The Judicial Council requires each court to submit quarterly reports regarding cost and time savings afforded by mediation, and information related to the effectiveness of mediation in resolving disputes [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.897(a)]. Courts are directed to require parties and mediators to supply pertinent information for those reports [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.897(c); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.14].

After mediation has concluded, the mediator should give an ADR Information Form to both parties and counsel to fill out separately and file with the court clerk [Administrative Office of the Courts News Release, March 1, 1994]. For an illustration of this Judicial Council form, see § 37.76[1].

§ 37.29 Trial After Mediation; Duty to Prosecute Diligently

When a statement of nonagreement is filed, the matter must be calendared for trial, insofar as possible, so that the trial shall be given the same place on the active list as it had prior to mediation, or shall receive civil priority on the next setting calendar [Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.9(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Post-Mediation Status Conference. Los Angeles County individual calendar courts no longer keep an "active list." Cases ordered to mediation will not be removed from such a list, so no necessity arises to "return a case to active status." These courts do routinely schedule a post-mediation status conference when making the mediation order, and a trial will be set at the post-mediation status conference if settlement is not achieved at mediation. By Hon. Richard C. Neal

For discussion of trial setting, including preferences and priorities generally, see Ch. 425, Pretrial Proceedings, § 425.60 et seq.

§ 37.30 Dismissal for Delay in Prosecution; Tolling of Dismissal Statute

Submission of an action to civil action mediation under Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.1 et seq. does not suspend the running of the Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq. time periods relating to dismissal for delay in prosecution, except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.7 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.7(a)].

If an action is or remains submitted to civil action mediation under Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.1 et seq. more than four years and six months after the plaintiff has filed the action, then the time beginning on the date four years and six months after the action was filed and ending on the date on which a statement of nonagreement is filed [see § 37.27] is excluded in computing the Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 five-year period for bringing the case to trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.7(b); Gonzalez v. County of Los Angeles (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1124, 1129, 1132, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 381].

ILLUSTRATION:

Calculation of Tolling Period. The action was filed on May 13, 1998. At the final status conference on February 26, 2003, the matter was ordered to mediation, with a completion date of April 20, 2003. At that conference, plaintiff's attorney mistakenly stated the five-year dismissal date to be December 15, 2003, and the original trial date was put over until August 2003. Mediation on April 17, 2003, was unsuccessful and the mediator filed a statement of nonagreement on that date. On May 19, 2003, defendant moved for dismissal. The trial court calculated that the time from February 26, 2003, to April 17, 2003, was 51 days; and that the mandatory dismissal date should to be extended by 51 days: from May 13, 2003, until July 7, 2003. Because the case had not been tried by July 7, the court dismissed the action. Was that correct? No. In accordance with the plain language of Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.7(b), the tolling period began four years and six months after the case is filed (November 14, 2002) and ended on the date the statement of nonagreement was filed (April 17, 2003). Thus, April 17, 2003, became the new "four-year-six-month" date, and the five-year deadline was extended until October 17, 2003 [Gonzalez v. County of Los Angeles (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1124, 1129, 1132, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 381].

This provision parallels the tolling provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17. For discussion of how that tolling provision has been applied, see Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration .

§ 37.31 Coordination With Trial Court Delay Reduction Act

Submission of an action to civil action mediation under Code Cov. Pro. § 1775.1 et seq. is not to affect the time periods specified in the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act, except as provided in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.896 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.896(a); see Gov. Code § 68600 et seq.].

Under Rule 3.896, on the parties' written stipulation, the court may order an exception of up to 90 days to the delay reduction time standards to permit mediation of an action. The stipulation must be filed with the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.896(b)].].

The court is to coordinate the timing of the 90-day period with its delay reduction calendar [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.896(b); see also § 37.26].

PRACTICE TIP:

Procedure Rarely Used. In practice, the provision for excepting up to 90 days of time for mediation is seldom if ever invoked. Los Angeles Superior Court has, accordingly, taken no steps to coordinate the timing of the 90-day period with the delay reduction calendar. By Hon. Richard C. Neal

§ 37.32 Evidentiary Protection for Statements Made in Mediation and Fact of Mediation

All statements made by the parties during the mediation are subject to Evid. Code §§ 703.5, 1115-1128, and 1152, which limit the admission in evidence of offers to compromise and generally exclude from evidence statements and admissions made in mediation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.10]. That privilege extends to documents prepared for the mediation [see Rojas v. Superior Court (Coffin) (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 407, 422-423 n.8, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 643, 93 P.3d 260] . Mediation confidentiality is discussed in Ch. 31, Mediation, § 31.13.

Any reference to the mediation or the statement of nonagreement filed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.9 during any subsequent trial shall constitute an irregularity in the proceedings of the trial for the purposes of granting a new trial under Code Civ. Proc. § 657 [*Code Civ. § 37.33 Award of Mediation Expenses as Costs

The award of mediation expenses as costs is neither provided for nor proscribed by statute [Gibson v. Bobroff (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1202, 1207, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 235 (citing Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5)].

When an unsuccessful mediation has been court-ordered, reasonably necessary expenses incident to the mediation may, in the sound discretion of the trial court, be awarded after trial to the prevailing party [Gibson v. Bobroff (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1202, 1209, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 235 (expressly refraining from deciding whether costs of an unsuccessful voluntary mediation would be recoverable after trial)]. The basis for the award is the discretionary authority of a court under Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(c)(4) to award costs reasonably necessary to the conduct of the litigation rather than merely convenient or beneficial to its preparation [Gibson v. Bobroff (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1202, 1207, 1209, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 235].

Whether a cost is reasonably necessary to the conduct of the litigation is a question of fact for the trial court, whose decision will be reviewed for abuse of discretion. [Gibson v. Bobroff (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1202, 1209, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 235].

§ 37.34 Conduct of Mediators in Court-Connected Mediations

[1] Purpose and Application

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.850 et seq. establish minimum standards of conduct for mediators in court-connected mediation programs for general civil cases [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.850(a)]. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.850 et seq. are not intended to do any of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.850(b)]:

- Establish a ceiling on what is considered good practice in mediation or discourage efforts by courts, mediators, or others to educate mediators about best practices;
- Create a basis for a civil cause of action against a mediator; or
- Create a basis for challenging a settlement agreement reached in connection with the mediation.

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.850 et seq. apply to mediations in which a mediator [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.851(a)]:

- Has agreed to be included on a superior court's panel of mediators for general civil cases and is notified by the court or the parties that he or she has been selected to mediate a case within that court's mediation program; or
- Has agreed to mediate a general civil case pending in a superior court after being notified by the court or the parties that he or she was recommended, appointed, or selected by that court or will be compensated by that court to mediate a case within the court's mediation program.

However, a mediator who is not on a superior court list or panel and who is selected by the parties is not "recommended, selected, or appointed" by the court within the meaning of the latter option simply because the court approves the parties' agreement to use that mediator or states the parties' selection in a court order [Cal. Rules of Ct.,

If a court's panel or list includes firms that provide mediation services, all mediators affiliated with a listed firm are required to comply with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.850-3.860 when they are notified by the court or the parties that the firm was selected from the court list to mediate a general civil case within that court's mediation program [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.851(b)]. Except as otherwise provided in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.850 et seq., these rules apply from the time the mediator agrees to mediate a case until the end of the mediation in that case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.851(c)]. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.850 et seq., do not apply to judges or other judicial officers while they are serving in a capacity in which they are governed by the Code of Judicial Ethics [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.851(d)], nor do they apply to settlement conferences conducted under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.851(e)].

[2] Definitions

[a] Mediation

Mediation means a process in which a neutral person or persons facilitate communication between the disputants to assist them in reaching a mutually acceptable agreement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.852(1)].

[b] Mediator

Mediator means a neutral person who conducts a mediation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.852(2)]. This definition differs from the definition in Evid. Code § 1115(b) in that it does not include persons designated by the mediator to assist in the mediation or to communicate with a participant in preparation for the mediation. However, this definition is applicable to these rules of conduct and does not limit or expand mediation confidentiality under Evid. Code § 1115(b) (discussed in Ch. 31, Mediation) [Advisory Committee Comment to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.852(2)].

Participant means any individual, entity, or group, other than the mediator, taking part in a mediation, including but not limited to attorneysfor the parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.852(3)]. Participant includes insurance adjusters, experts, and consultants as well as the parties and their attorneys [Advisory Committee Comment to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.852(3)].

[d] Party

Party means any individual, entity, or group taking part in a mediation that is a plaintiff, a defendant, a cross-complainant, a cross-defendant, a petitioner, a respondent, or an intervenor in the case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.852(4)].

[3] Criteria for Competence

A mediator must comply with experience, training, education, and other requirements established by the court for appointment and retention [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.856(a)]. A mediator has a continuing obligation to truthfully represent his or her background to the court and participants. On request of any party, a mediator must provide truthful information regarding his or her experience, training, and education [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.856(b)]. A mediator must also inform the court if any of the following have occurred [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.856(c)]:

- Public discipline has been imposed on the mediator by any public disciplinary of professional licensing agency;

- The mediator has resigned his or her membership in the State Bar or another professional licensing agency while disciplinary or criminal charges were pending;

- A felony charge is pending against the mediator;

- The mediator has been convicted of a felony or of a misdemeanor involving moral turpitude; or

- There has been an entry of judgment against the mediator in any civil action for actual fraud or punitive damages.

A mediator has a continuing obligation to assess whether his or her level of skill, knowledge, and ability is sufficient to conduct the mediation effectively. A mediator must decline to serve or withdraw from the mediation if the mediator determines that he or she does not have the level of skill, knowledge, or ability necessary to conduct the mediation effectively [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.856(d)].

[4] Impartiality and Disclosure

[a] Matters to Be Disclosed and Timing of Disclosures

A mediator must maintain impartiality toward all participants in the mediation process at all times [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.855(a)].

The mediator must make reasonable efforts to keep informed about matters that reasonably could raise a question about his or her ability to conduct the proceedings impartially, and must disclose these matters to the parties. These matters include:

- Past, present, and currently expected interests, relationships, and affiliations of a personal, professional, or financial nature [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.855(b)(1)(A)], and

- The existence of any grounds for disqualification of a judge specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1, discussed in Ch. 317, Judges [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.855(b)(1)(B)].

The mediator's duty to disclose is a continuing duty from the inception of the mediation process through its completion. Disclosures must be made as soon as is practicable after a mediator becomes aware of a matter that must be disclosed. To the extent possible, disclosures should be made before the first mediation session, but in any event they must be made within the time required by applicable court rules or statutes [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.855(b)(2)].

[b] Objections, Addressing Questions and Concerns

Except as provided in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.855(f), if, after a mediator makes disclosures, no party objects to the mediator and no participant raises any question or concerns about the mediators's ability to conduct the mediation process impartially, the mediator may proceed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.855(c)].

If, after a mediator makes a disclosure or at any other point in the mediation process, a participant raises a question or concern about the mediator's ability to conduct the mediation impartially, the mediator must address the question or concern with the participants. Except as provided in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.855(f), if, after the question or concern is addressed, no party object to the mediator, the mediator may proceed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.855(d)].

In a two-party mediation, if any party objects to the mediator after the mediator makes disclosures or discusses a participant's question or concern regarding the mediator's ability to conduct the mediation impartially, the mediator must withdraw. In a mediation in which there are more than two parties, the mediator may continue the mediation with the nonobjecting parties, provided that doing so would not violate any other provision of these rules, any law, or nay local court rule or program guideline [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.855(e)].

[c] When Recusal Is Required Despite Parties' Consent

Regardless of the consent of the parties, a mediator must either decline to serve as mediator, or, if already serving, must withdraw from the mediation if:

- The mediator cannot maintain impartiality toward all participants in the mediation process [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.855(f)(1)]; or

- Proceeding with the mediation would jeopardize the integrity of the court or the mediation process [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.855(f)(2)].

[5] Marketing Activities

A mediator must be truthful and accurate in marketing his or her mediation services. A mediator is responsible for ensuring that both his or her own marketing activities and any marketing activities carried out on his or her behalf comply with these rules [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.858(a)]. Mediator may indicate in his or her marketing materials that he or she is a member of a particular court's panel or list, but, unless specifically permitted by the court, must not indicate that he or she is approved, endorsed, certified, or licensed by the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.858(b)]. In marketing his or her mediation services, a mediator must not do either of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.858(c)]:

- Promise or guarantee results; or

- Make any statement that directly or indirectly implies bias in favor of one party or participant over another.

A mediator must not solicit business from a participant in a mediation proceeding while that mediation is pending [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.858(d)], but a mediator may accept other employment from a participant while a mediation is pending provided that the mediator did not expressly solicit this business and that employment does not contravene any other provision of these rules, including the obligations to maintain impartiality, confidentiality, and the integrity of the process. If other employment is accepted from a participant while a mediation is pending, the mediator may be required to disclose this to the parties under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.855 [Advisory Committee Comment to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.858(d)].

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.858 is not intended to prohibit a mediator from engaging in general marketing activities. General marketing activities include, but are not limited to, running an advertisement in a newspaper and sending out a general mailing (either of which may be directed to a particular industry or market) [Advisory Committee Comment to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.858].

[6] Compensation and Gifts

A mediator must comply with any applicable requirements concerning compensation established by statute or the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.859(a)]. Before commencing the mediation, the mediator must disclose to the parties in writing any fees, costs, or charges to be paid to the mediator by the parties. A mediator must abide by any agreement that is reached concerning compensation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.859(b)]. Although it is good practice to put mediation fee agreements in writing, this rule is not intended to preclude enforcement of a compensation agreement for mediation services that is not in writing [Advisory Committee Comment to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.859(b)].

The amount and nature of a mediator's fees must not be made contingent on the outcome of the mediation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.859(c)].

A mediator must not at any time solicit or accept from or give to any participant or affiliate of a participant any gift, bequests, or favor that might reasonable raise a question concerning the mediator's impartiality [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.859(d)]. Whether a gift, bequest, or favor might reasonably raise a question concerning the mediator's impartiality must be determined on a case-by-case basis. This rule is not intended to prohibit a mediator from accepting other employment from any of the participants, consistent with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.858(d) [Advisory Committee Comment to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.859(d)].

[7] Voluntary Participation and Self-Determination

A mediator must conduct the mediation in a manner that supports the principles of voluntary participation and self-determination by the parties. For this purpose, a mediator must do all of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.853]:

- Inform the parties, at or before the outset of the first mediation session that any resolution of the dispute in mediation requires their voluntary agreement; and

- Respect the right of each participant to decide the extent of his or her participation in the mediation, including the right to withdraw from the mediation at any time; and

- Refrain from coercing any party to make a decision or to continue to participate in the mediation.

The principles of voluntary participation and self-determination apply even when the parties have been required by the court to go to mediation. Although the court may order participants to attend mediation, a mediator may not mandate the extent of their participation in the mediation process or coerce any party to settle the case [Advisory Committee Comment to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.853].

[8] Confidentiality

A mediator must at all times comply with the applicable law concerning mediation, which is discussed in Ch. 31, Mediation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.854(a)]. At or before the outset of the first mediation session, a mediator must provide the participants with a general explanation of the confidentiality of mediation proceedings [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.854(b)]. If, after all the parties have agreed to participate in the mediation process and themediator has agreed to mediate the case, a mediator speaks separately with one or more participants out of the presence of the other participants, the mediator must first discuss with all participants the mediator's practice regarding confidentiality for separate communications with the participants. Except as required by law, a mediator must not disclose information revealed in confidence during such separate communications unless authorized to do so by the participant or participants who revealed the information [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.854(c)].

A mediator must not use information that is acquired in confidence in the course of a mediation outside that mediation or for personal gain [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.854(d)].

[9] Quality of the Mediation Process

[a] In General

A mediator must make reasonable efforts to advance the mediation in a timely manner. If a mediator schedules a mediation for a specific time period, he or she must keep that time period free or other commitments [Cal. Rules of Ct.,

Rule 3.857(a)]. A mediator must conduct the mediation proceedings in a procedurally fair manner. Procedural fairness means a balances process in which each party is given an opportunity to participate and make uncoerced decisions. A mediator is not obligated to ensure the substantive fairness of any agreement reached by the parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.857(b)].

In addition to the requirements of voluntary participation and self-determination [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.853 (discussed at [7], above)], confidentiality [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.854(a) (discussed at [8], above)], and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.857(d) (regarding representation and other professional service [see [b], below], at or before the outset of the mediation, the mediator must provide all participants with a general explanation of all of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.857(c)]:

- The nature of the mediation process; and
- The procedures to be used; and
- The roles of the mediator, the parties, and the other participants.

[b] Representation and Other Professional Services

A mediator must inform all participants, at or before the outset of the first mediation session, that during the mediation, he or she will not represent any participant as a lawyer or perform professional services in any capacity other than as an impartial mediator. Subject to the principles of impartiality and self-determination, a mediator may provide information or opinions that he or she is qualified by training or experience to provide [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.857(d)]. A mediator may recommend the use ofother services in connection with a mediation and may recommend particular providers of other services. However, a mediator must disclose any related personal or financial interests if recommending the services of specific individuals or organizations [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.857(e)].

[c] Nonparticipants' Interests

A mediator may bring to the attention of the parties the interests of others who are not participants in the mediation but who may be affected by agreements reached as a result of the mediation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.857(f)].

[d] Combining Mediation with Other ADR Processes

A mediator must exercise caution in combining mediation with other alternative dispute resolution processes and may do so only with the informed consent of the parties and in a manner consistent with any applicable law or court order. The mediator must inform the parties of the general natures of the difference processes and the consequences of revealing information during any one of the process that might be used for decision making in another process, and must give the parties the opportunity to select another neutral for the subsequent process. If the parties consent to a combination of processes, the mediator must clearly inform the participants when the transition from one process to another is occurring [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.857(g)].

[e] Settlement Agreements

Consistent with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.857(d), a mediator may present possible settlement options and terms for discussion. A mediator may also assist the parties in preparing a written settlement agreement, provided that in doing so the mediator confines the assistance to stating the settlement as determined by the parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.857(h)].

[f] Discretionary Termination and Withdrawal

A mediator may suspend or terminate the mediation or withdraw when he or she reasonably believes the circumstances require it, including when he or she suspects any of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.857(i)]:

- The mediation is being used to further illegal conduct;
- A participant is unable to participate meaningfully in negotiations; or
- Continuation of the process would cause significant harm to any participant or third party.

When a mediator determines that it is necessary to suspend or terminate a mediation or to withdraw, the mediator must do so without violating the obligation of confidentiality and in a manner that will cause the least possible harm to the participants [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.857(j)].

§ 37.35 Complaints Against Mediators

[1] Which Courts Must Establish Procedures to Resolve Complaints

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.865 et seq., addressing complaints against court-program mediators, apply to each superior court that makes a list of mediators available to litigants in general civil cases or that recommends, selects, appoints, or compensates a mediator to mediate any general civil case pending in that court. However, a court that approves the parties' agreement to use a mediator who is selected by the parties and who is not on the court's list of mediators or that memorializes the parties' agreement in a court order has not thereby recommended, selected, or appointed that mediator within the meaning of these rules [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.865(a)].

Accordingly, each court to which these rules apply must establish complaint procedures by local rule of court that is consistent with these rules [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.868]. The rules set forth minimum requirements for the complaint procedures established by local rule [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.869]. However, a court's failure to follow a requirement or procedure in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.865 et seq. will not invalidate any action taken by the court in addressing a complaint [see Advisory Comment to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.865].

The presiding judge of the subject superior court must designate a person who is knowledgeable about mediation to serve as the complaint coordinator [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.867(a)]. The court must make the complaint coordinator's identity and contact information readily accessible to litigants and the public [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.867(b)].

[2] Confidentiality of Complaint, Procedures, Information, and Records

The requirement that mediation complaint procedures be confidential is intended to accomplish the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.871(a)]:

- Preserve the confidentiality of mediation communications as required by Evid. Code §§ 1115-1128;
- Promote cooperation in the reporting, investigation, and resolution of complaints about court-program mediators; and

- Protect mediators against damage to their reputations that might result from disclosure of unfounded complaints against them.

All complaint procedures and proceedings must be designed and conducted to preserve the confidentiality of mediation communications, including but not limited to the confidentiality of any communications between the mediator and individual mediation participants or subgroups of mediation participants [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.871(b)]. All complaint proceedings must occur in private and must be kept confidential. No information or records concerning the receipt, investigation, or resolution of an inquiry or complaint may be open to the public or disclosed outside the court of the complaint proceeding except as provided by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.871(d) or as otherwise required by law [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.871(c)].

After the decision on a complaint, the presiding judge or his or her designee may authorize the public disclosure of information or records concerning the complaint proceeding that do not reveal any mediation communications. The disclosures that may be thereby authorized include the name of a mediator against whom action has been taken under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.870, the action taken, and the general basis on which the action was taken. In determining whether to authorize the disclosure of information or records in this regard, the presiding judge or the designee is to consider the purposes of the confidentiality of complaint proceedings stated in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.871(a)(2), (3) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.871(d)]. In determining whether the disclosure of information or records concerning a complaint proceeding is required by law, courts are to consider the purposes of the confidentiality of complaint proceedings stated in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.871(a). If it appears that the disclosure of information or records concerning a complaint proceeding that would reveal mediation communications is required by law, before the information or records are disclosed, notice is to be given to any person whose mediation communications may thereby be revealed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.871(e)]. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.871(c)-(e) do not create new exceptions to mediation confidentiality [see Advisory Committee Comment to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.871; see also Evid. Code §§ 915, 1040 (criteria for deciding when information acquired in confidence by public employee is subject to disclosure)].

[3] Attendance Sheet and Agreement to Disclose

In each mediation to which Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.850 et seq. apply under Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 3.851(a), the mediator must do all of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.860(a)]:

- Require that all participants in the mediation complete an attendance sheet stating their names, mailing addresses, and telephone numbers;

- Retain the attendance sheet for at least two years; and

- Submit it to the court on request.

Judicial Council Form ADR 107, which is reproduced at § 37.77, may be used to fulfill the requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.860(a). Use of ADR 107 is optional, not mandatory.

In each mediation to which Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.850 et seq. apply under Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 3.851(a), the mediator must agree that if an inquiry or complaint is made about the conduct of the mediator, mediation communications may be disclosed solely for purposes of a complaint procedure conducted pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.865 et seq. to address that complaint or inquiry [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.860(b)].

[3A] Court Resolution of Complaint

After an investigation has been conducted, the presiding judge or his or her designee may do one or more of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.870]:

- Direct that no action be taken on the complaint;
- Counsel, admonish, or reprimand the mediator;
- Impose additional training requirements as a condition of the mediator remaining on the court's panel or list;
- Suspend the mediator from the court's panel or list or otherwise temporarily prohibit the mediator from receiving future mediation referrals from the court; or
- Remove the mediator from the court's panel or list or otherwise prohibit the mediator from receiving future mediation referrals from the court.

[4] Disqualification Based on Investigation or Involvement in Complaint

A person who has participated in a complaint proceeding or otherwise received information about the substance of a complaint, other than information that is publicly disclosed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.871(d), must not subsequently hear or determine any contested issue of law, fact, or procedure concerning the dispute that wasthe subject to the underlying mediation or any other dispute that arises from the mediation, as a judge, an arbitrator, a referee, or a juror, or in any other adjudicative capacity, in any court action or proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.872].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a reproduction of the Los Angeles County form of Stipulation to ADR, which may be used to stipulate to civil action mediation under Code Civ. Proc. § 1775 et seq.

The form in [1], above, is the general form of stipulation to ADR, which each county is required to provide as part of an ADR information package when the complaint is filed, and which the plaintiff must serve with the complaint [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.221; Cal. Rules of Ct. Rule 3.800(1) (definition of "ADR process")]. Cross complainants must serve copies of the ADR information package on any new parties to the action along with the cross complaint [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.221]. If the parties agree to use an ADR process, they are to complete the form jointly and file it with the court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.726].

The form provides for parties either to name a mediator or to allow the court to assign a mediator [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.893].

The form includes signature blocks for the parties as well as their attorneys. It may not be necessary, however, for the parties to sign. An attorney may bind his or her client in any of the steps of an action or proceeding by agreement filed with the clerk [Code Civ. Proc. § 283]. With respect to civil action mediation, Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.1(b) provides that any act to be performed by a party may be performed by the party's counsel of record [Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.1(b)].

This chapter discusses the practice and procedure for referring an action or proceeding, or a particular issue in an action or proceeding, to a referee for a report pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638 and 639, and the effect of the report rendered [see § 38.10 et seq.]. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638 and 639 apply only to references in civil actions or proceedings. Thus, while a discovery referee would be authorized pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(5) to determine issues of privilege in a civil action, a reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(4) is not available in a proceeding to determine whether documents seized from a criminal suspect are privileged because that is a criminal special proceeding and not the type of "special proceeding" to which section 639 applies [People v. Los Angeles Superior Court (Laff) (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 703, 707, 727, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 323, 23 P.3d 563] . Similarly, Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638 and 639 do not apply to juvenile court referees [In re M. (1975) 14 Cal.3d 727, 734, 122 Cal. Rptr. 574, 537 P.2d 406] . General and special references are covered, and procedural checklists [see § 38.50 et seq.] are included. The chapter includes forms for the following procedures:

- Appointment of a referee by stipulation [see § 38.60] or motion [see § 38.60] and order [see § 38.63].
- Withdrawal of a stipulation to the appointment of a referee [see §§ 38.66 and 38.67].
- Vacation of the appointment of a referee [see §§ 38.68 and 38.69].
- Referee's report [see § 38.70].
- Confirmation of a referee's report [see §§ 38.71, 38.74, 38.75].

- Objection to the referee's report [see §§ 38.72, 38.73, 38.76, 38.77].

- Petition for referee's fees [see § 38.78].

- Sealing of records in a cause heard by a privately compensated referee [see §§ 38.79 and 38.80].

- Requesting that a case referred to a privately compenstated referee be heard at a site accessible to the public [see § 38.81].

§ 38.03 Governing Law

References in general are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638-645.2. Code Civ. Proc. § 1023 pertains to referee's fees. References after the court clerk has entered a defendant's default are authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 585(b), and references to enable a court to complete a judgment are authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 636.

The Judicial Council is to adopt all rules of court necessary to implement the statutes regarding reference [Code Civ. Proc. § 645.2]. Several California Rules of Court apply to references, including Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.100 et seq. (form of papers presented for filing), 2.400 (court records), 3.900 et seq. (reference by agreement), 3.920 et seq. (reference by order), and 3.930 et seq. (rules applicable to reference under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638 and 639).

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

4-38 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 38.10

AUTHOR: Hon. Bruce R. Geernaert, Judge (Ret.) Editorial Consultant Bruce Geernaert retired from the Los Angeles County Superior Court in 1996 after twenty-two years of service on the bench, during which he handled all aspects of civil litigation. He served on a special Settlement Panel for over five years, earning particular recognition for his effective handling of complex cases. Judge Geernaert is presently serving as a mediator, special master, referee, and arbitrator through JAMS/Endispute.

§ 38.10 Types of References

[1] Types of References Identified

A reference may be general or special. A general reference may only be made voluntarily, with the parties' consent [Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a)]. A special reference may be either voluntary [Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b)] or involuntary [Code Civ. Proc. § 639].

[2] General and Special Reference Distinguished

A general reference is a trial before a referee on all the issues of fact and law [Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a); Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 722, 269 P.2d 3 ; see Murphy v. Padilla (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 707, 713, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 722] . The decision of a referee in a consensual general reference stands as the decision of the court without any further action, and judgment may be entered in accordance with the report [Code Civ. Proc. § 644(a)].

In a special reference, however, the referee is appointed for one of the limited purposes listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 639 to aid the court in reaching its decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 639; Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 722-723, 269 P.2d 3 ; see Dynair Electronics, Inc. v. Video Cable, Inc. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 11, 20, 127 Cal. Rptr. 268] . In all cases other than consensual general references, the decision of referee is only advisory. The court may adopt the referee's recommendations in whole or in part after independently considering the referee's findings and any objections and responses thereto filed with the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 644(b)]. When the reference is to report the facts, the decision has the effect of a special verdict [Code Civ. Proc. § 645].

[3] Clearly Identify Scope of and Authority for Reference

The stipulation or motion for appointment of a referee, as well an the order appointing the referee, must clearly state whether the scope of the requested reference includes all issues or is limited to specified issues [Cal. Rule of Ct., Rules 3.901(b)(1), 3.902(2) (voluntary reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 368); Code Civ. Proc. § 639(d)(3), Cal Rules of Ct., Rules 3.921(a), 3.922(d) (involuntary reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 639)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Pin Down Source of Authority for Reference. In seeking a reference or in responding to a court suggestion for a reference, counsel should determine the precise scope and nature of the reference by looking to the statutory or constitutional authority for it. That is, if, by stipulation of the parties whether the reference is pursuant to:

- Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a) (try a specific issue or the entire case and report a statement of decision).
- Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b) (ascertain a fact and report to the court).
- Cal. Const., art. VI, § 21 (Judge Pro tem). Or, if the agreement is not by the agreement of the parties, whether the reference is pursuant to:
- Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1) ("decide" a long account).
- Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1) (report on a specific question of fact).
- Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(2) (taking an account).
- Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(2) (carrying a judgment or order into effect).
- Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(3) (question of fact on a motion or otherwise).
- Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(4) (in a special proceeding).
- Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(5) (discovery disputes).

Problems arise for the Court, the referee, or the judge pro tem and/or for counsel if the reference is not specifically keyed to a specific authority. By Hon. Bruce R. Geernaert, Judge (Ret.)

ILLUSTRATION: Unclear Reference Bars Enforcement of Settlement Under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6. The parties are litigating a dispute. The trial court refers the matter "to mediation pursuant to section 638," without describing the scope of the reference. The parties did not agree to the reference. After two mediation sessions, the referee, a retired judge, wrote out a document memorializing the terms of the settlement. The parties did not sign the document, which was intended to be a draft for the attorneys to finalize later. Two weeks later, one of the defendants tells her attorney she has unresolved concerns and will not sign the agreement. The plaintiffs move to enforce the settlement pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6. Should the court enter judgment on the settlement agreement? No. The retired judge was neither a general referee nor a special referee because the proceeding was not properly referenced in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 638 [Murphy v. Padilla (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 707, 714, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 722 ; for discussion of enforcement of settlements reached during reference, see [5], below].

Unless it clearly appears otherwise, a reference is presumed to be special and only for the benefit of the court [Lewis v. Grunberg (1928) 205 Cal. 158, 161, 270 P. 181] .

[4] Consent of Parties or Authorized Ground for Order Required for Reference

Unless a reference is made with the consent of the parties pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638 [see also Cal. Const., art. VI, § 21 (authority for reference to judge pro tem)] or by authority of one of the grounds listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 639, the court may not order a matter to be heard by a referee [Williams v. Benton (1864) 24 Cal. 424, 425-426 ; Settlemire v. Superior Court (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 666, 673, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 560 ; In re Marriage of Galis (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 147, 150, 196 Cal. Rptr. 659] . For example, a referee does not have the powerto hear the issues of child support, spousal support, and attorney's fees in a contested dissolution when the parties do not consent [In re Marriage of Galis (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 147, 154, 196 Cal. Rptr. 659 (dissolution action not "special proceeding" within meaning of former Code Civ. Proc. § 639(d) [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(4)])]. Nor, without the consent of both parties, can a referee determine "any matter of fact on which information is required by the court." Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(3) requires that an order for nonconsentual reference specify the factual issues the court wishes the referee to resolve [Settlemire v. Superior Court (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 666, 673, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 560] . Similarly, before the Legislature explicity provided otherwise, a court lacked the power to refer all discovery matters in a pending action to a referee to hear and determine the issues presented without the consent of the parties [see Bird v. Superior Court (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 595, 600, 169 Cal. Rptr. 530 (decided prior to 1981 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 639; now see Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(5), authorizing reference of discovery matters)].

When an unauthorized reference is made, the resulting judgment may be reversed [Williams v. Benton (1864) 24 Cal. 424, 425-426 (party had not consented to general reference)] or vacated [In re Marriage of Galis (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 147, 154-155, 196 Cal. Rptr. 659 (interlocutory judgment vacated due to invalid special reference)].

[5] Enforcement of Oral Stipulation for Settlement Before Referee

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, if parties to pending litigation stipulate for settlement of the case (or part of the case), orally "before the court," the court, on motion, may enter judgment pursuant to the terms of the settlement. "Before the court" means a stipulation presented in a "judicially supervised" proceeding [Murphy v. Padilla (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 707, 712, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 722 ; for further discussion and forms relating to Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, see Ch. 318, Judgments, § 318.40 et seq.]. However, outside of a pending action, the parties' stipulation that a referee be appointed will not confer subject matter jurisdiction on a court so that a referee can enter a settlement that would be enforceable under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 [The Housing Group v. United National Insurance Company (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 1107-1108, 1114-1115, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497 (no complaint was filed; so-called 'action' was commenced by petition for appointment of referee to preside over entry of settlement)].

An oral stipulation before a general referee appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a) could support an enforceable settlement agreement pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6. This is because the general referee may be empowered to make binding decisions about controverted issues [Murphy v. Padilla (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 707, 713, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 722] . A stipulation before a special reference, however, cannot satisfy the "before the court" requriement because of the nonbinding nature of the referee'sdecision [Murphy v. Padilla (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 707, 713, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 722] .

Also, if the proceedings identified as a reference actually fail to consititute either a general or a special reference, but is more akin to a mediation, an oral settlement made before the "referee" will not be enforeable [Murphy v. Padilla (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 707, 713-714, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 722] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

4-38 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 38.11

AUTHOR: Hon. Bruce R. Geernaert, Judge (Ret.) Editorial Consultant Bruce Geernaert retired from the Los Angeles County Superior Court in 1996 after twenty-two years of service on the bench, during which he handled all aspects of civil litigation. He served on a special Settlement Panel for over five years, earning particular recognition for his effective handling of complex cases. Judge Geernaert is presently serving as a mediator, special master, referee, and arbitrator through JAMS/Endispute.

§ 38.11 General Reference

[1] Must Be Voluntary

A general reference may only be made with the consent of the parties; that is, it is a voluntary reference [see Code Civ. Proc. § 638; Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 722, 269 P.2d 3] .

A general reference may be ordered on the parties' agreement [for a form, see § 38.60] filed with the clerk, or judge, or entered in the minutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 638].

PRACTICE TIP:
Get the Stipulation on Record. If not written, the parties' agreement should be on the record of the official court reporter; it is doubtful whether a minute order would constitute a stipulation unless also on the reporter's transcript. By Hon. Bruce R. Geernaert, Judge (Ret.)

A general reference may also be ordered on the motion [see §§ 38.60, 38.61 (forms)] of a party to a written contract or lease providing that any controversy arising therefrom must be heard by a reference, if the court finds that a reference agreement exists between the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a)].

PRACTICE TIP:
Rarity of Reference Under Pre-Dispute Agreement. It is very rare to see an agreement that includes an ADR provision for a court-appointed referee; more usual is a provision for arbitration, which falls under Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq. By Hon. Bruce R. Geernaert, Judge (Ret.)

Without the parties' consent, a court has no power to make a general reference that conclusively decides a legal issue that will determine liability. Such a reference is prohibited by both Code Civ. Proc. § 638 and Cal. Const., art. VI, § 22, preventing delegation of judicial power except for the performance of "subordinate judicial duties" [Greenbriar Homes Communities, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 343, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371 ; Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1986) 182 Cal.App. 3d 431, 436, 227 Cal. Rptr. 460] ; see also Woodside Homes of California, Inc. v. Superior Court (Wheeler) (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 99, 103-104, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 683 (neither Code Civ. Proc. § 631 nor Grafton Partners v. Superior Court (2005) 36 Cal 4th 944, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 5, 116 P.3d 479 , prohibits waiver of jury trial in pre-dispute agreement for judicial reference)]. Thus, a provision in a development contract for consensual reference of any disputes arising under the agreement cannot be enforced against a subsequent purchaser of the home built for the original contracting party [Greenbriar Homes Communities, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 343, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Special Versus General Reference. The trial judge orders a special reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 639, without the parties' consent. On receiving the referee's findings the trial court treats them as binding and determinative. Has the trial court erred? Yes. The judgment may be vacated when, although a reference order purports to be a special reference, the judge treats it more like a general reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 638, and parties have not consented to general reference. In these circumstances, the reference is not authorized by law and amounts to an abdication of judicial responsibility [Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 431, 436, 227 Cal. Rptr. 460] .

[2] Scope

When a general reference is made, the referee is appointed to try any or all of the issues in the action or proceeding, whether of fact or of law, and to report a statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a); Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 722, 269 P.2d 3] . The referee's decision stands as the decision of the court; on filing of the statement of decision with the clerk of the court, judgment may be entered in accordance with that statement of decision in the same manner as if the action had been tried by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 644(a)]. The referee's decision may be excepted to and reviewed in like manner as if made by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 645; for further discussion, see § 38.25[1]].

A court must not use the reference procedure under Code Civ. Proc. § 638 to appoint a person to conduct a mediation, but nothing prevents a court from appointing a referee to conduct a mandatory settlement conference or, following the termination of a reference, from appointing a person who previously served as a referee to conduct a mediation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.900; Advisory Committee Comment to Cal. Rules of ct., Rule 3.900].

[3] Procedure for Code Civ. Proc. § 638 Reference

Parties seeking reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 638 must present a written agreement for an order directing the reference, along with a proposed order, to the judge to whom the case is assigned, or to the presiding judge or law and motion department if the case has not been assigned. Both the agreement and order must clearly state whether the scope of the reference covers all issues or is limited to specific issues [Cal. Rules of Ct.,Rule 3.901(a); for forms of stipulation and order and further discussion of their required contents, see §§ 38.60 and 38.63].

The agreement for a reference does not constitute a waiver of grounds for objecting to the appointment of a particular person as referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 641 or 641.2 [Code Civ. Proc. § 640(c)], but any objection must be made with reasonable diligence [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.905]. For discussion of disclosures a referee must make and objections to appointment, see § 38.16. A court does not have authority to deny a reference under a contract provision therefor on the ground that a multiplicity of suits might result, as it would under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c) if the contract called for arbitration [Greenbriar Homes Communities, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 347-348, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371] .

[4] Unconscionability

[a] In General

Though more commonly addressed in the context of contract provisions relating to arbitration, contract provisions requiring that disputes between parties to the contract be determined by a judicial referee rather than at trial are also subject to the general rules regarding unconscionability of contracts, set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1670.5, and discussed in Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.21[3]. Several appellate cases have considered the issue thus far, all in the context of contracts drafted by homebuilder/developers and challenged by buyers. The courts have come to different conclusions [Trend Homes, Inc. v. Superior Court (Azperren) (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 950, 954, 965, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 411 (enforceable); Greenbriar Homes Communities, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 345, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371 (enforceable against original but not subsequent purchasers); Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 735-736, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35 (enforceable); Pardee Construction Co. v. Superior Court (Rodriguez) (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1084, 1092, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 288 (unconscionable)]. The cases of course agreed that unconscionability has both a "procedural" and a "substantive" element, the former focusing on "oppression" or "surprise" due to unequal bargaining power, the later on "overly harsh" or "one-sided" results. Procedural and substantive unconscionability must both be present in order for a court to refuse to enforce a contract or clause under the doctrine of unconscionability. But they need not be present in the same degree. A sliding scale may be invoked: the more substantively oppressive the contract term(s), the less evidence of procedural unconscionability is required to come to the conclusion that the term is unenforceable, and vice versa [Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 727, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35 (enforceable); Pardee Construction Co. v. Superior Court (Rodriguez) (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1081,1088, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 288 (unconscionable)]. Pardee and Woodside also acknowledged that significant portions of construction defect cases are commonly sent to judicial reference.

The party who prepared and submitted the contract containing the terms challenged as unconscionable has the burden of showing that the other party had notice of them. The party asserting unconscionability as a defense to enforcement has the burden of establishing it [Trend Homes, Inc. v. Superior Court (Azperren) (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 950, 956, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 411 ; Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 727-728, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35] .

[b] Procedural Unconscionability

The judicial reference provision in Pardee was found to be a contract of adhesion and procedurally unconscionable, primarily because the buyers had no bargaining power with respect to the judicial reference provision, and the judicial reference provision was buried in a form contract, was physically difficult to read because it was printed in dense single-spaced capital letters, and made no mention of referee's fees or responsibility for their payment [Pardee Construction Co. v. Superior Court (Rodriguez) (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1087-1090, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 288] . The judicial reference provision in Woodside was held to evidence only a low level of unconscionability. Although the contract was several pages long, and contained a great deal of small print, the buyers were necessarily made aware of the existence of the judicial reference provision because they had to initial that paragraph separately. Immediately above the spaces for the buyers' initials was the large, bolded statement: "By initialing below, the parties acknowledge that they have read and understand the foregoing and accept that they are waiving their right to a jury trial." The caption "JUDICIAL REFERENCE OF DISPUTES" was clear; and the paragraph noted that a reference would require fees for the referee, and specified that the parties were to share costs and referee's fees equally, unless the referee ordered otherwise. Even assuming that buyers could not have eliminated the judicial reference provision, the buyers demonstrated only a low level of procedural unconscionability because there was no surprise or misrepresentation [Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App.4th 723, 728-730, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35 ; see also Trend Homes, Inc. v. Superior Court (Azperren) (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 950, 958, 960, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 411 ; Greenbriar Homes Communities, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 345, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371 (not procedurally unconscionable; no evidence any real parties tried to negotiate out of reference provision)].

[c] Substantive Unconscionability

The judicial reference provision in Pardee included waiver of the right to recover punitive damages. Although potentially severable from theremainder of the reference provision, this waiver was substantively unconscionable because in practical reality, it was only for Pardee's benefit. Further, the Pardee court said it would not uphold a provision waiving the right to a jury trial until there was evidence of some benefit to that waiver, such as speed or economy. Finding no such evidence, the court found the entire judicial reference provision unconscionable [Pardee Construction Co. v. Superior Court (Rodriguez) (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1090-1092, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 288] . The Woodside court took a different approach to the buyers' waiver of the right to a jury trial, finding that they in return received Woodside's waiver to its right to a jury trial. Also, given the strong public policy in favor of alternative dispute resolution, the court assumed, and had no evidence to the contrary, that a party who gives up the right to a jury trial in favor of alternative dispute resolution gains the benefit of economies of time or expense [Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App.4th 723, 734-735, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35] . Woodside considered several other specific provisions challenged by buyers but found none of them to be substantively unconscionable:

- The judicial reference provision provided that builder/seller was not required to participate in the judicial reference unless it was satisfied that all necessary and appropriate parties would participate in the proceeding. This was designed to ensure that the entire dispute be resolved in one setting. There was nothing to indicate how or why defendant might manipulate this provision to its advantage [Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 730-731, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35 ; compare Greenbriar Homes Communities, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 342, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371 (developer's agreements with its subcontractors allowed the developer to require joinder of subcontractor in any reference in which it made a claim against that subcontractor)].

- A provision that each party bear their own attorneys' fees, takes nothing away from either party and is neither harsh nor oppressive [Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 731, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35] .

- A provision requiring that there be a stenographic record of the trial, and also requiring that record to be kept confidential except as necessary for posthearing motions and appeals, is not unfair or undesirable with respect to the parties themselves, but might interfere with the public interest in open proceedings. However, if the secrecy provision is challenged at some point in the proceedings and found to be unenforceable, it can be severed [Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003)107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 731-732, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35 ; but see Ting v. AT&T (9th Cir, 2003) 319 F. 3d 1126, 1152 (holding secrecy provision unconscionable and unenforceable in context of arbitration clause in customer service agreements affecting 7 million Californians)].

- A provision requiring the expenses of a judicial reference to be shared evenly [Greenbriar Homes Communities, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 345-346, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371 ; Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 731-734, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35] . Greenbria r and Woodside provide differing analyses of the issue. In Greenbriar, real parties' main argument about costs was based on the possibility of extra expenses caused by litigation in different forums. That prospect was removed by the provisions in the developer's agreements with its subcontractors, which required them to join in any reference implicating their work [Greenbriar Homes Communities, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 345-346, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371] . In Woodside, the court noted that a provision in that agreement allowing the referee to direct payment at his or her discretion may impose substantial expenses on a party, especially compared with the "free" access to the court itself. While a contract that imposes on the weaker party the possibility of > substantial expense is unconscionable, to satisfy his or her burden of proof, the party seeking to establish that the expense renders their agreement unconscionable, must establish at the least that the fees they are likely to pay would be greater than those that would accrue in litigation before the court. Without such a showing, or even any showing that the probable additional expenses of a judicial reference, if any, would be impossible or unreasonably difficult for the party challenging the judicial reference provision to pay, the cost-sharing provision is not unconscionable [Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 731-734, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35 ; accord Trend Homes, Inc. v. Superior Court (Azperren) (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 950, 963, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 411 (buyers made no showing that fees for reference would be greater than those likely in litigation)].

When a judicial reference provision is silent regarding the costs of the reference, it is unlikely to be unconscionable because the referee will have authority under Code Civ. Proc. § 645.1 to apportion fees in a fair and reasonable manner considering the parties' ability to pay [Trend Homes, Inc. v. Superior Court (Azperren) (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 950, 961-962, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 411] .

Chapter 38 REFERENCE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

4-38 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 38.12

AUTHOR: Hon. Bruce R. Geernaert, Judge (Ret.) Editorial Consultant Bruce Geernaert retired from the Los Angeles County Superior Court in 1996 after twenty-two years of service on the bench, during which he handled all aspects of civil litigation. He served on a special Settlement Panel for over five years, earning particular recognition for his effective handling of complex cases. Judge Geernaert is presently serving as a mediator, special master, referee, and arbitrator through JAMS/Endispute.

§ 38.12 Special Reference

[1] Limited in Scope

Special references are made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639 and the referee considers and determines only those issues specified in the order of appointment [Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 722, 269 P.2d 3] .

A court may order the appointment of a referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 639 only for the purposes specified in that section. A court must not use a reference procedure under Code Civ. Proc. § 639 to appoint a person to conduct a mediation, but nothing prevents a court from appointing a referee to conduct a mandatory settlement conference in a complex case or, following the termination of a reference, from appointing a person who previously served as a referee to conduct a mediation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.920(a), (b); Advisory Committee Comment to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.920(b)].

[2] May Be Voluntary or Involuntary

[a] Voluntary Under Code Civ. Proc. § 638

A special reference may be made on the agreement of the parties filed with the clerk or judge, or entered in the minutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b)]. For a form of stipulation, see § 38.60.

Although uncommon, if a written contract or lease provides that any controversy arising from the contract must be heard by a reference, a party to the contract or lease may make a motion for special reference. If the court finds that a reference agreement exists between the parties, the court may order the reference [Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b); for forms of motion and notice of motion, see §§ 38.60, 38.61].

For discussion of the procedure for a voluntary special reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 638, see § 38.11[3].

[b] Involuntary Under Code Civ. Proc. § 639

[i] By Party's or Court's Motion

A special reference may be made without the parties' consent for the purposes listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a) [see [3], below] by order of the court on its own motion or on a party's motion (an involuntary reference) [Code Civ. Proc. § 639]. In an involuntary reference, the referee is chosen in accordance with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 640(b), discussed in § 38.15[3][b] [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)]. The motion must specify the matter or matters to be included in the requested reference; and if the applicant is requesting the appointment of a particular referee, the motion must be accompanied by the proposed referee's certification as required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.924(a) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.921(a)]. The order must specify the reasons for the reference, the scope of the reference, and any conditions on the reference, including any limitation on the referee's total fees or hourly fee as well as the terms of the obligation of each party to pay the referee [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.922].

The motion must be served and filed and heard by the judge to whom the case has been assigned, or by the presiding judge or law and motion judge if the case has not been assigned [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.921]. For forms of motion and notice of motion, see §§ 38.60, 38.62.

All involuntary appointments of referees pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639 must be by written order, which must include the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(d); Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 3.924(b)-(d), (f)-(h); see also discussion at § 38.14[3][c] (additional matters required in order appointing discovery referee)]:

- When the referee is appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1), (2), (3), or (4), a statement of the reason the referee is being appointed.

- When a discovery referee is appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(5), the exceptional circumstances requiring the reference, which must be specific to the circumstances of the particular case and whether the referee is being appointed for all discovery purposes in the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(c)].

- The subject matter or matters included in the reference.

- The name, business address, and telephone number of the referee.

- If the referee is a member of the State Bar, the order must include the referee's State Bar number.

- The maximum hourly rate the referee may charge and, at the request of any party, the maximum number of hours for which the referee may charge. On the written application of any party or the referee, the court may, for good cause shown, modify the maximum number of hours subject to any findings as set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 639(d)(6).

- Either of the two findings set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 639(d)(6)(A), regarding the parties' ability to pay the referee's fees, discussed at [iii], below.

- The extent, if any, to which court facilities and court personnel may be used in connection with the reference.

- The name and telephone number of a person to contact to arrange for attendance at any proceeding before the referee.

- Before an order appointing a referee is issued, the proposed referee must certify that he or she is aware of and will comply with applicable provisions of canon 6 of the Code of Judicial Ethics and the Rules of Court pertaining to references. That certification must be attached to the order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.924(a)]. For a form of certification, see § 38.62A.

When the issue of economic hardship is raised before the commencement of the referee's services, the court must determine a fair and reasonable apportionment of reference costs. The court may modify its order as to the apportionment and may consider a recommendation by the referee as a factor in determining any modification [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.922(f)(3)].

[ii] Court's Discretion

The court has discretion to deny a motion for reference, and the court's refusal to order a reference will not be reversed except for abuse of discretion [Mashon v. Haddock (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 151, 168-169, 11 Cal. Rptr. 865 (no abuse of discretion to deny motion for reference to take account); Puim v. Callahan (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 70, 76-77, 286 P.2d 526 (no abuse of discretion to deny motion for reference to take account)].

[iii] Economic Hardship Must Be Considered

In determining whether to order an involuntary reference, the court, must make either of the following findings [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(d)(6)(A); Cal. Rule of Ct., Rule 3.922(f)(2)]:

- That no party has established an economic inability to pay a pro rata share of the referee's fee.

- That one or more parties has established an economic inability to pay a pro rata share of the referee's fees and that another party has agreed voluntarily to pay that additional share of the referee's fee.

A court cannot appoint a referee at a cost to the parties if neither of those findings is made [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(d)(6)(A); Cal. Rules of Ct., 3.922(f)(2); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 639(d)(5); Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 3.922(f)(1) (at request of party, order appointing referee may provide maximum hours for which referee may charge)].

[iv] Factors to Be Considered Regarding Economic Hardship

In determining whether a party has established an inability to pay the referee's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(d)(6)(A), the court must consider only the ability of the party, not the party's counsel, to pay these fees [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(d)(6)(B)]. Under prior law, the court could consider the extent to which the attorney might be advancing an indigent litigant's expenses (recognizing that this information would be protected by the attorney-client privilege and that ultimately the referee's fee would be borne by the losing party as a recoverable cost) [DeBlase v. Superior Court (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1279, 1284-1285, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 229] .

If a party is proceeding in forma pauperis, the party must be deemed by the court to have an economic inability to pay the referee's fees. However, a determination of economic inability to pay the fees need not be limited to parties that proceed in forma pauperis. For those parties who are not proceeding in forma pauperis, the court, in determining whether a party has established an inability to pay the fees, must consider, among other things, the estimated cost of the referral and the impact of the proposed fees on the party's ability to proceed with the litigation [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(d)(6)(B)].

When a party is proceeding in forma pauperis or otherwise claims indigence, the court should consider handling the dispute itself, appointing a referee willing to serve without compensation, or a retired judge sitting on assignment and paid by the public, or arranging for transfer to another amenable judicial officer, such as a superior court commissioner or a temporary judge [Taggares v. Superior Court (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 94, 101, 105-106, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 387 ; DeBlase v. Superior Court (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1279, 1283, 1286, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 229 ; Solorzano v. Superior Court (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 603, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 401 ; see Hood v. Superior Court (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 446, 449-450, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 114 (court must determine that discovery reference is necessary)].

A party need not be proceeding in forma pauperis to have economic hardship considered. Indeed, the court make take it into account based on counsel's representations, without requiring a written or spoken declaration or documentary evidence, unless the court has reason to suspect the representations are inaccurate. If counsel anticipates that reference maybe contemplated counsel should, of course, bring a declaration to court [DeBlase v. Superior Court (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1279, 1283-1284, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 229] . Absent extenuating circumstances, a party's declaration as to his or her inability to pay referee's fees should be sufficient evidence of that fact, and no more can be required, certainly not that party's tax returns, which are privileged [Hood v. Superior Court (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 446, 449-450, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 114] .

When a party claims indigence, the trial court should spend more time to study the the merits of a discovery dispute than it otherwise would to determine whether the dispute is really appropriate for reference [DeBlase v. Superior Court (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1279, 1284, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 229] . The court should consider factors that might simplify the task, such as the possiblity of hearing multiple motions together or ensuring that the parties made adequate informal attempts to resolve the dispute [DeBlase v. Superior Court (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1279, 1284, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 229] .

If the parties are to tentatively bear the cost unequally, court should also consider whether it is just or unjust for a particular party to bear the higher share of the cost [DeBlase v. Superior Court (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1279, 1285, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 229 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 639(d)(6)(A) (party cannot be required to pay more than pro rata share and can do so only by voluntary agreement)].

The court does not have the option of ordering "waiver" of the referee's fee. The referee is a private person who the court cannot require to serve without compensation. Nor may the court allocate the entire cost of the referee to the nonindigent party and justify it as a fee "waiver" in favor of the nonindigent party [DeBlase v. Superior Court (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1279, 1285, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 229] .

When a party has a right to a jury trial, a court cannot order a matter to be heard by a referee [see Grim v. Norris (1861) 19 Cal. 140, 142 ; Smith v. Pollock (1852) 2 Cal. 92, 94 (both involving special reference)]. Any waiver of the right to trial by jury must appear affirmatively and not by implication [Smith v. Pollock (1852) 2 Cal. 92, 94] .

[3] Grounds for Involuntary Reference

An involuntary reference may be made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a) for the following purposes:

- When the trial of an issue of fact requires the examination of a long account on either side, in which case the referee may be directed to hear and decide the whole issue, or report on any specific question of fact involved therein [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1)].

PRACTICE TIP:
Report, Not Decide. This in reality means hear and report. By Hon. Bruce R. Geernaert, Judge (Ret.)

- When the taking of an account is necessary for the information of the court before judgment, or for carrying a judgment or order into effect [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(2)].

- When a question of fact, other than on the pleadings, arises on motion or otherwise, in any stage of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(3)].

- When it is necessary for the information of the court in a special proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(4)].

- When the court in any pending action determines in its discretion that it is necessary for the court to appoint a referee to hear and determine any and all discovery motions and disputes relevant to discovery in the action and to report findings and make a recommendation thereon [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(5)].

A matter referred without the consent of the parties must fall within one of the statutory classifications listed above in order to be authorized [see Settlemire v. Superior Court (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 666, 673, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 560 (reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(3) to determine "any matter of fact on which information is required by the court" was invalid; order must specify factual issues court wants referee to determine); Dunner v. Hoover (1941) 43 Cal. App. 2d 753, 758-759, 111 P.2d 737 (action for breach of agreement to convey property improperly referred for special reference)]. For example, an order of reference is authorized in the following situations:

- For the accounting in an action to dissolve a partnership [Chapman v. Gipson (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 585, 588, 229 P.2d 834] .

- A proceeding for registration and certification of land titles [In re Reed (1928) 204 Cal. 119, 121, 266 P. 948 (considered to be in the nature of a "special proceeding" as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(4))].

[4] Procedure on Reference for Accounting

When a reference for an accounting is made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1) or (2), the appointment of a referee is commonly made in an interlocutory judgment issued after a hearing, trial, or stipulation that determines the basis for ordering the accounting [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Corona (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 1205, 1218, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 17 (order finding basis for reference for accounting not appealable); Spadoni v. Maggenti (1932) 121 Cal. App. 147, 159 (interlocutory decree made after trial)]. However, it is well settled that a trial court may, whenever necessary, order an accounting with or without the entry of an interlocutory judgment [Schefski v. Anker (1932) 216 Cal. 624, 627] . For forms used in actions for an accounting, including a form of interlocutory judgment, see Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

4-38 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 38.13

AUTHOR: Hon. Bruce R. Geernaert, Judge (Ret.) Editorial Consultant Bruce Geernaert retired from the Los Angeles County Superior Court in 1996 after twenty-two years of service on the bench, during which he handled all aspects of civil litigation. He served on a special Settlement Panel for over five years, earning particular recognition for his effective handling of complex cases. Judge Geernaert is presently serving as a mediator, special master, referee, and arbitrator through JAMS/Endispute.

§ 38.13 Waiver of Objections to Reference

[1] Objection Usually Waived Absent Timely Objection

[a] Timely Objection Required

Unless a party makes a timely objection to the propriety of an order of reference made without the party's consent, the objection may be considered waived [Shain v. Peterson (1893) 99 Cal. 486, 487, 33 P. 1085 (objection first raised on appeal); see Martino v. Denevi (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 553, 557, 227 Cal. Rptr. 354 (waived by failure to file written objection to referee's report as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 645)]. An objection to a reference must be made in writing, and must be heard and disposed of by the court, not by the referee [Code Civ. Proc. § 642]. If the objection is not made either at the time the order is made or during the hearing or trial of the matter, a party may not raise the objection on appeal as a ground for reversal [see Hendy Machine W. v. Pac. C. C. Co. (1893) 99 Cal. 421, 423 ; Shain v. Peterson (1893) 99 Cal. 486, 487, 33 P. 1085] .

[b] Proceeding Under Uncertain Order of Reference

Even if the original minute order of reference is so brief as to be uncertain, if the subsequent developments must necessarily have made it clear that the referee was acting as a referee, participation in the hearing is indicative of prior consent to the reference or waiver of objection to it. In addition, recitation of the fact of reference in a judgment is presumed to be correct, although it is not conclusive [Estate of Hart (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 89, 91-92, 77 P.2d 1082 (minute order simply stated, "Referred to J.W. Mullin, Jr.," affirming judgment that adopted referee's report on finding that court commissioner had acted as referee; if he had been acting as court commissioner, the proceedings would have violated appellant's statutory rights)].

[2] No Waiver if Court Treats Special Reference as General Reference

Voluntary participation in a reference hearing has been held not to amount to waiver, however, when the order was for a special reference, the parties neither consented nor objected to the reference, and subsequently, over objection, the court treated it as a general reference (which must be by consent) and treated the referee's findings and conclusions of law as binding and determinative of the issue [Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 431, 436, 227 Cal. Rptr. 460] .

[3] No Waiver in Order or Reference Is Nullity

However, if the order of reference is a nullity, participation in the proceeding cannot give it validity or constitute a waiver [see Thompson v. Municipal Court (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 676, 678, 328 P.2d 514 (order of reference by a judge away from court by telephone was ineffective because power to order reference is vested in the court, and a judge may not make the order while absent from the court); see also Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 431, 436, 227 Cal. Rptr. 460 (citing Thompson as authority that failure of the record to show some indication of reference order in accordance with statutory requirements is nonwaivable jurisdictional error); for discussion of the effect of proceeding under a vague order, see [1][b], above].

Volume 4: Using Alternative Dispute Resolution thru Tactics and New Developments in ADR-Chs. 30-39
Chapter 38 REFERENCE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

4-38 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 38.14

AUTHOR: Hon. Bruce R. Geernaert, Judge (Ret.) Editorial Consultant Bruce Geernaert retired from the Los Angeles County Superior Court in 1996 after twenty-two years of service on the bench, during which he handled all aspects of civil litigation. He served on a special Settlement Panel for over five years, earning particular recognition for his effective handling of complex cases. Judge Geernaert is presently serving as a mediator, special master, referee, and arbitrator through JAMS/Endispute.

§ 38.14 Referees

[1] Nature of Referee

A referee is essentially a hearing officer appointed by the court to hear testimony, try issues of fact or law, or both, and report findings to the court [see Apartment etc. Financing Corp. v. Will (1924) 69 Cal. App. 276, 278, 231 P. 349] .

[2] Referees and Court Commissioners Distinguished

A referee is not necessarily a regular officer of the court, as is a court commissioner [compare Code Civ. Proc. § 640 with Code Civ. Proc. § 259]. A referee is appointed to hear individual matters and the referee's powers are delineated by the order of appointment [see Apartment etc. Financing Corp. v. Will (1924) 69 Cal. App. 276, 279, 231 P. 349] . A court commissioner of the county in which the cause is pending may, however, act as a referee [Code Civ. Proc. § 640], and if appointed to act in that capacity, his or her powers and duties are governed by the reference order and the statutes dealing with reference generally, not by the statute defining the duties and powers of court commissioners [Jackson v. Puget Sound Lumber Co. (1898) 123 Cal. 97, 101, 55 P. 788] . For discussion of court commissioners, see Ch. 317, Judges .

[2A] Referee and Temporary Judges Compared

Cal Const. art. VI, § 21 provides for appointment of temporary judges. A temporary judge has broader powers than a referee, including the power to render a judgment that is appealable in the same manner as one rendered by a constitutional judge. In keeping with this broad authority, a temporary judge must take an oath of office before performing judicial functions [see Kajima Engineering and Construction, Inc. v. Pacific Bell (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1401, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 464 ; Cal. Const., art. VI, § 21; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.814, 2.831(b)]. A referee does not have to take the oath [Kajima Engineering and Construction, Inc. v. Pacific Bell (2002 103 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1400, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 464] . A referee's statement of decision on a general reference must stand as the finding of the court,judgment can be entered on it, and it can be excepted to [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 643-645, discussed at §§ 38.22, 38.24 -38.25]. A general reference may reserve to the court the power to determine a motion for new trial or other postjudgment motions, such as those concerning costs [see Kajima Engineering and Construction, Inc. v. Pacific Bell (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1401-1402, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 464 ; discussion at § 38.25].

[3] Powers and Duties

[a] Scope of Powers and Duties Defined by Order

A referee has the power to hear testimony, try issues of fact or law, or both, and report findings to the court [Apartment etc. Financing Corp. v. Will (1924) 69 Cal. App. 276, 278, 231 P. 349] . A referee's authority is derived from, and limited by, the order of appointment [see Fooshe v. Sunshine (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 336, 344-346, 215 P.2d 66 (finding that referee acted within scope of reference)]. For example, in a general reference with consent of the parties, the referee has the power to report findings on all the issues in the case, while in a special, involuntary reference, the referee's power is limited to the findings of fact on the matter required by the court [Weinfeld v. Weinfeld (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 608, 613, 324 P.2d 342] . In a special reference, it is proper, when so ordered, for the referee to assess and make findings regarding the parties' credibility. As fact-finders, referees necessarily make credibility determinations [In re Marriage of Petropoulos (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 161, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 111] .

[b] Exercise by Multiple Referees

When a matter is referred to a panel of three referees all must meet, but two of them may do any act that might be done by all [Code Civ. Proc. § 1053].

[c] Discovery Referee

An order appointing a referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(5) to assist in the resolution of a discovery dispute must grant the referee the following authority [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.922(e)]:

- To set the date, time and place for all hearings the referee determines to be necessary.
- To direct the issuance of subpoenas.
- To preside over hearings.
- To take evidence.
- To rule on objections, motions, and other requrests made during the course of the hearing.

An order appointing a discovery referee must indicate whether the referee is being appointed for all discovery purposes in the action or only for limitedpurposes Code Civ. Proc. § 639(c); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.922(d)(2)], and must specify the exceptional circumstances requiring the reference, which must be specific to the circumstances of the particular case [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(d)(2); Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 3.922(c)(2), discussed at § 38.12[2][b]]; for further discussion, see § 38.22].

For a form of order that can be used to appoint a discovery referee, see § 38.63.

[d] Information to Be Filed With Court

A referee must file a statement that provides the name, telephone number, and mailing address of a person or persons who may be contacted to obtain in each case pending information about the date, time, location, and general nature of all hearings scheduled before the referee that would be open to the public if held before a judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.931(b)(1)] and access to any documents or exhibits submitted to the referee that would be open to the public if filed or lodged with the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.400(d)(2)]. This statement must be filed at the same time as the referee's certification under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.904(a) or 3.924(a) [see § 38.15[3]]. If there is any change in the contact information, the referee must promptly file a revised statement with the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.400(d)(2), 3.931(b)(1)].

In addition, the statement filed by a referee may also provide the address of a publicly accessible website at which the referee will maintain a current calendar setting forth the aforementioned information [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.931(b)(2)].

[4] When Bond Required

If the duties of a referee or commissioner appointed by a court will, or are reasonably anticipated to, involve the custody of personal property or the receipt or disbursement of moneys, the order of appointment must provide that before entering on the duties, the referee or commissioner must execute an undertaking to the State of California. The undertaking must state that the referee or commissioner will faithfully discharge the duties of referee or commissioner, as the case may be, and will obey the orders of the court therein. In addition, the order of appointment must specify the amount of the undertaking, although a failure to do so will not invalidate the order [Code Civ. Proc. § 571; see the Bond and Undertaking Law (Code Civ. Proc. § 995.010 et seq.); for discussion and forms relating to undertakings, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings, § 538.40 et seq.].

[5] Referees' Immunity

As judicial officers, referees are entitled to immunity for acts done in the exercise of their judicial functions. The question of what constitutes an act in a referee's official capacity is determined by whether it is an act a referee usually does in the performance of his or her judicial functions. So while keeping order during a deposition or other proceeding which the referee is to oversee would be a normal judicial function, assaulting the deponent to keep him in the room is not. Thus, a discovery referee who assaulted and battered a litigant is not immune from civil liability for that act [Regan v. Price (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1491, 1493, 1495-1496, 1499, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 130] . For a full discussion of judicial immunity, see Ch. 317, Judges .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

4-38 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 38.15

AUTHOR: Hon. Bruce R. Geernaert, Judge (Ret.) Editorial Consultant Bruce Geernaert retired from the Los Angeles County Superior Court in 1996 after twenty-two years of service on the bench, during which he handled all aspects of civil litigation. He served on a special Settlement Panel for over five years, earning particular recognition for his effective handling of complex cases. Judge Geernaert is presently serving as a mediator, special master, referee, and arbitrator through JAMS/Endispute.

§ 38.15 Appointment of Referee

[1] One to Three Referees May Be Appointed

There may be one or more referees, not exceeding three [Code Civ. Proc. § 640].

[2] Court Selects Referee if Parties Do Not Agree on Referee

The parties may agree on who will act as referee [Code Civ. Proc. § 640(a)].

If the parties do not agree, the court must appoint a referee or referees [Code Civ. Proc. § 640(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 641, 641.2 (objections); see also [3][b], below; § 38.16]. For discussion of references for the examination of judgment debtors, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.180 et seq.

[3] Procedure

[a] General or Voluntary Special Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 638

If the applicant for a Code Civ. Proc. § 638 reference is requesting, or the parties have stipulated to, the appointment of a particular referee, the motion must be accompanied by the referee's certificate required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.904(a) and by a proposed order [Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 3.901(b)(4), (5); see also § 38.63[1], reproducing Judicial Council Form ADR-110, Order Appointing Referee, Item 9 of which is a form of referee's certificate)]. The proposed order must include the following [Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 3.902]:

- The business address, and telephone number of the proposed referee

- If the proposed referee is a member of the State Bar, his or her State Bar number.
- Whether the scope of the reference covers all issues or is limited to specified issues.
- Whether the referee will be privately compensated.
- Whether the use of court facilities and court personnel is authorized.
- The name and telephone number of a person to contact to arrange for attendance at any proceeding that would be open to the public if held in a courthouse.

If the proposed referee is a former California judicial officer, he or she must be an active or inactive member of the State Bar [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.903].

Before a referee begins to serve [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.904(a)]:

- He or she must certify in writing that he or she consents to serve as provided in the order of appointment and is aware of and will comply with applicable provisions of canon 6 of the Code of Judicial Ethics and the Rules of Court pertaining to references.
- The referee's certification must be filed with the court.

The parties' agreement for an order directing reference does not, however, constitute a waiver of grounds for objecting to the appointment under Code Civ. Proc. § 641 or 641.2 [Code Civ. Proc. § 640(c); see § 38.16]. Objections must, however, be brought with reasonable diligence [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.905].

[b] Involuntary Special Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 639

To select the referee in a Code Civ. Proc. § 639 involuntary special reference, when the parties do not agree on the selection of the referee or referees, each party must submit to the court up to three nominees for appointment as referee and the court must appoint one or more referees, not exceeding three, from among the nominees against whom there is no legal objection [Code Civ. Proc. § 640(b)]. If no nominations are received from any of the parties, the court must appoint one or more referees, not exceeding three, against whom there is no legal objection, or the court may appoint a court commissioner of the county where the cause is pending as a referee [Code Civ. Proc. § 640(b)]. If the proposed referee is a former California judicial officer, he or she must be an active or inactive member of the State Bar [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.923].

An order for an involuntary reference must set forth the items required by Code Civ. Proc. § 639(c) and (d), discussed at § 38.12[2][b][i], including the referee's name, business address, and telephone number [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(d)(4); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.922(b)].

Filing a motion for appointment of a referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 639 does not constitute waiver of grounds for objecting to the appointment of a particular person as referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 641 or 641.2 [Code Civ. Proc. § 640(c); see § 38.16] or to the rate or apportionment of the referee's compensation. Objections must, however, be brought with reasonable diligence [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.925].

§ 38.16 Objections to Appointment

[1] Peremptory Challenge

A referee or commissioner may be disqualified by a peremptory challenge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 [see, e.g., Autoland, Inc. v. Superior Court (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 857, 859-860, 252 Cal. Rptr. 662 (upholding peremptory disqualification of discovery referee); People v. Superior Court (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1164, 1182-1185 ; 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 815, 847 P.2d 1031 ; Pedus Services, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 140, 143-144, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 771 ; Stevens v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal.App.4th 55, 59, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 397 (so-called "10-day/5-day" rule governing time for filing peremptory challenge of referee who is not appointed "for all purposes")]. Generally, only a party to the action can challenge a discovery referee [Sears Roebuck & Co. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1342, 1349 n.4, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 717 (attorney for corporate principals, individual nonparty witnesses, who was himself subpoenaed to produce documents and to give deposition, had no standing to challenge discovery referee)].

A peremptory challenge against a discovery referee [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6] must be made to the court by a party either within the following time periods [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(b)]:

- If the discovery referee was appointed for all discovery purposes, within 10 days after notice of the appointment, or if the party has not yet appeared in the action, the motion must be made within 10 days after the that party's appearance.

- If the discovery referee has been assigned only for limited discovery purposes and the referee assigned is known at least 10 days before the date set for hearing, at least five days before the date set for hearing.

A ruling regarding the disqualification of a referee is not an appealable order, but can be reviewed only by writ. This rule promotes judicial economy and prevents the waste of time and money that might otherwise result [Sears Roebuck & Co. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1342, 1348, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 717 (dismissing appeal)].

For discussion and forms relating to peremptory challenges, see Ch. 317, Judges .

[2] Challenge for Cause

[a] Grounds

A party may object to the appointment of any person as referee, on one or more of the following grounds [Code Civ. Proc. § 641]:

- A want of any of the qualifications prescribed by statute to render a person competent as a juror, except a requirement of residence within a particular county of California [see Code Civ. Proc. § 203; see also Ch. 322, Juries and Jury Selection].

- Consanguinity, or affinity, within the third degree to either party, or to an officer of a corporation that is a party, or to any judge of the court in which the appointment is being made.

- Standing in the relation of guardian and ward, conservator and conservatee, master and servant, employer and clerk, or principal and agent, to either party, or being a member of the family of either party, or a partner in business with either party, or security on any bond or obligation for either party.

- Having served as a juror or been a witness on any trial between the same parties for the same cause of action.

- Interest on the part of the person in the event underlying the action, or in the main question involved in the action.

- Having formed or expressed an unqualified opinion or belief as to the merits of the action.

- The existence of a state of mind in the potential referee evincing enmity against or bias toward either party.

For a form that may be adapted for use in making an objection to the appointment of a referee, see § 38.68.

[b] In Environmental Pollution Action

In environmental actions brought under Gov. Code § 12600 et seq., a party may object to the appointment of any person as referee on the ground that he or she is not technically qualified with respect to the particular subject matter of the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 641.2].

[c] Disclosure of Grounds

[i] General or Voluntary Special Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 638

In addition to any other disclosure required by law, the referee must disclose to the parties, no later than five days prior to the deadline forparties to file a motion for disqualification of the referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 or, if the referee is not aware of his or her appointment or of a matter subject to disclosure at that time, as soon as practicable thereafter the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.904(b)]:

- Any matter subject to disclosure under subdivisions (D)(5)(a) and (D)(5)(b) of canon 6 of the Code of Judicial Ethics [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appendix: Judicial Code of Ethics]; and

- Any significant personal or professional relationship the referee has or has had with a party, attorney, or law firm in the current case, including the number and nature of any other proceedings in the past24 months in which the referee has been privately compensated by a party, attorney, law firm, or insurance company in the current case for any services, including service as an attorney, expert witness, or consultant or as a judge, referee, arbitrator, mediator, settlement facilitator, or other alternative dispute resolution neutral.

Canon 6(D)(5)(a) relates to information the referee believes the parties or their lawyers might consider relevant to the issue of disqualification, even if the referee believes there is no actual basis for disqualification. Canon 6(D)(5)(b) relates to membership in any organization that practices invidious discrimination, with the exception of certain religious, military and youth organizations.

[ii] Involuntary Special Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 639

In addition to any other disclosure required by law, the referee must disclose to the parties, no later than five days prior to the deadline for parties to file a motion for disqualification of the referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 or, if the referee is not aware of his or her appointment or of a matter subject to disclosure at that time, as soon as practicable thereafter the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.924(b)]:

- Any matter subject to disclosure under subdivisions (D)(5)(a) and (D)(5)(b) of canon 6 of the Code of Judicial Ethics [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appendix: Judicial Code of Ethics; see [i], above]; and

- Any significant personal or professional relationship the referee has or has had with a party, attorney, or law firm in the current case, including the number and nature of any other proceedings in the past 24 months in which the referee has been privately compensated by a party, attorney, law firm, or insurance company in the current case for any services, including service as an attorney, expert witness, or consultant or as a judge, referee, arbitrator, mediator, settlement facilitator, or other alternative dispute resolution neutral.

[3] Procedure for Disqualification

The objections taken to the appointment of any person as referee must be heard and disposed of by the court. Objections must be in writing and must be filed and served on all parties and the referee [Code Civ. Proc. § 642; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.905 (Code Civ. Proc. § 368 references), Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 3.925) (Code Civ. Proc. § 639 references)].

For forms of notice of motion, declaration, and order to vacate appointment of a referee, see §§ 38.68 and 38.69. The same procedure applies as in the case of disqualification of a judge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170 et seq. [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5(a) ("judge" defined to include referee); for discussion, including time limitations, see Ch. 317, Judges].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

4-38 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 38.17

AUTHOR: Hon. Bruce R. Geernaert, Judge (Ret.) Editorial Consultant Bruce Geernaert retired from the Los Angeles County Superior Court in 1996 after twenty-two years of service on the bench, during which he handled all aspects of civil litigation. He served on a special Settlement Panel for over five years, earning particular recognition for his effective handling of complex cases. Judge Geernaert is presently serving as a mediator, special master, referee, and arbitrator through JAMS/Endispute.

§ 38.17 Location and Accessibility of Proceedings

[1] When Reference Is to Privately Compensated Referee Under Code Civ. Proc. § 638

A party who has elected to use the services of a referee pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638 is deemed to have elected to proceed outside court facilities. Therefore, court facilities, court personnel, and summoned jurors must not be used, except on a finding by the presiding judge that the use would further the interests of justice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.907].

[2] When Reference Is by Court Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 639

A reference ordered pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639 entitles the parties to the use of court facilities and court personnel to the extent provided in the order of reference. The proceedings may be held in a private facility, but if so, the private facility must be open to the public [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.926].

PRACTICE TIP:
Reference Heard Away From Courthouse as a Rule. Invariably, references pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639 are heard outside the courthouse. By Hon. Bruce R. Geernaert, Judge (Ret.)

[3] Proceedings Open to Public

All proceedings before a referee that would be open to the public if held before a judge must be open to the public, regardless of whether they are held in a court facility or in another location [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.931(a)].

[4] Application or Motion for Accessible and Appropriate Site

[a] Making the Application

The presiding judge or his or her designee, on application of any person or on the judge's own motion, may order that a case before a referee must be heard at a site easily accessible to the public and appropriate for seating those who have made known their plan to attend hearings [see § 38.21[1]]. The application must state facts showing good cause for granting the application, be served on all parties and the referee, and be filed with the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.931(c)(1)]. The issuance of an order for an accessible and appropriate hearing site is not grounds for withdrawal of a stipulation for the appointment of a referee [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.906(a)(2), 3.931(c)(1)].

For a form of application to obtain site easily accessible to the public and appropriate for seating and supporting declaration, see § 38.81. For a form of proposed order that a case referred to a referee be heard in an accessible and appropriate site, see § 38.82.

[b] Court May Order Stay

The reference proceedings are not stayed while the application for an order that a case before a referee must be heard at a site easily accessible to the public and appropriate for seating those who have made known their plan to attend hearings is pending unless the presiding judge or his or her designee orders that they be stayed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.931(c)(1)].

For a form of application for stay of reference pending application for order that a case referred to a referee be heard in an accessible and appropriate site, see § 38.83. For a form of order granting stay of reference pending application for order that a case referred to a referee be heard in an accessible and appropriate site, see § 38.84.

[c] Special Considerations When Court Staff Must Attend

If a court staff mediator or evaluator is required to attend a hearing before a referee, the hearing must take place at a location requiring no more than 15 minutes' travel time from the mediator's or evaluator's work site, unless otherwise ordered by the presiding judge or his or her designee [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.931(c)(2)].

Judge Geernaert is presently serving as a mediator, special master, referee, and arbitrator through JAMS/Endispute.

§ 38.18 Motion to Withdraw Stipulation

A motion to withdraw a stipulation for the appointment of a referee must be supported by a declaration of facts establishing good cause for permitting the party to withdraw the stipulation and must be heard by the judge to whom the case is assigned or by the presiding judge or law and motion judge. A declaration that a ruling is based on an error of fact or law does not establish good cause for withdrawing a stipulation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.906]; for a form of motion and supporting declaration, see § 38.66].

Notice of the motion must be served on all parties and the referee and filed with the court. If the motion is granted, the case must be transferred to the trial court docket [Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 3.906].

§ 38.19 Filing, Accessing, and Sealing Reference Records

[1] Documents Must Be Filed With Court and Referee

All original documents in a case pending before a referee must be filed with the clerk in the same manner as would be required if the case were being heard by a judge. Filings must be made within applicable time limits, and required filing fees must be paid. The filing party must provide to the referee a file-stamped copy of each document relevant to the issues before the referee [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.400(b)(1)].

If a document must be filed with the court before it is considered by a judge, the referee must not accept or consider any copy of that document unless the document has the clerk's file stamp or is accompanied by a declaration stating that the original document has been submitted to the court for filing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.400(b)(2)].

If a document would ordinarily be filed with the court after it is submitted to a judge, or if a party submits an ex parte application, the party that submits the document or application to a referee must file the original with the court no later than the next court day after the document or application was submitted to the referee and must promptly provide a filed-stamped copy of the document or application to the referee [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.400(b)(3)].

A party that has submitted a document to a referee must immediately notify the referee if the document is not accepted for filing by the court or if the filing is subsequently canceled [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.400(b)(4)].

[2] Handling of and Access to Exhibits

Referees appointed under Code Civ. Proc. § 638 or 639 must comply with the applicable requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.400 concerning the handling of documents and exhibits [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.930].

Documents and exhibits in the possession of a temporary judge or referee that would be open to the public if filed or lodged with the court must be made available during business hours for inspection by any person within a reasonable time after request and under reasonable conditions [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.400(d)(1)].

For discussion of requirement that referees file statements giving contract information, see § 38.14[3][d]. For discussion of requirement that court clerk post referees' contract information in court facilities, see § 38.21[1].

[3] Motion to Seal Reference Records

A motion or application to seal records in a case pending before a referee under either Code Civ. Proc. § 638 or § 639 must be filed with the court and served on the referee and all parties who have appeared in the case. The motion or application must be heard by the trial court judge to whom the case is assigned or, if the case has not been assigned, by the presiding judge or his or her designee. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.550 and 2.551 apply to the motion or application to seal the records [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.932(a)].

For a form of notice of motion to seal records and supporting declaration, see § 38.79. § 38.20 Motion for Leave to File Complaint in Intervention

A motion for leave to file a complaint for intervention in a case pending before a referee must be served on all parties and the referee, and filed with the court. The motion must be heard by the judge to whom the case is assigned or by the presiding judge or his or her designee judge if the case has not been assigned. § 38.21 Hearing Before Referee

[1] Notice of Hearing

Because the statutes governing reference do not provide for notice of the hearing before a referee, formal notice is not jurisdictional [Spadoni v. Maggenti (1932) 121 Cal. App. 147, 160 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 638 et seq.]. A party who has actual knowledge of the appointment of a referee must exercise reasonable diligence to ascertain the time and place of the hearing [see Doudell v. Shoo (1912) 20 Cal. App. 424, 447, 129 P. 478] .

After the referee files the requisite statement of information concerning a contact person from whom information about hearings before the referee may be obtained [see § 38.14[3][d]], the clerk of the court with which the statement was filed must post the information from the statement filed by the referee in the court facility [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.931(b)(3)].

PRACTICE TIP:
Serving Notice Is Good Practice: Good practice is to serve written notice and file a proof of service re the initial hearing. By Hon. Bruce R. Geernaert, Judge (Ret.)

Objections to a referee's report on the grounds of lack of notice of the hearing should be made before the findings are made and filed, thus giving the court, in the exercise of its discretion, an opportunity to instruct the referee to proceed denovo [see Doudell v. Shoo (1912) 20 Cal. App. 424, 453, 129 P. 478 (opinion on denial of rehearing); see also Hoeft v. Hotchkiss (1926) 76 Cal. App. 670, 671] . Failure either to exercise reasonable diligence to ascertain the time and place of the hearing or to make timely objections prior to the adoption of the referee's report by the court constitutes a waiver of the right to complain of the lack of notice or the opportunity to present evidence [see Spadoni v. Maggenti (1932) 121 Cal. App. 147, 159-160] .

[2] Conduct of Hearing

[a] Same as Trial Before a Court

A hearing before a referee is conducted in the same manner as a trial held before a court [In re McNamee (1933) 131 Cal. App. 30, 31, 20 P.2d 722] . The Evidence Code applies to proceedings conducted by a referee or commissioner [Evid. Code § 300].

A referee has no power to make findings not based on evidence regularly admitted at a trial or hearing. Thus, in a case in which the referee's reportwas rendered without a trial or hearing, no witnesses were sworn, no opportunity was given to the parties to examine witnesses or introduce evidence, and no documents were identified, the appellate court held that the conduct of the referee deprived appellants of their day in court [Rice v. Brown (1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 100, 106, 231 P.2d 65] . An exception to the foregoing is a reference for an accounting which does not contemplate any hearing or taking of evidence but requires the parties to deliver to the referee/accountant all books, accountings, bank records, or any other documentation requested by the accountant [Jones v. Wagner (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 466, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669 (accounting on partnership dissolution); see also Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for].

[b] Improper Communication With Referee

A referee or party may be subject to criminal penalties for engaging in unlawful communications about a pending cause or action outside the regular course of the proceedings [see Penal Code §§ 95, 96]. Every person who corruptly attempts to influence a referee regarding his or her verdict or decision in any cause or proceeding pending or about to be brought before the referee, either by oral or written communications or by use of any book, paper, or instrument exhibited not in the regular course of proceedings, or by threat, intimidation, persuasion, or entreaty, or by any promise or assurance of pecuniary or other advantage, is punishable by fine or imprisonment [see Penal Code § 95].

Similarly, a referee who either makes a promise or agreement to give a verdict or decision for or against any party, or who willfully and corruptly permits any communication to be made to him or her, or receives any book, paper, instrument, or information relating to any cause or matter pending before the referee not in the regular course of proceedings, is punishable by fine or imprisonment [see Penal Code § 96].

Judge Geernaert is presently serving as a mediator, special master, referee, and arbitrator through JAMS/Endispute.

§ 38.22 Filing of Referee's Report

[1] Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 638

Unless otherwise directed by the court, the referees or commissioner must report their statement of decision in writing to the court within 20 days after the hearing, if any, has been concluded and the matter has been submitted [Code Civ. Proc. § 643(a)]. An earlier version of this provision has been held to be directory only, and failure to file the report within the statutory time limits does not invalidate a judgment based on the report [Keller v. Sutrick (1863) 22 Cal. 472, 473]. A referee appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638 must report as agreed by the parties and approved by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 643(b)].

For a form that may be used as a statement of decision, see § 38.70.

[2] Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 639

Former Code Civ. Proc. § 643 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 643(a) (see [1], above)] has been held to apply only in the case of general references; a statement of decision is not required in a special reference [Dallman Co. v. Southern Heater Co. (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 582, 589-590, 68 Cal. Rptr. 873] .

In a special reference pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639, the referee files a report to the court, which must include the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 643(c)]:

- A recommendation on the merits of any disputed issue.
- A statement of the total hours spent.

- The total fees charged by the referee.
- The referee's recommended allocation of payment.

The referee must serve the report on all parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 643(c)]. Any party may file objections to the report [Code Civ. Proc. § 643(c)], as discussed at § 38.25[2].

A discovery referee's report should contain findings and make a recommendation thereon [see Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(5)].

For a form that may be used as a report, see § 38.70.

[3] Failure to Report

If the referee fails to file a report, mandamus is proper to compel him or her to do so [Apartment etc. Financing Corp. v. Will (1924) 69 Cal. App. 276, 278-279, 231 P. 349] .

§ 38.23 Sufficiency of Referee's Report

The findings set forth in a referee's report must be supported by the evidence as set forth in the record [In re Rose (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 384, 389, 42 Cal. Rptr. 236, 398 P.2d 428 (findings predicated on referee's implied disbelief of credibility of witness, but no finding of lack of credibility made in report)].

It is advisable to clarify what the "record" of the hearing will be; that is, a reporter transcript, audio tape transcript, audio tape itself, or the referees notes. § 38.24 Effect of Referee's Report

[1] General Reference

In a consensual general reference pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638, the decision of the referee or commissioner on the whole issue must stand as the decision of the court. On filing of the statement of decision with the clerk of the court, judgment may be entered thereon in the same manner as if the action had been tried by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 644(a)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Act Immediately on Receipt of Report. Immediately on receipt of a referee's statement of decision, it is a good idea either to move for a court action based thereon or to file objections in the court. By Hon. Bruce R. Geernaert, Judge (Ret.)

[2] Special Reference

[a] Comparable to Special Verdict

In the case of all references other than consensual general references pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638, the decision of the referee or commissioner is only advisory. The court may adopt the referee's recommendations in whole or in part after independently considering the referee's findings and any objections and responses thereto filed with the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 644(b); see § 38.25[2], regarding objections]. When a reference is to report the facts, the decision reported has the effect of a special verdict [Code Civ. Proc. § 645; see Code Civ. Proc. § 628 (entry of judgment or of order reserving case for argument or further consideration on receipt of special verdict)]. A special verdict must present the findings of fact as established by the evidence, and those findings must be presented so that nothing remains for the court but to draw from them conclusions of law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 624]. The findings, however, are not indispensable, and a finding with respect to a fact does not become binding on the court until and unless adopted by it [Chiarodit v. Chiarodit (1933) 218 Cal. 147, 150, 21 P.2d 562] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Act Immediately on Receipt of Report. Immediately on receipt of a referee's report and recommendation following a special reference, it is a good idea either to move for a court action based thereon or to file objections in the court. By Hon. Bruce R. Geernaert, Judge (Ret.)

[b] Confirmation of Report

The party in whose favor the decision is made should serve and file a notice of motion and supporting papers for an order to confirm or adopt the referee's report [see, e.g., Hall v. Bru (1932) 216 Cal. 153, 154, 13 P.2d 716 ; Fooshe v. Sunshine (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 336, 345, 215 P.2d 66 ; for a form, see § 38.71].

If the report is incomplete and fails to find on all the issues submitted, the court should send the report back to the referee with instructions to complete it and resubmit it. In general, any omission from the report calls for a recommittal with instructions to supply the omission [Apartment etc. Financing Corp. v. Will (1924) 69 Cal. App. 276, 279, 231 P. 349] . On resubmission, if the subsequent report is based on evidence presented both before and after resubmission, it is considered a complete report and entirely supersedes the original report. In such a case, the court may not consider the superseded report [see Brodie v. Barnes (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 315, 320, 132 P.2d 595] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

4-38 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 38.25

AUTHOR: Hon. Bruce R. Geernaert, Judge (Ret.) Editorial Consultant Bruce Geernaert retired from the Los Angeles County Superior Court in 1996 after twenty-two years of service on the bench, during which he handled all aspects of civil litigation. He served on a special Settlement Panel for over five years, earning particular recognition for his effective handling of complex cases. Judge Geernaert is presently serving as a mediator, special master, referee, and arbitrator through JAMS/Endispute.

§ 38.25 Objections to Referee's Report

[1] Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 638

The decision of the referee appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638 or commissioner may be excepted to and reviewed in like manner as if made by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 645]. Thus, a motion for a new trial or other appropriate proceeding is proper [Lewis v. Grunberg (1928) 205 Cal. 158, 162, 270 P. 181 ; see Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 722, 269 P.2d 3 ; SFPP, L.P. v. Burlington N. & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 452, 465-466, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 96 (motion to vacate judgment suggested)]. For a form of notice of motion for new trial, see § 38.76.

The objections supporting a motion for a new trial may be based on the ground that there is no finding as to a particular fact in issue or that the findings are contrary to or unsupported by the evidence [Clark v. Hewitt (1902) 136 Cal. 77, 78-79, 68 P. 303 (no finding); In re Riccardi (1926) 80 Cal. App. 66, 73, 251 P. 650 (contrary or unsupported)], unless the doctrine of implied findings is involved. The doctrine of implied findings will be applicable if the stipulation for general reference incorporates Code Civ. Proc. § 634 or otherwise makes it applicable [see SFPP, L.P. v. Burlington N. & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 452, 465, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 96 (stipulation that reference be conducted in accordance with Code of Civ. Proc. and Evid. Code as if proceedings were conducted by Superior Court)]. If Code Civ. Proc. § 634 and the doctrine of implied findings are applicable, no challenge that the referee's findings were not supported by substantial evidence can be heard on appeal unless it was first raised in the trial court by motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 657 (new trial) or Code Civ. Proc. § 663 (to vacate judgment) [SFPP, L.P. v. Burlington N. & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 452, 465-466, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 96] .

The objections must be raised in the trial court before they will be reviewed on appeal; however, a motion for a new trial is not a prerequisite to an appeal based on insufficiency of the evidence [Estate of Raphael (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 525, 528-529, 252 P.2d 979] .

The motion for new trial may be heard by the referee, absent any indication in the order of reference that his or her powers have expired [Clark v. Rancho Santa Fe Assn. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 606, 625-626, 265 Cal. Rptr. 41 (referee properly heard motion when reference was "for a complete and final adjudication"); see Daverkosen v. Kelley (1872) 43 Cal.477, 478 (court could not return matter to referee when reference was to "take the evidence and report a judgment")].

For discussion of additional grounds for new trial and the time limitations for giving notice of intention to move for new trial, see § 38.76[3].

If the parties wish the new trial of the case to be submited to a general reference, the parties should make a new stipulation for reference. Otherwise, because a general reference cannot be made without the parties' consent, the order granting a new trial would not include a provision for a general reference [Daverkosen v. Kelley (1872) 43 Cal. 477, 478 ; but see Clark v. Rancho Santa Fe Assn. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 606, 625-626, 265 Cal. Rptr. 41 (referee properly heard motion for new trial when reference was "for a complete and final adjudication")].

[2] Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 639

Any party may file an objection to the report or recommendations of a referee appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639 within 10 days after the referee serves and files the report, or within another time as the court may direct. The objection must be served on the referee and all other parties. Responses to the objections must be filed with the court and served on the referee and all other parties within 10 days after the objection is served. The court must review any objections to the report and any responses submitted to those objections and must thereafter enter appropriate orders [Code Civ. Proc. § 643(c) see also Code Civ. Proc. § 259(b) (commissioners)]. Objections to the referee's report are generally made either with a motion to set aside the report [Code Civ. Proc. § 645; see, e.g., McHenry v. Moore (1855) 5 Cal. 90, 92 ; for forms, see also §§ 38.72 (objections to report), 38.73 (notice of motion to set aside report)], or in opposing a motion to confirm the report [Estate of Raphael (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 525, 529, 252 P.2d 979] .

Nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 643 is intended to deprive the court of its power to change the terms of the referee's appointment or to modify or disregard the referee's recommendations, and this overriding power may be exercised at any time, either on the motion of any party for good cause shown or on the court's own motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 643(c)]. Thus, in a special reference pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639, until the referee's report is confirmed or adopted by the trial court, it may be set aside without the necessity of granting a motion for a new trial [Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 723, 269 P.2d 3] .

If a party fails to file written objections to the referee's report or to move properly to set it aside, any objections will be deemed waived [Martino v. Denevi (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 553, 557, 227 Cal. Rptr. 354] .

Once the referee's report is confirmed or adopted by the trial court and judgment entered accordingly, review on appeal is of the trial court's judgment [see National Brass Wks. v. Weeks (1928) 92 Cal. App. 318, 321-322, 268 P. 412] .

§ 38.26 Referee's Fees

[1] Availability

When a referee is appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638, the referee's fees must be paid as agreed by the parties. If the parties do not agree on the payment of fees and request the matter to be resolved by the court, the court may order the parties to pay the referee's fees as set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 645.1(b) [Code Civ. Proc. § 645.1(a)]. When a referee is appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639, at any time after a determination of ability to pay is made as specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 639(d)(6) [see § 38.12[2][b][iii], [iv]], the court may order the parties to pay the fees of referees who are not employees or officers of the court at the time of appointment, as fixed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1023, in any manner determined by the court to be fair and reasonable, including an apportionment of the fees among the parties. "Parties," for this purpose, does not include parties' counsel [Code Civ. Proc. § 645.1(b); see Huntoon v. Hurley (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 33, 40, 290 P.2d 14 (reference for accounting pursuant to parties' agreement; allocation of referee's fees to defendant was proper when court expressly reserved right to determine how fees should be allocated and defendant did not object)]. A party who did not agree to a reference should not be required to pay the fees if the reference was not necessary [see Code Civ. Proc. § 639(d)(6), discussed at § 38.12[2][b][i], [iii], [iv]; Taggares v. Superior Court (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 94, 104, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 387 (it is not "fair and reasonable" for court to impose entire cost of reference on objecting affluent party when opposing party is indigent); Utemark v. Samuel (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 313, 317-318, 257 P.2d 656 (order that plaintiff pay half of referee's fees was erroneous when reference appeared to be unnecessary and for defendant's sole benefit)]. Neither Code Civ. Proc. § 128 nor a trial court's inherent powers allow it to sanction an attorney by requiring him or her to pay the share of referee's fees apportioned to his or her client [Andrews v. Superior Court (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 779, 782-783, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 426] . For discussion of allocation of the referee'sfees and consideration of a party's economic hardship at the time of making a Code Civ. Proc. § 639 reference, see § 38.12[2][b][iii], [iv].

If an application is made to the court or referee to postpone a trial, the payment of the expenses occasioned by the postponement may be imposed, in the discretion of the court or referee as a condition of granting the postponement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1024].

The fact that a judgment is reversed on appeal does not deprive the court of power to order payment of the referee's fees [Most Worshipful Lodge v. Sons etc. Lodge (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 833, 835, 295 P.2d 912] .

[2] Amount

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1023, the fees allowed are such reasonable sum as the court fixes for the time spent in the reference [see, e.g., Matoza v. Matoza (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 572, 576, 269 P.2d 51 (allowance of $3,000 as reasonable, when referee devoted 230 hours to partnership accounting matter, paid expenses, prepared accountings, marshalled assets, provided office space, appeared in court, and held hearings)]. Allowance of a sum in advance for referee's fees without regard to time spent is erroneous. [Van Orden v. Anderson (1932) 122 Cal. App. 132, 145, 9 P.2d 572] . However, if the parties agree in writing on any other rate of compensation, the court must allow these rates [Code Civ. Proc. § 1023].

In some specific types of actions, other statutes govern fees [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 874.010 (partition actions)].

[3] Procedure for Referee to Recover Fees

The referee has standing to petition the court for fees at any time after his or her report is filed, and is not required to wait for the court or the parties to act on the fees [Most Worshipful Lodge v. Sons etc. Lodge (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 833, 834, 295 P.2d 912] . For a form of petition, see § 38.78.

Referee's fees may be made a lien on the property in controversy [Madison v. Moon (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 135, 146, 306 P.2d 15] .

[4] Appeal of Award Charging Party With Referee's Fees

An award charging the parties with a portion of referee's fees is appealable, and if it is found that there was no necessity for a reference and the party did not agree to it, that party should not be required to pay the fees [see Utemark v. Samuel (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 313, 317-318, 257 P.2d 656 (order that plaintiff pay half of referee's fees was erroneous when reference appeared to be unnecessary and for defendant's sole benefit)].

Even if order of involuntary reference broadly purported to be general reference, judgment based on it is to be affirmed when trial court gave it no more effect than special reference for examination of long account under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a). Barker Bros., Inc. v. Coates (1931) 211 Cal. 756, 758-759, 297 P. 8

Reference is presumed to be special unless it may be properly inferred by court from recitals in findings of referee and those of court that reference was general. Lewis v. Grunberg (1928) 205 Cal. 158, 161, 270 P. 181 ; Estate of Johnston (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 855, 860, 91 Cal. Rptr. 116

Voluntary reference requiring examination of long account with instructions to hear and decide whole issue is general reference. Rosati v. Heimann (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 51, 53, 271 P.2d 953

"Whole issue" referred to in Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a) means the account, not other issues having no immediate connection to account. Fredenhall v. Shrader (1920) 45 Cal. App. 719, 723, 188 P. 580

[4] Unauthorized References

Special discovery referee had no authority to hear and determine motions for summary judgment; plaintiff's participation in those motions was no substitute for consent required by Code Civ. Proc. § 638 and did not amount to waiver or estoppel of right to have referee's determinations voided. Jovine v. FHP, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1506, 1509, 1523, 1526-1532, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 322

Special referee appointed under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a) (long account) exceeds his or her powers by interpreting contract; contract interpretation is question of law for court unless conflicting extrinsic evidence is admitted; and then jury or, in case of equitable remedy like accounting, special master, must make findings equivalent to special verdict. De Guere v. Universal City Studios, Inc. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 482, 501, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 438

There is no statutory authority other than Evid. Code § 730 (appointment of expert) and Fam. Code § 3112 (appointment of investigator in child custody matters) for appointment of anyone to make findings of fact to aid court in determining child custody issues when parties do not consent to general reference; guardian ad litem cannot be appointed to "determine issues of custody" because only statutory authority for appointment of guardian ad litem for minor is when minor is party. In re Marriage of Lloyd (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 216, 219-222, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 37

Neither Fam. Code § 290 (general authority of court to enforce its order) nor Fam. Code § 3160 (mediation) provides authority for appointment of special master or referee to make findings of fact to aid court in determining child custody issues when parties do not consent to general reference; order of reference special master to determine "any and all issues regarding custody" is overbroad and without statutory authority. Ruisi v. Thieriot (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 1197, 1207-1211, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 766

Trial court's assignment of all law and motion summary judgment proceedings to referee without parties' consent is unauthorized under Code Civ. Proc. § 638 and violates Cal. Const., art. VI, § 22 (prohibiting delegation of judicial power except for performance of subordinate judicial duties). Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 431, 435-436, 227 Cal. Rptr. 460

Contested action for dissolution of marriage does not constitute special proceeding permitting reference over objection of party under former Code Civ. Proc. § 639(d) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(4)]. In re Marriage of Galis (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 147, 151-152, 196 Cal. Rptr. 659

[5] Objections to Reference

Objections to reference waived if party fails to take exception to reference order, appears before referee, and submits evidence without objection. Garland v. Smith (1933) 131 Cal. App. 517, 525, 21 P.2d 688

[6] Referees

[a] Disqualification

Party does not waive objections to referee when referee's bias does not appear until hearing was underway. J. G. Boswell Co. v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1944) 67 Cal. App. 2d 347, 356, 154 P.2d 13

Fact that referee made findings after original hearing did not disqualify him from rehearing cause on grounds of expressing opinion; no showing that referee's decision would be same if additional evidence were produced at rehearing. Taylor v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1940) 38 Cal. App. 2d 75, 79-80, 100 P.2d 511

[b] Duties

Referees are appointed to exercise judicial powers to take testimony, hear parties, and report findings. Department of Motor Vehicles v. Superior Court (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 770, 774, 76 Cal. Rptr. 804

Referee acted within scope of duties in taking evidence on all affairs of partnership; such evidence was necessary to make proper accounting pursuant to court's order. Fooshe v. Sunshine (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 336, 345-346, 215 P.2d 66

[7] Referee's Report

[a] General Reference

Code Civ. Proc. § 634, and thus doctrine of implied findings, was applicable to general reference stipulated to be conducted in accordance with Code of Civil Procedure and Evidence Code as if proceedings were conducted by Superior Court. SFPP, L.P. v. Burlington N. & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 452, 465, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 96

Referee's statement of decision was sufficient under relevant condemnation statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.510], which required finding that pipeline would unreasonably interfere with or impair use of proposed second track, and was supported by substantial evidence under doctrine of implied findings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 634] although finding did not use word "unreasonably" but stated only that location of pipeline was not compatible with greatest public good and least private injury because other parts of decision made clear that referee understood correct legal standard under applicable statute. SFPP, L.P. v. Burlington N. & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 452, 476-478, 17 Cal.

Objections not raised in trial court barred from being raised on appeal; however, sufficiency of evidence as issue that may always be raised on appeal. Estate of Raphael (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 525, 529, 252 P.2d 979 ; Standley v. Feather River Pine Mills, Inc. (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 101, 104, 245 P.2d 657

Motion for new trial as remedy against findings in general reference. In re Riccardi (1926) 80 Cal. App. 66, 73, 251 P. 650

[b] Special Reference

Referee's findings in special reference are not binding on court, but entitled to great weight. People v. Acosta (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 683, 687, 78 Cal. Rptr. 864, 456 P.2d 136 ; People v. Hatten (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 224, 226, 49 Cal. Rptr. 373, 411 P.2d 101 (overruled on other grounds); People v. Garcia (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 265, 268, 46 Cal. Rptr. 324, 405 P.2d 148

Court has inherent power to set aside referee's report in special reference. Clark v. Millsap (1926) 197 Cal. 765, 785, 242 P. 918

On review of special referee's report (writ of habeas corpus for prosecutorial misconduct), referee's conclusions of law and resolution of mixed questions of law and fact are subject to independent review; referee's findings of fact, though not binding on court, are given great weight when supported by substantial evidence. People v. Kasim (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1360, 1379, 66 Cal. Rptr 2d 494

Code Civ. Proc. § 643 requirement of referee's statement of decison does not require referee's statement of decision to contain sufficient explanation to satisfy the requirements for a judge's statement of decision under Code Civ. Proc. § 632; however also stating that Section 632 would not have required statement of decision stating resolution of motion regarding attorney's fees. Rebney v. Wells Fargo Bank (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1344, 1351, 284 Cal. Rptr. 113 (criticized in In re Marriage of Demblewski (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 232, 236 n.7, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 533)

Failure to file written objection to referee's report or to properly move to set aside report as resulting in waiver of right to object to referee's decision in special reference. Martino v. Denevi (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 553, 557, 227 Cal. Rptr. 354 .

Court as having power to set aside findings in special reference without granting new trial. Weinfeld v. Weinfeld (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 608, 613, 324 P.2d 342

Court as justified in taking further evidence if referee's report in special reference was deficient. San Diego Fruit & Prod. Co. v. Elster (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 80, 86, 273 P.2d 70

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

4-38 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 38.50

AUTHOR: Hon. Bruce R. Geernaert, Judge (Ret.) Editorial Consultant Bruce Geernaert retired from the Los Angeles County Superior Court in 1996 after twenty-two years of service on the bench, during which he handled all aspects of civil litigation. He served on a special Settlement Panel for over five years, earning particular recognition for his effective handling of complex cases. Judge Geernaert is presently serving as a mediator, special master, referee, and arbitrator through JAMS/Endispute.

§ 38.50 Stipulation for Reference

☐ Determine whether reference should be general or special. Consider:

☐ Desireability of having referee try the issues and decide the case without any further action on the part of the court versus having the referee limited to ascertaining a fact and reserving the decision of the case to the court [compare Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a) with Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b)].

☐ Determine who should act as referee. Consider:

☐ Whether there is any reason to have more than one person act as referee.

☐ What qualifications the referee should possess to expeditiously handle the subject matter of the reference, such as being an accountant or an appraiser.

☐ Determine whether the parties wish to stipulate as to when and by whom the referee's fees will be paid or to allow the referee to determine who should pay the fees.

☐ Contact each proposed referee and determine whether he or she is agreeable and available to hear the matter.

☐ If the reference is for an accounting pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1) or (2), consider whether to stipulate to an interlocutory judgment as well as the reference. For further discussion and forms, see Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for.

☐ Prepare stipulation and order for reference [for forms, see § 38.60 (stipulation) and § 38.63 (order)].

☐ Make the following copies:

☐ One copy for each party;

☐ One copy for each party's attorney;

☐ One copy for each referee; and ☐ Office copy.

☐ Present stipulation and order to the clerk of the court either in person or by mail with a cover letter requesting that they be presented to the judge for signature. Signature is by [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.901(a)]:

☐ The judge to which the case is assigned.

☐ If not assigned, the presiding judge or law and motion department.

☐ File original stipulation and order, conform copies with the date and signature of the judge and the file stamp, and transmit conformed copies to opposing counsel to each referee.

NOTE:

Caption of Papers. On any paper filed after a case is pending before a referee, the word "Referee:" followed by the referee's name must be included below the number of the case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(8)].

AUTHOR: Hon. Bruce R. Geernaert, Judge (Ret.) Editorial Consultant Bruce Geernaert retired from the Los Angeles County Superior Court in 1996 after twenty-two years of service on the bench, during which he handled all aspects of civil litigation. He served on a special Settlement Panel for over five years, earning particular recognition for his effective handling of complex cases. Judge Geernaert is presently serving as a mediator, special master, referee, and arbitrator through JAMS/Endispute.

§ 38.51 Motion for Order of Special Reference

[1] Preliminary Determinations

☐ Determine the specific fact or issue to be referred ☐ Determine whether the issue to be referred involves a right to jury trial.

☐ Determine whether grounds exist to order special reference [see § 38.12[3]].

☐ Determine the department in which the motion must be filed and heard [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.921(b)]:

☐ The judge to whom the case is assigned.

☐ If the case has not been assigned, the presiding judge or the law and motion judge.

[2] Preparation of Papers

☐ Prepare moving papers:

☐ Notice of motion for order for special reference and supporting declarations [for a form, see § 38.62; see also § 38.60 (form of motion)].

☐ Proposed order, if required by local rules. A written order will be required when the appointment is made [see Code Civ. Proc. § 639(d); for a form, see § 38.63].

☐ If requesting the appointment of a particular referee, the proposed referee's certification that he or she is consents to serve as referee and that he or she is aware of and will comply with applicable provisions of Canon 6 of the Code of Judicial ethics and Rules of Court. The certification must accompany the motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.921(a), 3.924(a); for a form of certification, see § 38.62A].

☐ Make the following copies:

☐ One copy for delivery to court clerk with original where filing in duplicate is required by local court rule;

☐ One copy for each adverse party or attorney representing an adverse party;

☐ Office copy; and

☐ Copy for client, if desired.

☐ Other copies as desired.

[3] Service and Filing

☐ Select a hearing date, allowing sufficient time for service, and if required by local practice, clear the date with the court.

☐ Serve a copy of the notice of motion and supporting papers on counsel for each party who has appeared in the action or proceeding or, if a party has appeared in propria persona, on the party [Code Civ. Proc. § 1015] at least 16 court days before hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)]:

☐ Delivery by person or substituted personal service [Code Civ. Proc. § 1011].

☐ Regular mail (extends notice period by 5 calendar days if mailed in and to location in California; 10 calendar days if either location is outside California; or 20 calendar days if either location is outside the United States) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1012, 1013(a), (b)].

☐ Note the date and place of mailing on the papers or attach an unsigned copy of the proof of service to the papers being served [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(b), (d), (g)].

☐ Express Mail or other overnight delivery (increases notice period by two calendar days) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1012, 1013(a), (b)].

☐ Note the date and place of deposit for delivery on the papers or attach an unsigned copy of the proof of service to the papers being served [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(b), (d), (g)].

☐ Fax, if the parties have agreed to service by fax (increases notice period by two calendar days) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1012, 1013(e), (f)].

☐ The copy of a paper served by facsimile transmission, should bear a notation of the date and place of transmission that contains the facsimile number to which transmitted or be accompanied by an unsigned copy of the proof of transmission that contains the facsimile telephone number to which the paper was transmitted [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(f), (g)].

☐ Electronic service, if parties have agreed to electronic service (two court day extension; unclear whether notice period or period to respond is extended, or both) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6)].

☐ Have proof of service executed, and attach the original to the original of the papers that were served.

☐ Present the original notice and supporting papers to the clerk of the court for filing [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005, 1010] within the same time period as is applicable to service.

☐ Pay motion filing fee [Gov. Code § 26830].

☐ File proof of service no later than five calendar days before hearing date [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(c)].

☐ Lodge the proposed order with the court, if required by local practice.

☐ If the motion is opposed, review opposition papers and determine if a reply is appropriate.

☐ If replying, prepare reply memorandum of points and authorities in the same number of copies as the original and serve and file with proof of service at least 5 court days before the time appointed for the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(a); but see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6) (two court day extension if opposition papers were electronically served)].

[4] Hearing and Order

☐ If submitting a motion without an appearance, prepare, serve, and file a notice of nonappearance in the same number of copies as the notice of motion [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1304(c)].

☐ Obtain tentative ruling, if available [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1308], and consult local rules for procedure, if any for appealing at hearing and stipulating to or contesting the tentative ruling.

☐ If appropriate, attend hearing.

☐ If the motion is granted, and counsel has not already done so:

☐ Prepare an order of reference [see § 38.63]. in the same number of copies as the notice of motion.

☐ Present the original and copies of the order to the clerk of the court or the judge's courtroom clerk with the request that he or she obtain the judge's signature, conform the copies, and file the original.

☐ Deliver or send a conformed copy of the order to opposing counsel, along with a notice of the court's decision or order to all other parties or their attorneys [Code Civ. Proc.§ 1019.5(a); for a form of notice of order, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders].

NOTE:

Caption of Papers. On any paper filed after a case is pending before a referee, the word "Referee:" followed by the referee's name must be included below the number of the case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(8)].

Judge Geernaert is presently serving as a mediator, special master, referee, and arbitrator through JAMS/Endispute.

§ 38.52 Objections to Appointment of Referee

[1] Preliminary Determinations

☐ Determine if there are any legal objections to the appointment of the proposed referee.

☐ Review grounds for objection set forth in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 641, 641.2 and 170.6 [for discussion, see § 38.16].

☐ Agreement for an order directing a reference does not waive grounds for objection to the appointment under Code Civ. Proc. § 641 or 641.2 [Code Civ. Proc. § 640(c); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.905].

☐ Participation in the selection process of a referee in a special reference does not waive grounds for objection to the appointment under Code Civ. Proc. § 641 or 641.2 [Code Civ. Proc. § 640(c); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.925].

☐ Object in writing with reasonable diligence [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.905, 3.925].

☐ If referee has not yet been appointed, present objections at hearing on appointment of referee.

☐ If referee has been appointed, move to vacate appointment.

☐ If objecting to discovery referee on grounds set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 (peremptory challenge), make motion within following times [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(b)]:

☐ If the discovery referee was appointed for all discovery purposes, within 10 days after notice of the appointment, or if the party has not yet appeared in the action, the motion must be made within 10 days after the that party's appearance.

☐ If the discovery referee has been assigned only for limited discovery purposes and the referee assigned is known, at least 10 days before the date set for hearing, at least five days before the date set for hearing.

[2] Motion to Vacate Appointment and Appoint New Referee

☐ Prepare moving papers:

☐ Notice of motion, and supporting declaration [for a form, see § 38.68].

☐ Memorandum of points and authorities.

☐ Proposed order, if required by local rules [for a form, see § 38.69].

☐ Proof of service [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a); for forms, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

☐ Make the following copies:

☐ One copy for delivery to court clerk with original where filing in duplicate is required by local court rule;

☐ One copy for referee;

☐ Copy for client, if desired.

☐ Other copies as desired.

☐ Serve and file papers:

☐ Follow steps set forth in § 38.51[3], but also serve the referee [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.905, 3.925].

☐ Hearing and order:

☐ Follow steps set forth in § 38.51[3], but also deliver or send a copy of the order to the former and new referees [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.905, 3.925].

§ 38.53 Proceedings Before Referee on General or Special Reference

☐ Include the word "Referee:" followed by the name of the referee below the number of the case on any paper filed after a case is pending before a referee [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(8)].

- ☐ Check court facility for posting of referee's statement of information, if needed, concerning contact person from whom information about hearings before referee may be obtained.
- ☐ Organize pleadings, exhibits, and other documents.
- ☐ Prepare an outline of the case.
- ☐ Secure attendance of witnesses [see Ch. 535, Subpoena].
- ☐ Provide referee with copies of pleadings.

☐ While the case is pending before the referee, tender all original papers accompanied by the required fee to the clerk for filing within the time limits specified by law.

☐ Provide a file-stamped copy to the referee of each paper relevant to the issues before the referee. When the paper may be filed without payment of a fee, instead of filing a filed-stamped copy, the filing party may use a true copy of the paper accompanied by a declaration about the date of its filing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.400(b)].

☐ The Evidence Code applies in actions before referees [Evid. Code § 300], and during the hearing, if the referee excludes proper testimony, admits improper evidence, or does any other act that materially affects a party's rights, the party should take exception [Martino v. Denevi (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 553, 557, 227 Cal. Rptr. 354] .

4-38 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 38.54

AUTHOR: Hon. Bruce R. Geernaert, Judge (Ret.) Editorial Consultant Bruce Geernaert retired from the Los Angeles County Superior Court in 1996 after twenty-two years of service on the bench, during which he handled all aspects of civil litigation. He served on a special Settlement Panel for over five years, earning particular recognition for his effective handling of complex cases. Judge Geernaert is presently serving as a mediator, special master, referee, and arbitrator through JAMS/Endispute.

§ 38.54 Objections to Referee's Report in General Reference

☐ Determine whether legal grounds exist for objections to the referee's decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 657, discussed in § 38.76[3]].

☐ Prepare papers:

☐ Notice of intention to move for a new trial and supporting declaration [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 645, 657; for a form, see § 38.76].

☐ Memorandum of points and authorities.

☐ Make the following copies:

☐ One copy for delivery to court clerk with original where filing in duplicate is required by local court rule;

☐ One copy for referee;

☐ Copy for client, if desired.

☐ Other copies as desired.

☐ Follow steps set forth in § 38.51[3].

NOTE:

Time Constraints. The notice of intention to move for new trial must be filed and served before judgment is entered or, after judgment has been entered, within 15 days of the date of mailing notice of entry of judgment by the clerk of the court pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5, or of service by any party on the moving party of written notice of entry of judgment, or 180 days after the entry of judgment, whichever is earliest. These periods cannot be extended by stipulation or order and are not extended by Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 when service is by mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 659].

Supporting affidavits or declarations and a memorandum of points and authorities must be filed within 10 days of filing the notice of intention [Code Civ. Proc. § 659a (affidavits); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1600 (points and authorities)].

For further discussion of the time limitations, see § 38.76[4].

☐ If motion is granted, and the case is to be resubmitted to a referee, prepare stipulation for a new reference [see § 38.50].

AUTHOR: Hon. Bruce R. Geernaert, Judge (Ret.) Editorial Consultant Bruce Geernaert retired from the Los Angeles County Superior Court in 1996 after twenty-two years of service on the bench, during which he handled all aspects of civil litigation. He served on a special Settlement Panel for over five years, earning particular recognition for his effective handling of complex cases. Judge Geernaert is presently serving as a mediator, special master, referee, and arbitrator through JAMS/Endispute.

§ 38.55 Court Action on Report of Referee in Special Reference

[1] Objections to Referee's Report

☐ Determine what objections to raise to the referee's report [Code Civ. Proc. § 645; see Code Civ. Proc. § 259(b) (commissioners); see, e.g., McHenry v. Moore (1855) 5 Cal. 90, 92 ; San Diego Fruit & Prod. Co. v. Elster (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 80, 82, 273 P.2d 70] .

☐ Objections to the referee's report must be filed within 10 days after the referee serves and files the report, or within another time directed by the court. Similarly, responses to any objections filed by another party must be filed within 10 days after those objections are served. Both objections and responses to objections must be served on the referee and all other parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 643(c)].

☐ If the opposing party has already made a motion to confirm or adopt the report, prepare responsive papers to the motion, incorporating the objections.

☐ If the opposing party has not moved to confirm or adopt the report, prepare papers for motion to set aside referee's report.

☐ Notice of motion and supporting declaration [for a form, see § 38.73].

☐ Memorandum of points and authorities in support of motion to set aside report of referee.

☐ Proposed order, if required by local rules.

☐ Proof of service [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a); for forms, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

☐ See § 38.51[2].

☐ Serve and file papers [Code Civ. Proc. § 643(c)]:

☐ Follow steps set forth in § 38.51[3].

☐ Hearing and order:

☐ Follow steps set forth in § 38.51[4].

NOTE:

Procedure if Report Is Set Aside. If the order is made setting aside the report of the referee, a new reference may be made on motion [see § 38.51] or the matter may be heard and disposed of by the court.

[2] Motion for Order to Confirm or Adopt Referee's Report

☐ Prepare papers for motion to confirm or adopt referee's report:

☐ Notice of motion and memorandum of points and authorities in support of motion to confirm or adopt the report of referee [see, e.g., Hall v. Bru (1932) 216 Cal. 153, 154, 13 P.2d 716 ; Fooshe v. Sunshine (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 336, 345, 215 P.2d 66 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); for a form, see § 38.71].

☐ Proposed order, if required by local rules [for a form, see § 38.74].

☐ If no other issues are outstanding, and otherwise appropriate under local practice, proposed judgment [see § 38.75].

- ☐ Proof of service [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a; for forms, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

- ☐ Make copies:

  - ☐ See § 38.51[2].

- ☐ Serve and file papers:

  - ☐ Follow steps set forth in § 38.51[3].

- ☐ Hearing and order:

  - ☐ Follow steps set forth in § 38.51[4].

NOTE:

Appeal. In a special reference, if the referee's report is confirmed or adopted by the trial court and judgment is entered accordingly, review on appeal is of the judgment of the trial court [see National Brass Wks. v. Weeks (1928) 92 Cal. App. 318, 321-322, 268 P. 412] .

The form in [1], above, is a reproduction of Judicial Council form ADR-109, which is optional after January 1, 2006, for use either

- To stipulate to a general or special reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 638 [see Paragraphs 2a(1) and 4a], or

- To move for order appointing a general or special referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 638 or 639.

If attachments are necessary, counsel may put them on the Judicial Council form of Attachment, CM-025. There is also a Judicial Council form of Declaration CM-031, which counsel may use to submit testimony in support of the motion.

These forms are available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

Both the fax number and e-mail address of the attorney for the party in whose behalf the paper is presented should be supplied in the form, if available [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(1)], although the clerk must not reject a paper for filing solely on the ground that it does not contain an attorney's or party's fax number or e-mail address on the first page [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.118(b)]. Inclusion of the fax number or e-mail address does not constitute consent to service by fax or e-mail unless otherwise provided by law [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(1)].

For the related form of Order Appointing Referee [Judicial Council form ADR-110], showing the findings that will be required for issuance of the order and discussion of various items, including payment and allocation of fees and use of court facilities, see § 38.63.

[3] When Used as Stipulation

If the parties have agreed to a reference, they have the alternative of doing so orally, in which case the stipulation should be read into the record in open court and entered in the minutes or on the docket [Code Civ. Proc. § 638]. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 638, a general reference is one in which the referee tries the entire issue and the referee's statement of decision becomes the judgment of the court without any further court action [Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a); see Paragraph 4a(1)]. In a special reference, the referee ascertains only facts necessary to enable the court to determine an action or proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b); see Paragraph 4a(1)].

The parties may agree on the terms for compensating the referee [see Paragraph 5]. If the parties do not, the court may fix a reasonable sum and order payment in a fair and reasonable manner, including apportionmentof the fees among the parties [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 645.1, 1023, discussed at § 38.26].

[4] When Used as Motion

When used as a motion, this form should be filed and served along with a notice of motion, a memorandum of points and authorities, and any attachment required by the form ADR-109 itself [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010 Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1113(a)]. For example, if the motion is made on the basis of a written agreement for an order appointing a referee pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638, that agreement must be identified and the provision for appointment of a referee set forth in the motion or an attachment thereto [see Paragraph 2a(2)]. The motion, any attachments, which must include a proposed order, and if the parties have stipulated to or the applicant is requesting a particular referee, that referee's certificate, must be presented to the judge to whom the case is assigned, or to the presiding judge or the law and motion department if the case has not been assigned [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.901; see also Judicial Council Form ADR 110, Order Appointing Referee, reproduced at § 38.63[1] (referee's certificate is Item 9 of order)]. For a form of notice of motion and supporting declaration for use in that situation, see § 38.61. For a form of notice of motion and supporting declaration for use for appointment of a special referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 639, see § 38.62.

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion and supporting declaration in [1], above, is for use to move the court for an order for a general or special reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 638, which applies when the dispute arises out of a written contract or lease which provides that any controversy arising under it shall be heard by a reference. Either party may move for an order of general or special reference, and the court may order the reference if it finds that a reference agreement exists between the parties [see Code Civ. Proc. § 638].

Counsel should attach a completed motion in the form of Judicial Council form ADR 109, which is reproduced at § 38.60, the proposed order and referee's certificate, if applicable (referee's certificate is Item 9 of Judicial Council Form ADR 110, Order Appointing Referee,) and present them to the judge to whom the case is assigned, or to the presiding judge or the law and motion department if the case has not been assigned [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.901].

A memorandum of points and authorities must be served and filed with the notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

[Add memorandum of points and authorities supporting motion.]

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion and supporting declaration in [1], above, is for use to move the court pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639 for an order referring an issue to a referee [see Code Civ. Proc. § 639].

Counsel should attach a completed motion in the form of Judicial Council form ADR 109, which is reproduced at § 38.60. Any party may make a motion for a special reference for determination of a specific question or issue enumerated in Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a); for discussion of grounds for involuntary reference, see § 38.12[3]]. The declaration is intended to supply the facts needed to be supplied as attachments to Judicial Council form ADR-109, for example, Attachment 2b(1) in the case of a discovery referee. The declaration or evidence produced at the hearing on the motion must give the court the information necessary to include in its order the items required by Code Civ. Proc. § 639(d), relating to allocation of the referee's fee, and in the case of a discovery reference, Code Civ. Proc. § 639(c), relating to whether the referee is being appointed for all discovery purposes in the action, discussed at § 38.12[2][b].

