A party may not shield evidence from admission or discovery simply by producing it in a mediation. Evidence that is otherwise admissible or subject to discovery outside mediation does not become inadmissible or protected from disclosure solely because it was introduced or used in a mediation whether by itself or as part of a writing, such as a brief or declaration or consultant's report [Evid. Code § 1120(a)]. The protection from discovery only applies to documents that would not have existed but for the mediation. Hence, mediation is not being used as a device to thwart discovery [Rojas v. Superior Court (Coffin) (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 407, 422-423]. The fact that witness statements "prepared for the purpose of, in the course of, or pursuant to, a mediation" are protected from discovery under Evid. Code § 1119 does not mean that the facts set forth in those statements are so protected. Under Evid. Code § 1120(a), because the facts known to a percipient witness constitute "evidence otherwise admissible or subject to discovery outside a mediation," those facts do not become "inadmissible or protected from disclosure solely by reason of their introduction or use in a mediation" through witness statements prepared for the mediation [Rojas v. Superior Court (Coffin) (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 407, 422-423 ; accord Doe 1 v. Superior Court (Roman Catholic Archbishop of Los Angeles) (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 1160 (court prohibited disclosure of statements abstracted from personnel records for purposes of mediation, but stressed, without consideration of other privileges that might apply, that Archdiocese would not be prohibited from disclosing information from personnel records or other underlying sources)].

[b] Consent of All Participants in Mediation

Evid. Code § 1122 allows an otherwise confidential communication, document, or writing to be disclosed if all persons who conduct or otherwise participate in the mediation expressly agree in writing, or orally agree in accordance with Evid. Code § 1118 to the disclosure of the communication, document, or writing [Evid. Code § 1122(a)(1); Eisendrath v. Superior Court (Rogers) (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 351, 356-357, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716].

If the communication, document, or writing was prepared by, or on behalf of, fewer than all participants to the mediation, it may be disclosed if [Evid. Code § 1122(a)(2)]:

- Those participants expressly agree in writing or orally agree in accordance with Section 1118 to its disclosure; and

- The communication, document, or writing does not disclose anything said or done or any admission made in the course of the mediation.

Evid. Code § 1122(a)(2) does not contain an exception to allow disclosure of admissions by the party who made them. Thus, the court prohibited disclosure of statements abstracted from personnel records of priests for purposes of mediation, though real party, Archdiocese, was willing to allow disclosure of all statements including those which amounted to an admission by the Archdiocese that it was aware of priests' sexual interests towards minors [see Doe 1 v. Superior Court (Roman Catholic Archbishop of Los Angeles) (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 1160, 1167-1168 n. 9, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 248].

[c] Fraud, Duress, or Illegality

A written settlement agreement is admissible to show fraud, duress, or illegality that is relevant to an issue in dispute [Evid. Code § 1123(d)].

Similarly, an oral agreement made in the course of, or pursuant to, a mediation is admissible to show fraud, duress, or illegality that is relevant to an issue in dispute if the agreement is in accordance with Evid. Code § 1118(a), (b), and (d) [Evid. Code § 1124(c); for discussion of Evid. Code § 1118, see § 31.14[3]].

When it is the mediation settlement agreement itself that is attacked as having been obtained by fraud, duress, or undue influence there is no such exception. The party seeking to have the mediation settlement agreement set aside bears the burden of proof, which he or she likely cannot meet without waiving the mediation privilege. It would be especially difficult to set aside a mediated settlement agreement that recites it was made without duress, fraud, or undue influence. The court would need to know what transpired in mediation [In re Marriage of Kieturakis (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 56, 91-93, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 119] .

[d] Communications Neither Materially Related to, Nor Fostering, Mediation

The moving party has the burden to show that the conversation is protected by mediation confidentiality. To do so, the timing, context, and content of the communication all bear on the question. Mediation confidentiality protects communications and writings if they are materially related to, and foster, the mediation. Mediation confidentiality applies only to writings or statements that exist solely because of a mediation communication, negotiation, or settlement discussion. The timing of a conversation in relation to a scheduled mediation session is not determinative of whether the conversation was protected by mediation confidentiality [Cassel v. Superior Ct. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 152, 161, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 501 (attorney-client communication about litigation strategy not subject to confidentiality); Wimsatt v. Superior Ct. (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 137, 160-161, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 200 (moving party failed to meet its "burden to link the conversation to a mediation session")].

[5] Family Law Matters

Proceedings in the Family Conciliation Court and in mediation of child custody and visitation disputes are not subject to Evid. Code § 1115 et seq. [Evid. Code § 1117(b)(1); see Fam. Code §§ 1818, 3177; but see Eisendrath v. Superior Court (Rogers) (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 351, 355-359, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716 (Evid. Code § 1115 et seq. applicable to spousal support agreement resulting from mediation)].

For discussion, see Ch. 223, Dissolution of Marriage: Child Custody and Kirkland, Lurvey & Richmond, California Family Law Practice and Procedure, 2nd ed., §§ 98.64, 110.12 (Matthew Bender).

[6] Pretrial Settlement Conference

A settlement conference pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380 is not subject to Evid. Code § 1115 et seq. [Evid. Code § 1117(b)(2)]. For discussion of settlement conferences, see Ch. 425, Pretrial Procedure .

A court must not appoint a person to conduct a settlement conference under Rule 3.1380 at the same time as that person is serving as a mediator in the same action [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380(d)(1)]. Nor may the court appoint a person to conduct a mediation under Rule 3.1380 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380(d)(2)]. Rule 3.1380(d) is not intended to discourage settlement conferences or mediations, but was added to address problems involving the blurring of distinctions between different ADR processes [see e.g., Jeld-Wen. v. Superior Court (Marlborough) (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 536, 543, 53 Cal. Rptr.3d 115 ; Advisory Committee Comment to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380(d)]. To prevent confusion about the confidentiality of the proceedings, it is important to clearly distinguish between settlement conferences held under Rule 3.1380 and mediations. The special confidentiality requirements for mediations established by Evid. Code §§ 1115-1128 expressly do not apply to settlement conferences under Rule 3.1380. Rule 3.1380 is not intended to prevent a court from appointing a person who has previously served as a mediator in a case to conduct a settlement conference in that case following the conclusion of that mediation [Advisory Committee Comment to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380(d)].

[7] Disqualification of Mediator From Later Representation of Party to Mediation

A law firm must be disqualified from representing a party when the firm employs a former judge who, while mediating a case as a settlement judge in his or her official capacity, received ex parte confidences bearing on the merits of the lawsuit from an adverse party in the identical litigation in which the motion to disqualify is brought [Cho v. Superior Court (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 113, 119, 125, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 863]. Although Cho involved a judge mediating settlement of a pending lawsuit, the same principle logically applies to the mediator of a dispute that has not developed into litigation. Thus, when an attorney has been privy to a litigant's confidences disclosed to the attorney acting as a neutral mediator, disqualification of both the individual attorney and his or her law firm will be required [see Cho v. Superior Court (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 113, 125, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 863 (a "cone of silence" is not adequate, at least when the meditation was before a judicial officer)].

[8] Attorney Who Represents Party in Mediation Is Not Disqualified From Representing Others Against Same Adversary

Interpreting former Evid. Code § 1152.5(a)(1)-(3) [now see Evid. Code § 1119], a court of appeal has held that an attorney who represents a plaintiff in one mediation is not disqualified from representing another plaintiff in a second related case against the same defendant [Barajas v. Oren Realty and Development Company (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 209, 219, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62]. The court reasoned that such a disqualification rule was not required by the language "shall remain confidential" in former Evid. Code § 1152.5(a) [now see Evid. Code § 1119] and would in fact discourage, rather than encourage mediation, especially in cases such as mass torts, product liability, employment practices, insurance coverage and bad faith cases, civil rights cases, lender liability and financial litigation, and construction cases, which typically have many plaintiffs against the same defendant [Barajas v. Oren Realty and Development Company (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 209, 213-217, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62]. The ruling remained true to the general intent of the language and legislative history: to encourage attorneys and litigants to agree to mediation. The court commented that it was especially unlikely that the Legislature intended to create so significant a change as a mediation-disqualification rule without expressly so stating [Barajas v. Oren Realty and Development Company (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 209, 218-219, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62].

It remains to be seen whether this "no disqualification" rule will be changed by Evid. Code § 1126, effective January 1, 1998, which provides that anything said, any admission made, or any writing that is inadmissible, protected from disclosure, and confidential before mediation ends, remains so after the mediation ends. The Legislature did not considerattorney disqualification in enacting Evid. Code § 1115 et seq. [see Senate Judiciary Committee analysis of AB 939].

§ 31.14 Enforcement of Mediation Settlement

[1] Enforcement Complicated by Confidentiality

A settlement arising out of mediation is enforceable in the same manner as any other out of court settlement [for discussion, see Ch. 520, Settlement and Release]. However, the confidentiality surrounding mediation [see § 31.13] is a potential obstacle to enforcing a settlement reached in mediation if the consequences of the confidentiality requirement are not anticipated and addressed in the mediation agreement and especially in the settlement document itself. In addition, there are no exceptions to strict compliance with the statutes providing for enforcement of settlement agreements reached in mediation based on equitable principles such as estoppel or waiver. A party who voluntarily submits evidence of events that occurred during mediation and does not object to similar evidence submitted by the opposing party can later invoke the privilege to render that evidence inadmissible [Simmons v. Ghaderi (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 570, 2008 Cal. LEXIS 9071 (action to enforce oral settlement agreement that did not meet requirements of Evid. Code §§ 1118, 1122, 1124 for making agreement admissible)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Only Evidence to Support Claim Was Confidential. The parties negotiated a spousal support agreement in mediation. Later, based on statements made to each other during the mediation, one party moved to have that agreement corrected. Respondent former spouse sought to depose the mediator. The moving party sought a protective order barring discovery and admission of evidence regarding communications during the mediation except certain conversations between the parties that formed the basis of the motion. Those conversations were described in the moving party's declaration in support of the motion. The trial court found that the moving party had impliedly waived confidentiality and denied the motion for protective order. Moving party immediately petitioned for writ of mandate or prohibition to seek relief from the trial court's order. Were the confidential mediation communications admissible? No! The confidentiality requirements of Evid. Code §§ 703.5, 1115 et seq. are absolute! Any balancing that needed to be done was done by the legislature [Foxgate Homeowners Assn. v. Bramalea California, Inc. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 1, 17, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 642, 25 P.3d 1117 ; Eisendrath v. Superior Court (Rogers) (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 351, 360, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716]. Especially when there are no > unacceptable consequences to maintaining the confidentiality of the mediation, the statements of the parties, even to each other [see Evid. Code § 119(c)], and the mediator's testimony are inadmissable to correct an agreement reached during mediation. The court of appeal remanded to allow the parties, and the mediator, time to agree to expressly waive confidentiality before the trial court made its disposition of the matter. No waiver would be implied [Eisendrath v. Superior Court (Rogers) (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 351, 361, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716].

Prior to the 1997 enactment of Evid. Code §§ 1123 and 1124, establishing procedures for enforcing settlements arrived at in mediation [see [2] and [3], below], Ryan v. Garcia (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1006, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 158 , held that the confidentiality provision of former Evid. Code § 1152.5 precluded the introduction of statements made during mediation to prove an oral settlement agreement and its terms [see Ryan v. Garcia (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1006, 1010-1013, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 158 ; but see Regents of the University of California v. Sumner (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1209, 1212-1213, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 200 (rejecting Ryan, although in dicta, because the Ryan court actually held that the objection was waived for failure to raise it when the terms of the settlement were offered in evidence)].

It also has been held that a mediator is not a court officer within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 ['Murphy v. Padilla (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 707, 714-715, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 722]. Therefore, a party to an oral agreement of settlement recited to a mediator cannot thereafter sue for judgment on or to enforce that settlement under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 [but see In re Marriage of Assemi (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 896, 909, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 265, 872 P.2d 1190 , holding that an arbitrator is a court officer within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 if that arbitrator was empowered with an adjudicative function and in fact acted in that capacity)]. Note, however, that there are alternatives to the expedited procedure of Code Civ. Proc § 664.6 such as a motion for summary judgment, a separate suit in equity, or an amendment of the pleadings [Stewart v. Preston Pipeline, Inc. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1565, 1584-1589, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 901 (signature by counsel was enough to grant summary judgment based on mediation settlement agreement)].

[2] Enforcement of Written Settlement Agreement

[a] Evidence Code Requirements

To resolve the conflict between Ryan v. Garcia (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1006, 1010-1013, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 158 (oral settlement agreements made in mediation not admissible in evidence) and Regents of the University of California v. Sumner (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1209, 1212-1213, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 200 (dicta that oral settlement agreements made in mediation are admissible in evidence), Evid. Code § 1152.5 was repealed, effective January 1, 1998, and replaced by Evid. Code § 1115 et seq., which provide for enforcement of both oral and written settlement agreements. Evid. Code §§ 1119 and 1124 codify the rule of Ryan and reject the contrary rule of Sumner, except specifically provided in the statutes [Simmons v. Ghaderi (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 570, 580, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 83, 187 P.3d 934].

A written settlement agreement prepared in the course of, or pursuant to, mediation, is not made inadmissable or protected from disclosure if the agreement is signed by the settling parties and any of the following conditions are satisfied [Evid. Code § 1123; Stewart v. Preston Pipeline, Inc. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1565, 1579-1584, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 901 (signature by counsel issufficient to waive confidentiality in a procedural matter)]:

- The agreement provides that it is admissible or subject to disclosure or words to that effect [Evid. Code § 1123(a)]. A statement in a settlement agreement that "the parties agree that this confirmation of settlement is exempt from the confidentiality provisions of Evid. Code Section 1152 et seq." qualifies as "words to that effect" within the meaning of Evid Code § 1123(a) so as to render that agreement admissible [Stewart v. Preston Pipeline, Inc. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1565, 1577-1578, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 901] .

- The agreement provides that it is enforceable or binding or words to that effect [Evid. Code § 1123(b)]. Statements in a mediated settlement agreement that it was "a full and final settlement of all claims" and that "the parties intend that this settlement is enforceable pursuant to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. Section 664.6" meet the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1123(b) so as to render that agreement admissible [Stewart v. Preston Pipeline, Inc. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1565, 1577-1578, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 901 ; compare Fair v. Bakhtiari (2006) 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 871, 147 P.3d 653 (memorandum of settlement signed by all parties, that contained enforcement term "Any and all disputes subject to JAMS arbitration rules" was insufficient reflection of parties' awareness that they were executing enforceable or binding agreement to satisfy requirements of Evid. Code § 1123(b) for admissibility)].

- All parties to the agreement expressly agree in writing, or orally in accordance with Evid. Code § 1118 (see [3], below), to its disclosure [Evid. Code § 1123(c)].

- The agreement is used to show fraud, duress, or illegality that is relevant to the issue in dispute [Evid. Code § 1123(d)].

[b] Fair, Adequate and Reasonable Terms of Written Agreements

A trial court must determine that the terms of a settlement agreement are indeed fair, adequate, and reasonable before entering a judgment including those terms [Kullar v. Foot Locker Retail, Inc. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 116, 128, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 20 (trial court erred in finding the terms of the settlement to be fair, reasonable, and adequate without any evidence of the amount to which class members would be entitled if they prevailed in the litigation, and without any basis to evaluate the reasonableness of the agreed recovery)]. The court bears the ultimate responsibility to ensure the reasonableness of the settlement terms and must also receive and consider enough information about the nature and magnitude of the claims being settled, as well as the impediments to recovery, to make an independent assessment of the reasonableness of the terms to which the parties have agreed [Kullar v. Foot Locker Retail, Inc. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 116, 128, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 20].

[3] Enforceable Oral Agreements

Oral agreements made in the course of, or pursuant to, mediation are admissible and subject to disclosure under the following conditions [Evid. Code §§ 1118, 1124(a)]:

- The oral agreement is recorded by a court reporter, tape recorder, or other reliable means of sound recording [Evid. Code § 1118(a)].

- The terms of the oral agreement are recited on the record in the presence of the parties and the mediator, and the parties express on the record that they agree to the terms recited [Evid. Code § 1118(b)].

- The parties to the oral agreement expressly state on the record that the agreement is enforceable or binding or words to that effect [Evid. Code § 1118(c)].

- The recording is reduced to writing and the writing is signed by the parties within 72 hours after it is recorded [Evid. Code § 1118(d)].

In addition, an oral agreement that does not meet all the conditions of Evid. Code § 1118 is admissible and subject to disclosure if it meets the conditions of Evid. Code § 1118(a), (b), and (d) and either:

- The parties to the agreement expressly agree, in another writing or oral agreement in accordance with Evid. Code § 1118, to disclosure of the agreement [Evid. Code § 1124(c)]; or

- The agreement is used to show fraud, duress, or illegality that is relevant to an issue in dispute [Evid. Code § 1124(d)].

There are no exceptions to strict compliance with the statutes providing for enforcement of settlement agreements reached in mediation based on equitable principles such as estoppel or waiver. A party who voluntarily submits evidence of events which occurred during mediation and does not object to similar evidence submitted by the opposing party can later invoke the privilege to render that evidence inadmissible [Simmons v. Ghaderi (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 570, 586, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 83, 187 P.3d 934 (action to enforce oral settlement agreement that did not meet requirements of Evid. Code §§ 1118, 1122, 1124 for making agreement admissible)]. Although Civ. Code § 3513 allows a party to waive to all rights and privileges that a person is entitled to, including those conferred by statute, unless otherwise prohibited by specific statutory provisions, the mediation privilege statutes as well as Evid. Code § 912 make it clear that any waiver of mediation confidentiality must be express, not implied, and in accordance with the requirements of those statutes, i.e, Evid. Code §§ 1118, 1122-1124 [Simmons v. Ghaderi (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 570, 586, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 83, 187 P.3d 934].

PRACTICE TIP:

Memorialize Agreement Before Leaving Site. Both Ryan and Regents grew out of situations in which a party to a mediation apparently sought to avoid going forward with an agreement reached as a result of mediation. Second thoughts are not uncommon. Memories of precisely what was agreed to when the parties said they had settled also can be flawed. It therefore is essential to memorialize any agreement (either in writing or on tape) before anyone leaves the mediation site [see Simmons v. Ghaderi (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 570, 2008 Cal. LEXIS 9071 (defendant left before signing agreement and revoked authorization to insurer to settle thus rendering oral settlement agreement unenforceable)]. By Lois Thompson

PRACTICE TIP: Ensure Agreement Is Enforceable. Ryan and Regents also illustrate the need to memorialize agreements reached in mediation in a form that will make them admissible and enforceable in accordance with the provisions of Evid. Code § 1118 or 1123. The practitioner therefore should do the following:

(1) At the time the terms of agreement are recited, the parties, counsel, and the mediator all should be asked to expressly consent to disclosure of the terms of the settlement, to expressly state on the record that the agreement is enforceable and binding, and should sign a document so stating. (If the settlement terms are dictated into a tape recorder, each person present should be requested to audibly state his or her consent and intent that the agreement be binding.) In preparing for mediation, the practitioner should explain to the client that this procedure will be followed and why.

(2) All documents memorializing the settlement should state that the parties intend the agreement to be binding and enforceable in accordance with Evid. Code §§ 1118 and 1124 or 1123. (If the parties want their settlement to be confidential, they should include the usual statements of confidentiality, which generally have an exception if one party must commence litigation to enforce the settlement, but still state that the agreement is admissible, andthus subject to disclosure, in accordance with Evid. Code §§ 1118 and 1124 or 1123.) By Lois Thompson

§ 31.31 Decisions

[1] Voluntary Nature of Mediation

Trial courts have no authority to order parties to complex civil action to attend and pay for private mediation. Jeld-Wen, Inc. v. Superior Court (Marlborough Development Corp.) (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 536, 543, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 115

Mediator had no authority to fashion settlement from one-page Deal Point Memorandum that parties agreed to after mediation despite "reservation of jurisdiction" in mediator; Deal Point Memorandum did not address all issues disputed by parties, and without agreement of one party there was no settlement to be enforced. Weddington Productions, Inc. v. Flick (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 793, 797, 800-803, 810, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 265

Confidentiality requirements of Evid. Code §§ 703.5, 1115 et seq. are absolute and include statements of parties made to each other; no waiver of confidentiality will be implied, although express written waiver is allowed. Eisendrath v. Superior Court (Rogers) (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 351, 360-361, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716

Court that has not mandated mediation, but merely inquired of attorneys attending status conference if they were interested in mediation lacks authority to sanction party for failure to participate in mediation or to enforce oral agreement for mediation. Kirschenman v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 832, 835, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 166

[2] Confidentiality

There are no exceptions to strict compliance with statutes providing for enforcement of settlement agreements reached in mediation based on equitable principles such as estoppel or waiver; party who voluntarily submits evidence of events that occurred during mediation and does not object to similar evidence submitted by opposing party can later invoke privilege to render that evidence inadmissible. Simmons v. Ghaderi (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 570, 2008 Cal. LEXIS 9071

(oral settlement agreement did not meet requirements of Evid. Code §§ 1118, 1122, 1124 for making agreement admissible)

Although Civ. Code § 3513 allows party to waive to all rights and privileges that person is entitled to, including those conferred by statute, unless otherwise prohibited by specific statutory provisions, mediation privilege statutes as well as Evid. Code § 912 make clear that any waiver of mediation confidentiality must be express, not implied, and in accordance with requirements of those statutes, i.e, Evid. Code §§ 1118, 1122-1124. Simmons v. Ghaderi (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 570, 2008 Cal. LEXIS 9071

Work-product privilege of Code Civ. Proc. § 2018 is not to be read into Evid. Code § 1119(b), protection of which is not limited to derivative materials and cannot be overcome by showing of good cause. Rojas v. Superior Court (Coffin) (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 407, 422-423

Evid. Code § 1119(b) prohibits discovery of photographs, video tapes, witness statements (but not facts contained therein) and raw test data (but not physical samples on which tests were made) when "prepared for the purpose of, in the course of, or pursuant to" mediation. Rojas v. Superior Court (Coffin) (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 407, 422-423

Evid. Code § 1120(a) prevents mediation from being used to immunize evidence from discovery; protection of Evid. Code § 1119(b) only applies to documents that would not have existed but for mediation. Thus, although witness statement submitted in or prepared for mediation would not be discoverable, facts known to percipient witness are. Rojas v. Superior Court (Coffin) (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 407, 422-423

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1119 and 1121 prohibit court from considering report of mediator or declaration of party, submitted in support of motion for sanctions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(c) (order must recite in detail conduct or circumstances justifying sanctions)], that describes conduct or communications of party during mediation. Foxgate Homeowners Assn. v. Bramalea California, Inc. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 1, 15, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 642

The purpose of mediation confidentiality is not to facilitate communication between a party and his or her own attorney. In the governing statutes, "the party" refers to the litigant who is one of the disputants in a mediation. A party's attorney is a component of "the party" to the mediation, rather than a freestanding, independent entity. Attorney-client communications not linked to mediation are therefore not covered by the confidentiality. Cassel v. Superior Ct. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 152, 159, 163, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 501

Because Termination Review Board not intended to help employer and employee resolve differences, its proceedings are not type of mediation (or arbitration); thus, Evid. Code §§ 703.5, 1119 does not apply, and board member could be compelled at deposition to testify regarding statements made at TRB hearing. Saeta v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 261, 267, 270-272, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 610

Confidentiality requirements of Evid. Code §§ 703.5, 1115 et seq. are absolute and include statements of parties made to each other; no waiver of confidentiality will be implied, although express written waiver is allowed. Eisendrath v. Superior Court (Rogers) (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 351, 360-361, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716

There is no waiver of confidentiality if all parties did not sign a mediation agreement, and there was an understanding at the time of execution that said mediation agreement would not become operative until all parties signed it; thus, the agreement is inadmissible pursuant to Evid. Code § 1119(b). Rael v. Davis (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1608, 1617-1619, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 745

Mediator is neutral individual who confers with each party in private caucus, learning results acceptable to each and assessing strengths and weakness of their cases; also meets with parties together to facilitate settlement; as recipient of confidences, mediator and his or her law firm are disqualified from representing party to mediation in related litigation.

[3] Immunity of Mediator

Absolute quasi-judicial immunity is properly extended to neutral third parties for their conduct in performing dispute resolution services connected to the judicial process and that involve either (1) making binding decisions, (2) making findings or recommendations to the court, or (3) arbitration, mediation, conciliation, evaluation, or other similar resolution of pending disputes; Civ. Code § 47(b) litigation privilege protects communication made by psychologist in course of child custody evaluation. Howard v. Drapkin (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 843, 852-857, 863-864, 271 Cal. Rptr. 893 (involving psychologist hired under parties' stipulation for evaluation, which included order signed by court, although court had not required evaluation, and written reports were authorized to go only to parties, not to court)

[3A] Impartiality of Mediator

Fact that attorney for one party to litigation who acted as mediator for both parties, failed to disclose lack of impartiality, and suggested that party adverse to mediator's legal client take certain action to settle matter, did not render mediator civilly liable to adverse party because adverse party did not rely on mediator's suggestion and alleged no other causal link for damages asserted. Furia v. Helm (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 945, 959, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 357

[4] Enforcement of Settlement Arising From Mediation

Memorandum of settlement signed by all parties, that contained enforcement term "Any and all disputes subject to JAMS arbitration rules" was insufficient reflection of parties' awareness that they were executing enforceable or binding agreement tosatisfy requirements of Evid. Code § 1123(b) for admissibility; dissent claimed ruling would be better based on finding that no settlement agreement was formed because key term was ambiguous and there was no meeting of minds. Fair v. Bakhtiari (2006) 40 Cal. 4th 189, 203, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 871, 147 P.3d 653

Court order submitted by plaintiff, which erroneously failed to set forth all of the material settlement terms concerning the scope of plaintiff's easement on defendant's property, failed to accurately reflect the parties' agreement and therefore failed to comply with Code Civ. Proc., § 664.6. The court found that a formal judgment must be entered setting forth all of the material terms of the settlement; the failure to do so would defeat the purposes of the settlement and spawn further litigation. Since defendant showed no basis to relieve her of her settlement obligations, the trial court properly considered the merits. Hines v. Lukes (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1174, 1176-1177, 1183-1186, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 689

Party cannot use Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385 hearing to obtain court determination that settlement reached at mediation was unenforceable. Court can only dismiss case or restore it to civil active list. By alleging dispute over whether parties reached binding settlement, party demonstrated good cause to restore case to civil active list. Irvine v. Regents of the University of California (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 994, 1001-1002, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 500

Mediation settlement agreement executed in counterparts could not be enforced when there were two different versions and parties did not agree on meaning of term "binding mediation," which left contract uncertain in that there was no way to resolve material term regarding payment. Lindsay v. Lewandowski (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 1618, 1623-1624, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 846

Mediation agreement is inadmissible pursuant to Evid. Code § 1119(b) if all parties did not sign the agreement, and there was an understanding at the time of execution that said mediation agreement would not become operative until all parties signed it. Rael v. Davis (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1608, 1617-1619, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 745

Waiver of confidentiality is procedural matter; thus signature by counsel is enough to comply with requirement of Code Civ. Proc § 1123 for admissibility. Stewart v. Preston Pipeline, Inc. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1565, 1579-1584, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 901

Statement in settlement agreement that parties agree it is exempt from confidentiality provisions of Evid. Code Section 1152 et seq. fulfills requirement of Evid. Code § 1123(a) so as to render that agreement admissible. Stewart v. Preston Pipeline, Inc. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1565, 1577-1578, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 901

Statements in mediated settlement agreement that it was "full and final settlement of all claims" and that parties intend it to be enforceable pursuant to provisions of Code Civ. Proc. Section 664.6 meet requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1123(b) so as to render that agreement admissible. Stewart v. Preston Pipeline, Inc. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1565, 1577-1578, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 901

Terms of a settlement agreement must be determined by trial courts to be fair, adequate and reasonable before entering a judgment including those terms. The court bears the ultimate responsibility to ensure the reasonableness of the settlement terms and must also receive and consider enough information about the nature and magnitude of the claims being settled, as well as the impediments to recovery, to make an independent assessment of the reasonableness of the terms to which the parties have agreed [Kullar v. Foot Locker Retail, Inc. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 116, 128, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 20 (trial court erred in finding the terms of the settlement to be fair, reasonable, and adequate without any evidence of the amount to which class members would be entitled if they prevailed in the litigation, and without any basis to evaluate the reasonableness of the agreed recovery)].

Confidentiality provisions of former Evidence Code § 1152.5 did not bar proof of settlement reached by mediation and memorialized after session ended. Regents of the University of California v. Sumner, (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1209, 1212-1213, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 200 (declining to follow Ryan v. Garcia (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1006, 1010-1013, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 158 , which held evidence of settlement reached during mediation to be inadmissible)

[5] Predispute Agreements Requiring Mediation

[a] In General

Contract provision requiring subcontractor to mediate with contractor in Nevada as condition precedent to litigation was void and unenforceable under Code Civ. Proc. § 410.42, so when contractor refused to mediate in California, subcontractor could proceed with litigation in California. Templeton Development Corp. v. Superior Court (Dick Emard Electric, Inc.) (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 1073, 1077, 1079, 1083, 1085, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 19

[b] Mediation Required to Recover Attorney's Fees

Prevailing party in action on contract that used standard California residential real estate purchase agreement who commenced litigation without first attempting to mediate dispute could not recover attorney's fees. Lange v. Schilling (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1412, 1416-1418, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 356

Defendant who prevailed in specific performance action without first engaging in mediation, and whose offer to mediate was rebuffed by plaintiff, was entitled to recover attorney's fees under contract that stated, "Seeking mediation is a condition precedent to the recovery of attorney fees by the party who initiates the action." Van Slyke v. Gibson (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1296, 1301, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 491

[6] Sanctions

While court would not award sanctions under Third Appellate District's local rule [Ct. App., Third Dist., Local Rules of Ct., rule 1(d)], relating to mandatory mediation, for failure of insurer with potential coverage to have representative attend court-ordered appellate mediation in person, with full settlement authority, in matter of first impression, because Local rule 1(d) does not explicitly assign to party and its counsel duty to notify insurance carrier that appellate mediation has been ordered; duty is implicit; and court served notice that henceforth, party on appeal, and party's counsel, will be sanctioned for failure to notify insurance carriers with potential insurance coverage that appellate mediation has been ordered and that carrier must have representative attend all mediation sessions in person, with full settlement authority. Campagnone v. Enjoyable Pools & Spas Service & Repairs, Inc. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 566, 573-574, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 551

§ 31.40 Predispute Mediation Contract Clause

[1] FORM Predispute Mediation Contract Clause

[EITHER]

If any dispute, controversy, or claim arising out of or relating to this contract or any claimed breach thereof has not been resolved through direct negotiation between the parties, the parties shall endeavor to settle the dispute through mediation [under the then applicable rules and procedures of _____ (select mediation service provider)].

[OR, if agreement also designates a named mediator]

If any dispute, controversy, or claim arising out of or relating to this contract or any claimed breach thereof has not been settled through direct negotiation between the parties, the parties shall endeavor to settle the dispute through mediation [under the then applicable rules and procedures of _____ (select mediation service provider)]. The neutral selected by the parties to conduct this mediation is _____ and he/she has agreed to serve in that capacity and to be available on reasonable notice.

[2] Use of Form

The form set out in [1], above, provides two examples of clauses that may be included in a contract to declare the parties' intent to pursue mediation should a dispute arise out of the contract.

[3] Contents of Form

Mediation clauses included in contracts before any dispute has arisen generally are quite brief, as illustrated by this form.

The first alternative clause in this form merely states the parties' intent to use mediation in the event of a dispute. The optional clause in brackets at the end of the paragraph may be used if the parties also agree that the rules of a specific mediation provider are to govern any mediation relating to the contract.

The second alternative clause is the same, but adds the additional element of naming a person who will act as mediator in the event of a dispute. By naming the mediator in advance, when the parties have no existing dispute, the contract avoids the possibility of delay and unnecessary contentiousness over selecting a mediator after a dispute arises.

[4] Forms Available From Mediation Service Providers

Various of the service providers, for example, the Center for Public Resources, the American Arbitration Association, and JAMS/Endispute have model clauses relating to mediation that may be incorporated in a party's contracts as well as forms providing for the submission of a dispute for mediation. The practitioner should consider obtaining copies of such forms and dispute submission documents so that they will be on hand when needed.

§ 31.41 Negotiation-Mediation-Arbitration Clause

[1] FORM Negotiation-Mediation-Arbitration Clause

Article _____

1. The parties will attempt in good faith to resolve promptly any dispute, controversy, or claim arising out of or relating to this agreement or any claimed breach thereof by direct negotiation between senior executives of the parties who have authority to settle the controversy [and who are not directly responsible for administering this agreement].

2. The disputing party shall give the other party written notice of the dispute. Within _____ [specify appropriate time limit, e.g., twenty-one days] after notice is given, the senior executives shall meet at a mutually acceptable time and place, and thereafter as often as those executives reasonably deem necessary, to exchange relevant information and attempt to resolve the dispute.

3. If the matter has not been resolved within _____ days after the disputing party gives notice, or if the party receiving notice will not meet within _____ days, either party may initiate mediation of the controversy, claim, or dispute in accordance with the rules and procedures of the _____ [designated mediation service provider].

[EITHER, if providing for arbitration according to the rules of an arbitration service provider]

4. If the matter has not been resolved within _____ days after a party has given notice of the intent to initiate mediation or either party will not participate in the mediation, or if the mediator has concluded that the parties are at impasse, whichever shall happen first, the controversy shall be settled by arbitration in accordance with the rules and procedures of _____ [designated service provider], and judgment upon the award rendered by the arbitrator may be entered in any court having jurisdiction thereof.

[OR, if providing for arbitration by a named person other than the mediator]

4. If the matter has not been resolved within _____ days after a party has given notice of the intent to initiate mediation or either party will not participate in the mediation, or if the mediator has concluded that the parties are at impasse, whichever shall happen first, the controversy shall be settled by arbitration by _____ [name of designated arbitrator], and judgment upon the award rendered by the arbitrator may be entered in any court having jurisdiction thereof.

[OR, if providing for the mediator to become arbitrator]

4. If the matter has not been resolved within _____ days after a party has given notice of the intent to initiate mediation or either party will not participate in the mediation, or if the mediator has concluded that the parties are at impasse, whichever shall happen first, _____ [name of mediator] shall then serve as arbitrator to adjudicate the dispute pursuant to California Code of Civil Procedure §§ 1280 et seq., and judgment upon the award rendered by the arbitrator may be entered in any court having jurisdiction thereof.

[CONTINUE]

5. All deadlines specified in this Article may be extended or modified by mutual agreement of the parties in writing.

[2] Use of Form

The form set out in [1], above, is an example of a negotiation-mediation-arbitration clause in a contract. It provides for the parties to attempt negotiation, before moving to mediation, and finally to binding arbitration. This type of clause is often referred to as a "med/arb clause."

[3] Contents of Form

The provision includes the following:

- A commitment to good faith negotiation of the dispute by the parties themselves (Paragraph 1).
- A procedure and time table for initiating negotiation (Paragraph 2).
- A procedure and time table for initiating mediation, should negotiation fail (Paragraph 3).
- A procedure and time table for initiating arbitration, should mediation fail, with alternative phrasing depending on whether the arbitration will be by a service provider, a designated arbitrator, or by the person who was the mediator (Alternative Paragraph 4).
- Express allowance for the parties to make written agreements changing the deadlines (Paragraph 5).

Paragraph 1 also includes an optional clause that may be used to ensure that the executives negotiating for the parties are not the persons responsible for administering the contract. Since the persons administering the contract are likely too close to the dispute to be objective and may have a significant personal investment in prevailing, use of this clause may improve the chances for successful negotiation by providing for negotiators who are somewhat more neutral than the persons who have been on the front line of the dispute.

[4] Additional Considerations Regarding Arbitration

Because the last step of a med/arb clause is binding arbitration, counsel drafting the clause should consider all the issues that may be relevant to drafting an arbitration clause. In particular, any limitations on the scope of the issues that may be the subject of arbitration or on the remedy the arbitrator may fashion must be included in the clause [see Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. v. Intel Corp. (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 362, 373, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 581, 885 P.2d 994 ; Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 10, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899].

[2] Use of Form

The form set out in [1], above, is for use as an agreement to submit an existing dispute to mediation. If the parties are using the services of an established provider of mediation services, the provider will most likely have their own form of agreement that can be used.

For forms of mediation clauses agreeing to mediation of any dispute that may arise out of a contract, see §§ 31.40, 31.41.

[3] Contents of Form

This form of agreement includes the following terms:

- A description of the dispute, including any specific issues to define the scope of the mediation (Paragraph 1).

- Designation of a named mediator (Paragraph 2).

- The agreed compensation of the mediator, together with allocation of payment as between the parties and any additional terms of payment, or alternatively, a record of the fact that the mediator is volunteering his or her services (Alternative Paragraphs 3).

- Any rules that are to apply to the mediation (Optional Paragraph 4).

- A confidentiality and immunity clause, as found in the form in § 31.43, which should be included to ensure the parties understand their rights and obligations in this regard (Paragraph 5). Inclusion of this paragraph is particularly important to ensure that any settlement that may be reached can be enforced [for discussion, see § 31.14].

Although the Paragraph 3 language splitting any mediator fees between the parties is not mandatory, it is strongly recommended. Splitting the fees between the parties reinforces the appearance of impartiality of the mediator, who might be suspected, however incorrectly, of siding with the more solvent party if fees were to be paid by the prevailing party. In addition, settling this issue up front rather including it within the scope of mediation removes one more issue that could complicate resolution of the dispute.

[1] FORM Confidentiality Agreement in Mediation

MEDIATION CONFIDENTIALITY AGREEMENT

In order to maintain the confidentiality of this mediation, the parties and all other persons participating in or conducting the mediation are requested to sign the following agreement before it begins. Under this agreement, all statements made during the mediation, and all documents prepared for or during the mediation are protected from disclosure in any state or federal court proceeding, administrative proceeding or arbitration, unless all participants consent in writing to such disclosure.

1. The parties have agreed to voluntarily participate in this mediation conference.

2. Additionally, the parties and all other persons participating in or conducting the mediation agree to be bound by California Evidence Code Sections 1115, 1128, a copy of which is attached hereto and incorporated by reference.

3. The mediation process is to be considered settlement negotiations for the purpose of all state and federal rules, including Federal Rule of Evidence 408 and California Evidence Code § 1152, protecting disclosures made during or in connection with the mediation from later discovery or use in evidence. All conduct, tangible evidence (including documents) statements, promises, offers, views and opinions, oral or written, made or presented during or in connection with the mediation by any party, a party's agent, employee, or attorney, or a third party are confidential and, when appropriate, are to be considered work product and privileged. Such conduct, statements, promises, offers, views and opinions shall not be subject to discovery or admissible for any purpose, including impeachment, in any state or federal court proceeding, administrative proceeding, arbitration or other proceeding. Provided, however, that evidence that is otherwise subject to discovery or admissible in evidence is not excluded from discovery or admission in evidence simply as a result of it having been used in connection with this settlement process.

4. The parties and all other persons participating in or conducting the mediation agree that the entire mediation process is confidential. Accordingly, they agree not to disclose to any third party the fact of, the content of or the results of the mediation.

5. The parties and all other persons participating in or conducting the mediation agree that there shall be no liability for any participating individual or entity as a result of conduct engaged in during or in connection with the mediation.

6. The parties and all other persons participating in or conducting the mediation agree that in the event the parties reach a settlement of the dispute or any portion thereof as a result of this mediation process and recite the terms of that settlement before the mediator and/or prepare or cause to be prepared a document memorializing the terms of that settlement, the recitation of the terms of the settlement and/or the document memorializing the terms of the settlement shall not be subject to this Mediation Confidentiality Agreement or confidential for the purposes of all state and federal rules, including Federal Rule of Evidence 408 and California Evidence Section 1115 et seq.. The parties expressly agree that evidence of any recitation of the terms of a settlement and/or any document signed by the parties memorializing the terms of the settlement shall be subject to disclosure and admissible in evidence.

The form set out in [1], above, is for use to ensure the confidentiality of the mediation proceedings, to provide immunity to the participants, and to allow enforcement of any settlement that may be reached despite the confidentiality of the proceedings.

The agreement may be entered into after a dispute has arisen or may be included with the predispute mediation provisions in a contract.

[3] Contents of Form

This form of confidentiality agreement provides the following:

- Confirmation that mediation is entered voluntarily (Paragraph 1).

- An agreement that the proceedings will be confidential, including an express statement that Evid. Code § 1115 et seq. applies to protect the confidentiality (Paragraph 2).

- An statement that the proceedings also constitute settlement negotiations, the confidentiality of which will also be protected by Fed. R. Evid. 408 and Evid. Code § 1152 (Paragraph 3).

- An agreement not to disclose the existence, content, or result of the mediation to any third party (Paragraph 4).

- An agreement conferring immunity from liability for acts during or in connection with the mediation (Paragraph 5).

- An agreement that if the parties reach a settlement, the settlement will not be subject to the confidentiality provisions, so that it may be enforced (Paragraph 6).

§ 31.44 Express Waiver of Mediation Confidentiality for Single Purpose

[1] FORM Express Waiver of Mediation Confidentiality for Single Purpose

LIMITED WAIVER OF MEDIATION CONFIDENTIALITY

WHEREAS, _____ [name and status], and _____ [name and status] engaged in mediation of differences between them relating to _____ [specify subject matter of mediation]. That mediation conducted was in _____ [one or _____ (number) separate] session(s) on _____ [date(s)] by _____ [name of mediator], as mediator, and resulted in an agreement, dated _____ entitled _____ [e.g., Spousal Support Agreement]. [Prior to the commencement of mediation, the parties entered into a separate _____ [mediation and/or confidentiality] agreement in which they agreed that all communications made by any of them in the course of the mediation would remain confidential and could never be introduced as evidence unless all parties so agreed in writing.]

WHEREAS, _____ [name and status], _____ [has made or intends to make] a motion the Superior Court of California, County of _____, in action number _____, entitled, _____ to correct the _____ [describe, e.g., spousal support] agreement referred to above [, but has no evidence to support that motion except statements made during the mediation].

NOW THEREFORE, the parties and the mediator agree that for the limited purpose of _____ [(describe, e.g., correcting the spousal support agreement], statements made by us during the course of the mediation, any notes made by the mediator, and testimony by the mediator regarding the mediation may be admitted as evidence in support of the motion to _____ [describe, e.g., correct the agreement]. The aforementioned statements, notes, and recollections shall otherwise remain privileged.

[typed name and status of party] [typed name and status of party]

_____, Mediator
[typed mediator's name]

[2] Use of Form

The form at [1], above, is an example of an express waiver of mediation confidentiality for a single limited purpose [see Evid. Code § 1122(a)]. It can be modified for use as needed and be put on pleading paper to be filed in the action in which the otherwise confidential testimony is to be given.

Besides the exception to mediation confidentiality to enforce any settlement agreement reached in that mediation [see Evid. Code § 1122(a) (discussed at § 31.14[2]; § 31.43[1], paragraph 6], the parties may wish to waive confidentiality to correct or modify the settlement agreement, especially in domestic relations matters, where support, medical, or education needs and payments are likely to change as circumstances change. If it seems to be in the parties' best interests that each agree that their statements to each other (at least) during the course of the mediation that resulted in the agreement at issue are admissible to resolve any motions to correct or modify the agreement, counsel can use or adapt the form of waiver at [1], above [see Evid. Code §§ 703.5, 1119(c), 1122(a); Eisendrath v. Superior Court (Rogers) (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 351, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716 (court was unwilling to create or recognize implied waiver of mediation confidentiality based on one party's filing motion, only evidence in support of which were confidential statements parties made to each other in the course of the mediation and mediator's testimony)].

The waiver must be signed by the mediator, if the mediator is to testify [Eisendrath v. Superior Court (Rogers) (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 351, 361, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716] and either

- All persons who conducted or participated in the mediation [see Evid. Code § 1122(a)(1)]. This would include the mediator and other nonparties attending the mediation, or;

- All relevant participants to communications made, prepared by, or on behalf of fewer than all mediation participants [see Evid. Code § 1122(a)(2)].

§ 32.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter provides discussion and forms relating to arbitration agreements, their validity, the scope of arbitration under them [see §§ 32.21 -32.23], the effect of the Federal Arbitration Act [see § 32.24], and waiver of the right to arbitration [see § 32.25]. It also covers the procedure for compelling arbitration either when an action is brought on a dispute subject to arbitration [see § 32.30 et seq.] or by means of a petition to compel arbitration [see § 32.40 et seq.]. The relationship of arbitration and dismissal for delay in prosecution is also addressed [see § 32.50 et seq.].

The chapter also includes a Research Guide [see § 32.60 et seq.] and a Procedural Checklist for compelling arbitration [see § 32.70]. The following forms are included:

- Submission agreement [see § 32.80].
- Demand for arbitration [see § 32.90].
- Petition to compel arbitration [see § 32.91[1]] and notice of hearing on the petition [see § 32.91[2]].
- Petitions to compel arbitration of uninsured motorist claims [see §§ 32.92, 32.93].
- Response to petition to compel [see § 32.94].
- Orders compelling [see § 32.95] and denying [§ 32.96] arbitration.
- Motion to stay pending action until arbitration is complete [see § 32.97].
- Motion to set aside stay of pending action involving a third party [see § 32.101].
- Affirmative defenses based on existence of arbitration agreement [see §§ 32.98, 32.99] and on satisfaction of arbitration award [see § 32.100].

§ 32.02 Cross References

Additional information about contractual arbitration may be found in two other chapters:

- Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding, provides discussion of selecting the arbitrator and the conduct of the arbitration proceeding itself.

- Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review, discusses the limited scope of review and the procedure for reviewing arbitration awards.

The following chapters have related information that may be of interest:

- Ch. 30, Using Alternative Dispute Resolution, has tactical consideration of the various types of ADR that are available, including a variety of methods in which arbitration proceedings may be structured.

- Ch. 35, Arbitration and Conciliation of International Commercial Disputes, discusses the procedure and provides forms for use in nonjudicial arbitration or conciliation of international commercial disputes.

- Ch. 31, Mediation, discusses mediation, which may, under some contracts with "med/arb" clauses, be a prerequisite to arbitration.

- Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration, discusses the procedure and includes forms for use in judicial arbitration.

- Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics, § 72.430 et seq., discusses the procedure and provides forms for use in arbitration of attorney's fee disputes under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6200. An agreement for ordinary arbitration of fee disputes, signed by the client before there is such a dispute, contravenes the policy of mandatory fee arbitration, namely, that fee arbitration be voluntary for the client and mandatory for the attorney [see Alternative Systems, Inc. v. Carey (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1034,1042-1044, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 567] .

§ 32.10 Governing Law

Arbitration by agreement is governed generally by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2. In addition, disclosures relating to an arbitrator's impartiality are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.1, 1281.85, 1281.9. 1281.91, and 1281.95.

Various statutes govern agreements to arbitrate a variety of specific types of controversies, such as the following:

- Compensation in eminent domain proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1273.010-1273.050; see Ch. 247, Eminent Domain, § 247.10 et seq.].

- Professional negligence of health care providers [Code Civ. Proc. § 1295; see Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice].

- Disputes involving public construction contracts [Code Civ. Proc. § 1296].

- International commercial arbitration and conciliation [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432; see Ch. 35, Arbitration and Conciliation of International Commercial Disputes].

- Real estate contract disputes [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1298-1298.8].

- Seed labeling [Food & Agric. Code § 52456; see 3 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 3867, 3915-3918].

- Uninsured motorist and underinsured motorist claims [Ins. Code § 11580.2; see Ch. 88A, Automobiles: Uninsured Motorist Claims].

- Wage claims [Lab. Code § 229].

- Labor contracts with talent agencies [Lab. Code § 1700.45; see Ch. 370, Motion Pictures].

- State employees' worker's compensation and insurance [Lab. Code §§ 6144-6146].

- Third party claimants' disputes with liability insurers or self-funded insureds [see Civ. Code § 2870 et seq. and Code Civ. Proc. § 1776 et seq.; for discussion, see Ch. 308, Insurance].

If a dispute involves interstate or foreign commerce or maritime law, 9 U.S.C. §§ 1-15 will also govern.

§ 32.11 Nature of Arbitration

[1] Not a Judicial Proceeding

Nonjudicial arbitration by agreement is neither a civil action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 22 (defining action)] nor a special proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. § 23 (defining special proceeding)], both of which are undertaken in court. Contractual arbitration is a substitute for proceedings in court [McRae v. Superior Court (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 166, 170, 34 Cal. Rptr. 346 ; see Manhattan Loft, LLC v. Mercury Liquors, Inc. (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 1040, 1051-1052, 1056, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 457 (arbitration is not "action" under statutes for filing notice of lis pendens); Brock v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1790, 1802, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 678 (court-ordered discovery is not available because arbitration is not a "special proceeding"); see also Baker v. Sadick (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 618, 628, 208 Cal. Rptr. 676 (arbitration is a substitute for court proceedings, but may be considered an action for purposes of Civ. Code § 3294 to allow arbitrator to award punitive damages)]. Because an arbitration claim filed only in an agreed arbitral forum and not asserted by the claimant in any complaint, cross-complaint or petition filed in court is not a "complaint" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16, it is not subject to a motion to strike under that section [Sheppard v. Lightpost Museum Fund (2006) 146 Cal. App. 4th 315, 319, 323-324, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 821] .

Although arbitration can take many procedural forms, a dispute resolution procedure is not an arbitration unless the following attributes are present [Cheng-Canindin v. Renaisance Hotel Associates (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 676, 687-688, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 867 (denial of motion to compel arbitration affirmed because employer's voluntary internal problem solving procedure did not constitute arbitration); Saeta v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 261, 268-269, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 610 (termination review board hearing prescribed by employment contract was not arbitration because board was not neutral third party and lacked authority to render final and binding decision); but see Wolsey, Ltd. v. Foodmaker, Inc. (9th Cir. 1998) 144 F. 3d 1205, 1209 (procedure that required non-binding arbitration in accordance with rules of American Arbitration Association before litigation in federal court was arbitration within scope of Federal Arbitration Act)]:

- A third party decision maker.
- A final and binding decision.
- A mechanism to assure a minimum level of impartiality with respect to the rendering of that decision.

Parties to private, nonjudicial arbitration typically expect that their dispute will be resolved without necessity for any contact with the courts [Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. v. Intel Corp. (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 362, 373, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 581, 885 P.2d 994] . A stipulation for "binding judicial arbitration" by a sitting superior court judge may attempt to create a hybrid proceeding, but it cannot exist under California's arbitration statues, in part because a sitting judge cannot conduct a contractual arbitration [see Heenan v. Sobati (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 995, 1000-1003, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 532 (finding that parties stipulated to bench trial waiving court reporter and right of appeal)].

[2] Strongly Favored by Public Policy

Public policy strongly favors arbitration as a speedy and relatively inexpensive means of dispute resolution [Ericksen, Arbuthnot, McCarthy, Kearney & Walsh, Inc. v. 100 Oak Street (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 312, 322, 197 Cal. Rptr. 581, 673 P.2d 251] . It is an accepted and favored method of resolving disputes, praised by the courts as an expeditious and economical method of relieving overburdened civil calendars [Madden v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 699, 706-707, 131 Cal. Rptr. 882, 552 P.2d 1178 (the first California Supreme Court case to state this premise)].

One of the rare exceptions to this policy is an agreement to arbitrate future child support. An agreement to arbitrate child support is not binding on the children or the court, and is void to the extent it purports to deprive the court of jurisdiction to modify child support or to review future child support awards. Parties can validly agree to arbitrate future child support, but the agreement, or order approving it, should reserve jurisdiction to the court to review any results. Thus, an arbitration award modifying or establishing child support can not be confirmed or vacated in accordance with the contractual arbitration statutes (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1285-1287.6) [In re Marriage of Bereznak (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 1062, 1068-1070, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 351 ; compare Fam. Code § 2554 (judicial arbitration of character, valuation, and division of property)].

The decision to arbitrate disputes is motivated in part by the desire to avoid delay and cost of judicial trial and appeals [Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. v. Intel Corp. (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 362, 373, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 581, 885 P.2d 994 ; see McRae v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 166, 170-171, 34 Cal. Rptr. 346] . Thus, the courts disfavor litigation of preliminary issues before arbitration because it can cause serious delay and confusion, thus robbing the arbitration procedure of much of its value to the parties [Ericksen, Arbuthnot, McCarthy, Kearney & Walsh, Inc. v. 100 Oak Street (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 312, 323, 197 Cal. Rptr. 581, 673 P.2d 251 ; for further discussion, see § 32.43[8]]. Similarly, because the parties expect the arbitrator's award to be the end of the dispute, judicial review of arbitration awards is very limited so as to ensure arbitral finality [Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. v. Intel Corp. (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 362, 373, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 581, 885 P.2d 994 ; Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 10, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899 ; for further discussion, see § 34.19].

The Supreme Court has warned against "procedural gamesmanship" aimed at undermining the advantages of arbitration [Ericksen, Arbuthnot, McCarthy, Kearney & Walsh, Inc. v. 100 Oak Street (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 312, 323, 197 Cal. Rptr. 581, 673 P.2d 251] .

The general rules relative to arbitration and arbitration agreements provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2 reflect the strong legislative policy favoring arbitration [Morris v. Zukerman (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 91, 95, 64 Cal. Rptr. 714] .

The right to arbitration, however, depends on contract, and there is no public policy favoring arbitration of disputes which the parties have not agreed to arbitrate [Engineers & Architects Assn. v. Community Development Dept. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 644, 653, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 800 ; Balandran v. Labor Ready, Inc. (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1522, 1529-1530 Cal. Rptr. 3d 441; In re Tobacco Cases I (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1095, 1112, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 875 ; see Mayhew v. Benninghoff (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 1365, 1371, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 27 ; City of Vista v. Sutro & Co. (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 401, 407, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 488 (holding that agreement did exist)].

§ 32.12 Contractual Arbitration and Other Proceedings Compared

[1] Contractual Arbitration and Judicial Arbitration Compared

The general arbitration statutes (Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq.) govern private arbitration conducted pursuant to an agreement between the parties, whereas the Judicial Arbitration Act (Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.10 et seq.) provides for "court-annexed" arbitration. The provisions of the two statutory schemes are mutually exclusive and independent of each other [Porreco v. Red Top RV Center (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 113, 118-119, 264 Cal. Rptr. 609 (citing Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.30)]. For discussion, procedure, and forms for use in judicial arbitrations, see Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration .

Other differences include the following [Mercury Insurance Group v. Superior Court (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 332, 334-345, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 308, 965 P.2d 1178] :

- Contractual arbitration arises solely out of agreement between the parties, whereas judicial arbitration may be imposed on the parties litigant, whether or not they agree [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11].

- Contractual arbitration allows the parties to the arbitration agreement to select the arbitrator, whereas in judicial arbitration, absent a stipulation, the parties must select an arbitrator from a list (equal to the number of adverse sides plus one) provided to them by the administrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815(b)].

- Contractual arbitration allows the parties to an arbitration agreement to define the powers of the arbitrator, whereas judicial arbitration defines the arbitrator's powers for the parties litigant by operation of law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.19; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.824(a)].

- Parties to private arbitration bear the cost of arbitration while judicial arbitration is at public expense.

- Private arbitration allows discovery only in personal injury cases unless the parties' agreement provides otherwise, while parties to judicial arbitration have full discovery rights [compare Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.822 with Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.1].

- Private arbitration generally dispenses with the rules of evidence while judicial arbitration follows those rules with certain modifications [compare Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(d) with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.823(b)] [Porreco v. Red Top RV Center (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 113, 119-120, 264 Cal. Rptr. 609] .

- Contractual arbitration generally frees the arbitrator from making a decision strictly in accordance with the law, whereas judicial arbitration does not [cf. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.824(a)(7) (providing that, in judicial arbitration, the arbitrator has the power "to decide the law and facts of the case and make an award accordingly")].

- Contractual arbitration generally results in a binding and final decision, whereas judicial arbitration generally does not [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826(a)].

[2] Contractual Arbitration and Reference Compared

[a] Distinctions

A general reference occurs when the court, with the parties' consent, directs a referee to try any or all of the issues. Although the court appoints the referee, the person chosen may by the result of the parties' agreement. The hearing before the referee is conducted in the same manner as it would be before a court under the rules of evidence applicable to judicial proceedings. In the case of a general reference, the referee must prepare a statement of decision [Sy First Family Ltd. Partnership v. Cheung (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1334, 1341, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 340 (citing Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638, 640; Evid. Code § 300); see also Nat. Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Nationwide Ins. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 709, 715-716, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16 (as to rules of evidence)]. The trial court independently reviews the decision of a referee [Nat. Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Nationwide Ins. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 709, 716, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16] .

Arbitration is voluntary. The parties chose the neutral decision maker. Unless the parties agree otherwise, the rules of evidence and judicial procedure do not apply. Arbitrators are not bound to decide cases in accordance with the law and may base a decision on principles of justice and equity; thus, it is inappropriate for a court to review an arbitration decision [Sy First Family Ltd. Partnership v. Cheung (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1334, 1341-1344, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 340] .

[b] Label Given by Parties Is Not Controlling

The title or label given by the parties to a stipulation or agreement is not controlling [see Sy First Family Ltd. Partnership v. Cheung (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1334, 1342-1344, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 340] . Thus, for example, in Sy First Family Ltd. the court determined that an ambiguous agreement, which used the term "Reference" in its title and cited Code Civ. Proc. § 638, was nonetheless a stipulation for arbitration, in part because it provided for trial under American Arbitration Association's Commercial Arbitration Rules. As an additional important factor, the court noted that at the arbitration hearing the parties expressly agreed with the determination of the panel hearing the case that they would they would proceed as if it were arbitration [see Sy First Family Ltd. Partnership v. Cheung (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1334, 1342, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 340] . Similarly, in Nat. Union Fire Ins. Co., because a stipulation for "binding arbitration with right to appeal" was a stipulation for reference in all but name, the trial court's nunc pro tunc order correcting the stipulation to be one for reference was proper and preserved the parties' right to appeal [see Nat. Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Nationwide Ins. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 709, 715-716, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16 (declaring that there is no such creature as binding arbitration with right to appeal)].

[3] Trial by Judge Pro Tem

Cal. Const., art. VI, § 21 provides for the appointment as a temporary judge, of a person who is a member of the State Bar and who takes the oath of office, to try a case to final determination and to render a judgment. The "judge pro tem" must be appointed by the parties litigant by stipulation. Although the California Rules of Court call for the stipulation to be written and submitted for approval to the presiding judge or to the supervising judge of a branch court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.831(a)], stipulations for judges pro tem may also be implied by the parties' conduct [Estate of Fain (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 973, 988, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 618 ; In re Horton (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 82, 91-92, 284 Cal. Rptr. 305, 813 P.2d 1335] . In Estate of Fain, appellants' did not contest the judge pro tem's authority until after he had issued a statement of decision that was adverse to them. Thereafter, the supervising probate judge reviewed the record, including appellant's "petition to vacate binding arbitration award," and issued what amounted to a post hearing order authorizing the judge pro tem to sit. A judge pro tem has more power that a special referee, but like a special referee, can render a statement of decision. For comparison of the powers of a judge pro tem and a referee, see Ch. 317, Judges , Pt. II.

[4] Relationship Between Contractual Arbitration and Mandatory Fee Arbitration

An arbitration provision in a written retainer agreement between attorney and client is generally enforceable under the California Arbitration Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq.] absent the client's exercise of the statutory right to mandatory fee arbitration [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6200 et seq. (MFAA)]. A client who waives MFAA rights by filing a malpractice action may then be compelled to arbitrate that malpractice claim and any fee dispute in accordance with the arbitration provision in the retainer agreement and Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq. [Fagelbaum & Heller LLP v. Smylie (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1351, 1361-1362, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 252 ; Aguilar v. Lerner (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 974, 983-986, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 287, 88 P.3d 24] . Similarly, a client waives his or her rights under the MFAA by failing to request arbitration within 30 days after receipt of the notice required by Bus. & Prof. Code § 6201(a). Thus, a client who does not request arbitration under the MFAA within 30 days of receiving the statutory notice can be compelled to arbitrate a fee dispute under Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq. in accordance with an arbitration provision in the retainer agreement [Ervin, Cohen & Jessup, LLP v. Kassel (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 821, 826-830, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 685] .

Both types of arbitration can be coordinated in the attorney-client agreement. For example, an agreement could provide that if nonbinding arbitration under the Mandatory Fee Arbitration provisions [Bus. & Prof.Code § 6200 et seq.] was chosen and either party rejected that award, the matter would then proceed to binding arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq. In that case, if the party rejecting the MFAA award instituted an action pursuant to which binding arbitration was compelled, and then dismissed that action, the MFAA award would be reinstated under a rule designed to prevent "mischievous lawyering:" abandonment of a de novo proceeding by the party who has invoked it to supersede an MFAA award may be treated as a retraction of that rejection of the award, rather than as an effective escape from it [Corell v. Law Firm of Fox & Fox (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 531, 537-538, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 310] . Mandatory fee arbitration is discussed in Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics, § 72.430 et seq.

§ 32.13 Arbitration Services Providers

[1] General Information

There are numerous providers of arbitration services. Two of the commonly used providers in California are the American Arbitration Association, JAMS/Endispute, and Los Angeles County Bar Association Dispute Resolution Services, Inc.

The American Arbitration Association ("Association") is a private nonprofit organization founded in 1926 to foster the study of arbitration in all its aspects, and to perfect its techniques and procedures and advance generally the science of arbitration.

The Association has formulated a comprehensive set of specialized rules applicable to arbitration of various types of controversies. These rules include:

- Accident Claims Rules for arbitration of disputes involving a motor vehicle liability insurance policy.

- Construction Industry Arbitration Rules for arbitration of disputes under construction contracts.

- Voluntary Labor Arbitration Rules and Expedited Labor Arbitration Rules for arbitration of labor disputes.

- Commercial Arbitration Rules for arbitration of disputes under commercial contracts.

The American Arbitration Association does not act as arbitrator. Its function is to administer arbitrations in accordance with the agreement of the parties and to maintain panels from which arbitrators may be chosen by the parties. Once chosen, the arbitrator decides the issues and his or her award is final and binding.

[2] Incorporation of Provider's Rules

The rules of an arbitration services provider may be incorporated by reference into any contract, and when they are, the provider becomes the administrator of any arbitration initiated pursuant to the agreement [see Maggio v. Windward Capital Management Co. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1210, 1215, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 168 (agreement to conduct arbitration in accordance with American Arbitration Association Commercial Dispute Resolution Procedures means arbitration must take place before that body)]. Incorporation of the entire scheme for arbitration established by the rules of the American Arbitration Association is comprehensive enough to be self-executing, so that a court order to compel arbitration would not be required [Kustom Kraft Homes v. Leivenstein (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 805, 811, 92 Cal. Rptr. 650] .

Incorporating the possibility of a future rule by reference does not meet the basic requirements for a valid incorporation by reference under simple state contract law [Gilbert Street Developers, LLC v. La Quinta Homes, LLC (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1185, 1194, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 918].

§ 32.14 Judicial Proceedings Related to Arbitration by Agreement

[1] Limited by Statute Unless Agreement Provides for Expanded Review

Parties to private, nonjudicial arbitration typically expect their dispute to be resolved without necessity for any contact with the courts [Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. v. Intel Corp. (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 362, 373, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 581, 885 P.2d 994 ; Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 9, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899] . Judicial proceedings surrounding the arbitration itself are restricted by the arbitration statutes to:

- The enforcement of the agreement to arbitrate [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281 et seq.; for discussion, see § 32.30 et seq.].

- The review of the merits of the award to the extent that the arbitration agreement properly provides for it [see Cable Connection, Inc. v. DirecTV, Inc. (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 1334, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229, 190 P.3d 586 ; for discussion, see Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review, § 34.10[2]].

- The enforcement of the award made following arbitration [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1285 et seq.; for discussion, see Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review, § 34.10 et seq.].

For discussion of the very limited grounds for vacating an award, see Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review, § 34.19.

[2] Limitation on Demanding Arbitration Tolled While Civil Action Pending

By statute effective January 1, 2007, if an arbitration agreement requires that arbitration of a controversy be demanded or initiated by a party to the arbitration agreement within a stated period of time, the commencement of a civil action by that party based upon that controversy, within that period of time, tolls the applicable time limitations contained in the agreement, from the date the civil action is commenced until 30 days after a final determination by the court hearing the action that the party is required to arbitrate the controversy, or 30 days after the final termination of the civil action, whichever date occurs first [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.12; for discussion, see § 32.40[1][b]].

§ 32.20 Definitions

[1] "Agreement"

As used in Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq. (governing contractual arbitration), the term "agreement" includes but is not limited to agreements that provide for valuations, appraisals, and similar proceedings and agreements between employers and employees or between their respective representatives [Code Civ. Proc. § 1280(a); but see Coopers & Lybrand v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 524, 537-539, 260 Cal. Rptr. 713 (agreement for valuation is not necessarily arbitration; intent of parties and scope of third party's charge is determinative)]. The term "written agreement" is deemed to include a written agreement that has been extended or renewed by an oral or implied agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1280(f)], but not one modified or revised by an oral agreement [Magness Petroleum Company v. Warren Resources of California, Inc. (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 901, 908-909, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 159] .

[2] "Party to the Arbitration"

The term "party to the arbitration" means a party to the arbitration agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1280(e)]:

- Who seeks to arbitrate a controversy pursuant to the agreement;
- Against whom such arbitration is sought pursuant to the agreement; or
- Who is made a party to such arbitration by order of the neutral arbitrator on such party's application, on the application of any other party to the arbitration, or on the neutral arbitrator's own determination. A person who is not a party to the arbitration agreement may not be made a party to the arbitration [see Unimart v. Superior Court (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1039, 1045, 82 Cal. Rptr. 249] .

[3] "Controversy"

The term "controversy" means any question arising between the parties to an agreement whether such question is one of law or of fact or both [Code Civ. Proc. § 1280(c)].

§ 32.21 Enforceability of Agreement to Arbitrate

[1] Dependent on Contract

[a] Contractual Principles Govern

Private arbitration is a matter of agreement between the parties and is governed by contract law [Platt Pacific, Inc. v. Andelson (1993) 6 Cal. 4th307, 313, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 597, 862 P.2d 158 ; see Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 8, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899] . A written agreement to submit to arbitration an existing controversy or a controversy thereafter arising is valid, enforceable, and irrevocable, except on such grounds as exist for revocation of any contract [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281]. Thus, parties may agree to submit an existing controversy to arbitration [for a form of agreement, see § 32.80], or submit future disputes to arbitration [for general forms of agreement, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 75 (Matthew Bender); many of the forms of agreements on various topics in California Legal Forms also include arbitration clauses]. A minor may avoid arbitration by disaffirming the agreement containing the arbitration clause [see Berg v. Traylor (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 809, 812, 816-820, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 140 , discussed in [9], below].

The parties may agree as to the rules that govern their arbitration. Their agreement may alter the usual scope of review. The parties may obtain judicial review of the merits by express agreement in excess of that provided by statute by using appropriate explicit language [Cable Connection, Inc. v. DirecTV, Inc. (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 1334, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229, 190 P.3d 586 (disapproving, to extent they conflict with opinion expressed therein); Crowell v. Downey Community Hospital Foundation (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 730, 735, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810 ; Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum Authority v. CC Partners (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 635, 645, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 363 ; Old Republic Ins. Co. v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 631, 638-639, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 50)]. For further discussion of contract provisions for expanded review, see Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review, § 34.10[2]. The parties' agreement may also provide for review by a second arbitrator to determine compliance with applicable law, discussed in Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding, § 33.28[7].

If the contract provides for arbitration under rules which specify that the arbitrator determines the existence, scope, or validity of the arbitration agreement, then the arbitrator--not a court--makes the evaluation under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2 [see Dream Theater, Inc. v. Dream Theater (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 547, 557, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 322 (agreement for arbitration in accordance with AAA Commercial Arbitration Rules)].

[b] Existence of Contract

[i] As Question of Fact

Whether a contract exists is a question of fact [see Cochran v. Rubens (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 481, 485, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672 (book account)]. For example, an arbitration clause in a contract for medical services governs all subsequent open-book transactions for which the contract was signed until or unless rescinded by written notice within 30 days of signature [Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(c); but see Rodriguez v. Superior Ct. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1469-1470, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 728 (expiration of 30-day revocation period necessary for valid arbitration agreement)]. However, whether the book account is open or closed is a question of fact [see Cochran v. Rubens (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 481, 485, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672 (book account)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Book Account for Medical Services. A patient's family doctor refers the patient to an orthopedic specialist for an ankle problem in 1990. The patient signs an arbitration agreement prior to treatment. After treatment, the patient does not return for a follow-up appointment. The bill is paid in 1990. The patient has no further contact with the specialist until he is again referred to the specialist by the family doctor in 1993, at which time the specialist performs surgery. The patient brings an action against the specialist, alleging that surgery was negligently performed. The specialist responds with a petition to compel arbitration based on the 1990 agreement. Does the agreement apply? No, not in this case. In Cochran v. Rubens (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 481, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672 , the appellate court held that the trial court's finding that the 1990 book account was closed was supported by substantial evidence, and that therefore Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(c) did not extend the arbitration agreement to the 1993 treatment. The court focused on the absence of an ongoing doctor-patient relationship, finding that neither party expected to have future transactions [Cochran v. Rubens (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 481, 486-487, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672 (distinguishing Gross v. Recabaren (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 771, 778, 253 Cal. Rptr. 820 , in which the court had found evidence of an ongoing relationship despite an 18-month lapse in contact)].

[ii] Burden of Proof

The party seeking to compel arbitration does not have to introduce the agreement into evidence or provide the court with anything more than a copy or recitation of its terms. Under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1330, petitioner need only allege the existence of an agreement and support the allegation as provided in Rule 3.1330. Once the petitioners have alleged that the agreement exists, the burden shifts to the party resisting arbitration to prove the falsity of the purported agreement [Condee v. Longwood Management Corp (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 215, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 597] .

[iii] Effect of Termination of Contract Containing Arbitration Agreement

An arbitration clause in a contract that has been terminated can still require arbitration of a dispute that arose under the contract while the agreement was still in force [see, e.g., Ajida Technologies, Inc. v. Roos Instruments, Inc. (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 534, 545, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 686 ; Coast Plaza Doctors Hospital v. Blue Cross of California (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 677, 685-687, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 809 (facts or transactions complained of occurred while agreement was in force and related to "problem or dispute" which arose under or concerned the terms of the agreement)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Arbitration Under Terminated Contract. A joint venture agreement contemplated that both parties > would share ownership of the technology they developed for five years after termination of the agreement, with certain rights and responsibilities in marketing that technology, including audit rights. The agreement required arbitration of all disputes arising under it. An arbitration award determining a dispute arising out of that agreement found the agreement to have been terminated by mutual consent of the parties and required one party to diligently develop and market the product and make royalty payments to the other party. The award also required the parties to arbitrate any further disputes arising out of that award. Was the requirement for future arbitration permissible? Yes. The agreement required arbitration of disputes arising during the joint ownership period following its termination. Further, the fact that an arbitration award contemplates additional future proceedings does not necessarily destroy its character as "final and binding" [Ajida Technologies, Inc. v. Roos Instruments, Inc. (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 534, 545-548, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 686] .

Usually, a temporal test is not the applicable standard. For example, an employment agreement contained an arbitration provision that covered disputes concerning enforcement or interpretation of the agreement; this provision encompassed tort claims for interference with prospective advantage and defamation based on employer's conduct after the employee's termination. Because the tort claims were based on expectation of future income from the employee's patients who consulted him in his capacity as defendant's employee, the employment agreement informed the extent of any economic interest [Buckhorn v. St. Jude Heritage Med. Group (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1401, 1407-1408, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 215] .

[iv] Meeting of the Minds

To form an enforceable contract, the parties' consent must be free [Civ. Code § 1565]. There must also be mutual assent, which usually rests on an offer and acceptance as evidenced by objective manifestations, not the subjective intent of any individual involved [Civ. Code §§ 1550, 1565, 1580; Lopez v. Charles Schwab & Co., Inc. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1224, 1232-1234, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 544 ; see Mitri v. Arnel Management Co. (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1164, 1170-1173, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 223 (neither acknowledgement of receipt of employee handbook discussing company's arbitration program without any signature by employee agreeing to arbitrate nor employee's continuing to work after receipt of handbook was sufficient to demonstrate mutual assent)]. One party's attempt to unilaterally rescind an explicit rejection of an offer is likely to be ineffective because a reasonable person in the rejected party's position will not understand that a contract was formed [Lopez v. Charles Schwab & Co., Inc. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1224, 1233-1234 Cal. Rptr, 3d 544 (brokerage that sent customer a rejection letter, only briefly opened account, and never funded it did not have enforceable contractual, or any, relationship with customer)]. Apparent consent is not free when obtained, among other ways, through duress, menace, which includes threat of criminal prosecution, or fraud [Civ. Code § 1567; Bayscene Resident Negotiators v. Bayscene Mobilehome Park (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 119, 127, 129, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 626] .

[v] Authority to Bind and Estoppel to Deny Authority

The parties to the arbitration agreement must be capable of contracting or no contract will be formed. Thus, a patient admitted to a nursing home while comatose who had not previously signed a durable power of attorney could not authorize her adult children to enter into an arbitration agreement on her behalf. Further, nothing in Health & Safety Code §§ 1418.8, 1599.65 or 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 72527 empowered the children to bind their mother to a contract [Pagarigan v. Libby Care Center, Inc. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 298, 303, 307-308, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 892] . Similarly, a spouse without a power of attorney has no power to bind the spouse being admitted to a residential care or skilled nursing facility to arbitration [Warfield v. Summerville Senior Living, Inc. (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 443, 447-449, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 783 ; see also Flores v. Evergreen at San Diego, LLC (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 581, 586-594, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 823 (considering several statutes, including Health & Safety Code §§ 1599.63, 1599.81, which do not confer authority to agree to arbitration)].

Of course, an attorney in fact under a durable power of attorney has authority to enter into arbitration agreements incidental to admission of the person who executed the power to a residential care facility [Hogan v. Country Villa Health Services (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 259, 263-264, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 450 ; Garrison v. Superior Court (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 253, 256, 265-267, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 350 (health care powers in form set forth in Prob. Code § 4701 or reciting it was created under Prob. Code § 4600 et seq)]. For discussion of ways in which mutual consent is vitiated and of defenses to the enforcement of contracts generally, see Ch. 140, Contracts and Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake . Regarding arbitration clauses induced by fraud, see § 32.21[4].

In the absence of express authorization of counsel to sign a binding contract, a client is bound by an arbitration agreement signed by his or her counsel only if the client consented to or ratified the agreement. An attorney at law, merely by virtue of his or her employment as such, has no apparent authority to bind a client to an agreement for arbitration. When a client engages an attorney to litigate in a judicial forum, the client has a right to be consulted, and the client's consent obtained, before the dispute is shifted to another, and quite different, forum. A party may raise the issue of his or her lack of consent to the attorney's action at various stages of the proceedings [Toal v. Tardif (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1208, 1221 & n.9, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 97].

An agreement to arbitrate and the resultant award can be confirmed on the basis of estoppel. Thus, a party is estopped to deny the promise of its apparent agent, made at a settlement conference, to pay the full amount of a binding arbitration award. When the issue involves insurance coverage, promissory estoppel will not support an award for punitive damages [CalFarm Ins. Co. v. Krusiewicz (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 273, 276-277, 284-286, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 619] .

Parties are free to draft their contract so as not to give effect to an arbitration clause in a contract unless the clause itself is accepted by all parties [Marcus & Millichap Real Estate Investment Brokerage Co. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 83, 89-91, 93, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 147]. Likewise, where the evidence shows that a contract as a whole is conditioned upon execution by all parties, the contract is not binding on any signatory until it is signed by all [Fagelbaum & Heller LLP v. Smylie (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1351, 1365, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 252 ; Angell v. Rowlands (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 536, 542, 149 Cal. Rptr. 574]. As with the general rule [see 32.21[1][b][ii]], the signatory resisting enforcement of the contract or clause cannot escape liability without affirmatively establishing that the signatures of all parties were contemplated as being a condition precedent to the validity of the contract [Fagelbaum & Heller LLP v. Smylie (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1351, 1365, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 252 ; Angell v. Rowlands (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 536, 541, 149 Cal. Rptr. 574].

The Court of Appeals for the Second District, Division Four has allowed a party signing a contract who did not consent, in that the party did not initial the arbitration clause of the agreement, to arbitration of claims against that party to enforce arbitration against another party to the agreement who did initial the arbitration clause of the agreement, where neither the agreement's nor the clause's binding effect was conditioned upon mutual acceptance of the arbitration clause [Grubb & EllisCo. v. Bello (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 231, 238, 241, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 281]. However, the Court of Appeals for the First District, Division Two has found an agreement that required arbitration by only one party to be, in combination with other one-sided provisions, unconscionable and, therefore, unenforceable [Stirlen v. Supercuts, Inc. (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1519, 1538-1539, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 138 (criticizing Bello); for discussion of unconscionability of clauses and agreements, see § 32.21[3]].

A multiparty contract that does not include a provision barring the binding effect of the entire agreement until all parties to it have signed does not bar parties that have signed the agreement from enforcing it against each other [Fagelbaum & Heller LLP v. Smylie (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1351, 1364-1365, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 252].

[b.1] Unilateral Addition of Arbitration Clause to Existing Agreement

General contract principles also apply to determine whether an arbitration provision added unilaterally after the primary contract is made, actually becomes part of the primary contract [Badie v. Bank of America (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 779, 790, 797-807, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 273] . Under those principles, there must first be a provision in the primary contract that allows one party to unilaterally change the terms of the agreement. Then, the "change in terms" clause is examined to determine whether addition of a requirement to arbitrate disputes is within the scope of the things that party was allowed to unilaterally change [compare Perdue v. Crocker National Bank (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 913, 921-924, 702 P.2d 503 (bank's imposition of NSF charge was authorized by provision that allowed banks to unilaterally change its "rules, regulations, practices, and charges," with Badie v. Bank of America (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 779, 797-807, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 273] . Similarly, if the primary agreement provides it can only be modified or amended by an agreement in writing, no unilateral change can be made to add an arbitration provision [see Mitchell v. American Fair Credit Assn., Inc. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1345, 1348, 1359-1360, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 193 (consumers who did not sign modification could not be compelled to arbitrate)]. Thus, a requirement for arbitration added in a "bill stuffer" was not binding on credit card holders because it was beyond the scope of what customers would reasonably believe the bank intended by reserving to itself the power to change terms. The power was reasonably interpreted to reserve to the bank the power to change financial terms, such as interest rate and service charges, but not to deprive cardholders of the right to a jury trial to resolve disputes with the bank [Badie v. Bank of America (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 779, 802-803, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 273] .

In another case considering unilateral modification of a credit card agreement to add an arbitration provision, the court of appeal held the arbitration provision could not be enforced against a card holder who informed the issuer that he would not be bound by the arbitration provision and thereafter did not use the credit card [Shea v. Household Bank (SB) (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 85, 90, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 387] . The agreement was governed by federal and Nevada law. Federal law, specifically Truth-in-Lending regulations, appear to defer to state law with respect to the definition of "use" sufficient to constitute the customer's acceptance of changed terms [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.9(c)(1), Supp. I.; Shea v. Household Bank (SB) (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 85, 88-89, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 387] . Nevada law requires "actual use" before a customer is deemed to have accepted the initial terms of a credit card agreement. The court of appeal found it unlikely that the Nevada legislature would have required actual use by a consumer to accept the original terms of a credit card agreement but settled for something less definite or overt to signify acceptance of an amendment to that agreement. Thus, the customer was not required to pay off the balance owing to "opt out" of the arbitration provision [Shea v. Household Bank (SB) (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 85, 90, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 387] . Although no argument was made that it was unconscionable not to provide a way for the card holder to opt out, the court stated a good case could be made for unconscionability [Shea v. Household Bank (SB) (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 85, 90, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 387] . Unconscionability was considered in another case of unilateral insertion of an arbitration provision in credit card agreement. That case held that when a customer is presented with the unilateral addition of an arbitration clause and his or her only alternative to acceptance of the arbitration provision is to close his or her account and pay off any balance owing, oppression, and thus, procedural unconscionability are established [Szetela v. Discover Bank (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1100, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 862] . For further discussion of unconscionability, see § 32.21[3].

[c] Arbitrator Must Act Within Scope of Agreement

[i] Arbitrable Disputes Defined by Contract

The parties may delineate the area to which the arbitration provision applies [Morris v. Zukerman (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 91, 96, 64 Cal. Rptr. 714 ; see Ericksen, Arbuthnot, McCarthy, Kearney & Walsh, Inc. v. 100 Oak Street (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 312, 323, 197 Cal. Rptr. 581, 673 P.2d 251] . A person may not be required to submit to arbitration any dispute that he or she has not agreed to submit [Unimart v. Superior Court (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1039, 1045, 82 Cal. Rptr. 249 ; Balandran v. Labor Ready, Inc. (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1522, 1529-1530, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 441 ; In re Tobacco Cases I (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1095, 1112, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 875 ; see Engineers & Architects Assn. v. Community Development Dept. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 644, 653, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 800 ; Pacific Crown Distributors v. Brotherhood of Teamsters (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1138, 1143, 228 Cal. Rptr. 645] .

Given that an agreement to arbitrate is a contract, an arbitrator may consider only those disputes that are covered by the arbitration agreement. An arbitration award may be vacated if the arbitrator has exceeded his or her power [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(4); see Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review, § 34.19[1]].

[ii] Who Determines Arbitrability

Parties to an arbitration contract must clearly and unmistakably agree that the arbitrator will have power to decide his or her own jurisdiction; otherwise, the question of whether the arbitrator has jurisdiction is for a court [Gilbert Street Developers, LLC v. La Quinta Homes, LLC (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1185, 1190, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 918]. If the parties' agreement submits the issue of arbitrability to the arbitrator, a court must defer to the arbitrator's decision on that issue and stay the entire action [Dream Theater, Inc. v. Dream Theater (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 547, 557, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 322]. One of the most common instances of the parties' indication of this choice is a provision that the arbitration be conducted in accordance with American Arbitration Association Rules which specify the arbitrator is to determine his or her own jurisdiction, including any objections with respect to the existence, scope, or validity of the arbitration agreement [see Gilbert Street Developers, LLC v. La Quinta Homes, LLC (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1185, 1194, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 918 (future rules may not be incorporated by reference); Rodriguez v. American Technologies, Inc. (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1110, 1123, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 437 (American Arbitration Associations Construction Industry Rule 8(a)); Dream Theater Inc. v. Dream Theater (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 547, 557, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 322 (American Arbitration Association Commercial Rule)] .

Generally, however, the court determines whether there is an agreement between the parties to arbitrate and whether the agreement covers the dispute at issue [Howsam v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. (2002) 537 U.S. 79, 83-86, 123 S. Ct. 588, 154 L. Ed. 2d 491 ; First Options of Chicago, Inc. v. Kaplan (1995) 514 U.S. 938, 943-944, 115 S. Ct. 1920, 131 L. Ed. 2d 985 (under Federal Arbitration Act, court has primary power to decide arbitrability of dispute unless there is clear and unmistakable evidence that parties agreed for arbitrator to decide arbitrability); Omar v. Ralphs Grocery Co. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 955, 961, 965, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 562] . Under the Federal Arbitration Act, issues regarding the validity or enforcement of a putative contract mandating arbitration should be referred to an arbitrator, but challenges to the existence of a contract as a whole must be determined by the court prior to ordering arbitration [Preston v. Ferrer (2008) 552 U.S. 346, 128 S. Ct. 978, 169 L. Ed. 2d 917, 923, 925-926 (even when state law purports to vest exclusive jurisdiction in administrative agency that regulates the contract); Sanford v. Member Works, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007) 483 F.3d 956, 962 ; Three Valleys Mun. Water Dist. v. E.F. Hutton (9th Cir. 1991) 925 F.2d 1136, 1140-1141] . Hence, the issue of whether the contract as a whole is illegal goes to the validity of the contract, and under the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) is to be determined by the arbitrator [see 9 U.S.C. § 2; Preston v. Ferrer (2008) 552 U.S. 346, 128 S. Ct. 978, 169 L. Ed. 2d 917, 923, 925-926 ; Buckeye Check Cashing, Inc. v. Cardegna (2006) 546 U.S. 440, 126 S. Ct. 1204, 1209, 163 L. Ed. 2d 1038 ; but compare Hotels Nevada LLC v. Bridge Banc, LLC (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1431, 1437, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 903 (under contract governed by FAA and California law, it was proper for court to decide issue after it had first been presented to arbitrator, who acknowledged his authority to determine that issue, but ceded it to court)].

There are, however, certain contracts which the Legislature has mandated are void and unenforceable unless certain specifics are adhered to. Contracts contrary to express statutes or to the policy of express statutes are illegal, and that illegality voids the entire contract, including the arbitration clause. In situations involving these contracts, the court may determine the entire contract void and refuse to compel arbitration [Duffens v. Valenti (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 434, 454-457, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 311 (court found it was not an FAA case; violations of Civ. Code § 1694 et seq. governing dating service contracts)].

Under California law, the question whether grounds exist for the revocation of an arbitration agreement based on grounds as exist for the revocation of any contract is for the courts to decide, not an arbitrator. This includes the determination of whether arbitration agreements or portions thereof are deemed to be unconscionable or contrary to public policy [Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 148, 171, 167, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 76, 113 P.3d 1100 (citing Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1281 1281.2 and Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 973, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903); Sanchez v. Western Pizza Enterprises, Inc. (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 154, 165-166, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 818 (agreement found not to authorize arbitration of issue of unconscionability)]. Despite this seemingly clear state, if the issue is whether the entire contract, not just the arbitration clause, is unconscionable, under the Federal Arbitration Act, that determination is for the arbitrator to make [Higgins v. Superior Court (Disney/ABC International Television, Inc.) (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 1238, 1249-1250, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 293 ; see also Nagrampa v. MailCoups, Inc. (9th Cir. 2006) 469 F. 3d 1257, 1276-1277 (in both cases trial court erred by characterizing challenge as to entire agreement)].

The issue of waiver of the right to arbitrate is determined by the court [see Code Civ. Proc. 1281.2(a)]; Wagner Construction Co. v. Pacific Mechanical Corp. (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 19, 27-28, 31, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434, 157 P.3d 1029 (remanding to have trial court determine waiver)], unless the matter is governed by the Federal Arbitration Act ("FAA") and there is no explicit choice of California law. In that case, the arbitrator determines whether a party has waived the right to compel arbitration [Howsam v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. (2002) 537 U.S. 79, 84, 123 S. Ct. 588, 154 L. Ed. 2d 491 ; Omar v. Ralphs Grocery Co. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 955, 962-965, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 562 ; see 9 U.S.C. § 3]. This is further complicated by the fact that even if the matter is governed by the FAA, a waiver claim that involves litigation conduct is to be determined by the court [see Omar v. Ralph's Grocery Co., Inc. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 955, 962-965, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 562 ; Thorup v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 228, 234, 225 Cal. Rptr. 521 ; § 32.25[1][b]].

The issue of a party's standing to enforce an arbitration provision is an issue of law for the court to decide unless the agreement explicitly provides otherwise [see discussion at [5][a], below]. Because this is a general principle of law, a statement that the arbitrator is to determine the "scope" of the arbitration provision is not explicit enough to confer authority to the arbitrator to determine standing [Smith v. Microskills San Diego, L.P. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 892, 900, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 608] .

Questions of arbitrability that are for the arbitrator to decide, sometimes referred to as "gateway procedural matters," include issues such as whether previous steps of a grievance procedure were completed, waiver, delay, compliance with special limitations periods in the underlying agreement or rules the parties agreed would govern their arbitration [Green Tree Fin. Corp. v. Bazzle (2003) 539 U.S. 444, 123 S. Ct. 2402, 156 L. Ed. 2d 414 ; Howsam v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. (2002) 537 U.S. 79, 83-86, 123 S. Ct. 588, 154 L. Ed. 2d 491] . A defense that the claim sought to be arbitrated is barred by the statute of limitations is also for the arbitrator, not the court, to decide. That the statute of limitations has run on the underlying claims is not one of the legislatively or judicially recognized justifications for denying a petition to compel. Rather, the statute of limitations is an affirmative defense that falls naturally within the plain language of an agreement to arbitrate [Wagner Construction Co. v. Pacific Mechanical Corp. (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 19, 23, 25-26, 28, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434, 157 P.3d 1029] . The arbitrator also decides other more obviously procedural matters, such as whether classwide arbitration is permitted when the arbitration agreement is silent on the matter [Green TreeFinancial Corp. v. Bazzle (2003) 539 U.S. 444, 123 S. Ct. 2402, 156 L. Ed. 2d 414 (defendant argued that manner of choosing arbitrator impliedly prevented classwide arbitration)]. When the agreement incorporates a set of arbitration rules, the parties would normally expect a forum-based decision maker to decide forum-specific procedural gateway matters, such as compliance with a limitation period set forth in the rules of arbitration procedure adopted by the agreement [Howsam v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. (2002) 537 U.S. 79, 84-86, 123 S. Ct. 588, 154 L. Ed. 2d 491] .

Even if the parties argue the issue of arbitrability to the arbitrator, the issue is subject to independent review by the courts [First Options of Chicago, Inc. v. Kaplan (1995) 514 U.S. 938, 115 S. Ct. 1920, 131 L. Ed. 2d 985, 995] .

[iii] Agreement Construed in Favor of Coverage

The burden is on the party opposing arbitration to demonstrate that an arbitration clause cannot be interpreted to require arbitration of the dispute [Bono v. David (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 1055, 1062, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 837 ; Buckhorn v. St. Jude Heritage Med. Group (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1401, 1406, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 215 ; Coast Plaza Doctors' Hosp. v. Blue Cross of California (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 677, 686-687, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 809] . Doubts as to whether an arbitration clause applies to a particular dispute are to be resolved in favor of sending the parties to arbitration [Buckhorn v. St. Jude Heritage Med. Group (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1401, 1406, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 215 ; Engineers & Architects Assn. v. Community Development Dept. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 644, 652, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 800 ; see § 32.43[8]].

This rule, however, does not apply to a court's determination of whether the parties agreed to arbitrate the issue of arbitrability. Courts should not assume that the parties agreed to arbitrate arbitrability unless there is clear and unmistakable evidence that they did so [First Options of Chicago, Inc. v. Kaplan (1995) 514 U.S. 938, 115 S. Ct. 1920, 131 L. Ed. 2d 985, 994] .

Moreover, the rule of liberal construction of agreements to arbitrate may be offset by other presumptions [Mayhew v. Benninghoff (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 1365, 1367, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 27] . For example, presumptions relating to business transactions between an attorney and his or her clients may preclude the extension of an ambiguous arbitration clause in an engagement letter to cover a dispute between the attorney and client [Mayhew v. Benninghoff (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 1365, 1369-1370, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 27 (attorney could not enforce arbitration clause in engagement letter relating to representation of client in divorce proceedings with respect to dispute involving unrelated financial investments); cf. Powers v. Dickson, Carlson & Campillo (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1102, 1113 , 63 Cal. Rtpr. 2d 261 (unambiguous arbitration clause in retainer agreement and amendment to retainer agreement was broad enough to cover malpractice as well as fee disputes)].

[2] Incorporation of Arbitration Clause by Reference

An arbitration clause need not be contained in the contract under which a dispute arises, but may be contained in a collateral agreement [Boys Club of San Fernando Valley, Inc. v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1266, 1271, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 587 ; Marsch v. Williams (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 250, 255, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 398] . Thus, a dispute under a contract that does not include an arbitration clause may be subject to arbitration if that contract incorporates another contract that does include an arbitration clause [Boys Club of San Fernando Valley, Inc. v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1266, 1271-1274, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 587] . Similarly, an express agreement to abide by an organization's rules that provide for arbitration by members of the organization gives rise to an effective agreement to arbitrate. This is the case even though the party to the agreement may not have actually read the rules. The general rule is applied that a failure to read a contract before signing it is no reason of itself to refuse to enforce it [Ware v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 35, 40-42, 100 Cal. Rptr. 791 ; Frame v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 668, 671, 97 Cal. Rptr. 811] .

To be effective, however, the arbitration provision must be properly incorporated by reference by clearly referring to and identifying the incorporated document in which the arbitration clause appears [Kleveland v. Chicago Title Ins. Co. (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 761, 763-765, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 314 (ALTA policy that was referred to in preliminary title report had arbitration clause, as did CTLA policy that was issued, but failure to reference form of policy actually issued was fatal to incorporation; distinguishing Wolschlager); Wolschlager v. Fidelity Nat'l Title Ins. Co. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 784, 790-791, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d. 179 (incorporation of C.L.T.A. Coverage Policy form by preliminary title report's clear and unequivocal reference thereto); Chan v. Drexel Burnham Lambert, Inc. (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 632, 643-645, 223 Cal. Rptr. 838 (reference and availability were insufficient for incorporation); cf. Baker v. Aubry (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1259, 1264-1265, 265 Cal. Rptr. 381 (agreement contained promise to arbitrate, but rules incorporated by reference defined scope of arbitration clause)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Incorporation by Reference Applies. A property owner and a construction company enter a contract to build a structure. The contract includes an arbitration clause. The construction company obtains a performance bond, which does not contain an arbitration clause but does incorporate the construction contract. After the project is completed, the owner withholds final payment, complaining of defective construction. The owner ultimately demands arbitration on its claims of breach of contract, negligence, and for recovery on the bond, and seeks to include the surety on the performance bond as an additional party to the arbitration. The surety resists on the basis it was not a party to the contract and did not sign any agreement to arbitrate. Can the surety be compelled to arbitrate? Yes, by incorporating the construction contract in the performance bond, the surety agreed to be bound by the arbitration clause even though it was not a party to the contract [Boys Club of San Fernando Valley, Inc. v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1266, 1271-1274, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 587] .

ILLUSTRATION: No Incorporation. Plaintiff and defendant enter a partnership to engage in real estate transactions. The partnership agreement does not provide for arbitration. Subsequently the parties enter into another partnership agreement to develop other property. This partnership does include an arbitration clause. The second partnership deteriorates and in the ensuing arbitration the arbitrator finds that the disputes involving the first partnership agreement are beyond the scope of the arbitration agreement. Plaintiff brings suit for breach of contract, fraud, and emotional distress arising out of the first partnership agreement. The complaint alleges that the defendant's attempt to obtain control of the second partnership involved undermining the plaintiff's ability to manage the first one. Because of the allegations referring to the second partnership, the defendant seeks to compel arbitration on the ground that the complaint has its "roots in the relationship between the parties created by the [second partnership] contract." Can arbitration be compelled? No. In this case the two agreements involved separate enterprises and separate commercial risks, were not closely related in purpose, did not incorporate one another's terms, were not executed at the same time, and breach of the second did not necessarily lead to breach of the first. The evidence used to establish the claim does not create an agreement to arbitrate [Marsch v. Williams (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 250, 256-257, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 398] .

[a] Adhesion Contract Analysis

Under California law, an arbitration provision contained in an adhesion contract will not be enforced if it does not fall within the reasonable expectations of the adhering party or if it is unduly oppressive or unconscionable [Graham v. Scissor-Tail, Inc. (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 807, 820, 171 Cal. Rptr. 604, 623 P.2d 165 ; Bruni v. Didion (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1272, 1288, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 395 ; Murphy v. Check 'N Go of California, Inc. (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 138, 145, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 120 ; Fittante v. Palm Springs Motors, Inc. (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 708, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 659 ; Patterson v. ITT Consumer Financial Corp. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1659, 1664, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 563 , cert. denied, 510 U.S. 1176 (1994) ; Parr v. Superior Court (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 440, 445, 188 Cal. Rptr. 801] . Conversely, an arbitration clause in an adhesion contract is legally enforceable if it (1) falls within the reasonable expectations of the weaker party, and (2) is not unduly oppressive or unconscionable [County of Solano v. Lionsgate Corporation (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 741, 750, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 362] .

However, if the contract is within the scope of the Commerce Clause, the Federal Arbitration Act, 9 U.S.C. § 1 et seq., will govern the enforceability of the clause [Allied-Bruce Terminix Cos. v. Dobson (1995) 513 U.S. 265, 115 S. Ct. 834, 130 L. Ed. 2d 753, 761-762, 764-766] . Judicial refusal to enforce an arbitration clause clearly unconscionable under a general contract law principle not at all hostile to arbitration presents no obstacle to the objective of the FAA, and is not preempted by the FAA [Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Services, Inc. (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 83, 119, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745, 6 P.3d 669 ; Gutierrez v. Autowest, Inc. (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 77, 86, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d

267 ; Flores v. Transamerica HomeFirst, Inc. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 846, 856, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 376 ; Stirlen v. Supercuts, Inc. (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1519, 1551-1552, 1548-1550, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 138 (distinguishing cases in which California unconscionability law preempted by federal statutes from those with specific anti-arbitration policy)]. While the federal Ninth Circuit recently affirmed that stance in the context of a preemption challenge to a petition to compel arbitration in a class action [Laster v. AT&T Mobility LLC (2009) 584 F.3d 849, 856] , the decision, which only otherwise considers whether a class action waiver in the parties' agreement is unenforceable as unconscionable under California law, is currently under review by the United States Supreme Court as the result of a grant of certiorari [sub. nom., AT&T Mobility LLC v. Concepcion (May 24, 2010) -- U.S. --, -- S. Ct. --, 176 L. Ed. 2d 1218, 2010 U.S. LEXIS 4309 at 1] .

In fact, the inquiry under the FAA is the same as under California law [Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Services, Inc. (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 83, 98-99, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745, 6 P.3d 669 ; Flores v. Transamerica HomeFirst, Inc. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 846, 856, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 376] ; and a federal court deciding a case governed by the FAA should apply California law to determine whether a particular agreement involving a California resident is unconscionable [Ingle v. Circuit City Stores, Inc. (9th Cir. 2003) 328 F.3d 1165, 1170 ; Circuit City Stores, Inc. v. Adams (9th Cir. 2002) 279 F.3d. 889, 895 ; but see Circuit City Stores, Inc. v. Najd (9th Cir. 2002) 294 F.3d 1104, 1108 ; Circuit City Stores, Inc. v. Ahmed (9th Cir.2002) 283 F.3d 1198], 1200 (ordering arbitration of FEHA clams under materially identical agreement without considering Armendariz criteria for vindicating statutory claims after finding no procedural unconscionability [and therefore no unconscionability], because employees in both cases had right to opt out of arbitration program)]. Armendariz also held that mandatory employment arbitration agreements are enforceable if the arbitration permits employees to vindicate their statutory rights [Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Services, Inc. (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 83, 91, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745, 6 P.3d 669] . Similarly, the fact that an employee in the securities industry is required by Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) regulations to enter into an arbitration agreement on a take it or leave it basis with no opportunity for negotiation does prevent application of state law unconscionability principles. The lack of negotiation establishes procedural unconscionability or a contract of adhesion [McManus v. CIBC World Markets Corp. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 76, 90-92, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 446] . The minimum criteria required under Armendariz are discussed in the analysis of statutory claims held arbitrable [see § 32.22[2]] and have been adopted by at least one case that never disclosed whether the causes of action involved were statutory or not [see Craig v. Brown & Root, Inc. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 416, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 818, 822 (example of arbitration clause held sufficient under Armendariz standard and therefore not unconscionable)]. Armendariz was decided August 24, 2000, and has been held retroactive [Blake v. Ecker (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 728, 733, 741, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 422 (applied to case filed in September, 1998, in which motion to compel arbitration was granted in December, 1998)]. For discussion of the extent to which federal law preempts state law regarding arbitration, see § 32.24.

The determination of whether a contract is one of adhesion may differ depending on who the parties are. In Madden v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 699, 710-711, 131 Cal. Rptr. 882, 552 P.2d 1178 , an agreement between a group health care plan and a state employee was held not to be an adhesion contract, even though presented to the employee on a take it or leave it basis. The reason is that the parties who negotiated that contract were of equal power (Kaiser and the State of California), the employee had a number of different plans from which to choose, and the challenged clause did not limit the liability or obligations of a stronger party, but could prove helpful to all parties. Similarly, although an arbitration agreement may be part of a form contract that its drafter uses with many people, that will not make it a contract of adhesion if those other parties have the opportunity to bargain or negotiate [see Crippen v. Central Valley RV Outlet, Inc. (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1159, 1165-1167, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 189 (distinguishing bargaining power of used recreation vehicle purchasers from that of prospective employees)]. On the other hand, in Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 985, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903 , a group health care plan containing an arbitration clause was found to have more of the indicia of an adhesion contract when the employees are offered few plans, the employer has only a small number of employees enrolled in the plan containing the challenged arbitration clause, the employer lacked the strength to bargain with the health care provider, and the claim is not that the clause is unconscionable, but the arbitration program established under the clause was biased [see Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 985, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903 (distinguishing Madden v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 699, 710-711, 131 Cal. Rptr. 882, 552 P.2d 1178 , but finding that the contract did not lack minimum level of integrity)]. Likewise, account agreements that were on printed, standardized forms drafted by the broker and presented to petitioners who were school teachers, a delivery driver, and a school janitor with the option of signing the agreements or rejecting them, in which case petitioner could not open a margin account, were contracts of adhesion, especially where the fact that the agreement contained a clause stating that "Any deletions from, additions to or cutting or mutilation of any portion of this Agreement will render the Agreement unacceptable" controverted the broker's claim that the petitioners were given reasonable notice of the opportunity to negotiate or reject the terms of a contract, and an actual, meaningful, and reasonable choice to exercise that discretion [Parada v. Superior Ct. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1554, 1570-1571, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 743].

A determination that a contract is an adhesion contract is the beginning and not the end of the analysis. Enforceability depends on whether the terms of which the adherent was unaware are beyond the reasonable expectations of an ordinary person or unconscionable [Fittante v. Palm Springs Motors, Inc. (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 708, 715, 733-734, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 659 ; Coon v. Nicola (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1225, 1234, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 846] .

An agreement to arbitrate will be denied enforcement on grounds of unconscionability if the arbitration procedures lack minimum levels of integrity [Graham v. Scissor-Tail, Inc. (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 807, 825, 171 Cal. Rptr. 604, 623 P.2d 165 ; Patterson v. ITT Consumer Financial Corp. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1659, 1664-1667, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 563 , cert. denied, 510 U.S. 1176 (1994) ; see Spinello v. Amblin Entertainment (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1390, 1397-1398, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 695 (upholding clause)].

The determination of whether the contractual arrangements for arbitration possess minimum levels of integrity is based on the face of the contract. For example, an arbitration clause providing for neutral arbitrators to be selected by party arbitrators is not per se unconscionable [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 985-986, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903 (party opposing arbitration claimed that other party established a system of arbitration inherently unfair to claimants because the method of selecting neutral arbitrators was biased, other party had unfair advantage as a repeat player in arbitration and maximized that advantage by reserving itself an unlimited right to veto the selection of arbitrators)]. If, however, a gap exists between the contractual provisions and the actual workings of the arbitration program, the theories of fraud [see § 32.21[4]] or waiver [see § 32.25] may be used to address the discrepancy between contractual representation and the reality [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 986, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Arbitrator Is Associated With Party. A contract between a band and its booking agent with a concert promoter is entered into on a form contract provided by the American Federation of Musicians, to which the band belongs. The contract calls for arbitration of disputes before the union's International Executive Board or before a similar local board. Can the concert promoter avoid arbitration on the ground the clause is unconscionable? Maybe. Under California law, an agreement to arbitrate will not be enforced if it designates an arbitral body that is so associated with a party to the contract as to be presumptively biased in favor of that party [Graham v. Scissor-Tail, Inc. (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 807, 821, 825-827, 171 Cal. Rptr. 604, 623 P.2d 165] . Similarly, in the context of a public works contract, a subcontractor was excused from exhausting the administrative remedy of arbitration before a dispute review board prior to litigation when the interests of the owner and the general contractor were aligned against the subcontractor and they, not the subcontractor, would select the members of the review board [Sehulser Tunnels/Pre-Con v. Traylor Brothers, Inc./Obayashi Corp. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1328, 1342-1343, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 655] . In 2003, both the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE) Arbitration Rules and the National Association of Securities Dealers (NASD) Code of Arbitration Procedure have been held not to be unconscionable (except with respect to the costs provision, which was severed), even as to an employee who was required by SEC regulations to enter the arbitration agreement, albeit in a discussion that contemplated the proposed arbitrators' compliance with the California disclosure requirements, as well as with the requirements under the NYSE rules or NASD procedures, whichever was finally chosen [McManus v. CIBC World Markets Corp. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 76, 92-102, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 446] .

[i] Both Required

The traditional analysis of unconscionability, as set out in A & M Produce Co. v. FMC Corp. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 473, 485-487, 489-490, 186 Cal. Rptr. 114 , analyzes the contract or provision in terms of Civ. Code § 1670.5. This analysis views both procedural and substantive components [Little v. Auto Stiegler, Inc. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1064, 1072, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 892, 63 P.3d 979 ; Gutierrez v. Autowest, Inc. (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 77, 87, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 267 ; Harper v. Ultimo (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1402, 1406, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 418 ; Fittante v. Palm Springs Motors, Inc. (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 708, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 659 ; Flores v. Transamerica HomeFirst, Inc. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 846, 852-853, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 376 ; Patterson v. ITT Consumer Financial Corp. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1659, 1664, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 563 , cert. denied, 510 U.S. 1176 (1994) ; see Stirlen v. Supercuts, Inc. (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1519, 1531-1532, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 138 ; see generally Ch. 140, Contracts].

To deny enforcement under the A & M Produce criteria, both procedural and substantive unconscionability must exist [Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Services, Inc. (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 83, 114, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745, 6 P.3d 669 ; Bruni v. Didion (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1272, 1288, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 395 ; Baker v. Osborne Development Corp. (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 884, 894, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854 ; Fitz v. NCR Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 702, 713-714, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88 ; Martinez v. Master Protection Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 638, 655 (unconscionable cost-sharing because employee required to bear half costs unique to arbitration); Gutierrez v. Autowest, Inc. (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 77, 87, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 695 (rejecting Dean Witter analysis in cases involving arbitration clauses)].

The procedural component of unconscionability involves essentially the same analysis entailed in determining whether a contract is one of adhesion. The procedural component focuses on factors of surprise and oppression [Little v. Auto Stiegler, Inc. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1064, 1072, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 892, 63 P.3d 979 ; Bruni v. Didion (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1272, 1288-1289, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 395 ; Baker v. Osborne Development Corp. (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 884, 894, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854 ; Brown v. Wells Fargo Bank (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 938, 955, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 817 ; Fitz v. NCR Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 702, 713, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88 ; Gutierrez v. Autowest, Inc. (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 77, 87, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 267 ; Harper v. Ultimo (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1402, 1406, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 418 ; Fittante v. Palm Springs Motors, Inc. (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 708, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 659 ; Flores v. Transamerica HomeFirst, Inc. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 846, 853, 113 Cal.Rptr. 2d 376 ; Kinney v. United Healthcare Services, Inc. (1999) 70 Cal, App. 4th 1322, 1329, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 348] . A finding of a contract of adhesion is essentially a finding of procedural unconscionability [Flores v. Transamerica HomeFirst, Inc. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 846, 853, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 376 ; Kinney v. United Healthcare Services, Inc. (1999) 70 Cal, App. 4th 1322, 1329, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 348 ; Stirlen v. Supercuts, Inc. (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1519, 1533-1534, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 138] . However, adhesion is not a prerequisite for unconscionability. There are cases in which procedural unconscionability is obvious without the need either to establish that the contract is one of adhesion or to consider market alternatives [Harper v. Ultimo (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1402, 1409-1410, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 418] . Other cases have gone further, arguing that courts often reflexively conclude the finding of an adhesion contract alone satisfies the procedural prong, and immediately move on to the subject of substantive unconscionability. Consequently, other procedural issues, including surprise, often are ignored when balancing or weighing procedural and substantive unconscionability. Undue reliance on any one procedural factor to the exclusion of others may produce analytical myopia and obscure the larger unconscionability picture [Parada v. Superior Ct. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1554, 1569, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 743].

Surprise involves the extent to which the supposedly agreed-on term is hidden in a prolix preprinted form drafted by the party seeking to enforce the disputed term [Parada v. Superior Ct. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1554, 1571, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 743 ; Bruni v. Didion (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1272, 1288, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 395 ; Baker v. Osborne Development Corp. (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 884, 894, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854 ; Abramson v. Juniper Networks, Inc. (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 638, 656 (unconscionable cost-sharing because employee required to bear half costs unique to arbitration); Gutierrez v. Autowest, Inc. (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 77, 87, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 267 ; Fittante v. Palm Springs Motors, Inc. (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 708, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 659 ; Kinney v. United Healthcare Services, Inc. (1999) 70 Cal, App. 4th 1322, 1329, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 348 ; Stirlen v. Supercuts, Inc. (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1519, 1532, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 138 ; Patterson v. ITT Consumer Financial Corp. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1659, 1664, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 563 , cert. denied, 510 U.S. 1176 (1994)] . Surprise is a function of the disappointed reasonable expectations of the weaker party [Parada v. Superior Ct. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1554, 1571, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 743 ; Harper v. Ultimo (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1402, 1406, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 418] . If a contractual provision would defeat the strong expectation of the weaker party, it may also be necessary to call his or her attention to the language of the provision. Thus, while arbitration may be within the reasonable expectations of consumers, a process that builds prohibitively expensive fees into the arbitration process is not. Further, the weaker party would not reasonably expect that his or her claims could not be joined with others in a single proceeding [Parada v. Superior Ct. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1554, 1571, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 743 (no evidence of calling applicable arbitration rules and three-arbitrator and anti-consolidation provisions to petitioners' attention)].

Oppression results when there is no real negotiation of contract terms because of unequal bargaining power [Parada v. Superior Ct. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1554, 1572, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 743 ; Bruni v. Didion (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1272, 1288, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 395 ; Baker v. Osborne Development Corp. (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 884, 894, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854 ; Brown v. Wells Fargo Bank (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 938, 955, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 817 (court must determine if constructive fraud existed due to failure to explain material terms of arbitration agreement despite implied fiduciary duty between financial institution and elderly clients); Fitz v. NCR Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 702, 721-722, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88 ; Martinez v. Master Protection Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 107, 114, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663 (employer not required to bear fair share of costs); Abramson v. Juniper Networks, Inc. (2004) 115 Cal. App.

4th 638, 656, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 422 (unconscionable cost-sharing because employee required to bear half costs unique to arbitration); Kinney v. United Healthcare Services, Inc. (1999) 70 Cal, App. 4th 1322, 1329-1330, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 348 ; Stirlen v. Supercuts, Inc. (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1519, 1532, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 138 ; Patterson v. ITT Consumer Financial Corp. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1659, 1664, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 563 , cert. denied, 510 U.S. 1176 (1994)] and the absence of meaningful choice [Parada v. Superior Ct. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1554, 1572, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 743 ("absence of reasonable market alternatives"); Flores v. Transamerica HomeFirst, Inc. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 846, 853, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 376] . For oppression to exist under this criteria, the party challenging the provision must not have been able to obtain the goods or services from an alternative source [Crippen v. Central Valley RV Outlet, Inc. (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1159, 1165-1167, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 189 (nothing prevents purchasers of used vehicles from bargaining with dealers, even though dealers use form contracts, and nothing in record showed that plaintiff could not bargain); Flores v. Transamerica HomeFirst, Inc. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 846, 853, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 376 (defendant told plaintiffs it was only company in California offering reverse mortgages); Patterson v. ITT Consumer Financial Corp. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1659, 1667, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 563 , cert. denied, 510 U.S. 1176 (1994) (small loan borrowers, many of whom did not feel they could qualify for bank loans, met the non-alternative source requirement); see Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. v. Superior Court (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 758, 771-772, 259 Cal. Rptr. 789 (establishing requirement in context of challenging IRA account fees as unconscionable); but see Parada v. Superior Ct. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1554, 1572-1573, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 743 (availability of reasonable alternatives is but one factor, along with absence of power to negotiate terms, used in considering oppression, and its absence does not disprove procedural unconscionability); Bruni v. Didion (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1272, 1293-1294, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 395 (most recent view is that absence of reasonable market alternatives has no bearing on whether contract is adhesive); Harper v. Ultimo (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1402, 1406, 1409-1410, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 418 (oppression inhered in $2,500 cap on consumer's relief, hidden in arbitration rules not provided at time of contracting; lack of alternative source not needed to find procedural unconscionability); Spinello v. Amblin Entertainment (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1390, 1395-1396, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 695 (rejecting Dean Witter analysis in cases involving arbitration clauses)]. Unequal bargaining power may exist even as between a corporate employer and a successful and sophisticated corporate executive when the executive is required to sign standard nonnegotiable employment contract presented to him or her after accepting employment, even after having negotiated extra benefits under a separate agreement [Stirlen v. Supercuts, Inc. (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1519, 1532, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 138] . While the nonessential nature of recreational activities is a factor to be taken into account in assessing whether a contract is oppressive, it is not necessarily the dispositive factor [Lhotka v. Geographic Expeditions, Inc. (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 816, 822, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 844] .

Agreement Can Be Procedurally Unconscionable Even If Negotiated with Advice of Attorney.

Employee was fired and sued employer. After more than three years of unemployment, employee negotiated a settlement that allowed for employee to be rehired and for employment for three years thereafter to be terminable only for cause. As part of the settlement and re-employment, employee had to sign an arbitration agreement. Employee was represented by an attorney, who approved the arbitration agreement as to form. Employer fired employee a second time and demanded arbitration. Employee contended the arbitration agreement was unconscionable. Employee claimed procedural unconscionability based on absence of opportunity to negotiate the terms of the arbitration agreement. Did that make the arbitration agreement procedurally unconscionable? Yes. Although there was no element of surprise, and although employee was able to negotiate other elements of the settlement and rehire agreement, the arbitration agreement was the standard one required of all new employees and was not negotiable. The inequality of bargaining power was sufficient for the court to conclude that the arbitration agreement was procedurally unconscionable [Nyulassy v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 1267, 1284-1286, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 296 (agreement phrased as promise only by employee)].

[iii] "Substantive" Unconscionability Described

The substantive component of the A & M Produce criteria looks to whether the contract allocates the risks of the bargain in an objectively unreasonable or unexpected manner [Patterson v. ITT Consumer Financial Corp. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1659, 1664, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 563 , cert. denied, 510 U.S. 1176 (1994) ; Baker v. Osborne Development Corp. (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 884, 894, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854] .

An example of an unconscionable clause under this analysis is a clause in an employment contract that allows the employer to bring claims against the employee in court, limits the employee's rights in the litigation, and strips the employee of his or her job and salary pending the litigation, even if the employer's claim proves unmeritorious, while forcing the employee to arbitrate claims against the employer subject to concessions that favor the employer, such as a shortened period of limitations to which no tolling may apply and the loss of remedies for willful fraud or other intentional acts of the employer as well as statutory remedies [Stirlen v. Supercuts, Inc. (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1519, 1542, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 138] . Other terms that have caused arbitration clauses to be held substantively unconscionable, usually if more than one appears in a single agreement [see [f], below (discussion of severing single unconscionable term but enforcing the rest of agreement)], include the following:

- Arbitration is mandatory for employee, but not for employer [Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Services, Inc. (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 83, 121, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745, 6 P.3d 669 ; Nyulassy v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 1267, 1282-1283, 1287-1288, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 296 (agreement phrased as promise only by employee); Kinney v. United Healthcare Services, Inc. (1999) 70 Cal, App. 4th 1322, 1331-1332, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 348] .

- Class action prohibition [Circuit City Stores, Inc. v. Mantor (9th Cir. 2003) 335 F. 3d 1101, 1107-1109 ; Ingle v. Circuit City Stores, Inc. (9th Cir. 2003) 328 F.3d 1165, 1175-1176] .

- Cost splitting [Circuit City Stores, Inc. v. Mantor (9th Cir. 2003) 335 F. 3d 1101, 1107-1109 ; Ingle v. Circuit City Stores, Inc. (9th Cir. 2003) 328 F.3d 1165, 1177-1178 ; Martinez v. Master Protection Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 107, 115-116, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663 ; Abramson v. Juniper Networks, Inc. (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 638, 660-661] or imposition of unaffordable fees on consumers [Parada v. Superior Ct. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1554, 1578-1580, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 743].

- Covenants, Conditions and Restrictions (CCR's) cannot be construed as a contract that is sufficient to waive the constitutional right to trial by jury pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638, although it may be reasonable to bind owners and the homeowners association concerning the governance of the community and the placement of restrictions on the use of property [Treo v. Kettner Homeowners Assn. v. Superior Court (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1055, 1066, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 318]. Treating CCR's as a contract such that they were sufficient to waive the right to trial by jury did not comport with the importance of the right waived. [Treo v. Kettner Homeowners Assn. v. Superior Court (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1055, 1059-1060, 1066-1067, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 318].

- Discovery too limited [Fitz v. NCR Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 702, 716-719, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88 (in context of statutory discrimination claim); Kinney v. United Healthcare Services, Inc. (1999) 70 Cal, App. 4th 1322, 1332, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 348 ; see also Martinez v. Master Protection Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 107, 118-119, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663 (discovery severely limited but not necessarily unconscionably so)].

- Employer's right to litigate intellectual property, trade secret, and/or unfair competition matters. This is generally not justified by business realities requiring an injunction because Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(b) allows a party in arbitration to obtain a provisional remedy, including an injunction [Fitz v. NCR Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 702, 724-726, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88 ; Martinez v. Master Protection

Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 107, 114-115, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663 ; Abramson v. Juniper Networks, Inc. (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 638, 660-661, 664-666 ; O'Hare v. Municipal Resource Consultants (2003) 107 CA4 267, 274-279, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 116 ; Mercuro v. Superior Court (Countrywide Securities Corp.) (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 167, 176-178, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671] .

- Employer's unilateral power to modify or terminate agreement [Circuit City Stores, Inc. v. Mantor (9th Cir. 2003) 335 F. 3d 1101, 1107-1109 ; Ingle v. Circuit City Stores, Inc. (9th Cir. 2003) 328 F.3d 1165, 1179] .

- Filing fee payable to employer [Circuit City Stores, Inc. v. Mantor (9th Cir. 2003) 335 F. 3d 1101, 1107-1109 ; Ingle v. Circuit City Stores, Inc. (9th Cir. 2003) 328 F.3d 1165, 1177] .

- Limited recovery [Ingle v. Circuit City Stores, Inc. (9th Cir. 2003) 328 F.3d 1165, 1178 ; Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Services, Inc. (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 83, 121, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745, 6 P.3d 669 ; Harper v. Ultimo (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1402, 1407, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 418 (Better Business Bureau arbitration rules limited consumer's recovery to $2,500); Kinney v. United Healthcare Services, Inc. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1322, 1332 , 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 348] .

- One-sided scope of claims arbitrable [Ingle v. Circuit City Stores, Inc. (9th Cir. 2003) 328 F.3d 1165, 1172-1179 ; Baker v. Osborne Development Corp. (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 884, 894, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854 ; Higgins v. Superior Court (Disney/ABC International Television, Inc.) (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 1238, 1253-1255, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 293 (agreement phrased as promise to arbitrate only by subjects of television program); Nyulassy v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 1267, 1282-1283, 1287-1288, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 296 (agreement phrased as promise only by employee)].

- Shortened limitation period [Circuit City Stores, Inc. v. Mantor (9th Cir. 2003) 335 F. 3d 1101, 1107-1109 (one year); Ingle v. Circuit City Stores, Inc. (9th Cir. 2003) 328 F.3d 1165, 1175 (one year); Nyulassy v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 1267, 1283, 1288, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 296 (180 days); Martinez v. Master Protection Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 107, 117-118, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663 (six months)].

- Trial de novo provision that, while facially mutual, would in practice only be invoked by party that drafted agreement [Saika v. Gold (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1074, 1082, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 922] .

- A condition precedent to arbitration that employee first discuss any dispute with supervisor, although facially benign goal because of employer-controlled mechanism (i.e., no neutral involved), was more likely to function as employer's opportunity for "free peek" at employee's case [Nyulassy v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 1267, 1282-1283, 1287-1288, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 296] .

In the context of a residential lease, an arbitration clause that required the tenant to arbitrate any personal injury claims resulting from the condition of the premises, but allowed the landlord to seek judicial remedies for any default of tenants, including unlawful detainer actions, was unconscionable and unenforceable as lacking sufficient "bilaterality" [Jamarillo v. JH Real Estate Partners, Inc. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 394, 404-406, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 525] .

A party, such as a company, that repeatedly appears before the same group of arbitrators, has a distinct advantage over the individual employee or consumer. This "repeat player effect" comes into play when an arbitration agreement requires the arbitrator to be from a specific dispute resolution organization before which the stronger (usually drafting) party appears frequently. Although this "repeat player effect" has never been held sufficient by itself to render an arbitration agreement unconscionable, it is a factor to be considered in determining substantive unconscionability because it deprives the weaker party of the chance to participate in the selection of the arbitrator [Mercuro v. Superior

[c] Same Result Under Either Analysis

Whether analyzed from the standpoint of an adhesion contract with a provision that is unfair or outside the reasonable expectations of the weaker party [see [a], above] or from the A & M Produce components of unconscionability [see [b], above], the determination regarding enforceability should reach the same result [Patterson v. ITT Consumer Financial Corp. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1659, 1663-1664, 1666-1667, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 563 , cert. denied, 510 U.S. 1176 (1994)] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Clause Unenforceable Under Either Approach. A clause provides for "binding arbitration by the National Arbitration Forum, Minneapolis, Minnesota." The Forum's procedures required a large fee of a consumer who wished a hearing, and provided that a response or denial mailed to Minnesota was considered acquiescence to jurisdiction in Minnesota and to arbitration on the documents alone. The Forum would not make copies of its rules available to a consumer until the defendant had initiated a claim against him or her. Nor would the Forum advise a claimant or a respondent of the location of the participatory hearing before the claim was brought or a response entered. Is the clause unconscionable? Yes. The court of appeal found that under either analysis, this procedure was designed to discourage borrowers from responding at all, and was certainly outside the reasonable expectation of a California consumer [see Patterson v. ITT Consumer Financial Corp. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1659, 1665-1667, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 563 , cert. denied, 510 U.S. 1176 (1994)] . However, this result may be subject to challenge under Allied-Bruce Terminix Cos. v. Dobson (1995) 513 U.S. 265, 280-281, 115 S. Ct. 834, 130 L. Ed. 2d 753 ; for discussion, see § 32.24.

[d] Determined at Time Contract Made

Unconscionability is determined as of the time the agreement was made [Martinez v. Master Protection Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 107, 116, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663 ; Gutierrez v. Autowest, Inc. (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 77, 91, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 267] . Once litigation has commenced, an offer by the drafting party to modify the unconscionable term is of no effect. The harm--that inclusion of the unconscionable term produces an unacceptable chilling effect on the non-drafting party--has already occurred [Martinez v. Master Protection Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 107, 116-117, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663 (statutory rights were at issue)]. Similarly, although arbitration rules may allow an arbitrator to reduce or defer administrative fees in the event of extreme hardship of any party, such rules are not sufficient to ensure either that only affordable fees may be imposed on the nondrafting party or that the fee term will not be unconscionable [Gutierrez v. Autowest, Inc. (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 77, 92, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 267] . Conversely, arbitration under a three-party agreement, which provides for each party to appoint one arbitrator and for those arbitrators to choose a neutral fourth arbitrator, will not be denied on the grounds of unfairness or unconscionability because two parties' interests have become aligned by the time the dispute arises [Tate v. Saratoga Savings & Loan Assn. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 843, 852-854, 265 Cal. Rptr. 440 (nor will resultant award be vacated)].

[e] Policy Favors Upholding Agreement

Absent some special element of unfair advantage, however, arbitration is considered to be mutually advantageous and inclusion of an arbitration provision in commercial contracts is common. If the facts show that the parties could reasonably anticipate an arbitration clause, and that the agreement is not unduly oppressive, the arbitration provision will be enforced even though it is contained in an adhesion contract [see Keating v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 584, 594-595, 183 Cal. Rptr. 360, 645 P.2d 1192 (reversed in part on other grounds in Southland Corp. v. Keating (1984) 465 U.S. 1, 16-17, 104 S. Ct. 852, 79 L. Ed. 2d 1); Painters Dist. Council No. 33 v. Moen (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 1032, 1040-1041, 181 Cal. Rptr. 17] .

For discussion of general principles of the law of unconscionability, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

Civ. Code § 1670.5(a) provides that a court may enforce the remainder of a contract without the unconscionable clause, or may limit the application of any unconscionable clause so as to avoid any unconscionable result. With respect to an arbitration clause that suffers from multiple problems of unconscionability, especially when one of those problems is that the entire arbitration provision is unilateral, and those multiple defects reflect a systematic effort to impose arbitration on the weaker party (not simply as an alternative to litigation, but as an inferior forum that works to the stronger party's advantage) severing the unconscionable portions of the clause and compelling arbitration is not appropriate [Ingle v. Circuit City Stores, Inc. (9th Cir. 2003) 328 F.3d 1165, 1180 ; Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Services, Inc. (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 83, 121-122, 124, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745, 6 P.3d 669 ; Parada v. Superior Ct. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1554, 1586, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 743 ; Fitz v. NCR Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 702, 726-727, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88 ; Martinez v. Master Protection Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 107, 119, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663 ; O'Hare v. Municipal Resource Consultants (2003) 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 116 ; Mercuro v. Superior Court (Countrywide Securities Corp.) (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 167, 184-186, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671 ; Flores v. Transamerica HomeFirst, Inc. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 846, 857, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 376] .

Furthermore, with an unconscionably unilateral arbitration clause, there is no single provision a court could strike or restrict in order to remove the unconscionable taint from the agreement. The only option would be to reform the agreement to make it bilateral; and a court has no power to do that [Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Services, Inc. (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 83, 124-125, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745, 6 P.3d 669 ; Parada v. Superior Ct. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1554, 1586, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 743 ; Nyulassy v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 1267, 1287-1288, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 296 ; Martinez v. Master Protection Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 107, 119, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663 ; Mercuro v. Superior Court (Countrywide Securities Corp.) (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 167, 186-187, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671 ; Flores v. Transamerica HomeFirst, Inc. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 846, 857, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 376] . Accordingly, the court, in its discretion, may refuse to enforce the contract as a whole if it is permeated by the unconscionability [Roman v. Superior Court (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 1462, 1477, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 153 (unconscionable fee sharing provision alone was insufficient to justify nonenforcement of entire arbitration agreement)]. Nor is severance appropriate after the underlying agreement has terminated, with the party urging arbitration having taken all that it bargained for in underlying agreement and thus no longer in need of enforcing the unconscionable portions of the arbitration agreement [Flores v. Transamerica HomeFirst, Inc. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 846, 857-858, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 376] .

In determining whether to sever or restrict illegal terms rather than voiding the entire contract, the overarching inquiry is whether the interests of justice would be furthered by severance [Roman v. Superior Court (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 1462, 1477, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 153 (unconscionable fee sharing provision severed)]. In making this determination, the strong legislative and judicial preference is to sever the offending term and enforce the balance of the agreement [Roman v. Superior Court (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 1462, 1477-1478, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 153]. First, courts are to look to the various purposes of the contract. If the central purpose of the contract is tainted with illegality, then the contract as a whole cannot be enforced. If (1) the illegality is collateral to the main purpose of the contract, and (2) the illegal provision can be extirpated from the contract by means of severance or restriction, then severance and restriction are appropriate. An unconscionable arbitration term is not to be severed if it was drafted in bad faith, because severing such a term and enforcing the arbitration provision would encourage drafters to overreach [Parada v. Superior Ct. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1554, 1585-1586, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 743].

One type of unconscionable provision that is severable is a provision that relates to the neutrality of the arbitrator. Then, the rest of the arbitration clause can be enforced and the arbitrator chosen in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6 [Graham v. Scissor-Tail, Inc. (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 807, 831, 171 Cal. Rptr. 604, 623 P.2d 165 ; Lewis v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1097, 1107 228 Cal. Rptr. 345] .

Other examples of unconscionable provisions that have been severed from arbitration clauses are the following:

- Although seemingly neutral on its face, a provision that allows either party to have an award in excess of $50,000 reviewed by a second arbitrator is so one-sided as to be unconscionable. The $50,000 threshold only benefits the party against whom an award of that magnitude is likely to be entered [Little v. Auto Stiegler, Inc. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1064, 1074, 1077-1079, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 892, 63 P.3d 979 ; Fittante v. Palm Springs Motors, Inc. (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 708, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 659 ; but see Finley v. Saturn of Roseville (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 1253, 1255, 1260, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 561 (trial court's confirmation of arbitration award on ground of untimeliness reversed and returned to trial court to vacate order and reverse arbitration award on ground of lack of jurisdiction arising from parties' agreement to submit issues for review to second arbitrator)].

- A provision in a credit card agreement, prohibiting arbitration of class or representative claims has been held severable. Not only is such a provision one-sided and unconscionable, in that it is likely to deprive consumers of any remedy for practices that involve relatively small amounts of money, it contradicts the public policy of discouraging unfair and unlawful business practices and it is contrary to the promotion of judicial economy [Szetela v. Discover Bank (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1101-1102, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 862 ; accord Ting v. AT&T (9th Cir. 2003) 319 F. 3d 1126, 1150, 1152 (class action prohibition was unconscionable and unenforceable under California doctrine of unconscionability)].

- A provision in a franchise agreement requiring arbitration in Utah is severable because it is unduly oppressive as to the "Mom & Pop" franchisees [Bolter v. Superior Court (Harris Research Inc.) 87 Cal. App. 4th 900, 909-911, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 888] .

- A provision in a consumer contract (which gave the consumer unwaivable statutory rights) required the consumer to pay an unaffordable fee to initiate the arbitration process [Gutierrez v. Autowest (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 77, 83, 92-93, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 267 ; see also discussion of remainder of cost provision at § 32.22[2][b]].

- Unenforceable fee sharing provision that was unconscionable as applied to claim under Fair Employment and Housing Act was by itself insufficient to justify nonenforcement of the entire arbitration agreement [Roman v. Superior Court (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 1462, 1477, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 153].

[4] Enforceability When Induced by Fraud

[a] Possible Fraud Issues Distinguished

Three types of fraud may be identified for purposes of analyzing when fraud is subject to arbitration:

- Fraud in the making of the arbitration clause itself [see § 32.21[4][c]].

- Fraud in the inception (or execution) of the contract (party never intended to enter any contract) [see § 32.21[4][d]].

- Fraud in the inducement of the contract as a whole (party intended to contract, but would not have done so but for other party's misrepresentations) [see § 32.21[4][b]].

The arbitration clause may be avoided when there is fraud in the inception or execution, that is, when the plaintiff had no intention to agree to arbitrate because the plaintiff had no intention of entering into any kind of contractual agreement at all. Arbitration may also be avoided when there is fraud in the making of the arbitration clause itself, for example, by actively concealing its existence or misrepresenting its meaning or value. However, an agreement to arbitrate may not be held invalid simply because the contract as a whole was induced by fraud. In that case, the issue of fraud is for the arbitrator [Rosenthal v. Great Western Fin. Securities Corp. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 394, 419, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 875, 926 P.2d 1061 ; Duffens v. Valenti (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 434, 448, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 311 ; Larian v. Larian (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 751, 761-762, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 916 ; see Ericksen, Arbuthnot, McCarthy, Kearney & Walsh, Inc. v. 100 Oak Street (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 312, 323, 197 Cal. Rptr. 581, 673 P.2d 251 ; Hayes Children Leasing Co. v. NCR Corp. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 775, 783-785, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 650 ; but see Brown v. Wells Fargo Bank (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 938, 960, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 817 (trial court must determine if constructive fraud existed due to failure to explain material terms of arbitration agreement despite implied fiduciary duty between financial institution and elderly clients)].

A fourth way of approaching fraud has been largely discredited. That is the argument that an arbitration clause may be held invalid because a party intended to use it to effect a fraudulent scheme. This theory was recognized by Moseley v. Electronic Facilities (1963) 374 U.S. 167, 171, 83 S. Ct. 1815, 10 L. Ed. 2d 818 . This aspect of Mosely, however, was impliedly overruled by Prima Paint Corp. v. Flood & Conklin (1967) 388 U.S. 395, 406, 87 S. Ct. 1801, 18 L. Ed. 2d 1270 , under which the question is whether the intent to arbitrate was given and given freely [Hayes Children Leasing Co. v. NCR Corp. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 775, 787, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 650] .

Another view of fraud, the "permeation doctrine," has been rejected by the California Supreme Court as being in conflict with Prima Paint Corp. v. Flood & Conklin (1967) 388 U.S. 395, 87 S. Ct. 1801, 18 L. Ed. 2d 1270 [see [d], below] to the extent the doctrine indicates that an agreement to arbitrate may be found invalid simply because the contract as a whole was induced by fraud. Also, to the extent the "permeation doctrine" may merely be another name for fraud in the execution of a contract, the doctrine is simply unnecessary. Thus, the Court expressly declined to recognize the doctrine [Rosenthal v. Great Western Fin. Securities Corp. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 394, 418-419, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 875, 926 P.2d 1061 ; Duffens v. Valenti (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 434, 448, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 311] .

The bottom line is that for fraud to invalidate an arbitration clause, the fraud must specifically and unquestionably infect the agreement to arbitrate such that it nullifies the apparent consent to that agreement [Hayes Children Leasing Co. v. NCR Corp. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 775, 785, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 650 ; Brown v. Wells Fargo Bank (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 938, 958, -- Cal. Rptr. 3d -- (trial court must determine if constructive fraud existed due to failure to explain material terms of arbitration agreement despite implied fiduciary duty between financial institution and elderly clients)].

The policy favoring arbitration supports validation of an arbitration clause contained in a contract obtained by fraud. The parties may limit the scope of arbitration so as to exclude questions of fraud in the inducement, but absent an indication of their contrary intent, if the arbitration clause is reasonably susceptible to such an interpretation, claims of fraud in the inducement of the contract (as distinguished from claims of fraud directed to the arbitration clause itself) are deemed subject to arbitration [Ericksen, Arbuthnot, McCarthy, Kearney & Walsh, Inc. v. 100 Oak Street (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 312, 323, 197 Cal. Rptr. 581, 673 P.2d 251 (noting that the fraud did not permeate the entire contract, including the arbitration clause, because the plaintiff did not deny ever agreeing to anything and was concededly aware of the arbitration clause); Duffens v. Valenti (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 434, 448-449, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 311 ; Larian v. Larian (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 751, 761, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 916 ; King v. Prudential-Bache Securities, Inc. (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 749, 753, 277 Cal. Rptr. 214] .

This follows the federal rule that, under a broadly worded arbitration provision, fraud in the making or performance of the principal contract is to be decided by the arbitrator, and that the issue of fraud is to be decided by the court only when it is alleged that the arbitration provision itself was obtained by fraud or as part of a fraudulent scheme [Strotz v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 208, 214, 272 Cal. Rptr. 680 (harmonizing Prima Paint Corp. v. Flood & Conklin (1967) 388 U.S. 395, 404, 87 S. Ct. 1801, 18 L. Ed. 2d 1270, 1277 , and Moseley v. Electronic Facilities (1963) 374 U.S. 167, 171, 83 S. Ct. 1815, 10 L. Ed. 2d 818, 821) ; Brown v. Wells Fargo Bank (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 938, 958, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 817 (trial court must determine if constructive fraud existed due to failure to explain material terms of arbitration agreement despite implied fiduciary duty between financial institution and elderly clients); see also C.H.I., Inc. v. Marcus Bros. Textile, Inc. (9th Cir. 1991) 930 F.2d 762, 763-764 (dismissing diversity case for failure to arbitrate; fact that arbitration clause was in confirmation order form, over signature line, and that party signed it to fill orders to its clients did not amount to evidence of duress or establish that contract was one of adhesion)].

[c] Fraud Going to the Arbitration Clause Itself

[i] Elements of Delay Constituting Fraud

The California Supreme Court has analyzed a party's claim of being fraudulently induced to enter an arbitration agreement as a claim of promissory fraud, that is, a promise made without the intention to perform [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 973, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903] . The elements are as follows [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 974, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903] :

- Misrepresentation (false representation, concealment, or nondisclosure).
- Knowledge of falsity ("scienter").
- Intent to defraud (that is, to induce reliance).
- Justifiable reliance.
- Resulting damage.

If delay in the selection of arbitrators that is the result of reasonable and good faith disagreement between the parties, or some other reasonable cause, the remedy may be a Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6 petition for appointment of an arbitrator rather than abandonment of the arbitration. However, a party that imposes and administers is own arbitration program, that fraudulently misrepresents the speed of the arbitrator selection process, and that in fact engages in conduct forcing substantial delay, may not then compel arbitration by contending that the other party failed to resort to a Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6 petition [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 981, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903] .

[ii] Misrepresentation, Knowledge of Falsity, and Intent to Induce Reliance

In Engalla, the Court found evidence sufficient to remand to the trial court for a determination of whether fraud barred a petitioner's attempt to compel arbitration. Engalla involved an arbitration clause, which was drafted by the petitioner (Kaiser) and provided for selection of party arbitrators within 30 days and of a neutral within 60 days, with arbitration to be held within a reasonable time thereafter. The Court found evidence of misrepresentation in a survey of Kaiser arbitrations that showed that only one percent of the cases followed the time table for appointing arbitrators and that the average time was nearly two years after the demand. Depositions of two of Kaiser's in-house attorneys showed that Kaiser was aware of the delay. Given the pervasiveness of the delays and the fact that it is the defense that often benefits from delay, as well as evidence that Kaiser kept detailed information on arbitrators and may have used delay to ensure that it would obtain the arbitrators that best served its interests, the Court concluded that it would be reasonable to infer that Kaiser's representations of expedition were made with knowledge of their likely falsity and concealed an unofficial policy or practice of delay [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 974-975, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903] . One additional factor the Court pointed to was that under Kaiser's system Kaiser entrusted administration of the arbitration to outside counsel retained to act as Kaiser's advocates, rather than to a neutral third party organization [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 975-976, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903] .

The Engalla Court found that intent to induce reliance could be inferred from the repetition of the misrepresentation not only in the contract but in newsletters which were periodically sent to subscribers [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 976, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903] .

[iii] Justifiable Reliance

Actual reliance occurs when a misrepresentation is an immediate cause of a party's conduct, which alters his or her legal relations if, absent the representation, the party, in all reasonable probability, would not have entered into the contract or other transaction. The reliance need not be the sole or even predominant or decisive factor in influencing the party's conduct; it need only play a substantial part, and so have been a substantial factor, in influencing the party's decision [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 976-977, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903] .

Reliance may be inferred from a showing that the misrepresentation was material, that is, that a reasonable person would attach importance to its existence or nonexistence in determining his or her choice of action in the transaction in question [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 977, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903] .

In the case of an arbitration clause in an agreement entered into by an employer on behalf of its employees, such as a group medical benefits plan, the employer acts as the employees' agent during the negotiation. Thus, the question of reliance in such a case is whether the material representation is one that would have substantially influenced the employer, acting as an agent of its employees as a class [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 977-978, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903] .

In Engalla, the Court concluded that Kaiser's representations of an expeditious arbitration system were not so obviously unimportant as to render them immaterial as a matter of law, given that expedition is commonly regarded as one of the primary advantages of arbitration [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 978, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903] . The availability of a statutory remedy to expedite appointment of arbitrators did not negate the materiality of the misrepresentation, because requiring recourse to the court is not the normal expectation of arbitration participants [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 978-979, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6 (petition to appoint arbitrator)].

[iv] Resulting Damage

A defrauded party need not show pecuniary damage to defeat a petition to compel arbitration. It is not, however, adequate merely to show that the other party has engaged generally in fraudulent misrepresentation about the speed of the arbitration process. The defrauded party must show that in their particular case, there was substantial delay in the selection of arbitrators contrary to their reasonable, fraudulently induced, contractual expectations [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 979, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903] . The Engalla Court appeared to consider the suffering of delay as adequate damage to support a finding of damage [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 981, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903] , although the facts of the case also indicated that the delay resulted in the reduction of recoverable damages due to the death of the plaintiff patient and the merger of the surviving spouse's loss of consortium claim with the wrongful death claim [see Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 969, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903] .

[d] Fraud in Inception of Contract Is Not Subject to Arbitration

Fraud in the inception or execution of a contract is fraud in which the promisor is deceived as to the nature of his or her act, and actually does not know what he or she is signing, or does not intend to enter into a contract at all, mutual assent is lacking and the contract is void [Brown v. Wells Fargo Bank (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 938, 958, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 817 (trial court must determine if constructive fraud existed due to failure to explain material terms of arbitration agreement despite implied fiduciary duty between financial institution and elderly clients); Rosenthal v. Great Western Fin. Securities Corp. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 394, 415, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 875, 926 P.2d 1061 ; Jones v. Adams Financial Services (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 831, 835, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151] . Where a party's assent to a contract is negated by fraud in the inception, there simply is no arbitration agreement to be enforced. Thus, Prima Paint Corp. v. Flood & Conklin (1967) 388 U.S. 395, 87 S. Ct. 1801, 18 L. Ed. 2d 1270 does not preclude the court from determining claims of fraud in the execution of the entire contract [Brown v. Wells Fargo Bank (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 938, 958, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 817 (trial court must determine if constructive fraud existed due to failure to explain material terms of arbitration agreement despite implied fiduciary duty between financial institution and elderly clients); Rosenthal v. Great Western Fin. Securities Corp. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 394, 415-416, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 875, 926 P.2d 1061] .

In Rosenthal v. Great Western Fin. Securities Corp. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 394, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 875, 926 P.2d 1061 , the court ultimately concluded that some of the plaintiffs failed to present legally sufficient evidence to render the agreements void for fraud in the execution, so that the defendant's petition to compel arbitration should be granted as to them. Other plaintiffs, however, had presented potentially sufficient evidence, requiring remand for further proceeding [Rosenthal v. Great Western Fin. Securities Corp. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 394, 402, 426-427, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 875, 926 P.2d 1061 ; see also Jones v. Adams Financial Services (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 831, 840, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151 (fraud in inception established by 79-year-old legally blind woman with dementia who was tricked into signing note and deed of trust); see also Brown v. Wells Fargo Bank (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 938, 958, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 817 (trial court must determine if constructive fraud existed at inception due to failure of bank representative to explain material terms of arbitration agreement despite implied fiduciary duty between financial institution and elderly clients)].

Other cases that have held that, if the complaint sufficiently alleges duress, undue influence, or fraud in the inception, factum, or execution, the entire agreement is rendered void for lack of mutual consent include:

- Rice v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1016, 1024-1026, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 265 (controlled by FAA; allegations of brokers' misrepresentation of nature of documents to person unsophisticated in business and with no experience in securities investments were sufficient to raise issue of fraud in the inception).

- Strotz v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 208, 212, 217-219, 272 Cal. Rptr. 680 (plaintiff alleged not to have known document was contract; plaintiff's failure to read documents may be excusable in light of allegations of fiduciary relationship and defendant's misrepresentations; controversy admittedly controlled by FAA).

- Main v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 19, 25, 27-33, 136 Cal. Rptr. 378 (controversy controlled by FAA; sufficient allegations of relationship of trust and confidence, undue influence, and fraud in inducing entire agreement and arbitration clause).

To the extent that cases issue analyzing this issue in terms of fraud "permeating" the contract have simply used that terminology as another name for fraud in the inception or execution of the contract, those cases may illustrate situations in which the arbitration agreement was void and unenforceable. However, to the extent that they fail to recognize that the arbitration clause is severable from the rest of the contract when the issue is fraud in the inducement, cases dealing with the "permeation doctrine" should not be relied on [see Rosenthal v. Great Western Fin. Securities Corp. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 394, 418, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 875, 926 P.2d 1061 (criticizing Ford v. Shearson Lehman American Express, Inc. (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1011, 225 Cal. Rptr. 895)].

[5] Enforceability by or Against Third Party

[a] Court, Not Arbitrator, Decides Third Party's Status

An arbitrator generally does not have jurisdiction to determine any question regarding a third party's status, such as whether the third party can enforce the arbitration agreement, either for its own benefit or "on behalf" of a party to the arbitration agreement [Valley Casework, Inc. v. Comfort Construction, Inc. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1013, 1024, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 779 (agreement between general contractor and subcontractor)], or whether the third party is an undisclosed principal of the signatory to the arbitration agreement. A court must determine these questions before it orders arbitration [Valley Casework, Inc. v. Comfort Construction, Inc. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1013, 1024, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 779 ; American Builder's Assn. v. Au-Yang (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 170, 177-180, 276 Cal. Rptr. 262 ; accord, Three Valleys Mun. Water Dist. v. E.F. Hutton (9th Cir. 1991) 925 F.2d 1136, 1140-1142, 1144 (under federal rule and Federal Arbitration Act, court is required to decide threshold issue whether individual signatory had authority to bind government entity to contract)]. Thus, an arbitrator cannot order the joinder of a third party of undetermined status [American Builder's Assn. v. Au-Yang (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 170, 177-180, 276 Cal. Rptr. 262 ; Retail Clerks Union v. L. Bloom Sons Co. (1959) 173 Cal. App. 2d 701, 702-703, 344 P.2d 51 (third party claimed to be alter ego of signatory)]. An exception to the foregoing is an arbitration agreement that provides for any third party who is not a party to the agreement but is necessary for complete resolution of any matter required to be arbitrated under the agreement, to be joined in the arbitration and which also provides, or incorporates arbitration rules or procedures that provide, that the arbitrator determine whether anyone must be joined in the arbitration to provide a complete resolution. The California Hospital Association-California Medical Association Rules for the Arbitration of Hospital and Medical Fee Disputes (CHA-CMA Rules) contain such a provision. Thus, an agreement to be arbitrated under those or similar rules will be enforced to refer the issue of the third party's joinder to the arbitrator [Zakarian v. Bekov (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 316, 325-327 Cal. Rptr. 2d 623 (third party wanted to be joined in arbitration)]. A well-drafted arbitration provision of this nature will include the signatories' consent to joinder of any person necessary to full resolution of an arbitrable dispute.

