Aggrieved labor union member excused from further internal appeal if exhaustion of appeals would create excessive delay. Mitchell v. Internat. Assn. ofMachinists (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 796, 808, 16 Cal. Rptr. 813 (14 months); see also Van Hook v. So. Cal. Waiters Alliance (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 556, 566, 323 P.2d 212 (labor union; at least nine months)

Violation by organization of its rules for appellate procedure in handling member's grievances is exception to requirement that member exhaust remedies. Gonzales v. International Asso. of Machinists (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 207, 211-212, 298 P.2d 92 , affirmed, 356 U.S. 617 (1958) (labor union)

Controversy within unincorporated association confined to rights to funds and fiscal mismanagement affords good ground for equitable relief in courts notwithstanding charter provision for internal appeal. DeMonbrun v. Sheet Metal Workers (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 546, 564, 295 P.2d 881 (no adequate appeal procedure for dispute in question)

Common law right to fair procedure has not been applied to situation other than exclusion or expulsion from membership, and it only applies when challenged exclusion or expulsion adversely affects important, substantial economic interest. Thus, trial court properly dismissed complaint that Boy Scout was denied common law right to fair procedure because of failure to promote him to Eagle Scout, when court did not discern any basis in public policy or sound legal theory to warrant broad extension of current law to include failure to promote within association, and because plaintiff did not allege that failure to promote him to Eagle Scout thwarted or interfered with his pursuit of lawful trade or profession or caused him to suffer substantial financial loss, and court could perceive no reason why existing law should be expanded to provide relief for speculative type of detriment allegedly caused by absence of prestige and honor associated with specific rank in or award conferred by charitable, expressive, and social organization, such as Boy Scouts, whose formation and activities are unrelated to promotion or advancement of economic or business interests of its members. Kim v. Southern Sierra Council Boy Scouts of America (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 743, 746-748, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 911

[8] Member's Action Against Association

Member of unincorporated labor union entitled to maintain against union action on account of tort committed by its members and officers. Inglis v. Operating Engineers Local Union No. 12 (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 269, 270, 23 Cal. Rptr. 403, 373 P.2d 467 (intentional torts); Marshall v. International Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 781, 787, 22 Cal. Rptr. 211, 371 P.2d 987 (negligent torts)

Statute of limitations in action against medical association by physician based on curtailment of use of hospital to practice physician's specialties is Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1) (two years) since action involves property right rather than personal right. Edwards v. Fresno Community Hosp. (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 702, 703, 113 Cal. Rptr. 579

Unincorporated associations is recognized as separate legal entities, so that member is entitled to maintain tort action against association. White v. Cox(1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 824, 828, 95 Cal. Rptr. 259 (condominium association)

Rules and regulations of professional association applicable to action between association members who had agreed to abide by such rules and regulations. Corrigan v. Cox (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 919, 922-923, 62 Cal. Rptr. 733 (professional association); see also Gear v. Webster (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 57, 61, 65 Cal. Rptr. 255 (rule requiring arbitration of disputes between members of realtor association)

Member of association entitled to maintain action to enjoin association's violation of law, where such violation would result in harmful consequences to association and its members. Herald v. Glendale Lodge No. 1289 (1920) 46 Cal. App. 325, 333, 189 P. 329 (fraternal organization)

[9] Inspection of Association Records

Neither incorporated nor unincorporated associations allowed to plead unqualified right to conduct affairs in secret. California Bankers Ass'n v. Shultz (1974) 416 U.S. 21, 65, 94 S. Ct. 1494, 39 L. Ed. 2d 812

Member of unincorporated labor union entitled to writ of mandate directing that he be permitted to inspect its financial records. Mooney v. Bartenders Union Local No. 284 (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 841, 842, 843, 845, 313 P.2d 857 (labor union)

Director of condominium association had no absolute right to inspect members' proxy ballots under Corp. Code § 8334; members had constitutional privacy right in contents of ballots that was not outweighed by director's interests in inspecting ballots. Chantiles v. Lake Forest II Master Homeowners Assn. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 914, 923-926, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1

Proper showing to justify inspection by labor union member of union's books and records required. Deacon v. Internat. Union of Operating Engineers (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 302, 307, 46 Cal. Rptr. 11 , cert. denied, 383 U.S. 103 (1966)

[10] Property of Association

Dues and assessments paid by members to association are its property subject to disbursement and expenditure by it in pursuit of lawful objects for which funds were designated to be expended. DeMille v. American Fed. of Radio Artists (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 139, 149, 187 P.2d 769 , cert. denied, 333 U.S. 876 (1948) (labor union)

When member's interest in association property is only incidental to his membership, such interest ends on his ceasing to be member, and does not prevent his expulsion. Lawson v. Hewell (1897) 118 Cal. 613, 621-622, 50 P. 763 (fraternal organization)

Secession by subordinate association from parent organization, unless through unanimous action of all of parent's members,causes secesionists to lose all rights in property, including name, of subordinate association. Most Worshipful Lodge v. Sons etc. Lodge (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 78, 85, 88, 257 P.2d 464 (fraternal associations)

[11] Rules of Association

[a] Generally

Contractual relation between association and member exists by virtue of rules of association and is not limited to rules existing at time individual became member. Lawson v. Hewell (1897) 118 Cal. 613, 621, 50 P. 763 ; Gear v. Webster (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 57, 61-62, 65 Cal. Rptr. 255

Bylaws of nonprofit agricultural association regarding value of members' interests are binding on expelled members. Sanchez v. Grain Growers Assn. (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 665, 674, 179 Cal. Rptr. 459

Bylaws and rules of voluntary association which on their face negate assent by member to contractual obligation to other members not held to establish enforceable contract between them. Scott v. Lee (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 12, 15, 24 Cal. Rptr. 824 (incorporated association)

Rights and duties of members are between themselves and in their relation to association are measured by terms of association constitution and bylaws, not including changes in these terms occurring after member's membership terminates. American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers v. Superior Court (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 676, 689-690, 24 Cal. Rptr. 772 ; see also Weber v. Marine Cooks' & Stewards' Assn. (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 327, 335, 208 P.2d 1009

Constitution and bylaws of voluntary association are measure of authority conferred on organization to discipline, suspend, or expel its members and constitute contract between organization and its members. Smetherham v. Laundry Workers' Union (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 131, 136-137, 111 P.2d 948 ; see also DeMille v. American Fed. of Radio Artists (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 139, 146, 187 P.2d 769 , cert. denied, 333 U.S. 876 (1948) (both cases involving labor unions)

[b] Construction

Unreasonable construction of labor union's constitution by its president is not binding on members and not recognized by courts. Mandracio v. Bartenders Union, Local 41 (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 81, 85, 256 P.2d 927 ; see also Gonzales v. International Asso. of Machinists (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 207, 216-217, 298 P.2d 92 , affirmed, 356 U.S. 617 (1958) (labor union)

Practical and reasonable construction of constitution and bylaws of voluntary organization by its governing board binding on membership and recognized by courts. DeMille v. American Fed. of Radio Artists (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 139, 147, 187 P.2d 769 , cert. denied, 333 U.S. 876 (1948) (labor union)

Rules and regulations of fraternal beneficial order are not given strict and rigid construction when issue is right to death benefits under insurance certificate issued by order. Ells v. Order of United etc. Travelers (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 290, 294, 125 P.2d 457

Bylaws of association required to be given reasonable construction that will sustain their validity. Sanchez v. Grain Growers Assn. (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 665, 672, 179 Cal. Rptr. 459

[c] Permissible Provisions

Club bylaw provision for payment of attorney's fees by member against whom club is successful in litigation is valid. Malibou Lake Mountain Club, Ltd. v. Smith (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 31, 35-36, 95 Cal. Rptr. 553 (incorporated club)

Power of amendment of bylaws of mutual benefit society not allowed to be used to repudiate obligations of association that in equity and justice it should continue to pay. Power v. Sheriffs' Relief Asso. (1943) 57 Cal. App. 2d 350, 352, 134 P.2d 827 (provisions on sick benefits)

Individuals who form voluntary association permitted to be governed by rules they see fit to adopt, so long as they are not immoral or contrary to public policy or law of land. Neto v. Conselho Amor etc. (1912) 18 Cal. App. 234, 236, 122 P. 973

[d] Repeal and Amendment

Repeal and amendment of constitution and bylaws of voluntary unincorporated association. Weber v. Marine Cooks' & Stewards' Assn. (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 327, 334-335, 338, 208 P.2d 1009 (labor union)

[12] Unfair Competition and Practices

Unfair Practices Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17000 et seq.] authorizes, in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17070, trade association to bring action to restrain violation or recover damages. Los Angeles Check Sellers Asso. v. United States Nat'l Bank (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 570, 572, 80 Cal. Rptr. 321

Application of unfair competition statutes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. (formerly set out in Civ. Code § 3369 et seq.)] not limited to business practices and organizations. Athens Lodge No. 70 v. Wilson (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 322, 325, 255 P.2d 482 (unincorporated fraternal organization as plaintiff)

Scope of court's injunctive powers against unfair competition between fraternal organizations in gaining of members. Most Worshipful Lodge v. Sons etc. Lodge (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 25, 32-35, 210 P.2d 34 (incorporated organizations)

Fact that publication used fraternal organization's name for period of years does not support a finding of organization's consent to publication's exclusive use of its name, but organization not allowed to deny use of its name to publication after such period. Jewish Publications, Inc. v. Gordon (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 376, 378, 205 P.2d 65

Association, though neither incorporated nor engaged in business for material profit, has right to obtain injunction where another organization uses its name. Law v. Crist (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 862, 865-866, 107 P.2d 953 (theosophists lodge); see also Ball v. American Trial Lawyers Assn. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 289, 300-305, 92 Cal. Rptr. 228 (use of name similar to American College of Trial Lawyers)

[13] Defamation of Association

Unincorporated association's cause of action for defamation. Washburn v. Wright (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 789, 793-795, 68 Cal. Rptr. 224 (trust); see also Daniels v. Sanitarium Asso. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 602, 609, 30 Cal. Rptr. 828, 381 P.2d 652 (labor union); Mullins v. Brando (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 409, 422, 91 Cal. Rptr. 796 , cert. denied, 403 U.S. 923 (1971) (policemen's association)

[14] Litigation Involving Associations

[a] Federal Court Jurisdiction

Unincorporated association not to be treated as citizen for purposes of federal diversity jurisdiction. United Steelworkers v. Bouligny (1965) 382 U.S. 145, 147, 153, 86 S. Ct. 272, 15 L. Ed. 2d 217 (labor union); Chapman v. Barney (1889) 129 U.S. 677, 681, 682, 9 S. Ct. 426, 32 L. Ed. 800 (joint stock company)

Judgment in federal class suit when jurisdiction is based only on diversity of citizenship binds class members whose presence as plaintiffs would have defeated jurisdiction. Supreme Tribe of Ben-Hur v. Cauble (1921) 255 U.S. 356, 363-367, 41 S. Ct. 338, 65 L. Ed. 673

[b] Venue

If county in which plaintiff brings action against corporation is its principal place of business, individual defendant resident in different county does not have right to have action changed to county of his residence. McClung v. Watt (1922) 190 Cal. 155, 158, 211 P. 17 (decided under former Cal. Const., Art. XII, § 16; now see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5)

Venue where plaintiff chooses to join as defendants in his action against association individuals whose residence is in different county from county where action is brought. Nelson v. East SideGrocery Co. (1915) 26 Cal. App. 344, 346-348, 146 P. 1055 (action brought where contract sued on was made and to be performed; decided under former Cal. Const., Art. XII, § 16; now see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5)

[15] Member's Liability to Nonmembers

Members of religious association individually liable for negligence of driver of vehicle owned by association, if members, in fact, individually joined in entrusting car to driver. Steuer v. Phelps (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 468, 472-473, 116 Cal. Rptr. 61

Liability of members of unincorporated association for unlawful acts of other members causing harm to nonmembers. Orser v. George (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 660, 670-671, 60 Cal. Rptr. 708

§ 61.80 Petition for Writ of Mandate--By Member Against Association and Its Member-Officers--To Restore Membership and/or Recover Damages for Wrongful Expulsion

[1] FORM Petition for Writ of Mandate--By Member Against Association and Its Member-Officers--To Restore Membership and/or Recover Damages for Wrongful Expulsion
SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
an unincorporated association, and	)	PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE _____ [names],	)
Respondents.	)

Petitioner alleges:

1. At all times herein mentioned, petitioner was, and now is, a member in good standing of respondent _____ [name of association] and possessed all qualifications for such membership.

2. At all times herein mentioned, respondent _____ [name of association], hereafter called Association, was, and now is, an unincorporated association, composed of approximately _____ [ number] members, and having its principal place of business in _____ [city], _____ County, California.

3. At all times pertinent times referred to in this petition, respondents _____ [names] were members and officers of Association as follows: _____ [set office titles and names of respective office holders].

4. At all pertinent times herein mentioned, each of the respondents _____ [name(s)] was an agent of Association and of each of the remaining respondents, and in doing the things hereinafter alleged was acting within the scope of that agency.

5. At all times herein mentioned, Association was, and now is, formed and existing for the following specified purposes: _____ [specify, e.g., To promote the trade of widgetmaking and set voluntary professional standards for persons engaged in widgetmaking].

6. Association controls important economic interests and has attained a quasi-public statute in that _____ [allege fact(s) showing association's control of important economic interests and quasi-public stature, e.g., Association is the largest professional society of widgetmakers in the State of California. Nearly all professional widgetmakers belong to the Association, and membership in Association is, as a practical matter required in order to obtain employment or other work as a widgetmaker].

7. Petitioner has a valuable property right and economic interest in continued membership in Association in that _____ [allege fact(s) showing plaintiff's economic interest in membership, e.g., plaintiff cannot as a practical matter find work as a widgetmaker in California without belonging to Association].

8. At all times herein mentioned, Association has had, and now has, a duly adopted and subsisting constitution and bylaws containing provisions relating to the conditions for maintenance of membership in Association and to the expulsion of members from Association. A copy of the constitution and bylaws is attached hereto as Exhibit _____ and made a part hereof. The constitution and bylaws constitute a contract between Association and each of its members. [Under the Association's constitution and bylaws, discretion is vested in _____ (identify relevant officials) to conduct investigations and hold evidentiary hearings for the purpose of determining whether a member should be expelled.]

9. Petitioner has done nothing which, under the constitution and bylaws of Association, would justify his/her being expelled from Association and at all times herein mentioned has met, and now meets, all requirements for membership set forth in the constitution and bylaws or reasonably to be implied therefrom.

10. As a consequence of Association's control of important economic interests and its quasi-public stature, as well as the vital economic interests of its members, including petitioner, that depend upon membership in Association, Association is required by law to afford its members, including petitioner, fair procedure, including prior notice and an evidentiary hearing, before terminating their membership in Association.

11. On or about _____ [date] at _____ [place], respondents, and each of them, purported to expel petitioner from membership in Association. [A copy of the notice of expulsion is attached to this petition as Exhibit _____ and incorporated into this petition by reference.] Since the date of this purported expulsion, respondents, and each of them, have denied and continue to deny petitioner all of the rights and privileges of membership in Association.

12. Respondents' action in expelling petitioner is in breach of the contract between Association and petitioner in that _____ [specify, e.g., the respondents purported to expel petitioner for _____ (specify), which is not a ground for expulsion recognized in the Association's bylaws or constitution. Furthermore, respondents' failure to afford petitioner prior notice of the expulsion and opportunity to respond to the charges forming the basis of the expulsion was in violation of the Association's bylaws].

13. In expelling petitioner from his/her membership in Association, respondents also acted contrary to law and in excess of their jurisdiction and committed prejudicial abuse of discretion in the following respects:

[Specify reasons for invalidity of decision that are within scope of review under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b), such as the following:]

a. Respondents' action in expelling petitioner is contrary to law and public policy in that _____ [specify nature of illegality, e.g., the purported reason for petitioner's expulsion constitutes an arbitrary discrimination on the basis of petitioner's _____ (specify protected characteristic or status) in violation of the Unruh Civil Rights Act, Civil Code Section 51].

b. Furthermore, respondents' action in expelling petitioner violated petitioner's common-law right to fair procedure because _____ [allege facts showing lack of fair procedure, e.g., respondents expelled petitioner without without affording petitioner prior notice and opportunity for a hearing to present evidence in response to the charges against him/her]. Thus, respondents failed to proceed in the manner required by law.

14. On or about _____ [date], petitioner demanded of respondents _____ [names], in their capacity as agents and/or officers of Association, that they restore to petitioner all of the rights and privileges of membership in Association. Petitioner then and there tendered to these respondents his/her dues for _____ [specify period]; payment of these dues would, under the constitution and bylaws of Association, entitle petitioner to all of the rights and privileges of membership in Association. However, these respondents refused all of petitioner's demands for restoration of rights and privileges and cessation of the publicizing of the purported expulsion and refused to accept the dues that petitioner tendered them.

15. _____ [Allege exhaustion of any internal remedies provided by association or facts excusing petitioner from exhausting those remedies, e.g., On _____ (date), petitioner attempted to appeal the expulsion decision of respondents by filing a written request for reconsideration and for a hearing as provided in Association's bylaws, but respondent _____ (name) refused to accept petitioner's request and informed petitioner, on behalf of the Association's board of directors that the decision to expel petitioner was final].

16. _____ [Allege any damages resulting from wrongful expulsion, e.g., Immediately preceding the purported expulsion of petitioner from Association, petitioner was regularly employed as _____ (specify, e.g., a widgetmaker), and was earning and receiving in this employment approximately $ _____ per month. As a proximate result of the wrongful purported expulsion of petitioner from membership in Association, petitioner has been unable to practice his/her trade and has suffered a loss of employment and consequent loss of earnings from the time of the purported expulsion to the present time, in the sum of $_____].

17. The purported expulsion of petitioner from membership in Association, together with the publicity given and being given thereto, has held, and will hold, him up to public contempt and ridicule, thereby causing him to be shunned and avoided by his associates and persons with whom he has been doing business; has impaired, and will impair, his means of earning a livelihood, and his earnings; has caused, and will cause, him to suffer serious physical illness and mental distress, and to incur necessary medical expense therefor; all to his damage in an amount not capable of being calculated or estimated at this time. Therefore, petitioner will seek leave to amend this petition to show the true amount and nature of these damages when they are ascertained.

18. Petitioner does not have a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law in that pecuniary compensation would not afford adequate relief, since petitioner's enjoyment of the rights and privileges appertaining to membership in Association is not fully subject to a monetary valuation. Furthermore, petitioner's injuries as a proximate result of the purported expulsion and the publicity given thereto are continuing injuries.Thus, petitioner would be required to institute successive actions at law for damages, leading to a multiplicity of judicial proceedings.

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays judgment against respondents, and each of them, as follows:

1. That, on the hearing of this application and the return thereto, if any, this court issue its peremptory writ of mandate commanding respondents, and each of them, to restore to petitioner his/her membership in Association and all of the rights and privileges that appertain to that membership.

2. For general damages according to proof.

3. For medical and incidental expenses according to proof.

4. For past lost earnings in the sum of $ _____.

5. For future lost earnings according to proof.

6. For costs of suit herein incurred[, including reasonable attorney's fees, as authorized by Civil Code Section 1717].

7. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of petition in [1], above, may be used by an expelled member of an unincorporated association to obtain a peremptory writ of mandate to compel the association and its officers to restore petitioner's membership and all rights and privileges of membership [see Anton v. San Antonio Community Hosp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 802, 813-817, 140 Cal. Rptr. 442, 567 P.2d 1162 ; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1087, 1094.5; see also discussion in § 61.31[2][b]]. It may also be used to recover damages caused by the wrongful expulsion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1095].

[3] Allegations

The petition alleges the following facts:

- Petitioner's status as a member in good standing of the association (Paragraph 1) [see Taboada v. Sociedad Espanola etc. (1923) 191 Cal. 187, 193, 215 P. 673] .

- Respondent association's name, status, and purpose (Paragraphs 2, 5) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5(a)].

- The status of any other members or officers joined as repsondents (Paragraph 3) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5(b)].

- Respondent association's principal place of business, the place where any breach of obligation occurred, or other facts establishing venue (Paragraphs 2, 11) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5; see also discussion in § 61.53].

- Respondent association's "quasi-public stature" and control of important economic interests, establishing obligation to afford petitioner fair procedure, including an evidentiary hearing, before terminating his or her membership (Paragraphs 6, 10) [see Potvin v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 1060, 1066-1071, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 496, 997 P.2d 1153 ; Salkin v. California Dental Ass'n (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 1118, 1125, 224 Cal. Rptr. 352 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a)].

- Petitioner's property or economic interest in association membership, thereby establishing a beneficial interest in the proceedings (Paragraph 7) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086; Funeral Dirs. Assn. v. Bd. of Funeral Dirs. (1944) 67 Cal. App. 2d 311, 312-313, 154 P.2d 39] .

- Respondents' purported expulsion of petitioner from membership in the association (Paragraph 11).

- The invalidity of the purported expulsion under the constitution, bylaws, or rules of the association, constituting a breach of contract (Paragraphs 8, 9, 12) [see Smith v. Kern County Medical Asso. (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 263, 270, 120 P.2d 874 ; see also discussion in §§ 61.21, 61.30].

- The respondents' commission of acts in excess of jurisdiction and any prejudicial abuse of discretion (Paragraph 13) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b)]. This form includes, as examples, the following:

  - The illegality of the grounds for expulsion under any provision of law, such as the Unruh Civil Rights Act (Paragraph 13a) [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 51; Ch. 116, Civil Rights: Discrimination in Business Establishments].

  - Respondents' violation of petitioner's common-law right of fair procedure (Paragraph 13b) [see, e.g., Youngblood v. Wilcox (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1368, 1375, 255 Cal. Rptr. 527 ; see also discussion in § 61.31[1]].

- Petitioner's tender of dues and express demand that respondents to perform the duty sought to be compelled by the writ (Paragraph 14) [see Taboada v. Sociedad Espanoala etc. (1923) 191 Cal. 187, 193, 215 P. 673 ; Price v. Riverside L. & I. Co. (1880) 56 Cal. 431, 434-436] .

- Petitioner's exhaustion of association's internal remedies or reasons why exhaustion of remedies should be excused (Paragraph 15) [see Holderby v. Internat. Union etc. Engrs. (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 843, 846, 847, 291 P.2d 463 ; DeVaughn Peace, M.D., Inc. v. St. Francis Medical Center (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 454, 460, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 459 ; Mitchell v. International Asso. of Machinists (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 796, 808, 16 Cal. Rptr. 813] .

- Damages suffered by petitioner as a result of the wrongful expulsion (Paragraphs 16, 17) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1095; see also discussion in [4], below].

- Petitioner's lack of a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law (Paragraph 18) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086; Lohr v. Superior Court (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 231, 234, 244 P.2d 5] .

This form assumes, as an example, that the respondent association abused its discretion by failing to afford petitioner any hearing whatsoever (Paragraphs 12, 13b) and thus failed to proceed in the manner required by law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b)]. For examples of allegations that an agency abused its disrcretion because its decision is not supported by its findings or because its findings are not supported by the evidence [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b), (c)], which may be adapted for use in this form, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , through Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions .

[4] Recovery of Damages

Before an association member may bring an action for damages based on wrongful expulsion, he or she must first seek and obtain a favorable decision on a petition for writ of mandate overturning the expulsion [Westlake Community Hosp. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 465, 483-485, 131 Cal. Rptr. 90, 551 P.2d 410 ; Holder v. California Paralyzed Veterans Assn. (1980) 114 Cal. App. 3d 155, 160-165, 170 Cal. Rptr. 455 ; see DeVaughn Peace, M.D., Inc. v. St. Francis Medical Center (1994)28 Cal. App. 4th 454, 459-460, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 459] . However, in granting a petition for writ of mandate, the court is authorized to award damages that the petitioner has sustained [Code Civ. Proc. § 1095]; therefore, this form of petition includes an allegation of damages (Paragraphs 16, 17) and request for an award of damages (Prayer, Paragraphs 2-5). By recovering damages in the mandate proceeding, petitioner can presumably avoid the necessity for bringing a separate civil action for damages.

To support a damages award, the petition should include allegations of fact that provide a substantive basis for the award of damages. This form includes allegations (1) that the expulsion violated the association's constitution, rules, and bylaws and thus constituted a breach of contract (Paragraphs 8-11) [see Cason v. Glass Bottle Blowers Asso. (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 134, 142, 231 P.2d 6 ; Smetherham v. Laundry Workers' Union (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 131, 136-137, 111 P.2d 948] ; (2) that the expulsion violated other provisions of law and was contrary to public policy (Paragraph 12); and (3) that the expulsion violated plaintiff's common-law right to fair procedure (Paragraph 13) [see, e.g., Youngblood v. Wilcox (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1368, 1375, 255 Cal. Rptr. 527 ; see also discussion in § 61.31[1]].

A wrongful expulsion may also involve facts giving rise to potential liability under various tort theories, such as defamation, interference with business relationships, or other causes of action. Therefore, counsel should consider including additional causes of action in this petition, if appropriate under the facts of a particular case. For forms of allegations that may be adapted for this purpose, see the chapter in this set pertaining to the particular cause of action.

[5] Recovery of Attorney's Fees

In an action on a contract, when the contract specifically provides that attorney's fees and costs incurred to enforce the contract must be awarded to one of the parties or the prevailing party, the party who is determined to be the prevailing party is entitled to reasonable attorney's fees as an element of the costs of suit [see Civ. Code § 1717(a)]. These attorney's fees therefore are not pleaded as an element of damages, but are included as part of the costs in the prayer of a pleading [see discussion in Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.50 et seq.]. Civ. Code § 1717 has been held to apply to special proceedings as well as civil actions [see San Luis Obispo Bay Properties, Inc. v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 556, 571, 104 Cal. Rptr. 733 (proceeding to confirm arbitration award)]. The prayer in this form includes optional language requesting an award of fees under Civ.Code § 1717, which should be included if the association's constitution, by-laws, or rules provide for an award of fees to the association or to a prevailing party in litigation between the association and its members.

[6] Verification and Accompanying Documents

A petition for a writ of mandate must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(4); see Code Civ. Proc. § 446(a) (form of verification)].

Proof of service of a copy of the petition on each respondent is required to accompany the petition when it is offered for filing (except when, in its discretion and for good cause, the court has granted the application for the writ ex parte) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107]. When a petition that does not seek an alternative writ is filed under Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5, however, the action may be filed and served in the same manner as an ordinary action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107]. In a trial court, proof of service need not accompany such an application at the time of filing, but proof of service of a copy of the filed petition must be lodged with the court before a hearing or any action by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5].

A petition in a reviewing court for the issuance of the writ must be accompanied by a memorandum and by proof of service of both on each respondent, but the court in its discretion may allow the filing of the petition without service [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(5)]. Memorandum also customarily accompany a petition filed in a superior court, although they do not appear to be expressly required by statute or court rule [but see Code Civ. Proc. § 1090 (referring to proceeding as a "motion"); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1103(a)(2), 3.1113(a) (mandate proceeding is included in definition of "law and motion" proceeding; memorandum must be submitted in support of noticed motion)]. [4. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as DOES I-_____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by those fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that the harm to plaintiff and to Association as herein alleged was proximately caused by the conduct of defendants.)]

5. At all times herein mentioned, each of the individual defendants named in this complaint was and now is, the agent and employee of each of the remaining individual defendants and of defendant Association, and in doing the things hereinafter alleged, was, and now is, acting within the scope of that agency.

[EITHER]

6. Plaintiff is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a member of Association in good standing.

[OR]

6. Plaintiff is a member in good standing of Association. Plaintiff's membership devolved on him/her by operation of law from _____ [name] who was a member of Association at the time of the transaction complained of herein, in the following manner: _____ [specify manner].

[CONTINUE]

7. [Allege facts stating cause of action against defendants, other than Association, which show injury to Association.]

[EITHER]

8. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff made the following efforts to secure action from the _____ [managing body] of Association with regard to above specified claim against the above-named individual defendants: _____ [set forth with particularity such efforts].

[OR]

8. Plaintiff did not make any effort to secure action from the _____ [managing body] of Association or from Association, since any such effort would have been futile in that _____ [set forth facts demonstrating futility of demand].

[EITHER]

9. On _____ [date], plaintiff informed _____ [Association and/or the _____ (managing body) of Association] in writing of the ultimate facts of each cause of action alleged against each individual defendant named in this complaint, and demanded that it take such action necessary for Association to prosecute the cause of action against the above-named individual defendants. However, _____ [Association or and/or the _____ (managing body) of Association] refused, and continue(s) to refuse, to prosecute this action.

[OR]

9. On _____ [date], plaintiff delivered to _____ [Association and/or the _____ (managing body) of Association] a true copy of the complaint that plaintiff proposed to file in this action, and demanded that it take such action necessary for Association to prosecute the cause of action against the above-named individual defendants. However, _____ [Association or and/or the _____ (managing body) of Association] refused, and continue(s) to refuse, to prosecute this action.

[CONTINUE]

10. If plaintiff is successful in this action, a substantial benefit will result to defendant Association on whose behalf this action is prosecuted in that _____ [specify benefit to Association].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against the defendants _____ [names], and each of them, as follows:

1. For _____ [specify legal and/or equitable relief sought, e.g., damages in the sum of $ _____].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff further prays judgment against Association as follows:

1. For costs of suit herein incurred.

2. For reasonable attorney's fees incurred in the prosecution of this action.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a "skeletal" complaint is for use by a member of an unincorporated association in an action, commonly known as a "derivative action," instituted or maintained by the member in the right of the association against the association and members of its managing body. The provisions of Corp. Code § 800 pertaining to corporate shareholder's derivative actions also apply to derivative actions by members of an unincorporated association [see Corp. Code § 800(a); see also discussion in § 61.50[2][b]].

[3] Allegations

This form of complaint sets forth the basic allegations necessary to maintain a derivative action against an association and its management [see Corp. Code § 800(a),(b)]. It must be combined with allegations setting forth the substance of any causes of action against the individual named members of the association's management (Paragraph 7). Counsel should refer to the chapters in this set pertaining to the relevant substantive causes of action for forms of specific allegations that may be inserted into this complaint.

This form alleges the following facts:

- The status and capacity of the association and the individual named defendants (Paragraphs 1-3).

- The status and capacity of fictitiously named defendants, if any (Optional Paragraph 4).

- Allegations of agency between the individual defendants and the association and among the individual defendants (Paragraph 5).

- Plaintiff's membership in the association at the time of the transaction complained of or any part thereof, or that his membership devolved on him or her by operation of law from a member who was a member at the time of the transaction or any part thereof complained of (Alternative Paragraphs 6) [see Corp. Code § 800(a),(b)(1)].

- Details regarding plaintiff's efforts, if any, to secure from the managing body of the association the action that he or she desires, or reasons why plaintiff failed to make any such efforts (Alternative Paragraphs 8) [see Corp. Code § 800(a),(b)(2)].

- Plaintiff's giving of written notice informing the association or its managing body of the ultimate facts of each cause ofaction against each individual defendant, or plaintiff's delivery of a copy of the proposed complaint to the association or its managing body (Alternative Paragraphs 9) [see Corp. Code § 800(a), (b)(2)].

- Any substantial benefit to the association that will result from plaintiff's success in the action, thereby justifying an award of attorney's fees to plaintiff from the association (Paragraph 10) [see Fletcher v. A.J. Industries, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 313, 323-324, 72 Cal. Rptr. 146 (involving shareholder's derivative suit against corporation); but see Braude v. Automobile Club of Southern Cal. (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 994, 1006-1010, 223 Cal. Rptr. 914 (to justify attorney's fee award under substantial benefit doctrine, the litigation must result in "actual and concrete" benefits to the organization and its members, not merely "conceptual or doctrinal" benefits)].

[4] Jurisdiction

An action under Corp. Code § 800 is an equitable action [see Rosenfeld v. Zimmer (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 719, 722, 254 P.2d 137 (corporate stockholder's derivative suit)] and is therefore within the residual equity jurisdiction of the superior court [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10], and is not a limited civil case [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)].

[5] Verification

Verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a) (unless otherwise required by law, pleadings need not be verified)]. However, if the complaint is verified, the defendant is required to file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 446(a)] and is precluded from making a general denial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

§ 61.86 Petition for Writ of Mandate to Enforce Right of Member to Inspect Unincorporated Association's Financial Records--By Member Against Association and Its Secretary-Treasurer

[1] FORM Petition for Writ of Mandate to Enforce Right of Member to Inspect Unincorporated Association's Financial Records--By Member Against Association and Its Secretary-Treasurer

[Caption. See § 61.80[1].]

Petitioner alleges:

1. At all times herein mentioned, petitioner was, and now is, a member in good standing of respondent _____ [name of association].

2. [Respondent association's capacity and location of principal place of business. See § 61.80[1], Paragraph 2.]

3. At all times herein mentioned, respondent _____ [name], was, and now is, secretary-treasurer of Association, and Association's agent and employee. In doing the things herein after alleged, respondent _____ [name] was, and now is, acting within the scope of such agency.

4. [Purpose for which association was formed. See § 61.80[1], Paragraph 5.]

5. At all times herein mentioned, Association has been, and now is, the owner of large sums of money, government bonds, and other assets, which are to be used for the benefit of Association's members, including petitioner.

6. At all times herein mentioned, respondent _____ [name], secretary-treasurer of Association, has had, and now has, possession and control of the financial books and records of Association.

7. _____ [Allege facts known to petitioner justifying petitioner's request to inspect association records, e.g., Monthly and quarterly statements (available to the members) of the finances of Association based on the above-described books and records show that for a period from _____ (date), to _____ (date), the expenditures have exceeded the income of Association, and show certain large outlays of funds, but do not show any detailed explanation therefor. Petitioner is informed and believes and on such information and belief alleges that certain of these expenditures are improper and contrary to the rights and interests of the members of Association, including petitioner].

8. On _____ [date], petitioner made and served on Association and respondent _____ [name], secretary-treasurer of Association, a written demand for permission to examine allfinancial records of Association covering the period from _____ [date], to _____ [date], and for necessary facilities and assistance in the course of this examination. A copy of petitioner's demand is attached to this complaint as Exhibit _____ and made a part of this complaint by reference.

9. Petitioner desires to examine the financial records for purposes reasonably related to his rights and interests as a member of Association, as follows: _____ [describe purposes].

10. Association and respondent _____ [name], secretary-treasurer, have refused, and continue to refuse, to permit petitioner to examine financial records, although they each have the authority to permit this examination.

11. Petitioner does not have a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law in that pecuniary compensation would not afford adequate relief, since it would not give petitioner the right to examine Association's financial records, and the appropriate amount of pecuniary compensation, even if such existed, would be extremely difficult to ascertain.

[12. Petitioner has exhausted his internal administrative remedies within Association by _____ (describe steps taken to exhaust remedies). Any attempt by petitioner to pursue any further internal remedy would be futile and involve delay likely to defeat the purpose of petitioner's investigation in that _____ (describe reasons why further exhaustion of remedies should be excused).]

WHEREFORE petitioner prays judgment as follows:

1. That, on the hearing of this application and the return thereto, if any, this court issue its peremptory writ of mandate commanding respondent Association and respondent _____ [name], its secretary-treasurer, to permit petitioner or his duly authorized representative to examine forthwith all financial records of Association covering the period from _____ [date], to _____ [date], and to afford such facilities and such assistance in the course of this examination as the court deems proper.

2. For costs of suit herein incurred.

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By:_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner_____ [name]

[Verification. See § 61.80[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The form of petition in [1], above, is for use by a member of an unincorporated association to obtain a peremptory writ of mandate compelling the association and its secretary treasurer to permit the member or his duly authorized representative to examine association financial records for a specified period [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1085; Mooney v. Bartenders Union Local No. 284 (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 841, 843, 313 P.2d 857 ; see also discussion in § 61.23].

[3] Allegations

This form of petition alleges the following facts:

- Petitioner is a member of the association and hence a beneficially interested party (Paragraph 1) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086; Funeral Dirs. Assn. v. Bd. of Funeral Dirs. (1944) 67 Cal. App. 2d 311, 312-313, 154 P.2d 39] .

- The capacities of the association and its secretary-treasurer and the purposes of the association (Paragraphs 2-4).

- The association's maintenance of financial books and records (Paragraph 6).

- Plaintiff's written request to inspect the association's books and records (Paragraph 8) [see Mooney v. Bartenders Union Local No. 284 (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 841, 843, 313 P.2d 857 ; see also discussion in § 61.23; cf. Corp. Code § 1601(a)].

- Reasons justifying petitioner's request to inspect the association's records (Paragraphs 5, 7-9) [see Mooney v. Bartenders Union Local No. 284 (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 841, 843, 313 P.2d 857 ; see also discussion in § 61.23; cf. Corp. Code § 1601(a)].

- Petitioner's distinct and express demand on respondents to perform the duty sought to be compelled by the writ and respondents' refusal to do so (Paragraph 8, 10) [see Price v. Riverside L. & I. Co. (1880) 56 Cal. 431, 434-436] .

- Petitioner's lack of a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law (Paragraph 11) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086; Lohr v. Superior Court (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 231, 234, 244 P.2d 5] .

- Petitioner's exhaustion of internal administrative remedies, if any (Optional Paragraph 12). However, exhaustion of internal remedies after refusal of the member's demand onthe association to permit inspection is not usually required [see Mooney v. Bartenders Union Local No. 284 (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 841, 843-844, 313 P.2d 857 (involving labor union)].

2. [Defendant association's capacity and location of principal place of business. See § 61.85[1], Paragraph 1.]

3. [Purpose for which association was formed. See § 61.85[1], Paragraph 2.]

4. [Names, capacities, and office titles of individual defendants. See § 61.85[1], Paragraph 3.]

5. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 61.85[1], Paragraph 4.]

6. [Agency allegations. See § 61.85[1], Paragraph 4.]

7. Plaintiffs bring this action on behalf of themselves and all other members of Association except defendants _____ [names]. The members of Association, other than these defendants, are numerous and it is impracticable to bring them all beforethe court. Plaintiffs, together with all the remaining members of the association, except these defendants, constitute a definite, ascertainable class.

8. There is a well-defined community of interest in the questions of law and fact involved affecting the parties to be represented in that the action is to obtain a declaration of the status of the constitution, bylaws, and rules of Association, which govern the rights and obligations of all members of Association.

9. At all times herein mentioned, Association and its members have had, and now have, a valid, subsisting written contract, entitled Constitution of _____ [name of defendant association], governing the reciprocal rights and obligations of Association and of the members. A copy of this constitution is attached to this complaint as Exhibit _____ and made a part of the complaint by reference.

10. The procedure for amending the Association's constitution is forth in Article _____ [number] of that constitution, which reads in pertinent part: _____ [set out verbatim]. As provided in the Association's constitutution, this procedure is the exclusive means of amending that constitution.

11. On or about _____ [date], at a regular meeting of Association held in _____ [place], the individual defendants named in this complaint undertook to, and did, cause Association to adopt certain purported amendments to the Association's constitution set forth in Exhibit _____. A copy of the constitution as purportedly amended is attached hereto as Exhibit _____ and made a part hereof.

12. These purported amendments were adopted in contravention of the mandatory procedure for amending the Association's constitution prescribed by Article _____ [number], and are void, in that _____ [set out departures from prescribed procedure].

13. The officer defendants undertook to, and did, cause Association to so adopt the purported amendments to the Association's constitution with the intent and for the purpose of _____ [e.g., giving the officer defendants purported basis for claiming and exercising substantially increased powers over the affairs and property of Association and its members, and of avoiding opposition thereto through the constitutionally prescribed amendment procedure]. The purported amendments would _____ [e.g., take from the members as a whole and vest in defendant officers, without effective control by the members, the control over the policies, affairs, and property of Association and its members as a whole].

14. At all times herein mentioned, Association has been and now is the owner of a large fund of money, government bonds, and other assets of great value, which are to be used for the benefit of its members as a whole.

15. By reason of the existence of the valid constitution of Association, set forth in Exhibit _____, affecting the relations between the respective parties hereto, and the subsequent purported amended constitution, set forth in Exhibit _____ affecting or claimed to affect the relations between the respective parties, a dispute and actual controversy have arisen between plaintiffs and defendants over the valid constitution, and the legal rights and duties of the parties thereunder.

16. More particularly, the dispute and controversy raise the following opposing contentions:

a. Plaintiffs contend the original constitution, set forth in Exhibit _____ is the only valid constitution and ruling authority of Association.

b. Plaintiffs contend the purported amended constitution, set forth in Exhibit _____ illegally and wrongfully _____ [e.g., takes from plaintiffs and the other nonofficer-members and vests in defendant officers the control over the policies, affairs, and property of Association and its members as a whole].

c. Defendants contend the valid constitution was amended and by reason thereof an amended constitution, set forth in Exhibit _____, is the only constitution and ruling authority of Association and that _____ [e.g., defendant officers are validly in possession of and exercising the powers accorded to them by the amended constitution or other as appropriate].

17. Plaintiffs have incurred and, during the pendency of this action, will incur, expenses for attorney's fees and costs herein. Such attorney's fees and costs are necessary for the prosecution of this action and will result in a benefit to each of the members of the class in that his contractual rights as originally established under the original constitution, as set forth in Exhibit _____, including his rights in the aforementioned Association fund of assets, will be protected.

18. Plaintiffs have no adequate internal remedy within the Association for challenging the actions of defendants as alleged in this complaint in that _____ [specify, e.g., the Constitution and rules of Association provide no procedure for appealing actions taken by the Association's managing body to amend the constitution, rules, or bylaws of the Association].

WHEREFORE, plaintiffs pray judgment against defendants and each of them, as follows:

1. Declaring the rights and duties of the parties in the premises, including a declaration that the original constitution, set forth in Exhibit _____, is the only valid constitution and ruling authority of Association.

2. Declaring the purported amended constitution, set forth in Exhibit _____, and all acts done thereunder, void.

3. For costs of suit, including a reasonable attorney's fee for maintenance of this action on behalf of all members but the officer defendants.

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by members of an unincorporated association who seek, in a class action on behalf of themselves and other members of the association, a judicial declaration that the association's present constitution is invalid and that its previous constitution is valid. With appropriate modifications, the form may be used to challenge amendments to bylaws or other rules of the association.

For general discussion of the effect of an association's constitution, bylaws, and rules on the rights and duties of members, see § 61.21.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following facts:

- The status of plaintiffs as members of the association (Paragraph 1).

- The status and capacity of the association and the individual named defendants (Paragraphs 2-4).

- The status and capacity of fictitiously named defendants, if any (Optional Paragraph 5).

- Allegations of agency between the individual defendants and the association and among the individual defendants (Paragraph 6).

- The existence of an ascertainable class consisting of association members other than the individual named defendants (Paragraph 7) [see Daar v. Yellow Cab Co. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 695, 704, 717, 63 Cal. Rptr. 724, 433 P.2d 732] .

- A well defined community of interest in the questions of law and fact involved affecting the parties to be represented (Paragraph 8) [see Daar v. Yellow Cab Co. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 695, 704, 717, 63 Cal. Rptr. 724, 433 P.2d 732 ; Code Civ. Proc. § 382].

- Facts showing the existence of an actual controvery relating to the legal rights and duties of the respective parties regarding the validity of the association's constitution (Paragraphs 9-16) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060; Cinmark Investment Co. v. Reichard (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 498, 501, 54 Cal. Rptr. 810] .

- The incurring of reasonable attorney's fees in bringing the action (Paragraph 17) [see Weber v. Marine Cooks' & Stewards' Assn. (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 327, 340-341, 208 P.2d 1009] .

- The lack of internal remedies within the association that can be exhausted (Paragraph XVIII) [see Holderby v. Internat. Union etc. Engrs. (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 843, 846, 847, 291 P.2d 463 ; see also discussion in § 61.31[2][a]].

The complaint requests the adjudication of the rights and duties of the respective parties by the court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060; Cinmark Investment Co. v. Reichard (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 498, 501, 54 Cal. Rptr. 810] .

[2] Use of Form

This form of general demurrer is for use by a defendant or respondent unincorporated association to object to a complaint or petition by a member with a grievance against the association. The ground of the demurrer is that the complaint or petition does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that it does not allege that plaintiff or petitioner has exhausted the association's internal remedies that apply to the grievance [see Holderby v. Internat. Union etc. Engrs. (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 843, 846-847, 291 P.2d 463 ; DeVaughn Peace, M.D., Inc. v. St. Francis Medical Center (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 454, 460, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 459 ; see also discussion in § 61.31[2][a]].

This form should be used when the defect appears on the face of the complaint or petition, or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]. If the defect does not appear on the face of the complaint, this objection may be raised as an affirmative defense [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)].

A party filing a demurrer must serve and file with the demurrer a memorandum in support of each ground [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1103(c), 3.1113(a)] and a notice of hearing [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1103(c), 3.1320(c)]. For further discussion of procedures pertaining to demurrers, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings . [1] FORM Affirmative Defense--Sufficiency and Legality of Expulsion Proceedings

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state: TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges:

1. The expulsion of plaintiff/petitioner was based on the following conduct: _____ [specify grounds for expulsion, consisting of a violation of the association's rules or other conduct that clearly violates the fundamental objects of the association].

2. The procedure followed in expelling plaintiff/petitioner conformed in all respects to those rules of the association governing the procedure for expelling members. A copy of those rules is attached to this answer as Exhibit _____ and made a part of this answer by reference. Specifically, defendant/respondent Association followed the following procedure in terminating plaintiff's/petitioner's membership: _____ [specify procedure followed in expelling petitioner/plaintiff, including facts sufficient to show that petitioner/plaintiff was afforded fair procedure, e.g., Plaintiff/Petitioner was served with a written notice specifying the acts constituting his/her alleged offense and the charges against him/her,including a citation of the rule(s) he/she was charged with violating. The notice informed him/her of the date, time, and place at which a hearing would be held on the charges to determine if he should be expelled. On the specified date, a hearing was held before a fair and impartial committee constituted in accordance with the Association's rules. No person responsible for bringing the charges against plaintiff was a member of this committee. At the hearing, witnesses testified against plaintiff, and he/she was given a full opportunity to confront and cross examine these accusers and to call his/her own witnesses to examine and refute the evidence against him/her. After due consideration of the evidence on both sides, the committee determined that the evidence justified expelling plaintiff from membership in the Association, and he/she was thereon expelled in accordance with the rules of the Association].

The form of affirmative defense in [1], above, is for use in an answer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]. by an unincorporated association to a complaint or petition for writ of mandate challenging the legality of plaintiff's expulsion from membership in the association [see § 61.80]. The form alleges that the plaintiff or petitioner was expelled on lawful grounds [see discussion in § 61.30] and that the expulsion was in accordance with the association's rules and complied with common-law requirements for fair procedure [see discussion in § 61.31[1]].

If the facts alleged in this form appear on the face of the complaint or petition, the defect should be raised by demurrer for failure to state a cause of action [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)].

[1] FORM Complaint for Temporary Restraining Order, Preliminary and Permanent Injunction, and Damages--By Unincorporated Association Against Rival Entity and Its Member-Officers--Use of Plaintiff's Name and Insignia [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203; Corp. Code §§ 21308, 21309]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name of association], an unincorporated association, Plaintiff, vs. _____ [name], _____ [an unincorporated association or a corporation], and _____ [names], Defendants.	)	NO. _____ COMPLAINT FOR TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER, PRELIMINARY AND PERMANENT INJUNCTION, AND DAMAGES

Plaintiff alleges:

1. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff was, and now is, an unincorporated association, composed of approximately _____ [number] members, with its principal place of business in _____ [city], _____ County, California.

2. Plaintiff was formed on or about _____ [date], for the following specified purposes: _____ [specify]. Since that date, and for more than _____ [number] years, plaintiff has been, and now is, a duly created and existing organization, known and designated by its name of _____ [name of plaintiff association]. At all times pertinent to this complaint, plaintiff has had, and now has, duly adopted rules contained in its constitution and bylaws, and an insignia that consists of the following described items: _____ [describe].

3. Defendant _____ [name of rival association or corporation] (hereafter called "defendant association") is _____ [an unincorporated association or a corporation, incorporated under the laws of the State of _____], with its principal place of business in _____ [city], _____ County, California. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that] [D]efendant association was formed on or about _____ [date] for the purpose of _____ [specify].

4. Defendants _____ [names] are members and officers of defendant association, which they and their agents formed. They are hereafter collectively referred to as the "officer defendants".

[5. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as DOES I-_____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that the harm to plaintiff as herein alleged was proximately caused by such conduct of defendants.)]

6. At all times relevant to this complaint, each of the officer defendants was, and now is, the agent and employee of each of the remaining officer defendants and of defendant association, and in doing the things hereinafter alleged, was, and now is, acting within the scope of such agency.

7. At all times relevant to this complaint, and for _____ [number] years, plaintiff has conducted its business and affairs, which involve _____ [specify nature of plaintiff's business], in such a way that it has acquired, and now enjoys, a widespread reputation and goodwill of great value; has induced its members and members of the general public to rely, and they do rely, on the faithful performance of plaintiff in its business matters; and has commanded, and now commands, extensive support and patronage of its business and affairs by members of the general public.

8. By reason of the existence of plaintiff and the manner in which plaintiff has conducted, advertised, and carried out its business and affairs, the name _____ [name of plaintiff], which was first adopted and used and is owned by plaintiff, has been so exclusively identified with plaintiff's business and affairs that it has acquired a secondary meaning in the minds of members of the public in that the name is solely indicative of plaintiff's business and affairs and that of no other organization.

9. _____ [Allege facts showing misappropriation of plaintiff's name and/or insignia, e.g., On or about _____ (date), and ever since that date, the officer defendants, and each of them, have been, and now are, conducting business and affairs and advertising and campaigning to recruit members for the defendant association, using plaintiff's identical name, and are about to commence and continue an even more extensive advertising and recruiting campaign thereunder for additional members for defendant association. The business and other affairs conducted by the defendants are similar to those of plaintiff, namely _____ (specify), and these affairs are conducted in the same locality, namely, _____ (specify). Defendants have also used an insignia in their advertising, a copy of which is attached to this complaint as Exhibit _____, that is confusingly similar to plaintiff's and likely to cause confusion in the minds of the public between plaintiff and the defendant association]. All of the above acts havebeen committed by defendants without plaintiff's permission and without any legal authority.

10. The defendants, and each of them, undertook and did all of the above-described acts, knowing of plaintiff's prior adoption, continued use, and ownership of the name _____ [name], with the intent and for the purpose of defrauding and otherwise competing unfairly with plaintiff and appropriating to their own use plaintiff's name, reputation, and goodwill by misleading and deceiving, and they have misled and deceived, members of plaintiff and of the general public into the belief that the business and affairs of plaintiff are the business and affairs of defendants, and that the place where defendants conduct their business and affairs is that of plaintiff, all to the injury of plaintiff and of the public.

11. The defendants, and each of them, threaten to, and will unless enjoined and restrained by order of this court, continue to conduct business and affairs, advertise, and campaign to recruit additional members for defendant association, all with the described intent, for the described purpose, and by the described means, whereby they are likely to, and will, mislead and deceive members of plaintiff and of the general public into the belief the business and affairs of plaintiff are the business and affairs of defendants, and that the place where defendants conduct their business and affairs is that of plaintiff.

12. Unless enjoined by this court, the actions and conduct of defendants, and each of them, as described in this complaint will cause great and irreparable injury to plaintiff and the public, since pecuniary compensation would not afford plaintiff adequate relief for the loss of potential members and supporters it would proximately suffer thereby or the public for the loss of an opportunity to become members and supporters of plaintiff. In view of the continuing nature of defendants' conduct, plaintiff would have to file numerous civil actions for damages, leading to a multiplicity of judicial proceedings.

13. As a further proximate result of defendants' wrongful conduct, plaintiff has suffered the following injuries and damage: _____ [allege damages to plaintiff's property to the date of the complaint]. Plaintiff will be further damaged in like manner so long as defendants' conduct continues; the full amount of such damage is not now known to plaintiff and plaintiff will seek leave to amend this complaint to state that amount when it becomes known to plaintiff, or on proof of the amount.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendants, and each of them, as follows:

1. For an order requiring defendants to show cause, if any they have, why they should not be enjoined as hereinafter set forth, during the pendency of this action.

2. For a preliminary injunction and a permanent injunction, both enjoining defendant association and the officer defendants, and each of them, and their agents, servants, and employees, and all persons acting under, in concert with, or for them:

a. From using the name _____ [name of plaintiff] or any other name confusingly, misleadingly, or deceptively similar to it, and from doing or conducting any business or affairs of any kind in this name, including the use of this name in the solicitation of advertising in defendant association's newspaper, in advertising for defendant association, and in campaigning to recruit additional members for defendant association; and

b. From using plaintiff's insignia, or any insignia that is confusingly, misleadingly, or deceptively similar to plaintiff's, in any manner whatsoever; and

3. For damages according to proof.

4. For costs of suit herein incurred.

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[Verification. See form in § 61.85[1], and discussion in [4], below.]

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action for unfair trade name competition by an unincorporated association against a rival association and its officers. The complaint seeks to enjoin defendants from using plaintiff's name or any other name confusingly, misleadingly, or deceptively similar to it, in its business and affairs, and from using plaintiff's insignia in any way [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203; Corp. Code § 21308; see also discussion in § 61.43[1]]. The complaint also seeks damages [see Corp. Code § 21309].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following facts:

- Name, capacity, and purpose of the plaintiff association (Paragraphs 1, 2).

- Names and capacities of the defendant association and of the individual defendants (Paragraphs 3, 4).

- Fictitious name allegations, if appropriate (Optional Paragraph 5).

- Agency allegations (Paragraph 6).

- Plaintiff's prior and continuous use of a trade name in such a way that a secondary meaning is acquired (Paragraphs 7, 8).

- Plaintiff's prior adoption and continuous use of an insignia (Paragraph 2).

- Defendants' subsequent unauthorized use of the same or a confusingly similar trade name and/or insignia (Paragraph 9) [see Corp. Code § 21308].

- Likelihood of confusion in the minds of the public of the defendant's business with plaintiff's (Paragraphs 10-12) [see Sunset House Distributing Corp. v. Coffee Dan's, Inc. (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 748, 753, 50 Cal. Rptr. 49] .

- To justify injunctive relief, great and irreparable injury, inadequacy of pecuniary compensation, and a multiplicity of judicial proceedings, unless the injunction is granted (Paragraph 12) [see Civ. Code § 3422; Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(2)].

- Damages caused by defendants' unauthorized use of plaintiff's name and/or insignia (Paragraph 13) [see Corp. Code § 21309].

A complaint seeking preliminary injunctive relief must be either verified or accompanied by affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) in support of the allegations of the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ;

Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . In a limited civil case, the court may issue temporary restraining orders and preliminary injunctions, but not permanent injunctive relief; thus, when permanent injunctive relief is sought, the action cannot be brought as a limited civil case [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8), 580(b)(2)]. For discussion, a procedural checklist, and additional forms necessary to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

If no preliminary injunctive relief is sought, the complaint need not be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a) (unless otherwise required by law, pleadings need not be verified)]. However, if the complaint is verified in a superior court action that is not a limited civil case, the defendant must file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446(a)] and is precluded from making a general denial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

This chapter discusses the provisional remedy of attachment, including the following topics:

- What attachment is and when it is generally available [see § 62.10 et seq.].
- Procedures that may be used by a plaintiff to obtain a writ of attachment, including the following:
  - Procedures for obtaining a writ of attachment or a temporary protective order [see § 62.30 et seq.].
  - Procedures for levying on property pursuant to a writ of attachment [see § 62.38 et seq.].
  - Liens to secure the amount to be secured by an attachment [see § 62.46 et seq.].
  - Examination of third persons concerning the defendant's property [see § 62.55 et seq.].
  - Creditor suits when a third person has possession or interest in the defendant's property or owes a debt to the defendant [see § 62.61 et seq.].
  - Release of attached property by the levying officer [see § 62.64 et seq.].
- Procedures for use by a defendant to oppose attachment proceedings [see § 62.80 et seq.].

Forms covering attachment generally [see § 62.130 et seq.], levy procedures [see § 62.170 et seq.], liens [see § 62.191 et seq.], and wrongful attachment [see § 62.210 et seq. are provided.

[1] Purpose

Attachment is a prejudgment remedy that requires a court to make a preliminary determination of the merits of a dispute involving a debtor and creditor. It allows the creditor, who has followed the statutory requirements and who has established a prima facie claim, to have a lien recorded against real property and/or the debtor's assets seized and held until final adjudication at trial [see Lorber Industries v. Turbulence, Inc. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 532, 535, 221 Cal. Rptr. 233] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Attachment Generally Expensive. Generally, an attach ment application involves significant expense for a client and is not cost-effective unless there is property available to attach. If your client has no information about attachable assets (including information regarding values or liens), retention of an investigator for an asset search may be advisable at the outset.

[2] Governing Law and Definitions

Attachment is strictly governed by the statutory Attachment Law as set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 481.010 et seq. [see Bank of America v. Salinas Nissan, Inc. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 260, 270, 254 Cal. Rptr. 748] . Unless a provision of the Attachment Law or the context otherwise requires, definitions set forth in the Attachment Law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 481.020 et seq.] govern its construction [Code Civ. Proc. § 481.010]. The most important definitions are as follows:

- "Personal property" includes both tangible and intangible personal property [Code Civ. Proc. § 481.175].

- "Probable validity" refers to a claim when it is more likely than not that the plaintiff will obtain a judgment against the defendant on that claim [Code Civ. Proc. § 481.190].

NOTE:

Plaintiff's Burden of Proof. The plaintiff has the burden of proof in establishing the right to a right-to-attach-order (RTAO). Since the court must make an affirmative finding of "probable validity," the mere absence of opposition does not cure a plaintiff's deficient showing.

- "Property" includes real and personal property and any interest therein [Code Civ. Proc. § 481.195].

- "Real property" includes any right in real property, including, but not limited to, a leasehold interest in real property [Code Civ. Proc. § 481.203].

- "Registered process server" means any person registered as a process server under Bus. & Prof. Code § 22350 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 481.205].

- "Secured party" means a lender, seller, or other person in whose favor a security interest exists, including a person to whom accounts or chattel paper have been sold. If a security interest is in favor of a trustee, indentured trustee, agent, collateral agent, or other representative, the representative is a secured party [Code Civ. Proc. § 481.207; Com. Code § 9102(a)(72)].

[3] Performance of Judicial Duties

In attachment proceedings, a judge, or a temporary judge appointed under the state constitution [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 21], must perform all judicial duties in the determination of [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.060(b), (c)]:

- Contested claims of exemption.

- Contested motions for determination of liability and damages for wrongful attachment.

- Contested third-party claims.

- Contested proceedings to enforce a third person's liability.

All other judicial duties are "subordinate" and may be performed by appointed officers, such as commissioners [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.060(a); see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 22].

§ 62.11 When Attachment Authorized

[1] Required Elements of Claim

With certain limited exceptions, a court may issue an attachment if the plaintiff's claim meets the following four requirements [see Code Civ. Proc. § 483.010(a)-(c)]:

- The claim is a claim for money that is based on an express or implied contract.
- The claim is of a fixed or readily ascertainable amount not less than $500.
- The claim is a commercial claim.
- The claim is not secured by real property.

Unless otherwise provided by statute, an attachment may be issued only in an action on one or more claims for money based on an express orimplied contract. The total amount of the claim or claims must be fixed or readily ascertainable and not less than $500, exclusive of costs, interest, and attorneys' fees [Code Civ. Proc. § 483.010(a); Kemp Bros. Construction, Inc. v. Titan Electric Corporation (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1474, 1481, n.5, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 673] . The term "contract" includes a lease of real or personal property [see Stanford Hotel Co. v. M. Schwind Co. (1919) 180 Cal. 348, 352, 181 P. 780 ; The CIT Group/Equipment Financing, Inc. v. Super DVD, Inc. (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 537, 540, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 927 (attachment may be issued for breach of lease so long as lease furnishes standard by which amount due may be determined)]. In addition, a claim brought under the Contractors' State License Law against an unlicensed contractor may form the basis for a right to attach order since an agreement for the performance of services lies at the heart of such a claim [Goldstein v. Barak Construction (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 845, 853, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 603].

Attachments are generally unavailable on tort claims due to their unascertainable amounts and because under Code Civ. Proc. § 483.010(a) attachment is available only on claims based on a contract, express or implied. Thus, unless perhaps a tort claim were characterized as a claim of implied contract or quasi-contract, attachment would not be available on a tort claim due to the necessity of satisfying the contract element [Waffer Internat. Corp. v. Khorsandi (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1261, 1277, 1277 n.16, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 241] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Alternative Contract and Tort Claims. Attachment may be available if contract and tort claims are alternatively pled. For example, recission based on fraud, conversion, and embezzlement have been found to be appropriate bases for attachment [see Klein v. Benaron (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 607, 609, 56 Cal. Rptr. 5] . Attachment should always be available to secure liquidated contract claims seeking damages completely separate from those sought under a tort claim even when the claims are based on common facts [Waffer Internat. Corp. v. Khorsandi (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1261, 1277, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 241 (quoting Baker v. Superior Court (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 140, 146-147, 197 Cal. Rptr. 480] . Counsel should note, however, that an attachment might be found to be an election of remedies barring further recourse on the tort claim [§ 62.11[6]].

PRACTICE TIP: Aggregating Multiple Claims. Claims may be aggregated, but the total amount claimed in the action may not be less than $500. Generally, an expeditious remedy will be available for lesser amounts under the small claims procedure [see Ch. 526, Small Claims].

Attachment may also be authorized by other miscellaneous statutory provisions [Code Civ. Proc. § 483.010; see, e.g., Civ. Code §§ 3052, 3065a; Code Civ. Proc. § 492.010; Food & Agric. Code § 281; Harb. & Nav. Code § 495.1; Health & Safety Code § 11501; Lab. Code. § 5600; Rev. & Tax. Code. §§ 6713, 7864, 8972, 11473, 12680, 19373, 30302, 32352].

[2] Attachment Generally Unavailable for Claims Secured by Real Property

In general, an attachment may not be issued on a claim that is secured by a real property interest arising from an agreement, statute, or other rule of law. This includes any mortgage or deed of trust of realty and any statutory, common-law, or equitable lien on real property, but excludes any security interest in fixtures subject to Com. Code § 9101 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 483.010(b)].

An exception to the general rule is applied when the claim was originally secured by an interest in real property but, without any act of the plaintiff or the person to whom the security was given, the security has become valueless or has decreased in value to less than the amount then owing on the claim. In this case, the amount for which an attachment may issue must not exceed the lesser of the amount of the decrease or the difference between the value of the security and the amount then owing on the claim [Code of Civ. Proc. § 483.010(b)].

NOTE:

Attachment on Unsecured Guaranty. Attachment may issue on an unsecured guaranty of an obligation secured by real or personal property, if the guaranty contains a waiver of the right to require the creditor to proceed first against the primary obligor or the obligor's security [see American Guaranty Corp. v. Stoody (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 390, 394-396, 41 Cal. Rptr. 69] .

PRACTICE TIP: Plaintiff's Burden of Proof. In seeking attachment on a claim secured by real property, the plaintiff has the burden of showing:

- The security has diminished in value.

- The plaintiff was not responsible for the diminution.

Although it is no longer necessary for such averments to be included in the plaintiff's affidavit, it is prudent to do so since the court need not consider additional evidence at the attachment application hearing without good cause [Bank of America v. Salinas Nissan, Inc. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 260, 273, 254 Cal. Rptr. 748] . When Judicial Council attachment forms are used, however, the court does not need to make a specific finding that the plaintiff was not responsible for any diminution in the security's value. That finding is implicit in the language of the court order that "[t]he claim upon which the application is based is one upon which an attachment may be issued" [Bank of America v. Salinas Nissan, Inc. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 260, 272, 254 Cal. Rptr. 748] .

In an action to foreclose a mortgage or deed of trust on real property or an estate for years in real property, pursuit of a remedy under the Attachment Law does not constitute an action for recovery of a debt for the purposes of the one action rule of Code Civ. Proc. § 726(a) or a failure to comply with any other statutory or judicial requirement to proceed first against security [Code Civ. Proc. § 483.012].This provision is subject to the restrictions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 580b and 580d (antideficiency judgment rules) [Code Civ. Proc. § 483.012]. For discussion of the oneaction rule and antideficiency statutes, see Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages .

Attachment is available when the plaintiff's claim is partially secured by personal property.

Effective January 1, 1991, attachment became available on a claim secured by an interest in personal property, including any security interest in fixtures [Code Civ. Proc. § 483.010(b), as amended by Stats. 1990, ch. 943, § 1; see Com. Code § 9101 et seq.]. The sunset clause that would have reinstated the prohibition on attachment of claims secured by personal property was repealed in 1997, so that Code Civ. Proc. § 483.010(b) will continue to allow attachment of such claims [see Stats. 1997, ch. 222, § 1; 26 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 311, 312]. The amount that may be secured by attachment is reduced by the value of the security interest plaintiff holds to secure the debt [see Code Civ. Proc. § 483.015(b)(2); for further discussion, see § 62.12[1]]. The objective behind this provision is to afford an undersecured creditor the same rights as an unsecured creditor [see 26 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 312].

[4] Claim Must Involve Commercial Obligation

If the defendant is a natural person, an attachment may be issued only on a claim that arises out of the defendant's conduct of a trade, business, or profession. Thus, attachment is not available when a claim against a natural person is based on the sale or lease of property, a license to use property, the furnishing of services, or the loan of money, if the property, services, or money was used by the defendant primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [Code Civ. Proc. § 483.010(c)]. This reflects the intent of the Legislature that attachment be available only for commercial obligations, and not consumer debts.

ILLUSTRATION:

Claim Not Arising From Business. Plaintiff seeks to attach real property owned by a nonresident defendant, asserting that plaintiff's claim arose out of defendant's business as a real estate broker. Defendant is an 86-year-old woman who is disposing of her real property before moving to Mexico. The real property sought to be attached has been owned by defendant for over 30 years. Will plaintiff prevail in attaching defendant's real property? No. In selling her own real property in contemplation of a move out-of-state, defendant is not engaging in a trade, business, or profession. Even assuming that defendant is a real estate broker, the evidence compels the conclusion that real property held for over 30 years and sold under such circumstances is a personal investment [Nakasone v. Randall (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d

757, 763-765, 181 Cal. Rptr. 324] .

ILLUSTRATION: Claim Arising From Profession. Two individuals execute a note on behalf of a lighting corporation, as the corporation's president and secretary. The creditor brings suit on the note against the corporation and the two individual guarantors and applies for an attachment. The trial court requires the establishment of identity between the defendant guarantors and the primary obligor on the basis of the alter ego doctrine before permitting an attachment to issue against the defendant guarantors. Finding no identity between the corporation and the individual defendants, the court denies the application for attachment as to the two individual defendants, but grants it as against attachable assets of the corporation. Did the trial court apply a correct standard for determining the availability of the attachment remedy? No. The "alter ego" standard is inappropriate. In cases involving guarantees by principal shareholders of closely held corporations, the correct standard should be as follows: if the sum total of the circumstances justifies the conclusion that the guarantor occupied himself or herself to a substantial degree and on a continuing basis in promoting his or her own profit through provision of credit or management to the primary obligor, a guarantee executed in the course of such activity may properly be considered an obligation arising out of the conduct of the guarantor's business [Advance Transformer Co. v. Superior Court (1974) 44 Cal. App. 3d 127, 144, 118 Cal. Rptr. 350] .

[5] Demand for Other Relief No Bar to Attachment

An attachment may be issued whether or not other forms of relief are demanded [Code Civ. Proc. § 483.010(d)]. However, under certain circumstances the doctrine of election of remedies might prevent a plaintiff from proceeding on a tort cause of action after an attachment is granted, if both the tort and contract causes of action arise from the same set of facts. See discussion § 62.11[6].

[6] Election of Remedies

Broadly speaking, election of remedies is the act of choosing between two or more concurrent but inconsistent remedies based on the same state of facts. Ordinarily, a plaintiff need not elect, and cannot be compelled to elect, between inconsistent remedies during the course of trial prior to judgment [Baker v. Superior Court (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 140, 144, 197 Cal. Rptr. 480] . There is uncertainty, however, as to whether and to what extent, if any, the doctrine of election of remedies applies in the context of an attachment.

It has been held that an action in tort for fraud in which punitive damages are sought is inconsistent with an action for money had and received. Pleading the two causes of action in the alternative does not, however, constitute a binding election of remedies, because pleading inconsistent counts is permissible. Obtaining an attachment, however, constitutes a positive act in the pursuit of the contractual remedy. By levying under the writ, defendant is deprived of the use of defendant's property and plaintiff obtains an advantage over defendant. Under suchcircumstances, the doctrine of election of remedies has been held to apply [see Steiner v. Rowley (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 713, 720, 221 P.2d 9 ; Roam v. Koop (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1040, 116 Cal. Rptr. 539 (doctrine of election of remedies is affirmative defense applicable to tort cause of action, but defense waived by failure to raise it in trial court)].

More recently, it has been said that it is doubtful that the doctrine of election of remedies has any continuing viability in the attachment context, in that the cases which pioneered the application of the doctrine in the attachment context were dealing with a type of attachment law that no longer exists [Waffer Internat. Corp. v. Khorsandi (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1261, 1268, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 241] . After Randone v. Appellate Dep't of Superior Court (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 536, 96 Cal. Rptr. 709, 488 P.2d 13 , in which the former attachment law was held unconstitutional, a new attachment law replete with due process protections and procedures was enacted [Waffer Internat. Corp. v. Khorsandi (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1261, 1273-1274, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 241] . In the post-Randone era, the election doctrine is now viewed as harsh and disfavored. It has been held that the doctrine does not apply when differing operative facts are involved in the contract and tort claims. This is a far reaching limitation on the doctrine, since a claim for fraud (or any other tort) will almost necessarily involve elements differing from a contract claim [Waffer Internat. Corp. v. Khorsandi (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1261, 1278, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 241] . If all the elements were precisely the same, both claims would normally be the same claim, not different, which was essentially the same situation in Steiner v. Rowley (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 713, 221 P.2d 9 , in which the claim for punitive damages was found barred by the election of remedies doctrine. Steiner predates Randone and the comprehensive revision of the attachment statutes, and it is questionable whether it would be decided the same way today [Waffer Internat. Corp. v. Khorsandi (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1261, 1275 n.15, 1278, 1278 n.17, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 241] . Roam v. Koop (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1040 was also decided under pre-Randone law [Waffer Internat. Corp. v. Khorsandi (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1261, 1270, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 241] .

Nor is a tort claim forfeited by election of remedies if the facts material to the contract claim arise at a different time than those material to the tort claim, nor if the contract or tort claims arise out of different rights and duties. These restrictions largely eliminate the application of the doctrine in the attachment context because (with the possible exception of circumstances like those presented in Steiner v. Rowley, above) a contractual obligation is different than a tort duty. Moreover, the inapplicability of the doctrine when tort and contract claims arise out of different rights and duties makes the doctrine inapplicable when the plaintiff's tort claims are directed at wholly different defendants than the contract claims. In the instance of wholly different defendants, different operative facts and separately enforceable legal rights and duties are clearly involved. Nor are tort claims barred by the election doctrine if different elements of damages are sought in the contract and tort claims [Waffer Internat. Corp. v. Khorsandi (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1261, 1278-1279, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 241] .

Adding to these restrictions on the election doctrine is the proviso that the doctrine does not apply to forfeit tort claims unless the defendant has suffered substantial prejudice as a result of the plaintiff's attachment. Given the protections afforded by the current attachment law, it is incongruous to speak of a defendant being substantially prejudiced by enforcement of plaintiff's statutory rights [Waffer Internat. Corp. v. Khorsandi (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1261, 1279, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 241] . The doctrine of election of remedies is an application of the broader concept of equitable estoppel. Since the current attachment statutes carefully protect a defendant's rights, and allow attachment only on prior court order in limited circumstances, it is doubtful that attachment today can ever be said to result in an inequity justifying estoppel [Waffer Internat. Corp. v. Khorsandi (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1261, 1265, 1279-1280, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 241 (even assuming election doctrine remains available in context of attachment in some situations, this case would not be one of them)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Waiver of Tort Claims. Tort claims are common in cases in which an attachment may be available on a contract or quasi-contract claim. By seeking an attachment there may be certain circumstances under which plaintiff's counsel might waive his or her client's tort claims--including possible punitive damages claims. Before making such an election of remedies, plaintiff's counsel should fully disclose the alternatives and other ramifications to the plaintiff. The disclosure, and the chosen course of conduct, should be confirmed in writing.

PRACTICE TIP: Election of Remedies. According to dicta in one court of appeals case, a defendant may be required to assert an election of remedies as a defense in the first instance. Failure to do so would preclude defendants from asserting the defense in the absence of changed circumstances. In addition, the court states that when the election of remedies defense is applicable, the court should issue the right-to-attach-order (RTAO) conditionally, giving the plaintiff the choice of electing between the writ of attachment and pursuing inconsistent remedies [Baker v. Superior Court (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 140, 147 n.5, 197 Cal. Rptr. 480] .

ILLUSTRATION: Contract Damages Separate From Tort Claims. Plaintiffs bring suit against defendant contractors, alleging breach of contract, fraudulent inducement, and various tort causes of action. Plaintiffs obtain a writ of attachment and corresponding temporary restraining order prior to trial. Defendants move for partial summary judgment on the ground that plaintiffs are barred from asserting their tort claims because they elected to proceed on the contract claim by obtaining the attachment order. Are plaintiffs barred from pursuing their tort causes of action? No. Attachment is available to secure liquidated contract claims seeking damages completely separate from those sought under the tort claims, even when the claims are based on some common facts. Here, medical expenses and damages for emotional distress sought under the tort claims are separate and distinct from the liquidated damages requested in the contract cause of action [Baker v. Superior Court (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 140, 144-145, 197 Cal. Rptr. 480] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Overview of Attachment

6-62 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 62.12

AUTHOR: Edythe L. Bronston Alan M. Mirman Hon. Robert H. O'Brien David J. Pasternak Contributing Editors

§ 62.12 Attachable Property

[1] Amount Securable by Attachment

In general, the amount to be secured by an attachment is the sum of the amount of the defendant's indebtedness claimed by the plaintiff together with prejudgment interest, allowable costs, and attorney's fees allowed by the court pursuant to contract or statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 483.015(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 482.110]. Separate provisions govern securable amounts in unlawful detainer actions [see 62.12[2]].

PRACTICE TIP:

Inclusion of Anticipated Costs. A declaration from counsel can be used to justify inclusion of anticipated costs that may be out of the ordinary, and to set forth a computation of anticipated prejudgment interest through the date of trial.

The amount determined under the general rule must be reduced by the sum of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 483.015(b)]:

- The amount of any money judgment in favor of the defendant and against the plaintiff that remains unsatisfied and is enforceable.

- The amount of any indebtedness of the plaintiff that the defendant has claimed in a cross complaint filed in the action if the defendant's claim is one on which an attachment could be issued.

- The amount of any claim of the defendant asserted as a defense in the answer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70], if the defendant's claim is one on which an attachment could be issued had an action been brought on the claim when it was not barred by the statute of limitation.

- The value of any security interest in the property of the defendant held by the plaintiff to secure the defendant's indebtedness claimed by the plaintiff, together with the amount by which the value of the security interest has decreased because of the act of the plaintiff a prior holder of the security interest.

PRACTICE TIP:

Attachment as to Multiple Defendants. It is not excessive for a plaintiff to attach property of multiple defendants with value equal to the full amount of the claim as to each defendant.

[2] In Unlawful Detainer Proceedings

In an unlawful detainer proceeding, a writ of attachment may be issued to secure the sum of the following amounts [Code Civ. Proc. § 483.020]:

- The amount of rent due and unpaid as of the date the complaint was filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 483.020(a)(1)].

- An amount equal to the amount of rent, computed at the rate provided in the lease, for the period from the date the complaint is filed to the estimated date of judgment or the estimated date of plaintiff's recovery of possession, whichever estimated date is earlier. This additional amount may be included, in the court's discretion, only if the plaintiff seeks it in the application for a right-to-attach order (RTAO) and a writ of attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 483.020(a)(2), (b), (c)].

- Any additional amount included by the court under Code Civ. Proc. § 482.110, providing for costs and attorney's fees [Code Civ. Proc. § 483.020(a)(3)].

From the amount determined above, the following amounts, if applicable, must be subtracted [Code Civ. Proc. § 483.020(d), (e)]:

- The amount of any payment or deposit that the plaintiff has received or holds solely to secure the payment of rent. This provision does not apply to payments or deposits that secure both the payment of rent and also the performance of other obligations under the lease or only the performance of other obligations under the lease.

- The amount of all claims that would diminish the amount of the plaintiff's recovery [see Code Civ. Proc. § 483.015(b)].

[3] Property Subject to Attachment

[a] Corporate, Partnership, or Association Property

If the defendant is a corporation, partnership, or other unincorporated association, all corporate, partnership, or association property that may be levied upon [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.300 et seq.] is subject to attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 487.010(a), (b)].

[b] Property of Natural Person

If the defendant is a natural person, all of the following property is subject to attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 487.010(c)]:

- Interests in real property, except leasehold estates with unexpired terms of less than one year.

- Accounts receivable, chattel papers, and general intangibles arising out of the conduct by the defendant of a trade, business, or profession, except any such individual claim with a principal balance of less than $150.

- Equipment.

- Farm products.

- Inventory.

- Final money judgments arising out of the conduct by the defendant of a trade, business, or profession.

- Money on the premises where a trade, business, or profession is conducted by the defendant.

- Except for the first $1,000, money located elsewhere than on the premises where the defendant conducts a trade, business, or profession, and deposit accounts, unless the defendant has more than one deposit account or has at least one deposit account and money located elsewhere. In the latter case, the court, on application of the plaintiff, may order that the writ of attachment be levied so that an aggregate amount of $1,000 in the form of such money and in such accounts remains free of levy.

- Negotiable documents of title.

- Instruments.

- Securities.

- Minerals or the like, including oil and gas, to be extracted.

Community property that otherwise qualifies under the criteria above is subject to attachment, if it would be subject to enforcement of a judgment obtained in the action in which the attachment is sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 487.010(d)].

In general, when community property is sought to be attached, any provision of the Attachment Law that applies to property of the defendant also applies to the community property interest of the spouse of the defendant and to community obligations owed to either spouse. Similarly, any provision that applies to property in the possession or under the control of the defendant also applies to community property in the possession or under the control of the spouse of the defendant. These rules do not apply when a provision or the context requires otherwise [Code Civ. Proc. § 487.010(d)(1), (2)].

[c] Homestead Property

The recording of a homestead declaration has no effect on the right to record an attachment lien, regardless of when the homestead was recorded [Code Civ. Proc. § 487.025(a)]. An attachment lien attaches to a homestead in the amount of any surplus over the total of all liens and encumbrances on the homestead at the time the attachment lien is created plus the statutory homestead exemption [Code Civ. Proc. § 487.025(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730]. Nonetheless, a homestead is exempt from sale (except pursuant to a court order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.740]) to the extent provided by the Homestead Exemption [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710 et seq.; see generally Ch. 294, Homesteads] when it is sought to be sold to enforce the judgment obtained in the action in which the attachment is obtained [Code Civ. Proc. § 487.025(d)]. In addition, the defendant may protect a homestead by claiming an exemption for necessities [Code Civ. Proc. § 487.025(c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 487.020(b)].

[d] Property Subject to Pending Action or Special Proceeding

The following property may be attached even if it is subject to a pending action or special proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.475(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.300 et seq.]:

- Real property.

- Growing crops, timber to be cut, or minerals or the like, including oil and gas, to be extracted or accounts receivable resulting from sales at the wellhead or minehead.

- Tangible personal property in the possession or control of the defendant or in the custody of a levying officer.

- The interest of a defendant in personal property in the estate of a decedent, whether the interest arises by testate or intestate succession.

Except as to those types of property set forth above, an attachment of property subject to a pending action or special proceeding is not effective [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.475(b)]. An action or proceeding is "pending" from the time the action or proceeding is commenced until judgment has been entered and the time for appeal has expired or, if an appeal is filed, until the appeal has been finally determined [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.475(d)]. If an attachment is attempted but is ineffective under this provision, a statement to that effect and the title of the court where the action is pending and the number of the pending action or proceeding must be given in any garnishee's memorandum requested by the levying officer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.610; see also § 62.42[1]]. However, if the defendant is a party in the pending action or proceeding, the plaintiff may nonetheless obtain a lien to secure the amount to be secured by attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.475(e); see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.410 et seq., and § 62.46].

[e] Nonresident's Property

A nonresident's property subject to attachment is defined as any property for which a method of levy is provided under the Attachment Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.040; see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.300 et seq.]. The definition expressly excludes reference to the provisions defining property subject to attachment and exempt property with respect to defendants generally [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.040; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 487.010, 487.020]. Once the nonresident defendant has filed a general appearance in the action, however, only the nonresident defendant's nonexempt property may be levied on. Any property previously levied on which is exempt under Code*Civ. Proc. § 487.020* must be released on order of the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.040]. For further discussion, see § 62.113[15].

[4] Property Exempt From Attachment

Except for certain fraudulent transfers [see Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(2)], the following property is exempt from attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 487.020;§ 62.30[7]]:

- All property exempt from enforcement of a money judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.010 et seq.].

- Property that is necessary for the support of a defendant who is a natural person or the defendant's family supported in whole or in part by the defendant.

- "Earnings" as defined by Code Civ. Proc. § 706.011, that is, compensation payable by an employer to an employee for personal services performed by the employee, whether denominated as wages, salary, commission, bonus, or otherwise [see Code Civ. Proc. § 706.011(a)].

- All property not subject to attachment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 487.010 [§ 62.111[2][n]].

AUTHOR: Edythe L. Bronston Alan M. Mirman Hon. Robert H. O'Brien David J. Pasternak Contributing Editors

§ 62.13 General Provisions Applicable to Attachment

[1] Injunctive Relief Available

Nothing in the Attachment Law precludes the granting of injunctive relief [see Code Civ. Proc. § 482.020]. Injunctive relief, however, may not be granted when to do so will permit a party, in effect, to obtain prejudgment attachment without satisfying the statutory requirements for attachment [Doyka v. Superior Court (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1134, 1137, 285 Cal. Rptr. 14] .

For discussion of and forms for obtaining injunctive relief, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[2] Use of Affidavits, Declarations, and Verified Complaints

Affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) filed under the Attachment Law [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 484.030, 484.350] must contain facts set forth with particularity. Except when matters are specifically permitted to be shown by information and belief [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 484.510(b), 485.210(d)], each affidavit or declaration must show affirmatively that the affiant, if sworn as a witness, can testify competently to the facts stated. As to matters shown by information and belief, the affidavit or declaration must state the facts on which the affiant's belief is based, showing the nature of his or her information and the reliability of his or her informant. The affiant may be any person, whether or not a party to the action, who has knowledge of the facts [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.040].

PRACTICE TIP:

Content of Affidavits and Declarations. In affidavits and declarations, do not use conclusory language or copy ultimate facts from the complaint. Recite in clear language, with a foundation for each fact, each element (e.g., to satisfy the business records exception to the hearsay rule), and the basis for alleging execution of the contractual agreements and existence of default(s). Even if there is no opposition, admissible evidence is required. It is not good practice, therefore, to rely on a complaint for evidentiary purposes.

CAUTION:

Use of Verified Complaint. While a verified complaint that satisfies the statutory requirements generally may be used in lieu of, or in addition to, an affidavit [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.040], it will not serve as an affidavit or declaration establishing the facts set forth when the verification is made [Code Civ. Proc. § 446; Lorber Industries v. Turbulence, Inc. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 532, 536, 221 Cal. Rptr. 233] :

- On behalf of a corporation or public agency by an officer of the corporation or agency.
- By an attorney because the parties are either absent from the county in which the attorney has his or her office or are otherwise unable to verify it.

[3] Availability of Records and Documents for Public Inspection

The plaintiff may request in writing when filing the complaint that the court clerk withhold the records and documents in the action from public access before the earlier of [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.050(a)]:

- 30 days after the filing of the complaint.
- The filing of the return of service of the notice of hearing and any temporary protective order, or of the writ of attachment, if issued without notice.

This request may be made in the form of a notation, made by rubber stamp or other suitable means, at the top of the first page of the complaint filed with the clerk [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.050(c)].

The clerk of the court, however, must make the entire file in the action available for inspection at any time to any party named in the complaint or to his or her attorney [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.050(b)].

In addition to the request in writing, the plaintiff must also file a declaration under oath pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.580. For a form of declaration, see § 62.140.

[4] Method of Service

Except as otherwise provided in the Attachment Law, a writ, notice, order, or other paper required or permitted to be served may be served personally or by mail. With the exceptions noted below, the provisions regarding service with respect to enforcement of money judgments [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 684.010 et seq., 684.110 et seq.; see generally Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.40 et seq.] govern service under the Attachment Law, including the provisions extending time when service is made by mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.070(b)]. However, references in the enforcement of money judgment provisions to "judgment debtor" and to "judgment creditor" are deemed to be to the defendant and the plaintiff, respectively. Similarly, references to "writ" are deemed to be references to writ of attachment and those to "notice of levy" are deemed to be to notice of attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.070(c)].

If the defendant has not appeared in the action and the Attachment Law requires that a writ, notice, order, or other paper be personally served, service is to be made in the same manner as a summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.070(d); see Code Civ. Proc. § 413.10 et seq.; see generally Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers]. If the defendant has an attorney of record in the action, service is to be made on the attorney rather than the defendant. However, service of a subpoena or other process to require the attendance of the defendant or service of a paper to bring the defendant into contempt must be made personally on the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.070(e)].

Proof of service under the Attachment Law is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 684.210 et seq., which generally applies to enforcement of money judgments [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.070(f)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Personal Service. Temporary protective orders must also be served personally on the persons to be bound, in order to ensure the availability of a contempt order should a named person fail to comply [see generally Ch. 303, Injunctions , regarding enforcement by contempt].

[5] Order to Transfer Property

If a writ of attachment is issued, the court may also issue an order directing the defendant to transfer to the levying officer either or both of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.080(a)]:

- Possession of the property to be attached, if the property is sought to be attached by taking it into custody.

- Possession of any documentary evidence of title to the property of, or the debt owed to, the defendant that is sought to be attached.

An order for the transfer of possession of documentary evidence of title may be served by the levying officer when the property is levied on or afterwards [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.080(a)]. The order must be personally served and must contain a notice to the defendant that failure to comply with the order may subject the defendant to arrest and punishment for contempt of court [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.080(b)]. A turnover order issued without a writ of attachment is not valid [Pacific Decision Sciences Corp. v. Superior Court (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1100, 1106-1107, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 104] . In addition, a turnover order does not apply to a levy of attachment on an account receivable or a deposit account by taking the account into custody because these types of properties may not be taken into custody [Pacific Decision Sciences Corp. v. Superior Court (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1100, 1108-1109, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 104] .

[6] Multiple Writs

Several writs in the same form may be issued simultaneously or from time to time on the same undertaking, whether or not any writ previously issued has been returned [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.090(a); see also discussion § 62.13[8]].

[7] Alias Writ of Attachment

After the return of a writ of attachment, the plaintiff may demand at any time before judgment that the clerk issue an alias writ in the same form as the original without the requirement of a new undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.090(b)]. An alias writ may also issue on the filing by the plaintiff of an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) setting forth the loss of the writ of attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.090(b)].

[8] Date of Issuance

The date of issuance of a writ of attachment is deemed to be the date the writ is first issued [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.090(c)]. Thus, additional writs in the same form [§ 62.13[6]] and alias writs [§ 62.13[7]] relate back to this date for purposes of determining the expiration of liens created by the writs [see Law Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 482.090(c)].

An attachment levied within 90 days of a debtor's filing a petition in bankruptcy is voided by Code Civ. Proc. § 493.030(b).

If a temporary protective order was issued more than 90 days before the commencement of the bankruptcy case, however, the attachment is not a voidable preference [see 11 U.S.C. § 547] because it is deemed created on the date the temporary protective order was granted [In re Wind Power Systems, Inc. (9th Cir. 1988) 841 F.2d 288, 291 ; see Code Civ. Proc.§ 488.500(e)]. This result is not affected by Code Civ. Proc. § 493.030(b). The latter provision was not amended after the addition of the relation-back provision [In re Wind Power Systems, Inc. (9th Cir. 1988) 841 F.2d 288, 291] . For discussion of preferential transfers, see Collier on Bankruptcy, 15th ed. (Matthew Bender).

NOTE:

Priority of Attachment Lien. The 9th Circuit recently interpreted the Wind Power case to hold that the priority of an attachment lien relates back to the date on which the writ was issued [see In re Jenson (9th Cir. 1992) 980 F.2d 1254, 1259] .

§ 62.30 Obtaining Writ Under Noticed Hearing Procedure

[1] Application

[a] Availability

On filing a complaint or at any time after, the plaintiff may apply for a right-to-attach order, referred to hereinafter as an "RTAO," and a writ of attachment by filing an application for the order and writ with the court in which the action is brought [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.010]. Use of a separate application for each defendant may be advisable or even required by certain courts. For a form of application, see § 62.130.

PRACTICE TIP:
Forms in Federal Courts. Judicial Council forms may be used in federal court, once the appropriate changes are made to indicate the appropriate forum.

[2] Contents of Application

The application must be executed under oath and must include all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.020]:

- A statement showing that the attachment is sought to secure the recovery on a claim on which an attachment may be issued.

- A statement of the amount to be secured by the attachment.

- A statement that the attachment is not sought for a purpose other than the recovery on the claim on which the attachment is based.

- A statement that the applicant has no information or belief that the claim is discharged in a U.S. Code Title 11 bankruptcy proceeding or that the prosecution of the action is stayed in a Title 11 proceeding.

PRACTICE TIP:

Proceeding Against Bankrupt Codefendant. Plaintiff may proceed against a nonbankrupt codefendant, unless the bankrupt debtor is proceeding under Chapter 13 [see 11 U.S.C. § 1301(a); for further discussion, see Ch. 94, Bankruptcy § 94.34, regarding codebtor's stay].

- A description of the property to be attached and a statement that the plaintiff is informed and believes that the property is subject to attachment. Concerning the description:

  - If the defendant is a corporation, a reference to "all corporate property which is subject to attachment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 487.010(a)" is sufficient.

  - If the defendant is a partnership, or other unincorporated association, a reference to "all property of the partnership or other unincorporated association which is subject to attachment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 487.010(b)" is sufficient.

  - If the defendant is a natural person, however, the description of the property must be reasonably adequate to permit the defendant to identify the specific property sought to be attached.

ILLUSTRATION:

Target All Defendant's Property. A plaintiff's application for an RTAO seeks to attach all of the following types of property owned by individual defendants: real property, personal property, equipment, motor vehicles, chattel paper, negotiable and other instruments, securities, deposit accounts, safe deposit boxes, accounts receivable, general intangibles, property subject to pending actions, final money judgments, and personalty in estates of decedents. Is this description legally sufficient? Yes. The property description requirements for property of individual defendants do not prevent a plaintiff from targeting for attachment everything an individual defendant owns. The purpose of the requirement is to enable the defendant to determine whether he or she desires to make a claim of exemption as to that property [Bank of America v. Salinas Nissan, Inc. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 260, 264, 267-268, 254 Cal. Rptr. 748] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Anticipate and Counter Objections. On the initialapplication for an RTAO, counsel should anticipate and counter all possible objections. While the plaintiff may reapply for a writ of attachment, the plaintiff may be limited to presenting only new facts that were unavailable at the time of the first application [see Film Packages, Inc. v. Brandywine Film Productions, Ltd. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 824, 827-830 & n.3, 238 Cal. Rptr. 623] .

[3] Supporting Papers

The application must be supported by an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) showing that on the facts presented, the plaintiff would be entitled to a judgment on the claim on which the attachment is based [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.030; see 62.13[2]].

[4] Service on Defendant

The defendant must be served with all of the following [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.040]:

- A copy of the summons and complaint.
- A notice of the application and hearing [§ 62.30[5]].
- A copy of the application and of any affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) in support of the application.
- A copy of the temporary protective order, if one has been granted.

If the defendant has not appeared in the action, these documents must be personally served. If the defendant has appeared, these documents must be served in the same manner and at the same time as notices of motions generally [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.040(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a)(1), (b); see generally Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers]. Thus, all moving and supporting papers must be served and filed at least 16 court days before the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300]. The moving and supporting papers served must be a copy of the papers filed or to be filed with the court. If, however, the notice is served by mail, the 16-day notice period must be increased by [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)]:

- 5 calendar days, if the place of mailing and the place of address are within the State of California.
- 10 calendar days, if either the place of mailing or the place of address is outside the State of California but within the United States.
- 20 calendar days, if either the place of mailing or the place of address is outside the United States.

If the notice is served by facsimile transmission, Express Mail, or another method of delivery providing for overnight delivery, the required 16-day period of notice before the hearing must be increased by two calendar days [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)]. An extension of two court days, as opposed to calendar days, may apply in case of electronic service made pursuant to a local rule adopted under Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6); for discussion, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers, § 518.41[8]].

[5] Contents of Notice of Application and Hearing

The notice of application and hearing must inform the defendant of all of the following [see § 62.131]:

(1) A hearing will be held at a place and time to be specified in the notice, on plaintiff's application for an RTAO and writ of attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.050(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.040 (no order or writ of attachment may be issued without a hearing)].

(2) The order will be issued if the court finds that the plaintiff's claim is probably valid and the other requirements for issuing the order are established. The hearing is not for the purpose of determining whether the claim is actually valid. The determination of the actual validity of the claim will be made in subsequent proceedings in the action and will not be affected by the decisions at the hearing on the application for the order [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.050(b)].

(3) The amount to be secured by the attachment is determined pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 482.110 (amount for costs and attorney's fees), 483.010 (cases where attachment is authorized), 483.015 (amount to be secured by attachment), and 483.020 (amount in unlawful detainer proceeding), which must be summarized in the notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.050(c)].

(4) If an RTAO is issued, a writ of attachment will be issued to attach the property described in the plaintiff's application unless the court determines that the property is exempt from attachment, or that its value clearly exceeds the amount necessary to satisfy the amount to be secured by the attachment. However, additional writs of attachment may be issued to attach other nonexempt property of the defendant on the basis of the RTAO [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.050(d)].

(5) If the defendant desires to oppose the issuance of the order, he or she must file with the court a notice of opposition [§ 62.30[6]] and supporting affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 484.060 not later than five court days prior to the date set for the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.050(e); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 484.060, 2015.5].

(6) If the defendant claims that all or part of the property described in the application is exempt from attachment, he or she must include the claim in the notice of opposition filed and served [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.060 and discussion under 62.30[6]], or fileand serve a separate claim of exemption with respect to the property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.070 and discussion under § 62.30[7]]. If he or she does not do so, the claim of exemption will be barred in the absence of a showing of a change in circumstances occurring after the expiration of the time for claiming an exemption [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.050(f)].

(7) The defendant may obtain a determination at the hearing whether real or personal property not described in the application, or real property described in the application, is exempt from attachment by including the claim in the notice of opposition [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.060] or by filing and serving a separate claim of exemption with respect to the property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.070]. The failure to claim an exemption for property not described in the application will not, however, preclude the defendant from making a claim of exemption with respect to the property at a later time [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.050(g)].

(8) Either the defendant, the defendant's attorney, or both may be present at the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.050(h)].

(9) The defendant may seek the advice of an attorney, in the form of the following mandatory statement: "You may seek the advice of an attorney as to any matter connected with the plaintiff's application. The attorney should be consulted promptly so that the attorney may assist you before the time set for hearing" [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.050(i)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Ascertain Local Practice. Local practice must be ascertained and adhered to. Check to see if the particular court requires that the proof of service be filed by a certain date, where it should be filed, that the parties submit a "Separate Statement" (as in Los Angeles County Superior Court Central), or that the parties must meet and confer and file a declaration relating thereto (as in Orange County Superior Court pursuant to Orange Co. Coordinated Trial Ct. Rules, Rule 441).

[6] Notice of Opposition and Reply

If the defendant wishes to oppose an RTAO sought by the plaintiff or objects to the amount sought to be secured by the attachment, he or she must file and serve the plaintiff with a notice of opposition no later than five court days prior to the date set for the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.060(a)].

The notice of opposition must [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.060(a)]:

- State the grounds on which the defendant opposes the issuance of the order or objects to the amount sought to be secured by the attachment.

- Be accompanied by an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) supporting any factual issues.

- Be accompanied by a memorandum of points and authorities supporting any legal issues raised.

For a form of opposition, see § 62.138.

CAUTION:
Notice of Opposition Filing. If the defendant fails to file a notice of opposition within the time prescribed, he or she is not permitted to oppose the issuance of the order [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.060(a)].

The plaintiff may file and serve on the opposing party a reply two court days prior to the date set for the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.060(c)].

[7] Claim of Exemption by Defendant

[a] Exempt Property

The following property is exempt from attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 487.020]:

- Property exempt from enforcement of a money judgment.

- Property necessary for support of defendant or defendant's family.

- Defendant's earnings.

- Property not subject to attachment under Code Civ. Proc. § 487.010.

For further discussion of these exemptions, see § 62.12[4].

[b] Methods for Claiming Exemption

If a defendant filing a notice of opposition wants to claim an exemption, there are two ways in which the exemption may be claimed:

- The defendant may include the claim in the notice of opposition [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.060(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.070;§ 62.30[6]].

- Alternatively, when real or personal property has been levied on pursuant to a writ of attachment issued on an ex parte application, a claim of exemption may be made within 30 days after the levying officer serves the defendant with the notice of attachment describing the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.530; see Bank of America v. Salinas Nissan, Inc. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 260, 269-270, 254 Cal. Rptr. 748] .

[c] Procedure for Claiming Exemption for Real or Personal Property

The defendant may claim an exemption as to real or personal property levied on pursuant to the ex parte hearing procedure [see Code Civ. Proc.§ 485.010 et seq.] by following the procedure set forth for claiming exemptions from post-judgment levies [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.610(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 703.510 et seq.; see generally Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgements, § 254.40 et seq., regarding exemptions]. For this purpose, references to the "judgment debtor" are to be deemed references to the defendant and references to the "judgment creditor" are to be deemed references to the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.610(a)].

Different time periods for claiming the exemption, however, apply to ex parte attachment proceedings. Thus, the defendant must claim a personal property exemption not later than 30 days after the levying officer serves the defendant with the notice of attachment describing the property. However, the defendant may claim an exemption for real property at any time prior to the entry of judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 485.610(a), 487.030].

[d] Procedure for Claiming Exemption for Family Necessities

A defendant who is a natural person may claim an exemption for property necessary for the support of the defendant or his or her family supported in whole or in part by the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 487.020(b); see § 62.12[4]]. To claim the exemption, the defendant must follow one of two procedures within 30 days of service of the notice of attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.610(b)]:

- The procedure for claiming exemptions from post-judgment levies [see Code Civ. Proc. § 703.510 et seq.; see generally Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgements, § 254.40 et seq., regarding exemptions].

- The general notice of motion procedure for claiming exemptions under the Attachment Law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 482.100(c); see also §§ 62.146, 62.147], except that the requirement of showing changed circumstances does not apply.

A claim of exemption must [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.070(c)]:

- Describe the property claimed to be exempt.

- Specify the statute supporting the claim.

The claim of exemption must be accompanied by an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) supporting any factual issues and by a memorandum of points and authorities supporting any legal issues raised by the claim [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.070(d)]. The claim of exemption, together with any supporting affidavit or declaration and points and authorities, must be filed and served on the plaintiff not less than five court days before the date set for the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.070(e)].

For a form of claim of exemption, see § 62.138. For a form of declaration, see § 62.139.

[f] Loss of Right to Claim Exemption

With respect to personal property described in the plaintiff's application, the defendant will lose the right to claim the exemption if either of the following occur [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.070(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 482.100]:

- The defendant fails to make the claim.

- The defendant fails to prove that the property is exempt, unless the defendant can show a change of circumstances.

With respect to all real property and to personal property not described in the plaintiff's application, the failure to make the claim does not preclude the defendant from later claiming the exemption. If the defendant fails to prove that the real or personal property is exempt, however, he or she may not later claim an exemption unless a change in circumstances is shown [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.070(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 482.100].

PRACTICE TIP:

Application for Additional Writs. Although a writ of attachment issued after a noticed hearing is limited to the property described in the plaintiff's application, the plaintiff may subsequently apply ex parte for additional writs [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.510 et seq., and discussion under § 62.31[1]]. For protection from such future levies, the defendant should claim as exempt any property not described in the plaintiff's application [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.070(b)].

[g] Plaintiff's Opposition to Claim of Exemption

If the plaintiff wishes to oppose the claim of exemption, he or she must file and serve on the defendant, not less than two calendar days before the date set for the hearing, a notice of opposition, accompanied by an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) supporting any factual issues and points and authorities supporting any legal issues raised [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.070(f)]. For a form of notice of opposition to a claim of exemption, see § 62.145.

PRACTICE TIP:

Maximize Hearing Date. Plaintiff's counsel may create an impossible, or at least difficult, task for himself or herself by setting an attachment hearing for Monday or Tuesday. Plaintiff's counsel should set the hearing date in order to maximize effective reply time.

If the plaintiff files and serves a proper notice of opposition to the claim, the defendant has the burden of proving that the property is exempt from attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.070(g)].

If the plaintiff does not file and serve a notice of opposition [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.070(f); see Bank of America v. Salinas Nissan, Inc. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 260, 270, 254 Cal. Rptr. 748] :

- No writ of attachment may be issued as to the property claimed to be exempt.

- If all of the property described in the plaintiff's application is claimed to be exempt, no hearing may be held, no RTAO or writ of attachment may be issued, and any temporary protective orders immediately expire [see Code Civ. Proc. § 486.010 et seq.].

[8] Hearing on Application

[a] Readiness of Plaintiff

At the time set for hearing an application for a writ of attachment, the plaintiff must be ready to proceed. If the plaintiff is not ready, or has failed to properly comply with service requirements [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.040; § 62.30[4]], the court may either deny the application for the order or, for good cause shown, grant the plaintiff a continuance for a reasonable period. If a continuance is granted, the effective period of any protective order may be extended by the court for a period ending not more than 10 days after the new hearing date if the plaintiff shows a continuing need for the protective order [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.080(a)].

CAUTION:

Denial of Application. If the application is denied, the plaintiff risks losing the opportunity for an attachment without a showing of new facts or changed circumstances.

[b] Continuance of Hearing at Request of Defendant

The court may, in its discretion and for good cause shown, grant the defendant a continuance for a reasonable period to oppose the RTAO. If a continuance is granted, the court must extend the effective period of any protective order for a period of not more than 10 days after the new hearing date unless the defendant shows that the protective order should be modified or vacated [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.080(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 486.100].

[c] Findings Made by Court at Hearing

At the hearing, the court will issue an RTAO if it finds all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.090(a); see § 62.132]:

- The claim on which the attachment is based is one on which an attachment may be issued.
- The plaintiff has established the probable validity of the claim on which the attachment is based.
- The attachment is not sought for a purpose other than the recovery on the claim on which the attachment is based.
- The amount to be secured by attachment is greater than zero.

In making its findings, the court must consider the showing made by the parties appearing and make its determination based on the pleadings and other papers in the record. On good cause shown, however, the court may receive and consider at the hearing additional evidence, oral or documentary, and additional points and authorities, or it may continue the hearing for the production of additional evidence or points and authorities [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.090(a), (d)].

Additional Evidence Consideration Unlikely. Do not rely on the court's willingness to receive and consider additional evidence at the hearing. This is unlikely, especially in the busier courts.

If the order is issued, the court must state the amount to be secured by the attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.090(a)]. In addition, if the court finds that the defendant has failed to prove that all of the property sought to be attached is exempt from attachment, it must order a writ of attachment to be issued on the filing of an undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.090(b); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 489.210, 489.220].

If the court determines that all or part of the defendant's property is exempt from attachment, the RTAO must describe the exempt property and prohibit its attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.090(c)]. The defendant may claim an exemption for property other than the property sought to be attached by the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.070(b); § 62.30[7][f]].

[d] Effect of Court's Determinations

No determinations made by the court in a noticed hearing procedure [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.010 et seq.] may be considered in determining any issues in the principal action other than issues relevant to proceedings in the noticed hearing, nor may they be used to affect the rights of the plaintiff or defendant in any other action arising out of the same claim of the plaintiff or defendant. The court's determination in the noticed hearing must not be given in evidence or referred to at the trial of any such action [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.100].

[9] Defenses Not Affected

Neither the failure of the defendant to oppose the issuance of an RTAO under the noticed hearing provisions nor the defendant's failure to rebutany evidence produced by the plaintiff in connection with proceedings under those sections may constitute a waiver of any defense to plaintiff's claim in the principal action or any other action, or have any effect on the right of the defendant to produce or exclude evidence at the trial of any such action [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.110(a)].

Similarly, neither the failure of the plaintiff to oppose the issuance of an order reducing the amount to be secured by the attachment under the noticed hearing provisions nor the plaintiff's failure to rebut any evidence produced by the defendant in connection with proceedings under those sections constitute a waiver of any defense to the defendant's claim in the action or any other action, or have any effect on the right of the plaintiff to produce or exclude evidence at the trial of any such action [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.110(b)].

Any time an RTAO has been issued following a noticed hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.090] or the court has found that the plaintiff is entitled to an RTAO on a hearing following the issuance of an ex parte order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240], the plaintiff may apply for a writ of attachment by filing an application with the court in which the action is brought [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.310].

The purpose of the hearing in this case is to allow the defendant to establish a claim of exemption as to any personal property listed in the RTAO. Both the noticed hearing and ex parte procedure provide for the issuance of additional writs of attachment for property of the defendant if an RTAO has already been issued [see Law Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 484.310].

PRACTICE TIP:

When Additional Writ Procedures Necessary. The additional writ procedures are necessary only when the defendant is an individual. In an action against a corporation or partnership, the writ of attachment will generally refer to all corporate or all partnership property subject to attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 487.010(a), (b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.090]. Hence, in the latter cases, the only "additional" writs necessary will be in the same form.

The application must be executed under oath and must include all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.320; see § 62.130]:

- A statement that the plaintiff has been issued an RTAO under the noticed hearing procedure [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.010 et seq.] or that the court has found that the plaintiff is entitled to an RTAO under the ex parte hearing procedure [see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240].

- A statement of the amount to be secured by the attachment.

- A description of the property to be attached under the writ of attachment and a statement that the plaintiff is informed and believes that the property is subject to attachment. The description must be reasonably adequate to permit the defendant to identify the specific property sought to be attached [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.020(e)].

- A statement that the applicant has no information or belief that the claim is discharged or prosecution of the action stayed in a bankruptcy proceeding under Title 11 of the United States Code.

[2] Notice of Application for Additional Writ

An additional writ of attachment may be issued only after a hearing. At least 15 days prior to the hearing, the defendant must be served with both of the following [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.330]:

- A notice of application and hearing.

- A copy of the application.

The notice of application and hearing must inform the defendant of all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.340; see § 62.131]:

- The plaintiff has applied for a writ of attachment to attach the property described in the application.

- A hearing will be held at a place and at the time specified in the notice to determine whether the plaintiff is entitled to the writ.

- A writ of attachment will be issued to attach the property described in the plaintiff's application unless the court determines that the property is exempt from attachment or that its value clearly exceeds the amount necessary to satisfy the amount to be secured by the attachment.

- If the defendant claims that all or part of the property described in the application is exempt from attachment, the defendant may file with the court and serve on the plaintiff a claim of exemption with respect to the property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.350] not later than five days prior to the date set for hearing. If the defendant fails to make such a claim with respect to personal property, the defendant may not later claim the exemption in the absence of a showing of a change in circumstances occurring after the expiration of the time for claiming exemptions.

- Either the defendant or the defendant's attorney or both of them may be present at the hearing.

- The notice must also contain the following statement: "You may seek the advice of an attorney as to any matter connected with the plaintiff'sapplication. Such attorney should be consulted promptly so that the attorney may assist you before the time set for hearing."

[3] Claim of Exemption From Additional Writ

[a] Defendant's Claim

If the defendant claims that all or part of the property described in the plaintiff's application for an additional writ is exempt from attachment, the defendant may claim an exemption [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.350]. If the defendant fails to make the claim with respect to personal property or makes a claim with respect to real or personal property but fails to prove that the property is exempt, he or she may not later claim an exemption except for a change of circumstances [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.350; see Code Civ. Proc. § 482.100].

The claim of exemption must [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.350(b)]:

- Describe the property claimed to be exempt.
- Specify the statutory authority for the claim.

The claim of exemption must be accompanied by an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) supporting any factual issues raised by the claim and a memorandum of points and authorities supporting any legal issues raised [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.350(c)]. The claim of exemption, together with any supporting affidavits and points and authorities, must be filed and served on the plaintiff not less than five court days before the date set for the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.350(d)].

For a notice of claim of exemption, see § 62.138. For a form of declaration, see § 62.139.

[b] Plaintiff's Challenge to Claim of Exemption From Additional Writ

After the defendant files and serves a claim of exemption and not less than two calendar days before the date set for the hearing, the plaintiff may oppose the claim by filing and serving on the defendant a notice of opposition. The notice of opposition must be accompanied by an affidavit or declaration supporting any factual issues and a memorandum of points and authorities supporting any legal issues raised [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.360(a); see § 62.145].

If the plaintiff files and serves a proper notice of opposition to the claim of exemption, the defendant has the burden of proving that the property is exempt from attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.360(c)].

If the plaintiff does not file and serve a notice of opposition to a properly filed claim of exemption [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.350], no writ of attachment may be issued as to the property claimed to be exempt [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.360(b)]. If all of the property described in the plaintiff's application is claimed to be exempt and the plaintiff does not file and serve a notice of opposition, no hearing may be held and no writ of attachment may be issued [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.360(b)].

[4] Hearing and Issuance of Additional Writ

After considering the showing made by the parties [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.090, discussed under § 62.30[8][c]] and the plaintiff's filing of an undertaking [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 489.210, 489.220, discussed under § 62.37[1]], the court must order an additional writ of attachment to be issued if it finds both of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.370]:

- An RTAO has been issued after a noticed hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.010 et seq.] or the court has found that the plaintiff is entitled to an RTAO after an ex parte hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240].
- The defendant has failed to prove that all or part of the property sought to be attached is exempt from attachment.

For a form of RTAO after hearing and order for issuance of writ of attachment, see § 62.132.

At any time after the court has issued an RTAO under Code Civ. Proc. § 484.010 et seq. [see § 62.30[1]] or Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240 [see § 62.33[1]], the plaintiff may apply for a writ of attachment by filing an application with the court in which the action is brought [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.510(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.320].

The application must be accompanied by an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) showing that the property sought to be attached is not exempt from attachment. The affiant may base the affidavit or declaration on information and belief [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.510(b)].

For a form of application for an RTAO, see § 62.130.

[2] Findings at Hearing on Ex Parte Application

After examining the application and supporting affidavit or declaration and the plaintiff's filing of an undertaking, the court must order an additional writ of attachment if it finds both of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.520]:

- The court has issued an RTAO under Code Civ. Proc. § 484.010 et seq. [see § 62.30[1]] or found pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240 [see § 62.33[1]] that plaintiff is entitled to an RTAO under the ex parte procedure.

- The affidavit accompanying the application shows that all or part of the property sought to be attached is not exempt from attachment.

For a form of ex parte RTAO and order for issuance of writ of attachment, see § 62.133.

[3] Defendant's Claim of Exemption From Additional Writs on Ex Parte Application

The defendant may claim an exemption as to real or personal property levied on pursuant to an additional writ issued under the ex parte procedure [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.510 et seq.] by following the procedure provided for claiming exemptions from post-judgment levies [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.530(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 703.510 et seq.; see generally Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.40 et seq., regarding exemptions]. In these provisions, references to "the judgment debtor" are to be deemed references to the defendant, and references to "the judgment creditor" are to be deemed references to the plaintiff. The defendant must claim the exemption as to personal property, however, not later than 30 days after the levying officer serves the defendant with the notice of attachment describing the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.530(a)].

During the same 30-day period, the defendant may claim an exemption for the support of the defendant or the defendant's family [see Code Civ. Proc. § 487.020(b), and discussion under § 62.30[7][d]] by either [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.530(b)]:

- Following the procedure for claiming exemptions from post-judgment levies [see Code Civ. Proc. § 703.510 et seq.; see generally Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.40 et seq., regarding exemptions].

- Following the noticed motion procedures of the Attachment Law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 482.100(c); see also § 62.146], except that the requirement of showing changed circumstances [see Code Civ. Proc. § 482.100(a)] does not apply.

For a form of notice of claim of exemption, see § 62.138.

1. Obtaining Attachment or Temporary Protective Order

§ 62.33 Ex Parte Hearing Procedure

[1] Great or Irreparable Injury Requirement

Except as otherwise provided by statute, no RTAO or writ of attachment may be issued ex parte unless the plaintiff shows facts by affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) that he or she would suffer great or irreparable injury if the order were delayed until the matter could be heard on notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010(a)]. However, some statutes expressly permit an ex parte attachment without such a showing [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 492.010 et seq.; Harb. & Nav. Code § 495.1; Health & Safety Code § 11501; Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 6713, 8972, 11473, 12680, 19373, 30302, 32352].

[2] Grounds for Issuing Writ Ex Parte

[a] Danger That Property May Become Unavailable

The requirement of great or irreparable injury [see § 62.33[1]] is satisfied if the plaintiff shows that under the circumstances of the case, it may be inferred that there is a danger that the property sought to be attached would be concealed, substantially impaired in value, or otherwise made unavailable to levy if the order were delayed until the matter could be heard on notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010(b)(1)].

[b] Defendant Has Failed to Pay Debts

The requirement of great or irreparable injury also is satisfied if the plaintiff shows that, under the circumstances of the case, it may be inferred that the defendant has failed to pay the debt underlying the requested attachment, and the defendant is insolvent in the sense that the defendant is generally not paying his or her debts as those debts become due, unless the debts are subject to a bona fide dispute [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010(b)(2)].

If the plaintiff bases the writ solely on this ground, the defendant may request a review and the court must conduct a hearing within five court days after the plaintiff is served with notice of the defendant's request [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010(c)].

[c] Bulk Sales Notice Has Been Recorded

The requirement of great or irreparable injury also is satisfied if the plaintiff shows that a bulk sales notice has been recorded and published with respect to a bulk transfer by the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010(b)(3); see Com. Code § 6101 et seq.; see generally Ch. 270, Fraudulent Conveyances, § 270.100 et seq.].

Two limitations are provided for writs issued under this provision [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010(c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010(b)(3)]:

- The only property affected is property covered by the bulk sales notice or the proceeds of the sale of the property.

- In addition to any other service required by the Attachment Law, the writ must be served by the levying officer or the transferee or auctioneer identified by the bulk sales notice, not more than five calendar days after the levy of the writ.

[d] Escrow Opened Concerning Sale of Liquor License

The requirement of great or irreparable injury also is satisfied if the plaintiff shows that an escrow has been opened with respect to the sale by the defendant of a liquor license [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010(b)(4); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 24074; see generally Ch. 18, Alcoholic Beverage Licenses].

A writ issued solely under the liquor license provision must be limited to the plaintiff's pro rata share of the proceeds of the sale in escrow [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010(c)].

[e] Imminent Great or Irreparable Injury

The requirement of great or irreparable injury also is satisfied if the plaintiff shows any circumstance indicating that great or irreparable injury would result to the plaintiff if issuance of the order were delayed until the matter could be heard on notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010(b)(5)].

Neither a precarious financial condition nor a refusal to pay a disputed claim warrants an inference that a debtor will abscond with all his or her assets, or otherwise conceal them from the creditor [Western Steel & Ship Repair, Inc. v. RMI, Inc. (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 1108, 1114, 222 Cal. Rptr. 556] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Insufficient Evidence for Ex Parte Writ. In support of plaintiff's application for an ex parte writ of attachment, plaintiff's president files a declaration stating: "if [defendant] was given any notice at all of this hearing, [defendant] would take whatever steps were necessary to hide its assets so as to prevent attachment of these assets." The declaration also claims that the defendant is currently unable to pay plaintiff's claim. Is this sufficient evidence to warrant a writ of attachment? No. Evidence of defendant's financial condition or refusal to pay a disputed claim is not sufficient. Plaintiff would need to present evidence, for example, of defendant's past dishonesty, failure to meet obligations, or concealment of assets [Western Steel & Ship Repair, Inc. v. RMI, Inc. (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 1108, 1114, 222 Cal. Rptr. 556] .

[3] Ex Parte Application

[a] Requirements

On or after the filing of the complaint, the plaintiff may apply ex parte for an RTAO and a writ of attachment by filing an application for the order and writ with the court in which the action is brought [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.210(a); see § 62.130].

The application must satisfy the requirements of the noticed hearing application [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.210(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.020; see 62.30[1][a]]. In addition, the plaintiff must include a statement showing great or irreparable injury if the noticed hearing procedure is followed [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.210(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010; see also § 62.33[1]].

[b] Papers Supporting Ex Parte Application

The application must be supported by an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) showing all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.210(c)]:

- On the facts presented, the plaintiff would be entitled to a judgment on the claim on which the attachment is based.

- The plaintiff would suffer great or irreparable injury if issuance of the order were delayed until the matter could be heard on notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010].

- The property sought to be attached is not exempt from attachment.

When attachment is sought because of the defendant's alleged failure to pay debts [see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010(b)(2); see also § 62.33[2][b]], the plaintiff's affidavit or declaration must state all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 485.010(b)(2), 485.530]:

- The plaintiff would suffer great or irreparable injury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010] if the writ were delayed until a noticed hearing could be held.

- The property sought to be attached is not exempt.

- The known undisputed debts of the defendant, that the debts are not subject to bona fide dispute, and the basis for plaintiff's determination that the defendant's debts are undisputed.

The affidavit or declaration supporting the claim that the defendant's property is not exempt [see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.210(c)(3)] may be based on the affiant's information and belief [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.210(d)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Temporary Protective Order Application. Any ex parte application for a writ of attachment should be accompanied by an application for a temporary protective order. While courts often deny ex parte attachment applications, they usually will issue a temporary protective order that restrains any transfer of the property sought to be attached pending a noticed attachment hearing.

[4] Findings and Order on Ex Parte Application

After examining the application and supporting affidavit or declaration, the court must issue an RTAO if it finds all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.220(a)]:

- The claim on which the attachment is based is one on which an attachment may be issued.

- The plaintiff has established the probable validity of the claim on which the attachment is based.

- The attachment is not sought for a purpose other than recovery on the claim on which the attachment is based.

- The affidavit or declaration accompanying the application shows that all or part of the property sought to be attached in the application is not exempt from attachment.

- The plaintiff will suffer great or irreparable injury if the order is delayed until the matter can be heard on notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010].

- The amount to be secured by attachment is greater than zero.

The RTAO must state the amount to be secured by the attachment and order a writ of attachment to be issued after plaintiff files an undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.220(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 489.210, 489.220]. If the court denies the plaintiff's application, it may issue a temporary protective order [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.220(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 486.030, and discussion under § 62.35[2]].

If the court finds that the application and supporting affidavit or declaration do not satisfy the "great or irreparable injury" requirement [see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010; see also § 62.33[1]], it must so state and deny the order [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.220(b)]. If applicable, the court must also state that the failure to satisfy the great or irreparable injury requirement is the only ground for denial. In that case, the denial does not preclude the plaintiff from applying for an RTAO and writ of attachment under the noticed hearing procedure with the same affidavits and supporting papers [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.220(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.010 et seq.].

[5] Discovery Concerning Defendant's Property

If the court issues a right to attach order, a plaintiff may discover, through any means provided for by and subject to the protections included in the Discovery Act (Code Civ. Proc. § 2016 et seq. (Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.010 et seq. effective July 1, 2005)), the identity, location, and value of property in which the defendant has an interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.230]. For discussion and forms relating to discovery methods and protective orders, see Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing .

[6] Reconsideration of Order

A party may bring a subsequent motion for a right to attach order after a previous motion has been denied [Film Packages, Inc. v. Brandywine Film Productions, Ltd. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 824, 829, 238 Cal. Rptr. 623] . In the subsequent motion the movant may, for example, present a fuller statement of facts previously furnished, explain the meaning of previously furnished facts, or allege new facts [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1008; FilmPackages, Inc. v. Brandywine Film Productions, Ltd. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 824, 829-830, 238 Cal. Rptr. 623] . It is not required that the movant state facts materially different from those presented on a previously denied application when subsequent events such as depositions shed new light in the case [Film Packages, Inc. v. Brandywine Film Productions, Ltd. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 824, 826 and n.3, 238 Cal. Rptr. 623 (no new facts, but new evidence of the meaning of the facts were produced stemming from depositions taken after previous attachment hearing); see generally Ch. 374, Motions to Reconsider and Renewed Motions].

[7] Defendant's Application to Terminate Ex Parte Order and Writ

[a] By Motion

Any defendant whose property has been attached by a writ issued ex parte may apply for an order [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240(a)]:

- To set aside the RTAO.
- To quash the writ of attachment.
- To release any property levied on.
- To reduce the amount secured by the attachment.

To apply, the defendant must file a notice of motion with the court and serve it on the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240(a)]. The notice of motion must do the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240(b)]:

- State the grounds on which the motion is based.
- Be accompanied by an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) supporting any factual issues.
- Be accompanied by a memorandum of points and authorities supporting any legal issues raised.

The motion may not be based on the ground that the plaintiff would not have suffered great or irreparable injury if issuance of the order had been delayed until the matter could have been heard on notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010].

For a form of application and a form of order to set aside an RTAO, see §§ 62.142 and 62.143.

[b] Hearing on Motion to Terminate

At the hearing on the motion, the court must determine whether the plaintiff is entitled to the RTAO or whether the amount to be secured by the attachment should be reduced. However, no specific findings are called for. The court's determinations must be made on the basis of the pleadings and other papers in the record. However, on good cause shown, the court may receive and consider additional oral or documentary evidence and points and authorities. The court may also continue the hearing for theproduction of additional evidence or points and authorities [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240(d)].

If the court finds that the plaintiff is not entitled to the RTAO, it must order it set aside, the writ of attachment quashed, and any property levied upon under the writ released. If the court finds that the plaintiff is entitled to the RTAO, the plaintiff may apply for additional writs under the noticed hearing procedure or the ex parte procedure [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240(c); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 484.310 et seq., 484.510 et seq.].

Hearing on a reconsideration motion takes precedence over all other civil matters on the calendar of that day except older matters of the same character [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240(e)].

[1] Application

At any time after an RTAO and writ of attachment have been issued under the ex parte procedure [see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.210;§ 62.33[4]], the plaintiff may:

- Apply for additional writs of attachment by filing an application with the court in which the action is brought [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.510; see § 62.130].

- Apply for a new order and writ under the noticed hearing procedure [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.010 et seq.; see also § 62.30[1]].

When there has been a reconsideration hearing and the plaintiff's right to attach has been upheld [see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240;§ 62.33[6]], the plaintiff may [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240(c)]:

- Apply for an additional writ under the noticed hearing procedure [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.310 et seq.; see also § 62.31[1]].

- Apply for an additional writ under the ex parte hearing procedure [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.510 et seq.; see also § 62.32[1]].

[2] Contents and Supporting Papers

An application for an additional writ must be executed under oath and must include all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.520]:

- A statement that the plaintiff has been issued an RTAO and writ of attachment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.210 et seq.].

- A statement of the amount to be secured by the attachment under the right to attach order.

- A description of the property to be attached under the writ of attachment and a statement that the plaintiff is informed and believes that the property is not exempt from attachment. The statement must satisfy the requirements for a description under the noticed hearing procedure [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.020;§ 62.30[2]].

- A statement showing that the "great or irreparable injury requirement" has been satisfied [see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010; see also § 62.33[1]].

The application must be supported by an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) showing both of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.530(a)]:

- The plaintiff would suffer great or irreparable injury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010] if the issuance of the writ of attachment were delayed until the matter could be heard on notice.

- The property sought to be attached is not exempt from attachment.

The supporting affidavit or declaration may be based on information and belief [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.530(b)].

[3] Court Findings on Application After Ex Parte Hearing

After examining the application and supporting affidavit or declaration, the court must issue a writ of attachment if it finds all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.540]:

- A right to attach order has been issued in the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.210 et seq.].

- The affidavit or declaration accompanying the application shows that all or part of the property sought to be attached is not exempt from attachment.

- The plaintiff will suffer great or irreparable injury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010; see also § 62.33[1]] if the writ of attachment is delayed until the matter can be heard on notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.540].

Before the writ of attachment may issue, the plaintiff must file an undertaking [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 489.210, 489.220; see also § 62.37[1]].

§ 62.35 Temporary Protective Order

[1] Application Under Noticed Hearing Procedure

At the time of applying for an RTAO under the noticed hearing procedure [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.010 et seq.], the plaintiff may apply for a temporary protective order by filing an application for the order with the court in which the action is brought [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.010(a)].

The application must specify the relief requested and must be supported by an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) showing that the plaintiff would suffer great or irreparable injury if the temporary order were not issued [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.010(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010; see also § 62.33[1]]. A supporting affidavit or declaration may be based on information and belief [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.010(b)].

An application for a temporary protective order may accompany an application for a right to attach order and writ of attachment under the noticedhearing procedure [see Law Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 486.010], in which case the court will have both applications from which to make the required findings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 486.020]. A temporary protective order may also be issued on the court's own motion in lieu of the ex parte issuance of a writ of attachment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 486.030; see also § 62.111[2][d]].

For a form of application for temporary protective order and temporary protective order, see §§ 62.130 and 62.135.

[2] Temporary Protective Order on Denial of Writ Under Ex Parte Hearing Procedure

After the plaintiff has applied for an RTAO and writ of attachment under the ex parte hearing procedure [see § 62.33[1]], the court may in its discretion deny the application for the order if it determines that although the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 485.220 are satisfied [§ 62.33[4]], a temporary protective order would be in the interest of justice and equity to the parties. In making the determination, the court takes into account [Code Civ. Proc. §

- The effect on the defendant of issuing a writ of attachment ex parte.
- The effect on the plaintiff of issuing the temporary protective order instead of the writ.
- Other factors that bear on equity and justice under the circumstances of the particular case.

PRACTICE TIP:

TPO Preserves Status Quo. A court will normally preserve the status quo with a temporary restraining order rather than an RTAO. For this reason, alternative orders should be prepared, with the temporary restraining order presented if the court denies the right to attach order.

After examining the application, supporting affidavit or declaration, and other papers on record, the court must issue a temporary protective order if it finds all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.020]:

- The claim on which the application for attachment is based is one on which an attachment may be issued.
- The plaintiff has established the probable validity of the claim on which the application for the attachment is based.
- The order is not sought for a purpose other than the recovery on the claim on which the application for the attachment is based.
- The plaintiff will suffer great or irreparable injury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010; see also § 62.33[1]] if the temporary protective order is not issued.

For a form of temporary protective order, see § 62.135.

[3] Provisions in Temporary Protective Order

[a] Scope of Order

A temporary protective order must contain provisions that the court determines would be in the interest of justice and equity to the parties, taking into account the effects on both the defendant and the plaintiff under the circumstances of the particular case [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.040]. Within this general restriction, a temporary protective order may prohibit the transfer by the defendant of any of the defendant's property in California that is subject to the levy of a writ of attachment. The order must describe the property in a manner adequate to permit the defendant to identify the property subject to the order [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.050(a)].

The order may not prohibit the defendant from transferring, in the ordinary course of business, inventory or farm products held for sale. However, the order may impose appropriate restrictions on the disposition of the proceeds from that type of transfer [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.050(b)].

The temporary protective order must state the amount sought to be secured by the attachment under the application for the RTAO, and the plaintiff must file a proper undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.020; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 489.210, 489.220; see also § 62.37[1]].

[b] Defendant's Right to Issue Certain Checks

A temporary protective order may not prevent the defendant from issuing any number of checks in any amount for the following purposes [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.060(b)]:

- Payment of any payroll expense, including fringe benefits, taxes, and premiums for workers' compensation and unemployment insurance, falling due in the ordinary course of business prior to the levy of a writ of attachment.

- Payment for goods delivered to the defendant C.O.D. for use in his or her trade, business, or profession.

- Payment of taxes if necessary to avoid penalties that will accrue if there is any further delay in payment.

- Payment of reasonable legal fees and reasonable costs and expenses required for the representation of the defendant in the action.

In addition, the defendant may issue any number of checks for any purpose as long as the total amount of the checks does not exceed the greater of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.060(c)]:

- The amount by which the total amount on deposit exceeds the sum of the amount sought to be secured by the attachment and the amounts of permitted checks [see Code Civ. Proc. § 486.060(b)].

- $1,000.

The statutory authorization to issue checks under Code Civ. Proc. § 486.060 applies to any of the defendant's accounts in a financial institution in California. Furthermore, it applies regardless of any terms to the contrary in the temporary protective order [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.060(a)].

[4] Notice of Order and Persons Bound

If the court issues a temporary protective order in lieu of an ex parte RTAO and writ of attachment, the plaintiff's ex parte application must be treated as an application under the noticed hearing procedure [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.010 et seq.]. The plaintiff must then comply with the service requirements under the noticed hearing procedure [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.030(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.040;§ 62.30[4]].

A temporary protective order must be personally served on the defendant together with certain documents [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.080], including the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.040]:

- A copy of the summons and complaint.

- A notice of application and hearing.

- A copy of the application and of any affidavit or declaration in support of the application.

PRACTICE TIP:

Immediate Service of Order. Have your process server ready to make immediate service when an ex parte RTAO or temporary protective order is issued.

In general, a temporary protective order binds only the defendant whether or not any other person knows of or is served with a copy of it [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.070]. However, the lien created by a temporary protective order continues after transfer or encumbrance of the property, except for the transfer or encumbrance of personal property to certain persons [see Code Civ. Proc. § 486.110; see also § 62.35[5]].

[5] Creation, Perfection, and Termination of Lien

The service on the defendant of a temporary protective order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 486.080] creates a lien on any property, or its proceeds, that is described in the order, owned by the defendant at the time of the service, and subject to attachment. The lien continues notwithstanding the transfer or encumbrance of the property subject to the lien, except when the transfer or encumbrance is made to certain persons, such as a buyer in the ordinary course of business, or a holder in due course of a negotiable instrument [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.110(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 697.740].

The lien terminates on the date of expiration of the order except with respect to property levied on under a writ of attachment while the temporary protective order is in effect [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.110(b)].

Liens created by temporary protective order or attachment within 90 days of filing of a bankruptcy petition or an assignment for the benefit of creditors are automatically terminated [Code Civ. Proc. § 493.030].

NOTE:

Date of Attachment Lien. If a temporary protective order is served more than 90 days before bankruptcy, and attachment is within 90 days, there is still no preference, because the creation of the attachment lien by levy relates back to the date of the temporary protective order [In re Wind Power Systems, Inc. (9th Cir. 1988) 841 F.2d 288, 293 ; see § 62.13[9]].

[6] Modification or Vacation of Order

The court may modify or vacate a temporary protective order if it determines that the action would be in the interest of justice and equity to the parties. In making its determination, the court takes into account the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.100]:

- The effect on the defendant of the continuance of the original order.
- The effect on the plaintiff of modifying or vacating the order.
- Any other factors.

The court may modify or vacate a temporary protective order either on an ex parte application of the defendant or, if the court so orders, after a noticed hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.100].

For a form of application for an order to modify or vacate a temporary protective order and a form of order, see §§ 62.136 and 62.137.

[7] Expiration of Order

Except as otherwise provided in the Attachment Law, the temporary protective order expires at the earlier of the following times [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.090]:

- Forty days after the issuance of the order or on an earlier date if prescribed by the court in the order.
- As to specific property described in the order, when a levy of attachment on that property is made by the plaintiff.

If a continuance is granted under the noticed hearing procedure, any temporary order in effect may be extended up to 10 days after the new hearing date [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.080].

§ 62.36 Nonresident Attachment

[1] Availability

An attachment may be issued in any action for the recovery of money brought against any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.010]:

- A natural person who does not reside in California.
- A foreign corporation not qualified to do business in California [see Corp. Code § 2101 et seq.].
- A foreign partnership that has not filed a designation of agent [see Corp. Code § 15800].

Attachment against nonresidents is broader in scope than that permitted by the general attachment provisions, which limit attachment to actions "on a claim or claims for money, each of which is based upon a contract, express or implied, where the total amount of the claim or claims is a fixed or readily ascertainable amount not less than five hundred dollars..." [see Code Civ. Proc. § 483.010(a)]. This means that a resident's property that would be exempt from attachment is attachable in the case of a nonresident until such time as the nonresident has filed a general appearance.

For a discussion of what property of a nonresident may be attached, see § 62.12[3][e].

PRACTICE TIP:

Arbitration of International Commercial Disputes. An attachment may be an effective tool to encourage arbitration of international commercial disputes. A party to an arbitration agreement regarding international commercial disputes may seek interim protective measures before or during arbitration proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.91], including an order of attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1297.93(a)]. For further discussion of arbitration of international commercial disputes, see Ch. 35, Arbitration and Conciliation of International Commercial Dispute .

[2] Application for Nonresident Attachment

On or after filing a complaint, the plaintiff may apply for an RTAO and a writ of attachment with the court in which the action is brought [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.020(a); see § 62.130].

The application must satisfy the requirements for applications under the noticed hearing procedure [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.020; see also Obtaining Writ § 62.111[2]], and must be supported by an affidavit or declaration showing all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.020(b)]:

- The action is for the recovery of money and is brought against an appropriate defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 492.010; see also § 62.36[1]].