A memorandum of points and authorities must be served and filed with the notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

A motion for the appointment of a referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 639 must be served and filed and heard by the department to which the case is assigned, or if the case has not been assigned, by the presiding judge or the law and motion department [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.921(b)]. The motion must specify the matter or matters to be included in the requested reference [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.921(a); see also Judicial Council form ADR-109 Paragraphs 2b and 4b].

If the applicant is requesting the appointment of a particular referee, that referee's certificate must accompany the motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.921(a); see also Judicial Council Form ADR 110, Order Appointing Referee, reproduced at § 38.63[1] (referee's certificate is Item 9 of order)]. Before any referee begins to serve, he or she must certify in writing that he or she consents to serve as provided in the order of appointment and is aware of and will comply with applicable provision of canon 6 of the Code of Judicial Ethics and with the California Rules of Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.924(a)]. For a form of certificate, see § 38.62A.

The form of certificate in [1], above, is for use if necessary, that is if counsel does not use the referee's certificate that is Item 9 of Judicial Council form ADR-109, Order Appointing Referee, which is reproduced at § 38.63. If the moving party is requesting or the parties have stipulated to the appointment of a particular referee, his or her certificate must accompany the motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.901(b)(1) (Code Civ. Proc. § 638 reference), 3.921(a) (Code Civ. Proc. § 639 reference); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.901(b)(5) (proposed order must accompany motion for appointment of referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 638]. The referee's certificate must be filed with the court before the referee begins to serve [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.904(a) (Code Civ. Proc. § 638 reference), 3.924(a) (Code Civ. Proc. § 639 reference)].

4-38 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 38.63

AUTHOR: Hon. Bruce R. Geernaert, Judge (Ret.) Editorial Consultant Bruce Geernaert retired from the Los Angeles County Superior Court in 1996 after twenty-two years of service on the bench, during which he handled all aspects of civil litigation. He served on a special Settlement Panel for over five years, earning particular recognition for his effective handling of complex cases. Judge Geernaert is presently serving as a mediator, special master, referee, and arbitrator through JAMS/Endispute.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a reproduction of Judicial Council form ADR-110, which is optional after January 1, 2006, to order the appointment of a general or special referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 638 or 639 on the stipulation of the parties or after a motion [see Paragraphs 1 and 2].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

Both the fax number and e-mail address of the attorney for the party in whose behalf the paper is presented should be supplied in the form, if available [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(1)], although the clerk must not reject a paper for filing solely on the ground that it does not contain an attorney's or party's fax number or e-mail address on the first page [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.118(b)]. Inclusion of the fax number or e-mail address does not constitute consent to service by fax or e-mail unless otherwise provided by law [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(1)].

The court can name one to three referees as agreed on by the parties, or as ordered by the court if they cannot agree [see

Code Civ. Proc. § 640; Paragraph 3], but Judicial Council form ADR-110 provides for only one referee.

[3] Items Applicable to Appointment Under Code Civ. Proc § 638

The order must clearly state whether the reference covers all issues or is limited to specified issues [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.902(2); see Paragraph 4]. The parties have the option of providing a different manner or time for the referee to report, as long as it is approved by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 643(b); see Paragraph 8a(2) and 8b(1)]. Otherwise, the report must be made in writing within 20 days after the hearing is concluded and the matter submitted [see Code Civ. Proc. § 643(a); Paragraph 8a(1)].

The order must include the referee's name, business address, telephone number, and if applicable, State Bar number [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.902(1); Paragraph 3]. Whether done at Item 9 of Judicial Council form ADR-110 or filed as a separate document, the referee's certificate must be filed before the referee begins to serve [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.904(a)]. For discussion of the qualifications for referees, see §§ 38.15, 38.16.

The order must state whether the referee will be privately compensated [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.902(3); Paragraph 5]. When a reference is made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638, the referee's fees are paid by the parties, unless the parties cannot agree, in which case the court may order apportionment of fees pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 645.1(b), which provides for compensation of referees who are not employees or officers of the court at the time of their appointment [Code Civ. Proc. § 645.1(a); see Paragraph 5a, b].

The order must specify whether the use of court facilities and court personnel is authorized [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.902(4); Paragraph 6]. Parties electing to use a privately compensated referee pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638 are deemed to have elected to proceed outside the courthouse; therefore, court facilities and court personnel must not be used except on a finding by the presiding judge that use would further the interests of justice. For all matters pending before privately compensated referees, the clerk must post a notice indicating the case name and number as well as the telephone number of the person to contact to arrange for attendance at any proceeding that would be open to the public if held in a courthouse [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.907, 3.931(b)(3); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.931(c)(1) (showing required of order for appropriate hearing site) and § 38.81].

The order must be fled with the clerk or entered in the minutes of the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.902].

[4] Items Applicable to Section 639 Special Reference Other Than for Discovery

The order must include the referee's name, business address, telephone number, and if applicable his or her State Bar number [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(d)(4); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.922(b); Paragraph 3]. Whether done at Item 9 of Judicial Council form ADR-110 or filed as a separate document, the referee's certificate must be filed before the referee begins to serve [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.924(a)]. For a form of certificate, see § 38.62A.

In addition, the order must specify [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(d); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.922(c),(d), (f)-(g)]:

- Whether the referee is appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1), (2), (3), (4), or (5) [Paragraph 2(a), (b)].

- When the referee is appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1), (2), (3), or (4), a statement of the reason the referee is being appointed (Paragraph 2).

- The subject matter or matters included in, and the scope of, the reference (Paragraph 4b).

- If the referee will be appointed at a cost to the parties, the maximum hourly rate the referee may charge and, at the request of any party, the maximum number of hours for which the referee may charge (Paragraph 5c).

- If the referee will be appointed at a cost to the parties, either, the finding that no party has established an economic inability to pay a pro rata share of the referee's fee (first alternative Paragraph 4), or a finding that one or more parties has established an economic inability to pay a pro rata share of the referee's fees and that another party has agreed voluntarily to pay that additional share of the referee's fee (Paragraph 2c).

  - When the issue of economic hardship is raised before the referee begins performing services, a determination of fair and reasonable apportionment of references costs (Paragraphs 2c and 5c).

  - The extent, if any, to which court facilities and court personnel may be used in connection with the reference (Paragraph 6b).

- Any conditions on the reference including any additional terms of the obligation of each party to pay the referee (Paragraphs 5c(3), (4), 6 -8).

A reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 639, entitles the parties to the use of court facilities and court personnel to the extent provided in the order of reference. The proceedings may be held in a private facility, but if so the private facility must be open to the public [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.926; Paragraphs 6b and 7].

[5] Items Applicable to Appointment of Special Referee for Discovery

Like other references under Code Civ. Proc. § 639, an order appointing a referee pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639 contains a certification by the referee that he or she is aware of and will comply with applicable provisions of canon 6 of the Code of Judicial Ethics and the Rules of Court pertaining to references and that he or she consent to serve (Paragraph 9). Whether done at Item 9 of Judicial Council form ADR-110 or filed as a separate document, the referee's certificate must be filed before the referee begins to serve [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.924(a)]. For a form of certificate, see § 38.62A. The order must include the referee's name, business address, telephone number, and if applicable his or her State Bar number [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(d)(4); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.922(b); Paragraph 3]. For discussion of the qualifications for referees, see §§ 38.15, 38.16.

In addition, an order appointing a discovery referee must specify [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(c), (d); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.922(c)-(h)]:

- That the referee is appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)((5) [Paragraph 2(a), (b)].

- Whether the referee is being appointed for all discovery purposes in the action, and the subject matter or matters included in the reference (Paragraphs 4b).

- The exceptional circumstances requiring the reference, which must be specific to the circumstances of the particular case (Paragraph 2a).

- That the referee is authorized to set the date, time, and place for all hearings determined by the referee to be necessary; direct the issuance of subpoenas; preside over hearings' take evidence; and rule on objections, motions, and other requests made during the course of the hearing [Paragraph 4b(2)(b)].

- If the referee will be appointed at a cost to the parties, the maximum hourly rate the referee may charge and, at the request of any party, the maximum number of hours for which the referee may charge (Paragraph 5c(1) and (2)).

- If the referee will be appointed at a cost to the parties, either the finding that no party has established an economic inability to pay a pro rata share of the referee's fee a finding that one or more parties has established an economic inability to pay a pro rata share of the referee's fees and that another party has agreed voluntarily to pay that additional share of the referee's fee, or a finding that the referee is being appointed at no cost to the parties (Paragraph 2c).

- When the issue of economic hardship is raised before the referee begins performing services, a determination of fair and reasonable apportionment of references costs (Paragraphs 2c and 5c).

- The extent, if any, to which court facilities and court personnel may be used in connection with the reference (Paragraph 6b).

- The name and telephone number of a person to contact to arrange for attendance at any proceeding before the referee (Paragraph 7).

- The referee's authority and duty to report findings and make a recommendation thereon, including a recommendation for allocation of payment (Paragraph 8b(2)) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 639(a)(5), 643(a), (c)].

The referee's report is required by Code Civ. Proc. § 643(c) to contain a recommendation for allocation of payment. When the issue of economic hardship is raised before the commencement of the referee's services, the court must determine a fair and reasonable apportionment of reference costs (Paragraph 5c(3) or (4)) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.922(f)(3)]. The court may modify its order as to the apportionment and may consider a recommendation by the referee as a factor in determining any modification [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.922(f)(3)].

[6] Notice of Order

When a motion is granted or denied, unless the court otherwise orders, notice of the court's decision or order must be given by the prevailing party to all other parties or their attorneys, in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020 unless notice is waived by all parties in open court and is entered in the minutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 1019.5(a); for discussion and a form of notice, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

SUPPORTING MEMORANDUM

[Add memorandum supporting motion]

The form of notice of motion in [1], above, is for use to move the court for permission to withdraw a stipulation for the appointment of a referee. The motion is to be heard by the judge to whom the case is assigned, or by the presiding judge or by the law and motion judge. If the motion is granted, the case must be transferred to the trial docket [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.906(b); for discussion, see § 38.18].

[3] Contents of Supporting Declaration

The supporting declaration must establish facts showing good cause to permit the party to withdraw the stipulation. A declaration that a ruling is based on an error of fact or law does not establish good cause [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.906(a)(1)]. The fact that the court orders the case to be heard at a site appropriate for public access is also not grounds for withdrawal of the stipulation [Cal. Rule of Ct., Rules 3.906(a)(2), 3.931(c)(2)].

[4] Supporting Memorandum

A supporting memorandum is required to be served and filed with this notice of motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005, 1010; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)].

[5] Service and Filing of Notice

The notice of motion is to be served and filed 16 court days prior to the time appointed for the hearing, subject to the longer periods of notice required if service is by mail, fax, or overnight delivery [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a)(13), (b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.906(b)]. For discussion of the procedure on noticed motions, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

[Add memorandum of points and authorities supporting motion.]

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion and supporting declaration in [1], above, is for use to move the court for an order disqualifying a referee who has been appointed to hear the matter and appoint a new referee. The grounds for disqualification of a referee are set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 641 (general provision) and Code Civ. Proc. § 641.2 (environmental pollution action), and Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 (peremptory challenge, also applies to judges and commissioners). A peremptory challenge can be established by affadavit, and the matter transferred to another referee. For forms for use to make a peremptory challenge to a referee or commissioner under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, see Ch. 317, Judges , Pt. IV.

In a discovery matter, a motion to disqualify an appointed referee pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 must be made to the court by a party either [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(b)]:

- In the case of a discovery referee has been appointed for all discovery purposes, within 10 days after notice of the appointment, or if the party has not yet appeared in the action, within 10 days after the appearance.

- In the case of discovery referee who has been assigned only for limited discovery purposes, at least five days before the date set for hearing, if the referee assigned is known at least 10 days before the date set for hearing.

The supporting declaration in this form may be adapted for use as an objection to the appointment of the referee [Code Civ. Proc. § 642] on the grounds set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 641 (general provision) and/or Code Civ. Proc. § 641.2 (environmental pollution action). Counsel should use as many of the Paragraphs 2 as are applicable. The an objection must be made with reasonable diligence and must be in writing and served on all parties and the referee and filed with the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.905, 3.925]. The objection may be used in opposition to a motion for reference [see §§ 38.61, 38.62]. Participation in the referee selection procedure [see Code Civ. Proc. § 640] does not constitute a waiver of grounds for objection to the appointment of a referee under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 641 or 641.2. [Code Civ. Proc. § 640(c)].

A memorandum of points and authorities must be served and filed with the notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1113(a); see Code Civ.Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities

[3] Hearing on Objections

The court must hear and dispose of all objections taken to the appointment of any person as referee [Code Civ. Proc. § 642].

§ 38.69 Order Granting Motion to Vacate Appointment of Referee [Code Civ. Proc. § 641] and to Appoint New Referee

[1] FORM Order Granting Motion to Vacate Appointment of Referee [Code Civ. Proc. § 641] and to Appoint New Referee

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

[or other as appropriate]

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	ORDER
Defendant.	)

The motion of _____ [identify party, e.g., plaintiff] for an order vacating the appointment of _____ [name] as referee and appointing a new referee came on regularly for hearing by the court on _____ [date]. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____ [name]; defendant appeared by counsel _____ [name].

On proof made to the satisfaction of the court that the motion ought to be granted,

IT IS ORDERED that the motion be, and it hereby is, granted as follows:

1. The appointment of _____ [name, business address, and telephone number] is vacated.

[EITHER, if parties have stipulated to a new referee or have submitted nominations and the same name appears on both lists of nominations]

2. _____ [name, business address, and telephone number] is appointed in his/her stead to hear evidence and to determine _____ [any and all issues in this action/proceeding or specify issue(s) to be determined] pursuant to subsection _____ of Section [638 or 639] of the Code of Civil Procedure.

[OR, if a new referee must be selected]

2. The parties are ordered to meet and confer and attempt to agree on a nominee to act as replacement referee and to notify the court of their agreement or failing to agree, each party to file a written nomination of replacement nominees setting forth the name and address of three nominees each within _____ [number, e.g., 10] days. Thereafter each nominee shall file with the court a declaration setting forth all priorcontacts with the parties and counsel herein and setting forth the nominees' consent to serve herein. Thereafter the court shall select and appoint a substitute referee by a separate order herein.

Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the _____ Court

The form of order in [1], above, is for use when the court grants a motion to vacate the appointment of a referee and appoint another referee to hear the matter [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 641, 642; for a related form of notice of motion, see § 38.68].

The form in [1], above, contemplates naming the replacement referee in this order if the parties have stipulated to a particular referee or happen to have both nominated the same referee prior to the time of this order is made. The form contemplates that otherwise the parties will attempt to agree on a referee after the order vacating the appointment of the prior referee is made, or will each nominate up to three potential referees [Code Civ. Proc. § 640(b); for discussion, see § 38.15[3]], and that after time for the proposed referee to make his or her disclosures [see Code Civ. Proc. § 641; for discussion, see § 38.16], the court will name the replacement referee in a separate order. Although this will often be a minute order, counsel should file a proposed order with a blank for the referee's name.

[3] Notice of Order

When a motion is granted or denied, unless the court otherwise orders, notice of the court's decision or order must be given by the prevailing party to all other parties or their attorneys, in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020 unless notice is waived by all parties in open court and is entered in the minutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 1019.5(a); for discussion and a form of notice, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders].

[1] FORM Report of Referee [Code Civ. Proc. § 643]--Judicial Council Form ADR-111

The form in [1], above, is a reproduction of Judicial Council form ADR-111, Report of Referee, which is optional after January 1, 2006. It may be used for either a general or special reference. If attachments are necessary the Judicial Council form of Attachment, CM-025, may be used.

Both forms are available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge. Unless otherwise directed by the court, the referee or commissioner must report his or her statement of decision in writing to the court within 20 days after the hearing, if any, has been concluded, and the matter submitted [Code Civ. Proc. § 643(a)]. A referee appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638 must report as agreed by the parties and approved by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b)]. By analogy to the procedure on statements of decision after trial, it would appear that any party may make proposals as to the statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632].

This form may be used in a special reference, in which the report must include [Code Civ. Proc. § 643(c)]:

- A recommendation on the merits of any disputed issue (Paragraph 4).

- A statement of the total hours spent and the total fees charged by the referee (Paragraph 3a and b).
- The referee's recommended allocation of payment (Paragraph 3c).

The referee must file the report with the court and serve the report on all parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 643(c)]. The form allows the court to adopt some or all of the factual and legal determinations set forth in the statement of decision. If used in a special reference, the Statement of Decision heading should be omitted, and Second Alternative Paragraphs 1 and 2 must be used.

[3] Effect of Report

In a consensual general reference [see Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a)], the referee's decision stands as the decision of the court, and on the filing of the referee's statement of decision with the clerk of the court, judgment may be entered thereon in the same manner as if the action had been tried by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 644(a)]. The decision of a referee appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638 or commissioner may be excepted to and reviewed in like manner as if made by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 645].

In a special reference, the referee's decision is only advisory. The court may adopt the referee's recommendations in whole or in part after independently considering the referee's findings and any objections and responses thereto filed with the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 644(b)]. When a reference is to report the facts, the decision reported has the effect of a special verdict, that is, it does not become the decision of the court without further action [Code Civ. Proc. § 645; Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 723, 269 P.2d 3] . The court may refuse to accept the report of a referee made after a special reference if the decision is not supported by the evidence [see Clark v. Millsap (1926) 197 Cal. 765, 784-785,242 P. 918 ; McHenry v. Moore (1855) 5 Cal. 90, 92] . It may also refuse to accept the report if the report is incomplete or ambiguous [see Schefski v. Anker (1932) 216 Cal. 624, 627, 15 P.2d 744 ; San Diego Fruit & Prod. Co. v. Elster (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 80, 85-86, 273 P.2d 70] .

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

[Add memorandum of points and authorities supporting motion.]

The form of notice of motion in [1], above, is for use to move the court to confirm or to adopt the referee's statement of decision filed after the hearing of a special reference, and to enter judgment in accordance with the findings set forth in the decision [see, e.g., Hall v. Bru (1932) 216 Cal. 153, 154, 13 P.2d 716 ; for discussion, see § 38.24[2]].

A special reference does not determine all the issues in an action or proceeding, and the decision of the referee is not binding on the court. In a special reference, the decision of the referee or commissioner is only advisory. The court may adopt the referee's recommendations in whole or in part after independently considering the referee's findings and any objections and responses thereto filed with the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 644(b)]. Unlike the referee's decision in a general reference, the decision in a special reference does not become the court's decision unless explicitly adopted by the court [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 624, 645 (special verdict); Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 723, 269 P.2d 3 ; Chiarodit v. Chiarodit (1933) 218 Cal. 147, 150, 21 P.2d 562] . A report on a special reference should be sustained unless plainly not warranted by any reasonable view of the evidence [Williams v. Flinn & Treacy (1923) 61 Cal. App. 352, 358-359, 214 P. 1024] .

A memorandum of points and authorities must be served and filed with the notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules

3.1100, 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

1. The Evidence Does Not Support the Decision of the Referee.

The referee decided that _____ [set forth portion of decision to which exception is made]. The only evidence before the referee on that issue was _____ [specify, e.g., the testimony of _____ (name)], which showed _____ [describe nature of pertinent evidence]. There was no other evidence presented to rebut or contradict this evidence and no other evidence to support the referee's decision.

[2. State additional grounds of exceptions as headings and develop each ground in the paragraph following the heading.]

Dated: _____.

[2] Use of Form

The form of objections to a referee's report in [1], above, is for use by a party filing exceptions to the decision of a referee issued pursuant to a special reference. In a special reference, after a referee has filed a report with the court, and served it on the parties, any party may file objections within 10 days (from the date of service) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 643(c), 645; Branger v. Chevalier (1858) 9 Cal. 353, 362] or make a motion to set aside the report [Martino v. Denevi (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 553, 557, 227 Cal. Rptr. 354 ; for a form of notice of motion, see § 38.73]. The report in a special reference may be set aside without the necessity of one party moving for a new trial [see Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 723, 269 P.2d 3] .

This form may also be used with responsive papers opposing a motion to confirm the report of a referee [for discussion, see § 38.24[2]].

[3] Time for Filing Objections and Responses

Any party may file an objection to the referee's report or recommendations within 10 days after the referee serves and files the report, or within another time as the court may direct. The objection must be served on the referee and all other parties. Responses to the objections may be filed with the court and served on the referee and all other parties within 10 days after the objection is served. The court reviews any objections and any responses and then makes appropriate orders [Code Civ. Proc. § 643(c)].Objections are usually filed in connection with a motion to set aside the report [see § 38.73] or in response to a motion to confirm the award.

[Add memorandum of points and authorities supporting motion.]

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion and supporting declaration in [1], above, is for use to move the court to set aside the report of a referee made pursuant to a special reference [Martino v. Denevi (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 553, 557, 227 Cal. Rptr. 354 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 645]. The referee's report in a special reference is only advisory. The court may adopt thereferee's recommendations in whole or in part after independently considering the referee's findings and any objections and responses thereto filed with the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 644(b)]. The report may be set aside without granting new trial unless report has been adopted by trial court [Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 723, 269 P.2d 3] .

[3] Supporting Papers

The notice of motion should be accompanied by a statement of objections to the report that set forth the particular grounds on which the motion is made [for a form, see § 38.72]. A report may also be challenged by opposing a motion to confirm a report [see, e.g., Hall v. Bru (1932) 216 Cal. 153, 154, 13 P.2d 716 ; Fooshe v. Sunshine (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 336, 345, 215 P.2d 66 ; for discussion, see § 38.24[2]].

The papers supporting the motion must set forth the evidence that the referee allegedly rejected or overlooked [Martino v. Denevi (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 553, 557, 227 Cal. Rptr. 354] .

A memorandum of points and authorities must be served and filed with the notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that _____ [specify party, e.g., plaintiff] intends to move this court, at a time to be set by the court, to vacate and set aside the report of the referee issued pursuant to a general reference under Code of Civil Procedure Section 638(a) in favor of _____ [specify party, e.g., defendant] and against _____ [specify party, e.g., plaintiff] on _____ [date], [and the judgment entered thereon,] and grant _____ [specify moving party, e.g., plaintiff] a new trial on _____ [all issues or the following issues: _____ (specify)]. This motion will be made on the following grounds:

[LIST grounds of motion from list of grounds in Code Civ. Proc. § 657, e.g., as follows]

1. Irregularity in the proceedings of the adverse party prevented plaintiff from having a fair trial.

2. The evidence is insufficient to justify the decision as shown by the referee's report.

Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice in [1], above, is for use by a party to initiate a motion for a new trial on some or all of the issues after the referee has filed a report pursuant to a general reference [Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a)], which stands as the decision of the court [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 644(a), 645, 659].

A memorandum of points and authorities is required to be served and filed within 10 days after filing the notice of intention to move for a new trial [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1600].

For full discussion, a procedural checklist, and other forms relating to motions for new trial, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial, § 371.60 et seq.

[3] Grounds for New Trial

The statutory grounds for a new trial are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 657. The grounds for a new trial, either in whole or in part, applicable after a general reference are as follows:

- Irregularity in the proceedings of the court or adverse party, or any order of the court or abuse of discretion by which either party was prevented from having a fair trial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 657(1)];

- Accident or surprise, which ordinary prudence could not have guarded against [Code Civ. Proc. § 657(3)];

- Newly discovered evidence, material for the party making the application, that the party could not, with reasonable diligence, have discovered and produced at the trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 657(4)];

- Excessive or inadequate damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 657(5)];

- Insufficiency of the evidence to justify the verdict or other decision, or the verdict or other decision is against law [Code Civ. Proc. § 657(6)];

- Error in law occurring at the trial and excepted to by the party making the application [Code Civ. Proc. § 657(7)].

In general, the objections must be raised in the trial court before they will be reviewed on appeal; however, a motion for a new trial is not a prerequisite to an appeal based on insufficiency of the evidence [Estate of Raphael (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 525, 528-529, 252 P.2d 979] .

[4] Time for Giving Notice

The notice of intention to move for new trial may be given before entry of the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 659]. It may also be made within the earliest of the following times after judgment has been entered [Code Civ. Proc. § 659]:

- Fifteen days after the date of mailing notice of entry of judgment by the clerk of the court pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5;

- Fifteen days after service by any party on the moving party of written notice of entry of judgment; or

- One hundred eighty days after the entry of judgment.

Despite these limitations, on the filing of the first notice of intention to move for a new trial by a party, each other party has 15 days after service of the notice on him or her to file and serve a notice of intention to move for a new trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 659].

The time limits imposed in Code Civ. Proc. § 659 are not extendable by stipulation or order or by those provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 which extend the time for exercising a right or doing an act when service is by mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 659].

[5] Use of Affidavits or Declarations

When the application for a new trial is made on one of the first three grounds stated in [3], above, it must be made on affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5). If made on any other grounds, it must be made on the minutes of the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 658].

Any supporting affidavits or declarations must be served on all other parties and filed within 10 days after filing the notice, after which the other parties will have 10 days to serve and file counteraffidavits or declarations [Code Civ. Proc. § 659a (extendable by not more than 20 additional days by stipulation or by judge on showing of good cause)].

The motion of _____ [specify party, e.g., plaintiff] for an order vacating and setting aside the referee's report filed on _____ [date], and for a new trial on _____ [all or some of the] issues came on regularly for hearing by the court on _____ [date]. Plaintiff appeared by counsel

On proof made to the satisfaction of the court that the motion ought to be granted,

IT IS ORDERED that the motion be, and it hereby is, granted and that the decision of the referee rendered on _____ [date], and the judgment entered on that decision be _____ [modified or set aside and vacated], and a new trial is ordered on _____ [all issues or the following issues: _____ (specify)].

SPECIFICATION OF REASONS

The court's reasons for granting the new trial on _____ [the or, if more than one, each] ground stated are as follows: _____ [state reasons for each ground].

Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the _____ Court

The form of order and specification of reasons in [1], above, is for use when the court grants a motion for a new trial. The decision of the referee and the judgment entered thereon will both be modified or set aside when a new trial is granted.

The order and reasons are prepared by the court, which may not request counsel to prepare them [Code Civ. Proc. § 657]. However, this form may be used if the court, in a minute order granting a new trial, directs the attorney to prepare a written order for signature and filing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 660].

For a related of notice of intention to move for new trial, see § 38.76.

[3] Statement of Grounds and Specification of Reasons

The court must specify all grounds on which it grants the motion for a new trial and its reason or reasons for doing so. The court is required to state the ground or grounds for granting the motion in the order; moreover, the court does not have jurisdiction to correct the order nunc pro tunc by adding the ground or grounds after the expiration of the 60-day period allowed for making the order under Code Civ. Proc. § 657 [Sanchez-Corea v. Bank of America (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 892, 901-905, 215 Cal. Rptr. 679, 701 P.2d 826] . The order may contain the court's specification of reasons or the specifications may be separately prepared, but the court must, in that case, prepare, sign, and file the specifications with the clerk within 10 days after the order is filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 657].

[4] Modifying or Vacating Statement of Decision

In ruling on a motion for a new trial in a matter heard by a referee, the court may, on such terms as may be just, change or add to the statement of decision, or vacate and set aside the statement of decision and reopen the case for further proceedings and the introduction of additional evidence with the same effect as if the case had been reopened after its submission and before a decision had been filed or judgment rendered [see Code Civ. Proc. § 662].

When a motion is granted or denied, unless the court otherwise orders, notice of the court's decision or order must be given by the prevailing party to all other parties or their attorneys, in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§

1010-1020 unless notice is waived by all parties in open court and is entered in the minutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 1019.5(a)].

vs.	)	PETITION FOR PAYMENT OF REFEREE'S FEES
_____ [name],	)	Referee: _____ [name(s)]

Petitioner alleges:

1. I, _____ [name], am the duly appointed referee in the above-entitled action, and I was appointed to hear this action on _____ [date].

2. In performance of my duties as referee, I have spent _____ hours in preparation of my decision and obtaining facts therefor. I have also spent _____ hours in court relative to the hearing of objections to my report filed herein. [Add any additional hours spent and explain what the time was spent on.]

3. My report was filed herein on _____ [date]. I have no further duties to perform under my appointment as referee in this matter or otherwise.

4. The reasonable value of the services rendered is the sum of $_____. [_____ (Name(s)) have paid me the sum of $_____ on account of my services.]

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays this Court to issue its orders as follows:

1. That the reasonable value of the services of the referee stated herein is the sum of $_____.

2. That the manner of payment of the referee's fees that is fair and reasonable is as follows: _____ [specify which party should be ordered to pay the fee, or how the fee should be apportioned between the parties].

3. For such other and further orders as the Court deems just.

Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Referee-Petitioner

[2] Use of Form

The form of petition in [1], above, is for use by a referee to obtain a court order for the payment of his or her fees. When a referee is appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638, the referee's fees are paid as agreed by the parties, unless the parties do not agree on the payment of fees, and then the fees are determined as they would be in a special reference [Code Civ. Proc. § 645.1(a)]. When a referee is appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639, at any time after a determination of ability to pay is made as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 639(d)(6) [see § 38.12[2][b][i]], the court may order the parties to pay the fees of referees who are not employees who are not employees or officers of the court at the time of appointment in any fair or reasonable manner, including an apportionment of the fees among the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 645.1(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1023]. Alternatively, the parties may agree in writing on any other rate of compensation and those fees shall be allowed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1023]. A referee may petition the court for payment of fees at the time of filing the report, without waiting for the court or the parties to initiate action on the fees [Most Worshipful Lodge v. Sons etc. Lodge (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 833, 834, 295 P.2d 912] .

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion in [1], above, is for use to move the court to seal records in a reference made under Code Civ. Proc. § 638 or § 639. The motion or application must be heard by the judge to whom the case is assigned or, if the case has not been assigned, by the presiding judge or his or her designee. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.550, 2.551, discussed in Ch. 551, Trial , apply to the motion or application to seal the records [Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 3.932(a); for discussion, see § 38.19].

[3] Supporting Memorandum

A supporting memorandum is required to be served and filed with this notice of motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005, 1010; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)].

[4] Service and Filing of Notice

The motion or application to seal records must be served on the referee and all parties who have appeared in the case and be filed with the court 16 court days prior to the time appointed for the hearing, subject to the longer periods of notice required if service is by mail, fax, or overnight delivery [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a)(13), (b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.932(a)]. For discussion of the procedure on noticed motions, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	ORDER
Plaintiff,	)	Date: _____
vs.	)	Time: _____
_____ [name],	)	Dept.: _____
Defendant.	)	Judge: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	Trial Date: _____
	)	Referee: _____ [name(s)]

The motion of _____ [identify party, e.g., defendant] for an order to seal records in a cause before a referee came on regularly for hearing by the court on _____ [date]. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____ [name]; defendant appeared by counsel _____ [name].

The Court, having considered the declaration of _____[name] and other documents in support of and in opposition to the motion, having heard the arguments of counsel, and being fully advised in the matter, finds as follows:

1. There exists an overriding interest that overcomes the right of public access to the records specified below, in that _____[specify overriding interest].

2. This overriding interest support sealing the records specified below.

3. A substantial probability exists that this overriding interest will be prejudiced if the records specified below are not sealed, in that _____[specify overriding interest].

4. The records specified below have been tailored to limit narrowly the overall records to be sealed.

5. No less restrictive means exist to achieve the overriding interest than to seal the records specified below.

IT IS, THEREFORE, ORDERED that the motion be, and hereby is, granted and that the following records lodged with the referee, _____[name], and the court be _____[sealed or filed under seal]: _____[specify records and/or portions of records lodged with the refereee to be sealed; if the specified records are lodged with the court, specify also whether, in addition to the lodged, the order itself, the register of actions, any other court or reference records, or any other records relating to the case are also to be sealed].

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that, other than the court and the referee, only the following person[s] is/are authorized to inspect the records sealed by this order: _____[names of person(s) other than court authorized to inspect sealed records].

Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

The form of order in [1], above, is for use when the court grants a motion to seal records in a reference made under Code Civ. Proc. § 638 or § 639 [Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 3.932(a); for a related form of notice of motion, see § 38.79].

[3] Notice of Order

When a motion is granted or denied, unless the court otherwise orders, notice of the court's decision or order must be given by the prevailing party to all other parties or their attorneys, in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020 unless notice is waived by all parties in open court and is entered in the minutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 1019.5(a)].

SUPPORTING MEMORANDUM

[Add memorandum supporting motion.]

The form of application in [1], above, is for use to apply for an order that a case referred to a referee pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638 or § 638 be heard at a site accessible to the public and appropriate for seating those who have made known their plan to attend hearings [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.931(c)(1)].

The presiding judge or his or her designee, on application of any person or on the judge's own motion, may order that a case before a referee must be heard at a site easily accessible to the public and appropriate for seating those who have made known their plan to attend hearings [see § 38.17[4][a]]. Whoever files the application must state in the application facts showing good cause for granting the application [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.931(c)(1); for discussion, see § 38.17[3], [4]].

[3] Supporting Declaration

The supporting declaration must establish facts showing good cause to grant the order. When the easy access to the public is the issue, use the first alternate paragraph 2. When the lack of sufficient seating is the issue, use the second alternate paragraph 2.

[4] Supporting Memorandum

A supporting memorandum must be served and filed with the notice of application [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[5] Service and Filing of Notice, Application, Declaration, and Memorandum

The notice, application, declaration, and memorandum must be served on all parties and the referee, and be filed with the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.931(c)(1)]. These documents are to be served and filed 16 court days prior to the time appointed for the hearing, subject to the longer periods of notice required if service is by mail, fax, or overnight delivery [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a)(13), (b)]. For discussion of the procedure on noticed motions, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders . The documents are to be filed with the court that ordered reference.

For discussion of service of applications and proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

AUTHOR: Los Angeles County Bar Association

§ 39.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter presents discussion of tactics and new developments for various methods of alternative dispute resolution, as well as discussing alternative dispute resolution in specialized areas. It includes discussion of:

- The interrelationship between zealous advocacy and how the various ideas of winning impact decisions relating to resolving disputes [Part II].

- Valuation of cases for mediation and settlement negotiations within the concept of economic and probabilistic concepts [Part III].

- The right to know and disclosure in the context of the parties' and lawyers' need for reliable information in the selection of a mediator for their case [Part IV].

- Methods for valuing and distributing nonliquid assets which can assist in resolving disputes through mediation [Part V].

- Medical care providers and their arbitration clauses [Part VI].

- An innovative ADR technique for the construction industry--critical path dispute management (CPDM) [Part VII].

§ 39.10 Winning and What It Is

"Winning isn't everything, it's the ONLY thing!"

"A winner never quits, and a quitter never wins."

"Just win, baby."

No matter how we put it, we are obsessed with "winning," both for our clients and for ourselves. Whether in court or the negotiation room, we go to great cost, risk and hassle to avoid the reality, the perception, and the stigma of "loss." Generally speaking, we are right to do so. Our duties are well stated in, for example, Ethical Consideration 7-1 of the American Bar Association's Model Code of Professional Responsibility: "The duty of a lawyer, both to his client and to the legal system, is to represent his client zealously within the bounds of the law... ." California courts have long acknowledged this obligation [see, e.g., Smith v. Lewis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 349, 365, 118 Cal. Rptr. 621, 530 P.2d 589 ; Munoz v. Davis (1983)141 Cal. App. 3d 420, 430, 190 Cal. Rptr. 400 ; Norton v. Hines (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 917, 924, 123 Cal. Rptr. 237]. We are to press every lawful advantage, right up to the "bounds" of the law, to be zealous advocates for our clients. In other words, to win.

Nobody seriously questions this articulation of our obligations. But the trickier questions are, what does it mean to win, and which processes and tools are best designed to accomplish a win, properly defined?

Our clients--and we ourselves--generally have one of two conceptions of what it means to "win." Some of us define winning as "clobbering the other side." Others define winning as "the satisfaction of our own needs," regardless of whether or not the other side suffers along the way. The definition we favor informs how we handle the matters our clients entrust to us, and, in many cases, our ability to deliver to our clients processes and results which will produce client satisfaction--the critical measure of the degree to which we will succeed, prosper and flourish in the business and practice of law.

In the litigation context, and in many others as well, clients often start out in "clobbering" mode. They believe they have been "done wrong," and they want nothing more than revenge. And more revenge.

For us as lawyers, this is a serious problem. Such a client is almost never satisfied with the result, the process, or with our performance as counsel. This is because the other side, no matter how badly clobbered, rarely suffers enough in this client's eyes. A vengeful client out to clobber generally has a hard time planning, in advance, the specific result to be achieved or the goal against which success or failure will be measured. No matter what you do to the other side, it could always have been worse! Generally speaking, at the end of the day, the folks on the other side leave the courtroom under their own power, with the next stop being neither the ER nor the Bankruptcy Court. Not enough! As lawyers, these clients believe that we have failed them! Yet we have done all we can, and produced results which, objectively viewed, are probably pretty good. It hardly serves our interests, in the business and practice of law, to have clients who perceive us and our work in this way.

Far better is the situation in which the client focuses on the satisfaction of his or her own needs. This client is better able to give clear instructions, based on a clear definition of what "success" looks like in his or her own eyes; for example, recovering sufficient money to pay off a debt, buy a new building, or achieve some other concrete goal. If this client's own goals are satisfied, it doesn't matter very much whether the other side "suffers" a lot, a little, or even at all. After all, the other side's suffering generally cannot be used to pay your client's bills, grow your client's business, or otherwise make your client's life any better.

We have all been in the frustrating situation of having clients who insist that "winning" requires the infliction of unachievable amounts of suffering on the other side, when they would be much better off if they would only focus on setting realistic goals for themselves, and then work to accomplish them, regardless of what happens to the other side.

§ 39.11 Tools for Winning

[1] Meaning of Winning

Fortunately, there are tools which are designed to change our clients' conception of what it means to "win." The successful implementation of these tools serves our interest as lawyers and provides us the benefit of having more satisfied clients--the kind who pay bills, pay them more promptly, pay them more fully, and are less likely to sue for malpractice. To understand how to use those tools, it is first necessary to delve into the world of negotiation theory; then, a peek into the structure of mediation.

[2] Negotiation and Collaboration

Negotiation scholars such as the University of Michigan's Robert Axelrod who focus on game theory have developed an elaborate literature on the incentives for parties to approach a given negotiation in either the "clobber the other side" or "satisfy my own needs" mode [The topic is given perhaps its best treatment in Axelrod's book, "The Evolution of Cooperation."]. The game theorists believe that, in most cases, a party out to satisfy his or her own needs will likely end up with greater wealth at the end of a negotiation than a party out to clobber the other side, so long as everyone else in the negotiation also sets out to satisfy their own needs, or can be persuaded to do so. In most negotiations, parties are in fact out to maximize their own wealth; the rational party will, therefore, try to persuade others to negotiate in a "satisfy your own needs" (cooperative, or collaborative) mode, and will lead by example. The "clobber the other side" (defecting, or combative mode) will be used only where collaboration does not work.

What, then, are the situations in which collaboration does not work? What are the incentives to engage in combative negotiation, even though that style is likely to lessen the number of chips in your client's pile at game's end? Are there ways that lawyers can help clients stay in, or move into, the collaborative mode, knowing that collaboration (when reciprocated) leads to the greater accumulation or conservation of wealth, and accompanying client satisfaction?

Axelrod and other game theorists have identified two principal incentives which lead parties, and appropriately so, to define "winning" in terms of "clobbering the other side," and to negotiate in the combative style as a result. The first is the situation in which the "other side" is irrational, and will not respond appropriately to a collaborative negotiation strategy. The second is the situation in which you believe that you can eat the other side alive.

Virtually all lawyers have been in situations where they believe that the other side will not respond appropriately to a collaborative negotiation strategy. You would be willing to take reasonable and rational positions; you would indicate an openness to persuasion if the other side will provide you with information; you would refrain from "take it or leave it" ultimata; you would be willing to do all this, and more, if only you thought that the other side would reciprocate. But you believe that the other side is incorrigibly combative, the stereotype of the "Rambo" litigator. So, why bother with collaboration? The other side will only exploit you.

Too, virtually all lawyers have been in situations where they believe that they can eat the other side alive. Even though we have all learned the hard way that "a case never again looks as good as it does on the day it walks into your office," human nature still impels us to get a little carried away with ourselves, and with our clients, when we prepare our own side of the case in the comfort and privacy of our own offices. So again, why bother with collaboration? Isn't it a waste of time and money to create "win-win" if you could get "win" right now?

These assumptions are easy to indulge when we are alone. When we sit in our own offices and conference rooms and confer with our own associates and clients, it is too easy to demonize the other side and overstate the strength of our own side of the case. We lawyers--sometimes inadvertently but perhaps sometimes not--frequently fuel those flames. We are concerned, often legitimately so, that if we do not express exceptional confidence in our clients' cases from the get-go, the business will shift to the lawyer down the street who will. But many times, we indulge our clients' expectations early at the expense of having to disappoint those expectations later, and pain of the latter is in direct proportion to the enthusiasm of the former. It can be excruciating, we have all been there, and ways to avoid the predicament are greatly to be desired.

[3] Mediation

Happily, mediation, through its very structure, is a helpful tool. In the hands of skilled mediators and counsel, the process can be designed to minimize the incentives to engage in combative negotiation and enhance the likelihood that the parties will engage in wealth-maximizing, client-satisfying, collaborative negotiation. It's not magic. It comes from the ability of all parties, and counsel, to listen, and to talk. It's typically set in motion at the very start of the process.

In the civil litigation context, most mediations begin with a "joint session," with the mediator, the plaintiff and defendant (or their representatives, if they are entities), and their lawyers present. Everyone is generally given the opportunity to talk and the accompanying responsibility to listen. Lawyers generally deliver a summation of the strengths of their case, based on the facts and law available to them at the time. These presentations resemble closing arguments to a jury. They can be forceful and persuasive. For each side, it is generally the first opportunity to see the case as the other side sees it, with the other side's spin and focus, with the vigor of the other side's advocacy, as it is likely to be seen by the judge and jury. Consider what this can accomplish:

When you address the other side. You have been concerned that the other side is incorrigibly combative; that they will not respond rationally to a presentation of the true strengths of your case. As a result, you have been reluctant to negotiate collaboratively. If they are dead-set on clobbering you, even the game theorists would acknowledge that you are correct to clobber right back. But when you actually present your case to the other side, face to face, their reaction is generally quite different. The folks on the other side are generally not stupid, and are rarely so stubborn or ideological about the litigation as to fail to respond appropriately to what you have to say. You can generally see it on their faces and in their body language, if not hear it in their words.

If your points appear to have merit, but somehow don't seem to be sinking in on the other side of the table, then part of the mediator's job is to catalyze that process. In later private caucuses as well as in the initial joint session, part of the mediator's job is to sensitize the other side to the risks of letting you present your case to the trier of fact. Mediation provides the opportunity for the strengths and weaknesses of everyone's positions to be thoroughly analyzed and rationally taken into account. Once you sense--and you generally will--that the other side is not so incorrigible, but rather responds more or less rationally to what you have to say, the first incentive to engage in combative rather than collaborative negotiation goes by the boards.

When the other side addresses you. No longer are you and your client ensconced in the comfort and privacy of your office. In the adversary crucible of the mediation, you have the opportunity to listen to what the other side has to say. In almost every case, there are at least two sides to the story. When you hear the other side spin their tale, in their own words, with the vigor of their own advocate, you may well be disabused of the notion that your case is a lead-pipe cinch. And in truth, few cases are cinches, particularly when the task of adjudication is left to an often-unpredictable jury. So the second incentive to engage in combative rather than collaborative negotiation is minimized as well.

In mediation after mediation, clients and lawyers so chastened--both on your side and the other side--come to change their negotiating tune. The desire for clobbering is replaced by a desire for finality: a desire to eliminate the enhanced risks (newly perceived) of continued litigation, to eliminate the certainty of the mental, emotional and financial drains of continued litigation, and to get on with one's career and life with a "bird in the hand" settlement that satisfies the client's own needs reasonably well, as compared to the alternative. It is a clear "win," albeit differently defined. It is the best opportunity available for the satisfaction of the client's needs. When we enable our clients to achieve this goal, we exquisitely fulfill our obligation under Ethical Consideration 7-1 and California law to represent and advocate our clients' interests with zeal.

Although many clients (and lawyers) leave these mediations with some lingering sense of disappointment over not getting everything they came in to achieve, these settlements grow on your clients, and look better and better with each passing day. Like the person who did not realize how painful it was to bang his head against a brick wall until he stopped, many clients did not realize how painful litigation was until it ended. The lawyer's wisest strategy may well be to give the client time to appreciate the benefits of living litigation-free; and then to allow the client to give the lawyer the credit he or she deserves for that result.

§ 39.20 Importance of Case Valuation

By far the most valuable strategic tool in mediation, as in settlement negotiation, is a clear understanding of a case's value. Law schools, however, do not teach (and law firm training usually ignores) the economic and probabilistic concepts central to every case valuation. Thus, for most attorneys these concepts lurk unstated and unexamined beneath estimates of value.

Attorneys entering negotiation or mediation without explicitly addressing these factors do so at their clients' peril. Effective case evaluation is crucial to the two key strategic assessments in settlement negotiation--assessment of the least your client should accept, and the most the opposition might give. Moreover, understanding case value well enough to articulate that understanding is essential for performing the three vital persuasive and educative functions in settlement--persuading the opposition to raise their offers, educating a client as to the relative merits of trial versus settlement, and convincing a settlement judge or mediator of the strength of your position.

§ 39.21 The Components of Accurate Evaluation

[1] Factors Involved

The legal factors central to case evaluation are familiar, though by no means easy to assess: the chances of winning or losing, the likely implications for each side of victory or defeat, the likely costs of litigating, and the likely timing of ultimate payout. Less familiar are the statistical and economic notions required to digest and interpret this information. Implicit in all estimates of case value are assumptions about, and calculations based on:

- Expected value,
- Risk aversion,
- The probabilistic principles governing calculation of the likelihoods of multiple independent events, and
- The time value of money.

Attorneys who attempt to combine and sort these factors in the absence of explicit analysis and careful calculation risk reaching case value estimates that are muddled and misleading. On the other hand those that master and apply a few basic economic and statistical principles can significantly enhance the clarity and precision of their valuations. A tool for combining these principles and clarifying analysis has long been taught to all first-year business-school students, but remains unfamiliar to most lawyers. Attorneys who master how to use this tool--known as decision analysis--and more particularly how to employ the underlying concepts, can greatly enhance their effectiveness in both negotiation and mediation.

[2] Expected Value of a Case

Crucial to assessing the least a client should accept to settle a case, and the most the opposition might be persuaded to offer are the linked ideas of expected value and risk aversion. To some attorneys the ideas are already familiar, but to many they are not.

To illustrate these concepts, consider the following simplified case. Suppose you know that your client has a 70% chance of winning at trial and a 30% chance of losing. Suppose further that victory means the client gets $1 million, and loss means they get nothing--and that in this instance winning or losing have no other implications. Finally, assume it costs you and your client nothing to bring this suit. (The hypothetical is deliberately simplified for the sake of clarity--later, step-by-step we will tackle increasingly realistic circumstances.)

Notice how helpful this type of figure is for visually summarizing the decision the client faces. The figure represents decision analysis in its simplest form.

If your client were plaintiff in many such cases--in essence played this "game" many times--their optimum settlement strategy is readily identifiable; they should accept the other side's last, best settlement offer only when it is superior to the average court outcome. Over many such trials, on average your client would win $700,000 per trial. (To see this intuitively, consider that a client "playing this game" ten times would win 7 times on average, netting $7 million over the ten plays, or $700,000 per play.) The $700,000 average outcome of this case is known as the expected value of the case--a crucial economic concept.

For those of you who represent (or litigate against) banks, insurance companies, large businesses, large governmental agencies, or very wealthy individuals--more generally, parties who "play" investment and litigation "games" of this magnitude many times--their decision about accepting a settlement offer in this case hinges on expected value. As plaintiffs they would do best on average by rejecting any settlement below $700,000, and accepting any final offer greater than $700,000.

The graphic not only gives a concise way to summarize the case, but also offers an easy way to calculate its value for the wealthy client. (This approach will prove particularly useful for simplifying calculation of the value of more realistic, complex cases.)

To calculate the average outcome of trial, simply multiply each possible outcome (the numbers at the right) by the chances of attaining that outcome (the corresponding numbers at the left), and sum the results.

.30 x $0	=	+ $ 0
		$700,000

[3] Risk Aversion (Willingness to Pay a Premium for a Bird in the Hand)

To another identifiable subset of clients, this settlement decision looks radically different. Consider a personal injury plaintiff who is impoverished and in the hospital. He or she certainly does not "play" for sums this large many times--he or she gets only one chance--and if he or she loses, his or her bills go unpaid.

Faced with a 30% chance of getting nothing, most such clients, rather than risk losing, would accept settlements lower than $700,000--often well below $700,000. In essence they are willing to pay a premium for sure cash, a premium in the form of a settlement below the expected value of the case. How far below $700,000 they would be willing to go depends on their preferences and circumstances. These are matters their counsel needs to discuss fully with them in order to negotiate effectively on their behalf.

Because these clients are averse to facing the risk of losing, they are labeled risk averse--a second crucial economic concept. Their risk aversion has two important implications in the negotiation. First, many settlements below expected value serve these clients' interests better than would trial. Second and relatedly, their risk aversion is a source of power to their adversaries, who can settle by paying less--often substantially less--than the case's expected value.

One of the most important assessments a lawyer can make in attempting to value a case for a client and in attempting to assess the value the opposition puts on their case, is to judge for each party whether they are likely to be expected valuers, or instead to be risk averse. If the amount at stake is a small percentage of the client's wealth, their best strategy is to take an expected value approach. If the amount in dispute is large relative to the client's wealth, they would do better to be risk averse.

The prior graphic summarizing this case is useful for the attorney representing the risk averse client by offering a concise way to describe the decision the client faces, and to structure discussion about the client's needs. Unlike the situation for expected valuers, however, the risk averse client's best decision cannot be determined simply by calculating the average outcome of the case, but instead depends on their individual circumstances.

[4] Making the Case More Realistic--Incorporating Costs

As a first step to making the above example more realistic, consider how the game changes if the cost of litigation is included. Legal fees and other litigation costs, along with disruption to a client's business and emotional life, all play important roles in determining litigation value. Simplifying once more, suppose that quantifying all these factors leads us to conclude the most likely total of these costs for this case is about $200,000, and suppose that none of this cost is reimbursed upon winning. Our graphic approach again gives a concise way to summarize the value of the client's case.

If going to trial costs $200,000, gaining is worth $1,000,000-$200,000 or $800,000, and losing now costs $200,000. To calculate the average outcome of trial, or the expected value, simply do as before, multiplying each possible outcome by the chances of attaining that outcome, and sum the results.

.30 x (-$200,000)	=	-$60,000
		$500,000

Over a large number of such trials, plaintiff would average winning $500,000 per trial. Thus, the expected valuer should reject any settlement offer below $500,000.

[5] Assessing the Other Side's Case Value

Notice that even if the other side agrees with you entirely about the likely outcome in court, valuing this simplified case from the defense perspective yields a different result. If defendant too faces unreimbursable litigation expenses of $200,000, the following figure summarizes their case.

If the likely award is $1 million and going to trial costs $200,000, then losing costs defendant $1,200,000. Winning would cost the $200,000 expenses of litigation. Again, to calculate the average outcome of trial--the expected value--simply multiply each outcome by the chances of attaining that outcome, and sum the results.

.70 x ($1,200,000)	=	-$840,000
.30 x (-$200,000)	=	-$60,000
		-$900,000

Defendant would do better on average settling at any amount below $900,000 than litigating. Since plaintiff prefers any settlement greater than $500,000 to going to trial, any settlement between $500,000 and $900,000 leaves both parties better off than would trial. (As the litigation proceeds, and costs accrue, the distance between these two figures will dwindle.) Thus, in this very simplified case, the two decision analyses have set an upper and lower bound for possible negotiated results. This is a very useful snapshot to have in preparing for mediation or settlement negotiation. Of course, in the real world, the two sides are not likely to quickly agree about probable trial outcomes. But if an attorney wishes to gain insight into the most the other side might be willing to offer, the best starting point is to ask what your analysis indicates they should be willing to offer. If your reading of the case is well-founded, it provides a good first estimate of the other side's bottom line, and forms a basis for persuading them about how and why their offers are inadequate and unrealistic.

[6] More Realistic Still--Incorporating Other Possible Outcomes

Returning to plaintiff's perspective, to make the case still more realistic, suppose that the plaintiff has a 2% chance of winning an additional $1,000,000 in punitive damages, on top of the actual damage award of $1,000,000. As the case gets more complex, the value of having a graphic snapshot becomes more apparent, as it renders simple the calculation of expected case value.

Now the client has a.02 chance of winning $1,800,000 (that is, $1 million of punitives plus $1 million of actuals minus $200,000 costs), a.68 chance of winning actual damages without punitives (or $1 million minus $200,000), and still the.30 chance of losing $200,000. To calculate the average outcome of trial, again simply multiply each outcome by its likelihood, and sum the results.

.68 x $800,000	=	$544,000
.30 x (-$200,000)	=	-$60,000
		$520,000

As the figure shows, incorporating the chance of the punitive damage award increases the expected value of the case by $20,000. The fact that the impact of punitive damages is so slight surprises many people. Of course, the impact is so small because we assessed a very low likelihood of a punitive damage award, but people's surprise is based on another factor as well--the well-documented bias virtually everyone exhibits for focusing on large events that have a small likelihood of actually occurring. For example, people bet on the lottery in large part because they focus on the big award, not the poor expected value of each bet. Similarly, though there are good reasons to be concerned about punitive damages, people's tendency to focus on "big events" tends to lead them to excessively inflate the importance of these events in the absence of careful analysis.

[7] Evaluating the Likelihood of Multiple Events

Suppose you believe that your only chance for motivating a jury to award punitive damages is if the witnesses perform extremely well, and even then you have only a 1 in 10 chance of punitives. Suppose further that you feel you have only a 1 in 5 chance of the witnesses performing that well. What are your chances of getting punitives? To calculate the answer you multiply the likelihood of the first event happening by the likelihood of the second event happening, or 1/10 x 1/5 = 1/50.

We are all familiar with the idea that it is harder to call 4 consecutive coin flips right than it is to call 1 coin flip right, but how much harder? The chances of calling the first flip right are, of course, 1 in 2. The chances of calling two in a row right are 1/2 x 1/2, or 1/4. Three in a row would be 1/8 and four would be 1/16. More generally, if consecutive things have to happen to reach a result, and if you have assessed likelihoods by asking "If the first thing happens, what are the chances the second will happen?", then the likelihood that both will happen is the likelihood of the first multiplied by the likelihood of the second. This law allows the calculation of the expected value of much more complex scenarios.

The next figure demonstrates how to calculate the expected value of a slightly more complex case in which you feel the outcomes are contingent on the performance of the witnesses.

To calculate the value of a multi-branch decision "tree" we simply start at the right side of the paper and work left, using the exact same approach as we have used before. Starting with the "game" at the top right, we multiply each of the three outcomes by the likelihood they will occur, as is shown in the top box, yielding a value if the witnesses are good of $650,000. Then we evaluate the game at the lower right, as shown in the lower box, yielding a value of $280,000 if the witnesses are bad. Finally we combine the two in the box at the left, again multiplying each result by the chance of getting to it. This yields an expected value for this case of $465,000.

[8] The Time Value of Money

The final economic principle that often has an enormous impact on the value of litigation is the idea that a dollar paid today is worth much more than a dollar paid several years down the line. If final payouts are likely to be years away, this factor can have a huge impact on case value.

For those to whom the concept is unfamiliar, consider that if your client invested his or her money in a conservative bond that yielded 10% interest, a dollar today would grow to $1.10 in one year, $1.21 in two years, $1.33 in 3 years, and so on. A client investing in this way would not care whether he or she received $1 this year, or $1.33 three years from now. If we wanted to calculate what it would be worth to the client to get $1 three years from now, the answer is 1/1.33, or $.75, which is the amount the client would have to invest today to yield $1 in year three. Indeed, if the client's payout will not come for three years, the present value of that payout is worth only 3/4 (or.75) as much as it would be if it came today.

Businesses routinely discount future values at rates of 10% and higher. Indeed rates as high as 15% are not uncommon. (Sophisticated business clients know their "discount rates," which they base on considerations like their profit rate, the interest rate at which they borrow money, and the internal rate of return they look for on investments.) To see how severely this would impact the value of an eventual award, an award paid five years from now to a client who discounts at 15% per year is worth less than half what it would be today.

Many unsophisticated clients discount at rates even higher than 15%, though they would not describe it in these terms.

Indeed, the impoverished hospitalized plaintiff may so strongly prefer receiving cash today to cash several years down the line that he or she might prefer well below $500,000 today to $1,000,000 five years from now.

In some cases, court-awarded interest partially mitigates the impact of present value considerations, but in many they do not. Consider the developer whose project is delayed until the litigation ends. Every day of delay further discounts the value of the stream of income the developer can earn from the project.

When considering the impact of court awards, those awards should be discounted to present value. If our hypothetical $1 million award would not be paid for three years, and would not be compensated by interest, its value falls to $750,000 for the client who discounts at 10% per year, and it should be represented that way in our decision analysis.

§ 39.22 Conclusion: Assessing Likelihoods and Outcomes in the Real World

In the real world, an attorney never knows for certain what a client's chances are in court. The absence of that knowledge, however, does not excuse failing to analyze case value carefully. Certainly "best guesses" based on specific past trial outcomes, statutes, cases, and evidence, are better than failing to analyze value at all. Similarly we can't predict with certainty how much a client would win if they in fact prevail at trial. But we can give ranges of likely awards, can list the cases and evidence supporting those estimates, and can identify within those ranges what our best guess outcome would be. Finally, many of the costs of litigation, and many of the implications of winning or losing are difficult to quantify. Rather than being an argument against systematic analysis of case value, those factors belong in the analysis, at the very least by being listed alongside expenses and court awards as additional outcomes.

Case value hinges on many factors. In the face of such uncertainty and complexity we almost all do the same thing--the human thing. We wing it. We shoot from the hip in estimating value. Those instinctive judgments are useful, especially when enlightened by experience, but are best used in conjunction with more careful and formal analysis that take into account the economic and probabilistic considerations described above. Without such formal analysis, attorneys will have difficulty explaining the reasoning behind estimates of value to their clients, to the opposition, and perhaps most importantly to themselves in striving for the most accurate possible case evaluation.

§ 39.30 Definition and Importance of Disclosure

> D i s c l o s u r e, n 1. To expose to view, as by removing a cover; uncover. 2. To make known; divulge. 3. United States, 20th-21st Century egalitarian theory that promotes open and efficient markets through the disclosure of meaningful information to buyers of goods and services. [Latin dis- (reversal) + clore, to CLOSE.]

Mediator impartiality and independence is core to the growth and acceptance of mediation as the process of choice in resolving disputes. n1 Confidentiality, while a close second, is dependent upon mediator integrity to drive the process.

At stake is public trust in the justice system. Parties to a mediation are encouraged by law and practice to reveal themselves, particularly in private caucus. If a party has the slightest doubt that his bared soul will forever be held confidential by the mediator, we will have not openness in mediation but inhibition resulting in deficient process and inferior outcomes [see Cho v. Superior Court (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 113, 122-124, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 863 (sitting judge whose settlement conferences were de facto mediations retired and associated with a law firm that represented one of the parties to a still active case the judge had "mediated"; both the retired judge and the law firm were disqualified, notwithstanding the firm's firewall policy)].

This discussion examines mediator disclosure as a function of the parties' right to know. It primarily addresses the right to know and disclosure in the context of the parties and lawyers need for reliable information in the selection of a mediator for their case. We conclude that the right to know demands full and credible disclosure by the mediator to assure trust and confidence in mediation and the justice system. And maybe someday the third definition of disclosure will find its way into Webster.

A proposed uniform regulation is included to promote discussion [see § 39.39].

Buyers of goods and services have rights including the right to buy or not, and the right to select among competitors for their business. To make informed decisions, buyers need to have reliable information about the goods and services offered and the sellers that offer them. This right to know is fundamental to market integrity, as well-informed buyers will drive quality, accountability, and value into the markets. It is indispensable to high quality and affordable justice and shelters the right of disputants to reach a voluntary uncoerced agreement.

When markets fail to respond, buyers often turn to the legislative and regulatory arena to level the playing field. A frequently employed legislative tool is disclosure. Signs demonstrating the dramatic growth of disclosure as an open-market mechanism are much in evidence. Securities, healthcare, automotive, insurance, campaign financing, real estate, and food labeling are but a few. International trade is no less driven by information as illustrated by the IMF's recent proposal that the troubled Asian nations provide greater disclosure of economic and financial data "so that a larger number of countries can benefit from access to international capital" [Los Angeles Times, Section D, Asian Watch, Feb. 7, 1998.].

Physician-specific and stock broker-specific disciplinary and claims data, for example, are now available on the Internet. Massachusetts' far-reaching disclosure law begat a lighter bill (A.B. 103) in California which became effective January 1, 1998. And managed-care plans serving Medicare or Medicaid patients must now disclose physician financial incentives [see Disclosing doc incentives, Modern Healthcare, Jan. 6, 1998]. The National Association of Securities Dealers on March 26, 1998 launched its new system to advise investors of brokers' disciplinary history, customer complaints, claims, awards, judgments, and settlements over $10,000 [Wall Street Journal, Mar. 9, 1998].

Parties want high quality resolution of their disputes. That means a system that is accessible, affordable, comprehensible, user-friendly, and speedy so whatever the outcome the parties and lawyers can depart assured that a competent neutral has listened to and responded with courtesy, respect and sensitivity.

Disputants and their lawyers are increasingly demanding more information about the processes and the persons who serve them. A dispute resolution system must therefore assure that reliable information is readily available to the parties and lawyers to enable them to knowledgeably participate in and influence the process. Without education and information the expectations of the parties and lawyers will be unrealistic with attendant surprise, frustration and dissatisfaction.

§ 39.32 How Do Lawyers and Mediators View Disclosure?

Scientific information on the attitudes of lawyers and mediators is in short supply. A private study by ADR Solutions has been in progress since the fall of 1997 [ADR Solutions has granted limited permission for the publication of its anecdotal preliminary findings. Copyright 1997-1998 ADR Solutions, Inc. All rights reserved.]. Two groups were surveyed--lawyers from large multi-specialty law firms and members of the Southern California Mediation Association. Preliminary findings reflect a high correlation of views among the two groups:

Question	Lawyers	Mediators
• Should disclosure be required for voluntary, court-annexed, community, peer-to-peer, and pro bono mediation including settlement conferences?	Yes-78%	Yes-83%
• Reasons for disclosure:
• Assist parties to make informed decisions	100%	94%
• Support integrity and acceptability of mediation	95%	100%
• Encourage party/counsel candor	93%	79%
• Reduce risk of selecting bias mediator	100%	96%
• Should disclosure be made in writing declaring the absence or presence (and facts) of conflicts?	N/A	Yes-57%
• Frequency in which mediators disclosed the absence or presence of conflicts	35%	N/A

§ 39.33 Sources of Disclosure in Mediation

The sources of disclosure standards include the rules of ADR Providers such as the American Arbitration Association, professional associations such as SPIDR, court-annexed programs, community-based programs, private contract, statutory and case law. Although the generally unregulated ADR Provider industry is beyond the scope of this discussion, there may be reason to believe that an ADR Provider has greater incentive to enforce or adhere to disclosure standards than an individual mediator, though insulating marketing from provider services remains a challenge. Further study is needed as to whether and to what extent an ADR Provider should be held accountable for disclosure, confidentiality, quality assurance, and training.

A respected source of standards is found in Model Standards of Conduct For Mediators, a joint product of the American Arbitration Association, the American Bar Association's Dispute Resolution Section, and the Society of Professionals in Dispute Resolution (1994). The sponsors and other organizations have since adopted the Model Standards.

CPR Institute for Dispute Resolution (CPR) compiled a select list of conflict (disclosure) provisions in 1996 from ADR Providers, Professional Associations, and state regulations and proposals [see Conflict of Interest in Mediation: Selected Provisions and Proposals Compiled by CPR]. A study of CPR's state compilation by ADR Solutions' permits a state-by-state comparison by issue. The analysis is found at § 39.40. While specific coverage among the states varies, all efforts reflect a desire to grow mediation by protecting buyers of mediation services.

Based upon the author's interviews and the study conducted by ADR Solutions it appears that disclosure standards are not widely practiced [see § 39.32]. Several reasons may account for this: fear of the loss of income, fear of being sued, unfamiliarity with ethical or legal standards, and inadequate record keeping. These unethical practice patterns occur in fee-based mediation more often than, if at all, in community-based programs where economic incentives are lacking.

If we do not pass and enforce meaningful laws it should come as no surprise that unethical behavior prospers simply because it is successful and some mediators "will therefore stoop to it" [Gideon Kanner, Rambo, Go Home - Of Ethics, Tactics and Judges, Trial Magazine, September, 1991, pp. 104-106]. Such undisclosed conflicts will "compromise the integrity of the court [for] it is the duty of the attorney to disclose conflicts of interests, not the obligation of the clients to ferret them out," wrote bankruptcy judge Stuart M. Bernstein in denying a major law firm half the legal fees it sought in a high profile New York bankruptcy case. [Wall Street Journal, Legal Beat (March 11, 1998)]. It is no different for mediation and other forms of dispute resolution.

§ 39.34 What Should Be Disclosed?

Three areas are commonly scrutinized through disclosure:

- Professional, business, and close personal relationships;
- Financial interest in a disputant or the subject of the dispute; and
- Prior or pending case encounters involving the same disputants.

Parties and lawyers who inquire of a mediator or ADR Provider to mediate their dispute want to know about the mediators they are considering. Resumes help, but are self-serving and usually provide but a fraction of the information desired by parties and lawyers. Satisfaction and performance related data will likely be increasingly requested. But for now, most parties and lawyers rely upon disclosure as the primary if not only mechanism available to determine whether or not there are any circumstance that might reasonably raise a question concerning the proposed mediator's impartiality and independence.

Proper disclosure will also ameliorate the effects of the repeat player--that de facto inequality or unfairness in dispute resolution resulting from disputant-neutral propinquity. Frequent buyers of dispute resolution services secure strategic socio-economic advantages from frequent encounters with small groups of neutrals. "Repeat neutrals" similarly profit from continuing case encounters with repeat players. The risk of biased neutrality is real and statistically significant. A subtle but measurable bias is manifest in more positive outcomes and better outcomes [see Bingham, Lisa B., Employment Arbitration: The Repeat Player Effect, Employee Rights and Employment Policy Journal, Vol. 1, Issue 1, pp. 210, et seq. (Fall, 1997) (employment arbitration)]. While the repeat player bias has not, to this writer's knowledge, been studied in mediation, there is no reason to believe that the same dynamics would not be identified as the reasons for non-disclosure are the same.

Two cases involving the arbitration of medical malpractice claims, both involving the same party and same arbitrator, illustrate the need for prior and pending case encounters to be properly disclosed in writing. Both cases were remanded for retrial before new arbitration panels [Neaman v. Kaiser (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 1170, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 879 ; Kaiser Foundation Hospitals v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 513, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 431].

§ 39.35 Who Should Disclose?

Most mediators are independent and provide their services directly and/or through one or more ADR Providers. As such, only the mediator has all the factual resources concerning case encounters and prohibited personal, professional or commercial conflicts. It follows that the mediator remains primarily responsible for disclosure to the parties and lawyers.

Support exists for others to also disclose what they know about the proposed mediator. One view is that parties to mediation should be required to disclose their experiences with the proposed mediator. Another is that the ADR Provider, if there is one, disclose the number of case encounters and neutrals with the parties, and the mean and median number of case encounters per neutral. Both views have merit. Both may provide useful information to the parties; the latter also targets the repeat player effect [see discussion in § 39.34]. The employment of supplementary disclosure strategies, however, must not relieve the mediator of the primary responsibility for making proper disclosure.

Mediator accountability is consistent with public policy as it is the mediator alone whom the parties expect to protect their rights to confidentiality. Trust in the mediator and mediation and can best be served by holding the mediator responsible to make full and credible disclosure. Only then may mediation become accepted as the process of choice for dispute resolution.

§ 39.36 How Should Disclosure Be Made?

Information about potential conflicts should be communicated in the most efficient manner practicable, free of ambiguity and risk of misunderstanding. That means a mediator should inform the parties and their lawyers in writing of the presence or absence of potential conflicts, and where potential conflicts exist to provide the circumstances. This is the practice of the American Arbitration Association in both mediated and arbitrated cases. Any valid waiver of conflicts should likewise be in writing.

Oral disclosure, urged by some, invites all the uncertainty of oral agreements, waivers, and other transactions that we are all too familiar with. Half-measures will not yield the high level of trust and confidence necessary to grow mediation.

A mediator's best compliance practice would be the utilization of an effective record keeping system to enable the accurate identification of prior and pending case encounters and investments. But privacy must be assured of the disputants in such cases who are not in business and not parties to the new mediation. One method is to replace the names of such individuals with their respective roles in the prior or pending case, such as "Claimant" or "Respondent." California uses this privacy approach in arbitrated cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9(a)(3), (4)]. On the other hand, California Law Review Commission Comments (b)(3) to Evid. Code § 1119 (mediation confidentiality) "does not preclude a disputant from obtaining basic information which may be significant in selecting an impartial mediator."

§ 39.37 When Should Disclosure Be Made?

Timely disclosure will assist the parties and lawyers in evaluating the mediator. A proposed mediator should therefore make disclosure as soon as possible following notice of consideration or proposed appointment. The mediator's duty continues during the mediation process and requires that new disclosures be made as soon as known in writing or orally, as circumstances permit.

§ 39.38 Remedies

Courts have demonstrated a willingness to impose severe sanctions against those who have violated confidentiality of mediation [See Paranzino v. Barnett Bank, 690 So. 2d 725 (Fla. App. 4th Dist. 1997) ; Bernard v. Galen Group, 901 F. Supp. 778 (S.D.N.Y., 1995) . Compare Doe v. State of Nebraska, 971 F.Supp. 1305 (D.Neb.1997) (confidentiality is measured by statute)]. Providing remedial relief for those injured from the failure of a mediator to make required disclosure should be accorded greater attention. Disciplinary action may be sufficient where mediators are licensed, which may include restitution or public reproval.

In the absence of mediator regulation, a court clearly may impose sanctions in court-annexed mediation. But it is less clear in private mediation and equally unclear if injured parties have a private cause of action. In the absence of a comprehensive statutory scheme, a simple provision leaving the parties with whatever rights they have at law or equity may be sufficient.

Balancing may be necessary to avoid restricting the supply of qualified mediators. Factors to consider include malpractice insurance, liability caps, quasi-immunity, and agency subsidies for non-profit community programs. But care must be exercised so as to preserve the accountability flowing from baseline remedies.

§ 39.39 Proposed Regulation

[1] Proposal for a Regulation

A proposed regulation is included in [2], below. It is designed to facilitate dialogue among those responsible to regulate the scope and manner in which mediators effect their disclosures. It is a start, and together with other resources on mediator disclosure, should contribute to the evolution of a uniform process. The market in the long run will demonstrate that good ethics is good business and that the best practices serve mediator and parties alike.

[2] Text of Proposed Disclosure Regulation Legislative Policy

Parties want high quality resolution of their disputes. That means a system that is accessible, affordable, comprehensible, user-friendly, and speedy so whatever the outcome the parties and lawyers can depart assured that a competent neutral has listened to and responded with courtesy, respect and sensitivity.

Parties to a dispute and their lawyers are increasingly demanding more information about the processes and the persons who serve them. A dispute resolution system must therefore assure that reliable information is readily available to the parties and lawyers to enable them to knowledgeably participate in and influence the process. Without education and information the expectations of the parties and lawyers will be unrealistic with attendant surprise, frustration and dissatisfaction.

1. Definitions:

1.1 "Mediation" means a process in which a neutral person or persons facilitate communications between the disputants to assist them in reaching a mutually acceptable agreement. [see, Cal. Evid. Code 1115(a)]

1.2 "Mediator" means a neutral person who conducts mediation. [see, Cal. Evid. Code 1115(b)]

1.3 "Oral Agreement" means an oral agreement that satisfies all of the following conditions [see Cal.

Evid. Code 1118]

1.4 "Disputants" means natural or artificial persons who have legal rights and duties to participate in mediation and reach a mutually acceptable agreement.

1.5 "Family means the mediators's spouse or a person within the third degree of relationship to the mediator or the mediator's spouse, or the spouse of such person.

2. Principals of Neutrality:

2.1 A mediator shall be honest, impartial, and free from favoritism or bias in word, action, and appearance.

2.2 A mediator shall not give or accept any property of value, directly or indirectly, for the referral of cases.

2.3 A mediator shall be competent to handle the matters under dispute. If a case is beyond the mediator's competence, the mediator shall decline the case or withdraw from the case, seek appropriate assistance, or obtain the informed written consent of all parties to serve.

2.4 A mediator shall maintain the integrity of the mediator's position and shall not be influenced by outside pressure, fear of criticism or self-interest.

2.5 A mediator accepting an appointment must be able to and shall act promptly to meet all mediation commitments in a timely manner.

3. Required Disclosures means all reasonably known current, past or predictable future:

3.1 business, professional, or close personal relationship the mediator, including the mediator's firm or family, has with the (a) disputants, including all instances in which the mediator, including the mediator's firm or family, is now or has provided any services for any disputant or adverse to any disputant; (b) disputants' lawyers, law firms, and insurers representing a disputant; or,

3.2 financial interest the mediator, including the mediator's firm or family, has in any disputant or in the subject of the dispute; or,

3.3 business, professional, or close personal relationship the mediator, including the mediator's firm or family, has with an officer or management-level employee of a disputant, or with an individual or insurer representing a disputant; or,

3.4 circumstances that might reasonably raise a question under Section 2.

4. Disclosure--Procedure:

4.1 The mediator shall in writing indicate the absence or presence of any required disclosures. Where the mediator provides required disclosures the mediator shall disclose in writing the following where applicable:

(a) Where a disputant to a proposed mediation is also a disputant to a prior or pending mediation or arbitration of the neutral within the prior five years, the mediator shall disclose the following for each such prior or pending case: (i) date case closed unless case not closed in which instance the date opened; (ii) names of all disputants, provided that the true names for any individuals not conducting business and not a disputant to the proposed mediation shall be described only by their role ("claimant" or "respondent"); (iii) names and representative interest of the lawyers and their law firms, if any.

(b) In all other instances the specific circumstances constituting the required disclosures;

(c) If the mediator fails to make required disclosures as required herein the mediator shall decline the case or withdraw from the case.

4.2 The mediator shall utilize an effective record keeping system to identify required disclosures and make all reasonable efforts to learn of facts warranting required disclosures.

5. Disclosure--Timing:

5.1 The mediator shall in writing indicate the absence or presence of any required disclosures as soon as possible following appointment or proposed appointment, but in all cases prior to convening the mediation.

5.2 The mediator's duty to disclose continues during the mediation process and shall be made orally or in writing, as circumstances permit, as soon as possible within 72 hours after the mediator becomes aware of any required disclosures.

5.3 The duty to make required disclosures runs to reasonably known disputants or their reasonably known counsel, and to the court or other referring organization if required by such court or organization.

5.4 After making required disclosures the mediator shall decline the case or withdraw from the case unless all disputants agree to retain or continue to retain the mediator. However, a mediator shall decline the case or withdraw from the case where there are clear and substantial required disclosures irrespective of the disputants' desires.

6. Public Education: Disputants and their counsel who use mediation to resolve disputes have the right to know of required disclosures so they may make informed decisions in selecting mediators. The fact and nature of this Mediation Disclosure Act shall be provided to Disputants and their counsel as follows:

6.1 Mediators who directly contract with disputants and/or their counsel for mediation services shall provide in separate writing or in their written communications, in 12-point bold font, the following: "Disputants to mediation have the right that mediators disclose in writing the absence or presence of any conflicts of interest. [Code Section]. Upon request a copy of the Mediation Disclosure Act will be provided to you."

6.2 Community Mediation Organizations [define] which provide or arrange to provide mediation services for disputants who often utilize the organization's facilities may, as an alternative or supplement to the notice in Section 6.1, conspicuously and prominently post in their facilities the following message: "Disputants to mediation have the right that mediators disclose in writing the absence or presence of any conflicts of interest. [Code Section]. Upon request a copy of the Mediation Disclosure Act will be provided to you."

6.3 All other organizations which provide or arrange to provide mediation services for disputants and/or their counsel, shall provide in separate writing or in their written communications, in 12-point bold font, the following: "Disputants to mediation have the right that mediators disclose in writing the absence or presence of any conflicts of interest. [Code Section]. Upon request a copy of the Mediation Disclosure Act will be provided to you."

7. Remedies: Disputants to a mediation who sustain damage as a result of any violation of Sections 2-6 shall have such remedies as are provided in law or equity. Where there has been a finding that the mediator's violations of the Mediation Disclosure Act were willful or repetitious, the court may additionally impose the following sanctions suitable to protect the public interest:

7.1 A mediator may be suspended from providing any mediation services, not to exceed 12 months per single case encounter;

7.2 A mediator may be subject to public reproval published in a state-sponsored ADR web site;

§ 39.50 Use of Voluntary ADR to Distribute Nonliquid Assets

How can a group of nonliquid assets be fairly divided into equal shares when they have intangible or sentimental value for one or more of the potential recipients? What if the potential recipients value the items differently? For example, in the division of a family estate, one heir has always loved and cherished mother's wedding ring, and another has no interest in jewelry, nor a sentimental attachment to mother, and a third says he wants the ring, but only to create value in order to trade with the first heir on another asset. Or in a business partnership dissolution, one partner wants the proprietary computer program that was custom-written for the firm, and others want the collectable artwork displayed in the reception area, and another wants the firm's season Lakers or Forty-niners or Hollywood Bowl box tickets.

Partnership dissolutions, probates, and marital dissolutions can become nasty and bitter when the parties cannot agree on how to fairly distribute nonliquid assets with intangible value. By litigating such a dispute, the parties risk losing any control over disposition of these valued items. For example, a judge might require that an "irreplaceable" asset be sold or crudely partitioned, or the delays inherent in litigation may adversely harm other assets or lay them to waste. A voluntary form of ADR, such as mediation, permits the parties to jointly negotiate and promptly agree to a fair distribution method or system, thereby avoiding a delayed decision imposed by a disinterested outsider.

§ 39.51 Objective Valuation and Distribution Methods

Distributing nonliquid assets fairly requires an objective system, i.e. a valuation and distribution method. If mediating parties perceive a proposed distribution system as fair and objective, there is an excellent chance that they will agree to settle through the mediation. Once the mediation identifies a system which all parties accept, then the calculations can be performed and the asset distribution accomplished without further litigation risks and expenses.

Professor Howard Raiffa of Harvard has considered the problem of fairly distributing nonliquid assets in his The Art and Science of Negotiation, Harvard University Press, 1982, pages 288-299. Professor Raiffa discusses three different systems, each of which is "fair." but somewhat different in result. In a mediation, one or more of these systems may be proposed by a party, by an attorney, or by the mediator. These three are: The Sealed Bid (Professor Raiffa calls this the "naive" system) system, the Auction system, and the Steinhaus Fair Division system (named after the Polish mathematician, Hugo Steinhaus). Although all three of these systems are objective and fair, the degree of "fairness" often depends upon one's viewpoint and one's stake in the outcome.

Suppose that there are four nonliquid assets, an Ansel Adams photograph, a Sam Francis lithograph, a custom computer program, and Hollywood Bowl box seats. Law partners Joe, Jan and Jerry are dissolving their firm and need help deciding how to distribute these assets fairly. All three would prefer not selling the assets in order to avoid the effort, time, expense, and tax liability, plus all recognize that the assets have aesthetic or non-economic value, at least to some of them.

Typically such parties try to divide the assets "fairly" but each person's concept of fairness differs according to his/her own perceptions and self-interest, usually resulting in stalemate, with angry and resentful comments, and a general deterioration of their relationship. Here is a how they each might view the problem at the outset, but without sharing this information with the others:

Joe adores the Sam Francis litho, which he selected for the firm years ago when it had far less value. Now, its fair market value is around $35,000 to $40,000, and he wants to make sure that when the dust settles, he gets it. Joe values the Ansel Adams photo at around $15,000--he likes it, but can live without it. He could use the custom computer program in his new firm and values it at $10,000 which is what the firm paid two years ago. The Hollywood Bowl box holds no interest for Joe, so he values it at $5,000, the face value of the tickets. Joe values these assets, in total, as $70,000.

Jan values the Adams photo at $20,000 and the Francis litho at $16,000, which are what she believes to be the fair market values; she has no real interest in art. The computer program, a very useful and unique program which has made a big difference in the firm's productivity, would cost $16,000 to replace on today's market. Jan wants it, or in the alternative wants her partners to pay its full value in the dissolution. The Hollywood Bowl box is irreplaceable to Jan, it cannot be bought at any price, and should have much higher than face value, say $10,000. These assets have a total value, to Jan, of $62,000.

Jerry is moving to his ranch in Montana, retiring from the practice of law. The only asset he values is the Adams photo, which he understands just sold at auction for $30,000. He hates the Francis litho, but acknowledges its value is around $10,000. The computer program is two years old now, nearly useless, and worth no more than $2,000. He accepts the $5,000 fair market value on the box seats. In his mind, these assets value, in total, $47,000.

PART V. LONG DIVISION: VALUING AND DISTRIBUTING NONLIQUID ASSETS

§ 39.52 Sealed Bid System

Using the Sealed Bid system, give each asset to the person who values it most and collect that value for a pool of money to be divided equally. Thus the Francis litho goes to Joe for $40,000, the Adams photo to Jerry for $30,000, the computer program to Jan for $16,000, and the box seats to Jan for $10,000. The money in the pool, $96,000, is distributed equally to the three partners, $32,000 each. Therefore Joe pays $40,000 for the Francis litho, receives $32,000 from the pool, and therefore owes the difference, $8,000, to the pool. Jan pays $16,000 and $10,000 for the program and the box seats, a total of $26,000, receives $32,000 from the pool, and therefore nets the difference, $6,000, from the pool. Jerry pays $30,000 for the Adams photo, receives $32,000 from the pool, and therefore nets the difference, $2,000, from the pool. Thus, in the final arrangements, Joe pays $6,000 to Jan and $2,000 to Jerry.

Is everyone happy? Each person receives the assets he/she most valued, but Joe may have a nagging doubt that he paid too much. After the figures and computations are revealed, Joe might conclude that he overpaid for the Francis litho. He might then attempt to renege and a breach of contract lawsuit is born, or he might be resentful which could sour other aspects of the partnership dissolution. If there ever is a "next time" using a Sealed Bid system, these parties might undervalue (or strategically misrepresent the value of) the assets, in order to get more for less. Of course, undervalue an asset too much and it goes to someone else. In that event, however, the person who strategically undervalues an asset that he/she truly wants may purchase it later in a bilateral negotiation. Therefore, there might be a tendency for people familiar with the Sealed Bid system to strategically undervalue assets. If undervaluation becomes widespread and escalates, however, the Sealed Bid system could ultimately break down and be unworkable as everyone's bids are unrealistically low, with the expectation of buying the asset later.

§ 39.53 Auction System

The Auction system avoids results skewed by the top value for each asset. This helps the parties avoid strategic undervaluing which they would learn under the Sealed Bid system. The math is the same as above, but instead of selling each asset at the highest value, it is sold at the next-to-highest value. This resembles an Auction in that the highest bidder does not bid the full value he places on the object, but only slightly more than the last bid by the last competitor. The Auction system results in the same distribution of assets, but with different prices paid: Joe pays $16,000 for the Francis litho, Jan pays $10,000 for the program and $5,000 for the box seats, and Jerry pays $20,000 for the Adams photo. The total in the pool, $51,000, is distributed equally, $17,000 to each. Therefore Joe pays $16,000 for the Francis litho, receives $17,000 from the pool, and thus nets the difference, $1,000, from the pool. Jan pays $10,000 for the program and $5,000 for the box seats, a total of $15,000, receives $17,000 from the pool, and thus nets $2,000 from the pool. Jerry pays $20,000 for the Adams photo, receives $17,000 from the pool, and thus owes the difference, $3,000, to the pool. Thus in the final arrangements, Joe receives $1,000, Jan receives $2,000 and Jerry must pay $3,000.

Joe likes the Auction system much better than the Sealed Bid system: he not only receives his treasured Francis litho, but nets $1,000. The Sealed Bid system, in comparison, was terrible for Joe--he had to pay $8,000 for the litho. Jerry and Jan, however, do better under the Sealed Bid system than the Auction system: Jerry nets the Adams photo and $2,000 under the Sealed Bid system, while he has to pay $3,000 for the Adams photo under the Auction system. Jan does even better under the Sealed Bid system: she receives the computer program, the box seats, and $6,000; under the Auction system, she nets only $2,000.

Is there any wonder that much disputation takes place in determining which system is to be used to divide assets? If there were a plurality vote taken, Jerry's and Jan's preference for the Sealed Bid system would outvote Joe's preference, but then Joe, and perhaps all of the parties, may start valuing the assets strategically.

§ 39.54 Steinhaus Fair Division System

[1] Description of Steinhaus Fair Division

A third system, the Steinhaus Fair Division, also produces a "fair" result; some people may consider it "more fair" than the Sealed Bid or Auction systems.

Hugo Steinhaus, a Polish mathematician, suggested this method. Don't be daunted by the mathematics: Follow the seven steps. They involve only addition, subtraction, and division, which can be accomplished with a calculator. It would appear that Professor Raiffa liked this method at least as much as, and probably more than, the Sealed Bid and the Auction systems.

The virtue of the Steinhaus Fair Division system is that it is based on the value each person assigns to all of the assets, not only to the highest or the second highest bid on each asset. Table 1 set out in [2], below, illustrates the method used to determine the Steinhaus Fair Division. The first four lines, Lines A - D, of Table 1, summarize each person's valuation of the four assets. Three people want to allocate four assets which they each value differently. The Line E is the Total Valuation each person assigns to all of the assets. Lines A - E are the same values used in the prior examples.

To compute according to the Steinhaus system:

1. Line F is the "Initial Fair Share" determined by dividing each person's Total Valuation, Line E, by 3. The rationale is that from each person's perspective and Total Valuation, he/she expects to divide the assets equally amongst the three partners. Initial Fair Shares are: $23,333 for Joe, $20,667 for Jan, and $15,667 for Jerry.

2. Line G shows the distribution of the assets according to who has placed the highest value on each asset, i.e. who wants it most: Joe receives the Francis litho, Jan receives the computer program and the box seats, and Jerry receives the Adams photo.

3. Line H is the "Value (of the asset) Received": Joe receives the Francis litho at what he considers to be a value of $40,000. Jan receives the computer program and the box seats, which she values at $16,000 and $10,000, a total of $26,000 to her. Jerry receives the Adams photo at a value of $30,000 to him.

4. Line I is the difference between each person's Value Received, Line H, with each person's Initial Fair Share, Line F. Line I is called "Excess," which will be used to equalize the distributions. Joe's Excess is $16,667 ($40,000 less $23,333), Jan's Excess is $5,333 ($26,000 less $20,667), and Jerry's Excess is $14,333 ($30,000 less $15,667).

5. Line J is the mean of the three Excesses, i.e. the sum of the three items in Line I and divided by 3: $12,111 ($16,667 + $5,333 + $14,333 = $36,333 / 3 = $12,111). Line J is called "Adjustment." It will be used to adjust the Initial Fair Share, Line F, in the next step.

6. Line K, the "Adjusted Fair Share." is the sum of Line F and Line J. This adds to each person's Initial Fair Share the average of the excess amounts each person has received. By adding this adjustment, each person's fair share is adjusted to put it into parity with the others' fair shares. The Adjusted Fair Shares are: $35,444 for Joe, $32,778 for Jan, and $27,778 for Jerry.

7. Line L is the amount each person pays or receives for the Final Arrangement, in order to keep the asset listed in Line G. Line L is computed by subtracting Line H, the Value Received, from Line K, the Adjusted Fair Share. A negative number in Line L means that person must pay that money into the pool and a positive number in Line L means that person receives that amount from the pool; the total of all entries in Line L is 0. Joe gets the Francis litho and pays $4,556 ($35,444 less $40,000), Jan gets the computer program and the box seats and receives $6,778 ($32,778 less $26,000) and Jerry gets the Adams photo and pays $2,222 ($27,778 less $30,000). Note that the total of these three numbers is zero (-$4,556 + $6,778-$2,222).

§ 39.55 Results of the Three Systems Compared

[1] Discussion of Results

The net results for Joe, Jan and Jerry under these three objective and "fair" systems, the Sealed Bid, the Auction and the Steinhaus Fair Division systems, are compared in Table 2, set out in [2], below. Note that under each system, the assets are distributed to the same people: Joe gets the litho, Jerry gets the photo, and Jan gets the computer program and the box seats. Joe likes the Auction best because it gives him a net gain of $1,000; the Steinhaus system costs Joe $4,556 and the Sealed Bid costs him $8,000. Jan likes the Steinhaus system best, at a net gain of $6,778; the Sealed Bid gives her $6,000, a close second place, but the Auction gives her a disappointing $2,000. Jerry likes the Sealed Bid, which nets him $2,000; the other two systems cost him considerable money, Steinhaus costs him $2,222 and the Auction costs him $3,000.

These three systems each provide "fair." but different, ways to value and distribute nonliquid assets. There are, of course, other mathematical possibilities based upon different assumptions and expectations. (In writing this article, the author developed a different system, the Mean Value Auction, which is based not upon the highest value for each asset, as in the Sealed Bid, nor on the second highest value for each asset, as in the Auction, but upon the mean value which all participants have assigned to that asset. This would tend to lower the value paid by the highest bidder. In some economic systems, this might be a preferable result. However, in a fair market economy, purchase values usually approach that of the highest bidder, rather than the average asset value. Therefore the Mean Value Auction does not comport to basic capitalistic expectations and is not analyzed in this article).

A mediation can be a practical, cost-effective, problem-solving method for determining a fair distribution system of nonliquid assets and for avoiding the risks of losing all in litigation. Although such a mediation may involve intense negotiations, the parties stand a good chance of identifying and agreeing to a distribution system which is objective and fair, when the mediated outcome is compared to the risks and probabilities of doing better or worse outside of the mediation. Compared to the process and result through litigation, the three distribution systems described here offer mediating parties a fair, swift, and economical solution.

§ 39.60 Arbitration of Medical Malpractice Claims

There are two distinct groups of medical care providers who require arbitration of medical malpractice claims: viz., (1) Individual Health Care providers and (2) health care service plan providers. The former group is predominately comprised of individual doctors and small medical groups (hereinafter Individual Health Care providers). The latter group is commonly known as HMO (health maintenance organization) providers and includes Kaiser and CIGNA contracts among them (hereinafter Health Plan).

Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 sets forth the contractual language that must be used by an Individual Health Care provider in a medical services contract, in order to require issues of professional negligence to be decided by "neutral arbitration." Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 does not compel Health Plan providers to include the same mandatory language in their contracts, so long as the Health Plan contract contains the notice of arbitration provisions required by Health & Safety Code § 1363(a)(10) and, presumably, Health & Safety Code § 1363.1. Nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 prevents the individual health care provider from adding language in addition to that required by the statue so as to expand the scope of matters required to be arbitrated [see Reigelsperger v. Siller (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 574, 578, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 887 , discussed at §§ 39.61[1] and 39.65]. These code sections are discussed in this Part, below.

The California Supreme Court in Madden v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals, (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 699, 706-707, 131 Cal. Rptr. 882, 552 P.2d 1178 made the oft-cited comment that there is a strong public policy in California favoring arbitration as a means of resolving disputes, including disputes over medical malpractice claims. The court reasoned arbitrations are expeditious, inexpensive, and relieve overburdened courts. For these reasons, the courts will compel arbitration under agreements that meet the minimal notice requirements of the above codes, and, thereby, deny the claimant's their guarantee, under Cal. Const., art. I, § 16, of a jury trial in civil cases.

§ 39.61 Patient Must Be Aware of Arbitration Provision

[1] Disclosure by Individual Health Care Providers

In 1975, the Legislature, in extraordinary session, enacted the Medical Malpractice Act (MICRA), for the benefit of the medical community. As part of MICRA, the Legislature recognized that arbitrations were important in resolving medical negligence disputes. As discussed below, for an arbitration agreement to be effective, the potential patient must be advised of the contractual provision requiring arbitration.

For the Individual Health Care provider, Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 was passed to allow arbitration in medical malpractice actions. The advisement requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(a)-(c) are specifically intended to promote the patients' awareness that execution of the contract will constitute a waiver of the patient's constitutional right to a jury trial or court trial [Rosenfield v. Superior Court (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 198, 203, 191 Cal. Rptr. 611]. In Rosenfield, the court ruled that the failure of a health care contract to contain the advisements specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(a), (b) automatically renders unenforceable the arbitration of such contract [Rosenfield v. Superior Court (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 198, 203, 191 Cal. Rptr. 611]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(a)-(c) provides:

> (a) Any contract for medical services which contains provision for arbitration of any dispute as to professional negligence of a health care provider shall have such provision as the first article of the contract and shall be expressed in the following language: "It is understood that any dispute as to medical malpractice, that is as to whether any medical services rendered under this contract were unnecessary or unauthorized or were improperly, negligently or incompetently rendered, will be determined by submission to arbitration as provided by California law, and not by a lawsuit or resort to court process except as California law provides for judicial review of arbitration proceedings. Both parties to this contract, by entering into it, are giving up their constitutional right to have any such dispute decided in a court of law before a jury, and instead are accepting the use of arbitration." Communications between a physician and his or her patient's disability insurer, at the request of the patient, regarding the diagnosis and/or treatment of the patient by that physician, constitute the rendering of medical services within the meaning of the quoted language of the statute. Therefore, claims that the communications were unauthorized or improper must be arbitrated, even if pleaded as breach of fiduciary duty, violation of privacy rights, intentional interference with prospective economic advantage, or negligence [Titolo v. Cano (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 310, 314, 318-319, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 616].

(b) Immediately before the signature line provided for the individual contracting for the medical services must appear the following in at least 10-point bold red type:

"NOTICE: BY SIGNING THIS CONTRACT YOU ARE AGREEING TO HAVE ANY ISSUE OF MEDICAL MALPRACTICE DECIDED BY NEUTRAL ARBITRATION AND YOU ARE GIVING UP YOUR RIGHT TO A JURY OR COURT TRIAL. SEE ARTICLE 1 OF THIS CONTRACT."

(c) Once signed, such a contract governs all subsequent open-book account transactions for medical services for which the contract was signed until or unless rescinded by written notice within 30 days of signature. Written notice of such rescission may be given by a guardian or conservator of the patient if the patient is incapacitated or a minor.

It should be noted that Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(a), above, requires exact language to be in the first paragraph of the arbitration contract. It should be further noted that Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(b), above, must be set out in "at least 10-point bold red type." Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(c) is not explicitly set forth as a mandatory provision in the contract; however, in Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(e) it is implied that subdivision (c) be included in the contract as proof that the "contract is not a contract of adhesion, nor unconscionable nor otherwise improper... ."

Remember, the mandatory requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 apply to the Individual Health Care provider contracts and not to the Health Plan contracts. The Individual Health Care arbitration agreement, however, will not be enforceable unless the above mandatory language is on the form in the manner required by the code. Nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 prevents the individual health care provider from adding language in addition to that required by the statue, usually to expand the scope of matters required to be arbitrated [Reigelsperger v. Siller (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 574, 578, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 887 ; see also discussion at § 39.65]. Thus, contractual terms that further define the arbitration process may be placed in the contract, in addition to the mandatory terms set out above. Usually an Individual Health Care provider arbitration agreement is given to a prospective patient at the first visit to the doctor.

[2] Disclosure by Health Plan

The Health Plan also has statutory requirements for disclosure of the arbitration provisions of their contracts.

Usually the Health Plan is negotiated by an employer for the benefits of its employees. Thus, the employees are not privy to the contract terms, but, like the Health Plan, the employee is bound by the contractual provisions in exchange for the medical services provided by the Health Plan. To make the employee or beneficiary of the plan aware of the arbitration provisions, Health & Safety Code §§ 1363(a)(10) and 1363.1 have certain disclosure requirements. An arbitration disclosure in the master agreement between and employer and a health plan is no substitute for compliance with the arbitration disclosure requirements of Health & Safety Code § 1363.1. Further, the plan cannot avoid compliance by using a form provided by the employer to evidence an employee's election to enroll in the plan. If the employer-prepared form does not provide the required disclosures, the health plan must provide its own form for that purpose [Medeiros v. Superior Court (Health Net of California) (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1008, 1016-1019, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 307] .

The mandatory arbitration disclosure requirement includes providing as set out in Health & Safety Code § 1363(a)(10): "If the plan utilizes arbitration to settle disputes, a statement of that fact [in a notice to the employee or beneficiary]."

The code further requires, at Health & Safety Code § 1373(i), that the plan contract itself set out the terms of the arbitration agreement. Health & Safety Code § 1373(i) states: "If the plan utilizes arbitration to settle disputes, the plan contracts shall set forth the type of disputes subject to arbitration, the process tobe utilized, and how it is to be initiated."

More specific mandatory requirements are set out in Health & Safety Code § 1363.1, which became effective on January 1, 1995. Like Code Civ. Proc. § 1295, Health & Safety Code § 1363.1 is concerned about the waiver of a jury trial. The mandatory requirements in the notice to employees or beneficiaries for disclosure of the arbitration provision under Health & Safety Code § 1363.1, are:

1. A general statement that the plan uses binding arbitration to settle disputes (all disputes).

2. A specific statement that the plan uses binding arbitration to settle "medical malpractice" claims.

3. A separate article in the agreement issued to the employer group or individual subscriber shall set out the arbitration provision.

4. The enrollment form signed by each subscriber or enrollee shall contain a prominent display of the arbitration provision.

5. A statement that the subscriber or enrollee is waiving his or her right to a jury trial for "medical malpractice" claims or other disputes related to the delivery of medical services, or both, "and shall be substantially expressed in the wording provided in subdivision (a) of Section 1295 of the Code of Civil Procedure."

6. The enrollment agreement shall display the arbitration disclosure immediately before the signatures of both the contracting representative and the enrollee.

Unlike the Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(b) provision, however, there is no requirement that the waiver be stated in "at least 10-point bold red type." Section 1363.1 is not just a notice statute; it is also to ensure a knowing waiver of the right to a jury trial. Thus, an arbitration provision cannot be enforced on the basis of "substantial compliance" with Health & Safety Code § 1363.1 if it is disputable whether the arbitration provision satisfies the prominence requirement, i.e., if there is no indication that the enrollee knowingly waived the right to a jury trial (even if the notice requirement satisfied by actual notice at a later date) [Rodriguez v. Blue Cross of California (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 330, 338-341, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 754 (arbitration clause unenforceable in action for violation of unfair competition law, declaratory relief, and other causes of action not related to medical malpractice because arbitration disclosure did not make clear whether it applied to causes of action other than malpractice); Burks v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1021, 1024, 1028-1029, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 257 ; Zembsch v. Superior Court (Health Net of California, Inc.) (2006) 146 Cal. App. 4th 153, 156, 160-167, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 69 ; Robertson v. Health Net of California, Inc. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 1419, 1431, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 547 (noncompliance with respect both to placement of arbitration disclosure other than immediately before the enrollee's signature and to lack of prominent display); Malek v. Blue Cross of California (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 44, 72-73, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 687]. Courts have also held that administrative penalties are not enough to carry out the legislative intent, and are not a substitute for refusal to enforce a disclosure that does not comply with Health & Safety Code § 1363.1 [Medeiros v. Superior Court (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1008, 1019, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 307 ; Zembsch v. Superior Court (Health Net of California, Inc.) (2006) 146 Cal. App. 4th 153, 167-168, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 69 ; Malek v. Blue Cross of California (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 44, 67-69, 16 Cal. App. 3d 687] .

Because Health & Safety Code § 1363.1 is admittedly a statute that governs arbitration contracts specifically, it has been held preempted by the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) with respect to contracts involving interstate commerce [Erickson v. Aetna Health Plans of Cal. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 646, 652, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 76]. However, more recently a court has ruled that Health & Safety Code § 1363.1 is not preempted by the FAA, because the McCarran-Ferguson Act [15 U.S.C. § 1012(b)] bars the FAA on the ground it is a federal statute of general application; as such, it does not "specifically relate" to insurance and should not interfere with the operation of Health & Safety Code § 1363.1, which does govern insurance [Smith v. PacifiCare Behavioral Health Plan of California, Inc. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 139, 144, 162, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 140 , cert denied, (2002) 537 U.S. 818 ; accord, Imbler v. PacifiCare of Cal., Inc. (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 567, 576-577, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 715 ; Pagarigan v. Superior Court (Aetna U.S. Healthcare of California, Inc.) (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 1121, 1134, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 124].

§ 39.62 Health Care Arbitration Agreements Not Adhesion Contracts

Courts will not enforce a contract or contractual provision of adhesion which limits the duties and liabilities of the stronger party who drafted the agreement, unless such provisions are clear, conspicuous and will not operate to defeat the reasonable expectations of the weaker party [Wheeler v. St. Joseph Hospital (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 345, 356-357, 133 Cal. Rptr. 775].

A contract of adhesion usually refers to a contract drafted and imposed by a party enjoying a superior bargaining position, which is offered to a weaker party on a "take it or leave it" basis, without an opportunity to negotiate the contractual language [Wheeler v. St. Joseph Hospital (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 345, 356, 133 Cal. Rptr. 775 (citing Smith v. Westland Life Ins. Co. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 111, 122, n.12, 123 Cal. Rptr. 649, 539 P.2d 433)].

The general rule stated in Bauer v. Jackson (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 358, 370, 93 Cal. Rptr. 43 , that: "Ordinarily when a person with capacity of reading and understanding an instrument signs it, he may not, in the absence of fraud, imposition or excusable neglect, avoid its terms on the ground he failed to read it before signing it" does not apply where the contract is one of adhesion [Ramirez v. Superior Court (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 746, 754, 163 Cal. Rptr. 223].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1295, however, precludes the adhesion argument for Individual Health Care contracts, provided the agreement meets the requirements of subdivisions (a), (b), and (c). Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(a) prescribes the form and placement of an advisement notice to the patient signing the contract that is exactly as stated in the code; Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(b) provides for a warning notice in "at least 10-point bold red type" that by signing the arbitration agreement, there is a waiver of the right to a jury or court trial; and Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(c) requires a notice that the arbitration agreement can be rescinded within 30 days after signing the agreement [see discussion in § 39.61[1]].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(e), regarding adhesion, specifically states: "Such a contract is not a contract of adhesion, nor unconscionable nor otherwise improper, where it complies with subdivisions (a), (b) and (c) of this section."

§ 39.63 Non Signatories May Be Bound to Arbitrate

Throughout the years, the courts have held that complainant plaintiffs who are non-signatory to the Kaiser arbitration agreement are bound by the agreement. The common thread in holding the non-signatory to the arbitration agreement is a "pre-existing relationship" between the nonsignatory and one of the parties to the arbitration agreement [see County of Contra Costa v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 237, 242-243, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628 (court lists those bound by arbitration contract)].

"Absent a written agreement--or a pre-existing relationship or authority to contract for another that might substitute for an arbitration agreement--courts sitting in equity may not compel third party nonsignatories to arbitrate their disputes" [County of Contra Costa v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 237, 245, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628]. In Contra Costa, cross-complainants for indemnity by a non-signatory were held not bound by the arbitration contract between the injured party and the allegedly malpracticing Kaiser entity.

Those non-signatories who have been held to be bound by an arbitration provision of a contract are:

1. A person asserting a loss of consortium right [Gross v. Recabaren (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 771, 781, 253 Cal. Rptr. 820 ; but see Rhodes v. California Hospital Medical Center (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 606, 143 Cal. Rptr. 59 (husband and son not bound); Pietrelli v. Peacock (1993) 13 Cal.App. 4th 943 947, n.1, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 688 (highly critical of Rhodes)].

2. Adult heirs and personal representatives [Herbert v. Superior Ct. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 718, 215 Cal. Rptr. 477]. All heirs must be in the same wrongful death action, as it is a statutory action [Mayerhoff v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 803, 138 Cal. Rptr. 319].

3. An agent, fiduciary or employer is authorized to enter into an agreement that provides for arbitration of a medical negligence claim by the non-signatory beneficiary of that agreement [Madden v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 699, 709, 131 Cal. Rptr. 882, 552 P.2d 1178 ; see also Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903].

4. Minors [Doyle v. Giuliucci (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 606, 43 Cal. Rptr. 697, 401 P.2d 1 (for minor living at time contract signed); Pietrelli v. Peacock (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 943, 947, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 688 (for contract entered before child is conceived)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(d) precludes disaffirmance if the contract is signed by the minor's parent or legal guardian; Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(c), however, does allow for rescission of the arbitration contract within 30 days of signature.

5. Unborn child [Wilson v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 891, 190 Cal. Rptr. 649].

6. A spouse's claim for personal medical negligence [Hawkins v. Superior Court (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 413, 152 Cal. Rptr. 491 ; but see Baker v. Birnbaum (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 288, 248 Cal. Rptr. 336 , which followed the highly criticized Rhodes case, above.

7. Emotional distress for a contemporaneous observation [Bolanos v. Khalatian, M.D., (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 283 Cal. Rptr. 209].

8. Claim for in utero injuries [Bolanos v. Khalatian, M.D. (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 283 Cal. Rptr. 209].

9. Claim by unmarried father is bound by the contract signed by mother during pregnancy [Michaelis v. Schori (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 133, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 380].

10. A general partner is bound by an arbitration provision in a contract with a third person [Keller Construction Co. v. Kashani (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 222, 269 Cal. Rptr. 259].

11. A doctor employee of a Health Plan being sued by a patient must arbitrate a medical malpractice claim by a patient against the doctor [Harris v. Superior Court (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 475, 233 Cal. Rptr. 186].

In all of these cases there was a common factor of a preexisting relationship between the nonsignatory and one of the contracting parties to the arbitration agreement.

PART VI. MEDICAL CARE PROVIDERS AND THEIR ARBITRATION CLAUSES

4-39 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 39.64

AUTHOR: Los Angeles County Bar Association

§ 39.64 Multiple Defendants

Contractual arbitrations, including medical malpractice agreements, are controlled primarily by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1295. Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c) recognizes that if there are multiple party defendants and one or more, but not all, of the parties are signatories to an arbitration provision, there will be only one forum. The court will not order a division of the defendants that requires some to arbitrate and some to dispute at trial. The court can only order the parties to resolve their dispute through a trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c)].

The court must exclude from a single forum and require a dual forum, when, however, one of the defendants is an Individual Health Care provider and has an enforceable arbitration agreement that complies with Code Civ. Proc. § 1295. Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c) states: "This subdivision shall not be applicable to an agreement to arbitrate disputes as to professional negligence of a health care provider made pursuant to Section 1295."

It should be noted that the mandatory arbitration agreement requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 exclude Health Plans. Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(f) provides:

> (f) Subdivisions (a), (b), and (c) shall not apply to any health care service plan contract offered by an organization registered pursuant to Article 2.5 (commencing with Section 12530) of Division 3 of Title 2 of the Government Code, or licensed pursuant to Chapter 2.2 (commencing with Section 1340) of Division 2 of the Health and Safety Code, which contains an arbitration agreement if the plan complies with paragraph (10) of subdivision (a) of Section 1363 of the Health and Safety Code, or otherwise has a procedure for notifying prospective subscribers of the fact that the plan has an arbitration provision, and the plan contracts conform to subdivision (h) of Section 1373 of the Health and Safety Code. [Emphasis added.]

Health and Safety Code §§ 1363, 1373 are discussed in § 39.61[2].

It can therefore be argued that the Health Plan (unlike the Individual Health Care provider) does not qualify for a separate arbitration forum pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 because Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(f) specially excludes Health Plans from the mandatory requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(a)-(c). Certainly the Legislature specifically chose to exclude Health Plans from Code Civ. Proc. § 1295, as the mandatory provision of that section applies to Individual Health Care providers. Health Plans are controlled under different codes; viz., Health & Safety Code §§ 1363(a)(10), 1363.1.

Health Plans usually rely upon the multiple party case of Madden v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 699, 131 Cal. Rptr. 882, 552 P.2d 1178 , wherein the court stayed the Kaiser action and compelled arbitration as to Kaiser only. The Madden court, however, did not reference the applicability of Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 to a Kaiser agreement, and that issue has not been addressed by any known appellate court. It is this writer's assumption that Madden was briefed and argued before Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 became effective. Otherwise, the court would probably have followed the legislative intent of Code Civ. Proc.§ 1295 and ordered Kaiser to join the trial with the other defendants. Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(f) is quite clear that the mandated provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 do not apply to Health Plans.

The obvious logic is that under the strict requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1295, the arbitration agreement is required to have specific provisions when the signatory gives up his/her constitutional rights to a jury trial. These contractual requirements are:

(a) The parties give up their right to a jury trial;

(b) At least 10-point bold red type before the signature block regarding giving up the constitutional right to a jury or court trial; and

(c) 30 days rescission allowed.

Based upon the above evaluation, it can be argued that Health Plans should not be given the right to an arbitration when there are other defendants who are not signatories to the arbitration provision. To do so creates a burden on the plaintiff of two forums; i.e., an arbitration and a trial.

§ 39.65 Open-Book Accounts

There have been several interpretations of Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(c), which provides that a contract for medical services with an arbitration agreement once signed "governs all subsequent open-book account transactions for medical services for which the contract was signed until or unless rescinded by written notice within 30 days of signature."

This section regarding open-book accounts applies to the Individual Health Care provider contract. It is designed to obviate the ongoing need for the patient to sign an arbitration agreement on each occasion the patient sees the medical provider [Hilleary v. Garvin (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 322, 238 Cal. Rptr. 247].

The court will refuse to enforce the open-book provision where the arbitration agreement fails to properly state the language of Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 in the contract. However, as long as the statutory language is included in the agreement, a court will have to compel arbitration under additional language requiring it even if no open-book account relationship exists between the parties. Nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 prevents the individual health care provider from adding language in addition to that required by the statue so as to expand the scope of matters required to be arbitrated. Thus, an agreement, signed when defendant first treated plaintiff applied to medical malpractice claim arising from treatment for different condition two years later because the agreement stated it was intended to bind the patient and any health care provider who "now or in the future treat[s] the patient" [Reigelsperger v. Siller (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 574, 578-580, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 887] .

Without extra-statutory language, however, the more usual situation would be like that considered in Cochran v. Rubens (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 481, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672 , where the court found that a three year gap in medical services was proof that there was not an open-book account. An open-book account exists, so that a prior arbitration agreement remains effective, only where the medical services are ongoing. The Cochran court stated that whether there is an open or closed-book account is a factual issue.

§ 39.70 Construction Industry and the ADR Process

No one will argue that the construction industry tends to generate more disputes than most any other industry. For some reason, there is an adversarial nature to the construction industry that makes disputes more common than uncommon. Perhaps it is because on almost all construction projects there are both financial and time pressures present.

Largely due to the adversarial nature of the construction industry, our industry for years has been in the forefront of creating new, alternative dispute resolution techniques. Members of the construction industry were arbitrating cases long before arbitration became popular. More recently, members of the construction industry were attempting to resolve their disputes through mediation. Now, we have seen the spread of mediation to other industries as well. Most recently, we have seen partnering come into vogue as the "latest" ADR technique to be applied on construction projects. All of these techniques recognize that there are cost savings and other advantages in utilizing ADR approaches to resolving disputes.

Now having been the leader in utilizing arbitration, mediation, and partnering, it is time for the construction industry to step forward once again with a further improvement in the ADR process. We call this process "Critical Path Dispute Management" (CPDM).

§ 39.71 The Theoretical and Practical Basis for Critical Path Dispute Management

The fundamental building block upon which CPDM is built is that it is almost always better to resolve a dispute when it first arises than it is to wait and try to resolve the dispute at a later time. The tendency, of course, on many construction projects is to take disputes and to just "set them aside" for resolution at the conclusion of the project. This approach often results in unspoken animosities and strained relationships on a project. It also often results in the parties "papering" the project so as to preserve their rights under the technical requirements of the contract. All in all, the combination of the inherent adversarial nature of construction work and the typical delay in dispute resolution results in a large basketful of disputes at the end of the project. Many of these disputes may have festered and grown over a substantial period of time. Some of these disputes even may have created additional disputes that are now in the basket.

Many dispute resolution professionals have noticed that one of the most common barriers to dispute resolution is the dysfunctional nature of the manner in which many people approach their problems. In essence, their approach is often "fight or flight." That is, there can be a fight (e.g. angry words or worse) or there can be a "flight" (e.g. "you are irrational, we will deal with this later"). This dysfunctional approach to the resolution of disputes often results in making the disputes much worse. Problems are almost always easier to resolve when they first arise. Further, problems are almost always easier to resolve with the help of a neutral facilitator. These two facts are the fundamental grounds upon which CPDM is based.

§ 39.72 What Is Critical Path Dispute Management?

[1] Description of Critical Path Dispute Management

CPDM is a coordinated approach to dispute resolution from the beginning of a construction project through its conclusion with the assistance of on-site ADR facilitation. This type of ADR service obviously is best suited for larger projects. Only the larger types of projects can justify having ADR facilitation available on more or less a full-time basis.

CPDM begins with an initial seminar session involving the key players on the project. Unlike the typical partnering session in which parties are engaged in a process which results in their signing of a charter setting forth their agreements for the project, the CPDM seminar is intended to get the parties to get to know each other on a personal basis and to understand how the on-site ADR facilitation process will work.

This seminar is taught by the professional construction mediator and field neutral who will provide the actual ADR services on-site.

Depending on the size and complexity of the project, the construction professional trained in the ADR area is on-site on a regular basis. This ADR neutral will not be an attorney or professional mediator but will be a person with technical construction expertise and specific ADR training and experience. The job of this individual will be to be on-site at the project and to be available to the parties to learn of any problems which involve conflicts between one or more of them.

This on-site person will not be in the role of being the project mediator. This person's role will be to ferret out problems and to then obtain an understanding of the viewpoints of the various parties involved in the dispute. For example, assume that there is a dispute about the preparation of the soil for pouring of a large concrete slab. Further assume that the dispute is between the earthwork subcontractor and the concrete subcontractor. The purpose of the on-site ADR facilitator would be to understand the nature of the problem. Further, this person would meet with the parties and obtain from them as much information as possible on their individual views of the dispute. This person would use his or her

ADR training to reflect back the statements of each side of their respective views of the dispute. The on-site facilitator would then write up a summary of the dispute which would be provided to the professional construction mediator.

The professional construction mediator is on-site on approximately a weekly basis. During this period of time, the professional construction mediator is available to meet with those parties having any dispute on the project. Time is allotted to address those specific disputes which the on-site facilitator has outlined as well as to meet with any parties who want to discuss any problems they perceive on the project. It is critical that the professional mediator be neutral and be viewed as a facilitator of the resolution of problems on the project, not the advocate of any one party.

These mediation sessions typically are held on the day on which there is an all-hands job meeting at the site. The on-site facilitator and project mediator attend that meeting and then are available for as long as needed on that particular day to meet with parties and to work to facilitate resolution of any on-going disputes.

[2] Specific Functions of the Construction Professional or "Field Neutral"

Let us describe in more detail the specific duties of the on-site facilitator or what we call the "field neutral".

In a typical day, the field neutral would be responsible for reviewing project correspondence, telephoning people on the project, meeting with people on the project, attending any job meetings or subcontractor meetings, compiling descriptions and/or summaries of claims for review by the project mediator, walking the jobsite, and generally keeping the professional construction mediator up-to-date on the "dispute status" of the project. The field neutral also would be responsible for discussing, in the field, perceived or claimed problems, setting up specific meetings for the project mediator, participating in the mediation sessions with the mediator, and doing follow-up on specific mediator sessions.

Among the goals of the field neutral are to gain the trust of the people on the project, identify perceived and actual disputes, describe those perceived/actual disputes, and facilitate resolution of perceived disputes when possible.

A sample day for a field neutral is as follows:

6:00 - 7:00 a.m.	Attend job meetings
7:00 - 9:00 a.m.	Review project correspondence
9:00 - 12:00 noon	Visit with people related to issues and disputes. Visit with the construction manager (owner's representative) project manager (prime contractor's representative), and other project people on the site. Walk the job site.
12:00 - 1:00 p.m.	Lunch
1:00 - 3:00 p.m.	Work on writing an "Issue Impact Analysis" on each project dispute for review and use by the professional construction mediator.

[3] Role of the Professional Construction Mediator or "Project Mediator"

The first job of the professional project mediator is to stay informed through the field neutral. Through this method, the professional project construction mediator is able to have a "handle" on how the project is going, understand what the problems are, and begin working on solutions to those problems. By attending at least one of the job meetings every week, the professional construction mediator will take a "hands on," "hard hat" approach to the resolution of problems on the project. In effect, the overall role of the professional construction mediator is to be an ombudsman for dispute resolution on the project.

On the dates on which mediation sessions will occur, a specific schedule is provided in advance through the field neutral to all of the involved parties. The goal of the mediator is to resolve problems as soon as they arise on the project. To the extent that this is not able to be accomplished, the goal of the project mediator is to facilitate an early resolution of any dispute.

By being on-site, the project neutral's the purpose should be more apparent. This person must be someone who is comfortable on a construction site and who is comfortable in working with parties who are under severe time and financial pressures. The project mediator also would be available during off hours and, if necessary, on other days of the week in order to facilitate the resolution of on-going disputes. In short, the job of the project neutral is to take a pro-active approach to early resolution of disputes on the project.

It is critical that both the field neutral and the project mediator be, in fact, neutrals. As such, it is necessary that the cost of their services be paid for by all of the parties participating in the project. For each project there is an agreement in advance of what percentage of the cost of the CPDM service will be paid for by the parties participating in the project. Thus, for example, on a private project the owner might pay 25%, the lender and the insurance carriers 25%, the general contractor 25%, and the subcontractors and suppliers the remaining 25%. On a public project, the public entity might pay 50%, the general contractor 25%, and the subcontractors and suppliers the remaining 25%. Of course, obviously all such costs in the end are borne by the owner. However, there would be a budget for this service provided for in the bid documents and those participating in the project would be expected to include in their prices the funds necessary to cover their respective percentages. In this way, the money is being paid from a variety of sources who are individually invoiced by the CPDM provider.

Again, the CPDM service is not intended for small projects. Because of its cost, generally it is economically viable only on projects valued at in excess of $25,000,000. CPDM service typically would cost approximately $25,000 per month. Thus, a project that would be expected to last for 12 months would incur CPDM charges of approximately $300,000. A project expected to last for two years would incur CPDM charges of approximately $600,000. Included in the CPDM services is the full-time on-site construction person who acts as the field neutral. Also included are the services of a the professional construction mediator who available on-site on a regularly-scheduled basis, most likely one day per week.

§ 39.73 Incentives

Part of the essence of this program is to provide financial incentives to the parties participating in the project to make the on-site ADR effort a success. Thus, a typical CPDM project includes a sum of money set aside by the owner which would be shared among all the participants in the project if certain goals agreed to in the initial seminar are reached. For example, the goal might be that the project be finished within its scheduled completion time, with a maximum of 5% in added change orders, and no unresolved disputes as of 90 days following project completion. If the agreed goals are met, those incentive funds are distributed to the parties participating in the project in the same ratio that they pay for the services of the CPDM team.

§ 39.74 How Does Critical Path Dispute Management Add Value?

The CPDM approach to major projects adds value in several important ways. One way is that by resolving disputes as they arise there generally are fewer disputes as of the end of the project and the project is more smooth running while it is under construction. Further, unresolved disputes are better understood as of the end of the project and therefore are more likely to be resolved quickly, without litigation.

Everyone is familiar with the common statement that a typical project will have at least 10% in cost overruns. If a cost savings can be achieved on just those normal cost overruns, this type of program will more than pay for itself. Of course, some cost overruns have nothing to do with disputes or anything else that could be predicted by the parties. Sometimes additive change orders simply are necessary because of unexpected conditions or occurrences. However, this program will help to lessen the number and size of any disputes generated by such conditions because it helps resolve problems at an earlier stage of the project.

On a project costing $30,000,000 and which lasts for 12 months, the cost of the CPDM services would be only somewhat more than 1% of the project cost. This sum is small indeed compared to the great advantages available through the use of the CPDM system. A savings of about 1% on the overall project cost will pay for the entire CPDM team's services. If another 1% of the project is budgeted as an incentive, the overall cost for the service is only about two percent of the overall project cost. Most owners and developers would gladly pay two percent of the project cost up-front if they could be guaranteed that the project would be finished on time and on budget. While CPDM is not a panacea and obviously 100% guarantees are not possible, there certainly is a much greater likelihood that a project will be finished on time and within budget if CPDM is utilized than if it is not utilized.

Many of the most successful corporations in the world have used a system not unlike CPDM for years. Sometimes these programs are called company ombudsman or some other similar name. The point is that the company has realized that it is worth allocating a portion of its resources to encouraging a greater sense of esprit de corps among its employees and to resolving disputes so that the work force can fulfill its duties in a more complementary and efficient manner. The problem with construction projects is that typically they are a "one-shot" deal. That is, the players may not soon get together again after the completion of the project. Thus, a greater effort must be made to tackle problems head on at the earliest possible stage. This effort must be made in an environment in which the parties are comfortable and feel confident that the neutrals are there for no other purpose than to provide the maximum level of assistance and to try to resolve problems.

§ 39.75 Guiding Principles of CPDM

There are some overall guiding principles to the CPDM program. Among those guiding principles are to always do first things first. That is, dispute prevention is always preferable to dispute resolution. Next, it must be remembered that litigation is anathema. Litigation is something to be avoided unless it is absolutely necessary. Further, the CPDM team must remember the uniquely adversarial nature of the construction industry and, in particular, the "one project at a time" manner in which most construction work is accomplished. Finally, it must be remembered that there is a human side to every dispute. The CPDM team must do whatever is possible to encourage effective means of early dispute resolution.

Further, the team must remember that job site dispute resolution is always preferable to post project or courtroom dispute resolution. The team must do everything possible to establish a cooperative project environment. Participation in the non-binding ADR proceedings with the CPDM team must be a condition precedent to any other legal proceeding.

Overall, the goal of CPDM is to end dispute resolution dysfunction and reduce the "fight or flight" approach to construction dispute resolution. By taking a win-win approach, having an attitude of never, ever giving up on the process, CPDM has the potential for being the next dramatic leap forward in the construction industry's long history of innovation in the ADR area.

§ 40.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter provides an overview of civil appeals in California state courts and introduces the steps in the civil appeal process that are covered in greater detail in the remaining chapters of this volume. The chapter discusses the following:

- State appellate jurisdiction generally [see § 40.11].

- The nature and scope of a civil appeal and alternative methods of reviewing matters outside the scope of a civil appeal [see § 40.12].

- Various provisions relating to parties, nonparties, and counsel in a civil appeal, including discussion of who may take an appeal, the substitution of a party, the substitution or withdrawal of counsel, the appearance of a party in forma pauperis, the appearance of out-of-state counsel pro hac vice, and application of the vexatious litigant law to appellants [see §§ 40.13, 40.14]. Related forms include:

  - A request for substitution of parties on appeal [see § 40.70].

  - A stipulation and motion for substitution of appellate counsel [see § 40.71].

- Considerations in determining whether to take a civil appeal [see § 40.15].

- A summary of the overall process of a civil appeal [see § 40.16], as well as a procedural checklist for use in tracking the significant procedural deadlines when pursuing a civil appeal, with cross references to more detailed checklists set out elsewhere in this volume [see Part IV,§ 40.60 et seq.].