A third party's right to enforce an arbitration agreement is predicated on the contracting parties' intent to benefit that third party [Matthau v. Superior Court (William Morris Agency) (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 593, 602, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 93 ; City of Hope v. Bryan Cave (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 1356, 1369-1370, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 283] . Some agreements, such as release agreements containing boilerplate language purporting to excuse everyone in the world from liability, can be enforced by persons who are not parties to the agreement. Still, a third party has the burden of proving that the contracting parties intended to benefit that third party. It is not enough that a literal interpretation of the contract would result in a benefit to the third party [City of Hope v. Bryan Cave (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 1356, 1369-1370, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 283] . A petition to compel arbitration is in essence a suit in equity to compel specific performance of a contract. In the case of a person claiming to be a third party beneficiary entitled to enforce an arbitration agreement, the minimal formalities required in the petition to compel arbitration are an allegation of a controversy between the parties, facts demonstrating the existence of an arbitrable controversy, the existence of the written agreement, and an allegation that the other party has refused to arbitrate. The petition should also set forth the written agreement and the arbitration provision verbatim so the court can determine both whether an arbitration agreement exists and who has standing to demand arbitration [City of Hope v. Bryan Cave (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 1356, 1369, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 283] .

If arbitration has already commenced between the signatories and a nonparty of undetermined status appears to be an indispensable party to the arbitration, the arbitration proceeding should be stayed until the nonsignatory's status is determined in the declaratory relief action [see American Builder's Assn. v. Au-Yang (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 170, 180, 276 Cal. Rptr. 262] .

[i] Heirs of Signatory Party

Ordinarily, a patient who signs an arbitration agreement covering medical malpractice claims cannot bind anyone else except his or her spouse and minor children to arbitrate any wrongful death claim under that agreement [Fitzhugh v. Granada HealthCare and Rehabilitation Center, LLC (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 469, 474, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 585 ; Buckner v. Tamarin (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 140, 142, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 489 (adult children not required to arbitrate wrongful death claim); Herbert v. Superior Court (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 718, 722-725, 215 Cal. Rptr. 477 ; see also Pietrelli v. Peacock (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 943, 947, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 688 (malpractice, not wrongful death; child bound); Bolanos v. Khalatian (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 1591, 283 Cal. Rptr. 209 (malpractice, not wrongful death, child and spouse bound); Gross v. Recabaren (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 771, 781, 253 Cal. Rptr. 820 (malpractice, not wrongful death, spouse bound)].

Herbert, mentioned above, is anomalous in that adult children of the decedent were required to arbitrate their wrongful death claims. Because decedent's spouse and five minor children were required by the arbitration agreement decedent signed to arbitrate their wrongful death claim, rather than try to split an indivisible cause of action, the court required the adult children to arbitrate too [Herbert v. Superior Court (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 718, 722-725, 215 Cal. Rptr. 477] . The converse is also true: the court has discretion under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c) to require all causes of action to be tried when only some are arbitrable. A trial court's discretionary ruling under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c) will not be disturbed unless it exceeds the bounds of reason [see Fitzhugh v. Granada HealthCare and Rehabilitation Center, LLC (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 469, 475-476, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 585 (surviving spouse's and sons' wrongful death claims and decedent's claim for violations of Patient's Bill of Rights [Health & Safety Code § 1430; 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 72527])].

[ii] Loss of Consortium Claim by Spouse of Signatory Patient

The courts of appeal are in conflict regarding whether an arbitration agreement that complies with Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 extends to require arbitration of the patient's spouse's loss of consortium claim if that claim arises out of the medical services that were the subject of the agreement to arbitrate. District Two, Division Four, holds that arbitration of a nonsignatory spouse's loss of consortium claim cannot be compelled [Baker v. Birnbaum (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 288, 291-294, 248 Cal. Rptr. 336] .

District Two, Division Two, holds that it must be compelled [Gross v. Recabaren (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 771, 781, 253 Cal. Rptr. 820 ; see also Mormile v. Sinclair (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1508, 1515, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 725 (Fourth Appellate District)] . The latter position is consistent with the language of Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 and the practical realities of the situation, and furthers the judicially favored preference in favor of joining the loss of consortium and negligence claims. That holding is limited, however, to broadly worded agreements that provide for arbitration of "any dispute as to medical malpractice" [Gross v. Recabaren (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 771, 780-781, 253 Cal. Rptr. 820] .

[iii] Nonsignatory Parent Who Witnessed Accident

A nonsignatory parent has been required to arbitrate an emotional distress claim arising from witnessing injuries to the child when the arbitration agreement was signed by the other parent, contained broad language binding "all parties whose claims arise out of or relate to the treatment or services provided by physician," and complied with Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 [Bolanos v. Khalatian (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 1589-1591, 283 Cal. Rptr. 209] .

[c] Agent or Fiduciary of Signatory

An agent of a signatory, though he or she did not sign the arbitration agreement, can enforce an arbitration agreement or can be compelled to arbitrate. This rule is based on equitable principles [Bak v. MCL Financial Group, Inc. (2008)

170 Cal. App. 4th 1118, 1125-1126, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 800 (attorney who submitted to the arbitration panel's jurisdiction by appearing for a party as its agent was subject to sanction by the arbitration panel); Nguyen v. Tran (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1032, 1037-1038, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 906 ; Westra v. Marcus & Millichap Real Estate Investment Brokerage Co. (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 759, 764-765, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 752 (agent of both buyer and seller in real estate transaction); see also Izzi v. Mesquite Country Club (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1309, 1319, 231 Cal. Rptr. 315 (officers of condominium association in which property which was subject of transaction was located); Berman V. Dean Witter & Co., Inc. (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 999, 1004, 119 Cal. Rptr. 130 (spouse of account holder and employee of broker both compelled to arbitrate as agents)]. The agent is as entitled to the benefit of arbitration as is his or her principal [Berman v. Dean Witter & Co., Inc. (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 999, 1004, 119 Cal. Rptr. 130] . It is helpful if the pleadings allege that the nonsignatory defendant sought to be compelled to arbitrate is alleged to be the agent of a signatory [see Izzi v. Mesquite Country Club (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1309, 1319, 231 Cal. Rptr. 315] . For other examples of situations in which an agency or fiduciary relationship may have influenced the right or requirement to arbitrate, see [d], [e], and [g], below.

Like agents, nonsignatory officers alleged to be alter egos of a corporate defendant can compel signatories to arbitrate [Rowe v. Exline (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1276, 1279, 1284-1285, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 787].

Similarly, the sole general partner of a limited partnership may be compelled to arbitrate a contract dispute pursuant to an arbitration provision in a contract between the partnership and a third party [see Keller Constr. Co. v. Kashani (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 222, 227-229, 269 Cal. Rptr. 259 (partnership was in bankruptcy and stay prevented it from being compelled to arbitrate; decision was based in part on general partner's liability for obligations of limited partnership; decided under Corp. Code § 15015(b) [Uniform Partnership Act, repealed 1999]; Corp. Code § 15507(a) [Uniform Limited Partnership Act, repealed Jan. 1, 2010]; now see Corp. Code §§ 15509(1), 15643(b), 15904.04(a) [Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008]; Corp. Code § 16306 [Uniform Partnership Act of 1994])].

[d] Introducing Securities Broker

A nonsignatory introducing broker, operating as a completely independent entity from a clearing broker, may not enforce an arbitration clause in a customer agreement between their client and a clearing broker absent a showing of a third party beneficiary status, an agency relationship, or some other appropriate nexus [compare Arista Films, Inc. v. Gilford Securities, Inc. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 495, 500-501, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35 (not enforceable); Van Luven v. Rooney Pace, Inc. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1201, 1207-1208, 241 Cal. Rptr. 248 (not enforceable); with Macaulay v. Norlander (1992) 12 Cal. App. 4th 1, 8, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 204 (enforceable; introducing agent was third party beneficiary under clear language of agreement)].

[e] People Who Have Accepted Benefits of Underlying Agreement

One may accept the benefits of an agreement, or insurance policy, and thus be required to accept the policy's obligations, including the obligation to arbitrate, especially when there is an agency or similar relationship between the nonsignatory and one of the parties to the arbitration agreement [Norcal Mutual Ins. Co. v. Newton (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 64, 71-72, 76, 84, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 683] . See also related theory of equitable estoppel discussed at [g], below.

ILLUSTRATION:

Acceptance of Insurance Policy's Benefits Requires Insured's Spouse to Arbitrate in Accordance With Policy. Physician's spouse was not insured under physician's medical malpractice policy, but was sued, along with the physician, in an action alleging sexual misconduct by the insured and unauthorized treatment of patients by the spouse. The insurance company agreed to defend both the physician and the spouse, subject to a reservation of rights, including the right to decline to pay or indemnify any settlement and to seek reimbursement of all fees and costs. The case against the physician and spouse was settled, and a dispute arose as to how the settlement would be reported (as required) to the National Practitioner Data Bank and to the Medical Board of California. On two occasions, attorneys for spouse demanded arbitration of a number of issues. Later, both physician and spouse "withdrew their request for arbitration." Physician died. Was spouse obligated to arbitrate? Yes, spouse sought and accepted the benefits of the insurance policy by tendering defense of the complaint to the insurance company and accepted those benefits by allowing the insurance company to assume the cost of the defense, by requesting and participating in the settlement of the complaint, by requesting arbitration of the ensuing dispute regarding the reporting of the settlement to the data bank, and even after physician's death by relying on the terms of the insurance policy to obtain a change of venue [Norcal Mutual Ins. Co. v. Newton (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 64, 78, 82, 84, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 683] .

[f] Shareholder's Derivative Action

A shareholder's derivative action that names as a defendant another entity that has an arbitration agreement with the corporation can be compelled to be arbitrated, as long as the subject matter of the derivative action is within the scope of the arbitration agreement. The shareholder plaintiff does not bring the derivative action in his or her own right, but on behalf of the corporation. Third parties can assert any rights and defenses they have against the corporation, including the right to compel arbitration [Frederick v. First Union Securities, Inc. (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 694, 696-697, 701-702, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 774] . Frederick involved claims of market manipulation of the corporation's stock by insider officers of both the corporation and its securities brokers. The broadly worded client agreement between the corporation and the brokerage firm that sought to compel arbitration encompassed claims for any transaction involving the corporation and the brokerage firm, whether or not the transaction occurred in the corporation's account or accounts. Thus, the arbitration agreement was broad enough to encompass transactions (in the corporation's stock) complained of that occurred in the accounts of the individuals participating in the scheme. The court found that the claims also fell within the portion of the arbitration agreement which applied to construction, performance, or breach of any duty arising from the brokerage firm's business [Frederick v. First Union Securities, Inc. (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 694, 700, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 774] .

[g] Equitable Estoppel Requires Signatory to Arbitrate with Nonsignatory

California recognizes that a signatory may be required by the doctrine of equitable estoppel to arbitrate claims against a nonsignatory when those claims are intimately founded in and intertwined with arbitrable claims against another signatory [Turtle Ridge Media Group, Inc. v. Pacific Bell Directory (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 828, 833, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 817 (subcontractor compelled to arbitrate claims against nonsignatory that was party to primary contract, which had arbitration clause); Boucher v. Alliance Title Co., Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 262, 269-273, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 440 ; Metalclad Corp. v. Ventana Environmental Organizational Partnership (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1705, 1713-1719, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 328] . The theory, first recognized in federal courts, is usually applied to situations involving related companies and individual officers or agents of those companies and claims of fraud or conspiracy [see, e.g., Sunkist Soft Drinks, Inc. v. Sunkist Growers, Inc. (11th Cir. 1993) 10 F.3d 753 (licensee acquired by and merged into licensor's competitor); Rowe v. Exline (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1276, 1284-1285, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 787 (nonsignatory officers alleged to be alter egos of corporate defendant); Boucher v. Alliance Title Co., Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 262, 268, 272-273, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 440 (employee required to arbitrate with nonsignatory sister subsidiary to which employer had transferred all assets)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Equitable Estoppel Required Arbitration With Nonsignatory. One company agreed to sell a subsidiary to another company. The purchase agreement contained an arbitration clause that applied to any controversy or claim arising out of or relating to the contract. Buyer's parent company orally agreed to invest $5,000,000 to finance the purchase, but did not enter into a written agreement with the seller. Buyer assigned its rights to a third company, which seller claimed was merely a shell. Buyer's parent company never advanced the $5,000,000. Seller sued buyer, the buyer's parent company, the buyer's assignee, and related companies and individuals on various fraud theories. Assignee compelled arbitration in Mexico. The buyer's parent company, and other affiliated companies, after unsuccessfully seeking to stay the action pending the outcome of the Mexican arbitration, sought to compel arbitration in California. Should the seller be required to arbitrate with parties to the litigation who were not also parties to the arbitration agreement? Yes. The claims were so inextricably interwoven that any other result would render arbitration between only the signatories meaningless [Metalclad Corp. v. Ventana Environmental Organizational Partnership (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1705, 1713-1719, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 328] .

If the contracts involve interstate commerce, federal arbitration law will govern the determination of whether equitable estoppel applies [Turtle Ridge Media Group, Inc. v. Pacific Bell Directory (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 828, 832-833, 835, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 817] . Under federal arbitration law, detrimental reliance is not required to invoke the doctrine of equitable estoppel. It is enough that the claims against the nonsignatory are based on and intertwined with a contract containing an arbitration clause [Turtle Ridge Media Group, Inc. v. Pacific Bell Directory (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 828, 835-836, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 817] .

Likewise, a nonsignatory may not compel another nonsigantory to arbitrate a claim that was not intertwined with the contract providing for arbitration [see Mundi v. Union Security Life Ins. Co. (2009) 555 F.3d 1042, 1046-1047 (defendant-insurer could not use equitable estoppel to compel plaintiff in survivor's action to arbitrate survivorship claim arising from insurer's policy on decedent's life on the basis of an arbitration clause in a loan agreement between the decedent and a creditor to whom the life insurance benefits were to be paid); Goldman v. KPMG LLP (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 209, 221, 92 CR3d 534 (investors claims against law and accounting firms were not intimately founded in and intertwined with the underlying operating contract obligations)].

[6] Employee Benefits

Employees who enroll in medical plans negotiated by their agent or representative are bound by an arbitration clause in the agreement [Madden v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 699, 705-706, 131 Cal. Rptr. 882, 552 P.2d 1178 (state employees bound by clause in medical plan negotiated by Board of Administration of State Employee's Retirement System)]. The party negotiating for the employees acts as their agent, and agreeing to an arbitration clause is within the scope of the agent's implied authority [Madden v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 699, 705-706, 131 Cal. Rptr. 882, 552 P.2d 1178] .

[7] Agreement to Arbitrate as Waiver of Trial by Jury

An agreement to arbitrate operates as a waiver of the right to a jury trial. The right to a jury trial in California courts is secured by Cal. Const., art. I, § 16 [for discussion the right to a jury trial, see Ch. 322, Juries and Jury Selection]. Jury trial in a civil cause may be waived by the consent of the parties expressed as prescribed by statute [Cal. Const., art. I, § 16]. The statute that prescribes the procedure for waiving jury trial is Code Civ. Proc. § 631. Section 631, however, only applies to waiver by a party to a pending action. It does not prevent parties from avoiding jury trial by agreeing to a method of resolving a controversy, such as arbitration, that does not invoke a judicial forum [Madden v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 699, 713, 131 Cal. Rptr. 882, 552 P.2d 1178] .

An arbitration agreement need not expressly waive the parties' constitutional right to jury trial in order to be valid. When parties agree to submit their disputes to arbitration they select a forum that is alternative to, and independent of, the judicial; a forum in which, as they well know, disputes are not resolved by juries [Madden v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 699, 713-714, 131 Cal. Rptr. 882, 552 P.2d 1178 ; Powers v. Dickson, Carlson & Campillo (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1102, 1109 , 63 Cal. Rtpr. 2d 261]. It is not unconstitutional for the California Department of Managed Health Care to approve health care service plans in which the only method for resolution of disputes is mandatory arbitration. An employee presented with the option of enrolling in a plan that requires arbitration of disputes has a choice: to enroll in the plan and give up a right to jury trial, or to decline to enroll and forego coverage under the plan [Viola v. Department of Managed Health Care (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 299, 310-312, 314, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 626] . Similarly, neither California law nor public policy is offended by requiring an employee to waive his or her right to a jury trial as a condition of employment [Lagatree v. Luce, Howard, Hamilton & Scripps (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1105, 1127-1128, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 664] . The compulsory nature of such a predispute arbitration agreement does not render the agreement unenforceable on the grounds of coercion or for lack of voluntariness [Lagatree v. Luce, Howard, Hamilton & Scripps (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1105, 1130, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 664] . Thus, a predispute arbitration agreement does not raise any constitutional issue involving waiver of jury trial [City of Vista v. Sutro & Co. (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 401, 407, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 488] .

When the requirement to arbitrate is based on statute, such as Civil Code § 2860(c) (arbitration of disputes involving the amount of attorney's fees of independent counsel retained by an insured but to be paid by an insurer, i.e., Cumis counsel fees), the statute may be construed to avoid requiring arbitration of claims to which the right to a jury trial applies [see Fireman's Fund Ins. Companies v. Younesi (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 451, 458-459, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671 (fraud claim not subject to arbitration under section 2860(c))].

[8] Compliance With Consumer Protection Statute

Because the right to a judicial forum is a substantial right and not lightly to be deemed waived, the California Legislature has imposed mandatory disclosure requirements for arbitration provisions in various types of contracts [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 7191 (contract for work on residential property of one to four units); Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 (contract for medical services requiring arbitration of professional negligence claims); Code Civ. Proc. § 1298 (purchase and sale of real estate); Health & Safety Code § 1363.1 (arbitration provision in health care service plan); see discussion at Ch. 39, Tactics and New Developments in ADR, § 39.81)]. Most of these statutes require a specific type size, and/or capitalization and/or bold print so that the arbitration provision is clearly visible and the consumer is made aware of waiving the right to a jury trial by agreeing to arbitration. If the consumer protection statute only applies to arbitration contracts (as opposed to contracts in general) and if the dispute arises from a contract involving interstate commerce, it will be preempted by the Federal Arbitration Act [9 U.S.C. § 1; see Woolls v. Superior Court (Turner) (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 197, 211, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 426 ; see also discussion at § 32.24]. However, courts are reluctant to infer preemption; and the party claiming that the FAA preempts a particular state law has the burden of proving that the contract involves interstate commerce [Woolls v. Superior Court (Turner) (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 197, 211, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 426] . If the contract is not shown to involve interstate commerce and compliance with the statute is absent, arbitration cannot be ordered [Woolls v. Superior Court (Turner) (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 197, 206-207, 214-215, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 426] .

As a matter of statutory construction, although the word "may" is permissive, "may not" is prohibitory. Thus, a statute like Bus. & Prof. Code § 7191, which provides at subdivision (c) that a noncompliant arbitration clause "may not be enforceable against any person other than the licensee" leaves the court no discretion to enforce an arbitration provision that does not comply with the statute [Woolls v. Superior Court (Turner) (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 197, 208-210, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 426] . This is so even if the consumer is an attorney and knew perfectly well that he or she was waiving the right to a jury trial. Any other approach would involve the court in rewriting the statute and would result in additional litigation, with the parties contesting whether the consumer was aware of giving up the basic right to a court or jury trial, notwithstanding a contract's failure to comply with a mandatory notice provision as a condition to the enforceability of an agreement [Woolls v. Superior Court (Turner) (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 197, 214, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 426] .

A minor's statutory right to disaffirm a contract before majority or within a reasonable time thereafter includes contracts containing arbitration clauses. No special words are necessary to disaffirm the contract. Thus, a minor may avoid arbitration by disaffirming the agreement containing the arbitration clause [Fam. Code §§ 6700, 6710; Berg v. Traylor (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 809, 812, 816-820, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 140 (finding contract was not one for necessities within exception of Fam. Code § 6712)]. If a minor disaffirms the contract, even as late as beyond the deadline for moving to vacate the award, any award based on it will have to be vacated; and any judgment confirming the award, reversed [Berg v. Traylor (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 809, 820, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 140] .

If the minor does not disaffirm the contract containing the arbitration clause, a guardian at litem should be appointed to represent the minor in the arbitration, especially if the parent's interests are adverse to the minor's, for instance if the parent will be liable in the event of the minor's disaffirmance. Failure of the minor to be represented by a guardian at litem would be an independent ground for vacating any award and reversing any resultant judgment against the minor [Berg v. Traylor (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 809, 821-822, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 140] .

§ 32.22 Arbitration of Statutory Claims

[1] Arbitrability Presumed

Statutory claims may be the subject of an arbitration agreement enforceable under the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA), 9 U.S.C. § 1 et seq. Although all statutory claims may not be appropriate for arbitration, a party will be held to an arbitration clause unless Congress has evinced an intention to preclude a waiver of judicial remedies for the statutory rights at issue. The burden is on the party seeking to avoid arbitration to show that Congress did intend to preclude waiver of a judicial forum for the statutory claims [Gilmer v. Interstate/Johnson Lane Corp. (1991) 500 U.S. 20, 26, 111 S. Ct. 1647, 114 L. Ed. 2d 26] .

[2] Statutory Claims Held Arbitrable

[a] Statutes Listed

Statutory claims that may be subject to arbitration include claims under the following laws:

- Age Discrimination in Employment Act (29 U.S.C. § 621 et seq.) [Gilmer v. Interstate/Johnson Lane Corp. (1991) 500 U.S. 20, 111 S. Ct. 1647, 114 L. Ed. 2d 26, 37] .

- Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and 1991 (42 U.S.C. §§ 1982, 2000e et seq.): the Ninth Circuit reversed itself, overruling Duffield v. Robertson Stephens & Co. (9th Cir. 1998) 144 F.3d 1182 , cert. denied, 142 L. Ed.2d 399 , and holding that Title VII claims can be arbitrated, and further, that employers can require employees and applicants to agree to arbitrate Title VII claims as a condition of their employment [EEOC v. Luce, Forward, Hamilton & Scripps (9th Cir. 2003) 345 F.3d 742, 752-754 (rehearing en banc); see also [4], below. Luce Forward did not address the "knowing waiver" issue].

- California Franchise Investment Law (Corp. Code § 31000 et seq.) [Southland Corp. v. Keating (1984) 465 U.S. 1, 10-16, 104 S. Ct. 852, 79 L. Ed. 2d 1 (preempting Corp. Code § 31512)].

- Cartwright Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 16700 et seq.) [Wolitarsky v. Blue Cross of California (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 338, 345, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 629 ; Crown Homes, Inc. v. Landes (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1273, 1276, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 827] .

- Consumer Legal Remedies Act (Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.) claims for damages, at least to the extent those claims are governed by the Federal Arbitration Act, but not claims for injunctive relief in which the plaintiff is acting as private attorney general, for example, a claim seeking to enjoin deceptive business practices [Cruz v. PacifiCare Health Sys. (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 303, 315-316, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 58, 66 P.3d 1157 ; Broughton v. Cigna Healthplans of California (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1066, 1072, 1079-1080, 1088, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334, 988 P.2d 67 (remanding for determination regarding existence of arbitration agreement and applicability of FAA); but see dissenting opinion with respect to nonarbitrability of claim for injunctive relief; Lee v. Southern California Univ. for Professional Studies (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 782, 787-788, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 134] . Arbitrable damage claims include so-called equitable claims for restitution and/or disgorgement, as well as common law claims for unjust enrichment, whether sought in an individual action or a class action [Cruz v. PacifiCare Health Sys. (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 303, 309-311, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 58, 66 P.3d 1157] .

- Fair Employment and Housing Act (Gov. Code § 12900 et seq.), as long as the arbitration procedures allow the plaintiff to vindicate his or her statutory rights, as discussed below [Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Services, Inc. (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 83, 93-96, 102-113, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745, 6 P.3d 669 (finding Duffield v. Robertson Stephens & Co. (9th Cir. 1998) 144 F.3d 1182 , cert. denied, 142 L. Ed. 2d 399 , unpersuasive and refusing to follow it); but see Circuit City Stores, Inc. v. Najd (9th Cir. 2002) 294 F.3d 1104, 1108 ; Circuit City Stores, Inc. v. Ahmed (9th Cir. 2002) 283 F.3d 1198, 1200 (ordering arbitration of FEHA clams under agreement found not unconscionable because employees in both cases had right to opt out of arbitration program, without considering Armendariz criteria for vindicating statutory claims)]. Armendariz was decided August 24, 2000, and has been held retroactive [Blake v. Ecker (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 728, 733, 741, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 422] .

- False Advertising Law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq.] claims for damages, including so-called equitable claims for restitution and/or disgorgement, as well as common law claims for unjust enrichment, are arbitrable, whether sought in an in individual action or in a class action. However, related claims for public injunctive relief, such as a claim by a plaintiff acting as private attorney general seeking to enjoin deceptive advertising practices, must be tried by a court [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535; Cruz v. PacifiCare Health Sys. (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 303, 315-316, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 58, 66 P.3d 1157] . When the same cause of action asserts both arbitrable claims for damages and inarbitrable claims for public injunction, the court has discretion to sever the claims and stay action on the injunctive relief until resolution of arbitration on damages claims [Cruz v. PacifiCare Health Sys. (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 303, 320, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 58, 66 P.3d 1157] .

- False Claims Act (Gov. Code § 12650 et seq.), despite the fact that Gov. Code, §§ 12651, 12652 refer to "a civil action" to recover penalties and damages and to assessments and findings by "the court." Arbitrator may award statutory penalties as a form of compensation if those penalties bear a rational relationship to the contract and the breach [County of Solano v. Lionsgate Corporation (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 741, 745, 747-749, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 362 (court did not consider whether purely punitive assessment of monetary penalties would be arbitrable)]. Although False Claims Act penalties do serve a public purpose by deterring false claims by public works contractors, that public purpose may be merely incidental to the primary benefit of compensating the public entity for the expenses associated with the false claims. Thus, if the public entity's claims implicate no broad public remedy, there is no institutional advantage in a judicial forum that might preclude arbitration of False Claims Act charges [County of Solano v. Lionsgate Corporation (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 741, 749, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 362] .

- Federal Labor Standards Act (29 U.S.C. § 201 et seq.) [Kuehner v. Dickinson & Co. (9th Cir. 1996) 84 F.3d 316, 319-320] .

- Wage disputes under contracts involving interstate commerce [Perry v. Thomas (1987) 482 U.S. 483, 491 492, 107 S. Ct. 2520, 96 L. Ed. 2d 426 ; Giuliano v. Inland Empire Personnel, Inc. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 1276, 1284-1288, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 5 (preempting Lab. Code § 229)].

- Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act [18 U.S.C. § 1961 et seq.] claims are arbitrable, even under an agreement that could be construed to limit the arbitrator's authority to award damages under that statute. The four agreements involved prohibited award of punitive, exemplary, or "extra-contractual" damages, but the Supreme Court concluded that neither precedents nor the ambiguous terms of the contracts made it clear how the arbitrator would construe the remedial limitations. Thus, the proper course was to compel arbitration [PacifiCare Health Sys. v. Book (2003) 538 U.S. 401, 123 S. Ct. 1531, 155 L. Ed. 2d 578 ; see 18 U.S.C. § 1964(c) (authorizing treble damages)].

- Sherman Act (15 U.S.C. § 1 et seq.) [Mitsubishi Motors v. Soler Chrysler-Plymouth (1985) 473 U.S. 614, 624-626, 105 S. Ct. 3346, 87 L. Ed. 2d 444] .

- Unfair Trade Practices Act [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17000 et seq.] and Unfair Competition Act [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200, 17203] damage claims are arbitrable [Coast Plaza Doctors Hospital v. Blue Cross of California (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 677, 691-692, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 809] . In the case of claims under the Unfair Competition Law, arbitrable damage claims include so-called equitable claims for restitution and/or disgorgement, as well as common law claims for unjust enrichment, whether sought in an individual action or a class action [Cruz v. PacifiCare Health Sys. (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 303, 309-311, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 58, 66 P.3d 1157] . However, related claims for public injunctive relief, such as a claim by a plaintiff acting as private attorney general seeking to enjoin unfair business practices, must be tried to a court [Cruz v. PacifiCare Health Sys. (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 303, 315-316, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 58, 66 P.3d 1157 ; Coast Plaza Doctors Hospital v. Blue Cross of California (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 677, 691-692, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 809 ; but see Arriaga v. Cross Country Bank (S.D. Cal. 2001) 163 F. Supp. 2d 1189, 1199-1200 (public injunctive relief under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 is arbitrable in case subject to Federal Arbitration Act)]. When the same cause of action asserts both arbitrable claims for damages and inarbitrable claims for public injunction, the court has discretion to sever the claims, and stay action on the injunctive relief until resolution of arbitration on damages claims [Cruz v. PacifiCare Health Sys. (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 303, 320, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 58, 66 P.3d 1157 ; Lee v. Southern California Univ. for Professional Studies (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 782, 787-788, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 809 (held injunctive relief claims and discovery thereon must be stayed)].

- Unruh Civil Rights Act (Civ. Code § 51 et seq.) [Wolitarsky v. Blue Cross of California (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 338, 345-348, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 629] .

[b] Minimum Requirements for Arbitration of Unwaivable Rights

In the context of statutory claims under the Fair Employment and Housing Act (Gov. Code § 12900 et seq.), it has been held that the minimum requirements of an arbitration procedure necessary for the plaintiff to vindicate his or her statutory rights are the following [Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Services, Inc. (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 83, 103-113, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745, 6 P.3d 669 ; see also Blake v. Ecker (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 728, 733, 741, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 422 (holding Armendariz retroactive); Mercuro v. Superior Court (Countrywide Securities Corp.) (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 167, 180, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671 (holding Armendariz's five essentials applicable to claims under Lab. Code §§ 230.8 and 970)]:

- Neutrality of the arbitrator,
- The provision of adequate discovery,
- No limitation on the authority of the arbitrator to award all types of relief authorized by the statute, injunctive relief, punitive damages, attorney's fees,
- A written decision that will permit a limited form of judicial review,
- Limitations on the costs of arbitration.

Both the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE) Arbitration Rules and the National Association of Securities Dealers (NASD) Code of Arbitration Procedure have been held be meet the Armendariz criteria, except their costs provisions, which could be severed [McManus v. CIBC World Markets Corp. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 76, 92-102, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 446] .

These minimum requirements have been held to apply not only to statutory claims, but also to unwaivable common law claims, such as so-called Tameny claims. Thus, an employee who is required by agreement to arbitrate a claim against his or her employer that he or she was demoted or terminated for a reason contrary to public policy is entitled to have that arbitration conducted in accordance with the minimum requirements set forth in Armendariz, including the requirement that the employer bear all costs unique to the arbitral forum [Little v. Auto Stiegler, Inc. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1064, 1086, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 892, 63 P.3d 979 ; see Tameny v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 167, 178, 164 Cal. Rptr. 839, 610 P.2d 1330 (establishing cause of action for termination of employment for reason that is contrary to public policy); Abramson v. Juniper Networks, Inc. (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 638, 660-661 (holding Little retroactive)]. The Armendariz minimum requirements have also been held applicable to claims under Lab. Code § 970 (employee fraudulently induced to move to accept employment) [Fittante v. Palm Springs Motors, Inc. (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 708, 719-720, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 659] . The franchise context has been held similar enough to mandatory employee/employer arbitration that these principles apply to franchisees' claims under the California Franchise Investment Law (Corp. Code § 31000 et seq.), the Cartwright Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 16700 et seq.), the Uniform Trade Secrets Act (Civ. Code § 3426 et seq.), and the Unfair Competition Law (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq.) [Independent Assn. of Mailbox Center Owners, Inc. v. Superior Court (Mail Boxes Etc., USA, Inc.) (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 396, 412-413, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 659 (only fee shifting was at issue)]. The rationale is that a right or cause of action created for a public purpose cannot, by private agreement, be waived, contravened, burdened, or subjected to procedural shortcomings that would preclude its vindication [Little v. Auto Stiegler, Inc. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1064, 1085-1086, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 892, 63 P.3d 979 ; Fittante v. Palm Springs Motors, Inc. (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 708, 717-718 Cal. Rptr. 2d 659]. Moreover, the Armendariz requirements are applications of general state law contract principles regarding the unwaivability of public rights to the context of arbitration, and thus, are not preempted by the Federal Arbitration Act [Little v. Auto Stiegler, Inc. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1064, 1090-1092, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 892, 63 P.3d 979] . These criteria have not been extended to apply to insurance policies [see Boghos v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 495, 501-506, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 787, 115 P.3d 68 (only challenge was made to provision that insured share arbitration costs; on remand, court to consider whether cost sharing is unconscionable); see also [3], below]. Nor have the Armendariz criteria been held to apply to a "wage claim" under Lab. Code § 229 when that claim was a contract claim for a multimillion-dollar bonus and severance payment, rather than the ordinary statutory claim for overtime or minimum wage payments [see Giuliano v. Inland Empire Personnel, Inc. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 1276, 1289-1291, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 5 (thus not finding agreement unconscionable because it did not provide for discovery, require a written arbitration award, or require the employer to pay fees and costs unique to arbitration)].

As to discovery, a written decision, and limitations on costs, if the arbitration agreement at issue does not provide for them, but arbitration of the unwaivable statutory or other claim is within its scope, the agreement may be interpreted to impliedly provide for:

- Sufficient discovery to adequately arbitrate the statutory claim, including access to essential documents and witnesses, as determined by the arbitrator(s) and subject to limited judicial review pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2 [Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Services, Inc. (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 83, 106, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745, 6 P.3d 669 ; but see Fitz v. NCR Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 702, 726-727, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88 (discussed at [c], below, when agreement for adequate discovery will not be implied)];

- That the arbitrator must issue a written arbitration decision that will reveal, however briefly, the essential findings and conclusions on which the award is based [Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Services, Inc. (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 83, 107, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745, 6 P.3d 669 ; cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.4 (written findings and conclusions are not required); Fittante v. Palm Springs Motors, Inc. (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 708, 722, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 659 (by virtue of incorporating Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.4, arbitration agreement required sufficient written award)];

- The employer to pay all types of costs that are unique to arbitration, specifically the "forum costs," such as the arbitrator's fees, the administrative fee, any filing fee, room rental, and court reporter's fees [Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Services, Inc. (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 83, 113, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745, 6 P.3d 669 ; see Little v. Auto Stiegler, Inc. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1064, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 892, 63 P.3d 979 (as discussed below, this requirement does not contravene federal law)]. This type of implied agreement is acceptable if the arbitration provision is silent as to arbitral-forum costs, but an explicit cost-sharing provision does not permit such an inference and cannot be enforced [Abramson v. Juniper Networks, Inc. (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 638, 661, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 422] , even if the employer later offers to pay all forum costs [Martinez v. Master Protection Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 107, 116-117, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663 ; see § 32.21[3][d], above]; and

- Severance of a provision requiring the consumer to pay an unaffordable fee to initiate the arbitration process in a consumer arbitration (as opposed to employer/employee arbitration); also, there is an implied agreement, in the absence of express language to the contrary, that unaffordable fees are not to be imposed at the time of the award. The determination of what is affordable must be made on a case-by-case basis, with the consumer bearing the burden of proof as to what he or she cannot afford [Gutierrez v. Autowest (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 77, 83, 92-93, 96-99, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 267 (unwaivable statutory rights based on claims under Consumer Legal Remedies Act [Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.] and Vehicle Leasing Act [Civ. Code § 2987.5 et seq.)].

Under the Federal Arbitration Act, the fact that an agreement is silent as to who bears the costs of arbitration is not in itself enough to establish that the party seeking to invalidate the arbitration agreement will be burdened with prohibitive costs that prevent him or her from vindicating his or her statutory rights. The party resisting arbitration has the burden of showing the likelihood of incurring prohibitive costs [see Green Tree Financial Corp. v. Randolph (2000) 531 U.S. 79, 121 S. Ct. 513, 148 L. Ed. 2d 373, 382-383 (Court did not discuss what showing would be sufficient)]. The Armendariz requirement that the party imposing the arbitration agreement bear all costs unique to arbitration was challenged on the basis of Green Tree. A majority of the California Supreme Court found that the FAA does not require state courts to adopt precisely the same means as federal courts to ensure that the vindication of public rights will not be stymied by burdensome arbitration costs, and continued to believe that Armendariz represents the soundest approach to the problem of arbitration costs in the context of mandatory employment arbitration. The Court noted that it had considered a case-by-case approach to cost shifting in Armendariz and rejected that approach because the individualized consideration of an employee's ability to pay arbitration costs would further complicate the case-by-case calculation of prohibitive expense [Little v. Auto Stiegler, Inc. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1064, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 892, 63 P.3d 979 ; accord Independent Assn. of Mailbox Center Owners, Inc. v. Superior Court (Mail Boxes Etc., USA, Inc.) (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 396 , (returning matter to superior court for determination of what fee allocation, if any, had to be made for franchisees to go forward in arbitration to vindicate unwaivable statutory claims that affect public interest as apposed to those that were only personal to franchisees)]. However, as noted in the last item listed, above, in consumer arbitration, one court has refused to apply Armendariz and required evaluation of affordability on a case-by-case basis [Gutierrez v. Autowest (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 77, 83, 92-93, 96-99, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 267] .

For complete discussion of awards of arbitral costs and attorney's fees, see Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding, § 33.29.

[c] Examples of Agreements Held Not To Meet Minimum Standards

As discussed at [b], above, the court cannot imply an agreement that the employer pay all arbitral forum costs in the face of an express provision to the contrary. Thus, an agreement explicitly imposing arbitral forum costs on the employee is unenforceable [Abramson v. Juniper Networks, Inc. (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 638, 661, 668] . Similarly, an agreement that explicitly limits the non-drafting party's discovery so that it inadequately provides an opportunity to vindicate unwaivable rights cannot be corrected by impliedly imposing other discovery rights and is therefore unenforceable [Fitz v. NCR Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 702, 717-721, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Discovery Inadequate to Allow Fair Presentation of Discrimination Claim. A former employee sued the former employer, including a claim for damages for age discrimination in violation of the Fair Housing and Employment Act (FEHA; Gov. Code § 12940). Defendant moved to compel arbitration in accordance with its dispute resolution policy. The motion was denied, primarily because the policy did not allow for adequate discovery. The defendant's dispute resolution policy limited discovery to the sworn depositions of two individuals and any expert witnesses expected to testify at the hearing. It also required all exhibits and a list of potential witnesses to be exchanged at least two weeks before the arbitration hearing. The arbitrator could allow additional discovery upon a showing that otherwise a fair hearing would be impossible. The policy also incorporated the American Arbitration Association's ("AAA") National Rules for the Resolution of Employment Disputes, one of which provides that if a party establishes any adverse material inconsistencies between the arbitration agreement and the AAA rules, the arbitrator is to apply the AAA rules. Another AAA rule allows whatever discovery the arbitrator considers necessary to a full and fair exploration of the issues in dispute.

Was discovery adequate to compel arbitration under this policy? Under the AAA rules? No to both: In view of plaintiff's estimated need to depose eight to ten witnesses, discovery under defendant's policy was not adequate. The court said that it would be an unusual instance of employment discrimination in which the depositions of two witnesses would be sufficient to present a case [Fitz v. NCR Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 702, 717, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88] . Further, the discovery limitation did not have mutual effect--defendant employer was already in possession of many of the documents relevant to an employment discrimination case, and it employed many of the relevant witnesses [Fitz v. NCR Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 702, 716, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88] . The burden to establish the need for more than two depositions was so high--and the rights to initial discovery so low--that employees could find themselves in the position of being unable to gain access to enough information to prove their claims or to demonstrate to the arbitrator the need for more discovery. But because there was already an express agreement to the contrary, the court could not imply an agreement to allow sufficient discovery [Fitz v. NCR Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 702, 718, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88] . Incorporating the AAA rules created a potential for preliminary legal battles over which rules applied and the risk of disparate enforcement of the rules. The court would not allow incorporation of the AAA rules to cure the defect inserted by the defendant [Fitz v. NCR Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 702, 720-721, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88] .

[3] Waiver of Statutory Rights in Arbitration Clause

Despite the general presumption in favor of upholding agreements to submit statutory claims to arbitration, an arbitration clause may not be used by a party with dominant economic power to force another party to surrender statutorily-mandated rights and benefits [Graham Oil v. Arco Products Co. (9th Cir. 1994) 43 F.3d 1244, 1247] . If the arbitration procedure does not allow the plaintiff to vindicate his or her statutory rights, the arbitration clause cannot be enforced [Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Services, Inc. (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 83, 101, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745, 6 P.3d 669] . For example, an arbitration clause under which a franchisee waived its rights to exemplary damages, recovery of attorney's fees, and a one-year statute of limitations under the Petroleum Marketing Practices Act (PMPA) has been held to contravene the PMPA [Graham Oil v. Arco Products Co. (9th Cir. 1994) 43 F.3d 1244, 1247-1248] .

If an arbitration clause contains invalid provisions of this nature, the court must determine whether the clause is severable from the contract, and applying the same principles, whether the invalid parts of the clause are severable from the remainder of the arbitration clause [see Graham Oil v. Arco Products Co. (9th Cir. 1994) 43 F.3d 1244, 1248-1249 (striking the entire arbitration clause)]. In a mandate proceeding involving franchise agreements, under which franchisees asserted claims under the California Franchise Investment Law (Corp. Code § 31000 et seq.), the Cartwright Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 16700 et seq.), the Uniform Trade Secrets Act (Civ. Code § 3426 et seq.), and the Unfair Competition Law (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq.) and challenged provisions in the arbitration agreements that prohibited recovery of exemplary damages, attorney's fees or costs, consequential or incidental damages, lost wages or profits, or any damages in excess of their franchise fee and the costs of building out their premises, the court of appeal declined to consider whether it should strike those limitations, finding that under the rules of the American Arbitration Association, the matter could be left to the arbitrators who would have authority to make contract interpretations and to grant any remedy or relief the arbitrator deemed just and equitable. Nevertheless, to the extent the arbitration clauses deprived the franchisees of statutorily authorized remedies, or relief that a court would otherwise be able to grant them, the limitations were unconscionable and the trial court was directed to strike them [Independent Assn. of Mailbox Center Owners, Inc. v. Superior Court (Mail Boxes Etc., USA, Inc.) (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 396 .

[4] Statutory Claims Requiring Knowing Waiver of Right to Trial

Some statutes evidence a Congressional or Legislative intent to require a knowing waiver of statutory remedies in favor of arbitration. Two statutes that have been held to require a knowing waiver of the right to trial of claims under them are:

- Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (42 U.S.C. § 2000e et seq. [Renteria v. Prudential Ins. Co. of America (9th Cir. 1997) 113 F.3d 1104, 1108 ; Prudential Ins. Co. of America v. Lai (9th Cir. 1994) 42 F.3d 1299, 1304-1305 , cert. denied, 516 U.S. 812 (1995) (sexual harassment and sexual discrimination claims); see Doyle v. Raley's Inc. (9th Cir. 1998) 158 F.3d 1012, 1015 (gathering cases and noting circuit split)]. Prudential Ins. Co. of America v. Lai (9th Cir. 1994) 42 F.3d 1299 , restated in Renteria v. Prudential Ins. Co. of America (9th Cir. 1997) 113 F.3d 1104 , and relied on in Nelson v. Cyprus Bagdad Copper Corp. (9th Cir. 1997) 119 F.3d 756 below, has been extensively criticized as being against the weight of authority [see, e.g., Maye v. Smith Barney, Inc. (S.D.N.Y. 1995) 897 F. Supp. 100, 107 ; Cione v. Foresters Equity Services, Inc. (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 625, 641, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d

167 ; Brookwood v. Bank of America (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1667, 1673 n.5, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 515] , and may have been impliedly held unpersuasive and not to be followed in California by the California Supreme Court in Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Services, Inc. (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 83, 99 n.7, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745, 6 P.3d 669 , discussed at § 20.23[3][a]. Armendariz established minimum procedural safeguards for arbitration of claims under California's Fair Employment and Housing Act (Gov. Code § 12900 et seq.). The Armendariz court declined to decide the knowing waiver issue. The arbitration clause at issue was fairly specific and referred to any termination of employment which employee contended was "wrongful or otherwise in violation of the conditions of employment or was in violation of any express or implied condition, term or covenant of employment, whether founded in fact or in law, including but not limited to the covenant of good faith and fair dealing, or otherwise in violation of any of my rights."

- The Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. §§ 12101-12213) [Kummetz v. Tech Mold, Inc. (9th Cir. 1998) 152 F.3d 1153, 1155-1156 ; Nelson v. Cyprus Bagdad Copper Corp. (9th Cir. 1997) 119 F.3d 756, 761, 763] .

With this type of statute, the arbitration agreement must specifically refer to the type of statutory claim to be arbitrated in order for there to be knowing waiver of the right to trial [Kummetz v. Tech Mold, Inc. (9th Cir. 1998) 152 F.3d 1153, 1155-1156 ; Nelson v. Cyprus Bagdad Copper Corp. (9th Cir. 1997) 119 F.3d 756, 762 ; Prudential Ins. Co. of America v. Lai (9th Cir. 1994) 42 F.3d 1299, 1304-1305] . In interpreting an arbitration provision in a collective bargaining agreement, the Supreme Court found the language not "clear and unmistakable" enough to waive an employee's right to a judicial forum for determination of an ADA claim [Wright v. Univ. Maritime Serv. Corp. (1998) 525 U.S. 70, 82, 119 S. Ct. 391, 142 L. Ed. 2d 361] . Similarly, California courts of appeal have held that a union may not prospectively waive an employee's right to a judicial forum for his or her statutory discrimination or state claims by agreeing to arbitration in a collective bargaining agreement [Deschene v. Pinole Point Steel Company (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 33, 48-49, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 15 (termination against public policy and discrimination on basis of health); Torrez v. Consolidated Freightways, Corp. (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 1247, 1259, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 792 (FEHA)] , at least not unless the waiver language is clear and unmistakable [see Vasquez v. Superior Court (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 430, 435-436, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 294 (agreement did not specifically refer to ADA or FEHA)].

Even if an employee has entered into an arbitration agreement, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission is not bound by it when enforcing the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) provisions on discrimination, which incidentally, adopt those of Title VII [see 42 U.S.C. §§ 2000e4, 2000e-5, 2000e-6, 2000e-8, 2000e-9 (Title VII), 12117(a) (ADA); EEOC v. Waffle House, Inc. (2002) 534 U.S. 279, 291-292, 306, 122 S. Ct. 754, 151 L. Ed. 2d 755] . If the employee files a complaint with the EEOC, rather than pursuing arbitration, and the EEOC brings an enforcement action, arbitration cannot be compelled against the EEOC, because it was not a party to the agreement; and the Federal Arbitration Act does not prohibit the EEOC from recovering victim-specific relief such as back pay, reinstatement, compensatory damages, and punitive damages in that action [EEOC v. Waffle House, Inc. (2002) 534 U.S. 279, 306, 122 S. Ct. 754, 151 L. Ed. 2d 755] .

§ 32.23 Self-Executing Agreements

[1] Procedure When Agreement Is Self-Executing

Agreements to arbitrate ordinarily are not self-executing [Sauter v. Superior Court (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 25, 29, 82 Cal. Rptr. 395 ; see American Home Assurance Co. v. Benowitz (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 192, 198-199, 285 Cal. Rptr. 626 (Ins. Code § 11580.2(f) (uninsured motorist statute) provides for non-self-executing type of arbitration)]. However, the parties may, by specific terms, make the arbitration agreement self-executing. Thus, when they expressly agree that, in the event there is a dispute and either party refuses to arbitrate, after demand is made the other party may unilaterally select one arbitrator and proceed with the arbitration, such an agreement is self-executing and it is not necessary that the party seeking arbitration first resort to the court for an order to arbitrate [Brink v. Allegro Builders, Inc. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 577, 579-580, 25 Cal. Rptr. 556, 375 P.2d 436 ; see also Kustom Kraft Homes v. Leivenstein (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 805, 810-811, 92 Cal. Rptr. 650 ; Smith v. Campbell & Facciolla, Inc. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 134, 137, 20 Cal. Rptr. 606] .

This is consistent with Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(e), which provides that unless it is otherwise agreed by the parties, if a court has ordered a person to arbitrate a controversy, the arbitrators may hear and determine the controversy on the evidence produced notwithstanding the failure of a party ordered to arbitrate, who has been duly notified, to appear.

The party failing to select an arbitrator is still entitled to notice of the arbitration hearing and an opportunity to be heard [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a), (d), (e); see also Smith v. Campbell & Facciolla, Inc. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 134, 135, 137, 20 Cal. Rptr. 606 (notice of arbitration hearing and opportunity to be heard are required by the due process clause of the U.S. Const., amend. XIV)].

[2] Procedure for Objecting Party

When arbitration proceeds under a self-executing agreement without court order to arbitrate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2, the objecting party is required to participate in the proceeding and then raise its objections by petition to vacate the award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2 or by opposing the petition to confirm the award [National Marble Co. v. Bricklayers & Allied Craftsmen (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1057, 1064, 229 Cal. Rptr. 653] .

[1] Goals of Act

The goals and policies of the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA), 9 U.S.C. § 1 et seq., are expressed in its substantive provisions, 9 U.S.C. §§ 1, 2, which establish a federal policy favoring arbitration and enforcement of agreements to arbitrate. Those goals and policies do not require arbitration when the parties have not agreed to it, nor do they prevent parties who have agreed to arbitrate from excluding certain claims from the scope of their arbitration agreement or from specifying the rules under which their arbitration will be conducted [Volt Information Sciences v. Board of Trustees (1989) 489 U.S. 468, 478-479, 109 S. Ct. 1248, 103 L. Ed. 2d 488] .

The exclusion of Section 1 of the Federal Arbitration Act, 9 U.S.C. § 1, for "contracts of employment of seamen, railroad employees, or any other class of workers engaged in foreign or interstate commerce" is limited to contracts of transportation workers only. All other employment contracts "evidencing transactions involving commerce," 9 U.S.C. § 2, are governed by the FAA [Circuit City Stores, Inc. v. Adams (2001) 532 U.S. 105, 121 S. Ct. 1302, 149 L. Ed. 2d 234 (overruling Ninth Circuit minority position articulated in Craft v. Campbell Soup Co. (9th Cir. 1998) 177 F.3d 1083)]. An example of employment involving interstate commerce so as to render the FAA inapplicable is driving for a delivery service [see, e.g., Harden v. Roadway Packaging Sys. (9th Cir. 2001) 249 F.3d 1137, 1140-1142 (arbitration of former driver's wrongful termination claims could not be compelled under FAA)].

[2] Scope of Preemption

[a] Extends to Limits of Commerce Clause

The Federal Arbitration Act (FAA), 9 U.S.C. § 1 et seq., preempts state law that seeks to invalidate arbitration agreements [Allied-Bruce Terminix Cos., Inc. v. Dobson (1995) 513 U.S. 265, 115 S. Ct. 834, 130 L. Ed. 2d 753, 763 ; Southland Corp. v. Keating (1984) 465 U.S. 1, 15-16, 104 S. Ct. 852, 79 L. Ed. 2d 1] . In Allied-Bruce Terminix Cos., Inc. v. Dobson (1995) 513 U.S. 265, 277, 115 S. Ct. 834, 130 L. Ed. 2d 753, 763 , the Court held that the FAA reaches to the limits of Congress' Commerce Clause power and applies to actions brought in state court when the transaction involves interstate commerce in fact, whether or not the parties contemplated an interstate connection. In the case, arising out of the Alabama state court system, the contract at issue was a termite protection plan purchased from the local Alabama office of a multi-state company, which shipped treatment and repair material from out of state. The connection with interstate commerce was sufficient for the FAA to apply and to preempt application of an Alabama statute that made written predispute arbitration agreements invalid and unenforceable. The FAA encompasses a wider range of transactions than those actually "in commerce," that is, within the flow of interstate commerce. Therefore, it is not necessary to for any portion of the transaction to be attributable to interstate actions, or to originate out-of-state. Nor is the FAA inapplicable because the individual transactions, taken alone, did not have a "substantial effect on interstate commerce." It is enough that the aggregate economic activity in question represents a general practice subject to federal control. Commercial lending is an example of such a general practice that has broad impact on the national economy and is heavily regulated by Congress [Citizens Bank v. Alafabco, Inc. (2003) 539 U.S. 52, 123 S. Ct. 2037, 2040-2041, 156 L. Ed. 2d 46] .

Congress has not completely displaced state regulation of arbitration, but state law is preempted to the extent that it actually stands as an obstacle to the accomplishment and execution of the full purposes and objectives of Congress [Volt Information Sciences v. Board of Trustees (1989) 489 U.S. 468, 477, 109 S. Ct. 1248, 103 L. Ed. 2d 488] . Thus, the particular state law designated by the parties in their contract will not be preempted and will govern arbitration under the contract unless enforcement of the particular state provision would undermine the goals and policies of the FAA [Volt Information Sciences v. Board of Trustees (1989) 489 U.S. 468, 477-478, 109 S. Ct. 1248, 103 L. Ed. 2d 488 ; Garden Grove Community Church v. Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel Co. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 251, 262, 191 Cal. Rptr. 15] .

Arbitration clauses must be treated the same as any other contract clause under state law. States may regulate contracts, including arbitration clauses, under general contract law principles and they may invalidate an arbitration clause on such grounds as exist at law or in equity for the revocation of any contract (citing 9 U.S.C. § 2). However, states cannot decide that a contract is fair enough to enforce all its basic terms, such as price, service, and credit, but not fair enough to enforce its arbitration clause. The FAA makes such state policy unlawful because it would place arbitration clauses on an unequal footing from other contract provisions [Allied-Bruce Terminix Cos., Inc. v. Dobson (1995) 513 U.S. 265, 281, 115 S. Ct. 834, 130 L. Ed. 2d 753] .

[b] Substantive Versus Procedural Provisions

The substantive provisions of 9 U.S.C. §§ 1, 2 apply in state court proceedings, but the procedural terms of 9 U.S.C. §§ 3, 4 only apply, by their express terms, to proceedings in federal court [Cronus Investments, Inc. v. Concierge Services (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 376, 390, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 540, 107 P.3d 217 ; Rosenthal v. Great Western Fin. Securities Corp. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 394, 405, 407, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 875, 926 P.2d 1061 ; Strauch v. Eyring (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 181, 185, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 747] . Because the federal law does not govern procedure in state court, the state procedure may be followed as long as the state procedure does not defeat the rights granted by Congress [Cronus Investments, Inc. v. Concierge Services (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 376, 390, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 540, 107 P.3d 217 ; Rosenthal v. Great Western Fin. Securities Corp. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 394, 406-407, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 875, 926 P.2d 1061 ; see, e.g., Siegel v. Prudential Insurance Company (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1270, 1290-1291, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 (federal common law rule, derived from 9 U.S.C. §§ 10, 12, and allowing review of an arbitration award for "manifest disregard of the law" is only applicable in federal court)]. Nevertheless, a state statute that purports to vest exclusive jurisdiction in an administrative agency to determine the validity of a contract containing an arbitration clause and arguably regulated by that agency is preempted, even if it is procedural. The statute is preempted both because it imposes prerequisites to enforcement of an arbitration agreement that are not applicable to contracts generally and because initial reference of the dispute to the agency would hinder speedy resolution of the controversy, thus frustrating the FAA's prime objective that arbitration agreements allow parties to achieve streamlined proceedings and expeditious results it [see Preston v. Ferrer (2008) 552 U.S. 346, 128 S. Ct. 978, 169 L. Ed. 2d 917, 923, 927-929 (preempting Lab. Code §

California classwide arbitration is not preempted by the Federal Arbitration Act [Blue Cross of California v. Superior Court (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 42, 46, 65-66, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 779] . On the other hand, Civ. Code §§ 1781(a), 1783, parts of the California Legal Remedies Act that prohibit waiver of a consumer's right to bring class action lawsuits within three years are contrary to, and therefore preempted by, the FAA, and thus, would not prevent enforcement of an arbitration agreement that prohibits class actions and imposes a two-year limitation period [see Ting v. AT&T (9th Cir, 2003) 319 F. 3d 1126, 1148, 1150-1152 (despite preemption, class action prohibition was unconscionable and unenforceable under California doctrine of unconscionability)].

Although California procedure relating to the enforcement of arbitration agreements is substantially similar to federal law [Rosenthal v. Great Western Fin. Securities Corp. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 394, 406-407, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 875, 926 P.2d 1061 (comparing Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1281, 1281.2, 1281.3 with 9 U.S.C. §§ 2-4)], a major difference is that where 9 U.S.C. § 4 provides for a jury trial on the issue of whether an arbitration agreement exists, California law does not, providing in Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.2 for a summary determination in the manner provided for making and hearing motions [Rosenthal v. Great Western Fin. Securities Corp. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 394, 407, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 875, 926 P.2d 1061] . Because this procedure actually furthers rather than defeats the federal policy encouraging enforcement of arbitration clauses, it is not preempted, and because the California Constitution provides no right to jury trial on a petition to compel arbitration, a party opposing contractual arbitration of a dispute has no right to a jury trial of the existence or validity of an arbitration agreement [Rosenthal v. Great Western Fin. Securities Corp. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 394, 409-410, 411-413, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 875, 926 P.2d 1061 (disapproving cases to the contrary at page 407); Strauch v. Eyring (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 181, 185-186, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 747] .

Justice O'Connor, concurring in Allied-Bruce Terminix Cos., Inc. v. Dobson (1995) 513 U.S. 265, 115 S. Ct. 834, 130 L. Ed. 2d 753 , discussed in [a], above, found the decision troublesome because it would displace many state statutes calibrated to protect consumers by placing limited conditions on the enforceability of arbitration clauses. California has such statutes. For example, the case throws into question the enforceability of the Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 requirement that contracts for medical services that have arbitration clauses must use a particular clause in a particular place and include a warning about the arbitration clause in 10-point bold red type immediately before the signature line. Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(e) provides that if a medical services contract complies with these requirements, the contract is not a contract of adhesion, nor unconscionable, nor otherwise improper. Under Allied-Bruce Terminix Cos., Inc., if the contract affects interstate commerce, it is questionable whether an arbitration clause could be attacked for failure to comply with Section 1295 [see Allied-Bruce Terminix Cos., Inc. v. Dobson (1995) 513 U.S. 265, 115 S. Ct. 834, 130 L. Ed. 2d 753, 764-768] . In fact, Health & Safety Code § 1363.1, which requires various disclosures regarding arbitration by health care service plans, and specifies where in the contract those disclosures must be made, has been held preempted by the Federal Arbitration Act with respect to contracts involving interstate commerce [Erickson v. Aetna Health Plans of Cal. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 646, 652, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 76 (4th Dist., Div. 2)] . More recently, however, Health & Safety Code § 1363.1 has been held not preempted, on the ground that the McCarran-Ferguson Act [15 U.S.C., § 1012(b)] bars the FAA, as a federal statute of general application which does not "specifically relate" to insurance, from interfering with the operation of Health & Safety Code § 1363.1. As a result, the arbitration provisions of a health care plan's subscriber agreement may not be enforced if they fail to satisfy the specific and unambiguous disclosure requirements imposed by Section 1363.1 [Smith v. PacifiCare Behavioral Health Plan of California, Inc. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 139, 144,162, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 140 (2nd Dist., Div.3) (rev. den. S102718); accord Imbler v. PacifiCare of California, Inc. (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 567, 576-577, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 715 (Fourth Appellate District, Division Two) ; Pagarigan v. Superior Court (Aetna U.S. Healthcare of California, Inc.) (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 1121, 1134, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 124 (Second Appellate District, Division Seven)] .

The following statutes have been held preempted by the FAA:

- Code Civ. Proc. § 1298 (purchase and sale of real estate), which imposes format and initialing requirements on arbitration agreements that are not imposed on other agreements, is preempted if the matter involves interstate commerce. Failure of the arbitration agreement to conform to the preempted statute does not bar its enforcement [Hedges v. Carrigan (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 578, 587, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 787 ; see also Westra v. Marcus & Millichap Real Estate Investment Brokerage Co. (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 759, 764, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 752 (finding Code Civ. Proc. § 1298 preempted without discussion or evidence of interstate commerce involvement in transaction)].

- Code Civ. Proc. § 1298.7, which would otherwise allow a purchaser to pursue a court action against a developer for construction and design defects despite having signed an arbitration agreement, is preempted by the FAA. The purchaser would be compelled to arbitrate the construction or design defect claim [Shepard v. Edward Mackay Enterprises, Inc. (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 1092, 1095, 1100-1102, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 326 ; Basura v. U.S. Home Corp. (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1205, 1213-1214, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 328 ; see also discussion at § 32.21[8], above].

- Corp. Code § 31512 is preempted to the extent that it cannot be interpreted to require a judicial forum for resolution of claims under the Franchise Investment Law. Those claims can be arbitrated [Southland Corp. v. Keating (1984) 465 U.S. 1, 10-16, 104 S. Ct. 852] .

- Lab. Code § 1700.44(a), which purports to vest exclusive jurisdiction in the Labor Commissioner to determine application of the Talent Agency Act (TAA: Lab. Code § 1700 et seq.) is preempted by the Federal Arbitration Act. Thus, an arbitrator, not the Commissioner, should decide the legality of any contract arguably regulated by and voidable under the TAA [Preston v. Ferrer (2008) 552 U.S. 346, 128 S. Ct. 978, 169 L. Ed. 2d 917, 923, 927-929].

The determination of whether a specific California statute or policy is preempted by the FAA requires case by case analysis. For instance, the FAA does not provide for a stay of arbitration when third parties who have not agreed to arbitrate are necessary to the resolution of the dispute, but Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c) does. Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c) is not preempted by the FAA: first, because the FAA has no procedural provisions applicable in state court; second, because it is not a special rule limiting the authority of arbitrators. It is an evenhanded law designed to avoid conflicting rulings on common issue of fact and law among the interested parties. It allows the trial court to stay arbitration proceedings while the concurrent lawsuit proceeds, or to stay the lawsuit while arbitration proceeds [Volt Info. Scis., Inc. v. Board of Trustees (1989) 489 U.S. 468, 476-479, 109 S. Ct. 1248, 103 L. Ed. 2d 488 ; Cronus Invs., Inc. v. Concierge Servs. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 376, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 540, 107 P.3d 217 (disapproving The Energy Group, Inc. v. Liddington (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1520, 238 Cal. Rptr. 202 and Warren-Guthrie v. Health Net (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 804, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 260 to the extent their holdings are predicated on the conclusion that section 1281.2(c) limits the authority of arbitrators and conflicts with the FAA); see also Mount Diablo Med. Ctr. v. Health Net of Cal., Inc. (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 711, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 607 (Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2 applicable and not preempted); Henry v. Alcove Inv., Inc. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 94, 101-102, 284 Cal. Rptr. 255 (following Volt to affirm stay)]. Volt and Cronus both involved arbitration agreements with choice-of-law provisions to apply California law; however, unless some other law were specified as applicable, California law automatically would have applied. Hence, a choice of California law clause should not be necessary for Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c) to be part of the law under which a California court determines whether arbitration should be ordered.

Judicial refusal to enforce an arbitration clause clearly unconscionable under a general contract law principle not at all hostile to arbitration presents no obstacle to the objective of the FAA. The equitable doctrine of unconscionability set forth in Civ. Code § 1670.5, provides such grounds as exist at law or in equity for the revocation of any contract, within the meaning of 9 U.S.C. § 2, and is therefore not preempted by the FAA [Ting v. AT&T (9th Cir, 2003) 319 F. 3d 1126, 1150-1152 ; Stirlen v. Supercuts, Inc. (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1519, 1551-1552, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 138] . While the federal Ninth Circuit recently affirmed that stance in the context of a preemption challenge to a petition to compel arbitration in a class action [Laster v. AT&T Mobility LLC (2009) 584 F.3d 849, 856] , the decision, which only otherwise considers whether a class action waiver in the parties' agreement is unenforceable as unconscionable under California law, is currently under review by the United States Supreme Court as the result of a grant of certiorari [sub. nom., AT&T Mobility LLC v. Concepcion (May 24, 2010) -- U.S. --, -- S. Ct. --, 176 L. Ed. 2d 1218, 2010 U.S. LEXIS 4309 at 1] . Some cases have held or suggested that California adhesion contract principles do not apply to determine the enforceability of an arbitration clause in contract governed by the Federal Arbitration Act [Lewis v. Prudential-Bache Securities, Inc. (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 935, 940-941, 225 Cal. Rptr. 69 ; Chan v. Drexel Burnham Lambert, Inc. (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 632, 638-639, 223 Cal. Rptr. 838 ; see Thomas v. Perry (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 510, 513, 246 Cal. Rptr. 156] . These cases, however, have arisen in the area of securities law, which is heavily regulated by the federal government, or have involved a statute that applied specifically to arbitration agreements and reflected an antiarbitration policy [Stirlen v. Supercuts, Inc. (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1519, 1548-1550, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 138] . For discussion of unconscionability, see § 32.21[3].

For discussion of the California and federal rules regarding compelling or refusing to compel arbitration under a contract induced by fraud, see § 32.21[4]. For discussion of the California and federal rules regarding whether a nonsignatory may bind another to arbitration, see § 32.21[5].

§ 32.24A Preemption by Medicare Law or Regulations

Recently, it has been argued that Health & Safety Code § 1363.1 is preempted by Medicare law, with respect to certain health care plans, most notably those referred to in the Medicare law as Medicare+Choice plans [see 42 U.S.C. §§ 1395w-21 to w-28]. 42 U.S.C. § 1395w-26(b)(3)(B)(iii), which specifically preempts state law with regard to coverage determinations, is narrowly construed and only preempts procedures for or claims seeking payment or reimbursement for medical services. Other state law causes of action against an HMO arising out of its denial of services under a Medicare-subsidized health plan, such as state law tort claims or consumer protection statues, specifically Health & Safety Code § 1363.1, are not preempted [see Zolezzi v. PacifiCare of California (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 573, 576, 583-584, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 526 (causes of action for breaches of fiduciary duty and of duty of good faith and fair dealing; conspiracy to breach covenant of good faith and fair dealing; negligent and intentional interference with contractual relationship; intentional infliction of emotional distress; and unfair business practices in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 not preempted)].

Plan enrollment documents for Medicare+Choice plans, which are considered marketing materials in the context 42 U.S.C. § 1395w-26(b)(3)(B)(iv) and which include the enrollment form that Health & Safety Code § 1363.1 requires set forth the arbitration disclosure, must be approved by the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA). It is clear at least with respect to plan enrollment documents for Medicare+Choice plans submitted to the HCFA for approval before December 21, 2000, that Medicare law and regulations do not preempt Health and Safety Code Section 1363.1 [Pagarigan v. Superior Court (Aetna U.S. Healthcare of California, Inc.) (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 1121, 1134, 1147-1150, 1150 n.23, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 124] . Thus, an arbitration provision in such a plan will not be enforced unless it complies with Health & Safety Code § 1363.1.

42 U.S.C. § 1395w-26(b)(3)(B)(iv) was amended, effective December 21, 2000 [see Pub. L. No. 106-554, Dec. 21, 2000, 114 Stats. 2763, 2763A-560-561], to add Medicare plan marketing materials to the matters expressly preempting state laws, and to authorize regulations providing model language for marketing materials. That amendment was prospective only. 42 C.F.R. § 422.402, which provided that state law was not preempted unless it was inconsistent with the Medicare law, was changed in January, 2005, to provide that the Medicare regulations supersede any state law or regulation (other than state licensing laws or state laws relating to solvency) with respect to these plans. Whether Health & Safety Code § 1363.1 is preempted by Medicare law with respect to health care plan marketing materials submitted for HCFA approval after the 2000 amendment awaits decisions in cases involving actions occurring, or enrollment documents submitted for approval, after December 21, 2000.

[1] "Waiver" Defined

[a] Term Used to Refer to More Than One Concept

The term "waiver" refers to a number of different concepts. Generally, it denotes the voluntary relinquishment of a known right. But it can also mean the loss of an opportunity or a right as a result of a party's failure to perform an act it is required to perform, regardless of the party's intent to abandon or relinquish the right [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 982-983, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903 ; Platt Pacific, Inc. v. Andelson (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 307, 315, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 597, 862 P.2d 158 ; Aviation Data, Inc. v. American Express Travel Related Services Company, Inc. (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1522, 1537 n.10, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 396] . It is also used as a shorthand statement for the conclusion that a contractual right to arbitration has been lost [Platt Pacific, Inc. v. Andelson (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 307, 315-316, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 597, 862 P.2d 158] . For example, when a contract provides that arbitration may be demanded within a stated time, failure to make a demand within that time constitutes a waiver of the right to arbitrate, in the sense of a forfeiture of a right resulting from failure to perform a required act [Platt Pacific, Inc. v. Andelson (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 307, 315-316, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 597, 862 P.2d 158 ; see discussion in § 32.40, below].

Three separate issues that courts loosely refer to as "waiver" may be identified, as has been done in one case in the insurance context [Chase v. Blue Cross of California (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1142, 1149, 1151, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178] :

- Waiver, an intentional relinquishment of a known right, demonstrated explicitly or implicitly.
- Estoppel, conduct by the insurer that reasonably causes the insured to rely to his or her detriment.
- Forfeiture, the assessment of a penalty against the insurer for either misconduct or failure to perform an obligation under the contract.

[b] Issue of Waiver Is Preliminary Question for Court

Waiver of the right to compel arbitration is a preliminary question of fact that the trial court must decide in considering the petition to compel arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(a); Saint Agnes Med. Ctr. v. PacifiCare of Cal. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1187, 1196, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 517 ; Boys Club of San Fernando Valley, Inc. v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1266, 1274, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 587] , unless the matter is governed by the Federal Arbitration Act ("FAA"), there is no explicit choice of California law, and the waiver claim does not rest on litigation conduct. In that case, the arbitrator determines whether there has been a waiver [Howsam v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. (2002) 537 U.S. 79, 84, 123 S. Ct. 588, 154 L. Ed. 2d 491 ; Omar v. Ralphs Grocery Co. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 955, 962-965, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 562] . Even if the matter is governed by the FAA, a waiver claim that involves litigation conduct is to be determined by the court [see Omar v. Ralphs Grocery Co. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 955, 962-965, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 562 ; Thorup v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 228, 234, 225 Cal. Rptr. 521] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Under Federal Arbitration Act, Waiver Claim Involving Contract Interpretation Is To Be Determined by Arbitrator. In a case governed by the Federal Arbitration Act ("FAA"), plaintiff claimed defendant had waived the right to compel arbitration. There was litigation-based conduct alleged as the basis for the claimed waiver, but not in time to be considered by the court of appeal [Omar v. Ralphs Grocery Co. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 955, 964, n.1, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 562] . The bases for the claimed waiver that were properly before the court of appeal included defendant's (1) unreasonable delay in proceeding under its dispute resolution program, (2) failure to satisfy a condition precedent by refusing to engage in mediation, (3) failure to confirm whether it would pay all costs associated with an arbitration, and (4) failure to work with plaintiff to select an arbitrator. The agreement addressed each of those issues, providing that it was "aimed at resolving employment-related disputes quickly and fairly, that it did "not prevent Employees and Ralphs ... from agreeing voluntarily to submit such dispute(s) to mediation before beginning any arbitration proceedings," and that defendant would pay the arbitrator's and arbitration fees in all cases in which it was required by law to do so. The trial court denied the motion to compel arbitration, without specifying its reasons.

The court of appeal reversed and remanded, stating that on remand, if the trial court determined that a valid arbitration agreement existed which covered the parties' disputes, any issue of waiver of the right to compel arbitration was to be decided by the arbitrator and not the court. Was this correct? Yes; the matter was governed by the FAA and each of the waiver allegations involved contract interpretation and arbitration procedures. Thus, they were subject to determination by an arbitrator, not the court [Omar v. Ralphs Grocery Co. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 955, 964-965, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 562] .

On appeal, the question is whether there is substantial evidence to support the trial court's finding of waiver [Saint Agnes Med. Ctr. v. PacifiCare of Cal. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1187, 1196, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 517 ; Groom v. Health Net (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1189, 1198, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836] .

The burden of proving waiver is on the party resisting arbitration. The defense of waiver, like any other defense, must be proved by a preponderance of the evidence [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 984, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903 ; Rosenthal v. Great Western Financial Sec. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 394, 413, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 875, 926 P.2d 1061] .

It is ordinarily a question of fact whether there has been a waiver [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 983, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903 ; Platt Pacific, Inc. v. Andelson (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 307, 319, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 597, 862 P.2d 158 ; Sawday v. Vista Irrigation Dist. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 833, 836, 52 Cal. Rptr. 1, 415

P.2d 816 ; Guess?, Inc. v. Superior Court (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 553, 557, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 201] . However, if the facts are undisputed and only one inference may reasonably be drawn, the issue is one of law [Platt Pacific, Inc. v. Andelson (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 307, 319, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 597, 862 P.2d 158] .

[2] Express Waiver

A valid release in settlement of an arbitrable claim constitutes a waiver of the right to compel arbitration [Gustafson v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 361, 365, 107 Cal. Rptr. 243] . For discussion and forms of release generally, see Ch. 520, Settlement and Release, § 520.50 et seq.

[3] Implied Waiver

[a] Factors in Determining Implied Waiver

No single test delineates the nature of the conduct that will constitute waiver of arbitration [Saint Agnes Med. Ctr. v. PacifiCare of Cal. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1187, 1195, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 517 ; Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 983, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903 ; Sobremonte v. Superior Court (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 980, 992, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 43 ; see Berman v. Health Net (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 1363, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295 ; Davis v. Continental Airlines, Inc. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 205, 211, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79] .

Factors that will be considered in determining whether there has been an implied waiver include whether the party seeking arbitration has done any of the following [Saint Agnes Med. Ctr. v. PacifiCare of Cal. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1187, 1196, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 517 ; Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 983, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903 ; Christensen v. Dewor Developments (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 778, 782 al. Rptr. 8, 661 P.2d 1088 ; Sobremente v. Superior Court (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 980, 992, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 43 ; see Berman v. Health Net (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 1363, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295 ; Davis v. Continental Airlines, Inc. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 205, 211, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79] :

- Previously taken steps inconsistent with an intent to invoke arbitration.
- Unreasonably delayed seeking arbitration.
- Acted in bad faith or with willful misconduct.
- Invoked the litigation machinery so substantially that the parties were well into preparation of a lawsuit before the party notified the opposing party of an intent to arbitrate.
- Either requested arbitration enforcement close to the trial date or delayed for a long period before seeking a stay.
- Filed a counterclaim without asking for a stay of the proceedings.
- Taken important intervening steps, such as one party's taking advantage of judicial discovery procedures not available in arbitration.
- Delayed the demand for arbitration in a way that affected, misled, or prejudiced the opposing party.

The presence or absence of prejudice is also an important consideration, as is whether or not the party who brought the action was a party to the arbitration agreement acting in knowing disregard of the arbitration agreement's provisions [Christensen v. Dewor Developments (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 778, 782-783, 191 Cal. Rptr. 8, 661 P.2d 1088 ; see Simms v.

NPCK Enterprises, Inc. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 233, 235, 244-245, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 557 (filing lawsuit, seeking temporary restraining order to preserve status quo, did not amount to waiver because other party was not prejudiced); Berman v. Health Net (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 1363, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295 ; Boys Club of San Fernando Valley, Inc. v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1266, 1275-1276, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 587 (unexcused delay of three years as not waiver when no prejudice was caused to defendant by delay)].

[b] Waiver by Acts Inconsistent With Agreement to Arbitrate

[i] Waiver Implied From Inconsistent Acts

Waiver may be implied by acts that are inconsistent with the agreement to submit to arbitration [Palm Springs Homes, Inc. v. Western Desert, Inc. (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 270, 277, 30 Cal. Rptr. 34] .

One party to an arbitration agreement may, by dilatory tactics or express refusal to proceed, place himself or herself in such a position that the other party may accede to the implied desire of the former, acquiesce in the abandonment of arbitration, and resort to court action [Grunwald-Marx, Inc. v. Los Angeles Joint Board, Amalgamated Clothing Workers (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 268, 277, 280, 13 Cal. Rptr. 446] .

At a minimum, the failure to plead arbitration as an affirmative defense is an act inconsistent with the later assertion of a right to arbitrate [Guess?, Inc. v. Superior Court (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 553, 558, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 201] . Moving to stay the action while arbitration involving a party to the action is pending, especially while acknowledging in that motion that one is not a party to the arbitration agreement, is also wholly inconsistent with a desire to arbitrate [Guess?, Inc. v. Superior Court (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 553, 558, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 201] .

[ii] Waiver by Ignoring Demands for Arbitration

An arbitration clause may not be used as a valid objection to a party's right to sue on an arbitrable dispute when the defendant ignored the party's prior demands for arbitration [Grunwald-Marx, Inc. v. Los Angeles Joint Board, Amalgamated Clothing Workers (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 268, 280, 13 Cal. Rptr. 446] .

[iii] Waiver by Conducting Discovery

Discovery which prejudices the party resisting arbitration may justify a finding of waiver of the right to compel arbitration [Sobremonte v. Superior Court (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 980, 996, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 43 ; Davis v. Continental Airlines, Inc. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 205, 214-217, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79] .

Prejudice can result from the disclosure of defenses and strategies. If one party uses the discovery process to obtain information about the other party's case that they could not obtain in arbitration, and then, having gained that information, seeks to compel arbitration, the court may reasonably find that the party who conducted discovery has waived its right to compel arbitration. This is especially true if the party resisting arbitration will not have equivalent discovery rights [Sobremonte v. Superior Court (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 980, 996-997, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 43 ; Guess?, Inc. v. Superior Court (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 553, 558, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 201 ; Davis v. Continental Airlines, Inc. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 205, 215, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79 ; see also Berman v. Health Net (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 1370, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295 (prejudice can still be found when both parties engaged in discovery)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Discovery Amounting to Waiver. In an action for sexual harassment in employment, defendant employer claimed the dispute had to be resolved by arbitration as specified in the employee handbook. Seven months after filing an answer in which the right to arbitrate was raised as an affirmative defense, defendants moved to compel arbitration. During those seven months, defendant obtained 1,600 pages of documents from plaintiff in 86 categories and took plaintiff's 2-day, 410-page videotaped deposition.

Although defendant claimed much of the discovery was designed to prove the agreement to arbitrate, the deposition covered typical broad-ranging issues, such as plaintiff's attitude towards vulgar remarks and how she handled them. The trial court denied the motion to compel arbitration. Was that proper? Yes. The record amply supported the inference that defendant unreasonably delayed the motion to compel arbitration to use discovery to learn plaintiff's strategies, evidence, and witnesses and to pin plaintiff down to a particular version of the facts. Plaintiff was prejudiced by incurring court costs and legal expenses and by disclosure of defenses and strategies [Davis v. Continental Airlines, Inc. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 205, 213-217, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79] .

[c] Waiver by Delay

[i] Nature of Delay That Results in Waiver

For delay to constitute waiver, the delay must be [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 984, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903] .

- Substantial;
- Unreasonable; and
- In spite of the reasonable diligence of the party claiming waiver.

In addition, the party asserting the defense of waiver must show delay amounting to laches, which requires a showing of prejudice, namely, that he or she did or omitted to do something which impaired his or her ability to participate in the arbitration in a meaningful way [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 983-984, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903 ; Boys Club of San Fernando Valley, Inc. v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1266, 1275-1276, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 587 ; see Sawday v. Vista Irrigation Dist. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 833, 836-837, 52 Cal. Rptr. 1, 415 P.2d 816] .

When the delay is in the selection of an arbitrator and is the result of reasonable and good faith disagreements between the parties, the remedy for the delay is to petition the court to choose an arbitrator under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6, rather than evasion of the agreement to arbitrate. The burden is on the party opposing the arbitration agreement to prove to the trial court that the other party's dilatory conduct rises to such a level of misfeasance as to constitute waiver [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 984, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903 ; see [e], below].

[ii] Failure to Conclude Uninsured Motorist Arbitration Within Five Years

Effective January 1, 1996, uninsured motorist arbitration instituted pursuant to Ins. Code § 11580.2, other than one in which the insured also has a workers' compensation claim, must be concluded within five years from the institution of the arbitration proceeding [Ins. Code § 11580.2(i)(2)(A)]. If an insured does not conclude the arbitration within that five-year period, and he or she cannot establish any basis for waiver or estoppel of the five-year period for completion of arbitration, any petition for an order to compel that arbitration must be denied [Santangelo v. Allstate Insurance Company (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 804, 812, 816-818, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 735] . For further discussion, see § 32.92[3][e].

[d] Waiver by Litigation of Arbitrable Dispute

[i] Prejudice to Other Party or Litigation on Merits Required for Waiver

Arbitration may be waived by litigating an arbitrable dispute without seeking arbitration [Case v. Kadota Fig Asso. of Producers (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 596, 606, 220 P.2d 912] , including conducting discovery which prejudices the party resisting arbitration [see Sobremonte v. Superior Court (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 980, 996, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 43 ; Davis v. Continental Airlines, Inc. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 205, 214-217, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79 (discussed at [b][iii], above)]. To waive arbitration rights, a party must substantially invoke the litigation machinery in a way that prejudices the other party. Any ambiguity as to the scope of the waiver must be resolved in favor of arbitration [Aviation Data, Inc. v. American Express Travel Related Services Company, Inc. (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1522, 1537, 1538, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 396] . Thus, the mere filing of a complaint (that is, commencement of a lawsuit) does not necessarily constitute a waiver of the right to arbitration [Doers v. Golden Gate Bridge etc. Dist. (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 180, 183-189, 151 Cal. Rptr. 837, 588 P.2d 1261] . Filing a lawsuit, even one that attacks the validity of the contract containing the arbitration clause, does not necessarily amount to waiver [Saint Agnes Med. Ctr. v. PacifiCare of Cal. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1187, 1192, 1200-1205, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 517 (invalidity urged on basis of occurrence of condition subsequent, not lack of mutual assent or capacity to contract)]. Nor does filing a lawsuit and seeking a change of venue necessarily amount to waiver [Saint Agnes Med. Ctr. v. PacifiCare of Cal. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1187, 1205, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 517] . Similarly, demurring, even several times, and disposing of causes of action that are arbitrable on those demurrers, does not constitute litigation on the merits. Further, the court's opinion as to the validity of the legal theories "disposed of" on demurrer will not be binding on the arbitrator [Groom v. Health Net (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1189, 1195, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836 (arbitration was not sought until one year after complaint was filed)]. Under federal law, settlement efforts, even those involving class actions in which court involvement is necessary, are not interpreted as waiving the right to arbitrate if the settlement is not finalized. This principle does not apply, however, when a party attempts to obtain settlement by misleading the court and proposed class members about the benefits of the proposed settlement and the other party or parties were prejudiced by those tactics. Then, based in part on the principle that one cannot profit from his or her own misconduct, the party who engaged in the misleading tactics has forfeited its right to arbitrate [Aviation Data, Inc. v. American Express Travel Related Services Company, Inc. (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1522, 1539-1542, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 396] .

In the absence of prejudice to the other party, an action brought by a party to an arbitration agreement must ordinarily be litigated on the merits for a waiver of the right to arbitration to be found [Saint Agnes Med. Ctr. v. PacifiCare of Cal. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1187, 1201, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 517 ; Doers v. Golden Gate Bridge, Highway & Transp. Dist. (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 180, 188, 588 P.2d 1261 ; McMillin Development, Inc. v. Home Buyers Warranty (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 896, 909, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 611] . Thus, a dismissal that is not based on the merits of the action, such as a dismissal because of a lack of subject-matter jurisdiction, does not constitute a waiver of the right to arbitration absent prejudice to the other party [Doers v. Golden Gate Bridge etc. Dist. (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 180, 188, 151 Cal. Rptr. 837, 588 P.2d 1261] .

If prejudice is established, waiver of the right to arbitrate may be found even though the case was not litigated on the merits. It is sufficient that the litigation was undertaken in bad faith, for example, for the purpose of determining the other party's defenses in the arbitration proceeding [Christensen v. Dewor Developments (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 778, 783-784, 191 Cal. Rptr. 8, 661 P.2d 1088] .

Prejudice may consist of attorney's fees incurred and delays causing lost records and faded memories [Saint Agnes Med. Ctr. v. PacifiCare of Cal. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1187, 1203, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 517 ; Christensen v. Dewor Developments (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 778, 783-784, 191 Cal. Rptr. 8, 661 P.2d 1088] . However, time and expense alone do not constitute the prejudice which bars a related petition to compel arbitration [Groom v. Health Net (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1189, 1197, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836] . Prejudice can be established when discovery and motions have given the party seeking to arbitrate an opportunity to test both the legal validity and the factual persuasiveness of its opponent's position, usually at considerable expense to that opponent and while depriving that opponent of the efficiencies that would have been available to it by way of arbitration [McMillin Development, Inc. v. Home Buyers Warranty (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 896, 910, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 611] . However, being forced to articulate a legal theory clear enough to withstand a demurrer is not prejudice [Groom v. Health Net (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1189, 1195, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836] .

If the litigation seeks relief that is not inconsistent with arbitration proceedings and not available in arbitration proceedings, the right to arbitrate will not be deemed waived [Simms v. NPCK Enterprises, Inc. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 233, 235, 244-245, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 557 (filing lawsuit, seeking injunction to protect status quo did not amount to waiver because other party was not prejudiced); Schwartz v. Leibel (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 761, 763-764, 57 Cal. Rptr. 831 (party to arbitration agreement as not waiving right to arbitrate by suing for injunction to restrain breach of agreement containing arbitration clause), disapproved on other grounds in Doers v. Golden Gate Bridge etc. Dist. (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 180, 188, 151 Cal. Rptr. 837, 588 P.2d 1261] . Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1298.2, the simultaneous filing of a complaint and a motion to stay the filed proceeding allows the plaintiff to file a notice of lis pendens without the filing of that notice constituting a waiver of the right to arbitration [Manhattan Loft, LLC v. Mercury Liquors, Inc. (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 1040, 1054, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 457 (filing lis pendens without filing any action in court is grounds for award of damages)]. Claims that are not arbitrable may be severed and arbitration compelled with respect to the claims that are arbitrable [Groom v. Health Net (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1189, 1199, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836] . See also the discussion in § 32.31, below.

[ii] Effect of Arbitration Service Provider's Non-Waiver Rule

Rule 26(a) of the American Arbitration Association's Home Warranty Arbitration Rules states that no judicial proceeding by a party relating to the subject matter or the arbitration shall be deemed a waiver of the party's right to arbitrate. In a case of first impression, and in keeping with a Michigan case, it has been held that AAA can not by rule deprive courts of their power over parties who have appeared before for them, especially in light of Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(a), which gives the court the power to deny arbitration if a party has waived its right thereto [McMillin Development, Inc. v. Home Buyers Warranty (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 896, 909, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 611] . Instead, the court said, AAA Rule 26(a) should be given a limited interpretation, such that arbitration would not be waived by mere participation in judicial litigation; there must be judicial litigation on the merits, although wavier can occur prior to a judgment on the merits if prejudice can be demonstrated. Thus, the rule remains the same under Rule 26(a) and under case law: parties may participate in judicial proceedings without losing the right to arbitrate only so long as their participation does not substantially prejudice the rights of their opponents [McMillin Development, Inc. v. Home Buyers Warranty (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 896, 909, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 611] .

[e] Heavy Burden of Proof to Establish Waiver

The party seeking to establish waiver of the right to arbitration pursuant to agreement has a heavy burden of proof. The court will closely scrutinize any claims of waiver and indulge every intendment to give effect to arbitration proceedings; it will not lightly infer waiver [Saint Agnes Med. Ctr. v. PacifiCare of Cal. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1187, 1195, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 517 ; Christensen v. Dewor Developments (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 778, 782, 191 Cal. Rptr. 8, 661 P.2d 1088 ; Chase v. Blue Cross of California (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1142, 1151, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178] .

Similarly, if the issue is framed as forfeiture rather than waiver, the burden of proof is on the party asserting forfeiture and must be demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence [Chase v. Blue Cross of California (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1142, 1157, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178] .

[4] Failure to Make Proper and Timely Demand

The Legislature plainly intended Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2 to provide a procedural device for enforcing the parties' written arbitration agreement if one or more of the parties does not comply with the agreement to arbitrate. The only reasonable construction of that statute is to require for a petition to compel arbitration the pleading and proof of a request or demand by one party to the other party or parties for arbitration of such controversy pursuant to and under the terms of their written arbitration agreement [Mansouri v. Superior Court (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 633, 641-642, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824] .

When the parties have agreed that a demand for arbitration must be made within a certain time, that demand is a condition precedent that must be performed before the contractual duty to submit the dispute to arbitration arises. A party's failure to make a timely demand constitutes a waiver of the right to arbitrate in the sense of a loss of a right based on a failure to perform an obligation. It is not relevant that the party did not intend to waive the right to arbitrate the dispute [Platt Pacific, Inc. v. Andelson (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 307, 313-314, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 597, 862 P.2d 158] .

When the arbitration agreement does not specify a time within which arbitration must be demanded, an unreasonable delay in demanding arbitration may constitute a waiver of the right to arbitrate [Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1035, 1043, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 381, 831 P.2d 821 ; Sawday v. Vista Irrigation Dist. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 833, 836-837, 52 Cal. Rptr. 1, 415 P.2d 816 ; see also Civ. Code § 1657].

PRACTICE TIP:

Medical Malpractice Cases. Plaintiff may wish to include a notice to arbitrate in the Notice of Intent to Commence Action that is required by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 364 and 364.1 [for a form of notice, see Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, Form 1]. The notice of arbitration added to the Notice of Intent would read: "This notice is also a notice to arbitrate, if the parties have a valid arbitration agreement. If the noticee does not comply with this notice of arbitration, then such arbitration requirements are waived." There is no case law on the effect of such a clause. However, if the noticee ignore the Notice of Intent, as often happens, and does not promptly seek arbitration, the plaintiff's argument that the health care provider has waived arbitration by failure to demand it in a timely fashion should be strengthened by having included the clause. By Michael S. Fields

For further discussion relating to the necessity for a timely demand for relief, see § 32.40 et seq.

[5] Waiver Based on Insurer Misleading Insured

Waiver, or more properly, forfeiture, of the right to invoke arbitration based on an insurer's failure to adequately inform the insured of the arbitration provision requires consideration of all relevant circumstances and a determination of bad faith conduct by the insurer [Chase v. Blue Cross of California (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1142, 1148, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178 (under Davis v. Blue Cross of Northern California (1979) 158 Cal. Rptr. 828, 600 P.2d 1060 , and Sarchett v. Blue Shield of California (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1, 233 Cal. Rptr. 76, 729 P.2d 267 , mere failure to adequately inform was not enough to find that the insurer has relinquished its right to arbitration)].

To find that the insurer has forfeited the right to arbitration, there must be conduct designed to mislead the policyholders. The court's focus should be on the insurer's subjective intent. This distinguishes the situation from estoppel. Under estoppel, the insurer would be estopped from asserting arbitration even if it did not intend to mislead, as long as the insured reasonably relied to its detriment on the insurer's action. Forfeiture, however, requires intent to mislead and is satisfied whether or not the insured is, in fact, misled. Thus, even if the insured is aware of the arbitration right, bad faith tactics designed to mislead the insured merit the sanction of forfeiture. Conversely, even if the insured is not aware of the arbitration right, there is no forfeiture if the insurer did not engage in behavior designed to mislead the insured. The determination of bad faith involves consideration of the totality of the circumstances, so the policyholder's actual ignorance of the provision is relevant to the extent that ignorance is known to the insurer [Chase v. Blue Cross of California (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1142, 1157, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178] .

ILLUSTRATION:

No Forfeiture by Insurer's Failure to Mention Insured's Right to Arbitration. The arbitration agreement was part of a standard title insurance policy coverage form that was properly incorporated by reference in the preliminary title report and available for inspection by the insured. Eventually, the policy was issued and plaintiff filed a claim. By the time plaintiff filed the claim, plaintiff was in possession of the entire policy, including the arbitration provision. Plaintiff was represented by counsel initially during > the claims process and plaintiff's counsel admitted knowing about the arbitration clause since the time plaintiff first provided him with a copy of the policy. Defendant denied the claim, without mentioning plaintiff's right to arbitrate, but advised plaintiff of his right to seek redress with the Department of Insurance. Plaintiff filed a lawsuit. Defendant answered without demanding arbitration or raising arbitration as an affirmative defense. Defendant did not demand arbitration until plaintiff served his first discovery. Did the insurer forfeit the right to compel arbitration? No. Although the court said defendant's conduct was somewhat questionable, the arbitration clause here was not obscure, it was presented in bold in a document which was both properly incorporated by reference into the terms of the parties' agreement and actually in plaintiff's possession at the time he filed his claim. Further, defendant had no reason to know that plaintiff was unaware of his arbitration rights. Nor did defendant unreasonably delay or act inconsistently with the right to demand arbitration. Defendant did not substantively engage in the litigation process; and there was no evidence of any appreciable prejudice to the plaintiff. Given the totality of the circumstances, there was no basis for denying the petition to compel arbitration [Wolschlager v. Fidelity Nat'l Title Ins. Co. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 784, 793, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d. 179] .

The principle that an insurer forfeits the right to arbitrate if the covenant of good faith and fair dealing is breached is an application of general contract principles and therefore is not preempted by the Federal Arbitration Act (9 U.S.C. § 2) [Chase v. Blue Cross of California (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1142, 1158, 1158-1160, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178 ; for discussion of federal preemption, see § 32.24].

[6] Enforcement of Mechanics' Lien

[a] Suit to Enforce Mechanics' Lien

[i] Right to Arbitrate Not Waived When Stay Requested

Any person who proceeds to record and enforce a claim of lien by beginning an action pursuant to Civ. Code § 3082 et seq. (liens on "works of improvement") does not necessarily waive his or her right of arbitration under a written agreement to arbitrate. The claimant does not waive the right to arbitration if, in filing an action to enforce the claim of lien, the claimant does either of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.5(a)]:

- Includes an allegation in the complaint that the claimant does not intend to waive any right of arbitration, and intends to move the court, within 30 days after service of the summons and complaint, for an order to stay further proceedings in the action.

- At the same time that the complaint is filed, the claimant files an application that the action be stayed pending the arbitration of any issue, question, or dispute that is claimed to be arbitrable under the agreement and that is relevant to the action to enforce the claim of lien.

[ii] Requirements for Request for Stay

Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.5(b) requires that claimant, within 30 days after service of the summons and complaint, file and serve a motion and notice of motion pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.4 to stay the action pending the arbitration of any issue, question, or dispute that is claimed to be arbitrable under the agreement and that is relevant to the action to enforce the claim of lien. The failure of a claimant to comply with this subdivision is a waiver of the claimant's right to compel arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.5(b)]. For a form of motion for stay, see § 32.97. For a form of an order staying proceedings, see § 32.97A.

The sole effect of filing the application for the stay under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.5(b) is to preclude a finding of waiver of the right to arbitrate because of the filing of the complaint to enforce the mechanics' lien [Kaneko Ford Design v. Citipark, Inc. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1220, 1227, 249 Cal. Rptr. 544] . However, the statute does not preclude a finding of waiver based on facts other than the act of filing the complaint [Kaneko Ford Design v. Citipark, Inc. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1220, 1228, 249 Cal. Rptr. 544] .

[iii] Order Required for Stay

The application for the stay is simply a request, and the simple act of filing it does not create the stay; the court must act on the application by issuing an order, which may grant or deny the stay [Kaneko Ford Design v. Citipark, Inc. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1220, 1226-1227, 249 Cal. Rptr. 544] .

[b] Defendant's Response to Suit to Enforce Mechanics' Lien

The failure of a defendant to file a petition for an order to arbitrate pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2 at or before the time he or she answers a complaint to enforce a mechanics' lien filed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.5(a) constitutes a waiver of that party's right to compel arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.5(c)].

§ 32.30 Arbitration as Condition Precedent

An aggrieved party must seek to enforce his or her contractual right to arbitration before suing on the arbitrable controversy unless the other party waives arbitration. Arbitration, or an unsuccessful attempt to secure the same, is a condition precedent to the right to maintain a court action [Charles J. Rounds Co. v. Joint Council of Teamsters No. 42 (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 888, 894, 95 Cal. Rptr. 53, 484 P.2d 1397] . For forms of affirmative defense to an action on the ground that arbitration is a condition precedent to commencement and maintenance of a suit, see §§ 32.98 and 32.99.

§ 32.31 Defendant's Remedies When Action Is Brought on Arbitrable Issue

[1] Petition to Compel Arbitration in Lieu of Answer

A defendant may file a petition to compel arbitration pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2 in lieu of filing an answer to a complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.7; see § 32.92]. If the petition is denied, the defendant has 15 days from denial to plead to the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.7].

If a controversy that is referable to arbitration under an alleged agreement is involved in an action or proceeding pending in a superior court, a petition for an order to arbitrate is to be filed in that action or proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1292.4].

For discussion relating to petitions to compel arbitration, see Subpart 2, § 32.40 et seq. For forms relating to proceedings to compel arbitration, see § 32.91 et seq.

[2] Motion to Stay Action

[a] When Motion Is Available

A California court is required, on a party's motion, to stay an action or proceeding pending before the court if either of the following circumstances apply [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.4]:

- A court of competent jurisdiction has ordered arbitration of a controversy that is an issue involved in the case.

- An application has been made to a court of competent jurisdiction, whether in California or not, for an order to arbitrate a controversy that is an issue in the case, and the application is undetermined.

The above applies whether the court entering the order, or before which an application for such an order is pending, is in California or not [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.4].

Under these circumstances, the court must stay the action or proceeding until there is an arbitration in accordance with the order to arbitrate, or until such earlier time as the court specifies [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.4]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.4 is clear and unambiguous: it requires that the trial court stay an action pending before it while an application to arbitrate the subject matter of the action is pending in a court of competent jurisdiction. A single overlapping issue is sufficient to require imposition of a stay. The court has no discretion in the matter [Heritage Provider Network, Inc. v. Superior Court (Eastland Medical Group) (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1146, 1152-1153, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 645 ; compare Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c), discussed at 32.43[8][g], under which issue is decided on hearing of petition to compel arbitration]. There is no specific or implied exception contained within Section 1281.4 to preclude its application for dilatory action by a party seeking to arbitrate the matter. Relief based on a claim of delay, as well as any substantive arguments relating to whether arbitration is appropriate under the facts presented, should be presented to the court entertaining the application to arbitrate [Twentieth Century Fox Film Corp. v. Superior Court (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 188, 192, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 896 (dicta, appeal was dismissed as moot)].

For a form of notice of motion to stay proceedings in pending action until arbitration is completed, see § 32.97.

[b] Proper Court for Motion

The motion for a stay of proceedings is to be made in the court where the action is pending [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1281.4, 1292.8; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(10)(A) (when case is limited civil case)].

[c] Notice of Stay

If a case is stayed due to contractual arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.4, the party that requested or caused the stay must serve and file a notice of the stay and attach a copy of the order or other document showing that the proceeding is stayed. If the person who requested or caused the stay has not appeared, or is not subject to the jurisdiction of the court, the plaintiff must immediately file the notice. The notice of stay must be served on all parties who have appeared in the case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.650(a), (b)(2). The notice must state both of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.650(c)]:

- Whether the case is stayed with regard to all parties or only certain parties. If it is stayed with regard to only certain parties, the notice must specifically identify those parties.

- The reason for that the case is stayed.

When the stay is vacated, is no longer in effect, or is modified, the party who filed the notice of the stay must immediately serve and file a notice of termination or modification of stay. If that party fails to do so, any other party in the action who has knowledge of the termination or modification of the stay must serve and file a notice of termination or modification of stay. Once one party in the action has served and filed a notice of termination or modification of stay, other parties in the action are not required to do so [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.650(d)]. Judicial Council Form CM-181 Notice of Termination or Modification of Stay must be used after January 1, 2006 to give the required notice [see § 32.97C].

For a form of notice of stay of proceedings, see 32.97B.

PRACTICE TIP:

Sanctions May Be Imposed. Failure to comply with this requirement may be deemed an unlawful interference with the proceedings of the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.30]. Hence, counsel may be well-advised to prepare the notice in advance and have it ready for immediate filing once the court issues the order staying the action.

[d] Stay of Severable Issue

If the issue subject to arbitration is severable, the stay may be with respect to that issue only [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.4]. Conversely, if arbitration could make trial of the severable issues unnecessary, the court may order arbitration and stay action on the severable issues or remedies, such as injunctions, pending resolution of the arbitration [see, e.g., Coast Plaza Doctors Hospital v. Blue Cross of California (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 677, 691-692, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 809] .

[3] Raising Request to Arbitrate by Demurrer or Summary Judgment

If the only issue to be litigated is covered by the arbitration clause and the plaintiff has not first pursued or attempted to pursue his or her arbitration remedy, the defendant may elect to demur or move for summary judgment on the ground that the plaintiff has failed to exhaust arbitration remedies [Charles J. Rounds Co. v. Joint Council of Teamsters No. 42 (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 888, 899, 95 Cal. Rptr. 53, 484 P.2d 1397 ; but see Kalai v. Gray (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 768, 774 n.1, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449 (criticizing Rounds as 30-years old and inconsistent with Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.4, which specifies action is to be stayed, not dismissed, until completion of arbitration)].

If the complaint also raises issues not susceptible to arbitration, the defendant may not raise a request to arbitrate by way of demurrer. In this situation, the defendant must demand arbitration and seek a stay of the litigation [Badgley v. Van Upp (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 218, 221, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 406] . Similarly, if the arbitration agreement is binding only with respect to some defendants, summary judgment is proper only as to those defendants. Summary judgment should not be denied to all defendants merely because some of them are not bound by the arbitration agreement [24 Hour Fitness, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1199, 1204, 1212, 1215, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 533] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Determining Summary Judgment With Respect to Applicability of Arbitration Agreement.
Plaintiff sued her former employer and various of its employees for sexual harassment in the workplace. The complaint alleged that the employee defendants, in doing the acts complained of, were acting within the course and scope of their employment. All defendants moved for summary judgment on the ground that the matter had to be arbitrated in accordance with the arbitration provision in the employment contract. Plaintiff relied on the former employer's answer, which alleged that any harassment was carried out by the individual employees acting beyond the course and scope of their employment, and an admission by one employee in discovery that he made certain objectionable statements to plaintiff outside the scope of his employment. The trial court denied summary judgment as to all defendants, stating that triable issues of fact existed regarding which defendants were bound by the arbitration agreement. Should summary judgment have been denied as to all defendants? No. Denial of summary judgment was proper only as to the employee who had admitted in discovery that his objectionable statements to plaintiff were made outside the course and scope of his employment. The former employer's answer did not constitute an admission by the individual employees, but the allegation in plaintiff's complaint could be taken as fact for purposes of the motion for summary judgment. The only evidence that anyone acted outside the scope of employment, and thus, outside the scope of the matters required by the agreement to be arbitrated, was the admission in discovery by one employee. Thus, denial of the motion was proper only as to that employee [24 Hour Fitness, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1199, 1210-1212, 1215, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 533] .

A defendant may prefer to move for summary judgment instead of moving to compel arbitration. If the plaintiff, in resisting arbitration waives his or her right to arbitration, judgment can be entered in accordance with the defendant's motion for summary judgment, and plaintiff will be left without a remedy [Martinez v. Scott Specialty Gases, Inc. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1236, 1250-1251, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 403 ; compare Johnson v. Siegel (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 1087, 1095-1100, 1102, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 412 (no waiver was found, so even though summary judgment was entered, it was not res judicata as to plaintiff's right to arbitrate and plaintiff could still file petition to compel arbitration)]. Usually, however, a plaintiff's merely initiating a lawsuit or contesting the validity of the arbitration clause will not be enough to waive his or her right to arbitrate [see Kalai v. Gray (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 768, 776-778, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449] .

[4] Acquiescence in Lawsuit

If the only issue to be litigated is covered by the arbitration clause and plaintiff has not first pursued or attempted to pursue his or her arbitration remedy, plaintiff has impliedly waived his or her right to arbitrate, so that defendant may elect to submit the matter to the jurisdiction of the court [Charles J. Rounds Co. v. Joint Council of Teamsters No. 42 (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 888, 899, 95 Cal. Rptr. 53, 484 P.2d 1397 ; see also Northcutt Lumber Co. v. Goldeen's Peninsula, Inc. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 440, 444-445, 106 Cal. Rptr. 353] .

[5] Final Arbitration Award as Affirmative Defense

A party may raise the existence of a final and binding arbitration award that fully adjudicated the dispute as an affirmative defense [see Archuleta v. Grand Lodge etc. of Machinists (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 202, 208, 68 Cal. Rptr. 694] . For a form asserting this defense, see § 32.100.

[1] In General

Although the controlling opinion of the United State Supreme Court never addressed the issue of whether the Federal Arbitration Act prohibits enforcement of state laws allowing classwide arbitration, five Justices do believe that the Federal Arbitration Act does not prohibit classwide arbitration in accordance with a state law chosen by the parties as applicable to interpret and enforce their arbitration agreement, as long as the parties' arbitration agreement does not prohibit classwide arbitration [Green Tree Fin. Corp. v. Bazzle (2003) 539 U.S. 444, 454-460, 123 S. Ct. 2402, 156 L. Ed. 2d 414 (concurring and dissenting opinion of Justice Stevens; dissenting opinions of Chief Justice Rehnquist and Justice Thomas)]. Former NASD Rule 10301(d) [see now NASD Rule 12204], approved by the Securities and Exchange Commission in 1992 with the intent to allow investor class actions to proceed in federal court, makes all actions agreed by the parties to be arbitrated under those rules ineligible when sought to be or actually certified as a class. Both the court and the arbitrator have authority to make the determination of ineligibility [Clark v. First Union Securities, Inc. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1595, 1601, 1610-1613, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 313] . If the arbitration agreement is silent on the issue of classwide arbitration, but one party claims that the manner of choosing the arbitrator impliedly prevents classwide arbitration, interpretation of the contract is necessary to determine whether it permits classwide arbitration. That interpretation addresses a procedural matter and, under an agreement that provides for arbitration of "all disputes relating to this contract," the arbitrator should make that interpretation after a court orders arbitration. The relevant question is what kind of arbitration the parties agreed to, and that concerns arbitration procedure [Green Tree Financial Corp. v. Bazzle (2003) 539 U.S. 444, 452-453, 123 S. Ct. 2402, 2407-2408, 156 L. Ed. 2d 414 ; accord Cable Connection, Inc. v. DirecTV, Inc. (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 1334, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229, 190 P.3d 586 (remanding for reconsideration because arbitrators wrongly interpreted American Arbitration Association, Supplementary Rules for Class Arbitration, Rule 3 in approving classwide arbitration)]. Thus, in cases governed by the Federal Arbitration Act, Green Tree has changed the practice in California of having the court certify a class at the same time it compels classwide arbitration; now, the arbitrator--not the court--interprets the arbitration agreement to determine whether it prohibits class-wide arbitration [Garcia v. DirecTV, Inc. (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 297, 300, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 190] .

[2] Class Arbitration Waivers (Prohibitions)

[a] Unconscionablility

Nevertheless, if an arbitration agreement explicitly prohibits class-wide arbitration, even if it is governed by the FAA, a court still has authority to decide whether to refuse to enforce that prohibition on the ground that it is unconscionable [Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 148, 167-168, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 76, 113 P.3d 1100 ; Klussman v. Cross Country Bank (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1283, 1287, 1290-1291, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 728 ; accord Szetela v. Discover Bank (2002) 97 Cal. App, 4th 1094, 1101-1102, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 862 , cert. denied 537 U.S. 1501 (2003) (refusing to enforce prohibition on grounds of unconscionability without preemption analysis); see also Murphy v. Check 'N Go of California, Inc. (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 138, 144-146, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 120 (court determined unconscionability even though agreement provided arbitrator should because it found provision for arbitrator to decide was itself unconscionable in contract of adhesion)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Class Arbitration. If the goal is to force arbitration to be class arbitration, rather than individual, then consider claims of unconscionability, fraud [see § 32.21[4]], or violation of law or public policy, see § 32.32[2][c]] to have the class arbitration waiver clause itself declared unenforceable and severed. However, if the goal is to avoid arbitration altogether, then in addition to having the clause itself declared unenforceable on one of those grounds, the unenforceability of the entire arbitration agreement must be pursued as well [see § 32.32[2][d]].

Unconscionability is a generally applicable contract defense, not one specifically applicable to arbitration agreements. Thus, it is not preempted by the FAA [Discover Bank v. Superior Court (Boehr) (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 148, 167-168, 113 P.3d 1100 ; accord Ting v. AT&T (9th Cir. 2003) 319 F.3d 1126, 1150, n.15 , cert. denied, 124 S. Ct. 53, 157 L. Ed 2d 24 (2003) ; Ingle v. Circuit City Stores, Inc. (9th Cir. 2003) 328 F.3d 1165, 1170 ; Klussman v. Cross Country Bank (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1283, 1287, 1290-1291, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 728] . Further, under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2, the question whether grounds exist for revocation of the arbitration agreement based on grounds that exist for the revocation of any contract, is for a court to decide, not an arbitrator [Discover Bank v. Superior Court (Boehr) (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 148, 171, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 76, 113 P.3d 1100] .

Severance is particularly appropriate in the case of class arbitration waivers because, unlike limitations on remedies or other limitations that are invalid on their face, class arbitration waivers will only be invalidated after the proper factual showing [Gentry v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 443, 445-446, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 773, 165 P.3d 556] .

A finding of procedural unconscionability is not required to invalidate a class arbitration waiver if that waiver implicates unwaivable statutory rights. But such a finding is a prerequisite to determining that the arbitration agreement as a whole is unconscionable. An arbitration agreement may have an element of procedural unconscionability notwithstanding an opt-out provision [see Gentry v. Superior Court (Circuit City Stores, Inc.) (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 443, 451, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 773 (remanding for determination of whether provisions of arbitration agreement were substantively unconscionable)]. An employee's signature on an arbitration agreement may reasonably lead the employer to believe that the employee's failure to opt out constituted acceptance of the arbitration agreement, but the question whether an arbitration agreement has been validly formed is different from whether that agreement was unconscionable. The lack of material information about the disadvantageous terms of the arbitration agreement, combined with the likelihood that employees felt at least some pressure not to opt out of the arbitration agreement, led the Supreme Court to conclude that the agreement was not entirely free from procedural unconscionability [Gentry v. Superior Court (Circuit City Stores, Inc.) (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 443, 472, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 773 (finding Circuit City Stores, Inc. v. Najd (9th Cir. 2002) 294 F.3d 1104 , and Circuit City Stores, Inc. v. Ahmed (9th Cir. 2002) 283 F.3d 1198 , both of which found the arbitration agreement not to be unconscionable and neither of which considered concealment of disadvantageous terms nor reality that Circuit City was in position to pressure employees to choose arbitration, unpersuasive)].

[b] Functional Equivalent of Exculpatory Clause

A class arbitration prohibition in a consumer contract of adhesion in a setting in which disputes between the contracting parties involve small amounts of damages and it is alleged that the party with the superior bargaining power has carried out a deliberate scheme to individually cheat large numbers of consumers of small sums of money, becomes in practice an exculpatory clause (at least to the extent the issue is governed by California law) [Civ. Code § 1668] and is unconscionable and unenforceable [Discover Bank v. Superior Court (Boehr) (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 148, 162-163, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 76, 113 P.3d 1100 ; Gatton v. T-Mobile USA, Inc (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 571, 579-581, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 344 ; Cohen v. DirecTV, Inc. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1442, 1451-1455, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 813 ; Klussman v. Cross Country Bank (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1283, 1293, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 728 ; Aral v. Earthlink, Inc. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 544, 548-549, 556, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229] . If the arbitration agreement has a choice of law clause providing that it be governed by law other than California's, the issue is further complicated. Even if under traditional conflicts analysis the chosen state has a substantial relationship to the parties or their transaction, or there is some other reasonable basis for the parties' choice of law, a California court may still refuse to enforce a class-arbitration prohibition if it is contrary to a strong public policy of California or if class-arbitration rules are procedural rules that California courts are to apply even if the contract's substantive law is from the other state [Discover Bank v. Superior Court (Boehr) (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 148, 153, 173-174, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 76, 113 P.3d 1100 (Discover Bank; remanding for determination of choice of law issue); Klussman v. Cross Country Bank (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1283, 1287, 1294-1300, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 728 (finding California law applicable, after choice of law analysis, and class action waiver unenforceable); Aral v. Earthlink, Inc. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 544, 563-564, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229 (finding California law applicable, after choice of law analysis, and class action waiver unenforceable); see, e.g., Civ. Code §§ 1668, 1751, 1781(a), 1783 (possible indications of strong California public policy militating against enforcement of class action prohibition)]. On remand, the court of appeal in Discover Bank found Delaware law applicable because the only statutory cause of action alleged was under a Delaware statute, and plaintiff sought to represent a nationwide class [Discover Bank v. Superior Court (Boehr) (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 886, 889, 891-895, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 456]. The cases finding California had a materially greater interest than the state whose law was specified by the contractual choice of law provision involved causes of action under California consumer protection statutes and proposed classes of only California residents [Klussman v. Cross Country Bank (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1283, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 728 ; Aral v. Earthlink, Inc. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 544, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229].

[c] In Context of Unwaivable Statutory Rights

The validity of class action waivers has also been considered in the context of employees' unwaivable statutory rights. When it is alleged that an employer has systematically denied an unwaivable statutory right to a class of employees and a class action is requested notwithstanding an arbitration agreement that contains a class arbitration waiver, the trial court must consider the following factors [Gentry v. Superior Court (Circuit City Stores, Inc.) (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 443, 463-464, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 773 ; Sanchez v. Western Pizza Enterprises, Inc. (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 154, 166-170, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 818 (ruling class arbitration waiver unenforceable after considering only first three factors); Franco v. Athens Disposal Co., Inc. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 1277, 1297, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 539 (class arbitration waiver unenforceable); Murphy v. Check 'N Go of California, Inc. (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 138, 148-149, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 120] :

- The modest size of the potential individual recovery,
- The potential for retaliation against members of the class if they sued individually,

- The fact that absent members of the class may be ill informed about their rights,

- Other real world obstacles to the vindication of class members' statutory right through individual arbitration.

If the court concludes, based on these factors, that a class arbitration is likely to be a significantly more effective practical means of vindicating the rights of the affected employees than individual litigation or arbitration, and finds that the disallowance of the class action will likely lead to a less comprehensive enforcement of an unwaivable statutory right for the employees alleged to be affected by the employer's violations, it must invalidate the class arbitration waiver to ensure that these employees can vindicate their unwaivable rights in an arbitration forum [Gentry v. Superior Court (Circuit City Stores, Inc.) (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 443, 463, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 773 (remanding for trial court to make that determination with respect to unwaivable overtime pay claims); Sanchez v. Western Pizza Enterprises, Inc. (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 154, 166-170, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 818 (claims based on employee's statutory right to reimbursement of job expenses under Lab. Code §§ 2802, 2804 and to receive minimum wage under Lab. Code, § 1194 were unwaivable); Franco v. Athens Disposal Co., Inc. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 1277, 1297, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 539 (overtime pay claims and claims of violation of meal and rest-period requirements in Lab. Code § 226.7, per Lab. Code § 219, are not waivable); Murphy v. Check 'N Go of California, Inc. (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 138, 148-149, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 120] regardless of whether the arbitration agreement as a whole is procedurally unconscionable [Gentry v. Superior Court (Circuit City Stores, Inc.) (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 443, 451, 467, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 773 ; Sanchez v. Western Pizza Enterprises, Inc. (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 154, 169 n.4, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 818]. Under some circumstances a class arbitration waiver would lead to a de facto waiver and would impermissibly interfere with employees' ability to vindicate unwaivable rights and to enforce the labor laws [Gentry v. Superior Court (Circuit City Stores, Inc.) (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 443, 456-457, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 773 ; Murphy v. Check 'N Go of California, Inc. (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 138, 148-149, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 120] .

[3] Procedural Issues and Considerations

Even when the arbitration clause is silent as to class arbitration, California courts have permitted arbitration on a class-wide basis rather than allow a defendant to automatically eliminate the right to a class proceeding by compelling individual arbitration [Keating v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 584, 609, 612-614, 183 Cal. Rptr. 360, 645 P.2d 1192 (overruled on other grounds in Southland Corp. v. Keating (1984) 465 U.S. 1, 16, 104 S. Ct. 852, 79 L. Ed. 2d 1); Blue Cross of California v. Superior Court (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 42, 46, 65-66, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 779 (both adhesion contracts)]. Keating is not authority that class arbitration is a substantive right that would empower arbitrators to order arbitration without a finding of unconscionability (which in any event would ordinarily be made by the court) [Cable Connection, Inc. v. DirecTV, Inc. (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 1334, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229, 190 P.3d 586].

Class certification issues may be determined before arbitration is ordered; and arbitration may be stayed and a petition for individual arbitration denied "without prejudice," so class certification issues can be determined first [Sanders v. Kinko's, Inc. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 766] . Thus, when the class consists of persons who have signed arbitration agreements and persons who have not, and the only representative before the court at time of the motion to compel arbitration has not signed agreement, the court will not order arbitration but will wait to determine the issue until the putative representative moves to certify the class [Lee v. Southern California Univ. for Professional Studies (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 782, 784, 788-789, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 134] .

In ordering class arbitration, the trial court must consider not only the factors normally relevant to class certification, but also the special characteristics of arbitration, including the impact on arbitration of any courtsupervision necessary to protect the interests of absent class members. The court must also consider the possibility of prejudice to the legitimate interests of the party that drafted the adhesion agreement, and allow that party the option of remaining in court rather than submitting to class-wide arbitration. Additionally, members of the class may opt out if they prefer to arbitrate on an individual basis [Keating v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 584, 609, 612-614, 183 Cal. Rptr. 360, 645 P.2d 1192 ( overruled on other grounds in Southland Corp. v. Keating (1984) 465 U.S. 1, 16, 104 S. Ct. 852, 79 L. Ed. 2d 1); see also Blue Cross of California v. Superior Court (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 42, 54-55, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 779] .

Conversely, if an arbitration provision is unconscionable and unenforceable, the trial court in a class action, even one in which no class has yet been certified, has authority to order that the arbitration provision not be enforced against potential class members [Patterson v. ITT Consumer Financial Corp. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1659, 1667-1668, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 563 , cert. denied, 510 U.S. 1176 (1994) ; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 187 and 527 (court's authority)]. An unconscionable arbitration clause in an agreement between a credit card issuer and cardholders cannot be enjoined as a deceptive practice under the California Legal Remedies Act (CLRA; Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.) [see Civ. Code § 1770(a)(19) (insertion of unconscionable provision in contract as deceptive practice)] when the cardholder never used the credit card for the sale or lease of goods or services because the CLRA does not regulate an extension of credit separate and apart from a sale or lease [Berry v. American Express Publishing Co. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 224, 228, 233, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 91] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Court Has Discretion to Protect Parties' Interests. In aclass action, before the class is certified, the defendant moves to compel arbitration. The trial court denies the motion, finding the arbitration clause to be unconscionable and thus, unenforceable. The court also orders the defendant not to seek confirmation of arbitration awards in the City and County of San Francisco, but allowed them to pursue collection claims in San Francisco in small claims or superior court actions. The order barred any consumer defendant in such an action from obtaining a stay based on the arbitration clause or from basing a claim against the class action defendant on its failure to arbitrate. The order further allowed any consumer defendants to ignore the order and assert the arbitration clause, and provided that in that event, the class action defendant was not to be penalized for having instituted a court action in compliance with the order. The class action defendant asserted that the order was over broad in reaching persons who were not named plaintiffs in the class action. Is the order appropriate? Yes. The court has properly tailored the order to effectuate its determination that the arbitration clause was unenforceable and to protect the class action defendant's collection rights, while permitting the plaintiff's to seek class certification [Patterson v. ITT Consumer Financial Corp. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1659, 1668, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 563 , cert. denied, 510 U.S. 1176 (1994)] .

§ 32.33 Dismissal for Delay in Prosecution

Several courts have held that the five-year dismissal statutes [see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 et seq.] apply to lawsuits subject to contractual arbitration, even if the case is in arbitration [Kuzmanoff v. Kron (1988) 207 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 3 , 255 Cal. Rptr. 168 (citing cases)]. The courts ofappeal, however, are not in complete agreement as to the manner in which the dismissal statutes apply [see Brock v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1790, 1801, 1805, 1808, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 678 ; *Preston v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 402, 406-407, 178 Cal. § 32.40 Timely Demand as Condition Precedent

[1] Time Specified in Agreement

[a] As Condition Precedent

A contractual requirement that a party's demand for arbitration must be made within a certain time is a condition precedent to the right to arbitration. Absent a legal excuse or subsequent modification of the parties' agreement, the failure to submit the dispute to arbitration within the agreed time precludes judicial enforcement of the right to arbitrate [Platt Pacific, Inc. v. Andelson (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 307, 319-321, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 597, 862 P.2d 158 (distinguishing Napa Association of Public Employees v. County of Napa (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 263, 270, 159 Cal. Rptr. 522 , which held that failure to timely submit labor grievance was not "waiver" of right to arbitrate in absence of intentional relinquishment of right or substantial prejudice)].

[b] Tolling During Pendency of Civil Action

By statute effective January 1, 2007, if an arbitration agreement requires that arbitration of a controversy be demanded or initiated by a party to the arbitration agreement within a stated period of time, the commencement of a civil action by that party based upon that controversy, within that period of time, tolls the applicable time limitations contained in the agreement, from the date the civil action is commenced until 30 days after a final determination by the court hearing the action that the party is required to arbitrate the controversy, or 30 days after the final termination of the civil action, whichever date occurs first [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.12]. The end of a tolling period under this provision, i.e., 30 days after the final determination, simply means that the contractual limitations clock begins to run again from where it stopped at the filing of the civil action [Pearson Dental Supplies, Inc. v. Superior Court (2010) 48 Cal. 4th 665, 675, 108 Cal. Rptr. 3d 171, 229 P.3d 83 (arbitration award vacated)].

[2] Time Not Specified in Agreement

[a] Reasonable Time Requirement

When the arbitration agreement does not specify a time within which arbitration must be demanded, a reasonable time is allowed [Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1035, 1043, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 381, 831 P.2d 821] .

[b] Determining Reasonableness

What constitutes a reasonable time is a question of fact, depending on the situation of the parties, the nature of the transaction, and the facts of the particular case. An unreasonable delay in demanding arbitration may constitute a waiver of the right to arbitrate [Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1035, 1043, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 381, 831 P.2d 821 ; Sawday v. Vista Irrigation Dist. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 833, 836-837, 52 Cal. Rptr. 1, 415 P.2d 816 ; see also Civ. Code § 1657].

In some cases, a delay of several years may be appropriate as, for example, when the delay is occasioned by the party opposing the demand for arbitration [Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1035, 1043-1044, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 381, 831 P.2d 821] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Delay Occasioned by Party Opposing Demand. An insured, while acting within the course and scope of his employment, is injured in an accident with an uninsured motorist. The insured files suit against the uninsured motorist and pursues a claim on the uninsured motorist provision of his own policy. The insurer learns that the insured is also pursuing workers' compensation benefits, including permanent disability, and informs the insured that it will not settle the uninsured motorist claim until the workers' compensation claim is resolved. The insured agrees to inform the insurer when that occurs. Some five years later and a month after the workers' compensation claim is settled, the insured so notifies the insurer, which in turn indicates it will not settle the uninsured motorist claim, that insured should do whatever he felt necessary to compel arbitration, and that the insurer would attempt to dismiss the claim. The insured petitions to compel arbitration, and the insurer opposes on the ground that the action was barred by the statute of limitations. The insured promptly petitions to compel arbitration. Is it too late? No. In this case, the court held that the statuteof limitations did not begin to run until the insurer refused to arbitrate. This holding was found to be consistent with the rule that a demand for arbitration must not be unreasonably delayed because under the facts it was reasonable for the insured to wait before demanding arbitration [Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1035, 1043-1044, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 381, 831 P.2d 821] .

[3] Time to Petition After Timely Demand

[a] Four Years From Refusal to Arbitrate

Once a timely demand for arbitration has been made, and refused, the party seeking arbitration has four years to petition to compel arbitration [Wagner Construction Co. v. Pacific Mechanical Corp. (2007) 41Cal. 4th 19, 29, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434, 157 P.3d 1029 (distinguishing limitations defense on underlying claim, which is for arbitrator to decide); Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1035, 1040-1043, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 381, 831 P.2d 821] . An action to compel arbitration is in essence a suit in equity to compel specific performance of a contract. The contract is considered breached, and thus the cause of action accrues, when the other party refuses to comply with a demand to arbitrate [Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1035, 1040-1043, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 381, 831 P.2d 821] . Then, the four-year limitation of Code Civ. Proc. § 337, applicable to breach of contract, applies to require the petition to compel arbitration to be filed within four years from the refusal to arbitrate [Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1035, 1039-1044, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 381, 831 P.2d 821] .

[b] Uninsured Motorist Arbitration

In the case of uninsured motorist arbitration, since January 1, 1996, the insured has been required to conclude arbitration within five years after it is instituted [Ins. Code § 11580.2(i)(2)(A)]. Arbitration may be considered instituted on the date the insured sends his or her demand for arbitration [Santangelo v. Allstate Insurance Company (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 804, 812, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 735] . Thus, if an insured does not conclude the arbitration within five years after demanding it, and he or she cannot establish any basis for waiver or estoppel of the five-year period for completion of arbitration, any petition for an order to compel that arbitration must be denied [Santangelo v. Allstate Insurance Company (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 804, 812, 816-818, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 735] . For further discussion, see § 32.92[3][e].

An issue regarding compliance with the limitation period applicable to the underling claim is also for the arbitrator to decide as an affirmative defense that falls naturally within the plain language of an agreement to arbitrate [Wagner Construction Co. v. Pacific Mechanical Corp. (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 19, 23, 25-26, 28, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434, 157 P.3d 1029 ; Kennedy, Cabot & Co. v. National Assn. of Securities Dealers, Inc. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1167, 1176-1179, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 66] . Compliance with any limitation period in an arbitration code designated by the parties in the arbitration agreement or in the arbitration agreement itself is generally determined in the arbitration proceeding, not by the court deciding whether to compel arbitration, as it is considered a question regarding the scope of arbitrable issues [see Boys Club of San Fernando Valley, Inc. v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1266, 1276, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 587 (two-year limitation period in construction performance bond, commencing on date last payment under construction contract was due)]. Similarly, compliance with a limitation period in an arbitration code, the parties designated in their submission agreement to govern their arbitration is determined by the arbitrator [Howsam v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. (2002) 537 U.S. 79, 85-86, 123 S. Ct. 588, 593-594, 154 L. Ed. 2d 491 ; Reed v. Mutual Service Corp. (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 524 (compliance with NASD Code of Arbitration Procedure, Rule 10304 6-year limitation period)].

Affirmative defenses to the underlying claim based on the statute of limitations are to be distinguished from claims that one party to the arbitration agreement has waived the right to arbitrate. Claims of waiver are to be determined by the court at the time of the petition to compel arbitration [Wagner Construction Co. v. Pacific Mechanical Corp. (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 19, 28-30, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434, 157 P.3d 1029 ; Freeman v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 473, 477, 483-486, 121 Cal. Rptr. 477, 535 P.2d 341] . Waiver is discussed at § 32.25, above.

§ 32.41 Form of Demand

A demand for arbitration has been analogized to a complaint in a civil lawsuit. Its purpose is to inform the other party of the fact that the party making the demand intends to ask for a determination of the dispute between them [Blatt v. Farley (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 621, 627, 276 Cal. Rptr. 612] . Although so analogized, an arbitration demand filed only in an agreed arbitral forum and not asserted by the claimant in any complaint, cross-complaint or petition filed in court is not a "complaint" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16, and thus, is not subject to a motion to strike under that section [Sheppard v. Lightpost Museum Fund (2006) 146 Cal. App. 4th 315, 319, 323-324, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 821] . A demand for arbitration is usually submitted in the form of a letter. For a form of demand, see § 32.90.

§ 32.42 Provisional Remedies Related to Arbitrable Issue

[1] Application for Provisional Remedy

[a] Right to Relief

A party to an arbitration agreement may file an application for a provisional remedy in connection with an arbitrable controversy. The sole ground for the application is that the award to which the applicant may be entitled may be rendered ineffectual without provisional relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(b); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 676.11(b)-(d) (conversion calculations when provisional remedy relates to foreign money claim); Jay Bharat Developers, Inc. v. Minidis (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 437, 442-444, 446-447, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 267 (regarding the termination of a franchise agreement that contained an arbitration provision that excluded disputes in which injunctive relief was sought; the court granted a preliminary injunction against the franchisees, holding that the injunction was warranted to prevent further irreparable economic harm); Simms v. NPCK Enterprises, Inc. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 233, 242, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 557 ; Titan/Value Equities Group, Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th, 482, 487 , 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 4] .

Conversely, it is improper for a court to grant provisional relief that could render the arbitration ineffective. For example, when the subject of the arbitration is whether a health insurance policy covers particular treatment, a mandatory preliminary injunction requiring the insurer to authorize and pay for treatment is improper, at least if the insured fails to make a showing that the injunction was necessary to preserve the status quo of his or her health and fails to attempt to move promptly through the arbitration process [Davenport v. Blue Cross of California (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 435, 453-454, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 641 (recognizing that under both California law and the Federal Arbitration Act, trial court has authority to grant injunctive relief if necessary to preserve the effectiveness of arbitration, but noting that federal courts are split on the issue as to the FAA)].

[b] Provisional Remedies Available

"Provisional remedy" includes the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(a)]:

- Attachments and temporary protective orders issued pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 481.010 et seq. [see Ch. 62, Attachment].

- Writs of possession issued pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 512.010 et seq. [see Ch. 119, Claim and Delivery].

- Preliminary injunctions and temporary restraining orders issued pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 527 [see Ch. 303, Injunctions].

- Receivers appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 564 [see Ch. 486, Receivers].

[c] Relation of Section 1281.8(b) to Provisional Remedy Statutes

Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(b) does not supplant the requirements of various code sections governing the specific provisional remedies listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(a). Thus, for example, a showing that the arbitrator's award might be rendered ineffectual is not sufficient to obtain a preliminary injunction. The moving party must also meet the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 526, 527 [Woolley v. Embassy Suites, Inc. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1520, 1527-1529, 278 Cal. Rptr. 719 (dissolving injunction when no showing was made that plaintiff was likely to prevail, and contract under which arbitration was proceeding was one for personal services and thus could not be specifically enforced)]. Nor is an injunction a proper remedy to take possession of property that is subject to a security interest. A writ of possession under the claim and delivery law that meets the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 512.010, 512.060, including posting of a bond, is the provisional remedy by which a secured party enforces its rights to take possession of collateral under Com. Code § 9609. An injunction to restrain removal of the property from a particular place (to prevent the debtor from putting it beyond the reach of the creditor), may be appropriate; and the writ or possession may take the form of an injunction or order to transfer the property to the possession of the petitioner. However, if the only showing made was that all that was necessary to maintain the status quo during arbitration was to restrain removal of the collateral from the debtor's place of business, a writ of possession should not issue [Simms v. NPCK Enterprises, Inc. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 233, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 557] .

[d] Proper Court

The application for a provisional remedy may be filed in the court in the county in which an arbitration proceeding is pending, or if an arbitration proceeding has not been commenced, in any proper court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(b)].

[e] Accompanying Papers

The application must be accompanied by a complaint and a statement stating whether or not the applicant is reserving his or her right to arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(b)].

[f] No Objection Based on Denial of Arbitrability

A claim by the party opposing issuance of a provisional remedy that the controversy is not subject to arbitration is not grounds for denial of any provisional remedy [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(c)].

[2] Arbitration Right Not Waived if Application Requests Stay

An application for a provisional remedy under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(b) does not operate to waive any right of arbitration that the applicant may have pursuant to a written agreement to arbitrate if, at the same time as the application for provisional relief is presented, the applicant also presents to the court an application that all other proceedings in the action be stayed pending the arbitration of any issue, question, or dispute that is claimed to be arbitrable under the agreement and that is relevant to the action pursuant to which the provisional remedy is sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(d)].

For a form of notice of motion for a stay, see § 32.97.

§ 32.43 Judicial Proceedings to Compel Arbitration

[1] Purpose of Proceedings

Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2 prescribes and limits the power of the superior court in passing on a petition to compel arbitration. The clear purpose and effect of that section is to require the court to determine in advance whether there is a duty to arbitrate the controversy that has arisen. The performance of this duty necessarily requires the court to examine and, to a limited extent, construe the underlying agreement [Freeman v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 473, 479-480, 121 Cal. Rptr. 477, 535 P.2d 341 ; State Farm Mut. Auto Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1297, 1301, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 711] .

Judicial review is strictly limited to a determination of whether the party resisting arbitration in fact agreed to arbitrate [State Farm Mut. Auto Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1297, 1301, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 711] . Doubts as to whether an arbitration clause applies to a particular dispute are to be resolved in favor of sending the parties to arbitration [Service Employees Internat. Union v. City of Los Angeles (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 136, 143, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 357] . For further discussion, see § 32.21[1].

If the court determines that a written agreement to arbitrate a controversy exists, an order to arbitrate the controversy may not be refused on the ground that the petitioner's contentions lack substantive merit [Valsan Partners Limited Partnership v. Calcor Space Facility, Inc. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 809, 817, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 785] . However, if the agreed method of arbitration is not possible, for example, when a party is no longer a member of the organization that was to conduct the arbitration and therefore not entitled to use that organization's services as arbitrator unless the other party consents, and that party does not consent, arbitration cannot be ordered [Provencio v. WMA Securities, Inc. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1028, 1032, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 524 (defendant no longer member of NASD; plaintiff would not consent to arbitration before NASD)].

[2] Pleadings

A party to a written arbitration agreement may petition the court for an order to compel arbitration if another party to the agreement refuses to arbitrate a controversy covered by the agreement [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1281, 1281.2, 1290]. Any person named as a respondent in a petition may file a response to it. A respondent who fails to duly serve and file a response will be deemed to have admitted the allegations of the petition [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4 (manner of service)]. The allegations of a response are deemed controverted or avoided [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290]. For forms of petition to compel arbitration, see § 32.91 et seq.

[3] Jurisdiction

[a] In California Courts

When parties enter into an agreement to arbitrate a matter in California, the agreement is deemed a consent to the jurisdiction of California courts to enforce the agreement by issuing orders provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq. and by entering a judgment on an award under the agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1293].

[b] Superior Courts

The superior court has jurisdiction over arbitration-related matters [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10], including limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86 (defining "limited civil case")].

With respect to arbitration, limited civil cases include all arbitration-related petitions filed under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1292-1293.2 if the petition is filed [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85.1, 86(a)(10)(A)]:

- Before the arbitration award becomes final and the matter to be resolved by arbitration is a limited civil case under Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(1)-(9); or

- After the arbitration award becomes final and the amount of the award and all other rulings, pronouncements, and decisions made in the award are within Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(1)-(9).

Uninsured motorist proceedings under Ins. Code § 11580.2, however, are not limited civil cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(10)(A)].

[c] Continuing Jurisdiction

After a petition has been filed, the court in which the petition was filed retains jurisdiction to determine any subsequent petition involving the same agreement to arbitrate and the same controversy, and any subsequent petition is to be filed in the same proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1292.6].

[4] Venue

Except as otherwise provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1292-1293.2, any petition made prior to the commencement of arbitration is to be filed in a court having jurisdiction in the following venues:

- The county where the agreement is to be performed or was made [Code Civ. Proc. § 1292(a)].

- If the agreement does not specify a county where the agreement is to be performed and the agreement was not made in any county in this state, the county where any party to the court proceeding resides or has a place of business [Code Civ. Proc. § 1292(b)].

- In any case not covered by Code Civ. Proc. § 1292(a), (b), above, in any county in this state [Code

Civ. Proc. § 1292(c)].

If a petition for an order to arbitrate under an alleged arbitration agreement relates to a controversy that is involved in an action or proceeding pending before a superior court, the petition must be filed in that action or proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1292.4].

[5] Four-Year Limitation Period for Filing Action

The period of limitation to enforce an agreement to arbitrate is the four-year period of Code Civ. Proc. § 337 [Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1035, 1040, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 381, 831 P.2d 821 ; Meyer v. Carnow (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 169, 173-174, 229 Cal. Rptr. 617] . The limitation period commences when the other party refuses a demand to arbitrate [Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1035, 1041-1043, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 381, 831 P.2d 821] .

This statute of limitations merely defines the outside time limits in which an action to compel arbitration must be initiated. This period may be shortened by a provision in the arbitration agreement stating a time frame for either party to request arbitration, and when no such time is stated, a reasonable time is allowed. What constitutes a reasonable time is a question of fact depending on the situation of the parties, the nature of the transaction, and the facts of the particular case. Among the facts the court may consider is any prejudice the opposing party may have suffered because of the delay [Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1035, 1043, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 381, 831 P.2d 821 ; Meyer v. Carnow (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 169, 175, 229 Cal. Rptr. 617] . When the underlying dispute involves medical malpractice, the four-year period of Section 337 governs, but in determining whether the party seeking arbitration has petitioned to compel within a reasonable time, the court may, by analogy, look to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 to the extent that section demonstrates the Legislatures's determination of what is a reasonable time in which to file a lawsuit based on medical malpractice [Meyer v. Carnow (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 169, 175, 229 Cal. Rptr. 617] .

For further discussion of time requirements for pursuing arbitration, see § 32.40.

[6] Calendar Preference

Proceedings to compel arbitration are to be given preference over all other civil actions or proceedings, except older matters of the same character and matters to which special precedence may be given by law, in the matter of being set for hearing and being heard so they can be quickly determined [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1291.2].

[7] Summary Hearing

[a] Notice and Manner of Hearing

A petition for an order to compel arbitration is to be heard in a summary way in the manner and on the notice provided by law for the making and hearing of motions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1003 et seq.; for discussion, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders], except that not less than 10 days' notice of the date set for the hearing on the petition must be given [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.2]. If the petition is served outside California, it may not be heard until at least 30 days after the date of service [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(b)(2)]. For a form of notice of a hearing on a petition to compel arbitration, see § 32.91[2].

Because under Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.2 the petition is made and heard in the manner provided for hearing motions, the facts are ordinarily to be proven by affidavit or declaration and documentary evidence, with oral testimony taken only in the court's discretion [Rosenthal v. Great Western Fin. Securities Corp. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 394, 413-414, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 875, 926 P.2d 1061] . A trial court does not necessarily abuse its discretion by resolving evidentiary conflicts without hearing live testimony. It would, however, be better practice for the court to hear oral testimony, with an opportunity for cross examination when the court is confronted with two sharply conflicting factual accounts, as is commonly the case when the enforcement of an arbitration clause is opposed based on alleged fraud [Rosenthal v. Great Western Fin. Securities Corp. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 394, 415, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 875, 926 P.2d 1061 ; but see Hotels Nevada v. L.A. Pacific Center, Inc. (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 754, 758, 762, 765, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 700 (court erred in denying motion to compel arbitration based on unverified pleading without holding evidentiary hearing, including testimony, to determine whether arbitrable agreement existed)].

This summary proceeding, however, is not analogous to a motion for summary judgment, in which the court does not resolve the dispute, but need only determine whether a legitimate factual dispute between the parties exists. On a petition to compel arbitration, the trial court is the trier of fact and must decide the fraud issue in order to dispose of the petition [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 972-973, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903 ; Hotels Nevada v. L.A. Pacific Center, Inc. (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 754, 758, 762, 765, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 700] .

[b] Evidence

In ruling on a petition to compel arbitration, the trial court may consider evidence on factual issues relating to the threshold issue of arbitrability, that is, whether, under the facts before the court, the contract excludes the dispute from its arbitration clause or includes the issue within that clause. Parties may submit declarations when factual issues are tendered with a motion to compel arbitration [Engineers & Architects Assn. v. Community Development Dept. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 644, 653, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 800 ; see also [a], above].

A party resisting arbitration must provide evidence by declaration or otherwise to support the facts underlying the argument in opposition to a petition to compel; otherwise the agreement must be enforced as a matter of law [see Owens v. Intertec Design, Inc. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 72, 74-75, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 840 ; see also [c], below].

[c] Raising Facts to Oppose Arbitration

A petition to compel arbitration may not be denied on the ground of fraud alleged in an unverified pleading, but only on evidentiary support by an affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury [Strauch v. Eyring (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 181, 185-186, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 747 ; see also Rosenthal v. Great Western Fin. Securities Corp. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 394, 415, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 875, 926 P.2d 1061 (matter heard on affidavits or declarations and documentary evidence, with evidentiary hearing in court's discretion, but better course to have live testimony when, as is common in fraud cases, court is confronted with two sharply conflicting factual accounts)]. Allegations in a verified complaint may sufficient to defeat a motion to compel arbitration [see Rice v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1016, 1027-1028, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 265 (under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009, 2011 verified complaint constitutes prima facie evidence of facts stated therein)], but even if a complaint is verified, it may not necessarily be used to defeat a petition to compel arbitration because pleadings usually contain allegations of ultimate facts rather than evidentiary facts [Strauch v. Eyring (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 181, 185-186, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 747] .

[8] Order to Arbitrate

[a] Grounds for Order to Compel Arbitration

If the court determines that an agreement to arbitrate the controversy exists, the court will order the parties to arbitrate the controversy, unless it determines that any of the following apply [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2]:

- The right to compel arbitration has been waived by the petitioner [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(a); for discussion, see § 32.25].

- Grounds exist for revocation of the agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(b); compare 9 U.S.C. § 2 (arbitration agreement as valid, irrevocable, and enforceable except on grounds that exist at law or in equity for revocation of any contract); see also discussion in § 32.21[3], [4]].

- A party to the arbitration agreement is also a party to a pending court action or special proceeding with a third party, arising out of the same transaction or series of related transactions, and there is a possibility of conflicting rulings on a common issue of law or fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c)].

The latter ground includes proceedings initiated by the party refusing to arbitrate after the petition to compel arbitration has been filed, but on or before the date of the hearing on the petition [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c)]. Subdivision (c) of section 1281.2 does not apply to agreements to arbitrate disputes as to the professional negligence of a health care provider made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1295. For further discussion relating to a determination of pending third party action, see [g], below.

The court's function in deciding whether a dispute is subject to arbitration is confined to ascertaining whether the party seeking arbitration is making a claim which on its face is governed by the contract [Charles J. Rounds Co. v. Joint Council of Teamsters No. 42 (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 888, 892, 95 Cal. Rptr. 53, 484 P.2d 1397] .

A proceeding to compel arbitration has been described as a suit in equity to compel specific performance of a contract [Brodke v. Alphatec Spine, Inc. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1569, 1574, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 554 ; Saika v. Gold (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1074, 1082, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 922] . Thus, under the principle that specific performance cannot be enforced against a party to a contract which is not, as to that party, just and reasonable, equity will not enforce an arbitration clause that renders arbitration an illusory remedy for one party [see Saika v. Gold (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1074, 1082, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 922 (declining to enforce clause allowing either party to seek trial de novo if arbitration award exceeded $25,000, when in reality that provision benefited only the health care provider and not the patient)].

For forms of orders relating to proceedings to compel arbitration, see §§ 32.95 and 32.96.

Contractual arbitration is a highly favored means of dispute resolution [Madden v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 699, 706-707, 131 Cal. Rptr. 882, 552 P.2d 1178 ; Engineers & Architects Assn. v. Community Development Dept. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 644, 652, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 800] . Despite this strong policy, the right to pursue claims in a judicial forum is also a substantial right not lightly to be deemed waived [Marsch v. Williams (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 250, 254, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 398] . The right to compel arbitration depends on the parties' contract, and the general policy favoring arbitration cannot take the place of an agreement to arbitrate [Marsch v. Williams (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 250, 254-255, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 398] . There is no public policy favoring arbitration of disputes which the parties have not agreed to arbitrate [Engineers & Architects Assn. v. Community Development Dept. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 644, 653, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 800] .

In determining whether a particular dispute falls within the purview of an arbitration agreement, effect must be given to the parties' intentions in light of the usual and ordinary meaning of the contractual language and the circumstances under which the agreement was made [Baker v. Sadick (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 618, 623-625, 208 Cal. Rptr. 676 ; see Victoria v. Superior Court (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 734, 744, 222 Cal. Rptr. 1, 710 P.2d 833] . However, the parties to an arbitration agreement cannot expand the jurisdiction of the court by contract or contravene Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1286.2 and 1286.6 by providing for judicial review of questions of law decided by the arbitrator or for review of whether the award is supported by substantial evidence [Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum Authority v. CC Partners

(2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 635, 645, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 363 (errors of law); Crowell v. Downey Community Hospital Foundation (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 730, 732, 739, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810 (law and fact)]. Whether or not a provision for judicial review will invalidate the entire arbitration agreement depends on the agreement itself, especially whether it has a severance clause requiring the agreement to be enforced to the extent not invalid. The agreement in Oakland-Alameda had a severance clause; and the court of appeal affirmed the judgment based on the confirmed award without reviewing it for any errors of law [Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum Authority v. CC Partners (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 635, 644-647, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 363] . The agreement in Crowell provided for judicial review both for errors of law and to determine whether the award was supported by substantial evidence, but had no severance clause. That court of appeal found the provision for judicial review to be so central to the arbitration agreement as to render the entire arbitration agreement void and unenforceable [Crowell v. Downey Community Hospital Foundation (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 730, 740, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810] .