- The plaintiff on the facts presented would be entitled to a judgment on the claim on which the attachment is based.

- The property sought to be attached is subject to attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.040; see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.300 et seq.].

Facts in required affidavits or declarations must be set forth with particularity [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.040] but may be based on information and belief [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.020(c)].

[3] Court Findings on Nonresident Attachment

After examining the application and the supporting affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5), the court must issue an RTAO and writ of attachment if it finds all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.030(a)]:

- The claim on which the attachment is based is one on which an attachment may be issued.

- The plaintiff has established the probable validity of the claim on which the attachment is based.

- The defendant is a proper defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 492.010; see also § 62.36[1]].

- The attachment is not sought for a purpose other than the recovery on the claim on which the attachment is based.

- The affidavit or declaration accompanying the application shows that all or part of the property sought to be attached is subject to attachment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 492.040].

- The amount to be secured by attachment is greater than zero.

The RTAO must state the amount to be secured by the attachment, and the plaintiff must file a proper undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.030(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 489.210, 489.220].

For a form of ex parte RTAO and order for issuance of writ of attachment against a nonresident's property, see § 62.134.

[4] Denial of Order for Nonresident Attachment

If the court finds that the application and supporting affidavit or declaration do not satisfy the requirements for nonresident attachment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 492.010 et seq.], it must so state and deny the order. If denial is solely on the ground that the plaintiff has not established that the defendant is a proper defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 492.010], the court must so state. In that case, the denial does not preclude the plaintiff from applying for an RTAO and writ of attachment under the noticed hearing procedure for obtaining writs of attachment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.010 et seq.] using the same affidavits and supporting papers [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.030(b)].

[5] Setting Aside RTAO and Quashing Writ for Nonresident Attachment

Any defendant whose property has been attached under the nonresident attachment provisions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 492.010 et seq.] may apply to set aside the order, to quash the writ of attachment, and to release any property levied upon under the writ. To apply, the defendant must file with the court, and serve on the plaintiff, a notice of motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.050(a)] which must [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.050(b)]:

- State the grounds on which the motion is based.
- Be accompanied by an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) supporting any factual issues.
- Be accompanied by points and authorities supporting any legal issues raised.

If the defendant has filed a general appearance in the action, the RTAO must be set aside unless the plaintiff shows that the right to attach is authorized by a provision other than the basic nonresident attachment provision [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.050(c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 492.010].

For a form of application and an order to set aside an RTAO, see §§ 62.142 and 62.143.

[b] Hearing and Determination of Motion to Set Aside

The court's determination of the motion to set aside the RTAO must be made on the basis of the pleadings and other papers in the record. On good cause shown, however, the court may receive and consider additional evidence, oral or documentary, and additional points and authorities. The court may also continue the hearing for the production of additional evidence or points and authorities [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.050(e)]. The hearing must take precedence over all other civil matters on the calendar of that day except older matters of the same character [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.050(f)].

At the hearing, the court must determine whether the plaintiff is entitled to an RTAO. If the court finds that the plaintiff is entitled to an RTAO, the attachment must continue in effect [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.050(d)]. If the defendant has filed a general appearance, however, only nonexempt property may be levied on and exempt property previously levied on must be released [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.050(d); see Code Civ. Proc. § 492.040].

If the court finds that the plaintiff is entitled to an RTAO, the plaintiff may apply for additional writs under the noticed hearing or the ex parte hearing procedures [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.050(d); see § 62.32[1] et seq., and § 62.32 et seq.]. If the court finds that the plaintiff is not so entitled, it must order the RTAO set aside, the writ of attachment quashed, and any property levied on under the writ released [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.050(d)].

[6] Additional Writs Against Nonresident's Property

At any time after an RTAO and writ of attachment have been issued against a nonresident's property, but before the hearing on any motion to set aside and quash, the plaintiff may apply for an additional writ of attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.060; see Code Civ. Proc. § 492.050]. The application must be filed with the court in which the action is brought [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.060].

The application must be executed under oath and must include all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.070; see §§ 62.130, 62.131]:

- A statement that the plaintiff has been issued an RTAO and writ of attachment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 492.030].

- A statement of the amount to be secured by the attachment.

- A description of the property to be attached under the writ of attachment and a statement that the plaintiff is informed and believes that the property is subject to attachment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 492.040]. The description must satisfy the requirements for descriptions of property under the noticed hearing procedure [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.020; see 62.30[1] et seq.].

[b] Determination Regarding Additional Nonresident Writs

The court must examine the application and supporting affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) and order a writ of attachment to be issued if it finds both of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.090]:

- An RTAO has been issued in the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 492.030].

- The affidavit or declaration accompanying the application shows that all or a portion of the property sought to be attached is subject to attachment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 492.040].

Before the writ is issued, the plaintiff must also file an appropriate undertaking [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 489.210, 489.220; see also § 62.37[1]].

§ 62.37 Undertaking Required Before Writ, Temporary Protective Order, or Lien Order Issued

[1] Filed by Plaintiff

Before a writ of attachment, temporary protective order, or order permitting creation of a lien pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 491.415(b)[see § 62.47[1]] is issued, the plaintiff must file an undertaking to pay the defendant any amount the defendant may recover for wrongful attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.210; Vershbow v. Reiner (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 879, 882-883, 282 Cal. Rptr. 684] .

Unless the surety on the undertaking is an admitted surety insurer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.120], all undertakings must be presented to a proper court for approval. On approval by the court, the undertaking must be filed with the court in which the action is pending [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.060(a), (b)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Proper Court For Undertaking. Code Civ. Proc. § 489.060 implies that a proper court for presenting an undertaking may be different from the court in which the action seeking the attachment is pending. This language predates an amendment to another section [see former Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310] that permitted a defendant to submit an undertaking in lieu of property being attached to a court in a county separate from the county where the action was pending [see Law Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 489.060]. The Law Revision Commission Comment for Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310 (1976) makes it clear that the proper court for submitting an undertaking is, in all cases, the court where the action is pending.

The Bond and Undertaking Law (Code Civ. Proc. § 995.010 et seq.) applies to bonds given under the Attachment Law unless the Attachment Law provides a different rule or is inconsistent [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.010; see generally Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings, § 538.40 et seq.].

For a form of undertaking by personal sureties, see § 62.141.

[2] Amount Prescribed by Statute

Unless otherwise ordered, the amount of an undertaking is $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.220(a)].

If, on objection to the undertaking, the court determines that the probable recovery for wrongful attachment exceeds the amount of the undertaking, it must order the amount of the undertaking increased to the amount it determines to be the probable recovery [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.220(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Have Undertaking Ready. In order to avoid delay, the plaintiff should have an undertaking ready in the standard amount for submittal to the court whenever an ex parte or noticed hearing is held at which a temporary protective order or writ of attachment is sought.

[3] Undertaking on Appeal of RTAO

A defendant may appeal from an order granting an RTAO [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a)(5) (appeal other than in limited civil case), 904.2(f) (appeal in limited civil case)]. There is no specific requirement that a defendant post a bond or furnish an undertaking in this regard. However, to secure a release of the property attached, the appealing defendant must furnish an undertaking in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310.

If a plaintiff desires to continue the effect of an attachment pending its appeal from a judgment in favor of the defendant, Code Civ. Proc. §§ 921 and 489.410 control the required amount of the undertaking. Pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 921, the amount of the undertaking on appeal, absent a motion by respondent as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 489.410, must be double the amount of the debt claimed by the appellant. At any time after entry of judgment, but before perfection of an appeal under Code Civ. Proc. § 921, the defendant may move for an order increasing the amount of the original undertaking as is justified by the detriment to be anticipated by continuing the attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.410(a)]. A defendant would make this motion if the defendant believes a showing can be made that the undertaking provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 921 would be insufficient. Code Civ. Proc. § 921 allows a respondent an additional chance to increase the amount of the undertaking on a motion of the trial court made within 60 days after the perfecting of the appeal. For forms of motion to continue an attachment in force after judgment, or to increase an undertaking on attachment after judgment, see Ch. 43, Appeal: Stay of Proceedings .

If a defendant appeals a final judgment in favor of a plaintiff, the defendant may file a sufficient undertaking on appeal. The attachment would be released after the respondent's failure to object to the amount of the undertaking in a timely manner [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.420].

§ 62.38 Levy on Writ of Attachment by Levying Officer

[1] Transmittal of Writ and Instructions to Levying Officer and Contents of Writ

A writ of attachment must be directed to a levying officer in the county in which property of the defendant described in the writ may be located and to any registered process server [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.020(a)]. A "levying officer" is a sheriff, or marshal who is directed to execute a writ or order under the Attachment Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 481.140]. The levying officer must be located in the county in which the defendant's property is located [Pacific Decision Sciences Corporation v. Superior Court (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1100, 1108-1109, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 104 (writ ofattachment directed to levying officer in Orange County not valid to attach money on deposit in Florida bank and owed by New Jersey entities)].

The writ must include the following information [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.010]:

- The date of issuance.
- The title of the court that issued the writ and the cause and number of the action.
- The name and address of the plaintiff and the name and last known address of the defendant.
- The amount to be secured by the attachment.
- A description of the property to be levied on to satisfy the attachment.

For a form of writ of attachment, see § 62.170.

[2] Contents of Instructions

The plaintiff must give the levying officer written instructions containing the information needed or requested by the levying officer to comply with the provisions of the Attachment Law, including but not limited to the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.030(a)]:

- An adequate description of any property to be levied on.
- A statement as to whether or not the property is a dwelling.
- If the property is a dwelling, whether or not it is real or personal property.

The instructions must be signed by the plaintiff's attorney of record or by the plaintiff, if he or she does not have an attorney of record [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.030(a)].

If the levying officer is required under the Attachment Law to serve a writ, order, notice, or other paper on any person, the plaintiff also must include in the instructions to the levying officer the correct name and address of the person. The plaintiff must use reasonable diligence to ascertain the correct name and address. Unless the levying officer has actual knowledge that the name and address included in the instructions is incorrect, he or she must rely on the instructions in serving the writ, order, notice, or other paper on the person [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.040].

For a sample form of instructions, see § 62.173.

[3] Copy of Summons and Complaint

If a copy of the summons and complaint has not previously been served on the defendant, the plaintiff or his or her attorney of record must instruct the levying officer to serve the summons and complaint at the same time as the writ of attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.020(c)].

[4] Deposit of Costs by Plaintiff

Except as otherwise provided by law [see, e.g., Lab. Code § 101], the plaintiff must deposit a sum of money with the levying officer as a prerequisite to the performance of a duty under the Attachment Law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 481.010 et seq.]. The amount must be sufficient to pay the costs of performing the duty [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.050(a)(1)].

Except as otherwise provided by law, the plaintiff must deposit with the levying officer a sum of money sufficient to pay the costs of taking the property and keeping it safely for a period not to exceed 15 days. This requirement is a prerequisite to taking property into custody by the levying officer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.010 et seq.], whether by keeper or otherwise. If a longer period of custody is required, the levying officer must, from time to time, demand orally or in writing that the plaintiff deposit additional amounts to cover estimated costs for periods not to exceed 30 days each. A written demand may be mailed or delivered to the plaintiff, and the plaintiff must be given not less than three business days after receipt of the demand within which to comply. If the amount demanded is not paid within the time specified in the oral or written demand, the levying officer must release the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.050(a)(2)].

The levying officer is not liable for failure to take or hold property unless the plaintiff has fully complied with the advance deposit of costs provisions [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.050(b)].

[5] Service of Copy of Writ and Notice

[a] On Defendant

On or promptly after the time of levy, the levying officer must serve a copy of the writ of attachment and notice of attachment on the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.305]. For a form of notice of attachment, see § 62.171.

A notice of attachment must inform the person who is served with the attachment all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.060]:

- The capacity in which the person is notified.
- The specific property that is sought to be attached.
- The person's rights under attachment, including the right to make a third-party claim [see Code Civ. Proc. § 720.010 et seq.; see also Third-Party Claims in Attached Property, below].
- The person's duties under the attachment.

A notice of attachment must also advise the defendant that the undertaking has been filed and inform the defendant of his or her right to object to the undertaking on the following grounds [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.230(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.920]:

- The sureties are insufficient.
- The amount is insufficient.
- The bond is insufficient for any other cause.

A temporary protective order must include a comparable statement [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.230(b)].

[b] On Financial Institutions or Insurance Companies

The following organizations must be served a writ and notice of attachment at the office or branch that has actual possession of the levied-on property or deposit account [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 482.070, 684.110(c)]:

- A financial institution.
- A title insurance company [see Ins. Code § 12340.4].
- An underwritten title company [see Ins. Code § 12340.5].
- An industrial loan company [see Fin. Code § 18003; see Fin. Code § 18003.2 (statutory references to an industrial loan company mean an insurance premium finance agency as defined in Fin. Code § 18560)].

Service must be made on the officer, manager, or other person in charge of the office or branch at the time of service [Code Civ. Proc. § 684.110(c)].

[c] Failure to Serve, Post, or Mail Writ or Notice

In situations in which a copy of a writ of attachment and notice of attachment are required by statute to be posted, served on, or mailed to the defendant or another person [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 482.070, 488.305], failure to post, serve, or mail the copy of the writ and the notice does not affect the attachment lien created by the levy [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.120].

[6] Levy on Writ

[a] Required Compliance With Written Instructions

On receipt of the written instructions [§ 62.173[3]], the levying officer must levy the writ without delay. The levy must be carried out in the manner provided in the Attachment Law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.010 et seq.] on the property described in the writ or as much of the property clearly needed to satisfy the amount to be secured by the attachment. The levying officer is not liable for this determination if made in good faith [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.020(b)].

In general, the levying officer must act in accordance with the written instructions to the extent the actions are taken in conformance with the Attachment Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.030(b)]. Thus, the levying officer may rely on any information contained in the written instructions, except to the extent that he or she has actual knowledge that the information is incorrect [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.030(c); see Form 32].

[b] Taking Custody of Property

Except as otherwise provided by statute [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 700.070, 700.080], when a levying officer is directed to take property into custody, he or she may do so by any of the following methods [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.090]:

- Removing the property to a place of safekeeping.
- Installing a keeper.
- Otherwise obtaining possession and control.

[c] Officer's Lien for Costs

The levying officer has a special lien, dependent on possession, on personal property levied on in the amount of the levying officer's costs for which an advance has not been made [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.100].

[d] Levy on Particular Types of Property

The Attachment Law provides methods that the levying officer must follow in levying on certain types of property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.315 et seq.]. These procedures must be followed in levying on the following types of property:

- Real property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.315].
- Growing crops, timber to be cut, or minerals and the like, including oil and gas, to be extracted, or accounts receivable resulting from their sale at the wellhead or minehead [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.325].
- Tangible personal property in the possession or control of the defendant, unless otherwise provided [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.335; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 488.300 et seq.].
- Tangible personal property in the possession or control of a third party, unless otherwise provided [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.345; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 488.300 et seq.].
- Personal property in the custody of the levying officer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.355].
- Goods in the possession of a bailee [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.365].

- Equipment of a going business in the possession or under the control of the defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 488.375, 488.385].

- A vehicle or vessel for which a certificate of ownership has been issued by the Department of Motor Vehicles, or a mobile home or commercial coach for which a certificate of title has been issued by the Department of Housing and Community Development, if either is equipment of a going business in the possession or under the control of the defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.385].

- Farm products or inventory of a going business in the possession or under the control of the defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.395 (subject to exception that placement of a keeper in a business for the purpose of attaching tangible personal property consisting solely of money or equivalent proceeds of sales must be conducted in the same manner as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 700.070), Code Civ. Proc. § 488.405].

- Personal property used as a dwelling [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 488.415, 488.425].

- A vehicle or vessel for which a certificate of ownership has been issued by the Department of Motor Vehicles and is still in effect, or a mobile home or commercial coach for which a certificate of title has been issued by the Department of Housing and Community Development and is still in effect [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.425].

- Chattel paper [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.435].

- An instrument [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.440].

- A negotiable document of title [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.445].

- A security [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.450].

- A deposit account [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.455; Fin. Code § 6663].

- Property in a safe-deposit box [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.460].

- A deposit account or property in a safe-deposit box standing in the name of a person other than the defendant, either alone or together with other third persons [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.465].

- An account receivable or general intangible, unless otherwise provided [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.470; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 488.300 et seq.].

- A final money judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.480].

- The interest of a defendant in personal property in the estate of a decedent [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.485].

If a writ of attachment has been issued for personal property located in a private place of the defendant, the plaintiff and the levying officer must follow procedures under postjudgment enforcement provisions [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.070; see Code Civ. Proc. § 699.030]. For discussion and forms relating to these procedures, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.40 et seq.

[e] Return of Writ and Inventory

The levying officer to whom the writ of attachment is delivered must return the writ to the court from which the writ issued, together with a report of the levying officer's actions. The return must be made promptly in accordance with the plaintiff's instructions given to the officer at the time the writ is delivered, but in no event later than 60 days after the officer receives the writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.130(a)].

The levying officer must make a full inventory of property attached and return the inventory with the writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.130(b)].

§ 62.39 Levy on Writ of Attachment by Registered Process Server

[1] Deposit and Levy

A registered process server may levy under a writ of attachment on certain types of property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.080(a)]. Before such a levy, the registered process server must deposit a copy of the writ with the levying officer and pay a fee [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.080(b); see Gov. Code § 26721].

PRACTICE TIP:
Experienced Registered Process Server. If using a registered process server, be sure that person is experienced in the procedures to be followed.

To levy on property, a registered process server must do both of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.080(c)]:

- Comply with the applicable levy, posting, and service provisions of the Attachment Law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.300 et seq.].

- Request any third person served to give a garnishee's memorandum to the levying officer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.610; see § 62.42[1]].

[2] Post-Levy Filing and Procedures

Within five days after a levy by a registered process server, all of the following must be filed with the levying officer [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.080(d)]:

- The writ of attachment.

- A proof of service of the registered process server stating the manner of levy performed.

- Proof of service of the copy of the writ and notice of attachment on other persons [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.300 et seq.].

- Instructions in writing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.030; see § 62.173].

If the fee for service of process or notice has been paid [see Gov. Code § 26721], the levying officer must perform all other duties under the writ and return the writ to the court. If the registered process server does not comply with*Code Civ. Proc. § 488.080(b)* and (d), the levy is ineffective, and the levying officer is not required to perform any duties under the writ and may issue a release for any property sought to be attached. The levying officer is not liable for actions taken in conformance with the provisions of the Attachment Law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 481.010 et seq.] if the action is taken in reliance on information provided to the levying officer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.080(d)]. This immunity does not apply, however, to the extent that the levying officer has actual knowledge that the informationis incorrect. Nor does this rule limit any liability the plaintiff or registered process server may have if the levying officer acts on the basis of incorrect information [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.080(e); see also Limitations on Liability of Levying Officer and Registered Process Server, below].

The fee for services of a registered process server must be allowed as a recoverable cost [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.080(f); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(a)(4)(B); see generally Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.10 et seq.].

§ 62.40 Limitations on Liability of Levying Officer and Registered Process Server

A levying officer or registered process server is not liable for actions taken in conformance with the provisions of the Attachment Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 481.010 et seq.], including actions taken in reliance on information contained in the written instructions of the plaintiff, except to the extent the levying officer or registered process server has actual knowledge that the information is incorrect. This does not limit any liability the plaintiff may have if the levying officer or registered process server acts on the basis of incorrect information given in the written instructions [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.140(a); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 488.080(e), discussed under § 62.39[2]].

Unless a levying officer is negligent in the care or handling of the property, the levying officer is not liable to either the plaintiff or the defendant for loss by fire, theft, injury, or damage of any kind to personal property while [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.140(b)]:

- In the possession of the levying officer either in a warehouse or other storage place or in the custody of a keeper.
- In transit to or from a warehouse.

§ 62.42 Duties of Third Persons After Levy

[1] Deliver Garnishee's Memorandum to Levying Officer

Unless not required [§ 62.42[2]], the levying officer must request that the third person give the levying officer a garnishee's memorandum at the time a copy of a writ of attachment and a notice of attachment is served on a third person. Within 10 days after the request is made, the third person must mail or deliver the garnishee's memorandum to the levying officer, whether or not the levy is effective [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.610(a)].

PRACTICE TIP:
Plaintiff Should Verify Compliance. It is not unusual for a third person to fail to mail or deliver the garnishee's memorandum to the levying officer. It is up to the plaintiff to follow through.

If the garnishee's memorandum is received from a third person, the levying officer must promptly mail or deliver a copy of the memorandum to the plaintiff and attach the original to the writ when it is returned to the court. If the garnishee's memorandum is not received from the third person, the levying officer must so state in the return [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.610(c)].

[2] When Memorandum Not Required

The third person need not give a garnishee's memorandum to the levying officer if both of the following conditions are satisfied [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.610(f)]:

- The third person has delivered to the levying officer all of the property sought to be attached.

- The third person has paid to the levying officer the amount due at the time of levy on any obligation to the defendant and there is no additional amount that will become payable on the obligation levied on.

When a deposit account or property in a safe deposit box is attached, the financial institution need not give a garnishee's memorandum to the levying officer if the financial institution fully complies with the levy [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.610(e)].

[3] Contents of Garnishee's Memorandum

[a] Property Description and Status

A garnishee's memorandum must be executed under oath and contain the following information regarding the defendant's property or obligations sought to be attached [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.610(b)]:

- A description of any property that is not delivered to the levying officer and the reason for not delivering the property.

- A statement of the amount and terms of any obligation to the defendant sought to be attached that is due and payable but is not paid to the levying officer and the reason for not paying the obligation.

- A statement of the amount and terms of any obligation to the defendant that is not due and payable at the time of levy.

- A description of claims and rights of other persons to the property or obligation sought to be attached that are known to the third person and the names and addresses of those other persons.

When a deposit account or property in a safe deposit box is attached and a garnishee's memorandum is required, the financial institution must provide only information that is carried on the records available at the office or branch where the levy is made [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.610(e)].

[b] When Property Subject to Pending Action or Special Proceeding

If an attachment is ineffective because the property sought to be attached is subject to a pending action or special proceeding [see § 62.40 et seq.] and a garnishee's memorandum has been requested, the garnishee's memorandum must include the following additional information [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.475(c)]:

- A statement that the attachment is not effective because the property is subject to a pending action or special proceeding.

- The title of the court and the cause and number of the pending action or proceeding.

An action or proceeding is pending from the time the action or proceeding is commenced until judgment has been entered and the time for appeal has expired or, if an appeal is filed, until the appeal has been finally determined [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.475(d)].

[4] Failure to Supply Memorandum or Complete Information

If a third person does not give the levying officer a required garnishee's memorandum within the time limit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.610(a); see also § 62.42[1]], or does not provide complete information, the court has the discretion to require the third person to pay the costs and reasonable attorney's fees incurred in any proceedings to obtain the required information [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.610(d)].

[5] No Liability for Disclosure in Memorandum

A third person who gives a garnishee's memorandum under the Attachment Law is not liable to any person for the disclosure of any information contained in the garnishee's memorandum [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.620].

[1] Creation

A levy on property under a writ of attachment creates an attachment lien on the property from the time of the levy until the attachment expires [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.500(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.510;§ 62.43[3]].

NOTE:

Lien on Specific Goods Created. In addition to any other rights created by a levy on chattel paper, the levy creates a lien on the defendant's rights in specific goods subject to the chattel paper [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.435(b)].

In general, an attachment lien continues to the same extent as provided for execution liens on subject property that is transferred or encumbered [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.500(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 697.720 et seq.; see generally Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.40 et seq.].

[2] Priority and Effect of Lien

The priority of an attachment lien may date back to the time an earlier lien was perfected. This is true for property that is subject to the lien of a temporary protective order or a lien created under provisions setting forth a plaintiff's miscellaneous remedies, including the examination of third persons, a creditor suit, and a lien in a pending action or proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.110 et seq.]. However, the priorities or rights of third persons established while the earlier lien was in effect are determined by the law governing the effect of the earlier lien [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.500(e)].

Special rules apply for specific types of property, as follows:

(1) Equipment, farm products, or inventory for defendant's business : An attachment lien on equipment of a going business in possession or control of the defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.375], or farm products or inventory of a going business in possession or control of the defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.405], has the same force and effect as a judgment lien on personal property created at the same time [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.500(c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 697.590 et seq.; see generally Ch. 318, Judgments, § 318.90 et seq.].

(2) Vehicle, vessel, motorhome, or commercial coach : If equipment consisting of a vehicle, vessel, mobile home, or commercial coach is attached [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.385], the attachment lien does not affect the rights of a person who is a bona fide purchaser or encumbrancer who obtains possession of both the property and its certificate of ownership issued by the Department of Motor Vehicles or its certificate of title or registration card issued by the Department of Housing and Community Development. If the levying officer obtains possession of the certificate of ownership or certificate of title or registration card, the attachment lien has the priority of the lien of a lien creditor under Com. Code §§ 9317 and 9323 as of the time possession is obtained by the levying officer. In the absence of possession by the levying officer, the attachment lien has the same force and effect as an unperfected security interest that attached at the same time as the notice of attachment was filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.500(d); see generally Ch. 503, Sales: Secured Transactions].

[3] Duration of Attachment

[a] Basic Three-Year Period

Unless released or discharged sooner, an attachment ceases to be of any force or effect, and the property levied on must be released, no later than three years from the date of issuance of the writ of attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.510(a)].

NOTE:
Date of Issuance, Not Date of Service. The three-year period runs from the date of issuance, not the date of service.

[b] One-Year Extensions

The court in which the action is pending may order a one-year extension of the time of an attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.510(b)]. The plaintiff must present a motion showing good cause for the extension not less than 10 nor more than 60 days before the three-year time limit expires [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.510(b)]. The plaintiff must also give the defendant at least five-days' notice of the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.510(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:
When to Calendar Deadline. Calendar the deadline for 60 days before the three-year expiration of the attachment. Be sure to allow sufficient time to give the defendant five days' notice before 10 days before the expiration date.

The levying officer must serve notice of an extension order on any person holding property pursuant to an attachment and must record or file the notice in any office where the writ and notice of attachment are recorded or filed. When real property is subject to an extension order, the plaintiff or his or her attorney, instead of the levying officer, may record or file the notice. The notice must be recorded or filed prior to the expiration of the three-year period or any extension [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.510(c)]. A copy of the original notice of attachment that has been served on a third party holding the property sought to be attached, if served on the defendant or any other party, suffices as the notice of attachment to that person [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.065].

For a sample form of motion to extend attachment and an order, see §§ 62.176 and 62.177.

[c] Eight-Year Maximum Period

An attachment may be extended from time to time for one-year periods, but the maximum period, including extensions, may not exceed eight years from the date the writ of attachment was issued [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.510(d)].

According to the California Law Revision Commission, since the duration of the attachment lien is three years [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.510(a)], the one-year extensions under Code Civ. Proc. § 488.510(b) may not exceed a total of five years. Subject to this limitation, the plaintiff may preserve the effect of the attachment after entry of judgment by levy of execution on the attached property. In this way, the plaintiff may obtain an execution lien that has the same priority as the attachment lien [15 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 1335-1336 (1979)].

Similarly, if the attached property is real property, the plaintiff may preserve the priority of the attachment lien after entry of judgment by recording an abstract of judgment. The plaintiff will then have a judgment lien that has the same priority as the prior attachment lien [15 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 1335-1336 (1979)].

[d] Attachment Not Terminated by Defendant's Death

The death of the defendant whose property is attached does not terminate the attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.510(e)].

§ 62.44 Preserving Value of Attached Property

[1] Court Ordered Receivership or Other Action

If property has been, or is sought to be, attached, the court may appoint a receiver or order the levying officer to take any action necessary to preserve the value of the property. The court may, for example, order the sale of the property if it determines that the property is perishable or will greatly depreciate in value or that for some other reason the interests of the parties will be best served by the order [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.700(a)].

The plaintiff, defendant, or a person who has filed a third-party claim [see Code Civ. Proc. § 720.010 et seq.] may apply for such an order. The application may be made ex parte. However, the court, or a local court rule, may require the application to be made on noticed motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.700(a)].

For a sample form of motion and a form of order, see §§ 62.174 and 62.175.

[2] Action by Levying Officer Prior to Court Order

If the levying officer determines that property is extremely perishable or will greatly deteriorate or greatly depreciate in value before a court order can be obtained, the levying officer may take any action necessary to preserve the value of the property or may sell it. The levying officer is notliable for such a determination made in good faith [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.700(b)].

[3] Procedure for Sale of Levied-on Property

Except as otherwise provided by court order, a sale of property must be made in the manner provided for sales of levied-on property generally [see Code Civ. Proc. § 701.510 et seq.; see generally Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.40.], and the proceeds must be deposited in the court pending the judgment in the action. However, notice of sale must be posted and served at a reasonable time before sale, considering the character and condition of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.700(c)].

[4] Receiver's Appointment and Fees

Except as otherwise provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 488.700, Code Civ. Proc. § 564 et seq. govern the appointment, qualifications, powers, rights, and duties of a receiver appointed under Code Civ. Proc. § 488.700[Code Civ. Proc. § 488.700(d); see generally Ch. 486, Receivers].

If a receiver is appointed, the court must fix the daily fee of the receiver. The court may order the plaintiff to pay the receiver's fees and expenses in advance or may direct that all or part of the fees and expenses be paid from the proceeds of any sale of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.700(d)].

§ 62.45 Execution of Demand Instrument by Levying Officer

[1] Endorsement and Presentment

If an instrument that is payable to the defendant on demand comes into the possession of a levying officer under a writ of attachment, the officer must promptly endorse and present it for payment [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.710(b)]. "Instrument" means a check, draft, money order, or other order for the withdrawal of money from a financial institution, the United States, any state, or any public entity within a state [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.710(a); see generally Ch. 95 Banks, Deposits, and Checks, § 95.310 et seq.].

The levying officer must endorse the instrument by writing on it [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.710(c)]:

- The name of the defendant.
- The name and official title of the levying officer.
- The title of the court and the cause in which the writ was issued.

Such an endorsement is as valid as if the instrument were endorsed by the defendant. No financial institution or public entity on which the instrument is drawn is liable by reason of the endorsement to any person for payment of the instrument to the levying officer rather than to the defendant. No levying officer is liable for endorsing, presenting, and obtaining payment of the instrument. The funds or credit resulting from the payment of the instrument must by held by the levying officer subject to the lien of attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.710(c)].

[2] Instrument Tendered in Satisfaction of Claim

If it appears from the face of the instrument that it has been tendered to the defendant in satisfaction of a claim or demand and that the endorsement of the instrument is considered a release and satisfaction by the defendant of the claim or demand [see generally Ch. 6, Accord and Satisfaction], the levying officer must not endorse the instrument unless the defendant has first endorsed it to the levying officer. If the defendant does not endorse the instrument to the levying officer, the levying officer must hold the instrument for 30 days and is not liable to the defendant or to any other person for delay in presenting it for payment. At the end of the 30-day holding period, the levying officer must return the instrument to the maker [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.710(d)].

§ 62.46 Lien on Defendant's Pending Causes of Action or Rights Under Judgment

If the defendant is a party to a pending action or special proceeding, the plaintiff may obtain an attachment lien on both of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.410(a)]:

- Any cause of action of the defendant for money or property if the money or property would be subject to attachment should the defendant prevail.

- The rights of the defendant to money or property under any judgment subsequently obtained in the action or proceeding if the money or property would be subject to attachment.

A contractual arbitration is not an action or proceeding within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 491.410. Thus, at least if no petition is filed to compel arbitration or to confirm, correct, or vacate the award, a plaintiff who is not a party to the arbitration cannot create a valid lien in a pending contractual arbitration in which the defendant is a party [Jordan-Lyon Productions, Ltd. v. Cineplex Odeon Corp. (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1459, 1466-1467, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 200 (applying definitions in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 20-23)]. Although Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8 provides a method for a party to an arbitration agreement to obtain provisional relief, including attachment, in connection with an arbitrable controversy, Section 1281.8 does not authorize a nonparty to obtain Section 491.410 lien in relation to a contractual arbitration [Jordan-Lyon Productions, Ltd. v. Cineplex Odeon Corp. (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1459, 1470-1471, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 200] .

An action or special proceeding is pending until the time for appeal from the judgment has expired or, if an appeal is filed, until the appeal has finally been determined [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.410(d); see generally Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview , et seq.].

[1] Application

The plaintiff may apply for an order permitting creation of a lien in a pending action or special proceeding at the time the plaintiff applies for an RTAO [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.415(b); see §§ 62.191, 62.192]. For this purpose, the defendant's cause of action in the pending action or special proceeding and his or her rights to money or property under a judgment procured in the action or proceeding are to be treated as property subject to attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.415(a)].

If the plaintiff has already obtained an RTAO, an application for an order permitting creation of the lien may be applied for in the same manner as a writ of attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.415(b); see § 62.24 et seq.].

[2] Required Filings in Action or Proceeding

To obtain a lien, the plaintiff must file all of the following in the pending action or special proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.410(b)]:

- A notice of lien [see § 62.48].
- A copy of the RTAO.
- A copy of an order permitting creation of a lien in the pending action or special proceeding made by the court that issued the RTAO.

The plaintiff must also file an undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.415(b); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 489.210, 489.220; see also § 62.37[1]].

§ 62.48 Notice of Lien

The notice of lien must contain the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.420; see § 62.193]:

- A statement that a lien has been created under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 491.410-491.470, and the title of the court and the cause and number of the pending action or proceeding in which the notice of lien is filed.

- The name and last known address of the defendant.

- The name and address of the plaintiff.

- The title of the court where the plaintiff's action against the defendant is pending and the cause and number of the action.

- The amount required to secure the amount to be secured by the attachment at the time the notice of lien is filed in the action or proceeding.

- A statement that the lien attaches to any cause of action of the defendant in the pending action or proceeding and to the defendant's rights to money or property under any judgment procured in the action or proceeding.

- A statement that no compromise, dismissal, settlement, or satisfaction of the pending action or proceeding or any of the defendant's rights to money or property under any judgment procured may be entered into by or on behalf of the defendant.

- A statement that the defendant may not enforce the defendant's rights to money or property under any judgment procured in the pending action or proceeding by writ or otherwise, unless one of the following requirements is satisfied:

  - The prior approval by order of the court in which the action or proceeding is pending has been obtained.

  - The written consent of plaintiff has been obtained or the plaintiff has released the lien.

[2] Service on All Parties

On or promptly after the filing of the notice of lien and RTAO, the plaintiff must serve on all parties who have made an appearance in the action or special proceeding a copy of the notice of lien and a statement of the date when the notice of lien was filed. Failure to serve all parties as required does not affect the lien created by the filing, but the rights of a party are not affected by the lien until the party has notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.410(c)].

[1] In Opposition to Creation of Lien

The defendant may claim an exemption [see § 62.12[4]] in a proceeding initiated by the plaintiff for an order permitting creation of a lien in a pending action or special proceeding. The exemption may be claimed if the money or property sought by the defendant would be exempt from attachment should the defendant prevail in the other action or proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.415(c)].

The exemption must be claimed and determined in the same manner as an exemption is claimed and determined on application for a writ of attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.415(c); see § 62.30[7][a], § 62.32[3]].

[2] After Creation of Lien

[a] By Defendant's Noticed Motion

If a lien has already been created [see 62.47[1]], the defendant may claim that all or any portion of the money or property that the defendant may recover in the action or special proceeding is exempt from attachment. The claim must be made by application on noticed motion to the court in which the action or special proceeding is pending. The application must be filed and served on the plaintiff not later than 30 days after the defendant has notice of the creation of lien [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.470(a); see §§ 62.194, 62.197].

The defendant must execute an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) in support of the application that includes the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.070(c)]:

- A description of the property claimed to be exempt.

- A specification of the statute section supporting the claim.

The failure of the defendant to make a claim of exemption constitutes a waiver of the exemption [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.470(a)].

[b] Plaintiff's Opposition

The plaintiff may file a notice of opposition not less than two days before the date set for hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.070(f)]. However, no notice of opposition to the claim of exemption is required [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.470(a)].

[c] Determination of Defendant's Claim

The court may determine the exemption claim at any time prior to the entry of judgment in the action or special proceeding, or may consolidate the exemption hearing with the hearing on a motion to satisfy the lien after judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.470(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.460; see Satisfaction of Lien After Judgment in Action or Proceeding, below].

If the defendant establishes a full or partial exemption to the satisfaction of the court, the court must order the termination of the lien on the exempt portion of the money or property [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.470(c)].

§ 62.51 Court Order or Plaintiff's Consent Required to Enforce Judgment or Terminate Action or Proceeding

Unless the lien is released or the defendant has not received notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.410(c)], a court order or the plaintiff's written consent is required before the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.440(a)]:

- Enforcement of a judgment recovered in the action or special proceeding in favor of the defendant by writ or otherwise.

- Entry by or on behalf of the defendant into a compromise, dismissal, settlement, or satisfaction of the pending action or special proceeding, or the judgment procured therein.

To satisfy this requirement, a defendant may apply for an order in the court in which the action or special proceeding subject to the lien is pending or the judgment is entered. The application must be on noticed motion, a copy of which must be served on plaintiff. After a hearing, the court may in its discretion make the order on any terms and conditions it deems necessary [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.440(b)].

For a form of application on noticed motion and supporting declaration, see § 62.195.

- A statement of the existence of the lien.
- The time the lien was created.

Any abstract issued on the judgment must include a statement of the lien in favor of the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.450(b)].

§ 62.53 Satisfaction of Lien After Judgment in Action or Proceeding

If the judgment in an action or special proceeding is in favor of the defendant and a lien exists, any party to the action or proceeding may apply for a court order that the defendant's rights to money or property under the judgment be attached or otherwise applied to the satisfaction of the lien. The application must be by noticed motion with a copy served on all parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.460(a); see § 62.196]. The plaintiff is deemed to be a party in the action or special proceeding even though he or she has not intervened [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.430(b)].

If the judgment in the action or special proceeding determines that the defendant has an interest in property, the court may order the party having custody or control not to transfer the property until it can be attached or otherwise applied to the satisfaction of the lien [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.460(b)].The court must render judgment against any party who has notice of the lien who transfers property that was subject to the lien or has paid an amount that was subject to the lien to the defendant. The amount of the judgment is equal to the lesser of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.460(c)]:

- The value of defendant's interest in the property or the amount paid to defendant.
- The amount of plaintiff's lien.

A judgment or order attaching the defendant's rights in the action or special proceeding may be enforced in the same manner as if it had been obtained by the defendant against the third party. However, prior to entry of judgment in favor of the plaintiff against the defendant, any money or property obtained in enforcing the judgment or order against the third party must be paid or delivered into the court to abide the judgment in the action of the plaintiff against the defendant, or it may be held by the levying officer, or otherwise held, as ordered by the court [*Code Civ. § 62.55 Order for Examination of Third Person

[1] Application and Service

The plaintiff may apply ex parte for a court order directing a third person to appear at a specified time and place to answer concerning the property of the defendant or a debt owed to the defendant. The order may provide for an examination before the court or before a referee appointed by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.110(a); see § 62.144].

A plaintiff applying for an examination must prove by affidavit, or otherwise to the satisfaction of the court, both of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.110(a)]:

- The third person has possession or control of property in which the defendant has an interest or is indebted to the defendant in an amount exceeding $250.00.
- The plaintiff has an RTAO.

The affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) in support of the plaintiff's application may be based on information and belief [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.110(a)].

Not less than 10 days prior to the date set for the examination, the plaintiff must serve a copy of the order [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.110(b)]:

- Personally on the third person.
- Personally or by mail on the defendant.

[2] Notice of Sanctions in Order

The order must contain the following statement in 14-point boldface type if printed or in capital letters if typed: "NOTICE TO PERSON SERVED. If you fail to appear at the time and place specified in this order, you may be subject to arrest and punishment for contempt of court and the court may make an order requiring you to pay the reasonable attorney's fees incurred by the plaintiff in this proceeding" [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.110(d); see § 62.144].

[3] Tender of Mileage Fees

Along with service of the order, the plaintiff must tender to the third person fees for the mileage necessary to travel from the third person's residence to the place of examination. The fees must be in the same amount generally provided for witnesses when legally required to attend civil proceedings in the court where the examination proceeding is to be conducted [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.110(e); for discussion of fees, see generally the Ch. 535, Subpoena].

§ 62.56 Lien on Third Person's Property

[1] Service of Order on Third Person

If the property or the debt is described in a manner reasonably adequate to permit it to be identified, service of the order on the third person creates a lien on the defendant's interest in the property or on the debt owed to the defendant. The description may be made in the application or in the affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5). The lien continues for a period of one year from the date of the order unless extended or terminated by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.110(c)].

[2] Continuation of Lien on Transfer or Encumbrance

A lien created under Code Civ. Proc. § 491.110 et seq. continues on property subject to the lien even if the property is transferred or encumbered, unless the transfer or encumbrance is made to certain persons [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.200; see Code Civ. Proc. § 697.740 (termination of execution liens when transfer or encumbrance made to specified persons); see generally Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.40 et seq.].

[1] Witnesses

In any proceeding for the examination of a third person, witnesses, including the defendant, may be required to appear and testify before thecourt or referee in the same manner as on trial of the issue [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.120; see generally Ch. 551, Trial].

[2] Appointment of Referee or Temporary Judge

The court may appoint a member of the State Bar of California as a referee to conduct the examination proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.130(a), (b)]. The referee may do the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.130(a)]:

- Issue, modify, or vacate orders [see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.190].
- Make protective orders [see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.180].
- Issue warrants [see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.160].
- Grant adjournments.
- Preserve order.
- Subpoena witnesses to attend the examination.

The referee, however, may not perform the following functions, which are delegated expressly to the courts [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.130(a)]:

- Punish for contempt for disobeying an order of the referee.

- Award attorney's fees on the third person's failure to appear without good cause [see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.160].

- Determine a third-party claim when the third party claims an adverse interest or denies the indebtedness [see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.170].

The court also has the power to appoint a temporary judge on stipulation of the parties [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 21; Code Civ. Proc. § 491.130(c)].

[3] Appearance by Corporation, Partnership, or Other Organization

If the third person is a corporation, partnership, association, trust, or other organization, it must designate one or more of the following to appear and be examined [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.140(a)]:

- Officers.

- Directors.

- Managing agents.

- Other persons who are familiar with the entity's property and debts.

If the order to appear names a specified individual, he or she must appear for the examination. The individual, however, may be accompanied by one or more officers, directors, managing agents, or other persons familiar with the property and debts of the corporation, partnership, association, trust, or other organization [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.140(b)].

If the order to appear does not require the appearance of a specified individual, the order must advise the corporation, partnership, association, trust, or other organization of its duty to make a designation [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.140(c)]. A corporation, partnership, association, trust, or other organization, whether or not a party, may appear at an examination through any authorized officer, director, or employee, whether or not the person is an attorney [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.140(d)].

In general, the proper court for examination of a third person in possession or control of property in which a defendant may have an interest is the court that issued the writ of attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.140(a)]. However, a person sought to be examined may not be required to attend an examination before a court located outside the county in which the person resides or has a place of business unless the distance from the person's place of residence or place of business to the place of examination is less than 150 miles [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.150(b)].

If the person sought to be examined does not reside or have a place of business in the county where the court that issued the writ is located, the superior court is a proper court for the examination [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.150(c)].

If the plaintiff seeks an examination of a person before a court other than the court that issued the writ, the plaintiff must do all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.150(d)]:

- File with the court from which the order is sought a certified copy of the complaint in the pending action.

- Present to the court an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) in support of the application stating the place of residence or place of business of the person sought to be examined.

- Make any necessary affidavit or showing to prove the RTAO and the third person's possession or control of defendant's property or indebtedness to defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.110].

- Pay the prescribed filing fee [see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.150(d)].

[5] Sanctions for Failure to Appear

If the third person fails to appear after being served the order by a sheriff, marshal, a person specially appointed by the court in the order, or a registered process server, the court may, pursuant to a warrant, have the person brought before the court to answer for failure to appear and may punish the person for contempt. In addition, if the person's failure to appear is without good cause, the plaintiff must be awarded reasonable attorney's fees incurred in the examination proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.160(a); see generally Ch. 135, Contempt].

NOTE:

Misdemeanor for Willful Improper Service. A person who willfullymakes an improper service of an order for an examination is guilty of a misdemeanor if the third person is arrested and punished for failure to appear [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.160(b)].

[6] Protective Orders Available

In any third person examination, the court may, on motion of the person to be examined, or on its own motion, make such protective orders as justice may require [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.180]. For a sample motion for a protective order to limit the scope of discovery, which may be adapted for use in third party examinations with appropriate modifications, see Ch. 191, Discovery: Privileges and Other Discovery Limitations .

§ 62.58 Hearing to Determine Third Person's Interest in Property or Existence of Debt

If the third person claims an interest in the property adverse to the defendant or denies the debt, the court may determine the interest in the property or the existence of the debt [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.170(a)]. However, the plaintiff must request the determination [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.170(a)].

The court may not make a determination of the third person's interest in the property or the existence of the debt if the third person's claim is made in good faith and any of the following conditions is satisfied [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.170(b)]:

- The court would not be a proper court for the trial of an independent civil action, including a creditor suit [see § 62.61[1]], for the determination of the interests in the property or the existence of the debt and the third person objects to the determination of the matter.

- At the time an order for examination is served on the third person, a civil action, including a creditor suit, is pending with respect to the interests in the property or the existence of the debt.

- The court determines that the interests in the property or the existence of the debt should be determined in a creditor suit.

A determination of the third person's interest is conclusive as to the plaintiff, the defendant, and the third person, but an appeal may be taken in the manner provided for appeals from the court in which the proceeding takes place [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.170(a)].

The court may grant a continuance for a reasonable time for discovery proceedings, the production of evidence, or other preparation for the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.170(a)].

§ 62.59 Application for Orders Prior to Creditor Suit or Determination of Interest or Debt

[1] Forbidding Transfer or Payment to Defendant

On the plaintiff's ex parte application, the court may forbid transfer of the property to the defendant or payment of the debt to the defendant until either the interests in the property or the existence of the debt are determined or a creditor suit is commenced and a restraining order or preliminary injunction is obtained [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.170(c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.340]. The court, in its discretion, may require an undertaking and may modify or vacate the order at any time with or without a hearing on such terms as are just [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.170(c)].

[2] Forbidding Transfer or Payment to Any Person

On the plaintiff's application on noticed motion, the court may forbid the transfer or other disposition of the property to any person or forbid payment of the debt until the interests in the property or the existence of the debt are determined or a creditor suit is commenced and a restraining order or preliminary injunction is obtained [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.170(d); see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.340].

Before the court can make such an order, it must first determine that the defendant probably owns an interest in the property or that the debt is probably owed to the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.170(d)].

The court must require the plaintiff to furnish an undertaking on the issuance of an injunction [see Code Civ. Proc. § 529] and may modify or vacate the order at any time after notice and hearing on such terms as are just [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.170(d)].

§ 62.60 Orders Available at Conclusion of Examination or Determination

[1] Attachment of Property or Debt

Unless the third-person claim is not determined [see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.170(b), and discussion under Hearing to Determine Third Person's Interest in Property or Existence of Debt, above], the court may order the attachment of the property or debt under conditions provided by the Attachment Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.190(a)(1); see generally § 62.24 et seq.]. The court may also order the property delivered or the debt paid to the levying officer if the levying officer has a writ of attachment permitting the attachment of the property or debt [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.190(a)(1)].

After the property or debt has been attached, the order may be enforced as permitted in creditor suits [see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.360; § 62.55 et seq.]. The order creates a lien on the property or debt that continues fora period of one year from the date of the order, unless the court extends or reduces the period [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.190(a)(1)].

[2] Determining Third Person's Liability

If the property or debt has previously been attached, the court may make an order determining the third person's liability, and the order may be enforced in the same manner as a judgment in a creditor suit [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.190(a)(2); see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.360, and § 62.63].

[3] Forbidding Transfer of Property or Payment of Debt

If the court does not determine the third person's interest [see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.170(a)], it may not order an attachment or determine the third person's liability, but it may make an order forbidding transfer or payment [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.190(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.170(c), (d)].

[1] Availability

The plaintiff may bring a creditor suit against a third person in either of the following situations [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.310]:

- The third person has possession or control of property in which the defendant has an interest.
- The third person is indebted to the defendant and the property or debt has been subject to an attachment lien.

A creditor action may not be commenced if the attachment lien on the property or debt is not in effect [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.330(b)].

[2] Joinder of Defendant

The defendant must be joined in a creditor suit but is not an indispensable party. In determining proper venue, the residence of the defendant may not be considered unless otherwise provided by contract between the defendant and the third person [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.320].

[3] Time for Commencement and Prosecution of Action

A creditor suit must be commenced before the expiration of the later of the following times [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.330(a)]:

- The time when the defendant may bring an action against the third person concerning the property or debt.

- If the attachment lien is created at a time when the defendant may bring an action against the third person, one year after the creation of the lien under the Attachment Law.

If an action is commenced within the time permitted, it may be prosecuted to judgment as long as the attachment lien or a judgment lien on the same property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 680.010 et seq.] is in effect [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.330(c)].

[4] No Right to Jury Trial

There is no right to a jury trial in a creditor suit [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.350].

[5] Costs Not Recoverable From Defendant

Costs incurred by or taxed against the plaintiff in a creditor suit may not be recovered from the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.370].

§ 62.62 Restraining Orders Pending Judgment in Creditor Suit

The plaintiff may apply to the court in which the creditor suit is pending for either or both of the following:

- An order restraining the third person from transferring the attached property to the defendant or from paying the attached debt to the defendant. The order must be made on a noticed motion if the court so directs or requires, or, if not, on ex parte application. The order remains in effect until judgment is entered or until the time the court provides in the order. An undertaking may be required in the discretion of the court and the court may modify or vacate the order at any time with or without a hearing on terms that are just [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.340(a)].

- A temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction or both, restraining the third person from transferring to any person or otherwise disposing of the attached property. The court may make, dissolve, and modify the order as provided in the injunction provisions [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.340(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 525 et seq.; see generally Ch. 303, Injunctions].

§ 62.63 Enforcement of Judgment in Creditor Suit

If the plaintiff establishes the liability of the third person in a creditor suit, the court must render judgment accordingly. The judgment may be enforced in the same manner as it could be enforced if it had been obtained by the defendant against the third person. Prior to entry of judgment in favor of the plaintiff against the defendant, however, any money or property obtained in enforcing the judgment against the third person must be paidor delivered into the court to abide the judgment in the action of the plaintiff against the defendant. Alternatively, the money or property must be held by a levying officer or as ordered by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.360].

§ 62.64 Release of Attached Property on Plaintiff's Request or Court Order

[1] When Release Required

The levying officer must release attached property when he or she [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.730(a)]:

- Receives a written direction to release the property from the plaintiff's attorney of record or, if the plaintiff does not have an attorney of record, from the plaintiff.
- Receives a certified copy of a court order for release.
- Is otherwise required to release the property.

[2] Effect of Release

The release extinguishes any attachment lien in favor of the plaintiff on the property released [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.730(a)].

§ 62.65 Procedure for Release

[1] Filing or Recording Notice of Release if Writ Was Filed or Recorded

If the property to be released was levied on by recording or filing a copy of the writ and a notice of attachment, the levying officer must record or file a written notice of release in the same office [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.730(d)].

If the notice of attachment had been filed with the Secretary of State, any release will have the effect prescribed in Code Civ. Proc. § 697.650[Code Civ. Proc. § 488.730(d); see Code Civ. Proc. § 697.650(c) (effect of filing statement of release of personal property judgment lien); see generally Ch. 318, Judgments, § 318.90 et seq.].

[2] Release if Property Was Taken Into Custody

If the property has been taken into custody under the levy, it must be released to the person from whom it was taken unless otherwise ordered by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.730(b)].

If the person from whom the property was taken does not claim the property to be released, the levying officer must retain custody of the property and serve on the person a notice of where possession of the property may be obtained. If the person does not claim the property within 30 days after notice is served, the levying officer must sell the property unless it is cash that does not have a value exceeding its face value [see [Code Civ. Proc. § 701.510 et seq.]. After deducting his or her costs, the levying officer must deposit the proceeds of the sale and any cash with the county treasurer of the county where the property is located. The deposit must be made payable to the order of the person from whom the property was taken. If the amount deposited is not claimed by the person or the legal representative of the person within five years after the deposit is made, it must be paid into the general fund of the county by making application to the treasurer or other official designated in the county [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.730(b)].

[3] Release if Property Was Not Taken Into Custody

If the property to be released has not been taken into custody under the levy, the levying officer must release the attachment by issuing a written notice of release. The notice must be served on the same person who was served with a copy of the writ and a notice of attachment to create the lien [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.730(c)].

§ 62.67 Release on Judgment for Defendant

In general, if the defendant recovers judgment against the plaintiff and no further proceedings are pending, any undertaking received from the defendant in the action, all the proceeds of sales and money collected by the levying officer, and all the property attached remaining in the officer's hands must be delivered to the person from whom it was collected or taken, unless otherwise ordered by the court. This rule does not apply if a timely motion for vacation of judgment, judgment notwithstanding the verdict, or a new trial is filed and served and is pending, or an appeal is perfected and an undertaking executed and filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.740; see Code Civ. Proc. § 921; see generally tCh. 371, Motions After Trial, Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal, and Ch. 43, Appeal: Stay of Proceedings].

The court must order the discharge of any attachment made in the action and the release of any property held under it [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.740].

§ 62.80 Application to Set Aside Order and Quash Writ

[1] By Noticed Motion

Any defendant whose property has been attached under a writ issued ex parte may apply for an order to set aside the RTAO, to quash the writ of attachment, to release any property levied on, or reduce the amount to be secured by the attachment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 483.015]. The application must be made by filing a notice of motion with the court and serving it on the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240(a)].

The notice of motion must include a statement of the grounds on which the motion is based, and be accompanied by an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) supporting any factual issues, and points and authorities supporting any legal issues raised [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240(b)]. An assertion that the plaintiff would not have suffered great or irreparable injury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010] if issuance of the order had been delayed until the matter could have been heard on notice is not an allowable ground to set aside an order [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240(b)].

For a form of application and order to set aside RTAO and quash writ, see §§ 62.142 and 62.143.

[2] Hearing on Defendant's Motion

The hearing must take precedence over all other civil matters on the calendar of that day except older matters of the same character [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240(e)].

At the hearing on the motion, the court must determine whether the plaintiff is entitled to the right to attach order. If the court finds that the plaintiff is not entitled to the right to attach order, it must set aside the right to attach order, quash the writ of attachment, and release any property levied on pursuant to the writ. If the court finds that the plaintiff is entitled to the right to attach order, the plaintiff may apply for additional writs under the noticed hearing procedure or the ex parte procedure [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240(c); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 484.310 et seq., 484.510 et seq.; see also § 62.30[1] and § 62.32[1]].

The court's determinations must be made on the basis of the pleadings and other papers in the record. On good cause shown, however, the court may receive and consider at the hearing additional evidence, oral or documentary, and additional points and authorities, or it may continue the hearing for the production of additional evidence or points and authorities [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240(d)].

When a writ of attachment is issued, a defendant who has appeared in the action may apply for an order permitting the defendant to substitute an undertaking for any property in California that has been or is subject to being attached [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310(a)]. The application must be made by noticed motion to the court in which the action is pending [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310(a)].

In two instances, the application must include a statement, executed under oath or declaration under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5], describing the property to be released or protected from attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310(b)]:

- When the defendant applies for an order to release only a portion of property that has been attached.

- When the defendant applies for an order preventing the attachment of property, and the amount of the undertaking to be given is less than the amount to be secured by the attachment.

The court must issue the substitution order on the condition that a sufficient undertaking be filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310(c)].

For a form of application and order to substitute undertaking, see §§ 62.142 and 62.143.

[2] Amount of Undertaking

The defendant must file an undertaking to pay the plaintiff the value of the property released not exceeding the amount of any judgment that may be recovered by the plaintiff in the action against the defendant. The amount of the undertaking must be equal to the lesser of [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310(c)]:

- The value of the property attached or prevented from being attached.
- The amount specified by the writ to be secured by the attachment.

[3] Special Rules Concerning Multiple Defendants

When an action is against more than one defendant, any defendant may make the application. The filing of an undertaking by a defendant does not subject him or her to any demand against any other defendant. However, the levying officer is not prevented from attaching, or be obliged to release from attachment, any property of any other defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310(d)].

If less than all the defendants join in the application, the application must contain a statement, executed under oath (or penalty of perjury [Code*Civ. Proc. § 2015.5*]) setting forth the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310(d)]:

- The character of the defendant's title to the property.
- The manner in which the defendant acquired title.
- Whether any other non-joining defendant has an interest in the property.

If two or more defendants have an interest in the same property, a joint application and undertaking must be filed to secure the release of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310(d)].

§ 62.82 Application to Terminate Protective Order and File Undertaking

A defendant who has been served with a temporary protective order and who has appeared in the action may apply by noticed motion to the court in which the action is pending for an order terminating the temporary protective order [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.320(a)].

The defendant must file an undertaking to pay the plaintiff the maximum amount of any judgment that could be recovered by the plaintiff, that is, an amount equal to the amount sought to be secured by the attachment. The court must issue the order terminating the temporary protective order on condition that a sufficient undertaking be filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.320(b)].

When the defendant prevails in the trial court, the court may order an increase in the amount of the plaintiff's original undertaking pending appeal on the defendant's motion, at any time after entry of judgment and before perfection of an appeal [see Code Civ. Proc. § 921]. The court may order the undertaking in an amount, if any, justified by the detriment reasonably to be anticipated by continuing the attachment. Unless the plaintiff files the undertaking within 10 days after the order, the attachment must be set aside and the property released [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.410(a)].

If an order increasing the original undertaking is made, the amount of the undertaking on appeal required by Code Civ. Proc. § 921 must be the same as the amount fixed by the trial court in the order [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.410(b)].

In addition, a new undertaking is required if the plaintiff applies for a motion notwithstanding the verdict or for new trial and the motion is pending or is granted. The new undertaking must be provided to pay all costs and damages sustained by continuing the attachment because neither motion continues an attachment in force. The undertaking may be included in the undertaking specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 921. If not included, the same procedure applies as in case of an undertaking on appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.410(c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 921].

§ 62.84 Release From Attachment When Defendant Files Undertaking on Appeal

When a defendant appeals and the enforcement of the judgment against him or her is stayed by the filing of a sufficient undertaking on appeal, all property of the defendant that has been attached in the action must be released from the attachment on the failure of the respondent to object to the undertaking within the time prescribed by statute. If an objection is made, the property must be released on a determination that the undertaking is sufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.420; see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.930(b) (objection to bonds generally)].

§ 62.85 Postlevy Procedure for Claiming Property Exemption

[1] Claim Before Entry of Judgment

At any time prior to the entry of judgment, the defendant may claim a property exemption [see Code Civ. Proc. § 487.020(a)] for real property by following the procedures for exemptions after levy [Code Civ. Proc. § 487.030(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 703.510 et seq.; see generally Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.40 et seq.]. A claim of exemption will be denied if it has been denied earlier in the action and there is no change in circumstances affecting the claim [Code Civ. Proc. § 487.030(a)].

Prior to entry of judgment, the defendant may also claim an exemption for real property needed for the support of the defendant or his or her family by following either [Code Civ. Proc. § 487.030(b)]:

- The procedure for claiming exemptions after a postjudgment levy [see Code Civ. Proc. § 703.510 et seq.].

- The procedure for claiming exemptions under the Attachment Law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 482.100(c); see also Pt. B, Subpt. 1, § 62.30[7]], except that the defendant does not need to show a change of circumstances [see Code Civ. Proc. § 482.100(a)].

When postjudgment levy procedures are used, references to "judgment debtor" and "judgment creditor" are deemed to be references to the defendant and plaintiff, respectively [Code Civ. Proc. § 487.030(c)].

Regardless of these provisions, a homestead exemption for real property may be claimed after judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710 et seq.; see generally Ch. 294, Homesteads] unless, prior to entry of judgment, thedefendant claimed that the property was exempt from enforcement of a money judgment and the claim was denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 487.030(d)].

[2] Family-Support Exemption if Keeper Placed in Charge of Farm Products or Business Inventory

If farm products or the inventory of a going business are levied on by placing a keeper in charge of the property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.395], a defendant who is a natural person may claim an exemption for the support of the defendant or his or her family [see Code Civ. Proc. § 487.020(b)]. The exemption may be claimed by following the procedure for exemptions under the Attachment Law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 482.100(c); see also Pt. B, Subpt. 1, § 62.30[7]], except that the requirement of showing changed circumstances does not apply [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.395(d)].

On a showing that the property is exempt, the court must order its release and may make any further order as the court deems appropriate to protect the collection of the plaintiff's claim. The order may permit the plaintiff to attach farm products or inventory of a going business, including proceeds or after-acquired property, by filing a notice of attachment with the Secretary of State under Code Civ. Proc. § 488.405 [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.395(d)]. The order may also provide reasonable restrictions on the disposition of the property previously attached [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.395(d)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 488.395 does not apply to the placement of a keeper in a business for the purpose of attaching tangible personal property consisting solely of money or equivalent proceeds of sales, which must be conducted in the same manner as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 700.070[Code Civ. Proc. § 488.395(e)].

§ 62.86 Motion for Release of Attachment on Excess Property

[1] By Noticed Motion

The defendant may apply for an order releasing the attachment of property to the extent that the value of the defendant's interest clearly exceeds the amount to be secured by the attachment. The application must be made by noticed motion to the court in which the action is pending or in which the judgment in the action was entered [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.720(a)].

The notice of motion must contain a statement of the grounds on which the motion is based, and be accompanied by an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) supporting any factual issues, and points and authorities supporting any legal issues raised [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.720(b)].

For discussion of the amount to be secured by an attachment, see § 62.12. For a form of application and order to release attached property, see §§ 62.142 and 62.143.

[2] Determination of Excess Property Motion

At the hearing on the motion, the court must determine the value of the defendant's interest in the property attached. The court must order the release of the attachment to the extent that the value of the defendant's interest in the property clearly exceeds the amount necessary to satisfy the amount to be secured by the attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.720(c)].

If the application is made after judgment, the court must also consider the value of any property not attached in the action in determining whether or not the attachment is clearly excessive. This includes [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.720(c)]:

- Property that has been levied on under a writ of execution issued to satisfy the judgment.

- Other property that has been sought to be applied to the satisfaction of the judgment.

The court's determinations must be made on the basis of the pleadings and other papers in the record. On good cause shown, however, the court may receive and consider additional evidence, oral or documentary, and additional points and authorities. The court may also continue the hearing for the production of additional evidence or points and authorities [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.720(d)].

When the defendant is in the military, the court, on its own motion, has discretion to vacate or stay any attachment or garnishment of property, money, or debts in the hands of another, whether before or after judgment [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.; see generally Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders , Pt. I]. The provision applies to actions commenced before, during, or within 90 days after the defendant's military service [50 U.S.C. App. § 524].

The court must vacate or stay an attachment or garnishment on the application of the person in military service or of someone on his or her behalf, unless the court is of the opinion that the defendant's ability to comply with the judgment or order entered or sought is not materially affected by reason of his or her military service [50 U.S.C. App. § 524; see also 50 U.S.C. App. §§ 511, 514, 516]. When an application is made to vacate an attachment, the court may deny the application, as shown by the alternative language of the statute that allows the court to vacate or stay the attachment [Halstead v. Halstead (1946) 72 Cal. App. 2d 832, 834-835, 165 P.2d 513] .

A stay may be ordered for the period of military service and 90 days after or any part of that period, and subject to any terms as may be just. When the person in military service is a codefendant with others, the plaintiff may proceed against the others by leave of court [50 U.S.C. App. § 525].

§ 62.88 Vacation or Stay of Execution for Service Members

In any action against a service member, before or during the period of the service, or within 60 days thereafter, the court may vacate or stay any attachment [Mil. & Vet. Code § 403(c)(2)]. The court may grant the stay in its discretion on its own motion, or it must grant the stay upon application by the service member or some person on his or her behalf [Mil. & Vet. Code § 403(c)]. However, the court may deny the motion if in the opinion of the court the defendant's ability to comply with the order entered or sought is not materially affected by reason of his or her military service [Mil. & Vet. Code § 403(c)].

A stay of attachment ordered by any court may be ordered for the period of military service and three months thereafter or any part of that period, and subject to those terms as may be just, including terms with respect to payment in installments of those amounts at those times as the court may fix [Mil. & Vet. Code § 403(d)]. If the service member is a codefendant with others, the plaintiff may, by leave of court, proceed against the others [Mil. & Vet. Code § 403(d)].

"Service members" include officers and enlisted members of the National Guard called or ordered into active state service by the Governor or into active federal service by the President [Mil. & Vet. Code § 400(a)(1)]. "Service members" also include reservists of the United States Military Reserve who have been called to full-time active duty [Mil. & Vet. Code § 400(a)(2)].

A wrongful attachment consists of any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 490.010]:

- In an action in which attachment is not authorized [see § 62.11], the levy under a writ of attachment or the service of a protective order. However, it is not wrongful attachment if both of the following are established:

  - The levy was not authorized solely because the claim did not arise out of the defendant's conduct of trade, business, or profession [see Code Civ. Proc. § 483.010(c); see also § 62.11[4]].

  - The person who sold or leased, or licensed for use, the property, furnished the services, or loaned the money reasonably believed that it would not be used primarily for personal, family, or household purposes.

- In an action in which the plaintiff does not recover judgment, the levy under a writ of attachment or the service of a temporary protective order.

- When property is exempt from attachment, the levy under a writ of attachment obtained under the ex parte procedure for obtaining additional writs after the noticed hearing procedure [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.510 et seq. and § 62.32[1]], or under the ex parte hearing procedure for obtaining a writ of attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010 et seq. and § 62.33[1]]. This rule does not apply when the plaintiff shows that he or she reasonably believed the property attached was not exempt from attachment.

[2] Recovery of Damages for Wrongful Attachment

[a] Motion Procedure

A defendant may recover damages for wrongful attachment by a motion to enforce liability on the bond, made in the trial court, without the necessity of an independent action [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440(a); see generally Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, And Undertakings, § 538.40 et seq.(including forms of motion for judgment, supporting declaration, and judgment)].

A motion for damages for wrongful attachment may not be filed or notice served on the plaintiff until after [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440(c)]:

- Entry of the final judgment in the action for which damages are sought.
- Either of the following:
  - The time for appeal from the judgment has expired.
  - If an appeal is filed, until the appeal is finally determined.

The motion may not be filed or notice served more than one year after the later of the preceding dates [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440(c)].

The defendant must join the sureties on an undertaking for wrongful attachment liability, and any judgment of liability binds the plaintiff and sureties jointly and severally. However, the liability of a surety is limited to the amount of the undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 996.430(a), 996.470;§ 62.89[2][d]].

[b] Offset of Recovery Amount for Wrongful Attachment

The amount of any recovery for wrongful attachment is offset as far as possible against any unsatisfied amounts owed to the plaintiff by thedefendant under the judgment in the action for which wrongful attachment damages are awarded [Code Civ. Proc. § 490.040].

[c] Liability of Plaintiff for Wrongful Attachment

The damages recoverable against the plaintiff for wrongful attachment include [Code Civ. Proc. § 490.020(a)]:

- All damages proximately caused to the defendant by the wrongful attachment.
- All costs and expenses, including reasonable attorney's fee, reasonably expended in defeating the attachment.

The damages are, however, limited to the amount of the undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 490.020(b)].

The proper measure of damages for the wrongful taking or detention of personal property is the reasonable value of the use of the property during the period of detention [Atlas Dev. Co. v. National Surety Co. (1923) 190 Cal. 329, 332, 212 P. 196] . The measure of damages for the detention of money is the legal rate of interest [Stiner v. Travelers Indem. Co. (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 128, 130, 37 Cal. Rptr. 813 ; Gray v. American Surety Co. (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 471, 472-475, 277 P.2d 436] . If real property is attached and the owner has suffered a loss of sale because of the attachment, the measure of damages is the amount of depreciation of the property during the period of the attachment [Clark v. Andrews (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 193, 197, 240 P.2d 330] .

Although the defendant may recover attorney's fees [see Code Civ. Proc. § 490.020(a)(2)], legal expenses incurred in defense of the principal suit are not allowed if the defendant might have rid himself or herself of the attachment without the defense and without incurring the expenses. However, attorney's fees are recoverable in an action for wrongful attachment when [Reachi v. National Auto. & Cas. Co. (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 808, 811-812, 236 P.2d 151 ; Mart, Inc. v. National Auto. & Cas. Co. (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 772, 774, 58 Cal. Rptr. 877] :

- All of the proceedings, pleadings, and documents with respect to the levy of attachment are valid and regular on their face.

- A motion to discharge the attachment would have been unsuccessful and an idle and futile act.

- The only manner by which the attachment could have been discharged was to defend and win the principal action on its merits.

[d] Liability of Surety on Undertaking

A defendant may also bring an action for damages against the surety on the attachment undertaking [see Code Civ. Proc. § 996.410 et seq.; see, e.g., §§ 62.210, 62.211]. The liability of a surety is limited by the amount of the bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.470(a)], but within that limit, all damages sustained by reason of the attachment are recoverable, without regard to whether or not the damages would be recoverable under the provision defining damages for breach of an obligation [Klinell v. Shirey (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 239, 245, 35 Cal. Rptr. 901 ; see Civ. Code § 3300].

The measure of damages against the surety is the actual expense and loss proximately resulting from the levy [Reachi v. National Auto. & Cas. Co. (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 808, 811, 236 P.2d 151 ; Ideal Heating Corp. v. Royal Indem. Co. (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 662, 664, 237 P.2d 521] .

NOTE:

Damages Not Recoverable. A surety is not liable on an attachment undertaking for exemplary and punitive damages [see Code Civ. Proc. § 490.020]. Damages under the wrongful attachment provisions are limited to actual damages. By definition, exemplary and punitive damages are in addition to actual damages and, therefore, not recoverable against the surety [Carter v. Agricultural Ins. Co. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 805, 806-807, 72 Cal. Rptr. 462 ; contra Klinell v. Shirey (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 239, 245, 35 Cal. Rptr. 901 (dictum), citing Barlin v. Barlin (1957) 156 Cal. App. 2d 143, 144, 319 P.2d 87] .

[e] Duty to Mitigate

The defendant's right to recover damages on an attachment undertaking is not lost by the defendant's failure to mitigate damages by regaining possession of the attached property during the pendency of the action [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 489.310, 489.320]. However, under some circumstances a failure to mitigate may be considered in determining recoverable damages [Gray v. American Surety Co. (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 471, 475-476, 277 P.2d 436] . The owner is under no duty to secure release of his or her attached property if financially unable to do so [Stiner v. Travelers Indem. Co. (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 128, 133, 37 Cal. Rptr. 813 ; Gray v. American Surety Co. (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 471, 476, 277 P.2d 436] .

[3] Other Remedies Under Common Law Not Precluded

The wrongful attachment provisions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 490.010 et seq.] do not limit damages caused by an attachment or protective order on a common-law theory of recovery [Code Civ. Proc. § 490.060]. Such actions include malicious prosecution and abuse of process [see White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 347-350, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345 ; see generally Ch. 357, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process].

The proper theory to assert at common law against an attaching plaintiff depends on the type of wrongful conduct involved [White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 348-349, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345] :

- Levying an attachment in an action prosecuted maliciously and without probable cause is malicious prosecution [see, e.g., § 62.212].

- Maliciously procuring attachment in a properly instituted action in which the creditor is not entitled to the writ is abuse of process.

- Attaching property which is exempt from attachment or possesses a value greatly in excess of the amount of the legitimate claim is abuse of process.

- Using regularly issued attachment for an improper purpose is abuse of process [see, e.g., § 62.213].

In some instances, the person damaged may have a choice of a common law or statutory cause of action, or both, and be able to proceed on motion made in the trial court or by an independent action. An action for abuse of process, unlike one for malicious prosecution or based on statutory grounds, does not depend on a termination in favor of the defendant of the action in which the attachment issued. Thus, the attachment defendant may assert a cause of action for abuse of process by way of cross complaint in the attachment action [White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 350-351, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345] .

[1] Amendment of Complaint or Affidavit

Release of sureties from liability on attachment undertaking by plaintiff's amendment of complaint changing cause of action. Michelin Tire Co. v. Bentel (1920) 184 Cal. 315, 321-322, 193 P. 770

Defect in affidavit for attachment in action on promissory note, consisting of failure to allege that dissipation of value of security was not caused by any act of plaintiff, as curable. Western Bd. of Adjusters, Inc. v. Covina Pub., Inc. (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 659, 673, 88 Cal. Rptr. 293

Affidavit seeking writ of attachment as amendable to same extent as a complaint, so as to defeat motion to discharge attachment. Rosenberg v. Bullard (1932) 127 Cal. App. 315, 320-321, 15 P.2d 870

[2] Appeal

Appellate court applies same substantial-evidence standard of review to attachment hearing decided on affidavits and declarations as to case tried on oral testimony; court reviews evidence in favor of prevailing party,resolving conflicts and drawing reasonable inferences in support of judgment; though probative facts are undisputed, appellate court unable to substitute its inferences for trial court's that are reasonably grounded on same evidence. Bank of America v. Salinas Nissan, Inc. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 260, 271, 273, 254 Cal. Rptr. 748

Order granting application for writ of attachment as appealable order under former Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(e) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(5)). Lorber Industries v. Turbulence, Inc. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 532, 534 n.1, 221 Cal. Rptr. 233

If appellant's challenge of order granting writ is based on alleged failure of prevailing party to carry burden of proof of probable validity of claim, issue as that of sufficiency of evidence to support order rather than application of statutory standard of probable validity; question of whether prevailing party meets burden of proof is for trier of fact to decide, and is governed on appeal by substantial evidence rule. Lorber Industries v. Turbulence, Inc. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 532, 535, 221 Cal. Rptr. 233

Denial of application for writ of attachment as not appealable order pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(e) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(5)) and Code Civ. Proc. § 904.2(f). International Typographical Union etc. Pension Plan v. Ad Compositors, Inc. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 733, 735, 191 Cal. Rptr. 227

Order, after stipulated judgment, discharging attachment and exonerating undertaking as appealable. Urich Oil Co. v. Crown Discount Dep't Stores (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 743, 746, 110 Cal. Rptr. 316

[3] Claims Subject to Prejudgment Attachment

A claim brought under the Contractors' State License Law against an unlicensed contractor may form the basis for a right to attach order since an agreement for the performance of services lies at the heart of such a claim. Goldstein v. Barak Construction (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 845, 853, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 603

The plaintiff has the burden of proving (1) that his or her claim is one upon which an attachment may be issued, and (2) the probable validity of the claim. A claim has probable validity when it is more likely than not that the plaintiff will obtain a judgment against the defendant on that claim. Kemp Bros. Construction, Inc. v. Titan Electric Corporation (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1474, 1481, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 673

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 483.010(a), (b), attachments may properly issue only to secure anticipated recoveries on contract claims in fixed and readily ascertainable amounts; by necessary implication, attachments are generally unavailable on tort claims due to their unascertainable amounts and because under Code Civ. Proc. § 483.010(a) attachment available only on claims based on contract, express or implied; thus, unless perhaps tort claim were characterized as claim of implied contract or quasi-contract, attachment would not be available on tort claim due to necessity of satisfying contract element. Waffer Internat. Corp. v. Khorsandi (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1261, 1277, 1277 n.16, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 241

For purposes of attachment, California law as generally treating action to recover statutory liability as brought on implied at law contract. Pintor v. Ong (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 837, 844, 259 Cal. Rptr. 577

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 483.010(c), trust estate as subject to prejudgment attachment by law firm in underlying suit for payment of fees and court costs, because trust is not natural person and law firm was not retained to represent trust in consumer transaction. Kadison, Pfaelzer, Woodard, Quinn & Rossi v. Wilson (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1, 4-5, 242 Cal. Rptr. 595

Claim as arising out of individual's trade, business, or profession so as to allow attachment in action against individual on note that individual signed even though individual was nonmanaging, inactive partner in general partnership because loan was for benefit of partnership, was made at request of managing partner, and loan proceeds were immediately loaned to partnership, as loan condition required. Security Pac. Nat. Bank v. Matek (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 1071,

Requirement that residential tenant deposit back rent into court before cross complaint may be filed or action continued as attachment prohibited by Code Civ. Proc. § 483.010(c). Medford v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 236, 239-240, 189 Cal. Rptr. 227

Availability of prejudgment attachment as limited to actions on specific types of claims. Nakasone v. Randall (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 757, 761-762, 181 Cal. Rptr. 324

Remedy of attachment as available to creditor entitled to recover under a contract with owner of property against which creditor might also have claimed a mechanic's lien but did not. San Diego Wholesale Credit Men's Assn. v. Superior Court (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 458, 461-464, 110 Cal. Rptr. 657

Applicability of provisional remedy of attachment to contract containing provision requiring arbitration. Ross v. Blanchard (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 739, 742, 746, 59 Cal. Rptr. 783

[4] Constitutionality

Connecticut statute authorizing prejudgment attachment of real property on filing of affidavit showing probable cause to sustain validity of plaintiff's claim, but without prior notice to defendant, preattachment hearing, showing of extraordinary circumstances, or bond requirement, although providing for postattachment hearing on defendant's motion, as violating due process clause of U.S. Const., amend. XIV. State of Connecticut v. Doehr (1991) 501 U.S. 1, 18-24, 111 S. Ct. 2105, 115 L. Ed. 2d 1

Prejudgment attachment procedure sanctioned by former Code Civ. Proc. § 537(1) relating to attachment against resident defendants as unconstitutional in violation of procedural due process guaranteed by Cal. Const., art. I, § 13, and U.S. Const., amends. V, VIX. Randone v. Appellate Department (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 536, cert. denied, 407 U.S. 924, 92 S. Ct. 2452, 32 L. Ed. 2d 811 (1972)

Attachment Law, being purely creation of Legislature, as required to be strictly construed. Vershbow v. Reiner (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 879, 882, 282 Cal. Rptr. 684

Purpose of attachment statutes as confining attachments to commercial situations and prohibiting them in consumer transactions. Kadison, Pfaelzer, Woodard, Quinn &Rossi v. Wilson (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1, 4, 242 Cal. Rptr. 595

[6] Court Commissioner

Court commissioner's order in favor of law firm against record company for fees for services rendered as not unconstitutionally exceeding authorized subordinate judicial duties; corporation could not claim individual exemption to bring matter within nonsubordinate judicial duties, requiring hearingbefore a judge, under Code Civ. Proc. § 482.060(b). Loeb & Loeb v. Beverly Glen Music, Inc. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1110, 1121, 212 Cal. Rptr. 830

[7] Death of Debtor

Surety on bond to release attached property as not released from liability by debtor's death. Turner v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1921) 187 Cal. 76, 83-84, 200 P. 959

[8] Discharge of Attachment

Motion to discharge attachment on ground that complaint does not state cause of action as proper only if complaint shows on its face that pleader has no cause of action and defect cannot be cured by amendment. Peninsula etc. Co. v. County of Santa Cruz (1950) 34 Cal. 2d 626, 629, 213 P.2d 489

Attachment as discharged on motion when cause is not one provided in statutes authorizing attachment. Beltaire v. Rosenberg (1900) 129 Cal. 164, 168, 61 P. 916 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 537)

While attachment may be discharged if it is improperly or irregularly issued, it also may be terminated by operation of law. Peck v. Hagen (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 602, 608-609, 263 Cal. Rptr. 198

Order discharging or refusing to discharge attachment as not only including motions that claim attachment was improperly or irregularly issued, but as also including motions to discharge by operation of law; thus, order denying party's motion to dissolve attachment on theory that debtor's assignment of attached property was general assignment for benefit of creditors as res judicata on issue as to whether assignment was for benefit of creditors. Peck v. Hagen (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 602, 608-610, 263 Cal. Rptr. 198

Use of writ of mandate to direct court to vacate its order denying motion to discharge writ of attachment. Samuels v. Superior Court (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 264, 266, 81 Cal. Rptr. 216

On motion to discharge attachment, affidavit as pertinent when issue is factual one as to whether writ has been issued in case not provided by statute, but affidavits not to be used to negate existence of alleged cause of action on which attachment rests. Rose v. Pearman (1958) 163 Cal. App. 2d 480, 483-484, 329 P.2d 501

[9] Exemption Claims

Plaintiff's failure to oppose timely exemption claim as conceding its propriety, and absent such opposition, defendant as not required to prove claim; trial court as having no discretion, absent some opposition, to ignore claim. Bank of America v. Salinas Nissan, Inc. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 260, 270, 254 Cal. Rptr. 748

[10] Findings for RTAO

Required showing of probable validity of claim on which attachment is based as satisfied by showing that it is more likely than not that plaintiff will obtain judgment against defendant on claim. Loeb & Loeb v. Beverly Glen Music, Inc. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1110, 1118-1120, 212 Cal. Rptr. 830

[11] Levy Methods

Keeper as not ordinarily required when levy is made on real property; but when attachment is levied on movable property, even though it be classed as fixtures, levying officer as entitled to cost of keeper necessary to safely keep property. Callahan v. Danziger (1916) 172 Cal. 738, 743, 158 P. 760

Promissory note as personal property capable of manual delivery; attaching officer as required to take it into his or her possession, when it can be found, in order to make levy legal. Jubelt v. Sketers (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 653, 655, 191 P.2d 460

[12] Levying Officer

Sheriff as bound to respect and carry out court's order releasing attachment when duly authenticated copy is placed in his hands. Hayward Lumber & Inv. Co. v. Biscailuz (1957) 47 Cal. 2d 716, 724, 306 P.2d 6

Duty of levying officer to make expense of keeping attached property as light as possible consistent with its safekeeping and to incur no unnecessary expense. Callahan v. Danziger (1916) 172 Cal. 738, 742, 158 P. 760

Attachment lien as subject to prior equities against debtor. Haupt v. Charlie's Kosher Market (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 843, 846, 112 P.2d 627

Unlike contractual lien under Civ. Code § 2881(1), attachment lien under Code Civ. Proc. § 491.410 as created only on filing of notice of lien and other papers specified in statute. Bluxome Street Associates v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1149, 1157, 254 Cal. Rptr. 198

Contractual lien on litigant's interest in tort claim, if equities between lien claimants are equal, as taking precedence over subsequently created attachment lien on same tort claim even though no notice of contractual lien is legally required or was filed in tort action. Bluxome Street Associates v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1149, 1158, 254 Cal. Rptr. 198

[14] Multiple Defendants

Plaintiff as not required to obtain judgment against all defendants in order to keep attachment in force or to keep alive surety bond given to release attached property. Golden West C. & A. Co. v. Peardon (1933) 130 Cal. App. 186, 189, 19 P.2d 817

[15] Nonresident Attachment

Attachment of nonresident's property in California under Code Civ. Proc. § 492.010 to establish quasi in rem jurisdiction as designed to operate when personal jurisdiction of defendant cannot be obtained; if defendant subsequently files general appearance, right to attach order as required to be set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 492.050 unless it can be supported by statutory sections relating ordinary attachment, and burden of showing such support as on plaintiff. Nakasone v. Randall (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 757, 760-761, 181 Cal. Rptr. 324

[16] Notice

Attachment order based on notice served by mail 21 days prior to attachment hearing, rather than required 25 days prior to hearing (including service by mail) as not improperly issued when no prejudicial error or injury occurred because of defective notice. Loeb & Loeb v. Beverly Glen Music, Inc. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1110, 1115, 212 Cal. Rptr. 830

[17] Precedence of Attachment and Wage Garnishment Laws

Specific provisions of attachment law and wage garnishment law (Code Civ. Proc. § 706.010 et seq.) as taking precedence over general provisions of Gov. Code § 17051 (procedure for payment of warrant drawn against state when validity or amount is in question); hence, state's planned deduction from salaries of state medical facility employees in order to recoup prior alleged overpayments as improper when deductions did not accord with attachment and wage garnishment laws. California State Employees' Assn. v. State of California (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 374, 378, 243 Cal. Rptr. 602

[18] Priority

Priority of United States tax lien to attachment lien when federal tax lien was recorded subsequent to date of attachment lien but prior to date attaching creditor obtained judgment. United States v. Acri (1955) 348 U.S. 211, 213, 75 S. Ct. 239, 99 L. Ed. 264

Bus. & Prof. Code § 24074, governing transfers in escrow of liquor licenses, as representing mandatory and exclusive scheme for payment of creditors of liquor license transferors, giving creditors who comply with section priority over those who employ any form of levy, such as attachment or garnishment, on proceeds. Grover Escrow Corp. v. Gole (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 61, 62, 77 Cal. Rptr. 21, 453 P.2d 461

Unrecorded deed as effective as against subsequent attachment of land as property of grantor. Overton v. Schmitt (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 163, 167, 59 P.2d 1017

Attack on priority of attaching creditor by subsequent lienholder. Title Ins. etc. Co. v. California Dev. Co. (1915) 171 Cal. 173, 213-222, 152 P. 542

Former Code Civ. Proc. § 561, providing for attachment of interest of debtor in estate, whether interest by that of heir, legatee, or devisee, as permitting attachment or execution on interest of beneficiary of trust created by will of decedent. Estate of Lawrence (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 77, 80, 72 Cal. Rptr. 851

Plaintiff as not allowed to attach assets for which debtor has no actionable demand and which debtor could not recover in own action. Hi-Valley Dev. Corp. v. Walters (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 778, 783, 36 Cal. Rptr. 140

[20] Receivership

Receivership of Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation (FSLIC), though instituted after attachment, as taking priority over attachment and over creditor's action by virtue of 12 U.S.C. §§ 1464(d)(6)(C), former 1730(k)(1); attachment as required to be discharged, creditor's action as required to be dismissed on application of FSLIC. Federal Savings & Loan Ins. Corp. v. Superior Court (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 336, 342-345, 225 Cal. Rptr. 422 , cert. denied, 479 U.S. 1064 (1987)

Use of provisional remedy of attachment in lieu of receivership. Samuels v. Superior Court (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 264, 266-270, 81 Cal. Rptr. 216

[21] Third-Party Claim

Third-party claimant as having sufficient interest to intervene under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 in action when property claimed by third party as owner is attached. Berghauser v. Golden State Orchards (1929) 208 Cal. 550, 552-554, 282 P. 950 ; Hi-Valley Dev. Corp. v. Walters (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 778, 784, 36 Cal. Rptr. 140

[22] Undertaking to Release Attached Property

Sureties on undertaking to release attached property as not able to defeat action by plaintiff against them on undertaking by showing attachment proceedings were voidable; sureties as required to show attachment proceedings were null and void from their inception. Koehler v. Serr (1932) 216 Cal. 143, 146, 13 P.2d 673

Premature return of execution, when return is necessary as foundation for action on undertaking to release attachment, as allowed to be cured by proofthat execution debtor in fact had no leviable property. Passow & Sons v. United States F. & G. Co. (1917) 177 Cal. 31, 34, 170 P. 1124

Regular issuance and return of execution, unsatisfied, as condition precedent to maintenance of action by plaintiff to recover against sureties on defendant's undertaking to release attached property in prior action. Passow & Sons v. United States F. & G. Co. (1917) 177 Cal. 31, 34, 170 P. 1124

Surety as liable for full amount of undertaking and not limited to value of property described in ex parte application or release of attachment order that contained inconsistencies and irregularities; principal and surety estopped from claiming undertaking was not value of property released by court's order because principal was responsible for irregularities and inconsistencies. First v. Armes (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 633, 637-638, 194 Cal. Rptr. 171

[23] Wrongful Attachment

[a] Damages in Action on Bond

[i] In General

Necessity and reasonableness of all expenses incurred in trial of principal action that was necessary to dispose of attachment as determined only with other issues of fact on trial; recovery of travel expenses and expert witness fees. Reachi v. National Auto. & Cas. Co. (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 808, 813, 236 P.2d 151

Fact that attached machinery (oil rig) could not be used further in county in which it was located as not indicating that its adaptability for use elsewhere would not give value to right to use and possess it. Atlas Dev. Co. v. National Surety Co. (1923) 190 Cal. 329, 333, 212 P. 196

Recovery of reasonable value of use of personal property as not prevented by fact that owner had other plans for its disposal that involved speculative sale, or even gratuitous loan. Atlas Dev. Co. v. National Surety Co. (1923) 190 Cal. 329, 333, 212 P. 196 ; Finn v. Witherbee (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 45, 48, 271 P.2d 606

In action for wrongful attachment against surety, fact that amount of money attached and fees charged seem, comparatively speaking, unreasonable, as not true test of recoverability. Stiner v. Travelers Indem. Co. (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 128, 133, 37 Cal. Rptr. 813

Plaintiff in action for wrongful attachment against surety as entitled to recover interest on money deposited to release attached property from attachment; recovery as not defeated by fact that money is deposited with attorney of attaching creditor and attachment released pursuant to agreement between parties, rather than by deposit with officer. Schneider v. Zoeller (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 354, 361-364, 346 P.2d 515

Burden on defendant in wrongful attachment action to prove duty of owner to mitigate damages. Gray v. American Surety Co. (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 471, 476, 277 P.2d 436

[ii] Attorney's Fees

Attorney's fees incurred in defending principal action as not recoverable in action on attachment bond when defendant might have rid himself of attachment without such defense. Reachi v. National Auto. & Cas. Co. (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 808, 811-812, 236 P.2d 151

Attorney's fees as recoverable item of damages when trial of principal action was necessary to dispose of attachment. Reachi v. National Auto. & Cas. Co. (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 808, 812-813, 236 P.2d 151

Allegation in complaint for wrongful attachment against surety that alleges attorney's fees were necessarily incurred in defense of principal action as sufficient for recovery; payment of such fees as not condition precedent to their recovery. Reachi v. National Auto. & Cas. Co. (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 808, 814, 236 P.2d 151

Legal fees and expenses necessary to obtain discharge are recoverable whether incurred before or after levy of attachment. Mart, Inc. v. National Auto. & Cas. Co. (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 772, 774, 58 Cal. Rptr. 877

Entitlement of plaintiff in action against surety on attachment undertaking to attorney's fees incurred in defense of principal action when motions to quash and for summary judgment were unsuccessful and remaining recourse was to defend on merts. White v. Indemnity Ins. Co. (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 160, 163, 54 Cal. Rptr. 630

[b] Liability of Attachment Creditor

Applicability of doctrine of collateral estoppel in action for wrongful attachment when issues of damages resulting from attachment were decided in previous action against surety on bond. Klinell v. Shirey (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 239, 244-246, 35 Cal. Rptr. 901

Attachment plaintiff as only liable for detriment caused when attachment is levied maliciously and without probable cause. Finn v. Witherbee (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 45, 50, 271 P.2d 606

Liability of creditor who authorizes collection agency to collect debt owed for him for wrongful attachment by collection agency. Clark v. Andrews (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 193, 199, 240 P.2d 330

In action for malicious attachment, malice as permitted to be inferred from proof of want of probable cause, but want of probable cause as not to be inferred from malice. Pacific Nat. Co. v. Southwest Fin. Co. (1935) 4 Cal. App. 2d 326, 330, 40 P.2d 862

[c] Liability of Levying Officer

Liability of levying officer and sureties on official bond for failure of officer to keep attached property safely when warehouseman with whom officer stored attached property sold property for storage fees. Aigeltinger v. Whelan (1901) 133 Cal. 110, 112, 65 P. 125

Sheriff as liable for conversion to owner of attached personal property when warehouseman sold property before main action was determined. Reynolds v. Lerman (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 586, 592, 292 P.2d 559

Liability of levying officer for failure to file inventory; complaint alleging that inventory was not filed and as result plaintiff owner was required to expend time and money in search of property as stating cause of action. Glidden v. Wills (1955) 136 Cal. App. 2d 596, 599, 289 P.2d 55

Discovery in action for wrongful attachment against surety. Burke v. Superior Court (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 276, 282-286, 78 Cal. Rptr. 481, 455 P.2d 409

Surety on undertaking to release attached property as not released from obligations of undertaking by subsequent bankruptcy of debtor. Higgins v. Brainard (1932) 214 Cal. 647, 655, 8 P.2d 135

Action against surety on attachment undertaking as insufficient in absence of allegation that demand had been made on plaintiff for payment of damages, or that such damages were unpaid. Atlas Dev. Co. v. National Surety Co. (1923) 190 Cal. 329, 334, 212 P. 196 (dictum); Swain v. Los Angeles Morris Plan Co. (1923) 60 Cal. App. 667, 670, 213 P. 703 ; contra Finn v. Witherbee (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 45, 49, 271 P.2d 606 (citing Civ. Code § 2807, providing that surety is liable to creditor immediately on default of principal, without demand or notice)

Remedy against sureties as sustained by allegation and proof that writ was wrongfully procured; averment of malice and want of probable cause as not required. Vesper v. Crane Co. (1913) 165 Cal. 36, 41, 130 P. 876

Attaching creditor as having no cause of action for fraud against surety on bond to release defendant's property from attachment. Bezaire v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 888, 892, 91 Cal. Rptr. 142

Cause of action for wrongful attachment against sureties as not accruing until there has been favorable termination of action claimed to constitute malicious prosecution; cause of action does not accrue during pendency of appeal on action in which attachment is issued. Smith v. Hill (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 374, 386, 47 Cal. Rptr. 49 ; Davis v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 13, 15-16, 208 P.2d 414

Liability of surety on attachment undertaking as arising only by virtue of its contract and statutory provisions under which it is executed and given. Schneider v. Zoeller (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 354, 358, 346 P.2d 515

[24] Void Writ

Writ issued by court clerk without posting of bond, as required by Attachment Law and court order, even though properly recorded and notice of its existence given to property owners, as in violation of procedural requirements of Attachment Law and void. *Vershbow v. [1] FORM Application for Right to Attach Order, Temporary Protective Order, etc. [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 482.030, 484.010 et seq.]--Judicial Council Form AT-105

CAUTION:

When this form is used as an application to obtain an ex parte right to attach order and writ of attachment or to obtain a temporary protective order, it must be supported by an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) showing compliance with the notice or excuse of notice requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1203-3.1204. For discussion of those requirements and a form of declaration, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

This form is an illustrative filled-in reproduction of the form approved by the Judicial Council for optional use to obtain a right to attach order (RTAO), a temporary protective order, a writ of attachment, and additional writs of attachment against property of a resident or nonresident of California [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.010; Cal. Judicial Council Form AT-105].

The form may be used for both ex parte and noticed hearing procedures. Various applications of the form are discussed below. This form has been filled in with an example of an application for a right to attach order and a writ of attachment ex parte against a natural person who is a California resident [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010 et seq.].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in

PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Supporting Papers for Ex Parte RTAO, Nonresident Attachment, or Other Applications

When this form is used as an application to obtain an ex parte right to attach order and writ of attachment, it must include or be supported by an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) showing that the plaintiff will suffer great or irreparable injury if the issuance of the order is delayed until the matter can be heard on notice (Paragraph 13) [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010(a), 485.210(c)(2); see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010(b) (circumstances constituting great and irreparable injury)].

If the application is for an ex parte right to attach order and writ of attachment, the affidavit or declaration must also show that the plaintiff is entitled to a judgment on the claim on which the attachment is based (Paragraph 7), and that the property sought to be attached is not exempt from attachment (Paragraph 10) [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.210(c)].

If this form is used as an application for a right to attach order and writ of attachment against a nonresident, it must be supported by an affidavit or declaration showing that the action is one for the recovery of moneyagainst a natural person who does not reside in California or a business entity described in Code Civ. Proc. § 492.010 (Paragraphs 2a(2), 2b(2), 2d(2)), that plaintiff on the facts presented is entitled to judgment on the claim on which the attachment is based (Paragraph 7), and that the property sought to be attached is subject to attachment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 492.040 (Paragraphs 8, 9b) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 492.020(b), 492.010].

This form of application is a declaration sufficient to satisfy the requirement of an affidavit if the appropriate paragraphs are completed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]. The facts showing that plaintiff is entitled to judgment may alternatively be included in an a verified complaint or affidavit [see Paragraphs 7a, 7b].

When this form is used as a notice of motion, a memorandum of points and authorities must be served and filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1103(a)(2), 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[4] Additional Uses of Form

The foregoing form may also be used to obtain the following orders or writs:

- An RTAO and writ of attachment after noticed hearing against a resident defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.010 et seq.].

- An ex parte temporary protective order pending a hearing on an RTAO and writ of attachment against a resident defendant pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 484.010 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.010 et seq.].

- An RTAO and writ of attachment ex parte against a nonresident defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.010 et seq.].

- A writ of attachment or additional writ ex parte or after noticed hearing after an RTAO has been previously issued under the noticed hearing procedure [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.010 et seq.], or after the court has found pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240 that the plaintiff was entitled to a right to attach order following a motion brought by defendant to set aside the ex parte order and quash the writ of attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.310 et seq. (noticed hearing), Code Civ. Proc. § 484.510 et seq. (ex parte)].

- An additional writ of attachment ex parte after a writ of attachment and RTAO have been previously issued pursuant to the ex parte procedure set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 485.210 et seq. and there has been no hearing on a motion to set aside or quash [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.510et seq.].

- An additional writ of attachment against a nonresident defendant after a hearing on a motion to set aside the ex parte order and quash the writ of attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.050(d)].

- An additional writ of attachment ex parte after a writ of attachment and RTAO have been issued against a nonresident defendant but prior to hearing on a motion to quash or set aside [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.060 et seq.].

- An order issued with the writ of attachment directing the defendant to transfer to the levying officer possession of the property when the property is sought to be attached by taking the property into custody, or possession of documentary evidence of title to defendant's property or to a debt owed to defendant, or possession of both the property and evidence of title [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.080].

[5] Filling Out the Form

[a] Caption and Defendant's Capacity and Resident Status

Plaintiff should mark the appropriate box next to the relief requested in both the caption and Paragraph 1. The defendant's name should be inserted in Paragraph 2 and the appropriate box should be checked designating the capacity and status of the defendant as a resident or nonresident.

The capacity of the defendant is important in determining the property of the defendant subject to attachment, as well as the description of the property sought to be attached, which is contained in Paragraph 9 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 487.010 (property subject to attachment); Code Civ. Proc. § 484.020(e) (description of property)].

The defendant's status as a resident or nonresident bears on the nature of the claim on which an attachment may issue and the property subject to attachment. In addition, an RTAO and writ of attachment may issue ex parte against a nonresident defendant without the showing of great or irreparable injury to the plaintiff that is required when the defendant is a resident [see Code Civ. Proc. § 492.010 et seq.].

[b] Amount to Be Secured and Property Description

The amount to be secured by the attachment, which may include an estimate of the amount of allowable costs and attorney fees, should be inserted in Paragraph 8. The appropriate box in Paragraph 7a-c should be checked, and if the defendant is an individual, the information requested in 7c should be provided. When the defendant is an individual, the description of the property should be reasonably adequate to permit the defendant to identify the specific property sought to be attached [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.020].

[c] Defendant's Known Debts

If an ex parte attachment is sought under Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010(b)(2) (insolvency of debtor), the affidavit must state, in addition to therequirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 485.530, the known undisputed debts of the defendant, that the debts are not subject to bona fide dispute, and the basis for plaintiff's determination that the defendant's debts are undisputed [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010(b)(2)]. This information should be supplied in Paragraph 13a(5).

[d] Filing of Undertaking

In Paragraph 15, plaintiff should indicate whether or not an undertaking has been filed. Although an undertaking is not required to be filed at the time of the application, an undertaking is required to be filed before the issuance of a temporary protective order, a right to attach order pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 491.415, or a writ of attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.210]. Unless objected to, the amount of undertaking required is provided by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 489.220].

[e] Obtaining Ex Parte Temporary Protective Order

When an ex parte temporary protective order is sought pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 486.010 et seq., this form should be completed in the same manner as the example, but with the box in Paragraph 13 pertaining to temporary protective orders checked instead of the box pertaining to an order for a writ of attachment. The same showing of irreparable injury that is required for an ex parte RTAO and writ of attachment is required for a temporary protective order [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 486.010(b), 486.020(d)].

In addition, Paragraph 14 should be checked and counsel should insert the temporary protective order that is requested. The temporary protective order may prohibit a transfer by the defendant of any of the defendant's property in the state subject to the levy of the writ of attachment, and must describe the property in a manner adequate to permit the defendant to identify the property subject to the temporary protective order [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.050]. A temporary protective order forbidding the transfer of farm products or inventory held for sale, or covering defendant's accounts in a financial institution, is subject to the restrictions set forth in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 486.050 and 486.060. In addition, the temporary protective order binds only the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.070].

[f] Obtaining Right to Attach Order and Writ of Attachment After Noticed Hearing

When an RTAO and writ of attachment is sought after a hearing pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 484.010 et seq., the form should be completed in the same manner as the filled-in example, except that the plaintiff need not complete Paragraph 13 because Code Civ. Proc. § 484.020 does not require a showing of great or irreparable injury.

[g] Obtaining Writ of Attachment After Previous Issuance of Right to Attach Order or Determination of Entitlement to Order

When obtaining a writ of attachment ex parte [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.510 et seq.] or on a noticed hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.310 et seq.] following a previously issued RTAO or determination that plaintiff was entitled to an RTAO, the form should be completed in the same manner as the filled-in example except for the following differences:

- If the writ sought is an additional writ, that should be indicated in the caption. Plaintiff should complete either Paragraph 11.

- Because the procedure [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 484.320, 484.510 et seq.] does not require that the plaintiff show great or irreparable injury, the plaintiff need not complete Paragraph 13.

[h] Obtaining Additional Writ of Attachment Ex Parte on Property of Resident Defendant

To obtain an additional writ of attachment ex parte pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 485.510 et seq. after an RTAO and writ of attachment has been previously issued pursuant to the ex parte procedure [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.210 et seq.], plaintiff should complete the form in the same manner as the filled-in example [see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.520].

In addition, the box opposite Paragraph 11 should be checked, the date the RTAO was issued filled in. Paragraph 13, setting forth the circumstances showing great or irreparable injury, must be completed [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 485.520, 485.430].

[i] Obtaining Right to Attach Order and Writ of Attachment Ex Parte on Nonresident Defendant's Property

When obtaining an RTAO and writ of attachment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 492.010 et seq. against a nonresident defendant, the attachment may issue in any action for the recovery of money, and the limitation of Code Civ. Proc. § 483.010(a) does not apply [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.010]. The Code Civ. Proc. § 483.010(a) limitation states that an attachment may only issue in an action on a claim for money based on an express or implied contract when the amount is fixed and not less than $500.00 exclusive of costs, interest, and attorney's fees.

Note, however, that after an RTAO and writ of attachment issue, on a motion to set aside and quash brought by a nonresident defendant who has filed a general appearance, the RTAO must be set aside unless plaintiff shows that the order is authorized by a provision other than Code Civ. Proc. § 492.010 [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.050(c)].

If the nonresident defendant has not made a general appearance, all property for which a method of levy is provided by Code Civ. Proc.§ 488.300 et seq. may be subject to a writ of attachment, so the box opposite 9b should be checked. Note, again, that if a general appearance has been filed, only nonexempt property may be levied on, and any property previously levied on that is exempt must be released on court order [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.040; see Code Civ. Proc. § 487.020 (exempt property)]. Because the application must satisfy the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 484.020, which provides for the description of the property to be levied on, the remainder of Paragraph 9 should be filled out as in the filled-in example [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.020].

The box opposite Paragraph 12 should be checked if the nonresident defendant has not made a general appearance. It would appear that if the nonresident defendant has filed a general appearance the defendant is treated as a resident under the Attachment Law [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 492.040, 492.050(c)].

[j] Obtaining Additional Writs Against Nonresident Defendant

[i] After Hearing on Motion to Set Aside Order and Quash Writ of Attachment

If, after an ex parte RTAO and writ of a attachment have been issued, the defendant brings a motion to set aside the order and quash the writ of attachment, and on hearing the court finds the plaintiff entitled to an RTAO, additional writs may be obtained by following the procedures outlined in Code Civ. Proc. § 484.310 et seq. (noticed hearing) or Code Civ. Proc. § 485.510 et seq. (ex parte) [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.050(d)]. Accordingly, the form should be filled in as indicated under § 62.130[5][g].

[ii] Prior to Hearing on Motion to Set Aside and Quash

When obtaining an additional writ against a nonresident defendant prior to a hearing on a motion to set aside the RTAO and quash the writ of attachment but after an RTAO and writ of attachment have been issued pursuant to the nonresident attachment provisions [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.010 et seq.], Paragraph 9 should be completed as indicated under § 62.130[5][j]. In addition, the box opposite Paragraph 10 should be checked and the date of the order filled in.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an illustrative filled-in reproduction of the form approved by the Judicial Council for optional use to give notice of an application and hearing for a right to attach order (RTAO) and order for issuance of a writ of attachment, or for issuance of a writ of attachment or additional writs of attachment when the RTAO has already been issued or plaintiff's entitlement to it has already been determined [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 484.040, 484.050; Cal. Judicial Council Form AT-115]. This form is filled out with an example of how to give notice of an application and hearing for an RTAO and order for issuance of a writ of attachment made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 484.010 et seq.

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Additional Uses of Form

This form may also be used to notice the following:

- An application and hearing for an order for the issuance of a writ of attachment or additional writ after an RTAO has been issued pursuant to the notice hearing provisions, or after the court has previously determined that the plaintiff is entitled to an RTAO at a hearing on the defendant's motion to set aside the RTAO and quash the writ of attachment [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 484.310 et seq., 485.240(c)].

- An application and hearing for an order for the issuance of an additional writ of attachment against a nonresident defendant after the court has previously determined that the plaintiff is entitled to an RTAO at a hearing on the defendant's motion to set aside the RTAO and quash the writ of attachment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 492.050(d)].

[a] General Information

Plaintiff should mark the appropriate box in both the caption and Paragraph 2 opposite the description of the type of application and hearing for which the notice is being made. Paragraph 3 should be completed showing the date and place of the hearing.

[b] Noticing Application for Writ of Attachment or Additional Writ of Attachment Alone

When noticing an application for a writ of attachment or additional writ of attachment, Paragraphs 6a and 6b should not be checked and Paragraph 6d(2) should be checked instead of Paragraph 6d(1).

[5] Service of Notice

If the application is for a writ of attachment under Code Civ. Proc. § 484.040, notice must ordinarily be served in the time prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b), that is, at least 16 court days before the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.040(b); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a)(1); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300]. If, however, the notice is served by mail, the required 16-day period of notice before the time appointed for the hearing must be increased by five calendar days if the place of mailing and the place of address are within the State of California, 10 calendar days if either the place of mailing or the place of address is outside the State of California but within the United States, and 20 calendar days if either the place of mailing or the place of address is outside the United States [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)]. If notice is served by fax, Express Mail or other method of overnight delivery, the period is extended by two calendar days [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)]. An extension of two court days, as opposed to calendar days, may apply in case of electronic service made pursuant to a local rule adopted under Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6); for discussion, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers, § 518.41[8]]. For further discussion of notice under section 1005, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders].

If the application is for an order for the issuance of an additional writ of attachment under Code Civ. Proc. § 484.310, notice must be served at least 15 days before the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.330].

[2] Use of Form

This form of order is an illustrative filled-in example of the form approved by the Judicial Council for optional use when an RTAO and order for issuance of a writ of attachment is obtained after a hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.090; Cal. Judicial Council Form AT-120].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Additional Use of Form

This form may also be used when the plaintiff obtains an order for issuance of a writ of attachment following a hearing after an RTAO has been previously issued pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 484.010 et seq., or after a previous determination has been made under Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240 that the plaintiff is entitled to an RTAO [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.310 et seq.].

[4] Filling Out the Form

[a] Timing and General Information

This order may either be prepared prior to the hearing in anticipation of the findings to be made by the court or after the hearing. The type of relief sought at the hearing should be designated by counsel in the caption and Paragraph 1. In addition, the information requested in Paragraphs 1a-d should be completed.

[b] Court Findings

Paragraph 2 contains the findings of the court:

- Paragraph 2a should be filled out in every instance in which an RTAO is obtained following a hearing because the findings are necessary to the issuance of an RTAO after a hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.090(a)].

- Paragraph 2f is for use when defendant filed either a notice of opposition or claim of exemption claiming that the property described in the plaintiff's application was exempt from attachment and failed to prove the claim of exemption.

- Paragraph 2g is for use when property described in the plaintiff's application is found to be exempt from attachment.

- Paragraph 2h should be completed when the defendant claims that property not described in the plaintiff's application is exempt from attachment and the court finds that it is or is not exempt.

- In Paragraph 2i counsel should indicate the amount of the undertaking required and whether or not an undertaking has been filed. A writ of attachment may not issue unless the undertaking has been filed, although the filing of an undertaking is not required at the time of an application for the issuance of a writ of attachment [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 484.090(b), 484.370]. The amount of the undertaking, unless objected to, is provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 489.220.

[c] Court Orders

Paragraph 3 contains the orders of the court:

- Paragraph 3a should be completed when an RTAO is obtained.

- The box opposite Paragraph 3b should be checked if the court finds that the property claimed by defendant to be exempt is exempt.

- Paragraph 3c contains the order for the issuance of the writ of attachment, and provides for immediate issuance if an undertaking has already been filed or for issuance of the writ when the undertaking is filed. The description of the property subject to the writ of attachment, which is dependent on whether or not the defendant is a natural person, should be provided by completing either Paragraph 3c(1) or 3c(2). Paragraphs 3c(3) (relating to property covered by a bulk sales notice) and 3c(4) (relating to proceeds from an escrow in which a liquor license is sold) should be filled in when relevant.

- Paragraph 3d is for use when the writ of attachment is accompanied by an order that the defendant transfer to the levying officer documentary evidence of title to the defendant's property or of a debt owed to defendant, or possession of the property if the property is sought to be attached by taking it into custody, or possession of the property and the documentary evidence. Note that any order to this effect must be personally served on the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.080].

[d] Order for Issuance of Writ of Attachment After Previously Issued Right to Attach Order or Determination of Entitlement to Order

When the plaintiff obtains an order for issuance of a writ of attachment following a hearing after an RTAO has been previously issued pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 484.010 et seq., or after a previous determination has been made under Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240 that plaintiff was entitled to an RTAO, this form should be completed in the same manner as the filled-in example except that Paragraph 2j or 2k should be completed. The court must make a finding that an RTAO has been issued pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 484.090, or that a determination has been made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240 that plaintiff is entitled to an RTAO [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.370(a)]. If the finding regarding a prior determination under*Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240* is required, it should be entered under Paragraph 2k.

[2] Use of Form

This form of order is an illustrative filled-in example of the form approved by the Judicial Council for optional use to obtain an RTAO and order for issuance of a writ of attachment, or to obtain only a writ or an additional writ of attachment, ex parte against a resident defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 485.210, 485.220; Cal. Judicial Form AT-125]. This form has been filled in to illustrate how an RTAO and order for issuance of a writ of attachment is obtained pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 485.210 et seq.

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Additional Uses of Form

This form may also be used when the plaintiff obtains the following against a resident defendant:

- An order for issuance of a writ of attachment or an additional writ ex parte after an RTAO has been previously issued pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 484.010 et seq., or after a previous determination has been made under Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240 that plaintiff is entitled to an RTAO [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 484.510-484.530, 485.240(c)].

- An additional writ of attachment after an RTAO and writ of attachment have been issued under the ex parte procedure and there has been no hearing on a motion to set aside the order and quash the writ [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 485.240(c), 485.510-485.540].

[a] General Instructions and Findings

This form should be completed in the same manner as § 62.132 (RTAO and order for issuance of writ of attachment after hearing). However, there must be a finding of great or irreparable injury within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010 when the RTAO and writ of attachment is obtained ex parte pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 485.210 et seq., or an additional writ of attachment is obtained after an order and writ have been issued pursuant to the ex parte procedure but before a hearing on a motion to set aside and quash pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 485.510 et seq. (Paragraph 2i) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 485.220(a)(5), 485.540(c)].

[b] Ex Parte Order for Issuance of Writ After Previous Right to Attach Order or Previous Determination of Entitlement to Order

When an ex parte order for issuance of a writ or additional writ is obtained after a previously issued RTAO or previous determination that the plaintiff is entitled to one, the only required findings are that a right to attach order has been issued pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 484.010-484.110 or that the court has found pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240 that the plaintiff is entitled to a right to attach order and that the property to be attached is not exempt from attachment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.520]. Thus, it appears that Paragraph 2i on great or irreparable injury need not be completed. However, Paragraph 2j, or if the finding regarding a prior determination under Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240 is required, 2k should be completed, as appropriate.

[c] Ex Parte Additional Writ of Attachment

When an ex parte additional writ of attachment is obtained after the court previously issued an RTAO and writ of attachment pursuant to the ex parte procedure but there has been no hearing on a motion to set aside the order or quash the writ, Paragraph 2j should be completed and the box opposite "Code Civ. Proc. § 485.220 (ex parte)" should be checked. Note that a finding of great or irreparable injury must be made and thus Paragraph 2i must be completed [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.540(c)].

If an ex parte attachment is sought under Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010(b)(2) (insolvency of debtor), the affidavit must state, in addition to the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 485.530, the known undisputed debts of the defendant, that the debts are not subject to bona fide dispute, and the basis for plaintiff's determination that the defendant's debts are undisputed [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010(b)(2)]. This information should be supplied in Paragraph 2i(2) and a supporting affidavit or declaration filed with the application.

[2] Use of Form

This form of order is an illustrative filled-in example of a form approved by the Judicial Council for optional use to obtain an RTAO and order for issuance for a writ of attachment, or an additional writ of attachment, ex parte against a nonresident defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 485.210, 485.220, 492.020, 492.030; Cal. Judicial Council Form AT-130]. This form has been filled in to illustrate how an RTAO and order for issuance of a writ of attachment are obtained ex parte against a nonresident defendant pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 485.210 et seq.

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Additional Use of Form

This form may also be used when an additional ex parte writ of attachment against a nonresident defendant is obtained pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 492.070 and 492.090. An additional writ may only be obtained ex parte when an RTAO and writ of attachment have been issued pursuant to the nonresident provisions and before a hearing on a motion to set aside the order and quash the writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.060]. After such a hearing, additional writs must be obtained by following the ex parte or notice hearing procedure for resident defendants [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.050(d); see § 62.130].

[4] Filling Out the Form

[a] General Instructions

The type of order obtained should be indicated in the caption and Paragraph 1.

Paragraph 2a must be filled out to show defendant's status as a party subject to nonresident attachment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 492.010, 492.030(a)(3)].

[b] Undertaking

In Paragraph 2i, the amount of the undertaking inserted, and it should be indicated whether or not an undertaking has been filed. The amount of undertaking, unless objected to, is provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 489.220. An undertaking must be filed prior to issuance of a writ of attachment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 492.030(a), 492.090].

[c] Order

The order (Paragraph 3) should be completed in the same manner as the order in §§ 62.132 and 62.133.

[d] Additional Writ of Attachment

When an additional writ of attachment is obtained, the box opposite Paragraph 2h should be checked and the date of the issuance of the RTAO filled in.

[1] FORM Temporary Protective Order [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 486.020-486.060]--Judicial Council Form AT-140

This form of order is an illustrative filled-in example of the form approved by the Judicial Council for optional use when a temporary protective order is obtained [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 486.020-486.060; Cal. Judicial Council Form AT-140].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Effect of Order

A temporary protective order is issued by the court to preserve the property sought to be attached until an RTAO and writ of attachment are issued. The order binds only the defendant and must be personally served on the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 486.070, 486.080]. Service of the order on the defendant creates a lien on the property, or the proceeds of the property, that is described in the order and is owned by the defendant at the time of the service of the order and is subject to attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.110].

[4] Application for Order

The temporary protective order may be issued by the court on an application made by the plaintiff in conjunction with an application for an RTAO and writ of attachment after a noticed hearing [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 486.010, 486.020; see §

62.130]. It may also be issued by the court on an application for an ex parte RTAO and writ of attachment when the court determines that the requirements for the issuance of these orders are satisfied but in the interest of justice and equity the temporary protective order should issue instead [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.030(a); see §§ 62.133, 62.134]. If this is done, the plaintiff's application for an ex parte RTAO and writ of attachment is to be treated as an application for an RTAO and writ of attachment after hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.030(b)].

[a] General Instructions

In Paragraph 1 the appropriate box should be checked indicating that the order is issued either on an application for the order and RTAO and writ of attachment after hearing, or on an application for an ex parte RTAO and order for issuance of writ of attachment [see discussion under§ 62.135[4]]. Paragraph 2a should be completed indicating the defendant's capacity and 2b stating the amount sought to be secured by the attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.020].

[b] Issuance in Conjunction With or Instead of Ex Parte Attachment

If the temporary protective order is issued in conjunction with an ex parte attachment order under Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010(b)(2) (insolvency of debtor), Paragraph 2f(2) should be checked [see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.010(b)(2)].

If the temporary protective order is being issued instead of the ex parte RTAO and writ of attachment for which plaintiff applied, the box opposite Paragraph 2g is checked. The amount of the undertaking required prior to the issuance of the order should be inserted in Paragraph 2h. The amount, unless objected to, is provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 489.220.

[c] Property Subject to Order

The property subject to the temporary protective order must be described in a manner adequate to permit the defendant to identify the property (Paragraph 2i) [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.050].

If the property is inventory or farm products held for sale, the description of the property should be inserted in Paragraph 2j and the box opposite Paragraph 2j checked. Property that is inventory or farm products held for sale may be transferred by the defendant notwithstanding the temporary protective order if the transfer is in the ordinary course of business. The temporary protective order, however, may impose restrictions on the disposition of the proceeds from that type of transfer [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.050(b)]. Thus, if the property is inventory or farm products held for sale, Paragraph 3b should be checked and any exceptions to the restriction on the defendant prohibiting the disposal of the proceeds set out.

Note that the notice to the defendant contains a list of the types of checks and total amount of checks that may be issued by the defendant from the defendant's deposit account in a financial institution, notwithstanding the temporary protective order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 486.060].

[d] Additional Orders and Expiration Date

If there are any additional orders made by the court, the box opposite Paragraph 3c should be checked and the orders set forth there. The date of the expiration of the order is inserted in Paragraph 3d. The temporary protective order expires at the earlier of (1) 40 days or on an earlier date set by the court, or (2) when the levy of attachment on the property described in the order is made by the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.090].

CAUTION:
A memorandum of points and authorities is required to be served and filed with this notice of motion [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 303(a)(2), 313(a)]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, *Points and Authorities .

[2] Use of Form

This form is an illustrative filled-in example of the form approved by the Judicial Council for optional use in making an application and noticing a hearing on an application to terminate, vacate, or modify a temporary protective order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 489.320; Cal. Judicial Council Form AT-145]. This form has been filled out to illustrate how to apply for termination of the order pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 489.320, which allows termination on application by noticed motion when the defendant has filed an undertaking to pay the plaintiff the amount of any judgment recovered. The undertaking must be in an amount equal to the amount sought to be secured by the plaintiff's attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.320].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Additional Use of Form

This form may also be used to apply to modify or vacate a temporary protective order on the ground that modification or termination would be in the interest of justice and equity to the parties, taking into consideration the effect on the defendant of the continuance of the original order, the effect on the plaintiff of modifying or vacating the order, and any other factors. The order may be modified or vacated on the ex parte application of the defendant or, if the court so orders, on noticed hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.100].

[a] General Instructions

Paragraphs 1 and 2 should be completed only when the application is being made on noticed hearing. It would appear that because the application to modify or vacate a temporary protective order under Code Civ. Proc. § 486.100 need only be made on noticed hearing when the court so orders, counsel would usually make the application ex parte [see Code Civ. Proc. § 486.100].

Either Paragraph 2b or 2c should be checked to indicate whether the application is to vacate or to modify the order and the date of the orderto be vacated or modified filled in. If the application is to modify the order, the proposed modification should be inserted in Paragraph 2c. If the application is made ex parte, Paragraph 3 should be completed in this manner instead of Paragraph 2.

[b] Supporting Facts

The facts showing that vacation or modification would be in the interest of justice and equity to the parties should be set out in Paragraph 5b, or Paragraph 5a should be checked and an affidavit or declaration attached setting out those facts [see Code Civ. Proc. § 486.100]. Supporting points and authorities may be attached or set out in the form itself (Paragraph 5c or 5d).

[2] Use of Form

This form of order is an illustrative filled-in example of the form approved by the Judicial Council for optional use to terminate, vacate, or modify a temporary protective order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 489.320; Cal. Judicial Council Form AT-150]. This form has been filled in to illustrate how an order terminating a temporary protective order on the filing of an undertaking by the defendant is obtained pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 489.320.

[3] Additional Use of Form

The form may also be used when an order vacating or modifying a temporary protective order in the interest of justice and equity to the parties is obtained pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 486.100.

[4] Filling Out the Form

[a] General Instructions

The appropriate box in the caption and in Paragraph 1 should be checked indicating the type of order obtained. It should also be indicated in Paragraph 1a or 1b whether the order is being made after noticed hearing or ex parte. If the order is being made after noticed hearing, the information requested in Paragraphs 1a(1)-(4) should be supplied.

Before a temporary protective order is vacated or modified there must be a determination by the court that a vacation or modification of the order is in the interest of justice and equity to the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 486.100]. Accordingly, the box opposite Paragraph 2b should be checked.

The date of the temporary protective order should be inserted and it should be indicated in Paragraph 2b whether the order is vacated or modified. The factors on which the modification or vacation is based should also be specified in Paragraph 2b.

[b] Court Order

Paragraph 3 contains the order of the court. The date of the temporary protective should be inserted in Paragraph 3a and the box should be checked to indicate whether the order is vacated or modified. If the order is modified the modification should be inserted in Paragraph 3a. Paragraph 3b is for use when any other order is made by the court.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an illustrative filled-in example of the form approved by the Judicial Council for optional use by the defendant to oppose an application for an RTAO, or to claim that property is exempt from attachment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.060; Cal. Judicial Council Form AT-155]. This form has been filled in to illustrate how to give notice pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 484.060 that the defendant will oppose the issuance of an RTAO at a hearing set by the plaintiff.

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Additional Uses of Form

This form may also be used by the defendant for the following purposes in connection with the hearing on the plaintiff's application for an RTAO:

- To object to the amount sought to be secured by the attachment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.060].
- To claim an exemption on the property sought to be attached [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.070(a)].
- To claim an exemption on any additional property which is not sought to be attached [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.070(b)].

The form may also be used to give notice of a motion and to move for a claim of exemption on property levied on which is necessary for the support of the defendant who is a natural person or the defendant's family [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 482.100, 484.530(b), 485.610(b)], and to claim an exemption on property levied on [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 482.100, 484.530, 485.610].

[4] Time for Filing

If the defendant desires to oppose the issuance of a RTAO or objects to the amount sought to be secured by the attachment, the defendant must file and serve a notice of opposition on the plaintiff no later than five days before the date set for the hearing on the issuance of the RTAO and writ of attachment. If the notice of opposition is not filed within this time, thedefendant will not be permitted to oppose the issuance of the order [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.060].

[5] Filling Out the Form

[a] Hearing and Grounds

When opposing the issuance of an RTAO, the opposition is made at the hearing set by the plaintiff, and it appears that there would be no need to give notice of the hearing. However, for the sake of clarity, counsel may wish to insert the date, time, and place of the hearing set by the plaintiff in Paragraph 2.

The grounds for the opposition must be set forth in the notice and must be accompanied by an affidavit or declaration supporting any factual issues raised, and by points and authorities supporting any legal issues raised [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.060; for general form of declaration, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders]. An RTAO will only be issued if the court finds that (1) the claim is one on which an attachment may be based pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 483.010, (2) the plaintiff has established the probable validity of the claim, and (3) the attachment is not sought for a purpose other than recovery on a claim on which the attachment is based, and (4) the amount to be secured by the attachment is greater than zer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 484.090]. Opposition based on the absence of one or more of these grounds should be set out in Paragraph 4.

[b] Objection to Amount Sought to be Secured by the Attachment

When the amount sought to be secured by the attachment is objected to, the caption should be completed in the same manner as in the example because that is an objection to the RTAO sought by plaintiff. The same time period for filing a notice of objection to an RTAO applies when the objection is to the amount sought to be secured by the attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.060; see discussion under§ 62.138[4]]. Because this objection, like the objection to the RTAO, will be at the hearing set by the plaintiff, it does not appear that the defendant needs to give notice of the hearing. However, for clarity counsel may wish to complete Paragraph 2.

When objecting to the amount sought to be secured by the attachment, Paragraph 4b should be checked and the grounds of opposition set forth there. The plaintiff must state in the application for the RTAO the amount to be secured by the attachment and may include an estimate of costs and allowable attorney's fees [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 482.110(a), 484.020(b); see § 62.130]. Except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 483.015(b) (offsets) and Code Civ. Proc. § 483.020 (in cases of unlawful detainer), the amount to be secured by the attachment is the sum of the amount of the defendant's indebtedness to the plaintiff, and any additional amount included at the discretion of the court for costs and allowable attorney's fees [Code Civ. Proc. § 483.015(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 482.110(b)]. In unlawful detainer proceedings the amount to be secured is the sum of the amount of unpaid rent as of the filing of the complaint, costs and allowable attorney's fees in the court's discretion, and also in the discretion of the court, an amount equal to the rent for the period from the date the complaint is filed to the estimated date of judgment or such earlier estimated date as possession has been or is likely to be delivered to the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 483.020]. Thus, an objection may be interposed to the inclusion or amount of attorney's fees or of costs. Objection may also be made to the amount of the claimed indebtedness or in the case of an unlawful detainer proceeding, the amount of unpaid rent and/or the estimated amount due from the filing of the complaint to the date of judgment or other earlier time.

In addition, the amount to be secured by the attachment may be reduced by (1) the amount of any money judgment in favor of the defendant against the plaintiff that remains unsatisfied and enforceable, (2) the amount of any indebtedness claimed by the defendant against the plaintiff by way of a cross complaint if the claim in the cross complaint is one on which an attachment could issue, (3) the amount of any claim asserted of the defendant asserted as a defense in the answer pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70(cross-demand) if that claim is one on which an attachment could be issued had an action been brought on the claim when it was not barred by the statute of limitations, and (4) the value of any security interest in the property of the defendant held by the plaintiff to secure the defendant's indebtedness claimed by the plaintiff, together with the amount by which the value of the security interest has decreased due to the act of the plaintiff or a prior holder of the security interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 483.015(b)]. Thus, the entitlement to a reduction might also be asserted in Paragraph 4b as the ground of opposition.

[c] Noticing Claim of Exemption on Property Sought to Be Attached

A claim that all or a portion of the personal property described in the plaintiff's application is exempt from attachment must be made at the hearing. If the claim is not made at the hearing, the defendant may not later claim the exemption except on a showing of a change of circumstances [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.070(a)]. If the defendant wishes to claim that real property described in the plaintiff's application is exempt from attachment, the defendant may make the claim at the hearing, but failure to do so will not preclude claiming the exemption later [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.070(b)]. The claim must describe the property claimed to be exempt, specify the statute supporting the exemption, and must be accompanied by an affidavit or declaration supporting any factual issues raised and points and authorities supporting any legal issues raised. The claim and accompanying papers must be filed and served on the plaintiff not less than five court days before the date set for the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.070(c)-(e)]. For a form of declaration supporting the claim of exemption, see § 62.139.

When counsel gives notice of a claim of exemption that will be made at the hearing set by the plaintiff for the issuance of an RTAO and writ of attachment, the box before "CLAIM OF EXEMPTION" should be checked. Because the claim will be at the hearing set by the plaintiff, there is no need to give notice of the hearing. For clarity, however, counsel may wish to complete Paragraph 2. The first box in Paragraph 4c should be checked, indicating that the exemption will be claimed at the hearing. Paragraphs 4c(1)-(4) reflects the four categories of property that are exempt from attachment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 487.020]. If the property sought to be attached is property described in Paragraph 4c(1)(a) or (b) the requested information should be completed. Note that if the exemption claimed is that the property described in the application is necessary for the support of the defendant who is a natural person or the defendant's family (Paragraph 4c(2)), there is no requirement that a financial statement be filed. The requirement of a financial statement is contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 703.530, which applies only when the property has been levied on [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 482.100(b), 483.530(b), 485.610(b)]. Counsel might wish to include the information required in the financial statement in the supporting affidavit, however, as they would support the entitlement to an exemption claimed necessary for support. For a form of financial statement, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgements, § 254.40 et seq.

[d] Noticing Claim of Exemption on Additional Property Not Sought to Be Attached

At the hearing on the RTAO and writ of attachment, the defendant may claim that property not sought to be attached is exempt. Failure to claim the exemption does not preclude later claiming the exemption [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.070(b)]. The claim of exemption on property not sought to be attached is made in the same way as a claim of exemption on property sought to be attached [Code Civ. Proc. § 484.070(b), (c)]. Thus, the form should be completed in the manner described at § 138[5][c].

[e] Motion for Claim of Exemption for Family Necessities

A defendant who is a natural person may claim an exemption on property levied on which is necessary for the support of the defendant or the defendant's family in two different ways. The defendant may choose to follow the procedure set forth in the provisions dealing with a claim of exemption on property levied on after judgment pursuant to a writ of execution [see Code Civ. Proc. § 703.510 et seq., and discussion under § 62.138[5][f]]. The other method for claiming the exemption that is available to the defendant is the noticed motion procedure set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 482.100(c) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 482.100, 484.530, 485.610].

If the property has been levied on pursuant to an ex parte writ and it is personal property, the exemption must be claimed no later than 30 days after the defendant is served with a notice of attachment by the levying officer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 484.530(a), (b), 485.610]. If this time period passes, or the claim of exemption has been made and previously denied, the exemption may only be claimed if there has been a change of circumstances following the expiration of the time period or the previous denial [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 482.100(a), 484.530(c)].

The notice of motion must be filed and served on the plaintiff not less than three days prior to the date set for hearing and the hearing must not be held more than five days after the filing of the notice of motion, unless the court orders otherwise on a showing of good cause. The notice of motion must be accompanied by an affidavit supporting any factual issues raised and points and authorities supporting any legal issues raised [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.100(c)].

When the defendant is following the noticed motion procedure for claiming an exemption on property necessary for support, the boxes in the caption before "MOTION (AFTER ISSUANCE OF WRIT) FOR CLAIM OF EXEMPTION" and "AND MOTION FOR CLAIM OF EXEMPTION" should be checked. Paragraphs 1, 2, and 3 should be completed. The second box in Paragraph 4c should be checked and Paragraph 4c(2) should be completed. Note that no financial declaration is required [see discussion under§ 62.138[5][c]].

[f] Claim of Exemption on Levied Property

[i] Writ of Execution Procedures Applied

When property is levied on and the defendant wishes to claim an exemption on that property, the defendant must follow the procedures set forth in the provisions dealing with a claim of exemption on property levied on after judgment pursuant to a writ of execution [see Code Civ. Proc. § 703.510 et seq.]. If the property is claimed to be necessary for the support of the defendant or the defendant's family, the noticed motion procedure may be followed [see discussion under§ 62.138[5][e]].

To claim an exemption on levied property the defendant must file the original claim and a copy with the levying officer [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.520(a)]. If the property is levied on pursuant to an ex parte writ and it is personal property, the defendant must claim the exemption not later than 30 days after the levying officer serves the defendant with the notice of attachment describing the property [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 484.530(a), 485.610(a)]. If the property is real property, it appears that the exemption may be claimed at any time [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 484.530(a), 485.610(a), 703.520]. If the words "notice of levy" in Code Civ. Proc. § 703.520 are read to be synonymous with "notice of attachment," however, the exemption on real property must be claimed within 10 days after the date the notice of attachment is served. Such an interpretation, however, appears to be inconsistent with the recommendation of the Law Revision Commissionand the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 484.030(a) [see Recommendation Relating to Attachment, 16 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 701, 710 (1981)]. The Judicial Council, however, indicates that the exemption in regard to real property must be taken within 10 days after service of the notice of attachment on the defendant [see Item 2 under Information For Defendant in body of Form 21]. If the property levied on is claimed to be exempt because of a change of circumstances following the expiration of the time for claiming the exemption, or following a previous denial of the claim, the exemption may be claimed at any time [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.100(a), (b)].

[ii] Completion of Form

When claiming an exemption on levied property, the box before "CLAIM OF EXEMPTION" should be checked and Paragraph 1 should be completed. Paragraph 2 should not be completed as it is incumbent on the plaintiff to oppose the claim of exemption by noticing a motion for an order determining the claim [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.550]. Paragraph 3a should be completed by inserting the defendant's name. The claim of exemption is required to contain the address of where service of the notice of opposition to a claim may be made [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.520(b)(1)]. Because attachment is a prejudgment remedy, the address will be the attorney's address when the defendant is represented [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1015]. This address is already contained in the caption of the form, so in Paragraph 3a counsel may wish to refer to this address and the fact that a notice may be served at that address. Paragraph 3b appears to be directed at a situation when the claimant is not the defendant. However, it should be noted that although an exemption on property levied on after judgment may be claimed by a person other than the judgment debtor [see Code Civ. Proc. § 703.020], the relevant provisions of the Attachment Law mention only that the defendant may claim the exemption [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 482.100, 484.530, 485.610].