NOTE:

See Cross References Below Regarding Review in Special Proceedings. The appellate courts conduct review of special proceedings, many of which are beyond the scope of this chapter and the related chapters in this volume; for example, final review by the Supreme Court of disciplinary proceedings of the State Bar, review of agency decisions, such as decisions of the Public Utilities Commission, on petition for writ of review, interlocutory review of other rulings by writ petitions, and appellate procedures that apply in special proceedings such as review of juvenile court rulings. See § 40.02[2] for references to further discussion and forms relating to review of particular proceedings not covered in this volume.

§ 40.10 Governing Law

California appellate courts and civil appeals are governed generally by the following constitutional provisions, statutes, and rules:

- Cal. Const., art. VI, §§ 1-5, 10-14.
- Code of Civ. Proc. §§ 41-45, 901-936.1.
- Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.1-8.1125.

In addition, the Supreme Court and the six districts of the court of appeal have each adopted internal operating procedures and local rules.

PRACTICE TIP:

Access Governing Law on the Internet. The California Rules of Court, many local appellate rules, applicable constitutional and statutory provisions, and even applicable decisional law may be obtained from state government web sites. The rules of court, some local appellate rules, and recently filed slip opinions, for example, may all be obtained through the site maintained by the state's judicial branch [see http://www.courtinfo.ca.gov]. This site also provides access to court minutes and calendars, internal operating procedures, details regarding each of the courts, forms and other information promulgated by the Judicial Council, as well as many links to web sites maintained by local appellate and trial courts, state government organizations, federal courts and federal organizations, and other sources of legal information. Constitutional and statutory provisions may be obtained through the site maintained by the state's legislative branch [see http://www.leginfo.ca.gov].

Appellate provisions in the California constitution, statutes, and rules are, in turn, supplemented by decisional case law, for example, providing the various standards of review for determining whether reversible error exists in a given case [ see discussion of standards of review in Ch. 41, Appeal: Review Standards and Appellate Rules of Law, § 41.10 et seq.].

§ 40.11 Appellate Jurisdiction in Civil Cases

[1] Appellate Jurisdiction Defined

The term "appellate jurisdiction" means the power of a reviewing court to correct error in a trial court proceeding [Leone v. Medical Bd. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 660, 666, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 61, 995 P.2d 191 ; Powers v. City of Richmond (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 85, 93, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839, 893 P.2d 1160] . The source of this power is the grant of judicial power by the state constitution and the distribution of that power by the Legislature [Powers v. City of Richmond (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 85, 110, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839, 893 P.2d 1160 ; Modern Barber Col. v. Cal. Emp. Stab. Com. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 720, 728, 192 P.2d 916 ; see Cal. Const., art VI, §§ 11, 12].

Appellate jurisdiction may be exercised by a reviewing court in the procedural context of a direct appeal or a writ petition. The Legislature may properly specify which of these procedures is to be utilized to invoke appellate jurisdiction in a particular cause, so long as it does not substantially impair the constitutional power of the courts or practically defeat the exercise of those powers [Leone v. Medical Bd. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 660, 666, 668, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 61, 995 P.2d 191 (affirming constitutionality of statute that specified writ petition, rather than direct appeal, as sole method for reviewing lower court decision in proceeding involving physician licensing); Hollywood Park Land Co., LLC v. Golden State Transportation Financing Corp. (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 924, 938-948, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 752 (casino compact unconstitutional because it bypassed court of appeal and mandates direct review by California Supreme Court)].

Appellate jurisdiction may not be exercised unless it is properly invoked [see Leone v. Medical Bd. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 660, 669, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 61, 995 P.2d 191 (holding that reviewing court must excercise appellate jurisdiction once it has been properly invoked)]. For example, a reviewing court may exercise its appellate jurisdiction by direct appeal only when an appeal is taken from an appealable judgment or order and is timely noticed [see, e.g., Draus v. Alfred M. Lewis, Inc. (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 485, 489, 68 Cal. Rptr. 154 (appealable ruling requirement); Hollister Convalescent Hosp., Inc. v. Rico (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 660, 669-670, 125 Cal. Rptr. 757, 542 P.2d 1349 (timely notice requirement)]. Thus, the procedural requirements for a notice of appeal are "jurisdictional" in the sense that they must be satisfied before appellate jurisdiction may be assumed by the court that has the constitutional power to assume that jurisdiction [see In re Estate of Crabtree (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1119, 1123, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 224 , citing Hollister Convalescent Hosp., Inc. v. Rico (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 660, 669-670, 125 Cal. Rptr. 757, 542 P.2d 1349] . Any doubt concerning the appellate court's jurisdiction must be raised and resolved by the court on its own initiative [In re Perris City News (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1194, 1197, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 38 (holding court of appeal had appellate jurisdiction over judgment resolving petition to be declared a newspaper of general circulation)].

[2] Supreme Court

[a] Appellate Jurisdiction of the Supreme Court

The Supreme Court does not have appellate jurisdiction in civil causes. Thus, a civil appeal may not be taken directly to the Supreme Court [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 11(a) (limiting Supreme Court appellate jurisdiction to criminal causes in which "the judgment of death has been pronounced"); Hollywood Park Land Co., LLC v. Golden State Transportation Financing Corp. (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 924, 938-948, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 752 (casino compact unconstitutional because it bypassed court of appeal and mandates direct review by California Supreme Court); see also [1], above, for definition of appellate jurisdiction].

While the Supreme Court does not have civil appellate jurisdiction, it does have "review jurisdiction," that is, it has discretionary power to review a decision of the court of appeal rendered in a civil appeal [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 12(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.500 et seq. (procedures and grounds for Supreme Court review); see also [3], below, regarding jurisdiction of court of appeal].

When the Supreme Court has exercised its discretion to grant review of a court of appeal decision, its power of review extends to any or all issues in the case [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.516(b)(1)]. As a matter of policy, the Court ordinarily exercises this power only with respect to issues raised in the court of appeal. The Court may, however, decide any other issue in the case, even though not raised in the court of appeal, if it deems it appropriate to do so [see Cedars-Sinai v. Superior Court (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 1, 5-7, 7-8 n.2, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 248, 954 P.2d 511 (Court may review issue not raised in the court of appeal when it was squarely raised in the petition for review, was fully briefed and argued on review, does not turn on the facts of the case, and involves a significant issue of widespread importance)]. Conversely, the Court may limit the issues it will consider on a grant of review [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.516(a)].

The Supreme Court also has power to transfer causes. It may in its discretion, transfer to itself a cause pending in the court of appeal before a decision has been reached in that cause, and after transfer has jurisdiction to review the cause [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 12(a); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.552 (transfer by and to Supreme Court from court of appeal)]. The Supreme Court rarely determines a civil appeal by this method, however, and will transfer a cause from the court of appeal to itself only on a showing that the appeal involves "issues of imperative public importance that the Supreme Court must promptly resolve" [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.552(c)].

Additionally, the Supreme Court may, and more frequently does, transfer a cause pending in the Supreme Court to a division of the court of appeal. This type of transfer often occurs immediately after the Court has decided a controlling case [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 12(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 10.1000(a) (also providing for a transfer by the Supreme Court, from one district or division of the court of appeal to another)].

For further discussion and forms relating to Supreme Court proceedings to review a decision of the Court in Appeal, or to transfer an appeal before decision, see Ch. 54, Appeal: California Supreme Court Review .

In addition to its review and transfer powers, the Supreme Court also has original jurisdiction in civil writ proceedings, a jurisdiction that the Court shares with the courts of appeal and the superior courts [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; for discussion of these proceedings, see respectively Ch. 292, Habeas Corpus , Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition , and Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of].

The Court's review power and its original jurisdiction in writ proceedings are both essentially methods of judicial review, but different rules apply to writ proceedings. Relief by extraordinary writ is generally not available when the Court's review power provides an adequate opportunity for review [see Powers v. City of Richmond (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 85, 110, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839, 893 P.2d 1160] .

[b] Structure and Sessions of Supreme Court

The Supreme Court consists of the Chief Justice and six associate justices. The concurrence of four justices present at argument is necessary for a judgment by the Supreme Court [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 2].

The court holds regular sessions in San Francisco, Sacramento, and Los Angeles, at times specified by the court, and may hold special sessions elsewhere [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.256].

[3] Court of Appeal

[a] Appellate Jurisdiction of the Court of Appeal

Formerly, the courts of appeal had civil appellate jurisdiction over causes within the superior court's original jurisdiction, and the appellate department (now the appellate division) of the superior court had appellate jurisdiction over civil causes within the original jurisdiction of the municipal court. The original jurisdiction of the two trial courts over a given cause, and consequently the appellate jurisdiction over that cause, was determined generally by the amount in controversy involved.

This allocation of civil appellate jurisdiction remains fundamentally the same, but its expression has been conceptually altered by constitutional and statutory changes adopted in 1998 to implement the unificiation of trial courts.

A cause formerly within the original jurisdiction of the municipal court, generally one that involves an amount in controversy of $25,000 or less, is classified as a "limited civil case" [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86, 86.1]. A limited civil case brought in a county that has unified its trial courts (since February 2001, every county in California), which therefore has no municipal court, is within the original jurisdiction of the superior court of that county [Cal. Const., art VI, sec. 10].

Nevertheless, a limited civil case, whether subject to the jurisdiction of the municipal court or the superior court, remains subject to procedures that formerly applied to actions exclusively within the jurisdiction of the municipal court [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 91(a)]. Thus, a limited civil case, whether brought in municipal or superior court, must be appealed to the appellate division of the superior court, rather than to the court of appeal [see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.2 and further discussion in [4], below].

The superior court retains original jurisdiction of all causes that are not limited civil cases [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10 ("[s]uperior courts have original jurisdiction of all ... causes except those given by statute to other trial courts")]. Cases brought in superior court and not classified as limited civil cases are by statute termed as "unlimited civil cases" [Code Civ. Proc. § 88]. Essentially it is these unlimited civil cases that are subject to the civil appellate jurisdiction of the courts of appeal [see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a); see also [1], above, for discussion of appellate jurisdiction]. In constitutional terminology, the courts of appeal have appellate jurisdiction over causes that are both within the original jurisdiction of the superior court and also would have been subject to appellate jurisdiction of the courts of appeal as of June 30, 1995 [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 11(a) (also providing that the court of appeal has appellate jurisdiction over "other causes prescribed by statute")].

A court of appeal has discretionary power to transfer to itself any appeal that is pending in the appellate division of the superior court [see discussion in [4], below]. This transfer for hearing and decision in the court of appeal is permitted when the superior court certifies, or the court of appeal determines, that a transfer is necessary to secure uniformity of decision or to settle an important question of law [Code Civ. Proc. § 911]. For more detailed discussion and a form relating to transfer under Code Civ. Proc. § 911, see Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases, §§ 345A.71, 345A.125.

While Code Civ. Proc. § 396 gives a court authority to transfer a case over which it lacks subject matter jurisdiction to a court having subject matter jurisdiction, there is a split in authority concerning whether a superior court may transfer a case over which it lacks subject matter jurisdiction to a court of appeal or the Supreme Court. The Fifth Appellate District has concluded the authority for a superior court to transfer a case to a court of appeal is included in Code Civ. Proc. § 396 [Padilla v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1151, 1154-1157, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 133] . Division Five of the Second Appellate District, however, has disagreed and held that Code Civ. Proc. § 396 may not be used to transfer a case from a superior court to a court of appeal or the Supreme Court [Trafficschoolonline, Inc. v. Superior Court (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 222, 234, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 412] .

See also discussion in [2][a], above, concerning a court of appeal's original jurisdiction in writ proceedings. Original jurisdiction is in addition to, and is to be distinguished from, the appellate jurisdiction of the courts of appeal.

[b] Structure and Sessions of Court of Appeal

Under the state constitution, the Legislature is empowered to divide California into districts, "each containing a court of appeal with one or more divisions" [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 3]. The state currently has six district courts of appeal, with each district comprised of specified counties [Gov. Code § 69100 et seq.].

The six appellate districts, their geographical areas, and general composition are as follows [Gov. Code § 69100]:

- The First Appellate District consists of the City and County of San Francisco and the counties of Marin, Sonoma, Napa, Solano, Lake, Mendocino, Humboldt, Del Norte, Contra Costa, Alameda, and San Mateo. It has five divisions, one with three justices and the rest with four justices; all divisions hold their regular sessions in San Francisco [Gov. Code §§ 69100(a), 69101].

- The Second Appellate District consists of the counties of San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, Ventura, and Los Angeles. It has seven divisions of four justices each; Division Six holds its regular sessions in Ventura, Ventura County, but has discretion to hold regular sessions in Santa Barbara or San Luis Obispo Counties as well, and the other divisions hold their regular sessions in Los Angeles, Los Angeles County [Gov. Code §§ 69100(b), 69102].

- The Third Appellate District consists of the counties of Siskiyou, Modoc, Trinity, Shasta, Lassen, Tehama, Plumas, Colusa, Glenn, Butte, Sierra, Sutter, Yuba, Nevada, Yolo, Placer, Sacramento, El Dorado, San Joaquin, Amador, Calaveras, Alpine and Mono. It is a single division with ten justices and holds its regular sessions in Sacramento, Sacramento County [Gov. Code §§ 69100(c), 69103].

- The Fourth Appellate District consists of the counties of Inyo, San Bernardino, Riverside, Orange, San Diego, and Imperial. It has three divisions: Division One has nine justices and holds its regular sessions in San Diego, San Diego County; Division Two has six justices and holds its regular sessions in San Bernardino, San Bernardino County; and Division Three has six justices and holds its regular sessions in Santa Ana, Orange County [Gov. Code §§ 69100(d), 69104].

- The Fifth Appellate District consists of the counties of Stanislaus, Tuolumne, Merced, Mariposa, Madera, Fresno, Kings, Tulare, and Kern. It is a single division with nine justices and holds its regular sessions in Fresno, Fresno County [Gov. Code §§ 69100(e), 69105].

- The Sixth Appellate District consists of the counties of Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, Monterey and San Benito. It is a single division with six justices and holds its regular sessions in San Jose, Santa Clara County [Gov. Code §§ 69100(f), 69106].

A civil appeal from a given superior court is properly taken to the appellate district within whose geographical boundaries that superior court is located [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(a)(2) (appeal deemed taken to the court of appeal district for the superior court)]. However, an appeal taken to the wrong district court of appeal will not be dismissed, but will instead be transferred to the proper district court of appeal [Gov. Code § 68915].

Appeals are decided by a panel of three justices. That is, in each appeal, three justices within a division act as the court of appeal [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 3]. The concurrence of two of the three justices present at argument is necessary for a judgment [Cal. Const. art. VI, § 3].

Each division of the district courts of appeal holds regular sessions at least once each quarter at times specified by the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.256(a)(1)]. Each district court of appeal is also required to adopt a policy for holding "circuit-riding" sessions, at places within the district other than the court's permanent location or locations. Sessions may be held at any time or place when it appears that suitable facilities are available and a sufficient number of cases may be set for at least one day of hearings [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.256(a)(2); see, e.g., Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 3d App. Dist., Rule 31; Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 6th App. Dist., Rule 1].

For further discussion of the structure of the court of appeal, and the manner in which appeals are assigned to particular divisions or panels within each appellate district, see Ch. 51, Appeal: Hearing and Decision, § 51.11.

[4] Appellate Jurisdiction of the Superior Court

In each superior court there is an appellate division [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 11(b)]. The appellate division of the superior court has appellate jurisdiction in causes prescribed by statute [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 11(b)]. By statute, the appellate division of the superior court has appellate jurisdiction over causes that are limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.2].

A limited civil case is classified as such when it involves, generally speaking, an amount in controversy of $25,000 or less [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86, 86.1; for detailed discussion of what constitutes a limited civil case, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances , Pt. I]. The specified amount in controversy of a limited civil case is jurisdictional. In the event that legislation increases or otherwise changes this amount, that change automatically alters the respective appellate jurisdictions of the court of appeal and the appellate division of the superior court, such that a limited civil case within the newly specified limit will remain subject to the appellate jurisdiction of the superior court's appellate division [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 11(a) ("[w]hen appellate jurisdiction in civil causes is determined by the amount in controversy, the Legislature may change the appellate jurisdiction of the courts of appeal by changing the jurisdictional amount in controversy")].

As discussed in [3][a], above, a limited civil case is one that, before 1998, would have been exclusively within the original jurisdiction of the municipal court. Following unification of all trial courts in California, a limited civil case is now within the original jurisdiction of the superior court, since all California counties now have unified their trial courts and no longer have municipal courts [see Cal. Const., art. VI, sec. 10].

If an action is commenced in superior court as an unlimited civil case, but is later reclassified a limited civil case (or is later transferred to the municipal court, where there is one, as the court having proper subject matter jurisdiction), that action is treated as a limited civil case subject to the appellate jurisdiction of the superior court appellate division, as distinguished from the appellate jurisdiction of the court of appeal [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 396, 403.070 (case transferred to municipal court for jurisdictional purposes, or reclassified as a limited civil case, is treated as if it were commenced as such)]. This includes appellate jurisdiction to review orders made by the superior court before reclassification or transfer, at least with respect to orders not separately appealable from the final judgment [see Estrada v. Ramirez (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 618, 621-622, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73 (appeal to district court of appeal dismissed when it sought review of orders that were made by superior court before case was transferred to municipal court; the orders sought to be reviewed were not separately appealable and the appeal was proper to the appellate division of the superior court)].

For detailed discussion and forms relating to appeals from a limited civil case to the appellate division of a superior court, see Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases .

An appeal from a judgment rendered in the small claims division of a superior court is also taken to the superior court. This type of appeal is not, however, a review conducted by the appellate division of the superior court, exercising its constitutional appellate jurisdiction. It consists, rather, of a new hearing before a judicial officer of the superior court other than the one who heard the claim in the small claims division [see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.5]. For discussion and forms relating to these appeals, see Ch. 526, Small Claims .

See also [2][a], above, concerning the superior court's original jurisdiction to entertain extraordinary writs, a method of review distinguished from its appellate jurisdiction.

[5] Court's Subject Matter Jurisdiction May Be Challenged at Any Time

Since the appellate court may not proceed on the merits of a controversy without subject matter jurisdiction, it must determine whether it has jurisdiction any time the issue is raised [Keiffer v. Bechtel Corp. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 893, 896, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 827] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 40.12 Nature and Scope of Appeal

[1] Nature of Appeal

An appeal is a process by which a higher court reviews the final judgment or appealable order of a lower court, tribunal, or adjudicatory body. In California, the procedure for a direct appeal includes the filing of written briefs, oral argument, and a written opinion in which the matter is decided on its merits [Powers v. City of Richmond (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 85, 91 n.1, 97, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839, 893 P.2d 1160] .

An appeal is not a new trial, but a review, within established limits, of the action taken by the trial court [see discussion in [2], below]. After the appellate court has reviewed the written briefs and the appellate record and heard oral argument, it files a written decision in which it determines whether there was error in the lower court and if so, whether the error constitutes a miscarriage of justice justifying reversal [Cal. Const., art. VI, §§ 13, 14; Moles v. Regents of University of California (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 867, 871, 187 Cal. Rptr. 557, 654 P.2d 740 ; see also [2][b], below].

[2] Limits on the Scope of Appeal

[a] Review Limited to Appealable Judgment or Order

The right to civil appeal is statutory [Powers v. City of Richmond (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 85, 109, 40 Cal. Rptr 2d 839, 893 P.2d 1160 ; Vivid Video, Inc. v. Playboy Entertainment Group, Inc. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 434, 440-443, 2007 Cal. App. LEXIS 132 (ruling as to who decides arbitrability is not appealable final order); Garau v. Torrance Unified School District (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 192, 199-200, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 108] . Civil appeals are accordingly limited to the review of those judgments or orders that are appealable by express statutory provision [Doe v. Luster (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 139, 147-148, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 403 (no statutory authorization of immediate appeal from award or denial of attorney's fees to prevailing party or from denial of attorney's fees to prevailing party opposing special motion to strike)]. For further discussion of this limitation and its effect, and of the statutory provisions that describe those judgments and orders that are appealable, see Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal, § 42.12 [see also [3], below, (alternative methods of reviewing nonappealable judgments or orders)].

[b] Review Limited to Determination of Prejudicial Error Under Established Standards of Review

Orders and judgments of the trial are presumed to be correct. An appellant therefore has the burden affirmatively to demonstrate error [Interinsurance Exchange of Auto. Club of Southern California v. Collins (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1445, 1448, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126] . Moreover, any error raised on appeal must appear in the record presented for review [see Brosterhous v. State Bar of California (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 315, 325, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 87, 906 P.2d 1242] .

An appellant must also have preserved an error raised on appeal, by neither inviting nor waiving the error in the trial court proceeding [In re Marriage of Benjamin S. (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 738, 745, 217 Cal. Rptr. 561 ; Stevens v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1645, 1655, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 525] . Finally, the error must be demonstrably prejudicial, resulting in a miscarriage of justice that requires a reversal or other modification of the lower court's judgment or order by the appellate court [Cal. Const., art. VI § 13; Moles v. Regents of University of California (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 867, 871, 187 Cal. Rptr. 557, 654 P.2d 740] . For further discussion of these principles, see Ch. 41, Appeal: Review Standards and Appellate Rules of Law, § 41.10.

Review is further prescribed by the application of review standards. There are essentially three standards of review:

- An independent or "de novo" review of questions of law, e.g., the proper interpretation of a statute [see, e.g., Professional Engineers in California Government v. Kempton (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 1016, 1032, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 814, 155 P.3d 226 ; 20th Century Inc. Co. v. Garamendi (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 216, 271, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 807, 878 P.2d 566 ; Pensinger v. Bowsmith Inc. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 709, 714-717, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 531] .

- A review of factual determinations under the "substantial evidence" standard [see, e.g., 20th Century Ins. Co. v. Garamendi (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 216, 271, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 807, 878 P.2d 566 ; Barnum-Smith v. Joseph (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 203, 228, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 619, 949 P.2d 472] .

- A review to determine whether the trial court's action was an "abuse of discretion" (e.g., evidentiary rulings, grant or denial of continuance, allowing leave to amend a pleading, etc.) [see, e.g., Pate v. Channel Lumber (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1447, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 919 (review of discovery order imposing sanction)].

For detailed discussion of appellate standards of review, as well as coverage of other appellate rules used to determine the substantive law applicable in a given case, see Ch. 41, Appeal: Review Standards and Appellate Rules of Law .

[3] Other Methods of Review When Appeal Is Not Available

As discussed in [2][a], above, an appeal may only be taken from an appealable order or judgment.

If an order is not appealable, it may usually be reviewed in an appeal taken from the final judgment in the action [see, e.g., Stone v. City of Los Angeles (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 987, 990 n.1, 124 Cal. Rptr. 822] .

Similarly, a party aggrieved by an unappealable order may seek review of that order by a petition for extraordinary relief, usually a petition for writ of mandate or prohibition [see, e.g., Garau v. Torrance Unified School District (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 192, 198, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 108 ; Rail-Transport Employees Ass'n v. Union Pacific Motor Freight (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 469, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713 ; Wheeler v. St. Joseph Hospital (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 345, 353, 133 Cal. Rptr. 775] . If the circumstances are such that extraordinary relief is proper, appellate courts may even exercise their power to deem a purported appeal to be a petition for a writ. The courts do this only in unusual circumstances, however, such as when the issue raised is one of public importance [see Olson v. Cory (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 390, 401 ; San Joaquin County Department of Child Support Services v. Winn (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 296, 300-301, 77 Cal.

Rptr. 3d 470 (refusing to do so); Black Diamond Asphalt, Inc. v. Superior Court (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 109, 114-115, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 466 (court treated appeal as petition for writ of mandate because pure question of law at issue, which trial court decided incorrectly and which greatly prejudiced appellant's rights)].

For discussion and forms relating to proceedings for a writ of mandate or prohibition, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

[4] Waiver of Right to Appeal

[a] Waiver by Agreement Generally Must Be Express

A party may waive the right to appeal by agreement, but the waiver generally must be express, not implied [Lovett v. Carrasco (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 48, 53, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 496] . For example, an agreement that the parties will be bound by the trial court's decision "without the need for further litigation" is ambiguous concerning whether the right to appeal is waived. Therefore, it does not constitute an express waiver of the right to appeal [Lovett v. Carrasco (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 48, 53, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 496] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Evidence of Express Agreement Waiving Right to Appeal. A respondent may move to dismiss an appeal if the appellant has expressly agreed to waive the right to appeal. If, however, the agreement is outside the record on appeal, the respondent must move to have the reviewing court take additional evidence of the agreement [see, e.g., Stone v. Regents of University of California (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 736, 744, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 94 (stating court would not resolve conflicts in evidence concerning waiver because respondent had never requested that it take additional evidence); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.252 (procedure for requesting taking of additional evidence in reviewing court)].

For discussion and forms relating to motions to dismiss, see Ch. 48, Appeal: Abandonment, Dismissal, and Stipulated Reversal . For discussion relating to a request to take additional evidence in the appellate court, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, §§ 50.21, 50.81.

[b] Waiver by Acceptance of Benefits or Voluntary Satisfaction of Judgment

[i] Judgment Creditor

Generally, voluntary acceptance by a judgment creditor of the benefits of a judgment or order is a waiver of the right to appeal. An exception exists when the judgment creditor is concededly entitled to the benefits which are accepted and the entitlement will not be affected by a reversal on appeal. In such a case, acceptance of the benefits does not constitute waiver of the right to appeal [see Mathys v. Turner (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 364, 365 ; Shopoff & Cavallo LLP v. Hyon (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1489, 1505-1506, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 268 (no waiver when appellant consistently argued on appeal that court should reduce respondent's share and increase judgment awarded to him); Kacha v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 1023, 1037]. Furthermore, involuntary acceptance of the benefits of a judgment does not constitute waiver of the right to appeal [Norco Delivery Service, Inc. v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 955, 962, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 456 (no waiver when party accepted benefits of judgment with "a gun at its head")].

[ii] Judgment Debtor

Payment of a judgment does not waive the right to appeal. Payment is regarded as compulsory, and therefore does not release errors, unless it is by way of compromise and settlement, or pursuant to an agreement not to appeal, or under circumstances rendering moot any questions for determination by a reviewing court [Stone v. Regents of University of California (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 736, 745, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 94] .

Although a judgment debtor's voluntary compliance with the judgment by way of compromise may constitute a waiver of the right to appeal, a waiver is not implied when the satisfaction arises under compulsion of risk of forfeiture [Lee v. Brown (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 110, 115-116, 132 Cal. Rptr. 649, 553 P.2d 1121 ; see Satchmed Plaza Owners Association v. UWMC Hospital Corporation (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1034, 1042-1043, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 585 (having to choose whether to file appeal to pursue greater award than judgment provided does not make choice involuntary)]. For discussion concerning satisfaction of judgments, see generally Ch. 318, Judgments, § 318.120 et seq.

§ 40.13 Parties and Nonparties Involved With Appeal

[1] Appellants

[a] Appellant Must Be Aggrieved Party

[i] General Rule

The appellant is a person or entity aggrieved by the judgment or order from which the appeal is taken [Code Civ. Proc. § 902; see, e.g., Ricketts v. McCormack (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1324, 1335 n.12, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 817 ; Consumer Advocacy Group, Inc. v. Kintetsu Enterprises of America (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 46, 58, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 647] . "Aggrieved" means having an interest in the subject matter of the judgment that has been injuriously affected by that judgment [Serrano v. Stefan Merli Plastering Company, Inc. (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1014, 1026-1027, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 559 ; In re Marriage of Falcone v. Fyke (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 814, 827, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 588 (party not aggrieved when issue would not affect appellant); In re Alex U. (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 259, 266, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 695 ; Winter v. Gnaizda (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 750, 754, 152 Cal. Rptr. 700] . The appellant's affected interest must be immediate, pecuniary, and substantial, not nominal or a remote consequence of the judgment [In re FairWageLaw (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 279, 285, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 652 (dissenting shareholder in dissolution proceeding had standing to appeal imposition of litigation expenses against him); Crook v. Contreras (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1194, 1201, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 319 (decedent's former caretaker lacked standing to appeal lower court finding because it would not produce pecuniary benefit)]. Appellate standing is liberally construed, with any doubts resolved in favor of the right to appeal [Van't Rood v. County of Santa Clara (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 549, 560, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 746 (although statute barred owner of less than two-thirds of affected property from initiating proceeding to exclude property from parcel map, owner could appeal unfavorable result)]. If there are several named plaintiffs or defendants, one or more of them may appeal whichever portion of the judgment that is adverse to their interests, unless the judgment is nonseverable [Caruso v. Snap-Tite, Inc. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 211, 214, 79 Cal. Rptr. 642] .

Because appeals are limited to aggrieved parties, a party cannot appeal a favorable ruling [State Water Resources Control Bd. Cases (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 674, 792-793, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 189 (because trial court's decision to reject exhaustion arguments was in Board's favor, Board was not aggrieved and could not have waived right to appeal); Gober v. Ralphs Grocery Co. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 204, 211, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 92 (party not aggrieved when it requested trial court to remit punitive damages award or grant new trial, and trial court granted new trial)]. When a ruling is partially, but not completely, favorable, the party may appeal only the unfavorable part of the judgment [Sampson v. Parking Service 2000 Com., Inc. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 212, 217 n.4, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 595 (party awarded significantly less than requested was aggrieved party for purposes of appeal); Barham v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 744, 751, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 424 (party that prevails generally may appeal from unfavorable part of judgment when awarded less than was demanded); Soldate v. Fidelity National Financial, Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1069, 1073, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 404 (judgment awarding attorney's fees to appellant, in amount to be fixed later, was a favorable ruling, and notice of appeal from this judgment did not embrace subsequent order fixing the amount, because it did not put opposing party on notice that appellant was seeking to challenge the subsequent and separately appealable order)].

[ii] An Aggrieved Nonparty May Appeal in Some Circumstances

An appellant may be an aggrieved nonparty [see In re FairWageLaw (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 279, 285, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 652 (dissenting shareholder in dissolution proceeding had standing to appeal imposition of litigation expenses against him)]. For example, an expert witness who is subject to a fee setting order may be aggrieved and may appeal even though he or she is not a party [Marsh v. Mountain Zephyr, Inc. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 289, 295, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 493] .

[iii] Appellant May Act in Representative Capacity for Aggrieved Party

An appellant may be a person acting in a representative capacity, such as an administrator, executor, guardian, or trustee, who has a duty to protect the interests of an estate aggrieved by the judgment or order [Graham v. Lenzi (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 248, 254, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407] .

However, in a class action, the named plaintiff may not appeal on behalf of nonappealing members of the class if the named plaintiff was not personally aggrieved [Estrada v. RPS, Inc. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 976, 985 (named plaintiff not considered "guardian" of class members)]. Class members who are themselves aggrieved by trial court errors may, on appeal, assert those errors on behalf of the entire class, but the appellants must show they were, in fact, harmed by the asserted errors [Estrada v. RPS, Inc. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 976, 985 (named plaintiff who could not show he was aggrieved by dismissal of nonresponding class members had no standing to appeal)].

If an aggrieved party dies before the notice of appeal is filed, the decedent's attorney of record or the executor or administrator of the decedent's estate may file a notice of appeal within the time the decedent could have filed the notice if he or she had survived [Code Civ. Proc. § 903].

For discussion of proceedings to substitute parties in an appeal, including the substitution of a personal representative for a deceased appellant, see [4], below.

[b] Appellant May Be Subject to Vexatious Litigant Statutes

The Vexatious Litigant provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 391 et seq. have been held to apply to an appellant, if that appellant falls within the statutory definition of a "plaintiff," who "commences, institutes, or attempts to maintain" a "litigation," which includes a civil appeal [In re R.H. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 678, 691, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 650 ; McColm v. Westwood Park Association (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1211, 1216-1219, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 288 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 391(b)(1)]. However, a court may not require a person who has been determined to be a vexatious litigant in prior litigation to seek leave of the court before he or she may file an appeal in a case in which he or she is the defendant [Mahdavi v. Superior Court (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 32, 36, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 121].

Thus, an appellant who falls within the definition of a vexatious litigant under Code Civ. Proc. § 391(b) (essentially, a litigant who undertakes unsuccessful actions or proceedings repeatedly while acting without the advice of counsel, in propria persona), may be determined to be vexatious by the trial or appellate court under Code Civ. Proc. § 391 et seq. Thereafter, such an appellant may be required to post security before proceeding with an appeal, as provided under Code Civ. Proc. § 391.3, or may be required to obtain permission from the presiding justice before proceeding with an appeal as provided under Code Civ. Proc. § 391.7 (concerning a previously determined "vexatious litigant" who is subject to a prefiling order requiring permission to proceed) [see Kobayashi v. Superior Court (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 536, 541, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 99 (vexatious litigant who in application falsely claims not to be vexatious litigant has manifestly failed to show arguable issue on appeal)]. Permission to proceed under Code Civ. Proc. § 391.7 may itself include a condition that an appellant post an undertaking, and the appeal may be dismissed for failure to pay such an undertaking when required [McColm v. Westwood Park Association (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1211, 1213, 1217-1218, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 288 ; but see Mahdavi v. Superior Court (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 32, 36, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 121 (court may not require vexatious litigant in prior litigation to seek leave of court before filing appeal in case in which he or she is defendant)].

A vexatious appellant may be required to post security or undertaking despite the fact that he or she has been granted permission to waive court fees under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.50 et seq. (discussed in [3], below), that is, to proceed without paying certain regular fees and costs [McColm v. Westwood Park Association (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1211, 1218-1219, 1221-1222, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 288] .

For detailed discussion and forms relating to vexatious litigants under Code Civ. Proc. § 391 et seq., see Ch. 573, Vexatious Litigants .

[2] Respondents

The respondent to an appeal is the adverse party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.10(2)], that is, the party who prevailed in the trial court with respect to the issue raised on appeal.

A respondent may be entitled to file a cross appeal and therefore act as cross-appellant as well as respondent. For further discussion regarding the filing of a cross-appeal, see Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal .

[3] Indigent Party to Appeal May Seek Fee Waiver

Fees are generally required to be paid at several stages of the appeal process, including the fee for filing a notice of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(b)(1)], fees for the preparation, certification, and transmittal of the clerk's transcript [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(c)], and charges for the preparation, by the trial court reporter, of the reporter's transcript [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(b)].

An appellant or respondent may, however, obtain relief from many such fees and costs by making an application for a fee waiver [see, e.g., Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.26(e)]. Such application is made in the appellate court pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.26 [Gov. Code § 68634.5].

Waiver of fees and costs under Gov. Code § 68634.5 does not include relief from the charges due to the trial court reporter for preparing a reporter's transcript [see Mehdi v. Superior Court (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 1198, 1202-1203, 261 Cal. Rptr. 919 (noting that, while reporter's transcript costs are not expressly provided for under former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.50-3.63 (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.26(e)), that rule does provide expressly for waiver of clerk's transcript fees)].

The appellant (or respondent seeking additions to the reporter's transcript) may sometimes obtain a waiver allowing the filing of a notice to prepare a reporter's transcript without an accompanying deposit of any part of the reporter's fee, if the appellant (or respondent) shows that he or she is probably eligible for payment or reimbursement under the official shorthand reporter's Transcript Reimbursement Fund (see Gov. Code § 8030.2 et seq. when appealing through a qualified legal services project) [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(c)].

For further discussion of waiver of the fee for filing the notice of appeal, see Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal . For further discussion of waiver of the fees for preparation of the clerk's transcript, and waiver of deposit and reimbursement for costs of preparation of the reporter's transcript, see Ch. 44, Appeal: Preparing and Filing the Record .

For detailed discussion and forms relating to proceedings for a fee waiver under Gov. Code § 68634.5 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.26, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.110 et seq.

[4] Substitution of Parties to Appeal

Whenever a substitution of parties to a pending appeal is necessary, proper proceedings must be made by serving and filing a motion in the reviewing court. The clerk of that court must notify the superior court of any ruling on the motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.36(a)].

For a form of application to substitute a party on appeal, see § 40.70.

For discussion and forms relating to substitution of parties, see Ch. 21, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings, §§ 27.27, 27.100 et seq. [see also Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions].

[5] Nonparties Appearing as Amicus Curiae

An amicus curiae ("friend of the court") is a nonparty who, on request, is granted leave by the appellate court to brief and argue issues in support of or opposition to an appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.200(c) and 8.520(f)]. For detailed discussion and forms relating to proceedings to obtain leave of court to appear as amicus curiae, see Ch. 22, Amicus Curiae .

§ 40.14 Attorneys Involved With Appeal

[1] Duties of Counsel in Taking or Maintaining Appeal

Counsel on appeal should keep the following duties in mind:

- Appellant's counsel should make a reasoned decision about whether to appeal [see § 40.15].

- Counsel (or any unrepresented party on appeal) must serve and file written notice of any change in address or telephone numbers, including the title and case number or numbers of all pending matters in the reviewing court to which the notice applies, as well as counsel's state bar membership number (if the notice is by counsel rather than unrepresented party) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.32].

- Withdrawal or substitution of counsel is permitted only by leave of court absent filing of substitution [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.36 and discussion in [2], below].

- Counsel, in appellate briefing, must cite to specific pages of the record to support factual statements [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(a)(1)(c); Kinney v. Overton (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 482, 496-497, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 136 ; Green v. City of Los Angeles (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 819, 835, 115 Cal. Rptr. 685 ; see further discussion regarding briefing in Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs].

- Counsel should, as always, comply with the Rules of Professional Conduct. For example, counsel may not intentionally attempt to mislead the court or misrepresent either the facts of the case on appeal or the language or holding of a legal authority. Counsel also must not intentionally cite authority that is no longer valid, as when a case which has been overruled, depublished, superseded by a grant of petition for review, or as when a statute has been repealed or declared unconstitutional [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 5-200].

- Appellant's counsel must comply with appellant's duty to provide notice of a settlement made after the filing of the notice of appeal under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.244 [see further discussion in Ch. 51, Appeal: Hearing and Decision, § 51.12[1][d]].

PRACTICE TIP:

Notify the Court of Any Actions That May Result in Stay or Dismissal of Appeal. Counsel should notify the court immediately of any other action that may result in a stay or dismissal of the appeal, for example, when a party has filed bankruptcy during the appeal and an automatic stay is in place under the bankruptcy law [see 11 U.S.C. § 362 and discussion in Ch. 94, Bankruptcy]. In some situations it may also be appropriate to notify the court of settlement negotiations, as distinguished from notice of a final settlement, particularly if the negotiations are likely to result in a stipulated dismissal of the appeal.

- In those instances in which an indigent appellant is entitled to the appointment of counsel in a civil proceeding, such as in a civil commitment proceeding or a juvenile court delinquency proceeding, trial counsel must initiate an appeal and perform other duties for the indigent appellant in conformity with Penal Code § 1240.1 [Code of Civ. Proc. § 936.1]. For further discussion of counsel's duties and appeal in civil commitment proceedings and juvenile delinquency proceedings, see respectively Ch. 304, Insane and Other Incompetent Persons , and Ch. 329, Juvenile Courts: Delinquency Proceedings . For further discussion of the requirements of Penal Code § 1240.1, see Erwin, Millman, Monroe, Sevilla, Tarlow, California Criminal Defense Practice, Ch. 101, Appeal (Matthew Bender).

- Appearance by out-of-state counsel pro hac vice is generally subject to the appellate court's grant of a written application, and subject to California laws and jurisdiction regarding professional conduct [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.40, and discussion in [3], below].

[2] Substitution or Withdrawal of Appellate Counsel

Withdrawal or substitution of attorneys is accomplished by serving and filing a substitution in the reviewing court, signed by the party and any substituted attorney [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.36(b)]. In the absence of a substitution, withdrawal may be effected only by an order made pursuant to a motion in the reviewing court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.36(c)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Withdrawal Not Permitted in Some Instances. The court will not allow a withdrawal, leaving a party unrepresented, in certain situations. For example, counsel may not leave a guardian or other representative in a pro per status. Similarly, a corporate party cannot appear except through counsel.

Unless otherwise ordered by the court, service of the motion need be made only on the party and attorneys directly affected by the withdrawal or substitution [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.36(b)]. Notice of the withdrawal or substitution shall be given by the reviewing court to the superior court and by substituted counsel to all parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.36(b)].

For forms of stipulation of and motion for substitution of attorney on appeal, see § 40.71.

For further discussion concerning substitution, withdrawal, or other termination of the attorney-client relationship, see Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics, § 72.350 et seq., "Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship."

[3] Appearance of Out-of-State Counsel Pro Hac Vice

A person who is not a member of the State Bar, but who is a member in good standing of the bar of any court of the United States or of the highest court of any other state may, on written application, be permitted to appear in a particular proceeding as counsel pro hac vice ("for the particular proceeding only"), provided that he or she is associated in the case with an active member of the State Bar [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.40(a)]. The permission is granted in the discretion of the court in which the proceeding is pending. It will not be granted to persons who are residents of this state, regularly employed in this state, or regularly engaged in business, professional, or other activities in this state. Repeated requests for such appearances, absent special circumstances, are a ground for denial of the application [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.40(b)].

A person desiring to appear pro hac vice in an appeal pending in the court of appeal or the Supreme Court must make a motion conforming with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.54, with proof of service on all parties who have appeared and on the State Bar at its San Francisco office [Cal. State B. Rules, Counsel Pro Hac Vice Program, Rule 4.4]. The motion must state [Cal. State B. Rules, Counsel Pro Hac Vice Program, Rule 4.4]:

- The applicant's residence and office address.
- The courts to which the applicant has been admitted to practice and the dates of admission.
- That the applicant is a member in good standing in those courts.
- That the applicant is not currently suspended or barred in any court.
- The title of court and the cause in which the applicant has filed an application to appear as counsel pro hac vice in California in the preceding two years, the date of each application, and whether it was granted.
- The name, address, and telephone number of the active member of the State Bar who is attorney of record.
- A statement of agreement to comply with the requirements of the California State Bar Rules, Counsel Pro Hac Vice Program.

The application is subject to a fee [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.40(e)], and the applicant, if granted leave to appear, is subject to the jurisdiction of California courts, to California law governing professional conduct, and to the disciplinary jurisdiction of the State Bar [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.40(c)].

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.40 does not preclude the Supreme Court or a court of appeal from permitting argument in a particular case from a person who is not a member of the State Bar, but who is licensed to practice in another jurisdiction and who possesses special expertise in the particular field affected by the proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.40(g)].

For detailed discussion of the requirements of a motion under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.54, and a general form of motion under that rule, see Ch. 45, Appeal: Motion Procedure, §§ 45.14, 45.70. For further discussion relating to appearances pro hac vice and a form of application that may be modified for use in an appellate court, see Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics, § 72.190 et seq., "Creation and Scope of Attorney-Client Relationship."

Chapter 40 APPEAL: AN OVERVIEW
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 40.15

AUTHOR: Hon. Patti S. Kitching, Elizabeth J. Buckley Editorial Consultants

§ 40.15 Legal and Practical Considerations in Determining Whether to Appeal

Before taking an appeal, counsel for a potential appellant must take into account two fundamental legal considerations:

- Whether the judgment or order is in fact appealable and a timely notice of appeal is possible. For discussion of appealable judgments and orders and notice of appeal, see Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal .

- The likelihood of prevailing on appeal. This evaluation requires, first, a determination of the applicable standard of review as to each issue, and secondly the substantive law applicable to determine those issues. The errors to be raised on appeal, as presented by the record, must then be analyzed according to these applicable standards of review and substantive legal principles to determine if the errors are reversible, that is, whether they arguably resulted in a miscarriage of justice [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 13; see discussion in § 40.12[2][b]]. See Ch. 41, Appeal: Review Standards and Appellate Rules of Law , for detailed discussion of review standards, the determination of controlling or persuasive substantive law, and the appellant's burden of showing reversible error. See also Ch. 44, Appeal: Preparing and Filing the Record , for further discussion of the various options available in preparing the best possible record for review.

PRACTICE TIP:

Standards of Review and Appellate Rules. Determine the correct standard and keep it in mind when deciding whether to appeal. A separate standard may apply for each issue to be raised on appeal, so it is critical at the outset, as well as in brief-drafting and at oral argument, to identify the appropriate standard of review for each issue. Doing so will help you frame your analysis of the applicable law and facts to address the questions the court must consider in reaching its decision.

Keep the proper standard in mind at the outset because it can make or break your chances on appeal. For example, if you are unhappy with factual findings, do not count on the court of appeal to review and interpret the evidence independently; it will only review the record to see whether there is substantial evidence to support the findings. If your only claims of error are governed by this "substantial evidence" standard, or by the equally deferential "abuse of discretion" standards, your chance of reversal is lessened accordingly. Consider carefully, therefore, as costs or other practical considerations may outweigh the risk of taking an appeal in which there is a formidable standard of review to overcome in order to convince the appellate court that the error is reversible.

Additionally, but not less importantly, read and familiarize yourself with the appellate rules before you begin working on an appeal [see § 40.43 for a reference summary of these rules].

Counsel should also weigh carefully the following practical considerations as well, before advising a client to proceed with an appeal:

- Client Expectations. What does the client hope to accomplish by appeal? Is this the right case, the right facts, to further the client's expectations and overall position? What would be the effect on the client of a published opinion in an unsuccessful appeal? Pursuit of an appeal must be based on more that an emotional involvement with the case and dissatisfaction with the result in the trial court.

- Costs. The minimum cost of the appeal includes the filing fee, cost of the record, and attorney's fees. It may be necessary to associate, if not substitute, other counsel due to time constraints or competency concerns. If the appeal is unsuccessful, the client will also incur additional expenses of the opposing party, who, as prevailing party, will generally be entitled to an award of costs on appeal. While, conversely, the client may recover most expenses if the appeal is successful, he or she may nonetheless be subjected to further expenses if the opposing party petitions for review in the Supreme Court. See Ch. 53, Appeal: Remittitur and Costs on Appeal , for further discussion of recovery of costs and attorney's fees.

- Risks. The risks of taking an appeal include the possibility of getting a worse result on appeal. If the issue concerns a recurring matter, particularly a recurring matter that directly affects your client's business or other interests, the risk of making bad law should also be considered. In addition to paying costs and possibly even attorney's fees to the opposing and prevailing party, there may also be a risk of sanctions, which may be imposed on both the client and counsel if the court of appeal determines that the appeal is frivolous. See Ch. 49, Appeal: Sanctions , for further discussion of sanctions.

- Time Delay. Typically a considerable time elapses between the initiation and completion of a civil appeal. Counsel should consider the effect that this long period of uncertainty may have on a client's business or other interests. Counsel should also consider the effect the delay may have in subsequent proceedings on remand, such as the availability of a witness or other evidence [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2036 and discussion in Ch. 199, Discovery: Preservation of Evidence]. Note, however, that sometimes the delay necessitated by an appeal may not be altogether disadvantageous. For example, when the case involves legal issues currently pending in higher courts, the ultimate rulings in those cases may ultimately help your case. The opposing party may wish to avoid delay as well, and may therefore be disposed to settle on terms more favorable to the appellant than those obtained at trial, rather than go through the lengthy and expensive process of opposing an appeal that has some merit.

- Settlement. Consider settlement negotiations as an alternative to proceed ing through the entire appeal process. Several districts encourage and even require settlement conferences in targeted cases pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.244 [see Ch. 51, Appeal: Hearing and Decision, § 51.12]. Settlements, whether resulting in a stipulated dismissal of the appeal, or even a stipulated reversal of the trial court judgment, are generally favored, especially if they are conducted and completed early in the appeal process, before there has been too much dedication of judicial resources to the appeal process [see Ch. 48, Appeal: Abandonment, Dismissal, and Stipulated Reversal, §§ 48.11, 48.12].

PRACTICE TIP:

Consider Seriously Having an Expert Review the Pros and Cons. If trial counsel is unfamiliar with appellate practice, it is usually well worth the expense to obtain an evaluation from an experienced appellate practitioner before proceeding with an appeal.

Chapter 40 APPEAL: AN OVERVIEW
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 40.16

AUTHOR: Hon. Patti S. Kitching, Elizabeth J. Buckley Editorial Consultants

§ 40.16 Summary of Appeal Process

[1] Entry of Judgment

An appeal is actually commenced with the filing of the notice of appeal, but such notice is premature when filed before the entry of the judgment or order from which the appeal is taken [see Cal. Rules of Ct. Rule 8.104(e) (noting also the circumstances under which a premature notice will be treated as one filed immediately after entry); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5 (entry and notice of entry)]. For discussion and forms relating to entry and notice of entry of judgment generally, see Ch. 318, Judgments , Part I, "Obtaining and Entering Judgments." For further discussion regarding premature notices of appeal, see Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal .

[2] Stay of Judgment

When a judgment is rendered, a party or a party's attorney contemplating appeal of that judgment should consider whether a stay of the judgment pending appeal is desirable, and if so, should request immediately a temporary stay, pending the filing of a notice of appeal. Counsel should consider further proceedings for stay if the notice of appeal itself does not stay the judgment automatically under Code Civ. Proc. § 916 et seq. [see Code Civ. Proc. § 918]. For detailed discussion and forms relating to proceedings to stay enforcement or execution of a judgment pending appeal, see Ch. 43, Appeal: Stay of Proceedings .

[3] Notice of Appeal

An appeal is initiated by the filing of a notice of appeal in the superior court pursuant to the requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.100 et seq.

The time requirements for filing the notice are critical; the court of appeal has no jurisdiction over, and must dismiss, an appeal in which the notice has not been timely filed [see Silverbrand v. County of Los Angeles (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 106, 120-121, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 595, 205 P.3d 1047 (under prison-delivery rule, notice of appeal still must be filed within jurisdictional time period, but filing constructively occurs when prisoner delivers notice to prison authorities for forwarding to court clerk); Hollister Convalescent Hospital, Inc. v. Rico (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 660, 670, 125 Cal. Rptr. 757, 542 P.2d 1349 ; Guillemin v. Stein (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 156, 161, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 65 (immaterial that trial court later confirmed sanctions award in postjudgment order from which there was timely appeal)]. The normal time limit is the earliest of the following dates [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a)]:

- 60 days after the date of mailing by the clerk of the superior court of a document entitled "notice of entry" of judgment (or a file-stamped copy of the judgment).

- 60 days after the date of service of a document entitled "notice of entry" of judgment (or a file-stamped copy of the judgment) by any party upon the party filing the notice of appeal, or by the party filing the notice of appeal.

- 180 days after the date of entry of the judgment.

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.104 and 8.108 set out special time limits for certain actions involving a public entity and certain post-judgment orders, respectively.

For detailed discussion and forms relating to those judgments and orders that may be appealed, the timeliness and sufficiency of a notice of appeal, and other requirements such as the filing fee, see Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal . For discussion and a form relating to dismissal of an appeal in which the notice was not timely filed, see Ch. 48, Abandonment, Dismissal, and Stipulated Reversal, §§ 48.13[2][a], 48.50.

Some districts or divisions of the Courts of Appeal, by local rule, require the filing of a docketing statement in the appellate court, typically within 10 days of the filing of the notice of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp. First App. Dist. Local Rules of Ct., Rule 2; Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp. Fourth App. Dist. Local Rules of Ct., Rule 9; cf. deadline for filing notice in superior court designating the record, discussed in [5], below]. For further discussion and forms regarding locally required docketing statements, their time deadlines, and other requirements, see Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal .

[4] Notice of Cross Appeal

Any party, other than the appellant, may file a notice of appeal after the timely filing of the first notice of appeal. The time for this notice is generally within 20 days after the mailing of notification by the superior court clerk of the first appeal, but there are special rules when the first appeal is taken from an order granting a motion for a new trial or a motion to vacate the judgment.

In most respects, the requirements relating to sufficiency, fees, etc., are identical to those governing the initial notice of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(f); see also Gov. Code § 68926.1]. For more detailed discussion and forms relating to the filing of a cross appeal, see Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal .

[5] Designation, Preparation, Certification, and Transmittal of Record on Appeal

Within 10 days after the filing of the notice of appeal, the appellant must file a notice designating the record, most commonly designating both the clerk's and the reporter's transcript [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(a)]. Designation of the record is accomplished by written notice in which the appellant specifies what is to be included in the record on appeal, usually in conjunction with an immediate or subsequent deposit of fees to cover the costs of preparation [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121; see also discussion in*§ 40.13[3]*].

A respondent may file a subsequent notice designating additional matters to be included in the reporter's or clerk's transcript, again, usually accompanied with a deposit to cover the estimated cost of these additions [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules, 8.122(a)(2), 8.130(a)(3)].

For detailed discussion and forms relating to the deadlines, fees, and other requirements for designating the record on appeal, both in the more common situations involving both a clerk's and reporter's transcript and in other situations involving alternative methods of providing a record, see Ch. 44, Appeal: Preparing and Filing the Record .

[6] Appellate Motions

Not every appeal requires motions. Appellate motions may be made, whenever appropriate, at any time from the deadline for filing a notice of appeal to the date of decision.

The general procedural and format requirements applicable to all appellate motions and papers, are discussed in Ch. 45, Appeal: Motion Procedure , which also includes a summary, with cross references of more detailed treatment elsewhere, of the more common appellate motions and applications.

Among the more common appellate applications and motions are those for an extension of time in filing briefs or meeting other deadlines, or for relief from default in failing to meet various requirements of the appellate rules, discussed respectively in Ch. 46, Appeal: Extending or Shortening Time , and Ch. 47, Appeal: Relief From Default . Others include motions for involuntary dismissal, for a stipulated reversal of the trial court judgment, and for the imposition of sanctions, discussed respectively in Ch. 48, Appeal: Abandonment, Dismissal, and Stipulated Reversal , and Ch. 49, Appeal: Sanctions .

[7] Appellate Briefs

The opening brief generally must be filed 40 days after the filing of the record or 70 days after the filing of a notice of election to proceed with an Appendix or Joint Appendix [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.212(a)(1)].

The respondent's brief must be filed 30 days after the filing of the appellant's opening brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.212(a)(2)]. If the respondent has cross appealed, the issues raised in the cross appeal may be covered in a separate section of the respondent's brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.216(b)].

An appellant may file a reply brief within 20 days after the filing of the Respondent's brief. In the case of a cross-appeal, a reply brief containing the cross respondent's brief may be filed 30 days after the filing of the respondent and cross appellant's brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.212(a)(3)].

For detailed discussion and forms relating to these deadlines and other requirements for preparing and filing appellate briefs, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs .

For discussion of preparation and filing of a brief by amicus curiae, see Ch. 22, Amicus Curiae .

[8] Oral Argument

The clerk will give written notice of the time and place of the calendar hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.256(b)]. A motion for calendar preference, if appropriate, must be filed no later than the last day for the filing of the appellant's reply brief (discussed in [7], above) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.240].

The right to appear and argue the cause may be waived upon written notice to opposing counsel and the court. [see People v. Camarillo (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 455, 456, 58 Cal. Rptr. 112, 426 P.2d 512] . Counsel may also waive argument under local rule, for failure to request argument within the time specified in the notice of calendar setting. The time limits and other requirements relating to oral argument are set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.256.

For detailed discussion of calendar proceedings, motions for calendar preference, and oral argument, see Ch. 51, Appeal: Hearing and Decision .

[9] Rendition of Decision

Following hearing or waiver of oral argument, an appeal is submitted for decision, and decision must generally be rendered within 90 days after submission [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 19].

The decision of the lower court will be reversed only upon a showing of prejudicial error under the applicable standard of review and applicable substantive law. For detailed discussion of the various standards of review, of appellate rules for determining applicable substantive law, see Ch. 41, Appeal: Review Standards and Appellate Rules of Law .

The decision must be written and must state the reasons for its conclusion [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 14; Amwest Sur. Ins. Co. v. Wilson (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 1243, 1265, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12, 906 P.2d 1112] . The reviewing court may affirm, modify, reverse (wholly or partially), and may give specific directions, for example, directing a particular judgment or order to be entered or directing that a new trial or other further proceedings be held.

If the matter is remanded for retrial, the reviewing court must determine all questions of law presented in the appeal which are necessary to the final determination of the case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 43, 906].

For further discussion of the submission and rendition of the decision and the types of decisions that may be rendered, see Ch. 51, Appeal: Hearing and Decision .

[10] Award of Costs and Fees as Part of Decision

The prevailing party, as defined by rule, is generally entitled to costs on appeal, although the court of appeal may otherwise award or apportion costs as it deems proper. In some instances the appellate court is required to specify the award or denial of costs [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.278(a)].

The court of appeal may also determine entitlement to an award of attorney's fees in the limited circumstances under which such fees are recoverable [see Walsh v. New West Federal Sav. & Loan Assn. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1539, 1548, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35 (reviewing court may determine a party's entitlement to attorney's fees as provided by contract or allowed by statute)].

Proceedings to determine the amount of costs and fees, and to recover these amounts, are usually conducted in the trial court following issuance of remittitur [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.278(c), 3.1702(c); see [11], below].

For further discussion of the award of costs by the court of appeal and discussion and forms relating to proceedings to recover costs and fees in the trial court, see respectively Ch. 51, Appeal: Hearing and Decision, § 51.18, and Ch. 53, Appeal: Remittitur and Costs on Appeal, § 53.30 et seq.

In addition to costs and fees, the court of appeal may impose sanctions after notice and hearing and upon a determination that the appeal was frivolous or for other infractions of the appellate rules [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.27(c); see In re Marriage of Flaherty (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 637, 183 Cal. Rptr. 508, 646 P.2d 179] . For detailed discussion and forms relating to the imposition of sanctions for a frivolous appeal, see Ch. 49, Appeal: Sanctions .

[11] Remittitur and Recovery of Costs After Decision

After the court of appeal has rendered a decision, if no rehearing or review is sought [see [12] and [13], below], a remittitur is issued by the clerk of the court of appeal. It consists of a certified copy of the court's judgment, order or opinion, and a notice of judgment stating whether the judgment or order from which the appeal was taken has been affirmed, reversed or modified [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.272]. The issuance of remittitur returns jurisdiction of the cause to the trial court for disposition or further proceedings in accordance with the appellate decision.

Within 40 days after notice of the issuance of remittitur, a party who claims costs or fees awarded by the court of appeal may file in the trial court a memorandum of costs, or a motion for fees, or both [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.278(c)(1), 3.1702(c)]. A motion to tax costs may be made in the trial court in the same manner and within a like time as in post-trial costs proceedings [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.278(c)(2), 3.1702(b)].

For discussion and forms relating to remittitur and to the recovery of costs and fees in the trial court following remittitur, see Ch. 53, Appeal: Remittitur and Costs on Appeal .

[12] Rehearing

A petition for rehearing must be filed within 15 days after [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.268(b)(1)]:

- The filing of the decision by the court of appeal;
- A postfiling order of the court of appeal publishing its opinion;
- A modification order changing the appellate judgment; or
- The filing of a consent to an increase or decrease in the amount of a money judgment pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.264(d).

A party must seek a rehearing in the court of appeal before seeking review of the decision by the California Supreme Court in cases in which an issue or material fact was omitted from or was misstated in the opinion of the court of appeal see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.506(c); Torres v. Parkhouse Tire Service, Inc. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 995, 1000, n.2, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 564, 30 P.3d 57 ; see [13], below].

A grant of rehearing is mandatory if the decision is based upon a new issue which the parties have not been afforded an opportunity to brief [Gov. Code § 68081].

Other grounds for rehearing include a substantial error of law or fact or a procedural error which affects the appellate rights of the parties [Freedom Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (Orange County) (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1102, 1106-1107, 231 Cal. Rptr. 189] .

For discussion and forms relating to rehearing, see Ch. 52, Appeal: Rehearing, § 52.10 et seq.

[13] Review in Supreme Court

A petition for review in the Supreme Court must be filed within 10 days after the court of appeal decision becomes final as to that court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.500(e)(1); see also § 40.11[2][a] (discussing Supreme Court's discretionary power to review decisions of court of appeal)]. Grounds for review in the California Supreme Court include the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.500(b)]:

- Review appears to be necessary to secure uniformity of decision or the settlement of important questions of law.

- The court of appeal was without jurisdiction of the cause.

- Because of disqualification or other reason, the decision of the court of appeal lacks the concurrence of the required majority of qualified judges.

An answer to the petition for review may be served and filed within 20 days after the filing of the petition. If the answer raises additional issues for review, the petitioner may serve and file a reply limited to the additional issues within 10 days after the filing of the answer [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.500(a) and 8.500(e)].

Within 60 days of the filing of the last timely petition for review, the Supreme Court may order review of a court of appeal decision [Cal. Rules of Ct., 8.512(b)(1)]. The Supreme Court may review and decide any or all issues and may order action deferred until disposition of another cause pending before the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.512(d)(2)].

For detailed discussion and forms relating to proceedings for review by the Supreme Court, including briefing and ultimate disposition of the cause upon denial or grant of review, see Ch. 54, Appeal: California Supreme Court Review .

Subsequent proceedings, for remittitur or rehearing, are much the same in the Supreme Court as in the court of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.536, 8.540 and discussion in [11], [12], above].

[14] Requests for Publication or Depublication of Court of Appeal Decision

Supreme Court opinions are always published. Court of appeal opinions are selectively published if they are certified by the deciding majority to meet the criteria for publication [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1105]. A party or other interested person may seek to have a court of appeal opinion published or "depublished" by filing a request following rendition of the decision of the court of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.1120, 8.1125].

Only a published opinion may be cited as precedential case law authority under the doctrine of stare decisis [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1115].

An exception to this rule arises for an administrative decision when there is no system of publication for such decisions. The court may cite and consider the unpublished administrative decision as evidence of administrative construction; however, the lack of publication may weaken an inference that the legislature was aware of the prior administrative interpretation when adopting or amending statutory language [Styne v. Stevens (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 42, 53, n.4, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 14, 26 P.3d 343] .

For discussion of citability of case law and the doctrine of stare decisis, and for coverage relating to publication and depublication of court of appeal opinions, including a form to request publication, made to the court of appeal "promptly" after the decision, and a form for depublication, made to the Supreme Court within 30 days after the decision becomes final as to the court of appeal, see Ch. 41, Appeal: Review Standards and Appellate Rules of Law, § 41.50 et seq.

AUTHOR: Hon. Patti S. Kitching, Elizabeth J. Buckley Editorial Consultants

§ 40.44 Decisions

[1] Statutory Right to Civil Appeal

There is no federal constitutional right to appeal in civil cases; the Fourteenth Amendment (U. S. Const., amend. XIV) does not even require states to establish a system for appellate review in civil cases if a full and fair trial on the merits is provided. Lindsey v. Normet (1972) 405 U.S. 56, 74, 92 S. Ct. 862, 31 L. Ed. 2d 36

The right to appeal is wholly statutory. Vivid Video, Inc. v. Playboy Entertainment Group, Inc. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 434, 440, 2007 Cal. App. LEXIS 132

State constitution establishes the judicial branch of the government, including the Supreme Court and courts of appeal, and defines the jurisdiction of each; it does not guarantee a right to appeal in civil cases. Powers v. City of Richmond (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 85, 115, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839, 893 P.2d 1160

The right to an appeal is entirely statutory; unless specified by statute no judgment or order is appealable. Garau v. Torrance Unified School Dist. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 192, 198, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 108

Right to appeal in civil cases is entirely statutory; Legislature has the power to limit or abolish the right to appeal or change the appellate procedure. In re Taya C. (1991) 2 Cal. App. 4th 1, 7, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810

[2] Appellate Jurisdiction

Appellate jurisdiction is the power of a reviewing court to correct error in a trial court proceeding. Powers v. City of Richmond (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 85, 93, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839, 893 P.2d 1160

[3] Nature and Scope of Appeal

Appellant must present an adequate record to show prejudicial error and present argument and authorities on each point or else the issue is waived. Kurinij v. Hanna and Morton (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 853, 865, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324

Error must be preserved for appeal, that is, raised in the trial court and not waived or invited. Stevens v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1645, 1655, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 525

Error raised on appeal must appear on the record. Skoglie v. Crumley (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 294, 297-298, 103 Cal. Rptr. 205 ; see Brosterhous v. State Bar of California (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 315, 325, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 87, 906 P.2d 1242

The trial court's orders and judgment are presumed to be correct, and the burden is on the appellant affirmatively to demonstrate error. Interinsurance Exchange of Auto. Club of Southern California v. Collins (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1445, 1448, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126

It is the duty of appellate counsel to refer the reviewing court to the portions of the record which support his or her client's position. Green v. City of Los Angeles (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 819, 835, 115 Cal. Rptr. 685

No appeal may be taken from a nonappealable judgment or order. Adohr Milk Farms, Inc. v. Love (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 366, 369, 63 Cal. Rptr. 123

[4] Parties, Nonparties, and Counsel Involved With Appeal

Dissenting shareholder who was not a party in dissolution proceeding had standing to appeal imposition of litigation expenses against him. In re FairWageLaw (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 279, 285, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 652

Party not aggrieved when issue would not affect appellant one way or another. In re Marriage of Falcone v. Fyke (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 814, 827, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 588

Only a party aggrieved by a judgment or order has standing to appeal the judgment or order. A party who has an interest recognized by law that is adversely affected by the judgment or order is an aggrieved party. The interest must be immediate and substantial, and not nominal or remote. Serrano v. Stefan Merli Plastering Company, Inc. (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1014, 1026-1027, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 559

Only an aggrieved party has the right to appeal. An aggrieved party is one who has an interest recognized by law in the subject matter of the judgment and whose interest is injuriously affected by the judgment. In re Alex U. (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 259, 266, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 695

A party is not aggrieved by a judgment or order rendered in its favor. Gober v. Ralphs Grocery Co. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 204, 211, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 92

When trial court's decision to reject exhaustion arguments was in board's favor, board was not aggrieved and could not have waived right to appeal. State Water Resources Control Bd. Cases (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 674, 792-793, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 189

In class action, named plaintiff may not appeal on behalf of nonappealing class members if named plaintiff not personally aggrieved. Estrada v. RPS, Inc. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 976, 985

Appellate standing is liberally construed, with any doubts resolved in favor of the right to appeal. Van't Rood v. County of Santa Clara (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 549, 560, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 746

Appeals are limited to aggrieved parties, and party therefore cannot appeal from a ruling that is favorable to that party; when a ruling is partially, but not completely, favorable to a party, he or she may appeal only from the unfavorable part of the judgment. Soldate v. Fidelity National Financial, Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1069, 1073, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 404

An expert witness who is subject to a fee setting order may be aggrieved and may appeal even though he or she is not a party. Marsh v. Mountain Zephyr, Inc. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 289, 295, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 493

A person acting in a representative capacity, such as an administrator, executor, guardian, or trustee, who has a duty to protect the interests of the appellant or the estate may be an appellant. Graham v. Lenzi (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 248, 254, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407

An "aggrieved" party is a person or entity who has an interest in the subject matter of the judgment which has been injuriously affected by the judgment. Winter v. Gnaizda (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 750, 754, 152 Cal. Rptr. 700

If there are several named plaintiffs or defendants, one or more of them may appeal the portion of the judgment adverse to their interests unless the judgment is nonseverable. Caruso v. Snap-Tite, Inc. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 211, 214, 79 Cal. Rptr. 642

[5] Liberal Construction of Appellate Rules

Appellate rules (former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1 et seq.) are to be liberally construed to secure the just and speedy determination of appeals, transfers, and original proceedings pursuant to former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.5. Jones v. Superior Court (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 92, 96-97, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 264 (construing rule regarding frivolous appeals to apply to frivolous writ petitions in reviewing court as well as to appeals)

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

5-40 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 40.60

AUTHOR: Hon. Patti S. Kitching, Elizabeth J. Buckley Editorial Consultants

§ 40.60 Appellant's Checklist

[1] Preliminary Steps

☐ Request temporary stay of trial court proceedings, immediately after pronouncement of the judgment or order [see § 40.16[2]; see Code Civ. Proc. § 918 and Ch. 43, Appeal: Stay of Proceedings].

☐ Determine appealability of judgment or order [see § 40.12[2][a] and Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal, § 42.12].

☐ Determine likelihood of success under applicable standard of review and other applicable law [see § 40.12[2][b], and Ch. 41, Appeal: Review Standards and Appellate Rules of Law].

☐ Determine practical advisability of taking appeal from judgment or order [see § 40.15].

☐ For overview of appeal process, review Judicial Council Form APP-001, Information on Appeal Procedure for Unlimited Civil Cases,§ 40.72.

[2] File Notice of Appeal

☐ Notice must be filed in superior court in which judgment or ordered was entered [see § 40.16[1],[3] and Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal].

☐ Notice must be filed within 60 days after notice of entry of judgment or 180 days after the date of entry of the judgment, whichever comes first [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104].

☐ Filing fee or request for waiver due to indigence must accompany notice [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.100(b)(1) and 3.51].

☐ Some districts or divisions require the filing of a docketing statement in the court of appeal within a short time, e.g., 10 days, after the filing of the notice of appeal in the superior court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., First App. Dist. Rules, Rule 2].

[3] Give Notice of Any Settlement

☐ After the notice of appeal has been filed, appellant must provide notice of any settlement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.244(a); but see discussion construing this requirement more narrowly in Ch. 51, Appeal: Hearing and Decision ,§ 51.12[1][d]].

☐ Within 45 days after filing a notice of settlement, the appellant who filed the notice of settlement must file either an abandonment under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.244(b), if the record has not yet been filed in the court of appeal, or a request to dismiss under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.244(c), if the record has already been filed in the court of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.244(a)(3)].

[4] Designate Record

☐ Designation is served on respondent and filed with clerk of superior court [see § 40.16[5] and Ch. 44, Appeal: Preparing and Filing the Record].

☐ Designation notice, for both reporter's and a clerk's transcript, must be filed within 10 days of filing notice of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(a)].

☐ Deposit of estimated cost of reporter's transcript must accompany designation notice [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(b)]; deposit of estimated cost of clerk's transcript, over and above the $100 deposit required at the time of filing the notice of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(b)(2)], must be made within 10 days after notification of clerk's estimate [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.122(a), 8.128(b)].

☐ Designation notice for reporter's and clerk's transcript may be combined with each other and with notice of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(a)].

[5] Obtain Stay Pending Appeal

☐ If judgment, order, or other trial court proceedings are not automatically stayed by filing of notice of appeal, and stay is desirable, obtain stay of trial proceedings pending disposition of appeal [see § 40.16[2] and Ch. 43, Appeal: Stay of Proceedings].

☐ Stay proceedings may be initiated by motion in the superior court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 917 et seq.], or by petition for writ of supersedeas in the court of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.112], as necessary.

[6] Ensure Timely Completion of Record

☐ Track deadlines for completion of record by trial court reporter or clerk and take steps to enforce timely completion if necessary [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.130(f), 8.122d(d), 8.128(b) (time deadlines); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.60(a), 8.63 (extension of time), Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.23 (sanctions for delay), and Ch. 44, Appeal: Preparing and Filing the Record].

☐ Track preparation and transmittal of exhibits [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.122(a), 8.224]. Keep in mind it may take several weeks to copy and complete the transfer.

☐ When record is filed, review for completeness. If incomplete, seek correction or augmentation under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155.

[7] Prepare, Serve and File Appellant's Briefs

☐ Appellant's opening brief must be served and filed in the court of appeal within 40 days after the filing of the record (or after filing of the reporter's transcript if there was an election to use an appendix under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124, or within 70 days after the filing of a notice of election to use an appendix under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124 without a reporter's transcript [see § 40.16[7]; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.212(a) and Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs], absent an extension of time granted by the court.

☐ Appellant's reply brief must be served and filed in the court of appeal within 20 days after the filing of the respondent's brief or, if the respondent has cross-appealed, within 30 days after the filing of the respondent and cross-appellant's brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.212(a)(3)], absent an extension of time granted by the court.

[8] Motion for Calendar Preference

☐ If there is a motion for calendar preference, it must be filed and served promptly [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.240; see § 40.16[8] and Ch. 51, Appeal: Hearing and Decision].

[9] Oral Argument

☐ Prepare and provide oral argument at time noticed by court of appeal [see § 40.16[8]; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.256(b) and Ch. 51, Appeal: Hearing and Decision].

[10] Subsequent Proceedings

☐ See § 40.62.

§ 40.61 Respondent's Checklist

[1] Review Notice of Appeal

☐ Determine whether the appeal is taken from an appealable judgment or order. If not, consider requesting a stipulation for abandonment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.244(b)] or filing a motion to dismiss [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.244(c), 8.57; see Ch. 48, Appeal: Abandonment, Dismissal, and Stipulated Reversal, §§ 48.13[2][b], 48.51].

[2] File Cross Appeal

☐ If appropriate, file notice of cross appeal. The notice must be filed in superior court within 20 days after the mailing of notification by the superior court clerk of the first appeal [§ 40.16[4]; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(f) and Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal ; see also § 40.60[2] regarding filing fee and docketing statement]. Designation of record for cross appeal is generally like that for appeal [see § 40.60[3] and Ch. 44, Appeal: Preparing and Filing the Record].

[3] Additional Designation of Record

☐ If appropriate, respondent may, within 10 days after service of appellant's notice designating reporter's or clerk's transcripts, serve on appellant and file a notice designating additional items to be included in either transcript. Deposit of estimated costs of preparing additionally designated matters are handled in the same manner as the initial designations by appellant [see § 40.60[3]; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.130(b), 8.122(c) and Ch. 44, Appeal: Preparing and Filing the Record].

[4] Prepare, Serve and File Respondent's Briefs

☐ Respondent's brief must be served and filed in the court of appeal within 30 days after the filing of appellant's opening brief, absent an extension of time granted by the court [see §§ 40.16[7], 40.60[6]; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.212(a)(2) and Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs]. Points on any cross-appeal may be combined with the respondent's brief [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.216(b)].

[5] Oral Argument

☐ Prepare and provide oral argument at time noticed by court of appeal [see § 40.16[8]; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.256(b) and Ch. 51, Appeal: Hearing and Decision].

[6] Subsequent Proceedings

☐ See § 40.62.

§ 40.62 Post-Decision Checklist

[1] Rehearing

☐ If desired, petition for rehearing. Petition must be filed within 15 days after [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.268(b)(1)]:

☐ The filing of the decision by the court of appeal;

☐ A postfiling order of the court of appeal publishing its opinion;

☐ The filing of a consent to an increase or decrease in the amount of a money judgment pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.264(d).

☐ An answer to the petition is not permitted unless the court requests it. The clerk will promptly send to the parties copies of any order requesting an answer and immediately notify the parties by telephone or another expeditious method. Any answer must be served and filed within eight days after the order is filed unless the court orders otherwise. A petition for rehearing normally will not be granted unless the court has requested an answer [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.268(b)(2)]. See further discussion at*§ 40.16[12]* and, generally, Ch. 52, Appeal: Rehearing .

[2] Review in Supreme Court

☐ If desired, petition for review in Supreme Court. Petition must be served and filed within 10 days after decision of court of appeal becomes final as to that court [see § 40.16[13]; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.500(e)]. An answer to the petition may be served and filed within 20 days after the filing of the petition, and a reply within 10 days after the filing of the answer [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.500(e)]. See generally Ch. 54, Appeal: California Supreme Court Review .

[3] Memorandum to Recover Costs on Appeal

☐ The prevailing party must file a memorandum of costs in the superior court in order to recover costs awarded on appeal. The memorandum must be served and filed within 40 days after the reviewing court mails notice of the issuance of remittitur [see § 40.16[11]]. A motion to recover attorney's fees may be filed in the superior court within the same time period [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1702(c), 8.278(c) and Ch. 53, Appeal: Remittitur and Costs on Appeal].

[b] Use of Form

The form set out in [a], above, is for use by an attorney for a party on appeal seeking permission to withdraw as counsel. It should be used only if counsel is unable to obtain a stipulation substituting new counsel or substituting the party in propria persona. It must be accompanied by a memorandum of points and authorities and one or more declarations explaining the need for withdrawal if the need is not demonstrated in the record on appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.54].

Unless otherwise ordered by the court, service of the motion need be made only on the party and the attorneys directly affected [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.36(c)(1)]. Notification of any withdrawal or substitution shall be given by the clerk of the reviewing court to the clerk of the superior court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.36(c)(3)]. If the motion is filed in any proceeding pending in the Supreme Court after grant of review, the Supreme Court clerk must also notify the court of appeal of any ruling on the motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.36(c)(4)].

For discussion of substitution and withdrawal of counsel on appeal, see § 40.14[2]. For further discussion and forms relating to substitution and withdrawal of attorneys generally, see Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics, § 72.350 et seq., "Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship." For discussion concerning service, format, and other general procedural requirements, see Ch. 45, Appeal: Motion Procedure, § 45.13.

Counsel should check local rules or practice to determine whether a proposed order should be submitted with the motion. Some courts prefer to draft their own orders. Others encourage or require proposed orders. In the Second Appellate District, for example, failure to submit a proposed order with an appellate motion or application may be grounds for denial of the motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 2d App. Dist., Rule 4].

This chapter discusses the following topics relating to appellate review:

- The standards of review used by the appellate courts to determine whether there is reversible error in a given case [see § 41.10 et seq.]. This includes discussion of rules applicable in all cases, such as the prejudicial error doctrine or invited error doctrine [see § 41.10], the three major review standards, commonly denominated the "abuse of discretion," the "insufficient evidence," and the "independent review" standards, and the application of these standards to specific types of judgments or orders, such as a summary judgment or a judgment of dismissal following demurrer [see §§ 41.11 -41.15].

- General rules used to determine which substantive laws govern the review of any given appeal [see § 41.30 et seq.]. This includes discussion of law of the case [see § 41.30], the doctrine of stare decisis and rules for determining what constitutes precedential or controlling case law [see § 41.31], and rules governing retroactivity, used to determine when new statutory or case law applies in a given case [see § 41.32].

- The rules and procedures governing the publication and depublication of California appellate decisions [see § 41.50 et seq.], discussed here because publication determines whether a case may be cited as precedential or controlling authority, as discussed in § 41.50 et seq.

The chapter includes the following forms, for use in proceedings to request an order directing the publication or depublication of a court of appeal opinion:

- Request for Publication of Unpublished Opinion [see § 41.90].

- Request for Depublication of Published Opinion [see § 41.91].

§ 41.10 General Rules Governing All Standards of Review

[1] Prejudicial Error Required for Reversal

Cal. Const., art. VI, § 13, provides that "[n]o judgment shall be set aside, or new trial granted, in any cause, on the ground of misdirection of the jury, or of the improper admission or rejection of evidence, or for any error as to any matter of pleading, or for any error as to any matter of procedure, unless, after an examination of the entire cause, including the evidence, the court shall be of the opinion that the error complained of has resulted in a miscarriage of justice."

This constitutional requirement is codified or reflected in several statutory provisions. For example, Code Civ. Proc. § 475 provides that errors that do not affect the substantial rights of the parties are to be disregarded. No judgment or decision will be reversed because of any error, improper instruction, ruling, or defect in the pleadings or procedures unless it appears from the record that the error was prejudicial, and also that the party complaining or appealing sustained substantial injury, and that a different result would have been probable had the error not occurred. There is no presumption that error is prejudicial or that injury has been sustained if error is shown [Code Civ. Proc. § 475; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 906, discussed in [6], below (respondent may request that appellate court determine whether errors complained of by appellant are prejudicial)].

Similarly, Evid. Code § 354 provides that a judgment or decision based on a verdict of finding will not be reversed because of erroneous exclusion of evidence, unless the court is of the opinion that the error resulted in a miscarriage of justice, and further, that it appears from the record either that the substance, purpose, and relevance of the excluded evidence was made known to the trial court by questions asked, an offer of proof, or other means, or that the trial court's rulings made it futile to apprise the court of the evidence, or the evidence was sought by questions asked during cross or recross examination [Evid. Code § 354; for discussion of waived and "invited" error, e.g., for failure to bring excluded evidence to the court's attention, see [2][b] and [c], below].

These constitutional and statutory provisions express the most fundamental rule of appellate review: error must be"prejudicial" or result in a miscarriage of justice in order to constitute "reversible" error [see, e.g., Pool v. City of Oakland (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 1051, 1069, 232 Cal. Rptr. 528, 728 P.2d 1163 ; Searle v. Allstate Life Ins. Co. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 425, 439, 212 Cal. Rptr. 466, 696 P.2d 1308 ; In re Marriage of Falcone & Fyke (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 814, 823, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 588 ; Zhou v. Unisource Worldwide, Inc. (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1471, 1480, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 273 ; Weaver v. Chavez (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1350, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 514 ; Boeken v. Philip Morris Incorporated (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1640, 1678, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 638 (no prejudicial error when trial court refused to give instructions that were not reasonably brief, concise, and understandable)].

Prejudice is not presumed on a showing of error. Error must be shown to be prejudicial and therefore reversible, unless that error is "structural" in that it discloses, in itself, a fundamental denial of the orderly procedure required by constitutional due process. Otherwise, to show that an error is prejudicial or resulted in a miscarriage of justice, an appellant must demonstrate a reasonable probability that, in the absence of the error, a more favorable result for the appellant would have been reached [see Elsner v. Uveges (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 915, 939, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 530, 102 P.3d 915 (erroneous application of law prejudiced appellant); Soule v. General Motors Corp. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 548, 574, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 607, 882 P.2d 298] . Error is prejudicial if it is reasonably probable that a result more favorable to the appellant would have been reached absent the error. A "probability" in this context does not mean more likely than not, but merely a reasonable chance, more than an abstract possibility [Cellphone Termination Fee Cases (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1110, 1125-1126, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 275 ; Red Mountain, LLC v. Fallbrook Public Utility District (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 333, 348, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 875] .

A few cases have held that prejudice is not required when the error calls into question the very fairness of the trial or hearing itself. Courts have held these errors to be reversible per se [see Biscaro v. Stern (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 702, 709-710, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 817 (failing to rule on continuance as accommodation under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.100, was structural reversible error); In re Marriage of James & Christine C. (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1261, 1265, 1273, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 715 (denying continuance as accommodation under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.100, was reversible error per se)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Assessing Prejudicial Error. Before deciding whether to pursue an appeal, it is important for counsel to become familiar with all of the evidence and trial proceedings. At the outset, counsel should review not only their own papers or those of their client's trial counsel, but also the trial briefs and post-trial papers filed by counsel for the opposing party. Appellate counsel should not rely solely on what their client's trial counsel says about the trial proceedings, and trial counsel, if acting on the appeal, should also take care to review the trial proceedings. Trial counsel, as actual witnesses to, and participants in, the events at trial, have a natural tendency to believe in the accuracy of their recollection of trial events, but all too often their recollection may be imperfect due to preoccupations and distractions at the time of the trial, as well as the subsequent effect of those unconscious mental revisions sometimes termed as "wishful thinking."

[2] Appellant Bears Burden of Showing Prejudicial Error in the Record

The rule requiring prejudicial error for reversal, discussed in [1], above, is based on the policy favoring the finality of judgments and an end to litigation. Thus, a corollary of the rule is that a judgment or order is presumed correct and all intendments and presumptions are indulged in favor of its correctness [Veguez v. Governing Board of Long Beach Unified School District (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 406, 421, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 526 (because neither party obtained statement of decision, all intendments favor ruling below); In re Marriage of Gray (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 974, 977-978, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 271 (request for statement of decision was untimely)].

Consequently, as noted in [1], above, the burden is on appellant to overcome this presumption and affirmatively show prejudicial error, regardless of the standard of review to be applied [see Maria P. v. Riles (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1281, 1295, 240 Cal. Rptr. 872, 743 P.2d 932 ; Searle v. Allstate Life Ins. Co. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 425, 439, 212 Cal. Rptr. 466, 696 P.2d 1308 ; for discussion of standards of review, see §§ 41.11 -41.15].

The appellant's burden to show prejudicial error has two components:

- Presenting a record that adequately shows the error complained of [see Maria P. v. Riles (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1281, 1295, 240 Cal. Rptr. 872, 743 P.2d 932 ; Bullock v. Phillip Morris USA, Inc. (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 655, 678-679, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 775 (appellant failed to identify in record where instruction requested and rejected); Kashmiri v. Regents of the University of California (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 809, 849, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 635] . An appellant must refer the court to the specific places in the record where any claimed error occurred [Boeken v. Philip Morris Incorporated (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1640, 1671-1672, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 638 (appellant failed to identify in record where instruction requested and rejected)].

- Presenting argument and authorities concerning the error disclosed in the record, that shows how or in what manner the error is prejudicial to appellant [see Boeken v. Philip Morris Incorporated (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1640, 1671-1672, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 638 (appellant failed to identify in record where instruction requested and rejected); Kurinij v. Hanna & Morton (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 853, 865, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324] . That is, argument demonstrating a reasonable probability that, in the absence of the error, a more favorable result to the appellant would have been reached [see Soule v. General Motors Corp. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 548, 574, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 607, 882 P.2d 298] .

With respect to the first component, i.e., an adequate record showing error, Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.163 provides that the reviewing court will presume that the record in an appeal includes all matters material to deciding the issues raised. If the appeal proceeds without a reporter's transcript, this presumption applies only if the claimed error appears on the face of the record [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.163].

Thus, once appellant and the other parties have designated the contents of the record and have had an opportunity to augment the record, and the record has subsequently been certified and transferred to the appellate court, a presumption arises that the record is sufficient for purposes of Cal. Const., art. VI, § 13, that is, it is sufficient for the court to determine, upon "an examination of the entire cause, including the evidence," whether or not any error has resulted in a miscarriage of justice [see Skoglie v. Crumley (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 294, 297-298, 103 Cal. Rptr. 205] .

While the appellate court may augment the record on its own motion [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(a)], it is not required to do so [for detailed discussion and forms relating to designation, augmentation, and certification of the record on appeal, see Ch. 44, Appeal: Preparing and Filing the Record; for discussion concerning citation to the record in briefs, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.12[1][c]].

With respect to the second component, that is, argument demonstrating prejudicial error, it is axiomatic that the appellate court need not consider errors that are not raised in the briefs [see discussion in [6], below]. It is also necessary, not only to raise error in the briefs, but to demonstrate clearly that the error is prejudicial under the standard that governs review of that particular type of error [for detailed discussion of the standards of appellate review, see §§ 41.11 -41.15; for further discussion relating to argument in briefs generally, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.13].

PRACTICE TIP:

Arguing Prejudicial Error. There are two approaches to arguing that error was prejudicial. One is to focus on a single error that goes to the heart of a case, while the other is to focus on the cumulative effect of a number of small errors.

In arguing that error is prejudicial, it helps if the case, overall, favors appellant. In other words, if the overall evidence substantially favors the appellant, appellant may argue this as a factor showing that he or she would have gotten a more favorable result in the absence of the error. This weighing of the evidence for purposes of arguing prejudicial error must be distinguished from the application of the substantial evidence standard of review. In an appeal challenging the sufficiency of the evidence, the latter standard applies to require affirmance of a challenged verdict if there is any evidence to support it. An appellant will not succeed under this standard simply by pointing to contrary evidence, even if it far outweighs the evidence supporting the verdict [see discussion of the sufficiency of the evidence standard of review in § 41.13].

On the other hand, the appellate court may take into account the fact that the evidence overall favors appellant when it is deciding whether error was prejudicial in that appellant would have enjoyed a more favorable outcome if the error had not occurred. Thus, in arguing that error was prejudicial, the appellant should summarize the evidence for this purpose. An effective way to do this is to divide the statement of facts in appellant's opening brief into the appellant's case and the respondent's case, rather than employing the common method of drafting a statement of facts by lumping all the facts together in one chronological story [see further discussion of the Statement of Facts in Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.13[2][b]]. In this way, the appellant can demonstrate the unfairness of the outcome on the facts.

Although appellant bears the burden of showing prejudicial error, a respondent should nevertheless always argue why the error claimed by appellant, assuming it is in fact error, was nevertheless harmless.

[3] Review Limited to Errors of Law

[a] Review Generally Limited to Errors of Law

Only errors of law are reviewable by an appellate court in an ordinary civil appeal [Merrill v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 907, 915, 80 Cal. Rptr. 89, 458 P.2d 33] . The sole province of a court on appeal is to review the action of the trial court, correct its errors, and thus pass on questions of law only. This rule is founded in the essential distinction between the trial and the appellate court, and grows out of considerations of jurisdiction. It is the province of the trier of fact in the trial court to decide questions of fact and of the appellate court to decide questions of law [Tupman v. Haberkern (1929) 208 Cal. 256, 262, 263, 280 P. 970] .

Three basic standards of appellate review have evolved to deal with the different types of legal error:

- A pure error of law, that is, the trial court's misapplication or misinterpretation of the law, may be reversed after a review "de novo," or a review that is entirely independent of the trial court's reasoning [see discussion in § 41.14].

- When a trial court is given discretion in its ruling or decision, typically in the routine application of a law in disparate fact situations, the ruling will be reversed only if the review shows an "abuse of discretion" in that no reasonable person (as a judge) would have made the ruling [see discussion in § 41.12].

- When a factual finding is challenged, it rises to the level of an error of law that may justify reversal only when review shows there is no "substantial evidence" to support the factual determination [see discussion in § 41.13].

[b] Invited Error

Under the doctrine of invited error, if a party by his or her own conduct induces the commission of legal error, that party may not claim on appeal that the judgment should be reversed because of that error [Mary M. v. City of Los Angeles (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 202, 212-213, 285 Cal. Rptr. 99, 814 P.2d 1341 ; Saxena v. Goffney (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 316, 328-329, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 469 ; Munoz v. City of Union City (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 173, 178, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 393 ; see, e.g., In re Marriage of Broderick (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 489, 501, 257 Cal. Rptr. 397 (husband estopped from raising error that trial court adjudicated community interest under wrong standard, when at trial he conceded that the interest should be determined under that standard)].

Examples of the doctrine include the following:

- If an appellant offers inadmissible matters into evidence, he or she cannot complain of their admission on appeal [Gjurich v. Fieg (1913) 164 Cal. 429, 433, 129 P. 464 ; Horsemen's Benevolent & Protective Assn. v. Valley Racing Assn. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1538, 1557, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 698] .

- An appellant cannot complain of an erroneous jury instruction when the appellant requested the instruction given or one substantially similar to it [Horsemen's Benevolent & Protective Assn. v. Valley Racing Assn. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1538, 1555, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 698] . If, however, the appellant requested an instruction, but the trial court modified the requested instruction, the doctrine of invited error does not apply [Lundy v. Ford Motor Co. (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 472, 477-478, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 545] .

- An appellant cannot submit a matter for determination by the lower court and then contend on appeal that the matter was beyond the scope of the issues [Horsemen's Benevolent & Protective Assn. v. Valley Racing Assn. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1538, 1555, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 698 ; Estate of Armstrong (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 1, 7, 50 Cal. Rptr. 339] .

The doctrine of invited error does not apply, however, if a party makes the appropriate objections, but then acquiesces in a judicial determination to the contrary [Mary M. v. City of Los Angeles (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 202, 212-213, 285 Cal. Rptr. 99, 814 P.2d 1341 (defendant not estopped from claiming on appeal that trial court erroneously instructed jury on application of respondeat superior when defendant took opposite position throughout case, including at jury instruction conference)]. This is because a litigant, in the course of trial, has a duty to submit to the rulings of the court. After the litigant has done so, he or she may on appeal demonstrate the error of the ruling to which the litigant made timely objection [Horsemen's Benevolent & Protective Assn. v. Valley Racing Assn. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1538, 1555, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 698] .

Likewise, there is no estoppel based on invited error if the appellant's acts in the trial court are defensive or precautionary. For example, if an appellant offers jury instructions on irrelevant matter only after an unsuccessful objection to remove that matter from the case, he or she may later challenge that matter's relevancy on appeal [Horsemen's Benevolent & Protective Assn. v. Valley Racing Assn. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1538, 1555, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 698] .

A doctrine related to invited error is the doctrine of theory of trial. This means that if the parties try the case based on a certain cause of action, raise certain issues, and assume that a particular issue is controlling, the parties may not change this theory for purposes of review on appeal [Expansion Pointe Properties Limited Partnership v. Procopio, Cory, Hargreaves & Savitch, LLP (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 42, 54, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 166 (theories not fully developed to trial court cannot create triable issue on appeal); Saville v. Sierra College (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 857, 873, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 515 (plaintiff not permitted to argue college's liability as event sponsor for first time on appeal); County of Los Angeles v. S. Cal. Edison Co. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1108, 1118-1119, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 575 (after stipulating that consideration paid is not proper basis for tax, requesting determination of property value, and actively litigating issue, party cannot argue that it is entitled to judgment based on total consideration paid)].

[c] Waiver of Error

Although a party may not have invited or induced error, a waiver of error may be found upon express or implied agreement or acquiescense, at trial, to the ruling or procedure objected to on appeal [In re S.C. (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 396, 406, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 453 (party waived objection when she failed to tender objection in juvenile court); Padilla v. Greater El Monte Community Hospital (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 667, 670, 28 Cal. Rptr.3d 636 (failure to object to jury's damages calculation waived issue on appeal); In re Marriage of Broderick (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 489, 501, 257 Cal. Rptr. 397] . For example, if a party makes an evidentiary objection at trial, but fails to obtain a ruling on that objection for the record, on appeal the party is deemed to have waived any claim of error on this ground [Gallant v. City of Carson (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 705, 710, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 318 (because defendants did not seek or obtain rulings on objections to plaintiff's declaration, defendants waived objections); Dodge, Warren & Peters Insurance Services, Inc. v. Riley (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 1414, 1421, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 385 (parties that failed to obtain rulings on evidentiary objections, but cited to trial court's statement that it disregarded evidence in dispute, waived evidentiary challenges on appeal); Rosenbluth International, Inc. v. Superior Court (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 1073, 1076, n.2, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844 (evidentiary objections to declaration waived because party did not obtain rulings on them)]. However, the rule of waiver does not apply to an instruction which is prejudicially erroneous as given, i.e., which is an incorrect statement of law [Marich v. MGM/UA Telecommunications, Inc. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 415, 427, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 60 (right to appeal erroneous jury instruction defining "intent" not waived)].

There is no waiver of a claim of error based on judicial bias if a party chooses not to make an objection or otherwise raise the issue of bias at trial. The risk of offending the court and the doubt whether the problem could be cured by objection might discourage the assertion of even meritorious claims of judicial bias. Therefore, requiring the issue to be raised at trial would have the unjust effect of insulating judges from accountability for bias [see Catchpole v. Brannon (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 237, 244, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440 ; see also discussion in [4][b], below, and § 41.16].

[4] Review of Issues Not Raised at Trial

[a] New Issues Generally Will Not Be Considered

Appellate courts generally will not consider new issues or theories of law that a party raises for the first time on appeal, particularly a new theory of recovery or relief [Johnson v. Greenelsh (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 598, 603, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 622, 217 P.3d 1194 (court refuses to hear issue regarding no contest clause not raised in lower court); Gavaldon v. DaimlerChrysler Corp. (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 1246, 1264, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 793, 90 P.3d 752 (court refused to hear theory briefly argued during reply portion of closing argument at trial, but not discussed in pleadings); Western Oil & Gas Ass'n. v. Monterey Bay Unified Air Pollution Control Dist. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 408, 427 n.20, 261 Cal. Rptr. 384, 777 P.2d 157 ; Bogacki v. Board of Supervisors (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 771, 780, 97 Cal. Rptr. 657, 489 P.2d 537 ; Dietz v. Meisenheimer & Herron (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 771, 799-800, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 464 ; Kashmiri v. Regents of the University of California (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 809, 830, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 635 ; Baugh v. Garl (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 737, 746, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 539 ; County of Los Angeles v. S. Cal. Edison Co. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1108, 1118-1119, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 575 (after stipulating that consideration paid is not proper basis for tax, requesting determination of property value, and actively litigating issue, party cannot argue that it is entitled to judgment based on total consideration paid)]. To do so would unfairly deprive the trial court and the opposing parties of their opportunity to decide the issue [see Mattco Forge, Inc. v. Arthur Young & Co. (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 820, 847, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 780] . Similarly, the Supreme Court generally does not consider issues not raised in the Court of Appeal [Flannery v. Prentice (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 572, 590-591, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 809, 28 P.3d 860] .

This rule is stringently applied if a new theory depends on controverted factual questions that were not determined at trial in the context of that theory [Bogacki v. Board of Supervisors (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 771, 780, 97 Cal. Rptr. 657, 489 P.2d 537 ; Honig v. San Francisco Planning Department (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 520, 530, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 649 (rule applies especially to doctrine of estoppel, which includes factual elements that must be established in trial court); cf.

discussion in [b], below]. When a case is on appeal the parties are bound to the evidence produced in the trial court, and parties opposing or responding to the appeal cannot fairly be expected to disprove factual contentions that were not presented at trial [Tiernan v. Trustees of Cal. State University & Colleges (1982) 33 Cal. 3d 211, 221-222 n.15, 188 Cal. Rptr. 115, 655 P.2d 317 ; Strasberg v. Odyssey Group, Inc. (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 906, 920, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474] .

Stipulations either as to legal issues or facts, entered into in the trial court, are binding on appeal [Carmichael v. Reitz (1971) 17 Cal. App.3d 958, 969, 95 Cal. Rptr. 381] .

Similarly, if the parties assume the applicability of a particular statute during trial court proceedings, a party may be barred from arguing for the first time on appeal that a different statute applies [see Planned Protective Services, Inc. v. Gorton (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1, 13, 245 Cal. Rptr. 790] .

The rule extends to theories that were raised at trial but abandoned. Counsel may not abandon a theory of recovery during trial and then seek to revive it on appeal [Carmichael v. Reitz (1971) 17 Cal. App.3d 958, 969, 95 Cal. Rptr. 381] . The rule does not, however, preclude a party from raising issues or theories on appeal that were squarely raised at trial, even if the trial court did not base any decision on the issue or theory so raised [Perez v. 222 Sutter St. Partners (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 938, 943 n.4, 272 Cal. Rptr. 119] .

For discussion of an exception that applies to a new theory that does not require the consideration of facts not decided at trial, but rests wholly on undisputed facts, see [b], below.

[b] Exception for New Issues Involving Undisputed Facts

The general rule precluding a party from raising a new issue or theory for the first time on appeal, discussed in [a], above, does not apply to pure questions of law [Carman v. Alvord (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 318, 324, 182 Cal. Rptr. 506, 644 P.2d 192] . Thus, a party may raise a new theory of recovery for the first time on appeal, so long as it is a question of law that is only applied to undisputed facts in the record [see Larner v. Los Angeles Doctors Hospital Associates, LP (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1291, 1297 n.2, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 324 (to determine appeal of summary judgment, appellate court may consider issues not raised in trial court); RN Solution, Inc. v. Catholic Healthcare West (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 1511, 1518, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 892 ; Sheller v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1697, 1709, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 207 ; In re Conservatorship of Whitley (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 1447, 1458, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 808 ; Rowe v. Exline (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1276, 1287-1288, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 787 ; Petropoulos v. Department of Real Estate (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 554, 561, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 812 (Bus. & Prof. Code § 490 as basis for disciplinary action presented pure question of statutory interpretation that could be resolved without considering disputed facts); Dieckmeyer v. Redevelopment Agency of the City of Huntington Beach (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 248, 259, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 895 (court may determine for first time on appeal whether city required to reconvey property upon prepayment of loan); Allied Fire Protection v. Diede Construction, Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 150, 154, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 195 (court may determine for first time on appeal whether res judicata bars action where plaintiff unaware of facts)]. For example, it is well settled that a party may raise the issue of standing for the first time on appeal [see Steadman v. Osborne (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 950, 954-955, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 724].

Although the appellate courts may consider a new theory on undisputed facts, they are not required to do so [see Souza v. Westlands Water Dist. (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 879, 897-899, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 78 (appellate court declines to consider legal issue not raised in trial court); In re Marriage of Moschetta (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1218, 1227, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 893 (application of exception to rule against raising issue for first time on appeal is subject to the appellate court's discretion)]. Usually, an appellate court will consider a new issue on appeal in one of two situations.

The first situation involves a new development in the law that occurs while the appeal is pending. The new law may be considered if it can be applied to undisputed facts and if the appeal is a case that may properly be decided by application of law that was not in effect or articulated before the appeal [Fisher v. City of Berkeley (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 644, 654, n.3, 209 Cal. Rptr. 682, 693 P.2d 261] . This occurs most frequently with respect to newly decided case law, when it validates a new theory that would have previously been rejected if raised at trial [see Hattersley v. American Nucleonics Corp. (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 397, 402, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 331 ; Bunch v. Coachella Valley Water Dist. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 203, 210, 262 Cal. Rptr. 513 ; Marsango v. Automobile Club of So. Cal. (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 688, 694, 82 Cal. Rptr. 92] .

On the other hand, a reviewing court may decline retroactive application of new law if it raises substantial concerns about the effects of the new rule on the general administration of justice, or unfairly undermines the parties' reasonable reliance on previously existing law [Newman v. Emerson Radio Corp. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 973, 978, 258 Cal. Rptr. 592, 772 P.2d 1059] . For discussion of retroactive application of law generally, see § 41.32.

The second situation involves an issue of public importance or public interest, or an issue relating to the due administration of justice [Rental Housing Association of Northern Alameda County v. City of Oakland (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 741, 755, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 181 ; Preserve Shorecliff Homeowners v. City of San Clemente (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1427, 1433, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 332 ; Raphael v. Bloomfield (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 617, 621, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 583 (appellate court considered wife's new argument that workers' compensation benefits were separate property because it was question of law involving issue of public policy not previously addressed in California)]. For example, appellate courts have considered claims of reversible error based on the trial court judge's bias, although these were raised initially on appeal. The courts have held that this type of claim involves both a matter of public interest and the due administration of justice. Furthermore, although a party may raise the issue at trial, it would be unfair to require a party to raise it and risk offending the trial court judge [see Catchpole v. Brannon (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 237, 244, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440 (claim of gender bias); see also discussion in § 41.16].

In addition, if an action seeks injunctive relief, an appellate court may take into account events occurring after the trial court judgment [Dowhal v. Smithkline Beecham Consumer Healthcare (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 910, 922 n.4, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 262, 88 P.3d 1] . Also, questions of subject matter jurisdiction are never waived and may be raised for the first time on appeal [see Miranda v. 21st Century Ins. Co. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 913, 920, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 159 (court considered appellant's argument that trial court did not have subject matter jurisdiction to enter discovery orders and to dismiss arbitration proceeding)].

Appellate courts' discretion to excuse forfeiture should be exercised rarely and only in cases presenting an important legal issue [In re S.B. (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 1287, 1293-1294, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 786, 90 P.3d 746 (court of appeal did not abuse discretion in determining important child custody issue that has divided courts of appeal, even though mother failed to raise it in lower court)].

The Supreme Court, in particular, will usually consider a new theory for the first time on appeal only if the issue is one of public importance, in addition to its being an issue that does not turn on the facts of the case [see Cedars-Sinai v. Superior Court (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 1, 5-8 n.2, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 248, 954 P.2d 511 (deciding issue raised for first time in Supreme Court although it did not turn on facts, was fully argued by parties and amici curiae, involved an important issue that should be resolved in the public interest without further delay, and the issue would likely have been rejected below because it would have required reversal of controlling court of appeal decisions); see also Gavaldon v. DaimlerChrysler Corp. (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 1246, 1265, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 793, 90 P.3d 752 (Supreme Court refused to hear theory briefly raised at trial, but not in Court of Appeal, and requiring extensive evidentiary record); Adams v. Murakami (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 105, 115 n.5, 284 Cal. Rptr. 318, 813 P.2d 1348 (stating "[w]e cannot allow the public interest to be thwarted by a defendant's oversight or trial tactics"); Fisher v. City of Berkeley (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 644, 654, n.3, 209 Cal. Rptr. 682, 693 P.2d 261 ; Sea & Sage Audubon Society, Inc. v. Planning Com. (1983) 34 Cal, 3d 421, 417, 194 Cal. Rptr. 357, 668 P.2d 664] .

An appellate court is more likely to consider an issue not raised in the trial court if the issue involves a fundamental error, such as one involving illegality, unclean hands, failure to state a cause of action, or some other variance so fundamental that it constitutes a departure or failure of proof [Watson v. Department of Transportation (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 885, 890, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 594 ; County of Orange v. Ivansco (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 328, 331, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 886 (constitutional issue raised for first time on appeal)].

[5] Court Need Not Review Issues Not Raised in Appellant's Brief

If an appellant has neglected to present a point in the opening brief or has presented the point only superficially, that point is deemed waived or abandoned, and the appellant may not insist that the reviewing court consider it when deciding the case [Fidelity National Title Insurance Co. v. Schroeder (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 834, 847 n.11, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854 ; Wall Street Network, Ltd. v. New York Times Company (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 1171, 1177, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 6 (failure to address summary adjudication of claim on appeal constitutes abandonment of claim); Ocean Harbor House Homeowners Association v. California Coastal Commission (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 215, 242 n.9, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 432 ; In re Groundwater Cases (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 659, 693, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 827 (declining to entertain arguments that party withheld until filing its reply brief); Medill v. Westport Insurance Corp. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 819, 836 n.3, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 570 ; American International Specialty Lines Insurance Company v. Continental Casualty Insurance Company (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1342, 1359, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 ; Baugh v. Garl (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 737, 746, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 539 ; Feitelberg v. Credit Suisse First Boston, LLC (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 997, 1022, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 592 (appellate court refuses to consider points raised in reply brief for first time); Singh v. Lipworth (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 40, 42 n.2, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 178 (points raised for first time in reply brief, other than those strictly responsive to arguments in respondent's brief, are waived, unless good cause shown); Dieckmeyer v. Redevelopment Agency of the City of Huntington Beach (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 248, 260, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 895 ; In re Estate of DeLoreto (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1048, 1053, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 513 (court need not decide issue raised for first time in reply brief); Stoll v. Shuff (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 22, 25, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 249 ; see also Tan v. California Fed. Sav. & Loan Assn. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 800, 811, 189 Cal. Rptr. 775 (the general rule is that points not raised by appellant in briefs are deemed waived or abandoned)].

Similarly, the appellate court may treat as waived any issue or contention raised in a brief in which the appellant (or respondent) has failed to provide citation to authority [Woods v. Horton (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 658, 677, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 332 ; City of Arcadia v. State Water Resources Control Bd. (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 1392, 1428-1429, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 373 (party waived issue by failing to develop argument); City of Merced v. American Motorists Insurance Company (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1316, 1328-1329, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 788 (court refused to hear challenge to admission of certain evidence); Jones v. Superior Court (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 92, 99, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 264 ; Amato v. Mercury Casualty Co. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1784, 1794, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73 ; for discussion of rules for use in determining what constitutes citable authority, and further discussion of citation to authority in briefs, see respectively § 41.30 et seq. and Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, §§ 50.13[1][i], [2][c][iv], 50.14[6]].

This rule, however, is largely for the convenience of the appellate courts. A reviewing court is empowered to decide a case on any proper point or theory, whether urged by counsel or not. Thus, in an appropriate case, an appellate court may decide an appeal on issues not raised in the briefs [Tan v. California Fed. Sav. & Loan Assn. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 800, 811, 189 Cal. Rptr. 775 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 187 (if jurisdiction is conferred by state constitution or statute, a court has all the means necessary to carry that jurisdiction into effect); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 182 (provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 182 et seq., including Code Civ. Proc. § 187, are not limited in scope or meaning to former justice courts as implied by the chapter heading to these provisions)].

If, however, the issue was not raised at trial, in addition to its being omitted from appellant's briefs, it must otherwise come within the exception to the general rule that precludes consideration of a theory for the first time on appeal [see, e.g., Schubert v. Lowe (1924) 193 Cal. 291, 294, 223 P. 550 (issue raised for the first time at oral argument involved important legal principle necessary to proper resolution of appeal); Tan v. California Fed. Sav. & Loan Assn. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 800, 811, 189 Cal. Rptr. 775 (issue arose due to newly decided case law); see also discussion regarding consideration of new theories on appeal in [4], above].

If an appellate court decides to resolve an issue not previously briefed or argued, and the issue is dispositive of the appeal, the court must ensure that the parties are given an adequate opportunity to brief the issue, by supplemental briefing or otherwise [see Gov. Code § 68081 (court of appeal is required to grant a rehearing if it decided the appeal on the basis of a new issue without allowing the parties an opportunity to address that issue in supplemental briefing); Schubert v. Lowe (1924) 193 Cal. 291, 294, 223 P. 550 (issue raised for the first time at oral argument in Supreme Court was afterwards fully briefed so that resolution of issue did not prejudice parties)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Raising Issues Omitted From the Opening Brief. If counsel for appellant realizes that he or she omitted an argument from the opening brief, the better practice is to include the point in the reply brief and simultaneously file an application for leave to file that portion of the reply brief as a supplemental brief. The application should explain why the argument was omitted and the importance of the issue to the case, and should suggest that respondent's counsel be allowed to reply in a letter or other supplemental brief. Although the appellant will not get the last word on the issue, the court is more likely to allow the issue to be raised when it is accompanied by such an application.

Respondent's counsel, on the other hand, should read the appellant's reply brief soon after receiving it to see whether appellant's counsel has raised any new issue without seeking leave of court. If so, counsel has to make a judgment call: wait and address the issue at oral argument, seek leave to file a letter brief in response, or move to strike that portion of appellant's reply brief or have the reply brief refiled without argument on the new issue. The better course depends on the significance of the issue, whether the respondent has a good answer, and whether the respondent believes that the appellate court is likely to consider the issue.

For discussion regarding the procedures by which the parties or the appellate court may request supplemental briefing of issues not previously raised, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.18.

[6] Review Based on Respondent's Request Under Code Civ. Proc. § 906

A respondent, without appealing from the judgment, may request that the appellate court review any appealable ruling or order to determine whether or not the appellant was prejudiced by the error or errors on which the appellant relies for reversal or modification [Code Civ. Proc. § 906; see Redevelopment Agency of San Diego v. Attisha (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 357, 374 (respondent could argue evidence was excludable for purpose of determining whether appellant was prejudiced by error upon which appellant relied for reversal)]. The purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 906 is to allow a respondent to assert a legal theory that may result in affirmance of the judgment notwithstanding the errors complained of by appellant.

In other words, this statutory provision permits a respondent to argue, without cross appealing, that error other than that complained of by appellant occurred, which, if corrected, would eliminate any justification or need to reverse or modify the judgment due to the other errors raised by appellant [see California State Employees' Assn. v. State Personnel Bd. (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 372, 382 n.7, 223 Cal. Rptr. 826 ; see, e.g., Citizens for Uniform Laws v. County of Contra Costa (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1468, 1472, 285 Cal. Rptr. 456 (issue of appellant's standing to sue was cognizable on appeal for purpose of determining whether trial court's denial of relief to appellant should nevertheless be affirmed on a legal theory other than that on which the trial court relied, despite respondent's failure to cross appeal)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 906 is ordinarily invoked to argue for affirmance notwithstanding the errors complained of by appellant. It refers more broadly, however, to a review of the prejudice suffered by appellant. Thus, for example, when an appellant claims error in the jury instructions and argues for reversal with directions for entry of a directed verdict, it is appropriate for respondent to argue under Code Civ. Proc. § 906 that the appellant has overstated the prejudice, if any, suffered from the claimed error, and that if reversal is warranted the appellant would be entitled to a new trial but not a directed verdict [Selger v. Steven Brothers, Inc. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1585, 1594, 272 Cal. Rptr. 544] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Distinguishing Section 906 Argument From Arguing "Wrong Reason But Right Ruling." Code Civ. Proc. § 906 provides for a review of claims by a respondent that reasons exist for affirming a judgment despite the errors raised on appeal by appellant. This argument, essentially that the claimed error is harmless because of other factors, or is at least not as prejudicial as claimed by appellant, should be distinguished from the argument that there was in fact no error.

Counsel for respondent should consider the latter argument, and research whether there is any legal theory that renders the trial court action correct, even if the trial court did not rely on that theory and trial counsel did not argue for it.

If a trial court's ruling is right on any applicable theory of law, it is not error at all, notwithstanding the fact that the trial court may have made the ruling for the wrong reason or due to erroneous reasoning [see D'Amico v. Board of Medical Examiners (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 1, 19, 112 Cal. Rptr. 786, 520 P.2d 10 , and discussion in § 41.14[3]].

[7] Mootness

Generally, an appellate court will not give opinions on moot questions or abstract propositions or declare principles or rules of law that cannot affect the matter in issue [Consol. etc. Air Corp. v. United A. etc. Workers (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 859, 863, 167 P.2d 725 ; Watkins v. Wachovia Corporation (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 1576, 1588, 92 Cal. Rptr. 409 (settlement agreement may not preserve parties' right to appeal)]. A case is moot when the reviewing court's decision "can have no practical impact or provide the parties effectual relief" [MHC Operating Limited Partnership v. City of San Jose (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 204, 214, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 564 (citing Woodward Park Homeowners Assn. v. Garreks, Inc. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 880, 888 , by complying with writ, city rendered appeal moot)]. A moot appeal is normally dismissed. When, however, the action itself is rendered moot, and the judgment at trial was therefore improperly rendered, dismissal of the appeal operates as an affirmance of that judgment, which is the exact opposite of the appellate court's intention. In such an appeal the correct disposition is to reverse the judgment with directions to the lower court to dismiss the action [San Bernardino Valley Audubon Soc. v. Metropolitan Water Dist. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 382, 404, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836 (reversal with directions to dismiss when action was rendered moot by subsequent legislation that required a result contrary to the trial court's judgment)].

An appellate court will sometimes decide issues in a case rendered moot, exercising an inherent power to resolve the issues if they are matters of continuing public interest and likely to recur [see Konig v. Fair Employment and Housing Commission (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 743, 746 n.3, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 50 P.3d 718 (Supreme Court decided case even though party died before oral argument because case involved issue of great public interest) ; Baluyut v. Superior Court (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 826, 829-830 n.4, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101, 911 P.2d 1 ; In re Anna S. (2010) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1489, 1497, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 889 ; City of San Jose v. International Assn. of Firefighters, Local 230 (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 408, 417-418, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 396 ; Carson Citizens for Reform v. Kawagoe (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 357, 364-365, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 358 ; Hollister v. Monterey Insurance Company (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 455, 480, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 72 (court "loath" to dismiss appeal where result would be further expenditure of resources and further delay in achieving final resolution); Gonzalez v. Munoz (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 413, 419-420, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 317 (agreeing to hear domestic violence case that rarely reaches appeal stage)]. A court will likely decline to exercise its discretion when the issues presented are essentially factual in nature and therefore require resolution on a case-by-case basis [MHC Operating Limited Partnership v. City of San Jose (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 204, 215, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 564 (whether specific party is indispensable is fact-specific question)]. In addition, a court will decide an appeal if only part but not all of the controversy has been rendered moot [Mercury Interactive Corporation v. Klein (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 60, 78, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88].

For further discussion of mootness and exceptions to the general rule, which usually arise in the context of a motion to dismiss the appeal, see Ch. 48, Appeal: Abandonment, Dismissal, and Stipulated Reversal, § 48.13[2][h].

[8] Review Limited to Final and Appealable Judgment or Order

Appeal is limited to the review of judgments and orders expressly appealable by statutory provision, judgments that are, generally, a final disposition of all causes pending between the parties [see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1].

For discussion of the one final judgment rule and the statutory provisions delineating those judgments and orders that are appealable, see Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal, § 42.12.

[9] Ripeness

The doctrine of "ripeness" focuses on whether the issues in a particular case are ready for judicial review. Although the federal doctrine of ripeness is rooted in the constitutional case or controversy requirement [U.S. Const., art. III], California cases have drawn on analogous concepts developed as part of the common law of judicial review, including the admonition against issuing purely advisory opinions [see People ex rel. Lynch v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 910, 912, 83 Cal. Rptr. 670, 464 P.2d 126; Teachers' Retirement Board v. Genest (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 1012, 1040, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 326; In re S.C. (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 396, 414, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 453 (court rejects argument regarding how dependency proceedings are conducted in Sacramento County Superior Court when counsel made no effort to show that purported practice occurred in specific case)] . The leading California case, Pacific Legal Foundation v. California Coastal Com. (1982) 33 Cal. 3d 158, 188 Cal. Rptr. 104, 655 P.2d 306 , involved a general, facial challenge to guidelines adopted by the California Coastal Commission interpreting the Coastal Act's public access provisions. In ruling that the action was unripe, the Court applied the federal test for ripeness enunciated by the United States Supreme Court in Abbott Laboratories v. Gardner (1967) 387 U.S. 136, 87 S. Ct. 1507, 18 L. Ed. 2d 681 .

The test articulated in Abbott involves a two part inquiry [Abbott Laboratories v. Gardner (1967) 387 U.S. 136, 148-149, 87 S. Ct. 1507, 18 L. Ed. 2d 681 ; see also Gardner v. Toilet Goods Assoc. (1967) 387 U.S. 167, 87 S. Ct. 1526, 18 L. Ed. 2d 704 (companion case to Abbott Laboratories in which claims held unripe)]:

- The fitness of the issues for judicial decision.
- The hardship to the parties of withholding court consideration.

In Pacific Legal Foundation v. California Coastal Commission (1982) 33 Cal. 3d 158, 188 Cal. Rptr. 104, 655 P.2d 306 , the California Supreme Court held that the case was not ripe for judicial review because the plaintiffs were challenging the guidelines in the abstract without application to particular developments. The Court noted that the plaintiffs were "in essence inviting [the Court] to speculate as to the types of developments for which the access conditions might be imposed, and then to express an opinion on the validity and proper scope of such hypothetical exactions" [Pacific Legal Foundation v. California Coastal Com. (1982) 33 Cal. 3d 158, 172, 188 Cal. Rptr. 104, 655 P.2d 306] .

In San Mateo County Coastal Landowners' Association v. County of San Mateo (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 523, 545, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117 , the court reviewed the distinction between constitutional challenges to an ordinance "as applied" (i.e., ripeness) and "facial." The court held that the measure's requirement that landowners dedicate easements was not ripe for challenge as applied because the plaintiffs had not submitted a subdivision plan or applied for a permit or variance from the local authority which had been conclusively denied or in this instance subjected to the easement requirement [San Mateo County Coastal Landowners' Assn. v. County of San Mateo (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 523, 547, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117 (also holding that the policy was not facially unconstitutional because the plaintiffs had not shown that unconstitutional application was unavoidable)]. Although the court of appeal did not consider the hardship test of Abbott, the case is clearly unripe under that standard because the plaintiffs were not immediately facing the dilemma of either complying with the guidelines or risking penalties for violating them. The landowners could wait until they applied for a development permit and then challenge any invalid imposition of dedication conditions. Although the possibility that they would have to comply with access conditions might tend to inhibit property owners from planning improvements on their land, the hardship was not imminent or significant enough to compel immediate resolution of the controversy [see Pacific Legal Foundation v. California Coastal Com. (1982) 33 Cal. 3d 158, 172-173, 188 Cal. Rptr. 104, 655 P.2d 306] .

In determining the ripeness of a controversy under the Pacific Legal Foundation and Abbott standard, courts may consider the existence and importance of any public interest in the controversy. The fact of "widespread public interest" may tip the balance in a doubtful case, and cause the court to find that adjudication of the controversy is not premature [see Pacific Legal Foundation v. California Coastal Com. (1982) 33 Cal. 3d 158, 170, 188 Cal. Rptr. 104, 655 P.2d 306 ; Farm Sanctuary, Inc. v. Department of Food & Agriculture (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 495, 504, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 75 ; see also Hunt v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 984, 998-999, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 236, 987 P.2d 705 (noting that ripeness requirement does not prevent court from deciding "concrete dispute" if deferred decision will result in uncertainty in the law, particularly when there is widespread public interest in the answer to a particular legal question); but see Sherwyn v. Department of Social Services (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 52, 58, 218 Cal. Rptr. 778 (case was not ripe despite "widespread public interest")].

[10] Political Question

In deference to the doctrine of separation of powers, a court will exclude from review those controversies grounded in policy choices and value determinations committed to the legislative and executive branches. Nevertheless, the judicial function includes authority to interpret the law and declare whether the legislative or the executive branch has acted beyond its authority [Schabarum v. Legislature (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1205, 1213-1215, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745] . Broadly, the political question concept requires the courts to defer in its substantive decision making to the legislative and executive branches in matters such as the initial presumption of constitutionality or the wisdom of legislation. Specifically, however, the political question concept can require dismissal of an action without reaching the merits, when complete deference to the legislative or executive branch is required and there is nothing upon which the court can adjudicate without impermissibly intruding on the authority of the other branch [Schabarum v. Legislature (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1205, 1214, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745] .

[11] Resolution of Constitutional Issues

If the appellate court can avoid resolving a constitutional issue by deciding a statutory issue, it will do so. The court will resolve constitutional issues only if absolutely necessary [Souza v. Westlands Water Dist. (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 879, 899, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 78 (appellate court has obligation to avoid deciding constitutional questions unless absolutely necessary); Gatto v. County of Sonoma (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 744, 753, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550 (declining to reach constitutional issue if appeal resolved by statutory issue)].

§ 41.11 General Standards of Review of Judgment on Appeal

The standard of review governs the manner in which the appellate court will examine the record on a given issue or with regard to a particular judgment or order. Different standards of review may be applied to different issues on appeal.

The three basic standards of review are summarized as follows and discussed further in §§ 41.12-41.15. The following summary focuses on how much, or how little, deference is given by the reviewing court to the trial court's ruling [see Marer, Demystifying Appellate Review Standards, 7(2) Cal. Litig. 33, 34 (1994)]:

- The appellate court accords a great degree of deference to the trial court's ruling, under the "abuse of discretion" standard, which requires affirmance of the ruling absent a showing in the record of abuse of discretion by the lower court or tribunal. Under this standard a high degree of deference is given to the ruling or judgment [see Denham v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 557, 564, 86 Cal. Rptr. 65, 468 P.2d 193] . For further discussion of the "abuse of discretion" standard of review and when it applies, see § 41.12.

- The second standard, in which, again, great deference is given either to the trial court or to the jury, as trier of fact, is the standard that is applied in reviewing factual determinations. It is usually termed the "substantial evidence" standard. Under this standard the appellate court will generally affirm a factual conclusion made by the trial court or jury so long as it is supported by substantial evidence in the record [Nestle v. City of Santa Monica (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 920, 101 Cal. Rptr. 568, 496 P.2d 480] . For further discussion of the "substantial evidence" standard of review and when it applies, see § 41.13.

- The third standard, usually termed the "independent" or "de novo" review standard, is the standard under which the appellate court conducts an independent review of the record, giving no deference to the ruling or judgment of the trial court, and conducting essentially the same inquiry as that conducted by the trial court [Estate of Coate (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 982, 986, 159 Cal. Rptr. 794] . For further discussion of the "independent" standard of review and when it applies, see § 41.14.

PRACTICE TIP:

Determine and Provide Applicable Standards of Review for Every Contention on Appeal. The initial determination to be made by appellate counsel in researching whether to take an appeal, or in drafting argument on appeal, is the determination of the standard of review that applies, or arguably applies, to every contention of the appeal. As discussed below, the applicable standard determines not only the focus in arguing error, but may also have significant impact on the deference accorded to the trial court ruling by the appellate court, and hence the likelihood of any finding of reversible error.

Although the deadlines for filing a notice of appeal often make this a difficult task, it is critical to research sufficiently the standards applicable to every potential claim, and to do this before deciding whether to pursue an appeal. Counsel should not wait until writing the brief. Many futile appeals are prosecuted because appellants' counsel are ignorant of the applicable standard of review until they are already far into the appeal process.

