caused to collide with the animal [lying] in the _____ [road or highway or other].

7. As a direct and legal result of the defendant's negligence, plaintiff was hurt and injured in his/her health, strength, and activity, sustaining injury to his/her nervous system and person, all of which injuries have caused, and continue to cause, plaintiff great mental, physical, emotional, and nervous pain and suffering. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and on this information and belief alleges that these injuries will result in permanent disability to him/her.] As a result of these injuries, plaintiff has suffered general damages.

8. As a direct and legal result of defendant's negligence, plaintiff has incurred [, and will continue to incur,] medical and related expenses. Plaintiff does not know at this time the exact amount of expenses that have been incurred and that will be incurred in the future. When plaintiff has ascertained this amount, plaintiff will seek leave of court, orally or in writing, to amend this complaint to insert this amount.

9. As a direct and legal result of defendant's negligence, plaintiff's earning capacity has been and will be impaired, in an amount according to proof.

10. [2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in an action by one injured in a collision with an animal against the owner of the animal. The plaintiff seeks damages for injuries based on the owner's negligent failure to adequately control the animal.

A livestock owner who negligently fails to keep stock from straying on highway is liable to one injured in collision with stock even at point where highway unfenced [Shively v. Dye Creek Cattle Co. (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1620, 1629-1631, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 238 ; Summers v. Parker (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 214, 216, 259 P.2d 59 ; Jackson v. Hardy (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 6, 14, 160 P.2d 161]. However, the fact of a highway collision between a vehicle and an animal cannot give rise to a presumption or inference of negligence on the part of the livestock owner [Food & Agric. Code § 16904]. This precludes the use of res ipsa loquitur to establish negligence [Pepper v. Bishop (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 731, 734, 15 Cal. Rptr. 346 (applying former Ag C § 423); see also Burnett v. Reyes (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 878, 880 , 256 P.2d 91]. For further discussion, see § 23.32.

For further discussion and cross references relating to complaints generally, see § 23.120[2] et seq.

[3] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded for this cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case or whether it is a limited civil case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40, and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115].

[Caption. See § 23.120[1].]

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 23.120 [1], Paragraph 1.]

2. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 23.120 [1], Paragraph 2.]

3. At all times herein mentioned defendant was the owner of a certain large _____ [breed] dog.

4. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff was walking on a public sidewalk in _____ [city], California, near the intersection of _____ [name] and _____ [name] Streets.

5. [Leashing ordinance. See § 23.125 [1], Paragraph 4.]

6. On or about _____ [date], defendant negligently, carelessly, and in violation of the ordinance hereinbefore referred to, allowed the dog to be absent from his/her premises while alone and unleashed. As plaintiff approached the intersection hereinbefore referred to, the dog, alone and unleased, dashed out from defendant's residence in pursuit of another dog. Defendant's dog, intent on fighting with the other dog, rushed heedlessly toward the impending affray, and, in seeking out the impending combat, struck plaintiff a severe and jarring blow with his/her head, causing the injuries hereinafter complained of.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in an action by a pedestrian against the owner of a dog. Plaintiff seeks damages for injuries caused by the dog as a result of defendant's violation of a leash ordinance [see Rollins v. Hedin (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 488, 490, 250 P.2d 728 (pedestrian); see also Brotemarkle v. Snyder (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 388, 389-390, 221 P.2d 992 (driver of vehicle); Eigner v. Race (1942) 54 Cal. App. 2d 506, 512-513, 129 P.2d 444 (no liability when violation of leash law did not proximately contribute to injury)].

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 23.120 [1], Paragraph 1.]

2. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 23.120 [1], Paragraph 2.]

3. At all times herein mentioned, defendant was a tenant in that certain apartment building located at _____ [address], _____ [city], _____ County, California.

4. This apartment building is divided into separate apartments, and there are hallways, entries, and doors maintained for the use of all of the tenants of the apartment building and their guests.

5. At all times herein mentioned, defendant was the owner of a certain _____ [breed] dog.

6. On or about _____ [date], and prior thereto, defendant carelessly and negligently allowed this dog to run and play and move about in the rooms and hallways of the apartment building, and the dog had on occasion jumped on various guests, and had run between their legs and against them. The dog's activities were hazardous to persons about the building. The nature, extent, and hazardousness of the dog's activities were all well known to defendant.

7. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff was a guest in the apartment building. At that time, while plaintiff was walking in a hallway of the building, the defendant negligently and carelessly permitted the dog to run against plaintiff's legs, causing plaintiff to fall violently to the floor of the hallway.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in an action by a guest in an apartment building against the owner of a dog. Plaintiff seeks damages for injuries caused by the dog as a result of the owner's negligence. Plaintiff may also proceed on the basis of the owner's strict liability to a person injured by the owner's dog as a result of a dangerous propensity of which the owner has knowledge, or should have knowledge [see § 23.141; see also Northon v. Schultz (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 488, 489, 279 P.2d 103 (dog that jumped on people)].

1. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of _____ [state], authorized to transact, and transacting, business in California, and having its principal place of business in this state in _____ County [or other allegation of capacity and residence as appropriate].

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ County, California [or other capacity and residence of defendant].

3. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 23.120 [1], Paragraph 2.]

4. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [name] operated a _____ [type, e.g., department] store in _____ [city], _____ County, California. In the course of the operation of the store, defendant advertised and offered certain merchandise for sale and invited the public to come on the premises for the purpose of inspecting and purchasing the merchandise so offered and advertised.

5. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff entered the store operated by defendant _____ [name], for the purpose of inspecting and purchasing certain of the merchandise advertised and offered for sale therein.

6. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [name] maintained in the store various counters and display windows separated by aisles for the purpose of permitting customers to inspect and purchase the merchandise.

7. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [name] was the owner of a lively, mischievous, unruly, and frolicsome dog, and the disposition and each of these attributes and inclinations of the dog were well known to the dog's owner.

8. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff was present in one of the aisles for the purpose of inspecting and purchasing certain merchandise then and there offered for sale. Defendant _____ [name of corporation] carelessly and negligently permitted defendant _____ [name of dog owner] to bring the dog on the premises and into the aisle were plaintiff was present.

9. At that time and place, defendant _____ [name of dog owner] so negligently and carelessly guided and controlled the dog that it was caused, permitted, and allowed by defendant _____ [name of dog owner] to collide with and trip plaintiff and throw plaintiff to the floor with great force and violence and inflict the injuries hereinafter related.

10. The careless and negligent acts of the defendants, and each of them, hereinabove set forth, operated inseparably and as the sole proximate cause of the injuries to plaintiff which are hereinafter specified.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in an action by a person bitten by a dog while lawfully in a private place against the owner of the offending dog. Plaintiff seeks damages for the resulting injuries, based on strict liability under Civ. Code § 3342. For a form based on a dog bite in a public place, see § 23.160.

Strict liability under Civ. Code § 3342 is available only against the dog's owner, and applies only to injuries from being bitten by a dog. It is not available to a plaintiff who, at the time of the dog bite, was not in a public place or lawfully in a private place, including the property of the dog's owner. A person is lawfully on the private property of the dog's owner when he or she is on the property in the performance of any duty imposed on him or her by the laws of California or by the laws or postal regulations of the United States, or when he or she is on the property on the owner's invitation, express or implied [Civ. Code § 3342]. For discussion of Section 3342, see § 23.33[5].

For further discussion of personal injury complaints and complaints relating to vicious animals, see §§ 23.140[2] et seq. and 23.141[2] et seq.

For further discussion and cross references relating to complaints generally, see § 23.120[2] et seq.

[3] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded for this cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case or whether it is a limited civil case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages § 177.40 et seq., and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in an action by a person bitten by a dog while in a public place against the owner of the dog. Plaintiff seeks damages for the resulting injuries based on strict liability under Civ. Code § 3342. For a form based on a dog bite in a private place, see § 23.159.

For further discussion of personal injury complaints and complaints relating to vicious animals, see §§ 23.140[2] et seq., 23.141 [2] et seq.

For further discussion and cross references relating to complaints generally, see § 23.120[2] et seq.

§ 23.161 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Assumption of Risk--Inviting Injury by Caged Animal

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Assumption of Risk--Inviting Injury by Caged Animal

AS A [(if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that plaintiff's injuries were proximately caused by his/her own misconduct, in that plaintiff read but failed to obey signs plainly posted on the animal's cage which warned plaintiff to stay away from the cage to avoid being injured. Plaintiff placed himself/herself in a position where he/she could be seriously injured in that plaintiff came within _____ [number] inches of the animal's cage. Plaintiff did this act voluntarily and with full understanding not only of the danger and risk he/she faced, but also the magnitude of this danger and risk, in that he/she knew his/her conduct might result in the animal's extending parts of its body outside its cage and seriously injuring plaintiff, both of which events plaintiff alleges occurred. Plaintiff invited the injuries of which he/she complains by the foregoing misconduct, and plaintiff thereby assumed the risk of the injuries he/she suffered.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an affirmative defense of assumption of risk for use in an answer by defendant to a complaint alleging serious injuries to plaintiff by defendant's wild animal.

[3] Assumption of Risk

The term "assumption of risk" has been applied to at least two distinct defenses. The first, known as "secondary assumption of risk," is where plaintiff undertakes to encounter a specific known risk imposed by defendant's negligence. This defense is in reality a form of contributory negligence, even though plaintiff encounters the risk in a prudent manner. The adoption of comparative negligence merged this variety of assumption of risk into the general scheme of assessment of liability in proportion to negligence [see Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 315, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696 ; Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 824-825, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226].

The second assumption of risk situation, known as "primary assumption of risk," is where plaintiff agrees to relieve defendant of an obligation of reasonable conduct. Such a situation does not involve contributory negligence, but rather a reduction of defendant's duty of care. In this latter situation, the defense of assumption risk is not subsumed by comparative negligence; if the defendant did not have a duty to protect plaintiff from the specific harm, the doctrine completely bars recovery [Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 314-315, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696 ; see Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 824-825, 829, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226].

Whether the form of assumption of risk in [1], above, illustrates a first-mentioned variety of contributory negligence in which plaintiff's recovery would be reduced but not barred, or whether it illustrates the second type of situation in which plaintiff has agreed to relieve defendant of his or her responsibility and hence is barred from recovery would depend on the facts involved.

For discussion of assumption of risk in the context of injuries caused by animals, see § 23.31[4].

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Assumption of Risk and Negligence of Plaintiff--Riding Horse One Knows to Be Dangerous and Riding It Unskillfully

AS A [(if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that plaintiff represented to defendant that he/she was an experienced rider and desired a spirited horse. Plaintiff was advised and warned of the fact that the horse could not be safely ridden by one not experienced in the handling of horses and specifically that the horse had a tendency to _____ [specify, e.g., run away if not kept under proper restraint]. Despite these warnings plaintiff insisted that he/she be allowed to ride the horse and thereby voluntarily assumed the risk of riding the horse with full knowledge of this propensity of the horse to _____ [e.g., run away]. He/She understood the full magnitude of the risk he/she was assuming when he/she mounted the horse, in that he/she knew that the horse might exhibit this propensity to _____ [e.g., run away] and that he/she might be seriously injured as a result, both of which events he/she alleges occurred. He/She thereby agreed to relieve defendant of an obligation of reasonable conduct toward him/her and thus reduced defendant's duty of care to him/her. Consequently, plaintiff's claim for damages is barred.

AS A [(if more than one, specify number, e.g., SECOND)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that in addition to plaintiff's assumption of risk, his/her contributory negligence proximately caused his/her injuries in that he/she so negligently handled and managed the horse that _____ [specify, e.g., the horse lost its balance and fell, throwing plaintiff to the ground].

[2] Use of Form

This form contains affirmative defenses of assumption of the risk and the plaintiff's negligence for use in an answer by a defendant to a complaint by a horseback rider for injuries caused by the dangerous propensities of the defendant's horse.

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Primary Assumption of Risk by Rider--Commercial Stable Operator as Having No Duty to Provide Ideal Horse for Riding

AS A [(if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that plaintiff's recovery is barred by primary assumption of risk because sudden movements of a horse are inherent in the sport of horseback riding and defendant had no duty to provide plaintiff with a horse for riding that would never buck, bite, rear, break into a trot or a gallop, stumble, "spook," or otherwise react to unusual movements of its rider.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an affirmative defense of assumption of risk for use in an answer by a defendant to a complaint alleging that plaintiff was injured when the horse owned or provided by defendant threw plaintiff. The defense is that primary assumption of risk bars plaintiff's recovery, because sudden movements are inherent in the sport of horseback riding and defendant had no duty to provide plaintiff with an ideal horse that would never make any sudden movements [see Harrold v. Rolling J Ranch (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 578, 588-589, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671 (commercial operator of horse-riding facility has no duty to provide customers with ideal horses that never engage in sudden movements; recovery of rider for injuries suffered when horse "spooked" and threw her was barred by primary assumption of risk)].

AS A [(if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that the injuries complained of by plaintiff were proximately caused by plaintiff's misconduct in that he/she willfully and voluntarily teased, abused, and mistreated the dog and thereby provoked the attack. Plaintiff invited the injuries he/she complains of and assumed the risk of them with full knowledge of the magnitude of that risk, in that he/she knew his/her foregoing conduct might cause the dog to attack him/her, and seriously injure him/her, both of which events he/she alleges occurred.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an affirmative defense for use in an answer by a defendant to a complaint alleging that defendant's dog attacked plaintiff. The defense is that plaintiff's injuries were caused by the plaintiff willfully inviting the attack. Assumption of the risk is available as a defense in action under Civ. Code § 3342 [see Smythe v. Schacht (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 315, 321-322, 209 P.2d 114 (decided under former statute; recognizing teasing and provoking attach as defense, but finding no proof to support it); for discussion, see § 23.33[5][c]].

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Plaintiff is _____ [e.g., a neighbor of defendant].

2. Defendant is the owner of a _____ [specify breed] dog.

[EITHER, if proceeding under Civ. Code § 3342.5(b)]

3. Defendant's previously mentioned dog has bitten humans on the following occasions: _____ [specify at least two times that dog has bitten humans, including place and circumstances showing that the persons bitten were not trespassers and that the dog was not performing military or police work at the time of biting]. [All or Both or One] of these bites occurred in _____ County, California.

[OR, if proceeding under Civ. Code § 3342.5(c)]

3. Defendant's previously mentioned dog has bitten a human being on the following occasion: _____ [specify at least one occasion on which the dog caused substantial physical injury to a human by biting, including the place and circumstances, the fact that substantial physical injury to a human occurred, and that the dog was trained to fight, attack, or kill when the bite occurred]. The bite occurred in _____ County, California.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in an action to determine whether conditions of the treatment or confinement (or other circumstances) of a dog which has bitten a human have been changed since the bite or bites occurred so as to remove the danger to other persons presented by the animal. Plaintiff may proceed on either of two grounds:

- That the dog has bitten a human on at least two separate occasions [Civ. Code § 3342.5(b)]; or

- That the dog has bitten a human on at least one occasion causing substantial physical injury, and was trained to fight, attack, or kill when the bite occurred [Civ. Code § 3342.5(c)]. For discussion, see § 23.34.

A proceeding under Civ. Code § 3342.5 is a limited civil case (amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less) [Civ. Code § 3342.5(g); see Code Civ. Proc. § 85 et seq.]. The superior court has jurisdiction of the action [Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)]. For further discussion of limited civil cases, see Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter Jurisdiction .

The action may be brought by any person, including the district attorney or a city attorney [Civ. Code § 3342.5(b), (c)].

Actions brought under Civ. Code § 3342.5(b) are not sanctioned with respect to bites suffered by trespassers or bites by dogs performing military or police work Civ. Code § 3342.5(d). Civ. Code § 3342.5(c) (dogs trained to fight, attack, or kill) is not mentioned in this regard, which seems inconsistent with the overall statute and its penal companion [see Civ. Code § 3342.5(d); Penal Code § 399.5]. Caution should therefore be exercised in attempting to bring an action under Civ. Code § 3342.5(c) involving trespassers or dogs performing military or police work.

For further discussion and cross references relating to complaints generally, see § 23.120[2] et seq.

For further discussion of the proceedings to determine if a dog is potentially dangerous or vicious, see § 23.35[5].

[c] Completing Form

Counsel should complete the caption of the form of petition by setting forth his or her name, address, telephone number, and bar number [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(1)]. After the "Attorney for" designation, counsel should specify the name of the party represented and whether the party is the petitioner or the respondent. If the party has no attorney and is appearing in propria persona, the party should insert his or her name, address, and phone number in the designated space. In that case, the "Attorney for" designation should be crossed out and replaced by the words "In pro. per." The county and address of the court, the names of the petitioner and the respondent, and the case number should also be set forth in the appropriate spaces.

The form contains boxes to check for specifying whether the petition is to determine if the dog in question is a potentially dangerous dog or a vicious dog. Counsel should check at least one of these boxes. Counsel should also check at least one of the boxes in the potentially dangerous or vicious paragraph heading.

[d] Supporting Documents

The second page of the form contains boxes for use to check which supporting documents are being filed with the petition. Counsel should check at least one of these boxes and attach the accompanying supporting document(s) to the petition.

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 23.120 [1], Paragraph 1.]

2. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 23.120 [1], Paragraph 2.]

3. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff was, and now is, the owner and in possession of the following real property, at _____ [address], _____ County, California [and more particularly described as follows: _____ (legal description)].

[4. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff's real property described above was _____ (under cultivation or intended for the raising of livestock or used for the raising of livestock).]

5. At all times herein mentioned, defendant was, and now is, the _____ [owner or occupant] of the premises at _____ [address], _____ County, California, consisting of _____ [description of improvements] [and more particularly described as follows: _____ (legal description)]. These premises are _____ [show location relative to plaintiff's property].

6. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff maintained on his/her property a wellspring, located wholly on this property, which wellspring was used by plaintiff for the purpose of supplying fresh and usable water for his/her household, the needs of his/her stock, and the irrigation of his/her land.

7. At all times herein mentioned, defendant was and is the owner and possessor of a certain group of _____ [breed] dogs, unknown in number, which dogs were and are used by the defendant for the purpose of running and shepherding his/her sheep and which dogs are given to the habit of roaming at large and at will, all of which was and is known to the defendant.

8. On or about _____ [date], and from that time until the present, these dogs have continually and regularly come onto and trespassed on the property of plaintiff during the nighttime. They have congregated about plaintiff's wellspring, and have conducted themselves so as to create a private nuisance, in that they have polluted, befouled, and rendered the water in the wellspring filthy and unusable for the described purposes. These acts have been injurious to health, offensive to the senses, and an obstruction to the free use of plaintiff's property, so as to interfere with the comfortable enjoyment of life and property by plaintiff.

9. Plaintiff has, on several occasions preceding commencement of this action, notified defendant of this nuisance and requested that defendant take measures to remedy it and prevent its future occurrence, but these requests have been ignored.

10. As a result of the foregoing, plaintiff is denied the use and comfortable enjoyment of his/her property, and is put to labor and expense in the continuing process of cleaning and purifying the wellspring, to plaintiff's damage in the sum of $_____.

11. Unless defendant is restrained by order of this court from continuing to allow this trespass and nuisance, it will be necessary for plaintiff to commence many successive actions against defendant to secure compensation for damages sustained, thus requiring a multiplicity of judicial proceedings, and plaintiff will be daily threatened with the continuation of the private nuisance described above.

12. Unless defendant is enjoined from continuing his/her course of conduct in permitting his/her dogs to trespass on plaintiff's property and create the nuisance thereon, plaintiff will be irreparably injured in an amount which cannot be calculated in terms of money, in that plaintiff will be deprived to a substantial extent of the use and comfortable enjoyment of his/her property. _____ [Allege other irreparable injury, e.g., Any efforts by plaintiff to sell or lease his/her property will be without avail because its usefulness will be substantially diminished].

13. For all of the reasons alleged above plaintiff has no plain, speedy, or adequate remedy at law, pecuniary compensation would not afford him/her adequate relief, and injunctive relief is expressly authorized by Section 731 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For an order requiring defendant to show cause, if he/she has any, why he/she should not be enjoined as hereinafter set forth, during the pendency of this action;

2. For a temporary restraining order, a preliminary injunction, and a permanent injunction, all enjoining and restraining defendant, his/her agents, servants, and employees, and all persons acting under, in concert with, or for them, from allowing defendant's dogs to come onto plaintiff's property and create the aforementioned nuisance;

3. For damages in the sum of $_____;

4. For costs of suit herein incurred;

[5. For reasonable attorney's fees _____ (of $_____ or according to proof);] and

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in an action by a landowner against a dog owner. Plaintiff seeks damages for a private nuisance created by defendant's dogs trespassing on his or her real property and injunctive relief against defendant's allowing the nuisance to continue [see Civ. Code § 3479; Code Civ. Proc. § 731]. For discussion of animal trespasses, see § 23.55.

[3] Allegations

A complaint for trespass resulting in property damage by animals should allege:

- Venue and jurisdiction.
- That defendant was the owner of the animal.
- That plaintiff was the owner or occupier of the property.
- That the animal trespassed on plaintiff's property.
- That damage resulted from the trespass.
- Facts showing grounds for injunctive relief.

Factors justifying injunctive relief against animal trespasses include the following:

- Repeated damage suits and distraints [Montezuma Improvement Co. v. Simmerly (1919) 181 Cal. 722, 726-727, 189 P. 100].
- Trespasses would prevent putting in crop for that year [Huffman v. Coulter (1921) 55 Cal. App. 173, 174-175, 203 P. 125].
- Property destroyed is not subject to replacement to accomplish its purpose [Blevins v. Mullally (1913) 22 Cal. App. 519, 534, 135 P. 307].

[4] Attorney's Fees

If a plaintiff brings an action to recover damages to personal or real property resulting from trespassing on lands either under cultivation or intended or used for raising livestock, and the plaintiff prevails, he or she is entitled to reasonable attorney's fees in addition to other costs, and in addition to any liability for damages imposed by law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.9]. An optional prayer for attorney's fees is provided in the form for requesting these fees.

For further discussion and cross references relating to complaints generally, see § 23.120[2] et seq.

[5] Verification

Verification [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction on a complaint instead of on affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581]. Otherwise, verification is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446] and precludes use of a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Certification re Notice

When a temporary restraining order is sought without formal notice, the applicant or the applicant's attorney is required to certify to the court underoath that either (1) within a reasonable time prior to the application he or she informed the opposing party (or his or her attorney, if any) at what time and where the application would be made, or (2) he or she in good faith attempted to inform the opposing party (or attorney) but was unable to do so, specifying the efforts made to do so, or (3) for reasons specified he or she should not be required to inform the opposing party (or attorney) [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1200, 3.1204(b)].

Plaintiffs allege:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendants. See § 23.120 [1], Paragraph 1.]

2. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 23.120 [1], Paragraph 2.]

3. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiffs were and now are [the owners and] in rightful possession of real property, situated at _____ [address], _____ County, California [, and more particularly described as follows: _____ (legal description),] on which premises, they have grown crops of _____ [specify] and grazed livestock, namely _____ [e.g., cattle].

4. At all times herein mentioned, defendants were and still are the owners of about _____ [number] livestock, namely, _____ [e.g., cattle], which are at pasture on lands adjoining plaintiffs' property.

5. On or about _____ [date], and continuing until the present, defendants have permitted these livestock repeatedly and on numerous occasions to trespass on plaintiffs' land, where they have eaten up, trampled on, and destroyed the _____ [state, e.g., alfalfa] growing thereon, and injured the soil.

6. Plaintiffs have repeatedly gathered up and returned these _____ [e.g., cattle] to defendants and have repeatedly asked defendants to prevent them from entering on plaintiffs' land and doing damage thereon, but defendants have ignored such requests and have permitted and threaten to continue to permit this condition to continue.

7. As a result of the foregoing, plaintiffs have been damaged in the sum of $_____.

8. Unless defendants are restrained by order of this court from continuing to allow the trespass and injury to plaintiffs' property, it will be necessary for plaintiffs to commence many successive actions against defendants to secure compensation for damages sustained, thus requiring a multiplicity of judicial proceedings, and it will be necessary for plaintiffs to repeatedly take up the _____ [e.g., cattle] as estrays under Section 17041 of the Food and Agricultural Code.

9. Unless defendants are enjoined from continuing to permit these _____ [e.g., cattle] to trespass on plaintiffs' property and do the injuries to _____ [e.g., alfalfa] and soil as alleged above, plaintiffs will be irreparably injured in an amount which cannot be calculated in money, in that _____ [e.g., the soil will thereby be made unfit for farming purposes and plaintiffs will be prevented from putting in new crops for this year, so that plaintiffs' own livestock will not have enough feed to sustain them; as a result, plaintiffs will have to move to another locality to carry on their living].

10. As a result of the facts stated in Paragraphs 8 and 9 of this complaint, plaintiffs have no plain, speedy, or adequate remedy at law.

WHEREFORE, plaintiffs pray judgment against defendants, and each of them, as follows:

1. For an order requiring defendants to show cause, if any they have, why they should not be enjoined as hereinafter set forth, during the pendency of this action;

2. For a temporary restraining order, a preliminary injunction, and a permanent injunction, all enjoining defendants, their agents, servants, and employees, and all persons acting under, in concert with, or for them, from allowing defendants' livestock to trespass on plaintiffs' property and do the injury thereon alleged in this complaint;

3. For damages in the sum of $_____;

4. For costs of suit herein incurred;

[5. For reasonable attorney's fees _____ (of $_____ or according to proof); and]

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in an action by landowners against livestock owners. Plaintiffs seek damages and injunctive relief against defendants based on trespasses by defendants' livestock on plaintiffs' land. [see Huffman v. Coulter (1921) 55 Cal. App. 173, 174-175, 203 P. 125 (injunctive relief against animal trespasses)]. For discussion of animal trespasses, see § 23.55.

[3] Measures of Damages

The measure of damages for destruction of pasturage, where grass cannot be reasonably severed and marketed separate from the land, is the reasonable rental value thereof in that vicinity for pasture purposes [see Murphy v. Nielsen (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 396, 399, 282 P.2d 126 (trespass by cattle); Maddalena v. LeDuc (1938) 29 Cal. App. 2d 211, 212, 84 P.2d 254 (trespass by sheep); Miller & Lux Inc. v. Pinelli (1927) 84 Cal. App. 42, 51, 257 P. 573 (trespass by cattle)].

The measure of damages for destruction of annually planted crops raised to be harvested is the market value of the estimated product at the time of destruction, less the cost of producing and marketing the crops [Crofoot Lumber, Inc. v. Ford (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 238, 249, 12 Cal. Rptr. 639 (wrongful removal of timber by loggers)].

[4] Attorney's Fees

If a plaintiff brings an action to recover damages to personal or real property resulting from trespassing on lands either under cultivation or intended or used for raising livestock, and the plaintiff prevails, he or she is entitled to reasonable attorney's fees in addition to other costs, and in addition to any liability for damages imposed by law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.9]. An optional prayer for attorney's fees is provided in the form for requesting these fees.

vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES AND INJUNC-
_____ [name], [and DOES I	)	TION

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 23.120 [1], Paragraph 1.]

2. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 23.120 [1], Paragraph 2.]

3. [Description of plaintiff's real property. See § 23.180 [1], Paragraph 3.]

4. Defendant has a right of way over a portion of this real property, which right of way is in the nature of an easement for access to a road. But this easement is limited in scope and purpose, and plaintiff is owner of a fee in the real property.

5. Plaintiff installed a gate at the entrance of the right of way, for the purpose of preventing undue use of the right of way by unauthorized persons. It has been the understanding between plaintiff and defendant that this gate would be kept shut when the right of way was not being used.

6. Plaintiff is the owner of certain livestock, namely _____ [e.g., burros], which are kept on his/her property. The livestock are prone to wander off this property through the gate when this gate is left open for long periods of time.

7. Defendant, during the past _____ [number] months and continuously until the present has failed to close the gate when his/her right of way is not in use, although plaintiff has repeatedly and on many occasions asked him/her to do so.

8. As a result of the defendant's failure to close the gate, plaintiff's livestock have on several occasions wandered off plaintiff's property, making it necessary that plaintiff spend much time and effort in reclaiming them. Plaintiff has informed defendant of this on several occasions.

9. On or about _____ [date], after several requests to defendant, plaintiff was informed that his/her livestock had again wandered through the open gate and caused damage to the property of _____ [name], a neighbor of plaintiff.

10. Unless defendant is restrained by order of this court from continuing to fail to close the gate, plaintiff will be exposed to a possible multiplicity of judicial proceedings by neighbors whose property is damaged by livestock which escape through the open gate, and to continuing effort and expense. It will be necessary for plaintiff to commence many successive actions against defendant resulting in a multiplicity of judicial proceedings, to secure compensation for his/her efforts and expense in reclaiming plaintiff's livestock, in defending himself/herself in actions against him/her by neighbors whose property is damaged as alleged above, and in paying adverse judgments against him/her obtained by these neighbors.

11. Unless defendant is enjoined from continuing to leave the gate open, plaintiff will be irreparably injured in an amount which cannot be calculated in terms of money, in that plaintiff will be forced to expend effort in reclaiming plaintiff's livestock and defending himself/herself in actions against him/her as alleged above, which will deprive plaintiff to a substantial extent of time he/she would otherwise spend in the use and comfortable enjoyment of his/her property.

12. In view of the foregoing facts, plaintiff has no plain, speedy, or adequate remedy at law.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For an order requiring defendant to show cause, if any he/she has, why he/she should not be enjoined as hereinafter set forth, during the pendency of this action.

2. For a temporary restraining order, a preliminary injunction, and a permanent injunction, all enjoining defendant, his/her agents, servants, and employees, and all persons acting under, in concert with, or for them, from leaving the gate open when the right of way is not in actual use.

3. For general damages against defendant in the sum of $_____, by way of reimbursement for plaintiff's efforts and expenses in reclaiming his/her livestock.

4. For an order of the court compelling defendant to settle such claims as may exist against plaintiff for damages caused by plaintiff's livestock being off the property of plaintiff.

5. For costs of suit herein incurred.

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

§ 24.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses proceedings arising under the Livestock Service Lien Law (Civ. Code § 3080 et seq.) [Subpart A] and the Dairy Cattle Supply Lien Law (Food & Agric. Code § 57401 et seq.) [Subpart B]. The Poultry and Fish Supply Lien Law (Food & Agric. Code § 57501 et seq.) is similar to the Dairy Cattle Supply Lien Law, but it is not discussed in this chapter.

Subpart A of the chapter contains the following forms:

- Forms of letters proposing, and giving notice of a proposal, that a livestock servicer retain livestock (held under claim of lien) in satisfaction of a claim for payment for rendering livestock services [§§ 24.70, 24.71].

- A form of release of interest in livestock held under claim of lien [§ 24.72].

- Forms relating to an order authorizing sale of livestock (held under claim of lien) prior to judgment in an action on the underlying claim [§ 24.73].

- Forms relating to a substitution of an undertaking [§ 24.74].

Subpart B of the chapter contains the following form:

- A form of complaint for foreclosure on a dairy cattle supply lien [§ 24.80].

§ 24.10 Governing Statutes

The Livestock Service Lien Law (Civ. Code §§ 3080-3080.22) governs liens on "livestock" which secure claims for "livestock services" rendered with respect to the livestock [see definitions in § 24.11]. Liens in general are governed by Civ. Code §§ 2872-2914 [see Ch. 342, Liens and Wage Preferences]. Formerly, Civ. Code § 3051 provided for a possessory lien in favor of livery, boarding, feed stable, or feed yard proprietors, and persons pasturing horses or stock, but that provision was repealed [see Stats. 1979, Ch 600, § 1] and replaced by a new provision in the Livestock Service Lien Law [see discussion in § 24.12 [1]].

§ 24.11 Definitions

"Livestock" means any cattle, sheep, swine, goat, or horse, mule, or other equine [Civ. Code § 3080(a)].

"Livestock services" are any and all grazing, feeding, boarding, general care (which includes animal health services), transportation or other services rendered to livestock for the owner of livestock, or for any person acting by or under the owner's authority [Civ. Code § 3080(c)].

A "livestock servicer" is any individual, corporation, partnership, joint venture, cooperative association, or other organization or entity which provides livestock services [Civ. Code § 3080(b)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Livestock Service Liens

3-24 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 24.12

§ 24.12 Livestock Service Lien

[1] In General

A livestock servicer has a general lien on livestock in his or her possession to secure the livestock owner's obligations with respect to [Civ. Code § 3080.01]:

- The provision of livestock services to the livestock in the possession of the livestock servicer, and

- The provision of livestock services to other livestock for which the services were provided in connection with or as part of the same livestock service transaction, if those livestock services were provided within the immediately preceding 12 months prior to the date on which the lien arose

[2] Date Lien Arises

The lien arises as the charges for livestock services become due [Civ. Code § 3080.01].

[3] Lien as Possessory

The lien is dependent on possession [Civ. Code § 3080.01].

[4] Priority of Lien

The lien has priority over all other liens on and security interests in the livestock [Civ. Code § 3080.01].

[5] Obligations Secured

The lien secures the owner's contractual obligations to the lienholder for the provision of livestock services, the lienholder's reasonable charges for the provision of livestock services after the lien has arisen as set forth in Civ. Code § 3080.02[see § 24.13], and the lienholder's costs of lien enforcement, including attorney's fees [Civ. Code § 3080.01].

Chapter 24 ANIMALS: LIENS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Livestock Service Liens

3-24 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 24.13

§ 24.13 Rights and Remedies of Lienholder

[1] Retention of Livestock

A lienholder may retain possession of the livestock and charge the owner for the reasonable value of providing livestock services to the livestock until the owner's obligations secured by the lien have been satisfied [Civ. Code § 3080.02(a)].

[2] Acceptance of Livestock in Lieu of Payment

At any time after a lien has arisen under the Livestock Service Lien Law, the lienholder (livestock servicer) may propose to retain all or any portion of the livestock in its possession, in satisfaction of all or any portion of the claim against the owner or other person indebted to the lienholder for livestock services [Civ. Code § 3080.21].

The proposal must be made in writing to the owner [for a form of written proposal, see § 24.70], and written notice of the proposal must be given to any person claiming a lien or security interest in the livestock who had on file with the Secretary of State on the date the lien arose, a financing statement covering the livestock for which livestock services secured by the lien were provided [Civ. Code § 3080.21; for a form of written notice to other lienholders, see § 24.71].

If, within 21 days after the notice is sent, the lienholder receives objection in writing from a person entitled to receive notification, the lienholder must proceed to sell the livestock and account for the proceeds pursuant to Civ. Code §§ 3080-3080.22 [Civ. Code § 3080.21].

In the absence of written objection, the lienholder may retain the livestock, or so much of the livestock as proposed, in satisfaction of all or a portion of the claim for livestock services, on the owner's and such other person's execution of a release conforming to Civ. Code § 3080.20 [Civ. Code § 3080.21]. For a form of release of interest in livestock, see § 24.72.

[3] Sale as Provisional Remedy

[a] Application to Court

Upon the filing of a complaint, or at any time thereafter prior to judgment, the lienholder may apply to the court in which the action was commenced for an order authorizing sale of the livestock prior to judgment [Civ. Code § 3080.03]. A hearing is held in the court in which the lienholder has brought the action [Civ. Code § 3080.03(c)].

In some cases, an order authorizing sale prior to judgment may be issued ex parte [see [b], below].

For appropriate forms for an order authorizing sale of the livestock prior to judgment, see § 24.73.

[b] Ex Parte Application

An order authorizing the sale of livestock prior to judgment may be issued on an ex parte application, if it appears from facts shown by affidavit that great or irreparable injury would result to the lienholder if issuance of the order were delayed until the matter could be heard on noticed hearing [Civ. Code § 3080.15(a)]. Otherwise, the defendant must be served with notice of the application (and other related papers) at least 10 days before the hearing date, or otherwise as the court may order for good cause shown [Civ. Code § 3080.03(c)]. For a form of ex parte motion, see § 24.73 [2]; for a form of notice of motion and supporting papers, see § 24.73[1]].

If an order for sale is issued ex parte, then on ex parte application of any party affected by the order or, if the court so orders, after a noticed hearing, the court may modify or vacate the order if it determines that it would be proper under the circumstances [Civ. Code § 3080.15(e)].

[c] Noticed Hearing

The defendant is entitled to oppose the issuance of a pre-judgment order of sale by filing and serving a notice of opposition no later than three days prior to the date set for hearing [Civ. Code § 3080.05(a)]. For a form of notice of opposition to motion, see § 24.73[3].

Except when the lienholder has made an ex parte application pursuant to Civ. Code § 3080.15, or for good cause shown, a defendant shall not be permitted to oppose the issuance of an order if it has failed to file a notice of opposition within the time prescribed [Civ. Code § 3080.05(b)].

[d] Findings Required for Court Order

The court must issue an order authorizing the sale of the livestock prior to judgment if it finds all of the following [Civ. Code § 3080.06(a)]:

- The claim on which the lienholder's action is based is a claim giving rise to a lien on which an order authorizing sale may be issued under Civ. Code §§ 3080-3080.22.
- The lienholder has established the probable validity of the claim on which the action is based.
- The lienholder has established the probable validity of the lien sought to be enforced by sale.
- The sale is necessary to prevent a possible decline in the value or condition of the livestock, or the sale should be held (prior to judgment) in the interest of equity.
- The sale is not sought for a purpose other than the recovery on the claim on which the lien is based.
- The sale, if conducted in the manner set forth in the application, would be conducted in a commercially reasonable manner.

For a form of order authorizing sale of livestock prior to judgment, [see § 24.73[4]].

[4] Sale Pursuant to Judgment

A lienholder may proceed to sell all or any portion of the livestock if a judgment authorizing sale has been entered in favor of the lienholder on the claim which gives rise to the lien [Civ. Code § 3080.02(b)(2)]. The sale must be made in compliance with the requirements of Civ. Code § 3080.16. For discussion of the requirements of Civ. Code § 3080.16, see § 24.14.

[5] Sale After Owner's Release

A lienholder may proceed to sell all or any portion of the livestock pursuant to Civ. Code § 3080.16 if the owner of the livestock has released, after the lien has arisen, his or her interest in the livestock in the form prescribed by Civ. Code § 3080.20 [Civ. Code § 3080.02(b)(3)]. For a form of release, see § 24.72.

The sale must be made in compliance with the requirements of Civ. Code § 3080.16. For discussion of the requirements of Civ. Code § 3080.16, see § 24.14.

[6] Action on Underlying Claim

A lienholder may commence a legal action on his or her claim against the owner of the livestock or any other person indebted to the lienholder for services to the livestock and reduce the claim to judgment [Civ. Code § 3080.02(c)]. When the lienholder has reduced the claim to judgment, any lien, levy, or other form of enforcement which may be made upon the livestock by virtue of any execution based on the judgment relates back to the attachment of, and has the same priority as, the livestock service lien [Civ. Code § 3080.02(c)]. The lienholder may purchase at a judicial sale held pursuant to the execution on the judgment and thereafter hold the livestock free of any liens on or security interests in the livestock [Civ. Code § 3080.02(c)].

§ 24.14 Sale Procedure

[1] Commercially Reasonable

Except as otherwise specified by an order authorizing sale, or as agreed to by the parties after the lien has arisen, a sale of livestock under the Livestock Lien Law may be held in bulk or in parcels, at wholesale or retail, and at any time and place and on any terms, provided the lienholder acts in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner [Civ. Code § 3080.16(a)]. The livestock may be sold in its existing condition or following any commercially reasonable preparation or processing [Civ. Code § 3080.16(a)]. The fact that a better price could have been obtained by a sale at a different time or in a different manner from that selected by the lienholder is not of itself sufficient to establish that the sale was not made in a commercially reasonable manner [Civ. Code § 3080.16(a)]. If the lienholder either sells the livestock in the usual manner in any recognized market for the livestock, or sells at the price current in that market at the time of the sale, or if the lienholder has otherwise sold in conformity with reasonable commercial sales practices for the type of livestock sold, it has sold in a commercially reasonable manner [Civ. Code § 3080.16(a)].

[2] Deposit of Provisional Remedy Sale Proceeds

Except as otherwise specified by order of the court, or as otherwise agreed by all interested parties after the lien has arisen, if the livestock is sold as a provisional remedy [see § 24.13 [3]], the proceeds of sale are to be deposited with the clerk of the court in an interest-bearing account to abide the judgment in the action [Civ. Code § 3080.16(b)].

[3] Disbursement of Sale Proceeds

Except as may be otherwise specified in the judgment in an action by the lienholder, the proceeds of sale must be applied in the following order [Civ. Code § 3080.16(c)]:

- For reasonable expenses incurred by the lienholder in enforcing the lien, including, but not limited to:
    - The charges for livestock services from the date the lien arose to the date of sale.

- The costs of transporting and preparing the livestock for sale and of conducting the sale.

- The reasonable attorney's fees and legal costs and expenses incurred by the lienholder.

- For satisfaction of the contractual indebtedness secured by the lien.

- For satisfaction of indebtedness secured by any subordinate lien or security interest in the livestock, if written notification or demand therefor is received by the court or the lienholder before the proceeds have been distributed; provided, if requested by the lienholder, the holder of a subordinate lien or security interest must seasonably furnish reasonable proof to the court of its subordinate interest before the lienholder need comply with the demand.

The lienholder must account to the owner of the livestock for any surplus and, unless otherwise provided in the judgment in an action by the lienholder, the owner is liable for any deficiency [Civ. Code § 3080.16(d)].

[4] Notice of Sale

[a] Who Must Be Notified

Except as otherwise agreed or specified by order of court, a notice in writing of the date, time, and place of sale must be delivered personally or be deposited in the United States mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the owner of the livestock, at his or her last known address [Civ. Code § 3080.17(a)]. The notice must also be mailed, in the same manner, to any other person claiming a lien or security interest in the livestock, who had on file with the Secretary of State on the date the lien arose, a financing statement covering the livestock for which livestock services secured by the lien were provided at least five days before the date fixed for any public sale, or before the day on or after which any private sale or other disposition is to be made [Civ. Code § 3080.17(a)].

[b] Publication of Notice

Notice of the time and place of a public sale must also be given at least five days before the date of sale by publication once in a newspaper of general circulation published in the county where the sale is to be held. If there is no such newspaper, notice is given by posting, for five days prior to sale, a notice of sale at the place where the sale is to be conducted [Civ. Code § 3080.17(b)].

[c] Postponement of Sale

Any public sale may be postponed from time to time by public announcement at the time and place last scheduled for sale [Civ. Code § 3080.18(b)].

Any sale of which notice is delivered or mailed and published as provided in the Livestock Service Lien Law, and which is held as provided therein, is a public sale [Civ. Code § 3080.18(a)].

The lienholder may purchase the livestock at a public sale [Civ. Code § 3080.18(c)].

A sale of livestock held pursuant to the Livestock Service Lien Law transfers to a purchaser for value all of the owner's rights in the livestock, and discharges the lien under which the sale is made and any lien or security interest subordinate to the discharged lien [Civ. Code § 3080.19(a)].

The purchaser takes free of all subordinate rights and interests even though the lienholder fails to comply with the requirements of the Livestock Service Lien Law or of any judicial proceeding if [Civ. Code § 3080.19(b)]:

- In the case of a public sale, the purchaser has no knowledge of any defects in the sale and does not buy in collusion with the lienholder, other bidders, or the person conducting the sale, or

- In any other case, the purchaser acts in good faith

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

3-24 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 24.16

§ 24.16 Debtor's Options

[1] Release of Interest in Livestock

The owner of livestock, or any other person claiming an interest in livestock, may release his or her interest in the livestock at any time after the lien has arisen [Civ. Code § 3080.20(a)]. The release must be in writing and dated when signed [Civ. Code § 3080.20(a)]. A copy of the release must be given to the person releasing the interest at the time the release is signed [Civ. Code § 3080.20(a)]. For a form of release, see § 24.72.

A lienholder may proceed to sell all or any portion of the livestock pursuant to Civ. Code § 3080.16 if the owner of the livestock has released, after the lien has arisen, his or her interest in the livestock in the form prescribed by Civ. Code § 3080.20 [Civ. Code § 3080.02(b)(3)]. The sale must be made in compliance with the requirements of Civ. Code § 3080.16. For discussion of the requirements of Civ. Code § 3080.16, see § 24.14.

[2] Opposition to Sale as Provisional Remedy

If a lienholder, after commencing an action on the underlying claim, seeks or obtains an order authorizing sale of the livestock prior to judgment, the debtor (defendant) may oppose issuance of the order or apply to have it modified or vacated [see Civ. Code §§ 3080.05, 3080.15(e)]. For general discussion of sale of livestock prior to judgment, see § 24.13[3].

The debtor may also counter with a motion for an order to substitute an undertaking for the lien so as to release the livestock [see Civ. Code § 3080.09; see also [4], below]. For appropriate forms to substitute an undertaking for the lien, see § 24.74.

[3] Action to Recover Possession of Livestock

The owner or other person entitled to possession of livestock on which another claims a livestock service lien may sue to recover possession. For discussion of actions to recover possession and appropriate forms, see Ch. 119, Claim and Delivery .

[4] Undertaking to Release Lien

[a] In General

At any time after the owner of the livestock has commenced an action to recover possession of the livestock, the owner may apply to the court in which the action was brought for an order for substitution of an undertaking which meets the requirements of Civ. Code § 3080.11 [Civ. Code § 3080.09(a)]. For a form of notice of motion for an order for substitution of undertaking, see § 24.74[1].

The owner may also take this step at any time after a livestock servicer has filed a complaint and claimed a lien under Civ. Code §§ 3080-3080.22 [Civ. Code § 3080.09(a)]. An application for an order substituting an undertaking may be included in the owner's opposition to the lien claimant's motion for an order authorizing sale of the livestock prior to judgment [Civ. Code § 3080.09(b)]. For discussion of sale of livestock as a provisional remedy, see § 24.13[3].

Unless it is included in the owner's notice of opposition, or except for good cause shown, an application for an order substituting an undertaking must on notice [Civ. Code § 3080.09(b)]. After a hearing, the court may enter an order directing the lienholder to release all or a portion of the livestock to the owner or the owner's agent [Civ. Code § 3080.10]. The order must be conditioned on the filing by the owner of an undertaking as set forth in Civ. Code § 3080.11 [Civ. Code § 3080.10]. For a form of order for substitution of an undertaking, see § 24.74[2].

It appears that the undertaking will become effective without court approval [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.210(b), 995.410(a)].

[b] Lienholder's Objection to Undertaking

The lienholder may object to the undertaking on the grounds that the sureties are insufficient, the amount of the bond is insufficient, or the undertaking, for any other cause, is insufficient [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.920]. For discussion of the procedures for objecting to an undertaking, and a form notice of motion to object to an undertaking, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

[c] Surety May Require Creditor to Pursue Other Remedy

Generally, a surety may require the creditor (in this case, the livestock servicer) to proceed against the debtor, or to pursue any other remedy that would lighten the surety's burden, which the surety cannot itself pursue, before turning to the surety [Civ. Code § 2845]. If the creditor neglects to do so, the surety is exonerated to the extent to which the surety is prejudiced [Civ. Code § 2845]. Notwithstanding this provision, a judgment of liability on any undertaking is in favor of the beneficiary (in this case, the livestock servicer) and against the debtor and surety, and may be enforced directly against the surety [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.460(a), (d)]. The liability of the surety is limited to the amount of the undertaking, but the surety's right of subrogation against the debtor is not limited to that amount [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.470(a)]. A motion to enforce liability on the undertaking may not be made prior to entry of final judgment in the action in which the undertaking is given and the time for appeal has expired or, if an appeal is taken, until the appeal is finally determined [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440(b)]. The motion must not be made or notice of motion served more than one year after the later of the preceding dates [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440(b)].

Any lien provided for in the Livestock Service Lien Law may be assigned by written instrument accompanied by delivery of possession of the livestock, subject to the lien, and the assignee may exercise the rights of a lienholder [*Civ. Any lienholder assigning a lien must at the time of assigning the lien give written notice of the assignment either by personal delivery or by registered or certified mail, to the legal owner and any other person claiming a lien on or security interest in the livestock who had on file with the Secretary of State on the date the lien arose a financing statement covering the livestock for which livestock services secured by the lien were provided, including the name and address of the person to whom the lien has been assigned [*Civ. § 24.30 Governing Law

The Dairy Cattle Supply Lien Law [Food & Agric. Code §§ 57401-57414] governs liens upon the "proceeds" of milk or milk products produced from dairy cattle, which secure claims for "feed or materials" to aid the raising or maintaining of the dairy cattle.

There is also a Poultry and Fish Supply Lien Law (Food & Agric. Code § 57501 et seq.) that is similar to the Dairy Cattle Supply Lien Law, but it is not discussed in this chapter.

§ 24.31 Definitions

[1] Feed and Materials

"Feed and materials" means commercial feed, grain, forage, feed ingredients, mineral feed, drugs, animal health products, customer-formula feed, any mixture or preparation for feeding animals, any of the constituent nutrients of an animal ration, or any other food which is used for feeding dairy cattle [Food & Agric. Code § 57401(b)].

[2] Proceeds

"Proceeds" means funds derived from the sale of milk or milk products which are payable to the lien debtor by the possessor of the funds, except for any of the following [Food & Agric. Code § 57401(c)]:

- Deductions for taxes, fees, and assessments.
- Funds due or owing milk processing cooperative associations organized and operating pursuant to Food & Agric. Code §§ 54001-54294.
- Funds retained by the cooperative association.
- Deductions made pursuant to court order.
- Deductions due or owing the buyer of the milk for hauling services provided by the buyer pursuant to Food & Agric. Code § 62096(e), or for the testing of milk for purposes of payment pursuant to Food & Agric. Code § 34231.

[3] Raising or Maintaining Dairy Cattle

"Raising or maintaining of dairy cattle" means feeding, pasturing, caring for, and managing dairy cattle kept or raised for use or profit [Food & Agric. Code § 57401(d)].

[4] Reasonable or Agreed Charges

"Reasonable or agreed charges" means the agreed price, if any, for the feed and materials sold to the lien debtor, at the lien debtor's request. If there is no agreed price or a method for determining price which is agreed on, reasonable or agreed charges means the reasonable value of the feed or materials as of the date of delivery [Food & Agric. Code § 57401(e)].

A person who provides feed or materials to aid the raising or maintaining of dairy cattle has a lien on the proceeds of the milk or milk products produced from the dairy cattle, for the reasonable or agreed charges for the feed or materials provided, and for the costs of enforcing the lien [Food & Agric. Code § 57402]. The amount of charges secured by the lien cannot exceed an amount equal to the reasonable or agreed charges for feed or material provided within a 45-day period, and only two providers of feed or materials can have an enforceable lien at any time according to the priority set forth in Food & Agric. Code § 57406 [Food & Agric. Code § 57402].

Except to the extent specifically set forth in the Dairy Cattle Supply Lien Law, dairy cattle supply liens are subject to Division 9 of the Commercial Code [Food & Agric. Code § 57407]. A dairy cattle supply lien has the same priority as a security interest perfected by the filing of a financing statement as of the date the notice of claim of lien was filed [Food & Agric. Code § 57406(b)]. As discussed in § 24.40, notice of claims of lien and lien termination statements are maintained by the Secretary of State's office in much the same manner as financing statements under Division 9 of the Commercial Code.

§ 24.34 Perfection of Lien

A dairy cattle supply lien is perfected and effective on the filing of a notice of claim of lien with the Secretary of State [Food & Agric. Code § 57405]. The notice of claim of lien can be filed at any time [Food & Agric. Code § 57405(a)] and must, at a minimum, set forth the following information [Food & Agric. Code § 57405 (b)]:

- The name and address of the lien claimant.
- The name and address of the lien debtor
- The location of the dairy to which the feed and materials were provided.
- That the lien claimant has a dairy cattle supply lien pursuant to Food & Agric. Code § 57402.