[c] Agreement Construed in Favor of Arbitration

Doubts as to whether an arbitration clause applies to a particular dispute are to be resolved in favor of sending the parties to arbitration [Engineers & Architects Assn. v. Community Development Dept. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 644, 652, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 800] . An order to arbitrate the particular controversy should not be denied unless it may be said with positive assurance that the arbitration clause is not susceptible of an interpretation that covers the asserted dispute [Charles J. Rounds Co. v. Joint Council of Teamsters No. 42 (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 888, 892, 95 Cal. Rptr. 53, 484 P.2d 1397 ; Northcutt Lumber Co. v. Goldeen's Peninsula, Inc. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 440, 443, 106 Cal. Rptr. 353] . Only a clear-cut expression to exclude a claim from arbitration can prevail, and absent an expressly stated exclusionary purpose, an ambiguity must be resolved in favor of the arbitration process [East San Bernardino County Water Dist. v. City of San Bernardino (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 942, 953, 109 Cal. Rptr. 510] . Any ambiguities in the scope of arbitration are resolved in favor of coverage. Because arbitration is a favored method of dispute resolution, arbitration agreements should be liberally construed [Baker v. Sadick (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 618, 623-625, 208 Cal. Rptr. 676] . Other rules of construction may prevail over this rule, however. For example, in some circumstances, ambiguities in an arbitration clause in a standardized contract may be construed against its drafter [see Victoria v. Superior Court (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 734, 740-747, 222 Cal. Rptr. 1, 710 P.2d 833 (sexual assault by hospital employee on patient outside scope of arbitration provision requiring arbitration of all claims "arising from rendition or failure to render services")].

In construing an ambiguous arbitration clause, the court is guided by the rule that because contractual arbitration is a favored method of resolving disputes, every intendment in favor of arbitration will be indulged, and the rule that when two interpretations of a contract are reasonably permissible, the court will adopt the interpretation that renders the contract valid and effectual. The court may, however, also consider the right to jury trial and the rule that in cases of doubt, the issue should be resolved in favor of preserving a litigant's right to jury trial [Titan Group, Inc. v. Sonoma Valley County Sanitation Dist. (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 1122, 1127-1129, 211 Cal. Rptr. 62 ; for discussion of waiver of jury trial, see § 32.21[7]].

ILLUSTRATION:

Policy Favoring Arbitration Versus Right to Jury Trial. A contract contains two arbitration clauses. One simply calls for "arbitration if the parties hereto mutually agree," and the other provides that any dispute under the contract "may be subject to the decision of some competent person to be agreed on by the [parties]" and further sets out a process for selecting a referee whose decision would be final and conclusive. Can the court compel arbitration based on these clauses? No. The contract does not clearly waive the right to a jury trial. The first clause adds nothing to the contract regarding arbitration, and is simply meaningless. The second clause has meaning even if it does not provide for mandatory arbitration, because it provides a procedure for arbitration if the parties should agree to arbitrate a dispute. There being no clear waiver of jury trial, the court in this case held that arbitration could not be compelled [Titan Group, Inc. v. Sonoma Valley County Sanitation Dist. (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 1122, 1127-1129, 211 Cal. Rptr. 62] .

Moreover, there is no public policy favoring arbitration of disputes which the parties have not agreed to arbitrate [Engineers & Architects Assn. v. Community Development Dept. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 644, 653, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 800] .

[d] Lack of Substantive Merit Is Not a Factor

If the court determines that a written agreement to arbitrate a controversy exists, an order to arbitrate may not be refused on the ground that the petitioner's contentions lack substantive merit [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2]. Even though the Federal Arbitration Act (9 U.S.C. §§ 1-208), which will apply to a case involving maritime law or interstate or foreign commerce, contains no provision for a stay of arbitration when third-party issues are involved, Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2 is not in conflict with the policies of the federal act and is therefore not preempted [see Volt Info. Scis., Inc. v. Board of Trustees (1989) 489 U.S. 468, 476-479, 109 S. Ct. 1248, 103 L. Ed. 2d 488 ; Cronus Invs., Inc. v. Concierge Servs. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 376, 35 Cal. 4th 376, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 540, 107 P.3d 217 (discussed at § 32.24[2][c], addressing only Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c))].

[e] Court Must Order Entire Controversy Determined by Arbitrator

When the prerequisites of Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2 exist for ordering arbitration, that is, a valid agreement to arbitrate exists and neither has been waived nor is subject to revocation, the entirety of the controversy is to be determined by the arbitrators [Orpustan v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 988, 991-992, 103 Cal. Rptr. 919, 500 P.2d 1119 (disapproving earlier cases allowing preliminary judicial determination of jurisdictional facts other than the issues encompassed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2); Morris v. Zukerman (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 91, 95-96, 64 Cal. Rptr. 714] ; the court has no discretion but to order arbitration, and its refusal to do so is reversible error [Morris v. Zukerman (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 91, 97, 64 Cal. Rptr. 714 ; see Pioneer Take Out Corp. v. Bhavsar (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1353, 1358, 257 Cal. Rptr. 749 (abuse of discretion to fail to compel arbitration when concerns of parties could be satisfied by compelling arbitration but staying it until resolution of pending litigation of intertwined issues)].

[f] Severable Issues

If the court determines that there are other issues between the petitioner and respondent which are not subject to arbitration and which are the subject of a pending action or special proceeding between the petitioner and the respondent and that a determination of such issues may make the arbitration unnecessary, the court may delay its order to arbitrate until a determination of such other issues or until such earlier time as the court specifies [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2]. Conversely, if arbitration could make trial of the severable issues unnecessary, the court may order arbitration and stay action on the severable issues or remedies, such as injunctions, pending resolution of the arbitration [see, e.g., Coast Plaza Doctors Hospital v. Blue Cross of California (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 677, 691-692, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 809] .

[g] Pending Action Involving Third Party

[i] Court's Discretion Under Code of Civil Procedure Section 1281.2(c)

If the court determines that a party to the arbitration agreement is also a party to a pending court action or special proceeding with a third party, arising out of the same transaction or series of related transactions, and there is a possibility of conflicting rulings on a common issue of law or fact, the court has the following options [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c)]:

- Refuse to enforce the arbitration agreement and order intervention or joinder of all parties in a single action or special proceeding; or

- Order intervention or joinder as to all or only certain issues; or

- Order arbitration among the parties who have agreed to arbitration and stay the pending court action or special proceeding pending the outcome of the arbitration proceeding; or

- Stay arbitration pending the outcome of the court action or special proceeding [see One World Networks Integrated Technologies, Inc. v. Duitch (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1038, 1044, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843 (only party to arbitration has standing under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c) to seek stay of arbitration)].

In this context, a pending court action or special proceeding includes an action or proceeding initiated by the party refusing to arbitrate after the petition to compel arbitration was filed, but on or before the date of hearing on the petition [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c)]. There is no requirement that a party invoking Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c) to resist arbitration also be a party to litigation involving a third party (who has not signed the arbitration agreement). Neither the plain language of the statute nor its legislative history imposes such a requirement. It is enough that the party resisting arbitration be a party to the transaction that gave rise to the controversy being litigated and that there is a possibility of conflicting rulings on common issues in the litigation and in any arbitration proceeding [Whalely v. Sony Computer Entm't Am., Inc. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 479, 484-486, 488, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88] .

[ii] Cases Governed by Federal Arbitration Act

If the controversy is one involving interstate commerce, the matter will be governed by the Federal Arbitration Act (9 U.S.C. § 1 et seq.), which unlike Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c), gives a court no option but to compel arbitration when a party to the arbitration agreement is also a party to a pending court action with a third party, and there is a possibility of conflicting rulings on a common issue of laws or fact [Rodriguez v. American Technologies, Inc. (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1110, 1115-1117, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 437] . Nevertheless, Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c), is not automatically preempted by the FAA: first, because the FAA has no procedural provisions applicable in state court, and second, because it is not a special rule limiting the authority of arbitrators. It is an evenhanded law that is designed to avoid conflicting rulings on common issue of fact and law among the interested parties. It allows the trial court to stay arbitration proceedings while the concurrent lawsuit proceeds, or to stay the lawsuit while arbitration proceeds [Volt Info. Scis., Inc. v. Board of Trustees (1989) 489 U.S. 468, 476-479, 109 S. Ct. 1248, 103 L. Ed. 2d 488 ; Cronus Invs., Inc. v. Concierge Servs. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 376, 389-392, 394, 35 Cal. 4th 376, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 540, 107 P.3d 217 (disapproving Energy Group, Inc. v. Liddington (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1520, 238 Cal. Rptr. 202 and Warren-Guthrie v. Health Net (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 804, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 260 to the extent their holdings are predicated on the conclusion that section 1281.2(c) limits the authority of arbitrators and conflicts with the FAA); see also Mount Diablo Medical Center v. Health Net of California, Inc. (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 711, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 607 (Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2 applicable and not preempted); Henry v. Alcove Inv., Inc. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 94, 101-102, 284 Cal. Rptr. 255 (following Volt to affirm stay)]. Volt and Cronus both involved arbitration agreements with choice-of-law provisions that indicated California law should be applicable.

However, in a situation in which the contract contains no explicit choice of law provision but a broad and unconditional provision calling for the parties to arbitrate "in conformance with" and "in agreement with" the FAA, the parties will be deemed to have adopted all of the FAA, including its procedural provisions; a California court will have no authority to exercise its discretion under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c) [Rodriguez v. American Technologies, Inc. (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1110, 1122, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 437] . In that situation, the third party civil action which is not subject to arbitration is still subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c). Thus, if any party to that action moves to stay the litigation pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.4, the court must order a stay, except to the extent that arbitrable issues are severable [Rodriguez v. American Technologies, Inc. (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1110, 1122, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 437 ; see also Marcus v. Superior Court (2977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 204, 209, 211-212, 141 Cal. Rptr. 890 (party moving to stay action under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.4 need not be party to arbitration agreement); for a form of motion to stay proceedings, see § 32.97].

[iii] Medical Malpractice Cases

These options do not apply when the arbitration agreement was made under Code Civ. Proc. § 1295, relating to arbitration of medical malpractice disputes [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c)]. However, many contracts for medical services are not subject to Section 1295, and the options available under Section 1281.2(c) are therefore available in may situations involving medical malpractice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(f) (exception for health care service plan contracts offered by organizations registered under Gov. Code § 12530 et seq. or Health & Safety Code § 1340 et seq. that comply with Health & Safety Code requirements for arbitration clauses)]. Also, many arbitration agreements by physicians and hospitals provide for any third party who is not a party to the agreement, but is necessary for complete resolution of any matter required to be arbitrated under the agreement, to be joined in the arbitration and also provide, or incorporate the California Hospital Association-California Medical Association Rules for the Arbitration of Hospital and Medical Fee Disputes (CHA-CMA Rules), which provide, that the arbitrator determine whether anyone must be joined in the arbitration to insure a complete resolution of the dispute. Thus, an agreement to be arbitrated under the CHA-CMA Rules or similar rules will be enforced to refer the issue of the third party's joinder to the arbitrator [Zakarian v. Bekov (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 316, 325-327, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 623 (agreement was governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1295; third party wanted to be joined in arbitration)]. A well-drafted arbitration provision of this nature will include the signatories' consent to joinder of any person necessary to full resolution of an arbitrable dispute.

[iv] Joinder of Civil Case and Arbitration

The power of the court under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c) to order joinder of an arbitration proceeding and a civil action to avoid inconsistent rulings extends to cases involving uninsured motorist arbitration [Mercury Insurance Group v. Superior Court (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 332, 345, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 308, 965 P.2d 1178 ; Prudential Property & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 275, 278-279, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 227 ; see Ins. Code § 11580.2]. Thus, inconsistent rulings may be avoided in cases involving a combination of insured and uninsured parties.

PRACTICE TIP:

Joinder Also Saves Expenses. In addition to avoiding inconsistent rulings, joinder, by avoiding two forums hearing the same facts and issues, will save time and money. By Michael S. Fields

[h] Unlawful Detainer Actions

Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c) may even require arbitration of an unlawful detainer action, which is usually entitled to priority. Examples of circumstances in which this would be appropriate are the following [Pioneer Take Out Corp. v. Bhavsar (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1353, 1357-1358, 257 Cal. Rptr. 749] :

- A license agreement provided for arbitration but the related lease did not.

- The franchisee and the franchisor were parties to pending class action regarding the license agreement.

- The grounds for the franchisor's termination of the lease were alleged breaches of the same provisions of the license agreement that were the subject of the class action, arbitration of the unlawful detainer action had to be compelled, but stayed until resolution of the class action in order to avoid conflicting rulings.

[i] No Jurisdiction to Compel Arbitration After Plaintiff's Voluntary Dismissal of Action

There is nothing to preclude a plaintiff's dismissal of a complaint after a case has been ordered into arbitration, but before an arbitration has commenced; after that dismissal, the trial court no longer has jurisdiction to order the parties to complete the arbitration [Cardiff Equities, Inc. v. Superior Court (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1541, 1549-1551, 83 Cal.

Rptr. 3d 699]. To preclude a plaintiff from voluntarily dismissing a case ordered to arbitration before the arbitration had commenced would be at odds with the right of a plaintiff to dismiss a case voluntarily and without prejudice set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(1) and (c) [Cardiff Equities, Inc. v. Superior Court (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1541, 1548-1549, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 699 (criticizing Blake v. Ecker (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 728, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 422)].

[9] Statement of Decision

A court is not required to make a requested statement of decision when an order compelling arbitration has been issued [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1291, 1294].

When a court has issued an order dismissing or denying a petition to compel arbitration, however, a statement of decision shall be made if requested pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 632 [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1291, 1294(a); for procedure and forms dealing with statements of decision in civil actions, see Ch. 529, Statement of Decision].

[10] Costs and Fees

The Supreme Court has reversed lower court decisions refusing to grant costs and fees to a qualifying prevailing party who successfully opposed a petition to compel arbitration based on a contract providing for cost and fee awards, even though the underlying litigation on the merits was not final and further litigation was contemplated [Christensen v. Dewor Developments (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 778, 786-787, 191 Cal. Rptr. 8, 661 P.2d 1088 (denial of fee award was abuse of discretion)]. In accordance with that decision, the Fourth District, Division One reversed a trial court order denying attorney's fees to a party who successfully opposed a petition to compel arbitration in a special proceeding [Otay River Constructors v. San Diego Expressway (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 796, 807, 809, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434]. However, the First District, Division Five has concluded that the trial court acted properly in denying attorney fees to a party that successfully opposed a motion to compel arbitration, where the claims of the parties remain before the court and subject to judicial determination [Green v. Mt. Diablo Hospital Dist. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 63, 76-77, 254 Cal. Rptr. 689].

In a case in which the prevailing party was the petitioner to compel arbitration [Acosta v. Kerrigan (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 1124, 1127, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 865], the Second District, Division Seven has ruled that where a contract containing an arbitration clause provides for attorney's fees and costs to one party when the other party initiates a court action based on the contract, the prevailing party in an action to compel arbitration may be entitled to an award of fees and costs under the applicable standards, regardless of who might become the prevailing party in any subsequent arbitration [compare Acosta v. Kerrigan (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 1124, 1131-1132, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 865 (defendant in court action who filed successful petition to compel arbitration entitled to fees and costs under clause in lease), with Lachkar v. Lachkar (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 641, 647-649, 227 Cal. Rptr. 501 (prevailing party under a prior version of Civ. Code § 1717 not entitled to costs and fees after a successful petition to compel arbitration on those grounds due to lack of final determination)].

Furthermore, it is proper for the court to make the award of costs and fees, rather than to defer to the arbitrator in any subsequent arbitration [Acosta v. Kerrigan (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 1124, 1130, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 865 (denying declaration that arbitration should not proceed)]. If Civ. Code § 1717 applies, the prevailing party has to notice a motion for an award of costs and fees following judgment [Civ. Code § 1717; see, e.g., Christensen v. Dewor Developments (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 778, 786, 191 Cal. Rptr. 8, 661 P.2d 1088].

For discussion of costs and fees generally, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees .

§ 32.44 Appeal and Review

[1] Order Denying Petition to Compel

[a] Immediately Appealable

An aggrieved party may appeal from an order dismissing or denying a petition to compel arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1294(a); Fireman's Fund Ins. Companies v. Younesi (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 451, 456-457, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671 (no distinction between contractual and stautory schemes to enforce arbitration; involving motion to compel arbitration under Civ. Code § 2860(c)); Gustafson v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 361, 363, 107 Cal. Rptr. 243] . An order denying arbitration in California is appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 1294(a) even if it directs arbitration in another state [Porter v. United Services Automobile Assn. (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 837, 838-840, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 860] . However, in a unique situation in which the motion to compel arbitration sought only a determination of whether the court or the arbitrator would determine arbitrability, the trial court's order refusing to compel arbitration of the arbitrability issue was not appealable. Because the issue of whether any claims in the complaint were to be arbitrated remained for further determination in the trial court, there was no final judgment within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1294; and no appeal could be taken from the trial court's order [Vivid Video, Inc. v. Playboy Entertainment Group, Inc. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 434, 437, 439, 443-444, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 232 (dismissing appeal and noting that defendants could have filed mandate petition to challenge trial court's ruling)].

An immediate appeal must be taken under Code Civ. Proc. § 1294(a), because subsequent review of an order dismissing or denying a petition to compel arbitration, on appeal from the final judgment, is precluded by Code Civ. Proc. § 906 [see Hobbs v. Eichler (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 174, 190-191, 210 Cal. Rptr. 387] .

An order denying a motion to compel arbitration is immediately appealable even if it is denied "without prejudice," as may be the case when the court determines that class certification issues must be decided before referring the matter to arbitration [Sanders v. Kinko's, Inc. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 1110-1111, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 766] .

There is no uniform standard of review for evaluating an order denying a motion to compel arbitration. If the trial court's order is based on a decision of fact, then the reviewing court adopts a substantial evidence standard. Alternatively, if the court's denial rests solely on a decision of law, then a de novo standard of review is employed [; Robertson v. Health Net of California, Inc. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 1419, 1425, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 547].

[b] Order Staying Arbitration Is Equivalent to Denial

An order staying arbitration is appealable because it is the functional equivalent of an order refusing to compel arbitration [Sanders v. Kinko's, Inc. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 1110-1111, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 766 (order stayed arbitration until class certification issues were resolved)]. Allowing appeal of an order staying arbitration implements the legislative intent to make arbitration available as a less costly and more expeditious manner of resolving disputes than litigation. Denying immediate review would subject the party who claimed to have a right to arbitrate to significant delay and defeats the purpose of arbitration [Henry v. Alcove Investment, Inc. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 94, 101-102, 284 Cal. Rptr. 255 (arbitration stayed under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c))].

[2] Order Granting Petition

An order compelling arbitration is not appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 1294 [Graham v. Scissor-Tail, Inc. (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 807, 811 n.1, 171 Cal. Rptr. 604, 623 P.2d 165 ; Fagelbaum & Heller LLP v. Smylie (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1351, 1359, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 252 ; Muao v. Grosvenor Properties (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1085, 1090, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 131 ; Hughes v. Blue Cross of Northern California (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 832, 847-848, 263 Cal. Rptr. 850 ; see also Melchor Investment Co. v. Rolm Systems (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 587, 591, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 343 (order denying preliminary injunction barring arbitration as nonappealable)].

The fact that an arbitration proceeding is governed by the Federal Arbitration Act and in federal court, section 16(a)(3) of the FAA [9 U.S.C. § 16(a)(3)] would allow an immediate appeal from an order compelling arbitration does not allow an appeal of an order of a California state court compelling arbitration [Muao v. Grosvenor Properties, Ltd. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1085, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 131] .

The order compelling arbitration is reviewable on appeal from a judgment confirming an award, which itself is appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 1294(d) [Graham v. Scissor-Tail, Inc. (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 807, 811 n. 1, 171 Cal. Rptr. 604, 623 P.2d 165 ; Fagelbaum & Heller LLP v. Smylie (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1351, 1359, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 252 ; Hughes v. Blue Cross of Northern California (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 832, 847-848, 263 Cal. Rptr. 850 ; La Pietra v. Freed (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 1025, 1030-1031, 151 Cal. Rptr. 554]. If the court that orders arbitration also dismisses, rather than stays, the related civil action, the dismissal make be appealed [Muao v. Grosvenor Properties (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1085, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 131] .

The standard of review of an order compelling arbitration is substantial evidence where the trial court's decision was based upon the resolution of disputed facts or de novo where the facts are not in conflict [Fagelbaum & Heller LLP v. Smylie (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1351, 1360, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 252].

[b] Review by Writ of Mandate or Prohibition

An appeal from the judgment is not the exclusive remedy for testing the validity of an order compelling arbitration. If matters ordered arbitrated fall clearly outside the scope of the arbitration agreement and the arbitration process would appear to be unduly time consuming or expensive, relief may be sought by writ of prohibition, prohibiting the court from enforcing its order compelling arbitration, or by writ of mandate, compelling the trial court to set aside its order to arbitrate and, if such is the case, compelling the trial court to exercise its jurisdiction to hear and decide a pending civil action involving the nonarbitrable dispute [Lesser Towers, Inc. v. Roscoe-Ajax Constr. Co. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 675, 692-693, 77 Cal. Rptr. 100 (dictum); Cook v. Superior Court (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 880, 884, 50 Cal. Rptr. 81 (writ of mandate denied on the merits); Bertero v. Superior Court (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 213, 222, 30 Cal. Rptr. 719 (peremptory writ of mandate issued); see also Weiman v. Superior Court (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 710, 711-715, 336 P.2d 489 (order compelling arbitration was reviewed in prohibition and mandate proceeding without discussion of those remedies; both writs were denied on the merits); for procedure and forms, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition].

An appeal of an order compelling arbitration has been treated as a writ of mandate to allow immediate review of an order that compelled arbitration of an individual claim at the same time the lower court denied the appellant's motion to certify a class. There is a "death knell" doctrine which permits an appeal court to review an order denying a motion to certify a class when it is unlikely that the case will proceed as an individual action. Although the situation did not fall within the death knell doctrine, because of the unusual circumstances and the fact that the issue of class arbitration would otherwise likely evade appellate review, the court of appeal determined to review the matter and treated the appeal as a writ of mandate [Szetela v. Discover Bank (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1098, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 862] .

[3] Procedure for Appeal and Scope of Review

An appeal is taken in the same manner as an appeal from an order or judgment in a civil action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1294.2].

On appeal, the court may review the decision and any intermediate ruling, proceeding, order, or decision that involves the merits or necessarily affects the order or judgment appealled from, or that substantially affects the rights of a party. The court may also review any order on motion for a new trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 1294.2].

The respondent on appeal, or the party in whose favor the judgment or order was given may, without appealing from the judgment, request the court to and it may review any of the matters noted above to determine whether or not the appellant was prejudiced by the error or errors on which he relies for reversal or modification of the judgment or order from which the appeal is taken [Code Civ. Proc. § 1294.2].

These provisions, however, do not authorize the court to review any decision or order from which an appeal might have been taken [Code Civ. Proc. § 1294.2].

For procedure and forms for use on appeal, generally, see Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview , through Ch. 54, Appeal: California Supreme Court Review .

[4] Costs and Fees

Where a contract containing an arbitration clause provides for attorney's fees and costs to one party when the other party initiates a court action based on the contract, the prevailing party in an action to compel arbitration may be entitled to an award of fees and costs under the applicable standards, regardless of who might become the prevailing party in any subsequent arbitration [Christensen v. Dewor Developments (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 778, 786-787, 191 Cal. Rptr. 8, 661 P.2d 1088 (ordering trial court to award fees on appeal)].

For discussion of costs and fees generally, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees .

§ 32.51 Dismissal of Arbitration Proceedings

[1] Indirect Application of Dismissal Statutes

Several courts have held that the five-year dismissal statutes apply to lawsuits subject to contractual arbitration, even if the case is in arbitration [Kuzmanoff v. Kron (1988) 207 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 3 , 255 Cal. Rptr. 168 (citing cases)]. While these courts agree that the dismissal statutes apply only to court actions and do not apply directly to arbitration proceedings, the statutory concepts and limits have, however, been imported into the guidelines for determining whether a matter submitted to contractual arbitration should be dismissed for unreasonable delay in bringing the matter to a conclusion [Burgess v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1077, 1081, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 488 (1st Dist., Div. 5) ; Byerly v. Sale (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1312, 1315, 251 Cal. Rptr. 749 (4th Dist., Div. 3) ; Young v. Ross-Loos Medical Group Inc. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 669, 673, 185 Cal. Rptr. 536 (2nd Dist., Div. 2) ; Preston v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 402, 408-409, 178 Cal. Rptr. 882 (2nd Dist., Div. 2)] . As discussed below, these courts are not in complete agreement regarding the manner of indirectly applying the dismissal statutes to contractual arbitration proceedings.

[2] Procedure for Applying Dismissal Statutes

The first point of conflict among courts is the proper procedural context for applying the dismissal statutes in the arbitration context. One court of appeal has held that once a trial court orders a matter into contractual arbitration and stays the action pending arbitration, that court nevertheless retains jurisdiction to entertain either a petition by plaintiff to move the arbitration forward or a motion by defendant to dismiss the arbitration for plaintiff's unreasonable delay in prosecuting the matter. In the latter situation, the effect of the court's order of dismissal is to vacate the order for arbitration and terminate the arbitration itself [Preston v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 402, 406-407, 178 Cal. Rptr. 882 (2nd Dist., Div. 2)] . Other courts hold that the action at law and the arbitration proceeding are independent remedies, that dismissal of the action has no effect on the arbitration proceeding, and that the court has no jurisdiction to dismiss the arbitration proceeding, and indeed may not dismiss the action while it is stayed pending arbitration because the time the action is stayed must be excluded from the calculation of the five-year period [Brock v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1790, 1792-1793, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 678 (3rd Dist.; applying Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(b)); see also Blake v. Ecker (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 728, 738, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 422 (2nd Dist., Div. 3; once arbitration is ordered, trial court no longer has jurisdiction to grant motion for dismissal; involved discretionary dismissal after two years pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.410, 583.420)].

Similarly, other courts of appeal hold that once a trial court has stayed an action and ordered the matter into contractual arbitration, its subsequent dismissal of the stayed complaint has absolutely no effect on the pending arbitration, which is a proceeding outside the judicial system [Brock v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1790, 1801, 1805, 1808, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 678 (3rd Dist.) ; Byerly v. Sale (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1312, 1314-1316, 251 Cal. Rptr. 749 (4th Dist., Div. 3) ; see also Nanfito v. Superior Court (1991) 2 Cal. App. 4th 315, 318, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 876 (4th Dist., Div. 3; describing contractual arbitration as having life of its own outside judicial system); Kuzmanoff v. Kron (1988) 207 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 4-5 , 255 Cal. Rptr. 168 (affirming the trial court's order dismissing the complaint but reversing its order denying plaintiff's petition to move the arbitration forward)].

Most courts of appeal agree that the appropriate procedure is for the offended party to move in the arbitration proceeding to have the arbitrator, not the court, terminate or dismiss the arbitration if the matter is not brought to arbitration within five (or two) years because the other party has failed to proceed with reasonable diligence [Blake v. Ecker (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 728, 737-738, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 422 (2nd Dist., Div. 3; involved discretionary dismissal after two years pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.410, 583.420); Titan/Value Equities Group, Inc. (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th, 482, 487-488 , 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 4 (4th Dist., Div. 1) ; Burgess v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1077, 1081, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 488 (1st Dist., Div. 5) ; Brock v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1790, 1808, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 678 (3rd Dist.) ; Byerly v. Sale (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1312, 1316, 251 Cal. Rptr. 749 (4th Dist., Div. 3)] . Even though the dismissal statutes do not directly apply to arbitration proceedings, their concepts and limits have been imported into the test of reasonable diligence in bringing a claim to arbitration, and an arbitrator may dismiss a matter for failure to proceed with reasonable diligence [Burgess v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1077, 1081, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 488 (1st Dist., Div. 5)] .

A dismissal by the arbitrator is in effect its award in the matter, that plaintiff take nothing on his or her claim by reason of dilatory prosecution [see Young v. Ross-Loos Medical Group, Inc. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 669, 673, 185 Cal. Rptr. 536 (2nd Dist., Div. 2)] . Thus, once an action is stayed and the matter ordered to contractual arbitration, the trial court has no reason to entertain a motion to dismiss the complaint; its involvement is limited merely to confirming, correcting, or vacating the arbitration award [Byerly v. Sale (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1312, 1315-1316, 251 Cal. Rptr. 749 (4th Dist., Div. 3; disagreeing with the opinion in Preston v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 402, 406, 178 Cal. Rptr. 882 (2nd Dist., Div. 2) , to the extent that it suggested that the trial court's dismissal of the underlying complaint somehow terminates the pending arbitration)].

An arbitrator's order dismissing the matter for failure to conclude the arbitration within five years may be confirmed or vacated by the trial court [see Burgess v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1077, 1081-1082, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 488 (1st Dist., Div. 5)] . If the arbitrator is preventing the arbitration from going forward, the party's remedy is to petition the court for an appropriate order expediting the arbitration proceeding. Such a situation will not toll the five-year period on grounds of impossibility or impracticability [Burgess v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1077, 1081, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 488 (1st Dist., Div. 5) ; Boutwell v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1371, 1374, 254 Cal. Rptr. 173 (1st Dist., Div. 5) ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(c) (tolling period)].

[3] Calculating Five-Year Period

A second point of conflict among courts concerns the manner of calculating the five-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310. One court, interpreting former Code Civ. Proc. § 583(b) (now Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310), held that, when an action is subject to contractual arbitration, the plaintiff must bring the action to arbitration within five years after the filing of the complaint in order to avoid dismissal [Lockhart-Mummery v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 891, 896, 163 Cal. Rptr. 325 (2nd Dist., Div. 1)] .

Other courts of appeal, also interpreting former Code Civ. Proc. § 583(b), hold that the five-year period does not properly begin with the filing of the complaint, but rather with the filing by the court of the order compelling arbitration [Gainey v. Occidental Land Research (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1051, 1054, 231 Cal. Rptr. 249 (2nd Dist., Div. 5) ; Preston v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 402, 408-410, 178 Cal. Rptr. 882 (2nd Dist., Div. 2)] .

Yet another court of appeal, interpreting Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310-583.360, takes a third position. That is, the five-year period normally does not begin to run until the filing of the order compelling arbitration. This is because of the operation of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340, which tolls the mandatory period during any time in which it is impossible, impracticable, or futile for plaintiff to bring the matter to trial. Thus, the five-year period is tolled between the date the complaint is filed and the date the order compelling arbitration is filed, because during this period it is generally not possible or practical to bring the matter either to arbitration or to trial. The tolling provision does not apply, however, if the plaintiff has not exercised reasonable diligence in pursuing the cause of action [Boutwell v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1371, 1374, 254 Cal. Rptr. 173 (1st Dist., Div. 5)] .

All of these interpretations arose in cases in which the issue was whether the action at law should be dismissed. Therefore, these interpretations are not of great significance under the view that the action at law is stayed pending arbitration and that the issue of dismissal for delay is one for the arbitrator [see Burgess v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1077, 1081, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 488 (1st Dist., Div. 5) ; Brock v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1790, 1808, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 678 (3rd Dist.) ; for discussion, see [2], above]. These interpretations might, however, be persuasive in arguing to the arbitrator for or against dismissal of the arbitration proceeding.

Parties to construction contract with public agency are permitted to expressly agree in writing that, in any arbitration to resolve dispute relating to contract, arbitrator's award is to be supported by law and substantial evidence; court vacation of award that is not so supported or that is based on error of law. Code Civ. Proc. § 1296

[f] Uninsured Motorists

Automobile liability policies are required to contain uninsured motorist coverage providing for arbitration of disputes over liability or amount of damages. Ins. Code § 11580.2(f)

[4] Jurisdiction and Venue

When arbitration-related petitions are limited civil cases. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(10)(A)

Jurisdiction and venue of court in proceedings to enforce arbitration agreements. Code Civ. Proc. § 1292

Continuing jurisdiction of court in which petition is filed under arbitration statutes (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2). Code Civ. Proc. § 1292.6

Agreement to arbitrate in California is deemed consent to jurisdiction of state courts to enforce agreement. Code Civ. Proc. § 1293

[5] Pleadings

Permitted pleadings in judicial proceedings under arbitration statutes (Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq.). Code Civ. Proc. § 1290

[6] Notice of Petition

Notice of petitions under statutes relating to contractual arbitration; petitions to be heard in summary fashion. Code

Civ. Proc. § 1290.2

[7] Stay of Court Proceedings

Stay of pending court proceedings while petition for arbitration or arbitration proceedings are pending. Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.4

Motion for stay to be made in court in which action is pending. Code Civ. Proc. § 1292.8

Proceedings under arbitration statutes are given preference in setting for hearing. Code Civ. Proc. § 1291.2

[9] Summary Hearing

Petitions under arbitration statutes (Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq.) to be heard in summary way and on notice. Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.2

[10] Court Order to Arbitrate

Determinations to be made by court prior to issuing order compelling arbitration. Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2

Petition for order to arbitrate controversy at issue in pending superior court action or proceeding is required to be filed in that action or proceeding. Code Civ. Proc. § 1292.4

[11] Statement of Decision

Court is required to make statement of decision on request when order or judgment, other than special order after final judgment, is made appealable under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2. Code Civ. Proc. § 1291

[12] Appeal

Order dismissing or denying petition to compel arbitration is appealable. Code Civ. Proc. § 1294(a)

§ 32.63 Decisions

[1] Policy Favoring Arbitration

Strong public policy is in favor of arbitration. Taylor v. Crane (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 442, 452, 155 Cal. Rptr. 695, 595 P.2d 129 ; United Firefighters v. City of Los Angeles (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 383, 389, 200 Cal. Rptr. 233

Court is to grant order directing arbitration unless arbitration clause is not susceptible of interpretation that covers dispute. Charles J. Rounds Co. v. Joint Council of Teamsters No. 42 (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 888, 892, 95 Cal. Rptr. 53, 484 P.2d 1397 ; Morris v. Zukerman (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 91, 96, 64 Cal. Rptr. 714

Although strong policy exists in favor of enforcing agreements to arbitrate, no policy exists that compels persons to accept arbitration of controversies that they have not agreed to arbitrate. Service Employees International Union v. County of Napa (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 946, 955, 160 Cal. Rptr. 810 ; but see United Transportation Union v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 804, 808-809, 813-815, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 702 (rejecting Service Employees analysis)

[2] Agreement to Arbitrate

[a] Existence of Agreement

Arbitration provision in contract packed with computer ordered by telephone became binding when customer did not return computer within 30 days in accordance with statement in materials that contract would become binding on buyer who did not return computer within 30 days. Hill v. Gateway 2000, (7th Cir. 1997) 105 F.3d 1147, 1148-1150

Trial court erred by failing to determine whether party whose counsel signed on behalf of the party had expressly authorized counsel to do so or, in the absence of that authorization, ratified the stipulation to arbitrate by waiting until the proceeding to confirm the arbitrator's award before raising the validity of the agreement. The confirmation was reversed and remanded. Toal v. Tardif (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1208, 1223, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 97

Arbitration agreement subject to 30-day revocation period in Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 and signed by an adult party four days before party's death never took effect because revocation period had not expired. There was no basis for tolling the revocation per iod or allowing a third party to rescind it. Rodriguez v. Superior Ct. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1469-1474, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 728

No agreement to arbitrate was created by dispute form employee signed because it did not look like contract and did not alert employee that he was agreeing to binding arbitration. Metters v. Ralphs Grocery Co. (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 696, 701-704, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 210

Defendant failed to prove existence of arbitration agreement because warranty booklets in which arbitration provisions were contained were not incorporated by reference or available to plaintiffs until after they had closed escrow. Adajar v. RWR Homes, Inc. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 563, 569-571, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 17

Equitable contribution claim is not arbitrable because it does not arise from contract but from equity; insurers who may share responsibility for same loss have not contracted to arbitrate with each other, only with their insured. Crowley Maritime Corp. v. Boston Old Colony Ins. Co. (2007) 158 Cal. App 4th 1061, 1065-1066, 1068-1071, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 605

Standardized language in escrow agreement, apparently taken from Code Civ. Proc. § 1298, providing for arbitration of "all disputes to which it applies," was not itself arbitration agreement, thus, arbitration of claims for breach of underlying real estate purchase agreement and rescission should not have been compelled. Villacreses v. Molinari (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1230-1233, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 281

Third step in multi-level grievance procedure was not arbitration because it did not provide for final and binding decision; decision was subject to review under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5, which is much more extensive than that allowed by arbitration statutes (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1286.2, 1286.6). American Federation of State, County & Municipal Employees v. Metropolitan Water Dist. (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 247, 258-259, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 285

Arbitration agreement in employee handbook, which stated that it was severable and separate agreement from rest of handbook, was not enforceable because it had not been separately signed. Romo v. Y-3 Holdings, Inc. (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 1153

Employer's evidence that it mailed dispute resolution brochure and memorandum to employee created presumption affecting burden of producing evidence, which employee met by testimony that she did not receive them; however, contradictory evidence was still substantial evidence to support court's finding that employee received brochure and memorandum and thus was bound to arbitrate. Craig v. Brown & Root, Inc. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 416, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 818, 821

Issuance of updated employee handbook which contained arbitration agreement and superseded original handbook (receipt of which employee/plaintiff had acknowledged, though refusing to acknowledge updated version) did not amount to repudiation by employer of original handbook or arbitration agreement, so dispute was still covered by arbitration agreement, at least to extent employee failed to carry his burden of proving to contrary on employer's motion for summary judgment. Martinez v. Scott Specialty Gases, Inc. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1236, 1244-1245, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 403

Uncommunicated subjective intent of patient as irrelevant to determination of arbitration agreement's coverage; applicable test as whether reasonable person would, from conduct of parties, determine there was mutual agreement.

Hilleary v. Garvin (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 322, 327, 238 Cal. Rptr. 247 (interpreting Code Civ. Proc. § 1295)

Grievance procedure adopted by city council is agreement to submit dismissal of city employee to arbitration. Santos v. City of Brawley (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 203, 207, 208 Cal. Rptr. 297

Defendant who claimed not to have known of arbitration clause in contract because plaintiff had translated contract between them into German without mentioning arbitration clause was not able to have arbitration award vacated after having submitted to arbitration. Kemper v. Schardt (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 557, 560, 192 Cal. Rptr. 46

Civ. Code § 1670, requiring independent arbitration of construction contract disputes involving public agencies, if mutually agreeable, otherwise by litigation, is inapplicable absent consent by public agency. Pascal & Ludwig, Inc. v. State of California ex rel. Dept. Water Resources (1981) 127 Cal. App. 3d 178, 187, 179 Cal. Rptr. 403

In contract for sale of goods, when buyer expressly limits acceptance to terms of offer, no agreement for arbitration exists when purchase order lists different situs for arbitration than seller's acknowledgment. Lounge-A-Round v. GCM Mills, Inc. (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 190, 197-198, 166 Cal. Rptr. 920

Agreement providing that an issue in dispute "may" be submitted to an impartial arbitrator is construed to require arbitration at option of either party and not to require mutual agreement to submit to arbitration. Service Employees Internat. Union, Local 18 v. American Building Maintenance Co. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 356, 358-361, 105 Cal. Rptr. 564

Right of parties to mutually rescind arbitration agreement. Local 659, I.A.T.S.E. v. Color Corp. Amer. (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 189, 195, 302 P.2d 294

Arbitration procedures are no more binding on parties to contract than other contract terms; parties to agreement have power to rescind, repudiate, or avoid arbitration agreement. Daugherty Co. v. Kimberly-Clark Corp. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 151, 158, 92 Cal. Rptr. 120

Enforceability of arbitration clause in adhesion contract. Dryer v. Los Angeles Rams (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 406, 415-417, 220 Cal. Rptr. 807, 709 P.2d 826 (arbitration warranted, even under Graham v. Scissor-Tail standard); Graham v. Scissor-Tail, Inc. (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 807, 819-828, 171 Cal. Rptr. 604, 623 P.2d 165 (arbitration clause not enforced as being unconscionable); Parr v. Superior Court (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 440, 445-447, 188 Cal. Rptr. 801 (arbitration clause enforceable under Scissor-Tail); Bos Material Handling, Inc. v. Crown Controls Corp. (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 99, 107-108, 186 Cal. Rptr. 740 (issue remanded for evidentiary hearing on whether agreement was adhesive); Frame v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 668, 672, 97 Cal. Rptr. 811 (arbitration clause deemed enforceable); Player v. Geo. M. Brewster & Son, Inc. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 526, 536, 96 Cal. Rptr. 149 (arbitration clause not enforced)

Arbitration provision in adhesion contract in commercial context is generally given affect unless it is structured or utilized in way that gives unfair advantage to party with superior bargaining power. Keating v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 584, 593-595, 183 Cal. Rptr. 360, 645 P.2d 1192 ; Pacific Gas & Electric Co. v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 576, 598, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295

Provision in employment contract between stock brokerage firm and its employee requiring compulsory arbitration of disputes before New York Stock Exchange is enforceable; arbitration procedure before representatives of industry is not presumed biased, despite employee's claim that objectionable practice was industry-wide, when there was diversity of interest among firms, and employee must show actual bias. Downs v. Prudential-Bache Securities, Inc. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 616, 621-622, 248 Cal. Rptr. 734

Agreement to arbitrate, contained in Uniform Application for Securities Industry Registration form that employee was required to execute in connection with application for employment with member-firm of New York Stock Exchange, is not, as matter of federal law, unconscionable and unenforceable contract of adhesion, even though employee was required to sign in order to work for any member-firms, arbitrator was to be selected by exchange, and only informal discovery was permitted. Thomas v. Perry (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 510, 513-515, 246 Cal. Rptr. 156

Failure of party to read arbitration clause before signing contract does not render arbitration clause unenforceable. Izzi v. Mesquite Country Club (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1309, 1317-1319, 231 Cal. Rptr. 315 ; Ware v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 35, 40-42, 100 Cal. Rptr. 791 ; Frame v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 668, 671, 97 Cal. Rptr. 811

Standardized form does not establish adhesive character of contract; relative bargaining powers and availability of subject matter from other sources is required to be considered; even if contract is adhesive, arbitration clause is enforceable if not in conflict with reasonable expectations of weaker party or unduly oppressive or unconscionable. Izzi v. Mesquite Country Club (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1309, 1317-1318, 231 Cal. Rptr. 315

Relief fashioned in Graham v. Scissor-Tail, Inc. (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 807, 171 Cal. Rptr. 604, 623 P.2d 165 , in case of unenforceable arbitration agreement, of making neutral arbitration available to parties, is not available when one party has rejected arbitration. Pascal & Ludwig, Inc. v. State of California ex rel. Dept. Water Resources (1981) 127 Cal. App. 3d 178, 189, 179 Cal. Rptr. 403

Rearbitration provision in health care plan is unenforceable on adhesion contract principles and as violation of public policy when provision would have allowed medical malpractice defendants to unilaterally reject prior arbitration award without cause, and to require rearbitration before special panel of three doctors. Beynon v. Garden Grove Medical Group (1980) 100 Cal. App. 3d 698, 705, 710-712, 161 Cal. Rptr. 146

[d] No Mutuality Requirement

Although mutuality may not be required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1298(c), parties are free to draft their contract so as not to give effect to arbitration clause unless it its accepted by all parties; arbitration was not to be compelled when only sellers had initialed arbitration provision. Marcus & Millichap Real Estate Investment Brokerage Co. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 83, 89-91, 93, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 147

Neither common law of contracts nor Code Civ. Proc. § 1298 imposes mutuality of arbitration; that is, both parties to agreement need not be subject to arbitration in order for arbitration provision to be enforceable. Grubb & EllisCo. v. Bello (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 231, 238, 241, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 281 (party who did not initial arbitration clause could compel party who did initial it to go to arbitration); but see Marcus & Millichap Real Estate Investment Brokerage Co. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 83, 90-91, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 147 ; Stirlen v. Supercuts, Inc. (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1519, 1538-1539, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 138 (criticizing Bello)

[e] Choice of Law

Parties' agreement to be bound by California law is binding in case involving interstate commerce if California provisions do not conflict with Federal Arbitration Act (Title 9 of United States Code). Volt Information Sciences v.

Board of Trustees (1989) 489 U.S. 468, 477-479, 109 S. Ct. 1248, 103 L. Ed. 2d 488 ; Garden Grove Community Church v. Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel Co. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 251, 262, 191 Cal. Rptr. 15

Although arbitrators have no authority to award punitive damages under New York law, arbitrator is not precluded from awarding punitive damages despite choice of law provision when agreement evidences transaction in interstate commerce and Federal Arbitration Act vests arbitrators with authority to award punitive damages if parties' agreement contemplates such award; choice of law provision in such case is mere designation of substantive law arbitrators must apply in determining whether conduct warrants punitive damages. J. Alexander Securities, Inc. v. Mendez (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1083, 1090-1091, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 826

Choice of law or forum selection clauses in contract of adhesion does not render arbitration provision unenforceable; however, in action to compel arbitration, respondent entitled to evidentiary hearing to determine whether or not forum selection and choice of law provisions comports with its reasonable expectations or is unduly oppressive. Bos Material Handling, Inc. v. Crown Controls Corp. (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 99, 108, 186 Cal. Rptr. 740

Provision of arbitration agreement that law of foreign state should apply is upheld in California. Seidman & Seidman v. Wolfson (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 826, 831, 123 Cal. Rptr. 873

[f] Scope of Arbitration

[i] Ambiguities Construed in Favor of Coverage

Although award may be vacated if arbitrator has exceeded his or her power [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2], ambiguities in scope of arbitration are resolved in favor of coverage. Taylor v. Crane (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 442, 450, 155 Cal. Rptr. 695, 595 P.2d 129

Doubts as to meaning or extent of arbitration agreement are to be resolved by arbitrators rather than by courts. Morris v. Zuckerman (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 686, 690, 72 Cal. Rptr. 880, 446 P.2d 1000 ; Felner v. Meritplan Ins. Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 540, 543-544, 86 Cal. Rptr. 178

Language of sublease agreement calling for arbitration of "claim arising out of or relating to" the agreement was broad enough to include a dispute resulting from the landlord-client's refusal to accept more offsets against outstanding legal fees and costs owed the tenant-law firm, based upon a claim of malpractice, and instead demanding cash rental payments. Fagelbaum & Heller LLP v. Smylie (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1351, 1364, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 252

While doubts concerning the scope of arbitrable issues must be construed in favor of arbitration, neither the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA), 9 U.S.C. § 1 et seq., nor public policy under federal and California law favoring the arbitration of disputes can be used to compel arbitration of disputes that are plainly outside the scope of the arbitration agreement. Valentine Capital Asset Management, Inc. v. Agahi (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 606, 627, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 526

Ambiguities in contract providing for arbitration are to be resolved in favor of arbitration process. East San Bernardino County Water Dist. v. City of San Bernardino (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 942, 953, 109 Cal. Rptr. 510 ; LesserTowers, Inc. v. Roscoe-Ajax Constr. Co. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 675, 695, 77 Cal. Rptr. 100

Arbitration is preferred unless it may be said with positive assurance that arbitration clause of collective bargaining agreement is not susceptible of an interpretation that covers asserted dispute; doubts are resolved in favor of coverage. Leon Handbag Co. v. Local 213 (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 240, 243, 81 Cal. Rptr. 63

[ii] Antitrust Claims

Convention on Recognition and Enforcement of Foreign Arbitral Awards (21 U.S. Treaties 2517; for text see note to 9 U.S.C.A. § 201), international comity, respect for capacities of foreign and transnational tribunals, and need of international commercial system for predictability requires arbitration of Sherman Act antitrust claims by Japanese Commercial Arbitration Association pursuant to agreement between Puerto Rican, Swiss, and Japanese corporations even though arbitration would not be proper in domestic context; Convention allows United States courts right to refuse enforcement of arbitration award if enforcement would frustrate public policy. Mitsubishi Motors v. Soler Chrysler-Plymouth (1985) 473 U.S. 614, 628-640, 105 S. Ct. 3346, 87 L. Ed. 2d 444

Arbitration of antitrust claims are not excluded by arbitration statutes or Cartwright Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 16700 et seq.). Crown Homes, Inc. v. Landes (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1273, 1280, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 827

Parties are precluded from arbitrating antitrust claim because they cannot agree privately to exclude antitrust issues under federal or state antitrust provisions from judicial scrutiny and determination. Bos Material Handling, Inc. v. Crown Controls Corp. (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 99, 109-111, 186 Cal. Rptr. 740

[iii] Civil RICO Claims

Private treble-damages action authorized by 18 U.S.C. § 1964(c) in Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (18 U.S.C. §§ 1961-1968) is arbitrable; neither legislative intent nor public interest in enforcement prohibits arbitration pursuant to agreement. Shearson/American Express, Inc. v. McMahon (1987) 482 U.S. 220, 238-242, 107 S. Ct. 2332, 96 L. Ed. 2d 185 (investor's claims against stockbroker)

Broker's submission of customer's claim and its counterclaim (to recover deficit in customer's account) to arbitration waives right to litigate federal securities claims and civil RICO (18 U.S.C. §§ 1961-1968) claims arising from same facts even though arbitration of federal securities claims could not have been compelled at time broker agreed to arbitrate counterclaim. C.D. Anderson & Co., Inc. v. Lemos (9th Cir. 1987) 832 F.2d 1097, 1099-1100

[iv] Collective Bargaining Agreements

Provision in Charter of City and County of San Francisco requiring binding arbitration of any dispute between City and union that comes to impasse was inapplicable to proposed new promotional system because proposed new system fell within exception in Charter applicable to any rule or policy necessary to ensure compliance with anti-discrimination laws. San Francisco Firefighters Local 798 v. City and County of San Francisco (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 653, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 868, 133 P.3d 1028

Educational Employee Relations Act (EERA; Gov. Code § 3540 et seq.), which precludes contract clause that would replace, set aside, or annul mandatory provision of Education Code, was not offended by Ed. Code § 45113 or collective bargaining agreement that gave school district governing board power to review arbitration awards regarding disciplinary matters under standards imposed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq. California School Employees Assn. v. Bonita Unified School Dist. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 387, 400-404, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 486

Union members could not be compelled to arbitrate statutory claims under collective bargaining agreement because union could not waive members' rights to bring statutory claims in court and those claims did not arise under CBA, but under Labor Code. Zavala v. Scott Brothers Dairy, Inc. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 585, 593-596, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 503

Ambiguous clauses in collective bargaining agreement did not, as district contended, give it unilateral right to determine whether faculty grievance should be resolved by means of redress other than arbitration; interpretation based in part on undisputed extrinsic evidence that for 18 years district never refused to arbitrate grievances, with single exception of matter within jurisdiction of Public Employees Relations Board. Hartnell Community College Dist. v. Superior Court (Hartnell College Faculty Assn.) (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1443, 1446, 1451-1452, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 410

Employee's claims for defamation, infliction of emotional distress, and related torts, arising out of investigation and police report of employee's behavior, which led to termination of employment with defendant, were arbitrable under applicable collective bargaining agreement (CBA) because those claims arose in connection with and were inextricable from disciplinary and investigative procedures set forth in CBA. Ruiz v. Sysco Food Services (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 520, 531, 539-541, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 700

Trigger for Labor Management Relations Act Section 301 (29 U.S.C. § 185(a)) preemption is whether application of state law requires interpretation of terms collective bargaining agreement (CBA); claims for termination in violation of public policy and discrimination based on health did not require interpretation of CBA and thus did not have to be arbitrated by former employee; former employee's initiation of arbitration did not preclude judicial action on those claims after withdrawal from arbitration which were not within scope of arbitration clause. Deschene v. Pinole Point Steel Company (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 33, 40-42, 47-49, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 15

[v] Dissolution of Partnership

Claims for dissolution of partnership and accounting were arbitrable under clause in partnership agreement providing for arbitration of "any controversy or claim arising out of or relating to any provisions of this Agreement or breach thereof." Larkin v. Cogswell, Nakazawa & Russell (1999) 76 Cal App. 4th 227, 230-231, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 195

Claims for dissolution of partnership, accounting, and appointment of receiver were not arbitrable under clause in partnership agreement providing for arbitration of any "difference of opinion arising between partners which appears incapable of determination between themselves." Smith v. Superior Court (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 128, 132-134, 20 Cal. Rptr. 512

[vi] Examples

Arbitration clause in standard form Real Estate Purchase Agreement that called for arbitration of any dispute or claim in law or equity arising out of agreement or any resulting transaction was broad enough to require arbitration of claims arising from fraudulent Transfer Disclosure Statement furnished in connection with the sale. Johnson v. Siegel (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 1087, 1095, 1102, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 412

Employment agreement of account executive for securities brokerage requires arbitration of his or her claim of wrongful termination based on racial discrimination, on grounds that agreement incorporated NASD rules requiring arbitration of disputes between member and associated person arising in connection with member's business or associated person's activities, and account executive's wrongful termination claim based on racial discrimination was dispute in that category. Spellman v. Securities, Annuities & Ins. Services, Inc. (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 452, 457-458, 463-465, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 427

Under doctrine of ejusdem generis, general words following enumeration of particular classes of things are interpreted to mean only other things of same nature or class as those enumerated; thus, agreement to arbitrate disputes regarding "fees, costs, or any other aspect of " parties' relationship only requires arbitration of financial matters similar to disputes regarding fees and costs. Lawrence v. Walzer & Gabrielson (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1501, 1506, 256 Cal. Rptr. 6

Dispute based on claim of unfairness in Civil Service promotional evaluation was exclusively subject to grievance procedure mandated by city ordinance and not arbitrable pursuant to arbitration clause that specifically excluded matters for which an administrative remedy is provided before the Civil Service Commission. Los Angeles Police Protective

League v. City of Los Angeles (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 511, 513-514, 253 Cal. Rptr. 641

Arbitration provision in franchise agreement was susceptible to interpretation that it covered sublease dispute between franchisor-lessor and franchisee-lessee because franchise agreement and sublease referred to each other and agreement specifically required franchisee to perform all lease obligations. Mleynek v. Headquarters Companies (1984) 165 Cal. App. 3d 1133, 1136, 209 Cal. Rptr. 593

[vii] Fraud in Inducement of Contract

Absent indication of contrary intent and when arbitration clause is reasonably susceptible of such interpretation, claims of fraud in inducement of contract in which arbitration clause is contained are subject to arbitration. Ericksen, Arbuthnot, McCarthy, Kearney & Walsh, Inc. v. 100 Oak Street (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 312, 323, 197 Cal. Rptr. 581, 673 P.2d 251 ; King v. Prudential-Bache Securities, Inc. (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 749, 753, 277 Cal. Rptr. 214

Broad arbitration clause of contract is held to encompass arbitration of claim that contract itself was induced by fraud when no claim is made that fraud was specifically directed at arbitration clause. Downs v. Prudential-Bache Securities, Inc. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 616, 620, 248 Cal. Rptr. 734

[viii] Legal Malpractice

Although formal opinion of State Bar of California holds nothing to be inherently improper with agreement between attorney and client to arbitrate malpractice claims, client must be fully advised of consequences of agreement and agreement will be closely scrutinized for any unfairness to client; this consideration, plus regular rules of contract interpretation, limits application of arbitration clause to fee disputes. Lawrence v. Walzer & Gabrielson (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1501, 1506-1508, 256 Cal. Rptr. 6

An arbitration agreement, signed when defendant first treated plaintiff applied to medical malpractice claim arising from treatment for different condition two years later because agreement stated it was intended to bind the patient and health care provider who "now or in the future treat[s] the patient." Agreement contained language required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1295. Even though parties did not have open-book account relationship, arbitration was required under extra-statutory language, which was not prohibited by Section 1295. Reigelsperger v. Siller (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 574, 578-580, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 887, 150 P. 3d 764

Physician was not third-party beneficiary of health plan, therefore fact that plan did not require arbitration did not prevent arbitration of medical malpractice claim under separate agreement between physician and patient. Hollister v. Benzl (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 582, 587-588, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 903

Coverage of arbitration agreement entered into pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 extends not only to particular treatment contracted for at time agreement was signed, but also to later follow-up treatment performed pursuant to implied-in-fact contract between physician and patient. Hilleary v. Garvin (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 322, 326-327, 238 Cal. Rptr. 247

Physician as not having burden under Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 to accompany arbitration agreement with contract delineating specific course of treatment to be administered, or to renew arbitration agreement each time there is a variation in treatment or ailment. Hilleary v. Garvin (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 322, 326, 238 Cal. Rptr. 247

[x] Punitive Damages

Agreement encompassing any "dispute or controversy" between parties "arising under any provision of Federal securities laws" and "all other disputes or controversies" between parties arising out of party's business or the agreement contemplates wide range of tort and contract claims, and is sufficiently broad to encompass awards of punitive damages. J. Alexander Securities, Inc. v. Mendez (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1083, 1091, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 826

[xi] Reasonable Expectation of Parties

Bodily injury exclusion in arbitration clause in California standard form of real estate purchase agreement did not exclude claims for emotional distress derivative of failure to disclose structural defect. Those claims were not type parties would reasonably expect to be excluded (even if stress caused physical illness) and had to be arbitrated. Gravillis v. Caldwell Banker Residential Brokerage Co. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 761, 771-782

Arbitration clause that governs one contractual relationship is not imposed in other relationship without undermining parties' reasonable expectations, when parties have separate contractual relationships that involve separate enterprises, and most importantly, separate commercial risks. Marsch v. Williams (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 250, 256, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 398

[xii] Scope to Be Determined by Court

When one party to contract containing arbitration clause refuses to arbitrate on ground that dispute lies beyond scope of clause, determination of issue is ordinarily for court and not for arbitrator. Service Employees International Union v. County of Napa (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 946, 957, 160 Cal. Rptr. 810

[xiii] Statutory Claims

When a benefits claim under an ERISA-regulated plan is governed by contractual terms of the plan rather than by statutory provisions of ERISA itself, the plaintiff must first arbitrate in accordance with benefit plan's claims procedure. Chappel v. Laboratory Corp. of America (9th Cir. 2000) 232 F. 3d 719, 724

Consumer Legal Remedies Act (Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.) claim for damages is arbitrable at least to extent it is governed by Federal Arbitration Act; however, CLRA claim for injunctive relief in which plaintiff is acting as private attorney general (e.g., claim seeking to enjoin deceptive business practices) is not arbitrable. Broughton v. Cigna Healthplans of California (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1066, 1072, 1079-1080, 1088, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334, 988 P. 2d 67 (remanding for determinations regarding existence of arbitration agreement and applicability of FAA); but see dissenting opinion with respect to nonarbitrability of claim for injunctive relief

Unwaivability of the public policies of an employee's statutory right to reimbursement of job expenses under Lab. Code §§ 2802, 2804 and the statutory right to receive minimum wage under Lab. Code § 1194 for purposes of Gentry factors resulted in class action waiver being ruled unenforceable. Sanchez v. Western Pizza Enterprises, Inc. (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 154, 166-170, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 818

Court fully discusses evidentiary sufficiency in plaintiff's meeting of four Gentry factors in finding class action waiver violated unwaivable statutory rights to meal and rest periods in Labor Code § 226.7 and to overtime pay. Franco v. Athens Disposal Co., Inc. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 1277, 1295-1299, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 539

Claims for violations of Patients Bill of Rights (22 Cal. Code Reg. § 72527), brought pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1430(b), were not arbitrable; court was not pursuaded by argument that any plaintiff could avoid arbitration by "tossing in" cause of action alleging violations of the Patients Bill of Rights and relied on legislative expression of public policy to protect particularly vulnerable portion of population that under no circumstances may patient or resident of nursing home waive his or her right to sue for violations of Patients Bill of Rights. Fitzhugh v. Granada HealthCare and Rehabilitation Center, LLC (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 469, 476, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 585 ; see also Welf. & Inst. Code § 15600(h)

Although insurer must pay both Cumis attorney fees and Cumis defense expenses, Civ. Code § 2860(c) does not require arbitration of Cumis counsel's defense expenses. Gray Cary Ware & Freidenrich v. Vigilant Ins. Co. (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 1185, 1193, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 475

Damage claims under the Unfair Competition Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq.) or Unfair Trade Practices Act (Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17020, 17070) are arbitrable, but related remedy of injunction, in which plaintiff is acting as private attorney general (e.g., seeking to enjoin deceptive business practices) is not arbitrable; action on injunctive remedies must be stayed until resolution of arbitration on the other causes of action and remedies. Coast Plaza Doctors Hospital v. Blue Cross of California (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 677, 691-694, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 809

Union cannot prospectively waive employee's right to judicial forum for his or her statutory discrimination or state claims by agreeing to arbitration in collective bargaining agreement. Deschene v. Pinole Point Steel Company (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 33, 48-49, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 15 (termination against public policy and discrimination on basis of health); Torrez v. Consolidated Freightways, Corp. (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 1247, 1259, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 792 (FEHA)

[xiv] Torts Related to Contract

Arbitration clause in investment agreement requiring arbitration of any dispute or other disagreement arising from or out of agreement was broad enough to encompass claims for fraudulent inducement and negligence, breach of fiduciary duty, interference with contractual relations, and conversion, all based on various officers, directors, and employees diverting loan proceeds and primary assets to their personal use. Efund Capital Partners v. Pless (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 1311, 1321, 1325-1330, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 340

Party could not be compelled to arbitrate defamation claim under relatively narrow arbitration clause in agreement between tenants in common that required arbitration of any controversy involving construction or application of agreement even if defamatory statement was made in altercation related to agreement. Bono v. David (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 1055, 1062-1069, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 837

Defamation by insurer, in admittedly false press releases claiming doctors did unnecessary coronary bypass surgeries, was beyond scope of arbitration provision in service agreement between a medical group and insurance provider requiring arbitration of any dispute "concerning the terms of this agreement." Medical Staff of Doctors Medical Center in Modesto v. Kamil (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 679, 683-684, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 853

Employee's claims for defamation, infliction of emotional distress, and related torts, arising out of investigation and police report of employee's behavior, which led to termination of employment with defendant, were arbitrable under collective bargaining agreement (CBA) because those claims arose in connection with and were inextricable from disciplinary and investigative procedures set forth in CBA. Ruiz v. Sysco Food Services (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 520, 531, 539-541, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 700

Arbitration provision in employment agreement covering disputes concerning enforcement or interpretation of agreement encompassed tort claims for interference with prospective advantage and defamation based on employer's conduct after employee was terminated; because tort claims were based on expectation of future income from plaintiff's patients, who consulted plaintiff as defendant's employee, employment agreement informed extent of any economic interest; temporal test was not applicable standard. Buckhorn v. St. Jude Heritage Med. Group (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1401, 1407-1408, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 215

Tort claims that arise under or from the contractual relationship are arbitrable; cause of action arising out of contractual dispute need not be contractual, it need only arise out of contract. Coast Plaza Doctors Hospital v. Blue Cross of California (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 677, 686, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 809

Agreement that provided for arbitration of "all disputes arising out of or relating to this Agreement" is broad enough to encompass tort claims for unsuitable investment recommendations, misrepresentations, and omissions in connection with the sale of securities. Blatt v. Farley (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 621, 628, 276 Cal. Rptr. 612

Action alleging fraud, breach of statutory duty, negligence, and breach of fiduciary duty, based on seller's intentional nondisclosure of property assessments, is withinscope of arbitration clause of purchase and sale contract, because dispute has its root in purchaser-vendor relationship created by contract. Izzi v. Mesquite Country Club (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1309, 1315-1316, 231 Cal. Rptr. 315

Contracts providing for arbitration for any controversy arising out of or relating to contract are sufficiently broad to include tort as well as contractual liabilities, so long as tort claims have their roots in relationship between parties are created by contract. Bos Material Handling, Inc. v. Crown Controls Corp. (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 99, 105, 186 Cal. Rptr. 740

Tort action for malicious prosecution and abuse of process based on defendant's having prosecuted claims through arbitration pursuant to collective bargaining agreement is itself subject to arbitration under sufficiently broad arbitration provisions of underlying agreement. Merrick v. Writers Guild of America, West, Inc. (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 212, 219-220, 181 Cal. Rptr. 530

[g] Unconscionability of Agreement or Clause

[i] Procedural Unconscionability

An employer's requirement that the employees sign a waiver of notice and acceptance of terms of an agreement that they had not read and that contained the arbitration clause and limits on remedies was procedurally unconscionable. Suh v. Superior Court (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 1504, 1516, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 585

A restriction on discovery had a low level of procedural unconscionability due to the fact that the contract offer was presented on a take-it-or-leave-it basis, because the plaintiff was an attorney who knowingly entered into a contract containing an arbitration provision in exchange for a generous compensation and benefits package. Dotson v. Amgen, Inc. (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 975, 980-982, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 341

Terms and conditions of a recreational release agreement that are nonnegotiable, and defendant's statement that plaintiffs would encounter the same requirements with any other recreational company. Lhotka v. Geographic Expeditions, Inc. (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 816, 822, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 844

Brokerage account agreements exhibited elements of procedural unconscionability in that they were contracts of adhesion, petitioners were in the weaker bargaining position and could not negotiate terms, the requirement of a three-judge arbitration panel and prohibition on consolidation or joinder were beyond petitioners' reasonable expectations, and broker did not call petitioners' attention to the Arbitration Panel paragraphs and No Consolidation paragraphs. The agreements also exhibited elements contrary to procedural unconscionability: The arbitration provisions were not hidden in a prolix form, and petitioners had many realistic alternatives to opening the broker's accounts. Considered as a whole, the elements both supporting and contrary to a finding of procedural unconscionability led to a conclusion of a low to medium degree of procedural unconscionability in the agreements. Parada v. Superior Ct. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1554, 1573, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 743

Arbitration agreement did not set forth a distorted presentation of the benefits of arbitration to the degree necessary for unconscionability. However, the court did find procedural unconscionability in respect to the inequality in bargaining power between the low-wage employees and their employer and the agreement's suggestion that there are multiple arbitrators to chose from and failure to mention that the designated arbitration provider offers only one arbitrator. Sanchez v. Western Pizza Enterprises, Inc. (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 154, 174, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 818

[ii] Substantive Unconscionability

American Health Lawyers Association Alternative Dispute Resolution Service Rules of Procedure for Arbitration that limit the award of consequential, exemplary, incidental, punitive or special damages to narrow circumstances, were substantively unconscionable, because they force a party to separately sue to obtain those remedies. Suh v. Superior Court (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 1504, 1515-1516, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 585

A restriction on discovery was not narrow enough to be substantively unconscionable, because although the agreement purported to limit discovery to one deposition of a natural person, the agreement gave the arbitrator broad discretion to order the discovery needed to sufficiently litigate the parties' claims. Dotson v. Amgen, Inc. (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 975, 980, 982-985, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 341

Limitation of the amount of recovery to the cost of a recreational trip is without more substantively unconscionable. Lhotka v. Geographic Expeditions, Inc. (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 816, 825-826, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 844

Brokerage account agreements exhibited a high degree of substantive unconscionability where they called for an unjustified three-arbitrator panel and allowed for high fees compared with the ability to pay of the customers bringing claims against the brokerage. The fact that petitioners were investors did not detract from that finding that the fees of three arbitrators would exceed their reasonable expectations. Parada v. Superior Ct. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1554, 1579-1580, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 743

The absence of express provisions requiring a written arbitration award and allowing discovery does not render the arbitration agreement unconscionable. Rather, those terms are implied as a matter of law as part of the agreement. However, the designation of a panel of arbitrators consisting of a single arbitrator selected by the employer created a false appearance of mutuality in the selection of an arbitrator that was substantively unconscionable. Sanchez v. Western Pizza Enterprises, Inc. (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 154, 177, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 818

[h] Unenforceability of Agreement or Clause

On the sliding scale, the low-to mid-range amount of procedural unconscionability and the high degree of substantive unconscionability rendered clauses requiring three arbitrators and barring consolidation of claims unconscionable and, hence, unenforceable. Broker's failure to offer a justification or explanation for requiring three arbitrators barring consolidation in the brokerage account agreements demonstrated that it included them deliberately for the improper purpose of discouraging or preventing its customers from vindicating their rights, rendering them unserverable as being in bad faith. Parada v. Superior Ct. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1554, 1585-1587, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 743

Having ruled the class action waiver unenforceable as against public policy, regardless of whether the entire agreement

was unenforceable, and the arbitrator selection clause unconscionable, the court ruled that while it may be true that neither of these provisions alone would justify the refusal to enforce the entire arbitration agreement, considered together they indicate an effort to impose on the employee a forum with distinct advantages for the employer, permeating the agreement with an unlawful purpose. Sanchez v. Western Pizza Enterprises, Inc. (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 154, 181, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 818

On account of the fact that the arbitration agreement contained an unenforceable class arbitration waiver against public policy and also precluded the employee from seeking civil penalties on behalf of other employees, contrary to the Private Attorneys General Act, the agreement as a whole was tainted with illegality and was unenforceable. Franco v. Athens Disposal Co., Inc. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 1277, 1297, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 539

[i] Severability of Unenforceable Clause

Provision limiting the award of consequential, exemplary, incidental, punitive or special damages to narrow circumstances in the American Health Lawyers Association Alternative Dispute Resolution Service Rules of Procedure for Arbitration could not be severed, because the rules are applicable as a whole. Suh v. Superior Court (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 1504, 1516-1517, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 585

Provisions greatly limiting plaintiffs' recovery, requiring plaintiffs to indemnify the other party for its legal costs and fees if plaintiffs pursued any claims covered by the release agreement, and to pay half of any mediation fees and mediate and arbitrate in defendant's choice of venue, far from plaintiffs [Lhotka v. Geographic Expeditions, Inc. (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 816, 826, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 844

[3] Self-Executing Agreement

Contract permitting party unilaterally to select arbitrator if other party refuses to arbitrate and permitting one arbitrator to proceed is self-executing. Brink v. Allegro Builders, Inc. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 577, 579-580, 25 Cal. Rptr. 556, 375 P.2d 436

Proceeding with arbitration ex parte, without prior court order compelling unwilling party to arbitrate, is proper when arbitration agreement is self-executing. Brink v. Allegro Builders, Inc. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 577, 579-580, 25 Cal. Rptr. 556, 375 P.2d 436 ; Kustom Kraft Homes v. Leivenstein (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 805, 810-811, 92 Cal. Rptr. 650 ; Smith v. Campbell & Facciolla, Inc. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 134, 137, 20 Cal. Rptr. 606

When arbitration agreement is self-executing, court order to arbitrate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2 is unnecessary. National Marble Co. v. Bricklayers & Allied Craftsmen (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1057, 1062-1063, 229 Cal. Rptr. 653

Arbitration agreement is self-executing if it provides for arbitration under rules incorporated or set forth in it. National Marble Co. v. Bricklayers & Allied Craftsmen (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1057, 1064, 229 Cal. Rptr. 653

When arbitration proceeds under self-executing agreement, objecting party is required to participate in arbitration and to raise its objections by petition to vacate award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2 or by opposing petition to confirm award. National Marble Co. v. Bricklayers & Allied Craftsmen (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1057, 1063, 229 Cal. Rptr. 653

When arbitration agreement provided that arbitration properly demanded by either disputant may proceed in absence of party who refuses to appear, agreement is self-executing, thereby obviating need to resort to statutory remedy to compel arbitration, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2. King v. Larsen Realty, Inc. (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 349, 354-356, 175 Cal. Rptr. 226

When agreement to arbitrate is self-executing, arbitrator does not exceed powers in proceeding in which one party objects to proceedings and does not participate. Northern Cal. Dist. Council of Hod Carriers v. Pennsylvania Pipeline, Inc. (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 163, 172-173, 162 Cal. Rptr. 851 (employer was not deprived of due process by ex parte arbitration proceeding conducted pursuant to master agreement between union and association of which employer was member at time dispute arose)

Arbitration clause incorporating entire scheme for arbitration established by rules of American Arbitration Association is comprehensive enough to be self-executing. Kustom Kraft Homes v. Leivenstein (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 805, 811, 92 Cal. Rptr. 650

Agreements to arbitrate are generally not self-executing. Sauter v. Superior Court (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 25, 29, 82 Cal. Rptr. 395

[4] Parties

[a] Parties Bound

When, by clerical error, contract named "Automatic Rain" as a party, but president of that company, at time of signing contract, objected and pointed out that contract was to have been in name of "Hayes Leasing" and other party agreed and sent corrected copy of contract naming only "Hayes Leasing," "Automatic Rain" was not bound by arbitration clause because it was not bound by contract at all; third party beneficiary theory could not be raised for first time on appeal, and at any rate there was no evidence that "Automatic Rain" was third party beneficiary. Hayes Children Leasing Co. v. NCR Corp. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 775, 789-790, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 650

[b] Enforcement by or Against Person Not Party to Arbitration Agreement

Plan, but not plan participant who brought action on behalf of plan, could be compelled to arbitrate under agreement between plan manager and stock brokerage firm. Participant was not signatory of agreement and did not "knowingly exploit the agreements containing the arbitration clause." Thus, there was no basis for equitable estoppel. Comer v. Micor, Inc. (9th Cir. 2006) 436 F.3d 1098, 1102

Right to compel arbitration is contractual right; entity that is neither party nor agent for nor beneficiary of contract is without standing to compel arbitration. Britton v. Co-op Banking Group (9th Cir. 1993) 4 F.3d 742, 744

Doctors suing a medical group and a hospital for discrimination could not be compelled to arbitrate for having received the benefit of an agreement providing for arbitration of claims between the medical group and the hospital, and were not agents of the hospital for purposes of compelling them to arbitrate, because they were not agents of the corporate defendant or alleged to be parties to the agreement, and had not sought the benefit of the arbitration clause in the contract. Suh v. Superior Court (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 1504, 1514, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 585

Arbitration provision of student loan agreement did not apply to claims against school which were unrelated to terms of loan and sought no recovery from lender. Lender was not third party beneficiary of students' contracts with school nor was lender akin to introducing broker. Smith v. Microskills San Diego, L.P. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 892, 894, 897-900, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 608

Neither "loan out" company nor decedent's son was third party beneficiary of contracts between actor and talent agency; nor was there agency relationship or any other legal principle applicable to allow agency to compel them to arbitrate claims for commissions on profit participations paid to them after actor's death. Matthau v. Superior Court

Party to subcontract, which did not have arbitration clause, was forced to arbitrate claims against nonsignatory to subcontract that was party to primary contract (which had arbitration clause), under doctrine of equitable estoppel because claims based on subcontract were based on and intertwined with primary contract. Turtle Ridge Media Group, Inc. v. Pacific Bell Directory (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 828, 833-836, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 817

Daughter who signed mother's agreement with residential health care facility was financially responsible party, but not as mother's agent; she could not be compelled to arbitrate claims against facility for mother's personal injuries or wrongful death. Goliger v. AMS Properties, Inc. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 374, 376-378, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 819

Corporate officer whose only connection with arbitration agreement is to sign it as corporate officer on behalf of corporate party to agreement cannot be compelled to arbitrate under that agreement any claim he or she may have individually against other party to arbitration agreement. Benasra v. Marciano (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 987, 990, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358

When introducing broker and clearing broker are completely independent entities and customer agreement between client and clearing broker does not manifest intent to extend arbitration clause to introducing broker, nonsignatory introducing broker cannot enforce arbitration clause against client. Arista Films, Inc. v. Gilford Securities, Inc. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 495, 500-503, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35

Arbitration clause in construction contract between general contractor and property owner as binding on subcontractors when subcontracts incorporate by reference terms of that contract. Slaught v. Bencomo Roofing Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 744, 748-749, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 618

Surety that issued construction performance bond compelled to arbitrate liability under bond because bond incorporated construction contract and made it part of bond and construction contract contained arbitration clause. Boys Club of San Fernando Valley, Inc. v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1266, 1272-1273, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 587

Privity of estate as allowing sublessee to compel lessor to arbitrate under lease with arbitration clause even though sublessee did not expressly agree to be bound by lease. Melchor Investment Co. v. Rolm Systems (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 587, 592-593, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 343 ; Kelly v. Tri-Cities Broadcasting, Inc. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 666, 676-679, 195 Cal. Rptr. 303 (lessor able to compel nonassuming assignee to arbitrate under lease with arbitration clause)

Under language of agreement, primary broker was third party beneficiary of agreement between investor and "clearing broker" and under terms of that contract was entitled to enforce its arbitration provision in litigation between it and investor. Macaulay v. Norlander (1992) 12 Cal. App. 4th 1, 6-8, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 204

In action by former employee of member-firm of New York Stock Exchange against other employees, defendants had standing to enforce arbitration clause in agreement signed by plaintiff, even though defendants were not parties to arbitration agreement, because, by plaintiff's own allegations, defendants were at all times acting on behalf of member-firm in course and scope of their employment. Thomas v. Perry (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 510, 516, 246 Cal. Rptr. 156

Successor of nonsignatory to contract containing arbitration provision is not able to require signatory to arbitrate; hence, trial court properly denied defendant's petition to compel arbitration in action by investor against introducing broker whose employee allegedly defrauded her when plaintiff had signed agreement to arbitrate only with clearing broker, defendant was not signatory to that agreement, and there was no evidence that agency or third-party beneficiary relationship existed between defendant, as introducing broker, and clearing broker. Van Luven v. Rooney Pace, Inc.

Physician who was not signatory to hospital's prepaid medical health services plan was bound by contractual agreement between hospital and enrollees and, thus, compelled to arbitrate medical malpractice claim because physician was third-party beneficiary of contractual provision requiring arbitration of enrollees' claims and was employee of party to contract. Harris v. Superior Court (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 475, 477-479, 233 Cal. Rptr. 186

Party who did not sign agreement containing arbitration clause is able to compel arbitration especially in view of allegation that all defendants were agents of all other defendants. Izzi v. Mesquite Country Club (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1309, 1319, 231 Cal. Rptr. 315

Minor's claim for prenatal injuries against hospital and medical group is subject to arbitration under clause in group health plan agreement providing for arbitration of all claims arising from rendition of services under agreement although minor was not member of health plan until time of birth. Wilson v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 891, 896-899, 190 Cal. Rptr. 649

In arbitration agreement between hospital and expectant mother that named mother but made no reference to expected child, court properly refused to compel arbitration in dispute over alleged wrongful death of child since parties did not agree to arbitrate that particular dispute. Weeks v. Crow (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 350, 352-353, 169 Cal. Rptr. 830

Federal employees are bound by health service contract containing arbitration provision that was negotiated by hospital and civil service commission when commission was authorized to contract for group health benefit plans for federal employees, petitioners selected plan from several available plans, and arbitration clause was disclosed in brochure available at time petitioners could have elected different plan. Dinong v. Superior Court (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 845, 852, 162 Cal. Rptr. 606

Arbitration is matter of contract (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1281, 1281.2); party is not required to submit to arbitration any dispute party has not agreed to submit. Unimart v. Superior Court (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1039, 1045, 82 Cal. Rptr. 249

[c] Particular Parties

[i] Cities

City may agree to arbitrate any matter that could be subject of civil suit when not expressly prohibited by city charter from doing so. Taylor v. Crane (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 442, 451, 155 Cal. Rptr. 695, 595 P.2d 129

Long recognized that city may agree to arbitrate any matter which could be subject of civil suit. City of Vista v. Sutro & Co. (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 401, 409, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 488

City's express delegation to city treasurer and director of finance of power to contract with regard to investment of city funds implicitly authorized him to contract for arbitration. City of Vista v. Sutro & Co. (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 401, 410, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 488

Grievance concerning arbitrary selection of city employee for random drug testing was not subject to arbitration under collective bargaining agreement, given federal law requiring testing of transportation workers in "safety-sensitive" positions and fact that city's classification of positions was excluded from scope of bargaining by city charter. United Public Employees v. City and County of San Francisco (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 1021, 1024, 1031, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440

City attorney of general law city has no authority to bind city to arbitration agreement in absence of authorization by ordinance or city council resolution. Tri-Cor, Inc. v. City of Hawthorne (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 134, 139, 87 Cal. Rptr. 311

[ii] Native American Tribes

Contract, drafted by Tribe for roof repair on commercial property located off reservation, waived sovereign immunity despite claim by Tribe that waiver had to be express; arbitration clause agreed to arbitrate, to governance of Oklahoma law ("law of place where this Project is located"), and to enforcement of arbitral awards in any court having jurisdiction thereof, which was sufficiently explicit waiver. C & L Enterprises, Inc. v. Citizen Band Potawatomi Tribe of Okla (2001) 532 U.S. 411, 121 S. Ct. 1589, 149 L. Ed. 2d 623

Native American Tribe decides extent to which it will waive sovereign immunity and subject itself to suit. Under particular tribal regulation, waiver was not so broad as to allow any suit to compel arbitration of claim against tribe, but only suit by claimant who had properly submitted claim; therefore, court could not compel arbitration of claim, but only arbitration of issue whether claimant had properly complied with procedural requirements for lodging claim. If claimant had complied, arbitration on merits would be required. Campo Band of Mission Indians v. Superior Court (Bluehawk) (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 175, 178, 183-186, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 875

Arbitration clause did not waive tribal immunity for cause of action on contract. Big Valley Band of Pomo Indians v. Superior Court (McAllister) (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1185, 1187, 1193-1194, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 357 (discussing federal authority that any waiver would be limited to petition to compel arbitration or enforce arbitration award, but not deciding that issue)

Tribal immunity was waived by agreement's arbitration clause and choice of law clause; agreement was explicit enough to satisfy tribal ordinance although Tribal Council did not pass separate ordinance or resolution explicitly waiving tribal immunity, it passed resolution approving final version of contract and authorizing Tribal Chairperson to execute agreement. Smith v. Hopland Band of Pomo Indians (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1, 6, 8-9, 12, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 455

When contract was signed by tribal chairman but tribal council had not approved it and other party knew council approval was required, Native American tribe has not waived tribal immunity, consented to jurisdiction of California courts, or agreed to arbitrate by contract provision. Hydrothermal Energy Corp. v. Fort Bidwell Indian Community Council (l985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 489, 495-496, 216 Cal. Rptr. 59

In cases governed by Federal Arbitration Act, arbitrator, not court, must decide whether particular agreement prohibits classwide arbitration. Green Tree Fin. Corp. v. Bazzle (2003) 539 U.S. 444, 123 S. Ct. 2402, 156 L. Ed. 2d 414, 423-424 ; Garcia v. DIRECTV, Inc. (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 297, 297, 300, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 190

Class-arbitration prohibitions in consumer contracts of adhesion (to extent governed by California law), when applied to disputes that involve small amounts of individual damages, and the enforcement of which would effectively cut off only redress, are exculpatory clauses [Civ. Code § 1668], which are unconscionable, and unenforceable. Discover Bank v. Superior Court (Boehr) (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 148, 162-163, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 76, 113 P.3d 1100 ; Keating v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 584, 609, 612-614, 183 Cal. Rptr. 360, 645 P.2d 1192 (overruled on other grounds in Southland Corp. v. Keating (1984) 465 U.S. 1, 16, 104 S. Ct. 852, 79 L. Ed. 2d 1); Klussman v. Cross Country Bank (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1283, 1287, 1290, 1293-1294, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 728 ; Aral v. Earthlink, Inc. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 544, 548-549, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229 ; Blue Cross of California v. Superior Court (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 42, 46, 65-66, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 779

Class-wide arbitration is only acceptable alternative to either not enforcing arbitration agreement and requiring class litigation or allowing arbitration agreement to be used to completely inoculate drafting party against class liability; enforcement of class arbitration prohibition is not required by either Federal Arbitration Act (9 U.S.C. § 1 et. seq) or by Green Tree Financial Corp.v. Bazzle (2003) 539 U.S. 444, 123 S. Ct. 2402, 156 L. Ed. 2d 414 . Discover Bank v. Superior Court (Boehr) (2005) 36 Cal 4th 148, 172, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 76, 113 P.3d 1100

Class-wide arbitration of disputes arising from adhesion contract that contains arbitration clause is permitted; trial court has authority to order arbitration on consideration of factors relevant to class certification and special characteristics of arbitration. Keating v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 584, 611-613, 183 Cal. Rptr. 360, 645 P.2d 1192 (overruled on other grounds, Southland Corp. v. Keating (1984) 465 U.S. 1, 16-17, 104 S. Ct. 852, 79 L. Ed. 2d 1)

Class certification issues may be determined before arbitration is ordered; arbitration may be stayed and petition for individual arbitration denied "without prejudice," so class certification issues can be determined first. Sanders v. Kinko's, Inc. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 766

Fact that Federal Arbitration Act does not authorize class arbitration does not prevent California procedure form doing so. Sanders v. Kinko's, Inc. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 766 ; Blue Cross of California v. Superior Court (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 42, 46, 65-66, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 779

[e] Determining Who Is Bound by Agreement

Arbitration agreement, and/or rules incorporated therein [such as California Hospital Association-California Medical Association Rules for the Arbitration of Hospital and Medical Fee Disputes (CHA-CMA Rules)] which require joinder in arbitration of any third party who is not party to agreement but is necessary for complete resolution of matter required to be arbitrated under agreement and provide that arbitrator determine whether anyone must be joined in arbitration to insure complete resolution of dispute will be enforced to refer the issue of third party's joinder to arbitrator. Zakarian v. Bekov (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 316, 325-327, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 623 (third party wanted to be joined in arbitration agreement also contained signatories' consent to joinder of any person necessary to full resolution of an arbitrable dispute)

Whether person is party to arbitration is matter for court rather than arbitrator to determine. Lovret v. Seyfarth (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 841, 859, 101 Cal. Rptr. 143 ; Unimart v. Superior Court (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1039, 1045, 82 Cal. Rptr. 249

Person not bound by arbitration agreement is not subject to court order compelling arbitration. Unimart v. Superior Court (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1039, 1045, 82 Cal. Rptr. 249

[5] Demand for Arbitration

If agreement does not specify time, arbitration must be demanded within reasonable time or is waived; what constitutes reasonable time is question of fact. Sawday v. Vista Irrigation Dist. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 833, 836, 52 Cal. Rptr. 1, 415 P.2d 816

Demand for single-arbitrator arbitration under agreement calling for three arbitrators was not valid. Mansouri v. Superior Court (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 633, 642, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824

Failure to request arbitration within statutory period is fatal to claim. Arrasmith v. State Farm Ins. Co. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 12, 16-17, 21, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 53 (construing Ins. Code § 11580.2(i))

Demurrer is normally improper vehicle for requesting arbitration. Badgley v. Van Upp (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 218, 221, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 406

Defendant is not permitted to assert failure to arbitrate issue as affirmative defense, but must demand arbitration and seek stay of litigation. Badgley v. Van Upp (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 218, 221, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 406

Determining claim barred by limitation period established by industry rules governing parties' dispute would be in excess of arbitrator's powers, but six-year period established by Municipal Securities Rulemaking Board for arbitration of claim for reclamation (rescission) of transaction involving stolen bearer bonds commences on seller's refusal of demand for reclamation, not on date of theft, so claim was timely filed and confirmation of award was proper. Citibank v. Crowell, Weedon& Co. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 844, 848-850, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 906

[6] Compelling Arbitration

[a] Right to Arbitration If Agreement Exists

Court is required to compel arbitration of entire controversy when valid agreement to arbitrate exists and right to arbitrate has neither been waived nor is subject to revocation. Orpustan v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 988, 991-992, 103 Cal. Rptr. 919, 500 P.2d 1119 (construing uninsured motorist clause mandated by Ins. Code § 11580.2)

Function of court in deciding whether dispute is subject to arbitration is confined to ascertaining whether party seeking arbitration is making claim that, on its face, is governed by arbitration contract. Charles J. Rounds Co. v. Joint Council of Teamsters No. 42 (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 888, 892, 95 Cal. Rptr. 53, 484 P.2d 1397 ; East San Bernardino County Water Dist. v. City of San Bernardino (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 942, 952, 109 Cal. Rptr. 510 ; Northcutt Lumber Co. v. Goldeen's Peninsula Inc. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 440, 443, 106 Cal. Rptr. 353

If a class action settlement contains a clause calling for arbitration of claims, the validity of the arbitration clause will rest not only on principles applicable to arbitration clauses generally, but on the standards of fairness applicable to court approval of the class action settlement itself. Cellphone Termination Fee Cases (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1110, 1123-1125, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 275

Petition to compel arbitration of dispute between members of realtors' association was properly denied when arbitration panel of realtors' association refused, in accordance with association's bylaws, to arbitrate because dispute was too legally complex. Berke v. TRI Realtors (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 463, 467-469, 257 Cal. Rptr. 738

Action to compel arbitration as, in essence, action to compel specific performance of contractual agreement to arbitrate. Harris v. Superior Court (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 475, 478, 233 Cal. Rptr. 186 ; Los Angeles Police Protective League v. City of Los Angeles (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1141, 1146 n.3, 209 Cal. Rptr. 890

Demurrer to petition to compel arbitration is improperly sustained when petitioner is entitled to arbitration hearing under city grievance procedure. Santos v. City of Brawley (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 203, 207, 208 Cal. Rptr. 297

Order compelling arbitration is improper under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2 if court fails to determine issue of revocability of contract when properly raised. Bianco v. Superior Court (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 126, 129-130, 71 Cal. Rptr. 322

Refusal by superior court to order arbitration in proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2 is reversible error if such court determines that agreement to arbitrate controversy exists. Morris v. Zukerman (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 91, 97, 64 Cal. Rptr. 714

[b] Procedure for Compelling Arbitration

No consent rule should apply, whereby the union must obtain the consent of retirees before compelling arbitration under the Labor Management Relations Act, 29 U.S.C. § 185 of their claims concerning employer's cancellation of certain medical benefits for retirees. IBEW, AFL-CIO Local 1245 v. Citizens Telecoms. Co. (9th Cir. 2008) 549 F.3d 781, 788

Question of right to arbitration to be asserted in pending judicial action on arbitrable matter either by request for order to compel arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2 or by plea in abatement alleging that action is prematurely brought. Northcutt Lumber Co. v. Goldeen's Peninsula, Inc. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 440, 444, 106 Cal. Rptr. 353

Demurrer to complaint is improper method for asserting right to arbitration. Northcutt Lumber Co. v. Goldeen's Peninsula, Inc. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 440, 445, 106 Cal. Rptr. 353 (demurrer treated as request for arbitration); Kustom Kraft Homes v. Leivenstein (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 805, 811, 92 Cal. Rptr. 650 (demurrer treated as request for arbitration)

[c] Stay of Court Proceedings

Application for stay of action to enforce mechanic's lien pending arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.5 is request only and does not create stay, which can only be ordered by court. Kaneko Ford Design v. Citipark, Inc. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1220, 1226-1227, 249 Cal. Rptr. 544

Institution of administrative mandate proceedings does not preclude relief under subsequently filed petition to compel arbitration, since any party to mandate proceedings is entitled under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.4 to stay of proceedings until arbitration is had in accordance with order. Los Angeles Police Protective League v. City of Los Angeles (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1141, 1149, 209 Cal. Rptr. 890

Granting of demurrer and staying of proceedings pending arbitration confers jurisdiction on arbitrator. Kustom Kraft Homes v. Leivenstein (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 805, 811, 92 Cal. Rptr. 650

[d] Attorney's Fees for Compelling Arbitration

Lower court rejection of award of attorney's fees to prevailing party in an action to compel arbitration under a contract providing that if either party becomes involved in litigation arising out of the contract, the court in such litigation, or in a separate suit, must award reasonable costs and expenses, including attorney's fees, to the party justly entitled thereto, was reversed with orders to award fees for trial and on appeal. Christensen v. Dewor Developments (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 778, 786-787, 191 Cal. Rptr. 8, 661 P.2d 1088

Party opposing petition to compel arbitration was the prevailing party as a matter of law because it defeated the only contract claim before the trial court in the proceeding. Otay River Constructors v. San Diego Expressway (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 796, 807, 809, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434

[7] Civil Action on Arbitrable Dispute

[a] Arbitration Is Condition Precedent

Arbitration or unsuccessful attempt to secure arbitration is condition precedent to right to maintain action on arbitrable dispute. Charles J. Rounds Co. v. Joint Council of Teamsters No. 42 (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 888, 894, 95 Cal. Rptr. 53, 484 P.2d 1397

Elections available to defendant in action on arbitrable controversy. Charles J. Rounds Co. v. Joint Council of Teamsters No. 41 (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 888, 899, 95 Cal. Rptr. 53, 484 P.2d 1397 (affirming dismissal)

Defendant in dispute that defendant contends is subject to arbitration is permitted to elect to demur or move for summary judgment on ground that plaintiff failed to exhaust arbitration remedies or to move for stay of proceedings pending arbitration if defendant also moves to compel arbitration. Hayworth v. City of Oakland (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 723, 729, 181 Cal. Rptr. 214

[b] Relationship to Actions Involving Third Party Not Subject to Arbitration

Fact that arbitration was pending between claimants of fund did not deprive court of jurisdiction over interpleader action, which it should not have dismissed. Plaintiffs, partnership and L.L.C. which were not parties to arbitration, were entitled to discharge; court had discretion to stay remainder of interpleader until outcome of arbitration between claimants/partners. Dial 800 v. Fesbinder (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 32, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 711

In action in which defendant sought arbitration of controversy in accord with arbitration provision of dealership agreement between parties, mere inclusion of unnamed third-party "Does" in complaint is insufficient to deny enforcement of arbitration agreement when there was no showing that third-party claims would create possibility of conflicting rulings on common issue of law or fact (see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c)). Bos Material Handling, Inc. v. Crown Controls Corp. (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 99, 112, 186 Cal. Rptr. 740

[8] Stay of Arbitration

When debtor seeks to stay arbitration proceedings to which it is not party between nonparties, claiming outcome may effect bankruptcy estate, under 11 U.S.C. § 105(a), court must balance hardship to nonparties with likelihood of debtor's success in reorganization, and any public interest concerns if relevant; it is not enough that award could conceivably have any effect on administration of bankruptcy estate; fact that debtor might expend money to protect privilege in arbitration proceeding was not by itself sufficient to establish irreparable harm; debtor must show that expenses will be substantial enough to interfere with its reorganization or harm creditors. In re Excel Innovations, Inc. (9th Cir 2007) 502 F. 3d 1086, 1093-1100

Arbitration of cross complaint against agent of party who opposed arbitration (claiming fraud in inception) is stayed pending court determination whether agreement existed or was vitiated by fraud. Rice v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1016, 1029-1030, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 265

Institution of administrative mandate proceedings does not preclude relief under subsequently filed petition to compel arbitration, since any party to mandate proceedings is entitled under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.4 to stay of proceedings until arbitration is had in accordance with order. Los Angeles Police Protective League v. City of Los Angeles (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1141, 1149, 209 Cal. Rptr. 890

[9] Waiver of Arbitration In General

Relevant factors in establishing waiver of arbitration includes whether or not party seeking arbitration took steps inconsistent with intent to invoke arbitration, unreasonably delayed in seeking arbitration, or acted in bad faith or with willful misconduct; mere participation in litigation does not constitute waiver. Keating v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 584, 605, 183 Cal. Rptr. 360, 645 P.2d 1192 (overruled on other grounds, Southland Corp. v. Keating (1984) 465 U.S. 1, 16-17, 104 S. Ct. 852, 79 L. Ed. 2d 1)

Waiver of contractual right to arbitrate is ordinarily a question of fact. Doers v. Golden Gate Bridge etc. Dist. (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 180, 185, 151 Cal. Rptr. 837, 588 P.2d 1261 ; Sawday v. Vista Irrigation Dist. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 833, 836, 52 Cal. Rptr. 1, 415 P.2d 816 ; Weisman v. Johnson (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 289, 293, 183 Cal. Rptr. 792 ; Daugherty Co. v. Kimberly-Clark Corp. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 151, 158, 92 Cal. Rptr. 120 ; Nathan v. French American Bilingual School (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 279, 282-283, 82 Cal. Rptr. 605 ; Martinez Typographical Union v. Silversun Corp. (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 255, 260, 63 Cal. Rptr. 760 ; Palm Springs Homes, Inc. v. Western Desert, Inc. (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 270, 276, 30 Cal. Rptr. 34 ; Grunwald-Marx, Inc. v. Los Angeles Joint Board, Amalgamated Clothing Workers (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 268, 277, 13 Cal. Rptr. 446 ; Tas-T-Nut Co. v. Continental Nut Co. (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 351, 355, 270 P.2d 43 ; compare Roberts v. Fortune Homes, Inc. (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 238, 241, 49 Cal. Rptr. 429 (holding trial court abused its discretion by refusing to compel arbitration when waiver was not established as matter of law)

If trial court finds no waiver or makes no finding regarding waiver even though record establishes waiver as matter of law, appellate court properly reverses trial court's finding or holding that there is waiver as matter of law if issue was raised but no finding was made. Mayflower Ins. Co. v. Pellegrino (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1326, 1335, 261 Cal. Rptr. 224

Arbitration clause is waivable due to prejudice; when defendant moved for arbitration shortly before fourth continued trial date after six years of very active litigation, prejudice is derived from fact that opposing party would be required to bear costs of trial preparation, which arbitration is designed to avoid, and from disclosure of defenses and strategies. Zimmerman v. Drexel Burnham Lambert, Inc. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 153, 157-160, 252 Cal. Rptr. 115

To find waiver, court is required to be satisfied not only that party seeking arbitration acted inconsistently with right to arbitrate but also that objecting party was prejudiced by action. Thorup v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 228, 235, 225 Cal. Rptr. 521 (applying federal law)

In ruling on petition to compel arbitration, court is required under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2 to decide preliminary question of whether right to arbitration has been waived. Gustafson v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 361, 365, 107 Cal. Rptr. 243 ; California State Council of Carpenters v. Superior Court (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 144, 155-156, 89 Cal. Rptr. 625

[10] Acts Constituting Waiver of Arbitration

Action instituted in bad faith by party to arbitration agreement is waiver of right to arbitrate when prejudice to other party results from suit. Christensen v. Dewor Developments (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 778, 783-784, 191 Cal. Rptr. 8, 661 P.2d 1088

Filing of lawsuit on arbitrable issue to ascertain other party's defenses constitutes bad faith for purposes of determining waiver of right to arbitrate. Christensen v. Dewor Developments (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 778, 783-784, 191 Cal. Rptr. 8, 661 P.2d 1088

[b] Acts Inconsistent With Arbitration Agreement

Defendant who without mentioning arbitration, filed a demurrer and served objections to discovery requests, and a few weeks after filing a motion to compel arbitration, served and filed a motion in superior court to compel the other party's deposition, asserting in that motion it intended to file a motion for summary judgment immediately upon gathering the story underlying plaintiff's claims, did not act inconsistent with arbitration. Roman v. Superior Court (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 1462, 1478-1479, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 153

Waiver of right to arbitrate by acts inconsistent with agreement to submit to arbitration. Palm Springs Homes, Inc. v. Western Desert, Inc. (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 270, 276-277, 30 Cal. Rptr. 34

[c] Delaying Tactics and Bad Faith

Waiver of right to arbitrate by delaying tactics and bad faith. Weisman v. Johnson (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 289, 293-296, 183 Cal. Rptr. 792

[d] Failure to Pursue Available Remedies

Plaintiff's failure to pursue available remedies is waiver of right to arbitrate, thereby allowing defendant to demur on grounds that plaintiff failed to exhaust arbitration remedies; acceptance of arbitrator's failure to sever arbitration hearings is neglect. Cusenza v. Construction Design & Consulting, Inc. (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 201, 203-204, 203 Cal. Rptr. 605

[e] Failure to Proceed With Arbitration in Timely Manner

District court properly refused to compel arbitration on petition of former employer that was in material breach of arbitration agreement because of its refusal to participate in arbitration when previously demanded by former employee. Whether considered breach or wavier, one who is in breach of agreement to arbitrate cannot enforce it. Brown v. Dillard's, Inc. (9th Cir, 2005) 430 F.3d 1004, 1010-1012

Failure by party to proceed to arbitrate in manner and at time provided in arbitration provision is waiver of right to insist on arbitration as defense to action on contract; party's statment that question be resolved by court is conduct indicating waiver of its right to arbitration on that point. National Farm Workers Service Center, Inc. v. M. Caratan, Inc. (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 796, 803-804, 194 Cal. Rptr. 617

[f] Failure to Raise Issue Properly

Waiver of right to arbitration by suggestion that question be resolved by court ruling and by failing to move court either for order staying proceeding pending arbitration pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.4 or for order compelling arbitration pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2. National Farm Workers Service Center, Inc. v. M. Caratan, Inc. (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 796, 802-803, 804, 194 Cal. Rptr. 617

[g] Insurer's Failure to Advise Insured of Arbitration

Insurer waives right to arbitration by failing to advise insured of availability of, and procedure for, initiating arbitration. Davis v. Blue Cross of Northern California (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 418, 431, 158 Cal. Rptr. 828, 600 P.2d 1060

[h] Litigating Merits of Dispute

Right to arbitration is waived by parties' litigating merits of arbitrable dispute. Doers v. Golden Gate Bridge etc. Dist. (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 180, 185-189, 151 Cal. Rptr. 837, 588 P.2d 1261 ; Hayworth v. City of Oakland (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 723, 730, 181 Cal. Rptr. 214

[i] Making Final Payment Under Building Contract

Property owners waives right to arbitrate against builder by making final payment, although defect in building was known to them, when final payment constituted waiver of right to arbitrate under terms of construction contract. Renown, Inc. v. Hensel Phelps Construction Co. (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 413, 417-418, 201 Cal. Rptr. 242 (questioned on other grounds in Geertz v. Ausonio (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1363, 1368 n.3, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 318)

[j] Participation in Litigation

In action for breach of contract and breach of warranty, defendant waives right to compel arbitration when participation in initial litigation proceedings has worked substantial prejudice to plaintiff. Lounge-A-Round v. GCM Mills, Inc. (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 190, 200-202, 166 Cal. Rptr. 920

Right to arbitration is waived when party, prior to requesting arbitration, participates in litigation by moving case to federal court and by vigorously opposing motion for class certification on merits. McConnell v. Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 946, 950-952, 164 Cal. Rptr. 751

[k] Release of Claim

Right to arbitrate claim is waived by release of claim. Gustafson v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 361, 365, 107 Cal. Rptr. 243 ; Commercial Ins. Co. v. Copeland (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 561, 565, 56 Cal. Rptr. 794 (criticized for transferring factual and legal issues regarding scope of release from arbitrator to courts in Felner v. Meritplan Ins. Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 540, 547 n.1, 86 Cal. Rptr. 178)

[11] Acts Not Constituting Waiver of Arbitration

Because attachment is not available in arbitration, unsuccessful attempt to seek attachment in court does not constitute waiver of right to arbitrate. Outdoor Services, Inc. v. Pabagold, Inc. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 676, 684-685, 230 Cal. Rptr. 73

[b] Demands for Arbitration Ignored

Arbitration clause is not valid objection to party's right to sue on arbitrable dispute when such party's prior demands for arbitration were ignored by defendant. Grunwald-Marx, Inc. v. Los Angeles Joint Board, Amalgamated Clothing Workers (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 268, 280, 13 Cal. Rptr. 446

[c] Discovery

Simple notices of depositions do not waive right to compel arbitration when letter accompanying notices contained express reservation of right to compel arbitration. Hall v. Nomura Securities International (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 43, 51, 268 Cal. Rptr. 45

Seeking and obtaining protective order to reschedule deposition for convenience of attorney and deponent do not constitute waiver of right to compel arbitration. Hall v. Nomura Securities International (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 43, 51, 268 Cal. Rptr. 45

[d] Dismissal From Employment

When contract provided for arbitration of controversy arising from termination of employment, employer as not waiving right to arbitrate actual controversy over termination simply because employer fired opposing party before requesting arbitration; mere fact of contractual breach does not impair continuing efficacy of arbitration provision; rather, arbitration will resolve controversy created by breach. Thorup v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 228, 237, 225 Cal. Rptr. 521 (applying federal law)

[e] Filing Application for Stay of Action to Enforce Mechanic's Lien

Filing of application for stay of action to enforce mechanic's lien pending arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.5 has sole effect of precluding finding of waiver of right to arbitrate because of act of filing complaint; such filing, however, does not preclude finding of waiver based on other facts. Kaneko Ford Design v. Citipark, Inc. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1220, 1227-1228, 249 Cal. Rptr. 544

[f] Filing Complaint or Securing Judgment Otherwise Than on Merits

Merely commencing lawsuit for purpose of litigating merits, or obtaining judgment in such lawsuit otherwise than on merits, does not constitute waiver. Doers v. Golden Gate Bridge, Highway & Transp. Dist. (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 180, 183-189, 151 Cal. Rptr. 837 P.2d 1261; Hayworth v. City of Oakland (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 723, 730, 181 Cal. Rptr. 214

[g] Filing Cross Complaint

Filing of cross complaint against defendant in action initiated by third party does not constitute waiver of right to arbitrate because such protective measure is not inconsistent with intent to arbitrate. Outdoor Services, Inc. v. Pabagold, Inc. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 676, 684-685, 230 Cal. Rptr. 73

[h] Participation in Initial Court Proceedings

Participation in certain initial court proceedings does not constitute waiver if defendant promptly petitions for stay of court proceedings and to compel arbitration. Pacific Inv. Co. v. Townsend (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 1, 11-12, 129 Cal. Rptr. 489

[i] Raising Arbitration Issue as Affirmative Defense

Raising arbitration issue is affirmative defense in litigation brought by opposing party does not constitute evidence of intent to submit dispute to courts, thus waiver is not established. Thorup v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 228, 235, 225 Cal. Rptr. 521 (applying federal law)

[j] Seeking Protective Relief

Party to arbitration agreement does not waive right to arbitration by suing for injunction to restrain breach of contract, when suit for injunction was for protective relief not available in, and hence not inconsistent with, arbitration proceedings. Schwartz v. Leibel (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 761, 763-764, 57 Cal. Rptr. 831 , disapproved on another ground in Doers v. Golden Gate Bridge etc. Dist. (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 180, 188, 151 Cal. Rptr. 837, 588 P.2d 1261

[12] Estoppel

Health plan member who represented self as plan member in good standing at time of exploratory surgery despite request six months earlier to be enrolled in different plan, is estopped to deny being bound by plan's arbitration provision. Avina v. Cigna Healthplans of California (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 1, 3, 259 Cal. Rptr. 105

Estoppel to assert that allegations of petition to compel arbitration are deemed admitted by failure to serve and file response [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290], when defenses to petition were same as those raised on two prior occasions contesting petitioner's attempts to seek arbitration and it would have been useless redundancy to recite such defenses a third time. Player v. Geo. M. Brewster & Son, Inc. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 526, 532, 96 Cal. Rptr. 149 (rule of estoppel applied in preliminary hearing)

Estoppel to deny standing in arbitration proceedings when party estopped demurred to other party's complaint on basis that contract sued on required arbitration. Kustom Kraft Homes v. Leivenstein (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 805, 809-810, 92 Cal. Rptr. 650

[13] Federal Arbitration Act

[a] In General

Under the Federal Arbitration Act, when challenge is to validity of contract as a whole, not just arbitration clause, issue of illegality of that contract is to be determined by arbitrator. Buckeye Check Cashing, Inc. v. Cardegna (2006) 546 U.S. 440, 446, 126 S. Ct. 1204, 163 L. Ed. 2d 1038 ; see 9 U.S.C. § 2

Even claims arising under statute designed to further important social policies may be arbitrated because so long as prospective litigant effectively may vindicate his or her statutory cause of action in arbitral forum, statute serves its functions; party seeking to invalidate arbitration clause has burden of proving arbitration costs would be so great as to prohibit vindication of statutory rights. Green Tree Financial Corp. v. Randolph (2000) 531 U.S. 79, 121 S. Ct. 513, 148 L. Ed. 2d 373, 382-383

Federal Arbitration Act (Title 9 of the United States Code) requires court to compel arbitration of pendent arbitrable state claims when one party files motion to compel, even when result would be possibly inefficient maintenance of separate proceedings in different forums. Dean Witter Reynolds v. Byrd (1985) 470 U.S. 213, 217, 105 S. Ct. 1238, 84 L. Ed. 2d 158

Under Federal Arbitration Act, res judicata effect of prior arbitration award is matter of defense necessarily intertwined with merits and thus to be determined by arbitrator, not by court that determines to compel arbitration. Chiron Corp. v. Ortho Diagnostic Systems, Inc. (9th Cir. 2000) 207 F. 3d 1126, 1128, 1132-1134

Federal Arbitration Act does not provide federal question jurisdiction on its own; federal district court must have some basis for jurisdiction over underlying dispute, such as diversity of citizenship, before federal district court can compel arbitration. Blue Cross of California v. Anesthesia Care Assoc. (9th Cir. 1999) 187 F.3d 1045, 1050 ; but see n.5

Under Federal Arbitration Act, one who is fraudulently induced to enter into agreement to arbtirate is entitled to adjudication regarding fraud in inducement before being compelled to arbitrate in accordance with agreement if fraud in inducement goes to abritration clause rather than to contract in general. Cohen v. Wedbush, Noble, Cooke, Inc. (9th Cir. 1988) 841 F.2d 282, 286-287

Authority of federal court under United States Arbitration Act (9 U.S.C. § 4), is narrowly circumscribed; thus, court can only determine whether written arbitration agreement exists, and if it does, enforce it in accordance with its terms. Weyerhaeuser Co. v. Western Seas Shipping Co. (9th Cir. 1984) 743 F.2d 635, 637

Federal Arbitration Act controls actions by employees against securities brokerage firms. Heily v. Superior Court (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 255, 258, 248 Cal. Rptr. 673

9 U.S.C. § 2 effectively creates body of federal substantive law of arbitrability applicable to any arbitration agreement within coverage of Federal Arbitration Act. Heily v. Superior Court (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 255, 258-259, 248 Cal. Rptr. 673

State law adhesion contract principles is not applicable to determine arbitrability of disputes under Federal Arbitration Act. Heily v. Superior Court (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 255, 262-263, 248 Cal. Rptr. 673

Although federal law governs construction and scope of agreements to arbitrate contracts covered by Federal Arbitration Act, California law governs whether or not arbitration clause is part of contract. Chan v. Drexel Burnham Lambert, Inc. (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 632, 643-645, 223 Cal. Rptr. 838

[b] Federal Securities Claims

Claims arising under Securities Act of 1933 [15 U.S.C. § 77 l (2)] are arbitrable pursuant to agreement; arbitrability required to promote consistency with claims under Securities and Exchange Act of 1934. Rodriguez de Quijas v. Shearson/American Express, Inc. (1989) 490 U.S. 477, 481-485, 109 S. Ct. 1917, 104 L. Ed. 2d 526 (overruling Wilko v. Swan (1953) 346 U.S. 427, 74 S. Ct. 182, 98 L. Ed. 168 , to harmonize with Shearson/American Express, Inc. v. McMahon (1987) 482 U.S. 220, 231-234, 107 S. Ct. 2332, 96 L. Ed. 2d 185); Elliot v. Albright (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1028, 1036-1037, 257 Cal. Rptr. 762 (decided before Rodriguez, but reaching same result)

10b-5 fraud claims (15 U.S.C. § 78j(b)) under Securities Act of 1934 are arbitrable under Federal Arbitration Act (9 U.S.C. § 3) pursuant to agreement and procedures approved and prescribed by Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), in part because mistrust of arbitration that formed basis of opinion in Wilko v. Swan (1953) 346 U.S. 427, 432-437, 74 S. Ct. 182, 98 L. Ed. 168 is no longer well founded in view of intervening regulatory developments. Shearson/American Express, Inc. v. McMahon (1987) 482 U.S. 220, 233-238, 107 S. Ct. 2332, 96 L. Ed. 2d 185 , citing Scherk v. Alberto Culver Co. (1974) 417 U.S. 506, 520, 94 S. Ct. 2449, 41 L. Ed. 2d 270

Federal Arbitration Act as requiring court to compel arbitration of arbitrable pending state claims despite possible inefficiencies; stay of arbitration pending determination of federal securities action as not necessary because res judicata or collateral estoppel effect of arbitration on federal securities action is questionable. Dean Witter Reynolds v. Byrd (1985) 470 U.S. 213, 222-223, 105 S. Ct. 1238, 84 L. Ed. 2d 158

Arbitration of federal securities claims are not to be compelled under arbitration provision that expressly provided that it did not apply to controversies "for which a remedy may exist ... under certain ... federal securities laws." Gooding v. Shearson Lehman Bros. Inc. (9th Cir. 1989) 878 F.2d 281, 283-284 (compelling arbitration of state claims and staying action on pending federal arbitration)

Investors are required to arbitrate 10b-5 fraud claims (15 U.S.C. § 78j(b)) under Securities Act of 1934 when agreement between investor and broker clearly provided for arbitration without limitation, but not when agreement specifically reserved right to ligitate any controversy arising under federal securities laws. Leicht v. Bateman Eichler, Hill Richards, Inc. (9th Cir. 1988) 848 F.2d 130, 131-134

Investors' claims against securities brokers are arbitrable under Federal Arbitration Act; state concepts of adhesion and unconscionability are preempted by federal standards; agreements to arbitrate in accordance with procedures approved by Securites and Exchange Commisssion are not unconscionable as matter of law. Cohen v. Wedbush, Noble, Cooke, Inc. (9th Cir. 1988) 841 F.2d 282, 285-286

In view of confusion created by Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. v. Byrd (1985) 470 U.S. 213, 215-217, 105 S. Ct. 1238, 84 L. Ed. 2d 158 , above, and fact that arbitrability of federal securities claims was not clear until Shearson/American Express, Inc. v. McMahon (1987) 482 U.S. 220, 233-238, 107 S.Ct. 2332, 96 L. Ed. 2d 185 , above, broker's waiting until two years after commencement of litigation to move to compel arbitration did not waive right to compel arbitration. Conover v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. (9th Cir. 1988) 837 F.2d 867, 868

Because 10b-5 claims (15 U.S.C. § 78j(b)) under Securities Act of 1934 were not arbitrable until after Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. v. Byrd (1985) 470 U.S. 213, 215-217, 105 S. Ct. 1238, 84 L. Ed. 2d 158 , above, failure to seek to compel arbitration until 1986 in case filed in 1983 did not waive right to compel arbitration. Conover v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. (9th Cir. 1988) 837 F.2d 867, 868

Broker's submission of customer's claim and its counterclaim (to recover deficit in customer's account) to arbitration waives right to litigate federal securities claims and civil RICO (Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act, 18 U.S.C. § 1961 et seq.) claims arising from same facts even though arbitration of federal securities claims could not have been compelled at time broker agreed to arbitrate counterclaim. C.D. Anderson & Co. v. Lemos (9th Cir. 1987) 832 F.2d 1097, 1099-1100

Investors are required to arbitrate claims arising under §§ 10b-5, 15, and 20(a) of the Securities Act of 1934. Badart v. Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith (9th Cir. 1987) 823 F.2d 333, 333

[c] Preemption of State Law

State law lodging primary jurisdiction in administrative agency is superseded by Federal Arbitration Act. Thus, Lab. Code § 1700.44(a), which purports to vest exclusive jurisdiction in Labor Commissioner to determine application of Talent Agency Act (TAA: Lab. Code § 1700 et seq.) is preempted by the Federal Arbitration Act, and arbitrator should decide legality of any contract arguably regulated by and voidable under TAA. Preston v. Ferrer (2008) 552 U.S. 346, 128 S. Ct. 978, 169 L. Ed. 2d 917, 923, 927-929 .

As matter of substantive federal law, 9 U.S.C. § 2 preempts state law with respect to severability of arbitration provision from remainder of contract, and unless challenge is to legality of arbitration clause itself, arbitrator, not court determines a challenge to contract's legality. Preston v. Ferrer (2008) 552 U.S. 346, 128 S. Ct. 978, 169 L. Ed. 2d 917, 923, 925-926 ; Buckeye Check Cashing, Inc. v. Cardegna (2006) 546 U.S. 440, 446, 126 S. Ct. 1204, 163 L. Ed. 2d 1038

The Federal Arbitration Act preempts state law that seeks to invalidate arbitration agreements, reaches to the limits of Congress' Commerce Clause power, and applies to actions brought in state court when the transaction involves interstate commerce. Allied-Bruce Terminix Cos., Inc. v. Dobson (1995) 513 U.S. 265, 115 S. Ct. 834, 843, 130 L. Ed.

When contract provides for arbitration in accordance with California law, Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2 is not in conflict with policies of FAA and is therefore not preempted by it. Volt Information Sciences v. Board of Trustees (1989) 489 U.S. 468, 477-479, 109 S. Ct. 1248, 103 L. Ed. 2d 488

Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c) is not preempted by the FAA: FAA has no procedural provisions applicable in state court, and Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c) is not special rule limiting the authority of arbitrators, but an evenhanded law that allows trial court to stay arbitration proceedings or related lawsuit(s) to avoid conflicting rulings on common issue of fact. Cronus Investments, Inc. v. Concierge Services (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 376, 380, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 540, 107 P.3d 217 (disapproving Energy Group, Inc. v. Liddington (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1520, 238 Cal. Rptr. 202 and *Warren-Guthrie v. Health Net (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 804, 101 Cal. Federal Arbitration Act applies to all written contracts containing arbitration provisions and involving interstate commerce, and when applicable, preempts California law governing validity of arbitration clause. *Van Luven v. Federal Arbitration Act does not apply to oral agreements to arbitrate (9 U.S.C. § 2). Van Luven v. Rooney Pace, Inc. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1201, 1206 n. 1, 241 Cal. Rptr. 248

Federal Arbitration Act makes state issues in fraud complaint by customer against securities dealer subject to arbitration; California state law limiting enforceability of arbitrable contracts deemed adhesive is inapplicable. Lewis v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1097, 1101-1102, 228 Cal. Rptr. 345

California adhesion contract principles are not applicable when determining enforceability of arbitration clause in contract governed by *Federal Arbitration Act. Lewis v. [d] Venue

When one party to contract commenced arbitration in Georgia, and other party (correctly) claimed that arbitration clause on back of invoice was not part of contract, action to enjoin arbitration was proper under 28 U.S.C. § 1391 in Central District of California, where plaintiff maintained its business and where defendant was subject to in personam jurisdiction. Textile Unlimited, Inc. v. A. BMH Co., Inc. (9th Cir. 2001) 240 F. 3d 781, 786, 789

[14] Review

[a] Appeal

City was entitled to appeal without first having petitioned to vacate award when issue was not correctness of award but court's jurisdiction to compel arbitration; order compelling arbitration is interlocutory order that may be appealed from judgment confirming arbitration award and right to attack order compelling arbitration is not waived by proceeding to arbitration. United Firefighters of Los Angeles v. City of Los Angeles (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1576, 1581-1582, 283 Cal. Rptr. 8

Order compelling arbitration is not appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 1294 (appealable orders and judgments in arbitration proceedings). Graham v. Scissor-Tail, Inc. (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 807, 811 n. 1, 171 Cal. Rptr. 604, 623 P.2d

Order compelling arbitration is reviewable on appeal from judgment confirming award. Graham v. Scissor-Tail, Inc. (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 807, 811 n.1, 171 Cal. Rptr. 604, 623 P.2d 165 ; Lesser Towers, Inc. v. Roscoe-Ajax Constr. Co. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 675, 692, 77 Cal. Rptr. 100 (citing Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1294, 1294.2, relating to appealable orders and scope of review in arbitration matters)

Appeal from order compelling arbitration affects entire case; further trial court proceedings are therefore stayed under Code Civ. Proc. § 916. Prudential-Bache Securities, Inc. v. Superior Court (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 924, 925, 247 Cal. Rptr. 477

Code Civ. Proc. § 906 precludes review, on appeal from final judgment, of orders denying motion to compel arbitration that were appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 1294(a). Hobbs v. Bateman Eichler, Hill Richards, Inc. (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 174, 190-191, 210 Cal. Rptr. 387

Order denying petition to compel arbitration is appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 1294, whereas order denying motion to compel arbitration is not appealable. Los Angeles Police Protective League v. City of Los Angeles (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1141, 1144 n. 1, 209 Cal. Rptr. 890 (nevertheless treating appeal from denial of motion to compel arbitration as appeal from petition to compel arbitration, which was filed prior to motion and on which trial court apparently took no action, on ground plaintiff's motion sought same relief as that requested in petition)

Order denying petition to compel arbitration is appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 1294(a). Wilson v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 891, 893 n.1, 190 Cal. Rptr. 649 ; Gustafson v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 361, 363, 107 Cal. Rptr. 243

[b] Review by Extraordinary Writ

Availability of writs of prohibition and mandate to review order compelling arbitration. *Lesser Towers, Inc. v. Roscoe-Ajax Constr. Co. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 675, 692-693, 77 Cal. PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

4-32 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 32.70

AUTHOR: Michael S. Fields Editorial Consultant

§ 32.70 Initiation of Arbitration Based on Contract

[1] Party Seeking Arbitration

The following checklist is illustrative only of the procedures commonly utilized by counsel in arbitration matters.

☐ Demand arbitration:

☐ Prepare demand [for a form, see § 32.90].

☐ Serve demand on other parties to agreement containing arbitration clause.

☐ If the parties can agree on what issues are and are not arbitrable [see § 32.80[1]]:

☐ Prepare submission agreement.

☐ Have parties to dispute execute submission agreement.

☐ If any party refuses to arbitrate and the agreement is not self executing, petition to compel arbitration:

☐ Prepare petition to compel arbitration [for forms, see §§ 32.91 -32.93].

☐ Prepare notice of hearing and other papers, if any, on which petition is based [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1281.2, 1290-1290.4; for a form, see § 32.91[2]].

☐ Serve and file petition in appropriate court of proper county [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(10)(A), 1292, 1292.4, 1292.8 (venue and jurisdiction)], together with notice of hearing and any other papers.

Note:

If a party commences action on a dispute subject to an arbitration agreement, the defendant may file a petition to compel arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2] in lieu of filing an answer to the complaint. If the petition is denied, the petitioning defendant will have 15 days after the denial to plead to the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.7].

Practice Tip: File Complaint. It is always a good idea to file a complaint. The reasons are:

The arbitration agreement may not apply to the subject matter of the dispute or may, for some other reason, be unenforceable. In that event, failure to have filed a complaint may result in violation of a statute of limitation.

The courts today have frequent and required status conferences even when a complaint is stayed and the matter is compelled into arbitration. The status conferences act as a prod to move the arbitration procedure; thus, the dilemma of protracted delay in the arbitration could be avoided. Additionally, the court prodding will be an impetus for the parties to move the case and avoid the discretionary and mandatory dismissals so allowed by case law.

If there are parties to the dispute who are not parties to the contract, it may be possible to join all of the parties into the court action as allowed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c). Such a joinder may be possible even though one of the parties is contractually bound through statutory requirements such as the uninsured motorist requirements of Ins. Code § 11580.2(f) [see Prudential Property & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 275, 277-279, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 227 (joinder of uninsured motorist arbitration proceeding with civil action against insured driver to avoid potential inconsistent rulings when plaintiff alleged that two different accidents contributed to back injury)]. Conversely, it may be necessary to join the third party in the arbitration [see Zakarian v. Bekov (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 316, 325-327, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 623 (enforcing California Hospital Association-California Medical Association Rules for the Arbitration of Hospital and Medical Fee Disputes [CHA-CMA Rules] which require joinder in arbitration of any third party who is not party to agreement but is necessary for complete resolution of matter required to be arbitrated and require arbitrator to determine whether anyone must be so joined; agreement contained signatories' consent to joinder of any person necessary to full resolution of arbitrable dispute)]. By Michael S. Fields

☐ If a party has initiated litigation of an arbitrable controversy:

☐ Prepare notice of motion to stay proceedings in that court [for a form, see § 32.97].

For procedure and forms for use in motion proceedings generally, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

☐ Prepare supporting declarations and points and authorities [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.4; for a form, see § 32.97[2]].

☐ Serve and file notice of motion and accompanying papers.

☐ If a case is stayed, immediately file a notice of the stay and attach a copy of the order or other document staying the proceedings [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.650; for discussion, see § 32.31[2][c]].

[2] Party Opposing Petition to Compel Arbitration

☐ Prepare response, setting forth any denials and defenses [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1290, 1290.6, 1290.8; for forms, see also §§ 32.94[1], 32.98 -32.100].

☐ Serve and file response.

[3] Hearing and Order

☐ Attend hearing on petition to compel arbitration and present evidence [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.2 (summary hearing)].

☐ If court dismisses or denies the petition to compel arbitration, request statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1291, 1294(a)]. For procedure and forms see Ch. 529, Statement of Decision .

☐ Prepare order granting or denying petition to compel arbitration as directed by court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2; for a form, see § 32.95[1]].

[4] Appeal

☐ File appeal. If appropriate, counsel for a party aggrieved by order dismissing or denying petition to compel arbitration files appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1294(a)].

☐ Procedure. The appeal is taken in the same manner as from order or judgment in civil action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1294.2]. For procedure and forms, see Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal .

§ 32.80 Submission Agreement--General Form

[1] FORM Submission Agreement--General Form

This agreement, by and between _____ [name] of _____ [address], _____ [city], California, _____ [set forth shortened identity, e.g., "Lessor"], and _____ [name] of _____ [address], _____ [city], California, _____ [set forth shortened identity, e.g., "Lessee"].

RECITALS

On _____ [date], the parties hereto entered into a written agreement whereby _____ [describe agreement, e.g., Lessee received the exclusive use of a portion of _____ (premises) operated by Lessor at a rental of _____ (specify)].

Disputes have arisen between the parties regarding _____ [describe controversy].

NOW, THEREFORE, the parties hereby agree to submit to arbitration the respective claims and controversies mentioned above, together with all demands and differences arising out of the agreement. [The following issues are not submitted to arbitration, however: _____ (specify).]

The parties understand that by submitting their dispute to arbitration, they are waiving their right to a jury trial.

The submission shall be under the following terms and conditions:

[EITHER, if single arbitrator]

1. The parties _____ [appoint _____ (name) of (address), _____ (city), California, as neutral arbitrator or agree to engage the services of _____ (name of provider) to administer this arbitration]. [Unless you are sure the named arbitrator is available to serve, consider naming an alternate: If _____ (name) is unavailable or unwilling to serve as neutral arbitrator, (or is disqualified after disclosures are made,) we appoint _____ (name) of (address), _____ (city), California, to serve as neutral arbitrator.]

[OR, if three arbitrators]

1. _____ [Identity of party, e.g., Lessor] appoints _____ [name] of _____ [address], _____ [city], California, as an arbitrator.

2. _____ [Identity of other party, e.g., Lessee] appoints _____ [name] of _____ [address], _____ [city], California, as an arbitrator.

3. Within _____ days after the date hereof, the arbitrators shall by an instrument in writing signed by them appoint a third person as an additional arbitrator.

[CONTINUE]

4. The arbitrator(s) so appointed shall commence hearings within _____ days after _____ [accepting appointment or the appointment of the third arbitrator].

5. Hearings shall not be adjourned for periods longer than _____ days.

6. All hearings shall be held in _____ [city], California [_____ Include as much specificity as desired or available, e.g., in the conference room at the law firm of Black and White at 123Green Street, Suite 1205].

7. Subject to the above, the arbitrators shall appoint the times and places for all hearings, _____ days' notice in writing for such hearings shall be given by the arbitrators except that no notice shall be required for adjourned hearings. [If desired, specify what discovery, if any, may be conducted by the parties, e.g,]

8. For purposes of discovery, each party shall be entitled to conduct one deposition, serve three sets of interrogatories of no more than 30 questions, each, including subparts, and issue one request for production of documents, seeking no more than 10 documents. Each party must have completed this discovery within _____ days of the date hereof.

[AND/OR]

8. Each party agrees to furnish on _____ days' notice all books and records in his or her possession that _____ [a majority of the arbitrators or the abitrator] consider(s) necessary for a proper determination of the controversy.

9. Any notices provided for herein may be given to _____ [identity of party, e.g., Lessor] by mailing the notices to him or her at _____ [street], _____ [city], California, and to _____ [identity of other party, e.g., Lessee] by mailing the notice to him or her at _____ [street], _____ [city], California.

10. The arbitrator(s) shall exercise the powers conferred by law and by this agreement subject to the following limitations: _____ [specify, e.g., The arbitrator(s) shall not have the power to grant any remedy that could not be granted by a California court applying California law].

11. The arbitrator(s) shall reach a final determination on or before _____ [date], in respect to all matters submitted to him/her/them and shall make their award on or before that day. The award and judgment shall be a complete bar to any claims or demands in favor of either party against the other.

[11A. The parties agree that the arbitration award shall not be less than $50,000.00 nor more than $250,000.00. This minimum and maximumshall not be disclosed to the arbitrator. If the award is less than $50,000.00, it shall be raised to $50,000.00; and if the award is greater than $250,000.00, it shall be reduced to $250,000.00. If the award is between the stated minimum and maximum, that amount shall be the full amount of the award.]

[12. The parties further agree that they will continue to conduct their business for the period covered in the agreement in accordance with the interpretation of the agreement made by the arbitrators.]

13. The compensation of the neutral arbitrator shall be borne by the parties equally. Statutory costs (Code of Civil Procedure § 1033.5) are recoverable by the prevailing party, if so ordered by the neutral arbitrator. The prevailing party shall submit the statutory costs to the neutral arbitrator within 10 days after receiving the arbitration award. Objections to the cost bill by shall be made within 10 days after receipt of the cost bill by the nonprevailing party. The award is not final until the neutral arbitrator makes a final ruling on the cost bill, which shall be made no longer than 30 days from the original award date, unless the parties agree otherwise. If the arbitrator fails to award costs pursuant to this provision, the prevailing party can seek recovery in the superior court at the time the prevailing party seeks to compel the award.

EXECUTED on _____ [date], at _____, California.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use to submit an existing controversy to arbitration. A written agreement to submit an existing controversy to arbitration is valid, enforceable, and irrevocable, except on the grounds that exist for the revocation of any contract [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281]. If the matter is in litigation when the parties decide to submit it to arbitration, this agreement must be in the form of a stipulation. A form of stipulation to ADR process will be provided by the clerk as part of an ADR information package when the complaint is filed, and which the plaintiff must serve with the complaint [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.221; Cal. Rules of Ct. Rule 3.800(a) (definition of "ADR process")]. Cross complainants must serve copies of the ADR information package on any new parties to the action along with the cross complaint [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.221]. If the parties agree to use an ADR process, they are to complete the form jointly and file it with the court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.726].

The agreement in [1], above, is signed by the parties rather than by their attorneys. This helps to avoid problems of attempted revocation of the attorneys' authority to agree to arbitration [see, e.g., CPI Builders, Inc. v. Impco Technologies, Inc. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 1167, 1172-1174, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 851 (when client communicated to its attorney its revocation of authority to stipulate to binding arbitration, but attorney did not communicate that revocation to opposing counsel until after opposing counsel [not knowing of revocation] had accepted and filed stipulation, parties had binding stipulation to arbitration, which would be compelled)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Negotiate Submission Agreement When Parties Have Agreement to Arbitrate Future Controversies. When an agreement exists to submit future controversies to arbitration [see §§ 32.20 -32.23], it has been considered a good practice when an actual arbitrable controversy arises to negotiate a submission agreement in order to more clearly define the precise issues to be arbitrated and the powers of the arbitrators. A submission agreement in such a case is not necessary, however, because the scope of arbitrators' powers are determined by the agreement to arbitrate, and not by the demand [see Blatt v. Farley (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 621, 626-628, 276 Cal. Rptr. 612] . By Michael S. Fields

[3] Requirement of "Writing"

To be valid and enforceable under the arbitration statutes [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq.] an arbitration agreement must be written [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281]. The term "written agreement" includes a written agreement that has been extended or renewed by an oral or implied agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1280(f)].

[4] Contents of Agreement

After noting the existence of the dispute, agreeing to arbitration of the issues, expressly identifying any issues that are not to be arbitrated, and expressly waiving any right to a jury trial in the matter, the agreement addresses specific terms and conditions of the arbitration:

- Identifying the single neutral arbitrator, and an alternate if desired, (First Alternative Paragraph 1) or stating the method in which two party and one neutral arbitrators will be selected (Second Alternative Paragraph 1 and Paragraphs 2, 3).

PRACTICE TIP:

Multiple Arbitrators Are Expensive. Arbitration before a panel of three arbitrators is extremely costly. Given the high cost of using a panel of arbitrators, this practice should be avoided unless there are clear reasons for wanting a panel. The cost makes use of a panel particularlyinappropriate in small disputes and in disputes in which one party has much less economic power than the other, as will usually be the case in consumer disputes. In those situations the economically weaker party should, if possible, resist attempts by the stronger party to require a panel. On the other hand, a panel may be appropriate in a high stakes, complex dispute between parties with ample resources who place a value the interaction of the panel in solving the dispute because of its complexity. By Michael S. Fields

- Providing for a time within which the arbitration must commence (Paragraph 4).

- Limiting the period of any adjournment of the hearings (Paragraph 5).

- Requiring all hearings to be held in a specific location or a limited geographical area, such as a particular city (Paragraph 6).

- Authorizing the arbitrators, within the parameters set out in the prior paragraphs, to set the times and places for all hearings, and establishing a notice requirement (Paragraph 7).

PRACTICE TIP:

Consider Expenses When Drafting Agreement. This agreement provides for the arbitrator to appoint the time and place of the hearing. Every act undertaken by the arbitrator is costly to the parties. Thus, from the plaintiff's perspective, where the costs are advanced by the plaintiff's attorney, in practice it is normally more economical for the parties to do all the administrative work. Where parties are being paid by the hour, the costs probably shift from payment of attorney's fees to payment of arbitrator's fees, so that the issue becomes one of respective rates.

The cost of the hearing room may also be a factor in choosing the place for the hearing, so that counsel may wish to retain control or a veto power over that decision or make the agreement more specific as to a known location. By Michael S. Fields

- Providing for discovery in excess of that allowed by applicable statutes [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1283.1, 1283.05 (discussed at § 33.25); Ins. Code § 11580.2(f)(3)-(7) (uninsured motorist cases)] and/or providing for each party to comply with discovery called for by the arbitrator (Paragraphs 8).

- Stating where notices are to be given (Paragraph 9).

- Specifying any limitations on the arbitrators power (Paragraph 10).

- Requiring the final determination to be made by a certain date, and specifying its conclusiveness (Paragraph 11).

- If desired, providing a minimum and maximum amount of the award, and that those not be disclosed to the arbitrator (Paragraph 11A).

- Providing, for use in an ongoing contractual relationship, that the parties further dealings under the contract will be conducted inaccordance with the interpretation of the agreement made by the arbitrator (Paragraph 12).

- Providing for the parties to equally bear the arbitrator's compensation and expenses of arbitration, and including an optional clause for the prevailing party to recover costs (Paragraph 13).

PRACTICE TIP:

Specify Arbitration Expenses Covered by Clause. The agreement should be explicit as to what arbitration expenses are to be borne equally by the parties. Common expenses would be subpoenas, witness fees, transcripts, cost of a hearing room. Counsel should consider including other expenses that are likely to arise in their particular situation. By Michael S. Fields

PRACTICE TIP: Must Provide for Prevailing Party to Recover Costs, if so Desired. Costs are not recoverable in contractual arbitrations [Code Civ. Proc. § 1284.2; Dickinson v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 952, 954, 169 Cal. Rptr. 493] . Therefore, if it is the parties' intention for the prevailing party to recover costs, this must be spelled out in the submission agreement or stipulation. By Michael S. Fields

[5] Scope of Arbitration Defined by Agreement

The general rule is that the entirety of the controversy is to be determined by arbitration when an arbitration agreement exists [Orpustan v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 988, 991-992, 103 Cal. Rptr. 919, 500 P.2d 1119 ; Morris v. Zukerman (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 91, 95-96, 64 Cal. Rptr. 714] . Only a clear expression to exclude a claim from arbitration can prevail [East San Bernardino County Water Dist. v. City of San Bernardino (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 942, 953, 109 Cal. Rptr. 510] .

Hence, it is of the utmost importance that the parties clearly delineate the scope of arbitration in their agreement. Specific issues that are not intended to be decided by the arbitrators, but rather are reserved for judicial determination, should be clearly and expressly excluded in the agreement [see Unimart v. Superior Court (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1039, 1045, 82 Cal. Rptr. 249 (a person is not required to submit to arbitration any dispute he has not agreed to arbitrate); Morris v. Zukerman (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 91, 96, 64 Cal. Rptr. 714 (the parties are free to delineate the scope of arbitration)].

[6] Arbitrator's Powers Defined by Agreement

The scope of the arbitrator's authority is determined by the arbitration agreement, and ambiguities in the scope are resolved in favor of arbitrability [Luster v. Collins (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1338, 1346, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 215 (holding part of award within arbitrator's power and part in excessof arbitrator's power)]. Generally, the arbitrators may base their determinations on broad principles of justice and equity, and in doing so, they have the power to expressly or impliedly reject any claim that a party might successfully assert in a judicial action [Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 10-11, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899 ; Grunwald-Marx, Inc. v. Los Angeles Joint Board (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 568, 589, 343 P.2d 23 ; Sapp v. Barenfeld (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 515, 523, 212 P.2d 233] .

If the parties desire any limitations on these broad powers, they must explicitly and unambiguously spell them out in the agreement [Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. v. Intel Corp. (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 362, 383, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 581, 885 P.2d 994] . For discussion of the specificity required to constrain an arbitrator to rule in conformity with applicable law [Cable Connection, Inc. v. DirecTV, Inc. (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 1334, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229, 190 P.3d 586] , see Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review, § 34.10[2].

If the arbitrators exceed their powers and the award cannot be corrected without affecting the merits of the decision on the controversy submitted, their award may be vacated on that ground [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(4)].

[7] Forms Available From Arbitration Service Providers

When the parties elect to have arbitration under the auspices of an arbitration service provider, a form of agreement to submit existing disputes to arbitration may also be available from the provider, such as the American Arbitration Association. The form will be tailored to that provider's rules and procedures. In some cases, such as the American Arbitration Association, the forms may also be tailored to the particular type of dispute involved (such as commercial versus accident).

[1] FORM Demand for Arbitration

Demand for Arbitration

_____ [name of addressee]
_____ [street address]
_____ [city, state, zip code]

Re: Agreement dated _____

DEMAND FOR ARBITRATION

There is a dispute between you and the undersigned relating to the agreement dated _____, for _____ [state nature of agreement or otherwise identify it] ("Agreement").

Under Paragraph _____ of the Agreement, disputes arising under the Agreement are to be settled by arbitration. That provision states the following: _____ [set out paragraph of agreement providing for arbitration].

THEREFORE, THE UNDERSIGNED HEREBY DEMAND that the following dispute(s) be submitted to arbitration: _____ [set forth nature of dispute, e.g., the undersigned's entitlement to damages in the amount of $65,000, which resulted from defects in the packaging equipment delivered to the undersigned on March 12, 1996].

[EITHER, if single neutral arbitrator is to be used and contract specifies method of selection, demand compliance with the contractual procedure in as many paragraphs as necessary, for example]

TAKE NOTICE that the undersigned proposes any the following three persons as the neutral arbitrator: _____ [list names, addresses, and telephone numbers of proposed arbitrators].

TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that under Paragraph _____ of the Agreement, you have 30 days to agree to one of these persons as neutral arbitrator or to propose a counter list, and if you fail to do so the undersigned has the right to petition the court for appointment of a neutral arbitrator pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 1281.6.

[OR, if single neutral arbitrator is to be used and contract does not specify method of selection, request agreement on a procedure in as many paragraphs as necessary, for example]

TAKE NOTICE that the undersigned intends to exercise his/her/its right to petition the court for appointment of a neutral arbitrator under Code of Civil Procedure Section 1281.6 if we have not selected a neutral arbitrator by _____ [date]. The undersigned suggests _____ [name persons who would be acceptable as neutral arbitrator or outline a procedure for selecting an arbitrator].

[OR, if panel of arbitrators it to be used, initiate contractual procedure for selecting panel, for example]

TAKE NOTICE that the undersigned, under that Paragraph, has selected _____ [name] as a party arbitrator to act on their behalf in the dispute and hereby demand that you select a party arbitrator to act on your behalf in the dispute. Your selection must be made within _____ days after this demand is served on you.

TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the party arbitrator acting on behalf of the undersigned will be ready to cooperate with the party arbitrator acting on your behalf, in the selection of a third, neutral arbitrator; in the settlement of the claims, controversies, and disputes existing between yourselves and the undersigned; and in the determination of all demands and differences arising out of the Agreement.

TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that should you refuse to select a party arbitrator to act on your behalf, as stated above, or should you otherwise refuse to arbitrate the disputes mentioned above, the undersigned will take further steps to proceed with arbitration according to law.

[CONTINUE]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a demand for arbitration for use to initiate arbitration once a controversy has arisen, and to notify the other parties that they must select an arbitrator within a certain time as required by the agreement to arbitrate. A demand for arbitration will cause the other parties either to submit voluntarily to arbitration proceedings or to refuse to arbitrate the matter, in which event court proceedings may be commenced to compel arbitration [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2].

PRACTICE TIP:

File Complaint. It is always a good idea to file a complaint when demanding arbitration. The reasons are:

The arbitration agreement may not apply to the subject matter of the dispute or may, for some other reason, be unenforceable. In that even, failure to have filed a complaint may result in violation of a statute of limitation.

The courts today have frequent and required status conferences even when a complaint is stayed and the matter is compelled into arbitration. The status conferences act as a prod to move the arbitration procedure; thus, the dilemma of protracted delay in the arbitration could be avoided. Additionally, the court prodding will be an impetus for the parties to move the case and avoid the discretionary and mandatory dismissals so allowed by case law.

If there are parties to the dispute who are not parties to the contract, it may be possible to join all of the parties into the court action as allowed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c). Such a joinder may be possible even though one of the parties is contractually bound through statutory requirements such as uninsured motorist requirements of Ins. Code § 11580.2(f) [see Prudential Property & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 275, 277-279, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 227 (joinder of uninsured motorist arbitration proceeding with civil action against insured driver to avoid potential inconsistent rulings when plaintiff alleged that two different accidents contributed to back injury)]. Conversely, it may be necessary to join the third party in the arbitration [see Zakarian v. Bekov (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 316, 325-327, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 623 (enforcing California Hospital Association-California Medical Association Rules for the Arbitration of Hospital and Medical Fee Disputes [CHA-CMA Rules] which require joinder in arbitration of any third party who is not party to agreement but is necessary for complete resolution of matter required to be arbitrated and require arbitrator to determine whether anyone must be so joined; agreement contained signatories' consent to joinder of any person necessary to full resolution of arbitrable dispute)]. By Michael S. Fields

[3] Form of Demand

A demand for arbitration is usually submitted in the form of a letter, and need not be as formal as the form set out in [1], above.

If, under the agreement, arbitration is to be conducted pursuant to the rules of the American Arbitration Association, the Association has its own printed forms of demand that are available at any of its regional offices. Counsel should review any arbitration rules adopted by the parties' agreement to determine what has to be included in the demand. For instance, Rule 7 of AAA's Commercial Arbitration Rules (1988) requires the demand to contain a statement of the matter in dispute, the amount of money involved, if any, the remedy sought, and the hearing locale requested. Three copies of the demand must be submitted to the regional office.

A demand for arbitration has been analogized to a complaint in a civil lawsuit. Its purpose is to inform the other party of the fact that the party making the demand intends to ask for a determination of the dispute between them [see Blatt v. Farley (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 621, 627, 276 Cal. Rptr. 612] . Although so analogized, an arbitration demand filed only in an agreed arbitral forum and not asserted by the claimant in any complaint, cross-complaint or petition filed in court is not a "complaint" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16, and thus, is not subject to a motion to strike under that section [Sheppard v. Lightpost Museum Fund (2006) 146 Cal. App. 4th 315, 319, 323-324, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 821] . The scope of the arbitrators' powers is determined by the underlying agreement to arbitrate, not by the demand [Blatt v. Farley (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 621, 626-628, 276 Cal. Rptr. 612] .

For further discussion relating to the form of a demand for arbitration, see § 32.41.

[4] Contents of Demand

The demand identifies the underlying contract and describes the dispute. This form includes alternative paragraphs for selecting a sole neutral arbitrator or naming a party arbitrator and setting the stage for the ultimate selection of a neutral arbitrator. Whether the arbitration is to be before a sole neutral arbitrator or before a neutral and party arbitrators, the form also provides alternative language for invoking a selection procedure specified in the underlying contract or if the contract is silent on the procedure, for suggesting and initiating a procedure.

PRACTICE TIP:

Be Fully Familiar With Underlying Contract. Prior to demanding arbitration, counsel should study the contract requiring arbitration. Many arbitration clauses have preconditions, time limits [see [6], below], fee posting requirements, arbitration requirements under certain rules of arbitration companies such as the American Arbitration Association or J.A.M.S./Endispute. A demand for arbitration should comply with the contract. By Michael S. Fields

PRACTICE TIP: Consider Stipulation Relaxing Rules of Evidence. Additionally, the parties should be familiar with Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq., and understand that a contractual arbitration differs from a judicial arbitration, especially in the production of evidence. Whereas, in judicial arbitrations, Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.823 allows introduction of evidence by declaration, the contractual arbitrations under Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq. require, for the most part, that the rules of evidence apply. It may be wise for the parties to agree that Rule 3.823 applies to their matter when they bind the matter to an arbitration. Even when there is a pre-existing contract, the parties may stipulate to the relaxed rules of Rule 1613. By Michael S. Fields

[5] Copies

The following copies of a demand for arbitration should be prepared:

- Original for mailing or other delivery to the other parties;
- One or more copies to be filed with the arbitrators or association conducting the arbitration;
- One copy for each client, if desired;
- One office file copy;
- Other copies as desired.

[6] Time to Submit Demand

If the arbitration agreement does not specify a time within which arbitration must be demanded, a reasonable time is allowed. What constitutes a reasonable time is a question of fact depending on the situation of the parties, the nature of the transaction, and the facts of the particular case. Unreasonable delay in demanding arbitration may be deemed a waiver of the right to arbitrate [Sawday v. Vista Irrigation Dist. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 833, 836-837, 52 Cal. Rptr. 1, 415 P.2d 816] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Send Demand by Certified Mail. The demand for arbitration should be sent by certified letter to be certain of its receipt. This is especially so where there are built-in time limits in the contract. By Michael S. Fields

For further discussion relating to the timeliness of a demand for arbitration, see §§ 32.25[4], 32.40.

[b] Use of Form

The form of petition in [a], above, is for use to commence a proceeding to obtain a court order compelling arbitration [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1281.2, 1290].

The petition also may be used when a defendant, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.7, opts to file a petition to compel arbitration in lieu of an answer to a complaint. If the petition is denied, the defendant has 15 days from denial to plead the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.7].