The first box in Paragraph 4c should be checked. However, because technically the defendant is claiming the exemption at the time of the filing of the claim of exemption, the wording should be changed to "claims exemption" [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 484.530(a), 485.610(a), 703.520]. Paragraphs 4c(1)-(4) represent the categories of property exempt from attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 487.020]. The property claimed to be exempt should be described following the appropriate subparagraph, and if the exemption is claimed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 704.010 (Paragraph 4c(1)(a)), or Code Civ. Proc. § 704.100 (Paragraph 4c(1)(b)), the requested information must be supplied [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.520(b)(3)]. The statutory provision on which the claim of exemption is based must be recited in the claim of exemption and should be supplied if it is not already on the form [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.520(b)(5)]. If the property is claimed to be exempt because it is necessary for the support of the judgment debtor who is a natural person or the judgment debtor's family, a financial statement is required to be filed along with the claim [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 703.520(b)(4), 703.530]. The financial statement is required to be executed under oath and to contain specified information [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.530(b), (c)]. For a illustrative form of financial statement approved by the Judicial Council for use in attachment proceedings and enforcement of judgment proceedings, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.40 et seq.

[iii] Statement of Facts

The claim of exemption must contain a statement of facts necessary to support the claim and must be executed under oath [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.520(b)(6)]. Thus, if the statement of facts is contained in an attachment to the claim, it should be executed under oath. If the attachment is a declaration instead of an affidavit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5], the wording of Paragraph 5 should be changed to reflect this. In addition, Code Civ. Proc. § 703.520 does not require that the claim be accompanied by a memorandum of points and authorities. Thus, the reference in Paragraph 5 to an attached memorandum of points and authorities should be deleted if there is none.

[iv] Verification

Because the claim of exemption is required to be executed under oath [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.520(b)], the sentence, "I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct," should be inserted above the signature line [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]. In addition, the defendant should sign the claim and the words "attorney for" under the signature line should be crossed out.

[v] Plaintiff's Opposition

Within 10 days after the plaintiff is served with a copy of the claim and a notice of opposition by the levying officer, the plaintiff must file a notice of opposition to the claim of exemption and notice of motion for an order determining the claim of exemption with the court and the levying officer. If this is not done, the property claimed to be exempt will be released from the attachment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 703.510(a), 703.550]. The hearing on the motion must be set no later than 20 days from the date of the filing of the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.570(a)]. For further discussion and forms relating to the procedure for claiming an exemption on property levied on pursuant to a writ of execution after judgment, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.40 et seq.

[6] Decisions

Verified cross complaint, without accompanying affidavit, submitted by party opposing application for RTAO as insufficient to support opposition when verification was made by corporate officer on behalf of corporation; thus,opposing party as not making any valid evidentiary showing in opposition to application. Lorber Industries v. Turbulence, Inc. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 532, 536, 221 Cal. Rptr. 233

[2] Use of Form

This form of declaration is for use by a defendant to support a claim of exemption. The form may be used when the claim of exemption is made at the same time a notice of opposition to an application for a right to attach order is made, or after a lien on a pending action or proceeding has beencreated pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 491.410-491.470 [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 484.070(d), 491.470(a)].

When the form is used to support a claim of exemption after a lien on a pending action or proceeding has been created, optional Paragraphs 2 and 3 must be included, and the exemption is claimed in the court in which that action or proceeding is pending [see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.470(a); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 484.070(c)]. Thus, in that case, the caption should reflect the action or proceeding subject to the lien, and the attachment defendant will be the plaintiff rather than the defendant in the "above-entitled proceedings" for purposes of Paragraph 1.

[2] Use of Form

This form of declaration is for use by a plaintiff who requests in writing at the time of filing a complaint that the file or the fact of filing not be made public, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 482.050, before either (1) 30 days after the filing of the complaint, or (2) the filing of the return of service of the notice of hearing and any temporary protective order, or of the writ of attachment if issued without notice, whichever event occurs first [see Code Civ. Proc. § 482.050(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.580]. Although Code Civ. Proc. § 482.050(c) allows the written request itself to take the form of a mere notation at the top of the first page of the complaint, Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.580 requires that the plaintiff file a declaration under oath regarding the written request.

[3] Contents of Declaration

This form contains the alternative statements required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.580 for the declaration under oath. The first alternative Paragraph 2 is for use when the defendant is not a natural person, while the second alternative Paragraph 2 is for use when the defendant is a natural person.

This form is an illustrative example of a form of undertaking by personal sureties approved by the Judicial Council for optional use in attachment proceedings [see Cal. Judicial Council Form AT-160 (same as CD-140 re claim and delivery)]. This form has been filled out as it would be when used by the plaintiff to give an undertaking to pay to the defendant the amount the defendant may recover for any wrongful attachment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 489.210. Such an undertaking is required to be given before a writ of attachment, a right to attach order pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 491.415, or temporary protective order is issued [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.210]. The amount of the undertaking, unless objected to, is provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 489.220(a).

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Additional Uses of Form

This form of undertaking by personal sureties may also be used by the defendant in attachment proceedings to obtain an order releasing the defendant's property from the attachment on the substitution of an undertaking by the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310] or to obtain an order terminating a temporary protective order [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.320].

This form may also be used in claim and delivery actions by the plaintiff to obtain a writ of possession or temporary protective order [Code Civ. Proc. § 515.010] or by the defendant to prevent the plaintiff from taking possession of the defendant's property, or to regain possession of property already taken by the plaintiff pursuant to a writ of possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 515.020].

[4] Admitted Surety Insurers

This form is for use when the undertaking is executed by personal sureties as opposed to admitted surety insurers. An admitted surety insurer is a corporate insurer or a reciprocal interinsurance exchange to which the Insurance Commissioner has issued a certificate of authority to transact surety insurance in the State of California, as defined in Ins. Code § 105 [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.120(a)]. Two or more sufficient personal sureties may be used in place of admitted surety insurers unless the specific statute requiring the undertaking requires execution by admitted surety insurers [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.310]. The provisions of the Attachment Law providing for undertakings do not require admitted surety insurers [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 489.060, 489.210]. Nor do the claim anddelivery provisions providing for undertakings require admitted surety insurers [see Code Civ. Proc. § 489.210 et seq.]. For a more complete discussion of admitted surety insurers, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, And Undertakings, § 538.40 et seq.

[5] Filling Out the Form

[a] General Instructions

This form combines the bond, which must be executed under oath (Paragraphs 5 and 9), with the affidavit of qualifications that is required to accompany the bond (Paragraphs 6-9) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.320-995.330, 995.520].

In all cases in which the form is used the caption should be completed, indicating the party giving the undertaking and the type of action in which it is given. Paragraphs 1 and 2 should also always be completed by inserting the names of the plaintiff and the defendant. When the sureties are personal sureties there must be at least two of them, and thus both columns of Paragraph 6 will be used. The occupations and the residence and business addresses of the sureties are required to be contained in the affidavit accompanying the bond (Paragraphs 6a-c) [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.520(b)(1)]. The address for service of papers on the surety is required to be contained in the bond itself (Paragraph 6d) [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.320].

[b] Sufficiency of Personal Sureties and Property Description

Paragraph 7 contains the requirements that a personal surety must meet to be sufficient pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 995.510(a) and should also be completed in all cases. Note that if the amount of the undertaking exceeds $10,000 and is executed by more than two personal sureties, the worth of a personal surety may be less than the amount of the bond, so long as the aggregate worth of all the sureties executing the bond is twice the amount of the bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.520(d)]. In addition, in this case, the affidavit of the surety may state that the surety is worth less than the amount of the bond and may stipulate that the liability of the surety is limited to the worth stated in the affidavit [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.520(d)]. This form contains no provisions for use in the aforementioned instance and counsel may wish to either modify this form or use the form of declaration of qualification of personal surety contained in Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, And Undertakings, § 538.40 et seq.

Paragraphs 8(a) and (b) must be completed when the undertaking is in excess of $5,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.520(c)]. The description of the property supplied in Paragraph 8(a) should be sufficient for identification of the property and the nature of the surety's interest which qualifies the surety on the bond.

[c] Verification and Filing

Paragraph 9 should be executed and dated in all cases to satisfy the requirement that the bond be under oath and it be accompanied by the affidavit of qualifications of the personal sureties [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.320(a), 995.520(a), 2015.5].

When an undertaking in attachment proceedings is given by personal sureties, the undertaking must be presented to the court for approval and must be filed in the court in which the action is pending [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.060]. Thus, the portion of the form entitled "COURT APPROVAL" will be completed in all attachment proceedings in which this form is used.

[d] Undertaking by Defendant in Attachment Proceeding to Obtain Property Release

When an undertaking is given by the defendant in order to obtain an order releasing the property attached or subject to attachment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310, the amount of the undertaking filed must be the lesser of (1) the value of the property attached or prevented from being attached, or (2) the amount specified by the writ of attachment to be secured by the attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310(c)]. This amount should be inserted in Paragraph 3.

Note that if the amount of the undertaking is based on the value of the property or of an interest in the property, the bond must contain a description of the property or interest and the principal's estimate of the value of the property or interest, or if the estimate is given by the beneficiary or the court, the value so estimated [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.320(a)(3)]. Thus, if the amount of the undertaking given pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310 is the value of the property, the bond must contain a description of the property and an estimate of the value. This should also be inserted in Paragraph 3 or elsewhere on the form or in an attachment to the form.

Paragraph 5b should be checked indicating that the undertaking is being given pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310 to pay to the plaintiff the amount of the value of the property released up to the amount of any judgment obtained by the plaintiff.

[e] By Defendant in Attachment Proceeding to Obtain Order Terminating Temporary Protective Order

When an undertaking is given in an attachment proceeding to obtain an order terminating a temporary protective order, the amount of the undertaking must be equal to the amount sought to be secured by the attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.320(b)]. This should be inserted in Paragraph 3. Paragraph 5c should be checked indicating that the undertaking is given pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 489.320 to pay the plaintiff the value of the amount of any judgment that may be recovered by the plaintiff in the action.

[f] By Plaintiff in Claim and Delivery When Writ of Possession or Temporary Protective Order Obtained

Before a writ of possession or temporary protective order is issued in a claim and delivery action, an undertaking must be given by the plaintiff for the return of the property and the payment of any amount the defendant recovers from the plaintiff. The undertaking must be not less than twice the value of the defendant's interest in the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 515.010; Ch. 119, Claim and Delivery]. The amount of the undertaking should be inserted in Paragraph 3. Because the amount of the undertaking is dependent on the value of the property, a description of the property and an estimate of its value must be added [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.320].

It does not appear that the address for giving notice of exception to sureties requested in Paragraph 4 is required to be filled in. Prior to the 1982 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 515.020, the information requested in Paragraph 4 was required to be contained in the defendant's undertaking in claim and delivery actions. However, presently any objection to the undertaking must now be mailed to the levying officer [Code Civ. Proc. § 515.030(a), (b)]. There is no requirement that this information be contained in the undertaking [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.310-995.380].

There is a requirement in Code Civ. Proc. § 995.320(a)(2), however, that a bond contain the address at which the principal and sureties may be served with notices, papers, and other documents pursuant to the Bonds and Undertakings

Law. The address for service of the sureties is to be inserted in Paragraph 6d. Service on the principal is accomplished by service on the principal's attorney [Code Civ. Proc. § 1015] and the address of the attorney is inserted in the caption of the form. Paragraph 5e should be checked indicating that the undertaking is given pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 515.010.

[g] By Defendant in Claim and Delivery to Prevent Plaintiff From Taking Possession of Property or to Regain Possession

When the defendant gives an undertaking to prevent the plaintiff from taking possession of property pursuant to a writ of possession or to regain possession of property taken pursuant to a writ, the amount of the undertaking must be in an amount equal to the undertaking given by the plaintiff in obtaining the writ or in an amount determined by the court pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 515.010(b) [Code Civ. Proc. § 515.020(a)]. This amount should be inserted in Paragraph 3. It does not appear that Paragraph 4 is required to be completed [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.310-995.380; see discussion under§ 62.141[5][f]]. Paragraph 5d should be checked indicating that the undertaking is given pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 515.020.

CAUTION:

A memorandum of points and authorities must be served and filed when this form is used as a notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1103(a)(2), 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[2] Use of Form

This form is an illustrative filled-in reproduction of the form approved by the Judicial Council as a combined form for optional use by a defendant in seeking various orders affecting the attachment of defendant's property [see Cal. Judicial Council Form AT-170]. The form may be used for both ex parte and noticed hearing procedures, depending on the particular order sought by defendant. Various applications of the form are discussed below. This form has been filled in to illustrate a noticed motion to reduce the amount to be secured by the attachment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 483.015, 485.240].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in

PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

This form may also be used to obtain the following orders:

- An order, on noticed motion, to set aside the right to attach order, quash the writ of attachment, and release the attached property of a defendant who is a either a resident [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240] or a nonresident of California [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.050].

- An order, on noticed motion, to release attached property exceeding in value the amount to be secured by the attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.720].

- An order, on noticed motion, to substitute an undertaking for property [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310].

- An order, on noticed motion, to increase the plaintiff's undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 489.220, 995.920 et seq.].

- An order, on noticed motion, to determine the sufficiency of plaintiff's sureties [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.930].

- An order, on ex parte application, to discharge the attachment and release the property levied on when the defendant recovered judgment in the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.740].

- An order, on ex parte application, to release property levied on after defendant's filing of an undertaking on appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.420].

[4] Filling Out the Form

[a] General Instructions

Defendant should mark the appropriate box next to the relief requested in the caption. The plaintiff's name should be inserted in Paragraph 1 and the date, time, and location of the hearing should be inserted in the box within Paragraph 1. Defendant's status as a resident or nonresident should be checked in the appropriate box of Paragraph 2, and defendant's name should be inserted. The appropriate box in Paragraphs 2a-h should be checked, and the information required in the appropriate box should be filled in.

The information in Paragraphs 3 and 4 is required by Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310, when the defendant is seeking to substitute an undertaking for the attached property [§ 62.142[4][f]]. The information required by Paragraph 5 must be provided when defendant is a nonresident of California, seeking to set aside the right to attachment order [§ 62.142[4][d]].

Paragraph 7 should be completed by indicating the number of pages attached as supporting attachments or exhibits.

[b] Affidavits, Declarations, and Points and Authorities

Affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) are required to be submitted supporting any factual issues raised when the defendant is seeking to set aside the right to attach order [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 485.240(b), 492.050(b)], to substitute the undertaking for property [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310(b)], and for the release of attached property to the extent that the value of defendant's interest in the property exceeds the amount necessary to satisfy the amount to be secured [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.720(b)].

In addition, Paragraph 6 should be checked. An affidavit or declaration must accompany the application, supporting the factual issues raised (Paragraph 6a) or the facts may be set out on the form (Paragraph 6b) [Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240(b)]. If the facts are set out in the form, the form must be dated and signed under the declaration preceding Paragraph 7. If a separate declaration is attached, box 6a should be checked, the word affidavit struck out, and "declaration" typed in.

Points and authorities in support of any legal issues raised must accompany noticed motions generally (Paragraph 6c or 6d) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1103(a)(2), 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010; for discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities]. In addition, a notice of motion pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240, 488.720, or 492.050 is specifically required to be accompanied by points and authorities [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 485.240(b), 488.720(b), 492.050(b)].

[c] Resident Defendant Seeking to Set Aside Right to Attachment Order

The defendant who is a California resident and is seeking to set aside the RTAO, quash the writ of attachment, and release the attached property under Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240 should check box 2a. The dates on which the right to attach order and the writ of attachment were issued must be included in the spaces provided under 2a(1) and 2a(2). In addition, Paragraph 6 should be checked and filled out [see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240(b); see discussion under§ 62.142[4][b]].

[d] Nonresident Defendant Seeking to Set Aside Right to Attach Order

When the RTAO and writ of attachment were issued pursuant to provisions governing nonresident attachment (Code Civ. Proc. § 492.010 et seq.), the right to attach order must be set aside when the defendant files a general appearance in the action unless the plaintiff shows that his or her right to attach is authorized by a provision other than Code Civ. Proc. § 492.010 [Code Civ. Proc. § 492.050(c)]. To set aside the right to attach order that was issued pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 492.010, counsel should check boxes 5 and 5a, and indicate in Paragraph 5b or 5c when defendant made a general appearance or that the general appearance is being made by this application. In addition, Paragraph 6 should be checked and filled out [see Code Civ. Proc. § 485.240(b); see discussion under§ 62.142[4][b]].

[e] Order to Release Property Exceeding Amount to be Secured

When defendant is seeking an order releasing the attached property to the extent that defendant's interest in the property exceeds the amount to be secured by the attachment under Code Civ. Proc. § 488.720, counsel should check the box corresponding to Paragraph 2c. The value of defendant's interest in the property must be inserted in Paragraph 2c(1), and a description of the attached property must be provided in Paragraph 2c(2). In addition, Paragraph 6 should be checked and filled out [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.720(b); see also § 62.142[4][b]].

[f] Substitute Undertaking for Property

If the defendant is seeking to substitute an undertaking for the attached property, the box corresponding to Paragraph 2b should be checked. The amount of the undertaking should be filled in the space provided, and either box 2b(1) or 2b(2) should be checked. If the undertaking is to substitute for all of defendant's property that is attached, box 2b(1) should be checked. If the undertaking is to substitute for only a portion of defendant's property that is attached or is subject to attachment, box 2b(2) should be checked, and the value of that portion, along with a description of the portion of property, should be filled in the spaces corresponding to 2b(2)(a) and (b), since Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310 requires that this information be provided.

In any application to substitute an undertaking for property, when the action is against more than one defendant and all the defendants do not join in the application, the applying codefendant must describe the character of the defendant's title to the property and the manner in which the defendant acquired the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310(d)]. Therefore in such a case, the box corresponding to Paragraph 3 should be checked. If box 2b(1) was previously checked, it should be checked in Paragraph 3 also, and if box 2b(2) was checked, it should also be checked in Paragraph 3. The manner of the property's acquisition should either be set forth in the space provided, checking the box labeled "following facts," or, if there is not sufficient room in the space, by a separate affidavit or declaration, and by checking the box labeled "attached affidavit" (strike "affidavit" and type in "declaration" if appropriate).

If there were multiple defendants and the other defendants have not joined in the application, Paragraph 4 must also be completed. The applicant must state whether or not any nonjoining defendant has any interest in the same property. If two or more defendants have an interest in the same property, a joint application and undertaking must be filed to secure the release of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310(d)]. If not, the box corresponding to Paragraph 4 should be checked, as should one of the two boxes labeled 2b(1) and 2b(2), depending on which of the two was checked previously in the form.

Paragraph 6 should be checked and filled out [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.720(b); see discussion under§ 62.142[4][b]].

[g] Order to Increase Plaintiff's Undertaking

If defendant seeks an order increasing plaintiff's undertaking, the box corresponding to Paragraph 2e should be checked. Counsel should specify the grounds showing probable recovery for wrongful attachment in the space provided in Paragraph 2e [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 489.220, 995.920 et seq.].

[h] Order to Determine Sufficiency of Plaintiff's Sureties

Defendant bringing a noticed motion for an order determining the sufficiency of plaintiff's sureties under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.920 and 995.930 should check the box corresponding to Paragraph 2f. The precise grounds for any objection to the sureties must be specified in the space provided in Paragraph 2f [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.930].

[i] Order Discharging Attachment and Releasing Property

To demonstrate the grounds under Code Civ. Proc. § 488.740 for an order discharging the attachment and releasing defendant's property after a judgment in favor of defendant, counsel should check the box corresponding to Paragraph 2g.

[j] Order to Release Property Levied on Due to Filing Undertaking on Appeal

If seeking an order pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 489.420 to releasedefendant's property from attachment when defendant has appealed and enforcement of judgment is stayed by defendant's filing an undertaking, counsel should check the box corresponding to Paragraph 2h.

[5] Service of Application

Applications to set aside right to attach order, to quash writ of attachment, and to release attached property, and applications to reduce the amount to be secured by the attachment, should be served pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) at least 16 court days before the hearing, plus any extensions based on the manner of service, unless otherwise ordered [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 485.240, 492.050; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6) (providing for two court day extension period in case of electronic service)].

The same service provisions apply to applications to substitute undertaking for property [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310] and to increase the undertaking pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 489.220.

In applications to determine the sufficiency of sureties [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.920 et seq.], the hearing on this type of objection must be held not less than two nor more than five days after service of notice of motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.950].

[2] Use of Form

This form is an illustrative filled-in reproduction of the form approved by the Judicial Council as a combined form for use in response by the court to defendant's motions for various orders affecting the attachment of defendant's property [see Cal. Judicial Council Form AT-175]. The form may be used for both ex parte and noticed hearing procedures, depending on the particular order obtained by defendant. The various types of relief covered by this form of order are discussed in the Comments to § 62.142. This form has been filled in to illustrate an order reducing the amount to be secured by the attachment [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 483.015, 485.240].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Additional Uses of Form

See § 62.142, Comments, under Additional Uses of Form for a list of the various types of orders covered by this form.

[4] Filling Out the Form

[a] General Instructions

Counsel should check in the title the box corresponding to the relief requested by defendant's application.

Defendant's name should be filled in the space corresponding to Paragraph 1a. Counsel should check the appropriate box in 1a(1) through 1a(8), to indicate the relief requested. If the order is based on a noticed motion, counsel should check the box corresponding to Paragraph 1b and fill in the information requested about the hearing. If the order is based on an ex parte application, the box for Paragraph 1c should be checked.

[b] Court Findings

One or more of the boxes in Paragraph 2 should be checked, to indicate the court's finding or findings made in response to the application. If findings other than those presented on the printed form are necessary, counsel should check 2k and should specify the findings in the space provided. One or more of the boxes in Paragraph 3 should also be checked to specify the court's order. If orders other than those provided for on the form are required, counsel should check 3i, and should fill in the specific order or orders in the space provided. Counsel should indicate how many boxes were checked in Paragraph 3 by filling in that number in the space provided in 3j.

[c] Setting Aside Right to Attach Order

[i] Resident Defendant

For an order setting aside plaintiff's RTAO, box 2a should be checked and the date of the right to attach order to be set aside should be indicated. In Paragraph 3, boxes 3a-3c should be checked and the date of the RTAO and the writ of attachment should be filled in following boxes 3a and 3b, respectively. The date of issuance of the writ should also be filled in under box 3c, and one of boxes 3c(1)-(3) should be checked to specify what property is being released. If box 3c(2) is checked, the amount of the property must be filled in, and if box 3c(3) is checked, a description of the property must be given.

[ii] Nonresident Defendant

If a nonresident defendant is seeking an order setting aside the RTAO, box 2b should be checked to indicate that the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 492.050 have been met. In addition, boxes 3a-3c should be filled in in the same manner as for a resident defendant.

[d] Releasing Property in Excess of Amount to be Secured

To obtain an order pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 488.720, box 2c should be checked and the relevant values filled in. In addition, box 3c should be checked and the date of the writ of attachment specified, and box 3c(2) or 3c(3) checked and the information filled in to indicate the portion of property to be released.

[e] Substituting Undertaking for Property

Boxes 2d-f correspond to an order to substitute an undertaking for the property under Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310. Box 2d implements the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310(d). When an action is against more than one defendant and two or more defendants have an interest in the same property, a joint application and undertaking are required in order to secure their release of that property. When the release of jointly held or co-owned property is sought, a joint application is required also. Therefore, box 2d should be checked. Checking box 2e would preclude the release of attached property under Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310. Box 2f should be checked to indicate the court's finding on the amount of the undertaking that may be substituted for the attached property or be subject to attachment under Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310. The amount should be filled in, and either box 2f(1) or 2f(2) should be checked, depending on whether the property has been attached or is subject to attachment. A description of the property should be inserted in the space corresponding to the box checked.

Note that when the defendant applies for an order to release a portion of the property that has been attached or for an order preventing the attachment of property and the amount of the undertaking to be given is less than the amount to be secured by the attachment, a description of the property to be released or to be protected from an attachment must be included [Code Civ. Proc. § 489.310(b)].

If the property has been attached, box 3d should be checked, the amount of the undertaking should be specified following 3d(1), and a description of the property should be given following 3d(2). When only a portion of the property attached is to be released, the property should be described with sufficient clarity in 2f so that if identical to the property ordered to be released, defendant can incorporate by reference in 3d the description in 2f. When the entire property attached is to be released, it is sufficient to refer to the description of the property in plaintiff's application or, if appropriate, to the writ of attachment.

If the property is subject to attachment, box 3e should be checked, the amount of the undertaking should be filled in following 3e(1), and the property described following 3e(2). When the amount of the undertaking is less than the amount to be secured by the attachment, the property to be protected from attachment should be described with sufficient clarity in the order. If identical to the description in 2f, that description may be incorporated by reference.

[f] Insufficiency of Undertaking

Box 2g should be checked if defendant seeks an order that the undertaking is insufficient under Code Civ. Proc. § 995.920 et seq., and specific finding as to how the undertaking is sufficient given. In addition, either box 3f or box 3g should be checked. If the order is for an increase in plaintiff's undertaking, box 3f should be checked. The total amount of the increased undertaking, rather than merely the amount of increase, should be specified in the space provided. The date by which the undertaking must be filed should also be specified. The undertaking must be filed within five days of the order [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.960(b)(1)]. If the order is for an undertaking with sufficient sureties, box 3g should be checked, and the date by which it must be filed should be indicated.

[g] Discharging Attachment and Releasing Property After Judgment

If the order is to discharge the attachment and release the property under the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 488.740, box 2h should be checked. Box 3c should also be checked, as should boxes 3c(1), (2), or (3), as described under § 63.143[4][c].

[h] Releasing Property After Undertaking on Appeal

If the order is to release property levied on after defendant's filing of an undertaking on appeal, under Code Civ. Proc. § 489.420, box 2i should be checked. One of the three boxes under box 2i must also be checked. Box 3c should also be checked, as should boxes 3c(1), (2), or (3), as described under § 63.143[4][c].

[2] Use of Form

This form of ex parte application and order is an illustrative filled-in reproduction of the Judicial Council form approved for optional use by a plaintiff who has a right to attach order and is applying ex parte for an order directing a third person with possession or control of property in which the defendant has an interest, or who is indebted to the defendant in an amount exceeding $250, to appear for examination with respect to the property or debt [see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.110(a); Cal. Judicial Council Form AT-138 (same as EJ-125 re enforcement of judgment)]. For a discussion of when this remedy is available and the procedure to be followed, see § 62.24 et seq.

This form may also be used in enforcement of judgment proceedings, and some of the information in the form is not relevant in an attachment proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 708.110, 708.120, and Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.180 et seq.].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Ex Parte Application

The application for an order of examination is made ex parte [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.110(a)].

[4] Filling Out the Form

[a] Order to Appear for Examination

The order to appear for examination includes the name of the third person having possession or control of the property in which the defendant has an interest or who is indebted to the defendant in an amount exceeding $250 (Paragraph 1.). If the order to appear is directed to a corporation, partnership, association, trust, or other organization, it may name the organization or a specified individual [see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.140].

Paragraph 2.c. is checked, since Paragraphs 2.a. and 2.b. relate to enforcement of judgment proceedings.

The time and place of the hearing is entered in the box below Paragraph 2. If the court has specially appointed a person to serve the order and application [see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.160(a)], his or her name should be typed in Paragraph 3. If no person has been specially appointed, counsel may either leave Paragraph 3 as is, or line out the words "or the following specially appointed person (name):"

Although the form provides for signature by either a judge or referee, Code Civ. Proc. § 491.110(a) appears to require that the order be signed by a judge as opposed to a referee. Code Civ. Proc. § 491.110(a) provides that "the court shall make an order" directing the third person to appear before the court, or before a referee appointed by the court. Consequently, to avoid a possible challenge to an order signed by a referee, counsel may wish to present the order to a judge for signature. A referee once appointed is, however, like a judge or temporary judge, expressly authorized to make specified orders [see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.130(a)].

[b] Application for Order to Appear for Examination

[i] Status of Plaintiff and Examinee

The application states that the plaintiff has a right to attach order (Paragraph 1., third box), and names the person or organization to be examined (Paragraph 1., second line).

The status of the person to be examined, as a third person holding property in which the defendant has an interest or owing a debt to the defendant is indicated by checking the second box under Paragraph 2. A separate affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) must be attached, showing that the third person has possession or control of property in which the defendant has an interest or is indebted to the defendant in an amount exceeding $250 [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.110(a)]. The affidavit or declaration must set forth the facts with particularity [Code Civ. Proc. § 482.040]. The facts set forth may be based on information and belief, but if they are, the affidavit or declaration must state the facts on which the belief is based, showing the nature of the information and the reliability of the informant [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 482.040, 491.110(a)].

The application states that the person to be examined resides or has a place of business in the county where examination is sought or within 150 miles of the place of examination (Paragraph 3) [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.150(b)].

If the place of the examination is in a court other than the one that issued the writ, a separate affidavit or declaration stating the residence or place of business of the person to be examined must be attached and Paragraph 4 checked [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.150(d)(2)]. Unlike the affidavit or declaration supporting the application under Code Civ. Proc. § 491.110, this affidavit or declaration is not authorized to be made on information and belief. Consequently, it must show affirmatively that the affiant or declarant, if sworn as a witness, can testify competently to the facts stated in it [see

Code Civ. Proc. § 482.040].

The examination will take place in a court other than the one that issued the writ when the person to be examined does not reside or have a place of business in the county where the court that issued the writ is located [see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.150(c)]. To have the examination in another court, the plaintiff, in addition to presenting the affidavit or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 491.150(d)(2), must file with the court from which the order is sought a certified copy of the complaint in the pending action, make any necessary affidavit or declaration or showing for the examination as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 491.110, and pay a filing fee with the application [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.150(d)(1), (3), (4)].

[c] Verification

Although the application includes a declaration under penalty of perjury, none of the relevant code sections requires that the application (as opposed to the affidavits or declarations mentioned above) be signed under penalty of perjury or otherwise verified [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 491.110(a) (attachment), 708.110(c), 708.120(a) (enforcement of judgment)]. Nor does there appear to be any general provision in The Attachment Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 481.010 et seq.] or the Enforcement of Judgments Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 680.010 et seq.] so requiring.

Page two of the form contains notices required by Code Civ. Proc. § 491.110(d), relating to attachment, as well as those required by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 708.110(e) and 708.120(e), relating to enforcement of judgments. Nothing needs to be filled in on page two of the form when it is being used to secure examination of a third person in an attachment proceeding.

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form is for use by the plaintiff to oppose the defendant's claim of exemption on property levied on pursuant to a writ of attachment. It is used in response to the defendant's claim of exemption when the defendant claims an exemption pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 482.100, 484.530 or 485.610 by following the procedure set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 703.510 et seq. [see Form 9].

[3] Time for Filing and Hearing

To oppose the claim of exemption the plaintiff must file a notice of opposition to the claim of exemption and a notice of motion for an order determining the claim of exemption [see § 62.146] with the court and the levying officer within 10 days after service of the defendant's claim of exemption [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.550]. The hearing on the motion is to be held no later than 20 days from the date the notice of motion was filed with the court. The plaintiff must serve the notice of opposition and notice of motion on the defendant not less than 10 days prior to the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.570].

[4] Contents of Notice

The notice of opposition must allege either that the property is not exempt under the statute relied on or that the equity in the property claimed to be exempt is in excess of the amount provided in the applicable exemption. It must also include a statement of the facts necessary to support the allegation and be executed under oath [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.560].

[1] FORM Writ of Attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.010]--Judicial Council Form AT-135

This form is the writ of attachment approved by the Judicial Council [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.010; Cal. Judicial Council Form AT-135]. It may also be used for a writ of attachment obtained ex parte.

The writ is issued by the court clerk on order of the court and directs the levying officer and, if applicable, the registered process server, to levy on the property described in the writ [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.020(a), (b)]. It is served, along with the notice of attachment, on the defendant at the time of levy [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.305].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Filling Out the Form

[a] General Instructions

It should be indicated in the caption by checking the appropriate box if the writ of attachment is one obtained after hearing or ex parte.

The writ is addressed to the levying officer in the county in which the property described in the writ is located (Paragraph 1) and to the registered process server, if one is used to levy the writ (Paragraph 2). Note that a registered process server may only levy on certain types of property in the manner provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 488.080, and within five days after the levy must file the writ with the levying officer, who then performs all other duties under the writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.080(a), (d)].

The information requested in Paragraphs 3-5 is required to be included on a writ of attachment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.010].

[b] Property Information

If the property described in Paragraph 5 is real property of the defendant standing on the county records in the name of a person other than the defendant, the box opposite Paragraph 6 should be checked and the requested information supplied. When property of this type is levied on, the county recorder indexes a copy of the writ in the names of both the defendant and the third person in whose name the property stands [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 488.315, 700.015(a), (b)].

If the property described in Paragraph 5 is growing crops or timber to be cut located on property standing on the county records in the name of a person other than the defendant, the box opposite Paragraph 7 should be checked and the requested information supplied. When property of thistype is levied on, the county recorder indexes a copy of the writ in the names of both the defendant and the third person in whose name the property stands and a copy of the writ is served on that person [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 488.325, 700.020(a), (b)(1)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is the notice of attachment approved by the Judicial Council [Cal. Judicial Council Form AT-165]. A notice of attachment must be served by the levying officer along with the copy of the writ of attachment at the time of levy or promptly thereafter [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.305]. A notice of attachment is also generally required to be served on a third party when the property levied on stands in the name of a third party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.300 et seq. (methods of levy on specific types of property)].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Contents of Notice

A notice of attachment is required to inform the person who is served of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.060]:

- The capacity in which the person is notified (Paragraph 2).
- The specific property which is sought to be attached (Paragraph 1).
- The person's rights under the attachment, including the right to make a third-party claim.

- The person's duties under the attachment.

[4] Filling Out the Form

The box in the upper left-hand corner in the space provided for the address of the attorney or party should be checked when the notice of attachment is recorded. A notice of attachment is recorded when the property levied on is real property [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 488.315, 700.015]. It is also recorded when the property levied on is growing crops, timber to be cut, or minerals and the like [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 488.325, 700.020].

The name of the person notified should be inserted in the first line of the notice and the capacity in which they are notified indicated in Paragraph 2.

Paragraph 3a should be checked when the property attached is either:

- Equipment of a going business in the possession or under the control of the defendant and is attached pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 488.375 or

- Inventory or farm products of a going business and the property is attached pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 488.405.

For an illustration of the Secretary of State's form of Notice of Attachment Lien, see § 62.171A.

Paragraph 3b should be checked when the property attached is a vehicle or vessel for which a certificate of ownership has been issued by the Department of Motor Vehicles, and which is equipment of a going business.

Paragraph 3c is for use when the property attached is a mobile home or commercial coach for which a certificate of title has been issued by the Department of Housing and Community Development, and which is equipment of a going business.

[5] Use by Levying Officer

The bottom of the form is for use by the levying officer or registered process server, depending on who levied on the property. Although Code Civ. Proc. § 488.305 provides that the levying officer shall serve the notice of attachment at the time of levy, a registered process server may serve the notice if the levy is being made by the registered process server [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.080]. However, a registered process server may levy under a writ of attachment only on certain types of property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.080(a)].

[6] Information for Person Served

The information supplied on the second page of the form contains the rights and duties of the person on whom the notice is served as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 488.060(c), (d).

[1] FORM Notice of Attachment Lien--California Secretary of State Form

[2] Use of Form

This form is an illustrative filled-in example of the notice of attachment lien approved by the California Secretary of State.

A notice of attachment lien must be filed by the levying officer with the Secretary of State when the property attached is equipment of a going business in the possession or under the control of the defendant, except equipment that is a vehicle or vessel attachment of which is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 488.385 [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.375(a)].

A notice of attachment lien may be filed by the levying officer as one method of attaching farm products or the inventory of a going business [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.405; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 488.395 (attachment by placing a keeper in charge of property)].

The form may also be used to give notice that an attachment lien is terminated [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.730(a), (d)] or amended.

A copy of this form may be downloaded from the Secretary of State's website, specifically http://www.ss.ca.gov/business/ucc/ra_9_atl_barcode.pdf. Instructions at the website warn that the barcode patch in the upper left corner is used for processing by the Secretary of State's office and should be printed using a quality laser printer and kept free of damage. Staples should not be placed in the barcode.

[3] Contents of Notice

The notice of attachment must contain all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.375(a)]:

- The name and mailing address of the plaintiff [Item 4].
- The name and last known mailing address of the defendant [Item 3].
- The title of the court where the action is pending [Item 1] and the cause and number of the action [Item 2].
- A description of the specific property attached [Item 6].
- A statement that the plaintiff has acquired an attachment lien on the specified property of the defendant [Item 5].

Instructions for filing the form are on the second page. The original, a duplicate, and the filing fee should be sent to the Secretary of State at the address on the instructions. The filing fee is $10.00 if the original document contains two or fewer pages and $20.00 for an original document containing three or more pages.

[4] Copy for Acknowledgment

To obtain an acknowledgment copy, send a copy with the original and mark it "Acknowledgment Copy."

[5] Effect of Filing

When the notice of attachment lien is filed with the Secretary of State, it is marked and indexed in the same manner as a financing statement [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.375(b)].

§ 62.173 Instructions to Levying Officer [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.030]

[1] FORM Instructions to Levying Officer [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.030]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	INSTRUCTIONS TO LEVYING OFFICER
[and DOES I through _____,]	)
Defendant(s).	)

To _____ [name of levying officer], _____ [title of levying officer, e.g., Sheriff] of the County of _____:

[EITHER, if property in possession of defendant]

You are hereby instructed, pursuant to the accompanying writ of attachment, to levy _____ [describe method of levy, e.g., by removing the property to a place for safekeeping] on the following described property in the possession of and belonging to defendant: _____ [describe property, e.g., a 1994 Cadillac Seville, California license number 4EZN845], located at _____ [describe location].

[OR, if property in possession of third person]

You are hereby instructed, pursuant to the accompanying writ of attachment, to levy on _____ [describe property, e.g., all moneys, debts, and credits, due or owing defendant] in the possession of _____ [name], and located at_____ [describe location], up to the amount of $_____ [specify amount needed to satisfy writ] by _____ [describe method of levy, e.g., personally serving on _____ (name of third person) a copy of the writ of attachment and a notice of attachment].

The described property _____ [is or is not] a dwelling [if dwelling, add : and is _____ (real or personal) property].
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff_____ [name]

[2] Use of Form

This form of instructions to the levying officer are to accompany the writ of attachment that is directed to the levying officer in the county in whichthe property of the defendant described in the writ is located [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.020(b)].

[3] Contents of Instructions

The instructions to the levying officer must be in writing and signed by the plaintiff's attorney or, if no attorney, by the plaintiff. They must contain the information needed or requested by the levying officer to comply with the Attachment Law, including the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.030(a)]:

- An adequate description of the property to be levied on.
- A statement as to whether or not the property is a dwelling.
- If the property is a dwelling, a statement as to whether or not it is real or personal property.

If the levying officer is required to serve any writ, order, notice, or other paper on any person, the plaintiff must include in the instructions the correct name and address of the person and must use reasonable diligence to ascertain the correct name and address [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.040].

Counsel should insert in the instructions the method of levy to be made on the property. The methods of levy for specific types of property are contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 488.315 et seq. If the method of levy on property requires that the property be taken into custody, the levying officer may do so by (a) removing the property to a place for safekeeping, (b) installing a keeper, or (c) otherwise obtaining possession and control of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.090].

[4] Instructions by Registered Process Server

A registered process server may also levy on certain types of property specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 488.080(a). Although nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 488.030 requires that written instructions be given to a registered process server, if a registered process server levies on property, the registered process server is required to file written instructions, as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 488.030, with the levying officer within five days after levy [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.080(d)(4)].

[5] Deposit of Expenses

Except as otherwise provided by law, as a prerequisite to taking property into custody by the levying officer under Code Civ. Proc. § 488.010 et seq., whether by keeper or otherwise, the plaintiff must deposit with the levying officer a sum of money sufficient to pay the costs of taking the property and keeping it safely for a period not to exceed 15 days. If continuation of the custody of the property is required, the levying officer must, from time to time, demand orally or in writing that the plaintiff deposit additional amounts to cover estimated costs for periods not to exceed 30 days each. A written demand may be mailed or delivered to the plaintiff. The plaintiff has not less than three business days after receipt of the demand within which to comply with the demand, and if the amount demanded is not paid within the time specified in the oral or written demand, the levying officer must release the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.050(a)(2)].

[6] State Statutes

Duty of levying officer on receipt of written instructions. Code Civ. Proc. § 488.020

Levy procedure when property located in private place of defendant. Code Civ. Proc. § 488.070

Levying officer's possessory lien on levied property for costs not paid by advance deposit. Code Civ. Proc. § 488.100

Procedure for third-party claim on attached property. Code Civ. Proc. § 488.110

[2] Use of Form

This notice of motion is for use by plaintiff to obtain the appointment of a receiver or directions to the levying officer to take any action the court orders that is necessary to preserve the value of the property, including, but not limited to, selling the property. The court may make such an order when it determines that the action is necessary to preserve the value of property when attached property is perishable or will greatly deteriorate or greatly depreciate in value or for some other reason the interests of the parties will be best served by the order [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.700(a)].

The plaintiff, defendant, or a person who has filed a third-party claim pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 720.010 et seq. may apply for the order. The application must be by noticed motion if the court so directs, or if a court rule so requires. Otherwise, the application may be made ex parte [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.700(a)].

A supporting memorandum is required to be served and filed with this notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a);see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010; see generally Ch. 417, Points and Authorities].

[2] Use of Form

This notice of motion form is for use by plaintiff to obtain an order extending an attachment on property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.510(b)].

[3] Length of Extension and Procedure

An attachment, unless sooner released or discharged, is good for three years from the date the writ under which the levy was made was issued [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.510(a)]. But the court may, on plaintiff's motion, extend the time for a good cause for a period not exceeding one year [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.510(b)]. The attachment may be extended from time to time, but the maximum period, including the extensions, must not exceed eight years from the date the writ under which the levy was made was issued [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.510(d)]. The death of the defendant whose property is attached does not terminate the attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.510(e)].

Plaintiff must make the motion not less than 10 or more than 60 days before expiration of the three-year period. A minimum of five days notice must be given to the defendant whose property is attached [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.510(b)].

After a hearing on the motion, the levying officer must serve notice of the order on any person holding property pursuant to the attachment. The officer must also record or file the notice in the office where the writ and notice of attachment are recorded or filed before expiration of the three-year period or any extension of it. If the attached property is real property, the plaintiff or plaintiff's attorney may record the required notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.510(c)].

[2] Use of Form

This notice of motion form is for use by the plaintiff to obtain a lien on a cause of action and on any subsequently recovered judgment belonging to the defendant that is the subject of a pending action. When the defendant is a party to a pending action or special proceeding, the plaintiff may obtain a lien to the extent necessary to secure the amount to be secured by the attachment on the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.410(a)]:

- Any cause of action of the defendant for money or property that is the subject of the other action or proceeding if the money or property would be subject to attachment should the defendant prevail in the action or proceedings.

- The rights of the defendant to money and property under any judgment subsequently procured in the other action or proceeding if the money or property would be subject to attachment.

[3] Procedure

[a] Motion Concurrent With Application for RTAO

Plaintiff may apply for an order permitting creation of a lien under Code Civ. Proc. § 491.410 et seq. at the time he or she applies for a right to attach order [see § 62.130]. When the plaintiff applies for an order permitting creation of a lien at the time of applying for a right to attach order, the defendant must be served with the notice of application. Service of the notice must ordinarily be served in the time prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b), that is, at least 16 court before the hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 484.040(b), 491.415(b); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a)(1), 1005(b) (increased time for service by mail, or by fax, Express Mail, or other method of overnight delivery); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6) (providing for two-court-day extension period in case of electronic service); see generally Ch. 372, Motions and Orders]. For a discussion of the procedure for obtaining a right to attach order, see § 62.131.

[b] When RTAO Already Obtained

If the plaintiff has already obtained a right to attach order, an application for an order permitting creation of a lien may be applied for in the same manner as a writ of attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.415]. For the procedure to be followed in applying for a writ of attachment, see § 62.132.

[c] Undertaking

An undertaking as provided by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 489.210 and 489.220 must be filed before an order for creation of a lien may be obtained [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.415; see § 62.141].

[d] Exemption

Defendant may, but is not required to, claim an exemption in a proceeding initiated by the plaintiff for an order permitting creation of a lien. An exemption may be claimed if the money or property sought by the defendant would be exempt from attachment should the defendant prevail in the other action or proceeding. The exemption is claimed and determined in the same manner as an exemption is claimed and determined on application for a writ of attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.415(c); see §§ 62.138, 62.146, 18].

[4] Filing Notice of Lien

After obtaining the order permitting creation of a lien, the lien is created by filing a notice of lien and other papers in the court in which the action or proceeding to be attached is pending [see § 62.193].

[5] Cross Reference

For a related form, see § 62.193.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an illustrative filled-in reproduction of the form approved by the Judicial Council as a form of notice by the plaintiff or lien claimant to all parties in another pending action to which defendant is a party. The notice informs the parties that the plaintiff has a right to attach order against defendant in the original action, and has obtained a lien in the other action against defendant's cause of action or rights under any judgment subsequently procured [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 491.410, 491.420; Cal. Judicial Council Form AT-180 (same as EJ-185 re enforcement of judgment)].

To obtain the lien, plaintiff is required to file this form of notice in the other pending action, together with a copy of the right to attach order [see §§ 62.132 -62.134] and a copy of an order permitting creation of a lien under Code Civ. Proc. § 491.410 et seq. made by the court that issued the right to attach order [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.410; see § 62.192].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Filling Out the Form

[a] Title and Status of Action

This form is to be filed in the other pending action, involving the defendant and third party or parties, not the original action involving plaintiff and defendant. Therefore, the name of the plaintiff and defendant in that other action and the case number of the other action should be entered in the caption [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 491.410(b), 491.420(a)].

For the purpose of filing a notice of lien, an action or proceeding is pending until the time for appeal from the judgment has expired or, if an appeal is filed, until the appeal has been finally determined [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.410(d)].

[b] Contents

The form includes the following statements and items:

- A statement that the lien is created under Code Civ. Proc. § 491.410 et seq. (check box in Paragraph 1a) [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.420(a)].

- A statement that the lien is based on a right to attach order and an order permitting the creation of the lien, which papers are attached (check box in Paragraph 2a) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.410(b)].

- The title of the court in which plaintiff's action against defendant is pending, and the name and number of that case (Paragraph 3a-3c) [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.420(d)].

- The names and last known addresses of the plaintiff and defendant (Paragraphs 4, 5) [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.420(b), (c)].

- The amount required to secure the amount to be secured by the attachment at the time the notice is filed (Paragraph 6) [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.420(d)].

- A statement describing the scope of the lien (Paragraph 7) [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.420(f)].

- A statement setting forth restrictions on the compromise, dismissal, settlement, or satisfaction of the action that is the subject of the lien (Paragraph 8) [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.420(g)].

[4] Service

At the time of filing the notice of lien or promptly thereafter, plaintiff must serve a copy of the notice on all parties who have made an appearance in the other action or special proceeding prior to the notice being filed. Along with a copy of the notice, plaintiff must serve on any such parties a statement of the date when the notice of lien was filed in the other action or proceeding. Failure to serve all parties as required does not affect the lien created by the filing of the notice, but the rights of any party are not affected by the lien until that party has notice of the lien [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.410(c)].

Proc. § 491.470(a)*; see § 62.139].

[2] Use of Form

This notice of motion is for use by defendant after a lien has been created under Code Civ. Proc. § 491.410 et seq. to claim that the money or property that he or she may recover in the action or special proceeding is exempt from attachment. The motion is made to the court in which the action or special proceeding is pending [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.470(a)].

[3] Service

The notice of motion should be filed and served on the plaintiff not later than 30 days after the defendant has notice of the creation of lien [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.470(a)].

[4] Opposition

Notice of opposition to the claim of exemption is not required [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.470(a)].

[5] Hearing on Motion

The court may determine the exemption claim any time prior to entry of judgment in the action or special proceeding, or may consolidate the exemption hearing with the hearing on a motion pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 491.460 (motion for order that defendant's rights to money or property under judgment recovered in action or special proceeding be attached or otherwise applied to the satisfaction of lien) [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.470(b); see § 62.196].

For an order terminating the lien because the money or property defendant will recover is exempt from attachment, see

[6] Waiver

Failure of defendant to make a claim of exemption under Code Civ. Proc. § 491.470 constitutes a waiver of the exemption [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.470(a)].

[2] Use of Form

This form of notice of motion and supporting declaration is for use bydefendant to obtain an order permitting him or her to enforce a judgment that he or she has recovered in an action or proceeding that is subject to a lien under Code Civ. Proc. § 491.410 et seq. The form may also be used by defendant to obtain an order permitting him or her to enter into a compromise, dismissal, settlement, or satisfaction of the pending action or special proceeding or resulting judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.440(a)].

Notice of the motion must be served on the plaintiff. The motion is made to the court in which the action or special proceeding is pending [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.440(b)]. Thus, the caption should reflect the action or proceeding subject to the lien, and the attachment defendant should be referred to as the plaintiff in referring to the parties.

[2] Use of Form

This form of notice of motion and supporting declaration is for use by any party to the action or special proceeding to apply for an order declaring that defendant's rights to money or property under the judgment be attached or otherwise applied to the satisfaction of the lien created under Code Civ. Proc. § 491.410 et seq.

Notice of the motion must be served on all other parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.460(a)]. It appears that the motion is made to the court in which the action or special proceeding is pending [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 491.430(b), 491.460]. Thus, the caption should reflect the action or proceeding subject to the lien, and the attachment defendant should be referred as the plaintiff in the referring to the parties in the form.

[3] Available Orders

If the court determines that a party other than the defendant has an interest in the property, the court can restrain transfer of the property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 491.460(b)]. If a party other than the defendant, having notice of the lien, has transferred property or paid money to the defendant that was subject to the lien, the court enters judgment against that party in an amount equal to the lesser of (1) the value of the defendant's interest in the property or the amount paid to the defendant or (2) the amount of the plaintiff's lien [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.460(c)]. For further discussion, see § 62.53. For a form of order, see § 62.197.

Judge of the _____ Court

[2] Use of Form

This form of order is for use by defendant to determine a claim of exemption and to terminate a lien under Code Civ. Proc. § 491.470, or by a plaintiff to attach a judgment recovered by defendant in a pending action or proceeding or to otherwise satisfy the lien pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 491.460.

The hearing on a claim of exemption may be consolidated with a hearing on a motion pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 491.460 to attach the judgment or otherwise satisfy the lien [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.470(b)]. This form may be used when either motion is heard alone or when they are heard together and with one being granted and the other denied. It may be adapted to the situation when motions are heard together and the claim of exemption is only partly granted and the motion to attach the judgment or otherwise satisfy the lien is also granted in part.

[3] Order Terminating Lien

If the court has been requested to determine a claim of exemption, it must order the termination of the lien created under Code Civ. Proc.§ 491.410 et seq. on that portion of the money or property that the defendant may recover in the action or special proceeding that defendant establishes to the satisfaction of the court is exempt from attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.470(c)].

[4] Orders Attaching Judgment or Otherwise Satisfying Lien

*Code Civ. Proc. § 491.460(b)-(d)*govern what orders may be made on the motion for an order attaching the judgment or otherwise satisfying the lien and the effect of the order or judgment granted under Code Civ. Proc. § 491.460(b)-(d). For further discussion, see the Comments to § 62.196.

A judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 491.460 may be enforced in the same manner as it could be enforced if it had been obtained by the defendant against the third party. However, prior to entry of judgment in favor of the plaintiff against the defendant, any money or property obtained in enforcing the judgment or order against the third party must be paid or delivered into court to abide the judgment in the action of the plaintiff against the defendant, or must be held by a levying officer, or otherwise held, as ordered by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 491.460(d)].

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Plaintiff is, and at all of the times mentioned in this complaint was, the owner of certain real property in the County of _____ commonly known as _____ [street address] in the City of _____[, and more particularly described as follows: _____ (legal description)].

2. Defendant _____ [name of plaintiff in prior action] is, and at all times mentioned in this complaint was, _____ [state capacity and residence of defendant, e.g., a resident of _____ County, California, or a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of California with it principal place of business in _____ (city), _____ County, California].

3. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times mentioned in this complaint was, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of _____ [state], with its principal place of business in this state in _____ County, California, and doing business in this state as an admitted surety insurer.

4. On or about _____ [date], defendant _____ [name of principal] caused to be filed in the _____ [specify] Court of California, County of _____, an action against the plaintiff in this action for purported claims and demands. That action was entitled _____ vs. _____, No. _____.

5. On _____ [date], an attachment undertaking was filed in that action, duly executed by defendant _____ [name of surety] in whichdefendant _____ [name of surety], as surety, promised to pay all damages that defendant in that cause (plaintiff in this action) might sustain by reason of any wrongful attachment by the plaintiff (defendant _____ [name of principal]), pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 489.210, not exceeding the sum of $_____.

6. Thereafter, on or about _____[date], a writ of attachment issued in the action described in Paragraph 4 above, on the application of the plaintiff in that action (who is defendant _____[name] in this action). A copy of the writ is attached to this complaint as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof.

7. On or about _____ [date], attachment was levied by the _____ [levying officer] on all of the right, title, and interest of plaintiff in and to the real property described in Paragraph 1 above. Thereafter, on or about _____[date], the _____ [levying officer] filed in that action his/her return and notice of attachment, copies of which are attached to this complaint as Exhibits "B" and "C," respectively, and made parts hereof.

8. On _____ [date], the action was brought to trial and on _____ [date], judgment of nonsuit was ordered by the court in favor of defendant (plaintiff in this action), and against the plaintiff in that action. Thereafter, on _____ [date], the judgment of nonsuit was duly entered and became final on _____ [date]. On _____[date], notice of entry of judgment was served on plaintiff in that action, and the time for appeal has now expired.

9. The lien of attachment remained of record against the real property from the time of its levy until the judgment became final on or about _____[date].

10. All of the proceedings, pleadings, and documents with respect to the levy of the attachment were valid and regular on their face, and for that reason plaintiff, as defendant in that action, made no motion nor brought any proceeding to discharge or dissolve the attachment, as the motion or proceeding would have been unsuccessful and an idle and futile act; the only manner by which the attachment could be discharged or dissolved was to defend and win the action on its merits.

11. In order to defend the action, to effect dissolution of the attachment, and to clear plaintiff's title to the real property from the lien of attachment, plaintiff was obliged to employ counsel and thereby incurred attorney's fees in the reasonable sum of $_____, neither all nor any part of which has been paid by defendants, although demand has been made for their payment.

12. At the time of the levy of attachment, a valid written agreement existed between plaintiff in this action and _____ [name], by which plaintiff agreed to sell and _____ [name] agreed to buy the real property levied on at the agreed price of $_____, which was the fair and reasonable value of the property at the time of the levy. At the time of the attachment an escrow was pending to consummate sale. As a result of the attachment, a cloud was thrown on the legal title to the property standing in the name of plaintiff, and for that reason plaintiff was unable to convey legal title to _____ [name] free and clear of the encumbrance and lien of attachment, and was unable to comply with the condition on his/her part to be performed in the contract of sale with _____[name], to wit: to transfer and convey the real property to him/her free and clear of all encumbrances. For this reason, the sale was never consummated and was thereby lost to plaintiff.

13. On or about _____ [date], when the levy on plaintiff's real property was released, the real property depreciated in value to the sum of $_____, to the damage of plaintiff in the sum of $_____. Demand has been made of the defendants for this sum, but neither all nor any part of it has been paid.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For loss of value of his/her real property in the sum of $_____;

2. For attorney's fees in the sum of $_____;

3. For costs of suit incurred in this action; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in this action. I have read the complaint above and know its contents. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters that are stated on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint may be used to recover damages against the principal and an admitted surety insurer on an attachment undertaking [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 490.020, 490.060, 996.430]. It may be modified for use against individual sureties. The plaintiff may combine statutory and common law theories of recovery [Code Civ. Proc. § 490.060].

The liability of the surety may also be enforced on motion in the trial court where the original attachment was brought without the necessity of an independent action [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440; for a form of notice of motion to enforce liability of a surety on a bond given in an action or proceeding, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds and Undertakings, § 538.40 et seq.]. An independent action might be desired, however, if plaintiff will combine an action against the surety with a common law action for abuse of process or malicious prosecution against the attachment creditor.

Both the principal and the sureties are to be joined as parties to the action. The action is to be commenced in the court in which the action or proceeding in which the bond was given was pending [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.430].

[3] Verification

While verification of this complaint is not required, verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is in the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 467]. Verification will also preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Allege filing of previous action. See § 62.210, Paragraph 4.]

2. On or about _____ [date], an attachment undertaking, duly executed by defendants _____[names] in this action, was filed in that action, in which defendants _____ [names] as sureties promised to pay all costs that might be awarded to defendant in that action (plaintiff in this action), and all damages that he/she might sustain by reason of any wrongful attachment, not exceeding a sum of

3. [Allege issuance of writ of attachment. See § 62.210, Paragraph 6.]

4. On or about _____ [date], the _____ [levying officer] under and by virtue of the authority conferred on him/her by the writ attached the following property: _____ [describe], situated in the County of _____ and belonging to this plaintiff [and took the property into his/her possession]. The levying officer's return and the notice of attachment are attached to this complaint as Exhibits "C" and "D," respectively, and made parts hereof.

4. [Allege regularity of levy and need to defend previous action on its merits. See § 62.210, Paragraph 10.]

5. Thereafter, on or about _____[date], the plaintiff in this action, as defendant in the case described in Paragraph 1 above, made a motion for summary judgment in [Division _____ of] that Court; pursuant to the motion, the Honorable _____ [name], Judge, granted the motion for summary judgment; on or about _____ [date], judgment was entered in that action in favor of the defendant and against the plaintiff. On or about _____[date], notice of entry of the judgment was duly served on the attorney for the plaintiff in that action, and the time to file a notice of appeal has now expired.

6. Plaintiff was damaged by reason of the attachment in the following particulars, to wit: the value of the property on the date of the attachment was $_____; since the date of the vacating of the attachment the value of the property was and now is $_____; as a result of the attachment, the plaintiff was damaged in the sum of $_____.

7. It was necessary for this plaintiff to employ counsel to defend the action, whereby plaintiff incurred and did pay for the attorney's services, the sum of $_____, which is a reasonable sum for such services.

8. Plaintiff has demanded of defendants, and each of them, the sum of $_____, being the maximum amount of damages guaranteed by defendants by reason of the undertaking on attachment, but defendants have refused and still refuse to pay the sum or any part of it.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendants, and each of them, as follows:

1. For damages in the sum of $_____;

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

§ 62.212 Allegations--Malicious Prosecution--Attachment Issued Without Valid Claim

[1] FORM Allegations--Malicious Prosecution--Attachment Issued Without Valid Claim

1. On or about _____ [date], defendant in this action, in furtherance of his/her intent to harass and maliciously injure plaintiff, filed a declaration for a temporary restraining order and writ of attachment in the prior, above-mentioned case initiated by defendant in this action. A temporary restraining order was issued, and after a hearing, the Honorable _____ [name], Judge, directed the clerk of that court to issue a writ of attachment. The writ of attachment was issued on _____ [date].

2. On or about _____ [date], pursuant to the writ of attachment, the _____ [title of levying officer] levied, attached, and _____ [specify method of attachment and property attached, e.g., took into his/her possession the following described property belonging to plaintiff:

(1) Ampex tape machine model 300C.

(2) Arcturus Lathe model "A"].

3. On or about _____ [date], in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] the _____ Court, the Honorable _____ [name], Judge, granted to the defendant in that action, plaintiff herein, his/her motion for summary judgment in that action.

4. On or about _____ [date], pursuant to an order directed from the plaintiff in that action, defendant herein, the _____ [title of levying officer] released the personal property from attachment, and returned it to the plaintiff herein.

5. Plaintiff in this action was at no time indebted, directly or indirectly, to defendant herein or to his/her agent, employee or anyone connected with him/her. The prior action was filed by defendant and the writ of attachment caused to be issued and the property attached maliciously or without purpose or any probable cause, and for the sole reason of harassing, annoying, and injuring plaintiff, and putting him/her to trouble and expense.

[2] Use of Form

These allegations are for use in a complaint for malicious prosecution. For a general form of complaint for malicious prosecution of a civil action, see Ch. 357, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, § 357.10 et seq.. To complete the complaint, allegations of capacity, residence, fictitious name allegations if appropriate, initiation of a civil action by defendant against plaintiff, and damages must be added to the above allegations.

[3] Attachment as Grounds for Action

When an attachment was levied in an action prosecuted maliciously and without probable cause, the remedy is an action for malicious prosecution [White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 347-350, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345] .

[4] State Statutes

Exemplary and punitive damages. Civ. Code § 3294

Wrongful attachment. Code Civ. Proc. § 490.010 et seq.

Common law theory of recovery permitted. Code Civ. Proc. § 490.060

[5] Decisions

Liability for malicious prosecution as requiring that defendant acted maliciously and without probable cause. Smith v. Hill (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 374, 386, 47 Cal. Rptr. 49 (involving irregular appointment of receiver)

§ 62.213 Allegations--Abuse of Process--Regularly Issued Attachment Used for Improper Purpose

[1] FORM Allegations--Abuse of Process--Regularly Issued Attachment Used for Improper Purpose

1. [Issuance of writ of attachment. See § 62.212, Paragraph 1.]

2. Pursuant to the writ, the _____ [title of levying officer] was required to attach and keep sufficient property of plaintiff in this action to satisfy the demand of defendant in the sum of $_____, together with costs and expenses.

3. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff was the owner of _____ [specify attached property, e.g., a fleet of 30 trucks].

[EITHER, if writ used for improper purpose]

4. _____ [Set forth improper use of writ of attachment, e.g., Defendant in this action gave the _____(title of levying officer) instructions to levy attachment on the trucks, which were in the possession of _____ (specify third party). Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that defendant did not instruct the _____ (title of levying officer) to attach the property for the purpose of securing his/her claim against plaintiff, but rather for the purpose _____ (specify, e.g., of creating the impression that plaintiff was having financial difficulties). _____ (Set forth additional facts showing how attachment would accomplish ulterior purpose)].

[OR, if writ used to levy on exempt or excessive amount of property]

4. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that at all times herein mentioned defendant knew _____ [allege exempt status of property or attachment of property greatly in excess of value of amount to be secured, e.g., that plaintiff owned no other trucks, that defendant knew that one truck was exempt from attachment under Code of Civil Procedure Section 704.060(a) or that the value of the trucks was $_____, while the debt to be secured was only $_____], but that nonetheless defendant in this action gave the [_____ (title of levying officer) instructions to levy attachment on the all of the trucks].

[2] Use of Form

These allegations are for use in a complaint for abuse of process. For a general form of complaint for abuse of process, see Ch. 357, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, § 357.50 et seq.

To complete the complaint, allegations of capacity, residence, fictitious name allegations if appropriate, initiation of a civil action by defendant against plaintiff, general damages, and punitive damages must be added to the allegations. In order to allege a cause of action for abuse of process in the case of a writ of attachment, the plaintiff must allege that the writ was maliciously procured in a properly instituted action in which the creditor therein was not entitled to the writ, the attaching property was exempt from attachment or possessed a value greatly in excess of the amount of the legitimate claim, or a regularly issued attachment was used for an improper purpose [White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 348-349, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345] .

[3] Abuse of Process

The essential elements of the tort of abuse of process are an ulterior purpose and a willful act in the use of the process not proper in the regular conduct of the proceeding. Some definite act or threat not authorized by the process, or aimed at an objective not legitimate in the use of the process is required, and there is no liability when the defendant has done nothing more than carry out the process to its authorized conclusion, even though with bad intentions [Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 232, 317 P.2d 613] .

[4] Decisions

Recovery of travel expenses incurred in trial of principal action which was necessary to dispose of attachment. Reachi v. National Auto. & Cas. Co. (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 808, 813, 236 P.2d 151

§ 70.11 Authority of Committee of Bar Examiners

[1] In General

The California Supreme Court has the ultimate constitutional authority to prescribe the requirements for practicing law [In re Attorney Discipline System; Requests of the Governor and the State Bar of California (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 582, 592-593, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 967 P.2d 49 ; In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 984, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944 ; Merco Constr. Engineers, Inc. v. Municipal Court (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 724, 727-729, 147 Cal. Rptr. 631, 581 P.2d 636 ; Brydonjack v. State Bar (1929) 208 Cal. 439, 442-443, 281 P. 1018 ; see Craig v. State Bar of California (9th Cir. 1998) 141 F.3d 1353, 1354] . Nevertheless, the Court has recognized the authority of the Committee of Bar Examiners (COBE) to assist the Court in this function [In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 985, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944 ; Brydonjack v. State Bar (1929) 208 Cal. 439, 445-446, 281 P. 1018] .

The COBE is a committee established by the Board of Governors of the State Bar pursuant to the State Bar Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6046; see Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule I, § 1]. Under the Act, the COBE has the power to examine applicants for admission to practice law, to administer the requirements of admission to practice set forth in the State Bar Act and the rules promulgated under the Act, and to certify to the Supreme Court for admission those applicants who fulfill the requirements [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6046; Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule I, § 1]. The COBE also has the power to adopt reasonable rules and regulations as may be necessary or advisable for the purpose of making effective the qualifications prescribed in the State Bar Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6047]. The rules that the COBE has adopted pursuant to the Act, the Rules Regulating Admission, supplement the provisions of the State Bar Act regarding the qualifications for admission and the procedures for gaining admission.

The examining committee is composed of 19 members. Ten of these members must be members of the State Bar or judges of courts of recordin California; at least one of the attorney members must have been admitted to practice law in California within three years of being appointed to the examining committee [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6046]. Three nonattorney members are each selected by the Senate Rules Committee, the Speaker of the Assembly, and the Governor; these members serve four-year terms and have the same rights, powers, and privileges as any attorney member, except that they may not participate in drafting questions for the bar examination [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6046.5].

If a full panel of 19 members is appointed and sitting, 10 members will constitute a quorum for the transaction of COBE business. No specific number of members is required to be present for adjournment of a meeting, however [see Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule I, § 4 (providing that general quorum consists of one half of members appointed and sitting, plus one)].

[2] Conduct of Investigations and Hearings

In the conduct of investigations and the hearing of all matters, the COBE or any subcommittee having jurisdiction may do all of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6049; Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule I, § 6; see Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule I, §§ 7, 8]:

- Take and hear relevant evidence.
- Administer oaths and affirmations.
- Compel by subpoena the attendance of witnesses and production of relevant books, papers, and documents.

[3] Review of Subcommittee Determination

If a subcommittee of the COBE acts on the COBE's behalf in a particular matter, the applicant may have the subcommittee's determination reviewed and determined by the entire COBE, provided that the determination was not merely to refer the application for investigation. An application for review must be filed within 10 days after notification to the applicant of the subcommittee's determination [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule I, § 5]. For a form of application for review, see § 70.60.

§ 70.12 Basic Qualifications for Admission to Practice

To be certified to the Supreme Court for admission and license to practice law, a person who does not meet the requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6062 (qualifications for certification of out-of-state attorneys), Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.45 (admission of registered legal services attorneys), or Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.46 (admission of registered in-house counsel) is required to meet the qualifications set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 6060, which include, generally, that the applicant:

- Be at least 18 years old.
- Be of good moral character [see § 70.15].
- Complete the educational requirements set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 6060(c)-(e).
- Pass the examinations specified in Bus. & Prof. Code § 6060(f) (final bar examination) and, if applicable, Bus. & Prof. Code § 6060(g) (First-Year Law Student's Examination).

The qualifications and the administrative procedures for meeting them are set forth in detail in Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rules I--XVI.

§ 70.13 Registered Legal Services Attorneys

[1] Requirements for Admission

Effective November 15, 2004, an attorney may practice law in California while working, with or without pay, at a qualifying legal services provider under appropriate supervision [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.45(b)]. A "qualifying legal services provider" is one of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.45(a)(1)]:

1. A nonprofit entity incorporated and operated exclusively in California that as its primary purpose and function provides legal services without charge in civil matters to indigent persons, especially underserved client groups, such as the elderly, persons with disabilities, juveniles, and non-English-speaking persons; or

2. A program operated exclusively in California by a nonprofit law school approved by the American Bar Association or accredited by the State Bar of California that has operated for at least two years at a cost of at least $20,000 per year as an identifiable law school unit with a primary purposes and function of providing legal services without charge to indigent persons.

An attorney may practice as a registered legal services attorney for no more than a total of three years [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.45(e)]. The State Bar of California may set initial and annual registration fees and application fees to be paid by registered legal services attorneys [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.45(f)].

To practice law under this rule, an attorney must [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.45(c)]:

> 1. Be an active member in good standing of the bar of a United States state, jurisdiction, possession, territory, or dependency.

2. Register with the State Bar of California and file an Application for Determination of Moral Character [see § 70.18].

3. Meet all of the requirements for admission to the State Bar of California, except that the attorney (a) need not take the California bar examination or the Multistate Professional Responsibility Examination; and (b) may practice law while awaiting the result of his or her Application for Determination of Moral Character.

4. Comply with the rules adopted by the Board of Governors relating to the State Bar Registered Legal Services Attorney Program.

5. Practice law exclusively for a single qualifying legal services provider. If qualified, the attorney may also simultaneously practice law as registered in-house counsel [see § 70.14].

6. Practice law under the supervision of an attorney who is employed by the qualifying legal services provider and who is a member in good standing of the State Bar of California.

7. Abide by all the laws and rules that govern members of the State Bar of California, including the Minimum Continuing Legal Education requirements.

8. Satisfy in his or her first year of practice all of the MCLE requirements, including ethics education, that members of the State Bar of California must complete every three years.

9. Not have failed the California bar examination within five years immediately preceding the application to register under this rule.

[2] Application

To qualify to practice law as a registered legal services attorney, the attorney must [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.45(d)]:

1. Register as an attorney applicant and file an Application for Determination of Moral Character [see § 70.18] with the COBE.

2. Submit to the State Bar of California a declaration signed by the attorney agreeing that he or she will be subject to the disciplinary authority of the Supreme Court of California and the State Bar of California and attesting that he or she will not practice law in California other than under supervision at a qualifying legal services provider during the time he or she practices law as a registered legal services attorney in California, except that, if qualified, the attorney may simultaneously practice law as registered in-house counsel [see § 70.14].

3. Submit to the State Bar of California a declaration signed by a qualifying supervisor [see § 70.13[3]] on behalf of the qualifying legal services provider in California attesting that the applicant will work, with or without pay, as an attorney for the organization, that the applicant will be supervised, and that the qualifying legal services provider and thesupervising attorney assume professional responsibility for any work performed by the applicant.

[3] Qualifying Supervising Attorney

An attorney supervising a registered legal services attorney [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.45(h)]:

1. Must be an active member in good standing of the State Bar of California.

2. Must have actively practiced law in California and been a member in good standing of the State Bar of California for at least the two years immediately preceding the time of supervision.

3. Must have practiced law as a full-time occupation for at least four years.

4. Must not supervise more than two registered legal services attorneys concurrently.

5. Must assume professional responsibility for any work that the registered legal services attorney performs under the supervising attorney's supervision.

6. Must assist, counsel, and provide direct supervision of the registered legal services attorney in the activities authorized by this rule and review such activities with the supervised attorney, to the extent required for the protection of the client.

7. Must read, approve, and personally sign any pleadings, briefs, or other similar documents prepared by the registered legal services attorney before their filing, and must read and approve any documents prepared by the registered legal services attorney for execution by any person who is not a member of the State Bar of California before their submission for execution.

8. May, in his or her absence, designate another attorney meeting the above requirements to provide the required supervision.

§ 70.14 Registered In-House Counsel

[1] In General

Effective November 15, 2004, an attorney who resides in California and who is licensed to practice law in one or more jurisdictions in the United States, other than California, may register to provide legal services as in-house counsel for a single qualifying institution in California without becoming a member of the State Bar of California [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.46].

Registered in-house counsel must renew his or her registration annually [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.46(e)]. If a registered in-house counsel changes employers, he or she must notify the State Bar of California within 30 days [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.46(e)]. If an attorney wishes to practice law as a registered in-house counsel for a new employer, he or she must register as in-house counsel for the new employer [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.46(e)].

[2] Scope of Practice

A registered in-house counsel [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.46(b)]:

1. Is permitted to provide legal services in California only to the qualifying institution that employs him or her.

2. Is not permitted to make court appearances in California state courts or to engage in any other activities for which pro hac vice admission is required if they are performed in California by an attorney who is not a member of the State Bar of California.

3. Is not permitted to provide personal or individual representation to any customers, shareholders, owners, partners, officers, employees, servants, or agents of the qualifying institution.

A "qualifying institution" is a corporation, partnership, association, or other legal entity, including its subsidiaries and organizational affiliates [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.46(a)]. A governmental entity and an entity that provides legal services to others are not qualifying institutions [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.46(a)]. A qualifying institution must [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.46(a)]:

1. Employ at least 10 employees full-time in California; or

2. Employ in California an attorney who is an active member in good standing of the State Bar of California.

[3] Requirements

To practice as a registered in-house counsel, an attorney must [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.46(c)]:

1. Be an active member in good standing of the bar of a United States state, jurisdiction, possession, territory, or dependency.

2. Register with the State Bar of California and file an Application for Determination of Moral Character [see § 70.18].

3. Meet all of the requirements for admission to the State Bar of California, except that the attorney (a) need not take the California bar examination or the Multistate Professional Responsibility Examination; and (b) may practice law while awaiting the result of his or her Application forDetermination of Moral Character.

4. Comply with the rules adopted by the Board of Governors relating to the State Bar Registered In-House Counsel Program.

5. Practice law exclusively for a single qualifying institution. If qualified, the attorney may also simultaneously practice law as a registered legal services attorney [see discussion under Registered Legal Services Attorney].

6. Abide by all the laws and rules that govern members of the State Bar of California, including the Minimum Continuing Legal Education requirements.

7. Satisfy in his or her first year of practice all of the MCLE requirements, including ethics education, that members of the State Bar of California must complete every three years and, thereafter, satisfy the MCLE requirements applicable to all members of the State Bar.

8. Reside in California.

[4] Application

To qualify to practice law as a registered in-house counsel, the attorney must [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.46(d)]:

1. Register as an attorney applicant and file an Application for Determination of Moral Character [see § 70.18] with the COBE.

2. Submit to the State Bar of California a declaration signed by the attorney agreeing that he or she will be subject to the disciplinary authority of the Supreme Court of California and the State Bar of California and attesting that he or she will not practice law in California other than on behalf of the qualifying institution during the time he or she is registered in-house counsel in California, except that, if qualified, the attorney may simultaneously practice law as a registered legal services attorney [see § 70.13].

3. Submit to the State Bar of California a declaration signed by an officer, director, or general counsel of the applicant's employer, on behalf of the applicant's employer, attesting that the applicant is employed as an attorney for the employer, that the nature of the employment conforms to the requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.46, that the employer will notify the State Bar of California within 30 days of the cessation of the applicant's employment in California, and that the person signing the declaration believes, to the best of his or her knowledge after reasonable inquiry, that the applicant qualifies for registration under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.46 and is an individual of good moral character.

§ 70.15 Good Moral Character

[1] Requirement for Admission

Every applicant must be of good moral character [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6060, 6062; Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rules II, § 2(b), X, § 1]. The term "good moral character" includes qualities of honesty, fairness, candor, trustworthiness, observance of fiduciary responsibility, knowledge of the laws of the state and the nation, and the respect for the rights of others and for the judicial process [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 1; In re Gossage (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 1080, 1095, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130, 5 P.3d 186] . The fundamental question in determining good moral character is whether the applicant is a fit and proper person to practice law, which usually turns on whether he or she has committed or is likely to commit acts of moral turpitude, a concept that embraces a wide range of deceitful and depraved behavior [see In re Gossage (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 1080, 1095, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130, 5 P.3d 186 ; In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 986, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944 ; Hallinan v. Committee of Bar Examiners(1966) 65 Cal. 2d 447, 453, 55 Cal. Rptr. 228, 421 P.2d 76 ; for definition of moral turpitude, see § 70.15[3][d]].

The applicant has the burden of establishing that he or she is of good moral character [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 1].

[2] Applicant's Duty of Disclosure

Applicants must produce evidence of good moral character in order to be admitted to practice [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rules II, § 2(b), VI, §§ 1(a), 2, 3, X, §§ 1, 2].

Admission may be denied when an applicant fails to disclose fully his or her criminal history, information material to an accurate moral character assessment. Whether it is caused by intentional concealment, reckless disregard for the truth, or an unreasonable refusal to perceive the need for disclosure, such an omission is itself strong evidence that the applicant lacks the integrity or intellectual discernment required to be an attorney [In re Gossage (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 1080, 1102, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130, 5 P.3d 186] . On the other hand, an applicant may be admitted despite omission of less crucial information, when the omission is due to innocent mistake and when the application is otherwise complete [In re Gossage (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 1080, 1102, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130, 5 P.3d 186 (citing cases of inadvertent omission of civil matters but otherwise complete about criminal matters)].

In addition to the initial duty of disclosure, applicants have a continuing duty to update responses to questions on the application, including the moral character section [see Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule VI, § 7; In the Matter of Pasyanos (Rev. Dep't 2005) 2005 Cal. Op. LEXIS 1, *17-*19 (discipline, rather than license cancellation, was appropriate sanction for failing to disclose misdemeanor when failure was innocent and unintentional; In the Matter of Ike (1996) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 483 ; but see In re Gossage (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 1080, 1105, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130, 5 P.3d 186 (adherence to continuing requirement to keep application current and updated did not purge applicant's failure to disclose criminal convictions initially)].

Certain matters pertaining to moral character need not be disclosed. Juvenile adjudications, for example, are not regarded as criminal; once a minor's adjudication records have been sealed, the adjudication is deemed not to have occurred, and an applicant may answer inquiries from the State Bar accordingly [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 203, 781(a); see Penal Code § 1203.45(a) (misdemeanor conviction of minor treated as nonexistent once expunged); see also Penal Code § 851.7(b) (sealing record of juvenile arrest for misdemeanor); Erwin, Millman, Monroe, Sevilla, Tarlow, California Criminal Defense Practice, Chs. 93, 103 (Matthew Bender); but see Welf. & Inst. Code § 781(g) (certain sealed juvenile records may be inspected and introduced into evidence later for purpose of proving alleged enhancement in criminal prosecution)].

An applicant is likewise not required to disclose convictions of certain offenses relating to the possession of marijuana, or arrests for certain other drug-related offenses if the applicant has successfully completed a drug diversion program [see Health & Safety Code § 11361.5; Penal Code § 1000.5]. An applicant is not required to reveal criminal acts for which he or she has not been arrested or charged and is not awaiting trial [In the Matter of Passenheim (Review Dept. 1992) 2 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 62] .

Under Penal Code § 1203.4, in certain circumstances, a person who was convicted of a crime may have the conviction set aside. This, however, does not relieve the person of the obligation to disclose the conviction in response to a direct question contained in an application for licensure by a state agency, including the State Bar [see Penal Code § 1203.4(a)].

An applicant must disclose convictions based on a plea of nolo contendere. The State Bar may treat the plea as the equivalent of a guilty plea, but it is not required to do so [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6101(e) (disbarment proceedings); In re Hallinan (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 243, 247, 272 P.2d 768 (no discrimination in instituting disciplinary action against lawyer convicted of tax crime when other lawyers not subject to action were convicted on nolo contendere plea)].

An applicant must disclose whether he or she is awaiting trial for any alleged violation of a law or ordinance, the commission of any felony, misdemeanor, or infraction, no matter how minor the incident. The applicant's duty to disclose calls for a "high degree of frankness and truthfulness" and is an "absolute duty" [Spears v. The State Bar (1930) 211 Cal. 183, 187, 294 P. 697 ; In the Matter of Ike (1996) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 483] .

[3] Defining Good Moral Character

[a] Decisions and Other Sources of Guidelines on Moral Character Issues

The standard of character to be applied in admissions cases is virtually indistinguishable from that applied in attorney discipline cases [Hallinan v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 447, 452-453, 55 Cal. Rptr. 228, 421

P.2d 76 (rejecting contention by the COBE that higher standard should be applied to applicant)]. Therefore, in considering the kinds of acts that would justify excluding a candidate for admission, the California Supreme Court often looks to acts on which it has relied to sustain decisions to disbar or suspend individuals previously admitted to practice [In re Gossage (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 1080, 1095, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130, 5 P.3d 186 ; In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 985-986, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944 ; Hallinan v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 447, 453, 55 Cal. Rptr. 228, 421 P.2d 76] . This expands the available case lawin admissions cases, since the Court has decided only a handful of published bar admissions cases involving moral character issues. Although these cases have been significant in other ways, they do not provide a detailed view of the circumstances under which an applicant's past conduct may prevent admission to practice. Published decisions in attorney discipline cases may provide examples of conduct falling below the applicable standard of character. For general discussion of grounds for discipline, see Ch. 71, Attorney Discipline .

An adverse ruling by the COBE must be appealed to the State Bar Court before it will be reviewed by the Supreme Court [see § 70.18[7]]. The Review Department of the State Bar Court publishes the majority of its opinions in the California State Bar Court Reporter (hereafter Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr.).

Other guidelines may prove helpful. The California Supreme Court often acts by minute order or memorandum decision in conviction referrals and other bar matters. These decisions are published in the court minutes. The State Bar General Counsel maintains a list of precedents that assist the bar and the court to determine whether a particular offense involves moral turpitude per se. The published summaries of public and private discipline that appear in the official State Bar newsletter, the California Bar Journal and the unofficial State Bar magazine, California Lawyer, or in press releases may also prove helpful, although the precedential value of these summaries is dubious.

Bar admission decisions in other states may be looked to as authority, at least in situations that have not been analyzed by the California Supreme Court [see Hallinan v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 447, 462-463, 55 Cal. Rptr. 228, 421 P.2d 76 (relying on out-of-state authority)]. The National Conference on Bar Examiners, based in Chicago, publishes a "Litigation Report" summarizing recent decisions and pending actions in admissions cases.

An applicant need only demonstrate present good character [see In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 983, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944 ; Martin B. v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 717, 726, 190 Cal. Rptr. 610, 661 P.2d 160] . If the acts that raise doubt about the applicant's moral character took place in the past, the applicant may be admitted by showing evidence of his or her rehabilitation [see Martin B. v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 717, 721-726, 190 Cal. Rptr. 610, 661 P.2d 160 (nine-year, unblemished exemplary record should be sufficient to show rehabilitation after alleged rape)]. In fact, the law looks with favor on rewarding one who has achieved reformation and regeneration with the opportunity to serve [Hightower v. State Bar (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 150, 157, 193 Cal. Rptr. 153, 666 P.2d 10] .

To a point, the Supreme Court is normally tolerant of "youthful indiscretions" [see Martin B. v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 717, 726, 190 Cal. Rptr. 610, 661 P.2d 160 ; Hallinan v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 447, 471, 55 Cal. Rptr. 228, 421 P.2d 76] . On the other hand, however, admission on the basis of rehabilitation commonly involves a substantial period of exemplary conduct following applicant's past misdeeds, and the more serious the misconduct and bad character evidence, the stronger the showing of rehabilitation must be [In re Gossage (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 1080, 1096-1097, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130, 5 P.3d 186] . For example, when past misconduct involved a "brutal and unnecessary" homicide that led to a conviction for voluntary manslaughter, the Supreme Court held that only a "compelling showing of reform" would suffice [In re Gossage (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 1080, 1096-1097, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130, 5 P.3d 186] . The Court concluded that this required showing had not been made in light of evidence of other numerous illegal and bad acts by the applicant, which suggested a pattern of antisocial behavior casting doubt on his moral character [In re Gossage (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 1080, 1098, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130, 5 P.3d 186]

. The Court noted that, when serious or criminal misconduct is involved, the showing of rehabilitation is affected by the fact that positive inferences become more difficult to draw, while negative inferences become stronger and more reasonable [In re Gossage (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 1080, 1098, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130, 5 P.3d 186 (denying admission to applicant who claimed reformed moral character following voluntary manslaughter and felony forgery convictions, when these misdeeds were followed by repeated misdemeanor convictions and incomplete disclosure of criminal history on application)].

Repentance or remorse is normally an important factor in determining if an applicant has demonstrated rehabilitation [see March v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 718, 731-732, 63 Cal. Rptr. 399, 433 P.2d 191] . Nevertheless, in cases in which it was never totally clear that the applicant was guilty of moral turpitude, "lack of remorse" may be evidence of good character, in that it demonstrates courageous adherence to one's beliefs [see Hall v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 730, 744, 159 Cal. Rptr. 848, 602 P.2d 768] .

However, "[r]emorse does not demonstrate rehabilitation ... a truer indication of rehabilitation ... is sustained conduct over an extended period of time" [In re Conflenti (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 120, 124-125, 172 Cal. Rptr. 203, 624 P.2d 253] . If the applicant's misconduct caused significant harm to others, the sustained conduct must include proof applicant is making amends to the victims [In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 991, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944] .

An applicant who cannot demonstrate present good character and is denied admission on this ground may reapply for admission. The rules permit an applicant who was found to lack the requisite moral character to reapply any time following two years after the date of denial, unless theCOBE, for good cause, has set a shorter or longer period [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 6].

[c] Relation to Practice of Law

A state may not establish qualifications for admission to the bar unless they have a rational connection with an applicant's fitness or capacity to practice law [Schware v. Board of Bar Examiners (1957) 353 U.S. 232, 238-239, 77 S. Ct. 752, 1 L. Ed. 2d 796] . Thus, even if there is an indication of bad moral character, an applicant may be admitted if the bad character trait is not related to the practice of law [see Hallinan v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 447, 459-460, 55 Cal. Rptr. 228, 421 P.2d 76 ; see also Morrison v. State Board of Education (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 214, 238-239, 82 Cal. Rptr. 175, 461 P.2d 375 (restrictions limiting right to practice chosen occupation must be related to fitness to perform that occupation); In re Rothrock (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 449, 454-459, 106 P.2d 907 (attorney discipline case; assault with deadly weapon not related to moral fitness to practice of law when offense was minor as indicated by lenient punishment)].

[d] Lack of Moral Turpitude

Attorneys must possess good moral character. Good moral character includes traits of "honesty, fairness, candor, trustworthiness, observance of fiduciary responsibility, respect for and obedience to the laws of the state and the nation and respect for the rights of others and for the judicial process" [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 1; see In re Gossage (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 1080, 1095, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130, 5 P.3d 186] . Persons of good character also do not commit acts or crimes involving moral turpitude, a concept that embraces a wide range of deceitful and depraved behavior [In re Gossage (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 1080, 1095, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130, 5 P.3d 186] . Good moral character has thus been sometimes defined as the equivalent of a lack of moral turpitude [In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 986, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944 ; Kwasnik v. State Bar (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1061, 1067, 269 Cal. Rptr. 749, 791 P.2d 319 ; Hallinan v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 447, 452, 55 Cal. Rptr. 228, 421 P.2d 76] .

Moral turpitude, in turn, has been broadly defined as "everything done contrary to justice, honesty, modesty, or good morals" and as "an act of baseness, vileness or depravity in the private and social duties" that one owes to others or to society [Hallinan v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 447, 452 n.4, 55 Cal. Rptr. 228, 421 P.2d 76] .

Standing alone, convictions of crimes such as murder, forgery, extortion, bribery, perjury, robbery, embezzlement, and other forms of theft justify a finding of moral turpitude [see In re Rothrock (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 449, 459, 106 P.2d 907 (but holding that assault with deadly weapon was not related to practice of law; no moral turpitude involved in light of minor punishment imposed)]. On the other hand, an applicant who had a wrongful death judgment against him discharged in bankruptcy established that he had good moral character [see Kwasnik v. State Bar (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1061, 1067, 269 Cal. Rptr. 749, 791 P.2d 319] .

Two of the most prevalent forms of moral turpitude found in admissions cases involve crimes and lying on the application or during the moral fitness investigation [see § 70.15[3][e], [f]]. In addition, practicing law without a license may be considered moral turpitude [Hightower v. State Bar (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 150, 157, 193 Cal. Rptr. 153, 666 P.2d 10] . General dishonesty may also be grounds for exclusion. The courts have upheld the refusal to certify an applicant for obtaining credit fraudulently and for refusing to account for partnership profits [see In re Wells (1917) 174 Cal. 467, 475-476, 163 P. 657 ; In re Stover (1924) 65 Cal. App. 622, 623-624, 224 P. 771] . When ethical breaches are not serious, however, an applicant may not be refused admission to the bar, at least when the applicant has supplied reasonable explanations for his or her behavior [see Hall v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 730, 736-742, 159 Cal. Rptr. 848, 602 P.2d 768] . Furthermore, isolated instances of dishonesty are not normally grounds for exclusion [see Martin B. v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 717, 721, 726, 190 Cal. Rptr. 610, 661 P.2d 160] .

In determining whether an applicant possesses good moral character, the COBE, the State Bar Court, and the Supreme Court may look to the cumulative effect of several incidents, each of which, if viewed independently, would not be viewed as proof of moral turpitude, as well as to incidents that, in and of themselves, supply proof of moral turpitude [see Bernstein v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 90, 107, 70 Cal. Rptr. 106, 443 P.2d 570] . Each case is evaluated on its own merits [see Hightower v. State Bar (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 150, 155-156, 193 Cal. Rptr. 153, 666 P.2d 10 ; March v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 718, 720, 63 Cal. Rptr. 399, 433 P.2d 191] .

[e] False Statements or Omissions Made on Application or During Investigation

False statements, omissions, or lack of candor during an investigation may constitute grounds for exclusion of an applicant or may aggravate a negative factor in the applicant's history [see, e.g., Greene v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 189, 201, 93 Cal. Rptr. 24, 480 P.2d 976 (omissions in application); Bernstein v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 90, 107, 70 Cal. Rptr. 106, 443 P.2d 570 (general lack of truthfulness and candor); Spears v. The State Bar (1930) 211 Cal. 183, 187, 294 P. 697 (false statements in application); In the Matter of Ike (1996) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 483 (failure to disclose)]. Thus, admission may be denied because an applicant fails to disclose fully his or her criminal history, whether that failure is due to intentional concealment, recklessdisregard for the truth, or an unreasonable refusal to perceive the need for disclosure. Such an omission is itself strong evidence that the applicant lacks the integrity or intellectual discernment required to be an attorney [In re Gossage (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 1080, 1102, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130, 5 P.3d 186 (failure to disclose two felony and six misdemeanor convictions); see also Hallinan v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 447, 473, 55 Cal. Rptr. 228, 421 P.2d 76] .

Conversely, failure to disclose information may be deemed de minimis when an applicant failed to disclose relatively unimportant information, at least when the omission is an innocent mistake and the application is otherwise complete in disclosing serious misconduct [In re Gossage (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 1080, 1102, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130, 5 P.3d 186 (citing cases involving inadvertent omission of civil matters but providing complete disclosure of criminal matters); see Hallinan v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 447, 473, 55 Cal. Rptr. 228, 421 P.2d 76 (applicant disclosed numerous arrests but neglected to mention two relatively minor matters)].

In cases in which the applicant is charged with lying in response to questions concerning whether he or she has advocated certain positions (such as violent confrontation with the police), considerations under U.S. Const., amend. I, require that the applicant may be denied admission only if the evidence shows beyond any reasonable doubt that the applicant's version is objectively false and was advanced by him or her with the intent to deceive the COBE [see Siegel v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 156, 178-179, 110 Cal. Rptr. 15, 514 P.2d 967] .

The Supreme Court has held that if an attorney, after admission, is found to have made a deliberate false statement on his or her application, it has the authority not only to discipline him or her, but also to revoke his or her license [Spears v. The State Bar (1930) 211 Cal. 183, 187, 294 P. 697 ; State Bar v. Langert (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 636, 639, 276 P.2d 596 ; Goldstein v. State Bar (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 937, 951, 254 Cal. Rptr. 794, 766 P.2d 560 ; In the Matter of Ike (1996) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 483] .

[f] Crimes in General

Not every intentional violation of the law is, in and of itself, grounds for denying admission due to lack of good moral character. Some crimes, however, such as those involving fraud, perjury, theft, embezzlement, and bribery, moral turpitude is unquestionably involved [Hallinan v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 447, 459, 55 Cal. Rptr. 228, 421 P.2d 76] .

Crimes that are not inherently dishonest or depraved may also indicate moral turpiture in some circumstances. For example, an act of violence resulting in a conviction for voluntary manslaughter may show moral turpitude when the perpetrator continues an assault long after the victim ceases attack or resistance, and subsequently makes no effort to summon medical aid for the victim but instead takes steps to conceal his guilt. Such conduct shows not only deceit in the acts of concealment, but also shows a dangerous volatility combined with a conscious and selfish disregard for the law and the rights of others [see In re Gossage (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 1080, 1097-1098, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130, 5 P.3d 186] .

The COBE may initiate an investigation into criminal charges against an applicant even though the applicant ultimately obtained a favorable termination of the charges [see Martin B. v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 717, 721, 190 Cal. Rptr. 610, 661 P.2d 160] . The favorable termination is, however, normally accorded great weight [see Martin B. v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 717, 723, 190 Cal. Rptr. 610, 661 P.2d 160] . When such an investigation is initiated, the COBE must afford the applicant a fair and reasonable opportunity to defend himself or herself [Martin B. v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 717, 721, 190 Cal. Rptr. 610, 661 P.2d 160] . An applicant may not be denied admission on the basis of criminal acts for which he or she obtained an acquittal when the acts took place years ago, memories have faded, witnesses are unavailable, evidence has been destroyed, and a transcript of the proceedings is unavailable [Martin B. v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 717, 721-723, 190 Cal. Rptr. 610, 661 P.2d 160] .

For additional discussion concerning disclosure of criminal convictions, see § 70.15[2].

[g] Civil Disobedience

Acts of nonviolent civil disobedience are not normally considered acts of moral turpitude, at least when motivated by sincere political beliefs [Hallinan v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 447, 462, 55 Cal. Rptr. 228, 421 P.2d 76] . In one case, for example, the Supreme Court admitted the applicant to practice over the COBE's denial of certification when the applicant had been arrested numerous times for civil disobedience and had testified to the committee that he felt that civil disobedience was proper if alternative methods of dealing with issues involving social justice had been tried first and failed [Hallinan v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 447, 455-464, 55 Cal. Rptr. 228, 421 P.2d 76] .

Advocating violence as a response to social injustice has also been held as an insufficient ground for exclusion from the Bar [see Siegel v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 156, 174-175, 110 Cal. Rptr. 15, 514 P.2d 967] .

[h] Violent or Abrasive Behavior

A quarrelsome disposition or a hasty and ungoverned temper are not necessarily incompatible with the honesty and integrity required ofmembers of the Bar and do not normally disqualify a person for admission [Hallinan v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 447, 472, 55 Cal. Rptr. 228, 421 P.2d 76] . Furthermore, a finding that an applicant has engaged in numerous fistfights does not justify exclusion, at least when most of the incidents occurred during the applicant's adolescence [Hallinan v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 447, 464-472, 55 Cal. Rptr. 228, 421 P.2d 76 ; but see § 70.15[3][f]].

[i] Advocacy of Overthrow of Government

No person who advocates the overthrow of the United States government or California state government by force, violence, or other unconstitutional means may be certified to the Supreme Court for admission and a license to practice law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6064.1].

The COBE may question an applicant about affiliations with radical political organizations that advocate overthrowing the government and may reject an applicant for refusal to answer questions [Law Students Research Council v. Wadmond (1971) 401 U.S. 154, 166, 91 S. Ct. 720, 27 L. Ed. 2d 749 ; Konigsberg v. State Bar (1961) 366 U.S. 36, 43, 81 S. Ct. 997, 6 L. Ed. 2d 105 (Konigsberg II) , aff'g Konigsberg v. State Bar (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 769, 772-774, 344 P.2d 777 ; see also Konigsberg v. State Bar (1957) 353 U.S. 252, 270-271, 77 S. Ct. 722, 1 L. Ed. 2d. 810 (Konigsberg I; exclusion of applicant violated due process when evidence did not rationally support finding that applicant failed to prove he did not advocate overthrow of government)]. The applicant, however, must first be warned that a refusal to answer may be considered an obstruction of the investigative process [see Konigsberg v. State Bar of California (1961) 366 U.S. 36, 48-49, 81 S. Ct. 997, 6 L. Ed. 2d 105] . The State Bar's inquiry must center on whether or not the applicant himself or herself advocates overthrow of the government by unconstitutional means. Membership in an organization that advocates unlawful violence does not automatically establish that the applicant is unfit to practice law [see Schware v. Board of Bar Examiners (1957) 353 U.S. 232, 245-247, 77 S. Ct. 752, 1 L. Ed. 2d 796 ; March v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 718, 730-732, 63 Cal. Rptr. 399, 433 P.2d 191] . Furthermore, protections under U.S. Const., amend. I, normally apply in cases involving "advocacy," and speech that advocates violence or political beliefs may be constitutionally protected in some instances [see Siegel v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 156, 174 n.18, 110 Cal. Rptr. 15, 514 P.2d 967] .

§ 70.16 Right to Inspect Examination Papers and Grading

An applicant who has taken and failed the bar examination has the right, within four months/after the results have been declared, to inspect those of his or her examination papers that are in the actual, physical possession of the examining committee at the time the request for inspection is made and the final grades assigned to it at the COBE office located nearest to the place at which the applicant took the examination [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6065; Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule I, § 10].

No applicant who passes an examination given by the COBE, other than the First-Year Law Students' Examination, is entitled to inspect his or her examination books, or the grades assigned to them. The COBE may, however, in its discretion, assign grades and disclose them to applicants who pass the First-Year Law Students' Examination [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule I, § 10].

§ 70.17 Oral Examination Regarding Qualifications

Unless qualified to apply as an "attorney applicant," every person applying to the COBE must present himself or herself before the COBE, any subcommittee, or the State Bar Court at such times and places as may be required, for oral examination concerning his or her moral character or other qualifications and furnish at any time any supplemental information and documentation, and in any form that may be required, relating to his or her moral character or his or her other qualifications [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule II, § 2(c)].

§ 70.18 Proceedings to Determine Moral Character

[1] Screening Procedure

As part of the application process, the applicant must complete and submit a Moral Character Application [see Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rules VI, §§ 1(a), 2, X, § 2(a), (b)]. The COBE completes an initial screening of each applicant concerning moral character within 180 days following filing of the application and notifies the applicant either that he or she has been found to be of good moral character or that such a determination cannot then be made because (1) information requested from the applicant, from governmental agencies, or from additional sources has not been received, or (2) further inquiry and anlysis is needed [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 2(c)].

An applicant who receives such a notice has 90 days to provide any additional information requested by the COBE. Failure to provide the requested information constitutes abandonment of the Moral Character Application and termination of the moral character determination process. Thereafter, if the applicant wishes to proceed with the moral character determination proceess, he or she must file a new Moral Character Application accompanied by a specified fee [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 2(d)].

If the COBE determines that further inquiry and analysis is necessary, the further inquiry and analysis must be conducted and a written reportmust be considered by the COBE within 60 days after the notification described above. At that time, the COBE may determine one of the following [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 2(f)]:

- That the applicant is of good moral character.
- That the applicant has not met the burden of establishing good moral character.
- That the application be referred for further inquiry and analysis.

- That the applicant be invited to confer informally with the Subcommittee on Moral Character, as provided in Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 3(a) [see § 70.18[2]].

- That the applicant and the COBE enter into an Agreement of Abeyance, as provided in Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 4 [see § 70.18[3]].

The COBE must notify the applicant of its determination [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 2(f)].

[2] Informal Conference

[a] By Invitation of COBE

The COBE may invite an applicant to confer informally with the Subcommittee on Moral Character or any two or more of its members at any time during its consideration of the Moral Character Application [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, §§ 2(f)(4), 3(a)]. The purpose of the informal conference is to discuss issues related to moral character considerations. The conference is not mandatory, and no negative inference may be drawn from an applicant's declining to confer [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 3(a)].

[b] At Request of Applicant

An applicant may request to confer informally with the Subcommittee on Moral Character only after a determination from the COBE that the applicant has not met the burden of establishing good moral character and only if an informal conference has not been previously held. The request to confer must be in writing and must be received in the COBE's San Francisco office within 30 days of the notification of the adverse determination [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 3(b); see § 70.61].

On receipt of a timely filed request, the COBE's determination will be considered pending and an informal conference will be scheduled within 60 days, unless the COBE agrees to a later date. The purpose of this informal conference is to discuss the issues related to the determination that the applicant had not met the burden of establishing good moral character. Matters raised by the applicant are limited to those issues that were the basis of the COBE's adverse determination. The COBE's finaldetermination must be forwarded to the applicant within 30 days following consideration of the matter by the COBE. The applicant may appeal the final determination according to the provisions of Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 5 [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 3(b); see § 70.18[7]].

[3] Agreement of Abeyance

The COBE and the applicant may enter into an Abeyance Agreement to suspend continued inquiry and analysis regarding moral character under the following circumstances [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 4(a)]:

- When an accusatory pleading has been filed against the applicant charging him or her with the commission of a crime and a court has ordered the applicant diverted or referred for education, treatment, or rehabilitation.

- When the applicant has been convicted of a crime and the court has suspended imposition or execution of a sentence and has ordered the applicant placed on probation.

- When the applicant is actively seeking or obtaining treatment for chemical dependency or drug or alcohol addiction.

- In such other situations as the COBE and the applicant may agree

An applicant who has not previously conferred informally with the Subcommittee on Moral Character [see § 70.18[2]] may do so before deciding to enter into an Abeyance Agreement [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 4(b)].

The Abeyance Agreement must be in writing and must specify the period and conditions of abeyance. A copy of the agreement must be provided to the applicant [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 4(c)].

[4] Review by State Bar Court

[a] Application for Hearing

An applicant (Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2.06) who receives an adverse moral character determination may appeal that determination to the State Bar Court Hearing Department. All proceedings before the State Bar Court regarding moral character are confidential unless confidentiality is waived, in writing, by the applicant [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6060.2; Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 9.15(c); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 21; In the Matter of Applicant A (1995) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 318] .

An applicant may initiate this review by filing an application for hearing,accompanied by the specified filing fee and a copy of the notice of the adverse moral character determination, with the clerk of the State Bar Court [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 681; Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 5(a); see § 70.62]. The application for hearing must be filedwith the clerk of the State Bar court within 60 days after service of the final determination [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 681; Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 5(a)].

A copy of the application for hearing must be served on the San Francisco offices of the COBE and the Office of Chief Trial Counsel [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 5(b)]. Proof of such service must be filed with the application [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 681]. On receipt of the copy, the COBE transmits all files and records of the application inquiry and analysis to the Office of Chief Trial Counsel [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 5(b)].

[b] Response

Any response to the application for hearing must be filed within 120 days of service of the application, or within the time period granted by the State Bar Court for good cause. The response must include a statement of the grounds on which the application is opposed [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 682].

[c] Hearing Procedures

In general, the hearing on the appeal before the State Bar Court Hearing Department is conducted according to the Rules of Procedure of the State Bar Court [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 5(b); see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 680-687]. However, the following rules do not apply to a moral character proceeding [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 687]:

- Rules which by their terms apply only to disciplinary proceedings or to other specific proceedings;
- Rules relating to abatement (Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 116-118);
- Rules relating to default and the obligation to appear at trial (Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 200-210); and
- Rules on the admission of certain evidence (Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 215-217).

For discussion of the State Bar Rules of Procedure in the context of disciplinary proceedings, see Ch. 71, Attorney

Discipline .

For discussion of availability of review before the Review Department of the State Bar Court, see § 70.18[7].

For discussion of the availability of review before the California Supreme Court in matters of attorney admission, see § 70.20.

[d] Abatement of Proceeding

On the motion of any party, or on the State Bar Court's motion after notice to the parties, the Court may order the abatement of the appeal proceedings for such time and on such terms as it deems proper.Abatement stays the proceedings in the State Bar Court and tolls all time limitations in those proceedings except that on motion, and for good cause shown, the Court may order perpetuation of evidence. Abatement does not toll or extend the time limitation set forth in Rule IX of the Rules Regulating Admission to Practice Law in California. Abatement is not intended to be a substitute for the program of abeyance agreements administered by the COBE under the Rules Regulating Admission to Practice Law (see § 70.18[3]), nor may a proceeding be abated or continued to allow a party to undertake or pass the California Bar Examination before a determination of the merits of the proceeding. Other forms of relief, such as trial continuances and the withdrawal of an application, are preferred to abatement and must be granted instead of abatement unless the State Bar Court determines that no other remedy is adequate to address the issues raised by the party seeking abatement [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 683(a)].

In determining a motion for abatement, the State Bar Court may consider any relevant factor, including any of the following [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 683(b)]:

- Any prejudice to a party that may result if the proceeding is abated.
- Any prejudice to a party that may result if the proceeding is not abated.
- The extent to which the proceeding would probably be delayed by awaiting the outcome of any related proceeding.
- The extent to which the proceeding would probably be expedited or aided in the determination of a material issue by awaiting evidence to be adduced in any related proceeding or by awaiting the outcome of any related proceeding.
- The extent to which evidence may be unavailable in the State Bar Court proceeding because of any delay occasioned by withholding further action.
- The extent to which parties, witnesses, or documents may be unavailable or unable to participate in the State Bar Court proceeding for reasons beyond the parties' control.

A "related proceeding" is any civil, criminal, administrative, or licensing proceeding involving conduct by the applicant that is or is likely to be an issue in the proceeding before the State Bar Court [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 683(c)].

Review of a hearing judge's ruling on a motion for abatement may be soughtby a petition for interlocutory review [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 300, 683(d); see Ch. 71, Attorney Discipline, § 71.121[4]].

[5] Burden of Proof Regarding Moral Character

In the context of proceedings before the State Bar Court to determine the applicant's moral character, the applicant has the burden of provingthat he or she has a good moral character [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 1]. Pursuant to this rule, the applicant must initially furnish enough evidence of good moral character to establish a prima facie case. The COBE then has the opportunity to rebut that showing with evidence of bad character. If the COBE is unable to rebut the applicant's prima facie case, then the applicant has carried his or her burden of proof. If the COBE presents sufficient evidence to rebut the prima facie case, then the applicant must introduce further evidence of good moral character, or evidence of rehabilitation since the bad character or misconduct which has been established [In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 989-990, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944] , or discredit the COBE's evidence [Lubetzky v. State Bar (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 308, 312, 285 Cal. Rptr. 268, 815 P.2d 341 (applicant certified as qualified for admission on Court's finding that State Bar's evidence failed to rebut applicant's prima facie case)].

[6] Withdrawal of Application During Moral Character Proceeding

An applicant may withdraw his or her Moral Character Application at any time before being notified that a determination cannot be made because of the need for further inquiry and analysis. After receipt of such a notice, an applicant may only withdraw his or her application with the COBE's consent [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 7(a)].

An applicant may move to dismiss his or her application for hearing before the State Bar Court to appeal the COBE's adverse determination [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 262(e)].

[7] Review by Review Department of State Bar Court

If either the applicant or the COBE is dissatisfied with the moral character determination of the Hearing Department of the State Bar Court, the applicant or COBE may request review by the Review Department of the State Bar Court. The procedure for requesting review is the same as that for requesting review of any decision of a hearing judge that fully disposes of an entire proceeding [see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 301 et seq.; see also Ch. 71, Attorney Discipline, § 71.121[5]].

[8] Reapplication After Adverse Moral Character Determination

An applicant who has received an adverse moral character determination may file another Moral Character Application after the expiration of two years from the date of the State Bar Court or COBE's final determination, or such shorter or longer period as may have been set by the COBE, for good cause shown, at the time of the denial [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 6].

[9] Period of Validity for Positive Moral Character Determination

An initial positive moral character determination is valid for 24 months from the date of the positive determination. If during the validity period,an applicant satisfies all other requirements for admission to practice law, the COBE must then certify the applicant for admission to practice [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 9(a)].

If the applicant does not satisfy the other requirements for admission to practice (for example, because he or she fails to pass the bar examination), Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 9, sets forth a procedure for extending the validity period for the positive moral character determination.

[10] Suspension and Nullification of Positive Moral Character Determination

The COBE may suspend a positive moral character determination if, after having made that determination, it receives information reasonably calling the applicant's character into question. The applicant will be notified by mail addressed to his or her last known address. The notification must specify the grounds for suspension [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 8].

Any further inquiry and analysis that is required must be conducted and a written report must be considered by the COBE within 60 days after notice to the applicant that the positive determination has been suspended. If the COBE determines that the positive determination of moral character should be nullified, the applicant must be notified and be accorded the rights of conference appeal discussed above. If the COBE determines to reinstate its previous positive determination, the period of validity commences from the date of the original positive determination [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 8].

[11] Effect of Time Limits

Time limits in Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, relating to proceedings involving moral character, are solely to expedite the processing of applications, and those time limits are not jurisdictional. The time limits may be extended for good cause by the COBE after notice to the applicant [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 10].

§ 70.19 Violation of Examination Rules

[1] Procedure for Inadvertent and Nonintentional Violations

If the COBE ascertains that an applicant has inadvertently and nonintentionallyengaged in a violation of COBE examination practices, the COBE may impose reasonable sanctions, which can include the deduction of the applicant's total score on the examination. The sanctions may be imposed only after notice to the applicant. The record of sanctions imposed for inadvertent or nonintentional misconduct may be maintained by theCOBE for statistical purposes, but it will not be construed as adversely reflecting on the applicant's moral character [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule XII, § 1].

The applicant who has been notified that sanctions will be imposed may request that imposition of sanctions be reconsidered. On such a request, the COBE or a designated subcommittee may remove the sanctions [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule XII, § 1].

[2] Procedure for Intentional Violations

[a] Notice of Violation

If the COBE suspects that an applicant has intentionally violated the examination rules, it must conduct an inquiry within 45 days of receipt of information regarding an alleged violation. If, from that inquiry, it appears that intentional misconduct did in fact occur, the COBE will, within 30 days of the conclusion of the inquiry, notify the applicant of the results of its inquiry and inform the applicant that it proposes to give the applicant a total score of zero for the examination, that it proposes to include the record of its inquiry in the applicant's file for consideration when determining whether the applicant has the requisite good moral character, and that the applicant may request a hearing to challenge the COBE's determination that an intentional violation did occur [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule XII, § 2(b)].

The notification must be sent to the applicant by United States mail, postage prepaid, at the address set forth in the application for admission. The notification is deemed to have been received by the applicant within 5 days after deposit in the mail if the applicant's address is within California, within 10 days after deposit if the applicant's address is outside of California but within the United States, or within 20 days after deposit if the applicant's address is outside the United States [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule XII, § 2(b)].

[b] Request for Hearing

If an applicant wishes a hearing before the COBE on whether an intentional violation did occur, he or she must file a written request with the COBE at its San Francisco office within 30 days after the notification specified above [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule XII, § 2(c); see § 70.60]. For good cause shown by clear and convincing evidence, the COBE may extend the time within which to file a request for hearing if the request is received by the COBE within 90 days after the notification of its determination that an intentional violation occurred. If the applicant fails to make a timely request for hearing, he or she will be deemed to have consented to the COBE's intended action, which will then be implemented [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule XII, § 2(c)].

If the applicant does make a timely request for a hearing on the charges, the COBE will schedule a hearing within 90 days of receipt of the request (or within 90 days of permitting a late request) and will promptly notify the applicant of the hearing date and location [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule XII, § 2(d)].

[c] Conduct of Hearing Regarding Intentional Violations

The COBE hearings concerning intentional violations of examination rules are conducted by a panel composed of three members of the COBE. Both the applicant and the COBE may be represented by counsel. The COBE has the burden of proving by clear and convincing evidence that an intentional violation of examination rules did occur [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule XII, § 2(d)].

The COBE panel must render its findings and decision within 45 days after the conclusion of the hearing. The decision must be promptly served on the applicant and counsel present at the hearing. In response to the COBE panel's decision, the applicant may file a request for review by the full COBE in accordance with Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule I, § 5 [see § 70.11[3]] within 10 days after service of the panel's decision. If no request for review is filed within that period, the COBE panel's decision will become the decision of the COBE [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule XII, § 2(e)].

If, following the hearing, the applicant is found to have committed an intentional violation of the examination rules, the applicant will be given a total score of zero on the examination and any answers submitted by the applicant that may have been assigned scores before the finding of an intentional violation will be voided. If the applicant thereafter takes and passes the bar examination, the record of the COBE's inquiry and the results of any hearing will be included in the applicant's file for consideration when determining whether the applicant is of good moral character [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule XII, § 2(a), (f)].

§ 70.20 Supreme Court Review

[1] Petition by Applicant

The decision of the Hearing Department of the State Bar Court, or the decision of the Review Department if review was requested, is binding on the applicant and the COBE, unless the Supreme Court grants a petition for review [Cal. State B. Rules of Proc., Rule 686]. The determination of the State Bar Court regarding the establishment of the requisite good moral character is deemed to be conclusive on both the applicant and COBE, unless the case is appealed and review is grantedby the Supreme Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.18(c); In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 984, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944] .

An applicant who has been denied admission by the State Bar Court may petition the Supreme Court to review the determination, in accordance with the procedure established by the Court [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6066; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(d)]. An applicant must exhaust his or her review within the State Bar Court before a petition for review will be granted by the Supreme Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(e)].

The applicant must file a verified petition for review, which requests that the Supreme Court exercise its direct and plenary authority over attorney admission matters and grant a hearing in the applicant's case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(d); Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule I, § 11]. For a form of petition, see § 70.63. The State Bar, through the Office of General Counsel, may respond to the petition [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(d)].

If the initial petition is granted, the Court will issue a writ of review, and the parties may more fully brief the issues and state the factual basis of the petition [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(d)]. The matter will be set for oral argument, and the Court will make an independent determination of whether or not the applicant should be admitted to practice [see Siegel v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 156, 173, 110 Cal. Rptr. 15, 514 P.2d 967 ; see also § 70.20[4]].

If the petition is denied, the only other source of review would be the United States Supreme Court. The United States Supreme Court will invariably defer to state courts in matters of attorney admission that do not involve a federal question [see, e.g., Martin v. Walton (1961) 368 U.S. 25, 26, 82 S. Ct. 1, 7 L. Ed. 2d 5 (association of local counsel rule was not beyond state action); see also Willner v. Committee on Character (1963) 373 U.S. 96, 102, 104-105, 83 S. Ct. 1175, 10 L. Ed. 2d 224 (violation of procedural due process as grounds for Supreme Court review)]. Except in rare cases, other avenues of review such as federal civil rights actions or state court damage suits typically have been rejected [see, e.g., Chaney v. State Bar of California (9th Cir. 1967) 386 F.2d 962, 964-967 , cert. denied, 390 U.S. 1011, 88 S. Ct. 1262, 20 L. Ed. 2d 162 (1968) (civil rights action); Greene v. Zank (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 497, 506-507, 204 Cal. Rptr. 770 (civil rights action); Engel v. McCloskey (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 870, 881, 155 Cal. Rptr. 284 (damage suit)].

[2] Petition by COBE

The COBE also may petition the California Supreme Court for review of a decision by the State Bar Court in moral character proceedings [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.15(a)]. The procedures for Supreme Court review of State Bar Court decisions on petition by the COBE are set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.15.

[3] Discretion of Court

[a] Review Not Mandatory

Neither the statute authorizing review of denial of certification, Bus. & Prof. Code § 6066, nor the rule of court prescribing the procedure, Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(d), require the Supreme Court to review the denial of certification. Granting of review is completely within the discretion of the Court. For the past several years, the Supreme Court's practice has been to grant review of few cases [see In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 984, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944] .

[b] Denials Based on Moral Character Grounds

The California Supreme Court will generally refuse review of denial based on moral character grounds unless the applicant convincingly demonstrates that the adverse recommendation was not based on sound premises and valid reasoning [see, e.g., Lubetzky v. State Bar (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 308, 312, 285 Cal. Rptr. 268, 815 P.2d 341 ; Hightower v. State Bar (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 150, 156-158, 193 Cal. Rptr. 153, 666 P.2d 10 (in both cases applicants met burden of showing good moral character notwithstanding contrary finding by COBE)], that errors in procedure approaching violations of due process were made [see, e.g., Martin B. v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 717, 721-723, 190 Cal. Rptr. 610, 661 P.2d 160 (granting review of denial of certification; applicant denied fair and reasonable opportunity to defend against 10-year-old criminal charge because of lack of transcript of prior testimony in criminal proceeding and unavailability of defense witnesses)], or that the weight of the evidence does not support the determination of the Review Department [see In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 984, n.2, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944] .

[c] Denials Based on Other Grounds

If the applicant who seeks review of an action of the COBE in a matter not related to moral character can show that he or she was denied passage of the bar examination through fraud, imposition, or coercion, or was prevented from having a fair opportunity to take the examination, the Supreme Court may examine the petition [Salot v. State Bar (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 615, 617-618, 45 P.2d 203 (no error in grading of essay or use of "yes-no" section of examination); see Staley v. State Bar (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 119, 121, 109 P.2d 667 (petition alleged COBE reduced grade below passing; Supreme Court refused to regrade examination)]. The Court may also decide to entertain a petition to settle a recurring question that may affect many applicants [see Bib'le v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 548, 554-556, 162 Cal.

Rptr. 426, 606 P.2d 733 , cert. denied, 449 U.S. 860, 101 S. Ct. 163, 66 L. Ed. 2d 77 (considering issue of whether the First-Year Law Students' Examination was a valid requirement)].

[4] Scope and Standard of Review

In reviewing the findings of the State Bar Court, the California Supreme Court will accord great weight to those findings, but the Court is not bound by them [In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 985, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944 ; Pacheco v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1041, 1047, 239 Cal. Rptr. 897, 741 P.2d 1138 ; Siegel v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 156, 173, 110 Cal. Rptr. 15, 514 P.2d 967] . Instead, the Court independently examines and weighs the evidence and passes on its sufficiency [In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 985, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944 ; Lubetzky v. State Bar (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 308, 312, 285 Cal. Rptr. 268, 815 P.2d 341 ; Pacheco v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1041, 1047, 239 Cal. Rptr. 897, 741 P.2d 1138 ; Hall v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 730, 734, 159 Cal. Rptr. 848, 602 P.2d 768] . The Supreme Court, however, will accord special deference to the State Bar Court's decision when it rests primarily on testimonial evidence, particularly when that evidence is in conflict, since the State Bar Court is in a better position to observe the demeanor of the witnesses and the character of their testimony [In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 985, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944 ; Siegel v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 156, 173, 110 Cal. Rptr. 15, 514 P.2d 967] . If there has been a previous civil or criminal trial, the findings of the trial court are accorded the greatest weight [Martin B. v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 717, 723, 190 Cal. Rptr. 610, 661 P.2d 160] .

In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944 was the first admissions case to reach the Supreme Court under the new professional State Bar Court system, created in 1988. Although the Supreme Court reaffirmed the majority of its previous positions in admissions cases, it addressed for the first time the standard of proof applicable. The Supreme Court articulated its consideration of the standard of proof necessary to establish the rehabilitation of that applicant, after serious misconduct has been proven, as requiring "clear and convincing" evidence [In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 986, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944] . Although the Supreme Court did not explicitly state that the appropriate standard for the prima facie case of the applicant and the rebuttal case of the COBE was the same, the inference can fairly be drawn that the same standard applies.

The party seeking review bears the burden of showing that the State Bar Court's findings are not supported by the evidence or that the decision is erroneous or unlawful; however, all reasonable doubts are normally resolved in favor of the applicant [Siegel v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 156, 173, 110 Cal. Rptr. 15, 514 P.2d 967] .

The sole exception to the rule that all reasonable doubts are resolved in favor of the applicant arises when the applicant has been an attorney in another state and was disbarred, and now seeks admission in California.In the case In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944 , the Supreme Court held that such an applicant stands in "essentially identical circumstances" as a disbarred California attorney seeking reinstatement [In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 986, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944] . The Court had previously held in Calaway v. State Bar (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 743, 745-746, 225 Cal. Rptr. 267, 716 P. 2d 371 , that the "person seeking reinstatement after disbarment is required to adduce stronger proof of his present honesty and integrity than one seeking admission for the first time whose character has never been in question. In other words, although an application for reinstatement is treated by this court as a proceeding for admission, the proof presented must be sufficient to overcome our prior adverse judgment ... " In Menna, the Supreme Court reaffirmed that position and held that such an applicant is not entitled to the benefit of the doubt if equally reasonable inferences may be drawn from a proven fact [In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 986, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944] . In an earlier dissenting opinion, Chief Justice Lucas had observed that the amount of evidence of rehabilitation required to justify admission varies according to the seriousness of the misconduct at issue [see Kwasnik v. State Bar (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1061, 1086, 269 Cal. Rptr. 749, 791 P. 2d 319] . In Menna, the Court further held that if the previous misconduct was sufficiently egregious, it will require "a truly compelling demonstration of moral rehabilitation" and overwhelming proof of reform [In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 989, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944] .

§ 70.21 Admission to Practice

On certification by the COBE that an applicant has fulfilled the requirements for admission to practice law, the California Supreme Court may admit such applicant as an attorney at law in all California courts and may direct an order to be entered on its records to that effect. A certificate of admission is thereupon given to the applicant by the clerk of the Court [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6064].

§ 70.23 General Duties of Attorney

Once admitted to practice, an attorney assumes a number of different legal and ethical responsibilities to his or her clients, to the judicial system,and to society in general. The general duties of an attorney are outlined in Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068, which provides that a California attorney must perform as follows:

- Support the Constitution and laws of the United States and California [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(a); see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6064.1 (person who advocates overthrow of government by force or violence may not be admitted to practice), 6067 (attorney must take oath to support constitution), 6106.1 (attorney who advocates overthrow of government by force may be suspended or disbarred); see also §§ 70.15[i], 70.22];

- Maintain the respect due to courts and judicial officers [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(b)];

- Counsel or maintain only legal and just actions [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(c); see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rules 3-200, 3-210, 3-700(B)(1), (C)(1)(a)-(c), 5-110];

- Use only those means that are consistent with the truth in representing one's clients, and refrain from misleading the judge or any judicial officer by any artifice or false statement of fact or law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(d); see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 5-200];

- Maintain inviolate the confidence and, at every peril to the attorney, preserve the secrets of the client [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e)];

- Advance no fact prejudicial to the honor or reputation of a party or witness, unless required by the justice of the cause with which he or she is charged [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(f)];

- Avoid beginning or continuing an action or proceeding from any corrupt motive of passion or interest [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(g)];

- Never reject the cause of the defenseless or the oppressed for any personal consideration [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(h)];

- Cooperate and participate in any State Bar investigation or other State Bar proceeding pending against the attorney (although the attorney may exercise any privilege guaranteed by U.S. Const., amend. V, and any other constitutional or statutory privileges); the attorney need not cooperate with a request that requires the attorney to waive any constitutional or statutory privilege or to comply with a request for information or other matters within an unreasonable amount of time in light of the time constraints of the attorney's practice [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(i)];

- Maintain information on the membership records of the California bar as required by Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(j); see § 70.25];

- Comply with all conditions attached to any disciplinary probation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(k)];

- Keep all agreements made in lieu of disciplinary prosecution with the agency charged with attorney discipline [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(l)];

- Respond promptly to reasonable status inquiries of clients and keep clients reasonably informed of significant developments in matters with regard to which the attorney has agreed to provide legal services [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(m)];

- Provide copies to the client of certain documents under time limits and as prescribed in a rule of professional conduct to be adopted by the State Bar [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(n)]; and

- Report actions or sanctions taken against the attorney as required by Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(o) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(o); see § 70.26].

In addition, attorneys have numerous other duties under specific statutes and rules. Many of these are set forth in the State Bar Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 6000 et seq.) and in the California Rules of Professional Conduct. Among the most important of these duties are the following:

- An attorney must act competently and exercise reasonable skill and diligence in performing legal services [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-110].

- An attorney must avoid willful breaches of the California Rules of Professional Conduct, and acts of moral turpitude,dishonesty, or corruption, whether criminal or not [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6077, 6101, 6102, 6106].

- Except when justified in good faith, an attorney must obey court orders connected with the practice of law [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6103]. An attorney's duty to obey a court order is not dependent upon the correctness of that order [Espinoza v. Classic Pizza, Inc. (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 968, 976, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 381] .

- An attorney must not withdraw from representation of a client until the attorney "has taken reasonable steps to avoid foreseeable prejudice to the rights of the client." In some cases, permission of the court may be required [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-700].

- An attorney must observe fiduciary duties of loyalty and fair dealing toward the client [see, e.g., Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rules 3-300, 3-310, 4-300].

- An attorney must pay bar dues in a timely manner [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6143; see also § 70.24].

§ 70.24 Payment of Bar Dues

Bar dues are fixed by the Board of Governors of the State Bar in accordance with the requirements of the State Bar Act [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6140]. The Board may increase the annual membership fee by an additional amount not exceeding $10, which may be used only for the costs of upgrading the Board's information technology system, including purchasing and maintenance costs and computer hardware and software [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6140.35(a)]. The Board also may increase the annual membership fee by an additional amount not exceeding $10 that may be used only for financing, constructing, purchasing, or leasing facilities to house State Bar staff and any major capital improvement projects related to facilities owned by the State Bar [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6140.3(a)].

Reduced dues are charged to inactive members [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6141]. A waiver of dues may be requested based on proof of financial hardship [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6141.1].

Dues may include costs assessed against a publicly reproved or suspended member [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6140.7]. The Board also may charge active members additional assessments for any of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6140.55, 6140.6, 6140.9]:

- The Client Security Fund.
- The State Bar disciplinary system.
- Discipline augmentation.
- Support of the State Bar Discipline Monitor and State Bar independent expert.

The State Bar is constitutionally prohibited from using the mandatory dues of all members to fund activities of an ideological nature that fall outside of activities germane to the State Bar's goals of regulating the legal profession and improving the quality of legal services [Keller v. State Bar of California (1990) 496 U.S. 1, 13-14, 110 S. Ct. 2228, 110 L. Ed. 2d. 1] . A member may deduct five dollars from the member's annual dues if the member elects not to support lobbying and related activities by the State Bar outside the parameters established by the Supreme Court in Keller v. State Bar of California [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6140.05].

Dues are assessed annually by a statement sent to the member's last known address of record [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1 (member's duty to inform State Bar of current address), discussed in § 70.25[1]]. After two months' written notice of delinquency, the attorney is suspended from State Bar membership [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6143]. Practice while suspended, even for nonpayment of dues, may subject the attorney to further discipline or to criminal liability [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6125, 6126; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6103 (violation of court order may constitute grounds for suspension or disbarment)]. Following suspension for nonpayment of dues, an attorney may be reinstated after payment of the accrued dues and a penalty as may be imposed by the Board of Governors not exceeding twice the delinquent amount [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6143].

Previously, Ms. Brenner was a research attorney at the Los Angeles Superior Court, Central District, in the law and motion, writs and receivers and civil trial departments.

§ 70.25 Duty to Maintain Information With State Bar

[1] Address and Phone Number

Every member of the State Bar must maintain his or her current office address and telephone number in the official membership records of the State Bar [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1(a)(1)]. If the member does not maintain an office, he or she must provide an address to be used by the State Bar for State Bar purposes or for purposes of the agency charged with attorney discipline [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1(a)(1)]. Within 30 days after any change of address or telephone number, the member must file a change of address or telephone number with the membership records office of the State Bar [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1(a)]. Former members who have been ordered by the California Supreme Court to comply with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20 (setting forth duties of disbarred, resigned, or suspended attorneys) must maintain their current address with the State Bar's membership records office and must report changes of address within 10 days, until the member is no longer subject to the Court's order [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1(b)]. For discussion of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20, see Ch. 71, Attorney Discipline .

The addresses on file at the State Bar membership records office are available to the public, and used for the purpose of providing notice by mail of proceedings conducted under the State Bar Act, as well as for sending membership fee bills and other State Bar information [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1(c)]. Attorneys who fail to provide current and accurate address information on State Bar official membership records risk the possibility that disciplinary proceedings against them will take place without their knowledge [see Bowles v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 100, 107-108, 255 Cal. Rptr. 846, 768 P.2d 65 (rejecting due process claim by attorney that he was improperly denied opportunity to be heard); see also Evans v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 958, 970, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 460 (actual notice not required in attorney disciplinary proceedings even if failure to receive notice is not attorney's fault)]. For discussion of the various notice requirements in State Bar proceedings, see Ch. 71, Attorney Discipline .

[2] Specialties

State Bar members must maintain on the official records of the State Bar all specialties in which the member is certified [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1(a)(2)]. A member must notify the membership records office of the State Bar of any change in this information on or before the first day of February of each year [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1(a)].

[3] Jurisdictions Where Admitted to Practice

All State Bar members must maintain on the State Bar membership records any jurisdictions other than California in which the member is admitted to practice law, and the dates of his or her admission [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1(a)(3)]. On or before February 1 of each year, the member must notify the State Bar membership office of any change in this information [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1(a)].

[4] Discipline Imposed in Other Jurisdictions

State Bar members must maintain on the official records of the State Bar the jurisdiction, nature, and date of any discipline imposed by another jurisdiction, including the terms and conditions of any probation imposed and, if suspended or disbarred in another jurisdiction, the date of any reinstatement in that jurisdiction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1(a)(4); see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(o)(6) (member's duty to report imposition of discipline by professional disciplinary agency or licensing board in California or elsewhere), discussed in § 70.26]. A State Bar member must notify the membership records office of the State Bar of any change in this information within 30 days of the change [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1(a)].

[5] Other Information

All State Bar members must maintain on the State Bar membership records any information that may be required by agreement with or conditions of probation imposed by the agency charged with attorney discipline (that is, the State Bar) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1(a)(5)]. The State Bar may not make that information available to the general public unless that information is required to be made so available by a condition of probation. That information is available to the State Bar, the Supreme Court, or the agency charged with attorney discipline [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1(d)]. Within 30 days after any change in such information, the member must notify the State Bar membership records office of the change [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1(a)].

§ 70.26 Duty to Report Actions or Sanctions Taken Against Attorney

Every member of the State Bar must inform the agency charged with attorney discipline (that is, the State Bar) when a client, court, or disciplinary authority has taken certain actions against the member, including the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(o)]:

- The filing of three or more lawsuits in a 12-month period against the attorney for malpractice or other wrongful conduct committed in a professional capacity [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(o)(1)].

- The entry of judgment against the attorney in any civil action for fraud, misrepresentation, breach of fiduciary duty, or gross negligence committed in a professional capacity [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(o)(2)].

- The imposition of any judicial sanctions against the attorney (excluding sanctions for failure to make discovery or monetary sanctions of less than $1,000) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(o)(3)].

- The bringing of an indictment or information charging a felony against the attorney [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(o)(4)].

- The conviction of the attorney (including any verdict of guilty or plea of guilty or no contest) of (1) any felony; (2) any misdemeanor committed in the course of the practice of law; (3) any misdemeanor committed in any manner such that a client of the attorney was the victim; (4) any misdemeanor in which a necessary element (as determined by the statutory or common law definition of the misdemeanor) involvesimproper conduct of an attorney, including dishonesty or other moral turpitude; or (5) any attempt, conspiracy, or solicitation of another to commit a felony or any such misdemeanor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(o)(5)].

- The imposition of discipline against the attorney by any professional or occupational disciplinary agency or licensing board, whether in California or elsewhere [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(o)(6)].

- Reversal of judgment in a proceeding based wholly or partially on misconduct, grossly incompetent representation, or willful misrepresentation by the attorney [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(o)(7)].

The report must be in writing and must be made within 30 days of the time the attorney has knowledge of the action taken against him or her [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(o)]. The State Bar is empowered to develop a prescribed form for making the report, and may require usage of that form by rule or regulation [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(o)(9)]. An attorney must report any sanction imposed on the attorney that meets the threshold of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(o)(3), even if the sanction is under current appeal by the attorney [In the Matter of Respondent Y (Review Dept. 1998) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 862] .

If the action is against a law firm or corporation, and the attorney was a partner or shareholder in the firm or corporation at the time of the conduct complained of, the attorney has a duty to report the action just as if the action were against the attorney individually [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(o)(8)]. If the attorney knows that the matter has already been reported by the law firm or corporation, however, he or she has no reporting duty [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(o)(8)].

§ 70.27 Uninsured Attorney's Duty to Report Settlement, Judgment, or Arbitration

An attorney who does not have professional liability insurance is required under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.8(c) to send a complete written report to the State Bar as to any settlement, judgment, or arbitration award on a claim or action against the attorney in any civil action in which fraud, misrepresentation, breach of fiduciary duty, or gross negligence committed in a professional capacity was found or admitted [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.8(b), (c); see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(o)(2)]. The report must be made within 30 days after the written settlement agreement has been reduced to writing and signed by all parties to the agreement, or within 30 days after service of the arbitration award on the parties [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.8(b), (c)]. If the attorney does have professional liability insurance, the insurer, rather than the attorney, must send the report [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.8(b)].