The notice of claim of lien must be filed by the lien claimant or a person authorized by the lien claimant to sign similar documents on its behalf [Food & Agric. Code § 57405(c)]. Although the Secretary of State is authorized to adopt necessary regulations and forms [Food & Agric. Code § 57410], the notice of lien claim must be filed on a standard form of original financing statement prescribed by the Secretary of State pursuant to Com. Code § 9521, with the following changes [Food & Agric. Code § 57405(d)]:

- The lien claimant may be identified either as lien claimant or as secured party.
- The form must be signed by the lien claimant and need not be signed by the debtor.
- In the space provided for the description of the collateral, there must instead be the statement substantially as set forth at Food & Agric. Code § 57405(b)(3),(4) (the location of the dairy to which the feed and materials were provided, and that the lien claimant has a dairy cattle supply lien).

The lien claimant must provide written notice of the claim of lien to the lien debtor within 10 days of the date of the filing with the office of the Secretary of State [Food & Agric. Code § 57405(f)].

§ 24.38 Enforcement of Lien

The lien claimant must provide written notice to secured creditors at least 30 days prior to enforcing a claim of lien [Food & Agric. Code § 57412]. For purposes of this provision, "secured creditors" are those creditors having a perfected security interest in dairy cattle, milk, milk products, or the proceeds thereof, as of the date the notice of claim of lien is filed with the Secretary of State [Food & Agric. Code § 57412].

A dairy cattle supply lien can be foreclosed only in an action to recover the reasonable or agreed charges for feed or material delivered [Food & Agric. Code § 57413]. The final judgment is enforced pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 680.010 et seq. [Food & Agric. Code § 57413]. For discussion of judgment enforcement, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments .

§ 24.39 Lien Termination Statement

When a lien claimant receives payment for amounts secured by the lien and has not been providing feed or materials for a period of 30 consecutive days, the lien claimant must, on written demand of the debtor, send the debtor a statement that he or she no longer claims a security interest under the notice of claim of lien [Food & Agric. Code § 57414(a)]. The notice of claim of lien must be identified by date, names of the parties, and file number [Food & Agric. Code § 57414(a)].

If the affected lienholder of record fails to send termination statement within 10 days after proper demand for one, he or she is liable to the debtor for all actual damages suffered by the debtor by reason of the failure, and, if the failure is in bad faith, for a penalty of $100 [Food & Agric. Code § 57414(a)].

[1] Notices and Statements

The notice of claim of lien is filed, indexed, and marked in the office of the Secretary of State in the same manner as a financing statement pursuant to Com. Code § 9519 [Food & Agric. Code § 57405(e)]. For the purpose of the Secretary of State's index pursuant to Com. Code §§ 9515, 9516, and 9522, and for the purpose of the issuance of a certificate pursuant to Com. Code § 9519 or Com. Code § 9528, the Secretary of State must to identify a notice of claim of lien as a financing statement [Food & Agric. Code § 57405(g)]. Termination statements are marked with the date and time of filing and indexed under the name of the debtor and under the file number of the original lien, and kept on file at the Secretary of State's office for one year after receipt [Food & Agric. Code § 57414(b)].

[2] Lien Search

Any member of the public can obtain a copy of any notice of claim of dairy cattle supply lien, including notices affecting the notices [Food & Agric. Code § 57409]. The fee for these copies is the same as the fee prescribed by Com. Code § 9525 [Food & Agric. Code § 57409].

[1] FORM Letter to Livestock Owner--Livestock Servicer's Proposal to Retain Livestock in Satisfaction of Claim [Civ. Code § 3080.21]

_____ [inside address]

Dear _____:

_____ [Introductory reference to underlying transaction, e.g., This firm has been retained to represent _____ (specify livestock servicer, e.g., Bender Boarding Ranch, Inc.) in the matter of your debt, now past due, in the amount of $_____, for _____(specify livestock service, e.g., stabling your horses during the months of June and July of this year)].

If you are unable or unwilling to pay this debt promptly, _____[specify livestock servicer, e.g., Bender Boarding Ranch, Inc.] proposes to retain _____ [specify livestock, e.g., your mare named Lightning] in satisfaction of the claim, pursuant to the Livestock Service Lien Law (Civil Code §§ 3080-3080.22).

You may accept this proposal by executing and returning, in the envelope enclosed, the attached Release of Interest. Provided you do so [on or before _____[date], _____ [add if notice of proposal, § 24.71 [1], is sent to any person and provided (each of) the person(s) listed below executes a similar release,] _____ [specify livestock servicer, e.g., Bender Boarding Ranch, Inc.] will retain _____ [specify livestock, e.g., your mare], cancel the debt, _____ [insert if appropriate: release _____ (specify livestock, e.g., the other two horses) to you or your agent,] and consider the matter closed.

_____ [Add if notice of proposal, § 24.71 [1], is sent to any person: If (any of) the person(s) listed below should object to this proposal as provided in the Livestock Service Lien Law or refuse to execute a release of interest, then notwithstanding that you may have accepted the proposal, _____ (specify livestock servicer, e.g., Bender Boarding Ranch, Inc.) will, pursuant to that law, proceed to sell your _____ (specify livestock, e.g., horses) and apply the proceeds of sale as provided in that law].

Very truly yours,
_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a model for an attorney's letter to the debtor of a livestock servicer, proposing to enforce the livestock servicer's lien by retaining some or all of the livestock in the client's possession, in lieu of payment [see Civ. Code § 3080.21]. To avoid delay, a copy of a release of interest should accompany the letter [see Civ. Code § 3080.21]. For a form of release, see § 24.72.

For further discussion of acceptance of livestock in lieu of payment, see § 24.13[2].

_____ [inside address]

Dear _____:

Pursuant to the Livestock Service Lien Law (Civil Code Sections 3080-3080.22), you are hereby notified of the proposal of _____ [specify livestock servicer, e.g., Bender Boarding Ranch, Inc.] to satisfy a claim against _____ [name of debtor] by retaining _____ [specify livestock, e.g., a certain mare named Lightning], the property of _____ [name of debtor], which is now in the possession of _____ [specify livestock servicer, e.g., Bender Boarding Ranch, Inc.] and so held subject to a lien for $ _____. A copy of the proposal is attached for your information.

You are being sent this notice because it appears you claim a lien on or security interest in this _____ [specify livestock, e.g., mare] and had on file with the Secretary of State on the date the lien arose a financing statement covering this _____ [specify livestock, e.g., mare].

If you object to the lienholder's proposal, your written statement in objection must be received by us on or before _____ [date 21 days after notice is sent]. If you do not object, please execute and return, in the envelope enclosed, the attached Release of Interest.

Very truly yours,
_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a model for the notice of proposal to retain livestock in satisfaction of a livestock servicer's claim, which notice is required to be sent to other lienholders [*Civ. [2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a release for use by the owner of livestock subject to a lien under the Livestock Service Lien Law, or by any person claiming an interest in the livestock, to release that person's interest pursuant to Civ. Code § 3080.20.

For discussion of release of the debtor's interest in livestock, see § 24.16 [1]; for discussion of the sale of livestock after the owner's release, see § 24.13[5].

[3] Contents of Release

The release must contain all of the following information in simple, nontechnical language [Civ. Code § 3080.20(b)]:

- A description of the livestock covered by the release and the releasing party's interest in the livestock.

- A statement of the amount of the lien to which the livestock is subject

- A statement that the releasing party has a legal right to a hearing in court prior to any sale of the livestock to satisfy the lien.

- A statement by the releasing party that it is giving the lienholder permission to sell the livestock.

- A statement of the extent to which the releasing party gives up any interest it may have in the livestock or in the sale proceeds of the livestock.

- To the extent that the release is not given in full satisfaction of the lienholder's claim or claims against the releasing party, a statement by the releasing party that it is aware that the lienholder may still have a claim against it after the release has been executed.

SUPPORTING STATEMENT

The motion referred to in the foregoing notice seeks an order authorizing sale pursuant to the Livestock Service Lien Law, Civil Code Sections 3080-3080.22, to enforce a livestock service lien. The lienholder seeks to recover $ _____ from the defendant. That amount became due _____ [date].

A sale of the livestock subject to the lien should be held prior to judgment in the above-entitled action because _____ [specify reason, showing either that sale is necessary to prevent possible decline in value or condition of livestock or that sale should be held in interest of equity].

The livestock to be sold consist of _____ [description], having a total estimated fair market value of $ _____.

Plaintiff proposes to sell the livestock _____ [describe manner of sale, including whether public or private, the amount of expected proceeds, and why such manner of sale is commercially reasonable, e.g., at public auction, on consignment to the Matthews Livestock Market in Midland, California, in the usual manner of such sales and on customary terms, with expected proceeds (net after commission and other sale-related deductions) to exceed $_____].

FURTHER NOTICE

To: _____ [name], Defendant:

(1) The order sought by the motion referred to in the foregoing notice will issue if the court finds, after hearing, that the plaintiff has established the probable validity of the claim on which the present action is based, and has satisfied the other requirements set forth in the Livestock Service Lien Law, Civil Code Sections 3080-3080.22.

(2) The hearing on the motion is not held for the purpose of determining the actual validity of the claim, which determination will be made in other proceedings in the present action and will not be affected by the findings made at the hearing on the motion.

(3) If the order authorizing sale is issued, the plaintiff may proceed to sell the livestock in the manner set forth in the order, and the sale proceeds will be deposited with the court pending judgment on the plaintiff's claim.

(4) If you desire to oppose the issuance of the order, you must file with the court and serve on the plaintiff's undersigned attorney a notice of opposition and supporting affidavit as required by Civil Code Section 3080.05 no later than three days prior to the date set for hearing.

(5) At the hearing, the court may deny the plaintiff's motion if you file an undertaking as set forth in Civil Code Section 3080.11.

(6) You may seek the advice of an attorney as to any matters concerning the lienholder's complaint and application. If an attorney is to assist you, he or she should be consulted promptly. You or your attorney or both of you may be present at the hearing.

SUPPORTING DECLARATION OF _____ [name] FOR AN ORDER TO AUTHORIZE SALE OF LIVESTOCK PRIOR TO JUDGMENT

I, _____ [name], declare:

I am _____ [identify declarant, e.g., an attorney at law duly admitted to practice before all the courts of the State of California and the attorney of record herein for _____ (moving party) or other statement as appropriate].

_____ [Testimony as to facts that would entitle lienholder to judgment on claim on which action is brought, e.g., During the months of June and July of this year, I provided usual stable services for the care of three horses owned by defendant, pursuant to defendant's oral promise to pay for such services at the rate of $300 per month per horse, payment to be made within 10 days after receipt of a bill. A bill for $900 was duly sent by mail to defendant on June 30, for the month of June; and a like bill was sent on July 31, for the month of July. No part of the sum now owing, namely $1,800, has been paid; therefore, the present action was commenced to recover the same].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

MEMORANDUM

[Add memorandum supporting motion]

[b] Use of Form

The form in [a], above, is a notice of motion, supporting statement, supporting declaration, and memorandum for use by a livestock servicer, after filing a complaint to collect a debt secured by a lien under the Livestock Service Lien Law, to obtain an order authorizing sale of the subject livestock prior to judgment [see Civ. Code § 3080.03]. For discussion of sale of livestock prior to judgment, see § 24.13[3].

[c] Basis for Motion

A lienholder under the Livestock Service Lien Law may commence a legal action on its claim against the owner of the livestock, or any other person indebted to the lienholder for services to the livestock [Civ. Code § 3080.02(c)]. On the filing of the complaint, or at any time thereafter prior to judgment, the lienholder may apply to the court in which the action was commenced for an order authorizing sale of livestock [Civ. Code § 3080.03].

[d] Contents of Notice

[i] Supporting Statement

The application must include all of the following [Civ. Code § 3080.03(a)]:

- A statement showing that the sale is sought pursuant to the Livestock Service Lien Law to enforce a livestock service lien.

- A statement of the amount the lienholder seeks to recover from the defendant and the date that amount became due.

- A statement setting forth the reasons why a sale should be held prior to judgment (namely, why the sale is necessary to prevent possible decline in the value or condition of the livestock or why the sale should be held in the interest of equity [see Civ. Code § 3080.06(a)(4)]).

- A description of the livestock to be sold and an estimate of the fair market value thereof.

- A statement of the manner in which the lienholder intends to sell the livestock, including (but not limited to) whether the sale will be public or private, the amount of proceeds expected from the sale, and why the sale, if authorized, would conform to the standard of commercial reasonableness (as required by Civ. Code § 3080.16). For discussion of sale requirements and procedure, see § 24.14.

[ii] Special Notice to Defendant

In addition to other information, the notice of application and hearing must inform the defendant of all of the following [Civ. Code § 3080.04]:

- The date, time, and place of the hearing on the application.

- That the order will issue if the court finds, after hearing, that the lienholder has established the probable validity of the claim (on which the present action is based) and has satisfied the other requirements set forth in the Livestock Service Lien Law.

- That the hearing is not held for the purpose of determining the actual validity of the claim, which determination will be made in other proceedings in the action and will not be affected by the findings made at the hearing on the application for the order.

- If the order authorizing sale is issued, that the lienholder may proceed to sell the livestock in the manner set forth in the order, and the sale proceeds will be deposited with the court pending judgment on the lienholder's claim.

- If the defendant desires to oppose the issuance of the order, that the defendant must file with the court and serve on the lienholder (actually, on the lienholder's attorney; see Code Civ. Proc. § 101) a notice of opposition and supporting affidavit as required by Civ. Code § 3080.05 no later than three days prior to the date set for hearing.

- That at the hearing, the court may deny the lienholder's application if the defendant files an undertaking as set forth in Civ. Code § 3080.11.

- That, in these words: "You may seek the advice of an attorney as to any matters concerning the lienholder's complaint and application. If an attorney is to assist you, he or she should be consulted promptly. You or your attorney or both of you may be present at the hearing."

[e] Supporting Affidavit or Declaration

The application must be supported by an affidavit or affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) showing that on the facts presented therein the lienholder would be entitled to a judgment on the claim on which the action is brought [Civ. Code § 3080.03(b)].

[f] Service; Hearing Date

Except as ordered by the court on good cause shown, the defendant must be served with a copy of all of the following at least 10 days prior to the date set for hearing [Civ. Code § 3080.03(c)]:

- A summons and complaint.

- A notice of application and hearing.

- An application and all affidavits filed in support thereof.

A hearing is required [Civ. Code § 3080.03(c); see [4][d], below].

[g] Supporting Memorandum

A memorandum in support of the motion must be served and filed with this notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule

3.1113(a)].

Without notice to defendant, plaintiff moves for an order authorizing sale of the livestock referred to in the complaint, prior to judgment, pursuant to the Livestock Service Lien Law, on the following grounds:

(1) The claim on which the present action is based is a claim giving rise to a lien on which an order authorizing sale may be issued under the Livestock Service Lien Law;

(2) The claim on which the present action is based is probably valid;

(3) The lien sought to be enforced by sale is probably valid;

(4) As more particularly stated in the following supporting statement, _____ [the sale is necessary to prevent possible decline in the value or condition of the livestock or the sale should be held in the interest of equity];

(5) As more particularly stated in the appended declaration, plaintiff will suffer great and irreparable injury if the order is not issued; and

(6) The condition of the livestock will greatly deteriorate, or the value of the livestock will greatly depreciate, or both, before an order authorizing sale can be obtained pursuant to noticed hearing.

SUPPORTING STATEMENT

The foregoing motion seeks an order authorizing sale pursuant to the Livestock Service Lien Law, Civil Code Sections 3080-3080.22, to enforce a livestock service lien. The lienholder seeks to recover $ _____ from the defendant. That amount became due _____ [date].

A sale of the livestock subject to the lien should be held prior to judgment in the above-entitled action because _____ [specify reason, showing either that sale is necessary to prevent possible decline in value or condition of livestock or that sale should be held in interest of equity].

The livestock to be sold consist of _____ [description], having a total estimated fair market value of $ _____, provided they are promptly sold.

Plaintiff proposes to sell the livestock _____ describe manner of sale, including whether public or private, the amount of expected proceeds, and why such manner of sale is commercially reasonable, e.g., at private sale, to the Matthews Farm, Inc., which is ready to buy such livestock at the aforesaid price, provided the sale can be consummated and delivery can be made before _____ [date].

SUPPORTING DECLARATION OF _____ [name] FOR AN ORDER TO AUTHORIZE SALE OF LIVESTOCK PRIOR TO JUDGMENT

I, _____ [name], declare:

I am _____ [identify declarant, e.g., an attorney at law duly admitted to practice before all the courts of the State of California and the attorney of record herein for _____ (moving party) or other statement as appropriate].

_____ [Testimony as to facts that would entitle lienholder to judgment on claim on which action is brought].

_____ [Testimony that plaintiff would suffer great or irreparable injury if order not issued].

_____ [Testimony that condition of livestock will greatly deteriorate or value will greatly depreciate before noticed hearing can be held].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____[signature]
_____ [typed name]

[b] Use of Form

The form in [a], above, is an ex parte motion, incorporating a supporting statement required by the Livestock Service Lien Law [see Civ. Code § 3080.03(a)], and a supporting declaration. The form should be used instead of a notice of motion [see [1], above] in those rare cases when livestock subject to a livestock servicer's lien should be sold promptly, to get maximum value, and the customary or expected delay before a noticed hearing would probably result in great loss of value, or other irreparable injury to the plaintiff.

The motion must be accompanied by a supporting memorandum [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1201(4)].

[c] Attempt to Give Notice

For discussion of the requirement that an ex parte motion be accompanied by a declaration relating to whether notice was given, or could or should not be given, to an adverse party [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1201(3), 3.1204(b)], see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[d] Basis for Motion

An order authorizing sale of livestock subject to a lien prior to judgment without a noticed hearing may be made if it appears from facts shown by affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) that great or irreparable injury would result to the plaintiff if issuance of the order were delayed until the matter could be heard on notice [see Civ. Code § 3080.15(a)].

In addition to a specific statement of the facts showing great or irreparable injury, an ex parte application for an order authorizing sale prior to judgment must include the substantive requirements of a notice motion under Civ. Code § 3080.03[Civ. Code § 3080.15(b)]. For a form for a notice of motion, see § 24.73[1].

[e] Order

The court must examine the ex parte application, supporting affidavits, and other papers on record, and may issue the order sought if it finds all of the following [Civ. Code § 3080.15(c)]:

- The plaintiff is entitled to the order under the substantive provisions of the Livestock Service Lien Law.

- The plaintiff will suffer great and irreparable injury if the order is not issued.

- The condition of the livestock will greatly deteriorate or the value of the livestock will greatly depreciate before an order authorizing sale could be obtained pursuant to noticed hearing.

An order issued on ex parte application must contain such provisions as the court determines to be in the interests of justice and equity to the parties, taking into account the effects on all parties under the circumstances of the case. The court may authorize the lienholder to take any action necessary to preserve the value of the livestock so long as the court has determined that the action would be commercially reasonable under the circumstances [Civ. Code § 3080.15(d)].

[f] Modification or Vacation of Order

On ex parte application of any party affected by an order authorizing sale prior to judgment that was issued on ex parte application, or after a noticed hearing if the court so orders, the court may modify or vacate the order if it determines that the action would be proper under the circumstances [Civ. Code § 3080.15(e)].

[b] Use of Form

The form in [a], above, is a notice of opposition for use by a defendant who desires to oppose a lienholder's motion for an order authorizing sale of livestock prior to judgment [see Civ. Code § 3080.05]. For a form for a motion, see § 24.73[1].

[c] Requirements of Notice of Opposition

If the defendant desires to oppose the issuance of an order authorizing sale of livestock prior to judgment, the defendant must file and serve on the lienholder a notice of opposition no later than three days prior to the date set for hearing. The notice must [Civ. Code § 3080.05(a)]:

- State the grounds on which the defendant opposes the order.

- Be accompanied by an affidavit or affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) supporting any factual issues raised.

- State whether the defendant is prepared to file an undertaking as provided in Civ. Code § 3080.11 [for a form for an undertaking, see § 24.74[3]].

- If the defendant is prepared to file an undertaking, include an estimate of the amount of the undertaking as set forth in Civ. Code § 3080.09, and the defendant's basis for the estimate [for a form for an estimate, see § 24.74[1]].

Except for good cause shown, a defendant is not permitted to oppose the issuance of an order authorizing sale of livestock prior to judgment if the defendant has failed to file a notice of opposition within the time prescribed [Civ. Code § 3080.05(b)].

Neither the failure of the defendant to oppose the issuance of an order authorizing sale, nor the defendant's failure to rebut any evidence produced by the lienholder at the hearing on the motion, constitutes a waiver of any defense to the lienholder's claim in the action or in any other action or have any effect on the right of the defendant to produce or exclude evidence at the trial of the action [Civ. Code § 3080.08(c)].

[4] Order Authorizing Sale of Livestock Prior to Judgment [Civ. Code § 3080.06]

[a] FORM Order Authorizing Sale of Livestock Prior to Judgment [Civ. Code § 3080.06]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	ORDER
vs.	)	Date: _____
_____ [name],	)	Time: _____
Defendant.	)	Dept: _____
	)	Trial Date: _____

The motion of plaintiff for an order authorizing sale of certain livestock referred to in the complaint, prior to judgment, came on regularly for hearing by the court on [date]_____. Plaintiff appeared by counsel, _____ [name]; defendant, having duly filed a notice of opposition, appeared by counsel, _____ [name].

On proof made to the satisfaction of the court that the motion ought to be granted, the court finds as follows:

(1) The claim on which the present action is based is a claim giving rise to a lien on which an order authorizing sale of livestock may be issued under the Livestock Service Lien Law, Civil Code Sections 3080-3080.22.

(2) The plaintiff has established the probable validity of the claim on which the present action is based.

(3) The plaintiff claims a lien on the livestock in question and has established the probable validity of that lien, which the plaintiff now seeks to enforce by the proposed sale.

(4) The sale _____ [is necessary to prevent a possible decline in the value or condition of the livestock or should be held in the interest of equity].

(5) The sale is not sought for a purpose other than the recovery on the claim on which the lien is based.

(6) The sale, if conducted in the manner set forth in the plaintiffs application, would be conducted in a commercially reasonable manner.

IT IS ORDERED that the motion be, and it hereby is, granted and plaintiff shall proceed to sell the following described livestock in the following manner:

(1) The livestock to be sold consist of _____ [describe].

(2) The livestock shall be sold _____ [specify manner of sale].

[EITHER]

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the plaintiff shall deposit the proceeds of sale with the clerk of this court pending final judgment in this action.

[OR]

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the plaintiff shall deduct and retain from the sale proceeds an amount sufficient to compensate the plaintiff for services provided to the livestock from the date when the lien arose (namely, _____ [date]) until the date of sale. [The amount that may be retained by the plaintiff shall not exceed _____(specify dollar amount or formula).] The balance of sale proceeds, if any, remaining after said deduction shall be deposited with the clerk of this court pending final judgment in this action.

[OR]

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the plaintiff shall deposit $ _____ [amount reasonably necessary to satisfy indebtedness secured by lien] of the sale proceeds with the clerk of this court pending final judgment in this action; and plaintiff shall apply and distribute the remainder, if any, as follows:

First, for satisfaction of indebtedness secured by any subordinate lien or security interest in the livestock, if written notification or demand thereof is received by the court or the plaintiff before the proceeds have been distributed;

Next, to the clerk of this court, to remain on deposit pending final judgment in this action;

Provided, before actually distributing such remainder of the sale proceeds (otherwise than by depositing such remainder with the clerk of this court), the plaintiff shall file, and obtain the court's approval of, a schedule of distribution identifying each person to whom any portion of such remainder of the sale proceeds will be distributed, the basis for such person's claim, and the amount to be distributed to such person; and Provided further, the plaintiff may require the holder of a subordinate lien or security interest to seasonably furnish reasonable proof to the court of such subordinate interest before the plaintiff need comply with a demand for satisfaction thereof.

[CONTINUE]

_____ [signature]
Judge of the _____ Court

[b] Use of Form

The form in [a], above, is an order that may be submitted for the court's issuance if the plaintiff's motion for an order authorizing sale of livestock prior to judgment is granted [see Civ. Code § 3080.06]. For a form for a motion to authorize sale of livestock prior to judgment, see § 24.73[1].

[c] Hearing and Findings Supporting Order

At the hearing, the court must consider the showing made by the parties and issue an order authorizing sale of the livestock if it finds all of the following [Civ. Code § 3080.06(a)]:

- The claim on which the lienholder's action is based is a claim giving rise to a lien on which an order authorizing sale may be issued under the Livestock Service Lien Law
- The lienholder has established the probable validity of the claim on which the action is based.
- The lienholder has established the probable validity of the lien sought to be enforced by sale.
- The sale is necessary to prevent a possible decline in the value or condition of the livestock, or the sale should be held in the interest of equity.
- The sale is not sought for a purpose other than the recovery on the claim on which the lien is based.
- The sale, if conducted in the manner set forth in the application, would be conducted in a commercially reasonable manner.

[d] Basis for Findings

The court's findings at the hearing must be made on the basis of the pleadings and other papers in the record [Civ. Code § 3080.08(a)]. On good cause shown, the court may receive and consider additional oral and documentary evidence or points and authorities at the hearing, or it may continue the hearing to allow the production of additional evidence or points and authorities [Civ. Code § 3080.08(a)].

[e] Effect of Findings

The court's findings at the hearing have no effect on the determination of any issue in the action, other than issues relevant to the proceedings authorized by the Livestock Service Lien Law; nor do the findings affect the rights of the defendant in any other action arising out of the same claim [Civ. Code § 3080.08(b)]. The court's determination at the hearing is neither admissible as evidence nor permitted to be referred to at the trial of the action [Civ. Code § 3080.08(b)].

[f] Requirements of Order

The order authorizing sale must [Civ. Code § 3080.06(b)]:

- Identify the livestock for which sale is authorized.
- Specify the manner of sale, including the date, time, place and necessary publication or other notice.
- Except as may be otherwise ordered (see below), direct the lienholder to deposit the proceeds of sale with the clerk of the court pending final judgment in the action.

The court may in its discretion do either of the following [Civ. Code § 3080.06(c)]:

- Authorize the lienholder to deduct and retain funds from the sale proceeds in an amount sufficient to compensate the lienholder for services provided to the livestock from the date that the lien arose until the date of sale, or
- Determine the amount of sale proceeds reasonably necessary to satisfy the indebtedness secured by the lien and order any portion or all of the remaining sale proceeds distributed and applied as set forth in Civ. Code § 3080.16(c)(3).

In either case, the balance of sale proceeds, if any, remaining after the deductions must be deposited with the clerk of the court pending final judgment in the action [Civ. Code § 3080.06(c)].

Application of sale proceeds as set forth in Civ. Code § 3080.16(c)(3) would be for satisfaction of indebtedness secured by any subordinate lien or security interest in the livestock.

[g] Denial of Motion

After hearing, the court may deny the lienholder's application if the court finds that [Civ. Code § 3080.07(a)]:

- A sale is not necessary prior to judgment, and
- The defendant has filed an undertaking pursuant to Civ. Code § 3080.11.

If the defendant has filed an undertaking pursuant to Civ. Code § 3080.11, the order must direct the lienholder to assemble and make the livestock available to defendant or defendant's agent, at a specified date, time, and place [Civ. Code § 3080.07(b)].

For a form for an undertaking, see § 24.74[3].

MEMORANDUM

[Add memorandum supporting motion]

[b] Use of Form

The form in [a], above, is a notice of motion for use by the defendant, in an action by a lien claimant under the Livestock Service Lien Law to obtain an order allowing substitution of an undertaking as security for claim and directing the lien claimant (plaintiff) to restore possession of the livestock to the defendant [see Civ. Code § 3080.09(b)]. By transposing the party designations, the form may also be used by the owner of the livestock who has commenced an action to recover possession from a livestock servicer claiming a lien.

[c] Contents

[i] Supporting Statement

The application must contain the following [Civ. Code § 3080.09(b)]:

- A description of the livestock to be recovered.
- An estimate, and the basis for the estimate, of the fair market value of the livestock.
- A statement identifying and describing the sureties for the undertaking.

[ii] Verification

The application for the order must be executed under oath [Civ. Code § 3080.09(b)].

[d] Basis of Motion

At any time after a livestock servicer has filed a complaint and claimed a lien under the Livestock Service Lien Law, or at any time after the owner of the livestock has commenced an action to recover possession of the livestock, the owner of the livestock may apply to the court in which the action was brought for an order for substitution of an undertaking which meets the requirements of Civ. Code § 3080.11 [Civ. Code § 3080.09(a)]. For a form for an undertaking, see § 24.74[3].

Unless it is included in a notice of opposition to sale, or except for good cause shown, the application must be made on noticed motion [Civ. Code § 3080.09(b)].

[e] Hearing Date

Unless the parties agree otherwise, a hearing must be held on the motion not less than five or more than 10 days after service of the notice of motion [Civ. Code § 3080.09(b)].

[f] Supporting Memorandum

A memorandum in support of the motion must be served and filed with this notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)].

Plaintiff,	)	ORDER
vs.	)	Date: _____
_____ [name],	)	Time: _____
Defendant.	)	Dept: _____
	)	Trial Date: _____

The motion of defendant for an order for substitution of an undertaking for livestock held by plaintiff under claim of lien came on regularly for hearing by the court on _____ [date]. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____[name]; defendant appeared by counsel _____ [name].

On proof made to the satisfaction of the court that the motion ought to be granted, the court finds as follows:

(1) Plaintiff now holds, under claim of lien pursuant to the Livestock Service Lien Law, certain livestock owned by defendant, to wit: _____ [describe livestock in question].

(2) The fair market value of this livestock is $ _____, based on _____ [state basis for finding of fair market value].

(3) Plaintiff can reasonably expect to incur $ _____ in costs to assemble and turn over the livestock to defendant.

(4) An undertaking, with sufficient sureties, in the amount of $ _____ [sum of amounts stated in Paragraphs (2) and (3)] would meet the requirements of Civil Code Section 3080.11.

(5) Defendant is ready, willing, and able to furnish an undertaking in that amount.

IT IS ORDERED that the motion be, and it hereby is, granted and that plaintiff shall release all of the above-described livestock to defendant, or any person whom defendant may designate as agent for the purpose of receiving the livestock, at or before _____ [time] on _____ [date], or on an earlier date if the parties so agree, at _____ [place], or elsewhere if the parties so agree, _____ [describe manner of delivery], or otherwise as the parties may agree;

Provided, plaintiff need not comply with this order unless and until defendant files with the clerk of this court an undertaking by plaintiff, executed by two or more sufficient personal sureties, or by an admitted surety insurer possessing a certificate of authority from the Insurance Commissioner, as provided by Code of Civil Procedure section

995.120(a), to pay the sum of $_____ [amount equal to sum of (1) fair market value of livestock to be recovered and (2) costs to be incurred by plaintiff to assemble and turn over livestock] in the event it is subsequently determined by appropriate judicial proceedings that plaintiff has a valid claim against defendant and a valid lien on the livestock securing such claim;

Provided further, plaintiff has the right to object to the undertaking pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 995.910.

Judge of the _____ Court

[b] Use of Form

The form of order in [a], above, may be submitted for the court's issuance if the defendant's motion for an order for substitution of an undertaking for livestock held by the plaintiff under claim of lien is granted [see Civ. Code § 3080.10].

[c] Requirements of Order

After hearing the defendant's motion, the court may enter an order directing the lienholder to release all or a portion of the livestock to the owner (defendant), or to the owner's agent. The order shall be conditioned on the filing by the owner of an undertaking as set forth in Civ. Code § 3080.11, and must include the following [Civ. Code § 3080.10]:

- The amount of the undertaking required.
- The basis for the court's finding as to the fair market value of the livestock.
- A statement that the lienholder has the right to object to the undertaking pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 995.910.
- A description of the livestock to be substituted.
- A statement of the date, time, place, and manner in which the lienholder is to turn over the livestock to the owner.

For a form of undertaking, see § 24.74 [3]; for a form of notice of motion to object to an undertaking, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

WHEREAS defendant desires to give an undertaking to be substituted for livestock held under claim of lien by plaintiff, as provided by Civil Code Section 3080.11 and related sections of the same code.

[EITHER, if sureties and principal are jointly and severally liable]

NOW, THEREFORE, we, the undersigned sureties [and the principal], do hereby obligate ourselves, jointly and severally, to _____ [name of lienholder] under these statutory obligations, in the sum of $ _____, payable in the event it is determined by appropriate judicial proceedings that plaintiff has a valid claim against defendant and a valid lien on the livestock securing such claim.

[OR, if surety limits liability]

NOW, THEREFORE, the undersigned surety, _____ [name of surety with limited liability] hereby obligates itself to _____[name of lienholder] under these statutory obligations, in the amount of $_____ [amount less than amount of bond or undertaking].

[AND, if amount of bond is based on value of property or interest in property]

The [interest in] property on which the amount of this _____[bond or undertaking] is based, and which is relied on by the sureties as qualifying them on the _____ [bond or undertaking] is as follows: _____ [describe the property or interest].

The estimate of the _____ [principal or beneficiary or court] as to the fair market value of each above-mentioned item or [interest in] property is as follows: _____ [specify fair market value of each property or interest].

The addresses at which the personal sureties and the defendant, as principal, may be served with notices, papers, and other documents are:

_____ [name of surety]	_____ [address]

_____ [name of surety] _____ [address]
_____ [name of principal] _____ [address]

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date and place] _____ [signature of surety]
_____ [date and place] _____ [signature of surety]

[ADD, if appropriate]

Stipulation Limiting Liability of Additional Sureties

The aggregate worth of all sureties executing the _____ [bond or undertaking] herein is $ _____, which is twice the amount of the [bond or undertaking]. Therefore, pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 995.520(d);

IT IS HEREBY STIPULATED AND AGREED by and between the [principal and] sureties hereto, that the liability of _____ [name of surety] on the _____ [bond or undertaking] herein is limited to the worth of _____ [name of surety], as stated in the accompanying declaration of _____ [name of surety].

[b] Use of Form

The form of undertaking in [a], above, may be used to comply with an order allowing substitution of an undertaking for livestock held under claim of lien pursuant to the Livestock Service Lien Law [see Civ. Code § 3080.11]. For a form of order, see § 24.74 [2]. It illustrates a form acceptable for execution by two or more personal sureties. If an admitted surety insurer will execute the undertaking, the admitted surety insurer will customarily provide its own form.

The undertaking must be executed by two or more sufficient personal sureties or by one sufficient admitted surety insurer or by any combination of sufficient personal sureties and admitted surety insurers [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.310]. An undertaking executed by personal sureties must be accompanied by an affidavit (or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) of qualifications of each surety [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.520]. For a declaration setting forth the qualifications of a personal surety, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

[c] Content of Undertaking

An undertaking must be in writing and signed by the sureties under oath. It must include a statement that the sureties are jointly and severally liable on the obligations of the statute providing for the undertaking and should include the addresses at which the principal and sureties may be served with notices, papers, and other documents [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.320(a)].

If the undertaking is executed by two or more personal sureties and the amount of the bond exceeds $10,000, the undertaking may stipulate that the liability of the surety is limited to the worth of the surety stated in the affidavit (or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]), so long as the aggregate worth of all the sureties executing the undertaking is twice the amount of the undertaking. The affidavit must state that the surety is worth less than the amount of the bond [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.520(d)].

If the amount of the undertaking is based on the value of property or an interest in property, the undertaking should contain a description of the property or interest and the principal's estimate of the value of the property or interest. If the undertaking is given pursuant to an estimate of the beneficiary or court, the value so estimated should be included in the undertaking [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.320(a)(3)].

[d] Amount of Undertaking

The undertaking must be an amount equal to the sum of (1) the fair market value of the livestock sought to be recovered, and (2) the costs to be incurred by the lienholder in order to assemble and turn over the livestock [Civ. Code § 3080.11].

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ County, California [or allege other capacity and residence], and raises or maintains dairy cattle within the meaning of Section 57401(d) of the Food and Agriculture Code at _____ [address as set forth in notice of claim of lien].

2. [Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as Does I-_____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants claims an interest in the proceeds sought to be reached by this action or is indebted to plaintiff on the obligation described herein.)]

3. From _____ [date], to _____ [date], on a regular basis, [as defined in Section 57403(b) of the Food and Agriculture Code,] plaintiff, at defendant's request, delivered the following feed and/or materials for the feeding of defendant's dairy cattle to defendant at the address set forth in Paragraph 1: _____ [specify dates, amounts, and items delivered].

[EITHER]

4. [By written agreement, a copy of which is attached as Exhibit "A" and incorporated by reference,] [D]efendant agreed to pay plaintiff for the feed and/or materials delivered by plaintiff to defendant the sum of $_____ per _____.

[OR]

4. The reasonable value of the feed and/or materials delivered by plaintiff to defendant, on the dates of delivery, is $ _____ per _____.

[CONTINUE]

5. On _____ [date], plaintiff filed in the office of the Secretary of State a notice of claim of lien on the proceeds of the milk or milk products produced by defendant's dairy cattle. [A copy of that notice of lien is attached as Exhibit "B" and incorporated by reference.]

6. As of _____ [date], _____ [no or only one] other provider of feed or materials claimed a lien on the proceeds of the milk or milk products produced by defendant's dairy cattle. [Attached as Exhibit "C" and incorporated by reference is a copy of the certificate of the Secretary of State issued pursuant to Section 9523 of the Commercial Code regarding claims of lien filed against the proceeds of defendant's milk or milk products as of _____ [date].]

7. Plaintiff has repeatedly demanded that defendant pay him/her/it for the feed and materials, but defendant has failed and refused, and continues to fail and refuse to make payment [, or any part thereof]. There remains owing from defendant to plaintiff the sum of $_____ [for feed and materials furnished by plaintiff to defendant during the 45-day period beginning _____ (date) and ending _____ (date)].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For the sum of $_____.

2. For interest from and after _____ [date], to date of judgment at the rate of _____ percent per annum;

3. For costs of suit herein incurred [and attorney's fees];

4. For a lien in the amount of the aggregate of items (1) through (3) on the proceeds of the milk and milk products produced by defendant's dairy cattle, and declarations that the lien was perfected as of _____ [date] [and has priority over any interest of defendant(s, and each of them) arising out of a competing dairy cattle supply lien or valid security agreement];

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a complaint for use to foreclose a dairy cattle supply lien [see Food & Agric. Code §§ 57402, 57413].

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges:

- The defendant's residence and status as a person against whom a dairy cattle supply lien may be imposed (Paragraph 1) [see Food & Agric. Code §§ 57401(d), 57402].

- Plaintiff's status as a supplier of feed and materials in whose favor the lien may be imposed (Paragraph 3) [see Food & Agric. Code § 57402].

- An agreement between the parties for the charges or the reasonable value of the feed or material (alternative Paragraphs 4) [see Food & Agric. Code § 57401(e)].

- That plaintiff filed a notice of claim of lien and the date on which it was filed (Paragraph 5).

- That plaintiff's lien is the only such lien of record or that plaintiff otherwise qualifies under Food & Agric. Code § 57402 as one of the two providers who may have dairy cattle supply liens at any one time (Paragraph 6).

- The balance which remains owing from defendant to plaintiff. The lien cannot exceed an amount equal to the reasonable or agreed charges for feed or material provided within a 45-day period (Paragraph 7) [Food & Agric. Code § 57402].

The Dairy Cattle Supply Lien Law includes "the costs of enforcing the lien" in the lien amount Food & Agric. Code § 57402. There is no specific mention of attorney's fees as a cost of enforcing the lien. This should be compared with the Livestock Service Lien Law, which specifies that attorney's fees are included as a cost of enforcing the lien [Civ. Code § 3080.01].

Interest is recoverable as of the date damages were capable of being made certain [see Civ. Code § 3287], or as provided for in any contract of the parties [see Civ. Code § 3289].

[4] Notice

A lien claimant must provide written notice to secured creditors at least 30 days prior to enforcing a claim of lien [Food & Agric. Code § 57412 (secured creditors are those creditors having perfected security interest in dairy cattle, milk, milk products, or the proceeds of any of those things, as of date the notice of claim of lien was filed)].

[5] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of the paper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 70613(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "below the character of the action or proceeding")].

[6] Venue

An action on a contract must be brought in the county in which the obligation is to be performed, in which the contract was entered into, or in which the defendant, or any defendant, resides at the time of the commencement of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. An action to foreclose a lien on personal property based on a statute is to be brought in the county in which one or more of the defendants reside at the time of the commencement of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)], or in which the cause of action arose [Code Civ. Proc. § 393(a)].

A corporation may be sued in the county in which the contract was made or was to be performed, in which the liability arises or the breach occurs, or in which the corporation's principal place of business is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5].

[7] Enforcement

The final judgment is enforced pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 680.010 et seq. [Food & Agric. Code § 57413; for discussion of judgment enforcement, see Ch. 254, Execution and Enforcement of Judgments .

Chapter 25 ANNULMENT (NULLITY) OF MARRIAGE AND RELATED SPOUSAL RIGHTS
PART I. SCOPE

3-25 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 25.01

§ 25.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the nature and effect of a proceeding for nullity of marriage and the grounds for obtaining a nullity judgment [see § 25.10 et seq.]. It also discusses the considerations involved in determining whether a petition for nullity or for marital dissolution is more appropriate under particular circumstances.

Grounds for marital dissolution and legal separation are discussed in Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure .

This chapter also discusses the procedures involved in obtaining a judgment of nullity of marriage [see § 25.30 et seq.]. It includes illustrative, filled-in reproductions of mandatory Judicial Council forms that would be utilized in a nullity proceeding in which both parties file pleadings [see §§ 25.140 -25.142]. This chapter also includes a discussion of the limited circumstances under which a court may divide property acquired by a spouse during a marriage that is adjudged a nullity, and make other orders relating to support, attorney's fees and costs, and child custody.

For a general discussion of procedures and rules in family law proceedings, see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure .

This chapter also discusses the nature and legal effects of putative marriage--that is, a void or voidable marriage that at least one of the parties believes in good faith to be valid [see § 25.50 et seq.]. They summarize the judicial and statutory tests for determining void and voidable marriages, and what is a good faith belief. This analysis summarizes the property and support rights of a putative spouse and the law governing conflicts between legal and putative spouses of the same person when both assert rights in the property accumulated during a putative marriage. This analysis also discusses the termination of a putative marriage and matters related to termination.

For discussion of the rights of parties who do not qualify as putative spouses, because they are cohabiting without a good-faith belief that they are married, see Ch. 387, Nonmarital Cohabitation . For a general discussion of the validity and legal effects of marriage, see Ch. 359, Marriage .

This chapter also discusses the property rights of a putative spouse when the other spouse dies intestate, and the property rights of an "omitted" putative spouse when the other spouse dies testate [see § 25.80 et seq.]. This analysis also discusses the property rights of a putative spouse when a common spouse dies leaving both a putative and a legal spouse.

Chapter 25 ANNULMENT (NULLITY) OF MARRIAGE AND RELATED SPOUSAL RIGHTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Grounds and Procedure for Obtaining Judgment of Nullity
1. Nature of and Grounds for Judgment of Nullity

3-25 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 25.11

§ 25.11 General Nature and Effect of Nullity Proceeding

A party to a marriage that is void or voidable may petition the superior court for a judgment of nullity of marriage [Fam. Code §§ 200, 2250; see also § 25.12 for discussion of void or voidable marriage]. The effect of a judgment of nullity, formerly called an "annulment," is to restore the parties to the status of unmarried persons [Fam. Code § 2212(a)]. Furthermore, under the "relation-back" doctrine, discussed in § 25.13, a judgment of nullity is said to "relate back" and erase the marriage and most, if not all, of its incidents from the outset, subject to certain equitable limitations, whether the marriage is void or voidable. In other words, the parties are treated as if they never were married [see Sefton v. Sefton (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 872, 874, 291 P.2d 439 ; In re Marriage of Goldberg (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 265, 268-271, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 298 (nullity action is not about termination of marriage, but whether marriage ever existed in first instance)].

Unlike a cause of action for marital dissolution, moreover, which abates if a spouse dies before marital status is dissolved, an action for nullity survives the death of a party. Thus, a deceased party's estate administrator can substitute into the action and actually obtain a nullity judgment. Nevertheless, in view of the policy of the law that the death of a party to a marriage does not preclude later resolution of property issues raised in litigation pending before death, property rights of the parties remain subject to adjudication if either a dissolution or nullity proceeding was pending as of the time of a party's death [see In re Marriage of Goldberg (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 265, 276-277, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 298 (action for nullity would determine whether decedent's nieces and nephews or surviving spouse would take decedent's estate)]. In dissolution cases, however, unless the dissolution court has reserved jurisdiction to determine the parties' property rights prior to the death of a party during a pending proceeding, the probate court would ordinarily determine their property rights.

For discussion of the distinction between the effects of a judgment of dissolution and those of a judgment of nullity, see § 25.14. For illustrative filled-in reproductions of Judicial Council forms used in nullity proceedings, see § 25.140 et seq.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Grounds and Procedure for Obtaining Judgment of Nullity
1. Nature of and Grounds for Judgment of Nullity

3-25 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 25.12

§ 25.12 Bases for Judgment of Nullity

[1] "Void" and "Voidable" Marriage Distinction in General

Under the Family Code, a proceeding for judgment of nullity may be based on either a void or a voidable marriage [see Fam. Code § 2250]. In many respects, the distinction between void and voidable marriages is of more technical than practical importance, and the effect of a judgment of nullity in either case depends on fairness to the parties to the marriage and to third parties rather than on the legal distinction between voidness and voidability, as discussed in § 25.13. Nevertheless, void and voidable marriages are treated differently for some purposes [see, e.g., Fam. Code § 2255 (standards for awarding attorney's fees in nullity proceeding depend in part on whether marriage was void or voidable)]. Thus, counsel should be aware of the distinction between the two.

[2] Void Marriages

Two types of marriages are considered void from the beginning--incestuous and bigamous or polygamous marriages, although there are circumstances set forth by statute, involving a spouse who is believed dead, under which a bigamous marriage is treated as voidable rather than void [see Fam. Code §§ 2200, 2201]. For discussion of these grounds, see § 25.15[1].

When a marriage is "void from the beginning," it is a legal nullity. The marriage is regarded by the law as having never existed, and its invalidity may be asserted and shown in any proceeding in which the fact of marriage may be material [Estate of Gregorson (1911) 160 Cal. 21, 26, 116 P. 60] . The fact that the marriage is void and the parties have never been legally married to each other may be shown even though no judgment of nullity of the marriage has ever been rendered, entered, or even sought [Estate of Gregorson (1911) 160 Cal. 21, 26, 116 P. 60 ; see Vickers v. State Bar (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 247, 255, 196 P.2d 10] .

The desirability of bringing a judicial proceeding to declare a marriage void is discussed in § 25.14.

[3] Voidable Marriages

A marriage is merely "voidable," rather than void from the beginning, in the following circumstances [Fam. Code § 2210]:

(1) The party who commences the proceeding, or on whose behalf the proceeding is commenced, was without the capability of consenting to the marriage as provided in Fam. Code § 301 or 302, unless, after attaining the age of consent, the party for any time freely cohabited with the other as husband and wife (see § 25.15[3]).

(2) The spouse of either party was living and the marriage with that spouse was then in force and that spouse (1) was absent and not known to the party commencing the proceeding to be living for a period of five successive years immediately preceding the subsequent marriage for which the judgment of nullity is sought, or (2) was generally reputed or believed by the party commencing the proceeding to be dead at the time the subsequent marriage was contracted (see § 25.15[2][b]).

(3) Either party was of unsound mind, unless the party of unsound mind, after coming to reason, freely cohabited with the other as husband and wife (see § 25.15[4]).

(4) The consent of either party was obtained by fraud, unless the party whose consent was obtained by fraud afterwards, with full knowledge of the facts constituting the fraud, freely cohabited with the other as husband or wife (see § 25.15[5]).

(5) The consent of either party was obtained by force, unless the party whose consent was obtained by force afterwards freely cohabited with the other as husband or wife (see § 25.15[6]).

(6) Either party was, at the time of marriage, "physically incapable of entering into the marriage state," and that incapacity continues and appears to be incurable (see § 25.15[7]).

In contrast to a void marriage, a marriage characterized as voidable is a valid, subsisting marriage both as between the parties to it and in relation to third parties until it is declared a nullity by a judgment of nullity rendered by an appropriate court [Estate of Gregorson (1911) 160 Cal. 21, 26-27, 116 P. 60 ; see Estate of LeMont (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 437, 439, 86 Cal. Rptr. 810] .

The Family Code sets time limits, varying according to the defect that makes the marriage voidable, within which proceedings to obtain a judgment of nullity of a voidable marriage must be commenced [see Fam. Code § 2211]. These limitation periods are discussed in this subpart in connection with each respective ground of voidability. If a nullity proceeding is not commenced within the appropriate time period, the marriage remains valid and the right to have it declared a nullity is lost forever [Estate of Gregorson (1911) 160 Cal. 21, 26, 116 P. 60 ; see Greene v. Williams (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 559, 561, 88 Cal. Rptr. 261] . Thus, the parties to a voidable marriage are married in fact and in law until a judgment of nullity of the marriage is entered. When the judgment is entered, its effect is to restore the parties to the status of unmarried persons [Fam. Code § 2212(a); Estate of LeMont (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 437, 439, 86 Cal. Rptr. 810] .

A. Grounds and Procedure for Obtaining Judgment of Nullity
1. Nature of and Grounds for Judgment of Nullity

3-25 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 25.13

§ 25.13 Doctrine of Relation Back

[1] Applicability to Voidable Marriage

A judgment of nullity, whether of a void or of a voidable marriage, is said to "relate back" and erase the marriage and most, if not all, of its incidents from the outset [see Sefton v. Sefton (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 872, 874, 291 P.2d 439] . Thus, subject to the limitations discussed in § 25.13[2], although a voidable marriage is valid until a judgment of nullity of the marriage is entered, from that time on it is as if the marriage had never taken place [Millar v. Millar (1917) 175 Cal. 797, 807, 167 P. 394 ; see Whealton v. Whealton (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 656, 661, 63 Cal. Rptr. 291, 432 P.2d 979] . For this reason, property jointly acquired by the parties after their marriage but before entry of the judgment of nullity of marriage is not regarded as community property, although there may be circumstances under which the property is deemed to be "quasi-marital" property and divided as if it were community property [Millar v. Millar (1917) 175 Cal. 797, 807, 167 P. 394 ; see Fam. Code § 2251; see also § 25.32[3]].

[2] Limitations on Application of Doctrine

The "relation back" doctrine is in reality a legal fiction fashioned by the courts to do substantial justice as between the parties to a voidable marriage [Sefton v. Sefton (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 872, 875, 291 P.2d 439] . Therefore, limitations exist on the doctrine to protect the rights of parties to the marriage or of innocent third parties [Sefton v. Sefton (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 872, 877, 291 P.2d 439 ; Interinsurance Exchange v. Velji (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 310, 316, 118 Cal. Rptr. 596] .