The bracketed language in item 2 of the prayer is for use if the arbitration agreement has a special penalty clause that provides for any party who institutes any legal action or administrative proceeding against the other by any method other than arbitration, to pay the responding party any damages, costs, expenses, and attorneys' fees required to bring the matter to arbitration [see Acosta v. Kerrigan (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 1124, 1129-1133, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 865] .

[c] Allegations

A petition to compel arbitration must allege the following [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2]:

- An agreement to arbitrate (Paragraph 2).
- A controversy within the scope of arbitration as agreed (Paragraph 3).
- Refusal by respondent to arbitrate (Paragraph 4).

Optional Paragraph 5 is for use to anticipate respondent's objection that a third party who is not a party to the arbitration agreement is necessary to the resolution of the dispute when the arbitration agreement or the rules incorporated therein, such as California Hospital Association-California Medical Association Rules for the Arbitration of Hospital and Medical Fee Disputes (CHA-CMA Rules) require joinder in arbitration of any third party who is not party to agreement but is necessary for complete resolution of the matter required to be arbitrated. The allegations of that optional paragraph conform to the CHA-CMA Rules in alleging that the arbitrator, not the court, determine who must be joined. If counsel's situation differs, the allegations should be changed accordingly and the petition should include allegations and be accompanied by declarations and points and authorities from which the court can make the determination that the third party is necessary to the resolution of the matter required to be arbitrated. For joinder of a person who is not a party to the arbitration agreement as being generally prohibited, see § 32.43[8][g]. For discussion and forms relating to joinder in civil actions, see Ch. 395, Parties .

Additionally, the petition must state the provisions of the written agreement and the paragraph that provides for arbitration verbatim or by a copy attached to the petition and incorporated by reference (Paragraph 2) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1330].

Petitioner need only allege the existence of an agreement and support the allegation as provided in Cal. Rules of Ct, Rule 3.1330. Once the petitioner has alleged that the agreement exists, the burden shifts to the party resisting arbitration to prove the falsity of the purported agreement [Hotels Nevada v. L.A. Pacific Center, Inc. (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 754, 765, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 700 ; Condee v. Longwood Management Corp. (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 215, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 597] . However, it is fatal not to allege the existence of an agreement to arbitrate. Arbitration could not be compelled when the party seeking arbitration does not meet the basic statutory requirements by affirmatively alleging the existence of a written agreement to arbitrate [Brodke v. Alphatec Spine, Inc. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1569, 1574-1577, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 554 (merely alleged that plaintiffs had alleged existence of "alleged agreements" to arbitrate, but denied existence of any such agreements)].

Paragraph 1 of the petition is included to show venue [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1292, 1292.4; for discussion, see [g], below]. If the petition is filed in a pending action or proceeding involving the controversy to be arbitrated [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1292.4], the caption would be similar to the ones on the other papers filed in the pending action or proceeding, except that the status of the parties in both roles would be shown, for example, "Defendant and Petitioner" if defendant is seeking an order compelling arbitration. Also, the prayer would include a request that the other proceedings be stayed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.4.

If the arbitration agreement has a special penalty clause that provides for any party who institutes any legal action or administrative proceeding against the other by any method other than arbitration, to pay the responding party damages, costs, expenses, and attorneys' fees incurred as a result of that action, the trial court may award petitioner its attorney's fees reasonably expended in moving this matter to arbitration, even though it is an interim award and even though petitioner may not be the ultimate prevailing party [Acosta v. Kerrigan (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 1124, 1129-1133, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 865] .

The following copies of the petition should be prepared:

- Original to be filed in the court and conformed copy for the court to stamp and return.
- One copy to be served on each of the other parties.
- One copy for the client, if desired.
- Office file copy.
- Other copies as desired.

[e] Service

A copy of the petition and a written notice of time and place of the hearing and any other papers on which the petition is based are to be served in the manner provided in the arbitration agreement if it so provides [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(a)]. For a form of notice of hearing on petition to compel arbitration, see [2], below. For a form of notice of motion and discussion of papers required to accompany any motion filed in connection with the petition, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

If the arbitration agreement does not provide the manner of service and the person on whom service is to be made has not previously appeared in the proceeding or has not previously been served in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(b), service within the state is to be performed in the manner provided by law for the service of summons in an action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(b)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 413.10-417.40 (governing service of summons generally)]. If service is to be made outside the state, it is to be made by mailing a copy of the petition, notice, and other papers on which the petition is based by registered or certified mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(b)(2)].

If the arbitration agreement does not provide the manner in which service is to be made and the person to be served has previously appeared in the proceeding or has previously been served in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(b), service is to be made in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020 governing service of papers other than summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(c)]. A petition under the arbitration statutes is heard on the notice provided by law for the making and hearing of motions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 (notice of motion)], except that not less than 10 days' notice of the date set for the hearing on the petition shall be given [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.2]. If the petition is served out of state it may not be heard until at least 30 days after the date of service [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(b)(2)].

For procedure and forms dealing with service of summons and papers generally, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[f] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction over a petition to compel arbitration as either a limited or unlimited civil case. A petition to compel arbitration is classified as a limited civil case if the matter to be resolved by arbitration is a limited civil case under Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(1)-(9), inclusive, unless the petition involves uninsured motorist arbitration proceedings in accordance with Ins. Code § 11580.2 [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(10)(A); see Code Civ. Proc. § 85 (defining "limited civil case")].

If the proceeding is a limited civil case, and the petition is the first paper filed, the caption must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000. The caption must also identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 72055; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

Otherwise, a petition to compel arbitration is classified as a case of unlimited jurisdiction [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10]. For further discussion, see § 32.43[3]. For discussion of the jurisdictional classification of cases, see Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter .

[g] Venue

The petition is to be filed in a court having jurisdiction in:

- The county where the agreement is to be performed or was made [Code Civ. Proc. § 1292(a)].

- The county where any party resides or has a place of business if the agreement does not specify the county where it is to be performed and the agreement was not made in any county in the state [Code Civ. Proc. § 1292(b)].

- Any county in the state if the case is not covered by Code Civ. Proc. § 1292(a) or (b), above [Code Civ. Proc. § 1292(c)].

An exception is provided when the controversy to be arbitrated is involved in a pending court action or proceeding, in which case the petition is required to be filed in the action or proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1292.4].

[h] Statute of Limitations

Apart from the issue of timely demand for arbitration [for discussion, see § 32.40], the party seeking arbitration must petition to compel it within four years after the other party has refused to arbitrate. An action to compel arbitration is in essence a suit in equity to compel specific performance of a contract. The contract is considered breached, and thus the cause of action accrues, when the other party refuses to comply with a demand to arbitrate [Wagner Construction Co. v. Pacific Mechanical Corp. (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 19, 29, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434, 157 P.3d 1029 (distinguishing limitations defense on underlying claim, which is for arbitrator to decide); Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1035, 1040-1043, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 381, 831 P.2d 821] . Then, the four-year limitation of Code Civ. Proc. § 337, applicable to breach of contract, applies to require the petition to compel arbitration to be filed within four years from the refusal to arbitrate [Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1035, 1040, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 381, 831 P.2d 821] .

§ 32.92 Petition to Compel Arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1281.2, 1290]--Uninsured or Underinsured Motorists Claim [Ins. Code § 11580.2(f)]--By Insured Against Insurer

[1] FORM Petition to Compel Arbitration--Uninsured or Underinsured Motorists Claim--By Insured Against Insurer

[Caption. See § 32.91[1], above.]

Petitioner alleges:

1. At all times herein mentioned, petitioner was insured by a bodily injury insurance policy issued by respondent as insurer, containing uninsured motorists coverage insuring petitioner for all sums petitioner is entitled to recover as damages for bodily injury from the owner or operator of an uninsured motor vehicle. Regarding this uninsured motorists coverage, the policy contains an arbitration clause which provides as follows: _____ [set forth arbitration provisions]. A copy of the policy is attached to as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof.

2. On or about _____ [date], petitioner sustained bodily injuries caused by an uninsured motor vehicle in _____ [city], _____ [county], California. Petitioner and respondent are unable to agree regarding _____ [describe dispute, e.g., whether petitioner is legally entitled to recover damages for these injuries and the amount of damages for these injuries] and a controversy exists between petitioner and respondent that must be determined by arbitration under the terms of the insurance policy alleged in this petition.

3. On or about _____ [date], petitioner demanded that respondent arbitrate this matter. Respondent has at all times refused, and still refuses, to so arbitrate.

[2] Use of Form

The form of petition in [1], above, is for use to compel arbitration of an insurance claim under an uninsured motorists liability clause, when the insured and the insurer disagree as to the insured's entitlement to damages or the amount of the damages [see Ins. Code § 11580.2(f) (requiring that bodily injury liability policies provide for arbitration of such determinations); see also Ins. Code § 11580.2(p)(7) (underinsured motorist coverage shall be included in all policies of bodily injury liability insurance providing uninsured motorist coverage issued or renewed on or after July 1, 1985)].

A written notice of the time and place of the hearing and any papers on which the petition is based are to be served with the petition in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4]. For a form of notice of hearing, see § 32.91[2].

[3] Arbitration Under Uninsured Motorists Statute

[a] Terms Required by Statute

Automobile insurance policies containing uninsured motorists coverage (insuring for all sums the insured or his or her heirs or legal representative is entitled to recover as damages for bodily injury or wrongful death fromthe owner or operator of an uninsured or underinsured motor vehicle) are required to provide that the determination as to whether the insured is legally entitled to recover damages, and if so entitled, the amount of the damages, is to be made by agreement between the insured and the insurer, or, in the event of disagreement, by arbitration conducted by a single neutral arbitrator [Ins. Code § 11580.2(a), (f)].

[b] Limit on Deceased Passenger's Heirs' Right to Compel

Arbitration between the insured and the insured's deceased passenger's heirs cannot be compelled under an arbitration clause in an uninsured motorist provision that is no broader than Ins. Code § 11580.2(f) after the insurer has interpleaded proceeds equal to the policy limits when the only dispute is between the claimants regarding their respective shares of those proceeds. Section 11580.2(f) only contemplates arbitration of controversies involving the insurer [Mayflower Ins. Co. v. Pellegrino (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1326, 1332-1335, 261 Cal. Rptr. 224] .

[c] Relationship to Arbitration Act

The uninsured motorist statute provides for a non-self-executing type of arbitration in that it requires resolution by a single neutral arbitrator [American Home Assurance Co. v. Benowitz (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 192, 198-199, 285 Cal. Rptr. 626] . The uninsured motorist statute provides only skeletal provision for arbitration. If the particular policy is silent on parts of the process, the provisions of the Arbitration Act (Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq.) govern [American Home Assurance Co. v. Benowitz (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 192, 201, 201 n.3, 285 Cal. Rptr. 626] . Thus, if the parties cannot agree on an arbitrator or, after demand by the insured, the insurer is not forthcoming, the insured's remedy is to invoke the Arbitration Act. The insured has no authority to select his or her own arbitrator and compel the insurer to submit to arbitration before that person [American Home Assurance Co. v. Benowitz (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 192, 201, 285 Cal. Rptr. 626] .

Uninsured motorist arbitration conducted pursuant to Ins. Code § 11580.2, is a form of contractual arbitration governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq., and thus is an arbitration within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 998 (discussed at § 33.29[2]) [Pilimai v. Farmers Ins. Exch. Co. (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 133, 142, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 760, 137 P.3d 939] . When the insured's Section 998 offer is not accepted and an arbitration award for a larger amount is granted, the maximum liability provision of Ins. Code § 11580.2(p)(4) does not preclude the successful insured's recovery of costs under Code Civ. Proc § 998 even if those costs, when added to the award, exceed the coverage limits [Pilimai v. Farmers Ins. Exch. Co. (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 133, 145, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 760, 137 P.3d 939] .

[d] Joinder With Civil Action Against Insured Motorist

The power of the court under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c) to order joinder of an arbitration proceeding and a civil action to avoid inconsistent rulings extends to cases involving uninsured motorist arbitration [Mercury Insurance Group v. Superior Court (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 332, 345, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 308, 965 P.2d 1178 ; Prudential Property & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 275, 278-279, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 227 ; see Ins. Code § 11580.2]. Thus, inconsistent rulings may be avoided in cases involving a combination of insured and uninsured parties.

[e] Time Limit for Concluding Arbitration

[i] Five Year Limit

Effective January 1, 1996, uninsured motorist arbitration instituted pursuant to Ins. Code § 11580.2, other than one in which the insured also has a workers' compensation claim, must be concluded within five years from the institution of the arbitration proceeding [Ins. Code § 11580.2(i)(2)(A)].

[ii] Three Year Limit in Case of Related Workers' Compensation Claim

If the insured has a workers' compensation claim arising from the same accident, the arbitration must be concluded within three years of the date the claim is concluded, or within the five years after the arbitration proceeding is instituted, whichever occurs later [Ins. Code § 11580.2(i)(2)(B)].

[iii] Excuses From Compliance

The doctrines of estoppel, waiver, impossibility, impracticality, and futility apply to excuse a party's compliance with the statutory time frame, as determined by the court [Ins. Code § 11580.2(i)(3)]. Also, the parties to the insurance contract may stipulate in writing to extending the time to conclude arbitration [Ins. Code § 11580.2(i)(4)].

[iv] Calculation of Time; Denial of Untimely Petition to Compel

The arbitration may be considered to have been instituted on the date the claimant sends his or her demand for arbitration [Santangelo v. Allstate Insurance Company (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 804, 812, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 735] . If the insured does not conclude the arbitration within five years after demanding it, and he or she cannot establish any basis for waiver or estoppel of the five-year period for completion of arbitration, any petition for an order to compel that arbitration must be denied [Santangelo v. Allstate Insurance Company (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 804, 812, 816-818, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 735] .

[v] Application to Cases in Which Accident Occurred Prior to Enactment of Five Year Limit

Application of Ins. Code § 11580.2(i)(2)(A) to refuse to compel arbitration arising out of an accident that occurred before enactment of the five-year limitation is proper if, under the circumstances of the particular case, plaintiff had a reasonable time after the legislation became operative within which to conclude the arbitration and failed to do so [Santangelo v. Allstate Insurance Company (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 804, 815-818, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 735] .

The uninsured motorists statute does not specify venue for the purpose of filing a petition to compel arbitration.

For the purpose of discovery in uninsured motorists arbitration, the statute provides that whenever reference is made in Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.010 et seq. (general discovery laws incorporated into Ins. Code § 11580.2(f) with limitations) to the court in which the action is pending, or provision is made for application to the court or obtaining leave of court or approval by the court, the court that has jurisdiction for the purposes of Ins. Code § 11580.2 is the superior court of California in the county which is a proper county for the filing of a suit for bodily injury arising out of the accident, against the uninsured motorist [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395 (venue of personal injury actions)], or any county specified in the policy or an endorsement added thereto as a proper county for arbitration or action thereon [Ins. Code § 11580.2(f)(1)]. Change of venue for discovery purposes may be made as provided in Ins. Code § 11580.2(f)(2). It is unclear, therefore, whether Ins. Code § 11580.2(f)(1) applies by implication to govern venue of petition to compel arbitration of an uninsured motorist matter or whether Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1292, 1292.4, governing venue of pre-arbitration proceedings generally, applies.

[5] Scope of Arbitration

[a] Only Two Issues If Clause Is No Broader Than Insurance Code § 11580.2(f)

The courts look to the arbitration clause in the insurance policy to determine whether a particular issue in a controversy over uninsured motorists coverage is to be decided by arbitration or by litigation [see Orpustan v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 988, 991-992, 103 Cal. Rptr. 919, 500 P.2d 1119 ; Felner v. Meritplan Ins. Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 540, 543, 86 Cal. Rptr. 178] . If the language of the arbitration clause is that of Ins. Code § 11580.2(f), only two issues are required to be submitted to arbitration:

- Whether or not the insured is entitled to recover against the uninsured motorist; and

- If so, the amount of the damages [Freeman v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 473, 480, 121 Cal. Rptr. 477, 535 P.2d 341 ; Hartford Acc. & Indem. Co. v. Jackson (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 111, 114-115, 197 Cal. Rptr. 477] .

The question of whether the insurer is bound by a default judgment against the driver who was at fault is to be arbitrated because it falls squarely within the questions of liability and damages statutorily subject to arbitration [Bouton v USAA Casualty Insurance Company (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 1190, 1194, 1201-1203, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 519, 186 P.3d 1]. This issue that whether the insurer is bound by default judgment is arbitrable was resolved in Bouton v. USAA Casualty Insurance Company (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 1190, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 519 , and not addressed in the subsequent case of Bouton v. USAA Casualty Insurance Company (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 412, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 152 (holding that coverage questions are not arbitrable). When the policy is limited to the statutory language, other issues, such as coverage, are not arbitrable and must be decided by the court [Bouton v. USAA Casualty Insurance Company (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 412, 420, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 152 (coverage includes question whether claimant is an insured within policy definitions); Hartford Acc. & Indem. Co. v. Jackson (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 111, 114, 197 Cal. Rptr. 477] . In addition, an insurer that has paid its insured the full amount of the uninsured motorist coverage cannot be compelled to arbitrate. Any of the insured's damages attributable to the accident that exceed the policy's uninsured-motorist limits have no relevance in uninsured motorist arbitration [State Farm Mutual Automobile Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (Balen) (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1424, 1432-1433, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 850] . Similarly, there is nothing relevant to any bad faith claim by the insured that can be arbitrated. The insured's damages in a bad faith action against his or her insurer derive from actions taken by the insurer after the accident. Unlike the traditional third-party bad faith situation, in an uninsured-motorist context, the personal injury and property damage sustained by the insured occur before any bad faith on the insurer's part. They cannot be a proximate result of any bad faith conduct, and cannot serve as a proper measure of damages in any bad faith action [State Farm Mutual Automobile Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (Balen) (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1424, 1432-1434, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 850] .

[b] Additional Issues If Clause Is Broader Than Insurance Code § 11580.2(f)

If the policy language is broader than that required by Ins. Code § 11580.2(f), the arbitration of additional issues may be required [see Freeman v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 473, 481, 121 Cal. Rptr. 477, 535 P.2d 341] . For example, when a policy provided that the arbitrators would "hear and determine the question or questions so in dispute" if the parties did "not agree on the amount payable" under the policy, the arbitrator was empowered to decide the coverage issue of whether or not there was contact between the other vehicle and the insured vehicle as required by Ins. Code § 11580.2(b)(1) [Orpustan v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 988, 991-992, 103 Cal. Rptr. 919, 500 P.2d 1119 ; see also Freeman v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 473, 482, 121 Cal. Rptr. 477, 535 P.2d 341 (characterizing the holding in Orpustan as based on the policy language rather than the statutory language)].

[c] Waiver of Objection to Arbitration of Issue

Additionally, a dispute that would otherwise not be subject to arbitration may be decided by the arbitrator or arbitrators if the party that could object to the submission fails to do so and thereby waives the right to object [see Felner v. Meritplan Ins. Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 540, 544, 86 Cal. Rptr. 178] .

[6] Declaration Regarding Worker's Compensation

Uninsured motorists coverage does not apply in any instance in which it would inure directly or indirectly to the benefit of any worker's compensation carrier or to any person qualified as a self-insurer under any worker's compensation law, or directly to the benefit of the United States, or any state or any political subdivision of the United States [Ins. Code § 11580.2(c)(4)].

If the insured has or may have rights to benefits, other than nonoccupational disability benefits, under any worker's compensation law, the arbitrator may not proceed with the arbitration until the insured's physical condition is stationary and ratable. In those cases in which the insured claims a permanent disability, the claims must, unless good cause is shown, be adjudicated by award or settled by compromise and release before the arbitration may proceed [Ins. Code § 11580.2(f)].

A petition for arbitration of a dispute over uninsured motorists coverage is required to contain a declaration under penalty of perjury stating whether the insured has a worker's compensation claim. If there is a claim, the declaration must state whether the claim has proceeded to findings and award or settlement on all issues reasonably contemplated to be determined in the claim. If it has not proceeded to findings and award or settlement, the declaration must state reasons amounting to good cause as grounds for the arbitration to proceed immediately [Ins. Code § 11580.2(f)].

[7] Prerequisites to Accrual of Action

Ins. Code § 11580.2(i)(1) provides that no cause of action accrues in the insured's favor unless one of the following actions has occurred within two years from the date of the accident:

- Suit for bodily injury has been filed against the uninsured motorist;
- Agreement as to the amount due under the policy had been concluded; or
- The insured has formally instituted arbitration proceedings by notifying the insurer in writing sent by certified mail, return receipt requested. The notice must be sent to the insurer or to the agent for process designated by the insurer filed with the Department of Insurance.

The statutory period for completion of one of the prerequisites listed above was increased from one year to two years effective January 1, 2004, but that amendment was not retroactive. Thus, insureds who were injured by an uninsured motorist on June 16, 2003, lost any cause of action against their insurer by failing to demand arbitration and by not filing suit against the uninsured motorist until June 19, 2004 [Bullard v. California State Automobile Assn. (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 211, 218-221, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225] .

Although some cases have held that Ins. Code § 11580.2(i) establishes a limitation period for petitioning to compel arbitration of an uninsured motorist claim [see, e.g., Freeman v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 473, 484, 121 Cal. Rptr. 477, 535 P.2d 341] , that position has been abrogated by the California Supreme Court, which has held that Section 11580.2(i) instead establishes prerequisites to accrual of an action on an uninsured motorist claim, and that no cause of action accrues until and unless the insurer refuses to arbitrate [Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1035, 1040-1042, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 381, 831 P.2d 821] . Then, the four-year limitation of Code Civ. Proc. § 337, applicable to breach of contract, applies [Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1035, 1040, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 381, 831 P.2d 821] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Protecting Against Two Year Period. There are three ways to protect the two year period when an uninsured motorist is involved: (1) demand arbitration; (2) resolve the dispute; and/or (3) file a complaint [see Ins. Code § 11580.2(i)].

If in fact a defendant is uninsured, the demand for arbitration should be filed before the two year period expires. If the fact of uninsurance of the defendant is discovered during litigation, the demand for uninsured motorist arbitration can be served within a reasonable time after such discovery [see Ins. Code § 11580.2(i)(1)(A)]. The two-year period applies to actions in behalf of a minor or incompetent [see Republic Indem. Co. v. Barn Furniture Mart, Inc. (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 517, 518-519, 56 Cal. Rptr. 609] .

The complaint against all potential defendants should always be filed before the running of the two year statute of limitations. Although the parties may believe that certain motorists are uninsured, if it is later discovered that insurance exists after the running of the two year statute, then there is a violation of the statute, and it is time to call your malpractice carrier. By Michael S. Fields

PRACTICE TIP: Make Prompt Demand After Settlement With Underinsured Motorist. A demand for arbitration should be made immediately after settlement with the underinsured motorist. The demand should contain a copy of the certification proving the insurance limits, copy of the settlement draft and copy of the release document, all of which are prima facie evidence of the payment by the underinsured motorist of the policy limit. Some carriers who insure the party who is underinsured will not cooperate and send certification of the amount of insurance. It is best to obtain this information by way of verified interrogatory responses that set out the amount of insurance. Also limits of insurance can be obtained by demanding the insurance policy and the declaration page through Code Civ. Proc. § 2031.010 et seq. [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2017(b) (Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.210, effective July 1, 2005)]. By Michael S. Fields

[Caption. See § 32.91[1].]

Petitioner alleges:

1. Petitioner is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ County, California.

2. Respondent is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of California, with its principal place of business in _____ County, California and authorized to do, and doing, business as an automobile liability insurer.

3. On or about _____ [date], respondent issued to petitioner an automobile liability insurance policy, a copy of which is attached to as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof.

4. On or about _____ [date], while the policy was in full force and effect but prior to its actual delivery to petitioner, petitioner was involved in a vehicular accident with an uninsured motorist whose identity is unknown to petitioner. Petitioner sustained bodily injury arising out of physical contact of the automobile operated by that uninsured motorist with _____ [petitioner or the automobile which petitioner was at that time occupying].

5. Within 24 hours after the accident petitioner reported the accident to the _____ [Police Department of the City of _____ (city where the accident occurred) or if the accident occurred in unincorporated territory, either Sheriff of the County of _____ (county where the accident occurred) or local headquarters of the California Highway Patrol in _____ (city or town)].

6. On or about _____ [date, within 30 days of the accident], petitioner filed with respondent a verified statement pursuant to Insurance Code Section 11580.2(b)(2) that petitioner had a cause of action arising out of the accident against an uninsured motorist and setting forth facts in support that cause of action. Respondent failed and refused, and continues to fail and refuse, to settle the claim presented by the verified statement.

7. On or about _____ [date], petitioner demanded arbitration of the claim. Respondent failed and refused, and continues to fail and refuse, to submit to arbitration of the claim.

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays that the court order arbitration of the controversy described above, as required by Section 11580.2(f) of the Insurance Code, and award petitioner his/her costs herein incurred.

[2] Use of Form

The form of petition in [1], above, is for use to compel arbitration of a personal injury claim under uninsured motorists coverage of an automobile liability insurance policy when uninsured motorist status is based on physical contact with an unidentified motorist [see Ins. Code § 11580.2(b) (defining "uninsured motor vehicle")]. The form is adapted from the petition as amended and filed in Bohlert v. Spartan Ins. Co. (1969) 3 Cal. App. 3d 113, 116, 83 Cal. Rptr. 515 . For discussion regarding the requirements for a petition to compel arbitration, see §§ 32.91[1] and 32.92.

A written notice of the time and place of the hearing and any papers on which the petition is based are to be served with the petition in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4]. For a form of notice of hearing, see § 32.91[2].

PRACTICE TIP:

File Complaint in Case Driver Is Identified. The plaintiff should always file a "Doe" complaint in case the hit and run driver or vehicle are subsequently identified and discovered to have insurance coverage, after the statute date. The insurance coverage may come from the driver or the vehicle owner, if different from the driver. By Michael S. Fields

[3] Allegations

For the purpose of uninsured motorists coverage [see Ins. Code § 11580.2(a); see § 32.92[3]] the term "uninsured motor vehicle" includes a motor vehicle with respect to which the owner or operator is unknown, provided that:

- The bodily injury has arisen out of physical contact of that automobile with the insured or with an automobile which the insured is occupying [Ins. Code § 11580.2(b)(1)]; and

- The insured or someone on his or her behalf has reported the accident within 24 hours to the law enforcement authorities and has filed with the insurer within 30 days thereafter a statement under oath setting forth the claim and supporting facts [Ins. Code § 11580.2(b)(2)].

When the scope of arbitration is as broad as that specified in Ins. Code § 11580.2(f), that is, to determine whether the insured is legally entitled to recover damages, and, if so, the amount of the damages, a dispute as to whether or not the vehicle causing the injury was an uninsured motor vehicle is to be submitted to arbitration and not decided by the court [Orpustan v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 988, 991-992, 103 Cal. Rptr. 919, 500 P.2d 1119 ; Felner v. Meritplan Ins. Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 540, 543, 86 Cal. Rptr. 178] . It seems, therefore, that specifically pleading facts showing the status of the vehicle (Paragraphs 4-6) is necessary only if the scope of arbitration is limited and the issue as to the status of the vehicle is to be decided by the court.

[4] Declaration Regarding Worker's Compensation Is Required

A petition for arbitration of an uninsured motorists coverage claim is also required to contain a declaration under penalty of perjury stating whether a worker's compensation claim arises from the injuries and the status of any such claim [Ins. Code § 11580.2(f); see § 32.92[1], [6]].

Respondent _____ [name] answers and responds to the petition herein as follows:

1. Answering [Paragraph(s) _____ of] the petition, respondent denies each and every, all and singular, generally and specifically, the allegations therein [, except that respondent admits _____ (specify)].

2. _____ [Continue with denials].

FIRST AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE
(Waiver of Arbitration)

1. The alleged controversy that petitioner seeks to arbitrate allegedly arose on or about _____ [date], and any right to arbitrate existed, if at all, at that time.

[EITHER, if written agreement specifies a time within which to demand arbitration]

2. Under the terms of the arbitration agreement of _____ [date], between petitioner and respondent, a demand for arbitration must be filed not later than _____ [specify time limitation on demand, e.g., 60 days after the occurrence of the disputed event].

3. _____ [Set forth facts showing waiver, e.g., Petitioner did not make any demand on respondent to arbitrate the controversy and did not take any steps to enforce his/her right to arbitrate until _____ (date), when for the first time petitioner demanded that the controversy be submitted to arbitration].

4. This failure to make a timely demand constitutes a waiver and forfeiture of any right petitioner may have to arbitrate this controversy.

[OR, if written agreement does not specify a certain time within which to demand arbitration]

2. _____ [Set forth facts showing waiver, e.g., Petitioner did not make any demand on respondent to arbitrate the controversy and did not take any steps to enforce his/her right to arbitration until _____ [date], when for the first time petitioner demanded that the controversy be submitted to arbitration. The delay was unreasonable in that _____ (set forth circumstances showing delay was unreasonable)].

3. In so doing petitioner, with full knowledge of the existence of the controversy and his/her alleged right to arbitrate, intentionally waived and relinquished any such right to settle the controversy by arbitration.

[CONTINUE]

SECOND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE
(Grounds for Revoking Agreement to Arbitrate)

1. Respondent admits that on or about _____ [date] petitioner and respondent entered into a written agreement requiring that the controversy alleged in the petition be submitted to arbitration.

2. Grounds exist for revocation of the agreement to arbitrate the alleged controversy in that _____ [specify].

THIRD AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Insufficient Facts Alleged)

The facts alleged in the petition are insufficient for the court to order arbitration in that _____ [specify, e.g., the petition does not allege that there is a written agreement to arbitrate].

FOURTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE
(Possibility of Conflicting Rulings)

1. _____ [Party designation] is also a party to the proceeding now pending in the _____ [specify court, e.g., United States District Court for the Northern District of California], entitled _____ [title of case], No. _____, which arises out of the same _____ [transaction or series of related transactions] from which the present matter arose.

2. If that proceeding and the present proceeding are both allowed to proceed simultaneously, there is a possibility of conflicting rulings on a common issue of _____ [law or fact], namely _____ [specify common issue].

FIFTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE
(The Parties Have No Agreement to Arbitrate)

1. Respondent admits that on or about _____ [date], petitioner and respondent began negotiations for a contract [and exchanged drafts of proposed agreements], but the parties intended[, and the draft agreements specifically provided,] that no agreement between the parties would constitute a legal and binding obligation of the parties until and unless it was signed. [A copy of the draft agreement dated _____ and incorporating that provision at paragraph _____ is attached hereto and made a part hereof by this reference.]

2. Respondent never signed the agreement and notified petitioner on or about _____ [date], that it was terminating their negotiations because agreement could not be reached on material terms.

3. No contract to arbitrate was ever formed between petitioner and respondent.

WHEREFORE, respondent prays:

1. That the petition be denied;

2. That respondent be awarded costs of suit [and attorney's fees] herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of response in [1], above, is for use to contest a petition to compel arbitration. In additional to denials, the form sets out a number of possible affirmative defenses. Counsel should use as many of those defenses as are applicable to the case.

A party who is aware of a basis for finding the arbitration process invalid must raise its objection at the outset, or as soon as they learn of it, so that prompt judicial resolution may take place before wasting the time of the adjudicator(s) and the parties. A party who participates in arbitration and does not raise the invalidity until a petition to confirm or vacate the award will have forfeited the right to contest the arbitration process at that stage. The rationale is twofold: to avoid gamesmanship and to avoid wasting time and resources [Cummings v. Future Nissan (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 321, 328-329 ; but see Bayscene Resident Negotiators v. Bayscene Mobile Home Park (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 119, 129, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 626 (exception when participation in arbitration is under protest due to threat of criminal sanctions)].

[3] Contents

[a] Denials

If respondent controverts the material allegations of the petition, the response should deny those allegations (Paragraphs 1 and 2) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1290 (allegations of petition deemed admitted unless response is served and filed)].

[b] Affirmative Defenses

[i] Waiver of Arbitration

If respondent contests the petition on ground that the petitioner's waived arbitration, respondent should set forth facts showing waiver (First Affirmative Defense, first and second alternatives) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(a)].

The first alternative may be used when the arbitration agreement specifies a certain time for demanding arbitration and the petitioner has failed to submit his or her demand within that time [see Platt Pacific, Inc. v. Andelson (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 307, 321, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 597, 862 P.2d 158] .

The second alternative may be used when the arbitration agreement does not specify a certain date, but the petitioner's demand was unreasonably delayed [see Sawday v. Vista Irrigation Dist. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 833, 836, 52 Cal. Rptr. 1, 415 P.2d 816] . For discussion, see § 32.40[1].

[ii] Revocation of Arbitration Agreement

If the respondent contests on the basis that grounds exist for revoking the agreement to arbitrate, the response should set forth those grounds and supportive facts (Second Affirmative Defense, Paragraphs 1 and 2) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(b)]. For discussion of grounds for revocation of arbitration agreements, see § 32.21.

[iii] Insufficient Facts Alleged

If the petition does not allege sufficient facts for the court to order arbitration the response should raise that point as an affirmative defense (Third Affirmative Defense) [see Bertero v. Superior Court (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 213, 218, 30 Cal. Rptr. 719 (notice of motion to compel arbitration which did not allege the existence of a written agreement to arbitrate did not state sufficient facts for an order to arbitrate)].

[iv] Possibility of Conflicting Rulings

If the respondent contests the petition on the basis that a party to the arbitration agreement is also a party to a pending court action or special proceeding with a third party, arising out of the same transaction or series of related transactions, and there is a possibility of conflicting rulings on a common issue of law or fact, respondent should set forth facts showing the existence of the other action or proceeding and a common issue (Fourth Affirmative Defense) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c); see also Best Interiors, Inc. v. Millie and Severson, Inc. (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 1320, 1326-1330, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 (arbitration properly denied because of possibility of conflicting rulings as to inspectors, not parties to arbitration agreements, who were chosen by owner, controlled by owner and primary contractor and whom plaintiff/subcontractor alleged were responsible for delays; decision based on California choice of law incorporated from related agreement)].

This defense is not available when the agreement is one to arbitrate disputes as to the professional negligence of a health care provider made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2]. Section 1295, however, does not apply to all contracts for medical services [see Code Civ. Proc. 1295(f); for discussion of the exceptions, see § 32.43[8][g]].

If the pending action or proceeding in question was commenced by the party refusing to arbitrate, the defense is available even when the action or proceeding was commenced after the petition to compel arbitration was filed, provided it was commenced on or before the date of the hearing on the petition [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2 does not conflict with policies of the Federal Arbitration Act (9 U.S.C. § 1 et seq.), which applies to maritime transactions and contracts involving interstate and foreign commerce, and is therefore not preempted by it [Volt Information Sciences v. Board of Trustees (1989) 489 U.S. 468, 477-479, 109 S. Ct. 1248, 103 L. Ed. 2d 488 ; Cronus Investments, Inc. v. Concierge Services (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 376, 380, 393-394, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 540, 107 P.3d 217 (disapproving The Energy Group, Inc. v. Liddington (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1520, 238 Cal. Rptr. 202 and Warren-Guthrie v. Health Net (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 804, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 260 to the extent their holdings are predicated on the conclusion that section 1281.2(c) limits the authority of arbitrators and conflicts with the FAA); see also Mount Diablo Medical Center v. Health Net of California, Inc. (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 711, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 607 (Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2 applicable and not preempted); Henry v. Alcove Investment, Inc. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 94, 101-102, 284 Cal. Rptr. 255 (following Volt to affirm stay)]. Nevertheless, if the parties' agreement contains a choice-of-law clause that makes some other law applicable to determine whether arbitration is required, Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c) may not apply.

For further discussion of factors militating in favor of denying a motion to compel based on the existence of related litigation involving third parties not subject to the arbitration agreement, see § 32.101[2].

[v] No Agreement to Arbitrate

The most basic requirement for arbitration is an agreement to arbitrate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281; see discussion at § 32.21[1]]. Therefore, if there is no valid contract to arbitrate, a petition to compel arbitration must be denied [Banner Entertainment, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 348, 356, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 598] . The fifth affirmative defense contemplates a situation in which (1) the parties made it clear, from a provision that a proposed written contract, that they intended the contract to become operative only when signed by them and (2) the contract was never signed. That failure to sign the agreement means no binding contract was created [Banner Entertainment, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 348, 358, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 598] .

[vi] Attorney's Fees

When an action is brought solely to compel arbitration of contractual disputes between the parties, and the contract contains a provision entitling the prevailing party to attorney's fees, the fact that the parties will probably pursue their underlying claims in another action will not lessen respondent's victory in this discrete legal proceeding. Thus, a respondent who is successful in obtaining an order denying the petition to compel arbitration, will be entitled to its attorney's fees incurred in responding to the petition as a function of his or her costs under Code Civ. Proc. §

1033.5(a)(10)(A). Civ. Proc. § 1293.2 requires the court to award costs in any judicial proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq. [Otay River Constructors v. San Diego Expressway (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 796, 799, 805-808, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434].

[4] Copies

The following copies of the response should be prepared:

- Original to be filed in the superior court in which the petition is pending and conformed copy for the court to stamp and return.
- One copy to be served on each of the other parties.
- One copy for the client.
- Office file copies.
- Other copies as desired.

[5] Service and Filing of Response

[a] Effect

Any person named as a respondent in a petition may file a response to it. The allegations of a petition are deemed admitted by a respondent on whom it has been duly served unless a response is duly served and filed. The allegations of a response are deemed controverted or avoided [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290].

[b] Time

A response must be served and filed within 10 days after service of the petition except that if the petition is served in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(b)(2) (service by mail outside the state) the response is to be served and filed within 30 days after service of the petition. Time for service and filing of the response may be extended by an agreement in writing between the parties to the court proceeding or by order of the court for good cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.6]. For forms dealing with extension of time, see Ch. 524, Shortening and Extension of Time .

[c] Manner of Service

A response must be served as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 et seq., governing service of papers other than summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.8; for forms dealing with service of papers, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

§ 32.95 Order Compelling Arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2]

[1] FORM Order Compelling Arbitration

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

[or other as appropriate]

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	ORDER
Respondent.	)

The petition of _____ [name] for an order compelling arbitration came on regularly for hearing on _____ [date]. Petitioner appeared through his/her counsel _____ [name] and respondent appeared through his/her counsel _____ [name].

Due and proper notice of the hearing of the petition having been given and proof having been made to the satisfaction of the court that the petition should be granted,

IT IS ORDERED that petitioner _____ [name] and respondent _____ [name] arbitrate the controversies existing between them in accordance with the provisions of their agreement dated _____ [date], and that petitioner recover his/her costs of this proceeding.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the _____ Court

[2] Use of Form

The form of order in [1], above, is for use in granting a petition to compel an unwilling party to arbitrate. Customarily the order is prepared by counsel for petitioner and submitted to the court for signature when the petition is granted after the hearing. Occasionally the court, before signing the order, may require that opposing counsel approve the order as to form, in which case the words "Approved as to form" would be typed in the lower left corner of the order, or on a separate page attached to the order, with a date and signature line for the opposing counsel's endorsement on the original. Once the order is signed by the court it is delivered to the clerk of the court for filing.

If a judge who is disqualified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(8) (employment discussions with dispute resolution provider)] does not disclose the disqualification but instead hears and determines the petition to compel arbitration, the order compelling arbitration must be vacated, because a disqualified judge's rulings are void regardless of their legal correctness. Another judge must reconsider the petition to compel arbitration [see Rossco Holdings, Inc. v. Bank of America (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 1353, 1356, 1363, 1366-1368, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 141 (disqualification occurs when facts creating it arise, not when disqualification is established)]. That does not necessarily mean that any arbitration award based on the ensuing arbitration needs to be vacated [Rossco Holdings, Inc. v. Bank of America (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 1353, 1364-1368, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 141 ; see discussion at § 34.19[1][b][v] (regarding vacating award)].

[3] Contents

The order specifies the acts directed by the court and is made or entered in writing [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1003, 1064].

[4] Copies

The order should be prepared in the same number of copies as the petition [see § 32.91[1][d]].

[5] Requirements for Order

[a] When Order Is Required

If the court determines at the hearing that an agreement to arbitrate the controversy exists, it is required to order the petitioner and the respondent to arbitrate the controversy unless it determines that [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2]:

- The right to compel arbitration has been waived by the petitioner [see § 32.94[3][b][i]]; or

- Grounds exist for the revocation of the agreement [see § 32.94[3][b][ii]]; or

- A party to the arbitration agreement (other than one to arbitrate disputes as to the professional negligence of a health care provider made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1295) is also a party to a pending court action or special proceeding with a third party, arising out of the same transaction or series of related transactions, and there is a possibility of conflicting rulings on a common issue of law or fact [see § 32.94[3][b][iv]].

If the court makes the third determination, the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2]:

- May refuse to enforce the arbitration agreement and may order intervention or joinder of all parties in a single action or special proceeding; or

- May order intervention or joinder as to all or only certain issues; or

- May order arbitration among the parties who have agreed to arbitration and stay the pending court action or special proceeding pending the outcome of the arbitration proceeding; or

- May stay arbitration pending the outcome of the court action or special proceeding.

[b] Court's Function Is Limited to Determining Arbitrability Under Agreement

The function of the court is confined to ascertaining whether the party seeking arbitration is making a claim which on its face is governed by the arbitration agreement [Charles J. Rounds Co. v. Joint Council of Teamsters No. 42 (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 888, 892, 95 Cal. Rptr. 53, 484 P.2d 1397 ; East San Bernardino County Water Dist. v. City of San Bernardino (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 942, 952, 109 Cal. Rptr. 510 ; Northcutt Lumber Co. v. Goldeen's Peninsula, Inc. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 440, 443, 106 Cal. Rptr. 353] .

An order to arbitrate may not be refused on the ground that the petitioner's contentions lack substantive merit [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2]. The court is required to grant the order, absent waiver or revocability of the agreement, unless the arbitration clause is not susceptible of interpretation that it covers the dispute [Charles J. Rounds Co. v. Joint Council of Teamsters No. 42 (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 888, 892, 95 Cal. Rptr. 53, 484 P.2d 1397 ; Morris v. Zukerman (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 91, 96, 64 Cal. Rptr. 714] . Doubts are to be resolved in favor of coverage [Leon Handbag Co. v. Local 213 (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 240, 243, 81 Cal. Rptr. 63] .

[c] Statement of Decision

Because an order compelling arbitration is not appealable, a statement of decision is not required to be given by the court when an order compelling arbitration is made [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1291, 1294(a)].

§ 32.96 Order Denying Arbitration and Dismissing Proceedings

[1] FORM Order Denying Arbitration and Dismissing Proceedings

[Caption. See § 32.95[1].]

The petition of _____ [name] for an order compelling arbitration came on regularly for hearing on this date. Petitioner appeared through his/her counsel, _____ [name] and respondent appeared through his/her counsel, _____ [name].

The court, having considered the _____ [affidavit(s) or declaration(s)] and other documents and evidence in support of and in opposition to the petition, having heard the arguments of counsel, [and] being fully advised in the premises,

IT IS ORDERED that the petition to order arbitration is denied and the proceeding is dismissed, respondent to recover his/her costs [and attorney's fees] herein incurred.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the _____ Court

[2] Use of Form

The form or order in [1], above, is for use when the court denies a petition to order arbitration and dismiss the proceedings. It is presented to the court for signature and then delivered to the clerk of the court to be filed.

For discussion of the function of the court in deciding whether to grant or deny a petition to compel arbitration, see §

32.95. For discussion of the basis for an award of attorney's fees, see § 32.94[3][vi].

[3] Statement of Decision

An order dismissing or denying a petition to compel arbitration is an appealable order [Code Civ. Proc. § 1294(a)] and is therefore subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 1291, which provides that a statement of decision shall be made by the court on request pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 632 when an order or judgment is appealable. A statement of decision must be requested within 10 days after the court announces a tentative decision, or if the trial has lasted less than one calendar day, or less than eight hours over more than one day, the statement of decision must be requested prior to the submission of the matter for decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 632].

For procedure and forms dealing with statements of decisions, see Ch. 529, Statement of Decision .

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

[Add memorandum of points and authorities supporting motion.]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a notice of motion and supporting declaration for use by a party to a pending action or proceeding involving an arbitrable issue, to stay the proceeding until there is an arbitration in accordance with an existing order to arbitrate or a pending application for an order to arbitrate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.4; for discussion, see 32.31[2]]. This motion need not be made by a party to the arbitration agreement, but may be made by any party to the action or proceeding so long as the same issue is involved in both the arbitration and the proceeding, and its determination in arbitration may serve to simplify the pending action or prevent multiple litigation of issues [Federal Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1370, 1374-1375, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 164 ; Marcus v. Superior Court (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 204, 209, 211-212, 141 Cal. Rptr. 890] . A single overlapping issue is sufficient to require imposition of a stay [Heritage Provider Network, Inc. v. Superior Court (Eastland Medical Group) (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1146, 1152-1153, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 645 ; compare Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c), discussed at 32.43[8][g], under which issue may be raised on petition to compel arbitration].

This motion is filed in the court in which the action or proceeding sought to be stayed is pending [Code Civ. Proc. § 1292.8]. The title of the court and description of the parties would therefore be the same as on previous papers filed in the action or proceeding.

If the action or proceeding sought to be stayed is commenced prior to the filing of a petition to compel arbitration, the petition must be filed in the action or proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1292.4]. If that is the case, it appears unnecessary to file a separate motion to stay the action or proceeding because the petitioner could request a stay in the prayer of the petition itself [see § 32.91].

If the party opposing litigation of arbitrable issues does not choose to compel arbitration he or she may elect to assert as an affirmative defense that arbitration is a condition precedent to commencement of the suit, and seek dismissal of the action or proceeding rather than make a motion for stay of proceedings [Charles J. Rounds Co. v. Joint Council of Teamsters No. 42 (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 888, 894, 899, 95 Cal. Rptr. 53, 484 P.2d 1397 ; see § 32.98[1]].

[3] Accompanying Papers

[a] Arbitration Agreement

Provisions of the written agreement and the paragraph that provides for arbitration must be stated verbatim or attached and incorporated by reference in the notice of motion [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1330].

[b] Supporting Declaration

The declaration is used to establish the fact that the issue involved in the litigation is subject to arbitration and that either an application has been made or a court order obtained to arbitrate the issue. The declaration would be unnecessary when those facts are otherwise established by other papers and records on file in the action or proceeding, such as, for example, when the petition to compel arbitration has been filed in the action or proceeding sought to be stayed.

A declaration under penalty of perjury may be used in lieu of an affidavit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2009 (use of affidavits on motion)] under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 if it is executed in California [for forms of affidavit, see Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations].

[c] Memorandum of Points and Authorities

A memorandum of points and authorities must accompany this notice of motion when it is served and filed; the absence of the memoradum may be construed by the court as an admission that the motion is not meritorious and cause for its denial [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)].

[4] Copies

The following copies of the notice of motion should be prepared:

- Original to be filed in the court in which the action or proceeding is pending and conformed copy for the court to stamp and return.
- One copy to be served on the attorney for each party to the action or proceeding.
- One copy for the client, if desired.
- One copy for the office files.
- Other copies as desired.

[5] Service and Filing

Notice of motion is to be given at least 16 court days before the time appointed for the hearing. The court or judge may, however, prescribe a shorter time [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); for procedure and foms dealing with shortening time, see Ch. 524, Shortening and Extension of Time]. It may be served on a party or on his or her attorney by personal service or in a manner specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1011, or by mail as specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1012 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1010; for procedure and forms dealing with service of papers, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers]. However, if service is by mail, the 16-day period of notice required by Section 1005(b) is increased by five calendar days if the place of mailing and address are in California, by 10 calendar days if either the place of mailing or address is outside California but within the United States, or 20 calendar days if either the place of mailing or address is outside the United States; if notice is served by fax or Express Mail or other overnight delivery, the period is extended by two calendar days [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)]. An extension of two court days, as opposed to calendar days, may apply in case of electronic service made pursuant to a local rule adopted under Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6); for discussion, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers, § 518.41[8]].

The motion of _____ [name] for an order to stay proceedings in the above entitled cause came on regularly for hearing this date. _____ [identify party, e.g., Plaintiff] appeared by his/her counsel _____ [name] and _____ [identify party, e.g., defendant] appeared by his/her counsel _____ [name].

Proof having been made to the satisfaction of the court that the motion should be granted and good cause appearing therefor,

IT IS ORDERED that the above entitled _____ [action or proceeding] be stayed _____ [with respect to the following issues only: _____ (specify) or as to all proceedings therein] until _____ [arbitration has been concluded and award made in accordance with the Order Compelling Arbitration made by the Superior Court of California, County of _____, dated _____, or the Petition to Compel Arbitration now pending before the Superior Court of California, County of _____, is determined and arbitration is concluded if ordered therein or _____ (specify other time ordered by the court)].

Dated: _____

_____ [signature]
Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

The form of order in [1], above, is for use when the court grants a stay of proceedings until the parties have arbitrated a controversy at issue in the action or proceeding or until a party's right to arbitrate has been determined. Ordinarily counsel for the moving party prepares the order, has it signed by the court, and files it with the clerk of the court [see generally Ch. 372, Motions and Orders].

The party who requested or caused the stay must immediately serve and file a notice of the stay and attach a copy of the order or other document showing that the proceeding is stayed. [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.650(a)-(c)]. For a form of notice of stay of proceedings, see § 32.97B.

[3] Contents

The order directs that the proceedings be stayed either as to certain issues alone which are subject to the arbitration and severable from the others subject to the litigation or as to all proceedings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.4; see also Cook v. Superior Court (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 880, 885, 50 Cal. Rptr. 81 (discretion of court under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.4 to order that all proceedings be stayed or that they be stayed only as to severable issues subject to arbitration)]. Stay of proceedings is directed until either the application for arbitration is determined or there is an arbitration in accordance with an order to arbitrate, as the case may be, or until such earlier time specified by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.4].

Since an order granting a stay of proceedings is not expressly made appealable by Code Civ. Proc. § 1294, a statement of decision is not required to be made by a court on request [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1291].

[4] Copies

The order is prepared in the same number of copies as the notice of motion [see § 32.97].

[5] Cross References

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of stay of proceedings in [1], above, is an illustration of Judicial Council Form CM-180 and is the mandatory form to be used by the party who requested and caused a stay of proceedings until arbitration is completed; and this notice must be immediately served and filed on all parties who have appeared in the action [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.650(a), (b)(2)]. If the person who requested or caused the stay has not appeared, or is not subject to the jurisdiction of the court, the plaintiff must immediately serve and file this notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.650(a)].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Contents

The notice must state whether the case is stayed with regard to all parties or only certain parties; if it is stayed with regard to only certain parties, the notice must specifically identify those parties; and the notice must also state the reason the case is stayed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.650(c)].

[4] Accompanying Papers

A copy of the order or other document showing that the proceeding is stayed must be attached to the notice of stay of proceedings [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.650(a)].

[5] Subsequent Requirements

When the stay is vacated, is no longer in effect, or is modified, the party who filed the notice of the stay must immediately serve and file a notice of termination or modification of stay. If that party fails to do so, any other party in the action who has knowledge of the termination or modification of the stay must serve and file a notice of termination or modification of stay. Once one party in the action has served and filed a notice of termination or modification of stay, other parties in the action are not required to do so [Cal Rules of Ct., Rules 3.650(d)]. Judicial Council Form CM-181 Notice of Termination or Modification of Stay must be used after January 1, 2006 to give the required notice [see § 32.97C].

§ 32.98 Affirmative Defense to Action--Arbitration Is Condition Precedent to Suit

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense to Action--Arbitration Is Condition Precedent to Suit

AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE
(Arbitration Is Condition Precedent to Suit)

1. Paragraph _____ of the written agreement sued on by plaintiff herein provides as follows: _____ [set out provision requiring arbitration]. This provision requires that plaintiff and defendant arbitrate the controversy that is at issue in this action.

2. Defendant has not waived arbitration but plaintiff has at all times failed and refused to arbitrate the controversy and has made no attempt to submit the matter to arbitration. The matter has not been arbitrated.

3. Arbitration is a condition precedent to commencement and maintenance of this action and the action is barred by the absence of an arbitration.

[2] Use of Form

The form of affirmative defense in [1], above, is for use in an answer to a complaint when the issues raised by the complaint are subject to arbitration but have not been arbitrated.

For alternative methods of pleading affirmative defenses, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[3] Allegations

The affirmative defense alleges [see Charles J. Rounds Co. v. Joint Council of Teamsters No. 42 (1971) 4 Cal. 3d

888, 894-899, 95 Cal. Rptr. 53, 484 P.2d 1397] :

- The agreement to arbitrate the controversy sued on (Paragraph 1).
- There has been no arbitration nor any attempt by plaintiff to arbitrate (Paragraph 2).
- Defendant elects that the action be barred (Paragraph 3).

§ 32.99 Affirmative Defense to Action--Arbitration as Sole Remedy and Not Conducted Within Time Specified

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense to Action--Arbitration as Sole Remedy and Not Conducted Within Time Specified

AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE
(Arbitration Is Sole Remedy and Was Not Held Within Specified Time)

1. The contract referred to in the complaint provides, in Paragraph _____, as follows: _____ [set forth arbitration provisions and time limitations, e.g., All disputes that may arise in connection with this contract must be settled and resolved solely by arbitration by a single arbitrator mutually appointed by the parties. _____ (Set forth any further terms that are relevant). The right of each party to request arbitration shall automatically cease within 30 calendar days from and excluding the delivery date set forth above].

2. Plaintiff's sole remedy was under the clause above set forth; he/she did not within the _____ [e.g., 30-day] period specified in the clause ask or demand that defendant proceed to arbitrate any alleged claim, dispute, or right he/she may have, if any, by reason of the matters and alleged facts set forth in the complaint; and this action is therefore barred under the above clause.

[2] Use of Form

The form of affirmative defense in [1], above, is for use in an answer to a complaint relating to a dispute in which the parties:

- Agreed that arbitration would be a condition precedent to litigation.
- But no arbitration was held during the period specified in the agreement.

[3] Allegations

The form of affirmative defense alleges [see Charles J. Rounds Co. v. Joint Council of Teamsters No. 42 (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 888, 894, 95 Cal. Rptr. 53, 484 P.2d 1397 (exhausting arbitration remedy as condition precedent to maintaining suit on arbitrable dispute)]:

- The agreement to arbitrate the dispute which is the subject of the pending suit and the time limitations thereon (Paragraph 1).

- Plaintiff's failure to seek or enforce his or her right to arbitration within the applicable time (Paragraph 2).

§ 32.100 Affirmative Defense to Action--Satisfaction of Arbitration Award

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense to Action--Satisfaction of Arbitration Award

AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE
(Satisfaction of Arbitration Award)

1. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff and defendant entered into an agreement in writing by which they _____ [agreed to submit any and all controversies that might arise between them to arbitration or submitted to arbitration the controversy alleged in the complaint] by arbitrators to be selected as set forth in the agreement. A copy of the agreement is attached to this answer as Exhibit "A" and made a part of this answer. The controversy was submitted to the arbitration of _____ [name], _____ [name], and _____ [name], were appointed arbitrators.

2. The arbitrators duly heard the proofs and allegations of the parties and made their award on _____ [date]. Under that award, the arbitrators found that there was due and owing by this defendant to the plaintiff the sum of $_____. Thereafter, on or about _____ [date], a judgment on an order confirming said award was duly entered. A copy of said order and judgment is attached to this answer as Exhibit "B" and made a part of this answer.

3. On or about _____ [date], and prior to the commencement of this action, defendant duly performed all the conditions of the award on his/her part and duly paid and satisfied the judgment. A copy of the satisfaction of judgment is attached to this answer as Exhibit "C" and made a part of this answer.

[2] Use of Form

The form of affirmative defense in [1], above, is for use in an answer to a complaint on a dispute that has gone to arbitration when the arbitration award has been confirmed by court judgment, and the judgment has been satisfied.

[3] Allegations

The form of affirmative defense alleges [see Archuleta v. Grand Lodge etc. of Machinists (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 202, 208, 68 Cal. Rptr. 694] :

- The arbitration agreement (Paragraph 1);
- The arbitration award and judgment confirming it (Paragraph 2); and
- Performance and payment of the award by defendant and satisfaction of the judgment (Paragraph 3).

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES
[Add memorandum of points and authorities supporting motion]

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion in [1], above, is for use to set aside an order compelling arbitration and staying an action when the action involves third parties not subject to an arbitration agreement as well as parties that are subject to the agreement. The basis of the motion is that there is a possibility of conflicting rulings on a common issue of law or fact if proceedings are allowed both in court and in an arbitration proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.4 (court to stay action until arbitration is had or until such earlier time as the court specifies); Mercury Insurance Group v. Superior Court (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 332, 345-348, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 308, 965 P.2d 1178 ; Prudential Property & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 275, 278-279, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 227 ; for discussion, see § 32.43[8][g]].

Factors that may support this motion include:

- Inability to conduct discovery in the stayed action when information needed in both the arbitration and the action is solely within the knowledge of the parties to the stayed action who are not parties to the arbitration.

- In the case of a personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death action, the possibility of grossly inadequate recovery of noneconomic damages if each forum allocates most of the comparative fault against the parties who are not before the forum or grossly excessive recovery of noneconomic damages if each form allocate most of the fault against the parties who are before that forum [see Civ. Code § 1431.2 (several liability for noneconomic damages); see Mercury Insurance Group v. Superior Court (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 332, 350, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 308, 965 P.2d 1178 ; Prudential Property & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 275, 278-279, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 227 (upholding order granting joinder of uninsured motorist arbitration proceeding with civil action because involvement of insured and uninsured motorists created possibility of conflicting determination of comparative fault)].

This motion can only be made a party to the arbitration agreement. One who is involved only in the litigation has no standing under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c) to seek to have the arbitration stayed. It is not enough that one be a party to litigation that has some factual nexus to the matters being arbitrated. Further, a third party involved only in the litigation should not need the protection of a stay of the arbitration because the arbitrator's award will have no res judicata or collateral estoppel effect against a person or entity who is was not a party to the arbitration, and does not claim to be in privity with any party to the arbitration [One World Networks Integrated Technologies, Inc. v. Duitch (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1038, 1043-1044, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843] .

[3] Time for Raising Issues on Which Motion Is Based

Better practice is to ask for the stay of arbitration at time a party moves to compel arbitration. As a practical matter, however, in many instances facts may develop after the motion to compel arbitration has been granted that may demand reconsideration and provide for staying the arbitration rather than the action. Counsel should exercise caution in this situation however, given the restrictions on motions for reconsiderationimposed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1008, which imposes a short time limit for bringing a motion to reconsider, requires an affidavit showing new or different facts, circumstances or law, and makes violation of its requirements sanctionable [for discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 1008, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders].

[4] Accompanying Papers

A memorandum of points and authorities is required to be served and filed with this notice of motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005, 1010; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)].

§ 33.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter provides discussion and forms relating to the selection of an arbitrator and the conduct of the arbitration hearing pursuant to a contract to arbitrate.

Regarding the selection of the arbitrator, it discusses the nature of neutral and party arbitrators [see § 33.11], appointment by the parties' agreement [see § 33.12] or by petition to the court [see § 33.13], disclosures required of neutral arbitrators [see §§ 33.14, 33.15], and disqualification of arbitrators [see §§ 33.14 -33.15]. A Procedural Checklist is included [see § 33.50], as well as the following related forms:

- Petition and order for appointment of neutral arbitrator [see § 33.60].
- Notices of disqualification of neutral arbitrator in cases involving claims for damages generally [see § 33.61] or in cases involving residential construction or improvement contracts [see § 33.62].

Regarding the arbitration hearing, the chapter discusses the power of arbitrators [see § 33.20], consolidation of arbitration proceedings [see § 33.21], and restraining arbitration [see § 33.22]. It also discusses the right to counsel [see § 33.23], the issuance of subpoenas [see § 33.24] and discovery [see § 33.25], the informal nature of [see § 33.26] and statutory rules applicable to [see § 33.27] arbitration hearings, the award [see § 33.28], costs and attorney's fees [see § 33.29], and the immunity of participants from liability to the parties [see § 33.30]. A Procedural Checklist is included [see § 33.51], as well as the following related forms:

- Notice of an arbitration hearing [see § 33.70].
- Demand for lists of witnesses and documents [see § 33.71].
- Arbitration award [see § 33.72].

- Application to the arbitrator for correction of the award [see § 33.73].

- Complaints for declaratory relief and injunctive relief to prevent arbitration in general [see § 33.74] or in uninsured motorist claims cases [see § 33.75].

- Petition for the consolidation of separate arbitration proceedings [see § 33.76].

The chapter also includes a Research Guide with additional references [see § 33.40 et seq.].

§ 33.03 Governing Law

Arbitration by agreement is governed generally by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2.

Disclosures relating to a neutral arbitrator's impartiality are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.1, 1281.85, 1281.9, 1281.91, 1281.95.

Various statutes govern agreements to arbitrate a variety of specific types of controversies, such as the following:

- Compensation in eminent domain proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1273.010-1273.050; see Ch. 247, Eminent Domain, § 247.10 et seq.].

- Professional negligence of health care providers [Code Civ. Proc. § 1295; see Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice].

- Disputes involving public construction contracts [Code Civ. Proc. § 1296].

- International commercial arbitration and conciliation [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432; see Ch. 35, Arbitration and Conciliation of International Commercial Disputes].

- Real estate contract disputes [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1298-1298.8].

- Uninsured motorist and underinsured motorist claims [Ins. Code § 11580.2; see Ch. 88A Automobiles: Uninsured Motorist Claims].

- Wage claims [Lab. Code § 229].

- Labor contracts with talent agencies [Lab. Code § 1700.45; see Ch. 370, Motion Pictures].
- State employees' workmen's compensation and insurance [Lab. Code §§ 6144-6146].

If a dispute involves interstate or foreign commerce or maritime law, 9 U.S.C. §§ 1-15 will also govern.

§ 33.10 Definitions

[1] Arbitrator

[a] Neutral Arbitrator

"Neutral arbitrator" means an arbitrator who is either selected jointly by the parties or by the arbitrators selected by the parties, or appointed by the court when a mutual agreement cannot be reached [Code Civ. Proc. § 1280(d)].

In the Ethics Standards for Neutral Arbitrators, the terms "arbitrator" and "neutral arbitrator" are used interchangeably and mean any arbitrator who is subject to the standards and is to serve impartially, whether selected or appointed in any of the following ways [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(a)(1); see § 33.14[2][d] for discussion of who is subject to standards]:

(A) Jointly by the parties or by the arbitrators selected by the parties;

(B) By the court, when the parties or the arbitrators selected by the parties fail to select an arbitrator who was to be selected jointly by them; or

(C) By a dispute resolution provider organization, under agreement of the parties.

If the context includes events or acts occurring before an appointment is final, "arbitrator" and "neutral arbitrator" include a person who has been served with notice of a proposed nomination or appointment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(a)(2)].

[b] Party Arbitrator

"Party arbitrator" is an arbitrator selected to represent a party as an arbitrator [see Good v. Kaiser Foundation Hospital (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 819, 823, 199 Cal. Rptr. 581 , citing 3 Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Reports G-42].

In the Ethics Standards for Neutral Arbitrators, "party arbitrator" means an arbitrator selected unilaterally by a party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(q)].

[2] Controversy

As used in the arbitration statutes and in this subpart "controversy" means any question arising between parties to an agreement whether such question is one of law or of fact or both [Code Civ. Proc. § 1280(c)].

[3] Party to the Arbitration

"Party to the arbitration" means a party to the arbitration agreement who seeks to arbitrate a controversy pursuant to the agreement, or against whom arbitration is sought pursuant to the agreement. It also includes one who is made a party to arbitration by order of the neutral arbitrator on that party's application, on the application of any other party to the arbitration, or on the neutral arbitrator's own determination [Code Civ. Proc. § 1280(e)].

In the Ethics Standards for Neutral Arbitrators, "party" means as party to the arbitration agreement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(p)(1)]:

(A) Who seeks to arbitrate a controversy pursuant to the agreement;

(B) Against whom such arbitration is sought; or

(C) Who is made a party to the arbitration by order of a court or the arbitrator on that party's application, on the application of any other party to the arbitration, or on the arbitrator's own determination.

"Party" includes a representative of a party, unless the context requires a different meaning [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(p)(2)].

[4] Award

As used in the arbitration statutes and in this subpart "award" includes, but is not limited to, an award made pursuant to an agreement not in writing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1280(b)].

§ 33.11 Party Arbitrator and Neutral Arbitrator Compared Essentially, the neutral arbitrator is impartial, while party arbitrators are more like advocates. As described by the California Law Revision Commission, when a tripartite arbitration board is appointed, it is usually composed of a representative of each of the contending parties and a third arbitrator chosen by the other two or by some other predetermined procedure. The third arbitrator, who is the neutral arbitrator, often acts as the chairman of the board. In this type of arbitration only the neutral arbitrator is an impartial party and an arbitrator in the usual sense. The arbitrators representing the parties frequently behave more like advocates than arbitrators. The practice of referring to "arbitrator" as including both the party arbitrators and the neutral arbitrators leads to confusion as to their functions and responsibilities [Good v. Kaiser Foundation Hospital (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 819, 823, 199 Cal. Rptr. 581 , citing 3 Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Reports G-42].

PRACTICE TIP:

Multiple Arbitrators Are Expensive. Arbitration before a panel of three arbitrators is extremely costly. Given the high cost of using a panel of arbitrators, this practice should be avoided unless there are clear reasons for wanting a panel. The cost makes use of a panel particularly inappropriate in small disputes and in disputes in which one party has much less economic power than the other, as will usually be the case in consumer disputes. In those situations the economically weaker party should, if possible, resist attempts by the stronger party to require a panel. On the other hand, a panel may be appropriate in a high stakes, complex dispute between parties with ample resources who place a value the interaction of the panel in solving the dispute because of its complexity. *By Michael S. § 33.12 Agreement on Method of Appointment

If the arbitration agreement provides a method of appointing an arbitrator, that method is to be followed. If the arbitration agreement does not provide a method for appointing an arbitrator, the parties to the agreement who seek arbitration and against whom arbitration is sought may agree on a method of appointing an arbitrator and that method will be followed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6]. However, if the agreed method has failed and the other party does not consent to the proposed method, arbitration cannot be ordered. For example, if a party is no longer a member of the organization that was to conduct the arbitration and therefore not entitled to use that organization's arbitration services absent consent, which is not forthcoming, a court will not order arbitration [Provencio v. WMA Securities, Inc. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1028, 1032-1033, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 524 (defendant no longer member of NASD; plaintiff would not consent to arbitration before NASD)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Considerations in Selecting an Arbitrator. From an attorney's perspective, an expert on the subject matter should not be chosen as an arbitrator unless the parties want that expertise to determine the issue. Otherwise, the expert arbitrator will probably assert his or her expertise in determining an issue in lieu of considering the expert witness testimony.

It is always best to discuss proposed arbitrators with colleagues, who may know about the history and background of a proposed arbitrator. Many bar associations, such as Consumer Attorneys Association of Los Angeles (CAALA) have yearly open meetings to discuss the decision and attitudes of persons available to arbitrators.

One should consider past dealings with prospective arbitrators, as well as reputation in the community.

§ 33.13 Petition for Court Appointment of Arbitrator

[1] Circumstances for Making Petition

[a] Failure to Agree

Absent an agreed method, or if the agreed method fails or for any reason cannot be followed, or when an arbitrator appointed fails to act and a successor has not been appointed, the court, on petition of a party to the arbitration agreement, appoints the arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6].

For a form of petition and order to appoint a neutral arbitrator, see § 33.60.

[b] Arbitrator's Failure to Act

There is a distinction between failure of the agreed method for choosing an arbitrator and the chosen agency's refusal to conduct the arbitration. When the chosen agency refuses to conduct the arbitration, Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6 does not permit a court to choose an alternative forum by appointing substitute arbitrators [Martinez v. Master Protection Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 107, 121 (AAA) ; Alan v. Superior Court (USB Painewebber, Inc.) (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 217, 227-228, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 377 (NYSE, NASD)] . An agreement for arbitration "in accordance with" American Arbitration Association procedures has been held to mean that the arbitration had to take place before that agency, that is, in an AAA forum. On AAA's refusal to conduct the arbitration, the court should have returned the matter to the civil active list [Martinez v. Master Protection Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 107, 120-122 compare Reddam v. KPMG LLP (9th Cir. 2006) 457 F.3d 1054, 1060-1061 (agreement to arbitrate under NASD Rules was neither choice of forum clause nor so integral to agreement as to prevent court from ordering arbitration before another arbitrator when NASD refused to act)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6, set forth at [a], above, also gives a court authority to appoint a successor arbitrator in some situations in which the original arbitrator fails to act. Although a trial court has authority to set a completion date within which the arbitrator must render his or her award, and although an arbitrator may be removed for failure to act, when the delays in concluding the arbitration are not chargeable to the arbitrator, but to the parties and/or the arbitration administrator, there is no failure to act within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6. Thus, in that situation, a court has no authority to remove the arbitrator and appoint a successor. When a court removes an arbitrator and appoints a successor without authority, any award made by the successor is void [Bosworth v. Whitmore (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 536, 546-553, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 560].

[c] Dispute Involving Health Care Service Plan

If a health care service plan [see Health & Safety Code § 1345(f) (definition)] uses arbitration to settle disputes with enrollees or subscribers, and does not use a professional dispute resolution organization independent of the plan that has a procedure for a rapid selection, or default appointment, of neutral arbitrators, the plan must comply with the following requirements, which are not subject to waiver [Health & Safety Code § 1373.20(a)]:

> (1) In cases or disputes requiring a single neutral arbitrator, if the party seeking arbitration and the plan against which arbitration is sought are unable to select a neutral arbitrator within 30 days after service of a written demand requesting the designation, it shall be conclusively presumed that the agreed method of selection has failed and the method provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6 [see [a], above, and [2], below] may be utilized.
> (2) In cases or disputes in which the parties have agreed to use a tripartite arbitration panel consisting of two party arbitrators and one neutral arbitrator, and the party arbitrators are unable to agree on the designation of a neutral arbitrator within 30 days after service of a written demand requesting the designation, it shall be conclusively presumed that the agreed method of selection has failed and the method provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6 may be utilized.

In disputes involving $200,000 or less, a health care service plan providing for binding arbitration cannot provide for more than a single neutral arbitrator. This limitation cannot be waived, except that after a dispute has arisen, the parties may agree to a tripartite panel [Health & Safety Code § 1373.19 (also including regulation of such agreements to a tripartite panel)]. Similarly to Section 1373.20(a), Section 1373.19 provides that if the parties are unable to agree on the selection of a neutral arbitrator, and the plan does not use a professional dispute resolution organization independent of the plan that has a procedure for a rapid selection or default appointment of a neutral arbitrator, the method provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6 may be utilized.

If a court reviewing a petition filed pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1373.19 or 1373.20(a) finds that a party has engaged in dilatory conduct intended to cause delay in proceeding under the arbitration agreement, the court, by order, may award reasonable costs, including attorney fees, incurred in connection with the filing of the petition [Health & Safety Code § 1373.20(b)].

If a plan uses arbitration to settle disputes with enrollees or subscribers, the following requirements must be met with respect to extreme hardship cases [Health & Safety Code § 1373.20(c)]:

> (1) The plan contract is required to provide for the assumption of all or a portion of an enrollee's or subscriber's share of the fees and expenses of the neutral arbitrator in cases of extreme hardship.
> (2) The plan must disclose this provision to subscribers in any evidence of coverage issued or amended after August 1, 1997.
> (3) The plan must provide enrollees, upon request, with an application for relief under Subdivision

1373.20(c), or information on how to obtain an application from the professional dispute resolution organization that will administer the arbitration process. If the plan uses a professional dispute resolution organization independent of the plan, the provision for assumption of the arbitration fees in cases of extreme hardship shall be established and administered by the dispute resolution organization.

(4) Approval or denial of the application must be determined by either (A) a professional dispute resolution organization independent of the plan if the plan uses a professional dispute resolution organization, or (B) a neutral arbitrator who is not assigned to hear the underlying dispute, who has been selected pursuant to paragraph (1) of subdivision (a), and whose fees and expenses are paid for by the plan.

[2] Procedure for Court Appointment

When a petition is made to the court to appoint a neutral arbitrator, the court nominates five persons from lists of persons supplied jointly by the parties to the arbitration or obtained from a governmental agency concerned with arbitration or a private disinterested association concerned with arbitration. Within five days of receiving the notice of the nominees from the court, the parties to the agreement who seek arbitration and against whom arbitration is sought may jointly select the arbitrator whether or not that arbitrator is among the nominees. If the parties fail to select an arbitrator within the five day period, the court appoints the arbitrator from the nominees [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6].

If the arbitration involves a dispute with regard to a project governed by the Public Contract Code, an arbitrator appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6 must be from the list of arbitrators approved by the Public Works Contract Arbitration Board [see Pub. Contract Code § 10240 et seq.; Brutuco Engineering & Construction, Inc. v. Superior Court (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 1326, 1334-1335, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 866 (contract provided arbitration was to be conducted in accordance with Pub. Contract Code § 10240 et seq.)].

§ 33.14 Disclosures by Neutral Arbitrators

[1] Disclosure Requirements

[a] Disclosure Requirements Enumerated

In an arbitration pursuant to an arbitration agreement, Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a) and the Ethics Standards, Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, require a proposed neutral arbitrator to disclose all matters that could cause a person aware of the facts to reasonably entertain a doubt that he or she would be able to be impartial, including all of the following:

- Any ground specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 for disqualification of a judge [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a)(1)], discussed in § 33.15.

- Prior or pending cases in which he or she has acted or is acting as neutral arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1291(a)(4), discussed at [3][a][ii], below; Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(4)(A)(i), (iii), discussed at [2][a], below], a party arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1291(a)(3), discussed at [3][a][i], below; Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(4)(ii), discussed at [2][a], below], or compensated other dispute resolution neutral [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(5), discussed at [2][a], below; compare Guseinov v. Burns (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 944, 958-961, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 903 (service as uncompensated mediator need not be disclosed)].

- Attorney-client, and other professional or significant personal relationships, including those of the arbitrator's family, with any party or lawyer for a party [Code Civ. Proc. § 1291(a)(5), (6)], discussed at [3][a][iii], [iv], below; Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(1)-(3), (7)-(8), discussed at [2][a], below; compare Agri-Systems v. Foster Poultry Farms (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1140, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 917 (arbitrator's law firm's past representation of a third party who had an adversarial relationship with a party to the arbitration need not be disclosed)].

- Whether the proposed neutral arbitrator has any current arrangement concerning prospective employment or other compensated service as a dispute resolution neutral, or is participating in, or within the last two has participated in, any discussions regarding such prospective employment with a party to the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.1(a)(8), 1281.9(a)(1), discussed at § 33.15[1], below; Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(6), discussed at [2][a], below].

- Financial interests of the arbitrator and his or her extended family [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(9)-(11), discussed at [2][a], below].

- Physical or scheduling problems that might affect his or her ability to perform as arbitrator [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(e), discussed at [2][a], below].

- Beginning January 1, 2003, financial and professional relationships between the dispute resolution provider organization which is coordinating, administering, or providing the arbitration services in a consumer arbitration and any other party or lawyer in the proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard, discussed at [2][g], below; see also, Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.92 (discussed at § 33.16[1], prohibits provider organization from administering consumer arbitration if it has, or had, financial interest, as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5 in any party or attorney for a party or vice versa)].

All of the foregoing are subject to the definitions set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1291(c)-(e), discussed at [3][b], below, and in Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standards 2 and 7.

The disclosures required by the Ethics Standards do not apply to an arbitration conducted pursuant to a public or private sector collective bargaining agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.85(b)] or in any arbitration pursuant to the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE) Arbitration Rules or the National Association of Securities Dealers (NASD) Code of Arbitration Procedure [Credit Suisse First Boston Corp. v. Grunwald (9th Cir. 2005) 400 F.3d 1119 (NASD rules) ; Mayo v. Dean Witter Reynolds (N.D. Cal. 2003) 258 F. Supp. 2d 1097, 1112 , as corrected at 260 F. Supp. 2d 979 ; accord Wilmot v. McNabb (N.D. Cal. 2003) 269 F. Supp. 2d 1203 ; Jevne v. Superior Court (JB Oxford Holdings, Inc.) (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 935, 945, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 685] .

In addition, in the narrow context of residential construction or improvement contracts involving claims in excess of $3000, Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.95 requires arbitrators (without specifically limiting the requirment to neutral arbitrators) to disclose affiliation with either party or service as an arbitrator in another matter involving either party [for discussion, see [4], below].

[b] Time Limits for Making Disclosures

Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9 disclosures and the disclosures required by the Ethics Standards must be made in writing to all parties within 10 calendar days of service of notice of the proposed nomination or appointment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(c); Jakks Pacific, Inc. v. Superior Court (THQ, Inc.) (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 596, 600, 604-607, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 914] ; certainly not, in the case of arbitrators appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6, when the court nominates the five from whom the parties are to chose [Jakks Pacific, Inc.v. Superior Court (THQ, Inc.) (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 596, 600, 603-607, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 914]. The arbitrator's disclosure obligations are not triggered until he or she is notified that he or she has been selected by the parties or appointed by the court to serve as a neutral arbitrator [Jakks Pacific, Inc. v. Superior Court (THQ, Inc.) (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 596, 607, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 914].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.95 requires disclosures to be made within 10 days after appointment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.95(a)].

[2] Disclosures Required by Ethical Standards

[a] Matters That Neutral Arbitrator Must Disclose

CAUTION:

Arbitration under NYSE Arbitration Rules or NASD Code of Arbitration Procedure. On July 30, 2007, National Association of Securities Dealers (NASD) Dispute Resolution and New York Stock Exchange (NYSE) Dispute Resolution combined operations as the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA). The rules under which a pending case was filed will continue to be used for that case, but cases filed on or after August 6, 2007, will be administered using the NASD Code of Arbitration Procedure [see http://www.finra.org/ArbitrationMediation/index.htm].

Both the NASD and the NYSE suspended arbitrations in California when the Ethics Standards became effective, unless the California party agreed to waive the Ethics Standards and proceed in accordance with the NYSE Arbitration Rules or the NASD Code of Arbitration Procedure, as was applicable to the contract involved. NASD and NYSE claimed that the NYSE Rules and NASD Code, which are approved by the Securities and Exchange Commission under the mandate of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 [see 15 U.S.C. § 78s(b)], preempt application of the California Ethics Standards in any arbitration in accordance with those rules or procedures. That position has now been upheld by the California Supreme Court [Jevne v. Superior Court (JB Oxford Holdings, Inc.) (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 935, 958, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 685] , the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals [Credit Suisse First Boston Corp. v. Grunwald (9th Cir. 2005) 400 F.3d 1119, 1121] , and the federal district court [Mayo v. Dean Witter Reynolds (N.D. Cal. 2003) 258 F. Supp. 2d 1097, 1112 , as corrected at 260 F. Supp. 2d 979 ; accord Wilmot v. McNabb (N.D. Cal. 2003) 269 F. Supp. 2d 1203, 1212 (but compelling arbitration in California of claims against defendants whose agreements called for arbitration in Denver, on ground that venue was unconscionable for California residents)]. Thus, California Ethics Standards will not apply to arbitration under a contract that calls for arbitration in accordance with the NYSE Rules or the NASD Code. Those Rules and that Code have their own disclosure requirements.

Although Rule 12206 of the NASD Code, formerly Rule 10304, of the NASD Code contains a six-year limitation period, commencing on the occurrence or event giving rise to the act or dispute, claim, or controversy, any delay necessitated by the uncertainty regarding the application of the California Standards will not excuse a plaintiff from arbitration under the NASD Code, at least when the six-year period has not expired as to all of the transactions in dispute [Jevne v. Superior Court (JB Oxford Holdings, Inc.) (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 935, 964, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 685] .

Before accepting appointment, a person who is nominated or appointed as a neutral arbitrator on or after July 1, 2002 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standards 1(a), 2(a), 3], a dispute resolution provider organization, or another person or entity acting on the arbitrator's behalf must inform all parties in writing of the terms and conditions of the arbitrator's compensation. This information must include any basis to be used in determining fees and any special fees for cancellation, research and preparation time, or other purposes [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 16(b)]. Arbitrators cannot charge any fee for services or expenses that is in any way contingent on the result or outcome of the arbitration [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 16(a)].

Throughout this discussion, the terms "arbitrator" and "neutral arbitrator" are used interchangeably, as in the definition governing these standards, to mean any arbitrator who is to serve impartially [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(a)(1); see § 33.10(1)(a) (definitions)].

A person who is nominated or appointed as a neutral arbitrator on or after July 1, 2002 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standards 1(a), 2(a), 3], must make a reasonable effort to inform himself or herself of any matters that could cause a person aware of he facts to reasonably entertain a doubt that the proposed arbitrator would be able to be impartial and must disclose all such matters to the parties. Matters that must be disclosed include [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d), 9(a), 12(b)]:

(1) The arbitrator or a member of the arbitrator's immediate or extended family is a party, a party's spouse or domestic partner, or an officer, director, or trustee of a party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(1)].

(2) The arbitrator, or the spouse, former spouse, domestic partner, child, sibling, or parent of the arbitrator or the arbitrator's spouse or domestic partner is (A) a lawyer in the arbitration; (B) the spouse or domestic partner of a lawyer in the arbitration; or (C) currently associated in the private practice of law with or a lawyer in the arbitration [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(2); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(l) (definition of "lawyer in the arbitration" set forth at [c][vi], below)].

(3) The arbitrator or a member of the arbitrator's immediate family has or has had a significant personal relationship with any party or a lawyer for a party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(3)]. "Significant personal relationship" includes a close personal friendship [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(s); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(m) (definition of "lawyer for a party" set forth at [c][vii], below)].

(4) The arbitrator is serving, or within the preceding five years, has served as a neutral arbitrator in another prior or pending non-collective--bargaining case involving a party to the current arbitration or a lawyer for a party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(4)(A)(i); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(m) (definition of "lawyer for a party" set forth at [c][vii], below)]. If the arbitrator is serving or has served in this capacity, he or she must disclose the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(4)(B)]:

> i. The names of the parties to each prior or pending case, and where applicable, the name of the attorney representing the party in the current arbitration who is involved in the pending case, who was involved in the prior case, or whose current associate is involved in the pending case or was involved in the prior case; and > ii. The results of each prior case arbitrated to conclusion, including the date of the arbitration award, identification of the prevailing party, the amount of monetary damages awarded, if any, and the names of the parties' attorneys [but see Dornbirer v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 831, 836, 846 ; 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116 (an arbitration award was not vacated when the arbitrator generally disclosed his relationships and prior interactions with the parties to the arbitration but did not provide all of the specific details, i.e., dates and results of the prior arbitrations, required under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9, and despite the omissions, the parties agreed to go forward with the arbitration)].

NOTE:

When making disclosures about other pending or prior cases, in order to preserve confidentiality, it is sufficient to give the name of any party who is not a party to the pending arbitration as "claimant" or "respondent" if the party is an individual and not a business or corporation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(b)(3)].

(5) The arbitrator is serving, or within the preceding five years, has served as a party-appointed arbitrator in another prior or pending non-collective-bargaining case for either a party to the current arbitration or a lawyer for a party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(4)(A)(ii); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(m) (definition of "lawyer for a party" set forth at [c][vii], below)]. If the arbitrator is serving or has served in this capacity, he or she must disclose the information required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(4)(B), discussed at item (4), above.

(6) The arbitrator is serving, or within the preceding five years, has served as a neutral arbitrator in another prior or pending non-collective bargaining case in which he or she was selected by a person serving as a party-appointed arbitrator in the current arbitration [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(4)(A)(iii)]. If the arbitrator is serving or has served in this capacity, he or she must disclose the information required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(4)(B), discussed at item (4), above.

NOTE:

Summary Required--if the total number of the cases disclosed under (4), (5), and (6) above is greater than five, the arbitrator must provide a summary of these cases that states (i) the number of pending cases in which the arbitrator is currently serving in each capacity; (ii) the number of prior cases in which the arbitrator previously served in each capacity; (iii) the number of prior cases arbitrated to conclusion; and (iv) the number of those prior cases in which the party to the current arbitration, the party represented by the lawyer for a party in the current arbitration, or the party represented by the party-arbitrator in the current arbitration was the prevailing party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(4)(C); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(m) (definition of "lawyer for a party" set forth at [c][vii], below)].

(7) The arbitrator is serving or has served as a dispute resolution neutral other than an arbitrator in another pending or prior non-collective-bargaining case involving a party or lawyer for a party and the arbitrator received or expects to receive any form of compensations for serving in this capacity [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(5); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(f), (m) (definitions of "dispute resolution neutral" and "lawyer for a party" set forth at [c][iii] and [c][vii], respectively, below); compare Guseinov v. Burns (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 944, 958-961, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 903 (service as uncompensated mediator need not be disclosed)]. For purposes of subdivision (d)(5), "prior case" means any case in which the arbitrator concluded his or her service as a dispute resolution neutral within two years before the date of the arbitrator's proposed nomination or appointment, but does not include any case in which the arbitrator concluded his or her service before January 1, 2002 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(5)(A)]. An arbitrator can fulfill his or her obligation under Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 9--to inform himself or herself of his or her service as a dispute resolution neutral, other than as an arbitrator, in cases that commenced prior to July 1, 2002--by (1) asking any dispute resolution provider organization that administered those prior services for this information and (2) declaring in writing that he or she has requested the required information from any dispute resolution provider organization administering those prior services and attaching to this declaration copies of his or her inquiry and any response from the provider organization [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 9(d)]. If the arbitrator is serving or has served as a dispute resolution neutral in any of the foregoing capacities, he or she must disclose the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(5)(B)]:

i. The names of the parties in each prior or pending cases, and, if applicable, the name of the attorney in the current arbitration who is involved in the pending case, who was involved in the prior case, or whose current associate is involved in the pending case or was involved in the prior case;

ii. The dispute resolution neutral capacity (mediator, referee, etc.) in which the arbitrator is serving or served in the case; and

iii. In each such case in which the arbitrator rendered a decision as a temporary judge or referee, the date of the decision, the prevailing party, the amount of monetary damages awarded, if any, and the names of the parties' attorneys.

NOTE:

A Summary Is Required--if the total number of cases disclosed under Standard 7(d)(5) is greater than five, the arbitrator must also provide a summary of the cases that states (i) the total number of pending cases in which the arbitrator is currently serving in each capacity; (ii) the number of prior cases in which the arbitrator previously served in each capacity; (iii) the number of prior cases in which the arbitrator rendered a decision as a temporary judge or referee; and (iv) the number of such prior cases in which the party to the current arbitration or the party represented by the lawyer for a party in the current arbitration was the prevailing party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(5)(C)].

(8) Whether the arbitrator has any current arrangement with a party concerning prospective employment or other compensated service as a dispute resolution neutral, or is participating in, or within the last two has participated in, any discussions regarding such prospective employment with a party to the proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(6)].

(9) Any attorney-client relationship the arbitrator has or has had with a party or a lawyer for a party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(7); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(m) (definition of "lawyer for a party" set forth at [c][vii], below); compare Agri-Systems v. Foster Poultry Farms (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1140, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 917 (arbitrator's law firm's past representation of a third party who had an adversarial relationship with a party to the arbitration need not be disclosed)]. An arbitrator can fulfill his or her obligation under Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 9 to inform himself or herself of relationships with any lawyer associated in the practice of law with the lawyer in the arbitration that are required to be disclosed under this standard by (1) informing the lawyer in the arbitration, in writing, of all such relationships within the arbitrator's knowledge and asking the lawyer if the lawyer is aware of any other such relationships; and (2) declaring in writing that he or she has made that inquiry and attaching to this declaration copies of his or her inquiry and any response from the lawyer in the arbitration [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 9(c)]. An attorney-client relationship includes the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(7)]:

(A) An officer, a director, or a trustee of a party is or, within the preceding two years, was a client of the arbitrator in the arbitrator's private practice of law or a client of a lawyer with whom the arbitrator is or was associated in the private practice of law;

(B) In any other proceeding involving the same issues, the arbitrator gave advice to a party or a lawyer in the arbitration concerning any matter involved in the arbitration [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(l) (definition of "lawyer in the arbitration" set forth at [c][vi], below)]; and

(C) The arbitrator served as a lawyer for or as an officer of a public agency which is a party and personally advised or in any way represented the public agency concerning the factual or legal issues in the arbitration.

(10) Any other professional relationship not already disclosed under Standard 7(d)(2)-(7) that the arbitrator or a member of the arbitrator's immediate family has or has had with a party or a lawyer for a party, including the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(8); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(m), (n) (definitions of "lawyer for a party" and "member of the arbitrator's immediate family" set forth at [c][vii] and [b], respectively, below); see Guseinov v. Burns (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 944, 958-959 , Cal. Rptr. 3d 903 (acting as uncompensated mediator in single matter did not constitute professional relationship between arbitrator and plaintiff's counsel, and thus, was not required to be disclosed)].

(A) The arbitrator was associated in the private practice of law with a lawyer in the arbitration within the last two years [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(l) (definition of "lawyer in the arbitration" set forth at [c][vi] below)].

(B) The arbitrator or a member of the arbitrator's immediate family is or, within the preceding two years, was an employee of or an expert witness or a consultant for a party; and

(C) The arbitrator or a member of the arbitrator's immediate family is or, within the preceding two years, was an employee of or an expert witness or a consultant for a lawyer in the arbitration.

(11) The arbitrator or a member of the arbitrator's immediate family has a financial interest in a party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(9); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(i), (n) (definitions of "financial interest" and "member of the arbitrator's immediate family" set forth at [c][v] and [b], respectively, below)].

(12) The arbitrator or a member of the arbitrator's immediate family has a financial interest in the subject matter of the arbitration [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(10); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(i), (n) (definitions of "financial interest" and "member of the arbitrator's immediate family" set forth at [c][v] and [b], respectively, below)].

(13) The arbitrator or a member of the arbitrator's immediate family has an interest that could be substantially affected by the outcome of the arbitration [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(11); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(n) (definition of "member of the arbitrator's immediate family" set forth at [b], below)].

(14) The arbitrator or a member of the arbitrator's immediate or extended family has personal knowledge of disputed evidentiary facts relevant to the arbitration. A person who is likely to be a material witness in the proceeding is deemed to have personal knowledge of disputed evidentiary facts concerning the proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(12); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(n), (o) (definitions of "member of the arbitrator's immediate family" and "member of arbitrator's extended family" set forth at [b], below)].

(15) The arbitrator's membership in any organization that practices invidious discrimination on the basis of race, sex, religion, national origin, or sexual orientation. Membership in a religious organization, an official military organization of the United States, or a nonprofit youth organization need not be disclosed unless it would interfere with the arbitrator's proper conduct of the proceeding or would cause a person aware of the facts to reasonably entertain a doubt concerning the arbitrator's ability to act impartially [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(13)].

(16) If the arbitrator is not able to properly perceive the evidence or properly conduct the proceeding because of a permanent or temporary physical impairment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(e)(1)].

(17) Any constraint on his or her availability known to the arbitrator that will interfere with his or her ability to commence or complete the arbitration in a timely manner [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(e)(2)].

(18) Any other matter that might cause a person aware of the facts to reasonably entertain a doubt that the arbitrator would be able to be impartial [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(14)(A); see Advantage Medical Services, LLC v. Hoffman (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 806, 809, 818, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 935 (person aware of fact that arbitrator and his law firm represented several entities that provided insurance and reinsurance to syndicate by which plaintiff was insured and representative of which was present throughout the arbitration might reasonably entertain doubt that proposed neutral arbitrator would be able to be impartial); compare Guseinov v. Burns (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 944, 959-961 , Cal. Rptr. 3d 903 (arbitrator's acting as uncompensated mediator in single matter would not cause reasonable person to entertain doubt whether arbitrator was impartial and thus, prior service need not be disclosed)].

(19) Any other matter that leads the proposed arbitrator to believe there is a substantial doubt as to his or her capacity to be impartial, including, but not limited to, bias or prejudice toward a party, lawyer, or law firm in the arbitration [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(14)(B)].

(20) Any other matter that otherwise leads the arbitrator to believe that his or her disqualification will further the interests of justice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(14)(C)].

(21) If, while the arbitration is pending, he or she will entertain offers of employment or new professional relationships in any capacity other than as lawyer, expert witness, or consultant [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 12(a) (prohibiting arbitrator from entertaining or accepting offers of employment or new professional relationships as lawyer, expert witness, or consultant for party or lawyer for party until conclusion of arbitration)] from a party or a lawyer for a party, including offers to serve as a dispute resolution neutral in another case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 12(b)]. If the arbitrator has made this disclosure, the arbitrator is not required to disclose to the parties in writing any such offer from a party or lawyer for a party that he or she subsequently receives or accepts while that arbitration is pending [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standards 7(b)(2)].

[b] Definitions and Compliance Regarding Arbitrator's Family

"Member of the arbitrator's immediate family" means the arbitrator's spouse or domestic partner (as defined in Fam. Code § 297) and a minor child living in the arbitrator's household [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(n); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(h) (defining "domestic partner")].

"Member of the arbitrator's extended family" means the parents, grandparents, great-grandparents, children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren, siblings, uncles, aunts, nephews, and nieces of the arbitrator or the arbitrator's spouse or domestic partner or the spouse of that person [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(o); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(h) (defining "domestic partner" as in Fam. Code § 297)].

An arbitrator can fulfill his or her obligation to make a reasonable effort to inform himself or herself of relationships and other matters that must be disclosed involving his or her extended family and former spouse by doing the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 9(b)]:

(1) Seeking information about theses relationships and matters from members of his or her immediate family and any members of his or her extended family living in his or her household; and

(2) Declaring in writing that he or she has made the inquiry in (1).

[c] Other Applicable Definitions

[i] "Any Arbitration" and "Case"

For purposes of Standard 7, the terms "cases" and "any arbitration" do not include collective bargaining cases or arbitrations conducted under or arising out of collective bargaining agreements between employers and employees or between their respective representatives [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(b)(1)].

[ii] "Conclusion of the Arbitration"

"Conclusion of the arbitration" means the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(c)]:

- When the arbitrator is disqualified or withdraws or the case is settled or dismissed before the arbitrator makes an award, the date on which the arbitrator's appointment is terminated;

- When the arbitrator makes an award and no party makes a timely application to the arbitrator to correct the award, the final date for making an application to the arbitrator for correction; or

- When a party makes a timely application to the arbitrator to correct the award, the date on which the arbitrator serves a corrected award or a denial on each party, or the date on which denial occurs by operation of law.

[iii] "Dispute Resolution Neutral"

"Dispute resolution neutral" means a temporary judge appointed under article VI, section 21 of the California Constitution, a referee appointed under Code Civ. Proc. § 638 or 639, an arbitrator, a neutral evaluator, a special master, a mediator, a settlement officer, or a settlement facilitator [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(f)].

[iv] "Dispute Resolution Provider Organization"

"Dispute resolution provider organization" and "provider organization" mean any nongovernmental entity that, or individual who, coordinates, administers, or provides the services of two or more dispute resolution neutrals [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(g)].

[v] "Financial Interest"

For purposes of these standards, "financial interest" has the same meaning set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5, regarding disqualification of judges [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(i)]. "Financial interest" is defined by Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5 as ownership of more than a one percent legal or equitable interest in a party, or a legal or equitable interest in a party of a fair market value in excess of $1,500, or a relationship as director, advisor, or other active participant in the affairs of a party, except as follows:

(1) Ownership in a mutual or common investment fund that holds securities is not a financial interest in those securities unless the judge participates in the management of the fund.

(2) An office in an educational, religious, charitable, fraternal, or civic organization is not a financial interest in securities held by the organization.

(3) The proprietary interest of a policyholder in a mutual insurance company, or a depositor in a mutual savings association, or a similar proprietary interest, is a financial interest in the organization only if the outcome of the proceeding could substantially affect the value of the interest.

[vi] "Lawyer in the Arbitration"

"Lawyer in the arbitration" is defined in the Ethics Standards to mean the lawyer hired to represent a party in the arbitration [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(l)].

[vii] "Lawyer for a Party"

"Lawyer for a party" is defined in the Ethics Standards to mean the lawyer hired to represent a party in the arbitration and any lawyer or law firm currently associated in the private practice of law with the lawyer hired to represent a party in the arbitratio n [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(m)].

[d] Who Must Make Disclosures

Except as provided in Standard 8 [see discussion at [g], below], the disclosures in the Ethics Standards for Neutral Arbitrators in Contractual Arbitration must be made by all persons who are appointed to serve as neutral arbitrators on or after July 1, 2002, in any arbitration under an arbitration agreement if the arbitration agreement is subject to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2 or the arbitration hearing is conducted in California [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 3(a)]. Persons serving in arbitrations in which they were appointed to serve as arbitrators before July 1, 2002, are not subject to these standards. Persons who are serving in arbitrations in which they were appointed to serve as arbitrators before January 1, 2003, are not subject to Standard 8 in those arbitrations [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 3(c)].

These standards do not apply to any of the following:

(1) Party arbitrators, which are defined in Standard 2(q) as arbitrators selected unilaterally [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 3(b)(1)];

(2) An arbitrator acting in an international arbitration proceeding subject to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.11 et seq. [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 3(b)(2)(A)];

(3) An arbitrator acting in a judicial arbitration proceeding subject to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.10 et seq. [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 3(b)(2)(B)];

(4) An arbitrator acting in an attorney-client fee arbitration proceeding subject to the provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6200 et seq. [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 3(b)(2)(C)];

(5) An arbitrator acting in an automobile warranty dispute resolution process certified under 16 Cal. Code. Reg. § 3396.1 et seq. [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 3(b)(2)(D)];

(6) An arbitrator acting in an arbitration of a workers' compensation dispute under Lab. Code §§ 5270-5277 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 3(b)(2)(E)];

(7) An arbitrator acting in an arbitration conducted by the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board under Lab. Code § 5308 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 3(b)(2)(F)];

(8) An arbitrator acting in an arbitration of a complaint filed against a contractor with the Contractors State License Board under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 7085-7085.7 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 3(b)(2)(G)];

(9) An arbitrator acting in an arbitration conducted under or arising out of a public or private sector collective bargaining agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.85(b)], public or private sector labor-relations laws, regulations, charter provisions, ordinances, statutes, or agreements [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 3(b)(2)(H)].

[e] Time When Disclosures Must Be Made

A proposed neutral arbitrator must disclose to all parties in writing all matters listed in Standards 7(d) and (e) and 12(b) [see [a], above] and 8(b) [see [g], below] of which the arbitrator is then aware within the time specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(b)], which is within 10 calendar days of service of notice of the proposed nomination or appointment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standards 7(c), 12(b)]. If an arbitrator subsequently becomes aware of a matter that must be disclosed under either subdivision (d) or (e) of Standard 7, the arbitrator must disclose that matter to the parties in writing within 10 calendar days after the arbitrator becomes aware of the matter [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(c); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 12(b) (adopts time and manner provision of Standard 7(c)].

[f] Continuing Duty of Disclosure

A person who is nominated or appointed as an arbitrator must make a reasonable effort to inform himself or herself of matters that must be disclosed under Standards 7 and 8 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 9(a)]. An arbitrator's duty to disclose the matters described in Standard 7(d) and (e) [see [a], above] is a continuing duty, applying from service of the notice of the arbitrator's proposed nomination or appointment until the conclusion of the arbitration proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(f)].

[g] Disclosures Regarding Provider Organizations in Consumer Arbitrations

[i] Definitions and Matters Required To Be Disclosed

In addition to the disclosures required under Standard 7, in any consumer arbitration in which a dispute resolution provider organization is coordinating, administering, or providing arbitration services, a person who is proposed to be nominated or appointed as an arbitrator on or after January 1, 2003, must disclose, to all parties in writing within 10 calendar days after service of the nomination or appointment, any significant past, present, or currently expected financial or professional relationship or affiliation between the administering dispute resolution provider organization and a party or lawyer in the arbitration [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 8(b), (d); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.92 (discussed at § 33.16[1]), which prohibits provider organization from providing services in consumer arbitration if financial relationship rises to level of "financial interest" as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5, set forth at [c][v], above]. "Consumer arbitration" means an arbitration conducted under a predispute arbitration provision contained in a contract that [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(d)]:

- Is with a consumer party, as defined by these standards;
- Was drafted by or on behalf of the non-consumer party; and
- The consumer party was required to accept the arbitration provision in the contract.

"Consumer party" is a party to an arbitration agreement who, in the context of that arbitration agreement is any of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(e)]:

- An individual who seeks or acquires, including by lease, any goods or services primarily for personal, family, or household purposes including, but not limited to, financial services, insurance, and other goods and services as defined in Civ. Code § 1761;
- An individual who is an enrollee, a subscriber, or insured in a health-care service plan within the meaning of Health & Safety Code § 1345 or health-care insurance plan within the meaning of Ins. Code § 106;
- An individual with a medical malpractice claim that is subject to the arbitration agreement; or
- An employee or an applicant for employment in a dispute arising out of or relating to the employee's employment or the applicant's prospective employment that is subject to the arbitration agreement.

"Consumer arbitration" excludes arbitration proceedings conducted under or arising out of a public or private sector labor-relations laws, regulations, charter provisions, ordinances, statutes, or agreements [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 3(d)].

Information about the relationships or affiliations between the dispute resolution provider organization and a party or lawyer in the arbitration that must be disclosed are the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 8(b)]:

(1) A party, a lawyer in the arbitration, or a law firm with which a lawyer in the arbitration is currently associated is a member of the provider organization.

(2) Within the preceding two years, the provider organization has received a gift, bequest, or favor from a party, a lawyer in the arbitration, or a law firm with which a lawyer in the arbitration is currently associated.

(3) The provider organization has entered into, or the arbitrator currently expects that the provider organization will enter into, an agreement or relationship with any party or lawyer in the arbitration or a law firm with which a lawyer in the arbitration is currently associated under which the provider organization will administer, coordinate, or provide dispute resolution services in other non-collective bargaining matters or will provide other consulting services for that party, lawyer, or law firm.

(4) The provider organization is coordinating, administering, or providing dispute resolution services or has coordinated, administered, or provided such services in another pending or prior non-collective bargaining case in which a party or lawyer in the arbitration was a party or a lawyer. For purposes of this paragraph, "prior case" means a case in which the dispute resolution neutral affiliated with the provider organization concluded his or her service within the two years before the date of the arbitrator's proposed nomination or appointment, but does not include any case in which the dispute resolution neutral concluded his or her service before July 1, 2002.

If the provider organization is acting or has acted in any of the capacities described in paragraph (4), above, the arbitrator must disclose the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 8(b)(2)]:

(A) The names of the parties in each prior or pending case and, if applicable, the name of the attorney in the current arbitration who is involved in the pending case or was involved in the prior case;

(B) The type of dispute resolution service (arbitration, mediation, reference, etc.) coordinated, administered, or provided by the provider organization in the case; and

(C) In each prior case in which a dispute resolution neutral affiliated with the provider organization rendered a decision as an arbitrator, a temporary judge appointed under article VI, § 4 of the California Constitution, or a referee appointed under Code Civ. Proc. § 638 or 639, the date of the decision, the prevailing party, the amount of monetary damages awarded, if any, and the names of the parties' attorneys.

If the number of cases disclosed under paragraph (4), above, is greater than five, the arbitrator must also provide a summary of these cases that states [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 8(b)(3)]:

(A) The number of pending cases in which the provider organization is currently providing each type of dispute resolution services;

(B) The number of prior cases in which the provider organization previously provided each type of dispute resolution services;

(C) The number of those prior cases in which a neutral affiliated with the provider organization rendered a decision as an arbitrator, temporary judge, or a referee; and

(D) The number of prior cases in which the party to the current arbitration or the party represented by the lawyer in the current arbitration was the prevailing party.

If a relationship is disclosed under (1) through (4), above, the arbitrator must also provide information about the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 8(c)]:

(1) Any financial relationship or affiliation the arbitrator has with the provider organization other than receiving referrals of cases, including whether the arbitrator has a financial interest in the provider organization or is an employee of the provider organization;

(2) The provider organizations' process and criteria for recruiting, screening, and training the panel of arbitrators from which the arbitrator in this case is to be selected;

(3) The provider organizations' process for identifying, recommending, and selecting potential arbitrators for specific cases; and

(4) Any role the provider organization plays in ruling on requests for disqualification of the arbitrator.

[ii] Arbitrator May Rely on Information Supplied by Provider Organization

Except as to the information in (c)(1) (financial relationship or affiliation the arbitrator has with the provider organization other than receiving referrals of cases), an arbitrator may rely on information supplied by the provider organization in making the disclosures required by Standard 8 [see [i], above]. If the information that must be disclosed is available on the Internet, the arbitrator may comply with the obligation to disclose this information by providing the Internet address at which the information is located and notifying the party that the arbitrator will supply hard copies of this information on request [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 8(a)(1)].

An arbitrator can fulfill his or her obligation under Standard 9 to inform himself or herself of the information that is required to be disclosed under Standard 8 [see [i], above] by [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 9(e)]:

(1) Asking the dispute resolution organization for this information; and

(2) Declaring in writing that he or she had made that inquiry and attaching to the declaration copies of his or her inquiry and any response from the provider organization.

[iii] Arbitrator May Rely on Consumer Party's Representation

An arbitrator is not required to make the disclosures required by Standard 8 if he or she reasonably believes that the arbitration is not a consumer arbitration based on reasonable reliance on a consumer party's representation that the arbitration is not a consumer arbitration [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 8(a)(2)].

[h] Disqualification Based on Ethics Standard or Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91

For purposes of Standard 10, regarding disqualification of a neutral arbitrator, "obligation to make disclosure" means an arbitrator's obligation to make disclosures required under Standards 7 or 8, discussed at [a] and [i], above, or under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9, discussed at [3][a], below [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 10(b)]. The Ethics Standards adopt the disqualification requirements and procedures of Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91, discussed at [3][e], below, and add clarification with respect to the requirements relating to disqualification based on disclosure made by the neutral arbitrator after appointment or based on the discovery by the party of a material omission or misrepresentation in the arbitrator's disclosure [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Comment to Standard 10(b)]. Thus, an arbitrator is disqualified, if:

(1) The arbitrator fails to comply with his or her obligation to make disclosures and a party serves a notice of disqualification in the manner and within the time specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 10(a)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(a) (discussed at [3][e][i], below, notice of disqualification must be served within 15 calendar days after proposed nominee or appointee fails to comply)];

(2) The arbitrator complies with his or her obligation to make disclosures within 10 calendar days of service of notice of the proposed nomination or appointment and, based on that disclosure, a party serves a notice of disqualification in the manner and within the time specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 10(a)(2); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(b)(1) (discussed at [3][e][ii], below, notice of disqualification must be served within 15 calendar days after service of disclosure statement); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 12(b) (set forth as item (21) at [a], above, which allows party to disqualify arbitrator based on his or her disclosure that he or she will entertain offers of employment or new professional relationship with party, or lawyer for party)];

(3) The arbitrator makes a required disclosure more than 10 calendar days after service of notice of the proposed nomination or appointment and, based on that disclosure, a party serves a notice of disqualification in the manner and within the time specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 10(a)(3); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91 (discussed at [3][e] and [f], below];

(4) A party becomes aware that an arbitrator made a material omission or material misrepresentation in his or her disclosure, and a party, within 15 days after becoming aware of the omission or misrepresentation and within the time specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(c) serves a notice of disqualification that clearly describes the material omission or material misrepresentation and how and when the party became aware of this omission or misrepresentation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 10(a)(4); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(c) (discussed at [3][f], below, notice of disqualification must be served before hearing of contested issue of fact relating merits of claim to or ruling by arbitrator regarding contested matter); see Fininen v. Barlow (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 185, 190-191, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 687 (court of appeal upheld confirmation of award challenged on basis of arbitrator's failure to disclose prior service as mediator in matter settled by party to arbitration because that party participated in nondisclosed case, recognized arbitrator before arbitration hearing commenced, and failed object until nearly two months after arbitrator issued the award in favor of opponents)]. A party who did not investigate or discover the arbitrator's undisclosed connections to the opposing party's insurer until after the arbitrator had issued an interim award could not obtain disqualification under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(c) but still had the right to seek vacatur of the interim award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(6)(A), discussed at § 34.19[1][d] [Advantage Medical Services, LLC v. Hoffman (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 806, 820-823, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 935]; or

(5) Any ground (for disqualification of judge) specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1, which are briefly enumerated at § 33.15[1], exists and the party makes a demand that the arbitrator disqualify himself or herself, in the manner and within the time specified Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(d) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 10(a)(5); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(d) (discussed at § 33.15[1], below, demand for disqualification must be made before conclusion of arbitration proceeding); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(c) (defining "conclusion of the arbitration")].

Notwithstanding any contrary request, consent, or waiver by the parties, an arbitrator must disqualify himself or herself if he or she concludes at any time during the arbitration that he or she is not able to conduct the arbitration impartially [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 10(c)].

For a form of notice of disqualification, see § 33.61.

[i] Consent to New Employment of Arbitrator

From the time of appointment until the conclusion of the arbitration, an arbitrator must not entertain or accept any offers of employment or new professional relationships as a lawyer, an expert witness, or a consultant from a party or a lawyer for a party in the pending arbitration [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 12(a)].

If an arbitrator fails to make the disclosure required by Standard 12(b) [see item (21) at [a], above], from the time of appointment until the conclusion of the arbitration, the arbitrator must not entertain or accept any offers of employment or new professional relationships, including offers to serve as a dispute resolution neutral [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 12(c); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(b)(2) (discussed at item (21) at [a], above)].

Without the informed written consent of all parties, an arbitrator must not at any time enter into any professional relationship or accept any professional employment as a lawyer, expert witness, or a consultant relating to the case arbitrated [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 12(d)(1)]. Similarly, without the informed written consent of the party, an arbitrator must not at any time enter into any professional relationship or accept employment in another matter in which information that he or she has received in confidence from a party by reason of serving as an arbitrator in a case is material [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 12(d)(2)].

[3] Disclosures Under Code of Civil Procedure Section 1281.9(a)

[a] Matters to Be Disclosed

[i] Prior Service as Party Arbitrator

In addition to the general requirement that proposed neutral arbitrator to disclose all matters that could cause a person aware of the facts to reasonably entertain a doubt that he or she would be able to be impartial, when a person is to serve as a neutral arbitrator, subject only to the disclosure requirements of law, the proposed neutral arbitrator must disclose, in writing, to all of the parties, the names of the parties to all prior or pending noncollective bargaining cases in which the proposed neutral arbitrator served or is serving as a party arbitrator for any party to the arbitration proceeding or for a lawyer for a party and the results of each case arbitrated to conclusion, including [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a)(3); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(c) ("lawyer for party" defined), discussed in [b][i], below; Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(d) ("prior cases" defined), discussed in [b]ii], below; but see Dornbirer v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 831, 836, 846 ; 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116 (an arbitration award was not vacated when the arbitrator generally disclosed his relationships and prior interactions with the parties to the arbitration but did not provide all of the specific details, i.e., dates and results of the prior arbitrations, required under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9, and despite the omissions, the parties agreed to go forward with the arbitration)]:

- The date of the arbitration award.
- Identification of the prevailing party.
- The names of the parties' attorneys.
- The amount of monetary damages awarded, if any.

To preserve confidentiality, it is sufficient to give the name of any party who is not a party to the pending arbitration as "claimant" or "respondent" if that party is an individual and not a business or corporate entity [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a)(3)].

[ii] Prior Service as Neutral Arbitrator

In addition to the general requirement that proposed neutral arbitrator to disclose all matters that could cause a person aware of the facts to reasonably entertain a doubt that he or she would be able to be impartial, when a person is to serve as a neutral arbitrator, subject only to the disclosure requirements of law, the proposed neutral arbitrator must disclose, in writing, to all of the parties, the names of the parties to all prior or pending noncollective bargaining cases involving any party to the arbitration or lawyer for a party for which the proposed neutral arbitrator served or is serving as neutral arbitrator and the results of each case arbitrated to conclusion, including [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a)(4); International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, etc. v. Laughon (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1380, 1382, 1385, 1394-1395, Cal. Rptr. 3d 341 (prior service as neutral arbitrator in non-collective bargaining case in which attorneys for party to present arbitration represented party had to be disclosed, but not prior service as neutral arbitrator in collective bargaining matter); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(c)] ("lawyer for party" defined), discussed in [b][i], below; Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(d) ("prior cases" defined), discussed in [b][ii], below; but see Dornbirer v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan,

Inc. (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 831, 836, 846, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116 (an arbitration award was not vacated when the arbitrator generally disclosed his relationships and prior interactions with the parties to the arbitration but did not provide all of the specific details, i.e., dates an results of the prior arbitrations, required under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9, and despite the omissions, the parties agreed to go forward with the arbitration]:

- The date of the arbitration award.
- Identification of the prevailing party.
- The names of the parties' attorneys.
- The amount of monetary damages awarded, if any.

To preserve confidentiality, it is sufficient to give the name of any party who is not a party to the pending arbitration as "claimant" or "respondent" if that party is an individual and not a business or corporate entity [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a)(4)].

[iii] Attorney-Client Relationship

When a person is to serve as a neutral arbitrator, subject only to the disclosure requirements of law, the proposed neutral arbitrator must disclose, in writing, to all of the parties any attorney-client relationship the proposed neutral arbitrator has or had with any party or lawyer for a party to the arbitration proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a)(5); but see Agri-Systems v. Foster Poultry Farms (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1140, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 917 (arbitrator's law firm's past representation of a third party who had an adversarial relationship with a party to the arbitration need not be disclosed)].

[iv] Professional or Significant Personal Relationship

When a person is to serve as a neutral arbitrator, subject only to the disclosure requirements of law, the proposed neutral arbitrator must disclose, in writing, to all of the parties any professional or significant personal relationship the proposed neutral arbitrator, or his or her spouse or minor child living in the household, has, or has had with any party to the arbitration proceeding or a lawyer for a party [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a)(6); see Advantage Medical Services, LLC v. Hoffman (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 806, 809, 818, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 935 (person aware of fact that arbitrator and his law firm represented several entities that provided insurance and reinsurance to syndicate by which plaintiff was insured and representative of which was present throughout the arbitration might reasonably entertain doubt that proposed neutral arbitrator would be able to be impartial); compare Guseinov v. Burns (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 944, 958-959 , Cal. Rptr. 3d 903 (acting as uncompensated mediator in single matter did not constitute professional relationship between arbitrator and plaintiff's counsel, and thus, was not required to be disclosed)].

By virtue of amendment to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.1 and 1281.9(a)(1) operative January 1, 2003, a proposed neutral arbitrator must also disclose whether or not he or she has any current arrangement concerning prospective employment or other compensated service as a dispute resolution neutral, or is participating in, or within the last two has participated in, any discussions regarding such prospective employment with a party to the proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.1(a)(8), 1281.9(a)(1)].

[b] Definitions

[i] "Lawyer for Party" Defined

For purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9, the term "lawyer for a party" includes any lawyer or law firm currently associated in the practice of law with the lawyer hired to represent a party [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(c)].

[ii] "Prior Case" Defined

For purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9, the term "prior cases" means noncollective bargaining cases in which an arbitration award was rendered within five years prior to the date of the proposed nomination or appointment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(d)].

[iii] "Any Arbitration" Defined

For purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9, "any arbitration" does not include an arbitration conducted pursuant to the terms of a public or private sector collective bargaining agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(e)].

[c] Who Must Disclose

The disclosures stated in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a) (see discussions in [1], [2] and [a], above and § 33.15) are required when a person is [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a)]:

- Proposed for nomination by all parties or all party arbitrators to serve as a neutral arbitrator, or

- Proposed for appointment by the court to serve as a neutral arbitrator in response to any petition brought under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6 (petition for court appointment; see § 33.13).

[d] Time for Making Disclosures

The proposed nominee or appointee must make the disclosures discussed at [1], [2] and [3][a], above and § 33.15, to all parties, in writing, within 10 calendar days of service of notice of the proposed nomination or appointment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(b); Jakks Pacific, Inc. v. Superior Court (THQ, Inc.) (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 596, 600, 604-607, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 914] ; certainly not, in the case of arbitrators appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6, when the court nominates the five from whom the parties are to choose [Jakks Pacific, Inc. v. Superior Court (THQ, Inc.) (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 596, 600, 603-607, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 914]. The arbitrator's disclosure obligations are not triggered until he or she is notified that he or she has been selected by the parties or appointed by the court to serve as a neutral arbitrator [Jakks Pacific, Inc. v. Superior Court (THQ, Inc.) (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 596, 607, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 914].

[e] Disqualification

[i] Noncompliance With Disclosure Requirements

A proposed neutral arbitrator is disqualified if he or she fails to comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9 and any party entitled to receive the disclosure serves a notice of disqualification within 15 calendar days after the proposed nominee or appointee fails to comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(a)]. For a form of notice of disqualification under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(a), see § 33.61.

[ii] Based on Disclosure Statement

If the proposed neutral arbitrator complies with Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9, he or she is disqualified on the basis of the disclosure statement if any party entitled to receive the disclosure serves a notice of disqualification within 15 calendar days after service of the disclosure statement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(b)(1)]. The right to disqualify a proposed neutral arbitrator in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1281.9, 1281.91 cannot be waived by agreeing to arbitrate in accordance with rules that provide some other means of determining whether the proposed neutral arbitrator is to be disqualified. The statutory scheme primarily exists to serve the public purpose of promoting public confidence in the arbitration process and does not allow an individual right of waiver to take precedence [Azteca Constr., Inc. v. ADR

Consulting, Inc. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1156, 1164-1168, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 142] . For a form of notice of disqualification under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(b)(1), see § 33.61.

[iii] Court-Appointed Arbitrators

A party has the right to disqualify one court-appointed arbitrator without cause in any single arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(b)(2)]. Thus, when the parties have failed to agree on an arbitrator and the court appoints one on petition of one of the parties [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6, discussed under § 33.13], a party may disqualify the appointed arbitrator.

A party may petition the court to disqualify a subsequent appointee only on a showing of cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(b)(2)].

For a form of notice of disqualification that may be modified for use in noticing the disqualification of a court-appointed arbitrator under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(b)(2), see § 33.61.

[f] Waiver of Right to Disqualify

A party's right to disqualify a proposed neutral arbitrator is waived if the party fails to serve the notice within the times set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(c); for time limits, see [e], above]. The party's right to disqualify is not waived, however, if the proposed nominee or appointee makes a material omission or material misrepresentation in his or her disclosure [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(c); but see Dornbirer v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 831, 836, 846 ; 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116 (an arbitration award was not vacated when the arbitrator generally disclosed his relationships and prior interactions with the parties to the arbitration but did not provide all of the specific details, i.e., dates and results of the prior arbitrations, required under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9, and despite the omissions, the parties agreed to go forward with the arbitration)]. Nor may a party waive his or her right to disqualify a proposed neutral arbitrator in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91 by agreeing to arbitrate in accordance with rules that provide some other means of determining whether the proposed neutral arbitrator is to be disqualified. The statutory scheme primarily exists to serve the public purpose of promoting public confidence in the arbitration process and does not allow an individual right of waiver to take precedence [Azteca Constr., Inc. v. ADR Consulting, Inc. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1156, 1164-1168, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 142] .

Except with respect to Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(d) (disclosure of grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1, discussed at § 33.15) in no event may a notice of disqualification be given after a hearing of any contested issue of fact relating to the merits of the claim or after any ruling by the arbitrator regarding any contested matter [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(c); Advantage Medical Services, LLC v. Hoffman (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 806, 819-820, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 935] . Manifestly, Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(c) applies only when the proposed neutral arbitrator has made the relevant disclosure [International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, etc. v. Laughon (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1380, 1392].

ILLUSTRATION:

No Disclosure; No Waiver. On the first day of arbitration, plaintiff/appellant's attorney presented to be marked for identification and then introduced as evidence an arbitration award in a previous matter in which the same arbitrator had served as neutral arbitrator and in which plaintiff/respondent's law firm had acted a counsel for a party. Although close scrutiny of the award would have revealed that the same person served as neutral arbitrator in both matters and that plaintiff/respondent's law firm had represented a party to the earlier arbitration, no one at the hearing explicitly mentioned the arbitrator's disclosure obligation, and there was no discussion of the possible conflict. The award was presented as an exhibit purportedly only to support plaintiff/respondent's legal position. The trial court affirmed an award for plaintiff/respondent, finding that appellant had waived the right to disqualify the neutral arbitrator.

> Was that correct? No. The record did not demonstrate that defendant/appellant actually knew, understood, and acknowledged the presence of a conflict before the conclusion of the arbitration proceedings. There was neither a disclosure nor a waiver of the arbitrator's conflict. An explicit, formal proffer of the disqualifying information was required [International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, etc. v. Laughon (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1380, 1389-1392, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 341 ; compare Dornbirer v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 831, 836, 846 ; 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116 (an arbitration award was not vacated when the arbitrator generally disclosed his relationships and prior interactions with the parties to the arbitration but did not provide all of the specific details, i.e., dates and results of the prior arbitrations, required under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9, and despite the omissions, the parties agreed to go forward with the arbitration)].

Nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(c) limits the right of a party to vacate an award pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2 or to disqualify the arbitrator pursuant to any other law or statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(c); see Advantage Medical Services, LLC v. Hoffman (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 806, 820-822, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 935 ; International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, etc. v. Laughon (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1380, 1392, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 341 (award must be vacated when required disclosure was not made); see also § 34.19]. Grounds for vacating an award include corruption, fraud, prejudicial misconduct of a neutral arbitrator, and failure of an arbitrator to make required disclosures or, if subject to disqualification, to disqualify himself or herself on receipt of a timely demand for disqualification [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(d) (relating to grounds for disqualification of a judge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1, discussed in § 33.15[1])]. Though not characterizing its decision as based on waiver, a court of appeal upheld the confirmation of an award challenged on the basis of the arbitrator's failure to disclose prior service as a mediator in a matter settled by one of the parties to the arbitration because that party: (1) participated in the nondisclosed case; (2) had access to his own file regarding that case before, during and after the arbitration hearings; (3) recognized the arbitrator visually before the arbitration hearing commenced; (4) failed to request a continuance to investigate the arbitrator; (5) consented to proceed with the arbitration when the arbitrator partially described the nondisclosed case to all parties; and (6) failed to notify the arbitrator or the other parties that he objected to the arbitrator's participation until nine months after signing the stipulation naming the arbitrator, six months after seeing and recognizing the arbitrator, and nearly two months after the arbitrator issued the award in favor of his opponents. The court of appeal said any other interpretation of Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(6) would be absurd [Fininen v. Barlow (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 185, 190-191, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 687] .

A party cannot waive this right to seek vacatur by agreeing to arbitrate under rules that purportedly give the sponsoring organization the right to conclusively determine all claims. AAA rule 17 provided that AAA's challenges regarding disqualification were conclusive. The statutes were passed to advance a public purpose of crucial importance over which the state retained ultimate control [Advantage Medical Services, LLC v. Hoffman (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 806, 820-822, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 935].

For discussion regarding vacating or refusing to confirm awards due to failure to make required disclosures, see also § 34.19[1][d].

[4] Residential Construction Contract Arbitration

[a] Declaration Requirement

In a binding arbitration of any claim for more than $3,000 pursuant to a contract for the construction or improvement of residential property consisting of one to four units, the arbitrator must, within 10 days following his or her appointment, provide each party a written declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.95(a)].

The declaration must disclose the following:

- Whether the arbitrator or his or her employer or arbitration service had or has a personal or professional affiliation with either party [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.95(a)(1)].

- Whether the arbitrator or his or her employer or arbitration service has been selected or designated as an arbitrator by either party in another transaction [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.95(a)(2)].

[b] Grounds for Disqualification

The arbitrator may be disqualified from the arbitration by either party if the arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.95(b)]:

- Discloses an affiliation with either party;

- Discloses that he or she has been selected or designated as an arbitrator by either party in another arbitration; or

- Fails to comply with Section 1281.95.

Section 1281.95 does not limit a party's right to vacate an award pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2 or to disqualify an arbitrator pursuant to any other law or statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.95(c)]. Grounds for vacating an award are discussed in Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review, § 34.19[1].

[c] Notice of Disqualification

Notice of disqualification must be served within 15 days after the arbitrator makes the required disclosures or fails to comply. For a form of notice of disqualification under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.95, see § 33.62.

[d] Waiver of Right to Disqualify

A party waives his or her right to disqualify an arbitrator if he or she fails to serve the notice of disqualification under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.95(c), unless the arbitrator makes a material omission or material misrepresentation in his or her disclosure [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.95(c)].

[e] Comparison of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1281.9 and 1281.95 Disclosure Provisions

Of the two schemes providing for notice of disqualification, Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9 and Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.95, discussed under [4][a]-[d], above, Section 1281.95 appears to provide the greater protection for a party:

- Under section 1281.95 no time limit is specified regarding the past incidents that must be disclosed, compared with Section 1281.9 which defines reportable "prior cases".

- The disclosure under Section 1281.95 must be made as a written declaration under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.95(a)], whereas the more general Section 1281.9 scheme specifies no such requirement, referring only to a disclosure in writing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(b)].

§ 33.15 Disclosure of Grounds for Disqualification of Judge

[1] Disclosures Required

A neutral arbitrator is required to disclose to all parties the existence of any grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 for disqualification of a judge [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a)(1)]; and if any such ground exists, to disqualify himself or herself on demand of any party made before the conclusion of the arbitration proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(d)]. This provision is not applicable to arbitration proceedings conducted under a collective bargaining agreement between employers and employees or their respective representatives [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(d)].

These disclosures must be made to all parties in writing within 10 calendar days of service of notice of the proposed nomination or appointment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a)(2), (b)].

The grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 for disqualification of judges are discussed in Ch. 317, Judges , Pt. III. Briefly, they involve [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)]:

(1) Personal knowledge of disputed evidentiary facts concerning the proceeding.

(2) Service as a lawyer in the proceeding or for any party in the proceeding.

(3) Financial interest in the subject matter.

(4) Personal relationships of the judge, judge's spouse, or person within third degree of relationship to either of them with a party.

(5) Lawyer or spouse of lawyer in the proceeding is related to, or associated in the practice of law with, the judge, judge's spouse, former spouse, sibling, or parent.

(6) Belief that recusal is in the best interests of justice, actual bias or prejudice toward a party or lawyer in the proceeding, or facts that would make a reasonable person doubt the judge's impartiality.

(7) Physical impairment.

(8) Whether or not the judge has any current arrangement concerning prospective employment or other compensated service as a dispute resolution neutral, or is participating in, or within the last two years has participated in, any discussions regarding such prospective employment with a party to the proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a)(1)]. To be a "party" for purposes of triggering the disclosure requirement based on employment of the arbitrator by a party, an affiliate of the named party must have been involved in the transaction, contract, or facts that gave rise to the issues subject to the proceeding [Hayden v. Robertson Stephens, Inc. (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 360, 365-368, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 333 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(8)(B)(ii) (defining "party")].

[2] Failure of Arbitrator to Disqualify Self

If an arbitrator making the award was subject to disqualification on grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91, but failed, on receipt of a timely demand, to disqualify himself or herself as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9, the court must vacate the award. Again, this provision is not applicable to arbitration proceedings conducted under a collective bargaining agreement between employers and employees or between their respective representatives [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(6)].

§ 33.16 Private Arbitration Companies and Consumer Arbitrations

[1] Prohibited Financial Interests

No private arbitration company may administer a consumer arbitration [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(d), (e) (definition, discussed at § 33.14[2][g][i])], or provide any other services related to a consumer arbitration, if:

- The company has, or within the preceding year has had, a financial interest, as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5 (discussed at § 33.14[2][c][v]), in any party or attorney for a party [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.92(a)], or

- If any party or attorney for a party has, or within the preceding year has had, any type of financial interest in the private arbitration company [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.92(b)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.92 became operative January 1, 2003, and operates only prospectively so as not to prohibit the administration of consumer arbitrations on the basis of financial interests held prior to January 1, 2003 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.92(c), (e)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.92 applies to all consumer arbitration agreements subject to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2, and to all consumer arbitration proceedings conducted in California [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.92(d)].

[2] Publication of Five Years' Historical Data

Any private arbitration company that administers or is otherwise involved in, a consumer arbitration [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(d), (e) (definition, discussed at § 33.14[2][g][i])], must collect, publish at least quarterly, and make available to the public in a computer-searchable format, which must be accessible at the Internet Web site of the private arbitration company, if any, and on paper on request, all of the following information with respect to any consumer arbitration commenced on or after January 1, 2003, and regarding each consumer arbitration within the preceding five years [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.96(a), (c)]:

(1) The name of any nonconsumer party, that is a corporation or other business entity.

(2) The type of dispute involved, including goods, banking, insurance, health care, employment, and, if it involves employment, the amount of the employee's annual wage divided into the following ranges:

- Less than one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000),
- One hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) to two hundred fifty thousand dollars ($250,000), inclusive, and
- Over two hundred fifty thousand dollars ($250,000).

(3) Whether the consumer or nonconsumer party was the prevailing party.

(4) On how many occasions, if any, the nonconsumer party has previously been a party in an arbitration or mediation administered by the private arbitration company.

(5) Whether the consumer party was represented by an attorney.

(6) The date the private arbitration company received the demand for arbitration, the date the arbitrator was appointed, and the date of disposition by the arbitrator or private arbitration company.

(7) The type of disposition of the dispute, if known, including withdrawal, abandonment, settlement, award after hearing, award without hearing, default, or dismissal without hearing.

(8) The amount of the claim, the amount of the award, and any other relief granted, if any.

(9) The name of the arbitrator, his or her total fee for the case, and the percentage of the arbitrator's fee allocated to each party.

A private arbitration company that receives funding pursuant to Chapter 8 of Division 1 of the Business and Professions Code (Bus. & Prof. Code § 465 et seq.) and that administers or conducts fewer than 50 consumer arbitrations per year may collect and publish the foregoing information semiannually, provide the information only on paper, and charge the actual cost of copying [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.96(b)(2)]. All other private arbitration companies may charge the actual cost of copying to any person who requests the information on paper if that company provides the foregoing information in a computer-searchable format at the company's Internet Web site and that information may be downloaded without any fee. If the private arbitration company does not make the foregoing information accessible by the Internet, the company shall provide that information without charge to any person who requests the information on paper [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.96(b)(1)].

No private arbitration company has any liability for collecting, publishing, or distributing the information required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.96 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.96(d)].

§ 33.20 Powers of Arbitrators

[1] Source of Powers

The arbitrator's jurisdiction or authority to act is derived from and limited by the agreement to arbitrate [Hall v. Superior Court (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 427, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 376 ; Department of Public Health v. Service Employees Internat. Union (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 429, 434, 263 Cal. Rptr. 711] . The arbitrator's powers may be limited by the agreement or stipulation of submission [San Luis Obispo Bay Properties, Inc. v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 556, 564, 104 Cal. Rptr. 733] . For further discussion, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.21.

If the arbitration clause is silent on the arbitrator's authority to determine which issues are arbitrable, a judicial determination of his or her jurisdiction and scope of authority is generally required [Parker v. Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp. (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 895, 901-904, 173 Cal. Rptr. 639 ; see First Options of Chicago, Inc. v. Kaplan (1995) 514 U.S. 938, 115 S. Ct. 1920, 131 L. Ed. 2d 985, 993 (under the Federal Arbitration Act, the court has the primary power to decide arbitrability of a dispute unless there is clear and unmistakable evidence that the parties have agreed for the arbitrator to decide arbitrability)]. Some provider's rules, e.g., the American Arbitration Association (AAA) Commercial Arbitration Rules, provide for the arbitrator to determine arbitrability. If the parties' agreement provides for arbitration in accordance with those or similar rules, it is for the arbitrator--not the court--to determine whether that matter is subject to arbitration [Dream Theater, Inc. v. Dream Theater (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 547, 557-558, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 322 (trial court must stay action until arbitrator determines arbitrability)].

Once the court has ordered arbitration, however, the arbitrator has no power to dismiss the arbitration by reexamining whether the parties were bound by the arbitration provision, even if the law has changed while the matter was being arbitrated [Malek v. Blue Cross of California (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 44, 56, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 687] . If the law changes, the proper recourse is to petition the trial court to reconsider its original order compelling arbitration [see Code

Civ. Proc. § 1008(c); Malek v. Blue Cross of California (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 44, 59-60, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 687] . For discussion of an arbitrator's power to dismiss an arbitration for unreasonable delay in bringing the matter to a conclusion, akin to the five-year dismissal statute applicable to actions, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.51[2].

[2] Scope of Powers

As a contractual matter between the parties involved, the arbitrator derives his or her power solely from the arbitration agreement and cannot exceed those derived powers. Although there is a strong policy in favor of enforcing agreements to arbitrate, there is no policy compelling persons to accept arbitration of controversies that they have not agreed to arbitrate. An arbitrator's powers are limited and circumscribed by the agreement or stipulation of submission [Pacific Crown Distributors v. Brotherhood of Teamsters (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1138, 1144, 228 Cal. Rptr. 645] .

An arbitrator who issued an award in an initial dispute between the parties does not exceed his or her powers by hearing and deciding a second arbitration when the parties' agreement provided that all disputes of any nature arising from the agreement would be settled by one arbitrator. This is true even if the language "shall be settled by one arbitrator" did not mean that the parties would pick one arbitrator "for life," but merely that each dispute would be settled by one arbitrator rather than three. That language is equally susceptible to both meanings and if the arbitrator interpreted it incorrectly, that would be at most an error of law, which would not be grounds to prohibit confirmation of the award [Patchett v. Bergamot Station, Ltd. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1390, 1392, 1395-1398, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 941] .

[3] Exercise of Powers

[a] Limited to Submitted Issues

Arbitrators must decide all issues that are submitted to them but have no power to decide issues not submitted. They have the power to determine which issues are actually necessary to the ultimate decision [Jones v. Humanscale Corp. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 401, 413-414, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 881 ; Hall v. Superior Court (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 427, 434, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 376 ; East San Bernardino County Water Dist. v. City of San Bernardino (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 942, 953, 954, 109 Cal. Rptr. 510] .

Parties may submit for decision issues they are not contractually compelled to submit to arbitration. Thus, a court will look both to the contract and to the scope of the submissions to determine the arbitrator's authority [J.C.Gury Co. v. Nippon Carbide Indus. (USA), Inc. (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1305, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 118 ; see also [e], below].

[b] Statutory Powers

The arbitration statutes set forth certain powers of arbitrators with respect to the following:

- Conducting the arbitration hearings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2].
- Issuing subpoenas [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.6].
- Administering oaths [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.8].
- Ordering depositions [Code Civ. Proc. § 1283].
- Enforcing discovery obligations [Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.05].
- Making the award [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1283.4-1283.8].

- Correcting the award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1284].

[c] Reference to Principles of Law and Equity

Arbitrators may base their decisions on broad principles of justice and equity and have the power to expressly or impliedly reject a claim that a party might successfully have asserted in a judicial action, unless they are specifically required by the arbitration agreement to act in conformity with rules of law [Sapp v. Barenfeld (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 515, 523, 212 P.2d 233 ; Interinsurance Exchange v. Bailes (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 830, 835, 33 Cal. Rptr. 533] . They can apply both legal and equitable principles in deciding the ultimate issue submitted to them [Morris v. Zuckerman (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 686, 691, 72 Cal. Rptr. 880, 446 P.2d 1000] .

[d] Punitive Damages Award

An express agreement is not required to empower arbitrators to award punitive damages. If the arbitration provision contemplates arbitration of claims giving rise to punitive damages, the arbitrators have authority to award punitive damages [Tate v. Saratoga Savings & Loan Assn. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 843, 854-856, 265 Cal. Rptr. 440 (joint venture agreement providing for arbitration of any controversy between venturers concerning venture, construction of specific project, or rights and duties of any party under agreement as encompassing tort claims for breach of fiduciary duty); Baker v. Sadick (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 618, 622-626, 208 Cal. Rptr. 676 (medical malpractice)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Intent to Empower Arbitrator to Award Punitive Damages. An arbitration clause provides: "If any controversy shall arise between the parties hereto arising from or with respect to this Agreement, the controversy shall be submitted to mandatory, binding arbitration." Does the arbitrator have power to award punitive damages? Yes. In this case, the court agreed with other recent decisions that had held that similar language expresses a remedial intent sufficiently broad to empower the arbitrator to entertain a claim for punitive damages [see Rifkind & Sterling, Inc. v. Rifkind (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1282, 1288-1289, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828] .

Due Process Clause requirements that punitive damages awards assessed and imposed by state courts be subject to some degree of judicial review do not apply to punitive damage awards by arbitrators, because no state action is involved in the award [Rifkind & Sterling, Inc. v. Rifkind (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1282, 1288-1291, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828] . Moreover, if due process did apply, the arbitration agreement would have been sufficient to waive the constitutional right to judicial review of the punitive damage award, even though the agreement did not contain an express waiver of that particular constitutional right, at least when the party is a sophisticated attorney or business person [Rifkind & Sterling, Inc. v. Rifkind (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1282, 1290, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828 (analogizing to the issue of waiver of jury trial)]. Also, although the limited degree of state action involved in confirming of an arbitration award requires the traditional measure of due process notice and hearing, it does not require that a punitive damage component of an arbitration award be given any different standard of review than applies to the rest of the award [Rifkind & Sterling, Inc. v. Rifkind (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1282, 1291-1293, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828] .

For a discussion of the arbitrator's award generally, see § 33.28.

[e] Waiver of Objection of Lack of Authority

The objection that an arbitrator lacks authority to decide an issue may be waived by submission of the issue by the parties [J.C.Gury Co. v. Nippon Carbide Indus. (USA), Inc. (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1302, 1304-1306, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 118 ; Felner v. Meritplan Ins. Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 540, 544, 86 Cal. Rptr. 178] . If the parties submit an issue not covered by the order of arbitration they are bound by the decision of the arbitrators and are not entitled to relitigate the issue in another proceeding [Lesser Towers, Inc. v. Roscoe-Ajax Constr. Co. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 675, 698-699, 77 Cal. Rptr. 100] . Nor can a party argue on appeal that the arbitrator exceeded his or her powers as specified in the arbitration clause after arguing and presenting evidence relative to an issue without arguing during the arbitration hearing that the arbitrator had no authority to find on that issue [see J.C.Gury Co. v. Nippon Carbide Indus. (USA), Inc. (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1302, 1304-1306, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 118 (warranty disclaimer held unconscionable and unenforceable and consequential damage award affirmed despite contract provision that arbitrator had no power to make an award that changed, modified, or altered any provision of contract)].

[4] Powers and Duties in Plurality of Arbitrators

Unless the arbitration agreement otherwise provides, or unless the parties to the arbitration otherwise provide by an agreement which is not contrary to the arbitration agreement as made or as modified by all of the parties thereto, the following rules govern the exercise of powers by the arbitrators:

- The arbitration is to be conducted by a single neutral arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282(a)].

- If there is more than one arbitrator the powers and duties of the arbitrators, other than the powers and duties of a neutral arbitrator, may be exercised by a majority of them if reasonable notice of all proceedings has been given to all arbitrators [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282(b)].

- If there is more than one neutral arbitrator the powers and duties of a neutral arbitrator may be exercised by a majority of the neutral arbitrators [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282(c)(1)] or, by unanimous agreement of the neutral arbitrators, those powers and duties may be delegated to one of their number but the power to make or correct the award may not be so delegated [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282(c)(2)].

- If there is no neutral arbitrator, the powers and duties of a neutral arbitrator may be exercised by a majority of the arbitrators [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282(d)].

§ 33.21 Consolidation of Arbitration Proceedings

[1] When Consolidation May Be Ordered

[a] Proper Circumstances Generally

A party to an arbitration agreement, except one to arbitrate disputes as to the professional negligence of a health care provider made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1295, may petition the court to consolidate separate arbitration proceedings, and the court may order consolidation of separate arbitration proceedings, when [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.3]:

- Separate arbitration agreements or proceedings exist between the same parties, or one party is a party to a separate arbitration agreement or proceedings with a third party,
- The disputes arise from the same transaction or series of related transactions, and
- There is a common issue, or there are common issues, of law or fact creating the possibility of conflicting rulings by more than one arbitrator or panel of arbitrators.

When the requirements for consolidation contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.3 are met, and no impairment of a substantial right or obligation of a party will result, a court has discretion to order combined arbitration of uninsured motorist claims that are arbitrable under Ins. Code § 11580.2(f) and third-party claims arising from the same incident that are subject to judicial arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.10 et seq. [Gordon v. G.R.O.U.P, Inc. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 998, 1007, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 914 ; but see Mercury Insurance Group v. Superior Court (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 332, 351-352, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 308 (dictum that consolidation of contractual and judicial arbitrations is not authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.3 and would be awkward)].

For a form of petition that may be used by a party to an arbitration who wishes to have separate arbitration proceedings consolidated, or partially consolidated, see § 33.76.

[b] Effect of Clause Excluding Another Person From Arbitration

The consolidation of separate proceedings may be ordered notwithstanding language in the arbitration agreement that no arbitration shall include another party without the consent of the parties to the arbitration agreement. The consolidation of separate proceedings that include a common party does not make the parties that are signatory to only one agreement parties to the other agreement. The consolidation merely provides that the separate claims will be heard at the same time, and will presumably be resolved in a consistent manner because the consolidation eliminates the danger that the issues common to the claims will be resolved inconsistently in separate proceedings. In such a situation, the arbitrator cannot order relief between the parties that do not have an agreement to arbitrate [Garden Grove Community Church v. Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel Co. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 251, 264-265, 191 Cal. Rptr. 15] .

[c] Construction Subcontract Incorporating Clause of General Contract

When construction subcontracts incorporate by reference the arbitration clause of a general contract, the subcontractors may be required to join in the arbitration proceedings under general contract involving defective work [Slaught v. Bencomo Roofing Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 744, 751, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 618] . Consolidation may be required when the general contract controls disputes between the owner, contractor, and subcontractors even if the subcontracts contain their own arbitration clauses that govern controversies between the subcontractors and the general contractor [Slaught v. Bencomo Roofing Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 744, 750, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 618] .

[d] Class Actions

Trial courts have the authority to order arbitration in class action cases under the penumbra of the express statutory powers of Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.3. If the alternative is to force numerous individual parties to individually litigate their causes in a separate arbitral forum, then the prospect of classwide arbitration, for all its difficulties, may offer a better, more efficient, and fairer solution [Izzi v. Mesquite Country Club (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1309, 1321, 231 Cal. Rptr. 315 , citing Keating v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 584, 183 Cal. Rptr. 360, 645 P.2d 1192 , reversed on other grounds sub nom. Southland Corp. v. Keating (1984) 465 U.S. 1, 104 S. Ct. 852, 79 L. Ed. 2d 1] .

If the matter is governed by the Federal Arbitration Act and the arbitration agreement is silent on the issue of classwide arbitration, interpretation of the contract is necessary to determine whether it permits classwide arbitration. That interpretation addresses a procedural matter and, under an agreement that provides for arbitration of "all disputes relating to this contract," the arbitrator should make that interpretation after a court orders arbitration [Green Tree Fin. Corp. v. Bazzle (2003) 539 U.S. 444, 452-453, 123 S. Ct. 2402 ; Garcia v. DIRECTV, Inc. (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 297, 302-304, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 190] . Conversely, if the arbitration agreement prohibits classwide arbitration and is challenged on the basis that the class action waiver is unconscionable, the court, not the arbitrator, should determine the issue, even if the matter is governed by the FAA [Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 148, 163, 167, 170-173 ; accord Szetela v. Discover Bank (2002) 97 Cal. App, 4th 1094, 1101-1102, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 862 , cert. denied, 537 U.S. 1501 (2003) (refusing to enforce prohibition on grounds of unconscionability without preemption analysis)]. For detailed discussion of classwide arbitration, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.32.

[e] Effect of Clause Prohibiting Consolidation

Like a clause in an arbitration agreement prohibiting classwide arbitration [see [d], above], a prohibition on consolidation of arbitrations may be unconscionable, and thus, void and unenforceable. The determination of unconscionability is for the court to make. The court has both the duty and the discretion to make that determination [Independent Assn. of Mailbox Center Owners, Inc. v. Superior Court (Mail Boxes Etc., USA, Inc.) (2005) 133 Cal. App.

4th 396, 412-413, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 659 ; see Parada v. Superior Ct. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1554, 1585-1587, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 743 ("No Consolidation" clause unconscionable, unenforceable, and, with another provision, unseverable)]. Independent Assn. of Mailbox Center Owners involved some agreements that were silent on the issues of consolidation and class wide arbitration and appointed the American Arbitration Association as arbitration administrator and other agreements that prohibited consolidation or classwide arbitration and appointed JAMS as arbitrator. AAA decided as an administrative matter not to consolidate the arbitrations. Whether the issue is decided by an arbitrator or the court, it should not be done as an administrative proceeding without at least referring the matter to an arbitrator [Independent Assn. of Mailbox Center Owners, Inc. v. Superior Court (Mail Boxes Etc., USA, Inc.) (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 396, 410-411, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 659] . Independent Assn. of Mailbox Center Owners most probably involved interstate commerce and would be governed by the Federal Arbitration Act [see [1A], below], but the issue was not before the court of appeal.

[1A] If Federal Arbitration Act Governs

If the matter is governed by the Federal Arbitration Act, and the arbitration agreements are silent on the issue of consolidation, even if the arbitration agreements contain a specific choice of California law, it is up to the arbitrator, not the court, to determine whether two or more arbitrations should be consolidated. The court determines only the validity of the arbitration clause and its applicability to the underlying dispute. Questions regarding the kind of arbitration proceeding the parties agreed to, which concern contract interpretation and arbitration procedures, are for the arbitrator, not the courts, to decide [Yuen v. Superior Court (Gemstar-TV Guide International, Inc.) (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1133, 1138, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 127 (agreements provided any dispute or action thereunder was to be governed by California law); see also [e], above].