§ 70.44 Decisions

[1] Admission to Practice

Supreme Court of California has inherent power to regulate practice of law in California, including power to admit and discipline attorneys. In re Attorney Discipline System; Requests of the Governor and the State Bar of California (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 582, 592-593, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 967 P.2d 49

Supreme Court may admit applicant as attorney at law who has fulfilled requirementsfor admission to practice law. In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 983, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944

Former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 983 (now see Rule 9.40), by limiting appearances pro hac vice to non-resident attorneys, and by thus excluding attorneys who are residents of California and are admitted to practice in foreign jurisdictions but not in California, is not an unconstitutional violation of U.S. Const., art. IV, § 2 (privileges and immunities clause) or rights protected under U.S. Const., amend. I or XIV. Paciulan v. George (9th Cir. 2000) 229 F.3d 1226, 1231

California Bar Examination does not violate Due Process and Equal Protection clauses of U.S. Const., amend. XIV, Privilege and Immunities Clause of U.S. Const., art. IV, § 2, or Commerce Clause of U.S. Const., art. I, § 8. Giannini v. Real (9th Cir. 1990) 911 F.2d 354, 356-359

Requirement in California federal district courts that member be active member of California State Bar does not violate Due Process clause of U.S. Const., amend. V or Full Faith and Credit Clause of U.S. Const., art. IV, § 1. Giannini v. Real (9th Cir. 1990) 911 F.2d 354, 359-360

Bus. & Prof. Code § 6060(g), requiring students enrolled at school not accredited by California Committee of Bar Examiners to pass First-Year Law Students' Examination (FYLSE) before receiving credit for further study does not violate Equal Protection clause of U.S. Const., amend. XIV; U.S. Const., amend. XI, barred action against State Bar's Board of Governors and Committee of Bar Examiners because state did not consent to being sued. Lupert v. California State Bar (9th Cir. 1985) 761 F.2d 1325, 1327-1328 , cert. denied, 474 U.S. 916 (statute challenged under U.S. Const., art. I, § 10 (powers prohibited to states) and U.S. Const., amends. I, V, IX, XIII, XIV; court treated challenge as on equal protection grounds)

Practice of law is not matter of grace but of right for one who is qualified by learning and moral character. Raffaelli v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 288, 300, 101 Cal. Rptr. 896, 496 P.2d 1264

Admission to practice of law is judicial function within inherent power of court, but is subject to regulation by Legislature by reasonable restrictions that do not materially impair court's functions. Brydonjack v. State Bar (1929) 208 Cal. 439, 444, 281 P. 1018

Admission to practice law is attainable on motion to Supreme Court by qualified applicant denied recommendation by State Bar. Brydonjack v. State Bar (1929) 208 Cal. 439, 447, 281 P. 1018

Attorney's complaint for damages for delayed admission to practice does not state cause of action against Committee of Bar Examiners, committee staff members, or State Bar on any of asserted theories: failure to discharge statutory duty, breach of contract, negligence, violation of constitutional rights, blackmail, coercion, and intentional infliction of emotional harm. Engel v. McCloskey (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 870, 878-887, 155 Cal. Rptr. 284

Judgment was not null and void when attacked by losing litigant on ground that counsel for successful litigant was ineligible to practice law. Gomes v. Roney (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 274, 275, 151 Cal. Rptr. 756

[2] Advocacy of Government Overthrow

Protection under U.S. Const., amend. XIV, against arbitrary state action does not forbid state from denying admission to bar applicant so long as he or she refuses to provide unprivileged answers to questions having substantial relevance to qualifications. Konigsberg v. State Bar (1961) 366 U.S. 36, 44, 81 S. Ct. 997, 6 L. Ed. 2d 105 (refusal of applicant to answer questions concerning Communist Party membership)

Past membership in Communist Party does not provide reasonable basis for belief that bar applicant presently advocates overthrow of government by force. Konigsberg v. State Bar (1957) 353 U.S. 252, 271, 77 S. Ct. 722, 1 L. Ed. 2d 810

[3] Bankruptcy

Denial of application for admission to practice solely based on applicant's failure to satisfy obligation discharged in bankruptcy was impermissible, under federal bankruptcy law (11 U.S.C. § 525(a)), when debt was not owed as result of professional misconduct, discharged obligation was intended to compensate nonclient for private pecuniary loss, and consideration of applicant's failure to satisfy obligation would serve no rehabilitative purpose. Kwasnik v. State Bar (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1061, 1073-1074, 269 Cal. Rptr. 749, 791 P.2d 319

[4] Burden of Proof

The more serious the misconduct and the bad character evidence, the stronger the showing of rehabilitation must be. In re Gossage (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 1080, 1096-1097, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130, 5 P.3d 186 ("brutal and unnecessary" homicide resulting in voluntary manslaughter conviction required "compelling showing of reform")

The appropriate level of proof by which an applicant must establish rehabilitation is by clear and convincing evidence. In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 986, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944

Applicant who was attorney in another state and was there disbarred is not entitled to have all reasonable inferences resolved in his or her favor. In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 986, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944

Court may properly to refuse to admit applicant to practice law on proof that would not justify order of disbarment. Seide v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 933, 938, 264 Cal. Rptr. 361, 782 P.2d 602

Essential distinction between admission proceedings and disciplinary proceedings is that, in former, burden is on applicant to show moral fitness, whereas, in latter, burden is on State Bar to prove attorney is morally unfit. Hallinan v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 447, 451, 55 Cal. Rptr. 228, 421 P.2d 76

[5] Citizenship

Local district court rule (Virgin Islands) requiring that any applicant to Bar be permanent resident of Virgin Islands is violation of privileges and immunities clause of U.S. Const., art. IV, § 2. Barnard v. Thorstenn (1989) 489 U.S. 546, 559, 109 S. Ct. 1294, 103 L. Ed. 2d 559

State rule (Virginia) requiring that applicant to Bar on motion (without examination) be permanent resident of state is violation of privileges andimmunities clause of U.S. Const., art. IV, § 2. Supreme Court of Virginia v. Friedman (1988) 487 U.S. 59, 70, 108 S. Ct. 2260, 101 L. Ed. 2d 56

State law (New Hampshire) limiting bar admission to state residents violates privileges and immunities clause of U.S. Const., art. IV, § 2. Supreme Court of New Hampshire v. Piper (1985) 470 U.S. 274, 288, 105 S. Ct. 1272, 84 L. Ed. 2d 205

State law (Connecticut) requiring citizenship and residence as qualification for admission to practice is unconstitutional denial of equal protection [U.S. Const., amend. XIV]. In re Griffiths (1973) 413 U.S. 717, 718, 93 S. Ct. 2851, 37 L. Ed. 2d 910 ; Raffaelli v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 288, 303-304, 101 Cal. Rptr. 896, 496 P.2d 1264 (former Bus. & Prof. Code § 6060(a) citizenship requirement as to State Bar applicants unconstitutional)

[6] Due Process

Excluding applicant from admission to practice law without hearing on charges filed against him is denial of procedural due process. Willner v. Committee on Character (1963) 373 U.S. 96, 106, 83 S. Ct. 1175, 10 L. Ed. 2d 224

Requirements of procedural due process must be met before state can exclude person from admission to practice law. Willner v. Committee on Character (1963) 373 U.S. 96, 102, 83 S. Ct. 1175, 10 L. Ed. 2d 224 ; Schware v. Board of Bar Examiners (1957) 353 U.S. 232, 238, 77 S. Ct. 752, 1 L. Ed. 2d 796

In applying permissible standards for admission to bar, state is not permitted to exclude applicant when there is no basis for finding that he or she fails to meet such standards or when state action is invidiously discriminatory. Schware v. Board of Bar Examiners (1957) 353 U.S. 232, 239, 77 S. Ct. 752, 1 L. Ed. 2d 796

Former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 983 (now see Rule 9.40), by limiting appearances pro hac vice to non-resident attorneys, and by thus excluding attorneys who are residents of California and are admitted to practice in foreign jurisdictions but not in California, is not an unconstitutional violation of U.S. Const., art. IV, § 2 (privileges and immunities clause) or rights protected under U.S. Const., amend. I or XIV. Paciulan v. George (9th Cir. 2000) 229 F.3d 1226, 1231

Applicant has no basis for claim of deprivation of rights under United States Constitution until review of denial of admission by California Supreme Court is completed. Giannini v. Committee of Bar Examiners (9th Cir. 1988) 847 F.2d 1434, 1435

Views and beliefs of State Bar applicant are immune from bar association inquiries designed to lay foundation for barring applicant from practice of law. Raffaelli v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 288, 296, 101 Cal. Rptr. 896, 496 P.2d 1264

[7] Eligibility to Take Bar Exam

Applicant who had been required to pass First-Year Law Students' Examination to be eligible for taking general bar examination was not exempt from requirement of taking general bar examination on grounds of estoppel orequal protection. Bib'le v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 548, 553-555, 162 Cal. Rptr. 426, 606 P.2d 733 , cert. denied, 449 U.S. 860

[8] Federal Court Disbarment

Disbarment by state does not result in automatic disbarment by federal court; state action is entitled to respect but is not conclusively binding on federal court. In re Ruffalo (1968) 390 U.S. 544, 547, 88 S. Ct. 1222, 20 L. Ed. 2d 117 , modified, 392 U.S. 919, 88 S. Ct. 2257, 20 L. Ed. 2d 1380

[9] Immunity From Liability of State Bar, Examiners, and Officials

State Bar and Committee of Bar Examiners, as arms of Supreme Court, and their officials, as officers of Supreme Court, are entitled to absolute quasi-judicial immunity for their acts while conducting preadmission investigation. Greene v. Zank (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 497, 513, 204 Cal. Rptr. 770

[10] Judicial Notice

State Bar's "Instructions for Applicants" are properly subject to judicial notice. Smith v. State Bar (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 971, 975-976, 261 Cal. Rptr. 24

[11] Misinformation

Intentional nondisclosure by applicant of State Bar's denial of prior application on moral character grounds, enabling applicant to apply prematurely for admission to bar and to be admitted without adequate consideration of his moral character, was ground for cancellation of applicant's right to practice law. Goldstein v. State Bar (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 937, 943-947, 951, 254 Cal. Rptr. 794, 766 P.2d 560 , cert. denied, 493 U.S. 882

Duty of applicant to make full disclosure on application is absolute duty, and any significant failure to disclose warrants revocation of license to practice law. Spears v. The State Bar (1930) 211 Cal. 183, 187, 294 P. 697

Applicant has affirmative duty to update answers to questions on application. In the Matter of Ike (1996) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 483

[12] Moral Character

State is not permitted to draw unfavorable inferences as to applicant's truthfulness, candor, or moral character in general form refusal to answer questions concerning his Communist Party membership, if refusal is based on belief that inquiries violate U.S. Constitution. Konigsberg v. State Bar of California (1957) 353 U.S. 252, 270-271, 77 S. Ct. 722, 1 L. Ed. 2d 810

Editorials by applicant criticizing public officials and policies do not rationally support inference of bad moral character. Konigsberg v. State Bar (1957) 353 U.S. 252, 268-269, 77 S. Ct. 722, 1 L. Ed. 2d 810

Applicant convicted of voluntary manslaughter for "brutal and unnecessary" homicide for which applicant attempted to conceal guilt, and convicted of several felony counts of forgery, required to make "compelling showing of reform" for admission to practice. In re Gossage (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 1080, 1096-1097, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130, 5 P.3d 186 (denying admission)

Applicant who committed serious misconduct as attorney in another state and was there disbarred must establish overwhelming proof of reform to be admitted. In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 989, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944

Misconduct unrelated in any way to practice of law is accorded less weight than professional misconduct in evaluating moral fitness for admission to bar. Kwasnik v. State Bar (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1061, 1069, 269 Cal. Rptr. 749, 791 P.2d 319

State Bar applicant's prior history of drug offenses, including cocaine trafficking, demonstrated bad moral character and supported refusal by Supreme Court to admit, in absence of adequate proof of rehabilitation. Seide v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 933, 937-943, 264 Cal. Rptr. 361, 782 P.2d 602

Relatively nonserious misconduct that occurred over 10 years earlier and one recent incident that was technically although not ethically proper were insufficient to support disqualification for admission of applicant who demonstrated his rehabilitation and moral qualification. Pacheco v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1041, 1058-1059, 239 Cal. Rptr. 897, 741 P.2d 1138

[13] Review

Determination of State Bar Court as to moral character of applicant is conclusive, unless Supreme Court grants review. In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 984, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P.2d 944

Judicial challenge to State Bar admission fee policy required to be brought by original petition to California Supreme Court. Smith v. State Bar (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 971, 978, 261 Cal. Rptr. 24

[b] By Federal Court

Order of California Supreme Court relating to admission of individual may be reviewed only by United States Supreme Court on writ of certiorari to state court, and not by original action in lower federal court. Craig v. State Bar of California (9th Cir. 1998) 141 F.3d 1353, 1354

Federal district court lacked subject matter jurisdiction over unsuccessful California State Bar applicant's claim alleging violation of applicant's federal constitutional rights when applicant failed to seek review by California Supreme Court of Committee of Bar Examiners' denial of applicant's petition for admission to State Bar. Giannini v. Committee of Bar Examiners (9th Cir. 1988) 847 F.2d 1434, 1435

[c] By U.S. Supreme Court

Claim of present right to admission to bar of state and denial of right is justiciable controversy subject to review on certiorari by United StatesSupreme Court. Willner v. Committee on Character (1963) 373 U.S. 96, 102, 83 S. Ct. 1175, 10 L. Ed. 2d 224

[14] Revocation of License

Deliberate concealment of charges of misconduct in another state on verified application for State Bar membership as ground for revocation of license by courts in California. State Bar v. Langert (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 636, 639, 276 P.2d 596

§ 70.60 Request for Hearing on Determination Regarding Intentional Violation of Examination Rules [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule XII, § 2(c)]

[1] FORM Request for Hearing on Determination Regarding Intentional Violation of Examination Rules [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule XII, § 2(c)]

To the Committee of Bar Examiners of the State Bar of California:

I, _____ [name of applicant], an applicant for admission to the practice of law, hereby request a hearing on the Committee's initial determination that I intentionally violated the Committee's examination rules and on the Committee's proposal to give me a total score of zero on the bar examination administered _____ [date] and to place the Committee's inquiry and findings in my file for purposes of determining moral character.

I received notification of the Committee's determination and proposed action on _____ [date].

[I respectfully submit that the Committee's determination is erroneous in that _____ (specify).]

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

CAUTION:

All applications and petitions of whatever nature filed with the Committee of Bar Examiners must be verified or made under penalty of perjury in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule I, § 14].

[2] Use of Form

This form may be used by an applicant for admission to practice law to request a hearing on an initial determination by the Committee of Bar Examiners (COBE) that the applicant has intentionally violated the COBE's examination rules. The request must be filed within 30 days after the COBE has notified the applicant of its determination and of its proposal to give the applicant a total score of zero on the examination and to place the record of its inquiry and findings in the applicant's file for consideration in determining whether he or she has the requiste good moral character [see Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule XII, § 2(c)].

The COBE's rules do not specify any format or content requirements for the request. This form presents the request in a form of a letter to the COBE. The applicant may set forth his or her grounds for opposing the COBE's determination, but the rules do not specifically require this.

For further discussion, see § 70.19[2].

§ 70.61 Request for Informal Conference With Subcommittee on Moral Character Following Adverse Moral Character Determination [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 3(b)]

[1] FORM Request for Informal Conference With Subcommittee on Moral Character Following Adverse Moral Character Determination [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 3(b)]

To the Committee of Bar Examiners of the State Bar of California:

I, _____ [name of applicant], an applicant for admission to the practice of law, hereby request an opportunity to confer informally with the Subcommittee on Moral Character to discuss the Committee's initial determination that I have not met my burden of establishing good moral character.

I received notification of the Committee's determination on _____ [date]. No previous informal conference has been held regarding this matter.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

CAUTION:

All applications and petitions of whatever nature filed with the Committee of Bar Examiners must be verified or made under penalty of perjury in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule I, § 14].

[2] Use of Form

This form may be used by an applicant for admission to the practice of law to request an informal conference with the Subcommittee on Moral Character to discuss an initial determination by the Committee of Bar Examiners (COBE) that the applicant has not met his or her burden of establishing good moral character [see Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 3(b)]. The request for an informal conference with the Subcommittee may only be made if the COBE has made a determination that applicant lacks good moral character and only if an informal conference has not been previously held [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 3(b)]. The request must be made in writing and received in the COBE's San Francisco office within 30 days after the date of notification of the adverse moral character determination [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, §§ 2(f)(2), 3(b)].

The COBE's rules do not specify any format or content requirements for the request. This form presents the request in a form of a letter to the COBE.

For further discussion of informal conferences, see § 70.18[2].

[2] Use of Form

This form may be used by an applicant for admission to practice law to apply for a hearing before the State Bar Court for the purpose of appealing an adverse moral character determination by the Committee of Bar Examiners (COBE) [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 681; Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 5(a)].

For further discussion of review procedures, see § 70.18[4].

[3] Time Limit for Filing

The application for hearing must be filed with the clerk of the State Bar court within 60 days after service of the final determination [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 681; Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 5(a)].

[4] Service and Proof of Service

A copy of the application for hearing must be served on the San Francisco offices of the COBE and of the Office of Chief Trial Counsel [Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 5(b)]. Proof of service must accompany the application when it is filed [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 681].

[5] Format and Contents

The form is intended to conform to the general format rule for papers filed with the State Bar Court [see Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1110]. Neither the COBE's rules nor the State Bar Court's Rules of Practice contain any specific format or content requirements for the application for hearing. The applicant may wish to include a statement or reasons why he or she believes that the COBE's determination was erroneous, but no rule specifically requires the applicant to do so. A simple request for a hearing appears to be sufficient. The application must be accompanied by a copy of the notice of adverse moral character determination and the applicable filing fee [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 681].

TO THE HONORABLE CHIEF JUSTICE AND ASSOCIATE JUSTICES OFTHE SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA:

Petitioner respectfully requests that this Court issue its writ of review and set aside the action of respondents in refusing to certify him/her for admission to practice law in the State of California, and in support thereof alleges:

1. Petitioner graduated from _____ [name of law school], a duly accredited law school located in _____ [city and state or country], and was awarded a _____ [J.D. or L.L.B.] degree on _____ [date].

2. On or about _____ [date], petitioner applied to the respondent State Bar of California for admission to practice law in California.

3. Petitioner successfully passed all parts of the general bar examination administered on _____ [date], and has otherwise completed all educational and testing requirements for admission to practice.

4. Petitioner was notified by respondent Committee of Bar Examiners on _____ [date] that, although he/she had passed the general bar examination, his/her admission to practice would be delayed pending further inquiry and analysis regarding his/her moral character. A true and correct copy of that notice is attached hereto as Appendix _____.

5. On _____ [date], petitioner received from the respondent Committee of Bar Examiners a notification that the Committee had determined that petitioner had not met his/her burden of establishing good moral character. A true and correct copy of the Committee's final determination is attached hereto as Appendix _____. In its notification, the Committee set forth the following reasons for its determination: _____ [specify].

6. On _____ [date], petitioner applied to the respondent State Bar Court of California for a hearing for the purpose of appealing the determination by respondent Committee of Bar Examiners that petitioner had not met his/her burden of establishing good moral character.

7. A hearing on the matter was conducted by a hearing judge of the respondent State Bar Court on _____ [date]. True and correct copies of the transcript of the proceedings before the State Bar Court and of all pertinent documents and exhibits submitted to the State Bar Court are attached hereto in Appendices _____ through _____.

8. On _____ [date], following the hearing, the hearing judge of the respondent State Bar Court issued its decision _____ [upholding or overturning] the determination of the Committee of Bar Examiners. A true and correct copy of the State Bar Court hearing judge's decision is attached hereto in Appendix _____.

9. _____ [Set forth results of review by Review Department, e.g., Following the decision of the hearing judge, on application by the _____ (petitioner or respondent Committee of Bar Examiners), the Review Department of the respondent State Bar Court granted review of the hearing judge's decision. After a hearing on _____ (date), the Review Department determined that petitioner had not adequately established his/her moral fitness to practice law in California. A true and correct copy of the findings and decision of the Review Department is attached hereto as Appendix _____. The basis of the determination was that _____ (specify)].

10. The decision of the respondents to deny petitioner certification is erroneous and contrary to law in that _____ [specify reasons, e.g., the Review Department's findings are not supported by the evidence and are contrary to the findings of the hearing panel, which had a better opportunity to hear the testimony and determine the petitioner's credibility, candor, and contrition].

11. Petitioner is of good moral character and is fully qualified for certification as a member of the State Bar of California.

12. No other adequate, plain, and speedy remedy exists whereby petitioner can seek the relief requested.

CONCLUSION--PRAYER

For the foregoing reasons, it is respectfully requested that this honorable Court issue its Writ of Review, calendar the matter for argument, and order petitioner certified and admitted to practice law in California.

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the petitioner in the above-entitled proceeding. I have read the foregoing petition and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters that are therein stated on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

This form of petition is for use in seeking review by the California Supreme Court of action by the Committee of Bar Examiners (COBE) ofthe State Bar denying certification of an applicant for admission to practice law [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(d); Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule I, § 11]. It must be filed within 60 days after written notice of the denial of certification is mailed to the petitioner [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(d)].

This form has been drafted for use in reviewing a denial of certification based on an adverse moral character determination, which is the most common situation in which Supreme Court review is sought. However, the form may be modified for use when the denial of certification is based on other grounds, such as an alleged intentional violation of examination rules.

Within 15 days after service of the petition, the State Bar may serve and file an answer and brief. Within five days after service of the answer, the petitioner may serve and file a reply. If a review is ordered by the Supreme Court, the State Bar, within 45 days after filing of the order, may serve and file a supplemental brief. Within 15 days after service of the supplemental brief, the petitioner may file a reply brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(d)].

For further discussion of Supreme Court review, see § 70.20.

[3] Accompanying Documents

The petitioner must have exhausted his or her right to appeal the COBE's adverse moral character determination within the State Bar Court under Cal. Rules Regulating Admission, Rule X, § 5 [see Paragraphs 6-9; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(e); see also § 70.18[4]]. The petition must be accompanied by a record adequate to permit review of the ruling of the State Bar Court, including copies of all documents submitted to the State Bar Court supporting and opposing petitioner's position and copies of all other documents submitted to the State Bar Court that are necessary for a complete understanding of the case and the ruling [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(e)].

In addition, the petition must be accompanied by a transcript of the proceedings in the State Bar Court leading to the decision, if such a transcript is available. If the transcript is unavailable, the petitioner must include a declaration by counsel in lieu of the transcript. If the petitioner or petitioner's attorney has ordered the transcript, the declaration by counsel need only state the date the transcript was ordered and the date it is expected to be filed. If no transcript has been ordered, however, the attorney must explain why the transcript is unavailable and fairly summarize the proceedings, including arguments by counsel and the basis of the State Bar Court's decision [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(e)].

[4] Service

All petitions, briefs, reply briefs, and other proceedings involving Supreme Court review of moral character issues must be accompanied by proof of service of three copies on the General Counsel of the State Bar at the San Francisco office of the State Bar, and of one copy on the Clerk of the State Bar Court at the Los Angeles office of the State Bar Court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(f)]. The State Bar will serve the applicant at his or her address furnished to the State Bar, and his or her counsel of record, if any [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(f)].

[5] Copies

The following copies of the foregoing petition should be prepared:

- An original and 13 copies to be filed in the Supreme Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.44(a)(1)].
- Three copies to be served on the General Counsel of the State Bar at the San Francisco office of the State Bar [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(f).
- One copy to be served on the Clerk of the State Bar Court at the Los Angeles office of the State Bar Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(f)].
- One copy for the client, if desired.
- One office file copy.
- Other copies as desired.

§ 71.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses and contains forms for use in disciplinary proceedings before the State Bar and Supreme Court. It includes discussion of discipline generally, the grounds for and types of discipline, investigation and hearing procedures, related proceedings, and procedures for review. The forms, for use by an attorney in response to a disciplinary proceeding initiated by the State Bar, include:

- A motion to quash a subpoena issued by the State Bar [see § 71.160].
- A motion for abatement of a disciplinary proceeding on various grounds [see § 71.161].
- A response to a Notice of Disciplinary Charges [see § 71.162].
- Motions to transfer venue [see § 71.163] or to continue a proceeding [see § 71.164].
- A resignation with charges pending [see § 71.165].
- A petition to set aside a temporary suspension [see § 71.166].
- A petition to review a final order of discipline by the State Bar Court in a conviction proceeding [see § 71.167].
- Motions for reconsideration of a decision [see § 71.168] and for a new trial or to reopen the record to present new evidence [see § 71.169].
- A request for review by the Review Department of the State Bar Court [see § 71.170].
- A petition for review by the Supreme Court [see § 71.171].

For discussion of a State Bar member's duty to report various civil actions, judgments, and other discipline-related information to the State Bar, see Ch. 70, Attorney Admission, §§ 70.25 -70.27.

§ 71.10 Governing Law

The disciplinary authority of the State Bar Board of Governors is set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 6075 et seq. Regulations governing procedural matters in State Bar disciplinary proceedings are contained in the Rules of Procedure of the State Bar of California (cited in this article as "Cal. State B. Rules Proc."), and the Rules of Practice of the State Bar Court (cited in this article as "Cal. State B. Rules Prac."). The Rules of Procedure were revised extensively, effective January 1, 1996. There were many substantive changes, and the Rules of Procedure were reorganized. A Supplement to Rules of Procedure was issued on January 1, 1997. Its new and changed rules were effective on different dates in 1996 and 1997. Careful checking to determine the current rule in any subject area is advised. The rules relating to Lawyer Referral Services and Legal Specialists have not yet been revised at this time. They remain in effect until superseding rules are adopted by the Supreme Court [see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., State Bar Note preceding Preamble]. Additional rules regarding client security fund claims are contained in the Rules of Procedure, Client Security Fund Matters.

Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6090-6095.1 set forth additional provisions regarding the "disciplinary agency," which is defined as "the agency charged with the discipline of attorneys for professional misconduct" [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6090]. This disciplinary agency is currently composed of the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel and the State Bar Court, which, pursuant to existing law, have sole jurisdiction of their respective areas [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.5 (board of governors must establish State Bar Court to determine disciplinary and reinstatement proceedings); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 3.08 (State Bar Court as single entire adjudicative tribunal established pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6079.1, 6086.5, and 6086.65); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2101 (Board of Governors has delegated to the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel responsibility to receive, investigate and prosecute complaints of alleged attorney misconduct)].

Disciplinary powers of the State Bar Court are set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 9.10 and 9.19.

The disciplinary authority of the California Supreme Court is contained in Bus. & Prof. Code § 6100 et seq., and procedural rules governing Supreme Court disciplinary proceedings are contained in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 9.10-9.22.

The conduct of attorneys is governed by the Rules of Professional Conduct. In addition, certain other duties of attorneys are set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6002.1, 6068, which are listed in Ch. 70, Attorney Admission. For full discussion of attorneys' ethical duties, see Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics .

Grounds for discipline are set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6007, 6077, 6077.5, 6090.5, 6100-6106.7, 6131, 6133, and 6143.

§ 71.11 Disciplinary Powers of Supreme Court, Court of Appeal, and State Bar

[1] Inherent Power of Supreme Court

The California Supreme Court has inherent power over the admission, suspension, and disbarment of attorneys [Obrien v. Jones (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 40, 48, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 205, 999 P.2d 95 ; In re Menna (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 975, 983, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 905 P. 2d 944 ; In re Hallinan (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 243, 253-254, 272 P.2d 768 ; see Ramirez v. State Bar (1980) 28 Cal. 3d 402, 411, 169 Cal. Rptr. 206, 619 P.2d 399 ; Gadda v. Ashcroft, 363 F.3d 861, 864-865 (9th Cir. 2004) (federal law does not preempt state's authority to regulate attorneys who practice immigration law only in federal courts); see also Lebbos v. State Bar (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 37, 47-48, 278 Cal. Rptr. 845, 806 P.2d 317 ; In the Matter of Yagman (Review Dept. 1997) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 788, 899] . The Court has ultimate authority over suspension or disbarment of attorneys, although it may adopt the State Bar's recommendation of suspension or disbarment as its own order, without reviewing the recommendation [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6077, 6078 (authorizing State Bar to recommend suspension or disbarment to Supreme Court), 6087 (permitting Supreme Court to delegate certain functions to State Bar), 6100 (authorizing Supreme Court to suspend or disbar attorney); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.18(b) (effect of State Bar Court order when no review sought)]. The Court may decline to review a decision of the State Bar Court recommending disbarment or suspension from practice if it determines that none of the five grounds for Supreme Court review apply; denial of review constitutes a final judicial determination on the merits, and the recommendation of the State Bar Court is filed as an order of the Supreme Court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.16].

Although a proceeding to suspend or disbar an attorney may also be initiated in the Supreme Court by filing a verified accusation pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6108, the procedure established by the State Bar Board of Governors pursuant to the State Bar Act is the normal procedure for hearing all accusations against members of the State Bar [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6075 et seq.; Giddens v. State Bar (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 730, 734, 170 Cal. Rptr. 812, 621 P.2d 851 ; see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 6075 (provisions relating to disciplinary power of State Bar are alternative to court proceedings for hearing and determining accusations against State Bar members)]. The Supreme Court has adopted a policy that it should not exercise its powers unless and until the accuser has invoked the disciplinary powers of the State Bar [In re Walker (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 488, 490, 196 P.2d 882] . The Court will review the State Bar proceedings on petition by the attorney or the Chief Trial Counsel, if grounds for review exist [see Bus. & Prof. Code§§ 6079.5, 6082; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 9.13, 9.14, 9.16(a)]. The Court also may elect to review State Bar proceedings when no petition for review has been filed [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6084; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.18(b); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.16 (grounds for review)]. Once the record in an attorney discipline case is transmitted to the Supreme Court, the State Bar no longer has jurisdiction over the matter [In the Matter of Applicant B (Rev. Dep't 2004) 2004 Calif. Op. LEXIS 8, *4]. For discussion of review of disciplinary proceedings by the Supreme Court, see § 71.122.

Final action in disciplinary proceedings can only be taken by the Supreme Court. Nothing in the State Bar Act can be construed as limiting or altering the powers of the Supreme Court to disbar or discipline members of the bar as that power existed prior to the enactment of the State Bar Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6087; see Obrien v. Jones (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 40, 48, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 205, 999 P.2d 95 ; Giddens v. State Bar (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 730, 735, 170 Cal. Rptr. 812, 621 P.2d 851] . Disciplinary action taken by the State Bar on its own authority under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6078 is reviewable by the Supreme Court under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6082, and the Court retains its power to control any such disciplinary proceeding at any step [Brotsky v. State Bar (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 287, 301, 19 Cal. Rptr. 153, 368 P.2d 697] .

At any time before the final disposition of a decision of the State Bar Court recommending disbarment or suspension, the Supreme- Court may remand the matter to the State Bar Court with instructions to conduct further proceedings the Supreme Court deems necessary [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.17].

The Supreme Court has authority to delegate certain of its functions to the State Bar. By rule, the Court may authorize the State Bar to take any action otherwise reserved to the Court in any matter arising under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6000 et seq. Any action taken by the State Bar must, however, be reviewable by the Supreme Court pursuant to rules the Supreme Court may prescribe [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6087]. In 1990, the Supreme Court adopted a new rule of court delegating a number of matters within its statutory authority to the State Bar Court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10]. For discussion of these matters, see § 71.12[1].

[2] Review by Court of Appeal

By statute, attorneys complained against or whose reinstatement has been denied by the State Bar may seek review in the courts of appeal, as well as in the California Supreme Court [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6082]. Such review is governed by procedure prescribed by the Supreme Court [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6082]. However, the Court has not adopted any procedure for review of attorney disciplinary actions by the courts of appeal. Thus, it appears that appellate review must be sought in the Supreme Court.

[3] State Bar Jurisdiction and Disciplinary Powers

The Board of Governors of the State Bar may discipline a member of the State Bar for a willful breach of any of the California Rules of Professional Conduct. The Rules of Professional Conduct are adopted by the Board and approved by the Supreme Court, and are binding on all members of the State Bar [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6076, 6077]. The Board may impose discipline by public or private reproval of the member or by recommendation to the Supreme Court that the member be suspended from practice for a period not exceeding three years [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6077; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.18(b) (recommendation of suspension by State Bar Court has effect of Supreme Court order when no review sought)], or that the attorney be disbarred [Bus. & Prof. Code section 6078; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.18(b) (recommendation of disbarment)].

For any of the causes set forth in the laws warranting disbarment, suspension, or other discipline, the Board of Governors of the State Bar has the power after a hearing to recommend to the Supreme Court the disbarment or suspension from practice of members, or to discipline them by public or private reproval without such recommendation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6078; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.18(b) (recommendation of disbarment or suspension by State Bar Court has effect of Supreme Court order when no review sought)]. For discussion of the grounds for discipline of attorneys and the various sanctions for discipline, see § 71.30 et seq.

The Board of Governors has delegated its disciplinary powers to the State Bar Court [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.5]. Although some sections of the State Bar Act still contain language referring to "the board" or "the [discipline] committee," these references now pertain to the State Bar Court, or occasionally to the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel, when referring to investigation or prosecution. All newer sections of the State Bar Act, and the applicable sections of the California Rules of Court, speak of the State Bar Court.

[4] Quasi-Judicial Immunity of State Bar Prosecutors

State Bar prosecutors have common--law immunity from lawsuits for monetary damages, in both their individual and their official capacities, since they perform functions similar to criminal prosecutors [Wu v. State Bar (C.D. Cal. 1997) 953 F. Supp. 315 ; see Gov. Code § 821.6 (immunity of public employees from liability for malicious prosecution for instituting or prosecuting judicial or administrative proceeding within scope of employment)]. For discussion of prosecutorial immunity in actions under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, see Ch. 112, Civil Rights: Government-Funded Programs and Activities ; for discussion of immunity of public prosecutors from liability for malicious prosecution, see Ch. 357, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process ; for discussion of immunity of public prosecutors from general liability under the California Tort Claims Act, see Ch.464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

[5] Miscellaneous Provisions Applicable to State Bar as "Disciplinary Agency"

[a] Status of State Bar as "Disciplinary Agency"

Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6090-6095.1 contain special provisions applicable to "the disciplinary agency," which is simply defined as "the agency charged with the discipline of attorneys for professional misconduct" [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6090]. Although there is no other identification of the "disciplinary agency" for the purpose of these provisions, it is apparent under existing law that the agency is the State Bar.

[b] Miscellaneous Duties of "Disciplinary Agency"

As a disciplinary agency, the State Bar is required, among other things, to do all of the following:

- Promptly notify the complainant of the disposition of each matter [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6092.5(a)].

- Notify certain judges, local bar associations, and disciplinary authorities in other jurisdictions of an attorney's involuntary enrollment as an inactive member and termination of that status, an attorney's disbarment or suspension, or an attorney's reinstatement to active status following suspension or disbarment [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6092.5(b)].

- Forward a certified copy of the record of certain criminal convictions involving an attorney to disciplinary agencies in other jurisdictions in which the attorney is admitted to practice [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6092.5(c)].

- Maintain and expunge certain records relating to discipline and other matters within the agency's jurisdiction [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6092.5(d), (e)].

- Undertake investigations assigned to the agency pursuant to directions from the California Supreme Court [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6092.5(f)].

- Provide general information concerning disciplinary procedures to prospective complainants and the public [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6092.5(g), (h)].

- Provide written reports to the Supreme Court and to the Assembly and Senate Judiciary Committees containing specified information concerning disciplinary matters [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6092, 6094.5(a), 6095(b)].

- Annually hold at least two public hearings to receive proposals concerning disciplinary procedures, attorney competency, and admissions procedures [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6095(a)].

- Acknowledge receipt of written complaints within two weeks after receipt [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6093.5].

- Notify a complainant or the complainant's designee of the status of his or her complaint, on request [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6093.5].

- Provide the complainant with a written summary of any response by an attorney to a complaint if the response was the basis for dismissal of the complaint [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6093.5, 6095.1].

- Notify the complainant or the complainant's designee in writing of the disposition of his or her complaint and the reasons for that disposition [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6093.5].

- Respond within a reasonable time to inquiries about certain pending and completed disciplinary and criminal proceedings involving attorneys [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6094.5(b)].

[c] Goal and Policy of "Disciplinary Agency" to Dispose Promptly of Complaints

The goal and policy of the "disciplinary agency" under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6090 et seq. is to dismiss a complaint, admonish the attorney, or forward a completed investigation to the Office of Trial Counsel within six months after receipt of a written complaint [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6094.5(a)]. (Bus. & Prof. Code § 6093.5 speaks of "forwarding a completed investigation to the Office of Trial Counsel" because for several years there was a separate Office of Investigations. The investigative function has now been transferred to the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2101].) Concerning complaints designated as "complicated matters" by the Chief Trial Counsel, the goal and policy of the "disciplinary agency" is to dismiss, to terminate by admonition, or to complete those investigations within 12 months [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6094.5(a)]. The goals and policies concerning timely case disposition do not serve as a bar or defense to any disciplinary investigation or proceeding [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6094.5(a)].

[d] "Disciplinary Agency" Required to Respond to Inquiries Within Reasonable Time

The "disciplinary agency" under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6090 et seq., subject to its record retention policy, must respond within a reasonable time to inquiries concerning the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6094.5(b)]:

- The status of pending disciplinary cases in which a notice of disciplinarycharges has been filed.

- Public discipline that has been imposed on an attorney in California.

- Public discipline that has been imposed on an attorney outside of California, to the extent known by the agency.

In addition, the "disciplinary agency" must respond within a reasonable time to inquiries concerning the following types of criminal cases, to the extent of the agency's information [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6094.5(b)]:

- Cases in which an indictment or information has been brought charging a felony against an attorney.
- Cases in which an attorney has been convicted of a felony.
- Cases in which an attorney has been convicted of a misdemeanor committed in the course of the practice of law or in any manner such that a client of the attorney was a victim.
- Cases in which an attorney has been convicted of a misdemeanor or felony, a necessary element of which, as determined by the statutory or common law definition of the crime, involves improper conduct of an attorney.

In responding to inquiries about current felony charges pending against an attorney or those criminal convictions specified above, the State Bar Court, Office of Trial Counsel, Office of Investigation, or other appropriate office of the State Bar may provide the following information [Cal. State B. Rules & Regs., art. XV, § 3]:

- The name of the attorney.
- The date of conviction.
- The crime or crimes that the attorney was convicted of.
- The date when the judgment of conviction has been affirmed on appeal, or has otherwise become final.
- If the felony trial is still pending, the date of the indictment or information and the felony or felonies charged.
- The name of the court, location, and court case number.

[e] Annual Discipline Report

The State Bar must issue an Annual Discipline Report describing the performance and condition of the State Bar discipline system. The report must cover the previous calendar year and include accurate and complete descriptions of the existing backlog of discipline cases, the number of inquiries and complaints and their disposition, the speed of complaint handling and dispositions, the number and types of filed notices of disciplinary charges, the number and types of informal discipline outcomes, and other specified information [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.15(a)]. The annual report must include statistical information presented in a consistent manner for year-to-year comparison and must compare the required information to similar information for the previous three years. The report must include the general data and tables included in the previous reports of the State Bar Discipline Monitor if feasible [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.15(b)]. The annual report is presented to the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, to the Governor, to the Speaker of the Assembly, and to the President pro Tempore of the Senate for their consideration, and is a public document [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.15(c)].

§ 71.12 Administrative Entities Within State Bar

[1] State Bar Court

The Board of Governors has the authority to delegate its disciplinary authority to one or more committees to act in its place in matters of discipline and reinstatement [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.5]. The single disciplinary and adjudicatory board established by the Board of Governors is known as the State Bar Court [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.5; Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 3.08]. As the adjudicative division of the State Bar, the State Bar Court is separate and distinct from the prosecutorial division, the Office of Chief Trial Counsel.

The State Bar Court is comprised of judges and judges pro tempore [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 1000; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.11]. It is organized into the following departments [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 1001]:

- The Hearing Department, consisting of hearing judges and judges pro tempore. The Hearing Department is the trial department of the State Bar Court established pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6079.1 and 6086.5 [TRP Rule 101].

- The Review Department, consisting of the Presiding Judge and the review judges. The Review Department is the appellate department of the State Bar Court established pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.55(d).

Every member of the State Bar Court and every person appointed to serve in a similar capacity must take an oath of office [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 1005].

The executive committee of the State Bar Court is composed of no fewer than seven persons appointed by the Presiding Judge of the State Bar Court, including one person who has never been a member of the State Bar or admitted to practicelaw before any court in the United States [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.65(b)]. The executive committee adopts Rules of Practice for the State Bar Court and acts in an advisory capacity to the Court [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 1010].

The Office of the Clerk of the State Bar Court receives and files pleadings, processes documents, assists in court proceedings, maintains files and keeps statistics. The Clerk has offices in both Los Angeles and San Francisco.

In 1990, the California Supreme Court adopted former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 951 [now see Rule 9.10], setting forth the disciplinary authority of the State Bar Court. This rule expands the power of the State Bar Court, conferring on the State Bar Court authority for a number of ministerial and administrative matters that were formerly the exclusive province of the Supreme Court. Under Rule 9.10, the State Bar Court has authority to do the following:

- Act pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6101 and 6102 with respect to discipline of attorneys convicted of crimes [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(a)].

- Extend the time within which a member of the State Bar must take a professional responsibility examination, suspend a member for failing to take and pass such examination, and vacate a member's suspension for failing to take and pass such an examination [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(b)].

- Approve, for good cause, stipulations between a State Bar member and the Chief Trial Counsel for modification of the terms of a member's probation and make corrections and minor modifications to the terms of a member's disciplinary probation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(c)].

- Extend, for good cause, the time within which a member must comply with the provisions of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20, relating to the duties of disbarred, resigned, or suspended attorneys [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(d)].

- Temporarily delay, for good cause, the effective date of, or temporarily stay the effect of, an order for a member's suspension from practice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(e)].

- Hear petitions for readmission or reinstatement in the first instance [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(f)].

Nothing in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10 is to be construed as affecting the power of the Supreme Court to exercise its inherent jurisdiction over the lawyer discipline and admissions system [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(g)].

[2] Office of Chief Trial Counsel

The Office of the Chief Trial Counsel is the investigative and prosecutorial arm of the State Bar in disciplinary matters. It is headed by a Chief Trial Counsel [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6079.5; Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2.16]. The Office of the Chief Trial Counsel has been delegated exclusive authority by the Board of Governors to review inquiries and complaints, conduct investigations and determine whether to file notices of disciplinary charges with the State Bar Court [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2101].

[3] Alternative Dispute Resolution Discipline Mediation Program

The State Bar Board of Governors is authorized to formulate and adopt rules and regulations necessary to establish an alternative dispute resolution discipline mediation program to resolve complaints against attorneys that do not warrant the institution of formal investigation or prosecution. The program should identify sources of client dissatisfaction and provide a mediation process to resolve those complaints or disputes unless the client objects to mediation. An attorney's refusal to participate in the program or the failure to comply with any agreement reached in the program may subject that attorney to discipline [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.14]. The board of governors has adopted Transitional Rules of Procedure under this authority, which have not been completely revised [see TRP Rules 840-846 (Alternative Dispute Resolution Client-Attorney Mediation Program (ADRCAMP))].

The authorization of the ADRCAMP may not be construed to limit or alter the powers of the Supreme Court or the State Bar to disbar or discipline members. The records relating to the program may be made available in any subsequent disciplinary action pursuant to any rule, standard, or guideline adopted by the board of governors [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.14(c)].

The rules adopted by the board of governors may authorize discipline mediation to proceed under programs sponsored by local bar associations, which may charge a reasonable administrative fee to offset the costs of maintaining the discipline mediation programs [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.14(a)]. The board of governors has adopted California State Bar Rules of Procedure under this authority [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 4401-4406 (Alternative Dispute Resolution Client-Attorney Mediation Program (ADRCAMP))]. The standards and guidelines adopted by the board to implement discipline mediation programs may encompass any discipline mediation programs sponsored by local bar associations [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.14(b)].

[4] Discipline Audit Panel

The Discipline Audit Panel, which replaced an earlier Complainants' Grievance Panel in 1996, consists of seven members appointed by the Governor, the Senate Rules Committee, the Speaker of the Assembly, and the Board of Governors. Fourof the members must be non-attorneys (Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.11(b)). The panel does the following:

- Conduct one random audit per year of closures of complaints in lieu of disciplinary prosecution by the office of Chief Trial Counsel; this includes the imposition of admonitions, the issuance of warning letters and directional letters, and agreements in lieu of discipline [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.11(a)(1)].

- Conduct one audit per year concerning specified matter areas selected by the panel [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.11(a)(2)].

The scope of an audit is to evaluate the office of Chief Trial Counsel and, specifically, whether it is doing the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.11(a)(3)]:

- Adopting adequate internal policies, procedures, and guidelines and adhering to them.

- Adhering to the Statement of Commitments to Complainants.

- Acting in a consistent manner with respect to its filing of decisions, imposition of informal discipline, and referrals to diversion programs.

- Appropriately utilizing internal procedures and processes concerning complainant dissatisfaction.

- Responding to discipline committee directions, if any, concerning the prior Complainant's Grievance Panel and recommendations of the Discipline Audit Panel.

The Panel prepares an annual written report to the discipline committee of the State Bar Board of Governors, the office of Chief Trial Counsel prepares a response to that report, and the discipline committee, after evaluating these reports, directs the office of Chief Trial Counsel to take whatever action it deems appropriate [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.11(c)].

[5] Special Deputy Trial Counsel

In the event of a disciplinary complaint against a State Bar employee, a member of the Board of Governors of the State Bar, a judge of the State Bar Court, or a member of the governing board of any entity of the State Bar, the Chief Trial Counsel may appoint one or more Special Deputy Trial Counsel, who shall act in the place of the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2201].

§ 71.13 Client Security Fund

[1] In General

The State Bar Act authorizes the State Bar to establish and administer a Client Security Fund to relieve or mitigate pecuniary losses caused by the dishonest conduct of active members of the State Bar, Foreign Legal Consultants registered with the State Bar, and attorneys registered with the State Bar under the Multijurisdictional Practice Program arising from or connected with the practice of law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6140.5; Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 220]. The State Bar has promulgated a separate body of rules, the Rules of Procedure for Client Security Fund Matters, that specifically governs administration of the fund [see Rules Proc. Client Sec. Fund, Rule 1 et seq.].

The fund is generally administered by the seven-member Client Security Fund Commission, which acts as the delegate of the Board of Governors [Rules Proc. Client Sec. Fund, Rules 11, 12].

Payments made from the fund are discretionary and are subject to regulation by the Board of Governors [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6140.5; Rules Proc. Client Sec. Fund, Rule 2; see also Rules Proc. Client Sec. Fund, Rule 4 (limitation on amount of reimbursement)]. The State Bar may collect an amount authorized by statute from each member of the bar for the purpose of funding the Client Security Fund [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6140.55; see State Bar of California v. Statile (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 650, 662-669, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 72 (Bar's right of recovery is not limited to money due under lawyer's settlement agreements with suing clients)].

[2] General Claim Requirements

To qualify for reimbursement from the Client Security Fund, an applicant must establish loss of money or property that came into the hands of an active member of the State Bar while acting as lawyer, trustee, or fiduciary. The applicant's loss must have been caused by the dishonest conduct of that active member of the State Bar, and the dishonest conduct must have taken place on or after March 4, 1972 [Rules Proc. Client Sec. Fund, Rule 2]. "Dishonest conduct" includes embezzlement, refusal to refund unearned fees, and other specified acts of intentional deceit [see Rules Proc. Client Sec.

Fund, Rule 6; Johnson v. State Bar (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 1561, 1566, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 6] .

Certain parties cannot receive reimbursement under the fund, including governmental entities and members of the attorney's immediate family [Rules Proc. Client Sec. Fund, Rule 7(a), (f)]. Coworkers in the attorney's law firm, malpractice insurers, and business entities controlled by the attorney are also generally barred [Rules Proc. Client Sec. Fund, Rule 7(b)-(e)].

If the applicant's loss, or reimbursable portion thereof, was covered by insurance, the applicant generally may not recover from the fund [Rules Proc. Client Sec. Fund, Rule 8].

[3] Reimbursement Procedure

Applications for reimbursement are filed with the Client Security Fund Commission at the San Francisco or Los Angeles office of the State Bar [Rules Proc. Client Sec. Fund, Rule 14(a); see Rules Proc. Client Sec. Fund, Rule 13].

PRACTICE TIP:

Applications for Reimbursement. Applications are available from and processed by the Client Security Fund located at the State Bar of California, 1149 S. Hill St., Los Angeles, CA 90015-2299, (213) 765-1140. The applicant should provide a copy all supporting documents. Any questions may be directed to the Client Security Fund. By Regina E. Brenner.

The application must be filed within four years after the applicant discovers, or through the use of reasonable diligence should have discovered, the loss [Rules Proc. Client Sec. Fund, Rule 3].

The Commission coordinates the screening of each application and makes a determination on the application [Rules Proc. Client Sec. Fund, Rule 14(b), (c)]. To comport with due process, the State Bar must allow an applicant to be heard and to respond to the State Bar's proposed disposition of the request for funds [Ainsworth v. State Bar (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1218, 1232, 252 Cal. Rptr. 267, 762 P.2d 431 , cert. denied, 489 U.S. 1081, 109 S. Ct. 1534, 103 L. Ed. 2d 839 (1989) ; Saleeby v. State Bar (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 547, 566, 216 Cal. Rptr. 367, 702 P.2d 525] . Although a formal hearing is not required, the State Bar has the option of either utilizing the disciplinary proceedings against the attorney as the forum for determining the amount available to the applicant, or providing a separate procedure for Client Security Fund dispositions [Ainsworth v. State Bar (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1218, 1232, 252 Cal. Rptr. 267, 762 P.2d 431 , cert. denied, 489 U.S. 1081, 109 S. Ct. 1534, 103 L. Ed. 2d 839 (1989) ; Saleeby v. State Bar (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 547, 566, 216 Cal. Rptr. 367, 702 P.2d 525] . The State Bar's rules allow a party to submit a request for oral hearing before the Commission or a panel of its members [Rules Proc. Client Sec. Fund, Rule 14(c)].

The applicant or the respondent attorney may seek review of the final decision of the Commission or State Bar Court to grant or deny reimbursement in the superior court pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 [Rules Proc. Client Sec. Fund, Rule 17.]. The proper standard of review is the substantial evidence test [Johnson v. State Bar (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 1561, 1564, 1567, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 6] . Because an attorney has no vested right or fundamental vested interest that is affected by any decision of reimbursement, independent judgment review of the record in a limited trial de novo is inappropriate [Johnson v. State Bar (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 1561, 1566-1567, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 6] .

If an applicant is reimbursed from the fund, the applicant must give in consideration a pro tanto assignment of his or her rights against the attorney [see Rules Proc. Client Sec. Fund, Rule 19].

Payment information from the Client Security Fund is public information [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.1(a)(2)(D)].

[4] Subrogation Rights of State Bar

On making a payment to an applicant to the Client Security Fund, the State Bar is subrogated, to the extent of that payment, to the rights of the applicant against any person or persons who, or entity that, caused the applicant's pecuniary loss. The State Bar may bring an action to enforce those rights within three years from the date of payment to the applicant [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6140.5(b); see State Bar of California v. Statile (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 650, 662-669,86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 72 (Bar's right of recovery not is limited to money due under lawyer's settlement agreements with suing clients)].

[5] Reimbursement by Attorney

Any attorney whose actions have caused the payment of funds to a claimant from the Client Security Fund must reimburse the fund, with interest, for all moneys paid out as a result of his or her conduct, in addition to payment of the assessment for the procedural costs of processing the claim, as a condition of continued practice. The reimbursed amount, plus applicable interest and costs, must be added to and become a part of the membership fee of a publicly reproved or suspended member for the next calendar year. For a member who resigns with disciplinary charges pending or a member who is suspended or disbarred, the reimbursed amount, plus applicable interest and costs, must be paid as a condition of reinstatement of membership [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6140.5(c)].

§ 71.30 Grounds for Discipline

[1] Statutory Grounds

The California Supreme Court may disbar or suspend an attorney for any of the following causes, arising after an attorney's admission to practice [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6068(o)(10), 6100]:

- Failing to report to the State Bar, in writing, any event or action against the attorney that is subject to the State Bar's self-reporting requirements [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(o)(1)-(7), discussed in § 71.30A[3]], within 30 days of the time the attorney has knowledge of the event [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(o)(10)].

- Conviction of felony or misdemeanor involving moral turpitude [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6101, 6102].

- Willful disobedience or violation of a court order requiring the attorney to do or forbear an act connected with or in the cause of the attorney's profession that the attorney ought in good faith to do or forbear [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6103].

- Violation of the attorney's professional oath or duties as an attorney [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6103; see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6067, 6068 (oath and duties of attorney)].

- Violations of Prob. Code § 15687 (restrictions on compensation of attorney acting as trustee) or Prob. Code § 21350 et seq. (limitations on donative transfers to drafters) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6103.6 (applicable to violations occurring on or after January 1, 1994)].

- Corruptly or willfully and without authority appearing as attorney for a partyto an action or proceeding [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6104].

- Lending the attorney's name, to be used as an attorney by another person who is not an attorney [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6105].

- Committing any act involving dishonesty, moral turpitude, or corruption, whether the act is committed in the course of the attorney's relations as an attorney or otherwise, and regardless of whether or not the act is a felony or misdemeanor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6106]. If the act constitutes a felony or misdemeanor, conviction in a criminal proceeding is not a condition precedent to disbarment or suspension of practice because of the act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6106].

- Advocating the overthrow of the government of the United States or of the State of California by force, violence, or other unconstitutional means [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6106.1].

- Engaging in any conduct prohibited by former Ins. Code § 1871.1 (now see Penal Code § 550) (fraud related to insurance claim) or Ins. Code § 1871.4 (fraud related to claim for workers' compensation) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6106.5].

- Expressly or impliedly conditioning the performance of legal services for a current or prospective client on the client's willingness to engage in sexual relations with the attorney [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6106.9; see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-120].

Attorneys may be subject to discipline for violating Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35, which requires the filing and serving of a certificate of merit by the attorney prior to filing an action for damages for the professional negligence of architects, engineers, and land surveyors [see Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35(f)]. An attorney may be disciplined by the State Bar for failure to provide advance notice of intention to commence an action for professional negligence against a health care provider, as required by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 364, 365].

The negotiation of a professional sport service contract by an attorney to collect a fee that, in any calendar year, exceeds 10 percent of the athlete's compensation constitutes cause for the imposition of discipline [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6106.7(a)]. Likewise, the willful violation of certain Labor Code sections, which regulate athletic contracts and athletic agents, constitutes cause for imposing discipline on an attorney [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6106.7(b); see Lab. Code §§ 1530.5, 1531(b), (c), 1535.5, 1535.7, 1539].

An attorney may be subject to discipline for negotiating, arranging, or otherwise offering to perform a mortgage loan modification or other form of mortgage loan forbearance for a fee or other compensation paid by the borrower without certain required notices to the borrower [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6106.3; Civ. Code § 2944.6]. In addition, an attorney who negotiates, arranges, or otherwise offers to perform a mortgage loan modification or other form of mortgage loan forbearance for a fee may only claim, demand, charge, collect, or receive any compensation after fully performing each and every service the attorney contracted to perform or represented that he or she would perform [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6106.3; Civ. Code § 2944.7].

An attorney also may be disciplined for requiring, as a condition of a settlement of a civil action for professional misconduct brought against him or her, that the plaintiff agree not to file a complaint concerning that conduct with the agency charged with attorney discipline [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6090.5]. An attorney also may be subject to discipline for the refusal to participate in the State Bar's alternative dispute resolution discipline mediation program, or the failure to comply with any agreement reached in the program [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.14(a); see § 71.12[3]].

An attorney's violation of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6158, 6158.1, or 6158.3 (prohibiting false and misleading advertising) is cause for discipline by the State Bar. The State Bar also may commence an investigation based on a complaint filed by any person claiming a violation of these sections. The State Bar's determination of this complaint is admissible in, but is not determinative of, any disciplinary proceeding brought against the attorney as a result of the complaint [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6158.7].

Causes for discipline listed in the State Bar Act apparently are not exclusive; the Supreme Court retains its inherent power to discipline attorneys, including the power summarily to disbar them [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6087, 6100].

[2] Violation of Rules of Professional Conduct

The Board of Governors of the State Bar has the power to discipline members of the Bar for a willful breach of any of the California Rules of Professional Conduct by public or private reproval or to recommend to the Supreme Court the suspension from practice of a member for a period not exceeding three years [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6077].

The Rules of Professional Conduct are discussed in Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics .

§ 71.30A Reporting of Attorney Conduct to State Bar for Possible Discipline

[1] Court Reporting Requirements

Courts must notify the State Bar of any of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.7(a)]:

- A final order of contempt imposed against an attorney that may involve grounds warranting discipline. The court entering the final order must transmit to the State Bar a copy of the relevant minutes, final order, and transcript, if one exists.

- Whenever a modification or reversal of a judgment in a judicial proceeding is based in whole or in part on the misconduct, incompetent representation, or willful misrepresentation of an attorney.

- The imposition of any judicial sanctions against an attorney, except sanctions for failure to make discovery or monetary sanctions of less than one thousand dollars ($1,000).

- The imposition of any civil penalty upon an attorney pursuant to Family Code Section 8620.

If a court notifies the State Bar of any of these events, the court also must notify the attorney involved that the matter has been referred to the State Bar [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.7(b)]. The State Bar is required to investigate any such matter as to the appropriateness of initiating disciplinary action against the attorney [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.7(c)].

In addition, within 20 days after a judgment by a court that a member of the State Bar is liable for any damages resulting in a judgment against the attorney in any civilaction for fraud, misrepresentation, breach of fiduciary duty, or gross negligence committed in a professional capacity, the court which rendered the judgment must report that fact in writing to the State Bar [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.8(a)].

[2] Business Reporting Requirements

The Legislature has found that overdrafts and misappropriations from attorney trust accounts are serious problems, and determined that it is in the public interest to ensure prompt detection and investigation of instances involving overdrafts and misappropriations from attorney trust accounts. A financial institution (including any branch) which is a depository for attorney trust accounts under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6211(a) or (b) is required to report to the State Bar in the event any properly payable instrument is presented against an attorney trust account containing insufficient funds, irrespective of whether or not the instrument is honored [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6091.1(a); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6091.1(b) (format of report)].

Every attorney practicing or admitted to practice in California is conclusively deemed to have consented to these reporting and production requirements [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6091.1(c)]. A financial institution may charge an attorney or law firm for the reasonable cost of producing the reports and records required by this statute [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6091.1(d)].

In addition, every claim or action for damages against a member of the State Bar for fraud, misrepresentation, breach of fiduciary duty, or negligence committed in a professional capacity must be reported to the State Bar within 30 days of receipt by the admitted insurer or licensed surplus brokers providing professional liability insurance to that member of the State Bar [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.8(b)].

[3] Attorney Self-Reporting Requirements

Attorneys have the duty to report to the State Bar, in writing, within 30 days of the time the attorney has knowledge of any of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(o)]:

- The filing of three or more lawsuits in a 12-month period against the attorney for malpractice or other wrongful conduct committed in a professional capacity.

- The entry of judgment against the attorney in a civil action for fraud, misrepresentation, breach of fiduciary duty, or gross negligence committed in a professional capacity.

- The imposition of judicial sanctions against the attorney, except for sanctions for failure to make discovery or monetary sanctions of less than $1,000.

- The bringing of an indictment or information charging a felony against the attorney.

- The conviction of the attorney, including any verdict of guilty, or plea of guilty or no contest, of a felony, or a misdemeanor committed in the course of the practice of law, or in a manner in which a client of the attorney was the victim, or a necessary element of which, as determined by the statutory or common law definition of the misdemeanor, involves improper conduct of an attorney, including dishonesty or other moral turpitude, or an attempt or a conspiracy or solicitation of another to commit a felony or a misdemeanor of that type.

- The imposition of discipline against the attorney by a professional or occupational disciplinary agency or licensing board, whether in California or elsewhere.

- Reversal of judgment in a proceeding based in whole or in part upon misconduct, grossly incompetent representation, or willful misrepresentation by an attorney.

"Against the attorney" includes claims and proceedings against any firm of attorneys for the practice of law in which the attorney was a partner at the time of the conduct complained of and any law corporation in which the attorney was a shareholder at the time of the conduct complained of, unless the matter, to the attorney's knowledge, has already been reported by the law firm or corporation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(o)(8)]. An attorney's failure to report as required may serve as a basis of discipline [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(o)(10); see § 71.30[1]].

In addition, an attorney who does not possess professional liability insurance must send a complete written report to the State Bar as to any settlement, judgment, or arbitration award described in Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.8(b) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.8(c)].

§ 71.31 Determination of Appropriate Discipline

[1] Adoption of Standards for Attorney Sanctions for Professional Misconduct

The Board of Governors of the State Bar has adopted a set of criteria for the imposition of discipline for professional misconduct known as the Standards for Attorney Sanctions for Professional Misconduct, which comprise Title IV of the Cal. State B. Rules Proc.. These standards became effective on January 1, 1986, and apply to all pending disciplinary matters in which a hearing panel decision or a stipulation as to facts and disposition is filed on or after January 1, 1986. In addition, the standards may be properly considered in assessing the appropriate disciplinary sanction for conduct predating the standards [Kennedy v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 610, 617 n.3, 257 Cal. Rptr. 324, 770 P.2d 736 ; Greenbaum v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 543, 550-551, 237 Cal. Rptr. 168 . 736 P.2d 754] .

The purpose of the standards, as stated in their introduction, is to set up a comprehensive written set of standards to replace the ad hoc method of imposition of discipline. To that end, the issuance of the standards is aimed at achieving the following goals [Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Introduction]:

- To better discharge the purposes of attorney discipline as announced by the Supreme Court.
- To achieve greater consistency in disciplinary sanctions for similar offenses.
- To identify for the legal profession, the courts, and the public the factors thatmay appropriately be considered for imposing discipline on an attorney and to set forth an appropriate means by which those factors may lead to the selection of a sanction in a particular case.

Under the Standards, some of the discretion for the imposition of discipline in individual cases has been taken away from the State Bar Court [see, e.g., Cal. State B. Stds. for Atty's Sanctions, Std. 2.5]. Although the Standards are not binding on the California Supreme Court and do not affect the independence of the Court's review, the Court has found the Standards instructive in making its determinations of discipline [In re Nadrich (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 271, 277, 747 P.2d 1146 ; see Guzzetta v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 962, 982, 239 Cal. Rptr. 675, 741 P.2d 172] .

The Standards apply to the fixing of a final disciplinary sanction after a member of the State Bar has been found culpable of or has acknowledged culpability of professional misconduct in a proceeding conducted by the State Bar [Cal. State B. Stds. for Atty's Sanctions, Std. 1.1]. The Standards do not apply to the following [Cal. State B. Stds. For Atty's Sanctions, Std. 1.1]:

- Resignation of an attorney with charges pending pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.21.
- A transfer to or retransfer from inactive status pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007.
- An interim suspension following conviction of a crime under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6101, 6102.

The Standards set forth the purposes for the conduct of disciplinary proceedings and for the imposition of sanctions by the State Bar [Cal. State B. Stds. for Atty's Sanctions, Std. 1.3]. The Standards state that the purposes are [Cal. State B. Stds. For Atty's Sanctions, Std. 1.3]:

- To protect the public, the courts, and the legal profession.
- To maintain high professional standards by attorneys.
- To preserve the public confidence in the legal profession.

Rehabilitation of a member is a permissible object of a sanction, but only if the imposition of rehabilitative sanctions is consistent with the primary purposes of imposing sanctions [Cal. State B. Stds. for Atty's Sanctions, Std. 1.3].

[2] State Bar Recommendation of Discipline

[a] In General

When the State Bar recommends an appropriate sanction for an act of professional misconduct, it selects the sanction set forth in the California State Bar Standards for Attorney Sanctions for the particular act of misconduct found or acknowledged [Cal. State B. Stds. for Atty's Sanctions, Std. 1.6(a)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Standards for Attorney Sanctions for Professional Misconduct. The State Bar Court has utilized the Standards as guidelines in determining the recommended discipline even though the Standards are expressed in mandatory language. The State Bar Court's use of the Standards as guidelines is endorsed by the Supreme Court of California as a method of achieving greater consistency in disciplinary sanctions for similar offenses [see In re Young (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 257, 267, 261 Cal. Rptr. 59, 776 P.2d 1021 ; Gary v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 820, 828, 244 Cal. Rptr. 482, 749 P.2d 1336 ; Greenbaum v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 543, 550, 237 Cal. Rptr. 168, 736 P.2d 754] . By Regina E. Brenner.

If two or more acts of professional misconduct are found or acknowledged in a single disciplinary proceeding and different sanctions are prescribed by the Standards for those acts, the sanction imposed is the more or most severe of the different applicable sanctions [Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.6(a)].

[b] Effect of Aggravating or Mitigating Circumstances Generally

The State Bar recommends imposition of the appropriate sanction prescribed for the particular offense, unless aggravating or mitigating circumstances are found to surround the particular act of misconduct and the net effect of the aggravating or mitigating circumstances, by themselves and in balance with the opposing mitigating or aggravating circumstances, demonstrates that a greater or lesser degree of sanction should be imposed in order to fulfill the purposes of imposing sanctions, as set forth in the Standards [Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.6(b)].

In applying the Standards, any limitation on the consideration of mitigatingcircumstances contained in Part B or C of the Standards controls over any standard in Part A [Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.6(c)]. Standards in Part B specify sanctions in original proceedings for professional misconduct [see Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Stds. 2.1-2.10]. Standards in Part C set forth sanctions for professional misconduct following conviction of a crime [see Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Stds. 3.1-3.4]. Standards in Part A are of general applicability [see Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Stds. 1.1-1.7].

The Supreme Court also considers aggravating and mitigating circumstances in making its decision as to which sanction to impose on an attorney. For discussion of aggravating and mitigating circumstances in the context of Supreme Court imposition of sanctions, see § 71.31[5].

[3] Aggravating Circumstances

[a] Defined

An aggravating circumstance is defined as an event or factor established clearly and convincingly by the State Bar Court as having surrounded a member's professional misconduct, and as demonstrating that a greater degree of sanction than that set forth in the Standards for the particular act of professional misconduct found or acknowledged is needed to protect the public, the courts, and the legal profession adequately [Cal. State B. Stds. for Atty's Sanctions, Std. 1.2(b)]. The following circumstances are considered aggravating under the Standards [Cal. State B. Stds. for Atty's Sanctions, Std. 1.2(b)(i)-(vi)]:

- The existence of a prior record of discipline and the nature and extent of that record.

- The fact that current misconduct found or acknowledged by the member evidences multiple acts of wrongdoing or demonstrates a pattern of misconduct.

- The fact that the member's misconduct was surrounded by or followed by bad faith, dishonesty, concealment, overreaching, or other violations of the State Bar Act or Rules of Professional Conduct; or, if trust funds or trust property were involved, refusal or inability to account to the client or person who is the object of the misconduct for improper conduct toward those funds or property.

- The fact that the member's misconduct significantly harmed a client, the public, or the administration of justice.

- The member's indifference toward rectification of or atonement for the consequences of his or her misconduct.

- The member's lack of candor to and cooperation with any victims of the member's misconduct or with the State Bar during disciplinary investigation or proceedings.

A member's lack of concern for the disciplinary process and failure to appreciate the seriousness of the charges is a factor in aggravation [In the Matter of Hunter (1994) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 63, 77-78 (review department found member's dilatory conduct in repeated attempts to appear in both hearing and review departments without seeking relief from default to be aggravating factor)].

[b] Effect of Prior Discipline

The Standards define a prior record of discipline as a previous imposition or recommendation of discipline of the member as defined by Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 216 [Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.2(f)]. The Standards also include discipline imposed for a member's violation of probation or willful violation of an order of the Supreme Court requiring compliance with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20, which allows the Court to impose certain duties on resigned, disbarred, or suspended attorneys [Cal. State. B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.2(f)].

If a member is found culpable of professional misconduct and the member has a record of one prior imposition of discipline, the degree of discipline imposed in the current proceeding must be greater than that imposed in the prior proceeding unless the discipline imposed in the prior proceeding was so remote in time to the current proceeding and the offense is so minimal in severity that imposing greater discipline in the current proceeding would be manifestly unjust [Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.7(a)]. If the member has a record of two prior impositions ofdiscipline, the degree of discipline in the current proceeding must be disbarment unless the most compelling mitigating circumstances clearly predominate [Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.7(b); for discussion of mitigating circumstances under the Standards, see § 71.31[2][b]].

A prior record of discipline is not a prerequisite for imposing any appropriate sanction under the Standards, including disbarment, for professional conduct [Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.7(c)].

[c] Recurring Misconduct

Repeated misconduct and conduct evincing habitual disregard of the client's interests justify severe discipline [see Trousil v. State Bar (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 337, 342, 211 Cal. Rptr. 525, 695 P.2d 1066 ; Alberton v. State Bar (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 1, 16, 206 Cal. Rptr. 373, 686 P.2d 1177 , cert. denied, 470 U.S. 1007 ; see also Levin v. State Bar (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 1140, 1149-1150 n.14, 255 Cal. Rptr. 422, 767 P.2d 689 (for purposes of aggravation of discipline, result is same whether attorney's conduct is characterized as "multiple acts of wrongdoing" or "a pattern of misconduct"); In the Matter of Doran (Review Dept. 1998) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 871, 879 ("pattern of misconduct" amounted to moral turpitude where attorney used client trust account to conduct personal business for period approaching three years and issued 28 NSF (insufficient funds) checks from account); In the Matter of Hindin (Review Dept. 1997) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 657, 685-686 ("pattern of misconduct" amounts to moral turpitude where attorney habitually disregards clients' interests and fails to communicate)]. Thus, each violation committed by an attorney warrants a separate and independent disciplinary response [Alberton v. State Bar (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 1, 15, 206 Cal. Rptr. 373, 686 P.2d 1177 , cert. denied, 470 U.S. 1007 (1985)] . The Supreme Court may weigh multiple violations as an aggravating factor notwithstanding Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.6(a), which discourages separate punishment for each wrongful act [Levin v. State Bar (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 1140, 1150, 255 Cal. Rptr. 422, 767 P.2d 689] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Additional Allegations of Misconduct as Aggravating Circumstance. Additional allegations of misconduct may be aggravating circumstances; however, in default matters, an additional allegation of misconduct omitted from the Notice to Show Cause cannot be an aggravating circumstance because the respondent does not have notice of the additional allegation [see In the Matter of Heiner (1990) 1 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 301.] . By Regina E. Brenner.

The Supreme Court and the State Bar Court may also consider prior discipline of the attorney as an aggravating factor [see Alberton v. State Bar (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 1, 16, 206 Cal. Rptr. 373, 686 P.2d 1177 , cert. denied, 470 U.S. 1007 (1985) ; In the Matter of Yagman (Review Dept. 1997) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 788, 806] . The Court often uses the Standards For Attorney Sanctions as a guidepost in determining the appropriate discipline for an attorney with prior discipline [see, e.g., Kapelus v. State Bar (1987) 44 Cal. 3d 179, 198 n.14, 242 Cal. Rptr. 196, 745 P.2d 917 ; see also Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Stds. 1.7 (effect of prior discipline)].

In determining the extent to which prior discipline is an aggravating factor, the Court and the State Bar Court may consider not only the severity of the prior offenses but also when the prior disciplinary proceedings occurred. For example, in one case, an attorney's prior disciplinary record of three disciplinary proceedings was the basis for the State Bar's recommendation of disbarment. The Supreme Court, however, held that the time frame of the other disciplinary proceedings, which had taken place about 20 years prior to the present proceeding, in addition to the light sentences imposed in the prior proceedings, somewhat lessened the aggravating effect of those proceedings in determining the discipline in the later proceeding. Consequently, the Court imposed discipline of five years' suspension, which would be stayed and the attorney placed on probation, with only one year of actual suspension [McCray v. State Bar (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 257, 274-275, 211 Cal. Rptr. 691, 696 P.2d 83 ; see also In the Matter of Yagman (Review Dept. 1997) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 788, 806] .

[d] Misconduct Related to Disciplinary Proceeding in Other Matter

The Court may consider the fact that an attorney's misconduct took place during disciplinary proceedings in another matter. Additionally, a failure by a previously disciplined attorney to comply with probationary conditions set by the State Bar in another matter may be deemed an aggravating factor [Mepham v. State Bar (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 943, 949, 232 Cal. Rptr. 152, 728 P.2d 222] .

[e] Attitude About Prior Misconduct and Disciplinary Proceedings

The Supreme Court may consider as an aggravating circumstance an attorney's failure to demonstrate any awareness of the gravity of his or her misconduct [Trousil v. State Bar (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 337, 343, 211 Cal. Rptr. 525, 695 P.2d 1066 ; Tarver v. State Bar (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 122, 134-135, 207 Cal. Rptr. 302, 688 P.2d 911] . The fact that the attorney appears to be unrepentant or appears to take no responsibility for his or her actions is an aggravating consideration [Kapelus v. State Bar (1987) 44 Cal. 3d 179, 197, 198, 242 Cal. Rptr. 196, 745 P.2d 917 ; Warner v. State Bar (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 36, 43, 192 Cal. Rptr. 244, 664 P.2d 148] . An attorney's lack of insight into the wrongfulness of his or her misconduct, however, may not be considered in aggravation of discipline if attorney's attitude is based on honest, though mistaken, belief in his or her innocence [VanSloten v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 921, 932-933, 258 Cal. Rptr. 235, 771 P.2d 1323] .

An attorney's contemptuous attitude towards disciplinary proceedings is relevant as a factor in aggravation [Weber v. State Bar (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 492, 507, 253 Cal. Rptr. 573, 764 P.2d 701 , cert. denied, 490 U.S. 1009 (1989) ; Maltaman v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 924, 958, 239 Cal. Rptr. 687, 741 P.2d 185] . Frivolous lawsuits filed by an attorney against the State Bar may properly be considered in aggravation when the suits are probative of the attorney's contemptuous attitude towards disciplinary proceedings [see Weber v. State Bar (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 492, 505-507, 253 Cal. Rptr. 573, 764 P.2d 701 , cert. denied, 490 U.S. 1009 (1989)] .

[f] Noncooperation and Deceit During Disciplinary Proceedings

An attorney's willful failure to cooperate or participate in disciplinary investigations or proceedings is a factor supporting increased discipline, and is a cause for discipline in itself [see Middleton v. State Bar (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 548, 560, 273 Cal. Rptr. 321, 796 P.2d 1326 ; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(d) (attorney has obligation to respond to State Bar's inquiries in manner that is consistent with truth)]. Outright deceit and false testimony during the course of disciplinary proceedings is a strong factor aggravating discipline, and such conduct may even be considered by the Court as being more serious than the underlying offense [Chang v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 114, 128, 260 Cal. Rptr. 280, 775 P.2d 1049 ; Warner v. State Bar (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 36, 44, 192 Cal. Rptr. 244, 664 P.2d 148 ; In re Regan, 2005 Calif. Op. LEXIS 7, 23,--Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr.-- (attorney who makes false statement to judge is not exculpated based on belief he is acting in clients' best interest)]. It should be noted, however, that an attorney has no obligation to produce incriminating evidence on his or her own initiative [Franklin v. State Bar (1986) 41 Cal. 3d

700, 708, 224 Cal. Rptr. 738, 715 P.2d 699] . Furthermore, an attorney's failure to cooperate during a criminal investigation may not be considered as a factor in aggravation [In re Severo (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 493, 503, 224 Cal. Rptr. 106, 714 P.2d 1244] .

[4] Mitigating Circumstances

[a] Defined

A mitigating circumstance is defined as an event or factor that is established clearly and convincingly by the member subject to a disciplinary proceeding as having caused or underlain the member's professional misconduct, and that demonstrates that the public, courts, and legal profession would be adequately protected by a more lenient degree of sanction than that set forth in the Standards for the particular act of professional misconduct found or acknowledged [Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.2(e)]. The following circumstances are considered mitigating under the Standards [Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.2(e)(i)-(ix)]:

- The absence of any prior record of discipline over many years of practice coupled with present misconduct that is not deemed serious.

- The member's good faith.

- Lack of harm to the client or person who is the object of the misconduct.

- Extreme emotional difficulties or physical disabilities suffered by the member at the time of the act of professional misconduct that expert testimony establishes was directly responsible for the misconduct, provided that the difficulties or disabilities were not the product of any illegal conduct by the member, such as illegal drug or substance abuse, and further provided that the member has established through clear and convincing evidence that he or she no longer suffers from the difficulties or disabilities.

- Spontaneous candor and cooperation displayed to the victims of the member's misconduct and the State Bar during disciplinary investigation and proceedings.

- An extraordinary demonstration of the good character of the member attested to by a wide range of references in the legal and general communities who are aware of the full extent of the member's misconduct.

- Objective steps promptly taken by the member that spontaneously demonstrate remorse or recognition of the wrongdoing found or acknowledged and that are designed to atone for any consequences of the member's misconduct in a timely manner.

- Passage of considerable time since the acts of professional misconduct occurred, followed by convincing proof of subsequent rehabilitation.

- Excessive delay in conducting disciplinary proceedings that is not attributable to the member and that prejudiced the member.

The State Bar Court will consider whether the alleged mitigating circumstances outweigh the seriousness of the member's professional misconduct. No one circumstance is determinative of the appropriate degree of discipline. The appropriate degree of discipline rests on a balanced consideration of all relevant factors, with due regard to the purposes of imposing discipline [In the Matter of Brazil (1994) 2 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 679, 687-690 (member's lack of prior discipline record during 14 years of practice was entitled to mitigating weight but did not prove disbarment was excessive for convictions of grand theft and forgery)]. Mitigating circumstances that were considered in a prior disciplinary proceeding involving the member need not be considered in a subsequent disciplinary proceeding [In the Matter of Stewart (1994) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 52, 61] .

[b] Personal Problems

One factor that is properly to be considered in mitigation is that at the time of the misconduct the petitioner experienced personal and financial problems [Smith v. State Bar (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 525, 540, 213 Cal. Rptr. 236, 698 P.2d 139 ; see Porter v. State Bar (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 518, 527, 276 Cal. Rptr. 384, 801 P.2d 1135] .

The Court generally considers drug or alcohol abuse to be mitigating factors in circumstances in which the drug addiction or alcohol dependency developed in response to some significant extrinsic or traumatic event [Twohy v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 502, 513-514, 256 Cal. Rptr. 794, 769 P.2d 976] . The Court, however, is hesitant to consider substance abuse as a mitigating factor when caused by stress or psychological disturbance [Twohy v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 502, 514, 256 Cal. Rptr. 794, 769 P.2d 976] . In the absence of reliable evidence that a long-standing addiction is permanently under control, or demonstration of a meaningful and sustained period of successful rehabilitation, the Court has not found incomplete or short-term efforts at rehabilitation sufficiently compelling to warrant reducing the severity of disciplinary sanctions recommended by the State Bar Court [Twohy v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 502, 515, 256 Cal. Rptr. 794, 769 P.2d 976] . Nevertheless, an attorney's rehabilitation from alcoholism or other substance abuse will be entitled to significant weight in mitigation if the attorney establishes that [Hawes v. State Bar (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 587, 595, 274 Cal. Rptr. 2, 797 P.2d 1180] :

- The abuse was addictive in nature.
- The abuse causally contributed to the misconduct.
- The attorney has undergone a meaningful and sustained period of rehabilitation.

Evidence of mental illness is not a mitigating factor that will justify or exonerate an attorney from bearing the responsibility for professional misconduct [In re Vaughn (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 614, 619, 213 Cal. Rptr. 583, 698 P.2d 651 ; Ballard v. State Bar (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 274, 289, 197 Cal. Rptr. 556, 673 P.2d 226] . The Court's duty is to ensure that the public will be protected in the fulfillment of proper professional standards, even if the cause of the problem is emotional [see Grove v. State Bar (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 680, 685, 58 Cal. Rptr. 564, 427 P.2d 164] . The problems may explain the misdeeds, but they do not excuse them [In re Vaughn (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 614, 619, 213 Cal. Rptr. 583, 698 P.2d 651] . Nonetheless, a mental disorder is entitled to mitigating weight if it causally contributed to the misconduct and if the disorder has since been cured or so controlled that it is unlikely to lead again to misconduct [Hawes v. State Bar (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 587, 595, 274 Cal. Rptr. 2, 797 P.2d 1180 ; see McKnight v. State Bar (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 1025, 1038-1039, 281 Cal. Rptr. 766, 810 P.2d 998] .

[c] Lack of Prior Disciplinary Record

The Court can properly take into consideration the lack of a prior disciplinary record over a substantial period of time in determining discipline [Schneider v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 784, 798-799, 239 Cal. Rptr. 111, 739 P.2d 1279 (lack of prior record for approximately 13 years); Chefsky v. State Bar (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 116, 132 n.10, 202 Cal. Rptr. 349, 680 P.2d 82 (lack of prior record for nearly 20 years)].

[d] Attitude of Attorney

An attorney's attitude toward disciplinary proceedings may properly be considered when deciding on the appropriate sanction [Morales v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1037, 1048, 245 Cal. Rptr. 398, 751 P.2d 457 ; Alberton v. State Bar (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 1, 16, 206 Cal. Rptr. 373, 686 P.2d 1177 , cert. denied, 470 U.S. 1007 (1985)] . Candor, cooperation, and remorse are factors that can be considered in mitigation in a disciplinary proceeding [Hipolito v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 621, 627 n.2, 257 Cal. Rptr. 331, 770 P.2d 743 ; McCray v. State Bar (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 257, 274, 211 Cal. Rptr. 691, 696 P.2d 83 ; see also In the Matter of Silver (Review Dept. 1998) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 902, 906 ; In the Matter of Doran (Review Dept. 1998) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 871, 879 ; In the Matter of Yagman (Review Dept. 1997) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 788, 807] .

[e] Difficult Clients

The difficulty of dealing with unpleasant, self-serving, disreputable, or dishonest clients has been acknowledged as a mitigating factor [Chefsky v. State Bar (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 116, 132, 202 Cal. Rptr. 349, 680 P.2d 82 ; Bernstein v. State Bar (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 909, 918, 101 Cal. Rptr. 369, 495 P.2d 1289] . However, making disparaging remarks about clients may be considered bad faith tactics [In re Regan, 2005 Calif. Op. LEXIS 7, 44-45,--Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr.-- (unsupported claims that clients were mentally ill and senile demonstrated lack of appreciation for attorney's obligations)].

[f] Restitution

The fact that the attorney made restitution to the client prior to the State Bar's involvement in the case may be entitled to some weight in mitigation [Waysman v. State Bar (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 452, 458, 224 Cal. Rptr. 101, 714 P.2d 1239 ; see also Lawhorn v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1357, 1366-1367, 240 Cal. Rptr. 848, 743 P.2d 908 (restitution made after client told attorney that she would file complaint against him, but before attorney received formal notice that complaint had been filed, entitled to some weight as mitigating factor); but see In re Ford (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 810, 817, 244 Cal. Rptr. 476, 749 P.2d 1331 (partial restitution made after clientthreatened to report attorney to police entitled to little weight in mitigation)]. Restitution made only under the pressure of a forthcoming disciplinary investigation, however, is entitled to no weight as a mitigating circumstance [Kelly v. State Bar (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 649, 658, 247 Cal. Rptr. 608, 754 P.2d 1104 ; Murray v. State Bar (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 575, 582, 220 Cal. Rptr. 667, 220 Cal. Rptr. 677, 709 P.2d 480] .

[g] Delay in Bringing Proceeding

The fact that there has been a substantial delay in the State Bar's initiation of formal proceedings against an attorney, although not a bar to the imposition of discipline, is a factor to consider in deciding what discipline is appropriate [Chefsky v. State Bar (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 116, 132, 202 Cal. Rptr. 349, 680 P.2d 82 ; but see In re Ford (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 810, 818, 244 Cal. Rptr. 476, 749 P.2d 1331 (delay in conduct of disciplinary proceedings merits consideration as mitigating factor only if it "caused prejudice in a legal sense")].

[h] Nature of Attorney's Misconduct

In determining discipline, the Supreme Court may take into account whether the attorney's misconduct was negligent, as opposed to being intentionally fraudulent, the former warranting less severe discipline than the latter [Waysman v. State Bar (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 452, 458, 224 Cal. Rptr. 101, 714 P.2d 1239] . The fact that the attorney's misconduct did not result in harm to clients may also be considered as mitigation [Lister v. State Bar (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1117, 1129, 275 Cal. Rptr. 802, 800 P.2d 1232] .

If the attorney's misconduct involved an illegal transaction, the Court may consider as a mitigating factor the fact that the attorney was merely a "follower," rather than an instigator, in the transaction. The Court may also consider the fact that the transaction occurred in connection with the attorney's personal affairs, and that the attorney did not stand to benefit personally from the transaction [see In re Chira (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 904, 909, 231 Cal. Rptr. 560, 727 P.2d 753] .

Misconduct involving an unsettled area of the law may merit lighter discipline than conduct clearly violating existing statutes, cases, and rules [see Hawk v. State Bar (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 589, 602, 247 Cal. Rptr. 599, 754 P.2d 1096] .

[i] Attorney's Youth and Inexperience

Some older cases have held that an attorney's youth and inexperience may be a factor in meting out lighter punishment on the attorney [see, e.g., Crawford v. State Bar (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 659, 669, 7 Cal. Rptr. 746, 355 P.2d 490 ; Dudney v. The State Bar (1931) 214 Cal. 238, 240, 4 P.2d 770] . More recently, however, the Court has stated that an attorney's youth and inexperience alone is not a mitigating factor because thousands of young and inexperienced attorneys begin practice each year without committing professional misconduct [In re Possino (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 163, 172, 207 Cal. Rptr. 543, 689 P.2d 115 ; see also Lawhorn v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1357, 1366, 240 Cal. Rptr. 848, 743 P.2d 908 (inexperience as explaining, though not excusing, misconduct by attorney)].

[j] Passage of Time and Abstention From Practice

The passage of time and abstention from practice are not mitigating factors unless the attorney establishes by substantial evidence that he or she has used the time to rehabilitate himself or herself to regain fitness to practice [In re Possino (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 163, 172, 207 Cal. Rptr. 543, 689 P.2d 115] .

[k] Favorable Character Evidence

Favorable character evidence can be a mitigating factor if the attorney has no prior record of discipline. The Court may consider testimony or letters from judges and attorneys indicating that the attorney has a good reputation in the legal community [see Sternlieb v. State Bar (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 317, 331-332, 276 Cal. Rptr. 346, 801 P.2d 1097 ; Guzzetta v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 962, 980-981, 239 Cal. Rptr. 675, 741 P.2d 172] .

[l] Community Service

Service to the community and to the legal profession may constitute a mitigating factor [Schneider v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 784, 799, 239 Cal. Rptr. 111, 739 P.2d 1279 ; see Galardi v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 683, 694, 238 Cal. Rptr. 774, 739 P.2d 134 , cert. denied, 484 U.S. 1062 (1988)] . If the attorney's misconduct was related to prior emotional problems, the Court may consider community and professional activities in evaluating the attorney's rehabilitation from those problems [see Porter v. State Bar (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 518, 528, 276 Cal. Rptr. 384, 801 P.2d 1135] . Substantial pro bono legal work or volunteer work is a mitigating factor [see In the Matter of Lais (Review Dept. 1998) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 907, 926 ; In the Matter of Bouyer (Review Dept. 1998) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 888, 891] .

[m] Ignominy of Criminal Conviction

The Court recognizes the ignominy of a criminal conviction as a mitigating factor when there has been some period of incarceration [see In re Mudge (1982) 33 Cal. 3d 152, 156, 187 Cal. Rptr. 779, 654 P.2d 1307 ; Segretti v. State Bar (1976) 15 Cal. 3d 878, 889, 126 Cal. Rptr. 793, 544 P.2d 929 ; but see In re Demergian (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 284, 297, 256 Cal. Rptr. 392, 768 P.2d 1069 (rejecting criminal conviction as mitigating factor when conviction was for grand theft from client trust fund and attorney was sentenced to only two days in county jail)]. If, however, the disciplinaryaction is based on a criminal conviction, the fact that the attorney plea-bargained in the underlying criminal action will not be given weight in mitigation [In re Demergian (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 284, 297, 256 Cal. Rptr. 392, 768 P.2d 1069] .

[5] Supreme Court Determination of Discipline

As discussed above, the State Bar has adopted Standards for Attorney sanctions that relate how the level of discipline should be determined by the State Bar, setting forth specific sanctions for specific acts of misconduct and the effect of aggravating or mitigating factors in the imposition of discipline. These standards are intended in part to ensure consistency in imposing disciplinary sanctions on members of the State Bar [see Cal. State. B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Introduction]. The Standards will be applied by the State Bar in making its recommendation of discipline.

Although the Supreme Court gives the State Bar's recommendation great weight, the Court makes its own independent decision regarding the imposition of discipline [In re Leardo (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 1, 10, 278 Cal. Rptr. 689, 805 P.2d 948 ; In re Vaughn (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 614, 618, 213 Cal. Rptr. 583, 698 P.2d 651] . The Court has found the Standards instructive in making its determinations of discipline [In re Nadrich (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 271, 277 n.3, 243 Cal. Rptr. 218, 747 P.2d 1146 ; see Guzzetta v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 962, 982, 239 Cal. Rptr. 675, 741 P.2d 172] . The Court, however, has rejected State Bar recommendations arising from application of the Standards when it has had serious doubts as to the propriety of the recommended discipline [see Natali v. State Bar (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 456, 468, 247 Cal. Rptr. 165, 754 P.2d 211 ; Lawhorn v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1357, 1366, 240 Cal. Rptr. 848, 743 P.2d 908] . In some cases, the Court has opted to credit attorneys with time spent on interim suspension, even though the Standards do not explicitly authorize interim suspension to be taken into account in the determination of discipline [see, e.g., In re Aquino (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 1122, 1134, 264 Cal. Rptr. 833, 783 P.2d 192 ; In re Young (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 257, 267-268, 261 Cal. Rptr. 59, 776 P.2d 1021] .

The Supreme Court's imposition of discipline does not issue from a fixed formula, but from a balanced consideration of the relevant factors in mitigation and aggravation [McCray v. State Bar (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 257, 273, 211 Cal. Rptr. 691, 696 P.2d 83 ; Chefsky v. State Bar (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 116, 132-133, 202 Cal. Rptr. 349, 680 P.2d 82] . For discussion of such factors, see § 71.31[3], [4].

§ 71.32 Types of Discipline Available

The following types of discipline are available as sanctions against attorneys for their misconduct:

- Reprovals (private, public, and opinion reprimands) [see § 71.34[1]].
- Stayed suspension conditioned on compliance with terms of probation [see § 71.34[3]].
- Actual suspension from practice [see § 71.34[4]].
- Disbarment [see § 71.34[5]].

In addition to the sanctions mentioned above, the following informal, nondisciplinary sanctions are available in the appropriate case:

- Admonition [see § 71.33[1]].
- Agreement in lieu of discipline [see § 71.33[2]].
- Warning letters.

§ 71.33 Informal Discipline

[1] Admonitions

Technically, an admonition is a sanction that does not amount to formal discipline, and is the lowest form of sanction in the disciplinary process [see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 264; Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Stds. 1.2(a), 1.4(a)].

Under Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 264, if the subject matter of a disciplinary proceeding pending in the State Bar Court does not involve a matter that is, or probably is, a client security fund matter or a serious offense, the Court may resolve the matter by an admonition to the respondent if the Court concludes that (1) the violation was not intentional or occurred under mitigating circumstances, and (2) no significant harm resulted [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 264(a)]. The term "serious offense" means conduct involving dishonesty, moral turpitude, or corruption, including conduct or acts constituting bribery, forgery, perjury, extortion, obstruction of justice, burglary or related offenses, intentional fraud, and intentional breach of a fiduciary relationship [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 264(b)].

Any party may move for the issuance of an admonition, or the parties may make a joint motion which must be accompanied by a stipulation conforming to the requirements of Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 133 [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 264(e)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Admonitions. As one of the lowest forms of discipline, an admonition as a discipline sanction generally would be offered at an early stage in the discipline process. By Regina E. Brenner.

The admonition must be communicated to the complainant (if any) and to the deputy trial counsel, but otherwise may not be actively publicized by the State Bar or the State Bar Court. However, unless otherwise ordered,the file in a public proceeding must remain public even if the proceeding is resolved by the issuance of an admonition [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 264(c)].

An admonition does not constitute the imposition of discipline on the respondent [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 264(d)]. If, within two years after the effective date of an admonition to the respondent, another disciplinary hearing is initiated against the respondent based on other alleged misconduct, the proceeding resolved by admonition must be reopened on motion of the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel filed within 30 days after initiation of the second proceeding. All applicable time limitations are tolled during the period between the issuance of the admonition and the filing of the order granting the motion to reopen [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 264(f)].

[2] Agreements in Lieu of Disciplinary Proceedings

The State Bar Court may make agreements with respondent attorneys in lieu of disciplinary proceedings, regarding conditions of practice, further legal education, or other matters. These agreements may be used by the disciplinary agency in any subsequent proceeding involving the attorney [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6092.5(i)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Agreements in Lieu of Disciplinary Proceedings. Like an admonition, an agreement in lieu of disciplinary proceedings is a low form of misconduct resolution, and it is not public discipline. Accordingly, an agreement in lieu of discipline should be sought at an early stage in the discipline process. By Regina E. Brenner.

§ 71.34 Formal Discipline

[1] Reprovals

[a] In General

A reproval is a censure or reprimand issued by the California Supreme Court or by the State Bar pursuant to Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 270 [Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.2(g)]. The State Bar has the authority to discipline its members by the imposition of a reproval, either public or private, without recommendation to the Supreme Court [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6078; Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 270(a)]. A reproval is effective when the State Bar Court's decision or order is final [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 270(a)].

[b] Private Reproval

Private reproval next lowest form of discipline after an admonition, and the lowest form of formal discipline, which despite its nomenclature may be available to the public.

A private reproval only remains "private" if it is imposed as the result of a stipulation approved by the State Bar Court before the initiation of a State Bar Court proceeding. In this case, the reproval is part of the respondent's official State Bar membership records, but is not disclosed in response to public inquiries and is not reported on the State Bar's web page [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 270(d)].

However, a "private" reproval may be available to the public in other circumstances. A private reproval imposed on a respondent after the initiation of a State Bar Court proceeding is part of the respondent's official State Bar membership records, is disclosed in response to public inquiries, and is reported as a record of public discipline on the State Bar's web page [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 270(d)]. A stipulation for a private reproval is not breached by posting a notice of an attorneys' public record of discipline on the State Bar website [see, Mack v. State Bar (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 957, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341] .

If a private reproval is issued after the issuance of a notice of disciplinary charges, then the reproval is available to the public because the disciplinary proceeding at this point is a public proceeding [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.1]. Accordingly, a member who feels that "private" reproval is an appropriate discipline, may find it desirable to stipulate to a private reproval before issuance of the notice of disciplinary charges. Otherwise, the member may be disciplined with a "private" reproval, only to lose the benefit of nondisclosure to the public.

In addition, the record of the proceeding in which a private reproval was imposed pursuant to stipulation is available to the public as part of the record of any subsequent proceeding in which it is introduced as evidence of a prior record of discipline [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 270(d)]. A primary significance of a private reproval is that it constitutes prior discipline for purposes of enhancing a subsequent sanction if the member is disciplined again [see Cal. State B. Proc., Rule 216; Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Stds. 1.2(f), 1.7].

[c] Public Reproval

A public reproval imposed on a respondent is publicly available as part of the respondent's official State Bar membership records, and may be disclosed in response to public inquiries. The record of the proceeding in which the public reproval was imposed is a public record [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 270(b)]. The State Bar issues periodic public releases to the press announcing the public discipline of members.

An order imposing a public reproval on a State Bar member must include a direction that the member must pay costs [Bus. & Prof. Code§ 6086.10(a); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 280]. These costs are added to, and become part of, the membership fee of the member for the next calendar year [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6140.7]. For discussion of the costs assessable against the member, see § 71.71.

[d] Reprovals With Conditions

The State Bar may attach conditions, effective for a reasonable period of time, to a public or private reproval [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.19; Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 271; Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.5]. The conditions attached to a reproval must be based on a finding by the State Bar that protection of the public and the interest of the attorney will be served by them [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.19(a)].

A violation of the conditions issued under a reproval does not trigger a probation revocation proceeding. Rather, it may constitute cause for a separate proceeding for willful breach of Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-110 [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.19(b) (referring to Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, former Rule 9-101, predecessor to Rule 1-110); In the Matter of Posthuma (Review Dept. 1998) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 813] . Rule 1-110 states that members of the State Bar must comply with conditions attached to public or private reprovals or other discipline administered by the State Bar. At the time the State Bar administers the reproval, it must give notice to the attorney that failure to comply with the conditions may be punishable [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.19(a)]. A motion to modify any conditions attached to a reproval is governed by Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 550-554, regarding modification or early termination of probation [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 271].

Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.5, sets forth examples of conditions and duties that may be attached to reprovals. Conditions and duties may include, but are not limited to, the following [Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.5]:

- A requirement that specified restitution be made or satisfaction of judgments filed.
- A requirement that the member take and pass the professional responsibility examination.

- A requirement that the member undertake treatment at his or her own expense for medical, psychological, or psychiatric conditions or for problems of alcohol or substance abuse.

- A requirement that the member undertake educational or rehabilitative work at his or her own expense regarding one or more fields of substantive law or law office management.

- A requirement that the member be supervised by a probation monitor referee pursuant to the California State Bar Rules of Procedure and that the member report to the State Bar, as prescribed, compliance with the State Bar Act and Rules of Professional Conduct, the manner in which client funds or trust funds are handled (certified to by an accountant, if required), and other reports as may be reasonable and appropriate in assessing the member's compliance with any duties or conditions imposed.

- Any other duty or condition consistent with the purposes of imposing a sanction for professional misconduct as set forth in Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.3 [see § 71.31[1]].

If a requirement that the member take and pass the professional responsibility examination is imposed as a condition of reproval, the member is given a specific date by which he or she must do so. The member may apply to the Review Department of the State Bar Court for an extension of time to take and pass the exam [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(b); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 321]. The motion must be:

- Based on good cause [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 321(c)].

- Filed in the Office of the Clerk of the State Bar Court [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 61].

- Include proof of service on the Office of Chief Trial Counsel [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 61].

[2] Opinion Reprimands

Closely related to reprovals are opinion reprimands, that is, opinions by the Supreme Court that are typically used to reduce the recommended discipline and instead to reprimand the member publicly by virtue of publication of the opinion. For example, in a case in which two lawyers were found to have violated former Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 2-101(A) (predecessor to Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-400), by a mass-mailing advertising campaign to solicit clients, the Court stated that it strongly disapproved of the activity but held that the recommended 30-day suspension was excessive. Because the attorneys had no prior disciplinary records and because they had made good faith efforts to modify the letters to make them truthful, the Court stated that it was satisfied that a public reprimand would constitute sufficient discipline, and that its opinion should serve as such reprimand [Leoni v. State Bar (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 609, 628, 217 Cal. Rptr. 423, 704 P.2d 183] . Similarly, in another case, an attorney was charged withconflicts of interest in representing multiple defendants in his role as the provider of public defense services for a county. The Supreme Court held that the attorney's conduct amounted to moral turpitude, but, because the attorney had practiced law for 30 years without any previous record of disciplinary proceedings and because he had abandoned some of his ways that amounted to misconduct, the Court considered that its public reprimand, issued by its opinion, constituted sufficient discipline [Gendron v. State Bar (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 409, 425, 197 Cal. Rptr. 590, 673 P.2d 260] .

[3] Probation

[a] In General

The sanction of probation is used when the Supreme Court suspends a member, stays execution of all or part of the period of suspension, and instead places the member on conditional probation [see Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Stds. 1.2(h), 1.4(c)(i)]. The State Bar may recommend suspension stayed on conditions of probation only if the stay and conditions of probation are deemed consistent with the purposes of sanctions set forth in Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.3 [Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.4(c)(i); see § 71.31[1]]. Rehabilitation of a member is a permissible object of a sanction, however, only if the imposition of a rehabilitative sanction is consistent with the primary purpose of protection of the public, the courts, and the legal profession [Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Stds. 1.3, 1.4(c)(i)].

An order imposing probation on a State Bar member must include a direction by the Supreme Court that the member must pay costs [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.10(a)]. For a discussion of the costs assessable against the member, see § 71.71.

[b] Conditions on Probation

If probation is imposed by the State Bar Court or the Office of Chief Trial Counsel with the agreement of the disciplined attorney, any conditions may be imposed that reasonably serve the purposes of the probation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6093(a)].

An example of a condition with which a probationer might be required to comply is participation in a substance abuse program if the attorney's misconduct was caused by a substance abuse problem [see, e.g., In re Leardo (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 1, 19, 278 Cal. Rptr. 689, 805 P.2d 948] . Another condition that might be attached to probation, if the attorney's misconduct stemmed from inadequate office procedures, is a requirement that the attorney get outside help in setting up and implementing different office procedures and proving that he or she has done so [see, e.g., Drociak v. State Bar (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 1085, 1091, 278 Cal. Rptr. 86, 804 P.2d 711] . If the offense involved a member's trust account, a standard condition is a periodic auditing of the account by the member's accountant and subsequent reports to the State Bar [see, e.g., Sternlieb v. State Bar (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 317, 334, 276 Cal. Rptr. 346, 801 P.2d 1097] . When the State Bar Court desires additional monitoring of a probationer, it may require the probationer to submit quarterly reports as a condition of probation [In the Matter of Sawyer (Review Dept. 1997) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 765, 773 ; In the Matter of Weiner (Review Dept. 1997) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 759, 763-764] . For monitoring of probation generally, see § 71.34[3][c].

Restitution is routinely required as a condition of probation in cases of misappropriation of client funds [see, e.g., Waysman v. State Bar (1986)41 Cal. 3d 452, 459, 224 Cal. Rptr. 101, 714, 1239] . It may also be required when an attorney's misconduct resulted in financial losses to nonclients, regardless of whether the attorney actually profited from the misconduct [see Coppock v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 665, 685, 244 Cal. Rptr. 462, 749 P.2d 1317] . For example, if an attorney negligently allows a client to use the client's trust fund to defraud third parties, the attorney may be required to pay restitution to the victims of the fund [see Coppock v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 665, 685, 244 Cal. Rptr. 462, 749 P.2d 1317] . Restitution may be imposed as a condition of probation even if the underlying subject of the restitution was previously discharged in bankruptcy and thus cannot be collected as a debt [see Brookman v. State Bar (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1004, 1009, 251 Cal. Rptr. 495, 760 P.2d 1023] .

The State Bar Court has the power, for good cause, to approve stipulations between the disciplined attorney and the Chief Trial Counsel for modification of the terms of the attorney's probation and to make corrections and minor modifications to the terms of the attorney's disciplinary probation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(c); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 551].

[c] Monitoring of Probation

A probation monitor referee is responsible for monitoring the conditions of probation received by order of the Supreme Court. The probation monitor referee reviews the probation conditions with the member, and sets up a manner and schedule of compliance and reports to the monitor [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2702]. The State Bar Court may impose as a condition of probation that the probationer submit quarterly reports [In the Matter of Sawyer (Review Dept. 1997) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 765, 773 ; In the Matter of Weiner (Review Dept. 1997) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 759, 763-764] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Monitoring of Probation. The Probation Unit of the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel will monitor compliance of probation terms and conditions. Any questions concerning compliance should be directed to the Probation Unit of the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel in Los Angeles (213-765-1444). Insome cases, a probation monitor is assigned. A probation monitor is a volunteer from the community and completed a training session through the Probation Unit of the Office of Trials. By Regina E. Brenner.

Probation monitor referees must report to the Probation Unit, of the Office of the Chief of Trial Counsel, in Los Angeles within 45 days of receipt of the order regarding the manner and schedule of compliance, and thereafter they must make quarterly progress reports. The referee must determine from time to time, after assessment of the relevant facts, the extent and degree of compliance with the probation conditions and whether that compliance furthers the objective of protection of the public and rehabilitation of the member [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 2702(a)-(c)].

After assessing the relevant facts and determining that the member has failed to comply with the conditions of probation, the probation monitor referee may report the failure to the Probation Unit which may commence a probation revocation proceeding [see § 71.94]. The referee may also recommend that the probationary period be shortened or terminated for good cause [see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2702(d)-(e)].

[d] Modification or Early Termination of Probation

A party may move for early termination of probation six months or more after the effective date of the order imposing probation. A motion for modification of probation may be made at any time. Either type of motion must state facts showing that the request is consistent with the protection of the public, the respondent's successful rehabilitation (including the degree of compliance with the conditions of probation), and the maintenance of the integrity of the legal profession [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 550(a)].

Any reponse to the motion must be filed within 30 days after service. Either party may file a request for a hearing [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 550(d)]. The hearing must be set on an expedited basis [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 550(f)].

In considering the motion, the State Bar Court must balance the interests of the respondent and the public and determine whether modification or termination of probation serves the objectives of probation [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 550(a)]. The burden of proof on a motion for modification or early termination of probation is by clear and convincing evidence [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 552(a)]. The Court must issue a written order on the motion, which is reviewable by a petition for interlocutory review [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 300, 553; see § 71.121[4]].

The parties may also stipulate to a modification or to early termination of probation [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 551].

[4] Suspension From the Practice of Law

[a] Suspension for Acts of Misconduct

[i] Types of Suspension

The State Bar may recommend to the Supreme Court the suspension from practice of a member for acts of misconduct [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6077, 6078]. There are three types of suspension from the practice of law for acts of misconduct:

- Stayed suspension for a period of one to five years with probationary conditions attached [Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.4(c)(i); see § 71.144[13]].

- Actual suspension from practice for a period of not less than 30 days and up to a maximum of three years for a willful breach of the California Rules of Professional Conduct or for longer periods for any of the other causes for suspension set forth in the State Bar Act or other laws [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6077; Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.4(c)(ii); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6078 (containing no limitation on length of suspension for causes other than violation of Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct); see also Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6100-6106.7 (causes for suspension or disbarment)].

- Stayed suspension that includes an actual suspension as a condition thereof [Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.4(c)(iii)].

[ii] Nature and Effects of Suspension

Only the California Supreme Court may order that a member be suspended [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6077, 6078, 6100; In re Hallinan (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 243, 253-254, 272 P.2d 768] . The State Bar only has the power to recommend to the Supreme Court that a member be suspended [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6077, 6078]. If no review is sought, the Supreme Court may adopt the State Bar Court's recommendation of suspension as its own order, without review of the recommendation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.18(b)]. Furthermore, the Court may decline to review a decision of the State Bar Court recommending suspension from practice if it determines that none of the five grounds for Supreme Court review apply [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.16(a)]. In that case, denial of review constitutes a final judicial determination on the merits, and the recommendation of the State Bar Court is filed as an order of the Supreme Court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.16(b)].

An attorney who is actually suspended is legally disqualified from practicing law in California or from representing himself or herself as being entitled to practice law during the period of the actual suspension [Bus. & Prof. Code§ 6117; Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, 1.2(h); Benninghoff v. Superior Court (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 61, 67-68, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 759 ("defrocked" attorney practicing law held to different standard then layperson practicing law)]. An attorney who advertises himself or herself as practicing or as entitled to practice law, or who practices law, after he or she has been suspended from membership in the State Bar is guilty of a crime punishable by imprisonment in the state prison or county jail [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6125, 6126(b); see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 6133 (suspended attorney's law firm has duty to prohibit attorney from practicing law)].

[iii] Length and Terms of Suspension

The actual length of suspension will vary depending on the case. Actual suspension must be for a period of at least 30 days [see Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.4(c)(ii)]. Suspension for violation of the Rules of Professional Conduct cannot exceed three years [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6077]. Ordinarily, actual suspensions imposed for two or more years require satisfactory proof to the State Bar Court of the member's rehabilitation, present fitness to practice, and present learning and ability in the general law before the member is relieved of the actual suspension [Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.4(c)(ii); see also Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 630-641 (procedure for termination of suspension)].

In addition, under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20, the Supreme Court may include an order that the suspended member send notices of the fact of his or her suspension to clients, opposing counsel, adverse parties, and courts in which his or her matters are pending, and return any papers or property to the client and refund any unearned advance fees [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20(a)]. Failure to comply with this rule within the specific time periods will trigger a proceeding under Rule 9.20 to determine if the member willfully failed to comply with the provisions of the rule [see Durbin v.

For discussion of these proceedings, see § 71.99.

Other conditions or duties may be added to a recommendation of suspension [Cal. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.5]. For a list of conditions that may be added, see § 71.34[1][d].

Any order suspending a State Bar member must include a direction by the Supreme Court that the member pay costs [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.10(a); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 280]. These costs are added to, and become part of, the membership fee of the member for the next calendar year [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6140.7]. Costs unpaid by a member who is suspended must be paid as a condition of reinstatement of membership [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6140.7].

Any order of the Supreme Court imposing suspension may include an order that the member pay a monetary sanction not to exceed $5,000 for each violation, subject to a total limit of $50,000 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.13(a); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.13(c) (State Bar authorized to adopt implementing rules), Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.13(d) (authority to impose sanction in addition to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.10)]. Any monetary sanctions collected are deposited into the Client Security Fund [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.13(b)]. These monetary sanctions may not be collected, however, to the extent that the collection would impair the collection of criminal penalties or civil judgments arising out of transactions connected with the attorney's discipline [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.13(e) (includes provisions for reimbursement from Client Security Fund)].

[b] Determination of Actual Suspension in Default Proceedings; Interlocutory Review

If a member's default has been entered and the State Bar Court recommends that the member be placed on actual suspension, the recommendation will include a specific period of actual suspension and a statement that the member's actual suspension will continue unless the Court grants a motion to terminate the actual suspension at the conclusion of the specific period or at a later date ordered by the Court [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 205(a)]. However, if the Supreme Court has imposed a period of actual suspension that is two years or more, or if the Supreme Court has ordered the member placed on actual suspension for a specific period of time and the member has not yet shown his or her rehabilitation to the satisfaction of the State Bar Court, the member must comply with the provisions of Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 630-641 in addition to Rule 205 [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 205(b)].

After the State Bar Court files its decision recommending actual suspension, the member may make a written motion to the Court to terminate the actual suspension at the conclusion of any specified period of actual suspension imposed by the Supreme Court, or upon the effective date of the State Bar Court's ruling on the motion, whichever is later [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 205(c)]. The motion must be accompanied by a written declaration providing stipulated information and assurances under penalty of perjury [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 205(c)]. The Chief Trial Counsel has 15 days to file a response to the motion [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 205(d)], and the State Bar Court, in its discretion, may hold a hearing on the motion [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 205(e)]. There is a presumption in favor of granting the motion if the member has met all requirements and has agreed to comply with any probation conditions imposed by the State Bar Court or agreed upon by the parties [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 205(f)].

If the State Bar Court denies the motion, it must its reasons clearly [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 205(f)]. If the State Bar Court grants the motion, it may place the member on probation for a specified period of time and may impose conditions of probation [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 205(f)]. The State Bar Court's order may be reviewed for abuse of discretion or error of law [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 206].

[c] Suspension for Nonpayment of Fees, Penalties, or Costs

Any member, active or inactive, who fails to pay fees, penalties, or costs after they become due will be suspended from the State Bar. Two months' written notice of delinquency in payment must be given to the member before he or she may be suspended. The member can be reinstated on payment of accrued fees or costs and penalties as may be imposed by the Board of Governors, not exceeding double the amount of delinquent dues, penalties, or costs [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6143].

[5] Disbarment

[a] Nature and Effects

Disbarment is the most severe sanction in the disciplinary process [Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Stds. 1.2(c), 1.4(d)]. As with suspension, the California Supreme Court has the sole power to disbar attorneys [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6077, 6078, 6100]. The State Bar may only recommend disbarment [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6077, 6078]. If no review is sought, the Supreme Court may adopt the State Bar Court's recommendation of disbarment as its own order, without review of the recommendation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.18(b)]. Furthermore, even if review is requested by one of the parties, the Court may decline to review a decision of the State Bar Court recommending disbarment if it determines that none of the five grounds for Supreme Court review apply [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.16(b)]. In that case, denial of review constitutes a final judicial determination on the merits, and the recommendation of the State Bar Court is filed as an order of the Supreme Court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.16(b)]. A federal court is not bound by the state Supreme Court's disbarment of an attorney. "The federal court will extend great deference to the state court's determination unless the federal court's independent review reveals one of the following conditions: (1) a lack of due process; (2) insufficient proof of attorney misconduct; or (3) some other grave reason exists that should prevent the court from recognizing the state court's determination" [Gadda v. Ashcroft (2004) 363 F.3d 861, 868] . In a federal context, the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit stated that suspension or disbarment was not appropriate for conduct that "was aberrant to an attorney's practice and/or did not affect the court's ability to function in the public interest" [Gadda v. Ashcroft (2004) 363 F.3d 861, 868] .

When a member is disbarred, he or she is precluded from practicing law (unless later reinstated by the Supreme Court), his or her membership in the State Bar is terminated, and his or her name is stricken from the roll of attorneys [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6117; Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.2(c)]. Except as provided in the order of disbarment, no petition for reinstatement may be filed within five years after the effective date of the petitioner's disbarment or interim suspension following criminal conviction, or the filing date of the petitioner's resignation with charges pending, whichever occurred earliest [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 662(b)].

A disbarred attorney who thereafter practices law, or who advertises or holds himself or herself out as practicing or entitled to practice law, is guilty of a crime punishable by imprisonment in the state prison or county jail [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6125, 6126(b); see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 6133 (disbarred attorney's law firm has duty to prohibit attorney from practicing law); Benninghoff v. Superior Court (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 61, 67-68, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 759 ("defrocked" attorney practicing law held to different standard then layperson practicing law)].

For further discussion of reinstatement proceedings, see § 71.100.

[b] Involuntary Inactive Enrollment

Even though the respondent may appeal a decision of the Hearing Department Judge of the State Bar Court recommending disbarment to the Review Department of the State Bar Court, the decision must include an order that the respondent be involuntarily enrolled inactive [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(c)(4)]. The order of inactive enrollment is effective on personal service or three days after service by mail, whichever is earlier [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 220(c)].

[c] Compliance With Rule 9.20 Orders

Disbarment orders usually are accompanied by orders to comply with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20 [see, e.g., Lebbos v. State Bar (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 37, 49-50, 278 Cal. Rptr. 845, 806 P.2d 317 ; In re Scott (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 968, 980, 277 Cal. Rptr. 201, 802 P.2d 985] . A 955 proceeding is commenced by filing a notice of disciplinary charges by the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel [see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 580 et seq.].

Under Rule 9.20, the Supreme Court may include in an order disbarring an attorney directions that the attorney give notice of the disbarment to all of his or her clients, opposing counsel, adverse parties, and courts in which his or her matters are pending, and that the attorney return any papers or property to the clients and refund any unearned advance fees [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20(a)]. Failure to comply with this rule within the specified time periods can trigger a proceeding under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20, to determine if the member willfully failed to comply with the provisions of the rule [Durbin v. State Bar (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 461, 466-469, 152 Cal. Rptr. 749, 590 P.2d 876] .

In addition, if a disbarred member has any intention of ever seeking reinstatement, he or she should comply with the terms of Rule 9.20 within the specified time limits to avoid denial of reinstatement, because disobeying a court order is grounds for suspension or disbarment [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6103]. For discussion of reinstatement proceedings generally, see § 71.100. Willful failure by a disbarred member to follow an order of the Supreme Court to comply with Rule 9.20 constitutes a crime punishable by imprisonment in the state prison or a county jail [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6126(c)].

[d] Payment of Costs and Sanctions

In an order disbarring a State Bar member, the Supreme Court must include a direction that the member pay costs [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.10(a); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 280]. An order pursuant to this subdivision is enforceable both as provided in Bus. & Prof. Code § 6140.7 and as a money judgment [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.10(a)]. Additionally, costs imposed pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.10 are penalties, payable to and for the benefit of the State Bar of California to promote rehabilitation and to protect the public [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.10(e)]. Costs unpaid by a disbarred member must be paid as a condition of reinstatement of membership [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6140.7]. For discussion of the costs assessable against the member, see § 71.71.

An order of the Supreme Court imposing disbarment may include an order that the member pay a specified monetary sanction for each violation [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.13(a), as originally enacted by Stats. 1992, ch. 1270]. For discussion, see § 71.34[4].

§ 71.51 State Bar's Authority to Investigate Charges

The State Bar has the authority to investigate all matters affecting or relating to the discipline of members of the State Bar [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6044(c)]. The purpose of a State Bar investigation is to determine whether there is reasonable cause to believe that a member should be required to answer charges that he or she violated provisions of the State Bar Act or of the California Rules of Professional Conduct [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2401].

An investigation may be commenced by the State Bar regardless of whether a complaint has been made to the State Bar [TRP Rule 503]. When a complaint is made, regardless of its form or source, it is deemed a request for review, investigation, or other appropriate action by the State Bar [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2402].

PRACTICE TIP:

Respond Promptly to Complaints. It is in the attorney's best interest to promptly respond to any State Bar communication concerning a complaint. If the attorney is unable to personally respond, the attorney should promptly retain defense counsel. By Regina E. Brenner.

§ 71.52 Investigative Procedure

[1] Presentation of Complaints

Complaints concerning the conduct of a member of the State Bar may bepresented to the State Bar at its Los Angeles or San Francisco offices. Complaints or requests may be written or oral, but the complainant or applicant may be required to present appropriate information on a form or forms supplied by the State Bar [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2404]. The State Bar must acknowledge receipt of a written complaint within two weeks of receipt [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6093.5].

If the State Bar receives a complaint that it believes to be false and malicious, it may notify appropriate prosecutorial authorities and recommend prosecution of the complainant [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6043.5(b)]. Filing a State Bar complaint with knowledge that the complaint is false and malicious is a misdemeanor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6043.5(a)].

[2] Period of Limitation

The period of limitation for initiating a disciplinary proceeding based solely on a complainant's allegation of a violation of the State Bar Act or the Rules of Professional Conduct is five years from the date of the alleged violation [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 51(a)]. The violation is deemed to occur when every element has occurred, or, in the case of a continuing offense, when the entire course of conduct has terminated [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 51(b)].

The period of limitation does not bar the State Bar from initiating a disciplinary proceeding based on information received from a source independent of a time-barred complaint [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 51(e)]. The period also does not apply to reinstatement proceedings [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 51(g); see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 660 et seq.].

The following conditions toll the five-year limitation period [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 51(c)]:

- The member continues to represent the complainant, a member of the complainant's family, or the complainant's business or employer;

- The complainant is under the age of majority, insane, or physically or mentally incapacitated;

- Civil, criminal, or administrative investigations are pending with any governmental agency, court, or tribunal with respect to substantially the same acts as the alleged violations;

- The member conceals facts constituting the violation;

- The member fails to cooperate with the investigation of the alleged violations;

- The member makes false or misleading statements to the State Bar concerning the alleged violations;

- The disciplinary investigation or proceeding is abated consistent with the Rules of Procedure of the State Bar;

- The member is participating in an ADR Resolution Mediation Discipline program or other authorized diversion program;

- The investigation is terminated by admonition;

- The complaint or investigation is pending before the Audit and Review Unit; or

- The member is suspended from the practice of law and must show rehabilitation before being reinstated to active practice of law when the allegations are used solely to rebut a member's claims of rehabilitation.

The member and State Bar may agree in writing to waive or extend the limitations set forth in State Bar Rules of Procedure, Rule 51 [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 51(f)].

[3] Effect of Complainant's Settlement With Member or Unwillingness to Proceed

The Office of the Chief Trial Counsel may, in its discretion, close an inquiry, investigation or complaint if the complainant fails to cooperate [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2407]. However, in accordance with the factors enumerated in State Bar Rules of Procedure, Rule 2408, the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel may still choose to proceed, despite the complainant's failure to cooperate, request for withdrawal, or settlement or compromise of the claim.

[4] Decision to Terminate Matter at Investigative Stage or to Proceed

The Office of the Chief Trial Counsel may, in its discretion, close an inquiry, complaint or investigation. The inquiry, complaint or investigation may also be closed with the issuance of a warning letter or other appropriate manner not constituting discipline [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2601; see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 6093.5 (complainant's right to information concerning status of complaint)].

If the matter is not terminated by the Office of Chief Trial Counsel pursuant to State Bar Rules of Procedure, Rule 2601, the member whose conduct is being investigated, or his or her counsel, must have an opportunity to deny or explain the acts, omissions, or alleged physical or mental condition that is the subject of the investigation [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 2409, 2604].

If a determination is made that reasonable cause to proceed exists, the Office of Chief Trial Counsel issues a notice of disciplinary charges to the member [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2604]. For further discussion of notices of disciplinary charges, see § 71.61[1].

With certain exceptions, the decision of the Office of Chief Trial Counsel to terminate a matter is a bar to further proceedings against the member based on the same alleged facts [TRP Rule 511]. However, the decision will not bar further proceedings in any of the following situations [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2603]:

- There is new or additional evidence.
- On a showing of good cause, at the discretion of the Office of Chief Trial Counsel.

§ 71.53 Privileged Nature of Communications in Disciplinary Proceedings

Communications made in the course of disciplinary proceedings are generally privileged, and a person may not bring a lawsuit predicated on them [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6094]. Bus. & Prof. Code § 6094 designates the following types of communications as privileged:

- Communications to the agency charged with discipline of attorneys (the State Bar) relating to lawyer misconduct or disability or competence.

- Communications related to an investigation or proceeding.

- Testimony given in a disciplinary proceeding.

The privilege does not limit or alter the privileges accorded communications to the State Bar or testimony given in investigations or proceedings conducted by it, or the immunities accorded complainants, informants, witnesses, and the State Bar and its officers and employees, as those privileges existed prior to the enactment of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6094 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6094(a)].

§ 71.54 State Bar Access to Nonpublic Court Records

In a disciplinary proceeding, the State Bar has access, on an ex parte basis, to all nonpublic court records relevant to the competence or performance of its members, provided that the nonpublic records remain confidential [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6090.6]. This access for investigation and enforcement purposes, can only be limited by a court order authorized by Penal Code §§ 851.6, 851.7, 851.8, or 851.85. The State Bar may disclose publicly the nature and content of nonpublic court records, including sealed records other than those authorized by these Penal Code sections, after it provides notice of its intention to disclose all or a part of the records to the parties in the underlying action. A party to the underlying action who would be adversely affected by the disclosure may serve notice on the State Bar within 10 days of receipt of the notice of intention to disclose the records that it opposes the disclosure and will seek a hearing in the court of competent jurisdiction on an expedited basis [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6090.6].

For general discussion of the Penal Code provisions governing sealed criminal records, see California Criminal Defense Practice, Ch. 103 Expungement of Criminal Records (Matthew Bender).

§ 71.55 Confidentiality of State Bar Proceedings

[1] Investigations

As a general rule, all disciplinary investigations are confidential until the filing of a notice of disciplinary charges, the pleading that initiates a disciplinary proceeding [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.1; Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 2301-2302]. Thus, unless there is a waiver of confidentiality (see § 71.55[2]), there can be no disclosures to the general public concerning the status of an investigation, nor can there be a release to the general public of investigation files or records. At any time, however, the complainant or the complainant's designee may request and obtain information from the State Bar concerning the status of the complaint [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2403].

Notwithstanding the confidentiality of investigations, the State Bar must disclose to any member of the public so inquiring, any information reasonably available to it pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(o) (judgments and other matters attorney is under duty to report to State Bar) or Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6086.7, 6086.8, and 6101 (court orders and judgments concerning attorneys reported to State Bar), concerning a member of the State Bar that is otherwise a matter of public record, including civil or criminal filings and dispositions [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.1(c)].

[2] Waiver of Confidentiality Regarding Investigations

Confidentiality concerning State Bar investigations may be waived by the member whose conduct is being investigated [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.1(b)(1); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2302(b), (c)].

When warranted for the protection of the public, the Chief Trial Counsel or President of the State Bar may waive confidentiality. After private notice to the member, the Chief Trial Counsel or President of the State Bar may issue, if appropriate, one or more public announcements or make information public confirming the fact of an investigation or proceeding, clarifying the procedural aspects and current status, and defending the right of the member to a fair hearing. The Chief Trial Counsel or President of the State Bar may designate a third party to act on his or her behalf in this regard. A member's conduct into which the State Bar is inquiring, but which is not the subject of a formal investigation, must not be disclosed to the public [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.1(b)(2); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2302(d)].

The Chief Trial Counsel or President of the State Bar or his or her designee also may waive confidentiality pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6044.5 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.1(b)(3); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2302(e); see also § 71.55[4]].

[3] Hearings

State Bar disciplinary hearings generally are public, except as otherwise provided by law, the State Bar Rules of Procedure, or order of the State Bar Court [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 20]. Nevertheless, proceedings concerning inactive enrollment under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(b) (inactive enrollment based on attorney's mental infirmity, illness, or substance abuse) and moral character proceedings are confidential, unless the applicant or member waives the confidentiality of these proceedings [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 21].

All aspects of the deliberations of State Bar Court judges are confidential, however [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 24].

[4] Exchange of Information With Other Agencies

The State Bar must disclose, in confidence, information to the appropriate agency responsible for criminal or disciplinary enforcement, or exchange such information with that agency, if the investigation or formal proceeding concerns any of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6044.5; see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2302(e)]:

- Alleged misconduct that may subject the member to criminal prosecution for a felony.
- Alleged misconduct that may involve a nonfelony crime committed during the course of the practice of law.
- Alleged misconduct resulting in harm to the member's client.
- Alleged misconduct that may subject the member to disciplinary charges in another jurisdiction.

§ 71.56 Power to Take Evidence, Administer Oaths, Issue Subpoenas, and Compel Witnesses' Attendance and Document Production

[1] In General

In conducting investigations and on the trial and hearing of all matters, the Board of Governors of the State Bar and any committees having jurisdiction, that is, the State Bar Court, have the authority to [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6049(a)(1)-(3)]:

- Take and hear evidence pertaining to the proceeding;
- Administer oaths and affirmations; and
- Compel, by subpoena the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, papers, and documents pertaining to the proceeding.

In addition, in the conduct of investigations, the Chief Trial Counsel or his or her designee may compel, by subpoena, the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, papers, and documents pertaining to the investigation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6049(b)].

An attorney against whom disciplinary charges have been filed also has the right to the issuance of subpoenas for attendance of witnesses to appear and testify or to produce books and papers, as provided in the State Bar Act [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6049(c), 6085]. For discussion of the rights of an accused attorney generally, see § 71.57.

[2] Contempt Proceedings for Violation of Subpoena

Whenever a witness subpoenaed to appear and give testimony, or to produce books, papers, or documents, refuses to appear, testify, answer any pertinent or proper questions, or produce the requested books, papers, or documents, the party by whom or on whose behalf the subpoena was issued may file a motion requesting the State Bar Court to report to the superior court that the witness is in contempt of the subpoena, as provided in Bus. & Prof. Code § 6051 [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 187(a); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6050].

When a motion is filed, if it appears that the subpoena was properly issued and served and that there is no valid legal basis for the witness's noncompliance, the State Bar Court must report the witness's contempt to the superior court [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 187(b)]. On the Court's issuance of a report of contempt, the party by whom or on whose behalf the subpoena was issued may bring a proceeding in the appropriate superior court pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6051. Nothing in the report or in any finding or conclusion of the State Bar Court in connection with the alleged contempt is binding on the superior court [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 187(c)]. A party may report a contempt to the appropriate superior court without first making a motion to the State Bar Court if the party is authorized under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6051 [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 187(a)].

When the alleged contempt has been reported to the superior court, the court proceeds in one of two ways. It may issue an attachment for the person in contempt and direct the sheriff to bring him or her before the court, or it can issue an order to show cause against the person in contempt, directing that person to show cause why he or she has not attended the hearing, testified, or produced the writings as required [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6051]. Under the first alternative, on the return of the attachment and the production of the person attached, the court has jurisdiction of the matter, and the person charged may purge himself or herself of the contempt in the same manner as a witness subpoenaed to appear and give evidence in a civil action before the court [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6051]. The same procedure is followed and the same penalties may be imposed as in a civil action [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6051]. For discussion of civil contempt proceedings, see Ch. 135, Contempt . Under the second alternative (issuance of an order to show cause), if it appears to the court that the subpoena was regularly issued and no good cause is shown for the refusal to appear or testify or to produce the writings, the court must enter an order that the person appear, testify, or produce documents [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6051]. Failure to obey the order subjects the person to contempt of court [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6051].

For discussion of discovery in the context of disciplinary proceedings, see § 71.64.

[3] Procedural Rules Applicable to All Subpoenas Other Than Subpoenas Directed to Financial Institutions

[a] In General

Any party to a State Bar Court proceeding may issue discovery and trial subpoenas as provided in Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6049(c) and 6085, and in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1985. Alternatively, any party may compel another party to testify at a deposition or at trial, with or without the production of documents, by serving a notice to appear as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1987 [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 151(a), 152(a)]. Subpoenas issued by a party are subject to the applicable provisions of the Business and Professions Code and to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985-1997, except for those provisions concerning bench warrants and concealed witnesses, and except as modified or limited by the State Bar Rules of Procedure [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 151(b), 152(b)].

Subpoena forms may be obtained from the clerk of the State Bar Court. On request, the clerk will issue subpoenas on behalf of parties appearing in propria persona who are not entitled to practice law in California [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 158].

The party by whom or on whose behalf a subpoena is issued must bear the cost of serving the subpoena, obtaining proof of service, and paying any applicable witness fees or expenses. These costs may be included in a subsequent award of costs as provided by law [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 151(c), 152(c)].

A subpoena duces tecum must describe with particularity the records sought by the subpoena [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 151(d), 152(d)]. The party serving a subpoena duces tecum may request the subpoenaed party to provide an additional unsealed copy of the requested records, provided that the following are satisfied [Cal. State B. Rules Proc.,

Rules 151(f), 152(f)]:

- Notice of the request is given to all other parties;

- If a timely motion to quash the subpoena is filed, the subpoenaing party may not inspect, copy, or use the records except as permitted by court order; and

- Within five days after receiving the additional unsealed copy or, if a motion to quash is filed, after the service of an order on a motion to quash permitting examination of the records, the party that served the subpoena must provide all other parties with accurate copies of the records, or with a reasonable opportunity to inspect and copy them.

[b] Service

A copy of the subpoena must be served on the person or entity subpoenaed as provided in the Code of Civil Procedure. A copy of a subpoena duces tecum must also be served on all other parties to the proceeding and on any consumer involved in the proceeding. [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 155(b)].

Notwithstanding the service requirements of State Bar Rules of Procedure, Rule 155, any party issuing a subpoena to obtain public records from a court is not required to serve the subpoena on the target of the investigation or on the other parties to the State Bar Court proceeding [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 157].

[c] Motions to Quash

A subpoenaed person or entity may file a motion to quash the subpoena with the State Bar Court in accordance with the Code of Civil Procedure [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 155(c)].

The motion may be made on any grounds on which a motion to quash a subpoena in a civil action may be made. The facts on which the motion is based must be established by one or more declarations based on personal knowledge, and filed and served with the motion [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 155(c)].

If the motion seeks a stay of compliance with the subpoena pending a ruling on the motion, the Court may grant a stay, on a showing of good cause, without waiting for a response to the motion to be filed [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 156(c)].

The Court may hold a hearing on the motion. If the Court holds a hearing, it must set it on an expedited basis [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 156(b)(2)]. The order on the motion must include findings concerning any factual issues presented by the motion, and must state the reasons for the order [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 156(b)(3)]. On written notice of the order, any party may seek review by filing a petition for interlocutory review. The order will be reversed only if the factual findings are not supported by substantial evidence, or for an error of law or an abuse of discretion [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 156(d), 300].

For a form for a notice of motion to quash a subpoena, together with a supporting declaration, see § 71.160.

[4] Subpoenas Pertaining to Financial or Trust Fund Financial Records

[a] In General

The rules pertaining to the issuance of subpoenas directed to financial institutions for obtaining financial records, discussed below, are distinct from the rules pertaining to subpoenas generally in State Bar proceedings.

Special provisions apply to subpoenas for trust fund financial records issued by the State Bar before commencement of a State Bar Court proceeding [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2503; see also In the Matter of Member W (1996) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 535 (constitutionality of provisions upheld)]. For discussion of the general rules pertaining tosubpoenas other than those directed to financial institutions for financial records, see § 71.56[3].

[b] Subpoenas Directed to Financial Institutions to Obtain Trust Fund Financial Records

[i] Issuance of Subpoena

Each member of the State Bar is deemed by operation of law to have authorized irrevocably the disclosure to the State Bar and Supreme Court of all financial records held by financial institutions pertaining to accounts the member must maintain in accordance with the California Rules of Professional Conduct [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6069(a); see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-100 (preserving identity of client funds and property)]. In other words, membership in the State Bar automatically authorizes disclosure of the member's trust account records to the State Bar. The records cannot be disclosed to the State Bar, however, without a subpoena issued pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6049 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6069(a)]. Additionally, the State Bar must comply with specific notice provisions [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6069(b); see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 153 (discussed in § 71.56[4][b][ii])].

[ii] Notice to Member

In addition to service of the subpoena on the financial institution pursuant to the Code of Civil Procedure, after initiation of State Bar Court proceedings, a copy of the subpoena must be served on the member (or members) whose trust account financial records are sought by the subpoena. Service must be made in the manner provided for the service of subsequent pleadings [see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 61]. The subpoena must designate the name, business address, and business telephone number of the State Bar investigator, deputy trial counsel, or other authorized agent who is requesting the records [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 153(b)].

The Office of the Chief Trial Counsel must notify the member in writing within 30 days after receiving trust account financial records from a financial institution in response to a subpoena. The notice must be mailed to the member's address furnished pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1 or to his or her counsel, and must include [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2503(c)]:

- A description with particularity of the financial records received; and

- Notice of the member's right to file a written request as to the reasons for the State Bar's examination of the member's trust account financial records (within 15 days of the mailing of this notice).

[iii] Member's Request of Statement of Reasons for Request

Upon timely and written request, the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel must provide the member with a statement of the reasons for the State Bar's examination of the member's trust fund financial records [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2503(d)].

[iv] Motions to Quash

In accordance with the Code of Civil Procedure, any person or entity served with the subpoena or a copy of the subpoena may file a motion with the State Bar Court to quash the subpoena. The motion must be served by overnight mail on all parties to the proceeding [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 153(c)].