In general, courts have declined to apply the doctrine when its application will result in substantial injustice to one of the parties to the marriage or if its application will unjustly affect an innocent third party's rights [Sefton v. Sefton (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 872, 875, 291 P.2d 439 ; Estate of Birch (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 776, 780, 189 Cal. Rptr. 796 ; Interinsurance Exchange v. Velji (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 310, 316, 118 Cal. Rptr. 596] . For example, a judgment of nullity of a woman's voidable second marriage was held not to relate back and erase the voidable second marriage so as to make the woman's first husband again liable for, and delinquent in, the payment of alimony awarded to her in the divorce decree dissolving her first marriage [Sefton v. Sefton (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 872, 876, 291 P.2d 439] . Similarly, it has been held that a judgment of nullity of a voidable marriage does not relate back and remove a party to the marriage from an exclusionary clause of an insurance policy as to an accident occurring after the marriage was performed and before the judgment of nullity was rendered or entered [Interinsurance Exchange v. Velji (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 310, 316-317, 118 Cal. Rptr. 596] .

The doctrine has also been held inapplicable when a decedent's first wife claimed that a Mexican divorce was invalid after both parties had subsequently remarried other persons. In that instance, the court stated that remarriage estops the party entering into it from denying the validity of a previous divorce and that the annulment of the wife's second marriage did not preclude estoppel because she had remarried in reliance on the Mexican judgment. Therefore, the first wife was estopped from claiming that she was the decedent's surviving spouse, and the doctrine of relation back was inapplicable [Estate of Birch (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 776, 780, 189 Cal. Rptr. 796] .

The doctrine will also not be applied to void a stepparent adoption when the marriage of the parent and stepparent is later found to be voidable [Adoption of Jason R. (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 11, 16, 151 Cal. Rptr. 501] .

[3] Estoppel Doctrine Applied to Void Marriage

Because a void marriage is "void from the beginning," it may be thought that the doctrine of "relation back" would automatically apply in all instances to a judgment of nullity of a void marriage [see Fam. Code §§ 2200, 2201]. However, the courts have adopted an estoppel doctrine that prevents a party from asserting that his or her marriage is void even though it has been terminated by a judgment of nullity, when the rights of an innocent third party would be unjustly injured [see Stoner v. Nethercutt (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 667, 670, 87 Cal. Rptr. 659 ; Fry v. Fry (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 169, 171-172, 85 Cal. Rptr. 126 ; Berkely v. Berkely (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 872, 873-874, 75 Cal. Rptr. 294] .

In two cases applying the estoppel doctrine, a divorced wife was seeking payment of alimony ordered to be paid until she "remarried." In both cases, after entry of the divorce decree awarding her the alimony, the wife entered another marriage that was void because the second husband was already married to another woman [Fry v. Fry (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 169, 171-172, 85 Cal. Rptr. 126 ; Berkely v. Berkely (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 872, 873-874, 75 Cal. Rptr. 294] .

3-25 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 25.14

§ 25.14 Choosing Between Dissolution and Nullity of Marriage

In some ways, a judgment of nullity of marriage resembles a judgment of dissolution of marriage. Both the judgment of dissolution and the judgment of nullity restore the parties to unmarried status [see Fam. Code §§ 2212(a), 2300]. A judgment of dissolution of marriage, just as a judgment of nullity, terminates the marriage and generally adjudicates the entire controversy between the parties arising from their marriage [Figoni v. Figoni (1931) 211 Cal. 354, 357, 295 P. 339 ; see Grubaugh v. Grubaugh (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 8, 10, 20 Cal. Rptr. 554] .

Thus, a spouse who is seeking to terminate an invalid marriage will generally have a choice of remedies because irreconcilable differences necessary for dissolution will ordinarily also exist with respect to a marriage that could be terminated through nullity proceedings [see Fam. Code § 2310(a); see also discussion in Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure]. Nevertheless, in those situations in which the party seeking to terminate the marriage is not a party to the marriage [see Fam. Code §§ 2211(a)(2), (b)(2), (c)], dissolution will not be an available remedy, leaving aside instances in which the grounds for dissolution are incurable insanity [see Fam. Code § 2332].

In determining whether to petition for nullity or dissolution of marriage, there are a number of competing considerations, including the following:

(1) If counsel anticipates opposition to the nullity petition, it may be preferable to avoid a contested hearing on the issue of whether the marriage is valid by seeking a dissolution, the grounds for which are easier to establish unilaterally.

(2) Even if there is no opposition, the party seeking a judgment of nullity will still be required to adduce evidence establishing the grounds for such a judgment.

(3) In a nullity proceeding, only a putative spouse (a spouse who believed in good faith that the marriage was valid) is entitled to support and a division of the "quasi-marital" property [see Fam. Code §§ 2251-2254; see also § 25.32[1], [3]]. If it is uncertain whether the party who seeks the nullity qualifies as a putative spouse, it might be better not to petition for a nullity, but rather to initiate dissolution proceedings, in which the issues for resolution regarding the marriage and property are framed differently. On the other hand, from the petitioner's viewpoint, if the respondent would not be found to be a putative spouse, he or she may be precluded from receiving spousal support or an equal share of the "quasi-marital" property.

(4) Attorney's fees and costs may be awarded in a proceeding for judgment of nullity only to a party who meets the statutory requirements for a putative spouse [Fam. Code § 2255; see § 25.32[4]].

(5) If a party might be guilty of either the crime of bigamy or of incest [see Penal Code § 281 et seq.], a petition for a judgment of nullity will bring the facts to the attention of the court, whereas a petition for dissolution generally will not.

(6) A judgment of nullity terminates the marriage as soon as the judgment is entered, while a judgment of dissolution does not become effective for purposes of terminating the marriage until the expiration of a waiting period [see Fam. Code § 2339; see also Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure].

(7) The residence requirements for a judgment of dissolution of six months in the state and three months in the county prior to filing the petition are not applicable in a nullity proceeding [see Fam. Code § 2320; see also Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Grounds and Procedure for Obtaining Judgment of Nullity
1. Nature of and Grounds for Judgment of Nullity

3-25 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 25.15

§ 25.15 Circumstances Giving Rise to Void or Voidable Marriage

[1] Incestuous Marriage

[a] Marriage Void

Marriages between parents and children, between ancestors and descendants of every degree, between brothers and sisters of the half as well as the whole blood, and between uncles and nieces or aunts and nephews, are incestuous and void from the beginning whether the relationship is legitimate or illegitimate [Fam. Code § 2200]. Marriages of uncles and nieces of the half-blood (uncle was half brother of niece's mother) and aunts and nephews of the half-blood are apparently not prohibited because the governing statute specifically prohibits marriages between half-blood brothers and sisters but is silent as to other half-blood relatives [see People v. Baker (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 44, 46-50, 69 Cal. Rptr. 595, 442 P.2d 675 (criminal incest case construing former Civ. Code § 59)]. For additional discussion of the invalidity of incestuous marriages, see Ch. 359, Marriage .

[b] Adopted Persons

The Family Code provides that an adoptee and his or her adoptive parents have the legal relationship of parent and child and all the rights and duties of that relationship [see Fam. Code §§ 8616, 9305]. Given this statutory requirement, it seems that a marriage between an adoptee and the adoptive parent would be void from the beginning as incestuous, just as a marriage between blood relatives [see Fam. Code § 2200; but see People v. Kaiser (1897) 119 Cal. 456, 457, 51 P. 702 ("daughter" in indictment for incestuous intercourse, as not including an adopted daughter, a stepdaughter, or a daughter in law)].

[c] No Limitation Period

Marriages that are void from the beginning as incestuous can be attacked during the lifetime of both parties or after the death of either of them [Estate of Karau (1938) 26 Cal. App. 2d 606, 607, 80 P.2d 108] .

[2] Bigamous or Polygamous Marriage

[a] Marriage Void

A subsequent marriage is illegal and void from the beginning when entered into by a person during the life of his or her former spouse, unless (1) the former marriage has been dissolved or adjudged a nullity before the date of the subsequent marriage [Fam. Code § 2201(a)(1)]; or (2) the former spouse is either (a) absent, and not known to the person to be living for five successive years immediately preceding the subsequent marriage; or (b) generally reputed or believed by the person to be dead at the time of the subsequent marriage [Fam. Code § 2201(a)(2)]. In the case of exception (2) (former spouse absent and believed to be dead), the marriage is voidable and is valid until its nullity is adjudged pursuant to Family Code Section 2210(b) (grounds for nullity) [Fam. Code § 2201(b)], as discussed in § 25.15[7][a].

For additional discussion of the invalidity of bigamous marriages, see discussion in Ch. 359, Marriage .

[b] Marriage Voidable

[i] Statutory Rule

A subsequent marriage is voidable and may be adjudged a nullity when the former spouse of either party was living, the marriage with that former spouse was then in force, and one of the following conditions existed at the time of the subsequent marriage [Fam. Code § 2210(b)]:

(1) The former spouse was absent and not known to the party commencing the proceeding to be living for a period of five successive years immediately preceding the subsequent marriage; or

(2) The former spouse was generally reputed or believed by the party to be dead at the time the subsequent marriage was contracted.

[ii] "Absent and Not Known to Be Living"

The meaning of the requirement that the spouse must be "absent and not known to be living" for the marriage to be voidable rather than void has been interpreted strictly. For example, if a party deserts his or her spouse and remarries after five years, the subsequent marriage is void, not voidable, in the absence of evidence showing that the deserting spouse actually believed the deserted spouse to be dead. There is no presumption that the deserted spouse is dead, even though there has been no communication between the spouses since the desertion. A person who deserts his or her spouse has a duty to keep the deserted spouse advised of his or her whereabouts, and it would be a legal inconsistency to predicate a presumption as to the death of a spouse on an absence resulting from the other spouse's desertion and failure to communicate [People v. Glab (1936) 13 Cal. App. 2d 528, 533-534, 57 P.2d 588] .

In another case, a husband who married and deserted his wife in Missouri and remarried five years later in California was presumed not to believe the former wife to be dead, and, because there was no evidence of any belief in any manner concerning the death of the former wife, the subsequent marriage was void, not voidable [Estate of Richards (1901) 133 Cal. 524, 528, 65 P. 1034 (construing former Civ. Code § 61)].

The deserted spouse, on the other hand, does not have a duty to conduct inquiries for the absent spouse, and a subsequent marriage after five years is voidable, and not void, even though the spouse who remarried may conceivably have been able to ascertain that the absent spouse was alive by inquiries [Estate of Perry (1922) 58 Cal. App. 420, 425, 208 P. 987 (decided under former Civ. Code § 61)]. However, the deserted spouse must have a good-faith belief that the missing spouse is dead [Wilcox v. Wilcox (1916) 171 Cal. 770, 776-777, 155 P. 95 ; see Goff v. Goff (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 23, 28, 125 P.2d 848 (both decided under former Civ. Code § 61)]. Thus, despite the statutory language that the marriage is voidable if the absent spouse is "not known to [the other spouse] to be living," testimony by a deserted wife that she did not know whether the husband who had deserted her was dead or alive was held not sufficient, and her subsequent marriage was void, not voidable [Neureither v. Workmen's Comp. App. Bd. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 429, 432, 93 Cal. Rptr. 162 (decided under former Civ. Code § 61)].

[c] Estoppel

A party seeking a judgment of nullity on the grounds that a prior marriage existed at the time of the subsequent marriage may be estopped in certain situations. The invalidity of a dissolution or divorce cannot be raised by a party who has procured the decree (or a party who has remarried in reliance thereon) or by one who has aided another to procure the decree so that the latter will be free to remarry [Rediker v. Rediker (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 796, 805, 221 P.2d 1 ; Estate of Birch (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 776, 780, 189 Cal. Rptr. 796] . The estopped party cannot obtain a judgment of nullity of a second marriage on the ground that a first marriage was never properly terminated. Thus, a husband could not obtain a judgment of nullity of a second marriage on the ground that his wife's prior marriage was still valid when he helped her obtain an invalid Mexican divorce and married her in reliance on that divorce [Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 213-222, 317 P.2d 613 ; Schotte v. Schotte (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 28, 30-31, 21 Cal. Rptr. 220] .

Furthermore, a party who marries a person knowing all the circumstances surrounding that person's divorce or dissolution, even though he or she did not help procure the divorce or dissolution, is estopped from attacking the validity of that divorce or dissolution by a proceeding for a judgment of nullity of a second marriage [Dietrich v. Dietrich (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 497, 505, 261 P.2d 269 , cert. denied, 346 U.S. 938 (1954) ; Smith v. Smith (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 46, 48-49, 320 P.2d 100] . Thus, one court of appeal has held that a husband is equitably estopped to deny that he was validly married to his wife on dissolution of the marriage when he went through a formal marriage ceremony with her, knowing that her divorce from her first husband was not final, continued to live with her for 15 years, had two children with her, and waited 15 years to attempt to assert the invalidity of the marriage [In re Marriage of Recknor (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 539, 544-547, 187 Cal. Rptr. 887] .

In a probate proceeding to determine heirship, a court of appeal held that a first wife was not estopped to attack the validity of a Mexican divorce procured by the decedent in order to marry the second wife when the first wife knew of the divorce but did not acquiesce in it or act in reliance on it [Estate of Atherley (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 758, 764-765, 119 Cal. Rptr. 41] . In contrast, in Estate of Birch, the court held that when the decedent and his first wife obtained a Mexican divorce and both subsequently remarried other persons, the first wife was estopped from asserting that the Mexican divorce was invalid and that she was the decedent's surviving spouse. It was reasoned that remarriage estopped the party entering into it from denying the validity of previous divorce and that the annulment of the wife's second marriage did not preclude estoppel, since she remarried in reliance on the Mexican judgment. Also, the children of the decedent and the first wife, being in privity with her, were similarly estopped from asserting the invalidity of the marriage [Estate of Birch (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 776, 780, 189 Cal. Rptr. 796] .

When there has been no prior divorce, valid or invalid, there is no basis for estoppel, and a person who married with knowledge that his or her first marriage was still in existence can have the second marriage adjudged a nullity [Anderson v. Anderson (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 265, 266, 60 P. 2d 290] .

[d] Parties and Statute of Limitations

By statute, a proceeding to obtain a judgment of nullity of a voidable, bigamous marriage must be commenced by either party during the life of the other or by the former husband or wife of the bigamous spouse [Fam. Code § 2211(b)(1)]. The statutory language is not clear as to whether the former husband or wife of the bigamous spouse may commence such an action after one of the parties to the bigamous marriage has died [see Fam. Code § 2211(b)(1)].

If the bigamous marriage is void, rather than voidable, there is no statute expressly limiting the time within which a proceeding to obtain a judgment of nullity of such a marriage must be brought. Since the marriage is void from its beginning, the action to have it so declared may be brought at any time during the life of the parties [Parmann v. Parmann (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 67, 68-69 ,]. The marriage may also be collaterally attacked both before and after the death of either party [Estate of Karau (1938) 26 Cal. App. 2d 606, 607, 80 P.2d 108] .

[e] Proof

A second (ceremonial) marriage is presumed valid [see Evid. Code § 663], and the party seeking to establish that such a marriage is void as bigamous has the burden of proof [Vargas v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 470, 473, 88 Cal. Rptr. 281 ; see Estate of Smith (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 74, 81, 106 Cal. Rptr. 774] . If the issue is whether the first marriage was ever dissolved or declared a nullity [see Fam. Code § 2201(a)(1)], the party seeking to have the second marriage declared void will have to prove that the first marriage was never dissolved. The best proof of this fact is a record search in every jurisdiction in which either party had ever resided since the first marriage to establish that no dissolution or judgment of nullity was ever granted in any such jurisdiction of either party of the first marriage. A record search is not the only permissible proof of the negative fact; any form of reasonable evidence is sufficient if it convinces the trier of fact [Vargas v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 470, 474-475, 88 Cal. Rptr. 281 ; see Estate of Atherley (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 758, 766, 119 Cal. Rptr. 41] . Testimony by all parties involved that the only attempt to dissolve the first marriage was an invalid Mexican divorce has been held sufficient to establish that the first marriage was still valid at the time of the second marriage [Estate of Atherley (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 758, 766, 119 Cal. Rptr. 41] .

If the issue is whether a deserted spouse had a good-faith belief that his or her spouse was dead, making the bigamous marriage voidable rather than void, the deserted spouse will have to establish a good faith belief. The cases have not delineated the elements of such a belief, but it would appear that facts such as the following might be sufficient:

(1) The absent spouse disappeared under circumstances that make it likely he or she is dead, such as being lost at sea or missing in action during wartime.

(2) The deserted spouse heard from relatives or friends that the absent spouse was dead.

(3) The deserted spouse made a reasonable search for the other spouse but could find no evidence that he or she was alive.

If the respondent is claiming that the petitioner is estopped to challenge the validity of the termination of the first marriage (see § 25.15[2][c]), the respondent will have to establish the petitioner's participation in, or knowledge of the facts of, the allegedly invalid termination of the first marriage.

[3] Minority

[a] Marriage Voidable

Except as discussed below, a marriage is voidable and may be adjudged a nullity when the party who commences the proceeding, or on whose behalf the proceeding is commenced, was under the age of legal consent (generally 18 years), as provided in Family Code Sections 301 or 302, at the time of the marriage [see Fam. Code § 2210(a); see also discussion in Ch. 359, Marriage]. To establish the voidability of the marriage on this ground, that party must prove that he or she was under the age of 18 years on the date of the marriage and that one or both of the following conditions existed [see Fam. Code §§ 301, 302, 2210(a)]:

(1) The party's parent or guardian did not consent to the marriage in the manner provided by statute; or

(2) A court order granting permission for the marriage was not obtained.

The marriage cannot be adjudged a nullity if, after attaining the age of consent, the party commencing the proceeding, or on whose behalf the proceeding is commenced, for any time freely cohabitated with the other as husband and wife [Fam Code § 2210(a)]. Nor can the marriage be adjudged a nullity on the petition of the spouse who was over 18 at the time of the marriage [Campbell v. Campbell (1926) 78 Cal. App. 745, 747-750, 248 P. 762 ; see Fam Code § 2210(a)].

The procedures to obtain a valid underage marriage are discussed in Ch. 359, Marriage .

[b] Misrepresentation of Minor's Age

A minor who misrepresents his or her age in order to obtain a marriage license can have the marriage annulled despite his or her knowing misrepresentation [Ruiz v. Ruiz (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 58, 59-60, 85 Cal. Rptr. 674 (decided under former Civ. Code § 82)] as can the minor's parents [Vaughan v. Gideon (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 158, 161-162, 132 P.2d 529 (decided under former Civ. Code § 82)]. A parent can also have the marriage of a minor child annulled if the parent's consent to the marriage was obtained by fraudulent misrepresentations that were material to obtaining the consent and were relied upon by the parent. Applying this rule, it has been held that misrepresentations by a minor and his intended wife that the minor was the father of the intended wife's unborn child and that the minor and the intended spouse had been married in Mexico were sufficient to void the parent's consent and allow the marriage to be annulled [Turner v. Turner (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 636, 639-642, 334 P.2d 1011 (decided under former Civ. Code § 82)].

[c] Lack of Parental Consent

A minor who marries without parental consent can have the marriage annulled even though the parents consent and acquiesce to the marriage after the ceremony and before the minor reaches majority [West v. West (1923) 62 Cal. App. 541, 542-543, 217 P. 567 , modified, (1924) 68 Cal. App. 258, 228 P. 1115 (decided under former Civ. Code § 82)].

The marriage of a minor without a parent's consent cannot be annulled by the parent after the death of the minor because the marriage has already been terminated by death [see Fam. Code § 310]. Neither the minor nor the parent has a property right to annul the marriage that survives the death of the minor [Greene v. Williams (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 559, 561-564, 88 Cal. Rptr. 261 (decided under former Civ. Code § 82)], even though the marriage affects the disposition of the minor's estate.

In the case of an underage marriage that occurs outside of California without parental or judicial consent and that is valid under the laws of the state where it was performed, the marriage may not be adjudged a nullity on the ground of minority and will be valid in California [McDonald v. McDonald (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 457, 459, 58 P.2d 163 (decided under former Civ. Code § 82)].

[d] Parties and Statute of Limitations

A proceeding to obtain a judgment of nullity brought by the underage party must be commenced within four years after reaching the age of 18 [see Fam. Code § 2211(a)(1)]. The proceeding can also be commenced by a parent, guardian, conservator, or other person having charge of the minor at any time before the minor reaches the age of 18 [Fam. Code § 2211(a)(2)].

[4] Unsound Mind

[a] Marriage Voidable

A marriage is voidable and may be adjudged a nullity if, at the time of the marriage, either party was of unsound mind, unless the party, after coming to reason, freely cohabited with the other as husband or wife [Fam. Code § 2210(c)]. This ground deals with a mental condition existing at the time of marriage [see Fam. Code § 2210(c)]; a dissolution or legal separation may be obtained based on incurable insanity that occurs after the parties are married [see Fam. Code § 2310(b); see also Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure].

To furnish grounds for a judgment of nullity, the unsoundness of mind must be such that the party was incapable of understanding the nature of the marriage contract and the duties and responsibilities that it creates [Dunphy v. Dunphy (1911) 161 Cal. 380, 383, 119 P. 512 (decided under former Civ. Code § 82)]. Thus, evidence that the husband did not know he was being married and thereafter did not know that he was married was sufficient to support a judgment of nullity [McClure v. Donovan (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 717, 732-735, 205 P.2d 17 (decided under former Civ. Code § 82)]. Likewise, if a person is so intoxicated that he or she does not understand the nature of the marriage ceremony or its legal effect, the marriage can be annulled [Dobson v. Dobson (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 13, 15, 193 P.2d 794 ; see Dunphy v. Dunphy (1911) 161 Cal. 380, 386-389, 119 P. 512 (both decided under former Civ. Code § 82)].

[b] Parties and Statute of Limitations

An action to obtain a judgment of nullity based on unsound mind may be brought by either the "party injured" or a relative or conservator of the party of unsound mind at any time before the death of either party [Fam. Code § 2211(c)]. The party injured can be the party of unsound mind or the party who married the person of unsound mind [see Goldman v. Goldman (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 103, 336 P.2d 952 (decided under former Civ. Code § 82); Briggs v. Briggs (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 312, 325 P.2d 219 (actions brought by spouse of party with unsound mind, but grounds not established); Vitale v. Vitale (1957) 147 Cal. App. 2d 665, 305 P.2d 690 (action brought by party claiming unsound mind)].

[c] Proof

The degree of mental capacity at the precise time the marriage is solemnized controls its validity [see Fam. Code § 2210(c)], and a marriage contracted during a lucid interval is valid [Briggs v. Briggs (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 312, 320, 325 P.2d 219 (decided under former Civ. Code § 82)]. While the mental condition on the date of marriage is the issue, that mental condition can be established by evidence of the condition before and after that day [Vitale v. Vitale (1957) 147 Cal. App. 2d 665, 669-670, 305 P.2d 690 (decided under former Civ. Code § 82)]. However, a finding of unsound mind is not supported when the only relevant evidence of incapacity was based on the spouse's condition six months and more after the date of the marriage [Goldman v. Goldman (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 103, 109-110, 336 P.2d 952 (decided under former Civ. Code § 82)].

[5] Fraud

[a] Marriage Voidable

A marriage is voidable and may be adjudged a nullity if, at the time of the marriage, the consent of either party was obtained by fraud, unless the party whose consent was obtained by fraud afterwards, with full knowledge of the facts constituting the fraud, freely cohabited with the other party as husband and wife [Fam. Code § 2210(d); see In re Marriage of Liu (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 143, 155-156, 242 Cal. Rptr. 649] . For discussion of the cohabitation exception, see § 25.15[5][f].

A marriage may be annulled for fraud only if the fraud relates to a matter that the state deems vital to the marriage relationship [In re Marriage of Ramirez (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 751, 757, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 180 ; In re Marriage of Meagher & Maleki (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1, 6, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663] . Because of its peculiar position as a silent but active party in annulment proceedings, the state is particularly interested in seeing that marriages are not declared void as the result of fraud unless the evidence in support of the fraud is both clear and convincing. The fraud relied on must directly affect the marriage relationship [In re Marriage of Ramirez (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 751, 757, 81 Cal. Rptr.

3d 180 ; In re Marriage of Meagher & Maleki (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1, 6-7, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663] . Annulments on the basis of fraud are generally granted only in cases in which the fraud relates in some way to the sexual or procreative aspects of marriage [In re Marriage of Ramirez (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 751, 757, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 180 ; In re Marriage of Meagher & Maleki (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1, 7, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663 ; see § 25.15[5][b]]. In the absence of fraud involving a party's intentions or abilities with respect to these aspects of marriage, neither party may question the validity of the marriage on the ground of reliance on the express or implied representations of the other party concerning such matters as character, habits, chastity, business or social standing, financial worth or prospects, or matters of a similar nature [In re Marriage of Ramirez (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 751, 757, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 180 ; In re Marriage of Meagher & Maleki (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1, 8, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663 ; see § 25.15[5][c]].

[b] Effect of Concealment of Material Facts

A marriage can be adjudged a nullity if one party conceals from the other party a fact material to the other party's consent to the marriage that defeats the essential purpose of the spouse in consenting to the marriage [In re Marriage of Ramirez (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 751, 757, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 180 ; Douglass v. Douglass (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 867, 868-869, 307 P.2d 674] . Marriages have been annulled where one spouse concealed the fact of her sterility [see Vileta v. Vileta (1942) 53 Cal. App. 2d 794, 795-796, 128 P.2d 376 ; Aufort v. Aufort (1935) 9 Cal. App. 2d 310, 311, 49 P.2d 620 (both decided under former Civ. Code § 82)], the fact that she was pregnant by another man [see Hardesty v. Hardesty (1924) 193 Cal. 330, 332-333, 223 P. 951 (decided under former Civ. Code § 82)], the fact that she was not yet finally divorced [see Crawford v. Summers (1936) 12 Cal. App. 2d 533, 535-536, 55 P.2d 936 (decided under former Civ. Code § 82)], and the fact that he had been convicted of grand theft and was a fugitive as a parole violator [see Douglass v. Douglass (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 867, 868-870, 307 P.2d 674 (decided under former Civ. Code § 82)].

Fraud sufficient to justify a judgment of nullity can also be established by proof that one spouse concealed from the other his or her intention to act in a certain way after marriage, when the concealed intention defeats the purpose of the marriage relationship. For example, the concealment of one spouse's intention never to live with the other spouse is a sufficient fraud to justify an annulment [Handley v. Handley (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 742, 746-747, 3 Cal. Rptr. 910 ; but see Bruce v. Bruce (1945) 71 Cal. App. 2d 641, 644, 163 P.2d 95 (decided under former Civ. Code § 82)], as is the concealment of an intention never to engage in sexual intercourse with the other spouse [Millar v. Millar (1917) 175 Cal. 797, 801-805, 167 P. 394 ; Rathburn v. Rathburn (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 568, 573-574, 292 P.2d 274 (both decided under former Civ. Code § 82); see In re Marriage of Liu (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 143, 156, 242 Cal. Rptr. 649], or the concealment of an intention not to have children despite a promise to do so [Maslow v. Maslow (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 237, 242, 255 P.2d 65 (decided under former Civ. Code § 82)]. An annulment has been granted to a spouse who proved that the other spouse concealed an intention not to be faithful and to continue a sexual relationship with another [In re Marriage of Ramirez (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 751, 758-759, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 180 ; Schaub v. Schaub (1945) 71 Cal. App. 2d 467, 476-478, 162 P.2d 966 (decided under former Civ. Code § 82)].

In two cases involving immigrants, annulments were granted on the basis of evidence that the alien husband married to obtain a different immigration status and concealed his intention to desert his wife and not to remain faithful to her, as well as his intention not to enter into a religious marriage ceremony despite a promise to do so, when the parties never cohabited and never consummated the marriage because of the misrepresentation [see In re Marriage of Rabie (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 917, 921-923, 115 Cal. Rptr. 594 ; Lamberti v. Lamberti (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 482, 485, 77 Cal. Rptr. 430 ; cf. In re Marriage of Liu (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 143, 156, 242 Cal. Rptr. 649 (wife found to have married for immigration purposes and never intended to engage in sexual relations with husband)]. For additional discussion of marriages involving aliens, see Ch. 359, Marriage .

[c] Insufficient Misrepresentations

The following misrepresentations made by a spouse prior to marriage have been held insufficient to justify an annulment: the wife, prior to the marriage, was of a chaste and moral character [Barnes v. Barnes (1895) 110 Cal. 418, 421-422, 42 P. 904 ; Sutton v. Sutton (1936) 12 Cal. App. 2d 355, 356, 55 P.2d 261 (both decided under former Civ. Code § 82)]; the wife's child was a product of a legitimate marriage [Foy v. Foy (1943) 57 Cal. App. 2d 334, 335, 134 P.2d 29 (decided under former Civ. Code § 82)]; the spouse possessed a certain wealth and social position [Marshall v. Marshall (1931) 212 Cal. 736, 738 ; Mayer v. Mayer (1929) 207 Cal. 685, 695, 279 P. 783 (both decided under former Civ. Code § 82)]; and the wife was pregnant by the husband [Gondouin v. Gondouin (1910) 14 Cal. App. 285, 287-288, 111 P. 756 (decided under former Civ. Code § 82)].

A husband's misrepresentations about his financial status, which were intended to fraudulently induce his wife to invest in a business venture with him, to enable him to gain control of her assets, was not the type of fraud that constitutes an adequate basis for granting the wife an annulment [In re Marriage of Meagher & Maleki (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1, 9, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663].

Similarly, one court of appeal held that evidence of a husband's alleged drinking problem, poor grooming, and refusal to seek employment was insufficient to support a finding of "fraud" that would support an annulment of marriage [In re Marriage of Johnston (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 499, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 253].

[d] Parties and Statute of Limitations

A proceeding to obtain a judgment of nullity based on fraud must be commenced by the party whose consent was obtained by fraud within four years after the discovery of the facts constituting the fraud [Fam. Code § 2211(d)].

Under general fraud rules, the statute of limitations commences to run when a person has notice or information of circumstances to put a reasonable person on inquiry or has the opportunity to obtain relevant knowledge from sources open to his or her investigation [see Casualty Ins. Co. v. Rees Inv. Co. (1971) 92 Cal. Rptr. 857]. However, there is an exception when the parties are in a fiduciary or confidential relationship, as are husband and wife. A party in such a relationship is entitled to rely on the representations of the other party, and the statute does not begin to run merely because the means of discovery are available [Davis v. Kahn (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 868, 878, 86 Cal. Rptr. 872] .

[e] Proof

The defrauded party may be relieved from the marriage on proof that he or she would not have entered into it if he or she had known the facts, and the performance of the contract would give him or her substantially less than he or she bargained for [Handley v. Handley (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 742, 746, 3 Cal. Rptr. 910] .

[f] Defense of Cohabitation After Learning of Fraud

A judgment of nullity cannot be obtained, even though the consent was obtained by fraud, if the defrauded party afterwards, with full knowledge of the facts constituting the fraud, freely cohabits with the other as husband or wife [see Fam. Code § 2210(d)]. Thus, in one case, a marriage could not be annulled when the husband lived with the wife for four and one-half months after discovering her fraudulently concealed unsound mental condition [Curtis v. Curtis (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 965, 968-970, 187 P.2d 921 (decided under former Civ. Code § 82)]. However, when an annulment was based on the secret intention of the wife to refuse all sexual intercourse, the fact that the parties stayed together for a few months was not a defense to the action for annulment because they were not cohabiting as husband and wife [Millar v. Millar (1917) 175 Cal. 797, 805-806, 167 P. 394 (decided under former Civ. Code § 82); cf. In re Marriage of Liu (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 143, 156, 242 Cal. Rptr. 649 (wife found to have married for immigration purposes and never intended to engage in sexual relations with husband; parties briefly lived in same home)].

Mere suspicion of facts constituting the fraud does not meet the statutory standard of full knowledge. Thus, for example, it has been held that the fact that a wife continued to live with her husband even though she suspected that he had married her solely to improve his immigration status does not constitute ratification of the marriage [In re Marriage of Rabie (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 917, 923, 115 Cal. Rptr. 594 ; see Schaub v. Schaub (1945) 71 Cal. App. 2d 467, 480, 162 P.2d 966 (cohabitation after suspicion of wife's illicit relationship does not ratify fraud; decided under former Civ. Code § 82)].

[6] Force

[a] Marriage Voidable

A marriage is voidable and may be adjudged a nullity if, at the time of the marriage, the consent of either party was obtained by force, unless such party afterwards freely cohabited with the other as husband or wife [Fam. Code § 2210(e)]. The fact that threats were made is not sufficient unless it is found that the threats were the inducing cause of the consent to the marriage and that the threats overcame the free exercise of the will of the spouse so as to render the consent apparent rather than real [Nicholson v. Nicholson (1917) 174 Cal. 391, 393, 163 P. 219 (decided under former Civ. Code § 82)].

[b] Parties and Statute of Limitations

A proceeding to obtain a judgment of nullity based on force must be commenced by the party whose consent was obtained by force within four years after the marriage [Fam. Code § 2211(e); see Pryor v. Pryor (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1448, 1456, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 853 (only injured spouse has standing to bring action for annulment based on force)].

[7] Physical Incapacity

[a] Marriage Voidable

A marriage is voidable and may be adjudged a nullity, if either party was, at the time of marriage, "physically incapable of entering into the marriage state," and that incapacity continues, and appears to be incurable [Fam. Code § 2210(f)]. Physical incapacity means legal impotence or the physical inability to consummate the marriage by coition. The test is the ability to engage in normal copulation; the ability to engage in partial, unnatural, or painful copulation does not preclude a judgment of nullity. The inability must only exist with regard to the particular spouse and need not be general. However, the capacity or incapacity to conceive children is not relevant [Stepanek v. Stepanek (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 760, 762-763, 14 Cal. Rptr. 793 (decided under former Civ. Code § 82)].

[b] Parties and Statute of Limitations

A proceeding to obtain a judgment of nullity based on physical incapacity must be commenced by the party who is not incapacitated within four years after the marriage [Fam. Code § 2211(f); see Pryor v. Pryor (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1448, 1456, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 853 (only injured spouse has standing to bring action for annulment based on physical incapacity)].

[c] Proof

Clear proof of the permanent and incurable physical incapacity of one of the parties is required, and proof by testimony of the other spouse of inability over a relatively short period of time without any corroboration is insufficient [Stepanek v. Stepanek (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 760, 763-768, 14 Cal. Rptr. 793 ; Hobbs v. Hobbs (1909) 10 Cal. App. 97, 101-103, 101 P. 22] . Evidence from a physician who has made an examination, evidence of an existing malformation or organic defect, or evidence of the existence of a physical or psychological condition persisting over a sufficient time may provide a basis from which a court could infer incapacity [Stepanek v. Stepanek (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 760, 767, 14 Cal. Rptr. 793] .

If the respondent refuses to submit to a physical examination by a physician, a court order for examination by a physician can be obtained [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.310].

§ 25.30 Governing Law

Statutes governing procedural issues that relate specifically to nullity actions are contained in Fam. Code § 2250 et seq. Time limits on the commencement of nullity actions are set forth in Fam. Code § 2211. Provisions governing the jurisdiction of the superior court over nullity actions and related matters are contained in Fam. Code §§ 200, 2010. In addition, the general provisions that apply to actions for dissolution and legal separation also apply to actions for nullity [see Fam. Code § 2000 et seq.].

§ 25.31 Commencement of Proceeding

[1] Jurisdiction and Venue

[a] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction over proceedings to obtain a judgment of nullity of marriage [Fam. Code § 200]. In general, the superior court in such a proceeding has jurisdiction to inquire into and render judgment and make any appropriate orders concerning the status of the marriage, the custody of the minor children of the marriage, the support of any children for whom support may be ordered, the support of either party, the settlement of the property rights of the parties, and the award of attorney's fees and costs [Fam. Code § 2010; see Fam. Code § 2251 et seq.].

Special rules concerning putative spouses that govern the circumstances under which a court may divide property acquired during the marriage, award spousal support, and attorney's fees and costs are discussed in § 25.32 [see Fam. Code § 2251 et seq.].

[b] Venue

On and after January 1, 1995, the county in which either the petitioner or the respondent resides at the commencement of the proceeding is the proper county for trial of the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. Before January 1, 1995, because neither the Family Code nor the Code of Civil Procedure then provided expressly for venue in nullity actions, venue was governed by the general rule that, except as otherwise provided by law (and subject to the power of the court to transfer proceedings) the county in which the defendant (i.e., the respondent) resides at the commencement of the proceeding is the proper county for the trial of the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a); see Forster v. Superior Court (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 782, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258 (court has duty to transfer action for legal separation (or nullity) to county where respondent resides, on respondent's timely motion for change of venue); see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 396b-400; Fam. Code § 210; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.21]. Certain exceptions to this general rule were otherwise provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 395.

[c] Domicile and Residence of Parties

A California court has jurisdiction to adjudge a marriage a nullity if either party is domiciled in California [Bing Gee v. Chan Lai Yung Gee (1949) 89 Cal. App. 2d 877, 883, 202 P.2d 360] . Furthermore, California courts have jurisdiction to adjudge a marriage a nullity when both parties have appeared in the proceedings, even though neither party is a domiciliary of California [Whealton v. Whealton (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 656, 664, 63 Cal. Rptr. 291, 432 P.2d 979] .

In contrast to proceedings for marital dissolution [see Fam. Code § 2320], no statutory residence requirements exist for a judgment of nullity.

[2] Petition and Related Papers

A party who seeks a judgment of nullity must complete and file in the proper superior court (see § 25.31[1]) a petition as set forth by Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-100 (see § 25.140). The proceeding is commenced on the filing of the petition [see Fam. Code § 2250(a)].

The petitioner in a nullity proceeding must also prepare and have the court clerk approve issuance of a family law summons [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.110; Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-110]. Special declarations of disclosure and related income and expense declarations must also be served, as discussed in § 25.31[4].

The petitioner may also need to seek temporary orders pending a hearing, and if so, must utilize the required Judicial Council forms. For a complete discussion of seeking relief in family law proceedings, as well as discussion of the foregoing forms and procedures for filing and service, see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure .

The petition may be filed only by the injured spouse when the grounds for the annulment are fraud, force, or physical incapacity. A third party, acting for one of the spouses, may file the petition when the spouse is a minor or is of unsound mind [Pryor v. Pryor (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1448, 1456, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 853] .

[3] Response and Related Papers

A party who wishes to respond to a nullity petition must serve and file a response in the form required by Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-120 on the petitioner within 30 days of the date of the service of the petition and summons [see Fam. Code § 2020; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.108].

Special declarations of disclosure and related income and expense declarations must also be served, as discussed in § 25.31[4]. A respondent may also need to seek temporary orders pending a hearing, or respond to applications for such orders sought by the petitioner. If so, he or she must utilize the required Judicial Council forms. For a complete discussion of seeking relief in family law proceedings, as well as discussion of the foregoing forms and procedures for filing and service, see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure .

[4] Declarations of Disclosure

Parties to a nullity proceeding are required to comply with the disclosure declaration requirements of Fam. Code § 2100 et seq. These provisions require each party to serve a preliminary declaration of disclosure on a form prescribed by the Judicial Council after or concurrently with service of the petition, except by court order for good cause under Fam. Code § 2107 [see Fam. Code § 2104(a); see Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-140]. The declaration discloses all assets in which the party claims an interest and all liabilities for which he or she may be liable, as well as the party's percentage of ownership for each asset and percentage of liability for each debt. The preliminary declaration of disclosure is not be filed with the court, except on court order, but the parties must file proof of service of it [see Fam. Code § 2104(c); see

Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-141 (required form for proof of service of disclosure declaration)]. Along with the preliminary declaration, each party must provide the other with a completed income and expense declaration unless one has already been provided and is current and valid [Fam. Code § 2104(e); see Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-150].

In addition, each party generally must also serve a final disclosure declaration containing additional information before or at the time the parties enter into an agreement for the resolution of property or support issues (other than pendente lite support) or, if the case goes to trial, no later than 45 days before the first assigned trial date [Fam. Code § 2105]. However, for good cause, the court may dispense with the requirement of serving a final disclosure declaration, and the parties may also stipulate to a mutual waiver of the final disclosure declaration if their waiver meets prescribed statutory conditions [Fam. Code § 2105(a), (d)]. For a full discussion of preliminary and final declarations of disclosure, see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure .

§ 25.32 Determinations Made by Court

[1] Child Custody and Support

The superior court has jurisdiction to determine the custody of the minor children of the marriage in a nullity proceeding [Fam. Code § 2010(b)]. Child custody determinations in nullity proceedings are made in accordance with Fam. Code § 3000 et seq., which govern child custody determinations generally [Fam. Code § 2253]. For discussion of rules governing child custody awards, see Ch. 223, Dissolution of Marriage: Child Custody .

The court also has jurisdiction to award support for any children for whom support may be awarded pursuant to statute, including children born after the filing of the initial petition or the final judgment of nullity [see Fam. Code § 2010(c); see also Fam. Code § 3901 (duration of support duty as to child)]. For discussion of child support awards, see Ch. 224, Dissolution of Marriage: Child Support .

[2] Spousal Support

During the pendency of a proceeding for nullity of marriage, or on judgment of nullity of marriage, the court may order a party to pay for the support of the other party in the same manner as if the marriage had not been void or voidable if the party for whose benefit the order is made is found to be a putative spouse [Fam. Code § 2254; see Fam. Code § 2010(d)].

For discussion of what constitutes a putative marriage, see § 25.50 et seq. For a complete discussion of spousal support, generally, see Ch. 225, Dissolution of Marriage: Spousal Support .

[3] Property Award in Judgment of Nullity

[a] Court's Jurisdiction to Determine Property Rights

The court in a nullity proceeding has jurisdiction to settle the property rights of the parties [Fam. Code § 2010(e)]. To obtain an adjudication of property rights, the parties to the nullity proceeding must have placed those rights at issue in the pleadings [see Shore v. Shore (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 677, 679, 277 P.2d 4 ; Fam. Code § 2251(a)(2)].

[b] Property Division in Putative Spouse Cases

[i] In General

Technically speaking, in the absence of a valid marriage, there can be no community property [Baskett v. Crook (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 355, 359, 195 P.2d 39] . However, the property acquired during a void or voidable marriage may be treated and divided as community or quasi-community property when at least one of the parties entered the marriage in good faith. Whenever a determination is made that a marriage is void or voidable and the court finds either or both parties believed in good faith that the marriage was valid, the court must declare the party or parties to have the status of "putative spouse" [Fam. Code § 2251(a)(1)].

In that case, if the division of property is at issue, the property acquired during the marriage that would have been community or quasi-community property if the marriage had not been void or voidable must be divided by the court in the same manner as it would be divided in a proceeding for dissolution of a valid marriage [Fam. Code § 2251(a)(2); see Fam. Code § 2500 et seq. (division of property in dissolution proceeding)]. Property of a putative marriage subject to such division is called "quasi-marital property" [Fam. Code § 2251(a)(2)].

The property so divided is liable for debts of the parties to the same extent as if the property had been community property or quasi-community property [Fam. Code § 2252].

The court may divide the quasi-marital property at a time after the judgment of nullity of marriage if it expressly reserves jurisdiction to do so in the judgment of nullity [Fam. Code § 2251(b)]. Furthermore, in proceedings for nullity of marriage, the court has continuing jurisdiction to award community estate assets or community estate liabilities to the parties that have not been previously adjudicated by a judgment in the proceeding, through the use of a postjudgment motion or order to show cause [see Fam. Code § 2556]. For a general discussion of the court's jurisdiction to divide and value assets and liabilities, see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

[ii] Rights of Bad-Faith Party

The division principles discussed in § 25.32[3][b][i], appear to apply with respect to the property interests of both parties, even if only one of the parties qualifies as a putative spouse. Whether a nonputative spouse in an otherwise putative marriage can seek an equal division of "quasi-marital" property has not been definitively settled. However, Fam. Code § 2251 appears to require such a division once it is determined that "either party or both parties believed in good faith that the marriage was valid. ..." [see Fam. Code § 2251(a) (emphasis added)].

One court of appeal interpreted the identically worded precursor to Fam. Code § 2251, former Civ. Code § 4452, as giving the bad-faith party a right to demand an equal division of quasi-marital property on termination of a putative marriage [see In re Marriage of Cary (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 345, 350-352, 109 Cal. Rptr. 862 (disapproved on other grounds in Marvin v. Marvin (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 660, 680 n.18, 134 Cal. Rptr. 815, 557 P.2d 106)]. In a later case, the Supreme Court expressly refused to hold on the issue of the correctness of this interpretation of the statute, the determination being unnecessary for its resolution of the issue in that case. However, the Supreme Court did note that parties to a putative marriage ordinarily arrange their economic affairs with the expectation that on dissolution the property will be divided equally. The Court reasoned that because of this fact, if a guilty or bad faith party to a putative marriage were to receive one-half of the property under former Civ. Code § 4452, no expectation of the innocent spouse would be frustrated [Marvin v. Marvin (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 660, 680-681 n.18, 134 Cal. Rptr. 815, 557 P.2d 106] .

Some commentators have argued that (now former) Civ. Code § 4452 was not intended to aid a bad-faith party to a putative marriage, and that the most reasonable interpretation of the statute is that it was designed only to protect persons who qualify as putative, that is, good-faith, spouses [see Kay & Amyx, Marvin v. Marvin: Preserving the Options, 65 Cal. L. Rev. 937, 949-951 (1977); Note, Dissolution and Voidable Marriage Under the California Family Law Act, 4 Loy. L. Rev. 331, 352 (1971)].

[c] Effect of Lack of Putative Spouse Status by Both Parties

When a putative marriage does not exist (that is, neither party believed in good faith that the marriage was valid), the court in rendering a judgment of nullity of marriage may not treat and divide the property as community or quasi-community property [see Fam. Code § 2251(a)(2); Shore v. Shore (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 677, 679-680, 277 P.2d 4] . The court may, however, declare the property rights of the parties, if those rights have properly been put in issue in the proceeding [Shore v. Shore (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 677, 679-680, 277 P.2d 4 ; see Fam. Code § 2010(e)]. The fact that a man and woman do not in good faith believe they are married does not preclude the court from protecting their respective interests in jointly acquired property [Shore v. Shore (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 677, 681, 277 P.2d 4] .

The court's general jurisdiction to settle property rights in a proceeding for judgment of nullity of a void or voidable marriage [see Fam. Code § 2010(e)] would seem to allow the court to inquire into and enforce any property rights arising out of an implied contract between the parties [see Marvin v. Marvin (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 660, 679, 134 Cal. Rptr. 815, 557 P.2d 106] , even if the court finds that neither party is a putative spouse, if the matter is properly put in issue by the pleadings. For discussion of property rights arising from express or implied agreements between unmarried cohabitants, see Ch. 387, Nonmarital Cohabitation .

[4] Attorney's Fees and Costs

The court may grant attorney's fees and costs in accordance with Fam. Code Section 2030 et seq. (governing awards of attorney's fees in family law proceedings generally) in (1) proceedings to have a marriage adjudged void, and (2) proceedings based on a voidable marriage in which the party applying for attorney's fees and costs is found to be innocent of fraud or wrongdoing in inducing or entering into the marriage, and free from knowledge of the then-existence of any prior marriage or other impediment to the marriage for which a judgment of nullity is sought [Fam. Code § 2255; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.128(b); Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-150 (form for use to request attorney's fees)].

For a complete discussion of attorney's fee awards in dissolution and other family law proceedings, see Ch. 224, Dissolution of Marriage: Attorney's Fees .

[5] Restoration of Spouse's Former Name

On the request of a party in a proceeding for nullity of marriage, the court must restore the birth or former name of that party [Fam. Code § 2080]. The court must, on the party's request, restore her birth or former name regardless of whether the request was included in the petition [Fam. Code § 2080]. An ex parte application may be made after the judgment of nullity if the party fails to make the request for restoration of his or her former name at the time of the judgment of nullity [see Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-395].

A request for the restoration of a former or birth name under Fam. Code § 2080 cannot be denied on the basis that the party has custody of a minor child who bears a different name, or for any other reason exclusive of fraud [Fam. Code § 2081].

§ 25.50 Governing Law

Statutory provisions governing putative spouses largely overlap those governing nullity of marriage in general, and counsel should refer to § 25.10 et seq. for a summary of related governing law. The judicial determination of void or voidable marriage (including putative marriages) is governed by Fam. Code § 2200 et seq.

Actions for damages based on a fraudulent promise to marry or to cohabit after marriage are precluded under Civ. Code § 43.4. Statutory provisions governing the right of a putative spouse to sue for the wrongful death of the other party to the relationship are contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60(b). Ceremonial marriages are presumed valid, under Evid. Code § 663. Recognition of marriages contracted outside California is contained in Fam. Code § 308. Statutory provisions for an action to determine the validity of a marriage are contained in Fam. Code § 309.

§ 25.52 General Rights and Duties of Putative Spouse

A putative spouse is a person who believes in reasonable, good faith that he or she is a party to a valid marriage, although the marriage is invalid [In re Marriage of Tejeda (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 973, 980, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 361 ; In re Marriage of Vryonis (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 712, 717, 248 Cal. Rptr. 807 ; In re Domestic Partnership of Ellis & Arriaga (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1000, 1003, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 401 ; see Fam. Code § 2251(a) (putative spouse defined for purposes of property division in nullity proceeding); Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60(b) (for purposes of determining eligibility to bring wrongful death action, putative spouse is defined as surviving spouse of a void or voidable marriage who is found by the court to have believed in good faith that the marriage to the decedent was valid)]. If the court finds that the marriage is invalid, it must declare any party with the required good faith belief to be a putative spouse [In re Marriage of Tejeda (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 973, 980, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 361] . A person who knew his or her marriage was invalid at the time of entering into it, or who lacked a good faith belief in the validity of the marriage cannot qualify as a putative spouse.

A person's good faith belief that the marriage was validly entered into must be objectively reasonable [In re Domestic Partnership of Ellis & Arriaga (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1000, 1005, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 401 ; In re Marriage of Ramirez (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 751, 756, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 180] . A subjective good faith belief is insufficient [In re Marriage of Ramirez (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 751, 756, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 180] .

One or both parties to a putative marriage may be putative spouses as defined above. For one spouse to occupy the status of a putative spouse, the other spouse need not be a putative spouse and need not have had a good faith belief in the validity of the marriage [Sanguinetti v. Sanguinetti (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 95, 99, 69 P.2d 845] .

Once either party is declared to be a putative spouse, the parties' union is a putative marriage. Even when only one party has the required good faith belief in the validity of the marriage thereby qualifying as the sole putative spouse, the court's declaration of this status operates as a declaration that the union itself is a putative marriage [In re Marriage of Tejeda (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 973, 983, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 361] .

Determination of a person's status as a putative spouse may have important consequences on various legal rights, including the following:

(1) The right to share in property accumulated in the name of the other party during the putative marriage on termination of the relationship [see Fam. Code § 2251(a); see also § 25.57].

(2) The right to share in property accumulated during the putative marriage on the death of the other party (see § 25.80 et seq.).

(3) The right to payment of support by the other party on termination of the relationship [see Fam. Code § 2254; see also § 25.58].

(4) Standing to sue for the wrongful death of the other party to the relationship [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60(b); see generally Levy, Golden & Sacks, California Torts, Ch. 55 (Matthew Bender)]; and

(5) The right to recover state workers' compensation benefits when the other party dies [see Lab. Code §§ 3503, 4702; see generally Hanna, California Law of Employee Injuries and Workers' Compensation, Ch. 9 (Matthew Bender)].

§ 25.53 Cohabitation Distinguished

A putative marriage does not exist if unmarried persons live together knowing that they are not validly married. When both parties lack a good faith belief in the validity of their marriage, the relationship does not qualify as a putative marriage even though they may hold themselves out as husband and wife and conduct themselves as a family unit [see In re Marriage of Cary (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 345, 348-349, 109 Cal. Rptr. 862 (disapproved on other grounds in Marvin v. Marvin (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 660, 134 Cal. Rptr. 815, 557 P.2d 106)]. The discussion in this part is limited to putative marriages. The rights and liabilities of persons living together without a good faith belief that they are married are discussed in Ch. 387, Nonmarital Cohabitation .