[2] Designation of Arbitrator

If all of the applicable arbitration agreements name the same arbitrator, arbitration panel, or arbitration tribunal, the court ordering consolidated arbitration is required to order all matters to be heard before the arbitrator, panel, or tribunal agreed to by the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.3].

If the applicable arbitration agreements name separate arbitrators, panels, or tribunals, the court ordering consolidation is required to appoint an arbitrator in accord with the procedures set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6 unless all parties to the consolidated arbitration agree on a method of selection [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.3; for discussion of § 1281.6, see § 33.11 et seq.].

[3] Inconsistent Arbitration Agreements

If the arbitration agreements in consolidated proceedings contain inconsistent provisions, the court is required to resolve the conflicts and to determine the rights and duties of the various parties so as to achieve substantial justice under all the circumstances [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.3].

If the inconsistency is that one arbitration agreement provides for a single arbitrator and another provides for a three-arbitrator panel, the court must order arbitration before a three-arbitrator panel. The right to a three-arbitrator panel is a substantial contractual right. It minimizes the risks of factual or legal error, which are subject to only limited judicial review [Parker v. McCaw (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1494, 1505-1509, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 55 (vacating portion of award--rendered by single arbitrator in consolidated arbitrations--based on causes of action under agreement that provided for three-arbitrator panel)].

[4] Partial Consolidation

The court may, in its discretion, deny consolidation or consolidate separate proceedings only as to certain issues, leaving other issues to be resolved in separate proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.3].

[5] Effect of Consolidation

When separate arbitration hearings are consolidated for the purpose of resolving common factual issues, a party to only one of the arbitration agreements does not become a party to another agreement because of the consolidation. Therefore, language in an arbitration agreement precluding arbitration if another party is included without the consent of the contracting party does not preclude consolidation that is otherwise appropriate [Garden Grove Community Church v. Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel Co. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 251, 265-266, 191 Cal. Rptr. 15] .

§ 33.22 Restraint of Arbitration

A party to an arbitration agreement cannot obtain an injunction against arbitration unless grounds exist for resisting a petition to compel arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2 [California State Council of Carpenters v. Superior Court (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 144, 155, 89 Cal. Rptr. 625 ; see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.31 et seq.]. Thus, if the agreement requiring arbitration itself is illegal and subject to revocation, a party to it may seek injunctive relief [California State Council of Carpenters v. Superior Court (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 144, 156-159, 89 Cal. Rptr. 625] .

When a party has not submitted to arbitration and the arbitration agreement is not self executing, a court cannot grant an injunction restraining a party from improperly proceeding with arbitration [see Sauter v. Superior Court (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 25, 29, 82 Cal. Rptr. 395] . The party seeking arbitration must take affirmative steps to secure it by applying for judicial relief under the arbitration statutes [Sauter v. Superior Court (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 25, 29, 82 Cal. Rptr. 395] .

Where a contract containing an arbitration clause allows for court actions under the contract and provides for attorney's fees and costs to the prevailing party in an action on the contract, the prevailing party in an action based on an independent complaint for declaratory and injunctive relief that addresses only the issue of whether an arbitration must proceed may be entitled to an award of fees and costs under the applicable standards, regardless of who might become the prevailing party in any subsequent arbitration [Turner v. Schultz (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 974, 981-983, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 659 (defendant entitled to attorney's fees under Civ. Code § 1717, including on appeal); on costs and fees generally, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees]. Furthermore, it is proper for the court to make the award, rather than to defer to the arbitrator in any arbitration [Turner v. Schultz (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 974, 983, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 659 (denying declaration that arbitration should not proceed)]. If Civ. Code § 1717 applies, the prevailing party has to notice a motion for an award of costs and fees following judgment [Civ. Code § 1717; see, e.g., Turner v. Schultz (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 974, 978, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 659].

For forms of complaint for use by a party to an arbitration agreement to seek a declaratory judgment determining that a controversy, or certain issues thereof, is not subject to arbitration and seeking to enjoin pending arbitration of such controversy or issues, see §§ 33.74 and 33.75.

For procedures and forms for use in actions for injunctive relief generally, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

§ 33.23 Right to Counsel

[1] Representation at Any Proceeding or Hearing

A party to the arbitration has the right to be represented by an attorney at any proceeding or hearing in arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.4(a)].

[2] Waiver and Revocation of Waiver of Right to Counsel

A party who has waived the right to counsel may revoke that waiver. However, if a party revokes the waiver, the other party is entitled to a reasonable continuance for the purpose of procuring an attorney [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.4(a)].

[3] Representation by Attorney Who Is Not Admitted to Practice in California

[a] Certificate Required

An attorney admitted to the bar of a state other than California who represents a party in connection with, or in the course of, an arbitration in California must file a certificate in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.4(c) and have his or her appearance approved in writing, on that certificate, by the arbitrator(s) or the arbitral forum [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.4(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., 9.43(a) (defining out-of-state attorney arbitration counsel)].

The attorney must serve the certificate within a reasonable period of time after the attorney indicates an intention to appear in the arbitration on the arbitrator, arbitrators, or arbitral forum, the State Bar of California, and all other parties and counsel in the arbitration whose addresses are known to the attorney arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.4(c)]. The out-of-state attorney must pay a reasonable fee, not exceeding $50, to the State Bar of California with the copy of the certificate that is served on the State Bar [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.43(f)].

The certificate must state the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.4(c); Cal. State B. Rules, Out-of-State Arbitration Counsel Program, Rule 3.2.3]:

- The case name and number, and the name of the arbitrator, arbitrators, or arbitral forum assigned to the proceeding in which the attorney seeks to appear.

- The attorney's residence and office address.

- The courts before which the attorney has been admitted to practice and the dates of admission.

- That the attorney is currently a member in good standing of, and eligible to practice law before, the bar of those courts.

- That the attorney is not currently on suspension or disbarred from the practice of law before the bar of any court.

- That the attorney is not a resident of the State of California.

- That the attorney is not regularly employed in the State of California.

- That the attorney is not regularly engaged in substantial business, professional, or other activities in the State of California.

- That the attorney agrees to become familiar with and comply with the standards of conduct required of members of the State Bar of California and agrees to be subject to the jurisdiction of the courts of this state with respect to the law of California governing the conduct of attorneys to the same extent as a member of the State Bar of California.

- The title of the court and the cause in which the attorney has filed an application to appear as counsel pro hac vice in this state or filed a certificate pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.4 in the preceding two years, the date of each application or certificate, and whether or not it was granted. If the attorney has made repeated appearances, the certificate shall reflect the special circumstances that warrant the approval of the attorney's appearance in the arbitration.

- The name, address, and telephone number of the active member of the State Bar of California who is the attorney of record.

The arbitrator, arbitrators, or arbitral forum may approve the attorney's appearance if the certificate complies with Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.4(c). In the absence of special circumstances, repeated appearances are grounds for disapproval of the appearance and disqualification from serving as an attorney in the arbitration in which the certificate was filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.4(d)]. Within a reasonable period of time after the arbitrator, arbitrators, or arbitral forum approves the certificate, the attorney must file the certificate with the State Bar of California and serve the certificate as described in Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a on all parties and counsel in the arbitration whose address is known to the attorney [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.4(e)].

The certificate must be verified and contain proof of service by mail in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a on all parties and on the State Bar of California at the San Francisco office [Cal. State B. Rules, Out-of-State Arbitration Counsel Program, Rule 3.2.2].

Lawyers with questions about compliance with Section 1282.4 should write or call the State Bar of California Office of Certification (180 Howard Street, San Francisco, CA 94105; (415) 538-2100). The rules for the Out-of-State Arbitration Counsel Program are online at the State Bar website (http://www.calbar.org) at the Office of Certification.

[b] Purpose to Abrogate Birbower

Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.4, as amended by the Stats. 1998, ch. 915, § 1, was enacted in response to Birbrower, Montalbano, Condon & Frank v. Superior Court (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 119, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 304, 949 P.2d 1 , to provide a procedure by which nonresident attorneys who are not licensed in California to appear in California arbitration proceedings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.4(j)(1)].

Section 1284.2 is intended to reinstate the status quo as it existed prior to Birbower with respect to the power of a person to elect to be represented by any person in a nonjudicial arbitration proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.4(j)(3)].

[c] Sunset Clause

The version of Section 1284.2, which adds subsections (b)-(j) to abrogate Birbower [see [a], [b], above], is subject to a sunset clause under which it is repealed by its own terms on January 1, 2011 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.4(k)], at which time a version of the section that does not include those terms is reinstated [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.4(b), as amended by Stats. 2000, ch. 1011, §§ 2, 3, Stats. 2005, ch. 607, § 2, Stats. 2006, ch. 357, § 2].

§ 33.24 Issuance of Subpoenas

A subpoena requiring the attendance of witnesses, and a suppoena duces tecum for the production of books, records, documents, and other evidence, must be issued as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.6 when attendance or production is sought at an arbitration proceeding or at a deposition under Code Civ. Proc. § 1283 (depositions for use as evidence), and if Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.05 (depositions for use in discovery) is applicable, for the purposes of discovery. In addition, the neutral arbitrator on his or her own determination may issue subpoenas for the attendance of witnesses and subpoenas duces tecum for the production of books, records, documents, and other evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.6(a)].

Subpoenas are to be issued, as a matter of course, signed but otherwise in blank, to the party requesting them, by a neutral association, organization, governmental agency, or office if the arbitration agreement provides for administration of the arbitration proceedings by, or under the rules of, a neutral association, organization, governmental agency or office, or by the neutral arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.6(b)]. The party serving the subpoena must fill it in before service. Service and enforcement of the subpoena is to be in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985-1997 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.6(c); for discussion and forms concerning service and enforcement, see Ch. 535, Subpoena].

[1] Availability of Discovery

[a] Right to Conduct Discovery

The availability of depositions and other forms of discovery in arbitration proceedings is set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.05, which is discussed in [b] and [c], below. Whether the provisions of Section 1283.05 apply in any given arbitration proceeding is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.1.

Under Section 1283.1, all of the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.05 are conclusively deemed to be incorporated into and to be made a part of, and are applicable to, every agreement to arbitrate any dispute, controversy, or issue arising out of or resulting from any injury to, or death of, a person caused by the wrongful act or neglect of another [Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.1(a)].

With respect to any other arbitration agreement, the Section 1283.05 provisions do not apply unless the parties by their agreement so provide [Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.1(b)].

[b] Scope of Available Discovery

[i] Under the Statute

After the appointment of the arbitrator or arbitrators, the parties to the arbitration have the right to take depositions and to obtain discovery regarding the subject matter of the arbitration, and, to that end, to use and exercise all of the same rights, remedies, and procedures, and be subject to all of the same duties, liabilities, and obligations in the arbitration with respect to the subject matter thereof as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985-1997 (governing subpoenas), and Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2016.010-2036.050, governing depositions and discovery), as if the subject matter of the arbitration were pending in a civil action before a superior court, in a civil action other than a limited civil case, subject to the limitations as to depositions set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.05(e) (see [2], below) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.05(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 85 et seq. (defining "limited civil case")].

For discussion and forms dealing with depositions and discovery, see Ch. 190- 200, Discovery .

[ii] Agreed Limitation on Discovery

Parties may agree to something less than the full panoply of discovery permitted under the California Arbitration Act, Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.05 [Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Services, Inc. (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 83, 105-106, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745, 6 P.3d 669] . Limitations on discovery contained in arbitration agreements are generally enforceable so long as they entitle the parties to discovery sufficient to adequately arbitrate their claims, including access to essential documents and witnesses, as determined by the arbitrator [Dotson v. Amgen, Inc. (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 975, 984, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 341 (discovery limitation not unconscionable); Roman v. Superior Court (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 1462, 1468-1469, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 153 (restriction on discovery under rules of American Arbitration Association not unconscionable)]. In challenges to clauses of arbitration agreements limiting discovery [see, generally, Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.21[3]], the courts assume that the arbitrator will operate in a reasonable manner in conformity with the law [Dotson v. Amgen, Inc. (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 975, 984, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 341] .

[c] Enforcement of Discovery Rights

[i] Authority of Arbitrators

The arbitrator or arbitrators themselves have the power, in addition to the power of determining the merits of the arbitration, to enforce the rights, remedies, procedures, duties, liabilities, and obligations of discovery by the imposition of the same terms, conditions, consequences, liabilities, sanctions, and penalties as can be or may be imposed in like circumstances in a civil action by a superior court under the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, except the power to order the arrest or imprisonment of a person [Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.05(b)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.05(b) gives an arbitrator the power, but not the duty, to impose discovery sanctions. Thus, it is not in excess of an arbitrator's power so as to require vacating an award for an arbitrator to order that a resisting party respond to requests for admission without objection instead of deeming the unanswered requests to have been admitted as would have been required in a court under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2033.280, 2033.290 [Alexander v. Blue Cross of California (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 1082, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 431] .

The arbitrator or arbitrators may consider, determine, and make orders imposing those terms, conditions, consequences, liabilities, sanctions, and penalties, whenever necessary or appropriate at any time or stage in the course of the arbitration, and the orders shall be as conclusive, final, and enforceable as an arbitration award on the merits, if the making of the order that is equivalent to an award or correction of an award is subject to the same conditions, if any, as are applicable to the making of an award or correction of an award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.05(c)].

The arbitrator even has the power to hear and determine discovery matters involving nonparties, for example a challenge by a nonparty to a subpoena issued by a party for documents. The matter is to be heard and determined first by the arbitrator, but the nonparty has the right to full judicial review of the arbitrator's discovery order. If the court determines that the arbitrator erred, the court's determination supersedes that of the arbitrator [Berglund v. Arthroscopic Laser & Surgery Center of San Diego, LP (2008) 44Cal. 4th 528, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 370, 187 P.3d 86, 2008 Cal. LEXIS 8801].

[ii] "Party" Includes Affiliate

For the purpose of enforcing the duty to make discovery, to produce evidence or information, including books and records, and to produce persons to testify at a deposition or at a hearing, and to impose terms, conditions, consequences, liabilities, sanctions, and penalties on a party for violation of any such duty, a party is deemed to include every affiliate of the party [Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.05(d)].

An affiliate, for this purpose, is defined as any party or person for whose immediate benefit the action or proceeding is prosecuted or defended, or an officer, director, superintendent, member, agent, employee, or managing agent of such a party or person [Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.05(d)].

Also, the personnel of every affiliate shall be deemed to be the officers, directors, managing agents, agents, and employees of the party to the same degree that each of them bears that status to the affiliate. Similarly, the files, books, and records of every affiliate shall be deemed to be in the possession and control of, and capable of production by, the party [Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.05(d)].

[2] Depositions

[a] Deposition as Discovery

Depositions for discovery may not be taken unless leave to do so is first granted by the arbitrator or arbitrators [Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.05(e)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Agreeing to Depositions. Most depositions are agreed to by the parties without the involvement of the arbitrators and the expense of obtaining the approval of the arbitrator. By Michael S. Fields

[b] Deposition as Evidence

A party to the arbitration may apply to the neutral arbitrator for an order that a witness' deposition be taken for use as evidence. The arbitrator may grant the order if the witness cannot be compelled to attend the hearing, or if such exceptional circumstances exist as to make it desirable, in the interest of justice and with due regard to the importance of presenting the testimony of witnesses orally at the hearing, to allow a deposition to be taken. This deposition may not be used for discovery [Code Civ. Proc. § 1283].

The deposition is taken in the manner prescribed by law for the taking of depositions in civil actions. If the neutral arbitrator orders the taking of the deposition of a witness who resides outside the state, the party who applied for the taking of the deposition is required to obtain a commission therefor from the superior court in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2024-2028 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1283 (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2024-2028 repealed; now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2026, 2027 (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2026.010, 2027.010, effective July 1, 2005); for procedure and forms dealing with depositions, see Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions].

[3] Discovery in Uninsured Motorist Arbitration

Discovery in uninsured motorist arbitration is governed by Ins. Code § 11580.2(f), which adopts the entire California Civil Discovery Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 2016 et seq. (Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.010 et seq., effective July 1, 2005)] and grants jurisdiction to the court (rather than the arbitrator) to hear and determine discovery motions, including sanctions. Thus, the superior court has jurisdiction to dismiss uninsured motorist arbitration for the insured's refusal to authorize release of medical records in accordance with a previous order [Miranda v. 21st Century Ins. Co. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 913, 926, 928-929, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 159] . One rationale for having the court rather than the arbitrator determine motions with respect to uninsured motorist discovery is that discovery in uninsured motorist matters may take place any time after the accident, including before an arbitrator is appointed [Miranda v. 21st Century Ins. Co. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 913, 923, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 159 ; see Ins. Code § 11580.2(f)]. Discovery motions relating to uninsured motorist claims may be heard in the superior court in and for any county that is a proper county for the filing of a suit for bodily injury arising out of the accident, against the uninsured motorist, or any county specified in the policy or an endorsement thereto as a proper county for arbitration or action thereon [Ins. Code § 11580.2(f)(1); Miranda v. 21st Century Ins. Co. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 913, 921, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 159] .

§ 33.26 Informal Nature of Hearing

The essence of arbitration is its freedom from the formality of ordinary judicial procedure. When the parties have adopted arbitration, they must be content with its informalities. They may not hedge it about with those procedural limitations which it is precisely its purpose to avoid [Sapp v. Barenfeld (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 515, 520-521, 212 P.2d 233] . All relevant evidence may be freely admitted and rules of judicial procedure need not be observed so long as the hearing is fairly conducted. The hearing may be conducted in the nature of an informal conference rather than a judicial trial [Sapp v. Barenfeld (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 515, 520, 212 P.2d 233] .

§ 33.27 Rules Applicable to Conduct of Hearing

[1] Statutory Rules Apply Unless Parties Agree Otherwise

Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2 provides rules that govern the conduct of the arbitration hearing, unless the arbitration agreement otherwise provides or unless the parties to the arbitration otherwise provide by an agreement that is not contrary to the arbitration agreement as made or as modified by all the parties thereto. Those rules are discussed in [2] et seq., below.

[2] Arbitrator May Hear Case Through Motions Rather Than Trial

The arbitrator's obligation to hear evidence does not mean that the evidence must be orally presented or that live testimony and an opportunity for cross examination is required. An arbitrator hears evidence by affording an opportunity to present one's side of a case, which includes considering a motion presented by counsel [Schlessinger v. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1096, 1105, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 650 (construing "to hear evidence" in Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(5), which is discussed in Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review, § 34.19[1])].

To require a full-blown trial when a case may be disposed of on a motion would defeat the objective of arbitration to provide speedy resolution of a dispute. Thus, an arbitrator may use the arbitral equivalent of summary judgment or summary adjudication motions, motions in limine, motions to dismiss for failure to state a claim, and motions for nonsuit or directed verdict [Schlessinger v. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1096, 1105-1106, 1106 n.12, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 650 (holding arbitrator had authority to hear motions for summary adjudication)].

The arbitrator's authority under Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(c), discussed in [6], below, to rule on hearing procedure, supports the use of motion practice. The scope of the arbitrator's powers under the arbitration agreement must also be considered in determining his or her power to hear motions [Schlessinger v. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1096, 1106-1107, 1106 n.12, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 650 (holding that arbitrator had power under statutory scheme, but also that if that were not true, the arbitration agreement, which incorporated AAA Commercial Arbitration Rules, also supported that power)].

[3] Time and Place of Hearing

[a] Arbitrator Sets Time and Place

The neutral arbitrator appoints a time and place for the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(1)].

If the aggregate amount in controversy exceeds $50,000 and the arbitrator is so informed by any party in writing by personalservice or registered or certified mail, prior to designating a time and place of hearing pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(1), the neutral arbitrator by the means prescribed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(1) must appoint the time and place for hearing not less than 60 days before the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2) (also providing requirements pertaining to lists of witnesses and documents, see [4], below)]. This requirement does not apply to matters arising out of collective-bargaining agreements, those described in Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.05 (depositions and discovery in arbitration proceedings), actions involving personal injury or death, or as provided in the parties' agreement to arbitrate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2)].

[b] Notice to Parties and Arbitrators

The neutral arbitrator causes notice of the time and place of the hearing to be served personally or by registered or certified mail on the parties to the arbitration and on the other arbitrators not less than seven days before the hearing. Appearance at the hearing waives the right to notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(1)]. For a form of notice for use by the neutral arbitrator in notifying the parties of the time and place appointed for the hearing, see § 33.70.

[4] Demand for Lists of Documents and Witnesses

[a] Applicable Cases

If the aggregate amount in controversy exceeds $50,000 and the arbitrator is so informed by any party in writing by personal service or registered or certified mail, prior to designating a time and place of hearing pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(1), the parties must comply with rules pertaining to service of lists of witnesses and documents, as set forth below [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2)].

This requirement does not apply to matters arising out of collective-bargaining agreements, those described in Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.05 (depositions and discovery in arbitration proceedings), actions involving personal injury or death, or as provided in the parties' agreement to arbitrate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2)].

For a form for use by a party to arbitration in demanding from the other party a list of witnesses the other party intends to call at the hearing and a list of documents the other party intends to introduce, see § 33.71.

[b] Time for Demand

Either party, within 15 days of receipt of the notice of hearing, has the right to demand in writing, served personally or by registered or certified mail, that the other party provide a list of witnesses it intends to call, designating which witnesses will be called as expert witnesses and a list of documents it intends to introduce at the hearing, provided that the demanding party provides these lists at the time of its demand [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2)(A)].

A copy of the demand and the demanding party's lists must be served on the arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2)(A)].

[c] Manner of Service of Lists

The lists must be served personally or by registered or certified mail on the requesting party 15 days after the request was made. Copies of the lists must be served on the arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2)(B)].

[d] Inspection and Copying of Documents

Listed documents must be made available for inspection and copying at reasonable times prior to the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2)(C)].

[e] Waiver of Time Limits

Time limits provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2 may be waived by mutual agreement of the parties if approved by the arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2)(D)].

[f] Failure to List Witness or Document

The failure to list a witness or a document must not bar the testimony of an unlisted witness or the introduction of an undesignated document at the hearing, provided that good cause for omission from the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2)(A) is shown, as determined by the arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2)(E)].

[g] Administration and Enforcement

The authority of the arbitrator to administer and enforce Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a) is as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.05(b)-(e) (manner of taking depositions) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2)(F)].

[5] Adjournment

On request of a party to the arbitration for good cause, or on his own determination, the neutral arbitrator may postpone the hearing to a time not later than the date fixed by the agreement for making the award or, with the parties' consent, to a later date [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(b)].

[6] Evidentiary Rulings

The neutral arbitrator presides at the hearing, rules on the admission and exclusion of evidence and on questions of hearing procedure, and exercises all powers relating to the conduct of the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(c)].

[7] Testimony, Right to Present Evidence, and Cross Examination of Witnesses

The parties to the arbitration are entitled to be heard, to present evidence, and to cross examine witnesses appearing at the hearing, but rules of evidence and rules of judicial procedure need not be observed. On request of any party to the arbitration, the testimony of witnesses is given under oath [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(d); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.8 (power of arbitrator to administer oaths)].

The provision allowing cross examination does not give the parties an absolute right to present oral testimony in every case, but merely means that if witnesses appear at a hearing a party has a right to cross examine. Thus, this right does not preclude the arbitrator from disposing of the matter without a hearing involving live testimony [Schlessinger v. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1096, 1106, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 650 ; for discussion, see [2], above].

[8] Proceedings May Be Heard Despite Party's Failure to Appear

If a court has ordered a person to arbitrate a controversy, the arbitrators may hear and determine the controversy on the evidence produced even if a party ordered to arbitrate, who has been duly notified, fails to appear [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(e)].

[9] Effect of Arbitrator's Failure to Participate

If an arbitrator, who has been duly notified, for any reason fails to participate in the arbitration, the arbitration continues but only the remaining neutral arbitrator or neutral arbitrators may make the award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(f)].

§ 33.28 Award

[1] Form and Content

The award is required to be in writing and signed by the arbitrators concurring therein. It is also required to include a determination of all the questions submitted to the arbitrators the decision of which is necessary in order to determine the controversy [Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.4; see also East San Bernardino County Water Dist. v. City of San Bernardino (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 942, 953-954, 109 Cal. Rptr. 510] .

The arbitrators are not required to find facts and give reasons for their awards [Sapp v. Barenfeld (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 515, 522-523, 212 P.2d 233 ; Severtson v. Williams Construction Co. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 86, 92, 220 Cal. Rptr. 400 ; Shammas v. National Telefilm Associates (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 1050, 1056, 90 Cal. Rptr. 119] . The award is valid if it serves to settle the entire controversy. A decision that one of the parties should pay the other a sum of money is sufficiently determinative of all items embraced in the submission [Sapp v. Barenfeld (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 515, 522-523, 212 P.2d 233] .

A party contending that an award is not complete under Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.4 must apply to correct or vacate the award. If the party does not apply within the time period allowed for it, ordinarily the issue may not thereafter be raised [Retail Clerks Union v. Food Employers Council, Inc. (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 286, 290, 149 Cal. Rptr. 428] .

For a form for use by arbitrators in making an award, see § 33.72. For discussion of the powers of an arbitrator generally, see § 33.20.

[1A] Partial Final Award

In some circumstances, it may be appropriate for an arbitrator to issue a partial final award and to reserve jurisdiction over other issues [see Roehl v. Ritchie (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 338, 351-352, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 185 (trust administration); Hightower v. Superior Court (O'Dowd) (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1415, 1419-1420, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 209 (involving shareholder buy-out)]. As long as the arbitrator has not improperly left undecided issues "necessary in order to determine the controversy," a partial final award meets the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.4 [Roehl v. Ritchie (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 338, 351, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 185 ; Hightower v. Superior Court (O'Dowd) (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1415, 1439, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 209] . The partial final award may be confirmed and an interlocutory judgment entered thereon. Thus, the party who is unsatisfied with the partial final award will be able to seek judicial review by way of extraordinary writ [Hightower v. Superior Court (O'Dowd) (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1415, 1440, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 209] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Partial Final Award Is Proper. D and H each owned 50% of the stock of a corporation. Their shareholders agreement provided for arbitration of any disputes arising under it and procedures by which either could buy out the other's shares. D obtained financing and offered to by buy H's shares. H set out to obtain financing to purchase D's shares. Employees and officers of the company wrote to the entities from which H was seeking financing and told them they would resign if H acquired D's interests. H demanded arbitration of claims against D including interference with contract and breach of fiduciary duties by inciting the officers' and employees' actions. The arbitrator ruled in favor of D and found that D was legally entitled to complete the purchase of H's shares on September 24, 1998. However, the award was not entered until April 25, 2000, and by then D's financing had expired, so the arbitrator designated the award a "partial final award" which gave D six months from the date of confirmation of the award to obtain financing and complete the purchase, and the arbitrator reserved jurisdiction to determine specific additional issues, such as the amount to be awarded to D for additional costs incurred to obtain new financing. Was this partial final award proper? Yes, under Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. v. Intel Corp. (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 362, 374-375, 381, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 581, 885 P.2d 994 , an arbitrator is empowered to fashion appropriate relief, which in this case meant a remedy that would give D the benefit of his bargain. The particular terms of the shareholder agreement implied the parties' consent to the remedy provided by the arbitrator [Hightower v. Superior Court (O'Dowd) (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1415, 1419-1420, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 209] .

[2] Award Based on Information Not Obtained at Hearing

If a neutral arbitrator intends to base an award on information not obtained at the hearing, he or she is required to disclose that information to all parties to the arbitration and give the parties an opportunity to meet it [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(g); cf. A.M. Classic Const. v. Tri-Build Dev. Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1470, 1475-1477, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449 (discussed in [6], below, after ex parte communication and without informing other party, arbitrator amended award, based on information already in the record, to add previously omitted finding)].

[3] Time

The arbitrator must make the award within the time stated in the agreement, or, if the agreement does not fix a time, within the time ordered by the court on petition of a party to the arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.8]. Rendition of the award within the time specified in the submission agreement is mandatory and jurisdictional [Librascope Inc. v. Precision Lodge No. 1600, Internat. Assn. of Machinists (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 71 ; Rusnak v. General Controls Co. (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 583, 584, 7 Cal. Rptr. 71] .

The parties may, however, extend the time either before or after it expires. A party waives the objection that an award was not made within the time required unless he or she gives the arbitrators written notice of the objection prior to the service of a signed copy of the award on him or her [Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.8]. Waiver of the time limitation validates the award made after expiration of the specific time [Librascope Inc. v. Precision Lodge No. 1600, Internat. Assn. of Machinists (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 71, 75].

An award based on an accepted "998" offer must be rendered by the arbitrator or arbitrators promptly after the offer, with proof of acceptance, is filed with the arbitrator or arbitrators [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)(1)].

[4] Service

The neutral arbitrator is required to serve a signed copy of the award on each party to the arbitration personally or by registered or certified mail or as provided in the agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.6].

PRACTICE TIP:

When Is Service by Mail Complete? Many contracts provide that all notices and communications shall be sent by regular mail. Unfortunately, the arbitration statutes do not state when service of the award takes place. Although the statutes do incorporate general provisions on service of papers with respect to the service of a response [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.8; (incorporating Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 et seq. for that purpose)], they do not generally incorporate those rules for other papers served in arbitration proceedings. The question is therefore open whether service is complete on the day mailed or on the day actually received. Also, because the general provisions are not incorporated, the Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 five-day extension for service by mail does not appear to apply.

The timing of the service of the award is important when calculating the timing of an application for correction of the award, and an ambiguity arises because the actual date of receipt or the date of mailing may be the calculating date for determination of the 30-day time frame for amending or correcting an award [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1284; for discussion, see [5][b], below]. Because of this ambiguity, counsel may wish to calculate the shortest possible date and include it in any application for correction of an award, to draw the arbitrator's attention to the earliest date on which the arbitrator may be argued to lose jurisdiction to correct the award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1284. By Michael S. Fields

[5] Correction of Award by Arbitrators

[a] Grounds

The arbitrators, on written application of a party to the arbitration, may correct the award on any of the grounds set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.6(a) and (c) not later than 30 days after service of a signed copy of the award on the applicant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1284].

The grounds for correction are:

- An evident miscalculation of figures or an evident mistake in the description of any person, thing, or property referred to in the award [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1284, 1286.6(a)]; or

- Imperfection in a matter of form, not affecting the merits of the controversy [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1284, 1286.6(c)].

To be evident, a miscalculation must appear on the face of the award or be so readily apparent from the documentation in the case that explanation by proofs is not necessary. The arbitrator cannot correct mistakes of fact, because the statute does not provide for such corrections [Severtson v. Williams Construction Co. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 86, 94, 220 Cal. Rptr. 400] .

Arbitrators do not have power under Code Civ. Proc. § 1284 to substantively revise an award, for example, by adding an element of damages [Banks v. Milwaukee Ins. Co. (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 34, 37, 55 Cal. Rptr. 139] , or by striking an element of damages [Landis v. Pinkertons, Inc. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 985, 992, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 890 (striking damages for emotional distress amounted to correction for error of law, which arbitrator did not have power to make)].

However, it has been held that arbitrators can correct an omission of information required by statute [Schneider v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1311, 1317 n.3, 264 Cal. Rptr. 227 (correction of award to set total value of award as required by Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146(b) for an award of periodic payments in a medical malpractice action for purposes of calculating the attorney's contingent fee; overruled on other grounds in Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 27, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899)].

[b] Application

An application for correction must be made not later than 10 days after service of a signed copy of the award on the applicant. On or before making the application, the applicant must deliver or mail a copy of it to all of the other parties to the arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1284; for discussion of service, see [4], above].

For a form of application for use by a party to arbitration to seek correction of the award by the arbitrator, see § 33.73.

[c] Objection

Any party to the arbitration may make a written objection to the application not later than 10 days after the application is delivered or mailed to the objector. On or before making the objection, the objector must deliver or mail a copy of it to the applicant and all other parties to the arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1284].

[d] Denial or Correction

The arbitrators will either deny the application or correct the award. The denial of the application or the correction of the award must be made in writing and signed by the arbitrators concurring in it, and the neutral arbitrator is required to serve a signed copy of such denial or correction on each party to the arbitration personally, or by registered or certified mail, or as provided in the agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1284].

The application for correction is deemed denied if no denial of the application or correction of the award is served within the 30-day period after the service of the original award on the applicant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1284; Landis v. Pinkertons, Inc. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 985, 990, 993, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 890 ; for discussion of service, see [4], above].

[6] Amendment of Award by Arbitrator on Own Initiative

Although no statute grants an arbitrator the authority to amend an award, no statute prohibits it and thus, several cases have held that an arbitrator has the power to issue an amended award to address an issue omitted from the original award through the arbitrator's own mistake, inadvertence, or excusable neglect if the amendment:

- Is requested and acted on within the time allowed for correction of the award by either statute or controlling rules appliable to the arbitration for made before judicial confirmation of the original award [Century City Medical Plaza v. Sperling, Isaacs & Eisenberg (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 865, 881, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 605 ; but see Delaney v. Dahl (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 647, 659-660, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 663 (finding this requirement unnecessary as long as amendment is made before confirmation of award)];

- Is made prior to confirmation of the original award [Law Offices of David S. Karton v. Segreto (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1, 10 n.14, 97 CR3d 329 ; Delaney v. Dahl (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 647, 659-660, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 663 ; Century City Medical Plaza v. Sperling, Isaacs & Eisenberg (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 865, 867, 881-883, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 605 ; A.M. Classic Const. v. Tri-Build Dev. Co.

- Does not alter the merits and is not inconsistent with other findings on the merits of the controversy [Delaney v. Dahl (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 647, 658, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 663 ; Century City Medical Plaza v. Sperling, Isaacs & Eisenberg (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 865, 867, 881-883, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 605 ; A.M. Classic Const. v. Tri-Build Dev. Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1470, 1476-1478, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449] ; and

- Does not cause demonstrable prejudice to the legitimate interest of any party [Delaney v. Dahl (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 647, 658, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 663 ; Century City Medical Plaza v. Sperling, Isaacs & Eisenberg (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 865, 867, 881-883 Cal. Rptr. 2d 609; A.M. Classic Const. v. Tri-Build Dev. Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1470, 1476-1478, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449] .

Delaney involved addition of a party's name to the award as not having prevailed on and taking nothing by way of a cross-claim. Although that party urged the court to impose the additional requirement that there be admissible evidence of the arbitrator's intent in making the amendment, the court refused to do so noting that the arbitrator had explained the reason for the amendment in the amended award itself [Delaney v. Dahl (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 647, 653, 660, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 663] .

Century City Medical Plaza involved a landlord-tenant dispute arbitrated pursuant to a stipulation that provided the arbitrator could award interest, attorney's fees, and costs to the prevailing party if authorized by the contract or the parties' statutory rights. The original award was in favor of the landlord, but did not award attorney's fees, interest, or costs. A second award did provide for these items. The trial court confirmed the original award and vacated the second award. What was required, the court of appeal said, was for the trial court to hold an evidentiary hearing and to confirm the second award if the evidence established that the arbitrator's failure to include an award of attorney's fees, costs, and interest in the original award was due to an inadvertent omission and that each of the conditions described above had been met [Century City Medical Plaza v. Sperling, Isaacs & Eisenberg (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 865, 881-883, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 605] .

A.M. Classic Const. involved a suit by a subcontractor against the contractor and the school district for which the building was built. All parties stipulated to arbitration. The arbitrator issued an award against the contractor and in favor of the subcontractor, which was sent to all parties. Before any party had moved to confirm the award, subcontractor's counsel wrote a letter to the arbitrator and pointed out that the award failed to make any finding as to the stop notice cause of action against the school district, which was the only way the subcontractor could collect from the school district, and that the proposed judgments submitted by all parties included findings on the stop notice cause of action. Four days later, subcontractor's counsel called the arbitrator, who acknowledged the mistake, and receipt of the letter, and stated that he would make an amended award in a few days. In determining whether the amended award was proper, the court of appeal noted the following:

- All the information the arbitrator needed to make the award on the stop notice cause of action was already available in the record and in the arbitrator's notes [A.M. Classic Const. v. Tri-Build Dev. Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1470, 1475, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449] ;

- Although the arbitrator should have informed the other parties of the ex parte communication and of the fact that he was going to amend the award, because there was no showing that the arbitrator considered evidence outside the original record [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(g) (discussed at [2], above)], there was no fraud, corruption, undue influence, or misconduct of the arbitrator so as to require vacating the amended award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a), (1)-(3) [A.M. Classic Const. v. Tri-Build Dev. Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1470, 1476, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449] ;

- This was not a situation that came within the scope of Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.6(a) or (c), relating to correction of awards, because the mistake was more than a miscalculation or a mistake as to form [A.M. Classic Const. v. Tri-Build Dev. Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1470, 1476, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449] ;

- Older cases holding that an incomplete award is a nullity and must be vacated and the entire matter re-arbitrated were to be disregarded as inconsistent with the current California Arbitration Act and the views expressed in Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 12, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P. 2d 899 ; that to discard all the time and money spent on the first arbitration or to deny arbitrators the power to complete their tasks would be irrational and elevate form over substance [A.M. Classic Const. v. Tri-Build Dev. Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1470, 1476-1478, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449] ; and

- That the opinion should not be read to condone the ex parte communications by A.M. Classic's counsel, which were inappropriate and under other circumstances might require vacation of the award [A.M. Classic Const. v. Tri-Build Dev. Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1470, 1478, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449] .

[7] Review of Award by Second Arbitrator

If it is truly bilateral, a provision for review by a second arbitrator is enforceable [Cummings v. Future Nissan (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 321, 330-331, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 10 ; see Finley v. Saturn of Roseville (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 1253, 1255, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 561 (trial court's confirmation of arbitration award on ground of untimeliness reversed and returned to trial court to vacate order and reverse arbitration award on ground of lack of jurisdiction arising from parties' agreement to submit issues for review to second arbitrator)]. Once a court orders arbitration, there is no need for a further petition to compel review by a second arbitrator. Any question of waiver of the right to review by the second arbitrator, for instance, as untimely, is for the second arbitrator to decide. The court has no jurisdiction to order, nor to determine grounds for denial of an order, review by the second arbitrator [see Finley v. Saturn of Roseville (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 1253, 1258-1260, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 561 (reversing confirmation of award and returning to trial court with instructions to vacate order denying review by second arbitration on ground of waiver and to deny on ground of lack of jurisdiction)].

The point of a second-level review by a second arbitrator is usually to do what a trial court or appellate court could not do: review the award for errors of law. This contractual review for errors of law is not prohibited by the statutory standards for vacating an award [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2]; Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 25, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899 (discussed at Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review, §§ 34.10[2], 34.19[1][b]). There is nothing unconscionable about such a review [Cummings v. Future Nissan (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 321, 330-331, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 10 (second arbitrator to review "proceeding according to the law and procedures applicable to appellate review by the California Court of Appeal of a civil judgment following a court trial")]. In Cummings, the second arbitrator reversed an initial award for plaintiff employee, based in an error of law, finding that the that practice of fraudulently overstating vehicle values in loan applications did not rise to the level of general public importance such that damages would be available for dismissal in retaliation for plaintiff's reporting them. Defendant/employer bore the costs of the review and it was completed within a reasonable time [Cummings v. Future Nissan (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 321, 330, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 10] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

4-33 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 33.29

AUTHOR: Michael S. Fields Editorial Consultant

§ 33.29 Expenses, Costs, and Fees

[1] Expenses, Costs, and Fees Other Than Attorney's Fees

[a] General Rule Requires Pro Rata Payment of Approved Costs

Each party to the arbitration pays his or her pro rata share of the expenses and fees of the neutral arbitrator, together with other expenses of the arbitration incurred or approved by the neutral arbitrator, not including counsel fees or witness fees or other expenses incurred by a party for his or her own benefit [Code Civ. Proc. § 1284.2].

In a proceeding to confirm an award, the usual rules on costs apply to the judicial proceedings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1293.2; Austin v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1812, 1815-1816, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 56]. Thus, if there is no agreement to the contrary, so that Section 1284.2 requires each party to pay the arbitration expenses pro rata, the confirming court cannot award the costs of arbitration as an award of costs to the prevailing party [see Austin v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1812, 1815-1816, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 56 (uninsured motorist claim arbitration; fee for filing petition to confirm award as only cost recoverable); cf. Cobler v. Stanley, Barber, Southard, Brown & Associates (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 518, 530-533, 265 Cal. Rptr. 868 (stating that cost provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1032 et seq. applies to judgment on order confirming award, but actually affirming arbitrator's award regarding compensation without indicating whether or not contract allowed award); see Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review, § 34.54].

[b] Exceptions to the Rule Generally

Grounds for exception to the rule that each party pays a pro rata share of costs approved by the neutral arbitrator apply under the following circumstances:

- A statute provides for award of court costs [see § 33.29[1][c] below].

- The arbitration agreement otherwise provides or the parties to the arbitration otherwise agree [Code Civ. Proc. § 1284.2].

- The arbitration is a consumer arbitration [see § 33.29[1A] below].

- The arbitrator's award is more favorable to the offering party than a settlement offer subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 998 that the other party rejected [see § 33.29[2] below].

Counsel seeking authorized arbitral costs should file a memorandum of costs. For discussion of memorandum of costs, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.28. For forms of memorandum of costs and motions to strike memorandum of costs, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.240 et seq. For a form of arbitrator's award including award of arbitral costs, see § 33.72.

[c] Exception for Statutory Authorization of Award of Court Costs

When parties agree to arbitrate claims under a consumer protective statute that has as an integral part a provision allowing prevailing plaintiffs to recover costs and attorneys fees, Code Civ. Proc. § 1284.2 will be viewed as a default provision, and costs will be awarded under the particular statute [Broughton v. Cigna Healthplans of California (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1066, 1086-1087, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334, 988 P.2d 67 (claim for damages under the Consumer Legal Remedies Act, Civ. Code § 1750 et seq., Civ. Code § 1780(d), of which mandates an award of costs and attorney's fees for a prevailing plaintiff)].

[d] Exception for Agreement Providing Other Cost-Allocation Rule

[i] Agreement May Generally Allocate Costs by Different Rule

A contract or arbitration agreement that authorizes an award of costs in a judicial action is broad enough to include the award of arbitration costs by an arbitrator [Tate v. Saratoga Savings & Loan Assn. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 843, 856-857, 265 Cal. Rptr. 440]. The different rule prescribed by a contract or agreement may be contained in formal arbitration rules that the contract or agreement makes applicable to the conduct of the arbitration [Gravillis v. Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage Co. (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 503, 520, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 70 ; see, e.g., Independent Assn. of Mailbox Center Owners, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 133 Cal. App.4th 396, 416-417, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 659].

[ii] Exception to the Exception for Statutory Claims

The Supreme Court ruled in Armendariz [Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 83, 101-112, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745, 6 P.3d 669 ; for full discussion of Armendariz, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.22[2]] that if an employee or former employee is seeking to vindicate an unwaivable statutory right, the employee cannot be required, despite contrary language in the arbitration agreement or the arbitration process, to bear any of the arbitral fees or costs [accord, Jones v. Humanscale Corp. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 401, 411-412, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 881 (requiring trial court on remand to correct award by amending it to require employer to pay all arbitral costs and fees)].

The court of appeals has expanded the use of this rule in the context of nonemployment unwaivable statutory rights [D.C. v. Harvard-Westlake Sch. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 836, 863, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 300], suggesting that it "should apply to the enforcement of rights under any statute enacted 'for a public reason' " [Mercuro v. Superior Court (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 167, 180, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671]. Accordingly, statutory claims, for the cost of the arbitration of which the rightholder cannot be required by agreement to pay, include those for hate crimes under Ralph Civil Rights Act, Civ. Code § 51.7, or Tom Bane Civil Rights Act, Civ. Code § 52.1 [D.C. v. Harvard-Westlake Sch. (2009) 176

Cal. App. 4th 836, 865-866, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 300]; violations of California Franchise Investment Law, Corp. Code § 31000 et seq., the Cartwright Act, Bus. & Prof. Code § 16700 et seq., the Uniform Trade Secrets Act, Civ. Code § 3426 et seq., and the Unfair Competition Law, Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. [Independent Assn. of Mailbox Center Owners, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 396, 402, 417, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 659]; and violations of the California Vehicle Leasing Act, Civ. Code § 2985.7 et seq., and the California Consumers Legal Remedies Act, Civ. Code § 1750 et seq. [Gutierrez v. Autowest, Inc. (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 77, 100-101, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 267].

However, the courts of appeal split on how the rule is to be applied in these other areas. The Fourth District, Division One in Independent [Independent Assn. of Mailbox Center Owners, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 396, 416-417, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 659] and the First District, Division Five in Gutierrez [Gutierrez v. Autowest, Inc. (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 77, 100, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 267] adopted a case-by-case approach in determining whether the claims under the respective statutes warranted disregarding the contractual allocation of arbitral costs. The Second District, Division One rejected this approach in D.C. on the grounds that Armendariz rejected it in favor of a categorical rule barring imposition of arbitral costs on a statutory claimant [D.C. v. Harvard-Westlake Sch. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 836, 863, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 300]. The Second District, Division One distinguished Independent and Gutierrez on the basis that in those cases, the applicable formal arbitration rules provided claimants protection from adverse awards of unaffordable or inappropriate arbitral costs [D.C. v. Harvard-Westlake Sch. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 836, 862-863, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 300]. In contrast, the applicable rules in D.C. required pro rata allocation of arbitral costs, thus warranting application of the categorical bar of the award of arbitral costs [D.C. v. Harvard-Westlake Sch. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 836, 863, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 300].

[e] Exception for Clauses Generating Unconscionable Costs

Clauses of arbitration agreements other than any cost allocation clause that generate arbitration costs in excess of reasonable expectations may be unconscionable and unenforceable [Parada v. Superior Ct. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1554, 1570-1584, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 743 (clause requiring three arbitrators to arbitrate disputes about brokerage accounts was unconscionable and unenforceable where applicable rules did not limit arbitrators' fees)].

[1A] Fees and Costs in Consumer Arbitrations

[a] Cannot Be Shifted to Consumer Who Does Not Prevail

No neutral arbitrator or private arbitration company is permitted to administer a consumer arbitration under any agreement or rule requiring that a consumer who is a party to the arbitration pay the fees and costs incurred by an opposing party if the consumer does not prevail in the arbitration. These fees and costs include, but are not limited to, the fees and costs of the arbitrator, provider organization, attorney, or witnesses [Code Civ. Proc. § 1284.3(a); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(d), (e) (defining "consumer arbitration" and "consumer party," discussed at § 33.14[2][g][i])]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1284.3 applies to all consumer arbitration agreements subject to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2, and to all consumer arbitration proceedings conducted in California [Code Civ. Proc. § 1284.3(c)].

[b] Must Be Waived for Indigent Consumer

A private arbitration company must waive all fees and costs charged to or assessed on a consumer party by in a consumer arbitration, exclusive of arbitrator fees, if the consumer is indigent. For the purposes of this section, a consumer is indigent if he or she has a gross monthly income that is less than 300 percent of the federal poverty guidelines. Nothing in this section affects the ability of a private arbitration company to shift fees that would otherwise be charged or assessed on a consumer party to a nonconsumer party [Code Civ. Proc. § 1284.3(b)(1); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 2(d), (e) (defining "consumer arbitration" and "consumer party," discussed at § 33.14[2][g][i])]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1284.3 applies to all consumer arbitration agreements subject to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2, and to all consumer arbitration proceedings conducted in California [Code Civ. Proc. § 1284.3(c)].

Prior to requesting or obtaining any fee, a private arbitration company must provide written notice of the right to obtain a waiver of fees to a consumer or prospective consumer in a manner calculated to bring the matter to the attention of a reasonable consumer, including, but not limited to, prominently placing a notice in its first written communication to the consumer and in any invoice, bill, submission form, fee schedule, rules, or code of procedure [Code Civ. Proc. § 1284.3(b)(2)].

To establish his or her eligibility for this waiver of fees and costs, the consumer must make a declaration under oath on a form provided to the consumer by the private arbitration company for signature stating his or her monthly income and the number of persons living in his or her household. No private arbitration company may require a consumer to provide any further statement or evidence of indigence [Code Civ. Proc. § 1284.3(b)(3)]. Any information obtained by a private arbitration company about a consumer's identity, financial condition, income, wealth, or fee waiver request must be kept confidential and may not be disclosed to any adverse party or any nonparty to the arbitration, except a private arbitration company may not keep confidential the number of waiver requests received or granted, or the total amount of fees waived [Code Civ. Proc. § 1284.3(b)(4)].

[2] Code of Civil Procedure Section 998 Offers

Beginning January 1, 1998, Code Civ. Proc. § 998 applies to arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281 or Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)], and to uninsured motorist arbitrations conducted pursuant to Ins. Code 11580. Pilimai v. Farmers Ins. Exchange Co. (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 133, 142, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 760, 137 P.3d 393]. Section 998 does not apply to labor arbitrations filed pursuant to memoranda of understanding under the Ralph C. Dills Act (Gov. Code § 3512 et seq.), an enforcement action brought by specified public officials, in the name of the people of the State of California, or to offers by made by plaintiffs in eminent domain actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b), (g), (i)]. If a Section 998 offer made by a defendant is not accepted, and the plaintiff does not obtain a more favorable award, the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(c)(1)]:

- Cannot recover his or her postoffer costs.
- Must pay the defendant's costs from the time of the offer.
- May, other than in an eminent domain action, in the arbitrator's discretion, be required to pay a reasonable sum to cover costs for the services of expert witnesses, who are not regular employees of any party, actually incurred and reasonably necessary either or both in preparation for, or during, arbitration of the case by the defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 998(h) (expert witness fees cannot exceed those specified in Gov. Code § 68092.5)].

In determining whether the plaintiff obtains a more favorable award, the arbitrator shall exclude the postoffer costs, including attorney's fees awarded to the prevailing party [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(c)(2)]. If the costs from the time of an unaccepted offer awarded to a defendant under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 exceed the amount of damages awarded to the plaintiff, the net amount is awarded to the defendant, and the arbitration award entered accordingly [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(e)].

A plaintiff may make a Section 998 offer. If it is not accepted and the defendant fails to obtain a more favorable award, the arbitrator has discretion to require the defendant to pay plaintiff's expert witness fees, in addition to plaintiff's costs (with an exception for eminent domain actions) [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(d); see Weinberg v. Safeco Ins. Co. of Am. (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 1075, 1085, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 224 (defendant was estopped to attack court's grant of costs and prejudgment interest on confirming award because before arbitrator it argued arbitrator could not award them)]. In addition, a plaintiff in a personal injury action who obtains an arbitration award more favorable than his or her Section 998 offer is entitled to prejudgment interest under Civ. Code § 3291 [Weinberg v. Safeco Ins. Co. of Am. (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 1075, 1085, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 224 ; Caro v. Smith (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 725, 735-737, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 306 ; cf. Woodard v. Southern Cal. Permanente Medical Group (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 656, 666, 217 Cal. Rptr. 514 (court had no power to award prejudgment interest after arbitrators denied it)]. In an uninsured motorist arbitration conducted pursuant to Ins. Code § 11580.2, when the insured's Section 998 offer is not accepted and an arbitration award for a larger amount is granted, the maximum liability provision of Ins. Code § 11580.2(p)(4) does not preclude the successful insured's recovery of costs under Code Civ. Proc § 998 even if those costs, when added to the award, exceed the coverage limits. Those costs may include deposition and exhibit preparation expenses, but would not include prejudgment interest within the meaning of Civ. Code § 3291, because an uninsured motorist arbitration is not a personal injury action within the meaning of Civ. Code § 3291 [Pilimai v. Farmers Ins. Exchange Co. (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 133, 147, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 760, 137 P.3d 393] .

In the case of an automobile accident caused by an underinsured motorist, where there is no issue reasonably to be resolved by arbitration, the failure to attempt to effectuate a prompt and fair settlement violates the insurer's statutory duties and gives rise to tort liability. Similarly, an insurer cannot shield other dilatory conduct, such as failing to investigate a claim, by the mere act of requesting uninsured motorist arbitration [Brehm v. 21st Century Ins. Co. (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1225, 1244, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 410] .

The 1997 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 998 nullifies Woodard v. Southern Cal. Permanente Medical Group (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 656, 666-668, 217 Cal. Rptr. 514 , which found Code Civ. Proc. § 998 cost awards by arbitrators to be in excess of the arbitrator's authority. Whether this amendment also nullifies Dickinson v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 952, 954-955, 169 Cal. Rptr. 493 , is yet to be decided. Dickinson states that arbitrators do not have the power to award statutory costs unless so provided in the contract.

For a discussion of the effect of Code Civ. Proc. § 998 on offers to compromise, see Ch. 520, Settlement and Release .

[3] Attorney's Fees

[a] When Arbitrator May Award Attorney's Fees

If both the underlying agreement and the submission to arbitration are silent on the matter, the arbitrator has no jurisdiction to award attorney's fees to the prevailing party [Thompson v. Jespersen (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 964, 968, 272 Cal. Rptr. 132 (construction industry rule of AAA, Rule 43, incorporated by agreement, did not authorize award of attorney's fees)]. However, an agreement that authorizes an award of attorney's fees to the prevailing party in any action related to the contract or if a party is required to bring suit on the contract is usually broad enough to support an award of attorney's fees and costs to the prevailing party in an arbitration. If any dispute under the contract must be submitted to arbitration, any other result would make the attorney's fee provision in the contract meaningless [Tate v. Saratoga Savings & Loan Assn. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 843, 856-857, 265 Cal. Rptr. 440 ; Taranow v. Brokstein (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 662, 665-666, 185 Cal. Rptr. 532] . The reverse is not true, however: an arbitration clause that allows attorney's fees for the party who prevails in arbitration will not support an award of attorney's fees to a party who "prevails" by obtaining summary judgment without arbitration [Kalai v. Gray (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 768, 777-778, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449 (reversing award made on so-called equitable basis)].

When the contract gives the arbitrator the power to award attorney's fees, the arbitrator does not exceed his or her powers by awarding attorney's fees if that award is based on a reasonable interpretation of the contract involved and evidence submitted at the arbitration hearing [Kahn v. Chetcuti (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 61, 67-68, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 606 ; Delaney v. Dahl (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 647, 655-657, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 663] . Thus, under an agreement that required mediation before arbitration, but prevented a party who resisted mediation from being awarded attorney's fees, the award of attorney's fees was not in excess of the arbitrator's powers. The arbitrator was within his power to conclude that the prevailing party's filing of a complaint, which it never intended to pursue, before mediation in order to prevent the running of the statute of limitations did not amount to "resisting mediation" [Kahn v. Chetcuti (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 61, 67-68, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 606 ; compare Leamon v. Krajkiewcz (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 424, 433, 132

Cal. Rptr. 2d 362 (prevailing party who did not first submit dispute to mediation as required by contract is not entitled to attorney's fees; contract was found voidable for duress; requiring party to mediate validity of contract does not mean that party concedes contract is voidable)].

Similarly, an arbitrator may award attorney's fees when the issue involved in the arbitration is governed by a statute that provides for attorney's fees [Coutee v. Barington Capital Group, L.P. (9th Cir. 2003) 336 F.3d 1128, 1135-1136 (award previously available under Welf. & Inst. Code § 15657(a) [now see Welf. & Inst. Code § 15657.5(a)] against defendant securities brokers based on financial abuse of elder); see Broughton v. Cigna Healthplans of California (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1066, 1086-1087, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334, 988 P.2d 67 (claim for damages under the Consumer Legal Remedies Act, Civ. Code § 1750 et seq., Civ. Code § 1780(d), of which mandates an award of costs and attorney's fees for a prevailing plaintiff); Caro v. Smith (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 725, 734-735, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 306 (reasonable interpretation of stipulation to arbitrate worker's injury claim gave arbitrator authority to award employee attorney's fees pursuant to Lab. Code § 3709)]. In a federal case involving an arbitration clause with a New York choice of law, an award of attorney's fees under a California statute was at most harmless error because New York law allows an arbitrator to award attorney's fees when not otherwise authorized to do so if the parties submit the matter to arbitration. The fact that California statute relied on was mandatory and the New York rule of law was permissive did not matter [Coutee v. Barington Capital Group, L.P. (9th Cir. 2003) 336 F.3d 1128, 1135-1136] .

Conversely, a statutory prohibition on suffering an adverse award of arbitral attorney fees is a statutory right that cannot be waived [D.C. v. Harvard-Westlake Sch. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 836, 865-866, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 300 (arbitral attorney fees cannot be awarded against party bringing claim under Ralph Civil Rights Act, Civ. Code § 51.7, or Tom Bane Civil Rights Act, Civ. Code § 52.1)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Include Attorney's Fees in Award. The arbitration award should include the attorney's fees award. Otherwise, it will be necessary to apply for correction of the award to include the attorney's fees, running the risk of violating the time limits for seeking correction of an award [see § 33.28[5][b], [d]] and confronting the possibility that a court might hold that adding attorney's fees is not within the scope of corrections an arbitrator is allowed to make [see § 33.28[5][a]]. Thus, it may be advisable to pre-determine a second arbitration date so that the issue of attorney's fees can be decided before the "final award" is executed by the arbitrator [see Moore v. Bank of San Luis Obispo (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 782, 788-789, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 603, 996 P.2d 706 ; Corona v. Amherst Partners (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 701, 706-707, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 250 (discussed at [b], below)]. By Michael S. Fields

Counsel seeking authorized arbitral attorney fees should include fees in a memorandum of costs. For discussion of memorandum of costs, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.28. For forms of memorandum of costs and motions to strike memorandum of costs, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.240 et seq. For discussion of motions for attorney's fees, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.29. For discussion of calculation of attorney's fees, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.50 et seq. For forms on setting forth claimed attorney's fees, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.270 et seq. For a form of arbitrator's award including award of attorney's fees, see § 33.72.

[b] Remedy for Arbitrator's Failure to Award Attorney's Fees

One case has held that when the underlying contract provides that the prevailing party "shall" be entitled to attorney's fees, the arbitrator exceeds his or her powers within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(4) if the arbitrator fails to award attorney's fees after finding that a party prevailed [see DiMarco v. Chaney (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1809, 1815, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 558 (noting that arbitrator could deny award of attorney's fees if he or she found that no party prevailed)].

If the arbitrator exceeds his or her power by failing to award attorney's fees, the proper remedy is to petition the court to correct the award. The court cannot determine the amount of the fees, but must return the matter to the arbitrator to determine the amount. The Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(c)(5) requirement of a noticed motion for attorney's fees does not apply; it would apply only to the procedure for obtaining attorney's fees incurred in the judicial proceedings to confirm, correct, or vacate an award, not to fees incurred in the underlying arbitration proceeding [see DiMarco v. Chaney (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1809, 1816-1817, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 558] .

DiMarco is limited, however, and distinguishable from certain other situations. First, if the arbitrator determines the prevailing party, but refuses to award attorney's fees, and explains his or her reasoning, for instance that the causes of action on which the award was based were tort claims beyond the scope of the attorney's fees clause, the arbitrator has not exceeded his or her powers. Nor can the court grant relief from that failure to award attorney's fees because of the limited scope of judicial review for an arbitrator's errors of law or fact, as discussed in Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review, §§ 34.10, 34.19 -34.20 [Moshonov v. Walsh (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 771, 773, 779, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 597, 996 P.2d 699] . Secondly, if the arbitrator is asked to determine the prevailing party but does not name one, that also is not considered in excess of the arbitrator's powers, but is at most an error of law or fact beyond the power of the court to correct [Moore v. Bank of San Luis Obispo (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 782, 788-789, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 603, 996 P.2d 706 (plaintiffs prevailed on equitable claims but were not awarded any money damages on contract claims; arbitration award provided that each party pay its own attorney's fees); Corona v. Amherst Partners (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 701, 706-707, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 250 (having submitted matter to binding arbitration, scope of arbitration was not limited and would include entitlement to attorney's fees and costs as requested in complaint; plaintiff who made no specific request of arbitrator to award fees and costs could not obtain them in trial court)]. Because of the foregoing, the Practice Tip at [a], above, is doubly important. Lastly, if there is clearly a prevailing party and the failure to award attorney's fees is due to the arbitrator's mistake or inadvertence, the arbitrator may issue an amended award, if he or she does so in a timely manner and the conditions discussed in § 33.28[6] are met [Century City Medical Plaza v. Sperling, Isaacs & Eisenberg (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 865, 867, 881-883, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 605] .

For discussion of attorney's fees incurred in proceedings to confirm an award, see Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review, § 34.18[3].

§ 33.30 Immunity From Liability to Parties

[1] Arbitrator

Under 1985 legislation repealed by its own terms, after several extensions, on January 1, 1997, an arbitrator had the immunity of a judicial officer from civil liability when acting in the capacity of arbitrator under any statute or contract [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1280.1; see Coopers & Lybrand v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 524, 536, 260 Cal. Rptr. 713 ; for discussion of immunity of judicial officers, see Ch. 340, Libel and Slander, § 340.50 et seq., and Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act]. The immunity granted by Code Civ. Proc. § 1280.1 was supplemental to, and did not supplant, any otherwise applicable common law or statutory immunity [Code Civ. Proc. § 1280.1; see also Olson v. National Ass'n of Security Dealers (8th Cir. 1996) 85 F.3d 381, 382-383 (recognizing immunity in absence of statute)].

Former Code Civ. Proc. § 1280.1 was enacted to overrule Baar v. Tigerman, (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 979 , which held that an arbitrator and a sponsoring organization (the AAA) were not entitled to the same immunity as a judge and could be found liable for breach of contract because the arbitrator failed to make a timely award [Stasz v. Charles R. Schwab (2004) 121 Cal App. 4th 420, 434, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116] . Since then, it has evolved that there is indeed no immunity for an arbitrator who, for no stated reason, withdraws as arbitrator after hearing all the evidence and thereafter fails and refuses to render an award. An arbitrator's liability for breach of contract in that way is an exception to arbitral immunity, an extension of that first recognized in Baar v. Tigerman (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 979, 983-985, 198 Cal. Rptr. 834, 211 Cal. Rptr. 426 [Morgan Phillips, Inc. v JAMS/Endispute, L.L.C. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 795, 801, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 782] . The court in Morgan Phillips pointed out that its holding did not apply to a situation in which an arbitrator stated ethical grounds for his or her recusal [Morgan Phillips, Inc. v JAMS/Endispute, L.L.C. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 795, 803, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 782] .

Since the repeal of former Code Civ. Proc. § 1280.1, arbitral immunity is determined under California common law.

However, the common law is not static, but grows and changes to meet the social needs of the community which it serves. It is constantly expanding and developing [see 79 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 294 (1996) (common law immunity of arbitrators); Stasz v. Charles R. Schwab (2004) 121 Cal App. 4th 420, 436, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116] .

The application of arbitral immunity does not turn on whether the act at issue is discretionary instead of ministerial or administrative. Arbitral immunity shields all functions which are integrally related to the arbitral process. Arbitrators are exempt from civil liability for failure to exercise care or skill in the performance of their arbitral functions. Federal law is in accord [Stasz v. Charles R. Schwab (2004) 121 Cal App. 4th 420, 431-432, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116] . The proper remedy for any bias on the part of an arbitrator or sponsoring organization is a challenge of the arbitration award, not an attempt to impose liability on the arbitrator or the sponsoring organization, which would be nothing more than a collateral attack on the arbitration award [Stasz v. Charles R. Schwab (2004) 121 Cal App. 4th 420, 439-441, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116] .

Federal courts have recognized a jurisdictional exception to immunity, which is applicable only if the record before the arbitrator is so deficient on its face that it signals a clear absence of jurisdiction [Stasz v. Charles R. Schwab (2004) 121 Cal App. 4th 420, 442, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116] . The contention that Code Civ. Proc. § 916(a) provides such a clear lack of jurisdiction for arbitration conducted when an appeal is pending challenging the arbitration process has been rejected. Even assuming Code Civ. Proc. § 916 mandates a delay in the arbitration proceedings, it would not effect a clear absence of jurisdiction. The statute would not divest the arbitrator of jurisdiction to hear the matter; it would only affect the timing of the proceedings. The proper remedy for an alleged violation of Code Civ. Proc. § 916 is to seek a stay of the arbitration proceedings and, possibly, to petition the trial court to vacate the award on that ground, not to seek to impose liability on the arbitrator or the sponsoring organization [Stasz v. Charles R. Schwab (2004) 121 Cal App. 4th 420, 443, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116] .

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1280(a) (defining "agreement" and discussed in Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.20), an accountant making a valuation for the parties would be entitled to arbitral immunity if, under the terms of the particular agreement, the parties intended the accountant to function as an arbitrator with respect to specific issues. The immunity does not attach by virtue of the accountant's professional status but by virtue of the fact that a proceeding is deemed to be an arbitration [Coopers & Lybrand v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 524, 536, 260 Cal. Rptr. 713 (overruling of demurrer affirmed because factual determination was required to determine whether parties intended valuation to be arbitration)]. Similarly, an appraiser in an appraisal under Ins. Code § 2071 is functioning as an arbitrator and is entitled to immunity [Lambert v. Carneghi (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1120, 1129-1137, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 626]. If arbitral immunity has attached, a party to the arbitration has no cause of action arising from the arbitrator's misconduct, professional negligence, or fraud. The party's recourse, unless the particular arbitration agreement adopts alternative procedures, is to seek to have the award vacated pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2 [Coopers & Lybrand v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 524, 536, 260 Cal. Rptr. 713] .

For discussion of immunity of arbitrators and their sponsoring association in conducting arbitration of attorney's fee disputes, see Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics, § 72.350 et seq.

[2] Sponsoring Organization

The sponsoring organization is also immune from liability to the parties to an arbitration proceeding [Stasz v. Charles R. Schwab (2004) 121 Cal App. 4th 420, 433, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116 ; Thiele v. RML Realty Partners (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1526, 1528-1530, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 416 ; American Arbitration Ass'n v. Superior Court (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1131, 1133, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 899 ; accord Olson v. NASD (8th Cir. 1996) 85 F.3d 381, 382-383] . The scope of a sponsoring organization's arbitral immunity is defined by the functions it protects and serves. Acts that are integrally related to the arbitral process and sufficiently associated with the adjudicative phase of arbitration, such as sending out the award, are protected by the immunity [Thiele v. RML Realty Partners (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1526, 1530, 1532, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 416 (award sent out contrary to one party's instructions not to send it because parties had negotiated a settlement); see also Stasz v. Charles R. Schwab (2004) 121 Cal App. 4th 420, 437, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116 (no distinction between sponsoring organization's discretionary acts and administrative acts; immunity applies to both); Olson v. National Ass'n of Security Dealers (8th Cir. 1996) 85 F.3d 381, 382-383 (immunity extends to appointment of arbitrator with "evident partiality")]. A sponsoring organization is not entitled to immunity for breach of contract actions based on the arbitrator's withdrawal after hearing all the evidence and subsequent failure and refusal to enter an award [Morgan Phillips, Inc. v JAMS/Endispute, L.L.C. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 795, 803-804, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 782] .

[3] Witnesses

Statements made in the course of a private, contractual arbitration proceeding are protected by the litigation privilege of Civ. Code § 47(b) [Moore v. Conliffe (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 634, 637-638, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 152, 871 P. 2d 204 (deposition witness allegedly committed perjury)]. However, the litigation privilege is not so broad as to extend to one's own expert witness. A party may sue his or her own expert for negligence, even if that suit is based on the expert's testimony [Lambert v. Carneghi (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1120, 1129-1137, 1145, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 626 (in appraisal under Ins. Code § 2071, which is functional equivalent of arbitration)]. For discussion of the litigation privilege, see Ch. 340, Libel and Slander, § 340.50 et seq.

§ 33.43 Decisions

[1] Appointment of Arbitrators

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1281.6, 1282 does not prohibit contract of arbitration that gives each party an unqualified right to nominate anyone as arbitrator, regardless of neutrality or impartiality. Dinong v. Superior Court (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 300, 302-303, 174 Cal. Rptr. 590

No statutory requirement that arbitrators appointed by parties be neutral or impartial. Tipton v. Systron Donner Corp. (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 501, 505, 160 Cal. Rptr. 303

[2] Bias

Arbitrator was not required to disclose that one of party's counsel and proposed expert witness (later stricken from witness list) were attorneys with whom he sat on 36-member board of professional association; fact that arbitrator disclosed that out of excess of caution did not give party right to disqualify him. Luce, Forward, Hamilton & Scripps, LLP v. Koch (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 720, 724-725, 734-736, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 869

Only significant or substantial business relationships between neutral arbitrator and party or its representative must be disclosed; ordinary and insubstantial business dealings do not require disclosure; $500 contribution to party arbitrator's mayoral campaign was ordinary and insubstantial; neutral arbitrator who had no financial interest in or knowledge of other party's, party arbitrator's, employer's, or fellow employee's contributions to same campaign had no duty to disclose those transactions. Casden Park La Brea Retail LLC v. Ross Dress for Less, Inc. (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 468, 476-478, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 763

Person aware that arbitrator and his law firm represented several entities that provided insurance and reinsurance to syndicate by which plaintiff was insured and representative of which was present throughout arbitration might reasonably entertain doubt that proposed neutral arbitrator would be able to be impartial. Advantage Medical Services, LLC v. Hoffman (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 806, 809, 818, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 935

Party who did not investigate or discover arbitrator's undisclosed connections to opposing party's insurer until after arbitrator had issued interim award could not obtain disqualification under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(c) but still had right to seek vacatur of interim award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(6)(A), discussed at § 34.19[1][d]. Advantage Medical Services, LLC v. Hoffman (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 806, 820-823, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 935

In case of arbitrators appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6, no disclosures are required when court nominates five from whom parties are to chose. Disclosure obligations are not triggered until proposed arbitrator is notified that he or she has been selected by parties or appointed by court to serve as neutral arbitrator. Jakks Pacific, Inc. v. Superior Court (THQ, Inc.) (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 596, 600, 603-607, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 914

Matters enumerated in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a), by Legislative intent behind 2001 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1281.9 and 1286.2(a)(6)(A), are presumed to cause reasonable person to question arbitrator's ability to be impartial. International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, etc. v. Laughon (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1380, 13861387 (including comparison of cases decided before 2001 amendments); see Stats. 2001, Ch. 352, § 8

"Impression of possible bias" rule. Cobler v. Stanley, Barber, Southard, Brown & Associates (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 518, 527, 265 Cal. Rptr. 868 ; San Luis Obispo Bay Properties, Inc. v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 556, 567, 104 Cal. Rptr. 733 ; Johnston v. Security Ins. Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 839, 842-844, 86 Cal. Rptr. 133

Evid. Code § 703.5 is applicable to limit testimony of arbitrator regarding alleged bias; thus, court was not entitled to consider portion of arbitrator's declaration describing basis for award, but could consider statement that arbitrator did not know until after rendition of award that law partner represented party's adversary in another matter. Cobler v. Stanley, Barber, Southard, Brown & Associates (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 518, 528-529, 265 Cal. Rptr. 868

Bias in party arbitrator is expected and furnishes no ground for vacating award unless it amounts to corruption under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2. Tate v. Saratoga Savings & Loan Assn. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 843, 858, 265 Cal. Rptr. 440 ; Baker v. Sadick (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 618, 622-626, 208 Cal. Rptr. 676

Failure of arbitrator appointed by corporation to reveal that he had been corporation's attorney for period of time does not vitiate his or her right to act as party-arbitrator under statutory or case law or under terms of agreement providing that each party could select arbitrator to resolve dispute and, if arbitrators could not agree, they could appoint third arbitrator. Tipton v. Systron Donner Corp. (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 501, 507, 160 Cal. Rptr. 303

Arbitrators is under legal duty to disclose to parties any dealings that might create impression of possible bias at outset of arbitration hearings. Johnston v. Security Ins. Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 839, 843, 844, 86 Cal. Rptr. 133

[3] Abandonment

Though court did not refer to it as abandonment, when, after having been ordered to arbitrate, party responsible for paying arbitrator's fees necessary to initiate arbitration failed to do so, court properly lifted stay and sent matter to be tried. Sink v. Aden Enters. (9th Cir. 2003) 352 F.3d 1197

Right of parties to mutually abandon one arbitration proceeding and proceed with new arbitration covering subject matter of abandoned proceeding. Goossen v. Adair (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 810, 817, 8 Cal. Rptr. 855

[4] Withdrawal of Arbitrator

Arbitrator's withdrawal, for no stated reason and without parties' consent, after hearing all the evidence and subsequent failure and refusal to render an award is basis for breach of contract action, for which there is no arbitral immunity for arbitrator or his or her sponsoring organization. Morgan Phillips, Inc. v JAMS/Endispute, L.L.C. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 795, 803, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 782

Withdrawal from arbitration is permitted if parties agree that preliminary error will invalidate arbitration proceeding. Helzel v. Superior Court (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 652, 664, 176 Cal. Rptr. 740 (dicta)

[5] Removal of Arbitrator

While a jointly selected, or court-appointed, proposed neutral arbitrator or, in the case of a contested appraisal proceeding, the competent and disinterested umpire, is subject to mandatory disqualification for disclosures under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(e), the court declined to recognize an automatic and unlimited right of disqualification for disclosures made by party-appointed appraisers subject to Ins. Code § 2071. Mahnke v. Superior Court (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 565, 576-578, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 197

Failure of arbitrator to act within reasonable period to select neutral arbitrator is proper basis for removal and court appointment of substitute arbitrator. Cathcart v. Security Title Ins. etc. Co. (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 469, 474, 475, 152 P.2d 336

[6] Scope of Arbitration

Agreement to settle any controversy arising out of employment is sufficiently broad to include arbitration of claim of intentional torts of fraud and libel. Lewsadder v. Mitchum, Jones & Templeton, Inc. (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 255, 258-259, 111 Cal. Rptr. 405

Unless limited by arbitration clause, entirety of controversy is to be determined by arbitrator. Orpustan v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 988, 991, 103 Cal. Rptr. 919, 500 P.2d 1119 (arbitration under uninsured motorists statute [Ins. Code § 11580.2]); Morris v. Zukerman (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 91, 95, 64 Cal. Rptr. 714

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.4, requiring that award include determination of all questions submitted, decision of which is necessary in order to determine controversy, determination of which issues are actually necessary to ultimate decision is for arbitrators to make. Morris v. Zuckerman (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 686, 690, 72 Cal. Rptr. 880, 446 P.2d 1000 ; East San Bernardino County Water Dist. v. City of San Bernardino (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 942, 953, 109 Cal. Rptr. 510 ; Jones v. Kvistad (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 836, 843, 97 Cal. Rptr. 100 ; Felner v. Meritplan Ins. Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 540, 543, 86 Cal. Rptr. 178 ; Lesser Towers, Inc. v. Roscoe-Ajax Constr. Co. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 675, 702, 77 Cal. Rptr. 100

All disputes as to meaning, interpretation, and application of any clause of agreement containing arbitration clause, even disputes that prima facie appear without merit, are subject of arbitration. Posner v. Grunwald-Marx, Inc. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 169, 184, 14 Cal. Rptr. 297, 363 P.2d 313 (collective bargaining agreement); East San Bernardino County Water Dist. v. City of San Bernardino (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 942, 951, 109 Cal. Rptr. 510 ; see also Jones v. Kvistad (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 836, 843, 97 Cal. Rptr. 100

Arbitrability of dispute is itself subject to arbitration if parties have so provided in contract. McCarroll v. L. A. County etc. Carpenters (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 45, 65, 315 P.2d 322

Only clear cut expression to exclude claim from arbitration is prevailing. East San Bernardino County Water Dist. v. City of San Bernardino (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 942, 953, 109 Cal. Rptr. 510 ; see also Morris v. Zukerman (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 91, 96, 64 Cal. Rptr. 714

[7] Restraining Arbitration

Defendant prevailing in declaratory action to stop arbitration was entitled to attorney's fees for trial an appeal under Civ. Code § 1717, because the contract containing the arbitration clause contemplated court actions "on contract" and provided for fees and costs to the prevailing party in any such action. Turner v. Schultz (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 974, 981-985, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 659

Injunction against arbitration process is not available to party to arbitration agreement unless grounds exist for resisting petition to compel arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2. California State Council of Carpenters v. Superior Court (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 144, 156, 89 Cal. Rptr. 625

Party to illegal arbitration agreement has right to injunctive relief against threatened arbitration proceedings. California State Council of Carpenters v. Superior Court (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 144, 157, 89 Cal. Rptr. 625 (dictum)

Court does not have power to enjoin arbitration that is not self executing. Sauter v. Superior Court (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 25, 29, 82 Cal. Rptr. 395

Failure to appeal from appealable order granting preliminary injunction against arbitration proceedings does not preclude appellate review of arbitration issue on appeal from judgment granting permanent injunction against arbitration. American Ins. Co. v. Gernand (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 300, 305, 68 Cal. Rptr. 810

[8] Hearing

[a] Notice

Right of party to arbitration agreement to notice of hearing and opportunity to be heard thereat. Smith v. Campbell & Facciolla, Inc. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 134, 135, 20 Cal. Rptr. 606

[b] Evidence

Timely offer of evidence at arbitration proceeding is required for orderly administration of justice. Grunwald-Marx, Inc. v. Los Angeles Joint Board (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 568, 587, 343 P.2d 23

Testimony of arbitrator at contested hearing on petition to confirm award, though not to be used to impeach award, is admissible to show what matters were submitted for decision and were considered by arbitrators. Sapp v. Barenfeld (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 515, 523, 212 P.2d 233 ; Jones v. Kvistad (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 836, 842, 97 Cal. Rptr. 100

Admissibility in court action of testimony of arbitrator to show what matters were submitted for decision and considered by arbitrators. Key Ins. Exch. v. Biagini (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 143, 145-147, 58 Cal. Rptr. 408 ; Banks v. Milwaukee Ins. Co. (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 34, 39, 55 Cal. Rptr. 139

[c] Powers of Arbitrators

[i] In General

Arbitrator has power to hear and determine discovery matters involving nonparties, for example challenge by nonparty to subpoena issued by party for documents; arbitrator is to hear and determine issue first, but nonparty has right to full judicial review of arbitrator's discovery order. If court determines that arbitrator erred, court's determination supersedes that of arbitrator. Berglund v. Arthroscopic Laser & Surgery Center of San Diego, LP (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 528, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 370, 187 P.3d 86, 2008 Cal. LEXIS 8801

Arbitrators are permitted to apply both legal and equitable principles in deciding ultimate issue submitted to them. Morris v. Zuckerman (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 686, 691, 72 Cal. Rptr. 880, 446 P.2d 1000

Broad principles of justice and equity are bases for arbitrators' decisions. Grunwald-Marx, Inc. v. Los Angeles Joint Board (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 568, 589, 343 P.2d 23 ; Sapp v. Barenfeld (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 515, 523, 212 P.2d 233 ; Interinsurance Exchange v. Bailes (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 830, 835, 33 Cal. Rptr. 533

Lack of authority of arbitrator to decide issue is waived by submission of issue. J.C.Gury Co. v. Nippon Carbide Indus. (USA), Inc. (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1302, 1304-1306, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 118 ; Felner v. Meritplan, Ins. Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 540, 544, 86 Cal. Rptr 178 ; Lesser Towers, Inc. v. Roscoe-Ajax Constr. Co. (1969) 271 Cal. App.2d 675, 698-699, 77 Cal. Rptr. 100

Arbitrator has power to modify award that granted injunction, when facts or circumstances on which it was based have changed; arbitrator's power is derived from inherent modifiability of injunctions and parties' agreement to arbitrate. Swan Magnetics v. Superior Court (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1504, 1512, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 541 (injunction enforcing noncompetition clause; after award, competitor acquired party to arbitration)

Arbitrator's authority is derived from contract between parties, not from court's order compelling arbitration. Social Services Union v. Alameda County Training & Employment Bd. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1458, 1463, 255 Cal. Rptr. 746

Arbitrator's jurisdiction is limited to disputes covered by arbitration clause or superseding submission agreement. Mansdorf v. California Physicians' Service, Inc. (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 412, 417, 151 Cal. Rptr. 388

Arbitrators are required to decide all issues submitted to them but have no legal right to decide issues not submitted. East San Bernardino County Water Dist. v. City of San Bernardino (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 942, 953-954, 109 Cal. Rptr. 510

Arbitrators have power to determine which issues are necessary to ultimate decision. East San Bernardino County Water Dist. v. City of San Bernardino (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 942, 953, 109 Cal. Rptr. 510

Powers of arbitrator are limited by agreement or stipulation of submission. San Luis Obispo Bay Properties, Inc. v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 556, 564, 104 Cal. Rptr. 733 ; Jones v. Kvistad (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 836, 842, 97 Cal. Rptr. 100 ; Brotherhood of Ry. etc. Employees v. Universal Carloading etc. Co. (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 145, 149, 81 Cal. Rptr. 516 ; B. S. B. Constr. Co. v. Rex Constr. Co. (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 327, 331, 19 Cal. Rptr. 167

Arbitrator have no power to determine rights and obligations of person who is not party to arbitration agreement. Unimart v. Superior Court (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1039, 1045, 82 Cal. Rptr. 249

[ii] Misconduct

Failure by arbitrator to fully exercise powers do not constitute misconduct under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(3) (misconduct is ground for vacating award). Banks v. Milwaukee Ins. Co. (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 34, 38, 55 Cal. Rptr. 139

[d] Award

[i] In General

Damages are properly to be included in award even though not expressly submitted as issue, when submitted controversy is breach of contract and when proof of damages is made at hearing. Grunwald-Marx, Inc. v. Los Angeles Joint Board (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 568, 590, 343 P.2d 23

Decision of arbitrators is final and binding on parties and preclude further litigation of controversy on merits when arbitration award fully adjudicates dispute. Archuleta v. Grand Lodge etc. of Machinists (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 202, 208, 68 Cal. Rptr. 694

Arbitrators are not required to find facts and give reasons for their awards. Sapp v. Barenfeld (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 515, 522, 212 P.2d 233 ; Frantz v. Inter-Insurance Exchange of Auto. Club (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 269, 273, 40 Cal. Rptr. 218 ; see also Shammas v. National Telefilm Associates (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 1050, 1056, 90 Cal. Rptr. 119 ; Interinsurance Exchange v. Bailes (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 830, 837, 33 Cal. Rptr. 533

[ii] Consolidation of Arbitration Proceedings

When resolution of dispute depends on resolution of another dispute between one party to first dispute and third party, both of which are subject to arbitration, consolidation is permissible notwithstanding provision in agreement precluding addition of new party. Garden Grove Community Church v. Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel Co. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 251, 264-265, 191 Cal. Rptr. 15

Consolidation of separate but related arbitration hearings does not add parties to agreements or permitting relief between parties not signatory to common agreement. Garden Grove Community Church v. Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel Co. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 251, 264-265, 191 Cal. Rptr. 15

When contractor filed claim against school district for added time spent due to allegedly faulty architectural plans, and district sought indemnification from architect, arbitration is proper between architect and school district since dispute arose under their contract, and consolidation of proceedings is permitted. Conejo Valley Unified School Dist. v. William Blurock & Partners, Inc. (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 983, 987, 169 Cal. Rptr. 102

[iii] Costs

The rules of ADR Services, Inc. govern the allocation of costs and require equal allocation of costs. Gravillis v. Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage Co. (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 503, 520, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 70

Code Civ. Proc. § 1284.2, providing that, unless agreement prescribes otherwise, no party may recover costs, is constitutional, and not violative of equal protection. Dickinson v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 952, 954-955, 169 Cal. Rptr. 493

Award of costs for both arbitration and court proceedings to corporation when shareholder petitioned to vacate arbitration award is proper when parties' arbitration agreement provided that if one party refused to abide by award, all costs, including those incurred in court proceedings, would be assessed against and borne by disaffirming party and there was no evidence that parties modified agreement. Tipton v. Systron Donner Corp. (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 501, 507, 160 Cal. Rptr. 303

[iv] Declaratory Relief

Declaratory relief action brought by insured prior to demanding arbitration is proper to obtain judicial determination of non-arbitrable issue of coverage of uninsured motorist liability clause in insurance policy. Calhoun v. State Farm Mutual Auto Ins. Co. (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 407, 414, 62 Cal. Rptr. 177 (insurer denied coverage)

Dismissal of declaratory relief action pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1061 is available remedy when issues sought to be litigated therein are within jurisdiction of arbitrator. California State Auto. Asso. v. Blanford (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 186, 189, 84 Cal. Rptr. 333 ; Interinsurance Exchange v. Bailes (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 830, 834, 33 Cal. Rptr. 533

[v] Correction by Arbitrators

Arbitrator has no power to correct award for error of law by striking element of damages. Landis v. Pinkertons, Inc. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 985, 992, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 890

Corrected award served more than 30 days after service of original award is not to be given effect; request for correction is deemed denied if no corrected award is served within that 30-day period. Landis v. Pinkertons, Inc. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 985, 990, 993, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 890

Aggrieved party's request for trial after service of arbitration award tolls 100-day time period in which prevailing party must seek correction of award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1288.2. Shepherd v. Greene (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 989, 994, 230 Cal. Rptr. 233

Substantive revision of award by adding element of damages is not within limited power of arbitrator to correct award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1284. Banks v. Milwaukee Ins. Co. (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 34, 37, 55 Cal. Rptr. 139

[vi] Time

Rendition of award within time specified in submission agreement is jurisdictional. Librascope Inc. v. Precision Lodge No. 1600, Librascope, Inc. (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 71, 75, 10 Cal. Rptr. 795 ; Rusnak v. General Controls Co. (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 583, 584, 7 Cal. Rptr. 71

Waiver of time limitation on making award violates award made after expiration of specified time. Librascope Inc. v. Precision Lodge No. 1600, Internat. Assn. of Machinists (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 71, 75

[9] Validity of Proceedings

Every intendment is to be indulged to give effect to arbitration proceedings. Lewsadder v. Mitchum, Jones & Templeton, Inc. (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 255, 259, 111 Cal. Rptr. 405

[10] Specific Proceedings

[a] Uninsured Motorists Arbitration

Issues subject to arbitration under uninsured motorist statute [Ins. Code § 11580.2(f)]. Orpustan v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 988, 991, 992, 103 Cal. Rptr. 919, 500 P.2d 1119 ; State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Guleserian (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 397, 401-402, 104 Cal. Rptr. 683 ; Felner v. Meritplan Ins. Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 540, 543, 86 Cal. Rptr. 178 ; American Ins. Co. v. Gernand (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 300, 304, 305, 68 Cal. Rptr. 810 ; Esparza v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 496, 500, 65 Cal. Rptr. 245

Entirety of controversy to be determined by arbitrator in uninsured motorist cases; preliminary court hearings on jurisdictional facts is improper. Orpustan v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 988, 991, 992, 103 Cal. Rptr. 919, 500 P.2d 1119 ; State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Guleserian (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 397, 401, 104 Cal. Rptr. 683 ; compare Pacific Indem. Co. v. Superior Court (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 63, 67, 54 Cal. Rptr. 470 (court, rather than arbitrator, to determine whether insured instituted arbitration within statute of limitations set forth in former Ins. Code § 11580.2(h) [now see Ins. Code § 11580.2(i)(1)])

Uninsured motorist arbitration conducted pursuant to Ins. Code § 11580.2, is form of contractual arbitration governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq., and thus is arbitration within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 998; when insured's Section 998 offer is not accepted and arbitration award for larger amount is granted, maximum liability provision of Ins. Code § 11580.2(p)(4) does not preclude successful insured's recovery of costs under Code Civ. Proc § 998 even if those costs, when added to the award, exceed coverage limits. Pilimai v. Farmers Ins. Exchange Co. (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 133, 142, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 760, 137 P.3d 393 ; see discussion at § 33.29[2]

Under policy that adopts statutory language, arbitrator cannot make award in excess of uninsured motorist policy limits; thus, insurer that has paid its insured full amount of its uninsured motorist coverage cannot to be compelled to arbitrate; any damages sustained by insured attributable to accident that are over and above uninsured motorist policy limits have no relevance in uninsured motorist arbitration. State Farm Mutual Automobile Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (Balen) (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1424, 1432-1433, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 850

Statute of limitations for initiating arbitration proceedings under uninsured motorist coverage is tolled by insurer's failure to give notice to insured of applicable limitation period, pursuant to Ins. Code § 11580.2(k). Gefrich v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 500, 503-504, 166 Cal. Rptr. 516

[b] Self-Executing Arbitration

Proceeding with arbitration ex parte and without prior court order compelling unwilling party to arbitrate is proper when arbitration agreement is self-executing. Brink v. Allegro Builders, Inc. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 577, 579, 580, 25 Cal. Rptr. 556, 375 P.2d 436 ; Kustom Kraft Homes v. Leivenstein (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 805, 810-811, 92 Cal. Rptr. 650 ; Smith v. Campbell & Facciolla, Inc. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 134, 137, 20 Cal. Rptr. 606

Contract permitting one party to unilaterally select arbitrator if other party refuses to arbitrate and permitting one arbitrator to proceed is self-executing. Brink v. Allegro Builders, Inc. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 577, 579, 580, 25 Cal. Rptr. 556, 375 P.2d 436

Arbitration clause incorporating entire scheme for arbitration established by rules of American Arbitration Association is comprehensive enough to be self-executing. Kustom Kraft Homes v. Leivenstein (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 805, 811, 92 Cal. Rptr. 650 ; compare Sauter v. Superior Court (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 25, 29, 82 Cal. Rptr. 395 (holding that arbitration that was pending before the American Arbitration Association was not self-executing)

Agreements to arbitrate is generally not self-executing. Sauter v. Superior Court (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 25, 29, 82 Cal. Rptr. 395

Party who fails to select arbitrator under self-executing arbitration agreement is nevertheless entitled to notice of arbitration hearing and to be heard thereat. Smith v. Campbell & Facciolla, Inc. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 134, 135, 20 Cal. Rptr. 606

§ 33.44 Attorney General Opinions

Common law immunity from civil liability of judicial officers applies to judicial arbitrators and to private arbitrators when the latter are acting in their quasi-judicial capacities; enactment of statutory immunity from civil liability did not affect judicial officers, but expanded scope of immunity for private arbitrators, and repeal of statute reinstated common law immunity for quasi-judicial acts of private arbitrators. 79 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 294 (1996)

Written agreement that does not otherwise violate state law or public policy, between parties to civil dispute to submit dispute to arbitration by third party who is not member of California State Bar for resolution pursuant to and in accordance with tenets of parties' religious affiliation, is valid and enforceable. 70 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 203 (1987)

§ 33.50 Appointment of Arbitrators

NOTE:
The following checklist is illustrative only of the procedures commonly utilized by counsel in arbitration matters.

[1] Agreement to Select Neutral Arbitrator

☐ Negotiate agreement by parties to select person to serve as neutral arbitrator.

[2] Petition for Court Appointment of Neutral Arbitrator

☐ If parties cannot agree or if the person selected fails to act as arbitrator:

☐ Prepare petition for court appointment of a neutral arbitrator, together with notice of hearing and other papers on which petition is based [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1281.6, 1290-1290.4; for a form, see § 33.260[1]].

PRACTICE TIP:
List Proposed Arbitrators. The code does not preclude the petitioner from including a list of arbitrators proposed by the petitioner within the petition. Such a list alerts the court as to which side chooses which arbitrators. This may be especially in areas of abuse where some defendants have a stable of arbitrators, and the choice of one would be disastrous to any plaintiff. The courts are becoming more familiar with defense abuses and watching for them. By Michael S. Fields ☐ Serve and file petition, notice, and other papers [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 86, 1292, 1292.6 (venue and jurisdiction); for discussion, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.43[3], [4]].

☐ Opposition to petition for court appointment of neutral arbitrator:

☐ Prepare response to the petition, setting forth any denials and defenses [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1290, 1290.6, 1290.8].

☐ Serve and file response.

☐ Attend hearing:

☐ Present evidence [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.2 (summary hearing)].

☐ Submit jointly with other parties to arbitration list of persons proposed as nominees, if agreement can be reached on list [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6].

☐ Nomination by Court:

☐ Court gives notice to parties of five nominees [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 10.781 (information about each neutral that is required to be included on court-supplied list)].

☐ Hearing may be continued for five days after parties receive court's notice of nominees, so that parties can try to select neutral arbitrator [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6].

☐ If the parties cannot reach agreement as to the selection:

☐ Attend the hearing on continued date.

☐ Court makes appointment from list of nominees [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6; for a form, see § 33.60[2]].

[3] Disqualification of Arbitrator

☐ Review disclosures made by arbitrator:

☐ Information that might bring impartiality into questions, which arbitrator must disclose within 10 calendar days of service of notice of nomination or appointment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a), (b); for discussion see § 33.14[1]].

☐ Information regarding prior or pending cases in which arbitrator served as arbitrator, attorney-client relationships, personal, and professional relationships, which arbitrator must disclose within 10 calendar days of appointment [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1281.9(a)(3)-(6), 1281.95(a); for discussion, see § 33.14[3], [4]].

☐ Existence of ground for disqualification of judge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1, which arbitrator must disclose within 10 calendar days of service of notice of nomination or appointment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a)(1), (b); for discussion see §§ 33.14[1] and 33.15].

☐ Any matters required to be disclosed by the ethics standards for neutral arbitrators adopted by the Judicial Council, which arbitrator must disclose within 10 calendar days of service of notice of nomination or appointment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a)(2), (b); for discussion see § 33.14[2]].

☐ If desired, prepare and file notice of disqualification [for forms, see §§ 33.61, 33.62] of first court-appointed neutral arbitrator without cause within 15 calendar days of:

☐ Arbitrator's failure to make Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a) or 1281.95 disclosures; or ☐ Service of the disclosure statement under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a) or 1281.95.

NOTE:
Disqualification of subsequent appointees can only be by petition and for cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(b)(2)].

☐ If desired, demand that arbitrator to disqualify himself or herself:

☐ On grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 (disqualification of judge) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(d), for discussion, see § 33.15].

☐ Make demand before conclusion of arbitration [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(d) (provision not applicable to arbitration proceedings conducted under collective agreement)].

§ 33.51 Discovery

Although formal discovery is not available in contractual arbitration unless the parties' agreement provides for it, or unless the case involves personal injury, wrongful death [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.1, 1283.05 (discussed at § 33.25)] or an uninsured motorist claim [Ins. Code § 11580.2(f)(3)-(7)], informal discovery is essential. For forms and procedure in conducting discovery, see Ch. 190- 200, Discovery , and Ch. 535, Subpoena . Develop a discovery plan as early as possible [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2 (discussed at §§ 33.27, 33.71; you may have to response to a demand for witnesses and documents 45 days before the hearing)] by

- ☐ Examining the pleadings, including affirmative defenses and cross-complaints, if any.
- ☐ Thoroughly interviewing of the parties and witnesses available to you.
- ☐ Understanding your position.
- ☐ Understanding the probable position of your adversary.
- ☐ Determining, if possible, what evidence exists.

Consider the following types of evidence and discovery methods:

- ☐ Photographs. Examine photographs for lighting and perspective. Understand what the photographs was meant to show and how it was set up. If possible, obtain photographs of the same thing over time, especially anything with regard to which damages are sought.

☐ Medical imagery, such as x-rays, ultra-sound, MRI. Understand the perspective from which they were taken. If necessary, have an expert [radiologist] interpret them for you.

☐ Physical evidence: examine it and determine how it fits in with other evidence. Any inconsistencies?

☐ Official documents, e.g., accident reports, licensing information, DMV ownership record.

☐ Interrogatories, requests for admission, requests for production of documents, such as bills, invoices, reports. Again, examine all documentary evidence for internal inconsistencies or inconsistencies with other evidence. If a document has been handled by different people over time, obtain a copy from each of them and examine the copies for changes.

☐ Depositions or less formal statements or interviews.Begin with generalities and allow the witness to narrate as much as they want. Determine everything that witness knows, including the existence and location of other witnesses, documentary and/or physical evidence, photographs, etc. If the witness has physical or documentary evidence, try to obtain it. Do background checks on both your witnesses and opposing witnesses, including expert.

☐ Maps that may be significant.

☐ Time lines and dates that may be of significance

☐ Expert witnesses, both yours and your adversary's: obtain their resumes or curriculum vitae as soon as possible. Investigate them through professional associations, on the Internet, through licensing agencies, and through any network you may have.

☐ Your expert witness: make sure there are no skeletons in his or her closet. Pay him or her an interview fee, thus assuring he or she is no longer available to be the opposition's expert. Be careful what you give your expert to form his or her opinion: everything in an expert's file is discoverable.

☐ Your adversary's expert(s): seek and review prior depositions of the adversary's expert(s) and court transcripts of their prior testimony. Read any books and article the adversary's expert(s) have published. Look for skeletons in his or her closet. Obtain the expert's file.

Revise your discovery plan as the case develops.

Once you believe you have everything you need to establish your case, and everything the opposition has to support its case, determine whether there is reason NOT to use some of this information as evidence. Much evidence has some unfavorable aspect and it is not appropriate to "over try" your case.

§ 33.52 Notice That Amount in Controversy Exceeds $50,000

If the aggregate amount in controversy exceeds $50,000, so inform the arbitrator, in writing by personal service or registered or certified mail [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(1)]. This will trigger other requirements, as discussed at §§ 33.27[3] -[4], 33.70, and 33.71. This requirement is not applicable to matters arising out of collective-bargaining agreements, actions involving personal injury or death, or as provided in the parties' agreement to arbitrate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2)].

§ 33.53 Demand for List of Witnesses and Documents

If the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2) have been triggered [see § 33.52, above], the arbitrator will give 60 days notice of the time and place of the arbitration hearing. Within 15 days of receipt of that notice, demand from the other parties a list of documents and witnesses each intends to introduce at the arbitration hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2); §§ 33.27[4], 33.71].

The demand must be in writing and served personally or by registered or certified mail. A copy of the demand must be served on the arbitrator.

Obviously, if you are served with a demand for a list of documents and witnesses, respond to it [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2); § 33.27[4]].

A copy of a response to the demand also must be served on the arbitrator.

§ 33.54 Arbitration Book

Prepare an arbitration book. The arbitration book will be your guide during the arbitration hearing. A copy should be given to the arbitrator(s), at least a few days before the arbitration hearing (or not, depending on the arbitrator(s)' preference and practice), to orient them, to help save time in their understanding and evaluation of the case, and so they will have available at their fingertips the evidence you think is most persuasive. You may wish to give your client a copy of the arbitration book. In some cases, providing your opponent with a copy may enhance your ability to settle the matter.

The arbitration book contains the following:

- ☐ A table of contents. Consider formatting parts of it to parallel any response to demand for list of witnesses and documents [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2)].
- ☐ An arbitration brief that sets forth
  - ☐ The caption,
  - ☐ The parties and their attorneys,
  - ☐ A brief statement of the procedural position of the case, including mention any relevant stipulations, copies of which should be provided in the Pleadings section of the book.

☐ A statement of the facts. Each fact should be cross referenced to the evidence that establishes it, e.g., Deposition of _____, page _____ line _____ through page _____, line _____.

☐ The damages sought (non-economic injuries, property damage, loss of earnings). Summarize each component of damages and total them.

☐ Contentions, if desired,

☐ Points and authorities, if necessary or desired; usually only necessary if there is some unusual aspect of law involved. Consider using standardized jury instructions to set forth the relevant points of law.

☐ The pleadings or other documents that frame the issues.

☐ Official records. Have them certified.

☐ Deposition transcripts or excerpts from them: Highlight the portions you want the arbitrator to read.

☐ Written documents or responses to demand or discovery.

☐ Medical records, reports, and bills.

☐ Maps or diagrams. Official government maps can be judicially noticed.

☐ Experts' reports. Include the expert's curriculum vitae and the information to lay the foundation for the expert's conclusions, i.e., any other documents relied on by the expert to form his or her opinion.

☐ Photographs.

☐ Calendars or time lines.

§ 33.55 Prepare Client and Witnesses

At some point before the arbitration hearing, have a full discussion with your client so your client fully understands the following:

☐ His or her case, position, and points to be presented, including the strengths and weaknesses of the case.

☐ The opposition's position and probable points to be presented and/ or rebutted.

☐ The probabilities that you can prevail and the chances of losing.

☐ Whether you want to consider or settlement; whether to initiate settlement discussions, and how to respond if the opposition initiates settlement discussions.

☐ Whether you wish to consider mediation at this point.

☐ Whether you are ready for arbitration.

If you are representing a defendant, consider whether to let your client's default be taken. This will be appropriate only when there is a possibility of a much larger plaintiff's award if the arbitration goes to full hearing or if there is the possibility of damaging disclosures, publicity, or breach of privacy.

Prepare your client and other witnesses to be a witness, by going over their testimony and reminding them of the following:

- ☐ Be sure you hear each question.
- ☐ Be sure you understand each question.
- ☐ Answer precisely and literally the question asked.
- ☐ The briefest possible answer is the best answer. Use one word answers whenever possible, e.g., "Yes." "No." "Left." Right."
- ☐ Never anticipate what the next question might be.
- ☐ Do not try to remember any answers to any prior questions.
- ☐ Your job is to treat each question as a distinctly separate question.
- ☐ If you do not remember something or you do not know something, the responses that are appropriate are "I do not remember" or "I do not know." If you remember the answer later, tell me at the next break.
- ☐ Do not nod, point, grunt, or use your hands to show size. Your testimony must be spoken.
- ☐ Do not guess at an answer.
- ☐ Do not react in any manner to the person asking the questions, whether friendly or unfriendly and argumentative.
- ☐ If you need a break during your testimony, say so.
- ☐ If your testimony is going smoothly when the other side is questioning you, I will probably be quiet. If I speak up, you should stop talking immediately. Do not even finish the word you are saying. I will make the objection and we will continue from there.
- ☐ Do not be thrown if you break one of these rules. Just go on and do your best. If you dwell on a mistake, it will take your mind off the current question and your answer to it.

Consider how to handle any potentially damaging evidence.It is generally less damaging if you bring out potentially damaging evidence than if the opposition presents its. Tell your client this, so the client understands why you will be brining out this matter and is prepared for it.

Determine whether any of your witnesses have language problems or cultural differences that may cause confusion and if so, how to handle them.

If you need an interpreter, consider arranging for the interpreter to both prepare the witness and to be at the arbitration hearing. Explain the expense and necessity for it to the client and consider whether this is so significant that you should settle the case rather than go forward.

Either use someone the witness is familiar with and get the opposition to agree [by written stipulation] that someone other than a certified interpreter will be acting as interpreter or use a certified interpreter, certified in the language he or she will be translating.

§ 33.56 Pre-arbitration Conference

A pre-arbitration conference is a common practice among arbitrators so that preliminary matters can be discussed/arranged, such as scheduling, procedure. A good time to give the arbitrator(s) your arbitration book. Additional discussion is likely to focus on the following:

- ☐ The pleadings.
- ☐ The status of the process of the case.
- ☐ The factual basis of the claims.
- ☐ Affirmative defenses.
- ☐ Pre-arbitration conference can be in person or by phone (conference call).

Certified court reporter. There is no requirement for or prohibition against a party having an arbitration hearing reported [Compare Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.824(b) (in judicial arbitration no record shall be made of arbitration hearing and arbitrator shall not permit court reporter except one to make nondiscoverable record of proceedings for arbitrator alone)]. If you want one, tell the arbitrator and the opposing party.

If the arbitrator does not have a pre-arbitration conference, you can contact the arbitrator's office to get information as to the procedures the arbitrator follows. It would be an improper ex parte communication to speak to the arbitrator, but communication with office staff about these matters is permissible.

Any stipulation or agreement between the parties regarding procedure can be given to the arbitrator at the pre-arbitration conference.

§ 33.57 Arbitration Hearing

NOTE:
The neutral arbitrator appoints time and place of hearing and serves notice of hearing on parties and on other arbitrators [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a); for forms, see § 33.70].

☐ Attend the arbitration hearing.

☐ Discuss preliminary agreements regarding scheduling, procedure, and evidence. This includes determining number of witnesses, order of witness, and likely amount of time required for each.

☐ Unless sufficiently addressed in your arbitration brief, counsel may with to have prepared a witness list with summary of testimony.

☐ If not presented to the arbitrator at a pre-arbitration conference, present any stipulations or agreements between the parties regarding procedure and evidence.

☐ Either side may present it's evidence first. It may save time to try an affirmative defense first, if that could dispose of the entire matter.

☐ Opening statements if desired. Pre-arbitration conference and/or arbitration briefs may make opening statements unnecessary, but counsel should be prepared to make on opening statement.

☐ Present evidence. Remember proper foundations for documentary, photographic, and physical evidence.

☐ Usual order of examination of each witness is as follows:

☐ Direct examination.

☐ Cross examination. Do not cross examine a witness unless there is a need to cross examine that witness. If the witness has not made any points that were damaging or harmful to your case, avoid the temptation to cross-examine just to look like you are doing your job.

☐ Redirect examination, if necessary.

☐ Rebuttal, if necessary.

☐ Closing argument. You can only argue from evidence you have presented.

☐ Award:

☐ Arbitrators make their award and serve signed copies on parties to the arbitration [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1283.4-1283.8; for a form, see § 33.72].

☐ Apply to the arbitrators for correction of the award, if desired, within 10 days of being served with award [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1284, 1286.6(a), (c)]:

☐ Prepare application to correct the award with the arbitrators [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1284; for a form, see § 33.73].

☐ Deliver or mail application to all other parties at same time as or before making application to arbitrators.

☐ Oppose petition for correction of award, if desired, within 10 days of delivery or mainling of application for correction:

☐ Prepare written objection to the application [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1284].

☐ Deliver or mail objection to all other parties at same time as or before making objection to arbitrators.

☐ If arbitrators do not deny application or correct award and serve signed copy of such denial or correction on parties within 30 days of service of original award on the applicant, the application for correction is deemed denied [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1284].

☐ Arbitrators also have the power to amend an award, before it is confirmed, on their own initiative [see discussion at § 33.28[6]].

☐ If you believe the arbitrator has inadvertently neglected to include an issue or party in the award, inform the arbitrator and opposing parties and request amendment as soon as possible.

[b] Use of Form

The form of petition in [a], above, is for use in obtaining a court order appointing an arbitrator when the parties to an arbitration agreement are unable to do so. An oral agreement to appoint a particular arbitrator in derogation of the parties' written agreement providing for another arbitrator or arbitration provider organization is not enforceable. An arbitrator's powers derive from, and cannot exceed, the contract to arbitrate and the parties' submission to arbitration. Thus, election of an arbitrator who is not authorized by the arbitration contract confers no authority on the person selected [Magness Petroleum Company v. Warren Resources of California, Inc. (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 901, 907-909, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 159 (alleged oral agreement was not enforceable as stipulation); American Home Assurance Co. v. Benowitz (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 192, 200-201, 285 Cal. Rptr. 626] .

[c] Allegations

A petition to appoint an arbitrator should allege facts showing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6]:

- A written agreement to arbitrate (Paragraph 2).
- The agreement does or does not provide for the manner of appointing an arbitrator (Paragraph 2).
- The controversy that is subject to arbitration (Paragraph 3).
- Either there is no agreed method for appointing an arbitrator or the method agreed on has failed for specified reasons or an arbitrator appointed by the parties has failed to act and his or her successor has not been appointed (Paragraph 4).

The petition also alleges facts to show that the court and the county in which the petition is filed has proper jurisdiction and venue (Paragraph 1) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(10)(A), 1292].

In the prayer the petition requests that the court nominate five persons as possible arbitrators and notify the parties of the nominees, and to appoint the arbitrator if the parties do not agree to one within five days after that notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6].

[d] Copies

The following copies of the petition should be prepared:

- Original to be filed in the court and conformed copy for the court to stamp and return.
- One copy to be served on each of the other parties.
- One copy for the client, if desired.
- One office file copy.

- Other copies as desired.

[e] Service

A copy of the petition and a written notice of time and place of the hearing and any other papers on which the petition is based are to be served in the manner provided in the arbitration agreement, if it so provides [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(a)].

If the arbitration agreement does not provide the manner of service and the person on whom service is to be made has neither previously appeared in the proceeding nor been served in the following manner, service within the state is to be performed in the manner provided by law for the service of summons in an action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(b)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 413.10-417.40 (governing service of summons)]. Service outside the state is to be made by registered or certified mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(b)(2)].

If the arbitration agreement does not provide the manner in which service is to be made and the person to be served has previously appeared in the proceeding or has previously been served in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(b), above, service is to be made in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020, governing service of papers other than summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(c)].

For procedure and forms dealing with service generally, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[f] Jurisdiction and Venue

Jurisdiction and venue of petitions to appoint an arbitrator are the same as on a petition to compel arbitration [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1292]. For discussion, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.91[1][f], [g].

[2] Order Appointing Neutral Arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6]

[a] FORM Petition to Appoint Neutral Arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6]--Order Appointing Neutral Arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,

	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	ORDER

vs.	)	Time: _____
_____ [name],	)	Dept.: _____
Respondent.	)	Judge: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	Trial Date: _____

The petition of _____ [name] for an order appointing an arbitrator came on regularly for hearing by the court on _____ [date], and was continued until _____ [date]. Petitioner _____ [name] appeared by his/her/its counsel _____ [name] and respondent _____ [name] appeared by his/her/its counsel _____ [name].

The court having nominated five persons for appointment as arbitrator, namely, _____ [names], and the parties having received notice of those nominees on _____ [date] and having failed to select an arbitrator within five days thereafter, and proof having been made to the satisfaction of the court that the petition should be granted,

IT IS ORDERED that _____ [name] is appointed as arbitrator in the above-entitled matter.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the _____ Court

[b] Use of Form

The form of order in [a], above, is for use to grant a petition for appointment of an arbitrator. Customarily, the order is prepared by counsel for the petitioner and submitted to the judge at the hearing after the parties have failed to select the arbitrator. The judge will fill in the name of the appointee, sign and date the order, and return it to counsel for service and filing.

[c] Contents

The order recites that the court nominated five persons to be selected as arbitrator and that the parties failed to select an arbitrator within five days after receipt of notice of the nominees. The order then directs that one of the nominees is appointed as arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6].

[d] Copies

The order should be prepared in the same number of copies as the petition [see [1][d], above].

[e] Procedure

Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6 contemplates two stages of the hearing:

- At the first stage the court nominates five persons from lists which are either jointly submitted by the parties to the arbitration or are submitted by a governmental agency or a private disinterested association concerned with arbitration. The court then continues the hearing for at least five days after the parties have received notice of the nominees so that they may select an arbitrator (which need not be one of the nominees).

- At the subsequent stage of the hearing the court determines whether or not the parties have selected the arbitrator and, if not, appoints one of the nominees as arbitrator.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a party to give notice of disqualification of a proposed neutral arbitrator [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(a), (b)(1); Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 10(a)(1)-(3)]. The right to disqualify a proposed neutral arbitrator in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91 cannot be waived by agreeing to arbitrate in accordance with rules that provide some other means of determining whether the proposed neutral arbitrator should be disqualified. The statutory scheme exists primarily to serve the public purpose of promoting public confidence in the arbitration process and does not allow an individual right of waiver to take precedence [Azteca Constr., Inc. v. ADR Consulting, Inc. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1156, 1166-1168, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 142] .

It appears that the form may also be modified for use in disqualifying a court-appointed arbitrator under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(b)(2). The statute does not, however, specifically state whether the disqualification in that case is also by means of notice of disqualification.

For further discussion of the disclosure and disqualification provisions under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91, see § 33.14[3]. Disclosure requirements and disqualification procedures under the Ethics Standards [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standards 7, 8, and 10] are discussed at § 33.14[2].

[3] Statement of Grounds for Disqualification

Neither Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(b)(1) nor Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 10(a)(2)-(3) expressly state whether a party is required to set forth the grounds for disqualification in the notice [compare Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 10(a)(4) (notice of disqualification based on material omission or misrepresentation in disclosure must clearly describe omission or misrepresentation and how and when party became aware of it)]. When the disqualification is of a court-appointed neutral arbitrator, Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(b)(2) provides for one disqualification of right, but that any additional disqualifications must be for cause. Thus, if the party seeking the disqualification has already exercised the right to disqualify a court-appointed neutral arbitrator, the grounds will have to be given. Otherwise counsel should consider whether or not to state the grounds.

[4] Contents

The first alternative in the form gives notice of disqualification on the ground that the person proposed for nomination by the parties, or proposed for appointment by the court on petition of a party under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6, failed to comply with the disclosure requirements stated in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9 or Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7 or 8 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 10(a)(1)].

The second alternative gives notice of disqualification based on a disclosure statement submitted by the proposed nominee or appointee that complies with Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7 or 8 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(b)(1); Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 10(a)(2)], or that complied except that it was served after the time required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(b) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91; Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 10(a)(3)].

[5] Service

When the notice for disqualification is based on the noncompliance provision, the party entitled to receive the disclosure must serve the notice within 15 calendar days after the proposed nominee or appointee fails to comply [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 10(a)(1)].

When the notice for disqualification is based on a disclosure statement that complies with the disclosure requirements, the party entitled to receive the disclosure must serve the notice within 15 calendar days after service of the disclosure statement [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(b)(1); Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 10(a)(2)]. When notice of disqualification is based on a disclosure statement that was served after the time required in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(b), it is not clear when the notice disqualification must be served. If the arbitrator serves a disclosure statement late, that would constitute failure to comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(b) and would seem to be within Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(a), which requires that the notice of disqualification be served within 15 calendar days of the failure to comply. Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 10(a)(3) refers to a disclosure statement that is served more than 10 calendar days after notice of service of the proposed nomination or anointment "and is based on that statement," which seems to imply that a notice of disqualification would be timely if served within 15 days of receipt of the late disclosure statement.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a notice for use by the neutral arbitrator in notifying the parties of the time and place appointed for the hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(1), (2)].

If the arbitration is being administered by a provider, such as the American Arbitration Association, the provider may have its own form of notice of hearing that the arbitrator will use.

[3] Copies

The following copies of the notice of hearing should be prepared:

- Original for the files of the neutral arbitrator.
- One copy for each party to the arbitration and each of the other arbitrators.

[4] Time for Notice

[a] Seven-Day Notice

Generally, the neutral arbitrator is required to appoint a time and place for the hearing and cause notice of the hearing to be served personally or by registered or certified mail on the parties to the arbitration and on the other arbitrators not less than seven days before the hearing, unless the parties agree otherwise [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(1)]. If the arbitration agreement incorporated the rules of an arbitration service provider, those rules may include different time limits. For example, Section 21 of the Commercial Arbitration Rules of the American Arbitration Association provides that the arbitrator shall fix the time and place for each hearing and that the Association mails to each party notice of the hearing at least five days in advance, unless the parties by mutual agreement waive notice or modify the terms of notice.

[b] Sixty-Day Notice

If a party notifies the abritrator that the aggregate amount in controversy exceeds $50,000, the neutral arbitrator must give 60 days notice. This requirement does not apply if the matter arises from a collective-bargaining agreement, involves personal injury or death, or if the parties' agreement is to the contrary. To invoke the 60-day notice provision, the party must notify the arbitrator by personal service or registered or certified mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2)]. When the 60-day notice requriement applies, the parties also have the right to demand witness lists [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2); for a form of demand, see § 33.71].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a party to arbitration to demand from the other party a list of witnesses the other party intends to call at the hearing and a list of documents the other party intends to introduce. The demand must be made within 15 days of receipt of the notice of hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2)(A)]. The demand is only available in the limited circumstances when a 60-day notice of hearing has been given [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2); for discussion, see § 33.70[4][b]].

The demand must be in writing and served personally or by registered or certified mail. A copy of the demand and the demanding party's lists must be served on the arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2)(A)].

[3] Failure to List Witness or Document

A party who fails to list a witness or a document will be barred from introducing the unlisted witness' testimony or the undesignated document at the hearing, unless the party shows good cause, as determined by the arbitrator, for omission from the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2)(A) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2)(E)].

[4] Waiver of Time Limits

Time limits provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2) may be waived by mutual agreement of the parties if approved by the arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(a)(2)(D)].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by the arbitrator or arbitrators to make an award [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.4]. The optional paragraph awarding attorney's fees is to be used only if attorney's fees are awarded under authority granted to the arbitrator to do so.

[3] Contents

An award must be in writing and signed by the arbitrators concurring therein. It includes a determination of all the questions submitted to the arbitrators the decision of which is necessary in order to determine the controversy [Corp. Code 1283.4].

Arbitrators are not required to make findings of facts or give reasons for their awards [Sapp v. Barenfeld (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 515, 522, 212 P.2d 233 ; Frantz v. Inter-Insurance Exchange of Auto. Club (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 269, 273, 40 Cal. Rptr. 218] .

Arbitrators may only award attorney's fees if authorized by the contract [Tate v. Saratoga Savings & Loan Assn. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 843, 856-857, 265 Cal. Rptr. 440 (attorney's fee authorization in judicial action included award in arbitration)] or arbitration agreement [Kahn v. Chetcuti (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 61, 67-68, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 606] or by statute [see Broughton v. Cigna Healthplans of California (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1066, 1086-1087, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334, 988 P.2d 67]. Any authorized award must be included in the final award, or the entitled party must move to correct the award [see Moore v. Bank of San Luis Obispo (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 782, 788-789, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 603, 996 P.2d 706 ; for discussion, see § 33.29[3][b]].

[4] Copies

The following copies of the award should be prepared [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.6]:

- Original for the files of the neutral arbitrator.
- One copy (signed) to be served on each party to the arbitration.

- Other copies as desired.

[5] Time

The award is required to be made within the time fixed for the award by the agreement, or, if not so fixed, within such time as the court orders on petition of a party to the arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.8]. Rendition of the award within the time specified in the submission agreement is jurisdictional [Librascope Inc. v. Precision Lodge No. 1600, Internat. Assn. of Machinists (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 71, 75 ; Rusnak v. General Controls Co. (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 583, 584, 7 Cal. Rptr. 71] . The parties, however, may extend the time either before or after it expires. A party waives the objection that an award was not made within the time required unless he or she gives the arbitrators written notice of objection prior to the service of a signed copy of the award on him or her [Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.8]. Waiver of the time limitation validates the award made after expiration of the specified time [Librascope Inc. v. Precision Lodge No. 1600, Internat. Assn. of Machinists (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 71, 75].

[6] Service

The neutral arbitrator is required to serve a signed copy of the award on each party to the arbitration personally or by registered or certified mail, or as provided in the agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.6].

§ 33.73 Application to Arbitrators for Correction of Award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1284]

[1] FORM Application to Arbitrators for Correction of Award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1284]

In the Matter of the Arbitration Between	)
_____ [name],	)	APPLICATION FOR CORRECTION OF AWARD vs.	)

To _____ [name(s)], arbitrator(s):

Applicant _____ [name] prays correction of the award made in the above-entitled matter, dated _____, and _____ [mailed by the neutral arbitrator _____ (name) or personally served on this applicant] on _____ [date 10 days or less before the date of the application]. The grounds and reasons for this application are as follows:

[LIST all corrections in separate paragraphs, including page and line of the award to be corrected when appropriate to the requested correction, e.g.:]

1. The award lacks specificity as to which respondents are liable to the claimant, which is likely to cause difficulty in confirming the award and obtaining an enforceable judgment.

2. The award contains a _____ [miscalculation or misstatement] at page _____, line _____, which should read _____ [state correction] instead of _____ [quote error in award].

3. The award is imperfect in form in that: _____ [set forth defect, e.g., all the concurring arbitrators have not signed the award].

[CONTINUE]

[This application is made pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 1284, _____ (list supporting papers, e.g., the attached memorandum of points and authorities, and the declaration of _____ (name)].

[The arbitrators should be aware that Code of Civil Procedure Section 1284 requires any corrected award to be served within 30 days after service of the original copy of the award on the applicant. Thus, by the narrowest terms of Code of Civil Procedure Section 1284, the corrected copy of the award must be served by _____ (date), or the application will be denied by operation of law and the arbitrators will lose jurisdiction.]

WHEREFORE, applicant respectfully requests that the award of the arbitrator(s) in the above entitled matter, dated _____, be corrected as follows:

1. _____ [Specify, e.g., To add the signature of _____ (name).]

2. _____ [Specify any other corrections to be made.]
Dated: _____

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Applicant

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an application for use by a party to an arbitration to seek correction of the award by the arbitrators see Code Civ. Proc. § 1284]. For forms dealing with correction of the award by the court, see §§ 33.52 and 33.59.

[3] Contents

The application is in writing and recites the date of service of the award on the applicant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1284 (application must be made no later than 10 days after that service)], and sets forth as grounds for correction that there is a miscalculation or that the award is imperfect in a matter of form [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1284, 1286.6(a), (c)].

The form also includes an optional paragraph to state what papers are submitted in support of the application and another to state the date by which the corrected award must be served on the applicant in order to be effective [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1284; for discussion of timing issues, see [4], below].

[4] Time Requirements

Application to the arbitrator for correction of the award must be made no later than 10 days after service of a signed copy of the award on the applicant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1284]. If the arbitrator does not serve a corrected award within 30 days after service of the award on the applicant, the application for correction is deemed denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 1284].

PRACTICE TIP:

Protect Against Code's Vague Timing Requirements. The code is not clear when the 10- and 30-day periods commence. The code calculates both from service of the award on the applicant, but it does not state what is service [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1284]. Certainly, in the case of personal service, there is no problem figuring the 10 days. However, when the arbitrator mails the award, counsel should assume (to err on the side of caution) that service is complete on the day the award is mailed.

Additionally, in the application to the arbitrator, the 30-day time limit commencement should be stated. Including this statement allows all parties to know when the arbitrator's 30 days of extended jurisdiction for making corrections terminates. It forewarns the opposing party as well as the arbitrator.

Because the arbitrators must respond within 30 days of the service of the award, it is best to request that the arbitrator have the corrected award personally served on the parties within the 30-day period, or stipulate that service of the corrected award is complete on the date of mailing or the date of faxing. By Michael S. Fields

[5] Copies

The following copies of the application should be prepared:

- Original for filing with the arbitrators.
- One copy to be delivered or mailed to each of the other parties to the arbitration.
- One copy for the client, if desired.
- One copy for the office file.
- Other copies as desired.

[6] Delivery of Copies to Parties

On or before making the application, the applicant is required to deliver or mail a copy of the application to all of the other parties to the arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1284].

PRACTICE TIP:

Use Personal Service to Clarify Time Limits for Objection. The opposing party has 10 days to object to the application. The code is not specific as to when the 10-day period commences. Thus, it is best for the applying party to personally serve the opposing party. This clearly defines the 10-day period. To do otherwise creates confusion, and the arbitrator may not have sufficient time to evaluate the application and opposition with the balance of time remaining on the 30-day period within which the arbitrator must act [for further discussion of timing issues, see [4], above]. By Michael S. Fields

[7] Objection to Application

Any party to the arbitration may make written objection to the application no later than 10 days after the application is delivered or mailed to him or her. On or before making that objection, the objector must deliver or mail a copy of the objection to the applicant and all the other parties to the arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1284].

[8] Denial or Correction

The arbitrators must either deny the application or correct the award no later than 30 days after service of a signed copy of the award on the applicant. A denial or correction is to be in writing signed by the arbitrators concurring in it. The neutral arbitrator must serve a copy of the denial or correction on each of the parties personally or by registered or certified mail, or as provided in the agreement. If no denial or correction is served within 30 days after service of a signed copy of the award on the applicant, the application is deemed denied on the last day of that period [Code Civ. Proc. § 1284].

§ 33.74 Complaint for Declaratory Relief, Temporary Restraining Order, and Preliminary and Permanent Injunction to Prevent Arbitration--General Form

[1] FORM Complaint for Declaratory Relief, Temporary Restraining Order, and Preliminary and Permanent Injunction to Prevent Arbitration--General Form

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	COMPLAINT FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF,
Defendant(s).	)	TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER AND PRE-)	LIMINARY AND PERMANENT INJUNCTION

1. Defendant is a domestic corporation and has its principal place of business in _____ County, California [or allege other capacity and residence].

[2. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as DOES I-_____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by these fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained.]

[3. Agency allegation, if desired, e.g., At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ (name) was the agent and employee of defendant _____ (name) and, in doing the things herein mentioned, was acting in the scope of his/her authority and employment.]

4. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff and defendant entered into a written contract by which _____ [describe general effect of agreement]. The agreement contains an arbitration clause which provides in Paragraph _____ as follows: _____ [set forth relevant portions of clause]. A copy of the agreement is attached as Exhibit "A" and made a part of hereof.

5. On or about _____ [date], a controversy arose between plaintiff and defendant concerning _____ [describe controversy].

6. _____ [Allege facts showing why the controversy, or any particular issues thereof, is not subject to arbitration, e.g., The arbitration clause herein set forth expressly excludes from arbitration the issues as to _____ (specify) which are directly involved in the present dispute between plaintiff and defendant. Plaintiff has not agreed to submit those issues to arbitration.]

7. On or about _____ [date], defendant delivered to plaintiff a demand for arbitration and initiated arbitration before _____ [specify agency conducting arbitration, e.g., the American Arbitration Association] and threatens to submit the full controversy alleged herein to that arbitration. The arbitration clause herein set forth permits either party to proceed with arbitration ex parte if the other party does not appoint an arbitrator and does not participate in the arbitration.

8. A bona fide dispute exists between plaintiff and defendant in that:

a. Defendant contends that _____ [set forth contentions, e.g., the entire controversy set forth in this complaint is subject to arbitration, and the arbitrators have exclusive jurisdiction to determine whether or not any issues are to be excluded from arbitration].

b. Plaintiff, however, contends that _____ [set forth opposing contentions, e.g., the arbitration is limited in scope to the issues which the parties agreed to arbitrate; the agreement of the parties set forth herein expressly excludes from arbitration the issues as to _____ (specify); settlement of the existing controversy between the parties involves a determination of those nonarbitrable issues; and the entirety of the controversy is not subject to arbitration and that arbitration may not proceed until those nonarbitrable issues are first determined by a court of competent jurisdiction].

9. Unless defendant is restrained by the court from proceeding with the arbitration pending hearing on plaintiff's Order to Show Cause and pending trial of this action, and unless he/she is permanently enjoined as herein prayed, defendant threatens to proceed with arbitration as herein alleged and plainttiff will, as a proximate result, suffer great and irreparable injury and will be compelled to submit to arbitration and to subsequent court action. Plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law.

[10. The agreement herein alleged provides for recovery of attorney's fees as follows: _____ (set forth relevant provision). Plaintiff has incurred reasonable attorney's fees to date in the sum of $_____ and will incur additional attorney's fees according to proof.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. That the court determine that the existing controversy between plaintiff and defendant [regarding the issues of whether _____ (specify)] is not subject to arbitration under the agreement alleged in this complaint.

2. For an order requiring defendant to show cause, if any, why he/she should not be enjoined during the pendency of this action from further proceeding with arbitration.

3. For a temporary restraining order, apreliminary injunction, and a permanent injunction, all enjoining defendant from proceeding with arbitration of the controversy alleged herein [until the issues of whether _____ (specify) are first determined by a court of competent jurisdiction].

4. For costs of suit incurred herein [including a reasonable attorney's fee in the sum of $_____, and additional fees according to proof].

5. For such order and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by a party to an arbitration agreement to seek a declaratory judgment determining that a controversy, or certain issues of the controversy, is not subject to arbitration under the agreement and to seek an injunction pending arbitration of the controversy or issues [for discussion, see § 33.22].

For other forms dealing with declaratory relief and injunction, see Chs. 182, Declaratory Relief , and 303, Injunctions , respectively.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges the following [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 (declaratory relief)]:

- The arbitration agreement (Paragraph 4).
- The controversy (Paragraph 5).
- Facts showing that the controversy, or certain issues thereof, is not arbitrable (Paragraph 6).
- The threat of pending arbitrations initiated by defendant (Paragraph 7).
- The contentions of the parties showing an actual controversy meriting declaratory relief (Paragraph 8).

The complaint also alleges facts showing threat of irreparable injury to plaintiff, multiplicity of proceedings, and no adequate remedy at law if a temporary restraining order, and preliminary and permanent injunction are not granted (Paragraph 9) [see Civ. Code § 3422; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 525, 527(c)(1)]. The facts showing sufficient grounds for a preliminary injunction and showing great or irreparable injury for granting a temporary restraining order (see Paragraph 9) may be presented either by verified complaint or by affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 527(a), 2015.5].

If the agreement provides for attorney's fees, the complaint should also contain an allegation setting forth the provision and the fact that fees have been incurred (Paragraph 10) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1021 (recovery of attorney fees as based on agreement or statute)].

[4] Preliminary Injunction and Verification

An injunction may be granted at any time before judgment on a verified complaint or on affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5). The injunction may be granted if the complaint in the one case, or the affidavits in the other, show satisfactorily that sufficient grounds exist for the injunction [see Code Civ.

Proc. § 526 (grounds)]. As cause for a temporary restraining order, the verified complaint or affidavits must show that great or irreparable injury will be caused plaintiff before the matter can be heard on notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(c)(1)].

Verification may also be desirable although it is not required, because in an action in superior court, verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] and precludes a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers . For alternative forms of verification, see Ch. 572, Verification .

[5] Certification re Notice

When a temporary restraining order is sought without formal notice, the applicant or the applicant's attorney must certify one of the following to the court under oath:

- Within a reasonable time prior to the application the applicant informed the opposing party or the opposing party's attorney at what time and where the application would be made [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(c)(2)(A)].

- He or she in good faith attempted to inform the opposing party (or attorney) but was unable to do so, specifying the efforts made to do so [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(c)(2)(B)].

- For reasons specified he or she should not be required to inform the opposing party (or attorney) [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(c)(2)(C)].

This requirement for certification regarding notice does not apply when an order is being issued under the Family Code [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(g)].

[6] Copies

The following copies should be prepared:

- Original to be filed with the court and conformed copy for the court to stamp and return.

- One copy to be served on the defendant together with the summons and other papers, such as the order to show cause and temporary restraining order.

- One copy for the client, if desired.

- One copy for the office file.

- Other copies as desired.

[7] Jurisdiction

Becuase this petition seeks permanent injunctive relief and declaratory relief, it is in the jurisdiction of the superior court as a case of unlimited jurisdiction [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(7), (8), 580(b)(2), (4)].

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 33.74[1], Paragraph 1.]

2. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 33.74[1], Paragraph 2.]

3. [Agency allegation, if appropriate. See § 33.74[1], Paragraph 3.]

4. On or before, _____ [date], in California, plaintiff issued its insurance policy numbered _____ known and designated as an _____ [identify policy, e.g., Auto Garage Policy], to defendant _____ [name], insuring him/her against liability in operation of the automobile described therein from _____ [date], to _____ [date]. A copy of the policy is attached as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof.

5. _____ [Identify relevant portion of the policy, e.g., Part _____, Paragraph _____, of the policy provides uninsured motorist coverage by the terms of which plaintiff agreed to _____ (e.g., pay all sums that the insured shall be legally entitled to recover as damages from the owner or operator of an uninsured automobile because of bodily injury, sickness or disease, including death resulting therefrom, sustained by the insured, caused by accident and arising out of the ownership, maintenance, or use of such uninsured automobile; this coverage by its terms further provides that if the insured and the company are unable to agree whether the insured is legally entitled to recover such damages and, if so, the amount thereof, then determination thereof is to be made by arbitration)].

[Part _____, Paragraph _____ of the policy further provides that the word "insured" includes any person while occupying the insured automobile.]

6. On or about _____ [date], while the policy was in effect, defendant _____ [name] was involved in an accident in which the automobile he/she was driving and an automobile allegedly operated and owned by one _____ [name] collided. Defendant claimed that _____ [name of operator and owner] was uninsured at the time of the accident, that the accident was caused solely by _____'s [name of uninsured motorist] negligence, and that _____ [name of uninsured motorist] was legally liable to defendant for damages. After the accident, defendant submitted a claim to plaintiff for injury and damages under the uninsured motorist coverage of the policy described in this complaint.

7. On or about _____ [date], defendant entered into an agreement with plaintiff to settle all claims he/she might have under the uninsured motorist coverage of the policy for the sum of $_____. On the same date, plaintiff paid defendant that sum in full and defendant, in consideration of the payment, executed a full and final release releasing plaintiff herein from any and all claims he/she had, or might have, for both personal injuries, known and unknown, and property damage sustained by him/her arising out of the accident of _____ [date]. A copy of the release is attached as Exhibit "B" and made a part hereof.

8. Notwithstanding execution of the release, defendant _____ [name] filed with _____ [e.g., the American Arbitration Association], on _____ [date], a demand for arbitration in which a claim against plaintiff was asserted under the uninsured motorist coverage for alleged injuries sustained by defendant _____ [name] in the accident in this complaint. A copy of the demand is attached as Exhibit "C" and made a part hereof.

9. _____ [Identify arbitration organization, e.g., The American Arbitration Association] is proceeding to appoint an arbitrator and hold a hearing on the demand and will continue with such proceeding unless restrained and enjoined by this court from so doing.

10. A bona fide dispute exists between plaintiff and defendant _____ in that:

a. Defendant contends that _____ [set forth contentions, e.g., his/her present claim is not barred by the release herein described because he/she did not know at the time of executing it that the injuries for which he/she now seeks damages were proximately caused by the accident of _____ (date). Defendant contends that he/she did not learn that the damages were proximately caused by the accident until _____ (date), and defendant's failure to learn was a result of _____ (specify reason for delay). Defend further contends that he/she has a valid claim, that claim entitles him/her to arbitration under the terms of the policy because plaintiff refused to pay it; and the effect of the release agreement can be determined by the arbitrator].

b. Plaintiff, however, contends that _____ [set forth opposing contentions, e.g., the release constitutes a waiver of arbitration and bars the present claim and any and all other claims that defendant _____ (name) has or may have, arising out of the accident of _____ (date). Plaintiff further contends that whether the claim is properly made depends solely on the validity and effect to be given the release agreement, and the effect and validity of the release agreement are matters that are not within the scope of the arbitration provisions of the policy and therefore may not be determined by the arbitrator].

11. Plaintiff has no plain, speedy, or adequate remedy at law and will, unless this court declares the rights of the parties to be otherwise and enjoins the arbitration, be compelled to submit to arbitration and further court action under the provisions of Section 1285 of the Code of Civil Procedure should an award be made.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays:

1. For an order requiring defendant to show cause, if any, why he/she should not be enjoined during the pendency of this action from further proceeding with arbitration.

2. For a temporary restraining order, preliminary injunction, and permanent injunction, all enjoining defendant from proceeding to determine the arbitration demand now before _____ [identify arbitration organization, e.g., the American Arbitration Association].

3. For a judgment declaring that any and all claims of defendant _____ [name] arising out of the accident of _____ [date], against plaintiff under the provisions of the policy attached to this complaint as Exhibit "A" have been compromised, settled, and released by the release attached to this complaint as Exhibit "B," and that the release is valid and bars any further such claims against plaintiff under the uninsured motorist coverage of the policy.

4. For costs of suit herein incurred.

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by an insurer to seek declaratory judgment determining the validity of a release and its effect on defendant's right to arbitrate an uninsured motorist claim and to enjoin threatened arbitration of the claim [see Commercial Ins. Co. v. Copeland (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 561, 56 Cal. Rptr. 794] . For additional comments relating to a complaint to prevent arbitration, see § 33.74.

_____ [name],	)	CEEDINGS
Respondent.	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]
	)	[Amount demanded _____
	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]

Petitioner alleges:

1. _____ [Allege existence of separate arbitration agreements or proceedings between same parties, or separate agreement or proceeding between petitioner and third party, e.g., There are now pending between petitioner and respondent two separate arbitration proceedings. One of them is pending before _____ (names), arbitrators appointed pursuant to the Commercial Arbitration Rules of the American Arbitration Association].

2. Both proceedings concern disputes arising between the parties out of the same _____ [transaction or series of transactions], namely, _____ [specify transaction or transactions, e.g., a lease of commercial premises, petitioner being lessor and respondent being lessee].

3. There is a common issue of _____ [law or fact] in both proceedings, namely, _____ [specify, e.g., whether a fire which destroyed part of the roof of the premises was caused by petitioner's employees in the course of repairing the roof or by respondent in the course of using and occupying the premises].

4. There is a possibility that the separate arbitrators will reach opposite or otherwise conflicting decisions on this issue, and that the resolution of other issues related to it may therefore produce conflicting decisions as to the parties' rights and duties.

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays:

1. That the court order the two proceedings consolidated for hearing before _____ [specify, if petitioner prefers particular arbitrators, e.g., the arbitrators heretofore appointed pursuant to the Commercial Arbitration Rules of the American Arbitration Association];

2. That, in the event complete consolidation of the proceedings be not ordered, the court order consolidation, before the above-mentioned arbitrators, of the proceedings insofar as they involve common issues of law or fact;

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of petition in [1], above, is for use by a party to an arbitration agreement wishing to have separate arbitration proceedings consolidated, or partially consolidated, as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.3. The form may not be used, however, in a dispute regarding the professional negligence of a health care provider made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1295.

If the matter is governed by the Federal Arbitration Act, the arbitrator--not the court--will decide whether the arbitration should be consolidated [See Yuen v. Superior Court (Gemstar--TV Guide International, Inc.) (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1133 (discussed at § 33.21[1A])]. The petition may be modified for presentation before an arbitrator, but counsel should first consult any rules the sponsoring organization may have regarding consolidation.

[3] Allegations

The petition should allege facts showing that the three conditions for consolidation exist. They are [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.3]:

- Separate arbitration agreements or proceedings exist between the same parties, or the petitioner is a party to a separate arbitration agreement or proceeding with a third party.

- The disputes arise from the same transaction or series of related transactions.

- There is at least one common issue of law or fact creating the possibility of conflicting decisions by the arbitrators.

[4] Costs

The prevailing party is entitled to recover costs as a matter of right [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1032(b), 1293.2]. Items allowed or not allowed as costs are set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5.

[5] Jurisdiction and Venue

Superior courts have jurisdiction over arbitration-related petitions whether the matter is a limited or unlimited civil case [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(10)(A); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 85 (defining "limited civil case")].

If the proceeding is a limited civil case, and the petition is the first paper filed, the caption must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000. The caption must also identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 72055; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

Venue is in the county in which the arbitration is being held [Code Civ. Proc. § 1292.2]. If arbitration is not being held exclusively in one county in California, or if held outside California, then venue is in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1292 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1292.2; for diiscussion of section 1292, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.43[4]].

§ 34.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter provides discussion and forms relating to judicial review of contractual arbitration. Topics covered include the effect of the arbitration award [see § 34.11], procedure [see §§ 34.12, 34.13] and grounds [see §§ 34.18 -34.20] for petitions to confirm, vacate, or correct an award, the procedure for opposing those petitions [see § 34.14], and appeal from judgments on those petitions [see § 34.22].

The chapter also provides a Research Guide [see § 34.30 et seq.] and a Procedural Checklist [see § 34.40 et seq.], and the following forms:

- Petition to confirm award [see § 34.50].
- Response requesting correction or vacation of award [see § 34.52].
- Petition to vacate award [see § 34.56].
- Response requesting confirmation of award [see § 34.57].
- Petition to correct award [see § 34.59].
- Orders and judgments confirming award [see §§ 34.53 -34.55].
- Order vacating award [see § 34.58].

§ 34.03 Governing Law

Arbitration by agreement is governed generally by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2. In addition, disclosures relating to a neutral arbitrator's impartiality are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.1, 1281.85, 1281.9. 1281.91, 1281.95 and the Ethics Standards for Neutral Arbitrators in Contractual Arbitration, Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standards 7, 8, 10, and 14.

Various statutes govern agreements to arbitrate a variety of specific types of controversies, such as the following:

- Compensation in eminent domain proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1273.010-1273.050; see Ch. 247, Eminent Domain, § 247.190 et seq.].

- Professional negligence of health care providers [Code Civ. Proc. § 1295; see Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice].

- Disputes involving public construction contracts [Code Civ. Proc. § 1296].

- International commercial arbitration and conciliation [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432; see Ch. 35, Arbitration and Conciliation of International Commercial Disputes].

- Real estate contract disputes [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1298-1298.8].

- Uninsured motorist and underinsured motorist claims [Ins. Code § 11580.2; see Ch. 88A, Automobiles: Uninsured Motorist Claims].

- Wage claims [Lab. Code § 229].
- Labor contracts with talent agencies [Lab. Code § 1700.45; see Ch. 370, Motion Pictures].
- State employees' workmen's compensation and insurance [Lab. Code §§ 6144-6146].

If a dispute involves interstate or foreign commerce or maritime law, 9 U.S.C. §§ 1-15 will also govern.

§ 34.10 Scope of Review

[1] Statutory Grounds for Review

The powers of the court in proceedings for judicial review of an arbitration award are set forth in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1286, 1287-1287.4, and the court's scope of review in such proceedings is defined by those provisions.

The court's powers include the following:

- To confirm the award as made [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286; for discussion, see § 34.18].
- To correct the award and confirm it as corrected [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.6; for discussion, see § 34.20].
- To vacate the award [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2; for discussion, see § 34.19].
- To order a rehearing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1287; for discussion, see § 34.19[2][b]].
- To dismiss the proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1287.2; for discussion, see § 34.21].

For discussion of review of an award by a second arbitrator, see Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding, § 33.28[7].

[2] Review of Error of Fact or Law in Award

[a] Judicial Review of Merits Under California Statutes

[i] General Rule

Absent some limiting clause in the arbitration agreement, the merits of the award, either on questions of fact or of law, may not be judicially reviewed except as provided in the arbitration statutes [Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 25, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899] . Under the statutory criteria, neither the merits of the controversy nor the sufficiency of the evidence to support the arbitrator's award are matters for judicial review. The court may not substitute its judgment for that of the arbitrators [Morris v. Zuckerman (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 686, 691, 72 Cal. Rptr. 880, 446 P.2d 1000 ; Woodard v. Southern Cal. Permanente Medical Group (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 656, 661, 217 Cal. Rptr. 514] . Unless specifically required to act in conformity with rules of law, arbitrators may base their decision on broad principles of justice and equity, and in doing so may expressly or impliedly reject a claim that a party might successfully have asserted in a judicial action [Cable Connection, Inc. v. DirecTV, Inc. (2008) Cable Connection, Inc. v. DirecTV, Inc. (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 1334, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229, 190 P.3d 586 ; Moncharsh v. Heily & Blasee (1993) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 10-11, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P. 2d 899 ; Sapp v. Barenfeld (1940) 34 Cal. 2d 515, 523, 212 P.2d 233].

PRACTICE TIP:

If the arbitration award consists of an injunction, and the facts or circumstances on which the injunction was based have changed so that the award is no longer appropriate, the court cannot modify or vacate the injunction. The proper remedy is to request that the arbitrator modify the award or to initiate a new arbitration proceeding for that purpose [Swan Magnetics v. Superior Court (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1504, 1512, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 541 (injunction enforcing noncompetition clause allegedly rendered unfair and obsolete by competitor's acquisition of party to arbitration)].

[ii] Specific Statutory Authorizations of Merit Review

When an arbitration clause in a public construction contract requires that the arbitration award be supported by law and substantial evidence, the court will vacate the award if it determines on review that the award is not supported by substantial evidence or is based on an error of law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1296].

[b] Expanded Judicial Review Under California Rule

[i] The California Rule

Provisions of the arbitration agreement may alter the statutory limits on judicial review of contractual arbitration awards. The California rule is that the parties may obtain judicial review of the merits by express agreement [Cable Connection, Inc. v. DirecTV, Inc. (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 1334, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229, 190 P.3d 586 (disapproving, to extent they conflict with opinion expressed therein), Crowell v. Downey Community Hospital Foundation (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 730, 735, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810 ; Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum Authority v. CC Partners (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 635, 645, 124 Cal. Rptr. 3d 363 ; Old Republic Ins. Co. v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 631, 638-639, 53 Cal. Rptr.2d 50)]. The failure to provide for that scope of review by statute does not mean the parties themselves may not do so by contract [Cable Connection, Inc. v. DirecTV, Inc. (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 1334, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229, 190 P.3d 586]. There is a statutory as well as a contractual basis for this rule; one of the grounds for review of an arbitration award is that the arbitrators exceeded their powers [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1282.6(a)(4), 1286.6(b)].

[ii] Agreements Successfully Conferring Judicial Review of Merits

If the parties constrain the arbitrators' authority by requiring a dispute to be decided according to the rule of law, and make plain their intention that the award is reviewable for legal error, the general rule of limited review is displaced by the parties' agreement [Cable Connection, Inc. v. DirecTV, Inc. (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 1334, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229, 190 P.3d 586] . The merits of an award may come within the ambit of the statutory grounds of review for excess of the arbitrators' powers [Cable Connection, Inc. v. DirecTV, Inc. (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 1334, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229, 190 P.3d 586] . To take themselves out of the general rule that the merits of the award are not subject to judicial review, the parties must clearly agree that legal errors are an excess of arbitral authority that is reviewable by the courts. In Cable Connection, the parties expressly so agreed, depriving the arbitrators of the power to commit legal error. They also specifically provided for judicial review of any error. The Court stressed that it did not decide whether one or the other of the clauses alone, or some different formulation, would be sufficient to confer an expanded scope of review, but emphasized that parties seeking to allow judicial review of the merits, and to avoid an additional dispute over the scope of review, would be well advised to provide for that review explicitly and unambiguously [Cable Connection, Inc. v. DirecTV, Inc. (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 1334, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229, 190 P.3d 586] .

EXAMPLE:

The applicable contract language in Cable Connection provided that "[t]he arbitrators shall not have the power to commit errors of law or legal reasoning, and the award may be vacated or corrected on appeal to a court of competent jurisdiction for any such error" [Cable Connection, Inc. v. DirecTV, Inc. (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 1334, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229, 190 P.3d 586] .

[iii] Agreements Unsuccessfully Conferring Judicial Review of Merits

The courts have ruled that arbitration agreements containing the following provisions failed to bestow judicial review under California law:

- The arbitrator ... shall render an award in accordance with substantive California Law" [Gravillis v. Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage Co. (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 503, 508, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 70] .

- "The arbitrator shall make all rulings in accordance with ... governing law ... and shall have authority equivalent to that of a California Superior Court judge, including the right to grant equitable relief, to the same extent as such relief would be available in an action pending in the Los Angeles Superior Court in which all parties have appeared" [Oaktree Cap. Mgmt., L.P. v. Bernard (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 60, 71, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 16] .