The applicable standard should be determined and stated for each contention, because several standards may apply to the appeal as a whole. There may be separate issues involving separate standards, or a single issue may combine more than one standard. For example, some mixed questions of law and fact require application of both the "substantial evidence" test and the "independent review" test [see discussion in § 41.15]. Similarly, a challenged ruling may be subject to the "abuse of discretion" test, whereas the validity of fact findings relating to that ruling will be subject to the "substantial evidence" test.

Although there is no requirement in California that the appellant state the standard of review for each contention in the opening brief, it is, in practice, an extremely useful practice to state the appropriate standard of review at the outset of the brief, or, if different standards apply to different issues, at the beginning of the argument relating to each issue [compare Ninth Cir. R., Rule 28-2.5 (requiring appellant to identify proper standard of review at outset of each contention)]. Doing so helps frame the issue for argument and focuses on the appropriate burden for showing error. Moreover, it provides the appellate court with appropriate argument when the applicable standard of review is itself in dispute.

For further discussion regarding inclusion of discussion of applicable standards of review in the appellate briefs, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.13[2][c][ii].

For discussion of the applicable standard of review in a particular proceeding, consult the General Index of this publication, which provides references to the general coverage of that proceeding in the trial court.

§ 41.12 Review Based on Claim of Abuse of Discretion by Trial Court

[1] General Standard and Applicability

Under the "abuse of discretion" standard of review, an appellate court will not reverse a ruling of the trial court unless it appears a miscarriage of justice has occurred because the trial court exceeded the bounds of reason, all circumstances considered; the appellate court will not substitute its opinion for that of the trial court and divest the trial court of its discretionary power [Denham v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 557, 564, 86 Cal. Rptr. 65, 468 P.2d 193 ; Yield Dynamics, Inc. v. Tea Systems Corporation (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 547, 556-560, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 ; In re of Marriage Heiner (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1514, 1519-1520, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 730 ; Hernandez v. Superior Court (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 1242, 1246-1247, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 821 (court had discretion to continue discovery deadlines due to death of party's counsel)].

The standard applies in the review of a wide variety of orders and judgments. Most typically, it applies in situations in which the appellate court's ruling will not aid uniformity of decision making in the lower courts; that is, to review trial court rulings that are rendered in a proceeding that is common and recurring, that involves consideration of a myriad factors, that results in an equitable determination dependent on conflicting facts that vary widely from case to case, or that involves a combination of these or other similar characteristics [see Marer, Demystifying Appellate Review Standards, 7(2) Cal. Litig. 33, 34 (1994)]. In such proceedings, because the trial court is required to exercise "discretion," "wide discretion," or "broad discretion," the appellate court affords great deference to its ruling [see also § 41.11].

"Discretion," in the abuse of discretion standard, refers to the relationship between trial and appellate courts, denoting essentially the amount of deference the appellate court is willing to give to the trial court. As such, it cannot be defined further without regard to the particular subject of discretion.

PRACTICE TIP:

Researching and Arguing Application of the Abuse of Discretion Standard. The "abuse of discretion" standard applies to a wide variety of particular orders or judgments. Many rulings that fall within the trial court's discretion are not intuitively obvious; consequently, it is necessary to do sufficient research to determine whether the order or judgment will be governed by the abuse of discretion standard before deciding whether to pursue an appeal. If counsel for appellant are not aware that this standard will govern review of the trial court's ruling, they are likely to pursue an appeal that is virtually hopeless.

Because the abuse of discretion standard applies in many different situations, appellant's counsel should always try to read all of the decisions involving the type of ruling being challenged. The goal is to find a decision or decisions that reversed a trial court's exercise of discretion on similar or analogous facts. The appellant's opening brief should construct an argument that discusses the facts in these helpful decisions and compares with the facts of the appeal. If there are no such precedents, appellant's consider should reconsider whether the appeal is worth pursuing.

The goal of respondent's counsel is similar and usually easier: to find decisions that have upheld a trial court's exercise of discretion on a similar fact pattern. Respondent's counsel should always argue that the appellate court should not substitute its judgment for that of the trial court, even if it would have ruled differently in the first instance.

It can sometimes be difficult for appellant's counsel to explain the abuse of discretion standard to the client. It may help to discuss the facts in similar cases in which the trial court's ruling was affirmed. In some opinions, the appellate court will even go so far as to state that it would have decided the case differently if it were sitting as a trial court, but it nevertheless cannot say that the trial court abused its discretion.

For discussion of the some of the particular orders, judgments, or rulings to which the abuse of discretion standards applies (or usually applies), see [3], below.

[2] When "Abuse of Discretion" Occurs

The "discretion" of the trial court is subject to the limitations of legal principles governing the subject of its action. The scope of discretion always depends on the particular law being applied. That scope may vary greatly according to the context [City of Sacramento v. Drew (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1287, 1297-1298, 255 Cal. Rptr. 704] .

The appellate court cannot reverse merely because it disagrees with the ruling or order being challenged [Rappleyea v. Campbell (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 975, 987, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669, 884 P.2d 126 ; *Ajaxo Inc. v. E*TRADE Group, Inc. (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 21*]. The discretion of a trial court cannot be whimsical and uncontrolled, however. "Abuse" of discretion, justifying a reversal of the trial court ruling, may be found by the appellate court to occur when, all relevant circumstances considered, the trial court "exceeded the bounds of reason," or when no judge would reasonably make the same order under the same circumstances [Rappleyea v. Campbell (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 975, 987, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669, 884 P.2d 126 (reversal when ruling or order exceeds the bounds of "allowable discretion" under the circumstances); Denham v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 557, 564, 86 Cal. Rptr. 65, 468 P.2d 193 (reversal when court "exceeds the bounds of reasons" considering all the circumstances); Miyamoto v. DMV (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1210, 1217-1219, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 459 (court abused discretion in refusing to admit blood alcohol report); see also Westside Community for Independent Living, Inc. v. Obledo (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 348, 355, 188 Cal. Rptr. 873, 657 P.2d 365 ; In re Marriage of Smith (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 469, 480, 274 Cal. Rptr. 911] . The appellant has the burden, however, of showing a clear case of abuse, absent which the appellate court will not reverse and substitute its opinion for that of the trial court, and thus divest the trial court of its discretionary power [Denham v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 557, 564, 86 Cal. Rptr. 65, 468 P.2d 193] .

Because discretion in a given context is determined by the particular laws being applied, it may also be argued that any action by the trial court that transgresses the confines of the applicable principles of law is outside the scope of discretion and is thus an abuse of that discretion [see Law Offices of Dixon R. Howell v. Valley (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 1076, 1090, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 499 (court's refusal to acknowledge and exercise discretion was abuse of discretion); Marer, Demystifying Appellate Review Standards, 7(2) Cal. Litig. 33, 34 (1994) (citing City of Sacramento v. Drew (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1287, 1297-1298, 255 Cal. Rptr. 704)].

Even if an abuse of discretion is shown, this error must also be shown to be prejudicial to justify reversal [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 13, and discussion of prejudicial error in § 41.10[1]; see also Denham v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 557, 564, 86 Cal. Rptr. 65, 468 P.2d 193 (trial court ruling will not be disturbed for abuse of discretion unless it appears that there has been a miscarriage of justice as a result)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Arguing Lack of Exercise as Abuse. In some instances the trial court may not have realized that it had discretion, but thought it was legally required to rule the way it did. In these cases appellant's counsel may argue that the trial court abused its discretion because the record shows that it failed to exercise any discretion at all.

[3] Particular Applications of Abuse of Discretion Standard

[a] Admission and Exclusion of Evidence Under Evidence Code Section 352

Evid. Code § 352 gives the trial court discretion to exclude evidence if its probative value is substantially outweighed by the probability that its admission will (a) necessitate undue consumption of time or (b) create substantial danger of undue prejudice, of confusing the issues, or of misleading the jury. A trial court's ruling under Evid. Code § 352 will be upset only if there is a clear showing of an abuse of discretion [*Ajaxo Inc. v. E*TRADE Group, Inc. (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 21* ; Aguayo v. Crompton & Knowles Corp. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1032, 1038, 228 Cal. Rptr. 768] .

An appellate court is neither authorized nor warranted to substitute its judgment for that of the trial judge in a Section 352 ruling, but may reverse only if an alleged abuse of discretion clearly constitutes a miscarriage of justice [Cain v. State Farm Mut. Auto Ins. Co. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 783, 798, 121 Cal. Rptr. 200] .

For further discussion concerning exclusion of evidence under Evid. Code § 352, see Ch. 373, Motions in Limine .

[b] Motion for New Trial

A trial court's determination of a motion for new trial is usually reviewed under the abuse of discretion standard [see Romero v. Riggs (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 117, 121-122, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 219] .

Orders granting or denying a new trial are treated somewhat differently. Moreover, other review standards may apply depending on the grounds for the order. For example, an order for a new trial granted on the ground that the verdict was against the law, is reviewed under a version of the substantial evidence standard: the order will be reversed unless the verdict is unsupported by substantial evidence to an extent that would justify a directed verdict against the party in whose favor the verdict was returned [see Berge v. International Harvester Co. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 152, 160, 190 Cal. Rptr. 815 ; see also Lane v. Hughes Aircraft Co. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 405, 412, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 60, 993 P.2d 388 (order granting a new trial based on insufficiency of evidence or excessive or inadequate damages is reversed only if there is no substantial evidence in the record to support the trial court's reasons and must be sustained unless no reasonable trier of fact could have found for the party moving for a new trial; normal presumption in favor of correctness of the verdict is replaced by a presumption in favor of the new trial order)]. In other instances the order may involve an error of law subject to independent review [see, e.g., The Oakland Raiders v. National Football League (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1497, 1506, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 141 (trial court's order granting new trial failed to specify court's reason for granting new trial and, therefore, appellate court required to independently review motion); City of San Diego v. D.R. Horton San Diego Holding Co. (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 668, 678, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 338 (order granting new trial based on determination that two of jury's special verdict findings were inconsistent analyzed as matter of law)].

When an appellate court concludes the trial court abused its discretion in denying a motion for new trial, the appellate court must review the entire record, including the evidence, to independently determine whether the denial of the motion was prejudicial [Piscitelli v. Friedenberg (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 953, 9, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 88] . For further discussion of prejudicial error, see*§ 41.10*.

For further discussion concerning motions for new trial and review of such motions, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial, § 357.60 et seq.

[c] Relief From Judgment or Order

The disposition of a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is subject to the discretion of the trial court. On appeal, the appropriate test of abuse of discretion is whether or not the trial court exceeded the bounds of reason when the case is viewed in its entirety [In re Marriage of Connolly (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 590, 597-598, 153 Cal. Rptr. 423, 591 P.2d 911] .

While the general standard of review for grant or denial of relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is abuse of discretion, an exception occurs when the applicant for relief qualifies under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) for mandatory relief from a dismissal entered as a result of an attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect. In such cases, the application of the mandatory provision that does not turn on disputed facts is subject to independent review [Leader v. Health Industries of America, Inc. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 603, 612, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 489] .

For further discussion concerning relief from judgments and orders under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 and review of such proceedings, see Ch. 489, Relief from Judgments and Orders .

[d] Award of Attorney's Fees

The trial court has the initial responsibility of determining the appropriateness and amount of an award of attorney's fees. The court's determination will be reviewed for abuse of discretion [Bartling v. Glendale Adventist Medical Center (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 97, 103, 228 Cal. Rptr. 847] . For further discussion concerning awards of attorney's fees, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney Fees .

[e] Award of Expert Witness Fees Under Code Civ. Proc. § 998

Determination of a reasonable expert witness fee to be awarded to a prevailing party is subject to the discretion of the trial court under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 [see Peterson v. John Crane, Inc. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 498, 513, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 185] . The trial court is in a far better position, having heard the entire case and observed the demeanor of witnesses, to exercise this discretion and determine what was a reasonable amount and what was reasonably necessary. The determination will not be reversed absent a clear abuse of discretion [Huber, Hunt & Nichols, Inc. v. Moore (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 278, 315, 136 Cal. Rptr. 603] . For discussion concerning expert witness fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 998, see Ch. 520, Settlement and Release .

[f] Award of Sanctions

Review of a trial court's order of sanctions is for abuse of discretion only [Luke v. Baldwin-United Corp. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 664, 668, 213 Cal. Rptr. 654 ; see Decker v. The U.D. Registry, Inc. (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 1382, 1392 (court reversed sanctions order when order did not recite in detail the conduct or circumstances justifying it)]. For further discussion concerning sanctions in the trial court, see Ch. 510, Sanctions .

[g] Discovery Orders

Determinations on matters of discovery are normally subject to the trial court's discretion and will be reversed only for abuse of discretion [Toshiba America Electronics Components v. Superior Court (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 762, 767-768, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 532] . For further discussion concerning review of discovery proceedings generally (which, if crucial, may be reviewed immediately on petition for extraordinary writ rather than by appeal from a final judgment), see Ch. 200, Discovery: Review of Discovery Orders .

[h] Motion for Continuance

A trial court's determination with respect to a motion for continuance is reviewed only for abuse of discretion [In re Marriage of Falcone & Fyke (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 814, 822-823, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 588 ; Mahoney v. Southland Mental Health Associates Medical Group (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 167, 171-172, 272 Cal. Rptr. 602] . For discussion and forms concerning continuance proceedings generally, see Ch. 136, Continuances .

[i] Dismissal for Delay in Prosecution

A trial court's ruling on a motion to dismiss for delay in prosecution will not be reversed unless a clear case of abuse is shown and unless there has been a miscarriage of justice. The appellate court must not substitute its opinion for the trial court's and thereby divest the trial court of its discretionary power [Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 331, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58] . For further discussion concerning dismissal for delay in prosecution, see Ch. 212, Dismissal, § 212.60 et seq.

[j] Motion to Disqualify Counsel

When reviewing an order granting or denying a motion to disqualify an attorney, the reviewing court defers to the trial court's decision, absent an abuse of discretion, unless only legal matters are at issue [Sharp v. Next Entertainment, Inc. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 410, 425, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 37]. Discretion is deemed abused when there is a failure to exercise discretion in a situation in which the exercise of discretion is required [Truck Insurance Exchange v. Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1050, 1055, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 228] . For discussion concerning disqualification of counsel, see Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics , § 72.430 et seq.

[k] Proceedings for Forum Non Conveniens

Under most circumstances, the abuse of discretion standard applies to review a determination regarding forum non conveniens. However, if the forum selection is subject to a contractual agreement, most courts will uphold the contractual forum selection unless there is substantial evidence of the requirements for invalidating a contract [Cal-State Business Products & Services, Inc. v. Ricoh (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 1666, 1680-1681, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 417 ; but see Bancomer, S.A. v. Superior Court (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 1450, 1457, n.7, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 435 (declining to apply substantial evidence test even though contractual forum selection clause at issue)]. For discussion concerning forum non conveniens, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal .

[l] Motion or Action for Injunction

The abuse of discretion standard usually applies to review a ruling on a motion or action for an injunction, since review involves evaluating interrelated factors of the plaintiff's likelihood of success and the magnitude of interim harm to the plaintiff if the preliminary injunction is denied [Cinquegrani v. Department of Motor Vehicles (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 741, 745-746, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 816]. If, however, the likelihood of prevailing depends upon a question of law, the appellate court reviews that question of law under the independent review standard [Strategix, Ltd v. Infocrossing West, Inc. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1068, 1072, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614 ; Sahlolbei v. Providence Healthcare, Inc. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1137, 1155, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 598 (denial of preliminary injunction reversed because of failure to grant plaintiff pre-termination hearing); People ex rel. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Miller Brewing Company (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 1189, 1194, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 861 (court used de novo standard of review because appellant claimed trial court erred in relying on case law construing statutory definition at issue prior to time of pertinent change in statute as applied to instant case); Efstratis v. First Northern Bank of Dixon (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 667, 671, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 445] . Similarly, the substantial evidence standard may apply in some instances to review evidence that was presented to the trial court [see American Academy of Pediatrics v. Van de Kamp (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 831, 838, 263 Cal. Rptr. 46] . For further discussion and forms concerning injunctions and review of proceedings for injunctive relief, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[m] Judicial Notice

A decision of a trial court not to take judicial notice will be upheld unless the reviewing court determines no reasonable judge would have refused to take judicial notice [Leibert v. Transworld Systems, Inc. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1693, 1700, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 65] . This is, in essence, an application of the "abuse of discretion" standard. For further discussion concerning judicial notice, see Ch. 321, Judicial Notice .

For additional examples of application of the abuse of discretion standard, see § 41.14[4][c].

§ 41.13 Review Based on Claim of Insufficient Evidence

[1] "Substantial Evidence" Standard

[a] Applicability to Questions of Fact

The "sufficiency of evidence" standard of review applies to determine the validity of factual determinations that are challenged on appeal as being unsupported by the evidence [see 20th Century Ins. Co. v. Garamendi (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 216, 271, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 807, 878 P.2d 566] . If a question involves the establishment of historical or physical facts, it is a question of fact to which the "substantial evidence" standard applies [Crocker National Bank v. City and County of San Francisco (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 881, 888, 264 Cal. Rptr. 139, 782 P.2d 278] .

A major rationale for the "substantial evidence" test is that the trier of fact, not the appellate court, is in the better position to weigh evidence through such factors as the demeanor and credibility of witnesses. Note however, that the standard has been applied to fact determinations in which this underlying rationale arguably does not apply. For example, the test applies even if the record on appeal includes a videotape of trial testimony [see Moustakas v. Dashevsky (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 752, 754-755, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 753 (stating also that any change in the review standard based on technological changes in the record should be initiated by the Legislature)], and to the sufficiency of declarations or affidavits [see McGlothen v. Superior Court (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 106, 109, 175 Cal. Rptr. 129 (review of facts based on controverted declarations subject to same review applicable to oral testimony; trial court is in better position to weigh effect of contrary facts in opposing declaration)].

The substantial evidence standard applies in cases in which a party could have but did not request a statement of decision [In re Marriage of Arceneaux (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1130, 1133-1134, 275 Cal. Rptr. 797] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Preserving Factual Determinations of Trial Court for Appeal. In certain proceedings before the trial court, a litigant is entitled to request a statement of decision. Upon the proper request of a party, the court must issue a statement of decision explaining the factual and legal basis for its decision as to each of the principal controverted issues at trial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632]. When a statement of decision does not resolve a controverted issue, or if the statement is ambiguous and the record shows that the omission or ambiguity was properly brought to the attention of the trial court, it will not be inferred on appeal that the trial court decided in favor of the prevailingparty as to those facts or on that issue [Code Civ. Proc. § 634]. Accordingly, to preserve the record and avoid adverse inferences on appeal, a party contemplating an appeal should request from the trial court a statement of decision, identifying the principal controverted issues. For further discussion concerning a statement of decision and preservation of factual and legal issues for appeal, see Ch. 529, Statement of Decision .

[b] Factual Determination Upheld if Supported by "Substantial" Evidence

Under the substantial evidence standard, the factual findings of the trial court are presumed correct and a party challenging a judgment has the burden of showing reversible error by an adequate record. In the absence of a contrary showing in the record, all presumptions in favor of the trial court's action will be made by the appellate court [In re Marriage of Bonds (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 1, 31, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 252, 5 P.3d 815 ; Schmidlin v. City of Palo Alto (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 728, 737, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 365 ; Huong Que, Inc. v. Luu (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 400, 409, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 527 ; Construction Financial v. Perlite Plastering Co. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 170, 179, 61 Cal Rtpr. 2d 574].

A claim of insufficient evidence to support a judgment is a challenge to the fact-finding function of the trial court, and that function is entitled to great deference from the courts of appeal [see People v. Louis (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 969, 984-987, 232 Cal. Rptr. 110, 728 P.2d 180] .

Under this standard, the appellant must demonstrate that no reasonable inference supporting the challenged ruling can be drawn from the evidence presented [McRae v. Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 377, 389, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 313 ; Reichardt v. Hoffman (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 754, 766, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 770] . The appellant has the burden to identify and establish deficiencies in the evidence. The appellate court is not required to independently search the evidentiary record to determine its sufficiency [Huong Que, Inc. v. Luu (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 400, 409, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 527] .

Thus, the scope of the review under this standard begins and ends with thedetermination whether there is any substantial evidence that will support the factual conclusions reached by the jury or trial court [Foreman & Clark Corp. v. Fallon (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 875, 881, 92 Cal. Rptr. 162, 479 P.2d 362] .

A recitation of only appellant's evidence does not satisfy this requirement. The appellant's brief must fairly and fully set forth both sides' evidence on the issue with appropriate citations to the record on appeal [Doe v. Roman Catholic Archbishop of Cashel & Emly (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 209, 218, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 158 ; Schmidlin v. City of Palo Alto (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 728, 737, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 365 ; Boeken v. Philip Morris Incorporated (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1640, 1658, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 638 (recitation of only appellant's evidence was not adequate for determining whether any of jury's inferences were reasonable and supported by substantial evidence); Maggio, Inc. v. United Farm Workers (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 847, 878, 278 Cal. Rptr. 250] . If appellant does not address all of the material evidence on the point, the error, if any, is deemed waived [In re Marriage of Fink (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 877, 887-888, 160 Cal. Rptr. 516, 603 P. 2d 881 ; Road Sprinkler Fitters Local Union No. 669 v. G & G Fire Sprinklers, Inc. (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 765, 782, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 804 (because appellant set forth only its own evidence, and ignored trial court's findings and evidence in support of those findings, court held it waived its substantial evidence claim)].

An appellant challenging a judgment on the basis of insufficient evidence must be aware of the importance of presenting a complete record when designating the record on appeal. If the record provided does not reflect all of the conflicting evidence admitted, the reviewing court may conclusively presume the evidence was ample to sustain the trial court's factual findings and limit its review to the question whether the findings support the judgment [

Construction Financial v. Perlite Plastering Co. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 170, 179, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 574] . For discussion and forms relating to designating the record, see Ch. 44, Appeal: Preparing and Filing the Record .

PRACTICE TIP:

Claims Based on Insufficiency of the Evidence. Appellate courts rarely reverse for lack of substantial evidence. These appeals are the hardest to argue and the hardest to win. Counsel should therefore be very selective about when and whether to raise this issue. If there is any other strong ground for an appeal, it is often wise not to challenge the sufficiency of the evidence. Raising this issue can undermine the appellant's overall credibility.

By definition, the appellant must show that after reviewing the entire record, there is no substantial evidence to support what happened in the trial court. Whether the brief argues that there is no substantial evidence or that the evidence doesn't support the legal conclusions underlying the judgment, the statement of facts must include all of the evidence that there is, without trying to hide the evidence from the court. In arguing under this standard of review, as with all others, be honest with the record, and discuss the unfavorable evidence, but argue why that evidence cannot support the judgment.

The principles of the "substantial evidence" standard of review are fairly uniform in their application to review factual determinations by the trial court. Appellate counsel should, nevertheless, always research and argue application of the standard from the viewpoint of precedent applying the standard in the same or similar cases as the one being reviewed. Note in particular that some factual determinations have been held to be outside the application of this standard [see, e.g., McCoy v. Hearst Corporation (1986) 42 Cal.3d 835, 846, 231 Cal. Rptr. 518, 727 P.2d 711 (independent review of determination of actual malice in First Amendment libel case)].

The substantial evidence or sufficiency of the evidence rule applies only to a trial court's resolution of factual conflicts: it does not apply when the question involves the legal consequences that flow from the facts [see Crocker National Bank v. City and County of San Francisco (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 881, 888, 264 Cal. Rptr. 139, 782 P.2d 278] .

For discussion of some of the particular orders, judgments, or rulings to which the substantial evidence standard applies (or usually applies), see [5], below. For discussion of review when the issue involves both questions of law and fact, see § 41.15.

[c] Review of Evidence Is Made in Light Favoring Trial Court Ruling

If there is substantial evidence in the record, that is sufficient to affirm the factual conclusions under review.

Because of the fundamental presumption that a judgment or verdict is correct [see § 43.10[2]], a reviewing court applying the substantial evidence test begins with the presumption that the record contains evidence to sustain every finding of fact [Foreman & Clark Corp. v. Fallon (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 875, 881, 92 Cal. Rptr. 162, 479 P.2d 362] . It then considers the evidence disclosed by the record in the light most favorable to the party prevailing below (i.e., the respondent) and takes into account every reasonable inference supporting the trial court's decision or the jury's verdict [McRae v. Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 377, 389, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 313 ; In re Complex Asbestos Litigation (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 572, 597, 283 Cal. Rptr. 732] . Finally, the appellate court ignores contrary evidence, resolving every conflict in favor of the ruling under review [see Pool v. City of Oakland (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 1051, 1056 n.1, 1061, 232 Cal. Rptr. 528, 728 P.2d 1163 ; see also Marer, Demystifying Appellate Review Standards, 7(2) Cal. Litig. 33, 35 (1994)]. In sum, the appellate court draws all reasonable inferences permitted by the evidence that favor the respondent.

[d] When Evidence Is Not "Substantial"

"Any substantial" evidence is not synonymous with "any" evidence. Toconstitute sufficient substantiality to support the verdict, the evidence must be reasonable in nature, credible, and of solid value; it must actually be substantial proof of the essentials that the law requires in a particular case [Bridgeman v. McPherson, (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 277, 286, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 813 (unsworn memoranda and hearsay do not constitute substantial evidence); Kruse v. Bank of America (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 38, 51, 248 Cal. Rptr. 217] . The judgment or verdict must be a product of logic and comport with physical laws and human experience [Louis & Diederich v. Cambridge European Imports, Inc. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1574, 234 Cal. Rptr. 889] . When an expert's opinion is premised upon facts contradicted by the only evidence of record, the expert's opinion does not constitute substantial evidence in support of the judgment [People ex Rel. Edmund G. Brown, Jr. v. Tri-Union Seafoods, LLC (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 1549, 1567, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 644 ; Maples v. Kern County Assessment Appeals Board (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 172, 198, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 585 (expert's testimony and written report contradicted his claimed use of certain valuation standard and therefore did not constitute substantial evidence in support of the judgment)].

A reviewing court will not uphold a judgment or verdict based on evidence that is inherently improbable. [Schaffield v. Abboud (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1133, 1142, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 205] . However, evidence which merely discloses unusual circumstances does not come within that category; there must exist either aphysical impossibility that the evidence is true, or the falsity of the evidence must be apparent without resort to inferences or deductions [Schaffield v. Abboud (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1133, 1142, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 205] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Reversal Is Rare Under Substantial Evidence Standard. There are relatively few cases in which the appellate courts have considered the evidence as a whole and found that the respondent's evidence was not of ponderable legal significance. "Substantial" evidence is a term of art, and its meaning in practical results can be very different from what one would expect based on the ordinary use of language. Ordinarily, one would think of substantial evidence as evidence that is heavy or solid. In fact, the test is often deemed satisfied by little more than a shred, for example, by the testimony of a single witness, even that of an interested party alone.

The appellate court does, however, sometimes reverse because the result is overwhelmingly unfair. Such an opinion may describe the respondent's evidence as being not of "ponderable legal significance" or as "inherently incredible." If counsel decides to seek this result, indicate that you are not asking the court to reweigh the evidence or challenge the credibility of the evidence. Argue rather that the evidence is insufficient as a matter of law. In some cases, the evidence may be inherently incredible because it is self-contradictory or physically impossible, for example, when an expert witness's opinion was not based on a foundation in the evidence introduced at trial. In other cases, it may be arguable that no evidence was presented on one of the necessary elements of the cause of action.

[e] Facts Determined by Affidavit

When the trial court decides a question of fact based on the presentation of affidavits rather than on oral testimony, the same substantial evidence standard applies on review. Those affidavits favoring the contention of the prevailing party establish all facts stated therein as well as any facts that can reasonably be inferred therefrom. The determination of controverted facts by the trial court, even on the basis of affidavits, will not be disturbed on appeal [Bolkiah v. Superior Court (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 984, 1000, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 540] .

[2] "Substantial Evidence" Standard Applies Regardless of Burden of Proof Used at Trial

On review of a factual determination, the sufficiency of evidence standard applies regardless of the standard used by the trial court's trier of fact to weigh evidence [Crail v. Blakely (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 744, 750, 106 Cal. Rptr. 187, 505 P.2d 1027 ("clear and convincing" showing required at trial)].

[3] No Challenge to Evidence on Limited Record

In an appeal on a limited record, such as one including only the clerk's transcript or the judgment roll, every presumption is in favor of the validity of the judgment and any condition of facts consistent with its validity will be presumed to have existed rather than one that will defeat it [Wheelright v. County of Marin (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 448, 454, 85 Cal. Rptr. 809, 467 P.2d 537 ; Nielsen v. Gibson (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 318, 324-325, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 335] . If no evidence or only a portion of the evidence is designated as part of the record on appeal, the appellant may not challenge the sufficiency of the evidence [Sui v. Landi (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 383, 385-386]. The only fact-related questions presented do not really involve the sufficiency of the evidence, but rather the sufficiency of the pleadings and whether the findings support the judgment [see Kass v. Weber (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 417, 418, 67 Cal. Rptr. 876] .

For further discussion of appeal on a limited record, such as on the clerk's transcript or the judgment roll only, see Ch. 44, Appeal: Preparing and Filing the Record .

[4] Waiver of Issue on Appeal for Failure to State Facts Appropriately

An appellant contending on appeal that the evidence does not support particular findings by the trial court or jury must demonstrate that there is no substantial evidence to support the challenged findings. A recitation of evidence favorable to the appellant is not the demonstration contemplated under this rule. In arguing that the evidence does not adequately support a particular finding of fact, appellantmust set forth in the brief all the material evidence on the point and not merely appellant's evidence. Unless this is done, the error is deemed waived [Foreman & Clark Corp. v. Fallon (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 875, 881, 92 Cal. Rptr. 162, 479 P.2d 362; In re S.C. (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 396, 414-415, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 453] . Failure to acknowledge the proper standard of review may be considered by the appellate court a concession of lack of merit [James B. v. Superior Court (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 1014, 1021, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 762, 767] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Appellant's Failure to State Facts in the Light Most Favorable to the Judgment. It can be psychologically difficult for appellant's counsel to state "negative" facts, that is, all the evidence in favor of the judgment that appellant is challenging. Nevertheless, it is vital. Otherwise the appellant will lose credibility. Failure to state the evidence in the manner required by the substantial evidence test dooms not only that legal argument, but probably everything else that the appellant is trying to persuade the appellate court.

If an appellant makes a sufficiency of evidence argument but fails to state the facts in the light most favorable to the judgment, the respondent should point out this defect in its brief for three reasons. First, it alerts the appellate court that it may not be possible to take the appellant's statement of facts at face value. Second, the appellate court may find the issue waived for failure to present it properly [Foreman & Clark Corp. v. Fallon (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 875, 881, 92 Cal. Rptr. 162, 479 P.2d 362] . Lastly, in rare cases, the appellate court may strike the appellant's brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(e); see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.19]. Respondent's counsel should, however, avoid any temptation to request that appellant's brief be stricken on this ground. It is almost always better simply to point out the appellant's short-comings in respondent's brief, or at most, request that appellant be given an opportunity to correct the statement of facts, a correction that will only help rather than harm respondent.

[5] Particular Applications of Substantial Evidence Standard

[a] General Verdict

When several counts or issues are tried, a general verdict will not be disturbed by an appellate court if any one of the counts or issues is supported by substantial evidence and is unaffected by error. This rule requires that the reviewing court assume that the jury found on the cause of action that it is supported by substantial evidence and is free of error [Liberty Transport, Inc. v. Harry W. Gorst Co. (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 417, 427, 280 Cal. Rptr. 159 , disapproved on other grounds in Adams v. Murakami (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 105, 116, 284 Cal. Rptr. 318, 813 P.2d 1348] .

The general verdict rule provides that where several counts are tried, a general verdict will be sustained if any one count is supported by substantial evidence and is unaffected by error, despite possible insufficiency of evidence as to the remaining counts [Tavaglione v. Billings (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1150, 1157, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 608, 847 P.2d 574] . The general verdict rule does not apply, however, when the jury has, along with a general verdict, rendered special findings assigning specific damage amounts to specific counts [Tavaglione v. Billings (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1150, 1158, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 608, 847 P.2d 574] .

When reviewing a verdict based in part on excludable evidence, the reviewing court first strips away the inadmissible evidence and asks whether enough admissible evidence remains to sustain the verdict [see In re Dorinda A. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1657, 1663, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 653] . This, of course, presupposes finding an error by the trial court in admitting the evidence, over a proper objection by the appellant; any other circumstance involving inadmissible evidence may be categorized as invited or waived error [see discussion regarding invited error in § 41.10[3][b]; see also discussion regarding evidentiary rulings in [1][a], above].

[b] Directed Verdict

On review after a directed verdict, the appellate court views the evidence in the light most favorable to the losing party and resolves all conflicts and inferences in that party's favor [Fariba v. Dealer Services Corporation (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 156, 174, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 219]. The judgment must be reversed if a hypothetical judgment for appellant can be supported under the "substantial evidence" standard [see Colbough v. Hartline (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1516, 1521, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 213] . For discussion concerning directed verdicts generally, see Ch. 326A, Jury Verdicts .

[c] Judgment Notwithstanding the Verdict

On an appeal from a judgment notwithstanding the verdict, the appellate court must read the record in the light most advantageous to the party in whose favor the verdict was rendered, resolve all conflicts in that party's favor, and give that party the benefit of all reasonable inferences in support of the original verdict [Mason v. Lake Dolores Group, LLC (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 822, 829-830, 840, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 914 (reversing JNOV based on whether employee's injury arose out of course of employment); Borba v. Thomas (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 144, 151-152, 138 Cal. Rptr. 565] . This is, in essence, an application of the "substantial evidence" standard. For further discussion concerning proceedings for judgment notwithstanding the verdict, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial, § 357.30 et seq.

[d] Nonsuit

With respect to review of a motion for nonsuit, the appellate court must accept all facts asserted in the plaintiff's opening statement as true and must indulge every legitimate inference which may be drawn from those facts. A grant of a nonsuit can only be upheld on appeal if, after accepting all the asserted facts as true and indulging every legitimate inference in favor of plaintiff, it can be said those facts and inferences lead inexorably to the conclusion plaintiff cannot establish an essential element of its cause of action or has inadvertently established uncontrovertible proof of an affirmative defense [Cooper v. State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Co. (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 876, 891-892, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 870 ; Abeyta v. Superior Court (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1037, 1041, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680] . This is, in essence, a variation of the "substantial evidence" standard of review. The reviewing court will not consider any ground for the nonsuit not raised in the trial court unless it identifies an incurable defect [Lombardo v. Huysentruyt (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 656, 664, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 691] . For discussion concerning judgment on the pleadings, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

[e] Jury Instructions

When an appellant contends the trial court erred by not giving requested jury instructions or instructions the trial court was required to give sua sponte, the appellate court will review the record to determine whether there was sufficient evidence to justify the instruction, viewing the evidence in the light most favorable to the appellant, before determining whether the failure to give the instruction was error and, if it was, whether the error was prejudicial. The appellate court assumes the jury might have believed the appellant's evidence and,if properly instructed, might have decided in the appellant's favor [Sills v. Los Angeles Transit Lines (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 630, 633, 255 P.2d 795 ; Huffman v. Interstate Brands Corp. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 679, 691-692, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 397 (court assumes jury might have believed appellant's evidence and might have decided in appellant's favor); Shell Oil Co. v. Winterthur Swiss Ins. Co. (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 715, 773, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 815 ; but see Mendoza v. Club Car, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 287, 306, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 605 (instructional error harmless unless it results in miscarriage of justice)].

The substantial evidence test also applies when challenging a jury instruction that was given on the ground that there was insufficient evidence to justify having given it. However, an appellant who requested an instruction that was in fact given by the trial court is generally bound by the jury's determination based on that instruction, and may not argue on appeal that the evidence was insufficient to submit to the jury on that issue [Williams v. Volkswagenwerk Aktiengesellschaft (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1244, 1264, 226 Cal. Rptr. 306] . This variation of the "invited error" doctrine presupposes a record disclosing that the objecting party failed to make proper objections or take other defensive action before submitting the jury instruction that was in fact given [see discussion in § 41.10[3][b]]. Thus, if the appellant objected to any instruction being given on an issue because there was insufficient evidence on that issue, the objection was overruled, and appellant thereafter submitted an instruction on the issue as an alternative to one proposed by the opposing party, the appellant may then be in a position to argue later that there was not sufficient evidence to give that instruction.

Factors the appellate courts consider, when determining whether instructional error was prejudicial, include the following [Soule v. General Motors Corp. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 548, 570-571, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 607, 882 P.2d 298 ; Weaver v. Chavez (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1350, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 514] :

- The degree of conflict in the evidence on critical issues.
- Whether the respondent's argument to the jury may have contributed to the instruction's misleading effect.
- Whether the jury requested a rereading of the erroneous instruction or of related evidence.
- The closeness of the jury's verdict.
- The effect of other instructions in remedying the error.

[f] Enforcement of Settlement

Substantial evidence review is the proper standard for a trial court's factual determination on a motion to enforce settlement pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 [In re Marriage of Assemi (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 896, 911, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 265, 872 P.2d 1190 ; Conservatorship of McElroy v. Kravagna (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 536, 544-546, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 485 (substantial evidence standard applied even though appellate court could watch videotape of proceedings at issue)]. For discussion concerning enforcement of settlements under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, see Ch. 520, Settlement and Release .

[g] Award of Damages

The amount of damages is a factual question, first committed to the discretion of the jury or trial court sitting as trier of fact, and next to the discretion of the trial judge on a motion for new trial. On review, the appellate court indulges all presumptions in favor of the decision of the trial court and can interfere only on the ground that the verdict is so large that, at first blush, it shocks the conscience and suggests passion, prejudice or corruption on the part of the jury [Fagerquist v. Western Sun Aviation, Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 709, 727-728, 236 Cal. Rptr. 633] . For further discussion and forms concerning damages generally, see Ch. 177, Damages .

[h] Issues in Contractual Arbitration Proceeding

Whether a party has waived the right to compel arbitration is ordinarily a question of fact which is binding on the appellate court if it is supported by substantial evidence [Davis v. Continental Airlines, Inc. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 205, 211, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79] .

Similarly, whether the parties formed a valid agreement to arbitrate is determined under general California contract law, and the trial court's determination concerning whether an enforceable agreement exists is reviewed under the substantial evidence test [City of Vista v. Sutro & Co. (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 401, 407, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 488] . If, however, the determination of whether an agreement to arbitrate exists is simply a matter of contract or statutory interpretation, with no accompanying factual issues to be resolved, it is a question of law subject to the appellate court's independent review [County of Contra Costa v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 237, 241, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628] .

For further discussion concerning judicial review of contractual arbitration, see Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review .

[i] Laches

Case law is split regarding the correct standard of review of a ruling allowing or disallowing laches as an affirmative defense. One line holds that the correct standard of review is substantial evidence [see Marshall v. Marshall (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 232, 252, 42 Cal. Rptr. 686] . Another regards the abuse of discretion standard to be applicable [see In re Marriage of Fogarty & Rasbeary (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1353, 1364-1365, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 653] . A third line of cases applies a standard under which the appellate court will not interfere with the trial court's ruling unless the trial court's conclusions do not find substantial support in the evidence or it is obvious that a manifest injustice has been done [Chang v. City of Palos Verdes Estates (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 557, 563, 159 Cal. Rptr. 630 ; see In re Marriage of Fogarty & Rasbeary (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1353, 1364, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 653 (describing this as a "mixed" standard)].

For further discussion concerning laches, see its application as a defense in the chapter covering the particular type of lawsuit in which the defense is raised.

[j] Additional Examples

For additional examples of when the substantial evidence standard applies, see*§§ 41.12[3][b],[k],* and*[l],* and 41.13[4][a].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Standards of Review

5-41 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 41.14

AUTHOR: Jeffery A. Hogge Author Hon. Patti S. Kitching, Victoria J. DeGoff Editorial Consultants

§ 41.14 Independent Review of Trial Court's Rulings

[1] Applicability to Questions of Law

The reviewing court conducts an independent or "de novo" review of questions of law [see Professional Engineers in California Government v. Kempton (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 1016, 1032, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 814, 155 P.3d 226 ; 20th Century Ins. Co. v. Garamendi (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 216, 271, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 807, 878 P.2d 566 ; In re Groundwater Cases (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 659, 674, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 827 (interpretation of legal opinion subject to de novo review)]. If a question relates to the selection of a rule of law, or requires critical consideration, in a factual context, of legal principles and their underlying values, it is a question of law [Crocker National Bank v. City and County of San Francisco (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 881, 888, 264 Cal. Rptr. 139, 782 P.2d 278] .

[2] Purpose and Scope of Independent Review

Pure questions of law are reviewed independently or "de novo" to ensure uniformity of application of the law in the trial courts [see Mancuso v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 88, 95, 283 Cal. Rptr. 300 ; Rudd v. California (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 948, 951-952, 268 Cal. Rptr. 624 ; see also Marer, Demystifying Appellate Review Standards, 7(2) California Litigation 33, 34 (1994)].

In conducting an independent review, the appellate court is not bound by the interpretation or construction that the trial court gave to the law in question [see 20th Century Ins. Co. v. Garamendi (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 216, 271, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 807, 878 P.2d 566] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Appellants Should Argue for Application of This Standard if Possible. Appellate counsel should research and argue the application of the independent standard of review with reference to precedent applying the standard in cases identical or similar to that being reviewed. An independent review, however, favors an appellant more than the other standards, to the extent that, unlike the other standards, > it does not favor the trial court ruling and hence the respondent. Therefore counsel for appellant should always try to argue that this standard applies, if the applicable standard is arguably in doubt. For example, appellant's counsel may argue that an issue involving mixed questions of law and fact is predominantly legal and should be decided "de novo" as a question of law [see discussion in [5], below], or that an issue is factually undisputed and therefore is a question of pure law subject to "de novo" review [see Marer, Demystifying Appellate Review Standards, 7(2) California Litigation 33, 34 (1994)].

Note that, as with other types of trial court error, the appellant has the burden of showing that an error of pure law is prejudicial to a point justifying reversal [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 13 and discussion in § 41.30[1]].

For discussion of the some of the particular orders, judgments, or rulings to which the independent review standard applies (or usually applies), see [4], below. For discussion of review when the issue involves both questions of law and fact, see*§ 41.15*.

[3] Affirmance of "Right Ruling for Wrong Reason"

As discussed in [2], above, an appellate court conducting an independent review of a question of law is free to interpret a rule of law without regard or deference to the trial court's interpretation. Conversely, however, the reviewing court examines the validity of that ruling without regard to the lower court's underlying reasons for the ruling. Because of the fundamental presumption that the trial court ruling is correct [see § 41.10[2]], the reviewing court will affirm a "right ruling for the wrong reason." That is, it will uphold a ruling if it is correct on any theory of law applicable to the case, despite the fact that the trial court made that ruling on the basis of erroneous reasoning or for other improper considerations [D'Amico v. Board of Medical Examiners (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 1, 19, 112 Cal. Rptr. 786, 520 P.2d 10 ; Hiser v. Bell Helicopter Textron Inc. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 640, 647-648, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 249 (court reviews judgment for reversible error, to determine not merely whether trial court's interpretation of statute was correct, but whether judgment is correct on any theory); see also Carnes v. Superior Court (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 688, 694, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 915 (on review of summary judgment, appellate court reviews ruling, not rationale); Heller v. Franchise Tax Bd. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1730, 1735, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 88 (review of summary judgment proceedings although no facts disputed); Brown v. State of California (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1500, 1506, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 687 (review of dismissal after sustained demurrer)].

[4] Particular Applications of Independent Review Standard

[a] Contract Interpretation on Undisputed Facts

The appellate court reviews independently the interpretation of a contract if no extrinsic evidence was admitted to aid in the interpretation of the contract or if extrinsic evidence was admitted but was not in dispute [Parsons v. Bristol Development Co. (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 861, 865-866, 44 Cal. Rptr. 767, 402 P.2d 839 ; Warburton/Buttner v. Superior Court (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1170, 1180, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706 (court independently reviewed contract regarding Indian tribe's waiver of sovereign immunity)]. Whether a contract is clear and unambiguous and therefore not in need of extrinsic evidence to aid in its interpretation is a question of law for the court. The appellate court makes this determination independently as well [Sanchez v. Bally's Total Fitness Corp. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 62, 69, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 902] .

When, however, extrinsic evidence has been properly admitted to aid in interpreting a contract, the appellate court will uphold a reasonable construction of the contract by the trier of fact if it is supported by substantial evidence [In re Marriage of Fonstein (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 738, 746-747, 131 Cal. Rptr. 873, 552 P.2d 1169 ; Apple Computer, Inc. v. County of Santa Clara Assessment Appeals Board (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 1355, 1365, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 335 (reviewing stipulation between tax board and taxpayer)]. For detailed discussion concerning contracts generally, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

[b] Statutory Interpretation on Undisputed Facts

When the facts are undisputed and the only issue on appeal is the proper interpretation of a statute, the appellate court independently reviews it [Connerly v. State Personnel Bd. (2006) 37 Cal. 4th 1169, 1175, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 788, 129 P.3d 1 (de novo review of whether California Business Council can be assessed attorney fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5); Law Offices of Dixon R. Howell v. Valley (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 1076, 1088, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 499 (whether statute requires dismissal of action is question of statutory interpretation independently reviewed by appellate court); Librers v. Black (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 114, 124, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 188 (application of statute is question of law if relevant facts not in dispute); Upland Police Officers Assn. v. City of Upland (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1294, 1301, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 629 (court applied de novo standard of review to interpret Public Safety Officers Procedural Bill of Rights Act); Nguyen v. Calhoun (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 428, 437-438, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436 (case submitted on stipulated facts subject to independent review); Simpson v. Unemployment Ins. Comp. Appeals Bd. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 342, 350, 231 Cal. Rptr. 690] . In the public interest, the court may reject a concession by the parties concerning a statute's interpretation and determine the meaning itself [R.J. Land & Associates Const. Co. v. Kiewit-Shea (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 416, 427 n.4, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615] . For discussion concerning statutory interpretation, see Ch. 531, Statutes and Ordinances .

[c] Summary Judgment

On appeal from a judgment after the granting of summary judgment, the appellate court independently reviews the motion, following the procedure established in Code Civ. Proc. § 437c, to determine whether it was properly granted or denied [Johnson v. American Standard, Inc. (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 56, 64, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 108 ; Lyle v. Warner Brothers Television Productions (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 264, 274, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 2, 132 P.3d 211 ; County of San Diego v. Ace Property & Cas. Ins. Co. (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 406, 414, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 583 ; Wiener v. Southcoast Childcare Centers, Inc. (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 1138, 1142, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 615, 88 P.3d 517 (reviewing summary judgment on negligence claim based on foreseeability of criminal act); Colmenares v. Braemar Country Club, Inc. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1019, 1031-1032, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 662, 63 P.3d 220 (remanding case to trial court to determine whether summary judgment was proper on any ground advanced by defendant in light of revised definition of "disability" under FEHA); Regents of Univ. of Cal. v. Superior Court (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 509, 531, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257, 976 P.2d 808] .

The only exceptions to the rule of independent review of a summary judgment are rulings concerning additional time for discovery under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h) and on the sole witness and mental state provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(e), which are subject to the abuse of discretion standard [see Krieger v. Nick Alexander Imports, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 212 n.3, 285 Cal. Rptr. 717 ; Saldana v. Globe-Weis Systems Co. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1505, 1512 n.3, 285 Cal. Rptr. 385 ; see also Scott v. CIBA Vision Corp. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 307, 313-314, 326, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 902 (when continuance not mandatory because conditions of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h) were not met, appellate court reviews trial court's denial of continuance under abuse of discretion standard); Angell v. Peterson Tractor, Inc. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 981, 985-986, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 541 (rulings under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(e) are discretionary)].

For further discussion of standards of review on appeal after summary judgment, see Ch. 537, Summary Judgment .

[d] Demurrer Sustained

On appeal from a judgment dismissing an action after sustaining a demurrer without leave to amend, the reviewing court applies an independent review standard, giving the complaint a reasonable interpretation and treating the demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded [Farm Raised Salmon Cases (2008) 42 Cal. 4th 1077, 1089 n.10, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 112, 175 P.3d 1170 ; Shirk v. Vista Unified School District (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 201, 205, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 210, 164 P.3d 630 ; City of Dinuba v. County of Tulare (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 859, 865, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614, 161 P.3d 1168 ; Kearney v. Salomon Smith Barney, Inc. (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 95, 101, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 730, 137 P.3d 914 ;

Barratt American, Inc. v. City of Rancho Cucamonga (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 685, 692, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 149, 124 P.3d 719 ; Fox v. Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 797, 810, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661 ; Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 318, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58 ; Aubry v. Tri-City Hospital Dist. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 962, 966-967, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 92, 831 P.2d 317 (noting also that the appellate court does not assume the truth of contentions, deductions or conclusions of law); Swift v. Department of Corrections (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1365, 1370 (upholding demurrer based on defendant's immunity from plaintiff's suit); see also Miklosy v. Regents of the University of California (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 876, 883, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 690, 188 P.3d 629 (when case comes before appellate court from judgment sustaining demurrer, court assumes truth of facts alleged in complaint and reasonable inferences that may be drawn from those facts)]. This is because a demurrer tests only the legal sufficiency of the pleadings; it does not test the truth of the complaint's allegations or their accuracy, but admits the truth of all material factual allegations and the plaintiff's ability to prove them [Quelimane Co. v. Stewart Title Guar. Co. (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 26, 47, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 709, 960 P.2d 513] .

The judgment must be affirmed if any ground for the demurrer is well taken [Campbell v. Regents of the University of California (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 311, 320, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 320 (sustaining demurrer based on plaintiff's failure to exhaust administrative remedies); Total Call International, Inc. v. Peerless Ins. Co. (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 161, 169, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 319 (demurrer affirmed on any properly supported ground, regardless of trial court's basis for ruling); Schuster v. Gardner (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 305, 315, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 468 (sustaining demurrer on ground that action was derivative and therefore plaintiff lacked standing); Coast Plaza Doctors Hospital v. UHP Healthcare (2002) 105 Cal. App. 4th 693, 704-705, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 650 (demurrer sustained regarding whether health care provider may seek reimbursement directly from health care insurer for services rendered to enrollees of health care plan)]. It must be reversed, however, if the plaintiff stated a cause of action under any possible legal theory, regardless of the label attached to the cause of action [Aubry v. Tri-City Hospital Dist. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 962, 966-967, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 92, 831 P.2d 317 ; Saunders v. Cariss (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 905, 908, 274 Cal. Rptr. 186 ; Platt v. Coldwell Banker Residential Real Estate Services (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1439, 1444, 266 Cal. Rptr. 601 (reversible error is committed if the facts alleged show entitlement to relief under any possible legal theory)].

It is also reversible error, in sustaining a demurrer without leave to amend, if the plaintiff shows, either in the trial court or on appeal, that there is a reasonable possibility any defect identified by the defendant can be cured by amendment [City of Dinuba v. County of Tulare (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 859, 865, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614, 161 P.3d 1168 ; Schifando v. City of Los Angeles (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1074, 1081, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 457, 79 P.3d 569 (reversing demurrer granted on ground city employees must exhaust city charter internal remedies before filing FEHA suit); Aubry v. Tri-City Hospital Dist. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 962, 966-967, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 92, 831 P.2d 317 ; Herzberg v. County of Plumas (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1, 12, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 588 ; Murphy v. BDO Seidman (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 687, 691-692 (overruling demurrer in part); Richelle L. v. Roman Catholic Archbishop of San Francisco (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 257, 266, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 601 (if reasonable possibility defect can be cured by amendment, demurrer must be reversed)]. The burden is on the appellant to show how the amendment will change the legal effect of the complaint [Swift v. Department of Corrections (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1365, 1373 (upholding demurrer based on defendant's immunity from plaintiff's suit)]. If the demurrer was sustained with leave to amend and the plaintiff elected not to amend before entry of judgment of dismissal, the appellate court presumes the plaintiff stated as strong a case as possible and resolves all ambiguities and uncertainties raised by the demurrer against the plaintiff [Casella v. City of Morgan Hill (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 43, 48, 280 Cal. Rptr. 876 ; but see Careau & Co. v. Security Pacific Business Credit, Inc. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1371, 1386, 272 Cal. Rptr. 387 (plaintiff need not show it can amend at trial level so long as it can so demonstrate to the appellate court)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Specify Additional Facts in Opening Brief. The appellant's opening brief may be able to offer additional facts that would state a cause of action, but were not presented to the trial court. Appellant's counsel should request that the appellate court reverse with direction to the trial court to grant appellant leave to amend the complaint to add such facts.

For further discussion and forms concerning demurrers generally, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

[e] Judgment on the Pleadings

Review of a judgment on the pleadings is governed by the same standards governing a judgment following a successful demurrer, discussed in [d], above. A defendant is entitled to judgment on the pleadings if the plaintiff's complaint does not state a cause of action. In considering whether a defendant is entitled to judgment on the pleadings, the trial court looks only to the face of the pleading under attack; all facts alleged in the complaint are admitted for purposes of the motion, and the court determines whether those facts constitute a cause of action. The court of appeal reviews an order granting judgment on the pleadings independently [Camacho v. Automobile Club of Southern California (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 63, 66 n.4, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 488 ; Harris v. Grimes (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 180, 185-186, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 791 (trial court erroneously granted judgment on pleadings in legal malpractice action based on misapprehension that negligence claim could not have been litigated in earlier trial)].

If the trial court does not grant leave to amend, the court of appeal determines whether the defect can reasonably be cured by amendment. The judgment is to be affirmed if it is proper on any lawful ground raised in the motion, even if the trial court did not rely on those grounds. The appellate court reviews the trial court's denial of leave to amend for abuse of discretion [DiPirro v. American Isuzu Motors Inc. (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 966, 972, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 787 (affirming judgment on pleadings, holding that private enforcer of Prop. 65 may not curefailure to timely provide certificate of merit by serving it months after the litigation commenced)].

For discussion concerning judgment on the pleadings, see Ch. 206, Demurrers, and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

[f] Duty of Care in Negligence Action

The question of duty of care is one of law for the court and is subject to independent review by an appellate court [Crocker National Bank v. City and County of San Francisco (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 881, 888, 264 Cal. Rptr. 139, 782 P.2d 278] .

For discussion concerning duty of care in negligence actions generally, see Ch. 380, Negligence, § 380.30 et seq. For discussion of the duty of care as it applies in specific negligence actions, see the chapter covering that action [see, e.g., Ch. 421, Premises Liability].

[g] Strategic Lawsuit Against Public Participation (SLAPP)

On appeal after a denial of a motion to strike a SLAPP suit under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16, the appellate court conducts an independent review of the motion [Contemporary Services Corp. v. Staff Pro, Inc. (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1043, 1052, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434 ; Thomas v. Quintero (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 635, 645, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 619 (petition for injunctive relief under civil harassment statute is subject to special motion to strike under anti-SLAPP statute); Foothills Townhome Assn. v. Christiansen (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 688, 695, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 516] . For further discussion and forms relating to SLAPP suits, see Ch. 376, Motions to Strike: Anti-SLAPP .

§ 41.15 Review of Mixed Questions of Law and Fact

The "substantial evidence" standard [see § 41.13] applies to questions of fact, that is, to the establishment of historical or physical facts. The "independent review" standard [see § 41.14] applies to questions of law, that is, questions relating to the selection of a rule. Mixed questions of law and fact concern the application of the rule to the facts and the consequent determination whether the rule is satisfied [Crocker National Bank v. City and County of San Francisco (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 881, 888, 264 Cal. Rptr. 139, 782 P.2d 278 (emphasis added)].

When a question is mixed, involving both factual and legal issues, the appellate court first analyzes whether it is predominantly factual or legal. If inquiry into the question requires the application of experience with human affairs, the question is predominantly factual and the substantial evidence test applies. On the other hand, if the inquiry requires criticial consideration, in a factual context, of legal principles and their underlying values, the question is predominantly legal and is reviewed independently [20th Century Ins. Co. v. Garamendi (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 216, 271, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 807, 878 P.2d 566 ; Crocker National Bank v. City and County of San Francisco (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 881, 888, 264 Cal. Rptr. 139, 782 P.2d 278 ; McKesson HBOC, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 1229, 1235-1236, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 812 (waiver of attorney-client privilege held to be predominantly legal so appellate court would independently review trial court's decision)].

In some situations the courts have found mixed questions not to be predominantly legal or factual, and have applied both standards sequentially. In this situation a court will determine whether the facts found by the trial court are supported by substantial evidence, then select the applicable rule of law, and finally apply the rule of law to the facts to determine whether the law has been violated on the established facts [Ghirardo v. Antonioli (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 791, 800, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 418, 883 P.2d 960 ; Green v. Par Pools, Inc. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 620, 627, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 844 (court defers to trial court's factual decisions and reviews questions of law under nondeferential standard)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Appellants Should Argue That Mixed Question Is Predominantly Legal. Many issues on appeal involve mixed issues of law and fact. As demonstrated by the facts and holding in Crocker National Bank v. City and County of San Francisco (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 881, 888, 264 Cal. Rptr. 139, 782 P.2d 278 , it is not always well established whether a particular mixed question is predominantly legal or factual. Because legal issues are reviewed independently, as discussed in § 41.14, it is always preferable to argue, whenever possible, that a mixed question is predominantly legal because it requires a critical examination, in a factual context, of a legal principle and its underlying policies or values, and because the issue is one in which uniform application of the law is necessary, requiring independent review of its application in various factual contexts [see Crocker National Bank v. City and County of San Francisco (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 881, 888, 264 Cal. Rptr. 139, 782 P.2d 278 (tax law must be uniformly applied and classification of property for this purpose by trial court must be reviewed independently to secure this uniformity; classification of property as either "fixture" or "personal property" for purposes of tax law is not a factual description but a statement of legal conclusion)].

§ 41.16 Review of Judicial Bias on Part of Trial Court Judge

One of the grounds for reversing a verdict and granting a new trial is an irregularity in the proceedings of the trial court by which a party was prevented from having a fair trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 657(1); see also Ch. 371, Motions After Trial, § 357.60 et seq.]. If the court's "irregularity" takes the form of a judge's bias against one of the parties based on preconceived stereotypes, the aggrieved party has sometimes raised the issue of bias directly on appeal, without objecting during trial or moving subsequently for a new trial [see Hall v. Harker (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 836, 841, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44 (claim of bias against attorneys by defendant attorney sued for malicious prosecution); Catchpole v. Brannon (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 237, 244, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440 (claim of gender bias); see also In re Marriage of Iverson (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 1495, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 70 (claim of gender bias)].

Appellate courts have allowed such claims to be made for the first time on appeal [see discussion in § 41.10[4][b]]. The standard of review in these cases is unique in that it is not a "review" of trial court rulings, but an initial evaluation of the trial court judge's conduct as shown in the record on appeal. In this evaluation, the appellate court determines objectively whether a reasonable person would entertain doubts concerning the judge's impartiality because the judge has revealed preconceived ideas about one of the parties based on stereotypes [Hall v. Harker (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 836, 841, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44 (reversing and dismissing on alternative ground); see also Catchpole v. Brannon (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 237, 245-247, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440 (reversing and remanding for new trial before different judge)]. For detailed discussion of the standards for disqualification for bias, from which this test is derived, see Ch. 317, Judges .

§ 41.30 Law of the Case

[1] General Rule

The doctrine of law of the case provides that the decision of an appellate court, stating a rule of law necessary to the decision of the case, conclusively establishes that rule and makes it determinative of the rights of the same parties in any subsequent retrial or appeal in the same case [Nally v. Grace Community Church (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 278, 301, 253 Cal. Rptr. 97, 763 P.2d 948 ; Santa Clarita Organization for Planning the Environment v. County of Los Angeles (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 149, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 449, 455 ; Daar & Newman v. VRL International (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 482, 488-489, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 566 (prior trial court ruling in separate case governed by res judicata, not law of the case); Joyce v. Simi Valley Unified Sch. Dist. (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 292, 304, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 712 (law of the case barred appellant from challenging jury instruction on second appeal); see Quackenbush v. Superior Court (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 867, 874, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 282 (noting that dictum is not law of the case)].

The doctrine is not inflexible. The appellate court may disregard it if necessary to avoid an unjust decision arising from a misapplication of law, especially if the case must be reversed for a different reason [Searle v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 425, 434-435, 212 Cal. Rptr. 466, 696 P.2d 1308] .

For discussion of the related doctrines of res judicata and collateral estoppel and their application in the context of an appeal as well as in other procedural contexts, see Ch. 491, Res Judicata .

[2] Prior Appellate Determination Required

Generally, the doctrine of law of the case applies only to issues that were both presented and determined in a prior appeal [Roden v. Amerisourcebergen Corporation (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 1548, 1576, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 26 ; Bovard v. American Horse Enterprises, Inc. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 832, 841, 247 Cal. Rptr. 340 ; see also Pigeon Point Ranch, Inc. v. Perot (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 227, 231, 28 Cal. Rptr. 865, 379 P.2d 321 (noting, in addition, that application must not result in unjust decision)]; but see PG&E Corp. v. Public Utilities Commission (2004) 118 Cal.

App. 4th 1174, 1193, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 630 (summary denial of petition for writ of review from PUC order acts as law of the case)]. For example, a trial court's denial of a motion for nonsuit based on the statute of limitations, as opposed to an appellate determination of the issue, does not conclusively establish the statute of limitations in the case, but is merely an interim ruling subject to correction at any time up to final judgment [Abreu v. Svenhard's Swedish Bakery (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1446, 1456, 257 Cal. Rptr. 26] . The doctrine does not apply to points of law that might have been determined but not decided in the prior appeal [see, e.g., ABF Capital Corp. v. Grove Properties Co. (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 204, 212, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803 (prior ruling dismissing appeal of order sustaining demurrer without leave to amend did not establish as law of the case that documentation supporting appealability of order did not exist)]. However, it does extend to questions that were implicitly determined because they were essential to the prior decision [Yu v. Signet Bank/Virginia (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 298, 309, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 516 (prior appellate decision reversing summary judgment necessarily determined that cause of action had been stated)].

The doctrine also applies to certain pretrial writ proceedings. A holding resulting from an alternative writ establishes law of the case on a later appeal from the final judgment because the matter is a determination of the cause [see Kowis v. Howard (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 888, 894, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 728, 838 P.2d 250] . In such proceedings, the matter is fully briefed, there is opportunity for oral argument, and the cause is decided by written opinion [see Kowis v. Howard (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 888, 894, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 728, 838 P.2d 250]. However, absent a written opinion following issuance of the alternative writ, the appellate court's reasoning in issuing the alternative writ is not the law of the case binding on appeal [Cerna v. City of Oakland (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 1340, 1354-1355, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 168 ; Carretti v. Italpast (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 1236, 1241-1242, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126 (unless written opinion follows issuance of alternative writ, denial of writ petition does not have issue preclusive effect)].

The doctrine does not apply, however, if a writ petition is summarily denied [Varian Medical Systems, Inc. v. Delfino (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 180, 200-201, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 298 (rejecting argument that court of appeal's summary denial of defendants' earlier petition for writ of supersedeas seeking stay pending appeal was law of the case); Kowis v. Howard (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 888, 894, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 728, 838 P.2d 250 (short statement or citation explaining basis for summary denial does not transform denial into decision of cause entitled to law of case effect)]. Prior to the Supreme Court's decision in Kowis v. Howard, one case held, and a number of cases allowed in dicta, that a summary denial of a writ petition may establish the law of the case if there is an implication that the denial is on the merits, either because there is no other possible ground or because it affirmatively appears that the denial was intended to be on the merits. Kowis disapproved of this "sole possible ground" exception, however, for judicial economy reasons [see Kowis v. Howard (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 888, 898-899, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 728, 838 P.2d 250 , overruling Richer v. Superior Court (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 748, 757-758, 134 Cal. Rptr. 52] .

Further, an appellate ruling will not become the law of the case in a pending appeal unless it reflects a decision on the merits considered by a panel of three justices, ultimately acquiesced in by a majority [In re Salvador M. (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1415, 1420 n.3, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 577 ; Delmonico v. Laidlaw Waste Systems, Inc. (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 81, 83, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 599] .

[3] Statement of Law Necessary

The very idea of the doctrine refers to an appellate court's statement in an opinion of a necessary rule of law In re Christopher A. (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1154, 1160 , 277 Cal. Rptr. 302] . A prior appellate decision establishes law of the case, nevertheless, on a point not raised by counsel or expressly mentioned if it was essential to the prior decision because it could not have been rendered without the appellate court's determination of that point [see Adams v. Pacific Bell Directory (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 93, 97, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 365 (federal court decision after removal was law of case after remand to state court); Bovard v. American Horse Enterprises, Inc. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 832, 841, 247 Cal. Rptr. 340] .

As a general rule, the doctrine does not apply to points of law that might have been, but were not determined on the prior appeal [Brookhouser v. State of California (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1665, 1681, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 658] .

[4] Prior Ruling That Evidence Was Insufficient

The effect of an appellate decision that the trial court judgment was not supported by sufficient evidence is conclusive in further litigation unless evidence is produced at a subsequent trial that is "materially," "essentially," or "substantially" different from that passed on in the first appeal. Evidence merely cumulative to that previously presented is not sufficient to avoid the law of the case [Adams v. Pacific Bell Directory (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 93, 98, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 365 (rule that law-of-the-case doctrine limited to instances in which "evidence is the same" applies only if sufficiency of evidence as a matter of law is at issue); Bank of America v. Superior Court (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 613, 621 n.3, 269 Cal. Rptr. 596] .

[5] Exceptions

The doctrine, exclusively concerned with issues of law, is not inflexibly applied [Searle v. Allstate Life Ins. Co. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 425, 434-435, 212 Cal. Rptr. 466, 696 P.2d 1308] . Courts have recognized that, as a procedural rule, the law of the case may operate harshly and have fashioned a number of exceptions to the doctrine. A court is permitted to decide a case without regard to what has gone before if (1) there has been an intervening change in the law, (2) the disputed issue was not presented or considered in the proceedings below, or (3) application of the doctrine would result in manifest injustice [George Arakelian Farms, Inc. v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 1279, 1291, 265 Cal. Rptr. 162, 783 P.2d 749 ; Searle v. Allstate Life Ins. Co. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 425, 434-435, 212 Cal. Rptr. 466, 696 P.2d 1308 (doctrine disregarded under exceptional circumstances of hardship or injustice)].

Not all changes in the law, however, justify disregarding the established law of the case. The change must be in the controlling rules of law [George Arakelian Farms, Inc. v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 1279, 1291 n.9, 265 Cal. Rptr. 162, 783 P.2d 749] .

§ 41.31 The Doctrine of Stare Decisis and Controlling Decisional Authority

[1] General Rule

The principle of stare decisis requires a court of inferior jurisdiction to follow the decisions of a court exercising superior jurisdiction. Thus, decisions by the California Supreme Court are binding on all of the courts of California [Auto Equity Sales, Inc. v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 450, 455-456, 20 Cal. Rptr. 321, 369 P.2d 937 ; Cuccia v. Superior Court (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 347, 353-354, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 796 (precedent binding even if judge disagrees)].

Stare decisis is also a fundamental jurisprudential policy that prior applicable precedent must be followed by the same court, even if the principle of law is considered anew by that court. It is based on the assumption that certainty, predictability, and stability in the law are major objectives of the legal system. However, stare decisis allows flexibility and departure from precedent in an appropriate case [People v. Birks (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 108, 116-117, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 848, 960 P.2d 1073 (noting also that the force of stare decisis is not as great in cases involving interpretation of the state constitution as it is in cases involving statutory construction)]. Stare decisis has added force for adhering to, rather than departing from, a court's own precedent if there is evidence that the Legislature and the public have relied on the precedent. To overrule the prior decision would thus dislodge settled rights and expectations or require a legislative response [Sierra Club v. San Joaquin Local Agency Formation Com. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 489, 504, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 702, 981 P.2d 543] . The principle also has special force when applied to statutory interpretation, in that the Legislature is free to alter what the courts have done [Hunt v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 984, 1005, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 236, 987 P.2d 705] .

The decision, or binding portion of a reviewing court's opinion, is the court's rationale for the judgment rendered, that is, the consideration and application of principles of law leading to the court's ultimate disposition of the cause. It includes statements of law that are responsive to the issues on appeal and that are intended to guide the parties and the trial court in resolving the matter on remand [see Garfield Medical Center v. Belshe (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 798, 806, 80 Cal.

Rptr. 2d 527] . Conversely, statements in an opinion that are dicta and unnecessary to the decision are not binding authority under stare decisis [see [2], below]. Nor is an opinion binding authority for propositions not actually considered in its decision [Colmenares v. Braemar Country Club, Inc. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1019, 1029, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 662, 63 P.3d 220 (determining whether prior case interpreting FEHA definition of "disability" controls); People v. Martinez (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 106, 118, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 687, 990 P.2d 563 ; New Albertsons, Inc. v. Superior Court (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1403, 1430-1431, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 457]. The positive authority of any decision, including opinions of a higher court, is coextensive only with the facts of that case [Lolley v. Campbell (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 367, 377, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 571, 48 P.3d 1128 (refusing to apply statement in prior opinion because it was not meant to resolve same issue)].

Although the decisions of the California Supreme Court, rendered after grant of review and oral argument, are binding precedent on the lower courts of California [Auto Equity Sales, Inc. v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 450, 455, 20 Cal. Rptr. 321, 369 P.2d 937] , Supreme Court minute orders are not binding precedent [California Ass'n of Psychology Providers v. Rank (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1, 9, 270 Cal. Rptr. 796, 793 P.2d 2] . Such minute orders, however, may be considered by lower courts if doing so would assist them in rendering a decision [Thompson v. Department of Corrections (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 117, 125, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 46, 18 P.3d 1198] .

The various districts and divisions of the court of appeal have equivalent jurisdiction with respect to each other. To promote the interests of stability in the law and predictability of decision, court of appeal panels ordinarily follow the decisions of other panels without good reason to disagree [Wolfe v. Dublin Unified School Dist. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 126, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 280] . However, a panel in one appellate district or division is not compelled to reach the same conclusions when faced with an issue previously decided in one of the other districts or divisions [McCallum v. McCallum (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 308, 315, 235 Cal. Rptr. 396 ; Greyhound Lines, Inc. v. County of Santa Clara (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 480, 485, 231 Cal. Rptr. 702] . In effect, the decision of one district or division is persuasive but not controlling authority in another district or division [see [5], below]. As a result, it is best to rely on authority decided by the same district or division in which an appeal is pending, especially if there is a conflict among the districts or divisions on the point in issue. For discussion of the various districts and divisions of the court of appeal, see Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview, § 40.11[3][b].

Decisions of the United States Supreme Court are binding on state courts considering federal questions. If United States Supreme Court precedent directly applies to a case involving a federal question, the state court should follow that case, even if it appears that the reasons for the precedent-setting decision have been rejected in some other line of decisions [Scheiding v. General Motors Corp. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 471, 478, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 342, 993 P.2d 996] . Decisions of the United States Supreme Court on state law matters are, however, not binding on California courts. They are entitled to respectful consideration [Lagatree v. Luce, Forward, Hamilton & Scripps (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1105, 1134 n.27, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 664] , and may therefore be persuasive, but not controlling, authority [see [5], below].

Decisions of the federal court of appeals and district courts are not binding, even on federal questions [Etcheverry v. Tri-Ag Service, Inc. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 316, 320, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36, 993 P.2d 366 , overruled in part by Bates v. Dow Agrosciences L.L.C. (2005) 544 U.S. 431, 125 S. Ct. 1788, 161 L. Ed. 2d 687 ; Hood v. Santa Barbara Bank & Trust (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 526, 547, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 369 ; Metalclad Corp. v. Ventana Envtl Organizational Partnership (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1705, 1714-1715, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 328 (in absence of U.S. Supreme Court ruling on equitable estoppel's application under Federal Arbitration Act to questions of arbitrability, court makes independent determination)], although they, too, may be cited as persuasive if not controlling authority [Flynt v. California Gambling Control Commission (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 1125, 1132, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 167 (appellate court persuaded by reasoning of district court opinion filed after briefs filed)]. As persuasive authority, lower federal court decisions carry little weight when they are divided or sparse: a state court should make its determination independently of such authority. Conversely, a state court should hesitate before rejecting the precedent of lower federal courts when it is supported by consistent and numerous decisions [see Etcheverry v. Tri-Ag Service, Inc. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 316, 321, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36, 993 P.2d 366 , overruled in party by Bates v. Dow Agrosciences L.L.C. (2005) 544 U.S. 431, 125

S. Ct. 1788, 161 L. Ed. 687] . Opinions of the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals are no more significant than opinions of other circuits [People ex rel. Renne v. Servantes (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1090, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 870] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Be Judicious in Citing Noncontrolling Authority. As discussed above, decisions of other states and lower federal courts are not binding authority and should be avoided unless there is no California case on point and the noncontrolling authority sets out persuasive reasoning. In the latter situation, a noncontrolling authority should not simply be cited or buried in a string citation, but analyzed thoroughly to demonstrate its persuasiveness. Decisions of districts or divisions of the court of appeal other than those in which the appeal is pending are usually good authority, although it is best to be able to cite to a case on point decided by the same district or division. If there is a conflict among the different districts, or divisions within a district, is it essential to use authority within the same district or division if such authority exists; if it does not, the persuasiveness of authority cited should be argued in the same manner as out-of-state or lower federal court decisions.

For discussion of the procedures for publishing and depublishing California appellate decisions, which in turn affects their citability and their status as controlling (or persuasive) decisional authority, see*§ 41.50* et seq. For additional considerations in citing persuasive authority, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.15[1][i].

[2] Dicta Not Controlling

The statement of a principle not necessary to the decision is not precedent that is required by the rule of stare decisis to be followed [Redevelopment Agency of San Diego v. Attisha (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 357, 372 (refusing to apply case containing broad language and significantly different facts); Western Landscape Const. v. Bank of America (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 57, 61, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 868] . A statement of law is not dictum, however, when it is responsive to the issues on appeal and is intended to guide the parties and the trial court in resolving the matter on remand [Garfield Medical Center v. Belshe (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 798, 806, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 527] . In differentiating controlling authority from dictum, the language of an opinion must be construed with reference to the facts presented by the case. The positive authority of a decision is coextensive only with its facts [PLCM Group, Inc. v. Drexler (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 1084, 1097, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 198, 997 P.2d 511] .

Although dictum is not controlling authority, this does not mean it must be ignored. Dicta are often followed as persuasive authority [see Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Association v. City of Fresno (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 914, 925, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 153 (refusing to reject Supreme Court dicta without compelling reason); California Apartment Assn. v. City of Stockton (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 699, 710, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 605 ; see also [5], below].

[3] Splits of Authority

Decisions by courts of equal dignity are not binding under the principles of stare decisis, but they are often considered as persuasive authority [see In re Benjamin D. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1464, 1471, 278 Cal. Rptr. 468] .

[4] Plurality Opinions

When the decision of a higher court is fragmented, in that there is no single rationale for the judgment to which a majority of the justices subscribe, the binding effect of that decision on lower courts is properly limited to a holding that is no broader than the position taken by those justices who concurred in the judgment on the narrowest grounds [Marks v. United States (1977) 430 U.S. 188, 193, 97 S. Ct. 990, 993, 51 L. Ed. 2d 260 ; Tily B., Inc. v. City of Newport Beach (1998) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1, 16, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 6] . Thus, the reasoning of a plurality opinion in such a decision, signed by less than a majority of the justices on the panel that is deciding the appeal, lacks authority as precedent and need not be given deference under stare decisis [Board of Supervisors v. Local Agency Formation Com. (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 903, 918, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 245, 838 P.2d 1198] .

[5] Persuasive Authority

Even though they are not controlling, the decisions of other courts may be persuasive, especially if there is no controlling authority or a changeof law is sought. In such instances, decisions of other divisions and districts, lower federal courts, and out-of-state courts, as well as treatises, may be of value to the reviewing court [see, e.g., Weil v. Federal Kemper Life Assurance Co., (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 125, 138, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 316, 866 P.2d 774 ; Baptiste v. Superior Court (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 87, 93, 164 Cal. Rptr. 789] . When a California law is modeled on federal laws, decisions of the federal courts interpreting substantially identical statutes are unusually strong persuasive authority on the interpretation of the California law [Kamen v. Lindly (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 197, 203, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 127 (looking to federal decisions concerning civil liability for securities fraud to interpret state securities fraud statute)].

Similarly, while an opinion of the Attorney General also is not binding precedent, it may be entitled to great weight as persuasive authority when there is no other authority on the issue [Fischer v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 87, 101, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 452 (opinion construing state statute)].

Administrative adjudications have similar force as persuasive authority. For example, cases published in California Compensation Cases in which writs of review were denied are citable [Tenet/Centinela Hospital Medical Center v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1041, 1047, n.4, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 858 ; see also Bowen v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 15, 21 n.10, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 95 (cases published in California Compensation Cases as denials of writs of review have no stare decisis effect on appellate courts, but are citable authority as to the holding of the WCAB)], and a WCAB panel decision published in the California Workers' Compensation Reporter is citable, particularly on the issue of contemporaneous administrative construction of a statute [Tenet/Centinela Hospital Medical Center v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1041, 1047 n.4, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 858] .

§ 41.32 Retroactive Application of Law

[1] Retroactive Application of Statutes

Statutes do not operate retrospectively unless the Legislature plainly intended them to do so [Evangelatos v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1188, 1207-1208, 246 Cal. Rptr. 629, 753 P.2d 585] . If the Legislature clearly intended retrospective effect, the courts will carry out that intent unless to do so violates due process rights [In re Marriage of Bouquet (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 583, 587, 592, 128 Cal. Rptr. 427, 546 P.2d 1371] . A statute has retrospective effect when it substantially changes the legal consequences of past events [Kizer v. Hanna (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 1, 7, 255 Cal. Rptr. 412, 767 P.2d 679] . If the statute merely clarifies, rather than changes, existing law, it does not operate retrospectively even if applied to circumstances predating its enactment [Martin v. California Mut. B. & L. Assn. (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 478, 484, 116 P.2d 71] .

When a statute does not expressly declare the Legislature's intent to apply it retroactively, a court must determine the Legislature's intent from other factors, such as the following [Santangelo v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 804, 814, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 735] :

- The context of the legislation.
- The objective of the litigation.
- The evils sought to be remedied.
- Similar legislation.
- The history of the times.

- Public policy.
- Contemporaneous statutory construction.

When the court finds the Legislature intended a new procedural statute to apply to pending cases, it will only be applied if a reasonable time remains for the party to comply. This construction avoids constitutional problems [Santangelo v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 804, 814-815, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 735] .

When the Legislature exercises its power to change appellate procedure, the change may apply to all cases pending as of the effective date of the statute [Save our Forest and Ranchlands v. County of San Diego (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1757, 1764, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 708] .

For further discussion concerning retroactive application of statutes, see Ch. 531, Statutes and Ordinances .

[2] Retroactive Application of Case Law

Judicial decisions, particularly those in tort cases, are generally applied retroactively. Considerations of fairness and public policy may require that a decision be given only prospective application [Newman v. Emerson Radio Corp. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 973, 978, 981-984, 258 Cal. Rptr. 592, 772 P.2d 1059 ; see In re Retirement Cases (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 426, 443, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 790 (reviewing trial court's ruling that neither fairness nor public policy warranted exception to retroactivity rule under abuse of discretion standard)]. Considerations relevant to the retroactivity determination include the reasonableness of the parties' reliance on the former rule, the nature of the change as substantive or procedural, retroactivity's effect on the administration of justice, and the purposes to be served by the new rule [Newman v. Emerson Radio Corp. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 973, 978, 983-992, 258 Cal. Rptr. 592, 772 P.2d 1059] . When a new Supreme Court decision is not inconsistent with a prior Supreme Court decision, the new decision will be given full retroactive application [Planning and Conservation League v. Department of Water Resources (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 264, 274, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 635 (also suggesting that a jurisdictional ruling may never be made prospective only)].

At times, a court may expressly overrule a case precedent and, while applying the new rule to the case in which it is announced, return to the old rule in all other cases arising on facts predating the pronouncement of the new rule [Schmier v. Supreme Court (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 703, 710, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 580] . This practice, called "selective prospectivity," can violate due process and equal protection guarantees [Schmier v. Supreme Court (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 873, 880 n. 4, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497 (finding prior appeal in same case did not establish new rule of law)].

§ 41.50 Publication and Citability of Appellate Opinions

[1] All Supreme Court Opinions Are Published

All opinions of the California Supreme Court are published in the Official Reports (California Reports) [see Cal. Const. art. VI, § 14; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1150(a)]. As such, all Supreme Court opinions become citable precedential case law authority.

[2] Court of Appeal Opinions Published Selectively

Court of appeal opinions, and opinions of the appellate department of the Superior Court, are published by selection only, pursuant to the criteria set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1150(c), discussed in § 41.51[2].

This initial selective publication of court of appeal opinions (and opinions of the appellate department of the Superior Court), and the other rules regarding the publication or "depublication" of these opinions, derive from the California Supreme Court's unlimited discretion, under the state constitution, to control which opinions of the lower appellate courts are to be published and which are not to be published [see Cal. Const. art. VI, § 14 (providing for publication of court of appeal opinions "as the Supreme Court deems appropriate"); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1150(b)]. This power, of course, determines which court of appeal opinions and which opinions of the appellate department of the Superior Court may ultimately be cited as either controlling or persuasive decisional authority as a result of their publication [see discussion in § 41.31 and in [3], below].

[3] Citability of Opinions as Decisional Authority

[a] Generally Only Published Opinions Are Citable

All final California Supreme Court opinions are published in the Official Reports [see [1], above], and all consequently are citable decisional authority.

Opinions of the court of appeal and the appellate department of the Superior Court are published only selectively [see [2], above, and discussion in § 41.51]. With certain exceptions, discussed in [b], below, any opinion that is not published in the Official Reports may not be cited or relied on by a court or a party in any other action or proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1115(a); see also Nelson v. Justice Court (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 64, 66, 150 Cal. Rptr. 39 (unpublished decision not available as a precedent); for discussion regarding the effect of such cases upon subsequent proceedings in the same action, see*§ 41.30*]. The availability of unpublished opinions on the Internet does not change the rule that an opinion not certified for publication in the official reports may not be cited in a brief[Schmier v. Supreme Court (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 873, 881, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497] .

Unpublished, and therefore uncitable, opinions of the court of appeal and the appellate department of the Superior Court include the following:

- Opinions not certified for publication by the deciding court and not later ordered published by the deciding court or the Supreme Court [see § 41.51].

- Opinions initially certified for publication by the court of appeal or appellate department of the Superior Court that have been specifically ordered not published (commonly termed depublication or decertification) by subsequent order of the Supreme Court [see § 41.52[2]].

- Opinions initially certified for publication by the court of appeal or appellate department of the Superior Court that have been superseded by an order granting review, rehearing, or other action, unless the Supreme Court has expressly ordered publication of the opinion pending the disposition of such orders [see § 41.52[1]].

For discussion of the general effect of citable case law under the doctrine of stare decisis, see § 41.31.

[b] When Unpublished Opinions May Be Cited

An opinion that is not published may be cited in the following limited circumstances [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.115(b)]:

- When the opinion is relevant under the doctrines of law of the case, res judicata, or collateral estoppel [see County of Riverside v. Superior Court (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 278, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713, 66 P.3d 718, 726 (for collateral estoppel to apply, issue decided in unpublished decision must be identical to that in current action); for discussion of law of the case principles, see*§ 41.30*; for discussion of res judicata or collateral estoppel principles, see Ch. 491, Res Judicata].

- When the opinion is relevant to a criminal or disciplinary action or proceeding because it states reasons for a decision affecting the same defendant or respondent in another such action or proceeding.

A copy of any unpublished opinion citable under these circumstances must be furnished to the court and all parties by attaching it to the document in which it is cited or, if the citation will be made orally, by letter, within a reasonable time in advance of citation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1115(c)]. Note that this citation procedure applies not only to unpublished opinions, but also to opinions that have been certified for publication but which do not yet have any official or other print-based citation. That is, copies must be provided in the same way for a cited opinion of any court that is available only in a computer-based source of decisional law [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1115(c); see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs , for further discussion of rules governing the manner of citation].

§ 41.51 Procedure for Publication of Opinions of Court of Appeal or Appellate Department of Superior Court

[1] Initial Certification for Publication by Court of Appeal

The initial process of publication is decided by a majority of the court of appeal panel deciding a particular case, considering the Supreme Court's criteria for publication set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1105(c) (discussed in [2], below). That majority may certify the opinion for publication pursuant to these criteria at any time prior to its becoming final [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1105(b); for discussion of when court of appeal decisions become final, see Ch. 51, Appeal: Hearing and Decision, § 51.19].

Either on its own motion or the motion of any person, whether a party or not, the court of appeal may reconsider its initial decision not to publish up until the time the opinion becomes final in that court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1120 and discussion in [3], below.].

[2] Criteria for Publication

[a] General Criteria

An opinion of a court of appeal or appellate department of the superior court, whether it affirms or reverses a trial court order or judgment, should be certified for publication if it does one or more of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1105(c)]]:

- Establishes a new rule of law.
- Applies an existing rule of law to a set of facts significantly different from those stated in published opinions.
- Modifies, explains, or criticizes with reasons given, an existing rule of law.

- Advances a new interpretation, clarification, criticism, or construction of a provision of a constitution, statute, ordinance, or court rule.

- Addresses or creates an apparent conflict in the law.

- Involves a legal issue of continuing public interest.

- Makes a significant contribution to legal literature by reviewing either the development of a common law rule or the legislative or judicial history of a provision of a constitution, statute, or other written law.

- Invokes a previously overlooked rule of law, or reaffirms a principle of law not applied in a recently reported decision.

- Is accompanied by a separate opinion concurring or dissenting on a legal issue, and publication of the majority and separate opinions would make a significant contribution to the development of the law.

When deciding whether to publish an opinion, courts may not consider the workload of the court, or the potential embarrassment of a litigant, lawyer, judge, or other person [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1105(d)].

[b] Partial Publication

Any part of an opinion by a court of appeal or appellate department of the superior court may be certified for publication when that part meets the criteria for publication under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1105(c) [discussed in [a], above]. The part that is published must indicate which part of the opinion is unpublished; all material, factual and legal, including the disposition, that aids in the application or interpretation of the published part must be included in the published part [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1110(a)].

For purposes of the general rules set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.1105-8.1120, the published part is deemed a published opinion and the unpublished part is deemed an unpublished opinion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.1110(c)].

[3] Request by Interested Party for Publication of Unpublished Opinion

Any person may request publication of an opinion that has not already been certified for publication by the court rendering that opinion as discussed in [1], above. The request may be made only to the court that rendered the opinion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1120(a)]. The request must be delivered to the rendering court within 20 days after the opinion is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1120(a)(3)]. The request must be made by a letter that states the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1120(a)]:

- The nature of the person's interest.

- Why, concisely, the opinion meets one or more of the publication standards [see [2], above, for discussion of publication standards].

PRACTICE TIP:

Requesting Publication. Whether to request publication of an unpublished decision requires an exercise of judgment and the balancing of a variety of factors. Before requesting publication, counsel should be sure to discuss these issues with the client. For example, an attorney who represented the successful party may have reasons for desiring publication that conflict with the client's best interests. The attorney may believe the opinion makes an important contribution to the law, or that it will help other clients, or both, or he or she may simply want the publicity of a published decision. Similarly, the client may want the opinion published because it vindicates his or her position and is therefore important for business or personal reasons. On the other hand, publication may increase the possibility that the Supreme Court will grant a review resulting in a reversal. Accordingly, it is often in the client's interest for the opinion not to be published.

Requesting publication does not raise as many potential conflicts for the losing party, but there may still be conflicting considerations. For example, if the client does not intend to seek review in the California Supreme Court, the attorney may want the opinion published for some of the reasons discussed above, whereas the losing client may prefer not to have the subject matter of the opinion become a matter of public knowledge.

When requesting publication of an unpublished decision, be concise, but also be sure to explain clearly to the court why you think an opinion meets one or more of the criteria for publication: why it clarifies the law, why it answers an important legal question, etc. It is also usually helpful to obtain letters of support from others who have an interest in the legal issue, but were not involved in the particular case. As discussed, above, it is not necessary to be a party to make a request or provide a letter in support of a request. These letters can explain consequences that the opinion might have whichthe litigants might not have discussed and the court might not have considered. A request for publication or letter of support from a nonparty may be accorded more weight than one by a prevailing or other party because it suggests that the issue is in fact one of continuing public interest with applicability to a problem that frequently arises.

The request must be accompanied by proof of its service on each party to the action or proceeding in the court of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1120(a); for discussion and forms relating to proof of service generally, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

For a form of request for publication of a court of appeal opinion that has not already been certified for publication by that court, see*§ 41.90*.

If the court that rendered the opinion does not grant the request, or cannot grant it by reason of the decision's finality as to that court, that court must transmit the request for publication and a copy of the opinion to the Supreme Court with its recommendation for disposition and a brief statement of its reasons. The rendering court must forward these materials within 15 days after the decision is final in that court. The transmitting court must also send a copy of its recommendation and reasons to each party and to any person who has requested publication [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1120(b)].

When the Supreme Court receives a request for publication under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1120(b), it must either order the opinion published or deny the request, and send notice of its action to the transmitting court, each party, and any person who has requested publication [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1120(c)]. Note that, in addition to the procedure in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1120 for publication on the request by an interested person, the Supreme Court retains the power to order such publication on its own motion [see Cal. Const. art. VI, § 14; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1105(d)(2) and discussion in § 41.50[2]].

When the Supreme Court orders the publication of an opinion of the court of appeal or the appellate department of the Superior Court, the order is not to be deemed an expression of opinion by the Supreme Court of the correctness of the result reached by the decision or of any of the law set forth in the opinion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1120(d)].

A request for depublication, as distinguished from a request for publication, is addressed to the Supreme Court rather that to the court that rendered the opinion. For further discussion of depublication procedures, see*§ 41.52*.

§ 41.52 Procedure for Depublication of Court of Appeal Opinion Previously Certified for Publication

[1] Automatic Depublication Upon Grant of Review or Rehearing

Opinions initially certified for publication by the court of appeal or appellate department of the Superior Court may not be published if they are superseded by an order granting review, rehearing, or other action, unless the Supreme Court has expressly ordered publication of the opinion pending the disposition of such orders [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1105(e); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.264 (finality), 8.268 (rehearing), 8.500 (review)]. For discussion respectively of finality, rehearing, and review, see Ch. 51, Appeal: Hearing and Decision , Ch. 52, Appeal: Rehearing , and Ch. 54, Appeal: California Supreme Court Review .

After granting review, after decision, or after dismissal of review and remand as improvidently granted, the Supreme Court may order the opinion of the court of appeal published in whole or in part [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1105(d)].

[2] Depublication by Supreme Court Order

[a] Depublication on Request by Interested Person

A request by any person for the depublication of a court of appeal opinion certified for publication must be made by letter to the Supreme Court within 30 days after the decision becomes final as to the court of appeal that rendered the opinion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1125(a); for discussion of the initial certification process, see*§ 41.51[1]* and*[2]*]. The request must be made promptly by a letter that states the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1125(a)]:

- The nature of the person's interest.
- Concisely, the reasons why the opinion should not remain published.

The request may not exceed 10 pages, and must be accompanied by proof of its mailing to the court of appeal and proof of service on each party to the action or proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1125(a); for discussion and forms relating to proof of service generally, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

PRACTICE TIP:

Requesting Depublication. The Supreme Court grants review in only a very small percentage of the civil cases in which a party seeks its review. Requests for depublication were often included in a petition for review, as an alternative to a grant of review. However, effective January 1, 2005, Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1125(a)(2) specifically prohibits that practice and requires that the request for depublication be in a separate letter to the Supreme Court not exceeding 10 pages [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1125(a)(2)].

Similarly, a party opposing the petition may argue for denial in the answer to the petition, but include, as an alternative, a separate letter request for depublication. A party opposing review, but not opposed to depublication, may argue, for example, that the published court of appeal decision reached the proper result, even though it may arguably contain a misstatement of law on some points, or an inappropriate discussion of issues or facts, and that in such a case it is unnecessary for the Supreme Court to use its limited resources to write an opinion that will reach the same result. Alternatively, the case may present a legal issue that might eventually be worthy of the Supreme Court's review, but the case otherwise is not an appropriate vehicle for reaching the issue, for example, because review will have no effect on the ultimate outcome. In these situations it is arguable that depublication is preferable to making the litigants wait even longer for the decision in their case to become final.

Parties requesting depublication are likely to improve their chances of having the request granted if they seek and obtain letters from amici curiae or other nonparties that support the request and explain why depublication is important. A nonparty, as an interested person, is also free to make his or her own request, which may be done separately or as part of a letter supporting (or opposing) a petition for review as amicus curiae [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.500(g) and Ch. 22, Amicus Curiae].

For a form of request to the Supreme Court for an order directing depublication of a court of appeal opinion, see*§ 41.91*. For forms of petition for review and an answer to a petition for review, see Ch. 54, Appeal: California Supreme Court Review, § 54.100 et seq.

[b] Response by Other Interested Persons

Within 10 days after the Supreme Court receives a request for depublication, any person may submit a response, either joining in the request or concisely stating reasons why the opinion should remain published. A response submitted by anyone other than the court of appeal must state the nature of the submitting person's interest. The response must not exceed 10 pages and must be accompanied by proof of mailing to the court of appeal, and proof of service to each party to the action or proceeding and to any person who has submitted a request for depublication [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1125(b)].

[c] Disposition of Request by Supreme Court

When the Supreme Court receives a request under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1125(a), it is required either to order the opinion depublished or to deny the request. The Court must send notice of its action to the court of appeal, each party, and any person who has requested depublication [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1125(c)].

[3] Supreme Court May Order Depublication Sua Sponte

In addition to the automatic depublication discussed in [1], above, and the procedure in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1125 for depublication on the request by an interested person discussed in [2], above, the Supreme Court retains the power to order such depublication on its own motion [see Cal. Const. art. VI, § 14; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1105(d)(2) and discussion in § 41.50[2]].

[4] Effect of Depublication

Depublication renders an opinion uncitable as precedential decisional law [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1115(a); see also discussion concerning citability in § 41.51[3]]. An order of the Supreme Court directing depublication of an opinion is not to be deemed an expression of opinion of the Supreme Court of the correctness of the result reached by the decision or of any of the law set forth in the opinion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1125(d)].

While some commentators and court of appeal opinions have suggested that depublication orders have inevitable significance and indicate a tacit disapproval, notwithstanding the language of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1125(d) [see People v. Dee (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 760, 763-765, 272 Cal. Rptr. 208 , disapproved by People v. Saunders (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 580, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 638, 853 P.2d 1093] , the Supreme Court itself has maintained that, consistent with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1125(d), it is improper to argue or to infer any disapproval implicit in a depublication order [see, e.g., People v. Saunders (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 580, 592 n.8, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 638, 853 P.2d 1093] .

Similarly, some have criticized depublication as a practice by which the Supreme Court may shape common law in California without issuing reasoned opinions [see Barnett, Making Decisions Disappear: Depublication and Stipulated Reversal in the California Supreme Court, 26 Loyola L.A. L. Rev. 1033 (1993)], while others have defended it [see Grodin, The Depublication Practice of the California Supreme Court, 72 Cal. L. Rev. 514 (1984)]. Ultimately, however, the fact remains that the Supreme Court has a constitutional discretion to determine which appellate decisions are to be published [see Cal. Const. art. VI, § 14 and discussion in § 41.50[2]].

§ 41.63 Decisions

[1] General Rules Governing All Standards of Review

[a] Prejudice Required for Reversal

Court will not reverse judgment unless, after examination of entire cause, it appears error caused miscarriage of justice, i.e., reasonable probability that, in absence of error, result more favorable to appealing party would have been reached. Elsner v. Uveges (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 915, 939, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 530, 102 P.3d 915

For reversal due to state law error, appellant must show reasonable probability of more favorable result absent error. Soule v. General Motors Corp. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 548, 574, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 607, 882 P.2d 298

The miscarriage of justice standard for reversal requires a showing that it is reasonably probable that a result more favorable to the appealing party would have been reached in the absence of the error. A probability does not mean more likely than not, but merely a reasonable chance, more than an abstract possibility. Cellphone Termination Fee Cases (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1110, 1125-1126, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 275

Prejudicial error not required when the error calls into question the very fairness of the trial or hearing itself. Biscaro v. Stern (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 702, 709-710, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 817

Error is prejudicial if it is reasonably probable that a result more favorable to the appellant would have been reached absent the error. A "probability" means a reasonable chance, more than an abstract possibility. Red Mountain, LLC v. Fallbrook Public Utility District (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 333, 348, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 875

"Miscarriage of justice" exists when it is reasonably probable that a result more favorable to the appealing party would have been reached in the absence of error. Weaver v. Chavez (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1350, 1356, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 514

When jury receives improper instruction, prejudice generally found only where it seems probable that jury's verdict may have been based on erroneous instruction. Raghavan v. Boeing Co. (2005) 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 397, 410, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 397

[b] Appellant Bears Burden of Showing Error

Appellant bears burden of showing prejudicial error, regardless of standard of review to be applied. Searle v. Allstate Life Ins. Co. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 425, 439, 212 Cal. Rptr. 466, 696 P.2d 1308

Appellant has burden to show that error has resulted in a miscarriage of justice. Boeken v. Philip Morris Incorporated (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1640, 1678, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 638

[c] Review Limited to Errors of Law

[i] Errors of Law the Province of Appellate Courts

Sole province of court on appeal is to review action of trial court, correct its errors, and pass on questions of law only. Tupman v. Haberkern (1929) 208 Cal. 256, 262, 263, 280 P. 970

[ii] Invited Error

Under doctrine of invited error, party may not claim error on appeal if that party induced error. Mary M. v. City of Los Angeles (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 202, 212-213, 285 Cal. Rptr. 99, 814 P.2d 1341

Doctrine of invited error does not apply when party, while making appropriate objections, acquiesces in judicial determination. Mary M. v. City of Los Angeles (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 202, 212-213, 285 Cal. Rptr. 99, 814 P.2d 1341

Under the doctrine of invited error, when a party by its own conduct induces the commission of error, it may not claim on appeal that the judgment should be reversed because of that error. Ruiz v. Podolsky (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 227, 247, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 828

Invited error doctrine does not extend to situations where a party induces the commission of the error, but does not in fact mislead the trial court in any way, as where a party endeavors to make the best of a bad situation for which it was not responsible. Saxena v. Goffney (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 316, 329, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 469

If a party induces the commission of error, the party is estopped from asserting it as a ground for reversal on appeal. Munoz v. City of Union City (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 173, 178, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 393

[d] Review Based on Theory of Law Not Raised at Trial

Issues not raised in trial court cannot be raised for first time on appeal; party may not, for the first time on appeal, change the theory of the cause of action. Johnson v. Greenelsh (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 598, 603, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 622, 217 P.3d 1194

Appellate courts' discretion to excuse forfeiture should be exercised rarely and only in cases presenting important legal issue. In re S.B. (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 1287, 1293-1294, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 786, 90 P.3d 746

Appellate court will not consider issues raised for first time on appeal. Gavaldon v. DaimlerChrysler Corp. (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 1246, 1265, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 793, 90 P.3d 752

Exception to rule that appellate court will not consider facts occurring after trial court judgment when action seeks injunctive relief. Dowhal v. Smithkline Beecham Consumer Healthcare (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 910, 922 n.4, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 262, 88 P.3d 1

Exception to rule that appellate court will not consider issues raised for first time on appeal when new point of law is decided after trial. Fisher v. City of Berkeley (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 644, 654, n.3, 209 Cal. Rptr. 682, 693 P.2d 261

Appellate court need not consider new theory that contemplates factual situation the consequences of which are open to controversy and were not put in issue or presented at trial. See Tiernan v. Trustees of Cal. State University & Colleges (1982) 33 Cal. 3d 211, 221-222 n.15, 188 Cal. Rptr. 115, 655 P.2d 317

To preserve an issue for appeal, a party must raise the objection in the trial court. This rule is founded on considerations of fairness to the court and opposing party, and on the practical need for an orderly and efficient administration of the law. Dietz v. Meisenheimer & Herron (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 771, 799, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 464

Appellate court may consider new argument on appeal if it was question of law involving issue of public concern. Rental Housing Association of Northern Alameda County v. City of Oakland (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 741, 755, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 181

To preserve an issue for appeal, a party ordinarily must raise the objection in the trial court. K.C. Multimedia, Inc. v. Bank of America Technology & Operations, Inc. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 939, 948-949, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 247

To determine the appeal of a summary judgment motion, the appellate court may consider issues not raised in trial court. Larner v. Los Angeles Doctors Hospital Associates, LP (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1291, 1297 n.2, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 324

Appellate courts may consider new theories raised for the first time on appeal when the new theory presents a question of law to be applied to undisputed facts in the record. RN Solution, Inc. v. Catholic Healthcare West (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 1511, 1518, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 892

Parties may raise new issues on appeal where the issue is purely a question of law on undisputed facts. Sheller v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1697, 1709, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 207

Appellate courts typically have engaged in the discretionary review of otherwise forfeited arguments when the claim involves an important issue of constitutional law or a substantial right. Preserve Shorecliff Homeowners v. City of San Clemente (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1427, 1433, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 332

Reviewing court ordinarily will not consider claims made for the first time on appeal that could have been but were not presented to the trial court. Kashmiri v. Regents of the University of California (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 809, 830, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 635

Appellate court may consider a new issue on appeal for the first time when the issue posed is purely a question of law based on undisputed facts and involves important questions of public policy. In re Conservatorship of Whitley (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 1447, 1458, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 808

Exception to rule that appellate court will not consider issue not raised in trial court when it is a pure question of law. Petropoulos v. Department of Real Estate (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 554, 561, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 812

Points not raised in the trial court may not be raised for the first time on appeal. Baugh v. Garl (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 737, 746, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 539

Appellate court will not consider issues raised for first time on appeal. Lackner v. North (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 1188, 1201 n.5, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 863

Appellate court not required to consider purely legal issue raised for first time on appeal. Souza v. Westlands Water Dist. (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 879, 898-899, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 78

Rule that issues not raised in trial court cannot be raised for first time on appeal especially applicable to doctrine of estoppel, which includes factual elements which must be established in trial court. Honig v. San Francisco Planning Department (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 520, 530, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 649

Party may raise new theory on appeal where it involves purely legal question. Dieckmeyer v. Redevelopment Agency of the City of Huntington Beach (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 248, 259, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 895

Appellate court may consider question of law based on undisputed facts, even if first raised on appeal. Allied Fire Protection v. Diede Construction, Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 150, 154, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 195

Exception to rule that appellate court will not consider issues raised for first time on appeal when subject matter jurisdiction is raised. Miranda v. 21st Century Ins. Co. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 913, 920, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 159

Appellate court may consider new argument on appeal if it was question of law involving issue of public policy not previously addressed in California. Raphael v. Bloomfield (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 617, 621, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 583

Issue raised only in motion for nonsuit after trial not sufficient; defendant's failure to object to evidence during trial waived appeal. Henley v. Philip Morris Inc. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 198, 212-213, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 42

Exception to rule that appellate court will not consider issues raised for first time on appeal when issue bears upon public interest or due administration of justice. Catchpole v. Brannon (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 237, 244, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440

[e] Court Need Not Consider Errors of Law Not Argued in Briefs

Issues not properly raised in opening brief are deemed forfeited or abandoned. Fidelity National Title Insurance Co. v. Schroeder (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 834, 847 n.11, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854

Court need not consider issue where reasoned, substantial argument and citation to supporting authorities are lacking; mere assertion of statutory or constitutional violation, followed by simple citation to statute or constitutional provision, does not merit judicial response. Woods v. Horton (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 658, 677, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 332

Absent good cause, failure to raise a claim in an opening brief waives it. Ocean Harbor House Homeowners Association v. California Coastal Commission (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 215, 242 n.9, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 432

Appellant court need not determine any issue appellant failed to raise in opening brief. Wall Street Network, Ltd. v. New York Times Company (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 1171, 1177, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 6

Appellant's failure to support argument with proper legal citations triggers a waiver, thereby undermining an appeal.

American International Specialty Lines Insurance Company v. Continental Casualty Insurance Company (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1342, 1359, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1

Appellate court may treat as waived any argument for which brief does not provide citation to authority. City of Arcadia v. State Water Resources Control Bd. (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 1392, 1428-1429, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 373

Appellant's failure to raise argument in opening brief waives issue on appeal. Dieckmeyer v. Redevelopment Agency of the City of Huntington Beach (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 248, 260, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 895

If appellant has neglected to present point in opening brief or has presented point only superficially, party may not insist that court consider the point. Stoll v. Shuff (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 22, 25, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 249

Appellate court may treat as waived any contention for which brief does not provide citation to authority. Jones v. Superior Court (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 92, 99, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 264 ; Amato v. Mercury Casualty Co. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1784, 1794, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73

[f] Mootness

Court has discretion to resolve appeal based on issue of great public interest, despite events, such as death of party, which may render the matter moot. Konig v. Fair Employment and Housing Commission (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 743, 746, n.3, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 50 P.3d 718

Appellate court may exercise inherent power to resolve issue in appeal rendered moot by subsequent events, when that issue is one of continuing public interest and likely to recur. Baluyut v. Superior Court (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 826, 829-830 n.4, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101, 911 P.2d 1

Appellate court will not give opinions on moot questions or abstract propositions or declare principles or rules of law that cannot affect matter in issue. Consol. etc. Air Corp. v. United A. etc. Workers (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 859, 863, 167 P.2d 725

A reviewing court may exercise its inherent discretion to resolve an issue rendered moot by subsequent events if the question to be decided is of continuing public importance and is a question capable of repetition, yet evading review. In re Anna S. (2010) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1489, 1497, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 889

Appellate court has inherent power to decide issues in a case rendered moot if they are important and of continuing interest. City of San Jose v. International Assn. of Firefighters, Local 230 (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 408, 417-418, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 396

Settlement agreement may not preserve parties' right to appeal. Watkins v. Wachovia Corporation (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 1576, 1588, 92 Cal. Rptr. 409

Parties cannot by agreement make moot issue appealable. Larner v. Los Angeles Doctors Hospital Associates, LP (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1291, 1297-1298, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 324

If appeal is technically moot, but same controversy between parties may reoccur, and parties have fully litigated issues, reviewing court may reach merits of appeal. Hollister v. Monterey Insurance Company (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 455, 480, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 72

A court will decide an appeal if only part but not all of the controversy has been rendered moot. Mercury Interactive

Corporation v. Klein (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 60, 78, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88

If a pending case poses an issue of broad public interest that is likely to recur, the court may exercise an inherent discretion to resolve that issue even though an event occurring during its pendency would normally render the matter moot. Gonzalez v. Munoz (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 413, 419-420, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 317

Although an appeal is technically moot, the appellate court may exercise its inherent discretion to consider the issue presented if it is of broad public interest and likely to recur. City of Riverside v. Stansbury (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 1582, 1588, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 862

Appeal was not rendered moot by subsequent federal law condemning memorial site by eminent domain; condemnation law was itself subject of challenges, and local issue was part of continuing controversy that existed for 17 years. Paulson v. Abdelnour (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 400, 415-416, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 575

Appeal moot when parties settled underlying case. Ebensteiner Co. v. Chadmar Group (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1174, 1178-1180, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 825

Purity of elections and full disclosure of contributions and expenditures are matters of public interest for purposes of determining whether matter is moot. Californians for Fair Representation--No on 77 v. Superior Court (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 15, 22-23, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 148

Appeal not moot when case raised important issues of public policy that were likely to recur, yet would evade review because of the cyclical nature of the pesticide renewal process. Californians for Alternatives to Toxics v. Department of Pesticide Regulation (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1049, 1069, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 393

Court hears issue of conflicts of interest that may arise between putative class members and counsel despite withdrawal of counsel. Apple Computer, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1253, 1264, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 818

If issues on appeal affect the general public interest and will likely be litigated and appealed again, an appellate court may, although the appeal is subject to dismissal as moot, adjudicate the issues involved. Marshall v. Pasadena Unified School District (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 1241, 1250, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 344

Despite settlement of case, issue of disclosure of confidential reports not moot when it may arise in future in same case or in other cases. Tracy A. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 1309, 1313-1314, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 684

Court determined case not moot, despite defendant's death, in light of public interest in lawful enforcement of drunk driving laws. Hernandez v. Gutierrez (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 168, 176, n.3, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 307

Appeal is moot when the decision of the reviewing court can have no practical impact or provide the parties effectual relief; city's compliance with writ rendered appeal moot. MHC Operating Limited Partnership v. City of San Jose (2003) 106 Cal.App. 4th 204, 214, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 564

A court will decline to exercise its discretion when the issues presented are essentially factual in nature and therefore require resolution on a case-by-case basis; whether specific party is indispensable is fact-specific question. MHC Operating Limited Partnership v. City of San Jose (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 204, 215, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 564

Appeal considered moot when contracts at issue had already been performed and had expired. Giles v. Horn (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 206, 226-228, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 735

Appeal based on a challenge to an emergency regulation that has expired is not moot when the emergency regulation has been replaced by an identical permanent regulation. Californians for Political Reform Foundation v. Fair Political Practices Com. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 472, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 606

[2] General Standards of Review of Judgment on Appeal

[a] Overview and Comparison of Standards of Review

Standard of review determines how much deference is given to ruling or judgment. Hurtado v. Statewide Home Loan Co. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1019, 1022-1023, 213 Cal. Rptr. 712, 714 , disapproved on other grounds in Shamblin v. Brattain (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 474, 479 n.4, 243 Cal. Rptr. 902, 749 P.2d 339

[b] Review Based on Claim of Abuse of Discretion by Trial Court

Appellate court will not reverse under abuse of discretion standard if it merely disagrees with ruling or order. Rappleyea v. Campbell (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 975, 987, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669, 884 P.2d 126

Appellate court will not reverse for abuse of discretion unless it appears a miscarriage of justice has occurred because the trial court exceeded the bounds of reason, all circumstances considered; appellant has the burden of showing a clear case of abuse, or appellate court will not substitute its opinion for that of trial court and divest trial court of its discretionary power. Denham v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 557, 564, 86 Cal. Rptr. 65, 468 P.2d 193

Trial court's discretion is not a whimsical, uncontrolled power, but a legal discretion, subject to the limitations of legal principles governing the subject of its action, and to reversal on appeal if no reasonable basis for the action is shown. Miyamoto v. DMV (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1210, 1217-1219, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 459

Court's refusal to acknowledge and exercise discretion vested in it was abuse of discretion. Law Offices of Dixon R. Howell v. Valley (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 1076, 1090, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 499

A reviewing court will reverse a trial court's exercise of discretion only when there has been a miscarriage of justice. Bancomer, S.A. v. Superior Court (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 1450, 1457, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 435

Discretion of trial court subject to limitations of legal principles governing subject of its action. City of Sacramento v. Drew (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1287, 1297-1298, 255 Cal. Rptr. 704

"Discretion" cannot be defined without regard to the particular subject of discretion. Hurtado v. Statewide Home Loan Co. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1019, 1022-1023, 213 Cal. Rptr. 712, 714 , disapproved on other grounds in Shamblin v. Brattain (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 474, 479 n.4, 243 Cal. Rptr. 902, 749 P.2d 339

[c] Review Based on Claim of Insufficient Evidence

[i] Substantial Evidence Review

Substantial evidence test applies to questions of fact, that is, when the inquiry requires the application of experience with human affairs. 20th Century Ins. Co. v. Garamendi (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 216, 271, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 807, 878 P.2d 566

Scope of review of sufficiency of evidence begins and ends with determination whether there is substantial evidence that will support conclusions reached by jury or trial court. Foreman & Clark Corp. v. Fallon (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 875,

881, 92 Cal. Rptr. 162, 479 P.2d 362

Appellant has burden to identify and establish deficiencies in evidence. The appellate court is not required to independently search the evidentiary record to determine its sufficiency. Huong Que, Inc. v. Luu (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 400, 409, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 527

Questions of fact are reviewed under the substantial evidence rule. Gifford v. J & A Holdings (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 996, 1002, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 253

[ii] Presumptions in Favor of Judgment

An inference may constitute substantial evidence, but the inference must be a reasonable conclusion from the evidence and cannot be based upon suspicion, imagination, speculation, surmise, conjecture or guesswork. McRae v. Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 377, 389, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 313

If more than one reasonable inference may be drawn from facts, the substantial evidence rule requires indulging the inferences favorable to the trial court's judgment. Davis v. Continental Airlines, Inc. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 205, 211, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79

Presumption that record contains evidence sufficient to sustain every finding of fact. Foreman & Clark Corp. v. Fallon (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 875, 881, 92 Cal. Rptr. 162, 479 P.2d 362

Court must consider evidence in light most favorable to prevailing party. In re Complex Asbestos Litigation (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 572, 597, 283 Cal. Rptr. 732

[iii] Waiver of Contention for Failure to State Facts Appropriately

Appellant risks waiver of issue if facts not stated with appropriate standard in mind, e.g., in light most favorable to judgment. Foreman & Clark Corp. v. Fallon (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 875, 881, 92 Cal. Rptr. 162, 479 P.2d 362

[iv] Sufficiency of Evidence Judged Against Jury Instructions Given

Party who requested jury instructions is bound by jury's determination on those instructions. Williams v. Volkswagenwerk Aktiengesellschaft (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1244, 1264, 226 Cal. Rptr. 306

[v] General Verdict Rule

General verdict not be disturbed by appellate court if any one of counts or issues is supported by substantial evidence and is unaffected by error. Liberty Transport, Inc. v. Harry W. Gorst Co. (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 417, 427, 280 Cal. Rptr. 159 , disapproved on other grounds in Adams v. Murakami (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 105, 116, 284 Cal. Rptr. 318, 813 P.2d 1348

[vi] Same Appellate Standard Applies Regardless of Trial Court Standard

On review of factual determination, same sufficiency of evidence standard applies regardless of standard applied in trial court. Crail v. Blakely (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 744, 750, 106 Cal. Rptr. 187, 505 P.2d 1027

[vii] Appeal on Judgment Roll or Clerk's Transcript

When appeal based on judgment roll, court must conclusively presume that the evidence is ample to sustain the trial court's findings; review is limited to determining whether any error appears on the face of the record. Nielsen v. Gibson (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 318, 324-325, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 335

If no evidence or only portion of evidence designated as part of record on appeal, appellant may not challenge sufficiency of evidence. Sui v. Landi (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 383, 385-386 , 209 Cal. Rptr. 449

[viii] Modified Sufficiency Review for Exclusion of Evidence and Instructions

When appellant contends trial court erred by not giving requested instructions or instructions which must be given on court's own motion, appellate court will review record to determine whether there was sufficient evidence to justify instruction, viewing evidence in light most favorable to appellant. Sills v. Los Angeles Transit Lines (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 630, 633, 255 P.2d 795

[ix] Mixed Questions of Law and Fact

Substantial evidence test applies to questions of fact and independent review test applies to questions of law; for mixed questions, if the inquiry requires the application of experience with human affairs, the question is predominantly factual and the substantial evidence test applies, whereas if the inquiry, by contrast, requires critical consideration, in a factual context, of legal principles and their underlying values, the question is predominantly legal and is reviewed independently. 20th Century Ins. Co. v. Garamendi (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 216, 271, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 807, 878 P.2d 566

Mixed questions of law and fact are determined in three steps: the reviewing court determines whether the facts found by the trial court are supported by substantial evidence, selects the applicable law, and finally applies the law to the facts to determine whether the law has been violated on the established facts. Ghirardo v. Antonioli (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 791, 800, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 418, 883 P. 2d 960

Appellate court defers to trial court's factual decisions and reviews questions of law under nondeferential standard. Green v. Par Pools, Inc. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 620, 627, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 844

[d] Independent Review of Trial Court's Rulings

In resolving questions of law on appeal from a denial of a writ of mandate, an appellate court exercises its independent judgment. Professional Engineers in California Government v. Kempton (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 1016, 1032, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 814, 155 P.3d 226

If material facts are largely undisputed, appellate court applies de novo standard of application of statute. Connerly v. State Personnel Bd. (2006) 37 Cal. 4th 1169, 1175, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 788, 129 P.3d 1

Independent review test applies to questions of law, that is, when the inquiry requires critical consideration of legal principles and their underlying values. 20th Century Ins. Co. v. Garamendi (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 216, 271, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 807, 878 P.2d 566

De novo review applied to determine whether trial court correctly determined that exhibits were subject to sealed records rules. Mercury Interactive Corporation v. Klein (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 60, 80-81, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88

Application of statute is question of law and independent review standard applies if relevant facts are not in dispute. Librers v. Black (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 114, 124, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 188

Questions of law are reviewed de novo. McGhan Medical Corp. v. Superior Court (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 804, 811, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 264 ; Mancuso v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 88, 95, 283 Cal. Rptr. 300

[3] Standards of Review of Particular Judgments and Orders

[a] Admission and Exclusion of Evidence under Evidence Code Section 352

Abuse of discretion review. Aguayo v. Crompton & Knowles Corp. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1032, 1038, 228 Cal. Rptr. 768

[b] Arbitration

Whether an arbitration agreement applies to a controversy is a question of law to which the appellate court applies its independent judgment if there is absence of conflicting extrinsic evidence in aid of interpretation introduced in the trial court. Alan v. Superior Court (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 217, 223-224, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 377

A determination that the right to compel arbitration has been waived is ordinarily a question of fact, and the trial court's finding is binding on the appellate court if supported by substantial evidence. Davis v. Continental Airlines, Inc. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 205, 211, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79

Substantial evidence review. City of Vista v. Sutro & Co. (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 401, 407, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 488

If determination of whether agreement to arbitrate exists is simply matter of contract or statutory interpretation, with no accompanying factual issues to be resolved, it is question of law subject to appellate court's independent review. County of Contra Costa v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 237, 241, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628

Court should not substitute its own judgment for the arbitrator's when determining the scope of the agreement to arbitrate. Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. v. Intel Corp. (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 362, 372, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 581, 885 P.2d 994

[c] Attorney Fee Awards

Abuse of discretion review. Bartling v. Glendale Adventist Medical Center (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 97, 103, 228 Cal. Rptr. 847

[d] Class Action

Appellate court will not disturb trial court ruling on class certification if supported by substantial evidence unless (1) improper criteria were used or (2) erroneous legal assumptions were made. Richmond v. Dart Industries, Inc. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 462, 470, 174 Cal. Rptr. 515, 629 P.2d 23

[e] Continuance

Abuse of discretion review. Mahoney v. Southland Mental Health Associates Medical Group (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d

167, 171-172, 272 Cal. Rptr. 602

[f] Contract Interpretation

When extrinsic evidence properly admitted to aid in interpreting contract, the appellate court will uphold reasonable construction of contract by trier of fact if supported by substantial evidence. In re Marriage of Fonstein (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 738, 746-747, 131 Cal. Rptr. 873, 552 P.2d 1169

Abuse of discretion review. In re Marriage of Falcone & Fyke (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 814, 822-823, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 588

Trial court's threshold finding of ambiguity is a question of law subject to appellate court's independent review; trial court's ultimate construction of ambiguous language is subject to independent review if the extrinsic evidence is not in conflict, even when the parties draw different inferences from the evidence. Bill Signs Trucking, LLC v. Signs Family Limited Partnership (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1515, 1521, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 589

Appellate court reviews independently interpretation of contract when no extrinsic evidence is admitted to aid in interpretation of contract. Parsons v. Bristol Development Co. (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 861, 865-866, 44 Cal. Rptr. 767, 402 P.2d 839 ; Alex Robertson Co. v. Imperial Casualty & Indemnity Co. (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 338, 343, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165

Appellate court required to analyze contract de novo if (a) trial court's contractual interpretation based solely on written instrument without extrinsic evidence; (b) no conflict in properly admitted extrinsic evidence; or (c) trial court's determination based on improperly admitted incompetent evidence. City of Hope Nat. Medical Center v. Genentech, Inc. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 306, 324

If interpretation of ambiguous contract provision turns on credibility of conflicting extrinsic evidence, appellate court must determine whether trial court's interpretation is supported by substantial evidence and uphold interpretation if reasonable. City of Hope Nat. Medical Center v. Genentech, Inc. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 306, 324

When proper interpretation of a contract depends upon extrinsic evidence, a question of fact is presented. Powers v. Dickson, Carlson & Campillo (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1102, 1111, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 261

Where no extrinsic evidence is presented, the proper interpretation of a contract is a question of law which is reviewed de novo. Stirlen v. Supercuts, Inc. (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1519, 1527, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 138

[g] Damages

On review of factual question of amount of damages, appellate court indulges all presumptions in favor of decision of trial court and interferes only on ground that verdict is so large that, at first blush, it shocks conscience and suggests passion, prejudice or corruption on the part of jury. Fagerquist v. Western Sun Aviation, Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 709, 727-728, 236 Cal. Rptr. 633

[h] Demurrer

When case comes before appellate court from judgment sustaining demurrer, court assumes truth of facts alleged in complaint and reasonable inferences that may be drawn from those facts. Miklosy v. Regents of the University of California (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 876, 883, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 690, 188 P.3d 629

Court of appeal applies de novo standard of review to case resolved on demurrer. Farm Raised Salmon Cases (2008) 42 Cal. 4th 1077, 1089 n.10, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 112, 175 P.3d 1170

When an appeal arises from a ruling on a demurrer, the appellate court treats the demurrer as admitting all properly pleaded material facts. Shirk v. Vista Unified School District (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 201, 205, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 210, 164 P.3d 630

On appeal from judgment dismissing action after sustaining demurrer without leave to amend, appellate court gives complaint reasonable interpretation, reading it as a whole and its parts in their context. It treats the demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but does not assume truth of contentions, deductions or conclusions of law. When demurrer is sustained, appellate court determines whether complaint states facts sufficient to constitute cause of action. When demurrer is sustained without leave to amend, appellate court decides whether there is reasonable possibility that defect can be cured by amendment: if it can be, trial court has abused its discretion and appellate court reverses. City of Dinuba v. County of Tulare (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 859, 865, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614, 161 P.3d 1168

When case comes to review court on demurrer for failure to state cause of action, court accepts as true facts alleged in plaintiff's complaint. Barratt American, Inc. v. City of Rancho Cucamonga (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 685, 692, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 149, 124 P.3d 719

On appeal from judgment dismissing action after sustaining demurrer without leave to amend, reviewing court gives complaint reasonable interpretation, and treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded. Fox v. Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 797, 810, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661

Trial court abused discretion in denying leave to amend after granting demurrer if appellate court sees reasonable possibility that plaintiff could cure defect by amendment. Campbell v. Regents of the University of California (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 311, 320, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 320

On appeal from judgment dismissing action after sustaining demurrer without leave to amend, reviewing court applies an independent review. Aubry v. Tri-City Hospital Dist. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 962, 966-967, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 92, 831 P.2d 317

Demurrer affirmed on any properly supported ground, regardless of trial court's basis for ruling. Total Call International, Inc. v. Peerless Ins. Co. (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 161, 169, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 319

Error for trial court to sustain demurrer when plaintiff stated cause of action under any possible legal theory; abuse of discretion to sustain demurrer without leave to amend if plaintiff shows reasonable possibility any defect can be cured by amendment. Schuster v. Gardner (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 305, 311, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 468

If demurrer was sustained without leave to amend, appellate court must decide whether there is reasonable possibility defect can be cured by amendment; if so, demurrer must be reversed. Demurrer granted without leave to amend must be reversed for abuse of discretion if reasonable possibility defects could be cured by amendment. Schifando v. City of Los Angeles (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1074, 1081, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 457, 79 P.3d 569 ; Richelle L. v. Roman Catholic Archbishop of San Francisco (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 257, 266, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 601

Appellate court's only task in reviewing a ruling on demurrer is to determine whether complaint states cause of action. Court assumes that complaint's properly pleaded material allegations are true and gives complaint a reasonable interpretation by reading it as a whole and all its parts in their context. Stoops v. Abbassi (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 644, 650, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 747

When the demurrer is sustained with leave to amend and plaintiff elects not to amend before entry of judgment of dismissal, appellate court resolves all ambiguities and uncertainties raised by demurrer against plaintiff. Casella v. City of Morgan Hill (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 43, 48, 280 Cal. Rptr. 876

[i] Directed Verdict

On review after directed verdict, appellate court views evidence in light most favorable to losing party and resolves all conflicts and inferences in that party's favor. Colbough v. Hartline (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1516, 1521, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 213

[j] Discovery

Abuse of discretion review. Perkins v. Superior Court (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 761, 765, 173 Cal. Rptr. 596

[k] Dismissal for Delay in Prosecution

Abuse of discretion review. Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 331, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58

Abuse of discretion review. Truck Insurance Exchange v. Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1050, 1055, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 228

[m] Duty of Care

Independent review. Crocker National Bank v. City and County of San Francisco (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 881, 888, 264 Cal. Rptr. 139, 782 P.2d 278

[n] Enforcement of Settlement

Substantial evidence review. In re Marriage of Assemi (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 896, 911, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 265, 872 P.2d 1190

[o] Expert Witness Fees

Award of expert witness fees under Code of Civ. Proc. § 998 reviewed under abuse of discretion standard. Peterson v. John Crane, Inc. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 498, 513, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 185

Abuse of discretion review. Huber, Hunt & Nichols, Inc. v. Moore (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 278, 315, 136 Cal. Rptr. 603

[p] Forum Non Conveniens

Abuse of discretion review. Cal-State Business Products & Services, Inc. v. Ricoh (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 1666, 1680-1681, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 417 ; but see Bancomer, S.A. v. Superior Court (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 1450, 1457, n.7, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 435

[q] Injunction

To the extent that the grant or denial of a preliminary injunction requires statutory construction, the matter presents a question of law. Once the legal question is resolved the trial court's decision to grant a preliminary injunction is reviewed for an abuse of discretion. Cinquegrani v. Department of Motor Vehicles (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 741, 745-746, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 816

Standard of review for denial of preliminary injunction is abuse of discretion; however, likelihood of prevailing on merits may be determined as matter of law, and de novo review for that factor is proper. Strategix, Ltd v. Infocrossing West, Inc. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1068, 1072, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614

Standard of review for denial of preliminary injunction is abuse of discretion; however, likelihood of prevailing on merits may be determined as matter of law, and de novo review for that factor is proper. Sahlolbei v. Providence Healthcare, Inc. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1137, 1145-1146, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 598

Court used de novo standard of review because appellant claimed trial court erred in relying on case law construing statutory definition at issue prior to time of pertinent change in statute as applied to instant case. People ex rel. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Miller Brewing Company (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 1189, 1194, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 861

Normal standard of review of ruling concerning injunction is abuse of discretion unless likelihood of prevailing depends upon question of law. Efstratis v. First Northern Bank of Dixon (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 667, 671, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 445

[r] Judgment Notwithstanding the Verdict

On appeal from judgment notwithstanding verdict, appellate court independently determines whether record, viewed most favorably to verdict, contains any substantial evidence to support verdict. If so, trial court erred in granting JNOV. If issue deals solely with application of statute to facts supporting jury verdict, appellate court review is de novo. Mason v. Lake Dolores Group, LLC (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 822, 829-830, 840, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 914

On appeal from judgment notwithstanding verdict, appellate court must read record in light most advantageous to party in favor of whom verdict was rendered, resolve all conflicts in that party's favor, and give that party benefit of all reasonable inferences in support of original verdict. Borba v. Thomas (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 144, 151-152, 138 Cal. Rptr. 565

[s] Judgment on the Pleadings

Review of judgment on pleadings governed by standards governing judgment following successful demurrer. Ramirez v. USAA Casualty Ins. Co. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 391, 397, 285 Cal. Rptr. 757

[t] Judicial Notice

Decision of trial court not to take judicial notice upheld unless no reasonable judge would have refused to take judicial notice. Leibert v. Transworld Systems, Inc. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1693, 1700, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 65

[u] Laches

Substantial evidence review. Chang v. City of Palos Verdes Estates (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 557, 563, 159 Cal. Rptr. 630

[v] New Trial

Trial court's order granting new trial was deficient in that it failed to specify court's reasoning; therefore, appellate court required to independently review motion. The Oakland Raiders v. National Football League (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1497, 1506, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 141

Order granting new trial based on determination that two of jury's special verdict findings were inconsistent analyzed as matter of law. City of San Diego v. D.R. Horton San Diego Holding Co., Inc. (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 668, 678, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 338

Abuse of discretion review. Romero v. Riggs (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 117, 121-122, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 219

[w] Nonsuit

After conclusion of an opening statement, an appellate court reviewing a nonsuit must accept all facts asserted in the opening statement as true and must indulge every legitimate inference that may be drawn from those facts. A court will uphold a nonsuit only if the facts and inferences lead inexorably to the conclusion that the plaintiff cannot establish an essential element of its cause of action. Cooper v. State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Co. (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 876, 891-892, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 870

With respect to motion for nonsuit, appellate court must accept all facts asserted in opening statement as true and must indulge every legitimate inference which may be drawn from those facts. Abeyta v. Superior Court (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1037, 1041, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680

[x] Relief From Judgment or Order

The disposition of a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is subject to the discretion of the trial court. On appeal, the appropriate test of abuse of discretion is whether or not the trial court exceeded the bounds of reason when the case is viewed in its entirety. In re Marriage of Connolly (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 590, 597-598, 153 Cal. Rptr. 423, 591 P.2d 911

[y] Review of Administrative Decisions

Appellate court reviews findings of trial court on issues upon which court properly exercised its independent judgment to determine whether they are supported by substantial evidence on whole record. Schmitt v. City of Rialto (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 494, 501, 210 Cal. Rptr. 788

As to administrative determinations properly reviewed in superior court under substantial evidence or abuse of discretion standard, scope of review is same in appellate court as it was in superior court. Schmitt v. City of Rialto (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 494, 501, 210 Cal. Rptr. 788

The decision of an administrative agency is reviewed under the substantial evidence rule if it does not involve a constitutional right. Contra Costa County v. Social Welfare Bd. (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 468, 472-473, 18 Cal. Rptr. 573

[z] Sanctions

Abuse of discretion review. Luke v. Baldwin-United Corp. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 664, 668, 213 Cal. Rptr. 654

[aa] Statutory Interpretation on Undisputed Facts

Independent review. Simpson v. Unemployment Ins. Comp. Appeals Bd. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 342, 350, 231 Cal. Rptr. 690

Following entry of a defense summary judgment, appellate court views evidence in light most favorable to plaintiffs as the losing parties and liberally construes plaintiffs' evidentiary submissions and strictly scrutinize defendant's evidence, in order to resolve any evidentiary doubts or ambiguities in plaintiffs' favor. McDonald v. Antelope Valley Community College District (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 88, 96-97, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 734, 194 P.3d 1026

If a plaintiff appeals from a trial court's order granting a defendant summary judgment, the court of appeal independently examines the record in order to determine whether triable issues of fact exist to reinstate the action. Johnson v. American Standard, Inc. (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 56, 64, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 108

Appellate court reviews the trial court's summary judgment decision de novo, considering all the evidence set forth in the moving and opposing papers except that to which objections were made and sustained; court liberally construes the evidence in support of the party opposing summary judgment and resolves doubts concerning the evidence in favor of that party. Wilson v. 21st Century Ins. Co. (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 713, 716-717, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 746, 171 P.3d 1082

Court applies de novo standard of review to order granting summary judgment based on interpretation or application of insurance policy terms. County of San Diego v. Ace Property & Cas. Ins. Co. (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 406, 414, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 583

When plaintiff appeals trial court's order granting defendants summary judgment, appellate court independently examines record to determine whether triable issues of fact exist to reinstate action. Wiener v. Southcoast Childcare Centers, Inc. (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 1138, 1142, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 615, 88 P.3d 517

Remand to trial court appropriate to determine if summary judgment was proper on any ground advanced by defendant in light of revised definition of "disability" under FEHA. Colmenares v. Braemar Country Club, Inc. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1019, 1031-1032, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 662, 63 P.3d 220

Federal court decision after removal was law of the case after remand to state court. Adams v. Pacific Bell Directory (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 93, 97, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 365

Only exceptions to rule of independent review of summary judgment granting are rulings concerning additional time for discovery under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h) and on sole witness and mental state provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(e). Krieger v. Nick Alexander Imports, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 212 n.3, 285 Cal. Rptr. 717 ; Saldana v. Globe-Weis Systems Co. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1505, 1512 n.3, 285 Cal. Rptr. 385

[4] Law of the Case

Decision of appellate court, stating rule of law necessary to decision of case, conclusively establishes that rule and makes it determinative of rights of same parties in subsequent retrial or appeal in same case. Nally v. Grace Community Church (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 278, 301, 253 Cal. Rptr. 97, 763 P.2d 948

Appellate court may disregard law of the case when necessary to avoid unjust decision arising from misapplication of law. Searle v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 425, 434-435, 212 Cal. Rptr. 466, 696 P.2d 1308

Absent a written opinion following issuance of the alternative writ, the appellate court's reasoning in issuing the alternative writ is not the law of the case binding on appeal. Cerna v. City of Oakland (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 1340, 1354-1355, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 168

When an appellate court states in its opinion a principle or rule of law necessary to its decision, that principle or rule becomes the law of the case. Santa Clarita Organization for Planning the Environment v. County of Los Angeles (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 149, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 449, 455

Prior trial court ruling in separate case governed by res judicata, not law of the case. Daar & Newman v. VRL International (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 482, 488-489, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 566

Summary denial of petition for writ of review from PUC order acts as law of the case. PG&E Corp. v. Public Utilities Commission (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1174, 1193, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 630

Law of the case barred appellant on second appeal from challenging jury instruction determined in first appeal. Joyce v. Simi Valley Unified Sch. Dist. (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 292, 304, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 712

Appellate court may affirm summary judgment on any correct legal theory, as long as parties had adequate opportunity to address theory in trial court. California School of Culinary Arts v. Lujan (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 16, 22, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 785

Law of the case applies only to issues that were both presented and determined in prior appeal. Bovard v. American Horse Enterprises, Inc. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 832, 841, 247 Cal. Rptr. 340

Effect of appellate decision that trial court judgment was not supported by sufficient evidence is conclusive in further litigation unless evidence is produced at subsequent trial that is different from that passed on in firstappeal. Bank of America v. Superior Court (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 613, 621 n.3, 269 Cal. Rptr. 596

[5] The Doctrine of Stare Decisis and Controlling Decisional Authority

[a] General Rule

Stare decisis requires court of inferior jurisdiction to follow decisions of court exercising superior jurisdiction. Auto Equity Sales, Inc. v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 450, 456, 20 Cal. Rptr. 321, 369 P.2d 937

Under stare decisis, precedent binding even if judge disagrees. Cuccia v. Superior Court (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 347, 353-354, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 796

Decisions of federal court of appeals and district courts not binding, even on federal questions. Metalclad Corporation v. Ventana Envtl. Organizational Partnership (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1705, 1714-1715, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d

328

[b] Dicta Not Controlling

While dicta not controlling, court of appeal follows Supreme Court dicta without compelling reason to the contrary. Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Association v. City of Fresno (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 914, 925, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 153

Statement of principle not necessary to decision not precedent that is required by rule of stare decisis to be followed. Western Landscape Const. v. Bank of America (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 57, 61, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 868

[c] Splits of Authority

Decisions by courts of equal dignity are not binding under principles of stare decisis. In re Benjamin D. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1464, 1471, 278 Cal. Rptr. 468

[d] Plurality Opinions

Plurality opinion not binding precedent. Board of Supervisors v. Local Agency Formation Com. (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 903, 918, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 245, 838 P.2d 1198

[e] Persuasive Authority

Even if they are not controlling, decisions of other courts may be persuasive. Weil v. Federal Kemper Life Assurance Co. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 125, 138, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 316, 866 P.2d 774 ; Baptiste v. Superior Court (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 87, 93, 164 Cal. Rptr. 789

[6] Retroactive Application of Law

[a] Statutory Law

If Legislature clearly intended retrospective effect, courts will carry out that intent unless to do so violates due process rights. In re Marriage of Bouquet (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 583, 587, 592, 128 Cal. Rptr. 427, 546 P.2d 1371

Statute has retrospective effect when it substantially changes legal consequences of past events. Kizer v. Hanna (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 1, 7, 255 Cal. Rptr. 412, 767 P.2d 679

[b] Case Law

Judicial decisions generally applied retroactively. Newman v. Emerson Radio Corp. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 973, 978, 981-984, 258 Cal. Rptr. 592, 772 P.2d 1059

Considerations of fairness and public policy may require that decision be given only prospective application. Newman v. Emerson Radio Corp. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 973, 978, 981-984, 258 Cal. Rptr. 592, 772 P.2d 1059

Considerations relevant to retroactivity determination include reasonableness of parties' reliance on former rule, nature of change as substantive or procedural, retroactivity's effect on administration of justice, and purposes to be served by new rule. Newman v. Emerson Radio Corp. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 973, 978, 983-992, 258 Cal. Rptr. 592, 772 P.2d 1059

Appellate court reviews trial court's ruling that neither fairness nor public policy warranted exception to retroactivity rule under abuse of discretion standard. In re Retirement Cases (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 426, 443, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 790

§ 41.90 Request for Publication of Unpublished Opinion

[1] FORM Request for Publication of Unpublished Opinion

California Court of Appeal
_____ Appellate District [, Division _____]
[Court's address]

Re: _____ [case name]
No. _____ [case number]
Request for Publication

To the Honorable Presiding Justice and Associate Justices of the Court of Appeal:

Pursuant to California Rules of Court, Rule 8.1120, I respectfully request that the opinion issued by this court in the case referenced above be certified for publication in the Official Reports.