3-25 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 25.54

§ 25.54 Solemnization and Good Faith Requirements for Putative Marriage

[1] Solemnization Requirements

Common-law marriage has been abolished in California, and solemnization is required for a valid marriage [see Fam. Code §§ 300, 306, 420-425; see also Stats. 1895, ch. 129, § 3]. For discussion of solemnization requirements and other required formalities for a valid marriage, see Ch. 359, Marriage .

In most circumstances involving putative marriages, the parties have attempted to comply with the statutory formalities for a valid marriage, namely that the marriage be licensed, solemnized, and authenticated, and that a certificate of registry be filed [see Fam. Code §§ 300, 306]. In these cases, the marriage was invalid because some essential fact was unknown to one or both of the parties, such as an earlier undissolved marriage of one of the parties, a blood relation between the parties, or the failure to satisfy completely the requirements of a valid solemnization [see Vallera v. Vallera (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 681, 684, 134 P.2d 761].

However, in a few cases, unions have been characterized as putative marriages even though no ceremony of solemnization took place. In one case, a couple who could not speak English and were not acquainted with the marriage laws applied for a marriage license and began living together in the good faith belief that they were married [Santos v. Santos (1939) 32 Cal. App. 2d 62, 63, 89 P.2d 164]. Putative marriage was also found without a solemnization in a case in which the spouses made an oral contract in Nevada, where common-law marriage was recognized, to live together as husband and wife in California [Sancha v. Arnold (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 772, 779, 251 P.2d 67]. In fact, it has been noted that "although the usual putative marriage situation may arise under circumstances where a marriage is duly solemnized and celebrated in good faith but suffers from a legal infirmity, lack of a solemnization ceremony does not necessarily mean bad faith precluding finding a putative marriage" [Wagner v. County of Imperial (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 980, 983, 193 Cal. Rptr. 820].

In other cases, putative marriages arose as a result of divorce, rather than as the direct result of a defective marriage ceremony. In one case, for example, a putative marriage was found when one party to a valid marriage obtained a secret divorce in another jurisdiction, but the parties continued to live together as husband and wife [Feig v. Bank of America (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 266, 269-270, 54 P.2d 3]. Another couple's relationship was characterized as a putative marriage when they started divorce proceedings, reconciled after the interlocutory decree had been entered, and their attorney had the final decree entered without their knowledge [Lazzarevich v. Lazzarevich (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 708, 716, 200 P.2d 49 ; see In re Marriage of Monti (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 50, 56, 58, 185 Cal. Rptr. 72 (final decree of dissolution entered without one spouse's knowledge)].

[2] Good Faith Requirement

[a] Good Faith as Essential

A good-faith belief in the validity of the marriage on the part of one or both of the spouses is essential to the existence of a putative marriage. A putative marriage cannot exist if neither party believes in the existence of a valid marriage [see Vallera v. Vallera (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 681, 684, 134 P.2d 761 ; Brown v. Brown (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 178, 186, 82 Cal. Rptr. 238 ; Fam. Code § 2251(a)]. Likewise, a person must have a good faith belief in the validity of his or her marriage in order to be characterized as a putative spouse [In re Marriage of Ramirez (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 751, 756, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 180 ; In re Marriage of Vryonis (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 712, 720-722, 724, 248 Cal. Rptr. 807 ; Fam. Code § 2251(a)].

The required good-faith belief is that the marriage is lawful in California, and this belief must have an objectively reasonable basis [In re Marriage of Ramirez (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 751, 756, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 180 ; In re Marriage of Vryonis (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 712, 720-721, 724, 248 Cal. Rptr. 807 ; see § 25.54[2][c]]. A subjective good faith belief, even by a party who is found credible and sympathetic, is insufficient. Instead, under the objective standard, a claim to be a putative spouse must be based on facts that would cause a reasonable person to believe in good faith that he or she was married and that the marriage was valid under California law [In re Marriage of Ramirez (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 751, 756, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 180]. Whether a person has the required good faith belief in the validity of his or her marriage is a question of fact to be determined by the trial court [Estate of Vargas (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 714, 717, 111 Cal. Rptr. 779 ; see In re Marriage of Liu (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 143, 156-157, 242 Cal. Rptr. 649 (trial court denied putative spouse status to woman who had not entered into marriage in good faith, i.e., she married to obtain residency in U.S.)].

[b] Presumption of Good Faith From Ceremonial Marriage

It is presumed that persons who participate in a marriage ceremony do so in good faith [Brown v. Brown (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 178, 186, 82 Cal. Rptr. 238 ; cf. Evid. Code § 663 (presumption that ceremonial marriage is valid)]. Accordingly, a person who claims to be a putative spouse as the result of a marriage ceremony has the benefit of the presumption of good faith when his or her status as a putative spouse has been challenged [Holland America Ins. Co. v. Rogers (N.D. Cal. 1970) 313 F. Supp. 314, 318 ; but see In re Marriage of Vryonis (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 712, 721-722, 724, 248 Cal. Rptr. 807 (belief that ceremony conformed to tenets of religious faith alone, coupled with assurances from other party in validity of marriage, did not support good-faith belief in existence of valid marriage)]. A person asserting bad faith to overcome another's claim to be a putative spouse must be able to produce some evidence proving or tending to prove bad faith.

[c] Objective Test of Good Faith

[i] Nature of Test

Under California law, an objective test is applied to determine whether or not a claimant putative spouse possessed a good-faith belief in the validity of his or her marriage at the time it occurred [In re Marriage of Ramirez (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 751, 756, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 180 ; In re Marriage of Vryonis (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 712, 720-721, 724, 248 Cal. Rptr. 807]. Under the objective test, a person claiming to be a putative spouse must have had a reasonable belief in the validity of the marriage in light of the facts known to the person at the time that the alleged marriage took place. The requirement of good faith cannot be satisfied merely by showing that the claimant putative spouse had no actual knowledge of the invalidity of the marriage or that he or she had an honest, but completely unreasonable, belief that the marriage was valid [see Spearman v. Spearman (5th Cir. 1973) 482 F.2d 1203, 1207-1208 (applying California law as law of place where decedent died leaving two alleged wives); see also In re Marriage of Ramirez (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 751, 756, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 180 ; In re Marriage of Vryonis (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 712, 720-722, 724, 248 Cal. Rptr. 807].

[ii] Application of Objective Test

Assertion of putative spouse status must be based on facts that would cause a reasonable person to have a good-faith belief in the existence of a valid marriage. Although solemnization is not an absolute prerequisite to establishing a putative marriage [In re Marriage of Vryonis (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 712, 721, 248 Cal. Rptr. 807], there must be some diligent attempt to meet the statutory requirements for a valid marriage. When there has been no attempted compliance with the procedural requirements of a valid marriage, and the usual indicia of, and conduct associated with, marriage are absent, a belief in the existence of a valid marriage would be unreasonable and lacking in good faith, even if the belief were sincere [In re Marriage of Vryonis (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 712, 721, 724, 248 Cal. Rptr. 807 ; see Welch v. State of California (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1374, 1378, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 430]. In one case, the court held that the parties made no colorable attempt to comply with statutory requirements in that they did not obtain a marriage license, their marriage ceremony was not solemnized by a third party, and there was no authentication or recordation. They did not cohabit, hold themselves out as husband and wife, and their conduct did not approximate that of a married couple. Although the "wife" sincerely believed that their ceremony conformed to her own religious beliefs and the "husband" assured her that they were validly married, the wife's belief under those circumstances was held to be objectively unreasonable and, thus, not in good faith [In re Marriage of Vryonis (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 712, 721-722, 724, 248 Cal. Rptr. 807 ; see Welch v. State of California (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1374, 1379, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 430 (when couple made no attempt to obtain marriage license or solemnize their union but held themselves as married for 30 years, appellant was not putative spouse because she had been married and divorced twice, and must have been aware of procedural requirements for lawful California marriage)]. In another case, the court held that regardless of whether an alleged husband believed his marriage was valid, a reasonable person would not have because it was performed in California by an official from Mexico, who issued an "Acta de Matrimonio," a marriage license that stated that the wedding was performed in Mexico. This, in itself, was enough to put a reasonable person on notice that the marriage license and the marriage itself were not valid [In re Marriage of Ramirez (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 751, 756-757, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 180] .

Factors taken into consideration by the courts in determining whether or not a person possessed a good faith belief in the validity of his or her marriage include all of the following [see Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 216, 317 P.2d 613 ; Flanagan v. Capital Nat'l Bank (1931) 213 Cal. 664, 667, 3 P.2d 307 ; Neureither v. Workmen's Comp. App. Bd. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 429, 434-435, 93 Cal. Rptr. 162 ; Sutton v. Sutton (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 730, 734-735, 303 P.2d 21]:

(1) The claimant's level of education.

(2) The claimant's degree of sophistication.

(3) The claimant's experience with the laws and procedures surrounding marriage and divorce.

(4) The nature of any official papers or other written or oral communications received by the parties.

(5) The degree of trust placed by the claimant in the assurances of a bad faith party, and the degree to which such trust was justified by differences in their ages, business experience, and other factors.

[3] Application of Requirements to Out-of-State Marriages

All marriages contracted outside of California that would be valid by the laws of the jurisdiction in which they were contracted are deemed to be valid in California [Fam. Code § 308; see discussion in Ch. 359, Marriage]. This statutory rule is a continuation of the common-law rule that the validity of a marriage was determined by the laws of the state in which it was contracted, and the validity of a decree of divorce was determined by the laws of the state in which it was obtained [Jones v. Jones (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 80, 82, 5 Cal. Rptr. 803].

Thus, whether a couple has complied with out-of-state statutory formalities may dictate whether they qualify as putative spouses in California [see Estate of Levie (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 572, 576, 123 Cal. Rptr. 445 (putative marriage arose out of a marriage that was void where contracted although it would have been valid if contracted under California law)]. The law of another state may also be important when one of the parties was divorced out of state. In that case, the law of the place of divorce must be consulted to determine if the party was validly divorced at the time he or she married the present spouse. For full discussion of the recognition and validity of foreign judgments, see Ch. 260, Family Law Enforcement Foreign Judgments .

§ 25.55 No Action for Fraudulent Inducement to Marry

Before the enactment of Civ. Code § 43.4 in 1959 [Stats. 1959, ch. 381], a putative spouse could state a cause of action for fraud based on the other spouse's fraudulent inducement to marry that rendered the marriage voidable [Langley v. Schumacker (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 601, 602-603, 297 P.2d 977] . Civ. Code § 43.4 presently bars an action for damages based on a fraudulent promise to marry or to cohabit after marriage. Thus, although a marriage may be voidable and may be adjudged a nullity if one spouse's consent was induced by fraud [see Fam. Code § 2210(d); see also discussion in § 25.10 et seq.], the fraud does not give rise to an action for damages [see Boyd v. Boyd (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 374, 378, 39 Cal. Rptr. 400 ; see also Askew v. Askew (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 942, 953-957, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 284] .

§ 25.56 Termination of Putative Marriage

[1] Voidable Marriage--Characteristics

The main characteristic of a voidable marriage is that it is not invalid from the outset (ab initio). In other words, a voidable marriage is such that although there may be grounds for declaring it invalid, those grounds can be cured and the marriage can be transformed into a valid legal marriage. For example, if a marriage is voidable because one or both spouses were under 18 years and no parental or court approval was obtained, the marriage is nevertheless valid if the underage spouse or spouses continue to cohabit as husband and wife after reaching the age of 18 [see Fam. Code § 2210(a)]. As another example, if the marriage is voidable because the consent of one spouse was obtained by fraud, the marriage will be valid if that defrauded spouse continues freely to cohabit with the other spouse after obtaining full knowledge of the facts constituting the fraud [see Fam. Code § 2210(d)].

For full discussion of the grounds for voidability of a marriage, see § 25.10 et seq.

[2] Necessity of Taking Legal Action to Terminate a Voidable Marriage

Because a voidable marriage is not invalid from its beginning, it can only be terminated by a judgment of nullity, a judgment of dissolution, or by the death of one of the parties [see Fam. Code § 310]. If both parties to the marriage are still alive, a voidable marriage is valid until it has been terminated through a judgment of dissolution or nullity of marriage [Estate of LeMont (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 437, 439, 86 Cal. Rptr. 810] .

A putative spouse has choice of either a nullity proceeding or a dissolution proceeding to terminate a voidable marriage [see Fam. Code § 310(b), (c)]. For a complete discussion of the relative advantages and disadvantages of bringing a particular proceeding, see § 25.10 et seq.

[3] Void Marriage

[a] Characteristics

Void marriages include bigamous (or otherwise polygamous) marriages and incestuous marriages [see Fam. Code §§ 2200, 2201]. Under limited circumstances involving a spouse who is believed dead, a bigamous marriage may be treated as a voidable marriage [see Fam. Code §§ 2201(a)(2), 2210(b)]. For a complete description of void marriages in the context of bringing a proceeding for nullity of marriage, see § 25.10 et seq.

An attempted marriage, which fell so far short of compliance with statutory requirements that no marriage was ever contracted, has also been considered a void marriage [see Sutton v. Sutton (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 730, 734, 303 P.2d 21 ; see also In re Marriage of Vryonis (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 712, 719, 248 Cal. Rptr. 807 (marriage was "plainly defective;" the "void/voidable" aspect of former Civ. Code § 4452 (now see Fam. Code § 2251) is threshold determination that legal infirmity in formation renders marriage invalid)].

A marriage that is absolutely void is void from the beginning [see Fam. Code §§ 2200, 2201]. It is subject to collateral attack, meaning that its validity can be challenged in any proceeding, and not just in a proceeding brought to have the marriage declared invalid [see Estate of Karau (1938) 26 Cal. App. 2d 606, 607-608, 80 P.2d 108] .

[b] Desirability of Judicial Determination

If a marriage is absolutely void, not merely voidable, no action technically needs to be taken to terminate it. The parties may agree to terminate the relationship, or one party may simply leave. However, it might be wise for the parties to seek a judicial determination that the marriage is void or dissolved for a number of reasons, including all of the following:

(1) A judicial determination that the marriage is void will be a matter of public record and protect the parties in the event of a subsequent marriage or property dispute;

(2) The parties' status as unmarried persons will be judicially declared [see Fam. Code §§ 2212(a), 2300]; and

(3) Judicial intervention may be required for the putative spouse to benefit from statutory and other remedies for division of property, support, attorney's fees, and costs [see Fam. Code §§ 2011, 2030 et seq., 2251, 2254, 2255, 2550, 3600 et seq., 4330 et seq.].

On the other hand, at least with respect to nullity proceedings--in which the ground for the invalidity must be established--a party potentially exposes himself or herself to criminal liability if the marriage is void because of bigamy or incest. Thus, counsel must weigh the various benefits and disadvantages to seeking termination of the marriage through nullity or dissolution proceedings. For further discussion of these competing considerations, see § 25.10 et seq.

[4] Proceedings Other Than For Nullity or Dissolution

In cases in which a party believes that he or she may qualify as a putative spouse, but the marriage does not fall within the statutory definitions of void or voidable marriage for purposes of bringing a nullity proceeding [see Fam. Code §§ 2200, 2201, 2210], a determination of this issue and of the parties' property rights can be obtained in an action to have the validity of the marriage determined [see Fam. Code § 308; Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 215, 317 P.2d 613 (woman married in good faith before final decree of divorce entered); see also Ch. 359, Marriage] or in an action for declaratory relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]. A declaratory relief action may also be brought when the invalidity of the marriage is conceded, and the only matter at issue is the parties' property rights.

One court has held that even if a marriage is neither void nor voidable as defined by the statutes governing nullity proceedings, relief may be afforded under the putative marriage doctrine on the basis of the reasonable expectations of the parties if the alleged marriage was entered into in good faith. The court in that case reasoned that the requirement of a void or voidable marriage for putative marriage status in the nullity statute [see Fam. Code § 2251] simply requires a threshold determination that a legal infirmity in the formation of the marriage rendered the marriage invalid. However, relief will not extend to the parties to a plainly defective marriage that is neither void or voidable because they would lack the requisite good faith [see In re Marriage of Vryonis (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 712, 718-719, 248 Cal. Rptr. 807 ; see also § 25.54[2][a]].

§ 25.57 Division of Quasi-Marital Property

[1] Division in Nullity Proceeding

"Quasi-marital property" is property that was acquired during a putative marriage that would have been community property or quasi-community property had the marriage not been void or voidable [Fam. Code § 2251(a)(2); In re Marriage of Tejeda (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 973, 981, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 361 (theory of quasi-marital property equates property rights acquired during putative marriage with community property rights acquired during legal marriage)]. In a proceeding to have a void or voidable marriage adjudged a nullity [see Fam. Code § 2250 et seq.], the court must divide the quasi-marital property in the same manner as community property or quasi-community property provided that [Fam. Code § 2251; see Fam. Code § 2550; In re Marriage of Tejeda (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 973, 983, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 361 (division of quasi-marital property is required regardless of whether both parties have been declared putative spouses); Estate of DePasse (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 92, 102, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 143 (court must divide quasi-marital property as if it were community property on making statutory findings)]:

(1) The court determines that the marriage is void or voidable;

(2) The court has found that either party or both of the parties believed in good faith that the marriage was valid, and thus qualifies as a putative spouse; and

(3) The division of property is in issue.

A putative spouse is entitled to the same share of the quasi-marital property as he or she would receive as an actual and legal spouse if there had been a valid marriage, i.e., it must be divided equally between the parties [In re Marriage of Tejeda (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 973, 983, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 361] .

For a complete discussion of dividing quasi-marital property in nullity proceedings, see § 25.30 et seq.

[2] Division Outside Nullity Proceeding

In a few cases "marriages" that were not solemnized and that did not fall within the statutory definitions of void and voidable marriages [see Fam. Code §§ 2200, 2201, 2210], have nevertheless been characterized by the courts as "putative marriages" because of the peculiar circumstances, and the good faith belief of one or both parties that they were married [see, e.g., Santos v. Santos (1939) 32 Cal. App. 2d 62, 63, 89 P.2d 164 (parties obtained marriage license and commenced living together in the good faith belief that they were married)]. In the unusual case in which the relationship of the parties may be characterized as a putative marriage, and yet the union is not subject to termination in a nullity proceeding, an equitable division of the parties' property may nevertheless be sought. Suggested means to be employed by a putative spouse to secure an equitable division of the parties' quasi-marital property outside the context of a nullity proceeding include:

(1) An action for an accounting [see Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for];

(2) An action to impose a constructive trust [Civ. Code §§ 2223, 2224; see Ch. 561, Trusts: Constructive Trusts];

(3) An action to quiet title to property [Code Civ. Proc. § 760.010 et seq.; see Ch. 482, Quieting Title]; and

(4) An action for declaratory relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060; see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief].

An action for declaratory relief may be the most appropriate action to pursue because a dispute may arise on whether the plaintiff spouse is actually a putative spouse in addition to the dispute over property rights. An action for declaratory relief would accommodate both of these disputes because the parties in such an action can seek a declaration of their rights and duties with respect to one another [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]. In addition, declaratory relief is a cumulative remedy and does not prevent a plaintiff from seeking any additional relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1062].

§ 25.58 Support for Putative Spouse

In nullity proceedings, Fam. Code § 2254 provides a basis for an award of support to a person who qualifies as a putative spouse, in the same manner as if the marriage had not been void or voidable. For further discussion, see § 25.30 et seq.

In cases in which a putative marriage is not subject to a judgment of nullity or dissolution, there is no statutory authorization for the court to award support to a putative spouse. Fam. Code § 2254 specifically refers to an award of support only during the pendency of a nullity proceeding or on judgment of nullity.

§ 25.59 Recovery in Quantum Meruit

Before the Family Law Act [Stats. 1969, ch. 1608, former Civ. Code § 4000 et seq., operative January 1, 1970; now see the Family Code, operative January 1, 1994], was enacted, a putative spouse could bring an action in quantum meruit to recover the reasonable value of services rendered to the other spouse, less the value of support received. By allowing such an action, courts were able to justify some recovery for a putative spouse in the case of a putative marriage when there was no quasi-marital property to divide [see, e.g., Lazzarevich v. Lazzarevich (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 708, 715-716, 200 P.2d 49] . The basis for such recovery was quasi-contractual. Recovery was permitted on the theory that the spouse who received the services was unjustly enriched in the amount by which the reasonable value of the services rendered exceeded the amount of support and maintenance furnished to the spouse performing the services. In such a situation it was considered just and equitable for the law to imply a promise to compensate the spouse who performed the services solely because of his or her good-faith belief in the validity of the marriage [Sanguinetti v. Sanguinetti (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 95, 100-101, 69 P.2d 845 ; Lazzarevich v. Lazzarevich (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 708, 715-716, 200 P.2d 49] .

Under current law, however, a putative spouse may seek temporary and permanent support in a nullity proceeding [see Fam. Code § 2254]. Commentators have argued that by allowing a putative spouse to seek permanent support in a nullity proceeding, the Legislature intended to abrogate the right of a putative spouse to seek quantum meruit recovery for the value of services rendered less the value of support received [Luther & Luther, Support and Property Rights of the Putative Spouse, 24 Hastings L.J. 311, 323-325 (1973); see Kay & Amyx, Marvin v. Marvin: Preserving the Options, 65 Cal. L. Rev. 937, 949 n.76 (1977)]. Also, no reported post-Family Law Act case has allowed such recovery. Therefore, it is unclear whether quantum meruit is currently viable in this context.

For discussion of quasi-contractual recovery in the context of a nonmarital cohabitation arrangement, see Ch. 387, Nonmarital Cohabitation .

§ 25.60 Express and Implied Contracts; Equitable Remedies

In addition to the statutory remedies of division of quasi-marital property [Fam. Code § 2251] and temporary or permanent support [Fam. Code § 2254], a putative spouse may resort to any of the following theories to protect his or her property interests:

(1) Action on an express contract between the putative spouses;

(2) Action on a contract implied in fact between the putative spouses;

(3) Equitable remedies such as resulting trust, constructive trust, and equitable liens, the purpose of which is to impress on property in the name of another the beneficial rights that have arisen in an innocent party who in some way contributed to the acquisition, protection, or improvement of that property [see Holder v. Williams (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 313, 315-316, 334 P.2d 291] .

The above remedies are discussed in detail in Ch. 387, Nonmarital Cohabitation , in the context of the property rights of unmarried cohabitants.

§ 25.61 Estoppel to Assert Invalidity of Marriage

A party cannot contest the validity of a divorce or dissolution decree if he or she has done one of the following [Rediker v. Rediker (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 796, 805, 221 P.2d 1] :

(1) Procured the decree;

(2) Remarried in reliance on the decree; or

(3) Aided another to procure the decree so that the latter will be free to remarry.

Thus, if spouses in a nullity, dissolution, or validity of marriage proceeding were married after one of the parties procured an invalid divorce, a spouse who falls into any one of the three above categories may be estopped from denying the validity of the second marriage because of the alleged invalidity of the first divorce or dissolution. The practical effect of such estoppel is that it may entitle a putative spouse to be treated as if he or she were a legal spouse with regard to community property and support rights.

In Estate of Birch, a decedent and his first wife obtained a Mexican divorce and subsequently remarried other persons. The court held that the first wife was estopped from asserting that the Mexican divorce was invalid and that she was the decedent's surviving spouse. The court of appeal stated that remarriage estopped the party entering into it from denying the validity of previous divorce. The court also ruled that the annulment of the wife's second marriage did not preclude estoppel because she remarried in reliance on the Mexican judgment. Also, the children of the decedent and the first wife, being in privity with her, were similarly estopped [Estate of Birch (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 776, 780, 189 Cal. Rptr. 796] .

In addition, the doctrine of equitable estoppel may be applied to prevent a spouse from challenging the validity of his or her second marriage on dissolution of that marriage, even if the other spouse is not a putative spouse because he or she lacks a good-faith belief in the validity of the second marriage. Thus, one court of appeal has held that a husband is equitably estopped to deny that he was validly married to his wife on dissolution of that marriage when he went through a formal marriage ceremony with her knowing that her divorce from her first husband was not final, continued to live with her for 15 years, had two children with her, and waited 15 years to attempt to assert the invalidity of the marriage [In re Marriage of Recknor (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 539, 544-547, 187 Cal. Rptr. 887] . The court also held that the wife may properly receive monthly spousal support pendente lite and attorney's fees as in an ordinary dissolution proceeding [In re Marriage of Recknor (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 539, 542, 187 Cal. Rptr. 887] .

A putative spouse is not estopped, however, from questioning the validity of his or her marriage when the invalidity of the marriage is not related to the invalidity of a prior divorce of one of the parties [see Anderson v. Anderson (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 265, 266, 60 P. 2d 290] .

[1] When Decedent Spouse Dies Intestate

The Probate Code contains no express provision for the intestate succession to property when the spouses are not validly married [see Prob. Code § 6400 et seq.; see also Prob. Code § 78 (definition of "surviving spouse")], unless the spouses were registered domestic partners as defined in Probate Code section 37(b) [see Prob. Code §§ 6401(c), 6402]. As a result, courts have used equitable principles to provide for the distribution of a decedent's estate when the surviving spouse had an erroneous but good faith belief in the validity of his or her marriage to the decedent [see, e.g., Estate of Vargas (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 714, 718, 111 Cal. Rptr. 779] . In the absence of a surviving legal spouse (see § 25.80[3]), the surviving putative spouse is treated like a legal spouse for the purpose of succession to what would have been community property had the couple been validly married [Kunakoff v. Woods (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 59, 66-67, 332 P.2d 773 ; see Fam. Code § 2251 (quasi-marital property defined)]. Thus, if one party to a putative marriage dies intestate, leaving only a surviving putative spouse, that spouse takes all the parties' quasi-marital property by analogy to the laws governing intestate succession to community property and quasi-community property [Estate of Krone (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 766, 769-770, 189 P.2d 741 ; see Prob. Code §§ 100, 101, 6401(a), (b)]. For a discussion of a surviving putative spouse's inheritance rights when the decedent spouse's legal spouse is also alive, see Ch. 458, Probate: Determination of Heirship .

The putative spouse's inheritance rights are not limited to the quasi-marital property. Prior to 1984, cases held that a putative spouse had no intestate succession rights in property of the decedent that would have been classified as separate property had the parties been validly married [see Estate of Levie (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 572, 123 Cal. Rptr. 445] . This rule was disapproved by the California Supreme Court in Estate of Leslie [Estate of Leslie (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 186, 207 Cal. Rptr. 561, 689 P.2d 133] . In Leslie, the Court held that a surviving putative spouse is to be treated as a surviving legal spouse for purposes of intestate succession to the decedent's separate property. Thus, a putative spouse may succeed to an intestate share of the decedent spouse's separate property to the same extent as a legal spouse [Estate of Leslie (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 186, 197, 207 Cal. Rptr. 561, 689 P.2d 133 ; see Prob. Code § 6401(c) (surviving spouse's intestate share of decedent's separate property)].

For discussion of intestate succession to community and separate property by surviving legal spouses, see Ch. 458, Probate: Determination of Heirship .

[2] When Decedent Spouse Dies Testate ("Omitted" Spouse)

A putative spouse may also have inheritance rights in the estate of a spouse who dies testate and omits the surviving putative spouse from his or her will. One court has held that the surviving putative spouse is a "surviving spouse" for purposes of the "omitted spouse" provisions of the Probate Code [Estate of Sax (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1300, 1304, 263 Cal. Rptr. 190 (decided under former Prob. Code § 6560; now see Prob. Code §§ 21610-21612, which have substantially similar provisions, but now include both probate estate and revocable trusts)]. Under Prob. Code § 21610, a surviving spouse who is omitted from a premarital will executed by the decedent is entitled to one-half of the community property and the quasi-community property belonging to the decedent, plus a share of the decedent's separate property equal in value to that which the spouse would have received if the decedent had died intestate not to exceed one-half of the value of the separate property in the estate. That section applies only when the omission was unintentional and the surviving spouse was not otherwise provided for [Prob. Code § 21611]. Thus, the putative spouse may claim the decedent's interest in quasi-marital property as an omitted spouse [Estate of Sax (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1300, 1308, 263 Cal. Rptr. 190] . For a discussion relating to the partial revocation of a testator's premarital will by an omitted spouse generally, see Ch. 458, Probate: Determination of Heirship .

If the putative spouse is provided for in a valid will of the decedent, the terms of the will govern the putative spouse's rights of succession. For discussion of the requirements for a valid will and rules governing judicial interpretation of wills, see California Wills and Trusts, chs. 10 and 11 (Matthew Bender).

[3] When Common Spouse Dies Leaving Both Putative and Legal Spouse

[a] Equitable Principles Govern Division

The determination of inheritance rights is more complicated if a decedent dies leaving both a putative and legal spouse. Such a situation could arise, for example, if a legally married person secures a divorce that is invalid for some reason (such as lack of jurisdiction), marries a second person who reasonably believes that the divorce from the first spouse was valid, accumulates property during the putative marriage to the second spouse, and subsequently dies.

The Probate Code contains no express provisions for allocation of property between the previous legal spouse and the subsequent putative spouse in such a situation. The courts have therefore resorted to equitable principles to determine the succession rights of the legal and putative spouses [see Estate of Hafner (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1371, 1394, 229 Cal. Rptr. 676 ; Estate of Vargas (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 714, 718, 111 Cal. Rptr. 779 ; Estate of Ricci (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 146, 148-149, 19 Cal. Rptr. 739] . As indicated by the discussion in § 25.80[3][b], the result in a given case appears to depend on the nature of the estate assets being claimed, on the reason for the invalidity of the putative marriage, and on whether the decedent died testate or intestate.

[b] Succession Rights to Property Acquired During Putative Marriage

Case law has consistently held that, as against a surviving legal spouse, the putative spouse is entitled to succeed to one-half of the property accumulated during the putative marriage (i.e., the quasi-marital property) and that this portion is not subject to other testamentary disposition by the decedent [see Estate of Hafner (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1371, 1384, 229 Cal. Rptr. 676 ; Sousa v. Freitas (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 660, 665-666, 89 Cal. Rptr. 485] . The respective rights of the surviving putative and legal spouses in the decedent's half of the quasi-marital property (or in the decedent's other separate property) are less straightforward and appear to depend on the circumstances of the particular case and equitable considerations.

In Estate of Ricci, the decedent married in Italy in 1907. His marriage to his first wife was never terminated and remained in effect until his death in 1956. Subsequent to his first marriage, however, he moved to California and married a second wife in 1919, who was unaware of the decedent's previous marriage and lived with decedent continuously until his death. Decedent died intestate, and his estate consisted entirely of assets accumulated as a result of the joint efforts of the decedent and his second, putative wife during the second marriage. The trial court awarded half of the decedent's estate to the legal spouse and half to the putative spouse. The court of appeal noted that each spouse, in the absence of the other, would be entitled to the entire estate under the laws of intestate succession [Estate of Ricci (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 146, 151, 19 Cal. Rptr. 739] . The court held that the decision to award half of the estate to each spouse was equitable and supported by the law and the evidence and therefore affirmed the award [Estate of Ricci (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 146, 149-151, 19 Cal. Rptr. 739] .

In Sousa v. Freitas, the decedent had attempted to dissolve his marriage to his first wife, but the divorce decree was invalid because of lack of valid service of summons. The decedent then married a second wife, who believed the marriage to be valid and who lived with the decedent until his death. At the time of his death, all the property in the decedent's estate was the result of the joint efforts of the decedent and his second, putative wife. In his will, the decedent left all his property to his second wife. When the first wife learned of decedent's death, she brought proceedings to impose a constructive trust on the estate assets, claiming that the assets were community property of the decedent and herself. The trial court found that all of the property was community property of the decedent and the first wife, but that the second, putative wife was entitled to a one-half interest in the property. The court of appeal modified these findings and affirmed the judgment as modified. The court held that the putative spouse was entitled to share equally in the property accumulated during the putative marriage and that the putative spouse's share was not community property of the decedent and the first wife [Sousa v. Freitas (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 660, 665, 89 Cal. Rptr. 485] . The other half was community property, but one half of this share (i.e., one quarter of the entire estate) was subject to testamentary disposition by the decedent. Because the decedent had validly disposed of his one-half of the community property by will to the putative spouse, the first (legal) wife was only entitled to claim the other half of the community share. In other words, the putative spouse was entitled to three quarters of the estate and the legal spouse was entitled to only one quarter of the estate [Sousa v. Freitas (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 660, 665-666, 89 Cal. Rptr. 485] .

The results in both Ricci and Sousa appear to be based in part on the former rule that a husband's (but not a wife's) earnings after separation and before a judgment of dissolution remained community property [see former Civ. Code § 5118, prior to amendment by Stats. 1971, ch. 1699]. Thus, the community estate of the first marriage could claim a community interest in property derived from the earnings of the bigamous husband during the subsequent, putative marriage. In contrast, current law provides that the earnings and accumulations of either spouse while living separate and apart from the other spouse are the separate property of the earning spouse [Fam. Code § 771; see discussion in Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation]. Thus, if the legal spouses are separated during the period of the putative marriage, as would typically occur, the earnings of the bigamous spouse are his or her separate property, and the legal spouse arguably could not assert the right to succeed to any of the quasi-marital property on the basis of the rule governing succession to community property [see Prob. Code §§ 100, 6401(a) (applicable when decedent dies on or after January 1, 1985)]. However, the legal spouse might still be entitled to succeed to a portion of the quasi-marital property under the rules governing intestate succession to separate property [see Prob. Code § 6401(c)], subject to the equitable principles as noted in discussion in § 25.80[3][a].

In Estate of Vargas, the decedent lived a double life for 24 years as husband and father to two separate families, neither of which knew of the other's existence until the after the decedent's intestate death in 1969. In probate proceedings, the court found the second of the two wives to be the decedent's putative spouse and divided the estate equally between the two wives. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment, noting that neither the statutes governing intestate succession nor the statutes governing disposition of marital property were designed to cope with the extraordinary circumstance of purposeful bigamy at the expense of two innocent spouses and that the court must therefore resort to equitable principles [Estate of Vargas (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 714, 718, 111 Cal. Rptr. 779] . The court concluded that an equal division of the estate was equitable, given that both wives had contributed to the estate in indeterminable amounts and proportions [Estate of Vargas (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 714, 719, 111 Cal. Rptr. 779] . In contrast to both Sousa and Freitas, the result in Vargas would appear to be unaffected by the 1971 change in the law governing the earnings of spouses while living separate and apart, because the decedent in Vargas was not living separate and apart from the legal spouse during the course of the putative marriage, but instead lived with both spouses during that period. Thus, the legal spouse could claim a community interest in the decedent's earnings during the putative marriage, and the putative spouse could claim an interest in those same earnings as quasi-marital property.

In Estate of Hafner, the decedent married his first wife in New York, but subsequently left her and moved to California. The first wife had four children by this marriage. Although the first wife brought child support proceedings against the decedent, she never sought a divorce from him. After moving to California, decedent married a second wife and had no further contact with his first wife, although he remained legally married to her. Decedent assured the second wife that he had divorced his first wife, but that his divorce records had been destroyed in a fire. The second wife relied on the decedent's representations in good faith and had no reason to believe otherwise. She and decedent lived together continuously as husband and wife until the decedent died intestate. His entire estate consisted of the proceeds of a personal injury settlement that arose out of an automobile accident that occurred during the second, putative marriage. The trial court in Hafner concluded that the second, putative wife should succeed to the decedent's entire estate as his surviving spouse [Estate of Hafner (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1371, 1383, 229 Cal. Rptr. 676] .

However, the court of appeal in Hafner reversed. It reasoned that in relation to the legal wife and the children, the estate was the decedent's separate property [Estate of Hafner (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1371, 1383, 229 Cal. Rptr. 676 ; see former Civ. Code § 5126(a)(2) (now codified in Fam. Code § 781(a)(2))]. In relation to the putative wife, the decedent's estate was quasi-marital property, because it would have been community property if her marriage to the decedent had been valid [Estate of Hafner (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1371, 1383-1384, 229 Cal. Rptr. 676 ; see former Civ. Code § 4452 (now codified in Fam. Code § 2251(a)); see also Fam. Code § 780]. The court noted that based solely on the governing statutes, an argument could be made that the entire estate was the decedent's separate property and therefore should pass entirely to the decedent's surviving legal spouse and her children under the laws of intestate succession [see Prob. Code §§ 6401(c), 6402(a)]. Alternatively, it could be argued that the estate, being quasi-marital property, should pass entirely to the putative spouse as if it were community property of the decedent and the putative spouse [see Fam. Code § 2251(a); Prob. Code §§ 100, 6401(a)]. The court also concluded that the result under either interpretation would be grossly unfair and unconscionable, given that the statutes were not designed to provide for the unique circumstances of this case. Applying equitable principles, it held that one-half of the estate should be distributed to the putative spouse and that the other half of the estate should be distributed to the legal spouse and to the children of the first marriage [Estate of Hafner (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1371, 1380, 1393-1394, 229 Cal. Rptr. 676] .

[1] FORM Petition for Judgment of Nullity [Fam. Code § 2250(a); Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-100]

Click here to view image.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a filled-in reproduction of the mandatory Judicial Council form of Petition (Family Law) for use in seeking a judgment of nullity of marriage [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-100; see Fam. Code § 2250]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

For a form of judgment of nullity, see § 25.142.

[3] Contents of Petition

The nullity petition uses the same form that is used to initiate marital dissolution or legal separation proceedings, and the comments here focus only on matters pertinent to nullity proceedings. For a general, detailed discussion and instructions for completing the family law petition, see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure .

As illustrated here, the form assumes that the petitioner is one of the parties to the void or voidable marriage. However, in certain circumstances the proceeding may be brought by other persons [see Fam. Code § 2211(a)(2), (b)(2), (c) (discussed in the § 25.15)].

In the caption, the box for "Nullity of Marriage" should be checked. Item 1 (residence) should be left blank as it is only relevant to dissolution proceedings [see Fam. Code § 2320].

Counsel should pay particular attention to the date of separation in Item 2, as this may have a significant impact on the division of any property at issue in the proceeding. For further discussion on the division of property and other assets, see generally Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

In Item 6, boxes c and/or d should be checked to indicate that nullity of marriage is sought. The box pertaining to the relevant ground or grounds for nullity should also be checked.

The petitioner may also request alternative relief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.114]. For example, he or she may request a dissolution of marriage in the alternative. For further discussion on this option, see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure .

Counsel should be sure to include his or her California State Bar membership number in the space provided in the caption for counsel's identifying information, to comply with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111.

[4] Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act Declaration

A declaration under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act [Fam. Code § 3400 et seq.] must be filed with the petition if there are minor children of the marriage [see Fam. Code § 3429]. The petitioner should complete the separate Judicial Council form of Declaration Under Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act (Cal Judicial Council Form FL-105) and attach it to the petition.

See Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure , for further discussion and a filled-in reproduction of the Judicial Council UCCJEA form.

[5] Service

A copy of the petition together with a copy of the summons is required to be served on the respondent in the same manner as service of papers in civil actions generally [Fam. Code § 2250(b); see Cal. Judicial Council Forms FL-110, FL-115].

The summons contains certain temporary restraining orders, which are effective against both parties until a final judgment is entered or the petition is dismissed, or until further order of the court [see Fam. Code §§ 231 et seq., 2040; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.110]. For a filled-in reproduction of the Judicial Council form of summons and further discussion, see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure .

[2] Use of Form

This form is a filled-in reproduction of the mandatory Judicial Council form of Response (Family Law) for use in responding to a petition for nullity of marriage [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-120]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

A copy of the response must be served on the petitioner and the original filed within 30 days of the date of the service on the respondent of a copy of the petition and summons [see Fam. Code § 2020; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1054; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 5.10(e), 5.15].

[3] Contents of Response

The form illustrated is the same general form that is used in dissolution proceedings, but it has been completed to illustrate a response to a nullity petition. For a detailed general discussion and instructions for completing the response form, see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure . The comments below focus on matters pertinent to nullity proceedings.

The box for "Nullity of Marriage" in the caption should be checked, unless counsel is requesting alternative relief, such as dissolution, in which case the box "and REQUEST FOR" should be checked, and the box for the appropriate alternative relief should be checked. Item 1 (residence) should be checked if respondent is seeking dissolution as alternative relief [see Fam. Code § 2320]; otherwise, it should be left blank.

The respondent may wish to deny the grounds set forth in Item 6 of the petition, in which case he or she should check Item 7 of the response. The respondent should then be prepared to present evidence to the court in support of his or her denial of the grounds set forth by petitioner.

The respondent may leave blank Item 8, check the same box as is in the petition, or check a box praying for relief on another grounds, or alternative relief (such as dissolution) [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.114].

Counsel should be sure to include his or her California State Bar membership number in the space provided in the caption for counsel's identifying information, to comply with California Rules of Court, Rule 2.111.

[4] Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act Declaration

The respondent must file a declaration under the UCCJEA if there are minor children of the marriage [see Fam. Code § 3409]. This may be accomplished by filing a separate Judicial Council form of declaration (Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-105). For further discussion and an illustrative filled-in copy of the applicable form, see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure .

[5] State Statutes

Service and filing of response within 30 days after service of petition. Fam. Code § 2020

[2] Use of Form

This form is a filled-in reproduction of the mandatory Judicial Council form of Judgment (Family Law), for use in a proceeding for nullity of marriage [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-180]. An attachment to the judgment is also illustrated. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Contents of Form

This form, which is also used for judgments in marital dissolution and legal separation proceedings, has been completed to illustrate its use in nullity proceedings [see Fam. Code §§ 2212, 2250 et seq.]. For a general discussion of and detailed instructions for completing the family law judgment form, see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure .

In completing the Judgment form, note that certain forms governing specific topics must be attached. If the judgment contains original or modified personal conduct restraining orders, counsel should check the appropriate box in Paragraph 1, as well as listing their expiration date [see generally Fam. Code § 6200 et seq.]. In Paragraph 1 of the judgment, counsel also must specify which page or pages of the attachment contain the personal conduct restraining orders. If support provisions are contained in the judgment, additional forms must be attached, to the extent they otherwise apply to the orders made. For child support, these include the Judicial Council forms of Child Support Information and Order Attachment, and Stipulations to Establish or Modify Child Support and Order [Cal. Judicial Council Forms FL-342, FL-350]. For spousal support, the Judicial Council form of Spousal or Family Support Order Attachment must be attached [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-343]. In addition, when the judgment contains provisions for child or family support, the Judicial Council forms of Notice of Rights and Responsibilities and of Information Sheet on Changing a Child Support Order must be attached to the judgment [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-192], and, within 10 days of the issuance of the judgment, both parties must complete and file with the court a Child Support Case Registry Form [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-191]. When provisions for child custody or visitation are contained in the judgment, they must be set forth in the Judicial Council form of Child Custody and Visitation Order Attachment [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-341].

Property orders should be reflected in item 4n. The appropriate box should be checked if the optional Judicial Council form of Property Order Attachment to Judgment is utilized [see Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-345].

Item 4p provides a space for counsel to list "Other" types of orders. This box might be used to set out orders for attorney's fees, for example, when these are not otherwise embodied in a settlement agreement or stipulation attached to the judgment. When the space adjacent to item 4p is not sufficient to describe the order, counsel should include an attached page, marked to indicate that it is "Attachment 4p" to the judgment.

[4] Notice of Entry of Judgment

Every person who submits a judgment for signature by the court must also submit a Notice of Entry of Judgment, along with sufficient preaddressed, postage-paid mailing envelopes, [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.136(a); see also Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-190]. The Form FL-190 must be filled-in except for the designation of the date, book, and page where entered, the date of mailing, and signatures [Cal. Rule of Ct., Rules 5.136(b); see Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-190]. Failure to comply with the requirements will be cause for refusal to sign the judgment [Cal. Rule of Ct., Rules 5.136(d)].

For further discussion and a filled-in reproduction of the notice of entry of judgment, see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure .

§ 26.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses answers to complaints and cross complaints, and includes the following forms:

- Illustrations of the form and content of answers [see §§ 26.60 -26.80].
- Denials and other controverting allegations [see §§ 26.90 -26.101].
- Illustrations of the form and content of defenses [see §§ 26.110 -26.112].
- Affirmative defenses [see §§ 26.113, 26.114].
- Prayers to an answer [see § 26.120].
- Verification of an answer [see § 26.121].
- Stipulations, and orders made on stipulation, relating to answers [see §§ 26.130 -26.133].

A Procedural Checklist covering the essential parts of an answer [see § 26.50] and a Research Guide [see § 26.30] are also included.

Concluding this chapter is Part VI. Table of Affirmative Defense Forms [see § 26.150 et seq.], which is a quick reference for finding forms of affirmative defenses throughout California Forms of Pleading and Practice. Where appropriate, the table includes cross references to primary authority related to the affirmative defense.

For additional forms of answers and affirmative defenses in the various chapters in this publication, see the Index.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

3-26 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 26.10

§ 26.10 Governing Law

[1] In General

The pleadings allowed in civil actions, including answers, are set forth in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 91(a) and 422.10. The form and content of answers are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b) and 431.10-431.70. The filing by a cross defendant (third-party defendant), against whom a cross complaint for indemnity has been filed, of a special answer to the pleading asserting defenses to the cause of action against the cross complainant (third-party plaintiff) is authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 428.70(b). Objections to a complaint or cross complaint that may be made by answer or demurrer are covered in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.30-430.80.

Signatures on pleadings, and the certification of pleadings by presenting them to the court are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7, which is patterned on Fed. R. Civ. P. 11 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(i) (application of § 128.7, sanctions for frivolous tactics in actions commenced on or after January 1, 1995); for discussion, see Ch. 510, Sanctions ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 (sanctions applicable to actions filed before 1995)].

The time in which an answer or other responsive pleading must be filed is governed by the following:

- Response to a summons: Code Civ. Proc. § 412.20(a)(3).
- Demurrer to a complaint or cross complaint: Code Civ. Proc. § 430.40(a).
- Response to a cross complaint: Code Civ. Proc. § 432.10.
- Response to a summons and answer to a complaint in proceeding for forcible entry, forcible detainer, or unlawful detainer: Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1167, 1167.3, and 1170.
- The time to plead to a complaint or remaining causes of action when a demurrer to fewer than all the causes of action alleged is overruled or sustained: Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(j).

- The time to answer an amended pleading: Code Civ. Proc. §§ 471.5 and 472b.

- The time to answer when a demurrer to the complaint or cross complaint is overruled: Code Civ. Proc. § 472 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(g).

- Extensions of time to plead: Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473(a), 1054, 1054.1, and 1167.5.

Motions to strike pleadings in whole or in part are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 435-437, and extensions of time within which to answer when a motion to strike a complaint or cross complaint in whole or in part has been filed without demurring are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 435(c) and 472a(d).

[2] Trial Court Delay Reduction Act

Trial court delay reduction rules implementing the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act (Gov. Code § 68600 et seq.) often affect answers. Under Gov. Code § 68616(b), local rules may not require responsive pleadings to be filed less than 30 days after service of the complaint. Section 68616 expressly authorizes the parties to stipulate to an additional 15 days to respond. Beyond that, local rule may authorize exceptions for longer periods of time [Gov. Code § 68616(b)]. Local rules commonly track this provision, and may go on to set the times for responding to an amended complaint [see Los Angeles Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.7(a)(3)]. Local rule may also address exceptions allowing longer times to respond [see Los Angeles Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.7(b) (extension by court on showing of good cause)].

Within 30 days of service of the responsive pleadings, the parties may, by stipulation filed with the court, agree to a single continuance not to exceed 30 days [Gov. Code § 68616(d)].

Chapter 26 ANSWERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

3-26 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 26.11

§ 26.11 Kinds of Pleadings in Civil Actions and Terminology

The pleadings allowed in a civil action are the complaint, demurrer, answer, and cross complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.10; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 91, 92(a) (pleadings in most limited civil cases)]. A civil action is commenced by the filing of a complaint with the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 411.10]. Likewise, a cross action is commenced by the filing of a cross complaint [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 432.10]. The complaint and cross complaint state the facts constituting a cause of action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10] and may, therefore, be referred to as "charging" pleadings. The demurrer and answer "respond to" the charging pleading and are generally referred to as "responsive" pleadings.

The two types of judicial remedies are "actions" and "special proceedings" [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 20, 21]. The term "action" is defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 22, while the term "civil action" is defined in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 25 and 30. Part Two of the Code of Civil Procedure, which embraces Code Civ. Proc. §§ 307-1062.10, is entitled "Civil Actions" and sets forth the procedural rules applicable to them.

The term "special proceeding" is defined as every remedy other than an action [Code Civ. Proc. § 23]. Part Three of the Code of Civil Procedure, which embraces Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1063-1822.59, is entitled "Special Proceedings" and sets forth the procedural rules applicable to them.

Chapter 26 ANSWERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

3-26 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 26.12

§ 26.12 "Answer"

[1] Defined

An answer is a pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.10] filed by a defendant or cross defendant in a civil action in response to a complaint or cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(a),(b)]. It is also a pleading filed by a defendant, respondent, or real party in interest in a special proceeding when authorized by statute [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069.1 (certiorari proceedings), 1089 (mandate proceedings), 1105 (prohibition proceedings), 1167.3 and 1170 (proceeding for forcible entry, forcible detainer, or unlawful detainer), 1250.230 (eminent domain proceeding)].

[2] Function

Pleadings consist of the formal allegations of the parties of their respective claims and defenses for the judgment of the court. The function of the pleadings is to outline the issues so that the parties may know what is involved in the litigation [Fibreboard Paper Products Corp. v. East Bay Union of Machinists (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 675, 708, 39 Cal. Rptr. 64] . The issues in the case are initially raised by the material allegations of the complaint or cross complaint. However, issues in a case do not arise or exist so as to require trial on the mere filing of a complaint. Rather, trial is required only on issues that are joined through appropriate denials and affirmative defenses, which are deemed denied, made or set forth in the answer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.20(b); Carlton v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 282, 289, 67 Cal. Rptr. 568] .

Hence, the function of the answer generally is to apprise the other party to the litigation and the court of the defendant's or cross defendant's position with respect to the allegations in the complaint or cross complaint; that is, it raises issues of fact. Issues of fact arise in the following ways [Code Civ. Proc. § 590; see also § 26.15, below)]:

- On a material allegation in the complaint controverted by the answer.
- On new matters in the answer, except an issue of law is joined thereon.

Thus, the function of the charging pleading and the answer taken together is to identify the fact issues to be tried. Or, put another way, one of the functions of the pleadings is to limit the issues and to narrow the proofs. If facts alleged in the complaint are not controverted by the answer, they are not in issue [Fuentes v. Tucker (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 1, 4, 187 P.2d 752 ; see also discussion at § 26.17[5], below].

[3] Appearance in Action

A defendant appears in an action when he or she answers [Code Civ. Proc. § 1014]. For discussion of other acts constituting a general appearance under Code Civ. Proc. § 1014, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal . After appearance, a defendant or his or her attorney is entitled to notice of all subsequent proceedings of which notice is required to be given. When a defendant has not appeared, service of notice or papers need not be made on him or her [Code Civ. Proc. § 1014].

Chapter 26 ANSWERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

3-26 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 26.13

§ 26.13 Time to Answer

[1] Charging Pleading

A responsive pleading, which term includes an answer, to a complaint in a civil action must be served and filed within 30 days after the summons was served on the party responding [see Code Civ. Proc. § 412.20(a)(3) (setting forth required contents of the summons)]. For discussion of service of the summons and forms of summonses, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

The time in which a responsive pleading must be filed in a special proceeding is normally governed by the statutes governing the special proceeding [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1167, 1167.3, 1170 (five days in forcible entry, forcible detainer, or unlawful detainer proceeding), discussed in Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions].