The sole ground on which the motion may be made is that the records sought by the subpoena do not pertain to trust accounts the member must maintain in accordance with the Rules of Professional Conduct [Cal. State B. Rules Proc.,

Rule 153(d)]. The facts on which the motion is based must be established by one or more declarations based on personal knowledge, and must be filed and served with the motion [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 153(e)].

[c] Subpoenas Directed to Financial Institutions to Obtain Non-Trust-Fund Financial Records or Records of Nonmember

Occasionally, during the course of a State Bar investigation, the State Bar may find it necessary to review a member's non-trust-account financial records or the bank records of a nonmember, such as those of a client. A copy of a subpoena seeking to obtain these records from a financial institution must be served on the customer whose financial records are sought as provided in Bus. & Prof. Code § 6069(b), and on the subpoenaed financial entity pursuant to the Code of Civil Procedure. A copy of the subpoena must also be served on all other parties to the proceeding [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 154(a), (b)].

In accordance with the Code of Civil Procedure, any person or entity served with a subpoena may file a motion with the State Bar Court to quash the subpoena. The motion may be granted based on the grounds applicable in civil actions under California law. The motion must be supported by one or more declarations based on personal knowledge, filed and served with the motion [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 154(c)].

[5] Witness Immunity

The agency charged with discipline of attorneys has authority to seek immunity for a witness in a disciplinary agency proceeding. To obtain immunity, the agency must apply to the superior court, giving notice to the appropriate prosecuting authority [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6094(b)].

[6] Discovery of Attorney Work Product

The State Bar may discover the work product of an attorney against whom disciplinary charges are pending if it is relevant to issues of breach of duty by the lawyer [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018(e) (Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.070 effective July 1, 2005)]. Discovery is subject to applicable client approval and to a protective order, when requested and for good cause, to ensure the confidentiality of work product except for its use by the State Bar [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018(e) (Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.070 effective July 1, 2005)]. Whenever a client has initiated a complaint against an attorney, the requisite client approval is deemed to have been granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018(e) (Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.070 effective July 1, 2005)].

For discussion of protection against disclosure of work product generally, see Ch. 191, Discovery: Privileges and Other Discovery Limitations .

§ 71.57 Rights of Accused Attorney

[1] In General

Although State Bar disciplinary proceedings are administrative in nature, they have been called "quasi-criminal" adversary proceedings [In re Ruffalo (1968) 390 U.S. 544, 551, 88 S. Ct. 1222, 20 L. Ed. 2d 117 ; Giddens v. State Bar (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 730, 734, 170 Cal. Rptr. 812, 621 P.2d 851] . The purpose of the proceedings is not to punish an erring attorney but rather to reform the offender or to remove him or her from practice [Giddens v. State Bar (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 730, 734, 170 Cal. Rptr. 812, 621 P.2d 851] . The disciplinary procedures of the State Bar Act were enacted to protect the public, the courts, and the legal profession from unsuitable legal practitioners [Giddens v. State Bar (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 730, 734, 170 Cal. Rptr. 812, 621 P.2d 851 ; In re Higbie (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 562, 570, 99 Cal. Rptr. 865, 493 P.2d 97 ; see also Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.3 (purposes of State Bar disciplinary proceedings)]. Disciplinary proceedings cannot be compared to criminal proceedings, and criminal procedural safeguards do not apply [Bambic v. State Bar (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 314, 320, 219 Cal. Rptr. 489, 707 P.2d 862 ; see Coppock v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 665, 676, 244 Cal. Rptr. 462, 749 P.2d 1317] . Nevertheless, a person's right to practice his or her profession is sufficiently precious to surround it with a "panoply of legal protection" [Yakov v. Board of Medical Examiners (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 67 ; Giddens v. State Bar (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 730, 735, 170 Cal. Rptr. 812, 621 P.2d 851] .

Certain rights and protections of an accused attorney are statutorily mandated by Bus. & Prof. Code § 6085, which states that an attorney complained against must be given reasonable notice and have a reasonable opportunity and right to the following:

- To defend against the charge by the introduction of evidence.

- To receive all exculpatory evidence from the State Bar after initiation of a disciplinary proceeding in the State Bar Court, and thereafter when the evidence is discovered and available. The State Bar is not, however, required to disclose mitigating evidence.

- To be represented by counsel.

- To examine and cross examine witnesses.

- To exercise any right guaranteed by the California constitution or the United States constitution, including the right against self-incrimination.

The accused attorney has the right to the issuance of subpoenas to compel witnesses to appear and testify or to produce books, papers, and documents pertaining to the disciplinary proceeding [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6049(c), 6085]. For discussion of the issuance of subpoenas for witnesses and documents generally, see § 71.56.

[2] Right to Be Present at Hearing

To ensure a fair hearing, the accused attorney must have the right to be present at the disciplinary hearing [Giddens v. State Bar (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 730, 735, 170 Cal. Rptr. 812, 621 P.2d 851] . Thus, the State Bar's refusal to grant a continuance of the trial de novo in a disbarment proceeding violated the statutory rights of an attorney who was in prison at the time of the proceeding. Giving the attorney permission to file affidavits after the oral testimony had been given was not the equivalent of giving the attorney the opportunity to defend himself, because he was denied the right to present witnesses on his own behalf, to cross examine witnesses, to present evidence, and to testify and manifest his own credibility and demeanor [Giddens v. State Bar (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 730, 735-736, 170 Cal. Rptr. 812, 621 P.2d 851] .

If an attorney is voluntarily absent from the hearing, however, the hearing may proceed despite the attorney's absence, and the attorney's failure to participate is not grounds for a rehearing to present additional evidence [Morales v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1037, 1047, 245 Cal. Rptr. 398, 751 P.2d 457 ; Bambic v. State Bar (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 314, 320, 219 Cal. Rptr. 489, 707 P.2d 862] .

[3] Appointment of Counsel

An accused attorney is entitled to be represented by counsel in the disciplinary proceeding [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6085; see § 71.57[1]]. Nevertheless, there appears to be no constitutional right to appointed counsel at public expense analogous to the right to appointed counsel in criminal proceedings [see In re Crooks (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1090, 1096, 275 Cal. Rptr. 420, 800 P.2d 898 ; Walker v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 1107, 1116, 264 Cal. Rptr. 825, 783 P.2d 184] . There are no published rules regarding the appointment of counsel in a State Bar proceeding, and the procedure for appointment is informal [Dixon v. State Bar (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 335, 342, 216 Cal. Rptr. 432, 702 P.2d 590] .

In one case, the petitioner's unnecessary delay in pursuing replacement counsel when his attorney withdrew from representing him justified the State Bar's refusal to appoint an attorney to represent petitioner before the Review Department. Additionally, the petitioner had not challenged the State Bar's statement that he was not entitled to appointment of counsel, and, on that ground, the California Supreme Court upheld the Review Department's action [Dixon v. State Bar (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 335, 342-343, 216 Cal. Rptr. 432, 702 P.2d 590] .

In another case, the failure of the State Bar to appoint counsel for an attorney who allegedly suffered from mental illness, did not deny the attorney due process when circumstances of the case provided no substantial indication that the attorney's alleged mental illness was so severe that he was unable to obtain legal representation and when the attorney's actions demonstrated his ability to take intelligent and purposeful action and thus to assist in his own defense [Slaten v. State Bar (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 48, 56-58, 249 Cal. Rptr. 289, 757 P.2d 1] .

Denial of a continuance to enable an attorney to obtain retained counsel does not constitute a denial of due process if an associate of the attorney's original counsel is available to represent the attorney at the hearing [Frazer v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 564, 567-568, 238 Cal. Rptr. 54, 737 P.2d 1338] .

[4] Protections Not Applicable

Although disciplinary proceedings are considered to be "quasi-criminal" (see § 71.57[1]), they are not, strictly speaking, criminal proceedings, and certain protections given to criminal defendants are thus not applicable to attorneys accused of misconduct [see Goldman v. State Bar (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 130, 140, 141 Cal. Rptr. 447, 570 P.2d 463 ; Yokozeki v. State Bar (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 436, 447, 113 Cal. Rptr. 602, 521 P.2d 858 , cert. denied, 419 U.S. 900] . For example, in a disciplinary proceeding, an unreasonable delay is neither a denial of due process of law nor a jurisdictional defect requiring dismissal absent a showing of specific prejudice [Ramirez v. State Bar (1980) 28 Cal. 3d 402, 412, 169 Cal. Rptr. 206, 619 P.2d 399 ; Caldwell v. State Bar of California, (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 488, 496, 119 Cal. Rptr. 217, 531 P.2d 785] . Duplicative charges in a disciplinary proceeding are acceptable [see Goldman v. State Bar (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 130, 140, 141 Cal. Rptr. 447, 570 P.2d 463] .

An attorney in a disciplinary proceeding does not have the complete immunity of a criminal defendant with regard to the privilege against self-incrimination and can be made to testify against himself or herself [Goldman v. State Bar (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 130, 140, 141 Cal. Rptr. 447, 570 P.2d 463 ; Black v. State Bar (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 676, 688, 103 Cal. Rptr. 288, 499 P.2d 968] . However, the attorney cannot be made to answer specific questions if the testimony would tend to be incriminating [In re Strick (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 891, 899, 196 Cal. Rptr. 509, 671 P.2d 1251 ; Black v. State Bar (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 676, 688, 103 Cal. Rptr. 288, 499 P.2d 968] . If an attorney does testify without objecting to questions on the ground of the privilege against self-incrimination, he or she waives that privilege [In re Utz (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 468, 479, 256 Cal. Rptr. 561, 769 P.2d 417 ; Black v. State Bar (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 676, 688, 103 Cal. Rptr. 288, 499 P.2d 968 ; see also Franklin v. State Bar (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 700, 708-709, 224 Cal. Rptr. 738, 715 P.2d 699 (testifying attorney has duty under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(d) not to mislead State Bar, by false statement or intentional concealment of material fact)].

The ex post facto clauses of the federal and California constitutions apply only to penal statutes, and do not apply to the Standards for Attorney Sanctions [see Morales v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1037, 1047-1048, 245 Cal. Rptr. 398, 751 P.2d 457 ; Greenbaum v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 543, 550, 237 Cal. Rptr. 168, 736 P.2d 754] .

An attorney is not entitled to benefit from an amendment of a disciplinary rule enacted after the conduct for which the attorney was charged. Thus, even if the amended version of a rule lessens the standard of culpability, the attorney's conduct may be judged under the old version of the rule [see Frazer v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 564, 569, 238 Cal. Rptr. 54, 737 P.2d 1338] .

The State Bar is not a "labor organization" under the Labor Management Reporting and Disclosure Act (29 U.S.C. § 402 et seq.), and the Act's requirements do not apply when the State Bar disciplines or expels a member [Rosenthal v. Justices of the Supreme Ct. of Cal. (9th Cir. 1990) 910 F.2d 561, 564] .

[5] Burden and Standard of Proof

Although the constitutional presumption of innocence does not apply in State Bar disciplinary proceedings [see Rosenthal v. Justices of the Supreme Ct. of Cal. (9th Cir. 1990) 910 F.2d 561, 564] , the State Bar does have the burden of proving the grounds for discipline by clear and convincing evidence [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 213; see Zitny v. State Bar(1966) 64 Cal. 2d 787, 790, 51 Cal. Rptr. 825, 415 P.2d 521 ; Golden v. State Bar (1931) 213 Cal. 237, 247, 2 P.2d 325] . If two or more equally reasonable inferences may be drawn from a proven fact, the inference leading to a conclusion of innocence rather than the one leading to a conclusion of guilt is accepted [*Zitny v. § 71.58 Abatement of Proceeding

On motion of a party, or on the State Bar Court's own motion after notice to the parties, the Court may order a proceeding before it abated in whole or in part, for such time and on such terms as it deems proper. Abatement of a proceeding stays the proceeding in the State Bar Court and tolls all time limitations in the proceeding, except that the Court, on motion and for good cause shown, may order the perpetuation of evidence [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 116(a)].

In determining the motion, the State Bar Court may consider any relevant factor, including [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 116(b)]:

- The need for disposing of the proceeding at the earliest time.

- The extent to which the issues in a related proceeding are the same or substantially the same as those before it.

- The extent to which the proceeding would probably be delayed by awaiting the trial or an appeal in a related proceeding.

- The extent to which the proceeding would probably be expedited by awaiting the disposition in a related proceeding.

- The extent to which evidence to be adduced in a related proceeding would aid in the determination of the State Bar Court proceeding.

- The extent to which evidence may be unavailable in the State Bar Court proceeding because of any delay resulting from the abatement.

- The extent to which parties, witnesses, or documents may be unavailable to participate in the State Bar Court proceeding for reasons beyond the parties' control.

- The extent to which a party or witness may be prejudiced in a related proceeding by withholding or failing to withhold further action.

- The extent to which a client security fund claim would be unnecessarily delayed.

A "related proceeding" is any civil, criminal, administrative, or State Bar Court proceeding in which a party, real party in interest, or witness is also a party or witness in the proceeding before the State Bar Court, or any civil, criminal, administrative, or State Bar Court proceeding that involves the subject matter of the proceeding before the State Bar Court [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 116(c)].

Review of a hearing judge's ruling on an abatement motion may be sought by a petition for interlocutory review [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 116(d), 300]. The standard of review of an abatement order is abuse of discretion [In the Matter of Respondent L (1993) 2 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 454, 461] .

For a form for a motion for abatement, see § 71.161.

[1] Abatement Due to Member's Mental Incapacity or Military Service

State Bar disciplinary proceedings may not be initiated or conducted against a member who has been judicially declared by a court of record to be of unsound mind or, on account of mental condition, incapable of managing his or her own affairs, until a subsequent judicial determination to the contrary is made [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 117(a)].

On motion of a party, a party's counsel, or the State Bar Court, the Court may order a pending disciplinary proceeding abated for such time and on such terms as it deems proper, because of the member's inability to assist in or conduct a defense of the proceeding due to mental illness or infirmity, or if probable cause has been found to believe that such inability exists [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 117(b)]. The appropriate standard for abatement in such a case is proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the member is incompetent to assist in a defense [In the Matter of Respondent L (1993) 2 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 454, 463] . Any proferred submission regarding the member's mental competency should address the nature of the medical examination or tests conducted, the member's symptoms, the diagnosis and cause of the condition, and any past or proposed treatment. It should also relate the member's condition to a recognized legal definition of competency [In re the Matter of Respondent L (1993) 2 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 454, 463-464] .

In addition, if a member who is the subject of a State Bar Court proceeding is on active duty in the United States armed forces, the Court must abate the proceeding if the member's military service will materially impair the member's ability to participate in the proceeding [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 118].

[2] No Abatement After Notice of Bankruptcy Served

Certain judicial or administrative proceedings against a debtor are automatically stayed when the debtor serves notice of bankruptcy [11 U.S.C. § 362(a)(1)]. Actions or proceedings by a governmental unit to enforce the governmental unit's police or regulatory powers are, however, exempt [11 U.S.C. § 362(b)(4)]. State Bar disciplinary proceedings are within the exemption, and are thus not subject to automatic stay [Cooper v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1016, 1024-1025, 239 Cal. Rptr. 709 . 741 P.2d 206] .

[3] Abated Matters

All proceedings abated by order of the State Bar Court must, on the filing of the order, be placed in abated status [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1132(a)].

[4] Requests for Information

The State Bar Court may at any time require a party to furnish information concerning an abated proceeding. The State Bar Court may also order the parties to appear at a conference concerning the abated proceeding [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1132(b)].

[5] Termination of Abatement

A party may, by motion, seek an order terminating an abatement. The State Bar Court may terminate an abatement on its own motion, after affording the parties prior notice of its intent to do so and an opportunity to respond in writing [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1132(c)(1)].

Abatement of all proceedings involving the same respondent is terminated automatically on the respondent's [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1132(c)(2)]:

- Withdrawal of a resignation with charges pending; or

- Reinstatement as an active member after prior transfer to inactive membership under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(b).

§ 71.59 Stipulations and Admissions Dispensing With Proof

[1] General Requirements

It is the duty of all parties, if practical, to endeavor to arrive at pretrial stipulations concerning some or all of the issues in the proceeding. All stipulations must be signed by each party and by each party's counsel, if any [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 130].

A stipulation is binding on the parties unless the State Bar Court, for good cause, rejects the stipulation or, on motion, relieves the parties from its binding effect [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 131, 135; see Smith v. State Bar (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 525, 535, 213 Cal. Rptr. 236, 698 P.2d 139] . Court approval is not required for stipulations as to facts, unless the respondent has pleaded nolo contendere to those facts [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 135]. The assigned judge must determine whether the stipulation is fair to the parties and adequately protects the public. The State Bar Court may [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 135(a)]:

- Order approval of the proposed stipulation;
- Order approval of the proposed stipulation with modifications accepted by the parties; or
- Reject the proposed stipulation.

[2] Stipulations as to Facts Only

Stipulations as to facts only are binding on all parties regardless of the disposition or degree of discipline recommended or imposed, and must contain a statement to that effect. The stipulation must also include a statement that the respondent admits the truth of the facts stated or pleads nolo contendere to those facts. If the member pleads nolo contendere to the stipulated facts, the stipulation must include an acknowledgment that the respondent completely understands that the plea of nolo contendere will be considered the same as an admission of the stipulated facts for purposes of determining whether the respondent is culpable of professional misconduct and that the stipulated facts will be used for that determination.

If the parties agree that relief from a stipulation as to facts is appropriate, State Bar Court approval is still required. A motion for relief from a stipulation as to facts must demonstrate that the relief is necessary to prevent a miscarriage of justice or for other extraordinary reasons. Evidence is not admissible to prove or disprove a stipulated fact [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 131].

[3] Stipulations as to Facts and Conclusions of Law

The parties to a disciplinary proceeding may stipulate to facts and conclusions of law concerning culpability, while reserving the question of disposition [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 132(a)]. A proposed stipulation as to facts and conclusions of law must set forth all of the following [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 132(b)]:

- A statement of the investigations or proceedings included.

- A statement of acts or omissions acknowledged by the respondent as cause for discipline.

- Conclusions of law, drawn from and specifically referring to the facts admitted by the respondent, regarding the respondent's culpability of violating specified statutes and/or Rules of Professional Conduct.

- A statement that respondent either (1) admits that the facts set forth in the stipulation are true and that he or she is culpable of violations of the specified statutes and/or Rules of Professional Conduct; or (2) pleads nolo contendere to those facts and violations. If the respondent pleads nolo contendere, the stipulation must include an acknowledgment that the respondent completely understands that the plea of nolo contendere will be considered the same as an admission of the stipulated facts and of his or her culpability of the statutes and/or Rules of Professional Conduct specified in the stipulation.

- An enumeration of the charges, if any, to be dismissed.

- A statement that the stipulation resolves the entire proceeding except as expressly set forth in the stipulation and except as to disposition.

- A statement that the member acknowledges the provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6086.10 and 6140.7.

- A statement as to whether or not the parties intend to be bound by the stipulated facts even if the conclusion of law are rejected and regardless of the degree of discipline recommended or imposed.

- A statement that the respondent has been advised in writing of any pending investigations or proceedings not resolved by the stipulation except for investigations, if any, by criminal law enforcement agencies, identified by investigation case number or proceeding case number, and complaining witness name(s), if any.

Stipulations as to facts and conclusions of law may include partial stipulations as to facts bearing on aggravation and mitigation. The parties may waive the right to an evidentiary hearing on aggravation and mitigation by submitting a stipulation containing a complete statement of aggravating and mitigating circumstances [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 132(c)].

[4] Stipulations as to Facts, Conclusions of Law, and Disposition

A proposed stipulation as to facts, conclusions of law, and disposition must set forth each of the following [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 133]:

- An acknowledgment that stipulations as to proposed disposition are not binding on the Supreme Court.

- A statement of the investigations or proceedings included.

- A statement of acts or omissions acknowledged by the respondent as cause or causes for discipline.

- Conclusions of law, drawn from and specifically referring to the facts admitted by the respondent, regarding the respondent's culpability of violating specified statutes and/or Rules of Professional Conduct.

- A statement that respondent either admits the facts set forth in the stipulation are true and that he or she is culpable of violations of the specified statutes and/or Rules of Professional Conduct, or pleads nolo contendere to those facts and violations. If the respondent pleads nolo contendere, the stipulation must include an acknowledgment that the respondent completely understands that the plea of nolo contendere will be considered the same as an admission of the stipulated facts and of his or her culpability of the violation of the statutes and/or Rules of Professional Conduct specified in the stipulation. If requested by the Court, the stipulation also must contain a statement by the deputy trial counsel that the factual stipulations are supported by evidence obtained in the State Bar investigation of the matter.

- An enumeration of the charges, if any, to be dismissed.

- A statement that the stipulation resolves the entire proceeding except as expressly set forth in the stipulation.

- A statement of aggravating and mitigating circumstances.

- The disposition to be recommended or imposed.

- A statement that the member acknowledges the provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6086.10 and 6140.7.

- A statement as to whether or not the parties intend to be bound by the stipulated facts contained in the stipulation even if the conclusions of law and/or stipulated disposition are rejected.

- A statement that the respondent has been advised in writing of any pending investigations or proceedings not resolved by the stipulation except for investigations, if any, related to investigations by criminal law enforcement agencies, identified by investigation case number or proceeding case number, and complaining witness name(s), if any.

[5] Stipulations as to Disposition

The parties to a disciplinary matter may stipulate as to disposition after facts establishing culpability and conclusions of law have been previously adjudicated by the State Bar Court or stipulated to by the parties [Cal. State B. Rules Proc.,

Rule 134(a)]. Stipulations as to disposition must include, or have attached to them, a stipulated statement of all factual findings and legal conclusions relied on in support of the stipulated disposition that are not contained in a written decision filed by the State Bar Court or a previously filed stipulation [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 134(b)].

Stipulations as to disposition must set forth all of the following [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 134(c)]:

- An acknowledgment that stipulations as to proposed disposition are not binding on the Supreme Court.
- A statement of the pending investigations or proceedings included.
- A statement that the stipulation resolves the entire proceeding, except as expressly set forth in the stipulation.
- All factual stipulations regarding aggravation or mitigation on which the parties wish to rely.
- The disposition to be recommended or imposed.
- A statement that the member acknowledges the provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.10.
- A statement as to whether or not the parties intend to be bound by the stipulated facts contained in the stipulation even if the conclusions of law or stipulated disposition are rejected.
- A statement that the respondent has been advised in writing of any pending investigations or proceedings not resolved by the stipulation, with the exception of certain criminal matters.

[6] Stipulating to Relief From or Extension of Time to Pay Costs

By written stipulation filed with the State Bar Court, the Chief Trial Counsel may relieve the respondent, in whole or in part, from the obligation to pay the costs of disciplinary proceedings, or, with the approval of the Court, may enter into an agreement extending the time to pay these costs, on the grounds of hardship, special circumstances, or other good cause [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 284].

§ 71.60 Pre-Filing, Early Neutral Evaluation Conference

If the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel and the member are unable to reach agreement on the resolution or disposition of a matter prior to the filing of a notice of disciplinary charges, an Early Neutral Evaluation Conference, conducted by a State Bar Court hearing judge, must be held within 15 days of the request of either party [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 75(a)]. At the Conference, the Early Neutral Evaluation judge must provide the parties with an oral neutral evaluation of the alleged facts and charges and the potential for the imposition of discipline. If a resolution of the matter that requires the approval of the Court is reached by the parties at the Conference, the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel will document the resolution and submit it to the Early Neutral Evaluation judge for approval or rejection [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 75(b)].

In order for the Early Neutral Evaluation judge to provide a meaningful evaluation, the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel must provide the Early Neutral Evaluation judge with a copy of the draft notice of disciplinary charges. Each party may also provide the Early Neutral Evaluation judge with such documents and information that the party believes supports his or her position. The Conference is confidential and each party may designate any documents he or she provides for in camera inspection only and not to be exchanged with the opposing party. All documents provided to the Early Neutral Evaluation judge shall be returned to the respective parties at the conclusion of the Conference [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 75(c)]. Unless otherwise stipulated by the parties, the Early Neutral Evaluation judge may not act as the trial judge in a subsequent proceeding involving the same facts [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 75(d)].

§ 71.61 Pleadings, Service, and Filing

[1] Notice of Disciplinary Proceeding

A State Bar Court proceeding is commenced by filing an initial pleading [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 50]. This pleading may be a notice of disciplinary charges, notice of hearing, petition, or other pleading [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2.64]. However, unless otherwise specified in the State Bar Rules of Procedure regarding a particular type of proceeding, a notice of disciplinary charges is the initial pleading in a disciplinary proceeding [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 101(a); see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2.78 ("notice to show cause" as used in State Bar Act is not used in State Bar Rules of Procedure; "notice of disciplinary charges" and "initial pleading," as used in Rules, include "notice to show cause" as used in State Bar Act)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Notice of Filing of Notice of Disciplinary Charges. The Office of the Chief Trial Counsel gives notice to an attorney that a notice of disciplinary charges will be filed against him or her based on its investigation, to give the attorney an opportunity to respond to the allegations. By correspondence served on respondent or on respondent's counsel if respondent is represented by counsel, the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel provides the opportunity to meet and confer by a specific date, usually within twenty days of the date of the correspondence; otherwise, a notice of disciplinary charges will be filed by that specific date. By Regina E. Brenner.

The purpose of the notice is to serve as a determination that probable cause exists to warrant formal charges [In the Matter of Scapa and Brown (1993) 2 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 635, 647-648] .

The notice of disciplinary charges must [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 101(b)]:

- Cite the statutes, rules, or court orders alleged to have been violated, or to warrant the proposed action.

- Contain a statement of facts constituting the alleged violation(s) in sufficient detail to permit the preparation of a defense.

- Relate the alleged facts set forth to specific statutes, rules, or court orders alleged to have been violated or to warrant the proposed action.

- Contain a specified notice, in prominent type, that the member's default may be entered if he or she fails to file a written response to the notice or fails to appear at trial.

- Contain a notice that the respondent may be ordered to pay costs pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.10.

If the State Bar intends to seek the involuntary inactive enrollment of the respondent under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(c), the notice should alsoinclude a statement that the respondent may be involuntarily enrolled as an inactive member of the State Bar on a finding that the respondent's conduct poses a substantial threat of harm to the interests of the respondent's clients or the public [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 101(c); see § 71.91]. Because the State Bar Court will automatically order the involuntary inactive enrollment of the respondent on the respondent's failure to file a reponse, the notice must include the notice prescribed by Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(e)(1)(B) [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 101(b)(4)].

Adequate notice requires only that the attorney be fairly apprised of the precise nature of the charges before disciplinary proceedings commence [Van Sloten v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 921, 929, 258 Cal. Rptr. 235, 771 P.2d 1323] . The notice need not expressly identify specific misconduct that will be examined by the State Bar, so long as the notice puts the attorney on notice that misconduct pertaining to a certain matter will be investigated [see Natali v. State Bar (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 456, 466-467, 247 Cal. Rptr. 165, 754 P.2d 211] .

The format of pleadings filed with the State Bar Court is specified in Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1110. Assertions in pleadings must be simple, concise, and direct [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 100].

[2] Service, Proof of Service, and Filing of Papers

The initial pleading in any State Bar Court proceeding must be served by the initiating party on all other parties, except in those matters in which service of the initial pleading is made by the clerk [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 60(a)].

Service upon a member who is the subject of a proceeding must be addressed to the member at the latest address shown on the official membership records of the State Bar pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1(a)(1). If the member's latest address is within the United States, the service must be made by certified mail, return receipt requested. If the member's latest address is outside the United States, service must be made by recorded delivery. If the person to be served is not a member and is not required by Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1 to maintain an address on the official membership records of the State Bar, the person may be served by any method permitted under the Code of Civil Procedure for service of process. Where a written request, signed by the member, is made to the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel to serve counsel for a party, service may only be made upon counsel [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 60(b)].

Service on the State Bar is made by serving the Office of Trials in the appropriate venue by certified mail, return receipt requested, except if another method of service is specified in the rules governing a particular type of proceeding [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 60(c)]. The party serving the initial pleading must file proof of service within 10 days of service on the opposing parties [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1111(a)].

Each pleading filed subsequent to the initial pleading, except joint pleadings, must be accompanied by proof of service on all other parties [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 61(a); Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1111(b)]. Service upon the State Bar must be made by serving the designated deputy trial counsel of the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel. Members must be served at the address maintained by the member on the official membership records of the State Bar pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1(a)(1), unless, with respect to the proceeding in connection with which the service is made, the member has counsel of record or has expressly requested in the response that service be made upon the member at a different address. If the person to be served is not a member and is not required by Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1 to maintain an address on the official membership records of the State Bar, the person must be served at the address given in the most recent pleading filed by the person, or, if the person has not filed a pleading giving an address, the person may be served at any address or location and by any method permitted under the Code of Civil Procedure for service of pleadings [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 61(b)].

A party or attorney whose address changes while a proceeding is pending, or who desires to be served with subsequent pleadings and notices at a different address, must file and serve on all parties a written notice of change of address and a specific request that all future service be made upon the party or attorney at the new address [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 61(c)].

Service of subsequent pleadings must be made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1011, 1012, or 1013(c) and (d), or by depositing the pleadings in the State Bar inter-office mail [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 62]. If service is made by United States mail, by State Bar interoffice mail, by personal delivery, or by overnight mail, the period of notice given by such service, or the time for doing any act in response to such service, must be computed in accordance with Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 63 [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 61(d)]. Service may also be made by facsimile transmission, if the party being served consents to this service [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 61(e)].

Proof of service by a party must be made as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a. Proof of service by the clerk must be made as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a(4) [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 62].

Pleadings must be filed with the clerk in the venue in which the proceeding is located. Pleadings may be submitted for filing outside the proper venue in the event of an emergency or when ordered in advance by the State Bar Court. Pleadings filed in proceedings before the Review Department may be filed in either location of the State Bar Court [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 55].

Pleadings submitted for filing will be rejected if they are not accompanied by proper proof of service, are unsigned, or are not accompanied by the required number of copies [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1112(a)]. When a party whose pleading has been rejected submits a corrected pleading for filing, the corrected pleading must be accompanied by proof of service showing that it was served on all parties and, if appropriate, by a motion for late filing [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1112(c)].

[3] Response

[a] In General

In general, the respondent must file and serve a written response to a notice of disciplinary charges within 20 days after service of the notice. Demurrers and motions for further particulars are not allowed [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 3.00, 103(a)]. In addition, general denials to the notice are not permitted [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 103(c)(2)].

The time within which the response must be filed may be extended once before its expiration by not more than 15 days on the parties' written stipulation. The stipulation must be filed with the clerk before the original expiration date [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 103(b)].

The response must contain an address for service on the respondent. The response must also include either a specific admission or denial of the charging allegations set forth in the notice of disciplinary charges, and any other facts by way of defense that may be relevant, or a plea of nolo contendere, subject to the approval of the State Bar Court, signed by the respondent and respondent's counsel, if any, with an acknowledgment of respondent's understanding of the plea, as set forth in the rule [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 103(c)].

If a written response is not filed within the required time limitations and a motion to dismiss is not pending, the deputy trial counsel may elect to proceed by the default procedures [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 103(d)]. Respondent's involuntary inactive enrollment will be automatically ordered by the State Bar Court. For detailed discussion of involuntary inactive enrollment under this provision, see § 71.91[2][e].

For a form for a response to a notice of disciplinary charges, see § 71.162.

[b] Entry of Default on Failure to File Timely Response

If the respondent fails to file a timely written response, the deputy trial counsel may file and serve a written motion for entry of the respondent's default [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 200(a), (b)]. If the respondent fails to file a written response with the clerk of the State Bar Court within 10 days after service of the motion, the clerk must enter the respondent's default by filing and serving on the respondent and the deputy trial counsel a notice of entry of default [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 200(c)].

Until the default is set aside, the factual allegations set forth in the notice of disciplinary charges are deemed admitted unless otherwise ordered by the State Bar Court, the respondent is precluded from participating in any proceedings except to file a motion to vacate the default, and no further notices or pleadings need be served on the respondent except for request for review filed by the deputy trial counsel and a copy of the Court's decisions [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 200(d)(1)].

The respondent's default may be vacated or set aside by stipulation of the parties before the commencement of the trial. After the commencement of trial, a default may be vacated or set aside only by court order [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 203(a)].

An improperly entered default may be vacated on motion of a party or on the Court's motion at any time the Court has jurisdiction of the matter. A default entered against a respondent while on active duty in the United States armed forces is deemed to have been entered improperly [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 203(b)].

A respondent may make a motion to set aside a properly entered default on the grounds of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect. The motion must be filed as soon as practicable, but in no event more than 45 days after service of notice of entry of default [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 203(c); In the Matter of Greenwood (Review Dept. 1998) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 831 (hearing judge erred in setting aside default where respondent's support for untimely motion for relief of default did not meet respondent's required burden of proof); In the Matter of Hunter (1994) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 63, 69-70 (judge and Review Department refused to set aside default when motion for relief from default was filed more than six months after respondent had notice of proceedings, where judge had repeatedly informed respondent of necessity of requesting relief from default, and where respondent failed to make sufficient showing justifying extraordinary delay)].

[4] Motion to Dismiss

Filing a timely motion to dismiss postpones the party's obligation to file a response to the notice of disciplinary charges or other initial pleading until 10 days after [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 102]:

- Notice or service of the Court's denial of the motion.

- Proper service of the initial pleading, if the motion was granted under Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 262(b).

- Service of an amended pleading if the motion was granted with leave to file an amended initial pleading under Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 262(c).

[5] Amended and Supplemental Pleadings

An initial pleading may be amended once before the filing of the response or the entry of default without court approval. The party initiating the proceeding must serve the amended initial pleading in accordance with Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 60, and the time to respond must be calculated from the date the amended pleading is served [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 104(a)].

Pleadings other than initial pleadings may be amended once as a matter or course at any time before a response is due to be served or is served, whichever occurs first, or, if the pleading is one to which a response is not permitted and a trial date has not been set, within 20 days after the pleading is served. Otherwise, a party may amend a pleading by order of the State Bar Court for good cause shown or by stipulation of all other parties [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 104(d)].

§ 71.62 Motions

In general, all motions must be made in writing, and supported by good cause shown. All supporting documents must be filed with the motion and served on all opposing parties [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 61, 105]. Motions should have supporting points and authorities, and declarations [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 105(c)].

Except as otherwise ordered or provided in the State Bar Rules of Procedure, an opposing party has 10 days from service of the motion to file and serve a written response [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 105(b)].

Facts relied on in support of or in opposition to a motion, except facts already in the record or subject to judicial notice, must be supported by declaration [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 105(c)]. This declaration must comply with the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5, or may be in the form of an affidavit [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 2.40]. Exhibits submitted in support of or in opposition to a motion must be authenticated by declaration unless already admitted in evidence [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 105(c)].

Unless otherwise ordered, written motions must be submitted without a hearing [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 105(d)].

§ 71.63 Orders Shortening and Extending Time

The time limits and notice periods specified in the State Bar Rules of Procedure may be shortened or extended by order of the State Bar Court, for good cause, on a party's motion or on the Court's own motion [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 64(a)]. On motion and for good cause shown, the Court grant an extension of time to file a pleading or permit the late filing of any pleading [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 64(b)]. A party filing a motion must state in a declaration whether the other parties to the proceeding have been requested to consent to the extension or late filing, and whether consent has been given [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 64(d)].

A motion or stipulation for an order shortening time must be supported by a statement of the reasons for the motion in the form of a declaration. Motions for orders shortening time must be served by personal delivery or overnight mail. The State Bar Court may direct the clerk to notify the parties by telephone that anyopposition to a motion to shorten time must be filed and served by a date set by the Court [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 64(c)].

§ 71.64 Discovery

[1] In General

With certain exceptions, the Civil Discovery Act (Code Civ. Proc. § 2016 et seq. (Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.010 et seq. effective July 1, 2005)) applies in disciplinary proceedings [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 180].

PRACTICE TIP:
Informal Discovery. Informal discovery is encouraged. Informal and/or formal discovery will be necessary to comply with the mandatory discovery conference and report [see Cal. State B. Rules of Proc., Rule 182]. By Regina E. Brenner.

In general, all parties must complete formal discovery within 120 days after service of the initial pleading [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 181(a)]. Discovery requests must be served so as to allow each responding party a sufficient time to respond within the discovery period [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 181(c)]. A motion for an extension of the 120-day discovery period must show that the party seeking the extension has made reasonably diligent efforts to complete discovery within the 120-day period, and that the requested extension will materially contribute to settlement of the proceeding or to the party's presentation of evidence at trial. On motion by any party, on joint motion or agreement of the parties, or on the motion of the State Bar Court after notice to the parties and an opportunity to respond, the Court may order reasonable extensions of the discovery period or may order discovery to be completed within a shorter period [Cal. State B. Rules, Proc., Rule 181(d)].

The time period to engage in discovery is tolled from the filing of the clerk's entry of default until the default is set aside [§ 71.61[3][a]], or from the filing of a stipulation as to facts, conclusions of law, and disposition until ruled on by the State Bar Court [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 181(b); see § 71.59[4]].

No discovery may be conducted concerning the deliberations of judges or other persons who are or have been responsible for adjudicating attorney disciplinary or regulatory matters [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 183].

For detailed discussion of general procedures relating to formal discovery in civil actions, see Chs. 190- 200, Discovery , and DeMeo, California Deposition and Discovery Practice (Matthew Bender). The discussion in this chapter is limited to the special rules applicable to State Bar disciplinary proceedings.

[2] [Reserved]

[3] Discovery Conference and Report

Within 20 days after service of the responsive pleading in a proceeding in which discovery is permitted without order of the State Bar Court, the parties must engage in a discovery conference at which the parties must make a good faith effort to reach an agreement as to: (1) a plan and timetable for the completion of formal discovery no later than the discovery cut- off date [see § 71.64[1]]; and (2) an exchange of documents, witness names and addresses, and other information, without formal discovery requests from opposing parties, to occur on or before a date that is no later than 10 days after the discovery conference [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 182(a)].

The parties may stipulate, without leave of the State Bar Court, to one continuance of the discovery conference to a date not more than 30 days after service of the responsive pleading. The stipulation must be filed with the Court [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 182(c)].

A party may not serve a formal discovery request until 20 days after the date the responsive pleading is originally due [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 182(b)].

At the first status conference [§ 71.68[2]] that occurs after the discovery conference, the parties must report to the State Bar Court regarding the following [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 182(d)]:

- Any agreements for informal discovery reached at the discovery conference.
- Each party's plan and timetable for conducting formal discovery.
- Any anticipated discovery disputes or reasons why the parties may be unable to complete formal discovery by the discovery cut-off date.

Delays in conducting the discovery conference or in completing any agreed-on informal exchange will not extend the time for completion of formal discovery, except by order of the State Bar Court based on unforeseeable and exceptional circumstances [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 182(e)]. A party's failure to participate in good faith in a discovery conference, or to make a good faith effort to comply with all agreements reached at a discovery conference and reported to the State Bar Court, may constitute cause for an order compelling or precluding discovery or other appropriate discovery sanctions [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 182(f)].

[4] Physical and Mental Examinations

In any proceeding in which the mental or physical condition of a member is at issue, and to the extent to which discovery is permitted by rule or order of the State Bar Court, the State Bar may move for the issuance of an order requiring the member to undergo a mental and/or physical examination pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6053. The motion and supporting evidence must demonstrate that there is good cause for the examination, and must specify the manner, conditions, scope, and nature of the requested examination [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 184(b)(1)]. On its own motion, the State Bar Court may issue an order to show cause why a mental and/or physical examination of the member should not be ordered pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6053. The order to show cause must specify the manner, conditions, scope, and nature of the proposed examination, and must afford the parties at least 10 days from the service of the order to show cause to file a response [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 184(b)(2)].

The State Bar Court may hold a hearing to determine if the need for the examination outweighs the member's right to privacy. If so, appropriate limitations or conditions should be included in the order to minimize the intrusiveness of the examination [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 184(d)].

The parties may also stipulate to the issuance of an order for a physical or mental examination [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 184(f)].

Unless otherwise ordered by the State Bar Court, or otherwise stipulated, the party moving for the examination must pay for its cost [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 184(g)].

[5] Motion to Compel Discovery

A party may file a motion to compel compliance with a discovery request within 30 days after the date on which the discovery response was due or served. This time limit may be extended by the parties' stipulation [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 185(b)]. Prior to filing a motion to compel, a party must make a reasonable and good faith attempt at an informal resolution of the issue. The motion must be accompanied by a declaration stating facts showing that a reasonable and good faith attempt at resolution was made [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 185(a)].

[6] Discovery Sanctions

The provisions of the Civil Discovery Act relating to misuse of the discovery process apply in State Bar Court proceedings, except that provisions for monetary sanctions and the arrest of a party are inapplicable, and dismissal may not be ordered as a discovery sanction unless the State Bar Court has first considered the impact of dismissal on the protection of the public [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 186].

[7] Review of Discovery Orders

Within 10 days after service of notice of a discovery ruling by a hearing judge, a party may serve and file with the clerk a petition for interlocutory review [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 189, 300; see § 71.121[4]].

[8] Joint Discovery in Related Proceedings

If two or more State Bar Court proceedings involve common questions of fact, but are not consolidated, the State Bar Court may permit joint discovery to be conducted on the motion of any party and on such terms and conditions as may be just. Joint discovery may not be conducted unless an order permitting such discovery has been made in each of the proceedings involved [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 188].

[9] Protective Orders

During the course of disciplinary investigations or formal proceedings, if a party seeks to discover the work product of an attorney as referenced in Code Civ. Proc. § 2018 (Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.070 effective July 1, 2005), either party may promptly move for a protective order from the State Bar Court [see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 180(a) (Civil Discovery Act applies in State Bar Court)].

For a more detailed discussion of protective orders, see Ch. 191, Discovery: Privileges and Other Discovery Limitations

§ 71.65 Venue

State Bar Court proceedings must be initiated in Los Angeles County if the member maintains his or her principal office for the practice of law or resides or resided in Imperial, Inyo, Kern, Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, or Ventura Counties, or if the alleged conduct that is the subject of the proceeding was committed in one of those counties [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 52]. State Bar Court proceedings must be initiated in the City and County of San Francisco if the member maintains his or her principal office for the practice of law or resides or resided, or if the alleged conduct that is the subject of the proceeding was committed, in any county in California other than the ones listed above. If both of these venue rules apply or if neither applies, the proceedings may be initiated in either Los Angeles County or the City and County of San Francisco [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 52].

For the convenience of parties and witnesses and on the timely motion of any party, the State Bar Court may authorize holding proceedings (or parts of proceedings) in a county other than Los Angeles County or the City and County of San Francisco. An order granting a motion may be conditioned on payment by the moving party of all or part of any resulting costs to the Court or to opposing parties. These orders are reviewable for an abuse of discretion by filing a petition for interlocutory review [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 53, 300; see § 71.121[4]].

Any party may file a motion for transfer of venue in the State Bar Court in which the proceeding is pending. The motion must be filed as soon as practicable, and in no event later than the last day of the discovery period [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 54; see § 71.64[1]]. A motion for transfer of venue may be made on the ground that the proceeding was initiated in an improper venue or on the ground that the proceeding should be transferred to a different venue for the convenience of witnesses and to promote the ends of justice. Rulings on motions for transfer are reviewable by filing a petition for interlocutory review [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 54, 300].

For a form of motion for transfer of venue, see § 71.163.

§ 71.66 Consolidation and Severance

Consolidation may be ordered on motion of any party, on stipulation of the parties or on the Court's own motion with notice to the parties and an opportunity to be heard. Except where good cause is shown, motions to consolidate must be filed within 30 days of the filing of the notice of disciplinary charges or other initial pleading in the most recent of the proceedings sought to be consolidated. Proceedings may be consolidated if no substantial rights of any party will be prejudiced and if consolidation will not cause undue delay of either matter. Proceedings involving different members but common questions of fact may be consolidated for all purposes or for the purpose of joint hearing or joint trial [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 108(a)]. Proceedings in the Hearing Department may not be consolidated with proceedings in the Review Department. The Presiding Judge may order that a proceeding in the Review Department be remanded to the Hearing Department for a ruling as to whether consolidation is appropriate [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 108(b)]. If the proceedings which a party seeks to consolidate are pending in different venues, a motion for transfer of venue must be granted prior to the filing of a motion to consolidate [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 108(c); see § 71.65].

Severance may be ordered on a party's motion, on the parties' stipulation, or on the motion of the State Bar Court with notice to the parties and an opportunity to be heard. Motions to sever must be filed as soon as practicable. A proceeding may be severed into two or more proceedings for the convenience of the parties, to avoid substantial prejudice to a party, or when conducive to expedition and economy [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 109].

§ 71.67 Submission and Decision

When a matter has been submitted, the State Bar Court will take the matter under submission, cause the clerk to file and serve the decision, and will not assign the duty of preparation of the decision, in whole or in part, to any party or any party's counsel [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 220(a)]. The State Bar Court's decision is final unless a timely request for review or posttrial motion is filed with the clerk, or unless the decision is modified by the State Bar Court on its own motion [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 220(a)].

The State Bar Court must file its decision within 90 days of taking the matter under submission, unless a shorter period for filing the decision in an expedited proceeding is required by statute, by Supreme Court rule or by the State Bar Rules of Procedure [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 220(b)]. If the State Bar Court recommends disbarment, it must also include in its decision an order that the respondent be enrolled as an inactive member [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 220(c)].

§ 71.68 Conferences

[1] In General

A disciplinary proceeding will include one or more conferences that are distinct from the disciplinary hearing itself. The State Bar Court Rules of Practice require a status conference, and also authorize pretrial and settlement conferences [see Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rules 1210, 1220, 1230].

[2] Status Conferences

Within 45 days of the filing of the notice of disciplinary charges (or other initial pleading), the assigned judge must order that a status conference be held in the State Bar Court, by telephone, or by other appropriate means [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1210(a)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Initial Status Conference. Some State Bar Court judges request that the parties prepare and file, preferably jointly, a statement of availability with respect to scheduling the initial status conference. Some State Bar Court judges require that the initial status conference be in person. By Regina E. Brenner.

At the conference, participating parties must be prepared to respond on the subjects specified in any order noticing the conference [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1210(b)]. In addition, the parties participating must be prepared to respond to inquiries concerning the following topics [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1210(b)]:

- Jurisdiction and venue.
- The substance of the parties' claims and defenses and the definition of genuinely controverted issues.

- Anticipated motions.

- Further proceedings, including setting of dates for discovery cutoff, pretrial and trial, and compliance with rules.

- Modification of standard prescribed pretrial procedures on account of the proceeding's relative simplicity or complexity.

- Prospects for settlement.

- Any other matters that may be conducive to the just, efficient, and economical determination of the proceeding.

On request of any party, or on the assigned judge's own motion, additional status conferences may be held at any time [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1210(c)].

Following any status conference, the assigned judge will enter an order addressing, as appropriate, the seven items listed above. This order, unless and until modified, governs all further proceedings. Copies of the order will be served on all parties who have appeared in the action [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1211].

The Clerk of the State Bar Court must serve on all parties a written notice of the date, time, and place of any status conference, at least 10 days prior to the conference unless the Court orders otherwise [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1240].

[3] Pretrial Conferences

[a] In General

One or more pretrial conferences may be held in any proceeding at a time the assigned judge may order [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1220].However, a pretrial conference may not be held more than 45 days before the scheduled commencement of trial [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 211(d)].

The Clerk of the State Bar Court will serve all parties with a written notice of the date, time, and place of the pretrial conference at least 30 days before the conference unless the Court orders otherwise. The conference may be held in Court, by telephone, or by other appropriate means [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1220].

The agenda for the pretrial conference consists of matters covered by the Rules of Procedure, the Rules of Practice, and any other matter germane to the proceeding. Each party must be present or represented at the pretrial conference by counsel having authority with respect to all matters on the agenda, including settlement of the proceeding [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1220].

[b] Preparation of Pretrial Statement

Unless the State Bar Court orders that a pretrial statement need not be prepared, all counsel must meet in person (or by telephone) before the date on which the pretrial statement is due to be filed, and must discuss each of the following [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1221]:

- Preparation of a joint pretrial statement.

- Coordination of pretrial statements if no agreement is reached on filing a joint statement.

- Settlement of the proceeding.

Unless otherwise ordered or provided by stipulation of the parties approved by the Court, the parties must file a joint pretrial statement. If after a good faith attempt, preparation of a joint statement is not feasible, the parties may serve and file separate pretrial statements [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 211(a)]. These statements must be filed and served at least 20 days before the pretrial conference, or as ordered by the Court [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 211(b)].

Unless otherwise ordered, objections to any portion of a pretrial statement must be made within 10 days of service of the statement [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 211(c)]. At the pretrial conference, the Court will rule on any objections to the pretrial statements, and may order these statements amended or supplemented [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 211(e)].

Failure to file a pretrial statement constitutes grounds for orders the Court deems proper, including, but not limited to, the exclusion of evidence or witnesses [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 211(f)].

[c] Contents of Pretrial Statement

Pretrial statements must include the following subject headings and information [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1223]:

- Party: The names of the parties or party in whose behalf the statement is filed.

- Substance of the Proceeding: A brief description of the substance of the charges and defenses presented and of the issues to be decided.

- Undisputed Facts: A plain and concise statement of all material facts not reasonably disputable. Counsel are expected to make a good faith effort to stipulate to all facts not reasonably disputable for incorporation into the trial record without the necessity of supporting testimony or exhibits.

- Disputed Issues: A plain and concise statement of all disputed factual issues, evidentiary issues, and claims of work product or privilege.

- Disposition Sought: In disciplinary proceedings, a statement as to the disposition sought if culpability is found. In other proceedings, a statement of the relief sought. No party will be bound regarding disposition sought.

- Points of Law: A concise statement of each disputed point of law with respect to the issues in the proceeding, with reference to statues, rules, and decisions relied on. Extended legal argument is not to be included in the pretrial statement.

- Witnesses to Be Called: A list of all witnesses likely to be called at trial, except for impeachment or rebuttal, together with a brief statement following each name describing the substance of the testimony to be given, any anticipated difficulty in scheduling the witness, and any special needs of the witness (such as a need for an interpreter).

- Exhibits, Schedules, and Summaries: A list of all documents and other items to be offered as exhibits at the trial, except for impeachment or rebuttal, with a brief statement following each describing its substance or purpose and the identity of the sponsoring witness. Records of prior discipline to be used in aggravation may not be included in the exhibit list.

- Further Discovery or Motions: A statement of all remaining discovery or motions.

- Stipulations: A statement of stipulations requested or proposed for pretrial or trial purposes.

- Amendments, Dismissals: A statement of requested or proposed amendments to pleadings or dismissals of parties, charges, claims, or defenses.

- Settlement Discussion: A statement summarizing the status of settlement negotiations and indicating whether further negotiations are likely to be productive.

- Bifurcation, Separate Trial of Issues: A statement whether bifurcation or a separate trial of specific issues is feasible and desired.

- Limitation of Experts: A statement whether limitation of the number of expert witnesses is feasible and desired.

- Estimate of Trial Time: An estimate of the number of court days expected to be required for the presentation of each party's case. Counsel are expected to make a good faith effort to reduce the time required for trial by all means reasonably feasible, including stipulations, expedited means of presenting testimony and exhibits, and the avoidance of cumulative proof.

- Claim of Privilege or Work Product: A statement indicating whether any of the matters otherwise required to be stated by Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1223 is claimed to be covered by the work product or other privilege. On such indication, such matters may be omitted subject to further order at the pretrial conference.

- Failure to Cooperate: A statement concerning any failure of opposing counsel to cooperate in meeting and conferring on pretrial issues.

- Miscellaneous: Any other subjects relevant to the trial of the proceeding, or material to its just, efficient, and economical determination.

[d] Exchange of Trial Exhibits Before Conference

At least 10 days before the pretrial conference, the parties must exchange copies of all exhibits to be offered and all schedules, summaries, diagrams, and charts to be used at the trial other than for impeachment or rebuttal. Each proposed exhibit must be premarked for identification. On request, a party must make the original or underlying documents of any exhibit available for inspection and copying. Failure to comply with these requirements without good cause constitutes grounds for orders the State Bar Court deems proper, including, but not limited to, the exclusion of exhibits from evidence [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1224].

Promptly after the receipt of exhibits and before the commencement of the trial, any parties proposing to object to the receipt in evidence of any proposed exhibit must advise the opposing parties of the objection. The parties must confer with respect to any objections in advance of the pretrial conference, and must attempt to resolve them. To the extent they are unable to arrive at a resolution, they must advise the pretrial conference judge of the objections and make reasonable efforts to present the matter to the judge for a ruling at the pretrial conference, or as ordered by the judge [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1225].

[e] Pretrial Order

The assigned judge may make pretrial orders at or following the pretrial conference as may be appropriate, and these orders will control the subsequent course of the proceeding [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1226].

[4] Settlement Conference

[a] In General

At any time after a proceeding has been initiated, any party may request a settlement conference, or the Court may order one on its own motion. The respondent, applicant or petitioner, whether or not represented by counsel, must attend the conference unless excused by the Court. Counsel appearing at the conference must be the counsel who will try the case and must have full authority to settle the matter at the settlement conference [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1230].

Settlement conferences are ordinarily held before a judge other than the assigned judge. The settlement conference judge is appointed by the supervising judge or his or her designee. If all parties stipulate, the assigned judge may conduct the settlement conference. A party may request a specific settlement conference judge in the request for a conference. If the parties have agreed to request a specific settlement conference judge, the request for a conference must so state [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1231].

Unless otherwise ordered by the State Bar Court, if the settlement conference is not conducted by the assigned judge, the clerk must notify all parties in writing of the name of the judge designated to conduct the settlement conference at least 10 days before the date of the conference [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1232].

[b] Confidentiality of Settlement Conferences

Settlement conferences are not conducted on the record, except that any agreement among the parties may be memorialized on the record [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 3.04, 20].

If a settlement conference does not result in a settlement, no reference will be made nor consideration given in any subsequent aspect of any proceeding to the content of settlement discussions or written statements made in connection with the settlement conference or the parties' meeting and conferring process leading up to the settlement conference [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1235].

[c] Meet and Confer

The parties must meet and confer in person or by telephone prior to the settlement conference. If the parties have developed positions concerning settlement offers, they must be communicated orally or in writing at this time [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1233].

[d] Settlement Conference Statements

Each party, or both parties jointly, must lodge with the Court, but not file, a settlement conference statement at least five days before a scheduled settlement conference. The statement must be clearly marked as such, must be in letter form, must indicate in the heading the date and time of the scheduled settlement conference, and must be addressed to the settlement conference judge. Settlement conference statements may be served upon the opposing party [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1233].

§ 71.69 Disqualification of Judges

A judge is disqualified if he or she is subject to disqualification under any of the grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 106(a)(1)]. A judge pro tempore is also disqualified if he or she (or his or her office) is or represents either of the following [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 106(b)]:

- A party to pending litigation involving any party or counsel in the proceeding (or the law office of a party or counsel).

- A party represented by any party or counsel in the proceeding (or the law office of a party or counsel).

Only the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.2, 170.3(b), 170.4, and 170.5(b)-(g) apply to judicial disqualification of State Bar Court proceedings [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 106(c); see In the Matter of Stewart (1994) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 52, 59 (no basis for charging impropriety by hearing judge simply because judge presided over prior disciplinary proceedings regarding member)].

A motion to disqualify must be made within the earliest of the following dates [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 106(e)]:

- 10 days after the ground for disqualification first became known to the party making the motion or to that party's counsel.

- Prior to commencement of trial.

- As to a judge of the Review Department, 20 days prior to oral argument held before the Review Department.

- If the assignment of the matter to the judge, or the grounds for disqualification were not known to the moving party sufficiently in advance to permit the filing of a written motion in accordance with these time limits, the party must file the motion promptly and must make an oral motion at the start of the next hearing, trial, conference, or argument.

Failure to seek timely review of a judge's decision not to disqualify himself or herself constitutes a waiver of the issue [Calvert v. State Bar (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 765, 776, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 684, 819 P.2d 424] .

A judge who recuses himself or herself must promptly give notice of the recusal to the judge who has authority to assign the matter to another judge [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 106(c)].

For a more detailed discussion of disqualification of judges, see Ch. 317, Judges .

§ 71.70 Trial

[1] Notice of Trial

A "trial," within the meaning of the State Bar Rules of Procedure, is an evidentiary hearing on the merits of a State Bar Court proceeding before a hearing judge [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 3.16].

The clerk of the State Bar Court must serve notice of the trial date on the parties at least 30 days before that date, unless the parties agree to a shorter notice [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 212(a)]. If the trial date is rescheduled, at least 20 days' notice of the new date must be given to the parties, orally or by mail, unless the parties have agreed to a shorter notice [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 212(b)].

[2] Obligation to Appear at Trial

The respondent must appear at the trial, unless his or her default has been entered and has not been vacated. For of entry of default on respondent's failure to file a timely response to the notice of disciplinary charges, see § 71.61[3][a]. The respondent may appear through counsel rather than in person, unless he or she is properly served with a trial subpoena or notice to appear at trial [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 210].

[3] Entry of Default on Failure to Appear at Trial

If the respondent fails to appear at trial in person or by counsel, the trial will still proceed on the merits, unless it is continued for good cause [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 201(a)]. If the respondent's default has not been previously entered, the State Bar Court will order the clerk to enter the respondent's default if it is shown that notice of disciplinary charges and/or notice of trial were properly served on the respondent, or the respondent has not appeared at trial [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 201(b)]. The clerk must file and serve on all parties a notice of entry of default [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 201(c)].

See § 71.61[3] for a discussion of the procedure for vacating and setting aside a default.

[4] Order and Burden of Proof

In disciplinary proceedings, the parties must present evidence of culpability before presenting evidence of aggravating or mitigating circumstances, except as ordered by the State Bar Court. The judge may not consider evidence of aggravating or mitigating factors, including the respondent's prior disciplinary record, in determining culpability. However, evidence of a respondent's other acts of misconduct, including his or her disciplinary record, may be received in the culpability phase of a hearing if this evidence is admissible pursuant to Evid. Code § 1101(b) [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1250; see § 71.70[5][b]].

At the trial of a disciplinary matter, the State Bar has the burden to prove culpability by clear and convincing evidence [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 213]. Any reasonable doubts must be resolved in favor of the respondent [Golden v. State Bar (1931) 213 Cal. 237, 247, 2 P.2d 325] . This standard is lower than the criminal standard of proof beyond a reasonable doubt [see Penal Code § 1096], and higher than the civil standard of a mere preponderance of the evidence [Evid. Code § 115; Lillian F. v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 314, 322, 206 Cal. Rptr. 603] .

During a trial, after the party with the burden of proof has rested, and before the State Bar Court takes the matter under submission, an opposing party may make an oral or written motion for a determination that the party with the burden of proof has not met that burden. Alternatively, the Court may indicate on the record that it is considering making that determination on the Court's own motion. In that event, the Court must afford the parties an opportunity for argument on the issue [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 219(a)]. In making a determination, the Court must consider all of the evidence introduced, and must weigh the evidence and make determinations of credibility [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 219(b)]. If the motion is denied, the moving party may offer evidence without having reserved the right to do so and to the same extent as if the motion had not been made [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 219(c)]. If the motion is granted, the Court's decision must include findings of fact and conclusions of law [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 219(d)].

[5] Rules of Evidence

[a] In General

Except as otherwise provided in Rules of Procedure of the State Bar governing specific types of proceedings or hearings, and subject to the provisions of the State Bar Act and relevant decisions of the Supreme Court and State Bar Court, the Evidence Code (as applied in civil cases) is applicable in State Bar Court proceedings. The procedure for producing evidence in civil cases in courts of record applies, except as otherwise provided by the Rules of Procedure of the State Bar. However, no error in admitting or excluding evidence will invalidate a finding of fact, decision or determination, unless the error resulted in a denial of a fair hearing [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 214].

Accordingly, hearsay evidence is inadmissible unless the opposing party agrees to its admission or otherwise waives any hearsay objections, or the evidence is subject to an exception to the hearsay rule [In the Matter of Scapa and Brown (1993) 2 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 635, 649] .

[b] Admissibility of Record of Prior Discipline

A record (or the existence of a record) of prior discipline is inadmissible until a finding of culpability is made, unless it tends to prove a fact in issue in determining culpability [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 216(b); Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1260]. A record of prior discipline is not made inadmissible by the fact that the discipline has been recommended but not yet imposed. If a record of prior discipline that is not yet final is admitted, the State Bar Court must specify what the disposition is if the prior discipline recommendation is adopted, dismissed, or modified [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 216(c)].

A record of prior discipline is usually an aggravating factor in the determination of appropriate discipline [see Alberton v. State Bar (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 1, 16, 206 Cal. Rptr. 373, 686 P.2d 1177 , cert. denied, 470 U.S. 1007 (1985) ; see also Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Stds. 1.2(b)(i), 1.7].

[c] Admissibility of Complaints

Evidence of State Bar records of complaints or records of unproven charges against the respondent is not admissible on behalf of the State Bar. If the respondent introduces evidence that no complaints or charges have been made, then evidence of complaints or charges is admissible in rebuttal. Evidence of the facts underlying a record of complaint or an unproven charge may be admitted to prove a fact in issue [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 217].

[d] Admissibility of Prior Civil Proceedings

Transcripts of testimony from civil proceedings in which the attorney was a party are admissible in an attorney's disciplinary proceeding, so long as they are relevant and material to the issues in the disciplinary proceeding [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6049.2; Rosenthal v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 612, 633, 238 Cal. Rptr. 377, 738 P.2d 723] . Transcripts of testimony from actions in which the attorney was merely a nominal party are also admissible [see Evid. Code § 1291(a)(2); Rosenthal v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d612, 633 , 238 Cal. Rptr. 377, 738 P.2d 723] . Transcripts of an attorney's prior testimony are admissible at a disciplinary proceeding brought against the attorney notwithstanding the fact that the attorney is an available witness at the proceeding [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6049.2].

Because the standard of proof in State Bar disciplinary proceedings is higher than that in civil actions (see § 71.70[4]), any prior civil verdicts or judgments entered against an attorney in a prior action must be assessed independently at the disciplinary hearing [see Maltaman v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 924, 947, 239 Cal. Rptr. 687, 741 P.2d 185] . The civil findings bear a strong presumption of validity if supported by substantial evidence [Maltaman v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 924, 947, 239 Cal. Rptr. 687, 741 P.2d 185] . If, however, the evidence produced at the disciplinary hearing fails to support the civil findings by convincing proof and to a reasonable certainty, the civil verdict and judgment should carry no disciplinary significance apart from the underlying facts [Maltaman v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 924, 947, 239 Cal. Rptr. 687, 741 P.2d 185] .

[e] Evidence of Client Security Fund Proceedings

The fact that an application for reimbursement from the Client Security Fund (discussed in § 71.144[8][a]) has been approved or denied, in whole or in part, is inadmissible in a discipline proceeding involving the same member except in the following instances [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 215(a)]:

- To prove the amount that was authorized as reimbursement after culpability was found.
- To impeach the applicant, complaining witness, or the member.
- For any purpose when a party who is the subject of the State Bar Court proceeding has already been disciplined for the same action that gave rise to the Client Security Fund application and the decision to discipline the party has become final.

If evidence of payment of a Client Security Fund claim is introduced, evidence of reimbursement is also admissible [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 215(b)].

[f] Admissibility of Polygraph Examinations

Polygraph examination evidence is inadmissible in State Bar disciplinary proceedings in the absence of a stipulation between the attorney involved and the State Bar [Arden v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 713, 724, 239 Cal. Rptr. 68, 739 P.2d 1236] .

[g] Admissibility of Conversations Recorded Surreptitiously

Under Penal Code § 632, recordings of conversations made surreptitiously without the recorded attorney's consent or knowledge are generally not admissible as evidence in State Bar disciplinary proceedings [see Penal Code § 632(d); In re Berman (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 517, 524, 256 Cal. Rptr. 802, 769 P.2d 984 , cert. denied, 493 U.S. 893] . A witness in a State Bar disciplinary proceeding may, however, use the inadmissible recording, or a transcript thereof, to refresh his or her memory prior to testifying [In re Berman (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 517, 525, 256 Cal. Rptr. 802, 769 P.2d 984 , cert. denied, 493 U.S. 893 ; see also Evid. Code § 771(a) (requiring refreshed witness to produce recording or transcript on request of adverse party)].

[6] Continuances

[a] In General

Continuances of the trial date are not favored [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1131(a); Hawk v. State Bar (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 589, 597, 247 Cal. Rptr. 599, 754 P.2d 1096 ; Bambic v. State Bar (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 314, 320, 219 Cal. Rptr. 489, 707 P.2d 862] . A strong rule against unnecessary delay is essential to ensure that the public will be protected by the prompt discipline of erring practitioners [Bambic v. State Bar (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 314, 320, 219 Cal. Rptr. 489, 707 P.2d 862] .

For a form for a motion for continuance, see § 71.164.

[b] Ruling on Motion

Any motion for or stipulation to a continuance filed in the Hearing Department must be decided by the assigned judge. In unusual or urgent circumstances, the Supervising Judge may grant a continuance if the assigned judge is unavailable [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1131(b)(1)].

Any motion for continuance of oral argument made in the Review Department must be decided by the Presiding Judge [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1131(b)(2)].

[c] Showing Required

A continuance will be granted only on an affirmative showing of good cause requiring the continuance [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 115; Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1131(c); Morales v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1037, 1046, 245 Cal. Rptr. 398, 751 P.2d 457] . In general, the necessity for the continuance should result from an emergency occurring after the setting of the settlement conference, hearing, or oral argument date that could not have been anticipated or avoided with reasonable diligence and cannot now be properly provided for other than by granting a continuance [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1131(c)].

In ruling on a motion for a continuance, the Court must consider all matters relevant to a proper determination of the motion. These may include the following [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1131(c)]:

- The Court's file in the case and any supporting declarations concerning the motion.

- The diligence of counsel, particularly in bringing the emergency to the Court's attention and to the attention of opposing counsel at the first available opportunity and in attempting otherwise to meet the emergency.

- The nature of any previous continuances, extensions of time, or other delays attributable to any party.

- The proximity of the settlement conference, hearing, or oral argument date.

- The condition of the Court's calendar and the availability of an earlier settlement conference, hearing, or oral argument date if the matter is ready.

- Whether the continuance may properly be avoided by substitution of attorneys or witnesses, use of depositions in lieu of oral testimony, or trailing the matter for settlement conference, hearing, or oral argument.

- Whether the interests of justice are best served by a continuance; by holding the settlement conference, hearing, or oral argument of the matter; or by imposing conditions on a continuance.

- The State Bar Court's time pendency guidelines, stated in Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1130.

- Whether the party requesting the continuance failed to appear at any hearing or settlement conference.

- Any other fact or circumstance relevant to a fair determination of the motion.

[7] Proceedings to Be Recorded or Reported

All hearings and trials in State Bar Court proceedings must be recorded by electronic equipment or reported by other methods approved by the Executive Committee. Copies of recordings of public proceedings must be available for purchase from the Clerk of the State Bar Court [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 30].

Photographing, recording for broadcasting, broadcasting or audio-recording to make personal notes of public State Bar Court proceedings is permitted only on written order of the assigned judge in the Hearing Department, or the assigned panel, if pending in the Review Department. A person or entity may seek the permission of an assigned judge or panel to photograph, record, broadcast, or audio-record by submitting the form approved by the Executive Committee at least five days prior to the proceeding in question. The clerk will notify the parties that such a request has been received. The assigned judge or panel must consider those factors relevant to a nonjury proceeding set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.150(e)(3). The assigned judge or panel may deny the request or limit or restrict the extent of the requested photographing, recording, or broadcasting, or condition the order on an agreement by the person or entity making the request to pay any increased court-incurred costs. When permission to audiotape is granted, recordings may not be used for any purpose other than as personal notes [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 32].

[8] Decision of Hearing Judge

When the matter has been submitted, the State Bar Court will take the matter under submission, and will thereafter have the clerk file and serve its decision. The Court may not assign the duty of preparing the decision, in whole or in part, to any party or any party's counsel. The decision is the final decision of the Court unless a timely request for review or a post-trial motion is filed with the clerk, or unless the Court modifies the decision on its own motion. Corrections to a decision that correct typographical errors or make insubstantial changes not affecting the merits do not constitute a modification of the Court's decision [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 220; Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1270].

The decision should ordinarily be filed within eight months of the filing of the initial pleading, and within 30 days of taking the matter under submission [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1130(b)(1), (4)].

For a discussion of post-trial remedies and review, see § 71.120 et seq.

§ 71.71 Costs Assessable in Disciplinary Proceedings

A State Bar member may be required to pay the costs of certain types of proceedings against him or her. Any order imposing a public reproval on a member of the State Bar must include a direction that the member pay costs [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.10(a); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 280]. Similarly, in any order imposing discipline or accepting a resignation with a disciplinary matter pending, the Supreme Court must include a direction that the member pay costs [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.10(a); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 280].

The costs that must be imposed include all of the following:

- The actual expense incurred by the State Bar for the original and copies of any reporter's transcript of the State Bar proceedings, and any fee paid for the reporter's services [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.10(b)(3)].

- All expenses paid by the State Bar that would qualify as taxable costs recoverable in civil proceedings [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.10(b)(2)].

- The charges determined by the State Bar to be "reasonable costs" of investigation, hearing, and review [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.10(b)(1)].

PRACTICE TIP:
"Reasonable Costs." Reasonable costs of the investigation, hearing, and review are assessed at different levels and increase at each level:

- Level One Assessment--Stipulated disposition reached prior to filing of Notice to Show Cause.

- Level Two Assessment--Stipulated disposition reached prior to time of trial.

- Level Three Assessment--Stipulated disposition reached at time of trial or trial not exceeding one day is conducted.

- Level Four Assessment--Trial exceeding one day is conducted.

There is also a separate cost category for Resignation of Member with Charges Pending. By Regina E. Brenner.

The State Bar may grant relief to a disciplined member, in whole or in part, from an order assessing costs, or may grant the member an extension of time to pay the costs [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.10(c)]. Such a motion must be made no later than 30 days after the effective date of the public reproval or the filing of the Supreme Court order, with certain exceptions for a motion based in whole or in part on financial hardship [see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 282 (procedure for motion for relief)]. The State Bar exercises its discretion in evaluating the member's hardship, special circumstances, or other good cause [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.10(c); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 282(a)].

If an attorney is exonerated of all charges following trial in the hearing department, he or she is entitled to reimbursement from the State Bar for reasonable expenses [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.10(d); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 283(a)]. "Reasonable expenses" are determined by the State Bar, and do not include attorney's or expert's fees for preparation for the hearing [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.10(d)]. A motion for reimbursement of expenses may not be filed until the date of service of the final ruling exonerating the respondent of all charges, and must be filed no later than 30 days thereafter. The motion must be accompanied by appropriate documentation of the costs for which reimbursement is requested [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 283(b), (d)]. The motion must be heard and decided by the hearing judge who was assigned to the disciplinary proceeding [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 283(f)]. Within 15 days after service of the judge's written order deciding the motion, a party may file a petition for interlocutory review [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 283(h), 300; see § 71.121[4]].

Costs assessed against a publicly reproved or suspended member are added to and become a part of the membership fees of the member for the next calendar year [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6140.7]. For discussion of the penalties for failure to pay costs, see § 71.34[4][c].

The Chief Trial Counsel or designee has discretion, under certain circumstances, to provide a member with relief from the payment of costs or an extension of time to pay costs. For further discussion, see § 71.59[6].

§ 71.72 Motion for Order Sealing Portion of Record

A party or other person may move for an order sealing a portion of the record [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 23]. The motion must be supported by a showing of specific facts establishing that a statutory privilege or constitutionally protected interest of a party, nonparty, or witness outweighs the compelling public interest in the public nature of the proceeding. The relief sought must be narrowly tailored to serve the specific interest sought to be protected [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 23(c)]. A motion to seal protected material must be filed in the hearing department and, absent a showing of good cause for the delay, the motion may not be made for the first time on review [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 23(b)]. The motion may be filed under seal and if so filed must be treated as protected material, until further order of the court [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 23(c)]. Protected material must be kept under seal by the clerk, and must be marked and maintained by other custodians in a manner calculated to prevent improper disclosure [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 23(d)]. All persons to whom protected material is disclosed must be given a copy of the applicable order sealing a portion of the record by the person making the disclosure [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 23(e)]. Unless otherwise ordered, protected material may only be disclosed to [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 23(f)]:

- Parties to the proceeding and counsel.
- Personnel of the Supreme Court, the State Bar Court and independent audiotape transcribers.
- Personnel of the Office of Probation when necessary for their official duties.

Orders of the Hearing Department relating to a motion for an order sealing a portion of the record are reviewable by the Review Department on a petition for interlocutory review [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 23(g), 300; see § 71.121[4]].

A party is not prohibited from filing motions in limine or from requesting that portions of evidence that are protected be redacted [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 23(h)].

§ 71.90 Resignation With Charges Pending and Perpetuation of Testimony

[1] In General

When charges are pending against a member, the member may opt to resign and relinquish the right to practice law and thus avoid the prospect of formal discipline [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.21(a)]. The phrase "charges pending" means the member [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 650]:

- Is the subject of an investigation or a disciplinary proceeding;
- Is the subject of a criminal investigation or charge; or
- Has been convicted of a felony or misdemeanor.

When a resignation is filed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.21, the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel may perpetuate testimony or documentary evidence pertaining to the member's conduct that is pertinent to any future inquiry into the member's conduct or qualification to practice law [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 651; see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 652-656; see also § 71.90[3]].

In submitting a resignation with disciplinary charges pending, an attorney agrees to be transferred to inactive membership in the State Bar effective on the filing of the resignation by the State Bar [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.21(a)]. A written resignation must be signed and dated by the member at the time it is tendered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.21(a)]. The resignation must be tendered to the Office of the Clerk of the State Bar Court in Los Angeles [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.21(a). An attorney's tender of resignation and transfer to inactive enrollment pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.21 is public on filing of the resignation with the Clerk of the State Bar Court [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 22(a)]. If evidence is perpetuated by the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel, the record of perpetuated evidence is also public. A copy of the written resignation and the record of perpetuated evidence must be available for public inspection

[Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 22(b)].

Within 30 days after filing of the resignation, the attorney must perform the acts specified in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20(a)(1)-(4), (b), and, within 40 days after filing of the resignation, the member must file with the Office of the Clerk of the State Bar Court proof of compliance as set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20(c) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.21(a)]. For discussion of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20, see § 71.99. For a form of resignation with charges pending, see § 71.165.

[2] State Bar Recommendation and Supreme Court Acceptance of Resignation

A resignation is not effective until it is accepted by the California Supreme Court after consideration and recommendation by the State Bar Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.21(a)]. On receipt of a member's resignation, tendered in conformity with the form set forth in § 71.165, as specified in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.21(b), the Office of the Clerk of the State Bar Court must promptly file the resignation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.21(c)]. The State Bar Court thereafter must consider the member's resignation and the stipulated facts and conclusions of law, if any, agreed upon between the member and the Chief Trial Counsel, and must recommend to the Supreme Court whether the resignation should be accepted. The State Bar Court's recommendation must be made in light of the grounds set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.21(d) [see below], and, if the State Bar Court recommends acceptance of the resignation notwithstanding the existence of one or more of the grounds set forth there, the State Bar Court's recommendation must include an explanation of the reasons for the recommendation that the resignation be accepted [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.21(c)]. The Office of the Clerk of the State Bar Court must transmit to the Clerk of the Supreme Court three certified copies of the State Bar Court's recommendation together with the member's resignation, when, by the terms of the State Bar Court's recommendation, the resignation should be transmitted to the Supreme Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.21(c)].

In an order accepting a resignation with a disciplinary matter pending, the Supreme Court must include a direction imposing costs on the resigning member [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.10(a)]. Costs unpaid by the resigning member must be paid as a condition of reinstatement of membership [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6140.7]. An order of the Supreme Court accepting a resignation with a disciplinary matter pending may include an order that the member pay a specified monetary sanction for each violation [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.13(a)]. For discussion, see § 71.34[4].

The Court may decline to accept a resignation for any of the following reasons [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.21(d)]:

- Preservation of necessary testimony is not complete.

- After transfer to inactive status, the member has practiced law or has advertised or held himself or herself out as entitled to practice law.

- The member has failed to perform the acts specified by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20(a), (b) (discussed in § 71.99).

- The member has failed to provide proof of compliance as specified in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20(c).

- The Supreme Court has filed an order of disbarment as to the member.

- The State Bar Court has filed a decision or opinion recommending the member's disbarment.

- The member has previously resigned or has been disbarred and reinstated to the practice of law.

- The member and the chief trial counsel have not reached agreement on a written stipulation as to facts and conclusions of law regarding the disciplinary matters and proceedings that were pending against the member at the time the resignation was tendered.

- Acceptance of the resignation of the member will reasonably be inconsistent with the need to protect the public, the courts, or the legal profession.

If a member's resignation with charges pending is accepted by the Supreme Court, the member's name is stricken from the rolls of attorneys. After a specified period of time, the attorney may apply for reinstatement. For discussion of reinstatement proceedings generally, see § 71.100.

[3] Perpetuation Proceeding

Within 30 days after the filing of the member's resignation with charges pending, the Office of the Chief Counsel may file and serve a notice of intent to perpetuate evidence, setting forth an estimate of the time required to complete perpetuation or a statement that perpetuation is not required [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 652]. On filing the notice, the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel may begin the perpetuation of evidence [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 653(a)].

Perpetuation of evidence must be accomplished by depositions or stipulations as to facts. If the member wishes to take depositions to perpetuate evidence, the member must show good cause in seeking a State Bar Court order [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 653(b)].

A hearing judge must be assigned to rule on motions filed in connection with the perpetuation of evidence. In addition to ruling on the motions, the judge may set status conferences or require status reports to monitor the progress of the perpetuation [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 653(c)].

The Office of Trial Counsel must file and serve a notice of completion of the perpetuation of evidence. On request, the member may obtain a copy of the perpetuated evidence from the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel at the member's expense [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 654].

In general, the perpetuated evidence may be admitted in evidence in any future proceeding concerning the member's conduct or qualifications to practice law, except that the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel may introduce deposition testimony as permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 2025(u)(3) (Code Civ. Proc. § 2025.620(c) effective July 1, 2005), without making a showing that any of the factors listed in section 2025(u)(3) (Code Civ. Proc. § 2025.620(c) effective July 1, 2005) is present [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 655].

§ 71.91 Involuntary Enrollment as Inactive Member of Bar

[1] In General

Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007 sets forth procedures for the involuntary enrollment of an attorney as an inactive member of the State Bar. Inactive members are not entitled to practice law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6006; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6126(b)]. Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007 provides five separate grounds and procedures for involuntary enrollment to inactive status. After the institution of a formal proceeding under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007, the hearings and records of the proceeding are public [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.1(a)(2)].

[2] Grounds for Inactive Enrollment

[a] Judicial Declaration of Incompetency

A member may be involuntarily enrolled as inactive under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(a) on the ground that the member has been judicially declared to be mentally incompetent or is under involuntary treatment for a mental condition [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(a)].

[b] Incapability of Attending to Practice

Under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(b), a member may be involuntarily enrolled into inactive status in each of the following situations:

- The member asserts a claim of insanity or mental incompetence in a pending proceeding or action, alleging his or her inability to understand the nature of the proceeding or inability to assist counsel in the representation of the member [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(b)(1); see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 400-406; see also In the Matter of Respondent L (1993) 2 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 454, 460-461 (member required to be enrolled inactive on assertion of claim of insanity or mental incompetence in pending proceeding, alleging inability to understand nature of proceeding or to assist counsel; no further showing required and State Bar Court does not have discretion not to enroll member inactive)].

- A court has made an order assuming jurisdiction over a member's practice pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6180.5 when an attorney has died, resigned, become an inactive member of the State Bar, been disbarred, or been suspended from practice, or Bus. & Prof. Code § 6190.3 when an attorney is incapable of attending to his or her practice because of alcohol, drugs, physical or mental illness, or other reasons, as discussed in § 71.93 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(b)(2); see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 410-416].

- The State Bar Court finds that the member, because of mental infirmity or habitual use of intoxicants or drugs, is unable or habitually fails to perform his or her duties competently or is unable to practice law without substantial threat of harm to the interests of his or her clients or the public [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(b)(3); see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 420-429].

Effective January 1, 1999, the member must be represented at or before the time of issuance of a notice to show cause why the member should not be transferred to inactive enrollment under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(b)(3), and the State Bar Court will provide appointed counselwithout expense to the member if the member is not represented [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 422].

In the best interests of a member's professional status or to protect the public, a member may stipulate or provide a supporting declaration to any petition seeking a member's inactive enrollment [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(b), (c)].

A member who has been transferred to inactive enrollment pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(b) may petition to terminate the enrollment [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 440]. The member must attach to the petition written authorizations enabling the State Bar to examine and copy all medical, hospital, and related records relevant to his or her original mental infirmity, illness, or addiction, and his or her present condition [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 441].

The parties may stipulate to the member's transfer to active enrollment. However, the stipulation is not effective unless approved by a hearing judge [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 442]. The member may request a hearing on the petition, and a hearing may be ordered if it will materially contribute to the Court's determination of whether a basis for the member's involuntary inactive enrollment continues to exist [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 443].

A member's transfer to active enrollment does not relieve him or her of a suspension imposed on the member for any reason, or of any other independent restriction regarding the member's right to practice law [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 445].

Hearings and records regarding inactive enrollment under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(b) are confidential [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 21; In the Matter of Respondent L (1993) 2 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 454, 458 n.3].

[c] Substantial Threat of Harm to Clients or Public Posed by Attorney's Conduct

Under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(c), the State Bar Court may order the involuntary inactive enrollment of an attorney on a finding that the attorney's conduct poses a substantial threat of harm to the attorney's clients or to the public, or on a finding that, based on all the available evidence including affidavits, the attorney has failed to maintain the information on State Bar records required by Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1 and the attorney cannot be located after reasonable investigation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(c)(1); see also Conway v. State Bar (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 1107, 1123, 255 Cal. Rptr. 390, 767 P.2d 657 (involuntary inactive enrollment under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(c) does not violate due process rights of disciplined attorney)]. To find that the attorney's conduct poses an substantial threat of harm to the attorney's clients or to the public, each of the following facts must be found, based on all the available evidence including affidavits [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(c)(2)(A)-(C)]:

- The attorney has caused or is causing substantial harm to the attorney's clients or the public.

- The attorney's clients or the public are likely to suffer greater injury from denial of the involuntary inactive enrollment than the attorney is likely to suffer if it is granted, or there is a reasonable likelihood that the harm will reoccur or continue.

- There is reasonable probability that the State Bar will prevail on the merits of the underlying disciplinary matter.

In an involuntary inactive enrollment proceeding, the judge may not draw an inference that the required facts are established from pending criminal charges in and of themselves. However, testimony offered under oath and subject to cross-examination in preliminary hearings on the criminal charges may support a judge's findings regarding the facts of the member's criminal conduct. The evidence must be sufficient to demonstrate a reasonable probability that the State Bar will prevail on the merits of disciplinary charges brought on the evidence [In the Matter of Mesce (1993) 2 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 658, 662] .

Declarations offered in support of an application for involuntary enrollment do not provide an evidentiary basis to find clear and convincing evidence of the member's likelihood of causing substantial harm, when the declarants simply identify themselves as authors of unverified reports without vouching for the truth of the reports or establishing a business records exception to the hearsay rule [In the Matter of Mesce (1993) 2 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 658, 662] .

The State Bar Court will automatically order a respondent's involuntary inactive enrollment upon a recommendation of disbarment being filed [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(c)(4); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 220(c), 305(f)].

On proof that the attorney's conduct no longer poses a substantial threat of harm to the attorney's clients or the public, the Board of Governors must terminate the involuntary inactive enrollment [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(c)(5)]. Similarly, the Board of Governors must terminate an attorney's involuntary inactive status if an attorney who could not be located proves compliance with Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(c)(5)].

The procedures for involuntary inactive enrollment under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(c) and subsequent retransfer to active status are set forth in Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 450-495.

[d] Probation Violation

A hearing judge may order the involuntary inactive enrollment of an attorney for violation of probation on the occurrence of all of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(d)(1)(A)-(C); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 564]:

- The attorney is under a suspension order, a portion of which has been stayed during a period of probation.

- The judge finds that probation has been violated.

- The judge recommends to the Supreme Court that the attorney receive an actual suspension on account of the probation violation or other disciplinary matter.

The judge must terminate an involuntary inactive enrollment for violation of probation on expiration of a period equal to the period of stayed suspension in the probation matter or until the Supreme Court makes an order regarding the recommended actual suspension in the probation matter, whichever occurs first [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(d)(2)]. If the Court orders a period of actual suspension in the probation matter, a period of involuntary inactive enrollment for violation of probation must be credited against the period of actual suspension ordered [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(d)(3)]. See § 71.94.

[e] Failure to File Response to Notice Initiating Disciplinary Proceeding

The State Bar Court must order the involuntary inactive enrollment of an attorney when it appears that the attorney's default has been entered for failure to file a response to the notice initiating a disciplinary proceeding within the time allowed by the State Bar Rules of Procedure and any extensions granted under the Rule [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(e)(1); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 500; for discussion of the requirements concerning responses, see § 71.61[3]]. No motion is necessary. The enrollment must be imposed when the following conditions are met [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(e)(1)(A)-(B); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 500]:

- The notice has been duly served pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1(c) [see § 71.61[2]].

- The notice contains the warning set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(e)(1)(B), informing the attorney that involuntary inactive enrollment will result from failure to file the answer in a timely manner.

The State Bar Court must terminate the involuntary inactive enrollment of a member for failure to serve a response in a timely manner when the response is filed on the member's behalf [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(e)(2); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 501(a)]. The inactive enrollment also must be set aside when a proposed answer is filed with a request to set aside the member's default [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(e)(2); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 501(a)].

If the member's involuntary inactive enrollment is still in effect on the effective date of the final order on the merits of the underlying disciplinary proceeding, the involuntary inactive enrollment terminates as of that date [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 501(b)]. The termination of the member's inactive enrollment does not relieve the member of any suspension imposed for any reason or of another independent restriction on the member's right to practice law [Cal. State B. Rules 501(c)].

The inactive enrollment and a transfer to active enrollment are administrative matters and no hearing is required [Cal. State B. Rules 502].

§ 71.92 Imposition of Interim Remedies and Final Discipline When Attorney's Conduct Poses Substantial Threat of Harm to Clients or Public

The State Bar Court may order a full range of interim remedies or final discipline short of involuntary inactive enrollment in order to restrict or supervise an attorney's practice of law if it finds the attorney's conduct poses a substantial threat of harm to the interests of the attorney's clients or to the public [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(c), (h); see also Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.4(e); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 510-538]. Remedies may include restrictions as to scope of practice, monetary accounting procedures, review of performance by probation or other monitors appointed by the State Bar Court, or other measures as may be determined, after hearing, to protect present and future clients from likely substantial harm [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(h)]. These restrictions may be imposed when the State Bar finds that each of the following factors are present [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(c), (h)]:

- The attorney has caused or is causing substantial harm to the attorney's clients or the public.

- The attorney's clients or the public are likely to suffer greater injury from the denial of the interim remedy or final discipline than the attorney is likely to suffer if it is imposed, or there is a reasonable likelihood that the harm will recur or continue.

- There is a reasonable probability that the State Bar will prevail on the merits of the underlying disciplinary matter.

If the State Bar proposes license restriction, the showing of greater injury from denial of the remedy need not be made [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(c), (h)].

§ 71.93 Incapacity to Attend to Law Practice

The courts may assume jurisdiction, as provided in Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6190-6190.6, over the law practice of an attorney engaged in the active practice of law in California who becomes incapable of devoting the time and attention to, and providing the quality of service for, his or her law practice that is necessary to protect the interest of a client if there is an unfinished client matter for which no other active member of the State Bar, with the consent of the client, has agreed to assume responsibility [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6190]. This procedure is applicable when the incapacityis caused by any reason, including, but not limited to, excessive use of alcohol or drugs, physical or emotional illness, or another infirmity [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6190].

PRACTICE TIP:

Incapacity to Attend to Law Practice. The State Bar may request that the Superior Court assume jurisdiction over the law practice of a member as a result of inactive enrollment of the member pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007. By Regina E. Brenner.

§ 71.94 Probation Revocation Proceeding

[1] Motion to Revoke Probation

Violation of a condition of probation constitutes cause for revocation of probation then pending, and may constitute cause for discipline [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6093(b); see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 560]. The Office of Chief Trial Counsel may initiate a probation revocation proceeding by filing a motion to revoke probation if there is reasonable cause to believe that conditions of probation have been violated [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 560, 563(a); for discussion of the use of probation as a sanction, see § 71.34[3]]. The motion must be accompanied by one or more declarations setting forth facts relied on in support of the motion. The motion must be served on the respondent attorney in accordance with Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 60 (discussed in § 71.61[2]) [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 563(a)].

If the Office of Chief Trial Counsel wishes a hearing on the motion to revoke probation, the motion must include a request for hearing; otherwise, the State Bar's right to a hearing is waived [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 563(a)].

[2] Response to Motion

A response by the respondent attorney, including an opposition to the motion to revoke probation, must be filed and served within 20 days after service of the motion. The respondent must set forth supporting facts in one or more declarations [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 563(b)(1)].

If the respondent desires a hearing on the motion, the response must contain a request for hearing; otherwise, the respondent's right to a hearing is waived [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 563(b)(2), (3)]. If the respondent wishes to cross-examine the persons who filed declarations in support of the motion at the hearing, the respondent must expressly request an opportunity to do so in the response [see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 563(d)(2)].

[3] Procedures Governing Hearing of Motion

Probation revocation proceedings are to be expedited. The standard of proof in the formal proceeding is the preponderance of the evidence [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6093(c); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 561]. No discovery is conducted in a probation revocation proceeding, except by leave of the State Bar Court on good cause shown [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 563(c)].

If a hearing is requested, or if the judge in the exercise of his or her discretion decides to set a hearing, the hearing must be set on an expedited basis [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 563(d)(1)].

At the hearing, declarations submitted in support of the motion are admitted in evidence, subject to appropriate objection, as the direct testimony of the respective declarants. If the respondent filed a timely response to the motion in which the respondent expressly requested an opportunity to cross-examine the declarants, the deputy trial counsel must produce the declarants at the hearing, and the respondent has the right to cross-examine them [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 563(d)(2)]. If the respondent filed declarations in response to the motion, the declarations must be admitted in evidence as the direct testimony of the respective declarants, subject to appropriate objection, only if the respondent produces the declarant at the hearing for cross-examination or the deputy trial counsel waives the right to cross-examine the declarant [Cal. State B. Rules Prob., Rule 563(d)(3)].

[4] Ruling on Motion

In a probation revocation proceeding, an actual suspension recommended may not exceed the entire period of the stayed suspension. The ruling may recommend that all or part of the actual suspension imposed as a result of the probation revocation be stayed and that a new period of probation be imposed, which may be of a different duration or under different conditions than the original probation [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 562].

In a probation revocation proceeding, the Court may order the involuntary inactive enrollment of the respondent on a finding that each of the elements of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(d) has occurred. Unless otherwise ordered by the judge, the order is effective on service. The involuntary inactive enrollment terminates on the occurrence of the conditions set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(d)(2) [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 564; see § 71.91[2][d]].

The judge's ruling is reviewable by the Review Department on an expedited basis [see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 565; see also § 71.121].

A recommendation of the State Bar that a stay of suspension be set aside and that the recommended discipline be imposed may be reviewed by theSupreme Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(b); see Potack v. State Bar (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 132, 138-139, 284 Cal. Rptr. 335, 813 P.2d 1365] . For discussion of Supreme Court review generally, see § 71.122.

§ 71.95 Conviction Proceedings

[1] Conviction of Crime Involving Moral Turpitude

The conviction of a member of the State Bar of a felony or misdemeanor involving moral turpitude constitutes a cause for disbarment or suspension [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6101(a); see also § 71.96[5]]. Until December 1, 1990, proceedings to disbar or suspend an attorney because of a conviction were undertaken by the California Supreme Court pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6101 and 6102, on the Court's receipt of the certified copy of the record of conviction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6101(d)]. As of December 1, 1990, however, the State Bar Court has authority to exercise the Supreme Court's statutory powers pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6101 and 6102 with respect to the discipline of attorneys convicted of crimes [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(a); see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 6087 (Supreme Court may delegate its statutory disciplinary authority to State Bar) and discussion in § 71.95[2]].

A plea or verdict of guilty or a conviction after a plea of nolo contendere is deemed to be a conviction within the meaning of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6101 and 6102 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6101(e)]. For purposes of these proceedings, the record of conviction is conclusive evidence of the attorney's guilt of the crime for which he or she was convicted [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6101(a); In re Basinger (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 1348, 1358, 249 Cal. Rptr. 110, 756 P.2d 833] . Consequently, the conviction cannot be collaterally attacked in the disciplinary proceeding [In re Prantil (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 227, 231-233, 255 Cal. Rptr. 890, 768 P.2d 109 (upholding constitutionality of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6101 against charge by attorney that statute deprived him of right to be heard at appropriate time and in meaningful manner as required by due process clause of United States Constitution)]. There are no constitutional or policy reasons that preclude the Legislature from giving conclusive effect to convictions based on pleas of nolo contendere for administrative disciplinary purposes [Arneson v. Fox (1980) 28 Cal. 3d 440, 446-450, 170 Cal. Rptr. 778, 621 P.2d 817] . After the institution of a formal proceeding under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6101 or 6102, the hearings and records of the proceeding are public [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.1(a)(2)].

[2] Authority of State Bar Court

The State Bar Court has authority to exercise statutory powers pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6101 and 6102 with respect to the discipline of attorneys convicted of crimes, including the power to place attorneys on interim suspension and the power to vacate, to delay the effective date of, and temporarily to stay the effect of interim suspension orders [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(a)]. This authority of the State Bar Court does not affect the power of the Supreme Court to exercise its inherent jurisdiction over the lawyer discipline and admissions system [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(g)].

Conviction proceedings in the State Bar Court, pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6101 and 6102, are governed by State Bar Rules of Procedures, Rules 600 through 608.

§ 71.96 Notices

[1] Notice of Action and Notice of Conviction

A member of the bar has a duty to report a conviction of a felony or misdemeanor to the State Bar [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(o)(5)]. In addition, the district attorney, city attorney, or other prosecuting agency must notify the State Bar of the pendency of an action against an attorney charging a felony or misdemeanor immediately on obtaining information that the defendant is an attorney [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6101(b)]. The notice must identify the attorney and describe the crimes charged and the alleged facts [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6101(b)].

The prosecuting agency must also notify the clerk of the court in which the action is pending that the defendant is an attorney, and the clerk must record prominently in the file that the defendant is an attorney [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6101(b)].

The clerk of the court in which an attorney is convicted of a crime must transmit a certified copy of the record of conviction to the State Bar within 48 hours after the conviction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6101(c)]. Within five days of receipt of the record, the State Bar must transmit the record of any conviction that involves or may involve moral turpitude to the Supreme Court, along with any other records and information that may be appropriate to establish the Court's jurisdiction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6101(c)].

The State Bar may procure and transmit a record of conviction to the Supreme Court even if the clerk has not transmitted the record or if the conviction occurred in another state [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6101(c)]. On receipt of the certified copy of the record of conviction, the State Bar must also promptly forward a certified copy of the judgment of conviction to the disciplinary agency in each jurisdiction in which the lawyer is admitted [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6092.5(c)].

[2] Notice to Attorney

Conviction proceedings are initiated in the Review Department of the State Bar Court by the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel's filing of a certified copy of the record of conviction. If the conviction is not final as defined in Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 9.10(a), at the time of the initial filing, the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel will file a supplemental record of conviction that contains a certified copy of evidence showing that the conviction has become final. Any record of conviction must be served on the respondent pursuant to Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 60 [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 600].

After the State Bar Court temporarily suspends an attorney, the State Bar must mail notice of the suspension decision to the attorney and to his or her counsel of record, if any, at their respective addresses pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1 [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(c)].

[3] Temporary Suspension of Attorney

[a] In General

When the State Bar Court receives the certified copy of the record of conviction, if it appears that the crime involved, or there is probable cause to believe it involved, moral turpitude or is a felony under the laws of California or the United States or its states or territories, the court may suspend the attorney until the judgment becomes final [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6102(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(a)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Temporary Stay. The State Bar Court has the power to order or vacate an interim suspension, and to delay the effective date of or temporarily stay the effective date of an interim suspension order [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(a); Cal. State B. Rules of Proc., Rule 320(b)]. A motion to vacate, or to delay or temporarily stay the effective date of an interim suspension order should be filed with the Presiding Judge of the State Bar Court. By Regina E. Brenner.

A probable cause recommendation may be made on an examination of the record of conviction, with the record serving as conclusive evidence of guilt for these purposes [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6101(e), 6102(f); In re Strick (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 891, 899-900, 196 Cal. Rptr. 509, 671 P.2d 1251] . If the conviction is reversed on appeal, the record no longer serves as support for the interim suspension or for a conviction proceeding [In re Strick (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 891, 900, 196 Cal. Rptr. 509, 671 P.2d 1251] .

[b] Supreme Court Review of Temporary Suspension by State Bar Court

The Supreme Court, on its own motion or for good cause shown, may set aside a suspension when it appears to be in the interest of justice to do so, with due regard being given to maintaining the integrity of and confidence in the legal profession [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6102(a)]. A petition to the Supreme Court by a State Bar member to review a decision of the State Bar Court regarding interim suspension must be filed within 15 days after written notice of the adverse decision of the State Bar Court is mailed, postage prepaid, by the State Bar to the petitioner and to his or her counsel of record, if any [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(c)]. Within 15 days after service of the petition, the State Bar may serve and file an answer [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(c)]. Within five days after service of the answer, the petitioner may serve and file a reply [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(c)].

For a form of petition to set aside a temporary suspension, see § 71.166.

[c] Supreme Court Review of Decision Declining to Place Member on Temporary Suspension

The Chief Trial Counsel may petition for review of a decision by the State Bar Court declining to place an eligible member on interim suspension, within 15 days of notice of such decision [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.14(c)]. The petition must include proof of service on the member [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 9.13(f), 9.14]. The member may file an answer within 15 days after service of the Chief Trial Counsel's petition [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 9.13(c), 9.14; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(f) (proof of service)].

[4] Definition of Felony

A crime is a felony for purposes of a disciplinary proceeding if it is so declared specifically or by Penal Code § 17(a), defining a felony, unless the crime is charged as a misdemeanor under Penal Code § 17(b)(4) or (5), irrespective of whether, as a result of the postconviction proceedings, the crime may be considered a misdemeanor under Penal Code § 17(b)(1) or (3) because of postconviction judgments imposing punishment other than imprisonment in the state prison or granting probation without imposing a sentence [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6102(b)].

[5] Definition of Moral Turpitude

The concept of moral turpitude cannot be precisely defined. It has been described as "an act of baseness, vileness or depravity in the private and social duties which a man owes to his fellow men, or to society in general, contrary to the accepted and customary rule of right and duty between man and man" [In re Strick (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 891, 901, 196 Cal. Rptr. 509, 671 P.2d 1251 ; In re Craig (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 93, 97, 82 P.2d 442] . It has also been described as any dishonest or immoral act or as crime or misconduct committed without excuse [In re Higbie (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 562, 569-570, 99 Cal. Rptr. 865, 493 P.2d 97] .

As applied to the licensing of attorneys, an act of moral turpitude is one that bears on the individual's honesty and veracity or demonstrates that the individual is unfit for the proper discharge of his or her duties as an attorney [In re Johnson(1992) 1 Cal. 4th 689, 698-699, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 170, 822 P.2d 1317 ; see Hallinan v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1966)65 Cal. 2d 447, 471-472, 55 Cal. Rptr. 228, 421 P.2d 76] . However, even where the attorney has committed no intentionally dishonest acts, a "pattern of misconduct" can amount to moral turpitude [In the Matter of Hindin (Review Dept. 1997) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 657, 685-686 (moral turpitude found where attorney habitually disregards clients' interests and fails to communicate)].

Conviction of some crimes establishes moral turpitude on its face. A crime necessarily involves moral turpitude if the conviction would in every case evidence bad moral character [In re Hallinan (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 243, 249, 272 P.2d 768 ; In re Lesansky (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 11, 16, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 409, 17 P.3d 764] . These include crimes that necessarily involve an intent to defraud or intentional dishonesty for the purpose of personal gain [In re Hallinan (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 243, 247-248, 272 P.2d 768] . It is the Supreme Court's duty to decide whether a particular crime involves moral turpitude [In re Rothrock (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 449, 454, 106 P.2d 907] . The fact of the record showing a conviction for certain crimes, including murder, forgery, extortion, bribery, perjury, robbery, embezzlement, and other forms of theft, shows the existence of moral turpitude [In re Rothrock (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 449, 454, 106 P.2d 907] .

Moral turpitude can be found in crimes unrelated to the practice of law [In re Lesansky (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 11, 15-18, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 409, 17 P.3d 764 (attorney's attempted commission of lewd act on child was crime necessarily involving moral turpitude)]. Additionally, even if the type of crime is not one constituting moral turpitude per se, the Court can decide that, under the facts of the particular case, the offense involved a crime of moral turpitude as a matter of law [see, e.g., In re Duggan (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 416, 422, 130 Cal. Rptr. 715, 551 P.2d 19 (although offense of contributing to delinquency of minor does not involve moral turpitude per se, on facts before it, Court held crime committed involved moral turpitude)].

The concept of moral turpitude depends on the state of public morals to some degree and may vary according to the community or the times, as well as in the degree of public harm produced by the act in question [In re Fahey (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 842, 849, 106 Cal. Rptr. 313, 505 P.2d 1369 ; In re Higbie (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 562, 570, 99 Cal. Rptr. 865, 493 P.2d 97] .

An attorney subject to a conviction proceeding has the burden of showing that the finding of moral turpitude is not supported by the evidence [In re Calaway (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 165, 169, 141 Cal. Rptr. 805, 570 P.2d 1223] . Nevertheless, the question of moral turpitude itself is one of law [In re Calaway (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 165, 169, 141 Cal. Rptr. 805, 570 P.2d 1223] .

An attorney convicted of a crime that is a felony under California or federal law, or the law of another U.S. state or territory, is subject to summary disbarment, if an element of the crime is the specific intent to deceive, defraud, steal, or make or suborn a false statement, or the crime involves moral turpitude [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6102(c); see In re Paguirigan (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 1, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 402, 17 P.3d 758 (summary disbarment following felony conviction for forgery); In re Lasansky (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 11, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 409, 17 P.3d 764 (summary disbarment following felony conviction for attempted child molestation)].

[6] Other Misconduct Warranting Discipline

The case law is unclear as to the extent to which an attorney may be disciplined in a conviction proceeding under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6101 and 6102 for conduct that does not involve moral turpitude [see In re Morales (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 1, 5-6, 196 Cal. Rptr. 353, 671 P.2d 857 ; In re Rohan (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 195, 202-203, 145 Cal. Rptr. 855, 578 P.2d 102 ; In re Fahey (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 842, 849-854, 106 Cal. Rptr. 313, 505 P.2d 1369] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Criminal Conviction May Result in Discipline. Attorneys should be aware that any criminal conviction may result in disciplinary charges. In addition, attorneys have a duty to report any conviction to the State Bar, and a failure to do so may result in disciplinary charges. By Regina E. Brenner.

Before 1973, when the Supreme Court was notified that an attorney had been convicted of a crime that might involve moral turpitude and referred a case to the State Bar, the Court asked the State Bar only for a determination of whether moral turpitude was involved [see In re Rohan (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 195, 202-203, 145 Cal. Rptr. 855, 578 P.2d 102] . In 1973, in In re Fahey, the Court determined that an attorney should be subject to discipline only if he or she committed a crime involving moral turpitude, dishonesty, or corruption or if he or she abandons his or her professional responsibilities [In re Fahey (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 842, 853, 106 Cal. Rptr. 313, 505 P.2d 1369] .

After Fahey, the Court referred to the State Bar for a determination of whether the facts and circumstances surrounding the commission of the offense involved moral turpitude "or other misconduct warranting discipline" [see In re Rohan (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 195, 203, 145 Cal. Rptr. 855, 578 P.2d 102] .

In 1978, in In re Rohan the Court ordered an attorney suspended from practice following his conviction for willfully failing to file a federal income tax return. The State Bar, to whom the Court had referred the case for findings and a recommendation regarding discipline, had found that the attorney had not committed an act of moral turpitude, but that discipline was warranted (although the State Bar board could not agree on the discipline to be imposed). Although sixmembers of the Court voted in favor of imposing discipline consisting of actual suspension, there was no majority opinion concerning the rationale for the decision. Three separate opinions, each concurred in by two justices, presented three separate rationales.

The first opinion expressed the view that an attorney may be disciplined for criminal misconduct that "demeans the integrity of the legal profession and constitutes a breach of the attorney's responsibility to society," even in the absence of a finding of moral turpitude or a breach of an attorney's responsibilities in the performance of professional services [In re Rohan (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 195, 203-204, 145 Cal. Rptr. 855, 578 P.2d 102 (opinion of Clark, J.)]. The second opinion found the standard in the first opinion too vague and stated that discipline should be limited to cases involving moral turpitude, which should be defined as conduct that indicates unfitness to practice law [In re Rohan (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 195, 205-206, 145 Cal. Rptr. 855, 578 P.2d 102 (opinion of Tobriner, Acting C.J.)]. The third opinion favored retention of the Fahey standard [see In re Rohan (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 195, 206, 145 Cal. Rptr. 855, 578 P.2d 102 (opinion of Sullivan, J.)].

In In re Morales, an attorney was disciplined following his conviction for willful failure to pay certain employment taxes. The State Bar hearing panel and Review Department found that the attorney had not committed an act involving moral turpitude, but that his conviction involved "other misconduct warranting discipline," and recommended 18 months' suspension, to be stayed pending fulfillment of certain probationary conditions. In adopting the State Bar's recommendation, the Supreme Court noted that the Rohan decision had not resolved the question of whether moral turpitude was a prerequisite to the imposition of discipline based on Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6101, 6102, and 6106, but the Court found it unnecessary to resolve the issue because the conduct involved in Morales was sufficiently similar to the conduct involved in Rohan to warrant discipline under each of the approaches taken in the three Rohan opinions [see In re Morales (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 1, 5-6, 196 Cal. Rptr. 353, 671 P.2d 857 ; see also In the Matter of Respondent N (1993) 2 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 502, 507-508 (conviction of unemployment insurance violations conclusive evidence of member's guilt, but because conviction did not inherently involve moral turpitude, State Bar Court required to decide whether facts and circumstances of conviction involved moral turpitude or other basis for attorney discipline; attorney's conviction for failing to pay taxes withheld from employee wages warranted discipline because it involved misuse of employee trust funds, called into question attorney's ability to advise others on proper business practices, and involved willful decision to pay other creditors rather than state)].

Counsel should note that the State Bar now has an expanded role in determining whether a particular offense is of a nature warranting discipline. As of December 1, 1990, the State Bar Court has the power to conduct disciplinary proceedings with respect to discipline of attorneys convicted of crimes [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(a)]. Thus, the initial determination of whether conviction-related misconduct warrants discipline now rests entirely with the State Bar Court; this determination is no longer in the nature of a mere "recommendation" to the California Supreme Court. Following the State Bar Court's final ruling concerning temporary suspension, however, the State Bar Court's determination is subject to review in the California Supreme Court if the suspended member petitions for review [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(c) see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.16(a) (grounds for review)].

[7] Summary Disbarment

[a] Offenses and Convictions Before January 1, 1997

In certain cases, the State Bar Court will summarily recommend the disbarment of an attorney. For offenses and convictions occurring before January 1, 1997, if it is determined that the crime for which the attorney was convicted is a felony, after the judgment of conviction has become final or after an order granting probation and suspending the sentence has been made (irrespective of whether the attorney subsequently withdraws a plea of guilty or nolo contendere under Penal Code § 1203.4), the Supreme Court must summarily recommend the disbarment of the attorney if the offense meets both of the following additional criteria [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6102(c); Cal. Rule of Ct., Rule 9.10(a) (State Bar Court as exercising statutory powers granted to Supreme Court by Bus. & Prof. Code § 6102(c))]:

- An element of the offense for which the attorney was convicted is the specific intent to deceive, defraud, steal, or make or suborn a false statement.

- The offense was committed in the course of the practice of law or in a manner such that a client of the attorney was a victim.

Summary disbarment may be recommended based on the attorney's victimization of a client, even if the crime did not occur in the practice of law, and even if the betrayal of the client's trust occurred after the client's death [see In the Matter of Lilly (1993) 2 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 473, 478-479] .

If the victims of the attorney's criminal conduct are not clients, the actual criminal offense, not merely the circumstances related to its commission, must have been committed in connection with the practice of law for Bus. & Prof. Code § 6102(c) to be an appropriate basis for disbarment [see In re Utz (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 468, 482-483, 256 Cal. Rptr. 561, 769 P.2d 417 ; see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 6102(c) (if client was victim of offense, attorney may be disbarred under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6102(c) even if offense not committed in course of practice oflaw)]. For purposes of summary disbarment, the term "practice of law" includes appearances in a court proceeding on behalf of another party [see In re Utz (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 468, 482-483, 483 n.11, 256 Cal. Rptr. 561, 769 P.2d 417] .

If the attorney's crimes did not occur in the practice of law or victimize a client, the State Bar may not summarily recommend disbarment, and the attorney is entitled to a hearing on the appropriate degree of discipline [In the Matter of Brazil (1994) 2 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 679, 687] .

The Supreme Court has noted in dicta, that the summary disbarment procedure may be applicable retroactively to conduct predating January 1, 1986 [see In re Ford (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 810, 816 n.6, 244 Cal. Rptr. 476, 749 P.2d 1331] .

[b] Offenses and Convictions After December 31, 1996

For offenses and convictions occurring after December 31, 1996, summary disbarment may be recommended for felony convictions under the laws of California or the United States or any of its states or territories. In addition, the requirement that the offense be committed in the course of the practice of law was eliminated, and the nature of the felony required was changed, so that an element of the offense must be the specific intent to deceive, defraud, steal, or make or suborn a false statement, or involve moral turpitude [*In the Matter of Oheb (Review Dept. 2004)--Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr.--, 2004 Calif. Op. LEXIS 5, *11-18 (for summary disbarment, attorney must commit crime involving moral turpitude); In the Matter of Jolly (1997) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 740 ; see In the Matter of Jebbia (Review Dept. 1999) 4 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 51 (summary disbarment law may not be applied retroactively to offense occurring before December 31, 1996, even where conviction on offense occurs after December 31, 1996)].

Any State Bar Court decision recommending disbarment may be reviewed by the California Supreme Court if the disbarred attorney petitions for review [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(a)]. The Court will order review when it appears necessary to settle important questions of law, the State Bar Court has acted without or in excess of its jurisdiction, the petitioner did not receive a fair hearing, the State Bar Court's decision is not supported by the weight of the evidence, or the recommended discipline is not appropriate in light of the record as a whole [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.16(a)].

The attorney must file the petition for review no later than 60 days after the certified copy of the State Bar Court's decision is filed with the clerk of the Supreme Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(a); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(e) (contents of petition), (f) (service of petition)]. If no petition for review is filed within the 60-day period or if the Supreme Court denies review, the State Bar Court's recommendation of disbarment will be filed as an order of the Supreme Court Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 9.16(b), 9.18(b)].

[8] Final Order

[a] In General

In cases not meeting the criteria stated in Bus. & Prof. Code § 6102(c) (discussed in § 71.96[7]) warranting summary disbarment, the State Bar Court decides whether to make a final order recommending disbarment or suspension or to dismiss the case [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6102(d); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(a) (State Bar Court as exercising statutory powers granted to Supreme Court by Bus. & Prof. Code § 6102(d)); *In the Matter of Oheb (Review Dept. 2004)--Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr.--, 2004 Calif. Op. LEXIS 5, *47-55 (court review whether disbarment appropriate for attorney who paid capper and who was involved in staged accidents for purposes of insurance fraud)].

The determination is made (1) after the attorney has been given notice and an opportunity to be heard, and (2) after the judgment of conviction has become final or an order granting probation and suspending imposition of a sentence has been made, irrespective of whether, when the probationary period is over, the plea of guilty or nolo contendere or the conviction is withdrawn or set aside under Penal Code § 1203.4 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6102(d)]. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(a) states that the judgment of conviction is deemed final when the availability of appeal has been exhausted and the time for filing a petition for certiorari in the United States Supreme Court on direct review of the judgment of conviction has elapsed and no petition has been filed, or, if filed, the petition has been denied, or the judgment of conviction has been affirmed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(a)].

[b] Review by Supreme Court

If the State Bar Court recommends suspension or disbarment as final discipline, the attorney may seek review of the recommendation in the California Supreme Court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(a)]. The Chief Trial Counsel has a similar right to seek review if the State Bar Court dismisses the postconviction proceedings or recommends suspension [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.14(a)].

The Supreme Court will order review when it appears necessary to settle important questions of law, the State Bar Court has acted without or in excess of jurisdiction, petitioner did not receive a fair hearing, the decision is not supported by the weight of the evidence, or the recommended discipline is not appropriate in light of the record as a whole [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.16(a)]. To obtain review, the attorney or Chief Trial Counsel must file a petition for review in the Supreme Court within 60 days after the certified copy of the State Bar Court's decision has been filed with the clerk of the Supreme Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 9.13(a), 9.14(a)]. The party opposing the petition may file an answer to the petition within 15 days after service, and the petitioner may serve and file a reply within five days after service of the answer [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 9.13(a), 9.14].

If no petition for review is filed within the 60-day period or if the Supreme Court denies review, the recommendation of the State Bar Court will be filed as an order of the California Supreme Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 9.16(b), 9.18(b)].

For a form of petition to review a final order of discipline in a conviction proceeding, see § 71.167.

§ 71.97 Suspension of State Bar Member for Delinquency in Support Payments

Any State Bar member, active or inactive, failing to pay child support after it becomes due will be subject to Welf. & Inst. Code § 11350.6, which requires compliance with support orders [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6143.5; see Welf. & Inst. Code § 11350.6].

The State Bar of California is authorized to transmit to the Supreme Court on an annual basis the names of those members listed by the State Department of Social Services (DSS) as delinquent in their payments of court-ordered child or family support with a recommendation for their suspension from the practice of law [Cal. Rules Ct., Rule 9.22(a)].

On receipt of the certified consolidated list, provided by the DSS on or about February 1 of each year, the State Bar must notify those State Bar members whose names appear on the list that they will be suspended for noncompliance with a judgment or order for child or family support, unless on or before the 150th day after the February 1 due date for payment of the annual membership fee, the State Bar has received a release from the district attorney who submitted the name of the member on the DSS certified list. The notice must include the address and telephone number of the district attorney who submitted the name of the member on the certified list and also inform the member that suspension for noncompliance will not relieve the member of the obligation to pay the annual membership fee and that any fee already paid will not be refunded. The notice must be made personally or by mail to the attorney's official membership records address [Cal. State B. Rules & Regulations, art. I, § 13(A)].

When the 150-day period expires, the Secretary of the State Bar must deliver to the Board of Governors a list of all members whose names appear on the DSS certified consolidated list and for whom no district attorney's release has been received. At its next meeting, the Board of Governors must make a recommendation for the suspension of the delinquent members, and a certified copy of the recommendation must then be filed with the Clerk of the California Supreme Court. On receipt of an order from the Court suspending a member for delinquent support payments, written notice of the suspension must be given to a member at his or her official membership records address [Cal. State B. Rules & Regulations, art. I, § 13(B)].

The State Bar may assess an administrative surcharge against a member whose name appears on the DSS certified consolidated list [Cal. State B. Rules & Regulations, art. I, § 13(E); see Welf. & Inst. Code § 11350.6(n)].

Reinstatement of a suspended State Bar member may occur only after receipt of notification from the State Bar that the member's name has been removed from the DSS certified list [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.22(a); Welf. & Inst. Code § 11350.6(b)]. On receipt of the district attorney's release, the Secretary of the State Bar must certify the fact of the receipt of the release to the Clerk of the Supreme Court, and the member may be reinstated pursuant to order of the Supreme Court [Cal. State B. Rules & Regulations, art. I, § 13(C)].

§ 71.98 Expedited Disciplinary Proceedings After Imposition of Discipline in Another Jurisdiction

[1] In General

The Business and Professions Code and the California State Bar Rules of Procedure provide a procedure for an expedited disciplinary proceeding in California of attorneys who have been disciplined outside of California [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6049.1; Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 620-625]. In any disciplinary proceeding under the State Bar Act, a certified copy of a final order made by any court of record or any body authorized by law or by rule of court to conduct disciplinary proceedings against attorneys, of the United States or of any state or territory of the United States or of the District of Columbia, determining that a member of the State Bar of California committed professional misconduct in the other jurisdiction is conclusive evidence that the member is culpable of professional misconduct in California, subject only to the exceptions in Bus. & Prof. Code § 6049.1(b), set forth under § 71.98[2] [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6049.1(a)]. A proceeding based on a determination of professional misconduct in another jurisdiction is a formal, original disciplinary proceeding, which is initiated by filing and serving a notice of disciplinary charges [see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 621].

[2] Issues

The issues in the expedited proceeding are limited to the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6049.1(b)(1)-(3)]:

- The degree of discipline to be imposed.

- Whether, as a matter of law, the member's culpability determined in the proceeding in the other jurisdiction would not warrant the imposition of discipline in California under the laws or rules binding on members of the State Bar at the time the member committed misconduct in that other jurisdiction, as determined by the previous disciplinary proceedings of theother jurisdiction.

- Whether the proceedings of the other jurisdiction lacked fundamental constitutional protections.

The member subject to the proceeding has the burden of establishing that the issues in subparagraphs (2) and (3), above, do not warrant the imposition of discipline in California [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6049.1(b)].

[3] Commencement of Proceeding

An expedited disciplinary proceeding is commenced by filing with the clerk of the State Bar Court a notice of disciplinary charges (discussed in § 71.61[1]), and by serving a copy of the notice on the respondent [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 621(a)]. The notice may recite, as its only basis, and must have attached thereto and incorporated therein, a certified copy of the findings and final order of the other jurisdiction imposing discipline on the respondent with sufficient detail to permit identification of the foreign disciplinary proceeding [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 621(b)].

Within 20 days after service of the notice, the respondent must file a response with the clerk and must serve a copy of the response on the Office of Trial Counsel. The response must be limited to the issues set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 6049.1(b)(1)-(3) [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 621(c); see § 71.98[2]].

[4] Hearing in Expedited Proceedings

Formal discovery shall not be conducted unless the State Bar Court so orders on a showing of good cause, and then only on the terms and conditions ordered [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6049.1(c); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 623]. A certified copy of any portion of the record of the previous disciplinary proceedings of another jurisdiction conducted pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6049.1(a) is admissible in evidence and may be part of the record of the expedited proceeding [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6049.1(d); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 624].

[5] Effect on Other Proceedings

Bus. & Prof. Code § 6049.1 does not prohibit the initiation of any appropriate proceedings under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6044 (giving the State Bar authority to investigate specified subjects), 6101, or 6102 (both sections regarding conviction proceedings, discussed under § 71.95) concerning any member of the State Bar based on the member's conduct in another jurisdiction, whether or not the member is licensed as an attorney in the other jurisdiction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6049.1(e)].

§ 71.99 Rule 9.20 Proceedings for Failure to Comply With Duties of Disbarred, Suspended, or Resigned Attorneys

[1] Duties to Clients, Cocounsel, Opposing Counsel, and Adverse Parties

Under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20, the Supreme Court may include in an order disbarring or suspending a State Bar member or accepting his or her resignation a direction that the member shall, within such time limits as the Supreme Court may prescribe, do any or all of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20(a)]:

- Notify all clients being represented in pending matters and any cocounsel of the attorney's disbarment, suspension, or resignation and his or her consequent disqualification to act as an attorney after the effective date of disbarment, suspension, or resignation.

- In the absence of cocounsel, notify the clients of the disbarred, suspended, or resigned attorney to seek legal advice elsewhere, calling attention to any urgency in seeking the substitution of another attorney or attorneys.

- Deliver to all clients being represented in pending matters any papers or other property to which the clients are entitled, or notify the clients and any cocounsel of a suitable time and place where the papers and other property may be obtained, calling attention to any urgency for obtaining the papers or other property.

- Refund any part of fees that have not been earned.

- Notify opposing counsel in pending litigation or, in the absence of counsel, the adverse parties of the attorney's disbarment, suspension, or resignation and consequent disqualification to act as an attorney after the effective date of disbarment, suspension, or resignation, and file a copy of the notice with the court, agency, or tribunal before which the litigation is pending for inclusion in the respective file or files.

The notice provisions of Rule 9.20 contemplate advance notice to existing clients of the attorney's prospective inability to represent their interests [Athearn v. State Bar (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 38, 45, 184 Cal. Rptr. 728, 648 P.2d 950] . The operative date for identification of clients being represented in pending matters and of others to be notified under Rule 9.20 is the filing date of the Supreme Court's order for compliance [Athearn v. State Bar (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 38, 45, 184 Cal. Rptr. 728, 648 P.2d 950] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Disbarred or Resigned Attorneys Failure to Comply With 955. The State Bar may request that the Superior Court assume jurisdiction overthe law practice of a member pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6180, as a result of disbarment or resignation and failure to comply with Rule 9.20. By Regina E. Brenner.

All notices required by an order of the Supreme Court or the State Bar Court pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20, must be given by registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, and must contain an address where communications may be directed to the disbarred, suspended, or resigned State Bar member [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20(b)].

The State Bar Court has the power, for good cause, to extend the time within which a State Bar member must comply with the provisions of Rule 9.20 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(d)].

[2] Attorney's Affidavit

Within such time as the order may prescribe after the effective date of the State Bar member's disbarment, suspension, or resignation, the member must file with the Clerk of the Supreme Court an affidavit showing that he or she has fully complied with the provisions of the Rule 9.20 order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20(c)]. The affidavit must also set forth an address where communications may be sent to the member [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20(c)].

[3] Sanctions for Failure to Comply

A disbarred or resigned member's willful failure to comply with the provisions of Rule 9.20 is a ground for denying his or her application for reinstatement or readmission [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20(d)]. A suspended member's willful failure to comply is a cause for disbarment or suspension and for revocation for any pending probation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20(d); see Alberton v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 638, 639, 238 Cal. Rptr. 374, 738 P. 2d 720 , cert. denied 484 U.S. 973 (disbarment of attorney for willful failure to comply with provisions of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20)].

Furthermore, willful failure to comply with an order under Rule 9.20 may be punished as a contempt or a crime [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20(d)]. Willful failure by a member, or one who has resigned or been disbarred, to comply with an order of the Supreme Court to comply with Rule 9.20 constitutes a crime punishable by imprisonment in the state prison or county jail [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6126(c); see also Penal Code §§ 17(b) (crime punishable by imprisonment in state prison or county jail may be punished as misdemeanor or felony offense), 18 (punishment for felony), 19 (punishment for misdemeanor)].

The term "willful," as used in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20, means simply a purpose or willingness to commit the act or omission. It does not require any intent to violate law, to injure another, or to acquire any advantage [Durbin v. State Bar (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 461, 467, 152 Cal. Rptr. 749, 590 P.2d 876] . Willfulness in the context of Rule 9.20 is not necessarily dependent on knowledge of the provision that is violated [see Powers v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 337, 341, 243 Cal. Rptr. 386, 748 P.2d 324] . Bad faith is not a prerequisite to a finding of a willful failure to comply with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20 [Durbin v. State Bar (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 461, 467, 152 Cal. Rptr. 749, 590 P.2d 876] .

If an attorney apparently has failed to comply with a Rule 9.20 order, the Supreme Court may refer the matter to the State Bar for determination of the issue of compliance and for a recommendation of the appropriate sanction to impose for a failure to comply [see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 580-587].

In a Rule 9.20 proceeding, the State Bar record includes all court orders and documents on file with the Clerk of the Supreme Court and the Clerk of the State Bar Court in the proceeding, including the Rule 9.20 order and all documents submitted to either court by the respondent in compliance or attempted compliance with the order or in response to the order, whether or not introduced in evidence [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 585]. The proceeding is an expedited proceeding [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 586(a)].

Rules which by their terms apply only to other specific proceedings do not apply in Rule 9.20 proceedings [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 587(a)]. All other rules apply, except that the discovery rules (Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 180-189) apply in Rule 9.20 proceedings only to the extent that discovery is permitted by Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 586 or by the Court pursuant to Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 586 [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 587(b)]. The Office of the Chief Trial Counsel may conduct discovery without leave of court as to specified limited issues; no other discovery may be conducted by any party except by leave of the State Bar Court for good cause shown [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 586(b), (c)].

§ 71.100 Reinstatement Proceedings

[1] In General

The petition for reinstatement and the reinstatement proceedings are the vehicles used to regain membership for disbarred and resigned attorneys [see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 660-666]. Applications for reinstatement must, in the first instance, be filed and heard by the State Bar Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(f)]. However, no applicant who has been disbarred by the Supreme Court on two previous occasions may apply for readmission or reinstatement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(f)].

If an attorney is dissatisfied with the State Bar Court's decision concerning reinstatement, he or she may petition for review in the California Supreme Court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(d) (requiring petition to be filed within 60 days after written notice of decision is mailed to petitioner)]. In addition, the Chief Trial Counsel may petition for Supreme Court review from a recommendation that a reinstatement petition be granted [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule9.14(b) (requiring petition to be filed within 15 days from filing of recommendation with Supreme Court)].

[2] Earliest Time for Filing Petition

After resignation without charges pending, a first or subsequent petition for reinstatement may be filed at any time [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 662(a)].

Except as provided in the order of disbarment, no petition for reinstatement may be filed within five years after the effective date of the petitioner's disbarment or interim suspension following criminal conviction, or the filing date of the petitioner's resignation with charges pending, whichever occurred earliest [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 662(b)].

No petition for reinstatement may be filed unless and until the petitioner has provided satisfactory proof to the State Bar Court that he or she has paid all discipline costs imposed pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068.10(a) and all reimbursement for payments made by the Client Security Fund as a result of the petitioner's conduct, plus applicable interest and costs, pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6140.5(c) [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 662(c)].

A subsequent petition for reinstatement following disbarment or resignation with charges pending may not be filed earlier than two years after the effective date of an adverse decision upon a prior petition, unless a shorter period is ordered by the State Bar Court for good cause [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 662(d)].

[3] Contents and Form of Petition and Accompanying Documents

A petition for reinstatement must be verified by the petitioner and addressed to the State Bar Court. An original and three copies must be filed with the clerk. The petition must be on the form approved by the Court and completed in compliance with the instructions set forth on the form [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 661(a)].

The petitioner must serve a copy of the petition on the Office of Trials, accompanied by two sets of original fingerprints on record cards furnished by the State Bar. The State Bar uses and retains these fingerprints to establish the applicant's identity and to determine the applicant's character and fitness for reinstatement [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6054; Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 661(b)].

The Court will not file the petition unless is it accompanied by a proof of service establishing compliance with the service requirements specified in State Bar Rules of Procedure, Rule 661(b). The petition must also be accompanied by the appropriate filing fee [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 661(c)].

[4] Investigation

Within 120 days from the filing of the petition with the State Bar Court, the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel must investigate the petition to determine whether it will be opposed. This investigation period may be extended by the Court for good cause [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 663(a)].

Discovery may be conducted after the end of the investigation period in accordance with State Bar Rules of Procedure, Rules 180 through 189 (see § 71.64[1]), as long as formal discovery is completed within 120 days after the filing of the petition (unless the Court extends the time period). The time limits set forth in State Bar Rules of Procedure, Rule 182, must be computed from the date of the filing of the petition, not from the date of service of or due date for the responsive pleading [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 663(b)].

State and local law enforcement and licensing bodies and departments must give reasonable assistance and information, including providing state and local summary criminal history information, to the State Bar in connection with a reinstatement investigation or proceeding [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6054]. Fingerprints of the applicant are also used to establish the identity of the applicant and determine whether the applicant has a record of criminal conviction in California or in other states [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6054].

The information obtained as a result of fingerprinting an applicant is limited to the official use of the State Bar in establishing the applicant's identity and in determining the character and fitness of the applicant for reinstatement, and in discovering prior and subsequent criminal arrests of an applicant, member, or applicant for reinstatement [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6054]. All fingerprint records of members reinstated must be retained by the State Bar for the limited purpose of criminal arrest notification [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6054].

[5] Requirements for Readmission

Applications for readmission or reinstatement must, in the first instance, be filed and heard by the State Bar Court. Applicants for readmission or reinstatement must [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(f)] [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 665(b); see In the Matter of Ainsworth (Review Dept. 1998) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 899]:

- Pass a professional responsibility examination.
- Establish their rehabilitation and present moral qualifications for readmission.
- Establish present ability and learning in the general law.

Applicants who resigned without charges pending more than five years before filing an application for reinstatement or readmission must establish present ability and learning in the general law by providing proof, at the time of filing the application, that they have taken and passed the Attorneys' Examination administered by the Committee of Bar Examiners within five years prior to the filing of the application for readmission or reinstatement. Applicants who resigned with charges pending or who were disbarred must establish present ability and learning in the general law by providing proof, at the time of filing the application for readmission or reinstatement, that they have taken and passed the Attorneys' Examination by the Committee of Bar Examiners within three years prior to the filing of the application for readmission or reinstatement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(f)].

The petitioner also must show proof of passage of the Professional Responsibility Examination not more than one year before filing the petition for reinstatement [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 665(a)].

The burden of proving rehabilitation is on the petitioner, and the burden is a heavy one [Tardiff v. State Bar (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 395, 403, 165 Cal. Rptr. 829, 612 P.2d 919 ; Feinstein v. State Bar (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 541, 546, 248 P.2d 3] . Rehabilitation requires a lengthy period of exemplary conduct [In the Matter of Ainsworth (Review Dept. 1998) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 899] . One seeking reinstatement after disbarment should be required to present stronger evidence of present moral fitness than one seeking admission for the first time, whose character has never been in question [Stanley v. State Bar (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 555, 570, 268 Cal. Rptr. 183, 788 P.2d 697 ; Calaway v. State Bar (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 743, 745-746, 225 Cal. Rptr. 267, 716 P.2d 371] .

In determining whether the petitioner has met the burden, the evidence of present character must be considered in the light of the moral shortcomings that resulted in the imposition of discipline [Tardiff v. State Bar (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 395, 403, 165 Cal. Rptr. 829, 612 P.2d 919 ; Roth v. State Bar (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 307, 313, 253 P.2d 969] .

If the petitioner has an otherwise respectable record, lack of repentance for prior conduct will not automatically disqualify the petitioner from reinstatement, and lack of repentance may, indeed, be considered as evidence of good character [Calaway v. State Bar (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 743, 747-748, 225 Cal. Rptr. 267, 716 P.2d 371] .

A minor omission in the petition for reinstatement will not necessarily disqualify the petitioner if the petitioner did not intend to mislead the State Bar or to conceal derogatory information [see Calaway v. State Bar (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 743, 748, 225 Cal. Rptr. 267, 716 P.2d 371 (failure to disclose details of ancillary judicial proceedings)].

How the petitioner proves rehabilitation will depend on the nature of the misconduct that resulted in the disbarment. If the offense involved misappropriation of funds, restitution is the first step toward rehabilitation [see Hippard v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 1084, 1092-1095, 264 Cal. Rptr. 684, 782 P.2d 1140 (attorney's failure to make restitution properly considered in denying reinstatement)]. The testimony of attorneys, judges, and friends about thepetitioner's current reputation for honesty and integrity is entitled to great weight [see Tardiff v. State Bar (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 395, 403, 165 Cal. Rptr. 829, 612 P.2d 919 ; Preston v. State Bar (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 643, 651, 171 P.2d 435] .

[6] Reinstatement Hearing

The clerk of the State Bar Court must serve notice of the hearing on the parties. The Office of the Chief Trial Counsel may publish the fact that a petition for reinstatement has been filed with the Court, identifying the petitioner and other relevant information identifying the proceeding [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 664].

The hearing on the petition is similar to hearings in original disciplinary proceedings. However, one major difference is that the petitioner has the burden of proving rehabilitation and present learning in the law [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(f); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 665(b), (c); Tardiff v. State Bar (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 395, 403, 165 Cal. Rptr. 829, 612 P.2d 919] . Another difference is that the five-year period for initiating a disciplinary proceeding is inapplicable at a reinstatement hearing [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 51(g); see § 71.52[2]].

The hearing is public [see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 20]. The rules regarding discovery and stipulations as to facts and dispositions in disciplinary proceedings also apply to reinstatement proceedings [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 666].

§ 71.101 Inactive Enrollment Motion Based on Attorney's Failure to Comply With Fee Arbitration Award

When an attorney fails to comply with a fee arbitration award, the Presiding Arbitrator may file an inactive enrollment motion with the State Bar Court [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6203(d); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 701(a)]. The attorney has 10 days following service of the motion within which to file and serve a response [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 702(a)].

If the attorney does not file and serve response, and if it appears to the State Bar Court that the requirements for involuntary inactive enrollment are satisfied, the Court must forthwith file an order placing the attorney on involuntary inactive enrollment. The order is effective five days after service unless otherwise ordered [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 702(b)].

If the attorney files a response, or if the Court denies the motion notwithstanding the lack of a response, the Presiding Arbitrator may file an amendment or supplement to the motion within five court days from service of the response or of the Court's order denying the motion [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 702(c)].