- The arbitrator "shall apply" California law and "shall be constrained by the rule of law" [Baize v. Eastridge Companies, LLC (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 293, 297, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 763] .

The Court did not exclude expanded review based on authority outside the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA; 9 U.S.C. § 1 et seq.), such as state statutory or common law, or a federal trial court's case management authority under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 16 [Hall Street Assocs., L.L.C. v. Mattel, Inc. (2008) 552 U.S. 576, 128 S. Ct. 1396, 170 L. Ed. 2d 254, 259, 263-265, 268 (Hall Street; provision for expanded review was part of arbitration agreement negotiated during litigation, which was approved and entered as an order by trial court; remanded for consideration of trial court's authority to approve agreement as matter of case management under Federal Rules of Civil Procedure); see also Kyocera Corp. v. Prudential-Bache Trade Servs., Inc. (9th Cir. 2003) 341 F. 3d 987, 1000, 1003 (Ninth Circuit rule) ; accord Christensen v. Smith (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 931, 937, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 57 (unlike the California Arbitration Act, the Federal Arbitration Act does not permit an arbitration agreement to expressly authorize judicial review of legal error; agreement specified application of FAA)]. Nor did Hall Street consider whether the FAA provision for vacatur "where the arbitrators exceeded their powers" [9 U.S.C. § 10(a)(4)] would be applicable if the agreement specifically limited the arbitrators' powers by providing for an award governed by law and reviewable for legal error arrangements [Cable Connection, Inc. v. DirecTV, Inc. (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 1334, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229, 190 P.3d 586]. Hall Street is restricted to proceedings to review arbitration awards under the FAA, and does not require state law to conform with its limitations. Furthermore, a reading of the California Arbitration Act (CAA; Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq.) that permits the enforcement of agreements for merits review is fully consistent with the FAA policy guaranteeing the enforcement of private contractual arrangements [Cable Connection, Inc. v. DirecTV, Inc. (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 1334, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229, 190 P.3d 586]. For discussion of the limited review that is allowed, see § 34.19[1].

[c] Effect of Federal Arbitration Act on Judicial Review

The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that the Federal Aribtration Act, 9 U.S.C.S. § 1 et seq., bars parties from giving courts authority review arbitration awards for errors of law or fact [Hall Street Assocs., L.L.C. v. Mattel, Inc. (2008) 552 U.S. 576, 585-586, 128 S. Ct. 1396, 170 L. Ed. 2d 254, 259, 263-265, 268] .

[d] Expanded Arbitral Review

A provision in an arbitration agreement for review of the award by a second arbitrator also has been held enforceable [Finley v. Saturn of Roseville (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 1253, 1255, 1258-1260, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 561 (trial court's confirmation of arbitration award on ground of untimeliness reversed and returned to trial court to vacate order and reverse arbitration award on ground of lack of jurisdiction arising from parties' agreement to submit issues for review to second arbitrator); see § 33.28[7]].

[3] Arbitration Pursuant to Stipulation

A party who knows that his or her attorney has stipulated to binding arbitration, participates in the arbitration, and never seeks to repudiate the stipulation, has ratified the stipulation; and the resulting award may properly be confirmed [Caro v. Smith (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 725, 732-733, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 306] . Similarly, although Code Civ. Proc. § 1281 et seq. permit courts to enforce only written agreements to arbitrate, once the parties have arbitrated and a written award is made, courts can enforce that award even if the underlying agreement to arbitrate was oral [Law Offices of Ian Herzog v. Law Offices of Joseph M. Fredrics (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 672, 677, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 771] .

If the award is challenged, based on a claim that the parties' written agreement was orally modified at the time of the arbitration hearing, no statement by the arbitrator can be considered in determining whether the parties actually did orally modify their written agreement during the hearing. An arbitrator's testimony concerning any statements or conduct that occurred at or in conjunction with the arbitration is prohibited by Evid. Code § 703.5 [Trabuco Highlands Community Assn. v. Head (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1183, 1191, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 842] .

He has had extensive jury trial experience in the areas of medical malpractice, product liability, employee third-party actions, vehicular collisions, and insurance bad faith actions throughout California. He has lectured and written on Kaiser-type contractual arbitrations.

§ 34.11 Effect of Unreviewed Award

[1] Same as Written Contract Between Parties

An award that has not been confirmed or vacated has the same force and effect as a contract in writing between the parties to the arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1287.6].

[2] Effect of Death of Party

Thus, an unconfirmed award against a person who dies pending its confirmation becomes a liability of that party's estate [Lovret v. Seyfarth (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 841, 859, 101 Cal. Rptr. 143] . If the party in whose favor an unconfirmed award is made dies before its confirmation, the award becomes an asset of his or her estate [Walter v. National Indem. Co. (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 630, 634, 83 Cal. Rptr. 803] .

[3] Res Judicata and Collateral Estoppel

Although a federal district court has held that an unconfirmed arbitrator's award does not constitute a final judgment that enables a party to invoke the doctrine of collateral estoppel [see Scott v. Snelling and Snelling, Inc. (N.D. Cal. 1990) 732 F. Supp. 1034, 1039] , a California court of appeal has held an unconfirmed award sufficient to bar subsequent action by one party to the arbitration against a party in privity with the other party to the arbitration on the basis of res judicata [Thibodeau v. Crum (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 749, 756-761, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 27 (only objection to confirmation was attorney's fees, not substantive issue that was subject of arbitration); see also Kelly v. Vons Companies, Inc. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1329, 1335-1337, 1341, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763 (without mentioning whether previous award was confirmed, holding that labor arbitration award prevented employee from relitigating issue of company's motivation for store closure in later lawsuit)].

A private arbitration award is not, however, entitled to collateral estoppel effect ("issue preclusion") against a nonparty unless the parties to the arbitration so agree [Vandenberg v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 815, 836, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 982 P.2d 229 (involving award confirmed by court)]. In so holding, the Supreme Court noted that it was making a very narrow holding. In particular, the Court stated that nothing in it's decision imposed or implied any limitations on the strict res judicata ("claim preclusion") effect of a private arbitration award and that the Court was not addressing the circumstances, if any, in which a private arbitration award would have collateral estoppel effect in subsequent litigation between the same parties on a different cause of action [Vandenberg v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 815, 824 n.2, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 982 P.2d 229] .

Chapter 34 CONTRACTUAL ARBITRATION: JUDICIAL REVIEW
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

4-34 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 34.12

AUTHOR: Michael S. Fields Editorial Consultant Michael S. Fields is a private practitioner in Beverly Hills who has specialized in plaintiff tort litigation since 1969. He has had extensive jury trial experience in the areas of medical malpractice, product liability, employee third-party actions, vehicular collisions, and insurance bad faith actions throughout California. He has lectured and written on Kaiser-type contractual arbitrations.

§ 34.12 Petition for Review

[1] To Confirm, Vacate, or Correct Award

Any party to an arbitration in which an award has been made may petition the court to confirm, correct, or vacate the award. The petition must name as respondents all parties to the arbitration and may name as respondents any other persons bound by the arbitration award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1285].

[2] Contents of Petition

The petition is to set forth the substance, or have attached a copy, of the agreement to arbitrate unless the petitioner denies the existence of such an agreement. It also is required to set forth the names of the arbitrators and set forth or have attached a copy of the award and the written opinion of the arbitrators, if any [Code Civ. Proc. § 1285.4]. If the petition seeks to correct or vacate the award, it is required to set forth the grounds on which the request for relief is based [Code Civ. Proc. § 1285.8]. For forms of petitions, see §§ 34.50, 34.51, and 34.56.

[3] Service and Filing of Petition

[a] Manner Stated in Agreement

A copy of the petition and a written notice of the time and place of the hearing and any other papers on which the petition is based must be served in the manner, if any, provided in the arbitration agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(a)].

[b] Manner Not Stated in Agreement

[i] Service in California

If the agreement does not provide for a manner of service and the person to be served has not previously appeared or been served in the following manner, then if service is within California it is to be made in the manner provided by law for the service of summons in an action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 415.10 et seq. and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

[ii] Service Outside California

When service is outside the state, it is to be made by certified or registered mail or by personal service. Proof of service by mail must be made by affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) showing the mailing together with the United States Post Office return receipt bearing the signature of the person served [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(b)(2)].

When service is made outside the state the petition may not be heard until at least 30 days after the date of such service [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(b)(2)].

[iii] Service When Person Has Already Appeared or Been Served in the Proceeding

If the agreement does not provide the manner of service and the person to be served has previously been served in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(b), or has previously appeared, service is to be made in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020 (service of papers other than summons) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(c); see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

[c] Time for Service and Filing

[i] Minimum Time After Service of Award

No petition may be served and filed until at least 10 days after service of the signed copy of the award on the petitioner [Code Civ. Proc. § 1288.4].

[ii] Petition to Confirm Award

A petition to confirm an award must be served and filed no later than four years after the date of service of a signed copy of the award on the petitioner [Code Civ. Proc. § 1288; see Jannis v. Ellis (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 751, 753, 308 P.2d 750 (when parties consent to resubmit arbitration award to arbitrator for clarification, time for petitioning to confirm award commences when the corrected award is made; applying prior law)].

[iii] Petition to Vacate or Correct Award

A petition to vacate or correct an award must be served and filed not later than 100 days after the date of the service of a signed copy of the award on the petitioner [Code Civ. Proc. § 1288]. That 100-day time limit may not be circumvented by appealing the judgment confirming the award [Louise Gardens of Encino Homeowners' Association, Inc. v. Truck Insurance Exchange (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 648, 658-660, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 378 ; Knass v. Blue Cross of California (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 390, 395-396, 279 Cal. Rptr. 124] . However, an objection to confirmation of an award based on the illegality of the contract under which arbitration was compelled is not waived by failure to move to vacate the arbitration award within 100 days as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1288, but may be raised in opposition to the other party's motion to confirm the award [South Bay Radiology Medical Associates v. Asher (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1074, 269 Cal. Rptr. 15] .

If an application is made to the arbitrators for correction of the award, a petition may not be served and filed under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1285-1288.8, until the determination of that application [Code Civ. Proc. § 1288.6]. For the purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 1288.4 (see [i], above) the date of service of the award in such case is deemed to be the earlier of the following dates [Code Civ. Proc. § 1288.8]:

- The date of service on the petitioner of a signed copy of the correction of the award or of the denial of the application; or

- The date that the application is deemed denied under Code Civ. Proc. § 1284 (30 days after service of a signed copy of the award on the applicant).

[iv] No First Challenge on Appeal

Code Civ. Proc. § 1287.4 does not allow a party to challenge an arbitration award for the first time on appeal [Louise Gardens of Encino Homeowners' Association, Inc. v. Truck Insurance Exchange (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 648, 659-660, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 378] .

Chapter 34 CONTRACTUAL ARBITRATION: JUDICIAL REVIEW
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

4-34 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 34.13

AUTHOR: Michael S. Fields Editorial Consultant Michael S. Fields is a private practitioner in Beverly Hills who has specialized in plaintiff tort litigation since 1969. He has had extensive jury trial experience in the areas of medical malpractice, product liability, employee third-party actions, vehicular collisions, and insurance bad faith actions throughout California. He has lectured and written on Kaiser-type contractual arbitrations.

§ 34.13 Jurisdiction and Venue

Except as otherwise provided, any petition made after the commencement or completion of arbitration is to be filed in a court having jurisdiction in the county where the arbitration is being or has been held, or, if not held exclusively in any one county of this state, or, if held outside California, then the petition is to be filed as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1292 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1292.2].

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1292, a petition is to be filed:

- In the county where the agreement is to be performed or was made [Code Civ. Proc. § 1292(a)].

- If the agreement does not specify a county where the agreement is to be performed and the agreement was not made in any county in California, in the county where any party to the court proceeding resides or has a place of business [Code Civ. Proc. § 1292(b)].

- In any case not covered by either of the above circumstances, in any county in California [Code Civ. Proc. § 1292(c)].

Superior courts have jurisdiction over arbitration-related petitions whether the matter is a limited or unlimited civil case [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(10)(A)].

The small claims court has jurisdiction to confirm, correct, or vacate a fee arbitration award not exceeding $5,000 between an attorney and client that is binding or has become binding [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(a)(4); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6200 et seq.; for further discussion, see Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics, § 72.430 et seq.].

After a petition has been filed under Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq. (governing arbitration), the court in which the petition was filed retains jurisdiction to determine any subsequent petition involving the same agreement to arbitrate and the same controversy, and any subsequent petition is required to be filed in the same proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1292.6].

Chapter 34 CONTRACTUAL ARBITRATION: JUDICIAL REVIEW
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

4-34 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 34.14

AUTHOR: Michael S. Fields Editorial Consultant Michael S. Fields is a private practitioner in Beverly Hills who has specialized in plaintiff tort litigation since 1969. He has had extensive jury trial experience in the areas of medical malpractice, product liability, employee third-party actions, vehicular collisions, and insurance bad faith actions throughout California. He has lectured and written on Kaiser-type contractual arbitrations.

§ 34.14 Response to Petition

[1] Contents of Response

A response to a petition may request the court to dismiss the petition, or to confirm, correct, or vacate the award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1285.2].

Unless the following are set forth in or attached to the petition, a response to the petition must:

- Set forth the substance or attach a copy of the agreement to arbitrate unless respondent denies the existence of such an agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1285.6(a)].

- Set forth the arbitrators' names [Code Civ. Proc. § 1285.6(b)].

- Set forth or attach a copy of the award and the written opinion of the arbitrators, if any [Code Civ. Proc. § 1285.6(c)].

- Set forth the grounds on which a request for correcting or vacating the award is based [Code Civ. Proc. § 1285.8].

For a form of response for use in contesting a petition to confirm an arbitration award and to request that the award either be corrected or vacated, see § 34.52.

[2] Service and Filing

[a] Manner

A response is required to be served as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020 (service of papers other than summons in civil actions) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.8; see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

[b] Time

[i] Ten Day Limit for Response; Exceptions

A response must be served and filed within 10 days after service of the petition, unless the petition was served outside of California under Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(b)(2). If the petition was served outside California, the response must be served and filed within 30 days after service of the petition [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.6]. These time requirements may be extended by written agreement between the parties to the court proceeding or by order of the court for good cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.6].

PRACTICE TIP:

Calculating the Ten-Day Period. To determine when the ten-day period for responding expires, counsel must, of course, know when service of the petition was complete. If, as commonly occurs, the arbitration agreement provides for service by mail and is silent as to when that service is complete, the ten-day period might be calculated either from the date of mailing or the date of receipt [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(a)]. To avoid dispute over the timeliness of the response, counsel should plan to respond within the shorter of the two possible periods, that is, within ten days of the date the petition was mailed.

If the contract is silent on the method of service, the same issue arises if service is made outside of California by mail on a person who has not yet appeared in the proceeding. In that case, service is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(b)(2), which fails to provide when service is complete. This issue does not arise if service is within California or is on a person who has already appeared in the proceeding, because in those situations service is to be accomplished in the regular manner used for service of summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(b)(1)] or other papers [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(c)], respectively, both of which specify when service is complete [for discussion of the methods of service, see § 34.12[3][b]]. By Michael S. Fields

The trial court can find that a response served and filed over 10 days after date of service of petition as shown by proof of service, is timely under Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.6 if the respondent establishes that he or she was never actually served [see MJM, Inc. v. Tootoo (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 598, 603, 219 Cal. Rptr. 100] .

[ii] Response Including Request That Award Be Vacated or Corrected

A response requesting that an award be vacated or corrected must be served and filed not later than 100 days after the date of service of a signed copy of the award on the respondent if he or she was a party to the arbitration, or on the respondent's representative if the respondent was not a party to the arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1288.2; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1288 (petition to vacate or correct award must be served and filed not later than 100 days after date of service of award on petitioner); Eternity Investments, Inc. v. Brown (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 739, 744, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 134] .

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.6, a response requesting that an award be vacated or corrected must, like all other responses, be served and filed within 10 days after service of the petition, even though the 100-day period set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1288.2 has not otherwise lapsed [Coordinated Constr., Inc. v. Canoga Big "A," Inc. (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 313, 316-317 ; see also Hirsch v. Ensign (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 521, 531, 176 Cal. Rptr. 17 (disapproved on other grounds in Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 27-28, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899)]. A response to a timely-filed petition to confirm that includes a petition to vacate or correct must only comply with the 10-day deadline in Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.6, beginning upon the service of the petition to confirm, and does not have to be filed within 100 days of the service of the award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1288 [Oaktree Cap. Mgmt., L.P. v. Bernard (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 60, 66, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 16] . However, a response to a petition to confirm can in no event request that an award be vacated or corrected unless the petition to confirm itself was served and filed within 100 days after the service of the award as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1288.2 [Eternity Investments, Inc. v. Brown (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 739, 744-747, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d. 134 (confirming award in absence of vacatur or correction in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1286)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Example of Untimely Service and Filing. If a petition to confirm an award is served and filed 101 days after the service of the award, any response to that petition is precluded from requesting that the award be vacated or corrected [see Coordinated Constr., Inc. v. Canoga Big "A," Inc. (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 313, 317-318 ; see also De Mello v. Souza (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 79, 83-84, 111 Cal. Rptr. 274] .

[iii] Consequence of Untimely Filing

If the response is not timely filed, the allegations in the petition may be deemed to be admitted [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290; Evans Products Co. v. Millmen's Union No. 550 (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 815, 819, 205 Cal. Rptr. 731] . Moreover, if the court determines that a response is not timely under Code Civ. Proc. § 1288.2 or 1290.6, it is barred under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.8 from vacating or correcting the award pursuant to that response unless the respondent can obtain relief from these time requirements under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect) or under the court's inherent equity power (extrinsic fraud or mistake) [see Eternity Investments, Inc. v. Brown (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 739, 747, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 134 (discussing exceptions, none of which applied); De Mello v. Souza (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 79, 84-86, 111 Cal. Rptr. 274 (stating rule but denying relief); see also Hirsch v. Ensign (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 521, 531, 176 Cal. Rptr. 17 (disapproved on other grounds in Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 27-28, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899); for further discussion relating to relief from default, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders].

§ 34.17 Action by Court

If a petition or response is duly served and filed, the court is required to confirm the award as made, whether rendered in this state or another state, unless it corrects the award and confirms it as corrected, vacates the award, or dismisses the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286; Law Offices of David S. Karton v. Segreto (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1, 9, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 329 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1293.2 (discussed at § 34.18[2] and [3], below)]. For a form of order for use when the court grants a petition to confirm an arbitration award, see § 34.53. For a form of combined order and judgment when the court corrects an award and confirms the award as correct, see § 34.55.

§ 34.18 Judgment Confirming Award

[1] Entry of Judgment; Same Effect as Judgment in Civil Action

If an award is confirmed, judgment must be entered in conformity with it. The judgment so entered has the same force and effect as, and is subject to all the provisions of law relating to, a judgment in a civil action of the same jurisdictional classification, and it may be enforced like any other judgment of the court in which it was entered, in an action of the same jurisdictional classification [Code Civ. Proc. § 1287.4; see Code Civ. Proc. § 32.5 (defining "jurisdictional classification"); see also Devonwood Condominium Owners Assn. v. Farmers Ins. Exchange (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1498, 1500-1501, 1506, 1508-1509, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88 (judgment had to be vacated because it did not conform to fire insurance appraisal award but went beyond determination of loss, i.e., replacement cost values, and gave judgment for that amount, thus determining coverage and liability that were beyond scope of Ins. Code § 2071 and parties' submission)].

For a form of judgment for use when the court has earlier confirmed the arbitration award and enters judgment thereon, see § 34.54. For a form of combined order and judgment when the court corrects an award and confirms the award as correct, see § 34.55.

[2] Costs

The court must award costs, as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1021-1038, in any judicial proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2 connected with arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1293.2]. This of course includes petitions to confirm and to vacate awards [Marcus & Millichap Real Estate Investment Brokerage Co. v. Woodman Investment Group, Inc. (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 508, 513, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 584] . The award of costs pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1293.2 is mandatory; and the court's determination under Code Civ. Proc. § 1293.2 which party, if either, is the prevailing party in a post-arbitration judicial proceeding is a judicial function distinct from the arbitrator's decision to award or not to award fees in the arbitration itself [Marcus & Millichap Real Estate Investment Brokerage Co. v. Woodman Investment Group, Inc. (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 508, 513, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 584 ; see also [3], below].

[3] Attorney's Fees

The mandatory award of costs to the prevailing party in any judicial proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2 [see [2], above], includes attorney's fees pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.3(a)(10)(A) when they are authorized by the contract [Code Civ. Proc. § 1293.2; Marcus & Millichap Real Estate Investment Brokerage Co. v. Woodman Investment Group, Inc. (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 508, 513, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 584 ; compare Green v. Mount Diablo Hospital Dist. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 63, 76, 254 Cal. Rptr. 689 (refusing to award attorney's fees to party successfully opposing petition to compel arbitration reasoning that did not constitute final determination, so there was no prevailing party) with MBNA America Bank, N.A. v. Gorman (2006) 147 Cal. App. 4th Supp 1, 7-8, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 724 (awarding attorney's fees to party who successfully opposed petition to confirm award finding petition was final for purposes of awarding those fees)]. Thus, if the arbitration arises out of a contract under which the prevailing party is entitled to attorney's fees, the prevailing party is entitled to attorney's fees incurred in the proceeding to confirm the award [see Stermer v. Modiano Constr. Co. (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 264, 272-273, 118 Cal. Rptr. 309] , as well as those incurred in opposing a petition to vacate the award [Carole Ring & Associates v. Nicastro (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 253, 255, 260-262, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 519] , and on appeal [Ajida Technologies, Inc. v. Roos Instruments, Inc. (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 534, 552-552, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 686 ; Carole Ring & Associates v. Nicastro (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 253, 255, 260-262, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 519] . If the attorney's fee provision in the contract is unilateral, Civ. Code § 1717(a) will imply a bilateral provision allowing the "unnamed" prevailing party to recover attorney's fees [MBNA America Bank, N.A. v. Gorman (2006) 147 Cal. App. 4th Supp 1, 7, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 724] . An award of post arbitration attorney's fees is based on Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1033.5(a)(10)(A) and 1293.2 and is available to the prevailing party even though the arbitrator who named the prevailing party directed each party to bear their own attorney's fees and costs incurred in the arbitration itself [Carole Ring & Associates v. Nicastro (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 253, 255, 260-262, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 519] .

If, however, neither the underlying contract nor a statute provides for attorney's fees, the court cannot award fees incurred in a proceeding to confirm an arbitration award [Villinger/Nicholls Development Co. v. Meleyco (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 321, 326-329, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36 (attorney's fees clause of Civ. Code § 3176, relating to claims stated in bonded stop notices, does not authorize award of attorney's fees incurred in proceedings to confirm arbitration award)].

In the case of an automobile accident caused by an underinsured motorist, where there is no issue reasonably to be resolved by arbitration, the failure to attempt to effectuate a prompt and fair settlement violates the insurer's statutory duties and gives rise to tort liability. Similarly, an insurer cannot shield other dilatory conduct, such as failing to investigate a claim, by the mere act of requesting uninsured motorist arbitration [Brehm v. 21st Century Ins. Co. (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1225, 1244, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 410].

For discussion of the award of attorney's fees incurred within the arbitration itself, see Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding, § 33.29[3].

[3A] Post-Award, Pre-Judgment Interest

A successful party to arbitration is entitled to "recover damages certain" within the meaning of Civ. Code § 3287(a) on the date the arbitrator renders the award. The arbitration award itself results in a new and fixed liability regardless of the elements that comprised that liability [County of Solano v. Lionsgate Corporation (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 741, 752-754, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 362 (but it was error to award interest from date of entry of findings and conclusions, so award for interest prior to date of filing of award had to be vacated); Pierotti v. Torian (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 17, 27, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 553 ; Britz, Inc. v. Alfa-Laval Food & Dairy Co. (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1085, 1106-1107, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 700] . Thus, an order or judgment confirming an arbitration award should include interest on the award from the date of the award to the date of judgment [Pierotti v. Torian (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 17, 27-28, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 553 ; Britz, Inc. v. Alfa-Laval Food & Dairy Co. (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1085, 1107, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 700] . Denying the successful party interest would punish that party for using arbitration instead of the court system [Pierotti v. Torian (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 17, 27, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 553 ; Britz, Inc. v. Alfa-Laval Food & Dairy Co. (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1085, 1107, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 700] .

[4] Amendment of Judgment to Add Alter Ego

The trial court has the power to amend a judgment confirming an arbitration award to add an alter ego of a party. This power is based on the provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 1287.4 that a judgment confirming an award is subject to all the provisions of law relating to a judgment in a civil action. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 187, civil judgments may be amended to add an alter ego as an equitable procedure based on the theory that the court is not amending the judgment to add a new defendant, but is merely inserting the correct name of the real defendant [Hall, Goodhue, Haisley, & Barker, Inc. v. Marconi Conf. Center Bd. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1551, 1555, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 286 (noting that only the court, not the arbitrator, has power to amend the award to add an alter ego)].

For discussion of what constitutes an alter ego, see Ch. 161, Corporations: Alter Ego Liability .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

AUTHOR: Michael S. Fields Editorial Consultant Michael S. Fields is a private practitioner in Beverly Hills who has specialized in plaintiff tort litigation since 1969. He has had extensive jury trial experience in the areas of medical malpractice, product liability, employee third-party actions, vehicular collisions, and insurance bad faith actions throughout California. § 34.19 Judgment Vacating Award

[1] Grounds

[a] Statutory Grounds Enumerated

Subject to the procedural requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.4 (see [2], below) the court is required to vacate the award if it determines any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2]:

- The award was procured by corruption, fraud, or other undue means [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(1)];

- There was corruption in any of the arbitrators [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(2)];

- A party's rights were substantially prejudiced by misconduct of a neutral arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(3)];

- The arbitrators exceeded their powers and the award cannot be corrected without affecting the merits of the decision on the controversy submitted [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(4)]; or

- The rights of a party were substantially prejudiced by the refusal of the arbitrators to postpone the hearings on sufficient cause being shown therefor or the the refusal of the arbitrators to hear evidence material to the controversy or by other conduct of the arbitrators contrary to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(5)].

- An arbitrator making the award either:

- Failed to disclose within the time required for disclosure a ground for disqualification of which the arbitrator was then aware [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(6)(A)]; intended to be declarative of existing case law allowing vacation of an arbitration award when a neutral arbitrator fails to disclose a matter that might cause a reasonable person to question the arbitrator's ability to conduct the arbitration proceeding impartially; or

- Was subject to disqualification on grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91 but failed on receipt of timely demand to disqualify himself or herself as required by that provision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(6)(B); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(d) (refers to grounds for disqualification of judge in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1), discussed in Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding, §§ 33.14[3], 33.15].

The right to seek to vacate an award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(6)(A) is available even if the party did not seek disqualification in a timely fashion under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(c) [Advantage Medical Services, LLC v. Hoffman (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 806, 820-822, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 935]. Further, this right cannot be waived by agreeing to arbitrate under rules that state the arbitration provider's determinations regarding disqualification will be conclusive. The statutes were passed to advance a public purpose of crucial importance over which the state retained ultimate control [Advantage Medical Services, LLC v. Hoffman (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 806, 820-823, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 935 (AAA Rule 17)]. The ground for vacating the award that the arbitrator failed to make disclosures or to disqualify himself or herself, does not apply to arbitration proceedings conducted under a collective agreement between employers and employees or between their respective representatives [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(6)].

Neutral arbitrators, except those conducting an arbitration pursuant to a public or private sector collective bargaining agreement, must comply with ethical standards adopted by the Judicial Council [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.85; Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI]. Those standards may expand but not limit the disclosure and disqualification requirements established by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1281-1281.95, and are discussed in Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding, § 33.14[2]. Comments to those standards indicate that in addition to providing grounds for vacatur of an arbitrator's award based on a neutral arbitrator's failure to comply with disclosure requirements, other obligations under the standards may also constitute grounds for vacating an arbitration award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(3) if the rights of a party were substantially prejudiced by a violation of those standards [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Comment to Standard 1].

Petitions to vacate an arbitration award pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1285 are subject to the provisions Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(b)], which relates to sanctions, requires the petition to be signed by at least one attorney of record in the attorney's individual name, or, if the party is not represented by an attorney, by the party. It also requires each paper to state the signer's address and telephone number, if any. Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 is discussed in Ch 510, Sanctions .

Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2 is not preempted by Sections 10 and 12 of the Federal Arbitration Act (9 U.S.C. §§ 10, 12) nor by the federal common law rule which allows review of an arbitration award in federal court for "manifest disregard of the law" [Siegel v. Prudential Insurance Company (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1270, 1290-1291, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 ; see also Ovitz v. Schulman (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 830, 849-854, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d. 117 (considered preemption only as to 9 U.S.C. § 10(a)(2) and Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(6)(A))].

[b] Relief Limited to Statutory Grounds

[i] Statutory Ground Plus Substantial Prejudice Required

Unless the parties' agreement provides otherwise [see Cable Connection, Inc. v. DirecTV, Inc. (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 1334, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229, 190 P.3d 586 , discussed at § 34.10[2], above], Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2 describes the only grounds for setting aside an arbitration award [Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 25, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899 ; State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Guleserian (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 397, 402, 104 Cal. Rptr. 683] . Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2 is substantially similar to section 12 of the Uniform Arbitration Act. In 1961 when the arbitration provisions were revised, the Legislature intended to exclude nonstatutory grounds for vacating an award [Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 25-28, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899] . To succeed in having an award vacated, a party must demonstrate that the ground for vacating the award is supported by the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2, and also must show substantial prejudice [United Brotherhood of Carpenters etc., Local 642 v. DeMello (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 838, 840, 100 Cal. Rptr. 564] .

[ii] Relief Under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473

Prior to the decision in Moncharsh, at least one court had held that an award against a party who failed to respond to arbitration notices or to appear at the arbitration hearing may be vacated for mistake, inadvertence, surprise, and excusable neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 [MJM, Inc. v. Tootoo (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 598, 603-604, 219 Cal. Rptr. 100 (trial court did not abuse its discretion by refusing to confirm award based on excusable neglect of party who was not proficient in English, did not understand the nature of the arbitration documents sent to him, and thought the underlying contract had been cancelled)]. Moncharsh calls this decision into question, but might be distinguishable in that Moncharsh dealt with review of an arbitrator's decision, and a Section 473 motion relating based on failure to have appeared in the arbitration would not necessary require that type of review.

[iii] Exception in Case of Illegal Contract

One type of error of law that will warrant vacating an award is an award based on an illegal contract [Loving & Evans v. Blick (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 603, 607, 609-610, 204 P.2d 23] . A contract provision may be illegal on its face or as applied [Paramount Unified School Dist. v. Teachers Assn. of Paramount (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1371, 1381, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 311] .

The issue of the legality of the underlying agreement is a matter for judicial determination, although an arbitrator may make a preliminary finding that is not binding on the court. Vacating an award based on an illegal contract is required under the general rule that an illegal contract cannot be enforced and a claim arising out of an illegal transaction is not a proper matter for submission to arbitration [Loving & Evans v. Blick (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 603, 607, 609-610, 204 P.2d 23 ; All Points Traders, Inc. v. Barrington Associates (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 723, 736-738, 259 Cal. Rptr. 780 ;compare 9 U.S.C. § 2; Buckeye Check Cashing, Inc. v Cardegna (2006) 546 U.S. 440, 446 (under the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) if illegality of contract containing arbitration clause is raised in petition to compel arbitration, matter is to be ordered arbitrated and issue is to be determined by arbitrator even if court later refuses to enforce award)].

However, a distinction must be made between an illegal contract and an illegal clause in a contract. Loving & Evans and All Points Traders, Inc., above, both allow judicial review of an arbitrator's ruling when a party claimed the entire contract or transaction was illegal [Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 32, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899 ; see Jones v. Humanscale Corp. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 401, 413, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 881 (only noncompetititon clause claimed to be illegal)]. The normal standard of limited judicial review applies to claims that a provision of the contract construed or applied by the arbitrator is illegal, except in rare cases in which according finality to the arbitrator's decision would be incompatible with the protection of a statutory right. The award will ordinarily stand immune from judicial scrutiny absent a clear expression from the Legislature of illegality or public policy undermining the strong presumption in favor of private arbitration [Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 32-33, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899] .

A further distinction involves a contract that covers a series of transactions, all of which are challenged as illegal. The court should review the evidence de novo on a transaction by transaction basis [Lindenstadt v. Staff Builders, Inc. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 882, 888-889, 893, 895, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 484] . If only some of the transactions were illegal, and the policy of the statute involved would not be furthered by requiring one party to forfeit the benefits of the contract with respect to the legal transactions, an award regarding the legal transactions should not be vacated because other transactions were illegal [Lindenstadt v. Staff Builders, Inc. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 882, 893-895, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 484] .

[iv] Illegality of Arbitration Clause

Ordinarily, a party who questions the validity of the arbitration clause itself cannot proceed with arbitration and still preserve the issue for later consideration by a court. However, if that party's participation in the arbitration was not voluntary [see Bayscene Resident Negotiators v. Bayscene Mobilehome Park (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 119, 129, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 626 (participation in arbitration was under threat of criminal prosecution)], or that party pursued motions to stay arbitration or set aside the order compelling it and refused to participate in the arbitration hearing in protest, that party may raise the issue of the legality of the arbitration clause for later review by the court [see Alternative Systems, Inc. v. Carey (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1034, 1039-1041, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 567 (pre-dispute arbitration clause using American Arbitration Association found to contravene public policy of mandatory fee arbitration of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6200 et seq.)].

[v] Award Contrary to Statute or Public Policy

The normal rule of limited judicial review can also be avoided in those rare cases when according finality to the arbitrator's decision would be incompatible with the protection of a statutory right or when the award contravenes an explicit legislative expression of public policy. Vacating an award on this ground requires a clear expression of illegality or public policy [Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 32-33, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899 ; City of Palo Alto v. Service Employees Internat. Union (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 327, 334, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 500] .

IILLUSTRATION: Award Violated Public Policy Requiring Obedience to Court Order. Employee A, who already had two disciplinary actions based on threats of violence, threatened to shoot and kill employee B and B's wife and child. The employer, ("City") sought and obtained an injunction under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8. The injunction provided, among other things, that employee A not make any contact with employee B, that employee A stay at least 100 yards away from employee B, B's residence, B's place of work, B's children's school or place of child care, and the City's "Utility Department-Water/Wastewater/Gas Division work crew sites." City then terminated A's employment. A contested the termination and the matter was submitted to arbitration pursuant to a Memorandum of Understanding between City and the Union. The arbitrator awarded A reinstatement to his former position as "leadman" with back pay, finding that the threats were merely "tough talk" and that City could find ways to insure B's workplace safety, as required by Lab. Code § 6400 et seq. without terminating A. The City petitioned to vacate the arbitration award on the grounds that it violated "the express legislated public policy of the State of California requiring employer intervention against threats of violence and it commands an illegal act." The Union cross-petitioned to confirm the award. Can the award be confirmed? No. Although the City failed to establish that public policy requires an employer automatically to fire any employee who makes a threat of violence, it was clear that the injunction, which was based on clear and convincing evidence, could not be complied with if the award was confirmed and A was reinstated. Thus, the public policy requiring obedience to court orders required the award to be vacated [City of Palo Alto v. Service Employees Internat. Union (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 327, 338-340, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 500] .

When a judge who is disqualified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(8) (employment discussions with dispute resolution provider)] does not disclose the disqualification but instead hears and determines the petition and makes an order compelling arbitration, that order must be vacated. However, that does not necessarily mean that any arbitration award based on the ensuing arbitration needs to be vacated. Another judge should reconsider the petition to compel, and if the court grants the motion to compel, then it should proceed to hear and decide the petition(s) to confirm and/or vacate the arbitration award considering whether the disqualified judge did anything that could have tainted the arbitration award. The appropriate standard for determining that issue is whether a person aware of the facts might reasonably entertain a doubt that the arbitrators would be able to be impartial. Only if the trial court concludes that the arbitration was tainted by the disqualified judge will the disqualification require the trial court to vacate the arbitration award [Rossco Holdings, Inc. v. Bank of America (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 1353, 1366-1368, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 141] .

Another of the exceptional circumstances justifying vacating an arbitration award on other than the grounds listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2 rests on a minor's statutory right to disaffirm a contract before majority or within a reasonable time thereafter. This includes contracts containing arbitration clauses. No special words are necessary to disaffirm the contract [Fam. Code §§ 6700, 6710; Berg v. Traylor (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 809, 812, 816-820, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 140 (finding contract was not one for necessities within exception of Fam. Code § 6712)]. If a minor disaffirms the contract, even as late as beyond the deadline for responding to a petition to confirm the award or moving to vacate the award, any award based on that contract will have to be vacated; and any judgment confirming the award, reversed [Berg v. Traylor (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 809, 820, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 140] .

If the minor did not disaffirm the contract containing the arbitration clause, that award may still be vacated on the separate ground that no guardian at litem was appointed to represent the minor in the arbitration, especially if the parent's interests were adverse to the minor's, for instance if the parent will be liable in the event of the minor's disaffirmance [Berg v. Traylor (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 809, 821-822, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 140] .

[vi] Invalid Arbitration Agreement

Another nonstatutory ground for vacation of an arbitration agreement is when the agreement is invalid. Absent an enforceable agreement, an arbitration award is invalid. Before a court may confirm an arbitration award, the court must find the existence of a valid arbitration agreement, unless a judicial determination of the issue has already been made [Toal v. Tardif (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1208, 1220, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 97 (agreement invalid for lack of parties' signatures)].

[c] Corruption, Fraud, or Undue Means

The Law Revision Commission that considered the arbitration statutes in 1960 described the conduct necessary to set aside an award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(1) as "any conduct which amounts to fraud or which results in depriving either of the parties of a fair and impartial hearing to their substantial prejudice" [Pour Le Bebe, Inc. v. Guess?, Inc. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 810, 827 ; Stockwell v. Equitable Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (1933) 134 Cal. App. 534, 540, 25 P.2d 873] . Although some cases state that vacation of an award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(1) is required only if the fraud is extrinsic [see Pac. Crown Distrib. v. Bhd. of Teamsters (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1138, 1146-1147, 228 Cal. Rptr. 645] , others hold that the test is whether the aggrieved party had a chance to make its challenge at the arbitration hearing [see Pour Le Bebe, Inc. v. Guess? Inc. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 810, 831-832]. Rather than rely on the distinction between intrinsic and extrinsic fraud, federal courts use a three-part test to determine whether to vacate an arbitration award for fraud [Pour Le Bebe, Inc. v. Guess? Inc. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 810, 830]:

- First, the movant must establish the fraud by clear and convincing evidence.

- Second, the fraud must not have been discoverable on the exercise of due diligence prior to or during the arbitration.

- Third, the person seeking to vacate the award must demonstrate that the fraud materially related to an issue in the arbitration.

In Pour le Bebe, the "undue means" at issue was the prevailing party's representation in the arbitration by the same counsel who had represented the challenging party (and some of its employees and relatives) in other matters. Finding that the arbitrator's consideration of the motion to disqualify counsel was raised as an ancillary issue and did not provide an opportunity to prosecute a full-blown claim for breach of duty of loyalty, the court would not say that plaintiff ever had an opportunity to discover and reveal the alleged undue means at the arbitration hearing [Pour Le Bebe, Inc. v. Guess? Inc. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 810, 833]. Nevertheless, a court may not presume that evidence procured by undue means had an impact on the arbitrators, but must presume instead that the arbitrators took a permissible route to the award. The party challenging the award must establish by clear and convincing evidence some nexus between the fraud or undue means and the award and that the fraud or undue means had a substantial impact on the panel's decision [Pour Le Bebe, Inc. v. Guess? Inc. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 810, 833-837].

[d] Impression of Possible Bias of Arbitrator

[i] Test for Bias

To support a claim of bias, a party must demonstrate that the arbitrator had an interest in the subject matter of the arbitration or a preexisting social or business relationship with one of the parties that would color the arbitrator's judgment [Luster v. Collins (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1338, 1345, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 215 (holding that party pointed to no evidence to support claim of bias)]. An impression of possible bias in the arbitration context means that one could reasonably form a belief that an arbitrator was biased for or against a party for a particular reason [Betz v. Pankow (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1503, 1511, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 107] . The right to seek to vacate an award for bias is available even if the party did not seek disqualification in a timely fashion under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(c) [Advantage Medical Services, LLC v. Hoffman (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 806, 820-822, 72 Cal. Rptr.3d 935]. Further, this right cannot be waived by agreeing to arbitrate under rules that state the arbitration provider's determinations regarding disqualification will be conclusive. The statutes were passed to advance a public purpose of crucial importance over which the state retained ultimate control [Advantage Medical Services, LLC v. Hoffman (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 806, 820-823, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 935 (AAA Rule 17)].

The determination is based on whether a reasonable person knowing all of the facts and looking at the circumstances at the time the challenge is made would question the arbitrator's impartiality [Ceriale v. AMCO Ins. Co. (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 500, 504, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 685 ; Betz v. Pankow (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1503, 1512, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 107] . An award may be vacated even though the arbitrators involved are recognized as being beyond reproach and as maintaining the highest ethical standards [Ceriale v. AMCO Ins. Co. (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 500, 506, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 685] . However, an award cannot be vacated because an arbitrator disclosed, out of an excess of caution, a matter that was not required to be disclosed [Luce, Forward, Hamilton & Scripps, LLP v. Koch (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 720, 734-736, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 869 (service on 36-member board of professional organization with party's counsel and proposed expert witness who was later stricken from witness list)].

Most of the relationships and interests that could give rise to an impression of possible bias on the part of an arbitrator must now be disclosed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a), which incorporates the disclosures required by judges under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 and matters enumerated in the Ethics Standards for Neutral Arbitrators, Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI. A court is required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(6)(A) to vacate an award once it is shown that the neutral arbitrator failed to disclose in a timely fashion one of the matters required to be disclosed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a). There is no room for argument that the undisclosed matter is not one that might cause a reasonable person to question the arbitrator's impartiality. By its 2001 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1281.9 and 1286.2(a)(6)(A), the Legislature intended that failure to disclose any of the matters enumerated in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a) satisfy the "might-cause-a-reasonable-person-to-question" standard [International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, etc. v.

Laughon, (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1380, 1386-1387, 1392-1394, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 341 (including comparison of cases decided before 2001 amendments); see Stats. 2001, Ch. 352, § 8]. The Federal Arbitration Act, specifically 9 U.S.C. § 10(a)(2), which requires vacating an award for evident partiality of the arbitrator, does not preempt Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(6)(A), which requires an award to be vacated for the arbitrator's failure to make any of the required disclosures. 9 U.S.C. § 10(a) applies only in federal court. Further, Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(6)(A) is not inconsistent with the FAA, nor does it undermine the purposes of the FAA [Ovitz v. Schulman (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 830, 849-854, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d. 117] . The Ethics Standards and Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a) are discussed in Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding, § 33.14[1] -[3]. Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 is discussed briefly in Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding, § 33.15 and in more detail in Ch. 317, Judges.

[ii] Failure to Disclose Prior Business Relationships

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(1), (2) (award procured by corruption, fraud, or other undue means and corrupt arbitrator, respectively), failure of a neutral arbitrator to disclose any dealings that might create an impression of possible bias is grounds for vacating an award. There need be no proof of actual fraud, corruption, or bias [Neaman v. Kaiser Foundation Hospital (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 1170, 1174, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 879 (construing section 1286.2(a), (b), which have been renumbered as (a)(1) and (a)(2))]. The impression must, however, be a reasonable one [Neaman v. Kaiser Foundation Hospital (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 1170, 1175, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 879] .

As discussed at [i], above, failure to disclose many relationships now requires vacation of the award because an impression of bias is presumed by the statute [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1281.9(a), 1286.2(a)(6)(A); International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, etc. v. International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, etc. v. Laughon, (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1380, 1386-1387, 1392-1394, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 341] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Arbitrator's Past Affiliation With Law Firm. After arbitration was concluded, the losing party learns that the arbitrator had been a partner in a firm which had represented three business entities in which the other party was an officer and/or shareholder. Can the losing party have the award vacated based on the impression of bias? Maybe. It is necessary to look in much more detail to find the answer. In Betz v. Pankow (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1503, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 107 , the trial court vacated the award, but the court of appeal, looking closely at the circumstances, reversed. In that case, the court held that when all the facts were known, they did not suggest any bias. Those facts included the size of the law firm at the time the party had been represented by it (127 to 147 attorneys), that the firm apparently only reprsented the party in one unrelated matter, that the arbitrator was unaware of that representation, and did not know the party, and was not a member of the firm at the time of the arbitration. One of the court's concerns was the impracticality of an attorney conducting a conflict check with a former firm [Betz v. Pankow (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1503, 1511-1512, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 107 ;compare Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.1(a)(2), 1281.2(a)(1), (2); Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(7)(A) (disclosure would be required if, within preceding two years, arbitrator, or lawyer associated in practice of law with arbitrator, represented officer, director, or trustee of party)].

[iii] Failure to Disclose Acceptance of Work as Neutral During Pendency of Arbitration

If an arbitrator intends to entertain other offers of employment from the parties or their lawyers while the current arbitration is pending, the arbitrator must disclose that intention in writing within 10 calendar days of service of notice of the arbitrator's proposed nomination or appointment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a); Cal Rules of Ct, Appen., Div. VI, Standard 12(b)]. An arbitrator who does not disclose an intent to entertain additional offers from the parties or their lawyers, and despite the prohibition of Standard 12(c), accepts such an offer, must disclose that fact to the parties in writing within 10 calendar days [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a); Cal Rules of Ct, Appen., Div. VI, Standards 7(c), (d)(4)(A)(i), 12(b); Ovitz v. Schulman (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 830, 838, 841, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 117] . If an arbitrator who has not disclosed his or her intention to accept employment from a party of lawyer for a party accepts employment as a dispute resolution neutral from a party or lawyer while the arbitration is pending and fails to disclose that fact, any award rendered by that arbitrator must be vacated [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(6)(A); Cal Rules of Ct, Appen., Div. VI, Standards 7(d)(4)(A)(i), 12(b), (c); Ovitz v. Schulman (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 830, 844-846, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 117] .

[e] Arbitrator Exceeded Powers

For discussion of the parties' ability to contractually limit arbitrator's powers, see § 34.10[2]. Generally, when the parties submit issues to arbitration that they were not contractually compelled to submit, the court, in considering whether the award should be vacated under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2, looks both to the contract and to the scope of the submissions to determine whether the arbitrator exceeded his or her powers. If a party unequivocally submits an issue to arbitration without objection, that party may not later complain that the arbitrator exceeded his or her powers [J.C.Gury Co. v. Nippon Carbide Indus. (USA), Inc. (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1305, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 118 ; Porter v. Golden Eagle Ins. Co. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1282, 1285, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 338 ; see also Blatt v. Farley (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 621, 625-627, 629, 276 Cal. Rptr. 612 (award may not be set aside on ground it exceeds amount stated in American Arbitration Association demand for arbitration, which is a unilateral communication to be distinguished from the parties' submission agreement)]. By actually submitting an issue to the arbitrator for decision, the party waives any defect in the arbitrator's authority to decide the issue and also waives any right to litigate the same issue in the courts [see J.C.Gury Co. v. Nippon Carbide Indus. (USA), Inc. (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1305-1306, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 118 (warranty disclaimer held unconscionable and unenforceable and consequential damage award affirmed despite contract provision that arbitrator had no power to make an award that changed, modified, or altered any provision of contract); Felner v. Meritplan Ins. Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 540, 544, 86 Cal. Rptr. 178] . On the other hand, a party who pursues motions to stay arbitration or set aside the order compelling it and refuses to participate in the arbitration hearing in protest, is not estopped to raise the issue of the legality of the arbitration clause on the ground that the arbitrator exceeded his or her powers [Alternative Systems, Inc. v. Carey (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1034, 1039-1041, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 567] .

An arbitrator who issued an award in an initial dispute between the parties does not exceed his or her powers by hearing and deciding a second arbitration when the parties' agreement provided that all disputes of any nature arising from the agreement would be settled by one arbitrator. This is true even if the language "shall be settled by one arbitrator" did not mean that the parties would pick one arbitrator "for life," but merely that each dispute would be settled by one arbitrator rather than three. That language is equally susceptible to both meanings and if the arbitrator interpreted it incorrectly, that would be at most an error of law, which would not be grounds to prohibit confirmation of the award [Patchett v. Bergamot Station, Ltd. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1390, 1392, 1395-1398, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 941] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Submission Under Rules Allowing Telephonic Pre-hearing Conference. Plaintiff/investors submitted claims against their securities brokers to arbitration under submission agreements stating that they had read the procedures and rules of the National Association of Securities Dealers (NASD) relating to arbitration, and acknowledging that the proceeding would be governed by the NASD Code of Arbitration Procedure. Rule 10321 of that Code provides for a telephonic pre-hearing conference. Rule 10304 of that Code provides that no claim is eligible for arbitration if six years have elapsed from date of the occurrence or event giving rise to the dispute. Plaintiffs acknowledged their claims were barred by the six-year limitation [Reed v. Mutual Service Corp. (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 1360 n.4, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 524] . Defendants moved in the arbitration proceeding to dismiss the arbitration based on the six-year limitation period. Plaintiffs opposed that motion. A panel of three arbitrators conducted a telephonic pre-hearing conference in which the parties' attorneys, but not the parties themselves, participated. Based on that conference, and the pleadings, testimony, and evidence presented at that conference, the arbitrators issued an award granting the motion to dismiss the claim with prejudice.

> Defendants petitioned to confirm the award. Plaintiffs petitioned to vacate it, in part on the ground that by deciding the matter at a pre-hearing telephonic conference, the arbitrators exceeded their powers. Did they? No, the plaintiffs clearly agreed to the pre-hearing procedure in their submission agreements [Reed v. Mutual Service Corp. (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 524] .

Ordinarily an arbitrator does not exceed his or her powers by granting relief not specifically authorized by the arbitration agreement because an arbitrator is not required to follow legal rules, but may base the decision on broad principles of justice and equity [Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. v. Intel Corp. (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 362, 374-375, 381, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 581, 885 P.2d 994 ; Bonshire v. Thompson (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 803, 809-810, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716 ; see [h], below]. Similarly, an arbitrator does not usually exceed his or her powers by excusing a performance that would have been futile. That comes within the arbitrator's general power to find the facts, interpret the contract, decide general law, and award any relief rationally related to his or her factual findings and contractual interpretation. An exception to this general power would be a clause in the arbitration agreement that explicitly and unambiguously bars the arbitrator from modifying the contract or excusing any performance [Gueyffier v. Ann Summers, Ltd. (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 1179, 1181-1182, 1184-1188 , -- Cal. Rpr. 3d --, 184 P.3d 739 (excused notice of breach finding it was not curable)]. However, an arbitration agreement with an integration clause that specifically prohibits introduction of any extrinsic evidence whatsoever in any judicial or arbitration proceeding involving the contract, prohibits reformation of the contract. An award for reformation of such a contract should be vacated as in excess of the arbitrator's powers [Bonshire v. Thompson (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 803, 812, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716] . An arbitrator exceeds his or her powers by ordering relief that is contrary to the parties' agreement [see O'Flaherty v. Belgum (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 1044, 1057-1061, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 286 (award forfeiting wrongfully withdrawing partner's capital accounts was contrary to partnership agreement, 1994 Uniform Partnership Act (Corp. Code § 16602) and case law)]. If a receiver has been appointed for a party to the arbitration, generally only the receiver will have standing to represent that party. If the receiver declines to participate in the arbitration, any award purporting to determine claims of the entity in receivership will be in excess of the arbitrator's powers [see O'Flaherty v. Belgum (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 1044, 1061-1063, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 286 (receiver of dissolving partnership declined to participate in arbitration)].

When an arbitration agreement calls for binding arbitration, the inclusion in the agreement of a clause that requires the arbitrator to decide the case as would a court, does not allow the award to be reviewed for errors of law [Pacific Gas & Electric Co. v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 576, 587-589, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295] . Similarly, requiring the arbitrator to state reasons for the award in the nature of a statement of decision does not imply that the parties intend to afford the basis for broad-ranging judicial review [Pacific Gas & Electric Co. v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 576, 589, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295] .

[f] Failure to Postpone Hearing or Hear Material Evidence

[i] Limited Ground for Vacating Award

The contention that the arbitrator refused to hear evidence could be made in virutally every case in which the arbitrator has excluded some evidence or limited discovery. Therefore, under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(5), a challenge to an arbitrator's evidentiary rulings or limitations on discovery should not provide a basis for vacating an award unless the error substantially prejudiced a party's ability to present material evidence in support of its case [Schlessinger v. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1096, 1110, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 650] . Section 1286.2(a)(5) acts as a safety valve that permits a court to intercede when an arbitrator has prevented a party from fairly presenting its case [Schlessinger v. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1096, 1111, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 650 ; Hall v. Superior Court (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 427, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 376] .

This ground for vacating an award may not be used to preclude an arbitrator from disposing of a matter on the arbitral equivalent of a motion, such as a motion for summary adjudication [Schlessinger v. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1096, 1105-1106, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 650 ; for discussion, see § 34.77[2]].

[ii] Test for Substantial Prejudice

When a party complains of excluded material evidence, the reviewing court should generally focus first on prejudice, not materiality. To find substantial prejudice, the court must accept, for purposes of analysis, the arbitrator's legal theory and conclude that the arbitrator might well have made a different award had the evidence been allowed [Schlessinger v. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1096, 1111, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 650 , quoting Hall v. Superior Court (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 427, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 376] .

An arbitrator's refusal to admit evidence that directly affects the issue of damages substantially prejudices the proffering party's ability to dispute the amount of damage and constitutes grounds for vacating an award [Burlage v. Superior Ct. (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 524, 531-532, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 531 (affirmating vacation of award for prejudice)].

In Schlessinger v. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1096, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 650 , the arbitrator disposed of the case by means of two rounds of cross motions for summary adjudication. No discovery had been conducted prior to the first motions, but because the ruling on these motions turned on a pure question of law based on a contract, there was no prejudice from the lack of discovery. Before the second round of motions, the arbitrator permitted discovery, and the parties presented evidence in support of their motions. The court concluded that given the arbitrator's legal theory of the case, the court could not say a different result might have been reached had the complaining party been allowed to conduct additional discovery. The court also expressed its belief that further discovery would not have uncovered any new, material evidence. Thus, in that case the court concluded that the complaining party was not precluded from presenting any material evidence and had a fair opportunity to present his case [Schlessinger v. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1096, 1111, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 650] .

[iii] Refusal to Postpone Hearing on Showing of Sufficient Cause

An award must be vacated if the rights of the party were substantially prejudiced by the refusal of the arbitrators to postpone the hearing on sufficient cause being shown therefor [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(5)].

An arbitrator does not necessarily abuse his or her power by refusing to continue the hearing. After a plaintiff had engaged in various delaying tactics, including filing three lawsuits, all of which were either dismissed or stayed so the arbitration could continue, challenging an arbitrator, who recused himself, seeking to add a new claim almost a year after the arbitration was originally set for hearing, and failing to appear at the arbitration hearing, which was reset approximately one year after it had been originally scheduled, it was within the arbitrator's discretion to hear and determine the matter even though the plaintiff did not appear at the hearing. The request for continuance came more than three years after plaintiff first initiated the arbitration; more than one year beyond the original arbitration date; after plaintiff had already once refused to appear at the arbitration hearing. Plaintiff offered no excuse for failing to earlier assert its additional claims, which arose out of the same facts. Under these circumstances, the arbitrators could reasonably conclude there was no good cause to further delay the arbitration [SWAB Financial, LLC v. E* Trade Securities, LLC (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 1181, 1196-1202, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 904] .

[g] Vacation Not Permitted for Error of Law

[i] General Rule

Unless the parties have contractually agreed to limit arbitrator's powers [see Cable Connection, Inc. v. DirecTV, Inc. (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 1334, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229, 190 P.3d 586 , discussed at § 34.10[2], above], an arbitrator may make a binding award which a court is required to enforce even though the award conflicts with substantive law. An error of law committed by the arbitrator, no matter how gross, is not one of the grounds for setting aside an award [Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 6, 14, 27-28, 33, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899 ; Baize v. Eastridge Companies (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 293, 300, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 763 ; Jones v. Humanscale Corp. (2005)

130 Cal. App. 4th 401, 411, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 881 ; Severtson v. Williams Construction Co. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 86, 92-93, 220 Cal. Rptr. 400 ; State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Guleserian (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 397, 402, 104 Cal. Rptr. 683] .

One reason for this arguably harsh rule is that the risk of error is something the parties agree to bear in return for a quick, inexpensive, and conclusive resolution or their dispute. By enacting Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1286.2 and 1286.6, allowing vacation or correction of an award on specified grounds, the Legislature substantially reduced the risk of certain types of error. The residual risk of error is considered an acceptable cost of obtaining the expedience and financial savings that the arbitration process provides compared to the judicial process [Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 11-12, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899] . Moncharsh disapproved all cases allowing review for an error of law on the face of an award causing substantial injustice [Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 27-28, 33, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899] .

Nor does an error of law or assignment of an erroneous reason for an award constitute an act in excess of the arbitrator's powers which would provide grounds for vacating an award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(4) [Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 28, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183 P.2d 899; Baize v. Eastridge Companies (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 293, 300-301, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 763 ; Jones v. Humanscale Corp. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 401, 411, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 881 ; Pacific Gas & Electric Co. v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 576, 587-590, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295] .

The prohibition on reviewing an award for an error of law is not preempted by Sections 10 and 12 of the Federal Arbitration Act (9 U.S.C. §§ 10, 12) nor by the federal common law rule which allows review of an arbitration award in federal court for "manifest disregard of the law" [Siegel v. Prudential Insurance Company (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1270, 1290-1291, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 ; see also Comedy Club, Inc. v. Improv West Associates (9th Cir. 2007) 514 F. 3d 833, 847 (to vacate award for "manifest disregard of law," it must be clear that arbitrator recognized applicable law and then ignored it); Coutee v. Barington Capital Group, L.P. (9th Cir. 2003) 336 F.3d 1128, 1134-1136 (award in excess of arbitrator's power or in "manifest disregard of law" is to be upheld if error is harmless)].

[ii] Exception for Arbitrary Decision

Arbitrators may exceed their power when the situation transcends simple error and involves such a completely irrational construction of the provision in dispute as to remake the parties' contract [Pacific Gas & Electric Co. v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 576, 591, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295 ; Cobler v. Stanley, Barber, Southard, Brown & Associates (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 518, 532, 265 Cal. Rptr. 868 ; Hacienda Hotel v. Culinary Workers Union (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 1127, 1133, 223 Cal. Rptr. 305 ; Jones v. Kvistad (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 836, 843, 97 Cal. Rptr. 100 ;compare Comedy Club, Inc. v. Improv West Associates (9th Cir. 2007) 514 F.3d 833, 846 (federal standard for vacating award that is "completely irrational" is extremely narrow and is satisfied only if award fails to draw its essence from agreement)]. Pacific Gas & Electric reasoned that Moncharsh's citation of Hacienda Hotel indicates that Moncharsh did not go so far as to limit or disapprove this ground for vacating an award [Pacific Gas & Electric Co. v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 576, 590-591, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295] .

This exception is narrow, however, and applies only to the most serious claims of abuse. It does not allow for vacating an award when the arbitrator's construction of the contract is clearly within the range of ambiguity. If the arbitrator's construction is within the ordinary bounds of semantic permissibility, the contract has not been arbitrarily remade. The test is one of arbitrariness, not correctness [Pacific Gas & Electric Co. v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 576, 594, 598-609, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295 (none of challenged constructions as amounting to remake of contract)].

[h] Vacation Not Permitted if Remedy Is Rationally Related to Contract

Absent more specific restrictions in the arbitration agreement, the submission, or the rules of arbitration, the remedy an arbitrator fashions does not exceed his or her powers if it bears a rational relationship to the underlying contract as interpreted, expressly or impliedly, by the arbitrator [Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. v. Intel Corp. (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 362, 367, 383, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 581, 885 P.2d 994 ; San Francisco Housing Auth. v. Service Employees Int'l Union, Local 790 (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 933, 944, 107 Cal. Rptr. 3d 62 ; see Bonshire v. Thompson (1997)52 Cal. App. 4th 803, 812, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716 (vacating award for reformation of contract with integration clause that prohibited consideration of extrinsic evidence in any judicial or arbitration proceeding involving the contract)]. The award will be upheld if it was even arguably based on the contract; it may be vacated only if the reviewing court is compelled to infer the award was based on an extrinsic source [Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. v. Intel Corp. (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 362, 381, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 581, 885 P.2d 994] .

Moreover, a court may not vacate an award because the arbitrator exceeded the power a court would have had if the parties had chosen to litigate rather than arbitrate their dispute [Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. v. Intel Corp. (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 362, 388, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 581, 885 P.2d 994] . In many cases, however, the required rational relationship between breach of contract and the award may be found in the fact the arbtitrator has awarded the injured party relief of the same general type as that a jury or court could have provided had the claim been litigated, even though the quantity, extent or parameters of the award differ in some respects from that to which the party was legally entitled [Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. v. Intel Corp. (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 362, 384, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 581, 885 P.2d 994] .

In upholding the arbitrator's award in Advanced Micro Devices, Inc., the Court noted that the parties had not by agreement restricted the arbitrator to remedies available in a court of law [Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. v. Intel Corp. (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 362, 389, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 581, 885 P.2d 994] . Practitioners should note that the contract clause regarding the scope of the award involved in the case was identical to the American Arbtiration Association, Commercial Arbitration Rules (1993), Rule 43, and that the Court has held that that clause does not restrict the arbitrator to remedies authorized by law or express agreement [Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. v. Intel Corp. (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 362, 383-384, 389, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 581, 885 P.2d 994] .

The dissent contends that this decision will discourage arbitration because of the greatly increased risks and uncertainty of arbitration it generates [Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. v. Intel Corp. (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 362, 391-392, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 581, 885 P.2d 994 (J. Kennard, dissenting)]. The majority rejected this contention, noting that the parties to an arbitration agreement may limit the possible remedies under it. They advised however, that if the parties wish the arbitrator's powers to be specially restricted, they would be well advised to set out those limitations explicitly and unambiguously in the arbitration clause [Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. v. Intel Corp. (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 362, 383, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 581, 885 P.2d 994] .

[i] Public Construction Contracts

If the parties to a public construction contract expressly agree in writing that an arbitration award resolving a future dispute be supported by law and substantial evidence, then a court shall vacate the arbitration award if it determines on review that the award is not supported by substantial evidence or that it is based on an error of law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1296]. In vacating the award, however, the court is subject to the restrictions stated in Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.4 and discussed under [2], below.

[2] Procedure

[a] Filing and Service of Petition

The court may not vacate an award unless [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.4]:

- A petition or response requesting that the award be vacated has been duly served and filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.4(a)]; or

- A petition or response requesting that the award be corrected has been duly served and filed and [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.4(b)]:

  - All the petitioners and respondents either are before the court; or

  - All the petitioners and respondents have been given reasonable notice that the court will be requested at the hearing to vacate the award or that the court on its own motion has determined to vacate the award and all petitioners and respondents have been given an opportunity to show why the award should not be vacated.

For forms of petition to vacate award, response, and order, see §§ 34.56 -34.58, respectively.

[b] Partial Vacatur Not Authorized

An order partially vacating an arbitration award is not authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 1286. An appellate court reviewing such an order may treat it as a vacation of the entire arbitration award [Sunnyvale Unified Sch. Dist. v. Jacobs (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 168, 174-175, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 546 (affirming vacatur of entire arbitration award)].

[c] Rehearing

If the award is vacated, the court may order a rehearing before new arbitrators. If the award is vacated on grounds set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(4), (5) (see [1][a], above), the court with the consent of the parties to the court proceeding may order a rehearing before the original arbitrators [Code Civ. Proc. § 1287].

If the arbitration agreement requires that the award be made within a specified period of time, the rehearing may nevertheless be held and the award made within an equal period of time beginning with the date for the order for rehearing but only if the court determines that the purpose of the time limit agreed on by the parties to the arbitration agreement will not thereby be frustrated [Code Civ. Proc. § 1287].

§ 34.20 Judgment Correcting Award

[1] Grounds

Subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.8 [see [2], below] the court, unless it vacates the award pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2 [see § 34.19], is required to correct the award and confirm it as corrected if it determines any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.6; see Allstate Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (Jessel) (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 356, 362-363, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 266 ; Schneider v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1311, 1317, 264 Cal. Rptr. 227 (disapproved on other grounds in Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 27-28, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899)]:

- There was an evident miscalculation of figures or an evident mistake in the description of any person, thing, or property referred to in the award;

- The arbitrators exceeded their powers but the award may be corrected without affecting the merits of the decision on the controversy submitted; or

- The award is imperfect in a matter of form, not affecting the merits of the controversy.

Generally speaking, an arbitrator's failure to award attorney's fees in accordance with a contract providing for them is not considered an act in excess of his or her powers, but an error of law or fact, and cannot be corrected by the court [see Moore v. Bank of San Luis Obispo (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 782, 788-789, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 603, 996 P.2d 706 (plaintiffs prevailed on equitable claims but were not awarded any money damages on contract claims; arbitration award provided that each party pay its own attorney's fees); Moshonov v. Walsh (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 771, 773, 779, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 597, 996 P.2d 699 (arbitrator explained attorney's fees were not warranted to party prevailing on tort claims under limited scope of attorney's fee clause)]. Conversely, if the arbitrator makes an error of law in awarding attorney's fees, the trial court has no authority to correct that mistake by deleting the attorney's fees from the judgment or award [Taylor v. Van-Catlin Construction (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1061, 1064, 1068, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 690 (arbitrator in fact did not misconstrue statute under which fees were awarded)]. Similarly, neither an arbitrator's designation of the prevailing party, nor the amount of attorney's fees awarded to a prevailing party can be corrected, modified, or reversed by a court as "in excess of the arbitrator's powers." If the matter was submitted to the arbitrator, any error in deciding that issue is beyond the scope of review [Pierotti v. Torian (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 17, 24-26, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 553 ; Creative Plastering, Inc. v. Hedley Builders, Inc. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1662, 1666, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 216] . Likewise, correction of the award to provide for prejudgment interest not previously awarded or compensation for additional fees and costs not previously awarded is outside the scope of a statutorily permitted correction [Law Offices of David S. Karton v. Segreto (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1, 10, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 329].

There is a narrow exception, however, when the arbitrator designates a prevailing party, but then fails to award attorney's fees or to explain the lack of such an award. In that case, the court still cannot award the fees, but, as discussed in Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding , at § 33.29[3][b], should return the matter to the arbitrator for determination of the amount of attorney's fees [see DiMarco v. Chaney (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1809, 1816-1817, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 558] .

Also, a court can correct an award requiring an employee or former employee to pay fees and expenses of arbitration. If the arbitration involved an employee's unwaivable statutory rights, the minimum requirements set forth in Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 83, 101-112, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745, 6 P.3d 669 (discussed in Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.22[2]), prohibit the employee from being required by the arbitration agreement or the arbitration process to pay any of the arbitral fees or costs. Thus, an award that imposes any of the arbitral costs on an employee should be corrected by amending it to require the employer to pay all fees and expenses of arbitration [Jones v. Humanscale Corp. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 401, 411-412, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 881 (reversing judgment vacating award and ordering it corrected instead)].

Furthermore, a court has the authority to correct and offset an arbitration award by awarding a settlement credit for a pre-arbitration settlement. Pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 877, the court can reduce an arbitration award against a nonsettling defendant by awarding a settlement credit of the amount paid to plaintiff by other defendants in prior settlements on the same issue [Wade v. Schrader (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1039, 1046, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 865]. Since nonsettling defendants were entitled to settlement credit as a matter of law, and since the arbitrator did not take the settlement credit into account in making the arbitration award, applying the settlement credit in satisfaction of the judgment was not really a modification of the arbitration award. Allowing the nonsettling defendants a credit against a future judgment promotes equitable sharing of fault and prevents the plaintiff from obtaining an unfair double recovery [Wade v. Schrader (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1039, 1046, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 865].

[2] Procedure

The court may not correct an award unless:

- A petition or response requesting that the award be corrected has been duly served and filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.8(a)]; or

- A petition or response requesting that the award be vacated has been duly served and filed and [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.8(b)]:

  - All petitioners and respondents are before the court; or

  - All petitioners and respondents have been given reasonable notice that the court will be requested at the hearing to correct the award or that the court on its own motion has determined to correct the award and all petitioners and respondents have been given an opportunity to show why the award should not be corrected.

§ 34.22 Appeal

An aggrieved party may appeal from

- An order dismissing a petition to conform, correct, or vacate an award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1294(b)];
- An order vacating an award unless a rehearing in arbitration is ordered [Code Civ. Proc. § 1294(c)];
- A judgment entered pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1294(d)]; or
- A special order after final judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1294(e)].

An appeal is taken in the same manner as an appeal from an order or judgment in a civil action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1294.2; for discussion, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.43[3]].

With respect to the judgments entered under Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq. [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1294(d)], this requires that the judgment be final in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a), and the one-final-judgment rule applies [Rubin v. Western Mutual Insurance. Co. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1539, 1547-1548, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 648 (judgment confirming arbitration award that only appraised damage was not final for purposes of appeal because merits of action remained to be determined)]. The one-final-judgment rule for appellate proceedings does not prohibit separate or partial judgments against some, but not all, defendants. What the one-final-judgment rule prohibits is appealing from partial disposition while other unresolved matters remain pending. Thus, the fact that judgment had been entered as to some parties based on arbitration did not mean the trial court was prohibited by the one-final-judgment rule from hearing matters relating to the parties who did not participate in the arbitration [Cuevas v. Truline Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 56, 60-62, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 706] .

The parties may waive their right to appeal [see Pratt v. Gursey, Schneider & Co. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1105, 1110, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 695 (dismissing appeal because parties' stipulation to arbitrate expressly waived right to appeal any judgment or order)].

A court of appeal may award sanctions for a frivolous appeal, including one that has no merit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 907; Evans v. Centerstone Development Co. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 151, 168, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 745 ; Harris v. Sandro (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1310, 1315, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 910] . Given the frequency and clarity with which the California Supreme Court has rejected attempts to obtain judicial review of contractual arbitration awards, an appeal based on claims that the arbitrator exceeded his powers by making errors of law and committed misconduct by failing to specify the basis for the award would be seen by any reasonable attorney as transparently without merit. A generally accepted measure of sanctions for a frivolous appeal is the amount of attorney's fees the respondent had to expend in opposing the appeal. The sanction may be imposed, jointly and severally, on both the appellant and his or her attorneys [Harris v. Sandro (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1310, 1316, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 910 (imposing sanctions of $11,062; appeal also appeared to have been taken to delay enforcement of unlawful detainer judgment)].

§ 34.23 Award Will Not Support Malicious Prosecution Action

The California Supreme Court has held, in a four-to-three decision, that a contractual arbitration award is not a "favorable termination of a prior action" that will support an action for malicious prosecution [Brennan v. Tremco Incorporated (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 310, 314, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d.790, 20 P.3d 1086] . The majority in Brennan upheld Sagonowsky v. More (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 122, 125, 134, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 118 , in which the First District, Division Four, did not allow a malicious prosecution action against an attorney for one of the parties to a contractual arbitration [Brennan v. Tremco Incorporated (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 310, 314, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d.790, 20 P.3d 1086] and disapproved, to the extent it is inconsistent, Rogers v. Peinado (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1, 8-9, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 817 , in which the First District, Division Five, distinguished between parties to the arbitration agreement and non-parties, specifically attorneys for a party to the arbitration, by allowing a malicious prosecution action to proceed against the attorneys for the other party to the contractual arbitration but not against the other party to the arbitration [Brennan v. Tremco Incorporated (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 310, 317, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d.790, 20 P.3d 1086] . The attorneys named in the malicious prosecution action in Brennan had settled before Tremco demurred, so only the validity of a malicious prosecution action against the other party to contractual arbitration was at issue in Brennan.

The minority in Brennan believed that because the parties to the arbitration stipulated to arbitration of remaining claims between them only after four years of litigation and termination of several claims (by summary judgment) in Brennan's favor, the majority's holding did not validate the usual reasons for denying the judicial remedy of malicious prosecution. They saw the arbitration as a "terminating mechanism" agreed to only after Brennan and the court system had suffered all the harms which a malicious prosecution claim is designed to vindicate [Brennan v. Tremco Incorporated (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 310, 321, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d.790, 20 P.3d 1086] . The minority also felt their view was consistent with Stanley v. Superior Court (1982) 130 Cal.App.3d 460, 181 Cal. Rptr. 878 , which allowed a malicious prosecution action after conclusion of judicial arbitration, which had also been used as a "terminating mechanism" to the prior action [Brennan v. Tremco Incorporated (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 310, 322, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d. 790, 20 P.3d 1086] .

§ 34.24 Res Judicata and Collateral Estoppel

[1] Issue Preclusion: Collateral Estoppel

A private arbitration award, even if judicially confirmed, is not entitled to collateral estoppel effect ("issue preclusion") against a nonparty unless the parties to the arbitration so agree [Vandenberg v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 815, 824, 834, 836-837, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 982 P.2d 229 ; see also Cuevas v. Truline Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 56, 62, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 706 ; Flores v Transamerica HomeFirst, Inc. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 846, 852, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 376 (court of appeal refused to give collateral estoppel effect to unreported decision regarding unconscionability of arbitration provision in identical loan documents signed by different parties under different circumstances)].

In so holding, the Supreme Court noted that it was making a very narrow holding, and listed a number of issues it was not addressing [Vandenberg v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 815, 824 n.2, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 982 P.2d 229] :

- The strict res judicata ("claim preclusion") effect of a private arbitration award [citing Thibodeau v. Crum (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 749, 756-761, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 27 (award between homeowner and general contractor barred homeowner action against subcontractor); Sartor v. Superior Court (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 322, 327-328, 187 Cal. Rptr. 247 (award between homeowner and architectural firm barred homeowner's identical action against firm's employees)].

- The circumstances, if any, in which a private arbitration award would have collateral estoppel effect in subsequent litigation between the same parties on a different cause of action. A situation of this type was addressed in Grinham v. Fielder (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1049, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 468 , decided after Vanderburg. In Grinham, employers who had not signed the arbitration agreement participated in arbitration for the purpose of proving they had no liability to the party with whom their employee had contracted in excess of the scope of his agency and employment. That award and its resulting judgment were entitled to res judicata and collateral estoppel effect in a cross complaint (to an action by the prevailing third party to set aside employee's allegedly fraudulent transactions) by the employee seeking declaratory relief, contribution, and equity indemnity. The issues of employee's actual or ostensible agency and the employer's liability for employee's actions were determined in the arbitration, in which employers participated. Therefore, it was appropriate to grant their motion for summary judgment in the later action for indemnity [Grinham v. Fielder (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1049, 1054-1055, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 468] .

- Whether the Federal Arbitration Act (9 U.S.C. § 1 et seq.) would alter the ruling.

- The application of collateral estoppel to arbitrations under collective bargaining agreements within the purview of federal or state labor relations laws [citing Kelly v. Vons Companies, Inc. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1329, 1339-1341, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763 (arbitration between union and employer bound employees on similar issues in later litigation with employer) and Lehto v. Underground Constr. Co. (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 933, 939-944, 138 Cal. Rptr. 419 (union-employer arbitration not preclusive against union member's subsequent unfair representation claim)].

- The collateral estoppel effect of arbitrations under various other California statutory schemes, including:

  - Mandatory judicial arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.10 et seq.

  - Statutory arbitration of uninsured motorist claims under Ins. Code §§ 11580.2(f), 11580.5.

  - Statutory arbitration of attorney-client fee disputes under Bus. & Prof. § 6204.

The Court reasoned that because the decision to arbitrate involves each party's conclusion, based on the dispute immediately at stake, that the benefits of arbitration outweigh the risk of losing a binding arbitration even if they could win in court, a party's consent to arbitration should not be read to include consent that they will be bound in all future disputes, regardless of the stakes, against all adversaries, known and unknown [Vandenberg v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 815, 832, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 982 P.2d 229] . The court suggested that parties would not routinely make a conscious agreement to give arbitrator's decisions nonmutual collateral estoppel effect, and that mere silence should not imply the arbitral parties' acceptance of nonmutual collateral estoppel [Vandenberg v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 815, 835, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 982 P.2d 229] .

A confirmed award that was the result of arbitration under a collective bargaining agreement has been held not to collaterally estop the plaintiff from pursuing an action for claims under the Fair Employment and Housing Act (Gov. Code § 12900 et seq., "FEHA"), because there was no showing: (1) that the agreement "clearly and unmistakably" provided for binding arbitration of an employee's statutory FEHA claims, or (2) that the arbitration was conducted pursuant to procedures that allowed for the full litigation and fair adjudication of the FEHA claims [Camargo v. California Portland Cement Company (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 995, 999, 1018-1019, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841 ; see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.22[2] and [4], for discussion of the requirements for arbitration of FEHA claims].

For discussion of the res judicata and collateral estoppel effect of an unconfirmed award in particular, see § 34.11[3].

[2] Claim Preclusion Effect: Strict Res Judicata

A judgment based on a confirmed arbitration award should be given claim preclusion, or strict res judicata, effect, to bar a subsequent lawsuit on the same cause of action [Brinton v. Bankers Pension Services, Inc. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 550, 558 , 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 469 ; see In re Khaligh (2006 9th Cir. BAP) 338 B. R. 817, 830-832 , aff'd 506 F. 3d 956, 957 (9th Cir. 2007) (arbitration award for defamation that included punitive damages was entitled to preclusive effect to allow summary judgment in adversary proceeding establishing debt as malicious and willful and nondischargeable under 11 U.S.C. 523(a)(6))] or another cause of action based on the same primary right [Richard B. LeVine, Inc. v. Higashi (2006) 131 Cal. App. 4th 566, 576-579, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 244] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Derivative Claim Is Barred by Arbitration Award. Plaintiff arbitrated fraud claims against an individual securities representative and one of the brokerage firms for which the representative worked. The statement requesting arbitration said that the individual was acting as agent of both firms, but only one firm was party to the arbitration agreement, so the other firm declined to arbitrate. After the arbitration award in favor of one firm and the individual representative was confirmed and judgment entered thereon, plaintiff filed suit against the second brokerage firm. The trial court granted defendant firm's motion for summary judgment based on res judicata. Was that correct? Yes. Vandenberg v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 815, 824 n.2, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 982 P.2d 229 , made clear that nothing in that decision imposed or implied any limitation on strict res judicata or the claim preclusion effect of a California private arbitration award [Brinton v. Bankers Pension Services, Inc. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 550, 557, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 469] . Applying the primary rights theory, the record established that the arbitrated claim and the lawsuit sought recovery for the same injury. Further, each sought to hold the firm liable based on the agency theory. Thus, the claim asserted in the lawsuit was derivative of plaintiff's claim against the individual representative, so it was not necessary for the firm named in the lawsuit to have been a party to the arbitration in order to assert the claim preclusion defense [Brinton v. Bankers Pension Services, Inc. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 550, 557-558, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 469] .

The "derivative claim" situation is relatively unique, however. Generally, if the earlier award was not against a party to the later litigation, the award will not bar the later action on the basis of res judicata (claim preclusion) if the later litigation does not involve the same primary right or seek the same damages or other relief, and the earlier arbitration did not afford the party against whom the arbitration award is sought to be enforced the opportunity for full presentation of the claim [see, e.g., Benasra v. Mitchell Silberberg & Knupp (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 96, 108-114, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 644 (denial of plaintiff's motion before arbitration panel to disqualify attorneys for opposing party in that arbitration on the basis of conflict of interest due to firm's previous representation of plaintiff, which was encompassed in eventual award, did not bar later action against those attorneys for breach of loyalty); compare Richard B. LeVine, Inc. v. Higashi (2006) 131 Cal. App. 4th 566, 570, 573, 575-579, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 244 (earlier award against plaintiff in later action barred claims against alleged co-conspirator based on same primary right)].

A federal court judgment confirming an arbitration award is not subject to collateral attack in a state court action involving the same parties and the same contract, but other allegations, even if the award confirmed was based on arbitration held at an improper venue [G.C. & K.B. Investments, Inc. v. Wilson (9th Cir. 2003) 326 F. 3d 1096, 1105-1107 (wrong venue was at most error of law which is not judicially reviewable)]. Similarly, the Anti-Injunction Act [28 U.S.C. § 2283] does not prevent a federal district court from enjoining a state court from preventing, or interfering with, enforcement of the federal court's judgment. This "relitigation" exception grants a federal court the authority to issue injunctions in aid of its jurisdiction and to protect or effectuate its judgments [G.C. & K.B. Investments, Inc. v. Wilson (9th Cir. 2003) 326 F. 3d 1096, 1107] .

For discussion of the res judicata and collateral estoppel effect of an unconfirmed arbitration award, see § 34.11[3].

§ 34.31 Decisions

[1] Scope of Review

Parties cannot by their agreement require court to review award for errors of law, sufficiency of evidence, or other nonstatutory ground; provisions so attempting are to be severed or ignored. Hall Street Assocs., L.L.C. v. Mattel, Inc. (2008) 552 U.S. 576, 128 S. Ct. 1396, 170 L. Ed. 2d 254, 259, 263-265, 268 ; Kyocera Corp. v. Prudential-Bache Trade Servs., Inc. (9th Cir. 2003) 341 F. 3d 987, 1000, 1003 (rule under Federal Arbitration Act).

California rule is that parties may obtain judicial review of merits by express agreement providing that arbitrators shall not have power to commit errors of law or legal reasoning, and that award may be vacated or corrected on appeal to court of competent jurisdiction for any such error. Cable Connection, Inc. v. DirecTV, Inc. (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 1334, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229, 190 P.3d 586 (disapproving, to extent they conflict with opinion expressed therein, Crowell v. Downey Community Hospital Foundation (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 730, 735, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810 ; Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum Authority v. CC Partners (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 635, 645, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 363 ; Old Republic Ins. Co. v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 631, 638-639, 53 Cal. Rptr.3d 50)

Neither merits of controversy nor sufficiency of evidence to support arbitrator's award is matter for judicial review; court is not permitted to substitute its judgment for that of arbitrators. Morris v. Zuckerman (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 686, 691, 72 Cal. Rptr. 880, 446 P.2d 1000 ; Pacific Vegetable Oil Corp. v. C.S.T., Ltd. (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 228, 233, 238, 174 P.2d 441 ; Rodrigues v. Keller (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 838, 843, 170 Cal. Rptr. 349 ; Santa Clara-San Benito etc. Elec. Contractors' Assn. v. Local Union No. 332,. (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 431, 437, 114 Cal. Rptr. 909 ; Jones v. Kvistad (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 836, 843, 97 Cal. Rptr. 100 ; Canadian Indem. Co. v. Ohm (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 703, 709, 76 Cal. Rptr. 902 ; Horn v. Gurewitz (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 255, 261-262, 67 Cal. Rptr. 791

Review of uninsured motorist arbitration proceedings that are mandated by Ins. Code § 11580.2 is limited to grounds allowed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2. Porter v. Golden Eagle Ins. Co. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1282, 1285, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 338

Because agreement to arbitrate child support would be void to extent it deprived court of jurisdiction to modify child support or to review future child support awards, parties' agreement to arbitrate future child support was valid only because order approving it reserved jurisdiction to court to review any award; thus, arbitration award modifying child support could not be confirmed or vacated in accordance with contractual arbitration statutes (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1285-1287.6). In re Marriage of Bereznak (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 1062, 1068-1070, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 351

Role of court in reviewing validity of arbitration award under collective bargaining agreement is extremely narrow; arbitrator's findings of law or fact are final and conclusive; neither merits of controversy nor sufficiency of evidence are subject to judicial review; court must affirm award if it can in any rational way be derived from agreement, and can only reverse for manifest disregard of agreement, totally unsupported by principles of contract construction and law of shop. Social Services Union v. Alameda County Training & Employment Bd. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1458, 1463, 255 Cal. Rptr. 746

Court is required to defer to any arbitrator's decision involving contract interpretation that draws its essence form parties' agreement and is required to enforce any award that, on its face, represents plausible interpretation unless award manifestly disregards law. National Football League Players' Assn. v. National Football League Management Council (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 192, 198-199, 233 Cal. Rptr. 147

In action to have arbitration award vacated on basis that arbitrators exceeded their powers (Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2) in interpretation of contract, court is not required to inquire into possible legal error by arbitrators when arbitrators properly assessed evidence and reasonably made findings as to parties' contractual intent. Summit Industrial Equipment, Inc. v. Koll/Wells Bay Area (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 309, 320, 230 Cal. Rptr. 565

Policy of law are to encourage and foster arbitration, and arbitrator's award is generally conclusive on matters of fact and law. Severtson v. Williams Construction Co. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 86, 91, 220 Cal. Rptr. 400

When losing party attacks arbitration award as in excess of arbitrator's powers under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(d) [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(4)] on ground that contract on which award was based was illegal, trial court is entitled to review issue of illegality without being bound by findings of arbitrator. Webb v. West Side District Hospital (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 946, 949, 193 Cal. Rptr. 80 (disapproved in Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 32 n.14, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899 to extent it suggests review is routinely available if party claims merely a portion of the contract is illegal)

Court is without power to reexamine question whether or not plaintiffs had shown reasonable diligence in prosecution of their claims. Young v. Ross-Loos Medical Group, Inc. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 669, 673-674, 185 Cal. Rptr. 536

Scope of review of arbitration award under collective bargaining agreement is limited to determination of whether arbitrator acted in manifest disregard of agreement; court is not permitted to review merits of controversy or sufficiency of evidence. Foreman Roofing Inc. v. United Union of Roofers etc. Workers (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 99, 105-106, 192 Cal. Rptr. 439 ; Department Store Employees Union v. Joseph Magnin Co. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 410, 417, 176 Cal. Rptr. 650

Argument that arbitration agreement is void is not permitted to be made on appeal even if agreement authorizes penalties as long as face of award or record sustains finding of nonforfeiture. Northern Cal. Dist. Council of Hod Carriers v. Pennsylvania Pipeline, Inc. (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 163, 173, 162 Cal. Rptr. 851

Court has no power to review sufficiency of evidence in arbitration proceeding. Shammas v. National Telefilm Associates (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 1050, 1056, 90 Cal. Rptr. 119

Merits of controversy, form and sufficiency of evidence to support award, and credibility and good faith of parties are not subject to judicial review in absence of corruption, fraud, or undue means in obtaining award. Archuletav. Grand Lodge etc. of Machinists (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 202, 208, 68 Cal. Rptr. 694 ; see also Interinsurance Exchange v. Bailes (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 830, 835, 33 Cal. Rptr. 533

Statutory methods of review of arbitration award is exclusive. Government Employees Ins. Co. v. Brunner (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 334, 340, 12 Cal. Rptr. 547

Substantial compliance with arbitration statutes as all that is necessary to support arbitration award. Canadian Indem. Co. v. Ohm (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 703, 707, 76 Cal. Rptr. 902

[2] Interpretation of Award

Declaratory judgment is available to clarify or interpret rights and duties under arbitrator's award when actual dispute exists over meaning of award, as long as clarification or interpretation does not involve modification of award. Sandler v. Casale (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 707, 713, 178 Cal. Rptr. 265

Rules applied in ascertaining meaning of court order or judgment also applies to arbitration awards. L. A. Local etc. Bd. v. Stan's Drive-Ins, Inc. (1955) 136 Cal. App. 2d 89, 94, 288 P.2d 286

[3] Attorney's Fees

Arbitrator's award of attorney's fees pursuant to Civ. Code § 1738.16 was not in manifest disregard of law. Although agreement was governed by New York law, manufacturer violated Civ. Code § 1738.13 (which cannot be waived by any manufacturer or sales representative doing business in California) by failing to enter into contract governing transaction at issue. Commissions earned on transaction were properly awarded under New York doctrine of quasi-contract. Schoenduve Corp. v. Lucent Technologies, Inc. (9th Cir, 2006) 442 F.3d 727, 735-736

It would be an abuse of discretion to award either party attorney's fees for obtaining an order confirming the initial arbitration award, where neither party sought an order confirming the award, or called to the trial court's attention its obligation to confirm the award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286. Law Offices of David S. Karton v. Segreto (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1, 10-11, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 329

Code Civ. Proc. § 1293.2 mandates that court award costs in any judicial proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq. [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1285], and thus requires award of attorney's fees to prevailing party, which Code Civ. Proc.§ 1032(a)(4) defines to include defendant against whom plaintiff does not recover any relief. Thus, defendant who successfully opposed petition to confirm award must be awarded attorney's fees incurred in that proceeding. MBNA America Bank, N.A. v. Gorman (2006) 147 Cal. App. 4th Supp 1, 7-8, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 724

Award of attorney's fees to defendant who successfully opposed petition to confirm award was proper under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5, when basis for denial of confirmation was that arbitration provision was added unilaterally by "bill stuffer" and thus could not serve as waiver of right to trial by jury; fact that order did not formally enjoin plaintiff from enforcing arbitration provision against other customers did not mean no public good was served; order would still effectively deter plaintiff from enforcing arbitration provision against customers similarly situated to defendant. MBNA America Bank, N.A. v. Gorman (2006) 147 Cal. App. 4th Supp 1, 8-10, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 724

When both underlying agreement and submission to arbitration were silent on matter of attorney's fees, arbitrator is without jurisdiction to award them; construction industry rule of AAA, Rule 43, incorporated by agreement, also does not authorize award of attorney's fees. Thompson v. Jespersen (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 964, 967-969, 272 Cal. Rptr. 132

Attorney's fees are awarded to successful party according to terms of agreement, including attorney's fees on appeal. Stermer v. Modiano Constr. Co. (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 264, 272-273, 118 Cal. Rptr. 309

[4] Validity

Erroneous reasoning does not invalidate otherwise proper arbitration award. Grunwald-Marx, Inc. v. Los Angeles Joint Board (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 568, 589, 343 P.2d 23

Every intendment of validity is to be given award. Grunwald-Marx, Inc. v. Los Angeles Joint Board (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 568, 589, 343 P.2d 23 ; United Brotherhood of Carpenters etc., Local 642 v. DeMello (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 838, 840, 100 Cal. Rptr. 564 ; Jones v. Kvistad (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 836, 840, 97 Cal. Rptr. 100 ; Walter v. National Indem. Co. (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 630, 633, 83 Cal. Rptr. 803 ; Frantz v. Inter-Insurance Exchange of Auto. Club (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 269, 273, 40 Cal. Rptr. 218 ; Turner v. Cox (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 596, 603, 16 Cal. Rptr. 644

Failure by arbitrators to consider claim does not invalidate award. Sapp v. Barenfeld (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 515, 523, 524, 212 P.2d 233 ; Jones v. Kvistad (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 836, 844, 97 Cal. Rptr. 100

Portion of award arising from consolidated arbitrations before single arbitrator that was based on causes of action under agreement that provided for three-arbitrator panel had to be vacated because court had no power to order consolidated arbitration before single arbitrator (as provided in one contract); right to three-arbitrator panel is substantial contractual right; it minimizes the risk of factual or legal error, which are subject to only limited judicial review. Parker v. McCaw (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1494, 1505-1509, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 55

Burden is on party claiming invalidity to support such claim with evidence. Walter v. National Indem. Co. (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 630, 633, 83 Cal. Rptr. 803 ; Frantz v. Inter--Insurance Exchange of Auto. Club (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 269, 274, 40 Cal. Rptr. 218 ; Turner v. Cox (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 596, 603, 16 Cal. Rptr. 644

[5] Preserving Objections for Review

Party is not permitted to sit idle through arbitration procedure and then collaterally attack that procedure on grounds not raised before the arbitrators when result turns out to be adverse. Marino v. Writers Guild of America, East, Inc. (9th Cir. 1993) 992 F.2d 1480, 1484

When arbitration agreement allowed review only to determine whether procedures were followed and only after review by internal oversight committee, party seeking writ of mandate to vacate award is required to have first presented objections to oversight committee. see Ferguson v. Writers Guild of America (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1382, 1389-1390, 277 Cal. Rptr. 450

[6] Arbitration Under Self-Executing Agreement

When arbitration proceeds under self-executing agreement without court order to arbitrate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2, objecting party is required to participate in arbitration and to raise objections by petition to vacate award under

Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2 or by opposing petition to confirm award. National Marble Co. v. Bricklayers & Allied Craftsmen (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1057, 1064, 229 Cal. Rptr. 653

[7] Cross Complaints

Provisions for compulsory cross complaints do not apply to special proceedings, such as hearings to confirm arbitration awards, and permissive cross complaints are allowed only when cross complaint responds to complaint or another cross complaint, not to petition. Airfloor Co. of California, Inc. v. Regents of University of California (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 1004, 1009, 149 Cal. Rptr. 130

[8] Discovery

Losing party is not permitted to conduct inquisition into arbitrators' thought processes in reaching their award. Ferguson v. Writers Guild of America (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1382, 1390-1391, 277 Cal. Rptr. 450 ; Cobler v. Stanley, Barber, Southard, Brown & Associates (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 518, 528-529, 265 Cal. Rptr. 868

Petitioners seeking to vacate arbitration award on ground that arbitrators acted in excess of their powers are not entitled to discover mental processes or deliberations of arbitrators. Arco Alaska, Inc. v. Superior Court (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 139, 147-149, 214 Cal. Rptr. 51

[9] Evidence

Arbitrator is not permitted to testify as to his or her own fraud or misconduct to impeach award. Sapp v. Barenfeld (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 515, 523, 212 P.2d 233 ; Lauria v. Soriano (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 163, 171, 4 Cal. Rptr. 328

Arbitrator, although unable to impeach own award on grounds of fraud or misconduct, is able to testify to what matters were considered in making decision. Severtson v. Williams Construction Co. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 86, 92, 220 Cal. Rptr. 400

Dissenting arbitrator is permitted to testify as to bias, partiality, or other misconduct of arbitrators who render award. Lauria v. Soriano (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 163, 171, 4 Cal. Rptr. 328

[10] Determination of Issues

Decision that one party should pay other party sum of money is sufficiently determinative of all items embraced in submission. Sapp v. Barenfeld (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 515, 523, 212 P.2d 233 ; B. S. B. Constr. Co. v. Rex Constr. Co. (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 327, 332, 19 Cal. Rptr. 167

[11] Binding Effect

Award against deceased partner's surviving spouse in favor of partnership and other partners finding that spouse was not entitled to share in profits after decedent's death was res judicata so as to bar surviving spouse's claims against partnership's accountants on any aiding and abetting or conspiracy theories. Richard B. LeVine, Inc. v. Higashi (2006) 131 Cal. App. 4th 566, 570, 573, 575-579, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 244

Claim relating to allocation of arbitration costs is subject to res judicata if it should have been litigated at arbitration hearing. Mansdorf v. California Physicians' Service, Inc. (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 412, 416, 151 Cal. Rptr. 388

Party to arbitration proceedings benefiting from award is estopped from claiming not to be bound by award. Lovret v. Seyfarth (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 841, 862, 101 Cal. Rptr. 143

One who voluntarily joins arbitration proceedings is bound by award. Lovret v. Seyfarth (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 841, 859-860, 101 Cal. Rptr. 143

Binding effect of award in matters properly before arbitrators. Fidelity & Cas. Co. v. Dennis (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 541, 40 Cal. Rptr. 418

Except for matters expressly provided for in Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2 (grounds for vacating award), decision of arbitrator is binding, whether or not correct in law or in fact, when agreement to submit disputes to arbitration is "general." Interinsurance Exchange v. Bailes (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 830, 834, 33 Cal. Rptr. 533 ; see also B. S. B. Constr. Co. v. Rex Constr. Co. (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 327, 334, 19 Cal. Rptr. 167

[12] Confirming Award

Arbitrator did not exceed powers or decide matter not submitted by awarding commissions for transaction which was not covered by contract; award was properly made pursuant to doctrine of quasi-contract recognized in New York under agreement governed by New York law; demand for arbitration was very broad, covering recovery of "those commissions, interest and other damages arising from the wrongful conduct of Lucent." Schoenduve Corp. v. Lucent Technologies, Inc. (9th Cir. 2006) 442 F.3d 727, 732-735

Parties' stipulation which provided that calculation of net cash recovery and judgment remain open until resolution of litigation on related issues, to arbitrate one issue does not amount to waiver of interest under Civ. Code § 3287(a) on basic amount of arbitration award on that issue. FDIC v. Air Florida System, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 822 F.2d 833, 843

Arbitration award is required to be upheld in federal district court unless it is shown that there was partiality on part of arbitrator, or that arbitrator exceeded his or her authority, or that award was rendered in manifest disregard of law. Thompson v. Tega-Rand Intern. (9th Cir. 1984) 740 F.2d 762, 763

Applicants who seek confirmation of arbitration award under Arbitration Act (9 U.S.C. § 9) in federal district court is required to demonstrate independent grounds of federal subject matter jurisdiction since Arbitration Act does not confer subject matter jurisdiction on federal district court. General Atomic Co. v. United Nuclear Corp. (9th Cir. 1981) 655 F.2d 968, 969

Objection to confirmation of an award based on illegality of contract under which arbitration was compelled is not waived by failure to move to vacate award within 100 days as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1288, but may be raised in response to other party's motion to confirm award. South Bay Radiology Medical Associates v. Asher (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1074, 269 Cal. Rptr. 15

Nonjudicial arbitration award is properly vacated on ground of excusable neglect pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473. MJM, Inc. v. Tootoo (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 598, 603-604, 219 Cal. Rptr. 100

When parties to pending civil action agreed that matter be tried by retired judge and that arbitration would be governed by all rules of civil procedure, rules for ordinary civil actions is applicable and prevailing party is properly awarded one-half of his or her arbitration fee as costs, even though rules on arbitration (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2) provide no direct authority therefor. Kauffman v. Shearson Hayden Stone, Inc. (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 809, 812, 180 Cal. Rptr. 566

Rendering judgment against individual defendant in summary proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1287.4 and 1290.2 to confirm arbitration award that was against corporation only, based on trial court's finding that corporation was alter ego of individual defendant is error when record did not show that individual defendant had been served in any capacity other than that of corporate officer, or that individual defendant had been party to arbitration proceeding. Southern Cal. Pipe Trades Dist. Council No. 16 v. Merritt (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 530, 539, 179 Cal. Rptr. 794

Failure to file motion to vacate arbitration award within time limits prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1013 and 1290.6 bars trial court from vacating award. Hirsch v. Ensign (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 521, 530-531, 176 Cal. Rptr. 17 (disapproved on other grounds in Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 27-28, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899)

Even though party was absent from hearing, trial court properly confirmed award made by interboard arbitration over dispute concerning real estate commission, when court found underlying agreement to arbitrate permitted arbitration to proceed in absence of party refusing to appear. King v. Larsen Realty, Inc. (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 349, 356-358, 175 Cal. Rptr. 226

Hearings to confirm arbitration award are "special proceedings" as contrasted with "actions" [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 22, 23]; special proceedings are creatures of statute and court's jurisdiction in such proceedings is limited by statutory authority; legislation providing for enforcement of arbitration awards gives priority to such proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1291.2], narrowly limiting issues [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2], and providing for presenting of evidence in summary way. Airfloor Co. of California, Inc. v. Regents of University of California (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 1004, 1007-1008, 149 Cal. Rptr. 130

Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2 describes exclusive grounds for setting aside arbitration award. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Guleserian (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 397, 402, 104 Cal. Rptr. 683

Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.6 comprises exclusive grounds for correcting award. Jones v. Kvistad (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 836, 841, 97 Cal. Rptr. 100

Award is required to be certain before it may be confirmed by court. Bowman v. Ruchti Brothers (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 897, 902-903, 84 Cal. Rptr. 563

Award that is against public policy is not to be confirmed by court. Black v. Cutter Laboratories (1955) 43 Cal. 2d 788, 798-799, 278 P.2d 905 ; Viola, Inc. v. Santa Barbara High Sch. Dist. (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 425, 427, 80 Cal. Rptr. 784

Duly appointed representative of estate of deceased award recipient is necessary and proper party to petition court to confirm award. Walter v. National Indem. Co. (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 630, 634-635, 83 Cal. Rptr. 803

[13] Correcting Award

In accordance with the general rule that a trial court may not decline to confirm an arbitration award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.6 because it disagrees with the merits of the decision, a trial court may not delete an award of sanctions against a party's attorney from a contractual arbitration award. Bak v. MCL Financial Group, Inc. (2008) 170 Cal. App. 4th 1118, 1127, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 800

Court has the authority to reduce arbitration award against nonsettling defendant by awarding a settlement credit, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 877, of amount paid to plaintiff by other defendants in prior settlements on same issue.

Wade v. Schrader (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1039, 1046 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 865

When arbitrator issued five-page ruling for arbitration submitted under agreement that provided for issuance of award without written opinion which would state only which party prevailed and how much, if anything, was owed, award should not have been vacated, but corrected by deletion of surplusage (everything beyond statement of amount to be recovered), and confirmed as corrected. Allstate Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (Jessel) (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 356, 362-364, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 266

Court has no authority to correct, modify, or reverse arbitrator's error in awarding attorney's fees as either in excess of powers or error of law. Taylor v. Van-Catlin Construction (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1061, 1064, 1068, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 690 ; Pierotti v. Torian (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 17, 24-26, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 553 ; Creative Plastering, Inc. v. Hedley Builders, Inc. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1662, 1666, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 216 , cf. DiMarco v. Chaney (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1809, 1816-1817, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 558 (when arbitrator designates prevailing party, but then fails to award attorney's fees or to explain lack of such award)

Errors that may be corrected is required to be manifest; i.e., apparent by examination of document, needing no evidence to make it more clear, or open, palpable, incontrovertible. Severtson v. Williams Construction Co. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 86, 93, 220 Cal. Rptr. 400

Court is without power to correct award even though award conflicts with substantive law. Woodard v. Southern Cal. Permanente Medical Group (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 656, 662, 217 Cal. Rptr. 514

Categories listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.6 (grounds for correcting award) is exclusive. M. B. Zaninovich, Inc. v. Teamster Farmworker Local Union 946 (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 410, 416, 150 Cal. Rptr. 233

Court is without power to correct award as requested by response to petition to confirm award, when response is not timely filed. De Mello v. Souza (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 79, 84, 111 Cal. Rptr. 274

Failure of arbitrators to find on particular issue is not ground for correction of award by court under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.6. Jones v. Kvistad (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 836, 841, 97 Cal. Rptr. 100

Arbitration award is not subject to correction by reviewing court pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.6(a) when there is no way to determine how or why arbitrators arrived at their particular figures and any error in amount of damages is suppositional, not evident. Shammas v. National Telefilm Associates (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 1050, 1056, 90 Cal. Rptr. 119

Inclusion of damages for unliquidated claim is not within judicial power of correction of award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.6. Banks v. Milwaukee Ins. Co. (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 34, 37, 55 Cal. Rptr. 139

[14] Setoff

Setoff is permitted to be alleged only in actions, not special proceedings such as hearings to confirm arbitration awards. Airfloor Co. of California, Inc. v. Regents of University of California (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 1004, 1009, 149 Cal. Rptr. 130 (pointing out that appellant could have moved in trial court to abate confirmation hearings pending determination of its action at law on its claim against other party in another court and that if that litigation had been resolved in its favor it then could have set off judgment in confirmation proceedings with judgment in action at law)

[15] Vacating Award

[a] In General

Independent federal question jurisdiction for federal courts to review arbitration award is not granted by Federal Arbitration Act provision that sets forth grounds for vacating arbitration award (9 U.S.C. § 10). Garrett v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith (9th Cir. 1993) 7 F.3d 882, 884

One-hundred-day California limitation period for petitions to vacate arbitration award (Code Civ. Proc. § 1288), and not three-month period under federal Arbitration Act (9 U.S.C. § 12), applies to California action under Labor Management Relations Act, § 301 (29 U.S.C. § 185) to vacate arbitration award entered under collective bargaining agreement. San Diego County Dist. Council v. Cory (9th Cir. 1982) 685 F.2d 1137, 1138

Party seeking to vacate arbitration award on all grounds listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2 failed to substantiate any grounds for vacating the award. Taheri Law Group, A.P.C. v. Sorokurs (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 956, 964, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 634

Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2 describes exclusive grounds for setting aside arbitration award. Rosenquist v. Haralambides (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 62, 66, 237 Cal. Rptr. 260 ; Canadian Indem. Co. v. Ohm (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 703, 707, 76 Cal. Rptr. 902 ; Durand v. Wilshire Ins. Co. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 58, 61, 75 Cal. Rptr. 415

Award is not vacated when party attacking it fails to sustain burden of showing that arbitrator did not consider particular claim that was raised prior to award. Rodrigues v. Keller (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 838, 842, 170 Cal. Rptr. 349

Failure of concurring arbitrators to sign award in conformity with Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.4 is not irregularity requiring award to be vacated unless substantial prejudice is shown. United Brotherhood of Carpenters etc., Local 642 v. DeMello (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 838, 840, 100 Cal. Rptr. 564

To vacate award on basis of misconduct of arbitrator under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1288(c) [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(5)], prejudice to complaining party by misconduct is required to be shown from nature of misconduct or from explanatory facts. Lauria v. Soriano (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 163, 170, 4 Cal. Rptr. 328

[b] Bias or Corruption of Arbitrator

Award could be confirmed, despite claim of evident partiality when party knew of undisclosed relationship but did not raise issue until after entry of interim award; federal not California law governed question of confirmation. Federal Fidelity Bank FSB v. Durga MA Corp. (9th Cir. 2004) 386 F.3d 1306, 1311-1314

Under 9 U.S.C. § 10(a)(2) of the Federal Arbitration Act, "evident partiality" is present when undisclosed facts show reasonable impression of partiality; proof of actual bias in showing evident partiality is not required by courts examining nondisclosure cases; different standard for nondisclosure cases compared to actual bias cases is supported by policies of Act; arbitrator is required to make independent investigation even though he or she lacks actual knowlege of conflict because he or she may have constructive knowledge. Schmitz v. Zilveti (9th Cir. 1994) 20 F.3d 1043, 1046-1049

Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(6)(A) requires court to vacate award once it is shown that neutral arbitrator failed to make timely disclosure of matter required to be disclosed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a); it can no longer be argued that undisclosed matter is not one that might cause reasonable person to question arbitrator's impartiality; Legislature intended, by its 2001 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1281.9 and 1286.2(a)(6)(A), that failure to disclose any matter enumerated in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a) satisfies "might-cause-a-reasonable-person-to-question" standard. International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, etc. v. Laughon, (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1380, 1386-1387,

1392-1394, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 341 (including comparison of cases decided before 2001 amendments); see Stats. 2001, Ch. 352, § 8

Gender bias is not established by contested declaration of third arbitrator that other two considered and relied on matters not presented in evidence (that parties travelled together, one was much younger than other, and male partner bought gifts of jewelry from female, to assume that parties had long term sexual relationship and that partnership was formed and operated is part of parties' sexual relationship); evidence is insufficient to establish arbitrators' inability to determine issues. Betz v. Pankow (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 919, 927-930, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834

Bias in party arbitrator is expected and furnishes no ground for vacating award unless it amounts to corruption under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2. Tate v. Saratoga Savings & Loan Assn. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 843, 858, 265 Cal. Rptr. 440 ; Baker v. Sadick (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 618, 622-626, 208 Cal. Rptr. 676

In arbitration under three-party agreement, which provides for each party to appoint one arbitrator and those arbitrators to choose a neutral fourth, fact that two parties' interests had become aligned by time dispute arose does not create sufficient unfairness or bias to prevent compelling arbitration or to void award. Tate v. Saratoga Savings & Loan Assn. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 843, 852-854, 265 Cal. Rptr. 440

Trial court is not required to vacate arbitration award on ground of bias under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(b) [now Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(2)] (corruption in arbitrator) when no business relationship existed between arbitrator and party's attorneys, the arbitrator merely having served is court-appointed discovery referee in unrelated case litigated by same attorneys. Park Plaza, Ltd. v. Pietz (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1414, 1418-1419, 239 Cal. Rptr. 51 (disapproved on other grounds in Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 27-28, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899); but see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. VI, Standard 7(d)(5)(B) (would require disclosure if service as referee was compensated and concluded within two years before date of arbitrator's proposed nomination or appointment and after January 1, 2002)

[c] Disqualification of Arbitrator

Award cannot be vacated because arbitrator disclosed, out of excess of caution, matter that was not required to be disclosed. Luce, Forward, Hamilton & Scripps, LLP v. Koch (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 720, 734-736, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 869 (service on 36-member board of professional organization with party's counsel and proposed expert witness who was later stricken from witness list)

Right to seek to vacate award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(6)(A) is available even if party did not seek disqualification in timely fashion under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.91(c) and cannot be waived by agreeing to arbitrate under rules that state arbitration provider's determinations regarding disqualification will be conclusive. Advantage Medical Services, LLC v. Hoffman (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 806, 820-823, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 935 (AAA Rule 17)

Arbitration award in medical malpractice matter is required to be vacated because neutral arbitrator failed to disclose to patient's arbitrator that in several other arbitrations he had served is party arbitrator for health care provider that opposed patient's claim in current matter. Neaman v. Kaiser Foundation Hospital (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 1170, 1177, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 879

Order confirming award is sufficiently supported by arbitrator's declaration that arbitrator did not know until after rendition of award that law partner represented party's adversary in another matter. Cobler v. Stanley, Barber, Southard, Brown & Associates (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 518, 528-529, 265 Cal. Rptr. 868

Former Code Civ. Proc. § 602(4) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 229(b)), relating to challenges to jurors on ground of prior client relationship with party's attorney, is not applicable to set aside arbitration award based on neutral arbitrator's prior client relationship with law firm of party to arbitration. Banwait v. Hernandez (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 823, 831-832, 252 Cal. Rptr. 647

Attorney appointed is neutral arbitrator under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.6 is not required to disclose that he or she had been represented as client by law firm representing party to arbitration, on ground that record showed no substantial business relationship or circumstances creating a reasonable impression of possible bias. Banwait v. Hernandez (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 823, 831, 252 Cal. Rptr. 647 ; but see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a)(3), which, beginning January 1, 1998, requires a proposed neutral arbitrator to disclose prior attorney-client relationships with a party

Arbitration award in insurance appraisal proceeding is required to be vacated when fact that "neutral" appraiser/arbitrator had done business with appraiser/arbitrator selected by insurance company while proceeding pending was not disclosed to insured. Figi v. New Hampshire Ins. Co. (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 772, 775-778, 166 Cal. Rptr. 774

Arbitrator's undisclosed personal acquaintance with senior partner of law firm representing other party, and arbitrator's undisclosed personal experience of injuries similar to aggrieved party's injuries, are not grounds for vacating award. Gonzales v. Interinsurance Exchange (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 58, 64-66, 148 Cal. Rptr. 282

[d] Error of Law

The Supreme Court's decision in Hall Street Associates L.L.C. v. Mattel, Inc., 128 S. Ct. 1396, 170 L. Ed. 2d 254 (2008) , did not preclude ruling that vacatur on grounds that the arbitrator's award manifestly disregarded the law was still valid under the Federal Arbitration Act, 9 U.S.C. § 10(a)(4), in the Ninth Circuit. For an arbitrator's award to be in manifest disregard of the law, it must be clear from the record that the arbitrator recognized the applicable law and then ignored it. Comedy Club, Inc. v. Improv West Associates (9th Cir. 2009) 553 F.3d 1277, 1281, 1290

Under rule of deferential review of arbitration awards, mere error in interpretation of California law is insufficient to justify refusal to enforce arbitrators' decision. Northrop Corp. v. Triad Intern. Marketing S.A. (9th Cir. 1987) 811 F.2d 1265, 1269 , modified by, 842 F.2d 1154 (as to date post judgment interest begins to accrue)

Arbitrator's failure to award restitution after rescission by mutual agreement is neither error of law nor failure to determine issue presented warranting vacation; plaintiff had burden of proving land returned had not decreased in value or had decreased by less than payments made to defendant, thus, no restitution could properly be awarded. Grill v. Hunt (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 73, 78-79, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 768

Unless specifically required under terms of arbitration agreement to act in conformity with rules of law, arbitrators of medical malpractice claim are able to base their award on broad principles of justice and equity without regard to any limit imposed by Civ. Code § 3333.2(b). Nogueiro v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 1192, 1194-1195, 250 Cal. Rptr. 478

Arbitration award is not subject to vacation on grounds that medical evidence rendered subsequent to hearing revealed possible permanent damage that rendered award inadequate. National Auto. & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 948, 955-956, 229 Cal. Rptr. 366

[e] Exceeded Arbitrator's Powers

Board improperly applied standards granted by Ed. Code § 45113(e) and collective bargaining agreement under which it was authorized to review arbitration award; those standards [see California Arbitration Act; CAA; Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq.] did not allow board vacate award based on arbitrator's interpretation of contract or seriousness of offense; arbitrator did not exceed his powers [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(4)] by improperly defining "serious nature of the offense"; interpreting contract is part of arbitrator's task. California School Employees Assn. v. Bonita Unifies School District (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 387, 404-408, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 486

Arbitrator does not usually exceed powers by excusing performance that would have been futile; that comes within arbitrator's general power to find facts, interpret contract, decide general law, and award any relief rationally related to those findings and interpretation; exception to this power would be clause in arbitration agreement that explicitly and unambiguously bars arbitrator from modifying the contract or excusing any performance. Gueyffier v. Ann Summers, Ltd. (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 1179, 1181-1182, 1184-1188 , 77 Cal. Rpr. 3d 613, 184 P.3d 739 (excused notice of breach finding it was not curable)

The arbitrator's interpretation of the contract in deciding whether the employer improperly laid off a particular employee allowed her to frame a remedy that, although not expressly provided for in the agreement, was reasonably related to the arbitrator's interpretation of the contract and was not prohibited. San Francisco Housing Auth. v. Service Employees Int'l Union, Local 790 (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 933, 951, 107 Cal. Rptr. 3d 62

Arbitrators functioning as appraisal panel [see Ins. Code § 2071] have authority to determine only actual case value of insured item; appraisal that determines coverage is in excess of appraisers' authority and cannot be confirmed, but must be vacated. Kacha v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 1023, 1026

Arbitrator exceeds his or her powers by dismissing arbitration for change in law occurring after court ordered arbitration; arbitrator has no power to reexamine whether parties were bound by arbitration agreement. Malek v. Blue Cross of California (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 44, 56, 59-60, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 687

Under agreement that provided for arbitrator only to review procedural issues relating to faculty status decisions, unless faculty decision was "not based on reasoned judgment," arbitrator's award granting tenure and promotion failed to conform to parties' agreement, exceeded scope of arbitrator's authority, and had to be vacated. California Faculty Ass'n v. Superior Court (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 935, 937, 951-954, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1

Arbitrator is without power (statutory or from parties' agreement) to compel compliance with order by imposing monetary sanctions ($50 per day per tree for each tree not removed from easement) for future violations of award, or to award damages for relative's harassment (while attempting to use easement). Luster v. Collins (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1338, 1350, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 215

For arbitrator to determine claim barred by limitation period established by industry rules governing parties' dispute would be in excess of arbitrator's powers, but arbitration claim was timely filed, so confirmation of award was proper. Citibank v. Crowell, Weedon & Co. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 844, 848-850, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 906

Arbitrator's authority is derived from contract, collective bargaining agreement, or memorandum of understanding between parties, not from court's order compelling arbitration; therefore, arbitrator is authorized to award remedy pursuant to authority in memorandum even though order compelling arbitration did not so charge arbitrator. Social Services Union v. Alameda County Training & Employment Bd. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1458, 1463, 255 Cal. Rptr. 746

Arbitrator does not exceed his or her powers under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(d) [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(4)] in determining that part of collective bargaining agreement at issue was illegal and unenforceable because issue was submitted to arbitrator and was not objected to until after award was made, and award is therefore not to be vacated. United Food & Commercial Workers Union v. Clougherty Packing Co. (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 282, 288-289, 201 Cal. Rptr. 183

Arbitration award is properly vacated under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(d) [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(4)] when prehire agreement under 29 U.S.C. § 158(f), containing arbitration clause, had been effectively repudiated by employer. Northern Cal. Dist. Council of Laborers v. Robles Concrete Co. (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 289, 294, 196 Cal. Rptr. 776

Power of court under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(d) [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(4)] to vacate award in excess of arbitrator's powers when award cannot be corrected without affecting merits. Department of Public Health v. Service Employees Internat. Union (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 429, 434, 263 Cal. Rptr. 711 ; San Luis Obispo Bay Properties, Inc. v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 556, 564, 104 Cal. Rptr. 733

Award to be vacated when arbitrators exceed express limitations of submission agreement. William B. Logan & Associates v. Monogram Precision Industries (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 12, 17, 7 Cal. Rptr. 212

[f] Failure to Find on All Issues

The failure of a contractual arbitration award to be enforceable as a judgment does not itself provide grounds for vacating the award. The principle of arbitral finality does not preclude the arbitrator from making a final disposition of a submitted matter in more than one award. The normal course of action when the financial terms of an award are unenforceable due to ambiguity is to remand the matter to the original arbitrator for clarification. Mossman v. City of Oakdale (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 83, 90-92, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 764

Failure of arbitration to make finding on express claim does not invalidate award as long as award settles entire controversy. Rodrigues v. Keller (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 838, 843, 170 Cal. Rptr. 349

Possession of information by one party does not cure uncertainty in award or in judgment, since law does not require party to make computation in order to render judgment certain; hence, when amount to be paid under arbitrators' award cannot be established by award but requires additional information not present in award, award must be vacated. M. B. Zaninovich, Inc. v. Teamster Farmworker Local Union 946 (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 410, 413 n.1, 416, 150 Cal. Rptr. 233

Award of arbitrator who fails to decide all questions submitted is void and entire cause is required to be returned to arbitrator for redetermination. M. B. Zaninovich, Inc. v. Teamster Farmworker Local Union 946 (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 410, 416, 150 Cal. Rptr. 233

Failure of arbitrators to find on all issues submitted to arbitration is proper ground for vacation award. Jones v. Kvistad (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 836, 841, 97 Cal. Rptr. 100

Arbitrator's failure to consider issue of general damages that was properly before him or her in arbitration of personal injury claim is proper basis for vacating award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(e) [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(5)] and for directing rehearing under Code Civ. Proc. § 1287. Banks v. Milwaukee Ins. Co. (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 34, 38-40, 55 Cal. Rptr. 139

[g] Failure to Postpone Hearing

Failure to postpone hearing so treating doctors could testify did not amount to failure to hear evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(5)] that would require vacating award when arbitrator had doctors' records and proponent made no showing that doctors were needed at hearing or that any attempts had been made to ascertain if hearing date was convenient for them. Roitz v. Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage Co. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 716, 724-726, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 85

Vacation of award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(e) [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(5)] (prejudice by refusal of arbitrator to grant continuance) is not necessary when prior continuance had been given, later requests for continuance were required by counsel's lack of preparation, and party's problems with counsel's lack of diligence predated hearing by several months, which was ample time for party to obtain other representation. Outdoor Services, Inc. v. Pabagold, Inc. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 676, 685-686, 230 Cal. Rptr. 73

Defendant's incarceration, his or her having sent letter requesting delay of hearing before Labor Commissioner because of inability to appear at hearing due to incarceration, and hearing officer's holding of hearing in defendant's absence in disregard of request for delay, raises grounds that may support vacation of determination under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(e); [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(5)] superior court required to determine if defendant presented sufficient cause for postponement to hearing officer, and if refusal to postpone substantially prejudiced defendant's rights. Humes v. MarGil Ventures, Inc. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 486, 497, 220 Cal. Rptr. 186

Arbitrator's rejection of hearsay statements of grievant, who could not be located at time of hearing, and subsequent conduct of hearing when nocontinuance was requested to locate grievant, is not sufficient for granting petition to vacate award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2 (grounds for vacation of arbitration award). Communications Workers v. General Telephone Co. (1981) 127 Cal. App. 3d 82, 87, 179 Cal. Rptr. 204

Award is not required to be vacated for refusal to postpone hearing when pendency of proceedings provided ample time to procure evidence as to one issue and other issue is susceptible of resolution in same fashion is legal question. Shammas v. National Telefilm Associates (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 1050, 1055-1056, 90 Cal. Rptr. 119

[h] Illegal Contract and Contract Against Public Policy

Award had to be vacated in part because it was contrary to Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600, which provides that contracts prohibiting competition are void, in that award enjoined nonsignatory relatives from owning competing businesses; noncompetition clause provisions precluding non-party relatives or ex-spouses from opening or operating improv-comedy-related businesses or restaurants violated Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600. Comedy Club, Inc. v. Improv West Associates (9th Cir. 2007) 514 F. 3d 833, 848-851

Whether arbitrators' interpretation and application of agreement is unenforceable on ground that it is contrary to public policy is question for court alone to decide. Northrop Corp. v. Triad Intern. Marketing S.A. (9th Cir. 1987) 811 F.2d 1265, 1268 , modified by 842 F.2d 1154 (as to date post judgment interest begins to accrue)

Award is not to be vacated at request of seller because it required buyer to pay more for gas than price ceiling imposed by Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978 (15 U.S.C. § 3301 et seq.); award does not compel seller to do illegal act; proper remedy is correction of award (though neither party sought it). Pacific Gas & Electric Co. v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 576, 610-612, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295

Award based on illegal contract is vacated when error appears on face of award and causes substantial injustice. All Points Traders, Inc. v. Barrington Associates (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 723, 736-738, 259 Cal. Rptr. 780 (vacating award of commission to unlicensed investment banker); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10008.5 (real estate and business opportunity broker licensing requirements do not apply to person licensed as security broker); see also Stats. 1989, ch. 1116, § 8 (statement of legislative intent that rights and obligations of parties in All Points Traders not be affected)

Under Bus. & Prof. Code § 7031, defense that party seeking arbitration award was acting as contractor and was not licensed is available in proceedings to confirm arbitration awards; defense is issue under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(d) [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(4)], because award to contractor without license would be in excess of arbitrator's powers. Airfloor Co. of California, Inc. v. Regents of University of California (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 1004, 1009, 149

Cal. Rptr. 130 (defense not sustained); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 7031(a), (c) as amended effective January 1, 1993 (licensure must be alleged but need be proven only if controverted)

[i] Misconduct of Neutral Arbitrator

Trial court is not required to vacate arbitration award on ground of misconduct by arbitrator, when misconduct was that of party-appointed arbitrator, not neutral arbitrator is required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(c) [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(3)], and petitioners failed to show its prejudicial effect. Good v. Kaiser Foundation Hospital (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 819, 822-823, 199 Cal. Rptr. 581

[j] Award Contrary to Statute or Public Policy

Award reinstating fired workers with back pay should not have been vacated; employer had no "convincing information" of immigration violations; thus, reinstatement would not violate federal immigration law or pubic policy; given short time within which employees were required to respond (three days), employees' failure to return documents that explained discrepancies was not probative enough of immigration status to indicate that public policy would be violated if they were reinstated and given back pay. Aramark Facility Services v. Service Employees International Union, Local 1877 AFL (9th Cir. 2008) 530 F. 3d 817, 824-832

Given that under Educ. Code § 44929.21, nonreelection of probationary employees is not subject to collective bargaining and, therefore, a proper subject of arbitration, the same reasoning applies to claims of nonreelection for retaliatory reasons. Award by ordering reinstatement of a probationary teacher to teaching position with respondent school district thus exceeded arbitrator's authority. Sunnyvale Unified Sch. Dist. v. Jacobs (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 168, 176, 179, 180-181, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 546

In addition to statutory grounds, award against minor may be vacated based on minor's right to disaffirm contract, even if disaffirmance comes after deadline for responding to petition to confirm award or moving to vacate the award; any award based on disaffirmed contract must be vacated, and any judgment confirming award, reversed. Fam. Code §§ 6700, 6710; Berg v. Traylor (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 809, 812, 816-820, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 140 (finding contract was not one for necessities within exception of Fam. Code § 6712)

Even if minor did not disaffirm the contract containing arbitration clause, award may still be vacated on separate ground that no guardian at litem was appointed to represent minor in arbitration, especially when parent's interests were adverse to the minor's, for instance when parent will be liable in event of minor's disaffirmance. Berg v. Traylor (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 809, 821-822, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 140

Award reinstating employee who was fired after threatening to kill co-worker and being enjoined from contact with co-worker had to be vacated because it could not be reconciled with terms of injunction and public policy which requires obedience to court orders. City of Palo Alto v. Service Employees Internat. Union (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 327, 338-340, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 500

For court to refuse to enforce arbitrator's award on grounds of public policy, policy must be well defined and dominant, and be ascertained by reference to laws and legal precedents and not from general considerations supposed to be public interests. Social Services Union v. Alameda County Training & Employment Bd. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1458, 1465, 255 Cal. Rptr. 746

[16] Appeal

Notice of appeal naming judgment against husband and wife but not naming party appealing was sufficient under Cal Rules Ct 8.100(a) to provide notice of appeal of the judgment by the husband and wife. Toal v. Tardif (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1208, 1216-1217, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 97

Party who discovers new evidence to support disqualification of arbitrator after notice of appeal has been given with respect to judgment based on award is properly raising issue at earliest opportunity, by writ of coram vobis to court of appeal or by writ of coram nobis to trial court. Betz v. Pankow (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 931, 941-942, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841

Code Civ. Proc. § 1294(b) does not authorize aggrieved party to appeal from order denying vacation or correction of arbitration award; review of denial order is only available on appeal of judgment of confirmation. Mid-Wilshire Associates v. O'Leary (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 1450, 1453-1455, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 862

Permitting arbitration to proceed is generally preferred, with later review of intermediate rulings on petition to vacate or affirm arbitrator's award or on appeal from judgment confirming award; jurisdictional issues are not waived by participating in arbitration so long as jurisdictional objection raised prior to participation. International Film Investors v. Arbitration Tribunal of Directors Guild (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 699, 706, 199 Cal. Rptr. 690

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1294, interlocutory rulings as to arbitrability and ultimate orders compelling arbitration are nonappealable, while order denying petition to compel arbitration is appealable; judgment denying petition for writ of prohibition to restrain commencement of arbitration is deemed equivalent to nonappealable order compelling arbitration, despite general appealability of judgment denying petition for extraordinary writ or injunction. International Film Investors v. Arbitration Tribunal of Directors Guild (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 699, 703-706, 199 Cal. Rptr. 690

Party compelled to submit to court-ordered arbitration is entitled to have validity of that order reviewed on appeal from judgment confirming award. Kelly v. Tri-Cities Broadcasting, Inc. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 666, 672, 195 Cal. Rptr. 303 ; Lesser Towers, Inc. v. Roscoe-Ajax Constr. Co. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 675, 692, 77 Cal. Rptr. 100

Trial court finding of agreement to arbitrate when one does not exist is abuse of discretion because essential jurisdictional fact is missing. Kelly v. Tri-Cities Broadcasting, Inc. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 666, 672, 195 Cal. Rptr. 303

Order dismissing action for failing to bring action to trial within five years is appealable award. Young v. Ross-Loos Medical Group, Inc. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 669, 672, 185 Cal. Rptr. 536

Preliminary appraisal of stock pursuant to multi-phase appraisal procedure does not constitute statutory award for purpose of review when initial appraisal was not determinative of controversy over stock value. Helzel v. Superior Court (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 652, 662, 176 Cal. Rptr. 740

Time for appeal from trial court's denial of petition to confirm arbitration award is 180 days, running from date trial court dismissed petition, although "judgment" was entered later. Carpenters 46 Northern Cal. Counties Conf. Bd. v. David D. Bohannon Organization (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 360, 362

Order directing issuance of writ of execution for collection of award is appealable special order after final judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 1294(e). Lovret v. Seyfarth (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 841, 851-852, 101 Cal. Rptr. 143

[17] Federal Arbitration Act

9 U.S.C. §§ 9-11 are permissive, not exclusive, allowing motion to vacate, confirm, or modify award under Federal Arbitration Act to be brought not only in district where award was made, but in any district proper under general venue statute [28 U.S.C. § 1391(a)(2)], e.g., in district where contract was performed. Cortez Byrd Chips, Inc. v. Bill Harbert Constr. Co. (2000) 529 U.S. 193, 120 S. Ct. 1331, 146 L. Ed. 2d 171

Federal district court had discretion to correct its mistake on Rule 60 motion to change rate on post-judgment interest from California statutory rate (10%) to federal rate (1.76%) [see 28 U.S.C. § 1961]; award provided it would "bear interest at statutory rate" from date specified; although California rate might apply to pre-judgment interest from date specified, California choice-of-law provision in parties' contract was not specific enough to require California rate to apply after judgment. Federal Fidelity Bank FSB v. Durga MA Corp. (9th Cir. 2004) 387 F.3d 1021, 1023-1024

Diversity jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1332(a) for purposes of vacating award is based on amount at issue in underlying controversy, not amount of award. Theis Research, Inc. v. Brown & Bain (9th Cir. 2004) 386 F.3d 1180, 1184-1185 as amended on rehearing 400 F.3d 659 (2005) (affirming award for zero dollars); American Guaranty Co. v. Caldwell (9th Cir. 1934) 72 F.2d 209, 211

To be heard in federal court, petition to confirm or vacate award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq. must be based on diversity jurisdiction or involve some federal question; request for attorney's fees under ERISA fee-shifting provision [29 U.S.C. § 502(g)(1)] does not confer federal subject matter jurisdiction. Carter v. Health Net of Cal., Inc. (9th Cir. 2004) 374 F.3d 830, 833-834

It is not presence of federal issues in underlying arbitration that determines whether federal question jurisdiction exists, but grounds asserted for federal review in petition; thus petition to confirm or deny that relies on state arbitration statute must establish that disposition depends on resolution of substantial federal question. Carter v. Health Net of Cal., Inc. (9th Cir. 2004) 374 F.3d 830, 836-837

Claim that arbitrator manifestly disregarded federal law [see 9 U.S.C. § 10] cannot confer federal question subject matter jurisdiction when issue in dispute (i.e., whether plan administrator/alter ego is proper party to arbitration) is unsettled in circuit. Carter v. Health Net of Cal., Inc. (9th Cir. 2004) 374 F.3d 830, 838-839

Unless there is federal question involved, federal court must have independent basis for federal jurisdiction to hear claims under Federal Arbitration Act; 9 U.S.C. § 10 does not confer federal question subject matter jurisdiction, but claim that arbitrator rendered award in manifest disregard of federal law (here Americans with Disabilities Act; 42 U.S.C. § 12101 et seq.) does confer jurisdiction. Vu Luong v. Circuit City Stores, Inc. (9th Cir. 2004) 368 F. 3d 1109, 1112

§ 34.40 Judicial Review of Award

NOTE:

Any party to an arbitration in which an award has been made may petition the court either to confirm, correct, or vacate the award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1285]. The steps set forth in [1] through [4], below, are to be followed alternatively. A petition to correct an award could probably, as alternative relief if correction is denied, seek either to confirm the award as made or to vacate the award.

The following checklist is illustrative only of the procedures commonly utilized by counsel in arbitration matters.

[1] Petition to Confirm Award

☐ Counsel for proponent of award petitions superior court in proper county [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(10)(A), 1292.2, 1292.6 (venue and jurisdiction)] to confirm award [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1285].

☐ Prepare petition to confirm award, together with notice of hearing and other papers on which petition is based [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1285, 1285.4, 1288-1288.6, 1290-1290.4; for a form, see § 34.50[1]].

☐ Serve and file a petition to confirm award, notice of hearing, and other.

☐ Opposition to petition. Counsel for opponent of award submits papers opposing petition.

☐ Prepare response [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1285.2, 1288.2, 1290, 1290.6, 1290.8], setting forth denials and defenses, and requesting either that award be vacated, that it be corrected and confirmed as corrected, or that proceeding be dismissed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1285.2; see § 34.52[1]].

☐ Serve and file response.

☐ Hearing. Attend the hearing and present evidence to the court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.2 (summary hearing)].

☐ Statement of Decision. Request a statement of decision, if court does any of the following [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1291, 1294(a), (c); for procedure and forms, see Ch. 529, Statement of Decision]:

☐ Grants judgment confirming the award.

☐ Dismisses a petition to confirm, correct, or vacate the award.

☐ Vacates award and does not order rehearing.

☐ Order. As directed by the court, counsel for prevailing party should prepare either:

☐ Order and judgment confirming award [see §§ 34.53[1] -34.54].

☐ Order denying petition and granting any relief requested by respondent, and deliver such to the court for signature and filing.

[2] Petition to Vacate Award

☐ If award is opposed, counsel for party seeking order vacating award petitions court in proper county [see Code Civ. Proc. § 85, 86(a)(10)(A), 1292.2, 1292.6] to vacate award [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1285].

☐ Prepare petition to vacate award, together with notice of hearing and other papers on which petition is based [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1285, 1285.4, 1288-1288.6, 1290-1290.4; see § 34.56[1]].

☐ Serve and file petition to vacate award.

☐ Opposition to petition. Counsel for party opposing petition submits papers opposing petition:

☐ Prepare response [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1285.2, 1285.6, 1288.2, 1290, 1290.6, 1290.8

] to petition, setting forth denials and defenses, and requesting either that award be confirmed or corrected and confirmed, or that petition be dismissed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1285.2; see § 34.57[1]].

☐ Serve and file response.

☐ Hearing. Attend hearing and present evidence [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.2 (summary hearing)].

☐ Statement of decision. Request statement of decision if court does any of the following [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1291, 1294(a)-(c); for procedure and forms, see Ch. 529, Statement of Decision]:

☐ Grants judgment confirming award.

☐ Dismisses petition to confirm, correct, or vacate award.

☐ Vacates award and does not order rehearing, request statement of decision.

☐ Order. As directed by the court:

☐ Prepare order and judgment, if appropriate [see § 34.58[1]].

☐ Deliver documents to court for court's signature and filing.

☐ Prepare for rehearing: if rehearing in arbitration is directed in court's order [see § 34.19[2]].

[3] Petition to Correct Award

☐ If correction of the award is desired, counsel for party seeking correction petitions the court in the proper county [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(10)(A), 1282.2, 1292.6] to correct the award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1285].

☐ Prepare petition to correct award and to confirm it as corrected, together with notice of hearing and other papers on which petition is based [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1285, 1285.4, 1288-1288.6, 1290-1290.4].

☐ Serve and file petition, notice of hearing and other papers.

☐ Opposition to petition to correct award.

☐ Prepare response [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1285.2, 1288.2, 1290, 1290.6, 1290.8] setting forth denials and defenses, and requesting that the court confirm the award as it is, vacate the award, or dismiss the petition [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1285.2].

☐ Serve and file response.

☐ Hearing. Attend hearing and present evidence [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.2 (summary hearing)].

☐ Statement of decision. Request statement of decision if court does any of the following [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1291, 1294(a)-(c); for procedure and forms, see Ch. 529, Statement of Decision]:

☐ Grants judgment confirming award.

☐ Dismisses petition to confirm, correct, or vacate award.

☐ Vacates award and does not order rehearing, request statement of decision.

☐ Order. As directed by the court, counsel:

☐ Prepares the order and judgment correcting the award and confirming it as corrected, or the order denying the petition and granting any relief requested by respondent.

☐ Deliver documents to court for court's signature and filing.

§ 34.41 Appeal

☐ File appeal. If appropriate, counsel for a party aggrieved by any of following orders or judgments files appeal:

☐ Order dismissing or denying petition to compel arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1294(a)].

☐ Order dismissing petition to confirm, correct, or vacate award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1294(b)].

☐ Order vacating award unless rehearing in arbitration is ordered [Code Civ. Proc. § 1294(c)].

☐ Judgment entered pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1294(d)]. To be appealable, the judgments must be final within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a) [Rubin v. Western Mutual Insurance Co. (1999) 71Cal. App. 4th 1539, 1547, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 648 (judgment confirming appraisal award was not final for purposes of appeal because all four causes of action remained to be determined; arbitration award only determined amount of damages)].

☐ Special order after final judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1294(e)].

☐ Procedure. The appeal is taken in the same manner as from order or judgment in civil action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1294.2]. For procedure and forms, see Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal .

AUTHOR: Michael S. Fields Editorial Consultant Michael S. Fields is a private practitioner in Beverly Hills who has specialized in plaintiff tort litigation since 1969. He has had extensive jury trial experience in the areas of medical malpractice, product liability, employee third-party actions, vehicular collisions, and insurance bad faith actions throughout California. § 34.50 Petition to Confirm Arbitration Award and for Entry of Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1285]--Judicial Council Form ADR-106

[1] FORM Petition to Confirm Arbitration Award and for Entry of Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1285]--Judicial Council Form ADR-106

[2] Use of Form

The form of petition in [1], above, is a reproduction of Judicial Council form ADR 106, which is mandatory after January 1, 2004, to petition to correct, confirm, or vacate a contractual arbitration award. It is shown above being used to obtain a court order confirming an arbitration award and a judgment in conformity with the order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1285].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

Once an arbitration award has been rendered, the award becomes a new and fixed liability regardless of the elements that comprised that liability. Hence, the successful party is entitled to "recover damages certain" within the meaning of Civ. Code § 3287(a) and thus is entitled to interest on the amount of the award from the date the arbitrator renders the award until the date of the judgment confirming the award (Paragraph 10d) [County of Solano v. Lionsgate Corporation (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 741, 752-754, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 362 (but it was error to award interest from date of entry of findings and conclusions, so award for interest prior to date of filing of award had to be vacated); Pierotti v. Torian (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 17, 27-28, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 553 ; Britz, Inc. v. Alfa-Laval Food & Dairy Co. (1995) 34

Cal. App. 4th 1085, 1106-1107, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 700] . In addition, if a plaintiff in a personal injury action has obtained a judgment based on an arbitration award more favorable than his or her Section 998 offer, that plaintiff is entitled to prejudgment interest pursuant to Civ. Code § 3291 [Weinberg v. Safeco Ins. Co. of Am. (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 1075, 1084-1085, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 224 (uninsured motorist arbitration); Caro v. Smith (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 725, 735-737, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 306 ; cf. Woodard v. Southern Cal. Permanente Medical Group (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 656, 666, 217 Cal. Rptr. 514 (court had no power to award prejudgment interest after arbitrators denied it); for further discussion, see Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding, § 33.29[2]].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1293.2 mandates that the trial court award costs to the prevailing party in any judicial proceeding under Code Civ. Proc.§ 1280 et seq. as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1021 et seq. Petitions to confirm or vacate arbitration awards are covered by Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq. [see Code Civ. Proc.§ 1285], and require an award of attorney's fees to the prevailing party if provided for in their contract (Paragraph 10 (f)). Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(a)(4) defines "prevailing party" to include a defendant as against whom plaintiff does not recover any relief. Thus, a defendant who successfully opposes a petition to confirm award must be awarded attorney's fees incurred in that proceeding [MBNA America Bank, N.A. v. Gorman (2006) 147 Cal. App. 4th Supp 1, 7-8, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 724 ; see also discussion at § 34.18[3]]. An award of attorney's fees has also been upheld under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5, when the basis for denial of confirmation was that the arbitration provision was added unilaterally by a "bill stuffer" and thus could not serve as a waiver of the right to trial by jury. The fact that the order did not formally enjoin plaintiff from enforcing the arbitration provision against other customers did not mean that no public good was served. The order would still effectively deter plaintiff from the enforcing arbitration provision against customers similarly situated to defendant [MBNA America Bank, N.A. v. Gorman (2006) 147 Cal. App. 4th Supp 1, 8-10, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 724] .

If a party to the arbitration initiates judicial review of the award by petitioning the court to correct or vacate the award, the other party, seeking to enforce the award, may file a response to the petition requesting the court to confirm the award [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1285.2].

[3] Confirmation of Award in Arbitration Between Party to Contract and Nonparty

In some cases, this form may be modified to seek confirmation of an award rendered in arbitration between one party to the contract containing the arbitration provision and someone who was not a party to the agreement but is bound by it. The most common applications of arbitration provisions to persons not parties to the contract are medical malpractice and wrongful death claims by members of the party's family [see, e.g., Herbert v. Superior Court (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 718, 720-721, 215 Cal. Rptr. 477 (infant's claim for prenatal injuries compelled to be arbitrated under parents' agreement with group health provider); Hawkins v. Superior Court (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 413, 415-417, 419, 152 Cal. Rptr. 491 (surviving spouse required to arbitrate wrongful death claim)]. Confirmation of an arbitration award has also been upheld after arbitration was compelled between the sole general partner of a limited partnership and the entity with which the partnership had contracted. The arbitration provision was in a contract between the partnership and the third party, but the partnership was in bankruptcy and the stay prevented it from being compelled to arbitrate [see Keller Constr. Co. v. Kashani (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 222, 227-229, 269 Cal. Rptr. 259 (decision was based in part on general partner's liability for obligations of limited partnership; decided under Corp. Code § 15015(b) [Uniform Partnership Act, repealed 1999]; Corp. Code § 15507(a) [Uniform Limited Partnership Act, repealed Jan. 1, 2010]; now see Corp. Code §§ 15509(1), 15643(b), 15904.04(a) [Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008]; Corp. Code § 16306 [Uniform Partnership Act of 1994])].

[4] Awards Entitled to Confirmation

All awards are entitled to confirmation, not just unpaid ones. Thus, a successful defendant, who is found not to be liable, is entitled to have that award confirmed [Pacific Law Group: USA v. Gibson (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 577, 581-583, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 878] .

[5] Allegations

A petition to confirm an arbitration award is required to name as respondents all parties to the arbitration. It may also name as respondents any other persons bound by the arbitration award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1285]. The petition must also:

- Set forth the substance of or have attached a copy of the agreement to arbitrate (Paragraph 4) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1285.4(a)].

- Set forth the names of the arbitrators (Paragraph 6) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1285.4(b)].

- Set forth or have attached a copy of the award and the written opinion of the arbitrators, if any (Paragraph 8) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1285.4(c)].

- For the purpose of establishing venue, the petition also discloses the county in which the arbitration was conducted (Paragraph 3(b)(4)) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1292.2; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1292-1292.6, 1293 (other venue and jurisdiction provisions)].

[6] Copies

The following copies of a petition to confirm an arbitration award should be prepared:

- Original to be filed in the court and conformed copy for the court to stamp and return.

- One copy to be served on each of the other parties.

- One copy for the client, if desired.

- One office file copy.

- Other copies as desired.

[7] Jurisdiction

When parties enter into an agreement in California that provides for arbitration to be conducted within California, the parties are deemed to have consented to the jurisdiction of California courts to enforce the agreement by issuing any of the orders provided for in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2, and by entering judgment on an award under the agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1293].

Superior courts have jurisdiction over arbitration-related petitions whether the matter is a limited or unlimited civil case [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(10)(A)].

If the proceeding is a limited civil case, and the petition is the first paper filed, the caption must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000. The caption must also identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 72055; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

The court in which a prior petition was filed under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2 retains jurisdiction to determine any subsequent petition involving the same agreement to arbitrate and the same controversy, and any such subsequent petition is required to be filed in that proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1292.6].

[8] Venue

Except as otherwise provided, any petition made after the commencement or completion of arbitration must be filed in a court having jurisdiction in the county where the arbitration is being or has been held, or, if not held exclusively in any one county of this state, or if held outside of this state, then the petition is to be filed as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1292 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1292.2].

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1292, venue is in the appropriate court:

- In the county where the agreement is to be performed or was made; or
- In the county where any party to the court proceeding resides or has a place of business if the agreement does not specify a county where it is to be performed and was not made in California; or
- In any county in California in any case not covered by either of the above alternatives.

[9] Service

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4, a copy of the petition and a written notice of the time and place of hearing and any other papers on which the petition is based must be served in the manner provided in the arbitration agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(a); for a form of notice of hearing that may be adapted for use with the form in [1], above, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.91[2]]. If the agreement does not provide the manner of service, then service must be made in the manner specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(b), (c) [for discussion, see § 34.12[3]; for procedure and forms dealing with service of process, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

[10] Time for Service and Filing

A petition to confirm an award is to be served and filed not later than four years after the date of service of a signed copy of the award on the petitioner [Code Civ. Proc. § 1288]. It may not be served and filed until at least 10 days after such service [Code Civ. Proc. § 1288.4] and if an application is made to the arbitrators to correct the award, the petition may not be served and filed until determination of the application [Code Civ. Proc. § 1288.6].

In the latter event Code Civ. Proc. § 1288.8 provides that the date of service of the award is deemed to be the earlier of the following:

- The date of service on the petitioner of a signed copy of the correction of the award or of the denial of the application.
- The date that such application is deemed denied under Code Civ. Proc. § 1284 (30 days after service of a signed copy of the award on the applicant).

[11] Hearing

The petition is heard in a summary way in the manner and on the notice provided by law for the making and hearing of motions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 (notice of motion)], except that not less than 10 days' notice (30 days, if the petition is served out of the state [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(b)(2)]) of the dateset for the hearing shall be given [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.2]. If the petition is served out of state, it may not be heard until at least 30 days after the date of service [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(b)(2)].

Respondent _____ [name] responds to the petition to confirm the arbitration award as follows:

1. Respondent admits _____ [set forth allegations of petition admitted]. Except as expressly admitted, respondent denies each and every, all and singular, both generally and specifically, the allegations of the petition herein.

2. [If the petition does not already do so, set forth in this and in subsequent paragraphs allegations showing the arbitration agreement, the names of the arbitrators, and the award. See § 34.50, Paragraphs 4, 6, and 8.]

3. Respondent requests that the court correct the award rendered by the arbitrators on the following grounds:

[EITHER]

There was an evident miscalculation of the following figures in the award: _____ [specify].

[OR]

There is an evident mistake in the description of _____ [specify person, thing, or property referred to in the award] in that _____ [specify].

[OR]

The arbitrators exceeded their powers in that _____ [specify] but the award may be corrected without affecting the merits of the decision on the controversy submitted in that _____ [specify].

[OR]

The award is imperfect in a matter of form not affecting the merits of the controversy in that _____ [specify].

[CONTINUE]

4. Respondent requests that the award be corrected as follows: _____ [specify].

5. Respondent requests alternatively that the award be vacated and the matter reheard on the following grounds:

[EITHER]

The award was procured by _____ [corruption or fraud or undue means] in the following respects _____ [specify].