The nature of my interest in this proceeding is _____ [as a party to the action or _____ (specify interest of nonparty, e.g., the effect of the opinion on the requesting person's business interests or on other pending litigation to which the person is a party, etc.)].

_____ [Describe concisely the reasons why the opinion meets the criteria for selection of published opinions in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1105(c), e.g.: The opinion applies the assumption of risk doctrine to circumstances which are novel since the enunciation of the rule of primary assumption of risk in Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696 and Ford v. Gouin (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 339, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 30, 834 P.2d 724 in that _____ (explain)].

It is respectfully submitted that, for this/these reason[s], the above referenced opinion meets the standards for publication under California Rules of Court, Rule 8.1105(c) and merits certification for publication in the Official Reports.

_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name and status, if appropriate, e.g., attorney for amicus curiae]
_____ [California Bar number if requesting person is attorney]

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use by a person seeking publication of an opinion of the court of appeal which was not certified for publication. The request must be made to the court of appeal regardless of whether the opinion is final in that court, must include a statement of the nature of the interest of the requesting person and a concise statement of reasons why the opinion meets one or more of the criteria for publication, and must be accompanied by proof of its service on each party to the action. The request must be delivered to the rendering court within 20 days after the opinion is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1120(a); for discussion concerning proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

For further discussion of the requirements applicable to this request, see*§ 41.51[3]*. For discussion of format requirements applicable to papers filed in appellate courts generally, see Ch. 45, Appeal: Motion Procedure .

§ 41.91 Request for Depublication of Published Opinion

[1] FORM Request for Depublication of Published Opinion

_____ [date]

California Supreme Court
[Court's address]

Re: _____ [case name]
NO. _____ [case number]
Request for Depublication

To the Honorable Chief Justice and Associate Justices of the California Supreme Court:

Pursuant to California Rules of Court, Rule 8.1125, I respectfully request that the above referenced opinion issued by the Court Appeal be ordered not published in the Official Reports. [No petition for review has been filed in this case.] For the Court's convenience, a copy of the opinion, as published, is attached.

The nature of my interest in this proceeding is _____ [as a party to the action or _____ (specify interest of nonparty, e.g., the effect of the opinion on the requesting person's business interests or on other pending litigation to which the person is a party, etc.)].

_____ [Describe concisely the reasons why the opinion should not remain published, e.g.: The opinion of the Court of Appeal misapplies the assumption of risk doctrine enunciated in Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696 and Ford v. Gouin (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 339, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 30, 834 P.2d 724 in that _____ (explain)].

It is respectfully submitted that, for this/these reason[s], the above-referenced opinion should not remain published.

_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name as status, if appropriate, e.g., attorney for amicus curiae]
_____ [California Bar number if requesting person is attorney]

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use by a person seeking an order from the Supreme Court directing that a court of appeal opinion, certified for publication by the court of appeal, not be published in the Official Reports. The request must be made to the Supreme Court within 30 days after the decision becomes final as to the court of appeal, must include a statement of the nature of the interest of the requesting person and a concise statement of reasons why the opinion should not remain published, must not exceed 10 pages, and must be accompanied by proof of its mailing to the court of appeal and proof of service on each party to the action [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1125(a); for discussion concerning proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers]. The concise statement of reasons is sometimes drafted to provide a very brief statement of pertinent facts and procedural history followed by a discussion of the requesting person's reasoning.

For further discussion of the requirements applicable to this request, see*§ 41.52[2]*. For discussion of format requirements applicable to papers filed in appellate courts generally, see Ch. 45, Appeal: Motion Procedure . For further discussion of proceedings in the Supreme Court generally, see Ch. 54, Appeal: California Supreme Court Review .

Mr. Hogge is a staff attorney with the Third Appellate District Court of Appeal. This chapter includes additional contributions and comments from Justice Patti Kitching, Ms. Elizabeth Buckley, and Ms. Barbara Sorem.

§ 42.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the procedure for filing and serving notice of appeal in the superior court, which initiates the appeal in the appropriate district of the court of appeal [see §§ 42.11, 42.13 et seq.], as well as related proceedings to file docketing statements, when required, and to consolidate related appeals [see §§ 42.22, 42.23].

This chapter also discusses in detail the judgments and orders that are appealable, from which a notice of appeal may properly be taken [see § 42.12].

The chapter includes a Research Guide [see § 42.30 et seq.], Procedural Checklists [see § 42.50 et seq.], and the following forms:

- Notice of appeal [see §§ 42.70, 42.73].
- Notice of cross appeal [see § 42.71].
- Civil Case Information Statement [see § 42.72].
- Notices of appeal from particular types of judgments or orders [see § 42.80 et seq.].
- Notice of appeal combined with other notices regarding record [see § 42.90].
- Stipulation and motion for consolidation of appeals [see § 42.100].

§ 42.11 Appeal From Superior Court Is Taken By Filing Notice of Appeal

[1] General Requirements

An appeal from a judgment, or a particular part of a judgment, of the superior court in an unlimited civil case is taken by filing with the superior court clerk a notice of appeal from that judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(a)(1); for coverage of appeals taken from judgments or orders in limited civil cases, see Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases]. The following requirements or considerations also apply:

- The notice is essentially a statement that a party appeals from a specified judgment or order, signed by the party or the party's attorney; for discussion of the requirements for preparing a notice of appeal, see [2], below. For forms of notice of appeal, see*§§ 42.70*, 42.73, and 42.80 et seq.

- The notice must specify a judgment or order that is expressly appealable by statute. This requirement is jurisdictional; a notice of appeal from a ruling that is not appealable will be dismissed. For discussion of appealable judgments and orders, see § 42.12.

- The notice must be served on other parties as well as filed; for discussion of the requirements for preparing, serving, and filing a notice of appeal, see [2] and [3], below.

- The time deadlines for filing are mandatory and jurisdictional and may not be extended [see [4], below, and § 42.17]; for discussion of time deadlines generally, see §§ 42.13 -42.18.

- A cross appeal is generally taken in the same way as an appeal, although different time deadlines apply [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.100(e), 8.108(e)]; for further discussion, see [2][a][iii], below, and § 42.16. For a form of notice of cross appeal, see*§ 42.71*.

- The appealing or cross appealing party usually must pay a filing fee and deposit when filing the notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(b)]; for further discussion of filing fees, the deposit for clerk's transcript, and waiver of these costs, see*§ 42.19*.

- The notice may be combined with a notice designating the reporter's transcript, a notice designating the clerk's transcript, or both [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(a)], but if combined, an additional deposit may be required at the time of filing; for further discussion, see*§ 42.20*. For forms of combined notice, see § 42.90.

- Some districts or divisions of the court of appeal require a docketing statement or other similar statement to be filed in that court soon after the notice of appeal is filed in the superior court; for further discussion, see*§ 42.22*.

[2] Form and Content of Notice of Appeal

[a] Notice Consists of Statement That Appellant Appeals From Specific Appealable Judgment or Order

[i] General Rule

The notice of appeal "shall be sufficient" if it states in substance that the appellant appeals from a specified judgment or a particular part of it [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(a)(2)]. Effective January 1, 2004, the appellant or cross-appellant may use Judicial Council form APP-002, Notice of Appeal/Cross-Appeal (Unlimited Civil Case), to file a notice of appeal in an unlimited civil case, i.e., a case in which the amount in controversy exceeds $25,000. For a form Notice of Appeal/Cross-Appeal (Unlimited Civil Case), see*§ 42.73*.

Although the notice is construed liberally in favor of its sufficiency [see [d], below], failure to specify an appealable judgment or order is a jurisdictional defect that may result in dismissal of the appeal [see [4], below]. For discussion of what constitutes an appealable judgment or order of the superior court, see*§ 42.12*.

[ii] Review Limited to Judgment, Portion of Judgment, or Order Specified in Notice of Appeal

Specification of the judgment or order appealed from should be done with care not only to ensure that the appeal is taken from an appealable judgment or order [see [i], above, and § 42.12], but also to ensure review of all issues the party wishes to raise in the appellate court.

The rule that notices of appeal are to be construed liberally with a view to hearing causes on their merits [see [d], below], does not apply if the description of the portion of the judgment appealed from is so clear and unmistakable as to preclude a description of another portion [see Bosetti v. U.S. Life Insurance Company (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1208, 1223-1225, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 744 (notice of appeal identifying summary judgment did not constitute notice of appeal of demurrer as to different defendant); Conservatorship of Edde (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 883, 889, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 266 (notice of appeal referring to only one judgment not applicable to other judgment); Morton v. Wagner (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 963, 967, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 818 (even construing notice of appeal liberally did not allow it to include specifically excluded judgment); Glassco v. El Sereno Country Club, Inc. (1932) 217 Cal. 90, 92, 17 P.2d 703 ; Sole Energy Company v. Petrominerals Corporation (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 212, 239, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 798 (court refuses to liberally construe notice of appeal that did not specify new trial order or makes it reasonably clear plaintiffs were trying to appeal from it); Calhoun v. Vallejo City Unified School Dist. (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 39, 42, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 337 (clear specification of one order precluded review of another order not interdependent with specified order); Unilogic, Inc. v. Burroughs Corp. (1992) 10 Cal.App. 4th 612, 624-625, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 741 (clear specification of judgment as to one cause of action precluded review of judgment as to another cause of action)].

An appeal may be taken only by an aggrieved party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 902], and a party therefore cannot appeal from a favorable ruling. When a ruling is partially, but not completely, favorable, the party may appeal only from the unfavorable part of the judgment [Soldate v. Fidelity National Financial, Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1069, 1073, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 404] . In this situation the notice of appeal should specify the unfavorable portion of the judgment from which the appeal is being taken, in order to give the opposing party proper notice of the what is being challenged by the appeal.

In addition, if an appeal is taken from a judgment, the general rule is that the court will review the correctness of the judgment at the time it is rendered; later matters are not included in the review. Therefore, it may be necessary to specify in a separate notice of appeal a later and separately appealable post-judgment order. For example, in one case a plaintiff filed a notice of appeal from a final judgment, and the court of appeal held that this notice did not include a subsequent order fixing the amount of attorney's fees that were awarded to the plaintiff in the judgment. The judgment itself was favorable to the plaintiff, because it awarded plaintiff fees in an amount to be determined later. A notice of appeal specifying only that judgment was not sufficient to put the opposing party on notice that plaintiff was seeking to challenge the amount of the fees as fixed by the subsequent, and separately appealable, order [see Soldate v. Fidelity National Financial, Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1069, 1073-1075, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 404] . The rule is not inflexible, however. For example, if a party appeals from a judgment awarding fees to the opposing party, that notice of appeal should be sufficient to review also any subsequent order fixing the amount of fees, because it puts the opposing party on notice that appellant is challenging the entitlement to fees awarded by the judgment, and this necessarily includes a challenge to the amount of fees fixed in a later order [see Soldate v. Fidelity National Financial, Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1069, 1073-1075, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 404 (distinguishing the appeal in Grant v. List & Lathrop (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 993, 996, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 654)]. On the other hand, if an award of attorney's fees is subject to the discretion of the court, a later order awarding attorney's fees is not subsumed in the earlier judgment; therefore, a notice of appeal from the judgment does not preserve a challenge to the award of attorney's fees [Colony Hill v. Ghamaty, (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1408, 1413-1415, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 798 ; Gouskos v. Aptos Village Garage, Inc. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 754, 764, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 558 ("shall be awarded" language makes fees incidental to judgment)].

[iii] Specification of Additional Matters in Notice of Cross Appeal

A cross appeal may specify the same judgment or order, but it may, and usually does, specify additional judgments, parts of judgments, or orders in the same action or proceedings. For example, most typically, when one party appeals the part of a judgment dealing with a complaint, the opposing party may cross appeal as to that part of the judgment dealing with a cross complaint [see Unilogic, Inc. v. Burroughs Corp. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 612, 616, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 741] .

A similar situation arises when a losing party is successful in obtaining a postjudgment order granting a motion for new trial or a motion to vacate the judgment. If the party prevailing on the original judgment appeals from this order, the losing party (as to the original judgment) will usually wish to take what is commonly termed a "protective" or "precautionary" cross appeal from the original judgment. In this way, if the postjudgment order granting a new trial or vacating the judgment is reversed on appeal, the losing party (as to the original judgment) will still be able to challenge the underlying judgment in the cross appeal. Ordinarily, a notice of cross appeal from the original judgment would be untimely under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104 [discussed in § 42.13], if it is made after an appeal is taken from an order entered after the original judgment. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(d), however, specifically deals with this problem by allowing such cross appeals, so long as they are filed within 20 days after the superior court clerk mails notification of the initial notice of appeal. Such a cross appeal may then present any question that might have been presented on appeal from the original judgment (or, similarly, on appeal from an order denying a motion for JNOV) [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(f) and further discussion in §§ 42.12[4A], 42.16].

[b] Notice Must Be Signed by Appellant or Appellant's Attorney

The notice must be signed by the appellant or appellant's attorney [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(a)(1); see Toal v. Tardif (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1208, 1216-1217, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 97 (notice signed by husband and not listing name of appealing party deemed to apply to wife, too); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.10(1) (the party appealing is the "appellant")].

If signed by an attorney, the client's authorization is nevertheless required. A notice signed and filed by an attorney without the client's consent is subject to dismissal [Guardianship of Gilman (1944) 23 Cal.2d 862, 864, 147 P.2d 530 ; In re Alma B. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1037, 1043, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 592] .

For discussion of who may be an appealing party, see Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview, § 40.13[1].

[c] Notice Need Not Specify Appellate Court

The notice need not specify the court to which the appeal is taken and is deemed to be an appeal to the court of appeal for the district in which the superior court is located [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(a)(2)], that is, to the appellate district of the court of appeal within which the particular superior court is located [see Gov. Code § 69100 et seq. and discussion in Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview, § 40.11[3][b]; First American Title Company v. Mirzaian (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 956, 959, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 206 (notice of appeal that stated wrong appellate court did not deprive appellate court of jurisdiction)].

If for any reason the appeal is ultimately taken to the wrong appellate court, that court will not dismiss the appeal solely for this reason, but will transfer the cause to the proper court on such terms as to costs or otherwise as may be just [Gov. Code § 68915].

For further discussion of the structure of the court of appeal, the manner in which appeals are assigned to particular divisions or panels within each appellate district, and proceedings to transfer a cause taken to the wrong appellate court, see Ch. 51, Appeal: Hearing and Decision, § 51.11.

For discussion of waiver of the filing fee when proceeding in forma pauperis, see [c], below.

[d] Notice of Appeal Is Construed Liberally in Favor of Its Sufficiency

The notice of appeal is liberally construed in favor of its sufficiency [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(a)(2); Walker v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 15, 18, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 490, 104 P.3d 844 (treating notice of appeal from unappealable order denying new trial as appeal from underlying judgment because it was clear appellant intended to appeal from judgment and respondent would not be prejudiced); Etheridge v. Reins International California, Inc. (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 908, 913 n.7, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 816 ; Jones v. The Lodge at Torrey Pines Partnership (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 475, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 379 ; Johnston v. Corrigan (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 553, 555-556, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 657 (determining that notice of appeal from motion for reconsideration of attorneys' fees ruling was notice of appeal of attorneys' fees ruling)]. When it is clear, defects in form, or misdirections such as addressing the document to the court instead of to the clerk of the court, are properly disregarded [First American Title Company v. Mirzaian (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 956, 959, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 206 (notice of appeal that stated wrong appellate court did not deprive appellate court of jurisdiction); In re Issac J. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 525, 535, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 65] ; see Toal v. Tardif (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1208, 1216-1217, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 97 (notice signed by husband and not listing name of appealing party deemed to apply to wife, too).

The underlying policy of this rule of construction is to preserve the appellant's right of review unless it appears the respondent has been misled by any inaccurate description or ambiguity in the notice. In determining whether the notice complies with legal requirements, a court will consider the absence of prejudice to other parties and the efficacy of appellant's efforts to notify other parties that an appeal has been taken [Kellett v. Marvel (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 464, 471, 472-473, 58 P.2d 649 ; Bosetti v. U.S. Life Insurance Company (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1208, 1223-1225, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 744 (notice of appeal identifying summary judgment did not constitute notice of appeal of demurrer as to different defendant); Morton v. Wagner (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 963, 967, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 818 (even construing notice of appeal liberally did not allow it to include specifically excluded judgment to prejudice of opposing party)].

Appellate courts have sometimes used this rule of construction to remedy a notice of appeal from a nonappealable judgment or order, a defect that otherwise would result in dismissal of the appeal [see [a][i], above, and [4], below]. For example, if a notice of appeal specifies that an appeal is taken from a nonappealable order, such as an order denying a new trial, an appellate court should construe the notice of appeal to be an appeal from the underlying judgment, provided that it is reasonably clear the appellant intended to appeal from the judgment and the respondent would not be misled or prejudiced [Walker v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 15, 22, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 490, 104 P.3d 844 ; see also Miranda v. 21st Century Ins. Co. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 913, 919, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 159 (because plaintiff filed premature notice of appeal from nonappealable minute order, and signed judgment of dismissal was entered four weeks later, appellate court treated notice of appeal as having been filed immediately after entry of judgment)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Don't Depend on Liberal Construction. Several districts and divisions of the court of appeal have expressed disagreement with the "liberal" notion of treating notices of appeal from nonappealable orders or judgments as being one from an appealable order or judgment. For example, an order sustaining a demurrer is not appealable, whereas the subsequent judgment of dismissal based on that order is appealable. Formerly, appellate courts would construe a notice of appeal from the nonappealable order liberally, treating it as an appeal from the subsequent judgment of dismissal, to further the policy of disposing on the issue on the merits. The current trend, however, is to dismiss an appeal based on a notice defective in this manner. Counsel must be careful therefore both to ensure that a proper, appealable judgment or order is entered, even if it is the opposing party's responsibility to submit a proposed judgment or order, and also to designate carefully an appealable judgment in the notice of appeal. For more detailed discussion of appellate courts' willingness, and unwillingness, to remedy this type of defect in a notice of appeal, see § 42.12[2][c].

If a notice of appeal is clear and unambiguous in its specification of an appeal only from a particular order or part of a judgment, the reviewing court will not construe the notice to allow review of any other order or any other portion of the judgment not specified in the notice [see discussion in [a][ii], above].

[3] Service and Filing of Notice of Appeal

The requirement that the notice be served and filed means that the appellant must properly serve one copy of the notice on each adverse party represented by separate counsel, and then file the original notice, together with proof of the prior service, with the clerk of the superior court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.25 (defining "serve and file" for purposes of appellate rules)].

Any failure to serve the notice will not prevent its filing and will not affect the validity of the appeal. On reasonable notice, however, the appellant may be required to remedy the failure [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(a)(3); Chapman v. Enos (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 920, 926, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 852 (appellant remedied failure by obtaining agreement from appellee to waive service defects)].

For discussion and forms relating to service and proof of service generally, see Ch. 518, Service and Summons of Papers .

[4] Timely Filing of Sufficient Notice of Appeal Is Jurisdictional

Filing the notice of appeal is not merely a procedural step, but vests jurisdiction in the appellate court and for most purposes terminates the jurisdiction of the trial court [Van Beurden Ins. Services, Inc. v. Customized Worldwide Weather Ins. Agency, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 51, 56, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 166, 931 P.2d 344 ; Estate of Hanley (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 120, 123, 142 P.2d 423 ; see also Silverbrand v. County of Los Angeles (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 106, 120-121, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 595, 205 P.3d 1037 (under prison-delivery rule, notice of appeal still must be filed within jurisdictional time period, but filing constructively occurs when prisoner delivers notice to prison authorities for forwarding to court clerk); Code Civ. Proc. § 916 et seq. (perfecting of appeal from certain judgments automatically stays trial court proceedings on those judgments)]. Thus, an appellate court will dismiss an appeal, for lack of jurisdiction, when the notice of appeal is untimely [see Hollister Convalescent Hospital, Inc. v. Rico (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 660, 670, 125 Cal. Rptr. 757, 542 P.2d 1349 ; Guillemin v. Stein (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 156, 161, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 65 (immaterial that trial court later confirmed sanctions award in postjudgment order from which there was timely appeal); see discussion in § 42.15[2]], or if it fails to specify an appealable judgment or order [Jennings v. Marralle (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 121, 126, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 275, 876 P.2d 1074 ; Degnan v. Morrow (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 358, 362, 82 Cal. Rptr. 557 ; see § 42.12].

PRACTICE TIP:

Appellant Should Ensure Notice Is Correct and Timely, and Respondent Should Move to Dismiss if Notice Is Defective. Because an untimely or defective notice of appeal does not vest jurisdiction in the appellate court, it is crucial for appellant's counsel to ensure that the notice is filed in time, and that all necessary steps have been taken to ensure that the notice is taken from an appealable judgment or order. Thus, for example, when the trial court sustains a demurrer without leave to amend, a party wishing to appeal that ruling must ensure that the subsequent judgment of dismissal based on that ruling is properly prepared and entered [see § 42.12].

Conversely, counsel for respondent should act early in the appeal process to seek dismissal of an appeal based on an untimely or defective notice. See Ch. 48, Appeal: Abandonment, Dismissal, and Stipulated Reversal, §§ 48.13[1], [2][a], [b], 48.42-48.43.

Although the filing of a notice of appeal generally divests the trial court of jurisdiction pending the appeal, the trial court does retain jurisdiction over proceedings that are embraced by the action but are not affected by the judgment or order [Code Civ. Proc. § 916(a)]. Thus, for example, the trial court has jurisdiction, even after the filing of a notice of appeal, to rule on a motion for new trial [see Weisenburg v. Molina (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 478, 485-486, 129 Cal. Rptr. 813] . For further discussion of matters over which the trial court retains jurisdiction, and for discussion and forms for an order staying trial court proceedings not otherwise stayed by the notice of appeal, see Ch. 43, Appeal: Stay of Proceedings .

§ 42.12 Appealable Judgments and Orders

[1] One Final Judgment Rule

[a] The "One Final Judgment Rule" Is Essentially Codified in Statutes Specifying Appealable Judgments and Orders

The "one final judgment" rule prohibits the taking of an appeal from a judgment that disposes of fewer than all the causes of action pending between the parties. The rule applies even though the causes of action disposed of by the judgment were tried separately or may be characterized as "separate and independent" from those remaining [Morehart v. County of Santa Barbara (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 725, 743, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 804, 872 P.2d 143] ; Canandaigua Wine Co., Inc. v. County of Madera (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 298, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 264 . The underlying theory of the rule is that the interests of judicial economy are best served by allowing a single review from the final judgment rather than piecemeal review as the case progresses [Morehart v. County of Santa Barbara (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 725, 741 n.9, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 804, 872 P.2d 143] . It prevents costly and oppressive review of intermediate rulings [Griset v. Fair Political Practices Commission (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 688, 697, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 149, 23 P.3d 43 (order denying petition for writ of administrative mandate not appealable when order does not dispose of other causes of action)].

In determining whether an order disposes of all causes of action and is therefore a judgment for the purpose of applying the one final judgment rule, the substance and effect of the adjudication, not the form of the decree, is determinative. If no issue is left for future consideration, except for compliance with the adjudication, the decree is a final judgment. However, the decree is not final if anything further in the nature of judicial action is essential to a final determination of the rights of the parties [Griset v. Fair Political Practices Commission (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 688, 698, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 149, 23 P.3d 43 ; San Joaquin County Department of Child Support Services v. Winn (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 296, 299-300, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 470 ; Montegani v. Johnson (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1231, 1237, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 621 (probate case); Breslin v. City and County of San Francisco (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1064, 1073-1074, 55 Cal. Rptr.

3d 14] . If it appears the trial court inadvertently failed to dispose of all causes of action and the intent of the trial court to do so is manifest from the record, the appellate court may amend the judgment to reflect the manifest intent of the trial court and thereby satisfy the one final judgment rule [Prichard v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 890, 901, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 298] . If a complaint and cross-complaint involving the same parties have been filed, there is no final appealable judgment until both have been resolved [ECC Construction, Inc. v. Oak Park Calabasas Homeowners Assn. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 994, 1002, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 340 (notice of appeal not untimely as to cross-complaint if complaint not yet resolved)].

This one final judgment rule is essentially codified in the statutes that specify which judgments and orders are appealable [Morehart v. County of Santa Barbara (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 725, 740, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 804, 872 P.2d 143 ; for discussion of the main statutory provisions specifying appealable judgments and orders made by the superior court, see [2], below]. Some judgments and orders, however, that lack the requisite finality under this rule have nevertheless been made expressly appealable [see In re Conservatorship of Rich (1966) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1233, 1235, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 459 , and discussion in [2], below]. Others may be reviewed by writ if the special requirements for issuance of the writ are met [Morehart v. County of Santa Barbara (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 725, 743, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 804, 872 P.2d 143 ; see § 40.12[2][c]].

When a case involves separate plaintiffs and judgment is entered against some of the plaintiffs but not against others, the judgment is immediately appealable by the plaintiffs against whom judgment has been entered. Those plaintiffs cannot wait until judgment is entered with respect to the remaining plaintiffs because, in most cases, the appeal will be untimely as to the plaintiffs against whom judgment was previously entered [Justus v. Atchison (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 564, 568, 139 Cal. Rptr. 97, 565 P.2d 122 ; Panico v. Truck Ins. Exchange (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 1294, 1300-1301, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 638] . Similarly, if a party brings an action in multiple capacities, a judgment finally determining the party's rights in one capacity but not another is final and may be appealed. The absence of a final determination in the action with respect to one capacity in which the party appears does not violate the one final judgment rule as to the final determination with respect to another capacity in which the party appears [First Security Bank of California, N.A. v. Paquet (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 468, 474, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 787] . For example, if a party appears as both an executrix of a decedent's estate and as guardian ad litem for the decedent's minor children, a final determination of the action with respect to the party's capacity as executrix is a final judgment and immediately appealable regardless of whether there has been a final determination of the action with respect to the party's capacity as guardian ad litem [First Security Bank of California, N.A. v. Paquet (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 468, 474-475, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 787] .

In addition, when a plaintiff sues multiple defendants, the judgment against any single defendant is considered final and appealable even if it is not final with respect to other defendants [Nguyen v. Calhoun (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 428, 437, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436 (judgment final against certain defendants even though plaintiffs' claims against other defendants and cross-action were still pending); see Entertainment, Inc. v. Arthur J.Gallagher & Co. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1022, 1025, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 258 (judgment in favor of insurance agent is dependent on non-final ruling against insurer, and not appealable until judgment against insurer is final)].

An exception to the one final judgment rule arises when the trial court's ruling on a collateral issue is substantially the same as a final judgment in an independent proceeding [Mercury Interactive Corporation v. Klein (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 60, 76-77, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88]. In determining whether an order is collateral, the test is whether an order is important and essential to the correct determination of the main issue in the case. If the order is necessary to that determination, it is not collateral. Some courts hold that the collateral order must also direct payment of money or performance of an act [see Serrano v. Stefan Merli Plastering Company, Inc. (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1014, 1026-1027, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 559 ; Drum v. Superior Court (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 845, 850, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 279]. Other courts hold that the test is whether the order is collateral and final as to the collateral matter, not whether the order has the effect of requiring payment of money or the performance of an act [see Muller v. Fresno Community Hospital and Medical Center (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 887, 898-905, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 617].

When an appeal is taken from a ruling that is nonappealable under the one final judgment rule, the court of appeal may treat it as a petition for an extraordinary writ when the briefs and record contain in substance all of the elements prescribed by the rules of court for an original mandate proceeding and there are extraordinary circumstances justifying the exercise of the court's discretionary power [see San Joaquin County Department of Child Support Services v. Winn (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 296, 300-301, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 470 (refusing to do so); Drum v. Superior Court (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 845, 852-853, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 279 ; Angell v. Superior Court (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 691, 697-698, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 657] . Thus, when an appeal from a summary judgment was deemed nonappealable because it did not dispose of respondent's cross complaint, one court of appeal deemed it to be a writ petition because otherwise respondent could defeat immediate review simply by refusing to dismiss the cross complaint and undermine judicial economy by requiring further trial court proceedings on the cross complaint [Angell v. Superior Court (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 691, 698, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 657] . For discussion and forms relating to review by extraordinary writ generally, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition , and Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of.

[b] Nonappealable Rulings Generally Reviewable on Appeal From Final Judgment

A natural corollary to the one final judgment rule set out in [a], above, is that any order or ruling made in a proceeding leading to a final, appealable judgment is generally reviewable upon appeal from that judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 906; Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 825 n.1, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377 ; Hill v. Long Beach (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1684, 1695, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 125 ; Gudel v. Ellis (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 849, 859, 19 Cal. Rptr. 751] . Any such order or ruling that might properly be challenged on appeal may also be raised in a timely cross appeal [Fundamental Inv. Growth Shelter Realty Fund I-1973 v. Gradow (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 966, 977-979, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 812] .

The application of this corollary assumes, however, that the appellant has not lost the right to challenge such an order or ruling by failing to raise the issue in the lower court or by inviting the erroneous order or ruling [Mission Housing Development Co. v. City and County of San Francisco (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 55, 78, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 185] . Similarly, an appellant seeking review of such an order or ruling must be prepared to provide the appellate court with an adequate record to review any claim of error [Kurinij v. Hanna and Morton (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 853, 865, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324] . For discussion of such waiver, see Ch. 41, Appeal: Review Standards and Appellate Rules of Law, § 41.10 [see also discussion in Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview, § 40.12[2][b]].

[c] Appealable Orders Not Reviewable on Appeal From Final Judgment

While nonappealable orders may be reviewed on appeal from the final judgment [see [b], above], the same does not apply to any interlocutory order that is expressly appealable by statute. In the latter case an appeal must be taken directly from the appealable order, and, failing that, any error in such an order cannot be raised on appeal from the final judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 906; Alfaro v. Community Housing Improvement System & Planning Assn., Inc. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 263, 277, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 659 (on appeal from appealable order or judgment reviewing court may review any intermediate ruling, proceeding, order or decision but it may not review earlier appealable ruling); Sole Energy Company v. Petrominerals Corporation (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 212, 239, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 798 (notice of appeal specifying judgment to be appealed did not include other appealable order); In re Marriage of Weiss (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 106, 119, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 339 ; see also Soldate v. Fidelity National Financial, Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1069, 1073-1075, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 404 (appeal from favorable judgment awarding costs to appellant did not include appeal from subsequent, separately appealable order fixing the amount of the costs)]. The same rule applies when an appeal could have been taken from a severable portion of the judgment [Hansen v. Hansen (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 575, 580, 43 Cal. Rptr. 729] . A judgment entered after the entry of an appealable order does not revive or extend the time for appealing the appealable order [Laraway v. Pasadena Unified School Dist. (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 579, 583, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 213 (judgment entered at request of parties did not revive for appeal earlier appealable order which decided the issue between the parties)].

[d] Parties May Not by Stipulation Create a Final Judgment

A trial court sometimes disposes of some, but not all, issues in an action, usually by grant of summary judgment or adjudication as to some but not all issues. In some cases, the parties in these actions have sought to dismiss, by stipulation, the issues not resolved, in order to obtain entry of a "final judgment" from which they may appeal those issues upon which the trial court rendered a dispositive ruling. Their procedural error has been an attempt, in the stipulated dismissal, to pursue an appeal of issues on which the trial court ruled, while expressing an intent "that the ... appeal ... shall not prejudice either party's future right to prosecute ... [the] claims ... which a re being voluntarily dismissed" once the appeal of the other issues has been concluded [see Four Point Entertainment, Inc. v. New World Entertainment, Ltd. (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 79, 81-82, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 82 ; see also Hoveida v. Scripps Health (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1466, 1468-1469, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 667 (court lacked jurisdiction to hear appeal when one cause of action dismissed without prejudice)].

The courts of appeal have held, in such cases, that the parties, by stipulation, may not create appellate jurisdiction where it would not otherwise exist, in an attempt to create an artificial "final judgment." The parties may not, by stipulated agreement, separate causes of action for separate appellate treatment at different points in time, in violation of the "one final judgment" rule [Four Point Entertainment, Inc. v. New World Entertainment, Ltd. (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 79, 82-83, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 82 ; see also Hill v. City of Clovis (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 434, 443-446, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 638 ; Jackson v. Wells Fargo Bank (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 240, 242-243, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 679 ; Don Jose's Restaurant, Inc. v. Truck Ins. Exchange (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 115, 118-119, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370] . Unless circumstances are present that would permit interlocutory review by petition for an extraordinary writ, the parties must "get in line" for ordinary appellate review from the final judgment as to all causes of action [Four Point Entertainment, Inc. v. New World Entertainment, Ltd. (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 79, 83, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 82] .

On the other hand, a party is not precluded from stipulating to an adverse judgment with prejudice as to all claims, in order to appeal from that judgment [McMahon v. Craig (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 222, 228 n. 1, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 555 ; City of South San Francisco v. Mayer (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1350, 1354, n.2, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 704] .

[2] Appealability Determined by Statute

[a] No Appeal From Judgment or Order Unless Expressly Authorized by Statute

Since the right of appeal is wholly statutory [see § 40.12[2][a]], no judgment or order is appealable unless it is expressly made so by statute, meaning that a judgment or order must come within one of the classes described in the main statutes or be made appealable by a special statute [Doe v. Luster (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 139, 147-148, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 403 (no statutory authorization of immediate appeal from award or denial of attorney's fees to prevailing party or from denial of attorney's fees to prevailing party opposing special motion to strike); Draus v. Alfred M. Lewis, Inc. (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 485, 489, 68 Cal. Rptr. 154 ; see also Leone v. Medical Bd. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 660, 666, 668, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 61, 995 P.2d 191 (affirming constitutionality of statute specifying writ petition as sole means of appellate review of ruling on physician licensing; constitution's grant of appellate jurisdiction may be exercised in the procedural context of either appeal or writ petition, and statute may properly specify which must be used in a particular case)].

The main provisions for appealable judgments and orders made by the superior court are set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1, discussed in [3], below.

[b] Appellate Court Lacks Appellate Jurisdiction to Review Nonappealable Judgment or Order

An appealable judgment is a jurisdictional prerequisite to an appeal [Vivid Video, Inc. v. Playboy Entertainment Group, Inc. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 434, 440-443, 2007 Cal. App. LEXIS 132 (ruling as to who decides arbitrability is not appealable final order); Garau v. Torrance Unified School District (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 192, 198, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 108] . If the appellate court doubts whether the trial court has entered a final judgment or appealable order, it must raise the issue of appealability on its own initiative [Jennings v. Marralle (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 121, 126, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 275, 876 P.2d 1074 ; Garau v. Torrance Unified School District (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 192, 198, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 108 (order reclassifying and transferring case to limited jurisdiction department not appealable order)]. The general rule is that, due to the jurisdictional defect, the court must dismiss an appeal from a nonappealable order, even if the parties want the appeal to be decided on the merits [see Four Point Entertainment, Inc. v. New World Entertainment, Ltd. (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 79, 81-83, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 82 ; Degnan v. Morrow (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 358, 362, 82 Cal. Rptr. 557] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Appellant Should Ensure Judgment or Order Is Appealable; Respondent Should Make Early Motion to Dismiss Appeal From Nonappealable Judgment or Order. In many instances a ruling may be nonappealable simply because the proper steps have not yet been taken to secure an appealable judgment or order. One example is when a party seeks to appeal an order sustaining a demurrer without leave to amend, without first securing the entry of a judgment of dismissal that disposes of the action on the basis of that order [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(e) and discussion in [4], below, and in § 40.15[1]]. Although, as discussed in [c], below, an appellate court may sometimes be willing to treat a nonappealable order as appealable, it is ultimately the responsibility of appellant's counsel to perfect the appeal. Thus, even when the opposing party is the one whom the trial court has directed to prepare, serve, and submit the judgment, that party's failure to do so does not relieve an appellant from the jurisdictional requirement of appealing only from an appealable judgment or order. In such a case appellant's counsel should request that the trial court compel the other party to prepare the judgment as ordered, or request permission to assume responsibility for preparing and submitting the judgment [see Jordan v. Malone (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 18, 21, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 454] . As noted in Jordan, it is helpful when the trial court puts a specific time limit on the preparation of the proposed judgment; if the court does not do so, counsel for a potential appellant should suggest that such a deadline be added to the court's directions for preparation of the judgment.

Even when a notice of appeal has already been filed based on a non-appealable order that effectively terminates the case (e.g., an order sustaining a demurrer without leave to amend or granting a summary judgment), there may still be time to remedy this defect by having a proper, appealable judgment entered on the basis of this order, and then filing a new notice of appeal. While filing a second notice may be costly and embarrassing, it is safer than hoping that the court of appeal will exercise discretion to treat a premature notice of appeal as one taken from a subsequently entered judgment [see further discussion of premature appeals in § 42.17; see also discussion in [c], below].

Conversely, counsel for respondent should act early in the appeal process to seek dismissal of an appeal taken from a nonappealable judgment or order. See Ch. 48, Appeal: Abandonment, Dismissal, and Stipulated Reversal, §§ 48.13[2][b], 48.43.

[c] Purported Appeal From Nonappealable Judgment or Order Sometimes Treated as Appealable

The courts of appeal are increasingly disinclined to "save" an appeal from a nonappealable judgment or order [see In re the Marriage of Lafkas (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1429, 1434, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 100 (refusing to cure imperfect appeal); Gu v. BMW of North America, LLC (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 195, 202-203, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 617 ; Hill v. City of Long Beach (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1684, 1695-1696, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 125 ; Stolz v. Wong Communications Limited Partnership (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1811, 1816, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 229 ; Shpiller v. Harry C's Redlands (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1177, 1180, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 814 (refusing to "save" appeal from a notice of ruling); Jordan v. Malone (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 18, 20-23, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 454 (refusing to consider appeal from tentative decision);

Munoz v. Florentine Gardens (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1730, 1731-1732, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 609 (refusing to consider appeal from minute order dismissing action); Modica v. Merin (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1072, 1074-1075, 285 Cal. Rptr. 673 (refusing to hear appeal from order granting summary judgment or to allow correction of the defect by nunc pro tunc entry of a judgment); see also Cohen v. Equitable Life Assurance Society (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 669, 671, 242 Cal. Rptr. 84 ("saving" unperfected appeal from order sustaining demurrer, but serving notice that it would not "bail out" careless attorneys in the future)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Do NOT Count on Being Saved From a Defective Appeal. Because an appeal from a nonappealable judgment or order is a jurisdictional defect, the courts of appeal essentially have no discretion to "save" an appeal from such a judgment or order. The court is required to dismiss such an appeal for lack of jurisdiction [see Hollister Convalescent Hospital, Inc. v. Rico (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 660, 670, 125 Cal. Rptr. 757] . If, however, the appeal is timely taken from a judgment which has been rendered but not entered, the reviewing court must deem the notice of appeal to be filed immediately after entry of judgment. [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(e); Demyer v. Costa Mesa Mobile Home Estates (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 393, 399, n.14, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 260 ; see § 42.18]. Thus, even though such a judgment is technically unappealable, courts will reach the merits of the appeal because it is a matter of mere formality to obtain a final appealable judgment [see, e.g., County of Santa Clara v. Redevelopment Agency (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1008, 1016, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 868 ; Francis v. Dun & Bradstreet (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 535, 538-539, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 361]. Many, but not all, reviewing courts also will choose to reach the merits when the notice of appeal is premature only because the trial court inadvertently failed to render final judgment [Hines v. Lukes (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1174, 1182, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 689 ; Belio v. Panorama Optics, Inc. (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1096, 1101-1102, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 737].

Many courts of appeal, however, as discussed above, will no longer give appellants opportunity to obtain a final judgment or appealable order after the first notice of appeal is filed [see Fourth App. Dist., Div. Two, Pol. Mem., April 3, 1992 (also providing that an appellant whose appeal is dismissed may contest ruling by motion to vacate dismissal and reinstate appeal); see further discussion regarding premature appeals in § 42.18].

In rare instances a court of appeal may treat an appeal from a nonappealable judgment or order as a petition for an extraordinary writ, thus reaching the merits of the appeal in this way [cf. discussion in § 42.17[3][b] of special cases in which an untimely notice of appeal is treated as a writ petition]. This may occur when (1) the briefs and record contain in substance all of the elements prescribed by the rules of court for an original mandate proceeding and (2) there are extraordinary circumstances justifying the exercise of the court's discretionary power [Drum v. Superior Court (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 845, 852-853, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 279 ; Big Valley Band of Pomo Indians v. Superior Court (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1185, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 357 (interlocutory writ review of demurrer appropriate where tribal sovereign immunity at issue); Black Diamond Asphalt, Inc. v. Superior Court (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 109, 114-115, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 466 (court treated appeal as petition for writ of mandate given that pure question of law at issue which trial court decided incorrectly and which greatly prejudiced appellant's rights); Angell v. Superior Court (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 691, 697-698, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 657 ; see also Sheller v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1697, 1709, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 207 ; In re Molz (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 836, 843, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 131 (even if order not appealable, court would treat appeal as petition for writ relief because record contained all required elements and question presented significant public policy issues)]. For example, when an appeal from a summary judgment was deemed nonappealable because it did not dispose of respondent's cross complaint, and was thus not an appeal from a final judgment disposing of the entire action [see [1][a], above], one court of appeal deemed this to be a writ petition because otherwise respondent could defeat immediate review simply by refusing to dismiss the cross complaint and would undermine judicial economy by requiring further trial court proceedings on the cross complaint [Angell v. Superior Court (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 691, 698, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 657] . [3] Superior Court Judgments and Orders Appealable Under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1

[a] Final Judgment

An appeal may be taken to the court of appeal from a final superior court judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(1)]. Certain exceptions, however, preclude an appeal from the following types of judgments [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(1)]:

- An interlocutory judgment not otherwise made appealable by Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(8),(9), and*(11)* (discussed respectively in [h], [i], and [k], below) [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(1)(A)].

- A judgment of contempt that is made final and conclusive by Code Civ. Proc. § 1222 [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(1)(B)]. Note that judgments or orders of contempt may be reviewable by petition for writ of habeas corpus [see Ch. 292, Habeas Corpus].

- A judgment (or order) by a superior court judge or other judicial officer in a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.2 (in limited civil case, appeal is taken to appellate division of superior court); see also § 40.11[4] (appellate jurisdiction of superior court)]. For detailed discussion and forms relating to limited civil cases and appeals to the appellate division of the superior court, see Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases .

- A judgment of the appellate division of a superior court granting or denying a petition for issuance of a writ of mandamus or prohibition directed to the superior court, or a judge thereof, in a limited civil case or a misdemeanor or infraction case [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(1)(c); California Cas. Ins. Co. v. Municipal Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1410, 1413, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 657] .

The exception set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1, relating to a judgment granting or denying a petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition is strictly limited to judgments involving those types of writs. Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1 provides further that an appellate court may review any judgment granting ordenying a petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition, if review is sought by petition for an extraordinary writ rather than by appeal [see also Baluyut v. Superior Court (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 826, 829 n.3, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101, 911 P.2d 1 (order denying petition for writ of mandate directed to municipal court, not appealable under predecessor to Code Civ. Proc. § 904.3, may be reviewed on petition for writ of mandate); In re Marriage of Ellis (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 400, 404, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 719 (court construed appeal as writ petition in order to resolve issue), and see §§ 40.11[2][a] and 40.12[3]]. For general discussion and forms relating to review by writ of mandate or prohibition, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

[b] Order Made After Final Judgment

An appeal may be taken from a superior court order made after a judgment that is appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(1) (discussed in [a], above) [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(2)].

For an order after judgment to be appealable, the judgment that precedes the order must be "final" in the trial court, the appeal from the order may not present the same issues as an appeal from the judgment itself, and the order must either affect the judgment or relate to it either by enforcing it or staying its execution [Lakin v. Watkins Associated Industries (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 644, 651-652, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 109, 863 P.2d 179 ; Bates v. Rubio's Rests. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 1125, 1130-1132, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 206 (order regarding late-identified class members separately appealable from final judgment); Doppes v. Bentley Motors, Inc. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1004, 1008, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 797 ; Day v. Collingwood (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1123, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 903 (postjudgment order denying sanctions pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 is appealable order); In re Marriage of Wilcox (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 492, 497, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 315 (order denying motion to vacate renewal of judgment is appealable post-judgment order)]. It is the substance and effect of an adjudication, not its form, which determines whether it is final and appealable. As a general test, if no issue is left for future consideration--except the fact of compliance or noncompliance with the terms of the first decree--that decree is final. However, if anything further on the court's part is essential to a final determination of the parties' rights, the decree is not appealable [Warmington Old Town Associates, L.P. v. Tustin Unified School District (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 840, 847-848, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 744 (although no formal judgment entered, court held order appealable)]. Some postjudgment orders are not appealable because, although they follow an earlier judgment, they are considered preliminary to a later judgment, at which time they will become ripe for appeal. These postjudgment orders lack finality because they are preparatory to later proceedings [Yeboah v. Progeny Ventures, Inc. (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 443, 448, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 150 (when court refers matter to master or referee after ordering accounting, initial order directing accounting is interlocutory); In re Marriage of Ellis (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 400, 403, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 719 (order in bifurcated trial that property was divisible community property not appealable until second issue regarding value resolved)]. With regard to a motion to vacate a judgment, generally only denial of a statutory motion may be appealed [Forman v. Knapp Press (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 200, 202, 218 Cal. Rptr. 815 ; see City of Los Angeles v. Glair (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 813, 820-823, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 280 ; In re Marriage of Brockman (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1040-1045, 240 Cal. Rptr. 96] .

An order vacating default and default judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is appealable as an order after final judgment. In addition, an order denying relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is appealable [Doppes v. Bentley Motors, Inc. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1004, 1008-1009, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 797 ; Huh v. Wang (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1406, 1413, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 65 ; Moghaddam v. Bone (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 283, 287, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 602] .

When a trial court determines in its judgment that a party is entitled to attorney's fees but the court does not set the amount of fees, the determination of entitlement is merely interlocutory. Consequently, a party may challenge the entitlement to attorney's fees as well as the determination of the amount of fees to be paid after entry of the order after judgment setting the amount of attorney's fees [P R Burke Corp. v. Victor Valley Wastewater Reclamation Authority (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1047, 1055, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 98 (order establishing right to fees, although part of appealable order, is interlocutory if it does not establish the amount of fees)].

Whenever a post-judgment order is expressly appealable, an appeal from that order must specify that order in the notice of appeal, instead of or in addition to specifying the judgment [Soldate v. Fidelity National Financial, Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1069, 1074-1075, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 404 ; see [1][c], above].

[c] Order Granting Motion Based on Lack of Personal Jurisdiction or Inconvenient Forum

An appeal may be taken from an order granting a motion to quash service of summons or granting a motion to stay the action on the ground of inconvenient forum, or from a written order of dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 581d following an order granting a motion to dismiss the action on the ground of inconvenient forum [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(3)]. The appeal may be taken even if the order is not signed by the court [Quest Int'l, Inc. v. Icode Corp. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 745, 754-760, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 173 (time for appeal began to run upon entry of unsigned minute order on trial court's sua sponte motion for reconsideration)]. For discussion and forms relating to such motions generally, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal .

[d] Order Granting New Trial or Denying JNOV

An appeal may be taken from a superior court order granting a new trial or denying a motion for judgment notwithstanding the verdict [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(4); Saxena v. Goffney (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 316, 323-324, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 469 ; Gober v. Ralphs Grocery Co. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 204, 211, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 92] . For discussion and forms relating to such motions generally, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial .

[e] Order Granting Right to Attach or Granting or Denying Discharge of Attachment

An appeal may be taken from a superior court order discharging or refusing to discharge an attachment or granting a right to attach order [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(5)]. For discussion and forms relating to attachment and attach orders generally, see Ch. 62, Attachment .

[f] Order Granting or Denying Injunction or Dissolution of Injunction

An appeal may be taken from a superior court order granting or dissolving an injunction or refusing to grant or dissolve an injunction [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(6); Cabrini Villas Homeowners Association v. Haghverdian (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 683, 688, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 192 (order granting injunction is appealable as final judgment on merits)]. An interlocutory order denying a permanent injunction is not immediately appealable, however, and is reviewed after final judgment [Bishop Creek Lodge v. Scira (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 631, 633-634, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 398] . For discussion and forms relating to orders granting, denying, or dissolving injunctions generally, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[g] Order Appointing Receiver

An appeal may be taken from a superior court order appointing a receiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(7)]. For discussion and forms relating to orders appointing receivers generally, see Ch. 486, Receivers .

[h] Judgment or Order Determining Right to Redeem Property Subject to Mortgage or Lien

An appeal may be taken from a superior court interlocutory judgment, order, or decree that was made or entered in an action to redeem real or personal property from a mortgage or lien, when the judgment, order, or decree determines the right to redeem and directs an accounting [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(8)]. For discussion and forms relating to orders determining redemption rights generally, see Ch. 42, Liens and Wage Preferences , and Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages .

[i] Judgment Directing Partition

An appeal may be taken from a superior court interlocutory judgment in an action for partition determining the rights and interests of the respective parties and directing partition to be made [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(9); see also Solis v. Vallar (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 710, 713, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 677 (order confirming a partition sale under Code Civ. Proc. § 873.750 may be appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(2) if it is made after appealable interlocutory judgment directing partition and sale; disagreeing with contrary ruling on this point in Hummel v. First National Bank (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 489, 493, 236 Cal. Rptr. 449)]. For discussion and forms relating to partition proceedings generally, see Ch. 397, Partition .

[j] Order Appealable Under Probate or Family Law Codes

An appeal may be taken from a superior court order made appealable by the provisions of the Probate Code or the Family Code [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(10); see Fam. Code § 2341; Prob. Code § 7240]. For discussion and forms relating to probate orders generally, see Ch. 440, Probate: Is Probate Necessary? For discussion and forms relating to family law orders, see the various chapters covering Family Law Code proceedings listed by specific topic in the General Index of this publication.

[k] Judgment or Order Imposing Monetary Sanctions Exceeding $5000

An appeal may be taken from a superior court order or an interlocutory judgment directing payment of monetary sanctions by a party or an attorney for a party only if the amount exceeds $5,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(11),(12); Sinaiko Healthcare Consulting, Inc. v. Pacific Healthcare Consultants (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 390, 401, 55 Cal. Rptr.

3d 751] . Contemporaneous, separate sanction awards are not aggregated for purposes of this rule if the conduct giving rise to the awards was separate and distinct [see Champion/L.B.S. Associates Development Co. v. E-Z Serve Petroleum Marketing, Inc. (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 56, 57-60, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726] .

Sanctions judgments that do not exceed $5,000 may be reviewed on an appeal by that party after entry of final judgment in the main action. Alternatively, the appellate court has discretion to review such judgment on petition for writ of mandate or prohibition [see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(b); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(1) (discussed in [a], above); County of Monterey v. Mahabir (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1650, 1653, 282 Cal. Rptr. 924] .

For discussion and forms relating to monetary sanctions generally, see Ch. 510, Sanctions .

[l] Order Granting or Denying Motion to Strike SLAPP Suit

An appeal may be taken from an order granting or denying a special motion to strike under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16 [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(13); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(i); Century 21 Chamberlain & Associates v. Haberman (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 1, 6, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 249 ; Doe v. Luster (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 139, 147-148, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 403 ; Contemporary Services Corp. v. Staff Pro, Inc. (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1043, 1052, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434 ; Barak v. The Quisenberry Law Firm (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 654, 658, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 688 ; Soukup v. Stock (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1490, 1494-1497, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 303] . Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16 provides the special motion procedure for striking SLAPP suits ("Strategic Litigation Against Public Participation"), that is, actions brought primarily to chill constitutionally protecte d speech. For discussion and forms relating to this procedure, see Ch. 376, Motions to Strike: Anti-SLAPP .

[m] Order Disqualifying Attorney

An order disqualifying an attorney is appealable as an order granting an injunction [Strasbourger Pearson Tulcin Wolff Inc. v. Wiz Technology, Inc. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1399, 1402, n.1, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 326 ; see also discussion in [f], above].

[4] Appealable Judgments and Orders Under Other Statutes

[a] In General

Most judgments and orders from which an appeal may be taken to the court of appeal are set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1, discussed in [3], above. Counsel should be aware, however, that there are additional statutes providing a right of appeal from other judgments and orders, and they should conduct research accordingly [see, e.g., Welf. & Inst. Code § 395].

[b] Judgments and Order in Contractual Arbitration Proceedings

A common instance of judgments and orders made appealable by statutory provisions other than Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1, are the following judgments and orders in contractual arbitration proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1294]:

- An order dismissing or denying a petition to compel arbitration.
- An order dismissing a petition to confirm, correct, or vacate an award.
- An order vacating an award unless a rehearing in arbitration is ordered.
- A judgment entered pursuant to the provisions for contractual arbitration [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq.].

- A special order after final judgment.

For more detailed discussion and forms relating to judgments and orders appealable under the contractual arbitration law, see Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review .

[4A] Judgments Subject to Protective or Precautionary Cross Appeal

In an appeal from a postjudgment order granting a new trial or vacating the judgment, the respondent is the winning party as to the postjudgment order that is the subject of the appeal, but also the losing party as to the original judgment. If a postjudgment order of this type is reversed on appeal, this original judgment will be reinstated. The respondent in such an appeal, therefore, will commonly file a "protective" or "precautionary" cross appeal. If the postjudgment order is reversed by reason of the direct appeal, the respondent will then be able to challenge, in the cross appeal, the original judgment that would otherwise be reinstated. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(f)(2), expressly provides for such protective cross appeals by specifying the time within which they must be filed [see also discussion in § 42.16].

An original judgment, once vacated by a postjudgment order granting a new trial or vacating the judgment, is no longer an appealable judgment in the sense that it is not subject to a direct appeal. If the postjudgment order is never appealed, this original judgment is forever vacated and a direct appeal would serve no purpose. Once, however, an appeal is taken from the postjudgment order, the vacating effect of that order is suspended, and the original judgment remains effective for the purpose of an appeal from that judgment [see Spencer v. Nelson (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 162, 164, 180 P.2d 886] . In other words, when an appeal is taken from a postjudgment order granting a new trial or vacating a judgment, the original judgment remains an appealable judgment for the limited purpose of pursuing a protective or precautionary cross appeal from that judgment.

As provided by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(f)(2), any appeal from the original judgment in this situation must be pursued by means of a protective or precautionary cross appeal. The respondent to an appeal taken from the postjudgment order may not simply wait for the outcome of that appeal and then, if the order is reversed, appeal directly from the reinstated judgment. To do so would subject the adverse party to unjust and unwarranted delay.

Before amendment and renumbering resulting in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(f)(2) one court of appeal held, in an appeal from a postjudgment order granting a JNOV, that the rule did not permit a precautionary cross appeal that challenges the original judgment because the rule did not expressly allow appeal by the respondent after an order granting a JNOV [Lippert v. AVCO Community Developers, Inc. (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 775, 777-778, 778 n.3, 131 Cal. Rptr. 730 (also noting that it did not imply that permitting such a cross appeal would be unwise, but that this could be accomplished only by amending the rule)]. The holding in Lippert was abrogated by express provision for a cross appeal after the appeal of an order granting a JNOV [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(f)(2); see also accompanying Advisory Committee Comment].

[5] Examples of Nonappealable Judgments and Orders

Nonappealable judgments and orders are those not expressly appealable by statute [see discussion in [2] and [3], above; see also discussion in [1][b], above, regarding the review of nonappealable orders or rulings encompassed within a final, appealable judgment]. Nonappealable orders include, but are not necessarily limited to, the following:

- An order overruling a demurrer [San Diego Gas and Elec. Co. v. Superior Court (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 893, 912-913, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 724, 920 P.2d 669 (order may be reviewed after final judgment)].

- An order sustaining a demurrer [City of Morgan Hill v. Bay Area Air Quality Management District (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 861, 867 n.3, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 420 (appeal may be taken from order dismissing complaint with prejudice)].

- An order granting or denying a motion to strike a pleading [Barrett v. Stanislaus County Employees Retirement Assn. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1593, 1601 n.4, 234 Cal. Rptr. 900] .

- Discovery orders [Dodge, Warren & Peters Insurance Services, Inc. v. Riley (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 1414, 1421, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 385 (denial of protective order not appealable); Marsh v. Mountain Zephyr, Inc. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 289, 298 n.6, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 493] .

- An order denying a motion for a new trial [Walker v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 15, 19, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 490, 104 P.3d 844] .

- An order granting mistrial due to hung jury [Sullivan v. Delta Air Lines, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 288, 307 n.11, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 74, 935 P.2d 781] .

- An order granting a motion for partial judgment notwithstanding the verdict [Beavers v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 310, 329, 274 Cal. Rptr. 766] .

- An order denying a pretrial motion for dismissal [Samuel v. Stevedoring Services of America (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 414, 417, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 420] .

- An order directing a verdict [Hilliard v. A.H. Robins Co. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 374, 384, 196 Cal. Rptr. 117 (ordinary appeal from final judgment may include review of order granting directed verdict)].

- An order reopening a case for further proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 662 [Concerned Citizens Coalition of Stockton v. City of Stockton (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 70, 77-79, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 735] .

- An order granting or denying a motion for summary judgment (as distinguished from a judgment entered after the grant of summary judgment) [Sullivan v. Delta Air Lines, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 288, 307, n.10, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 74, 935 P.2d 781; Mukthar v. Latin American Security Service (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 284, 288, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 563] .

- An order reopening a case for further proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 662 [Concerned Citizens Coalition of Stockton v. City of Stockton (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 70, 77-79, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 735] .

- Denial of motion for reconsideration [Branner v. Regents of University of California (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1043, 1050, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 690 ; Huh v. Wang (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1406, 1413, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 65 ; Ramon v. Aerospace Corp. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1233, 1237, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 217] .

- An order compelling arbitration [Branham v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 27, 32, 121 Cal. Rptr. 304 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1294].

- Entry of judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 after settlement [Pazderka v. Caballeros Dimas Alang, Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 658, 667-668, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 242 (also stating that denial of motion for relief from default under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is appealable); see also Bias v. Wright (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 811, 817, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 137 (judgment appealable when entered after parties informed trial court that dispute had arisen over whether agreement under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 existed)].

- An order remanding a matter to an administrative board for a new hearing [Board of Dental Examiners v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1424, 1430, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 653] .

- An order fixing the amount of a preliminary injunction bond [County of Los Angeles v. City of Los Angeles (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1025, 1028, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 799] .

- An order denying a motion for entry of judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 [Doran v. Magan (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1287, 1293-1294, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 60] .

- A tentative decision [In re Marriage of Hafferkamp (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 789, 793-794, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 761] .

- A clerk's entry of default [First American Title Co. v. Mirzaian (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 956, 961, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 206] .

- An order reclassifying and transferring a case to a limited jurisdiction department [Garau v. Torrance Unified School District (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 192, 198, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 108] .

- A ruling as to who decides arbitrability [Vivid Video, Inc. v. Playboy Entertainment Group, Inc. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 434, 440-443, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 232] .

- Courts are split as to whether an order denying a motion for reconsideration is separately appealable, with most recent cases holding that they are not [see, e.g., Morton v. Wagner (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 963, 968-969, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 818] .

§ 42.13 Time Requirements for Filing Notice of Appeal

[1] General Filing Deadlines

A notice of appeal generally must be filed on or before the earliest of the following three dates [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a)]:

- 60 days after the date of serving by the clerk of the court of a document entitled "notice of entry" of judgment or a file-stamped copy of the judgment, showing the date either was served [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a)(1); see [2][a], below].

- 60 days after the date of service of a document entitled "notice of entry" of judgment or a file-stamped copy of the judgment, accompanied by proof of service, by any party on the party filing the notice of appeal or by the party filing the notice of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a)(2); see [2][a], below].

- 180 days after the date of entry of the judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a)(3); see [2][b], below].

One court of appeal has held that noncompliance with the statutory notice requirements for entry of judgment does not render the judgment void [see Kimball Avenue v. Franco (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1224, 1228-1229, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 628 (when court clerk and party fail to serve notice of entry of judgment, sole consequence is that longer statutory period for filing notice of appeal applies)].

For purposes of this rule, "judgment" includes "appealable order" if the appeal is from an appealable order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(f); see Russell v. Foglio (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 653, 660 n.3, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 87] .

Different time deadlines for filing an appeal, other than the general deadlines set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a), above, apply in the following situations:

- When there is postjudgment motion for new trial, motion for reconsideration, motion to vacate, or motion for JNOV [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108, discussed in § 42.14].

- An action involving liability by a public entity under Gov. Code § 984 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104, discussed in § 42.15[1]].

- Validation actions under Code Civ. Proc. § 870 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a), discussed in § 42.15[2]].

- Cross appeals [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(f), discussed in § 42.16].

A different deadline may also apply when there is postjudgment modification of the judgment in the trial court, to the extent that time deadlines under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a) may begin to run anew from the modified judgment [see discussion § 42.14[5]]. However, filing a bankruptcy petition and the imposition of an automatic stay does not stay the time to file a notice of appeal [ECC Construction, Inc. v. Oak Park Calabasas Homeowners Assn. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 994, 999, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 340] .

In any event, the applicable time deadline may not be extended, and timely filing is a mandatory and jurisdictional requirement. Failure to file in time results in dismissal. For further discussion, see § 42.15.

[2] Calculation of General Filing Deadlines

[a] 60-Day Deadline

The general 60-day filing deadline for filing a notice of appeal begins to run in either of the following situations [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a)(1), (2)]:

- The clerk of the superior court serves a notice of entry of the judgment or order from which the appeal is to be taken.

- One of the parties to the action, including appellant, serves notice of entry of the judgment or order from which the appeal is to be taken.

A file-stamped copy of the judgment may be used in place of a document entitled "notice of entry," and service of a file-stamped copy of the judgment therefore starts the 60-day deadline [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a)(1),(2); Russell v. Foglio (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 653, 659-660, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 87 ; Hughes v. City of Pomona (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 772, 777, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 344 ; see also Filipescu v. California Housing Finance Agency (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 738, 741-742, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 736 ; Imuta v. Nakano (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1570, 1579 n.10, 285 Cal. Rptr. 681] . If a file-stamped copy is used, it must bear the judge's signature or signature stamp; otherwise, it does not give sufficient notice to start the 60-day deadline [People v. One Parcel of Land (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 579, 582 n.2, 286 Cal. Rptr. 739] . One court has held that the document must literally be entitled "Notice of Entry" in order to start the appeal clock running [Sunset Millennium Associates, LLC v. Le Songe, LLC (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 256, 259-260, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 273 (14-page minute order with notice of entry language on page 13 did not comply with requirement that document providing notice of entry be so entitled)]. Notice of an appealable judgment or order mailed to an incorrect address is not sufficient to constitute legal notice [Moghaddam v. Bone (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 283, 288, 47 Cal.

Rptr. 3d 602] . However, a notice sent to only one of a party's two attorneys does constitute legal notice [Adaimy v. Ruhl (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 583, 586-587, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 926].

Documents served by the clerk do not trigger the 60-day period for filing a notice of appeal unless the documents strictly comply with California Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a) [Alan v. American Honda Motor Co., Inc. (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 894, 902-903, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 534, 152 P.3d 1109 ; Citizens for Civic Accountability v. Town of Danville (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1158, 1162-1165, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 684 (clerk's e-mailing judgment failed to trigger appeal deadline; U.S. mail required)]. Rule 8.104(a)(1) requires a single document, either a "Notice of Entry" or a file-stamped copy of the judgment or appealable order, that is sufficient in itself to satisfy all of Rule 8.104(a)'s conditions, including the requirement that the document itself show the date on which it was served. The clerk may satisfy the single-document requirement by attaching a certificate of mailing to the file-stamped judgment or appealable order, or to a document entitled "Notice of Entry" [Alan v. American Honda Motor Co., Inc. (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 894, 905, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 534, 152 P.3d 1109]. To commence the 60-day period for filing a notice of appeal, the notice of entry must include an actual proof of service [Thiara v. Pacific Coast Khalsa Diwan Society (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 51, 56-58, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 333] .

Service under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a)(1) and (a)(2) may be by any method permitted by the Code of Civil Procedure, including electronic service when permitted under Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.250-2.261 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a)(4)].

One court of appeal has held that noncompliance with the statutory notice requirements for entry of judgment does not render the judgment void [see Kimball Avenue v. Franco (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1224, 1228-1229, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 628 (when court clerk and party fail to serve notice of entry of judgment, sole consequence is that longer statutory period for filing notice of appeal applies)].

[b] 180-Day Deadline

The general 180-day filing deadline for filing a notice of appeal applies when neither the superior court clerk nor one of the parties to an action has properly served a "notice of entry" of judgment sufficient to start the 60-day deadline within 120 days after entry of judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a)(3); see [a], above].

In this situation, the deadline for filing the notice of appeal is 180 days after entry of the judgment or order. "Entry" of the judgment or order is one of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(d)]:

- The date that a judgment is entered in the judgment book (or the date of filing with the clerk when a county follows the procedures in lieu of a judgment book under Code Civ. Proc. § 668.5) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(d)(1); see also Van Beurden Ins. Services, Inc. v. Customized Worldwide Weather Ins. Agency, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 51, 57, n.2, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 166 (noting use of this procedure when county fails to keep judgment book)].

- If the appeal is from an appealable order that is entered in the minutes, the date that it is entered in the permanent minutes, unless the minute order expressly directs that a written order is to be prepared, signed, and filed, in which case it is the date the signed order is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(d)(2)]. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1312 (requiring prevailing party in trial court motion to prepare order, deliver it to opposing party for approval, and transmit it to court for signature and filing), or any similar local court rule, does not constitute an express direction by the court to prepare and file an order within the meaning of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(d)(2) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(d)(2); Hughey v. City of Hayward (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 206, 209-210, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 678] .

- When the appeal is from an appealable order that has not been entered in the minutes, the date that the order signed by the court is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(d)(3)].

- In a probate proceeding, the date of entry of a decree of distribution is the date of entry of that decree at length in the judgment book or other permanent record of the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(d)(4)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 42.14 Time Requirements for Filing Notice of Appeal After Post-Judgment Proceedings

[1] Motion for New Trial

If any party serves and files a valid notice of intention to move for a new trial and the motion is denied, the time to appeal from the judgment is extended for all parties until the earliest of [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(b)]:

- 30 days after the superior court clerk mails, or a party serves, an order denying the motion or a notice of entry of that order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(b)(1)(A)]; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 660, discussed below].

- 30 days after denial of the motion by operation of law [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(b)(1)(B); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 660, discussed below].

- 180 days after entry of judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(b)(1)(C)].

If any party serves an acceptance of a conditionally ordered additur or remittitur of damages pursuant to a trial court finding of excessive or inadequate damages, the time to appeal from the judgment is extended for all parties until 30 days after the date the party serves the acceptance [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(b)(2)].

An order or notice mailed by the clerk under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(b) must show the date it was mailed, and an order or notice served by a party must be accompanied by proof of service [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(g)].

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 660, the trial court must rule on a motion for new trial within 60 days after either the superior court clerk or a party mails notice of entry of judgment, or 60 days after the filing of the first notice of intention to move for a new trial. If the court fails to rule on the motion within this 60-day period, the motion is deemed denied without further order of the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 660]. Note, however, that in some instances, the applicable 60-day period in which to decide a motion for new trial may be extended [see Freiberg v. City of Mission Viejo (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1484, 1487-1489, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 802 (time to rule on new trial motion may sometimes be extended for performance of conditions precedent to denial of a new trial, such as additur, for circumstances beyond a party's control, or the time limit may be tolled due to a stay, such as a bankruptcy stay)]. In addition, one court held that 11 U.S.C. § 108(c)(2) provides a 30-day extension of the time in which a trial court may rule on a motion for new trial if the deadline contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 660 passed while an automatic stay was in effect [ECC Construction, Inc. v. Oak Park Calabasas Homeowners Association (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1031, 1037, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 580 (notice of appeal filed within 30 days of notice of ruling on motion for new trial was timely)]. For further discussion and forms relating to motions for a new trial, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial .

If a party files a valid motion for new trial, and the trial court issues a timely order denying that motion, but no one serves the order or notice of entry of that order, then the applicable deadline for filing the notice of appeal from the judgment is 180 days after entry of judgment, pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(b)(1)(C) [Anderson v. Chikovani (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1400-1401, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 553] .

[2] Motion to Vacate Judgment

The time for filing a notice of appeal is extended when both of the following occur [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(c)]:

- Any party serves and files a valid notice of intention to move to vacate a judgment or to vacate a judgment and enter another different judgment, on any ground.

- The notice of intention is served and filed within the time for filing a notice of appeal under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104, or within any shorter time that may apply by statute.

In this event, the time for filing the notice of appeal from the judgment is extended for all parties until the earliest of the following dates [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(c)]:

- 30 days after the superior court clerk mails, or a party serves, an order denying the motion or a notice of entry of that order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(c)(1)].

- 90 days after the first notice of intention to move or motion is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(c)(2)].

- 180 days after entry of judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(c)(3)].

An order or notice mailed by the clerk under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(c) must show the date it was mailed, and an order or notice served by a party must be accompanied by proof of service [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(g)].

Motions to vacate a judgment are typically those made under Code Civ. Proc. § 663 et seq., on grounds that the judgment by the court or by special verdict is based on incorrect or erroneous law or is not supported by or is inconsistent with the facts [see Payne v. Rader (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1569, 1574, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 174 (motion to vacate judgment extended time to appeal only if motion was valid)]. For discussion and forms relating to these motions, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial .

The provision under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(c), for filing a notice of appeal after filing a motion to vacate judgment, may be applied only to lengthen the time for filing a notice of appeal under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a). It may not be applied to shorten the time allowed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a) [Maides v. Ralphs Grocery Co. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1363, 1370, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 542] .

A motion to set aside a judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, on grounds of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, also operates to extend the time for filing of notice of appeal under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(c) [Matera v. McLeod (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 44, 56-57, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 331 ; In re Marriage of Eben-King & King (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 92, 108, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 113 ; Duncan v. Sunset Agricultural Minerals (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 489, 491-492, 78 Cal. Rptr. 339 (rejecting contention that motion did not extend time because it was not made under Code Civ. Proc. § 663 et seq.); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(c), Advisory Committee Comment]. In order for the motion to set aside a judgment to function to extend the time within which to appeal, the motion to set aside judgment must have been filed in a timely manner. That is, it must have been served and filed within either the normal time period for filing a notice of appeal under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104 or any shorter time period prescribed by statute for filing such a motion [In re Marriage of Eben-King & King (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 92, 108-109, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 113] . For discussion and forms relating to motions under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, see Ch. 489, Relief from Judgments and Orders .

A motion pursuant to Fam. Code § 2122(e), which allows a motion to set aside a stipulated or uncontested judgment on the basis of mistake within one year after the date of entry of judgment, is not a motion to vacate which serves to extend the time for filing a notice of appeal [In re Marriage of Eben-King & King (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 92, 112-113, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 113] .

[3] Motion to Reconsider Appealable Order

If any party serves and files a valid motion to reconsider an appealable order under Code Civ. Proc. § 1008(a), the time to appeal from that order is extended for all parties until the earliest of the following dates [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(e)]:

- 30 days after the superior court clerk mails, or a party serves, an order denying the motion or a notice of entry of that order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(e)(1)].
- 90 days after the first motion to reconsider is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(e)(2)].
- 180 days after entry of the appealable order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(e)(3)].

An order or notice mailed by the clerk under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(e) must show the date it was mailed, and an order or notice served by a party must be accompanied by proof of service [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(g)].

The extension provisions of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(e) do not apply to motions to reconsider a nonappealable order. For example, in one case, appellants filed a motion for reconsideration of a minute order granting a motion for summary judgment. The trial court later entered judgment based on the minute order, and the parties were served with notice of entry of the judgment. Still later, the trial court heard and denied the motion for reconsideration. Appellants filed their notices within 30 days of the denial of the motion for reconsideration, but more than 60 days after the notice of entry of judgment. The court of appeal held that the appeals were barred because of the untimely notices. The motion for reconsideration did not seek reconsideration of an appealable order, and therefore did not trigger the extension provisions of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108 [Kasper v. Cedars-Sinai Medical Center (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 780, 782, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 835 (distinguishing contrary language in Stratton v. First Nat. Life Ins. Co. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1071, 1082, 258 Cal. Rptr. 721 as dicta)]. In addition, to extend the time to file a notice of appeal, a motion for reconsideration must comply with all procedural requirements [see Branner v. Regents of University of California (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1043, 1047-1048, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 690 (motion to reconsider invalid because it did not include declaration)].

The extension provisions of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108, also apply only to timely motions to reconsider that are made before entry of judgment. After entry of judgment, a trial court has no authority to change the judgment except through the statutory provisions governing motions for new trial or to vacate the judgment [Nave v. Taggart (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1173, 1177, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 714 ; Passavanti v. Williams (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1602, 1606, 275 Cal. Rptr. 887] . When the motion for reconsideration is untimely and the trial court therefore has no power to rule on it, the motion has no effect on the period within which to file a notice of appeal [Ramon v. Aerospace Corp. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1233, 1238, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 217 ; see also Betz v. Pankow (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 931, 937-938, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841 ; Ten Eyck v. Industrial Forklifts Co. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 540, 545, 265 Cal. Rptr. 29 ; Eddy v. Sharp (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 858, 863 n.3, 245 Cal. Rptr. 211 ; Magallanes v. Superior Court (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 878, 882, 213 Cal. Rptr. 547] . If the motion for reconsideration is made before the entry of judgment, but is not actually heard until after the entry of judgment, the entry of judgment operates as an implied denial of the motion, and the entry of judgment, rather than any subsequent formal hearing and denial of the motion, triggers the running of the 30-day period under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108 [Kasper v. Cedars-Sinai Medical Center (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 780, 782, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 835] .

For discussion and forms relating to motions to reconsider generally, see Ch. 374, Motions to Reconsider and Renewed Motions .

[4] JNOV Motion

If any party serves and files a valid JNOV motion and the motion is denied, the time to appeal from the judgment is extended for all parties until the earliest of [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(d)(1)]:

- 30 days after the superior court clerk mails, or a party serves, an order denying the motion or a notice of entry of that order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(d)(1)(A)].

- 30 days after denial of the motion by operation of law [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(d)(1)(B)].

- 180 days after entry of judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(d)(1)(C)].

The time to appeal from an order denying a JNOV motion is governed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104, unless extended by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(f)(2) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(d)(2)].

An order or notice mailed by the clerk under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(d)(1) must show the date it was mailed, and an order or notice served by a party must be accompanied by proof of service [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(g)].

[5] Effect of Modification of Judgment by Trial Court

If the trial court substantially modifies a judgment, for example, on a motion for new trial, the amended judgment becomes the final judgment from which a new filing deadline begins to run [Neff v. Ernst (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 628, 634, 311 P.2d 849 (trial court's substantial modification of original judgment made original judgment ineffective, and the appeal from the amended judgment was properly before the court of appeal); Stone v. Regents of University of California (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 736, 744 (appeal is timely if taken from a modified judgment if modification is material and substantial) but see discussion in [1], above (time requirements applicable on denial of motion for new trial)].

When, however, an amendment merely corrects a clerical error and does not involve the exercise of judicial discretion, the original judgment remains effective and unimpaired and the amendment does not operate as a new judgment from which a new appeal may be taken [Mulder v. Mendo Wood Products, Inc. (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 619, 635, 37 Cal. Rptr. 479 (original judgment modified to eliminate inadvertent inclusion of matter remained the appealable judgment in that modification corrected only a clerical error)].

§ 42.15 Time Requirements for Filing Notice of Appeal in Specific Actions

[1] Action Involving Periodic Payment of Judgment by Public Entity

Notwithstanding Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a) (discussed in § 42.13, above), or any other rule, in actions in which a public entity has been held liable and has elected to pay a judgment in periodic payments under Gov. Code § 984, the time for filing a notice of appeal is governed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(c). In these cases, the time for filing the notice of appeal is the earliest of the following, unless Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108, applies to further extend the date [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(c); see § 42.14 (post-judgment motions) and § 42.16 (cross appeal) for discussion of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108]:

- 90 days after the superior court clerk mails the notice of entry of judgment.
- 90 days after the date of service of written notice of entry of judgment.
- 180 days after the date of entry of the judgment.

For a discussion and forms relating to periodic payments of judgments by public entities generally, see Ch. 467, Public Entities and Officers: Enforcement of Judgments Against Public Entities .

[2] Validation Action

The time requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104 (discussed in § 42.13), do not apply in proceedings subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 870 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 870, which applies to validation actions under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 860-870, provides that, notwithstanding any other provision of law or any rule of court, no appeal will be allowed from a judgment entered in a validation action unless a notice of appeal is filed within 30 days after notice of entry of judgment, or within 30 days after entry of judgment if there is no answering party [Code Civ. Proc. § 870(b); see Hollywood Park Land Co., LLC v. Golden State Transportation Financing Corp. (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 924, 938-948, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 752 (casino compact unconstitutional because it bypasses court of appeal and mandates direct review by California Supreme Court); California Commerce Casino, Inc. v. Schwarzenegger, 146 Cal. App. 4th 1406, 1418-1419, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 626] . If there is no answering party, only issues related to the jurisdiction of the court to enter a judgment in the action under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 860-870 may be raised on the appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 870(b)].

The shortened time requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 870(b) apply to appealable orders in validation proceedings as well as to judgments [Planning & Conservation League v. Department of Water Resources (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 264, 267, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 635, 949 P.2d 488] .

[3] Proceedings to Determine Validity of Public Bonds and Other Undertakings

Gov. Code § 53511 and Gov. Code § 17700 allow a state or local agency to bring an action to determine the validity of its bonds, warrants, contracts, obligations, or evidences of indebtedness. Code Civ. Proc. § 863 et seq. provide for an action by an "interested person" to challenge the validity of these agency undertakings. The time for filing a notice of appeal from a judgment in one of these actions is within 30 days after notice of entry of judgment or 30 days after entry of judgment if there is no answering party [Code Civ. Proc. § 870]. This shortened period supersedes the longer period for filing a notice of appeal found in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a). In the case of an appeal from an order in such a proceeding, which is not a final judgment, the same shorter time limits of Code Civ. Proc. § 870 also apply [Planning and Conservation League v. Department of Water Resources (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 264, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 635] .

[4] Other Special Proceedings

Counsel should be aware that other particular proceedings may have their own statutory deadlines for filing an appeal. For example, an action challenging the validity of a special assessment against real property for a public improvement not only has an extremely short limitation period for bringing the action, but any appeal from a final judgment in such an action must be perfected within 30 days after entry of judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 329.5].

§ 42.16 Time Requirements for Filing Notice of Appeal in Cross Appeal

When a timely notice of appeal is filed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104 (discussed in § 42.13), or under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108 (discussed in § 42.14), any other party may file a notice of cross appeal within 20 days after the superior court clerk mails notification of the first appeal or within the time otherwise prescribed by the applicable rule, whichever period expires later [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(f)(1)].

Note that Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(f)(1), does not require that the first notice of appeal be valid for purposes of determining the timeliness of the cross appeal. Hence, an invalid but timely filed appeal operates to extend the time required for the filing of the notice of cross appeal [Life v. County of Los Angeles (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1287, 1298, 267 Cal. Rptr. 557] . In addition, the rule applies to any appeal filed after the first appeal, whether protective or independent [The Termo Company v. Luther (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 394, 402-403, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 687]. However, a notice of appeal that is not filed timely does not extend the time for filing a cross-appeal [Branner v. Regents of University of California (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1043, 1050, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 690].

If an appellant timely appeals from an order granting a motion for new trial, an order granting--within 150 days after entry of judgment--a motion to vacate the judgment, or a JNOV, the time for any other party to appeal from the original judgment or from an order denying a JNOV motion is extended until 20 days after the clerk mails notification of the first appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(f)(2); see Richter v. Aetna Life Ins. & Annuity Co. (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1143, 1145, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 737 (applying rule effective January 1, 2002); Montgomery Ward & Company, Inc. v. Imperial Cas. & Indem. Co. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 356, 371, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44 ; for additional discussion relating to protective cross appeals, see §§ 42.11[2][a][iii] and 42.12[4A]].

For discussion of the application of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(f)(2) to protective cross appeals in an appeal from a JNOV, as well as to protective cross appeals in an appeal from an order granting a new trial or vacating a judgment, see § 42.12[4A].

§ 42.16A Calculation of Time Requirements in Doubtful Case to Be Resolved in Favor of Right to Appeal

Most commonly the applicable deadline for filing a notice of appeal is one of two or more periods, the longer of which typically applies in the absence of some event that triggers the shorter period. For example, the general deadline is a shorter period, of 60 days following service of notice of entry of judgment, or, in the event that such service does not occur (at least within 120 days after entry of judgment), a longer period of 180 days following entry of judgment [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104, discussed in § 42.13; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108 and discussion in §§ 42.14 -42.16].

When a notice of appeal is not timely filed under the shorter of two or more periods, but is timely filed under the longer period, an appellant may successfully argue that the appeal is timely when the records suggests, but does not definitively establish, that the shorter period applies. In such cases, when it is doubtful the appellant has met the applicable time requirement, but evidence on the matter is not definitive, courts will adhere to the policy of according the right to appeal when this can be done without doing violence to the applicable rules [Montgomery Ward & Company, Inc. v. Imperial Cas. & Indem. Co. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 356, 372-373, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44] . Thus for example, one court of appeal held a cross appeal was timely pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104 when it was filed within 180 days after entry of judgment, and when, although it appeared "more likely than not" that the shorter period applied, there was no "definitive evidence in the record" that the shorter rather than the longer period governed [Montgomery Ward & Company, Inc. v. Imperial Cas. & Indem. Co. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 356, 372-373, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44] .

§ 42.17 Filing Deadlines Are Jurisdictional and May Not Be Extended

[1] Time for Filing Notice of Appeal Mandatory and Jurisdictional

The time requirements are mandatory and appellate courts are without jurisdiction to consider late appeals [Van Beurden Ins. Services, Inc. v. Customized Worldwide Weather Ins. Agency, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 51, 56, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 166, 931 P.2d 344 (once filing deadline expires, appellate court has no power to entertain appeal); Estate of Hanley (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 120, 122, 142 P.2d 423] . The deadlines may not be extended by application of estoppel principles [see Hollister Convalescent Hospital, Inc. v. Rico (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 660, 668, 125 Cal. Rptr. 757, 542 P.2d 1349 ; see also Stuart Whitman, Inc. v. Cataldo (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1109, 1114, 226 Cal. Rptr. 42] .

Thus, an appeal is subject to dismissal when the notice of appeal has not been timely filed [see Silverbrand v. County of Los Angeles (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 106, 120-121, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 595, 205 P.3d 1037 (under prison-delivery rule, notice of appeal still must be filed within jurisdictional time period, but filing constructively occurs when prisoner delivers notice to prison authorities for forwarding to court clerk); Hollister Convalescent Hospital, Inc. v. Rico (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 660, 670, 125 Cal. Rptr. 757, 542 P.2d 1349 ; Guillemin v. Stein (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 156, 161, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 65 (immaterial that trial court later confirmed sanctions award in postjudgment order from which there was timely appeal)]. For discussion and forms relating to a motion in the court of appeal to dismiss an appeal, see Ch. 48, Appeal: Abandonment, Dismissal, and Stipulated Reversal .

PRACTICE TIP:

Timely Filing Rendered Untimely by Improper Failure to File Notice of Appeal. In the event a notice of appeal is tendered to the clerk before the time for filing notice of appeal expires, but the clerk improperly fails to file or rejects the notice, the notice, though tendered to the clerk again after the deadline for filing notice of appeal has expired, will be deemed filed when it was first tendered [Rapp v. Golden Eagle Insurance Co. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1167, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126] . The court's opinion in Rapp involved an appellant who tendered to the clerk of the court a notice of appeal but did not include an adequate filing fee, so the clerk rejected the notice. Since the clerk was required to accept the notice of appeal regardless of whether the proper fee was paid, the appellate court concluded the notice of appeal was constructively filed on the date it was initially tendered to the clerk [Rapp v. Golden Eagle Insurance Co. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1167, 1172-1173, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126] . Similarly, in another case, the appellant timely submitted the notice of appeal to the court clerk, but the clerk erroneously believed that she could not file the notice of appeal until the accompanying fee waiver was reviewed and approved by the court. Because the notice of appeal was presented to the trial court for filing within the time prescribed by Rule 8.104, and because there was no lawful basis to refuse to file the notice, the court deemed the notice of appeal timely filed [Lezama-Carino v. Miller (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 55, 57-59, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 671] .

[2] Time Deadlines May Not Be Extended

The time for filing a notice of appeal may not be extended [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.308; see Silverbrand v. County of Los Angeles (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 106, 124-125, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 595, 205 P.3d 1037 (court may not extend time for filing notice of appeal)]. The reviewing court may not, even for good cause, relieve a party from a default occasioned by failure to give timely notice of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.60(d)].

This is an exception to general rules providing for time extensions in certain situations and allowing relief from default for good cause [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.60(b),(d); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 12-13b (computation of time generally)]. Thus, for example, the five-day extension of time provided under Code Civ. Proc. § 1013, for "any act" when a notice in a civil action is served by mail, Express Mail or other overnight delivery method, or facsimile, does not extend the time in which a notice of appeal must be filed [Casado v. Sedgwick, Detert, Moran & Arnold (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1284, 1286, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 719, 720] .

[3] Relief From Untimely Filing in Limited Cases

[a] Relief Based on Fraud of Another Party or Unavoidable Circumstances

Although the timely filing of a notice of appeal is a jurisdictional requirement [see [1], above], courts have permitted relief under certain limited circumstances. For example, when, after a judgment has been rendered against a person, that person is entitled to institute proceedings looking to its reversal or modification and is prevented from doing so by the fraud or duress of the other party until it is too late, or when the person has been prevented from taking an appeal because of circumstances over which he or she has no control, that person is entitled to relief from the judgment. Such relief may be invoked in the unusual case of fraud or hardship without interfering with the rules governing jurisdiction of an appeal [Hollister Convalescent Hosp., Inc. v. Rico (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 660, 675, 125 Cal. Rptr. 757, 542 P.2d 1349] .

[b] Review by Writ Petition in Special Circumstances

Although it is well settled that a party is not entitled to obtain review of an appealable judgment or order by means of a petition for an extraordinary writ when he or she failed to file an appeal from the ruling in a timely manner, such relief has been allowed in very narrow situations, when special circumstances exist constituting an excuse for the failure to employ the remedy of appeal [see Drum v. Superior Court (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 845, 852-853, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 279 ; Mauro B. v. Superior Court (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 949, 954, 281 Cal. Rptr. 507] . Thus, review by writ may be available when the lower court acted in excess of its jurisdiction or when fundamental constitutional rights were violated. The Supreme Court has also permitted a writ to be heard on its merits when uncertainty had previously existed regarding the appealability of the order in question, and several earlier decisions, thereafter overruled, had held that an appeal was not an adequate remedy in that type of case [see Mauro B. v. Superior Court (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 949, 954, 281 Cal. Rptr. 507 (citing cases)].

For additional discussion of limited circumstances under which an appellate courts sometimes treat a defective notice of appeal as a petition for extraordinary relief, see Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview, § 40.12[3]. For discussion and forms relating to the more common types of extraordinary relief, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

[c] Earthquake, Fire, or Other Public Emergency

In the event of earthquake, fire, or other public emergency, the chairperson of the Judicial Council may, notwithstanding the other appellate rules, make any of the following orders [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.66]:

- An order extending by no more than 14 additional days the time to do any act required or permitted under the California Rules of Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.66(a)(1)].

- An order authorizing specified courts to extend by no more than 30 additional days the time to do any act required or permitted under the California Rules of Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.66(a)(2)].

Any such order must specify whether it applies statewide, only to specified courts, only to courts or attorneys within a specified area, or any other specific applicability [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.66(b)]. If the emergency makes it necessary, the chairperson may extend or renew any such order an additional period of up to 14 days in the case of an order under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.66(a)(1), or an additional period of up to 30 days for an order under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.66(a)(2) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.66(c)]. The Chief Justice of California is the Chair of the Judicial Council [Advisory Committee Comment to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.66].

§ 42.18 Effect of Filing Premature Notice of Appeal

A notice of appeal filed before entry of the judgment, but after its rendition, is valid and is deemed to have been filed immediately after entry [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(e); see Wenzoski v. Central Banking System, Inc. (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 539, 541 n.2, 237 Cal. Rptr. 167, 736 P.2d 753 ; see also Mukthar v. Latin American Security Service (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 284, 288, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 563 ; Eckhart v. Genuine Parts Distributors (1997) 53 Cal. App.4th 1340, 1344, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 487] .

A notice of appeal filed before rendition of the judgment, but after the judge has announced his or her intended ruling, may, in the discretion of the reviewing court for good cause, be treated as filed immediately after entry of the judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(e)]. Generally, a reviewing court will liberally construe a premature notice if the respondent is not misled or prejudiced [Boyer v. Jensen (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 62, 69, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 124 (court reviewed premature appeal when judgment actually entered, it was clear which ruling appellant sought to have reviewed, and respondents were not prejudiced); In re Roderick U. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1543, 1547-1548, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 555 ; but see the Practice Tips in § 42.11[2][d] and [4]; see also Practice Tip in § 42.12[2][b]]. However, a notice of appeal filed before the judge has announced his or her intended ruling is ineffective and the appeal must be dismissed [First American Title Company v. Mirzaian (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 956, 961, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 206 (dismissing appeal filed after clerk entered default but before default judgment was entered)].

§ 42.19 Fees Required at Time of Filing Notice of Appeal

[1] Filing Fee

[a] Filing Fee Generally Required at Time of Filing

A party filing a notice of appeal must simultaneously deliver to the superior court clerk the aggregate $655 filing fee specified by Gov. Code § 68926 (requires $485) and Gov. Code § 68926.1(b) (requires additional $170 for deposit in appellate court trust fund) [Gov. Code §§ 68926, 68926.1(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(b)(1)]. The fee payment must be accompanied by the deposit required under Gov. Code § 68926.1 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(c); see [2], below].

The fee should be paid in the form of a check or money order payable to the clerk of the court of appeal. If the fee is delivered in cash, the clerk of the superior court is required to provide a receipt [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(c)].

[b] Dismissal for Nonpayment of Filing Fees

If the filing fee is not paid simultaneously with filing the notice of appeal, the notice of appeal will be accepted for filing, but the acceptance will be subject to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(c) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(b)(3)]. Under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(c)(2), if the reviewing court receives a notification of a filing of a notice of appeal (discussed in § 42.21), and the notification is not accompanied by the filing fee, by the superior court clerk's certificate that the fee has been paid, or by a copy of an order excusing payment of the fee, or if a check given in payment of the filing fee is returned dishonored, the clerk of the reviewing court promptly notifies the appellant in writing that the appeal will be dismissed unless, within 15 days after mailing of the notice, appellant either tenders the fee or shows good cause why the fee should be excused [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(c); see Rapp v. Golden Eagle Ins. Co. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1167, 1172-1173, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126 (denied motion to dismiss appeal as untimely because appellant, after paying an insufficient filing fee, tendered proper fee amount within the designated time period)].

If adequate excuse for nonpayment is not shown within that time, the appeal may be dismissed, but the court may vacate the dismissal for good cause [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(c)(3)]. For further discussion of dismissal generally, see Ch. 48, Appeal: Abandonment, Dismissal, and Stipulated Reversal .

In the First Appellate District, the clerk is directed by local rule not to accept a notice of appeal in civil cases if it is not accompanied by the statutory fee, by an in forma pauperis order excusing the payment, or by an application for in forma pauperis order, unless the notice is tendered on the last day for timely filing. If the notice is tendered on the last day, Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(c)(3) applies, discussed above [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Rule 1].

For discussion of waiver of the filing fee when proceeding in forma pauperis, see [c], below.

[c] Waiver of Fees

If the appellant is indigent, payment of the filing fee may be excused on the same basis as payment of a filing fee in the trial court is excused [Gov. Code § 68634.5; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.26; see In re Adrian O. (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 631, 634, 202 Cal. Rptr. 287 (recovery of filing fee, paid by appellant in propria persona, as permitted on later showing of indigence under court's inherent power to waive payment for good cause)]. For additional discussion of relief from this and other fees on appeal, when seeking a fee waiver, see Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview, § 40.13[1][d]. For discussion and forms for seeking a fee waiver generally, under Gov. Code §§ 68630-68641 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.26, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.110 et seq.

[2] Deposit for Preparation of Clerk's Transcript

On filing the notice of appeal, counsel must also deposit the $100 amount required by Gov. Code § 68926.1 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(b)(2)]. This deposit is to be credited against the amount chargeable for the preparation of the clerk's transcript, or for any other appeal processing or notification, and is forfeited if the appeal is abandoned or dismissed prior to the filing of the record in the appellate court [Gov. Code § 68926.1]. The clerk's transcript fee must be paid even if the appellant elects to proceed with an appendix in lieu of the clerk's transcript, and is nonrefundable even if the appellant later elects to proceed without a clerk's transcript [see Gov. Code § 68926.1; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(b)(2)].

The balance of the estimated cost of the clerk's transcript is due, subsequently, within 10 days of receipt of the clerk's estimate of charges [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(c)(3)].

These fees, like the filing fee, may be waived [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.100(b)(1), 8.26, and discussion in [1][c], above].

For a further discussion of the fees required for preparation of clerk's transcript, see Ch. 44, Appeal: Preparing and Filing the Record, § 44.32.

§ 42.20 Combining Notice of Appeal With Other Documents

Appellant may choose to combine a notice of appeal in a single document with one or more notices designating matters to be prepared for the record on appeal, including a notice designating the reporter's transcript under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a), a notice designating the clerk's transcript under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(a), or a notice of election to proceed with an appendix in lieu of clerk's transcript under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(a) [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(a)(2)].

Combining a notice of appeal with notices concerning preparation and designation of the record offers the obvious advantage of avoiding multiple filings in the superior court. Some forethought, however, must be given to the notices concerning the record, since counsel must determine what items to request for inclusion in the reporter's and clerk's transcripts. This may be difficult to do when there is insufficient time for preparation of the designations due to an impending and unchangeable deadline for filing the notice of appeal [see § 42.17]. In addition, if the notice of appeal is combined with the notice designating reporter's transcript, an additional deposit of estimated fees for that transcript must be filed at that time [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(b); see also discussion in Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview, § 40.13[1][d] (regarding nonwaiver of this fee even when proceeding in forma pauperis)].

For further discussion of the notices to designate clerk's and reporter's transcripts, considerations in preparing such designations, and separate forms of designation, see generally Ch. 44, Preparing and Filing the Record . For forms combining a notice of appeal with designation notices, see § 42.90.

§ 42.21 Notification by Superior Court Clerk After Filing of Notice of Appeal

After appellant files the notice of appeal, the superior court clerk mails a notification of the filing of the notice of appeal to the attorney of record for each party other than the appellant, to any unrepresented party, and to the reviewing court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(e)(1)]. The notification shows the date it was mailed and states the number and title of the case and the date the notice of appeal was filed. If the information is available, the notification also includes [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(e)(1)]:

> (1) the name, address, telephone number, and California State Bar number of each attorney of record in the case;
> (2) the name of the party each attorney represented in the superior court; and
> (3) the name, address, and telephone number of any unrepresented party.

This mailing is a sufficient performance of the clerk's duty, notwithstanding the death of a party or the death, discharge, suspension, disbarment, or disqualification of a party's attorney before the giving of the notification [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(e)(4)]. The clerk's failure to give such notification does not affect the validity of the appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(d)(6)].

With the notification of appeal, the superior court clerk sends to the reviewing court the filing fee or an application for, or order granting, a waiver of that fee [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(e)(5)].

The notifications given to the parties and the appellate court clerk may take the form of a copy of the notice of appeal, so long as the required information appears on the copy or is added by the clerk of the superior court [Cal. Rules of Ct.,

Rule 8.100(e)(3)].

§ 42.21A Civil Case Information Statement

After receiving notice of the filing of a notice of appeal under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(e)(1), the reviewing court clerk must promptly mail the appellant a copy of the Civil Case Information Statement (form APP-004) together with a notice that the statement must be filed within 10 days [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(g)(1); for a form, see § 42.72].

The appellant must serve and file a completed Civil Case Information Statement, attaching a copy of the judgment or appealed order which shows the date it was entered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(g)(2)]. If the appellant fails to file the Civil Case Information Statement within 10 days, the reviewing court clerk must send the appellant notice that the appellant must file it within 15 days after the clerk's notice is mailed and that if the appellant fails to comply the court may either impose monetary sanctions or dismiss the appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(g)(3)].

§ 42.22 Docketing Statements Required by Some Courts of Appeal

Some districts of the court of appeal require, by local rule, that the appellant file a docketing statement in the court of appeal within 10 days after the filing of the notice of appeal with the superior court clerk [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Rule 2(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 4th App. Dist., Rule 9(b) (also requiring that statement be accompanied with proof of service on all parties to the appeal)]. However, effective January 1, 2003, the Judicial Council adopted a single form for statewide use to simplify and make more uniform the practice of filing civil appeals and facilitate an early determination of appealability [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(g); § 42.72].

§ 42.23 Consolidation of Multiple Appeals

Appeals are frequently consolidated when they consist of appeals by several parties from the same judgment or parts of the same judgment, or when there is one or more cross appeal under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(f) [see § 42.16].

When several parties appeal from the same judgment or order or some part of that judgment (or when there is a cross appeal), the superior court clerk prepares and files a single record [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.147(a)].

Cross appeals are routinely consolidated [see Ch. 44, Appeal: Preparing and Filing the Record, § 44.70 et seq.]. Cases consolidated for trial are also commonly consolidated for appeal [Safeway Stores, Inc. v. City of Burlingame (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 637, 639, 339 P.2d 933] . The parties should always check with the appellate clerk to verify that routine consolidations are accomplished.

In other circumstances, a party may move or the parties may stipulate to consolidate appeals although even a stipulation is subject to approval by the appellate court. The appellate court may consolidate appeals on its own motion even if there is no motion or stipulation [see California for Population Stabilitization v. Hewlett-Packard (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 273, 279, 279 n.1, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 621 ; Sharick v. Galloway (1936) 12 Cal. App. 2d 733, 738, 55 P.2d 1196] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Transfer for Purposes of Consolidation. The appellate court is without authority to consolidate cases unless both appeals are pending in the same appellate district and division [see Davis v. Kittle Mfg. Co. (1933) 133 Cal. App. 599, 601, 24 P.2d 550] .

If appeals arising from the same trial court proceedings are pending within the same district, the administrative presiding justice may transfer them all to the same division for this purpose [see Cal.

Rules of Ct., Rules 10.1000(b), and discussion in Ch. 51, Appeal: Hearing and Decision, § 51.11[4]]. If such transfer is not made early in the appeal, a party should inform the presiding justice by letter or stipulation of related cases, so that he or she may transfer them to the same division for consolidation.

If proceedings are in different districts, the Supreme Court, on petition, may transfer causes to the same district and division for purposes of consolidation [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 10.1000(a), and discussion in Ch. 54, Appeal: California Supreme Court Review, § 54.11[3]]. A party may sometimes avoid this petition process by informing the court of appeal justices, by letter or stipulation, of related cases in another district, and the justices may themselves request that the Chief Justice transfer all the related causes to the same division.

Any showing in opposition to a motion to consolidate appeals must be served and filed within 10 days after service of the motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.10, 8.54(a)].

The grant or denial of a motion to consolidate is entirely within the discretion of the reviewing court [Sampson v. Sapoznik (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 607, 609, 256 P.2d 346 ; Silver v. Bank of America (1941) 43 Cal. App. 2d 835, 838, 111 P.2d 666] . Consolidation of separate appeals in the same action is proper when no prejudice will result [General Elec. Co. v. Fed. etc. Distrib. Co. (1954) 122 Cal. App. 2d 509, 511, 265 P.2d 19] . A motion to consolidate appeals involves factual questions as to whether questions presented by the appeals are related and whether the appeals will be expedited by consolidation; therefore, each motion is disposed of on its own merits [Sampson v. Sapoznik (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 607, 609, 256 P.2d 346] . Motions may be disposed of after opposition or other response has been filed or the time for filing opposition has expired [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.54].

For forms of stipulation and motion for consolidation of appeals, see*§ 42.100*.

For a stipulation that actions be consolidated for trial, see Ch. 125, Consolidation, Severance and Coordination of Actions . For forms of stipulations generally, see Ch. 533, Stipulations .

For further discussion and forms relating to preparation of the record in a consolidated appeal, see Ch. 44, Appeal: Preparing and Filing the Record, §§ 44.70, 44.270. For discussion and forms relating to motions to consolidate appeals, see Ch. 45, Appeal: Motion Procedure, §§ 45.21, 45.71.

§ 42.24 Special Notice Requirements in Some Appeals

Appellant's counsel should be aware that in some special proceedings there are special notice requirements in addition to those relating to the notice of appeal. Counsel should research and comply with such requirements when appealing from a statutory cause of action that may carry such additional notice requirements. For example, in a proceeding in an appellate court involving the violation or construction of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq., each person filing any brief or petition with the court must serve a copy of that brief or petition on the Attorney General and on the district attorney of the county in which the proceeding was originally filed. The brief must be served within three days after filing the brief with the court, subject to extension for good cause by the presiding justice or Chief Justice [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17209; see also Soldate v. Fidelity Nat'l Fin., Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1069, 1075-1076, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 404 (cautioning that failure to comply with Bus. & Prof. Code § 17209, if it applies, will preclude appellate relief in the appropriate case)]. For further discussion and forms relating to causes of action under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq., see Ch. 565, Unfair Competition].