If the attorney files a response stating that the arbitration award has been paid in full or that he or she is willing to comply with a payment plan satisfactory to the client or the Presiding Arbitrator, the Presiding Arbitrator may withdraw the motion [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 703]. If the attorney files a timely response to the motion requesting a hearing, a hearing must be set by the State Bar Court on not less than 20 days' notice [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 704].

The Presiding Arbitrator has the burden of showing by clear and convincing evidence that the attorney failed to comply with the arbitration award and has not proposed a payment plan acceptable to the client or the State Bar, or that the attorney has agreed to a payment plan but has failed to make one or more payments required by the plan [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 705(a)].

The attorney has the burden of showing by clear and convincing evidence that any of the following are true [Cal State B. Rules Proc., Rule 705(b)]:

- The attorney is not personally responsible for making or ensuring payment of the arbitration award;
- The attorney is unable to pay the award or payments due under a previously agreed-upon plan; or
- The attorney has proposed and agrees to comply with a payment plan the State Bar has unreasonably rejected as unsatisfactory.

No discovery is permitted during these proceedings except to the extent permitted by the State Bar Court for good cause [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 706]. Issues that may be raised at a hearing are limited to whether any of the following are true as to the attorney as the award debtor [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 707(a)]:

- Has failed to comply with the arbitrarion award or with a previously agreed-on payment plan.
- Has proposed a payment plan acceptable to the client or the State Bar, or which the State Bar has unreasonably rejected as unsatisfactory.
- Is personally responsible for making or ensuring payment of the arbitration award.
- Is unable to pay the arbitration award or any payments due under a previously agreed-on payment plan.

The written order on the motion, unless otherwise stated, is effective five days after service [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 708(b)(1)]. On submission by the Presiding Arbitrator of a bill of costs, the State Bar Court must award reasonable costs to the State Bar [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 708(b)(2)]. If the Court finds that the State Bar unreasonably declined to approve a payment plan proposed by the attorney, the Court may deny the motion and order the attorney to comply with a payment plan satisfactory to the Court [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 708(c)].

When an attorney has paid the arbitration award in full, as well as any costs or penalties assessed as a result of his or her failure to comply with the award, the attorney may move to terminate the involuntary inactive enrollment [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 710].

§ 71.120 Post-Trial Motions for Reconsideration, New Trial, and to Reopen Record

Within 15 days after service of the decision in a disciplinary proceeding, a party may make a motion in the Hearing Department for reconsideration or for a new trial [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 223(a), 224(a)]. The grounds for a motion for reconsideration are (1) new or different facts, circumstances or law, as that ground is applied in civil matters under Code of Civ. Proc. § 1008; and/or (2) the order or decision contains one or more errors of fact and/or law based on the evidence already before the Court [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 224(b)]. A motion for a new trial must be accompanied by one or more declarations setting forth the facts that the moving party contends justify a new trial, under the standards for granting a motion for a new trial in civil actions [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 223(b)]. For discussion of motions for a new trial in civil proceedings generally, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial .

A party may also make a motion in the Hearing Department to reopen the record in the proceeding to present additional evidence at any time before the expiration of the time to request review by the Review Department [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 222(a); see § 71.121[5]]. The motion to reopen must be accompanied by one or more declarations stating the substance of new evidence the moving party desires to present and showing all of the following [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 222(b)]:

- The evidence is newly discovered and could not with reasonable diligence have been discovered and produced earlier;
- The evidence is not merely cumulative and is the best available evidence on the issue; and
- Consideration of the evidence would probably lead to a different result.

For a form for a motion for reconsideration, see § 71.168. For a form for a motion for a new trial or to reopen the record to present additional evidence, see § 71.169.

These post-trial motions are governed by the rules applicable to motions in general [see § 71.62], except that they must be in writing and the opposing party must file and serve a written response within 15 days of service of the motion [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 221(a)]. The time to seek review of the Hearing Department's ruling on a post-trial motion commences on service of the ruling [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 221(b)(1)].

§ 71.121 Review Department

[1] Overview and Function

The Review Department of the State Bar Court is the appellate department that reviews determinations of the Hearing Department [see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 3.02, 300-311, 1001]. Its function is to ensure that recommended discipline is uniform and in accordance with Supreme Court precedents. The Review Department consists of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086.65(a)]:

- The Presiding Judge of the State Bar Court.
- Two Review Court Judges appointed by the Supreme Court.

The Review Department decides matters before it en banc [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 305(c)]. Two judges of the Review Department constitute a quorum [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 305(c)]. A majority vote of the judges of the Review Department present and voting is sufficient to take action or arrive at a decision in matters before the Review Department [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 305(c)]. If one or more of the three judges is disqualified or unavailable to serve in a matter, the Presiding Judge may designate a hearing judge of the State Bar Court to act in place of the unavailable judge, provided that the hearing judge did not take part in the consideration or decision of the matter in the Hearing Department [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 305(e)]. If the Presiding Judge is disqualified or unavailable, the Lawyer Review Judge will act in place of the Presiding Judge, unless the Presiding Judge has designated another judge for this purpose [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 305(e)].

[2] [Reserved]

[3] Waiver of Review by Review Department

After service of a decision or order of the Hearing Department requiring action by the Supreme Court, if none of the parties intends to seek review by the Review Department and the parties desire the recommentation to be transmitted to the Supreme Court without delay, the parties may file a stipulation waiving review by the Review Department. The stipulation must be accompanied by a certificate of costs from the Office of the Chief Trial Counsel (if applicable). On the filing of the stipulation, the Clerk of the State Bar Court must transmit the record to the Supreme Court on an expedited basis [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 251].

[4] Petition for Interlocutory Review

Interlocutory review is available as provided in the State Bar Rules of Procedure with respect to significant issues that require intervention of the Review Department prior to completion of proceedings in the Hearing Department and that are not readily remediable after trial [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 300(a)]. A party may seek interlocutory review by filing a petition with the Review Department for review of the challenged order within 15 days of service of a written order by a judge of the Hearing Department or the making of an oral order on the record, whichever is later [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 300(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Interlocutory Review. State Bar Rules of Procedure, Rule 300, is a limited type of review by the State Bar Court Review Department that is intended to provide parties with an expedited procedure in which the scope of review is limited. By Regina E. Brenner.

Unless otherwise ordered by the Review Department, no response to a petition for interlocutory review is required unless the Review Department grants review. If review is granted, the responding party may file and serve a response within 10 days of the service of the order granting review [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 300(e)].

The standard of review in a proceeding for interlocutory review is abuse of discretion or error of law [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 300(k)]. The issues raised by the petition and response will be decided by the Review Department without oral argument, unless the Department orders otherwise [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 300(j)]. The Review Department may summarily deny the petition before the time to file a response has expired if it concludes that the petition does not clearly demonstrate that the hearing judge's order was erroneous or does not present a significant issue that would materially affect the outcome of the proceeding in the Hearing Department [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 300(i)]. The Review Department may deny the petition, or may grant the petition in whole or in part [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 300(l)].

A party who intends to file a petition for interlocutory review, and who seeks to stay proceedings in the Hearing Department pending disposition of the petition, must make a motion to the hearing judge for a stay [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 300(h)].

[5] Request for Review of Decision That Fully Disposes of Entire Proceeding

Unless expressly provided otherwise in the rules governing a particular type of proceeding, all decisions, orders, or rulings by hearing judges that fully dispose of an entire proceeding are reviewable by the Review Department at the request of any party. A request for review must be filed within30 days after service of the hearing judge's decision if no post-trial motions have been filed, or within 30 days after service of the hearing judge's ruling on any post-trial motion [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 301(a)].

The party requesting review must file with the State Bar clerk's office one original copy of the request and four copies [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1300(a)]. For a form of request for review, see § 71.170.

The Presiding Judge may grant permission for late filing of a request for review, on motion of the requesting party and for good cause shown [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1301].

[6] Record on Review and Augmentation of Record

The party requesting review must order and pay for a trial transcript, unless the Presiding Judge orders otherwise [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 31, 301(a)(2); Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1311].

On the filing of a timely request for review, the State Bar Court Clerk's office will prepare the record on review, which consists of all pleadings, applications, and motions filed in the formal proceedings under review, as well as the decision of the Hearing Department judge and all other orders relating to the matter under review. The record also includes all exhibits offered or received in evidence and all tape recordings and transcripts of testimony relating to the matter under review [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1310].

In general, the Review Department will only consider the evidence that was made a part of the record in the Hearing Department, or which was offered and excluded in the Hearing Department and which the Review Department determines should not have been excluded [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 306(a)]. However, on its own motion or at the request of a party, the Review Department may take judicial notice of orders and decisions of the Supreme Court or the State Bar Court arising out of any State Bar Court proceeding involving the party who is the subject of the proceeding under review [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 306(b)]. The Review Department may also augment the record to admit other judicially noticeable facts or stipulated facts, such as those bearing on restitution or rehabilitation occurring subsequent to the conclusion of evidentiary proceedings before the hearing judge [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 306(c)].

A party may file a motion to augment the record, or to remand the proceeding to present evidence occurring subsequent to the conclusion of evidentiary proceedings before the hearing judge. The Review Department may appoint a hearing judge as a referee to receive evidence and make proposed additional findings of fact based on this evidence [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 306(d)].

A motion or stipulation for augmentation or correction of the record must be filed and served on the date the appellant's opening brief is due [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 306(e)(1)]. All other parties must file and serve a response to the motion on the date the responsive brief is due [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 306(e)(2)]. The Review Department will grant a request for augmentation or correction of the record only if it determines that the original record is incomplete or incorrect [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 306(e)(3)].

[7] Supporting and Responsive Briefs

Within 45 days after service of the request for review or service by the clerk of the trial transcript, whichever occurs later, the appellant must file and serve an opening brief [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 302(a)]. A responsive brief must be filed and served within 30 days after service of the appellant's brief [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 303(a)]. The appellant may file and serve a rebuttal brief within 15 days after service of the responsive brief [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 303(b)].

A brief of amicus curiae may be filed on order of the Presiding Judge and subject to any prescribed conditions [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1321].

Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1320, sets forth the requirements for briefs filed in the Review Department.

[8] Withdrawal of Request for Review

At any time before notice of the time and place of oral argument, the party who requested review may withdraw the request by filing and serving a notice of withdrawal [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1302(a)].

After the State Bar Court clerk has served notice of the time and place of oral argument, the request for review may be withdrawn only by order of the Presiding Judge on written motion by the party who sought review [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1302(b)].

A withdrawal of request for review nullifies the request and leaves standing the decision of the Hearing Department as the final decision of the State Bar Court [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1302(c)].

[9] Oral Argument

Except as the rules otherwise provide, the Review Department must give the parties an opportunity for oral argument. The parties may waive oral argument at any time, but not less than five days prior to the date set for oral argument. Unless oral argument is waived or the parties agree to a shorter period of notice, written notice of the time and place of oral argument must be served on the parties at least 30 days prior to the oral argument [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 304].

In a matter before the Review Department, each side has a maximum of 20 minutes for oral argument, except as the Presiding Judge may otherwise direct. The Presiding Judge may extend the time for oral argument on motion filed and served at least 10 days before the oral argument and for good cause shown [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1330].

During the time allotted each side, judges of the Department may ask questions of counsel for that side. Argument is confined to the record of the State Bar proceedings in the matter under review and to applicable legal authorities. Counsel for the party seeking review must commence the argument, and may reserve any unused allotted time for rebuttal. When review has been sought by more than one party or the matter has been set for hearing by the Review Department on its own motion, the deputy trial counsel must commence the argument [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1330].

The Review Department regularly hears oral arguments in San Francisco and in Los Angeles. Ordinarily, oral argument will be scheduled in the venue in which the trial took place. By written request filed with the clerk at least 10 days before the date of oral argument, counsel entitled to present oral argument may request to do so by a conference telephone system operated by the State Bar Court. The Review Department may, however, require counsel to appear in person [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1331].

[10] Decision

The Review Department must independently review the record and may adopt findings, conclusions, and a decision or recommendation at variance with those of the hearing judge. However, the hearing judge's findings of fact resolving issues of credibility of witnesses must be given great weight [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 305(a)].

The Review Department may determine issues not raised by the parties, but must permit the parties to file supplemental briefs regarding these issues [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 305(b)].

The Review Department may remand a proceeding to the Hearing Department for a new trial on specified issues, for a trial de novo, or for other proceedings. Proceedings on remand must be held before the same hearing judge, unless the Review Department orders otherwise or that judge is unavailable [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 305(a)].

If the Review Department recommends disbarment, it must include in its opinion an order that the respondent be placed on involuntary inactive enrollment. The inactive enrollment is effective on personal service or three days after service by mail, whichever is earlier [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(c)(4); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 305]. If the recommendation of disbarment is subsequently changed to a lesser discipline, the order for involuntary inactive enrollment must be vacated [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 490].

Decisions of the Review Department are not subject to reconsideration unless the Department orders otherwise on its own motion or on a party's request for reconsideration filed and served within 15 days after service of the decision [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 309(a)].

Published opinions of the Review Department may be cited as precedent in State Bar Court proceedings [see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 310].

[11] Summary Review

A third type of review is called "summary review." The Review Department may summarily review matters raising limited issues on review that can be decided without a transcript of the entire record or the normal briefing schedule.

Summary review matters include but are not limited to matters in which no challenge has been made to the hearing judge's material findings of fact. Summary review is available for three issues [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 308(a)]:

- Contentions that the facts support conclusions of law different from those reached by the hearing judge;
- Disagreement as to the appropriate disposition or degree of discipline; or
- Other questions of law.

The rules regarding decisions of the Review Department, augmentation of the record, and reconsideration are applicable to matters subject to summary review [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 308(d)]. However, the rules regarding request for review, briefs, and oral argument are not applicable in summary review proceedings [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 308(d)]. Instead, special rules apply regarding requests for review, briefs, and oral argument [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 308(e)-(g)].

§ 71.122 Supreme Court Review

[1] Notice and Right to Review

If the State Bar makes a decision recommending suspension or disbarment of a member, the State Bar must immediately file a certified copy of the decision, the transcript, and the findings with the Supreme Court Clerk [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6081; see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 6081.1 (State Bar not required to transcribe oral testimony unless ordered by Supreme Court or requested by party at party's expense)]. On the enrollment of a member of the State Bar as an inactive member or on termination of enrollment or refusal to terminate enrollment, the State Bar must immediately give appropriate written notice to the member and to the Supreme Court Clerk [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6081].

Any attorney complained against and any person whose reinstatement the State Bar may refuse to recommend may request to have the State Bar's decision reviewed by the Supreme Court in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the Court [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6082; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(a)]. The Supreme Court, however, will only order review of a decision recommending disbarment or suspension if it appears that any of the following are true [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.16(a)]:

- Review is necessary to settle important questions of law.
- The State Bar Court has acted without or in excess of jurisdiction.
- The petitioner did not receive a fair hearing.
- The State Bar Court's decision is not supported by the weight of the evidence.
- The recommended discipline is not appropriate in light of the record as a whole.

At any time before final disposition of the State Bar Court's decision imposing suspension or disbarment, the Supreme Court may remand the matter to the State Bar Court with instructions to conduct such further proceedings as the Supreme Court deems necessary [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.17].

If review is denied, the denial constitutes a final judicial determination on the merits. Following denial of review, the State Bar Court's recommendation is filed as an order of the Supreme Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.16(b)].

The Chief Trial Counsel of the Office of Trial Counsel may, as prescribed by the Supreme Court, petition the Court for a different disposition of a matter than that recommended by the Review Department or the Board of Governors to the Court [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6079.5; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.14]. For discussion of the situations in which the Chief Trial Counsel may petition for review, see § 71.122[3].

[2] Procedure on Review

[a] General Procedural Requirements in Supreme Court Review Proceedings

A petition to the Supreme Court for review of a State Bar Court decision must meet all of the following requirements [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(e)]:

- It must be verified.
- It must specify the grounds relied on for review.
- It must show that review within the State Bar Court has been exhausted.
- It must address why review is appropriate under one or more of the grounds set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.16(a) [see § 71.122].
- It must have attached a copy of the State Bar Court decision from which relief is sought.

All petitions, briefs, reply briefs, and other pleadings filed by a petitioner with respect to review proceedings in the Supreme Court must be accompanied by proof of service of three copies on the General Counsel of the State Bar at the San Francisco office of the State Bar and of one copy on the Clerk of the State Bar Court at the Los Angeles office of the State Bar Court. The State Bar must serve the member at his or her address pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1 and his or her counsel of record, if any [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(f)].

[b] Transmittal of Recommendation to Supreme Court

Unless otherwise ordered by the State Bar Court, a recommendation of suspension or disbarment and the accompanying record must be transmitted to the Supreme Court after both of the following are true [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 250]:

- The disciplinary recommendation of the State Bar Court has become final.
- All applicable cost certificates have been filed, or an additional thirty (30) days has expired, whichever is earlier.

[c] Review of Recommendation of Disbarment or Suspension

A member who seeks Supreme Court review of the State Bar Court's recommendation of suspension or disbarment must file a petition for review with the Supreme Court within 60 days after the State Bar files the decision recommending discipline with the Court [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6083(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(a); see also § 71.122[2], for discussion of general requirements concerning petitions for review]. For a form of petition, see § 71.171.

The State Bar may serve and file an answer to the petition within 15 days of service. Within five days after service of the answer, the petitioner may serve and file a reply. If the court grants review, the State Bar must serve and file a supplemental brief within 45 days after the order granting review is filed. Within 15 days of service of the State Bar's brief, the member may serve and file a reply brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(a); see also § 71.122[2], regarding general procedural requirements].

[d] Review of Recommendation to Set Aside Stay of Suspension or to Modify Probation

A petition to the Supreme Court by a State Bar member to review a recommendation of the State Bar Court that a stay of an order of suspension be set aside or that the duration or conditions of probation be modified on account of a violation of probation must be filed within 15 days after the filing with the Clerk of the Supreme Court of a certified copy of the decision complained of [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(b); see § 71.122[2] regarding general procedural requirements].

Within 15 days after service of the petition, the State Bar may serve and file an answer. Within five days after service of the answer, the petitioner may serve and file a reply [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(b)].

[e] Review of Interim Decisions

A petition to the Supreme Court by a State Bar member to review a decision of the State Bar Court regarding interim suspension, the exercise of powers delegated by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(b)-(e), or on another interlocutory matter must be filed within 15 days after written notice of the adverse decision of the State Bar Court is mailed, postage prepaid, by the State Bar to the petitioner and to his or her counsel of record, if any, at their respective addresses pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(c); see § 71.122[2] regarding general procedural requirements].

The petition must be accompanied by a record adequate to permit review of the ruling. If the record is not submitted, the Court may summarily deny the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(e) (specifying contents of record)].

Within 15 days after service of the petition, the State Bar may serve and file an answer. Within five days after service of the answer, the petitioner may serve and file a reply [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(c)].

[f] Review of Other Decisions

The time period for filing a petition for review of any State Bar action other than a disbarment or suspension, an order or recommendation to set aside a stay of suspension, a modification of the duration or conditions of probation on account of a violation of probation, or an interim decision is 60 days after written notice of the action complained of is mailed, postage prepaid, to the petitioner, addressed to the petitioner at his or her address pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(d); see § 71.122[2] regarding general procedural requirements]. Thus, a petition to review, reverse, or modify a decision reproving a member of the State Bar, enrolling a member as an inactive member, or refusing to restore a member to active membership pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007 must be filed within 60 days after service of notice of the decision or action [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6083(b)].

The petition must be accompanied by a record adequate to permit review of the ruling. If the record is not submitted, the Court may summarily deny the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(e) (specifying contents of record)].

The State Bar may serve and file an answer and brief within 15 days after service of the petition. Within five days after service of the answer, the petitioner may serve and file a reply. If the Supreme Court orders review, the State Bar may serve and file a supplemental brief within 45 days after the order for review is filed. The petitioner may then serve and file a reply brief within 15 days after service of the State Bar's supplemental brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(d)].

[3] Review at Request of Chief Trial Counsel

The Chief Trial Counsel may petition for review of recommendations and decisions of the State Bar Court, as follows [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.14; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6079.5]:

- From recommendations that a member be suspended, within 60 days of filing of the recommendation with the Supreme Court.

- From recommendations that the duration or conditions of probation be modified or a reinstatement application be granted, within 15 days of the filing of the recommendation with the Supreme Court.

- From decisions not to place an eligible member on interim suspension, or vacating interim suspension, or a denial of a petition brought under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(c) (involuntary enrollment in inactive status), within 15 days of notice as provided by the rules adopted by the State Bar.

- From decisions dismissing disciplinary proceedings or recommending reproval, within 60 days of notice as provided by the rules adopted by the State Bar.

Proceedings under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.14, with regard to briefing and service of process and applicable time periods therefor correspond to proceedings brought under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13, and its corresponding subdivisions, except that the rights and duties of the member and the State Bar in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13, are reversed [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.14].

[4] Effect of State Bar Court Orders When No Review Sought

Unless otherwise ordered, if no petition for review is filed within the time allowed by rule concerning a recommendation of the State Bar Court for the disbarment or suspension of a member (60-day period), the vacation of a stay (15-day period), or modification of the duration or conditions of a probation (15-day period), the recommendation of the State Bar Court will be filed as an order of the Supreme Court following the expiration of the time for filing a timely petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.18(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 9.13(a), (b), 9.14(a), (b)]. The Clerk of the Supreme Court will mail notice that the State Bar Court's recommendation has been entered as an order of the Court to the member at his or her address pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6002.1 and to the State Bar [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.18(b)].

[5] Oral Argument

Once the briefing process has been completed, the matter will be set for oral argument, generally in either San Francisco or Los Angeles, depending on the Court's calendar [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.248(a)]. When counsel or the member is advised of the date and time for argument, the clerk will provide a form in which counsel can indicate the amount of time requested for argument. The maximum amount of time for oral argument is 30 minutes [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.256(b)]. The member or counsel generally argues first, and the State Bar argues second [cf. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.256(c) (appellant generally has right to open and close)].

[6] Burden of Proof

In petitioning the Supreme Court for review of the State Bar's recommendation, the burden is on the petitioner to show that the decision or action is erroneous or unlawful [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6083(c); Trousil v. State Bar (1985) 38 Cal.

3d 337, 341, 211 Cal. Rptr. 525, 695 P.2d 1066 ; McCray v. State Bar (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 257, 263, 211 Cal. Rptr. 691, 696 P.2d 83] . There is a presumption that the State Bar's findings are supported by the evidence, and, thus, the petitioner has the burden of showing that the findings are not supported by the evidence [Stuart v. State Bar (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 838, 844, 221 Cal. Rptr. 557, 710 P.2d 357 ; Dixon v. State Bar (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 335, 341, 216 Cal. Rptr. 432, 702 P.2d 590 ; Trousil v. State Bar (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 337, 341, 211 Cal. Rptr. 525, 695 P.2d 1066] . The petitioner's burden may be met by a demonstration that the charges of unprofessional conduct are not sustained by convincing proof to a reasonable certainty [Stuart v. State Bar (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 838, 844, 221 Cal. Rptr. 557, 710 P.2d 357 ; McCray v. State Bar (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 257, 263, 211 Cal. Rptr. 691, 696 P.2d 83] . Merely repeating conflicts in the evidence does not satisfy this burden [Kelly v. State Bar (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 649, 656, 247 Cal. Rptr. 608, 754 P.2d 1104] .

[7] Determination of Discipline

The findings of the Hearing Department and Review Department are not binding on the Supreme Court, and the Court independently weighs the evidence and makes its own factual determinations [Stuart v. State Bar (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 838, 843, 221 Cal. Rptr. 557, 710 P.2d 357 ; McCray v. State Bar (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 257, 263, 211 Cal. Rptr. 691, 696 P.2d 83] . The Court also exercises its independent judgment in determining the appropriate discipline in any given case [In re Nevill (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 729, 734, 217 Cal. Rptr. 841, 704 P.2d 1332 ; Garlow v. State Bar (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 912, 916, 180 Cal. Rptr. 831, 640 P.2d 1106] . The Court may impose different or more severe discipline than that imposed by the State Bar if warranted by the circumstances of the case [Stuart v. State Bar (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 838, 846-847, 221 Cal. Rptr. 557, 710 P.2d 357] . The Court will give less weight to the State Bar's recommendation when the recommendation is based on an ambiguous set of findings [see Carter v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1091, 1100, 245 Cal. Rptr. 628, 751 P.2d 894] . If the findings rest primarily on testimonial evidence, however, the Court is generally reluctant to reverse the decision of the State Bar because the panel hearing the case is in a better position to evaluate conflicting statements after observing the demeanor of the witnesses and the character of their testimony [Gary v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 820, 826, 244 Cal. Rptr. 482, 749 P.2d 1336 ; Stuart v. State Bar (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 838, 843-844, 221 Cal. Rptr. 557, 710 P.2d 357] .

If there is a conflict between the hearing panel and the Review Department, the recommendation of the Review Department is generally given greater weight by the Court than that of the hearing panel [Athearn v. State Bar (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 38, 46, 184 Cal. Rptr. 728, 648 P.2d 950 ; see Coppock v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 665, 677-678, 244 Cal. Rptr. 462, 749 P.2d 1317] .

The Court generally requires a showing of specific prejudice for procedural errors to invalidate the determination of the hearing panel. The rules of criminal procedure do not apply in attorney discipline proceedings, and reversible error will be found only when the errors complained of resulted in a deprivation of a fair hearing [Calvert v. State Bar (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 765, 778, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 684, 819 P.2d 424] . Normally, the Court will not consider new evidence, especially when the evidence was available at the time of the State Bar hearings [In re Utz (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 468, 481, 256 Cal. Rptr. 561, 769 P.2d 417] .

The discipline ultimately imposed by the Court must be consistent with its purpose, that is, of protecting the public, the courts, and the legal profession from unfit practitioners [In re Nevill (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 729, 734, 217 Cal. Rptr. 841, 704 P.2d 1332 ; In re Possino (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 163, 168, 207 Cal. Rptr. 543, 689 P.2d 115] . In determining the discipline to impose, the Court considers each case on its own facts [In re Nevill (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 729, 734, 217 Cal. Rptr. 841, 704 P.2d 1332 ; Toll v. State Bar (1974) 12Cal. 3d 824, 831, 117 Cal. Rptr. 427, 528 P.2d 35] . It also takes into account any mitigating or aggravating factors [In re Nevill (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 729, 734, 217 Cal. Rptr. 841, 704 P.2d 1332 ; Tarver v. State Bar (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 122, 133, 207 Cal. Rptr. 302, 688 P.2d 911] .

The Supreme Court is not bound by past disciplinary results in prior similar Supreme Court cases, although the Court may consider prior results in assessing discipline [Rodgers v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 300, 318, 256 Cal. Rptr.

381, 768 P.2d 1058 (rejecting Review Department recommendation of disbarment when, in prior Court opinions, conduct similar to that at issue had been punished by actual suspension, probation, or both)].

For discussion of factors affecting determination of the proper discipline, including consideration of aggravating and mitigating circumstances by Supreme Court, see § 71.31[5].

[8] Order of Discipline

If no petition to review, reverse, or modify has been filed within the time allowed or the petition has been denied, the decision or order of the State Bar Court is final and enforceable [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6084(a)]. If a petition to review or to reverse or modify is filed by either party within the time allowed, the Supreme Court must make any order it may deem proper in the circumstances [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6084(a)]. Notice of the order must be given to the member and to the State Bar [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6084(b)]. Unless otherwise ordered, all orders of the Supreme Court imposing discipline or opinions deciding causes involving the State Bar become final 30 days after filing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.18(a); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.264(a)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Order of Discipline. The effective date of the Supreme Court order imposing discipline is important in determining compliance with terms and conditions imposed under the order. By Regina E. Brenner.

[9] Rehearing

A petition for rehearing may be filed within the time generally provided for petitions for rehearing in civil cases, which is 15 days after the filing of the decision [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6084(c); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.268(b), 9.18(a)]. An answer to the petition may be served and filed within 23 days after the filing of the decision [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.268(b)]. A rehearing may be granted on petition, or on the Court's own motion, at any time before the decision becomes final, that is, within 30 days after the decision is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.264(a), 8.268(a), 9.18(a)]. The petition is deemed denied if no order regarding the rehearing is made before the decision becomes final [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.268(c)].

Unless otherwise ordered, when petitions for review of interim orders pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 9.13(c) and 9.14(c), are acted on summarily, the orders of the Supreme Court are final forthwith and will not have law-of-the-case effect in subsequent proceedings in the Supreme Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.18(a)].

§ 71.123 Court of Appeal Review

Persons complained against and persons whose reinstatement is denied by the State Bar may petition for review in the courts of appeal following disciplinary action by the State Bar [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6082]. Review must take place "in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the California Supreme Court" [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6082]. However, the Supreme Court has established no procedure for review of State Bar disciplinary actions by the courts of appeal. Thus, it appears that appellate review must be sought through the Supreme Court.

§ 71.124 Contempt

The State Bar may bring a contempt action against a member of the State Bar for that member's willful failure to comply with a disciplinary order or an order of the Supreme Court, or any part of an order [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6084(d)]. The contempt action may be brought in any of the following venues [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6084(d)]:

- The Los Angeles or San Francisco Superior Court.
- The superior court of the county of the member's address as shown on current State Bar membership records.
- The superior court of the county in which the act or acts occurred.
- The superior court of the county in which the member's regular business address is located.

Changes of venue may be requested pursuant to the provisions in the Code of the Civil Procedure governing venue [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6084(d); see Code Civ. Proc. § 392 et seq. (governing place of trial of civil actions)].

§ 71.144 Decisions

[1] Abstention of Federal Courts

Federal court properly abstains from considering challenge to constitutionality of attorney disciplinary rules that are subject of pending state court disciplinary proceeding, in absence of bad faith, harassment, or other exceptional circumstances. Middlesex County Ethics Committee v. Garden State Bar Ass'n (1982) 457 U.S. 423, 435-437, 102 S. Ct. 2515, 73 L. Ed. 2d 116

[2] Augmentation of Record

Supplemental statement of facts submitted by attorney after stipulation of facts executed by all parties was admissible even without referee approval when petitioner had been informed by State Bar that supplemental statement could be filed and statement did not contradict earlier stipulation. Wells v. State Bar (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 199, 206-208, 203 Cal. Rptr. 134, 680 P.2d 1093

Refusal of disciplinary board of State Bar to allow attorney to augment record at oral argument is not denial of due process when attorney fails to comply with State Bar Rules of Procedure. Alkow v. State Bar of California (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 924, 933, 92 Cal. Rptr. 278, 479 P.2d 638

[3] Complainant

Motivation in initiating investigation has little bearing on sufficiency of evidence to support factual findings of Crane v. State Bar of California (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 117, 123, 177 Cal. Rptr. 670, 635 P.2d 163

[4] Consolidation

State Bar not required to consolidate multiple disciplinary matters involving same attorney. Rhodes v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 50, 57, 260 Cal. Rptr. 266, 775 P.2d 1035

[5] Continuances

Attorney's request for continuance of disciplinary proceeding was properly denied when attorney was not diligent in avoiding necessity of continuance, request was made at last possible moment, and State Bar had gone to great expense to fly inout-of-state witness. Chang v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 114, 125, 260 Cal. Rptr. 280, 775 P.2d 1049

[6] Delay

Five-year delay between filing of complaint and issuance by State Bar of notice to show cause was not unreasonable when most of delay resulted from pendency of civil action that arose out of same transaction as disciplinary action. Rodgers v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 300, 311, 256 Cal. Rptr. 381, 768 P.2d 1058

Delay does not bar imposition of discipline in itself, but is factor to be considered in deciding what discipline is appropriate. Chefsky v. State Bar (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 116, 132, 202 Cal. Rptr. 349, 680 P.2d 82

[7] Discipline

[a] Disbarment

Habitual disregard by attorney of clients' interests is ground for disbarment, even when such neglect is grossly negligent or careless, rather than willful and dishonest. Farnham v. State Bar (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 429, 446, 253 Cal. Rptr. 249, 763 P.2d 1339 ; In the Matter of Hindin (Review Dept. 1997) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 657, 685-686

Disbarment is appropriate penalty for repeated acts of misappropriation, in absence of strong extenuating circumstances. Rosenthal v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 658, 662, 238 Cal. Rptr. 394, 738 P.2d 740

[b] Interim Suspension

Time spent by attorney on interim suspension is properly considered by Supreme Court as factor in determining whether Review Department's disciplinary recommendation is appropriate. In re Young (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 257, 268, 261 Cal. Rptr. 59, 776 P.2d 1021

Attorney is not automatically entitled, as matter of fundamental fairness, to "credit" for amount of time spent on interim suspension; interim suspension is worthy of some consideration, however, in imposition of final discipline. In re Basinger (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 1348, 1361, 249 Cal. Rptr. 110, 756 P.2d 833

[c] Mitigating Factors

[i] Candor to Court

Review Department gives respondent substantial mitigation for stipulation to facts underlying charged misconduct, in addition to other instances of cooperation, even where parties were unable to stipulate to appropriate level of discipline. In the Matter of Silver (Review Dept. 1998) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 902, 906

Attorney's candor to court in disciplinary proceedings is mitigating factor. In the Matter of Yagman (Review Dept. 1997) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 788, 807

[ii] Continued Practice Without Ethical Violations

Evidence of continued practice without further ethical violations considered in mitigation. In re Aquino (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 1122, 1131, 264 Cal. Rptr. 833, 783 P.2d 192

[iii] Emotional Problems

Attorney's emotional difficulties not considered in mitigation when difficulties are not established by expert testimony as being both "extreme" in nature and "directly responsible" for attorney's misconduct. Bercovich v. State Bar (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 116, 128, 266 Cal. Rptr. 341, 785 P.2d 889

Agoraphobia is mitigating factor only under strictest evidentiary circumstances. Lydon v. State Bar (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 1181, 1188, 248 Cal. Rptr. 830, 756 P.2d 217

[iv] Financial Problems

Financial pressures entitled to greater weight in mitigation if they are extreme and result from circumstances that are not reasonably foreseeable or beyond attorney's control. In re Naney (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 186, 196, 270 Cal. Rptr. 848, 793 P.2d 54

[v] Lack of Prior Record

Attorney's lack of prior record of discipline not entitled to great weight as mitigating factor when attorney has practiced law short time. Coppock v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 665, 686, 244 Cal. Rptr. 462, 749 P.2d 1317

Absence of prior discipline properly considered mitigating factor, but required to be considered in light of purpose of disciplinary proceedings. Cooper v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1016, 1029, 239 Cal. Rptr. 709, 741 P.2d 206 (upholding disbarment)

[vi] Preventive Measures

Attorney's engagement of management firm to avoid future misconduct was mitigating factor. Hipolito v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 621, 626-627, 257 Cal. Rptr. 331, 770 P.2d 743

[vii] Pro Bono or Volunteer Work

Attorney's zeal in undertaking pro bono work was mitigating factor. Rose v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 646, 667, 262 Cal. Rptr. 702, 779 P.2d 761

Substantial volunteer work is a mitigating factor. In the Matter of Lais (Review Dept. 1998) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 907, 926

[viii] Substance Abuse

Fact that attorney's drug addiction resulted from legitimate medical treatment was mitigating circumstance. In re Nadrich (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 271, 276, 243 Cal. Rptr. 218, 747 P.2d 1146

[d] Restitution

Attorney's failure to make restitution voluntarily to wronged clients did not constitute, in itself, affirmative basis for discipline. Kent v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 729, 736, 239 Cal. Rptr. 77, 739 P.2d 1244

[e] Suspension

Attorney who has been suspended from practice is not active member of State Bar while under suspension. In re Johnson (1992) 1 Cal. 4th 689, 696 n.2, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 170, 822 P.2d 1317

Suspension order disqualifies attorney not only from practicing law but also from holding self out as entitled to practice during suspension period. Arm v. State Bar (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 763, 775, 268 Cal. Rptr. 741, 789 P.2d 922

[8] Due Process

[a] In General

Attorney is entitled to procedural due process in disbarment proceedings, including prior notice of charge and opportunity to explain and defend. In re Ruffalo (1968) 390 U.S. 544, 550, 88 S. Ct. 1222, 20 L. Ed. 2d 117

Disbarred attorney not entitled to written opinion from California Supreme Court upholding State Bar Court's disbarment order; Supreme Court may summarily deny attorney's petition for review without violating due process. In re Rose (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 430, 448-449, 456, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 298, 993 P.2d 956

Fact that State Bar Court referees are not representative of population of California or members of State Bar did not support claim that State Bar procedures violate due process guarantees. Bernstein v. State Bar (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 221, 232-233, 266 Cal. Rptr. 625, 786 P.2d 352

Violation of statutory provision is improper basis for discipline if provision was not added until after the misconduct occurred and was not specified in either notice to show cause or stipulation of facts. Slavkin v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 894, 902, 264 Cal. Rptr. 131, 782 P.2d 270

Fact that attorney was unable to present witnesses on her own behalf at disciplinary proceeding did not constitute denial of due process when failure to present such witnesses was due to her own lack of diligence. Jones v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 273, 288, 261 Cal. Rptr. 397, 777 P.2d 170

Fact that State Bar Board of Governors oversees both "prosecutorial" and "judicial" functions in attorney discipline matters does not deprive attorney of due process right to fair hearing. Kelly v. State Bar (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 649, 655 n.8, 247 Cal. Rptr. 608, 754 P.2d 1104

Attorney's only due process entitlement in State Bar disciplinary proceeding is "fair hearing." Rosenthal v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 612, 634, 238 Cal. Rptr. 377, 738 P.2d 723

Holder of license to practice law is entitled to procedural due process in any disciplinary proceeding relating to license, including disciplinary proceedings by State Bar. Gendron v. State Bar (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 409, 420, 197 Cal. Rptr. 590, 673 P.2d 260

Due process rights of disciplined attorney require that discipline be imposed only on charges that appear in notice to show cause. Gendron v. State Bar (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 409, 420, 197 Cal. Rptr. 590, 673 P.2d 260

[b] Continuances

Denial of continuance does not deny attorney due process when attorney had ample opportunity to prepare and present defense, repeatedly failed to appear at prior scheduled proceedings, and failed to demonstrate that he was making any effort to arrange his calendar to accommodate State Bar proceedings. Hawk v. State Bar (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 589, 597-598, 247 Cal. Rptr. 599, 754 P.2d 1096

Denial of continuance to obtain presence of petitioner's retained counsel at hearing did not violate petitioner's due process when examiner had already subpoenaed witnesses for hearing and counsel's associate was available to represent petitioner at hearing. Frazer v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 564, 567-568, 238 Cal. Rptr. 54, 737 P.2d 1338

[c] Criminal Proceedings Distinguished

Attorney in State Bar proceeding does not possess same immunity from being called to testify as criminal defendant. In re Utz (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 468, 479, 256 Cal. Rptr. 561, 769 P.2d 417

Rules of criminal procedure are not applicable in State Bar disciplinary proceeding. Coppock v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 665, 676, 244 Cal. Rptr. 462, 749 P.2d 1317

State Bar disciplinary proceedings are not governed by reasonable doubt standard of proof, as in criminal trials; attorney does not have constitutional or statutory presumption of innocence. Arden v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 713, 725, 239 Cal. Rptr. 68, 739 P.2d 1236

State Bar proceedings are not comparable to criminal actions, and criminal procedural safeguards do not apply. Bambic v. State Bar (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 314, 320, 219 Cal. Rptr. 489, 707 P.2d 862

[d] Cross Examination

Lack of opportunity of accused attorney to cross examine complaining party in disciplinary proceedings was not denial of due process of law when complaining party was not witness at any part of proceeding; appearance of complaining party at disciplinary hearing was not required. Walter v. State Bar (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 880, 890-891, 87 Cal. Rptr. 833, 471 P.2d 481

[e] Double Jeopardy

Defense of double jeopardy is inapplicable in State Bar proceedings. In re Crooks (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1090, 1100-1101, 275 Cal. Rptr. 420, 800 P.2d 898

[f] Exculpatory Evidence

State Bar is under no affirmative duty to disclose exculpatory evidence at hearing. Martin v. State Bar (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 1055, 1063, 277 Cal. Rptr. 868, 804 P.2d 54

[g] Notice

Attorney cannot be disciplined for violation not alleged in notice to show cause; evidence of uncharged conduct, however, is subject to consideration for other purposes relevant to proceeding, such as to establish circumstance in aggravation. Edwards v. State Bar (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 28, 35-36, 276 Cal. Rptr. 153, 801 P.2d 396

Determination of violations of criminal offenses not charged in notice to show cause is improper subject of State Bar disciplinary proceedings. Slavkin v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 894, 903, 264 Cal. Rptr. 131, 782 P.2d 270

[h] Withdrawal of Stipulation

Refusal by Review Department to allow attorney to withdraw factual stipulation did not constitute denial of fair hearing when purported justification for withdrawal of stipulation was attorney's unsupported contention that examiner improperly withheld evidence at disciplinary hearing. Coppock v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 665, 674-676, 244 Cal. Rptr. 462, 749 P.2d 1317

Refusal by Review Department to relieve attorney of prior factual stipulation did not constitute denial of due process, notwith standing fact that attorney originally entered stipulation with hearing panel, with understanding that hearing panel would recommend no actual suspension, and that Review Department, accepting most of the hearing panel's findings based on stipulation, later imposed actual suspension; attorney is relieved from factual stipulation only when stipulation is rejected by State Bar. Schneider v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 784, 793-794, 239 Cal. Rptr. 111, 739 P.2d 1279

[9] Evidence

[a] Civil Proceeding

Nontestimonial evidence from civil proceedings to which attorney was party was properly admitted against attorney in disciplinary proceeding. Rosenthal v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 612, 622 n.11, 238 Cal. Rptr. 377, 738 P.2d 723

Admission of civil court findings, conclusions, and judgments do not impermissibly lower standard of proof in State Bar proceeding from "clear and convincing" standard to lower "preponderance" standard applicable in civil cases. Rosenthal v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 612, 634, 238 Cal. Rptr. 377, 738 P.2d 723

[b] Criminal Conviction

Record of conviction is conclusive evidence of guilt of crime; in disciplinary proceeding based on prior criminal conviction, attorney was precluded from asserting that evidence in prior criminal trial was insufficient. In re Chernik (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 467, 472-473, 261 Cal. Rptr. 595, 777 P.2d 631

[c] Exclusionary Rule

Application of exclusionary rules of evidence of criminal law to State Bar disciplinary matters. Emslie v. State Bar

(1974) 11 Cal. 3d 210, 226-230, 113 Cal. Rptr. 175, 520 P.2d 991

[d] Extrinsic Evidence

Extrinsic evidence is considered by Supreme Court when it is only means by which attorney can meet heavy burden of proving rehabilitation from serious physical or emotional problem precipitating misconduct. Slavkin v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 894, 905, 264 Cal. Rptr. 131, 782 P.2d 270

[e] Hearsay

Attorney's failure to appear at disciplinary hearing constituted waiver of any hearsay objection to evidence introduced at hearing. Bowles v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 100, 108-109, 255 Cal. Rptr. 846, 768 P.2d 65

Complimentary letters from judges and other attorneys is excludable hearsay in State Bar proceeding, in absence of stipulation to contrary. In re Ford (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 810, 818, 244 Cal. Rptr. 476, 749 P.2d 1331

[f] Inferences

Evidence that balance in trust account fell below amount credited to client was sufficient to support finding of willful misappropriation. Edwards v. State Bar (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 28, 37, 276 Cal. Rptr. 153, 801 P.2d 396

Attorney's failure to keep adequate records and proper accounts is inherently suspicious and supports inference that attorney's testimony is untrue. Rodgers v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 300, 311, 256 Cal. Rptr. 381, 768 P.2d 1058

Evidence that attorney persistently refused to account to client for client's funds in face of repeated demands to do so justified board's finding of willful misappropriation. Brody v. State Bar (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 347, 350, 113 Cal. Rptr. 371, 521 P.2d 107

[g] New Evidence

New evidence normally not considered by Supreme Court on review of State Bar disciplinary proceeding, especially when evidence was available at time of State Bar hearings. In re Utz (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 468, 481, 256 Cal. Rptr. 561, 769 P.2d 417

In Supreme Court review of State Bar recommendation, attorney is relieved from binding effects of legal conclusions of stipulation with State Bar as to facts and discipline, but remains bound by factual stipulations; thus attorney is not allowed to offer new evidence of mitigating factor. Rossman v. State Bar (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 539, 542, 216 Cal. Rptr. 919, 703 P.2d 390

[h] Testimony of Attorney

In disciplinary hearing, attorney's testimony improperly disregarded when disbelievedby State Bar but not contradicted or impeached. Edmondson v. State Bar (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 339, 343, 172 Cal. Rptr. 899, 625 P.2d 812

[10] Judicial Notice

Supreme Court takes judicial notice of matters in civil action that arise out of course of conduct underlying charges against attorney in disbarment proceedings. Yokozeki v. State Bar (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 436, 444, 113 Cal. Rptr. 602, 521 P.2d 858 , cert. denied, 419 U.S. 900

Supreme Court in review of State Bar disciplinary proceeding has power to take judicial notice of decision in civil action bearing on charges. Lee v. State Bar (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 927, 941, 88 Cal. Rptr. 361, 472 P.2d 449

[11] Malicious Prosecution

Rules of Procedure of State Bar provide for independent investigation of complaints made by persons against attorneys, and when investigation occurs or is presumed to have occurred, attorney cannot bring action for malicious prosecution, even if bar proceedings are terminated in his or her favor. Stanwyck v. Horne (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 450, 452, 194 Cal. Rptr. 228

[12] Misconduct

[a] Breach of Fiduciary Duty to Nonclient

Breach of fiduciary duty owed to nonclient is basis for attorney discipline. Hartford v. State Bar (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1139, 1153, 270 Cal. Rptr. 12, 791 P.2d 598

Even outside attorney-client context, attorney's breach of fiduciary duties owed to another warrants discipline. Morales v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1037, 1044-1045, 245 Cal. Rptr. 398, 751 P.2d 457 (misappropriation of funds from law firm's pension account was breach of fiduciary duty involving moral turpitude)

[b] Carelessness

Showing of willfulness not always necessary to establish that attorney has improperly withdrawn from employment or failed to act competently; showing of gross carelessness and negligence in failing to communicate with clients or attend to their needs is sufficient. Walker v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 1107, 1117, 264 Cal. Rptr. 825, 783 P.2d 184

Gross carelessness constitutes violation of oath of attorney to discharge faithfully duties of attorney to best of attorney's knowledge and ability. Demain v. State Bar (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 381, 387, 90 Cal. Rptr. 420, 475 P.2d 652

[c] Commingling of Client Funds

Former Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 8-101, was violated when attorney commingled funds or failed to deposit or manage funds in manner designated by rule, even if no person was injured; rule left no room for inquiry into attorney's intent. Guzzetta v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 962, 976, 239 Cal. Rptr. 675, 741 P.2d 172

Commingling is established if client's money is intermingled with that of attorney in such way that it may be used by attorney for personal expenses or be subjected to claims of attorney's creditors. Vaughn v. State Bar (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 847, 853, 100 Cal. Rptr. 713, 494 P.2d 1257

Commingling is established where attorney deposits personal monies into and uses client trust account for personal reasons, regardless of whether client monies are in account. In the Matter of Doran (Review Dept. 1998) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 871, 879

[d] Conflict of Interest

Failure of attorney to obtain written waiver of conflict from clients with conflicting interests supported discipline. Kapelus v. State Bar (1987) 44 Cal. 3d 179, 195-196, 242 Cal. Rptr. 196, 745 P.2d 917

[e] Failure to Communicate With Client

Attorney's failure to communicate with and inattention to needs of client, standing alone, constituted grounds for discipline. Lister v. State Bar (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1117, 1125, 275 Cal. Rptr. 802, 800 P.2d 1232

Attorney's repeated failure to communicate with and inattention to needs of client is proper ground for discipline, even if attorney's conduct is not willful. Kapelus v. State Bar (1987) 44 Cal. 3d 179, 188, 242 Cal. Rptr. 196, 745 P.2d 917

Attorney's failure to promptly notify client that client named as defendant in civil action as breach of fiduciary duty to communicate with client and as ground for discipline. Shalant v. State Bar (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 485, 488, 189 Cal. Rptr. 374, 658 P.2d 737

Attorney's pattern of misconduct in habitually disregarding clients' interests and failing to communicate amounted to moral turpitude and warranted disbarment. In the Matter of Hindin (Review Dept. 1997) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 657, 685-686

[f] Failure to Notify Clients of Suspension

Suspended attorney's failure to notify clients of his or her status, as required by former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 955 (now see Rule 9.20), is cause for further discipline. Athearn v. State Bar (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 38, 43-45, 184 Cal. Rptr. 728, 648 P.2d 950

[g] Failure to Perform Legal Services

Isolated instances of failure to perform services for clients (four incidents over 17-year period) warranted lighter discipline than repeated "pattern" of failure to perform services. Bledsoe v. State Bar (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 1074, 1079-1080, 278 Cal. Rptr. 80, 804 P.2d 705

Willful failure to perform legal services for which attorney was retained constitutes breach of good faith and fiduciary duty and warrants discipline. Finch v. State Bar (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 659, 665, 170 Cal. Rptr. 629, 621 P.2d 253

[h] Failure to Provide Accounting

Failure to provide proper accounting for entrusted funds is cause for discipline, whether or not financial loss has ultimately occurred. Ridge v. State Bar (1989) 47Cal. 3d 952, 961, 254 Cal. Rptr. 803, 766 P.2d 569

[i] Failure to Support Constitution and Laws

Violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(a) (duty to support Constitution and laws of United States and California) is not automatically established each time attorney commits moral turpitude or violates Rules of Professional Conduct; State Bar is required to identify with specificity how attorney's misconduct violates Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(a). Lipson v.

State Bar (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 1010, 1016, 281 Cal. Rptr. 775, 810 P.2d 1007

[j] False Personation of State Bar Examinee

False personation of State Bar examinee and taking of State Bar examination in examinee's stead are grounds for disbarment, in absence of overwhelming evidence of mitigation. In re Lamb (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 239, 241-246, 260 Cal. Rptr. 856, 776 P.2d 765

[k] Fees

Charging of unconscionable fee is basis for discipline; test for unconscionability is whether fee is so exorbitant and wholly disproportionate to services performed as to shock conscience, and test is met when fee is almost twice amount of actual award of monetary damages. Tarver v. State Bar (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 122, 134, 207 Cal. Rptr. 302, 688 P.2d 911

Attorney's failure to maintain adequate records to support claim of costs purportedly incurred on behalf of client is breach of attorney's duty to client warranting discipline. Fitzsimmons v. State Bar (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 327, 332, 193 Cal. Rptr. 896, 667 P.2d 700

Retention of client's funds without client's knowledge is improper method of collecting fees. Silver v. State Bar (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 134, 141-142, 117 Cal. Rptr. 821, 528 P.2d 1157

[l] Misappropriation of Client Funds

Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 2.2(b), requiring minimum of one-year actual suspension for willful misappropriation of entrusted funds, is not faithful to teachings of Supreme Court's decisions; lesser discipline is appropriate if mitigating factors present, such as absence of fraudulent intent. Kelly v. State Bar (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 509, 518-520, 280 Cal. Rptr. 298, 808 P.2d 808

Fact that misappropriation of client's funds did not result in harm is not determinative of whether misappropriation constitutes ground for discipline. Friedman v. State Bar (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 235, 244, 266 Cal. Rptr. 632, 786 P.2d 359

Bringing of separate disciplinary proceedings against attorney for misappropriating separate funds from separate clients on separate occasions is proper, and not barred by res judicata or laches, even if separate proceedings involve misappropriations from same client's trust account. Weller v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 670, 675 n.1, 262 Cal. Rptr. 549, 779 P.2d 293

Misappropriation of client's funds is not excused by fact that misappropriation was committed in response to duress. Hitchcock v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 690, 709, 257 Cal. Rptr. 696, 771 P.2d 394

[m] Misleading Court

Actual harm is not necessary to merit disciplinary action for misleading court and violating oath of attorney, if actual deception is intended and shown. Reznik v. State Bar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 198, 204, 81 Cal. Rptr. 769, 460 P.2d 969

Knowingly including false statement of fact in verified complaint is violation of professional duty not to mislead judge

[Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(d)] and cause for discipline under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6103. Pickering v. State Bar (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 141, 144-145, 148 P.2d 1

When looking at whether an attorney misled the court, the governing question is the nature of the conduct, not its effect on its intended hearer, or even the hearer's opinion of its gravity. Spielbauer v. County of Santa Clara (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 914, 951, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 357

Because it was probable that attorney violated Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(d) by mischaracterizing facts of case, court of appeal requested clerk to forward a copy of opinion to the State Bar of California. Mammoth Mountain Ski Area v. Graham (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 1367, 1374-1375, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 422

[n] Moral Turpitude

Discipline is properly imposed for attorney's acts involving moral turpitude whether or not they relate to conduct in attorney's professional capacity. In re Schwartz (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 395, 401, 182 Cal. Rptr. 640, 644 P.2d 833

Pattern of misconduct can amount to moral turpitude even where attorney commits no intentionally dishonest acts, such as where attorney habitually disregards clients' interests and fails to communicate. In the Matter of Hindin (Review Dept. 1997) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 657, 685-686

[o] Practicing While Suspended

Practicing law or holding oneself out as practicing or entitled to practice law while under suspension is unlawful under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6126 and is contempt under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6127. In re Johnson (1992) 1 Cal. 4th 689, 696 n.2, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 170, 822 P.2d 1317

Practice of law while under suspension is basis for discipline. Morgan v. State Bar (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 598, 602-604, 606-608, 274 Cal. Rptr. 8, 797 P.2d 1186

A "defrocked" attorney practicing law is held to a different standard then a layperson practicing law. Benninghoff v. Superior Court (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 61, 67-68, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 759

[13] Probation

Failure to file affidavit re compliance with probation conditions, as required by former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 955(c) (now see Rule 9.20(c)), is not excused by fact that attorney presently has no clients. Bercovich v. State Bar (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 116, 129-130, 266 Cal. Rptr. 341, 785 P.2d 889

[14] Rehabilitation

Requiring attorney to demonstrate his or her learning in general law at rehabilitation hearing before being able to resume practice after suspension is unwarranted if disciplined attorney's learning in general law was never at issue in disciplinary proceeding. Snyder v. State Bar (1990) 49 Cal. 3d 1302, 1311-1312, 265 Cal. Rptr. 429, 783 P.2d 1146

Rehabilitation requires lengthy period of exemplary conduct. In the Matter of Ainsworth (Review Dept. 1998) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 894, 899

[15] Reinstatement

Petitioner's failure to comply with former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 955 (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.20), properly considered as factor in denying reinstatement if there is significant infirmity in showing of rehabilitation. Hippard v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 1084, 1096-1097, 264 Cal. Rptr. 684, 782 P.2d 1140

Petitioner's discharge in bankruptcy of indebtedness to clients arising from misconduct did not preclude State Bar from considering, as indicator of rehabilitation, attorney's efforts to make restitution. Hippard v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 1084, 1088, 1092-1095, 264 Cal. Rptr. 684, 782 P.2d 1140

Petitioner seeking reinstatement is required to show by most clear and convincing evidence that efforts made towards rehabilitation have been successful. Hippard v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 1084, 1092, 264 Cal. Rptr. 684, 782 P.2d 1140

Stipulation to inactive enrollment pending Supreme Court disciplinary order is equivalent of interim suspension for purposes of Rules of Procedure specifying that petition for reinstatement may not be filed within five years after effective date of interim suspension. In re Lamb (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 239, 248-249, 260 Cal. Rptr. 856, 776 P.2d 765

In a disciplinary proceeding, when the State Bar has the burden of proving charges by clear and convincing evidence, the accused is entitled to the exercise of reasonable doubts, but in a reinstatement proceeding, when the petitioner unquestionably has the burden of presenting clear and convincing evidence of his or her qualifications, petitioner cannot be given the benefit of reasonable doubts. In the Matter of Salant (Review Dept 1999) 4 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 1, 7

Failure to comply with Bus. & Prof. Code § 6140.5(c) (obligation to reimburse Client Security Fund) does not preclude filing of reinstatement petition. In the Matter of Jaurequi (Review Dept. 1999) 4 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 56, 59

Under Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 665(a), passage of professional responsibility examination is not a condition precedent to filing of petition for reinstatement. In the Matter of Sheppard (Review Dept 1999) 4 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 91, 96-97

Petitioner seeking reinstatement based on rehabilitation must show lengthy period of exemplary conduct and present leaning and ability in the general law. In the Matter of Ainsworth (Review Dept. 1998) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 894, 899-900

[16] Review by Supreme Court

Disbarred attorney not entitled to written opinion from California Supreme Court upholding State Bar Court's disbarment order; Supreme Court may summarily deny attorney's petition for review without violating constitution. In re Rose (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 430, 448-449, 456, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 298, 993 P.2d 956

Disciplinary results in previous Supreme Court disciplinary cases are not binding on Supreme Court, though such results are entitled to consideration by Court. Rodgers v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 300, 318, 256 Cal. Rptr. 381, 768 P.2d 1058

Supreme Court accords limited weight to State Bar disciplinary recommendation based on ambiguous set of findings. Carter v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1091, 1100, 245 Cal. Rptr. 628, 751 P.2d 894

Accordance by Supreme Court of greater deference to findings of Hearing Department than to findings of Review Department was inappropriate when no findings rested on conflicting testimony, attorney was sole testifying witness at hearing, attorney appeared before Review Department, and State Bar's case rested largely on documentary evidence.

Coppock v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 665, 677-678, 244 Cal. Rptr. 462, 749 P.2d 1317

Recommendation by Review Department of State Bar Court entitled to greater weight than that of hearing panel, but Supreme Court renders ultimate determination regarding discipline. Bach v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 848, 856, 239 Cal. Rptr. 302, 740 P.2d 414

Evidence not presented to State Bar during its review process generally not considered by Supreme Court; Court particularly wary of extrinsic evidence consisting of opinions about attorney's mental attitude based largely on attorney's own out-of-court statements. Rosenthal v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 658, 663, 238 Cal. Rptr. 394, 738 P.2d 740

Supreme Court exercises independent judgment in determining appropriate punishment for professional misconduct, and when appropriate, imposes more severe discipline than that recommended by either Review Department or hearing panel. Franklin v. State Bar (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 700, 709-710, 224 Cal. Rptr. 738, 715 P.2d 699

Finding by disciplinary board that rests primarily on testimonial evidence entitled to deference; Supreme Court not compelled to set aside finding on basis of simple assertion that supporting testimony is untrue. Chefsky v. State Bar (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 116, 127, 202 Cal. Rptr. 349, 680 P.2d 82

In seeking Supreme Court review of recommendation of disciplinary board, petitioner has burden of showing findings are not supported by evidence or are otherwise improper. Wren v. State Bar (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 81, 89-90, 192 Cal. Rptr. 743, 665 P.2d 515

[17] Rules of Professional Conduct

Ignorance of Rules of Professional Conduct is not excuse for their violation. Ainsworth v. State Bar (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1218, 1234, 252 Cal. Rptr. 267, 762 P.2d 431 , cert. denied, 489 U.S. 1081

Rules of Professional Conduct intended not only to establish ethical standards for members of the bar, but also designed to protect public and to promote respect andconfidence in the legal profession. Chambers v. Kay (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 142, 158, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 536, 56 P. 3d 645 ; Ames v. State Bar (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 910, 917, 106 Cal. Rptr. 489, 506 P.2d 625

Meaning of "willful breach" as used in Bus. & Prof. Code § 6077, permitting discipline of members of State Bar for willful breach of Rules of Professional Conduct. Abeles v. State Bar of California (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 603, 610-611, 108 Cal. Rptr. 359, 510 P.2d 719

[18] Self-Incrimination

Attorney is protected by privilege against self-incrimination [U.S. Const., amend. V] in disciplinary proceeding; state is precluded from imposing disbarment as price for asserting privilege [U.S. Const., amends. V, XIV]. Spevack v. Klein (1967) 385 U.S. 511, 514, 87 S. Ct. 625, 17 L. Ed. 2d 574

Attorney against whom disciplinary proceeding is brought does not have complete immunity from testifying as does criminal defendant; attorney may be called to testify but may decline to answer questions on ground that testimony would tend to incriminate him or her [U.S. Const., amends. V, XIV; Cal. Const., art. I, § 13]. Black v. State Bar (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 676, 688, 103 Cal. Rptr. 288, 499 P.2d 968

State Bar in disciplinary proceeding not required to give admonitions to accused attorney called to testify, regarding privilege against self-incrimination [U.S. Const., amends. V, XIV; Cal. Const., art. I, § 13]. Black v. State Bar (1972)

7 Cal. 3d 676, 688, 693, 103 Cal. Rptr. 288, 499 P.2d 968

Attorney waived privilege against self-incrimination [U.S. Const., amends. V, XIV; Cal. Const., art. I, § 13] by testifying fully at his disciplinary proceeding without objecting to any question. Black v. State Bar (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 676, 688, 693, 103 Cal. Rptr. 288, 499 P.2d 968

[19] State Bar Court

Legislation permitting appointment of State Bar Court hearing judges by Governor and state Legislature, instead of California Supreme Court, does not violate separation of powers doctrine. Obrien v. Jones (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 40, 56, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 205, 999 P.2d 95

[20] Stipulations Regarding Facts and Discipline

In considering increased discipline, Supreme Court may relieve attorney of stipulation's legal conclusions, but attorney remains bound by stipulation's factual recitals. Pineda v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 753, 756, 263 Cal. Rptr. 377, 781 P.2d 1

Refusal by Review Department to allow attorney to withdraw factual stipulation does not constitute denial of fair hearing when purported justification for withdrawal of stipulation was attorney's unsupported contention that examiner improperly withheld evidence at disciplinary hearing. Coppock v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 665, 674-676, 244 Cal. Rptr. 462, 749 P.2d 1317

Attorney who enters stipulation as to facts (and not to discipline) with hearing panel in contemplation of panel's announced disciplinary recommendation is not relieved of factual stipulation when Review Department later imposes more severe discipline. Schneider v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 784, 793-794, 239 Cal. Rptr. 111, 739 P.2d 1279

Attorney was not relieved of factual stipulations made by him, even though discipline imposed was greater, because stipulation itself provided for modification of discipline. Smith v. State Bar (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 525, 533, 213 Cal. Rptr. 236, 698 P.2d 139

A stipulation for a private reproval is not breached by posting a notice of an attorneys' public record of discipline on the State Bar website. Mack v. State Bar (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 957, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341

Attorney's cooperation with disciplinary investigation by stipulating to facts which were difficult to prove is mitigating factor. In the Matter of Silver (Review Dept. 1998) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 902, 906

DECLARATION OF _____[name]
IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO QUASH SUBPOENA

I, _____ [name], declare:

1. I am _____ [identify declarant, e.g., an attorney at law who is the attorney of record herein for _____ (name of Bar member subject to disciplinary proceeding)].

2. On _____ [date], a subpoena issued in the above-entitled cause was served on _____ [name of witness], as a witness on behalf of _____ [specify, e.g., the State Bar] at the hearing of the above-entitled matter [and for the production of the following items at that hearing: _____ (specify items, e.g., the office records of _____ (name of member subject to disciplinary proceeding)].

3. _____ [State reasons why subpoena should be quashed, e.g, Good cause does not exist for the production of the subpoenaed records because the parties have entered stipulations with regard to the matters that would be covered by those records, and they are therefore irrelevant to the proceeding. A copy of the stipulation is attached hereto as Exhibit _____].

4. Therefore, it is requested that a motion to quash the above-mentioned subpoena be granted.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

CAUTION:
The motion should be supported by a memorandum and declarations pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a), Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1110, Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 105.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a motion to quash a subpoena issued in a disciplinary proceeding for the attendance of a witness at the hearing and, optionally, to quash the production of certain items by that witness [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6049(c), 6050, 6051.1 (use of subpoenas in State Bar proceedings; motions to quash)]. The form includes a statement of supporting facts in the form of a declaration under penalty of perjury as required by the California State Bar Rules of Procedure [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 105(c), 155(c)(3); see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (declaration under penalty of perjury)].

The papers must be filed in duplicate with the Clerk of the State Bar Court [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rules 1110(e), 1112]. At least one of the papers required tobe filed in duplicate must bear an original handwritten signature, as distinguished from a photocopied, typewritten, or other duplicated signature; that paper is the original of the duplicate documents filed [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1110(c)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a motion for an order abating a disciplinary proceeding because a related proceeding is pending that involves the same subject matter [see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 116]. For purposes of such a motion, a "related proceeding" is any civil, criminal, administrative, or State Bar Court proceeding in which a party, real party in interest, or witness is also a party or witness in the proceeding before the Court, or any civil, criminal, administrative, or State Bar Court proceeding that involves the subject matter of the proceeding before the Court [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 116(c)].

For discussion of Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 116, see § 71.58.

The motion must be filed in duplicate with the Clerk of the State Bar Court [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rules 1110(e), 1112]. At least one of the papers required to be filed in duplicate must bear an original handwritten signature, as distinguished from a photocopied, typewritten, or other duplicated signature; that paper is the original of the duplicate documents filed [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1110(c)].

HEARING DEPARTMENT--_____ [LOS ANGELES or SAN FRANCISCO]

In the Matter of	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	RESPONSE TO NOTICE
A Member of the State Bar.	)	OF DISCIPLINARY CHARGES

Respondent, _____ [name of attorney], responds to the notice of disciplinary charges filed herein as follows:

1. The address to which all further notices to respondent in relation to these proceedings may be sent is as follows:

_____ [street address]

_____ [city, state, and zip code]

2. Respondent specifically denies each of the allegations and charges contained in [Paragraph(s) _____ of] the notice of disciplinary charges as follows: [, except that Respondent specifically admits the following: _____ (specify any facts or charges admitted by respondent)].

3. The matter and transactions complained of, which are the subject of this proceeding, may be fully and accurately explained as follows: _____ [set forth explanation in clear and concise narrative form, using subparagraphs as necessary].

FIRST AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

_____ [Set forth any new matter alleged by way of defense, e.g., The acts charged in the notice of disciplinary charges as unlawful and unethical advertising were at all times protected by respondent's rights of freedom of speech under the Constitutions of the United States and the State of California].

SECOND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

The allegations of the notice of disciplinary charges are insufficient to chargeprofessional misconduct in that _____ [specify].

[Insert additional affirmative defenses as appropriate]

EXTENUATING AND MITIGATING CIRCUMSTANCES

In the event respondent is found culpable of unprofessional conduct as charged in the notice of disciplinary charges, respondent respectfully submits the following facts in mitigation without admitting that such charges are true or that the facts alleged therein constitute professional misconduct:

[Under separately numbered paragraphs, set forth extenuating or mitigating circumstances, such as the following:]

1. Respondent has practiced law in the State of California for _____ years without any prior charges of misconduct or prior disciplinary record. Throughout his/her professional career, respondent has successfully endeavored to maintain a high level of respect and an excellent reputation among his/her fellow attorneys and the courts for honesty, integrity, and professional competence in diligently and vigorously representing his clients.

2. During the period in which the charged acts of misconduct allegedly occurred, and between _____ and _____ [dates], respondent was experiencing serious domestic difficulties and turmoil due to a pending dissolution of his/her marriage. Because of such difficulties, respondent was emotionally unable to devote the degree of attention and service to his/her professional duties that his/her active practice demanded. As a consequence thereof, the incident complained of occurred. Since _____ [date], however, respondent has completely recovered from the difficulties of his/her dissolution of marriage and has straightened out his/her personal affairs so that he/she is now able to devote the proper attention to his/her practice and professional activities.

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, respondent prays that the Hearing Panel find that the act(s) charged did not constitute professional misconduct or, if misconduct is found, that it be excused by virtue of the mitigating circumstances submitted.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a response to a notice of disciplinary charges initiating a disciplinary proceeding for professional misconduct. For discussion of notices of disciplinary charges, see § 71.61[1].

The form provides an address to which all further notices to the respondent may be sent [see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 103(c)(1) (requiring address in response); see also Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1110(b)(1) (requiring respondent's or respondent's attorney's State Bar number to appear in "attorney identification" section of response)]. It also contests charges against the respondent by denying and/or explaining the alleged misconduct, setting forth affirmative defenses to the notice of disciplinary charges, and setting forth any mitigating circumstances [see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 103(c)(2)]. For discussion of the effect of mitigating circumstances, see § 71.31[2][b], [4].

Paragraph 2 of the form contains an optional provision for admitting facts that the responding member does not intend to dispute. Counsel for the respondent should consider carefully whether or not to admit facts in the response. On the one hand, no specific sanctions are provided for failure to admit facts that are later proved by the State Bar. On the other hand, if the respondent denies matters that were obviously true and easily susceptible to proof by the State Bar, this could arguably be deemed an aggravating factor that may increase the discipline imposed if the respondent is ultimately found culpable [see Cal. State B. Stds. for Att'y Sanctions, Std. 1.2(b)(vi) (lack of candor and cooperation during disciplinary proceedings is aggravating factor); see also § 71.31[2][b]].

The response must be filed within 20 days after service of the notice of disciplinary charges to avoid default proceedings and involuntary inactive enrollment [see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 103(a), (b)]. In a written stipulation, the parties may agree to one extension of time in which the response must be filed within 15 days before its expiration and file the said stipulation with the clerk before the original expiration date [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 103(b), 1112].

The response must be filed in duplicate with the Clerk of the State Bar Court [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rules 1110(e), 1112]. At least one of the papers required to be filed in duplicate must bear an original handwritten signature, as distinguished from a photocopied, typewritten, or other duplicated signature; that paper is the original of the duplicate documents filed [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1110(c)].

For discussion of responses to notices of disciplinary charges generally, and the required procedures with regard to responses, see § 71.61[3].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a motion to transfer the venue of the hearing of the disciplinary proceeding. Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 54(b), states that a motion for transfer of venue may be made on the ground that the proceeding was initiated in an improper venue (see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 52), or on the ground that the proceeding should be transferred for the convenience of witnesses and to promote the ends of justice. This form specifies the former ground. For discussion of Rule 54 and venue generally, see § 71.65.

The motion must be filed in duplicate with the Clerk of the State Bar Court where the proceeding is pending [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 54(a); Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rules 1110(e), 1112]. 3. _____ [Set forth facts showing good cause for continuance, e.g., At the time of my first examination of respondent, respondent informed me that he/she had been injured approximately 20 minutes earlier in an automobile collision. I found respondent to be suffering from fractures in both legs and a severe concussion. He/she was hospitalized from _____ to _____ (dates), and is presently recuperating at home. Because of the continuing effects of the accident, respondent has suffered from frequent dizzy spells and is unable to walk without assistance. To attend a court hearing would be extremely injurious to his/her health, and to testify would be dangerous to his/her physical well-being. The prognosis is good, and, in the absence of any complications, respondent should be able to attend a hearing on or after _____ (date)].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

CAUTION:
The motion should be supported by a memorandum and declarations pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a), Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1110, Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 105.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a motion for continuance of the hearing date of a disciplinary proceeding. Continuances in disciplinary proceedings are disfavored [see Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1131(a)]. Consequently, the attorney should be prepared to set forth grounds showing very good cause for the continuance and facts to support the request [see Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1131(c); Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 115]. The motion for a continuance must be accompanied by supporting declarations [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 105(c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (declaration under penalty of perjury)].

The motion must be filed in duplicate with the Clerk of the State Bar Court [Cal. State B. Provisional Rules Prac., Rules 1110(e), 1112]. At least one of the papers required to be filed in duplicate must bear an original handwritten signature, as distinguished from a photocopied, typewritten, or other duplicated signature; that paper is the original of the duplicate documents filed [Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1110(c)].

For discussion of Cal. State B. Rules Prac., Rule 1131, setting forth the requirements for obtaining a continuance, see § 71.144[8][b].

§ 71.165 Resignation With Disciplinary Charges Pending
[Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.21]

[1] FORM Resignation With Disciplinary Charges Pending
[Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.21]

RESIGNATION FROM MEMBERSHIP IN STATE BAR

I, _____ [name of member], against whom charges are pending, hereby resign as a member of the State Bar of California and relinquish all right to practice law in the State of California.

I agree that, in the event that this resignation is accepted and I later file a petition for reinstatement, the State Bar will consider in connection therewith all disciplinary matters and proceedings against me at the time this resignation is accepted, in addition to other appropriate matters.

I further agree that the Supreme Court may decline to accept my resignation unless I reach agreement with the Chief Trial Counsel on a written stipulation as to facts and conclusions of law regarding the disciplinary matters and proceedings that were pending against me at the time of my resignation.

I further agree that, on the filing of this resignation by the Office of the Clerk, State Bar Court, I will be transferred to inactive membership of the State Bar. On such transfer, I acknowledge that I will be ineligible to practice law or to advertise or hold myself out as practicing or as entitled to practice law.

I further agree that, within 30 days of the filing of the resignation by the Office of the Clerk, State Bar Court, I will perform the acts specified in California Rules of Court, Rule 9.20(a), (b) and, within 40 days of the date of filing of this resignation by the Office of the Clerk, State Bar Court, I will notify that office as specified in California Rules of Court, Rule 9.20(c).

Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use by an attorney who wishes to resign with disciplinary charges pending. The resignation must be in substantially the form specified in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.21(b) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.21(a)].

For discussion of procedure for resignation with charges pending, see § 71.90.

TO THE STATE BAR COURT OF THE STATE BAR OF CALIFORNIA:

The above-named member of the State Bar _____ [name] respectfully requests, pursuant to Business and Professions Code Section 6102(a) and Cal. State B. Rules of Proc., Rules 320(b) and 321(b), that this Court vacate the temporary suspension from membership in the State Bar of California and from the practice of law in this state, which was ordered by respondent State Bar Court on _____ [date].

In support of this motion, the member alleges:

1. Member was admitted to the State Bar of California on _____ [date], and, since that date, has been an active member in good standing of the State Bar and engaged in the practice of law in _____ [city], California.

2. Criminal proceedings were instituted against member by _____ [name of prosecuting agency] in _____ [city and county] on _____ [date], alleging the following charges: _____ [specify charges].

3. A judgment of conviction on charges of _____ [specify crime(s) of which member was convicted] was entered on _____ [date].

[EITHER]

4. The judgment of conviction will become final on _____ [date].

[OR]

4. Member _____ [has filed or will file] an appeal of the judgment of conviction on _____ [date].

[CONTINUE]

5. Member sought review of the temporary suspension on _____ [date], before the Presiding Judge of the State Bar Court, and a final ruling on the matter was obtained on _____ [date].

6. Good cause exists for the Court to vacate the temporary order of suspension of member in that _____ [specify, e.g., the crime for which member was convicted did not constitute moral turpitude (nor was it a felony under the laws of California or of the United States). _____ (Add supporting factual assertions explaining why the crime did not involve moral turpitude and/or authority for statement that the crime does not constitute a felony).]

7. The State Bar Court is authorized under Cal. State B. Rules of Proc., Rules 320(b)(1) and 321(b), to vacate an order of interim suspension issued under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(e), by the California Supreme Court following a criminal conviction.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a motion for review by the Review Department of the State Bar in order to vacate a temporary suspension ordered by the California Supreme Court under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6102(a) (immediate suspension of attorney convicted of felony or crime involving moral turpitude) [see Cal. State B. Rules of Proc., Rules 320(b)(1) and 321(b); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.10(e)].

The motion must be filed with the clerk of the State Bar Court within 15 days after the filing of the suspension order, shall show good cause for the relief request, and must show proof of service on the Director, Office of Trials [Cal. State B. Rules of Proc., Rule 321(a)(1)].

The motion can be modified to petition for review by the California Supreme Court within 15 days after written notice of the State Bar Court's adverse decision [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(c)]. In this case, the petition must be accompanied by a record adequate to permit review of the ruling by the California Supreme Court, including all of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(e)]:

- Copies of all documents and exhibits submitted to the State Bar Court supporting and opposing the petitioner's position.

- Copies of all other documents submitted to the State Bar Court that are necessary for a complete understanding of the case and the ruling.

- A transcript of the proceedings in the State Bar Court leading to the decision or, if a transcript is unavailable, a declaration by counsel (1) explaining why a transcript is unavailable, and (2) fairly summarizing the proceedings, including arguments by counsel and the basis of the State Bar Court's decision, if stated, or a declaration by counsel stating that the transcript has been ordered, the date it was ordered, and the date it is expected to be filed, which must be a date prior to any action requested of the Supreme Court other than issuance of a stay supported by other parts of the record.

TO THE HONORABLE CHIEF JUSTICE AND ASSOCIATE JUSTICES OF THE SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA:

Petitioner _____ [name] respectfully requests, pursuant to Business and Professions Code Section 6102 and California Rules of Court, Rule 9.13(a), that this Court set aside the recommendation of the respondent State Bar Court that petitioner be _____ [disbarred or suspended], which was filed with this Court on _____ [date]:

In support of the petition, petitioner alleges:

1. Petitioner was admitted to the State Bar of California on _____ [date], and, since that date, petitioner has been an active member in good standing of the State Bar and engaged in the practice of law in _____ [city], California.

2. Criminal proceedings were instituted against petitioner by _____ [name of prosecuting agency] in _____[city and county] on _____ [date], alleging the following charges: _____ [specify charges].

3. A judgment of conviction on charges of _____ [specify crime(s) of which petitioner was convicted] was entered on _____ [date].

4. The judgment of conviction became final on _____ [date].

5. On _____ [date], the respondent State Bar Court issued a decision recommending the _____ [disbarment or suspension] of petitioner. The State Bar Court's decision was based on the petitioner's conviction of _____ [specify offense].

6. Review of the State Bar Court's disciplinary recommendation has been exhausted in that _____ [specify facts showing exhaustion of State Bar remedies, e.g., review by the Review Department of the State Bar has been conducted pursuant to Rules 450-455 of the State Bar's Transitional Rules of Procedure].

7. Review of the State Bar Court's decision by the Court is proper under California Rules of Court, Rule 9.16(a), in that _____ [specify, e.g., the State Bar Court's recommended discipline is not appropriate in light of the record as a whole].

[In subsequent numbered paragraphs, as necessary, state reasons for requesting that attorney not be suspended or disbarred, addressing, whenever possible, grounds for review under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.16(a), e.g., that the offense for which petitioner was convicted had no direct effect on any of petitioner's clients or his/her practice of law, nor did it violate an ethical standard of practice, and it therefore has no bearing on petitioner's ability or fitness to practice and consequently does not constitute a crime involving moral turpitude; that the offense for which petitioner was convicted did not entail a state of mind in which intent to harm others was involved, and therefore petitioner's clients are in no danger if petitioner is allowed to continue to practice; that petitioner has already been sufficiently punished for the crime for which he/she was convicted and therefore imposition of the lesser discipline of probation or reproval would be a sufficient additional sanction; or that there are mitigating circumstances that warrant imposition of lesser discipline.]

WHEREFORE, petitioner respectfully requests that this Court issue its writ of review and that the decision of the State Bar Court be _____ [reversed or modified as follows: _____ (specify proposed modification)].

_____ [typed name]
[Attorney for] Petitioner_____ [name]

[Verification. see § 71.166.]

[Attach proof of service]

[Attach copy of State Bar Court decision from which review is sought]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a petition seeking Supreme Court review of a State Bar Court decision that recommends the disbarment or suspension of an attorney, if the recommendation was based on the attorney's conviction of a crime [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6102 (final disbarment or suspension of attorney convicted of felony or crime involving moral turpitude)].

The petition must be filed no later than 60 days after the State Bar Court has filed its decision with the clerk of the Supreme Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(a)]. It must be verified, must specify the grounds relied on, must show that review within the State Bar Court has been exhausted, and must have attached a copy of the State Bar Court decision from which relief is sought [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(e)]. In addition, the petition must address why review is appropriate under one or more of the grounds set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.16(a) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(e)]. For discussion of those grounds, see § 71.122.

The petition must be accompanied by proof of service of three copies on the General Counsel of the State Bar at the San Francisco office of the State Bar, and of one copy on the Clerk of the State Bar Court at the Los Angeles office of the State Bar Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(f)].

An original and 13 copies of the petition must be filed with the clerk of the Supreme Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.44(a)(1)]. The petition should conform in style with petitions filed in other contested civil appellate matters [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.40 (form and filing of papers), 8.486 (original proceedings)].

If review is ordered by the Supreme Court, the State Bar must serve and file a supplemental brief within 45 days after the filing of the order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(a)]. Within 15 days of service of the brief, the petitioner may serve and file a reply brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(a)].

Denial of review constitutes a final judicial determination on the merits. If review is denied, the recommendation of the State Bar Court will be filed as an order of the Supreme Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.16(b)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a motion for a new trial or to reopen the record to present additional evidence [see Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 222, 223]. It is based on the ground that there is newly discovered evidence to present to the hearing panel. The attorney should determine whether to ask for a complete trial de novo or merely for leave to present the additional evidence.

Both a motion for a new trial and a motion to reopen the record to present additional evidence must be accompanied by an affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rules 222(b), 223 (b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (form of declaration under penalty of perjury)]. Declarations in support of a motion for a new trial must set forth the facts justifying a new trial [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 223(b)]. Declarations in support of a motion to reopen the record must state the substance of the new evidence the moving party desires to present and must show that (1) the evidence is newly discovered and could not with reasonable diligence have been discovered and produced earlier; (2) the evidence is not merely cumulative and is the best available evidence on the issue; and (3) consideration of the evidence would probably lead to a different result [Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 222(b)]. For further discussion, see § 71.120.

TO THE HONORABLE CHIEF JUSTICE AND ASSOCIATE JUSTICES OF THE SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA:

Petitioner, pursuant to Business and Professions Code Sections 6082 through 6084 and California Rules of Court, Rule 9.13(a), respectfully requests that this Court issue its writ of review to _____ [reverse or modify] the decision of the respondent State Bar Court recommending that petitioner be _____ [suspended or disbarred] from the practice of law.

In support of this petition, petitioner alleges:

1. Petitioner was admitted to the State Bar of California on _____ [date], and, since that date, petitioner has been an active member in good standing of the State Bar and engaged in the practice of law in _____ [city], California.

2. On or about _____ [date], respondent State Bar of California initiated disciplinary proceedings against petitioner [on the complaint of _____ (name)]. Respondent State Bar of California, through its Office of Investigation conducted an investigation into alleged professional misconduct by petitioner.

3. On _____ [date], following its investigation, the respondent State Bar of California, through its Office of Trial Counsel, issued a notice to show cause requiring petitioner to appear before a hearing panel of the respondent State Bar Court on _____ [date], and to show cause why petitioner should not be disciplined for certain acts and conduct alleged therein. A copy of the notice to show cause is attached as Exhibit _____ and incorporated by reference.

4. Petitioner filed an answer to the notice to show cause on _____ [date], and therein stated his/her denials and defenses to the charges. A copy of petitioner's answer is attached hereto as Exhibit _____ and incorporated by reference.

5. At the hearing, which commenced on _____ [date], and continued until _____ [date], petitioner fully participated with the aid of counsel and presented witnesses and other evidence of his/her innocence of the charges. [A copy of the transcript of the hearing is attached as Exhibit _____ and incorporated by reference.]

6. The hearing panel of the State Bar Court made its decision on _____ [date], which stated that _____ [specify findings of hearing panel] and recommended that the following discipline be imposed: _____ [specify]. A copy of the decision is attached as Exhibit _____ and incorporated by reference.

7. _____ [If petitioner requested reconsideration, hearing de novo, and/orleave to present additional evidence, add: On _____ (date), petitioner filed a _____ (request for reconsideration of the hearing panel's decision or request for a hearing de novo or request for leave to present additional evidence) on the grounds that _____ (specify). A copy of that _____ (request or application) is attached as Exhibit _____ and incorporated by reference. The _____ (request or application) was _____ (denied on _____ (date) or granted on _____ (date)). The hearing panel's ruling following _____ (reconsideration or hearing de novo or the petitioner's presentation of additional evidence) was served on petitioner on _____ (date). The hearing panel's decision stated that _____ (specify hearing panel's findings following reconsideration, hearing de novo, or presentation of additional evidence) and recommended the following discipline: _____ (specify). A copy of the ruling is attached as Exhibit _____ and incorporated by reference].

8. On _____ [date], petitioner served and filed with the Clerk of the State Bar Court a written request for review of the hearing panel's decision by the Review Department of the State Bar Court. A copy of such request is attached hereto as Exhibit _____ and made a part hereof. The Review Department held a hearing on _____ (date), at which petitioner appeared and presented his/her position. [2] Use of Form

This form is a petition for review by the California Supreme Court of the decision of the State Bar recommending disbarment or suspension from practice [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6082, 6083(a)]. Such a petition is governed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(a). which is discussed in § 71.122[2][c].

The petition must be verified, must specify the grounds relied on, must show that review within the State Bar Court has been exhausted, and must have attached a copy of the State Bar Court decision from which relief is sought [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(e)]. In addition, the petition must address why review is appropriate under one or more of the grounds set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.16(a) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(e)]. For discussion of those grounds, see § 71.122.

The petition must be accompanied by proof of service of three copies on the General Counsel of the State Bar at the San Francisco office of the State Bar, and of one copy on the Clerk of the State Bar Court at the Los Angeles office of the State Bar Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13(f)].

An original and 13 copies of the petition must be filed with the clerk of the Supreme Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.44(a)(1)]. The petition should conform in style with petitions filed in other contested civil appellate matters [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.40 (form and filing of papers), 8.486 (original proceedings)].

Denial of review of a decision of the State Bar Court constitutes a final judicial determination on the merits. Following denial of review, the recommendation of the State Bar Court is filed as an order of the Supreme Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.16(b)].

Chapter 72 ATTORNEY PRACTICE AND ETHICS
PART I. SCOPE

7-72 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 72.01

§ 72.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter provides a basic overview of the principles governing conflicts of interest encountered in civil practice both in and out of litigation, and the duties owed by the attorney to his or her client from which these principles arise. The chapter provides a practical guide for identifying potential and actual conflicts and obtaining client consent to such conflicts.

It includes discussion of the following topics:

- Basic principles governing conflicts of interest [see § 72.30 et seq.].
- Parties to whom the attorney owes a duty with respect to conflicts [see § 72.50 et seq.].
- Disclosure and consent to conflicts [see § 72.70 et seq.].
- Conflicts under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-300 arising from business transactions with a client and acquisition of financial interests adverse to a client [see § 72.90 et seq.].
- Conflicts under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310 arising from representation of interests adverse to the client and relationships with persons or entities related to a representation [see § 72.110 et seq.].
- Management of conflicts involving representation of adverse interests [see § 72.130 et seq.].
- Personal relationships with another party's lawyer [see § 72.150 et seq.].
- Sexual relationships with a client [see § 72.170 et seq.].

This chapter also discusses the following topics on the creation and scope of the attorney-client relationship:

- Representation and fee agreements [see § 72.190].

- Authority of an attorney to act on a client's behalf [see § 72.220].

- Attorney advertising and solicitation [see § 72.240].

This chapter also discusses and analyzes the duty of competent representation and required communication with the client that arises in all legal representation, whether in a litigation or a nonlitigation context [see § 72.270 et seq.]. It also discusses prohibited conduct [see § 72.290 et seq.].

For coverage of civil actions against attorneys see Ch. 76, Attorney Professional Liability .

For coverage of State Bar disciplinary proceedings, see Ch. 71, Attorney Discipline .

This chapter also covers the requirements for handling client funds and maintaining client trust fund accounts, as well as the rigid disciplinary sanctions imposed on attorneys who, intentionally or not, violate these requirements [see § 72.320 et seq.]. The chapter focuses on Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-100, which has the primary purpose of preserving the identity of funds and property of a client. The chapter covers the following topics:

- The attorney's duty to preserve and segregate client funds.

- The duties regarding client trust fund accounts.

- The requirements for managing these accounts, such as notification and safekeeping, recordkeeping, and prompt payment and delivery of the client's funds and property.

This chapter also discusses the following topics for terminating the attorney-client relationship:

- The termination of the attorney-client relationship by the death or incapacity of either [see § 72.350 et seq.].

- The withdrawal of the attorney [see § 72.370 et seq.].

- The discharge or substitution of attorneys [see § 72.390 et seq.].

- Disqualification of opposing counsel for conflict of interest based on a former representation [see § 72.410 et seq.].

This chapter also covers collection of attorney's fees from clients, focusing on the following topics:

- General ethical and practical considerations involved in collecting fees [see § 72.430 et seq.].

- Civil actions to recover fees [see § 72.450 et seq.].

- Arbitration of attorney-client fee disputes [see § 72.470 et seq.].

For discussion and forms relating to the recovery of attorney's fees as an element of costs from an opposing party, as distinguished from the recovery of fees from a client, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees .

§ 72.10 Coverage of Ethical vs. Legal Issues

This chapter focuses on ethical, as distinguished from legal, issues. Nevertheless, there are many areas in which these issues overlap. Thus a number of related legal, or nondisciplinary, topics are covered as well, such as legal, nondisciplinary disqualification for violation of the ethical duty to avoid conflicts of interest (see § 72.410 et seq.), legal measures for fee collections (see § 72.450 et seq.), and the legal scope of authority in representing a client (see § 72.220 et seq.).

It is important to recognize that while an attorney's ethical and legal obligations often overlap, they are not identical. For example, an attorney may breach an ethical duty and be subject to discipline by failing to obtain a client's informed written consent, yet a court may find that circumstances exist that justify not imposing the nondisciplinary measure of disqualifying the attorney. While the attorney may legally continue the representation, he or she may still be subject to discipline for failing to fulfill the ethical duty. Additionally, while a violation of a California Rule of Professional Conduct may subject an attorney to disciplinary proceedings, it does not in itself provide a basis for civil liability [BGJ Assocs. v. Wilson (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1217, 1227, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 140] .

On the other hand, there may be some situations in which an attorney's conduct satisfies ethical, but not legal, requirements. For example, obtaining a former client's written consent to represent an adverse party may satisfy ethical obligations, but may not always suffice to avoid nondisciplinary disqualification [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310, Discussion]. An excellent discussion regarding the dichotomy between ethical and legal conflict of interest standards may be found in State Bar of California Formal Opinion No. 1997-152.

§ 72.11 Governing Law

[1] California Rules of Professional Conduct

[a] Source of Rules

The basic rules governing attorney ethics are found in the California Rules of Professional Conduct. These rules are generally formulated by the State Bar of California and approved by the California Supreme Court [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6076; see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 6076.5 (procedure for formulation by member initiative)]. Through the Rules of Professional Conduct, the Supreme Court has the power to impose a higher standard of conduct on attorneys than that applicable to other professionals [Howard v. Babcock (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 409, 418, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 80, 863 P.2d 150] .

Many rules are followed by the drafters' explanatory comments under the heading "Discussion." Other selected rules are followed by "Standards" adopted by the State Bar Board of Governors, which provide specific guidance on application of the particular rules [see, e.g., Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-400 (communications presumed to be in violation of advertising and solicitation rule)].

NOTE:

Function of "Discussion" Sections. The "Discussion" sections that follow some of the California Rules of Professional Conduct are described as follows: "Because it is a practical impossibility to convey in black letter form all of the nuances of these disciplinary rules, the comments contained in the Discussion of the rules, while they do not add independent basis for imposing discipline, are intended to provide guidance for interpreting the rules and practicing in compliance with them" [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-100(C)].

The current rules became effective May 27, 1989, with subsequent amendments. References to the former rules largely refer to those in effect between January 1, 1975, and May 26, 1989.

The text of the California Rules of Professional Conduct may be found in the Standard California Codes (Matthew Bender), the California Compendium on Professional Responsibility (State Bar of California), in Deering'S California Codes Annotated, Rules of Court, or in other code services.

[b] Purpose and Effect of Rules

The Rules of Professional Conduct are intended to provide guidance for attorneys and standards for disciplinary action by the State Bar and have been approved by the Supreme Court of California in order to protect the public and to promote respect and confidence in the legal profession [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-100(A), and Discussion; see also Chambers v. Kay (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 142, 158, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 536, 56 P. 3d 645] .

The rules do not create or eliminate substantive legal duties for attorneys, and violation of the rules does not automatically give rise to a civil cause of action [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-100(A), and Discussion]. No independent cause of action exists for the breach of a Rule of Professional Conduct [Wilhelm v. Pray, Price, Williams & Russell (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1324, 1333 n.5, 231 Cal. Rptr. 355 ; Noble v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 654, 658-659, 109 Cal. Rptr. 269] .

Nevertheless, to the extent that the rules, taken together with statutes and general legal principles, help define the fiduciary duties of an attorney, the rules may be used to help prove whether an attorney has breached his or her fiduciary duties to a client [Mirabito v. Liccardo (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 41, 45-46, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 571 ; David Welch Co. v. Erskine & Tulley(1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 884, 890, 250 Cal. Rptr. 339 ; see also Day v. Rosenthal (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 1125, 1147, 217 Cal. Rptr. 89 (attorney's violation of rules established attorney's negligence, even in absence of expert testimony); State Bar of California Formal Opinion No. 1997-152; LACBA Formal Opinion No. 501 (1999)]. A jury instruction based on a disciplinary rule may be appropriate if the rule provides the standard by which an attorney's breach of fiduciary duty is measured [Mirabito v. Liccardo (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 41, 47, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 571] .

The rules are generally binding on all attorneys who are members of the State Bar of California [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6077]. They apply to a member's activities both inside and outside California, except to the extent that members lawfully practicing in another jurisdiction may be specifically required by that jurisdiction to follow professional conduct different from that provided in the rules [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-100(D)(1)]. With respect to attorneys who are not members, the rules also apply to their activities while engaged in lawyer functions within California to the extent that these activities are otherwise permitted by law [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-100(D)(2)].

The Rules of Professional Conduct do not supersede existing law relating to attorneys in nondisciplinary contexts [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-100(A), and Discussion].

[2] State Bar Act

The State Bar Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 6000 et seq.) provides the authority under which the Rules of Professional Conduct are promulgated, and sets out other provisions governing the practice of law by attorneys in California.

Principal among the statutory provisions governing attorney conduct are Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068, which enumerates certain paramount duties, and Bus. & Prof. Code § 6100 et seq., which specify certain types of misconduct that constitute cause for disbarment or suspension. Other provisions affecting attorney practice include those prohibiting unlawful solicitation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6150 et seq.], those affecting the drafting of written legal fee agreements [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146 et seq.], and those governing the arbitration of fee disputes between attorneys and clients [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6200 et seq.].

[3] American Bar Association Model Rules, Model Code, and Other Standards

The A.B.A.'s rules and disciplinary standards, as well as the rules and standards of other jurisdictions and bar associations, are not binding in California [General Dynamics Corp. v. San Bernardino County Superior Court (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1164, 1190 (Model Rules and Model Code have no legal force of their own, and have not been adopted by the Court); People v. Ballard (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 757, 761 ; State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1983-71]. Nevertheless, they may be considered if there is no direct authority in California and there is no conflict with state public policy [see Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 282 n.2, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950 ; San Gabriel Basin Water Quality Authority v. Aerojet-General Corporation (C.D. Cal. 2000) 105 F. Supp.2d 1095, 1105 ; State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1983-71; see also Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-100(A)]. They may also apply to issues involving multi-jurisdiction activities.

The A.B.A. Model Rules of Professional Conduct were originally adopted in 1983. Each rule is followed by a Comment and a Code Comparison to the older A.B.A. Model Code of Professional Responsibility. The older Model Code is composed of Canons, which are each followed by Ethical Considerations ("ECs") and Disciplinary Rules ("DRs"). A convenient source for the text of the Model Rules or the older Model Code is the California Compendium on Professional Responsibility (State Bar of California).

[4] Court Decisions

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-100(A) acknowledges that "the prohibition of certain conduct in these rules is not exclusive." Lawyers are also bound by provisions of the State Bar Act (discussed under § 72.11[3]) and by the opinions of California courts [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-100(A)]. In some situations statutes or case law may override a rule that would otherwise apply [see, e.g., Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 2-100(A), Discussion]. Case law is frequently the most important source of authority to the extent that courts analyze, interpret, and apply the rules [see also § 72.11[6]].

[5] State Bar Court Discipline Opinions

Discipline opinions of the State Bar Court's Review Department provide detailed analysis of Rules of Professional Conduct and State Bar Act provisions. The State Bar publishes these opinions in its California State Bar Court Reporter, a multi-volume set containing Review Department opinions from 1990 to the present and a topical digest of the opinions. New opinions also appear in California legal periodicals such as the Los Angeles Daily Journal.

Review Department opinions have taken on much greater significance due to changes in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 9.10-9.20. Under these provisions, the California Supreme Court essentially shifted the primary responsibility for reviewing disciplinary decisions of the State Bar Court from itself to the Review Department. Under the current rules, the Supreme Court rarely grants review of disciplinary matters. The Court's once significant contribution to the development of case law concerning attorney ethics has, since 1990, been greatly reduced. Since that time Review Department's opinions have comprised the chief source of developing case law in disciplinary matters.

Clearly the opinions of the Review Department of the State Bar Court are binding on the State Bar Court. It is less clear, however, whether they constitute binding precedent in the state's trial and appellate courts, which are constitutional courts of record [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 1], whereas the Review Department exists only as a creature of statute adjudicating disciplinary matters on behalf of the Board of Governors of the State Bar [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6086.5, 6086.65]. On the other hand, Review Department opinions, which are in effect recommendations to the Supreme Court, are filed as orders of the Supreme Court whenever the Supreme Court denies review or no review is sought [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 9.18, 9.16]. In any event, courts of record will undoubtedly regard Review Department opinions as persuasive authority of increasing significance.

[6] Ethics Opinions

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-100(A) directs lawyers to consult opinions of ethics committees in California "for guidance on proper professional conduct." Ethics opinions and rules from other jurisdictions may also be considered [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-100(A)].

The State Bar's Committee on Professional Responsibility and Conduct ("State Bar"), the Los Angeles County Bar Association ("LACBA") Committee on Professional Responsibility and Ethics, the Bar Association of San Francisco ("BASF") Legal Ethics Committee, the San Diego County Bar Association ("SDCBA") Ethics Committee, and the Orange County Bar Association ("OCBA") Professional and Ethics Committee each publish opinions addressing ethical issues raised by inquiries submitted by their respective members. These opinions are collected in the State Bar's California Compendium on Professional Responsibility. Ethics opinions are advisory and nonbinding [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-100(A)]. They are intended to provide thoughtful guidance to lawyers on subjects that often are not addressed in the case law.

PRACTICE TIP:

State Bar Ethics "Hotline." The State Bar maintains an ethics telephone "hotline" service that members may use to obtain guidance in resolving ethical issues requiring prompt resolution. While attorneys may also direct inquiries to the ethics committees of county bar associations and the State Bar for a formal opinion, this is a much slower method of obtaining guidance and may be more useful in situations that are likely to recur in the future. The State Bar Ethics Hotline number is: 1-800-2-ETHICS (if you're within the 415 area code, you may also dial (415) 538-2150). Some county bar associations also provide telephone ethics advice to their members.

§ 72.12 Validity of Statutes Regulating Attorney Conduct

The California Supreme Court has inherent power to provide a higher standard of attorney-client conduct than the minimum standards prescribed by the Legislature. Any statute that would permit an attorney to seriously violate the integrity of the attorney-client relationship is therefore suspect. A party challenging a statute on these grounds must show that a direct and fundamental conflict exists between the operation of the challenged statute as it applies to attorneys, and attorneys' settled ethical obligations as set forth in the Rules of Professional Conduct or other well-established common law rules [Santa Clara County Counsel Attys. Assn. v. Woodside (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 525, 544, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617, 869 P.2d 1142] .

§ 72.13 Unauthorized Practice of Law

Since the passage of the State Bar Act in 1927, it has been well settled that individuals may represent their own interests in legal proceedings. In addition, under Code Civ. Proc. § 371, an individual who is not licensed to practice law may defend his or her spouse's right in a civil action if the spouse neglects to defend [J.W. v. Superior Court (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 958, 966 n.6, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 527] . Further, a party may be represented by a nonattorney on an application to the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board for compensation benefits [Lab. Code § 5700], and in formal proceedings before the Public Utilities Commission, including preparing pleadings and making appearances [97 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 221]. Otherwise, the practice of law on behalf of a third party is unauthorized in order to ensure the competency of those performing legal services [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6125].

The following are examples of conduct that is prohibited as the unauthorized practice of law [Drake v. Superior Court (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1826, 1829-1832, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 829 ; J.W. v. Superior Court (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 958, 966-969, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 527] :

- A non-attorney parent cannot represent his or her minor child in a paternity action.
- A juvenile cannot have his or her non-attorney father assist in the juvenile's defense.
- A non-attorney cannot represent his or her parent's estate.
- A non-attorney cannot appear in a family law matter on behalf of an individual who has given him a power of attorney.
- A non-attorney trustee may not represent the trust in a court action [Ziegler v. Nickel (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 545, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 312] .

The practice of law in California by out-of-state attorneys not licensed in California or by an out-of-state law firm, none of whose attorneys are licensed in California at the time of performing the work in California, constitutes the unauthorized practice of law under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6125, and precludes the collection of attorney fees by those attorneys for the work performed in California [Birbrower, Montalbano, Condon & Frank v. Superior Court (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 119, 124, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 304, 949 P.2d 1 (practice of "substantial law" in California in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6125 precluded compensation under fee agreement for any services performed in California, but agreement enforceable to extent possible to sever portions of consideration attributable to services illegally rendered in California from those attributable to New York services)]. Mere fortuitous or attenuated contacts do not constitute the practice of law in California; however, sufficient contact with a California client by an out-of-state law firm or attorney to render the nature of the legal service a clear legal representation does constitute practicing law in California within the meaning of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6125. The primary question is whether the out-of-state attorney or firm engaged in sufficient activities in California or created a continuing relationship with a California client that included legal duties and obligations. Physical presence in California is only one factor to consider in determining a violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6125; the determination does not necessarily depend on or require physical presence. One may practice law in California without being physically present by advising a California client on California law in connection with a California legal dispute by telephone, fax, computer or other modern technological means. On the other hand, a person does not automatically practice law in California whenever that person practices California law anywhere or "virtually" enters California by technological means. Each case must be decided on its individual facts [see Estate of Condon (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1138, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 922 (pursuant to California probate law, violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6125 not found where out-of-state attorney represents out-of-state probate client, regardless of whether attorney is either physically orvirtually present in California)]. Exceptions to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6125 are narrowly drawn and strictly interpreted and generally limited to allowing out-of-state attorneys to make brief appearances before a state court or tribunal [Birbrower, Montalbano, Condon & Frank v. Superior Court (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 119, 128-129, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 304, 949 P.2d 1] .

For further discussion of the unauthorized practice of law, see Ch. 70, Attorney Admission and Discipline .

§ 72.15 Applicability of Code of Judicial Conduct to Attorneys

[1] Canon 5

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-700, which became operative in 1997, clarifies that Canon 5 of the Code of Judicial Ethics applies to attorneys who are seeking judicial office by election [Cal. Rules of Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-700(B)].

Canon 5 prohibits candidates for judicial office from all of the following:

- Acting as leaders or holding any office in political organizations.
- Making speeches on behalf of political organizations.
- Publicly endorsing or opposing candidates for nonjudicial office.
- Soliciting funds for political organizations or nonjudicial candidates.

Canon 5 also sets limits on the amount of political contributions a candidate for judicial office may make in any calendar year [see Canon 5A(3)], and prohibits judges from any political activity, other than in relation to measures concerning the improvement of the law, the legal system or the administration of justice [see Canon 5A(3)].

Canon 5 permits candidates for judicial office to speak at political gatherings only on their own behalf or on behalf of another judicial candidate [see Canon 5A(3)].

[2] Canon 6D

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-710, which became operative in March, 1999, clarifies that Canon 6D of the Code of Judicial Ethics applies to attorneys who are serving as temporary judges, referees or court-appointed arbitrators. Rule 1-710 is intended to permit the State Bar to discipline attorneys who violate applicable portions of the Code of Judicial Ethics while acting in a judicial capacity pursuant to an order or appointment by a court. In conjunction with approval of Rule 1-170, the Supreme Court also approved amendments to Canon 6D, which became operative in March, 1999.

Under Canon 6D, a temporary judge, a person serving as referee pursuant to Code of Civ. Proc. §§ 638 or 639, or a court-appointed arbitrator must comply with the Code of Judicial Ethics as discussed below.

An attorney actually presiding in a proceeding, or otherwise acting in the capacity of a temporary judge, referee or court-appointed arbitrator, must comply with the following provisions of the Code of Judicial Ethics:

- Integrity and independence of the judiciary [see Canon 1].
- Public confidence [see Canon 2], order and decorum in the proceeding, and patient, dignified and courteous treatment [see Canon 3B(3), (4)].
- Manifestations of bias or prejudice [see Canon 3B(6)].
- Misconduct by another judge or lawyer [see Canon 3D(1), (2)].

An attorney acting as temporary judge, referee or court-appointed arbitrator, from the time of notice and acceptance or appointment until termination of the appointment, must comply with the following provisions of the Code of Judicial Ethics:

- Family and other relationships [see Canon 2B(1)].
- Hear and decide matters, competence in the law [see Canon 3B(1)].
- Bias or prejudice in performing duties [see Canon 3B(5)].

- Administrative responsibilities [see Canon 3C(1), (2), (4)].
- Prestige of office, solicitations, gifts [see Canon 6D(2)(b), (8)(c)].
- Disqualification, written disclosures [see Canon 6D(2)(a), (5)(a)].

An attorney acting as temporary judge, referee or court-appointed arbitrator, from the time of notice and acceptance of appointment until the case is no longer pending in any court, must comply with the following provision of the Code of Judicial Ethics:

- Public comment [see Canon 6D(3)].

An attorney acting as temporary judge, referee or court-appointed arbitrator, from the time of appointment and continuing for two years after the case is no longer pending in any court, must comply with the following provision of the Code of Judicial Ethics:

- Gifts [see Canon 6D(4)].

An attorney acting as temporary judge, referee or court-appointed arbitrator, from the time of notice and acceptance of appointment and continuing indefinitely after the termination of the appointment, must comply with the following provisions of the Code of Judicial Ethics:

- Information acquired in judicial capacity, public comment on jurors [see Canon 6D(5)(a), (b)].

An attorney who has been a temporary judge, referee or court-appointed arbitrator must comply with the following provisions of the Code of Judicial Ethics:

- Related representations, confidential information [see Canon 6D(7), (8)].

§ 72.30 Overview of Duties Governing Conflicts of Interest

A conflict of interest is a situation that interferes with a lawyer's ability to fulfill basic duties to a client [see State Bar Formal Opinion 1982-69 (1982); LACBA Formal Opinion 471 (1992)]. In general, there are two types of conflicts of interest: potential and actual conflicts.

Potential conflicts arise in situations in which the lawyer's ability to fulfill his or her basic duties is not impaired, but under the circumstances, such a situation could arise during the representation. Actual conflicts exist in situations in which the lawyer's ability to fulfill the basic duties is strained or impaired.

There are four basic duties that are involved in conflict situations:

- The fiduciary duty of undivided loyalty to a client.
- The duty to impart significant information to a client.
- The duty to maintain client confidences and secrets.
- The duty to represent a client competently.

All conflict situations involve conflicting loyalties either between the lawyer's interests and a client's interests or between the interests of two or more clients. In situations in which there are conflicting interests between clients, there can be a tension between the duty to maintain confidences and secrets of one client and the duty to inform the other client. These problems can, in turn, impair a lawyer's ability to represent a client competently.

The conflicts rules in the California Rules of Professional Conduct are designed to address situations that inherently strain a lawyer's ability to fulfill these basic duties. As a result, it is important to understand the scope of the basic duties and to keep them in mind when analyzing whether one has a potential or actual conflict. When in doubt, an analysis of the basic duties involved in conflict situations can help in determining where a conflict may lie. It can also help in determining what disclosures are needed to obtain a client's informed consent and how to structure an engagement to avoid pitfalls.

Sections 72.31 et seq. will discuss the four basic duties outlined above and issues that may arise in conflict situations with respect to those duties.

B. Conflicts Of Interest
1. Basic Principles Governing Conflicts

7-72 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 72.31

§ 72.31 Duty of Undivided Loyalty

Perhaps the most fundamental quality of the attorney-client relationship is the absolute and complete fidelity owed by the attorney to his or her client [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1984-83]. Few precepts are more firmly entrenched than that the fiduciary relationship between attorney and client is of the very highest character [Yorn v. Superior Court (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 669, 675, 153 Cal. Rptr. 295 ; see Cal Pak Delivery, Inc. v. United Parcel Service, Inc. (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1, 11, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 207] .

Part of that fiduciary duty to a client is the duty to represent the client with undivided loyalty [Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Inc. v. Tracinda Corp. (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1832, 1839-1840, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 327 ; Commercial Standard Title Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 934, 945, 155 Cal. Rptr. 393 ; Ishmael v. Millington (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 520, 526, 50 Cal. Rptr. 592 ; LACBA Formal Opinion No. 435 (1985)]. The duty of loyalty forbids any act that would interfere with the dedication of a lawyer's entire energies to the client's interests [Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 289, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950 ; Anderson v. Eaton (1930) 211 Cal. 113, 116, 293 P. 788] . It is an attorney's duty to protect his or her client in every possible way, and assuming a position adverse or antagonistic to the client without their free and knowing consent given after full knowledge of all the facts and circumstances is a violation of that duty [Moore v. Anderson Zeigler Disharoon Gallagher & Gray (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1287, 1298-1300, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 888] . The duty continues after the termination of the attorney-client relationship to the extent of the following [Wutchumna Water Co. v. Bailey (1932) 216 Cal. 564, 571, 15 P.2d 505 ; Yorn v. Superior Court (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 669, 675, 153 Cal. Rptr. 295] :

- A lawyer may not act in a manner that will injure the former client in matters involving the former representation; and

- A lawyer may not subsequently use any information gained from the representation to the former client's disadvantage.

As part of the fiduciary duty, a lawyer must exercise independent judgment on a client's behalf. In the conflicts context, the duty means that a lawyer must represent the interests of a client without being influenced by the interests of the lawyer or others that are extraneous to the lawyer--client relationship [Anderson v. Eaton (1930) 211 Cal. 113, 116, 293 P. 788 ; Apple Computer, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1253, 1265, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 818 (class attorneys or their business associates may not act as class representative); Gilbert v. National Corp. For Housing Properties (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1240, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 204 ; Yorn v. Superior Court (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 669, 675, 153 Cal. Rptr. 295 ; Earl Scheib, Inc. v. Superior Court (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 703, 706, 61 Cal. Rptr. 386 ; State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1984-83; LACBA Formal Opinion No. 435 (1985); BASF Formal Opinion No. 1973-15; SDCBA Ethics Opinion Nos. 1978-5, 1978-11]. A lawyer is "precluded from putting himself in a position where he may be required to choose between conflicting duties, or be led to an attempt to reconcile conflicting interests, rather than to enforce to their full extent the rights of the interest which he should alone represent" [Anderson v. Eaton (1930) 211 Cal. 113, 116, 293 P. 788] . The lawyer's judgment and advice should be independent of those influences.

Another aspect of this duty is embodied in Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e), which requires a lawyer to "maintain inviolate the confidence ... of his or her client." In its broadest sense, the preservation of a client's "confidence" means that a lawyer must maintain the trust reposed in the lawyer by the client [Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 288-289, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950 ; Gilbert v. National Corp. For Housing Properties (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1240, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 204 ; see State Farm Mutual Automobile Ins. Co. v. Federal Insurance Co. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1422, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20 ; State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1986-87]. This duty is based on the proposition that when a client engages a lawyer in a given matter, the client is entitled to feel that he or she has the undivided loyalty of the lawyer as his or her advocate or champion until the matter is over [Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 288-289, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950 ; see also Brooklyn Navy Yard Cogeneration Partners v. Superior Court (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 248, 255-256, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 419] . In this context, the confidence and trust which a client reposes in the lawyer is seen as essential to the effective functioning of the fiduciary relationship [Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Inc. v. Tracinda Corp. (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1832, 1839-1840, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 327 ; Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 288-289, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950] .

However, a lawyer's duty of loyalty is not unlimited. A lawyer may take a position as a private citizen that is adverse to the position of a prior client [see Oasis West Realty, LLC v. Goldman (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 688, 699-703, 2010 Cal. App. LEXIS 287 (attorney may sign petition and ask neighbors to sign petition that was adverse to prior client's interests)].

ILLUSTRATIONS:

Violation of Duty of Loyalty. Lawyer represents Client A in a lawsuit against B. B now asks the lawyer to represent her in an unrelated matter. Taking on the engagement might affect the lawyer's ability to represent either client with undivided loyalty. The lawyer's advice to A might be tempered by a concern about how it would affect the lawyer's relationship with B. The lawyer's vigorous prosecution of the lawsuit, in turn, could undermine the lawyer-client relationship with B.

Lawyer is hired to advise Client A in connection with the formation of a partnership in which the lawyer will be a partner. Here too the lawyer's independent judgment on behalf of Client A may be compromised by the lawyer's concern about his or her own interests in the partnership.

§ 72.32 Duty to Inform Client

Closely related to the lawyer's duty of loyalty is the duty to keep a client reasonably informed about significant developments relating to the engagement.

Under the Rules of Professional Conduct, a State Bar member must keep a client reasonably informed about significant developments relating to the employment or representation and promptly comply with reasonable requests for information and copies of significant documents when necessary to keep the client so informed [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-500].

In addition, under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(m), an attorney has a duty "to respond promptly to reasonable status inquiries of clients and to keep clients reasonably informed of significant developments in matters with regard to which the attorney has agreed to provide legal services."

ILLUSTRATION:

Violation of Duty to Inform. Lawyer represents Clients A and B, who are defendants in a lawsuit. Client A gives the lawyer information that proves B has no liability and that A is responsible for a substantial loss sustained by the plaintiff. Client A instructs the lawyer not to disclose the information to B. The lawyer cannot fulfill his or her duty to Client B under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-500, and Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(m), without violating Client A's instruction. This conflict reveals the tension between the duty to inform and the duty to maintain client confidences and secrets discussed in the next section.

§ 72.33 Duty to Maintain Client Confidence and Secrets

[1] Scope of Ethical Rule

It is the duty of an attorney to maintain the confidences and at "every peril to himself or herself" to preserve the secrets of the client. However, an attorney may, but is not required to, reveal confidential information relating to the representation of the client to the extent the attorney reasonably believes the disclosure is necessary to prevent a criminal act that the attorney reasonably believes is likely to result in the death of, or substantial bodily harm to, an individual [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086(e)].

The broad scope and austere language of the statute reflect the policy behind it. The protection of confidences and secrets is not a rule of mere professional conduct, but instead involves public policies of paramount importance [In re Charlisse C. (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 145, 160, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 597, 194 P.3d 330 ; In re Jordan (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 575, 580, 116 Cal. Rptr. 371, 526 P.2d 523] . Every client is entitled to know that his or her confidences are rigorously maintained by his or her attorney and will not even be suggested or hinted at by the attorney to others [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 403 (1982)]. For example, attorneys who share office space, services, staff or facilities without forming a law firm must take protective steps to maintain clients' confidential information, including agreeing on a clear delineation of responsibility for tracking correspondence, calendaring, filing, client communications and handling of funds, separately and with due regard for clients' confidential information [State Bar Formal Opinion 1997-150]. Nevertheless, the scope of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) is not without limits, which have been defined through an extensive body of cases and ethics opinions.

In addition, an attorney who represents a governmental organization and learns of improper governmental activity may urge reconsideration of the matter and refer it to a higher authority in the organization. Under specified circumstances, the attorney also may refer the matter to a law enforcement agency or to another governmental agency [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068.1].

[2] Confidence and Secrets Defined

The information protected under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) includes much more than communications protected by the attorney-client privilege [Goldstein v. Lees (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 614, 621 n.5, 120 Cal. Rptr. 253 ; State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1993-132]. This ethical precept, unlike the evidentiary privilege, exists without regard to the nature or source of information or the fact that others share the knowledge [see ABA Code of Prof. Resp., Ethical Canon 4-4].

In defining the scope of this duty, ethics opinions have adopted the definitions of "confidence" and "secret" in Model Code of Professional Responsibility DR 4-101(A) (1980) [State Bar Formal Opinion Nos. 1976-37, 1980-52, 1981-58, 1986-87 and 1993-133; LACBA Formal Opinion Nos. 386 (1980), 436 (1985) and 456 (1990)]. This provision states that:

- "Confidence" refers to information protected by the attorney-client privilege under applicable law.

- "Secret" refers to other information gained in the professional relationship that the client has requested be held inviolate or the disclosure of which would be embarrassing or would likely be a detriment to the client.

NOTE:

DR 4-101 Superseded. The ABA Code of Professional Conduct and DR 4-101 have been superseded by the ABA Model Rules of Professional Conduct, which eliminated the distinction between "confidence" and "secret." Model Rule 1.6 states that a lawyer shall not reveal "information relating to the representation of the client" without the client's consent. However, because Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) continues to use the terms "confidence" and "secret," ethics opinions continue to rely on the definitions in DR 4-101(A) [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 456 (1990)].

The broad scope of the rule is embodied in the concept of client "secrets." Client "secrets" include documents and information obtained from any source in the course of representing a client. It includes information obtained from third parties that is not communicated within the scope of the attorney-client privilege [LACBA Formal Opinion Nos. 305 (1968), 386 (1980), 417 (1983), 436 (1985)]. Client "secrets" include information that is a matter of public record [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 386 (1980); see In the Matter of Johnson (Review Dept. 2000) 4 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 179 (client's felony conviction, communicated to attorney by client with expectation of confidentiality); see also In re Jordan (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 575, 580, 116 Cal. Rptr. 371, 526 P.2d 523] .

[3] Types of Confidential and Secret Information

Examples of client secrets and confidential information include the following:

- Information Obtained Before Lawyer Is Engaged: The protection afforded client confidences and secrets under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) does not require a formal engagement. Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) also applies when a lawyer is consulted before actual employment even when no employment ensues [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 366 (1970)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Information Acquired Before Client Consultation. Although no case or ethics opinion has yet to address the question, Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) would appear to apply to information involved in the representation of a client which the lawyer acquired before the lawyer ever consulted with the client in a professional capacity. For example, if the lawyer acquired information from reading the newspaper or in a social relationship with a client, the lawyer may have a duty under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) with respect to that information if the lawyer later represents the client in a matter which involves that information. By Stanley W. Lamport.

- Client's Criminal Conduct: Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) includes information that could link a client to criminal activity [Ex parte McDonough (1915) 170 Cal. 230, 233, 149 P. 566 ; LACBA Formal Opinion No. 386 (1980) (client perjury), LACBA Formal Opinion No. 436 (1985) (unauthorized practice of law)]. As one court observed, "[h]owever desirable it may be to obtain proofs sufficient to insure the conviction of all persons who commit crimes ... and it will readily be conceded that it is most desirable, such proofs may not be obtained from those who are forbidden by our law to give them" [People v. Singh (1932) 123 Cal. App. 365, 370, 11 P.2d 73] . Confidential and secret information cannot be disclosed, even if it would exonerate someone wrongly convicted of a crime [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 389 (1981)]. But see the discussion of a lawyer's duty to turn over evidence or instrumentalities of a client's crime to the prosecution under § 72.33[6][f]. See also discussion of when an attorney should or may disclose information about an imminent serious crime under § 72.33[6][i].

- Client's Fraudulent Conduct: The protection includes information that a client has filed a fraudulent bankruptcy petition or that the client is receiving money to which the client is not entitled [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 422 (1983), 417 (1983)]. The confidential protection extends to cover information obtained by a lawyer while he or she is jointly representing an insured and an insurer, even if the information indicates that the insured may have no coverage or has perpetrated a fraud on the insurer. The lawyer is required not to reveal that information to the insurer, and may also be required to withdraw from representation [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1995-139]. The protection also covers information known to the lawyer that a client-real estate developer has committed a fraud on home buyers. Although the lawyer may not reveal the information, he or she is ethically prohibited from in any way assisting in an on-going fraud [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1996-146].

- Information That Client Corporation Has Been Suspended: However, the lawyer must avoid misleading the court with respect to the corporation's status [LACBA Formal Opinion 408 (1982)].

- Identity of Client and Nature of Lawyer's Engagement: Ordinarily the identity of a client is not a confidence or a secret [Ex parte McDonough (1915) 170 Cal. 230, 231, 235, 149 P. 566 ; LACBA Formal Opinion Nos. 374 (1978), 456 (1990)]. However, in some instances Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) will prevent disclosure of such information if it will expose the client to criminal or civil liability or necessarily reveals other confidential or secret information [Hays v. Wood (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 772, 785, 160 Cal. Rptr. 102, 603 P.2d 19 ; Ex parte McDonough (1915) 170 Cal. 230, 231, 236-237, 149 P. 566 ; Rosso, Johnson, Rosso & Ebersold v. Superior Court (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1514, 1519, 237 Cal. Rptr. 242 ; LACBA Formal Opinion Nos. 374 (1978), 456 (1990)].

- Nature of Lawyer/Client Fee Arrangement: Information about a lawyer's fee arrangement with a client is generally not a confidence or secret [Willis v. Superior Court (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 277, 291, 169 Cal. Rptr. 301] . However, here too, the information may be within the scope of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) if it necessarily involves the disclosure of other confidential or secret information [see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 456 (1990); see also BASF Formal Opinion Nos. 1975-5 (lawyer may not voluntarily disclose to IRS details of fees paid by client), 1974-3 (lawyer may not voluntarily disclose to IRS source of funds in client trust account)].

- Information in Attorney Bills to Client: Information in attorney bills about time spent, expenses and fees incurred, and specific work performed in connection with a lawyer's representation of the client may be within the scope of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) [LACBA Formal Opinion Nos. 374 (1978) and 456 (1990)].

[4] Duty Survives Termination of Attorney-Client Relationship

The duty to maintain client confidences and secrets survives the termination of the lawyer-client relationship [In re Charlisse C. (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 145, 160, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 597, 194 P.3d 330 ; Styles v. Mumbert (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 1163, 1167, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 880 ; Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Inc. v. Tracinda Corp. (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1832, 1841-1842, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 327 ; Commercial Standard Title Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 934, 945, 155 Cal. Rptr. 393 ; State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1993-133; LACBA Formal Opinion Nos. 159 (1945), 274 (1962), 389 (1981), 456 (1990)]. The attorney's duty survives notwithstanding the attorney's discharge by the client [Wutchumna Water Co. v. Bailey (1932) 216 Cal. 564, 571, 15 P.2d 505] . The duty continues after the client's death [Swidler & Berlin v. United States (1998) 524 U.S. 399, 410, 118 S.Ct. 2081, 141 L. Ed. 2d 379 ; LACBA Formal Opinion No. 414 (1983)].

[5] Inadvertent Disclosure

Inadvertent disclosure of privileged communications does not necessarily constitute waiver of the attorney-client privilege. If the client or privilege holder clearly did not consent or intend to disclose privileged matter, the accidental, inadvertent disclosure of privileged matter by the client's attorney does not constitute a waiver under Evid. Code § 912 [State Comp. Ins. Fund v. WPS, Inc. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 644, 652-654, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 799 (responses to requests for production that included obviously privileged communications between opposing party and party's attorney did not waive attorney-client privilege)]. For discussion of privileges and waiver generally, see Ch. 191, Discovery: Privileges and Other Discovery Limitations .

The California Supreme Court has adopted an "objective standard," to be applied prospectively when an attorney inadvertently receives obviously confidential or privileged material [Rico v. Mitsubishi Motors Corp. (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 807, 817, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 758, 171 P.3d 1092] . Under this standard, when an attorney receives materials obviously subject to attorney-client privilege, or otherwise clearly confidential and privileged, and it is reasonably apparent that they were made available through inadvertence, that attorney should refrain from examining them any more than is essential to ascertain if they are privileged, and must immediately notify the sender that he or she has possession of materials that appear to be privileged. The attorney also must notify the party entitled to the privilege. The parties then may proceed to resolve the situation by agreement or may resort to the court for guidance with the benefit of protective orders and such other judicial intervention as may be justified [Rico v. Mitsubishi Motors Corp. (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 807, 817, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 758, 171 P.3d 1092 ; State Comp. Ins. Fund v. WPS, Inc. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 644, 656-657, 82 Cal.Rptr. 2d 799] .

In applying the preceding rule, courts must consider whether reasonably competent counsel, knowing the circumstances of the litigation, would have concluded the materials were privileged, how much review was reasonably necessary to draw that conclusion, and when counsel's examination should have ended [Rico v. Mitsubishi Motors Corp. (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 807, 818, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 758, 171 P.3d 1092 (standard was "properly and easily" applied in this case, and disqualification was appropriate)].

When seeking to hold an attorney accountable for misuse of privileged materials received through inadvertence, the complaining attorney has the burden to demonstrate persuasively the inadvertence. Otherwise, an attorney might attempt to gain an advantage by sending privileged matter deliberately and then moving to disqualify the recipient. Mere exposure to the material alone does not warrant disqualification, although disqualification may be proper for an attorney who violates the standard now set for handling inadvertently disclosed privileged matter [State Comp. Ins. Fund v. WPS, Inc. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 644, 656-657, 82 Cal.Rptr. 2d 799] .

[6] Situations in Which Disclosure Permitted

[a] In General

Specific exceptions have been recognized in court decisions and ethics opinions [see § 72.33[6]]. The policy is to narrowly construe exceptions in order to promote strict enforcement of the duty set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) [LACBA Formal Opinion Nos. 374 (1978), 456 (1990)].

[b] Client's Informed Consent

A client may consent to disclosure of confidential and secret information [Commercial Standard Title Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 934, 945, 155 Cal. Rptr. 393 ; LACBA Formal Opinion Nos. 389 (1981), 409 (1983), 456 (1990)].

For a client's consent to be informed, the lawyer should fully advise the client about the nature of the information, the purpose of the disclosure, the benefits and detriments, both legal and otherwise, that may result from the disclosure or nondisclosure and any other facts that could have an important bearing on the client's decision [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 456 (1990)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Obtain Written Consent. It is advisable that both the lawyer's advice and the client's consent be in writing, although neither the Rules of Professional Conduct nor Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) require it [LACBA Formal Opinion Nos. 409 (1983), 456 (1990)].

Informed consent may be implied. Implied consent may be obtained if the lawyer writes the client advising of his or her intent to disclose the information and stating that if the client does not respond within a stated reasonable time, the lawyer will assume that the client has consented and will act accordingly. The client's subsequent failure to respond may be construed as consent [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 389 (1981) (involving disclosure of information indicating that innocent third party was convicted of crime)].

Factors that would indicate the client's failure to respond is an implied consent include the following [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 389 (1981)]:

- Whether the client received the letter.
- Whether the client was in a position to respond within the time given.
- Whether the client had the capacity to understand the import of the letter.
- Whether the letter adequately advised the client.

[c] Disclosure Compelled by Law

A lawyer may be legally compelled to disclose confidences and client secrets that Bus. & Prof. Code 6068(e) prevents the lawyer from disclosing voluntarily [see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 456 (1990); BASF Formal Opinion Nos. 1975-5, 1974-3]. See also discussion in § 72.290 et seq.

[d] [Reserved]

[e] Joint Clients

When a lawyer is engaged to represent two or more clients in a matter, the clients' communications with the lawyer in the course of that engagement are not privileged as between the clients. This rule is founded on Evid. Code § 962, which states in pertinent part that when two or more clients have retained or consulted a lawyer on a matter of common interest, none of them may claim a privilege as to a communication made in that relationship when the communication is offered in a civil proceeding between one of the clients and another of the clients [Evid. Code § 962].

While Evid. Code § 962 speaks in terms of the use of communications in a civil proceeding, the rule has been applied more broadly. The exception of Evid. Code § 962 is intended to provide joint clients access to communications with the jointly retained attorney that touch on matters affecting both clients [Wortham & Van Liew v. Superior Court (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 927, 932, 233 Cal. Rptr. 725] . It includes communications that one of the clients has with the lawyer out of the presence of the other clients [Wortham & Van Liew v. Superior Court (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 927, 932, 233 Cal. Rptr. 725 ; Glacier Gen. Assurance Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 836, 841, 157 Cal. Rptr. 435] .

Evid. Code § 962, and the cases that have interpreted it, do not specifically address the issue of client secrets in a joint representation. While the policy behind Evid. Code § 962 and the lawyer's duty of disclosure suggest that a lawyer may not refrain from disclosing significant information about one joint client to another, the prudent course is to confirm that understanding with the clients.

For discussion of conflicts when representing multiple clients, see § 72.111.

[f] Disclosure of Evidence

A lawyer has a duty not to suppress evidence. "A [State Bar] member shall not suppress any evidence that the member or the member's client has a legal obligation to reveal or produce" [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 5-220].

In the criminal context, several courts have held that a defendant's counsel must turn over to the prosecution evidence or instrumentalities of the client's crime in the lawyer's possession [People v. Meredith (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 682, 690-693, 175 Cal. Rptr. 612, 631 P.2d 46 ; People v. Superior Court (Fairbank) (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 32, 35-36, 237 Cal. Rptr. 158 ; People v. Lee (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 514, 526, 83 Cal. Rptr. 715 ; State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1984-76; LACBA Formal Opinion No. 466 (1991)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Evidence Concerning Client's Crime. Prior to taking possession of evidence of a client's crime, the defense attorney should inform the client of the attorney's obligation to turn over the evidence once possession is obtained. The attorney should seriously question the consequences of taking possession of the evidence at all [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1984-76].

[g] Client's Attack on Lawyer

Confidences and client secrets may be disclosed when the lawyer is responding to a client's attacks on the lawyer's integrity, good faith, authority, or performance of duty [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 396 (1982)]. There is no evidentiary privilege concerning a communication relevant to an issue of breach, by the lawyer or the client, of a duty arising out of the lawyer-client relationship [Evid. Code § 958]. The Law Revision Commission observed that "it would be unjust to permit a client either to accuse his attorney of a breach of duty and to invoke the privilege to prevent the attorney from bringing forth evidence in defense of the charge or to refuse to pay his attorney and invoke the privilege to defeat the attorney's claim" [Law Rev. Comm'n Comment to Evid. Code § 958]. However, the disclosure must be relevant for the exception to apply [Brockway v. State Bar (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 51, 63, 278 Cal. Rptr. 836, 806 P.2d 308] .

A lawyer may disclose confidences and secrets as necessary to pursue an action for fees or file a claim in a bankruptcy and litigate if the claim is contested [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 452 (1988)]. However, the lawyer cannot assist other creditors in locating the former client's assets [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 452 (1988)].

The exception may apply in situations when the client has not asserted the claim against the lawyer directly. In LACBA Formal Opinion No. 396 (1982), the lawyer had properly withdrawn from representing a client before trial and had notified the opposing lawyer. When the client did not appear at trial, a default was entered. A new lawyer representing the client sought relief from the default claiming that the former lawyer committed malpractice. The Committee concluded that Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) did not prevent the lawyer from submitting a declaration when asked to do so by the lawyer opposing the client's motion for relief from default [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 396 (1982)].

Similarly, pursuant to Evid. Code § 958, a court held that a law firm could not move to dismiss another lawyer's action for referral fees against it on the ground that defending itself would violate the attorney-client privilege [Dietz v. Meisenheimer & Herron (2009)177 Cal. App. 4th 771, 785-794, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 464].

[h] Disclosure for Billing and Other Services

The Los Angeles County Bar Association Ethics Committee has stated that it is not improper for a lawyer to give limited information from his or her files to an outside agency necessary for statistical bookkeeping, accounting, data processing, banking, printing, or other legitimate purposes, provided the lawyer uses due care in the selection of the agency, the agency agrees to keep the information in confidence, and the agency and its employees do not permit disclosure to unauthorized persons [LACBA Formal Opinion Nos. 374 (1978), 423 (1983)].

In LACBA Formal Opinion No. 374 (1978) the Committee noted that special circumstances may exist when the nature of the information is so sensitive that ethically this information should not be disclosed to an outside agency, and in some instances not even to other employees of the lawyer. It is the duty of the attorney to determine that such special circumstances do not exist before disclosure is made [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 374 (1978)].

By contrast, there are a number of opinions that have found that without client consent, a lawyer may not disclose confidential or secret information to outside agencies involved in the representation. Ethics opinions have found the following:

- A legal aid attorney may not disclose confidential information regarding a client's financial eligibility to the foundation's board of directors without client consent [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 358 (1976); but see BASF Formal Opinion No. 1976-1 (policy requiring approval by litigation director of federally funded legal services office prior to commencing certain actions does not violate client confidentiality)].

- Without client consent, a non-attorney conducting a research project regarding a local bar association's legal services program may not be given summarized confidential information even if the client is not identified and could not be identified by the summarized information [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 378 (1978)].

- A lawyer may not report to the State Bar confidential or secret information gained while representing a lawyer client [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 400 (1982)].

- A lawyer may not give a charity summarized confidential or secret information about clients the charity referred to the lawyer [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 403 (1982)].

- A lawyer may not bid or enter into a government contract that requires the attorney to obtain client consent to waive the attorney-client privilege and work product protection [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 435 (1985)].

[i] Client's Plan to Commit Serious Crime

Evid. Code Section 956.5 creates an exception to the lawyer-client privilege when the lawyer reasonably believes that disclosure of any confidential communication relating to representation of a client is necessary to prevent the client from committing a criminal act that the lawyer believes is likely to result in death or substantial bodily harm.

After decades of debate by various bar associations and ethics committees, Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086(e) has been modified to include an exception to the duty of confidentiality. An attorney may, but is not required to, reveal confidential information relating to the representation of the client to the extent the attorney reasonably believes the disclosure is necessary to prevent a criminal act that the attorney reasonably believes is likely to result in the death of, or substantial bodily harm to, an individual [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6086(e)(2)].