A party served with a cross complaint in a civil action may, within 30 days after service, move, demur, or otherwise plead to the cross complaint in the same manner as to an original complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 432.10].

[2] Amended Pleading

An answer to an amended pleading in a civil action must be served and filed within 30 days after the amendments or complaint as amended is served, or such other time as the court may direct [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 471.5]. The time to answer an amended complaint in forcible entry, forcible detainer, or unlawful detainer proceeding, is set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1167.3 (discussed in Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions).

When a complaint is amended "of course," the time within which the defendant must respond is computed from the date of notice of the amendment [Code Civ. Proc. § 472]., procedure, and forms of amended pleadings, see Ch. 21, Amended Supplemental Pleadings .

[3] After Ruling on Demurrer

When a demurrer to an answer is sustained or a demurrer to a complaint is overruled, and time to amend or answer is given, the time given runs from the service of notice of the decision or order, unless the notice is waived in open court and the waiver entered in the minutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 472b]. Following a ruling on a demurrer, unless otherwise ordered, leave to answer or amend within 10 days is deemed granted, except for proceedings in forcible entry, forcible detainer, or unlawful detainer in which case five calendar days are deemed granted [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(g); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1167.3 (forcible entry, etc.)].

For further discussion, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings ; and Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions .

[4] After Demurrer to Fewer Than All Causes of Action

When a demurrer has been made to fewer than all the causes of action alleged in a complaint, unless otherwise ordered by the court, the defendant has 10 days to move to strike, demur, or otherwise plead to the complaint or to the remaining causes of action after any of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(j)]:

- The overruling of the demurrer.
- The amendment of the complaint or the expiration of the time to amend if the demurrer was sustained with leave to amend.
- The sustaining of the demurrer if the demurrer was sustained without leave to amend.

[5] Extensions of Time

Extensions of time within which to plead are authorized by the following provisions:

- Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473(a) empowers a court to enlarge the time to answer or demur in furtherance of justice and on such terms as may be proper, or to allow an answer to be made after the time limited on such terms as may be just.
- Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 allows an extension for good cause shown.
- Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1 allows extensions in specified circumstances when an attorney of record of the party applying for the extension is a member of the California Legislature.

For stipulations and orders extending the time to plead, see §§ 26.132, 26.133.

and forms for use in securing an extension of time to plead, see Ch. 524, Shortening and Extension of Time .

Limitations on or special procedures for obtaining extensions of time to plead may apply in counties that have trial court delay reduction programs. of local rules of participating counties, see Ch. 552, Trial Court Delay Reduction .

[6] Failure to Answer Within Time Allowed

An entry of a default and default judgment may be made following a defendant's failure to answer or otherwise file a responsive pleading or specified notice of motion or petition within the period specified in the summons or otherwise allowed by law [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 586]. and forms relating to the entry and relief from the entry of defaults and default judgments, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders .

An "immaterial allegation" in a pleading is any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.10(b)]:

- An allegation that is not essential to the statement of a claim or defense.
- An allegation that is neither pertinent to nor supported by an otherwise sufficient claim or defense.
- A demand for judgment requesting relief not supported by the allegations of the complaint or cross complaint.

An "immaterial allegation" means "irrelevant matter," as that term is used in Code Civ. Proc. § 436 (relating to motions to strike) [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.10(c)].

§ 26.17 Contents of Answer

[1] Items That May Be Included in Answers

[a] In General

An answer to a complaint or cross complaint is required to contain [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(a)(1) (term "complaint" includes cross complaint)]:

- A general or specific denial of the material allegations of the complaint or cross complaint controverted (that is, disputed) by the defendant or cross defendant, and
- A statement of any new matter constituting a defense.

An answer may also admit the truth of material allegations, thereby establishing them as fact and removing them from the issues to be tried [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.20(a) and discussion at [5], below].

Affirmative relief may not, however, be claimed in the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(c)]. Such relief must be claimed in a cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 426, 30, 428.10, 428.80, and Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints].

[b] Controverted Matter

The defendant or cross defendant may deny or otherwise controvert material allegations in the complaint or cross complaint, in which case the issues on those allegations are joined [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 588, 590(1); see also Jetty v. Craco (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 876, 880, 267 P.2d 1055] . Because denials may take various forms, perhaps the more comprehensive term "controverting matter" better describes the first set of items that the answer must contain than does "general or specific denial." Controverting matter may then be said to include not only express denials, but denials by implication resulting from, for example, a direct allegation of a fact contrary to the one alleged in the complaint or cross complaint.

Controverting matter, then, informs the plaintiff and other parties, and the court, of defendant's position with respect to the material allegations of the complaint or cross complaint that are disputed and identifies the material fact issues to be tried.

[c] New Matter

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2), the answer may also allege new matter constituting a defense not otherwise disclosed by the pleadings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2); State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 721, 725, 279 Cal. Rptr. 116 ; Jetty v. Craco(1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 876, 880, 267 P.2d 1055] . This new matter is referred to as an affirmative defense or, if more than one, affirmative defenses [see, e.g., Erler v. Five Points Motors, Inc. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 560, 562, 57 Cal. Rptr. 516] . Affirmative defenses are discussed at [7], below.

"New matter" is something relied on by the defendant that is not put in issue by the plaintiff; thus, matters not responsive to essential allegations of complaint are new matter that must be raised in the answer. Facts set forth in an answer showing the untruth of some essential allegation of complaint do not constitute new matter [State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 721, 725, 279 Cal. Rptr. 116] .

[d] Privacy Protections: Redacting Social Security Numbers and Financial Account Numbers and Use of Confidential Reference List

Parties or their attorneys must not include, or must redact, certain identifiers from documents or records filed with the court do not apply to documents or records that by court order or operation of law are filed in their entirety either confidentially or under seal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.20(b)(1)]. To protect personal privacy and other legitimate interests, parties and their attorneys must not include, or must redact where inclusion is necessary, the following identifiers from all pleadings and other papers filed in the court's public file, whether filed in paper or electronic form, unless otherwise provided by law or ordered by the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.20(b)(2)]:

- Social security numbers. If an individual's social security number is required in a pleading or other paper filed in the public file, only the last four digits of that number may be used.

- Financial account numbers. If financial account numbers are required in a pleading or other paper filed in the public file, only the last four digits of these numbers may be used.

The responsibility for excluding or redacting identifiers identified above from all documents filed with the court rests solely with the parties and their attorneys. The court clerk will not review each pleading or other paper for compliance with this provision [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.20(b)(3)].

If the court orders on a showing of good cause, a party filing a document containing identifiers listed above may file a reference list, along with the redacted document that will be placed in the public file, a reference list. The reference list is confidential. For that purpose, a party filing a confidential reference list must use Judicial Council Form MC-120, Confidential Reference List of Identifiers. The confidential list must identify each item of redacted information and specify an appropriate reference that uniquely corresponds to each item of redacted information listed. All references in the case to the redacted identifiers included in the confidential reference list will be understood to refer to the corresponding complete identifier. A party may amend its reference list as of right [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.20(b)(4)].

For a form of Judicial Council Form MC-120, Confidential Reference List of Identifiers, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross-Complaints, § 123.69.

[2] Form and Effect of General Denials

General denials [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(1)], which are one class of controverting matter, usually in a single sentence, deny each and every allegation of the complaint. A general denial, however, only puts in issue the material allegations of the complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d); see FPI Development, Inc. v. Nakashima (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 367, 383, 282 Cal. Rptr. 508] . Moreover, a general denial only puts in issue the allegations of a complaint if:

- The general denial is in answer to an unverified complaint or to a complaint, whether verified or not, subject to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 90-100 (discussed at § 26.19[3]) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]; or

- The action is one in which the demand, exclusive of interest, or the value of the property in controversy, does not exceed $1,000 and in which, in lieu of a demurrer or other answer, the defendant files a general written denial on the Judicial Council prescribed form [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.40(a), (c); see § 26. 90].

[3] Form of Specific Denials

Specific denials [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(1)], in theory, single out the specific allegations of the complaint to be controverted, and positively [see §§ 26.91 -26.94], or according to information and belief [see § 26.95], deny each such allegation in its turn [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. Moreover, if the defendant has no information or belief on the subject sufficient to enable him or her to answer an allegation of the complaint, the defendant may so state in the answer and place his or her denial on that ground [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(e); see § 26.96].

Adherence to the strict form of specific denial has not been necessary in California since the 1927 amendment to former Code Civ. Proc. § 437, the predecessor to Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30 [see Conley v. Lieber (1979)97 Cal. App. 3d 646, 655-656, 158 Cal. Rptr. 770] . For example, the denials of the allegations controverted may be stated by reference to specific paragraphs or parts of the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(f); see also Heusner v. Fleck (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 578, 582, 323 P.2d 155 (construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 437); Edger v. Foster (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 580, 583, 120 P.2d 134 (same)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Denial by Paragraphs. An answered contained denials of paragraphs, instead of the allegations within the paragraphs. Was that sufficient to raise material issues of fact? Yes, but the court criticized the denials as being neither logical nor grammatical [Edger v. Foster (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 580, 583, 120 P.2d 134] .

Denials of the allegations controverted may also be stated by express admission of certain allegations of the complaint with a general denial of all of the allegations not so admitted; or by denial of certain allegations on information and belief, or for lack of sufficient information or belief, with a general denial of all allegations not so denied or expressly admitted [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(f); see §§ 26.97 -26.101]. Denials in that format do not constitute negatives pregnant [see Conley v. Lieber (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 646, 656, 656 n. 3, 158 Cal. Rptr. 770 ; see also [4], below]. Thus, defendants responding to verified complaints are spared the difficulties and the hazards of restating the allegations of the complaint and denying each of them in turn, risking the chance that any given denial may constitute a negative pregnant [see Reinert v. Proud (1935) 8 Cal. App. 2d 169, 170-171, 47 P.2d 491 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 437)].

[4] Negatives Pregnant

Specific denials, no matter how stated, should be of the substance of the allegation, not of its form. Thus a statement that "Defendant denies that said allegation is true in matter and form as stated" is not a good denial, but is a negative pregnant and amounts to an admission that the substance of the matter alleged is true. While it has been said that the best form of specific denial is in the very language of the allegation denied, there is always the danger that such a denial will be a negative pregnant.

ILLUSTRATION:

Failure of Denial to State "or Any Other Sum" or "or Any Part Thereof." Plaintiff alleged that he or she was damaged in the sum of $1,000. Defendant denied "that plaintiff was damaged in the sum of $1,000" without adding "or any other sum." Has defendant impliedly admitted that plaintiff was damaged in some lesser sum? Yes [Kennedy v. RosecransGardens, Inc. (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 87, 89 249 P.2d 593] . Defendant denied that the sum mentioned in complaint was "wholly" due and payable. Is that an admission that some amount is due any payable? Yes. That was held to admit that all but one dollar of the sum mentioned in the complaint was due and payable [Armer v. Dorton (1942) 50 Cal. App. 2d 413, 415, 123 P.2d 94 ; Connecticut Mut. L. Ins. Co. v. Most (1940) 39 Cal. App. 2d 634, 640, 103 P.2d 1013] . Plaintiff alleged "that the whole of said real property is necessary for the convenient use and occupation of said barn and grain elevator." Defendant denied "that the whole of said real property is necessary for the convenient use and/or occupation of the barn and/or grain elevator." Has defendant admitted that some portion of the property less than the whole is necessary for the convenient use and occupation of the barn and grain elevator? Yes [California Corrugated C. Co. v. Stewart (1932) 215 Cal. 120, 123, 8 P.2d 1013] .

California Corrugated, Armer, and Connecticut Mut, used in the illustration, above, have all been described as involving true negatives pregnant [Conley v. Lieber (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 646, 656 n. 3, 158 Cal. Rptr. 770 ; compare In re Kyle (1947) 77 Cal. App. 2d 634, 640, 176 P.2d 96 (set forth at § 26.34[7][b], example of "negative pregnant in an affirmative form")]. A specific form of negative pregnant consists of the conjunctive denial. Thus, when plaintiff alleges "A and B" or "A, B, and C," and defendant denies "A and B" or "A, B, and C," defendant may discover that he or she has impliedly admitted that one or more but less than all of the matters alleged is true [see Janeway & Carpender v. Long Beach Co. (1922) 190 Cal. 150, 153, 211 P. 6] .

ILLUSTRATION:

The Danger of Conjunctive Denials. Defendant denied that it "made, executed, and delivered" a contract. Did that form of denial admit the execution of the contract? Yes. Use of the conjunction "and" limited the denial to a simple statement that defendant did not do all three things, leaving an admission that it did any two of them [Janeway & Carpender v. Long Beach Co. (1922) 190 Cal. 150, 153, 211 P. 6] .

[5] Admissions

[a] Effect of Admission

Allegations in a complaint or cross complaint may be admitted expressly or by simple failure to controvert them [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 431.20(a), 431.30(f); see also Fuentes v. Tucker (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 1, 5, 187 P.2d 752 ;Amusing Sandwich, Inc. v. City of Palm Springs (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d1116, 1130, 211 Cal. Rptr. 911] . When an allegation is admitted, the plaintiff is relieved of the need to prove that allegation at trial [see Evid. Code §§ 210, 350]. But, sometimes to defendant's advantage, plaintiff is also denied the privilege of offering any evidence on the issue raised by that allegation [see Fuentes v. Tucker (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 1, 7, 187 P.2d 752 (disapproving House v. Pacific Greyhound Lines (1939) 35 Cal. App. 2d 336, 95 P.2d 465 ; Behrendt v. Times-Mirror Co. (1938) 30 Cal. App. 2d 77, 85 P.2d 949 ; and Rowe v. Rennick (1931) 112 Cal. App. 576, 297 P. 603)].

This result follows because admitted facts are not in issue [Fuentes v. Tucker (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 1, 4, 187 P.2d 752 ; Johnston v. Security Ins. Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 839, 844, 86 Cal. Rptr. 133] . Evidence which is not pertinent to the issues raised by the pleadings is not relevant [see Evid. Code §§ 210, 350], and it is error to allow the introduction of such evidence at trial [Fuentes v. Tucker (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 1, 4, 187 P.2d 752 ; see also Lever v. Garoogian (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 37, 39, 115 Cal. Rptr. 856 (rule is well established that evidence cannot be used to establish issue that parties have not made in their pleadings)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Admission Prevents Plaintiff From Introducing Evidence That Might Be Inflammatory. In an action for the wrongful death of a minor child arising from negligence when the evidence establishing liability arose from reprehensible conduct that might have inflamed a jury and affected its award of damages, defendant admitted liability. Did that prevent the plaintiff's presenting evidence on that issue to the jury in the trial of the damages issue to the extent that such evidence is not relevant to the damages issue? Yes [see Fuentes v. Tucker (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 1, 5-7, 187 P.2d 752 ; see also Krouse v. Graham (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 59, 79, 137 Cal. Rptr. 863, 562 P.2d 1022 (liability admitted by stipulation)].

The introduction of evidence of admitted facts is permissible if the admission is ambiguous in form or limited in scope or when, during the trial of a case, a party seeks to deprive his or her opponent of the legitimate force and effect of material evidence by the bald admission of a probative fact [Fuentes v. Tucker (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 1, 7, 187 P.2d 752] .

[b] Admissions Are Not Necessary Except as Part of Qualified Denial

Because material allegations of the complaint, if not controverted by the answer, are for the purposes of the action taken as true [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.20(a)], there is no need for a defendant to expressly admit anything except if he or she wishes to make a qualified general denial, coupling the express admission of certain allegations with a general denial of all allegations not so admitted [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(f)]. Indeed, it is probably poor form to plead express admissions except as part of a qualified general denial, although some defense attorneys do so as a matter of course or to be sure they gain the benefit of preventing plaintiff's presenting evidence on the admitted issue.

[6] Denial by Affirmative Allegations

In addition to general or specific denials, allegations of the complaint may be controverted by affirmative allegations in the answer. Any allegation in the answer that, if found to be true, necessarily shows that the allegation of the complaint as to the same matter is untrue, is sufficient as a denial [Burris v. People's Ditch Co. (1894) 104 Cal. 248, 253, 37 P. 922 ; Blume v. MacGregor (1944) 64 Cal. App. 2d 244, 253, 148 P.2d 656] . Thus, when a defendant affirmatively alleges his or her ownership of particular property, this may be treated as equivalent to a denial of plaintiff's allegation that plaintiff owns the property [Elliott v. Bertsch (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 543, 547, 139 P.2d 332] .

[7] Affirmative Defenses

[a] Distinguished From Denials

The defenses set out in the answer as new matter are referred to as affirmative defenses [see, e.g., Erler v. Five Points Motors, Inc. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 560, 562, 57 Cal. Rptr. 516 ; Jetty v. Craco (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 876, 880, 267 P.2d 1055] . The answer may allege any new matter constituting a defense not otherwise disclosed by the pleadings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2); Jetty v. Craco (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 876, 880, 267 P.2d 1055] .

"Affirmative defenses" consist of all defenses that were formerly referred to as "pleas in abatement," "dilatory pleas," "pleas in bar," "defenses on the merits," and "pleas of confession and avoidance."

[b] What Constitutes New Matter

Whether matter is new or not is determined by the matter itself, and not by the form in which it is pleaded. The test is whether it operates as a traverse or by way of confession and avoidance [see Goddard v. Fulton (1863) 21 Cal. 430, 436 ; see also Erler v. Five Points Motors, Inc. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 560, 565-567, 57 Cal. Rptr. 516] , that is, whether it denies the plaintiff's allegations or alleges that a defense exists even if the complaint's allegations are true.

The difference between the "controverting matter," discussed at [6], above, and "new matter" is as follows: if the matter alleged in the answer shows only that some essential allegation of the complaint is not true, then it is not new matter, but only a traverse (that is, a denial). If, on the other hand, the matter alleged sets forth facts from which it results that no cause of action existed in the plaintiff at the time the action was brought, notwithstanding the truth of the allegations of the complaint, then the allegations are of new matter [Goddard v. Fulton (1863) 21 Cal. 430, 436 ; Lever v. Garoogian (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 37, 39, 115 Cal. Rptr. 856 ; see also Erler v. Five Points Motors, Inc. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 560, 566, 57 Cal. Rptr. 516] .

New matter can also be something relied on by the defendant which is not put in issue by the plaintiff [see Goddard v. Fulton (1863) 21 Cal. 430, 436 ; Erler v. Five Points Motors, Inc. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 560, 566, 57 Cal. Rptr. 516 ; Jetty v. Craco (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 876, 880, 267 P.2d 1055] which must be pleaded by the defendant [Jetty v. Craco (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 876, 880, 267 P.2d 1055] . Generally, defendant has the burden of proof on new matter [Erler v. Five Points Motors, Inc. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 560, 566, 57 Cal. Rptr. 516] .

[c] Manner of Pleading

Each affirmative defense should plead the ultimate facts establishing the defense in the same manner as if it were set forth in a complaint. Thus, a defense should be so pleaded that if admitted as pleaded, judgment must go for the defendant [see Greiss v. State Investment etc. Co. (1893) 98 Cal. 241, 244, 33 P. 195 ; see also California Packing Corp. v. Larsen (1921) 187 Cal. 610, 612, 203 P. 102 ; Bradbury v. Higginson (1914) 167 Cal. 553, 557, 140 P. 254] .

Conclusory allegations of affirmative defenses without pleading the facts underlying the defenses, such as a laundry list of affirmative defenses stating essentially the name of a defense and that it bars recovery, will not raise an issue of material fact and will not withstand a motion for summary judgment [FPI Development, Inc. v. Nakashima (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 367, 384, 282 Cal. Rptr. 508] .

[d] Waiver by Failure to Plead

A party who fails to plead affirmative defenses waives them [California Academy of Sciences v. County of Fresno (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1436, 1442, 238 Cal. Rptr. 154] . Certain affirmative defenses, such as illegality based on public policy, are not waived by a failure to include the affirmative defense in the answer to the complaint [Yoo v. Robi (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1089, 1103, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 740] .

[e] Multiple Defenses

Defendant may set up as many defenses as he or she may have [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]. However, the defenses must be separately stated and must refer to the causes of action that they are intended to answer in a manner by which they may be intelligibly distinguished [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(g)]. They must also be separately numbered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.112(1)].

[8] Inconsistent Defenses

[a] Allowed

A defendant may plead inconsistent defenses in the answer, but each defense must be consistent in itself [Allstate Ins. Co. v. Kim W. (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 326, 334, 206 Cal. Rptr. 609 ; Poe v. Francis (1933) 132 Cal. App. 330, 335, 22 P.2d 801] . This rule applies whether or not the answer is verified [Banta v. Siller (1898) 121 Cal. 414, 418, 53 P. 935 ; see also McDonald v. Southern Cal. Ry. Co. (1894) 101 Cal. 206, 212-213, 35 P. 643 ; Miller & Lux, Inc., v.

Light & Power Corp. (1932) 120 Cal. App. 589, 601, 8 P.2d 560] . If one separate answer denies all allegations of the complaint, plaintiff is not excused from proving material facts because of admissions of some or all of these facts found in other and separate answers [South Shore Land Co. v. Petersen (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 734, 38 Cal. Rptr. 392] . Nor does affirmative matter pleaded in one defense in an answer does operate to waive a denial contained in another defense [Calexico Lumber Co. v. Emerson (1921) 54 Cal. App. 239, 241, 242, 201 P. 612] . Each defense alleged must be considered separately without regard to any other defense [Miller & Lux, Inc., v. Light & Power Corp. (1932) 120 Cal. App. 589, 601, 8 P.2d 560] .

Although the inconsistency may result merely from pleading different legal theories of defense, inconsistent defenses containing apparent contradictions of fact have also been allowed on the theory that the defendant does not always know what his or her proof will show when the answer is filed [see, e.g., South Santa Clara etc. Dist. v. Johnson (1964) 231 Cal. App. 2d 388, 403, 41 Cal. Rptr. 846 ("It is well established in California that several defenses may be pleaded in an answer though inconsistent in legal theory or in fact")]. A party's contradictory denials and affirmative allegations of fact do not necessarily indicate perjury or fraud, but simply that the party is attempting to raise all issues on which he or she may have some chance of success [Lynch & Freytag v. Cooper (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 603, 613, 267 Cal. Rptr. 189] .

[b] Does Not Waive Denial in Same Answer

A defendant also may deny certain material allegations of the complaint and, subsequently, in an affirmative defense allege that the same material allegations of the complaint are true; and the allegations in the affirmative defense will not constitute an admission of the truth of those allegations in the complaint. Defendant is merely pleading inconsistent defenses [Edger v. Foster (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 580, 583, 120 P.2d 134 ; see also South Shore Land Co. v. Petersen (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 734, 38 Cal. Rptr. 392 ; Calexico Lumber Co. v. Emerson (1921) 54 Cal. App. 239, 241, 242, 201 P. 612] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Defenses May Allege Matter Denied in Answer. In an action for damages for assault and battery, defendant denied plaintiff's allegation and set out separate affirmative defenses of self-defense and removal of plaintiff in defense of defendant's property and to preserve the peace. Did those defenses waive the denial? No [Oppenheimer v. Deutchman (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 450, 453, 259 P.2d 457] . In an action for injunctive relief and damages for negligent maintenance of a ditch allowing seepage, defendant denied any negligence and alleged as a separate affirmative defense a prescriptive right to permit seepage. Did that defense amount to waiver of the denial of negligence? No [Niegel v. Georgetown Divide Water Co. (1947) 78 Cal. App. 2d 445, 446, 177 P.2d 641] .

[c] Constitutes Admission in Later Actions

The rule permitting inconsistent defenses applies, however, only to defenses set up in an answer in the same case. Such defenses may not be considered as admissions against interest in the action in which the answer was filed. However, when a defendant alleges facts in an inconsistent defense in one action and those facts are inconsistent with the position taken by the same party in a subsequent action between the defendant and other parties, statements made in the first verified pleading may be used against the pleader in the subsequent action as an admission against interest [Jones v. Tierney-Sinclair (1945) 71 Cal. App. 2d 366, 374, 162 P.2d 669 (allegation of facts in verified answer in prior action contrary to defendant's claim of prescriptive easement in present action)]. Subsequently, in Fibreboard Paper Products Corp. v. East Bay Union of Machinists (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 675, 39 Cal. Rptr. 64 , the court followed Jones, above, and held that plaintiff's inconsistent statements made in a prior unverified appeal document before the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board should have been admitted in its present action as admissions against interest. The court in Fibreboard said that the rationale of Jones was compatible with the general rule that does not restrict the admissibility of prior inconsistent statements to those made under oath [Fibreboard Pape r Products Corp. v. East Bay

Union of Machinists (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 675, 711-712, 39 Cal. Rptr. 64] . That is, prior inconsistent statements of fact are admissible whether or not the statements were in a verified or an unverified pleading or paper.

[9] Objections by Demurrer or Answer

[a] Enumerated Grounds of Objection

The party against whom a complaint or cross complaint has been filed may object to it by demurrer or answer on any one or more of the following grounds [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10]:

- The court has no jurisdiction of the subject of the cause of action alleged in the pleading.
- The person who filed the pleading does not have legal capacity to sue.
- There is another action pending between the same parties on the same cause of action.
- There is a defect or misjoinder of parties.
- The pleading does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action.
- The pleading is uncertain; "uncertain" includes ambiguous and unintelligible.
- In an action founded on a contract, it cannot be ascertained from the pleading whether the contract is written or oral or whether it is implied by conduct.
- No certificate was filed as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35 (relating to actions against architects, engineers, or land surveyors).

If the ground for objection appears from the face of the complaint or cross complaint or from matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice, the objection may be taken by demurrer; if it does not so appear, the objection may be taken by answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a), (b); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10]. Judicial notice is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 430.70 and Evid. Code §§ 450-460.

Other than the objection that the court lacks subject matter jurisdiction when there is no California court to which the action may be transferred [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 396(b) (transfer of action), 430.10(a)], the objections listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10 constitute "pleas in abatement" [see Ch. 3, Abatement of Actions]. Certain other defenses appearing from the face of the complaint or from matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice and that would bar the action may also be raised by demurrer under Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)), on the theory that the complaint or cross complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. Common illustrations of such defenses are:

- The statutes of limitation [see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions].
- The statute of frauds [see Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds].
- Res judicata [see Ch. 491, Res Judicata].

Without this device, those "pleas in bar" could not be raised by demurrer because they are not expressly enumerated in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10.

No such limitation exists on pleading affirmative defenses. Such pleas in bar may be raised directly in the answer without alleging that the complaint or cross complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(b)(2)].

[b] Waiver of Objections and Exceptions

If the party against whom a complaint or cross complaint has been filed fails to object to the pleading, either by demurrer or answer, the party is deemed to have waived the objection unless it is one of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a)]:

- An objection that the court has no jurisdiction of the subject of the cause of action alleged in the pleading.

- An objection that the pleading does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action.

The objections that the complaint or cross complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] and that the court lacks jurisdiction of the subject of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(a)] may normally be made at any time during the pendency of the proceedings in the trial court [see, e.g., Wilson v. Sharp (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 675, 677, 268 P.2d 1062 ; Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 344, 351, 254 P.2d 6] , or on appeal [see, e.g., Greene v. Municipal Court (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 446, 450, 124 Cal. Rptr. 139] .

A defendant or cross-defendant may move to quash service of summons, move to stay or dismiss the action on the grounds of inconvenient forum, or move to dismiss for delay in prosecution under Code Civ. Proc. 418.10, and simultaneously answer, demur, or move to strike the complaint or cross-complaint, without waiving a general appearance until entry of an order denying the motion [Code Civ. Proc. 418.10(e)].

Objections to a complaint or cross complaint or a portion thereof may also be raised by a motion to strike on any of the grounds set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 436 [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 435-437, and § 26.22[3]].

[10] Setoff of Coexisting Cross Demand

[a] Nature and Purpose of Setoff

The right of setoff, while recognized by former Code Civ. Proc. § 440, and its successor, Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70, was not created by statute, but is grounded in principles of equity; in equity, setoff depends on the equitable jurisdiction of the court over its suitors [Kruger v. Wells Fargo Bank (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 352, 363, 113 Cal. Rptr. 449, 521 P.2d 441 ; see also Jess v. Herrmann (1979) 26 Cal. 3d 131, 142-143, 161 Cal. Rptr. 87, 604 P.2d 208 ; Barnhill v. Robert Saunders & Co. (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 1, 4-5, 177 Cal. Rptr. 803] . Thus, although the doctrine of setoff exists independent of statute, its governing principals are partially codified in Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70, which limits setoff to cross demands for money [Carmel Valley Fire Protection Dist. v. State of California (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 521, 550, 234 Cal. Rptr. 795] .

The underlying purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70 is to prevent one party from sitting on a claim against a particular person and thereby inducing that person to permit his or her counterclaim to become time barred, and then swooping in on the defenseless victim [Carnation Co. v. Olivet Egg Ranch (1986) 189 Cal. App. 3d 809, 821, 229 Cal. Rptr. 261] .

[b] When Allowed

Although affirmative relief may not be claimed in an answer, if cross demands for money have existed between persons at any point in time when neither demand was barred by the statute of limitations, and an action is thereafter commenced by one of those persons, the other may assert in the answer the defense of payment in that the two demands are compensated so far as they equal each other, notwithstanding that an independent action asserting the person's claim would at the time of filing the answer be barred by the statute of limitations [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70; see § 26.114]. If the cross demand would otherwise be barred by the statute of limitations, the relief accorded must not exceed the value of the relief granted to the other party [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70]. Neither person can be deprived of the benefits of Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70 by the assignment or death of the other [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70].

The cross demand need not be liquidated [see Hauger v. Gates (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 752, 755, 269 P.2d 609 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 440)].

Claims of setoff may be raised by way of affirmative defense as well as by cross complaint [American National Bank v. Stanfill (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1089, 1097, 252 Cal. Rptr. 861] . Because Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70 is not clear as to how the defendant is to claim the excess if he or she prevails on the cross demand, the cross demand is not barred by the statute of limitations, and the amount of that cross demand is in excess of the amount sought by plaintiff, if defendant's cross demand is not barred by the statute of limitations and its amount exceeds or might exceed the amount awarded to plaintiff, defendant should plead the cross demand in a cross complaint in addition to alleging it as an affirmative defense in the answer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.80 (abolishing counterclaims and requiring that any claim formerly asserted by counterclaim be asserted by a cross complaint)]. For additional discussion of limitations and considerations in pleading setoff, see § 26.114[2]-[5].

[c] When Not Allowed

The defense provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70 is not available if the cross demand is barred for failure to assert it in a prior action under Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30 (compulsory cross complaint) [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70].

Nor is setoff allowed against money that is exempt from execution [Kruger v. Wells Fargo Bank (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 352, 367, 113 Cal. Rptr. 449, 521 P.2d 441 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 690.175 [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.120, 704.130])]. Similarly, an employer is not entitled to setoff of debts owed it by an employee against any wages due to that employee on his or her discharge [Barnhill v. Robert Saunders & Co. (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 1, 4-6, 177 Cal. Rptr. 803] . For when a setoff may or may not be proper in a comparative fault setting, see Jess v. Herrmann (1979) 26 Cal. 3d 131, 136-143, 161 Cal. Rptr. 87, 604 P.2d 208 .

A cross demand under Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70 by a bank to setoff deposited funds in satisfaction of obligation secured by a deed of trust arises only after the bank has procured a judgment of foreclosure and a deficiency judgment has been entered [Woodruff v. California Republic Bank (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 108, 111, 141 Cal. Rptr. 915] . Similarly, setoff is not available to a creditor that has deficiency remaining after nonjudicial foreclosure under a purchase money deed of trust to offset a debt owed by that creditor to plaintiff-trustors. To allow setoff in that situation, as practical matter, would abrogate Code Civ. Proc. § 580b [Birman v. Loeb (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 502, 511-514, 516-518, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 294] .

[d] Money Judgment

For the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70, a money judgment is a "demand for money." As applied to a money judgment, the demand is barred by the statute of limitations when enforcement of the judgment is barred under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 683.010-683.320 [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70].

[e] Equitable Setoff Distinguished

Equitable setoff or offset is a means by which a debtor may satisfy in whole or in part a judgment or claim held against him or her out of a judgment or claim that he or she has subsequently acquired against the judgment creditor. The right exists independently of statute and rests on the inherent power of the court to do justice to the parties before it [Aplanalp v. Forte (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 609, 615, 275 Cal. Rptr. 144] . However, if the setoff is against a debtor on an obligation secured by a mortgage or trust deed on real property, counsel for the creditor should be aware that the setoff constitutes an "action" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 726 (providing that there can be but one form of action for the recovery of any debt or the enforcement of any right secured by mortgage on real property or an estate for years therein), and hence, either the nonjudicial exercise of the right of setoff, or a lawsuit to enforce a setoff without suing for a judicial foreclosure in the same action, will result in a waiver of the right to foreclose on the security or to sell the security under a power of sale [see Aplanalp v. Forte (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 609, 613-617, 275 Cal. Rptr. 144 ; see also Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages]. Similarly, the public policy behind Code Civ. Proc. § 580b prohibits granting of equitable setoff to allow defendant-creditors to offset a debt owed by them to plaintiff-debtors against a deficiency remaining after nonjudicial foreclosure under a purchase money deed of trust would [Birman v. Loeb (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 502, 511-514, 516-518, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 294] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

3-26 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 26.18

§ 26.18 Signature

[1] Requirement

Beginning January 1, 1995, every pleading must be signed by at least one attorney of record in the attorney's individual name. If a party is not represented by an attorney, the party must sign the papers. Each paper must state the signer's address and telephone number, if any [Code Civ. Proc § 128.7(a)]. An unsigned paper must be stricken unless the omission of the signature is corrected promptly after being called to the attorney's or party's attention [Code Civ. Proc § 128.7(a)].

Actions or proceedings filed on or after January 1, 1995 are subject to sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(i)]. of sanctions under Section 128.7 see Ch. 510, Sanctions .

Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 is patterned on Fed. R. Civ. P. 11, and the signature ties into the grounds for imposing sanctions, as discussed at [2][a], below. For discussion of Rule 11, see Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 11 (3rd ed. Matthew Bender).

[2] Presentation of Answer as Certification

[a] Four Conditions

By presenting an answer to the court an attorney or unrepresented party certifies under Code Civ. Proc § 128.7(b) that to the best of the person's knowledge, information, and belief, formed after an inquiry reasonable under the circumstances, the answer meets four conditions, discussed [b]-[e], below.

A paper is presented to the court by any of the following actions [Code Civ. Proc § 128.7(b)]:

- Signing.
- Filing.

- Submitting.
- Later advocating.

[b] Not Presented Primarily for Improper Purpose

The first condition is that the answer is not being presented primarily for an improper purpose, such as to harass or to cause unnecessary delay or needless increase in litigation cost [Code Civ. Proc § 128.7(b)(1)].

[c] Legal Contentions Are Not Unwarranted

The second condition is that the claims, defenses, and other legal contentions set forth in the answer are warranted by existing law or by a nonfrivolous argument for the extension, modification, or reversal of existing law or the establishment of new law [Code Civ. Proc § 128.7(b)(2)].

[d] Evidentiary Support Exists or Is Likely to Exist After Reasonable Opportunity for Discovery

The third condition is that there is evidentiary support for the allegations and other factual contentions or, if specifically so identified, the allegations and other factual contentions are likely to have evidentiary support after a reasonable opportunity for further investigation or discovery [Code Civ. Proc § 128.7(b)(3)].

[e] Denials Warranted or Reasonably Based on Lack of Information and Belief

The fourth condition is that the denials of factual contentions are warranted on the evidence, or if specifically so identified, are reasonably based on a lack of information or belief [Code Civ. Proc § 128.7(b)(4)].

[3] Reasonable Inquiry

Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 does not define the "inquiry reasonable under the circumstances" that must be the basis of the certification [see [2][a], above]. The standard under Fed. R. Civ. P. 11, on which Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 is patterned, is based on what was reasonable to believe at the time the pleading was submitted. Thus, what constitutes a reasonable inquiry may depend on such factors as how much time for investigation was available to the signer, whether he or she had to rely on a client for information as to the facts underlying the pleading, motion, or other paper, whether the paper was based on a plausible view of the law, or whether he or she depended on forwarding counsel or another member of the bar [see Notes of Advisory Committee on Rules to 1983 Amendments to Rule 11].

This view comports with California cases which require the court to consider timing considerations, such as potential statute of limitations problems when considering imposing sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 [see Atchison, Topeka, & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Stockton Port Dist. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 111, 115, 117, 189 Cal. Rptr. 208] .

[4] Sanctions for Violation of Certification

If the certification of the four conditions discussed above is false, sanctions may be imposed after an opportunity to withdraw or correct the challenged complaint, claim, or allegation [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c)]. For more detailed discussion of sanctions under Section 128.7, Ch. 510, Sanctions.

Chapter 26 ANSWERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

3-26 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 26.19

§ 26.19 Verification

[1] In General

Verification is an affidavit verifying the truth of matters covered by it [Star Motor Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 151 Cal. Rptr. 721] ; its object is to assure good faith in averments or statements of a party to litigation [Star Motor Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 151 Cal. Rptr. 721 ; Hoffman v. City of Palm Springs (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 645, 648, 337 P.2d 521] .

Unless specifically required by statute, a complaint or cross complaint need not be verified. If it is not verified, the answer normally need not be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. However, if the plaintiff is the state, a county, city, school district, district, public agency, or public corporation, or an officer of such an entity acting in his or her official capacity, the answer must be verified, subject to two exceptions. First, the answer need not be verified if an admission of the truth of the complaint might subject the party to criminal prosecution, and second, the answer need not be verified if an officer of one of the public entities listed above, in his or her official capacity, is defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. For a form of verification by an attorney for a party who is not in the county in which the attorney has his or her office, see § 26.121.

An answer that need not be verified may be in the form of a general denial [see § 26.90], which, however, only puts in issue the material allegations of the complaint or cross complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)].

[2] Superior Court Actions Other Than Limited Civil Cases

If the complaint is verified and is filed in a superior court and is not a limited civil case, the answer must be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 91, 92(b), 446]. In addition, the answer's denials must be made positively or according to the defendant's information and belief [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. These rules apply to answers to cross complaints as well as to complaints [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(a)(1)].

[3] Limited Civil Cases

If the complaint is subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 90 et seq., which includes most limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc.

§ 91], the answer need not be verified, even if the complaint or cross complaint is verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 92(b)]. Moreover, the denial of the allegations of the complaint need not be made positively or according to the information and belief of the defendant. Rather, a general denial is sufficient but puts in issue only the material allegations of the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. However, if the cause of action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection and the complaint is verified, the denial of the allegations must be made positively or according to the information and belief of the defendant, even if the complaint is brought as a limited civil case and is subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 90 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 90 et seq. does not apply to small claims cases, to proceedings in unlawful detainer, forcible entry, or forcible detainer, or when the action is withdrawn from its provisions on motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 91(b), (c)]. These rules apply to answers to cross complaints as well as to complaints [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(a)(1)].

§ 26.19A Case Cover Sheet; Joining or Contesting Complex Case Designation

If the plaintiff identifies a case as a complex case or a collections case on the case cover sheet [Cal. Judicial Council Form CM-010], the plaintiff must serve the case cover sheet on the defendant with the complaint [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.220(a); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.400 et seq. (complex cases); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.740 (collection cases)].

The defendant may file a counter civil case cover sheet designating the case as complex or not complex [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.400 et seq. (complex cases)]. The counter case cover sheet must be filed and served no later than defendant's first appearance. The court will then determine whether the action is complex [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.402].

For discussion of what constitutes a complex case, and further discussion of these procedures, see Ch. 425, Pretrial Proceedings, § 425.52.

For discussion and an illustration of Cal. Judicial Council Form CM-010, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints, § 123.60.

§ 26.20 Cross Defendant's Special Answer

A third-party defendant (that is, a cross defendant) who has been sued for indemnity by a third-party plaintiff (that is, a cross complainant) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.70(a)] may, at the time of filing an answer to the cross complaint, file as a separate document a special answer against the person who asserted the underlying cause of action against the cross complainant, alleging any defenses that the cross complainant has to that cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.70(b); see also Administrative Management Services, Inc. v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 484, 487-489, 181 Cal. Rptr 141 ; *Berris & Seaton v. Meyers (1984) 163 Cal. PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

3-26 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 26.21

§ 26.21 Replication to Answer

The statement of any new matter in the answer, in avoidance or constituting a defense, is deemed controverted by the opposite party [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.20(b); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 590(2)]. That is to say, no replication to the answer is required or permitted in California civil actions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 422.10, discussed at § 26.11].

Nor is a replication proper in a special proceeding unless authorized by statute. Thus Code Civ. Proc. § 1091, relating to proceedings in mandate, provides that on the trial the applicant (petitioner) is not precluded by the return from any valid objection to its sufficiency, and may countervail it by proof either in direct denial or by way of avoidance. Under this statute, the petitioner for the writ may file a replication denying the affirmative averments of the answer or controvert them by proof presented at the hearing. Unless the affirmative averments are controverted by pleading or proof, they must be taken as true [Franklin v. Municipal Court (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 884, 891, 103 Cal. Rptr. 354] .

Chapter 26 ANSWERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

3-26 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 26.22

§ 26.22 Objections to Answer

[1] By Demurrer

A party against whom an answer has been filed may object to it by demurrer on any one or more of the following grounds [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20]:

- The answer does not state facts sufficient to constitute a defense.
- The answer is uncertain; "uncertain" includes ambiguous and unintelligible.
- When the answer pleads a contract, it cannot be ascertained from the answer whether the contract is written or oral.

A demurrer is proper, however, only when the ground for objection appears on the face of the answer or from any matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20]. Judicial notice is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 430.70 and Evid. Code §§ 450-460.

The demurrer may be to the whole answer or to any one or more of the several defenses set up in the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.50(b)], and must be filed within 10 days after the answer is served [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.40(b); see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1054, 1054.1 (extensions of time within which to plead)]. The time for filing a demurrer to an amended answer is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 471.5(b), 472.

If a party against whom an answer has been filed fails to demur to it, that party is deemed to have waived the objection unless the objection is that the answer does not state facts sufficient to constitute a defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(b)].

Only general demurrers are allowed in limited civil cases; special demurrers are not authorized [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 91, 92(c)].

and forms of demurrers to answers, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

[2] By Motion for Judgment on the Pleadings

Because the objection that the answer fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a defense is not waived by failure to raise it by demurrer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(b)], plaintiff may move for a judgment on the pleadings if such a defect exists [see MacIsaac v. Pozzo (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 809, 812-813, 161 P.2d 449] . A motion for judgment on the pleadings is a nonstatutory motion and serves the same function as a general demurrer to the answer, but need not be made within the time limited for demurring.

For forms of motion for judgment on the pleadings and procedure, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

[3] By Motion to Strike

The court may, on a motion to strike made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 435 or at any time in its discretion, and on terms it deems proper, (a) strike out any irrelevant, false or improper matter inserted in any pleading; or (b) strike out all or any part of any pleading not drawn or filed in conformity with the laws of California, a court rule, or an order of the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 436]. "Pleading" is defined as meaning demurrer, answer, complaint, or cross complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 435(a)(2)]. As in the case of a demurrer, the grounds for a motion to strike must appear on the face of the challenged pleading or from a matter of which the court is required to take judicial notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 437(a)].

Motions to strike an answer are not allowed in limited civil cases [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 91, 92(d)].

For further discussion of motions to strike, see Ch. 375, Motions to Strike: Pleadings . For discussion of special motions to strike under the anti-SLAPP statutes, see Ch. 376, Motions to Strike: Anti-SLAPP .

[4] By Motion for Summary Judgment

When it is claimed that there is no defense to the action, plaintiff may move for summary judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)].

For forms and procedure, see Ch. 537, Summary Judgment .

Chapter 26 ANSWERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

3-26 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 26.23

§ 26.23 Judicial Council Trial Court Forms

[1] In General

Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12 requires that the Judicial Council develop and approve official forms for use in California trial courts for any complaint, cross complaint, or answer in any action based on personal injury, property damage, wrongful death, unlawful detainer, breach of contract, or fraud, and the council has done so [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45]. The council has approved preprinted forms of answer for use in the following:

- Actions based on personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death [see Cal. Judicial Council Form PLD-PI-003].
- Actions on contracts [see Cal. Judicial Council Form PLD-C-010].
- Proceedings for unlawful detainer [see Cal. Judicial Council Form UD-105].

Use of these forms is optional [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1.35, 1.45].

These forms are available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[2] Use of Answer Forms

The Judicial Council forms of answers described in [1], above, contain boxes for checking to indicate a general denial, specific denial, admission, denial on information and belief, denial because of lack of sufficient information or belief to answer, admissions with a general denial of all allegations not admitted, and a denial of specified allegations and an admission of all others, and blank spaces to be filled in to identify what is being denied, admitted, etc., as well as various affirmative defenses that might be raised in the action.

If typed attachments to these forms are prepared, the format of papers prescribed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.100 et seq.

(regulating format of papers presented for filing in superior court) should be followed; and each attachment, and paragraph in the attachment, should be sufficiently labeled and numbered as to its identity and relationship to the form (compare Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(c), relating to attachment of other causes of action to approved form). Any attachment prepared by counsel should also have the short title of the case at the top, along with a space designated for the case number, so that the attachment will be consistent in appearance with the answer form.

For discussion of the specific format requirements for any paper prepared by counsel for filing, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

For illustratively filled-in Judicial Council forms of answer, see Ch. 140, Contracts ; Ch. 380, Negligence ; and Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions .

[3] Use of General Denial Form

In addition to the above-described answer forms, there is a Judicial Council form of general denial [Cal. Judicial Council Form PLD-050; see § 26.90]. This form was adopted prior to the development of the answer forms mentioned above. The form of general denial must be used in any civil action in which the demand or value of property in controversy does not exceed $1,000 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.40(a), (c)].

The general denial may be used if the complaint is not verified or, whether or not the complaint is verified, the action is subject to the economic litigation procedures of limited civil cases under Code Civ. Proc. § 90 et seq. [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 91, 431.30(d). Because the specific answer forms discussed above each contain a box to be checked to make a general denial, it would appear that, notwithstanding the existence of the general denial form, the specific answer forms may be used to make a general denial in actions involving personal injury, property damage, wrongful death, contracts, and unlawful detainer.

§ 26.31 State Statutes

[1] Allegations

"Material allegation" defined. Code Civ. Proc. § 431.10(a)

"Immaterial allegation" defined. Code Civ. Proc. § 431.10(b), (c)

Material allegation of complaint or cross complaint not controverted by answer is taken as true for purposes of action. Code Civ. Proc. § 431.20(a)

[2] Amended Pleadings

Answer to amended complaint or cross complaint. Code Civ. Proc. § 471.5(a)

Demurrer to amended answer. Code Civ. Proc. § 471.5(b)

Amendment of pleadings "of course." Code Civ. Proc. § 472

Amendment of pleadings "in furtherance of justice." Code Civ. Proc. § 473

[3] Answer

Answer is pleading allowed in civil action. Code Civ. Proc. § 422.10

Answer is allowed after demurrer to complaint or cross complaint is overruled and no answer was filed. Code Civ. Proc. § 472a(b)

Answer may be filed on terms that are just when demurrer is stricken under Code Civ. Proc. § 436 and no answer has been filed. Code Civ. Proc. § 472a(c)

Answer is allowed after motion to strike complaint or cross complaint is denied. Code Civ. Proc. § 472a(d)

Answer is allowed after motion to dismiss under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210 et seq. for failure to timely serve summons. Code Civ. Proc. § 472a(e)

[4] Appearance

Defendant's appearance in small claims court. Code Civ. Proc. § 116.330

Answer is appearance. Code Civ. Proc. § 1014

[5] Default

Default may not be entered against defendant who serves and files notice of motion to strike without demurring to complaint, as time to answer is extended. Code Civ. Proc. § 435(c)

Default for failure to answer. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 585, 586

Noticed motion to set aside default in specified situations. Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5

[6] Defenses

See also [14], below

Defenses must be separately stated and refer to cause of action which they are intended to answer. Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(g)

Setoff of coexisting cross demand. Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70

Affirmative defense available to defendant in action by Attorney General against any person for protection of California's natural resources from pollution, impairment, or destruction. Gov. Code § 12608

[7] Denials

General denial of unverified complaint is sufficient but will only put in issue material allegations of complaint. Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)

General denial of allegations in complaint is sufficient when complaint, whether or not verified, is subject to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 90-100 (limited civil cases generally), except when cause of action is on claim assigned to third party for collection and complaint is verified, in which case denial of allegations must be made positively or according to defendant's information and belief. Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)

Denial of allegations of verified complaint filed in superior court must be made positively or according to information and belief. Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)

Manner of denying allegations controverted. Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(f)

General written denial in actions in which demand, exclusive of interest, or value of property does not exceed $1,000. Code Civ. Proc. § 431.40

[8] Extensions of Time to Plead

Notice of motion to strike without demurring to complaint extends defendant's time to answer. C.C.P § 435(c)

Notice of motion to strike answer does not extend time to demur to answer. C.C.P § 435(d)

Court may enlarge time to answer or demur in furtherance of justice and on such terms as may be proper. Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a)

Court may allow answer to be made after time limited by Code of Civil Procedure on such terms as may be just. *Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a)*Extension of time to plead for good cause shown. Code Civ. Proc. § 1054

Extension of time to plead when attorney for applicant is member of State Legislature and specified conditions exist. Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1

[9] Filing and Service of Pleadings

Civil action is commenced by filing of complaint. Code Civ. Proc. § 411.10

Pleadings subsequent to complaint must be filed and served. Code Civ. Proc. § 465

[10] Form and Content of Answer

Captions of pleadings. Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30

Use of abbreviated title of action in pleadings other than complaint. Code Civ. Proc. § 422.40

Required contents of answer. Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)

Answer to contain general or specific denial of material allegations controverted by defendant. Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(1)

Answer to contain statement of any new matter constituting defense. Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)

Verification of answer. Code Civ. Proc. § 446

[11] Issues

Issues arise on pleadings when fact or conclusion of law is maintained by one party and controverted by other party. Code Civ. Proc. § 588

Issues are of two kinds: of fact and of law. Code Civ. Proc. § 588

Issues of law arise (a) on demurrer to complaint, cross complaint, or answer, or to some part thereof, or (b) on motion to strike made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 435, 436, or 473. Code Civ. Proc. § 589

Issues of fact arise (1) on material allegation in complaint controverted by answer, and (2) on new matters in answer, except when an issue of law is joined thereon. Code Civ. Proc. § 590

[12] Motion to Strike

Irrelevant, false, or improper matter inserted in any pleading is subject to motion to strike. Code Civ. Proc. § 436(a)

All or any part of any pleading not drawn or filed in conformity with laws of California, court rule, or court order is subject to motion to strike. Code Civ. Proc. § 436(b)

[13] New Matter in Answer

Counterclaim is abolished. Code Civ. Proc. § 428.80

New matter in answer is deemed controverted by opposite party. Code Civ. Proc. § 431.20(b)

Affirmative relief may not be claimed in answer. Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(c)

[14] Objections to Pleading

Grounds for objection to complaint or cross complaint that may be taken by demurrer or answer. Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10

Grounds for objection to answer. Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20

Objection to complaint, cross complaint, or answer is taken by demurrer if ground for objection appears on face of pleading or from matter of which court must or may take judicial notice. Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)

Objection to complaint or cross complaint is taken by answer if ground for objection does not appear on face of pleading. Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(b)

Party objecting to complaint or cross complaint may demur and answer at same time. Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(c)

Objection to complaint or cross complaint, other than objection that court has no jurisdiction of subject of action or objection that pleading does not state facts sufficient to constitute cause of action, is waived by failure to raise objection by demurrer or answer. Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a)

Objection to answer, other than objection that answer does not state facts sufficient to constitute defense, is waived by failure to raise objection by demurrer. Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(b)

[15] Specific Answers

Answer by third-party defendant. Code Civ. Proc. § 428.70(b)

Answer in defamation action. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 460.5, 460.7, 461

[16] Supplemental Answer

Motion for leave to file supplemental answer. Code Civ. Proc. § 464

[17] Time to Answer

Defendant in civil action has 30 days after service of summons to respond to complaint. Code Civ. Proc. § 412.20(a)(3)

Cross defendant has 30 days from service of cross complaint to respond to it. Code Civ. Proc. § 432.10

Answer to amended pleading in civil action must be served and filed within 30 days after service of amendments or complaint as amended, or such other time as court may direct. Code Civ. Proc. § 471.5(a)

Time within which defendant must respond to complaint amended "of course" is computed from date of notice of amendment. Code Civ. Proc. § 472

Time given to amend or answer when demurrer to answer is sustained or demurrer to complaint is overruled and time to amend or answer is given, runs from service of notice of decision or order, unless notice is waived in open court and waiver is entered in minutes. Code Civ. Proc. § 472b

§ 26.34 Decisions

[1] Affirmative Defenses

See also [6], below.