§ 42.35 Decisions

[1] Notice of Appeal Construed Liberally in Favor of Sufficiency

Court treated notice of appeal from unappealable order denying new trial as appeal from underlying judgment because it was clear appellant intended to appeal from judgment and respondent would not be prejudiced. Walker v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 15, 18, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 490, 104 P.3d 844

Notice of appeal contained in request for transcript held to be sufficient and effective. Magruder v. City of Redwood (1928) 203 Cal. 665, 675, 265 P. 806 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 953a; now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(a)(2) (permitting notice of appeal and notice designating record to be combined))

Notice of appeal is to be construed liberally to preserve appellant's right of review unless it appears that respondent has been misled by any misdescription or ambiguity in notice. Kellett v. Marvel (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 464, 471, 58 P.2d 649 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 940; now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(a)(2)); Haydel v. Morton (1934) 3 Cal. App. 2d 364, 365, 39 P.2d 454

Absence of prejudice, and efficacy of any acts done to give notice to adverse parties that appeal has been taken, are permitted to be considered in determining whether notice of appeal is sufficient. Kellett v. Marvel (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 464, 472-473, 58 P.2d 649 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 940; now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(a)(2))

Notices of appeal are to be liberally construed so as to protect the right of appeal if it is reasonably clear what appellant was trying to appeal from, and where the respondent could not possibly have been misled or prejudiced. Etheridge v. Reins International California, Inc. (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 908, 913 n.7, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 816

Court held that notice of appeal from motion for reconsideration of attorneys' fees ruling was notice of appeal of attorneys' fees ruling. Johnston v. Corrigan (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 553, 555-556, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 657

Notice of appeal is liberally construed to permit review on the merits. Collins v. Hemet Valley Hospital Dist. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 922, 927, 231 Cal. Rptr. 92

Notice of appeal sufficient when intent to appeal may be ascertained from notice designating record. Margott v. Gem Properties, Inc. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 849, 852-853 n.1, 111 Cal. Rptr. 1 (see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(a)(2) (permitting notice of appeal and notice designating record to be combined))

[2] Notice of Appeal Sufficient Despite Minor Defect When It Is Clear That Appeal Is Sought From Particular Judgment or Order

Notices of appeal are to be liberally construed so as to protect the right of appeal only if it is reasonably clear what appellant was trying to appeal from. Russell v. Foglio (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 653, 660-661, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 87

Notice of appeal sufficient even though it stated wrong appellate court. First American Title Company v. Mirzaian (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 956, 959, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 206

Notice of appeal is sufficient, even though case number is incorrect, when it is clear what order the appeal is from. D'Avola v. Anderson (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 358, 361-362, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 689

Reviewing court is permitted to construe notice of appeal to refer to proper order when, despite minor technical deficiencies, notice in fact gave timely and adequate notice of matter referred for appellate review. Conservatorship of Starr (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1390, 1393-1394, 264 Cal. Rptr. 80 ; see Herrscher v. Herrscher (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 300, 304, 259 P.2d 901

[3] Notice of Appeal Not Sufficient When It Specifies Nonappealable Judgment or Order or Clearly Seeks Remedy Other Than Appeal

Notice of appeal identifying summary judgment did not constitute notice of appeal of demurrer as to different defendant. Bosetti v. U.S. Life Insurance Company (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1208, 1223-1225, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 744

Even construing notice of appeal liberally did not allow court to consider specifically excluded judgment. Morton v. Wagner (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 963, 967, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 818

If an award of attorney's fees is subject to court discretion, a later order awarding attorney's fees is not subsumed in the earlier judgment; therefore, a notice of appeal from the judgment does not preserve a challenge to the award of attorney's fees. Colony Hill v. Ghamaty (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1408, 1413-1415, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 798

Notice of appeal is defective when it seeks to appeal court clerk's entry of default, rather than default judgment. First American Title Company v. Mirzaian (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 956, 960, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 206

Although liberal construction of notice of appeal is required under former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1(a)(2) (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(a)(2)), when party seeks new trial and unequivocally requests that error in judgment be corrected by trial court, such motion for new trial may not be treated as notice of appeal even though remedy of appeal is thereby lost. In re Issac J. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 525, 535, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 65

Notice of appeal is defective when it specifies only findings and conclusions of trial court rather than appealable judgment. Gosney v. State of California (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 921, 927-928, 89 Cal. Rptr. 390

[4] Specification of Nonappealable Judgment Treated as Specification of Appealable Order

If notice of appeal specifies that an appeal is taken from order denying new trial, which is not appealable order, an appellate court should construe notice to be appeal from underlying judgment if it is reasonably clear appellant intended to appeal from judgment and respondent would not be misled or prejudiced. Walker v. Los Angeles County Metro. Transp. Auth. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 15, 22, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 490, 104 P.3d 844

Because plaintiff filed premature notice of appeal from nonappealable minute order and signed judgment of dismissal was entered four weeks later, appellate court treated notice of appeal as having been filed immediately after entry of judgment. Miranda v. 21st Century Ins. Co. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 913, 919, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 159

Incorrectly framed notice of appeal construed to refer to correct appealable order when intent of appellant was clear and it was manifest that respondent suffered no prejudice. Baldwin Park Redevelopment Agency v. Irving (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 428, 433, 202 Cal. Rptr. 792

Courts of appeal exercising discretion to treat notice of appeal that specified nonappealable minute order is sufficient under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1(a), when appealable order was prepared and signed by court subsequent to minute order. Estate of Coburn (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 368, 371, 97 Cal. Rptr. 597 ; Hopper v. Allen (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 797, 798, 72 Cal. Rptr. 435 ; but see Modica v. Merin (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1072, 1074, 285 Cal. Rptr. 673

[5] Effect of Specification of Portion of Judgment

Appeal from portion of judgment brings only that portion up for review which has been specified in the notice of appeal. Glassco v. El Sereno Country Club, Inc. (1932) 217 Cal. 90, 92, 17 P.2d 703 ; Calhoun v. Vallejo City Unified School Dist. (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 39, 42, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 337

[6] Notice of Appeal Signed by Attorney

Notice of appeal signed by attorney and filed without the client's authorization is ineffectual because attorney cannot appeal without client's consent. Guardianship of Gilman (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 862, 864, 147 P.2d 530 ; In re Alma B. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1037, 1043, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 592

Notice of appeal signed by appellant's attorney need not be signed by attorney of record. Bell v. Hummel (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1014, 186 Cal. Rptr. 688

[7] Filing Fees and Deposit Accompanying Notice of Appeal

Clerk must file timely notice of appeal and thereafter issue default notice when notice not accompanied by proper filing fees and deposits. Rapp v. Golden Eagle Ins. Co. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1167, 1172-1173, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126 (see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(c))

Tender of proper filing fee within designated statutory time period, after having failed to do so initially when filing of notice of appeal, is sufficient grounds to accept notice of appeal. Rapp v. Golden Eagle Ins. Co. (1994) 24 Cal. App.4th 1167, 1172-1173, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126

[8] Time to File Notice of Appeal

[a] General Time Deadlines Mandatory

Timely filing of notice of appeal is mandatory and jurisdictional. Van Beurden Ins. Services, Inc. v. Customized Worldwide Weather Ins. Agency, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 51, 56, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 166, 931 P.2d 344 ; Estate of Hanley (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 120, 122, 142 P.2d 423 ; Thompson, Curtis, Lawson & Parrish v. Thorne (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 797, 803, 98 Cal. Rptr. 753 ; Nu-Way Associates, Inc. v. Keefe (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 926, 928, 93 Cal. Rptr. 614 ; Kapelus v. United Title Guaranty Co. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 648, 651, 93 Cal. Rptr. 278 (notice of cross appeal)

Notice of appeal is untimely when filed 61 days after date notice of entry of judgment served. Casado v. Sedgwick, Detert, Moran & Arnold (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1284, 1286, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 719

Time limits under former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 63(d) (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1005(d)) (certification to court of appeal by superior court for transfer of appeal from appellate department of superior court to court of appeal), former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 107 (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.708) (finality of superior court appellate division judgment), are jurisdictional. Gersten Companies v. Deloney (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1119, 1125 n.5, 261 Cal. Rptr. 431 (see generally Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases)

Notice of appeal is untimely if it was not filed within 60 days after notice of entry of judgment; extensions of time periods if service is made by mail do not apply to time deadlines for filing notice of appeal. Chase v. Glynn (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 29, 31, 110 Cal. Rptr. 566 ; Casado v. Sedgwick, Detert, Moran & Arnold (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1284, 1286, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 719, 720

[b] Calculation and Running of General Deadlines

Documents mailed by the clerk do not trigger the 60-day period for filing a notice of appeal unless the documents strictly comply with California Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a). Alan v. American Honda Motor Co., Inc. (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 894, 902-903, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 534, 152 P.3d 1109

Minute order not entitled "Notice of Entry" of judgment or order does not trigger 60-day period to appeal. Bi-Coastal Payroll Services, Inc. v. California Insurance Guarantee Association (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 579, 585-588, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 562

The clerk must mail the notice of entry to trigger the time to appeal under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a)(1), whereas a party may e-mail the notice of entry to trigger the time to appeal under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a)(2). Insyst, Ltd. v. Applied Materials, Inc. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 1129, 1135-1140, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 808

Noncompliance with the statutory notice requirements for entry of judgment does not render the judgment void; when court clerk and party fail to serve notice of entry of judgment, sole consequence is that 180-day period for filing notice of appeal applies. Kimball Avenue v. Franco (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1224, 1228-1229, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 628

Time for filing notice of appeal runs from the clerk's mailing of either a document entitled "Notice of Entry" of judgment or a file-stamped copy of the judgment, showing the date either was mailed. Russell v. Foglio (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 653, 659-660, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 87

Notice of entry of judgment sent to only one of a party's two attorneys constitutes legal notice and starts the time running to file a notice of appeal. Adaimy v. Ruhl (2008)160 Cal. App. 4th 583, 586-587, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 926

A document must literally be entitled "Notice of Entry" in order to start the appeal clock running. Sunset Millennium

Associates, LLC v. Le Songe, LLC (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 256, 259-260, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 273

File-stamped copy of the judgment may be used in place of the document entitled "notice of entry" to start the time running for appeal under former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2(a) (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a)). Imuta v. Nakano (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1570, 1579 n.10, 285 Cal. Rptr. 681 (any notice in writing that conveys to losing party that judgment has been entered is sufficient in California to start time running for appeal); see also Filipescu v. California Housing Finance Agency (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 738, 741-742, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 736

"Notice of entry" of judgment need not give notice of when an appealable judgment or order was entered, but only of when it was filed. Estate of Crabtree (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1119, 1123, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 224 ; see also Filipescu v. California Housing Finance Agency (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 738, 741, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 736

Service to attorney's office during normal business hours of endorsed filed copy of judgment, the second page of which noted entry of judgment, though not in accordance with procedure of Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5, is sufficient to trigger 60-day period for filing notice of appeal. National Advertising Co. v. City of Rohnert Park (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 614, 618-619, 206 Cal. Rptr. 696

Under former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2(a) (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a)), notice of appeal filed within 180 days of entry of judgment is timely if record indicated that neither clerk nor opposing party served notice of entry of judgment. Baldwin Park Redevelopment Agency v. Irving (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 428, 433, 202 Cal. Rptr. 792

Sixty-day period of former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2(a) (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a)), commences when clerk entered judgment in minutes and mailed notice of entry of judgment to parties to submitted action, rather than later date when party served notice of entry of final order on opposing party. Pacific City Bank v. Los Caballeros Racquet & Sports Club, Ltd. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 223, 227, 195 Cal. Rptr. 776

Notice of appeal is timely filed when presented to and received by any deputy clerk of the office of the clerk of superior court for purposes of filing. Pacific Southwest Airlines v. Dowty-Rotol, Ltd. (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 491, 493, 193 Cal. Rptr. 25

If clerk mails notice of entry of judgment in improperly addressed envelope, the notice is considered to have not been mailed. Triumph Precision Products, Inc. v. Insurance Co. of North America (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 362, 364-365, 154 Cal. Rptr. 120 (notice of appeal in municipal court held to be timely under former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 122(a) (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.751(a)), if first notice of entry of new trial order was sent in envelope without designation of law firm name and was not received; reported here for arguable application to former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2(a) (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a)) by analogy; see Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases , for discussion of appeals in limited civil cases to the appellate division of the superior court)

[c] Extension for Post-Judgment Orders

If a party files a valid motion for new trial, and the trial court issues a timely order denying that motion, but no one serves the order or notice of entry of that order, then the applicable deadline for filing the notice of appeal from the judgment is 180 days after entry of judgment, pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(b)(1)(C). Anderson v. Chikovani (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1400-1401, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 553

Time for appealing order granting a new trial is not extended for an order granting a new trial following an order granting summary judgment. Ricketts v. McCormack (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1324, 1337, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 817

To extend the time to file a notice of appeal, a motion for reconsideration must comply with all procedural requirements. Branner v. Regents of University of California (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1043, 1047-1048, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 690

Motion to vacate judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 663 extended time to appeal only if motion was valid. Payne v. Rader (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1569, 1574, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 174

Extension of time to appeal a judgment when party serves and files a timely motion for relief from judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). Matera v. McLeod (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 44, 56-57, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 331

Notice of appeal filed within 30 days of notice of ruling on motion for new trial was timely insofar as 11 U.S.C. § 108(c)(2) provided 30-day extension of time for trial court to rule on motion for new trial if deadline contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 660 passed while automatic stay was in effect. ECC Construction, Inc. v. Oak Park Calabasas Homeowners Association (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1031, 1037, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 580

Postjudgment motion for reconsideration does not have effect on filing deadline for notice of appeal, since the trial court, after entry of judgment, has no power to rule on a reconsideration motion. Ramon v. Aerospace Corp. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1233, 1238, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 217 ; see also Betz v. Pankow (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 931, 937-938, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841 ; Ten Eyck v. Industrial Forklifts Co. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 540, 545, 265 Cal. Rptr. 29 ; Eddy v. Sharp (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 858, 863 n.3, 245 Cal. Rptr. 211 ; Magallanes v. Superior Court (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 878, 882, 213 Cal. Rptr. 547

Notice of appeal is timely filed within 180-day period, and former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3 (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108), did not require appellant to file notice of appeal within 30 days of denial of motion for new trial and judgment, notwithstanding verdict, if, under former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2 (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104), there was no evidence that entry of judgment was mailed by clerk or served on appellant. Carpiaux v. Peralta Community College Dist. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1220, 1223, 264 Cal. Rptr. 208

Code Civ. Proc. § 660, governing denial of motion for new trial by operation of law and limiting extension of time within which to file notice of appeal, is also applicable to extension resulting from motion for reconsideration. Miller v. United Services Automobile Assn. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 222, 226, 261 Cal. Rptr. 515

Notice of appeal filed later than 30 days after denial of motion for new trial was untimely, even though trial court erroneously heard and denied second motion for new trial and notice of appeal was filed within 30 days of second denial. Wenzoski v. Central Banking System, Inc. (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 539, 542, 237 Cal. Rptr. 167, 736 P.2d 753

Motion for reconsideration has same effect as motion for new trial or motion to vacate for purposes of former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3 (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108); timely filing of motion to reconsider operates to extend time for filing of notice of appeal from original ruling until 30 days after entry of order denying reconsideration. Tunis v. Barrow (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1075, 229 Cal. Rptr. 389

Notice of intention to file motion for new trial that is filed after 15-day period provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 659 is invalid and does not extend time for filing notice of appeal from judgment pursuant to former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3(a) (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(b)). In re Marriage of Patscheck (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 800, 802, 225 Cal. Rptr. 787

Extension of time for filing notice of appeal under former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3(a),(b) (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(b),(c)), runs from date of entry of order denying motion for new trial or motion to vacate, and not from date of service of notice of entry of that order. City of Long Beach v. Crocker National Bank (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1118, 225 Cal. Rptr. 227

Defendant's appeal dismissed because notice of appeal was filed too late, when plaintiff served notice of motion to vacate judgment and later withdrew it, since withdrawal constituted denial of motion for purposes of former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3(b) (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(c)), which provides that, after denial of motion to vacate, party has 30 days to file notice of appeal. Rolen v. Rhine (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 23, 26, 172 Cal. Rptr. 456 ; see also O'Donnell v. Municipal Court (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 714, 717, 255 Cal. Rptr. 31 (withdrawal of motions for new trial and to vacate judgment is equivalent to denial of motions for purposes of timeliness of notice of appeal from municipal court judgment under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.752(a),(b); reported here for arguable application to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(b),(c) by analogy; see Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases , for further discussion of appeals of limited civil cases to the appellate division of the superior court)

Motion to vacate judgment on merits under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 extends time within which to file notice of appeal until 30 days after entry of order denying motion under former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3(b) (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(c)). Duncan v. Sunset Agricultural Minerals (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 489, 491-492, 78 Cal. Rptr. 339 (rejecting contention that Code Civ. Proc. § 473 applies only to default judgments and that motion was invalid for not having been made under Code Civ. Proc. § 663)

Motion for reconsideration treated as motion for new trial, so that time to file notice of appeal was extended for 30 days under former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3 (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108), on denial of motion. Dockter v. City of Santa Ana (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 69, 74-75, 67 Cal. Rptr. 686

[d] Effect of Modification of Judgment

Amended judgment that merely corrects clerical error and does not involve the exercise of judicial discretion does not supersede original judgment to operate as a new judgment from which a new appeal may be taken. Mulder v. Mendo Wood Products, Inc. (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 619, 635, 37 Cal. Rptr. 479

Judgment that has been substantially modified by trial court supersedes original judgment, causing new filing deadline to begin to run. Neff v. Ernst (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 628, 634, 311 P.2d 849

[e] Effect of Premature Filing of Notice of Appeal

Notice of appeal filed before entry of judgment, but after its rendition, was valid and deemed to have been filed immediately after entry. Wenzoski v Central Banking System, Inc. (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 539, 541 n.2, 237 Cal. Rptr. 167, 736 P.2d 753 ; see also Eckhart v. Genuine Parts Distributors (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 1340, 1344, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 487

Court reviewed premature appeal when judgment actually entered, it was clear which ruling appellant sought to have reviewed, and respondents were not prejudiced. Boyer v. Jensen (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 62, 69, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 124

Because plaintiff filed premature notice of appeal from nonappealable minute order and signed judgment of dismissal was entered four weeks later, appellate court treated notice of appeal as having been filed immediately after entry of judgment. Miranda v. 21st Century Ins. Co. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 919, 920

Appellate court treated notice of appeal from minute order as being from judgment subsequently ordered, pursuant to former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2(d) (now Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(c)) when there was no claim or indication that adverse party was misled or prejudiced and respondent did not raise problem by making a motion to dismiss during the time that the defect could have been cured by the filing of a second and timely notice of appeal from the judgment. American Motorists Ins. Co. v. Cowan (1982) 127 Cal. App. 3d 875, 883, 179 Cal. Rptr. 747

Notice of appeal filed after filing of memorandum decision but before entry of appealable court order, is premature but is to be treated as taken from an appealable order under former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2(d) (now Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(c)). Webb v. Webb (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 259, 262 n.1, 90 Cal. Rptr. 565

[9] Appealable Judgments and Orders

[a] One Final Judgment Rule

Violation of one final judgment rule curable when the trial court's failure to dispose of all causes of action results from inadvertence or mistake rather than an intention to retain the remaining causes of action for trial and the error can be cured by amendment of the judgment. Sullivan v. Delta Air Lines, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 288, 307-308, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 74, 935 P.2d 781

Most orders made in the proceedings leading to final judgment are reviewable on appeal from that judgment. Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 825, n.1, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377 ; Hill v. Long Beach (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1684, 1695, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 125 ; Gudel v. Ellis (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 849, 859

Collateral order is appealable if it is actually collateral and final as to the collateral matter, not if it has the effect of requiring payment of money or the performance of an act. Muller v. Fresno Community Hospital and Medical Center (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 887, 898-905, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 617

Issue of genetic testing was not severable from the general subject matter of the litigation, i.e., to establish whether party was father of children and to obtain an order that he pay child support and furnish health insurance; instead, it was integral to the subject matter and was, accordingly, not appealable as a collateral order. San Joaquin County Department of Child Support Services v. Winn (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 296, 300, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 470

An appeal is allowed if an order is a final judgment against a party in a collateral proceeding growing out of the action. It is not sufficient that the order determine finally for the purposes of further proceedings in the trial court some distinct issue in the case. Mercury Interactive Corporation v. Klein (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 60, 76-77, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88

Ruling as to who decides arbitrability is not appealable final order. Vivid Video, Inc. v. Playboy Entertainment Group, Inc. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 434, 440-443, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 232

Court lacked jurisdiction to hear appeal when, in stipulated dismissal, parties dismissed one cause of action without prejudice. Hoveida v. Scripps Health (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1466, 1468-1469, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 667

If liability of one defendant is intertwined with and dependent on earlier non-final judgment against another defendant, entry of judgment in first defendant's favor is premature and judgment cannot be appealed without violating one-final-judgment rule. C3 Entertainment, Inc. v. Arthur J. Gallagher & Co. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1022, 1025, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 258

If complaint and cross-complaint involving same parties have been filed, there is no final appealable judgment until both are resolved. ECC Construction, Inc. v. Oak Park Calabasas Homeowners Assn. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 994, 1002, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 340

One final judgment rule prevents piecemeal appeals and achieves optimal appellate review allowing appeals only after the entire action is resolved in the trial court. Art Movers, Inc. v. Ni West, Inc. (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 640, 645, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 689

An appeal lies only from a judgment that terminates the proceeding in the lower court by completely disposing of the matter in controversy, unless the judgment in question is made appealable by statute. Garat v. City of Riverside (1991) 2 Cal. App. 4th 259, 275, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 504

A party who is granted a new trial on only one of several issues has a right to appeal from the order when he or she is aggrieved by the limitation of the new trial to a single issue and it is not severable from the other issues. Stegmann v. Holder (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 531, 537, 36 Cal. Rptr. 1

[b] Appealable Judgments and Orders

Order regarding late-identified class members was separately appealable from final judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(2). Bates v. Rubio's Rests. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 1125, 1130-1132, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 206

Issues raised by an appeal from a post-judgment order must be different from those arising from an appeal from the judgment. Doppes v. Bentley Motors, Inc. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1004, 1008, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 797

Under the death knell doctrine, an order denying class certification is appealable. Farwell v. Sunset Mesa Property Owners Association, Inc. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1545, 1547, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 666

Although an informal opinion or decision is not normally an appealable judgment or order, a memorandum of decision may be appealed when signed and filed, and constitutes the trial judge's final judicial determination on the merits. County of San Diego v. Arzaga (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1336, 1344, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 329

Postjudgment order denying sanctions pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 is appealable order. Day v. Collingwood (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1123, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 903

Order denying motion to vacate renewal of judgment is appealable post-judgment order, but renewal of judgment is not. Jonathan Neil & Associates, Inc. v. Jones (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1481, 1487, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 350

Order denying motion to vacate renewal of judgment is appealable post-judgment order. In re Marriage of Wilcox (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 492, 497, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 315

Order denying class certification is appealable; however, trial court ruling supported by substantial evidence will not be disturbed unless trial court used improper criteria or made erroneous legal assumptions. Frieman v. San Rafael Rock Quarry, Inc. (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 29, 34, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 82

Because it leaves no issue for future consideration and terminates the litigation between the parties on the merits of the case, a judgment entered after the sustaining of demurrers without leave to amend is appealable. Richelle L. v. Roman Catholic Archbishop of San Francisco (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 257, 266, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 601

Post-judgment order granting or denying judgment debtor's claim of exemption is appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 703.600. Schwartzman v. Wilshinsky (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 619, 626, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790

Judgment of sanctions against counsel who has been substituted out is appealable. Rail-Transport Employees Ass'n v. Union Pacific Motor Freight (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 469, 475, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713

Post-judgment orders are appealable when they raise issues different from judgment and affect or relate to judgment by staying or enforcing it. Lakin v. Watkins Associated Industries (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 644, 651, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 109, 863 P.2d 179

Order denying a motion to disqualify counsel is appealable. Gregori v. Bank of America (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 291, 300, 254 Cal. Rptr. 853

Order granting partial new trial is appealable. Liodas v. Sahadi (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 278, 285, 137 Cal. Rptr. 635, 562 P.2d 316

Judgment of dismissal as to one defendant in a multiple defendant case is appealable. In re Estate of Gonzalez (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1598, 1601, 269 Cal. Rptr. 68

[c] Nonappealable Judgments and Orders

Statement of decision not treated as appealable when a formal order or judgment follows. Alan v. American Honda Motor Co., Inc. (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 894, 901, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 534, 152 P.3d 1109

An order granting or denying motion for summary judgment is not appealable, but the grant of the motion may be appealed from judgment entered thereon. Sullivan v. Delta Air Lines, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 288, 307, n.10, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 74, 935 P.2d 781

An order granting a mistrial due to a hung jury is not appealable. Sullivan v. Delta Air Lines, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 288, 307, n.11, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 74, 935 P.2d 781

An order overruling a demurrer is not appealable; appeal must be taken from the judgment entered upon such order. San Diego Gas and Elec. Co. v. Superior Court (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 893, 912-913, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 724, 920 P.2d 669

On appeal from appealable order or judgment, reviewing court may review any intermediate ruling, proceeding, order or decision, but it may not review earlier appealable ruling. Alfaro v. Community Housing Improvement System & Planning Assn., Inc. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 263, 277, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 659

Courts are split as to whether an order denying a motion for reconsideration is separately appealable, with most recent cases holding that they are not. Morton v. Wagner (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 963, 968-969, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 818

Order on bifurcated issue is not separately appealable. In re the Marriage of Lafkas (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1429, 1434, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 100

An order sustaining demurrer to class action allegations is appealable to the extent that it prevents further proceedings as a class action. Berry v. American Express Publishing, Inc. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 224, 228, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 91

On an untimely notice of appeal, the appellate court has discretion to treat the appeal as a petition for an extraordinary writ within the appellate court's jurisdiction. Drum v. Superior Court (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 845, 852-853, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 279

Order granting summary judgment is not appealable order; however, when the order is followed by a judgment, the appellate court may deem the premature notice of appeal to have been filed after the entry of judgment. Mukthar v. Latin American Security Service (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 284, 288, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 563

Renewal of judgment is not appealable order. Jonathan Neil & Associates, Inc. v. Jones (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1481, 1487, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 350

Appeal from trial court's denial of motion for new trial not directly appealable, but reviewable on appeal from underlying judgment. Toscano v. Greene Music (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 685, 689 n.1, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 732

Order sustaining demurrer ordinarily not appealable; exception applies in class action if order is tantamount to dismissal of action as to all class members other than plaintiff and if order virtually demolishes action as class action. Alch v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 339, 359-360, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 29

Denial of certification to entire class is appealable order, but in absence of other error, a trial court ruling supported by substantial evidence generally will not be disturbed. Any valid pertinent reason stated will be sufficient to uphold order. Lebrilla v. Farmers Group, Inc. (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 1070, 1075, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d. 25

Order that denies class certification disposes of that action and is appealable final judgment. Prince v. CLS Transportation, Inc. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1320, 1322 n.2, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 725

Order sustaining demurrer not appealable, but order dismissing complaint with prejudice is appealable. City of Morgan Hill v. Bay Area Air Quality Management District (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 861, 867 n.3, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 420

On a purported appeal from a nonappealable order, the appellate court has discretion to treat the appeal as a petition for an extraordinary writ within the appellate court's original jurisdiction. In re Marriage of Ellis (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 400, 404, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 719

An order sustaining a demurrer to one of several causes of action is nonappealable. North American Chemical Co. v. Superior Court (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 764, 773, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 466

An order denying a new trial is not appealable. Zavala v. Arce (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 915, 924, n.7, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 571

An order sustaining a demurrer is not appealable. Forsyth v. Jones (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 776, 780, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 357

An order appointing guardian ad litem is not appealable. In re Marriage of Lloyd (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 216, 219, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 37

An order denying a motion for reconsideration is not appealable. Ramon v. Aerospace Corp. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1233, 1237, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 217 ; Rojes v. Riverside General Hosp. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 1151, 1160, 250 Cal. Rptr. 435

Discovery orders are not appealable, but may be reviewed upon appeal from the final judgment. Marsh v. Mountain Zephyr, Inc. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 289, 299, n.6, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 493

An order denying class certification is not appealable unless it effectively terminates the action. Kennedy v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 799, 807, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 736

An order denying a pretrial motion for dismissal is not appealable. Samuel v. Stevedoring Services of America (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 414, 417, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 420

An order granting motion for partial judgment notwithstanding the verdict is not appealable. Beavers v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 310, 329, 274 Cal. Rptr. 766

An order granting or denying a motion to strike a pleading is not appealable. Barrett v. Stanislaus County Employees

Retirement Assn. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1593, 1601 n.4, 234 Cal. Rptr. 900

An order directing a verdict is not appealable. Hilliard v. A.H. Robins Co. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 374, 384, 196 Cal. Rptr. 117

An order to arbitrate is not appealable. Branham v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 27, 32, 121 Cal. Rptr. 304

[10] Consolidation of Appeals

Reviewing court may consolidate appeals on its own motion. California for Population Stabilitization v. Hewlett-Packard (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 273, 279, 279 n.1, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 621 ; Sharick v. Galloway (1936) 12 Cal. App. 2d 733, 738, 55 P.2d 1196

Reviewing court without authority to consolidate cases unless both appeals pending in same court. Davis v. Kittle Mfg. Co. (1933) 133 Cal. App. 599, 601, 24 P.2d 550

Cases consolidated for trial commonly consolidated for appeal. Safeway Stores, Inc. v. City of Burlingame (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 637, 639, 339 P.2d 933

Grant or denial of motion to consolidate entirely within discretion of reviewing court. Sampson v. Sapoznik (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 607, 609, 256 P.2d 346

Consolidation of separate appeals in same action proper when no prejudice will result. General Elec. Co. v. Fed. etc. Distrib. Co. (1954) 122 Cal. App. 2d 509, 511, 265 P.2d 19

Motion to consolidate appeals involves factual questions as to whether questions presented by appeals are related and whether appeals will be expedited by consolidation; therefore, each motion disposed of on its own merits. Sampson v. Sapoznik (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 607, 609, 256 P.2d 346

5-42 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 42.50

AUTHOR: Milo M. Benningfield Author Jeffery A. Hogge Editorial Consultant Mr. Benningfield is a solo appellate practitioner in San Francisco, California. Mr. Hogge is a staff attorney with the Third Appellate District Court of Appeal. This chapter includes additional contributions and comments from Justice Patti Kitching, Ms. Elizabeth Buckley, and Ms. Barbara Sorem.

§ 42.50 Appellant's Checklist

[1] Preliminary Steps

☐ If considering appeal, determine [see § 42.12, Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview, §§ 40.12, 40.15, and Ch. 41, Appeal: Review Standards and Appellate Rules of Law, § 41.11 et seq.]:

☐ Appealability of judgment or order.

☐ Likelihood of success under the applicable standard of review and other applicable law.

☐ Practical advisability of taking the appeal.

☐ If necessary, request temporary stay of trial court proceedings immediately after pronouncement of the judgment or order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 918; see also Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview, § 40.14[2], and Ch. 43, Appeal: Stay of Proceedings].

[2] Prepare and Serve Notice of Appeal

[a] Preparation of Notice

☐ Address notice to superior court clerk [see § 42.11[1]].

☐ State in notice that an appeal is being taken from a specified appealable judgment or order [see § 42.11[2][a]].

☐ You need not specify particular district or division of the court of appeal to which appeal is taken; appeal is deemed taken to the proper district court of appeal [see § 42.11[2][c]].

☐ Have appellant sign the notice or sign it yourself [see § 42.11[2][b]].

☐ If you sign the notice, ensure your client's authorization to take appeal [see § 42.11[2][b]].

☐ For forms of notice of appeal, see forms in § 42.70 et seq.

[b] Service of Notice and Proof of Service

☐ Prepare the following copies of the notice of appeal:

☐ One original for filing with superior court clerk;

☐ Prepare also proof of service of copy on each adverse party [see below].

☐ One copy for each adverse party.

☐ One copy for endorsement by clerk and filing in office.

☐ Serve a copy of the notice on each adverse party represented by separate counsel [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.100(a), 8.25; see § 42.11[3]; for discussion and forms relating to service of papers generally, see Ch. 518, Service and Summons of Papers].

☐ Attach proof of service to notice on filing [see § 42.11[3]; for discussion and forms relating to proof of service generally, see Ch. 518, Service and Summons of Papers].

☐ If time deadline for filing notice of appeal is imminent, file before serving, and serve the notice on adverse parties as soon as possible [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(a)].

[3] File Notice of Appeal

[a] File Notice With Clerk of Superior Court

☐ File notice with clerk of superior court that rendered judgment or order from which appeal is being taken [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(a); see § 42.11[1]].

[b] General Deadlines for Filing

☐ Meet filing deadline; filing deadlines for notice of appeal are mandatory and jurisdictional and may not be extended [§ 42.17].

☐ Serve and file notice by the earliest of the following dates [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a),(b); see §§ 42.13, 42.17; see also § 42.18]:

☐ 60 days after the date of mailing by the clerk of a document entitled "notice of entry" of judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a)(1)].

☐ 60 days after the date of service of a document entitled "notice of entry" of judgment by any party on the party filing the notice of appeal, or by the party filing the notice of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a)(2)].

☐ 180 days after the date of entry of the judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a)(3)].

☐ See also [4] and [5], below, for special deadlines for specific actions or proceedings.

[c] Filing of Notice With Fee and Deposit

☐ Accompany notice with filing fee of $655, and deposit of $100 for clerk's transcript when filing [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(b); see § 42.19].

☐ Alternatively, apply for an order granting appellant waiver of fee and deposit [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(b)(1), § 42.19].

☐ Submit filing fee in the form of a check or money order made payable to the clerk of the court of appeal [Gov. Code § 68926; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(b)(1)].

☐ Submit deposit for clerk's transcript in the form of a check or money order made payable to the clerk of the superior court [Gov. Code § 68926.1].

☐ Ensure that you receive a receipt from the superior court clerk for the fee (or deposit) if delivered in cash [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(b)(1)].

☐ If you cannot submit the fee and/or deposit with the notice for filing, have the superior court clerk accept the notice for filing without accompanying fee or deposit, subject to later action, including possible dismissal, by the clerk of appellate court under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(b)(3) [see § 42.19].

☐ If you are filing in the First Appellate District, submit notice for filing without the filing fee and deposit or order excusing payment or application for such order only on the last day for timely filing and be sure to comply with the normal provisions of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(b)(3) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Rule 1; see § 42.19].

[4] Filing Deadline in Special Actions

☐ In an action involving an election of periodic payment of judgment by public entity under Gov. Code § 984, file notice of appeal within 90 days after the mailing of notice of entry of judgment by the clerk or after the date of service of written notice of entry of judgment or 180 days after the date of entry of the judgment, whichever is earliest [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(c); § 42.15[1]].

☐ In a validation action under Code Civ. Proc. § 860 et seq., file notice of appeal within 30 days after the notice of entry of the judgment or within 30 days after the entry of the judgment if there is no answering party. [Code Civ. Proc. § 870(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.104(a); § 42.15[2]].

☐ In an action to determine the validity of public bonds and other undertakings, file notice of appeal within 30 days after notice of entry of judgment or 30 days after entry of judgment if there is no answering party [Code Civ. Proc. § 870; 42.15[3]].

[5] Filing Deadline in Specific Post-Judgment Proceedings

[a] Motion for New Trial

☐ File notice of appeal within 30 days after the superior court clerk mails, or a party serves, an order denying the motion or a notice of entry of that order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(b)(1)(A); see Code Civ. Proc. § 660 and discussion in § 42.14[1]].

☐ If motion is not denied by formal order, file notice of appeal within 30 days after denial of motion by operation of law [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(b)(1)(B); see Code Civ. Proc. § 660, and discussion in § 42.14[1]].

☐ In any event, file notice of appeal within 180 days after the date of entry of the judgment, whether or not the motion for new trial has been determined [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(b)(1)(C), and discussion in § 42.14[1]].

[b] Motion to Vacate

☐ File notice of appeal within the earliest of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(c); § 42.14[2]]:

☐ 30 days after the superior court clerk mails, or a party serves, an order denying the motion or a notice of entry of that order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(c)(1)].

☐ 90 days after the first notice of intention to move--or motion--is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(c)(2)].

☐ 180 days after entry of judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(c)(3)].

[c] Motion for JNOV

☐ File a notice of appeal within the earliest of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(d); see discussion in § 42.14[4]]:

☐ 30 days after the superior court clerk mails, or a party serves, an order denying the motion or a notice of entry of that order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(d)(1)(A)].

☐ 30 days after denial of the motion by operation of law [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(d)(1)(B)].

☐ 180 days after entry of judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(d)(1)(C)].

[d] Motion for Reconsideration

☐ File a notice of appeal within the earliest of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(e); see discussion in § 42.14[3]]:

☐ 30 days after the superior court clerk mails, or a party serves, an order denying the motion or a notice of entry of that order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(e)(1)].

☐ 90 days after the first motion to reconsider is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(e)(2)].

☐ 180 days after entry of the appealable order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(e)(3)].

[6] Filing Deadline in Cross Appeal

☐ Once timely notice of appeal has been filed, file notice of cross appeal within the later of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(f)(1); § 42.16]:

☐ 20 days after the superior court clerk mails notification of the filing of the notice of appeal.

☐ The time otherwise prescribed by the applicable extension provisions.

☐ If an appellant timely appeals from an order granting a motion for new trial, an order granting--within 150 days after entry of judgment--a motion to vacate the judgment, or a JNOV, file a notice of appeal from the original judgment or from an order denying a JNOV motion within 20 days after the clerk mails notification of the first appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(f)(2)].

[7] Combining Notice With Notices Designating Record

☐ Combine notice of appeal with notice designating clerk's transcript, reporter's transcript, or both [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(a)(2), § 42.20; see also Ch. 44, Appeal: Preparing and Filing the Record].

☐ If you have not combined the notice of appeal with the notices designating record, file them within 10 days of filing notice of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.121(a)].

☐ Accompany designation notice with deposit of estimated cost of reporter's transcript [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(b)].

☐ Submit deposit of estimated cost of clerk's transcript, over and above the $100 deposit required at the time of filing the notice of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(b)(2)], within 10 days after notification of clerk's estimate [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.122(c), 8.128(b)].

[8] File Civil Case Information Sheet

☐ File Civil Case Information Sheet within 10 days after clerk mails required form [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(g)(2); see discussion in § 42.21A].

☐ Attach copy of judgment or appealed order showing date [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(g)(2)].

§ 42.51 Respondent's Checklist

[1] Check for Defects

☐ Consider moving for dismissal for defects in the notice of appeal that are jurisdictional [see Ch. 48, Appeal: Abandonment, Dismissal, and Stipulated Reversal].

☐ Check notice to determine if it is untimely or specifies an unappealable judgment or order [§§ 42.11[4], 42.17].

[2] Move to Dismiss Appeal Based on Defective Notice

☐ Make prompt motion to dismiss appeal based on notice that is untimely filed or specifies unappealable judgment or order [§§ 42.11[4], 42.17; for discussion and forms of motion to dismiss on these grounds, see Ch. 48, Appeal: Abandonment, Dismissal, and Stipulated Reversal, §§ 48.13[2][a],[b], 48.42, 48.43].

§ 42.70 Notice of Appeal

[1] FORM Notice of Appeal

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	NOTICE OF APPEAL

[To the clerk of the above entitled court:]

NOTICE IS GIVEN that _____ [e.g., defendant] _____ [name] hereby appeals from _____ [specify judgment, appealable order, or portion of judgment] entered on _____ [date].

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]
[Attorney for _____ (party's status, e.g., Defendant and Appellant) _____ (party's name)]

[2] Use of Form

The form set out in [1], above, is a general form of notice of appeal, for use in taking an appeal from a judgment or order, or part of a judgment or order, of the superior court. The notice is served on the other parties, then filed, with proof of service and with the necessary fees (or fee waivers), with the clerk of the superior court that rendered the judgment or order from which the appeal is being taken [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(a),(b), and discussion in §§ 42.11[3], 42.19]. It must be filed within the applicable time limits, generally those set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104 [see discussion in §§ 42.13 -42.15, 42.17].

The notice is sufficient so long as it states that appellant appeals from a specified judgment, appealable order, or portion of a judgment. It need not specify the court to which the appeal is taken and will be deemed taken to the appropriate district of the court of appeal. The notice must be signed by the appealing party or by his or her attorney [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(a)(1), and discussion in § 42.11[2]].

The form includes an optional address to the clerk of the superior court with whom the notice is being filed; if desired, counsel may alternatively address the notice to the superior court. No particular address is required, however, and most notices of appeal simply omit the address.

The notice of appeal may be combined with a notice designating the clerk's transcript, the reporter's transcript, or both [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(a) and discussion in § 42.20]. For forms of combined notices, see*§ 42.90*.

For alternative forms of notice of appeal, for use in particular actions or proceedings or specifying particular types of judgments, see*§ 42.80* et seq. For a form of notice of cross appeal, see*§ 42.71*. For a Judicial Council form Notice of Appeal, see*§ 42.73*.

[To the clerk of the above entitled court:]

NOTICE IS GIVEN that, whereas an appeal has been taken by _____ [opposing or other party, e.g., defendant] _____ [name] from the _____ [describe judgment or order specified in initial notice of appeal] entered on _____ [date], as described in the notice of appeal filed by that party, _____ [party cross appealing, e.g., plaintiff] _____ [name] hereby cross appeals from _____ [specify the judgment or order from which the cross appeal is taken, e.g., the same judgment or order previously appealed, a different portion of the judgment previously appealed, and/or a judgment or order separate than that previously appealed but in the same action or proceeding], which was entered on

_____, [date].

By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
[Attorney for _____ (cross appellant's status, e.g., Defendant and Cross Appellant) _____
(cross appellant's name)]

[2] Use of Form

The form set out in [1], above, is a form of notice of cross appeal, for use in taking an appeal from a judgment or order of the superior court when an appeal has previously been filed by the opposing party or another party in the same action or proceeding. For a Judicial Council form Notice of Cross-Appeal, see*§ 42.73*.

For discussion of judgment and orders that may be specified in a cross appeal, as distinguished from the initial appeal, see*§ 42.11[2][a][iii]*.

Preparation, service, and filing is the same as with an initial notice of appeal, except for the time for filing [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(f), and discussion in §§ 42.11[2][a][i],[3], 42.19]. See*§ 42.70[2]* for comments concerning these generally applicable requirements.

The time deadlines for filing a cross appeal are set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(f) and discussed in § 42.16 [see also discussion in § 42.17].

[2] Use of Form

The form set out in [1], above, is adopted for mandatory use [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.31], and is required by California Rules of Court, Rule 8.100(g). It is intended to simplify and make more uniform the practice of filing civil appeals and to facilitate an early determination of appealability. It is a composite of the forms used by various districts of the Court of Appeal.

On receiving a notice of appeal, the court clerk is required to mail the appellant a copy of the form [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(g)(2)]. Within 10 days after the clerk mails the notice, the appellant must serve and file in the reviewing court the completed form, attaching a copy of the judgment or appealed order that shows the date it was entered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(g)(2)].

If the appellant fails to file the Civil Case Information Statement within 10 days, the reviewing court clerk must send the appellant notice that the appellant must file it within 15 days after the clerk's notice is mailed and that if the appellant fails to comply the court may either impose monetary sanctions or dismiss the appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(g)(3)].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[To the clerk of the above entitled court:]

NOTICE IS GIVEN that _____ [party appealing, e.g., defendant, _____ (name)], appeals from the _____ [describe judgment or order, or portion thereof, appealed from] in the above-captioned consolidated cases entered by the court on _____ [date], in favor of _____ [e.g., plaintiff(s) _____ (name[s]) and against _____ [e.g., defendant _____ (name of party appealing)].

By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
[Attorney for _____ (specify, e.g., Defendant and Appellant) _____ (name)]
[Case No. _____]

[b] Use of Form

The form set out in [a], above, is for use to take an appeal from a judgment in consolidated cases [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1048 (consolidation of causes)].

Consolidation of cases at trial does not necessarily require consolidation of these cases on appeal. When, for example, cases are consolidated only for the purpose of trial of related issues but not for all purposes, separate findings and judgments must be made in each case in disposition of independently submitted issues, and separate appeals are taken from each judgment [see Harmon v. San Francisco & S. R. R. Co. (1890) 86 Cal. 617, 618, 25 P. 124 ; Walker v. Walker (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 89, 91, 1 Cal. Rptr. 871] . To consolidate the appeals, a special motion to consolidate is made in the reviewing court, although that court may consolidate on its own motion when separate and related appeals are pending in the same district of the court of appeal. For discussion and forms concerning consolidation of cases on appeal, see Ch 45, Appellate Motions Generally .

See generally Ch. 125, Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions .

By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
[Attorney for _____ (party's status, e.g., Defendant and Appellant) _____ (party's name)]

[b] Use of Form

The form set out in [a], above, combines a notice of appeal with a notice to prepare a reporter's transcript under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a) and a notice that the appellant has elected to prepare an appendix under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(a). The notices designating the reporter's transcripts and electing to proceed by appendix are usually required to be served on respondent and filed within 10 days after the filing of the notice of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.121(a)], but they may be combined and filed with the notice of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(a)].

A copy of the notice of election and a copy of any notice to prepare a reporter's transcript in a case in which a notice of election is in effect must also be served on the clerk of the court of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(c)].

For discussion regarding combining the notice of appeal with notices designating the record, see*§ 42.21*. See also detailed discussion and more detailed relating to designating the reporter's transcript and notice of election to proceed by appendix in Ch. 44, Appeal: Preparing and Filing the Record.

MOTION TO CONSOLIDATE APPEALS, SUPPORTING DECLARATION, AND MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

_____ [Name], _____ [e.g., plaintiff and appellant] in _____ [specify number] moves this court for an order consolidating the appeals in the above entitled matters pending before this court and filed on _____ [date], and _____ [date], by _____ [name(s)], respectively.

This motion is made on the ground that the questions presented by such appeals are so related as to make it advisable to consolidate them and that considerations of the appeals will be expedited by the consolidation in that _____ [specify].

This motion is based on the declaration(s) of _____ [name(s)], [and] the memorandum of points and authorities, [and the certificate of the Clerk of the Superior Court of California, County of _____,] accompanying this motion [, and on the record on file herein].

_____ [date]

SUPPORTING DECLARATION

I, _____ [name], declare:

I am the [attorney for the] _____ [specify moving part, e.g., appellant] in this appeal. This declaration is submitted in support of the motion to consolidate the appeals in this matter.

The questions involved in the appeals are so related as to make it advisable to consolidate them, in the following respects: _____ [identify issues of each appeal and indicate how they are related].

Consideration of the appeals will be expedited by consolidating them in that _____ [specify, e.g., consolidation will avoid wasteful duplication and will require that only one record on appeal be prepared and filed, that only one brief be filed by each of the parties, that only one hearing be set for oral argument, and that one judgment dispositive of the issues of each appeal be rendered by the court].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]
_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

[Attach supporting memorandum of points and authorities.]

PROOF OF SERVICE

I, _____ [name], declare that:

I am at least 18 years of age and not a party to the above-entitled action. My _____ [residence or business] address is _____, California; I am _____ [a resident or employed in] _____ County, California [county where mailing occurs].

I served the foregoing motion on _____ [date], by depositing _____ [a copy or copies] thereof in the United States mail in _____, California, enclosed in [a] sealed envelope[s], with postage fully prepaid, addressed to _____ [state name and full address of each party served].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]
_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

[b] Use of Form

The form set out in [a], above, is for use to seek consolidation of two or more appeals pending before the same court of appeal. The format of this motion is used when the appeals to be consolidated are from judgments or orders in separate superior court proceedings, and the title and number of each proceeding is represented in the caption. If the appeals are from separate orders in the same proceeding, the form will be modified to set forth the title of the one proceeding.

The motion must be accompanied by proof of service on all other parties, include a supporting memorandum of points and authorities, and a supporting declaration or other evidence when referring to matters not appearing the record [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.54, and discussion in §§ 45.13, 45.14].

For discussion and additional forms relating to proof of service of papers generally, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers . For discussion and additional forms of declaration and affidavits, see Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations .

Counsel should check local practice to determine whether a proposed order should be submitted with the motion. Some courts prefer to draft their own orders. Others encourage or require proposed orders. In the Second Appellate District, for example, failure to submit a proposed order with an appellate motion or application may be grounds for denial of the motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 2d App. Dist., Rule 4].

§ 43.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses staying the enforcement of a superior court judgment or order pending its appeal. It includes coverage of undertakings that are in many cases required in order to stay a judgment or order pending appeal.

This chapter includes the following forms for use in the superior court:

- A waiver of an undertaking [see § 43.70].

- A stipulation regarding alternative security in lieu of an undertaking [see § 43.71].

- Motions with supporting declarations and an order for use in fixing the amount of undertaking where the undertaking is required by statute to be fixed by the trial court [see § 43.72].

- A motion and supporting declaration and an order for use in limiting or dispensing with the requirement of an undertaking [see § 43.73].

- A motion and supporting declaration and an order increasing an undertaking given on a preexisting attachment levy in order to continue the attachment in postjudgment proceedings or during appeal [see § 43.74].

- A motion and supporting declaration and an order for use in increasing an appellate undertaking to account for additional expenses incurred or anticipated to be incurred due to a protracted appeal [see § 43.75].

- Forms of undertaking, a declaration of qualification by a personal surety which must accompany an undertaking executed by a personal surety, and a notice of proof of service of an undertaking [see § 43.76].

- A motion, declaration, and order designating an officer as custodian of personal property and fixing the amount of an undertaking [see § 43.77].

- A motion, declaration, and order involving stay of enforcement of a judgment or order re child custody or exclusion from a dwelling [see § 43.78].

- A motion, declaration, and order to stay enforcement of a judgment or order re public office, inspection of corporate records, or nuisance [see § 43.79].

It includes the following forms for use in the court of appeal:

- A petition for writ of supersedeas, and order granting the petition, and a writ of supersedeas [see § 43.90].

Further discussion and forms relating to proceedings in the trial court to stay the execution or enforcement of judgments generally are set out in Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments , and that chapter should also be also consulted in connection with all trial court proceedings relating to stays. Similarly, more detailed discussion and forms relating to undertakings in general are set out in Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings , and that chapter should also be consulted in connection with all proceedings relating to undertakings.

§ 43.11 Purpose and Effect of Stay Pending Appeal

[1] Stay Maintains Status Quo Pending Appeal

The purpose of staying of a judgment or order pending appeal is to protect the reviewing court's jurisdiction until the appeal is decided [Varian Medical Systems, Inc. v. Delfino (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 180, 196-197, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 298 (stay divests trial court of jurisdiction); Elsea v. Saberi (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 625, 629, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 742] . A stay prevents the trial court from rendering an appeal futile by conducting other proceedings that may affect it [Betz v. Pankow (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 931, 938, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841] . The effect of a stay is to suspend the trial court's power to enforce, vacate, or modify a judgment or order while an appeal from that judgment or order is pending [Laidlaw Waste Systems, Inc. v. Bay Cities Services, Inc. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 630, 641, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 824 ; Gold v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 275, 280, 90 Cal. Rptr. 161, 475 P.2d 193] .

A stay also protects the interests of both parties to the appeal. Appellants are protected from the immediate enforcement of a challenged judgment or order, and from the seizure of assets and property. Respondents, through undertakings and other conditions that may be imposed as a condition for a court-ordered stay, are protected from potential losses caused by a delay in enforcement of the judgment while the appeal is pending.

PRACTICE TIP:

Stay vs. Restitution. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 908, an appellant who has conferred a benefit on respondent (e.g., a money payment) in compliance with a judgment, is generally entitled to restitution if the judgment is reversed, set aside, or modified on appeal. Thus, if an appellant, rather than obtaining a stay, satisfies a judgment in whole or part, and afterwards obtains favorable decision on appeal, he or she may be able to recoup money payments or other benefits through restitution, usually in the trial court after remittitur [see discussion in Ch. 53, Appeal: Remittitur and Costs on Appeal, § 53.15[3]].

It is generally preferable to obtain a stay, however, rather than rely on the right of restitution. The right to restitution could be a hollow one in some cases, such as when several years go by before resolution of the appeal and respondent has squandered the proceeds of the judgment. On the other hand, if the respondent is "good for the judgment," there may be some advantages in reserving the right to appeal while paying off the judgment, for example, to forestall the running of postjudgment interest and save on the cost of the bond, and then seek restitution later if the judgment is reversed.

[2] Trial Court Actions Not Affected by Stay Pending Appeal

[a] Trial Court May Proceed With Matters Not Embraced by Stay

The trial court retains some powers over the parties and the incidental aspects of a case subject to a stay pending appeal [see Wisely v. Superior Court (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 267, 269, 220 Cal. Rptr. 893 (discussing scope of reviewing court's exclusive jurisdiction)]. The trial court may proceed with any matter embraced by the action that is not affected by a judgment or order from which the appeal has been taken [Code Civ. Proc. § 916(a)].

Whether a matter is "embraced" by the action or "affected" by the judgment depends on the impact of the particular proceeding on the effectiveness of the appeal [City of Santa Monica v. Stewart (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 43 (determining whether issues raised in summary judgment motion were embraced or affected by order denying anti-SLAPP motion); Betz v. Pankow (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 919, 938, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834]. Postjudgment proceedings are permitted when they do not render an appeal futile, or do not impinge on the "effectiveness" of the appeal [Whittier Redevelopment Agency v. Oceanic Arts (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1052, 1059-1060, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 396 ; Elsea v. Saberi (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 625, 629, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 742] . The trial court proceeding may not directly or indirectly seek to enforce, vacate, or modify the appealed judgment or order [Varian Medical Systems, Inc. v. Delfino (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 180, 189-190, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 298 (trial court proceedings on merits following appeal from denial of anti-SLAPP motion are embraced in or affected by appeal); see, e.g., Gridley v. Gridley (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1562, 1587-1588, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 715 (issues regarding judge's authority were ancillary and collateral to judgment)]. However, by contrast, an appeal does not stay proceedings on ancillary or collateral matters which do not affect the judgment or order on appeal even though the proceedings may render the appeal moot [Varian Medical Systems, Inc. v. Delfino (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 180, 190-191, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 298] . For example, an award of attorney's fees as costs is a collateral matter which, although "embraced" by the action, is not "affected" by the judgment [Bankes v. Lucas (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 365, 369, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 723 ; see Hollaway v. Scripps Memorial Hospital (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 719, 723, 168 Cal. Rptr. 782 (order disallowing certain costs within trial court's jurisdiction after appeal)]. Similarly, when an appeal from a judgment in a marital dissolution proceeding is pending, which challenges the trial court's division of community property and award of spousal support, the trial retains jurisdiction to modify spousal support based on changed circumstances. Such a modification does not affect the appeal, which reviews only the circumstances in the record at trial. The trial court lacks jurisdiction, however, to terminate its jurisdiction over spousal support while an appeal from a judgment awarding spousal support or dividing community property is pending; if the judgment is reversed on appeal and calls for a reallocationof assets on remand, this would constitute a change in circumstances that might justify a further modification of spousal support, something the trial court could no longer do if it had terminated its jurisdiction to do in the meantime [In re Marriage of Varner (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 932, 936-937, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628] .

When there is a stay of proceedings other than the enforcement of the judgment, the trial court has jurisdiction of proceedings relating to the enforcement of the judgment as well as any matter embraced in the action and not affected by the judgment or order appealed from [Code Civ. Proc. § 916(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Stay of Further Proceedings When Appeal Taken Before Trial. When an appeal is taken from an interim order at the outset of a case or shortly before trial, the trial court may be anxious to proceed with discovery or trial in spite of the pending appeal. If further proceedings will impact the appeal, counsel should raise the issue of a stay directly with the trial court and if unsuccessful, by way of an appropriate writ.

[b] Trial Court Retains Power to Set Aside Void Judgment or Order

The perfecting of an appeal does not stay proceedings in the trial court relating to a void judgment or order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 916(a); Varian Medical Systems, Inc. v. Delfino (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 180, 200, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 298 (because trial court lacked subject matter jurisdiction over matters on trial, judgment was void, and reviewing court's jurisdiction was limited to reversing trial court's void acts); Andrisani v. Saugus Colony Ltd. (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 517, 523-524, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 444] . A court may set aside a void order at any time [Lovret v. Seyfarth (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 841, 854, 101 Cal. Rptr. 143 ; Macmillan Petroleum Corp. v. Griffin (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 523, 533, 222 P.2d 69] . The trial court does not retain jurisdiction, however, to set aside an order that is merely voidable, rather than void [People v. Malveaux (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1425, 1434-1435, 59 Cal.Rptr. 2d 371 ; Betz v. Pankow (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 931, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841] . § 43.12 General Procedures for Obtaining Stay

[1] Planning and Implementing Stay

If an unsuccessful litigant is considering taking an appeal from a judgment or order, he or she should, immediately following notice of entry of the judgment or order, file a request with the trial court to stay its enforcement [see discussion in § 43.19]. If the judgment or order is not one automatically stayed when the appeal is perfected [see discussion in § 43.13], the appellant must follow the procedures for obtaining a court-ordered stay for the particular judgment or order [see discussion in § 43.15]. The appellant may petition for a writ of supersedeas in the appellate court if the trial court refuses to order a stay of enforcement [see discussion in § 43.21]. For a more detailed summary of procedures, see § 43.60 et seq.

As a practical matter, money judgments and most other judgments and orders are not stayed pending appeal, and are immediately enforceable upon entry of judgment. There are various courses of action that counsel for a prospective appellant may take to obtain a stay pending appeal and preserve the status quo. Because most judgments are immediately enforceable, litigants should begin thinking about the need for obtaining a stay, and taking the preliminary steps for securing a stay, before the entry of judgment. Absent timely action by a prospective appellant, the respondent may be able to enforce the judgment and seize the appellant's assets before the appellant has had an opportunity to get a stay in place. If this happens, then the appeal is effectively lost before the appellant has had an opportunity to begin prosecuting the appeal.

A prospective appellant should therefore request a stay immediately after rendition of a judgment or order and before its entry. In some cases, the subsequent filing of a notice of appeal will operate to continue this stay in effect during any subsequent appeal. In most cases, however, this initial stay is temporary only. When an undertaking is required, an initial stay lasts no longer than 10 days after the last day for filing a notice of appeal. It is intended to provide only a brief period to prospective appellants to prepare an undertaking or take other action necessary to keep the stay in place pending the appeal [see Code Civ. Proc. § 918(b), (c), and further discussion in § 43.19].

Thus, if the judgment or order is not one automatically stayed when the appeal is perfected [see § 43.13], then the appellant must follow the initial stay request with an adequate bond, a deposit in lieu of a bond, or an appropriate stay order from the trial court or the court of appeal [see §§ 43.15, 43.19, 43.21].

PRACTICE TIP:

Educating the Client, the Possibility of a Stipulated Stay, and Other Preliminary Considerations. Obtaining a stay of enforcement pending appeal requires considerable thought and attention at the very outset, when the judgment or order is rendered. Many clients are unfamiliar with bonding procedures and, perhaps more fundamentally, the cost of posting security. Appellants' counsel should be sure to provide his or her client with information on the time for posting security, the amount of security needed, and the manner of obtaining it. In addition, the security must be in proper form, and this can take time. Counsel should plan ahead to allow sufficient time, and provide guidance on where and how to obtain a bond or other form of adequate security.

Posting a statutorily and monetarily sufficient bond can be difficult and costly, and the likelihood of obtaining a court-ordered stay for the duration of the appeal is usually slim. One alternative to consider is the possibility of a stipulated stay pending appeal. If, for example, appellant is a large company with easily located and seizable assets, and the relationship among trial counsel has not deteriorated, respondent may well be amenable to a stipulated stay. From the respondent's perspective, the costs of posting security are recoverable from respondent as part of the costs awarded on appeal, in the event the judgment is reversed and costs are awarded to appellant. This can be a significant amount. So, if the appellant is otherwise "good for the judgment," a waiver of the posting of security could make good economic sense. A stipulated stay can thus save both sides the expense of bonding proceedings or judicial proceedings associated with a court-ordered stay. For discussion of consensual waiver or reduction of the amount of an undertaking, see § 43.20[1].

[2] Notice by Party of Stay or Vacation of Stay

The appellant, as the party that requested or caused the stay, must file a notice of the stay in the superior court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.650(c)]. A copy of the order or other document staying the proceedings must be attached to the notice. When a stay is vacated, is no longer in effect, or is modified, the party who filed the notice of the stay must immediately serve and file a notice of termination or modification of stay. If that party fails to do so, any other party in the action who has knowledge of the termination or modification must serve and file a notice of termination or modification of stay. Once one party has served and filed a notice of termination or modification of stay, the other parties are not required to do so.

§ 43.13 Automatic Stay Pending Appeal Under Code Civ. Proc. § 916

[1] Automatic Stay Applies to Judgments and Orders Not Excepted by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 917.1-917.9 or by Code Civ. Proc. § 116.810

The general rule is that the perfecting of an appeal stays any proceedings in the trial court concerning the judgment or order appealed from, and concerning matters, including enforcement proceedings, which are embraced or affected by the judgment or order, except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 917.1-917.9 and Code Civ. Proc. § 116.810 [Code Civ. Proc. § 916(a) (emphasis added); Travis v. County of Santa Cruz (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 609, 618-619, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713 (trial court lacked jurisdiction to amend order denying motion to vacate judgment on day after appeal perfected)].

As a practical matter, the exceptions swallow the general rule. The judgments and orders that are not automatically stayed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1 et seq. are far more extensive than those which are automatically stayed under Code Civ. Proc. § 916. The primary reason for this is that the automatic stay requires no undertaking or other protection of the respondent's interests that may be adversely affected by a delay in enforcement [see discussion in § 43.11[1]]. By contrast, a nonautomatic or court-ordered stay is usually conditioned on an undertaking or other such protection.

Examples of judgments and orders that are automatically stayed under Code Civ. Proc. § 916 are set out in [2], below. Examples of judgments and orders that are not automatically stayed are discussed in §§ 43.14 and 43.15.

For discussion of the stay of judgments of the Small Claims Court pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 116.810, which are also expressly excepted from the automatic stay of Code Civ. Proc. § 916, see Ch. 526, Small Claims .

For discussion of matters over which trial courts retain jurisdiction despite a stay pending appeal, see § 43.11[2].

[2] Examples of Judgments and Orders Automatically Stayed

As discussed in [1], above, the automatic stay of Code Civ. Proc. § 916 actually operates in relatively few cases. The judgments and orders that are not excepted, and which are therefore subject to the automatic stay of Code Civ. Proc. § 916, include the following:

- A judgment or order solely awarding costs [see discussion in § 43.15[1][b][ii] and [c]].

- Orders and decrees in probate proceedings, with certain exceptions set out in the Probate Code [see discussion in § 43.16].

- A mandatory injunction [see discussion in § 43.17].

- An order directing issuance of writ of mandate [Johnston v. Jones (1925) 239 P. 862 (decided under predecessor statute)].

- All further proceedings on the merits during the pendency of an appeal from the denial of an anti-SLAPP motion [Varian Medical Systems, Inc. v. Delfino (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 180, 191-196, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 298] .

§ 43.14 Judgment or Order Not Automatically Stayed May Generally Be Stayed on Court Order Conditioned by Undertaking or Other Act

The automatic stay under Code Civ. Proc. § 916, discussed in § 43.13, does not apply to judgments and orders covered by the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 917.1-917.9 and Code Civ. Proc. § 116.810.

The provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 917.1-917.9 include procedures for obtaining a court-ordered stay for most of those judgments and orders that are not automatically stayed by operation of Code Civ. Proc. § 916. As discussed further in § 43.15, these procedures usually require that the appellant post an undertaking or bond as a condition to a stay [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1 (undertaking required to stay money judgment; discussed in § 43.15[1])]. The procedures relating to undertakings are generally governed by the Bond and Undertaking Law (Code Civ. Proc. § 995.010 et seq.), except to the extent another statute prescribes a different rule or is inconsistent [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.020(a), discussed in § 43.20]. The terms of an undertaking are thus controlled by statute, and any condition in a bond inconsistent with the governing statutes is disregarded as surplusage [Lewin v. Anselmo (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 694, 696-700, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682] . For detailed discussion and forms relating to the Bond and Undertaking Law, see generally Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings, § 538.40 et seq.

Action other than the giving of an undertaking or bond may also be required as a condition for a stay of enforcement, depending on the type of judgment or order sought to be stayed. For example, the execution of an instrument and its deposit in the trial court may be required as a condition for a stay, when the judgment appealed from directs such execution [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 917.3, discussed in § 43.15[3]].

For discussion of proceedings for the stay of a small claims judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 116.810, which are also excepted from the automatic stay of Code Civ. Proc. § 916, see Ch. 526, Small Claims .

§ 43.15 Judgments and Orders Excepted From Automatic Stay of Code Civ. Proc. § 916 Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 917.1-917.9

[1] Money Judgment

[a] Undertaking Generally Required

Unless an undertaking is given, the perfecting of an appeal does not stay enforcement of a judgment or order for money or directing the payment of money, whether or not the money consists of a special fund and whether or not it is payable by the appellant or by another party to the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1(a)].

The undertaking must be given on condition that if the judgment or order, or part of it, is affirmed or if the appeal is withdrawn or dismissed, the party ordered to pay must pay the amount of the judgment or order, or the part of it as to which the judgment or order is affirmed, as entered after the receipt of the remittitur, together with any interest which may have accrued pending the appeal and entry of the remittitur, and costs that may have been awarded against the appellant on appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1(b)].

The liability on the undertaking may be enforced if the party ordered to pay does not make the payment within 30 days after the filing of the remittitur from the reviewing court [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1(b); see also discussion in § 43.20[7]; for discussion relating to remittitur to the trial court following decision by the appellate court, see Ch. 53, Appeal: Remittitur and Costs on Appeal, § 53.10 et seq.].

Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1 does not apply when the money to be paid is in the actual or constructive custody of the court; in this event Code Civ. Proc. § 917.2 (discussed in [2], below) governs [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1(b)].

The undertaking required by Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1 is designed to protect the judgment won in the trial court from becoming uncollectible while the judgment is subjected to appellate review [Lewin v. Anselmo (1997) 56 Cal. App.

4th 694, 700, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682 ; Whelan v. Rallo(1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 989, 995-996, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 876] . The undertaking provides assurance to the respondent, as the successful litigant in trial court, that there will be a source of funds to satisfy the amount of the money judgment, costs, and postjudgment interest [Grant v. Superior Court (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 929, 934, 275 Cal. Rptr. 564] .

For a form of undertaking to stay enforcement of a judgment or order for the payment of money, see § 43.76[2].

[b] Amount of Undertaking

[i] General Calculation of Amount

The undertaking is for double the amount of the judgment or order unless given by an admitted surety insurer (as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 995.120), in which case it is for one and one half times the amount of the judgment or order [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1(b); see also Leung v. Verdugo Hills Hospital (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 205, 211-212, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 203 (lump sum present value of judgment was judgment amount for purpose of calculating undertaking required for stay)].

This means that an appellant seeking to stay enforcement of a money judgment must be prepared to provide collateral as security for the bond of value in excess of the judgment. Finding such collateral can be difficult on short notice. In addition, an appellant must be prepared to pay the considerable annual premiums often required by bonding companies.

For discussion of proceedings to increase the amount, see § 43.20[6].

[ii] Inclusion of Costs Award in Judgment or Order

An undertaking is not required for a judgment or order that is solely for costs awarded under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1021-1038 [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1(d)]. When, however, a judgment or order for the payment of money does not consist solely of an award for costs, any costs that are awarded by the trial court under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1021-1038 are added to the amount of the judgment or order for the purpose of determining the amount of the undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1(d)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1(d) requires the bonding of an entire judgment, including some otherwise nonbondable aspects (i.e., an award of costs that is by itself nonbondable), so long as some part of the judgment is bondable [Banks v. Manos (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 123, 129, 283 Cal. Rptr. 318 (including award of attorney's fees pursuant to contract in amount of money judgment for purpose of determining amount of undertaking to stay execution of that judgment pending appeal)]. For example, contractual attorney's fees awarded by the trial court as an item of costs under Civ. Code § 1717 can be added to the judgment for this purpose [see Chamberlin v. Dale's R.V. Rentals, Inc. (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 356, 362, 232 Cal. Rptr. 785 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(a)(10)(A) (attorney's fees authorized by contract are among items allowable in award of costs pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1032)].

When an appeal is solely from an order awarding costs and attorney's fees after entry of judgment, an undertaking is not required, even though an appeal from the judgment would have required an undertaking. Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1(d) eliminates the need for an undertaking in this situation [Ziello v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 651, 655, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 398] .

For detailed discussion and forms relating to costs awards under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1021-1038, including attorney's fees when authorized as an item of costs, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees .

[c] Judgment or Order Solely for Costs

A judgment that awards no monetary recovery other than "routine" costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5 is subject to the automatic stay of Code Civ. Proc. § 916 (discussed in § 43.11[1]). The limitation is based on the practical concern that, if a judgment for costs were a money judgment within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1, virtually every judgment would be within the scope of that section and an undertaking would be required to stay every judgment pending appeal [see Bank of San Pedro v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 797, 801, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696, 838 P. 2d 218 ; McCallion v. Hibernia etc. Society (1893) 98 Cal. 442, 445, 33 P. 329 (construing predecessor to § 917.1)].

If, however, the only monetary recovery is an award of costs other than those listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5, then the judgment "directs the payment of money" under Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1, and an undertaking is required to stay enforcement [see Bank of San Pedro v. Superior Court (1992) 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696, 838 P.2d 218 ; Pecsok v. Black (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 456, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12] . Courts sometimes refer to these costs as "non-routine." A judgment may be considered to be one for non-routine costs if those costs are not ordinarily a part of costs awarded at trial, or if the costs are not the type included in virtually every case and were an issue that was directly litigated by the parties [Bank of San Pedro v. Superior Court (1992) 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696, 838 P.2d 218] .

For example, an award of expert witness fees payable under Code Civ. Proc. § 998, that is, an award of such fees payable to a defendant when a plaintiff has rejected that defendant's written offer to compromise but subsequently failed to obtain a more favorable judgment, requires a bond in order to stay enforcement [see Bank of San Pedro v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 797, 802-803, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696, 838 P. 2d 218 ; Fish v. Guevara (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 142, 148, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329 ; for discussion and forms relating to the recovery of costs and expenses pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 998, see Ch. 520, Settlement and Release]. These fees are "non-routine" costs in the sense that, under Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5, fees for experts whose testimony was not court ordered are not recoverable as costs, "except when expressly authorized by law" [Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(b)(1); see further discussion in Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees].

An award of attorney's fees as an element of costs, unless accompanied by a money judgment, does not require a bond to stay enforcement [Bank of San Pedro v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 797, 801, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696, 838 P. 2d 218 ; see discussion in [1][b][ii], above]. An award of attorneys' fees pursuant to a sanctions statute, however, is not a "routine" cost awarded under Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5, and must be bonded to stay enforcement [Banks v. Manos (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 123, 127-129, 283 Cal. Rptr. 318] . Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5, attorney's fees are recoverable as an item of costs when an award of such fees is authorized by contract, statute, or law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(a)(10), (b)(5)]. The distinction in these cases would be that an award of sanctions, although authorized by statute and including compensation for the expense of attorney's fees incurred, is nevertheless an award to punish misconduct, and not an award of attorney's fees authorized by statute within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5 [see further discussion of attorney's fees recoverable as costs in Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees , and further discussion of sanction awards in Ch. 510, Sanctions].

One court has rejected the distinction between routine and non-routine costs, and applied a "bright line" rule that all costs that are expressly authorized to be awarded under the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5 are to be treated alike for purposes of applying Code Civ. Proc. § 916 et seq. [Pecsok v. Black (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 456, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Always Check Your Costs Award. The law regarding costs is a waiting trap for the unwary. The "routine" versus "non-routine" distinction has been fleshed out in several cases, as discussed above, and these can provide some help. For any significant award of costs, however, counsel should never assume that an undertaking will not be required, but research the issue and make sure his or her client's interests are protected.

For detailed discussion of the items recoverable as costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees .

[2] Judgment for Delivery of Personal Property

[a] Undertaking Required

Unless an undertaking is given, the perfecting of an appeal does not stay enforcement of a judgment or order that directs the assignment or delivery of personal property, including documents, whether by the appellant or another party to the action, or the sale of personal property on the foreclosure of a mortgage or other lien [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.2].

For a form of undertaking to stay enforcement of a judgment or order generally, see § 43.76[1]. For an alternative form of motion and declaration for use in fixing the amount of an undertaking under Code Civ. Proc. § 917.2 after deposit of the personal property with an officer appointed for that purpose (discussed in [c], below), see § 43.77.

[b] Amount and Conditions of Undertaking

The amount and conditions of the undertaking are fixed by the trial court and governed by statute. The undertaking must provide that the appellant or party ordered to assign or deliver the property will obey and satisfy the order of the appellate court and will not commit or permit any damage to the property. The undertaking must also provide that, if the judgment or order is affirmed or the appeal is withdrawn or dismissed, then the appellant will pay the damage suffered to such property and the value of the use of such property for the period of the delay caused by the appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.2].

[c] Placement of Property With Designated Custodian

The appellant may cause the property to be placed in the custody of an officer designated by the court to abide the order of the appellate court, and the trial court must consider this fact in fixing the amount of the undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.2]. The appellant may, by noticed motion, request the court to designate an officer as custodian of the property. The language of the statute is not absolute, and the trial court has discretion to deny the motion. [Mason v. Superior Court (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 913, 914-916, 100 Cal. Rptr. 557] .

An officer designated by the court to be the custodian of personal property has duties and responsibilities similar to those of a receiver. Code Civ. Proc. § 546(b)(4) specifically authorizes the appointment of a receiver after judgment to preserve property during the pendency of an appeal. In certain instances the provision for appointment of a receiver pending appeal may overlap the provision for appointment of a custodian of personal property pending appeal under Code Civ. Proc. § 917.2 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4)]. One such instance is when the custodian is appointed to take possession and control of share certificates representing a controlling interest in a corporation, which is substantively similar to appointment of a receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4) to take charge of the business. In these cases, the safeguards attached to appointment of receivers apply by analogy when a custodian is appointed. For example, the prohibition under Code Civ. Proc. § 566 against the appointment as a receiver of a party, an attorney for a party, an interested person, or certain relatives of a judge applies by analogy to insure the appointment of a disinterested person to act as custodian pending appeal [Davis v. CustomComponent Switches, Inc. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 21, 29-30, 91 Cal. Rptr. 181] .

For detailed discussion and forms relating to appointment of receivers and receivership generally, see Ch. 486, Receivers . For a form of motion and declaration for a an order designating an officer as custodian of personal property, see § 43.77.

[d] Sale of Perishable Property

If the judgment or order appealed from directs the sale of perishable property, the trial court may order the property to be sold and the proceeds to be deposited with the clerk of the trial court to abide the order of the appellate court. The trial court must also consider this fact in fixing the amount of the undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.2].

[3] Judgment Directing Execution of Instruments

The perfecting of an appeal does not stay enforcement of the judgment or order directing the execution of one or more instruments, unless the instrument or instruments are executed and deposited in the office of the clerk of the court in which the original judgment or order was entered. The disposition of the deposited instrument or instruments is subject to order of the appellate court upon determination of the appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.3].

[4] Judgment Directing Sale of Real Property

Unless an undertaking is given, the perfecting of an appeal does not stay enforcement of the judgment or order that directs the sale, conveyance, or delivery of possession of real property that is in the possession or control of the appellant or the party ordered to sell, convey, or deliver possession of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.4]. For a form of undertaking to stay enforcement of a judgment or order generally, see § 43.76[1].

Stays of enforcement pending appeal in unlawful detainer proceedings are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1178(a), not Code Civ. Proc. § 917.4 [Selma Auto Mall II v. Superior Court (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 1672, 1681, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 599] . For detailed discussion and forms relating to unlawful detainer proceedings, see Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions .

The undertaking is in an amount fixed by the trial court and must provide that the appellant or party ordered to sell, convey, or deliver possession of the property will not commit or permit any waste on the property. The undertaking must also provide that, if the judgment or order appealed from is affirmed or the appeal is withdrawn or dismissed, the appellant will pay the damage suffered by the waste and the value of the use and occupancy of the property, or the part of it as to which the judgment or order is affirmed, from the time of the taking of the appeal until the delivery of the possession of the property. If the judgment or order directs the sale of mortgaged real property and the payment of any deficiency, the undertaking must also provide for the payment of any deficiency [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.4].

[5] Order Appointing Receiver

Unless an undertaking is given, the perfecting of an appeal does not stay enforcement of the judgment or order that appoints a receiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.5]. For a form of undertaking to stay enforcement of a judgment or order generally, see § 43.76[1].

The undertaking is in a sum fixed by the trial court and must be given on condition that, if the judgment or order is affirmed or the appeal is withdrawn or dismissed, the appellant will pay all damages that the respondent may sustain by reason of the stay in the enforcement of the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.5].

[6] Judgment or Order Directing Two or More Acts Covered Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 917.1-917.5

The perfecting of an appeal does not stay enforcement of the judgment or order that directs the performance of two or more of the acts specified under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 917.1-917.5 (discussed in [1] through [5], above), unless the appellant complies with the requirements of each applicable section [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.6].

[7] Right to Attach Order

Unless an undertaking is given, the perfecting of an appeal does not stay the enforcement of a right to attach order [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.65]. For a form of undertaking to stay enforcement of a judgment or order generally, see § 43.76[1].

The undertaking must be in an amount specified in the right to attach order as the amount to be secured by the attachment. The undertaking must be on the condition that if the right to attach order is not reversed, and plaintiff recovers judgment in the action in which the right to attach order was issued, the appellant must pay the amount of the judgment, together with any interest that may have accrued. The liability on the undertaking may be enforced if the judgment is not paid within 30 days after it becomes final. If a surety on the undertaking pays the judgment, either with or without action, the surety is substituted to the rights of the creditor and is entitled to control, enforce, and satisfy the judgment in all respects as if the surety had recovered the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.65].

For discussion of an undertaking to continue, pending appeal, a preexisting levy of attachment (as distinguished from an undertaking as a condition to a stay of enforcement of a right to attach order), see § 43.18.

For detailed discussion and forms relating to attachment proceedings in the trial court generally, including right to attach orders, see Ch. 62, Attachment .

[8] Judgment or Order Relating to Child Custody or Exclusion From Dwelling

[a] Child Custody Matters

The perfecting of an appeal does not stay proceedings as to those provisions of a judgment or order that award, change, or otherwise affect the custody, including the right of visitation, of a minor child in any civil action, in an action or special proceeding filed under the Juvenile Court Law (Welf. & Inst. Code § 245 et seq.) [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.7; see In re Anna S. (2010) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1489, 1499, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 889 ; In re Natasha A. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 28, 39] .

The trial court may in its discretion stay execution of provisions pending review on appeal or pending such other periods that it may deem appropriate. Further, in the absence of a writ or order of a reviewing court providing otherwise, the provisions of the judgment or order allowing, or eliminating restrictions against, removal of the minor child from the state are stayed by operation of law for a period of seven calendar days from the entry of judgment or order by a juvenile court in a dependency hearing, or for a period of 30 days from the entry of judgment or order by any other trial court. The periods during which these provisions allowing, or eliminating restrictions against, removal of the minor child from the state are stayed, are subject to further stays as ordered by the trial court or by the juvenile court pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 917.7. An order directing the return of a child to a sister state or country, including any order effectuating that return, made in a proceeding brought pursuant to the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act or the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction is not a judgment or order which awards, changes, or otherwise affects the custody of a minor child within the meaning of Code. Civ. Proc. § 917.7; therefore it is not subject to the automatic stay provisions of Code. Civ. Proc. § 917.7 [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.7].

In many proceedings involving the custody of a minor, an appeal may be regarded as an inadequate means of reviewing trial court error, even if a stay is granted, due to quickly changing circumstances and the minor's best interests. Review by extraordinary writ is favored, and in some instances the court of appeal will treat a motion for a stay as a petition for a writ of mandate, in order to resolve the matter more quickly [see Zenide v. Superior Court (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1287, 1293, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 703 ; Speelman v. Superior Court (1983) 152 Cal. App. 3d 124, 128, 199 Cal. Rptr. 784] .

It is best to determine the practice prevalent in the particular type of custody proceeding in which review is sought. For detailed discussion and forms relating to the various proceedings involving the custody of minors, see Ch. 223, Dissolution of Marriage: Child Custody . See also discussion and forms in Ch. 12E, Adoptions: Attack on Decree ; Ch. 328, Juvenile Courts: Dependency Proceedings ; Ch. 329, Juvenile Courts: Delinquency Proceedings ; Ch. 394, Parent and Child ; and Ch. 412, Paternity .

For a form of motion to stay a judgment or order relating to the custody of a minor under Code Civ. Proc. § 917.7, §

43.78.

[b] Proceedings for Temporary Exclusion From Dwelling

The perfecting of an appeal does not stay the provisions of a judgment or order for the temporary exclusion of a party from a dwelling as provided in the Family Code. The trial court may in its discretion stay execution of such provisions pending review on appeal or for such other period or periods that it may deem appropriate [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.7].

For a form of motion to stay such a provision in a judgment or order under the Family Code, see § 43.78. For detailed discussion and forms of proceedings relating to proceedings for the exclusion from a dwelling pursuant to the Family Law Code, see Ch. 293, Harassment and Domestic Violence .

[9] Judgment or Order Relating to Unlawfully Held Public Office

Absent an order of the trial court or a writ of supersedeas providing otherwise, the perfecting of an appeal does not stay proceedings in which a party to the proceeding has been adjudged guilty of usurping, or intruding into, or unlawfully holding, a public office, civil or military, within California [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.8; for discussion and forms for use in proceedings to adjudge a party guilty of usurping, intruding into, or unlawfully holding a public office, see Ch. 483, Quo Warranto].

For a form of motion for an order to stay enforcement of a judgment or order relating to an unlawfully held public office, see § 43.79. For a form of petition for issuance of a writ of supersedeas by the appellate court, see § 43.90.

[10] Judgment or Order Directing Inspection of Corporate Records

Absent an order of the trial court or a writ of supersedeas providing otherwise, the perfecting of an appeal does not stay proceedings in which a judgment or order directs a corporation or its officers or agents to give to a director, stockholder, or member of such corporation a reasonable opportunity to inspect or make copies of books, papers, or documents of the corporation as the trial court finds that the director, stockholder, or member is entitled by law to inspect or copy [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.8; for discussion and forms for use in proceedings to compel inspection of corporate records, see Ch. 165, Corporations: Corporate Records and Reports .].

For a form of motion for an order to stay enforcement of a judgment or order relating to inspection of corporate records, see § 43.79. For a form of petition for issuance of a writ of supersedeas by the appellate court, see § 43.90.

[11] Judgment or Order Adjudging That Building Is Nuisance

Absent an order of the trial court or a writ of supersedeas providing otherwise, the perfecting of an appeal does not stay proceedings in which a judgment or order adjudges a building or place to be a nuisance, nor any part of such judgment or order directing the closing or discontinuance of any specific use of a building or place for any period of time [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.8; see also Civ. Code § 3479 et seq., governing nuisance generally, and discussion and forms in Ch. 391, Nuisance].

For a form of motion for an order to stay enforcement of a judgment or order relating to the adjudication of a building or place as a nuisance, see § 43.79. For a form of petition for issuance of a writ of supersedeas by the appellate court, see § 43.90.

[12] Judgment or Order Relating to Hazardous Waste

The perfecting of an appeal does not stay enforcement of the judgment or order, or its underlying administrative order, under either of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.15]:

- Health & Safety Code § 25358.3(a), ordering a responsible party to take appropriate removal or other remedial actions in response to a release or threatened release of a hazardous substances.

- Health & Safety Code § 25181, ordering the party to comply with Health & Safety Code § 25100 et seq. (hazardous waste control) or any rule, regulation, permit, covenant, standard, requirement, or order issued, adopted, or executed pursuant to these sections.

Code Civ. Proc. § 917.15 does not, in itself, provide any procedures for obtaining a stay of enforcement pending appeal. For discussion of the trial court's and reviewing court's general powers to order the stay of any judgment or order, see respectively §§ 43.19 and 43.21.

For further discussion and forms relating to orders issued under these provisions of the Heath & Safety Code, see Ch. 418, Pollution and Environmental Matters .

[13] Judgment or Order in Which Trial Court Has Discretion to Require Undertaking

The perfecting of an appeal does not stay enforcement of a judgment or order in cases not otherwise provided for in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 917.1-917.8 (discussed in [1] through [12], above) when the trial court, in its discretion, requires an undertaking and the undertaking is not given, in any of the following cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.9(a)]:

- The appellant is found to possess money or other property of the respondent [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.9(a)(1)].

- The appellant is required to perform an act for the respondent's benefit [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.9(a)(2)].

- The judgment against the appellant is solely for costs awarded under Code Civ Proc. § 1021 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.9(a)(3); see also discussion in [1][b][ii] and [1][c], above].

The undertaking in any such case is required to be in a sum fixed by the court and conditioned on the performance of the judgment or order appealed from in the event that the judgment or order is affirmed or the appeal is withdrawn or dismissed. The undertaking must also require that if the judgment or order appealed from or any part of it is affirmed, or the appeal is withdrawn or dismissed, the appellant will pay all damages which the respondent may sustain by reason of the stay in the enforcement of the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.9(b), (c)]. "Damages" means reasonable compensaton for the loss of use of the money or property, or payment of costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021 et seq. if the judgment against appellant is solely for costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.9(d)].

For a form of undertaking to stay enforcement of a judgment or order generally, see § 43.76[1].

[14] Judgment or Order Sought by Government to Abate Illegal Activities

Absent an order of the trial court or a writ of supersedeas providing otherwise, the perfecting of an appeal does not stay proceedings in which a judgment or order, including, but not limited to, a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, grants relief in an action brought by a governmental agency under either of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.8]:

- Penal Code § 11225 et seq., relating to buildings where illegal gambling, lewdness, assignation, or prostitution occurs.

- Health and Safety Code § 11570 et seq., relating to buildings where selling, serving, storing, keeping, manufacturing, or giving away controlled substances occurs.

For a form of petition for issuance of a writ of supersedeas by the appellate court, see § 43.90.

§ 43.16 Proceedings Under Probate Code

[1] Appeal Generally Stays Judgment or Order

Judgments and orders in probate proceedings are not expressly excluded from the automatic stay of Code Civ. Proc. § 916 pursuant to any of the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 917.1-917.9. Thus, under prior law they were generally held to be stayed automatically under Code Civ. Proc. § 916 [see Estate of Dabney (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 402, 407, 232 P.2d 481 (decree of distribution; decided under predecessor statute); Estate of Hultin (1947) 29 Cal. 2d 825, 833, 178 P.2d 756 (order appointing executor; decided under predecessor statute); Estate of Sam Lee (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 295, 296, 158 P.2d 193 (order appointing public administrator; decided under predecessor statute); Estate of Neilson (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 769, 772, 5 Cal. Rptr. 542 (decree determining heirship; decided under predecessor statute); Estate of Schwartz (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 569, 573, 197 P.2d 223 (order appointing executor; decided under predecessor statute); see also discussion in § 43.13[2]].

Such judgments and orders are still generally stayed, but with certain limits set out in the Probate Code. Specifically, an appeal from a judgment or order under Prob. Code § 1300 et seq. (appeals in proceedings governed by Probate Code) stays the operation and effect of that judgment or order pending appeal, unless certain exceptions, discussed in [2], below, are satisfied [Prob. Code § 1310(a)].

For detailed discussion and forms relating to proceedings under the Probate Code, including provisions governing appeals (Prob. Code § 1300 et seq.), see Ch. 280, Guardianship and Conservatorship: Appointment of Guardians , through Ch. 290H, Guardianship and Conservatorship: Termination of Guardianships and Conservatorships , and Ch. 440, Probate: Is Probate Necessary ?

[2] Exceptions to General Stay in Probate Proceedings

[a] Trial Court Retains Power to Order Exercise of Fiduciary Powers to Prevent Loss or Injury

Notwithstanding that an appeal is taken from a judgment or order in a probate proceeding, the trial court may do the following for the purpose of preventing injury or loss to a person or property [Prob. Code § 1310(b)]:

- Direct the exercise of the powers of the fiduciary, from time to time as if no appeal were pending.

- Appoint a temporary guardian or conservator of the person or estate, or both, or a special administrator, to exercise such powers, from time to time, as if no appeal were pending.

All acts of the fiduciary pursuant to the directions of the court made under Prob. Code § 1310(b) are valid, irrespective of the result of the appeal. An appeal of the directions made by the court under Prob. Code § 1310(b) does not operate to stay these directions [Prob. Code § 1310(b)].

[b] Judgment or Order in Proceedings for Guardianship of the Person Not Automatically Stayed

In proceedings for guardianship of the person, Code Civ. Proc. § 917.7 applies [Prob. Code § 1310(c)]. For discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 917.7, see § 43.15[8].

[c] Other Judgments and Orders Not Automatically Stayed When Trial Court Exercises Discretion to Require Undertaking

An appeal does not stay the operation and effect of a judgment or order in probate proceedings if the trial court requires an undertaking as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 917.9, and that undertaking is not given [Prob. Code § 1310(d)]. For discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 917.9, see § 43.15[13].

§ 43.17 Proceedings for Injunctive Relief

A prohibitory injunction is self executing and its operation is not stayed by an appeal. A mandatory injunction, however, is automatically stayedby an appeal. As a general rule, an injunction is prohibitory if it requires a person to refrain from a particular act, and an injunction is mandatory if it compels performance of an affirmative act that changes the position of the parties [Davenport v. Blue Cross of California (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 435, 446, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 641] . Thus, an injunction that requires a party to perform a physical act or surrender property is likewise mandatory [Kettenhofen v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 189, 191, 10 Cal. Rptr. 356, 358 P.2d 684] .

Resolving whether an injunction is prohibitory or mandatory can be a difficult, because an injunction that is entirely negative or prohibitory in form may prove on analysis to be mandatory and affirmative in essence or effect. An injunction that has incidental mandatory aspects may still be prohibitory [Youngblood v. Wilcox (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1368, 1372 n.1, 255 Cal. Rptr. 527] . An injunction may also include both prohibitory and mandatory components, in which event an appeal will stay operation of the mandatory features but not those that are prohibitory. [Kettenhofen v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 189, 191, 10 Cal. Rptr. 356, 358 P.2d 684 ; Food & Grocery Bureau v. Garfield (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 174, 176 177, 114 P.2d 579] . The substance of the injunction, not the form, determines whether it is mandatory or prohibitory [Davenport v. Blue Cross of California (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 435, 447, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 641] .

An injunction restraining the further continuance of an existing condition does not take on the character of a mandatory injunction merely because it enjoins the defendants from continuing to do the forbidden acts. An injunction that restrains the continuance of an act or series of acts may be just as much of a preventive or prohibitory injunction as one that restrains the commission of an act [Dry Cleaners & Dyers Institute v. Reiss (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 306, 309, 54 P.2d 470] .

If the trial court mistakenly attempts to enforce a mandatory injunction after an appeal has been taken, the appellant is entitled to issuance of a writ of supersedeas by the appellate court. Even in the case of a purely prohibitory injunction, where there is no automatic stay and the appellant is not entitled to a writ of supersedeas as a matter of right, the appellate court has inherent power to issue the writ if it is necessary or proper to the complete exercise of its appellate jurisdiction. [Food & Grocery Bureau v. Garfield (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 174, 176 177, 114 P.2d 579 ; see also Wind v. Hite (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 415, 416, 24 Cal. Rptr. 683, 374 P.2d 643 , and discussion in § 43.21].

§ 43.18 Proceedings Involving Levy of Attachment

When a party has levied an attachment in the trial court proceeding, an appeal by that party does not automatically continue that attachment. Tocontinue the attachment, the appellant must execute and file an undertaking to the effect that appellant will pay all costs and damages which the respondent may sustain by reason of the attachment, in the event that the order of the court below is sustained in favor of the respondent [Code Civ. Proc. § 921]. The appellant must also perfect the appeal within five days after written notice of the entry of the order from which the appeal is taken [Code Civ. Proc. § 921; for discussion and forms relating to the perfecting of an appeal, see Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal].

The amount of the undertaking required under Code Civ. Proc. § 921 is the amount fixed by the trial court on a motion by the respondent as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 489.410 [Code Civ. Proc. § 921; see Code Civ. Proc. § 489.410(a) (defendant may move for an increase in the original undertaking on attachment, after entry of judgment and before perfection of appeal, and the trial court may order an increase in an amount, if any, that is justified by the detriment reasonably to be anticipated by continuing the attachment)]. If no order has been made under Code Civ. Proc. § 489.410, the undertaking required under Code Civ. Proc. § 921 is double the amount of the debt claimed by the appellant [Code Civ. Proc. § 921].

If the respondent is not satisfied with the undertaking as determined under Code Civ. Proc. § 921 or Code Civ. Proc. § 489.410, the trial court, on motion of the respondent made within 60 days after perfecting the appeal, may order an increase in the amount of the undertaking in such amount as is justified by the detriment reasonably to be anticipated by continuing the attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 921]. If an order increasing the amount of the undertaking is made under Code Civ. Proc. § 921 or Code Civ. Proc. § 489.410, and the appellant fails to execute and file the undertaking within 10 days after the order is made, the attachment is discharged and the attached property is released [Code Civ. Proc. § 921; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 489.410(a)].

For a form of motion to increase an undertaking in order to continue an existing levy of attachment pending appeal, see § 43.74. For a form of increased undertaking § 43.76[3]. For detailed discussion and forms relating to attachment proceedings in the trial court generally, including proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 489.410, see Ch. 62, Attachment .

For discussion of an undertaking as a condition to a stay of enforcement of a right to attach order (as distinguished from an undertaking to continue in effect a preexisting levy of attachment), see § 43.15[7].

§ 43.19 Trial Court's General Power to Order Stay

The trial court may stay the enforcement of any judgment or order, subject to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 918(b) [Code Civ. Proc. § 918(a)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 918(b), in turn, provides that, if the enforcement of a judgment or order is one that may be stayed only the giving of an undertaking, the trial court does not have power to stay enforcement, without the consent of the adverse party, except for a limited period up to but not beyond 10 days beyond the last date on which a notice of appeal may be filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 918(b); for discussion of the applicable deadlines for filing a notice of appeal, see Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal].

The court's power under Code Civ. Proc. § 918 applies whether or not an appeal will be taken from the judgment or order and whether or not a notice of appeal has been filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 918(c)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

5-43 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 43.20

§ 43.20 Provisions Relating to Undertaking Required as Condition for Stay

[1] Waiver of Undertaking or Consent to Reduction

The beneficiary of an undertaking given in an action or proceeding may, in writing, consent to an undertaking in an amount less than the amount required by statute or may waive the undertaking altogether [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.230; see also Merritt v. J. A. Stafford Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 619, 625, 68 Cal. Rptr. 447, 440 P.2d 927 (decided under prior law)].

Although a consent to reduction or waiver is based on the particular circumstances in any given case, one common consideration is the eventual award of costs on appeal. Subject to certain exceptions, the prevailing party is entitled to costs on appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.278(a)], and recoverable costs on appeal include the cost to procure a surety bond, including the premium and the cost to obtain a letter of credit as collateral, unless the trial court determines the bond was unnecessary [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.278(d)(1)(F); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 995.250; Stockton Theatres, Inc. v. Palermo (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 346, 347-352, 333 P.2d 10 (inadequacy of appellant's assets to satisfy judgment makes bond necessary as a matter of law)].

For further discussion relating to the recovery of costs on appeal in Ch. 53, Appeal: Remittitur and Costs on Appeal, § 53.30 et seq.

For a form of waiver of undertaking, see § 43.70.

[2] Deposit in Lieu of Undertaking

A deposit may be given by the principal in lieu of a bond or undertaking, and has the same force and effect, is treated the same, and is subject tothe same conditions, liability, and statutory provisions as a bond or undertaking [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.710, 995.730].

Deposit in the trial court of the amount of the undertaking provided for by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 916-923, in the amount fixed by the court, is the equivalent to filing the undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.710 et seq.]. The deposit must be in an amount or have a face value, or in the case of bearer bonds or bearer notes, have a market value, equal to or in excess of the amount required to be secured by the bond or undertaking if the bond were given by an admitted surety insurer [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.710(b)].

The deposit in lieu of an undertaking may be any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.710(a)(1)-(6)]:

- Lawful money of the United States.
- Bearer bonds or bearer notes of the United States or California.
- Certificates of deposit.
- Savings accounts.
- Investment certificates or share accounts issued by savings associations.
- Certificates for funds or share accounts issued by a credit union.

The deposit must be accompanied by an agreement executed by the principal authorizing the officer to collect, sell, or otherwise apply to deposit to enforce the liability of the principal on the deposit. The agreement must include the address for service on the principal [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.710(c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.160 (defining "officer")].

Unless agreed by stipulation of the principal and beneficiary, the market value of bearer bonds or notes is determined by the court in the manner prescribed in Code Civ. Proc. § 995.720(b) and (c) [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.720(a)]. A certified copy of the stipulation or court order must be delivered to the officer at the time of the deposit of the bonds or notes [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.720(a)].

The party who wishes to deposit bearer bonds or notes in lieu of an undertaking may file a written application with the court to determine the market value of the bonds or notes. The application must be served on the beneficiary and proof of service must be filed with the application. The application must contain all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.720(b)]:

- A specific description of the bonds or notes.
- A statement of the current market value of the bonds or notes as of the date of the filing of the application.
- A statement of the amount of the bonds or notes that the principal believes equal the required amount of the deposit.

The trial court must hear the application not less than five days or more than 10 days after service of the application. If at the time of the hearing there is no objection to the current market value of the bonds or notesalleged in the application, the court will fix the amount of the bonds or notes on the basis of the market value alleged in the application. If the beneficiary contends that the current market value of the bonds or notes is less than alleged in the application, then the principal must offer evidence in support of the application, and the beneficiary may offer evidence in opposition. At the conclusion of the hearing, the court makes an order determining the market value of the bonds or notes and fixes and determines the amount of the bonds or notes to be deposited by the principal [Code Civ. Proc. §

Because a respondent may waive any undertaking required by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 916-923, or may stipulate to limiting the amount of an undertaking [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.230, and discussion of consent and waiver in [1], above], the beneficiary of the deposit may stipulate to a security device not specifically provided for by statute. Generally, corporate sureties require substantial collateral before issuing an undertaking to stay enforcement pending appeal, perhaps even the equivalent of the amount of the bond itself. Deposit of the same assets with a third party mutually agreed upon may provide a respondent with security equivalent to an undertaking and at the same time eliminate the premium on a surety bond which might otherwise be taxed as a cost on appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.27d(d)(1)(F); for further discussion and forms relating to the recovery of costs on appeal, see Ch. 53, Appeal: Remittitur and Costs on Appeal].

For a form of stipulation or consent to reduce to alter the form of undertaking, see § 43.71. For more detailed discussion and forms relating to deposits in lieu of a bond or undertaking, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings . For discussion and forms relating to stipulations generally, see Ch. 533, Stipulations .

[3] Limitation of Undertaking or Other Security When Appellant Is Personal Representative

The trial court may, in its discretion, dispense with or limit the security (i.e., undertaking or other condition) required by any of the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 916-923, if the appellant is an executor, administrator, trustee, guardian, conservator, or other person acting in another's right [Code Civ. Proc. § 919].

[4] Sufficiency of Sureties Executing Undertaking

[a] Execution of Undertaking by Sureties

An undertaking must be executed by two or more sufficient personal sureties or by one sufficient admitted surety insurer or by any combination of sufficient personal sureties and admitted surety insurers [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.310; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 995.120 (defining admitted surety insurer), Code Civ. Proc. § 995.185 (defining surety)].

The undertaking must be in writing signed by the sureties under oath, and the sureties are jointly and severally liable on the obligations of the undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.320].

[b] Sufficiency of Personal Surety

A personal surety is sufficient if all of the following are satisfied [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.510(a); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 995.185 (defining surety)]:

- He or she is a person other than the principal.
- He or she is not a member of the State Bar or an officer of the court.
- He or she is a resident, and either an owner of real property or householder, in California.
- He or she is worth the amount of the bond or undertaking in real or personal property, or both, situated in California, over and above all debts and liabilities, exclusive of property exempt from enforcement of a money judgment.

An undertaking executed by personal securities must be accompanied by an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) of the qualifications of each personal surety [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.520(a)].

The affidavit or declaration of qualification must contain all the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.520(b)]:

- The name, occupation, residence address, and business address (if any), of the surety.

- A statement that the surety is a resident and either an owner of real property or householder within California.

- A statement that the surety is worth the sum specified in the undertaking in real or personal property, or both, situated in California, over and above all debts and liabilities, exclusive of property exempt from enforcement of a money judgment.

If the amount of the undertaking exceeds $5,000, the affidavit (or declaration) must also contain, in addition to the foregoing information required by Code Civ. Proc. § 995.520(b), all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.520(c)]:

- A description sufficient for identification of property, real or personal, belonging to the surety and situated in California and the nature of his or her interest in that property that qualifies the surety.

- The surety's best estimate of the fair market value of each item of property.

- A statement of any charge or lien and its amount, known to the surety, whether of public record or not, against any item of property.

- Any other impediment or cloud known to the surety on the free right of possession, use, benefit, or enjoyment of any of the property.

When the amount specified in the undertaking or bond exceeds $10,000 and there are more than two sureties, they may state in their affidavits or (declarations) that they are severally worth amounts less than the amount specified in the undertaking or bond, and it may be stipulated in the undertaking that the liability of the surety is limited to the worth of the surety stated in the declaration, provided that the aggregate worth of all sureties executing the undertaking is twice the amount of the bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.520(d)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Don't Count on Personal Sureties. As a practical matter, the requirements for posting a personal surety are cumbersome and usually difficult to satisfy, particularly on short notice. Some individuals who originally may be willing to serve as personal sureties for a prospective appellant may reconsider when they learn that their personal financial statements may become public documents, and that they may be subject to questioning about their finances [see discussion in § 43.20[5],[6]]. For these reasons, most appellants do not obtain undertakings executed by personal sureties.

For a general form of undertaking subscribed by sureties, see § 43.76[1]. For a form of declaration of qualification of a personal surety, see § 43.76[4]. For more detailed discussion and forms relating to the qualifications of sureties, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

[c] Sufficiency of Admitted Surety Insurer

Two or more admitted surety insurers may be sureties on an undertaking by executing the same or separate undertakings for amounts aggregating the required amount of the undertaking, and each insurer is jointly and severally liable to the extent of the amount of the liability assumed by it [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.620; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 995.120 (defining admitted surety insurer), Code Civ. Proc. § 995.185 (defining surety)].

An admitted surety insurer will be accepted or approved by the court or officer as surety on a bond without further acknowledgment if the bond is executed in the name of the surety insurer under penalty of perjury or the fact of execution of the bond is duly acknowledged before an officer authorized to take and certify acknowledgments, and either one of the following conditions, at the surety insurer's option, is satisfied [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.630]:

- A copy of the transcript or record of the unrevoked appointment, power of attorney, bylaws, or other instrument, duly certified by the proper authority and attested by the seal of the insurer entitling or authorizing the person who executed the bond to do so for and on behalf of the insurer, is filed in the office of the clerk of the county in which the court or officer is located.

- A copy of a power of attorney is attached to the bond.

For a general form of undertaking subscribed by sureties, see § 43.76[1]. For more detailed discussion and forms relating to the qualifications of sureties, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

[5] Objections to Sureties or Undertaking

The beneficiary may object to the undertaking on the ground that the sureties are insufficient, or that the amount of the undertaking is insufficient, or that the undertaking is insufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.920; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.930-995.960 (manner of objecting to and determining sufficiency of undertakings in general); Conservatorship of O'Connor (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 1076, 1103, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386 (no objection necessary for technical defects not related to amount or recoverability)]. For detailed discussion and forms relating to objections to sureties undertakings generally, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

If the respondent objects to an undertaking required or permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 901 et seq., and the court determines the undertaking is insufficient, and a sufficient undertaking is not given within the time provided by statute (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.910-995.960), then enforcement of the judgment or order appealed from is no longer stayed and property that has been levied on under execution issued on such judgment will not be released from levy [Code Civ. Proc. § 922].

[6] Proceeding to Increase Amount of Undertaking

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 996.010, a respondent may ask the trial court to increase an undertaking that has become insufficient, especially when postjudgment interest and costs have mounted because the appellate process has become unduly prolonged [see Grant v. Superior Court (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 929, 938, 940, 275 Cal. Rptr. 564] . To challenge an undertaking as insufficient, the moving party must demonstrate a real, substantial possibility, not just speculation, that the current undertaking is or has become insufficient, either because the sureties are insufficient or because the amount of the undertaking is insufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.010(a); Grant v. Superior Court (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 929, 938, 275 Cal. Rptr. 564 (undertaking to stay money judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1); see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.020 (provisions of Code Civ. Proc.§ 995.010 et seq. apply to undertaking given as security under any statute of this state, except to extent statute is inconsistent), Code Civ. Proc. § 995.210 (unless provision or context otherwise requires, terms "bond" and "undertaking" in statutes are interchangeable)].

The amounts of accumulated appellate costs and postjudgment interest are proper factors for the trial court to consider in ruling on a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 996.010 [Grant v. Superior Court (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 929, 938, 275 Cal. Rptr. 564] . There appears to be no statutory basis, however, for increasing an undertaking based on dilatory tactics [Grant v. Superior Court (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 929, 939, 275 Cal. Rptr. 564] .

For forms of notice of motion and order to increase the amount of an undertaking to stay enforcement of judgment or order pending appeal, see § 43.75.

[7] Enforcement of Undertaking Against Principal and Sureties

The successful respondent may enforce the liability on the undertaking against both the appellant and the sureties [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.410]. A surety on an undertaking given in an action or proceeding, other than the bond of a public officer or fiduciary, submits itself to the jurisdiction of the court in all matters affecting its liability on the undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.420]. The liability of a surety may be enforced on motion filed in the trial court without the necessity of bringing an independent action [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440(a)].

A surety may not defend an action brought on an undertaking by relying on terms or conditions in the bond that are inconsistent with the statutes governing undertakings [Lewin v. Anselmo (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 694, 696-700, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682] . A judgment of liability on the undertaking obligates each of the principals and sureties jointly and severally, and may be enforced by the beneficiary directly against the surety [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.460].

The aggregate liability of a surety to all persons for all breaches of the condition of an undertaking is limited, except as provided under Code Civ. Proc. § 966.480, to the amount of that undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.470(a); see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 966.480(a)(2) (if surety fails to make payment when beneficiary makes claim after liability has been established, surety may be liable for additional amounts comprising costs incurred in obtaining a judgment against the surety)]. If the undertaking given is in an amount greater than the amount required by statute or by order of the court, the liability of the surety is limited to the amount required by statute or court order, unless the undertaking has been increased voluntarily or by agreement of the parties to satisfy an objection to the sufficiency of the bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.470(b)].

If the judgment is affirmed, then the surety may make payment on the undertaking without awaiting enforcement, and the amount of the undertaking will be reduced to the extent of any good faith payment made by the surety [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.480(a)(1)]. If the surety pays the judgment either with or without an enforcement action after the judgment is affirmed, the surety is substituted to the rights of the creditor and is entitled to control, enforce, and satisfy the judgment, in all respects as if the surety had recovered the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1(c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 996.460(d)].

If the judgment is reversed, then the cash deposit or bond must be returned to the principal (that is, the appellant) because the purpose for which the bond or deposit was given has been satisfied and no longer exists [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.360, 995.430, 995.770]. The appellant is entitled to return of a bond or deposit even if the appellate court reverses the judgment only for a new trial on the issue of damages [see McCallion v. The Hibernia Savings & Loan Soc'y (1890) 83 Cal. 571, 572-573, 23 P. 798 ; see Love v. Wolf (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 822, 840, 58 Cal. Rptr. 42 ; King v. Goldberg (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 543, 545-546, 323 P.2d 1035] .

For further, more detailed discussion and forms relating generally to sureties and the enforcement of bonds or undertakings, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

[8] Stay When Undertaking Is Posted After Levy

When enforcement of a judgment is stayed on appeal by the giving of a sufficient undertaking, existing liens created under the enforcement-of-money-judgments statutes (Code Civ. Proc. § 695.010 et seq.) are extinguished, including an execution lien created on property by levy [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 697.040(a)(1), 697.710]. In such a case, property held subject to the lien must be released unless certain exceptions (described below) apply [see Code Civ. Proc. § 697.050; California Commerce Bank v. Superior Court (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 582, 587, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 418] .

In California Commerce Bank, the judgment debtor bank filed a stay bond one week after funds were seized by levy and three weeks after it filed a notice of appeal. The bank afterwards filed an ex parte application for an order staying execution of the money judgment pending appeal and directing the levying officer to return the funds levied under the writ of execution. The trial court denied the application, but the court of appeal issued a peremptory writ directing the trial court to vacate its order. The appellate court held that in the case of a perfected appeal, under the enforcement of judgment statutes, the posting of a sufficient bond after the levying officer has taken possession of money pursuant to a writ of execution stayed enforcement of judgment and required the return of funds held in levy tothe judgment debtor [see California Commerce Bank v. Superior Court (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 582, 583, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 418] .

Costs and attorney's fees may be available when there is a long delay by the judgment debtor in obtaining the bond. Although the court in California Commerce Bank deferred to the lower court's sound discretion in denying the judgment creditor's request for such an award, it did not expressly rule out that an award may be available in an appropriate case [see California Commerce Bank v. Superior Court (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 582, 588, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 418] .

Exceptions to the rule requiring release of property held subject to the lien apply when the property is to be held under another lien or the property is ordered by the court to be held pending resolution of a dispute concerning its proper disposition [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 697.050, 699.060]. In addition, the stay may be terminated by the judgment creditor objecting to the sufficiency of the bond and the court determining the bond is insufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 922].

§ 43.21 Appellate Court's Power to Issue Writ of Supersedeas or Make Other Orders to Preserve Status Quo

The provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 916-923 do not limit the power of an appellate court or justice to stay proceedings during the pendency of an appeal, to issue a writ of supersedeas, to suspend or modify an injunction during the pendency of an appeal, or to make any order appropriate to preserve the status quo, or the effectiveness of the judgment subsequently to be entered, or otherwise in aid of its jurisdiction [Code Civ. Proc. § 923]. Supersedeas is a nonstatutory writ, although referred to in Code Civ. Proc. § 923 and governed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.112.

The writ of supersedeas has long been recognized to be an attribute of the inherent power of the courts to preserve their own jurisdiction [People ex rel. S. F. Bay etc. Com. v. Town of Emeryville (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 533, 538, 72 Cal. Rptr. 790, 446 P.2d 790] . The power to issue the writ is implied from the power to hear appeals. When jurisdiction is conferred by the California Constitution, the Code of Civil Procedure, or by any other statute, a court or judicial officer has all the means necessary to carry that jurisdiction into effect [see Code Civ. Proc. § 187; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 182 (provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 182 et seq. are not limited in scope or meaning to former justice courts as implied by the chapter heading to these provisions)]. The purpose of the writ of supersedeas is to maintain the subject of the action in status quo until final determination of the appeal [Dry Cleaners & Dyers Institute v. Reiss (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 306, 310, 54 P.2d 470 ; cf. discussion in § 43.11[1]].

An appellate court may in its discretion issue a writ of supersedeas to stay, pending appeal, the operation of an order or judgment not otherwise stayed, if necessary or proper to the complete exercise of its appellate jurisdiction [Food & Grocery Bureau v. Garfield (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 174, 176-177, 114 P.2d 579] . An appellate court may grant a writ of supersedeas when a denial of a stay of enforcement would deprive the appellant of the benefit of a reversal of the judgment against him or her, provided, of course, that a proper showing is made [Deepwell Homeowners' Protective Asso. v. City Council of Palm Springs (1965) 239 Cal. App. 2d 63, 65-66, 48 Cal. Rptr. 321 (quoted with approval in People ex rel. S. F. Bay etc. Com. v. Town of Emeryville (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 533, 537, 72 Cal. Rptr. 790, 446 P.2d 790)].

The determination of whether or not a writ of supersedeas is proper is based on a consideration of the respective rights of the litigants, which contemplates the possibility of an affirmance of the order or judgment as well as of a reversal [Food & Grocery Bureau v. Garfield (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 174, 177, 114 P.2d 579 ; Sacramento Newspaper Guild v. Sacramento County Bd. of Supervisors (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 51, 53, 62 Cal. Rptr. 819] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Issuance of Supersedeas Rare. As a practical matter, it is very difficult to obtain a writ of supersedeas. They are rarely granted. At a minimum, counsel must be able to demonstrate that his or her client cannot afford a bond, that the issues in the appeal are significant, and that there is a strong likelihood of obtaining a reversal.

An appellate court may issue a writ of supersedeas on any conditions that that court deems just or appropriate under the circumstances [Kane v. Superior Court (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1577, 1587 n.6, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 578] . The most common condition imposed on granting a writ of supersedeas is that an undertaking be filed, and the practice is to require approval of the sufficiency of the bond by the presiding judge of the lower court [see Sandell, Inc. v. Bailey (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 518, 520, 14 Cal. Rptr. 347] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Other Grounds for Stay. In People ex rel. S. F. Bay etc. Com. v. Town of Emeryville (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 533, 72 Cal. Rptr. 790, 446 P.2d 790 , the Supreme Court indicated that Code Civ. Proc. § 923 could be relied on to broaden an appellate court's power to grant a stay beyond the traditional confines of supersedeas. The opinion can be read to give the appellate courtthe authority to enter an appropriate stay with respect to any order to protect its jurisdiction. Counsel seeking to stay trial court proceedings pending appeal should consider Town of Emeryville and Section 923 as authority for obtaining a stay in those circumstances that do not technically fit within the confines of a writ of supersedeas.

A request for a temporary stay pending the granting or denial of the writ may be included in the petition or may be made separately. It must be served on the respondent. For good cause, the Chief Justice or presiding justice may excuse advance service [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.112].

PRACTICE TIP:

Consider Including Proposed Briefing Schedule in Petition. The appellate court may order an accelerated briefing schedule as a condition to granting a stay, to minimize the length of the appeal and hence the stay. Appellants seeking a writ of supersedeas may want to propose an expedited briefing schedule in their petition, in order to increase the likelihood that the court will grant the petition.

The writ will not issue until respondent has had an opportunity to file a memorandum and a statement of any material facts in opposition. Unless otherwise ordered, any opposition must be filed within 15 days after the petition and supporting points and authorities are filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.112].

For forms for use in an appellate court to obtain issuance of a writ of supersedeas, see § 43.90. For a form of petition and a form of writ of supersedeas to stay execution and levy, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments .

§ 43.22 Automatic Stay of Appellate Proceedings Due to Bankruptcy Proceedings

The commencement of a proceeding in bankruptcy by a debtor will operate to stay automatically most actions by creditors, including appeals in such actions [see 11 U.S.C. § 362(a)]. This is one situation in which an appeal may itself be stayed pending the outcome of another proceeding, as distinguished from the stay of lower court proceedings pending an appeal. However, the automatic stay does not preclude an appellate court from imposing sanctions on a party and/or the party's attorney for abuse of the appellate process, such as filing a frivolous appeal [Keitel v. Heubel (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 324, 333-336, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763 (sanctions considered government regulatory exception to stay)].

The First Appellate District, by local appellate rule, requires that any party to an appeal or writ proceeding pending in that court, who acquires knowledge of a bankruptcy proceeding that may cause or impose a stay of the appellate proceedings, must promptly give notice of the bankruptcy proceedings [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Rule 11(a); see Keitel v. Heubel (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 324, 340-342, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763 (failure to provide notice supported sanctions)]. The notice must be filed with the court and served on all parties and must include a copy of the most recent order of the bankrupty court, a copy of any stay order issued by that court, and an explanation of whether a stay order or an automatic stay is in effect and why the stay applies to the pending appeal or writ proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Rule 11(b)]. Thereafter, the debtor or other party for whose benefit the stay is taken must periodically serve and file reports on the status of the bankruptcy proceedings [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Rule 11(c)]. In addition, any party, at any time, may thereafter serve and file notice of any circumstances or orders permitting the appeal or writ proceeding to proceed, including evidence that the bankruptcy stay has been lifted, the bankruptcy proceeding has been dismissed, or the party has obtained relief from the stay [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Rule 11(d)].

It is recommended that this rule be used as a guideline to provide similar notice in appellate proceedings pending before courts other than the First District.

For further discussion and forms relating to bankruptcy stays and relief from the automatic stay provision, see Ch. 94, Bankruptcy .

§ 43.42 Decisions

[1] Appealability of Stay Order

Order of trial court staying enforcement of judgment pending appeal is appealable. Merritt v. J. A. Stafford Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 619, 622, 68 Cal. Rptr. 447, 440 P.2d 927

[2] Appellate Court's Power

Court of appeal has inherent power to issue process necessary to protect its appellate jurisdiction and to ensure that rights of appellant will not be destroyed by mere passage of time necessary to prosecute appeal. Adoption of Pierce (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 316, 320, 85 Cal. Rptr. 104

[3] Automatic Stay in Particular Proceedings

[a] Judgment for Costs

Attorney's fees recovered pursuant to contract provision and costs included in calculating amount of undertaking when some part of judgment is bondable. Banks v. Manos (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 123, 129, 283 Cal. Rptr. 318

Attorney's fees recovered pursuant to contract provision are element of costs when party has not recovered money damages and filing of notice of appeal stays execution without posting of undertaking. Nielsen v. Stumbos (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 301, 303-304, 276 Cal. Rptr. 272

Judgment for costs alone automatically stayed without bond pending appeal. Vadas v. Sosnowski (1989) 210 Cal.

Judgment for costs stayed automatically on perfecting appeal. Estate of Neilson (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 769, 772, 5 Cal. Rptr. 542

[b] Mandatory Injunction

Mandatory injunction automatically stayed on perfecting appeal. Kettenhofen v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 189, 191, 10 Cal. Rptr. 356, 358 P.2d 684 ; Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. v. Superior Court (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 709, 713, 196 Cal. Rptr. 920

[c] Partition Proceeding

Interlocutory order in partition action automatically stayed on perfecting appeal. Williams v. Wells Fargo Bank (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 104, 107, 109 P.2d 649

[d] Proceeding to Compel Arbitration

Appeal from order compelling arbitration affects entire case; further trial court proceedings are therefore stayed under Code Civ. Proc. § 916. Prudential-Bache Securities, Inc. v. Superior Court (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 924, 925, 247 Cal. Rptr. 477

[e] Writ of Mandate

Order directing issuance of writ of mandate automatically stayed on appeal. Hayworth v. City of Oakland (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 723, 727-728, 181 Cal. Rptr. 214 (citing Code Civ. Proc. § 1110b); Johnston v. Jones (1925) 74 Cal. App. 272, 273, 239 P. 862

[f] Anti-SLAPP Motion

All further proceedings on merits are stayed during pendency of appeal from denial of anti-SLAPP motion. Varian Medical Systems, Inc. v. Delfino (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 180, 191-196, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 298

[4] Deposit of Personal Property

Denial of motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 917.2 for appointment of custodian with whom property that is subject of litigation is to be deposited pending appeal. Mason v. Superior Court (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 913, 914-916, 100 Cal. Rptr. 557

Deposit of stock which is subject of litigation with clerk of trial court to stay enforcement pending appeal. Sherwood v. Wallin (1905) 1 Cal. App. 532, 537, 82 P. 566

[5] Injunction

Supersedeas is proper remedy to stay enforcement of preliminary prohibitory injunction pending appeal. Wind v. Hite (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 415, 416-417, 24 Cal. Rptr. 683, 374 P.2d 643 ; Sun-Maid Raisin Growers v. Paul (1964) 229

Cal. App. 2d 368, 373, 40 Cal. Rptr. 352

Prohibitory injunction is self executing and not stayed by appeal; injunction which ismandatory in character is automatically stayed by appeal. Kettenhofen v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 189, 191, 10 Cal. Rptr. 356, 358 P.2d 684 ; Food & Grocery Bureau v. Garfield (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 174, 176-177, 114 P.2d 579

Injunction which is prohibitory in part and mandatory in part is automatically stayed on appeal to extent it is mandatory. Kettenhofen v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 189, 191, 10 Cal. Rptr. 356, 358 P.2d 684 ; Food & Grocery Bureau v. Garfield (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 174, 176-177, 114 P.2d 579

Appellate court has inherent power to issue writ of supersedeas to stay execution of injunction where such stay is necessary or proper to complete exercise of its appellate jurisdiction, even where injunction is purely prohibitory. Food & Grocery Bureau v. Garfield (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 174, 177, 114 P.2d 579 ; see also Wind v. Hite (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 415, 416, 24 Cal. Rptr. 683, 374 P.2d 643

Determination of whether injunction is mandatory or prohibitory. Dry Cleaners & Dyers Institute v. Reiss (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 306, 309, 54 P.2d 470

[6] Judgment Directing Sale of Real Property

Code Civ. Proc. § 917.4 applies only to specific class of persons, appellants who have been ordered to sell or convey real property. Barnes v. Chamberlain (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 762, 767, 195 Cal. Rptr. 417

[7] Payment of Judgment

Voluntary payment of judgment does not deprive party of right to appeal unless payment was compromise or consideration for agreement not to prosecute appeal. Warner Bros. Co. v. Freud (1901) 131 Cal. 639, 644, 63 P. 1017 ; Vaughn v. De Kreek (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 671, 680, 83 Cal. Rptr. 144

[8] Sanctions

Attorney's fees award under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 is essentially judgment for money damages that must be bonded. Banks v. Manos (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 123, 129, 283 Cal. Rptr. 318

[9] Stipulation for Undertaking

Stipulation between appellant and respondent is appropriate procedure for fixing security on appeal. Merritt v. J. A. Stafford Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 619, 625, 68 Cal. Rptr. 447, 440 P.2d 927

[10] Sureties

Legal insufficiency of supersedeas or appeal bond to stay proceedings does not exonerate sureties when as matter of fact there is a stay, no execution is issued nor any attempt is made to collect execution if issued, or to enforce judgment. Merritt v. J. A. Stafford Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 619, 624, 68 Cal. Rptr. 447, 440 P.2d 927

[11] Trial Court's Jurisdiction

Trial court has no jurisdiction to hear proceedings on merits following appeal from denial of anti-SLAPP motion. Varian Medical Systems, Inc. v. Delfino (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 180, 189-190, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 298

Trial court retains jurisdiction to set amount of bond required to stay enforcement of order setting aside default. Conrad v. Superior Court (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 1362, 1365, 247 Cal. Rptr. 712

Stay of proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 916 pending appeal does not prohibit trial court from proceeding on any other matter embraced in action and is not affected by judgment or order, including discovery proceedings. Wisely v. Superior Court (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 267, 269-270, 220 Cal. Rptr. 893

Stay of proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 916 during perfecting of appeal does not divest trial court of subject matter jurisdiction over matters unrelated to appeal such as motion of new defendant for summary judgment. Beckstead v. International Industries, Inc. (1982) 127 Cal. App. 3d 927, 933-934, 179 Cal. Rptr. 767

Trial court has inherent power to set aside void orders or judgments at any time whether appeal perfected or not. Lovret v. Seyfarth (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 841, 854, 101 Cal. Rptr. 143 ; Macmillan Petroleum Corp. v. Griffin (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 523, 533, 222 P.2d 69

Trial court has jurisdiction to preserve subject of litigation until final determination on appeal. San Diego v. Southern California Tel. Corp. (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 110, 120 ; Hayes v. Risk (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 613, 628, 64 Cal. Rptr. 36

Filing of notice of appeal divests trial court of all jurisdiction in matters embraced by judgment or affected thereby. Olson v. Superior Court (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 311, 314, 79 Cal. Rptr. 136 ; see also Estate of Hanley (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 120, 123, 142 P.2d 423

Trial court is authorized to impose undertaking as condition to stay enforcement when not otherwise provided by statute. Estate of Murphy (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 564, 568, 94 Cal. Rptr. 141

[12] Writ of Supersedeas

Proper procedure for obtaining stay pending appeal is by petition to court in which appeal is pending for writ of supersedeas rather than for writ of mandate. Oren Royal Oaks Venture v. Greenberg, Bernhard, Weiss & Karma, Inc. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 1157, 1160, 232 Cal. Rptr. 567, 728 P.2d 1202

No explicit constitutional grant is necessary to authorize issuance of such auxiliary writs as supersedeas, which have long been recognized to be an attribute of inherent power of courts to preserve their own jurisdiction. People ex rel. S. F. Bay etc. Com. v. Town of Emeryville (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 533, 538, 72 Cal. Rptr. 790, 446 P.2d 790

Appellate courts may grant supersedeas when the denial of a stay would deprive appellant of benefit of a reversal of judgment. People ex rel. S. F. Bay etc. Com. v. Town of Emeryville (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 533, 537, 72 Cal. Rptr. 790, 446 P.2d 790 ; Deepwell Homeowners' Protective Asso. v. City Council of Palm Springs (1965) 239 Cal. App. 2d 63, 65-66, 48 Cal. Rptr. 321

Issuance by appellate court of stay order, injunctive in nature, serves function similar to that of supersedeas, and is authorized under Code Civ. Proc. § 923; that section is legislative affirmation of inherent power of appellate courts in California to issue injunctive stay orders in aid of their jurisdiction. People ex rel. S. F. Bay etc. Com. v. Town of Emeryville (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 533, 538-539, 72 Cal. Rptr. 790, 446 P.2d 790

Power of reviewing court to issue writ of supersedeas. Food & Grocery Bureau v. Garfield (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 174, 177, 114 P.2d 579 ; Sacramento Newspaper Guild v. Sacramento County Bd. of Supervisors (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 51, 53, 62 Cal. Rptr. 819

Determination of whether or not writ of supersedeas is proper as based on consideration of respective rights of litigants. Food & Grocery Bureau v. Garfield (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 174, 177, 114 P.2d 579 ; Sacramento Newspaper Guild v. Sacramento County Bd. of Supervisors (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 51, 53, 62 Cal. Rptr. 819

Purpose of writ of supersedeas is to maintain status quo. Dry Cleaners & Dyers Institute v. Reiss (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 306, 310, 54 P.2d 470 ; Sacramento Newspaper Guild v. Sacramento County Bd. of Supervisors (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 51, 53, 62 Cal. Rptr. 819

Supersedeas is appropriate remedy when it appears that party is refusing to acknowledge applicability of statutory provisions "automatically" staying judgment while appeal is being pursued. Nielsen v. Stumbos (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 301, 303, 276 Cal. Rptr. 272

Issuance of writ of supersedeas is precluded if appeal no longer pending and judgment has become final. In re Christy L. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 753, 758-759, 232 Cal. Rptr. 184

Unusual circumstances warrant exercise of court of appeal's discretion to issue writ of supersedeas with bond, with conditions to insure diligent prosecution of appeal, even though appellant may have statutory remedy of stay pending appeal on filing an undertaking. Estate of Murphy (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 564, 567-570, 94 Cal. Rptr. 141

Propriety of writs of prohibition and supersedeas to suspend effect of judgment of dismissal to preserve superior court's jurisdiction to make orders re custody, support, and visitation rights re minor child pending appeal. In re Marriage of Dover (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 675, 680-681, 93 Cal. Rptr. 384

Supersedeas is extraordinary writ issued by appellate court to lower court or officer thereof, directing that enforcement of judgment be stayed pending appeal in court issuing writ, when relief is necessary to protect appellant from serious injury in case of reversal, and will not cause respondent disproportionate injury in case of affirmance. California Table Grape Com. v. Dispoto (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 314, 316, 92 Cal. Rptr. 268

Appellate court has inherent power to issue process necessary to protect its appellate jurisdiction and to insure that rights of appellant will not be destroyed by mere passage of time necessary to prosecute appeal. Adoption of Pierce (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 316, 320, 85 Cal. Rptr. 104

Supersedeas does not issue to stay executed order. Superior Court v. Dist. Court of Appeal (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 293, 295, 54 Cal. Rptr. 119, 419 P.2d 183

Issuance by court of order to show cause why writ of supersedeas should not issue. Donen v. Donen (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 441, 450-451, 39 Cal. Rptr. 547

Supersedeas properly issues when statutory stay is not provided for or, if provided, sufficient reason appears why stay is not perfected in accordance therewith. Sandell, Inc. v. Bailey (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 518, 520, 14 Cal. Rptr. 347

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLISTS

5-43 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 43.60

AUTHOR: John L. Segal Author James C. Martin Editorial Consultant Mr. Segal chairs the appellate practice group of Mitchell Silberberg & Knupp, Los Angeles, California. Mr. Martin is a certified appellate law specialist and managing partner of the Los Angeles office of Crosby Heafey Roach & May.

§ 43.60 Appellant's Checklist

[1] Preliminary Steps

☐ Determine need to obtain stay of enforcement of judgment or order from which appeal is to be taken.

☐ Determine whether judgment or order is automatically stayed on filing of notice of appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 916; see discussion in § 43.13].

☐ If judgment or order will not be stayed automatically by filing notice of appeal, determine whether it may be stayed by undertaking or alternative procedure [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1 et seq.; see discussion in §§ 43.14, 43.15].

☐ The time limits and potential difficulties of obtaining the necessary bond, producing sufficient collateral for a bond, or arranging other appropriate measures to stay enforcment pending appeal may require attention of the most immediate and highest priority if an appeal is being considered.

☐ Request immediate, temporary stay after entry of judgment pending decision to file notice of appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 918; see discussion in § 43.19].

[2] Prepare and File Undertaking for Stay of Judgment Directing Payment of Money

☐ Consider negotiating stipulation or consent from opposing party to reduce or waive undertaking or accept security deposit in lieu of undertaking [see § 43.20[1] and forms of waiver and stipulation set out in §§ 43.70, 43.71].

☐ Absent waiver or consent to substitute security, arrange for sufficient undertaking to stay judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1; see discussion in § 43.15[1] and forms of undertaking set out in § 43.76[2], [4], [5]].

☐ Amount of undertaking to stay enforcement of a judgment or order for the payment of money is double the amount of the judgment or order unless given by an admitted surety insurer, in which event it is 11/2 times the amount of the judgment or order.

☐ Costs awarded by the trial court under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021 et seq. are included in the amount of the judgment or order for the purpose of determining the amount of the undertaking; no undertaking is required, however, solely for costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1].

☐ The liability of the undertaking may be enforced if the party ordered to pay does not make the payment within 30 days after the filing of the remittitur from the reviewing court.

[3] Prepare and Make Motion Requesting That Court Fix Sufficient Undertaking for Stay of Nonmoney Judgment

☐ If appeal is to be taken from the following types of nonmoney judgment or order, in which the undertaking must be fixed by court, prepare a motion requesting order to fix sufficient undertaking for stay [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.2 et seq.; see discussion in § 43.15[2] et seq., and forms of motion set out in § 43.72[1]]:

☐ Judgment or order directing the assignment or delivery of personal property [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.2; see discussion in § 43.15[2], and form of motion set out in § 43.72[1]]:

☐ Appellant may place the property in the custody of an officer designated by the court and this fact will be considered by the court in fixing the amount of the undertaking.

☐ If court directs that perishable property be sold, it may further order that the proceeds of the sale be deposited with the clerk of the trial court pending disposition of the appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.2].