[OR]

There was corruption in _____ [of arbitrator] in that _____ [specify].

[OR]

The neutral arbitrator _____ [name] committed misconduct substantially prejudicing respondent's rights in that _____ [specify].

The arbitrators exceeded their powers in _____ [set forth acts exceeding powers] and the award cannot be corrected without affecting the merits of the decision on the controversy submitted.

[OR]

The arbitrators refused _____ [to postpone the hearing after respondent showed sufficient cause for postponement or to hear evidence as to _____ (show relevancy and materiality to controversy)].

[OR]

The conduct of the arbitrators was contrary to the provisions of Section(s) _____ of the Code of Civil Procedure in that _____ [specify].

[OR]

The public construction contract requires that an arbitration award be supported by law and substantial evidence and this award is _____ [based on an error of law or not supported by substantial evidence or based on an error of law and not supported by substantial evidence].

[CONTINUE]

[6. Respondent (does not) consent(s) to a rehearing before the original arbitrators if a rehearing is ordered by the court.]

WHEREFORE, respondent prays as follows:

1. That the petition to confirm the award be denied.

2. That the award be corrected as herein requested and confirmed as so corrected and judgment be entered in conformity with such corrected award.

3. That the award be vacated if it cannot be corrected as herein requested, and that the court order that the matter be reheard.

4. For costs of suit herein incurred.

5. For such further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of response in [1], above, is for use to contest a petition to confirm an arbitration award and to request that the award either be corrected or vacated.

A party to the arbitration seeking to correct or vacate an award may initiate judicial review by filing a petition to correct or vacate the award if another party has not already filed a petition to confirm the award [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1285, 1290].

Effective January 1, 2002, a petition requesting the award be vacated under Code Civ. Proc. § 1285 is subject to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(b)], which requires the paper to be signed by at least one attorney of record in the attorney's individual name, or, if the party is not represented by an attorney, by the party. It also requires each paper to state the signer's address and telephone number, if any. Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7, which relates to sanctions, is discussed in Ch. 510, Sanctions .

[3] Allegations

Code Civ. Proc. § 1285.6 provides that unless a copy thereof is set forth in or attached to the petition, a response to a petition is required to:

- Set forth the substance of or have attached a copy of the arbitration agreement unless the respondent denies the existence thereof [Code Civ. Proc. § 1285.6(a)].

- Set forth the names of the arbitrators [Code Civ. Proc. § 1285.6(b)], (3) set forth or have attached a copy of the award and the written opinion of the arbitrators, if any [Code Civ. Proc. § 1285.6(c)]. Since a petition to confirm an award would generally contain such matters [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1285.4 (contents of petition)] they would ordinarily not be contained in the response.

If a response requests that the award be corrected or vacated, it must set forth the grounds on which the request is based (Paragraphs 3 and 5) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1285.8]. Proper grounds for vacating the award are specified in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1286.2 and 1296 and for correcting the award in Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.6.

If the award is to be vacated on the grounds set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(4) or (5) (arbitrators exceeded their powers or refused to postpone the hearing or to hear material evidence or acted contrary to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2) the response should state whether or not respondent consents to a rehearing before the original arbitrators (Paragraph 6) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1287]. There is a difference between "hearing" evidence and "considering" evidence. The ground mentioned in Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(5) is a refusal to "hear" evidence. Legally speaking, the admission of evidence is to hear it, and the weighing of it is to give it consideration. Failure to allege a refusal to "hear" evidence would render the petition fatally defective on this point, since failure to "consider" evidence is not a ground to vacate the award [Gonzales v. Interinsurance Exch. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 58, 63, 148 Cal. Rptr. 282] .

[4] Copies

The response to a petition should be prepared in the following copies:

- Original to be filed with the court and conformed copy for the court to stamp and return.

- One copy to be served on each of the other parties.

- One copy for office files.
- One copy for the client, if desired.
- Other copies as desired.

[5] Time for Service and Filing

Generally, a response to a petition in arbitration proceedings is required to be served and filed within 10 days after service of the petition except that it is to be served and filed within 30 days after service of the petition when the latter is served outside the State of California under Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4(b)(2). These time requirements may be extended by an agreement (stipulation) in writing between the parties to the court proceeding, or, for good cause, by order of the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.6].

If a response requests that the award be vacated or corrected it is required to be served and filed not later than 100 days after the date of service of a signed copy of the award on the respondent if he or she was a party to the arbitration or on his or her representative if he or she was not a party [Code Civ. Proc. § 1288.2; Eternity Investments, Inc. v. Brown (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 739, 744-747, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 134 (court has no alternative but to confirm award if request to vacate is filed after 100-day limit); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1288.8 (date of service of award when application is made to the arbitrators for correction)].

A response is required to be served in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 et seq. (service of papers other than summons) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.8; see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

§ 34.53 Order Confirming Arbitration Award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286]

[1] FORM Order Confirming Arbitration Award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

In the Matter of the Arbitration Between	)
_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	ORDER
_____ [name].	)

The petition of _____ [name] for an order confirming an arbitration award came on regularly this date for hearing by the court. Petitioner _____ [name] appeared by his/her counsel _____ [name] and respondent _____ [name] appeared by his/her counsel _____ [name].

Proof having been made to the satisfaction of the court that the petition should be granted,

IT IS ORDERED that the award of _____ [names of arbitrators] dated _____, is confirmed in all respects and that judgment be entered in conformity therewith, including interest on the amount of the award at the legal rate from _____ [date], the date the award was rendered [, (and) costs of this proceeding in the sum of $_____] [, and attorney's fees for this proceeding in the amount of

$_____].
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

Judge of the _____ Court

[2] Use of Form

The form of order in [1], above, is for use when the court grants a petition to confirm an arbitration award. The order includes post-award interest at the legal rate according to Civ. Code § 3287(a) from the date the arbitrator rendered the award [Pierotti v. Torian (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 17, 27, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 553 ; Britz, Inc. v. Alfa-Laval Food & Dairy Co. (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1085, 1106-1107, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 700 ; for discussion, see § 34.18[3A]]. If there is a contractual provision for interest at some other rate or from some other date, counsel should modify the form accordingly. In addition, if the dispute involves personal injury and interest is claimed under Civ. Code § 3291 and Code Civ. Proc. § 998 (interest at the legal rate from date of plaintiff's first offer that exceeded amount of award), but the arbitrator did not award interest on that basis, counsel may wish to modify the form accordingly [for discussion, see Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding, § 33.29[2]]. Optional provisions are included for awarding costs of the confirmation proceeding or attorney's fees incurred in the confirmation proceeding [for discussion, see § 34.18[2] and [3]] For discussion of the related petition, see § 34.50[4].

The order would usually be prepared by counsel for petitioner and delivered to the court for signature and then filed by the clerk of the court.

[3] Contents

The order directs that the arbitration award is confirmed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1286].

Because an order confirming an arbitration award is not listed among the appealable orders in arbitration proceedings set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1294, the court is not required to make a statement of decision on request [Code Civ. Proc. § 1291].

[4] Copies

The order should be prepared in the same number of copies as the petition [see § 34.50[4]].

The award of _____ [names of arbitrators] having been confirmed by order of this court on _____ [date], and _____ [this court having made and caused to be filed herein its statement of decision or no statement of decision having been requested by any party],

IT IS ADJUDGED that petitioner _____ [name] recover from respondent _____ [name] the sum of $_____, together with interest thereon at the rate of _____ [specify applicable legal or contract rate] percent per year from _____ [date], and costs of this proceeding in the sum of $_____.
Dated: _____

_____ [signature]

Judge of the _____ Court

[2] Use of Form

The form of judgment in [1], above, is for use when the court has earlier confirmed the arbitration award and enters judgment on it. the judgment is usually prepared by counsel for petitioner for the court's signature after the award has been confirmed.

This form may be adapted for use if the arbitration award is confirmed at the request of the respondent in a proceeding initiated by a petition to vacate or correct the award.

This form may also be combined with § 34.53[1] so that both the order and judgment are included in one paper.

[3] Contents

The judgment is for a sum of money in conformity with the confirmed arbitration award [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1287.4], and awards costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 1293.2].

A judgment entered pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq. is appealable [Code Civ. Proc. § 1294] and therefore the court, on request pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 632, shall make a statement of decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1291; for forms and procedure dealing with statements of decision, see Ch. 529, Statement of Decision].

[4] Interest and Costs

On a petition to confirm an arbitration award, the court awards costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1032 et seq. as in any other civil proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1293.2; see also Cobler v. Stanley, Barber, Southard, Brown & Associates (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 518, 533, 265 Cal. Rptr. 868] . In addition, the successful party is entitled to recover interest on the amount of the award from the date the arbitrator renders the award until the date of the judgment confirming the award [Civ. Code § 3287(a); Pierotti v. Torian (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 17, 27-28, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 553 ; Britz, Inc. v. Alfa-Laval Food & Dairy Co. (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1085, 1106-1107, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 700] . Similarly, a plaintiff in a personal injury action who obtains a judgment based on an arbitration award more favorable than his or her Section 998 offer is entitled to prejudgment interest under Civ. Code § 3291 [Weinberg v. Safeco Ins. Co. of Am. (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 1075, 1085, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 224 (uninsured motorist arbitration); Caro v. Smith (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 725, 735-737, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 306 ; cf. Woodard v. Southern Cal. Permanente Medical Group (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 656, 666, 217 Cal. Rptr. 514 (court had no power to award prejudgment interest after arbitrators denied it)]. For discussion and forms relating to recovery of costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1032 et seq., see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees .

Unless the parties' agreement to arbitrate provides otherwise, Code Civ. Proc. § 1293.2 does not allow the court to award cost incurred in the arbitration proceeding. The legislature has distinguished between costs incurred in the arbitration proceedings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1284.2] and costs incurred in court to enforce an arbitration award [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1293.2], allowing costs only in the latter [Austin v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1812, 1815-1816, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 56 (fee for filing petition to confirm award as only cost recoverable)]. Presumably however, an exception will be implied when parties agree to arbitrate claims under a consumer protection statute that has as an integral part a provision allowing prevailing plaintiffs to recover costs and attorneys fees. Then costs and attorneys' fees will be awarded under the particular statute [Broughton v. Cigna Healthplans of California (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1066, 1086-1087,90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334, 988 P.2d 67 (claim for damages under the Consumer Legal Remedies Act, Civ. Code § 1750 et seq., Civ. Code § 1780(d), of which mandates an award of costs and attorney's fees for a prevailing plaintiff)], in which case the form at [1], above, will have to be modified to include those costs and attorneys' fees.

[5] Copies

The judgment should be prepared in the following number of copies:

- Original to be signed by the court and filed in the action.
- Copy for the client, if desired.
- Office file copy.
- Other copies, if desired.

[2] Use of Form

The form of petition in [1], above, is a reproduction of Judicial Council form ADR 106, which is mandatory after January 1, 2004, to petition to correct, confirm, or vacate a contractual arbitration award. It is shown above being used to seek a court order vacating an arbitration award and directing a new hearing either before the same or different arbitrators (Paragraph 10c.).

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

A request to vacate an award may also be made in a response to a petition to confirm the award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1285.2; for a form, see § 34.52].

A petition requesting the award be vacated under Code Civ. Proc. § 1285 is subject to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(b)], which requires the paper to be signed by at least one attorney of record in the attorney's individual name, or, if the party is not represented by an attorney, by the party. It also requires each paper to state the signer's address and telephone number, if any. Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7, which relates to sanctions, is discussed in Ch. 510, Sanctions .

[3] Service

A notice of hearing and any other papers on which the petition is based are to be served with the petition in the manner specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4]. For a notice of hearing that may be adapted for use with the form in [1], above, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.91[2].

[4] Time for Service and Filing

A petition to vacate or correct an award must be served and filed not later than 100 days after the date of service of a signed copy of the award on the petitioner [Code Civ. Proc. § 1288; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1288.8 (date of service of award when application is made to the arbitrators for correction)].

IT IS ORDERED:

1. That the award made by _____ [names of arbitrators] on _____ [date], is vacated.

2. That a rehearing in arbitration be held within _____ days from the date of entry of this order, before _____ [the original arbitrators or new arbitrators to be appointed as follows:

_____ (specify) or _____ (names of new arbitrators)], for determination of the _____ [controversy set forth in the petition herein or following questions: _____ (specify limited issues)].

3. That petitioner recover from respondent his or her costs of this proceeding in the sum of $_____ [and attorney's fees incurred in this proceeding in the sum of $_____].
Dated: _____ [date].

_____ [signature]

Judge of the _____ Court

[2] Use of Form

The form of order in [1], above, is for use when the court vacates an arbitration award and orders a new hearing. Although rehearing is not always ordered [see Marcus & Millichap Real Estate Investment Brokerage Co. v. Woodman Investment Group, Inc. (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 508, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 584] , it is the more usual course. If rehearing is not ordered, omit paragraph 2 from the order and renumber paragraph 3 as paragraph 2.

[3] Contents

The order directs that the award be vacated [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1286], that a rehearing be held before the same or different arbitrators [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1287], and that petitioner recover costs of the proceeding, including attorney's fees incurred in that post arbitration judicial proceeding if they are provided for by the contract [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1293.2; Marcus & Millichap Real Estate Investment Brokerage Co. v. Woodman Investment Group, Inc. (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 508, 513-516, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 584 (distinguishing situation in which it may be too soon to tell which is prevailing party for purposes of award of costs and attorney's fees)].

Since an order vacating an award is not appealable when it also orders a rehearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1294], it is not necessary to prepare written findings of fact or conclusions of law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1291].

AUTHOR: Steven Hecht Editorial Consultant Steven Hecht specializes in transactional business matters for domestic and foreign clients. He has maintained his own practice in Los Angeles since 1993, after nearly twenty years of practice with large firms. Mr. Hecht is a past chair of the International Law Section of the Los Angeles County Bar Association. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies of the John Hopkins University.

§ 35.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses:

- Procedures applicable to arbitration and conciliation proceedings conducted in California to resolve international commercial disputes.
- Access to California courts, by parties to international commercial arbitration agreements, to either:
  - Stay a California judicial proceeding seeking relief with respect to a matter covered by an agreement to arbitrate.
  - Seek or enforce an interim arbitral award for interim protective measures in California while arbitration is proceeding anywhere.
- Federal law interpreting the Convention on the Recognition and Enforcement of Foreign Arbitral Awards of June 10, 1958, 21 U.S.T. 2517, T.I.A.S. No. 6997, 330 U.N.T.S. 38, entered into force in the United States on December 29, 1970.

Although the underlying international commercial agreement of the parties is likely to establish procedures governing many aspects of the arbitration or conciliation process and to designate the substantive law that they wish to apply, the procedures discussed in this chapter apply to powers of the California courts and govern when the agreement of the parties does not address a particular issue.

This chapter contains the following forms:

- Demand for arbitration under an international commercial agreement [see § 35.70].

- Notice of motion and declaration in support of motion for orders staying a judicial proceeding in California and compelling arbitration under an international commercial agreement [see § 35.71].

- Petition to appoint, or secure appointment of, an arbitrator [see § 35.72].

- Petition to determine a challenge against an arbitrator [see § 35.73].

- Petition to determine whether an arbitrator's mandate has terminated for failure or inability to perform or after withdrawal [see § 35.74].

- Petition to determine the jurisdiction of the arbitral tribunal [see § 35.75].

§ 35.03 Governing Law

[1] Federal Law and Treaties

Enforcement of international arbitration agreements and arbitral awards is governed by the Convention on the Recognition and Enforcement of Foreign Arbitral Awards of June 10, 1958, 21 U.S.T. 2517, T.I.A.S. No. 6997, 330 U.N.T.S. 38, entered into force in the United States on December 29, 1970 ("the Convention"). The Convention has been signed by approximately 76 other countries and is enforced in United States courts in accordance with 9 U.S.C. §§ 201-208 [9 U.S.C. § 201]. The United States is also a party to various trade agreements and bilateral investment treaties that encourage private resolution of commercial disputes, for example, the U.S.S.R. (1972), Poland (1972), Romania (1975), Hungary (1978), the People's Republic of China (1980), Egypt (1984), and Austria (1984).

The Federal Arbitration Act, 9 U.S.C. §§ 1-16, applies to actions and proceedings brought under 9 U.S.C. §§ 201-208 to the extent that 9 U.S.C. §§ 1-16 are not in conflict with 9 U.S.C. §§ 201-208 or with the Convention as ratified by the United States [9 U.S.C. § 208].

If one party to the international commercial agreement is a foreign sovereign engaged in commerce, the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act of 1976 (Pub. L. No. 94-583; 28 U.S.C. §§ 1330, 1332, 1391, 1441, 1602-1611) also will apply.

[2] California Law

Arbitration and conciliation proceedings conducted in California to resolve international commercial disputes and the use of California courts to stay California judicial proceedings and to obtain or enforce interim protective measures while arbitration concerning an international commercial dispute is being conducted anywhere are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432. Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.61 adopts the jurisdiction and venue provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1292-1293.2 for the matters to which it refers. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1285-1288.8 and 1290-1294.2 govern enforcement of arbitral awards and procedural matters in judicial proceedings related to arbitration, respectively, to the extent that they are not superseded by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.17].

§ 35.04 Institutional Arbitration Procedures

The American Arbitration Association ("AAA") has established Commercial Arbitration Rules that may be used in international commercial disputes in connection with its Supplementary Procedures for International Commercial Arbitration.

The International Chamber of Commerce Court of Arbitration has also issued rules applicable to the arbitration of international commercial disputes.

The United Nations General Assembly has recommended the use of the Arbitration Rules adopted by the United Nations Commission on International Trade Law (hereinafter "UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules") [see General Assembly Resolution 31/98 (Dec. 15, 1976)]. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432 conform in many respects to the UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules. The AAA is willing to provide administrative services and act as appointing authority under the UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules. If the parties agree to apply the UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules but do not agree on an appointing authority, a party may request the Secretary-General of the Permanent Court of Arbitration at The Hague to designate the appointing authority [see UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules, art. 6-8].

Nitze School of Advanced International Studies of the John Hopkins University.

§ 35.10 Application of Convention

The Convention applies to arbitral awards made in the territory of a country other than the country in which recognition and enforcement of those awards are sought, and to arbitral awards that are not considered as domestic awards in the country in which their recognition and enforcement are sought [Convention on Foreign Arbitral Awards, June 10, 1958, 21 U.S.T. 2517, T.I.A.S. No. 6997, 330 U.N.T.S. 38, art. I, para. 1]. An agreement or award arising out of a relationship that is entirely between citizens of the United States is not deemed to fall under the Convention unless that relationship involves property located abroad, envisages performance or enforcement abroad, or has some other reasonable relation with one or more foreign states [9 U.S.C. § 202]. For the purposes of 9 U.S.C. § 202, a corporation is a citizen of the United States if it is incorporated or has its principal place of business in the United States [9 U.S.C. § 202].

The United States applies the Convention, on the basis of reciprocity, to the recognition and enforcement only of those awards made in the territory of another country in which the Convention is in force. The Convention applies to all of the territories whose international relations are the responsibility of the United States [Convention on Foreign Arbitral Awards, June 10, 1958, 21 U.S.T. 2517, T.I.A.S. No. 6997, 330 U.N.T.S. 38, n. 43 (declarations of United States in accordance with art. X, para. 1)].

The United States applies the Convention only to differences arising out of legal relationships, whether contractual or not, that are considered commercial under the national law of the United States, including a transaction, contract, or agreement defined in 9 U.S.C. § 2 [Convention on Foreign Arbitral Awards, June 10, 1958, 21 U.S.T. 2517, T.I.A.S. No. 6997, 330 U.N.T.S. 38, n. 43 (declarations of United States in accordance with art. X, para. 1); 9 U.S.C. § 202; see 9 U.S.C. § 1 (discussed in § 35.11[3])].

The Convention creates a body of federal substantive law that establishes and regulates the duty to honor an agreement to arbitrate. This law is equally applicable in state as well as federal courts [see Mitsubishi Motors v. Soler Chrysler-Plymouth (1985) 473 U.S. 614, 625-627, 105 S. Ct. 3346, 87 L. Ed. 2d 444]. The Convention supersedes conflicting law, and any prior law or decision inconsistent with the Convention is set aside or must be construed to be consistent with the Convention [see Sedco v. Petroleos Mexicanos Mexican Nat. Oil (5th Cir. 1985) 767 F.2d 1140, 1149 (disregarding admiralty rules in conflict with Convention)].

§ 35.11 Application of California Law

[1] Arbitration or Conciliation of International Commercial Dispute in California

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432 apply to international commercial arbitration and conciliation, subject to any agreement that is in force between the United States and any other state or states [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.11]. Except for Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.81-1297.82, relating to compelling arbitration and staying a judicial proceeding seeking relief with respect to a matter covered by an agreement to arbitrate, and Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.91-1297.95, relating to interim protective measures, Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432 apply only if the place of arbitration or conciliation is in California [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.12]. It is not clear how the application of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432 can be established when the agreement of the parties does not designate a place for arbitration or allow the arbitral tribunal to designate the place for arbitration [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.202 (when parties fail to designate place of arbitration, tribunal determines place having regard to circumstances of case)].

[2] When Agreement Is "International"

An arbitration or conciliation agreement is international if any of the following applies [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.13; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.15 (for the purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.13, the states of the United States, including the District of Columbia, are considered one state); see also § 35.10]:

(a) The parties to an arbitration or conciliation agreement have, at the time of the conclusion of that agreement, their places of business in different states;

(b) One of the following places is situated outside the state in which the parties have their places of business:

(i) The place of arbitration or conciliation if determined in, or pursuant to, the arbitration or conciliation agreement;

(ii) Any place where a substantial part of the obligations of the commercial relationship is to be performed; or

(iii) The place with which the subject matter of the dispute is most closely connected;

(c) The parties have expressly agreed that the subject matter of the arbitration or conciliation agreement relates to commercial interests in more than one state; or

(d) The subject matter of the arbitration or conciliation agreement is otherwise related to commercial interests in more than one state.

For the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.13, if a party has more than one place of business, the place of business is that which has the closest relationship to the arbitration agreement; if a party does not have a place of business, reference is to be made to his or her habitual residence [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.14].

[3] When Agreement Is "Commercial"

The Convention applies only to differences arising out of legal relationships, whether contractual or not, that are considered commercial under the national law of the United States [see 9 U.S.C. § 202; for further discussion, see § 35.10].

The Federal Arbitration Act, 9 U.S.C. §§ 1-16, defines "commerce" to mean commerce among the several States or with foreign nations, or in any Territory of the United States or the District of Columbia, or between any such Territory and another, or between the District of Columbia and any State or Territory or foreign nation; but the term does not apply to contracts of employment of seamen, railroad employees, or any other class of workers engaged in foreign or interstate commerce [9 U.S.C. § 1]. The last clause in that provision is neither part of the definition of commerce, nor a limitation on which relationships are "considered as commercial" pursuant to 9 U.S.C. § 2. Rather, it operates as an exemption. In other words, the clause does not state that transportation workers are not engaged in commerce or that their employment contracts are not "considered as commercial." Instead, it states that even though such workers are engaged in commerce and even though their employment contracts are considered as commercial, the FAA does not apply to them. Because the exemption clause does not affect the definition of "commerce" or the statutory description of which relationships are "considered as commercial," the exemption is not incorporated into the Convention Act by virtue of 9 U.S.C. § 202. The only limitation placed on the scope of the Convention Act, other than the language of the Convention itself, is the limitation in 9 U.S.C. § 202 that "[a]n arbitration agreement ... arising out of a legal relationship ... which is considered as commercial, including a transaction, contract, or agreement described in section 2 of this title, falls under the convention" [Rogers v. Royal Caribbean Cruise Line (9th Cir. 2008) 547 F.3d 1148, 1155 ; see Balen v. Holland America Line Inc. (9th Cir. 2009) 583 F.3d 647, 652 (following Rogers)].

California law provides additional guidance, providing that an arbitration or conciliation agreement is commercial if it arises out of a relationship of a commercial nature including, but not limited to, any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.16]:

(a) A transaction for the supply or exchange of goods or services;

(b) A distribution agreement;

(c) A commercial representation or agency;

(d) An exploitation agreement or concession;

(e) A joint venture or other, related form of industrial or business cooperation;

(f) The carriage of goods or passengers by air, sea, rail, or road;

(g) Construction;

(h) Insurance;

(i) Licensing;

(j) Factoring;

(k) Leasing;

(l) Consulting;

(m) Engineering;

(n) Financing;

(o) Banking;

(p) The transfer of data or technology;

(q) Intellectual or industrial property, including trademarks, patents, copyrights, and software programs; or

(r) Professional services.

[4] Effect on Other California Arbitration Statutes

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432 supersede Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1284.2, inclusive (nonjudicial arbitration: general provisions, enforcement of agreements, and conduct of arbitration proceedings), with respect to international commercial arbitration and conciliation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.17].

Otherwise, Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432 shall not affect any other law in force in California by virtue of which certain disputes may not be submitted to arbitration, or may be submitted to arbitration only in accordance with provisions other than those of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.17; see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 (special provisions relating to medical malpractice)]. It is, however, unlikely that any California law restricting arbitration arising out of an agreement affecting interstate commerce, and all the more, international commerce, would be constitutional [see Allied-Bruce Terminix Companies, Inc. v. Dobson (1995) 513 U.S. 265, 115 S. Ct. 834, 843, 130 L. Ed. 2d 753 ; for further discussion, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.24], so this protective provision of Section 1297.17 is of little or no practical meaning.

§ 35.12 Definitions

[1] Arbitration; Conciliation

For the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432, "arbitration" means any arbitration, whether or not administered by a permanent arbitral institution [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.21(c)]. Similarly, "conciliation" means any conciliation, whether or not administered by a permanent conciliation institution [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.21(d)].

[2] Arbitration Agreement

An "arbitration agreement" is an agreement by the parties to submit to arbitration all or certain disputes that have arisen or that may arise between them in respect of a defined legal relationship, whether contractual or not. An arbitration agreement may be in the form of an arbitration clause in a contract or in the form of a separate agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.71].

The arbitration agreement must be in writing. An agreement is in writing if it is contained in a document signed by the parties or in an exchange of letters, telex, telegrams, or other means of telecommunication providing a record of this agreement, or in an exchange of statements of claim and defense in which the existence of an agreement is alleged by one party and not denied by another [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.72; cf. Beromun Aktiengesellschaft v. Societa, Etc. (S.D. N.Y. 1979) 471 F. Supp. 1163, 1170 (dicta; signed contract is not required to compel arbitration under Convention if contract containing arbitration clause is enforceable under ordinary contract principles)]. The reference in a contract to a separate document containing an arbitration clause constitutes an arbitration agreement provided that the contract is in writing and the reference is such as to make that clause part of the contract [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.72; cf. Beromun

Aktiengesellschaft v. Societa, Etc. (S.D. N.Y. 1979) 471 F. Supp. 1163 , 1171-1172 (telexes held not to incorporate alleged prior oral agreement to arbitrate)]. Thus, under the Convention definition, purchase orders signed by the buyer and containing arbitration clauses on their reverse sides did not constitute arbitration agreements because the seller never signed them [Kahn Lucas Lancaster, Inc. v. Lark Intern. Ltd. (2d Cir. 1999) 186 F.3d 210 , 218-219].

The California definition is similar to that of the Convention, which specifies that the term "agreement in writing" includes an arbitral clause in a contract or an arbitration agreement, signed by the parties or contained in an exchange of letters or telegrams [Convention on Foreign Arbitral Awards, June 10, 1958, 21 U.S.T. 2517, T.I.A.S. No. 6997, 330 U.N.T.S. 38, art. II, para. 2].

[3] Arbitral Award; Arbitral Tribunal

For the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432, "arbitral award" means any decision of the arbitral tribunal on the substance of the dispute submitted to it, and includes an interim, interlocutory, or partial arbitral award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.21(a)]. An "arbitral tribunal" means a sole arbitrator or a panel of arbitrators [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.21(b)].

The Convention specifies that the term "arbitral award" includes not only awards made by arbitrators appointed for each case, but also those made by permanent arbitral bodies to which the parties have submitted [Convention on Foreign Arbitral Awards, June 10, 1958, 21 U.S.T. 2517, T.I.A.S. No. 6997, 330 U.N.T.S. 38, art. I, para. 2].

[4] Chief Justice

For the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432, "Chief Justice" means the Chief Justice of California or his or her designee [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.21(e)].

[5] Court; Superior Court; Supreme Court

For the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432, "court" means a body or an organ of the judicial system of a state [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.21(f)]. But "superior court" means the superior court in the county in California that is selected pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.61 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.21(h)], and "Supreme Court" means the Supreme Court of California [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.21(i)].

[6] Party

For the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432, "party" means a party to an arbitration or conciliation agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.21(g)].

§ 35.13 Authorization of Third Party to Make Determinations

When a provision of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432, except Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.281-1297.285 (discussed under § 35.28[14]), leaves the parties free to determine a certain issue, that freedom includes the right of the parties to authorize a third party, including an institution, to make that determination [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.22].

§ 35.14 Interpretation of Agreements

[1] Rules Incorporated by Reference

When a provision in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432 refers to the fact that the parties have agreed, or that they may agree, or in any other way refers to an agreement of the parties, the agreement shall be deemed to include any arbitration or conciliation rules referred to in that agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.23].

[2] "Claim" Includes Counterclaim

When Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432, other than Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.251-1297.253, Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.321-1297.323, or Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.322(a), refer to a "claim," the reference also applies to a counterclaim. Similarly, a reference to a defense also applies to a defense to that counterclaim [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.24].

§ 35.15 Receipt of Written Communications

Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, any written communication is deemed to have been received if it is delivered to the addressee personally or if it is delivered at his or her place of business, habitual residence, or mailing address; the communication is deemed to have been received on the day it is so delivered [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.31]. If none of the places referred to in Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.31 can be found after making a reasonable inquiry, a written communication is deemed to have been received if it is sent to the addressee's last known place of business, habitual residence, or mailing address by registered mail or by any other means that provides a record of the attempt to deliver it [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.32]. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.31 and 1297.32 do not apply to written communications in respect of court proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.33].

§ 35.16 Waiver of Right to Object

A party who knows that any provision of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432, or any requirement under the arbitration agreement, has not been complied with, but proceeds with the arbitration without stating his or her objection to noncompliance without undue delay or, if a time limit is provided for stating that objection, within that period of time, shall be deemed to have waived his or her right to object [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.41]. For purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.41, "any provision of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432" means any provision of those sections in respect of which the parties may otherwise agree [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.42].

Mr. Hecht is a past chair of the International Law Section of the Los Angeles County Bar Association. § 35.20 Extent of Judicial Intervention

[1] California Courts

In matters governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432, no court shall intervene except when so provided by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432, or by applicable federal law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.51].

The federal law grants authority to the United States district courts, on application of a party aggrieved by the failure, neglect, or refusal of another to arbitrate under a written agreement, to make an order directing the parties to proceed to arbitration in accordance with the terms of their agreement [9 U.S.C. § 4]. The federal Arbitration Act also grants the court power to appoint an arbitrator or arbitrators or an umpire (a neutral third party working with two partisan arbitrators) to act in accordance with the agreement of the parties [9 U.S.C. § 5]. Powers granted to courts by the Convention and related federal law are discussed under [2], below and in § 35.21[2].

The superior court of the county in which the place of arbitration is located shall perform the functions referred to in the following sections [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.61]:

- Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.114-1297.116 (appointment of arbitrators) [for discussion, see § 35.23];
- Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.134-1297.136 (challenge of arbitrators) [for discussion, see § 35.24]; and
- Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.165-1297.167 (arbitral panel's jurisdiction and scope of authority) [for discussion, see § 35.26].

The functions referred to in Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.81 (stay of judicial proceedings covered by agreement to arbitrate; order compelling arbitration) shall be performed by the superior court selected pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1292-1293.2 (discussed in Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.43[3],[4]) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.61; see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1292.4 (petition to compel arbitration is made in pending action or proceeding involving arbitrable matter), 1292.8 (motion to stay proceeding regarding matter agreed to be arbitrated is made in court in which proceeding is pending)].

[2] Jurisdiction and Venue of Federal Courts Under Convention

An action or proceeding falling under the Convention shall be deemed to arise under the laws and treaties of the United States. The district courts of the United States, including the United States Claims Courts, and any court created by Act of Congress in a territory that is invested with any jurisdiction of a district court, shall have original jurisdiction over those actions and proceedings, regardless of the amount in controversy [9 U.S.C. § 203; 28 U.S.C. § 460]. An action of proceeding over which the district courts have jurisdiction pursuant to 9 U.S.C. § 203 may be brought in any district court in which, save for the arbitration agreement, an action or proceeding with respect to the controversy between the parties could be brought, or in the court for the district and division that embraces the place designated in the agreement as the place of arbitration if that place is within the United States [9 U.S.C. § 204].

[3] When Party to Arbitration Agreement Is Foreign Sovereign

Enforcement of arbitral agreements, confirmation of arbitral awards, and execution on judgments based on orders confirming arbitral awards shall not be refused on the basis of the "Act of State" doctrine [9 U.S.C. § 15; see West v. Multibanco Comermex, S.A. (9th Cir. 1987) 807 F.2d 820, 827-829 , cert. denied 482 U.S. 906 (statement of doctrine); Libyan Am. Oil Co. v. Socialist People's, etc. (D. D.C. 1980) 482 F. Supp. 1175 , 1178-1179 (abrogated by 9 U.S.C. § 15, but example of prior law applying doctrine to refuse to compel arbitration)]. Pub. L. No. 100-669, 102 Stat. 3969 (1988) added 9 U.S.C. § 15 and amended 28 U.S.C. §§ 1605(a) and 1610(a) to codify and expand the rationale applied in Ipitrade Intern. v. Federal Republic of Nigeria (D. D.C. 1978) 465 F. Supp. 824 , that a foreign sovereign can waive immunity and that an agreement to arbitrate constitutes a waiver of sovereign immunity that cannot be revoked by unilateral action [Ipitrade Intern. v. Federal Republic of Nigeria (D. D.C. 1978) 465 F. Supp. 824 , 826]. Thus, a foreign state is not immune from the jurisdiction of courts of the United States or of the States in any case in which an action is brought to enforce an agreement made by the foreign state with or for the benefit of a private party to submit to arbitration all or any differences that have arisen or that may arise between the parties with respect to a defined legal relationship, whether contractual or not, concerning a subject matter capable of settlement by arbitration under the laws of the United States, or to confirm an award made pursuant to an agreement to arbitrate, if any of the following apply [28 U.S.C. § 1605(a)(6); see 28 U.S.C. §§ 1603(a),(b) (defining "foreign state"), 1608 (service on foreign state); see also U.S. Titan, Inc. v. Guangzhou Hua Shipping (2nd Cir. 2001) 241 F.3d 135 , 150-151]:

- The arbitration takes place or is intended to take place in the United States;

- The agreement or award is or may be governed by a treaty or other international agreement in force in the United States calling for the recognition and enforcement of arbitral awards;

- The underlying claim, except for the agreement to arbitrate, could have been brought in a United States court under 28 U.S.C. § 1605 or 1607; or

- The foreign state has waived its immunity either explicitly or by implication, notwithstanding any withdrawal of the waiver that the foreign state may purport to effect except in accordance with the terms of the waiver.

The foregoing is limited, however, in the case of a foreign sovereign that is not party to the so-called New York Convention but agrees to arbitrate in country other than the United States, that is party to Convention (France). In such a case, United States courts have subject matter jurisdiction to enforce the arbitral award, but, at least when the party seeking to enforce the award in a United States court makes no challenge that the foreign state is not a "person" within the meaning of U.S. Constitution's due process clause, the foreign state must have minimum contacts with the United States in order for the United States court to have personal jurisdiction over the foreign sovereign [Creighton Ltd. Government of State of Qatar (D.C. Cir, 1999) 181 F.3d 118 , 124-128].

The property in the United States of a foreign sovereign is generally immune from attachment or execution [28 U.S.C. § 1609]. However, property in the United States of a foreign sovereign, used for a commercial activity in the United States, is not immune from attachment in aid of execution or execution on a judgment entered by a court of the United States or of a state after January 19, 1977, if (1) the foreign state has waived its immunity from attachment in aid of execution or from execution either explicitly or by implication, notwithstanding any withdrawal of the waiver that the foreign state may purport to effect except in accordance with the terms of the waiver; or (2) the judgment is based on an order confirming an arbitral award rendered against the foreign state, provided that attachment in aid of execution, or execution, would not be inconsistent with any provision in the arbitral agreement [28 U.S.C. § 1610(a)(1), (6); see also 28 U.S.C. §§ 1605(a)(7), 1610(a)(7) (other property not immune from execution even though not being used in commercial activity)].

"Commercial activity" means either a regular course of commercial conduct or a particular commercial transaction or act. The commercial character of an activity must be determined with reference to the nature of the course of conduct or particular transaction or act, rather than by reference to its purpose [28 U.S.C. § 1603(d); see, e.g., West v. Multibanco Comermex, S.A. (9th Cir. 1987) 807 F.2d 820 , cert. denied, 482 U.S. 906, 107 S. Ct. 2483, 96 L. Ed. 2d 375 (Mexican bank that issued peso and dollar-denominated certificates of deposit to United States investors is engaged in commercial activity)].

§ 35.21 Staying Judicial Proceedings; Compelling Arbitration

[1] In General

When a party to an international commercial arbitration agreement as defined in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432 commences judicial proceedings seeking relief with respect to a matter covered by the agreement to arbitrate, any other party to the agreement may apply to the superior court in which that judicial proceeding is pending for an order to stay the proceedings and to compel arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.61, 1297.81; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1292.4 (petition to compel arbitration is made in pending action or proceeding involving arbitrable matter), 1292.8 (motion to stay proceeding)]. A timely request for a stay of judicial proceedings made under Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.81 shall be granted [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.82]. For a form of notice of motion and declaration for an order to stay proceedings and to compel arbitration under an international commercial agreement, see § 35.71.

The Convention requires each signatory country to recognize any written arbitration agreement [Convention on Foreign Arbitral Awards, June 10, 1958, 21 U.S.T. 2517, T.I.A.S. No. 6997, 330 U.N.T.S. 38, art. II, para. 1]. The Convention also provides that the courts of any country that is a party to the Convention in which an action or proceeding is pending regarding a matter covered by the agreement to arbitrate must, on application of a party to the arbitration agreement, refer the parties to arbitration unless that court finds that the arbitration agreement is null and void, inoperative, or incapable of being performed [Convention on Foreign Arbitral Awards, June 10, 1958, 21 U.S.T. 2517, T.I.A.S. No. 6997, 330 U.N.T.S. 38, art. II, para. 3]. The federal statutes implementing the Convention provide that a court having jurisdiction under 9 U.S.C. §§ 201-208 may direct that arbitration be held in accordance with the agreement at any place provided for in the agreement, whether that place is within the United States or outside it, and may also appoint arbitrators in accordance with the provisions of the agreement [9 U.S.C. § 206].

The provision regarding stays in the federal Arbitration Act requires the court, on application of a party to the arbitration agreement, to stay the trial of the action until arbitration has been had in accordance with the parties' agreement if the subject of the action or proceeding is referable to arbitration and if the party applying for the stay is not in default in proceeding with arbitration [9 U.S.C. § 3]. The federal Arbitration Act requires the court to make an order directing the parties to proceed to arbitration in accordance with the terms of their agreement if the court is satisfied that the making of the agreement for arbitration or the failure to comply with the agreement is not in issue [9 U.S.C. § 4]. If the making of the agreement, or the failure, neglect, or refusal to perform in accordance with the agreement, is at issue, the court must proceed summarily to trial of the matter. The party alleged to be in default may demand a jury trial [9 U.S.C. § 4].

[2] Removal of Cases Under Convention

If an action or proceeding pending in a state court relates to an arbitration agreement or award falling under the Convention, the defendant or defendants may, at any time before trial, remove the action or proceeding to the United States district court for the district and division embracing the place in which the action or proceeding is pending. The procedure for removal otherwise provided by law shall apply, except that the ground of removal provided in 9 U.S.C. § 205 need not appear on the face of the complaint but may be shown in the petition for removal [9 U.S.C. § 205 (note that "petition for removal" was renamed by 1988 legislation to "notice of removal"); see Dale Metals Corp. v. Kiwa Chem. Industry Co., Ltd. (S.D. N.Y. 1977) 442 F. Supp. 78 , 81 n. 1 (28 U.S.C. § 1446, requiring petition for removal to be filed within 30 days after receipt of initial pleading, does not apply to removal pursuant to 9 U.S.C. § 205)]. For purposes of 9 U.S.C. §§ 1-16, any action or proceeding removed under 9 U.S.C. § 205 shall be deemed to have been brought in the district to which it is removed [9 U.S.C. § 205]. For further discussion of the procedures for removal, see Ch. 265, Federal Courts: Jurisdiction and Removal , Pt. II.

[3] Narrow Inquiry Under Convention

The Convention contemplates very limited inquiry by the courts when considering a motion to compel arbitration. Generally, four factors to determine whether to enforce an arbitration agreement under the Convention, which require that [Balen v. Holland America Line Inc. (9th Cir. 2009) 583 F.3d 647, 654-655]:

- There is an agreement in writing within the meaning of the Convention.
- The agreement provides for arbitration in the territory of a signatory of the Convention.
- The agreement arises out of a legal relationship, whether contractual or not, which is considered commercial.
- A party to the agreement is not an American citizen, or the commercial relationship has some reasonable relation with one or more foreign states.

In considering whether to compel arbitration under an agreement to which the Convention applies, there is a presumption that arbitration should be compelled unless it can be said with positive assurance that the arbitration clause at issue is not susceptible of an interpretation that would cover the dispute at issue [Sedco v. Petroleos Mexicanos Mexican Nat. Oil (5th Cir. 1985) 767 F.2d 1140 , 1145]. Absent allegations of fraud in the inducement of the arbitration clause itself, arbitration must proceed when the arbitration clause on its face appears broad enough to encompass the parties' claims. Arbitration may even be compelled when other parties to the underlying dispute are not parties to the arbitration agreement [Sedco v. Petroleos Mexicanos Mexican Nat. Oil (5th Cir. 1985) 767 F.2d 1140 , 1148]. Further, assignees and alter egos of signatories to an arbitration agreement within the scope of the Convention can be compelled to arbitrate in accordance with the agreement, even though the states where the parties to the agreement were incorporated and where the contract was to be performed are not signatories to the Convention. The fact that the agreement specifies arbitration in a state that is a signatory to the Convention, such as New York, is sufficient [Smith/Enron Cogeneration v. Smith Cogeneration (2nd Cir. 1999) 198 F.3d 88 , 93, 97-98].

The federal Arbitration Act provides that a written provision for arbitration in any maritime transaction or a contract evidencing a commercial transaction shall be valid, irrevocable, and enforceable, except on grounds that exist at law or in equity for the revocation of any contract [9 U.S.C. § 2].

§ 35.22 Interim Protective Measures for Parties

[1] Powers of Court

It is not incompatible with an arbitration agreement for a party to request from a superior court, before or during arbitral proceedings, an interim measure of protection, or for the court to grant such a measure [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.91]. Measures that the court may grant in connection with a pending arbitration include, but are not limited to (1) an order of attachment issued to assure that the award to which applicant may be entitled is not rendered ineffectual by the dissipation of a party's assets [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.93(a); see Carolina Power & Light Co. v. Uranex (D.C. Cal. 1977) 451 F. Supp. 1044 , 1051-1052 (convention does not bar attachment pending arbitration)]; and (2) a preliminary injunction granted in order to protect trade secrets or to conserve goods that are the subject matter of the arbitral dispute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.93(b)]. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.91 and 1297.93 are consistent with article 26(3) of the UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules and serve to clarify disparate opinions from other states and circuits [see, e.g., PMS Distributing Co., Inc. v. Huber & Suhner, A.G. (9th Cir. 1988) 854 F.2d 355 , 358 (decided under 9 U.S.C. § 4, adopting approach of First, Second, and Seventh Circuits that pendency of arbitration does not deprive courts of power to grant interim relief, here writ of possession, pending outcome of arbitration); Pilkington Bros. P.L.C. v. AFG Industries Inc. (D.C. Del. 1984) 581 F. Supp. 1039 , 1047 (refusing to restrain use of trade secrets during pendency of arbitration in Britain)]. For discussion and forms that may be used to seek interim relief, see generally Ch. 62, Attachment , Ch. 303, Injunctions , Ch. 549, Trademarks and Tradenames , and Ch. 565, Unfair Competition , Pt. III. When using forms in those chapters, additional allegations such as those in Paragraphs 2-4 of the form in § 35.72[1] should be added to establish that Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432 apply.

Similarly, any party to an arbitration governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432 may request the superior court to enforce an award of an arbitral tribunal for any interim measure of protection pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.171 and 1297.172, discussed in § 35.27. Enforcement shall be granted pursuant to the law applicable to the granting of the type of interim relief requested [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.92; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.316 (discussed in § 35.30[2])].

[2] Preclusive Effect of Arbitral Tribunal's Findings

In considering a request for interim relief, the court shall give preclusive effect to any and all findings of fact of the arbitral tribunal, including the probable validity of the claim that is the subject of the award for interim relief and that the arbitral tribunal has previously granted in the proceeding in question, provided that the interim award is consistent with public policy [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.94]. If the arbitral tribunal has not ruled on an objection to its jurisdiction, the court shall not grant preclusive effect to the tribunal's findings until the court has made an independent finding regarding the jurisdiction of the arbitral tribunal. If the court rules that the arbitral tribunal did not have jurisdiction, the application for interim measures of relief shall be denied. A ruling that the arbitral tribunal lacks jurisdiction is not binding on the arbitral tribunal or subsequent judicial proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.95]. Provisions applicable to determinations regarding an arbitral tribunal's jurisdiction are discussed in § 35.26 and in the discussion following the form of petition to determine the jurisdiction of an arbitral tribunal set out in § 35.75.

§ 35.23 Qualifications, Number, and Appointment of Arbitrators

[1] In General

The parties may agree on the number of arbitrators. Otherwise, there shall be one arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.101]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.101 addresses a difference between Rule 17 of the Commercial Arbitration Rules of the American Arbitration Association (hereinafter "AAA") and article 5 of the UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules. Rule 17 provides that there shall be one arbitrator if the arbitration agreement does not specify the number of arbitrators unless the AAA, in its discretion, directs a greater number of arbitrators. Article 5, however, provides that if the parties have not previously agreed on the number of arbitrators and within 15 days after receipt by the respondent of the notice of arbitration the parties have not agreed that there shall be only one arbitrator, three arbitrators shall be appointed.

PRACTICE TIP:

Consider the Number of Arbitrators. If there is to be only one, note the probability of a failure of the parties to agree on a single name. Also, with one arbitrator the parties may obtain a wild card. With three arbitrators, there is a better chance for careful consideration on the merits although the costs of arbitration will increase and the time involved will increase (as additional scheduling conflicts arise). By Steven Hecht

A person of any nationality may be an arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.111].

PRACTICE TIP:

Be Alert to Cultural Differences. Sensitivity to cross-cultural issues is essential. There may be a significant cultural differences among the arbitrators themselves and the parties. By Steven Hecht

Subject to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.115 and 1297.116 (discussed under [3] and [4], respectively, below), the parties may agree on a procedure for appointing the arbitral tribunal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.112].

PRACTICE TIP:

Learn as Much as Possible About Potential Arbitrators. It is always helpful to do as much due diligence as possible to learn about the background of a potential arbitrator. Information may be scarce, but search sources increase all the time. Information may be readily available if a proposed arbitrator is a former judge. By Steven Hecht

[2] Three Arbitrators and Two Parties

If the parties fail to agree on a procedure for appointing the arbitral tribunal, in an arbitration with three arbitrators and two parties, each party shall appoint one arbitrator, and the two appointed arbitrators shall appoint the third arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.113].

PRACTICE TIP:

Seek a Persuasive Person as Your Appointee. In a three-person arbitration, choose as your arbitrator one with the quality of persuasion. The arbitrator will ultimately be required to carry one additional vote to achieve your favorable ruling. In some respects, your arbitrator is your agent and you should utilize that model in making the selection. By Steven Hecht

If this appointment procedure applies and either party fails to appoint an arbitrator within 30 days after receipt of a request to do so from the other party, or the two appointed arbitrators fail to agree on the third arbitrator within 30 days after their appointment, the appointment shall be made, on request of a party, by the superior court of the county in which the place of arbitration is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.114; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.61 (functions of court); for a form of petition for appointment, see § 35.72].

The superior court, in appointing an arbitrator, shall have due regard to all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.118]:

- Any qualifications required of the arbitrator by the agreement of the parties;
- Other considerations likely to secure the appointment of an independent and impartial arbitrator; and
- In the case of a sole or third arbitrator, the advisability of appointing an arbitrator of a nationality other than those of the parties.

The superior court's decision on a matter entrusted to it pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.114 is final and is subject to appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.117].

[3] Failure to Agree on Sole Arbitrator

If there is no agreement on a procedure for appointing the arbitral tribunal in an arbitration with a sole arbitrator, and if the parties fail to agree on the arbitrator, the superior court of the county in which the place of arbitration is located shall make the appointment at the request of a party [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.115; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.61 (functions of court); for a form of petition for appointment, see § 35.72]. The superior court, in appointing an arbitrator, shall have due regard for all of the considerations discussed under [2], above [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.118].

The superior court's decision on a matter entrusted to it pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.115 is final and is subject to appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.117].

[4] Court Enforcement of Appointment Procedure

Unless the agreement on the appointment procedure provides other means for securing the appointment, the superior court of the county in which the place of arbitration is located, on the request of a party, may take the necessary measures if there is an appointment procedure agreed on by the parties, and if any of the following occurs [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.116; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.61 (functions of court); for a form of petition for appointment, see § 35.72]:

- A party fails to act as required under that procedure;

- The parties, or two appointed arbitrators, fail to reach an agreement expected of them under that procedure; or

- A third party, including an institution, fails to perform any function entrusted to it under that procedure.

The superior court's decision on a matter entrusted to it pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.116 is final and is subject to appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.117].

§ 35.24 Challenging Arbitrators

[1] Disclosures by Arbitrators and Conciliators

Except as otherwise provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432, all persons whose names have been submitted for consideration for appointment or designation as arbitrators or conciliators, or who have been appointed or designated as such, shall, within 15 days, make a disclosure to the parties of any information that might cause their impartiality to be questioned, including, but not limited to, any of the following instances [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.121]:

- The person has a personal bias or prejudice concerning a party, or personal knowledge of disputed evidentiary facts concerning the proceeding;

- The person served as a lawyer in the matter in controversy, or the person is or has been associated with another who has participated in the matter during such association, or he or she has been a material witness concerning it;

- The person served as an arbitrator or conciliator in another proceeding involving one or more of the parties to the proceeding;

- The person, individually or as a fiduciary, or that person's spouse or minor child residing in his or her household, has a financial interest in the subject matter in controversy or in a party to the proceeding, or any other interest that could be substantially affected by the outcome of the proceeding;

- The person, his or her spouse, or a person within the third degree of relationship to either of them, or the spouse of such a person, meets any of the following conditions:

  - The person is or has been a party to the proceeding, or an officer, director, or trustee of a party;

  - The person is acting or has acted as a lawyer in the proceeding;

  - The person is known to have an interest that could be substantially affected by the outcome of the proceeding; or

  - The person is likely to be a material witness in the proceeding;

- The person has a close personal or professional relationship with a person who meets any of the following conditions:

  - The person is or has been a party to the proceeding, or an officer, director, or trustee of a party;

  - The person is acting or has acted as a lawyer or representative in the proceeding;

  - The person is or expects to be nominated as an arbitrator or conciliator in the proceedings;

  - The person is known to have an interest that could be substantially affected by the outcome of the proceeding; or

  - The person is likely to be a material witness in the proceeding.

The obligation to disclose information set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.121 is mandatory and cannot be waived as to the parties with respect to persons serving either as the sole arbitrator or sole conciliator or as the chief or prevailing arbitrator or conciliator. The parties may otherwise agree to waive that disclosure [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.122]. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.121-1297.123 are apparently an attempt to articulate a public policy of California in order to avoid the result reached in other jurisdictions that have determined that an arbitrator's failure to disclose facts indicating less than total neutrality does not rise to the level of being against public policy, which is the criteria specified in art. V, para. 2(b) of the Convention for denial of enforcement of an arbitral award [see, e.g., Fertilizer Corp. of India v. IDI Management, Inc. (S.D. Ohio 1982) 530 F. Supp. 542 , 545-546, reconsideration of decision at 517 F. Supp. 948 (prior representation of party that appointed arbitrator)]. In Fertilizer Corp. the arbitrator in question was the arbitrator appointed by one of the parties in a proceeding with three arbitrators [see Fertilizer Corp. of India v. IDI Management, Inc. (S.D. Ohio 1981) 517 F. Supp. 948 , 950].

From the time of appointment and throughout the arbitral proceedings, an arbitrator, shall, without delay, disclose to the parties any circumstances referred to in Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.121 that were not previously disclosed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.123].

[2] Grounds for Challenging Arbitrator

Unless otherwise agreed by the parties or the rules governing the arbitration, an arbitrator may be challenged only if circumstances exist that give rise to justifiable doubts regarding his or her independence or impartiality, or his or her possession of the qualifications on which the parties have agreed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.124]. A party may challenge an arbitrator appointed by it, or in whose appointment it has participated, only for reasons of which it becomes aware after the appointment has been made [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.125].

[3] Challenge Procedure

The parties may agree on a procedure for challenging an arbitrator. The decision reached pursuant to that procedure shall be final [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.131]. If the parties do not have an agreement on a procedure for challenging an arbitrator, a party may challenge an arbitrator, within 15 days after becoming aware of the constitution of the arbitral tribunal or after becoming aware of any circumstances that are the basis for the challenge, whichever is later, by sending a written statement of the reasons for the challenge to the arbitral tribunal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.132]. An arbitrator's withdrawal from office, or a party's agreement to the termination of the mandate of an arbitrator, does not imply acceptance of the validity of any ground contained in a written challenge [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.144].

Unless the arbitrator challenged under Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.132 withdraws from his or her office, or the other party agrees to the challenge, the arbitral tribunal shall decide on the challenge [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.133]. If a challenge following this procedure is not successful, the challenging party may request the superior court, within 30 days after having received notice of the decision rejecting the challenge, to decide on the challenge. If a challenge is based on the grounds set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.121 (discussed under [1], above), and the superior court determines that the facts support a finding that the ground or grounds fairly exist, then the challenge should be sustained [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.134]. The superior court's decision is final and is not subject to appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.135]. For a form of petition to determine a challenge to an arbitrator appointed under an international commercial agreement, see § 35.73.

[4] Continuation of Arbitral Proceedings Pending Challenge

While a request under Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.134 is pending, the arbitral tribunal, including the challenged arbitrator, may continue with the arbitral proceedings and make an arbitral award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.136].

§ 35.25 Termination of Arbitrator's Mandate

[1] Failure or Impossibility to Act

The mandate of an arbitrator terminates if he or she becomes de jure or de facto unable to perform his or her functions or for other reasons fails to act without undue delay, and withdraws from his or her office, or the parties agree to the termination of his or her mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.141]. If a controversy remains concerning any of the grounds referred to in Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.141, a party may request the superior court to decide on the termination of the mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.142]. A decision of the superior court under Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.142 is not subject to appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.143]. For a form of petition to determine the termination of an arbitrator's mandate under an international commercial agreement, see § 35.74.

An arbitrator's withdrawal from office, or a party's agreement to the termination of the mandate of an arbitrator, does not imply acceptance of the validity of any ground contained in a written challenge [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.144].

[2] Termination by Withdrawal or Agreement of Parties

In addition to termination under challenge [see § 35.24], or because of a failure or inability to act [see [1], above], the mandate of an arbitrator terminates on his or her withdrawal from office for any reason, or by or pursuant to agreement of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.151].

[3] Substitution of Arbitrator

When the mandate of an arbitrator terminates, a substitute arbitrator shall be appointed according to the rules that were applicable to the appointment of the arbitrator being replaced [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.152].

Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, (1) when the sole or presiding arbitrator is replaced, any hearings previously held shall be repeated [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.153(a)]; and (2) when an arbitrator other than the sole or presiding arbitrator is replaced, any hearings previously held may be repeated at the discretion of the arbitral tribunal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.153(b)]. Also, unless otherwise agreed by the parties, an order or ruling of the arbitral tribunal made prior to the replacement of an arbitrator under these provisions is not invalid because there has been a change in the composition of the tribunal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.154].

§ 35.26 Tribunal's Competence to Determine Its Jurisdiction

[1] Validity of Agreement

The arbitral tribunal may rule on its own jurisdiction, including ruling on any objections with respect to the existence or validity of the arbitration agreement. For that purpose, an arbitration clause that forms part of a contract shall be treated as an agreement independent of the other terms of the contract, and a decision by the arbitral tribunal that the contract is null and void shall not entail ipso jure (by operation of law) the invalidity of the arbitration clause [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.161].

PRACTICE TIP:

Consider validity of arbitration clause or agreement under applicable California law. The Ninth Circuit has considered arguments that an arbitration agreement was null and void under the Convention's validity provision, Convention on Foreign Arbitral Awards, June 10, 1958, 21 U.S.T. 2517, TI.I.A.S. No. 6997, 330 U.N.T.S. 38, art. II, para. 3, on the basis that the clause or agreement was against public policy [Balen v. Holland America Line Inc. (9th Cir. 2009) 583 F.3d 647, 653-654 ; Rogers v. Royal Caribbean Cruise Line (9th Cir. 2008) 547 F.3d 1148, 1157-1159]. The court ruled that public policy favored arbitration of mariners' Wage Act claims. Therefore, succeeding at obtaining judgment that a clause or agreement is null and void on the basis of public policy will be difficult at best.

A second basis argued for the invalidity of an arbitration clause or agreement subject to the Convention is that the agreement was unconscionable [Rogers v. Royal Caribbean Cruise Line (9th Cir. 2008) 547 F.3d 1148, 1157-1159]. In that case, the Court avoided ruling specifically that those were grounds for ruling an agreement null and void, because the evidence failed to establish it. But the Court applied the applicable state's law on these issues (Florida, in this case). Therefore, the case suggests that counsel should follow the applicable state law in arguing for the unconscionability of a clause or agreement subject to the Convention, which in California is quite well developed. For discussion of unconscionability of arbitration clauses or agreements under California law, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.21[3].

[2] Challenges to Tribunal's Jurisdiction or Authority

A plea that the arbitral tribunal does not have jurisdiction shall be raised not later than the submission of the statement of defense. However, a party is not precluded from raising a plea that the arbitral tribunal does not have jurisdiction by the fact that he or she has appointed, or participated in the appointment of, an arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.162; for discussion, see § 35.28[6]].

A plea that the arbitral tribunal is exceeding the scope of its authority shall be raised as soon as the matter alleged to be beyond the scope of its authority is raised during the arbitral proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.163].

The arbitral tribunal may, in the case of either type of challenge, admit a later plea if it considers the delay justified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.164].

[3] Ruling on Challenge

The arbitral tribunal may rule on a challenge to its jurisdiction or authority either as a preliminary question or in an award on the merits [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.165]. If the arbitral tribunal rules as a preliminary question that it has jurisdiction, any party shall be deemed to have waived objection to that finding unless, within 30 days after having received notice of that ruling, the party requests that the superior court decide the matter [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.166]. For a form of petition to determine the jurisdiction of an arbitral tribunal appointed under an international commercial agreement, see § 35.75.

While a request to the superior court is pending, the arbitral tribunal may continue with the arbitral proceedings, and may make an arbitral award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.167]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.167 is consistent with federal decisions interpreting the Convention as creating a presumption that an arbitral body has acted within the scope of its powers. The policy favoring arbitration operates with special force in the field of international commerce. The federal courts will review de novo a contention that the subject matter of the arbitration lies outside the scope of a contract, because the arbitrability of a dispute concerns contract interpretation. However, those courts will construe arbitral authority broadly to comport with the enforcement-facilitating thrust of the Convention and the policy favoring arbitration [Management & Tech. Consultants v. Parsons-Jurden (9th. Cir. 1987) 820 F.2d 1531 , 1534].

If the arbitral tribunal rules on a jurisdictional challenge in its award on the merits, the party wishing to challenge the award could petition to vacate the award or oppose a petition to confirm it [see Convention on Foreign Arbitral Awards, June 10, 1958, 21 U.S.T. 2517, T.I.A.S. No. 6997, 330 U.N.T.S. 38, art. V, para. 1(c) (discussed under § 35.31[4]); 9 U.S.C. § 207; see also 9 U.S.C. §§ 9, 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1285, 1286.2(a)(4); for forms, see Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review, § 34.52 (response to petition to confirm) and § 34.56 (petition to vacate)].

Nitze School of Advanced International Studies of the John Hopkins University.

§ 35.27 Interim Protective Measures Ordered by Arbitral Tribunals

Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, the arbitral tribunal may, at the request of a party, order a party to take any interim measure of protection that the arbitral tribunal considers necessary in respect to the subject matter of the dispute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.171]. The arbitral tribunal may require a party to provide appropriate security in connection with a measure ordered under Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.171 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.172]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.171 adopts the position taken by article 26(1) of the UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules, which cites measures for the conservation of goods forming the subject matter of the dispute, such as ordering the deposit of goods with a third person or the sale of perishable goods as examples of interim measures that may be awarded by the arbitral tribunal. Like Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.172, article 26(2) of the UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules provides that the tribunal may require security for the costs of the interim measures.

PRACTICE TIP:

Use the Arbitrator's Broad Powers. Remember that the mandate of arbitrators is extremely broad. Arbitrators now have the right to order injunctive relief and award punitive damages. The standard of review of arbitration is "abuse of discretion" and this may embolden an arbitrator to do more. Take advantage of this. By Steven Hecht

He has maintained his own practice in Los Angeles since 1993, after nearly twenty years of practice with large firms. Mr. Hecht is a past chair of the International Law Section of the Los Angeles County Bar Association. In addition to his J.D. from UCLA School of Law, Mr. Hecht holds an M.A. in International Relations (with a concentration in international economics) from the Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies of the John Hopkins University.

§ 35.28 Manner and Conduct of Arbitration

[1] General Protocol

The parties shall be treated with equality, and each party shall be given a full opportunity to present his or her case [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.181].

[2] Commencement of Arbitral Proceedings

Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, the arbitral proceedings in respect of a particular dispute commence on the date on which a request for that dispute to be referred to arbitration is received by the respondent [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.211]. For a form of demand for arbitration under an international commercial agreement, see § 35.70.

[3] Determination of Rules of Procedure

Subject to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432, the parties may agree on the procedure to be followed by the arbitral tribunal in conducting the proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.191]. If the parties to not agree on the procedures to be followed, the arbitral tribunal may, subject to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432, conduct the arbitration in the manner it considers appropriate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.192]. The power of the arbitral tribunal under Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.192 includes the power to determine the admissibility, relevance, materiality, and weight of any evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.193].

[4] Place of Arbitration

The parties may agree on the place of arbitration. If they do not, the place of arbitration shall be determined by the arbitral tribunal having regard to the circumstances of the case, including the convenience of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.201-1297.202].

Even if the parties make an agreement on the place of arbitration, unless the agreement provides otherwise, the arbitral tribunal may meet at any place it considers appropriate for consultation among its members, for hearing witnesses, experts, or the parties, or for inspection of documents, goods, or other property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.203].

PRACTICE TIP:

Logistical Considerations. The logistical issues are important in arbitration. The proceeding will usually take place in smaller rooms then courts. Witnesses may be excluded until their turn to be called. Consider carefully how to bring in and introduce witnesses. Take advantage of conference telephone calls or video equipment to ensure that witnesses may appear if not able to be physically present. By Steven Hecht

[5] Language and Translation

The parties may agree on the language or languages to be used in the arbitral proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.221]. If the parties do not agree on the language or languages to be used in the arbitral proceedings, the arbitral tribunal shall make that determination [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.222]. Unless otherwise specified, the agreement or determination shall apply to any written statement by a party, any hearing, and any arbitral award, decision, or other communication by the arbitral tribunal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.223].

The arbitral tribunal may order that any documentary evidence shall be accompanied by a translation into the language or languages agreed on by the parties or determined by the arbitral tribunal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.224].

[6] Statements of Claim and Defense

Within the period of time agreed on by the parties or determined by the arbitral tribunal, and unless the parties have otherwise agreed on the required elements of the following statements, the claimant shall state (1) the facts supporting his or her claim, (2) the points at issue, and (3) the relief or remedy sought, and the respondent shall state his or her defense in respect of those particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.231]. The parties may submit with their statements all documents they consider to be relevant or may add a reference to the documents or other evidence they will submit [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.232].

PRACTICE TIP:

Timing of Statement. Even though arbitration proceedings are more informal, it is imperative to make careful preparation for presentation of the case. The arbitrators may lack any understanding of the background of the case (especially in the absence of discovery). Submission of the statement prior to the arbitration is an excellent idea. If possible, submit it at least 10 days prior to the arbitration and try to obtain the right to respond (no later than five days is suggested) to the opposing party's statement. By Steven Hecht

Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, either party may amend or supplement his or her claim or defense during the course of the arbitral proceedings, unless the arbitral tribunal considers it inappropriate to allow the amendment or supplement because of the delay in making it [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.233].

[7] Decision to Hold Hearings; Notice of Hearings

Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, the arbitral tribunal shall decide whether to hold oral hearings for the presentation of evidence or for oral argument, or whether the proceedings shall be conducted on the basis of documents and other materials [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.241].

PRACTICE TIP:

Agreement to Have Oral Hearing. Obtaining agreement to an oral hearing is often vital. Cross-examination is where the truth emerges. It is preferable to utilizing declarations which have been carefully crafted by lawyers. By Steven Hecht

Unless the parties have agreed that no oral hearings shall be held, the arbitral tribunal shall hold oral hearings at an appropriate state of the proceedings, if so requested by a party [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.242].

The parties shall be given sufficient advance notice of any hearing and of any meeting of the arbitral tribunal for the purpose of inspection of documents, goods, or other property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.243].

Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, all oral hearings and meetings in arbitral proceedings shall be held in camera [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.245].

PRACTICE TIP:

Agreement to Have Oral Hearing. Arbitrators are often busy. They do not have law clerks. Make your statements as easy as possible for an arbitrator to understand and to have confidence in its accuracy. Impress with brevity. By Steven Hecht

[8] Communication of Evidence to Opposing Party

All statements, documents, or other information supplied to, or applications made to, the arbitral tribunal by one party shall be communicated to the other party. Any expert report or evidentiary document on which the arbitral tribunal may rely in making its decision shall be communicated to the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.244].

[9] Default of Party

Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, if, without showing sufficient cause, the claimant fails to communicate his or her statement of claim in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.231-1297.232, the arbitral tribunal shall terminate the proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.251]. However, unless otherwise agreed by the parties, if, without showing sufficient cause, the respondent fails to communicate his or her statement of defense in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.231-1297.232, the arbitral tribunal shall continue the proceedings without treating that failure in itself as an admission of the claimant's allegations [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.252].

[10] Failure to Appear or to Produce Documentary Evidence

Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, if, without showing sufficient cause, a party fails to appear at an oral hearing or to produce documentary evidence, the arbitral tribunal may continue with the proceedings and make the arbitral award on the evidence before it [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.253].

[11] Appointment of Experts by Arbitral Tribunal

Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, the arbitral tribunal may appoint one or more experts to report to it on specific issues to be determined by the arbitral tribunal. If an expert is appointed, the arbitral tribunal may require a party to give the expert any relevant information or to produce, or provide access to, any relevant documents, goods, or other property for his or her inspection [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.261].

Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, if a party so requests or if the arbitral tribunal considers it necessary, the expert shall, after delivery of his or her written or oral report, participate in an oral hearing at which the parties have the opportunity to question the expert and to present expert witnesses on the points at issue [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.262].

[12] Court Assistance in Taking Evidence

The arbitral tribunal, or a party with the approval of the arbitral tribunal, may request from the superior court assistance in taking evidence. The court may execute the request within its competence and according to its rules on taking evidence. In addition, a subpoena may issue as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.6 (discussed in Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding, § 33.24), in which case the witness compensation provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.2 shall apply [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.271; see 9 U.S.C. § 7 (comparable federal provision)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Discovery. Availability of discovery is a key issue in arbitration. Be prepared to request and advocate for it. By Steven Hecht

[13] Court Assistance in Consolidating Arbitrations

If the parties to two or more arbitration agreements have agreed, in their respective arbitration agreements or otherwise, to consolidate the arbitrations arising out of those arbitration agreements, the superior court may, on application by one party with the consent of all the other parties to those arbitration agreements, do one or more of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.272]:

- Order the arbitrations to be consolidated on terms the court considers just and necessary;

- If all the parties cannot agree on an arbitral tribunal for the consolidated arbitration, appoint an arbitral tribunal in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.118 (discussed in § 35.23[2], above); or

- If all the parties cannot agree on any other matter necessary to conduct the consolidated arbitration, make any other order it considers necessary.

Nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.271 or 1297.272 shall be construed to prevent the parties to two or more arbitrations from agreeing to consolidate those arbitrations and taking any steps that are necessary to effect that consolidation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.273]. Although Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.3, which governs consolidation of nonjudicial arbitration proceedings, has been superseded by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432 in the context of international commercial arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.17], the form set out in Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding, § 33.76, may be modified for use as a petition under Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.272 by the addition of allegations establishing that Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432 apply [for those allegations, see, e.g., Paragraphs 2-4 in the form set out in § 35.72[1]].

[14] Rules Applicable to Substance of Dispute

The arbitral tribunal shall decide the dispute in accordance with the rules of law designated by the parties as applicable to the substance of the dispute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.281]. Any designation by the parties of the law or legal system of a given state shall be construed, unless otherwise expressed, as directly referring to the substantive law of that state and not to its conflict of laws rules [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.282].

If the parties have not designated the law to be applicable to the substance of the dispute, the arbitral tribunal shall apply the rules of law it considers to be appropriate given all the circumstances surrounding the dispute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.283]. The arbitral tribunal shall decide ex aequo et bono or as amiable compositeur (on grounds of equity and fairness; having authority to disregard specific points of law to achieve an equitable result), if the parties have expressly authorized it to do so [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.284]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.283 is consistent with federal law, which would have to be applied by a state court to any arbitration involving foreign commerce [ATSA of California, Inc. v. Continental Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1983) 702 F.2d 172 , 175, modified, 754 F.2d 1394, 1396] .

In all cases, the arbitral tribunal shall decide in accordance with the terms of the contract and shall take into account the usages of the trade applicable to the transaction [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.285].

[15] Requisite Majority for Decision

Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, in arbitral proceedings with more than one arbitrator, any decision of the arbitral tribunal shall be made by a majority of all of its members [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.291]. Notwithstanding this section, if authorized by the parties or all the members of the arbitral tribunal, questions of procedure may be decided by a presiding arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.291].

PRACTICE TIP:

Tailor Presentation for Any Non-Lawyer Arbitrator. Arbitrators are not judges and often are not even lawyers. Do not assume that a lawyer/arbitrator will explain legal matters to any non-lawyer arbitrator. Therefore, presentation should be aimed at a non-lawyer arbitrator utilizing techniques to assure that a non-lawyer will understand any important legal concepts. By Steven Hecht

§ 35.29 Settlement; Arbitral Award Based on Settlement

It is not incompatible with an arbitration agreement for an arbitral tribunal to encourage settlement of the disputes. With the agreement of the parties, the arbitral tribunal may use mediation, conciliation, or other procedures at any time during the arbitral proceedings to encourage settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.301].

PRACTICE TIP:

Be Open to Consider Arbitrators' Offer to Act as Conciliators. The arbitrators may offer to act as conciliators during the arbitration proceeding. Permitting this may provide valuable information and give a preview of how the arbitrators are thinking about the case. The arbitrators must provide assurances that the failure of a conciliation will not prejudice a later return to the arbitration procedure. However, in accepting conciliation efforts and later rejecting them consider whether or not arbitrators will feel their better efforts have been hampered and the party may not be able to expect as impartial and effective a result. By Steven Hecht

If, during the arbitral proceedings, the parties settle the dispute, the arbitral tribunal shall terminate the proceedings and, if requested by the parties and not objected to by the arbitral tribunal, record the settlement in the form of an arbitral award on agreed terms [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.302].

An arbitral award on agreed terms shall be made in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.311-1297.318 (discussed in § 35.30), and shall state that it is an arbitral award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.303]. An arbitral award on agreed terms has the same status and effect as any other arbitral award on the substance of the dispute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.304].

§ 35.30 Arbitral Award

[1] Form, Contents, and Delivery

An arbitral award shall be made in writing and shall be signed by the members of the arbitral tribunal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.311]. For the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.311, in arbitral proceedings with more than one arbitrator, the signatures of the majority of all the members of the arbitral tribunal shall be sufficient so long as the reason for any omitted signature is stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.312].

The arbitral award shall state the reasons on which it is based, unless the parties have agreed that no reasons are to be given, or the award is an arbitral award on agreed terms under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.301-1297.304 (discussed in § 35.29) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.313].

PRACTICE TIP:

Carefully Document Requested Damages. Often parties will request that an arbitrator determine damages. The arbitrators are not accountants. Prepare the damage portion of the case as carefully as any other. Set out specifically how any damage calculations were arrived at. By Steven Hecht

The arbitral award shall state its date and the place of arbitration as determined in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.201-1297.203 (discussed in § 35.28[4]), and the award shall be deemed to have been made at that place [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.314].

After the arbitral award is made, a signed copy shall be delivered to each party [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.315].

[2] Interim Award

The arbitral tribunal may, at any time during the arbitral proceedings, make an interim arbitral award on any matter with respect to which it may make a final arbitral award. The interim award may be enforced in the same manner as a final arbitral award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.316].

[3] Interest and Costs

Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, the arbitral tribunal may award interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.317]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.317 is consistent with decisions interpreting the Convention to allow postaward, prejudgment interest on an arbitral award [see Waterside Ocean Nav. v. International Nav. Ltd. (2nd Cir. 1984) 737 F.2d 150 , 154-155].

Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, the costs of an arbitration shall be at the discretion of the arbitral tribunal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.318(a)]. In making an order for costs, the arbitral tribunal may include as costs any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.318(b)]:

- The fees and expenses of the arbitrators and expert witnesses;
- Legal fees and expenses;
- Any administration fees of the institution supervising the arbitration, if any; or
- Any other expenses incurred in connection with the arbitral proceedings.

In making an order for costs, the arbitral tribunal may specify any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.318(c)]:

- The party entitled to costs;
- The party who shall pay costs;
- The amount of costs or method of determining that amount; or
- The manner in which the costs shall be paid.

[4] Termination of Proceedings

The arbitral proceedings are terminated by the final arbitral award or by an order of the arbitral tribunal under Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.322. The award shall be final on the expiration of the applicable periods in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.331-1297.337, discussed under [5], below [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.321]. The arbitral tribunal shall issue an order for the termination of the arbitral proceedings when any of the following occurs [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.322]:

- The claimant withdraws his or her claim, unless the respondent objects to the order and the arbitral tribunal recognizes a legitimate interest on the respondent's part in obtaining a final settlement of the dispute;
- The parties agree on the termination of the proceedings; or
- The arbitral tribunal finds that the continuation of the proceedings has for any other reason become unnecessary or impossible.

Subject to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.331-1297.337 (discussed under [5], below), the mandate of the arbitral tribunal terminates with the termination of the arbitral proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.323].

[5] Correction and Interpretation of Awards; Additional Awards

Within 30 days after receipt of the arbitral award, unless another period of time has been agreed on by the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.331]:

(a) A party may request the arbitral tribunal to correct in the arbitral award any computation errors, any clerical or typographical errors, or any other errors of a similar nature;

(b) A party may, if agreed by the parties, request the arbitral tribunal to give an interpretation of a specific point or part of the arbitral award.

If the arbitral tribunal considers any request made under Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.331 to be justified, it shall make the correction or give the interpretation within 30 days after receipt of the request. Any interpretation shall form part of the arbitral award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.332].

The arbitral tribunal may correct any computation, clerical, or typographical error, or any other error of a similar nature, on its own initiative, within 30 days after the date of the arbitral award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.333].

The Federal Arbitration Act authorizes the district court for the district in which the arbitral award was made to modify or correct the award so as to effect the intent of the award and to promote justice between the parties, on the application of a party to the arbitration, in any of the following situations [9 U.S.C. § 11; see 9 U.S.C. § 208 (9 U.S.C. §§ 1-16 applicable to proceedings under 9 U.S.C. §§ 201-208 to extent they do not conflict with 9 U.S.C. §§ 201-208 or with Convention)]:

- When there was an evident material miscalculation of figures or an evident material mistake in the description of any person, thing, or property referred to in the award;

- When the arbitrators have awarded on a matter not submitted to them, unless it is a matter not affecting the merits of the decision on the matter submitted; or

- When the award is imperfect in matter of form not affecting the merits of the controversy.

Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, a party may request, within 30 days after receipt of the arbitral award, the arbitral tribunal to make an additional arbitral award relating to the claims presented in the arbitral proceedings but omitted from the arbitral award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.334]. If the arbitral tribunal considers any request for an additional award to be justified, it shall make the additional arbitral award within 60 days after receipt of the request [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.335].

If necessary, the arbitral tribunal may extend the period of time within which it shall make a correction, give an interpretation, or make an additional arbitral award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.331 or 1297.334 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.336]. It is unclear whether the reference in Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.336 to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.331 and 1297.334 is inadvertent, because the tribunal's time to act is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.332 or 1297.335, or whether Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.336 is to be construed to allow extension of the time within which a party may request a correction, interpretation, or additional award [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.331, 1297.334 (times for request)].

The requirements regarding form, content, and delivery of an arbitral award apply to a correction or interpretation of the arbitral award or to an additional arbitral award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.337; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.311-1297.318 (discussed under [1], above)].

§ 35.31 Confirmation and Enforcement Under Convention

[1] Recognition Required

Each country that has ratified the Convention shall recognize arbitral awards and enforce them in accordance with the rules of procedure of the territory in which the award is relied on, under the conditions laid down in the Convention. The courts of those countries shall not impose substantially more onerous conditions or higher fees or charges on the recognition or enforcement of arbitral awards to which the Convention applies than are imposed on the recognition or enforcement of domestic arbitral awards [Convention on Foreign Arbitral Awards, June 10, 1958, 21 U.S.T. 2517, T.I.A.S. No. 6997, 330 U.N.T.S. 38, art. III]. The list of nations that have ratified the Convention, along with notes regarding any applicable limitations to their application of the Convention, is given after the text of the Convention as an annotation to 9 U.S.C.A. 201.

The California confirmation procedures of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1285-1288.8, and related forms, are contained in Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1285-1288.8 have not been specifically superseded by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.17], but there are superseding aspects of the federal law, such as the three-year limitation for confirmation of an award to which the Convention applies [compare 9 U.S.C. § 207 (three-year period) with Code Civ. Proc. § 1288 (four-year period)].

[2] Contents of Application

To obtain recognition and enforcement of an arbitral award to which the Convention applies, the party making application for recognition or enforcement must supply, at the time of the application, the duly authenticated original award or a duly certified copy of it and the original, or a duly certified copy, of the arbitration agreement [Convention on Foreign Arbitral Awards, June 10, 1958, 21 U.S.T. 2517, T.I.A.S. No. 6997, 330 U.N.T.S. 38, art. IV, para. 1; cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 1285.4 (imposing additional requirement that application include names of arbitrators and any written opinion of arbitrators)]. If the award or agreement is not made in an official language of the country in which the award is relied on, the party applying for recognition and enforcement of the award shall produce a translation of the award and agreement into an official language. The translation shall be certified by an official or sworn translator or by a diplomatic or consular agent [Convention on Foreign Arbitral Awards, June 10, 1958, 21 U.S.T. 2517, T.I.A.S. No. 6997, 330 U.N.T.S. 38, art. IV, para. 2].

To confirm an arbitral award under the federal Arbitration Act, in addition to the agreement and the award, the moving party must file the following documents with the clerk at the time the order is filed with the clerk for the entry of judgment [9 U.S.C. § 13; see 9 U.S.C. § 208 (9 U.S.C. §§ 1-16 applicable to proceedings under 9 U.S.C. §§ 201-208 to extent they do not conflict with 9 U.S.C. §§ 201-208 or with Convention)]:

- The selection or appointment, if any, of an additional arbitrator or umpire;

- Each written extension of the time, if any, within which to make the award; and

- Each notice, affidavit, or other paper used on an application to confirm, modify, or correct the award, and a copy of each order of the court on such an application.

The judgment is docketed as if it was rendered in an action, and has the same force and effect in all respects as if it had been rendered in an action in the court in which it is entered [9 U.S.C. § 13].

[3] Time for Confirmation

Within three years after an award falling under the Convention is made, any party to the arbitration may apply to any court having jurisdiction under 9 U.S.C. §§ 201-208 for an order confirming the award as against any other party to the arbitration. The court shall confirm the award unless it finds one of the grounds for refusal or deferral of recognition or enforcement of the award specified in the Convention [9 U.S.C. § 207; but cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 1288 (four-year limitation period)].

[4] Grounds for Refusal of Recognition or Enforcement

PRACTICE TIP:
Delaying the Finality of Arbitration. A party wishing to delay the arbitration has numerous grounds to assert before the court. Although often unsuccessful, delay may have its advantages. By Steven Hecht

Recognition and enforcement of an arbitral award to which the Convention applies may be refused, at the request of the party against whom it is invoked, only if that party furnishes to the competent authority from which recognition and enforcement are sought proof that any of the following applies [Convention on Foreign Arbitral Awards, June 10, 1958, 21 U.S.T. 2517, T.I.A.S. No. 6997, 330 U.N.T.S. 38, art. V, para. 1; see China Nat'l Metal Prods. Import/Export Co. v. Apex Digital, Inc. (9th Cir 2004) 379 F.3d 796, 799 (confirmation may be refused only on grounds set forth in Convention)]:

- The parties to the agreement were, under the law applicable to them, under some incapacity, or the agreement is not valid under the law to which the parties have subjected it, or if the parties have not specified which law is applicable, under the law of the country in which the award was made;

- The party against whom the award is invoked was not given proper notice of the appointment of the arbitrator or of the arbitration proceeding or was otherwise unable to present its case;

- The award deals with a difference not contemplated by or not falling within the terms of the submission to arbitration, or it contains decisions on matters beyond the scope of the submission to arbitration; provided that, if the decisions on matters submitted to arbitration can be separated from those not submitted, that part of the award which contains decisions on the matters submitted to arbitration may be recognized and enforced;

- The composition of the arbitral authority or the arbitral procedure was not in accordance with the agreement of the parties, or failing such agreement, was not in accordance with the law of the country in which the arbitration took place; or

- The award has not yet become binding on the parties, or has been set aside or suspended by a competent authority of the country in which, or under the law of which, that award was made [see, e.g, Baker Marine (Nig.) Ltd. V. Chevron (Nig.) Ltd. (2nd Cir. 1999) 191 F.3d 194 , 196-198 (denied enforcement of awards rendered in Nigeria but set aside by Nigerian High Court; fact that awards were set aside based on Nigerian law which would not provide grounds to set them aside under U.S. law was irrelevant because arbitration agreement specified that Nigerian law should apply)].

ILLUSTRATION:

No Violation of Convention; Contract Gave Arbitrator Power to Interpret Indeterminate Forum-Selection Clause. Manufacturer and buyer had a dispute regarding defects in DVD players. Buyer withheld payment and commenced arbitration in Shanghai. Manufacturer commenced arbitration of claim for payment in Beijing. Parties' agreement provided for arbitration in either place. Buyer claimed agreement limited parties to one arbitration and manufacturer's claim had to be brought as counter-claim in Shanghai arbitration. China International Economic and Trade Arbitration Commission ("CIETAC"), the arbitral body provided for in the agreement, interpreted the contract to allow for two arbitrations. The Beijing award against buyer for "net" payment for non-defective DVDs was entered first and confirmed in U.S. district court over buyer's objection that the award violated the Convention, Art. V, § 1(d) because it arose from an arbitral procedure not in accord with the agreement of the parties. Should the Beijing award have been confirmed? Yes. Because the arbitration clause was admittedly indeterminate and did not resolve the matter, CIETAC was free to interpret its own rules and allow two arbitrations [China Nat'l Metal Prods. Import/Export Co. v. Apex Digital, Inc. (9th Cir. 2004) 379 F.3d 796, 801-802].

Recognition and enforcement of an arbitral award to which the Convention applies may also be refused if the competent authority in the country in which recognition and enforcement is sought finds either (a) that the subject matter of the difference is not capable of settlement by arbitration under the law of that country, or (b) that recognition or enforcement of the award would be contrary to the public policy of that country [Convention on Foreign Arbitral Awards, June 10, 1958, 21 U.S.T. 2517, T.I.A.S. No. 6997, 330 U.N.T.S. 38, art. V, para. 2; see Northrop Corp. v. Triad Intern. Marketing S.A. (9th Cir. 1987) 811 F.2d 1265 , 1268-1271, modified as to other issue 842 F.2d 1154 (1988) , cert. denied, 484 U.S. 914, 108 S. Ct. 261, 98 L. Ed. 2d 219 (standard of review regarding public policy)].

In addition, due process requires that the court have jurisdiction over the defendant against whom the award is sought to be enforced or his or her property. Thus, an award obtained in London could not be confirmed in the Northern District of California against an entity who did business in the United States only through a sales agent [Glencore Grain Rotterdam B.V. v. Shivnath Rai Harnarain Co. (9th Cir. 2002) 284 F.3d 1114 , 1122, 1128].

[5] Grounds for Vacating Award Under Federal Arbitration Act

The federal Arbitration Act provides for vacating an arbitral award, on application of a party to the arbitration, in any of the following cases [9 U.S.C. 10]:

- If the award was procured by fraud, corruption, or undue means;

- If there was evident partiality or corruption in the arbitrators, or either of them;

- If the arbitrators were guilty of misconduct in refusing to postpone the hearing, on a showing of sufficient cause, or in refusing to hear evidence pertinent and material to the controversy, or of any other misbehavior by which the rights of any party have been prejudiced; or

- If the arbitrators exceeded their powers, or so imperfectly executed them that no mutual, final, and definite award was made on the subject matter submitted.

If the award is vacated and the time within which the agreement required the award to be made has not expired, the court may, in its discretion, direct a rehearing by the arbitrators [9 U.S.C. 10(c)]. Application for an order vacating an arbitral award is made in the court in and for the district in which the award was made [9 U.S.C. 10].

[6] Adjournment Pending Application to Set Aside or Suspend

If an application for setting aside or suspension of the award has been made to a competent authority of the country in which, or under the law of which, that award was made, the authority before which the award is sought to be relied on may, if it considers it proper, adjourn the decision on enforcement of the award and may also, on the application of the party claiming enforcement of the award, order the other party to give suitable security [Convention on Foreign Arbitral Awards, June 10, 1958, 21 U.S.T. 2517, T.I.A.S. No. 6997, 330 U.N.T.S. 38, art. VI].

§ 35.32 Immunity of Arbitrator

An arbitrator has the immunity of a judicial officer from civil liability when acting in the capacity of arbitrator under any statute or contract [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.119]. The immunity granted by Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.119 supplements, and does not supplant, any otherwise applicable common law or statutory immunity [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.119].

§ 35.40 Statement of California Policy

It is the policy of the State of California to encourage parties to an international commercial agreement or transaction that qualifies for arbitration or conciliation pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.13 to resolve disputes arising from such agreements or transactions through conciliation. The parties may select or permit an arbitral tribunal or other third party to select one or more persons to serve as the conciliator or conciliators who shall assist the parties in an independent and impartial manner in their attempt to reach an amicable settlement of their dispute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.341; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.13 (discussed under § 35.11[2])].

PRACTICE TIP:

Selection of Conciliator. Choose the conciliator carefully since the conciliator should often be the smartest person in the room. The conciliator can tell the participants the absolute truth of her or her impressions and views, for example, that a party will make a terrible witness. This may have an important impact on obtaining a settlement. By Steven Hecht

§ 35.41 Conduct of Conciliation Proceedings

[1] General Principles

The conciliator or conciliators shall be guided by principles of objectivity, fairness, and justice, giving consideration to, among other things, the rights and obligations of the parties, the usages of the trade concerned, and the circumstances surrounding the dispute, including any previous practices between the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.342]. The conciliator or conciliators may conduct the conciliation proceedings in any manner they consider appropriate, taking into account the circumstances of the case, the wishes of the parties, and the desirability of a speedy settlement of the dispute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.343].

[2] Relation to Other California Law

Except as otherwise provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432, other provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, the Evidence Code, or the California Rules of Court shall not apply to conciliation proceedings brought under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.343].

[3] Representation and Assistance

The parties may appear in person or be represented or assisted by any person of their choice. A person assisting or representing a party need not be a member of the legal profession or licensed to practice law in California [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.351].

[4] Report of Conciliators

At any time during the proceedings, the conciliator or conciliators may prepare a draft conciliation settlement, which may include the assessment and apportionment of costs between the parties, and send copies to the parties, specifying the time within which they must signify their approval [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.361]. No party may be required to accept any settlement proposed by the conciliator or conciliators [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.362].

[5] Confidentiality

When persons agree to participate in conciliation under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432, evidence of anything said or of any admission made in the course of the conciliation is not admissible in evidence, and disclosure of any such evidence shall not be compelled, in any civil action in which, pursuant to law, testimony may be compelled to be given [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.371(a)]. However, Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.371(a) does not limit the admissibility of evidence if all parties participating in conciliation consent to its disclosure [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.371(a)]. Similarly, unless the document otherwise provides, no document prepared for the purpose of, or in the course of, or pursuant to, the conciliation, or any copy of such a document, is admissible in evidence, and disclosure of any such document shall not be compelled, in any arbitration or civil action in which, pursuant to law, testimony may be compelled to be given [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.371(c)].

In the event that any evidence is offered in contravention of Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.371, the arbitration tribunal or the court shall make any order that it considers to be appropriate to deal with the matter, including, without limitation, orders restricting the introduction of evidence, or dismissing the case without prejudice [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.371(b)].

§ 35.42 Stay of Judicial or Arbitral Proceedings

The agreement of the parties to submit a dispute to conciliation shall be deemed an agreement between or among those parties to stay all judicial or arbitral proceedings from the commencement of conciliation until the termination of conciliation proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.381]. All applicable limitation periods, including periods of prescription, shall be tolled or extended on the commencement of conciliation proceedings to conciliate a dispute under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432. All limitation periods shall remain tolled, and periods of prescription extended, as to all parties to the conciliation proceedings until the 10th day following the termination of conciliation proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.382]. For purposes of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.381-1297.382, conciliation proceedings are deemed to have commenced as soon as (a) a party has requested conciliation of a particular dispute or disputes, and (b) the other party or parties agree to participate in the conciliation proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.382].

§ 35.43 Termination of Conciliation Proceedings

[1] All Parties

The conciliation proceedings may be terminated as to all parties by any of the following methods [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.391]:

(a) A written declaration of the conciliator or conciliators, after consultation with the parties, to the effect that further efforts at conciliation are no longer justified, on the date of the declaration;

(b) A written declaration of the parties addressed to the conciliator or conciliators to the effect that the conciliation proceedings are terminated, on the date of the declaration; or

(c) The signing of a settlement agreement by all of the parties on the date of the agreement.

[2] Particular Parties

The conciliation proceedings may be terminated as to particular parties by either of the following methods [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.392]:

- A written declaration of a party to the other party and to the conciliator or conciliators, if appointed, to the effect that the conciliation proceedings shall be terminated as to that particular party, on the date of the declaration; or

- The signing of a settlement agreement by some of the parties, on the date of the agreement.

§ 35.47 Costs of Conciliation

On termination of the conciliation proceedings, the conciliator shall fix the costs of the conciliation and give written notice of these costs to the parties. As used in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.411-1297.412, the term "costs" includes only the following items [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.411]:

- A reasonable fee to be paid to the conciliator or conciliators;
- The travel and other reasonable expenses of the conciliator or conciliators;
- The travel and other reasonable expenses of witnesses requested by the conciliator or conciliators with the consent of the parties;
- The cost of any expert advice requested by the conciliator or conciliators with consent of the parties; and
- The cost of any court.

These costs shall be borne equally by the parties unless the settlement agreement provides for a different apportionment. All other expenses incurred by a party shall be borne by that party [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.412].

§ 35.64 Decisions

[1] Compelling Arbitration

[a] Jurisdiction and Procedure

The Convention overcomes any presumption deriving from 46 U.S.C. § 10313(i) that the courts remain open to foreign seafarers in a case in which a seafarer has signed an otherwise enforceable agreement to arbitrate a wage claim. Furthermore, the arbitration agreement was not void under 46 U.S.C. § 10317, in that the statute does not require the abandonment of the Wage Act claim. Balen v. Holland America Line Inc. (9th Cir. 2009) 583 F.3d 647, 652-653

The exemption clause of 9 U.S.C. § 1 is not incorporated into the Convention by 9 U.S.C. § 208. Furthermore, the Convention overcomes any presumption deriving from 46 U.S.C. § 10313(i) that the courts remain open to foreign seafarers in a case in which a seafarer has signed an otherwise enforceable agreement to arbitrate a wage claim. Rogers v. Royal Caribbean Cruise Line (9th Cir. 2008) 547 F.3d 1148, 1155

Under 9 U.S.C. § 4, court as only empowered to compel arbitration within district; under 9 U.S.C. § 206, court as only empowered to compel arbitration at place specified in contract; when contract has two ambiguous forum selection clauses, 9 U.S.C. § 4 as determinative, and arbitration can only be compelled in district. Bauhinia Corp. v. China Nat. Machinery & Equipment (9th Cir. 1987) 819 F.2d 247, 250

Under 9 U.S.C. § 5, court as not empowered to order arbitration on terms other than those provided in contract unless or until procedure intended by parties (here to use two partisan arbitrators and one neutral umpire) proves impossible.

ATSA of California, Inc. v. Continental Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1983) 702 F.2d 172, 175-176 , on modification 754 F.2d 1394, 1395-1396

Federal court hearing case to which Convention applies as having discretion to dismiss petition to compel arbitration on ground of forum non conveniens as long as agreement does not specify district as place for arbitration. Oil Basins Ltd. v. Broken Hill Proprietary Co. (S.D.N.Y. 1985) 613 F. Supp. 483, 489 ; Dale Metals Corp. v. Kiwa Chem. Industry Co., Ltd. (S.D. N.Y. 1977) 442 F. Supp. 78, 80-81

Under 9 U.S.C. § 4, federal court as only able to compel arbitration within district; under 9 U.S.C. § 206, federal court as only able to compel arbitration at place specified in contract; thus 9 U.S.C. § 4 as superseded by 9 U.S.C. § 206 when contract specifies place for arbitration, but not when contract does not. Oil Basins Ltd. v. Broken Hill Proprietary Co. (S.D.N.Y. 1985) 613 F. Supp. 483, 486-488 (dismissing petition to compel arbitration on ground of forum non conveniens when contract was silent regarding place of arbitration and similar petition was pending in Australia)

Definition of commerce in 9 U.S.C. § 1 as not controlling under 9 U.S.C. §§ 202, 203; district court as having jurisdiction under Convention when only foreign entities are involved. Sumitomo Corp. v. Parakopi Compania Maritima (S.D.N.Y. 1979) 477 F. Supp. 737, 740

Proceedings in federal district court to compel arbitration under 9 U.S.C. § 4 as properly stayed in view of similar state court petition that had been filed and on which hearing had been directed under contract that provided it was to be governed by state law. E.C. Ernst, Inc. v. Potlatch Corp. (S.D.N.Y. 1978) 462 F Supp. 694, 700-701

Stay of judicial proceeding pending completion of arbitration as proper even when parties who were not party to arbitration were involved in judicial proceeding. Dale Metals Corp. v. Kiwa Chem. Industry Co., Ltd. (S.D.N.Y. 1977) 442 F. Supp. 78, 81-82

Demand for arbitration and notice of default under contract as properly served even though they were sent to address other than that specified in contract if respondent received timely notice and replied admitting nonperformance and acknowledged receipt of notice sent by American Arbitration Association to address specified in contract; notice of hearing mailed by AAA as relevant notice anyway. Matter of Ferrara S.p.A. (S.D.N.Y. 1977) 441 F. Supp. 778, 782

Taking of deposition as not waiving right to arbitrate. Shinto Shipping Co. Ltd. v. Fibrex & Shipping Co. (N.D. Cal. 1976) 425 F. Supp. 1088, 1092-1093 , aff'd, 572 F.2d 1328 (1978)

[b] Validity and Scope of Clause

Employment contracts of seafarers arise out of legal relationships that are commercial, and enforcement of them is not generally against public policy. The contract in question met the four-part test for enforceability under the Convention and was enforceable against the defendant. Balen v. Holland America Line Inc. (9th Cir. 2009) 583 F.3d 647, 653

Employment contracts of seafarers arise out of legal relationships that are commercial, and enforcement of them is not generally unconscionable or against public policy. Rogers v. Royal Caribbean Cruise Line (9th Cir. 2008) 547 F.3d 1148, 1157-1159

Agreement to arbitrate "any dispute" without strong limiting or excepting language as granting authority to arbitral tribunal to determine not only dispute but also any consequences naturally flowing from it. Management & Tech. Consultants v. Parsons-Jurden (9th. Cir. 1987) 820 F.2d 1531, 1534-1535

Federal law as establishing presumption that arbitral body acted within scope of its powers; contention that subject matter of arbitration lies outside scope of contract as subject to de novo review; however, arbitral authority as to be broadly construed to comport with thrust of Convention and policy favoring arbitration. Management & Tech. Consultants v. Parsons-Jurden (9th. Cir. 1987) 820 F.2d 1531, 1534 ; Mediterranean Enterprises, Inc. v. Ssangyong (9th Cir. 1983) 708 F.2d 1458, 1463

Arbitral tribunal's authority to determine amount of gross billings as including authority to determine amount of additional compensation due. Management & Tech. Consultants v. Parsons-Jurden (9th. Cir. 1987) 820 F.2d 1531, 1534

Validity of arbitration clause affecting foreign commerce and determinations regarding scope of arbitration clause and which claims fall within clause as to be determined by federal law; arbitration clauses to be liberally construed in favor of arbitration; arbitration as compellable even when contract does not specify governing law or forum for arbitration. Bauhinia Corp. v. China Nat. Machinery & Equipment (9th Cir. 1987) 819 F.2d 247, 249 ; ATSA of California, Inc. v. Continental Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1983) 702 F.2d 172, 174-175 , modified 754 F.2d 1394

Language providing for arbitration of all disputes "arising hereunder" as relatively narrow in scope; causes of action for conspiracy to induce breach of contract, quantum meruit, and conversion as beyond scope of that clause, but claims relating to breach of fiduciary duties arising from contract as within scope of clause; judicial action as properly stayed pending outcome of arbitration. Mediterranean Enterprises, Inc. v. Ssangyong (9th Cir. 1983) 708 F.2d 1458, 1464-1465

Under federal law, if parties agree to arbitration, arbitrators as presumed to be authorized to determine what law is applicable. ATSA of California, Inc. v. Continental Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1983) 702 F.2d 172, 175 , on modification 754 F.2d 1394, 1396 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.283 (accord)

Although art. II(3) of Convention contemplates possibility of waiver, mere passage of time as not sufficient to constitute waiver; under 9 U.S.C. § 206, court's only discretion is regarding place of arbitration, not waiver. I.T.A.D. Associates, Inc. v. Podar Bros. (4th Cir. 1981) 636 F.2d 75, 77

Under Convention, agreement containing arbitration clause as required to be in writing, but does not have to be signed; whether unsigned contract is enforceable under Convention as deter mined by ordinary contract principles. Beromun Aktiengesellschaft v. Societa, Etc. (S.D.N.Y. 1979) 471 F. Supp. 1163, 1170 (oral agreement of parties did not contain arbitration provision)

Time drafts given in payment as not superseding arbitration clause contained in confirmations of sale. Dale Metals Corp. v. Kiwa Chem. Industry Co., Ltd. (S.D.N.Y. 1977) 442 F. Supp. 78, 81 n.1

Federal law as governing arbitrability under Convention; body of international law as requiring court to compel arbitration even though formalities regarding placement of signatures did not comply with Italian law. Matter of Ferrara S.p.A. (S.D.N.Y. 1977) 441 F. Supp. 778, 780

Arbitration not to be stayed when contract contained all essential terms, no fraud or duress in inducing or signing it were alleged, and substantially unequal bargaining power or sophistication was not involved; general rule that person of ordinary understanding and competence is bound by provision of contract that he or she signs whether or not he or she read it as applicable to arbitration clause; subjective agreement as irrelevant as long as clause would have given notice to reasonably prudent person. Matter of Ferrara S.p.A. (S.D.N.Y. 1977) 441 F. Supp. 778, 781

Validity of arbitration and consent to jurisdiction clauses as determined under federal law, not law of state in which transaction occurred or that was designated as place of arbitration. Avila Group, Inc. v. Norma J. of California (S.D.N.Y. 1977) 426 F. Supp. 537, 540

Choice of law as not implying designation of place for arbitration. Oil Basins Ltd. v. Broken Hill Proprietary Co. (S.D.N.Y. 1985) 613 F. Supp. 483, 487

[2] Confirming Arbitral Award

9 U.S.C. §§ 9-11 are permissive, not exclusive, allowing motion to vacate, confirm, or modify award under Federal Arbitration Act to be brought not only in district where award was made, but in any district proper under general venue statute [28 U.S.C. § 1391(a)(2)], e.g., in district where contract was performed. Cortez Byrd Chips, Inc. v. Halbart Construction Co. (2000) 529 U.S. 193, 203-204, 120 S. Ct. 1331, 146 L. Ed.2d 171

Award was properly confirmed even though tribunal allowed two arbitrations: one initiated by manufacturer and one initiated by buyer: parties' agreement was indeterminate and decision to allow two arbitrations (rather than require one be brought as counter-claim to other) was within arbitrator's power as granted by contract; thus, there was no violation of Convention, Art. V, § 1(d) or of contract. China Nat'l Metal Prods. Import/Export Co. v. Apex Digital, Inc. (9th Cir. 2004) 379 F.3d 796, 801-802

If respondent did business in district, district court as proper for confirmation of award under 9 U.S.C. §§ 9, 204, 207; prior exhaustion of remedies under Friendly Nations Treaty as not necessary to confirmation of award. Audi NSU A.U. Aktiengesellschaft v. Overseas Motors (E.D. Mich, 1976) 418 F. Supp. 982, 983, 985

Fact that arbitration between business partners was before religious body, rabbinical council (beth din), in Israel would not bar enforcement of any award it rendered as judgment in Los Angeles County in accordance Convention [9 U.S.C. § 207] and parties' agreement. Dial 800 v. Fesbinder (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 32, 43, 46-50, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 711

[3] Denial of Enforcement of Arbitral Award

To justify refusal to enforce award on ground of public policy, that policy must be clear and well defined; here, Department of Defense regulations as not such clear and defined determination to adopt Saudi decree as United States policy as to require refusal to enforce award. Northrop Corp. v. Triad Intern. Marketing S.A. (9th Cir. 1987) 811 F.2d 1265, 1271 , modified as to other issue 842 F.2d 1154 (1988) , cert. denied 484 U.S. 914, 108 S. Ct. 261, 98 L. Ed. 2d 219

Choice of law provision as not to be set aside; fact that enforcement of award would be contrary to public policy of Saudi Arabia as irrelevant when contract made California law applicable. Northrop Corp. v. Triad Intern. Marketing S.A. (9th Cir. 1987) 811 F.2d 1265, 1270-1271 , modified as to other issue 842 F.2d 1154 (1988) , cert. denied 484 U.S. 914, 108 S. Ct. 261, 98 L. Ed. 2d 219

Even arbitrators' erroneous findings of facts and misinterpretations of California law as not to be subjected to de novo review by court, but to be upheld; mere error of law as not enough to justify refusal to enforce arbitral award. Northrop Corp. v. Triad Intern. Marketing S.A. (9th Cir. 1987) 811 F.2d 1265, 1269 , modified as to other issue 842 F.2d 1154 (1988) , cert. denied 484 U.S. 914, 108 S. Ct. 261, 98 L. Ed. 2d 219

Court asked to enforce arbitral award as able to make de novo review regarding whether enforcement of award is contrary to public policy; in contract making California law determinative, effect of foreign law on parties as determined under Civ. Code 1511; question under Civ. Code § 1511 as not whether payment of award would be illegal under foreign law, but whether foreign law would prevent or excuse performance under Civ. Code § 1511. Northrop Corp. v. Triad Intern. Marketing S.A. (9th Cir. 1987) 811 F.2d 1265, 1268, 1270 , modified as to other issue 842 F.2d 1154 (1988) , cert. denied 484 U.S. 914, 108 S. Ct. 261, 98 L. Ed. 2d 219

Failure of arbitrator to disclose having served as counsel for party in two other legal or arbitral matters as not rising to level that would make enforcement of award against public policy, which is criteria established by art. V, para. 2(b) of Convention; thus judgment confirming award as sustained. Fertilizer Corp. of India v. IDI Management, Inc. (S.D. Ohio 1982) 530 F. Supp. 542, 545-546 ; but see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.121-1297.123 (discussed in § 35.24[1])

[4] Foreign Sovereigns; Act of State Doctrine

Under 28 U.S.C. § 1605(a)(1) (Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act), sovereign that is not party to so-called New York Convention but agrees to arbitrate in country that is party to Convention (France) does not waive immunity to suit in other countries that are parties to convention; however, under 28 U.S.C. § 1605(a)(6) sovereign that is not party to Convention but agrees to arbitrate in country that is party to Convention is not immune from suit in United States to enforce arbitral award governed by Convention. Creighton Ltd. Government of State of Qatar (D.C. Cir, 1999) 181 F.3d 118, 122-124

Enforcement, in United States court pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1605(a)(6) (Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act), of award governed by so-called New York Convention against foreign sovereign that is not party to Convention is not retroactive because 28 U.S.C. § 1605(a)(6) was added to FSIA in 1988, after parties signed contract containing agreement to arbitrate; FSIA speaks not to conduct of parties but to question of which tribunals may enforce arbitral award and confers subject matter jurisdiction for enforcement of award. Creighton Ltd. Government of State of Qatar (D.C. Cir, 1999) 181 F.3d 118, 124

Sovereign that is not party to so-called New York Convention but agrees to arbitrate in country that is party to Convention (France) does not waive its objections to personal jurisdiction in United States, at least when party seeking to enforce award in United States court makes no challenge that foreign state is not "person" within meaning of U.S. Constitution's due process clause; sovereign's contact of builder in United States and telexing of weekly reports to builder's office in United States during construction in foreign state did not constitute minimum contacts with United States sufficient to confer jurisdiction on United States court to enforce award. Creighton Ltd. Government of State of Qatar (D.C. Cir, 1999) 181 F.3d 118, 124-128

Act of State doctrine as precluding inquiry into validity of acts of foreign sovereigns committed within their own territory, but as not preventing judicial resolution of commercial consequences arising from foreign government's public acts. Barragan v. Banco BCH (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 283, 295-296, 232 Cal. Rptr. 758

Party claiming immunity as having burden of establishing that no exceptions apply; immunity as waived by failure to raise it prior to entry of default against party claiming immunity. Barragan v. Banco BCH (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 283, 294, 295, 232 Cal. Rptr. 758

Corporate entity, majority of whose stock was owned by government of Mexico, as foreign state within meaning of FSIA (28 U.S.C. § 1603(a), (b)). Barragan v. Banco BCH (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 283, 293, 232 Cal. Rptr. 758

[5] Interim Protective Measures

Selection of foreign forum for arbitration as not prohibiting attachment under admiralty rules pending arbitration. Polar Shipping Ltd. v. Oriental Shipping Corp. (9th Cir. 1982) 680 F.2d 627, 632-633

Maritime contract between foreign corporations as governed by Convention; attachment as not contrary to policy underlying Convention; although respondent of petition to compel arbitration could not be found in district, district court still had jurisdiction over local garnishee banks to perfect attachment of monies and other credits belonging to absent respondent under supplementary admiralty rules. Atlas Chartering Services v. World Trade Group (S.D. N.Y. 1978) 453 F. Supp. 861, 863-864

_____ [street address]
_____ [city, state, zip code]
[_____ (country)]

Re: Agreement Dated _____

DEMAND FOR ARBITRATION

Reference is made to the contract executed on _____ [date] by and between _____ [names and addresses of the parties], relating to _____ [subject matter of contract, e.g., issuance of a license agreements for the manufacture of glass in the United States in accordance with a process patented by _____ (name)].

As you know, a dispute has arisen under that agreement, in that _____ [name] contends that _____ [specify, e.g., the license includes the right to authorize agents in the United States to engage in the manufacture of glass under the process subject to the license and to charge and retain a fee paid by those agents based on their gross sales], while _____ [name] contends that _____ [specify, e.g.,

the disclosure of the process to third parties and the collection and retention of fees from them constitutes a breach of the parties' agreement, a violation of _____'s (name) patents and trade secrets, and demands that the use of the process by third parties be stopped immediately, that an accounting of fees taken from third parties be made, and all fees paid to _____ (name) by third parties, estimated to total $_____, through _____ (date), be remitted to _____ (name)].

_____ [name] hereby demands, pursuant to Paragraph/Section _____ of the above-referenced agreement, that this dispute be submitted to arbitration in _____ [specify place, e.g. Los Angeles, California], under the Arbitration Rules of the United Nations Commission on International Trade Law in effect on the date of the agreement ("UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules"), using the American Arbitration Association as appointing authority.

[The following person is proposed as sole arbitrator: _____ (names and addresses).]

[In accordance with Paragraph _____ of the parties' agreement, _____ (name and address) is appointed by the undersigned as arbitrator.]

[Enclosed is a statement of claim, a copy of which is also being forwarded to (each of) the arbitrator(s).]

_____ [date and place]

_____ [company name]

by _____ _____ [signature and title]

[2] Use of Form

The form of demand for arbitration in [1], above, conforms to the requirements of Article 3 of the Arbitration Rules of the United Nations Commission on International Trade Law ("UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules") adopted by the United Nations General Assembly on December 15, 1976, as Resolution 31/98. Under both that article and Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.211, the arbitration proceedings are deemed to commence on the date on which the demand is received by the party to whom it is sent (hereinafter "the respondent") [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.211]. Under Article 3, the notice of arbitration need only be sent to the respondent.

Although Article 3 uses the term "notice" of arbitration, the foregoing form is entitled a "demand" to distinguish it from other notice procedures that may occur during the course of arbitration, and to ensure that the recipient is provided clear notice in the form of the "demand" of the commencement of arbitral proceedings [see also Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.90 (form of demand for arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2)].

[3] Contents of Demand

Article 3 of the UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules provides that the notice of arbitration shall include the following:

- A demand that the dispute be referred to arbitration;
- The names and addresses of the parties;

- A reference to the arbitration clause or to the separate arbitration agreement that is invoked;
- A reference to the contract out of or in relation to which the dispute arises;
- The general nature of the claim and an indication of the amount involved;
- The relief or remedy sought; and
- A proposal for the number of arbitrators (one or three), if the parties have not previously agreed on the number of arbitrators. Note that this last item is superseded by Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.101, which provides that if the parties have not agreed on the number of arbitrators, there shall be one arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.101]. However, if the agreement of the parties has specified that the arbitration shall be in accordance with the UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules it is not clear whether Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.101 or article 5 of the UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules applies. Article 5 of the UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules provides that if the parties have not previously agreed on the number of arbitrators and within 15 days after receipt by the respondent of the notice of arbitration the parties have not agreed that there shall be only one arbitrator, three arbitrators shall be appointed.

Article 3 of the UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules provides that the notice of arbitration may also include (1) the proposals for the appointments of a sole arbitrator and an appointing authority referred to in article 6, paragraph 1 of those rules; (2) notification of the appointment of the arbitrator selected by the claimant if the parties have agreed that there will be three arbitrators chosen in the usual manner; and (3) the statement of claim.

[4] Contents of Statement of Claim

Article 18 of the UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules provides that the statement of claim shall include the following items:

- The names and addresses of the parties;
- A statement of the facts supporting the claim;
- The points at issue; and
- The relief or remedy sought.

The last three are the same as those required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.231 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.231; for discussion, see § 35.28[6]]. Article 18 of the UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules provides that the statement of claim shall be provided to the respondent and to each of the arbitrators and shall be accompanied by a copy of the contract and of any separate arbitration agreement. Under both article 18 of the UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules and Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.232, the claimant may submit with the statement of claim all documents it deems relevant or may add a reference to the document or other evidence it intends to submit [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.232].

2. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff and defendant entered into a written agreement relating to _____ [specify commercial nature of agreement or relationship, including, but not limited to, those listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.16, e.g., a joint venture for the constitution and development of a retail, office, and residential condominium complex] [_____ (if relevant to status of agreement as "international" or to place sought for arbitration, state location: in Los Angeles, California)]. Under the terms of [Paragraph _____ of] that agreement, plaintiff and defendant agreed to arbitrate _____ [describe scope of arbitration provision, e.g., any and all disputes arising under the agreement]. A copy of that agreement is attached hereto marked Exhibit "A"

and made a part hereof.

3. On or about _____ [date], a controversy arose between plaintiff and defendant in that _____ [describe nature of controversy, e.g., defendant demanded that plaintiff contribute $534,200 for cost overruns, which plaintiff contends it is not required to do].

4. Their agreement requires that plaintiff and defendant submit this controversy for arbitration in _____ [a location determined by the arbitral tribunal or specify location given in agreement, e.g., Los Angeles, California], in accordance with _____ [the procedures provided in that agreement or as otherwise specified in agreement, e.g., the Commercial Arbitration Rules and Supplementary Procedures for International Commercial Arbitration of the American Arbitration Association].

5. By written notice dated _____, and received by plaintiff on _____ [date], defendant demanded that plaintiff submit this controversy to arbitration as agreed. A copy of that notice is attached hereto marked Exhibit "B" and made a part hereof.

6. Plaintiff has refused, and continues to refuse, to submit this controversy to arbitration, and instead on _____ [date] commenced this action relating to the same controversy.

[EITHER]

7. _____ [Specify evidence or agreement that establishes that parties' places of business are located in different countries or that the subject matter of the agreement is related to commercial interests in more than one state, e.g., (As set forth in the initial recitals of their agreement,) (P)laintiff and defendant have their places of business in different states within the meaning of Sections 1297.13 and 1297.15 of the Code of Civil Procedure in that plaintiff is incorporated under the laws of _____ [country] and has its place of business in _____ [city and country], while defendant is incorporated under the laws of _____ [country] and has its place of business in _____ [city and country].

[OR]

7. Plaintiff and defendant have expressly agreed [in Paragraph _____ of their agreement] that the subject matter of the agreement relates to commercial interests in more than one state within the meaning of Sections 1297.13 and 1297.15 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

[OR]

7. _____ [Specify evidence or agreement that establishes the country in which both parties' places of business are located, e.g., (As seen from Paragraph _____ of their agreement,) (T)he places of business of both plaintiff and defendant (that have the closest relationship to the arbitration agreement) are in _____ (country); and _____ (continue with as many of the following as are applicable)].

[EITHER]

[Paragraph _____ of] the agreement provides that arbitration shall be conducted in _____ [specify place in country other than the one in which plaintiff and defendant have their places of business, e.g., the United States, specifically at Los Angeles, California].

[AND/OR]

_____ [describe obligations to be performed in country other than the one in which plaintiff and defendant have their places of business, e.g., as seen from Paragraph _____ of the agreement, the construction is to occur in Los Angeles]; thus, a substantial part of the obligations of the commercial relationship here at issue is to be performed in _____ [specify place in country other than the one in which plaintiff and defendant have their places of business, e.g., the United States, specifically at Los Angeles, California].

[AND/OR]

_____ [describe why place in country other than the one in which plaintiff and defendant have their places of business has closest connection with matter to be arbitrated, e.g., because all planning meetings, all constructions, and all payments are to occur or be made in Los Angeles, California; Los Angeles permit procedures and building codes will apply; and the law of California was designated as controlling in Paragraph _____ of the agreement; thus, the United States, specifically Los Angeles, California, is most closely connected with the subject matter of this dispute].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [signature]

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

[Add memorandum of points and authorities supporting motion.]

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion with supporting declaration in [1], above, is for use by a party to an international commercial arbitration agreement as defined in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432 to apply for an order (1) to stay judicial proceedings commenced by another party to that agreement and seeking relief with respect to a matter covered by the arbitration agreement, and (2) to compel arbitration [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.81, discussed in § 35.21; see also 9 U.S.C. § 202; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.13, 1297.15 (defining international and commercial and discussed in the § 35.11[2], [3])]. A memorandum of points and authorities must be served and filed with the form [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1003, 1005, 1010; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)].

A timely request for a stay of judicial proceedings made under Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.81 shall be granted [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.82]. The Convention and 9 U.S.C. § 206 also leave no discretion. The court must compel arbitration in accordance with an agreement covered by the Convention [Convention on Foreign Arbitral Awards, June 10, 1958, 21 U.S.T. 2517, T.I.A.S. No. 6997, 330 U.N.T.S. 38, art. II; 9 U.S.C. § 206; see Bauhinia Corp. v. China Nat. Machinery & Equipment (9th Cir. 1987) 819 F.2d 247 , 249; ATSA of California, Inc. v. Continental Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1983) 702 F.2d 172 , 174-175, modified with regard to other issues 754 F.2d 1394] . The forms of orders in Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, §§ 32.96 and 32.98[2], may be combined, with appropriate modifications, for use as an order to stay the proceeding and to compel arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.81-1297.82. For a form of order denying a petition to compel arbitration, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.97.

[3] Elements of Supporting Declaration

The supporting declaration in the form is designed to establish the following facts:

- That the parties agreed to submit to arbitration under an international commercial agreement within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.16 (Paragraphs 2 and 7);

- That the controversy is within the scope of the arbitration provision (Paragraphs 2 and 3);

- That defendant made a timely demand for arbitration in accordance with any procedures set forth or adopted by their agreement, and took any other steps required under that procedure (Paragraphs 4 and 5);

- Plaintiff's failure or refusal to submit to arbitration and commencement of the action (Paragraph 6); and

- The location at which the moving party seeks to have arbitration ordered, and the rules and procedures under which arbitration is to be conducted (Paragraph 4) [see 9 U.S.C. § 206 (under Convention, court may compel arbitration at any place provided for in agreement); Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.202 (when parties fail to designate place of arbitration, tribunal determines place having regard to circumstances of case)].

The alternative selections for Paragraphs 7 reflect the various subdivisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.13, defining "international" [see also Convention on Foreign Arbitral Awards, June 10, 1958, 21 U.S.T. 2517, T.I.A.S. No. 6997, 330 U.N.T.S. 38, art. I, para. 1; 9 U.S.C. § 202; and discussions in §§ 35.10 and 35.11[2]]. For the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.13, if a party has more than one place of business, "place of business" is the one that has the closest relationship to the arbitration agreement. If a party does not have a place of business, reference is to be made to his or her habitual residence [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.14]. Also for the purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.13, the states of the United States, including the District of Columbia, are considered one state [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.15].

[4] Motion or Petition

The motion is brought in the pending action or proceeding involving the arbitral matter [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.61; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1292.4, 1292.8 (motion to stay proceeding regarding matter agreed to be arbitrated; petition to compel arbitration; discussed in § 35.20[1]]. Presumably, a state court would have jurisdiction to enforce the Convention and 9 U.S.C. § 206 by compelling arbitration when no action was pending regarding the arbitrable matter or when an action was pending in a foreign court [see 9 U.S.C. § 203 (stating only that federal district courts have original jurisdiction, discussed in § 35.20[2]); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.51 (California court is not prohibited from intervening when federal law provides for court intervention) and discussion in § 35.21]. Then, the form would have to be adapted as a petition, and the matter would be subject to removal to a federal district court [9 U.S.C. § 203 (original jurisdiction of federal district courts); 28 U.S.C. § 1441(a) (removal of cases subject to federal district court's original jurisdiction); see also 9 U.S.C. § 205 (removal of proceeding involving arbitrable matter)].

For a form of petition and a caption that may be adapted to compel arbitration in the context of an international commercial dispute, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.92. The form should be modified by deleting allegations that relate only to California disputes and by including the statements in the supporting declaration of this form as allegations of the petition.

[5] Removal to Federal District Court

In addition to proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.81, a party to an international commercial arbitration agreement who is faced with a judicial proceeding involving the arbitrable matter commenced by another party to that agreement may remove the state court proceeding to federal district court and move in federal court to compel arbitration [9 U.S.C. § 205; see, e.g., I.T.A.D. Associates, Inc. v. Podar Bros. (4th Cir. 1981) 636 F.2d 75 , 76-77]. For discussion and forms relating to removal to federal court, see Ch. 265, Federal Courts: Jurisdiction and Removal , Pt. II.

Petitioner alleges:

1. Under the terms of [Paragraph _____ of] the agreement herein alleged, arbitration of the controversy herein alleged is to be conducted in _____ County, California.

2. On or about _____ [date], petitioner and respondent entered into a written agreement relating to _____ [specify commercial nature of agreement or relationship, including, but not limited to, those listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.16, e.g., manufacture, distribution, and sale of automobiles]. Under the terms of [Paragraph _____ of] that agreement, petitioner and respondent agreed to arbitrate _____ [describe scope of arbitration clause, e.g., any and all disputes arising under the agreement]. A copy of that agreement is attached hereto marked Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof.

3. _____ [Specify evidence or portions of agreement that establish that the agreement is "international" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.13-1297.15, e.g., (As set forth in the initial recitals of their agreement,) (P)etitioner and respondent have their places of business in different states within the meaning of Sections 1297.13 through 1297.15 of the Code of Civil Procedure in that petitioner is incorporated under the laws of _____ (country) and has its place of business in _____ (city and country), while respondent is incorporated under the laws of _____ (country) and has its place of business in _____ (city and country)].

4. On or about _____ [date], a controversy arose between petitioner and respondent in that _____ [describe nature of controversy, e.g., respondent demanded that petitioner purchase from respondent for resale 250,000 more automobiles and trucks than petitioner purchased from respondent during the previous fiscal year or suffer termination of its exclusive distributor status in the United States. Petitioner contends that respondent's demand constitutes a breach of their agreement]. Petitioner and respondent are required by their agreement [and by an order by this court dated _____] to submit this controversy to arbitration [in accordance with _____ (the procedures provided in that agreement or as otherwise specified in agreement, e.g., the Arbitration Rules of the United Nations Commission on International Trade Law in effect on the date of the agreement ("UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules"), using the American Arbitration Association as appointing authority)].

respondent appointed _____ (name) as arbitrator, and petitioner received notice of that appointment on _____ (date); petitioner appointed _____ (name) as arbitrator, and respondent received notification of that appointment on _____ (date). _____ (Thirty or other number of days specified by agreement or by institutional procedure adopted by parties) days have elapsed and the two duly appointed arbitrators have failed to agree on the third arbitrator].

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays this court, pursuant to Section _____ 1297.114 or 1297.115 or 1297.116 of the Code of Civil Procedure, to _____ [specify relief sought, e.g., appoint the third arbitrator].

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [moving party]

[2] Use of Form

The petition in [1], above, is for use to obtain a court order to rectify any failure to appoint an arbitrator or to otherwise comply with any appointment procedure agreed on by the parties. It may be used in the following situations:

- When there is to be one arbitrator, but the parties have neither adopted an appointment procedure nor been able to agree on the sole arbitrator (Paragraphs 6 and first alternative 7) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.101 (one arbitrator when parties do not agree on number of arbitrators), Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.115, discussed in § 35.23[3]];

- When the arbitration involves two parties who have agreed that there are to be three arbitrators, but have not adopted any appointment procedure, and either party has failed, for more than 30 days after receipt of a request to do so, to appoint an arbitrator (Paragraphs 6 and second alternative 7, first choice for conclusion) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.114, discussed in § 35.23[2]];

- When the arbitration involves two parties who have agreed that there are to be three arbitrators, but have not adopted any appointment procedure, each party has appointed an arbitrator, but the two appointed arbitrators have failed to agree on the third arbitrator within 30 days after their appointment (Paragraphs 6 and second alternative 7, second choice for conclusion) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.114, discussed in § 35.23[2]];

- When there is an agreed appointment procedure that does not provide any other means for securing appointment, and the parties, or two appointed arbitrators, fail to reach an agreement expected of them under that procedure (second alternative Paragraph 7) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.116(b), discussed in § 35.23[4]]; or

- When there is an agreed appointment procedure that does not provide any other means for securing appointment, and a party to the agreement or any third party, including an institution, fails to act as required or to perform any function entrusted to it under that procedure (second alternative Paragraph 7) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.116(a),(c), discussed in § 35.23[4]].

[3] Allegations

The form of petition alleges the following:

- Place at which venue lies (Paragraph 1) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.12 (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.114-1297.116 only applicable if place of arbitration is in California)].

- The formation of an agreement by the parties that is international within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.13-1297.15 (Paragraph 3) and deals with a commercial subject matter (Paragraph 2) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.16].

- The scope of the arbitration clause in that agreement (Paragraph 2).

- The existence of a controversy between the parties that is within the scope of the arbitration clause (Paragraph 4).

- The number of arbitrators agreed on by the parties or the fact that the parties have not agreed on the number of arbitrators (alternative Paragraphs 5) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.101 (one arbitrator when parties do not agree on number of arbitrators)].

- Whether there is a procedure for appointment of the arbitral tribunal (Paragraph 4 if yes; Paragraph 6 if no).

- The specifics of the breakdown of the appointment procedure (alternative Paragraphs 7).

[4] Jurisdiction and Venue

The superior court of the county in which the place of arbitration is located is the proper court for hearing of petitions in aid of the appointment procedure (see Paragraph 1) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.61].

It is not clear whether a California superior court would have jurisdiction under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.12, 1297.114-1297.116 if the agreement of the parties provides that the arbitral tribunal is to determine the place for arbitration. A similar situation would arise if the agreement is silent and Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.202 governs to have the tribunal determine the place for arbitration [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.202].

[5] Procedure

It appears that this petition, any papers on which it is based, and a notice of hearing of the petition should be served in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1290.2 and 1290.4. Although Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1290, 1290.2, and 1290.4 (governing arbitration petitions, notice of hearings, and service of the petitions and notices, respectively) refer to proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2, no other procedures are adopted by the sections on international commercial arbitration (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432), and Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1290-1291.2 are not specifically superseded by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.11-1297.432 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.17]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.4 is discussed in Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.92[1][e]. For a form of notice of hearing of petition, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.92[2].

[6] Order

For a form of order that may be adapted for use with this petition, see Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding, § 33.60[2].

§ 35.73 Petition to Determine Challenge to Arbitrator Appointed Under International Commercial Agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.134]

[1] FORM Petition to Determine Challenge to Arbitrator Appointed Under International Commercial Agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.134]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

In the Matter of the Arbitration Between	)
_____ [name], Petitioner, vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name], Respondent.	)	PETITION TO DETERMINE CHALLENGE TO )	APPOINTMENT OF ARBITRATOR

Petitioner alleges:

1. [Venue. See § 35.72[1], Paragraph 1.]

2. [Formation of commercial agreement. See § 35.72[1], Paragraph 2.]

3. [International character of agreement. See § 35.72[1], Paragraph 3.]

4. [Existence of arbitrable controversy. See § 35.72[1], Paragraph 4, excluding final bracketed clause concerning institutional rules and procedures.]

5. On _____ [date], _____ [petitioner or respondent] mailed a demand for arbitration to _____ [respondent or petitioner]. A copy of that demand is attached hereto, marked Exhibit "B," and made a part hereof. _____ [Respondent or Petitioner] received that demand for arbitration on _____ [date].

6. The parties have agreed that there shall be _____ [number] arbitrator(s) [and have adopted an appointment procedure], but they have not agreed on a procedure for challenging an arbitrator.

7. Petitioner first learned of the _____ [constitution of the arbitral tribunal or circumstances that were the basis of the challenge] on _____ [date].

8. On _____ [date within 15 days after date in Paragraph 7], petitioner sent written notice of challenge of _____ [name of challenged arbitrator] to the arbitral tribunal at _____ [address]. A copy of that challenge is attached hereto, marked Exhibit "C," and made a part hereof.

9. _____ [Name of challenged arbitrator] did not withdraw, nor did the parties agree to terminate his/her mandate. The arbitral tribunal considered the challenge and issued its determination rejecting the challenge on _____ [date]. [A copy of the determination rejecting the challenge is attached hereto, marked Exhibit "D," and made a part hereof.]

10. Petitioner received notice of the arbitral tribunal's rejection of the challenge on _____ [date within 30 days before filing of petition].

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays:

1. For a determination by this court that _____ [name of challenged arbitrator] is disqualified from serving as arbitrator is this matter;

2. For an order requiring _____ [specify replacement procedure desired, e.g. the two remaining arbitrators to select a third arbitrator to replace _____ (name of challenged arbitrator)];

3. For costs of suit incurred herein [including reasonable attorney's fees]; and

4. For such other and further relief as to the court may deem proper.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [moving party]

[2] Use of Form

The form of petition in [1], above, is for use by a party to an international commercial dispute whose challenge of an arbitrator under Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.132 has been rejected by the arbitral tribunal. The petition is used to seek a determination of the challenge by the superior court of the county in which the place of arbitration is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.134; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.61 (venue); see also discussion in § 35.24[3]].

For discussion of notice of hearing and service, see § 35.72[5].

If the parties have agreed on a challenge procedure, a decision under that procedure is final, and this form will not be applicable [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.131].

It is not clear whether a California superior court would have jurisdiction under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.61, 1297.132-1297.134 if the agreement of the parties provides that the arbitral tribunal is to determine the place for arbitration (see Paragraph 1). A similar situation would arise if the agreement was silent and Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.202 governs to have the tribunal determine the place for arbitration [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.202].

For a discussion of the procedures applicable to replacement of an arbitrator who is challenged or whose mandate terminates for any reason, see § 35.25[3].

[3] Allegations

The form of petition alleges the following:

- The commencement of the arbitration (Paragraph 5) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.211].

- The number of arbitrators agreed on by the parties and their lack of agreement on a challenge procedure (Paragraph 6).

- The appointment of the arbitral tribunal, and the date on which petitioner first learned of the constitution of the tribunal or the grounds for the challenge (Paragraph 7).

- Petitioner's challenge, and the date on which it was made (Paragraph 8).

- The failure of the challenged arbitrator to withdraw, and of the parties to agree to terminate the mandate of the challenged arbitrator (Paragraph 9).

- The arbitral tribunal's rejection of the challenge (Paragraph 9).

- The date on which petitioner received the rejection (Paragraph 10).

Note that Paragraph 8 incorporates the challenge and assumes that the grounds stated in that challenge are sufficient for purposes of this petition [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.124].

[4] Superior Court's Decision

If a challenge is based on the grounds set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.121 (discussed in the Introduction under Challenging Arbitrators--Disclosures by Arbitrators and Conciliators, above), and the superior court determines that the facts support a finding that the ground or grounds fairly exist, then the challenge should be sustained [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.134]. The superior court's decision is final and is not subject to appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.135].

[5] Continuation of Arbitral Proceedings Pending Challenge

While a request under Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.134 is pending, the arbitral tribunal, including the challenged arbitrator, may continue with the arbitral proceedings and make an arbitral award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.136].

§ 35.74 Petition to Determine Termination of Mandate of Arbitrator Appointed Under International Commercial Agreement for Failure or Inability to Perform or After Withdrawal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.142]

[1] FORM Petition to Determine Termination of Mandate of Arbitrator Appointed Under International Commercial Agreement for Failure or Inability to Perform or After Withdrawal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.142]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

In the Matter of the Arbitration Between	)
_____ [name], Petitioner, vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name], Respondent.	)	PETITION TO DETERMINE TERMINATION OF MANDATE OF ARBITRATOR _____ [FOR FAILURE OR INABILITY TO PERFORM or AFTER WITHDRAWAL]

Petitioner alleges:

1. [Venue. See § 35.72[1], Paragraph 1.]

2. [Formation of commercial agreement. See § 35.72[1], Paragraph 2.]

3. [International character of agreement. See § 35.72[1], Paragraph 3.]

4. [Existence of arbitrable controversy. See § 35.72[1], Paragraph 4.]

5. [Commencement of arbitration. See § 35.73[1], Paragraph 5.]

6. On _____ [date], the arbitral tribunal was appointed. That panel consisted of _____[name(s)].

7. On _____ [date], _____ [petitioner or respondent] submitted its statement of claim. On _____ [date], _____ [respondent or petitioner] submitted its statement of defense. [Continue as necessary to specify point in arbitration process at which arbitrator ceased to act.].

8. _____ [Specify instance(s) of arbitrator's failure or impossibility to act or withdrawal, e.g., On _____ (date) _____ (name of arbitrator who has withdrawn, etc.) became ill, was hospitalized, and ever since has failed to act in this matter].

9. A controversy exists between petitioner and respondent in that petitioner contends that _____ [name of arbitrator who has withdrawn, etc.] _____ [is unable to act or has failed to act or has withdrawn] and that his/her mandate as arbitrator is terminated and appointment of a replacement is required, whereas respondent contends that _____ [specify, e.g., _____'s (name of arbitrator who has withdrawn, etc.) illness is temporary, has caused no prejudice to either party,] and does not constitute grounds for termination of his/her mandate as arbitrator.

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays:

1. For a determination by this court that _____ [name of arbitrator who has withdrawn, etc.] _____ [is unable to act or has failed to act or has withdrawn] and that his/her mandate as arbitrator is terminated;

2. For an order requiring _____ [specify replacement procedure desired, e.g. the two remaining arbitrators to select a third arbitrator to replace _____ (name of arbitrator who has withdrawn, etc.)];

3. For costs of suit incurred herein [including reasonable attorney's fees]; and

4. For such other and further relief as to the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of petition in [1], above, is for use by a party to an international commercial dispute to seek a judicial determination of a controversy regarding the termination of an arbitrator's mandate because of that arbitrator's de facto or de jure inability to perform, or failure to act without undue delay, or withdrawal from office [Code Civ. Proc. §§

1297.141-1297.142; see discussion in § 35.25[1], [2]]. In addition to termination under challenge or because of a failure or inability to act, the mandate of an arbitrator terminates on his or her withdrawal from office for any reason, or by or pursuant to agreement of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.151]. For discussion of the procedures for replacement of an arbitrator whose mandate has terminated, see the discussion in § 35.25[3].

For discussion of notice of hearing on this petition and discussion of service, see § 35.72[5].

[3] Venue

No venue is specified for this petition. However, because most other judicial functions relating to the arbitration process, such as petitions regarding appointment and challenge of arbitrators, are properly addressed to the superior court in the county in which the place of arbitration is located, it appears that failure to specify the superior court of the county in which the place of arbitration is located as the proper court for the foregoing petition was a legislative oversight [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.61 (venue for other matters)]. Still, if the agreement of the parties provides that the arbitral tribunal is to determine the place for arbitration or the agreement is silent and Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.202 governs to have the tribunal determine the place for arbitration, and the failure, impossibility, or withdrawal occur before the tribunal has determined the place for arbitration, it is unclear where venue would lie.

[4] Allegations

The form of petition alleges the following:

- The appointment of the arbitral tribunal, and the date of appointment (Paragraph 6).
- The stage of the arbitration process at which the arbitrator ceased to act (Paragraph 7).
- The specific failure or impossibility of performance by the arbitrator, or his or her withdrawal (Paragraph 8).
- The existence of a controversy between the parties regarding the termination of the arbitrator's mandate (Paragraph 9).

[5] Superior Court's Decision

The decision of the superior court under Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.142 is final and is not subject to appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.143].

§ 35.75 Petition to Determine Jurisdiction of Arbitral Tribunal Appointed Under International Commercial Agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.166]

[1] FORM Petition to Determine Jurisdiction of Arbitral Tribunal Appointed Under International Commercial Agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.166]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

In the Matter of the Arbitration Between	)
_____ [name], Petitioner, vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name], Respondent.	)	PETITION TO DETERMINE JURISDICTION OF )	ARBITRAL TRIBUNAL

Petitioner alleges:

1. [Venue. See § 35.72[1], Paragraph 1.]

2. [Formation of commercial agreement. See § 35.72[1], Paragraph 2.]

3. [International character of agreement. See § 35.72[1], Paragraph 3.]

4. On or about _____ [date], a controversy arose between petitioner and respondent in that _____ [describe nature of controversy, e.g., after the basic engineering studies had been completed and bids submitted to local contractors, respondent failed and refused to perform under the parties' joint venture agreement and submitted bids on its own behalf to complete the construction as sole developer. Petitioner contends that respondent's actions constitute a breach of the parties' agreement, breach of respondent's fiduciary duties to petitioner, and conversion of proprietary information of the joint venture].

5. [Commencement of arbitration. See § 35.73[1], Paragraph 5.]

[6. Appointment of arbitral tribunal. See § 35.74[1], Paragraph 6.]

[EITHER, if jurisdictional challenge raised in statement of defense]

7. On _____ [date], petitioner submitted its statement of defense, which included a plea that the arbitral tribunal has no jurisdiction to determine this controversy because _____ [specify, e.g. Paragraph 14 of the agreement provides that disputes arising under the contract be submitted to arbitration, whereas the claim for conversion did not arise under the contract]. A copy of [the statement of defense and] the plea that the arbitral tribunal has no jurisdiction to determine this controversy is attached hereto, marked Exhibit "C," and made a part hereof.

[OR, if jurisdictional challenge raised during arbitral proceeding]

7. On _____ [date], petitioner submitted its statement of defense. Petitioner and respondent submitted documents and written evidence to the arbitral tribunal[; and the arbitral tribunal conducted oral hearings regarding this controversy] on _____ [date(s)]. On _____ [date], petitioner first learned that the tribunal was taking evidence and considering the issue of _____ [specify, e.g., conversion]. Petitioner immediately objected orally that the arbitral tribunal was exceeding the scope of its authority by considering _____ [specify, e.g., the conversion claim]. On _____ [date], petitioner submitted a similar plea to the tribunal in writing. A copy of that plea is attached hereto, marked Exhibit "C," and made a part hereof.

[CONTINUE]

8. The arbitral tribunal ruled as a preliminary matter that it has jurisdiction to determine _____ [specify issue(s) or entire controversy, e.g., this controversy]. Petitioner received notice of that ruling, a copy of which is attached hereto, marked Exhibit "D," and made a part hereof, on _____ [date within 30 days before date on which this petition is to be filed].

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays:

1. For a determination by this court that the _____ [specify issue(s) or entire controversy, e.g., existing controversy between petitioner and respondent] is not subject to arbitration under the agreement, and therefore, the arbitral tribunal does not have jurisdiction to determine _____ [specify issue(s) or entire controversy claimed to be beyond scope of tribunal's authority, e.g., this controversy];

2. For an order requiring respondent to cease and refrain from proceeding with the arbitration of the _____ [specify issue(s) or entire controversy claimed to be beyond scope of tribunal's authority, e.g.,

controversy herein alleged];

3. For costs of suit incurred herein [including reasonable attorney's fees]; and

4. For such other and further relief as to the court may deem proper.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [moving party]

[2] Use of Form

The form of petition in [1], above, is for use by a party to an international commercial dispute to seek a judicial determination that the arbitral tribunal is without jurisdiction, or is exceeding the scope of its jurisdiction. This procedure is only available if the three following conditions are satisfied:

- The plea regarding the tribunal's lack of, or acts in excess of, jurisdiction was first raised in a timely manner [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.162-1297.164];

- The arbitral tribunal ruled as a preliminary matter that is has jurisdiction [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.161, discussed in § 35.26[1]]; and

- The petitioner filed the request with the superior court within 30 days after receiving notice of the tribunal's ruling [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.166; see discussion in § 35.26[2]].

For discussion of notice of hearing on the petition and discussion of service, see § 35.72[5].

[3] Arbitration Not to Be Restrained

Unlike domestic arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1284.2 [see Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding, §§ 33.74, 33.75], international commercial arbitration cannot be restrained during the pendency of a superior court's consideration of a request for determination of the arbitral tribunal's jurisdiction. While a request to the superior court is pending, the arbitral tribunal may continue with the arbitral proceedings, and may make an arbitral award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.167]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.167 is in accord with federal decisions interpreting the Convention as creating a presumption in favor of arbitrability, even if, after permitting the arbitration to go forward, a United States court could refuse enforcement of the arbitral award [see, e.g., Mitsubishi Motors v. Soler Chrysler-Plymouth (1985) 473 U.S. 614, 629-639, 105 S. Ct. 3346, 87 L. Ed. 2d 444 ; Management & Tech. Consultants v. Parsons-Jurden (9th. Cir. 1987) 820 F.2d 1531 , 1534].

[4] Allegations

The form of petition alleges the particulars of the controversy at issue (Paragraph 4), which are to be compared with the particulars of the arbitration clause as alleged in Paragraph 2. Paragraphs 5-7 are designed to allege the stage of the arbitration proceeding at which petitioner first raised the plea that the arbitral tribunal did not have jurisdiction or was acting in excess of its jurisdiction [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1297.162-1297.164]. Paragraph 8 alleges the receipt by petitioner of the tribunal's ruling within 30 days before the date on which the petition was filed with the superior court [

Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.166].

[5] Jurisdiction and Venue

The superior court of the county in which the place of arbitration is located is the proper court for the hearing of a petition to determine whether the arbitral tribunal has jurisdiction or is exceeding the scope of its authority [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.61].

[6] Award in Excess of Jurisdiction

It is not likely that Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.166 grants authority to the superior court to enjoin the respondent or the arbitral tribunal from continuing with the arbitration if the court determines that the arbitral tribunal is acting in excess of its jurisdiction. Generally, the appropriate procedure would be to attack the award by a petition to vacate it, or by opposing a petition to confirm it [see Convention on Foreign Arbitral Awards, June 10, 1958, 21 U.S.T. 2517, T.I.A.S. No. 6997, 330 U.N.T.S. 38, art. V, para. 1(c) (refusing enforcement of award in excess of powers granted by arbitration clause); 9 U.S.C. § 207; see also 9 U.S.C. §§ 9, 10; Code Civ. Proc. § 1285 (petitions to vacate or confirm arbitral awards); Mediterranean Enterprises, Inc. v. Ssangyong (9th Cir. 1983) 708 F.2d 1458 , 1465 (arbitral award regarding matter beyond scope of arbitration clause is not to be given effect by court)]. For forms that may be adapted for use to oppose confirmation of or to vacate an international commercial arbitral award, see Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review, § 34.52 (response to petition to confirm) and § 34.56 (petition to vacate).

Chapter 36 JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART I. SCOPE

4-36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 36.01

AUTHOR: Hon. Richard C. Neal Editorial Consultant Richard C. Neal is an Associate Justice, California Court of Appeal, Second District. He was appointed to the Los Angeles Superior Court in 1992 after nearly twenty years in private practice in Los Angeles. Justice Neal served for several years as Chair of the Superior Court's Alternative Dispute Resolution Committee and oversaw implementation in Los Angeles County of the pilot civil action mediation program mandated by Code of Civil Procedure Section 1775 et seq.

§ 36.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses judicially mandated non-binding arbitration pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.10 et seq. and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.810 et seq. The chapter contains the following forms:

- Forms of stipulation or election of judicial arbitration [see §§ 36.70 -36.71].
- Forms to delay, continue, or remove a case from arbitration [see §§ 36.73 -36.74, 36.78].
- Forms pertaining to the rejection or appointment of an arbitrator [see §§ 36.75 -36.77].
- Forms to offer writings and depositions in evidence [see § 36.79].
- Forms of motion and order to vacate a judgment [see § 36.80].
- Forms to request a trial de novo and for use after the trial de novo [see § 36.81 -36.82].

§ 36.10 Governing Statutes

The judicially mandated non-binding arbitration of civil cases is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.10-1141.31, Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.720 et seq., 3.810 et seq., and local court rules.

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.10-1141.31 apply to any civil action in which a party to the action is a public agency or public entity [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.27]. The provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.10-1141.31 governing judicial arbitration are not to be construed in derogation of the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2 governing enforcement of arbitration agreements. To that extent, the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.10-1141.31 and Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2 are mutually exclusive and independent of one another [Porreco v. Red Top RV Center (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 113, 118-119, 264 Cal. Rptr. 609 (citing Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.30)].

§ 36.11 Terminology

Some courts have stated that "judicial arbitration" is obviously an inept term, for the system it describes is neither judicial nor arbitration; the hearing is not necessarily conducted by a judge, and the right to a trial de novo removes the finality of true arbitration [Flynn v. Gorton (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1550, 1555 n.2, 255 Cal. Rptr. 768 , generally quoting Dodd v. Ford (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 426, 432 n.7, 200 Cal. Rptr. 256] .

§ 36.12 Judicial Arbitration in Civil Cases

Judicial arbitration in civil cases is intended to provide parties already involved in legal proceedings a simplified and economical alternative to a trial for obtaining prompt and equitable resolution of their disputes while retaining their right to civil trial by jury or before the court if they are not satisfied with the results of arbitration hearings [Code Civ Proc. § 1141.10; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20]. Judicial arbitration of civil cases will occur under any of the following circumstances [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.11, 1141.12; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.811(a)]:

- When the court determines the amount in controversy in the action will not exceed $50,000 for each plaintiff [see § 36.19].

- When each plaintiff elects to place the matter into arbitration and agrees the arbitration award will not exceed $50,000 as to that plaintiff [see § 36.16].

- When the parties to a legal action agree by stipulation to submit the matter to arbitration prior to any trial [see § 36.16].

§ 36.13 Trial Court Delay Reduction Act

Superior courts in all California counties are required to implement delay reduction programs [Gov. Code §§ 68605.5, 68620].