Objection that action is barred by mandatory cross complaint statute (Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30), like defense of res judicata or rule against splitting cause of action, must be specially pleaded or it is waived; those objections are not raised by defense that complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute cause of action. Hulsey v. Koehler (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1150, 1157-1158, 267 Cal. Rptr. 523

Fact of nonlicensure may be raised as affirmative defense to action by unlicensed collection agency by motion before, during, and after trial, whether asserted in answer or not. Transworld Systems, Inc. v. Rogan (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 731, 734

Defense of statute of limitations is personal privilege that must be affirmatively invoked in lower court by appropriate pleading; if defense appears on face of complaint, defense is raised by demurrer; otherwise, defense must be specially pleaded in answer or it is waived. O'Neil v. Spillane (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 147, 156, 119 Cal. Rptr. 245 ; see also Hall v. Chamberlain (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 673, 679, 192 P.2d 759 ; Dicker v. Bisno (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 554, 560, 318 P.2d 159

Defense of unclean hands must be pleaded or brought to attention of trial court. Behm v. Fireside Thrift Co. (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 15, 21, 76 Cal. Rptr. 849

Failure of complaint to state facts sufficient to constitute cause of action is proper affirmative defense and has same force as general demurrer to complaint. Bracker v. American Nat. Food, Inc. (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 338, 339-340, 284 P.2d 163

[2] Default

Defaulting defendant is deemed to have admitted each and every allegation in complaint through his or her default. Weiss v. Blumencranc (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 536, 542 n.9, 131 Cal. Rptr. 298 ; see also Taliaferro v. Davis (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 398, 408, 31 Cal. Rptr. 164 (generally speaking, party who makes default thereby confesses material allegations of complaint); Csordas v. United Slate Tile etc. Roofers (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 184, 186, 2 Cal. Rptr. 133 (same)

Entry of default is not authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 585 when answer is on file, whether defendant does or does not appear at time action is called for hearing. Wilson v. Goldman (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 573, 576, 79 Cal. Rptr. 309 ; Barbaria v. Independent Elevator Co. (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 657, 659, 285 P.2d 91 ; see also Wisdom v. Ramirez (1985) 177 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 7 , 222 Cal. Rptr. 923

Default entered after answer has been filed is void. Wilson v. Goldman (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 573, 577, 79 Cal. Rptr. 309 ; Wisdom v. Ramirez (1985) 177 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 7 , 222 Cal. Rptr. 923

[3] Denials

Notwithstanding fact that denials in answer are not as broad as allegations of complaint or are otherwise insufficient to put allegations of complaint in issue, if answer is treated in trial court as putting material facts in issue, plaintiff is not allowed for first time on appeal to object that such denials were insufficient for any purpose. Cockerell v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 284, 288, 267 P.2d 16

Party may not permit issue to be litigated and on appeal escape consequences by claiming that such issue was not pleaded. Cockerell v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 284, 288, 267 P.2d 16

As to matters not presumably within defendant's knowledge, answer stating that "defendant has no information or belief sufficient to enable him/her to answer allegations of complaint, and basing his/her denial on that ground, denies each and several the allegations thereof," is sufficient, and specific denial of each allegation as to those matters is not essential, notwithstanding that complaint is verified. Jensen v. Dorr (1911) 159 Cal. 742, 747, 116 P. 553

Defendant's denials that it held property in question in violation of plaintiff's rights or that plaintiff possessed any right or title to property was sufficient to put nature of plaintiff's interest at issue despite admission of complaint's allegations as true. Walton v. City of Red Bluff (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 117, 126, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 275

Allegations in complaints relating to contents of official records is not effectively placed in issue by denial on information and belief. Transworld Systems, Inc. v. Rogan (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 731, 733, 258 Cal. Rptr. 555

Affirmative allegation in answer contrary to plaintiff's allegation is equivalent of denial. Elliott v. Bertsch (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 543, 546, 139 P.2d 332

[4] Effect of Admission

Unlimited and unambiguous admission in answer precludes plaintiff from presenting evidence on issue at trial. Fuentes v. Tucker (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 1, 5-8, 187 P.2d 752

Admission of evidence to prove facts not in issue is error. Fuentes v. Tucker (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 1, 4, 187 P.2d 752

[5] Facts in Issue

Facts alleged in complaint and not controverted by answer are not in issue. Fuentes v. Tucker (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 1, 4, 187 P.2d 752 ; Carlton v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 282, 289, 67 Cal. Rptr. 568

[6] Inconsistent Defenses

[a] Same Action

Statements made in special defenses do not constitute evidence against party on issues tendered in other defenses contained in same answer, and this is so whether answer is verified or unverified. McDonald v. Southern Cal. Ry. Co. (1894) 101 Cal. 206, 212-213, 35 P. 643

In California, as in federal courts, inconsistent defenses have long been recognized and permitted because defendant cannot always know in advance precisely what his or her proof will show; party's contradictory denials and affirmative allegations of fact do not necessarily indicate perjury or fraud, but simply that party is attempting to raise all issues on which he or she may have some chance of success. Lynch & Freytag v. Cooper (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 603, 613, 267 Cal. Rptr. 189

While party may plead separate inconsistent defenses to complaint, each defense must be consistent in itself. Allstate Ins. Co. v. Kim W. (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 326, 334, 206 Cal. Rptr. 609

Defendant may plead inconsistent defenses, and when one separate answer denies all allegations of plaintiff's complaint, plaintiff is not excused from making proof of material facts because of admissions of some or all of them found in other and separate answers of defendant. Southern Glass Co. v. Beverly Dairies (1935) 7 Cal. App. 2d 451, 454, 45 P.2d 1023

[b] Different Actions

When defendant alleges facts in detail in inconsistent defense in one action and those facts are inconsistent with position taken by same party in subsequent action between same parties, first verified pleading may be used as evidence against pleader in subsequent action as admission against interest. Jones v. Tierney-Sinclair (1945) 71 Cal. App. 2d 366, 374, 162 P.2d 669 ; Fibreboard Paper Products Corp. v. East Bay Union of Machinists (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 675, 711-712, 39 Cal. Rptr. 64

[7] Negative Pregnant

[a] Defined

Negative pregnant is form of negative expression that may imply or carry with it affirmative. Huntoon v. Hurley (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 33, 37, 290 P.2d 14 ; Jordan v. Jordan (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 371, 374, 135 P.2d 416

[b] Examples of Negatives Pregnant

If complaint alleges that "... plaintiff is now and at all times herein mentioned as to it was the owner of the following described real property ...," answer reading "... defendant denies that plaintiff is now and at all times herein mentioned is the owner of that certain real property described in complaint" results in admission of ownership in plaintiff, because such denial is evasive and either averment might be true, even though together they may not be. California Trust Co. v. Gustason (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 268, 271, 101 P.2d 74

If complaint alleged that "the whole of said re al property is necessary for the convenient use and occupation of said barn and grain elevator" and defendant denied "that the whole of said real property is necessary for the convenient use and/or occupation of the barn and/or grain elevator," denial as negative pregnant which admitted that some portion of property less than the whole was so necessary. California Corrugated C. Co. v. Stewart (1932) 215 Cal. 120, 123, 8 P.2d 1013

Denial that defendant "made, executed, and delivered" contract is admission of its execution; use of conjunction "and" limited denial to simple statement that defendant did not do all three things, leaving admission that it did any two of them. Janeway & Carpender v. Long Beach Co. (1922) 190 Cal. 150, 153, 211 P. 6

In paternity action, defendant's answer stating that "Defendant further denies that a child, Brian Keith, a minor, was born to the plaintiff as issue of an alleged marriage ..." but failing to deny that he was father of child was negative pregnant impliedly admitting allegation of complaint that he was father. Craig v. Superior Court (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 675, 681, 119 Cal. Rptr. 692

Allegation in respondent's return in habeas corpus proceeding to recover custody of minor child, in which writ issued, "that at the time the complaint for said divorce was filed [in a Nevada court] and at the time the decree was entered, the minor children of the parties, including [name of child in question] were not living with petitioner in the County wherein said divorce complaint was filed and wherein said decree was entered" was "perfect example of negative pregnant in affirmative form," as it was incumbent on respondent to allege facts sufficient to show affirmatively want of jurisdiction of person of named child in Nevada Court; foregoing allegation was insufficient for this purpose. In re Kyle (1947) 77 Cal. App. 2d 634, 640, 176 P.2d 96

[c] Examples of What Is Not Negative Pregnant

Trial court's finding that "each and all of the allegations of paragraph III of the Defendant's answer are untrue" is not a negative pregnant. Yellow Creek Logging Corp. v. Dare (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 50, 57, 30 Cal. Rptr. 629

Trial court's finding that "none of the allegations" contained in specified paragraphs of the complaint "is true" is not a negative pregnant. Huntoon v. Hurley (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 33, 37, 290 P.2d 14 (distinguishing finding that "all the allegations ... are not true," which is a negative pregnant)

Trial court's finding that "allegations contained in paragraphs ... VII ... of plaintiff's complaint are not true" is not a negative pregnant. Jordan v. Jordan (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 371, 374, 135 P.2d 416 (distinguishing case holding that finding "that it is not true ... that all casing furnished by plaintiff was furnished at his own cost and expense" was a negative pregnant in that it implied that some of the casing was so furnished)

[8] New Matter

Difference between "controverting matter" and "new matter;" allegation in answer showing only that some essential allegation of complaint is not true, is not new matter, but traverse (denial). If allegation sets forth facts from which it results that no cause of action existed in plaintiff when action was brought, notwithstanding truth of allegations of complaint, that allegation is new matter. Goddard v. Fulton (1863) 21 Cal. 430, 436 ; State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 721, 725, 279 Cal. Rptr. 116 ; Lever v. Garoogian (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 37, 39, 115 Cal. Rptr. 856

New matter is something relied on by defendant that is not put in issue by plaintiff and which must be pleaded by defendant. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 721, 725, 279 Cal. Rptr. 116 ;

Jetty v. Craco (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 876, 880, 267 P.2d 1055

[9] Objections to Pleadings

Objection that complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute cause of action is not waived by failure to demur, but may be raised for first time on appeal. O'Neil v. Spillane (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 147, 156, 119 Cal. Rptr. 245

[10] Setoff of Coexisting Cross Demand

Limitations on right of setoff in order to carry out state policies protecting interest of debtor. Kruger v. Wells Fargo Bank (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 352, 367-371, 368 n. 24, 113 Cal. Rptr. 449, 521 P.2d 441

To assert setoff, cross-demands for money must exist between parties; right to setoff arises when two parties are mutually debtor and creditor; former Code Civ. Proc. § 440 [now Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70] partially codified common law equitable principle of setoff and established procedure for asserting setoff under California code pleading system; under facts, trial court's granting of equitable setoff contravened economic policy considerations underlying antideficiency legislation, specifically Code Civ. Proc. § 580b. Birman v. Loeb (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 502, 506, 518, 518 n.5, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 294

Trial court's allowing defendant setoff defense without its having been pleaded in answer criticized by appellate court, but issue not adjudicated because of parties' waiver of objection by failing to object to procedure at any time up to and including appeal. R.M. Sherman Co. v. W.R. Thomason, Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 559, 562 n.3, 236 Cal. Rptr. 577

Setoff, as general rule, must rest on claim enforceable in its own right; void contract under which no rights whatsoever are conferred and which is a legal nullity, furnishes no basis for setoff. R.M. Sherman Co. v. W.R. Thomason, Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 559, 563, 236 Cal. Rptr. 577

Right of counties to set off against funds owed state, moneys owed them by state for state-mandated expenditures. Carmel Valley Fire Protection Dist. v. State of California (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 521, 550-551, 234 Cal. Rptr. 795

[11] Waiver of Defense

Defense of illegality based on public policy is not waived by the defendant's failure to include it as an affirmative defense in the answer to the complaint. Yoo v. Robi (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1089, 1103, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 740

Failure to raise particular defense at earliest possible time results in its waiver. California Concrete Co. v. Beverly Hills Savings & Loan Assn. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 260, 272, 261 Cal. Rptr. 484

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

3-26 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 26.50

§ 26.50 Prepare Responses and Draft Answer

☐ Prepare the following essential parts of the answer:

☐ Prepare the heading including the following information [for forms, see §§ 26.60, 26.61]:

☐ Identification of attorney or party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(1)].

☐ Title of court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(3)].

☐ Title of case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(4)].

☐ Number of case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(5)].

☐ Nature of paper [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(6); for form, see § 26.62].

☐ If the case has multiple parties, the identity of the complaining party and the complaint being answered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(6); for form, see § 26.62].

☐ Below the nature of the paper or the character of the action or proceeding, the name of the judge and department, if any, to which the case is assigned [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(7)].

☐ Designation, if appropriate, as "Limited Civil Case" [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)].

☐ Prepare and draft introduction to answer, if desired [for forms for various types of actions, see §§ 26.63 -26.76].

☐ Prepare and draft the body of the answer.

☐ Using the facts to be established on behalf of the defendant, determine what denials or other controverting allegations to be made to allegations in the complaint are warranted by the evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(1); for discussion, see § 26.17[1] -[6]; for forms, see §§ 26.77 -26.101].

☐ Use general denial used to answer unverified complaints [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)].

☐ Use Judicial Council Form PLD-050 (General Denial) if action in which demand for money or value of property at issue does not exceed $ 1,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.40(a)].

☐ May use Judicial Council Form PLD-050 (General Denial) if the complaint is not verified or the action is subject to economic litigation procedures in limited civil cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)].

☐ Use specific denial to answer verified complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)].

☐ Determine what, if any, admissions are to be included in answer.

☐ Admissions of specific allegations precludes admission of potentially inflammatory or prejudicial evidence at trial.

☐ Draft denials and admissions for inclusion in the body of the answer.

☐ Make denials positively, or according to information and belief, or by stating that defendant has insufficient information or belief to answer the allegation [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d), (e)].

☐ If admissions are to be included, decide whether [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(f)]:

☐ All denials and admissions should be specified by reference to enumerated parts of the complaint,

☐ All admissions should be specified by reference to enumerated parts of the complaint, with a general denial of remaining allegations, or

☐ Specified denials and admissions are stated, with a general denial of remaining allegations.

☐ Make sure all allegations in the complaint, and all parts of allegations, are either denied or admitted.

☐ Determine what, if any, affirmative defenses are to be made to the allegations in the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2); for discussion, see § 26.17[7], [10]; for forms, see §§ 26.110 -26.114].

☐ Affirmative defenses are those that exist even if the complaint's allegations are true.

☐ Draft affirmative defenses to be included in the body of the answer.

☐ Decide which affirmative defenses to include in the answer rather than in subsequent demurrer [for discussion, see § 26.17[9]].

☐ Plead ultimate facts of affirmative defenses to be included in the answer [for discussion, see § 26.17[7][c]].

☐ For multiple affirmative defenses to be included in the answer:

☐ Number each separately [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(g)],

☐ Refer to the causes of action that they are intended to answer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(g)], and ☐ Make sure they are internally consistent, even if they are inconsistent with each other [for discussion, see § 26.17[8]].

☐ Redact Social Security numbers and financial account numbers to their last four digits, or use Judicial Council Form MC-120, Confidential Reference List of Identifiers to designate this protected privacy information [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.20(b); for discussion, see § 26.17[1][d]; for form, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross-Complaints, § 123.69].

§ 26.51 Review, Subscribe, File, and Serve Answer

☐ After drafting, determine whether answer is to be verified and, if so, whether the defendant must verify it.

☐ Verification in superior court action is generally optional, unless complaint is verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 446; for discussion; see § 26.19; for forms, see §§ 26.60, 26.121].

☐ An exception to this rule applies to answers in limited civil cases, which do not need to be verified even if the complaint or cross complaint is verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 92(b)].

☐ Forward the answer to the defendant for review and, if applicable, subscription of verification.

☐ Counsel for defendant should subscribe the answer, or if defendant is pro per, defendant should do so [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a); for discussion, see § 26.18; for form, see § 26.60].

☐ Determine whether to file counter civil case cover sheet and, if so, prepare it for filing at time of first appearance [for discussion, see § 26.19A].

☐ Serve answer on all parties and file an original with proof of service with the court.

3-26 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 26.60

§ 26.60 Format and Content of Answer in California State Court [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.100 et seq.]

[1] FORM Format and Content of Answer in California State Court [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.100 et seq.]]

[Papers. Answers are "papers," as that term is defined in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.3(2), that are to be typewritten or printed, or prepared by a photocopying or other duplication process that will produce clear and permanent copies equally legible to printing, in type not smaller than 12 points, on opaque, unglazed paper, white or unbleached, of standard quality not less than 20-pound weight, 81/2 by 11 inches in size. The type face must be essentially equivalent to Courier, Times, or Helvetica. The color of print must be blue-black or black. (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.106). Only one side of the paper may be used, and the lines on each page are to be one and one-half spaced or double spaced and numbered consecutively; but descriptions of real property may be single spaced. Footnotes, quotations, footers, and printed forms of corporate surety bonds and undertakings may be single spaced and have unnumbered lines if they comply generally with the space requirement of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.108(3). The left margin must be at least one inch from the left edge of the paper and the right margin at least one-half inch from the right edge of the paper. Line numbers must be placed at the left margin and separated from the text of the paper by a vertical column of space at least 1/5 inch wide or a single or double vertical line. The line number either must be placed on the same line as a line of type or must be evenly spaced vertically on the page. Line numbers must be consecutively numbered beginning with the number 1 on each page. There must be at least three line numbers for every vertical inch on the page (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.108(4)). The pages must be numbered consecutively at the bottom. Answers offered for filing are required to consist entirely of original pages without riders, and to be firmly bound together at the top. Exhibits may be fastened to pages of the specified size and, when prepared by a machine copying process, must be equal to typewritten material in legibility and permanency of image (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.114). All original papers filed with the court and all copies of papers, documents, and exhibits filed with the court or served on other parties must be on recycled paper. Filing or serving a paper constitutes a certification that the paper was purchased as recycled paper (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.101(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.6(22) ("recycled" defined)).]

the page, set forth the name, office address or, if none, residence address, telephone number, fax number and e-mail address if available, inclusion does not constitute consent to service by fax or e-mail unless otherwise provided by law), and State Bar membership number of the attorney for the party or parties in whose behalf the paper is presented, or of the party if he or she is appearing in person (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(1)). It is customary to single space this identification, except that a final identifying line is generally added after a blank line. For an illustrative form, see § 26.61[1]. These requirements are satisfied if the attorney's name, office address, telephone number, and State Bar membership number are printed on the page.]

[Title of case. Set out the title of the case below the title of the court, in the space to the left of the center of the page (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(4)). The names of the parties may be set forth as in the complaint, although it is sufficient to state the name of the first party on each side, followed by "et al." for the others, and to abbreviate unusually lengthy names of entities, inserting "etc." when necessary (see Code Civ. Proc. § 422.40).]

It is customary to use all capital letters, and if more than one line is needed, the length of the description and the space available will determine whether single or double spacing is used. See § 26.6[1] for additional descriptive examples of the nature of the paper. If the complaint designated the action as a limited civil case, include the phrase "LIMITED CIVIL CASE" under the line or lines identifying the nature of the paper (Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Proc. §§ 588, 590), and a second part in which defendant alleges new matter by way of defense (Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)). If the complaint states only a single cause of action, the consecutively numbered paragraphs containing defendant's denials, admissions, and controverting allegations, follow the introduction without an intervening numbered line. For the format of the body of the answer to complaints that state more than one cause of action or counts, see §§ 26.77 -26.80.*]

[Body of answer; defenses. After the paragraphs that admit and deny, or otherwise controvert, the allegations of the complaint, affirmative and special defenses are stated separately (Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(g)). Each separately stated defense must be separately numbered (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.112). Thus, each defense is customarily preceded by a heading in capital letters, centered on the page, as shown below. If more than one paragraph is used to allege a defense or defenses, the normal practice is to number the paragraphs separately and consecutively with arabic numerals, even if multiple defenses are alleged. As a matter of common practice for clarity, paragraph numbers are not repeated within the same pleading, so that the defenses should not repeat the paragraph numbers used for admissions and denials or earlier affirmative defenses. For other affirmative defense formats, see §§ 26.110, 26.111.]

[Verification. In certain cases answers must be verified (see generally Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 2015.5) and in others they are verified as a matter of pleading strategy. However, in limited civil cases (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 91), verification is not required, and the answer need not be verified, even if the complaint or cross complaint is verified (Code Civ. Proc. § 92(b)). Defendant must verify the answer if the complaint was filed in superior court, is verified and does not relate to a limited civil case (see Code Civ. Proc. § 446). This is also true if the complaint is filed by one of the public entities or officers listed in the first paragraph of Code Civ. Proc. § 446, unless an admission of the truth of the complaint might subject the defendant to criminal prosecution, or unless the defendant is one of the public entities or officers specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 446 (Code Civ. Proc. § 446). The verification is set out following the subscription, often under the heading "VERIFICATION," either on the same page or, as where the attorney makes use of previously prepared printed or otherwise duplicated standard forms, on a separate page. For additional forms of verification, see § 26.121 and Ch. 572, Verification.]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a guide to the format requirements for an answer in a California state court. The notations in the body of the form refer to particular format requirements and include comments on practices used by attorneys that are not specifically set forth in the California Rules of Court.

[3] Signature

The attorney of record must sign the answer in his or her individual name, or if the party is not represented, the party must sign [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a) (operative in actions filed on or after January 1, 1995; for discussion, see § 26.18[1]]. Presenting the answer to the court then acts as a certification of the paper violation of which may lead to sanctions [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b); for discussion, see § 26.18[2]].

.....

Defendant answers the complaint as follows:

ANSWER TO FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION

1. _____ [Set forth in this and subsequently numbered paragraphs, if any, in the order in which they are alleged, a denial of each material allegation controverted].

FIRST DEFENSE TO FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION

2. _____ [Set forth in this and, if necessary, subsequently numbered paragraphs facts establishing defense].

SECOND DEFENSE TO FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION

3. _____ [Set forth in this and, if necessary, subsequently numbered paragraphs facts establishing defense].

ANSWER TO SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION

4. _____ [Set forth in this and subsequently numbered paragraphs, if any, in the order in which they are alleged, a denial of each material allegation controverted].

FIRST DEFENSE TO SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION

5. _____ [Set forth in this and, if necessary, subsequently numbered paragraphs, facts establishing defense].

WHEREFORE, defendant prays _____ [state].

[2] Use of Form

The skeletal form in [1], above, illustrates the format used to set forth answers and defenses to separate causes of action in a complaint [see also Instructions in body of form at § 26.60[1]].

Defenses, or affirmative defenses as they are more often referred to, must be separately stated, and the several defenses refer to the causes of action that they are intended to answer, in a manner by which they may be intelligibly distinguished [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(g)].

Each separately stated defense must be separately numbered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(1)].

Common practice is to number paragraphs throughout the answer consecutively, without reusing paragraph numbers in different parts of the answer. For additional forms of headings to affirmative defenses, see §§ 26.110 -26.112.

Click here to view image.

[2] Source of Form

The form illustrated in [1], above, is the general denial with proof of service adopted by the Judicial Council for mandatory use in all courts whenever applicable [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.31; Bank of Shasta v. Boyd (1893) 99 Cal. 604, 606, 34 P. 337 (general denial of unverified complaint puts only material allegations of complaint in issue)]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

For a discussion of use of the other Judicial Council official forms of answer approved for optional use [see, e.g., Cal. Judicial Council Form PLD-PI-003], see § 26.23[1].

[3] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, may be used to deny generally the allegations of a complaint if (1) the complaint is unverified, or (2) whether or not the complaint is verified, the action is subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 90 et seq., which apply to most limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 91; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(1) (answer must contain general or specific denial of material allegations of complaint controverted by defendant)]. The form must be used, whether or not the complaint is verified, if the action seeks recovery of a sum, exclusive of interest, not exceeding $1,000 or involves property not exceeding $1,000 in value [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 431.30(d), 431.40(a), (c); see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 91, 92(b)].

The form may not be used if the complaint is verified and involves a claim for more than $1,000 that has been assigned to a third party for collection, even if the action was filed as a limited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 431.30(d), 431.40].

[4] Alleging Affirmative Defenses

Affirmative defenses may also be alleged along with a general denial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)], in which case the box in item 2. must be checked and the affirmative defenses inserted in the space provided. For illustrations of formats for alleging affirmative defenses and sample allegations, see §§ 26.110-114. For other examples of affirmative defenses, see the specific chapters throughout this set relating to the causes of action or defenses being alleged. For a listing of affirmative defenses covered in other chapters, see the Table of Affirmative Defenses at the end of this chapter.

[3] When Denial on Information and Belief (or Lack Thereof) Is Proper

Denials according to information and belief [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d),(f)] or for lack of information or belief [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(e), (f)] are limited to situations in which the defendant is unable to admit or deny an allegation positively [Dobbins v. Hardister (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 787, 791, 51 Cal. Rptr. 866] . Accordingly, if the matter is within the defendant's actual knowledge, or if the defendant has the means of ascertaining whether or not it is true, a denial on information and belief or for lack of information or belief will be deemed sham and evasive and may be stricken out or disregarded [Dobbins v. Hardister (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 787, 791, 51 Cal. Rptr. 866] .

The same is true if the facts are presumptively within the defendant's knowledge [Transworld Systems, Inc. v. Rogan (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 731, 733, 258 Cal. Rptr. 555 ; Oliver v. Swiss Club Tell (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 528, 538, 35 Cal. Rptr. 324] . This rule is frequently applied to matters of public record. Accordingly, a denial on information and belief, or for want of information or belief, of an alleged fact that may be ascertained from the inspection of a public record available to a defendant is insufficient to raise an issue, and such a denial constitutes an admission of the allegation of the complaint [Oliver v. Swiss Club Tell (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 528, 539, 35 Cal. Rptr. 324 ; see also Smith v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1933) 130 Cal. App. 45, 58, 19 P.2d 1018 (fact alleged in complaint that may be ascertained from inspection of public record is not put in issue by denial based on lack of information); Curtin v. Salomon (1926) 80 Cal. App. 470, 474, 251 P. 237 (facts alleged in complaint that may be ascertained from public record are not put in issue by denial based on lack of information or denial based on information and belief)].

The rule precluding the use of nonpositive denials when matters are presumptively within the defendant's knowledge applies to corporations and unincorporated associations, as well as to natural persons [Oliver v. Swiss Club Tell (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 528, 540, 35 Cal. Rptr. 324] .

[4] Improper Form of Denial

An allegation that "defendant is informed and believes and therefore denies" has been held to mean nothing and to raise no issue of any sort [Poe v. Francis (1933) 132 Cal. App. 330, 333, 22 P.2d 801] .

PART V. FORMS
B. Denials

3-26 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 26.96

§ 26.96 Body of Answer: Specific Denial by Reference to Specific Paragraphs--Lack of Information or Belief

[1] FORM Body of Answer: Specific Denial by Reference to Specific Paragraphs--Lack of Information or Belief

[EITHER]

Defendant has no information or belief sufficient to enable him/her to answer the allegations of Paragraph(s) _____ [number(s)] of the complaint herein, and placing his/her denial on that ground, denies each and every allegation thereof.

[OR]

For answer to the _____ [specify, e.g., First Cause of Action] of the complaint herein, defendant has no information or belief sufficient to enable him/her to answer the allegations thereof, and, basing his/her denial on that ground, he/she denies each and every allegation thereof.

[2] Use of Form

The form of denial in [1], above, is based on lack of information or belief sufficient to enable the defendant to answer an allegation or part of the complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(e), (f)] and is for use in an answer [see § 26.95[2]-[4]]. There must be a lack of both information and belief to make the denial effective [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(e); Vickery v. Valdez (1931) 113 Cal. App. 135, 141, 298 P. 151] . Denial based on lack of information or belief sufficient to enable defendant to answer allegations of complaint is permissible only as to matters not presumably within defendant's knowledge. Then specific denial of each allegation as to such matters is not essential, even if the complaint is verified [Jensen v. Dorr (1911) 159 Cal. 742, 747, 116 P. 553] .

[3] Improper Form of Denial

An allegation in an answer that defendant has "not sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief" and a denial on that basis is insufficient to present an issue of fact [Aronson & Co. v. Pearson (1926) 199 Cal. 295, 298, 249 P. 191 ; see also Cockerell v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 284, 287-288, 267 P.2d 16 (defective denial waived by parties treating answer as putting allegation of complaint in issue at trial)].

[4] Defendant Must Lack Presumptive Knowledge of Allegations Denied for Lack of Information or Belief

A denial based on lack of information or belief cannot be made of matters within the knowledge, or presumptively within the knowledge, of the defendant. For example, a defendant's status as a corporation, unincorporated association, or other entity is a matter, at least presumptively, within its own knowledge. Thus, whether a defendant is an unincorporated association, for example, as alleged in a complaint, cannot be denied based on lack of information or belief. The defendant has possession of its own records, an examination of which will disclose its status and thus enable it to answer the allegation definitely. Such a denial raises no issue and in effect admits the allegation that the defendant is an unincorporated association [Oliver v. Swiss Club Tell (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 528, 540, 35 Cal. Rptr. 324] . Similarly, a denial based on an allegation in answer to petition for writ of mandate that respondent has "no knowledge or information sufficient to enable it to answer" the allegation of complaint that petitioner was the owner of bonds that were issued by respondent was insufficient to present an issue on the subject of ownershi [May v. Board of Directors (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 125, 127, 208 P.2d 661] .

§ 26.113 Body of Answer: Defense That Plaintiff Failed in Prior Action to Allege Related Cause of Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.10(c)] in Compulsory Cross Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30]

[1] FORM Body of Answer: Defense That Plaintiff Failed in Prior Action to Allege Related Cause of Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.10(c)] in Compulsory Cross Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30]

_____ [specify, e.g., FIRST] DEFENSE

Plaintiff's action is barred for failure to have asserted it against this defendant in a prior action by this defendant against plaintiff herein, as follows:

1. On _____ [date], defendant filed an action against plaintiff in the _____ [specify court], entitled _____ [name], Plaintiff, vs. _____ [name], Defendant, Number _____ (hereinafter "the prior action") to _____ [specify relief sought] for _____ [specify transaction or occurrence giving rise to cause of action]. Judgment in the prior action was rendered for this defendant, as plaintiff, on _____ [date], and has since become final. [A true copy of the complaint and answer filed in the prior action and a certified copy of the judgment therein entered are attached hereto as Exhibits 1, 2, and 3, respectively, and made a part hereof.] In the prior action, plaintiff herein sought no affirmative relief against this defendant and filed no cross complaint. This Court is hereby requested to take judicial notice of the [attached papers and of the] court's records and file in the prior action.

2. As shown by plaintiff's complaint herein and the pleadings filed in the prior action, plaintiff's alleged cause of action against this defendant arose out of the same _____ [transaction or occurrence or series of transactions or series of occurrences] as the cause of action asserted by defendant herein against plaintiff in the prior action in that _____ [specify] and is, therefore, related to the prior action and should have been asserted against this defendant in that action.

3. By reason of plaintiff's failure to allege his/her related action by way of cross complaint in the prior action, plaintiff is barred under the provisions of Section 426.30(a) of the Code of Civil Procedure from asserting the related cause of action either by the complaint herein or in any other action against this defendant.

WHEREFORE, defendant prays that plaintiff take nothing by his/her complaint, that judgment be rendered for defendant, that defendant recover his/her costs herein incurred, and for such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use as a defense to an action that should have been pleaded as a cross complaint in a former action [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 426.30(b), 426.40-426.60 (exceptions to compulsory cross complaint requirements)]. Except as otherwise provided by statute, if a party against whom a complaint has been filed and served fails to allege in a cross complaint any related cause of action which (at the time of serving his or her answer to the complaint) he or she has against the plaintiff, that party may not thereafter in any other action assert against the plaintiff the related cause of action not pleaded [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30(a)]. For alternative forms of prayers in answers, see § 26.120.

A California court may take judicial notice of records of the following [Evid. Code § 452(d)]:

- Any court of California, or
- Any court of record of United States or of any state of United States.

A California court must take judicial notice of any matter specified in Evid. Code § 452 if party does the following [Evid. Code § 453]:

- Requests it,
- Gives each adverse party sufficient notice of the request, through pleadings or otherwise, to enable the adverse party to prepare to meet request, and
- Furnishes court with sufficient information to enable it to take judicial notice of the matter.

[3] "Related Cause of Action" Defined

The term "related cause of action" means a cause of action that arises out of the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences as the cause of action that the plaintiff alleges in his or her complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.10(c)].

3-26 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 26.114

§ 26.114 Body of Answer: Defense of Payment; Defendant's Right to Set Off Coexisting Cross Demand [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70]

[1] FORM Body of Answer: Defense of Payment; Defendant's Right to Set Off Coexisting Cross Demand [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70]

_____ [specify, e.g., FIRST] DEFENSE

1. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff became indebted to defendant in the sum of $_____. This indebtedness arose by virtue of _____ [state facts constituting grounds for setoff, e.g., goods and services rendered by defendant at the special request of plaintiff].

2. Neither the whole nor any part of the above sum has been paid [except the sum of $_____] and there is now due and unpaid from defendant to plaintiff the sum of $_____ together with interest thereon at the rate of _____ percent per annum from _____ [date].

WHEREFORE, defendant prays that the sum of $_____ [amount of defendant's claim against plaintiff] be set off against any amount awarded to plaintiff in this action, that defendant be awarded his/her costs of suit herein, and for such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of answer and prayer in [1], above, is for use by the defendant in his or her answer to a complaint for money to claim the amount of a coexisting cross demand for money which the defendant has against the plaintiff as a setoff against any amount awarded to plaintiff [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70; see also § 26.17[10]]. Claims of setoff may be raised by way of affirmative defense as well as by cross complaint [American National Bank v. Stanfill (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1089, 1097, 252 Cal. Rptr. 861] , thus, especially if defendant's claim exceeds plaintiff's counsel may wish file a cross complaint [see [5], below].

The answer sets up the cross demand in the form of a cause of action in a common count and prays that the amount of defendant's claim be set off against any amount awarded plaintiff in the action. For alternative forms of prayers in answers, see § 26.120.

[3] Pleading Cross Demand

Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70 actually provides that the cross demand is a defense of payment. A predecessor statute provided simply that when cross demands existed between persons under such circumstances that, if one had brought an action against the other, a counterclaim could have been set up, the two demands were deemed compensated, so far as they equaled each other, and neither could be deprived of the benefit thereof by the assignment or death of the other [former Code Civ. Proc. § 440]. Under the former statute, it had been urged that it is sufficient to show the compensation of one demand by the other simply under a denial or plea of payment in the answer [see Bidart Bros v. Elmo Farming Co. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 248, 259, 110 Cal. Rptr. 819] . Nevertheless, the court in Bidart assumed, without deciding, that a setoff needs to be affirmatively alleged and held that the trial court's allowance of an amendment to the answer after the close of trial to conform to proof to plead the defense did not constitute an abuse of discretion.

Another court has subsequently agreed with the statement that setoffs must generally be affirmatively pleaded [Interstate Group Administrators, Inc. v. Cravens, Dargan & Co. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 700, 706, 220 Cal. Rptr. 250] . Nevertheless, the court held the rule did not apply to actions on common counts. The common count is a general pleading that seeks recovery of money without specifying the nature of the claim, and, because of its uninformative nature, the typical answer, a general denial, is sufficient to raise almost any kind of defense, including some that ordinarily require special pleading [Interstate Group Administrators, Inc. v. Cravens, Dargan & Co. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 700, 706, 220 Cal. Rptr. 250] . Because of the scarcity of case law on the issue, it is recommended that, except when the plaintiff sues on a common count and the defendant files a general denial, the claim of setoff be alleged in the answer as an affirmative defense.

[4] Mutuality Required

To qualify as "cross demands" under Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70, the claims must be mutual, that is, they must be due from the same person to the same person; the two parties must be mutually debtor and creditor to each other [Birman v. Loeb (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 502, 518-520, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 294 ; Carnation Co. v. Olivet Egg Ranch (1986) 189 Cal. App. 3d 809, 819-820, 229 Cal. Rptr. 261] . Consequently, in a proceeding by a former wife for execution on a judgment for arrearage in alimony and child support, the defendant could not offset against due child support any of the plaintiff's indebtedness to him that resulted from the unprofitable operation of an apartment house that was co-owned by the parties as the result of the disposition of community property in the divorce action. Child support is an obligation owing to the child rather than to the mother [Williams v. Williams (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 636, 639-640, 87 Cal. Rptr. 754 (involving former statutes)].

Also, to be mutual, the cross demands must be owing from the one person to the other in the same capacity. Hence, the defendant in Williams could not offset the indebtedness owed him for the unprofitable operation of the apartment house against the alimony owed because alimony is not an ordinary debt but a marital duty of the husband to support his wife [Williams v. Williams (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 636, 639, 87 Cal. Rptr. 754 (involving former statutes); see also Carnation Co. v. Olivet Egg Ranch (1986) 189 Cal. App. 3d 809, 820, 229 Cal. Rptr. 261 (cross demands must be owing from one person to the other in the same capacity)]. By the same token, a partnership obligation or claim may not be set off against the personal obligation or claim of one of the partners [Carnation Co. v. Olivet Egg Ranch (1986) 189 Cal. App. 3d 809, 819-820, 229 Cal. Rptr. 261] .

[5] Relief Available

Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70 further provides that the relief accorded a defendant may not exceed the value of the relief granted to the other party if the demand is otherwise barred by the statute of limitations [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70].

While the statute is clear as far as it goes, it is not clear as to how the defendant is to claim the excess if he or she prevails on the cross demand, the amount is in excess of that sought by plaintiff, and the cross demand is not barred by the statute of limitations. Because affirmative relief may not be claimed in the answer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(c)], it would appear that if defendant's cross demand is not barred by the statute of limitations and its amount exceeds or might exceed the amount awarded to plaintiff, defendant should plead the cross demand in a cross complaint in addition to alleging it as an affirmative defense in the answer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.80 (abolishing counterclaims and requiring that any claim formerly asserted by counterclaim be asserted by a cross complaint)].

§ 26.120 Prayers

[1] FORM Prayers

[EITHER]

WHEREFORE, defendant prays that plaintiff take nothing by his/her _____ [action or complaint herein]; that defendant _____ [be awarded or have judgment for] his/her costs of suit; and for such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[OR]

WHEREFORE, this answering defendant prays that plaintiff take nothing by reason of his/her complaint; that this defendant go hence with his/her costs of suit incurred; and for all other proper relief.

[OR]

WHEREFORE, this answering defendant prays that plaintiff take nothing by reason of his/her complaint; that this defendant go hence with his/her costs of suit incurred; and for such other and further relief as to the court seems just.

[OR]

WHEREFORE, defendants pray:

1. That plaintiff be granted no relief in this action;

2. For costs herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[OR]

WHEREFORE, defendants pray that plaintiff take nothing by his/her complaint or any of his/her causes of action therein alleged, that defendants have judgment against plaintiff and recover their costs of suit herein incurred, and for such other relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30 does not require that the answer include a prayer, the normal practice is to include one. The form in [1], above, illustrates forms of prayer that have been used in answers to complaints. For additional forms of prayers, see §§ 26.113, 26.114

§ 26.121 Verification [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 2015.5] by Attorney When Defendant is Absent From County

[1] FORM Verification [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 2015.5] by Attorney When Defendant is Absent From County

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], declare:

I am the attorney of record for the defendant herein. My office is in the [City and] County of _____; defendant is _____ [absent from the (city and) county or unable to verify the answer for the reason that _____ (specify)] and for that reason I make this verification.

[EITHER]

I have read the foregoing answer and know the contents thereof. I am informed and believe the matters therein to be true and on that ground I allege that the matters stated therein are true.

[OR]

I have read the foregoing answer and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to the matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and as to those matters I believe it to be true.

[CONTINUE]

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Attorney for Defendant

[2] Use of Form

The form of verification in [1], above, is for use by an attorney to verify the answer on behalf of his or her client who is absent from the county where the attorney has his or her office or is otherwise unable to verify the answer, or when the attorney has personal knowledge of the facts [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446 (who may verify pleadings); Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (declaration under penalty of perjury executed in California in lieu of affidavit); see also § 26.19]. A pleading may stand it is verified by an attorney as within his or her own knowledge and also on information and belief but does not state the reason it was not verified by the party [Frio v. Superior Court (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 1480, 1497-1498, 250 Cal. Rptr. 819] . For a form of verification by a defendant, see § 26.60.

Verification of an answer in most limited civil cases is not required, even if the complaint or cross complaint is verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 92(b)].

Matters alleged on information and belief do not serve to establish facts, because an affidavit, to be used as evidence, must be positive, direct, and not based on hearsay [Star Motor Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 151 Cal. Rptr. 721] .

§ 30.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter provides an overview of alternative dispute resolution (ADR), including the nature [see § 30.10] of ADR, various types [see § 30.11] of ADR that are available, and the attorney's obligation to consider use of ADR [see § 30.12].

The chapter addresses considerations in selecting the best tool, including litigation, for the particular case [see § 30.13], concerns attorneys may have about making disclosures in the course of ADR [see § 30.14], and discovery issues [see § 30.15].

The chapter also covers techniques for getting the opposing party to agree to ADR [see § 30.16] and the timing of ADR [see § 30.17].

Finally, the chapter identifies situations in which litigation may be preferable to ADR [see § 30.18].

He is Chair of the ADR Section of the Los Angeles County Bar Association and the Committee on Dispute Resolution in the American Bar Association's Section of Business Law.

§ 30.10 Nature and Purpose of ADR

[1] Nature

Everyone uses Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR), and everyone uses it all the time. If we define ADR as the resolution of disputes other than through the court system, the point becomes obvious. People routinely resolve their disputes, or, more broadly stated, disagreements, of every shape and size, without any assistance from courts or even lawyers. These disagreements may range from the trivial ("Shall we eat dinner at restaurant-1 or restaurant-2 tonight?") to the momentous (multimillion dollar disputes between major industrial corporations). Of all the disagreements which our society and our economy spawn, only a minute fraction ever find their way into the courts or legal system.

[2] ADR as a Desirable Option

Among that minuscule number of disputes submitted to the court system at some point during their existence, however, lawyers often do not see ADR as an option at all. That is, lawyers often act as if legal processes, once initiated, must (or at least should) be carried through to their conclusion, with a judgment after trial or a dispositive motion, or perhaps a settlement on the courthouse steps after extensive resources have been devoted to discovery and trial preparation.

ADR, as described in this and the following chapters, questions, reexamines, and, to a degree, rejects that assumption. The initiation of a lawsuit does not necessarily require ultimate resolution of the dispute through, or after extensive application of the processes of, the courts. The impetus for this reexamination comes chiefly from two sources, the court system and our clients. The court system, for its part, increasingly lacks the resources to process civil disputes. The three-strikes legislation (and, on the federal level, the sentencing guidelines) have resulted in dramatic increases in the number and length of criminal trials, with a concomitant reallocation of the court's resources from civil to criminal matters. The public has spoken, and the message is that the resources of the court system should focus on public safety and crime prevention issues, rather that the resolution of private, civil disputes.

Our clients, for their part, increasingly send the message that civil litigation costs too much, takes too long, and causes too much disruption for them [see Deloitte and Touche Litigation Services 1993 Survey of General and Outside Counsels (reflecting popularity of ADR with major corporations, chiefly because ADR is less expensive and takes less time)]. The court's powers, to compel the production of evidence and to render coercive judgments, are expensive to invoke, and accordingly should be used sparingly in the resolution of society's disputes.

A comparison to the way in which patients look to doctors for the resolution of medical problems highlights the point. A patient who goes to a doctor and complains about a particular pain generally has the following goals in mind: elimination of the pain quickly, inexpensively, and with a minimum of pain and inconvenience along the way. The patient is little interested in elaborate procedures or fancy machinery, if there is a simpler path to recovery. It is hard to imagine, for example, a patient who would elect an operation if his or her condition could be cured with brief medication or other, less elaborate treatment.

For clients, a trial might be likened to a costly and disruptive surgical operation. ADR procedures which take less time, cost less money and involve less disruption, while still achieving a resolution through a process which the client finds acceptable, might be likened to medical procedures less drastic that surgery. Just as medical patients are generally better served by the latter option, so, generally, are lawyer's clients.

[3] Attorney Resistance

As lawyers, we perhaps overemphasize the tools and techniques of legal processes, in which we have been trained so intensely. That training emphasizes the benefits of those processes: the thoroughness of the factual record which discovery and trials are supposed to produce, and the fairness which the decisions of judges and juries are supposed to provide, measured by the objective standards of the law. In practice, those benefits may not always be provided. But even if the court system provided those benefits in every case, clients' needs may not be best served. Clients may seek other types of benefits, which legal tools and techniques may not be designed to provide: speed, affordability, finality, lack of disruption, and an ability to put the past behind them rapidly so that they can get on with their lives.

If these are the benefits that clients want in connection with the resolution of their disputes--and some undoubtedly do--then why should lawyers not be prepared to provide them? If lawyers are not prepared to provide clients with those benefits, then others will. Other providers of dispute resolution services, for example relatives and clergy in the case of some domestic relations disputes, have been and always will be there. In commercial law, trade associations and others provide a variety of dispute resolution options, often without the involvement of a legally trained decision maker.

There are a great variety of processes through which lawyers can provide the benefits which clients demand, in the context of the resolution of disputes in the legal system. To satisfy our own interests, as lawyers, in continuing to have the public bring their disputes to us (as opposed to non-legal professionals) for assistance in their resolution, it behooves us to become familiar and adept with as many of these processes as possible, as quickly as possible. Chapters 30 through 36 are designed to aid lawyers in that task.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

4-30 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 30.11

AUTHOR: Jeffrey G. Kichaven Editorial Consultant Jeffrey G. Kichaven is a lawyer, mediator, and arbitrator in private practice in Los Angeles. He is Chair of the ADR Section of the Los Angeles County Bar Association and the Committee on Dispute Resolution in the American Bar Association's Section of Business Law.

§ 30.11 Overview of Types of ADR

[1] No Specific Definition

Beyond the definition of "alternative dispute resolution process" as a process, other than formal litigation, in which a neutral person or persons resolve a dispute or assist parties in resolving their dispute [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.800(1)], there is no clear set of definitions of the "types" of ADR. There are as many different types of processes, mixes-and-matches of processes, and "hybrid" processes, as there are people who catalogue and use these processes in their writing and in their practice. Additionally, many people use different terms to refer to processes which are essentially the same. The following overview is intended to be a helpful, but necessarily incomplete, list of some of the more commonly used ADR processes, described by terms which many practitioners have come commonly to use. The list is incomplete because, when you try to apply these processes to the disputes in which you are involved, you will undoubtedly come up with new variations on these themes, and perhaps entirely new processes altogether.

[2] Negotiation

[a] Direct Unfacilitated Negotiation

The most commonly used ADR process, and one not to be overlooked as such, is direct negotiation. In virtually every case, virtually every lawyer uses direct negotiations, at some point, to try to get the dispute resolved. Even in the most hotly contested disputes, rarely do clients come to lawyers without first having tried some negotiations themselves, or at least without a willingness to try.

We may profitably think of negotiation, then, as one pole of the "dispute resolution spectrum"--clients can do it totally on their own, without any involvement by lawyers whatsoever, before any discovery takes place, in a totally nonbinding way. The other pole of the spectrum is full-scale litigation--clients play a much less prominent role, lawyers exert far more control, plenary discovery is conducted, and a stranger to the dispute (judge or jury) issues a binding result.

[b] Deficiencies in Direct Negotiation

As so many commentators have noted, a significant part of the ADR revolution of recent years is that we now understand that there is abundant territory between those the two poles of direct unfacilitated negotiation and litigation, and we spend much of our professional lives operating in that territory. In previous years, litigating lawyers believed that unfacilitated negotiations and full-scale litigation were their only options, and leapt to the latter whenever the former failed. We now understand that we can use more step-wise processes, starting first with negotiations and then utilizing the many available alternatives, resorting to expensive, time-consuming and disruptive litigation and trial processes only if other alternatives fail.

This enhanced development, understanding, and use of alternatives to the polar-extreme processes of unfacilitated negotiation and full-scale litigation benefits our clients, who seek to achieve their results at the lowest feasible cost. Unfacilitated negotiation, by itself, is often inadequate to get the job done as quickly and inexpensively as clients demand. Certain inherent, structural features of unfacilitated negotiations often prevent that process from leading to the resolution of a dispute. It is important to understand why this so, in order then to understand how and why ADR processes address the deficiencies of unfacilitated negotiations, and help clients better achieve their goals.

The structural problems of unfacilitated negotiations are best set forth in Professor Robert Mnookin's article, Why Negotiations Fail: An Exploration of Barriers to the Resolution of Conflict, 8 Ohio St. J. On Disp. Res. 235 (1993), and are briefly recounted below.

[c] Reluctance to Reveal Priorities to Opponent

In any negotiation, each party has certain paramount goals--what they really, really want. Each party may, however, be reluctant to reveal those goals to her adversary, for fear that the adversary will exploit the information. That is, if I tell you what I really, really want, you may demand more and more from me before you agree to let me have it. Just think of two children "negotiating" over the use of toys; if one knows what the other's favorite is, the one may demand all the rest of the toys before the other's favorite is relinquished. The same dynamic can be at work in negotiations between adults. As a result, each side may be reluctant to disclose its true priorities. With the threat of such an inefficient exchange of information, the parties' true priorities may never even be discussed, and even if discussed, are less likely to be negotiated in an efficient way [see Mnookin, Why Negotiations Fail: An Exploration of Barriers to the Resolution of Conflict, 8 Ohio St. J. On Disp. Res. 235 (1993)].

[d] Principal/Agent Problems

In many negotiations, clients entrust the negotiating responsibilities to their lawyers. In some cases, this prevents the negotiations from succeeding. As Mnookin so bluntly states: "Litigation is fraught with principal/agent problems. In civil litigation, for example--particularly where the lawyers on both sides are being paid by the hour--there is very little incentive for the opposing lawyers to cooperate, particularly if the clients have the capacity to pay for trench warfare and are angry to boot. Commentators have suggested that this is one reason many cases settle on the courthouse steps, and not before: for the lawyers, a late settlement may avoid the possible embarrassment of an extreme outcome, while at the same time providing substantial fees" [Mnookin, Why Negotiations Fail: An Exploration of Barriers to the Resolution of Conflict, 8 Ohio St. J. On Disp. Res. 235, 242 (1993)].