☐ Judgment or order directing sale, conveyance, or delivery of possession of real property [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.4; see discussion in § 43.15[4], and form of motion set out in § 43.72[1]].

☐ Judgment or order appointing receiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.5; see form of undertaking to stay enforcement of a judgment or order generally set out in § 43.76[1]].

☐ The undertaking is in a sum fixed by the trial court and must be given on condition that, if the judgment or order is affirmed or the appeal is withdrawn or dismissed, the appellant will pay all damages that the respondent may sustain by reason of the stay in the enforcement of the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.5].

☐ Judgment or order effecting discharge of attachment on appeal by party who levied attachment.

☐ Attachment does not continue in force on appeal absent the filing of an undertaking fixed by the trial court under Code Civ. Proc. § 921 [see discussion in § 43.18 and form set out in § 43.74].

☐ Judgment or order, the stay of execution of which is conditioned on a court order requiring the giving of an undertaking.

☐ Even when the execution of an order or judgment is otherwise stayed by perfection of the appeal, the trial court has discretion to require an undertaking under Code Civ. Proc. § 917.9 in specified cases. If the court exercises this discretion, it fixes the sum of the undertaking and provides that if the judgment or order appealed from or any part of it is affirmed, or the appeal is withdrawn or dismissed, the appellant will pay all damages which the respondent may sustain by reason of the stay in enforcement of the judgment or order [see discussion in §§ 43.15[13] and 43.61[2]].

☐ File undertaking or bond fixed by court. The execution, format, and filing of bonds and undertakings are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 995.310 et seq. [see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings].

[4] Prepare and Make Motion to Reduce or Dispense With Undertaking When Appellant Is Fiduciary

☐ The trial court may dispense with or limit the security required when the appellant is an executor, administrator, trustee, guardian, conservator, or other person acting in another's right [Code Civ. Proc. § 919; see discussion in § 43.20[3] and form of motion to dispense with or limit security set out in § 43.73].

[5] Make Deposit in Lieu of Undertaking

☐ In cases in which an undertaking is required or permitted, a deposit in the trial court of the amount of the undertaking is the equivalent to the filing of the undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.710; see discussion in § 43.20[2]].

[6] Make Deposit of Executed Instrument

☐ In the case of a judgment or order directing execution of instrument, perfecting the appeal does not stay enforcement of the judgment or order unless the instrument is executed and deposited in the office of the clerk of the trial court [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.3; see discussion in § 43.15[3]].

[7] Prepare and Make Motion for Stay of Judgment or Order Not Involving Undertaking

☐ The execution of a judgment or order affecting the custody of a minor or excluding a party from a family dwelling or dwelling of another may be stayed by order of the trial court on noticed motion (or by petition for writ of supersedeas, discussed in § 43.62) [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.7; see discussion in § 43.15[8] and form of motion set out in § 43.78].

☐ The trial court may in its discretion stay execution of such order or judgment pending review on appeal, or for such other period it may deem proper except that, absent a writ or order of the appellate court providing otherwise, any provisions allowing or eliminating restrictions against removal of a minor child from the state are stayed by operation of law for a period of seven calendar days from the entry of judgment or order by a juvenile court in a dependency hearing, or for a period of 30 days from the entry of judgment or order by any other trial court. The periods during which these provisions allowing, or eliminating, restrictions against removal of the minor child from the state are stayed, are subject to further stays as ordered by the trial court or by the juvenile court pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 917.7. An order directing the return of a child to a sister state or country, including any order effectuating that return, made in a proceeding brought pursuant to the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act or the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction is not a judgment or order which awards, changes, or otherwise affects the custody of a minor child within the meaning of Code. Civ. Proc. § 917.7; therefore it is not subject to the automatic stay provisions of Code. Civ. Proc. § 917.7 [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.7].

☐ The execution of the following judgments and orders may be stayed by order of the trial court on noticed motion, usually by an appellant who was an unsuccessful defendant in the trial court proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.8; see discussion in § 43.15[9]-[12] and forms of motion set out in § 43.79]:

☐ Judgment that a party is guilty of usurping, or intruding into, or unlawfully holding a public office, civil or military, within this state.

☐ Judgment or order directing a corporation or its officers or agents, or any of them, to give to a person adjudged to be a director, stockholder, or member of the corporation a reasonable opportunity to inspect or make copies of such books, papers, or documents of the corporation as the trial court finds that the director, stockholder, or member is entitled by law to inspect or copy.

☐ Judgment or order adjudging a building or place to be a nuisance and directing the closing or discontinuance of any specific use of the building or place for any period of time.

☐ Judgment or order, including, but not limited to, a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, that grants reliefin an action brought by a governmental agency under Penal Code § 11225 et seq. (relating to buildings where illegal gambling, lewdness, assignation, or prostitution occurs) or Health and Safety Code § 11570 et seq. (relating to buildings where selling, serving, storing, keeping, manufacturing, or giving away controlled substances occurs)

[8] Alternative Petition for Writ in Appellate Court

☐ See § 43.62.

§ 43.61 Respondent's Checklist

[1] Waiver of Undertaking or Consent to Reduction

☐ In some instances respondent may waive an otherwise required undertaking, or consent to a reduction or other security in lieu of an undertaking [see discussion in § 43.20[1] and forms of waiver and stipulation set out in §§ 43.70, 43.71].

[2] Prepare and Make Motion to Require Undertaking Not Otherwise Required

☐ Respondent may in some cases request that the trial court exercise its discretion to fix an undertaking not otherwise requred [see discussion in § 43.15[13] and form of motion to fix undertaking in court's discretion set out in § 43.72[2]].

[3] Prepare and Make Objection to Undertaking and Request Increase in Undertaking or Other Additional Conditions ☐ Within 10 days after service of a copy of the bond or undertaking, respondent may object to the bond by noticed motion on the ground that the sureties are insufficient or the amount of the bond is insufficient [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.370, 995.920, 995.930]. If no objection is made to the sufficiency of the bond within 10 days, the respondent is deemed to have waived all objections except on a showing of good cause for failure to make the objection within the time required by statute or of changed circumstances [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.930(c)]. Subsequent objections to the sufficiency or excessiveness of the bond are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 996.010 et seq. [see discussion in § 43.20[5], [6] and forms of motions set out in §§ 43.74, 43.75].

☐ Unless the parties otherwise agree, the hearing on the motion must be held not less than two or more than five days after service of the notice of motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.950]. On the hearing, the court must make an order determining the sufficiency or insufficiency of the bond, and if the bond is insufficient,a sufficient bond must be given within five days or the court will order on ex parte motion that all rights determined by giving the bond immediately cease [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.960].

[4] Oppostion to Petition for Writ of Supersedeas

☐ See § 43.62[3].

§ 43.62 Petition for Writ of Supersedeas Filed in Court of Appeal

[1] Petition for Writ as Alternative to Trial Court Motion

☐ The provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 916 et seq. do not limit the power of an appellate court or justice thereof to stay proceedings during the pendency of an appeal or to issue a writ of supersedeas or to suspend or modify an injunction during the pendency of an appeal or to make any order proper to preserve the status quo, the effectiveness of the judgment subsequently to be entered, or otherwise in aid of its jurisdiction [Code Civ. Proc. § 923]. Code Civ. Proc. § 917.7, discussed in § 43.60[7], also expressly provides that the orders and judgments covered in that section may alternatively be writ of supersedeas.

☐ Issuance of the writ is a matter within the inherent power of the appellate court in aid of its appellate jurisdiction [People ex rel. S.F. Bay etc. Com. v. Town of Emeryville (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 533, 538, 72 Cal. Rptr. 790, 446 P.2d 790] . The appellate court may issue the writ when a stay of proceedings is not provided by statute or, if a stay is so provided, there is nevertheless sufficient reason why the appellant has not perfected a stay of proceedings in the trial court [Sandell, Inc. v. Bailey (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 518, 520, 14 Cal. Rptr. 347] .

[2] Prepare and Serve Petition for Writ

☐ Appellant prepares, serves, and files a verified petition for writ of supersedeas with the court of appeal in which the appeal is pending [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.112; see discussion in § 43.21 and form of petition in § 43.90]. For requirements applicable generally to papers prepared, served, and filed in the court of appeal, see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.40, and discussion in Ch. 45, Appeal: Motion Procedure .

☐ The petition bears the same title as the appeal and contains a statement of the necessity for the writ and supporting memorandum [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.112]. If a petition or other request for a stay or writ of supersedeas is bound with or included in the text of a petition for another writ, a petition for a hearing, or any other document, the cover must bear the conspicuous notation "STAY REQUESTED," and identify the nature and date of the proceeding or act sought to be stayed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.40(c), 8.116].

☐ If the record on appeal has not yet been filed in the court of appeal, the petition must contain a copy of the judgment, the date of its entry, the fact and date of filing of the notice of appeal, and a statement of the subject matter of the appeal sufficient to advise the reviewing court of the question involved [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.40(c), 8.112].

☐ A request for a temporary stay pending the granting or denial of the writ may be included in the petition or may be made separately. Except when the custody of a minor is involved, this request for a temporary stay may be made without service on the respondent [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.112].

[3] Opposition to Petition

☐ Unless otherwise ordered, respondent may file a memorandum and a statement of any material facts in opposition within 15 days after filing of the petition and memorandum supporting it [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.112].

[4] Disposition of Petition

☐ The writ may be issued on any conditions that the court of appeal deems just, but the writ will not issue until respondent has had an opportunity to file points and authorities and a statement of any material facts in opposition. A writ staying an order awarding or changing the custody of a minor is not granted without a hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.112].

I, _____ [name], declare:

1. I am _____ [identify declarant, e.g., an attorney at law duly admitted to practice before all the courts of the State of California and the attorney of record herein for _____ (moving party) or other statement as appropriate].

2. On _____ [date], _____ [either judgment was entered or an order was made] in favor of plaintiff _____ [name] and against defendant _____ [name]. It _____ [describe, e.g., directs the delivery of _____ (personal property) by _____ (name) to _____ (name)].

3. On _____ [date], a notice of appeal was filed by defendant _____ [name]. Under the provisions of Section _____ [917.2 or 917.4 or 917.5] of the Code of Civil Procedure, enforcement of such _____ [either judgment or order] will not be stayed pending the appeal unless defendant _____ [name] gives an undertaking in a sum [and on conditions] fixed by this court.

4. Defendant desires to stay enforcement of the judgment pending appeal and intends to cause an undertaking to be entered into and filed according to Section _____ [917.2 or 917.4 or 917.5] of the Code of Civil Procedure in such amount [and on such conditions] as [either is or are] fixed by order of the court.

5. _____ [State evidentiary facts in as many paragraphs as appropriate that will aid the court in fixing the amount and conditions of the undertaking].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

[Add memorandum of points and authorities supporting motion]

[b] Use of Form

The form set out in [a], above, is a notice of motion and declaration for use to obtain an order fixing the amount of the undertaking necessary to stay enforcement of an order or judgment pending appeal, when the amount of the undertaking must be fixed by order of the trial court when the appeal is taken from the following judgments or orders that include the following directions:

- The assignment or delivery of personal property, including documents [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.2; see discussion § 43.15[2]]. For an alternative form of motion and declaration for use in fixing the amount of an undertaking under Code Civ. Proc. § 917.2 after deposit of the personal property with an officer appointed for that purpose, see § 43.77.

- The sale, conveyance, or delivery of possession of real property [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.4; see discussion § 43.15[4]].

- The appointment of a receiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.5; see discussion § 43.15[5]].

The provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 916 et seq. do not require that a noticed motion be used to obtain an order fixing the amount of a required undertaking. Such an order may apparently be obtained by ex parte application [see McClintock v. Powley (1930) 210 Cal. 333, 337-338, 291 P. 833] . However, the noticed motion procedure is the preferred practice [see Hubbard v. University Bank (1898) 120 Cal. 632, 633, 52 P. 1070] and may be required by local rule. Current requirements for ex parte applications are also strict, designed to limit such proceedings to relatively extraordinary situations involving urgency and inability to communicate with opposing counsel [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1200 to 3.1207 and further discussion and forms in Ch. 372, Motions and Orders].

The supporting declaration should state facts that will aid the court in ascertaining the damage, if any, that may occur pending appeal under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 917.2, 917.4, or 917.5.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

[Add memorandum of points and authorities supporting motion]

[b] Use of Form

The form set out in [a], above, is a notice of motion and supporting declaration for use to request that the trial court exercise its discretion to require and undertaking and to fix the amount of that undertaking under Code Civ. Proc. § 917.9. When an appeal is taken from a judgment or order not otherwise specified in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 917.1 through 917.8, the perfecting of the appeal stays enforcement of the order or judgment pending the appeal unless the court exercises its discretion to condition the stay upon an undertaking under the conditions set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 917.9. For further discussion of the conditions and requirements for obtaining an undertaking under Code Civ. Proc. § 917.9, see discussion in § 43.15[13].

For discussion of the use of a noticed motion in this proceeding, as distinguished from an ex parte application, see [1][b], above.

The supporting declaration should state facts that will aid the court in ascertaining the damage, if any, that may occur pending appeal under Code Civ. Proc. § 917.9, see discussion in § 43.15[13].

[b] Use of Form

The form set out in [a], above, is a notice of motion, motion, and supporting declaration for use by the defendant and appellant to move the trial court for an order limiting or dispensing with a required undertaking under Code Civ. Proc. § 919. Code Civ. Proc. § 919 provides that the trial court may, in its discretion, dispense with or limit the security required by Code Civ. Proc. § 916 et seq., when the appellant is an executor, administrator, trustee, guardian, conservator, or other person acting in another's right.

The supporting declaration in the form sets out facts showing appellant's representative capacity and states whether an undertaking in that capacity has been posted or waived by court order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 919].

For further discussion, see § 43.20[3].

To _____ [identify party, e.g., plaintiff _____ (name)] and to _____ [name] his/her/its attorney of record:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on _____ [date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court, located at _____ [street address], _____ [city], _____ [identify party, e.g., defendant] _____ [name] will, and does, move for an order increasing the amount of the undertaking on stay of enforcement pending appeal from $ _____ to $ _____, a net increase of $ _____.

The motion will be made on the ground that the amount of the undertaking has become insufficient due to mounting postjudgment interest and appellate costs over the prolonged period of time the appeal has remained unresolved. It is estimated that the amount requested would be sufficient for the undertaking.

The motion will be based on this notice of motion, on the declaration of _____ [name], and the attached memorandum of points and authorities, on the papers and records on file herein, and on such oral and documentary evidence as may be presented at the hearing of the motion.

SUPPORTING DECLARATION OF _____ [name]

I, _____ [name], declare:

1. I am _____ [identify declarant, e.g., an attorney at law duly admitted to practice before all the courts of the State of California and the attorney of record herein for _____ (moving party) or other statement as appropriate].

2. On _____ [date], _____ [judgment was entered or an order was made] in favor of moving party and against _____ [identify party, e.g., defendant and appellant _____ (name)].

3. On _____ [date], _____, a notice of appeal was filed by _____ [identify party, e.g., defendant and appellant _____ (name)].

4. On _____ [date], an undertaking to stay enforcement pending the appeal was given in the amount of $ _____, which is _____ [double the amount of the judgment/order or one and one half times the amount of judgment/order].

5. From the date the notice of appeal was filed until present, the appeal has remained unresolved for a period of _____ [specify, e.g., two years]. _____ [Set forth further facts showing the protracted state of the appeal, e.g., Furthermore, as of the present date, _____ (identify opposing party, e.g., defendant and appellant) has not filed his/her/its opening brief).]

6. From the date of entry of the judgment/order, to the present, postjudgment interest has accrued in the amount of $ _____.

[7. Costs on appeal have accrued in the amount of $ _____, consisting of the following items: _____ (specify).]

8. As a consequence of the foregoing facts, should _____ [identify moving party, e.g., plaintiff and respondent] be successful on the appeal, there is a substantial possibility that the original undertaking would be insufficient to allow the moving party to have an assured source of funds to meet the amount of the judgment/order, costs, and postjudgment interest after postponing enjoyment of the trial court victory.

9. A sufficient amount for the undertaking would be $ _____. [This amount is arrived at as follows: _____ (set forth calculations, e.g.,

$ .....2,000,000.	Judgment and costs

_____ [typed name]

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

[Add memorandum of points and authorities supporting motion]

[b] Use of Form

The form set out in [a], above, is a notice of motion, motion, and supporting declaration for use when the amount of the original undertaking given to stay enforcement of a judgment or order pending appeal has become insufficient as a consequence of the appeal remaining unresolved for a prolonged period of time. The fact pattern provided in the form was adapted from Grant v. Superior Court (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 929, 275 Cal. Rptr. 564 . For further discussion, see § 43.20[6].

The determination is to be made on motion supported by affidavit or on the court's motion, and the motion is to be heard and notice of motion is to be given in the same manner as an objection to a bond [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.040, 996.010(b)]. That is, the notice of motion must be in writing and must specify the precise grounds for the motion. Since the ground is that the amount of the undertaking is insufficient, the notice of motion must also state the reason for the insufficiency and must include an estimate of the amount that would be sufficient [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.930]. Service of the notice of motion and other documents is made in the same manner as service of process in civil actions generally [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.030; see generally discussion and forms relating to service in Ch. 518, Service and Summons of Papers].

§ 43.76 Undertaking to Stay Enforcement of Judgment or Order Pending Appeal

[1] General Form of Undertaking

[a] FORM Undertaking to Stay Enforcement of Judgment or Order Pending Appeal--General Form of Undertaking

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	UNDERTAKING ON APPEAL

Defendant and Appellant _____ [name] desires to give an undertaking to stay enforcement pending appeal of the _____ [either judgment made or order entered] by the court in this cause on _____ [date], as provided by Code of Civil Procedure Section _____ [specify].

Therefore the undersigned sureties do hereby obligate ourselves, jointly and severally, to Plaintiff and Respondent _____ [name], under said statutory obligations, in the sum of $ _____, which is _____ [either double the amount of the judgment or the amount fixed by the court].

The address at which each appellant and each surety may be served with notices and papers as provided by Section 995.320(a)(2) of the Code of Civil Procedure is as follows:

_____ [name], _____ [address for service]
_____ [name], _____ [address for service]

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature of surety]
_____ [typed name]

_____ [date]

_____ [signature of surety]
_____ [typed name]

[b] Use of Form

The form set out in [a], above, is an undertaking substantially in the form set out in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.320 and 995.330, for use to stay the enforcement of a judgment or order pending appeal [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.320, 995.330]. This form may be used when, for example, when an undertaking is required under Code Civ. Proc. § 917.2, 917.4, 917.5, or 917.9 [see discussion in § 43.15[2],[4], [5], and [13], and forms for fixing the amount of undertaking in these situations in § 43.72.

For a form of undertaking specifically for use in staying the enforcement of a money judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1, see [2], below [see also discussion in § 43.15[1]]. For a form of undertaking specifically for use in continuing a preexisting attachment pending appeal, see [3], below [see also discussion in § 43.18].

Some courts provide a general form of undertaking that may be used for undertakings on appeal. Other courts require the attorney to draft his or her own form. If in doubt as to the practice in a given court, counsel should check with the court clerk.

If the undertaking is executed by personal sureties, it must be accompanied by an affidavit (or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) of qualifications of each such surety stating the matters set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 995.520 [see [4], below]. If the surety is an admitted surety insurer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.120], for the surety insurer to be accepted or approved without further acknowledgment, the bond must be executed in the surety insurer's name under penalty of perjury or the fact of execution must be duly acknowledged before an officer authorized to take and certify acknowledgments. In addition, either (1) a copy of the transcript or record of the unrevoked, duly certified instrument authorizing the person who executed the bond to do so on the insurer's behalf must be filed in the appropriate county clerk's office, or (2) a copy of a power of attorney must be attached to the bond [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.630].

If the amount of the undertaking is based on the value of property or an interest in property, a description and an estimate of the value of the property or interest must be included in this form [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.320(a)(3)].

For further discussion regarding the qualifications of, and objections to, sureties, see respectively, § 43.20[4] and [5].

For related discussion and forms concerning waiver of undertaking or deposits in lieu of undertakings, see §§ 43.20[1], [2], 43.70, and 43.71.

For a form of declaration for use in qualifying a personal or individual surety, see [4], below. For a form for use in service of the undertaking, see [5], below.

[2] Undertaking to Stay Money Judgment Under Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1

[a] FORM Undertaking to Stay Enforcement of Judgment or Order Pending Appeal--Undertaking to Stay Money Judgment Under Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	UNDERTAKING ON APPEAL

In an action in the Superior Court of California, County of _____, judgment was entered on _____ [date], rendered by the Honorable _____ [name], Judge of the Court, in favor of _____ [name] plaintiff, against _____ [name], defendant, for the sum of $ _____ with interest in the amount of $ _____.

Defendant _____ [name], is dissatisfied with the judgment, has appealed from this judgment to the Court of Appeal of the State of California, and desires a stay of enforcement of this judgment.

Consequently, we, the undersigned, _____ [name] of _____ County, and _____ [name] of _____ County, do hereby acknowledge ourselves, jointly and severally, bound in the sum of $ _____, to guarantee that, in the event that this judgment so appealed, or any part, is affirmed, or if the appeal from this judgment is withdrawn or dismissed, defendant will pay the amount directed to be paid by such judgment, or the part of such amount as to which the judgment is affirmed if affirmed only in part. If defendant does not make such payment within thirty (30) days after the remittitur from the Court of Appeal is filed in the Superior Court, then, on motion of plaintiff, judgment may be forthwith entered in favor of plaintiff and against ourselves as sureties for such amount, together with interest that may be due thereon and all costs that may be awarded against defendant on the appeal.

The address at which each appellant and each surety may be served with notices and papers as provided by Section 995.320(a)(2) of the Code of Civil Procedure is as follows:

_____ [name], _____ [address for service]
_____ [name], _____ [address for service]

_____ [date]

_____ [signature of surety]
_____ [typed name]

[b] Use of Form

The form set out in [a], above, is an undertaking for use to stay enforcement, pending appeal, of a judgment or order against defendant under Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1, for money or which directs the payment of money, and whether consisting of a special fund or not, and whether payable by the appellant or another party to the action [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 917.1; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.320, 995.330]. For a more general form of undertaking, see [1], above.

The surety submits himself or herself to the jurisdiction of the trial court in all matters affecting his or her liability on the bond or undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.420(a)]. If the judgment is affirmed and the surety pays the judgment, with or without action, then the surety is substituted to the rights of the creditor and is entitled to control, enforce, and satisfy the judgment as if the surety had recovered the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1(c)]. For further discussion of the amount, conditions, and requirements for an undertaking under Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1, see § 43.15[1]. See also discussion regarding undertakings and sureties generally in [1][b], above, and § 43.20.

For a form of declaration for use in qualifying a personal or individual surety, see [4], below. For a form for use in service of the undertaking, see [5], below.

2. I am a resident and _____ [either an owner of real property or householder] in California. My occupation is _____ [specify occupation]. My residence address is _____ [street address and city]; my business address is _____ [street address and city].

3. I am worth $ _____, the amount of the undertaking, in _____ [real and/or personal] property that is situated in California, over and above all my debts and liabilities, exclusive of property exempt from enforcement of a money judgment. [Note: If the undertaking exceeds $10, 000 and is executed by more than two sureties, each surety may declare that he or she is worth less than the amount of the undertaking, and it may be stipulated in the undertaking that the liability of the surety is limited to the worth of the surety stated in the declaration, provided that the aggregate worth of all sureties executing the undertaking is twice the amount of the undertaking (Code Civ. Proc. § 995.520(d)).]

[When the undertaking exceeds $5,000, add:]

4. The property belonging to me and relied on by me as qualifying me on the undertaking, and my best estimate of the fair market value of each such property, is as follows: _____ [set forth description sufficient for identification of property and estimate of fair market value].

5. The nature of my interest in the property is _____ [specify, e.g., owner in fee or sole owner].

[EITHER]

6. The property is subject to no charge or liens, of public record or otherwise, known to me. Nor is the property subject to any impediment or cloud known to me on the free right of possession, use, benefit, or enjoyment.

[OR]

6. The property is subject to the following charges and liens: _____ [specify, giving amounts]. Other than the foregoing charges and liens, the property is not subject to any other impediment or cloud known to me on the free right of possession, use, benefit, or enjoyment.

[CONTINUE]

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date].

_____ [signature of surety]
_____ [typed name]

[b] Use of Form

The form set out in [a], above, is a declaration for use to support an undertaking by a personal surety to continue in force an attachment or to stay enforcement of a judgment or order pending appeal [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.520; see also forms of undertaking set out in [1]-[3], above, and Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (general requirements for declarations under penalty of perjury)]. A declaration of the qualification of each personal surety must accompany any undertaking executed by one or more such sureties [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.520(a)].

For discussion regarding the sufficiency of personal sureties and the evidentiary facts required to be included in a declaration of qualification of a personal surety, see § 43.20[4][b].

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am _____ [the appellant or the attorney of record for the appellant] in the above-entitled appeal. I have read the foregoing petition and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge [, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

[Add memorandum of points and authorities supporting petition]

[b] Use of Form

The form set out in [a], above, is a petition is for use in requesting that the court of appeal issue a writ of supersedeas staying further proceedings in the trial court during the pendency of an appeal [see Code Civ. Proc. § 923; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.112, 8.116]. For further discussion of the writ of supersedeas and the requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.112, 8.116, see § 43.21 and [c], below.

[c] Format and Contents of Petition

A petition for a writ of supersedeas must bear the same title as the appeal, and be served and filed in the appellate court in which the appeal is pending. It must be verified, contain a statement of the necessity for the writ, and include a supporting memorandum [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.112]. If the record on appeal has not been filed with the reviewing court, the petition must contain a copy of the judgment, the date of its entry, the fact and date of filing of the notice of appeal, and a statement of the subject matter of the appeal sufficient to advise the reviewing court of the question involved [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.112].

If the petition is bound with or included in the text of a petition for another writ, a petition for a hearing, or any other document, the cover must state "STAY REQUESTED," and identify the nature and date of the proceeding or act sought to be stayed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.116].

The form and covers of petitions filed in appellate courts are governed generally by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.40, 8.204. For detailed discussion of these and other general format, content, service and filing requirements governing petitions and other papers filed in appellate courts, see Ch. 45, Appeal: Motion Procedure .

[2] Order Granting Petition

[a] FORM Proceeding for Writ of Supersedeas to Stay Judgment or Order--Order Granting Petition

[Caption. See [1][a], above.]

Appellant's verified petition for a writ of supersedeas came on regularly this day for hearing. Appellant _____ [name] appeared through his/her/its counsel, _____ [name]; respondent _____ [name] appeared through his/her/its counsel _____ [name].

On proof being made to the satisfaction of the court, and good cause appearing therefor,

IT IS ORDERED that a writ of supersedeas be issued by the clerk of this court staying enforcement of the judgment on appeal herein, and all proceedings thereunder, until further order of the court [, provided that petitioner file with the clerk of this court within _____ days from the date hereof an undertaking in the sum of $ _____. The undertaking is to be conditioned on performance of the judgment appealed from if affirmed in whole or in part or if the appeal is dismissed].

[The clerk shall not issue the writ unless the undertaking is first approved by the Presiding Judge of the Superior Court of California, County of _____.]

[The temporary stay hereinbefore granted shall remain in effect until _____ (date undertaking is required to be filed).]

Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
[Presiding] Justice

[b] Use of Form

The form set out in [a], above, is for submission, when appropriate, of a proposed order granting a petition for issuance of a writ of supersedeas. Appellate courts often draft and issue their own orders in such proceedings, rather than requesting submission of proposed orders by counsel. Counsel should consult local practice before preparing a proposed order in this type of proceeding.

[3] Writ of Supersedeas

[a] FORM Proceeding for Writ of Supersedeas to Stay Judgment or Order--Writ of Supersedeas

[Caption. See [1][a], above.]

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA:
TO THE SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF _____:

WHEREAS, _____ [name], appellant in the above entitled action, has taken an appeal to this court from the _____ [either order or judgment] rendered by the Honorable _____ [name], Judge presiding in [Department _____ of] the Superior Court of California, County of _____, and entered against appellant on _____ [date], decreeing that _____ [state], [and]

[WHEREAS, appellant has, under an order of this court heretofore made and entered, filed an undertaking in the sum of $ _____, conditioned on performance of the _____ either order or judgment) appealed from if it be affirmed in whole or in part, or if the appeal is dismissed;]

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the _____ [either judgment or order] not be enforced pending the appeal herein, and we command and enjoin you to suspend enforcement of the _____ [either judgment or order] and all proceedings thereon, until final determination of this cause on appeal.

WITNESS, the Honorable _____ [name], Presiding Justice of the California Court of Appeal, _____ [number] District, Division _____ [number], and the seal of this court.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Clerk of the Court

[b] Use of Form

The form set out in [a], above, is for submission as a proposed writ of supersedeas to be issued by the court of appeal to direct the trial court to stay proceedings pending appeal. Most appellate courts draft their own writs, and counsel should consult the practice of the appellate court before drafting and submitting a proposed writ.

§ 44.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the procedures for preparing, augmenting, certifying, and transmitting the record in a civil appeal.

The chapter includes the following:

- Part II, Subpart A [see § 44.10 et seq.], discusses the elements of the record on appeal, and considerations in selecting the record in particular appeals, and Part V, Subpart A, includes the following related forms:

  - A notice of settlement, before the record is completed, directed to the superior court [see § 44.200].

  - A request or stipulation for an abandonment or voluntary dismissal of the appeal before the completed record has been filed in the court of appeal [see § 44.201].

- Part II, Subpart B [see § 44.30 et seq.], discussing the clerk's transcript, the procedures for its designation and preparation, and its alternatives, and Part V, Subpart B, includes the following related forms:

  - Notices to prepare a clerk's transcript with various typical designations of its contents [see § 44.210 et seq.].

  - Notices of election to prepare an appendix in lieu of a clerk's transcript, and an objection to that election [see § 44.220 et seq.].

- A stipulation to use the superior court file in lieu of a clerk's appendix [see § 44.230].

- Part II, Subpart C [see § 44.50 et seq.], discussing the reporter's transcript, the procedures for its designation and preparation, and its alternatives, and Part V, Subpart C, includes the following related forms:

  - Notices to prepare a reporter's transcript with various typical designations of its contents, including a stipulation for a partial transcript [see § 44.240 et seq.].

  - A reporter's waiver of fee deposit [see § 44.245].

  - Motions and notices relating to the use of a settled statement in lieu of a reporter's transcript [see § 44.250 et seq.].

- Part II, Subpart D [see § 44.70 et seq.], discussing procedures in completing the record when there are multiple consolidated appeals or cross appeals, and Part V, Subpart D, includes the following related forms:

  - Notice and request relating to the preparation of a record involving consolidated appeals [see § 44.270].

- Part II, Subpart E [see § 44.80 et seq.], discussing procedures for transmission and filing of the completed record on appeal, and Part V, Subpart E, includes the following related forms:

  - A request for transmittal of exhibits [see § 44.280].

- Part II, Subpart F [see § 44.90 et seq.], discussing procedures for augmentation and correction of the completed record, and Part V, Subpart F, includes the following related forms:

  - Applications, motions, stipulations relating to the augmentation, correction, or certification of the record [see § 44.290 et seq.].

- Part II, Subpart G [see § 44.100 et seq.], discussing procedures for sealing and unsealing otherwise public records on appeal, and Part V, Subpart G, includes the following related forms:

  - Motions to seal or unseal records, order sealing records, and cover sheet for lodging records under seal [see § 44.300 et seq.].

§ 44.10 Governing Law

Designation, preparation, and transmission of the record on appeal from a final judgment or appealable order of the superior court in a civil case generally are governed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.120-8.130, 8.144-8.155 [see also, Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.60(b), (c), 8.23, 8.163, 8.4; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 269, 670].

Local rules of the courts of appeal and their established internal operating procedures may also affect the process of preparing the record, and these should be consulted as well [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st. App. Dist., Rules 4-6, 9; Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 2d App. Dist., Rules 1-3; Cal. § 44.11 Elements of the Record on Appeal

[1] Purpose of the Record

The purpose of the record on appeal is to permit the appellate court to review trial court proceedings for asserted errors of law. Error is not presumed; prejudicial error must be affirmatively shown by the record to have occurred [Denham v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 557, 564, 86 Cal. Rptr. 65, 468 P.2d 193 ; Erickson v. R.E.M. Concepts, Inc. (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1073, 1086-1087, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 39 (by not including reporter's transcript of testimony and other evidence introduced at trial, appellant failed to present evidentiary record sufficient to show trial court abused its discretion); Protect Our Water v. County of Merced (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 362, 364, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 726 (stressing importance of clear and complete record and denying appeal based on inability to find things in record); Null v. City of Los Angeles (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1528, 1532, 254 Cal. Rptr. 492] .

For more detailed discussion of the prejudicial error rule and its implications, see § 44.12 [see also Ch. 41, Appeal: Review Standards and Appellate Rules of Law, § 41.10[1], [2]].

[2] Summary of Traditional Elements of the Record

The record is traditionally comprised of two, or, more accurately, three basic elements:

- A clerk's transcript, or other cognizable compilation of copied or original documents in the trial court's file [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 4.5, 8.120, 8.122, and discussion in §§ 44.31, 44.32].

- The trial exhibits, although these are regarded as a part of the clerk's transcript [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.120(a), (d), (e), and discussion in § 44.81[3]].

- A reporter's transcript of relevant oral proceedings conducted in the trial court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130, and discussion in §§ 44.51, 44.52].

In any given appeal, one or more of these elements may be unavailable or unnecessary. The appeal may, for example, neither involve nor require any reporter's transcription of or oral proceedings conducted in the trial court.

[3] Summary of Alternative Elements of the Record

The alternatives to the clerk's and reporter's transcripts, specifically, are the following:

- By far the most common alternative is the appendix, whether prepared as a joint and single appendix or as separate appendices of the parties [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124, and discussion in [4], below, and § 44.33]. It may be used as a clerk's transcript in combination with a reporter's transcript.

- Another increasingly common alternative is the stipulated use of the superior court file in lieu of the clerk's transcript, when such stipulation is permitted by local appellate rule [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.128, and discussion in § 44.34]. The use of this alternative is less common than that of an appendix, and, while more economical than both, has less flexibility than either in terms of ensuring the inclusion of all necessary items for review. This file, like an appendix, may be used like a clerk's transcript in conjunction with a reporter's transcript.

- Much more rarely utilized alternatives are the agreed or settled statements in lieu of clerk's transcript, the reporter's transcript, or both [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.134, 8.137, and discussion in §§ 44.34, 44.53, 44.54].

- The most antique and rarely used alternative, still on the books, is an appeal on the "judgment roll." This is a record comprised exclusively of an abbreviated clerk's transcript, the contents of which are prescribed by statute. Although economical, the issues that may be raised on such a record are so limited that the risk of not being able to raise reversible error will almost certainly outweigh any benefit of using this type of record [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.163; Code Civ. Proc. § 670; Nielsen v. Gibson (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 318, 324-325, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 335 (review limited to determining whether any error appears on face of record); Bond v. Pulsar Video Productions (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 918, 924, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 917 (trial court's findings of fact and conclusions of law are presumed to be supported by substantial evidence and are binding unless reversible error appears in the record); Ducray v. Ducray (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 480, 482, 64 Cal. Rptr. 825 (issues confined to whether the complaint stated a cause of action, whether the findings are within the issues, and whether the judgment is supported by the findings)].

NOTE:

Status of Electronic Transcripts as Alterative Form of Record. The Judicial Council adopted procedures permitting the use of electronic recordings of trial court proceedings in lieu of a traditional reporter's transcript [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.952; see also former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 980.3 (repealed effective January 31, 1997)]. Case law decisions have superseded the usefulness of these rules [see California Court Reporters Assn., Inc. v. Judicial Council of California (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 959, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 529 ("CCRA II") (affirming trial court's judgment on remand from "CCRA I" (below) prohibiting the use of electronic recording to create the official record of superior court proceedings); California Court Reporters Assn., Inc. v. Judicial Council of California (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 15, 33, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44 ("CCRA I") (holding Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 980.3 invalid under Code Civ. Proc. § 269); Moustakas v. Dashevsky (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 752, 754, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 753 (denying parties' request to use uncertified copy of videotape in place of a written reporter's transcript)].

[4] Presumption When Elements of Record Are Incomplete

The reviewing court will presume that the record in an appeal includes all matters material to deciding the issues raised. If the appeal proceeds without a reporter's transcript, this presumption applies only if the claimed error appears on the face of the record [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.163]. This presumption may in some instances aid an appellant appealing by choice or necessity on a partial record [see Dumas v. Stark (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 673, 674, 16 Cal. Rptr. 368, 365 P. 2d 424 (appeal on partial clerk's transcript)]. For further discussion, see § 44.13[2][e].

[5] Choosing the Elements of a Particular Record

Many appellants' counsel choose what they consider to be the safer course, at least in terms of presenting the record most likely to disclose reversible error. That is, they designate the traditional preparation of both a clerk's and reporter's transcript [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.130, 8.122], together with a request for transmission of all relevant exhibits [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.224]. The preparation of such a record may be expensive, and may cause significant delaysin large cases, but is often perceived to be the record that will provide the greatest opportunity for disclosing error, as well as requiring the least effort in terms of analysis and evaluation to determine the most effective and least costly record.

PRACTICE TIP:

Evaluate Carefully the Elements Best Suited for Your Case. One of most complex and critical initial decisions to be made by counsel for appellant, and one which must be done quickly given the time limits for designating the record, is what the record presented on appeal should be. Weighing the demands of the case against the options in preparing the record, to find a balance that will best serve the client in terms both of cost and presenting the record most likely to yield successful results, is often a difficult decision even for counsel specializing in appellate practice. Trial counsel who choose to pursue an appeal are encouraged to associate experienced appellate practitioners for this purpose, if they have not already done so, for an evaluation of the fundamental merits of the appeal [see discussion in Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview, § 40.15, and Ch. 41, Review Standards and Appellate Rules of Law, § 41.10 et seq.]. In many cases a decision will require negotiation with respondent's counsel on the issue of presenting a joint appendix, which in some cases will give both parties more flexibility in presenting the best record at the least expense.

In some cases a traditionally composed record will, in fact, best serve the client, especially if appellant's counsel has carefully reviewed the court's file and analyzed the potential issues on appeal beforehand, so as to minimize costs by designating only the essential items needed in both the clerk's and reporter's transcripts.

On the other hand, preliminary evaluation and selective designation of traditional clerk's and reporter's transcripts entails a risk of omitting items whose relevance may only become apparent later, for example, during the briefing process. Appellant's counsel on appeal are sometimes hamstrung by an incomplete clerk's transcript designated by appellant's trial counsel.

These considerations lead many appellate practitioners to prefer the use of an appendix or appendices in lieu of clerk's transcript, which provides greater flexibility in that it allows counsel more time to determine, and include, the documents to be presented in lieu of clerk's transcript. Because appellant and respondent prepare the appendix or appendices themselves, and do so while they are actually writing their briefs, this method can save a substantial amount of time, money, and paper. In this way, for example, counsel may include the trial court briefs, the relevance of which may not have become > apparent by the deadline for designating all the elements of the clerk's transcript, without going to the expense and trouble of augmentation proceedings.

> Notwithstanding the current invalidity of electronic transcripts in lieu of print transcripts [see [3], above], it is nevertheless possible to obtain an additional copy of the original, paper reporter's transcript in "computer-readable form," that is, on diskette, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 271, at a nominal cost [Gov. Code § 69954(a)]. Assuming counsel's office is computerized, it is almost always a good idea to get this disk. There is simply no better way than running a computer search for a key word, name, or phrase, in order to track down that bit of testimony or colloquy that you feel certain is there, but which somehow did not make it into your index or summary of the record.

In designating and preparing the record, counsel should remember to consult local appellate rules. These may not only affect matters such as designation or augmentation, but may also affect a party's choice of the record. In particular, use of the superior court file in lieu of a clerk's transcript is dependent on whether the practice is permitted by local rule, and both the Second and Sixth Appellate Districts have not yet adopted local rules permitting this option [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.128, and discussion in § 44.34].

For more detailed discussion of factors to be considered in designating the elements of the record in a particular case, see § 44.13.

For detailed discussion of procedures for designation and preparation of clerk's and reporter's transcripts, and their alternatives, see respectively §§ 44.30 et seq. and 44.50 et seq.

§ 44.12 Burden to Produce Record Showing Error

[1] Appellant Has Primary Burden to Produce Record Showing Error

It is perhaps the most fundamental principle of appellate law that a trial court's orders and judgment are presumed to be correct. Therefore, unless the record demonstrates otherwise, the reviewing court will make all presumptions and "indulge all intendments" in favor of the lower court's action [Veguez v. Governing Board of Long Beach Unified School District (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 406, 421, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 526 (because neither party obtained statement of decision, all intendments favor ruling below); In re Marriage of Gray (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 974, 977-978, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 271 (trial court's express finding presumed correct because party failed to furnish record to impeach trial court's finding)]. When the record is silent, the appellate court will presume that the evidence below supported the findings and judgment [Border Business Park, Inc. v. City of San Diego (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1538, 1550, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 259] . It may thus presume that a matter that could have been presented, or an argument that might have been made, was so presented or made, or even that the parties consented to, or waived objection to, the trial court's action [see, e.g., Construction Financial v. Perlite Plastering Co. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 170, 179 ; Bennett v. McCall (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 122, 127, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 268 ; County of Santa Clara v. Redevelopment Agency (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1008, 1016, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 868 ; Buckhart v. San Francisco Residential Rent etc. Bd. (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1032, 1036, 243 Cal. Rptr. 298] .

Further, unless the appellant provides a record disclosing error that is prejudicial in that it resulted in a miscarriage of justice, the appellate court can do nothing other than affirm the trial court's action [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 13; Code Civ. Proc. § 475; see also Evid. Code §§ 353, 354; Pool v. City of Oakland (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 1051, 1069, 232 Cal. Rptr. 528, 728 P.2d 1163 ; see, e.g., Waller v. TJD, Inc. (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 830, 832, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 38.] . In fact, an abject failure to present an adequate record may serve as evidence, on a motion for sanctions, that an appeal was taken frivolously [Cosenza v. Kramer (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 1100, 1102, 200 Cal. Rptr. 18] .

A cross appellant bears the same burden as an appellant of presenting an adequate record [Amato v. Mercury Casualty Co. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1784, 1794, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73 ; see also [2], below]. Consequently, if a cross appellant fails to augment or otherwise provide a record that adequately supports the issues raised in a cross appeal, the appellate court will not consider the merits of those issues [Ballard v. Uribe (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 564, 574-575, 224 Cal. Rptr. 664, 715 P. 2d 624 ; Hodges v. Mark (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 651, 657, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 700] .

It is up to the appellant, therefore, as the party who is challenging the trial court's action, to overcome the presumption of validity that attaches to that court's judgments or orders by providing an "adequate" record that discloses the asserted error and enables the appellate court to review and correct it [Aguilar v. Avis Rent A Car System, Inc. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 121, 132, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 132, 980 P.2d 846 ; Wagner v. Wagner (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 249, 259, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 511 ; Barak v. The Quisenberry Law Firm (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 654, 658-659, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 688 ; Weiss v. Brentwood Sav. & Loan Asso. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 738, 746, 84 Cal. Rptr. 736] .

For more detailed discussion of the prejudicial error rule, see Ch. 41, Appeal: Review Standards and Appellate Rules of Law, § 41.10[1], [2]. See also discussion in [4], below, regarding the appellate court's power to augment the record or order up the trial court's file on its own motion.

[2] Respondent's Burden

[a] On Appeal From Post-Trial Order

Although appellant bears the primary burden of providing an adequate record, there are some circumstances in which the burden ultimately rests on the respondent. For example, in granting a new trial, the trial court is required to specify the reasons for doing so [Code Civ. Proc. § 657]. If a party appeals from an order granting a new trial on the ground that the order fails adequately to specify reasons for granting the new trial, the appellate court will reverse the order unless the respondent, as the party who prevailed in the post-trial proceedings, presents a record that discloses such errors as would justify the court's grant of a new trial [see Gaskill v. Pacific Hosp. of Long Beach (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 128, 133, 77 Cal. Rptr. 373 ; Tagney v. Hoy (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 372, 377, 67 Cal. Rptr. 261] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Respondent's Record in a Protective Cross Appeal. In an appeal from a postjudgment order granting a new trial or vacating the judgment, the respondent is in essence a losing party as to the original judgment as well as the winning party as to the postjudgment order being appealed. The respondent will thus commonly file a "protective" cross appeal, so that, in the event that the postjudgment order is reversed on appeal, the respondent will still be able to the challenge the original judgment in the cross appeal [see also Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal, §§ 42.11[2][a][iii], 42.12[4A]]. In this situation, the respondent's/cross appellant's task in designating the record is essentially that of an appellant challenging the original judgment. He or she should therefore designate complete trial transcripts and all relevant trial proceedings, such as will present an adequate record to challenge the judgment as well as support the postjudgment order.

Similarly, a postjudgment order denying a new trial, if challenged on appeal, will be reversed if the respondent (as the party prevailing on both the original judgment and the postjudgment motion proceeding) fails to rebut the presumption of prejudice that arises on a showing by appellant of juror misconduct [see Lankster v. Alpha Beta Co. (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 678, 683-684, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 923] . Thus, when a special rule of law creates a presumption that a certain type of error is prejudicial, and the appellant has demonstrated the error occurred, the burden shifts to respondent to present a record demonstrating that no prejudice actually resulted.

For further discussion of postjudgment proceedings and the special rules that apply in those proceedings, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial .

[b] To Ensure Affirmance Generally

It is possible to defend an appeal successfully on the ground that appellant failed to meet his or her burden of producing an adequate record [see, e.g., Arruda v. Arruda (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 410, 414, 32 Cal. Rptr. 257] . Sometimes, however, this tactic can backfire [see, e.g., Hillman v. Leland E. Burns, Inc. (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 860, 864, 257 Cal. Rptr. 535 (court relies on Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.163, in appeal on appellant's appendix where respondent did not seek to augment record, to presume that trial court's interpretation of contract did not turn upon extrinsic evidence and apply de novo standard of review); see also discussion re presumption of completeness of partial record in § 44.16].

PRACTICE TIP:

Respondent Should Carefully Ensure Adequate Record in Any Case. Even where the burden of producing an adequate record falls squarely on the appellant, it is in respondent's best interest to review carefully the appellant's designation of the record in light of the issues identified or likely to be raised on appeal and, of course, in light of any defenses.

The respondent should also insure that the record includes support for affirming the judgment or order on any ground. The respondent may be able to rely on the "right ruling for wrong reason" rule, under which the appellate court will affirm a ruling that is correct on any applicable theory, regardless of the reasoning of the trial court used in making the ruling [see Ch. 41, Appeal: Review Standards and Appellate Rules of Law, § 41.14[3]].

Respondent should not hesitate to counterdesignate additional matters or, if necessary, move to augment the record at a later date [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.136(a), 8.122(a)(2), 8.155; Mountain Lion Coalition v. Fish & Game Com. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1043, 1051 n.9, 263 Cal. Rptr. 104 (respondents have same obligation as appellants to insure that the record contains matter on which they rely); but see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(4) (respondent may not counterdesignate oral proceedings when appellant has not designated reporter's transcript in the first instance)].

For discussion of counterdesignation and augmentation proceedings, see respectively §§ 44.32[2], 44.90 et seq.

[3] Reviewing Court Need Not Consider Matters Not Included in Record

Appellate courts need not, and almost always will not, consider an issue not presented by the record on appeal [In re Salazar (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 102, 105, 22 Cal. Rptr. 770 ; see also Wagner v. Wagner (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 249, 259, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 511 ; Ritschel v. City of Fountain Valley (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 107, 122-123, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 48 (court's summary analysis of issues based only on documents properly included in incomplete appellate record)]. This principle applies to matters the parties intentionally or inadvertently omitted from the record, as discussed in [1], above. It also applies to issues based on facts that were never presented to or determined by the trial court (although the appellate court has discretion in some instances to review an issue not raised below if it in no way turns on factual issues, whether present in the record or not) [see Doers v. Golden Gate Bridge etc. Dist. (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 180, 184 n.1, 151 Cal. Rptr. 837, 588 P.2d 1261 ; Westlye v. Look Sports, Inc. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1715, 1727-1728, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 781 ; Pulver v. Avco Financial Services (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 622, 632, 227 Cal. Rptr. 491] . However, although factual assertions contained in the appeal briefs, not presented to the trial court, may not be the basis for a reviewing court's decision, it may be appropriate for the reviewing court to consider such assertions or presentations in order to assess the likely future course of the case if an order is reversed. This is especially true if evidence has been effectively excluded by the trial court [Rhaburn v. Superior Court (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 1566, 1573, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 464] .

The policy against deciding issues not of record also applies to matters occurring after the judgment was entered [Reserve Ins. Co. v. Pisciotta (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 800, 813, 180 Cal. Rptr. 628, 640 P. 2d 764] . For further discussion of these principles, see Ch. 41, Appeal: Review Standards and Appellate Rules of Law, § 41.10.

For discussion of limited exceptions to the application of these principles, see [4], below.

[4] Appellate Court's Power to Augment Record or Consider Matters Outside the Record

[a] Augmenting the Record on the Appellate Court's Own Motion

The failure to provide an adequate record is almost always fatal to an appeal, regardless of its apparent merit. In effect, the appellant defaults on his or her burden to make an affirmative showing of error, requiring the appellate court to affirm [Mountain Lion Coalition v. Fish & Game Com. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1043, 1051 n.9, 263 Cal. Rptr. 104 ; see, e.g., Calhoun v. Hildebrandt (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 70, 72, 40 Cal. Rptr. 690 (appellant who fails to provide relevant transcript cannot prevail on claim that opposing counsel made prejudicial, racial argument to jury); Altman v. Poole (1957) 151 Cal. App. 2d 589, 593, 312 P.2d 6 (motion to dismiss granted for failure to provide record)].

The appellate court does possess the power to order up the original superior court file, or to order that portions of the oral proceedings be transcribed or an agreed or settled statement prepared, on its own motion, but this power has only been exercised in a few, exceptional cases. [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(a); Mountain Lion Coalition v. Fish & Game Com. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1043, 1051 n.9, 263 Cal. Rptr. 104 (because of intense public interest in litigation, reviewing court ordered up original superior court file, but stated "there is no reasonable basis" to assume this procedure would be used in the future); see also Scala v. Jerry Witt & Sons, Inc. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 359, 367 n.4, 90 Cal. Rptr. 592, 475 P.2d 864 (need to resolve important conflict among courts of appeal outweighs failure to present adequate record, but reviewing court averts added expense and delay of ordering transcription of oral proceedings or preparation of agreed or settled statement by relying on recitation of evidence in motion for new trial)]. Unless the court orders otherwise, the appellant is responsible for the cost of any reporter's transcript the court may order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(4)].

No party, however, should ever rely on the appellate court to exercise its power to complete the record to save an appeal. For detailed discussion of augmentation and correction of the record, see § 44.90 et seq.

[b] Appellate Proceedings for Additional Evidence or Findings

Appellate courts have discretion, rarely exercised, to take additional evidence and issue findings of fact in appropriate cases [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 11; Code Civ. Proc. § 909; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.252; Golden West Baseball Co. v. City of Anaheim (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 11, 41-42, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 378] (discretionary power to make additional findings in cases where jury trial is not a matter of right should be invoked sparingly); Philippine Export & Foreign Loan Guar. Corp. v. Chuidian (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1058, 1090, 267 Cal. Rptr. 457 (additional evidence must enable reviewing court to affirm, not reverse; power never used where there is conflicting evidence in the record and substantial evidence supports trial court's findings).

For more detailed discussion of these procedures and their uses, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.21.

[c] Judicial Notice

An appellate court may, like trial courts, take judicial notice of matters, including those not in the record on appeal [see Evid. C. § 459; Doers v. Golden Gate Bridge, Highway & Transp. Dist. (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 180, 184 n.1, 151 Cal. Rptr. 837, 588 P.2d 1261 ; Giles v. Horn (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 206, 228, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 735 (court granted request for judicial notice when opposing party failed to file any opposition); Ehrler v. Ehrler (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 147, 153, 178 Cal. Rptr. 642 (judicial notice of trial court's calendar)]. Appellate courts will often refuse to do even this, however, if it requires consideration of matters not before the trial court [see Vons Companies, Inc. v. Seabest Foods, Inc. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 434, 444 n.3, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 899, 926 P.2d 1085 ; Brosterhous v. State Bar of California (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 315, 325, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 87, 906 P.2d 1242 , and discussion in Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.12[3]].

For discussion relating to judicial notice and a form of request that may be adapted for use in an appellate court, see Ch. 321, Judicial Notice .

[d] Evidence Relevant to Appellate Motions

An appellate court may obviously consider declarations and other cognizable evidence presented in support of appellate motions. These include motions that may ultimately be dispositive of the appeal on its merits, such as a motion to dismiss an appeal because of the occurrence of events that have rendered the matter moot [see Reserve Ins. Co. v. Pisciotta (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 800, 813, 180 Cal. Rptr. 628, 640 P.2d 764 (insurer went bankrupt); Daly v. Superior Court (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 132, 141, 137 Cal. Rptr. 14, 560 P.2d 1193 (partial settlement reached); Evans Products Co. v. Millmen's Union No. 550 (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 815, 820 n.5, 205 Cal. Rptr. 731 (minor reached the age of 18); but see Building Industry Ass'n v. City of Oxnard (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 1, 3, 218 Cal. Rptr. 672, 706 P.2d 285 (ordinance modified)].

For detailed discussion of dismissal for mootness and other prehearing dispositions on the merits, see Ch. 48, Appeal: Abandonment, Dismissal, and Stipulated Reversal .

§ 44.13 Determining the Type of Record Needed

[1] In General

As discussed in § 44.11[2], the record on appeal typically is comprised of both a reporter's and a clerk's transcript. Whether both these elements are needed, and to what extent, and whether one or more of the alternatives summarized in § 44.11[3] may suffice (e.g., appendix or superior court file in lieu of clerk's transcript), will depend on the issues presented by the appeal and a variety of other factors. The determination of the record must always be analyzed on a case-by-case basis.

The more significant factors to be weighed when determining the type of record needed on appeal are the following:

- The nature of the issues to be raised on appeal, and the standard of review that applies to each issue [see [2][a], below].

- The procedural context of the appeal [see [2][b], below].

- The expense involved in preparing the various elements [see [2][c], below].

- The degree of cooperation to be expected from respondent or respondent's counsel [see [2][d], below].

- The presumption of correctness applicable to an incomplete record [see [2][e], below].

The determination of the elements needed for the record is intertwined with the analysis of the issues on appeal. In order to accomplish both tasks, appellant's counsel must examine, or reexamine, all the information pertaining to the case that is readily available either through trial counsel's case file or the court: the pleadings; discovery proceedings and their results; notes concerning the results of "informal discovery," that is, interviews and investigations; pretrial motions and orders; in limine motions and orders; voir dire notes or juror interviews orquestionnaires; trial notes; trial briefs; the text, if available, of opening and closing arguments; jury instructions, correspondence with the client; correspondence or negotiations with opposing counsel; final orders or judgments; post-trial proceedings and orders; court minutes, docket sheets, or exhibits lists. All may prove useful in developing an overall sense of "what happened." Do not overly depend on the personal recollection of trial counsel, even if such recollection is your own.

After such review, list all potential issues, determine the standard of review applicable to each, and assess which, if any, are worth pursuing on appeal [see [2][a], below].

Once you have identified the potentially meritorious issues, the question is: what elements are needed in the record in order for the appellate court to find, in that record, the existence of the prejudicial error or errors on which you intend to focus your case? At this point a little further research will help you to identify readily the record you're going to need. As discussed further in [3], below, the most fundamental consideration is whether a reporter's transcript, or some other record of the oral proceedings in the trial court, is necessary. A reexamination of the court's minutes, docket sheets, and exhibit lists, with your short list of issues in hand, will help you to develop a list of the dates and times of critical proceedings, with the name of the reporters present at those proceedings, all of which may readily be incorporated into a notice to prepare a reporter's transcript.

With regard to the documentary record, another trip to the courthouse is worthwhile, again with your short list of issues in hand. A review of the clerk's file will be essential not only to develop a final list of the items needed but to determine which form of record will best enable you to present the appellate court with all those items, whether clerk's transcript, appendix, or other. Sadly, there is no substitute for appellate counsel doing this in person, since others just do not have the necessary grasp of the relevance of each item in the file to the issues involved. If you cannot go to the court yourself, just have your proxy list everything that is in the file and review the documents yourself later.

Note that many superior courts manage their dockets by computer and will, for a fee, print for you a copy of their computer-generated docket sheet. This can be a speedy way of finding out what is in the trial court file. It can also, however, be a trap for the unwary, since some courts only include what they call "dispositive" pleadings. These may provide a very underinclusive view of the file, or even result in your remaining unaware of a truly dispositive pleading. So be sure to ask the clerk if the "docket sheet" has everything on it. In courts that generate only "dispositive" pleadings, it is usually best to go ahead and leaf through the court file.

Note finally, with regard to the documentary record, that, regardless of the other items designated, counsel should ensure that the record includes the judgment or appealable order from which the appeal is taken, the notice of appeal, and the notice or notices designating the record. Never assume anything will be included by the trial court clerk just because it is routinely to be included [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(6); but see, e.g., In re Salazar (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 102, 104, 22 Cal. Rptr. 770 ; Barry v. Rodgers (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 298, 301-302, 18 Cal. Rptr. 723] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Consider Associating Appellate Counsel Before Designating the Record. If trial counsel is considering using appellate counsel, and there are significant advantages both for trial counsel and the client in doing so, it is important to consult with appellate counsel very early in the process, not only to evaluate initially the overall merit of the appeal, but to take full responsibility for designating the record. They are the ones who will be making use of the record, and they usually have strong ideas of what they want to have included. Moreover, their greater familiarity with such appellate concerns as the standard of review and waiver may help them to designate a complete record, thus avoiding a later need for augmentation.

[2] The Significant Factors in Determining the Record

[a] The Issues and Their Applicable Review Standards

While the issues to be raised on appeal is perhaps the most obvious factor in determining the contents of the record, once the decision whether a reporter's transcript is necessary has been made [see also discussion in [3], below], its further ramifications are not always so obvious. If the claim on appeal were that a jury instruction was erroneous, for example, it is fairly obvious that all written instructions proffered by the parties, whether given or refused, must be included in the clerk's transcript or appellant's appendix, as well as the verbal instructions actually read by the judge to the jury in the reporter's transcript.

It may be less obvious that a transcript of any conferences, objections, and rulings concerning the instructions should be included to demonstrate the absence of waiver or invited error. If it is claimed that the rejection of a proffered instruction was erroneous, then the testimony, exhibits, or other evidence justifying the requested instruction would have to be added. In any appeal claiming instructional error, moreover, counsel should consider including the clerk's minutes showing whether the verdict was close, how long the jury deliberated, and whether they asked the court for a rereading of instructions or evidence, in the clerk's transcript. Appellant, to prevail, must demonstrate not only error, but prejudice, i.e., that the jury probably was misled and the verdict affected by the error [Soule v. General Motors Corp. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 548, 580-581, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 607, 882 P.2d 298 ; Krotin v. Porsche Cars North America, Inc. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 294, 303-306, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 10] .

The standard of review is probably the single most important factor of all in determining the outcome of any appeal; it is the first question a reviewing court wants answered when it opens an appellant's brief. Consequently, once the issues are identified, counsel's next concern must be determining the standard of review applicable to each, for they in turn will establish the minimum requirements for an adequate record. For example, where the claim is that there was insufficient evidence to support the judgment or verdict, the appellate court must be able to review all of the material evidence presented at trial in order to determine whether the judgment or verdict was supported by substantial evidence. Accordingly, an appeal on a clerk's transcript alone is out of the question, but so is an appeal based on a reporter's transcript that includes only those portions of the testimony that were favorable to appellant's case [see Bowers v. Bernards (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 870, 872-874, 197 Cal. Rptr. 925] .

For more detailed discussion of the initial process of determining whether to pursue an appeal and analyzing its potential issues, see Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview, § 40.15, and the Practice Tips set out in Ch. 41, Appeal: Review Standards and Appellate Rules of Law, §§ 41.10[1] and 41.11. For detailed discussion of the standards of review and their applicability in specific cases, see Ch. 41, Review Standards and Appellate Rules of Law, § 41.10 et seq.

[b] The Procedural Posture of the Case Below

The procedural posture of the case in the court below is one of the clearer indicators of the type of record that will be needed. For example, in an appeal from a summary judgment, the bulk of the record necessarily will be documentary; there may have been no hearing at all, and even if there was a hearing, it may have been perfunctory, with little or nothing of importance having been said. In such a case, appellant may reasonably elect to forego a reporter's transcript altogether, or explore the possibility of proceeding on an agreed statement. The important decision from a practical standpoint will be whether to have the clerk prepare a transcript or instead proceed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124 or 8.128. That decision may in turn depend on a variety of other factors, such as delay, expense, and the relationship between opposing counsel.

In the vast majority of appeals, which are brought after a jury trial and based on a variety of claimed errors, the reporter's transcript will be as vital as the clerk's transcript, if not more so. In these cases the more important issue is whether a complete reporter's transcript is required, or whether a partial one will suffice [see discussion in [3], below].

These fundamental differences in the postures of cases on appeal demonstrate the reason for, and the importance of, the flexibility afforded by the Rules of Court with regard to the record.

[c] The Expense Involved With Various Elements of the Record

[i] The Clerk's Transcript or Its Alternative

The cost of mounting an appeal is a factor over which the parties have relatively little control. Preparing an appendix clearly costs less up front than designating a clerk's transcript, but also demands far more time and effort on counsel's part, particularly in big cases. Even assuming appellant can do much of the work, however, copying and production costs can still add up, and mistakes can be costly [see Warfield v. Peninsula Golf & Country Club (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 646, 652 n.3, 262 Cal. Rptr. 890 ($500.00 sanction imposed for failure to comply with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124)].

Similarly, relying on the trial court's original file under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.128, in those districts in which it is permitted by local rule, is less expensive than having the clerk put a transcript together, but the product may also be less useful. Since the clerk provides the parties with only a chronological index to the contents of the court's file indicating the beginning page of each document, it may be difficult, if not impossible, to create a working copy from the case file that precisely follows the court's file. This can lead to problems in providing adequate references to the record in briefs, as required under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(a)(1)(C) [see Bernard v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1203, 1204-1205, 277 Cal. Rptr. 401] .

In large cases particularly, the designation of a clerk's transcript, if done carefully so as to designate only truly necessary items, may sometimes be ultimately more "economical" than the use of an appendix or superior court file.

A small economy may also be achieved in many instances simply by relying on Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.224(a), for the transmission of exhibits, rather than requesting that they be copied into the clerk's transcript when that copying is permitted under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(a)(3) [see § 44.81[3]].

[ii] The Reporter's Transcript or Its Alternative

Controlling the cost of the record of the oral proceedings is more difficult. In small cases, it may not be much of an issue, as the transcript may be relatively short and inexpensive.

The best course, as discussed in [1], above, is simply to research the issues carefully beforehand and take additional care in designating only those portions of the reporter's transcript that are needed.

The only alternative is to proceed on an agreed or settled statement in lieu of a reporter's transcript, but while this may be less expensive, it is available in limited circumstances and is rarely used [see generally Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 6, 7, and discussion in §§ 44.53, 44.54].

As discussed in [3], below, it is a very rare case in which an appellant may opt simply to forego a reporter's transcript entirely.

[d] The Degree of Cooperation to Be Expected From Opposing Counsel

All too often, an appellant's ability to take advantage of the alternatives permitted by the Rules of Court will depend not on common sense, but on human nature; cooperation is an essential component. Thus, if respondent or his or her attorney will cooperate, it should be possible to prepare a joint appendix under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124; if not, appellant should plan on filing an appellant's appendix. Similarly, without cooperation, an agreed statement under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.134, is not possible. While this may not be a major factor in the overall decision how to proceed in most cases, it may be a factor in some.

[e] When a Partial Record Will Be Presumed Complete

Any appellant considering proceeding on a partial record must first consider the effect of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.163. It creates a presumption that the record in an appeal includes all matters material to deciding the issues raised.

Stated differently, when Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.163, is satisfied the reviewing court will not presume that the judgment or order on appeal is supported by matters as to which the record is silent [Kovacik v. Reed (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 166, 170, 315 P.2d 314 (settled statement); Hillman v. Leland E. Burns, Inc. (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 860, 864, 257 Cal. Rptr. 535 (appellant's appendix); County of Yolo v. Francis (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 647, 650 n.2, 224 Cal. Rptr. 585 (agreed statement); Skoglie v. Crumley (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 294, 297-298, 103 Cal. Rptr. 205 (partial reporter's transcript)]. Thus, the presumption of completeness provided by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.163, runs counter to the general rule--the presumption of correctness--discussed in § 44.12.

There is a limitation on appellant's entitlement to the benefit of the presumption afforded by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.163, however. In appeals brought exclusively on the judgment roll or a full or partial clerk's transcript, the presumption that the record contains all matters necessary to a determination of the appeal will not apply unless the asserted error appears "on the face of the record." Therefore, if the asserted error appears on the face of the transcript or judgment roll, then the presumption of completeness discussed in the preceding paragraph will apply; if it does not, then the reviewing court instead will presume that the asserted error was cured by matters omitted from the record. Simply stated, the general presumption of correctness, discussed in § 44.12, applies, even under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.163 , absent an affirmative showing of error [Dumas v. Stark (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 673, 674, 16 Cal. Rptr. 368, 365 P.2d 424 (partial clerk's transcript; error appears on face of record, but so does absence of prejudice, requiring affirmance); Ehrler v. Ehrler (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 147, 154, 178 Cal. Rptr. 642 (clerk's transcript); Utz v. Aureguy (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 803, 806-807, 241 P.2d 639 (judgment roll)].

For discussion relating to respondent's counterdesignation of matters when appellant's designations of the record are patently inadequate, see § 44.32[2]. For discussion of augmentation proceedings when the inadequacy of the record becomes apparent only later, see § 44.90 et seq.

[3] Determining Whether to Proceed Without a Reporter's Transcript

Perhaps the single most important decision appellant must make concerning the record is whether to notice the preparation of a reporter's transcript. When an appeal is submitted exclusively on a full or partial clerk's transcript or on one of its alternatives, the appellant's options on appeal are significantly narrowed. Specifically, without a reporter's transcript, an appellant may not challenge the sufficiency of the evidence, the admission or exclusion of evidence, or any other trial court action that is dependent on fact-finding.

The only issues that generally will be decided on such a record are the sufficiency of the pleadings and whether the findings support the judgment. Moreover, the error must appear on the face of the record [Construction Financial v. Perlite Plastering Co. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 170, 179, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 574 (appellate court conclusively presumes evidence was ample to sustain trial court's findings; only question is whether findings support judgment); Bond v. Pulsar Video Productions (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 918, 924, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 917 (trial court's findings and conclusions are binding unless reversible error appears on the record); Kennedy v. Taylor (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 126, 128, 201 Cal. Rptr. 779 (same); Ducray v. Ducray (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 480, 482, 64 Cal. Rptr. 825 (sufficiency of evidence is not open to question; reviewing court is confined to determination whether complaint states cause of action, findings are within issues, and judgment is supported by findings)].

For more detailed discussion of review involving evidence and factual determinations, see Ch. 41, Appeal: Review

Standards and Appellate Rules of Law, § 41.13.

An appeal not including any reporter's transcript will also be adversely affected by the presumption set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.163, discussed in § 44.11[4].

Thus, as a practical matter, appropriate cases for review based only on a clerk's transcript, or one of its substitutes, are rare. Unless the issue on appeal is one of pure law, it is safest to assume, at least to begin with, that some record of the oral proceedings in the court below will be necessary [see, e.g., Hodges v. Mark (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 651, 657, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 700 (omission of reporter's transcript precludes review of nonsuit); County of Santa Clara v. Redevelopment Agency (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1008, 1016, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 868 (lack of reporter's transcript of hearing on severance precludes review of sufficiency of evidence to support trial court's implied ruling on that issue); McKay v. Longsworth (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 1592, 1594, 260 Cal. Rptr. 250 (in absence of settled statement, appellate court must assume facts in statement of decision were fully supported); Rubin v. Los Angeles Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 292, 296, 205 Cal. Rptr. 455 (court cannot review finding of waiver of due-on-sale clause on record consisting of appendices and documentary exhibits); Cosenza v. Kramer (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 1100, 1102, 200 Cal. Rptr. 18 (claim that the evidence entitled appellant to judgment as a matter of law not cognizable in appeal taken on partial clerk's transcript)].

Regardless of the circumstances, the decision to forego entirely a reporter's transcript or equivalent record should never be made except on the advice of experienced appellate counsel.

Even if appellant elects to proceed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124 or 8.128, in lieu of a complete or partial clerk's transcript, he or she may still designate a full or partial reporter's transcript in conjunction with that election [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(4)]. While a reporter's transcript is required in practically every appeal, it is a rare appeal in which everything that transpired in the courtroom must be included. For example, in cases where jury misconduct is not an issue, there is generally no reason to have the voir dire transcribed. When an appellant does not intend to challenge the jury instructions, he or she can omit their reading from the transcript. In short, counsel can and should exercise common sense when designating a reporter's transcript, and in this way, the interests of economy and justice both may be served.

If there is any uncertainty about what to include, it is safer to designate too much rather than to forfeit the right to present legitimate arguments for reversal [but see, [4], below]. When economy is the foremost concern, however, the possibility of proceeding on an agreed or a settled statement in lieu of both a clerk's and a reporter's transcript should be explored.

For more detailed discussion of determining and designating matters to be included in a reporter's transcript, see § 44.51.

[4] Excessive Designation

Although the parties' overarching concern must be the designation of an adequate record, they must also exercise caution not to include items that clearly are "not reasonably material" to the issues on appeal. Including such matter may be a ground for the appellate court to impose sanctions [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.276(a)(2); Haskett v. Villas at Desert Falls (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 864, 885-886, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 888 ; Garcia v. Lucido (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 303, 308, 12 Cal. Rptr. 601 (disapproved on other grounds in Nichols v. Hast (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 598, 601, 43 Cal. Rptr. 641, 400 P.2d 753); compare In re Marriage of Green (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 14, 26, 261 Cal. Rptr. 294 (sanctions inappropriate when respondent could not foresee appellant's abandonment of issues when filing counterdesignation)]. Excessive designation would include, for example the designation of items that are clearly unrelated to the issues raised on appeal or fairly embraced by them.

For discussion and forms relating to sanctions generally, see Ch. 49, Appeal: Sanctions .

Chapter 44 APPEAL: PREPARING AND FILING THE RECORD

§ 44.14 Proceedings Concerning Completion of the Record

[1] Superior Court Retains Jurisdiction Over Preparation of Record

With the filing of the notice of appeal, the superior court loses jurisdiction over the case in virtually every respect. Nevertheless, it remains the duty of the superior court to aid in the perfection of the record [Sullivan v. Superior Court (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 476, 479, 275 P.2d 595 (issuing writ of mandate to compel preparation of clerk's and reporter's transcripts); but see [2], below].

PRACTICE TIP:

"Appeals Supervising Judge." In the First Appellate District, a superior court judge is designated in each county to act as an "appeals supervising judge" to oversee record preparation in the appeals departments [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Internal Operating Practices and Procedures of the Cts. of Appeal, First App. Dist., § 24]. The appeals supervising judge can be an invaluable resource for attorneys encountering difficulty in getting a record completed.

[2] Proceedings by or in Reviewing Court

[a] Proceedings to Extend or Shorten Time Requirements in Completing Record

Notwithstanding that it is generally the superior court's duty to oversee the preparation of the record, only the court of appeal has the power to extend the time for doing any act in connection with the preparation of the record [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.60(d)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Extending Time for Designating Record. Extending the time to designate the record can be an important tool for managing the record preparation process when trial counsel anticipates that appellate counsel will come into the case. A motion to extend the time to designate the record, or the reporter's transcript if an appendix is to be used in lieu of a clerk's transcript, can give trialcounsel or appellant time to consult with appellate counsel and get his or her views on what should be included in the designation. It can also be a tool for "buying time" for appellate counsel to review the case and advise whether there should be an appeal at all. If the appellate counsel's advice is not to proceed, and that advice is taken, the cost of beginning preparation of the record, particularly the reporter's transcript, can be avoided altogether. While it is true that the reporter must refund any unused portion of the deposit if the appeal is dismissed, the pressure on reporters to complete transcripts quickly can mean that most of the deposit is used up while appellate counsel reviews the case and reaches an opinion whether the appeal should proceed. For discussion and forms of applications to extend or shorten time generally, see Ch. 46, Appeal: Extending or Shortening Time .

[b] Consequences of Appellant's Default

Appellant's failure to perform any act necessary to procure the filing of the record within the time allowed, including any valid extension of that time, may result in the dismissal of the appeal on the motion of respondent or the appellate court itself. The appeal will not be dismissed, however, before the trial court has issued a 15-day warning, during which time appellant may still cure the default [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.140(a); see [c], below]. If the superior court clerk fails to give a 15-day notice after appellant's default, respondent may serve and file in the reviewing court a motion for dismissal; however, the motion must be denied if appellant cures the default within 15 days after the motion is served [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.140(c)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Buying Time With The Grace Period. While a little hard on counsel's nerves, the 15-day "grace period" notice can provide yet another tool for "buying time" in the record preparation process, whether for the purpose of pursuing settlement negotiations, of obtaining appellate counsel's evaluation of whether to go forward with the appeal, or of acquiring the frequently considerable funds needed to pay for a reporters transcript. Letting the initial ten-day period lapse, without designating the record, will prompt the superior court to give notice, with 15 additional days to cure the default. As a practical matter, this grace period results in providing appellant's counsel with 25 days to designate the record.

[c] Proceedings for Relief From Default

If appellant is unable to cure a default with regard to the preparation of the record within the 15-day grace period afforded by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.140(a), discussed in [b], above, then he or she may still seek relief from default in accordance with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.60(d), to save the appeal. For a full discussion and forms relating to relief from default, see Ch. 47, Appeal: Relief from Default .

§ 44.15 Appellant's Duty to Provide Notice of Settlement Before Completion of Record

If a civil case is settled after the notice of appeal has been filed, but before the record has been completed and transmitted to the reviewing court, it is the appellant's duty to give notice to the superior court, as well as to the reviewing court, immediately. If the parties have designated a clerk's or a reporter's transcript and the record has not been filed in the reviewing court, the appellant must also immediately serve a copy of the notice on the superior court clerk [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.244(a); see Huschke v. Slater (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1153, 1160, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 187 (appellant, not respondent, has duty to file notice of settlement)]. For a form of notice to be provided to the superior court, see § 44.200.

Within 45 days after filing a notice of settlement, the appellant who filed the notice of settlement must file either an abandonment under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.244(b) [see § 44.16], if the record has not yet been filed in the court of appeal, or a request to dismiss under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.244(c) [see § 44.16], if the record has already been filed in the court of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.244(a)(3)].

In addition, if the appeal is abandoned or dismissed before the clerk has completed preparation of the transcript, the clerk must refund any portion of the deposit under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(c) exceeding the preparation cost actually incurred [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(d)(2)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Notice of Settlement. Note that a notice of settlement under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.244(a) does not in itself operate to divest the appellate court of jurisdiction in the appeal. The parties must seek a final determination of the cause by a voluntary dismissal, or in some instances by a motion for stipulated reversal. Although the parties may stipulate for an immediate issuance of remittitur once a final determination has been made, the determination itself is a prerequisite to remittitur [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.272(c), and discussion in Ch. 53, Appeal: Remittitur and Costs on Appeal, § 53.13]. For further discussion of voluntary dismissal and stipulated reversal, see Ch. 48, Appeal: Abandonment, Dismissal, and Stipulated Reversal, §§ 48.11, 48.12.

Ms. Summers is a principal partner with Bien & Summers, Oakland, California, an appellate specialty firm. Mr. Cramer, who contributed comments and practice tips concerning reporter's transcripts, is a court reporter with the Los Angeles County Superior Court.

§ 44.16 Voluntary Abandonment of Appeal Before Record Is Filed

At any time prior to the filing of the record in the reviewing court, appellant may file a written notice of abandonment of the appeal in the superior court. Alternatively, the parties may file a stipulation to abandon the appeal, for example as a condition of a settlement agreement. In either case, the filing will operate to dismiss the appeal and return jurisdiction to the superior court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.244(b)]. After abandoning the appeal, appellant is entitled to a refund ofany portion of the deposit for preparation of the record exceeding the preparation cost actually incurred [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(d)(2)]. For forms of voluntary dismissal to be filed with the superior court before the record has been completed or transmitted, see § 44.201.

In contrast, after the record has been filed in the reviewing court, the abandonment or stipulation to dismiss the appeal must instead be filed in the reviewing court, which may order dismissal and issuance of the remittitur [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.244(c)]. For detailed discussion and forms relating to dismissal and stipulated reversals, see, Ch. 48, Appeal: Abandonment, Dismissal, and Stipulated Reversal .

An appeal will be dismissed with prejudice to the right to file another appeal unless the dismissal is expressly made without prejudice. [Code Civ. Proc. § 913; Lyons v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1001, 1017, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174 (as modified on denial of rehearing, review denied)]. If appellant later regrets the decision to abandon, and the dismissal was not expressly made without prejudice to the filing of another appeal, the appellant must file a motion to vacate the dismissal in the superior court to gain relief, as the appellate court no longer has jurisdiction over the case [Conservatorship of Oliver (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 832, 836, 13 Cal. Rptr. 695 ; Whitehead v. Dickey (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 740, 741, 43 Cal. Rptr. 183 ; see also, Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v. Fales (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 712, 716, 106 Cal. Rptr. 21 , and Okuda v. Superior Court (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 135, 137 n.1, 192 Cal. Rptr. 388 (both discussing abandonment in context of issue of mootness)]. For a form of motion to vacate a dismissal, see Ch. 48,

B. The Clerk's Transcript and Its Alternatives

5-44 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 44.31

AUTHOR: Stefanie Y. Gandolfi Author E. Elizabeth Summers and Gary Cramer Editorial Consultants Ms. Gandolfi is a solo appellate practitioner in Oakland, California. Ms. Summers is a principal partner with Bien & Summers, Oakland, California, an appellate specialty firm. Mr. Cramer, who contributed comments and practice tips concerning reporter's transcripts, is a court reporter with the Los Angeles County Superior Court.

§ 44.31 The Contents of the Clerk's Transcript

[1] In General

The notice designating a clerk's transcript identifies each designated document by its title and filing date. If the filing date is not available, it is identified by the date it was signed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(a)(1)]. The notice may specify portions of designated documents that are not to be included in the transcript [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(a)(1)]. For minute orders or instructions, it is sufficient to collectively designate all minute orders or all minute orders entered between specified dates, or all written instructions given, refused or withdrawn [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(a)(1)].

Except for copies of depositions [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(b)(4)], all exhibits admitted in evidence, refused, or lodged are deemed part of the record, but a party wanting a copy of an exhibit included in the transcript must specify that exhibit by number or letter in its notice of designation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(a)(3)]. If the superior court has returned a designated exhibit to a party, the party in possession of the exhibit must deliver it to the superior court clerk within 10 days after the notice designating the exhibit is served [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(a)(3)]. When directed to prepare a clerk's transcript, the superior court clerk must include the following items, whether or not these items have been designated in the notice to prepare the record [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(b)(1)]:

- The notice of appeal.
- Any judgment appealed from and any notice of its entry.
- Any order appealed from and any notice of its entry.

- Any notice of intention to move for a new trial, or motion to vacate the judgment, for judgment notwithstanding the verdict, or for reconsideration of an appealed order, with supporting and opposing memoranda and attachments, and any order on such motion and any notice of its entry.

- Any notices or stipulations to prepare clerk's or reporter's transcripts or to proceed by agreed or settled statement.

- The register of actions.

Each of these documents that the clerk must include in the clerk's transcript must show the date necessary to determine the timeliness of the appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(b)(4)].

The clerk must also include the following under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(b)(3), if they have been designated by any of the parties:

- Any other document filed or lodged in the case in the superior court.

- Any exhibit admitted in evidence, refused, or lodged [see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.224(a), discussed below].

- Any jury instruction that any party submitted in writing and the cover page required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.1055(b)(2) indicating the party requesting it, and any written jury instructions given by the court.

Note that neither the mandatory nor the optional list under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(b), includes deposition transcripts. Only on the stipulation of the parties, or with the express permission of the reviewing court, may the clerk copy into the transcript or otherwise transmit to the reviewing court the original of any deposition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(b)(4)(A)].

Counsel should also bear in mind that Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.224(a), provides for the transmission of any or all of the original exhibits on the motion of a party filed within 10 days after the last respondent's brief is filed or could be filed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.224(a)(1). For discussion of the procedures for transmission of exhibits under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.224(a), see § 44.81[3].

[2] The Judgment Roll

An appeal on the "judgment roll" is procedurally distinguishable from other appeals, including those prosecuted exclusively on a full or partial clerk's transcript.

First, the contents of the record in a judgment roll appeal in most civil matters are prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 670, rather than by appellant's selection of documents from the clerk's record [but see Code Civ. Pro. §§ 1134, 1139 (judgment by confession and judgment on submitted controversy, respectively); Prob. Code § 1050 (probate proceedings)].

Further, the specific documents to be included pursuant to that statute are dictated by the procedural posture of the case. Consequently, the record in a judgment roll appeal from a default judgment consists of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 670(a)]:

- The summons, with affidavit or proof of service; also, if service was by publication, the affidavit for publication and order directing publication.

- The complaint.
- The request for entry of default with indorsed memorandum of default.
- The default judgment.

If defendant appeared by demurrer and the demurrer was overruled, the clerk will add:

- Notice of overruling of demurrer with proof of service on defendant's attorney.

In all other cases, i.e., all contested matters, the judgment roll consists of [Code Civ. Proc. § 670(b)]:

- The pleadings.
- Any orders striking out all or part of a pleading.
- The jury's verdict, the trial court's statement of decision, or the referee's finding.
- Any order made on demurrer or relating to a change of parties.
- The judgment.

If there was more than one defendant, however, and a default judgment was entered against one of them, the clerk will add:

- The summons, proof of service, and, if service was by publication, the affidavit and order as to that defendant.

Second, by definition as well as historical usage, the record in a judgment roll appeal cannot include a reporter's transcript or other record of the oral proceedings. The courts will reject any attempt to circumvent this limitation [see, e.g. Estate of Bernard (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 375, 380, 383, 23 Cal. Rptr. 828 ; Estate of Larson (1949) 92 Cal. App. 2d 267, 268-269, 206 P.2d 852] .

If appellant elects to proceed on the judgment roll, respondent is bound by that decision. The appellant may require neither the preparation of a reporter's transcript nor the addition of documents from the clerk's record. The judgment roll and pretrial order, if any, "shall constitute" the record on appeal. By way of comparison, when appellant notices only the preparation of a full or partial clerk's transcript, respondent may at least add to the contents of the clerk's transcript. In either case, however, the reviewing court may order the augmentation of the record to prevent a miscarriage of justice on respondent's or its own motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(4)]. Unless the court orders otherwise, the appellant is responsible for the cost of any reporter's transcript the court may order under this subdivision [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(4)].

Third, in a judgment roll appeal, the pretrial order, if any, will only be considered to the extent it affects the definition or joinder of issues, and when only portions of the oral proceedings are transcribed. Evidentiary material and the pretrial order are not considered unless specifically designated by one of the parties for inclusion in the clerk's transcript [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.754(d); for discussion of partial designation of reporter's transcript, see § 44.52[2]].

Finally, there is little substantive difference today between a judgment roll appeal and an appeal brought exclusively on a full or partial clerk's transcript. Indeed, the cases routinely characterize any appeal brought without the benefit of a reporter's transcript or other record of the oral proceedings in the trial court as a "judgment roll" appeal regardless of whether the contents of the record are confined to those listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 670 [see, e.g. Nielsen v. Gibson (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 318, 324-325, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 335 ; Waller v. TJD, Inc. (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 830, 832, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 38 (appeal on clerk's transcript is judgment roll appeal); Rubin v. Los Angeles Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 292, 296, 205 Cal. Rptr. 455 (appeal on appendices in lieu of clerk's transcript is judgment roll appeal)]. This treatment may stem from the fact that there is little difference, as a practical matter, between the issues that may be raised and the presumptions that will apply in a judgment roll appeal as opposed to any other appeal limited to a full or partial clerk's transcript or other documentary record, however denominated [see, e.g. Construction Financial v. Perlite Plastering Co. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 170, 179, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 574 (joint appendix); National Secretarial Service, Inc. v. Froehlich (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 510, 521-522, 258 Cal. Rptr. 506 (clerk's transcript); Kennedy v. Taylor (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 126, 128, 201 Cal. Rptr. 779 (judgment roll); Cosenza v. Kramer (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 1100, 1102, 200 Cal. Rptr. 18 (partial clerk's transcript)].

For a discussion of factors in determining whether to proceed on a partial record comprised of a clerk's transcript, one of the alternatives to a clerk's transcript, or the judgment roll, see §§ 44.11, 44.13. For the procedure to be followed by the parties in securing preparation of the clerk's transcript, see § 44.32 et seq.

§ 44.32 Procedure for Preparation of Clerk's Transcript

[1] Appellant's Notice Designating Clerk's Transcript

[a] Notice Must Be Served and Filed With Superior Court Clerk Within 10 Days After Filing of Notice of Appeal

Within 10 days after filing the notice of appeal, the appellant must serve on the respondent and file with the superior court clerk, a notice designating the documents to be incorporated in the clerk's transcript [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(a), 8.122(a)]. The requirement that it be served and filed means that the notice must be accompanied by proof of prior service in a manner permitted by law [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(a); for discussion and forms relating generally to service and proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service and Summons of Papers].

For discussion of the 15-day "grace period" under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.140(a), and proceedings in the appellate court to extend the time for filing the notice or obtain relief from default, see § 44.14[2].

[b] Form of Notice

The notice to prepare a clerk's transcript must designate the documents the appellant wants incorporated into the clerk's transcript [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(a)(1)].

Specifically, the appellant must designate the documents on file or lodged with the clerk that are to be included in the clerk's transcript. The designation must describe each document with particularity, including the title of the document and the date it was filed, or, if the filing date is not readily available, the date it was signed. Appellant's designation of all minute orders, all minute orders entered between specified dates, or all written jury instructions prepared by the court or tendered by a party, whether given, refused, or withdrawn, is sufficient designation of those documents [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(a)(1)].

The specificity requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(a)(1), are analogous in some respects to designation requirements already in effect in the Second Appellate District, in which a notice of designation must state, for each paper or record to be included, the title and date of filing. Further, each exhibit designated for inclusion in the clerk's transcript must include the exhibit number, a brief description, and the admission status [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, Second App. Dist., Rule 3(a)(2)]. The Second District has also adopted a printed form, entitled "Designation of the Record on Appeal," which complies with Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, Second App. Dist., Rule 3(a), and which "may" be used to designate the record in that court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, Second App. Dist., Rule 3(b)].

For a form of notice of designation of clerk's transcript that conforms substantially to the requirements of both Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(a)(1), and Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, Second App. Dist., Rules 3(a)(2) and (b), see § 44.210 [see also § 44.211 for an alternate form for use in probate proceedings]. For Judicial Council form AP-003, Notice Designating Record on Appeal (Unlimited Civil Case), see § 44.213.

PRACTICE TIP:

Designation That Is Required vs. Designation That Is Recommended. Note that under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(b)(1), the clerk is required to include some items in the clerk's transcript whether or not designated, while other items must be designated to included. The safer practice, whenever possible, is to designate all items needed with the greatest possible specificity. For discussion of items that need, or technically need not be, designated in the notice, by reference to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(b)(1), see § 44.31[1].

[c] Notice May Be Combined With Notice of Appeal, Notice Designating Reporter's Transcript, or Both

Appellant may combine the notice to prepare the clerk's transcript with a notice to prepare a reporter's transcript. In addition, if an appellant is ready to designate the record at the time the notice of appeal is filed, appellant may combine a notice to prepare the clerk's transcript with a notice to prepare the reporter's transcript,the notice of appeal, or both [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(a)]. For forms of notice of appeal combined with one or more notices to prepare the record, see Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal, § 42.90].

[d] Selecting Discretionary Items to Be Included

As discussed in § 44.31[1], certain documents and records in the trial court's file will be included automatically when appellant files notice to prepare a clerk's transcript, while others, significantly, the exhibits, the jury instructions, the trial court's opinion, and the minutes, must be requested specifically. In making the decision what to include, it is always helpful to consider what the appellate court might want to see when trying to decide whether an error occurred and whether it prejudiced the outcome of the trial.

For example, the need to designate the instructions in an appeal when instructional error is claimed is obvious, but it may also exist when misconduct on the part of judge, jury, or counsel is claimed, or when special verdicts appear inconsistent.

Unless appellant (or respondent) identifies the exhibits he or she wants copied into the transcript, none will be included [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(a)(3)]. When the admission or exclusion of certain evidence is in issue, and a witness's testimony would otherwise be unclear, or "one picture is worth a thousand words," then viewing the exhibit, be it a document, photograph, or physical evidence, may be critical to the appellate court's ability to understand the proceedings, and counsel should direct the clerk to copy it.

PRACTICE TIP:

Bringing Exhibits Before the Appellate Court. If issues of economy predominate, a party will prefer to rely on the procedure established in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.224(a), under which any or all of the exhibits will be transmitted to the appellate court on request once the court has issued its notice of oral argument. Counsel should also bear in mind that the same provision authorizes the reviewing court to request the transfer of some or all of the original exhibits whenever it wishes to see them [see § 44.81[3]].

As a practical matter, any exhibit worth reviewing is one the appellant or respondent will want to bring before the court of appeal as a part of the record, since by the time oral argument is noticed the court has usually all but decided the case. Thus, in any case in which the issues rely significantly on the exhibits, they should be requested to be copied into the clerk's transcript. Alternatively, an appellant's or joint appendix is a great tool to get exhibits before the court for review before it has reached its tentative decision in the case.

While the trial court's written opinion is a discretionary item, it is seldom omitted from the clerk's transcript. lt can offer important insight into the reasoning underlying the court's decision, and often is included in the clerk's transcript as a springboard for discussion in the briefs. Although the opinion may actually be a critical element of the record in a few types of cases in which the decisional process itself bears scrutiny [see, e.g. Clothesrigger, Inc. v. GTE Corp. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 605, 611, 236 Cal. Rptr. 605 (certification of class action)], in the vast majority, it is the result, and not the reasoning, that must survive scrutiny on appeal. Consequently, in most cases, the trial court's opinion may not be used to impeach its findings or judgment [Estate of Bernard (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 375, 380-383, 23 Cal. Rptr. 828 ; see also discussion in Ch. 41, Appeal: Review Standards and Appellate Rules of Law, § 41.14[3]].

The clerk's minutes may sometimes provide valuable insight into trial court proceedings that are not otherwise accessible. For example, they may make it possible to demonstrate approximately how long the court recessed or the jury deliberated, or that unreported side-bar discussions in fact occurred. Even if not helpful to the reviewing court in a particular case, they can be enormously useful to counsel, especially newly-associated appellate counsel, when trying to reconstruct events at trial. In sum, they are usually well worth the cost of copying into the transcript.

[2] Respondent's Notice Designating Additions to Transcript

[a] Notice Must Be Served and Filed With Superior Court Clerk Within 10 Days After Service of Appellant's Notice

Within 10 days after service of the appellant's notice to prepare a clerk's transcript, the respondent may serve on the appellant and file with the superior court clerk a notice designating additional papers or records to be included in the record on appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(a)(2)]. The requirement that it be served and filed means that the notice must be accompanied by proof of prior service in a manner permitted by law [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.25; for discussion and forms relating generally to service and proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service and Summons of Papers].

PRACTICE TIP:

Make Sure Your Notice Is Timely. When the appellant misses the deadline for designating the record, he or she is essentially given a 15-day "grace period" under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.140(a) to file the notice [see § 44.14[2][b]]. The appellate rules do not, however, include an analogous grace period for respondent in filing his or her "counter designation." Respondent's counsel should therefore inspect appellant's notice carefully as soon as it is served, and analyze whether further designations will be needed to provide a record adequate to protect respondent's interests [see [b] and [c], below].

If necessary, a respondent may apply, in the appellate court, for an extension of the time to file this notice [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.60(b), 8.63], or may, in theappellate court, seek relief from default in the event that the notice is filed late without having obtained a prior extension of time for filing [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.60(e); see also discussion in § 44.14[2]]. As a general rule, respondent should seek an extension if necessary before the deadline for filing passes. Adding necessary items to the record is too critical to the outcome of the appeal to rely on the appellate court's discretion in granting relief from default. For discussion and forms relating to extensions of time for doing an act, and relating to relief from default, see respectively Ch. 46, Appeal: Extending or Shortening Time , and Ch. 47, Appeal: Relief From Default .

For a form of motion to dismiss an appeal because appellant has failed to file a timely initial notice designating the record, see Ch. 48, Appeal: Abandonment, Dismissal, and Stipulated Reversal, § 48.62.

[b] Form of Respondent's Notice

The respondent may, in his or her notice for additional matters to be included in the clerk's transcript, designate additional papers or records that may include the clerk's minutes, the opinion of the superior court, affidavits, written instructions given or refused, and exhibits specifically requested to be copied into the clerk's transcript [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(a)(1), (b)(3)].

The respondent has two options if he or she wants exhibits included in the record [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(a)]:

- Respondent may elect to furnish the clerk with copies of the exhibits desired instead of having them copied by the clerk. If so, he or she must, within 10 days after filing his or her notice, furnish the superior court clerk with two copies of each exhibit, in the form required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144(a) [for discussion of the requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144(a), in the context of preparing an appendix in lieu of clerk's transcript, see § 44.33[4][b]]. Otherwise, they will not be included.

- Respondent may, alternatively, elect to have the clerk copy the exhibits, in which case he or she must, within 10 days of after notice from the clerk of the estimated cost of doing so, deposit with the clerk an amount equal to that estimate. Otherwise the exhibits will not be copied.

For further discussion regarding the designation and copying of exhibits, see [1][d], above.

If the appellant has designated only a clerk's transcript consisting of part or all the items specified in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(b) [see § 44.31[1]], the respondent may counter designate any additional papers, records, or affidavits, other than instructions or exhibits [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(a)(2)]. For further discussion regarding augmentation proceeding generally, see § 44.90 et seq.

PRACTICE TIP:

Determining the Additional Items to Designate. Respondent's counsel should immediately and carefully check appellant's designation of the record, to insure that it is as complete as necessary to permit review. All too often, appellant's counsel may designate items, such as a motion by appellant, without also designating respondent's opposition to that motion. Respondent's counsel has a responsibility in some instances equal to or greater than appellant's counsel, to ensure that the court has all necessary matters in the record for review [see § 44.12[2]]. Respondent's counsel must accordingly research the potential issues to be raised by appellant, consider the issues, if any, in respondent's cross appeal, compare the conclusions of these analyses with the items designated by appellant for the inclusion in the record, and designate whatever additional items may be necessary to refute appellant's argument of prejudicial error or support issues to be raised in a cross appeal.

> In rare instances, appellant may fail so completely to satisfy his or her initial burden to provide an adequate record that respondent may consider electing not to counterdesignate, and instead take the position that in the absence of an adequate record, the appellate court must affirm. This tactic is safely used, though, only when an appellant has failed to provide even the record necessary to make out his or her own case on appeal, let alone respondent's. Usually, when an appellant has simply neglected to include portions of the record that support respondent's position, the better course for respondent is to counterdesignate whatever is needed to give the appellate court the complete picture.

For a form that may be used by respondent to designate additional items for inclusion in the clerk's transcript, see § 44.212.

[3] Payment of Cost of Transcript

Appellant must deposit the estimated cost of preparing the transcript, less the amount, if any, of items designated by the respondent, within 10 days of receiving the clerk's estimate. If the appellant fails to make this deposit, his or her prior notice designating the clerk's transcript is not effective "for any purpose" [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(c)].

Appellant should receive the clerk's cost estimate within 30 days after the date respondent filed a counter notice, or the time for doing so has lapsed [see [2][a], above], whichever is earlier [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(c)]. For further discussion of the procedures employed by the clerk's office, see [5], below.

[4] Clerk's Preparation and Certification of Transcript

Within 30 days after the appellant has deposited the estimated cost of preparing the transcript, the clerk will prepare an original and one copy in the format required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144, and certify the original [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(d)]. For further discussion of the contents to be prepared by the clerk under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(d), either as a matter of course or by express designation by the parties, see § 44.31[1].

The formatting requirements with which the clerk must comply in preparing the record are set out in detail in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144. That rule covers the weight, size, and type of paper, as well as pagination, binding, and indexing, among other matters. It is of little relevance to the parties, unless they have elected to prepare an appendix or appendices under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124, in which case, many of the same formatting requirements will apply to them in their own preparation of their appendices [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(d)(1), and discussion in § 44.33].

The clerk will not copy any exhibit unless directed to do so by one of the parties. Otherwise, the procedure set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.224(a), will be followed [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(a)(3), and discussion in §§ 44.31[1], 44.32[1][d], [2][b], 44.33[2], and 44.81[3]].

When the record on appeal is completed, the clerk of the superior court will transmit the original transcripts to the reviewing court. After they have been received and filed in the reviewing court, the clerk of that court will mail a notice to the parties advising them of the date on which filing occurred [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.150]. This filing date is critical because the periods for completing briefs begin to run from this date [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.212(a)(1), and detailed discussion in Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.16].

[5] Subsequent Augmentation or Correction of Clerk's Transcript

If it later appears that the clerk's transcript is either inadequate or incorrect, either party may move that the reviewing court order augmentation or correction as provided in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155. For detailed discussion of augmentation and correction procedures, see § 44.90 et seq.

§ 44.33 Joint Appendix or Appellant's and Respondent's Separate Appendices

[1] Appendices as Common Alternative to Clerk's Transcript

Within 10 days after the notice of appeal is filed, that is, within the same period for filing a notice to designate the clerk's transcript [see § 44.32[1]], any party may serve and file with the clerk of the superior court a notice to proceed under the provisions of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124, as an alternative to proceeding under the provisions of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122, for the preparation of a clerk's transcript [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(a); for general discussion of proceeding under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122, see § 44.32].

Proceeding under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124, allows the parties to file a joint appendix, or separate appendices, in lieu of designating and counter designating a clerk's transcript.

The use of a joint appendix or separate appendices, instead of a clerk's transcript, has become quite common in appellate practice, and, as anticipated, has greatly reduced the time and, sometimes, the cost, of providing the documentary record on appeal. In addition, the use of an appendix permits greater selectivity and flexibility in preparation of the documentary record. Unlike proceedings for a clerk's transcript under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122, the 10-day deadline under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(a), is for filing a notice of election only, as distinguished from a notice under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122, under which an appellant must not only elect to proceed by clerk's transcript but also designate all the items to be included in that transcript. Parties using appendices therefore need not designate the contents of the documentary record before briefing, when the issues are still uncertain, but may select the documents needed to support their arguments concurrent with the briefing process [see former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.1, Judicial Council Drafter's Note (1981); see also § 44.13 (considerations in choosing the form of record)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Using Appendices to Strategic Advantage. The distinctive timing and time-saving features associated with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124, may be of strategic advantage to an appellant. For example, when an appellant's counsel faces some urgency in filing a notice designating the record, but is still evaluating whether to proceed with the appeal (in some instances still seeking or awaiting the advice of an appellate law specialist), counsel may file a notice of election to proceed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124, together with an application to extend the time to file a notice to prepare the reporter's transcript. In this way, appellant can buy the time to make a reasoned decision [see also Practice Tip in § 44.14[2][a]]. On the other hand, electing to use a traditional clerk's transcript can buy appellant's counsel time in another sense; the delays associated with this proceeding, especially when a large record is involved, may give more time to pursue settlement negotiations.

[2] Contents of Appendix

An appendix prepared by the appellant or jointly by the parties must include [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(b)]:

- Those documents listed in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(b)(1), that is, the items that a clerk is required to include in the record whether or not they are designated by a party [see § 44.31[1]].

- Such other documents listed in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(b)(3) as are "necessary for proper consideration of the issues," including documents that appellant should reasonably assume that respondent will rely upon in meeting the issues raised on appeal [see § 44.31[1]].

- The appellant's notice of election to proceed under the provisions of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124.

- In the case of a joint appendix, the stipulation designating its contents.

- Required indices [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144(b), discussed in [4][b], below].

All exhibits admitted into evidence or rejected by the court are deemed a part of the appendix, whether or not they are actually reproduced in it [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(b)(3)].

An appendix may incorporate by reference all or part of the record on appeal in another case pending in the reviewing court or in a prior appeal in the same case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(b)(2)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Use of Appendix When Exhibits Are Critical to Review. Proceeding by appendix in lieu of clerk's transcript can be exceptionally helpful in cases in which the exhibits were important to the result below, and are important on appeal as well. Although appellant's counsel is not required to include copies of the exhibits in the appendix, she or he may do so, and should do so when the it is important to bring the exhibits to court's attention before the court has already reached its tentative decision, which it has usually done by the time exhibits are otherwise transferred to the court of appeal under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.224(a) [see § 44.81[3]]. Such exhibits are best brought before the court in an appendix; many courts of appeal will strike or refuse to file a brief that includes a key exhibit attached but not yet included in the record [see also discussion in Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.12[3]].

[3] Procedure for Electing Use of Appendices

[a] Initial Notice of Election

[i] Service and Filing

As noted in [1], above, any party may elect to proceed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(a)(1) by filing notice within 10 days of the filing of the notice of appeal. As a practical matter, this election is usually made by appellant, who serves and files a notice of election to proceed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124, instead of serving and filing a notice to prepare a clerk's transcript under 8.122. However, either party may elect to have the appeal proceed by way of an appendix. A respondent's timely election to use an appendix will govern unless the superior court orders otherwise and no waiver of the fee for a clerk's transcript is granted to the appellant. This election procedure differs from all other appellate rules governing designation of a record on appeal. In those rules, the appellant's designation, or the stipulation of the parties, determines the type of record on appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(a), Advisory Committee Comment].

The requirement that it be served and filed means that the notice must be accompanied by proof of prior service, in a manner permitted by law, of one copy of the notice on counsel on each adverse party represented by separate counsel [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.25; for discussion and forms relating generally to service and proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service and Summons of Papers].

[ii] Form of Notice of Election

As discussed in [1], above, the form of notice of election is simple: a notice that the party chooses to proceed by use of an appendix under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(a)(1). For a form of notice of election, see § 44.220.

Like the notice to prepare a clerk's transcript, the notice of election may be combined in the same document with a notice to prepare the reporter's transcript, and both of these notices may be included in the document containing the notice of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(a)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Combining Notices May Save a Little Money. If appellant intends to rely on an appendix rather than a clerk's transcript, combining the notice of election with the notice of appeal will save a little in expense. On filing a combined notice of appeal and notice of election to proceed by appendix, some courts will waive the additional $100 deposit that is required in addition to the notice of appeal filing fee, and which is credited to the amount chargeable for preparation of the clerk's transcript "or any other appeal processing or notification" [see Gov. Code § 68926.1]. This amount is usually used to defray the cost of indexing the file in the course of preparing the clerk's transcript. With no need to prepare the index, some courts will not require the fee.

[b] Opposition to Election

Once appellant (or another party) has served notice of election to proceed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(a)(1), respondent (or another opposing party) has 10 days to file a noticed motion stating any objections. The provisions of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124, will govern preparation of the documentary record unless the court orders otherwise for good cause shown in such a motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(a)(1)]. For a form of motion objecting to the use of an appendix in lieu of a clerk's transcript, see § 44.222.

[c] Stipulation Regarding Preparation of Joint Appendix

Once an election to proceed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124, the parties are encouraged to stipulate to a joint appendix [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(a)(3)]. If they are successful in reaching an agreement concerning the joint appendix, they must prepare a written stipulation designating the contents of the joint appendix. A copy of the stipulation must be included in the appendix itself when it is filed with the court of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(b)(1)(D), and discussion in [2], above]. For a form of stipulation, see § 44.221.

PRACTICE TIP:

Preparing Joint Appendix. In practice, preparing a joint appendix frequently entails minor controversies and delays that can complicate counsel's life. A joint appendix is not due until the respondent's brief is filed, but appellant has to cite to it in his or her opening brief, meaning that the determination of its contents must be resolved before the opening brief is filed. Moreover, if the process of settling the contents is done by exchanging proposed indices, respondent's counsel may find that the pagination to his or her version of the same document is different from appellant's, perhaps, for example, because one party is including proofs of service and the other is not. In a large, multi-volume appendix, this can produce significant differences in pagination that are too time consuming to correct. It may be disconcerting enough for some even to imagine the process of two representatives of opposing parties "walking" through a joint appendix over the telephone, comparing the pages and trying to identify, much less resolve, all the discrepancies. In short, in some cases counsel may in good faith conclude that a joint appendix is not feasible. Appellant may then file the proposed or attempted joint appendix and his or her own separate appendix.

[4] Preparation of Joint Appendix or Separate Appendices

[a] Appendix Must Be Prepared by Parties But Conform to Rules

Unlike a clerk's transcript, the parties themselves must prepare an appendix or appendices under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124. Moreover, they must include the same documents as would be required in a clerk's transcript, and present them in largely the same format [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.124(b)(1), (d), 8.144(a), (d), (e); see [2], above, regarding required documents; see also [b], below, regarding formatting requirements].

PRACTICE TIP:

Options in Conforming Copies. If opposing counsel is uncooperative, the attorney (or staff member) assigned the task of preparing documents for inclusion in an appendix may have to make a trip to the courthouse, with a copy of the index to the office's pleading file, to review the clerk's file. Depending on personal preference and, perhaps, budgetary and time constraints, counsel may either arrange to have the clerk make a copy of the first page of any documents for which the office does not have a filed-stamped copy, or may simply make a notation of the dates of filing in the index for later notation by hand in the upper right-hand corner of the copy to be included in the appendix. Conformed copies are preferred, but not required, for documents included in an appendix [Doppes v. Bentley Motors, Inc. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1004, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 797].

It is important that all documents necessary to review be provided to the reviewing court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(b)(1)(B)]. If the parties cannot agree to prepare a joint appendix pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(a)(3), then appellant proceeds by filing appellant's appendix, which still must include any documents upon which the respondent is likely to rely [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(b)(1)(B) and discussion in [2], above]. If any document respondent needs to meet the issues raised on appeal is not included in the appellant's appendix, then respondent may file a respondent's separate appendix, providing any such additional document to the court. If appellant's omissions are substantial, then sanctions may be imposed [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(g); see also discussion in [5], below, regarding the deadlines for filing the various appendices].

[b] Format Requirements

The format requirements of an appendix are set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(d):

- The appendix must not be bound with a brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(d)(3)].

- The cover of an appendix must include the same information as the cover of a brief, but must be prominently entitled "JOINT APPENDIX" or, alternatively, "APPELLANT'S APPENDIX" and, if applicable, "RESPONDENT'S APPENDIX" and "APPELLANT'S REPLY APPENDIX" [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(d)(2); for discussion of the contents otherwise required to be included on the cover of a brief, and a form of cover of a brief that may be modified for use as the cover of an appendix, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, §§ 50.14[5], 50.70]. For a form of cover for a joint appendix, see § 44.223. For additional requirements applicable to preparation of the cover, pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.124(d)(1) and 8.144(e), see below.

As discussed in [2], above, all exhibits admitted into evidence or rejected by the court are deemed a part of the appendix, whether or not they are actually reproduced in it (although, again as discussed in [2], above, it is usually a good idea to reproduce important exhibits in the appendix). An appendix may incorporate by reference all or part of the record on appeal in another case pending in the reviewing court or in a prior appeal in the same case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.122(b)(2), 8.147(b)].

Otherwise, an appendix must conform to the following requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.144(a)-(c) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(d)(1)].

Under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144(a)(1), the appendix must be prepared on recycled paper, either white or unbleached, of not less than 20-pound weight, 81/2 by 11 inches in size. The photocopying process must produce clear and permanent copies that are equally legible to printing. Only one side of the paper may be used, and each margin must be no less than 11/4 inches. The pages must be numbered consecutively and bound on the left margin [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144(c)(1)].

Under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144(b), the appendix, at the beginning of the first (or only) volume, must provide both an alphabetical and a chronological index to each document, indicating the volume and page at which it first appears [see Canal Insurance Company v. Tackett (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 239, 242, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 626 (party waived right to move to strike appendix that lacked chronological index)]. The index must identify each exhibit by number or letter and a brief description of the exhibit [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144(b)(3)]. The contents of the appendix must be arranged chronologically. All pages must be renumbered consecutively [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144(a)(1)(D)].

Note that one court of appeal has held that, under the facts of that case, not following Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144 did not warrant sanctions because it did not cause prejudice, confusion, or additional work for the court clerk's office [Doppes v. Bentley Motors, Inc. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 967, 989, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 797].

PRACTICE TIP:
Pagination. A once common tool for paginating an appendix, a "Bates stamp," rarely produces page numbers that are distinct and legible after copying. A copy service or legal document service can provide computer-generated page number labels that are very legible, and have the additional advantage of showing up clearly even when superimposed on text, as is sometimes necessary. The Rules of Court do not require that page numbers appear in any particular place, and often the upper right-hand corner of the document is better than the lower right-hand corner, where predecessor page numbers or text sometimes appear.

Under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144(c)(1), no individual volume of an appendix should be more than 300 pages long. The cover should be the same size as its pages (see above). The cover must be endorsed with the title and trial court number of the case, the name of the each trial judge who participated in the case, the name of the trial court, and the names and addresses of the attorneys representing the parties on appeal. The cover must also contain the volume number and inclusive page numbers of that volume [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144(c)(2); see above for additional requirements applicable to the cover under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(d)(2)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Color of Appendix Cover. Effective January 1, 2005, the appellate rules recommend colors for the covers of appendices. Conforming to the usual practice, the rules recommend that the cover of an appendix be the same color as the brief with which it is filed [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.40, and discussion in Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.14[5]].

[c] Document or Exhibit Held by Other Party

If a party preparing an appendix wants it to contain a copy of a document or exhibit in the possession of another party, the party must take the following steps [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(c)]:

1. The party must first ask the party possessing the document or exhibit to provide a copy or lend it for copying. All parties should reasonably cooperate with such requests [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(c)(1)].

2. If this attempt is unsuccessful, the party may serve and file in the reviewing court a notice identifying the document or specifying the exhibit's trial court designation and requesting the party possessing the document or exhibit to deliver it to the requesting party or, if the possessing party prefers, to the reviewing court. The possessing party must comply with the request within 10 days after the notice is served [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(c)(2)].

3. If the possessing party sends the document or exhibit to the requesting party, the requesting party must copy and return it to the possessing party within 10 days after receiving it [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(c)(3)].

4. If the possessing party sends it to the reviewing court, that party must accompany the document or exhibit with a copy of the notice served by the requesting party, and immediately notify the requesting party that it has sent the document or exhibit to the reviewing court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(c)(4)].

5. On request, the reviewing court may return the document or exhibit to the party that sent it. When the remittitur issues, the reviewing court must return all documents or exhibits to the party that sent them [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(c)(5)].

For a form of notice to request an exhibit held by another party, see § 44.224.

[5] Service and Filing Requirements

Appendices must be filed in the reviewing court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(e)(1)(B)].

A joint appendix must be filed no later than the apellant's brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(e)(2)].

An appellant's separate appendix must be served and filed no later than the appellant's opening brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(e)(2)]. A respondent's appendix, containing any document that could have been, but was not, included in the appellant's appendix, may be served and filed no later than the respondent's brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(e)(3)].

If necessary, the appellant may serve and file a reply appendix no later than the time when a reply brief is due [Cal.

Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(e)(4); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.212(a)(3) (reply brief due 20 days after filing of respondent's brief); see also discussion in Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.16[3][b]].

The requirement that these separate appendices be "served and filed" means that, when filed, they must be accompanied by proof of prior service, in a manner permitted by law, of one copy on counsel for each adverse party who is represented by separate counsel [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.25; for discussion and forms relating generally to service and proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service and Summons of Papers].

The act of filing an appendix constitutes a representation by counsel that it consists of true and correct copies of the papers in the superior court's file [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(g); Hillman v. Leland E. Burns, Inc. (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 860, 864, 257 Cal. Rptr. 535 ; see also discussion in [7], below, regarding sanctions for failing to file conforming copies or including necessary documents].

[6] Costs

When the parties are unable to agree to file a joint appendix, initially each must bear the cost of preparing a separate appendix. When a joint appendix is to be filed, initially the appellant must bear the cost of its preparation, although when several parties are appealing from all or part of the same judgment, or when there is a cross appeal, the initial expense of preparing a joint appendix must be borne by all of them equally, or as they otherwise may agree. Subject to the provisions of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.276(a)(2) (concerning the inclusion of matter not reasonably material), however, the actual expense of producing two copies of the appendix ultimately is taxable as costs [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(f)].

For detailed discussion of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.276 and the items chargeable and amounts recoverable as costs on appeal, see Ch. 53, Appeal: Remittitur and Costs on Appeal, § 53.30 et seq.

[7] Sanctions for Nonconforming Copies or Substantial Underinclusion

Willful or grossly negligent filing of an appendix containing inaccurate copies is an unlawful interference with the proceedings of the reviewing court, and subjects the attorney filing the brief, as well as the party represented, to monetary and other sanctions [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(g)]. Conformed copies are preferred, but not required, for documents included in an appendix [Doppes v. Bentley Motors, Inc. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 967, 988-989, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 797].

Similarly, if the appendix violates Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124 in any way, the reviewing court may impose monetary or other sanctions [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(g); see The Termo Company v. Luther (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 394, 404, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 687 (striking exhibits that were not before trial court)]; Warfield v. Peninsula Golf & Country Club (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 646, 652 n.4, 262 Cal. Rptr. 890 (sanctions of $500.00 imposed for failing to confer regarding joint appendix and to include necessary documents)]. Failure to submit any record on appeal is grounds for dismissal of the appeal [see Goehring v. Chapman Univ. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 353, 363 n.7, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 39 (despite inconvenience, court chose to consider appeal because opposing party submitted adequate record)].

§ 44.34 Superior Court File in Lieu of Clerk's Transcript

[1] Use of Original Court File on Stipulation of Parties Where Local Appellate Court Rule Permits

The parties may stipulate to the use of the superior court file, in lieu of a clerk's transcript, when the court of appeal with jurisdiction over the county has approved the procedure by local rule [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.128(a)(1)]. Currently, the First, Third, and Fourth Appellate Districts have adopted local rules allowing the use of this type of documentary record [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Rule 9; Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 3d App. Dist., Rule 22; Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 4th App. Dist., Rule 10].

The stipulation to proceed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.128, must be filed with the superior court clerk with the appellant's notice designating the record on appeal under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121. The parties must serve the reviewing court with a copy of the stipulation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.128(a)(2)]. For a form of stipulation, see § 44.230.

Once the stipulation is filed, the provisions of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.128, together with any supplemental requirements imposed by local rule of the court of appeal, will govern unless the superior court orders otherwise on reasonable notice to the parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.128(a)(1)].

[2] Deposit of Estimated Costs of Preparing Original File

Within 10 days after the stipulation to proceed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.128, is filed, the clerk of the superior court is required to provide appellant with an estimate of the costs for arranging the entire file in chronological order, numbering all of the pages, and preparing a chronological index and list ofattorneys of record. Within 10 days after the clerk mails the estimate, appellant is required to deposit the estimated costs with the clerk [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.128(b)(1)].

[3] Clerk's Preparation and Forwarding of Original File

Within 10 days after payment of the estimated costs, the clerk must arrange the entire original superior court file in chronological order, number the pages, and attach a chronological index and a list of attorneys of record indicating the parties they represent and any unrepresented party. The clerk is required to send copies of the index to counsel of record for each party, and to each unrepresented party, for use in paginating their files in accordance with the chronological index [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.128(b)].

The prepared file must be forwarded to the appellate court immediately if no notice to prepare a reporter's transcript has been filed. If a notice to prepare a reporter's transcript has been filed, however, the original court file will be forwarded to the reviewing court along with that transcript when it is complete and certified [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.128(b)(4)].

[4] Parties' Preparation of Working Copies of Original File Based on Clerk's Index

As discussed in §§ 44.11 and 44.13, the purpose of permitting the use of the superior court's original file under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.128, is to reduce the time and expense of preparing a clerk's transcript. Accordingly, on receipt of the chronological index prepared by the clerk, which will indicate the beginning page number of each named document, each party must compose his or her own working copy of the court's file using copies of the documents in its file and arranging them in the order set out in the index.

The parties should then paginate their working copies so that they match the original file sent to the reviewing court; otherwise, counsel will not be able to fulfill their obligation to provide exact page citations to the record in their briefs [Bernard v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1203, 1205, 277 Cal. Rptr. 401 (court held party's reference to 20 nonsequential pages of deposition testimony in original court file inadequate); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(a)(1)(C); see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.12[1][c]]. Briefs that do not meet this requirement may be stricken [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(e); see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.19].

PRACTICE TIP:

Paginating the Copy of the Court File. Some attorneys who have used Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.128(b), have had difficulty in getting their files to match the court's, particularly in large record cases. If your pleading file is missing so much as a proof of service or a divider sheet between exhibits, it can throw off your pagination from that of the clerk's file. It may be possible to forestall such problems by paying a visit to the clerk's office with a copy of the index to your pleading file before you designate the record, comparing it item by item with the contents of the court's file, and ordering a copy of anything that is missing. If that does not work, then you may have no choice but to cart the entire contents of your pleading file down to the courthouse after you receive the clerk's index and compare it, page by page, with the court's paginated file, page by page.

§ 44.50 Governing Law

The designation, preparation, and filing of a reporter's transcript or its alternatives are governed primarily by the appellate rules: i.e., Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.130, 8.134, 8.137, 8.144 and 8.155. Local appellate rules may also apply [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st. App. Dist. Rules 5, 6; Cal. Additional statutory provisions may apply, such as those applicable to court reporters and their fees [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 269(a), 273(a), discussed in § 44.51].

C. The Reporter's Transcript and Its Alternatives

5-44 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 44.51

AUTHOR: Stefanie Y. Gandolfi Author E. Elizabeth Summers and Gary Cramer Editorial Consultants Ms. Gandolfi is a solo appellate practitioner in Oakland, California. Ms. Summers is a principal partner with Bien & Summers, Oakland, California, an appellate specialty firm. Mr. Cramer, who contributed comments and practice tips concerning reporter's transcripts, is a court reporter with the Los Angeles County Superior Court.

§ 44.51 Purpose and Content of Reporter's Transcript

A reporter's transcript is a record of the oral proceedings in the lower court, possibly including the witnesses' testimony, counsels' objections, the court's rulings, the court's and counsels' statements and remarks, and the jury instructions, which were taken down in shorthand by the official court reporter and transcribed at the request of a party or the court [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 269(a) (duties of official court reporter), 273(a) (report of official reporter as prima facie evidence of testimony and proceedings in case); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)]. The purposes of a notice to prepare a reporter's transcript are to inform the court reporter which portions of the oral proceedings to transcribe, to limit the scope of appellate review to the specified issues, and to enable the respondent to determine whether to request transcription of additional portions of the oral proceedings [Ermoian v. Desert Hospital (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 475, 497, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 754 (notice to prepare reporter's transcript insufficient to bring defects in statement of decision to trial court's attention)].

Whenever an appellant wishes to raise a point that requires consideration of oral proceedings, or of instructions that cannot be copied by the clerk, he or she must designate them in a notice to prepare a reporter's transcript [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)]. As a practical matter, this means providing at least a partial reporter's transcript in virtually every case, since there usually will have been some oral proceedings having a bearing on the appeal, even if they consist only of a short hearing on a motion for summary judgment [but see Graham v. Kirkwood Meadows Pub. Util. Dist. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1631, 1638, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 793 (when clerk's transcript shows no new evidence was presented in trial court, review of denial of petition for writ of mandate could proceed without reporter's transcript)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Consider Carefully Before Proceeding Without a Reporter's Transcript. As discussed in more detail in Subpart A, above [see § 44.10 et seq.; see also in particular discussion in §§ 44.12, 44.13], there is considerable risk of waiving important issues or otherwise failing to present an adequate record when proceeding without any reporter's transcript, except in a very limited number of cases that are truly limited to legal issues presented by the documentary record [see § 44.31[1] for discussion of the contents of the documentary record in the form of a traditional clerk's transcript].

Whenever trial counsel is at all uncertain about proceeding without a reporter's transcript, or which parts to designate, it is best to associate appellate counsel for advice. If expense is a primary consideration, it is in many cases possible to proceed on a partial reporter's transcript, concerning which the assistance of appellate counsel may ultimately prove to be cost-beneficial. See § 44.52[2] for further discussion regarding partial transcripts, and § 44.52[3][d] concerning situations in which an appellant may receive some assistance in the cost of a reporter's transcript through the Transcript Reimbursement Fund.

Special considerations in designating matters in the reporter's transcript include the following [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(c)]:

- The reporter will not transcribe voir dire examination of jurors, counsels' opening statements and arguments to the jury, and the proceedings on a motion for new trial, unless these are specifically designated by appellant in the notice.

- Although the reporter does not otherwise transcribe or copy documents that may be included in the clerk's transcript under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122 [see § 44.31[1]], any instruction given or refused, whether written or oral, may be transcribed at the direction of a party if it cannot be copied by the clerk.

- When the appellant designates the transcription of "oral proceedings," these include portions of depositions that were received into evidence, or offered and rejected (with portions and objections clearly indicated).

Currently, the use of video or other electronic means of recording oral proceedings, by means adopted by the Judicial Council, have been disapproved by case law [see Practice Tip in § 44.11[3]]. Consequently, appellants must continue to demonstrate any trial court error by means of a reporter's transcript or one of the accepted alternatives, specifically, a settled statement or an agreed statement [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.134, 8.137, and discussion in §§ 44.53, 44.54].

Appellant's failure to perform any act necessary to procure the filing of the record with the reviewing court within the time allowed may result in dismissal[see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.140(b), and further discussion in § 44.14].

For more detailed discussion of the procedures for designating and securing preparation of the reporter's transcript, see § 44.52.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. The Reporter's Transcript and Its Alternatives

5-44 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 44.52

AUTHOR: Stefanie Y. Gandolfi Author E. Elizabeth Summers and Gary Cramer Editorial Consultants Ms. Gandolfi is a solo appellate practitioner in Oakland, California. Ms. Summers is a principal partner with Bien & Summers, Oakland, California, an appellate specialty firm. Mr. Cramer, who contributed comments and practice tips concerning reporter's transcripts, is a court reporter with the Los Angeles County Superior Court.

§ 44.52 Preparation of Reporter's Transcript

[1] Appellant's Notice to Prepare Reporter's Transcript

Within 10 days of filing the notice of appeal, appellant must file a notice toprepare a reporter's transcript with the clerk of the superior court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.21(a)]. The appellant must serve a copy of the notice on respondent, and on each reporter whose identity is known to him or her [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(5)].

In any case in which a notice of election to prepare an appendix in lieu of a clerk's transcript is in effect, a copy of the notice will be sent by the clerk of the superior court to the clerk of the court of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(c); see § 44.33 for discussion of appendix].