An order may be made referring an action to mediation at any status conference held 30 or more days after service of first responsive pleadings [Gov. Code § 68616(e), (g)]. However, no case may be referred to arbitration prior to 210 days after the filing of the complaint, exclusive of the stipulated period provided for by Gov. Code § 68816(d) [Gov. Code § 68816(g)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Mediation Alternative May Be Held Sooner. Judicially mandated mediation is an alternative to judicially mandated arbitration in counties that have adopted the mediation program established under Code Civ. Proc. § 1775 et seq. [for discussion of this type of mediation, see Ch. 37, Judicially Mandated Civil Action Mediation]. Mediations are not subject to the requirement that 210 days elapse between filing and hearing, hence mediations can be held sooner than arbitrations. Hon. Richard C. Neal

For further discussion of the act and the local delay reduction rules, see Ch. 552, Trial Court Delay Reduction .

AUTHOR: Hon. Richard C. Neal Editorial Consultant Richard C. Neal is an Associate Justice, California Court of Appeal, Second District. § 36.14 Nature of Judicial Arbitration

[1] Generally

Unlike commercial or true arbitration, judicial arbitration is not binding to the extent that any party dissatisfied with an award may, under Code Civ. Proc. § 1411.20, elect trial de novo [see § 36.34]. The Legislature, however, seeking to encourage finality of judicial arbitration awards, enacted disincentives to trial de novo. For example, if a party requesting trial do novo does not obtain a more favorable judgment, he or she is liable for significant costs and fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21 [Flynn v. Gorton (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1550, 1555, 255 Cal. Rptr. 768 ; see § 36.36].

Discouraging trial de novo is essential to the proper functioning of the judicial arbitration system. Along with its goal of resolving small claims efficiently and affordably, judicial arbitration is intended to ease court caseloads, and the success of judicial arbitration in achieving these goals is partially dependent on a small incidence of trial de novo elections [Flynn v. Gorton (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1550, 1555, 255 Cal. Rptr. 768 , citing Kanowitz, Alternative Dispute Resolution and the Public Interest: The Arbitration Experience, 38 Hastings L.J. 239, 292 (1987)]. In addition, anecdotal evidence suggests that a number of cases in which requests for trial de novo are filed settle soon after the request is made, for a sum closely similar to the amount awarded in the arbitration. In these cases it appears that the trial de novo request was filed simply to preserve negotiating room, not because the requesting party intended to go to trial. A degree of relief from court congestion is achieved in these cases as well.

[2] Res Judicata and Collateral Estoppel Effect of Award

[a] Res Judicata

Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.23 provides that a final award shall have the same force and effect as a judgment in any civil action or proceeding, except that it shall not be subject to appeal and it may not be attacked or set aside except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473, 1286.2, or Judicial Council rule [see § 36.30[4]]. Thus, if a trial de novo is not requested within the statutory period, a judicial arbitration award becomes final and is not subject to appeal. Accordingly, a final judicial arbitration award, if clear and unambiguous and not set aside as indicated above, is res judicata in any subsequent proceeding on the same cause of action [Flynn v. Gorton (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1550, 1555, 255 Cal. Rptr. 768 ; see also State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 5, 11-12, 12 n.6, 259 Cal. Rptr. 50 ; compare Nicholson v. Fazeli (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1091, 1102-1103, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 881 (res judicata did not bar malicious prosecution action after judicial arbitration of character of marital property pursuant to Fam. Code § 2554 because different primary rights were involved and compensation in family court was limited by Fam. Code §§ 271 and 2030)].

[b] Collateral Estoppel

While judicial arbitration awards are accorded claim preclusion (res judicata) effect [see [a], above], they may not have issue preclusion (collateral estoppel) effect in a subsequent suit between the parties on a different cause of action [see State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 5, 259 Cal. Rptr. 50 ; Flynn v. Gorton (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1550, 1552-1553, 1555-1556, 255 Cal. Rptr. 768] . In Flynn the court held that judicial arbitration awards do not have collateral estoppel effect for the following reasons [Flynn v. Gorton (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1550, 1552-1553, 1555-1556, 255 Cal. Rptr. 768] :

- Because no record is made of arbitration proceedings and generally no findings of fact or conclusions of law are required, it is difficult to determine from the award alone what issues were actually litigated and how they were resolved.

- Even if it could be determined from the award alone what issues were actually litigated and how they were resolved, it would still be unfair to bind the parties to judicially arbitrated resolutions of issues since the doctrine of collateral estoppel is based on the premise that a thorough fact-finding process was completed in the first proceeding, but in judicial arbitration the low monetary amount in controversy and the option of trial de novo can leave parties without a serious incentive to thoroughly litigate the issues.

- It is unlikely that parties would expect a judicial arbitration award to have collateral estoppel effect in other proceedings in which the stakes may be higher than they were in the arbitration proceeding.

- If they did so expect, the result might be intensified litigation, delays, and costs, as well as an increased rate of trial de novo election, which would be directly contrary to the purposes underlying judicial arbitration legislation.

The court in State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 5, 259 Cal. Rptr. 50 agreed with the result reached in Flynn, but disagreed with Flynn's position that a judicial arbitration award can never have collateral estoppel effect [State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 5, 14, 259 Cal. Rptr. 50] . In State Farm, the issue before the court of appeal was whether State Farm's insureds had any liability to claimants seeking to prosecute an underlying third-party bad faith action. The court held that the issue was actually, necessarily, and finally resolved in plaintiffs' favor by a judgment entered under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.23 arising from an arbitration award. Without such a finding of liability, there could be no basis for the arbitrator's award. This was a final resolution of the issue of their insureds' liability, and therefore State Farm would be collaterally estopped by the judgment from relitigating that issue in the bad faith action [State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 5, 14, 259 Cal. Rptr. 50] .

Chapter 36 JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

4-36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 36.15

AUTHOR: Hon. Richard C. Neal Editorial Consultant Richard C. Neal is an Associate Justice, California Court of Appeal, Second District. He was appointed to the Los Angeles Superior Court in 1992 after nearly twenty years in private practice in Los Angeles. Justice Neal served for several years as Chair of the Superior Court's Alternative Dispute Resolution Committee and oversaw implementation in Los Angeles County of the pilot civil action mediation program mandated by Code of Civil Procedure Section 1775 et seq.

§ 36.15 When Compulsory Arbitration Required

[1] In Large Superior Courts

In each superior court with 18 or more judges, nonexempt unlimited civil cases must be submitted to arbitration pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.10 et seq. [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.810 et seq.], if the amount in controversy in the opinion of the court will not exceed $50,000 for each plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.811(a)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. § 85 et seq. (defining "unlimited civil case" and "limited civil case")]. These superior courts include those in Alameda, Contra Costa, Fresno, Kern, Los Angeles, Monterey, Orange, Riverside, Sacramento, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Francisco, San Joaquin, San Mateo, Santa Barbara, Santa Clara, and Ventura Counties [Gov. Code §§ 69580, 69582, 69583, 69585, 69586, 69590-69596, 69599-69600, 69606].

PRACTICE TIP:

Flexibility in Ordering Arbitration. Although the statute indicates that in Superior Courts with 10 or more judges all nonexempt unlimited civil cases must submitted to arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.10, the actual practice does not conform to this requirement. Even before the alternative mediation process [for discussion, see Ch. 37, Judicially Mandated Civil Action Mediation] became available, courts exercised discretion, declining to order arbitration in cases where the procedure did not appear to yield any benefit. With the advent of judicially mandated mediation, the court now has available (in counties which have the procedure) an alternative. And, a judge ordering a judicially mandated mediation is forbidden to later order the same case to judicially mandated arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.4]. Thus, counsel should be prepared to argue at the status conference why the case is better suited for one process or the other or is not suitable for either. Hon. Richard C. Neal

[2] By Local Rule

[a] In General

In each superior court with fewer than 18 judges, local rules may provide that when it is in the best interests of justice, all nonexempt unlimited civil cases must be submitted to arbitration if the amount in controversy in the opinion of the court will not exceed $50,000 for each plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.811(a)(2); see Code Civ. Proc. § 85 et seq. (defining "limited civil case" and "unlimited civil case"); see also § 36.19[1], [2]].

Each superior court may provide by local rule, when it is determined to be in the best interests of justice, that all nonexempt limited civil cases must be submitted to arbitration by the presiding judge or other designated judge [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(c); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.811(a)(3); see Code Civ. Proc. § 85 et seq. (defining "limited civil case")]. This rule does not apply to any action maintained pursuant to the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(c)]:

- Civ. Code § 1781 (Consumers Legal Remedies Act).
- Code Civ. Proc. § 116.210 (small claims court).
- Code Civ. Proc. § 1161 (unlawful detainer).

[b] Motor Vehicle Collisions

[i] To Be Submitted to Arbitration Within 120 Days of Answer

In each court that has adopted judicial arbitration pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(c), all limited civil cases that involve a claim for money damages against a single defendant [see [ii], below] as a result of a motor vehicle collision, except those heard in the small claims division, must be submitted to arbitration within 120 days of the filing of the defendant's answer to the complaint (except as extended by the court for good cause) before an arbitrator selected by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(d); see Code Civ. Proc. § 85 et seq. (defining "limited civil case"); see § 36.22].

[ii] Definition of "Single Defendant"

For purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(d), the term "single defendant" means any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(d)]:

- An individual defendant, whether a person or an entity.
- Two or more persons covered by the same insurance policy applicable to the motor vehicle collision.
- Two or more persons residing in the same household when no insurance policy exists that is applicable to the motor vehicle collision.

If a party files a cross compliant naming one or more cross defendants who are not plaintiffs, the case constitutes a multiple-defendant case not subject to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(d) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(d)].

[iii] Case Questionnaires

The court may provide by local rule for the voluntary or mandatory use of case questionnaires, established under Code Civ. Proc. § 93, in any proceeding subject to mandatory arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(d). When local rules provide for the use of case questionnaires, the questionnaires must be exchanged by the parties on the defendant's answer, and completed and returned within 60 days [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(d); for an illustration of the Judicial Council form of case questionnaire, see Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases, § 345A.100].

[3] Civil Action Mediation

Code Civ. Proc. § 1775 et seq. establishes a pilot project in Los Angeles County, and in other counties which elect to apply it, under which courts may refer cases to mediation as an alternative to judicial arbitration [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1775.2, 1775.4]. For discussion and illustrations of related Judicial Council forms, see Ch. 37, Judicially Mandated Civil Action Mediation .

Justice Neal served for several years as Chair of the Superior Court's Alternative Dispute Resolution Committee and oversaw implementation in Los Angeles County of the pilot civil action mediation program mandated by Code of Civil Procedure Section 1775 et seq.

§ 36.16 Arbitration by Stipulation or by Plaintiff's Election

[1] Stipulation

The parties may stipulate to have any action submitted to judicial arbitration, regardless of the amount in controversy [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.12(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.811(a)(4); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.26 (nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.10 et seq. prevents arbitration award in excess of $50,000)]. For a form of stipulation and discussion of matters relating to the arbitration proceedings that may be included in the stipulation, see § 36.70].

A stipulation for arbitration must be filed with the court no later than the time the initial case management statement is filed, unless the court orders otherwise [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.812(a)].

When the parties stipulate to arbitration, the case must be set for arbitration forthwith [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.812(a); see § 36.19[3], [4]].

[2] Plaintiff's Election

The plaintiff may elect for any case to be submitted to judicial arbitration if he or she agrees that the arbitration award will not exceed $50,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.12(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.811(a)(5)]. If there is more than one plaintiff, each plaintiff must file the election and agree that the arbitration award will not exceed $50,000 as to that plaintiff [Cal. Rules of Ct. Rule 3.811(a)(5); for a form of election, see § 36.71].

The election must be filed no later than the time the initial case management statement is filed, unless the court orders otherwise. Upon written election of all plaintiffs to submit a case to arbitration, the case must be set for arbitration forthwith, subject to a motion by defendant for good cause to delay the arbitration hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule

3.812(b)].

If a case in which all plaintiffs have elected to arbitrate involves a cross-complaint, that case must be removed from the list of cases assigned to arbitration if the court determines that the amount in controversy on the cross complaint involves more than $50,000. The motion must be made within 15 days of notice of the election [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.812(c)].

- Actions that include a prayer for equitable relief that is not frivolous or insubstantial [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.13; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.811(b)(1)].

- Proceedings under the Family Law Act except as provided in Fam. Code § 2554 (character, valuation, and division of property) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.811(b)(5); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.15].

- Any case otherwise subject to arbitration that is found by the court to not be amenable to arbitration on the ground that arbitration would not reduce the probable time and expense necessary to resolve the litigation [*Cal. - Any category of cases otherwise subject to arbitration but which are excluded by local rule as not being amenable to arbitration on the ground that under the circumstances relating to the particular court, arbitration of that category of cases would not reduce the probable time and expense necessary to resolve the litigation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.811(b)(7); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.15].

- Cases involving multiple causes of action or a cross complaint if the court determines that the amount in controversy as to any given cause of action or cross complaint exceeds $50,000 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.811(b)(8); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.15].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

4-36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 36.18

AUTHOR: Hon. Richard C. Neal Editorial Consultant Richard C. Neal is an Associate Justice, California Court of Appeal, Second District. He was appointed to the Los Angeles Superior Court in 1992 after nearly twenty years in private practice in Los Angeles. Justice Neal served for several years as Chair of the Superior Court's Alternative Dispute Resolution Committee and oversaw implementation in Los Angeles County of the pilot civil action mediation program mandated by Code of Civil Procedure Section 1775 et seq.

§ 36.18 Determination Regarding Judicial Arbitration at Case Management Conference

In courts having a judicial arbitration program under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.10 et seq., at the time of the case management conference, the court must review the case and determine if it is suitable for judicial arbitration [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.722(a), 3.727(6)]. Also at the case management conference, the parties must address, and the court must take appropriate action with respect to whether the parties have stipulated to, or the case should be referred to, judicial arbitration or any other form of alternative dispute resolution (ADR), and if so, the date by which the ADR must be completed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.727(6)].

No later than 30 calendar days before the date set for the case management conference, the parties must meet and confer, in person or by phone, to consider, among other things, whether the parties wish to stipulate to, or the case should be referred to, judicial arbitration or any other form of alternative dispute resolution, and if so, the date by which the ADR must be completed, as well as possible settlement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.724, 3.727(6)]. If all the parties agree to an ADR process, they must jointly complete the form of ADR stipulation served with the complaint in accordance with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.221 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.726]. For an illustrative form of ADR stipulation, see § 36.70. The parties must also complete a mandatory case management statement 15 calendar days before the date set for the case management conference [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.725; see generally, Ch. 425, Pretrial Proceedings].

If, at the case management conference, the court determines to refer the case to judicial arbitration or some other form of ADR, the case management order will reflect that, together with a date for completion of the arbitration process or other form of ADR [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.728(1), (2)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

4-36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 36.19

AUTHOR: Hon. Richard C. Neal Editorial Consultant Richard C. Neal is an Associate Justice, California Court of Appeal, Second District. He was appointed to the Los Angeles Superior Court in 1992 after nearly twenty years in private practice in Los Angeles. Justice Neal served for several years as Chair of the Superior Court's Alternative Dispute Resolution Committee and oversaw implementation in Los Angeles County of the pilot civil action mediation program mandated by Code of Civil Procedure Section 1775 et seq.

§ 36.19 Determination of Amount in Controversy

[1] Procedure

The determination of the amount in controversy is made by the court and the case referred to arbitration at the first case management conference or review under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.720 et seq. that takes place after all named parties have appeared or defaulted [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.812(d); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.720 et seq. (discussed at § 36.18, above)]. The determination is made at that case management conference or based on review of the written submissions of the parties, as provided in rules adopted by the Judicial Council. At that time the court also makes a determination whether any prayer for equitable relief is frivolous or insubstantial. The determination of the amount in controversy and whether any prayer for equitable relief is frivolous or insubstantial may not be appealable. However, the foregoing determinations need not be made if all parties stipulate in writing that the amount in controversy exceeds $50,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.812(d); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 367.5(b)(1) (unless court has determined otherwise, party who has given notice, made good faith attempt to meet and confer before conference, and filed case management statement may appear by telephone)].

[2] Basis for Determination

The determination of the amount in controversy is based on the total amount of damages; the judge may not consider questions of liability or comparative negligence or other defenses [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(a)]. Discretion is assigned to the court to make a practical assessment of the maximum damages recoverable. If the amount in controversy is disputed, the parties should offer representations in the nature of an offer of proof of damages. The court can form an opinion based on these representations, akin to opening statements concerning what the admissible evidence revealed in discovery will show with respect to potential damages [Sharples v. Chole (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1213, 1219, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 208] .

The determination and any stipulation of the amount in controversy are without prejudice to any finding on the value of the case by an arbitrator or in a subsequent trial de novo [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(b)].

The court will make no determination of an amount in controversy if all parties stipulate in writing that the amount in controversy exceeds $50,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(a)].

Neither the court's determination of the amount in controversy nor the court's determination whether a prayer for equitable relief is frivolous or insubstantial is appealable [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11; but see Sharples v. Chole (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1213, 1220, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 208 (court failed to exercise, or abused, its discretion in determining amount in controversy)].

[3] Setting Action for Arbitration

Absent a stipulation or an election by all plaintiffs to submit the case to arbitration, the case must be set for arbitration when the court determines that the amount in controversy does not exceed $50,000. That determination must be made at the first cases management conference or review under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.720 et seq. that takes place after all named parties have appeared or defaulted [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.812(d); see [2], above; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.817 (times when hearings must or may not be set, discussed at § 36.23)].

[4] Earliest Time for Arbitration Hearing

Except as provided below, the arbitration hearing may not be held until 210 days after the filing of the complaint, or 240 days after the filing of a complaint if the parties have stipulated to a continuance pursuant to Gov. Code § 68616(d). A case must be submitted to arbitration at an earlier time on any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(c); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.817 (times when hearings must or may not be set, discussed at § 36.23)]:

- The stipulation of the parties to an earlier arbitration hearing.

- The written request of all plaintiffs, subject to a motion by a defendant for good cause shown to delay the arbitration hearing.

- An order of the court if the parties have stipulated, or the court has ordered under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.24, that discovery other than that permitted under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.010 et seq. will be permitted after the arbitration award is rendered.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

4-36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 36.20

AUTHOR: Hon. Richard C. Neal Editorial Consultant Richard C. Neal is an Associate Justice, California Court of Appeal, Second District. He was appointed to the Los Angeles Superior Court in 1992 after nearly twenty years in private practice in Los Angeles. Justice Neal served for several years as Chair of the Superior Court's Alternative Dispute Resolution Committee and oversaw implementation in Los Angeles County of the pilot civil action mediation program mandated by Code of Civil Procedure Section 1775 et seq.

§ 36.20 Panel of Arbitrators

[1] Supervision by Administrator

A panel of arbitrators, supervised by an arbitration administrator, exists in each court in which arbitration proceedings in lieu of trial are held. Members of the panel must be retired judges, retired court commissioners who were licensed to practice law prior to their appointment as a commissioner, and members of the State Bar, and sit individually. A judge may also serve as an arbitrator without compensation. People who are not attorneys may serve as arbitrators on the stipulation of all parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.813-3.814].

In a case submitted to arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11 or 1141.12, an arbitrator must be assigned within 30 days from the time of submission to arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(c)].

[2] Compensation

Compensation for arbitrators, unless waived in whole or in part, may not be less than $150 per case, or $150 per day, whichever is greater. A superior court may set a higher level of compensation for that court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(b)]. In Los Angeles County, there are two panels: one of paid arbitrators and one of arbitrators who are less experienced and volunteer their services.

Before a fee may be paid to the arbitrator, the arbitrator must have timely filed his or her award with the clerk of the court in accordance with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.825(b) or the parties must have settled the case and filed notice of settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.819(a)]. The arbitrator's fee statement must be submitted to the administrator promptly on the completion of the arbitrator's duties. The statement must set forth the title and number of the cause arbitrated, the date of the hearing, and the date the award or settlement was filed [Cal.

Rules of Ct., Rule 3.819(c)].

If the arbitrator devoted a substantial amount of time to a case that was settled without a hearing, or if the award was not timely filed, the court may for good cause authorize payment of a fee on the arbitrator's verified ex parte application [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.819(b)].

[3] Powers of Arbitrators

Arbitrators approved to serve in arbitration hearings may administer oaths or affirmations to witnesses and take adjournments on the request of a party or on the arbitrator's own initiative when deemed necessary. The arbitrator also has the power to do the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.824(a)];

- Permit testimony to be offered by deposition.
- Permit evidence to be offered and introduced as provided in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.810 et seq, [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.823, discussed under § 36.29[2]].
- Rule on the admissibility and relevancy of evidence offered by the parties to a case.
- Invite the parties, on reasonable notice, to submit trial briefs.
- Decide the law and facts of the case and make an award accordingly.
- Award costs, not to exceed the statutory costs of the suit.
- Examine any site or object relevant to the case.

All other questions arising out of the case are reserved to the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.824(a)].

[4] Immunity of Arbitrators

Until the end of 1996, arbitrators were granted immunity from civil liability by former Code Civ. Proc. § 1280.1 to the same extent as judicial officers. That immunity supplemented, and did not supplant, any otherwise applicable common law or statutory immunity [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1280.1 (automatically repealed January 1, 1997); see also Olson v. NASD (8th Cir. 1996) 85 F.3d 381, 382-383 (recognizing immunity in absence of statute)]. Since repeal of former Code Civ. Proc. § 1280.1, common law governs arbitral immunity, and is discussed at Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Hearing, § 33.30.

This common law immunity extends to any sponsoring organization [Stasz v. Charles R. Schwab (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 420, 433] .

Justice Neal served for several years as Chair of the Superior Court's Alternative Dispute Resolution Committee and oversaw implementation in Los Angeles County of the pilot civil action mediation program mandated by Code of Civil Procedure Section 1775 et seq.

§ 36.21 Selection of Arbitrator

[1] When No Local Rules Have Been Promulgated

Unless the arbitrator has been designated by stipulation of the parties [for form, see § 36.70], or the court has local rules or procedures for the selection of the arbitrator, within 15 days after the case is set for arbitration [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.812, discussed at § 36.19[3], [4], above], the administrator must determine the number of clearly adverse sides in the case and select a number of names of arbitrators from the panel equal to the number of sides, plus one. The administrator mails the list of randomly selected names to counsel for each party. Each side has 10 days from the date of the mailing to file a rejection, in writing, of no more than one name on the list. If there are two or more parties on a side, they must join in the rejection of a single name. Promptly on expiration of the 10-day period, the administrator must appoint, at random, one of the persons on the list whose name was not rejected, if more than one name remains. The administrator must assign the case to the arbitrator appointed and must give notice of the appointment to the arbitrator and to all parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815(b)]. In the absence of a cross-complaint bringing in a new party, the administrator may assume there are two sides. A dispute as to the number or identity of sides must be decided by the presiding judge in the same manner as disputes determining sides entitled to peremptory challenges of jurors [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815(b)(1)].

[2] In Accordance With Local Rules

In lieu of selection in accordance with the California Rules of Court [see [1], above], a court having an arbitration program may, by local rule or by procedures adopted by its ADR committee, establish any fair method of selecting an arbitrator that does both of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815(c)]:

- Affords each side an opportunity to challenge at least one listed arbitrator peremptorily.

- Ensures that an arbitrator is appointed within 30 days from the submission of the case to arbitration.

The local rule or procedure may require that all steps leading to the selection of the arbitrator take place during or immediately following the case management conference or review under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.720 et seq. at which the court determines the amount in controversy and the suitability of the case for arbitration (discussed under § 36.19) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815(c)].

[3] When First Arbitrator Chosen Declines to Serve

If the first arbitrator selected declines to serve, the administrator must vacate the appointment of that arbitrator and either [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815(d)]:

- Return the case to the top of the arbitration hearing list, restore the arbitrator's name to the list of those available for selection to hear cases, and appoint a new arbitrator, or

- Certify the case to the court [see [4], below].

[4] When Second Arbitrator Chosen Declines to Serve

If the second arbitrator selected declines to serve, the administrator must certify the case to the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815(e)].

If the case is certified to the court under either Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815(d) or (e), the court must hold a case management conference. If the inability to hold an arbitration hearing is due to the neglect or lack of cooperation of a party who elected or stipulated to arbitration, the court may set the case for trial and may make any other appropriate orders. In all other circumstances, the court may reassign the case to arbitration or make any other appropriate orders to expedite disposition of the case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815(f)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Selection in Los Angeles ADR Office. In Los Angeles County Superior Court, selections of arbitrators are typically made during a visit by counsel to the ADR Office immediately following the morning status conference at which the order to arbitrate is issued. The ADR Office presents counsel with a list of seven candidates, and biographical information, and counsel then choose either by agreement or striking names from the list in alternation. Hon. Richard C. Neal

§ 36.22 Disqualification of Arbitrator

[1] Request by Party

Any party may request the disqualification of the arbitrator selected for his or her case on the grounds and by the procedures specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 (disqualification of judge for cause) or Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 (peremptory challenge for prejudice) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(d)].

A party must make any request for Section 170.6 peremptory disqualification within five days of the naming of the arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(d)].

On any party's motion [for form, see § 36.77], made as promptly as possible under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 and Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(d), before the conclusion of arbitration proceedings, the appointment of an arbitrator to a case is to be vacated if the court finds that the party has demanded that the arbitrator disqualify himself or herself and the arbitrator has failed to do so and any of the grounds for disqualification specified in Section 170.1 exists [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.816(d)].

For discussion of grounds and procedures for disqualification under Section 170.1 and Section 170.6, see Ch. 317, Judges , Pts. III and IV, respectively.

[1A] Disclosures Required of Arbitrator

In addition to any other disclosure required by law, no later than five days before the deadline for parties to file a motion for disqualification of the arbitrator under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 or, if the arbitrator is not aware of his or her appointment or of a matter subject to disclosure at that time, as soon as practicable thereafter, an arbitrator must disclose to the parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.816(b)]:

- Any matter subject to disclosure under subdivisions (D)(5)(a) and (D)(5)(b) of canon 6 of the Code of Judicial Ethics [see Cal. Rules of Ct, Appendix: Judicial Code of Ethics]; and

- Any significant personal or professional relationship the arbitrator has or has had with a party, attorney, or law firm in the instant case, including the number and nature of any other proceedings in the past 24 months in which the arbitrator has been privately compensated by a party, attorney, law firm, or insurance company in the instant case for any services, including, but not limited to, service as an attorney, expert witness, or consultant or as a judge, referee, arbitrator, mediator, settlement facilitator, or other alternative dispute resolution neutral.

Canon 6(D)(5)(a) relates to information that is reasonably relevant to the issue of disqualification even though the arbitrator concludes there is no actual basis for disqualification. Canon 6(D)(5)(b) relates to membership in any organization that practices invidious discrimination, with the exception of certain religious, military and youth organizations.

[2] Duty of Arbitrator

An arbitrator must disqualify himself or herself, on the demand of any party to the arbitration made before the conclusion of the arbitration proceedings on any of the disqualification for cause grounds specified in Section 170.1 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(d)]. Moreover, the arbitrator has the duty of determining whether any cause exists for disqualification under Section 170.1 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.816(a)].

The arbitrator is disqualified if any member of his or her law firm would be disqualified under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(2), which applies when the judge served as a lawyer in the proceeding, or in any other proceeding involving the same issues he or she served as a lawyer for any party in the present proceeding or gave advice to any party in the present proceeding on any matter involved in the action or proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.816(a)].

Unless the ground for disqualification is disclosed to the parties in writing and is expressly waived by all parties in writing, the arbitrator must promptly notify the administrator of any known ground for disqualification and another arbitrator will be selected in the case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.816(a)].

§ 36.23 Setting Arbitration Hearing Date and Location

Within 15 days after the appointment of the arbitrator, the arbitrator must set the time, date, and place of the arbitration hearing and give notice in writing to each party and to the administrator of the time, date, and place set [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.817(a)]. Except on the agreement of all parties and the arbitrator, the arbitration hearing date must not be set earlier than 30 days after the arbitrator sent the notice of the hearing under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.817(a) or on Saturdays, Sundays, or legal holidays [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.817(b); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(c), discussed at § 36.19[4]].

[1] Vacation of Appointment

If the arbitrator fails to complete a hearing within 90 days after the date of the assignment of the case to him or her, including any time due to continuances granted under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.818, the administrator must certify the case to the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815(e); see [2], below]. § 36.25 Continuances of Arbitration Hearing Dates

Except as noted below, the parties may stipulate to a continuance in the case, with the assigned arbitrator's consent. The arbitrator is required to consent to a request for a continuance if it appears that good cause exists. Notice of the continuance must be sent to the ADR administrator [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.818(a)]. If the arbitrator declines to consent, the court may grant the continuance on a party's motion for good cause shown [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.818(b); for forms, see § 36.78]. If the court grants the motion, the party who requested the continuance must notify the arbitrator, who must reschedule the hearing, giving notice to all the parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.818(b)].

An arbitration hearing is not to be continued to a date later than 90 days after the assignment of the case to the arbitrator, including any time due to continuances granted under Rule 3.818, except by court order on a party's motion as provided in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.818(b) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.818(c); for forms see § 36.78].

§ 36.26 Representation by Counsel at Arbitration Hearing

A party to the arbitration has a right to be represented by an attorney at any proceeding or hearing in arbitration but may waive this right. A waiver of this right may be revoked, but if revoked, the other party is entitled to a reasonable continuance for the purpose of obtaining counsel [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.821(a)].

§ 36.27 Discovery

[1] Authorized

The parties to the arbitration proceeding have the right to take depositions and to obtain discovery, with the same rights, remedies, and procedures, and subject to all of the same duties, liabilities, and obligations as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985-2036.050. All discovery must be completed at least 15 days before the date set for the arbitration hearing unless the court, on a showing of good cause, grants an extension of the time within which discovery must be completed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.822].

PRACTICE TIP:

Status of Discovery as Factor in Determining Whether to Seek Arbitration or Mediation. Note that completion of discovery is not a requirement for judicially mandated mediation. This is one consideration in determining whether to seek an order of arbitration or mediation. Hon. Richard C. Neal

Despite this restriction, postarbitration discovery, other than the exchange of information regarding expert trial witness [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.010 et seq.], is permitted only by the parties' stipulation or by a court order made on good cause shown [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.24; for discussion, see § 36.35].

[2] Punitive Damages Evidence

In a judicial arbitration proceeding, no party may require the production of evidence of either of the following, unless the court enters an order permitting its pretrial discovery pursuant to Civ. Code § 3295(c) [Civ. Code § 3295(a); Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.19.5]:

- The profits the defendant has gained by virtue of the wrongful course of conduct of the nature and type shown by the evidence.

- The defendant's financial condition.

§ 36.28 Communication With Arbitrator

An arbitrator must not initiate, permit, or consider any ex parte communications or consider other communications made to the arbitrator outside the presence of all of the parties concerning a pending arbitration, except as follows [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.820(b)]:

- An arbitrator may communicate with a party in the absence of other parties about administrative matters, such as setting the time and place of hearings or making other arrangements for the conduct of the proceedings, as long as the arbitrator reasonably believes that the communication will not result in a procedural or tactical advantage for any party. When such a discussion occurs, the arbitrator must promptly inform the other parties of the communication and must give the other parties an opportunity to respond before making any final determination concerning the matter discussed.

- An arbitrator may initiate or consider any ex parte communication when expressly authorized by law to do so.

In addition, no disclosure of any offers of settlement made by any party may be made to the arbitrator prior to the filing of the award [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.820(a)].

§ 36.29 Arbitration Hearing

[1] Absence of Party at Hearing

The arbitration may proceed in the absence of any party, who, after due notice, fails to be present and to obtain a continuance of the hearing [see discussion under § 36.25]. An award must not be based solely on a party's absence. If defendant defaults, the arbitrator must require the plaintiff to submit such evidence as may be appropriate for the making of an arbitration award [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.821(b)].

[2] Rules of Evidence

[a] Generally as in Civil Actions

The rules of evidence governing civil cases apply to the conduct of arbitration hearings, with the exceptions discussed in [b]-[d], below [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.823(b)].

[b] Expert Reports, Police Reports, and Business Records

[i] Admissibility

Any party may offer the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.823(b)(1)]:

- Written reports of any expert witness.
- Medical records and bills (including physiotherapy, nursing, and prescription bills).

- Documentary evidence of loss of income.
- Property damage repair bills or estimates.
- Police reports concerning an accident that gave rise to the case.
- Other bills and invoices, purchase orders, checks, written contracts, and similar documents prepared and maintained in the ordinary course of business.

[ii] Procedure; Delivery to Other Parties

The arbitrator is required to receive the type of documents listed in [i], above, in evidence if copies have been delivered to all opposing parties at least 20 days before the hearing. Any other party may subpoena the author or custodian of the document as a witness and examine the witness as if under cross-examination. Any repair estimate offered as an exhibit, and the copies delivered to opposing parties, must be accompanied by the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.823(b)(1)]:

- A statement indicating whether or not the property was repaired, and, if it was, whether the estimated repairs were made in full or in part.
- A copy of the receipted bill showing the items of repair made and the amount paid.

The arbitrator must not consider any opinion as to ultimate fault expressed in a police report [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.823(b)(1)].

[c] Other Written Statements

The written statement of any other witness may be offered and must be received in evidence if the following requirements are met [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.823(b)(2)]:

- They are made by declaration under penalty of perjury.
- Copies have been delivered to all opposing parties at least 20 days before the hearing.
- No opposing party has, at least 10 days before the hearing, delivered to the proponent of the evidence a written demand that the witness be produced in person to testify at the hearing.

The arbitrator must disregard any portion of a statement received under this rule that would be inadmissible if the witness were testifying in person, but the inclusion of inadmissible matter does not render the entire statement inadmissible [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.823(b)(2)].

[d] Depositions

The deposition of any witness may be offered by any party and is to be received in evidence, subject to objections available under Code of Civ. Proc. § 2025.410 (relating to errors in deposition notices), even if the deponent is not

"unavailable as a witness" within the meaning of Evid. Code § 240 and no exceptional circumstances exist, if both of the following requirements are met [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.823(b)(3)]:

- The deposition was taken in the manner provided for by law or by stipulation of the parties and within the time provided for in these rules.

- Not less than 20 days before the hearing the proponent of the deposition delivered to all opposing parties notice of intention to offer the deposition in evidence. For the definition of "delivery," see [e], below.

The opposing party, on receiving the notice, may subpoena the deponent and, at the arbitrator's discretion, either the deposition may be excluded from evidence or the deposition may be admitted and the deponent may be further cross-examined by the subpoenaing party. These limitations do not apply to a deposition admissible under the terms of Code Civ. Proc. § 2025.620, which governs the admissibility of depositions at trials and hearings generally [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.823(b)(3)].

[e] "Delivery" Defined

For purposes of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.823, "delivery" of a document or notice may be accomplished manually or by mail in the manner provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 1013. If service is by mail, the times prescribed in this rule for delivery of documents, notices, and demands are increased by five days [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.823(d)]. For discussion of notice, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[3] Compelling Attendance of Witnesses; Subpoenas

Subpoenas may be issued for the attendance of witnesses at arbitration hearings as provided in the Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985-2015.6. The party requesting the subpoena must modify the form of subpoena so as to show that the appearance is before an arbitrator, and to give the time and place set for the arbitration hearing. At the arbitrator's discretion, nonappearance of a properly subpoenaed witness may be a ground for an adjournment or continuance of the hearing. If any witness properly served with a subpoena fails to appear at the arbitration hearing or, having appeared, refuses to be sworn or to answer, proceedings to compel compliance with the subpoena on penalty of contempt may be had before the superior court as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1991 for other instances of refusal to appear and answer before an officer or commissioner out of court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.823(c)]. For further discussion and forms, see Ch. 535, Subpoena .

[4] Presence of Arbitrators and Parties When Evidence Is Taken

All evidence is required to be taken in the presence of the arbitrator and all parties, except when any of the parties has waived the right to be present or is absent after due notice of the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.823(a)].

[5] Recording of Hearings

The arbitrator may, but is not required to, make a record of the proceedings. Any record of the proceedings made by or at the direction of the arbitrator is deemed the arbitrator's personal notes and is not subject to discovery. The arbitrator may not deliver them to any party in the case or to any other person, except to an employee using the records/notes under the arbitrator's supervision or pursuant to a subpoena issued in a criminal investigation or prosecution for perjury. No other record may be made of the hearing and the arbitrator must not permit the presence of a stenographer or court reporter or the use of any recording device at the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.824(b)].

Chapter 36 JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

4-36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 36.30

AUTHOR: Hon. Richard C. Neal Editorial Consultant Richard C. Neal is an Associate Justice, California Court of Appeal, Second District. He was appointed to the Los Angeles Superior Court in 1992 after nearly twenty years in private practice in Los Angeles. Justice Neal served for several years as Chair of the Superior Court's Alternative Dispute Resolution Committee and oversaw implementation in Los Angeles County of the pilot civil action mediation program mandated by Code of Civil Procedure Section 1775 et seq.

§ 36.30 Arbitration Award

[1] Entry as Judgment

[a] Filing the Award

Within 10 days after the conclusion of the arbitration hearing, the arbitrator must file his or her award with the clerk, with proof of service on each party to the arbitration. On the arbitrator's application in cases of unusual length or complexity, the court may allow up to 20 additional days for the filing and service of the award [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.825(b)(1)].

Within the time for filing the award the arbitrator may file and serve an amended award [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.825(b)(2)].

The 10-day filing rule is directory only and not jurisdictional [Koll Hancock Torrey Pines v. Biophysica Foundation, Inc. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 883, 885-886, 264 Cal. Rptr. 36 (arbitration award filed five days later than 10-day requirement was not invalid; arbitrator did not lose jurisdiction to file award when 10-day period expired)].

[b] Contents of Award

The arbitration award is required to be in writing, signed by the arbitrator, and filed in the court in which the action is pending [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.23; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.825(a)].

It is required to determine all issues properly raised by the pleadings, including a determination of any damages and award of costs if appropriate, but the arbitrator is not required to make findings of fact or conclusions of law [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.825(a)].

[c] Finality of Award

An arbitration award is final unless a request for a de novo trial [see § 36.34] is filed within 30 days after the date the arbitrator files the award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20(a)]. If there is no request for a de novo trial and the award is not vacated [see § 36.31], the award is to be entered in the judgment book in the amount of the award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.23; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.827(a) (on expiration of 30-day period after award is filed, clerk enters award as judgment if no party has, during that period, served and filed request for trial)]. Promptly on entry of the award as a judgment the clerk must mail notice of entry of judgment to all parties who have appeared in the case and execute a certificate of mailing and place it in the court's file in the case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.827(b)]. The award has the same force and effect as a judgment in any civil action or proceeding except that it is not subject to appeal and it may not be attacked or set aside except as provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 473 or 1286.2, or Judicial Council rule, discussed at [4], below [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.22-1141.23; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.827(c)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Imperative to File Request for Trial de Novo in Case of Any Doubt Regarding Award. If counsel has any doubt at all about the propriety or correctness of the award, the conduct of the arbitrator, or any other dissatisfaction with the proceeding, it is imperative to file a request for trial de novo [see § 36.34]. While awards reduced to judgment may be attacked, the grounds are limited, and the threshold for success high [see [4], below]. In contrast, no grounds whatsoever are necessary in order to avoid the entry of judgment by filing a request for trial de novo. Hon. Richard C. Neal

The judgment so entered may be enforced as if it had been rendered by the court in which it is entered [Cal. Rules of Ct, Rule 3.827(c)].

[2] Service of Notice of Award

For a filing of an arbitration award to be effective actual service on the parties is required; until a party is actually served with notice of the award, the 30-day period within which a request for a trial de novo may be filed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826(a) does not begin to run, and the court is without jurisdiction to enter the award as a judgment [Oats v. Oats (l983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 416, 420-421, 196 Cal. Rptr. 20] .

[3] Costs Recoverable by Prevailing Party

An arbitration award has the same force and effect as a judgment in a civil action or proceeding, and is subject to all provisions of law relating to a civil judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.23; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.827(c)]. Accordingly, the prevailing party is entitled to recover costs as a matter of right [Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.825(a)]. If the arbitrator's award does not mention costs, it is appropriate for the prevailing party to file a memorandum of costs pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1700 [Guevara v. Brand (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 995, 997, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 780] .

For discussion and forms relating to costs, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees .

[4] Attack by Appeal or Otherwise

The arbitration award, after it is entered as a judgment, is subject to all provisions of law relating to a judgment in a civil action or proceeding, except that it is not, other than as noted below, subject to appeal and may not be attacked or set aside except as provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 473 or 1286.2, or Judicial Council rule [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.23; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.827(c); see also Pierson v. Honda (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1411, 1415, 240 Cal. Rptr. 148 (court without jurisdiction to modify arbitration award by granting setoff against it)]. For discussion of Section 473 motions, see § 36.32. For discussion of Section 1286.2 motions, see § 36.31.

A judgment on an arbitration award is appealable as to pre-arbitration judicial rulings on claims not submitted to arbitration which are independent of the arbitrated claim [Jennings v. Marralle (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 121, 129, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 275, 876 P.2d 1074] .

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(a) limits the grounds on which a judicial arbitration award may be vacated to the fact that the arbitrator was subject to a disqualification not disclosed before the hearing and of which the arbitrator was then aware [compare Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(6)(A) (similar ground for vacating contractual arbitration award)] or to the grounds set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 473 or 1286.2(a)(1)-(3) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.22 (Judicial Council rules shall specify grounds on which arbitrator or court may correct, modify, or vacate award); see § 36.31].

The parties may waive their right to appeal [see Pratt v. Gursey, Schneider & Co. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1105, 1110, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 695 (dismissing appeal because parties' stipulation to arbitrate, though ambiguous as to whether it intended contractual arbitration or judicial arbitration, was clear in express waiver of right to appeal any judgment or order)].

§ 36.31 Motion to Vacate Judgment

A motion to vacate a judgment based on an award may be brought by a party against whom the judgment was entered no later than six months after its entry [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(a)]. Under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(a), an arbitration award may be vacated on the following grounds [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.22 (Judicial Council rules shall specify grounds on which arbitrator or court may correct, modify, or vacate award)]:

- The award was procured by corruption, fraud, or other undue means [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(1)].

- There was corruption in any one of the arbitrators [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(2)].

- The rights of the moving party were substantially prejudiced by misconduct of a neutral arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(3)].

- The arbitrator was subject to a disqualification [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(d)] not disclosed before the hearing and of which the arbitrator was then aware [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(a); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(6) (arbitrator making award either (A) failed to timely disclose ground for disqualification of which he or she was then aware or (B) was subject to disqualification on grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 but failed on receipt of timely demand to disqualify himself or herself as required by that provision); compare Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(d) refers to disqualification under both Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.1 and 170.6)].

The motion to vacate must be heard on notice to the adverse parties and to the arbitrator, and may be granted only on clear and convincing evidence that the grounds alleged are true, and that the motion was made as soon as practicable after the moving party learned of the existence of those grounds [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(b)].

AUTHOR: Hon. Richard C. Neal Editorial Consultant Richard C. Neal is an Associate Justice, California Court of Appeal, Second District. He was appointed to the Los Angeles Superior Court in 1992 after nearly twenty years in private practice in Los Angeles. § 36.32 Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

A party may be relieved of an arbitration award or a judgment entered pursuant to an award on the grounds that it was taken against the party through his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.23, see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. Further, relief is mandatory if it is based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect of the attorney for the party against whom the award was made, even if that neglect is not excusable [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); Yeap v. Leake (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 591, 598-601, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Attorney's Neglect Requires Relief. Plaintiff's attorney failed to calendar the arbitration date; thus, neither plaintiff nor plaintiff's attorney appeared at the arbitration. The arbitrator entered an award that plaintiff recover nothing. After learning of the arbitration and award, plaintiff's attorney further neglected to request a trial de novo until more than 30 days after entry of the award, which by then had been entered as a judgment. Plaintiff moved to set aside the award and vacate the judgment. Did this situation require mandatory relief? Yes. When a plaintiff loses the opportunity to participate in judicial arbitration through the neglect of counsel, the mandatory provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) applies, and the judgment must be vacated [Yeap v. Leake (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 591, 594, 601, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680] .

However, the ordinary situation, after plaintiff has had his or her "day in court" in arbitration, will not come within the mandatory provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), which was applied to a judgment based on the "default" arbitration award in Yeap v. Leake (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 591, 594, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680 , but within the general rule expressed in Ayala v. Southwest Leasing & Rental, Inc. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 40, 44-45, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 637 , that there is no mandatory relief for negligence which consists of failing to timely request a trial de novo after there has been an arbitration hearing in which the plaintiff and his or her attorney actually participated [Brown v. Williams (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 182, 188-189, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 634] .

ILLUSTRATION:

No Excuse for Failure to Make Timely Request for Trial de Novo. Plaintiff's attorney failed to file a timely request for trial de novo after a defense award in a premises liability case. Some of the time during the 30 days after the award was filed was consumed by plaintiff's attorney seeking an expert witness who could testify as to conditions on the premises. After the expert viewed the premises and made a report, plaintiff's attorney believed there was evidence to meet plaintiff's burden of proof, which the arbitrator indicated had not been done in the arbitration. After the expert's report, 21 days remained within which plaintiff's attorney could have filed timely request for trial de novo, except plaintiff's attorney had changed secretaries, and the notice of award had been lost. After entry of judgment, plaintiff moved to have the judgment set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473. The trial court refused to set aside the judgment. Was plaintiff entitled to mandatory relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)? No. This plaintiff, unlike the plaintiff in Yeap had been through an arbitration and lost. So, Section 473(b)'s mandatory provision did not apply. Under the general discretionary provisions of Section 473, the fact that the attorney had three "excuse-free" weeks to file the request for trial de novo did not warrant setting aside the judgment [Brown v. Williams (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 182, 188-190, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 634] .

The application for relief must be brought within a reasonable time but not exceeding six months after the award or judgment was taken against the party [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For discussion and forms relating to Section 473 motions, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders , Pt. I.

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.23 deprives the parties of an appeal from a judgment properly entered under that section, it does not deprive parties of an appeal from a postjudgment order on a motion to set aside and vacate the judgment [Cabrera v. Plager (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 606, 609-610, 241 Cal. Rptr. 731 (relying on former Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a), (b), now renumbered as Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(1), (a)(2))].

AUTHOR: Hon. Richard C. Neal Editorial Consultant Richard C. Neal is an Associate Justice, California Court of Appeal, Second District. He was appointed to the Los Angeles Superior Court in 1992 after nearly twenty years in private practice in Los Angeles. § 36.33 Appeal Regarding Costs Determined by Trial Court

Although a judgment on a judicial arbitration award is not appealable, an exception exists when the arbitrator's award does not specify the amount of recoverable costs. In that case, because the court determines costs in the first instance, the portion of the court's judgment awarding costs must be appealable; otherwise there would be no opportunity for appellate review. In contrast, if the arbitrator specifies the amount of recoverable costs, the costs portion of the judgment is not appealable because a dissatisfied party can request a trial de novo as to costs and subsequently can obtain review of the costs award on appeal from the court's de novo judgment [Dickens v. Lee (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 985, 987-988, 281 Cal. Rptr. 783] .

AUTHOR: Hon. Richard C. Neal Editorial Consultant Richard C. Neal is an Associate Justice, California Court of Appeal, Second District. He was appointed to the Los Angeles Superior Court in 1992 after nearly twenty years in private practice in Los Angeles. Justice Neal served for several years as Chair of the Superior Court's Alternative Dispute Resolution Committee and oversaw implementation in Los Angeles County of the pilot civil action mediation program mandated by Code of Civil Procedure Section 1775 et seq.

§ 36.34 Trial de Novo

[1] Request for Trial de Novo

[a] Right to and Time for Request

Within 30 days after the arbitration award is filed with the court clerk and prior to its becoming a final judgment, any party to the proceedings may request a trial de novo by filing a request [for form, see § 36.81] with the clerk, along with proof of service on all other parties appearing in the case. A request for trial filed after the parties have been served with a copy of the award by the arbitrator, but before the award has been filed with the clerk, is valid and timely. The 30-day period within which to request the trial may not be extended [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826(a)]. Nor does the trial court have the authority to shorten the time to file a request for a de novo trial [Karamzai v. Digitcom (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 547, 551, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 139] .

Although Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826(a) does not mention service of process of the award as triggering the 30-day period for filing a request for trial de novo, such a requirement may be found [Domingo v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 550, 553-554, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 224 ; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.825(b) (arbitrator required to serve copies of award)]. Thus, if a party is never properly served a copy of the award, the 30-day period does not begin to run until that party actually receives notice of the award [Domingo v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 550, 554, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 224] .

A party's right to a trial de novo following court-ordered arbitration is not lost by failure of the party to participate in the arbitration [see Lyons v. Wickhorst (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 911, 918-919, 231 Cal. Rptr. 738, 727 P.2d 1019] . The failure to participate may, however, result in sanctions [see § 36.36[3]].

[b] Restoration of Case to Civil Active List

When a trial de novo request is received, the case will be restored to the civil active list for prompt disposition, in the same position on the list it would have had if there had been no arbitration in the case [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20(b); Mentzer v. Hardoin (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1365, 1369-1370, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 214 ; see Barna v. Passage 350 Canon (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 440 (trial court must recalendar case sua sponte); but see Robinson v. Superior Court (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 98, 106, 204 Cal. Rptr. 366 (plaintiff who unilaterally elected arbitration and received maximum award as ordinarily not permitted to seek trial de novo)].

If a party makes a timely request for a trial, the case must proceed as provided under an applicable case management order. If no pending order provides for the prosecution of the case after a request for a trial after arbitration, the court must promptly schedule a case management conference [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826(b)].

[c] Rescission of Request for Trial de Novo

A party who requested trial de novo is not permitted to withdraw the request after the 30-day period has expired [Marracino v. Brandstetter (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 543, 546-547, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 700] .

[2] Multiparty Actions

In the mandatory arbitration of a multiparty action, a request for a trial de novo by one plaintiff does not necessarily require that coplaintiffs also retry their cases. If the claim of the plaintiff requesting the trial de novo is distinct from and unaffected by the claims of the coplaintiffs, the court may order a partial trial de novo of that claim alone [Demirgian v. Superior Court (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 372, 374-378, 231 Cal. Rptr. 698 ; but see Dibble v. Superior Court (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 837, 842-844, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671 (criticizing Demirgian as contrary to literal interpretation of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.20, 1141.23; former Rules of Ct., Rules 1615(c), 1616(b), (c) [see now Cal. Rules of Ct. Rules 3.826(b), 3.827(a)]].

The general rule, however, is that if the claims are interdependent, all parties are required to retry their cases even though only one party requests trial de novo [Southern Pacific Transportation Co. v. Mendez Trucking, Inc. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 691, 694-696, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 236 ; Trump v. Superior Court (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 411, 415-417, 173 Cal.Rptr. 403] . Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826(c) provides that after a timely request for trial de novo and restoration of the action to the calendar, "[t]he case shall be tried as though no arbitration proceeding had occurred." Thus, in a multiparty action involving one plaintiff, multiple defendants and a compulsory cross complaint in which all claims and cross claims emanate from a single integrated set of facts and resolution of one factual issue may affect several theories of liability, a request for a partial trial de novo effects a full trial as to all parties and on all issues raised by the pleading [Trump v. Superior Court (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 411, 415-417, 173 Cal. Rptr. 403] . Language in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.20, 1141.23 and former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1615(c), 1616(b), (c) [see now Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.826(b), 3.827(a)] have also been relied on to support the conclusion that the applicable statutes and rules do not contemplate any exception for partial trial de novo, even if partial trial de novo would be more prompt and economical and thus more in keeping with the stated purpose of judicial arbitration [Dibble v. Superior Court (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 837, 842-844, 846-847, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Only One Party Requested Trial De Novo. Plaintiff was injured in a truck accident and sued the owners of both vehicles and the driver of the other vehicle. Both vehicle owners cross-complained against each other for indemnity. The arbitration award was in favor of plaintiff, denied recovery on both cross-complaints, and made no allocation of fault among the co-defendants. Plaintiff requested trial de novo, but settled with both owners/cross-complainants before the scheduled trial date. The cross-complaints never went to trial, and the award was entered as the judgment on the cross complaints.

> Was that correct? No. Appellant's cross complaint for equitable indemnity was necessarily related to plaintiff's complaint against both appellant and respondent; it was not "totally unrelated, both legally and factually" to the complaint. Thus, plaintiff's request for trial de novo vacated the arbitration award in toto and put the entire case at issue [Southern Pacific Transportation Co. v. Mendez Trucking, Inc. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 691, 696, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 236] .

Even if a party attempts to request only a partial trial de novo, the request will operate to vacate the arbitration award in its entirety, and may expose the party seeking trial de novo to liability for costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21 as to the party they sought to exclude from the trial de novo request [Muega v. Menocal (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 868, 876-877, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 697 ; for discussion of section 1141.21, see § 36.36].

[3] Proceedings on Trial de Novo

The case must be tried as though no arbitration proceeding had occurred. No reference may be made during the trial to the arbitration award, to the fact that there had been arbitration proceedings, to the evidence adduced at the arbitration hearing, or to any other aspect of the arbitration proceedings. Nothing that occurred at the arbitration hearing may be used as affirmative evidence, by way of impeachment or for any other purpose at the trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.25; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826(c)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.25 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826(c) appear to be in conflict with Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21 [see § 36.36], which states that if the results of the trial de novo are not more favorable than the results of the arbitration award to the requesting party, the court may order that party to reimburse the county for the compensation paid to the arbitrator. In order to comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21, the court must refer to the arbitrator's findings at some point before entry of judgment. This conflict may be avoided if the phrase "during the trial" is interpreted to mean the portion of the proceeding during which the trier of fact hears the evidence and makes its decision based on that evidence [Weber v. Kessler (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 1033, 1036, 179 Cal. Rptr. 299] . It is imperative that the trial record clearly show that the court's decision as to which party will prevail was reached independently and without any reference to the arbitrator's findings [Weber v. Kessler (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 1033, 1036, 179 Cal. Rptr. 299] .

§ 36.35 Discovery for Trial de Novo

In cases in which the parties were ordered into arbitration by the judge because the case was determined to have an amount in controversy not exceeding $50,000, no discovery other than that permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.010 et seq, (demands to exchange expert witness lists) is permissible after an arbitration award except by leave of court on a showing of good cause or on the stipulation of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.24; see McCormick v. Sentinel Life Ins. Co. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 1030, 1051-1052, 200 Cal. Rptr. 732 (good cause not shown by argument that case was complex or witnesses could not be compelled to testify)].

In determining whether or not good cause for discovery exists, factors the court may want to consider include the following [Regan v. Lanet (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 353, 360-361, 243 Cal. Rptr. 20] :

- The necessity and reasons for the discovery.
- The diligence of the party seeking discovery.
- Whether delay in the trial of the action will result.
- Whether the purposes of arbitration, namely prompt, equitable, and efficient resolution of cases, are being served.
- Whether the party seeking discovery is also the party who requested trial de novo.
- The prejudice and hardship to both parties.

§ 36.36 Assessment of Trial de Novo Costs

[1] Penalty If Award Not More Favorable

[a] Penalty Provision

If the judgment on the trial de novo is not more favorable in either the amount of damages awarded or the type of relief granted for the party electing the trial de novo than the arbitration award, the court will order that party to pay the following nonrefundable costs and fees, unless the court finds in writing and on motion [for forms, see § 36.82] that the imposition of those costs and fees would create such a substantial economic hardship as not to be in the interests of justice [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a), Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826(d); see Sharples v. Chole (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1213, 1221, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 208 (fees not required to be paid where court assignment to arbitration was in error)]:

- To the court, the compensation actually paid to the arbitrator, less any amount paid pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(1)(D), below [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(1)(A)].

- To the other party or parties, costs specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5, with the party electing the trial de novo not recovering his or her costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(1)(B)].

- To the other party or parties, the reasonable costs of the services of expert witnesses, who are not regular employees of any party, actually incurred or reasonably necessary in the preparation or trial of the case [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(1)(C)].

- To the other party or parties, the compensation paid by the other party or parties to the arbitrator pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.28(b) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(1)(D); see § 36.38].

Those costs and fees, other than the compensation of the arbitrator, can include only those incurred from the time of election of the trial de novo [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(2)].

[b] Harmonized With Labor Code Section 3856

Labor Code § 3856 governs allocation between the employer and the employee of a judgment obtained against a negligent third party. Any such judgment is to be used first to pay reasonable litigation expenses incurred in preparation or prosecution of that action, together with a reasonable attorney's fee. Next, the judgment is to be used to reimburse the employer for the amount of compensation paid to the employee. Any remaining portion of the judgment goes to the injured employee.

An employee who obtains a less favorable result against a third party on trial de novo following judicial arbitration, and therefore cannot recover his or her costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(1)(B), may still have the judgment allocated in accordance with Labor Code § 3856, including use of the judgment to pay his or her reasonable litigation expenses and reasonable attorney's fees [Phelps v. Stostad (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 23, 34, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360, 939 P.2d 760 (disapproving dictum to the contrary in Crampton v. Takegoshi (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 308, 319, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 284)].

By their terms, there is no conflict between Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(1)(B) and Labor Code § 3856. They apply to different relationships. The phrase "shall not recover his or her costs" in Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(1)(B) does not preclude a party from using part of a judgment to pay costs incurred during the litigation. A party would "recover his or her costs" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(1)(B) if the trial court were to order the third party tortfeasor to pay those costs in addition to paying the amount of the damages awarded by the judgment [Phelps v. Stostad (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 23, 32-33, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360, 939 P.2d 760] . In determining what litigation expenses and attorney's fees are reasonable within the meaning of Labor Code § 3856, the court may consider whether it was reasonable to request a trial de novo. If, at the time the party elected the trial de novo, there was no reasonable prospect of a recovery significantly greater than the arbitration award, the court could exclude expenses incurred for the trial de novo [Phelps v. Stostad (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 23, 33, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360, 939 P.2d 760] .

[2] Election of Trial de Novo by Two or More Parties

The judicial arbitration statutes do not preclude more than one party per arbitration from electing a trial de novo. If two or more parties do so, each is subject to being held liable for costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21 if unsuccessful in the trial de novo [Boyd v. Oscar Fisher Co. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 368, 382, 258 Cal. Rptr 473] .

[3] Litigant Refused to Participate in Arbitration

If a litigant refused to participate in judicial arbitration as a means of avoiding costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21, the court may award such costs as an element of monetary sanctions authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 [see Lyons v. Wickhorst (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 911, 926, 928, 231 Cal. Rptr. 738, 727 P.2d 1019 (majority of Court on this issue based on two concurring opinions)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 specifically applies only to actions filed or proceedings initiated on or before December 31, 1994. A significantly different statute, Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7, governs sanctions for frivolous and delaying tactics in actions in which the complaint was filed on and after January 1, 1995. Section 128.7 does not expressly apply to judicial arbitration proceedings, and whether or not it will be so applied is an open question [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(i)]. For discussion of sanctions under Sections 128.5 and 128.7, see Ch. 510, Sanctions .

[4] Party Proceeding in Forma Pauperis

If the party electing the trial de novo has proceeded in the action in forma pauperis and has failed to obtain a more favorable judgment, the costs and fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(1)(B), (C) will be imposed only as an offset against any damages awarded in favor of that party [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(b)]. Also, the costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(1)(A) will be imposed only to the extent that there remains a sufficient amount in the judgment after the amount offset under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(b) has been deducted from the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(c)]. For discussion of what costs are covered by the various subsections of Section 1141.21(a), see [1], above.

[5] No Liability If Arbitration Award Exceeds $50,000

No party electing a trial de novo for an arbitration award which exceeded $50,000 will be subject to the cost provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21 if the judgment on the trial de novo is in excess of $50,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.26].

§ 36.37 Dismissal for Delay in Prosecution

[1] Application of Dismissal Statutes to Action Submitted to Judicial Arbitration

A civil action is subject to dismissal for delay in prosecution if it is not brought to trial as follows [see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq.]:

- Dismissal is mandatory if the action is not brought to trial within five years after its commencement against the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310, 583.360].

- Dismissal is discretionary if the action is not brought to trial within two years after its commencement against the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.410, 583.420(a)(2); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1340(a)].

These provisions apply to actions submitted to judicial arbitration as well as to other actions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.120(a) (application of dismissal provisions)].

For discussion and forms relating to dismissal for delay in prosecution generally, see Ch. 212, Dismissal .

[2] Tolling of Dismissal Statutes If Case Is Submitted to Judicial Arbitration

[a] Potential Grounds

Three possible grounds for tolling the five-year mandatory dismissal statute may arise if a case has been submitted to judicial arbitration:

- Submission of an action to arbitration will result in the tolling of the five-year mandatory statute only under the terms of Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17 [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 434, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469 ; for discussion, see [b], below].

- After arbitration, if a trial de novo has been requested, tolling of the mandatory dismissal statute may be implied from Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20 if the court does not properly calendar or recalendar the case [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 434-435, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469 ; for discussion, see [c], below].

- After arbitration, the mandatory dismissal statute may be tolled by impossibility, impracticability, or futility to prosecute the action under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(c) [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 437-438, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469 ; for discussion see [d], below].

Other grounds for tolling the five-year period that are not related to arbitration may also be present in the case. Also, tolling for impossibility, impracticability, or futility may arise from circumstances that are totally unrelated to arbitration of the case. For discussion of these issues, see Ch. 212, Dismissal .

[b] Automatic Tolling Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17

[i] From Four Years Six Months After Filing Action Until Request for Trial de Novo

If an action is or remains submitted to judicial arbitration more than four years and six months after the plaintiff has filed the action, then the following time period is not included in computing the five-year period within which the case must be brought to trial under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310: The time beginning on the date four years and six months after the plaintiff filed the action and ending on the date on which a request for a de novo trial is filed under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17(b); see Santa Monica Hospital Medical Center v. Superior Court (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 1026, 1030 n.1, 250 Cal. Rptr. 384 (computation of five-year period extended under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17(b))].

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17(b), plaintiff has six months from the time the request for trial de novo is made to bring the case to trial [see Drummond v. Murata (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 44, 49, 277 Cal. Rptr. 727 (citing Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17(b) and holding Code Civ. Proc. § 583.350 inapplicable); Marchuk v. Ralphs Grocery Co. (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1273, 1276 n.1, 276 Cal. Rptr. 627 (citing Code Civ. Proc. § 583.350); see also Messih v. Levine (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 454, 458, 278 Cal. Rptr. 825] . "Six months" means six calendar months or 182 days, whichever is longer [Marchuk v. Ralphs Grocery Co. (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1273, 1276 n.2, 276 Cal. Rptr. 627 (reconciling Gov. Code §§ 6803, 6804)].

Section 1141.17 is the only ground under which the submission of an action to judicial arbitration can toll the running of the time periods specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17(a); Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 434-435, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469] . The ruling of Moran v. Superior Court (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 229, 197 Cal. Rptr. 546, 673 P.2d 216 that, based on Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20, the five-year period is automatically tolled from the date a request for trial de novo is filed until the date a new trial is set is no longer tenable under amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17 that occurred after Moran. For discussion of how Section 1141.20 may nonetheless toll the five-year period, see [c], below.

[ii] Earlier Events That May End Tolling

Although the period tolled under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17(b) ends specifically "on the date on which a request for a trial de novo is filed," it may also end earlier, for example, when the arbitration process ends on a party's motion [see, e.g., Invicta Plastics, U.S.A., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 190, 174 Cal. Rptr. 476] . Thus, if a request for a trial de novo is never made because arbitration never occurs, the tolling provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17(b) nevertheless applies so long as the action is or remains submitted to arbitration more than four years and six months after the plaintiff has filed the action.

In this situation, the period tolled ends on the date the case is removed from the arbitration hearing list [Niesner v. Kusch (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 291, 296-297, 230 Cal. Rptr. 613 ; see also Winston v. Woodward (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 361, 367, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126 (tolling period ends on date arbitrator ruled case not amenable to arbitration with directions to restore it to civil active list)].

[iii] Period Tolled Whether Action Is Arbitrated by Election or Under Court Order

The tolling provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17(b) applies regardless of whether an action is submitted to judicial arbitration by the plaintiff's election under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.12 or by a court order under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11 [see Lazelle v. Lovelady (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 34, 43-44, 217 Cal. Rptr. 145 ; see also Jackson v. Garmon (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 860, 863-866, 266 Cal. Rptr. 201] .

[c] Post-Arbitration Tolling Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20

[i] Based on Court's Failure to Calendar or Recalendar Case

When a party requests a trial de novo under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20, discussed in § 36.34[1], the court has a duty to calendar or recalendar the case for trial to prevent plaintiffs from being penalized for having undergone the arbitration process. The court's failure to fulfill this duty may result in tolling the five-year mandatory dismissal deadline of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310, 583.360. The period tolled would be from the date of the trial de novo request until the date of the new trial [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 434-435, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469] .

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17 is the exclusive ground for tolling the five-year mandatory dismissal deadline for bringing a case to trial based on submission of the case to arbitration, Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20 may be the basis of implied tolling of the five-year period. This tolling is not based on "submission to arbitration," but on the court's failure in the post-arbitration period to fulfill its duty under Section 1141.20 [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 434-435, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469] .

[ii] Reasonable Diligence Required

The plaintiff must exercise some initial reasonable diligence to benefit from the implied tolling provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1140.20. It is the plaintiff's task, rather than that of the court, to keep track of pertinent dates, and to inform the court of these dates. Once a plaintiff has informed the court, during or shortly after a trial de novo request, of the five-year trial date, the court then has the duty under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20 to schedule the case insofar as possible, so that the trial will be given the same place on the active list as it had prior to arbitration or to receive civil priority [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 435, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469 ; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310, 583.360 (five-year limit)]. Thus, if, prior to arbitration, a plaintiff was eligible to receive a trial date within the five year statute, then plaintiff is entitled to receive such a trial date on a timely post-arbitration request [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 435, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469] .

If the trial court fails to correctly calendar or recalendar the case after having been properly notified, only then will the action be tolled pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20 from the date of the trial de novo request until the date of the new trial [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 435, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469] .

The plaintiff is under this duty of diligence regardless of whether the plaintiff or the defendant is the party requesting trial de novo [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 435-436, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469] .

[iii] What Constitutes Reasonable Diligence

The degree of diligence that is considered reasonable in order to toll the five-year period under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20 is not precisely defined. Some courts require only that the plaintiff request that the trial court set a date for the trial de novo within the five-year period [Santa Monica Hospital Medical Center v. Superior Court (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 1026, 1028, 250 Cal. Rptr. 384] .

Other courts require that the plaintiff must not only call the court's attention to the time frame of the case on a request for a trial de novo, but must also continue to move the case along to bring it to trial within the statutory period, rather than casually awaiting the new trial date selected by the trial court [Berry v. Weitzman (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 351, 356-357, 249 Cal. Rptr. 816] . In Dresser v. Bindi (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1493, 271 Cal. Rptr. 137 , the court ruled that a plaintiff, although entitled to presume a trial court will perform its duty to set a preferential trial date following a request for a trial de novo, must nonetheless diligently perform his or her independent duty at all times to keep track of the five-year deadline and to inform the trial court of that deadline [Dresser v. Bindi (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1493, 1494-1495, 1498, 271 Cal. Rptr. 137 ; Serrano v. FMC Corp. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1027, 271 Cal. Rptr. 41 ; see also Marchuk v. Ralphs Grocery Co. (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1273, 1277, 276 Cal. Rptr. 627] .

The degree of diligence required may not have been fully resolved by Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469 . Howard clearly confirms the diligence requirement that has been applied by the courts of appeal. Also, Howard states that if the plaintiff was entitled to a trial date within the five-year statute prior to arbitration, then plaintiff is entitled to receive such a date "upon a timely postarbitration request" [see Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 435, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469] . From this language, one could argue that the court of appeal cases, such as Santa Monica Hospital Medical Center, above, are correct in requiring only a lesser degree of diligence. However, Howard held that the plaintiff had not been diligent. The plaintiff did not inform the court of the impending deadline or seek to have a trial date set until raising the issue on a motion to specially set the case for trial made some six months after defendant's request for trial de novo and 44 days before expiration of the five-year period [see Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 430-431, 435, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469] . Therefore, although Howard shows one situation of inadequate diligence, it does not directly provide a holding on the degree of diligence that is required to obtain Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20 tolling.

[d] Post-Arbitration Tolling for Impossibility, Impracticability, or Futility Under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(c)

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17 is the exclusive provision governing tolling of the five-year mandatory dismissal provisions based on submission to arbitration, Section 1141.17 does not govern post-arbitration tolling caused by other means. Once the Section 1141.17 tolling expires (when the case is no longer submitted to arbitration), a post-arbitration period commences during which the five-year period may be tolled under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(c) if it is impossible, impracticable, or futile to prosecute the action [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 437-438, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469 ; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310, 583.360 (five-year limit)].

For example, if the plaintiff prevails in arbitration and the defendant fails to request trial de novo, the case is no longer submitted to arbitration after the time to request trial de novo expires. If the plaintiff obtains entry of a judgment on the award, the period from the entry of the judgment until the defendant succeeds in having the judgment set aside will almost invariably be a circumstance in which it is impossible, impracticable, or futile to bring the case to trial, and the five-year statute will be considered tolled during that period [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 438-439, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20(a) (time for requesting trial de novo)].

This tolling is analogous to the tolling recognized when a default judgment has been taken in a plaintiff's favor. Thus, tolling may include the period between the expiration of the time to request trial de novo (or taking a defendant's default) and the judgment on the arbitration award (or entry of a default judgment) if the plaintiff obtains entry of the judgment within a reasonable period. One week is a reasonable period for obtaining entry of the judgment, and allows the time before, as well as after, the entry of the judgment to be tolled [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 438-439, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469] .

[e] Discretionary Dismissal on Post-Arbitration Motion to Specially Set

Motions to specially set a case to avoid the five-year mandatory dismissal statute raise the same issues as a motion for discretionary dismissal for delay in prosecution [Salas v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 342, 346, 228 Cal. Rptr. 504, 721 P.2d 590] . For general discussion of these motions, and the factors usually considered, including the plaintiff's diligence and the preference for disposition of cases on their merits [see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.130], see Ch. 212, Dismissal .

A plaintiff's post-arbitration motion to specially set can be characterized as a belated attempt by a plaintiff to compel the court to fulfill its duty to recalendar the case, rather than simply plaintiff's attempt to regain time lost by his or her own procrastination. Thus, the preference for disposition of cases on their merits [see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.130] is reinforced by the Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20 mandate that plaintiffs not be penalized for undergoing arbitration. The fact that the motion to specially set seeks to rectify the court's error should weigh in plaintiff's favor [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 441-442, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469] . Nonetheless, the trial court retains discretion to deny the motion when the plaintiff has failed to promptly request a timely trial date in the post-arbitration period. A showing by the defendant that the accelerated trial date will cause actual prejudice can be a critical factor in denying the motion [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 442, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469] .

Plaintiff's pre-arbitration conduct of the litigation may also be considered. If a plaintiff is vulnerable to discretionary dismissal before arbitration, then undergoing arbitration and benefiting from the recalendaring under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20 does not necessarily immunize plaintiff against such a motion [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 442, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469] .

Thus, a trial court may use a plaintiff's motion to specially set the case for trial as an opportunity to correct its own failure to calendar or recalendar the case under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20; but these considerations may be outweighed by plaintiff's unreasonable delay before or after arbitration, as well as by prejudice to the defendant from the accelerated trial date [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 443, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469] .

[3] When Plaintiff Elects to Arbitrate to Avoid Mandatory Dismissal

When a plaintiff elects to submit his or her action to arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.12 (discussed under § 36.16), but does so just before the lapse of the five-year period in order to avoid mandatory dismissal, the trial court, before entering any order on the merits, should consider the factors relevant to a motion to dismiss under the discretionary dismissal provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.420 [Sisler v. Superior Court (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 864, 868, 252 Cal. Rptr. 665 (trial court erred in granting plaintiff's motion to refer matter to arbitration when order was entered on last day of five-year period and trial court based its ruling solely on imminent expiration of that period)]. For further discussion relating to discretionary dismissal for delay in prosecution, see Ch. 212, Dismissal .

Justice Neal served for several years as Chair of the Superior Court's Alternative Dispute Resolution Committee and oversaw implementation in Los Angeles County of the pilot civil action mediation program mandated by Code of Civil Procedure Section 1775 et seq.

§ 36.38 Costs of Arbitration

All administrative costs of arbitration, including compensation of arbitrators, must be paid for by the court in which the arbitration costs are incurred, except as otherwise provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(b) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.28(a); see § 36.36[4]].

The actual costs of compensation of arbitrators in any proceeding which would not otherwise be subject to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.10 et seq., but in which arbitration is conducted under those provisions solely because of the stipulation of the parties, must be paid for in equal shares by the parties. If the imposition of these costs would create such a substantial economic hardship for any party as not to be in the interest of justice, as determined by the arbitrator, that party's share of costs must be paid for by the court in which the arbitration costs are incurred. The determination as to substantial economic hardship may be reviewed by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.28(b)].

§ 36.39 Sanctions

A court may, on its own motion or on that of a party, impose monetary sanctions for expenses, including attorney's fees, incurred as a result of tactics or actions in a judicial arbitration proceeding which are frivolous or solely intended to cause unnecessary delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5; see Zatkin v. Cesare (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 756, 759, 245 Cal. Rptr. 222] . Any order imposing sanctions must be in writing and must recite in detail the conduct or circumstances justifying the order [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(c); see Hearst v. Ferrante (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 201, 202, 234 Cal. Rptr. 385] . Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 specifically applies only to actions filed or proceedings initiated on or before December 31, 1994. A significantly different statute, Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7, governs sanctions for frivolous and delaying tactics in actions filed on and after January 1, 1995. Section 128.7 does not expressly apply to judicial arbitration proceedings, and whether or not it will be so applied is an open question [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(i)]. For discussion of sanctions under Sections 128.5 and 128.7, see Ch. 510, Sanctions .

In addition, if a local rule of court so provides, the court, on noticed motion, may impose sanctions on a party or an attorney for failure to meaningfully participate in judicial arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2; Rietveld v. Rosebud Storage Partners, L.P. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 250, 255-257, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 791 (sanction imposed under authority of former Sacramento Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.04(A) [see now Sacramento Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.03(A)])].

ILLUSTRATION:

Conduct of Attorney Warranting Sanctions. A case was ordered to judicial arbitration, a hearing date set, and plaintiffs' attorney notified that 10 days before the hearing he was to provide copies of the complaint, the answer, and a short arbitration brief. The attorney arrived 25 minutes late for the hearing and failed to provide any of the required documents. Plaintiffs did not attend the hearing and were not available by phone. Plaintiffs' attorney did not provide any evidence at the hearing, but stated that he agreed with the facts set forth in defendant's arbitration brief. The arbitrator entered an award for defendant. Plaintiffs' attorney requested a trial do novo. Defendant filed a motion for sanctions against plaintiffs and their attorney for failure to participate meaningfully in judicial arbitration. In opposing the motion, plaintiffs' attorney claimed there had been no reason to present evidence at the arbitration hearing because judicial arbitration often proceeds by way of mediation and settlement; he also argued that the right to request trial de novo renders judicial arbitration essentially meaningless. The trial court found plaintiffs' attorney had violated a local rule [former Sacramento Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.04(A) (see now Sacramento Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.03(A))] and imposed sanctions of $2,380 against the attorney, only, based on the fees and costs incurred by defendant in the arbitration and in moving for sanctions. Should the sanctions be upheld? Yes. [Rietveld v. Rosebud Storage Partners, L.P. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 250, 255-257, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 791] .

Chapter 36 JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

4-36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 36.40

AUTHOR: Hon. Richard C. Neal Editorial Consultant Richard C. Neal is an Associate Justice, California Court of Appeal, Second District. He was appointed to the Los Angeles Superior Court in 1992 after nearly twenty years in private practice in Los Angeles. Justice Neal served for several years as Chair of the Superior Court's Alternative Dispute Resolution Committee and oversaw implementation in Los Angeles County of the pilot civil action mediation program mandated by Code of Civil Procedure Section 1775 et seq.

§ 36.40 Notice If Case Settled

If an entire case is settled, each plaintiff or other party seeking affirmative relief must immediately file written notice of the settlement or other disposition with the court and serve the notice on all parties and any arbitrator as well as any other court-connected alternative dispute resolution (ADR) neutral involved in the case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.829, 3.1385(a)(1)]. Each plaintiff or other party seeking affirmative relief must also immediately give oral notice to all of the above if a hearing, conference, or trial is scheduled to take place within 10 days [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385(a)(1)]. Judicial Council form CM-200, which is reproduced in Ch. 502, Settlement and Release, at § 520.114, is mandatory for use to give the notice of settlement.

If the plaintiff or other party seeking affirmative relief does not notify an arbitrator or other court-connected ADR neutral involved in the case of a settlement at least 2 days before a scheduled hearing or session with the arbitrator or neutral, the court may order the party to compensate the arbitrator or other neutral for the scheduled hearing time. The court cannot award compensation that exceeds the maximum amount the arbitrator would be entitled to receive for service as an arbitrator under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(b) (discussed at § 36.20[2], above) or that the neutral would have been entitled to receive for service as a neutral at the scheduled hearing or session [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385(a)(2)].

Unless the settlement is conditional [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385(c), below], each plaintiff or other party seeking affirmative relief must also file and serve a request for dismissal of the entire case within 45 days after the date of settlement of the case. If the plaintiff or other party required to serve and file the request for dismissal does not do so, the court must dismiss the entire case 45 days after it received notice of settlement unless good cause is shown why the case should not be dismissed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385(b)]. If the settlement of the case involves the compromise of the claim of a minor or person with a disability, the court must not hold a hearing for dismissal before the court has held a hearing to approve the settlement, provided the parties have filed appropriate papers to seek court approval of the settlement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385(d)].

If the settlement agreement conditions dismissal on the satisfactory completion of specified terms that are not to be performed within 45 days of the settlement, the notice of conditional settlement served and filed by each plaintiff or other party seeking affirmative relief must specify the date by which the dismissal is to be filed. If the plaintiff or other party required to serve and file a request for dismissal within 45 days after the dismissal date specified in the notice does not do so, the court must dismiss the entire case unless good cause is shown why the case should not be dismissed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385(c)]. If a party who has served and filed a notice of settlement determines that the case cannot be dismissed within 45 days of the settlement, that party must serve and file a notice and supporting declaration advising the court of that party's inability to do so, showing good cause and proposing an alternative date for dismissal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385(e)]. A party cannot use a Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385 hearing to obtain a court determination that a settlement is unenforceable. Rule 3.185 is only a case management tool for delay reduction. At a Rule 3.1385 hearing, the trial court's only options are to dismiss the case or to restore it to the civil active list. By alleging a dispute over whether the parties have reached a binding settlement, a party demonstrates good cause to restore the case to the civil active list [Irvine v. Regents of the University of California (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 994, 1001-1002, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 500] .

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

4-36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 36.54

AUTHOR: Hon. Richard C. Neal Editorial Consultant Richard C. Neal is an Associate Justice, California Court of Appeal, Second District. He was appointed to the Los Angeles Superior Court in 1992 after nearly twenty years in private practice in Los Angeles. Justice Neal served for several years as Chair of the Superior Court's Alternative Dispute Resolution Committee and oversaw implementation in Los Angeles County of the pilot civil action mediation program mandated by Code of Civil Procedure Section 1775 et seq.

§ 36.54 Decisions

[1] Arbitration Conference

Provision of former Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(a) that conference at which arbitration is ordered shall be held no later than 90 days before trial is not jurisdictional and does not create vested entitlement of party to trial if conference held within 90 days of trial date. Moran v. Superior Court (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 229, 236 n.7, 197 Cal. Rptr. 546, 673 P.2d 216

[1A] Attorney/Arbitrator

Requiring attorney to serve as arbitrator in court's program for two days per year with minimal compensation did not amount to taking which would entitle attorney to compensation under Fifth Amendment. Scheele v. Justices of the Supreme Court of Arizona (9th Cir. 2007) 508 F. 3d 887, 896

[2] Election to Arbitrate

Court retained jurisdiction to dismiss for lack of diligent prosecution while case ordered to mandatory arbitration; court may refuse to order judicial arbitration if plaintiff has waited unreasonable time before electing arbitration. Nanfito v. Superior Court (1991) 2 Cal. App. 4th 315, 319-320, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 876

Once court grants plaintiff's motion for election to arbitrate and places action on arbitration list, if it was either placed there or remained there for more than four years and six months after action was originally filed, Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17(b) applies to toll five-year mandatory dismissal statute (Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 et seq.); however, because Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.12(c) requires that plaintiff's election to arbitrate be filed no later than 90 days before trial, or at a later time if permitted by court, plaintiff's unilateral election to arbitrate in last three months before running of five-year diligent prosecution statute (Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 et seq.) requires court's permission; court considers factors relevant to motion to dismiss under discretionary dismissal provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.420 prior to entry of any order on merits of motion. Jackson v. Garmon (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 860, 866, 866 n.6, 266 Cal. Rptr. 201

[3] Stipulation for Arbitration

[a] Interpretation of Stipulation

Stipulation for arbitration to be interpreted according to ordinary rules for interpretation of contracts, with paramount consideration on parties' objective intention at time of agreement. Winograd v. American Broadcasting Company (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 624, 632-636, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 378 (including rules for resolving conflicting inferences to be drawn from objective evidence); Porreco v. Red Top RV Center (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 113, 118 n.5, 119, 264 Cal. Rptr. 609

Stipulation entitled "Stipulation for Judicial Arbitration; Order Thereon," which referred to Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.10 and former Cal. Rules of Ct. Rule 1616 [see now Cal. Rules of Ct. Rule 3.826], and by which each party waived right to trial de novo, contemplated judicial arbitration, not contractual arbitration. Porreco v. Red Top RV Center (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 113, 119-120, 264 Cal. Rptr. 609

[b] Waiver of Trial de Novo

Judgment entered on arbitration award set aside when plaintiff's attorney exceeded scope of implied authority by entering into agreement with defendants for binding arbitration by waiving trial de novo in advance of arbitrtion without client's consent, client did nothing beyond retaining attorney to suggest that attorney had authority to agree on her behalf, and, after learning of agreement, client repudiated it. Blanton v. Womancare, Inc. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 396, 399, 402, 212 Cal. Rptr. 151, 696 P.2d 645

[4] Disqualification of Arbitrator

Violation of former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1605(b) [see now Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.817(c)] time limit for holding hearing does not subject arbitrator to "disqualification" as contemplated by former or current rules and is not basis for setting aside judgment. Cabrera v. Plager (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 606, 612, 241 Cal. Rptr. 731 (rejecting contrary holding in Lilly v. Lilly (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 925, 929, 181 Cal. Rptr. 375)

In civil action ordered to arbitration by trial court, arbitrator's action in unilaterally continuing hearing on case to more than 10 months from date case was assigned to him and more than 5 months after date scheduled for hearing after case was continued by stipulation of parties violated former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1605(b) [see now Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.817(c)] and therefore, rendered arbitrator subject to disqualification. Lilly v. Lilly (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 925, 928, 181 Cal. Rptr. 375

Arbitrator's action in unilaterally continuing hearing on case, which rendered him subject to disqualification under former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1615(d) [see now Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(a)] was reversible error on appeal, not waived by plaintiff's failure to move in trial court to vacate arbitrator's judgment, because issue concerned error that could have been basis of motion to vacate judgment, and involved only legal question based on California Rules of Court and uncontroverted facts unaltered by presentation of additional evidence, and because arbitration is matter of great public interest in efficient administration of justice. Lilly v. Lilly (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 925, 928-929, 181 Cal. Rptr. 375

[5] Jurisdiction

Party's appearance and participation at arbitration hearing without raising objection to jurisdiction of arbitrator estopped party from later challenging jurisdiction. Cabrera v. Plager (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 606, 613 n.8, 241 Cal. Rptr. 731

[6] Discovery

Postarbitration discovery not precluded pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.24 when case was submitted to arbitration by plaintiff's election and not by court order. McMillan v. Superior Court (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 1014, 1018, 194 Cal. Rptr. 670

Right to conduct discovery proceedings, although barred under former Cal. Rules of, Rule 222 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.020), for 30 days before trial date, reinstated by submission of action to judicial arbitration under former Cal. Rules of Ct. Rule 1612 [see now Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.822(b)], up to 15 days before date set for arbitration hearing. Zinn v. Superior Court (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 583, 588-589, 166 Cal. Rptr. 640

Party failed to meet burden of establishing good cause for discovery before trial de novo when reasons for discovery existed before arbitration, there was no excuse for delay in seeking discovery, grant of request would have delayed trial and resulted in prejudice to other party, and denial of request would have minimal prejudice because party seeking discovery was already familiar with evidence. Regan v. Lanet (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 353, 359-360, 243 Cal. Rptr. 20

[7] Interest on Award

Award of prejudgment interest on judicial arbitration award pursuant to Civ. Code § 3291 and Code Civ. Proc. § 998 was proper when plaintiffs made settlement offer pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 998, defendant refused, and after judicial arbitration, amount greater than settlement offer was awarded plaintiffs and entered as judgment. Joyce v. Black (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 318, 320, 322-323, 266 Cal. Rptr. 8

[8] Right to Trial de Novo

Trial de novo is only means for plaintiff to challenge court order striking plaintiff's cost memorandum after arbitration. Wagy v. Brown (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1, 7, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 48

Because neither judicial arbitration statutes (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.10 et seq.) nor rules of judicial arbitration (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.810 et seq.) permit trial court to dismiss action because of party's failure to participate in arbitration proceeding, trial court's dismissal of defendant's motion for trial de novo because of its failure to participate in arbitration is not expressly authorized by statute; trial court is limited to imposition of sanctions in form of award of attorney's fees and costs as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5. Salowitz Organization, Inc. v. Traditional Industries, Inc. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 797, 802-807, 802 n.4, 268 Cal. Rptr 493

Plaintiff who receives judicial arbitration award equal to amount in controversy may not request trial de novo. Jackson v. Garmon (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 860, 864, 266 Cal. Rptr. 201

Request by one plaintiff in multiparty litigation for trial de novo does not require second plaintiff to retry case when second plaintiff's claim was distinct from and unaffected by first plaintiff's claim and retrial of second plaintiff's claim would defeat purpose of judicial arbitration act to provide economical procedure for obtaining prompt equitable relief. Demirgian v. Superior Court (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 372, 374-378, 231 Cal. Rptr. 698

Request for trial de novo by defaulting party was proper and should have been granted when defaulting party failed to appear at arbitration hearing as result of mistake of party's attorney's secretary in not noting hearing date on calendar, which did not show premeditated, intentional, and purposeful course of action by defaulting party that is required before request for trial de novo may be denied. Merritt v. Marks (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 825, 827-828, 221 Cal. Rptr. 88

Court clerk's entering of judgment on arbitration award after request for trial filed violates former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1615(c) [see now Cal. Rules of Ct. Rule 3.827(a)] (rules for entry of judgment), thereby entitling party to relief from judgment and order restoring case to trial list. Fox Industrial Realty v. Dio Dix, Inc. (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 787, 790-792, 186 Cal. Rptr. 449

Local court rule requiring party who failed to appear at arbitration hearing to file noticed motion and to show good cause in order to obtain trial de novo pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20 and former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1616 [see now Cal. Rules of Ct. Rule 3.826] is invalid to extent of good cause requirement because of legislative intent that access to court for trial de novo be procedurally unfettered. Hebert v. Harn (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 465, 470, 184 Cal. Rptr. 83

Postarbitration request for trial de novo, limited to certain issues and parties, is impermissible under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20; new trial proceeds on all issues with all parties. Trump v. Superior Court (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 411, 413-417, 173 Cal. Rptr. 403

[9] Request for Trial de Novo

Failure to attach proof of service to request for trial pursuant to former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1616(a) [see now Cal. Rules of Ct. Rule 3.826(a)] was not jurisdictional defect because defendants obtained actual knowledge of filing of request for trial within statutory period, which fulfilled purpose of service requirement. Lum v. Mission Inn Foundation, Inc. (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 967, 970, 226 Cal. Rptr. 22

Arbitration award is final by operation of law under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20 when proof of service of request for trial de novo is not filed pursuant to former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1616(a) [see now Cal. Rules of Ct. Rule 3.826(a)]; proof of service by mail of request for trial de novo was fatally defective when first affidavit did not state address to which request had been mailed and second affidavit, prepared 11 months after mailing, did not explain how affiant had recollected address. Dobrick v. Hathaway (l984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 913, 921-923, 207 Cal. Rptr. 50

Actual notice of arbitrator's award is necessary to commence running of period within which to file request for trial de novo under former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1616(a) [see now Cal. Rules of Ct. Rule 3.826(a)], Oats v. Oats (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 416, 420-421, 196 Cal. Rptr. 20

Form entitled "At-Issue Memorandum," which was designed to inform court, with notice to opposing parties, of moving party's desire for civil trial and which apprised court and opposing counsel that former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1616 [see now Cal. Rules of Ct. Rule 3.826(a)] was reason for request was in substantial compliance with Rule's requirement regarding request for trial de novo. Fox Industrial Realty v. Dio Dix, Inc. (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 787,

792, 186 Cal. Rptr. 449

When defendant's request for trial de novo was filed 23 days after judicial arbitration award was filed but rejection of arbitrator's award was filed within 20-day period, filing of rejection gave sufficient notice of defendant's decision to take case to trial, and substantially complied with time limitation for request for trial de novo imposed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20 and former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1615(c), 1616(a) [see now Cal. Rules of Ct. Rules 3.826(a), 3.827(a)]. Hanf v. Sunnyview Development, Inc. (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 909, 915-916, 180 Cal. Rptr. 718 (decided prior to amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20 in 1984 to allow 30 days to file request)

[10] Procedure After Request for Trial de Novo

After plaintiff, deeming award inadequate to cover losses, requests trial de novo, trial court is not required to permit defendant to delay and complicate action by allowing defendant to bring third party into action by way of cross complaint. Brown v. Presley of So. California (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 612, 620-621, 261 Cal. Rptr. 779

Party requesting trial de novo after arbitration is not entitled to dismiss action to avoid unfavorable arbitration award; dismissal reinstates award finalization procedure of Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20. Herbert Hawkins Realtors, Inc. v. Milheiser (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 334, 339-340, 189 Cal. Rptr. 450

[11] Dismissal for Delay in Prosecution

[a] Tolling Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17

Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17 is exclusive ground for tolling time to bring case to trial based on submission to arbitration; but other grounds for tolling based on other reasons may also apply to a case submitted to arbitration. Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 434-435, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469

Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17 is designed to protect against harsh rule of mandatory dismissal for failure to bring case to trial; thus, when Section 1141.17 applies, it tolls mandatory five-year period regardless of plaintiff's exercise of reasonable diligence during this period. Niesner v. Kusch (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 291, 297-298, 230 Cal. Rptr. 613

Defective notice of request for trial de novo following mandatory judicial arbitration is inadequate to terminate tolling of time period for bringing action to trial under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17. Dobrick v. Hathaway (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 913, 923, 207 Cal. Rptr. 50

Tolling provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17 does not wholly preclude trial court from dismissing case while it is submitted to judicial arbitration, since court still has discretionary power to dismiss for plaintiff's lack of diligence in bringing case to trial (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.410-583.430). D'Hondt v. Regents of University of California (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 723, 727-730, 200 Cal. Rptr. 628

Five-year period of limitation of former Code Civ. Proc. § 583(b) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310) for bringing case to trial had run, resulting in dismissal of action when insufficient period of time tolled under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.7. Evans v. City of Los Angeles (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 142, 146, 193 Cal. Rptr. 282

Under former Cal Rule of Ct., Rule 1601(c) (extent to which time action is pending on arbitration list tolls five year period of former Code Civ. Proc. § 583 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310) for bringing case to trial when action is on arbitration list), case ceased to be pending on arbitration list when award filed with court. Evans v. City of Los Angeles (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 142, 147, 193 Cal. Rptr. 282

[b] Tolling Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17 is exclusive ground for tolling time to bring case to trial based on submission to arbitration, post-arbitration tolling may be implied from Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20 based on trial court's failure to schedule case for trial within the five-year period of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 if prior to arbitration plaintiff would have been eligible for trial date within five-year period and at time of or shortly after de novo request plaintiff informs court of five-year date. Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 434-435, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469

Automatic tolling rule of Moran v. Superior Court (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 229, 197 Cal. Rptr. 546, 673 P.2d 216 , based on Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20 whatever its original viability, is now untenable under subsequent amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17. Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 434, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469 ; see Messih v. Levine (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 454, 458, 278 Cal. Rptr. 825 ; Marchuk v. Ralphs Grocery Co. (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1273, 1277-1278, 276 Cal. Rptr. 627 ; Baccus v. Superior Court (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1526, 1535, 255 Cal. Rptr. 781 ; Santa Monica Hospital Medical Center v. Superior Court (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 1026, 1031, 250 Cal. Rptr. 384 ; Berry v. Weitzman (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 351, 356-357, 249 Cal. Rptr. 816

Removal of case from arbitration by arbitrator is functional equivalent of filing of request for trial de novo; plaintiff's lack of diligence, not impossibility due to nonperformance of arbitrator or clerk, prevented case from being tried within five years. Winston v. Woodward (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 361, 368, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126

[c] Impossibility, Impracticability, or Futility

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17 is exclusive ground for tolling time to bring case to trial based on submission to arbitration, post-arbitration tolling may arise under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(c) based on impossibility, impracticability, or futility of bringing case to trial; when defendant failed to timely request trial de novo, time for bring case to trial was tolled from entry of judgment on arbitration award until defendant paid sanctions that were condition of order vacating the judgment; period also tolled from expiration of time to request trial de novo until entry of judgment if plaintiff obtains entry of judgment within reasonable time; one week is reasonable. Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 437-439, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469

[d] Under Stipulation

Petition to compel arbitration was properly denied, after case had been dismissed, pursuant to stipulation that extended five-year dismissal date and provided for judicial arbitration to be conducted before extended date. Winograd v. American Broadcasting Company (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 624, 636, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 378

[12] Sanctions

Trial court erred in dismissing plaintiff's personal injury action as sanction for misuse of arbitration process, even though plaintiff had voluntarily elected arbitration; finding that plaintiff's action could be dismissed if he or she elects arbitration, but not if court orders arbitration, defeats purpose of judicial arbitration legislation and discouraging voluntary elections by plaintiffs who would fear potential consequences. Zatkin v. Cesare (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 756, 758, 760-761, 245 Cal. Rptr. 222

[13] Relief From Entry of Judgment

Motion to set aside default is not proper before arbitrator, but rather before trial court after arbitration award becomes final judgment. Merritt v. Marks (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 825, 828, 221 Cal. Rptr. 88

Code Civ. Proc. § 473 applies to arbitration proceedings prior to 1982 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.23. Alvarado v. City of Port Hueneme (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 695, 184 Cal. Rptr. 154 ; contra Usher v. Soltz (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 692, 176 Cal. Rptr. 746

Failure to request trial de novo within time limit of Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20 is not excusable neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 justifying relief from judgment entered pursuant to award when attorney knew of granting of nonsuit but had not received notice of award and failed to adequately ascertain when award filed. Alvarado v. City of Port Hueneme (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 695, 703-705, 184 Cal. Rptr. 154

[14] Appeal

Although judgment on judicial arbitration award is nonappealable (Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.23), order granting motion to strike costs filed after entry of judgment on award is deemed final judgment and hence appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a). Joyce v. Black (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 318, 321-322, 266 Cal. Rptr. 8

4-36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 36.60

AUTHOR: Hon. Richard C. Neal Editorial Consultant Richard C. Neal is an Associate Justice, California Court of Appeal, Second District. He was appointed to the Los Angeles Superior Court in 1992 after nearly twenty years in private practice in Los Angeles. Justice Neal served for several years as Chair of the Superior Court's Alternative Dispute Resolution Committee and oversaw implementation in Los Angeles County of the pilot civil action mediation program mandated by Code of Civil Procedure Section 1775 et seq.

§ 36.60 Initiation of Arbitration

[1] Stipulation to Arbitrate

☐ Secure agreement to arbitrate the case.

☐ Prepare stipulation for signature by all parties and their attorneys [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.12(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.812(a); for discussion, see, § 36.16; for form, see § 36.70[1]].

☐ Include any or all of the following provisions if all parties so agree:

☐ Maximum amount of arbitrator's award [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815(a)]. For a paragraph that can be used or adapted, see § 32.80[1], Paragraph 11A.

☐ Designation of person to serve as arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815(a)].

☐ Waiver of disqualification of arbitrator under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 in writing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.816(a)].

☐ Designation of number of sides to case.

☐ All parties must sign stipulation.

☐ All attorneys must sign stipulation.

☐ File stipulation with court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.812(a)].

[2] Election by Plaintiff

☐ Determine whether each plaintiff will agree to limit any possible recovery to $50,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.12(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.811(a)(5)].

☐ Prepare election [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.12(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.812(b); for discussion, see § 36.16; for form, see § 36.71[1]].

☐ File election no later than the time the initial case management statement is filed, unless the court orders otherwise [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.812(b)].

[3] Defendant or Cross Complainant's Response to Plaintiff's Election

[a] Defendant's Motion

☐ Prepare motion to delay arbitration hearing for good cause [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.812(b); for forms, see § 36.73].

☐ File motion as soon as possible after notice of plaintiff's election to arbitrate [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.812(b), 3.817].

[b] Cross Complainant's Motion

☐ Prepare motion to remove case from arbitration if court determines amount in controversy will exceed $50,000 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.812(c); for forms, see § 36.74].

☐ File motion within 15 days after notice of pl aintiff's election to arbitrate [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.812(c)].

[4] Discovery

☐ Develop a discovery plan as early as possibl [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.822 (discovery must be complete 15 days prior to arbitration hearing); discussion at § 36.29[2]] by:

☐ Examining the pleadings, including affirmative defenses and cross-complaints, if any.

- ☐ Thoroughly interviewing of the parties and witnesses available to you.
- ☐ Understanding your position.
- ☐ Understanding the probable position of your adversary.
- ☐ Determining, if possible, what evidence exists.

☐ Consider the following types of evidence and discovery methods:

- ☐ Photographs. Examine photographs for lighting and perspective. Understand what the photographs was meant to show and how it first was set up. If possible, obtain photographs of the same thing over time, especially anything with regard to which damages are sought.
- ☐ Medical imagery, such as x-rays, ultra-sound, MRI. Understand the perspective from which they were taken. If necessary, have an expert [radiologist] interpret them for you.
- ☐ Physical evidence: examine it first and determine how it fits in with other evidence. Any inconsistencies?
- ☐ Official documents, e.g., accident reports, licensing information, DMV ownership record.
- ☐ Interrogatories, requests for admission, requests for production of documents, such as bills, invoices, reports. Again, examine all documentary evidence for internal inconsistencies or inconsistencies with other evidence. If a document has been handled by different people over time, obtain a copy from each of them and examine the copies for changes.
- ☐ Depositions or less formal statements or interviews.
  - ☐ Begin with generalities and allow the witness to narrate as much as they want.
  - ☐ Determine everything that witness knows, including the existence and location of other witnesses and/or physical evidence, photographs, etc.
  - ☐ If the witness has physical or documentary evidence, try to obtain it.
  - ☐ Do background checks on both your witnesses and opposing witnesses, including expert.

☐ Maps that may be significant.

☐ Time lines and dates that may be of significance.

☐ Expert witnesses, both yours and your adversary's: obtain their resumes or curriculum vitae as soon as possible. Investigate them through professional associations, on the Internet, through licensing agencies, and through any network you may have.

☐ Your expert witness: make sure there are no skeletons in his or her closet. Pay him or her an interview fee, thus assuring he or she is no longer available to be the opposition's expert. Be careful what you give your expert to form his or her opinion: everything in an expert's file is discoverable.

☐ Your adversary's expert(s): seek and review prior depositions of the adversary's expert(s) and court transcripts of their prior testimony. Read any books and article the adversary's expert(s) have published. Look for skeletons in his or her closet. Obtain the expert's file.

☐ Revise your discovery plan as the case develops.

☐ Once you believe you have everything you need to establish your case, and everything the opposition has to support its case, determine whether there is reason NOT to use some of this information as evidence. Much evidence has some unfavorable aspect and it is not appropriate to "over try" your case.

[5] Mandatory Arbitration

NOTE:
The determination whether to order arbitration is generally made at the initial case management conference after all parties have appeared or defaulted

☐ Prepare for conference:

☐ Gather facts relating to valuation of the case [see [4], above].

☐ Gather facts supporting prayer for equitable relief or facts that tend to show the prayer is frivolous or insubstantial [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.13, 1141.16(a); see [4], above].

☐ Determine whether to stipulate, and whether opposing party will stipulate that the amount in controversy exceeds $50,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(a)].

☐ Attend conference [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(a)].

NOTE:

If the judge determines at the conference that the amount in controversy will not exceed $50,000 per plaintiff and that any claim for equitable relief is frivolous or insubstantial, the judge will order the case to arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.811, 3.812(d); for discussion, see § 36.15].

§ 36.61 Appointment of Arbitrator

CAUTION:
Check local court rules, which may vary from the procedure outlined below [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815(c)].

☐ Prepare stipulation if parties agree to arbitrator [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815(a); for form, see § 36.70[1]].

☐ If no stipulation, accept or reject arbitrators on list prepared by administrator [for discussion, see § 36.21].

☐ Prepare rejection, if desired, and deliver to administrator within 10 days of receiving list [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(d); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815(b)(3); for form, see § 36.75[1]].

☐ After appointment, determine whether to object to disqualified arbitrator.

☐ To make a peremptory challenge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, prepare objection and deliver to administrator within 5 days of the naming of the arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(d); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.816(b), (c); for discussion, see § 36.22[1]; for form, see § 36.76[1]].

AUTHOR: Hon. Richard C. Neal Editorial Consultant Richard C. Neal is an Associate Justice, California Court of Appeal, Second District. He was appointed to the Los Angeles Superior Court in 1992 after nearly twenty years in private practice in Los Angeles. Justice Neal served for several years as Chair of the Superior Court's Alternative Dispute Resolution Committee and oversaw implementation in Los Angeles County of the pilot civil action mediation program mandated by Code of Civil Procedure Section 1775 et seq.

§ 36.62 Arbitration Book

☐ Prepare an arbitration book. The arbitration book will be your guide during the arbitration hearing. A copy should be given to the arbitrator(s), at least a few days before the arbitration hearing (or not, depending on the arbitrator(s)' preference and practice), to orient them, to help save time in their understanding and evaluation of the case, and so they will have available at their fingertips the evidence you think is most persuasive. You may wish to give your client a copy of the arbitration book. In some cases, providing your opponent with a copy may enhance your ability to settle the matter.

☐ The arbitration book contains the following:

☐ A table of contents. Consider using your Cal. Rules of Ct, Rule 3.823 notice [see § 36.79] as a table of contents (with proof of service attached) or arranging the book to parallel Cal. Rules of Ct, Rule 3.823

☐ An arbitration brief that sets forth:

☐ The caption,

☐ The parties and their attorneys,

☐ A brief statement of the procedural position of the case, including mention any relevant stipulations, copies of which should be provided in the Pleadings section of the book.

☐ A statement of the facts. Each fact should be cross referenced to the evidence that establishes it is, e.g., Request for Admissions and Response thereto number _____, page _____ line _____ through_____; Deposition of _____, page _____ line _____ through page _____, line _____.

NOTE:
Do not mention here or include in the documents section of the arbitration book documents that, although mentioned in Cal. Rules of Ct, Rule 3.823 are inadmissable as evidence. e.g., an expression of ultimate fault from a police report of an accident [see Cal. Rules of Ct, Rule 3.823(b)].

☐ The damages sought (non-economic injuries, property damage, loss of earnings).

☐ Summarize each component of damages and total them.

☐ Contentions, if desired,

☐ Points and authorities, if necessary or desired; usually only necessary if there is some unusual aspect of law involved. Consider using BAJI (Basic Approved Jury Instructions) to set forth the relevant points of law.

☐ The pleadings or other documents that frame the issues.

☐ Official records. Have them certified.

☐ Deposition transcripts or excerpts from them: Highlight the portions you want the arbitrator to read.

☐ Written discovery such as interrogatories, requests for admission, requests for production and responses thereto.

☐ Medical records, reports, and bills.

☐ Maps or diagrams. Official government maps can be judicially noticed.

☐ Experts' reports. Include the expert's curriculum vitae and the information to lay the foundation for the expert's conclusions, i.e., any other documents relied on by the expert to form his or her opinion.

☐ Photographs.

☐ Calendars or time lines.

☐ Witness' statements [see Cal. Rules of Ct, Rule 3.823(b)(2) (notice that must be given to use witness statement)].

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

4-36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 36.63

AUTHOR: Hon. Richard C. Neal Editorial Consultant Richard C. Neal is an Associate Justice, California Court of Appeal, Second District. He was appointed to the Los Angeles Superior Court in 1992 after nearly twenty years in private practice in Los Angeles. Justice Neal served for several years as Chair of the Superior Court's Alternative Dispute Resolution Committee and oversaw implementation in Los Angeles County of the pilot civil action mediation program mandated by Code of Civil Procedure Section 1775 et seq.

§ 36.63 Prepare Client and Witnesses

☐ At some point before the arbitration hearing, have a full discussion with your client so your client fully understands the following:

- ☐ His or her case, position, and points to be presented, including the strengths and weaknesses of the case.
- ☐ The opposition's position and probable points to be presented and/or rebutted.
- ☐ The probabilities that you can prevail and the chances of losing.
- ☐ Whether you want to consider or settlement; whether to initiate settlement discussions, and how to respond if the opposition initiates settlement discussions.
- ☐ Whether you wish to consider mediation at this point.
- ☐ Whether you are ready for arbitration.

☐ If you are representing a defendant, consider whether to let your client's default be taken. This will be appropriate only when there is a possibility of a much larger plaintiff's award if the arbitration goes to full hearing or if there is the possibility of damaging disclosures, publicity, or invasion of privacy.

☐ Prepare your client and other witnesses to be a witness, by going over their testimony and reminding them of the following:

☐ Be sure you hear each question.

☐ Be sure you understand each question.

☐ Answer precisely and literally the question asked.

☐ The briefest possible answer is the best answer. Use one word answers whenever possible, e.g., "Yes," "No." "Left." Right."

☐ Never anticipate what the next question might be.

☐ Do not try to remember any answers to any prior questions.

☐ Your job is to treat each question as a distinctly separate question.

☐ If you do not remember something or you do not know something, the responses that are appropriate are "I do not remember" or "I do not know." If you remember the answer later, tell me at the next break.

☐ Do not nod, point, grunt, or use your hands to show size. Your testimony must be spoken.

☐ Do not guess at an answer.

☐ Do you react in any manner to the person asking the questions, whether friendly or unfriendly and argumentative.

☐ If you need a break during your testimony, say so.

☐ If your testimony is going smoothly when the other side is questioning you, I will probably be quiet. If I speak up, you should stop talking immediately. Do not even finish the word you are saying. I will make the objection and we will continue from there.

☐ Do not be thrown if you break one of these rules. Just go on and do your best. If you dwell on a mistake, it is will take your mind off the current question and what your answer to it is.

☐ Consider how to handle any potentially damaging evidence.

☐ It is generally less damaging if you bring out potentially damaging evidence than if the opposition presents its. Tell your client this, so the client understands why you will be bringing out this matter and is prepared for it is.

☐ Determine whether any of your witnesses have language problems or cultural differences that may cause confusion and if so, how to handle them.

☐ If you need an interpreter, consider arranging for the interpreter to both prepare the witness and to be at the arbitration hearing. Explain the expense and necessity for it is to the client and consider whether this is so significant that you should settle the case rather than go forward.

☐ Either use someone the witness is familiar with and get the opposition to agree [by written stipulation] that someone other than a certified interpreter will be acting as interpreter or use a certified interpreter, certified in the language he or she will be translating.

AUTHOR: Hon. Richard C. Neal Editorial Consultant Richard C. Neal is an Associate Justice, California Court of Appeal, Second District. He was appointed to the Los Angeles Superior Court in 1992 after nearly twenty years in private practice in Los Angeles. Justice Neal served for several years as Chair of the Superior Court's Alternative Dispute Resolution Committee and oversaw implementation in Los Angeles County of the pilot civil action mediation program mandated by Code of Civil Procedure Section 1775 et seq.

§ 36.64 Pre-arbitration Conference

- A common practice among arbitrators so that preliminary matters can be discussed/arranged, such as scheduling and procedure. A good time to give the arbitrator(s) your arbitration book, although some arbitrators will want only the arbitration brief before the hearing. Additional discussion is likely to focus on the following:
  - The pleadings
  - The status of the process of the case.
  - The factual basis of the claims.
  - Affirmative defenses.
- Pre-arbitration conference can be in person or by phone (conference call).
- Possible time to determine whether the arbitrator will use a certified court reporter. In judicial arbitration, no record shall be made of arbitration hearing and arbitrator shall not permit court reporter except one to make a nondiscoverable record of proceedings for the arbitrator alone [Cal. Rules of Ct.,

Rule 3.824(b)].

☐ If the arbitrator does not have a pre-arbitration conference, you can contact the arbitrator's office to get information as to the procedures the arbitrator follows. It would be an improper ex parte communication to speak to the arbitrator [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.820], but communication with office staff about these matters is permissible.

☐ Any stipulation or agreement between the parties regarding procedure can be given to the arbitrator at the pre-arbitration conference.

§ 36.65 Arbitration Hearing

NOTE:
The parties are entitled to at least 30 days' notice of hearing, which is set by the arbitrator [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.817(a), (b); for discussion, see § 36.23].

☐ Do not communicate ex parte with arbitrator [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.820; for discussion, see § 36.28].

☐ Deliver to opposing party at least 20 days before hearing, or 25 days if delivered by mail, any or all of the following that are to be introduced in evidence [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.823; for discussion, see § 36.29[2]; for a form, see § 36.79]:

☐ Copies of expert witness reports, medical records and bills, police reports, and business records.

☐ Affidavits or declarations under penalty of perjury.

☐ Depositions.

NOTE: Response.

A party receiving a copy of an expert witness report, medical records and bills, police report, or business record may subpoena the author or custodian of the document as a witness [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.823(b)(1)(B)]. A party receiving a notice that a witness's deposition will be offered in evidence may subpoena the deponent [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.823(b)(3)(B)]. A party receiving a notice that a witness's affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury will be offered in evidence may, at least 10 days before the hearing, or 15 days if delivery is by mail, deliver on the proponent a written demand that the person be produced at the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.823(b)(2)(C), (d); for a form, see § 36.79].

☐ Stipulate to continuance, if desired and other party agrees [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.818(a)].

☐ Obtain arbitrator's consent to continuance [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.818(a)].

☐ Give notice of continuance to arbitration administrator [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.818(a)].

☐ If arbitrator withholds consent, move the court to continue the arbitration hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.818(b); for forms, see § 36.78].

☐ Support motion with facts showing good cause under [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.818(b)].

☐ If motion is granted, give notice to arbitrator.

☐ Attend arbitration hearing, which may proceed in the absence of any party if the party received due notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.821(b); for discussion, see § 36.29[1]].

☐ Discussion of preliminary agreements regarding scheduling, procedure, and evidence. This includes determining number of witnesses, order of witness, and likely amount of time required for each.

☐ Unless sufficiently addressed in your arbitration brief, counsel may with to have prepared a witness list with summary of testimony.

☐ If not presented to the arbitrator at a pre-arbitration conference, present any stipulations or agreements between the parties regarding procedure and evidence.

☐ Either side may present it is's evidence first. It is may save time to try an affirmative defense first, if that could dispose of the entire matter.

☐ Opening statements if desired. Pre-arbitration conference and/or arbitration briefs may make opening statements unnecessary, but counsel should be prepared to make on opening statement.

☐ Present evidence in presence of arbitrator and all parties, unless a party has waived the right or is absent after due notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.823(b); for discussion, see § 36.29[4]].

☐ Remember proper foundations for documentary, photographic, and physical evidence.

☐ Usual order of examination of each witness is as follows:

☐ Direct examination.

☐ Cross examination. Do not cross examine a witness unless there is a need to cross examine that witness. If the witness has not made any points that were damaging or harmful to your case, avoid the temptation to cross-examine just to look like you are doing your job.

☐ Redirect examination, if necessary.

☐ Rebuttal, if necessary.

☐ Closing argument. You can only argue from evidence you have presented.

§ 36.66 Trial de Novo

NOTE:
The arbitrator must file the award and proof of service with the court clerk within 10 days after the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.825(b)]. The award will become final, unless a request for trial de novo is filed within 30 days [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.827(c); for discussion, see § 36.30[1]].

☐ Determine whether to seek trial de novo [for discussion, see § 36.34].

☐ Consider likelihood of obtaining judgment more favorable than the award and potential liability for costs if judgment is not more favorable than award.

☐ Consider likelihood of judment on trial de novo being so much more favorable than award that it will more than offset litigation costs.

☐ Prepare request for trial de novo [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826; for discussion, see § 36.34[1]; for form, see § 36.81[1]].

☐ Serve request on all other parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826(a)].

☐ File request with proof of service on all other parties within 30 days after arbitration award is filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826(a)].

☐ Court has duty to return case to same place on civil active list as it would have been had no arbitration taken place [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826(a) (if no case management order provides for prosecution of case after request for trial de novo, court must promptly schedule case management conference)].

☐ Inform court of five-year mandatory dismissal deadline [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 434-435, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469 ; for discussion, see § 36.37].

☐ Continue to exercise diligence in bringing case to trial to avoid mandatory or discretionary dismissal for delay in prosecution [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310, 583.410 et seq.].

☐ Prepare evidence for trial with no reference to arbitration proceedings or award [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826(c)].

☐ Make demand for exchange of expert witness lists [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.24, 2034 (Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.010 et seq., effective July 1, 2005); for discussion, see § 36.35].

☐ If other post-arbitration discovery is desired either [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.24, 2034.010 et seq.; for discussion, see § 36.35]:

☐ Obtain stipulation allowing further discovery, or ☐ Obtain leave of court for good cause.

☐ If party electing trial de novo failed to obtain judgment more favorable than arbitration award, consider moving the court that imposition of costs and fees would create substantial hardship not in the interest of justice [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a); for forms, see § 36.82].

4-36 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 36.70

AUTHOR: Hon. Richard C. Neal Editorial Consultant Richard C. Neal is an Associate Justice, California Court of Appeal, Second District. He was appointed to the Los Angeles Superior Court in 1992 after nearly twenty years in private practice in Los Angeles. Justice Neal served for several years as Chair of the Superior Court's Alternative Dispute Resolution Committee and oversaw implementation in Los Angeles County of the pilot civil action mediation program mandated by Code of Civil Procedure Section 1775 et seq.

§ 36.70 Stipulation for Judicial Arbitration With Consent of Arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.12(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.726, 3.811(a)(4), 3.812(a)]

[1] FORM Stipulation for Judicial Arbitration With Consent of Arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.12(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.726, 3.811(a)(4), 3.812(a)]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a reproduction of the Santa Clara County form of Stipulation to ADR, showing its use to stipulate to judicial arbitration, instead of a trial, for any cause of action, regardless of the amount in controversy [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.12(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.726, 3.811(a)(4); see Santa Clara Co. Super. Rules, Rules 2-4]. By local rule in Santa Clara County, judicial arbitration hearings are limited to three hours, or in the arbitrator's discretion on a showing of good cause, five hours. A stipulation or court order is required for a longer hearing [Santa Clara Co. Super. Rules, Rule 4C].

Every county is required to have a form of stipulation to alternative dispute resolution, which is to be provided by the clerk as part of an ADR information package when the complaint is filed, and which the plaintiff must serve with the complaint [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.221; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.800(1) (definition of "ADR process")]. Cross complainants must serve copies of the ADR information package on any new parties to the action along with the cross complaint [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.221]. If the parties agree to use an ADR process, they are to complete the form jointly and file it with the court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.726].

[3] Contents of Stipulation

The illustrative form of stipulation in [1], above, as with most forms of stipulation to ADR, allows the parties to designate the arbitrator. The parties may by stipulation designate any person to serve as arbitrator, including persons who are not on the court's panel and are not attorneys [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815(a)]. If the parties designate a person who is not on the court's arbitration panel to serve as arbitrator, the stipulation will not be effective until the selected person completes a written consent to serve and the oath required of panel arbitrators, both of which should be attached to the stipulation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815(a); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.814(d) (oath requires certification of compliance with Code of Judicial Ethics)]. An unsworn affirmation may be filed in lieu of the oath [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.6]. If the parties do not designate an arbitrator in their stipulation, in Santa Clara County Superior Court, within 15 days of receiving a court-approved order to judicial arbitration, the court's arbitration administrator will send each party a list of names of arbitrators from the court's judicial arbitrator list. Each party has 10 days to strike one name from the list and return it. Thereafter, the court's arbitration administrator will appoint a random one of the remaining arbitrators [Santa Clara Co. Super. Rules, Rule 4A].

For discussion of the selection process of the arbitrator if the parties do not designate the arbitrator or if the designated arbitrator cannot act, see § 36.21.

A stipulation to arbitration may specify the maximum amount of the arbitrator's award [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815(a)].

[4] Time for Filing Stipulation

A stipulation for arbitration must be filed with the court no later than the time the initial case management statement is filed, unless the court orders otherwise. When the parties stipulate to arbitration, the case must be set for arbitration forthwith [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.812(a)].

A stipulation to an arbitrator must be served and filed no later than 10 days after the case has been set for arbitration under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.812 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815(a)].

[5] Tolling of Time Periods for Bringing Action to Trial

A stipulation for judicial arbitration signed by all the parties constitutes a submission to arbitration and starts the Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17 tolling of the five-year period for bringing a case to trial under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 et seq. [Porreco v. Red Top RV Center (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 113, 122-123, 264 Cal. Rptr. 609 (citing Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.12(a); former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1601(a)) [see now Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.812(a)]); for discussion of tolling, see § 36.37]. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17(b), whether the stipulated arbitration is subject to a trial de novo or the parties have waived their right to a trial de novo by agreeing in their stipulation to binding arbitration, the stipulation tolls the running of the five-year period for mandatory dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310, 583.360, even if the stipulation is not signed by the court until after expiration of that period [Porreco v. Red Top RV Center (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 113, 122-129, 264 Cal. Rptr. 609 (distinguishing Moran v. Superior Court (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 229, 235 n.5, 197 Cal. Rptr 546, 673 P.2d 216 , Davenport v. Vido Artukovich & Son, Inc. (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 60, 64-65, 190 Cal. Rptr. 64 , and Taylor v. County of San Bernardino (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 42, 46-47, 191 Cal. Rptr. 518 , on the ground they were decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17 prior to its 1983 amendment)].

Moreover, a written stipulation to submit to binding arbitration is independently enforceable, notwithstanding expiration of the five-year period in which a party must bring his or her case to trial. Thus, even if the complaint is dismissed for failure to bring it to trial within the five-year period, the parties would be bound to arbitrate the controversy, and the superior court would retain the role of hearing motions to compel arbitration and of enforcing any award [Porreco v. Red Top RV Center (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 113, 130-131, 264 Cal. Rptr. 609] .

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by one or more plaintiffs to submit any limited or unlimited civil case to arbitration. All plaintiffs must join in the election and each must agree that the arbitration award will not exceed $50,000 as to that plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.12(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.811(a)(5)].

The form must be filed no later than the time the initial case management statement is filed, unless the court orders otherwise. When plaintiffs elect to submit a case to arbitration, the case must be set for arbitration forthwith, subject to a motion by defendant for good cause to delay the arbitration hearing [*Code Civ. MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

[Add memorandum of points and authorities supporting motion.]

[b] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion and supporting declaration in [a], above, is for use by a defendant to seek a court order to delay the arbitration hearing for good cause after the defendant receives notice that the plaintiff has elected [see § 36.71] to submit an action to arbitration [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.812(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(c)(2) (earliest time that arbitration hearing may be held)].

Although no time limit is placed on a defendant to make a motion for delay of the arbitration hearing, it would appear that the motion should be made shortly after defendant receives notice of the plaintiff's election to arbitrate and in those instances when the defendant cannot secure the plaintiff's agreement by stipulation to continue the hearing or get the arbitrator to consent to a stipulation between the parties for a continuance [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules Rules 3.812(b), 3.817; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(a), Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.812(d) (amount in controversy usually determined at initial case management conference)].

[c] Points and Authorities

A memorandum of points and authorities must be served and filed with this notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]. For general discussion and forms relating to points and authorities, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by any party to an arbitration proceeding to reject particular persons as arbitrators after the arbitration administrator for the court has submitted a list of potential arbitrators to the parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815].

[3] Procedure for Selecting Arbitrator

If the parties do not stipulate to an arbitrator [see [4], below], local rules commonly will govern the process for selecting the arbitrator [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815, discussed in § 36.21[2]].

The basic procedure for selecting an arbitrator if an alternative method has not been adopted by local rule, provides for the ADR administrator to randomly select the names of at least three persons from the appropriate panel of arbitrators within 15 days after a case is set for arbitration. After the administrator mails the list of potential arbitrators to counsel for each party, each side has 10 days from the date of the mailing to file a rejection, in writing, of no more than one name on the list. If there are two or more parties on a side, they must join in the rejection of a single name. Promptly on expiration of the 10-day period, the administrator must appoint, at random, one of the persons on the list whose name was not rejected, if more than one name remains [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815(b), see § 36.21[1]]. Local rules must assure that an arbitrator is appointed within 30 days from the submission of the case to arbitration [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815(c); see § 36.21[2]].

If the rejection of potential arbitrators is done by sides to the case, rather than by parties, the administrator will determine the number of clearly adverse sides in the case. Absent a cross complaint bringing in a new party, the administrator may assume there are two sides. A dispute as to the number or identity of sides is decided by the presiding judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815(b)(1)].

[4] Stipulation of Arbitrator in Lieu of Rejection

In lieu of having the administrator propose potential arbitrators and the rejection procedure by the parties or sides to determine one arbitrator, the parties may stipulate as to the selection of the arbitrator, who may be any person, and is not limited to an attorney or judge [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815(a); for a form of stipulation, see § 36.70[1]].

Proc. §§ 170.1 or 170.6 with appropriate statutory citation*].
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By:_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by any party in an arbitration proceeding to request the disqualification of the arbitrator selected for the case on the grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.1 or 170.6 [see [3]-[5], below]. A copy of the request must be sent to the ADR administrator [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.816(c)].

For a discussion of the arbitrator's duty to disqualify himself or herself, see § 36.22.

[3] Disqualification Under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6

[a] Grounds and Procedure

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, a party to the arbitration hearing has the right to one peremptory challenge of an arbitrator. The challenge is made on the party's motion and declaration showing his or her good-faith belief that the arbitrator is prejudiced against the party or the interest of the party or his or her attorney [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.6(a)(1), (3), 1141.18(d); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.816; see also McCartney v. Commission on Judicial Qualifications (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 512, 531-532, 116 Cal. Rptr. 260, 526 P.2d 268] .

If the disqualification is sought under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, the request for disqualification must be accompanied by an affidavit [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(5)] or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.6(a)(6), 2015.5] in the form set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(5). Alternatively, the required information may be given by oral statement under oath [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(6)].

The discqualification follows the procedure provided for in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a). For discussion and forms relating to peremptory disqualification under Section 170.6, including a form based on the Section 170.6(a)(5) statutory form, see Ch. 317, Judges .

[b] Time to Request Disqualification

A request for peremptory disqualification under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 must be made within five days of the naming of the arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(d)].

[4] Disqualification for Cause Under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1

[a] Grounds and Procedure

A party may disqualify an arbitrator for cause on the grounds and by the procedure specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(d); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.816]. The grounds for disqualification for cause are as follows [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.816(d)]:

- The arbitrator has personal knowledge of disputed evidentiary facts concerning the proceeding.

- The arbitrator served as a lawyer in the proceeding, or in any other proceeding involving the same issues he or she served as a lawyer for any party in the present proceeding or gave advice to any party in the present proceeding on any matter involved in the action or proceeding.

- The arbitrator has a financial interest in the subject matter in a proceeding or in a party to the proceeding.

- The arbitrator, or his or her spouse, or a person within the third degree of relationship to either of them, or the spouse of such a person is a party to the proceeding or an officer, director, or trustee of a party.

- A lawyer or spouse of a lawyer in the proceeding is the spouse, former spouse, child, sibling, or parent of the arbitrator or the arbitrator's spouse or if such a person is associated in the private practice of law with a lawyer in the proceeding.

- For any reason the arbitrator believes his or her recusal would further the interests of justice, or the arbitrator believes there is a substantial doubt as to his or her capacity to be impartial, or a person aware of the facts might reasonably entertain a doubt that the arbitrator would be able to be impartial. Bias or prejudice towards a lawyer in the proceeding may be grounds for disqualification.

- By reason of permanent or temporary physical impairment, the arbitrator is unable to properly conduct the proceeding.

- Whether the judge has any current arrangement concerning prospective employment or other compensated service as a dispute resolution neutral, or is participating in, or within the last two years has participated in, any discussions regarding such prospective employment or service, or has been engaged in such employment or service and any of four other situations apply, including that the arrangement is, or the prior employment or discussion was, with a party to the proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(8)(B)(i) (defining "participating in discussions" or "has participated in discussion")].

Factors that are not grounds for disqualification are set out in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.1 and 170.2. Related definitions appear in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5. For discussion of the grounds and procedure for disqualification for cause and forms alleging various grounds under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1, see Ch. 317, Judges .

If the arbitrator has fails to disqualify himself or herself on a party's demand, the party may move the court to vacate the appointment of the arbitrator to the case [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.816(d); for a form of notice of motion, see § 36.77].

[b] Time to Request Disqualification

A request for disqualification for cause under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 may be made any time before the conclusion of the arbitration proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(d)].

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

[Add memorandum of points and authorities supporting motion.]

[b] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion and supporting declaration in [a], above, is for use by any party in an arbitration proceeding to seek a court order vacating the appointment of an arbitrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(d); Cal. Rule of Ct., Rule 3.816(d)]. The motion must be made as promptly as possible under Code. Civ. Proc. §§ 170.1 and 1141.18(d) before the conclusion of arbitration proceedings. However, before making the motion, the moving party must first have demanded that the arbitrator disqualify himself or herself [Cal. Rule of Ct., Rule 3.816(d)]. For further discussion of disqualification of an arbitrator, see discussion under § 36.22; see also § 36.76[2]-[4].

[c] Points and Authorities

A memorandum of points and authorities must be served and filed with this notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]. For general discussion and forms relating to points and authorities, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

This notice is given pursuant to California Rules of Court, Rule 3.823.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[b] Use of Form

The form of notice in [a], above, is for use by any party in an arbitration proceeding to give notice of intent to introduce in evidence expert witness reports, medical records and bills, police reports, business records, written statements, or depositions [see Cal. Rule of Ct., 3.823(b)]. Written statements must be in the form of declarations under penalty of perjury [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.823(b)(2)]. For discussion of the requirements for admissibility under Rule 3.823, see § 36.29[2].

[c] Time Requirement

The notice of intent, as well as copies of the reports, other writings, or statements of witnesses sought to be introduced, must be delivered to all opposing parties at least 20 days before the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.823(b)(1)(A), (2)(B); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.823(b)(3)(A) (notice of intention to introduce deposition in evidence)]. Delivery may be accomplished manually or by mail as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1013. If service is by mail, the times prescribed in Rule 3.823 for delivery of documents, notices, and demands are extended by five days [Cal. Rule of Ct., Rule 3.823(d)].

[d] Response

The opposing party may respond to the notice regarding a written statement by a written demand that the witness be produced to testify at the hearing [Cal. Rule of Ct., Rule 3.823(b)(2)(C); for a form, see [2], below].

The opposing party may respond to the notice regarding a expert witness report, medical record and bills, police report, business record or deposition by subpoenaing the author or custodian of the document or the deponent [Cal. Rule of Ct., Rule 3.823(b)(1)(B), (3)(B)]. The subpoena is issued as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1985 and elsewhere in Code of Civil Procedure Part 4, Title 3, Chapter 2 and 3 [Cal. Rule of Ct., Rule 3.823(c)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985 et seq., 2002 et seq.]. For an illustration of the Judicial Council form of subpoena that the person requesting issuance of the subpoena must modify to showing that the appearance is before an arbitrator and giving the time and place of the arbitration hearing, see Ch. 535, Subpoena .

[b] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion and supporting declaration in [a], above, is for use by any party against whom a judgment is entered pursuant to an arbitration award to request the court to vacate the judgment. This form is based on the ground that the arbitrator was subject to a disqualification not disclosed before the arbitration hearing and of which the arbitrator was then aware [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.22-1141.23; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(a)]. This motion must be brought within six months after entry of the judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(a)]. For the grounds of disqualification, see § 36.76[4].

A judgment entered pursuant to an arbitration award may also be vacated on grounds set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 473 or 1286.2(a)(1)-(3) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(a); for discussion, see §§ 36.31 and 36.32]. For a motion to vacate judgment on these grounds, see Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review .

For further discussion, see § 36.31.

[c] Points and Authorities

A memorandum of points and authorities must be served and filed with this notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]. For general discussion and forms relating to points and authorities, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[1] FORM Request for Trial de Novo After Arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826]--Judicial Council Form ADR-102

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustration of Judicial Council Form ADR-102 and is used to request a trial de novo after an arbitration award has been filed with the court by the arbitrator. Any party to the case may elect to have a de novo trial, by court or jury, both as to law and facts by filing this form within 30 days after the award is filed with the court clerk [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826(a)].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge. However, courts may preprint the address to which the form should be returned in the box at the top of the page. Therefore, if the form is not obtained from the court, the exact address, including the specific department to which the form should be sent should be determined before filling it out.

[3] Time for Request Cannot Be Extended

The 30-day time period for requesting trial de novo cannot be extended. The request must be served on all other parties appearing in the case, and proof of such service must be filed with the court clerk along with the trial request [Code Civ.

Proc. § 1141.20; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826(a)]. However, if a party was never properly served a copy of the award, the 30-day period does not begin to run until that party actually received notice of the award [Domingo v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 550, 554, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 224] .

§ 37.10 Began as Pilot Project

The Civil Action Mediation Act (Code Civ. Proc. § 1775 et seq.) began as a pilot program in Los Angeles for actions filed on or after January 1, 1994. The program became permanent on repeal of the sunset clause that would otherwise have terminated it on January 1, 1999. The Civil Action Mediation Act establishes a procedure in Los Angeles County, under which the court may refer cases to appropriate dispute resolution processes such as judicial arbitration and mediation as an alternative to trial, consistent with the parties' right to obtain a trial if a dispute is not resolved through an alternative process [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1775(e), 1775.2]. Despite the statute's broad statement allowing referral of cases to alternative dispute resolution, nothing in Section 1775 et seq. actually authorizes the court to refer a case to any process other than mediation. The authority for other processes, including judicial arbitration and mandatory settlement conferences is found in other statutes and rules.

Any other county may elect to apply the program [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1775(e), 1775.2(b)].

The program applies to all at issue civil cases in which judicial arbitration is otherwise required under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11 whether or not the action includes a prayer for equitable relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.3(a)].

§ 37.12 Diversion to Alternative Procedure at Early Stage of Action

Mediation and similar alternative processes can have the greatest benefit for the parties in a civil action when used early, before substantial discovery and other litigation costs have been incurred. If appropriate, participants in disputes should be encouraged to utilize mediation and other alternatives to trial for resolving their differences in the early stages of a civil action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1775(d)]. Thus, effective July 1, 2002, in all general civil cases, unless certain limited civil cases are excepted by local rule, there will be a case management conference at which the court must review the case and determine if it is suitable for alternative dispute resolution, including mediation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.727(6)]. No later than 30 calendar days before the date set for the case management conference, the parties must meet and confer, in person or by phone, to consider, among other things, whether the parties wish to stipulate to, or the case should be referred to, mediation or any other form of alternative dispute resolution, and if so, the date by which the ADR must be completed, as well as possible settlement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule Rules 3.724, 3.727(6)]. If all the partiesagree to an ADR process, they must jointly complete the form of ADR stipulation served with the complaint in accordance with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule3.221 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.726]. The parties must also file and serve a mandatory case management statement 15 calendar days before the date set for the case management conference [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.725; see generally, Ch.425, Pretrial Proceedings].

§ 37.18 Cases That May Be Ordered to Mediation

[1] Alternative to Mandatory Judicial Arbitration

Any civil action in which arbitration is otherwise required pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11 (discussed in [2], [3], below) may be submitted to mediation by the presiding judge, or the judge designated under this title, as an alternative to judicial arbitration pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.10 et seq., regardless of whether the action includes a prayer for equitable relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.3(a)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Orders to Mediate Made at Status Conference. In Los Angeles Superior Court the mediation order is made at a status conference, by the individual calendar judge to whom the case is assigned, or by the supervising judge in those districts using a master calendar system. By Hon. Richard C. Neal

The court is not to order a case into mediation if the amount in controversy exceeds $50,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.5; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.891(a)(1)].

Regardless of these restrictions, the parties may stipulate to mediation in any case see [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.891(a)(2); for discussion, see § 37.17].

[2] When Judicial Arbitration Is Required

In each superior court with 18 or more judges, all nonexempt unlimited civil cases must be submitted to arbitration, by the presiding judge or other designated judge, if the amount in controversy, in the court's opinion, will not exceed $50,000 for each plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 85 et seq. (defining "limited civil case")]. This includes superior courts in Alameda, Contra Costa, Fresno, Kern, Los Angeles, Monterey, Orange, Riverside, Sacramento, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Francisco, San Joaquin, San Mateo, Santa Barbara, Santa Clara, andVentura Counties [Gov. Code §§ 69580, 69582, 69583, 69585, 69586, 69590-69598, 69599-69600, 69606].

In each superior court with fewer than 18 judges, local rules may provide that when it is in the best interests of justice, all nonexempt unlimited civil cases must be submitted to arbitration if the amount in controversy in the opinion of the court will not exceed $50,000 for each plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(b)].

Each superior court may provide by local rule, when it is determined to be in the best interests of justice, that all nonexempt unlimited civil cases must be submitted to arbitration by the presiding judge or other designated judge [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 85 et seq. (defining "limited civil case")].

[3] Actions Exempt From Arbitration

The following actions are exempt from judicial arbitration:

(a) Consumer class actions pursuant to Civ. Code § 1781 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(c)] or any class action [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.801(b)(2); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.15].

(b) Small claims actions pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 116.110 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(c); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.801(b)(3)] or trials de novo on appeal from the small claims court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.801(b)(3); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.15].

(c) Unlawful detainer proceedings pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1161 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(c)] or any unlawful detainer proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.801(b)(4); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.15].

(d) Proceedings under the Family Law Act except as provided in Fam. Code § 2554 (character, valuation, and division of property) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.801(b)(5); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.15].

(e) Any case otherwise subject to arbitration that the court finds to be not amenable to arbitration on the grounds that arbitration would not reduce the probable time and expense necessary to resolve the litigation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.801(b)(6); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.15].

(f) Any category of case otherwise subject to arbitration but excluded by local rule as not amenable to arbitration on the grounds that under the circumstances relating to the particular court, arbitration of such cases would not reduce the probable time and expense necessary to resolve the litigation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.801(b)(7); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.15].

(g) Cases involving multiple causes of action or a cross complaint, if the court determines that the amount in controversy as to any given cause of action or cross complaint exceeds $50,000 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.801(b)(8); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.15].

These actions would therefore not be subject to civil action mediation [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.3(a)].

[4] Action Exempt From Judicial Arbitration Because It Seeks Equitable Relief Is Subject to Mediation

However, civil action mediation does expressly apply to one category of cases that is excepted from mandatory judicial arbitration--actions that include a prayer for equitable relief [compare Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.3(a) with Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.13; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.801(b)(1)].

[5] Actions Involving Public Agency or Entity

The presence of a public agency or public entity as a party does not preclude submission to mediation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.3(b)].

AUTHOR: Hon. Richard C. Neal Editorial Consultant

§ 37.19 Determining the Amount in Controversy and Ordering a Case to Mediation

[1] Case-by-Case Determination

The determination of the amount in controversy is made in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16 (regarding judicial arbitration), which requires the determination to be made at a conference with all parties in attendance or represented. In making this determination, the court is not to consider the merits of questions of liability, defenses, or comparative negligence [Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.5; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.891(a)(1)].

The amenability of a particular action for mediation is to be determined on a case-by-case basis, rather than categorically [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.891(b)]. The determination to send a case to mediation is to be made by the court after considering the parties' expressed views on the amenability of the case to mediation. The court is not to require the parties or their counsel to appear personally in court for a conference held solely to determine whether to send their case to mediation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.891(a)(1)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Which Cases to Mediate. Experts on mediation disagree concerning what types of cases are best suited to mediation. Some urge that cases involving a continuing relationship (e.g., employer-employee, landlord-tenant) or high emotional level are better suited to mediation than purely monetary disputes between strangers, such as the typical personal injury case. However, many insurance industry representatives and personal injury lawyers believe that mediation also works well in the latter category of cases. First year results in Los Angeles Superior court show considerable success in mediations in all types of cases. By Hon. Richard C. Neal

PRACTICE TIP: Advantages of Mediation Over Arbitration. Several features of judicially mandated mediation may make it more attractive than judicially mandated arbitration in a particular case. These include:

The parties (and in the case of a party who is not an individual, a representative with settlement authority), must attend the mediation [see § 37.24]; no such attendance is required at an arbitration. In many cases the presence of someone with the power of the checkbook greatly enhances the prospects for settlement.

A mediation order does not cut off discovery, whereas in cases ordered to arbitration, all discovery must be completed 15 days before the arbitration hearing [see § 37.25].

No definitive evaluation of either side's case is made at a mediation, so the possibility of further settlement negotiations post-mediation is optimized. By contrast, the award made after arbitration may tend to harden the winning party's resolve not to compromise.

No evidentiary hearing or presentation need be prepared for a mediation, whereas this is necessary for an arbitration. This difference may be especially significant where a case relies centrally on expert testimony.

Mediation potentially can occur much earlier than arbitration. A status conference may occur as early as 30 days after a responsive pleading is filed [Gov. Code § 68616(e)], in other words, as early as 60 days after filing. Mediations in the normal course must be completed within 60 days after referral [see § 37.26]. By contrast, an arbitration hearing cannot occur until a minimum of 210 days after filing of the complaint [Gov. Code § 68616(g)]. By Hon. Richard C. Neal

[2] Conference

The determination of the amount in controversy is made by the court and the case referred to arbitration or mediation at the first case management conference or review under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.720 et seq. that takes place after all named parties have appeared or defaulted [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(a); but see Code Civ. Proc. § 367.5(b)(1) (unless court has determined otherwise, party who has given notice, made good faith attempt to meet and confer before conference, and filed case management statement may appear by telephone)]. No determination of the amount in controversy need be made if all parties stipulate in writing that the amount in controversy exceeds $50,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.812(d)].

In Los Angeles County Superior Court, this will be the first case management conference. It will be held no later than 180 days after the complaint is filed [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.9(a); see Gov. Code § 68616(e), (g)].

[3] Basis for Determination

The determination of the amount in controversy is based on the total amount of damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(a)]. In making this determination, the court is not to consider the merits of questions of liability, defenses, or comparative negligence [Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.5; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.891(a)(1); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(a)]. The determination is without prejudice to any finding on the value of the case by an arbitrator or in a subsequent trial de novo [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(b)].

The court will not make the determination if all parties stipulate in writing that the amount in controversy exceeds $50,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(a)]. The court's determination of the amount in controversy is not appealable [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(a)].

§ 37.20 Mutually Exclusive Alternative to Judicial Arbitration

An action that has been ordered into compulsory arbitration pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11 or stipulated arbitration or arbitration at plaintiff's request under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.12 may not be ordered into mediation under this project. Conversely, an action that has been ordered into mediation pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.3 may not be ordered into arbitration pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.4].

PRACTICE TIP:

Mediation Order Does Not Bar Later MSC. The prohibition on ordering a case to arbitration which has been previously ordered to mediation, and vice versa, apparently does not prohibit a later order under Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380(a) requiring a mandatory settlement conference. In practice, however, many judges may be reluctant to require the parties to incur the cost of an MSC where a prior ADR procedure such as mediation or arbitration has been unsuccessful. By Hon. Richard C. Neal

PRACTICE TIP:

Composition of Los Angeles Superior Court Mediator List. Mediators on the court's list meet the minimum qualifications under the Dispute Resolution Programs Act, Bus. & Prof. Code § 465, and 16 Cal. Code Reg. 3622. In summary, they have 25 hours of classroom mediation training, or 25 hours of actual dispute resolution experience. Hours of service as a volunteer settlement officer are accepted under the latter standard. By Hon. Richard C. Neal

PRACTICE TIP: Selecting Court List Mediator. In Los Angeles County almost all litigants ordered to mediation elect to use a free volunteer mediator from the court's list. Litigants or their counsel are required to select from a list of mediators with expertise in the subject area of the dispute. The selection is made at the ADR Office immediately following the status conference at which the mediation order is made. The ADR Office then notifies the mediator of assignment, and the mediator contacts the parties to arrange the date, time, and place of the mediation. By Hon. Richard C. Neal

If the parties are unable to agree on a mediator within the 15-day period, the court may select a mediator [Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.6; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.893; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.892 (standards for identifying persons who may be appointed as mediators)].

§ 37.22 Compensation of Mediator

Court-appointed mediators are paid $150 per case or per day, whichever is greater, except that no compensation shall be paid before the mediator files a statement of nonagreement pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.9 or the parties settle the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.8(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(b)]. Higher rates may be set in a county or city and county by the board of supervisors [Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.8(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(b)]. Volunteers may also be available who will serve without compensation, as has been the case with mediators on the Los Angeles County Superior Court Mediator List.

§ 37.23 Payment of Mediation Costs

Administrative costs of mediation, including compensation of mediators, are to be paid in the same manner as for arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.28 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.8(b)]. Section 1141.28 generally provides for payment by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.28(a)]. The arbitrator's compensation is payable by the parties, however, if the action would not have been subject to arbitration but for the parties' stipulation. In that case, the parties pay the arbitrator's compensation in equal shares. If the imposition of these costs would create such a substantial economic hardship for any party as not to be in the interest of justice, as determined by the arbitrator, that party's share of the costs will be paid for by the court.The determination of hardship may be reviewed by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.28(b)].

§ 37.24 Appearances at Mediation Sessions

All parties and attorneys of record must attend all mediation sessions in person unless excused or permitted to attend by telephone [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.894(a)(1), (3)]. A party that is not a natural person must appear by a representative who has authority to resolve the dispute or, in the case of a governmental entity that requires an agreement to be approved by an elected official or a legislative body, a representative with authority to recommend such agreement must attend all mediation sessions in person, unless excused or permitted to attend by telephone [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.894(a)(1), (3)]. The mediator may excuse a party, attorney, or representative from the requirement to attend a mediation session or permit attendance by telephone. The party, attorney, or representative who is excused or permitted to attend by telephone must promptly send a letter or an electronic communication to the mediator and to all parties confirming the excuse or permission [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.894(a)(2)].

Each party may have counsel present at all mediation sessions that concern that party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.894(a)(4)].

If any party is insured under a policy that provides, or may provide, coverage for a claim that is a subject of the action, a representative of the insurer with authority to settle or recommend settlement of the claim must attend all mediation sessions in person, unless excused or permitted to attend by telephone [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.894(a)(2), (3)].

§ 37.24A Participant Lists and Mediation Statements

At least five court days before the first mediation session, each party must serve a list of its mediation participants on the mediator and all other parties. The list must include the names of all parties, attorneys, representatives of a party that is not a natural person, insurance representatives, and other persons who will attend the mediation with or on behalf of that party. A party must promptly serve a supplemental list if the party subsequently determines that other persons will attend the mediation with or on behalf of the party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.894(b)(1)].

The mediator may request that each party submit a short mediation statement providing information about the issues in dispute and possible resolutions of those issues and other information or documents that may appear helpful to resolve the dispute [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.894(b)(2)].

§ 37.25 Discovery While Mediation Is Pending

Any party who participates in mediation pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.3 retains the right to obtain discovery to the extent available under the Civil Discovery Act (Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.010 et seq.) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.11].

However, Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.896(d) urges parties to exercise restraint in discovery while a case is in mediation. In appropriate cases, a protective order under Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.020 and related provisions, may be issued by the court to accommodate that objective [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.896(d)].

For discussion and forms of protective orders, see Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, § 190.30 et seq.

PRACTICE TIP:

Discovery Before Mediation. Reasonable knowledge of the facts relevant to one's case is usually necessary for an effective mediation, and sometimes some discovery is needed to lay the informational foundation for a successful mediation. On the other hand, one of the important attractions of mediation is the possibility of reaching an early settlement and thus avoiding the substantial expense that can accompany full, complete discover. Counsel must exercise judgment to accommodate these competing concerns. By Hon. Richard C. Neal

§ 37.26 Termination of Mediation

Neither Code Civ. Proc. § 1775 et seq. nor Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 3.890 et seq. establish a minimum time within which mediation must be completed.

Mediation must be completed within 60 days of a reference to a mediator, but that period may be extended by the court for up to 30 days on a showing of good cause [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.896(c)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Extending Time for Completion of Mediation. Trial judges may be willing in appropriate cases to extend the time within which mediation must occur beyond the 60-day initial/90-day extended periods specified in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.896(c). Most judges will not wish to compel attendance at a mediation prior to the time all parties believe they have the necessary information in hand to negotiate meaningfully. By Hon. Richard C. Neal

If the parties to mediation are unable to reach a mutually acceptable agreement and any party to the mediation wishes to terminate the mediation, the mediator must file a statement of nonagreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.9(a)].

§ 37.27 Statement of Agreement or Nonagreement

Within 10 days of the conclusion of mediation, the mediator must file a statement on Judicial Council form ADR-100, advising the court whether the mediation ended in full agreement or nonagreement as to the entire case or as to particular parties in the case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.895]. For an illustration of the Judicial Council form of statement of agreement or nonagreement, see § 37.75[1].