Even where lawyers are free from these baser motivations, principal/agent issues may still frustrate the negotiations. Agents (lawyers or not) may not fully understand a principal's interests, may not properly prioritize those interests, or may not articulate a principal's interests as well as the principal could if he or she were negotiating on his or her own behalf. While lawyers may, in some ways, be more articulate than their clients, in other ways--depth of commitment, for one--it is difficult for any agent to match his or her principal. Particularly if the negotiations involve planning, or even the possibility of planning, for future collaboration between the clients, it is difficult for a lawyer (or any agent) to know and balance all of the parameters which will impact the client's creativity and decision-making.

[e] Nobody Wants to Go First

In many negotiations, neither side wants to be perceived as bearing the stigma of "weakness" that may follow from offering the first serious concession or compromise. Yet if both sides approach the negotiation this way, neither will budge from their initial position (at least not without significant passage of time and incursion of expense). Negotiations will at best stall and at worst fail. We have all felt frustrated in negotiations where this has taken place [see Mnookin, Why Negotiations Fail: An Exploration of Barriers to the Resolution of Conflict, 8 Ohio St. J. On Disp. Res. 235 (1993)].

[f] "Reactive Devaluation"

Mnookin describes the impact on legal negotiations of the psychological phenomenon called "reactive devaluation," which describes the situation which occurs "when one side offers a particular concession or proposes a particular exchange of compromises, [and] the other side may diminish the attractiveness of that offer or proposed exchange simply because it originated with a perceived opponent" [Mnookin, Why Negotiations Fail: An Exploration of Barriers to the Resolution of Conflict, 8 Ohio St. J. On Disp. Res. 235, 246 (1993)]. Mnookin again encapsulates the concept: "How often have you had a client indicate to you in the midst of litigation, 'If only we could settle this case for $7,000. I'd love to put this whole matter behind me.' Lo and behold, the next day, the other side's attorney calls and offers to settle for $7,000. You excitedly call your client and say, 'Guess what--the other side has just offered to settle this case for $7,000.' You expect to hear jubilation on the other end of the phone, but instead there is silence. Finally, your client says, 'Obviously they must know something we don't know. If $7,000 is a good settlement for them, it can't be a good settlement for us' " [Mnookin, Why Negotiations Fail: An Exploration of Barriers to the Resolution of Conflict, 8 Ohio St. J. On Disp. Res. 235, 246 (1993)]. Much to your frustration, the negotiations again at best stall, or at worst fail.

[3] Mediation

[a] Negotiation With a Facilitator

Mediation injects a neutral facilitator into the negotiation process. There is no set pattern for mediation, which the parties can formulate at will. There are, however, many mediation programs to which attorneys can turn to for assistance in obtaining a mediator.

It is difficult to give a single, simple definition of "mediation," as the art is currently practiced in California. Mediators' styles differ widely, and even the same mediator may employ different styles in different circumstances. Even so, most mediators seem to share certain basic techniques:

1. Parties as well as lawyers actively participate. This is in contrast to the traditional, judicially supervised settlement conference, in which the judge typically spends most (or all) of his or her time speaking to the lawyers, one at a time or together, with parties waiting in the hall. While the traditional, judicially-supervised settlement conference is effective in some circumstances, it is not likely to be as effective as mediation in others, and therefore should be distinguished therefrom.

2. One or more neutral mediators participates. To this extent, mediation is to be distinguished from an unfacilitated, direct negotiation between the parties or their lawyers. (One common example of the use of more than one mediator, or "co-mediation," is the use of both a male and a female mediator in the marital dissolution context.)

3. The mediator lacks coercive authority. That is, the mediator cannot make binding decisions, as can a judge, jury, or arbitrator. Therefore, the parties' focus in mediation is to persuade each other, rather than the neutral mediator, regarding the best way to resolve the dispute.

Even though the mediator does not make coercive decisions, many mediators do employ one degree or another of an "evaluative" style, in which the mediator raises certain questions (or even expresses opinions) concerning the strengths and weaknesses of the parties' positions. (This is generally done in a private caucus with that party or attorney, rather than in the presence of the other side). Many parties and attorneys prefer, at least for some disputes, mediators who are willing to use one degree or another of this evaluative style (and some mediators will never do so). Those parties generally expect the mediator to use this approach to disabuse the other side of its belief in the strength of its position. In practice, though, these "doses of reality" tend to be meted out rather more equally.

Many parties and attorneys believe that, to use the evaluative style effectively, the mediator must be a specialized expert in the substantive area of the dispute. In practice, this is often not the case. The best mediators tend to be effective in disputes ranging over a variety of subject matters. It is not uncommon to hear the same mediators named as among the best in construction, employment, environmental, and other frequently mediated types of disputes. These mediators cannot be specialized experts in all of these areas any more than the litigating lawyers can be. Rather, these effective mediators tend to combine a basic familiarity with the substantive area and extensive expertise in communication and negotiation skills. In many cases, the mediator can be effective, knowing only what he or she learns about the substantive area during the mediation itself. In any event, it must be an infrequent case in which the mediator knows less about the substantive area than the alternative neutral; a judge or jury.

For discussion of mediation, its benefits and drawbacks, see Ch. 31, Mediation .

[b] May Reduce Deficiencies of Direct Negotiation

As in the case of negotiation [see [2][b], above], parties may be reluctant to reveal priorities to the opposition in a mediation. However, mediation, by structuring the negotiation through a facilitator, may help overcome some of the other problems that may prevent direct negotiation from coming to fruition. Thus, if the parties are present for the mediation, the mediator may help to reduce the parties' anger as an obstacle, as well as any reticence the attorney may have toward resolving the case early. The mediator should also be able to eliminate the perceived the weakness of one party "going first" with an offer and counter any party's "reactive devaluation" as response to an offer.

[c] Avoids Binding Arbitration's Loss of Recourse to Courts

Unlike binding arbitration, submitting to mediation does not cut off recourse to the courts. For parties and attorneys unwilling to put their fate in the hands of an arbitrator whose errors would be binding even if contrary to law and substantially unjust [see Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 26-28, 33, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899] , mediation can offer a speedy and inexpensive alternative to litigation. Indeed, mediation is likely to be significantly faster and less expensive than arbitration, which, despite court decisions which frequently refer to the speed and economy of arbitration, can be very expensive.

[4] Mini-Trials, Summary Jury Trials, and Other Variations of Mediation

[a] Mediation Process May Emulate Courtroom Environment

The essential process of mediation is also found in innumerable other ADR devices. These permutations of mediation are more or less elaborate, with a greater or lesser emphasis on the presentation of factual claims regarding past events (rather than the negotiation of future arrangements and relationships between the parties). These permutations of mediation emulate "courtroom environments," with which litigating lawyers are comfortable, to greater or lesser degrees, and we give these permutations different names based on the elements of the courtroom environment which they emulate.

[b] Typical Mediation Process

The essential process in most mediations is as follows: The mediator first requests the parties' lawyers to describe the issues. Generally, the lawyers will respond with more or less argumentative "opening statements" which set forth certain aspects of the facts which give rise to the dispute, and the parties' positions on the legal issues set forth in the pleadings. This step serves the invaluable purpose of allowing each party to hear the other side's "spin." Each side will typically believe that the other side's spin is false, but will acknowledge that it sounds more or less persuasive at first blush, that it would take considerable effort to persuade a judge that the other side's spin is indeed not true, and that there is no absolute guarantee (in litigation, there are no absolute guarantees!) that the effort to set the judge or jury straight would succeed, no matter how great the resources devoted to that cause. These reciprocal realizations typically lead the parties to soften and moderate their expectations of what they can hope to achieve in settlement, and set the stage for the negotiations which are to follow.

Next, most mediators typically ask the parties themselves to describe their views of the situation. In these statements, the parties are free to discuss whatever they wish, including the myriad ways in which the dispute touches their careers and lives. The stuff of these statements shape the agenda for the negotiations, and begin the negotiations as well.

Upon hearing and, typically, reacting to these statements at least to the extent of attempting to set an agenda, the mediator may: keep all parties and lawyers together to negotiate; caucus with the parties and their respective attorneys separately, seriatim, to obtain additional information, test assumptions, and otherwise advance the negotiations; and may caucus privately with the lawyers, either alone or together, or both. Most mediators generally will not speak to the parties without their lawyers present, though, at least not without the lawyers' express consent. To do otherwise risks alienating and antagonizing the lawyers to the extent that they will, consciously or not, undermine the mediator's efforts to bring the clients to agreement. During this process, the mediator may or may not offer evaluations of the parties' positions, claims, and defenses. (In many cases, an evaluative neutral who caucuses with the parties and counsel separately will not share the same evaluations with both sides! Some neutrals will offer each side, in confidence, the most pessimistic view of their case, in order to provoke flexibility in the parties' positions.)

This essential structure--factual presentations by lawyers followed by negotiations involving lawyers and clients, with or without an evaluative component, can be expanded upon in ADR processes which go by many names, two of which are mini-trials (see [c], below) and summary jury trial (see [d], below).

[c] Mini-Trial

[i] "Trial" to Facilitate Negotiation or Mediation

In Mini-trials, lawyers commonly present opening statements of the type they would present in mediation, and, in addition, examine select witnesses (either live, on video tape, or by reading excerpts of deposition testimony), or may offer summaries of the most pertinent testimony. The proceedings may or may not be limited to the issues which the parties have identified as those most central to the dispute. All of this takes place before a "tribunal" comprised of the decision-makers for each side and, generally, a neutral--the same complement of participants as in a mediation. Where a neutral is involved, he or she typically moderates the presentations and may or may not render a non-binding, advisory "verdict," or other evaluative feedback on, for example, the credibility of witnesses, the appeal of particular case themes, or the strengths and weaknesses of specific factual or legal claims. This feedback can be given orally at the time or, if the parties so desire and time permits, in writing. The party representatives typically then try to negotiate a settlement, with facilitation by the neutral, as would take place in a mediation.

[ii] Neutral Evaluation or Early Neutral Evaluation

When the process described in [i], above, is conducted in a less formal manner (for example, by allowing witnesses simply to speak rather than requiring them to be examined in question-and-answer format), and particularly when the process is used shortly after a lawsuit is filed, this process is typically referred to as "Neutral Evaluation" or "Early Neutral Evaluation," an effective process used extensively in the United States District Court for the Northern District of California.

[d] Summary Jury Trial

A Summary Jury Trial is essentially the same as a Mini-trial, but the "tribunal" is a panel of lay people, selected by whatever procedure appears appropriate (many market research firms are able to generate panels whose demographics mirror those of the relevant jury pool), impaneled as a mock jury. This mock jury, in addition to the decision-makers for the parties and the neutral, listen to the presentation of factual material and offer their non-binding "verdicts" or evaluations. The parties then proceed to negotiate, facilitated by the neutral.

[e] Common Objective of Mini-Trials, Summary Jury Trial, and Similar Processes

Processes such as a mini-trial, neutral case evaluation, or summary jury trial can be as simple or elaborate, as abbreviated or protracted, as the parties' imaginations and budgets permit. The key is that, in each, the decision-makers for the parties must hear the other side's factual presentations in meaningful detail, to appreciate the "spin" that the other side will put on the case. This generally goes a long way toward disabusing each party of the misconceptions many parties have, before they hear the other side's spin, concerning what the ultimate strengths of, and absence of weaknesses in, their positions. These presentations are followed by facilitated negotiations between the newly-chastened principals.

[f] Multiple ADR Processes May Be Used

Parties to a dispute are not limited to the use of just one ADR process. In a multi-step protocol, it would not be uncommon for the parties first to use a simple, lawyers-and-parties-only mediation, with its minimal preparation time and no antecedent discovery. Then, and only if the mediation does not result in a settlement, the parties might use the mediation to identify those issues on which there appears to be the most serious disagreements, and then have a mini-trial or summary jury trial on those narrowed issues, preceded by limited discovery focused on those issues. The types and amounts of discovery which the parties will require before using any of these ADR processes will depend on the anticipated elaborateness and formality of the factual presentations which they contemplate. The guiding principle is to use the fewest resources necessary to resolve the dispute, and to use those ADR processes which require fewer resources before using those ADR processes which require greater resources.

[5] Contractual Arbitration

[a] Binding Arbitration With Very Limited Judicial Review

In arbitration, the parties agree to submit their dispute to an arbitrator. The arbitration may be binding or nonbinding. If nonbinding, it is essentially either mediation by another name [see [3], above] or judicial arbitration [see [6][b], below]. Thus, contractual arbitration most accurately refers to binding arbitration. If binding, the decision of the arbitrator or arbitrators is very binding indeed and is substantially insulated from judicial review [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1286 et seq.; Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 26-28, 33, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899 ; see also Old Republic Ins. Co. v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 631, 635, 638, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 50 (parties' stipulation seeking to limit superior court review of arbitration award as provided in Section 1286 et seq., but to allow appellate court to review findings of fact and conclusions of law as though the case had been tried to the court without a jury held ineffective to empower appellate court to review award on its merits)]. Perhaps the most difficult issue confronting those considering binding arbitration is the matter of just how binding that process is. On petition to confirm an arbitrator's award, the available grounds for challenge are extremely limited. Thus, an arbitrator's decision is even more final than that of a judge or jury, because the grounds for further court review are so limited. Lawyers should keep this absence of substantive review in mind when they consider binding versus nonbinding processes, particularly if their case contains important or novel questions of law, which frequently are made the subject of appellate review in traditional litigation, but which will likely evade meaningful judicial review if decided in binding arbitration.

Regardless of changes in the standards of judicial review of arbitrators' decisions, arbitration remains the submission of factual or legal issues, or both, to a neutral third party (or a panel of neutral third parties) who render a decision akin to the decision which a judge or jury would render in court. Arbitrators have traditionally been selected based on, among other criteria, their substantive expertise in the subject matter of the dispute. This substantive expertise is supposed to give the arbitrator an enhanced nose for the truth; hence, arbitrators are allowed to render binding decisions even though arbitration generally does not include the complete due process (e.g., evidence may be submitted by affidavit and affiants may avoid cross-examination; the hearsay ban is often relaxed; etc.) which must precede a binding decision in court, and which are designed to protect a non-expert judge or jury from being misled.

In arbitration, the respective roles of attorney and client are roughly the same as they are in court. The attorney presents the case, and the client is generally heard from only when testifying.

Binding arbitration is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq. and is the most formal of ADR methods, and, except to the extent that the parties agree to relaxed procedures, is the method most similar to trial.

PRACTICE TIP:

Lis pendens. Arbitration is not an "action" under Code Civ. Proc. § 405.5 [see also Code Civ. Proc. § 405.20 (applying to federal courts)], governing the filing of a notice of lis pendens [Manhattan Loft, LLC v. Mercury Liquors, Inc. (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 1040, 1051-1052, 1056, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 457 (lis pendens improperly filed)]. However, a party to arbitration may simultaneously file and stay a court action pending the arbitration of a dispute that is claimed to be arbitrable and relevant to the action [Manhattan Loft, LLC v. Mercury Liquors, Inc. (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 1040, 1054, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 457 (citing Code Civ. Proc. § 1298.5)], giving grounds for filing lis pendens [see Ch. 348, Lis Pendens, § 32.25[3]] and not itself waiving arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1298.2], so long as other steps are not taken in the litigation that have the effect of waiving arbitration [see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.25[3]].

Also, despite the courts' frequent statement that parties opt for arbitration as a fast and economical method of dispute resolution, arbitration is often at least as expensive as trial, and may be similar to trial in terms of delay. In many cases, discovery costs and witness fees may be comparable to those that would be incurred if the case were litigated. Expenses beyond those incurred in litigation include paying for the arbitrator's time and renting the hearing room.

For discussion of contractual arbitration, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration ; Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding ; and Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review .

[b] Predispute Agreements

Arbitration agreements often submit all the disputes that may arise out of a contract to arbitration. These clauses are broadly construed in accordance with the policy generally favoring arbitration. For further discussion, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration .

[c] Postdispute Agreements Structuring the Dispute for Submission to Arbitration

[i] More Specific Than Predispute Agreements

An agreement to arbitrate a dispute made after the dispute has arisen may be more specific than an arbitration clause anticipating undefined future disputes arising out of a contractual relationship. Thus, the parties in a postdispute arbitration agreements will be able to more precisely define the scope of the arbitration in a postdispute agreement than in a predispute arbitration clause.

Although parties may define the dispute in any fashion they wish, some of the more common ways in which parties structure the dispute for submission to arbitration are discussed in [ii] et seq., below. These many permutations--and there are countless others with which parties have experimented and found success--conjure images of a wild dormitory poker game, with drunken undergraduates declaring ever more exotic combinations of wild cards and minimum opening hands. Yet they also show that there is an almost infinite variety of possible techniques lawyers, courts, and parties can adapt to the needs of their particular cases. With imagination as the only boundary, all should feel empowered to design the techniques which can--and will--work best for them.

[ii] Defined Issues

The parties may structure the arbitration by simply submitting to the arbitrator (1) the pleading-style statements of their claims and defenses with which they initiated the arbitration and (2) briefs which resemble trial briefs, prepared after whatever discovery the particular arbitration protocol permits.

This structure provides the arbitrator with wide latitude to fashion remedies and provides the parties with a relatively unpredictable outcome.

[iii] High-Low

In a "high-low" arbitration, the parties negotiate a range of possible outcomes and then submit the dispute to the arbitrator for decision. For example, the claimant might agree to arbitration if, in her worst case, the arbitrator will award no less than a specified amount in her favor (e.g., $50,000); and the respondent might conversely agree to arbitration if, in her worst case, the arbitrator could no more than a specified amount against her (e.g., $250,000). The arbitrator's discretion would then be limited to awarding $50,000 or $250,000 or any amount in between, no matter whether the arbitrator would have awarded more or less, had his discretion been unfettered.

The "high-low" technique, and the others which follow (see [iv] et seq., below), are usually proposed to draw an otherwise-recalcitrant party into an arbitration process, with its attendant waiver of recourse to the court system. These techniques are designed, among other things, to increase the predictability of outcomes in the arbitration system.

[iv] Baseball

In a "baseball" arbitration, the arbitrator's discretion is limited in the way major league baseball limits the discretion of arbitrators in player salary disputes. That is, following on the example used in [iii], above, in a "baseball" arbitration, the arbitrator's award must be either $50,000 or $250,000. The arbitrator lacks authority to award any amount higher or lower, or any amount in between. Predictability of outcome is therefore enhanced even further. In addition, the process encourages the parties to set their numbers at levels which they believe the arbitrator will find reasonable; this process, in and of itself, encourages the type of negotiation which often will result in settlement without having to submit the dispute to an arbitrator at all.

[v] Night Baseball

In "night baseball," the arbitrator does not know the figures which the parties have selected (see [iv], above). The ultimate award will be that number selected by either the claimant or the respondent which is closest to the number which the arbitrator, working "in the dark," selects.

This technique is designed to allow the parties to select numbers which the arbitrator may perceive as less "reasonable"

(i.e., compromise-oriented), but which, in the parties' view, may better reflect results which are "just." This technique also serves less well as a catalyst for negotiation than does a "baseball" arbitration in which the arbitrator knows the numbers.

[vi] Med-Arb

In "Med-Arb" (a hybrid of mediation and arbitration), the parties want the flexibility of the facilitated negotiations which constitute mediation, but also want the assurance of finality which is the hallmark of arbitration. The parties want to achieve both benefits, though, in one procedure rather than two. They therefore agree to mediate, with the proviso that if they cannot settle during the mediation, the mediator can announce that he is converting the procedure to an arbitration, and will render a binding decision after such further factual or legal presentations as may be appropriate.

This process may be efficient in certain cases, but parties should be aware that they will be less likely to make candid, complete disclosures to the mediator, either in the presence of the other side or in private caucus, knowing that this person may then function as a decision-making, judgmental, arbitrator. It is akin to having a judge preside over a settlement conference, knowing that he will serve as judge in a bench trial if the settlement conference does not succeed. It is a potentially successful procedure, but not one without its risks.

[vii] Medaloa

Medaloa (Mediation And Last-Offer Arbitration) is a hybrid of Med-Arb and High-Low or Baseball arbitration. In Medaloa, the parties attempt settlement through mediation and, if the effort does not succeed, the mediator will then convert the proceedings to an arbitration, but her decision will be limited to a number banded by the range of the last offer and demand (borrowing from High-Low), or to either the last offer or the last demand (borrowing from Baseball).

This offers the benefits of certainty and finality but, again, the dual role of the mediator/arbitrator makes it somewhat less likely that complete disclosures will be made during the mediation component, hence lessening the likelihood that the mediation component will actually result in settlement. (Since the mediator/arbitrator participates in the earlier settlement discussions, no one has yet identified a way to give this technique a "night baseball" component, though it is likely that, sooner or later, such a development will occur.)

[viii] Arb-Med

In Arb-Med (Arbitration-Mediation), the case is arbitrated and the arbitrator reaches a decision. The decision is written down and sealed in an envelope. The arbitrator then tries to mediate between the parties, without disclosing the decision which will be entered as the arbitration award if the negotiations do not result in a settlement. Under this technique, the parties do not suffer the same disincentives to disclosure as they suffer in Med-Arb; but serious issues remain as to the "neutrality" of the neutral at this point, and whether the mediation will truly be the facilitation of the parties' own negotiations. This technique is also rather more expensive than many of the alternatives, since it contemplates a full arbitration before any attempt at mediation.

[6] ADR Within the Judicial System

[a] Court Policies Supporting Voluntary ADR

Courts are widely encouraging parties to consider ADR, often with the incentive that if the parties submit to voluntary ADR, the court will not require them to then go through judicial arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.10 et seq., which is discussed under [b], below. Beginning with general civil cases filed after June 30, 2001, every trial court must provide to the plaintiff, at the time of filing of the complaint, an ADR informationpackage that includes information about the various ADR options and a form of stipulation for ADR. The plaintiff must serve that ADR information on each defendant along with the complaint; and cross-complainants must serve copies of the ADR information package on any new parties to the action along with the cross-complaint [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.221 [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.800(1) (definition of "ADR process")]. The issue of referring a case to judicial arbitration or some other form of ADR is required to be considered at the case management conference [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.727(6)]. In preparation for the case management conference, and no later than 30 calendar days before the date set for the case management conference, the parties must meet and confer, in person or by phone, to consider whether the case is appropriate for judicial arbitration, some other form of ADR, or possible settlement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.724(6), 3.727(6)]; and the case management statement, which must be filed 15 days before the case management conference, will reflect any decision regarding ADR [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.725]. If the parties agree to use an ADR process, they must jointly complete the ADR stipulation form provided in accordance with Cal. Rules of Ct, Rule 3.221 and served with the complaint, and file that stipulation with the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.726].

[b] Judicial Arbitration

Judicial arbitration is nonbinding arbitration which is a mandatory part of pretrial procedure in many litigated cases and when not mandatory, may be opted for by the parties [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.11, 1141.12]. It is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.10 et seq. Although nonbinding in the sense that a party may seek trial de novo if dissatisfied with the arbitrator's award, there is significant disincentive to seeking trial de novo: If the party seeking trial de novo fails to obtain a judgment more favorable than the arbitration award, he or she will become liable for costs and will be precluded from recovering costs from the other party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21 (defining costs and providing for some exceptions)].

Because it is commonly mandatory, judicial arbitration is frequently a litigator's first exposure to structured ADR. However, because it is mandatory, the dynamics of judicial arbitration are less conducive to resolution of the action than are forms of ADR that the parties enter voluntarily. Because of this different dynamic, litigators forced into this form of ADR may form an unfavorable opinion of ADR generally and may resist volunteering for other forms of ADR. If you are trying to convince uncooperative opposing counsel to try a voluntary ADR option, you might probe for their prior experience. If it is limited to judicial arbitration, emphasize the very different atmosphere of entering a voluntary forum in persuading them to give it a try.

For discussion of judicial arbitration, see Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration .

[c] Mediation Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1775 et seq.

In Los Angeles County, the court may order a case to mediation under Code Civ. Proc. § 1775 et seq. as an alternative to judicial arbitration, which is discussed in [b], above [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.3]. Other counties may opt into this program, if they so desire.

For discussion of mediation in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1775 et seq., see Ch. 37, Judicially Mandated Mediation .

[d] Reference

An additional point at which ADR may impact on litigation in the court system is through reference [see Code Civ. Proc. § 639 (court's power to order involuntary reference)]. Although used in a variety of areas, the courts have turned more and more often to reference to move discovery disputes out of the court and into a referee's hands [see Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(5)]. This does not totally remove the referred matter from the court system because the referee returns a recommendation, not a binding order. Courts, however, rarely reject the referee's recommendation. And in some cases, a retired judge resolves discovery disputes in the more formal capacity of a "judge pro tem" rather than a "referee," in which case the retired judge's rulings are not confirmed by the trial court, but rather are reviewable only by writs to the Court of Appeal.

Even if the retired judge's role is limited to the resolution of discovery disputes, his or her involvement may nonetheless expedite the resolution of the dispute. First, documents and evidence which are ordered to be disclosed may reveal facts which materially impact the parties' perceptions of the strengths and weaknesses of their cases. (So, too, may the recognition that certain documents and evidence will not be produced.) Perhaps more importantly, in the course of the consideration and resolution of discovery disputes, the retired judge may, and frequently will, express opinions (with varying degrees of subtlety) as to the ultimate outcome of the case. This can be done quite consciously, with the goal of provoking progress toward a settlement. At times, this informal guidance from a respected jurist can be an enormous benefit in the process of resolving the ultimate dispute.

A very significant and potentially adverse aspect of reference is that, unless the referee is, at the time of the reference, an employee or officer of the court, the court may order the parties to pay the referee's fees [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 645.1, 1023].

For discussion of reference, see Ch. 38, Reference , and for specific issues that arise in the use of reference in discovery matters, see Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, § 190.39.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

4-30 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 30.12

AUTHOR: Jeffrey G. Kichaven Editorial Consultant Jeffrey G. Kichaven is a lawyer, mediator, and arbitrator in private practice in Los Angeles. He is Chair of the ADR Section of the Los Angeles County Bar Association and the Committee on Dispute Resolution in the American Bar Association's Section of Business Law.

§ 30.12 Obligation to Consider ADR

[1] When Use of ADR Is Required by Contract or Statute

In some cases, the obligation to use ADR will come from contract or statute. Contracts today often include arbitration clauses. They are frequently seen, for example, in contracts for the sale of real property, the provision of medical services, and agreements between banks and their customers. In fact, the current version of the standard-form residential purchase agreement used in California provides that a prevailing party in litigation or arbitration who refused a request to mediate made before the commencement of those proceedings is barred from recovering attorney's fees. The mediation need not be conducted first if a lawsuit is filed to enable recording of a lis pendens. But refusal to mediate after such a lawsuit is filed (and for several months thereafter, during which extensions of time to respond are granted) bars recovery of attorney's fees [see Frei v. Davey (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1506, 1515-1520, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 429 (parties collectively incurred more than $500,000 in attorney's fees pursuing a matter commenced when their settlement offers were $18,540 apart)].

These clauses more commonly require any and all disputes relating to the contract to be arbitrated. In some instances, inclusion of the arbitration clause may be mandated by statute, as in the case of uninsured and underinsured motorist insurance [see Ins. Code § 11580.2(f)]. In many other instances, the parties are forced into nonbinding judicial arbitration even if they choose to litigate [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(a)].

In more fully negotiated commercial contracts, many transactional lawyers will insert comprehensive, "multi-step" dispute resolution clauses. Typically, these clauses provide that, upon the occurrence of a dispute, representatives of the parties (of a particular seniority level) will attempt unfacilitated negotiation; if that does not succeed, more senior party-representatives will negotiate; if that does not succeed, a mediation will take place; and, if that does not succeed, a binding arbitration. These "multi-step" ADR clauses also typically provide specified, brief time periods within which these events must occur.

Those are, however, instances in which the obligation will have been imposed upon you, the litigating lawyer, by another--either the parties who negotiated the contract (in many cases, not the same people involved in the dispute) or the legislative branch. What are the circumstances in which the litigating lawyer himself will be obligated to initiate the idea?

[2] Voluntary to Serve Best Interests of Client

[a] Choosing the Best Tool to Serve the Client Is Also Good Marketing for the Attorney

Our concept is that the litigating lawyer should, for purely selfish, self-interested reasons, feel obligated to consider ADR in every case.

In every case, the litigating lawyer, no less than the transactional lawyer, should ask:

- What goals does the client want to accomplish?
- What tools are best suited to the accomplishment of those goals?

In a litigation (or, more broadly stated, dispute) situation, the goals may be varied. They may be financial or emotional; focused on the clients themselves or on their adversaries; abstract or concrete. As the litigating lawyer explores the client's goals, one conclusion ought to emerge: there is not one single, solitary tool that is best suited to the accomplishment of every goal or the resolution of every dispute.

Litigation may be best suited to the accomplishment of some goals and the resolution of some disputes. Its presence as guarantor of the rule of law should not be underestimated. But it is expensive. And it is time-consuming. And it is disruptive to the client's business and life. And so it should be used thoughtfully, not reflexively. ADR offers the litigating lawyer additional tools for the resolution of disputes which may well, in many cases, be better suited to the task at hand. In order best to serve the client's interests, the lawyer should be well versed in all the available tools, or processes, for dispute resolution. Only then will the lawyer be able to give the client the best available service through the intelligent matching of the best process and the current dispute. This focus on client service is designed to give the litigating lawyer a competitive advantage in the marketplace; the lawyer who can deliver financially successful results to clients through faster, more affordable, less disruptive processes will be the lawyer who will attract and keep clients.

In some cases, the delivery of a result which is final, and doing it faster and more affordably, may be the very criteria which clients use to determine whether the result is successful or not. This is the concept which originally gave rise to binding arbitration, and its importance to many clients has not lessened in the many years since binding arbitration was created. The criteria which clients use to determine "successful" results may not be obvious, may change from time to time even during the life of a single dispute, and may not be immediately apparent even to the client him or her self. For the litigating lawyer to do an effective job, these issues must be explored early, thoroughly and repeatedly.

[b] Determining Best Tool Through Client Counseling

More concretely, this begins with thorough client counseling. That beginning counseling, however, should neither focus upon, nor even discuss, the available processes. Rather, the discussion should focus on a thorough, detailed articulation of the client's goals and interests. What does the client hope to accomplish in this dispute situation? In what sort of situation would the client like to be when the dispute is over? It is not enough for the client to say that he or she wants to "win" the lawsuit, "get his money back," or "drive the other guy broke." These generalities need to be broken down and made far more concrete.

Areas you may should explore with the client include:

- What does it mean to "win"? Different clients will give different answers, based on their economic, psychological and other characteristics.

- How long he or she is willing to wait to "win," and what the consequences of that wait will be.

- How much he or she is willing to spend in order to "win," and whether those resources could or could not be put to other or better uses.

This type of discussion will lead to a more specific analysis of the opportunity cost of the full-scale litigation that the client may be contemplating. By engaging in full-scale litigation, the client loses the opportunity to make alternative uses of his time and money. How do those alternative uses compare?

As part of the counseling, the lawyer will need to work hard to explain to the client, particularly the client who does not have extensive litigation experience, just how disruptive litigation can be. As many people who have been parties to significant litigation will agree, a pending lawsuit becomes "Topic #1" in the client's life: a constant area of attention, focus and conversation with anyone within hearing distance. The litigation fills the client's mental landscape, and can detract from the client's ability to focus that attention on other, potentially more constructive and forward-looking, areas of life (e.g., what plans should I make for my career or business, how shall I rebuild my personal life after the dissolution of this marriage, etc.) This mental-energy "cost" of litigation is difficult to articulate or quantify, but it is real and it is significant. Thorough client counseling should take it into account.

Oftentimes, lawyers will see clients define "winning" in one of two general ways: (1) As the satisfaction of their own, forward-looking interests, needs, and values, or (2) as the "defeat" of the other side. Generally, it is easier to satisfy a client whose vision of victory is in the former, rather than the latter, camp. For example, in the family law context, one party's goal may be to secure sufficient resources to provide a particular standard of living. This goal is specific, measurable, and, to a greater or lesser degree, attainable. But that party's goal might, by contrast, be to "defeat," "humiliate," or "destroy" a spouse. This goal is vague, not measurable, and extraordinarily difficult to achieve. It is difficult for such a client ever to believe that the punishment inflicted on the other side measures up to what the other side "really deserves." Such a client typically believes that the other side is immoral, unethical, and generally incapable of learning the lesson which the client wants taught; yet this client also appears willing to commit resources to the achievement of what is, almost by definition, an unachievable goal. This dynamic is at work in a variety of business and civil disputes, not just in the family law Wars of the Roses. In any context, the folly of such a strategy should, in most cases, be obvious once clearly explained. So, when properly counseled, many clients will see the wisdom of expressing their goals in terms of satisfying their own needs rather than the frustration of the other side. This is generally in the lawyer's interest as well. It is difficult to envision circumstances in which it is appropriate to undertake the representation of a client, believing in advance that you will be unable to accomplish the goals set out for you. Better to work with the client to recast those goals in terms which are achievable, and will satisfy the client's own legitimate needs.

Only when the client's interests and goals have been thoroughly explored and articulated can the lawyer then work on the challenging task of selecting the dispute resolution process or processes, from among the many available, best suited to the task, as discussed in § 30.13.

§ 30.13 Selecting the Best Dispute Resolution Tool

[1] Litigation as One Tool

[a] Rethinking the Scope of a Litigator's Business

In a sense, this may require a fundamental rethinking of the answer to the question, "what business are we in?" We tend to hold ourselves out to the client community as "litigators." The term we use to describe our business implies that we look first to litigation as the process for resolving clients' disputes. This can lead to a dangerous propensity not to view other processes as available in our toolkits. We tend to focus on one feature of the range of services we can provide, litigation.

[b] Applying Cost-Benefit Analysis to Litigation

Conventional wisdom in the world of marketing, however, discourages an emphasis on features and instead encourages an emphasis on benefits of the services provided. "Litigation" is not a benefit; the benefits of what we do are to provide "successful" resolutions of disputes (however the client may define it), and to do it while consuming the fewest resources necessary (time and money). Our services are more beneficial if, to borrow the language of mathematics, the resolutions we propose are more "elegant"--that is, the resolution of a dispute using the fewest steps and assumptions as necessary.

To make an analogy which might be more familiar to clients--particularly business clients--the litigating lawyer might compare the dispute "cycle" to other cycles with which the client is more familiar, such as an inventory or accounts receivable cycle. Businesses try to achieve their goals, such as the sale of inventory at an acceptable price or collection of an acceptable level of accounts receivable, as efficiently as possible. That is, businesses generally try to shorten the number of days, weeks or months in the cycle, and reduce the number of junctures in the cycle, thus minimizing the resources which must be devoted to the accomplishment of the underlying substantive goal.

So it is with disputes. If the client thinks of a dispute as a business event with a cycle, the remainder of the discussion often becomes obvious. The dispute will eventually be resolved (it is difficult to think of a civil dispute which actually goes on forever, though we often think the possibility is there!), with the client generally either paying or receiving some amount of money at the time of the resolution. The question then becomes, how can we make the cycle more efficient? How can we shorten it? How can we require less management attention to be devoted to it along the way? This style of thinking almost always leads to an ADR-friendly orientation to disputes; the lawyer and the client are both stimulated to think of creative ways to accomplish these process-related goals. A client who thinks this way will insist that the lawyer do so; hence, the business necessity of being open to ADR. If the client demands this style of service, and you don't provide it, the client will have no difficulty finding another lawyer who does.

[2] Advantages of Nonbinding ADR Processes

[a] Control of the Process

[i] Ability to Select Mediator or Other Facilitator

In ADR, most particularly in mediation, the parties do not turn their dispute over to another (judge or jury, most often) to make a binding decision. In many cases, the mediators or other ADR neutrals do not have extensive substantive expertise regarding the industry or subject matter of the dispute. Critics of the processes cite this "ceding of control" to non-expert others as a disadvantage of ADR.

Experienced ADR-sensitive practitioners, however, are likely to describe the implications of the issue of "control" differently.

Initially, the amount of "control" in ADR processes should be compared and contrasted with the amount of control parties retain in litigation. In many cases, the amount of control maintained in litigation is far less than the amount of control maintained in ADR processes, most particularly mediation. In litigation, the parties lose complete, or almost complete, control of important elements of the process. Most significantly, in litigation, the parties turn over decision-making authority to total strangers. The judge and jury who will decide the case are almost completely beyond the control of the parties or their lawyers. Decisions can be wholly motivated by these strangers' irrational, emotional, or subjective reactions to the evidence, the personalities involved, or other factors. As long as there is "substantial evidence" somewhere in the record to support whatever conclusions are reached, the verdict will withstand appeal. Yet (with the notable exception of patent and other technology-related cases) parties rarely complain that juries or even judges "lack substantive expertise." If parties do not voice such complaints about the jurors who can make binding decisions about their fortunes, careers, and lives, then mediators (who generally facilitate negotiations and do not make binding decisions) ought not to be subject to such complaints, either.

Moreover, in ADR, one need not cede control to a nonexpert. One of the potential advantages is that in a complex case, the parties may elect to have the matter mediated or arbitrated by an expert in the area involved in the dispute. Some attorneys, however, might prefer to have a non-expert so that they can educate the mediator or arbitrator in the course of the proceeding.

Thus, the distinguishing control factor here, unlike litigation, is that the parties get to opt whether to have the matter heard by an expert or nonexpert.

[ii] Freedom From Rules of Evidence and Civil Procedure

Other aspects of litigation are far beyond the clients control as well, and are subject to far more control in mediation or other forms of ADR. The rules of evidence and civil procedure, for example, severely limit the otherwise-relevant materials which can be presented to the judge or jury as the basis for decision-making. In mediation or other facilitated-negotiation processes, however, where the parties themselves are the decision-makers, the rules of evidence and civil procedure need not be followed; the parties can, in their negotiations, refer to hearsay, opinions, conclusions, even argumentative materials--whatever they think will prove persuasive to the other side. The side hearing these matters may or may not be persuaded; but the articulating side will have maintained more complete control over the materials to be considered in the process, and is likely not to feel the frustration litigants feel, "if only I had been able to get on the stand and tell them what was really important."

[iii] Ability to Define Scope of the Issues

In litigation, the scope of the issues to be decided is also largely beyond the parties' control. The agenda of litigation is bounded by the parties' abilities to state facts sufficient to constitute legally cognizable causes of action and defenses. Other issues--emotional needs for respect or revenge, hurt feelings, pride, among others--may never be adequately addressed within what the parties may perceive to be the relatively narrow scope of the claims and defenses which are the stuff of lawsuits. In a mediation or other facilitated negotiation, the parties are free to discuss and negotiate over whatever they agree to make their agenda.

To some readers, it may seem that this will make the agenda of the mediation or other negotiation too long, too broad, or too unwieldy. In fact, the opposite often takes place. When the parties have the opportunity to focus on the factors most important to them, they generally do so. Those factors may not relate to the elements or proof of legally cognizable causes of action or defenses at all. But they are likely to relate to what the parties themselves see as the heart of the dispute--and hence the agenda becomes more narrowed and focused.

Litigating lawyers, on the other hand, often steer disputes in the other direction, away from the heart of the dispute and toward peripheral issues. In order to appear "aggressive" and "vigorous" in their advocacy, how many lawyers will add marginal causes of action to complaints? Hence the contract dispute expands to include the inflammatory language of fraud and deceit; the employment dispute expands to include allegations of emotional distress or loss of consortium; and the list goes on. South of the "v." defense lawyers engage in similar tactics. The reflexive demurrer, the overbroad document request, and the deposition questioning which strays unduly into the plaintiff's personal life are all tactics which expand, rather than focus, disputes, often to the client's detriment.

[iv] Using Litigation for Leverage

There are times, of course, when aggressive or even hyper-aggressive litigation tactics are appropriate. In some cases, aggressive litigation tactics, on either the plaintiff's or defendant's side, can be seen as a necessary precursor to serious negotiations or engagement in an ADR process. For example, an employee who is one among many whose jobs have been eliminated in a company, but who nonetheless feels that she is the victim of racial discrimination or sexual harassment, may not be taken seriously by busy management until a complaint is filed and the summons is issued and served. On the other side, a defendant may need to disabuse a plaintiff of the mistaken impression that collecting a large sum of money via settlement is easy to accomplish; the defendant may need to show the plaintiff that litigation is a long, hard road, and that the plaintiff's time and money may more productively be employed elsewhere. In such cases, litigation is used strategically, not for its own sake. A "taste" of litigation can, in some cases, productively be used to encourage the parties to resort to more efficient ADR processes instead.

In other circumstances, the other side (or even your own client) may approach the dispute with attitudes and needs which cannot be addressed other than through full-scale litigation. In rare cases, those attitudes and needs will not change, even after litigation is "tasted." In these cases, full-scale litigation is the only alternative, and the litigating lawyer should not be reluctant to use it. But the number of cases which truly fall into this category is likely to be far smaller than one may at first think. Many lawyers, particularly those without significant ADR experience, believe that mediation and other ADR techniques are for "other" cases, "smaller" cases, or "somebody else's" cases. For these lawyers and their clients, willingness to try ADR will often lead to an extraordinarily pleasant surprise.

[v] Allows Focus on Actual Issues Important to Client

Many clients soon realize that their resources, which are by definition finite, are not best spent in litigation because the process does take them away from the core of their dispute, and they are not able to talk about what they really want to discuss. ADR offers clients an opportunity to refocus the agenda. For the client, this generally means greater control over the dispute. For the lawyer, however, it may not. For litigating lawyers are, by training, most comfortable when the agenda is within their legal domain: the allegation and proof of elements of legally-cognizable causes of action and defenses, the application of the sometimes complex rules of evidence and civil procedure to the real-world events and circumstances which are the guts of disputes (and therefore lawsuits). In ADR, where the clients participate more directly, the importance of the legal superstructures is minimized, if not stripped away entirely; the real-world events and circumstances take center-stage, unadorned by the procedural acoutrements in which lawyers specialize. To lawyers, this may not seem like much of an advantage; indeed, many lawyers question what their role in such processes is at all. But to clients, the advantages are manifest if they are able to participate more meaningfully and reach substantively satisfactory results faster and more affordably.

[vi] Actual Issues May Not Be Traditional Legal Issues

In giving full consideration to all the tools available, the lawyer becomes the architect of the processes. The lawyer's role is thus different, but no less important. The lawyer fulfills his or her responsibilities--and professionally and honorably so--when he or she has assisted the client, through whatever mix of processes is appropriate, to retain or regain control over their own disputes, and reach the best negotiated result possible under the circumstances. The result may not focus on strictly "legal" issues at all; the client may negotiate for an apology rather than a financial settlement, for example. But that ought not trouble the lawyer, if the result satisfies the client and the client is fully advised by the lawyer that other, legal issues may be present. If clients choose not to focus on their legal rights, but rather to focus on other parameters of their dispute, and the choice is based on full information, who are we as lawyers to say that our choice of issues for the client is better than the client's own choice?

Indeed, in many cases, these other, more emotionally-oriented issues, are present, are real, and may be far more important to the client than the "legal" issues which the case appears to present. In fact, the legal issues, and the possibilities for monetary recoveries which those legal issues may appear to offer, are often only proxies for the true, underlying emotional issues.

As litigating lawyers, we may tend to underestimate the pervasiveness and significance of these underlying emotional issues. That is because it is not our training to do so. We are trained to "spot the issues," not necessarily to figure out the motivations or causes of the significance which some (but not all!) people will place on a given dispute.

So why will some people look at a given conflict situation and "want to make a federal case out of it," while others might look at the same objective fact pattern and decide to "forget it and get on with life"? Why, in the employment context, for example, will some employees in a large reduction-in-force take the bad news as well as possible under the circumstances and move on, while others will be hell-bent for litigation? Why will some employers treat their employees differently than others when confronted with those conflict situations? What are the human factors involved?

In many cases, the human factors can be boiled down with surprising simplicity. The need to litigate arises most strongly in those who perceive themselves as having been treated with disrespect, and who desire revenge as a result. The desire for revenge masks the true desire, to be treated with respect, which the person has not been able to attain. Unable to achieve respect, the person becomes willing to settle for revenge, and revenge takes the form of the financial, time-and-disruption related, and other, burdens of litigation.

In facilitated negotiation processes such as mediation, a mediator can help the parties to understand this cycle, often for the first time. When this happens, a defendant (for example) can acquire the opportunity to remedy the situation by clearly communicating the respect which the plaintiff feels he or she deserves, or by acknowledging that no disrespect was intended in the first place. Sometimes, the mere fact that the opposing party is willing to sit down and communicate face-to-face is a sufficient show of respect to go a long way toward settling the dispute. When coupled with the contents and tone of the communications which can follow, these face-to-face, mediated processes can be highly effective in defusing potentially lengthy litigation possibilities. Once respect is shown, the desire for revenge--through the processes of litigation--is reduced if not eliminated.

[vii] Allows Clients Greater Role in and Satisfaction With the Resolution

Clients who participate in the face-to-face, facilitated negotiations which mediation and other ADR processes offer often feel more invested in the process. As more direct participants, they have more of a stake in seeing the process succeed. The agreements they reach are their own, not ones imposed on them by others. They are less likely to feel taken when they participate and have this type of control over both process and outcome. Clients are more likely to reach agreement, and are more likely to comply with their agreements, when their investment in the process is maximized in this way.

For example, many clients tell their lawyers that they want nothing more than "to tell their story." As litigating lawyers, we often tell our clients to do no such thing. Many clients view their depositions as their opportunities to "set the other side straight" about the facts. As litigating lawyers, we almost always tell our clients not to do so, but to limit their answers, when and wherever possible, to "yes," "no," "I don't know" and "I don't remember." Clients may have more of an opportunity to tell their story at trial, but even then, the narration will be hamstrung by the formats of direct and cross-examination, the hearsay rule and other limitations of the rules of evidence, and what the clients may perceive as the cramped scope of relevance. How many clients, at the end of litigation, feel that they have really had the opportunity to be heard?

In mediation and other facilitated negotiation processes, clients often have better opportunities "to tell their story" than they have in litigation. First, the opportunity comes sooner. Trials take place at the end of the litigation process. Depositions, at which the story-telling opportunity is much more limited, often do not happen until some mid-point in the litigation, after the pleadings are settled (sometimes after significant motion practice) and document production and other preliminary discovery is complete. The scheduling of ADR processes, however, is much more flexible. ADR-sensitive advocates often try to schedule mediations at the very beginning of a lawsuit, or even before suit is filed; the best way to save clients the expense and delay of litigation, after all, is to try ADR processes before resources are spend in litigation and discovery.

Second, the question-and-answer formats of direct and cross-examination, which clients can find so frustrating, do not have to apply in mediation of any other ADR process, if the parties so agree. In most mediations, the neutral will begin by asking the lawyers briefly to describe the legal issues involved, and then ask the parties themselves to describe the situation as they see it. The parties then have the opportunity to give a more narrative response.

Third, the parties are not bound by the rules of evidence. In mediation and other facilitated-negotiation fora, no transcript is made, and nobody present has the power to make a binding decision and impose it on anyone else. Therefore, the process does not include the evils against which the hearsay bar and other rules of evidence are designed to protect (principally, the evil of erroneous decisions being imposed on the parties based on untrue evidence). The parties can draw on materials from whatever source they believe the other side will find persuasive.

Finally, the agenda of the negotiations is different than the agenda would be at trial. The parties choose to negotiate whatever is important to them. They tell their story, as they want to tell it, not the story required by the scope of relevance of legal claims and defenses. All in all, if the client wants to tell his or her story--and many clients do--then the control over the process which ADR offers can meet that need far better than the rule-bound processes of litigation.

[viii] Discovery

The last issue over which the parties have significant control in designing nonbinding ADR processes is the extent to which they will permit discovery. For discussion of discovery considerations, see § 30.15.

[3] Confidentiality of ADR

Another often-stated advantage of ADR is the confidentiality which the processes offer. ADR need not, and rarely does, result in the creation of a public record of the dispute or its resolution. There is no binding legal precedent to govern future cases. This may be in all sides' interest. The stakes in a given case (or in anticipated future cases) may be too high, or the state of the law may be too uncertain, for the parties to desire a public result or one which will govern future cases. Additionally, both sides may be concerned about possible embarrassment, disclosure of confidential business information, or other materials which they would prefer not to expose to the light of public scrutiny through civil litigation and discovery. ADR processes allow the parties to resolve their disputes, presumably to their satisfaction, without making the public disclosures which they would rather not make.

§ 30.14 Disclosures During ADR Process

[1] In Nonbinding ADR

In another sense, however, parties may be concerned about the disclosures which they may be tempted to make in the mediation or other ADR process itself. Parties may be concerned that a nonbinding ADR process will not result in a resolution and that the case will have to proceed in litigation; and that, in the ADR process, the parties will have made disclosures, in an effort to settle, which will turn out to have been disadvantageous in that subsequent litigation (if, for example, an opposing party changes his or her testimony in some material way as a result of the disclosure you have made). Indeed, there may be cases in which this concern is well-founded, and parties will be put to the strategic choice of disclosing sensitive evidence or not, hoping that the disclosure will help lead to a settlement, but concerned about having let the cat out of the bag in case the case does not settle.

Different advocates approach this judgment area differently. Some play their cards as close to the vest as possible. Others believe that they show confidence in their case by disclosing the evidence which they have accumulated; they keep an open mind with regard to new information with which they may be confronted; and in exchange, they ask the other side to keep an open mind and react rationally to the disclosures they make. For all advocates, though, the judgment calls regarding disclosure have to be made, and may be made differently at different times and under different circumstances.

Disclosures in ADR obviously give the opposing party knowledge that cannot be withdrawn. However, if the dispute does ultimately go to litigation, there are protections from the introduction in evidence of information discovered during ADR that would not otherwise be subject to discovery [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.25 (no reference to judicial arbitration proceedings in later trial); for discussion, see Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration ; Evid. Code §§ 1119, 1122 (statements and documents made in connection with mediation), 703.5, 1121, 1127 (mediator's findings or testimony); for discussion, see Ch. 31, Mediation].

[2] In Binding ADR

The judgment calls regarding the extent of disclosure discussed in [1], above, present themselves most acutely in nonbinding ADR processes. In a binding process (such as binding arbitration), there is much less downside to the disclosure; at the end of the process, the arbitrator will issue a final, binding decision. If you don't make your potentially persuasive disclosures during a process such as that, you may never have a meaningful chance to make the disclosure again. Thus, binding processes eliminate the dilemma of whether or not to disclose key facts, although those binding processes present other difficult issues, primarily whether one wishes to submit to a process that places extreme limits on judicial review [see Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 26-28, 33, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899 ; for discussion, see § 30.11[5]].

§ 30.15 Planning Discovery

[1] Timing of ADR Vis-'a-Vis Discovery

Parties can design ADR processes to take place before any discovery goes forward (most typically, a nonbinding mediation with client involvement maximized and lawyer involvement minimized), after discovery is complete (where other processes, including binding arbitration, may be more common), or after designated limited discovery takes place. Where the parties desire a fast, final resolution of their dispute, they may be inclined to forego discovery in the hope that a quick mediation will help them achieve the benefits they desire. Where the parties are eager to have more of a precedent to use in other cases involving other parties, they may be more inclined to develop a factual record more fully and then submit the dispute to a binding arbitration.

Discovery, although much abused, has its benefits. If important facts are uniquely under the control of the other side, discovery may be an appropriate or even necessary precursor to the resolution of the dispute. But virtually any discovery is expensive and time consuming. In ADR processes, the parties have the opportunity to mix formal and informal elements to arrive at the process most appropriate to their dispute.