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-100 was adopted effective July 1, 2004 to provide an exception to the duty of confidentiality and a procedure for the attorney to reveal certain information. A member may, but is not required to, reveal confidential information relating to the representation of a client to the extent that the member reasonably believes is necessary to prevent a criminal act that the member reasonably believes is likely to result in death of, or substantial bodily harm to, an individual [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-100(B)]. However, before revealing the confidential information, a member must, if reasonable under the circumstances, make a good faith effort to persuade the client either not to commit or continue the criminal act, or to pursue a course of conduct that will prevent the threatened death or substantial bodily harm, or both [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-100(C)(1)]. The member must also inform the client, at an appropriate time, of the member's ability or decision to reveal the information [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-100(C)(2)]. While a member may consider whether the prospective harm is imminent, the imminence of the harm is not a prerequisite to disclosure [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-100, Discussion]. When revealing the information, the member must disclose no more than is necessary to prevent the criminal act, given the information the member knows at the time of the disclosure [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-100(D)]. A member is not obligated to reveal the information set forth in this rule [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-100(E)].

Previously, the San Diego Legal Ethics Committee had concluded that there was no exception that allowed even limited disclosure of confidential information that a client intended to seriously injure or kill someone [SDCBA Ethics Opinion No. 1990-1]. The Los Angeles County Bar Association in a number of opinions, on the other hand, had advanced a narrow exception that allowed for disclosure in limited circumstances involving a serious and imminent threat to human life or safety.

In LACBA Formal Opinion No. 353 (1976), the Committee concluded that when there appears to be the likelihood of a very serious crime, in the sense that significant injury to members of the public is highly likely, especially though not exclusively when the crime will involve physical violence, and when the attorney is satisfied beyond substantial doubt that the crime will occur and is imminent, there may be duties, not necessarily growing out of specific ethical rules, to take affirmative preventive steps involving disclosure to the intended victim or other third persons [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 353 (1976)].

The "at his peril" requirement of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) indicates that the lawyer should divulge an intended crime only under exceptional circumstances of serious and imminent damage to the public [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 353 (1976); see also LACBA Formal Opinion Nos. 264 (1959), 414 (1983), 417 (1983), 436 (1985) (all affirming view stated in LACBA Formal Opinion No. 353 (1976))].

Attempting to clarify when an attorney may disclose a client confidence, the Ninth Circuit held that "the guiding rule for the purpose of the exception [to confidentiality] for preventing criminal activity is objective reasonableness in light of the surrounding circumstances" [McClure v. Thompson (2003) 323 F.3d 1233, 1245] .

In LACBA Formal Opinion No. 436 (1985), the Committee narrowed the exception to permit disclosure in situations when such crimes are likely to result in imminent death or serious bodily injury. This removed economic injuries from the ambit of the exception. The preservation of confidentiality has been consistently recognized as being more important than the potential injury to victims of purely economic crimes [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 436 (1985)].

The exception does not apply to information about a client's crime committed in the past [LACBA Formal Opinion Nos. 267 (1960), 386 (1980)]. The exception also does not apply if the disclosure necessarily involves information about past crimes or wrong doing [LACBA Formal Opinion Nos. 414 (1983), 417 (1983), 422 (1983)]. The information may not be disclosed even if it would exonerate someone wrongly convicted of a crime [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 389 (1981)].

The one case to address Evid. Code § 956.5 is People v. Dang (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 1293, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763 . The court held that § 956.5 applied to threats made by the defendant against witnesses and the defendant's former attorney. The testimony of the defendant's former attorney concerning those threats was properly admitted over objection based on the attorney-client privilege [People v. Dang (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 1293, 1298, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763] . While the Dang court noted the conflict between Evid. Code § 956.5 and Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) because that issue was not before the court, the conflict was not resolved. In dicta, the court further noted that the State Bar Court has held the duty of confidentiality under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) is modified by the exceptions to the attorney-client privilege codified in the Evidence Code [People v. Dang (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 1293, 1298-1299, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763] .

[j] Disclosure to Attorney's Own Counsel When Attorney is the Client

A lawyer does not violate Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) when he or she discloses client confidences to her own attorney for the purpose of determining whether those communications are admissible evidence under an exception to the attorney client privilege [Fox Searchlight Pictures, Inc. v. Paladino (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 294, 314, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 906] . In Fox Searchlight, in-house counsel who sued her former employer for wrongful termination was permitted to privately disclose to her lawyer all facts relevant to the termination to the extent necessary for the preparation and prosecution of the wrongful termination action against her former client-employer even if this included disclosing confidential information and privileged communications [Fox Searchlight Pictures, Inc. v. Paladino, 89 Cal. App. 4th 294, 314-315, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 906] . However, the attorney may not disclose confidences when he or she is not involved in a malpractice action or fee dispute [Styles v. Mumbert (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 1163, 1167, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 880 (no disclosure permitted in action when attorney represented client and attorney seeks to step in as client's adversary)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Relationship of Evid. Code § 956.5 and Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e). While Evid. Code § 956.5 eliminates the lawyer-client privilege in the situations described in the LACBA ethical opinions, does it address the broader obligation under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) to maintain client secrets? Although no court or ethics opinion has yet to address this question, the Legislature's adoption of a substantially similar standard in Evid. Code § 956.5 may reflect a policy to permit such disclosures. Unlike other exceptions to the lawyer-client privilege in the Evidence Code, which apply to any communications of a certain type, Evid. Code § 956.5 creates an exception only when the lawyer " reasonably believes that disclosure ... is necessary " to prevent the client from committing the criminal act. The fact that the exception is based on the lawyer's judgment that disclosure is necessary suggests a broader intent than merely creating an exception to the lawyer-client privilege. By Stanley W. Lamport.

§ 72.34 Duty to Practice With Competence

Under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-110, a State Bar member must "not intentionally, recklessly or repeatedly fail to perform legal services with competence." "Competence in any legal service" means to apply the diligence, learning and skill, and mental, emotional, and physical ability reasonably necessary for the performance of the services [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-110(A), (B)].

Conflict situations inherently give rise to issues concerning the lawyer's ability to practice with competence. The lawyer's duties of undivided loyalty, disclosure, and preservation of client confidences and secrets are all duties that are fundamental to a lawyer's performance of legal services. Thus, situations that strain or impair the lawyer's ability to fulfill these duties also strain or impair the lawyer's duty to perform legal services competently. The effect on the lawyer's ability to practice competently is an important issue to analyze when advising a client about a conflict.

For further discussion of the duty of competence, see § 72.270 et seq. through § 72.290 et seq.

2. To Whom Duties Are Owed

7-72 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 72.50

§ 72.50 Duties Owed to Client

A lawyer's duties are owed to a client. This includes both formal and informal client relationships. Evid. Code § 951 defines a "client" as "a person or entity who, directly or through an authorized representative, consults a lawyer for the purpose of retaining the lawyer or securing legal service or advice from him in his professional capacity." Whenever a party seeking legal advice consults a lawyer, the relation of attorney and client is established prima facie [Beery v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 802, 811, 239 Cal. Rptr. 121, 739 P.2d 1289] . A client "includes a person or entity which consults a lawyer for the purpose of retention or advice even if neither results" [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1984-84 (citing Beery v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 802, 811, 239 Cal. Rptr. 121, 739 P.2d 1289 ; People v. Dorrance (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 125, 129, 150 P.2d 10 , and Estate of Dupont (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 276, 288, 140 P.2d 866); LACBA Formal Opinion No. 366 (1977); SDCBA Ethics Opinion No. 1990-3].

The existence of an attorney-client relationship turns on the intent and conduct of the parties [Hecht v. Superior Court (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 560, 565, 237 Cal. Rptr. 528] . The absence of a fee agreement does not prevent the relationship from arising [Beery v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 802, 811-812, 239 Cal. Rptr. 121, 739 P.2d 1289] . The payment of attorneys' fees may be an indication, but does not in itself determine the existence of an attorney-client relationship [Lasky, Haas, Cohler & Munter v. Superior Court (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 264, 285, 218 Cal. Rptr. 205] .

Courts are particularly prone to find an attorney-client relationship has arisen when confidential information has been imparted by the putative client [see, e.g., Miller v. Metzinger (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 31 39-40, 154 Cal. Rptr. 22 ; Ferrara v. La Sala (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 263, 266-268, 9 Cal. Rptr. 179 , disapproved on other grounds in Rader v. Thrasher (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 244, 252, 18 Cal. Rptr. 736, 368 P.2d 360 ; see also Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. Kerr-McGee Corporation (7th Cir. 1978) 580 F.2d 1311, 1316-1317 , cert. denied, 439 U.S. 955] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Conflicts Of Interest
2. To Whom Duties Are Owed

7-72 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 72.51

§ 72.51 Duties Owed to Nonclients

In some cases a lawyer may owe duties to a nonclient that may produce a conflict of interest in the representation of a client. In the context of former Rule 5-102(B), which stated that a member may not represent conflicting interests without written consent, the State Bar observed that a conflict of interest may arise from an attorney's relationship with a nonclient. The conflict may arise when an attorney's relationship with a person or entity creates an expectation that the attorney owes a duty of fidelity. A conflict may also arise when the attorney has acquired confidential information in the course of the relationship that will be, or may appear to the person or entity to be, useful in the attorney's representation in an action on behalf of a client [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1981-63].

For example, the State Bar concluded that the law firm of a city council member could not represent tort claimants against the city. Although the city council member did not represent the city as its lawyer, both of the elements mentioned above (expectation of fidelity and acquisition of confidential information) were present in the council member's involvement with the city [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1981-63; see also State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1977-46]. Several county bar association opinions have reached the same conclusion in situations involving similar facts [LACBA Formal Opinion 273 (1962); SDCBA Ethics Opinion Nos. 1976-12, 1969-1].

The same standard was applied in William H. Raley Co. v. Superior Court (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 1042, 197 Cal. Rptr. 232 . In Raley, the court disqualified a law firm that represented a client in a lawsuit against a company whose assets were administered by a bank acting as a trustee. A lawyer in the firm was a director of the bank and a member of its trust committee, which discharged the bank's trustee responsibilities for various trusts, including the trust for the company in question. Although the lawyer did not act as an attorney for the trust committee, the court found that both aspects of the standard in State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1981-63 were present. By acting for the bank as a trustee, the lawyer had fiduciary duties to the company trust beneficiaries to manage the company with reasonable skill, prudence, and diligence. The lawyer also had ongoing accessibility to confidential information about the company that might have been pertinent to the lawsuit [William H. Raley Co. v. Superior Court (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 1042, 1047-1048, 197 Cal. Rptr. 232 ; see also Morrison Knudsen Corp. v. Hancock, Rothert & Bunshoft (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 223, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 425 (law firm enjoined from representing water district in dispute with wholly owned subsidiary of corporation, where law firm had never directly represented corporation or its wholly owned subsidiary, but had represented insurance underwriter of parent corporation on ongoing basis and was privy to confidential information about nonclient corporation's financial condition that could be useful to adversary); BASF Formal Opinion No. 1979-2 (lawyer serving as director is tantamount to representation of company)].

Raley and all of the ethics opinions discussed above, involved conflicts analyzed under old Rule 5-102(B), or its predecessors, which applied when a representation was adverse to an existing client. In Allen v. Academic Games Leagues of America Inc. (C.D. Cal. 1993) 831 F. Supp. 785 , the court applied these principles to disqualify a lawyer who had a prior fiduciary relationship with the opposing party in which the lawyer may have been privy to material confidential information. Allen involved a suit between competing companies engaged in manufacturing and marketing educational games. The defendants' lawyer, while as a law student and later as a lawyer, served as a member of the plaintiff's advisory board and attended meetings at which the plaintiff's claims against the defendants may have been discussed. After the lawsuit was filed, the lawyer resigned from his position with the plaintiff and became the attorney of record for the defendants. Citing Raley, the court held that although the Rules of Professional Conduct were not directly applicable (due to the absence of the lawyer-client relationship), disqualification was proper based on the general intent of the rules expressed in Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-100(A) (rules serve "to protect the public and promote respect and confidence in the legal profession" and "the prohibition of certain conduct in these Rules is not exclusive") [Allen v. Academic Games Leagues of America, Inc. (C.D. Cal. 1993) 831 F. Supp. 785, 789 ; see also Morrison Knudsen Corp. v. Hancock, Rothert & Bunshoft (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 223, 232-234, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 425] .

The same principles discusses above were applied in American Airlines v. Sheppard, Mullin, Richter & Hampton (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1017, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 685 . In an action for breach of fiduciary duty, the court held that a lawyer and his law firm breached their fiduciary duty to an airline company who was their client when the lawyer, without the consent of the airline, agreed to testify as the Federal Rule 30(b)(6) spokesperson in a federal action on behalf of an aircraft broker. In the first matter, the law firm represented the airline company against an aircraft manufacturer. In the second matter, the lawyer acted as the spokesperson for the aircraft broker in a different case against the same aircraft manufacturer.

American Airlines applied the rule against the representation of concurrent clients notwithstanding the absence of an attorney-client relationship in the second matter. The court recognized the existence of a conflict between the fiduciary duties owed to the non-client aircraft broker to answer questions at a deposition such as to avoid being determined an inadequate witness and the duty to the client airline company to preserve the airline's confidences and secrets [American Airlines v. Sheppard, Mullin, Richter & Hampton (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1017, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 685] .

7-72 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 72.52

§ 72.52 Organization as Client

[1] Client Is Organization, Not Individuals

Effective May 27, 1989, Rule 3-600 sets forth the basic rules on representation when the client is an organization. When a lawyer represents an entity, the client is the organization itself, acting through its highest authorized officer, employee, body, or constituent overseeing the particular engagement [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-600(A); Brooklyn Navy Yard Cogeneration Partners v. Superior Court (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 248, 254-255, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 419] . A lawyer who represents an organization does not thereby represent its officers, directors, shareholders or other constituents [see Morrison Knudsen Corp. v. Hancock, Rothert & Bunshoft (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 223, 240, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 425 ; Brooklyn Navy Yard Cogeneration Partners v. Superior Court (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 248, 254-255, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 419 ; Skarbrevik v. Cohen, England & Whitfield (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 692, 703-707, 282 Cal. Rptr. 627 ; Ward v. Superior Court (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 23, 33-34, 138 Cal. Rptr. 532 ; Lewis v. Le Baron (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 270, 281, 61 Cal. Rptr. 903 ; Jacuzzi v. Jacuzzi Bros., Inc. (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 24, 29, 32 Cal. Rptr. 188 ; SDCBA Ethics Opinion No. 1976-16 (revised)].

[2] Dealing With and Representing Constituents of Organization

A lawyer has a duty to explain the identity of the client for whom the lawyer is acting whenever it becomes apparent that the organization's interests are or may become adverse to those of the constituent with whom the lawyer is dealing [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-600(D)]. Information disclosed by a constituent of the entity must be disclosed to the entity as required by the lawyer's duties to keep the entity reasonably informed of significant developments [Jacuzzi v. Jacuzzi Bros., Inc. (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 24, 29, 32 Cal. Rptr. 188] . A lawyer has a duty not to mislead a constituent into believing that confidential information will not be used against the constituent if the constituent's interests conflict with those of entity [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-600(D) National Football League Properties, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 100, 108, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 893 ; Brooklyn Navy Yard Cogeneration Partners v. Superior Court (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 248, 255, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 419] .

A lawyer may represent an entity and one or more of its constituents concurrently, provided that the lawyer complies with the conflicts rules [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-600(E); see also Robinson v. Snell's Limbs & Braces (La. Ct. App. 1989) 538 So. 2d 1045, 1048 ; United States Industries v. Goldman (S.D.N.Y. 1976) 421 F. Supp. 7, 11-12] . If the organization's consent is required for dual representation, consent must be given by a constituent of the entity who is someone other than the constituent being represented.

[3] Whistle Blowing

A lawyer may take such actions as appear to be in the best lawful interest of the organization to avoid injuries to the organization in the following situations [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-600(B)]:

- When an actual or apparent agent of the organization acts or intends or refuses to act in a manner that may be a violation of law reasonably imputable to the organization.

- When an actual or apparent agent of the organization acts or intends or refuses to act in a manner that is likely to result in substantial injury to the organization.

The representation of a governmental entity presents unique problems in possible whistle blowing situations. Not only is it often difficult to identify the client precisely, the lawyer representing a governmental entity must also harmonize the attorney-client privilege and the ethical duty to protect the client's confidences and secrets with the whistleblower statutory protections applicable to employees of state and local public entities.

Guidance for lawyers representing governmental entities can be found in Attorney General Opinion No. 00-1203 which reaches the following conclusions [84 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 71] :

- The "whistleblower" statutory protections applicable to employees of state and local public entities do not supersede the statutes and rules governing the attorney-client privilege.

- The statutory provisions relating to the disclosure of false claims actions, communications with the Legislature, and the filing of complaints or claims or the institution of proceedings pertaining to the rights of employment by employees of state and local public entities do not supercedes the statutes and rules governing the attorney-client privilege.

In these circumstances, Rule 3-600 states that the lawyer may follow one of the following courses of conduct provided the lawyer does not violate the duty to maintain client confidences and secrets [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-600(B)]:

- Urge reconsideration, and explain the likely consequences of the action or inaction to the organization.

- Refer the matter to the next higher authority in the organization, and to subsequent higher authorities, up to the highest internal authority that can act on behalf of the organization.

Rule 3-600 does not preclude a lawyer from taking other courses of action consistent with the lawyer's ethical duties. If the client fails to respond appropriately (in the lawyer's view), the lawyer may (and perhaps must) resign [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-600(C); see also Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-700 (termination of employment)].

[4] Lawyer's Duties to Corporation

Rule 3-600 applies to the representation of corporations [National Football League Properties, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 100, 108, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 893 ; Brooklyn Navy Yard Cogeneration Partners v. Superior Court (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 248, 254, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 419 ; Skarbrevik v. Cohen, England & Whitfield (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 692, 703-707, 282 Cal. Rptr. 627 ; see Rule 3-600 Discussion].

Under Rule 3-600, and the cases decided before the rule, a lawyer does not represent the shareholders, officers or employees of the corporation by virtue of representing the corporation itself. The lawyer's first duty is to the corporation [see National Football League Properties, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 100, 108, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 893 ; Brooklyn Navy Yard Cogeneration Partners v. Superior Court (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 248, 254-255, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 419 ; Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Inc. v. Tracinda Corp. (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1832, 1842, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 327 ; Meehan v. Hopps (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 284, 293, 301 P.2d 10] .

The lawyer's duties to the corporation take precedence even when the legal advice rendered to the corporation may affect the interests of the shareholders or other constituents. The lawyer's duty to the organization exists even when the corporation acts or intends to act improperly [Skarbrevik v. Cohen, England & Whitfield (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 692, 704, 282 Cal. Rptr. 627 (citing Rule 3-600(B))].

As a result, courts have held that corporate counsel should refrain from taking part in any controversies or factual differences among shareholders as to control of the corporation so that counsel can advise the corporation without prejudice or bias [Forrest v. Baeza (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 65, 74, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 857 ; Skarbrevik v. Cohen, England & Whitfield (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 692, 704, 282 Cal. Rptr. 627 ; Goldstein v. Lees (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 614, 622, 120 Cal. Rptr. 253] . This rule generally applies when a lawyer who has been representing a corporation is asked to represent one shareholder against another shareholder in a dispute over the control of the corporation [see, e.g., Woods v. Superior Court (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 931, 197 Cal. Rptr. 185 (lawyer who for years represented corporation owned by husband and wife could not represent one shareholder against other in marital dissolution action when corporation was primary focus of dispute)].

In Goldstein v. Lees, the court held that a former corporate counsel who had material confidential information could not represent one shareholder in a proxy fight for control of the corporation. The court emphasized that a lawyer who has acquired confidential information while representing the corporation cannot monopolize that information for the benefit of one shareholder in a dispute over control of the corporation [Goldstein v. Lees (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 614, 619-623, 120 Cal. Rptr. 253] .

On the other hand, a lawyer may not be prohibited from representing shareholders on certain matters related to the corporation. In Jacuzzi v. Jacuzzi Bros., Inc., the court found that a former corporate lawyer could represent minority shareholders in a derivative action to address misfeasance on the part of the directors unless in so doing the lawyer may be called upon to breach a professional confidence entrusted to him by the corporation. The court held that since the action was for the benefit of the corporation, it was not an adverse representation [Jacuzzi v. Jacuzzi Bros., Inc. (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 24, 29, 32 Cal. Rptr. 188] .

Similarly, in Forrest v. Baeza, the court permitted a current corporate lawyer to represent two majority shareholders in a derivative action against two closely held corporations. The court, however, held that the lawyer could not simultaneously represent the corporations in the action because the majority shareholders, who were also directors, were accused of embezzling from the corporations, which created a conflict of interest between the corporations and the majority shareholders. Due to this conflict, the majority shareholders' prior consent on behalf of the corporations to the lawyer's simultaneous representation of the corporations and the majority shareholders was not valid under either Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rules 3-310(C) or 3-600(E). In permitting the lawyer to continue to represent the majority shareholders, the court rejected the argument that the lawyer should be disqualified under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E), for possessing confidential information that could prejudice the corporations. The court found that there was no confidential information particular to the corporations, in that the majority shareholders were "the sole repositories" of all corporate information [Forrest v. Baeza (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 65, 74-75, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 857] .

A lawyer is also not prohibited from taking actions on behalf of the corporation that are adverse to the interests of a shareholder or other constituents. In Skarbrevik v. Cohen, England & Whitfield, the corporation's lawyer rendered advice and drafted documentation for the corporation that resulted in a dilution of a minority shareholder's interest in the company. The work was performed at the direction of the majority shareholders, who apparently were the ones authorized to oversee the lawyer's representation of the corporation. Applying Rule 3-600, the court held that because the lawyer represented the corporation, he did not represent the shareholder and owed no duty to the shareholder with respect to his advice or actions taken [Skarbrevik v. Cohen, England & Whitfield (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 692, 704, 282 Cal. Rptr. 627 ; see also Meehan v. Hopps (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 284, 290, 301 P.2d 10 (lawyer could bring action on behalf of corporation's receiver against majority shareholder who had previously dominated corporation)].

[5] Affiliate as Distinct Organization

Corporations and their affiliates are distinct entities for conflict purposes [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-600; Brooklyn Navy Yard Cogeneration Partners v. Superior Court (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 248, 254-259, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 419 ; State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1989-113; but see Morrison Knudsen Corp. v. Hancock, Rothert & Bunshoft (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 223, 239-252, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 425 (corporation and subsidiary found to have "unity of interest" and constitute single client for conflict purposes)]. For large, publicly traded corporations, an attorney can generally be adverse to an affiliate of a corporation represented by the lawyer without violating the conflict rules [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1989-113; see Image Technical Services, Inc. v. Eastman Kodak Company (N.D. Cal. 1993) 820 F. Supp. 1212, 1214 (citing State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1989-113 with approval)].

[6] Close Corporations

The Discussion to Rule 3-600 observes that lawyers dealing with close corporations and small associations often perform services on behalf of both the organization and its major constituents. In resolving conflicts in these multiple relationships, the Discussion refers members to case law [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-600, Discussion].

Although the issue may arise in the representation of larger corporations as well, representation of close corporations in particular involves the potential for a lawyer-client relationship to arise with the corporation's principals individually. While under Rule 3-600 a lawyer does not have a lawyer-client relationship with the corporation's constituents by virtue of representing the corporation, a lawyer-client relationship may still arise based on the nature of the lawyer's interaction with the constituents [see, e.g., National Football League Properties, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 100, 108, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 893 ; Skarbrevik v. Cohen, England & Whitfield (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 692, 705, 282 Cal. Rptr. 627 (suggesting that lawyer-client or confidential relationship with individual shareholder in close corporation may arise when lawyer has close interaction with that shareholder); see also State Bar of California Formal Opinion No. 1999-153].

PRACTICE TIP:

Variation of Alter-Ego Analysis. In analyzing conflicts in situations involving close corporations, courts tend to use a variation of alter-ego analysis. In some cases, the rules governing a lawyer's relationship to a partnership client may apply [see, e.g., Hecht v. Superior Court (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 560, 565, 237 Cal. Rptr. 528] . Courts look to [see, e.g., Woods v. Superior Court (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 931, 935, 197 Cal. Rptr. 185] :

- The separateness of entities.
- The unity of interests.
- Whether corporate formalities are observed.

- The extent to which entities have distinct and independent managements.

Not every interaction with a shareholder in a close corporation necessarily leads to a lawyer-client relationship. On the one hand, when the lawyer is acting for the benefit of the corporation, the fact that the act also benefits an individual shareholder because of that shareholder's interest in the corporation does not give rise to a lawyer-client relationship with the shareholder [Meehan v. Hopps (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 284, 293, 301 P.2d 10] . On the other hand, where the corporation exists to serve the personal interests of the shareholders, a lawyer-client relationship with individual shareholders may be deemed to exist, particularly when there is close interaction between the lawyer and the shareholder [Woods v. Superior Court (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 931, 197 Cal. Rptr. 185 (involving family corporation)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Determining Existence of Lawyer-Client Relationship With Shareholders. So far the courts have not yet adopted a clear rule concerning when a lawyer-client relationship arises with individual shareholders. In answering these questions in the future, courts may look to the factors that have been enunciated in cases involving partnerships [see Responsible Citizens v. Superior Court (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1717, 1731-1733, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 756] . By Stanley W. Lamport.

Situations in which the lawyer is deemed to have a lawyer-client relationship with individual shareholders can lead to challenging conflict of interest problems for the lawyer. When there is a change in control, the lawyer may suddenly find that the once identical interests of the corporation and the shareholder are now in conflict. Courts tend to resolve these conflicts in favor of the corporation based on the principle that the lawyer's primary duty is to the corporation [see, e.g., Skarbrevik v. Cohen, England & Whitfield (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 692, 704, 282 Cal. Rptr. 627 ; Meehan v. Hopps (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 284, 293, 301 P.2d 10 ; Hoiles v. Superior Court (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 1192, 1198, 204 Cal. Rptr. 111 ; see also State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1999-153]. However, in Forrest v. Baeza, the court permitted the corporate lawyer to continue to represent the majority shareholders in a derivative action against two closely held corporations, but held that the lawyer could not continue to simultaneously represent the corporations. The court reasoned that [Forrest v. Baeza (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 65, 79-82, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 857] :

- The lawyer would likely hold a residual bias in favor of the majority shareholders, even when the court permitted the lawyer to continue representation of the corporations only.

- No corporate confidences would be breached by the lawyer in continuing representation of the majority shareholders because the majority shareholders already possessed all material corporate information.

When a change or dispute over control is foreseeable, a lawyer may need to treat the relationship with the corporation and the individual shareholder as a potential conflict for purposes of analyzing how to conduct the lawyer-client relationship [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1999-153]. A lawyer representing a close corporation that has shareholders in dispute may have difficulty determining which shareholder is authorized to speak or waive conflicts on behalf of the close corporation [see State Bar of California Formal Opinion No. 1999-153].

In cases in which the interests of the corporation and the shareholder are not in conflict, the relationship between the lawyer and the shareholder may disqualify the lawyer from acting adversely to the shareholder in matters involving a third party [Meehan v. Hopps (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 284, 293, 301 P.2d 10] .

[7] Partnerships

A partnership is an organization within the meaning of Cal Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-600 [Responsible Citizens v.

Superior Court (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1717, 1729-1730, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 756 ; State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1994-137]. An attorney representing a partnership does not necessarily have an attorney-client relationship with an individual partner for purposes of applying the conflict of interest rules. Whether the relationship exists turns on finding an express or implied agreement that the lawyer also represents the partner. Among the factors that support or undercut the implication of an attorney-client relationship with individual partners are [Responsible Citizens v. Superior Court (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1717, 1731-1732, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 756 ; see also Johnson v. Superior Court (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 463, 474-475, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 312 (under some circumstances, attorney for partnership may be found to also represent limited partners); Buehler v. Sbardellati (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 1539, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 104 (lawyer and partners may agree and document that lawyer represents only partnership and not individual partners); Kapelus v. State Bar (1987) 44 Cal. 3d 179, 191-192, 242 Cal. Rptr. 196, 745 P.2d 917 (lawyer does not represent limited partners by virtue of representing limited partnership); ABA Comm. on Ethics and Professional Responsibility, Formal Opinion 91-361 (partnership is organization within meaning of Model Rules of Professional Conduct, Rule 1.13 (1983), ABA rule on which Rule 3-600 is patterned)]:

- The type and size of the partnership.
- The nature and scope of the lawyer's engagement.
- The kind and extent of the lawyer's contacts with the individual partners.
- The nature of information to which the lawyer has access.

[8] Partners and Client for Purposes of Privilege

In the context of the attorney-client privilege, several courts have held that an attorney for a partnership represents all of the partners as to matters of partnership business [Wortham & Van Liew v. Superior Court (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 927, 932, 233 Cal. Rptr. 725] . These cases hold that the attorney must divulge information obtained from one partner about the partnership to all partners who have a right to the information under the joint-client exception to the attorney-client privilege in Evid. Code § 962 [Wortham & Van Liew v. Superior Court (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 927, 932-933, 233 Cal. Rptr. 725 ; see also Hecht v. Superior Court (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 560, 566-567, 237 Cal. Rptr. 528 (adopting Wortham holding verbatim); McCain v. Phoenix Resources, Inc. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 575, 580-581, 230 Cal. Rptr. 25 (general partner may not assert attorney-client privilege to bar disclosure of information by partnership's lawyer to limited partners who have right of access to information under partnership agreement or statute); Lasky, Haas, Cohler & Munter v. Superior Court (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 264, 284, 218 Cal. Rptr. 205 (legal counsel provided to partnership is intended to and does assist each and every general partner to fulfill joint management duties)].

All of the attorney-client privilege cases involving partnerships were decided before Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-600 was adopted. Rule 3-600 offers the potential of resolving much of the tension between the analysis in the conflict of interest cases that treat a partnership as an organization distinct from its partners, and the attorney-client privilege cases that treat a partnership as an aggregate of individual partners without changing the result achieved in those cases. Under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-600(D) communications between a partner and the partnership's lawyer may still be disclosed to other partners, just as in Wortham. However, Rule 3-600 apparently replaces the joint-client analysis in Wortham and related cases with a broader view of the partnership as the holder of the privilege, with individual partners having rights to disclosure as provided by statute or the partnership agreement.

[9] Conflicting Instructions From Partners

In State Bar Formal Opinion 1994-137, the State Bar addressed a lawyer's ethical duties when, in the course of representing a partnership, the lawyer receives conflicting instructions from the partners in circumstances in which it is unclear which partner's instruction the lawyer must follow. The opinion addressed this problem under two scenarios:

- When there are conflicting instructions from two general partners who both have authority under the partnership agreement to instruct the lawyer.

- When the lawyer receives instructions by partners who claim to have removed the general partner authorized to oversee representation and it is unclear whether the removal was properly exercised under the partnership agreement.

The opinion concluded that in these cases, the lawyer should work with the partners to resolve the dispute, while explaining the likely consequences to the partnership if the dispute is not resolved. If the dispute is not resolved, the lawyer may withdraw pursuant to Rule 3-700(C)(1)(d) if the dispute renders it unreasonably difficult for the lawyer to represent the partnership or if other grounds exist for withdrawal under Rule 3-700 [State Bar Formal Opinion 1994-137].

The opinion noted that the problems that arise in the two scenarios may be addressed in the partnership agreement when the partnership is formed. It also observed that in some cases it may be appropriate for a lawyer to obtain an agreement from the partners at the outset of the representation defining which partner may instruct the lawyer and how that partner's authority may be terminated [State Bar Formal Opinion 1994-137].

However, the opinion recognized that these agreements may have practical limitations, particularly in the second scenario when there is a dispute about whether the partner instructing the lawyer has the authority to act on behalf of the partnership [State Bar Formal Opinion 1994-137]. In addition, beyond the ethical issues, there may be legal issues regarding the enforceability of the agreements depending on the circumstances.

[10] Member of Trade Association

Generally an attorney can be adverse to a member of an incorporated trade association when he or she represents the trade association itself. There is an exception, however, when an attorney receives confidential information from an association member under circumstances in which the association member has a reasonable expectation that the attorney will use the information for the member's benefit [Glueck v. Jonathan Logan, Inc. (2d Cir. 1981) 653 F.2d 746, 748-749 ; Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. Kerr-McGee Corporation (7th Cir. 1978) 580 F.2d 1311, 1318-1320 , cert. denied, 439 U.S. 955] .

Several courts have held that when a lawyer represents an unincorporated association or informal group, the lawyer represents each member as well [Halverson v. Convenient Food Mart. Inc. (7th Cir. 1972) 458 F.2d 927, 930 ; Philadelphia Housing Authority v. American Radiator & Standard Sanitary Corp. (E.D. Pa. 1969) 294 F. Supp. 1148, 1150 (involving attorney-client privilege); Schwartz v. Broadcast Music, Inc. (S.D.N.Y. 1954) 16 F.R.D. 31, 32 ; but see Glueck v. Jonathan Logan, Inc. (2d Cir. 1981) 653 F.2d 746, 749-750 (adopting substantial relationship test)]. It has not been decided whether Rule 3-600 establishes a different rule.

§ 72.70 Waiver of Conflicts by Client Consent

One commonly hears reference to obtaining a client's waiver of a conflict. However, the term "waiver" is not used in the rules governing conflicts. The rules call for informed written consent. As a result, when thinking of "conflict waivers," a lawyer should think in terms of obtaining the client's informed consent. In a few instances the rules require written disclosure, but do not require written consent. In those situations, a lawyer should focus on providing sufficient information so that the client may decide whether to be represented by the lawyer.

Many conflicts can be waived by client consent. The policy is to permit clients to be represented by their choice of counsel and to lower the cost of legal representation by increasing the pool of available lawyers.

Certain conflicts of interest cannot be waived or consented to by a client. These include the situations discussed under § 72.71.

[2] Representing Opposing Sides in Contested Hearing

An attorney may not assume a position at a trial or hearing in which he or she cannot advocate the interests of one client without adversely injuring those of the other [Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 288, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950 ; Klemm v. Superior Court (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 893, 898, 142 Cal. Rptr. 509] . For this reason, a lawyer cannot concurrently represent parties pursuing opposing claims in a trial or at a hearing, even with client consent.

However, a lawyer may represent adverse clients in a uncontested proceeding. In addition, a lawyer may represent adverse parties with their informed written consent in connection with the drafting of agreements and negotiations prior to a trial or hearing [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Egedi (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 17, 23-25, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 518 (marital settlement agreements); Gregory v. Gregory (1949) 92 Cal. App. 2d 343, 349, 206 P.2d 1122 (marital settlement agreements); Davidson v. Davidson (1949) 90 Cal. App. 2d 809, 819, 204 P.2d 71 ; Lessing v. Gibbons (1935) 6 Cal. App. 2d 598, 605-606, 45 P.2d 258 (representing studio and actress in contract negotiations); BASF Formal Opinion No. 1973-26 (preparing contract between attorney's son and another party, both doctors)].

[3] Client Lacks Capacity to Give Consent

The concept of informed consent assumes that a client is in a position to understand and assess the lawyer's disclosure and the consent being sought. When the client lacks the capacity to do so, informed consent is not possible [see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

[4] Disclosure Precluded by Law

Other rules and laws may preclude making adequate disclosure under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310. If adequate disclosure is precluded, informed written consent is likewise precluded [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310, Discussion]. Thus, for example, if a lawyer cannot make adequate disclosure without violating the duty to maintain the confidences and secrets of another present or former client, the lawyer cannot make that disclosure, and therefore, cannot obtain informed consent to the representation.

[5] Lawyer Cannot Competently Represent Client

[a] When Competent Representation Unlikely

A client cannot waive a conflict that makes it unlikely that the lawyer can competently represent the client [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992); see also Ishmael v. Millington (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 520, 526-527, 50 Cal. Rptr. 592 (part-time counsel should terminate lawyer-client relationship when discharge of duty to one client conflicts with duty to another client); Dettamanti v. Lompoc Union School Dist. (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 715, 723, 300 P.2d 78 (lawyer representing school district cannot be employed to advise party about claim against district); Hammett v. McIntyre (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 148, 157-158, 249 P.2d 885 (lawyer may not represent civil defendant and insurer at trial when insurer seeks to establish no coverage for defendant); Pennix v. Winton (1943) 61 Cal. App. 2d 761, 773, 145 P.2d 561 (lawyer acted improperly by advancing interests of insurer over defendant client at trial); LACBA Formal Opinion No. 395 (1982); BASF Formal Opinion Nos. 1979-2, 1973-26, 1973-15; SDCBA Ethics Opinion No. 1990-3; cf. Model Rules of Professional Conduct, Rule 1.7(b) (1983) (lawyer must reasonably believe representation of one client will not be adversely affected by lawyer's responsibilities to another client or third party, or by lawyer's own interests)].

No matter how much disclosure is made, a client cannot waive a lawyer's duty to practice competently [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992); see, e.g., Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-400(A) (prohibiting attorney from contracting with client to prospectively limit attorney's malpractice liability)]. For example, a lawyer cannot adequately represent clients who give conflicting instructions so that the lawyer cannot act on one client's instruction without violating the other client's instruction [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)]. In that situation, the lawyer must withdraw from representing both clients [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 344 (1974)].

When interests of the lawyer in the subject matter of the representation are so great that the lawyer cannot be expected to competently represent the client, the client cannot consent to the representation. Some of these conflicts are covered by the following rules that prohibit a lawyer from engaging in certain practices altogether:

- Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-210 [see § 72.71[5][b]].
- Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-300 [see § 72.71[5][c]].
- Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-400 [see § 72.71[5][d]].

For additional discussion relating to the duty of competent representation, see § 72.270 et seq. through § 72.290 et seq.

[b] Payment of Client's Personal or Business Expenses Under Rule 4-210

A State Bar member may not directly or indirectly pay or agree to pay, guarantee, represent, or sanction a representation that the member or member's law firm will pay the personal or business expenses of a prospective or existing client [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-210(A)]. However, this rule does not prohibit a State Bar member from paying client expenses in the following situations [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-210(A)]:

- With the consent of the client, from paying or agreeing to pay such expenses to third persons from funds collected or to be collected for the client as a result of the representation.

- After employment, from lending money to the client on the client's promise in writing to repay the loan.

- From advancing the costs of prosecuting or defending a claim or action or otherwise protecting or promoting the client's interests, the repayment of which may be contingent on the outcome of the matter. These costs will be limited to all reasonable expenses of litigation or reasonable expenses in preparation for litigation or in providing any legal services to the client.

Despite these exceptions, the following Rules may still apply [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-210(B)]:

- Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-300, concerning purchases at foreclosure sales [see § 72.71[5][c]].

- Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-300, relating to avoiding interests adverse to a client [see § 72.90 et seq.].

- Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310, concerning avoiding the representation of adverse interests [see § 72.110 et seq. and § 72.130 et seq.].

The reference to "personal or business expenses" in Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-210(A) is generally understood to include litigation expenses [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 434 (1988)]. The reference to "costs of prosecuting or defending a claim or action" in the rule's third exception tends to confirm this view.

Rule 4-210 prohibits a lawyer from advancing client litigation expenses for which the client is not ultimately responsible, except when repayment is contingent on the outcome of the representation or when legal services are rendered as charity [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1976-38; LACBA Formal Opinion Nos. 379 (1979), 434 (1988)]. The rule does not prohibit a lawyer from advancing expenses for which the client is responsible, even when there is a substantial likelihood that the client will never pay them [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1976-38]. The rationale behind the prohibition against paying the client's litigation costs is to avoid the possibility that the attorney's independent judgment might be impaired if he or she had a financial interest in the outcome of the case [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 434 (1988)].

[c] Purchase of Property at Foreclosure Sale Under Rule 4-300

A State Bar member may not directly or indirectly purchase property at a probate, foreclosure, receiver's, trustee's, or judicial sale in an action or proceeding in which the member or any lawyer affiliated by reason of personal, business, or professional relationship with that member or with that member's law firm is acting as a lawyer for a party or as an executor, receiver, trustee, administrator, guardian, or conservator [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-300(A)].

In addition, a State Bar member may not represent the seller at a probate, foreclosure, receiver, trustee, or judicial sale in an action or proceeding in which the purchaser is any of the following [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-300(B)]:

- A spouse or relative of the member.

- A spouse or relative of another lawyer in the member's law firm.

- An employee of the member or the member's law firm.

[d] Inducing Client to Make Substantial Gift

[i] Rule Under Rule 4-400

A State Bar member may not induce a client to make a substantial gift, including a testamentary gift, to the member or to the member's parent, child, sibling, or spouse, except when the client is related to the member [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-400].

If the lawyer does not induce the client to make the gift, the lawyer may draft a will in which he or she is to receive the gift. In the case of testamentary gifts, however, there is a rebuttable presumption that a lawyer has exercised undue influence when the lawyer drafts a will under which he or she receives more than a modest gift [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-400, Discussion; Magee v. State Bar (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 423, 429-430 (decided under prior version of rule); LACBA Formal Opinion No. 462 (1990)].

[ii] Testamentary Gifts Under Probate Code Provisions

Testamentary gifts pose special problems, because in many cases the undue influence may not be discovered until after the testator has died. As a result, there may be no witnesses to the lawyer's conduct, other than the lawyer or persons related to the lawyer. The problems in this area were highlighted in the "Gunderson case" in which the State Bar prosecuted a lawyer who had drafted large numbers of wills in which the lawyer or the lawyer's family members and staff received the bulk of the decedent's estate. Although Gunderson ultimately resigned from the Bar while disciplinary charges were pending, his actions prompted both the Legislature and the State Bar to take action.

The Legislature responded by enacting special rules concerning testamentary gifts to a lawyer who has drafted a will or trust making the gift. Under Prob. Code § 21350, a provision in any instrument making any donative transfer to a lawyer who drafted or transcribed the instrument or caused it to be drafted or transcribed is invalid [Prob. Code § 21350(a)(1)]. Prob. Code § 21350 applies retroactively to donative instruments that become irrevocable after its effective date of September 1, 1993 [Bank of America v. Angel View Crippled Children's Foundation (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 451].

A provision in the instrument is also invalid if it makes a donative gift to the lawyer's employee or cohabitant or to a person related to the lawyer by marriage or by blood (defined to mean a spouse or predeceased spouse or a relative or a relative's spouse within the third degree of relation to the lawyer or the lawyer's spouse or predeceased spouse) [Prob. Code §§ 21350(a)(2), (b)(2)]. In addition, a provision is invalid if the donative gift is made to a partner or shareholder of a partnership or corporation in which the lawyer has ten percent or greater ownership interest or to any employee of such a corporation, partnership, shareholder or partner [Prob. Code § 21350(a)(3)].

The Probate Code provisions do not apply if the transferror is related by blood or marriage to, or is a cohabitant with the lawyer or the transferee or the instrument is reviewed by an independent lawyer who counsels the client about the nature of his or her intended transfer, and who signs and delivers a "certificate of independent review" which substantially complies with a form provided by statute [Prob. Code § 21351(a), (b)]. For a form for a certificate of independent review, see California Wills & Trusts Forms, Vol. 3, MISC 18 (Matthew Bender).

These transfers are also permitted if a court determines based on clear and convincing evidence that the transfer was not the product of fraud, menace, duress, or undue influence and that based on all of the facts and circumstances, it is fair, just and equitable to all interested persons. In such a proceeding, the clear and convincing evidence to support the court finding cannot include the testimony of the lawyer or the transferees who are related to the lawyer [Prob. Code § 21351(d)].

property, see California Probate Practice, Ch. 20, Exchange of Lease of Assets and Options to Purchase (Matthew Bender). PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Conflicts Of Interest
3. Disclosure And Consent To Conflicts

7-72 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 72.72

§ 72.72 Requirements for Disclosure and Informed Written Consent

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(A)(1) defines "disclosure" as "informing the client or former client of the relevant circumstances and of the actual or reasonably foreseeable adverse consequences to the client or former client" [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(A)(1)]. Merely informing a client that there is an actual or potential conflict is not sufficient. A lawyer must explain exactly what the problem is and how it may adversely affect the client.

The required level of disclosure is that necessary to permit the client's free and intelligent consent [Anderson v. Eaton, (1930) 211 Cal. 113, 116, 293 P. 788] . A lawyer must disclose all facts and circumstances which, in the judgment of a lawyer of ordinary skill and capacity, are necessary to enable the client to make free and intelligent decisions regarding the subject matter of the representation [Ishmael v. Millington (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 520, 528, 50 Cal. Rptr. 592] . When the conflict relates to an ongoing representation, the "facts" should include a discussion of the detriment to which the conflict exposes the client and the possible need for different representation [Ishmael v. Millington (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 520, 526, n.3, 50 Cal. Rptr. 592] .

The degree of the client's sophistication or experience may affect the amount of disclosure required. However, even with sophisticated clients, a lawyer must explain the nature of the conflict of interest in such detail that the client can understand the reasons why it may be desirable to have independent counsel with undivided loyalty to the client's interests [Image Technical Services, Inc. v. Eastman Kodak Company (N.D. Cal. 1993) 820 F. Supp. 1212, 1216-1217 (Kodak's consent to law firm's participation in litigation adverse to Kodak was not "informed" because firm did not explain how its engagement would be adverse and what Kodak's exposure would be if firm prevailed on other client's behalf); see also BASF Formal Opinion No. 1973-26].

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(A)(2) defines "informed written consent" as "the client's or former client's written agreement to the representation following written disclosure." Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(A)(3) defines "written" as "any writing as defined in Evid. Code § 250." Evid. Code § 250 defines "writing" as "handwriting, typewriting, printing, photostating, and every other means of recording upon any tangible thing any form of communication or representation, including letters, words, pictures, sounds or symbols, or combinations thereof." A writing includes sound recordings [Law Rev. Comm'n Comment to Evid. Code § 250], as well as films and video tapes [People v. Moran (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 398, 407, 114 Cal. Rptr. 413] . The writing can be several writings cobbled together to constitute a waiver [see, e.g., UMG Recordings, Inc. v. MySpace, Inc. (C.D. Cal. 2007) 526 F. Supp. 2d 1046, 1052].

PRACTICE TIP:

Alternative Methods of Disclosure and Consent. Under Rule 3-310, informed written consent does not necessarily require a signed written instrument. It can be accomplished through a tape or video recording of the disclosure and the client's consent. In addition, disclosure and the client's consent do not have to appear in the same writing. For example, the requirements could be satisfied if disclosure is made in a letter and the consent to that disclosure is contained in a recorded message from the client. If disclosure and consent occur in this way, the consent should clearly establish that it is made in reference to and in light of the disclosure that preceded it.

PRACTICE TIP: Written Transcription of Verbal Consent. It is not clear whether a written but unsigned transcription of a client's verbal consent is sufficient, or whether a tangible expression by the client in the form of a signature or a recording of the client's voice is required. For example, does a client's consent in an unsigned deposition transcript satisfy the requirements? Is the client's consent recorded by the lawyer or the lawyer's staff on a telephone message slip a sufficient writing? To avoid these uncertainties, a lawyer should be sure to obtain a written consent signed by the client or a sound recording of the client's verbal consent.

4. Rule 3-300 Conflicts: Business Transactions With Clients Or Acquisition Of Adverse Financial Interests

7-72 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 72.90

§ 72.90 Avoid Financial Interest Adverse to Client

[1] Rule 3-300 Requirements

A State Bar member may not enter into a business transaction with a client, or knowingly acquire an ownership, possessory, security, or other pecuniary interest adverse to a client, unless each of the following requirements has been satisfied [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-300]:

- The transaction or acquisition and its terms are fair and reasonable to the client and are fully disclosed and transmitted in writing to the client in a manner that should reasonably have been understood by the client.

- The client is advised in writing that the client may seek the advice of an independent lawyer of the client's choice and is given a reasonable opportunity to seek that advice.

- The client thereafter consents in writing to the terms of the transaction or the terms of the acquisition.

[2] Former Rule Compared

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-300 is derived from Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, former Rule 5-101. Former Rule 5-101, on which most of the ethics opinions and cases are premised, was similar, but not identical, to the present rule. The former rule stated that a member of the State Bar may not enter into a business transaction with a client or knowingly acquire an ownership, possessory, security, or other pecuniary interest adverse to a client unless the following three requirements were met:

- The transaction and terms in which the member of the State Bar acquired the interest were fair and reasonable to the client and were fully disclosed and transmitted in writing to the client in a manner and terms that should have reasonably been understood by the client.

- The client was given a reasonable opportunity to seek the advice of independent counsel of the client's choice on the transaction.

- The client consented in writing thereto.

Current Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-300 speaks to the fairness and consent not only to the terms of the transaction but also to the terms of the "acquisition." It now requires that the client be advised "in writing" that the client may seek the advice of an independent lawyer of the client's choice. The current rule also has a new "Discussion" section that helps explain the rule.

[3] Scope of Rule

Rule 3-300 is intended to address issues that arise out of the fiduciary nature of the lawyer-client relationship. The "relationship between an attorney and client is a fiduciary relationship of the highest character" [Clancy v. State Bar (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 140, 146, 77 Cal. Rptr. 657, 454 P.2d 329] . "The essence of a fiduciary or confidential relationship is that the parties do not deal on equal terms, because the person in whom trust and confidence is reposed is in a superior position to exert undue influence over the dependent party" [Beery v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 802, 813, 239 Cal. Rptr. 121, 739 P.2d 1289] . This is especially the case in transactions which are part of or intimately connected with the very business for which the lawyer-client relationship exists [Beery v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 802, 812, 239 Cal. Rptr. 121, 739 P.2d 1289] .

Another purpose of the Rule "is to protect clients from their attorneys' self-interested use of financial information gained from confidences disclosed during the attorney-client relationship" [Arden v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 713, 726, 239 Cal. Rptr. 68, 739 P.2d 1236] . The Supreme Court has observed that abuse of the trust arising from the lawyer-client relationship "is precisely the type of overreaching that Rule 5-101 [now Rule 3-300] is designed to prevent" [Hunniecutt v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 362, 370, 243 Cal. Rptr. 699, 748 P.2d 1161] .

There are two elements that trigger the application of Rule 3-300:

- There must be one of two types of transactions:

  - A business transaction; or

  - An acquisition by the lawyer of an ownership, possessory, security or other adverse pecuniary interest.

- The transaction or acquisition must be between lawyer and client.

Determining when the rule applies requires an understanding of these terms.

[4] Adverse Pecuniary Interests

The acquisition of an ownership, possessory, security or other adverse pecuniary interest is one of the two types of transactions that triggers the application of Rule 3-300. The Rule applies only when the interest acquired by the lawyer is adverse to the client's interests. The acquisition of an interest is adverse when it is reasonably foreseeable that it may be detrimental to the client's interests [Hawk v. State Bar (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 589, 599-601, 247 Cal. Rptr. 599, 754 P.2d 1096 ; Ames v. State Bar (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 910, 919-920]. An interest is also adverse to a client for purposes of the Rule when it creates an actual or potential conflict of interest in which the lawyer may be required to choose between the client's interests and the lawyer's own financial interest [Rodgers v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 300, 313, 256 Cal. Rptr. 381, 768 P.2d 1058] .

Actual injury to the client is not required for an interest to be adverse [Ames v. State Bar (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 910, 919-920, 106 Cal. Rptr. 489, 506 P.2d 625] . The Rule is designed not only to regulate the dishonest practitioner, but also the honest lawyer, who, by acquiring an adverse interest puts himself or herself in the position where he or she may be required to choose between conflicting duties, or be led to an attempt to reconcile conflicting interests [Ames v. State Bar (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 910, 919-920, 106 Cal. Rptr. 489, 506 P.2d 625 ; Hawk v. State Bar (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 589, 600, 247 Cal. Rptr. 599, 754 P.2d 1096] .

Adverse interests arise in two ways. One way is when the lawyer acquires an ownership, possessory, security or other interest which allows the lawyer to summarily extinguish the client's interest in a property without court scrutiny. This applies to most security interests acquired by a lawyer in a client's property [Read v. State Bar (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 394, 400, 279 Cal. Rptr. 818, 807 P.2d 1047 (deed of trust on client property); Hawk v. State Bar (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 589, 600, 247 Cal. Rptr. 599, 754 P.2d 1096 (deed of trust on client property); Ames v. State Bar (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 910, 914-915, 106 Cal. Rptr. 489, 506 P.2d 625 (lawyer purchase of deed of trust on client property)].

An adverse interest also arises when a lawyer takes title to or possession of a client's property as security or for the client's benefit [Brockway v. State Bar (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 51, 64, 278 Cal. Rptr. 836, 806 P.2d 308 (acquiring title to client's property as security); Morgan v. State Bar (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 598, 605-606, 274 Cal. Rptr. 8, 797 P.2d 1186 (lawyer's use of client's credit cards); Sugarman v. State Bar (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 609, 616, 274 Cal. Rptr. 246, 798 P.2d 843 ("loan" by which lawyer obtained control of client's funds); Connor v. State Bar (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1047, 1051-1053, 269 Cal. Rptr. 742, 791 P.2d 312 (acquisition of client property to avoid foreclosure)]. The Rule also applies when a lawyer takes an action that extinguishes a client's interest in property [Silver v. State Bar (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 134, 138-139, 117 Cal. Rptr. 821, 528 P.2d 1157 (writ of execution levied on property on which client also had interest in levying writ of execution)].

In all of these cases the Supreme Court found that there was at least a potential conflict between the client's interest in preserving his or her rights in the property and the lawyer's interest in exercising rights that would extinguish the client's interest in the property. The Supreme Court suggested that where a potential conflict does not exist, the lawyer's acquisition may not be adverse [see Hawk v. State Bar (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 589, 599]. For example, if a lawyer acquires a lien on a property that is junior to a client's lien or does not afford the lawyer a right to extinguish the client's lien, the acquisition may not be adverse for purposing of applying Rule 3-300 (although other ethical rules may still apply, depending on the circumstances).

A second way in which an adverse interest may arise is when a lawyer acquires an interest in an obligation owed to a client or acquires an interest in an entity indebted to a client [Rodgers v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 300, 313, 256 Cal. Rptr. 381, 768 P.2d 1058 (client's loan to third party secured by lawyer's property); Kapelus v. State Bar (1987) 44 Cal. 3d 179, 193-194, 242 Cal. Rptr. 196, 745 P.2d 917 (lawyer's acquisition of non-recourse interest in partnership indebted to client)]. These cases differ from others discussed above because the lawyer does not acquire an interest in the client's property, but instead acquires an interest in connection with a debt owed to the client. In these cases the Court found that the adversity was the potential conflict between the lawyer's own financial interests and the client's interest in obtaining full repayment of the loan [Rodgers v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 300, 313, 256 Cal. Rptr. 381, 768 P.2d 1058 ; Kapelus v. State Bar (1987) 44 Cal. 3d 179, 193, 242 Cal. Rptr. 196, 745 P.2d 917] .

Rule 3-300 applies even when the acquisition is intended to benefit the client. In Connor v. State Bar, an attorney entered into an agreement with his client in which he took full title to his client's property. Although the purpose of the agreement was to assist the client in avoiding a foreclosure, the court held that the lawyer's interest in the property was adverse to the client under former Rule 5-101 [Connor v. State Bar (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1047, 1057, 269 Cal. Rptr. 742, 791 P.2d 312] . The same reasoning applies under Rule 3-300 [see also Ames v. State Bar (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 910, 919-920, 106 Cal. Rptr. 489, 506 P.2d 625 (lawyer's purchase of deed of trust on client property to give client time to cure default was subject to former rule)].

[5] Business Transactions

[a] Definition

The second type of transaction that is covered under Rule 3-300 is business transactions. The focus of the business transactions aspect of Rule 3-300 is on dealings with a client that are beneficial to the lawyer [Rose v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 646, 662-663, 262 Cal. Rptr. 702, 779 P.2d 761 ; Rodgers v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 300, 313, 256 Cal. Rptr. 381, 768 P.2d 1058 ; see also Beery v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 802, 806, 239 Cal. Rptr. 121, 739 P.2d 1289] .

In addition, the Supreme Court has directed the application of Rule 3-300 and its predecessor rules to transactions in which there exists an actual or potential conflict of interest between the lawyer and the client [see Rose v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 646, 662-663 ; Kapelus v. State Bar (1987) 44 Cal. 3d 179, 193-194, 242 Cal. Rptr. 196, 745 P.2d 917] . The focus under this latter criteria is on whether the transaction might require the lawyer to choose between conflicting duties to the client and the lawyer's own financial interest in the transaction [see Rodgers v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 300, 313, 256 Cal. Rptr. 381, 768 P.2d 1058 ; see also People v. Corona (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 684, 720, 145 Cal. Rptr. 894 (lawyer's literary rights agreement with client in connection with client's criminal trial forced lawyer to choose between "his own pocketbook and the best interests of the client")].

Based on these principles, Rule 3-300 applies to a broad range of business dealings between lawyer and client. However, the Rule has been most frequently applied in the disciplinary cases before the Supreme Court in situations involving loans and business investments.

[b] Loans

The Supreme Court has held that the prior rules from which Rule 3-300 is derived prohibit a lawyer "from entering into any loan transaction with a client if it is reasonably foreseeable that his acquisition [of the loan] might be detrimental, i.e. adverse to the interests of his client" [Rodgers v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 300, 314, 256 Cal. Rptr. 381, 768 P.2d 1058 (emphasis supplied)]. The Rule applies to transactions between the lawyer and client directly [Sugarman v. State Bar (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 609, 616, 274 Cal. Rptr. 246, 798 P.2d 843 ; Arden v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 713, 725-726, 239 Cal. Rptr. 68, 739 P.2d 1236 ; Clancy v. State Bar (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 140, 77 Cal. Rptr. 657, 454 P.2d 329] . It also applies to loans to entities controlled by the lawyer [Ritter v. State Bar (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 595, 601-602, 221 Cal. Rptr. 134, 709 P.2d 1303 ; Schneider v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 784, 796-797, 239 Cal. Rptr. 111, 739 P.2d 1279] .

In addition, the Rule applies to a loan transaction by a client to a third party in which the lawyer receives a portion of the proceeds [Rodgers v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 300, 314, 256 Cal. Rptr. 381, 768 P.2d 1058 (proceeds of loan by one client to another used to pay lawyer's fees); Hunniecutt v. State Bar (1975) 44 Cal. 3d 362, 370, 243 Cal. Rptr. 699, 748 P.2d 1161 (loan to lawyer's business partner where lawyer received and used funds)].

[c] Investments

The Rule applies to investments between client and lawyer directly [see, e.g., Clancy v. State Bar (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 140, 146, 77 Cal. Rptr. 657, 454 P.2d 329 (lawyer received funds from client based on the representation that he would invest it and pay her a 20-percent profit)]. The prior rules from which Rule 3-300 is derived also have been held to apply to client investments in assets or ventures in which the lawyer has an interest. These include the following:

- Investments in companies in which the lawyer is a principal [Beery v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 802, 806, 239 Cal. Rptr. 121, 739 P.2d 1289 (investment in satellite communications company in which lawyer was a principal)].

- Investments with third parties in ventures in which the lawyer is involved [Hunniecutt v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 362, 370, 243 Cal. Rptr. 699, 748 P.2d 1161 (real estate investment in which lawyer's business partner in venture solicited investment)].

- Situations in which the lawyer receives compensation for the client's investment [Rose v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 646, 662-663, 262 Cal. Rptr. 702, 779 P.2d 761 (investment in restaurant business for which lawyer received comission)].

- Situations in which the lawyer is requested by the client to invest the client's assets, where the lawyer then self-deals by investing in ventures in which the lawyer has a financial interest [In the Matter of Priamos (Review Dept. 1998) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 824 (creation of partnership with client, without client's knowledge or consent, to invest client's assets in speculative ventures in which attorney held financial interest)].

In applying the rule in these cases, the Supreme Court and the State Bar Court have emphasized the fiduciary nature of the lawyer-client relationship and the potential for undue influence that may arise in such a relationship.

[6] Non-Legal Services

An emerging area in which Rule 3-300 is being applied is in the field of non-legal services rendered by a lawyer or a lawyer controlled entity to a client. The term "non-legal services" refers to services that are not performed in connection with the practice of law and which may be performed by non-lawyers without constituting the practice of law. One example is where a real estate broker/lawyer brokers the sale of property for a client, whom the lawyer represents in other matters. Another example is where a law firm operates an underwriting company which performs services in connection with the firm's securities practice. Ethics opinions are beginning to address the applicability of Rule 3-300 to these services.

One ethics opinion found that when a lawyer/physician practicing in the area of personal injury and medical malpractice refers clients to a medical clinic in which the lawyer has an ownership interest, the referral is a business transaction that requires compliance with Rule 3-300 [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 477 (1994)]. The Rule applied because the referral related to a legal representation in which the lawyer was apt to have considerable influence over the client and where the lawyer's own financial interests in the clinic might conflict with the client's best interests.

Although the Los Angeles County Bar Association opinion focused on only one type of transaction, the rationale in that opinion would apply to most types of non-legal services provided by a lawyer or lawyer-controlled entity to a client when the service arises out of or is performed in connection with the rendition of legal services or involves the trust and confidence reposed by a client in the lawyer.

Another ethics opinion also addresses the situation in which a lawyer may render non-legal services that arise out of a lawyer-client or fiduciary relationship. Nonlegal services, such as investment advice or accounting services, constitute business transactions with a client. Accordingly, the lawyer is required to comply with all applicable Rules of Professional Conduct, including Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rules 3-300 and 3-310 [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1995-141; see also Cal. State B. Formal Opinion Nos. 1999-154].

Under certain circumstances, it is ethically permissible for an attorney to advise a client to purchase insurance, refer the client to an insurance agent for that purchase, and accept compensation from the insurance agent for the referral. To avoid an ethical violation, the attorney must do all of the following [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1995-140]:

- Make full disclosure in writing to the client under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(4), of all relevant circumstances and all actual or reasonably foreseeable consequences to the client.

- Comply with Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-300 regarding written consent.

- Be capable of competently advising the client under the circumstances.

An attorney may directly sell financial products, including long-term insurance, life insurance, and annuities governed by the Insurance Code or its successors, to clients who are elders or dependent elders with whom the attorney has had an attorney client relationship within the preceding 3 years, if the transaction is fair and reasonable to the client and the attorney provides the client with a written disclosure that contains specified information about the financial product being sold and the terms of the proposed sale [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6175.3]. Attorneys who violate the provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6175 et seq. in selling financial products to their elder clients are subject to State Bar discipline [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6175.5], and may be sued by clients for civil damages and other civil remedies, including injunctive relief [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6175.4].

An attorney who rendered both legal and nonlegal services to a client could not rely on an arbitration clause in his engagement letter to require arbitration of disputes arising out of a business transaction with the client. The engagement letter did not explain what it covered, and the client's explanation that he expected the arbitration clause only to extend to the attorney's legal representation for the client's divorce, and not to his financial investments, was "eminently reasonable." If the attorney wanted the arbitration clause to extend to the rendering of legal services and to unrelated business dealings, the attorney had the responsibility to draft a clear and explicit agreement to that effect and, pursuant to Rule 3-300, to advise the client of his right to independent legal advice [Mayhew v. Benninghoff (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 1365, 1369-1370, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 27] .

[1] Retainer Agreements

Rule 3-300 is not intended to apply to retainer agreements unless the agreement gives the attorney an ownership, possessory, security, or other pecuniary interest adverse to the client [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-300, Discussion; State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1989-116].

Whenever a lawyer takes a security interest in a client's assets to secure payment of fee, the lawyer must comply with Rule 3-300 [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-300, Discussion; Hawk v. State Bar (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 589, 599 (deed of trust to secure payment of fees); Brockway v. State Bar (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 51, 64, 278 Cal. Rptr. 836, 806 P.2d 308 (acquisition of title to client property to secure payment of fees); Silver v. State Bar (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 134, 138-139, 117 Cal. Rptr. 821, 528 P.2d 1157 (execution levied on client property to recover fees); LACBA Formal Opinion No. 398 (1982) (deed of trust on client property to secure fees); see also § 72.30 et seq.].

One recent ethics opinion holds that the Rules of Professional Conduct do not prohibit a lawyer from contracting with a client agreeing that the right to recover attorney's fees under civil rights statutes belongs to the attorney and may not be waived by the client. There is no violation so long as the lawyer properly complies with Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rules 3-300 and 3-310 [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1994-136].

[2] Contingency Fee Agreements

Although they involve inherent conflicts of interest, contingency fees are exempt from the requirements of Rule 3-300 [see State Bar Formal Opinion, No. 1987-94; see also Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6146-6147.5 (requirements for contingent fee agreements)]. Contingency fee agreements are discussed in detail in § 72.190 et seq.

[3] Offerings to General Public

Rule 3-300 is not intended to apply when the attorney and client each make an investment on terms offered to the general public or a significant portion of the general public. For example, the rule is not intended to apply when a lawyer invests in a limited partnership syndicated by a third party and the lawyer's client makes the same investment. Although the lawyer and client are each investing in the same business, they have not entered into a transaction with each other for purposes of the rule [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-300, Discussion].

This exception would not apply when the lawyer solicits the investment and receives some benefit from doing so [see, e.g., Rose v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 646, 659-664, 262 Cal. Rptr. 702, 779 P.2d 761] .

[4] Structured Settlements

An attorney representing a client on a contingency fee basis does not acquire a pecuniary interest adverse to a client if the attorney advises that the client accept or reject a structured settlement offer [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1987-94]. In a structured settlement, the client receives a lump sum cash payment at the time of the settlement plus periodic payments over the course of the life expectancy of the client. The manner in which the member's fee is calculated under the structured settlement can give rise to other ethical considerations such as unconscionability [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1987-94; see also § 72.190 et seq.].

In Formal Opinion 1994-135, the State Bar cautioned that the exception may not be applicable when a lawyer contracts with a client to receive the entire fee out of the first payments under the structured settlement. Although the opinion did not conclude that Rule 3-300 applies, it states that lawyers should be aware "that a court of competent jurisdiction could conclude that Rule 3-300 does apply at least in these limited circumstances" [State Bar Formal Opinion, No. 1994-135].

§ 72.92 Transactions Not Involving the Lawyer-Client Relationship

Although courts have yet to address the issue directly, one ethics opinion has noted that Rule 3-300 does not apply to transactions that do not involve the trust and confidence reposed by a client in the lawyer-client relationship [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 477 (1994)]. The same opinion notes that the Rule ordinarily would not apply to "routinized transactions" and transactions in which the client has at least as much bargaining power as the lawyer. State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1995-141 reaches the same conclusion.

PRACTICE TIP:

Transactions Without Lawyer-Client Relationship. This exception ordinarily applies when, for example, a lawyer purchases a meal at a client's restaurant or when the client pays for parking at a parking lot owned by a client. Such transactions typically do not involve the fiduciary relationship and a strict application of the Rule could lead to impractical results. However, the Rule would apply even to these examples if the trust and confidence, or potential adversity elements that trigger the Rule's application in other contexts are present. By Stanley W. Lamport.

§ 72.93 Transactions With a Client

Rule 3-300 applies only when the business transaction is with a client and when the acquisition of a pecuniary interest is adverse to a client. Thus, Rule 3-300 does not apply when a lawyer enters into a transaction before a lawyer-client relationship arises. However, even in the absence of a lawyer-client relationship, a lawyer may still be subject to discipline if the lawyer violates a duty arising in a fiduciary or confidential relationship in connection with a business transaction [Beery v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 802, 811-812, 239 Cal. Rptr. 121, 739 P.2d 1289 ; Worth v. State Bar (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 337, 341, 130 Cal. Rptr. 712, 551 P.2d 16 ; Sodikoff v. State Bar (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 422, 429, 121 Cal. Rptr. 467, 535 P.2d 331] .

A lawyer's provision of nonlegal services to a client, such as real estate or brokerage services, is a business transaction under Cal. Rules. Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-300 and requires compliance with Rule 3-300 [see State Bar of California Formal Opinion Nos. 1999-154, 1995-141; see § 72.90[6]].

There need not be any relationship between the legal representation and the transaction or acquisition obtained for Rule 3-300 to apply [see Beery v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 802, 811-812, 239 Cal. Rptr. 121, 739 P.2d 1289 (lawyer disciplined when client sought legal advice regarding preparation of will but subsequently loaned attorney money for satellite entertainment project that failed)].

When a lawyer enters into a transaction with a former client, the transaction may still be scrutinized under the rule for signs of unfairness despite the fact that the lawyer-client relationship has terminated for most purposes [Hunniecutt v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 362, 371, 243 Cal. Rptr. 699, 748 P.2d 1161] .

If there is evidence that the client placed his or her trust in the attorney because of the representation, an attorney-client relationship exists for purposes of Rule 3-300 even if the representation has otherwise ended [see Hunniecutt v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 362, 371, 243 Cal. Rptr. 699, 748 P.2d 1161 (decided under former Rule 5-101)]; see also Beery v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 802, 812, 239 Cal. Rptr. 121, 739 P.2d 1289 (lawyer's duties to client continued when nothing had happened that would have signaled the end of the lawyer-client relationship to the client)].

The former client's lack of sophistication in financial matters and whether the transaction involves a fund (such as the proceeds of a settlement) which resulted from the lawyer's representation are important factors in determining whether a lawyer-client relationship exists for purposes of the rule [Hunniecutt v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 362, 372-373, 243 Cal. Rptr. 699, 748 P.2d 1161 ; Rose v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 646, 663, 262 Cal. Rptr. 702, 779 P.2d 761 ; see also Beery v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 802, 812, 239 Cal. Rptr. 121, 739 P.2d 1289] . When the client is sophisticated and the investment is not connected with the prior representation, an ongoing lawyer-client relationship may not exist for purposes of the rule [Wallis v. State Bar (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 322, 327-329, 131 P.2d 531 (no discipline warranted when former client was a sophisticated businesswoman, who actively negotiated the terms and the transaction was not connected to the prior representation); see also Hunniecutt v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 362, 371, 243 Cal. Rptr. 699, 748 P.2d 1161] .

§ 72.94 Complying With the Rule

[1] Five Prerequisites

Rule 3-300 does not prohibit a lawyer from entering into a business transaction with a client or from obtaining an ownership, possessory, security or other pecuniary interest adverse to a client. However, before doing so, a lawyer must comply with what the Supreme Court has characterized as "an extensive protocol for gaining the client's consent" [Santa Clara County Counsel Attys. Assn. v. Woodside (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 525, 545, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617, 869 P.2d 1142] .

A lawyer must meet five prerequisites under the rule before entering into the transaction:

- The transaction and its terms must be "fair and reasonable to the client."
- The transaction and its terms must be "fully disclosed and transmitted in writing to the client in a manner which should reasonably have been understood by the client."
- The client must be "advised in writing that the client may seek the advice of an independent lawyer of the client's choice."
- The client must be "given a reasonable opportunity to seek that [independent] advice."
- The client must consent to the terms of the transaction in writing after the first four requirements have been accomplished.

Compliance with these requirements is more than a formality. Business dealings between a lawyer and a client are "scrutinized with the utmost strictness for any unfairness" [Beery v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 802, 812-813, 239 Cal. Rptr. 121, 739 P.2d 1289 ; Clancy v. State Bar (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 140, 146, 77 Cal. Rptr. 657, 454 P.2d 329] .

The burden of proof is on the attorney to show by extrinsic evidence that the transaction is fair and reasonable and fully known and understood by the client [Hunniecutt v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 362, 372-373, 243 Cal. Rptr. 699, 748 P.2d 1161 ; Beery v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 802, 812, 239 Cal. Rptr. 121, 739 P.2d 1289] . A lawyer must fulfill the rule's five requirements in light of these principles.

[2] Fair and Reasonable Transaction and Terms

The fair and reasonable requirement applies both to the transaction as a whole and to its individual terms. The principal issue is whether the transaction is "an arm's length business deal" [Beery v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 802, 815, 239 Cal. Rptr. 121, 739 P.2d 1289 ; Clancy v. State Bar (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 140, 150, 77 Cal. Rptr. 657, 454 P.2d 329] . However, the analysis also focuses on the transaction's effect on the lawyer-client relationship in terms of the conflict of interest between the lawyer and the client resulting from the transaction [see, e.g., Rose v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 646, 663, 262 Cal. Rptr. 702, 779 P.2d 761 ; Ames v. State Bar (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 910, 919, 106 Cal. Rptr. 489, 506 P.2d 625 ; In the Matter of Lane (1994) 2 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 735, 745]. If the transaction is not "fair and reasonable" to the client, it may be deemed to constitute a violation of the lawyer's fiduciary duty and therefore an act of moral turpitude [Hunniecutt v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 362, 372, 243 Cal. Rptr. 699, 748 P.2d 1161] .

A number of factors establish that a transaction is not fair and reasonable to a client. These include an under market purchase price or unsubstantiated value of security given to the client [Sodikoff v. State Bar (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 422, 429-430, 121 Cal. Rptr. 467, 535 P.2d 331 ; Hunniecutt v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 362, 372, 243 Cal. Rptr. 699, 748 P.2d 1161] . Another factor is the absence of security, when security would ordinarily be considered essential to the client [Hunniecutt v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 362, 373, 243 Cal. Rptr. 699, 748 P.2d 1161 ; Beery v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 802, 814-815, 239 Cal. Rptr. 121, 739 P.2d 1289 (lack of security unreasonable where investment involved settlement funds of a young man with a family who was paralyzed and unable to perform his previous occupation); Rodgers v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 300, 314, 256 Cal. Rptr. 381, 768 P.2d 1058 (lack of security for loan of conservatorship funds held unfair)].

Loan transactions between lawyer and client are not fair and reasonable when the terms of the original loan are not in writing and that the loan is not for a definite term [Rodgers v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 300, 314, 256 Cal. Rptr. 381, 768 P.2d 1058 ; Hunniecutt v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 362, 373, 243 Cal. Rptr. 699, 748 P.2d 1161 ; Morgan v. State Bar (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 598, 606, 274 Cal. Rptr. 8, 797 P.2d 1186] . When the transaction relates to a matter in which the lawyer represents the client, another element of unfairness is the inclusion of terms that are inconsistent with the client's interests in entering into the transaction [Ames v. State Bar (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 910, 918-919, 106 Cal. Rptr. 489, 506 P.2d 625 (purchase of senior lien to preserve client's junior lien contained terms that allowed the lawyer to foreclose ahead of the client and did not allow the client to receive any surplus proceeds from the sale)].

In the case where the terms of the transaction are in writing, the Supreme Court's conclusion that the transaction was not fair and reasonable was coupled with a finding that material facts concerning the aspect of the transaction in question were not disclosed, or that the client did not understand the transaction. None of those cases held that a fully informed and sophisticated client who understood the transaction could not agree to the terms that were held not to be fair and reasonable. However, in the absence of an affirmative showing by the lawyer that the client made a fully informed and rational decision, the transaction may be presumed to be unfair and unreasonable even if the opposite is true [see, e.g., Hunniecutt v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 362, 373, 243 Cal. Rptr. 699, 748 P.2d 1161 (holding that the lawyer failed to carry burden due to the absence in the record of any evidence of the value of the security given to the client); see also Beery v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 802, 812, 239 Cal. Rptr. 121, 739 P.2d 1289 (where court noted that transactions connected with the lawyer-client relationship are inherently suspect and will be set aside at "the mere instance of the client" unless the lawyer meets the burden of proof by use of extrinsic evidence); Magee v. State Bar (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 423, 431, 24 Cal. Rptr. 839, 374 P.2d 807 (when circumstances suggest that a lawyer took advantage of a client's weakness or inexperience or that the lawyer benefitted unduly, the lawyer must justify his or her action)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Recommended Documentation. To avoid the problems described above, it is important not only to document the terms of the transaction and the disclosure to the client, but also to document how values were determined and the basis of the client's decision to accept the transaction and the terms. By Stanley W. Lamport.

[3] Full Disclosure in Writing

The rule requires that the nature of the transaction and its terms be fully disclosed to the client in writing and in a manner that should be reasonably understood by the client. The standard suggested is that the attorney "must make it manifest that he gave to his client all that reasonable advice against himself that he would have given him against a third person" [Beery v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 802, 813, 239 Cal. Rptr. 121, 739 P.2d 1289] . It also requires a lawyer to disclose to the client "whatever information the attorney has or may acquire in relation to the subject matter of the transaction" [Beery v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 802, 813, 239 Cal. Rptr. 121, 739 P.2d 1289] .

In the first instance this obligation requires a lawyer to truthfully inform the client of the nature and terms of the transaction [Beery v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 802, 813, 239 Cal. Rptr. 121, 739 P.2d 1289] . In a number of cases, discipline has been imposed when the lawyer failed to disclose basic facts about the transaction [Rodgers v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 300, 313 (failure to disclose business and professional relationship with borrower of client funds, how funds were used and subsequent pledge of security to a third party); Clancy v. State Bar (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 140, 147, 77 Cal. Rptr. 657, 454 P.2d 329 (failure to disclose use of funds)].

The disclosure requirement includes informing the client about the lawyer's role and compensation in connection with the transaction [Rodgers v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 300, 313, 256 Cal. Rptr. 381, 768 P.2d 1058 ; Beery v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 802, 815, 239 Cal. Rptr. 121, 739 P.2d 1289 : Clancy v. State Bar (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 140, 147, 77 Cal. Rptr. 657, 454 P.2d 329] .

In addition, the disclosure must inform the client about how the lawyer's interests in the transaction could conflict with the client's interests and the adverse effect of that conflict on the client and the lawyer-client relationship [see Rose v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 646 ; In the Matter of Lane (1994), 2 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 735, 745]. When the transaction involves the loan or investment of funds or the creation of a security interest between the lawyer and the client, the conflict involves the relative financial interests of the lawyer and the client in the replayment of the loan or investment or in the exercise of rights in the security [Rodgers v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 300, 313, 256 Cal. Rptr. 381, 768 P.2d 1058 ; Kapelus v. State Bar (1987) 44 Cal. 3d 179, 193-194, 242 Cal. Rptr. 196, 745 P.2d 917 ; Silver v. State Bar (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 134, 139, 117 Cal. Rptr. 821, 528 P.2d 1157 ; Ames v. State Bar (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 910, 920].

In cases where the lawyer is compensated for the client's investment, the conflict involves whether the lawyer's recommendation to the client is influenced by the lawyer's interest in receiving the compensation [see, e.g., Rose v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 646]. When the transaction involves the purchase of an asset or some other valuation, such as an interest rate, the conflict involves the differing interests of the lawyer and the client in a higher or lower valuation [Eschwig v. State Bar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 8, 15, 81 Cal. Rptr. 352, 459 P.2d 904] . In all of these cases disclosure of the potential adverse effect on the lawyer-client relationship resulting from problems associated with the business transaction may be required as well [see, e.g., In the Matter of Lane (1994) 2 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 735, 745].

The disclosure requirements also involve a duty to fully apprise the client of the risks associated with the transaction [Beery v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 802, 813, 239 Cal. Rptr. 121, 739 P.2d 1289] . The focus here is on whether information is disclosed that might have discouraged the client from agreeing to the transaction [Rodgers v. State Bar

(1989) 48 Cal. 3d 300, 314, 256 Cal. Rptr. 381, 768 P.2d 1058] . In situations involving client investments or loans, the duty includes disclosure of facts that could affect the client's ability to be repaid [see, e.g., Clancy v. State Bar (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 140, 147, 77 Cal. Rptr. 657, 454 P.2d 329 (discipline imposed for failure to disclose lawyer needed the funds for his own use due to pressing financial obligations and his inability to obtain funds elsewhere)]. In the case of a lawyer's acquisition of a security interest in a client's property, the required disclosure may include the risk of losing the property and the possible protections available to the client [see, e.g., Brockway v. State Bar (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 51, 65, 278 Cal. Rptr. 836, 806 P.2d 308 ; Ames v. State Bar, (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 910, 920, 106 Cal. Rptr. 489, 506 P.2d 625] .

Because the obligation to make full disclosure under Rule 3-300 requires that the disclosure be communicated in a manner that should be reasonably understood by the client, disclosure of the terms of the transaction in the contract documents themselves may not be sufficient. Adequate disclosure may require that the lawyer explain to the client exactly how the transactions may adversely affect the client's interests [see Rose v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 646 (court held contract documents which disclosed lawyer's interest did not adequately inform the client of the potential conflict of interest)].

[4] Written Advice to Seek Independent Counsel

Failure to advise the client in writing to seek the advice of independent counsel is a violation of Rule 3-300 [Rose v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 646 ; Ritter v. State Bar (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 595, 602, 221 Cal. Rptr. 134, 709 P.2d 1303 ; Connor v. State Bar (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1047, 1058, 269 Cal. Rptr. 742, 791 P.2d 312] . The duty to advise a client to seek independent counsel is required even if the terms of the transaction are fair and reasonable and fully disclosed in writing in a manner reasonably understood by client [Ritter v. State Bar (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 595, 602, 221 Cal. Rptr. 134, 709 P.2d 1303] .

Merely informing a client that the client may or can seek the advice of independent counsel is not enough. A lawyer must encourage the client to seek such advice and cannot imply that such advice is unnecessary [Rose v. State Bar (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 646 ; Rodgers v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 300, 314, 256 Cal. Rptr. 381, 768 P.2d 1058] . Pursuant to Rule 3-300, a client must be given a reasonable opportunity to consult with independent counsel. "The consent must follow the opportunity to consult with independent counsel; it is not an alternative to such consultation" [BGJ Associates v. Wilson (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1217, 1226-1227, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 140] .

Independent counsel cannot be someone who has a financial interest in the transaction or is affiliated with the lawyer [Connor v. State Bar (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1047, 1058, 269 Cal. Rptr. 742, 791 P.2d 312 (referral to the lawyer's law partner and girlfriend who stood to profit from the transaction was not independent counsel as required by the Rule)]. Presumably, a referral to another lawyer in the same law firm, even if that lawyer does not have a financial interest in the transaction, would not meet the test for independence.

[5] Reasonable Opportunity to Seek Advice

The requirement that the client be afforded a reasonable opportunity to obtain the advice of independent counsel appears to require at least some passage of time between when the client first receives the contract documents and when the client consents to the transaction [Ritter v. State Bar (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 595, 602-603, 221 Cal. Rptr. 134, 709 P.2d 1303] (discipline imposed when agreement signed in lawyer's office within minutes after it was first presented to the client).

PRACTICE TIP:

Minimum Consultation. What constitutes a reasonable opportunity to consult with independent counsel will depend on the circumstances. At a minimum it would appear to require enough time for the client to obtain a lawyer and have a meaningful consultation about the adequacy of the terms and whether the client should enter into the transaction. By Stanley W. Lamport.

[6] Client's Written Consent

The client's consent to the terms of the transaction must be in writing under the rule. In addition, it must occur only after all of the other four requirements have been accomplished. Rule 3-300 does not define what it means for a client to consent in writing to the terms of the transaction. Using the definitions in Rule 3-310(A) as a guide, the term may mean the client's written agreement to the transaction after disclosure [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(A)(2)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Evidence of Written Consent. It is not clear from the Rule whether the client's written consent can be evidenced by the client's execution of the contract documents in connection with the transaction. As a practical matter, it may be the better practice for the client to sign the document in which the disclosure to the client is made. By Stanley W. Lamport.

A prerequisite to a client's consent under the rule is the client's understanding of the transaction. A client's consent to the terms of the transaction will not satisfy the rule's requirements if the client does not understand the transaction [see, e.g., Hunniecutt v. State Bar (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 362, 373, 243 Cal. Rptr. 699, 748 P.2d 1161] .

Since under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-300 the attorney is required to disclose in writing, advise in writing, and receive consent in writing, it is imperative that the attorney retain the writing. An attorney's failure to keep adequate records is inherently suspicious and can support an inference that his or her testimony is untrue [Rodgers v. State Bar (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 300, 311, 256 Cal. Rptr. 381, 768 P.2d 1058 (rejecting petitioner's claim that records for his defense had "literally disappeared")].

§ 72.110 Rule 3-310(B): Lawyer Relationships and Interests

[1] Scope and History of Rule

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B) provides that a State Bar member may not accept or continue representation of a client without providing written disclosure to the client when:

- The member has a legal, business, financial, professional, or personal relationship with a party or witness in the same matter; or
- The member knows or reasonably should know that:
  - The member previously had a legal, business, financial, professional, or personal relationship with a party or witness in the same matter; and
  - The previous relationship would substantially affect the member's representation; or
- The member has or had a legal, business, financial, professional, or personal relationship with another person or entity the member knows or reasonably should know would be affected substantially by resolution of the matter; or
- The member has or had a legal, business, financial, or professional interest in the subject matter of the representation.

Current Rule 3-310(B), operative September 14, 1992, is a substantial revision of old Rule 3-310(A), which went into effect on May 27, 1989. Old Rule 3-310(A) in turn superseded old Rule 5-102. Both prior rules required informed written consent by a client in situations involving the lawyer's current or prior relationship with another party or the lawyer's current interest in the subject matter of the engagement.

NOTE:

Significant 1992 Amendments to Rule 3-310. Rule 3-310 was amended operative September 14, 1992. In some cases the current rule reflects a significant rewriting of the old rule, and in others does not substantially change it. The scope and extent of the more substantial revisions are still not fully known. As a result, the discussion of some of the current rules that follows in § 72.110 et seq. is necessarily tentative. The focus in these sections is on acquainting the practitioner with the issues that will allow for an informed application of the current requirements and the requirements that have not changed substantially.

Old Rule 3-310(A) was criticized for vagueness. It was unclear from the text whether the consent of a former client, as opposed to the current client, was required when the lawyer previously had a relationship with another interested party (although LACBA Formal Opinion No. 463 (1990) concluded that the consent of the former client was not required under old Rule 3-310(A)). Further, the term "relationship with another party" who is "interested in the subject matter" of the engagement found in the old rule lacked clarity. These uncertainties have been addressed in current Rule 3-310(B).

Current Rule 3-310(B) also eliminates the written consent requirement. Now only written disclosure must be made to the client represented by the lawyer in the matter. "Disclosure" is defined in Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(A) as "informing the client ... of the relevant circumstances and of the actual and reasonably foreseeable adverse consequences to the client." The current rule assumes that the client can make his or her own decision whether to continue a relationship with the lawyer after disclosure is made without having to give written consent [Santa Clara County Counsel Attys. Assn. v. Woodside (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 525, 546 n.3, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617, 869 P.2d 1142] .

[2] Rule 3-310(B)(1): Lawyer's Current Relationship With Party or Witness

[a] Overview of Rule

A State Bar member may not accept or continue representation of a client without providing written disclosure to the client when the member has a legal, business, financial, professional, or personal relationship with a party or witness in the same matter [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(1)].

Rule 3-310(B)(1) requires written disclosure to the client when the lawyer currently has one of the specified kinds of relationships in a matter in which the client has engaged the lawyer. The rule specifies five categories of relationships that appear to encompass the entire gamut of relationships a lawyer may have. These categories are [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(1)]:

- Legal
- Business
- Financial
- Professional
- Personal

The rule does not define what is included in these categories. The categories have not yet been defined in case law or ethics opinions.

While there is likely to be considerable overlap between the five categories, there are some distinguishing characteristics that may be of use in analyzing whether a lawyer has a relationship requiring disclosure.

Although Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B) speaks of an attorney's "relationship" to another party who would be affected, it does not include the word "adverse" or similar term except in the title of the rule ("Avoiding the Representation of Adverse Interests"). One court has opined that the rule does not require informed consent to every relationship, but only to those relationships which "could in some manner impinge on the attorney's representation of the client by compromising the attorney's loyalty to the client" [Giannini, Shin & Valinoti v. Superior Court (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 600, 610, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 394] .

For discussion of managing conflicts under Rule 3-310(B)(1), see § 72.131[2].

[b] Current Relationships Covered by Rule

[i] Personal Relationships

Perhaps the broadest category of relationships is personal relationships. The term appears to include both friendships and familial relationships. Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B) provides no thresholds. The relationships do not have to be close or even positive. A personal relationship may involve an acquaintance or someone with whom the lawyer has a hostile relationship.

The term "relationship" itself may provide some parameters. It is defined as "a connection, association, or involvement" or as "an emotional or other connection between people" [Random House Dict. of the English Language (1983 ed.) p. 1089, col. 2]. Using this definition as a guide, situations when a lawyer has an association, connection, or involvement at some level with another party or witness are likely to be "personal relationships" under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B).

[ii] Professional Relationships

A profession is "a vocation or occupation requiring special, usually advanced, education and skill" [Black's Law Dict. (6th ed. 1990) p. 1210, col. 2]. Relationships that arise in connection with the performance of one's profession are likely to be professional relationships.

The most common type of professional relationship is the attorney-client relationship. Other professional relationships may include relationships with other lawyers with whom a lawyer practices law (e.g., partners or associates in the same firm or government lawyers employed by the same agency) or with whom the lawyer is involved in a professional organization. Rule 3-310(B), however, does not apply to relationships with another party's lawyer. Those relationships are governed by Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-320 [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310, Discussion].

Professional relationships may also include situations when the lawyer is employed as an expert witness for a party or witness or when the party or witness has been so employed by the lawyer. If the lawyer has another profession in addition to law, relationships arising out of the performance of that profession would also likely be considered professional relationships under Rule 3-310(B).

Southwestern University Law Review has published an exhaustive review of conflicts of interest as they relate to lawyers employed or previously employed by a public agency. The specific situation under consideration must be evaluated on its own fact pattern. Much of the analysis depends on the agency's organization and reporting relationships [Wearing Many Hats, 25 Sw. U. L. Rev. 301, 312 (1996)].

[iii] Business and Financial Relationships

A connection, association, or involvement related to the conduct of a business or to financial matters is likely to be considered a business or financial relationship. In many cases, business and financial relationships will be the same, since most relationships in connection with a business are for financial gain. The terms may also encompass attorney-client relationships and relationships between lawyers for the practice of law, which are also professional relationships.

Business relationships obviously arise when a lawyer is in business with a party or witness. They may be partners, coshareholders, coinvestors, coemployees, or employer and employee. All of these relationships require disclosure.

There is nothing in Rule 3-310(B) that requires that the lawyer and the party or witness be in the same business. A business relationship may include a relationship when the party or witness refers business to the lawyer or vice versa. It may include situations when the party or witness supplies materials or services to a business in which the lawyer is involved.

There are also relationships that are not related to a business that may still qualify as financial relationships. For example, if the lawyer maintains accounts at a bank, that involvement with the bank may be considered a financial relationship, whether or not the accounts are personal or for a business. Financial relationships likely include situations when the lawyer has loaned money to or received a loan from a party or witness. They may also include relationships with an insurer or relationships when either the lawyer or the party or witness manages funds for the other.

A lawyer who prepares living trusts at the direction of a nonlawyer who markets living trust packages to the public has a business, financial and professional relationship with the marketer which warrants disclosure under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, rule 3-310(B). The lawyer's relationship with the marketer creates the possibility of a conflict of interest because of the potential interference with the lawyer's loyalty to the person for whom the lawyer drafts the living trust and the lawyer's exercise of independent professional judgment on the client's behalf, since the lawyer may not consider estate planning options for the client other than a living trust because the marketer's best interest may most often only be served by an estate plan that includes a living trust [State Bar Formal Opinion 1997-148].

[iv] Legal Relationships

It is not entirely clear what is meant by a "legal relationship." Relationships arising out of the practice of law, which also constitute professional relationships, might be considered legal relationships.

One definition of "legal" is "created by law" [Black's Law Dict. (6th ed. 1990) p. 992, col. 2]. If this definition is used, legal relationships would include associations, connections, or involvements created by law. Business relationships created by law, such as those involving corporations, partnerships, associations and the like, may also be legal relationships. Financial relationships created by law, such as in connection with a trust, may also be legal relationships.

There may be legal relationships that do not fit within the other four categories. For example, a relationship created by marriage may be considered a legal relationship even though the lawyer may have no other contact with that party or witness.

[c] Who Is Party or Witness

Disclosure is required when the lawyer's relationship is with a party or witness in the same matter [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(1)].

In a litigation context the terms have a fairly clear meaning. "Party" is a technical word having a precise meaning in legal parlance; it refers to those by or against whom a legal suit is brought, whether in law or in equity [Poe v. Diamond (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1394, 1399, 237 Cal. Rptr. 80 (quoting Black's Law Dict. (5th ed. 1979) p. 1010, col. 2)]. A party is also recognized as anyone who is allowed to appear in a proceeding [Poe v. Diamond (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1394, 1398-1399, 237 Cal. Rptr. 80] .

In the same context, a "witness" is defined as a person whose declaration under oath is received for any purpose, whether the declaration is made on oral examination, or by deposition or affidavit [Code Civ. Proc. § 1878]. This definition assumes that the testimony has already been given. However, Rule 3-310(B) may require a broader definition. A more general definition of a "witness" is someone "who, being present, personally sees or perceives a thing; a beholder, spectator or eyewitness" [Black's Law Dict. (6th ed. 1990) p. 1603, col. 2]. It is not yet clear how these definitions should be applied. For example, should disclosure be required when the person with whom the lawyer has a relationship is identified as a potential witness even though that person has not yet given any testimony? Prudence suggests that disclosure should occur as early in the process as possible, but the point at which that disclosure must occur has not yet been fixed.

Outside the litigation context, the terms "party" and "witness" are more illusive. The most general definition of "party" in Black's Law Dictionary is "[a] person concerned or having or taking part in any affair, matter, transaction or proceeding considered individually" [Black's Law Dict. (6th ed. 1990) p. 1122, col. 1]. Coupled with a broad definition of a witness, the scope of people covered by Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(1) in nonlitigation situations would be very broad. It would include anyone having any involvement in the transaction whatsoever.

The precise limits of what constitutes a "party" or a "witness" in a nonlitigation context have yet to be defined. At a minimum the terms are likely to include persons and entities concerned with or taking part in the matter. What other involvements will trigger disclosure are as yet unclear. When in doubt, it should be kept in mind that if a lawyer knows of someone with whom the lawyer has a relationship, whose involvement could affect the lawyer's loyalty or independent judgment, that relationship should be disclosed to the client.

NOTE:

Lawyer's Relationship With Other Party's Lawyer. A lawyer for a party is not a party [Poe v. Diamond (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1394, 1399, 237 Cal. Rptr. 80 ; see Cal Rules Prof Cond, Rule 3-310, Discussion (noting that Cal Rules Prof Cond, Rule 3-310(B) is not intended to apply to relationship of State Bar member to another party's lawyer)]. Such relationships are governed by Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-320.

[d] Persons Whose Relationships Are Covered by Rule

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B) refers to a "member's" relationship with a party or witness. Moreover, it is the member involved in the representation that must provide the disclosure. A "member" is defined as a member of the State Bar [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-100(B)]. Thus, as written, the rule requires the lawyers handling an engagement to disclose their relationships with parties or witnesses.

In certain instances, however, a lawyer must also disclose relationships between a party or witness and another lawyer in the same firm. This requirement is found in the Discussion to Rule 3-310, which states that Rule 3-310(B) is intended to apply only to a member's own relationships or interests, unless the member knows that a partner or associate in the same firm as the member has or had a relationship with another party or witness or has or had an interest in the subject matter of the representation.

The Discussion appears to require actual knowledge of such relationships [compare Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(2) with Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(3)]. The most common situation in which such disclosure will be required is when the party or witness is a client of the member's firm. The existence of a client relationship should be revealed in a conflict search performed to determine if consent is required from the party or witness under other parts of Rule 3-310. Even if consent is not required from the party or witness, the relationship must still be disclosed to the client in the matter.

For discussion of imputing the receipt of confidential information acquired from a present or former client to the firm, which may result in a conflict of interest under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E), § 72.113[6].

[e] To Whom Disclosure Is Made

In the situations outlined in Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(1), a member may not accept or continue representation of a client without providing written disclosure to the client [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)]. As written, Rule 3-310(B) requires disclosure only to the client being represented in the matter [see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 463 (1990) (term "client" refers to existing clients only); see also Allen v. Academic Games Leagues of America, Inc. (C.D. Cal. 1993) 831 F. Supp. 785, 788] .

Thus, for example, if the party or witness is a client of the lawyer's firm, but is not represented by the firm in the action, Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(1) requires disclosure only to the client the lawyer is representing in the action. However, the lawyer may be required to obtain informed written consent of the party or witness under other parts of Rule 3-310.

[3] Rule 3-310(B)(2): Lawyer's Past Relationship With Party or Witness

[a] Overview of Rule

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(2) requires written disclosure of the lawyer's past legal, business, financial, professional, or personal relationships with a party or witness when the previous relationship would substantially affect the representation. Rule 3-310(B)(2) involves the same scope of relationships and the same requirement that the relationship involve a party or witness found in Rule 3-310(B)(1) [see § 72.110[2][b]]. As with Rule 3-310(B)(1), a lawyer must disclose relationships the lawyer knows other lawyers in the same firm have with a party or witness [see § 72.110[2][d]]. Disclosure is required to be made only to the client being represented in the matter and not to the party or witness unless required under other parts of Rule 3-310 [see § 72.110[2][e]].

There are two aspects of Rule 3-310(B)(2) that are different from Rule 3-310(B)(1) [compare Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(1) with (B)(2)]:

- Disclosure is required only if the previous relationship would substantially affect the representation [see § 72.110[3][b]].

- The standard is whether the lawyer knows or reasonably should know about the prior relationship and its effect on the current representation [see § 72.110[3][c]].

For discussion of managing conflicts under Rule 3-310(B)(2), see § 72.131[3].

[b] Substantial Effect on Representation

The most common situation in which Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(2) is likely to require disclosure is when the lawyer or the lawyer's firm had a prior attorney-client relationship with a party or witness in which confidential information material to the current representation was obtained or may have been obtained. Depending on the circumstances, the former client's consent may be required before the lawyer may accept the current representation:

- If material confidential information was obtained, and the current representation is adverse to the former client, the former client's consent is required under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E) before the lawyer may accept the current representation.

- If material confidential information was obtained, but the current representation is not adverse to the former client, consent from the former client under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E) is not required unless the representation becomes adverse to the former client.

- If the confidential information obtained is not material or potentially material to the current representation, the former client's consent is not required under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E); however, if circumstances change, the consent might be required [see § 72.113[1]].

All of these situations will likely require disclosure to a current or potential client under Rule 3-310(B)(2). They all hold the potential for the lawyer to be disqualified or for the representation to be affected by restrictions on the use of confidential information from the prior relationship.

Other examples when a prior relationship would substantially affect a lawyer's current representation include situations that would impact the lawyer's loyalty, independent judgment, or performance. For example, if the party or witness previously sued the lawyer, the prior lawsuit might affect the lawyer's objectivity and, as a result, the lawyer's independent judgment. If the prior lawsuit becomes a factor in the current representation, the lawyer might become a less effective advocate for the client. If the lawyer has a strong affiliation with the party or witness as a result of the prior relationship, that too might substantially affect the lawyer's loyalty and independent judgment in the current representation.

[c] Knowledge Standard Under Rule 3-310(B)(2)

Written disclosure is required when a lawyer knows or reasonably should know of both the prior relationship and its effect on the representation [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(2)]. The "reasonably should know" standard indicates that a lawyer must make some investigation into both the existence of the prior relationship and its effect. This standard has a specific application in the case of former clients. It appears to require an investigation into whether there was an attorney-client relationship and whether material confidential information was obtained.

[d] Disclosure to Former Client Not Required

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(2) does not require disclosure to the former client [Allen v. Academic Games Leagues of America, Inc. (C.D. Cal. 1993) 831 F. Supp. 785, 788] . This point is underscored in the Discussion to the rule, which states that Rule 3-310(B) is not intended to require either disclosure of the new engagement to a former client or the consent of the former client to the new engagement, but that the disclosure or consent is required if Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E) applies [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B), Discussion; see also § 72.113[1]].

[4] Rule 3-310(B)(3): Lawyer's Relationship With Another Who Would Be Substantially Affected

[a] Overview of Rule

Disclosure to the client is required when when the lawyer has or had one of the five specified kinds of relationships [see § 72.110[2][b]] with another person or entity the lawyer knows or reasonably should know would be substantially affected by a resolution of the matter [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(3)]. As with Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(1) and (B)(2), the lawyer must disclose relationships that the lawyer knows other lawyers in the same firm have or had with such a person or entity [see § 72.110[2][d]]. As with the other parts of Rule 3-310(B), disclosure must be made to the client being represented in the matter [see § 72.110[2][e]].

Unlike Rule 3-310(B)(1) and (B)(2), Rule 3-310(B)(3) is not limited to parties and witnesses in a matter. It applies to a relationship with any person or entity. In addition, while Rule 3-310(B)(2) focuses on whether a prior relationship would substantially affect the representation, Rule 3-310(B)(3) focuses on whether the representation would substantially affect the person or entity with whom the lawyer has or had the relationship.

For discussion of managing conflicts under Rule 3-310(B)(3), see § 72.131[4].

[b] Substantial Effect on Another Person or Entity

Under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(3), a lawyer is likely to be required to disclose past or present relationships with others whose fortunes will be directly affected by the outcome of the client's case. However, the rule is not intended to apply to relationships with another party's lawyer [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310, Discussion].

For example, if the lawyer represents several plaintiffs in separate lawsuits against the same entity arising out of similar conduct by the entity (such as a toxic tort), the resolution of the action by one of them could affect substantially the claims of the others. The other plaintiffs may benefit from findings made in the one action and may lose the benefit of those findings if the case settles before trial. Even if the issues between the clients are not the same, the other clients would still be substantially affected if a resolution of the one action would render the entity less able to pay judgments or settlements in the other actions. Another example would be if the lawyer prosecuting an antitrust action has a relationship with another entity that would benefit or would lose money if the client prevails in the action.

The requirement to make disclosure under Rule 3-310(B)(3) does not depend on whether the person or entity would be affected positively or negatively. Disclosure is required whenever the effect would be substantial.

[c] Application to Legal Advocacy

The examples in § 72.110[4][b] relate to situations when the person or entity is substantially affected by the factual outcome of the matter. However, the rule may also apply when the person or entity would be affected substantially by the legal precedent created in the matter.

The opening paragraph in the Discussion to Rule 3-310 states that the rule is not intended to prohibit a member from representing parties having antagonistic positions on the same legal question that has arisen in different cases, unless representation of either would be adversely affected. This statement was also part of the Discussion in former Rule 3-310. It is continued in new Rule 3-310 without change. However, it was not considered to create a duty to obtain informed written consent under the old rule. State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1989-108 concluded that former Rule 3-310 itself did not specifically address such situations. The opinion concluded it was not unethical, under the old rule, for a lawyer to argue opposite sides of the same legal question before the same judge on behalf of different clients who are not directly adverse. The opinion observed, however, that it would be prudent for the lawyer to advise both clients of the situation, provided that the lawyer does not violate duties to either client, and allow each an opportunity to seek new counsel [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1989-108].

When the result of the advocacy could substantially affect another client, Rule 3-310(B)(3) may change the conclusion reached in State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1989-108. For example, if a lawyer is advocating antagonistic positions on behalf of different clients before the same judge, the clients may be substantially affected by which position that judge adopts. Similarly, if the lawyer is advocating one or both positions in courts whose decisions will establish binding precedent, the clients again may be substantially affected by the outcome.

If Rule 3-310(B)(3) is found to apply to issue advocacy, what will be the outer limits of its application? One limit, of course, is whether a client is affected substantially, but how direct must the effect be? The situation covered in the Discussion involves clients whose cases involve antagonistic positions. However, what if a lawyer has a relationship with an entity that has no case pending, but that nevertheless will be substantially affected by the outcome? For example, consider the situation when a lawyer represents a client whose case turns on the court's adopting a legal precedent that will create an onerous duty of disclosure on real estate brokers and agents. Is the lawyer required to disclose to the client his or her relationship with brokers or agents who will be adversely affected if the precedent is adopted? The answer is not yet known.

[d] Knowledge Standard Under Rule 3-310(B)(3)

Like Rule 3-310(B)(2), Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(3) refers to information the lawyer "knows or reasonably should know." However, unlike Rule 3-310(B)(2), the phrase is not used with respect to the lawyer's knowledge of the relationship. Instead, the phrase is used only with respect to knowledge of the substantial effect that resolution of the matter would have on the person or entity.

The significance of this distinction is not clear. It may indicate that a lawyer is not required to search out relationships with persons or entities that would be affected substantially. However, a lawyer may be required to inquire into whether persons or entities with whom the lawyer knows he or she has or had a relationship would be substantially affected by a resolution of the matter.

[5] Rule 3-310(B)(4): Lawyer's Interest in Subject Matter

A State Bar member may not accept or continue representation of a client without providing written disclosure to the client when the member has or had a legal, business, financial, or professional interest in the subject matter of the representation [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(4)].

Rule 3-310(B)(4) addresses the lawyer's own interests in the subject matter of the representation, not conflicts the lawyer and client might have outside the subject matter of the representation [Santa Clara County Counsel Attys. Assn. v. Woodside (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 525, 546, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617, 869 P.2d 1142] . The rule applies not only to the lawyer's current interest in the subject matter, but also to past interests that have ended [compare Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, former Rule 3-310(A) (predecessor rule applied only when lawyer had current interest in subject matter of representation)].

Unlike the other parts of Rule 3-310(B) that mention five categories of relationships, Rule 3-310(B)(4) mentions only four of those categories in referring to a lawyer's interest--legal, business, financial, or professional. The rule does not require disclosure of a lawyer's personal interest in the subject matter [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(4)].

As the Supreme Court stated in Santa Clara County Counsel, "The primary purpose of this prophylactic rule is to prevent situations in which an attorney might compromise his or her representation of the client in order to advance the attorney's own financial or personal interests" [Santa Clara County Counsel Attys. Assn. v. Woodside (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 525, 546, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617, 869 P.2d 1142] . The client may be adversely affected in situations in which the lawyer's own interest might limit his or her actions on behalf of the client [SDCBA Ethics Opinion No. 1989-4]. The rule seeks to remove the possibility of self-dealing that may arise when the lawyer has any interest in the subject matter of employment [see State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1987-92].

The rule applies to a lawyer who becomes a beneficiary under a deed of trust when the lawyer is handling litigation in which the client is seeking to enjoin a foreclosure under that deed of trust [Ames v. State Bar (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 910, 919-920, 106 Cal. Rptr. 489, 506 P.2d 625] . The rule applies when a lawyer levies a writ of execution on property which the client is seeking to recover in litigation handled by the lawyer and on which the client also has a right to levy a writ of execution on a judgment obtained by the lawyer [Silver v. State Bar (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 134, 139, 117 Cal. Rptr. 821, 528 P.2d 1157] . It may also apply when a lawyer acquires the literary rights to a client's story in connection with the legal proceeding in which the lawyer represents the client [see People v. Corona (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 684, 719-727, 145 Cal. Rptr. 894] .

Whenever a lawyer has a motive for obtaining a particular result in a matter that is different than the result that is in the best interest of the client, the lawyer may have an interest in the subject matter for purposes of Rule 3-310(B)(4). For example, if the lawyer is living with or is about to live with a client seeking custody of children, the lawyer may have financial reasons for not having custody awarded that would constitute an interest in the subject matter of the representation [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1987-92].

Another example is when a lawyer is negotiating a lease for a client with a professional organization in which the lawyer is a member. The lawyer's membership in the organization is a professional interest requiring disclosure under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(4). However, disclosure is not required when the lawyer only represents the client in a matter that does not involve the lease negotiations [Santa Clara County Counsel Attys. Assn. v. Woodside (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 525, 547 n.5, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617, 869 P.2d 1142] .

Certain kinds of fee arrangements may create a financial interest in the subject matter that may require disclosure under Rule 3-310(B)(4). For example, if the lawyer agrees to be paid only if a transaction closes, the lawyer may have a financial interest in the subject matter that may affect the lawyer's independent judgment. The lawyer's interest may make it more difficult to advise the client to forego the transaction. If the client asserts a malpractice claim against the lawyer that is dependent on the outcome of the representation, the lawyer's interest in the outcome may also affect the lawyer's independent judgment. These situations will likely require disclosure to the client under Rule 3-310(B)(4).

When a lawyer represents a client and receives compensation as a result of the provision of related nonlegal services to the client, the lawyer has a financial interest in the subject matter of the representation and must comply with Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(4) [see State Bar of California Formal Opinion Nos. 1999-154, 1995-141].

Routine motions for sanctions against the lawyer and the client in connection with civil discovery disputes do not require a written disclosure of conflict of interest to the client pursuant to Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(4). Although the lawyer may be considered to have a financial interest because of the potential financial burden if the lawyer is ordered to pay sanctions, when the lawyer and client agree to take a common position with respect to the motion, there is no conflict of interest Rule 3-310(B)(4) is intended to address [State Bar Formal Opinion 1997-151 (Rules of Professional Conduct not intended as litigation tactic to drive wedge between lawyer and client); but see § 72.271[1], [2] (duty to inform under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-500 and Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(m) requires notifying client of motion as significant development in case)]. However, if the lawyer and client intend to present different defenses to the motion, a conflict of interest arises that requires the lawyer to make written disclosure under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(4). If the lawyer and client agree that the lawyer may present a different defense than the client's, the lawyer may continue to represent the client in the motion, so long as the defenses are not competing and the lawyer complies with ethical obligations to be truthful to the court under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 5-200 and Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(d). If the lawyer and client agree to present competing defenses, the lawyer may not represent the client in opposing the motion, since advocacy of antagonistic positions in a hearing or trial is a conflict of interest the lawyer and client cannot agree to waive. [State Bar Formal Opinion 1997-151; Klemm v. Superior Court (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 893, 898, 142 Cal. Rptr. 509] . The lawyer and client may agree that the client retain separate counsel to oppose the motion on the client's behalf. The lawyer must protect the client's confidential information in opposing the motion; if the lawyer's defense involves disclosure of confidential information and the client does not consent, the lawyer may not make the disclosure [State Bar Formal Opinion 1997-151]. If the lawyer insists on exonerating himself or herself from liability for sanctions and the client does not agree with the approach, the lawyer must withdraw [see § 72.370[4]].

A relatively new area of concern regarding conflicts involves criminal cases under the "three strikes" provisions, Penal Code § 667. One ethics opinion addressed the potential conflict which arises when the lawyer or law firm under consideration to represent the defendant also has represented the client in one or more prior serious felony convictions, which brings the "three strikes" law into play. Since effective representation of this client may involve attack on the validity of the prior conviction(s), possibly based on lack of prior counsel's effectiveness, there is a potential conflict of interest. The lawyer may be reluctant to probe the adequacy of his or her (firm's) earlier representation. The representation is permissible if the disclosure requirements of Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B) are satisfied.

However, because of the nature of criminal proceedings and the importance of effective assistance of counsel, the opinion discourages the representation [San Diego County Bar Association Ethics Opinion 1995-1].

For discussion of managing conflicts under Rule 3-310(B)(4), see § 72.131[5].

7-72 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 72.111

§ 72.111 Rule 3-310(C): Representation of Multiple Clients

[1] Scope and History of Rule

A State Bar member may not, without the informed written consent of each client [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)]:

- Accept representation of more than one client in a matter in which the interests of the clients potentially conflict; or

- Accept or continue representation of more than one client in a matter in which the interests of the clients actually conflict; or

- Represent a client in a matter and at the same time in a separate matter accept as a client a person or entity whose interest in the first matter is adverse to the client in the first matter.

Rule 3-310(C) is in part a revision of old Rule 3-310(B), which stated that "[a] member shall not concurrently represent clients whose interests conflict, except with their informed written consent."

Old Rule 3-310(B) was a general standard that had been construed to apply not only in joint representations, but also when a lawyer represents a client in a matter that is adverse to another client. The new rule is more defined than the old rule and may not cover all of the scenarios that were thought to be within the scope of the old rule.

Rule 3-310(C) also requires informed written consent in joint representations when the clients' interests potentially conflict. Old Rule 3-310(B) did not require consent in potential conflict situations, although it was thought that old Rule 3-310(A) required consent in such cases.

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C) applies to criminal as well as civil cases [People v. Christian (1996) 41 Cal.

App. 4th 986, 996, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 867] and under some circumstances, may apply to child protective services cases, requiring appointment of separate counsel for the child [In re Mary C. (1995) 41 Cal. App. 4th 71, 79, 48 Cal. Rptr 2d 346] .

The Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit stated that the term "actual conflict" was not a synonym for "direct conflict" and that the duty of loyalty owed by an attorney to his firm's clients was "equivalent to the duty of loyalty owed to an attorney's own clients." As such, the Court found that there was no distinction between direct and imputed conflicts for purposes of the Sullivan analysis [U.S. v. Rodrigues (2003) 347 F.3d 818, 821-822] .

The Court of Appeals of California for the First Appellate District stated that while California Rule of Professional Conduct 3-310 does not strictly apply to an attorney acting as a mediator, "an attorney accepting the role of mediator has the same duty of full disclosure as an attorney accepting the representation of clients with actual or potentially conflicting interests" [Furia v. Helm (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 945, 954, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 357] .

In addition, the Court of Appeal for the Second Appellate District has held that a claim for breach of loyalty under Rule 3-310 is not subject to a special motion to strike pursuant to Code of Civ. Proc. § 425.16, the anti-SLAPP statute [Benasra v. Mitchell Silberberg & Knupp LLP (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1179, 1185-1189, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 621] .

For a form of disclosure for obtaining informed written consent in joint representation, see § 72.651, below.

[2] Rule 3-310(C)(1), (2): Potential or Actual Conflicts in Joint Representations

[a] Overview of Rule

A State Bar member may not, without the informed written consent of each client [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)(1), (2)]:

- Accept representation of more than one client in a matter in which the interests of the clients potentially conflict.

- Accept or continue representation of more than one client in a matter in which the interests of the clients actually conflict.

As written, the rule applies to joint representations. It requires that the potential or actual conflict relate to the clients' interests in the matter in which they are jointly represented. The rule does not require consent when there is no potential or actual conflict of interest in the joint representation, even if the clients' interests potentially or actually conflict in other matters that are not involved in the joint representation.

For discussion of managing conflicts under Rule 3-310(C)(1) and (2), see § 72.132[1].

[b] When Potential or Actual Conflicts Occur

A conflict of interest between jointly represented clients occurs whenever their common lawyer's representation of the one is rendered less effective by reason of his or her representation of the other [Spindle v. Chubb/Pacific Indemnity Group (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 706, 713, 152 Cal. Rptr. 776] . The basic distinction between Rule 3-310(C)(1) and Rule 3-310(C)(2) is the difference between potential and actual conflicts. Understanding the distinction between the two types of conflicts is a key to understanding the rule.

Potential conflicts arise in circumstances that may later result in a direct conflict [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)]. Many joint representations of distinct clients raise a potential conflict. While the clients' interests may be harmonious at the outset of the engagement, there is often a potential for their interests to become adverse [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Identifying Potential Conflicts. Identifying potential conflicts involves an analysis of the types of actual conflicts that could arise in the representation. If actual conflicts could arise in the representation, there is likely to be a potential conflict if there is any possibility that the conflict would actually occur.

Actual conflicts arise when the clients' interests become directly adverse so that the lawyer cannot effectively or simultaneously advance the interests of both. In joint representations actual conflicts typically arise:

- When the clients have claims against each other arising out of the matter.
- When the clients have inconsistent interests, or objectives, claims, or defenses in the matter that the lawyer cannot pursue effectively simultaneously.
- When the clients give the lawyer conflicting instructions so that the lawyer cannot follow one client's instruction without violating the other client's instruction.
- When the clients have conflicting expectations of confidentiality concerning their respective communications with the lawyer.
- When the clients make conflicting demands.

For example, a lawyer jointly defending an employer and employee in a lawsuit may have an actual conflict if discovery in the lawsuit indicates that the employer has a cause of action against the employee or vice versa. A lawyer also may have an actual conflict if the clients instruct the lawyer to pursue inconsistent or incompatible outcomes. If the lawyer cannot advance one client's interests without adversely affecting the other client's interests, there is an actual conflict.

In another situation, a lawyer may discover information while representing both an insured and an insurer. If the lawyer becomes aware that the insured may have no coverage, or even that the insured has perpetrated a fraud for the purpose of obtaining coverage, the lawyer may not reveal that information to the insurer, and may be required to withdraw from representation [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1995-139; see § 72.111[2][b]]. The Supreme Court of California, in interpreting the Rule 3-310 concept of potential conflict, has held that, in the context of dependency proceedings such as the representation of siblings, an attorney may not accept representation of multiple clients if there is a reasonable likelihood an actual conflict of interest between the clients may arise [In re Celine R. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 45, 57-59, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 432, 71 P.3d 787 ; see also In re Zamer G. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1253, 1263-1271, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 769 , (applying Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 5.660(c)); see also In re Zamer G. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1253, 1263-1271, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 769 (applying Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 5.660(c))].

A lawyer who prepares living trusts at the direction of a nonlawyer who markets living trust packages to the public may have a lawyer-client relationship with both a member of the public for whom the lawyer drafts a living trust and the nonlawyer-marketer, which creates at least a potential conflict of interest requiring consent of both under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)(1), (2). To the extent the lawyer's relationship with one client, that is, the marketer, affects the lawyer's loyalty and independent judgment on behalf of another client, that is, the person for whom the lawyer drafts the living trust, because the lawyer cannot exercise independent judgment as to whether a living trust should be a part of this person's estate plan, an actual conflict exists [State Bar Formal Opinion 1997-148].

[c] Separate Consent to Potential and Actual Conflicts

The fact that a lawyer obtains consent to a representation involving a potential conflict does not eliminate the need to obtain consent again when an actual conflict arises. The requirement of additional consent when an actual conflict arises is founded both in the Rule 3-310 and in its Discussion. While subpart (1) states that a member cannot accept a joint representation in which there is a potential conflict without informed written consent, subpart (2) states that a member cannot accept or continue a representation in which there is an actual conflict without such consent. Thus, the rule itself requires additional consent when actual conflicts arise [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)(1), (2)]. The Discussion confirms this conclusion by stating that if the potential adversity should become actual, the member must obtain further informed written consent of the clients [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310, Discussion].

[d] Disclosure and Consent to Potential Conflicts

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)(1) allows a lawyer to represent multiple parties with potentially conflicting interests in the same matter, provided that informed written consent is obtained. Dual representation is not automatically barred, but is permitted only when disclosure is sufficient to enable the client to make free and intelligent decisions regarding the subject matter of the representation [Sharp v. Next Entertainment, Inc. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 410, 427-430, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 37 (obtaining consent from all absent class members prior to certification not required); McPhearson v. Michaels Company (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 843, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 489 ; Gilbert v. National Corp. For Housing Properties (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1240, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 204 ; Zador Corp. v. Kwan (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1285, 1300-1302, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 754 ; Day v. Rosenthal (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 1125, 1148-1149, 217 Cal. Rptr. 89; see also Dino v. Pelayo (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 347, 355-357, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 620 (no need for mediation-disqualification rule when parties who knowingly consent to joint representation participate in mediation)] .

The Model Code of Professional Responsibility notes that there are many instances in which a lawyer may properly serve multiple clients having potentially differing interests in matters not involving litigation [Model Code of Professional Responsibility EC 5-15 (1980)]. Dual representation of parties to some business transactions may be permissible if done in utmost good faith and with the full consent of all parties concerned [Lessing v. Gibbons (1935) 6 Cal. App. 2d 598, 606, 45 P.2d 258] .

If the attorney has obtained informed, detailed consent and waiver regarding potential conflict from one client, both before and after the actual conflict arose, then the attorney will be allowed to continue to represent the other party [Zador Corp. v. Kwan (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1285, 1300-1302, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 754] .

Examples of transactions, common enterprises, or legal relationships in which the parties may prefer to employ a single attorney for the sake of convenience or economy include the following [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310, Discussion]:

- Formation of a partnership for several partners or a corporation for severalshareholders.
- Preparation of an antenuptial agreement or joint or reciprocal wills for a husband and wife.
- Resolution of an uncontested marital dissolution.

An attorney may represent two clients whose interests potentially conflict if both of the following requirements are met:

- The attorney reasonably believes that competent representation can be given to each client.
- There is informed, written consent to the joint representation from both clients.

Rule 3-310 requires full and fair disclosure to the client of all facts which materially affect the client's rights and interests [Day v. Rosenthal (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 1125, 1148] . The lawyer should disclose to each client or prospective client the nature of the potential conflict and the possible adverse consequences if the potential conflict becomes actual [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(A)].

The disclosure should include a discussion of the ramifications of Evid. Code § 962, which limits the applicability of the attorney-client privilege in joint representations [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310, Discussion]. Although not required under Rule 3-310, in some instances it may be prudent to advise one or both clients about the option of seeking independent legal advice before giving their consent, particularly when the clients may not have the experience or sophistication to understand the disclosure [see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

If the potential conflict is likely to become an actual conflict (e.g., the facts known at the outset indicate that one codefendant probably has or probably will gain a claim against the other codefendant, or that one codefendant may need to confide in counsel and expect counsel to keep that information from the other codefendant), the attorney probably should not undertake to represent both clients even if both clients are willing to sign a consent [see Klemm v. Superior Court (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 893, 898-899, 142 Cal. Rptr. 509 ; Dettamanti v. Lompoc Union School Dist. (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 715, 722-723, 300 P.2d 78] .

If the attorney has represented both sides in a transaction, and a dispute about the transaction later develops between them, the attorney may be precluded from representing either of the parties in the dispute without the consent of the party the lawyer is not representing in the dispute. If the attorney has obtained material confidential information from the other party, that party's consent would be required under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E) [Civil Service Com. v. Superior Court (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 70, 80, 209 Cal. Rptr. 159 ; see also Klemm v. Superior Court (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 893, 899, 142 Cal. Rptr. 509 (court approved dual representation in uncontested divorce, but if wife should change her mind as to child support, attorney would be precluded from representing either spouse in future contested hearings on the issue); LACBA Formal Opinion No. 448 (1987) (attorney who represented husband and wife in estate plan may not later represent husband in preparation of Marvin agreement with another woman without wife's consent); but see § 72.113[2]].

[e] Disclosure and Consent to Actual Conflicts

If, during a dual representation, an actual conflict develops, the attorney must immediately disclose the problem to both clients and explain the options. Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)(2) appears to condone dual representation of conflicting interests as long as informed, written consent is obtained [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310, Discussion]. However, some courts have held that even informed consent is insufficient to permit continued dual representation when an actual conflict exists in a litigation matter [see San Diego Navy Fed. Credit Union v. Cumis Ins. Society (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 358, 374-375, 208 Cal. Rptr. 494 ; Klemm v. Superior Court (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 893, 898, 142 Cal. Rptr. 509 ; Ishmael v. Millington (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 520, 526-527, 50 Cal. Rptr. 592 ; Dettamanti v. Lompoc Union School Dist. (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 715, 722-723, 300 P.2d 78 ; see also Gilbert v. National Corp. For Housing Properties (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1240, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 204] . These cases seem to turn on the courts' conclusion that the lawyer could not concurrently represent both clients competently.

If the attorney must withdraw from the representation, he or she will most likely have to withdraw from representing both parties, absent an express or implied agreement between the parties to the contrary [compare Big Bear Mun. Water Dist. v. Superior Court (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 919, 926-927, 75 Cal. Rptr. 580 with Cornish v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 467, 472-473, 257 Cal. Rptr. 383 ; see also SDCBA Ethics Opinion No. 1968-3].

If the attorney has obtained informed, detailed consent and waiver from one client, both before and after the actual conflict arose, then the attorney will be allowed to continue to represent the other party [Zador Corp. v. Kwan (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1285, 1300-1302, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 754] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Disagreements Among Joint Clients in Transactional Matters. Representation of joint clients for transactional matters becomes problematic when two or more clients start to disagree about the objectives of the venture and give the lawyer inconsistent instructions. If the two clients are at odds with each other over the very matter in which they have engaged the lawyer, such that their interests conflict, a Rule 3-310(C)(2) problem exists. The lawyer will have to disclose the conflict and, depending on the severity of the disagreement, either seek further written consents to continue as counsel for both or withdraw from the representation.

[3] Rule 3-310(C)(3): Representations Adverse to a Client

[a] Overview

Conflicts of interest issues arise when a lawyer represents one client in a matter against another client. These issues arise in two types of situations:

- When a lawyer represents a client against a third party, and the lawyer assumes a representation of the third party while the adverse representation is pending.

- When a lawyer assumes a representation adverse to an existing party.

While the former rules covered both scenarios, the current rules expressly cover only the first scenario [see Cal. Rules. Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)(3)]. However, courts continue to recognize that a conflict of interest exists in the latter scenario. The California Supreme Court addressed issues arising in the second scenerio, holding that a lawyer is prohibited from assuming a representation that is adverse to an existing client [Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 284, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950] . Because there is considerable overlap between the two rules, the following discussion considers them together.

The resolution of conflicts issues in these scenerios all turn on the lawyer's duty of loyalty [see Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 284, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950 ; Sharp v. Next Entertainment, Inc. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 410, 427-430, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 37 (obtaining consent from all absent class members prior to certification not required); Truck Ins. Exchange v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1050, 1056, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 228 ; Civil Service Com. v. Superior Court (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 70, 78 n.1, 209 Cal. Rptr. 159 ; see also § 71.31 above]. The prohibition on concurrently representing conflicting interests was seen as a means "to protect client confidences as well as to protect the client's confidence in the adequacy of his representation" [Vivatar Corp. v. Broidy (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 878, 883, 192 Cal. Rptr. 281] .

In Flatt, the Supreme Court emphasized the damage to the client's sense of trust and security in the lawyer-client relationship that was likely to result in such situations [Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 285, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950] . While not stated as a factor in Flatt, some cases have also adopted a broader public policy view that violations of a lawyer's duty of undivided loyalty undermines public confidence in the legal profession and the judicial process [Truck Ins. Exchange v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1050, 1056, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 228 ; Jeffry v. Pounds (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 6, 10-11, 136 Cal. Rptr. 373] . The court condemned the acceptance of employment adverse to a current client even in wholly unrelated matters based on the interests of maintaining the integrity of the legal profession. The attorney represented the defendant in a matter and aggressively sought to impeach the professional reputation and credibility of an expert witness whom her firm was representing in a separate matter. The court found this to be a "shocking breach of her duty of loyalty," and held that under such circumstances, "the court cannot permit, much less preside over, an attorney's attack on his or her own client. ... In the interest of the integrity of the bench and bar, it must declare a mistrial" [Hernandez v. Paicius (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 452, 467-468, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 756] .

[b] Determining When Employment Is Adverse to Client

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)(3) applies when a new client's interests are adverse to a client in a lawyer's preexisting representation. As written, the Rule does not apply when the new client's interests are not adverse to the interests of the client in the preexisting matter.

PRACTICE TIP:

Disclosure When Employment Is Not Adverse to Client. While the new client's involvement in the preexisting matter does not trigger the written consent requirements of Rule 3-310(C)(3) when the new and existing clients' interests are not adverse, written disclosure to the client in the preexisting matter may still be required under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(1) (if the new client is a party or a witness) or under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(3) (if the new client would be affected substantially by a resolution of the matter). By Stanley W. Lamport.

The term "adverse" is defined as acting against or in a contrary direction, being detrimental or unfavorable, or having opposing interests [see Ames v. State Bar (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 910, 919-920, 106 Cal. Rptr. 489, 506 P.2d 625] . In general, the term "adverse" has been interpreted to mean actions that are unfavorable or opposed to the client's interests [David Welch Co. v. Erskine & Tulley (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 884, 891, 250 Cal. Rptr. 339 ; State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1993-133].

An adverse employment arises when the clients are opposing parties. When a lawyer represents a client in a lawsuit or in negotiations against another client, the lawyer's employment is plainly adverse. In two opinions, the State Bar has limited the concept of "adversity" to situations where the adverse consequences are direct [State Bar Formal Opinion Nos. 1989-108 and 1989-113; see also Abbott v. United States Internal Revenue Service (9th Cir. 2005) 399 F.3d 1083, 1086-1087 (no conflict when taxpayer's lawyer was employed as consultant by IRS while he represented taxpayer before IRS)].

The concept of direct adversity recognizes the practical limitations of applying the rule to matters in which the client is not involved and does not have a direct stake in the outcome. In Formal Opinion No. 1989-108, the State Bar observed that "[m]ost authorities speak of conflicts of interests only where the representation involves the same case or transaction." The same opinion observed that "[n]ormally the scope of the "adversity" which gives rise to a conflict has been limited to party identification" [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1989-108]. For example, a court held an attorney's employment was not adverse to a client when the attorney represented the referee and the potential buyer in a partition sale. The owner had no standing to challenge the attorney's dual representation [Sullivan v. Dorsa (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 947, 963-964, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 547] .

In Formal Opinion 1989-108, the State Bar first addressed this question in connection with "issue conflicts" that arise when a lawyer is asked to advocate a rule of law on behalf of one client that is opposed to the interests of another client who is not involved in the matter in which the lawyer is making the argument. The opinion concludes that as a matter of policy, the rules against representing one client's interests against another do not apply to these types of conflicts [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1989-108].

Formal Opinion 1989-108 noted that "to find a conflict employing a test which could be imposed uniformly to'issue conflicts' of all stripes threatens the ability of attorneys to carry out their roles in the legal system." The opinion observed that in small communities "the practical problems stemming from such an expansive rule would be insurmountable." It also noted that "[t]here is simply no practical way that attorneys can track the legal issues that evolve during the course of an engagement in a system which will enable the attorney to later retrieve the information before a contrary position is taken for another client" [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1989-108].

The State Bar applied the same standard in Formal Opinion No. 1989-113, which concluded that a lawyer may be adverse to the subsidiary of a corporate client provided that the subsidiary was not an alter ego of the parent and the lawyer had not acquired any material confidential information from the parent. The opinion posited facts in which the parent was a large publicly traded company that was not a party in the matter and had no prospect of becoming a party so that the only impact to the parent would be the possible reduction in the value of the subsidiary's shares as a result of the representation [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1989-113].

The State Bar concluded that the "possible indirect impact is insufficient to give rise to a breach of the duty of loyalty owed to the parent." It noted that if such indirect adverse consequences were subject to the rule "attorneys would be conflicted out of representations where the indirect adverse impact was slight or unpredictable." The State Bar also recognized the extreme practical limitations of tracking client ownership interests in entities to which the lawyer is adverse and the difficulty of fashioning a principled test that could distinguish between types of indirect adverse consequences [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1989-113].

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)(3) does not prohibit the concurrent representation of clients whose interests are adverse only in a matter in which the attorney does not represent either client [Fremont Indemnity Co. v. Fremont General Corp. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 50, 65, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 82] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Direct Adversity and Nonparties. The concept of direct adversity as expressed in these opinions does not necessarily require that the adversely affected client be a party. It is possible that it would apply to a client who has a direct stake in the outcome. For example, if lawyer is asked to negotiate an agreement with a third party on behalf of one client that would extinguish the rights of another client in the subject matter of the contract, such a representation might be adverse to the other client who will be directly affected by the outcome of the negotiation. By Stanley W. Lamport.

[c] Obtaining Client Consent

In Flatt, the Supreme Court suggested that the circumstances under which consent may be obtained is limited [Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 285 n.4, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950] . After noting the general rule that "courts and ethical codes alike prohibit an attorney from simultaneously representing two client adversaries, even where the substance of the representations is unrelated," the Court stated in a footnote [Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 285 n.4, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950] :

> There are of course exceptions to this rule. The principle of loyalty is for the client's benefit: most courts thus permit an attorney to continue to permit the simultaneous representation of clients whose interests are adverse as to unrelated matters provided full disclosure is made and both agree in writing to waive the conflict. But this class of cases is a rare circumstance, typically involving corporate clients and overcoming the presumption of "prima facie impropriety" is not easily accomplished. (Emphasis supplied, citations omitted).

After making this statement, the Court went on to state that the exception "is not, in any event, one that concerns us in this case" [Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 285 n.4, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950] . Thus, the Court appears to have left the issue open.

PRACTICE TIP:

Unanswered Issues After Flatt. The California Supreme Court opinion in Flatt raises more questions than it answers.

- Do the circumstances under which consent is permitted only apply to corporate clients? On the one hand, the opinion suggests that consent may be obtained only when the client possesses the sophistication to comprehend the ramifications of this type of conflict. On the other hand, the reference to corporate clients might reflect that Court's assumption the impacts on client trust in the lawyer may not be as pronounced when the representations involve different personnel in the same corporation.

- May consent be obtained only when the two matters are unrelated? The footnote addressing the consent issue suggests that the exception allowing for consent may not apply when the two matters are related. In making this suggestion, the Court appears to have had in mind the situation where a lawyer is representing opposing interests in the same litigation [see Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 284, n.3, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950] . It is not clear that the same limitation would apply when the two matters are factually related but the lawyer is not representing opposing interests on the same subject. While Flatt emphasized that client loyalty is the primary concern, when the representations are related, preservation of client confidences is also a concern.

- Is there a distinction between adverse representations in situations where the clients are hostile and those where they are not hostile? In practice, it is not uncommon for a client to consent for the client's lawyer to represent another party in negotiations, but not in litigation that might arise out of the transaction.

- Under Flatt, would a lawyer be precluded from obtaining the client's informed written consent except in the rare circumstance?

- If loyalty is for the client's benefit, except in those cases where competent representation is unlikely, why should a properly informed client be precluded from freely consenting to an adverse representation?Given the absence of a principled discussion by the Court, these questions remain open. In the absence of precise standards, the practitioner is left to the general rules for when a conflict cannot be waived [see § 72.71]. In addition, the practitioner must carefully consider and fully disclose whether the adverse representation will adversely affect the client's trust. In those situations where client trust is (or, perhaps, is likely to be) adversely affected, Flatt suggests, while not necessarily holding, that consent may not be obtained. By Stanley W. Lamport.