The service requirement means that the notice, when filed, must be accompanied by proof of prior service on respondent in a manner permitted by law [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.25; for discussion and forms relating generally to service and proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service and Summons of Papers]. For discussion of the 15-day "grace period" under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.140(a), and proceedings in the appellate court to obtain an extension of time in filing the notice, or relief from default, see § 44.14[2].

Appellant's designation should be as specific as possible in indicating the oral proceedings to be transcribed. The designation of "all oral proceedings" or the like should be avoided. Depending on the vagaries of the individual court, clerk, or reporter, appellant may get far more, or far less, than what he or she wanted.

Specificity is required in the Second Appellate District Court of Appeal. In that court the notice must provide the reporter's name, the trial court department, the date, and a brief description of the "nature" of each oral "proceeding" he or she wants transcribed in the notice to prepare a reporter's transcript [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 2d App. Dist. Rule 3(a)(1)]. Failure to comply with this local rule in the Second District is deemed a failure to designate the record properly under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.130 and 8.122, and may result in the dismissal of the appeal or the imposition of monetary sanctions [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 2d App. Dist. Rule 3(c)].

The Second Appellate District has developed its own printed form that "may" be used in that court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 2d App. Dist. Rule 3(b)]. Counsel may wish to obtain that form form the clerk of that court. For a form of notice that complies substantially with this local rule and form, see § 44.240.

PRACTICE TIP:

Designating Reporter's Transcript. As a practical matter, appellant must have all the information that is required in the Second District's local rule in order to come up with a deposit for the reporter's transcript. Before giving you an estimate of the cost of a transcript, the reporter will want to know the date and nature of the proceedings you want transcribed in order to find and review the length of the hearings in question. There may also be a question of just who the reporter was, if the proceedings were in law and motion, or taken down by someone other than the reporter assigned to a particular department. The superior court may have a court officer who supervises all the reporters and can tell you exactly who reported whose proceedings on a specific date. The superior court is a handy place to start in getting the information necessary to file the designation of a reporter's transcript. It is recommended, in any event, that counsel use the Second District's local rule as a useful guideline even when filing a notice in another appellate district. For additional discussion of means by which counsel may research and specify only the portions of oral proceedings actually needed, see § 44.13.

In addition, to help expedite the transcript, counsel should provide the court reporter with an exhibit list, a witness list, and minute orders for each day of proceedings included in the appeal transcript. Moreover, whenever ordering a transcript from a court reporter, be sure to tell the reporter it is being ordered for purposes of appeal, so the reporter will know to prepare the transcript in the required "appeal format" under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144.

The notice to prepare a reporter's transcript may be incorporated into the same document as the notice to prepare a clerk's transcript or the notice of election to proceed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124, and both notices may likewise be included in the document containing the notice of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(a)].

For forms of notice of appeal combined with one or more notices to prepare the record, see Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal, § 42.90.

[2] Appellant's Notice or Stipulation of Parties Designating Partial Transcript

If the appellant's notice to prepare a reporter's transcript states the points to be raised on appeal, it may designate the portions of the oral proceedings to be transcribed, or direct the omission of portions deemed unnecessary [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(2); for a form of partial designation, see § 44.241]. In this event, however, appellant is precluded from later raising any grounds for reversal not embraced by the points stated in such a notice, unless the appellate court, on motion, permits the appellant to present additional errors or grounds of appeal on such terms as it may prescribe [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(2); see also Rogers v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 857, 861-862, 114 Cal. Rptr. 540 ; Price v. Tree Topper Timber Co. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 412, 415, 20 Cal. Rptr. 817] . Any such motion should probably be combined with a request to augment the partial transcript, as necessary, to present an adequate record supporting such additional grounds for reversal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(a), and discussion in § 44.90 et seq.].

When either a stipulation or a notice to prepare a partial reporter's transcript is filed, only those portions of the oral proceedings, instructions, or both, expressly designated will be transcribed. The sole exception to this rule is that, absent a stipulation to the contrary, all of a witness's testimony will be transcribed if any portion of it has been designated by either party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(e)(2)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Using a Partial Transcript. Reliance on a partial reporter's transcript can significantly limit the scope of the appeal. In addition to the limits of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(2), discussed above, when only portions of the oral proceedings are transcribed, and an appeal is brought on the judgment roll, any evidentiary material in the pretrial order of that roll cannot be considered part of the record unless it has been specifically designated by one of the parties for inclusion in the clerk's transcript [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122; see also discussion in § 44.31[2]]. When the record on appeal does not include all of the oral proceedings (or all of the papers and records), the reviewing court presumes that the record includes all matters material to deciding the issues raised [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.163; see also discussion in § 44.13[2][e]]. Consequently, the decision to rely on a partial transcript should be an informed one, preferably made on the advice of experienced appellate counsel.

[3] Deposit of Approximate Cost of Transcript or Compliance With Specified Alternative

[a] In General

An additional prerequisite to the preparation of a reporter's transcript is a deposit of the approximate cost of preparation with the clerk of the superior court or compliance with one of the statutory alternatives to a deposit. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130, provides that the superior court clerk may not file a notice to prepare a reporter's transcript unless it is accompanied by one of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(b)]:

- The deposit [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(b)(1); see [b], below].

- The reporter's written waiver of a deposit [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(b)(3); see [c], below].

- A copy of a Transcript Reimbursement Fund application [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(b)(3); see [d], below].

- A certified transcript of the designated proceedings [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(b)(3); see [e], below].

If the notice is not accompanied by one of the foregoing, the clerk will file the notice and promptly issue a notice of default under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.140 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(d)(2)].

The reporter will only begin transcribing his or her notes after he or she has received notice from the clerk that the notice to prepare a reporter's transcript has been "filed" along with the deposit or permitted substitute [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(d)(1)]. When the transcript is completed, the reporter will bill the appellant at the statutory rate and send a copy of the bill to the clerk. The clerk will then pay the reporter from the funds deposited and promptly refund any excess deposit to the appellant or give notice to the appellant if additional funds are needed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(f)(2)]. If more than one reporter is producing the transcript, the clerk must promptly pay each reporter who certifies that all of his or her portion of the transcript has been completed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(f)(2)]. On request, the reporter must provide any party with a copy of the reporter's transcript in computer-readable format, unless the superior court orders otherwise [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(f)(4)]. Each computer-readable copy must comply with the format, labeling, content, and numbering requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 271(b) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(f)(4)].

[b] Deposit of Approximate Cost of Transcript

The notice to prepare a reporter's transcript generally must be accompanied by a deposit of the approximate cost of the transcript, which is either (1) based on a written estimate secured from the reporter in advance, or (2) computed at $325 per fraction of a day's proceedings that appellant or counsel states did not exceed three hours, or $650 per day or fraction of a day that is greater than three hours [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(b)(1)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Getting a Preliminary Estimate. If the transcript is of a law and motion hearing, it is worth the time to get an estimate from the reporter of the cost rather than depositing the statutory minimum. The minimum for a proceeding of less that half a day is $325, whereas an estimate for a law and motion hearing may be much less, around $100.

Immediately after filing the notice to prepare the transcript, the clerk must notify the reporter of its terms and the amount deposited. If the amount of the deposit appears inadequate, the reporter has 15 days after the clerk mails the notice to file with the clerk and mail to appellant an estimate or revised estimate of the total cost of the transcript and notice of the additional amount to be deposited. The appellant must deposit the additional sum with the clerk within 10 days after the mailing of the reporter's notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(b)(2)].

[c] Reporter's Waiver in Lieu of Deposit

One alternative to depositing the estimated cost of preparing the transcript with the clerk is to make separate arrangements with the reporter, in which case he or she will provide a written waiver of the deposit for filing with the clerk in lieu of the deposit [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(b)(3)].

Appellant should proceed with caution in using this procedure, however, since he or she will bear the risk if the reporter defaults on the obligation to prepare the transcript [see Bitters v. Networks Electronic Corp. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 246, 249-250, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 675 (when appellant did not deposit reporter's fee in court, and reporter filed a waiver but absconded with fee without preparing transcript, court would not bear the cost of engaging a substitute reporter)].

For a form for use in obtaining a waiver of the deposit, see § 44.245.

PRACTICE TIP:

Waiver of Deposit Usually Obtained in Connection With Deposit Arranged With Reporter. If appellant deposits a preestimated fee for the transcript with the reporter, and obtains from that reporter both a receipt and waiver of deposit for filing with the clerk, that reporter can begin preparation sooner than if the reporter waits for the clerk's office to notify him or her that the transcript fees are posted with the court. This procedure will usually result in a faster delivery of the verbatim record. If the reporter's transcript is less than a hundred pages, the fee deposited with the reporter directly will usually be less than that required to be collected by the court [see also Practice Tip in [b], above].

[d] Proceeding for Order Allowing Filing Without Deposit

Another alternative to depositing the cost of preparing a reporter's transcript is to file a copy of an application to the Transcript Reimbursement Fund under Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 8.130(c).

The Transcript Reimbursement Fund is a state fund whose monies come from the Certified Shorthand Reporters in California through assessment to their licensing fees by the Court Reporters Board of California. It is designed to provide reporting services to low-income litigants otherwise unable to afford them [Bus. & Prof. Code § 8030.2(a), (d)]. Disbursements from the Fund for preparation of reporter's transcripts are generally made to qualified legal services projects that provide free legal services to indigent persons, and to pro bono attorneys who represent indigent persons referred by these qualified legal services projects in cases not considered "fee-generating" [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 8030.4(a), (d), (f), (g); see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 8030.6]. Payments may also be made directly to the certified reporter who prepared the transcript [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 8030.6(d) and discussion in [c], above]. If an applicant who has received money from the Fund is later awarded court costs or attorney's fees in a judgment or settlement, the applicant must reimburse the Fund [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 8030.2(e)].

Applications for payments from the Transcript Reimbursement Fund are processed by the Court Reporters Board of the state Department of Consumer Affairs [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 8000, 8030.6]. Application procedures and eligibility requirements for payment from the Fund are set out in Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 8030.4 and 8030.8.

This procedure is sometimes used in conjunction with an appellant seeking a waiver of court fees, since the relief from costs and expenses afforded to an appellant seeking a waiver of court fees does not include relief from expenses for a reporter's transcript [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.26(e); Mehdi v. Superior Court (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 1198, 1202-1203, 261 Cal. Rptr. 919 (reporter's transcript costs are not expressly provided for under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.50 et seq. (now see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 8.26(e)); see also further discussion of waiving court fees in Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview, § 40.13[3]].

Under the former rule, the appellant was required to file a motion in the superior court for permission to file a Transcript Reimbursement Fund application. That procedure, however, is superseded by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(b)(3), which allows the appellant simply to file a copy of a Transcript Reimbursement Fund application in lieu of a deposit. If the Court Reporters Board approves the application for payment or reimbursement, the reporter's time to prepare the transcript begins when the reporter receives notice of the approval [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(c)(2)]. If the Court Reporters Board denies the application for payment or reimbursement, the appellant's time to deposit the reporter's fee or substitute under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(b)(3), or to file an agreed or settled statement under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.134 or 8.137, is extended until 30 days after the board mails notice of the denial [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(c)(3)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Utilizing the Transcript Reimbursement Fund (TRF). When an appellant seeks to utilize the TRF, the court reporter may require the appellant to post the estimated fees for preparation of the transcript with the reporter. To receive reimbursement from the TRF, the appellant must then include a copy of the reporter's invoice when submitting the request for payment to the Court Reporters Board of California. The court reporter may forgo payment in advance and instead wait for payment from the TRF upon delivery or filing of the transcript. Under such circumstances the court reporter's invoice must be included with the documentation submitted by the appellant to the Court Reporters Board of California, with the appropriate notation on the forms being submitted, that thecourt reporter has not yet received the fees for preparation of the verbatim transcript.

There are various limits on payments available from the TRF: i.e, $35.00 for exhibits, $20,000 per case per year, reasonable fees for postage, and no payment for handling charges.

[e] Substitution of Original Transcript

The final alternative to depositing the estimated cost of preparing the transcript with the clerk is to substitute a certified transcript of the proceedings specified in the designation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(b)(3)]. In effect, when trial (or appellate) counsel has already paid to have one or more daily transcripts prepared, the deposit is superfluous.

PRACTICE TIP:

Option of Attaching Certified Copy of Transcript Specified. A certified copy of a transcript specifically designated, in lieu of a deposit, need not be a "daily" transcript. If the matter involved is just a short hearing on a motion, for example, lasting much less than full day, trial counsel may order a transcript of that proceeding at the conclusion of that proceeding, before leaving the courtroom.

Customarily, a copy may be filed in lieu of the original so long as it is certified with the reporter's original signature.

Counsel should note that when daily transcripts are used, the reporter must still renumber the pages consecutively, and add covers and indexes, to conform with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144(d), before the record may be filed in the court of appeal. For a form that may be used to advise the court when appellant intends to provide and rely on daily transcripts or other original transcripts, see § 44.240.

[4] Respondent's Notice Designating Additions

Respondent bears the same burden as appellant to provide the court with an adequate record, particularly as to matters necessary to support the judgment or review a cross appeal [see, e.g., Lankster v. Alpha Beta Co. (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 678, 683-684, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 923 ; see also discussion in § 44.12[2]].

Accordingly, respondent may serve and file a notice designating any additional oral proceedings, or any additional instructions that cannot be copied by the clerk, that he or she wishes to be included in the record on appeal, within ten days after service of appellant's notice to prepare a reporter's transcript [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(3)]. For discussion regarding items to be designated generally, see § 44.51 and [1] and [2], above.

At the time of filing the notice, respondent must deposit the estimated cost of preparing the additional portions of the transcript as computed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(b) [see discussion in [3], above].

Only those proceedings and instructions designated in the notices of the parties will be transcribed, except when a portion of the testimony of a witness has been designated, in which case the entire testimony of that witness will be transcribed regardless of the specification. The parties may, however, stipulate that they wish to proceed on only a portion of that witness's testimony, in which case only the designated portion will be transcribed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(e)(2); see [2], below, discussing stipulation to proceed on partial transcript].

Counsel should be aware that if appellant has not designated the preparation of any reporter's transcript at all, respondent may not do so either [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(4); see discussion in § 44.30 et seq.]. The reviewing court may issue an order to augment the record, however, either on its own motion or on the motion of a party, based on the finding that a reporter's transcript is necessary to prevent a miscarriage of justice [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155, and discussion in § 44.90 et seq.]. Unless the court orders otherwise, the appellant is responsible for the cost of any reporter's transcript the court may order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(4)].

[5] Preparation and Certification of Reporter's Transcript

Within 30 days after the reporter receives notice under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(c)(2) or the clerk mails notice under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(d)(1), the reporter must complete and file with the clerk of the superior court, an original and one copy of the certified reporter's transcript [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(d)]. Under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.60(b) and (e), only the reviewing court may extend the time in which to prepare the reporter's transcript [see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist. Rule 5 (regarding form of reporter's requests for extensions of time, and imposition of sanctions for default)]. When the time has been extended, the clerk will mail copies of the order to the parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(d)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Extensions for Reporters. To avoid the time and trouble associated with filing for extensions of time, some courts of appeal have established automatic extensions of time for filing of the court reporter's verbatim transcript. For example, in the Second Appellate District, reporters are given an automatic 60-day extension (aggregate of 90 days) within which to file civil transcripts. Usually any extension must be coordinated with the court of appeal through the superior court's "appeals supervising judge" [see, e.g., Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Internal Operating Practices and Procedures of the Cts. of Appeal, First App. Dist., § 24, and discussion in § 44.14[1]].

The reporter also must note in the transcript any places where oral proceedings were omitted, as well as the nature of the omitted matter. Similarly, the reporter must indicate where and when in the proceedings exhibits were received in evidence, or were offered and marked for identification, and identify each exhibit so received or offered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(e)(1)].

The reporter is prohibited from transcribing or copying in the reporter's transcript any document that, under the provisions of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122, may be included in the clerk's transcript [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(d); see also discussion of contents of clerk's transcript in § 44.31[1]].

The general format requirements for a reporter's transcript, including the type of paper, fonts and margins, indexes, binding and covers, and system of pagination to be used, are set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144.

[6] Remedies When Reporter Fails to Complete Transcript

If a party complains to an appellate court that a reporter has not filed a trial transcript in a timely fashion, that court may issue an order to show cause why the reporter should not be declared incompetent to act as an official reporter. Under Gov. Code § 69944, an official reporter or reporter pro tempore is not deemed competent to continue to act as an official reporter unless he or she has completed and filed all transcriptions of his or her notes in any case on appeal that he or she is required by law to transcribe. Therefore, unless an authorized extension has been obtained pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.60, the appellate court may issue an order providing that the reporter is incompetent to serve as the official reporter in any courtroom until he or she presents written certification, under penalty of perjury, that all outstanding transcriptions have been filed [Malick v. Contra Costa County Flood Control etc. Dist. (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 50, 51-53, 182 Cal. Rptr. 386 ; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist. Rule 5(c) (procedures for extension of time to prepare reporter's transcript); Cal. Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist. Internal Operating Practices and Procedures § 24(a) (regarding appointed, county "appeals supervising" judges)]. In addition, sanctions may be imposed on the reporter [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.23].

If the reporter refuses, becomes unable, or otherwise fails to transcribe all or any portion of the oral proceedings designated by the parties, the superior court clerk will mail a notice to the parties specifying the portions affected. Within 10 days of the mailing of the clerk's notice, the appellant may move for leave to file a settled statement in place of those portions. If the motion is granted, the superior court's order will also specify the time in which the settled statement must be served and filed. This remedy is available in addition to any other remedies provided by law [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(e); for further discussion of settled statements, see § 44.53].

The superior court, superior court judge, or appellate court has power to set aside a judgment from which appeal is taken, and to order new trial, when loss, destruction, or other circumstances preclude the preparation of reporter's transcript [Code of Civ. Proc. § 914; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 657.1, and discussion in Ch. 371, Motions After Trial].

[7] Subsequent Augmentation or Correction

If it should later appear that the parties' designations were inadequate to permit review of the appeal or cross appeal, if any, a party, or the court on its own motion, may request that the record be augmented [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155]. For detailed discussion of augmentation, see § 44.90 et seq.

§ 44.53 Settled Statement in Lieu of Reporter's Transcript

[1] Purpose and Definition of "Settled Statement"

A settled statement is a condensed, narrative statement of the relevant proceedings at trial that is drafted by appellant, reviewed and, if necessary, amended by respondent, and then "settled" by the trial court for certification to the court of appeal.

The only reason an appellant might choose this procedure is to avoid reporter's fees, which may be prohibitive. As a practical matter, the procedure is cumbersome and seldom used. Generally, it is not recommended for this purpose, but only when there is no other alternative to preparing a record; i.e., when providing a reporter's transcript is impossible, and any attempt to prepare an agreed statement has failed [see further discussion in [2], below, and discussion of agreed statements in § 44.54].

For one thing, a trial judge may be none too pleased with the prospect of an appeal from the decision to begin with, and the judge's memory of the proceedings may differ sharply from appellant's. Appellant's remedies in altering the version that is eventually "settled" by such a judge are virtually nonexistent (e.g., such virtually nonexistent remedies might include a compelling motion for reconsideration, a creative motion for relief to correct errors in the court's statement, or even a persuasive writ petition seeking aid from the appellate court in settling the statement).

[2] When Settled Statement May Be Used

An appellant may use a settled statement in lieu of a reporter's transcript in the following situations [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(a)(2)]:

- A substantial cost saving will result and the statement can be settled without significantly burdening opposing parties or the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(a)(2)(A)].

- The designated oral proceedings were not reported or cannot be transcribed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(a)(2)(B)].

- The appellant is unable to pay for a reporter's transcript and funds are not available from the Transcript Reimbursement Fund [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(a)(2)(C); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(c); discussion of Transcript Reimbursement Fund in § 44.52[3][d]].

A party who proceeded in forma pauperis in the trial court is deemed to be without adequate funds [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(a)(2)(C)]. Other parties may establish that they are without adequate funds on motion for leave to use a settled statement [see also discussion of litigants on appeal proceeding in forma pauperis in Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview, § 40.13[3]].

When an appellant is qualified or permitted to use a settled statement under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(a), he or she may elect to use the statement instead of only the reporter's transcript, or in place of both the reporter's and the clerk's transcripts [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(a)(1)].

[3] Preparation and Filing of a Settled Statement

[a] Appellant's Motion to Use Settled Statement

If appellant elects to rely on a settled statement in lieu of a reporter's transcript only or both reporter's and clerk's transcripts, he or she must serve and file in the superior court a motion to do so with its notice designating the record on appeal under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(a)(1); for a form of motion to use settled statement in lieu of reporter's and clerk's transcripts, see § 44.251].

If the court denies the motion, the appellant must file a new notice designating the record on appeal under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121 within 10 days after the superior court mails, or a party serves, the order of denial [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(a)(3)].

[b] Appellant's Proposed Statement

Within 30 days after the superior court clerk mails, or a party serves, an order granting a motion to use a settled statement, the appellant must serve and file in the superior court a condensed narrative of the oral proceedings that the appellant believes necessary for the appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(b)(1)]. Subject to the court's approval in settling the statement, the appellant may present some or all of the evidence by question and answer [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(b)(1)]. Counsel should be aware, however, that an inadequate statement can lead to dismissal [Committee to Defend Reproductive Rights v. a Free Pregnancy Center (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 633, 637-639, 280 Cal. Rptr. 329] . Moreover, if the condensed statement covers only a portion of the oral proceedings, the appellant must state the points to be raised, and will be precluded from presenting any other grounds for reversal unless permitted to do so on motion to the reviewing court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(b)(2); In re Marriage of Kelley (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 82, 89, 134 Cal. Rptr. 259] .

When appellant intends to rely solely on a settled statement for the record on appeal, he or she must provide copies of documents listed in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(b)(1), showing the dates required in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(b)(2), in addition to the condensed statement of the oral proceedings (that is, the documentary record to be used in lieu of a clerk's transcript). Specifically, appellant must provide the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(b)(3)]:

- The notice of appeal.
- Any judgment appealed from and any notice of its entry.
- Any order appealed from and any notice of its entry.
- Any notice of intention to move for a new trial, or motion to vacate the judgment, for judgment notwithstanding the verdict, or for reconsideration of an appealed order, and any order on such motion and any notice of its entry.
- Any notices or stipulations to prepare clerk's or reporter's transcripts or to proceed by agreed or settled statement.
- The register of actions, if any.

Appellant may also include any other papers or records that could have been incorporated into a clerk's transcript under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(b)(3) and (4) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(b)(5)].

For discussion of format requirements in preparing the statement, see [4], below.

[c] Respondent's Proposed Amendments

Within 20 days after service of appellant's proposed narrative statement, respondent may file and serve proposed amendments [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(b)(4)].

[d] Settlement by Trial Judge of Proposed Statement and Amendments

Ultimately, the judge who tried the case must "settle" the statement, that is, must resolve any differences between appellant's and respondent's versions of the proceedings, and, if necessary, augment them, so that a single statement may be prepared to assist the reviewing court. Accordingly, once respondent has filed his or her proposed amendments, or the time allotted to do so has expired (whichever occurs first), the clerk will set a time for settlement of the statement. Rule 8.137(c) is very specific about the timing of this proceeding: it must be held within ten days of the filing of respondent's proposed amendments, but the parties must receive no less than five days' notice of the hearing. At the time originally set, or as continued, the judge will meet with the parties to settle the statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(c)(1)].

The trial judge has full and plenary power to settle the statement, subject only to the limitation that he not act arbitrarily. He or she may rely on the suggestions of the respondent on appeal, his or her own memory of the proceedings, and his or her trial notes, in amending and settling the proposed statement. If necessary, the judge may recall witnesses or have the reporter reread his or her shorthand notes, to refresh the court's memory. As a last resort, if the judge believes that he or she cannot fairly or properly pass on the sufficiency or accuracy of appellant's statement or respondent's amendments, the appellant may be required to furnish a reporter's transcript. Before appellant may be compelled to do so, however, the trial judge must specify precisely how the proposed statement is deficient and why he or she is convinced that it cannot otherwise be settled, so that only necessary proceedings will be transcribed and the cost contained [Ace Beverage Co. v. Municipal Court (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 703, 710, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 153 ; Keller v. Superior Court (1950) 100 Cal App 2d 231, 234-236, 223 P.2d 309] .

[e] Appellant's Preparation and Filing of Statement

Besides settling the statement, the trial judge also fixes the time within which the appellant must prepare, serve, and file it [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(c)(2); Williams v. Goldberg (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 40, 46, 151 P.2d 853] .

If appellant fails to serve and file the settled statement in accordance with the trial court's order to incorporate respondent's amendments, the reviewing court will resolve all differences in favor of the respondent [Williams v. Goldberg (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 40, 46, 151 P.2d 853] .

On appeal, the presumption of completeness in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.163, will apply to a settled statement [Kovacik v. Reed (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 166, 170, 315 P.2d 314 ; see discussion of presumption in § 44.13]. Consequently, the reviewing court is bound to assume that enough appears in the settled statement to decide whether reversible error was committed [People ex rel. Dept. Pub. Works v. Bond (1964) 231 Cal. App. 2d 435, 437, 41 Cal. Rptr. 900] .

Moreover, notwithstanding Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155, which authorizes augmentation or correction of the record on appeal, the reviewing court is not authorized to usurp the prerogative of the trial court to determine whether a proposed statement accurately and fairly reflects the proceedings below.

Thus, if appellant fails to convince the trial judge that his or her statement accurately reflects the proceedings in question, and cannot or will not provide a reporter's transcript, then the decision of the trial judge, who heard and tried the case, will be regarded as final [Burns v. Brown (1946)27 Cal. 2d 631, 636, 166 P.2d 1 ; Cross v. Tustin (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 821, 825-826, 236 P.2d 142] .

Therefore, the only truly effective way for appellant to resolve the deadlock that may ensue from the differing views of the court and one or both of the parties, may, finally, be to seek additional time to have a reporter's transcript prepared.

When improper procedures were followed by the trial court in settling the statement, however, appellant may consider seeking writ review [see Quail v. Municipal Court (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 572, 575-576, 217 Cal. Rptr. 361] .

[f] Respondent's Objections to Engrossed Statement

Once appellant has filed and served the statement, the respondent has five days to serve and file any objections to it. If the respondent does not do so, then it will be presumed that the statement has been engrossed in accordance with the order of the judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(c)(3)].

[4] Certification of or Stipulation Regarding Engrossed Statement

When the time has passed for respondent to file objections to the statement without him or her having done so, the clerk of the court will present the statement to the judge for certification. Alternatively, the parties may stipulate that the statement as originally served, or as prepared, is correct, in which case the stipulation will have the same effect as if the statement were certified by the judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(c)(3), (4); see also discussion in § 44.13[2][e]].

[5] Format Requirements

The settled statement must conform to the formatting requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144 as far as practicable [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144(f)].

The paper and formatting requirements are as follows:

- The paper must be white or unbleached, recycled, 81/2 inches by 11 inches, and of at least 20-pound weight [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144(a)(1)(A)].

- The text must be reproduced as legibly as printed matter [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144(a)(1)(B)].

- The contents must be arranged chronologically [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144(a)(1)(C)].

- The pages must be consecutively numbered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144(a)(1)(D)].

- The margin must be at least 11/4 inches on the bound edge of the page [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144(a)(1)(E)].

For each document, the party preparing the settled statement must include at the beginning of the first volume both alphabetical and chronological indexes listing the document and the volume and page where it first appears [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144(b)]. The index must identify each exhibit by number or letter and a brief description of the exhibit [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144(b)(3)]. The volumes must be bound on the left margin and may not contain any more than 300 sheets each [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144(c)(1)]. The cover of each volume should be of recycled stock and must state the title and trial court number of the case, the names of the trial court and each participating trial judge, the names and addresses of appellate counsel for each party, the volume number, and the inclusive page numbers of that volume [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144(c)(2)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. The Reporter's Transcript and Its Alternatives

5-44 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 44.54

AUTHOR: Stefanie Y. Gandolfi Author E. Elizabeth Summers and Gary Cramer Editorial Consultants Ms. Gandolfi is a solo appellate practitioner in Oakland, California. Ms. Summers is a principal partner with Bien & Summers, Oakland, California, an appellate specialty firm. Mr. Cramer, who contributed comments and practice tips concerning reporter's transcripts, is a court reporter with the Los Angeles County Superior Court.

§ 44.54 Agreed Statement

[1] Available In Lieu of All or Part of Record

An appeal may be presented on a record consisting in whole or in part of an agreed statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.134(a)(1)]. It may be used, for example, when the trial court proceedings were limited, the parties are in agreement regarding the facts, and the issue to be reviewed is a narrow one of law. The benefit of the presumption of completeness, under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.163, is applied to agreed statements [County of Yolo v. Francis (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 647, 650 n.2, 224 Cal. Rptr. 585 ; see § 44.13[2][e]].

As with settled statements, discussed in § 44.53, agreed statements are very rarely used in current appellate practice. Like the settled statement, the agreed statement is a summary of the oral proceedings that serves as an economical substitute for a reporter's transcript. And, like a settled statement, an agreed statement may be used in lieu of a clerk's transcript as well. Unlike the settled statement, however, the circumstances in which an agreed statement may be used, and the manner in which the information may be presented, are not dictated so stringently by the appellate rules. Rather, so long as the necessary information is provided, the parties can present it in any manner that suits them. Moreover, unlike a settled statement, which generally is the result of an adversarial process, an agreed statement is, in effect, a stipulation, and therefore not subject to trial court review and approval [cf. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137 (settled statement procedures, discussed in § 44.53)].

For forms relating to agreed statements, see §§ 44.260, 44.261.

[2] Contents of Agreed Statement

The Rule governing agreed statements provides guidance regarding the content. The statement must show (1) the nature of the action, (2) the basis of the reviewing court's jurisdiction, and (3) how the questions arose in and were decided by the superior court. It should include only those facts necessary to a determination of the questions on appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.134(a)(1)].

In addition, if the agreed statement replaces a clerk's transcript, the statement must contain a copy of the following documents [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(b)(1), 8.134(a)(2)]:

- The notice of appeal.
- Any judgment appealed from and any notice of its entry.
- Any notice of intention to move for a new trial, or motion to vacate the judgment, for judgment notwithstanding the verdict, or for reconsideration of an appealed order, and any order on such motion and any notice of its entry.
- Any notices or stipulations to prepare clerk's or reporter's transcripts or to proceed by agreed or settled statement.
- The register of actions, if any.

The requirement that certain documents be included in the agreed statement, apparently regardless of whether the parties intend to rely on it in lieu of both a reporter's and a clerk's transcript or simply in lieu of a reporter's transcript, suggests that the procedure is designed to supply the entire record on appeal. In addition to the required documents, the statement may include copies of any document includable in the clerk's transcript under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(b)(3) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.134(a)(3); see generally discussion of the clerk's transcript and its alternatives in § 44.30 et seq.].

[3] Procedure for Preparation and Filing of Agreed Statement

[a] Stipulation Regarding Attempt to Prepare Agreed Statement

Within 10 days of filing the notice of appeal, the parties may file a preliminary stipulation with the clerk of the superior court stating that they are attempting to prepare an agreed statement. In the event the parties are unable to agree on a statement, filing the stipulation will have the effect of extending the time by 50 days in which appellant may file notices designating the record under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.134(b)(3)].

For a form of stipulation relating to an agreed statement, see § 44.260.

[b] Format of Agreed Statement

Like a settled statement, the agreed statement must conform, as far as practicable, to the formatting requirements in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.144(f)]. For a more thorough discussion of formatting applicable to agreed or settled statements, see § 44.53[4].

For a form of agreed statements, see § 44.261.

[c] Appellant's Filing of Agreed Statement

Within 40 days after filing the notice of appeal, the appellant must file, with theclerk of the superior court, the agreed statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.134(b)(2)].

§ 44.71 Completion of Record When There Are Multiple Appeals or Cross Appeals From Same Judgment

When several parties are appealing from the same judgment or related order, or when there is a cross appeal pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(f), a single record on appeal must be prepared and filed within the time prescribed for filing the record in the latest appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.147(a)(1); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.406].

If there is more than one separately represented appellant, all of them must equally share the cost of preparing the record, unless otherwise agreed by them or ordered by the superior court. Appellants sharing the cost of the record preparation are each entitled to a copy of the record [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.147(a)(2)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Motion for Apportionment of Costs. If the appeal is from a judgment after a lengthy trial, and likely to raise several issues, but the cross appeal is from a single ruling or on a single point, or there are similar factors indicating that one party should bear a less than equal share of the costs, counsel should consider seeking an agreement concerning sharing the cost or noticing a motion in the superior court so that the court may order a more equitable apportionment of the costs of preparing the record.

For a notice to prepare the record as provided under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.147, see § 44.270.

§ 44.72 Incorporation by Reference of Record in Prior Appeal

In an appeal in which the parties are using either a clerk's transcript under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122, or a reporter's transcript under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130, a party wanting to incorporate by reference all or parts of a record in a prior appeal in the same case must specify those parts in its designation of the record. The prior appeal must be identified by its case name and number. If only part of a record is being incorporated by reference, that part must be identified by citation to the volume and page numbers of the record where it appears and either the title of the document or documents or the date of the oral proceedings to be incorporated. The parts of any record incorporated by reference must be identified in a separate section at the end of the designation of the record [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.147(b)(1)].

If the transcript incorporates by reference any such record, the cover of the transcript must prominently display the notice "Record in case number: ___ incorporated by reference," identifying the number of the case from which the record is incorporated [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.147(b)(1)].

On request of the reviewing court or any party, the designating party must provide a copy of the materials incorporated by reference to the reviewing court or another party or lend them as provided in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.153 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.147(b)(1)].

A party wanting any parts of a clerk's transcript or other record of the written documents from a prior appeal in the same case to be copied into the clerk's transcript in a later appeal must specify those parts in its designation of the record. The estimated cost of copying these materials must be included in the clerk's estimate of the cost of preparing the transcript under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(c)(1). On request of the trial court clerk, the designating party must provide a copy of or lend the materials to be copied to the clerk. The parts of any record from a prior appeal that are copied into a clerk's transcript must be placed in a separate section at the end of the transcript and identified in a separate section at the end of the indexes [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.147(b)(2)].

AUTHOR: Stefanie Y. Gandolfi Author E. Elizabeth Summers and Gary Cramer Editorial Consultants Ms. Gandolfi is a solo appellate practitioner in Oakland, California. Ms. Summers is a principal partner with Bien & Summers, Oakland, California, an appellate specialty firm. Mr. Cramer, who contributed comments and practice tips concerning reporter's transcripts, is a court reporter with the Los Angeles County Superior Court.

§ 44.81 Transmission and Filing of Completed Record

[1] Transmission of Record by Clerk

When the record on appeal has been completed in accordance with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.130-8.150, the clerk must promptly transmit any original transcripts, or any agreed or settled statement, to the reviewing court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.150(a)(1)].

[2] Filing of Record on Receipt by Reviewing Court

Assuming it conforms to the requirements of the appellate rules, the original record must be filed when the clerk of the reviewing court receives it. The clerk then must mail a notice to the parties, stating the date the record was filed, without delay [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.150(b); compare Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.18 (except as California Rules of Court provide otherwise, no nonconforming record may be filed)]. The date the record is filed is important because it triggers the start of briefing [see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.16[3][a]].

A certified record is presumed to be complete [see discussion in §§ 44.11[4], 44.13[2][e]]. For discussion of the availability of augmentation or correction proceedings when it is not, in fact, complete, see § 44.90 et seq.

[3] Transmission of Exhibits

Although the clerk of the trial court sends the original transcripts or the agreed or settled statements to the reviewing court as soon as they are complete [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.150(a)], the exhibits, which are deemed a part of the clerk's transcript, remain in the clerk's custody, or in the custody of a party if they were returned to the party by the trial court, unless and until one of the parties (1) designates that some or all of them be copied into the clerk's transcript under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122 or 8.124 or (2) notices their transmission under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.224(a), as discussed below. Alternatively, the reviewing courtitself may request on its own motion that some or all of the original exhibits be transferred to it at any time [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.224(d)].

Within 10 days after the last respondent's brief is filed or could be filed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.220, a party wishing the reviewing court to consider any original exhibits that were admitted in evidence, refused, or lodged, but that were not copied in the clerk's transcript under Cal. Rules of Ct. Rule 8.122 or the appendix under Cal. Rules of Ct. Rule 8.124, must serve and file a notice in superior court designating the exhibits [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.224(a)(1)].

Within 10 days after a notice designating exhibits is served, any other party wishing the reviewing court to consider additional exhibits must serve and file a notice in superior court designating such exhibits [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.224(a)(2)].

A party filing a notice designating exhibits must serve a copy on the reviewing court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.224(a)(3)].

Unless the reviewing court orders otherwise, within 20 days after the first notice designating exhibits is filed, the superior court clerk must put any designated exhibits in the clerk's possession into numerical or alphabetical order and send them to the reviewing court with two copies of a list of the exhibits sent. If the reviewing court clerk finds the list correct, the clerk must sign and return one copy to the superior court clerk [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.224(b)(1)].

Any party in possession of designated exhibits returned by the superior court must put them into numerical or alphabetical order and send them to the reviewing court with two copies of a list of the exhibits sent. If the reviewing court clerk finds the list correct, the clerk must sign and return one copy to the party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.224(b)(2)].

After the period for designating exhibits has expired, a party may apply to the reviewing court for permission to send an exhibit to that court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.224(c)].

The First Appellate District, by local appellate rule, requires that a party must, within 10 days after the filing of the last respondent's or cross respondent's brief, serve and file in the superior court a notice designating the original exhibits offered or admitted in evidence that the party wants the reviewing court to consider. Within 10 days after this notice is served, any other party may serve and file in the superior court a notice designating additional exhibits that party wants the reviewing court to consider. These parties must promptly send copies of the notices to the reviewing court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Rule 12(a); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Rule 12(b) (procedure for superior court to follow in sending exhibits to reviewing court); Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Rule 12(c) (procedure for parties when exhibits have been returned to them under Code Civ. Proc. § 1952); Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Rule 12(d) (reviewing court may request lower court to send exhibits at any time; return of exhibits to superior court on request or on remittitur)].

For forms to request the transfer of exhibits to the reviewing court, see § 44.280.

Mr. Cramer, who contributed comments and practice tips concerning reporter's transcripts, is a court reporter with the Los Angeles County Superior Court.

§ 44.82 Parties' Use of Additional Copy of Record

On completion of the record, the additional copy that must be prepared under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.130(f)(1) (reporter's transcript) or 8.122(d)(1) (clerk's transcript), is transmitted immediately by the clerk to appellant [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.150(a)].

Although respondent may procure yet another copy of the record for his or her own use, he or she may instead use the same copy as appellant and save the expense. To take advantage of this option, respondent must notify appellant, within 20 days of the filing of the record in the Court of Appeal, that he or she has not procured a copy of the record. Appellant is then obliged to deliver the additional copy to respondent when the opening brief is filed. Respondent must, however, return it to appellant when filing the respondent's brief, or, if no respondent's brief is filed, at the time when that brief is due [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.153].

The party borrowing the record must bear the cost of sending the copy of the record to and from the borrowing party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.224(b)(3)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Sharing Record May Disadvantage Respondent. Although in some cases respondent may have no choice but to borrow appellant's copy of the record, there is a strategic detriment to proceeding in this manner that may outweigh the financial benefit in many others. Specifically, respondent will not be able to review and index or summarize the record before the time to prepare respondent's brief has begun to run. Particularly in large record cases, respondent may find him- or herself without adequate time to write a thorough brief with the citations to the record that the Rules require unless an extension can be secured. Counsel should therefore exercise caution before relying on Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.153.

F. Augmentation or Correction of Record

5-44 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 44.91

AUTHOR: Stefanie Y. Gandolfi Author E. Elizabeth Summers and Gary Cramer Editorial Consultants Ms. Gandolfi is a solo appellate practitioner in Oakland, California. Ms. Summers is a principal partner with Bien & Summers, Oakland, California, an appellate specialty firm. Mr. Cramer, who contributed comments and practice tips concerning reporter's transcripts, is a court reporter with the Los Angeles County Superior Court.

§ 44.91 Purpose of Augmentation or Correction

One of the primary objectives of the current appellate rules was to shorten appellate records [Alkus v. Johnson-Pacific Co. (1947) 80 Cal. App. 2d 1, 11-12, 181 P.2d 72] . The successful operation of all the rules dealing with short records depends on the free and permissive use of augmentation so that those who make a good faith effort to eliminate nonessential matter will not be penalized by inadvertent omissions. Consequently, when it appears that additional proceedings or evidence should be considered on appeal, the interests of justice generally militate in favor of augmentation [In re S.M. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1108, 1117 n.5, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 606 (court allowed parties to augment record with post-judgment evidence to avoid further appellate intervention following remand)]. Moreover, it is the duty of the appellate court, if it desires to learn more about any point, to augment the record on its own motion before proceeding with its decision [In re Marco A. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1516, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 540 ; Webman v. Little Co. of Mary Hospital (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 592, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 90 ; McCarthy v. Mobile Cranes, Inc. (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 500, 502, 18 Cal. Rptr. 750 ; Kalmus v. Kalmus (1950) 97 Cal. App.2d 74, 77, 217 P.2d 64] .

A motion to augment must be made in good faith, and not for the purpose of delay [see, e.g., Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Rule 6(e); Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 2d App. Dist., Rule 2(f); Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 5th App. Dist., Rule 1(f)].

Appellate counsel has a duty to see to it that any defect in the record is corrected [People v. Barton (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 513, 146 Cal. Rptr. 727, 579 P.2d 1043] . The purpose of augmentation or correction is to ensure that the record accurately reflects the proceedings below and conforms to the truth. It cannot be used to create a record or litigate issues that were not before the trial court, but only to supplement the existing record [People v. Tuilaepa (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 569 ; In re Marriage of Forrest & Eaddy (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 1202, 1209, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 172 ; Electronic Funds Solutions, LLC v. Murphy (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1161, 1172 n.4, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663 ; De Young v. Del Mar

5-44 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 44.92

AUTHOR: Stefanie Y. Gandolfi Author E. Elizabeth Summers and Gary Cramer Editorial Consultants Ms. Gandolfi is a solo appellate practitioner in Oakland, California. Ms. Summers is a principal partner with Bien & Summers, Oakland, California, an appellate specialty firm. Mr. Cramer, who contributed comments and practice tips concerning reporter's transcripts, is a court reporter with the Los Angeles County Superior Court.

§ 44.92 Augmentation or Correction Is Within Court's Discretion

As discussed in § 44.91, augmentation or correction is generally permitted whenever it appears necessary to present an adequate record for review [see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(a) (request will ordinarily be granted absent opposition); see also discussion in § 44.93[1], regarding effect of stipulated augmentation].

However, even when the matter sought to be added is proper, or the proposed correction is warranted, neither augmentation nor correction is a matter of right. Either, or both, may be denied for inexcusable neglect in preparing the record, for delay in presenting the application, or for other reasons, such as the manifest injustice that would be suffered by the opposing party if the appellate court were to grant relief [Russi v. Bank of America (1945) 69 Cal. App. 2d 100, 102, 158 P.2d 252 ; see Frisk v. Merrihew (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 319, 116 Cal. Rptr. 781 ; *Courtell v. McEachen (1956) 147 Cal. 5-44 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 44.93

AUTHOR: Stefanie Y. Gandolfi Author E. Elizabeth Summers and Gary Cramer Editorial Consultants Ms. Gandolfi is a solo appellate practitioner in Oakland, California. Mr. Cramer, who contributed comments and practice tips concerning reporter's transcripts, is a court reporter with the Los Angeles County Superior Court.

§ 44.93 Augmentation of Record

[1] Augmentation May Be Requested by Party or by Appellate Court

On the motion of any party, or on the judge's own motion, a judge of the reviewing court may, on such terms as are deemed proper, order any of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(a)]:

- That any part of the original superior court file, including any paper or record on file or lodged with the superior court, be deemed filed or be transmitted to the reviewing court.

- That portions of the oral proceedings be transcribed, certified, and transmitted to the reviewing court.

Unless the court orders otherwise, the appellant is responsible for the cost of any additional transcript the court may order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(a)(1)(B)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Stipulation or Request for Augmentation. Although there is no express provision in the rules, it appears that augmentation may be most economically and speedily accomplished if all parties stipulate to augmentation, that is, present an "agreed" motion for augmentation under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule8.155(a). For a form of stipulated request, see § 44.292.

A request for augmentation, whether stipulated or not, can be critical in those instances when the record is complete as designated, but during briefing it becomes clear to appellate counsel that additional documents, the importance of which were not previously apparent, need to be included.

On the other hand, Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(b), and some local appellate rules require that counsel use an alternative procedure, at least initially, to include any items that were designated but which nevertheless do not appear in the record as transmitted. This may occur, for example, when designated items were lodged in the courtroom during trial but never made their way down to the central clerk's office for inclusion in the file, such as a party's request for jury instructions or a trial brief. The alternative procedure requires notifying the trial court clerk or reporter of the omission, and giving him or her a chance to transmit the omitted items, before making a request for augmentation in the court of appeal [see discussion in § 44.94].

For forms of request for augmentation or correction of the record, see §§ 44.290, 44.291.

[2] Request Made by Party to Appellate Court

[a] Timing of Request

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155, does not specify time limits for filing a request for augmentation, but it is always best to make such a request as soon as it becomes apparent that additional material is needed to raise important issues or demonstrate reversible error. Otherwise, it may be necessary to make a strong showing of unusual or unavoidable circumstances excusing the delay [People v. Preslie (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 486, 138 Cal. Rptr. 828] .

Several appellate districts have adopted local rules or policies that establish time requirements for requesting augmentation. The First Appellate District requires appellant to file requests to augment in one motion made within 30 days after the date the record is filed. Respondent, in turn, should file his or her requests in one motion made within 30 days of the filing of the appellant's opening brief. Thereafter, motions to augment will only be entertained upon a showing of good cause [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Rule 6(b)].

In the Second and Fifth Appellate districts, an appellant should file his or her requests to augment in one motion made within 40 days after the record has been filed, and a respondent must still file any motion to augment within 30 days of the filing of the appellant's opening brief. As in the First Appellate District, any later filed motions will be granted only on a showing of good cause for the delay [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 2d App. Dist., Rule 2(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 5th App. Dist., Rule 1(b)].

The Third Appellate District's internal operating practices and procedures suggest that an appellant's motion to augment should be filed within 15 days of the filing of the record in civil cases, while respondent's motion should be made no later than 15 days after the filing of appellant's opening brief. The Third District, like the others, does not favor repeated or successive motions, and requires if more than one motion is made it must be supported by a competent showing of good cause for the delay. Exhibits should not be included in a motion to augment, since they may be transmitted to the court under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.224(a) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Internal Operating Practices and Procedures, 3d App. Dist. IOPP App. A-2; see discussion of exhibit transmittal and its alternatives in § 44.81[3]].

PRACTICE TIP:

Effect of Motion on Other Deadlines. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155, does not specify the effect the filing of a motion to augment will have on the other time periods specified in the appellate rules. In the Second and Fifth Appellate districts, however, the time to perform any act required or permitted by the appellate rules is not automatically extended by the filing of, or ruling on, a motion to augment. If additional time is required, for example, to prepare and file briefs, the motion requesting augmentation should include an application for whatever extension of time is need [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 2d App. Dist., Rule 2(e); Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 5th App. Dist., Rule 1(e)].

It is recommended that this practice be used whenever a motion for augmentation is made, regardless of the district court of appeal to which it is directed. For further discussion and a form of application for extension of time generally, see Ch. 46, Appeal: Extending and Shortening Time . For discussion and a form of application for extension of time to file a brief, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, §§ 50.16[4], 50.75.

[b] Service and Filing of Request With Copies of Items to Be Added

The appellate court may order augmentation on the motion of a party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.150(a)]. This motion must be filed with copies of any papers to be added to the record, if they are available to the requesting party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.150(a)(2)]. The requesting party must "serve" such copies, if there are any [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.150(a)].

The reviewing court clerk must send all parties notice of the receipt and filing of any matter concerning augmentation or correction of the record [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.150(d)].

The First and Fifth Appellate Districts make service of the request an explicit requirement [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Rule 6(c); Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 5th App. Dist., Rule 1(c) (requiring that request or motion and the accompanying copies be served "simultaneously" on opposing counsel)]. It is recommended that this pracitce be followed in other appellate districts as well.

In other words, the request, when filed, should be accompanied not only by copies of papers to be included, if available, but also by proof of prior service, in a manner permitted by law, of one copy of the request and accompanying papers, if any, on counsel for each adverse party represented by separate counsel [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.25 (defining "serve and file" under the appellate rules)]. For discussion and forms relating generally to service and proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service and Summons of Papers .

[c] Local Appellate Rule Requirements Governing Content of Request for Augmentation

[i] Local Appellate Rules Regarding Augmentation of Clerk's Transcript

In the Second and Fifth Appellate Districts, consistent with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155, a motion to augment the clerk's transcript "shall" be accompanied by copies of the documents requested [see discussion in [b], above]. In the Fifth District the copies must also be "certified." If the motion is not accompanied by copies of the documents to be added, the motion must identify the documents with specificity and include an explanation for their omission [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 2d App. Dist., Rule 2(c); Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 5th App. Dist., Rule 1(c)]. In the Second Appellate District, the motion must be accompanied by a declaration stating that the requested materials to be augmented were filed or lodged with the trial court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 2d App. Dist., Rule 2(c)].

In the Second Appellate District, when more than one document or transcript is attached to or submitted with a motion to augment the record, the pages of the documents and transcripts must be consecutively numbered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 2d App. Dist., Rule 2(h)].

In the First Appellate District, a motion to augment the clerk's transcript "should" be accompanied by copies of the documents requested [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Rule 6(c)], although whenever the documents are available to the party, this "should" becomes mandatory under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155 [see discussion in [b], above]. If the motion is not accompanied by copies of the documents to be added, the motion must identify the documents with specificity [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Rule 6(c)]. The motion must be accompanied by a declaration stating that the requested materials to be augmented were filed or lodged with the trial court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Rule

6(c)].

For a form of request to augment the clerk's transcript, see § 44.291.

[ii] Local Appellate Rules Regarding Augmentation of Reporter's Transcript

In the First, Second, and Fifth Appellate districts, local appellate rules impose the following requirements regarding a request or motion to augment the reporter's transcript:

- The motion must identify the portion of the record to be added with specificity, including the reporter's name and the date of the hearing. It must also identify with some certainty how the requested materials may be useful on appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Rule 6(d); Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 2d App. Dist., Rule 2(d); Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 5th App. Dist., Rule 1(d)].

- In the First Appellate District, requests for jury voir dire should specify the exact questioning by which counsel of which juror, together with the reason justifying the request [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Rule 6(d)].

For a form of request to augment the reporter's transcript, see § 44.291[1].

[iii] Local Appellate Rules Requiring Proposed Order

In the Second Appellate District, a motion to augment must be accompanied by a proposed order. A form printed by the court, entitled "Order Re: Augmentation" may be used for this purpose [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 2d App. Dist., Rule 2(g)].

For a form of order granting an augmentation request, see § 44.291[2].

[3] Opposition to Request and Disposition by Court

The opposing party may file any opposition to an augmentation request within 15 days after the motion is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.54]. Opposition is usually filed only in unusual cases in which the delay in augmentation or other factors render the augmentation prejudicial in some way to the opposing party, or when the material to be added is essentially not necessary and the motion has been filed solely for the purpose of delay. For a form of opposition, see § 44.293. For discussion and forms relating to the imposition of sanctions for actions taken solely for the purpose of delay, see Ch. 49, Appeal: Sanctions .

§ 44.94 Request to Include Items Designated But Omitted From the Record

If the clerk or reporter has omitted material that was actually designated by a party, that party may serve and file in the trial court a notice to the clerk of the trial court requesting that the clerk or reporter prepare and certify the missing material and transmit it to the reviewing court. The party must also serve a copy of the notice on the reviewing court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(b)(1); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.25 (under general definition of "serve and file," the notice should include proof of prior service in a manner permitted by law of one copy of the notice on counsel for each adverse party represented by separate counsel; for discussion and forms relating generally to service and proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service and Summons of Papers).

The notice must identify the omitted material with specificity. The clerk or reporter must comply with the notice within 10 days from the date it is filed, without the necessity of a court order. If the clerk or reporter fails to comply, a copy of the notice must be filed with a party's subsequent request for augmentation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(b)(2)].

In the First and Second Appellate Districts, a party must follow this procedure before making any motion in the court of appeal for augmentation [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Rule 6(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 2d App. Dist., Rule 2(b); cf. Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 5th App. Dist., Rule 1(b) (requiring initial use of alternative procedure only in criminal appeals)].

For a form of notice to include designated but omitted items, see § 44.290.

§ 44.95 Correction or Certification of Record

[1] Correction or Certification by Reviewing Court

If any material part of the record, or of any transcript or appendix, is incorrect or lacks proper certification, the reviewing court may, on the motion of any party or on its own motion, direct that it be corrected or certified [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(b)(1)]. For a form of request for correction, see § 44.291.

[2] Submission to Superior Court for Settlement of Disputed Errors or Omissions

The reviewing court may issue an order directing the lower court to resolve any differences of the parties with respect to alleged omissions or errors in the record [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(c)(2); see also Prescott v. Ralphs Grocery Co. (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 466, 467, 252 P.2d 61 (correcting reporter's transcript in accordance with superior court judge's certificate); Prescott v. Ralphs Grocery Co. (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 655, 657, 250 P.2d 690 (directing superior court judge to certify to appellate court a true copy of a certain instruction as he actually gave it)].

If the superior court makes the record conform to the truth, pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(c), the appellate court cannot and should not disturb the resulting order if it is supported by any substantial evidence or by reasonable inferences derived from that evidence [Freitas v. Peerless Stages, Inc. (1952) 108 Cal. App. 2d 749, 763-764, 239 P.2d 671] .

§ 44.96 Reviewing Court's Notice of Receipt and Filing of Items Transmitted on Order for Augmentation, Correction, or Settlement

The clerk of the reviewing court is required to mail notice to the parties of the reviewing court's receipt and filing of any matter that has been transmitted to it pursuant to an order for augmentation or correction, or an order directing the trial court to resolve disputed questions [*Cal. § 44.101 Definitions

The following definitions apply for purposes of the procedure for sealing or unsealing otherwise public records on appeal under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46:

- "Record" means all or a portion of any document, paper, exhibit, transcript, or other thing filed or lodged with the court, unless the context indicates otherwise [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(b)(1)].

- "Sealed" records are those that, by court order, are not open to inspection by the public [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(b)(2)].

- "Lodged" records are those that are temporarily placed or deposited with the court but not filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(b)(3)].

§ 44.102 Purpose and Applicability of Procedures for Sealed Records

Pursuant to the "open court" policy codified in Code Civ. Proc. § 124, as well as constitutional protections under the First Amendment, substantive courtroom proceedings in ordinary civil cases are "presumptively open" to the public [NBC Subsidiary (KNBC-TV), Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 1178, 1212, 1217-1218, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 778, 980 P.2d 337]. This right of public access extends to documents or records used at trial or as a basis of adjudication [see Advisory Committee Comment to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46]. For further discussion of this right of access, see Ch. 551, Trial . The rules for sealing records are mandatory, furthering the presumption and constitutional interest in open records. Records may not be filed under seal without a court order and the prerequisite motion and findings [Savaglio v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 588, 600, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 215].

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46, recognizing this right of public access, sets out a procedure that must be followed for sealing records on appeal, following the standards articulated in NBC Subsidiary [see Advisory Committee Comment to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46].

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46 applies to records on appeal, or records in original writ proceedings at the appellate level, that are otherwise subject to the right of public access but are proposed to be sealed [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(a); see also § 44.101 (defining "record")]. The rule does not apply to records already required to be kept confidential by law [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(a)]. Examples of the latter type of records are records of the family conciliation court and applications to proceed in forma pauperis [see Advisory Committee Comment to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46].

§ 44.103 Procedure for Records Previously Sealed by Trial Court

[1] Records Sealed by Trial Court Must Be Filed Under Seal in Reviewing Court

The provisions of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.550 and 2.580 set out procedures comparable to those in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46 for sealing otherwise public records in trial court proceedings. For detailed discussion and forms relating to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.551 et seq., see Ch. 551, Trial .

A record that has been sealed by the trial court and is part of the record before the reviewing court on appeal or in an original writ proceeding must be filed under seal in the reviewing court. It must remain sealed unless the reviewing court orders otherwise [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(c)(1); see § 44.107 for discussion of proceedings in the reviewing court to unseal records].

[2] Inclusion in Record on Appeal of Items Relating to Trial Court Proceedings to Seal Records

Whenever the record on appeal or otherwise before the reviewing court was sealed, all or in part, by the trial court, a party must include in that record the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(c)(2)]:

- The trial court order directing that records be sealed;
- The motion or application to seal records; and
- All documents filed in the trial court in support of, or in opposition to, the motion or application to seal records.

The "party" who must include these items in the record is presumably the appellant or petitioner who has the burden of producing the record [see § 44.12 regarding burden to produce; see also § 44.32[1] regarding appellant's designation of items to be included in clerk's transcript].

G. Sealing or Unsealing Records on Appeal

5-44 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 44.104

AUTHOR: Stefanie Y. Gandolfi Author E. Elizabeth Summers and Gary Cramer Editorial Consultants Ms. Gandolfi is a solo appellate practitioner in Oakland, California. Ms. Summers is a principal partner with Bien & Summers, Oakland, California, an appellate specialty firm. Mr. Cramer, who contributed comments and practice tips concerning reporter's transcripts, is a court reporter with the Los Angeles County Superior Court.

§ 44.104 Procedure for Sealing Records

[1] Motion to Seal Records

A record filed or lodged publically in the trial court, which was not ordered sealed by that court, is not to be filed under seal in the reviewing court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(d)]. A record not previously sealed by the trial court may not be filed under seal based solely on the agreement or stipulation of the parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.460(e)(1)], but may only be filed under seal pursuant to an order by the reviewing court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e)(1)].

A party seeking to file records under seal if there is no previous trial court order to seal them must file a motion or application in the reviewing court for an order directing that records be filed under seal; it should be accompanied by a declaration containing facts sufficient to justify the sealing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.460(e)(2); see H.B. Fuller Co. v. Doe (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 879, 889-891, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 501].

If necessary to prevent disclosure, any motion or application and any supporting or opposing papers must be filed in a public redacted version and lodged in a complete version that is conditionally under seal. Unless the court orders otherwise, a party that already possesses copies of the records to be placed under seal must be served with a complete, unredacted version of all papers, as well as a redacted version [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e)(4); see § 44.101 (definitions distinguishing filed and lodged materials)]. For discussion of the prohibition of disclosing material in a record subject to a motion to seal, see § 44.106.

The court may order a record filed under seal only if it makes the express findings required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.550(d)-(e) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e)(6)]. The motion, therefore, must be made on the grounds that the court may properly make such findings, and its supporting documents must establish these grounds [H.B. Fuller Co. v. Doe (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 879, 894-899, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 501 ; Universal City Studios, Inc. v. Superior Court (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 1273, 1282, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 484 (court denied motion to seal records based solely on parties' agreement without any serious injury)]. For detailed discussion of the findings under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.550(d)-(e) on which a trial court must base an order sealing records, see Ch. 551, Trial [see also § 44.302 (form of order by reviewing court)].

Otherwise, the motion must conform to the requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.54 [Advisory Committee Comment to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46]. For detailed discussion of the motion procedure under Rule 8.54, see Ch. 45, Appeal: Motion Procedure .

For a form of motion for an order directing records to be filed under seal, and a form of order granting the motion, see respectively § 44.300 and § 44.302. For discussion of the procedure for lodging the records that a party is requesting to be filed under seal, see [2], below.

[2] Lodging Record Items Proposed to Be Sealed

A party moving for an order directing that records be filed under seal must lodge those records with the court pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e)(3) at the time the motion is made, unless good cause exists for not lodging them. Records so lodged are conditionally under seal pending determination of the motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e)(5); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(b)(3) ("lodged" record is one temporarily placed or deposited with court but not filed)].

Pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e)(3), records proposed to be sealed are lodged in the following manner:

- The moving party must put the records in an envelope or other appropriate container, and seal the envelope or container [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e)(3)].

- The moving party must label the envelope or container "CONDITIONALLY UNDER SEAL" [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e)(3)].

- The moving party must affix to the envelope or container a cover sheet that contains all the information required on a caption page under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.40 and that states that the enclosed record is subject to a motion to file the record under seal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e)(3); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.40(c) (attorney information to be included on cover or first page of paper); for a form of cover sheet, see § 44.301].

- The moving party then lodges the records with the reviewing court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e)(2)].

On receipt of records lodged in this manner, the clerk is required to endorse the cover sheet with date of receipt. The clerk is also required to retain the records but not file them unless the court orders them filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e)(5)]. If the reviewing court denies the motion or application, the clerk is required to return the lodged records to the submitting party, unless that party notifies the clerk in writing within 10 days after the order denying the motion or application that the record is to be filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e)(7)].

§ 44.105 Access to Sealed Records on Appeal

The reviewing court may examine a sealed record [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(c)(3)]. Absent an order by the reviewing court that unseals the record [see § 44.107], no one else may examine records filed under seal, aside from the trial court and persons, if any, who were expressly given authorization to inspect the records in the trial court's order sealing the records [*see Cal. § 44.106 No Public Disclosure of Records Sealed or Proposed to Be Sealed

A record filed publically in the reviewing court must not disclose material contained in a sealed record or material contained in a record that is conditionally under seal or subject to a pending motion to seal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(g)]. "Records" filed publically in the reviewing court include not only unsealed portions of the record on appeal, but also any other brief, paper, document, or other thing filed with the court [*see Cal. § 44.107 Unsealing Previously Sealed Records

A sealed record must not be unsealed except on order of the reviewing court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(f)(1)]. A party or member of the public may serve and file a motion, application, or petition in the reviewing court to unseal a record filed under seal. If necessary to preserve confidentiality, the motion, application, or petition, any opposition, and any supporting documents must be filed in both a public redacted version and a sealed complete version [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(f)(2); see § 44.106 for discussion of the prohibition of disclosing material in a sealed record].

The reviewing court may also unseal the record on its own motion, but must give notice of the proposed unsealing to the parties, and allow any party to file opposition to the proposed unsealing for a period of 10 days after the court's notice is mailed or as the court specifies. Any other party may file a response within five days after an opposition is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(f)(3)].

§ 44.134 Decisions

Error is not presumed; prejudicial error must be affirmatively shown by the record presented by appellant. Denham v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 557, 564, 86 Cal. Rptr. 65, 468 P.2d 193

The absence of a record concerning what actually occurred at a hearing precludes a determination that the court abused its discretion; appellants have an affirmative obligation to provide an adequate record so that appellate court can assess whether the court abused its discretion. Wagner v. Wagner (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 249, 259, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 511

Court may order record sealed only if it expressly finds facts that establish: (1) there exists an overriding interest that overcomes the right of public access to the record; (2) the overriding interest supports sealing the record; (3) a substantial probability exists that the overriding interest will be prejudiced if the record is not sealed; (4) the proposed sealing is narrowly tailored; and (5) no less restrictive means exist to achieve the overriding interest. H.B. Fuller Co. v. Doe (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 879, 888-889, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 501

It is axiomatic that it is the appellant's responsibility to provide an adequate record on appeal. Lincoln Fountain Villas Homeowners Assn. v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Insurance Co. (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 999, 1003, n.1, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 345

Failure to provide an adequate record on an issue requires that the issue be resolved against the appellant. Barak v. The Quisenberry Law Firm (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 654, 659-660, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 688

By not including reporter's transcript of testimony and other evidence introduced at trial, appellant failed to present evidentiary record sufficient to show trial court abused its discretion. Erickson v. R.E.M. Concepts, Inc. (2005) 126

Cal. App. 4th 1073, 1086-1087, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 39

Failure to submit any record on appeal is grounds for dismissal of appeal. Goehring v. Chapman University (2004) 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 39

Cross appellant bears the same burden as an appellant of presenting an adequate record. Amato v. Mercury Casualty Co. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1784, 1794, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73

Abject failure to present an adequate record may serve as evidence, on a motion for sanctions, that an appeal was taken frivolously. Cosenza v. Kramer (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 1100, 1102, 200 Cal. Rptr. 18

§ 44.150 Preliminary Considerations for Appellant

[1] Initial Deadline for Designating Record Is 10 Days After Notice of Appeal

☐ File notice(s) or stipulation(s) regarding preparation of the record within 10 days after filing of the notice of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(a)].

☐ Include any of the following that apply:

☐ Appellant's notice to prepare a clerk's transcript [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(a), discussion in § 44.32[1][a]].

☐ Appellant's notice to prepare a reporter's transcript [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a), discussion in § 44.52[1]].

☐ Appellant's notice to prepare an appendix [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(a), discussion in § 44.33[3][a][i]].

☐ The parties' stipulation to use the superior court file in lieu of a clerk's transcript, etc. [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.128(a), discussion in § 44.34[1]].

☐ The parties' agreed statement [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.134(a), discussion in § 44.54[3][a]].

☐ The appellant's settled statement [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(a), discussion in § 44.53[3][a]].

[2] Determine Form of Record Desired

☐ Determine the type of record to be designated within the deadline set out in [1] above [see § 44.11 et seq.].

[3] When Reporter's Transcript Needed

☐ Review court files, if necessary, to determine date, nature and length of all oral proceedings, as well as the names of reporters.

☐ If oral proceedings are computerized, determine whether client can afford the additional expense of having them transcribed.

☐ Obtain either the estimated reporter's fee or a waiver of the fee from the reporter beforehand to accompany the notice to prepare reporter's transcript [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(b), anddiscussion in § 44.52[3]], unless:

☐ Client qualifies for financial aid from the Transcript Reimbursement Fund [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(b)(3)].

☐ Oral proceedings have already been transcribed [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(b)(3)].

[4] Factors in Selecting Clerk's Transcript or a Substitute

☐ Consider factors including the following in preparing to designate the clerk's transcript or an alternative [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122 and § 44.30 et seq.].

☐ Time considerations:

☐ If time is of the essence, use an appendix.

☐ If time is needed for settlement negotiations, etc., use a clerk's transcript.

☐ If time to designate is short, and a considered decision concerning the documents needed is not possible, elect to proceed under one of the alternatives to a clerk's transcript.

☐ Cost considerations:

☐ When filing the notice of appeal, appellant must pay the filing fee and a deposit of $100 credited against amount chargeable for preparation of the clerk's transcript, or any other appeal processing or notification [Gov. Code § 68926.1; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100(b)(2)].

☐ If normal clerk's transcript is to used, advise client of need for additional payment of clerk's estimated fee for the transcript when it is received.

☐ If you wish to proceed on the original clerk's file, determine if that option is available in the court of appeal to which the appeal is taken, and advise client of need for a fee [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.128].

☐ Other considerations:

☐ If appendix is to be used, determine if opposing counsel will cooperate in the use of a joint appendix [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(a)(3)].

☐ If you select clerk's transcript or appendix procedure is selected, avoid overinclusion of documents not needed and underinclusion of documents needed, for resolution of the issues to be raised [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.276(a)(2), 8.163].

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLISTS

5-44 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 44.151

AUTHOR: Stefanie Y. Gandolfi Author E. Elizabeth Summers and Gary Cramer Editorial Consultants Ms. Gandolfi is a solo appellate practitioner in Oakland, California. Ms. Summers is a principal partner with Bien & Summers, Oakland, California, an appellate specialty firm. Mr. Cramer, who contributed comments and practice tips concerning reporter's transcripts, is a court reporter with the Los Angeles County Superior Court.

§ 44.151 Procedure for Obtaining Clerk's Transcript or Alternative

[1] Appellant's Duties and Options

[a] When Clerk's Transcript Is Designated

☐ Consider the following in selecting and designating the clerk's transcript [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122 and § 44.30 et seq.].

☐ Review office files, trial notes, etc., to narrow issues to be raised.

☐ Serve and file notice of designation within 10 days of filing notice of appeal, if not already designated with notice of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(a)].

☐ Determine if there is need for discretionary items in the clerk's files [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(b)(3)]:

☐ If so, specify those affirmatively.

☐ Always include the court's minutes.

☐ Determine the need for other items depending on the issues to be raised on appeal.

☐ Determine whether to have the exhibits available to the reviewing court before notice of the hearing [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(a)(3)].

☐ If so, include them in the designation.

☐ You may also attach a copy of a critical exhibit as an appendix to the opening brief.

☐ File estimated fee of clerk within 10 days after clerk sends estimate [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(2)(3)].

☐ On receipt of record from clerk, review it carefully to ensure that all matters designated were included.

☐ If there are omissions, file a notice of the omissions with the clerk immediately to correct record by adding them [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(b)(1)].

[b] Appendices or Joint Appendix

☐ Consider the following in electing to proceed with appendix or joint appendix see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124 and § 44.33].

☐ Serve and file notice of election within 10 days of filing notice of appeal, if not already done with the notice of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.121(a)].

☐ Seek stipulation from opposing counsel regarding the documents and/or exhibits to be included [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(a)(3)].

☐ Ask opposing counsel for filing dates of the office copies of respondent's documents which are not endorsed-filed [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(b)(1)].

☐ If necessary, review the court's files to determine all needed filing dates.

☐ Assemble the documents to be included [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(b)].

☐ Put pleadings, etc., in chronological order [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.124(b)(1)].

☐ If exhibits are included, assemble them in numerical and/or alphabetical order following the pleadings [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(b)(4)].

☐ Paginate assembled documents with both alphabetical and chronological indices [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.124(d)(1), 8.144(a)].

☐ Comply with all format requirements [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.124(d), 8.144(a)].

☐ Bind appellant's or joint appendix [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.124(d)(3), 8.144(c)]:

☐ Bind separately from the brief.

☐ Separate into more than one volume, if more than 300 pages per volume.

☐ Do not split individual documents between volumes.

☐ File appendix with reviewing court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(e)].

☐ Serve and file appellant's or joint appendix with appellant's opening brief [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(e)(3)].

[c] Use of Clerk's Original File

☐ Consider the following in choosing and preparing a clerk's original file in lieu of a clerk's transcript [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.128 and § 44.34].

☐ Determine if option is available under local rules of reviewing court.

☐ Determine whether opposing counsel will stipulate to this option [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.128(a)(1)].

☐ If so, file stipulation within 10 days of filing the notice of appeal, if not already done with the notice of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.128(a)(1)].

☐ Serve a copy of the stipulation on the clerk of the reviewing court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.128(a)(2)].

☐ Within 10 days of receipt of estimate of cost from the clerk, deposit requested fee, file an application for, or an order granting, a waiver of the cost [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.128(b)(1)].

☐ On receipt of index showing pagination of original files, assemble office copies in same order and paginate them to correspond with the clerk's index.

☐ For documents listed in the index but not in the office files, ignore gaps in pagination unless missing documents are important for the appeal, e.g., minutes of the court.

☐ If missing documents are important for appeal, obtain copies from the clerk's office.

☐ If it is not possible to coordinate the pagination with the office file, examine the court's files.

☐ In either case, advise the clerk of the need to examine the original files immediately if no reporter's transcript was designated [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.128(b)(4)].

[d] Use of Settled Statement

☐ Use settled statement as substitute for clerk's transcript rarely; consider more recently adopted procedures for use joint or separate appendices [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.124, 8.137 and discussion in § 44.35 and in [b], above].

[e] Use of Agreed Statement

☐ Consider the following in choosing and preparing an agreed statement inlieu of a clerk's transcript and reporter's transcript [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.134 and § 44.35].

☐ Incorporate specified documents [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.134(a)(2), (3)].

☐ In light of current option to prepare appendices (see [b], above), check with the clerk of appellate court to determine if appendix procedure can be used with agreed statement used solely as a substitute for a reporter's transcript.

☐ Comply with content requirements as relevant [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.134(a)(2), (3)].

[f] When Appeal Is Abandoned or Settled

☐ Notify the superior and appellate courts if appeal is abandoned or settled [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.244 and discussion in § 44.15].

☐ Seek refund of portion of deposit exceeding the preparation cost actually incurred [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 122(d)(2)].

[2] Respondent's Duties and Options

[a] When Appellant Designates a Clerk's Transcript

☐ On receipt of appellant's designation, calendar the date for filing counter designation (10 days after service) [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 122(a)(2)].

☐ Review appellant's designation carefully in light of likely issues to determine whether all necessary documents have been designated [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 122(b) and discussion in § 44.32[2]].

☐ Determine whether, for any likely issues, respondent has the burden to provide an adequate record, e.g., to establish a defense, demonstrate waiver, refute prejudice, etc., and designate any omitted matters needed.

☐ If exhibits are designated, deposit the clerk's estimated cost within 10 days of notice [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(c)(3)].

☐ Avoid overdesignation [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.276(a)(2)].

☐ Arrange with clerk for payment of copy of the transcript, or notify appellant's counsel that respondent will not obtain a separate copy [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.153].

☐ On receipt of record from clerk, review it carefully to ensure that all matters designated were included.

☐ If there are omissions, file a notice of the omissions with the clerk of the superior court immediately to correct record by adding them [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(b)(1) and discussion in § 44.32[6]].

☐ Consider moving for dismissal of appeal if record is not timely filed [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.140; see generally Ch. 48, Appeal: Abandonment, Dismissal, and Stipulated Reversal].

[b] When Appellant Elects Use of Appendix Procedure

☐ Determine whether an agreement can be reached with the other party or parties concerning a joint appendix [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(a)(3)].

☐ If agreement as to the content of a joint appendix proves impossible, review appellant's appendix when served and determine what documents should be included in preparing respondent's appendix:

☐ Request filing dates of any of appellant's documents to be added which are not endorsed filed [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(b)(1)(A)].

☐ If necessary, review the court's files to determine the filing dates of all documents to be included.

☐ Assemble the additional documents to be included.

☐ Comply with all format requirements [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.124(d), 8.144(a)-(c)].

☐ Put pleadings, etc., in chronological order [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.124(d)(a), 8.144(a) and discussion in § 44.33[4]].

☐ If a copy of a document or exhibit is in the possession of another party, request the document or exhibit or file a request in the appellate court pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(c) [see discussion in § 44.33[4][c]].

☐ If exhibits are included, assemble them in numerical and/or alphabetical order following the pleadings [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(d)].

☐ Once assembled, paginate the documents and prepare both an alphabetical and chronological index [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.124(d)(1), 8.144(a)].

☐ Bind respondent's appendix [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.124(d)(3), 8.144(e) and discussion in § 44.33[4][b]]:

☐ Bind appendix separately from the brief.

☐ Bind in more than one volumes with no more than 300 pages per volume.

☐ Do not split individual documents between volumes.

☐ Serve and file respondent's appendix with respondent's brief [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(e)(3)].

[c] When Appellant Desires to Use Court's Original Files

☐ Consider whether to stipulate to this substitute for a clerk's transcript [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.128(a)(1) and § 44.34].

☐ If acceptable, execute stipulation for filing within 10 days of filing the notice of appeal, if not already done with the notice of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.128(a)(1)].

☐ On receipt of index showing pagination of original files, assemble office copies in same order and paginate them to correspond with clerk's index.

☐ For documents listed in the index not in the office files, ignore gaps in pagination unless missing documents are important for appeal, e.g., the minutes of the court.

☐ If documents are important for appeal, obtain copies from the clerk's office.

☐ If it is not possible to coordinate pagination with the office file, examine court's files.

☐ In either case, advise the clerk of the need to examine the original files immediately if no reporter's transcript was designated [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.128(b)(4)].

Mr. Cramer, who contributed comments and practice tips concerning reporter's transcripts, is a court reporter with the Los Angeles County Superior Court.

§ 44.152 Reporter's Transcript or Alternative

[1] Appellant's Duties and Options

[a] Reporter's Transcript

☐ Determine if funds from Transcript Reimbursement Fund are available if client is without sufficient funds [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(c) and discussion in § 44.52[3][d]].

☐ Determine if partial transcript will be sufficient for the issues on appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(1), (2) and discussion in § 44.52[2]].

☐ Review court's files, if necessary, to determine date, nature and length of all oral proceedings, as well as the name(s) of the reporter(s) [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(5) and discussion in § 44.52[1]].

☐ If the oral proceedings were computerized, consider purchasing the disks covering what is to be included.

☐ Serve and file notice of designation, or file stipulation, within 10 days of filing notice of appeal, if not already designated with notice of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.121(a) and discussion in § 44.52[1], [2]].

☐ Serve copy of designation or stipulation on all known reporters who transcribed any portion of the oral proceedings designated [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(5)].

☐ Serve designation or stipulation on clerk of reviewing court if using appendix or original court files for clerk's transcript [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.121(c)].

☐ Simultaneously deposit estimated cost, reporter's waiver, or copy of application for payment by the Transcript Reimbursement Fund, unless designated proceedings have already been transcribed [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(b) and discussion in § 44.52[3]].

☐ Calendar and monitor preparation of transcript to be completed within 30 days of the notice of designation, absent an extension from the reviewing court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.130(f) and 8.60(b) and discussion in § 44.52[5]].

☐ On receipt of transcript from clerk, review it carefully to ensure that all proceedings designated were included.

☐ If there are omissions, file a notice of the omissions with the clerk immediately to correct record by adding them [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(b)(1) and discussion in § 44.52[7]].

[b] Settled Statement

☐ Determine if it is possible to avoid the use of this procedure [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137 and § 44.34].

☐ Procedure must or may be used under the following circumstances:

☐ A substantial cost saving will result and the statement can be settled without significantly burdening opposing parties or the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(a)(2)(A)].

☐ The designated oral proceedings were not reported or cannotbe transcribed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(a)(2)(B)].

☐ The appellant is unable to pay for a reporter's transcript and funds are not available from the Transcript Reimbursement Fund [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(a)(2)(C)].

☐ Consider moving for new trial instead [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 657.1 and 914].

☐ Serve and file motion to prepare settled statement within 10 days of filing notice of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(a) and discussion in § 44.53[3][a]].

☐ Serve and file proposed statement within 30 days thereafter [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(b)(1)] and discussion in § 44.53[3][b].

☐ If statement does not cover all oral proceedings, include a statement of the issues to be raised on appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(b)(2)].

☐ Calendar hearing date set by clerk after respondent's proposed amendments have been served and filed, or time for amendments (20 days) has expired [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(b)(4)].

☐ Prepare for and attend hearing to settle the statement [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(c)].

☐ Prepare statement pursuant to the trial court's rulings, and serve and file it within the time ordered by the court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(c)(2) and discussion in § 44.53[3][e]].

☐ Comply with all format requirements [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(b) and discussion in § 44.53[5]].

☐ If the differences about what happened are crucial to appeal, consider moving for additional time to designate reporter's transcript, if possible.

☐ If respondent makes no objections within five days of the filing of the statement, be sure clerk presents statement for certification by the court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(c)(3) and discussion in § 44.53[4]].

☐ Alternatively, parties may stipulate that engrossed statement is correct [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(c)(4)].

[c] Agreed Statement

☐ If facts are undisputed and opposing counsel is receptive to stipulating to facts, consider using agreed statement [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.134 and § 44.34].

☐ Within 10 days of filing the notice of appeal, file stipulation with opposing counsel that you are attempting to prepare agreed statement [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.121(a), 8.134(b)(1) and discussion in § 44.54[3][a]], extending time to designate the record under the other rules governing the preparation of the record [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.134(b)].

☐ If an agreed statement is prepared, file it in the superior court within 40 days of the filing of the notice of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.134(b)(2) and discussion in § 44.54[3][c]].

☐ Comply with content requirements [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.134(a)(2), (3)].

☐ Comply with all format requirements [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.134(a)].

☐ If an agreed statement satisfactory to the parties is not possible, designate the record under Cal.

Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121, within 50 days of the filing of notice of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.134(b)(3)].

[d] When Appeal Is Abandoned or Settled

☐ Notify the superior and reviewing courts if appeal is abandoned or settled [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.244, and § 44.15].

☐ Within 45 days after filing a notice of settlement, the appellant who filed the notice of settlement must file either an abandonment under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.244(b), if the record has not yet been filed in the court of appeal, or a request to dismiss under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.244(c), if the record has already been filed in the court of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.244(a)(3)].

☐ Request return of any unused portion of fee deposits, if applicable.

[2] Respondent's Duties and Options

[a] When Appellant Designates a Reporter's Transcript

☐ If oral proceedings were computerized, consider purchasing the disks covering what is to be included.

☐ Review appellant's designation in light of expected issues to be raised and determine if additional proceedings need to be designated [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(3)].

☐ Particularly ensure that all proceedings needed to support all issueson which respondent has the burden of producing the record are included.

☐ Serve and file respondent's designation of additions within 10 days of service of appellant's notice [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(3) and discussion in § 44.52[4]].

☐ Simultaneously deposit required fee for estimated cost of the transcription of the portions of the oral proceedings to be added [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(b)].

☐ Serve copy of the designation on all reporters who transcribed any portion of the oral proceedings designated [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(5)].

☐ Serve copy of the designation on the clerk of the reviewing court if an appendix or the original court's files are used for a clerk's transcript [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(c)].

☐ Arrange with reporter(s) for payment of copy of the transcript, or notify appellant's counsel that respondent will not obtain a separate copy [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.152(b)].

☐ Calendar and monitor reporter's preparation of transcript to ensure that it is completed within 30 days of the notice of designation, absent an extension from the reviewing court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.122(d), 8.130(f) and discussion in § 44.52[5]].

☐ Consider moving for dismissal of appeal if record is not timely filed [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.140(a); see generally Ch. 48, Appeal: Abandonment, Dismissal, and Stipulated Reversal].

☐ On receipt of transcript from clerk, review it carefully to ensure that all proceedings designated were included.

☐ If there are omissions, serve a notice of the omissions with the clerk immediately to correct record by adding them [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(b)(1) and discussion in § 44.52[7]].

[b] When Appellant Does Not Designate a Reporter's Transcript

☐ Since respondent may not designate a reporter's transcript [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(4)], seek relief from the reviewing court to avoid a miscarriage of justice [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.130(c), 8.124(j), 8.128(c)].

[c] When Appellant Desires or Must Use a Settled Statement in Lieu of a Reporter's Transcript

☐ Consider opposing use of this procedure [see discussion in § 44.53].

☐ If unopposed, review carefully appellant's proposed statement when served, and serve and file proposed amendments to protect respondent's interests within 20 days [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(b)(4) and discussion in § 44.53[3][c]].

☐ Calendar and attend hearing to settle differences between proposed statement and amendments [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(c)(2)].

☐ Review statement prepared by appellant to ensure it complies with court's order settling the statement [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(c)(3)].

☐ Serve and file any objections within five days of service of the engrossed statement [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(c)(3) and discussion in § 44.53[3][f]].

☐ If appellant's engrossed statement accurately follows court's order settling the statement, consider stipulating that it is correct [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.137(c)(4) and discussion in § 44.53[4]].

[d] When Appellant Desires to Use Agreed Statement in Lieu of Reporter's Transcript

☐ Consider whether it is reasonable to expect that relevant facts may be fully and accurately stated without dispute [see discussion in § 44.54].

☐ If so, execute stipulation for filing within 10 days of filing notice of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(a) and discussion in § 44.54[3][a]].

☐ Make good faith effort to agree on contents of the statement.

§ 44.153 Record Involving Multiple Appeals

[1] Appellant and Cross Appellant's Checklist

☐ Consult with other parties who appeal or cross appeal to determine whether the contents of record can be designated by stipulation, if record prepared other than under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.130 and 8.122 is desired [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.147(a)].

☐ Consult with clerk of appellate court to determine if parties may stipulate to proceed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124 or 8.128, if that is desired.

☐ Designate portions of record in any prior appeal to be incorporated by reference [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.124(b)(2), 8.147(b) and discussion in § 44.72].

☐ Pay share of fees to clerk and reporter(s) when notices are received [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.147(a)(2)].

[2] Respondent's Checklist

☐ Consider if contents of record can be designated by stipulation and whether to agree to prepare the record other than under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.130 and 8.122 [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.47(a)(1)].

☐ Review appellants' designations carefully to determine if counterdesignations are required [see Cal.

Rules of Ct., Rules 8.130, 8.122, 8.147].

☐ If portions of record in prior appeal are designated by appellant(s), determine if other portions should be designated.

☐ Pay fees for cost of additions for the record in the present appeal, and from any prior appeal, within 10 days of mailing of notice by clerk [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.130(b), 8.122(b)].

☐ Request clerk of appellate court to obtain the record in the prior appeal, if needed.

§ 44.155 Augmentation or Correction Record

[1] In Trial Court When Designated Matters Omitted

☐ On receipt of record, determine if it contains everything designated.

☐ If not, serve and file notice to the clerk to certify the omitted material and forward it to the appellate court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(b)(1) and discussion in § 44.94].

☐ Serve copy of notice on the clerk of the appellate court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(b)(1)].

☐ Check local appellate rules; this procedure is required in some districts, and is the easiest method to solve inadvertent omissions in the record.

[2] In Appellate Court When Additional Matters Needed

[a] When Seeking to Augment

☐ Serve and file request to augment as soon as need is discovered [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(a)(1) and discussion in § 44.93[2]].

☐ Check local appellate rules for any applicable time limits, absent a showing of good cause.

☐ Attach copies of any documents lodged or filed in the case which are to be added to the record [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(a)(2)].

☐ Attach copies of any documents lodged or filed in the case which are to be added to the record [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(a)(2)].

☐ Consecutively number the pages of the attachments, beginning with the number one [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(a)(2)].

☐ Order transcript of oral proceedings needed and attach it to the motion, as above, or identify the proceedings with specificity [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(a)(2), (3)].

☐ Order transcript of oral proceedings needed and attach it to the motion, as above, or identify the proceedings with specificity [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(a)(2)].

☐ Check local appellate rules for additional requirements.

[B] When Opposing Augmentation

☐ Serve and file opposition within 15 days after the motion requesting augmentation is filed [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.54(a) and discussion in § 44.93[3]].

§ 44.157 Filing Records Under Seal

[1] Filing Records Sealed by Trial Court

☐ If all or part of record on appeal (or record in original writ proceeding) was sealed by trial court order, file this portion of the record under seal in reviewing court.

☐ Include in the record on appeal all of the following:

☐ The trial court order sealing the records.

☐ The motion or application to seal the record and all supporting and opposing papers.

[2] Sealing Records Not Previously Sealed

☐ When seeking to file all or portion of record on appeal under seal, and records sought be filed under seal were not previously sealed by trial court order, prepare and file motion in reviewing court requesting orderdirecting records to be filed under seal, as follows:

☐ Determine whether the reviewing court may properly order the records sealed under the required standards set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.550 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule

8.46(e)(6); see § 44.104[1]; for detailed discussion of these standards, see Ch. 551, Trial].

☐ Prepare and file motion or application to file records under seal, together with proposed order and supporting papers [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e) and § 44.104[1]; for forms of motion and proposed order, see §§ 44.300, 44.302]. If necessary to prevent disclosure of material proposed to be filed under seal, prepare both redacted version of papers for filing, and complete version for lodging conditionally under seal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e)(4)].

☐ Prepare those records proposed to be filed under seal for lodging with the reviewing court, and lodge such records with reviewing court at the time the motion or application is made, unless good cause exists for not lodging the records [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e)(2)]:

☐ Place records in envelope or container labeled "CONDITIONALLY UNDER SEAL" and affix cover sheet [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e)(3); for form of cover sheet, see § 44.301].

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the parties to the appeal taken in this action on _____ [date], by _____ [identify, e.g., appellant and plaintiff _____ (name)], have settled the case.

[If applicable, add the following]

On _____ [date], _____ [identify party, e.g., appellant and plaintiff/defendant _____ (name)] deposited the sum of $_____ with this court for the preparation of the reporter's transcript. It is requested that a sum be returned by delivery to the undersigned, attorney of record for [identify party, e.g., appellant and plaintiff _____ (name)] equal to that portion of the deposit in excess of the actual cost of preparation of the record on appeal up to the date of this notice.]

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [specify, e.g., Plaintiff and Appellant _____
(name)]

[2] Use of Form

The form set out in [1], above, is a notice of settlement required to be given in writing by the appellant to the clerk of the superior court when a case has settled before the record on appeal has been completed and transmitted to the court ofappeal. Proof of this filing of this notice must be included with the additional written notice of settlement that must be filed with the court of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.244(a); see Huschke v. Slater (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1153, 1160, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 187 (appellant, not respondent, has duty to file notice of settlement)]. For further discussion, see § 44.15.

For a form of notice of settlement to be filed with the court of appeal, and further discussion of notice of settlement under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.244(a), see Ch. 51, Appeal: Hearing and Decision, §§ 51.12[d][1] and 51.50.

Note that a notice of settlement is a procedural device to assist the trial and appellate courts to halt, as soon as possible, further dedication of judicial resources in an appeal that has been settled. The appellant or the parties, however, must still move for a voluntary or stipulated dismissal to obtain a final disposition of the appeal. The superior court may dismiss an appeal only if the record has not yet been completed and filed with the court of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.244(c)]. For a form of dismissal before the record has been completed and filed, see § 44.201. For further discussion of dismissal generally and forms for use after the record has been completed and filed, see Ch. 48, Appeal: Abandonment, Dismissal, and Stipulated Reversal .

§ 44.210 Appellant's Notice to Prepare Clerk's Transcript and Designation of Contents

[1] FORM Appellant's Notice to Prepare Clerk's Transcript and Designation of Contents

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff and Appellant/Respondent,	)
vs.	)	CASE NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	NOTICE TO PREPARE CLERK'S TRANSCRIPT
Defendant and Appellant/Respondent.	)

To the clerk of the court:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that _____ [identify designating party, e.g., Plaintiff/Defendant and Appellant _____ (name)] requests that a clerk's transcript be prepared. The notice of appeal in this action was filed on _____ [date].

Plaintiff/Defendant and Appellant specifically designates the following papers and records on file or lodged with you to be incorporated together with the items otherwise required to be included in the record on appeal:

1. _____ [List as consecutively numbered items all papers or records on file or lodged with the superior court clerk that need to be included in the clerk's transcript in order to review all the issues raised on appeal, including the clerk's minutes, any written opinion of the superior court, affidavits or declarations, and written instructions given and refused. Describe each document with particularity, including the title of the document and the date it was filed, or, if the filing date is not readily available, the date it was signed. Appellant's designation of all minute orders, all minute orders entered between specified dates, or all written jury instructions prepared by the court or tendered by a party, whether given, refused, or withdrawn, is sufficient designation of those documents (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(a)(1)). If requesting that EXHIBITS be copied into the clerk's transcript, rather than transmitted later, specifically request that the clerk copy and include such exhibits, providing the exhibit number, a brief description, and the admission status of the exhibit (see Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, Second App. Dist., Rule 3(a)(2))].

2. _____ [Continue listing each item separately, as needed, providingproper identification for the items as described above. It is recommended that ALL items be specified, including those listed in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(b) (the notice of appeal, the judgment appealed from, etc.) as being required to be included by the clerk even if not specifically designated].

[ADD the following to incorporate prior record(s) by reference]

Plaintiff/Defendant and Appellant also requests that _____ [all or the following specified portions] of the record on appeal from the _____ [judgment or order] entered in this action on _____ [date], to the Court of Appeal of the State of California, _____ [specify, e.g., First Appellate District, Division Three], Civil Number _____, be incorporated by reference in the record on this appeal without being copied in the clerk's transcript:

1. _____ [If incorporating only portions by reference, list and specify as appropriate].

2. _____ [Continue listing items to be incorporated by reference as necessary].

[CONTINUE]

By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
[Attorney for _____ (party's status, e.g., Defendant and Appellant)
_____ (party's name)]

[2] Use of Form

The form set out in [1], above, is a general form of notice for use by appellant in requesting that the superior court clerk prepare a clerk's transcript. It includes instructions for specifying and identifying particular papers or records to be included required under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(a) or Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, Second App. Dist., Rule 3(b) (the latter of which are recommended for use in other districts), and additional, recommended instructions for specifying and identifying items under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(b)(3) (even though these items are required to be included even if not specifically designated). For further discussion of the items that may be designated for inclusion in a clerk's transcript, including those that must be specified in order to be included in the record, see §§ 44.31, 44.32[1][b], [d]. In the alternative, the appellant may use Judicial Council Form APP-003, Notice

Designating Record on Appeal, to designate the record on appeal. For this form, see § 44.213.

The notice requesting preparation of a clerk's transcript may be combined with a notice requesting preparation of the reporter's transcript, the notice of appeal, or both. For further discussion, see § 44.32[1][c].

This form must be served and filed with the superior court clerk within 10 days after the date of filing of the notice of appeal. For further discussion regarding this deadline, the 15-day "grace period," and service and filing requirements, see § 44.32[1][a]. See also § 44.14[2] for discussion of proceedings in the appellate court for an extension of time or relief from default.

The Second District has also adopted a printed form, entitled "Designation of the Record on Appeal," which complies with Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, Second App. Dist., Rule 3(a), and which "may" be used to designate the record in that court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, Second App. Dist., Rule 3(b)]. Parties designating a clerk's transcript for an appeal in that district may use the printed form in lieu of the form set out in [1], above.

[2] Use of Form

The form set out in [1], above, is a general form of notice for use by respondent in designating additional papers or records to be included in the clerk's transcript, not already designated for inclusion by appellant. It includes instructions for specifying and identifying particular papers or records to be included as required under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122(a)(1), or Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, Second App. Dist., Rule 3(b). For further discussion of the items that may be designated for inclusion in a clerk's transcript, including those that must be specified in order to be included in the record, see §§ 44.31, 44.32[2][b].

This form must be served and filed with the superior court clerk within 10 days after the date of filing of appellant's notice to prepare the clerk's transcript. For further discussion regarding this deadline and service and filing requirements, see § 44.32[2][a]. See also § 44.14[2] for discussion of proceedings in the appellate court for an extension of time or relief from default.

The Second District has also adopted a printed form, entitled "Designation of the Record on Appeal," which complies with Cal. _____

To the clerk of the court:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that _____ [specify, e.g., Plaintiff/Defendant and Appellant _____ (name)] elects, pursuant to California Rules of Court, Rule 8.124, that an appendix or appendices be used in lieu of a clerk's transcript. The notice of appeal in this action was filed on _____ [date].

By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
[Attorney for _____ (party's status, e.g., Defendant and Appellant)
_____ (party's name)]

[2] Use of Form

The form set out in [1], above, is for use in providing notice to the superior court clerk, by "any party," of an election to use an appendix under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124 in lieu of a clerk's transcript under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.122 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(a)(1), and discussion in § 44.33[3][a]]. In the alternative, the appellant may use Judicial Council Form APP-003, Notice Designating Record on Appeal, to provide notice to the superior court clerk of an election to use an appendix. For this form, see § 44.213.

This notice of election may be combined with a notice to prepare a reporter's transcript, or both may be combined with the notice of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.121(a)]. For a form of such combined notice, see Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal, § 42.90[3].

For service and filing requirements, see § 44.33[3][a][i].

To the clerk of the court:

THE PARTIES HEREBY STIPULATE, through their respective counsel, that copies of the following documents and papers constitute the joint appendix to be used in lieu of a clerk's transcript, pursuant to California Rules of Court, Rule 8.124:

1. _____ [List and number the documents and papers agreed to be included in the joint appendix, listing them in chronological order, including also the filing date for each paper or record. Include all documents required under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.122(b)(1) and 8.124(b)(1)(B), as applicable. If exhibits are included, list them in the order of their date of admission or rejection in evidence. Documents listed in this stipulation must be conformed to show the date of filing, if the clerk's date-stamp does not appear on them. The last document listed in this stipulation should be this stipulation itself. When arranged in chronological order, the list can be readily adapted as a chronological index at the front of the appendix. This stipulation is not filed with the superior court, but must be filed as part of the appendix (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(b)(1)(D)].

2. _____ [Continue separately numbered items, with date of filing, in chronological order, as necessary].

[2] Use of Form

The form set out in [1], above, is for use by a party who opposes the use of an appendix in lieu of a clerk's transcript. It must be served and filed within 10 days after the service of the notice of election by another party to proceed by way of appendix [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(a)(1); see discussion in § 44.33[3][b]].

The notice of motion and motion set out in [1], above, should include a proposed order granting the motion and, more importantly, specifying the means by which the record should be prepared, if, for good cause shown, the appendix is for some reason not appropriate under the circumstances.

For discussion and forms relating to noticed motions and proposed orders generally, including service and proof of service requirements, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[2] Use of Form

The form set out in [1], above, illustrates the cover that may be used in a joint (or separate) appendix in lieu of clerk's transcript, which is compiled and submitted by the parties rather than the clerk. For further discussion, see § 44.34[4][b].

If the parties are unable to stipulate to a joint appendix, then the title on the cover may be modified to state "APPELLANT'S APPENDIX IN LIEU OF CLERK'S TRANSCRIPT," with only the appellant's attorney's name, etc.. Similarly, the cover of respondent's appendix would be entitled "RESPONDENT'S APPENDIX, and the cover of appellant's reply appendix, if any, would be entitled "APPELLANT'S REPLY APPENDIX."

The color of the cover of the appendix should match the color of the brief which it accompanies. Thus, a joint appendix or appellant's appendix would be green; a respondent's appendix, yellow; and an appellant's reply appendix, tan [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.40(b)].

The form set out in [1], above, is for use by a party preparing an appendix who wants it to include a copy of a document or exhibit in the possession of another party [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(c)]. Before filing this notice, the requesting party must first ask the party possessing the document or exhibit to provide a copy or lend it for copying [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(c)(1)]. If this attempt is unsuccessful, the requesting party may serve and file in the reviewing court the above notice, specifying the document or exhibit's trial court designation and requesting that the party possessing the document or exhibit deliver it to the requesting party or, if the possessing party prefers, deliver it to the reviewing court. The possessing party must comply with the request within 10 days after the notice is served [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(c)(2)].

If the possessing party sends the document or exhibit to the requesting party, the requesting party must copy and return it to the possessing party within 10 days after receiving it [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.124(c)(3)]. If the possessing party sends it to the reviewing court, that party must accompany the document or exhibit with a copy of the notice served by the requesting party, and immediately notify the requesting party that it has sent the document or exhibit to the reviewing court [Cal. This degree of specificity in listing each oral proceeding to be transcribed is REQUIRED in the Second Appellate District (see Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 2d App. Dist., Rule 3(a)(1)), and, while not expressly required under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a), is nevertheless recommended in all appeals, since the appellant will usually have the necessary information in any event, to provide the clerk with the information necessary to notify the appropriate reporters to begin preparing the transcript. At the very least, it is recommended for appeals in districts other than the Second Appellate District that transcription of any extraordinary proceeding be specifically requested, especially proceedings outside the courtroom such as in camera proceedings conducted in the judge's chambers, etc.].

[2] Use of Form

The form set out in [1], above, is a general form of notice for use by appellant in requesting the superior court clerk to notify the appropriate reporters to prepare a reporter's transcript. It includes instructions for specifying and identifying particular proceedings that must be specified in order to be included [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)]. It also includes instructions for providing specific information required in the Second Appellate District for identifying all oral proceedings to be transcribed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 2d App. Dist., Rule 3(a)(1)], information which appellant should provide, whenever possible, regardless of the district court of appeal in which the appeal is pending. For further discussion of the notice and considerations in designating particular proceedings, see § 44.52[1]. In the alternative, the appellant may use Judicial Council Form APP-003, Notice Designating Record on Appeal, to provide notice regarding a reporter's transcript. For this form, see § 44.213.

The notice requesting preparation of a reporter's transcript may be combined with a notice requesting preparation of the clerk's transcript (or appendix in lieu of clerk's transcript), the notice of appeal, or both. For further discussion, see §§ 44.32[1][c], 44.52[1].

This form must be served and filed with the superior court clerk within 10 days after the date of filing of the notice of appeal. For further discussion regarding service and filing requirements, see § 44.52[1]. See also §§ 44.14[2] for discussion of proceedings in the appellate court for an extension of time or relief from default.

The notice must be accompanied by a deposit of the approximate cost of preparing the transcript, or by one of the alternatives to this deposit set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(b). For further discussion, see § 44.52[3].

The Second District has also adopted a printed form, entitled "Designation of the Record on Appeal," which "may" be used to designate the record in that court, including the reporter's transcript [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, Second App. Dist., Rule 3(b)]. Parties designating a reporter's transcript for an appeal in that district may use the printed form in lieu of the form set out in [1], above.

To the clerk of the court:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that Plaintiff/Defendant and Appellant _____ [name] requests that a reporter's transcript of the following proceedings be prepared:

1. _____ [Specify as separately numbered items each oral proceeding, or portions of oral proceedings, to be included in the transcript, including for each item the date, the department number, the name of the reporter (or electronic recording monitor), and the nature of the proceeding. This degree of specificity in listing each oral proceeding to be transcribed is REQUIRED in any event in the Second Appellate District (see Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 2d App. Dist., Rule 3(a)(1)), and is necessary, by implication, in order to identify adequately the proceedings to be transcribed when only portions of the oral proceedings are being requested under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(1)].

2. _____ [Continue as necessary, e.g., All testimony of _____ (name), which was given on _____ (date), in department _____ (specify) of this court, in the proceeding _____ (describe nature of proceeding) recorded by _____ (identify reporter)].

3. _____ [E.g., All testimony from the deposition of _____ (name), which was read into evidence on _____ (date), in department _____ (specify) of this court, in the proceeding _____ (describe nature of proceeding) recorded by _____ (identify reporter)].

4. _____ [Etc.].

[ADD, if requesting transcription of jury instructions]

Plaintiff/Defendant and Appellant also requests that the transcript include thefollowing instructions given in this matter, which cannot be copied by you:

1. _____ [Specify as separately numbered items all instructions that cannot be copied into the clerk's transcript, providing their number and whether they were given or refused].

2. _____ [Continue as necessary].

[ADD, if requesting inclusion of "daily" transcripts previously ordered during trial]

PLEASE ALSO TAKE NOTICE that Plaintiff/Defendant and Appellant designates the following reporter's transcript(s) of the proceeding(s) held on _____ [date(s)]. Plaintiff/Defendant and Appellant has previously ordered and obtained [a] transcript(s) of this/these proceeding(s) from _____ [names of reporter(s)], but requests that the original of this/these transcript(s) be certified and transmitted to the Court of Appeal as part of the record on appeal.

[CONTINUE]

Plaintiff/Defendant and Appellant requests the above-listed portions of the oral proceedings because of the following points which he/she/it intends to raise on appeal: _____ [state points to be raised, as required when requesting partial transcript under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(1)].

No other portion of the reporter's record of oral proceedings of any nature is requested. The notice of appeal in this action was filed on _____ [date].
Dated: _____.

By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
[Attorney for _____ (party's status, e.g., Defendant and Appellant) _____ (party's name)]

[2] Use of Form

The form set out in [1], above, is for use when requesting only a partial reporter's transcript under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(2) [see § 44.240 for a general form of designation under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)]. It includes instructions for providing specific information required in the Second Appellate District for identifying all oral proceedings to be transcribed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 2d App. Dist., Rule 3(a)(1)], information which appellant will need to provide in order to identify adequately only portions of oral proceedings. For an alternative form for use by both or all parties to stipulate to partial transcript, see § 44.242.

Under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(1), a party may designate the portions of the oral proceedings to be included in a partial transcript. [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(1)]. For further discussion of the notice and considerations in designating a partial transcript, see § 44.52[2].

The notice requesting preparation of a reporter's transcript may be combined with a notice requesting preparation of the clerk's transcript (or appendix in lieu of clerk's transcript), the notice of appeal, or both. For further discussion, see §§ 44.32[1][c], 44.52[1].

This form must be served and filed with the superior court clerk within 10 days after the date of filing of the notice of appeal. For further discussion regarding service and filing requirements, see § 44.52[1]. See also § 44.14[2] for discussion of proceedings in the appellate court for an extension of time or relief from default.

The notice must be accompanied by a deposit of the approximate cost of preparing the transcript, or by one of the alternatives to this deposit set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(b). For further discussion, see § 44.52[3].

The Second District has also adopted a printed form, entitled "Designation of the Record on Appeal," which "may" be used to designate the record in that court, including the reporter's transcript [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, Second App. Dist., Rule 3(b)]. Parties designating a reporter's transcript for an appeal in that district may use the printed form in lieu of the form set out in [1], above.

[2] Use of Form

The form set out in [1], above, is for use by respondent when requesting additions to the reporter's transcript, which were not initially designated by appellant [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(3); see § 44.240 for a general form of appellant's designation under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)]. It includes instructions for providing specific information required in the Second Appellate District for identifying all oral proceedings to be transcribed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 2d App. Dist., Rule 3(a)(1)], information which respondent will need to provide in any event to identify adequately additional, specific portions of oral proceedings. For further discussion of respondent's notice and designation of additional items, see § 44.52[4].

This form must be served and filed with the superior court clerk within 10 days after the date of filing of the appellant's notice to prepare reporter's transcript [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(a)(3)]. For further discussion regarding service and filing requirements, see § 44.52[4]. See also § 44.14[2] for discussion of proceedings in the appellate court for an extension of time or relief from default.

The notice must be accompanied by a deposit of the approximate cost of preparing the additional material, or by one of the alternatives to this deposit set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.130(b) [for further discussion of computing these costs and of the alternatives, see § 44.52[3]].

The Second District has also adopted a printed form, entitled "Designation of the Record on Appeal," which "may" be used to designate the record in that court, including the reporter's transcript [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, Second App. Dist., Rule 3(b)]. Parties designating a reporter's transcript for an appeal in that district may use the printed form in lieu of the form set out in [1], above.

If, as discussed below, copies of items to be added are not attached to the motion, any material to be added must be described with specificity [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(a)(2)]. Consecutively number the pages of the attachments, beginning with the number one [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(a)(2)]. For further discussion regarding the requisite specificity needed under certain local appellate rules adopted by the First, Second, and Fifth Appellate Districts, see § 44.93[2][c].

Although Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(a), does not set a time limit for the motion, local appellate rules may impose time limits, and too much delay may result in denial of the motion in any event. For further discussion, see §§ 44.92, 44.93[2][a], [3].

Note that, in the First and Second Appellate Districts, a party may not make this motion for the purpose of including material that was in fact designated to be included in the record but omitted until first requesting the trial court clerk to transmit the omitted material [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Rule 6(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 2d App. Dist., Rule 2(b)]. Submitting such a notice to the trial court clerk in the case of designated but omitted matter is permitted under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(b)(1), but not required in other districts. If such a notice has been made initially, but the trial court clerk for some reason did not comply, a copy of that notice should be attached to this motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(b)(2); for a form of notice to the trial court clerk, see § 44.290; see also discussion in § 44.94].

If copies of the material to be augmented are available to the moving party, they must be served and filed with the motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Rule 6(c); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 2d App. Dist., Rule 2(c); cf. Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 5th App. Dist., Rule 1(c) (requiring also that copies be "certified")]. For further discussion, including discussion of service and filing requirements generally, see § 44.93[2][b].

In the First and Second Appellate Districts, the motion must be accompanied by a declaration stating that the requested materials to be augmented were filed or lodged with the trial court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Rule 6(c); Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 2d App. Dist., Rule 2(c)]. This language appears in the declaration portion of this form. See also discussion in § 44.93[2][c].

In the Second Appellate District, a motion to augment must be accompanied by a proposed order. A form printed by the court, entitled "Order Re: Augmentation" may be used [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 2d App. Dist., Rule 2(g)]. For a form of order granting an augmentation request, see [2], below [see also discussion in § 44.93[2][c][iii]].

For discussion of correction and certification, as distinguished from augmentation, see § 44.96.

SUPPORTING DECLARATION OF _____ [name]

I, _____ [name], declare:

1. I am _____ [identify declarant, e.g., an attorney at law duly admitted to practice before all the courts of the State of California and the attorney of record herein for plaintiff in the above-described action].

2. This motion to seal records pertains to the following records[, which have been lodged with the court in connection with this motion on _____ (date)]: _____ [specify documents, papers, exhibits, transcripts, or other things, or portions of these, filed or lodged with the court].

3. The sealing of these records is necessary to an overriding interest that overcomes the right of public access to these records. This overriding interest is _____ [specifiy overriding interest, which may consist of but is not necessarily limited to statutory privileges, trade secrets, privacy rights, contractual obligation of nondisclosure, and right of civil litigant to fair trial].

4. There is a substantial probability that this overriding interest will be prejudiced if these records are not sealed, in that _____ [explain probable prejudice to overriding interest in the event that the records are not sealed].

5. The following measures have been taken to ensure that the proposed sealing is narrowly tailored and no less restrictive means exist to protect the overriding interest: _____ [specify measures taken, e.g., documents proposed for sealing were specified only after selective analysis leaving other documents subject to public access].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

[Add memorandum supporting motion.]

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [moving party]

[2] Use of Form

The form of motion set out in [1], above, is for use by a party seeking an order from a reviewing court directing that specified records on appeal be filed under seal pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46. Court records that are not confidential by law are deemed open to the public and may not be sealed from public access by stipulation of the parties, but only by a court order on motion by a party [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(d)].

The motion must be accompanied by a supporting memorandum of points and authorities [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.54; see also Advisory Committee Comment to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46 (other than requirements under Rule 8.46, motion to seal records must conform to Rule 8.54)]. In addition, the reviewing court must make express findings in its order, setting out the justification for sealing the records [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e)(6)]. Thus, the motion will typically require a supporting declaration, such as the one in this form, that establishes the circumstances justifying the order [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.54(a) (motion based on matters not appearing in record on appeal must be supported by affidavits or other evidence)]. The supporting declaration in this form outlines the facts necessary to support the required findings under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.550(d), (e) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e)(6)].

The records sought to filed under seal must be lodged with the court pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e)(2), absent a showing of good cause for not lodging the records. Pending resolution of the motion or application, records so lodged are conditionally under seal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.46(e)(4)].

If necessary to prevent disclosure, the motion or application and accompanying papers are to be filed in a redacted version, with the complete version lodged conditionally under seal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.46(e)(4) (requirement also applicable to opposing papers)].

For further discussion of the procedures for sealing records, including the procedures for lodging materials proposed to be filed under seal, see § 44.104.

For further discussion of findings necessary to support an order directing that records be filed under seal, see Ch. 551, Trial . For discussion and a form relating to appellate motions generally, see Ch. 45, Appeal: Motion Procedure . For discussion and forms relating generally to declarations under penalty or perjury or affidavits, see Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations .

[2] Use of Form

The form set out in [1], above, is for use by a party when lodging records with the reviewing court in connection with a motion for an order directing that the records be filed under seal. Such records are to be enclosed in an envelope or other container that is labeled "CONDITIONALLY UNDER SEAL" [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e)(3)]. This form, a cover sheet, is then required to be affixed to the envelope or container; it is required both to set out the information required on a caption page under Rule 8.40 [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.40(c) (attorney information)], as well as a statement that the enclosed records are subject to a motion to file the records under seal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e)(3)].

For further discussion of the procedures for lodging records under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e)(3), see § 44.104[2].

The Court has considered the motion _____ [identify party, e.g., plaintiff and appellant] _____ [name] for an order directing that records be filed under seal pursuant to California Rules of Court, Rule 8.46, and finds facts that establish:

1. There exists an overriding interest that overcomes the right of public access to the records specified below, in that _____ [specify overriding interest].

2. This overriding interest supports sealing the records specified below.

3. A substantial probability exists that this overriding interest will be prejudiced if the records specified below are not sealed, in that _____ [specify overriding interest].

4. The records specified below have been tailored to limit narrowly the overall records to be sealed.

5. No less restrictive means exist to achieve the overriding interest than to seal the records specified below.

IT IS, THEREFORE, ORDERED that the motion be, and hereby is, granted and that the following records be filed under seal: _____ [specify records and/or portions of records to be sealed].
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Presiding Justice

[2] Use of Form

The form of proposed order set out in [1], above, is for use in granting a motion under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46, for an order directing that all or a portion of the record on appeal be filed under seal. Local practice should be consulted to determine whether a proposed order is expected or required [see Ch. 45, Appeal: Motion Procedure, § 45.14[1][f]].

The form of order specifically sets out the findings necessary to support the order, as required under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.550(d) and (e) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e)(6)]. By specifying the sealing of particular records only, it also directs the sealing of only those records, or portions or records, that contain material that needs to be placed under seal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.550(e)(1)(ii)].

§ 45.11 General Construction of Appellate Rules

Division 8 of the Cal. Rules of Ct. (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.100 et seq.) applies to appeals from superior courts and original proceedings in the Court of Appeal and the Supreme Court. These rules are to be liberally construed to secure the just and speedy determination of appeals, transfers, and original proceedings [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.5; Jones v. Superior Court (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 92, 96-97, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 264 ; Burns v. Brown (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 142, 145, 151 P.2d 899] . A reference to a statute in the appellate rules includes any subsequent amendments to the statute [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.16].

§ 45.12 Motions or Papers Violating Appellate Rules

[1] Clerk Will Not File Defective Motions or Papers

Except as the California Rules of Court provide otherwise, the clerk of the reviewing court is required to refuse for filing any record or other paper or document that does not conform to the Rules of Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.18].

PRACTICE TIP:

Rejection by the Clerk. Some clerks are pickier than others, and all exercise some discretion as a practical matter, depending on the nature of the defect. Errors that commonly result in rejection include format errors or errors in the caption or cover, although in many cases the clerks will allow or ask that such errors be corrected on the spot, if possible. Another common error that may result in rejection is defective proof of service.

If a clerk does reject a paper for rule violations, he or she will almost always explain why it is being rejected and how it can be corrected. If a rule violation can be easily corrected, a clerk will often point out the error and ask simply that it be corrected on the spot by writing in missing or correct matter, and will then file the paper.

Local appellate rules must also be consulted for additional requirements relating to general or specific motions filed in a particular district or division of the court of appeal. For example, the Fourth Appellate District of the Court of Appeal will not accept for filing any document that has a plastic or acetate cover or that does not conform strictly to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.144 and 8.204 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 4th App. Dist., Rule 2].

For discussion concerning relief from default for failure to comply with the California Rules of Court, see Ch. 47, Appeal: Relief from Default .

[2] Sanctions for Unreasonable Infractions

The appellate court may impose sanctions, including the award or denial of costs, upon offending attorneys or parties for committing any unreasonable violations of the rules governing appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.276(a)]. "Unreasonable violations" usually arise in the context of preparing and submitting briefs [see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.19[2][c]], but egregious violations of the rules in preparing appellate motions and papers may also generate or at least contribute to the imposition of sanctions under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.276(a), see Ch. 49, Appeal: Sanctions .

PRACTICE TIP:

Sanctions for Rule Violations. Appellate courts have rarely, if ever, exercised their power under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.276(a) to impose sanctions for "unreasonable violations" of the appellate rules. A motion that is significantly defective under the appellate rules is much more likely simply to be rejected [see discussion in [1], above], or worse, to be unsuccessful and fail in its objective. Appellate rule violations, as with other errors committed by appellate counsel, may also draw public criticism of counsel's deficiencies in the court's written opinion. While sanctions for rule violations are unlikely, appellate justices are aware of their power to impose sanctions on this ground. Rule violations that are sufficiently egregious and involve a waste of judicial resources, or that prejudice an opposing party, may well result in sanctions payable to the court, the opposing party, or both.

Justice Vogel is an Associate Justice in Division One of the Second Appellate District Court of Appeal, while Ms. Sorem is a senior staff attorney with Division Four of that Court.

§ 45.13 General Format of Appellate Motions and Other Papers Filed in Appellate Courts

[1] Papers Must Be Legible, Typewritten or Proportionally Spaced

[a] Generally

Except as otherwise provided in the appellate rules, all papers filed in a reviewing court may be either produced on a computer or typewritten [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.40(a)].

They must conform to the requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.40(a)]. For detailed discussion of the requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b), which apply more specifically to appellate briefs, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.14.

[b] Typewritten Paper

A typewritten original and carbon copies may be filed only with the presiding justice's permission, which will ordinarily be given only to unrepresented parties proceeding in forma pauperis. All other typewritten briefs must be filed as photocopies [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(11)(A)]. Both sides of the paper may be used if a photocopy is filed; only one side may be used if a typewritten original and carbon copies are filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(11)(B)]. The type size, including footnotes, must not be smaller than standard pica, 10 characters per inch. Unrepresented incarcerated litigants may use elite type, 12 characters per inch if they lack access to a typewriter with larger characters [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(11)(C)]. In all other respects, the typewritten motion must conform to the requirements for all other papers [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b); see [c], below].

See also Practice Tip concerning type size in [c], below.

[c] All Other Papers

A motion may be reproduced by any process that produces a clear, black image of letter quality. The paper must be white or unbleached, recycled, 81/2 by 11 inches, and of at least 20-pound weight [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(1)]. Any conventional typeface may be used. The typeface may be either proportionally spaced or monospaced [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(2)]. The type style must be roman; but for emphasis, italics or boldface may be used, or the text may be underscored. Case names must be italicized or underscored. Headings may be in uppercase letters [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(3)]. The type size, including footnotes, must not be smaller than 13-point, and both sides of the paper may be used [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(4)]. The lines of text must be unnumbered and at least one-and-a-half spaced. Headings and footnotes may be single-spaced. Quotations may be block-indented and single-spaced. Single-spaced means six lines to a vertical inch [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(5)]. The margins must be at least 11/2 inches on the left and right and 1 inch on the top and bottom [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(6)]. The pages must be consecutively numbered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(7)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Type Size Usually Checked by Clerk Before Filing. The clerk's office in most if not all courts of appeal use a plastic overlay displaying various type sizes, to determine whether type size requirements of the appellaterules have been satisfied. A similar overlay may be obtained from some printers specializing in the printing of appellate briefs.

For further discussion concerning format of briefs, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs .

[2] Recycled Paper

All papers must be prepared on recycled paper, and the use of recycled paper is encouraged in preparing the cover of briefs [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)].

[3] Number of Filing Copies

[a] Papers Filed in the Court of Appeal

When filing papers in the Court of Appeal, the following number of copies are required [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.44(b)]:

- An original and four copies of a brief, an amicus curiae brief, or an answer to an amicus curiae brief, and, in civil appeals, proof of delivery of four copies to the Supreme Court.

- An original and four copies of a petition, an answer, opposition or other response to a petition, or a reply.

- An original and three copies of a motion or an opposition or other response to a motion.

- Unless the court orders otherwise by local rule or in the specific case, one set of any separately bound supporting documents accompanying any brief or answer.

- An original and one copy of any application, other than an application to extend time, or any other document.

- An original and one copy of an application to extend time. In addition, one copy for each separately represented or unrepresented party must be provided to the court.

[b] Papers Filed in the Supreme Court

When filing papers in the Supreme Court, the following number of copies are required [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.44(a)]:

- An original and 13 copies of a petition for review, an answer, or a reply.
- An original and 13 copies of a brief in a cause pending in that court.
- Unless the court orders otherwise, an original and 10 copies of a petition for a writ within the court's original jurisdiction or an opposition or other response to the petition.
- An original and eight copies of a notice of motion, motion, or opposition or other response to a motion.
- An original and eight copies of a federal exhaustion petition for review, an answer, or a reply.
- An original and one copy of any other document or paper.

[4] Attorney or Pro Per Party Information

The cover, or first page if there is no cover, of every document filed by an attorney in a reviewing court must comply with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule8.204(b)(10)(D) (must include name, address, telephone number, California State Bar number of each attorney filing brief) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.40(c)].

If the party is appearing in propria persona, that is, on his or her own behalf without counsel, he or she should, in place of the above information, include his or her name, address, and telephone number.

[5] Recommended Style and Content of Caption

[a] Caption for Briefs and Petitions Recommended for All Motions

The information set out in [b]-[g], below, is required for the cover of a brief or petition for rehearing or review, and is recommended for the cover of all appellate motions.

[b] Court in Which Matter Is Pending

Examination of papers filed in the Supreme Court and in the Court of Appeal indicates that various styles are used in designating the title of the respective courts.

The following are common examples of titles used in the Supreme Court:

- "SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA"
- "SUPREME COURT OF CALIFORNIA"
- "IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA"

In designating the title of the court of appeal, the proper appellate district is given, and, if known, the division, if any, to which the case has been assigned. The following are examples of those used in the court of appeal:

- "COURT OF APPEAL OF CALIFORNIA, _____ APPELLATE DISTRICT[,] [DIVISION _____]"

- "COURT OF APPEAL OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA _____ APPELLATE DISTRICT [DIVISION _____]"

- "IN THE COURT OF APPEAL OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA _____ APPELLATE DISTRICT [DIVISION _____]"

For a general form of motion in an appellate court that includes a general caption, see § 45.70.

[c] Name or Title of the Case

The title of the case on appeal is the same as it was in the trial court and the names of the parties are not reversed.

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.100 et seq., provides that on papers filed in a superior court, the title of the case is to be placed below the title of the court in the space to the left of the center of the page.

Code Civ. Proc. § 422.40 provides that in complaints the title of the action must include the names of all the parties, but, except as otherwise provided by statute or rule of the Judicial Council, in other pleadings it is sufficient to state the name of the first party on each side with an appropriate indication of other parties, such as "et al."

As to papers filed on appeal, it is appropriate to add appellate designations, such as "Appellant" and "Respondent," to distinguish the parties to the appeal [see Code Civ. Proc. § 902; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.10 (parties to an appeal designated as appellant and respondent)].

[d] Number of the Case

If no number has been assigned when the paper is prepared, a blank must be left for insertion of the number. The preferred placement of the case number is in the top left corner of the cover. An examination of papers filed in the Court of Appeal indicates that it can also be placed to the right of the title of the case as is done with papers filed in the trial court. The superior court's number of the case is customarily provided also, in parentheses, under the appellate court case number.

[e] Designation of the Paper

This item is customarily blocked in capital letters beneath the title of the case, for example: "MOTION TO DISMISS."

[f] Name of the Trial Judge and County

This item usually appears below the designation of the paper, and is frequently blocked in the following manner:

- "On Appeal From the Judgment of the Superior Court of California, County of _____, The Honorable _____, Judge."

[g] Address to Receiving Court

Although it is not required by the California Rules of Court or statute, some attorneys include on the first page of the body of the paper, immediately preceding the body of the paper, an address to the court such as the following:

- "TO THE HONORABLE CHIEF JUSTICE OF CALIFORNIA AND ASSOCIATE JUSTICES OF THE SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA"

- "TO THE HONORABLE PRESIDING JUSTICE AND ASSOCIATE JUSTICES OF THE COURT OF APPEAL OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA FOR _____ [specify district and/or division of court of appeal]"

[6] Date of Execution of Paper

Generally, it is not required that papers filed in the reviewing court reflect the date on which they are signed, since in most cases the paper does notbecome effective until the date it is filed [see e.g., Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.100 (appeal as "taken" on filing of notice of appeal)].

Nevertheless, stipulations should be dated as they essentially comprise binding agreements that should be certain as to the date that they were executed [see generally Ch. 140, Contracts , and Ch. 533, Stipulations]. It is also generally a good practice to date all papers that are signed in order to record the date of execution on office file copies in the event that originals become lost or destroyed.

[7] Reference to Sealed or Conditionally Sealed Materials

A "record" filed publically in a reviewing court, including an appellate motion and any supporting or opposing papers or evidence [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46 (defining "record" for purposes of Rule 8.46)], must not disclose material contained in a record that is sealed, conditionally under seal, or subject to a pending motion to seal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46]. Thus, for example, even a motion to seal or unseal records on appeal, together with any supporting or opposing papers, may need to be filed in a redacted version, with a complete version lodged conditionally under seal, in order to avoid disclosure of sealed materials [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46]. For further discussion, see Ch. 44, Appeal: Preparing and Filing the Record, § 44.100 et seq.