Indeed, the parties can use a front-end mediation process to structure--and to limit--the discovery they will obtain before they again use mediation (or some other ADR process) to try to resolve their dispute. Parties may find it productive to use a mediator to help them in processes such as the Discovery Status Conferences contemplated in Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 26(f), U.S. Dist. Ct., Cen. Dist. of Cal., Rule 6, and analogous state court rules. There will likely be tremendous benefit from such an effort to structure discovery, even if applicable local rules do not require it. Parties and counsel can meet and confer to prioritize the issues in the dispute, isolate those on which different opinions and perceptions seem to be the most serious barriers to settlement, and then design appropriate discovery protocols (and perhaps adjudicative protocols as well, such as motions for partial summary judgments or trials on bifurcated issues) to address those issues. Once these smaller slices of the dispute are addressed, the parties may be able to achieve settlement without expending the resources which otherwise would be required to adjudicate the issues which remain. For the reasons described in § 30.11[2], these discovery-structuring efforts may be more productive if a third-party neutral is involved.

[2] Discovery Not Prerequisite to Nonbinding ADR

Generally, parties are less insistent on discovery when their ADR process is nonbinding mediation (or another form of facilitated negotiation) rather than binding arbitration. Where the parties are free to walk away from the table if their questions about the facts are unanswered, parties may be more willing to go to the table without having those questions answered in advance.

In nonbinding processes, parties often feel able to negotiate meaningfully, even in the absence of full and complete answers to their factual questions. Experienced lawyers, and their clients, can often assess the probabilities that undiscovered documents or testimony will turn out one way rather than another. Parties (and those aligned with them) can generally be expected to testify and produce documents which more or less support their claims and defenses; there is always some possibility that a party will make a fatal error at his or her deposition, or produce a "smoking gun" document which will undo his or her case. If those probabilities, based on experience and intuition, are calculated and analyzed, using, for example, the sort of "Decision Analysis" taught in MBA programs and with which many clients (at least in the business arena) are familiar, then the "expected value" or "settlement value" of a case can be estimated before the discovery actually takes place.

In this sense, litigation can be likened to a game of poker; we do not know all of the cards the other players hold, but we feel that we can bet intelligently anyway, based on our knowledge of our own hand, the cards already played, and the skills and propensities of the other players. And, as in poker, any time you want to see more of the cards the other players hold, there is a monetary cost attached. Not everyone insists on playing the hand all the way through to the end in order to be satisfied with the game; similarly, not all litigants insist on seeing their case all the way through to trial. Clients can intelligently decide to forgo certain discovery once they understand its attendant costs and can estimate the likelihood that testimony and documents will come out a certain way.

Finally, to contrast ADR processes with lessened discovery to litigation, with its more complete discovery, lawyers should recall that even the Code of Civil Procedure is not a guarantee that discovery will be complete. In many cases, formal civil discovery does not produce all of the evidence to which a party is entitled, for a variety of reasons ranging from the malignant to the benign. In reality, whether in ADR processes or in full-scale litigation, we are always operating on less-than-full, less-than-perfect states of information. So the differences between traditional litigation and ADR processes may be more ones of degree. But in ADR processes the parties can exercise more complete control over the types and amount of evidence provided, and in nonbinding processes generally remain free to withdraw completely if their factual inquiries are not satisfied. That is not an option one has in traditional litigation.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

4-30 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 30.16

AUTHOR: Jeffrey G. Kichaven Editorial Consultant Jeffrey G. Kichaven is a lawyer, mediator, and arbitrator in private practice in Los Angeles. § 30.16 Approaching the Other Side About ADR

[1] Opening the Topic

At some point, you as lawyer will have to take a difficult, possibly even courageous, step: You will have to approach the other side about using an ADR process in conjunction with, or instead of, full-scale litigation. To serve the client effectively, you will have to put your thoughts about the benefits of ADR into action, and that can be done only in conjunction with the other side.

This step may be difficult or even awkward if you are concerned that the other side is not familiar with ADR and its benefits. In those cases, the discussion may have to include a lengthy discussion of just what the various ADR processes are, before you are able to explain their benefits. The step becomes more difficult if you are concerned that the other side will perceive your overture as a "sign of weakness" and will respond to your overture with ever-more-aggressive litigation. In many cases, though, the client on the other side (even if not the lawyer) will welcome the advantages of time and cost savings which ADR has to offer, and the likelihood of a favorable response to an ADR overture may well be higher than we at first think.

The easiest ADR overtures come in cases where a contract or statute mandates the use of an ADR process. It is hardly a sign of weakness to express a willingness, or even eagerness, to comply with a contract or statute.

Most cases, however, do not involve contracts or statutes which mandate the use of ADR processes. There are still ways, though, to make the introduction of the subject less awkward. Many law firms, as well as many client businesses and companies, are signatories to "ADR Pledges" sponsored by bar associations or other organizations. Perhaps the most famous such pledge is sponsored by New York's Center for Public Resources, a business-supported organization which is dedicated to the identification and implementation of ways to reduce the high cost of litigation to its members. These pledges generally commit the signatories to becoming familiar with the spectrum of commonly-used ADR processes, and to recommending and using those processes in lieu of litigation in appropriate cases.

If you or your client is a signatory to one or more of these pledges, then the introduction of the topic becomes much easier. Your pledge, you can explain to the other side, commits you to the exploration of the propriety of ADR in every case; your introduction of the topic in this case, therefore, is nothing extraordinary or unusual. It is not only your standard operating practice, it is part of your pledge--in a sense, your contract--with your bar association (or with your client, if the client company is itself a signatory to such a pledge, as more and more companies are).

There are other, more subtle, ways to introduce the topic of ADR with the other side as well. One approach is to initiate a conversation with opposing counsel to introduce yourself and discuss the case. You may not want to use the term "ADR" in this conversation at all. Rather, the purpose of the conversation is simply to discuss "how we're going to handle the case, to see whether there are any ways we can make things more efficient." A discussion of "efficiency" often leads naturally to a discussion of ADR, given the time and cost savings which ADR processes offer. In particular, this type of conversation can lead to an exploration of nonbinding, facilitative ADR processes such as mediation, which can, in general, be set up much more quickly than binding processes such as arbitration (which many parties want to await the conduct of extensive discovery) and thus have the potential to offer greater time and money savings.

There are as many ways to steer such conversations in these productive directions as there are cases and opposing counsel with whom to have such conversations. The key, as always, is active listening, and the identification of clues in what opposing counsel tells you that will help you understand how best to handle that conversation with that person at that time and place.

[2] Suggested Techniques

[a] Let the Other Side Express Confidence in Its Case

Tell opposing counsel that you are open to persuasion. While you might not currently believe that the other side's case is strong, you recognize that "a case never again looks as good as it does on the day the client first walks into your office," and you are interested in hearing the other side's take, the other side's spin. If the other side really has such an impenetrably great case, you will so advise your client, and you will advise your client to offer a settlement that takes the "greatness" of the other side's case into account. You are, after all, able to assess factual and legal presentations, and there is generally little sense advising your client to spend large amounts of time and money to defend a case that he or she is so likely to lose. The client would generally be better off simply paying the money that a judge or jury would likely order him or her to pay anyway, and save the attorneys' fees, time and aggravation that he or she would incur along the way.

This coin, however, has two sides, and you must make opposing counsel aware of that. The other side is that you expect opposing counsel to show the same open-mindedness that you have offered to show. That is, you will have the opportunity to explain the strength of your case, as you see it, to them. Just as you have offered to be open to persuasion, you expect the other side to be open to persuasion as well. As a practical matter, that means that you want opposing counsel to commit, in advance, to the same approach as the approach you are willing to take: If you can legitimately persuade the other side that your defense is as strong as you believe it is, then opposing counsel will so advise his or her client, and will further advise his or her client to "go away," or at least to be willing to settle the claim on nominal terms.

Many times, opposing counsel, no matter how blustery, will agree, believing that there is only the slimmest likelihood that his or her side will objectively appear weaker than yours. In practice, though, there are usually facts, law, and equities favoring each side, and compromise (if not true collaboration) becomes possible.

This approach takes one of the conventional excuses for avoiding ADR--the "certainty of winning"--and turns it on its head. You have positioned to make the other side's certainty of winning as the very best reason to be enthusiastic about ADR. If the other side's case is truly a lead-pipe cinch (though lead-pipe cinches are far fewer and farther between than many lawyers believe--or are willing to admit--at the beginnings of cases), and you promise not to be so obtuse that the point will be lost on you if properly made, and you further promise to react, in terms of settlement negotiations, in a rational way, then the invitation to mediate is a challenge that many opposing counsel will find too tempting to pass up.

Again the analogy to a game of poker helps to shed light. In poker, once you show enough cards to cause your opponent to believe that you have an unbeatable (or even strong) hand, that opponent may well stop betting against you, and you will win the hand. So in dispute resolution, if you show enough of your case to cause your opponent to believe that you are unbeatable (or nearly so), that opponent, too, is likely to stop betting against the odds, and you will win.

[b] Show How Discovery Can Be Made Unnecessary or Hastened by ADR

[i] Discovery May Be Unnecessary in Nonbinding ADR

One of the most common objections to ADR is that the other side believes that it is too early in the process. Opposing counsel frequently will state that they need the deposition of this or that party or witness before he or she is able to have a "meaningful" settlement discussion.

Frequently, this objection is ill-founded in the first instance. The lawyer's insistence on discovery is, in many cases, designed to do nothing more than have the lawyer's state of knowledge catch up with knowledge the client already has. In many cases, the substance of the dispute involves direct dealings between the parties; conversations, meetings, and transactions in which they both participated. The clients know what actually happened and what did not; they were there. Clients in the business world and elsewhere resolve dispute after dispute themselves, without any involvement by lawyers at all. Many lawyers overstate their own importance to the processes by insisting that their state of knowledge be enhanced to this very expensive degree. To the extent that clients are seen as "in charge" of their own disputes (as often happens in mediation), rather than their lawyers being solely in charge, then the need for the education of the lawyers is much less.

[ii] Nonbinding ADR Can Serve the Function of Discovery

But even in those cases where some discovery actually may be necessary, ADR is generally not to be avoided. As part of the negotiation over the process and protocols, the sides can negotiate about who they want to attend the mediation (or other ADR process) session. If, for example, opposing counsel is reluctant to mediate because he or she has not yet deposed "Witness X," you can answer that you would be happy to bring Mr. or Ms. X to the mediation. At the mediation, you will let opposing counsel (and opposing parties, too) talk to Witness X about whatever is relevant to the dispute. The absence of a court reporter from a mediation ought not to deter opposing counsel; after all, Witness X's story, told in the presence of all involved in a dispute plus a neutral mediator (who is sometimes a retired judge), is likely to be the same as the story the witness would tell under oath at a deposition. (Put more bluntly, if Witness X is willing to lie in front of a retired judge, then Witness X will probably also lie under oath at a deposition; the oath adds nothing in such a circumstance).

The added efficiency from such a process can be extraordinary. When clients complain about the high cost of litigation, those complaints more often than not come in the context of the amount of money spent on discovery. Many clients perceive civil discovery as largely wasteful. Bringing clients or witnesses to a mediation can be a far more efficient way to exchange information. The questioning can be more relaxed, spontaneous and conversational. The numerous "objections to form" can be eliminated. Clients as well as lawyers can question each other and follow up. Absent the evidentiary formalities, and some of the cat-and-mouse strategy found in depositions, clients may find themselves able to get to the heart of the issue and negotiate with each other much more quickly in a single day of mediation than they would after weeks or months of formal discovery.

Importantly, this "free discovery" aspect of mediation can be valuable to opposing counsel and his or her client even if the mediation fails. Subsequent discovery can be truncated, and some depositions might be eliminated altogether, based on what the parties learn in the mediation. The information presented, along with what you learn about the demeanor of and chemistry among opposing counsel and his or her clients, also serves you well if you then have to prepare for trial.

[iii] Loss of Some Benefits of Formal Discovery

Some benefits of formal discovery may be lost through using ADR as a discovery mechanism. For example, because statements in mediation are not admissible in evidence, they cannot be used to impeach a witness whose testimony at trial is inconsistent with their deposition testimony. For the same reason, the statements made in mediation will not suffice to preserve the testimony of a witness who becomes unavailable [see Evid. Code §§ 1119, 1126, 1128]. The attorney will have to evaluate the importance of these potential benefits on a case by case basis. The option may also exist of the parties agreeing to the admission of all or part of specific communications made in connection with the mediation, which may restore some of these functions of formal discovery [see Evid. Code § 1122(a)(1)]. For discussion of the confidentiality of mediation proceedings, see Ch. 31, Mediation .

[c] Explain the Benefits

Most clients choose ADR processes, particularly mediation, because of the time and cost savings it offers. An explanation of these benefits to opposing counsel, along with a strong word concerning how this will keep the client happy even if it means fewer billable hours on this case, helps give many opposing counsel the tools they need to explain and advocate these processes to their own clients [see § 30.12[2]].

[d] Let the Other Side Pick the Process

An introductory meeting with opposing counsel might include asking the other side what they hope to get out of the litigation and where the client hopes to be, business-wise, career-wise, or otherwise, at the end of whatever process is adopted. The question to opposing counsel then becomes what is the best way to get there, given the realities of the case (e.g., unlikelihood of obtaining summary judgment, costs and delays of litigation, etc.). Particularly if you are able to prompt the other side with mention of your own experiences with ADR processes, opposing counsel may then suggest an ADR process with which he or she is familiar or has experience or which he or she otherwise feels might be appropriate. When the selection of the process appears to originate with the other side, then the likelihood of actually engaging in that process is far enhanced.

[3] Collaborative Approach to Process

[a] Parties' Objectives Usually Coincide on Issue of Using Speedy and Least Expensive Dispute Resolution Process

All of the approaches discussed under [2], above, both reflect and can cause a fundamental reorientation of the way lawyers think about they disputes they handle. We traditionally think of litigation as a classic "zero-sum game"; whatever the defendant pays, the plaintiff gets. But in some material respects, this zero-sum metaphor does not apply. Most specifically in the dimensions of cost and time, litigation generally is not a zero-sum game. When one side makes litigation take longer for the other side, it most certainly does not take any less time for the one; both sides are going to finish the litigation at the same time. Similarly with cost. When one side makes litigation more expensive for the other, it generally becomes more expensive for the one as well; both sides have to attend the extra deposition days, court hearings, or other junctures which can drive the cost so high.

The abandonment of the zero-sum metaphor means that there are opportunities for litigation, even hard-fought litigation, to take on collaborative aspects as well. In almost any lawsuit, the parties share some interests, most commonly the interests in making the process (1) less expensive and (2) shorter. Most clients, after all, are not in the litigation "business," and would be happy to see the dispute put behind them, on overall terms they find acceptable. When lawyers come to think of the handling of disputes in these client-centered terms, then the development of ADR processes that benefit both sides becomes eminently more possible.

[b] Using Economic Power to Extend Litigation Is of Questionable Value

There are a few cases in which the parties may find it extremely difficult to find legitimate areas of collaboration, even in questions of process-design, and those deserve mention. Particularly in cases between business competitors, the collaborative design of ADR processes may prove extremely difficult. A competitor who seeks to increase its market power through the elimination of another competitor may be not the least bit interested in expediting the process of resolving a dispute. Indeed, such a competitor may try to instigate disputes to be litigated, in the hope of taxing a (generally smaller) competitor's resources to a point where the smaller competitor will simply no longer be able to remain in business. The larger competitor is willing to suffer the expense and delays of litigation, in the short run, in the hope of increased market power in the long run. The litigation is just one of many competitive (or perhaps anti-competitive) tactics in which the larger competitor could engage.

A warning, though, to such aggressive competitors who focus more on today's competition than on the future needs of the market: particularly in industries which rely on cutting-edge technologies, to focus on today's competition, rather than on tomorrow's demand, could leave the field unnecessarily open to new competition, focused in technological progress rather than on the "defeat" of a particular competitor company. In a competitive technological market, even strong competitors can be knocked off by newcomers. In most cases, a company keeping its eye on the ball will still look on disputes as matters to be prevented and resolved, rather than encouraged, so that the company can continue its focus, undistracted, on its true core business.

In any industry, a strong company with money to spend on litigation may, if focused on a cost-benefit analysis of potential litigation, see that there are more valuable endeavors in which to invest its assets. While this has always been true, it is all the more compelling in today's environment of fast track litigation, where cases, even in actions exempt from the fastest track, are closely monitored by the court and pressed to conclusion and the earliest possible removal from the docket. In this environment, even if the client's objective is to tie up the opponent in an endless torture of protracted litigation, that objective is not so easy to achieve as it formerly was; so the cost-benefit analysis may tip in favor of simply disposing of the dispute and moving on.

§ 30.17 Timing of the ADR Discussion

If the goals of ADR are to save time and money, then the subject ought to be approached as soon in the dispute process as possible--before that time and money are consumed in discovery and otherwise in litigation. Additionally, the emotional wear and tear of litigation, including particularly the embitterment which often results from adversarial cross-examination at depositions, can make it harder for the principals to consider the possibility of a collaborative negotiation with each other. So ADR may be more likely to succeed when attempted before litigation causes feelings and positions to harden.

Even if ADR is not discussed at the outset of a dispute, other appropriate junctures are likely to present themselves. Before or after a key deposition or the ruling on a key motion, or in conjunction with a key event on the court's calendar (e.g., a status conference, after which more intensive--and expensive--trial preparation will have to begin in earnest), parties may be attuned to issues of cost, delay, and risk with particular clarity, and ADR possibilities may appear especially appealing at those points. Moreover, in the course of the status conferences, the court will almost certainly suggest that the parties consider mediation or some other form of ADR, which may provide leverage to get a reluctant party or opposing counsel to commit to a voluntary ADR procedure at this juncture. Also, in the many cases subject to mandatory judicial arbitration [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11], which uses cost-shifting as a disincentive to seeking trial de novo [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21] and generally precludes discovery after the award [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.24], the inevitability of mandatory ADR might be persuasive in arguing for going first to a voluntary form of ADR over which the parties could maintain greater control.

As these junctures approach, the watchword should still be, "the sooner the better." Embitterment almost always grows as litigation progresses, and as embitterment grows, the parties' abilities to visualize constructive future dealings with each other shrinks. As the possibility of future dealings shrinks, the parties' interest in processes designed to foster future dealings will also shrink. With the accusatory tone of so much of what is said in litigation; with the expense and disruption of fetching what each side perceives as the at-best-marginally-relevant documents demanded by the other side; with the repeated emphasis on "fraud" and the other hyperbole-laden claims which lawyers so often press in litigation in the name of aggressive advocacy, so lawyers diminish the likelihood that the parties will ever be able to restore whatever mutually beneficial relationship they once had. All of these factors contribute to a need for counsel to communicate with the other side about ADR.

§ 30.18 When Not to Use ADR

All of this said, are there some cases in which ADR is not appropriate? Professors Sander and Goldberg, who have conducted the most thorough research on the subject [see Sander and Goldberg, Fitting the Forum to the Fuss: A User-Friendly Guide to Selecting an ADR Procedure, 10 Negotiation Journal 49 (January 1994)], identify a few such cases, in which ADR is least appropriate and perhaps ought not to be used at all, with traditional litigation being preferred:

1. Where there is a significant public interest in a question of statutory or constitutional interpretation. The civil rights movement and other engines of social progress would have had a hard time exerting the constructive influences on society which they have had if court systems had not been available to the leaders of those movements.

2. Deterrence of recurring issues. For example, in cases of widespread consumer frauds in violation of statutes, or in cases where class actions seek equitable or injunctive relief, ADR might prove repetitive or inconsistent, and the public interest as well as the interests of the parties might well better be served through a court adjudication.

3. Cases where there is a public interest in sanctioning unacceptable conduct. For example, in cases involving slumlords, or other situations where punitive damages may be appropriate, court adjudications might be better suited to the task.

4. Cases where the parties are incompetent negotiators. Negotiation-oriented ADR processes may not be well suited to those who are not competent negotiators; but, query, how well are these incompetent negotiators (particularly among lawyers) likely to do at a trial, or in other court processes? If the results are not likely to be any more satisfactory (either to the parties or from the public's point of view), then perhaps ADR processes which do not require the taxpayer-financed resources of the court system are still to be preferred.

5. Cases that present serious issues of compliance or discovery. In cases where injunctive relief is necessary to insure proper conduct in the future, or where discovery may be necessary to learn unknown facts, the existence of which cannot be intelligently estimated, then again, court processes may be preferable.

In the vast majority of cases, though, ADR processes at least ought to be seriously considered; in the vast majority of those, ADR processes are likely to offer significant advantages over traditional, full-scale litigation.

§ 30.40 Considerations in Determining Whether to Use ADR, and If So, What Type?

- ☐ Is the dispute subject to a predispute arbitration clause?
  - ☐ If so, go to § 30.41.
  - ☐ If not, review the considerations set out below.
- ☐ Assess client's objectives:
  - ☐ What emotional issues color the client's objectives?
  - ☐ Is speedy resolution or "justice," in the sense of putting the case before a jury, more important to the client?
  - ☐ Is confidentiality an issue?
  - ☐ Is the establishment of precedent one of the client's objectives?
  - ☐ How important is cost?

☐ When, if necessary, you educate the client to the benefits of ADR versus litigation, is the client enthusiastic about ADR?

☐ Will nonbinding ADR help you make your client's expectations more realistic?

☐ Will nonbinding ADR reveal too much of the case to the opposing side too soon?

☐ If complex issues are involved, is ADR desirable so that the option will exist of having the dispute resolved by an expert in the field which is the subject of the dispute?

☐ Does the case involve less than $50,000, so that it will be forced into judicial arbitration even if parties do not wish to arbitrate?

PRACTICE TIP:

Use Existence of Mandatory Arbitration to Urge Much Earlier Voluntary ADR. If your case is going to be forced into judicial arbitration, consider a voluntary form of ADR. You may also be able to use the fact that the case will be forced to arbitration by the court to help reduce some of the resistance your client and opposing counsel may have to ADR. You may be able to avoid the cost of commencing litigation.

The statute of limitations runs on, however, so do not neglect to file a complaint simply because you are pursuing ADR. Filing a complaint with fictitious defendant allegations will also allow you to protect your client's rights against any unknown defendants whose identities are not discovered until after the statute of limitations has run.

☐ Is there an advantage in trying the case to a jury?

☐ If pursuing ADR is appropriate, consider the types available:

- ☐ Mediation [see § 30.11[3]].
  - ☐ Does client want to preserve right to resort to courts?
  - ☐ Might a mediator help overcome a party's emotional attitude?
  - ☐ Might a mediator help overcome a party's unrealistic evaluation of the case?
- ☐ Binding arbitration [see § 30.11[5]]. Considerations:
  - ☐ Is client willing to accept extreme limitations on scope of judicial review?
  - ☐ How broadly or narrowly defined should the matter submitted for arbitration be?

- ☐ How will you select the arbitrator? If your opponent arbitrates regularly will the opponent have any advantage due to familiarity with the record of available arbitrators.

☐ Consider timing:

- ☐ Seek ADR in early contacts with other side?
  - ☐ Benefit from maximum savings in time, cost, and effort.
  - ☐ Potential problem in appearing "weak" to the opposition.
  - ☐ Potential problem when few facts have been developed.
  - ☐ Benefit from mediation acting as informal discovery.
- ☐ Wait until court requires parties to consider ADR?
  - ☐ Reduces ADR benefit to be found in reducing time and cost.
  - ☐ Avoids any apparent weakness, as court requires consideration of ADR.
  - ☐ Depending on time, may allow development of facts through formal discovery before shifting to ADR.
  - ☐ Exposure to litigation may make reluctant party more agreeable to ADR.

AUTHOR: Jeffrey G. Kichaven Editorial Consultant Jeffrey G. Kichaven is a lawyer, mediator, and arbitrator in private practice in Los Angeles. He is Chair of the ADR Section of the Los Angeles County Bar Association and the Committee on Dispute Resolution in the American Bar Association's Section of Business Law.

§ 30.41 Implementing an ADR Plan

- ☐ Inform client of various types of ADR that might be suitable for the case.
  - ☐ If necessary, educate client on respective characteristics of ADR and trial.
  - ☐ Time frames involved.
  - ☐ Cost involved.
  - ☐ Difference in decision makers.
  - ☐ Extent of extremely limited appeal in case of binding arbitration.
  - ☐ Flexibility of ADR in relation to trial.
  - ☐ Extent of clients time and attention that will be required.

☐ Recommend appropriate option [see § 30.40] to client, explaining reasons for recommendation. Clearly inform the client:

- ☐ That using voluntary ADR is not a unilateral decision; that opposing party will have to agree to use ADR, including specific type and some ground rules.

- ☐ If recommending binding arbitration, that recourse to the courts will be extremely limited.

- ☐ Sound out opposing counsel's attitude toward ADR.

- ☐ Propose specific type of ADR [see § 30.40] after, if necessary, educating opposing counsel with respect to ADR.

- ☐ Select a provider of mediation or arbitration services, if desired.

PRACTICE TIP:

Value of Using Established Provider. Although ADR is a flexible tool which the parties can bend to their specific needs, turning to an established provider of mediation or arbitration services may help to avoid disputes over the procedures to be followed. Because the provider will have some established procedures, not only can procedural dispute be minimized, but time and money can be saved because the parties will not have to develop and negotiate the procedure. This may be particularly helpful for a litigator who has not turned to voluntary ADR in the past.

§ 31.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses mediation, its nature [see § 31.10], the agreement to mediate [see § 31.11], the mediation process [see § 31.12], confidentiality issues [see § 31.13], and enforcement of the settlement that may arise from mediation [see § 31.14]. The chapter includes the following forms:

- Contract clauses agreeing to submit disputes arising from the contract to mediation [see § 31.40] or to attempt negotiation first, followed by mediation, and then arbitration if necessary [see § 31.41].
- An agreement to submit an existing dispute to mediation [see § 31.42].
- A confidentiality agreement [see § 31.43].
- An express limited waiver of mediation confidentiality [see § 31.44].

4-31 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 31.10

AUTHOR: Lois D. Thompson

§ 31.10 Nature of Mediation

[1] Neutral Mediator Assists Parties in Reaching Settlement

Mediation is the process through which a neutral person or persons facilitate communication between disputants to assist them in reaching a mutually acceptable agreement [Evid. Code § 1115(a)].

[2] Voluntary, Non-Adjudicatory, and Confidential

Mediation is:

(1) Voluntary. It begins, continues, and concludes by agreement of the parties. Any party is free to withdraw from the process at any time [Kirschenman v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 832, 835, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 166 ; for exceptions to the voluntary nature of mediation, see [3], below]. Thus, trial courts have no authority to order parties to complex civil action to attend and pay for private mediation [Jeld-Wen, Inc. v. Superior Court (Marlborough Development Corp.) (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 536, 543, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 115 ; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380(d) and Advisory Committee Comment thereto].

(2) Non-adjudicatory. The mediator does not decide who wins or loses. The goal is to reach a settlement, and the role of the mediator is to facilitate the settlement process. Mediation does not necessarily cast the parties in an adversarial relationship, and parties do not emerge from the process as clearly defined winners and losers [see Cho v. Superior Court (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 113, 123, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 863 (dicta)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Be Careful in Using the Term "Non-Binding" When Explaining Mediation to a Client. The client should understand that a settlement reached through mediation (assuming appropriate steps are taken to conform the terms of the settlement agreement to the requirements of Evid. Code § 1123 [see discussion at § 31.14, below]) will be binding and enforceable. What is really meant by the term "non-binding" is that, unlike an arbitrator, a mediator cannot impose a result. If the parties do not resolve their dispute through mediation, they can use other available procedures to resolve or adjudicate their dispute. By Lois Thompson

(3) Confidential. Because it is part of a settlement (not an adjudicatory) process, the mediation is confidential. Confidentiality is essential. The parties must be certain that nothing they say or reveal during the mediation process can be used against them if the process does not result in a settlement and litigation proceeds. The assurance of confidentiality also encourages full and frank communication. For discussion of confidentiality, see § 31.13.

PRACTICE TIP:

Scope of Confidentiality. The confidential nature of mediation affects every aspect of the process. Clients must understand that the same confidentiality that permits them to be open during the mediation process bars them from using revelations of their adversaries against those adversaries if the mediation fails. The mediation agreement [see § 31.11[2], below] should expressly provide for confidentiality (notwithstanding that Evid. Code § 1115 et seq. explicitly so provides [see § 31.13 below]), since the Evidence Code may be construed more narrowly and is, in any event, not likely to be familiar to the disputants. The agreement also should assure that the terms of any settlement reached through mediation are not so shielded by the confidentiality provision and the Evidence Code as to preclude a party from suing to enforce the settlement should another party later breach the settlement agreement [see § 31.14, below]. By Lois Thompson

[3] Exceptions to Voluntary Nature of Mediation

There are some exceptions to the voluntary nature of mediation discussed in [2], above. For example, Code Civ. Proc. § 1775 now permits judges in Los Angeles county (and in any other county that elects to participate in the program intended to encourage alternative dispute resolution) to order cases into mediation [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1775(a), (c), (d), (e), 1775.3(a), 1775.5]. Even though parties may be required by a court to go to mediation, once there, each participant has the right to decide the extent of his or her participation in the mediation, including the right to withdraw from the mediation at any time [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.853(2)]. For discussion of this program, see Ch. 37, Judicially Mandated Civil Action Mediation .

Contractual dispute resolution clauses increasingly require parties to attempt to resolve their disputes through negotiation and/or mediation before proceeding to more formal forms of resolution or adjudication [for forms of such clauses, see §§ 31.40, 31.41]. Although the contracts containing such clauses may have been made voluntarily, a party to such a contract may not consider the contractual requirement to mediate to be voluntary at the time it is invoked. These clauses have been upheld and are becoming popular [see Frei v. Davey (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1506, 1515-1520, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 429 (mediation requirement in current version of standard form residential purchase agreement)]. Thus, a party to a contract prohibiting recovery of attorney's fees as a penalty for failing to first engage in mediation who prevails in litigation or arbitration after refusing a request to mediate cannot recover attorney fees in that arbitration or action [Frei v. Davey (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1506, 1515-1520, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 429 ; Leamon v. Krajkiewcz (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 424, 433, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362 (even though contract was found voidable for duress)].

§ 31.11 Choosing to Mediate

[1] When to Mediate

Mediation may be employed at any time during the pendency of a dispute. At an early stage, if the parties have an on-going business relationship, mediation may help them to preserve that relationship and avoid costly litigation. After litigation has commenced and discovery has progressed, mediation may assist the parties to reach agreement based on a common understanding of the pertinent facts. Business agreements increasingly require parties to disputes arising under those agreements to attempt resolution through mediation before they may initiate litigation.

For additional discussion of determining if and when to use mediation or other alternative dispute resolution processes, see Ch. 30, Using Alternative Dispute Resolution .

[2] The Agreement to Mediate

[a] Can Be Simple Agreement

Agreements to mediate may be predispute, that is, before there is a dispute, for example when parties to a contract agree that if a dispute should later arise between them, they will submit the dispute to mediation, or may be postdispute, that is, when the parties to an existing dispute agree to submit the dispute to mediation.

The agreement to mediate generally can be very simple, providing for (a) mediation by a neutral, (b) selected by the parties, (c) usually at a neutral location. The agreement also should provide for payment of the mediator. Because it is equitable and because it gives all parties a "stake" in the process, mediation agreements generally provide for the costs of the mediation to be shared equally among the parties.

PRACTICE TIP:

Consider Med/Arb Clause. Contractual mediation clauses often are part of a multi-step dispute resolution process. The practitioner should consider designing a process that includes the following steps: (1) direct negotiation between the parties, (2) mediation, (3) arbitration and/or minitrial. So-called med/arb clauses are increasingly popular. These clauses provide that the mediator shall arbitrate the dispute if, after reasonable efforts at mediation, the mediator concludes that the matter or any part thereof cannot be settled and finds that the parties are at impasse. By Lois Thompson

For a form of a simple clause that may be included in a contract to provide for mediation of disputes arising from the contract, see § 31.40. For a form of med/arb clause, see § 31.41. For a form of mediation agreement that may be used if parties to an existing dispute agree to submit the dispute to mediation, see § 31.42.

[b] Confidentiality Provisions

Notwithstanding that the mediation process should be tailored to the needs and desires of the parties, all mediation agreements should provide both for confidentiality and for the recordation of any settlement that is reached through mediation in a way that will permit the settlement to be enforced should any party later fail to perform.

The Evidence Code renders a mediator incompetent to testify at a subsequent civil proceeding concerning any statement, conduct, or decision occurring at a mediation [Evid. Code § 703.5]. Nonetheless, to assure that the parties know this and to re-enforce their security in the confidentiality of the proceedings, the practitioner may want to include an express statement of incompetence in the mediation agreement.

For a form of confidentiality agreement, see § 31.43.

[c] Additional Provisions

Mediation agreements may also address the following subjects:

- Whether and to what extent any discovery/exchange of documents will occur between the parties before the mediation session begins.

- Submission of mediation statements to the mediator in advance of the mediation.

- The number, length, and timing of mediation sessions.

- If the mediator has not been selected prior to the drafting of the mediation agreement, what will happen if the parties are unable to agree on a mediator within a set period of time.

[3] Selecting the Mediator

Careful consideration should be given to the choice of a mediator. In making that choice, there are a number of preliminary factors to consider. These include:

(1) Whether to pursue "pure" mediation. In a "pure" mediation, the mediator expresses no view on the merits, works primarily with the parties (as opposed to their counsel) and tries to facilitate negotiations so as to achieve a settlement. Alternatively, in a proceeding more akin to a "settlement conference," the mediator may express his or her view on the merits, interact more with counsel, and try to encourage settlement by suggesting how a trier of fact might determine the dispute. If the parties want a "pure" mediation they may want to select a trained mediator/facilitator as their neutral; if they want a proceeding more akin to a settlement conference, they may want to select a retired judge.

(2) Whether to engage a lawyer or non-lawyer to serve as mediator. Lawyers representing parties in a dispute generally tend to turn to those with legal training to assist in resolving that dispute. However, given that the mediation process, particularly if one is pursuing "pure" mediation, is not intended to determine who is "right" and who is "wrong" but, rather, to assist the parties to resolve their differences, consideration should be given to engaging as mediator an individual trained in facilitating discourse rather than someone trained in legal analysis and advocacy.

(3) Whether to engage someone familiar with the substantive field involved in the dispute to serve as mediator. If the subject matter of the dispute is highly technical, particularly complex, or laden with unwritten but generally accepted custom, consideration should be given to engaging as mediator a person familiar with that field. The benefit is that the mediator already will be knowledgeable and time will not have to be devoted to bringing him or her "up to speed." The detriment, particularly if the substantive field is relatively small, is that the mediator may have had experiences with or been exposed to industry information about a party that will affect or have the appearance of affecting the mediator's neutrality.

PRACTICE TIP:

Service Providers Are Available. There are an increasing number of organizations that will provide parties with the services of a mediator or assistance in locating qualified mediators. These include the Center for Public Resources ("CPR") Institute for Dispute Resolution; the AAA Center for Mediation; JAMS/Endispute, as well as many local bar associations. By Lois Thompson

[4] Impartiality and the Role of the Mediator

The mediator must be, and must be perceived as, impartial throughout the proceedings.

PRACTICE TIP:

Disclosure of Potential Conflict of Interest. In order to assure impartiality and the equally important perception of impartiality, it is imperative that a potential mediator, the parties and their counsel all disclose all prior connections with that potential mediator. In addition, the potential mediator should disclose whether he or she has any financial interest in any party to the proceedings (for example, stock ownership) or any interest that may be affected by the outcome of the proceedings [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.855(b) (disclosures required of mediator in mediation conducted in connection with court mediation program)].

When a large law firm or a corporate entity is involved, it is important that the disclosures go beyond the particular lawyer or business unit directly involved in the proceeding, particularly if the business unit is part of an organization that is known by a different name. No one wants to learn well into the mediation process that the mediator holds stock in a party's previously undisclosed parent company.

However, the fact that a potential mediator previously was engaged by the other party or opposing counsel should not automatically be viewed as disqualifying. To the contrary, this may make it possible to engage someone whose actual rather than reputed qualities as a facilitator are known to a party. Similarly, it may be in all sides' mutual interest to engage a mediator who already has credibility with one party or its counsel based on prior experience. By Lois Thompson

The American Arbitration Association describes the qualities of a successful mediator as follows: "an active listener who can, without endangering one side's perception of [his or her] impartiality by appearing to take a position, assist the parties to better understand each other's views and offer creative solutions to move them off what might otherwise be entrenched positions. Successful [m]ediators ... attempt to suggest, clarify, interpret, reason, persuade and to inform the parties of the pros and cons of each side's case and of alternative solutions to their disputes" [AAA, "Mediation and Arbitration: A Handbook for Attorneys and Their Clients," 1991, p. II-8].

The importance of a mediator's actual and perceived impartiality cannot be overstated. If the mediation is to succeed, the parties must be able to share their true desires, the strengths and the weaknesses of their case with the mediator in the sure knowledge that the mediator will preserve a party's confidences while moving all participants to a mutually acceptable resolution. A mediator's duty of disclosure requires disclosure of any facts that reasonably might cause any party to believe the mediator would not or could not be impartial. An attorney accepting the role of mediator has the same duty of full disclosure as an attorney accepting the representation of clients with actual or potentially conflicting interests. An attorney serving for compensation as a mediator is civilly liable for loss caused by lack of disclosure [Furia v. Helm (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 945, 954-955, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 357].

[5] Engagement of the Mediator

Once the mediator is selected, there should be a written agreement, signed by all parties, their counsel, and the mediator setting forth:

- The scope of the mediation.
- The financial arrangements between the parties and the mediator or service provider.
- The rules, if any, governing the mediation.
- An undertaking with respect to confidentiality (and an express exception relating to the terms of any settlement that may result from the mediation).
- An acknowledgment by the parties of the mediator's immunity from tort liability based on his or her conduct of the mediation.

In addition, if there is any conflict that the parties have agreed to waive, that waiver should be included in the agreement.

PRACTICE TIP:

Rules Supplied by Provider. Many mediation service providers have developed rules for the conduct of mediations under their auspices. The practitioner should obtain copies of such rules and become familiar with them before agreeing to employ the services of any particular mediation service provider. It is particularly important to learn if the service provider charges administrative or other fees, requires deposits, makes refunds in the event of cancellation, etc. As a practical matter, the rules relating to the actual conduct of the mediation tend to be both general and flexible in recognition of the fact that mediation is intended to be a process tailored to the needs and desires of the participants. By Lois Thompson

PRACTICE TIP: Immunity. The California Supreme Court has cloaked mediators and neutral fact finders with "quasi judicial" immunity from tort liability arising from their conduct during a dispute resolution process [Howard v. Drapkin (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 843, 852-857, 271 Cal. Rptr. 893]. To assure that the parties understand that mediators are so protected, it is recommended that mediator immunity be explicitly recognized in the agreement. Further, consideration should be given to entering into an agreement to provide all participants with such immunity in order to encourage full and open communication during the mediation. By Lois Thompson

Often the agreement to mediate discussed above in § 31.11[2] and the written engagement of the mediator can be accomplished in the same document. If the parties are using a mediation services provider, the provider will commonly have a form of agreement the parties may use. For a form of agreement that may be used if the provider does not have a form, see § 31.42.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

4-31 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 31.12

AUTHOR: Lois D. Thompson

§ 31.12 The Mediation Process

[1] Participants

The decision-makers for all parties should be present, and present for the entire proceeding. If an insurance carrier is the true decision-maker, a representative of the carrier must be present or the mediation well may prove futile.

It is extremely difficult to communicate the dynamic of the mediation to an absent or occasionally present decision-maker. It also is hard for the mediator to fully elicit what that absent or intermittently present decision-maker must obtain from the other side or sides if the dispute is to be settled. Therefore, appearances by telephone or for part of a session should be avoided. If a necessary decision-maker truly cannot attend, consideration should be given to rescheduling the mediation session. Failing that, the parties should arrange a telephone hookup with the opportunity for the absent decision-maker to hear the other disputants and the mediator, and respond directly when appropriate. Resort should not be had to the more traditional brief telephone reports by counsel.

[2] The Mediation Session

[a] Combination of Joint and Separate Meetings Is Often Used

Mediation generally begins with a joint session attended by the mediator, all parties and their counsel. This often is followed by separate meetings (usually referred to as caucuses) between the mediator and each party and counsel, generally starting with the plaintiff (the party who first surfaced the existence of the dispute) [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.854(c) (mediator in mediation conducted in connection with court mediation program must explain his or her practice with respect to confidentiality for separate communications)]. Some mediators, however, will not meet in separate caucuses with the parties out of concern that to do so may be perceived as compromising his/her neutrality.

If the mediator does meet separately with the parties, he or she will often go back and forth between the parties attempting to negotiate a resolution to the dispute. If agreement is reached, the mediator will again bring all the parties and their counsel back into a joint session so that the terms of the agreement can be recited in the presence of all parties and then reduced to writing.

Depending on his or her practice, the mediator may again meet separately with each party to assure that the written document accurately reflects each party's understanding of the terms of the settlement. Once the writing has been accepted by all parties, the mediator will again convene the parties and counsel, review the terms of the final agreement, and conclude the mediation.

If after several separate meetings between the mediator and each party no agreement has been reached, a party or the mediator (finding impasse) may terminate the proceedings.

[b] First Joint Session

[i] Two Parts

The first joint session often consists of two parts, the introduction, during which the mediator is the primary speaker, making introductions andexplaining the process that will be followed during the proceeding, and the prelude to negotiation during which the mediator generally asks the parties (not counsel) to speak, usually by inviting them to explain what the dispute is about.

[ii] Introduction

In the introduction, the mediator will explain his or her role, stressing that a mediator does not receive evidence and decide a case but, rather, listens to the parties and helps them to reach a settlement.

The mediator generally will stress the confidential nature of the proceeding. In that regard, the mediator may well state that while he or she may take notes in order to be accurate in following what is being said by the parties during the proceeding, the notes will be destroyed at the conclusion of the mediation. The mediator likely will stress the fact that no record of the mediation is maintained and that the only document that will exist at the end of the mediation will be one memorializing any agreement that is reached as a result of the mediation.

The mediator also will state his/her intention to meet with the parties separately and will stress his/her undertaking to reveal nothing to any other party that one party has stated in private session is not to be divulged.

[iii] Prelude to Negotiation

In the prelude to negotiation the mediator is relatively passive, asking each party to describe the dispute and doing so through the use of neutral, open-ended questions. The mediator may also ask each party what he or she wishes to see result from the mediation session.

[c] The Separate Sessions

The mediator separates the parties in order to be able to fully explore each party's position. Generally, the first separate session will be with the plaintiff/complainant; however, the mediator may chose to begin with the party who seems most threatened by the process or who appears to have information that the mediator believes will assist him/her early in the process. As the mediator meets with each separate party, he/she will ask each for additional information concerning the dispute. Generally, the mediator will become increasingly active as he/she identifies areas of agreement around which to build a settlement and begins to test possible terms for agreement on the parties.

[d] The Final Joint Session

If the parties appear to be in agreement on the terms of a settlement, the mediator generally will convene a joint session in which the terms ofthe settlement will be recited to all parties and their counsel. The mediator will usually urge the parties to immediately reduce that agreement to writing. Alternatively, the mediator may provide a tape recorder so that the terms of the settlement can be recited and a transcript memorializing the agreement can be prepared.

PRACTICE TIP:

Take Advantage of Momentum to Secure Written Resolution. A successful mediation creates a momentum toward settlement. If the parties have indeed resolved their dispute as a result of the mediation process, counsel should be certain to seize that momentum and insist that a written agreement be prepared and signed by all parties before the session ends. If the terms of the settlement are so complex as to require the preparation of a lengthy document, the parties should at least sign a memorandum summarizing all of the key terms before the session ends. By Lois Thompson

In particular, counsel should write the clause to include all communications during the mediation phase, to prevent the use of potentially damaging client-attorney communications disclosed during the period of mediation [see § 31.13[4][d]].

If the parties have been unable fully to resolve their dispute, the mediator may use the final session to identify those areas where agreement has been reached or to help the parties work out a procedure to adjudicate their remaining differences.

[3] Preparation for the Mediation

Counsel should explain the mediation process to the client, stressing that its purpose is to achieve a settlement of the dispute. The client should be encouraged to focus in advance of the mediation session both on what he/she needs and what he/she is prepared to give up to resolve the dispute. For further discussion of giving the client a realistic view of what to expect from alternative dispute resolution procedures, see Ch. 30, Using Alternative Dispute Resolution, § 30.12[2].

Client and counsel both should understand that the client will be expected to express his/her views directly rather than through counsel.

PRACTICE TIP:

Other Party, Not Mediator Is the Target of Persuasion. Although the mediator will conduct and be the focal point in the joint sessions, it is the adverse party, not the mediator, who must be convinced to modify his/her positions if a settlement is to be achieved. Therefore, the client should be encouraged to consider what the adverse party is likely to need and be willing to give up to achieve a settlement. By Lois Thompson

Client and counsel also should recognize that the mediation process is time-consuming and that it requires patience and perseverance. Client and counsel generally must commit at least a full day to the actual mediation sessions.

§ 31.13 Confidentiality

[1] Protection of Communications, Negotiations, and Settlement Discussions

As noted above [see § 31.10[2]], mediation is confidential. Evid. Code 1119(c) expressly provides that, subject to exceptions in Evid. Code § 1115 et seq., *"[a]*ll communications, negotiations, or settlement discussions by and between participants in the course of a mediation or mediation consultation shall remain confidential." The wording of this provision, specifically its reference to "participants" rather than "parties," gives rise to the observation that the confidentiality provisions apply to all mediations, regardless of whether litigation is pending. Further, as that term is used in other provisions [see Evid. Code §§ 1118, 1122(a)(1)], it indicates that not only the participants but also the mediator and other nonparties attending the mediation must expressly waive the privilege in writing before any mediation communication is disclosed or admitted as evidence [Eisendrath v. Superior Court (Rogers) (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 351, 356-357, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716].

PRACTICE TIP:

Include a Confidentiality Clause to Assure Protection. To assure confidentiality the practitioner should not rely only on the Evidence Code but should also include an undertaking on confidentiality in the mediation agreement [see § 31.10[2]]. By Lois Thompson

In particular, counsel should write the clause to include all communications during the mediation phase, to prevent the use of potentially damaging client-attorney communications disclosed during the period of mediation [see § 31.13[4][d].

The confidentiality protection of Evid. Code § 1115 et seq. covers consultations for the purpose of retaining a mediator or mediation service as well as the mediation itself [Evid. Code §§ 1115(c), 1119-1120, 1122].

For exceptions to the rule of confidentiality, see [4], below, and for situations in which Evid. Code § 1115 et seq. do not apply, see [5], below.

[2] Mediator's Declaration or Finding Is Inadmissible in Evidence

To further ensure the confidentiality of the mediation process, Evid. Code § 1121 provides that a mediator may not file and a court may not consider any report, evaluation, recommendation, assessment, or finding by the mediator unless all parties to the mediation agree in writing, or orally in accordance with Evid. Code § 1118, which is discussed at § 31.14[3]. Thus, Code Civ. Proc. § 1121 prohibits a court from considering a mediator's report, submitted in support of a motion for sanctions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(c) (order must recite in detail conduct or circumstances justifying sanctions)], that describes the conduct or communications of a party during the mediation [Foxgate Homeowners Assoc., Inc. v. Bramalea California, Inc. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 1, 15, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 642]. An exception is provided for a report that is mandated by court rule or other law that states only whether an agreement was reached [Evid. Code § 1121]. This exception appears to relate to the procedure under Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.9 when mediation is compelled by the court under Code Civ. Proc. § 1775 et seq. For discussion, see Ch. 37, Judicially Mandated Civil Action Mediation .

This confidentiality provision does not apply to any of the following [Evid. Code § 1117(b)]:

- Proceedings under the Family Concilliation Court Law [Fam. Code § 1800 et seq.].

- Mediation of child custody and visitation disputes under Fam. Code § 3160 et seq. [for discussion, see Ch. 223, Dissolution of Marriage: Child Custody].

- Settlement conferences pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380 [for discussion, see Ch. 425, Pretrial Proceedings].

If a party improperly seeks in an action or proceeding to compel a mediator to testify as to anything said or to produce any writing made in the course of the mediation that is inadmissable under Evid. Code § 1115 et seq., Evid. Code § 1127 directs the court to award attorney's fees and costs to the mediator against the person seeking the testimony or writing [Evid. Code § 1127]. Moreover, any reference to mediation during any subsequent trial is an irregularity in the proceedings for the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 657, and, if the reference materially affected the rights of the party requesting relief, is grounds for vacating or modifying the decision in that noncriminal proceeding or granting a new or further hearing [Evid. Code § 1128].

[3] Statements, Admissions, and Documents Prepared for or in Course of Mediation

In addition to the protection afforded by Evid. Code § 1119(c) [see [1], above] and Evid. Code §§ 1118, 1127 [see [2], above], Evid. Code § 1119(a) and (b) provide that no evidence of anything said or admission made or writing prepared for the purpose of, in the course of, or pursuant to a mediation or mediation consultation is admissible in evidence, or subject to discovery, and that the disclosure of such evidence or writing shall not be compelled. "Writing" as used in Evid. Code § 1119(b) takes the definition in Evid. Code § 250: handwriting, typewriting, printing, photostating, photographing, photocopying, transmitting by electronic mail or facsimile, and every other means of recording on any tangible thing any form of communication or representation, including letters, words, pictures, sounds, or symbols, or combinations thereof, and any record thereby created, regardless of the manner in which the record has been stored [Evid. Code §§ 250, 1119(b)]. Thus, all of the following are protected from discovery if "prepared for the purpose of, in the course of, or pursuant to" a mediation [Rojas v. Superior Court (Coffin) (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 407, 422-423 ; Wimsatt v. Superior Court (Kausch) (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 137, 158-159, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 200] :

- Raw test data, that is recorded analyses of samples of air and building materials from destructive testing, including reports describing the existence or amount of mold spores in a sample, but not the actual physical samples.

- Photographs.
- Video tapes.
- Witness statements, but not the facts contained therein [see [4][a], below].
- Mediation briefs.
- E-mails that quote from or refer to the mediation briefs.

There is no basis for reading the work-product privilege of Code Civ. Proc. § 2018 into Evid. Code § 1119(b) and only protecting the confidentiality of derivative materials or allowing disclosure on a showing of good cause [Rojas v. Superior Court (Coffin) (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 407, 422-423]. Nor are there any exceptions to strict compliance with the statutes providing for enforcement of settlement agreements reached in mediation based on equitable principles such as estoppel or waiver. A party who voluntarily submits evidence of events that occurred during mediation and does not object to similar evidence submitted by the opposing party can later invoke the privilege to render that evidence inadmissible [Simmons v. Ghaderi (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 570, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 83, 187 P.3d 934 (action to enforce oral settlement agreement that did not meet requirements of Evid. Code §§ 1118, 1122, 1124 for making agreement admissible)]. In addition, the concept that Evid. Code § 1119 does not protect "pure evidence" is not supported by the clear language of the statute or its legislative history [Rojas v. Superior Court (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 407, 422-423]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1119 prohibits a court from considering a declaration submitted in support of a motion for sanctions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(c) (order must recite in detail conduct or circumstances justifying sanctions)] that describes the conduct or communications of a party during the mediation [Foxgate Homeowners Assoc., Inc. v. Bramalea California, Inc. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 1, 15, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 642].

For exceptions to the rule of confidentiality, see [4], below, and for situations in which Evid. Code § 1115 et seq. do not apply, see [5], below.