PRACTICE TIP: Steps Before Accepting New Concurrent Representation. If an attorney currently represents two or more clients in unrelated matters, for example, A and B, whose interests may or do conflict as to a new matter in which client A proposes to retain the attorney, before taking on the new representation, the attorney should:

- Ensure that the matter on which he or she represents client B is sufficiently separate factually so that no confidence of either client will be violated.

- Fully disclose the potential conflict and its possible effect to each client to enable the clients to make free and intelligent choices.

- Undertake the new representation of A only if (1) both clients give their informed, written consent; (2) the lawyer can continue to competently represent the client;

- The representation will not adversely affect the lawyer-client relationship. By Stanley W. Lamport.

[4] Accepting Adverse Party as Client

A State Bar member may not, without the informed written consent of each client, represent a client in a matter and at the same time in a separate matter accept as a client a person or entity whose interest in the first matter is adverse to the client in the first matter [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)(3)].

Rule 3-310(C)(3) specifically applies when a lawyer represents client A in a matter against B, and B subsequently asks the lawyer to represent him or her in a separate matter while the representation of A is ongoing. Under the rule, a lawyer may not accept employment by B without the informed written consent of both A and B.

For discussion of managing conflicts under Rule 3-310(C)(3), see § 72.132[3].

[a] Other Representations Adverse to Existing Clients

[i] Situations Covered by Predecessor Rule

Rule 3-310(C)(3) is much narrower than its predecessor, Rule 3-310(B), which applied whenever a lawyer concurrently represented adverse interests. Under old Rule 3-310(B) and the case law interpreting it, consent was required whenever a lawyer, or a lawyer's firm, accepted a representation adverse to an existing client.

There are three situations covered under old Rule 3-310(B) that do not seem to be covered under new Rule 3-310(C)(3):

- When a lawyer represents client A in a matter and is asked by B to sue A in a matter unrelated to the lawyer's representation of A.

- When clients A and B are existing clients and one of them (client B for example) asks the lawyer to represent it in a matter adverse to the other.

- When a lawyer brings his or her own suit against an existing client.

None of the foregoing examples fit within a literal reading of Rule 3-310(C)(3). The rule appears to contemplate a situation when a lawyer accepts a client who is adverse to a client represented by the lawyer in another matter. The event that triggers consent is accepting representation of someone "adverse to the client in the first matter." In the examples cited above, neither the lawyer nor client B is adverse to A in "the first matter" in which the lawyer represents A. In the second example, the lawyer is arguably not accepting B as a client, since B is already a client.

So far courts have yet to grasp the distinction between old Rule 3-310(B) and new Rule 3-310(C)(3); although, in Flatt and Santa Clara County Counsel, the California Supreme Court recognized that the principles underlying the old rules continue to apply in these situations [Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 296 n.4, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950 (dissent); Santa Clara County Counsel Attys. Assn. v. Woodside (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 525, 547 n.6, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617, 869 P.2d 1142 ; see Responsible Citizens v. Superior Court (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1717, 1724-1725, 20 Cal. Rptr. 756] .

[ii] Representing One Client Against Another

While situations in which a lawyer assumes a representation of one client that is adverse to another client may not fall within the express terms of Rule 3-310(C)(3), courts required informed consent in these cases under former Rules 3-310(B) and 5-102(B) and former Rule 7. Those rules prohibited lawyers from concurrently representing clients whose interests are adverse (in the case of old Rule 3-310(B)) or adverse interests (in the case of old Rule 5-102(B)) or conflicting interests (in the case of old Rule 7) without informed written consent [see In re California Canners and Growers (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 1987) 74 Bankr. 336, 342 (law firm represented bank in lending practices litigation and, while so doing, advised existing client about litigation against the bank); State Farm Mutual Automobile Ins. Co. v. Federal Insurance Co. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1422, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20 (law firm filed action naming insurance company as defendant while currently representing insurance company on another matter); Truck Ins. Exchange v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1050, 1056, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 228 (law firm discharged one client to accept adverse representation for another client); Civil Service Com. v. Superior Court (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 70, 78, 209 Cal. Rptr. 159 (representation by county counsel of one agency client against another); Jeffry v. Pounds (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 6, 10, 136 Cal. Rptr. 373 (law firm represented husband in lawsuit and, while doing so, accepted representation of wife in marital dissolution)].

[iii] Lawyer's Suit Against Client

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C) does not apply when a lawyer sues a client [Santa Clara County Counsel Attys. Assn. v. Woodside (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 525, 547-548 n.6, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617, 869 P.2d 1142] . Those actions, however, are governed by common obligations arising out of the lawyer's duty of loyalty to a client [Santa Clara County Counsel Attys. Assn. v. Woodside (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 525, 549, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617, 869 P.2d 1142 (citing Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-100)]. While the Supreme Court in Santa Clara County Counsel discussed a lawyer's duty of loyalty, it did not decide whether that duty precludes a suit against a client in general.

In Santa Clara County Counsel, the Supreme Court held that as a matter of public policy lawyers employed by the office of county counsel could sue their government employer under the Meyers-Milias-Brown Act, and that the suit did not violate their ethical obligations to their employer-client [Santa Clara County Counsel Attys. Assn. v. Woodside (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 525, 532-533, 553, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617, 869 P.2d 1142] . The Court limited its decision to the specific factual issue before it, and expressly did not decide the larger question of when a lawyer may sue an existing client in general. Nevertheless, the Court stated [Santa Clara County Counsel Attys. Assn. v. Woodside (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 525, 553 n.8, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617, 869 P.2d 1142] :

> We do not, by this holding, approve the general proposition that an attorney suit against a present client is ethically permissible. When the attorney is an independent contractor, and when no statute protects an attorney's employment rights, it may well be the case that the attorney's general duty of loyalty dictates that the attorney not sue the present client and that such a suit may subject the attorney to discipline--a question not before us here.

The Court cited with approval LACBA Formal Opinion No. 212 (1953), which concluded that a lawyer in a fee dispute with a client must withdraw prior to filing suit against the client for the fees [Santa Clara County Counsel Attys. Assn. v. Woodside (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 525, 549, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617, 869 P.2d 1142 ; see also § 72.430 et seq.].

While all of these references suggest that a lawyer may not sue a client, Santa Clara County Counsel also suggests that a suit may be permitted if it does not interfere with the lawyer-client relationship. Generally a lawyer "is precluded from assuming any relation which would prevent him from devoting his entire energies to his client's interests" [Santa Clara County Counsel Attys. Assn. v. Woodside (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 525, 548, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617, 869 P.2d 1142 ; Anderson v. Eaton (1930) 211 Cal. 113, 116, 293 P. 788] . In Santa Clara County Counsel, the Court focused on whether the antagonism between lawyer and client resulting from the lawyer's suit against the client would compromise the lawyer's representation of the client.

Thus, a suit against an existing client may be permissible when the lawyer-client relationship is merely a formality, such that the suit against the client would not interfere with the lawyer's ability to fulfill the tasks that remain in the representation. For example, if the lawyer is attorney of record in a lawsuit in which a request for dismissal of the action has been filed, the lawyer's suit against the client filed before entry of the dismissal may not be prohibited if the lawyer has no further substantive obligations in the action. However, since Santa Clara County Counsel did not decide the question, these issues remain open.

[iv] Application to Law Firms

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)(3) refers only to when the member is representing a client and accepts employment by an adverse party. It does not refer to law firms. While the Discussion points out that Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B) applies when a lawyer knows that other lawyers in the firm have relationships or interests that require disclosure, there is no corresponding comment with respect to Rule 3-310(C)(3). As a result, it is not clear on the face of Rule 3-310(C)(3) whether it applies if the representation adverse to the "client in the first matter" is handled by a different lawyer in the same firm.

While the rule may be unclear, in cases involving representations adverse to an existing client, California courts have routinely held under the rules that preceded Rule 3-310(C)(3) that the rule applied when the adverse representation is handled by different lawyers in the firm [Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 285, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950 ; Truck Ins. Exchange v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1050, 1055-1056, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 228 ; Jeffry v. Pounds (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 6, 10, 136 Cal. Rptr. 373 ; see also BASF Formal Opinion No. 1985-1; SDCBA Ethics Opinion No. 1976-12].

[b] Lawyer's Duties When a Conflict Arises

[i] General Issues

Certain questions arise when a lawyer discovers that he or she is in a lawyer-client relationship that is adverse to an existing client. One question is whether the lawyer (or the lawyer's firm) may withdraw from representing the existing client in order to take on the adverse representation. If the lawyer must withdraw from representing the new client, another question is what duties the lawyer has to advise the new client to seek new counsel or to advise the new client about the statute of limitations or other matters that may affect the continuing viability of the new client's claim or rights. The courts have addressed both of these issues.

[ii] Discharging Existing Client to Avoid Conflict

A law firm cannot avoid the requirement of obtaining informed, written consent from client A in order to take on the representation of new client B by simply withdrawing from representing client A [Cal West Nurseries, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 1170, 1175, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 170 (fact that same attorney did not represent adverse parties on cross-complaint did not eliminate parties' adverse relationship); American Airlines v. Sheppard, Mullin, Richter & Hampton (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1017, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 685 ; Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 288, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950 ; Truck Ins. Exchange v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1050, 1056-1060, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 228] . Nor may a lawyer avoid the automatic disqualification rule applicable to concurrent representation of conflicting interests by unilaterally converting a present client into a former client [American Airlines v. Sheppard, Mullin, Richter & Hampton (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1017, 1037, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 685 (citing Truck Ins. Exchange v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1050, 1057, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 228)]. While these cases involve representations adverse to an existing client that are not expressly covered by Rule 3-310(C)(3), it seems that the courts' rationale would apply equally to situations covered under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)(3).

The rule prohibiting withdrawal to avoid obtaining client consent was first stated in Truck, and then endorsed by the Supreme Court in Flatt. Truck relied on authority from outside California that held that "a law firm that knowingly undertakes adverse concurrent representation may not avoid disqualification by withdrawing from representation of the less favored client" [Truck Ins. Exchange v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1050, 1057 (citing United Sewerage Agency v. Jelco Inc. (1981) 646 F.2d 1339, 1345 ; Picker Intern., Inc. v. Varian Associates, Inc. (N.D. Ohio 1987) 670 F. Supp. 1363, 1366 , affirmed 869 F.2d 578 (Fed. Cir. 1989) ; see also State Farm Mutual Automobile Ins. Co. v. Federal Insurance Co. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1422, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20 ; Margulies by Margulies v. Upchurch (Utah 1965) 696 P.2d 1195] .

In Truck, the law firm created the conflict by taking on a representation that was adverse to the firm's existing client. However, the Truck court recognized that withdrawal to avoid a conflict would be permissible if the law firm already represents a client and an unforeseen adverse concurrent representation is created by another client [Truck Ins. Exchange v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1050, 1059, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 228 ; see, e.g., Florida Ins. Guar. Ass'n, Inc. v. Carey Canada (S.D. Fla 1990) 749 F. Supp. 255 (when law firm represented client in action against insurers that became insolvent and were taken over by entity represented by firm in unrelated matter, withdrawal from representing entity was permissible to avoid conflict)].

Although not mentioned in either Truck or Flatt, it is possible that a withdrawal to avoid a concurrent adverse representation conflict might be permissible if grounds for withdrawal otherwise exist under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-700. For example, withdrawal might be permissible if the client being discharged breached an agreement to pay the lawyer's fees and expenses [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-700(C)(1)(f)].

[iii] Duties to the New Client Being Discharged

The Supreme Court has held that when a lawyer has had an initial meeting with a new client about a new matter and shortly thereafter learns that the new matter is adverse to an existing client, the duty of loyalty to the existing client requires the lawyer to sever the lawyer-client relationship with the new client [Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 285, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950] . The duty of loyalty to the existing client also absolves the lawyer of a duty to provide any advice to the new client that would be adverse to the interests of the existing client [Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 285, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950] . As a result, a lawyer does not have a duty to advise the client to seek new counsel or about the running of the statute of limitations.

In Flatt, a lawyer had met for an hour with a prospective client about a legal malpractice claim against another lawyer. The meeting occurred shortly after the prospective client's claim arose. A week after the meeting, the lawyer informed the prospective client that she could not represent him because she had discovered that her firm represented the other lawyer in an unrelated matter. She did not advise the prospective client to seek new counsel or that the statute of limitations would expire in a year. The prospective client, who did not seek new counsel until after the statute of limitations had expired, sued the lawyer for malpractice claiming that she should have advised him on these issues when she withdrew from further representation [Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 279-280, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950] .

The majority of a sharply divided Court held that while the initial meeting may have been enough to establish a lawyer-client relationship, the lawyer's duty of loyalty to her existing client was paramount [Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 278-279, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950] . The Court observed that if the duty of loyalty to the existing client forbids any act that would interfere with the dedication of a lawyer's entire energies to the client's interests, it ought to follow that the lawyer had no duty to give advice that would have incrementally aided the new client's contemplated lawsuit against the existing client [Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 290, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950] .

While the rule stated in Flatt appears to have a broad application, the majority acknowledged that "in a different factual situation--one involving, perhaps, the lapse of considerable time and the expenditure of substantial resources before discovery of the conflicting representation--an attorney's mere withdrawal from the second representation may not be sufficient in itself to resolve all ethical responsibilities" [Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 290, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950] . While the majority declined to decide whether such a showing would lead to a different result, they suggested that a showing of substantial prejudice might be required in such a case [Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 290, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Flatt Does Not Mandate Withdrawal in All Cases. Although the Court did not decide the issue, Flatt does not suggest that the lawyer in that case could not have represented the new client in matters that were not adverse to the existing client, even though the new client contemplated using another lawyer to sue the existing client. In addition, Flatt did not involve a situation in which an existing client consults the lawyer about a matter that would be adverse to another existing client. While Flatt indicates that the lawyer must withdraw when the conflict is discovered, the case does not suggest that the lawyer could not continue to represent the client in matters that are not adverse to the other client. By Stanley W. Lamport.

§ 72.112 Rule 3-310(D): Aggregate Settlements

A State Bar member who represents two or more clients may not enter into an aggregate settlement of the claims of or against the clients without the written consent of each client [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(D)].

An aggregate settlement involves settling more than one client's claim or defense at once. The rule applies to both plaintiffs and defendants. Rule 3-310(D) is patterned after ABA Model Rule 1.8(g), which specifies that the disclosure must include "the existence and nature of all the claims or pleas involved and of the participation of each person in the settlement" [see Model Rules of Professional Conduct, Rule 1.8(g) (1983)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Informed Written Consent to Settlement Required. Rule 3-310(D)'s requirement of informed, written consent of all clients to a settlement would be triggered, for example, when:

- Attorney represents homeowners 1 through 10 in a suit against the developer of a housing tract, and the developer's attorneys propose a settlement whereby the homeowners will share in a fund.

- Attorney represents a dozen workers suing their employer over alleged discrimination in employment, and employer proposes a settlement involving back pay to all 12, but no compensation for the distress that three clients claim to have suffered.

- Attorney represents company X and one of its executives, Y, in defense of a suit for alleged interference with contract, and plaintiff's counsel proposes a settlement consisting of a monetary payment (which X can and would like to pay to end the defense costs) and a stipulated injunction limiting Y's activities for a year.

Conflicts under Rule 3-310(D) affect a lawyer's loyalty and exercise of independent judgment on behalf of both clients.

In aggregate settlement situations the clients may have conflicting interests. A lawyer may favor the interests of one client as a result of the lawyer's relationship with that client or as a result of other factors. Moreover, a lawyer may not be able to exercise independent judgment for one or both clients if placed in a situation of having to advise both clients about their conflicting interests.

Rule 3-310(D) is not intended to apply to class action settlements subject to court approval [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(D), Discussion].

For discussion of managing conflicts under Rule 3-310(D), see § 72.133.

7-72 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 72.113

§ 72.113 Rule 3-310(E): Representation Adverse to Present or Former Client When Confidential Information Acquired

[1] Overview of Rule

A State Bar member may not, without the informed written consent of the client or former client, accept employment adverse to the client or former client when, by reason of the representation of the client or former client, the member has obtained confidential information material to the employment [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E)]. Former Rule 4-101 was replaced by Rule 3-310(D) in May 1989. Rule 3-310(D) was replaced by Rule 3-310(E) in September 1992. Former Rule 3-310(D) was not substantively changed by Rule 3-310(E).

Rule 3-310(E) expresses the principle that, after severing a relationship with a former client, an attorney "may not do anything which will injuriously affect his former client in any manner in which he formerly represented him nor may he at any time use against his former client knowledge or information acquired by virtue of the previous relationship" [People ex rel. Deukmejian v. Brown (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 150, 155, 172 Cal. Rptr. 478, 624 P.2d 1206 ; Yorn v. Superior Court (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 669, 675, 153 Cal. Rptr. 295] . The prohibition against adverse use of material, confidential information applies to both current and former clients. However, as to current clients, Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)(3) prohibits an adverse representation in at least some situations, in the absence of consent, even when there is no risk of adverse use of material confidential information.

Rule 3-310(E) focuses on the potential misuse of confidential information [see Derivi Construction & Architecture, Inc. v. Wong (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1268, 1273, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 329 (speculative contentions of conflict of interest cannot justify disqualification); see also Galbraith v. The State Bar (1933) 218 Cal. 329, 332, 23 P.2d 291] .

The rule raises five main issues:

- What is "confidential" information [see § 72.113[2]].

- Who is a client for purposes of the rule [see § 72.113[3]].
- When is employment adverse to the client [see § 72.113[4]].
- When is the information "material" to the representation [see § 72.113[5]].
- When, if ever, can a law firm eliminate the risk that confidential, material information will be shared among lawyers in the firm and thereby satisfy ethical duties [see § 72.113[6]].

For discussion of managing conflicts under Rule 3-310(E), see § 72.131 et seq.

For a form of written informed consent by a former client to adverse representation by a former attorney, see § 72.650.

[2] Confidential Information

[a] Confidences and Secrets

The term "confidential information" is not defined in the Rules of Professional Conduct. Does it include confidences and secrets protected under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e), or does it refer only to the attorney-client communications that fall within the definition of client confidences? Elsewhere in the rules, when reference is made to confidential information, there is a specific reference to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) [see, e.g., Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rules 3-310(F)(2), 3-600(B)]. Does the absence of such a reference in Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E) indicate that "confidential information" has a more limited meaning?

One case and one ethics opinion suggest that confidential information includes both confidences and secrets [see Goldstein v. Lees (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 614, 620-621, 120 Cal. Rptr. 253 (1975) ; State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1993-133]. Given the scope of the duty to maintain client confidences and secrets in Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e), it appears that Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E) should be interpreted to provide less protection to a present or former client than is afforded in Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) [see In re Complex Asbestos Litigation (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 572, 587, 283 Cal. Rptr. 732 (citing former Rule 3-310(D) and Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e)); see also BASF Formal Opinion No. 1973-19 (knowledge concerning former client's bank accounts could constitute confidential information)].

This view is consistent with the policy behind Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E) and its predecessor, former Rule 4-101. One of the primary purposes of Rule 4-101 was to protect the confidential relationship that exists between attorney and client [David Welch Co. v. Erskine & Tulley (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 884, 891, 250 Cal. Rptr. 339] . The Supreme Court stated that a lawyer may not at any time use against his or her former client knowledge or information acquired by virtue of the previous relationship [Galbraith v. The State Bar (1933) 218 Cal. 329, 333, 23 P.2d 291 ; Wutchumna Water Co. v. Bailey (1932) 216 Cal. 564, 573-574, 15 P.2d 505] .

In light of these factors, it appears Rule 3-310(E) applies whenever a lawyer has confidences or secrets about the present or former client that are material to a representation that is adverse to that client.

[b] Expectation of Confidentiality

[i] No Reasonable Expectation

Client disclosures to an attorney are not always made in confidence. Some courts have declined to disqualify attorneys or firms when the person or entity complaining of an alleged violation of the rule had no legitimate expectation that the lawyer would keep the information confidential or not use it to another's benefit or against the disclosing person or entity. For example, some federal decisions hold that the lack of a reasonable expectation of confidentiality will permit representation of one client against a former client when the lawyer previously served both clients in a matter [see, e.g., Christensen v. U.S. D. Court For Cent. D. of Cal. (9th Cir. 1988) 844 F.2d 694, 698 (firm may represent director of company in receivership in suit by receiver against directors and officers when firm previously represented director and company, and it was not clear that company could reasonably have expected firm to withhold the information from the director); Allegaert v. Perot (2d Cir. 1977) 565 F.2d 246, 250 ; see also Trinity Amb. Serv. v. G & L Amb. Serv. (D. Conn. 1984) 578 F. Supp. 1280, 1285 (disqualification denied when it was unreasonable to assume that information shared among coparties' counsel would not be shared with clients)].

[ii] Croce and Competing Line of Cases

California case law has been somewhat equivocal on this issue. Early cases, starting with Croce v. Superior Court (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 18, 68 P.2d 369 , held that a lawyer could represent a client against a former client in a matter related to a prior joint representation [Arden v. State Bar (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 310, 318, 341 P.2d 6 (lawyer who jointly represented mother and family adopting her child could represent family in action to set aside the adoption); Petty v. Superior Court (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 20, 30, 253 P.2d 28 (lawyer who represented both clients in drafting agreement could subsequently represent one against the other in action for accounting under the agreement); Croce v. Superior Court (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 18, 20, 68 P.2d 369 (lawyer who jointly defended clients based on defense that no partnership existed between them could later represent one client against the other in litigation in which existence of partnership is alleged)]. The rationale for these decisions is that the common employment of the attorney removed the communications of the parties to one another and to the attorney from the privileged category. The communications not being deemed confidential, there is no impediment to or impropriety in the adverse representation by the attorney [Arden v. State Bar (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 310, 318, 341 P.2d 6] .

The Croce line of cases fell into disrepute in later cases [see Cord v Smith (9th Cir. 1964) 338 F.2d 516, 524-525 ; E. F. Hutton & Company v. Brown (S.D. Tex. 1969) 305 F. Supp. 371, 393 ; see also Industrial Indem. Co. v. Great American Ins. Co. (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 529, 536-538, 140 Cal. Rptr. 806 ; Goldstein v. Lees (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 614, 623 n.9, 120 Cal. Rptr. 253 (distinguishing Croce and acknowledging criticism); BASF Formal Opinion No. 1973-22; but see BASF Formal Opinion No. 1973-10 (confidential information was determining factor)].

In Western Continental Operating Co. v. Natural Gas Corp., the court distinguished Christensen and Allegaert (discussed under § 72.113[2][b][i] above). The court in Western Continental rejected the argument that the joint--client exception to the attorney-client privilege should apply to make it unreasonable as a matter of law for one joint client to expect confidentiality vis-a-vis another joint client and thereby create an automatic exception to the prohibition against representation adverse to a former client [Western Continental Operating Co. v. Natural Gas Corp. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 752, 761-762, 261 Cal. Rptr. 100] . Since Croce, a competing line of cases has developed that hold that a lawyer "may not do anything which will injuriously affect his former client in any matter in which he formerly represented him ..." [Big Bear Mun. Water Dist. v. Superior Court (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 919, 926, 75 Cal. Rptr. 580 ; Earl Scheib, Inc. v. Superior Court (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 703, 706, 61 Cal. Rptr. 386] . However, later cases that cited the preceding language concluded that it is confidences acquired in the course of an attorney-client relationship that are protected under that standard [see Maruman Integrated Circuits, Inc. v. Consortium Co. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 443, 448-449, 212 Cal. Rptr. 497 ; Cooke v. Superior Court (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 582, 591, 147 Cal. Rptr. 915] .

The Croce line of cases was revived in Cornish v. Superior Court, which held that a firm could represent a client against a party it had jointly represented with the client, because, under the circumstances, the party could not have reasonably expected that its communications with the firm would not be disclosed to the other client. The Cornish court acknowledged the criticism of Croce and recognized that there might be situations in which a firm should not represent one former joint client against the other, but concluded its case was not such a situation [Cornish v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 467, 477-478, 257 Cal. Rptr. 383 ; cf. Industrial Indem. Co. v. Great American Ins. Co. (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 529, 538, 140 Cal. Rptr. 806 (Croce did not apply because law firm had concurrently represented conflicting interests without disclosure or consent)]. The court in Western Continental distinguished Cornish on its facts and concluded that the joint representation alone did not overcome the client's expectation of confidentiality [Western Continental Operating Co. v. Natural Gas Corp. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 752, 763, 261 Cal. Rptr. 100] . Nevertheless, Western Continental did not question the premise of the Cornish holding.

[iii] Focus Under Revised Rules

All of these cases were decided before the revisions to the Rules of Professional Conduct in 1989 and 1992. While former Rule 4-101 focused on the relationship between the current adverse representation and the prior representation, this focus has been eliminated in the rules adopted in 1989 and 1992. Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E) now focuses only on whether the lawyer acquired material confidential information during the prior representation. Thus, the emphasis under the current rules is the same as in the Croce line of cases--on whether the lawyer gained confidential information [see, e.g., Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 285, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950 (chief fiduciary value jeopardized by successive representation of clients with potentially adverse interests is that of client confidentiality)].

In one of the few cases decided under the new rule, an appellate court used extensive case law to broadly construe Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E) to protect a client [Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Inc. v. Tracinda Corp. (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1832, 1842, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 327] . At issue were two separate client corporations, involved in two separate lawsuits. The lawsuits were based on separate transactions, but both involved the same factual allegations regarding the value of stock. The law firm represented client B in one suit, in which client B's interest was adverse to client A's interest, who was not a party to that suit but was involved in the other suit. The law firm currently represented client A only in one "long dormant" matter, but had previously represented client A for a number of years as general counsel, including involvement in some transactions which also related to the value of stock. The court held that even though client A was not a party to the legal action in which the law firm represented client B, the "proscription [against representation] exists where counsel's employment is adverse to the client or former client, and can exist even though a prior client is not a party to the litigation" [Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Inc. v. Tracinda Corp. (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1832, 1843, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 327 ; also see American Airlines v. Sheppard, Mullin, Richter & Hampton (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1017, 1039, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 685] .

In another case decided under the new rule, the court found that whether confidential, material information would normally have been imparted to the attorney depends on three factors [Dieter v. Regents of the University of California (E.D. Cal. 1997) 963 F. Supp. 908, 911-912 ; see also San Gabriel Basin Water Quality Authority v. Aerojet-General Corporation (C.D. Cal. 2000) 105 F. Supp.2d 1095, 1104-1106] :

- The factual similarities between the current and former representations.
- The similarities between the legal questions posed.
- The nature and extent of the attorney's involvement with the former representation.

The California Supreme Court has held that in successive representation cases, the primary fiduciary value to be protected is client confidences, whereas in simultaneous representation cases the primary fiduciary value is loyalty. The Court held that in successive representation cases, the court should determine whether the attorney adequately protected, and would continue to adequately protect, the former client's confidences through timely, appropriate, and effective screening measures and/or structural safeguards [In re Charlisse C. (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 145, 165, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 597, 194 P.3d 330] .

In general, courts recognize that there is no expectation of confidentiality when an attorney-client relationship did not in fact exist [Jacuzzi v. Jacuzzi Bros., Inc. (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 24, 29, 32 Cal. Rptr. 188 (attorney for corporation did not represent officers and directors personally and could pursue action against them on corporation's behalf); Meehan v. Hopps (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 284, 290, 301 P.2d 10 (same); see also Ward v. Superior Court (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 23, 34, 138 Cal. Rptr. 532 (applying same rule in government attorney context)]. Other courts hold that there is no expectation of confidentiality when the client expressly or impliedly consents to the adverse representation [Cornish v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 467, 477-478, 257 Cal. Rptr. 383 (client informed at outset that lawyer intended to represent other client in event of a conflict); see generally Grove v. Grove Valve & Regulator Co. (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 646, 652-654, 29 Cal. Rptr. 150] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Customary Expectation of Confidentiality. With the possible exception of the joint-client situation (discussed above), it is rare that a client does not have an expectation of confidentiality about information shared with the lawyer.

[3] Client to Whom Duty Is Owed

Informed written consent must be obtained from the current or former client from whom or about whom the material, confidential information was learned [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E)]. "Before an attorney may be disqualified from representing a party in litigation because his representation of that party is adverse to the interest of a current or former client, it must first be established that the party seeking the attorney's disqualification was or is 'represented' by the attorney in a manner giving rise to an attorney-client relationship" [Civil Service Com. v. Superior Court (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 70, 76-77, 209 Cal. Rptr. 159 ; see also Oasis West Realty, LLC v. Goldman (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 688, 696-698, 2010 Cal. App. LEXIS 287 (no violation when attorney did not have second attorney-client relationship)].

Courts have found the rule applicable in a variety of settings even though no formal attorney-client relationship existed [see Trone v. Smith (9th Cir. 1980) 621 F.2d 994, 1002 (fiduciary obligations and professional responsibilities may warrant disqualification of counsel even in absence of strict contractual attorney-client relationship); In re Marriage of Zimmerman (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 556, 564 n.2, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 132 (person who consults with but does not retain attorney may be considered "client" to protect prospective client's expectation of confidentiality even in preliminary discussions; act of consultation is key to finding whether there had been attorney-client relationship; but no such relationship found under facts); Model Code of Professional Responsibility EC 4-1 (1980); see also State Bar of California Formal Opinion No. 1997-152 (recommending that lawyer should not accept representation adverse to former client of lawyer's law firm, whom lawyer never personally represented, without first obtaining that client's consent when lawyer knows or reasonably should know that another attorney in lawyer's law firm, who personally represented client, obtained material confidential information during representation of that former client); Comment, Developments in the Law--Conflicts of Interest in the Legal Profession, 94 Harv. L. Rev. 1244, 1321 (1981) (suggesting as test whether person divulging confidences is approaching attorney in professional capacity with intent to secure legal advice); and discussion in Subpart B under Duties Owed to Client,; but see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 501 (1999) (where lawyer did not obtain confidential information at former law firm about former firm's client that is material to matter at new law firm, neither Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E) nor "imputed knowledge" rule should apply to prohibit lawyer or lawyer's new firm from handling matter)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Who Is Former Client. A person consults an attorney about a potential lawsuit against Company. The attorney declines the representation. Several years later, may the attorney represent Company in a suit against the person who the attorney consulted previously? No, unless the attorney is wholly satisfied that by virtue of the passage of time or the nature of the confidential information in his or her possession there is no reasonably foreseeable likelihood that the confidential information might be usable to the detriment of the former client. The person who consulted the attorney will be considered a "former client" for purposes of Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E) [see State Bar Formal Opinion No.

1984-84; see also In re Marriage of Zimmerman (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 556, 564 n.2, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 132 (recognizing possibility of duty when no formal attorney-client relationship, but declining to find duty under facts)].

[4] Employment Adverse to Client

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E) applies only when the lawyer's employment is adverse to the client or former client from whom the lawyer obtained material confidential information.

Nothing in the Rule prohibits an attorney from accepting employment that is not adverse to a present or former client, even if the lawyer is privy to confidential information material to a former client [see Goldstein v. Lees (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 614, 619, 120 Cal. Rptr. 253 ; see also Oasis West Realty, LLC v. Goldman (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 688, 696-698, 2010 Cal. App. LEXIS 287 (no violation when attorney did not have second attorney-client relationship)].

The term "adverse" has the same meaning as in the case of representations adverse to an existing client [see § 72.111[3][b]]. An adverse employment most commonly arises when the client or former client is an opposing party.

Adversity, however, may also arise in other situations. The underlying purpose of Rule 3-310(E) is to prevent a lawyer from doing two things [Galbraith v. The State Bar (1933) 218 Cal. 329, 333, 23 P.2d 291] :

- Doing anything that will injuriously affect the former client in any matter in which the lawyer formerly represented the client.

- Using against the former client knowledge or information acquired by virtue of the previous relationship.

As a result, representations have also been recognized to be adverse when confidential information might be used to the detriment of a present or former client [Woods v. Superior Court (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 931, 936, 197 Cal. Rptr. 185 ; State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1984-84; LACBA Formal Opinion No. 366 (1977)]. For example, if the present or former client is a witness, the rule would apply if confidential information might be used for impeachment [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1980-52]. A law firm's use of confidential information to acquire the collection business of a former client collection agency was held to be adverse employment [David Welch Co. v. Erskine & Tulley (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 884, 891, 250 Cal. Rptr. 339] . The determinative factor in each case was the detriment to the client and the possible use of confidential information to produce that result.

Even if the client does not have a direct or personal stake in the outcome, an adverse representation exists if it would adversely affect a present or former client's credibility, reputation, or other interests [State Bar Formal Opinion Nos. 1980-52, 1993-133]. An adverse representation also exists if it threatens the revelation or use of the present or former client's confidences or secrets without that client's consent [Goldstein v. Lees (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 614, 620, 120 Cal. Rptr. 253 ; State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1993-133; SDCBA Ethics Opinion No. 1976-10]. For example, the rule applies when a lawyer for a corporation possessing confidential information is hired to represent a shareholder in a proxy fight [Goldstein v. Lees (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 614, 621, 120 Cal. Rptr. 253] . The rule also applies when a lawyer, who represented a client in a lawsuit, is hired by the opposing party after the lawsuit is over to sue the opposing party's lawyer for malpractice or to handle another lawsuit arising out of the same facts [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1993-133; SDCBA Ethics Opinion No. 1976-10]. The potential use of the former client's confidences without the former client's consent is an important factor.

[5] Information Material to Employment

[a] Substantial Relationship Test and Presumption Under Former Rule

The ethical prohibition against acceptance of adverse employment involving prior confidential information includes potential as well as actual use of the previously acquired information [Galbraith v. The State Bar (1933) 218 Cal. 329, 332-333, 23 P.2d 291 ; Yorn v. Superior Court (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 669, 675, 153 Cal. Rptr. 295 ; Woods v. Superior Court (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 931, 936, 197 Cal. Rptr. 185 ; see also SDCBA Ethics Opinion No. 1987-1 (adverse employment prohibited unless there is no foreseeable likelihood of use of confidential information)]. The actual use or misuse of confidential information against a present or former client is not determinative. It is the possible use of such information that controls.

The question faced by the courts was how to determine whether a lawyer has such information. "Although requiring some showing of the general nature of the information and its relationship to the proceeding can be proper, requiring disclosure of the information itself is not" [In re Complex Asbestos Litigation (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 572, 592, 283 Cal. Rptr. 732 (citations omitted); see also State Bar of California Formal Opinion No. 1997-152]. The substantial relationship test arose as a means to address this problem.

Under former Rule 4-101, a conflict existed when an attorney's current representation of client A was adverse to client B and "relating to a matter in reference to which he has obtained confidential information [from or about client B]." Courts applying this standard in the context of disqualification motions held that if the two matters were "substantially related," a presumption arose (at least in disqualification proceedings) that the attorney had gained knowledge of relevant, confidential information [Trone v. Smith (9th Cir. 1980) 621 F.2d 994, 998 ; River West, Inc. v. Nickel (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 1297, 1303-1304, 234 Cal. Rptr. 33 ; Global Van Lines Inc. v. Superior Court (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 483, 488, 192 Cal. Rptr. 609] . This presumption is not rebuttable [People ex rel. Deukmejian v. Brown (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 150, 156, 172 Cal. Rptr. 478, 624 P.2d 1206] . As long as the matters were substantially related, and it appeared that confidential information material to the current dispute would normally have been imparted to the attorney (or to the attorney's subordinates), the courts would not inquire whether relevant confidences had actually been disclosed [Global Van Lines Inc. v. Superior Court (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 483, 489, 192 Cal. Rptr. 609 ; see Trone v. Smith (9th Cir. 1980) 621 F.2d 994, 998 ; see also People ex rel. Deukmejian v. Brown (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 150, 155, 172 Cal. Rptr. 478, 624 P.2d 1206 ; but see Elliott v. McFarland Unified School Dist. (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 562, 568-573, 211 Cal. Rptr. 802 (appearing to adopt actual disclosure test)].

The substantial relationship test and presumption narrow the scope of inquiry. Requiring a party moving to disqualify opposing counsel to prove that opposing counsel had in fact received confidential information would involve disclosure of the very information the rule is intended to protect [Woods v. Superior Court (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 931, 934, 197 Cal. Rptr. 185] . The goal of preserving confidences would also be impaired if the disclosure (that is, the evidentiary showing in support of the motion) is made to the court in camera [see Civil Service Com. v. Superior Court (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 70, 79-80, 209 Cal. Rptr. 159 (actual confidential matters should not be revealed to court)]. Therefore, such proof is not required [Rosenfeld Construction Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 566, 575, 286 Cal. Rptr. 609 ; Western Continental Operating Co. v. Natural Gas Corp. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 752, 759, 261 Cal. Rptr. 100 ; see also Trone v. Smith (9th Cir. 1980) 621 F.2d 994, 999 ; but see Cornish v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 467, 479-480, 257 Cal. Rptr. 383 (not error for trial court to refer disclosure-of-confidences issue to referee for in camera inspection; procedure not prohibited by Evid. Code § 915)].

[b] Impact of Current Ethics Rules

Under present Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E), the current representation of client A is prohibited if, in the current or former representation of client B, the attorney obtained confidential information material to the current employment for client A [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E)].

The current rule represents a change from old Rule 4-101. The old rule's focus on the relationship between the two matters has been replaced by the new rule's focus on whether the confidential information obtained in the other representation is material to the current representation [see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 463 (1990) (discussion of "materiality" under current rule)].

This change reflects the evolution of the substantial relationship test as a means to determine if material confidential information was likely to have been transmitted during the representation of the other present or former client. The early formulations of the substantial relationship test, which focused primarily on the relationship between the representations, were criticized as overly inclusive and unduly harsh [Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 275, 279-280, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 885 P.2d 950 ; Ochoa v. Fordel, Inc. (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 898, 908, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 277 ; H.F. Ahmanson & Co. v. Salomon Brothers, Inc. (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1445, 1453, 280 Cal. Rptr. 614] .

The focus now is less on the meaning of the words "substantial" and "relationship" and instead on the practical consequences of the attorney's representation of the affected client [Med-Trans Corp. v. City of California City (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 655, 666-669, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 17 ; H.F. Ahmanson & Co. v. Salomon Brothers, Inc. (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1445, 1454, 280 Cal. Rptr. 614 ; see also City National Bank v. Adams (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 315, 326, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 125 ; Adams v. Aerojet-General Corporation (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1324, 1332, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 116] . Courts instead ask whether confidential information material to the current dispute would normally have been imparted to the attorney by virtue of the nature of the former representation [Med-Trans Corp. v. City of California City (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 655, 666-669, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 17 ; Ochoa v. Fordel, Inc. (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 898, 908, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 277 ; H.F. Ahmanson & Co. v. Salomon Brothers, Inc. (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1445, 1454, 280 Cal. Rptr. 614 ; Global Van Lines Inc. v. Superior Court (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 483, 489, 192 Cal. Rptr. 609 ; see also City National Bank v. Adams (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 315, 326, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 125 ; Adams v. Aerojet-General Corporation (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1324, 1332, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 116 ; In re Marriage of Zimmerman (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 556, 564-566, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 132 ; Dieter v. Regents of the University of California (E.D. Cal. 1997) 963 F. Supp. 908, 911-912] .

As a result, courts still apply the "substantial relationship" test under the current rule [see, e.g., Meza v. H. Muehlstein & Co. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 969, 977-978, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 422 ; Faughn v. Perez (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 592, 603-610, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 692 ; Rosenfeld Construction Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 566, 578, 286 Cal. Rptr. 609 (issued writ of mandate directing trial court to apply substantial relationship test, rather than looking to see if lawyers had actual recollection of matters relating to prior representation, when defendant had once been represented in similar suit by firm that plaintiff's attorney joined during pendency of present action); H.F. Ahmanson & Co. v. Salomon Brothers, Inc. (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1445, 1452-1460, 280 Cal. Rptr. 614 (substantial relationship test elucidated and applied); see also City National Bank v. Adams (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 315, 324-329, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 125 (substantial relationship test elucidated and applied); Adams v. Aerojet-General Corporation (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1324, 1340-1341, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 116 (applying substantial relationship test); In re Marriage of Zimmerman (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 556, 563, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 132 (applying substantial relationship test); State Bar of California Formal Opinion No. 1997-152 (discussing substantial relationship test); LACBA Formal Opinion No. 501 (1999) (discussing substantial relationship test and imputed knowledge rule)].

[c] Evaluation of Relationship

The court of appeal in H.F. Ahmanson & Co. v. Salomon Brothers. Inc. adopted a practical approach to determining when a "substantial relationship" exists that may prohibit continuing representation under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E). A trial court should focus on the following [H.F. Ahmanson & Co. v. Salomon Brothers, Inc. (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1445, 1455, 280 Cal. Rptr. 614 ; see also Adams v. Aerojet-General Corporation (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1324, 1332, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 116 ; UMG Recordings, Inc. v. MySpace, Inc. (C.D. Cal. 2007) 526 F. Supp. 2d 1046, 1060 ; Dieter v. Regents of the University of California (E.D. Cal. 1997) 963 F. Supp. 908, 911-912] :

- The similarities between the two factual situations.

- The legal questions posed.
- The nature and extent of the attorney's involvement with the cases.

The trial court should also examine the following [H.F. Ahmanson & Co. v. Salomon Brothers, Inc. (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1445, 1455, 280 Cal. Rptr. 614] :

- The time spent by the attorney on the earlier cases.
- The type of work performed.
- The attorney's possible exposure to formulation of policy or strategy.

Applying this test, the appellate court in H.F. Ahmanson upheld the trial court's determination that there was no factual or legal similarity between the two matters and that the particular lawyer's prior involvement was on the periphery of the prior client's overall business policies and strategies [H.F. Ahmanson & Co. v. Salomon Brothers, Inc. (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1445, 1457, 280 Cal. Rptr. 614 ; see also Ochoa v. Fordel, Inc. (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 898, 908, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 277 ; Fremont Indemnity Co. v. Fremont General Corp. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 50, 65, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 82 (no substantial relationship between subject of current representation and subject of former representation that would make disqualification mandatory); Adams v. Aerojet-General Corporation (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1324, 1340, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 116] .

Elaborating on the rationale of H.F. Ahmanson, above, the court in Jessen v. Hartford Casualty Insurance Co. stated that the question whether an attorney should be disqualified in a successive representation case turns on two variables [Jessen v. Hartford Casualty Co. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 698, 710, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 877]:

- The relationship between the legal problem involved in the former representation and the legal problem involved in the current representation; and
- The relationship between the attorney and the former client with respect to the legal problem involved in the former representation.

The Jessen court emphasized the significance of the latter factor in the application of the Ahmanson formula. If the relationship between the attorney and the former client is shown to have been "direct"--that is, if the lawyer was personally involved in providing legal advice and services to the former client--then it must be presumed that confidential information has passed to the attorney and there cannot be any further inquiry into the specifics of the communications between the attorney and the former client. Disqualification "will depend upon the strength of the similarities between the legal problem involved in the former representation and the legal problem involved in the current representation." This is so because "a direct attorney-client relationship is inherently one during which confidential information 'would normally have been imparted to the attorney by virtue of the nature of [that sort of] former representation' and therefore it will be conclusively presumed that the attorney acquired confidential information relevant to the current representation if it is congruent with the former representation" [Jessen v. Hartford Casualty Co. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 698, 710, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 877 , citing H.F. Ahmanson & Co. v. Solomon Brothers, Inc. (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1445, 1454, 280 Cal. Rptr. 614 ; see also Adams v. Aerojet-General Corp (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1324, 1332, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 116]. Accordingly, when ruling on a disqualification motion in a successive representation case, the trial court must first determine where the attorney's former representation placed the attorney with respect to the prior client. If the court determines that the placement was "direct and personal," this facet of Ahmanson is settled as a matter of law in favor of disqualification and the only remaining question is whether there is a connection between the two successive representations. This latter question may not include an "inquiry into the actual state of the lawyer's knowledge" acquired during the lawyer's representation of the former client [Jessen v. Hartford Casualty Co. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 698, 710-711, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 877]. However, if the court determines the former attorney was not placed in a direct, personal relationship with the former client, the court must assess whether the attorney was positioned during the first representation so as to make it likely the attorney acquired confidential information relevant to the current representation, given the similarities or lack of similarities between the two" [Jessen v. Hartford Casualty Ins. Co. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 698, 711, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 877] . Additionally, the court in Jessen, when deciding which matters should be relied upon when applying the substantial relationship test, interpreted Flatts use of the word "subjects" as including "information material to the evaluation, prosecution, settlement or accomplishment of the litigation or transaction given its specific legal and factual issues" [Jessen v. Hartford Casualty Ins. Co. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 698, 712, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 877] . The attorney whose disqualification is sought has the burden of proving that he or she had no exposure to confidential information relevant to the current action. That burden requires an affirmative showing and is not satisfied by a cursory denial [Ochoa v. Fordel, Inc. (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 898, 911, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 277] .

Interpreting Jessen, the same court of appeal held that Jessen did not create a lifetime prohibition against representation adverse to a former client, treating the former client in the same fashion as a current client, or automatically mandating disqualification when the two compared matters are entirely unrelated [Farris v. Fireman's Fund Insurance Company (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 671, 680, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 618] . The court made clear the critical concern is the possibility of use in the second representation of confidential information acquired during the first representation [Farris v. Fireman's Fund Insurance Company (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 671, 681, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 618 (attorney disqualified when he previously represented insurer in coverage issues and subsequently represented insured in bad faith action against insurer); see also Faughn v. Perez (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 592, 603-610, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 692 (no evidence showing whether policies and procedures with which attorney was familiar were applied in situation presented by second lawsuit)].

In Kirk Corp. v. First American Title Co., the court held that a member of a law firm representing the defendant was not disqualified by the fact that the member had once assisted the plaintiff homeowners in preparing a declaration of CC&Rs for the same condominium project involved in the current breach of fiduciary duty lawsuit, because the subject matters of the current and former representations were not substantially related [Kirk Corp. v. First American Title Co. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 785, 812-813, 270 Cal. Rptr. 24 ; see also Health Maintenance Network v. Blue Cross of So. California (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1043, 1062-1063, 249 Cal. Rptr. 220 (no disqualification when attorney accepts employment adverse to former client if matter bears no relationship to confidential information acquired by attorney as result of former attorney-client relationship); Elliott v. McFarland Unified School Dist. (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 562, 572, 211 Cal. Rptr. 802 ; but see In re Marriage of Zimmerman (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 556, 564, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 132 (wife's brief consultation with lawyer about issue in litigation in which lawyer's partner represented husband against wife was substantial relationship, but material confidential information was not likely to have been imparted); SDCBA Ethics Opinion No. 1977-6].

LACBA Formal Opinion No. 406 (1982) suggested that an attorney may take on a representation adverse to a former client debt collector, even though the new matter involves collections, so long as no confidential information relating to the current collection matter was obtained [see also SDCBA Ethics Opinion No. 1984-2 (subsequent adverse representation not prohibited in unrelated matter if relationship to prior representation is incidental)].

[d] Length of Relationship

In the disqualification context, when a client has a long-term relationship with an attorney, it is especially likely that confidential communications will occur [Employers Ins. of Wausau v. Albert D. Seeno Const. Co. (N.D. Cal. 1988) 692 F. Supp. 1150, 1162 (citing Global Van Lines Inc. v. Superior Court (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 483, 489, 192 Cal. Rptr. 609)].

Courts have deemed disqualification to be unnecessary when the prior relationship between the attorney and the client was short-lived and unrelated to the current engagement [Goldberg v. Warner/Chappell Music, Inc. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 752, 759-762, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116 (disqualification not required when client consulted briefly with firm three years previously with attorney no longer working with firm); Vangsness v. Superior Court (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 1087, 1090, 206 Cal. Rptr. 45] .

[e] Immaterial or Old Information

The fact that the opposing party is the attorney's former client is not in itself sufficient to bar the attorney from accepting or continuing the case against that party if either of the following is true:

- No confidential information material to the new case was given to the attorney [Kirk Corp. v. First American Title Co. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 785, 812-813, 270 Cal. Rptr. 24 (information gathered in preparing condominium association's CC&Rs was not relevant to subject matter of current litigation between association and party represented by firm); BASF Formal Opinion No. 1973-6 (employment adverse to former client respecting matters unrelated to confidential information is not prohibited)].

- The former representation is so far in the past that any confidential information obtained would no longer be material [Johnson v. Superior Court (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 573, 579, 205 Cal. Rptr. 605 (passage of time may lessen significance of any confidential information given)].

The more time that has passed since the information was disclosed, the more likely it is that the attorney no longer has confidential information that is relevant or material to the current dispute [see Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. Kerr-McGee Corporation (7th Cir. 1978) 580 F.2d 1311, 1322 (no abuse of discretion in denying disqualification when 10 years had passed and two matters were not substantially related); Johnson v. Superior Court (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 573, 579, 205 Cal. Rptr. 605] .

[6] Imputing Receipt of Information to Firm

[a] Imputed Knowledge Doctrine

Although the California Rules of Professional Conduct are silent on the point, the ABA Model Rules treat all lawyers within a single firm as oneunit for conflict of interest purposes [Model Rules of Professional Conduct Rule 1.10(a) (1983); see also Model Code of Professional Responsibility DR 5-105(D) (1980)]. The doctrine of imputed knowledge or vicarious disqualification has arisen out of these rules [see Chambers v. Superior Court (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 893, 898, 175 Cal. Rptr. 575] . The doctrine is based on the presumption that attorneys in a law firm will consult with each other and share their clients' confidences [see, e.g., Employers Ins. of Wausau v. Albert D. Seeno Const. Co. (N.D. Cal. 1988) 692 F. Supp. 1150, 1163 ; see also Trone v. Smith (9th Cir. 1980) 621 F.2d 994, 999 ; Novo Terapeutisk Laboratorium A/S v. Baxter Travenol Laboratories, Inc. (7th Cir. 1979) 607 F.2d 186, 196] .

In California, it has been held that if one lawyer in a firm has a Rule 3-310(E) conflict involving a risk of disclosure of material confidences, all lawyers in the firm are deemed to have the conflict and are accordingly ineligible to represent the party. [Meza v. H. Muehlstein & Co. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 969, 978-980, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 422 (firm disqualified even after lawyer with conflict left firm)]. Knowledge obtained by one member of a firm is imputed to all other members [Rosenfeld Construction Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 566, 573, 286 Cal. Rptr. 609] . The imputed knowledge theory holds that knowledge by any member of a law firm is knowledge by all of the attorneys in the firm, partners as well as associates [Chadwick v. Superior Court (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 108, 116, 164 Cal. Rptr. 864] . The rule has been applied in numerous cases [see, e.g., Pound v. DeMera DeMera Cameron (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 70, 76-77, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 922 (disqualification of lawyer representing plaintiffs after that lawyer hired another lawyer to assist, when other lawyer had previously represented defendants and, in the course of that representation, obtained confidential information); Farris v. Fireman's Fund Insurance Company (2004) 119 Cal.

App. 4th 671, 689 n.17, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 618 (attorney and his firm disqualified when attorney previously represented insurance company in coverage issues and subsequently represented insured in bad faith action); Frazier v. Superior Court of Orange County (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 23, 30, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 129 ; Henriksen v. Great American Savings & Loan (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 109, 114, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 184 ; Klein v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 894, 909, 244 Cal. Rptr. 226 ; Dill v. Superior Court (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 301, 306, 205 Cal. Rptr. 671 ; William H. Raley Co. v. Superior Court (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 1042, 1048-1049, 197 Cal. Rptr. 232 ; Chambers v. Superior Court (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 893, 898, 175 Cal. Rptr. 575 ; see also State Bar of California Formal Opinion No. 1997-152; LACBA Formal Opinion No. 501 (1999)]. However, it has also been held that when an attorney with client confidences moves from one private law firm to another, there is a rebuttable presumption of imputed knowledge to the law firm, which may be rebutted by evidence of effective ethical screening [Kirk v. First American Title Insurance (2010) 183 Cal. App. 4th 776, 792-816, 2010 Cal. App. LEXIS 478] .

If only one attorney in a firm has violated an ethical rule that does not pertain to potential breach of client confidences, disqualification of a whole firm generally is unnecessary [see, e.g., Mills Land & Water Co. v. Golden West Refining Co. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 116, 131-133, 230 Cal. Rptr. 461 (individual lawyer, not firm, disqualified for violation of former Rule 7-103); Chronometrics, Inc. v. Sysgen, Inc. (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 597, 607-608, 168 Cal. Rptr. 196 (involving same rule)]. Similarly, if the lawyer who handled the previous matter is no longer working for the firm and left before the new matter arose, there is no need to disqualify the entire firm because there is no concern that the "tainted" attorney will spread information to the "nontainted" attorneys [Goldberg v. Warner/Chappell Music, Inc. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 752, 765, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116 (disqualification not required when client consulted with firm briefly three years previously with attorney no longer working with firm)].

In one case, a court of appeal held in effect that two divisions of a public interest law firm should not be treated as a single firm for imputation of knowledge purposes [In re Jasmine S. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 835, 838-839, 846, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d. 593] . The court held that an attorney representing multiple siblings in dependency proceedings may be disqualified only if the siblings have an actual, present conflict of interest; a mere potential conflict does not warrant disqualification [In re Jasmine S. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 835, 844, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d. 593] .

Knowledge is not imputed between married attorneys who work for different firms. Courts have rejected the argument that an imputation of possession of confidential client information may be based solely on a marital relationship [see Derivi Construction & Architecture, Inc. v. Wong (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1268, 1276, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 329] (refusing to impute former attorney's access to client's confidential information to attorney in same firm and then to latter attorney's husband). If courts regularly disqualified attorneys and their law firms from representing clients with interests adverse to clients represented by the attorney's spouses' law firms, courts would effectively preclude married lawyers from practicing in the same communities as their spouses [Derivi Construction & Architecture, Inc. v. Wong (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1268, 1276, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 329 (citing Non-Punitive Segregation Inmates v. Kelly (D.C. Pa. 1984) 589 F. Supp. 1330, 1339 , affd. without opinion 845 F.2d 1014 (3d Cir. 1988))].

For discussion of when an attorney must disclose relationships between a party or witness and another attorney in the firm, see § 72.110[2][d].

[b] Impact of Imputed Knowledge

[i] Presumptions Created by Substantial Relationship Test and Imputed Knowledge Doctrine

The substantial relationship test and the imputed knowledge doctrine create two presumptions. The former test creates a conclusive presumption that material confidential information was disclosed to the lawyer handling the matter [see Rosenfeld Construction Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 566, 577, 286 Cal. Rptr. 609 , and discussion in § 72.113[5]]. The latter doctrine apparently creates a presumption that the lawyer has shared that information with all of the lawyers in the firm [see § 72.113[6][a]].

The impact of these presumptions is most profound when lawyers change firms. When a lawyer possessing material confidential information changes firms, the lawyer's knowledge is imputed to the new firm [see Kirk v. First American Title Insurance (2010) 183 Cal. App. 4th 776, 792-816, 2010 Cal. App. LEXIS 478 (presumption is rebuttable); Pound v. DeMera DeMera Cameron (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 70, 76-77, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 922 ; Henriksen v. Great American Savings & Loan (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 109, 112-114, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 184 ; Klein v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 894, 909, 244 Cal. Rptr. 226 ; Dill v. Superior Court (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 301, 304, 205 Cal. Rptr. 671] . However, more difficult questions arise when the lawyer changing firms has no actual knowledge of confidential information, and when the lawyer who was involved in a "tainted" representation leaves the firm. The question in the former situation is whether the prior firm's knowledge is imputed to the lawyer and the new firm. The question in the latter scenario is whether the departed lawyer's knowledge is still imputed to the old firm.

[ii] Imputing Knowledge to Lawyer and Lawyer's New Firm

It is not clear in California whether a lawyer who does not actually possess material confidential information carries imputed knowledge to a new firm and whether that knowledge is then imputed to the new firm. Several cases suggest that the prior firm's knowledge is not imputed to the lawyer.

In Chambers v. Superior Court, the Third District Court of Appeal held that disqualification of the plaintiff's firm, which hired a lawyer who had been employed by a government agency defendant, was unwarranted because there was no evidence that the lawyer had any responsibility over matters related to the action in question or that he acquired confidential information regarding the action. However, the Chambers court added that sufficient measures had been taken to screen the lawyer from any participation in the lawsuit [Chambers v. Superior Court (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 893, 903, 175 Cal. Rptr. 575] .

In Dill v. Superior Court, the Third District Court of Appeal distinguished its opinion in Chambers on the basis that the lawyer in Dill had been involved in the lawsuit in question while employed at the law firm representing the opposing party. No mention was made of screening as a distinguishing feature. However the Dill court observed that Chambers noted that vicarious disqualification of a former government employee's law firm is not imposed as strictly as it is in other instances. This statement suggests that Chambers may not apply when a lawyer is moving between private firms [Dill v. Superior Court (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 301, 305-306, 205 Cal. Rptr. 671] .

In Klein v. Superior Court, the Sixth District Court of Appeal analyzed Chambers as an exception to the vicarious disqualification rule that applied to former government lawyers. After reviewing the Chambers holding, the court concluded that the Chambers test involves both of the following considerations [Klein v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 894, 909, 244 Cal. Rptr. 226] :

- Whether the individual attorney had any responsibility over matters related to the instant action or had acquired confidential information regarding the action.

- Whether the firm had taken sufficient protective measures to screen the attorney from participation.

Under the Klein formulation of the Chambers test, the transferring lawyer would need to be screened even though that lawyer brought no confidential informationto the new firm [see discussion of screening in § 72.113[6][c]].

However, it is shown that the firm-switching lawyer never represented the former client personally while working at the former law firm, disqualification of the lawyer and the lawyer's new firm will not be automatic. In Adams v. Aerojet-General Corporation, the Third District Court of Appeal reversed and remanded the trial court's disqualification of a lawyer and the lawyer's new firm where the firm-switching lawyer had never represented the former client personally [Adams v. Aerojet-General Corporation (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1324, 1340-1341, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 116] .

Although the representations by the lawyer's new firm and old firm were substantially related, the court of appeal concluded that disqualification should not be ordered when there was no reasonable probability that the firm-switching lawyer had access to material confidential information while at the former firm [Adams v. Aerojet-General Corporation (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1324, 1340, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 116] .

The Adams court held that when a substantial relationship exists between the current case and the matters handled by the firm-switching lawyer's former firm, but the lawyer never represented the client personally while at the former firm, a modified version of the substantial relationship test described in Ahmanson is to be applied [Adams v. Aerojet-General Corporation (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1324, 1340, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 116] . The trial court should determine whether confidential information material to the current representation would normally have been imparted to the lawyer during the lawyer's tenure at the former firm. The trial court should focus on the relationship, if any, between the lawyer and the former client's representation. It should consider any time spent by the lawyer working on behalf of the former client, as well as the lawyer's "possible exposure to formulation of policy or strategy" in matters related to the current dispute. It should take into account whether the lawyer worked out of the same office that handled the former litigation. It should also consider whether the lawyer's administrative duties, including the lawyer's responsibilities as a partner and principal in the former firm, placed the lawyer in a position in which he or she would have been exposed to matters relevant to the current dispute [Adams v. Aerojet-General Corporation (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1324, 1340, 1341, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 116] .

The outer boundaries of the application of the substantial relationship test for vicarious disqualification of counsel was examined in Frazier v. Superior Court of Orange County (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 23, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 129 . The superior court entered an order disqualifying petitioner's Cumis counsel because the insurer's counsel, which had a conflict of interest of which it was then unaware, covered a few depositions for Cumis counsel. The petitioner sought a writ of mandate directing the superior court to vacate its disqualification order, contending the court overextended the rules of vicarious disqualification.

In Frazier, the Fourth District Court of Appeal granted the petition to vacate the superior court's disqualification order, holding that the disqualification of Cumis counsel would require a double imputation of knowledge of confidential information--first from one member of the law firm representing the insurer to another member of that firm, and secondly from the latter attorney to a different law firm entirely. Case law did not support the double imputation in this context [Frazier v. Superior Court of Orange County (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 23, 26-27, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 129] .

City of Santa Barbara v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 17, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 403 is the first court of appeal case to look at what measures must be employed when an attorney leaves private practice to join a public law office and the public law office represents the city in a case against the attorney's client on which the attorney was actively involved. The court reiterated the general rule that an attorney's ethical duties to maintain undivided loyalty to his or her clients and to preserve the confidentiality of client communications require that the attorney refrain from simultaneous or successive representation of clients with adverse interests [City of Santa Barbara v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 17, 23, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 403] . The court also held that an individual attorney's disqualification extends to his or her entire law firm [City of Santa Barbara v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 17, 23-24, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 403] . The court then looked at whether the attorney's disqualification requires the vicarious disqualification of the entire city attorney's office and whether screening with an "ethical wall" could prevent the vicarious disqualification. If the lawyer were with a private law firm, the answer would be clear: the lawyer's disqualification would be mandatory and would extend to his or her entire law firm. However, because the attorney was employed by a public law office, not a private law firm, the court held otherwise. Unlike private sector lawyers, public sector lawyers do not have a financial interest in the matters on which they work. Thus, they may have less incentive to breach client confidences [City of Santa Barbara v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 17, 24, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 403] . In addition, public sector lawyers do not recruit clients or accept fees. Thus, they have no financial incentive to favor one client over another [City of Santa Barbara v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 17, 24, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 403] .

In light of these considerations, the court accepted the use of an ethical wall as an alternative to vicarious disqualification of the entire public law office [City of Santa Barbara v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 17, 27, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 403] .

Similarly, the California Supreme Court held that a public law firm should be held to a different, less stringent standard than a private law firm with respect to protecting confidences [In re Charlisse C. (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 145, 165, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 597, 194 P.3d 330] . A nonprofit law firm does not have the same financial incentives as a private firm insofar as the clients do not pay for services; therefore, no single client becomes more important than others, and ethical walls are more effective [In re Charlisse C. (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 145, 165, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 597, 194 P.3d 330] .

In Rhaburn v. Superior Court (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 1566, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 464 , the similar issue arose in a criminal case. At issue was whether a public defender whose office had previously represented a witness for the prosecution was subject to automatic disqualification for conflict of interest under Rule 3-310(E). The court held that the trial court erred in applying a rigid rule of vicarious disqualification. In that case, the public defender did not have a direct and personal relationship with the witness, and the direct acquisition of confidential information did not need to be presumed. Instead, the appellate court held, the trial court should have evaluated the totality of the circumstances in determining whether there was a reasonable possibility that the individual attorney representing defendant either had obtained confidential information about the witness collected by his or her office, or might inadvertently acquire such information through file review, office conversation, or otherwise. The court held that in cases that do not involve direct and personal representation of the witness, trial courts should accept counsel's representation that he or she had not come into possession of any confidential information acquired from the witness and would not seek to do so [Rhaburn v. Superior Court (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 1566, 1581, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 464] .

Inside and outside of California, federal courts have held that knowledge of a lawyer's prior firm is not imputed to the lawyer or the new firm when there is no evidence that the lawyer was likely to have acquired that knowledge [Dieter v. Regents of the University of California (E.D. Cal. 1997) 963 F. Supp. 908, 911-912 ; Panduit Corp. v. All States Plastic Mfg. Co. (7th Cir. 1984) 744 F.2d 1564, 1578-1579 (criticized on other grounds in Richardson-Merrell, Inc. v. Koller (1985) 472 U.S. 424, 432) ; Gas-A-Tron of Arizona v. Union Oil Co. of California (9th Cir. 1976) 534 F.2d 1322, 1325 , cert. denied, 429 U.S. 861 ; American Can Company v. Citrus Feed Co. (5th Cir. 1971) 436 F.2d 1125, 1129 ; Laskey Bros. of W. Va., Inc. v. Warner Bros. Pictures (2d Cir. 1955) 224 F.2d 824, 827 ; see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 501 (1999) (analyzing case law)].

In Panduit v. All States Plastic Mfg. Co., the court held that the presumption created by the imputed knowledge doctrine could be rebutted by a showing that the lawyer did not acquire confidential information. The Panduit court noted that while screening might also rebut the presumption, the absence of screening was not fatal [Panduit Corp. v. All States Plastic Mfg. Co. (7th Cir. 1984) 744 F.2d 1564, 1580-1581] .

In Gas-A-Tron of Arizona v. Union Oil Co. of California, the court reversed the disqualification of a lawyer who had worked as a young associate in the firm that represented two defendants in the action. The lawyer had not actually obtained any confidential information about either defendant that would be relevant to the pending litigation, and he had not worked on matters that were substantially related to the pending litigation [Gas-A-Tron of Arizona v. Union Oil Co. of California (9th Cir. 1976) 534 F.2d 1322, 1325] .

Panduit and Gas-A-Tron have both been cited in passing in California. Klein v. Superior Court distinguished Panduit because the evidence before the trial court did not demonstrate that the client's confidences had been passed on or were likely to have been passed on to members of the second firm [Klein v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 894, 911, 244 Cal. Rptr. 226] . The holding in Gas-A-Tron is discussed without comment in Chronometrics, Inc. v. Sysgen, Inc. (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 597, 604, 168 Cal. Rptr. 196 . LACBA Formal Opinion No. 501 (1999), analyzing this issue, maintains that if a lawyer did not obtain confidential information at a former law firm about the former firm's client that is material to a matter at the lawyer's new law firm, neither Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E) nor the imputed knowledge doctrine rule should apply to prohibit the lawyer or the lawyer's new firm from handling that matter.

The preceding discussion demonstrates that the rule in California is unsettled. Whether Chambers v. Superior Court (discussed above) applies only when public sector lawyers change firms and whether screening is an essential element of the Chambers test are unclear. The applicability of the rule in the federal cases is also undecided.

[iii] Imputing Knowledge When Lawyers Leave With Matter

What happens when a lawyer working on a matter leaves the firm and takes the matter with him or her? If there are no other lawyers in the firm who worked on the matter, may the presumption be rebutted by evidence that none of the remaining lawyers have any material confidential information? No California state court has yet to decide this question.

ABA Model Rule 1.10(c) allows a law firm to represent adverse interests in matters substantially related to the matter handled by the departed lawyer unless any remaining lawyer acquired material confidential information [Model Rules of Professional Conduct, Rule 1.10(c) (1983)]. However, a federal decision applying California law refused to apply Rule 1.10.

In Elan Transdermal Limited v. Cygnus Therapeutic Systems, the court found that the presumption was not rebuttable when lawyers who shared office space or interacted with the departed lawyers remained at the firm. In Elan, a large firm with several offices had attempted a merger with a smaller firm which, while affiliated with the larger firm, did significant work for Cygnus on a patent. After the merger failed and the lawyers left, the firm was retained by Elan to challenge the patent. The court concluded that there was still ample opportunity for shared confidences with attorneys who remained after the merger collapsed, and there is still an appearance of impropriety in the representation of a new client attacking the very work a firm did for a previous client [Elan Transdermal Limited v. Cygnus Therapeutic Systems (N.D. Cal. 1992) 809 F. Supp. 1383, 1390-1391] . Citing Rosenfeld Construction Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 566, 577, 286 Cal. Rptr. 609 , the Elan court held that the presumption of shared confidences is a conclusive presumption [Elan Transdermal Limited v. Cygnus Therapeutic Systems (N.D. Cal. 1992) 809 F. Supp. 1383, 1390] . However, even if the presumption were rebuttable, the firm had failed to present sufficient evidence. The court had no information about the knowledge that other current firm attorneys may have learned from those who have since left in casual conversations, firm retreats, etc. [Elan Transdermal Limited v. Cygnus Therapeutic Systems (N.D. Cal. 1992) 809 F. Supp. 1383, 1392] . The opinion suggests that declarations from all of the remaining lawyers in the firm may have been necessary if the presumption is to be rebutted.

It is not clear whether California courts will adopt the Elan holding that the presumption of shared confidences is conclusive. Elan was apparently relying on a statement in Rosenfeld that if the trial court found that the firm's current representation was substantially related to former representation in question, it would create a conclusive presumption that the firm possessed confidential information [Rosenfeld Construction Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 566, 577, 286 Cal. Rptr. 609] . However, the discussion in Rosenfeld had more to do with the presumption created by the substantial relationship test than with the presumption of shared confidences. Moreover, in Rosenfeld the lawyers involved in the prior representation were still employed at the firm. If the presumption is rebuttable, Elan demonstrates what showing is necessary to rebut the presumption.

[iv] Imputing Knowledge From "Of Counsel" to Law Firm

If a lawyer is held out as "of counsel" to another lawyer or law firm, the "of counsel" will be treated as a partner or associate for conflicts purposes [People ex rel. Dept. of Corporations v. Speedee Oil Change Systems (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 1135, 1155, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 816, 980 P.2d 371] . In Speedee Oil, a lawyer who held out as "of counsel" to a law firm consulted with and gained confidential information from the opposing party of a firm client. The California Supreme Court applied the imputed knowledge doctrine and disqualified the law firm from further representation [

People ex rel. Dept. of Corporations v. Speedee Oil Change Systems (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 1135, 1152-1156, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 816, 980 P.2d 371] . The Court noted that Cal. Rules of Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-400(E), Standard 8, defines an "of counsel" relationship as a "close, personal, continuous, and regular" relationship between a lawyer (or law firm) and another lawyer or law firm which is not that of associate or partner [People ex rel. Dept. of Corporations v. Speedee Oil Change Systems (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 1135, 1153, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 816, 980 P.2d 371] . The Court held that closeness of the "of counsel" relationship justifies the presumption that confidences are shared between an "of counsel" and his or her law firm [People ex rel. Dept. of Corporations v. Speedee Oil Change Systems (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 1135, 1155, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 816, 980 P.2d 371] .

[v] Imputing Knowledge From Expert Witness Previously Interviewed by Opposing Party

When a law firm retains an expert witness who was interviewed previously by opposing counsel and exposed to the opposing side's confidential information, a rebuttable presumption arises that the expert disclosed that confidential information to the law firm that subsequently hired the expert witness [Western Digital Corporation v. Superior Court (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1471, 1485, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179 ; see also Shadow Traffic v. Superior Court (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1067, 1085, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693] . The purpose of this presumption is to implement the public policy of protecting confidential information; thus, the presumption affects the burden of proof [Evid. Code § 605], imposing on the party against whom it operates the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence, the nonexistence of the presumed fact [Evid. Code § 606; see Western Digital Corporation v. Superior Court (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1471, 1485, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179] . The presumption does not apply, however, when the expert witness remains a consultant for and in the employ of the party that originally retained the expert [Shandralina G. v. Homonchuk (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 395, 412-417, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 207 ; Collins v. State of California (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1112, 1128-1129, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 112 (no disqualification when, once law firm discovered it had retained same expert as opposing party, it refrained from talking with expert until court resolved issue)].

[c] Ethical Walls or Screening

[i] Former Government Lawyers and Judges

May a law firm undertake or continue a representation without obtaining consent under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, 3-310(E) by sequestering the "tainted" attorney from the other lawyers in the firm--known as building an "ethical wall" or "screening"?

In situations involving former government lawyers, California courts in the context of disqualification issues have been receptive to the ethical wall solution in order to avoid unduly restricting the functioning of government law offices and the career mobility of government lawyers [Higdon v. Superior Court (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1667, 1680, 278 Cal. Rptr. 588 (screening acceptable to eliminate appearance of impropriety resulting from its hiring of court commissioner who had decided motions in case handled by firm); Chambers v. Superior Court (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 893, 903, 175 Cal. Rptr. 575 (firm that hired public agency attorney not disqualified because there was no evidence lawyer acquired confidential information and lawyer was sufficiently screened from any participation in litigation); Chadwick v. Superior Court (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 108, 119, 164 Cal. Rptr. 864 (district attorney's office not disqualified because former public defender was sufficiently isolated from prosecution of his former clients so as to rebut any inference of assistance); but see City and County of San Francisco v. Cobra Solutions, Inc. (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 839, 846-854, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 771, 135 P.3d 20 (when attorney left private practice to become head of public law office, vicarious disqualification of entire public law office was required and no screening was allowed)].

Regarding former judges who join law firms, the vicarious disqualification of a law firm does not automatically follow upon the personal disqualification of a former settlement judge who has become a partner in the law firm [In re County of Los Angeles (9th Cir. 2000) 223 F.3d 990, 997] . Timely and effective screening mechanisms can rebut the presumption that a former settlement judge has disclosed confidences to other members of the firm [In re County of Los Angeles (9th Cir. 2000) 223 F.3d 990, 997 ; but see Cho v. Superior Court (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 113, 125, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 863 (screening mechanisms not sufficient)].

[ii] Nongovernment Lawyers

Outside the government lawyer context, California courts have not been receptive to screening [see Pound v. DeMera DeMera Cameron (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 70, 76-77, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 922 ; Klein v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 894, 912, 244 Cal. Rptr. 226] . By contrast, federal courts have been more willing to approve of ethical walls [see, e.g., UMG Recordings, Inc. v. MySpace, Inc. (C.D. Cal. 2007) 526 F. Supp. 2d 1046, 1060 ; United States use of Lord Electric Co. v. Titan Pacific Const. Corp. (W.D. Wash. 1986) 637 F. Supp. 1556, 1564-1565 ; but see Employers Ins. of Wausau v. Albert D. Seeno Const. Co. (N.D. Cal. 1988) 692 F. Supp. 1150, 1164 n.17 (validity still open question in California)].

However, the California Supreme Court has held that ethical screening might suffice to shield a various departments of a public law firm [In re Charlisse C. (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 145, 165, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 597, 194 P.3d 330] . A nonprofit law firm does not have the same financial incentives as a private firm insofar as the clients do not pay for services; therefore, no single client becomes more important than others, and ethical walls are more effective [In re Charlisse C. (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 145, 165, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 597, 194 P.3d 330] .

A number of California cases have found screening to be inapplicable in the following situations:

- When a nongovernment lawyer performed work for the opposing party in the same lawsuit handled by the lawyer's new firm [Pound v. DeMera DeMera Cameron (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 70, 76-77, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 922 ; Henriksen v. Great American Savings & Loan (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 109, 114-117, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 184 ; Dill v. Superior Court (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 301, 306, 205 Cal. Rptr. 671 ; see Klein v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 894, 912, 244 Cal. Rptr. 226] .

- To sequester a lawyer who brings a lawsuit to a new firm that had represented the opposing party in the lawsuit in a substantially related matter [Rosenfeld Construction Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 566, 577, 286 Cal. Rptr. 609] .

- When the adverse party is a current client of the firm [William H. Raley Co. v. Superior Court (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 1042, 1049, 197 Cal. Rptr. 232] . But screening is available to government lawyers in this situation [Howitt v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 1575, 1586-1587, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 196 (county counsel office could represent employee at administrative hearing before county employment appeals board in which same office would advise board, provided board's advisor was screened); Castro v. Los Angeles County Bd. of Supervisors (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1432, 1439-1445, 284 Cal. Rptr. 154 (Dependency Court Legal Services Office may represent more than one party in lawsuit by dividing itself into separate and independent offices)].

However, in cases in which the incoming lawyer may have acquired material confidential information from a different representation at a prior firm, one case has suggested screening may be available. In Klein v. Superior Court, a lawyer, while employed at another firm, had received confidential information "possibly relevant" to the firm's current representation against the former client. The court held that California law clearly prohibits continued representation by the firm under the circumstances of the case when there has been no attempt to screen the lawyer from the litigation at hand [Klein v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 894, 913-914, 244 Cal. Rptr. 226 ; see also In re Complex Asbestos Litigation (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 572, 592-594, 283 Cal. Rptr. 732 (adopting rebuttable presumption of shared confidences when law firm hires employee of opposing firm, e.g., paralegal, who had access to material confidential information; presumption may be rebutted by implementing procedure referred to as "cone of silence" that "effectively screens the employee from any involvement with the litigation")].

While Klein suggests that screening may be available in certain cases that do not involve government lawyers, no California court has yet to hold that a law firm may avoid obtaining client consent by erecting a screen. Moreover, it is unlikely that a court will accept an ethical wall if it involves nothing more than a declaration by the tainted lawyer not to discuss the case [see Henriksen v. Great American Savings & Loan (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 109, 116, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 184] .

[iii] Establishing Ethical Wall

In cases in which screening is permitted, the typical elements of an ethical wall are the following [see Kirk v. First American Title Insurance (2010) 183 Cal. App. 4th 776, 809-814, 2010 Cal. App. LEXIS 478 ; Henriksen v. Great American Savings & Loan (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 109, 116 n.6, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 184 ; see also Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co. v. Superior Court (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 272, 293-294 (term "Chinese Wall" to describe screening mechanisms should not be used)]:

- Instituting physical, geographic, and departmental separation of attorneys.
- Establishing prohibitions against and sanctions for discussing confidential matters.
- Establishing rules and procedures that prevent access to confidential information and files.
- Establishing procedures preventing a disqualified attorney from sharing in the profits of the representation.
- Ensuring that firm attorneys obtain continuing education in professional responsibility.
- Ensuring that the disqualified attorney has no supervisory powers over the attorneys involved in the litigation, and vice versa.
- Providing notice to the former client.

An "ethical wall" may not be acceptable if it is not erected as soon as the potential conflict is or should have been discovered [see Atasi Corp. v. Seagate Technology (F. Cir. 1988) 847 F.2d 826, 831 ; see also Klein v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 894, 910-913, 244 Cal. Rptr. 226] .

An ethical wall or screening device is available as a means to protect against disclosure of confidential, material information consistent with Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E) if the present or former client consents to it. However, it is still not clear whether screening will ever be available to avoid obtaining consent under Rule 3-310(E). California law on this subject as it pertains to disqualification in situations not involving government lawyers appears to be still evolving.

§ 72.114 Rule 3-310(F): Third Party Paying for Client's Representation

[1] Overview of Rule

A State Bar member may not accept compensation for representing a client from someone other than the client unless the following three requirements are met [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(F)]:

- There is no interference with the member's independence of professional judgment or with the client-lawyer relationship.

- Information relating to representation of the client is protected as required by Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e).

- The member obtains the client's informed written consent, provided that no disclosure or consent is required if either of the following is true:

  - Nondisclosure is otherwise authorized by law.

  - The member is rendering legal services on behalf of any public agency that provides legal services to other public agencies or the public.

Rule 3-310(F) is patterned after Model Rules of Professional Conduct, Rule 1.8(f) (1983). It was adopted as Rule 3-310(E) in May 1989, which was superseded without substantial change by Rule 3-310(F) in September 1992.

Rule 3-310(F) applies both when the third party paying the fees is a client in the same representation, and when the third party is a not a client in the representation [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992); see also SDCBA Ethics Opinion No. 1990-3].

For discussion of managing conflicts under Rule 3-310(F), see § 72.135.

[2] When Third Party Is Not Client

Under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(F), a lawyer does not represent a third party merely because that party is paying for the representation of a client. Unless an attorney-client relationship exists with the third party for some other reason, the lawyer's duties are to the client in the representation alone. The lawyer may not accept compensation from a nonclient third party unless the client consents and the third party is not permitted to interfere with the lawyer's independent judgment or the attorney-client relationship, and the third party is not privy to the client's confidences and secrets [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(F); see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 500 (1999) (Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(F) and Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) apply where lawyer receives compensation from third-party finance company that agreed with client to finance client's lawsuit in exchange for assignment of interest in judgment)].

[3] When Third Party Is Client

It is not uncommon in joint representations that one of the clients will pay all of the fees for the representation. For example, when an employer and employee have been sued, the employer will often retain one lawyer to represent both and will pay for the representation. Because the lawyer is accepting compensation for representing the employee client from someone other than that client (the employer client), Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(F) applies [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)]. As a result, the employee's informed written consent to the lawyer's receiving compensation from the employer must be obtained.

Because the attorney-client relationship imposes duties on the lawyer to both the paying and nonpaying client, Rule 3-310(F) does not apply in the same way in joint representations that it does when the party compensating the lawyer is not a client. In joint representations, the lawyer's duty to maintain the nonpaying client's confidences and secrets referred to in Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(F)(2) is qualified by Evid. Code § 962, which establishes that there is no confidentiality between jointly represented clients with respect to communications made in the course of the joint representation [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)]. However, if revealing the information would involve a conflict of interest between the clients, Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C) would come into play [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)(1), (2), discussed in § 72.111[2]].

While Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(F)(1) states that there can be no interference with the lawyer's independent judgment, the thrust of that provision is that the lawyer's independent judgment should not be affected by the fact that someone other than the client is compensating the lawyer. Other influences on the lawyer's independent judgment should be analyzed under other parts of Rule 3-310 [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

[4] When Nonpaying Client's Consent Is Not Required

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(F)(3) sets forth two situations when disclosure and consent are not required. One situation is when the lawyer is rendering services on behalf of a public agency that provides legal services to other public agencies or to the public [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(F)(3)(b)].

The other situation is when consent is not required by law [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(F)(3)(a)]. The most common example is counsel selected by a liability insurer to defend an insured. Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(F) is not intended to abrogate existing relationships between insurers and insureds whereby the insurer has a contractual right to unilaterally select counsel for the insured, when there is no conflict of interest [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310, Discussion]. However, disclosure and consent are required when the insurer reserves its right to deny coverage if, based on the outcome of the lawsuit, the insured's liability is determined to be outside the scope of coverage [see Civ. Code § 2860; McGee v. Superior Court (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 221, 226-227, 221 Cal. Rptr. 421 ; San Diego Federal Credit Union v. Cumis Ins. Society, Inc. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 358, 364-365, 208 Cal. Rptr. 494 ;

LACBA Formal Opinion No. 464 (1990)].

§ 72.130 Overview of Conflict Management

This analysis focuses on approaches to providing written disclosure, obtaining client consent, and managing attorney-client relationships to avoid situations when the lawyer must withdraw because of a conflict. In general, a lawyer has a duty to make full and fair disclosure to the client of all facts which materially affect his rights or interests [Neel v. Magana, Olney, Levy, Cathcart & Gelfand (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 176, 189, 98 Cal. Rptr. 837, 491 P.2d 421 ; Day v. Rosenthal (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 1125, 1148, 217 Cal. Rptr. 89] .

The overall objective of written disclosure and informed consent is to assure that the client is apprised of the significant facts and possible adverse consequences in a manner the client can understand and appreciate [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)]. Another objective is to provide a structure for the representation that will allow a lawyer to competently represent a client [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

When it comes to implementing these objectives, the only general rule that can be stated is that there is no general rule. What is necessary to establish that a client is sufficiently informed depends on all of the facts in a given situation. What is adequate in one case may be inadequate in another [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

In providing disclosure and obtaining consent, it is imperative that the client understands the significance of the facts presented and the adverse consequences. If the client is unable to do so, adequate disclosure and informed consent is not possible [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

CAUTION:

Carefully Review Circumstances of Case Before Selecting Approach to Conflict Management. What follows in Subpart F is an effort to provide guidance in a field where there is very little guidance. It does not necessarily reflect the views of the LACBA Committee. The approaches suggested in this section should not be followed unless after careful review they are determined to be appropriate under the circumstances.

§ 72.131 Disclosing and Managing Conflicts Under Rule 3-310(B)

[1] In General

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B) is the sole aspect of Rule 3-310 that only requires written disclosure (Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)-(F) require informed written consent). The rule addresses potential and actual conflicts arising out of a lawyer's relationship with others or with the lawyer's interest in the subject matter of the representation. Conflicts of this nature inherently call into question a lawyer's undivided loyalty and ability to exercise independent judgment for a client. An attorney is precluded from assuming any relationship that would prevent the attorney from devoting his or her entire energies to his or her client's interests [Anderson v. Eaton (1930) 211 Cal. 113, 116, 293 P. 788 ; see also § 72.31]. Written disclosure under Rule 3-310(B) must address these issues.

When the relationship being disclosed involves another client about whom the lawyer has or may have material confidential information, written disclosure must also address the potential ramifications of that fact [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B), (E)].

The following subsections discuss how to address these issues.

[2] Managing Potential Conflicts Under Rule 3-310(B)(1)

[a] Disclosing Current Relationship

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(1) requires disclosure of relationships with another party or a witness in the matter. It applies when the interests of the party or witness are adverse to the client in the matter, as well as when the interests are not adverse. The nature of the lawyer's relationship with the party or witness and the compatibility of the interests are key elements of the disclosure to the client [see § 72.110[2]].

The disclosure should include enough information to allow the client to determine if the lawyer might tend to favor interests that are inconsistent with the client's interests. The factors to disclose may include:

- The nature of the relationship (that is, whether the other party is a client, friend, business associate, relative, or the like).
- The length of the relationship.
- The frequency of the lawyer's contact with the party or witness.
- Any significant events that have affected the relationship positively or negatively.
- The lawyer's personal feelings toward the person or entity.
- Any other factors that would assist in providing the client with a clear picture of the relationship.

[b] Explaining Effect on Loyalty and Independent Judgment

[i] General Considerations

It is one thing to inform a client about the potential for conflicting loyalties. It is another to try to advise a client about how that potential will affect the engagement. The lawyer may not be truly objective in this situation and may be subject to the criticism that the disclosure is tainted by the very divided loyalty being disclosed [see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

At best a lawyer can disclose the nature and extent of the relationship, state why the lawyer believes his or her independent judgment will not be affected, and ask the client to make its own determination about whether to continue a relationship with the lawyer [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)]. There may be situations when a client does not have the experience or sophistication to make such a determination.

PRACTICE TIP:

Advice of Independent Counsel. Although Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310 does not require it, such a client may need to be advised to consult independent counsel [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

There are likely to be situations when a lawyer's relationship with another party will be so strong that the lawyer should question whether to accept the engagement at all. The lawyer may not undertake the representation if he or she cannot represent the client competently [see generally Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-110 and discussion of competent and zealous representation in § 72.270 et seq. through § 72.290 et seq.].

If a lawyer believes in good faith that a relationship with another party or witness will not impair his or her loyalty or exercise of independent judgment, the lawyer should be able to explain the reason for that belief to a client. Given the fact-specific nature of the inquiry, it is not possible to produce a definitive list of factors to consider in determining whether a lawyer can fulfill these basic duties. A list of possible ways of making the determination is provided under § 72.131[2][b][ii].

[ii] Insubstantial Relationships

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(1) requires disclosure of any legal, business, financial, professional, or personal relationship. It does not specify that the relationship must be close, significant, or substantial. As a result, the rule encompasses relationships that in their nature may not have any effect on the lawyer's loyalty or independent judgment in the particular engagement.

For example, if the lawyer and the party or witness are members of the same club, but are not close and are not in frequent contact, the relationship may not be substantial enough to affect the lawyer's representation of the client. However, the lawyer may need to consider whether the representation would have ramifications within the club that would affect the lawyer. For example, if the lawyer is aggressively pursuing a lawsuit against the member, will other members of the club react in a way that would adversely affect the lawyer's social standing in the club? If the lawyer is not active in the club there might be no effect.

The preceding example illustrates that the analysis involves more than just a determination of whether a relationship is close or significant. It also involves consideration of the role of the party or witness in the matter and the ramifications of the lawyer's involvement in the matter on the relationship.

[iii] Common Interests

Situations in which the interests of the party or witness are consistent with the client's may indicate that the lawyer may be able to adequately represent the client [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)]. However, a client may need to be made aware of the possibility that the interests may become inconsistent, and thus affect the lawyer's loyalty and judgment. The possibility that the lawyer may be required to withdraw in such circumstances and the potential ramifications of a withdrawal should be discussed.

The risk of inconsistent interests arising might be reduced if the third party's role is limited. For example, if the lawyer's relationship is with a witness involved in a minor aspect of the transaction, there may be little risk of an actual conflict arising. In the case of a witness, the risk may also be minimized if the witness is not expected to testify at trial.

[iv] No Effect on Relationship

A lawyer may be able to remain loyal to a client if the lawyer's relationship with the party or witness will not be affected no matter what the outcome of the representation. For example, if the client and the other party are creditors in a bankruptcy proceeding whose interests are adequately secured by separate and unrelated assets, the lawyer's representation of the client may not have any effect on the other party. Similarly, if the other party is a witness whose role is limited, such as a custodian of records, the lawyer's representation of the client may not have any effect on the lawyer's relationship with the witness. The client may need to be advised about the possibility that if circumstances change, the relationship may be affected by the outcome. The potential adverse effect on the representation as a result of a change in circumstances may need to be disclosed.

[v] Adverse Relationships

There may be situations when the lawyer's relationship with the party or witness is already adverse. For example, the lawyer and the party or witness may not like each other, or one may have sued the other. In these situations, the lawyer may be able to show that the interests of the party or witness will not influence the lawyer's loyalty or independent judgment.

In these situations the lawyer must consider and disclose whether his or her feelings about the party or witness will influence his or her judgment for the client. In addition, the lawyer must consider and disclose whether the adversity of the relationship will diminish the lawyer's effectiveness. For example, if the representation involves negotiations with the party, will the lawyer's presence detract from or interfere with the negotiations? The lawyer must be able to explain the potential problems to the client and why the lawyer believes the representation would not be adversely affected.

[vi] Different Lawyers in Same Firm

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B) refers to the relationships and interests of a "member." However, the Discussion states that Rule 3-310(B) also applies when the member knows that another partner or associate in the firm has a relationship or interest covered by the rule. In such situations, the fact that the lawyer involved in the representation does not have the relationship or interest may help demonstrate that the lawyer can adequately represent the client.

In using this approach, the client may need to be apprised about the nature of the relationship between the other lawyer in the firm who has the relationship with the third party or interest in the subject matter and the lawyer handling the representation. For example, is the other lawyer a senior partner or a junior associate? Do the two lawyers work together on other matters or is there little contact between them?

Another factor to consider is the significance of the relationship to the firm. For example, is the third party someone who refers business or provides services to the firm? All of these factors will help elucidate whether the lawyer handling the representation will be able to exercise loyalty and independent judgment for the client. There may be other factors based on the particular circumstances that should be considered as well.

[c] When Relationship Is With Another Client

[i] Disclosing Relationship

When the party or witness with whom the attorney has a relationship is a client, disclosure involves special considerations because of the special duties lawyers owe clients. Disclosure of such relationships will not only be required for clients represented by the particular lawyer, but also for clients of the lawyer's firm, whose identities are disclosed through normal conflicts searches. Under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(1), disclosure will be required whether or not the other client's interest will be affected by the representation.

The disclosure of the relationship should include facts that will allow the client to determine if the lawyer might tend to favor the other client and how the attorney-client relationship with the other client may otherwise affect the representation. The factors to disclose and discuss may include:

- The length of the relationship with the other client.
- The number of matters handled.
- The volume of billings to the other client (without disclosing any confidences or secrets).
- The potential for future business from the other client.
- The extent to which the lawyer has a personal, social, or other relationship with the other client that goes beyond the attorney-client relationship.

In making this disclosure, a lawyer may not disclose the confidences and secrets of the other client [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e)]. In many cases the foregoing factors will not be confidences or secrets since they are not privileged or embarrassing or detrimental to the other client. However, if under the circumstances the information is confidential or secret, the lawyer may not disclose it. If the lawyer cannot make an adequate disclosure as a result, the lawyer may not accept or continue the representation [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310, Discussion].

[ii] Explaining Effect of Rule 3-310(B)(1) Conflict on Representation

When the lawyer has or may have material confidential information about the client, the possession of that information may substantially affect the representation [see § 72.131[3][c][ii]]. Even when material confidential information is not involved, there are likely to be situations when the lawyer's relationship with another client will be so strong that the lawyer must question whether the engagement should be accepted at all. This situation may be present when the other client has a close and substantial relationship with the lawyer or the lawyer's firm, and the lawyer is personally handling matters for the other client. If the disclosure is adequate, a client should be expected to make an informed decision.

If the nature of the work being performed is different for each client, the lawyer may be better able to exercise independent judgment for both. However, the differing nature of work alone may not be sufficient. For example, consider the situation when the lawyer represents a client in a lawsuit in which B, whom the lawyer represents in an unrelated matter, is an adverse witness. There may still be a risk to A that the lawyer may not be aggressive with respect to B's testimony in the lawsuit because the lawyer now has a relationship with B. The lawyer has to assure A that the representation of B will have no effect on the course of action the lawyer pursues on behalf of A.

In some instances the common interests of the client represented in the matter and the client who is another party or witness in the matter may provide assurance that the lawyer can adequately exercise independent judgment for the client in the representation [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)]. Here again the disclosure may need to address the possibility that circumstances could change and the interests could become inconsistent or adverse.

In law firms, it is often possible that another lawyer will be representing the party or witness in unrelated matters. The fact that another lawyer is representing the witness or party may help to show that independent judgment and loyalty can be exercised on behalf of the client in the matter. However, the other client's consent will be required if the representation is adverse to the other client.

A screening procedure may be a useful tool to demonstrate to the client to whom disclosure is made that the lawyer will be able to represent the client without being affected by the firm's relationship with the other client. The elements of a screen include:

- Restricting the work on the clients' matters to specific lawyers and other personnel who will only work for one of the clients and not the other.

- An agreement by the lawyers and other personnel working for the respective clients not to discuss the engagement with anyone else in the firm (to avoid the risk of indirect disclosure of information).

- Restricting access to the respective clients' files to only those working on the files. A law firm may want to establish a continuing education program and a policy of internal disciplinary sanctions for violations of the foregoing restrictions in order to demonstrate the screen's effectiveness.

Provided that the other client consents, a screen may also serve to protect against disclosures of material confidential information about the other client. However, if the other client does not consent to the screen and the representation is or may be adverse to that client and involves or may involve material confidential information about the other client, the firm runs the risk of disqualification. Moreover, when screening may be available without consent, the requirements for the screen may be more stringent than what would be sufficient with the other client's consent [see Henriksen v. Great American Savings & Loan (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 109, 116 n.6, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 184] .

There are certain situations when screening may not work. For example, screening may not work when the lawyers and other personnel working on the matters are in such close proximity that it would be impossible to assure that the procedure could be implemented. As a result, the proximity of the lawyers and other personnel should be part of the disclosure to the client. Another example when screening may not work is when one client is particularly close or valuable to the organization.

For detailed discussion of the use of screening in the context of Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E), see § 72.113[6][c].

[3] Managing Potential Conflicts Under Rule 3-310(B)(2)

[a] Disclosing Past Relationship

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(2) requires disclosure of a past relationship with a party or witness if the lawyer knows or should know that the previous relationship would substantially affect the current representation [see § 72.110[3]]. While some of the same considerations in making disclosure under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(1) apply to disclosure under Rule 3-310(B)(2), the inquiry under the latter rule is focused on the substantial effect on the current representation. The rule does not require that the effect be adverse. Both positive and negative effects must be disclosed.

The factors in disclosing the past relationship may include:

- The nature of the relationship (that is, whether the other party was a client, friend, business associate, relative, or the like).
- The length of the relationship.
- The frequency of the lawyer's contact with the party or witness.
- When the relationship terminated.
- The circumstances of and reasons for its termination.
- The potential for reestablishing the relationship.
- Any significant events that affected the relationship positively or negatively.
- The lawyer's personal feelings toward the party or witness.
- Any other factors that would assist in providing the client with a clear picture of the relationship.

[b] Explaining Effect of Rule 3-310(B)(2) Conflict on Representation

The disclosure to the client should explain the prior relationship's effect on the representation and the reasons why the lawyer believes he or she will be able to adequately represent the client.

A lawyer should seriously question accepting or continuing an engagement in which the lawyer's prior relationship would have a substantial adverse effect on the representation. In these situations it is likely that the lawyer's ability to competently represent the client will be impaired [see, e.g., LACBA Formal Opinion No. 366 (1977)]. A lawyer may not avoid his or her duty to practice competently merely by making disclosure to the client. If a lawyer believes in good faith that he or she will be able to represent the client competently, the lawyer should be able explain the reason for that belief to the client.

In some situations the prior relationship may have a positive effect on the representation. For example, a lawyer's prior relationship may allow the lawyer to deal more effectively with a party or witness. However, the disclosure should address whether the lawyer's loyalty or independent judgment would be affected as a result of the prior relationship. The factors described above in connection with Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(1) should be considered here as well.

[c] Special Considerations When Prior Relationship Was With Another Client

[i] Describing Relationship

There are special considerations when the prior relationship was an attorney-client relationship, which apply both to the disclosure of the relationship and to the effect on the representation.

In addition to the factors listed under § 72.131[3][a], in disclosing the relationship, the lawyer should include whether he or she has any interest in or expectation of future business from the former client. A lawyer's independent judgment and loyalty to an existing client may be affected if the lawyer has such an expectation, either because the lawyer does not want to offend the former client or because the lawyer's performance is motivated by factors other than the client's interest. If the lawyer has an interest in or expectation of future business from the former client, the lawyer must address why that interest or expectation will not affect the representation [SDCBA Ethics Opinion No. 1989-4].

As in the case of disclosure under Rule 3-310(B)(1) [see § 72.131[2]], the disclosure may not include confidences or secrets of the former client. If the lawyer cannot make an adequate disclosure without disclosing such information, the lawyer may not accept or continue representing the client [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e)].

[ii] Describing Effect of Relationship on Representation

When the lawyer has or may have material confidential information about a former client, the possession of the information may substantially affect a representation. If the representation is adverse to the former client, the lawyer may not accept it without the former client's consent under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E). If the representation is not adverse, but could become adverse, or if no confidential information is material at the outset, but such information could become material later, the former client's consent would be required at that time. These factors should be disclosed to the client.

If the former client's consent is required when the disclosure to the existing client is required, the lawyer should disclose that he or she may not be able to accept or continue the representation without the former client's consent. Even if the former client consents, there is often a risk that the former client could attempt to withdraw its consent later. For example, the former client could claim that the disclosure was inadequate or that, due to changed circumstances, the consent is not applicable [see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 366 (1977); SDCBA Ethics Opinion No. 1984-2].

Whether such objections are well-founded or not, they are likely to have a substantial effect on the representation. Decisions may be made based on the objection that would not have been made if the objection was not made. Responding to the objection may entail additional cost or delay to the client. If the lawyer is required to withdraw, the client will likely need to retain new counsel, who will not be as familiar with the case, which could adversely affect the client through delay, cost, or tactical disadvantage. All of these factors should be considered as part of the disclosure [see also LACBA Formal Opinion No. 366 (1977) (discusses situations when lawyer may be called as witness because of prior attorney-client relationship with adverse witness that could be detrimental to current client)].

If the former client's consent may be required in the future, the possibility that the former client may not give its consent or that the former client might later withdraw its consent should be disclosed and explained as well. A lawyer should also consider disclosing whether concern about avoiding the need to obtain the prior client's consent could affect future decisions in the representation. For example, the lawyer may want to avoid issues that would involve material confidential information or may avoid placing the client in a position adverse to the former client. These may be decisions that would not be made by a lawyer who did not have a prior client relationship with the party or witness. The potential adverse affect on the client should be disclosed.

If a lawyer or firm is using screening to avoid obtaining the former client's consent, the disclosure should discuss the potential that a court may still disqualify the lawyer or firm or that the lawyer or firm may have to withdraw despite the screen. The adverse affects on the representation related to responding to attempts to have the lawyer or firm withdraw and the adverse affect of the lawyer's withdrawal should be disclosed [see § 72.131[2][c][ii]].

[4] Managing Potential Conflicts Under Rule 3-310(B)(3)

[a] Disclosing Relationship

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(3) requires disclosure when the lawyer has or had a relationship with a person or entity that the lawyer knows or reasonably should know would be affected substantially by a resolution of the matter [see § 72.110[4]]. Many of the same considerations affecting disclosure under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rules 3-310(B)(1) and (2) apply [see §§ 72.131[2][a] and 72.131[3]]. However, there are some differences between Rule 3-310(B)(3) and Rules 3-310(B)(1) and (2) that affect the disclosure, as discussed below.

[b] Disclosing Effect on Person or Entity

The disclosure should include a description of how the person or entity would be affected substantially by the resolution of the representation. Many representations may have several possible outcomes. In those situations the disclosure may need to discuss how the person or entity would be affected by each possible outcome.

[c] Explaining Effect of Rule 3-310(B)(3) Conflict on Representation

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(3) addresses relationships that may affect a lawyer's loyalty and exercise of independent judgment. As is the case of situations governed by Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rules 3-310(B)(1) and (2), there may be situations when the relationship's effect on the lawyer's loyalty and judgment are such that a lawyer should not accept or continue the representation. On the other hand, there may be some situations in which the lawyer's loyalty or judgment will not be affected, as in the following cases:

(1) Insubstantial Relationships : As under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(1), Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(3) does not specify that the relationship must be close, significant, or substantial [see § 72.131[2][b][ii]]. As a result, a lawyer may be able to adequately represent the client because the relationship, by its nature, may not have any effect on the lawyer's loyalty and independence.

(2) Termination of Prior Relationship : Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(3) encompasses both past and present relationships. The fact that a relationship with the person or entity has ended may demonstrate that a lawyer can represent a client loyally. However, if the lawyer has an expectation or desire to reestablish the relationship, the termination of the prior relationship may not be sufficient [SDCBA Ethics Opinion No. 1989-4]. If events took place during the time the lawyer had the relationship that continue to affect the lawyer's objectivity, the termination of the prior relationship again may not be a sufficient consideration alone.

(3) Common Interests : As under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(1), situations when the interests of the person or entity are consistent with the client's may indicate that the lawyer can adequately represent the client [see § 72.131[2][b][iii]]. Here again, however, the possibility that the interests may become inconsistent, and thus affect the lawyer's loyalty or judgment, should be disclosed, along with the potential adverse effects to the client.

(4) No Effect on Relationship : As under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(1), a lawyer may be able to adequately represent the client if the lawyer can establish that his or her relationship with the person or entity would not be affected no matter how the matter is resolved [see § 72.131[2][b][iv]].

(5) Adverse Relationships : As under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(1), a lawyer may be able to adequately represent the client if the relationship with the person or entity is or was adverse [see § 72.131[2][b][v]]. However, if the lawyer bears hostility toward the person or entity, the resulting effect on the lawyer's independent judgment should be considered and disclosed to the client.

(6) Different Lawyers in Same Firm : When another lawyer in the firm has or had a relationship requiring disclosure under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(3), the fact that the lawyer involved in the representation does or did not have the relationship may help demonstrate that the lawyer can adequately represent the client [see § 72.131[2][b][vi]].

[5] Managing Potential Conflicts Under 3-310(B)(4)

[a] Describing Lawyer's Interest

Unlike the other three parts of Rule 3-310(B), Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(4) does not apply to a lawyer's relationship with other parties, witnesses, persons, or entities. Rule 3-310(B)(4) instead applies to the lawyer's past or present interest in the subject matter [see § 72.110[5]]. Nevertheless, many of the same factors apply when disclosing a lawyer's past or present legal, business, financial, or professional interest in the subject matter of a representation that apply when disclosing a past or present relationship. The nature, duration, circumstances, and extent of the lawyer's interest are all factors that should be considered in making disclosure. If the interest terminated, the time and circumstances of the termination should be disclosed, as well as whether the lawyer has a desire to or expectation of reacquiring the interest.

[b] Explaining Effect of Rule 3-310(B)(4) Conflict on Representation

The disclosure should include a discussion of how the lawyer's interest may be affected by the outcome of the engagement and how that could affect the lawyer's advice to the client. Here again, a lawyer should not accept or continue a representation if his or her interest in the subject matter would affect the lawyer's ability to represent the client competently. While it is not possible to create a complete list of factors when a lawyer could adequately represent a client, many of the same factors described above are also applicable here. Ultimately the lawyer must be able to explain why the lawyer's loyalty and judgment will not be affected by the interest.

There may be situations when the lawyer's interest is so small that the effect of the representation on the interest would be negligible. For example, if the representation involves a large publicly traded company in which the lawyer owns a small number of shares, the effect of the representation on the lawyer's financial interest may be inconsequential. If the lawyer's interest would not be affected one way or the other by the representation, the lawyer may also be able to demonstrate the ability to adequately represent the client. However, in both examples the lawyer would need to address whether the lawyer's loyalty or judgment would be affected by the fact that he or she has the interest.

As under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(3) [see § 72.131[4]], the fact that the lawyer's interest has terminated may demonstrate that the lawyer can adequately represent the client. However, the termination of the prior interest may not be sufficient if the lawyer desires or expects to reacquire the interest [SDCBA Ethics Opinion No. 1989-4]. If events took place while the lawyer held the interest that would affect the lawyer's objectivity, the termination of the interest may not be a suficient consideration alone.

A lawyer may be able to adequately represent the client if the interests or obhectives of the lawyer and the client are the same. However, this factor should be closely scrutinized. The fact that the client is paying for the lawyer's services and the lawyer does not bear the cost of the engagement may be a significant distinction. There could come a point in the representation when cost factors might influence a client to consider discontinuing the lawyer's efforts. The lawyer may need todisclose to the client whether be he or she can exercise independent judgment for the client at that point. Moreover, as in all common interst situations, the lawyer needs to disclose the potential for the client's interests to become inconsistent with lawyer's and the possible effect on the lawyer's loyalty and independent judgment as a result.

When another lawyer in the firm has or had the interest in the subject matter, that fact may demonstrate that the lawyer can adequately represent the client.

7-72 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 72.132

§ 72.132 Disclosing and Managing Conflicts Under Rule 3-310(C)

[1] Managing Conflicts Under Rule 3-310(C)(1), (2)--General Considerations

Potential and actual conflicts under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)(1) and (2) [see § 72.111[2]] tend to arise in five situations:

- When the clients have conflicting expectations of confidentiality of their respective communications with the lawyer.
- When the clients may give or do actually give the lawyer conflicting instructions.
- When clients are asserting or may assert claims against each other arising out of the subject matter of the representation.
- When the clients have inconsistent interests or objectives in the matter that the lawyer may not or cannot pursue effectively simultaneously.
- When the clients make conflicting demands for the file.

A lawyer should consider the conflicts that arise in these situations in providing disclosure to the clients. A threshold question in considering these issues is the lawyer's ability to exercise loyalty and independent judgment for both clients in the representation. These factors are addressed in the following subsections.

PRACTICE TIP:

Disclosures to Clients. Disclosure of potential conflicts in joint representation should be in writing. When disclosure is being made at the outset for the representation, consider making the disclosure and obtaining the consent as part of the fee agreement with the clients.

[2] Loyalty and Independent Judgment

Before accepting a joint representation of two or more clients, a lawyer should carefully consider whether he or she can represent all of the clients loyally and exercise independent judgment for all of them. Loyalty and independent judgment can be influenced by many factors depending on the circumstances. The basic question is whether the lawyer will tend to favor the interest of one client over another.

One area that should always be considered is when the lawyer has or has had a relationship with one or more of the clients. The issues concerning the lawyer's loyalty and exercise of independent judgment as a result of the relationship are similar to the issues requiring disclosure under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B) [see § 72.131[1]]. The nature and extent of the relationship with the one client should be disclosed to the other clients [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)]. The potential that the relationship would adversely affect the lawyer's ability to represent any of the clients with complete loyalty and independent judgment should be discussed [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

There are inherent difficulties in advising a client about consenting to potential conflicting loyalties. Although the clients should be encouraged when possible to make their own assessment, a lawyer should explain why he or she believes the clients can be adequately represented. The clients' common interests in the representation may provide assurance that the lawyer can represent their interests equally [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Advice of Independent Counsel. Although Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310 does not require it, it may be prudent to suggest that one or both clients consult with independent counsel before consenting to the joint representation, particularly when the clients lack the experience or sophistication to understand the ramifications of the disclosure [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

If, after going through the foregoing analysis, the lawyer determines that he or she cannot remain loyal to or exercise independent judgment for all of the clients in the representation, the lawyer should not accept the joint representation. If the lawyer can fulfill these duties to the clients, then the lawyer should next consider two situations in joint representations--conflicting instructions and conflicting claims or objectives--that tend to produce potential and actual conflicts [see § 72.132[2][b] and [c]].

[a] Confidential and Secret Information

A lawyer has a duty to maintain client confidences and secrets under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) [see § 72.33[1]; see also § 72.132[2][c] (regarding confidential information under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E))]. At the same time, a lawyer has a duty to inform the clients under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(m) and Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-500 [see § 72.271[1]]. Under Evid. Code § 962, a jointly represented client may not invoke the attorney-client privilege to prevent disclosure to the other jointly represented client of a communication with the lawyer during the course of the common representation.

The ramifications of the foregoing rules should be explained to the clients [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992); see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310, Discussion]. When representing more than one client in the same matter, there is a potential conflict when the lawyer learns confidential or secret information about one client that is unknown to the other client. Without an agreement concerning the handling of such information, a lawyer risks an actual conflict arising. There are two options available to handle this situation:

- Free Disclosure Among Clients : The clients agree that the lawyer can disclose any information obtained about any one of them to the others. However, the clients should be informed of the risk that they may not want to be as candid with the lawyer as they would be if separately represented [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

- No Disclosure if Instructed Not to Disclose : The clients agree that either could require the lawyer not to disclose confidential or secret information to the other. However, the clients should be informed that this could result in a situation when one client may not learn information that client might want or need to know.

Both alternatives offer the possibility that the lawyer cannot adequately represent the clients if they interfere with the free flow of significant information between lawyer and client [see City & County of S. F. v. Superior Court (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 227, 235, 231 P.2d 26 ("adequate legal representation in the ascertainment and enforcement of rights or the prosecution or defense of litigation compels a full disclosure of the facts by the client to his attorney. Unless he makes known to the lawyer all the facts, the advice that follows will be useless, if not misleading.")]. When that occurs, neither alternative is acceptable [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

In those situations, the lawyer might consider advising the clients that the lawyer will have to withdraw in the event that the lawyer receives confidences or secrets about one client that the lawyer would have a duty to disclose but that the lawyer cannot disclose to the other client. However, this approach is not likely to work well. By withdrawing, the lawyer will likely highlight the existence of the very information one of the clients is trying to keep secret. This approach also presents the same risks with respect to lack of candor that the two approaches described above present.

PRACTICE TIP:

Advice of Independent Counsel. Although not required by Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310, consider advising the clients to seek the advice of independent counsel before consenting to the joint representation if it is likely that one or both clients have confidences or secrets that could affect the joint representation.

[b] Conflicting Instructions

Clients with conflicting interests or objectives may engage a lawyer for a common purpose without an actual conflict arising. For example, several property owners may hire a lawyer to obtain a land use entitlement from a city or county, like a zone change. They may have conflicting reasons for seeking the entitlement, yet they are united for a common purpose. In this situation only a potential conflict exists.

An actual conflict arises when the lawyer receives conflicting instructions. For example one client instructs the lawyer to do something that another instructs the lawyer not to do. The lawyer is placed in a situation in which he or she cannot fulfill the duty to follow one client's instruction without concurrently violating that duty to the other. In that situation, the lawyer would be required to withdraw [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-700(B)(2)]. The potential for this to occur should be disclosed to the clients [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

For the lawyer to continue representing the clients, the clients must resolve their conflict and decide on a common instruction that the lawyer can follow [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)]. While Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)(2) requires informed written consent when an actual conflict arises, it is not clear that the consent is required when the clients resolve the conflict among themselves without the lawyer's involvement, although written consent is required for the potential conflict under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)(1).

PRACTICE TIP:

Written Confirmation of Conflict Resolution. Whether required by the rule or not, it is nevertheless prudent to confirm the resolution of the conflict with the clients in writing.

[c] Conflicting Claims or Objectives

[i] In General

Representing opposing sides in a lawsuit is a conflict that cannot be waived [see Klemm v. Superior Court (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 893, 898, 142 Cal. Rptr. 509 , and discussion in § 72.71[2]]. Even without a lawsuit, when a lawyer owes a duty of loyalty to two clients, it is impossible for him or her to advise either one about a disputed claim between them [Tsakos Shipping & Trading, S.A. v. Juniper Garden Town Homes, Ltd. (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 74, 95-96, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 585] . A lawyer cannot possibly exercise independent judgment on behalf of both and will inevitably face conflicting instructions [see Tsakos Shipping & Trading, S.A. v. Juniper Garden Town Homes, Ltd. (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 74, 96, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 585 (an attorney representing clients with conflicting interests may be tempted to favor the interests of one over the other)].

If the clients are asserting conflicting claims or are pursuing incompatible objectives at the outset of the engagement, the lawyer has an actual conflict requiring disclosure and consent under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)(2). If only the potential for a conflict exists, disclosure and consent are required under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)(1). In either case, certain factors should be considered in providing disclosure to the client, as discussed below.

[ii] Disclosure of Potential That Lawyer Must Withdraw

If an actual conflict arises and the clients do not consent to the lawyer's continued representation, the lawyer may be required to withdraw [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-700(B)]. The clients should be advised of this potential at the outset of the engagement [see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)]. The withdrawal of counsel can have severe consequences to the clients, particularly when the engagement is in an advanced stage and considerable time and money have been spent. Such consequences include the cost of retaining new counsel who may not be as familiar with the case as the withdrawing lawyer and who may not have as much time as the withdrawing lawyer had to become familiar with the case. The clients should be advised of the possible consequences and the need on their part to avoid putting the lawyer in a conflict situation if they want to continue being jointly represented [see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

[iii] Representing Both Clients for Common Purpose

Clients who are asserting claims against each other or who have conflicting interests may nevertheless want to hire a lawyer to pursue a common objective that involves facts relating to each client's claim. For example, a lawyer may be hired to pursue a claim against an insurer for coverage of the clients' loss. While the clients may be asserting claims against each other in connection with the loss, if informed consent is given, the lawyer may be able to represent the common interests of both clients against the insurer [see, e.g. LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

To reduce the risk of an actual conflict arising, advice about the clients' claims against each other should be excluded from the engagement in potential conflict situations. The clients should be advised not to consult the lawyer about possible claims against each other, and, in turn, the lawyer should refrain from giving such advice. In actual conflict situations, because the lawyer may not simultaneously pursue each client's claim against the other, the lawyer should also consider refraining from advising both sides about their claims [see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Advice of Independent Counsel. Although not required by Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310, in either situation a lawyer should consider recommending that the clients seek independent advice to protect their interests [see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

May the clients consent to the lawyer advising one of the clients about its claims and not the other? In certain circumstances the answer may be "yes" [see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)]. While providing advice is likely to produce an actual conflict, the arrangement does not have the problems inherent in advising both sides. However, the client who is not being advised must be informed about whether the lawyer can exercise independent judgment on behalf of that client in connection with the common engagement in light of the advice being given to the other client [see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)]. For example, the client not being advised should be informed about the likelihood that the lawyer would pursue a result in the common engagement that would be more favorable to the other client's claim in light of the fact that the lawyer is advising the other client about its claim [see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

The lawyer may want to suggest that the client the lawyer is not advising engage separate counsel. Care should also be taken to make clear whether the advice being given to the one client about its claims may be disclosed to the other [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

[iv] Agreement to Toll Statute of Limitations

If the clients have decided not to pursue their respective claims presently, an agreement tolling the applicable statutes of limitation may be in order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 360.5, discussed in Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions]. The advantage of this approach is that the clients will not be compelled to pursue their claims to avoid the running of the statute of limitations. It also helps avoid situations in which the lawyer may have a duty to advise the clients in the course of the engagement about the running of the statutes.

A possible problem is that it may not be to the clients' mutual advantage to toll the statute (for example in situations in which one client's statute has already run or is about to run). As a result, the lawyer should advise both clients to seek the advice of independent counsel. If the clients do not want to consult independent counsel, the lawyer should consider suggesting that it may not be to each client's advantage to toll the statutes, while at the same time informing the clients that the lawyer is not in a position to give substantive advice about the claims.

PRACTICE TIP:

Written Confirmation. It is advisable to confirm in writing the clients' decision not to consult separate counsel as well as the advice above.

[v] Continuing to Represent One Client in Event of Withdrawal

In some instances an existing client may want the lawyer to represent it and someone else jointly. However, the existing client may want the lawyer to continue representing it in the event that an actual conflict requires the lawyer to withdraw from representing both clients jointly.

For example, an employer client asks the lawyer to represent it and an employee as defendants in a lawsuit. However, the employer also wants the lawyer to continue representing it in the event that an actual conflict arises. An actual conflict would arise if the lawyer receives conflicting instructions from the employer and employee or if the employer wants to assert a claim against the employee. May the lawyer obtain the employee's informed consent to such an arrangement? Such agreements are not per se invalid provided that the lawyer can represent both clients competent1y [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992); see also Maxwell v. Superior Court (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 606, 612-615, 180 Cal. Rptr. 177, 639 P.2d 248 , overruled in part, 45 Cal. 4th 390 (2009) ; Cornish v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 467, 474-479, 257 Cal. Rptr. 383 ; State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1989-115 (waiver of client's right to disqualify counsel if any actual conflict arises)]. Much depends on the facts at the time the actual conflict arises, and whether the client's consent was truly informed in the sense that the client understands the significance of the risks involved with the arrangement [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

For detailed discussion of procedures for withdrawal, see § 72.370 et seq.

[vi] Required Disclosures for Agreement Regarding Future Withdrawal

LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992) provides a detailed analysis of the disclosure required for this kind of agreement. A lawyer considering entering into such an agreement with a client should thoroughly review Formal Opinion 471 before doing so. In general, the disclosure should cover five areas:

- The potential conflicts and the possibility of withdrawal if a conflict actually arises.
- The handling and use of confidential information during and after the representation.
- Issues affecting loyalty and independent judgment.
- The effect of the lawyer's withdrawal.
- The handling of advice to the clients about their possible conflicting claims.

When the clients are an employer and employee, the disclosure should include a discussion of the employee's right to separate counsel under the Labor Code. The disclosure should also include what rights the employer may have against the employee for contribution or reimbursement of defense costs [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992); see, e.g., Corp. Code § 317 (limiting corporation's authority to indemnify employee, and allowing corporate employer to advance employee's defense costs on receipt of employee's undertaking to repay corporation if it is determined employee is not entitled to indemnification)].

As detailed in Formal Opinion No. 471, the disclosure of potential conflicts requires the lawyer to discuss the possibility that one of the clients (for example, the employer) may assert a claim against the other (the employee), the circumstances under which that may occur, and what would happen in that event. The disclosure should also cover the possibility that the law firm may be required to withdraw if it receives conflicting instructions from the clients.

The use of confidential and secret information against the now-former client (the employee) is also an important issue. The employee must be advised at the outset of the representation that information obtained by the lawyer while representing the employee may be used against him or her for any purpose in the course of the lawyer's continuing representation of the employer [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992); see State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1989-115]. If the employer and employee have already agreed to the unrestricted disclosure of each party's confidences and secrets, it is possible that the employee has taken no greater risk regarding the use of confidences and secrets by agreeing to allow the lawyer to continue to represent the employer than he or she took by agreeing to free disclosure in the first place. The possible chilling effect on the employee's willingness to be candid with the lawyer [see § 72.132[2][a]] should be disclosed to the clients.

The arrangement also creates a possible situation in which the lawyer in whom the employee has reposed trust and confidence suddenly becomes an adversary. The employee should be made aware of this possibility. In addition, the employee should be made aware that in the event the lawyer withdraws from representing the employee, the employee will likely need to retain his or her own counsel who probably will not be as familiar with facts as the withdrawing lawyer, which could adversely affect his or her case as well [see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

The fact that the employer has requested the arrangement may also be a factor in the employee's assessment of the lawyer's potential loyalty to him or her.

PRACTICE TIP:

Advice of Independent Counsel. Although not required by Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310, consider advising the employee to consult with independent counsel, particularly if the employee lacks the sophistication to understand the potential consequences [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

If the employer is paying for the employee's defense in the lawsuit, the employee's consent must also be obtained under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(F) [see § 72.135].

[vii] Disqualification by Court Despite Agreement

The employer should be advised that even if all of these measures are taken, there is a risk that the lawyer may still be precluded from continuing to represent the employer by a court or in the event that an issue arises that was not within the scope of the employee's consent. In a litigated matter, the court retains the right to disqualify counsel despite the agreement if enforcing the agreement would seriously compromise the integrity of the judicial process or fairness in a particular proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 128(a)(5); Forrest v. Baeza (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 65, 73-76, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 857 ; Elliott v. McFarland Unified School Dist. (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 562, 567, 211 Cal. Rptr. 802 ; see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992); State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1989-115].

To effectively implement this arrangement, the lawyer should be alert for the earliest signs of the need to withdraw, and then withdraw from representing the employee as early as possible in order to reduce the possible prejudice to both clients [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-700].

[d] Disposition of File

With limited exceptions, a lawyer's file in the representation of a client belongs to the client. During or at the conclusion of the representation, a client may request custody of the file. A lawyer is obligated to honor that request [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1994-134]. For discussion of the duty to return a client's file and other property, see § 72.370 et seq.

The obvious problem in a joint representation is that a lawyer cannot honor demands to deliver the original file to all of the clients. This may become a particularly thorny problem if the lawyer withdraws from the representation and the clients each retain separate counsel.

To address this concern, the lawyer should establish who receives the original file at the outset of the representation. One option is for the clients to agree that the lawyer retains the original file until the lawyer receives a common set of instructions from all of the clients to deliver the file to someone else. The clients should be entitled to receive a copy of the file and must be afforded the ability to inspect the original file in the lawyer's possession as needed. A lawyer cannot withhold the copy until the copying charge is paid [see State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1994-134]. A second option is for the clients to agree that one of them will have the right to retain the original file and will afford the others access as necessary. Here again the other clients should receive a copy of the file if they so request or as necessary to avoid prejudice to their interests.

In either case, the lawyer should advise the clients of each client's right to the file and the conflict that will arise if they each make a demand for the original file.

[3] Managing Conflicts Under Rule 3-310(C)(3)

Read literally, Rule 3-310(C)(3) requires informed written consent when a lawyer accepts as a client a party who is adverse to a client represented by the lawyer in another matter. However, the rule may also apply whenever a lawyer is representing one client against another client [see § 72.111[4]].

ILLUSTRATION:

Informed Consent Under Rule 3-310(C)(3). A lawyer represents client A in connection with A's pursuit of a property tax refund on certain real property. The lawyer also represents client B, a car dealership, on unrelated matters. B asks the lawyer to sue A for payment for repair of A's car. If the lawyer or the firm has confidential information about client A that is material to the prosecution of client B's claim, A's informed written consent under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E) is required [see §§ 72.113 and 72.135]. Whether the lawyer has such information or not, A should be advised in writing not to discuss the matter with the lawyer or seek advice from the lawyer about the claim. Indeed, if A is represented by counsel in the lawsuit, the lawyer has a duty under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 2-100 not to have such communications. If A is not represented by counsel, the lawyer may have to communicate with him about the claim. Care should be taken to make sure A understands the lawyer's separate roles as A's counsel in the tax refund matter and as B's lawyer in the lawsuit. Although Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C) does not require it, prudence suggests that A be advised to seek independent counsel before consenting to the lawyer's representation of B.

The issues concerning the lawyer's loyalty and exercise of independent judgment in this situation are similar to the issues in the conflict situations requiring disclosure under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B) [see § 72.131]. The basic concerns are:

- Whether the lawyer's relationship with A will adversely affect the lawyer's ability to adequately represent B in the lawsuit against A.

- Whether the lawyer's representation of B in the lawsuit against A will adversely affect the lawyer's representation of A in connection with the refund.

The disclosure to B should include a discussion of the lawyer's relationship with A. In explaining the effect of the relationship with A on the lawyer's independent judgment, the differing nature of the engagements may be a factor. If different lawyers in the same firm are handling the engagements, that fact along with the use of a screening procedure may help show that independent judgment can be exercised on behalf of both.

The disclosure to A should allow A to consider whether he or she would be comfortable having the lawyer in an adversarial position. Client A may find that he or she is less willing to be candid with the lawyer as a result of the adversarial relationship. The representation of B could also interfere with the sense of trust A reposes in the lawyer. All of these factors could interfere with the lawyer's ability to adequately represent A.

The differing nature of the engagements or the use of different lawyers in the same firm along with a screening procedure might reduce A's concerns [see § 72.113[6][c]]. For example, if the work performed for A is completely different from the issue the lawyer is handling for B, and the lawyer's contact with A is limited, A's concerns might be satisfied. The same might be true if a different lawyer in the firm is representing B and A is satisfied that an effective screen is in place.

In any event, after full disclosure A and B need to make their own determinations.

PRACTICE TIP:

Advice of Independent Counsel. Although not required by Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310, it may be appropriate to suggest that either or both parties consult independent counsel before making their decision.

§ 72.133 Disclosing and Managing Conflicts Under Rule 3-310(D)

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(D), requiring a lawyer to obtain written consent from clients prior to entering into an aggregate settlement, was adopted in 1989 [see § 72.112]. It has not been addressed by any court or California ethics opinion. In this vacuum, the following approaches are suggested:

- Disclosure of Settlement Terms : This duty already exists under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-500 and Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(m), as well as Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-510, which requires disclosure of written settlement offers. The disclosure might include each party's role in effecting the settlement.

- Disclosure of Merits of Clients' Respective Cases : Depending on the facts, the clients may need to understand the merits of their case. For example, if the clients are to pay equal amounts to settle a claim, it may be necessary for them to consider whether their potential liability is equal.

- Disclosure of Possible Non-Monetary Implications : The clients may need to know whether the settlement will affect their rights against others or the rights of others against them.

- Loyalty and Exercise of Independent Judgment : It may be necessary to readdress issues of loyalty and exercise of independent judgment that were part of the clients' original consent under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C).

- Advice of Independent Counsel : There may be situations in which the lawyer may not be able to adequately advise the clients about the settlement. For example, if the clients have claims against each other, the lawyer may not be in a position to advise them about how the settlement may affect those claims. In this situation, it may be necessary to suggest to the clients that they seek the advice of independent counsel.

§ 72.134 Disclosing and Managing Conflicts Under Rule 3-310(E)

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E) conflicts arise when a lawyer, while representing a current or former client, has obtained confidential information that is material to an engagement on behalf of another client. The rule requires informed written consent by the client to whom the information pertains [see § 72.113[1]].

Disclosure to the present or former client is a relatively straightforward proposition. The client should be informed about:

- The facts and circumstances about the lawyer's current employment (to the extent permitted by the lawyer's duty to maintain confidences and secrets).
- The confidential information the lawyer acquired that is material to the current employment.
- How the information could be used in the current employment.
- The potential adverse consequences to the client as a result of the information's use [see SDCBA Ethics Opinion No. 1984-2].

The writing can be several writings cobbled together to constitute a waiver [see, e.g., UMG Recordings, Inc. v. MySpace, Inc. (C.D. Cal. 2007) 526 F. Supp. 2d 1046, 1052].

When the information would be used against the client, it is doubtful in many instances that a client would give its consent when the adverse consequences have been disclosed. However, in situations in which the information was disclosed to a lawyer in the firm who is not involved in the current employment and who has not disclosed the information to others in the firm, the client might agree to a screening procedure that would assure that the information would not be used in the current engagement.

It is not a defense to a claim under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(E) that the attorney's actions were protected activity under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16, the anti-Strategic Lawsuit Against Public Participation (anti-SLAPP) statute [United States Fire Ins. Co. v. Sheppard, Mullin, Richter & Hampton (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 1617, 1625-1629, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 669].

6. Managing Rule 3-310 Conflicts

7-72 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 72.135

§ 72.135 Disclosing and Managing Conflicts Under Rule 3-310(F)

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(F) requires a client's informed written consent whenever someone other than the client is compensating the lawyer. It also requires that the lawyer not accept the compensation unless there is no interference with the attorney-client relationship or the lawyer's independent judgment and the client's confidences and secrets are maintained. The kind of disclosure to be given will depend on whether or not the person compensating the lawyer is also a client in the matter [see § 72.114[1]].

In situations in which the person compensating the lawyer is not a client in the matter, disclosure to the client involves informing the client of the manner of compensation and a discussion of whether the lawyer's loyalty and independent judgment would be affected by that manner of compensation. In situations in which the party compensating the lawyer is an indemnitor, that party may be substantially affected by a resolution of the matter. As a result, in many instances the disclosure should be the same as disclosure under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(3) [see § 72.131[4]].

Although it is not specifically required under the rule, it may be prudent to confirm the requirements of Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(F) in writing to the party compensating the lawyer and obtain the party's agreement to those terms. The lawyer should confirm that the party may not interfere with the representation or the lawyer's judgment and that the lawyer may not disclose to that party communications with the client or information that constitutes a client secret.

In situations in which the person compensating the lawyer is jointly represented with the nonpaying client in the matter, disclosure and consent of both clients will likely be required under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(C) [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992); see § 72.132]. The only additional requirement imposed under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(F) is disclosure of the manner of compensation to the nonpaying client, and a discussion of whether the lawyer's independent judgment would be affected as a result of that manner of compensation [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

7. Rule 3-320 Conflicts: Relationship With Other Party's Lawyer

7-72 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 72.150

§ 72.150 Duty to Avoid Representation if Close Relationship With Other Party's Lawyer

[1] Overview of Rule 3-320

Unless the member informs the client in writing of the relationship, a State Bar member must not represent a client in a matter in which another party's lawyer is one of the following [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-320]:

- A spouse, parent, child, or sibling of the member.
- A person living with the member.
- A client of the member.
- A person having an intimate personal relationship with the member.

Rule 3-320 was first adopted in 1989. It has no direct predecessor in the Rules of Professional Conduct in effect before 1989. However, one court interpreted former Rule 5-102(A) to have a similar effect on a lawyer's relationship with opposing counsel [Stanley v. Richmond (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 1070, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 768] . In Stanley, the court considered a situation which occurred prior to Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 2-100, and gave former Rule 5-102(A) a similar effect. The client's lawyer in an ongoing family law matter, and the opposing counsel in that same matter, decided to open a law office together. It was held that this decision gave the lawyer a relationship with the adverse party, which "flowed through" opposing counsel, under former Rule 5-102(A). The court found that the lawyer did not adequately disclose the situation and the possible conflict to the client [Stanley v. Richmond (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 1070, 1083-1084, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 768] .

[2] When Other Party's Lawyer Is Client

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-320 applies when the other party's lawyer is a client of the member. The rule certainly applies when the member represents the other party's lawyer in another lawsuit or transaction. The rule and its Discussion are silent, however, about whether consent is required when the member represents the law firm representing the other party. Given the specific reference to another party's "lawyer" and the limitation in the Discussion [see § 72.150[3]], apparently the rule would not apply unless the other party's lawyer is involved in the member's representation of the firm.

One ethics committee has concluded that the rule does not apply when the member is retained by the other party's lawyer as an expert witness in another matter [SDCBA Ethics Opinion No. 1989-4]. Such a relationship, however, may give the lawyer an interest in the representation that would require disclosure.

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-320 as written does not apply when the member is a client of the other party's lawyer. Nevertheless, disclosure of the relationship may still be required if it is a significant development in the representation under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-500 and Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(m).

[3] Intimate Personal or Family Relationship

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-320 does not define the term "intimate personal relationship." It apparently includes both sexual and social relationships. People v. Jackson (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 829, 213 Cal. Rptr. 521 , arose in the criminal context, but still may provide some guidance in this area. In that case a conviction was reversed because the counsel appointed to represent a criminal defendant was involved in a sustained "dating" relationship with the prosecutor during the criminal proceedings and the defendant was not informed of this relationship. The sustained "dating" relationship consisted of meetings on a "regular basis" for movies and dinner dates. The two were never engaged to each other nor did they ever live together [see People v. Jackson (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 829, 831-834, 213 Cal. Rptr. 521] . Given the court's rationale and the underlying purpose of the rule, it is likely that a relationship like the one in People v. Jackson is within the scope of Rule 3-320.

Rule 3-320 is not intended to apply when the member has a relationship with a lawyer who is a partner or associate in the same law firm as the adverse party's counsel, and has no direct involvement in the matter [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-320, Discussion; see also State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1984-83 (when one spouse, district attorney, is not representing State against client of other spouse, public defender, no disclosure or consent is required); SDCBA Ethics Opinion No. 1976-12 (husband and wife not practicing together)].

[4] Written Disclosure to Client

Unlike Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rules 3-300 and 3-310, which require written consent, Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-320 only requires the attorney to inform the client in writing of the relationship. Consent is not required.

While Rule 3-320 speaks of informing the client of the "relationship," the attorney should also inform the client of how the relationship could adversely affect the representation, including the effect on the lawyer's ability to exercise independent judgment on the client's behalf [SDCBA Ethics Opinion No. 1976-12]. It is advisable to include the substance of this disclosure in the writing disclosing the relationship. If the relationship has a significant effect on the representation, disclosure of that effect may be required under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-500 and Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(m). As with other conflicts of interest, the lawyer may not represent the client if the relationship with the other party's lawyer would interfere with the competent representation of the client [SDCBA Ethics Opinion No. 1976-12].

7-72 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 72.170

§ 72.170 Potential Breach of Ethical and Fiduciary Duties

Sexual relations with a client can put a lawyer in a position of violating a number of ethical duties, including [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1987-92]:

- Interference with the duty to practice competently [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-110].
- Conflicts resulting from an interest in the subject matter of the employment [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(4)].
- Interference with the lawyer's duty to maintain confidences and secrets [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e)].
- Interference with the client's ability to exercise judgment in connection with the representation.
- Interference with the lawyer's ability to exercise independent judgment.
- Undue influence.

Sexual relations with a client may also cause a lawyer to breach fiduciary duties to a client. In Barbara A. v. John G., the plaintiff suffered an ectopic pregnancy and was forced to undergo surgery that left her sterile. The plaintiff sued her former lawyer who impregnated her. The complaint alleged that the attorney-client relationship had produced a sense of trust in the plaintiff. The appellate court held that the scope of the lawyer's fiduciary duty to the plaintiff was not limited to actions involving financial claims, and included physical damage resulting from a violation of the duties [Barbara A. v. John G. (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 369, 383, 193 Cal. Rptr. 422] .

§ 72.171 Prohibition Under Ethical Rule

California's rule of professional conduct concerning sexual relations with a client became operative September 14, 1992. The rule is intended to prohibit sexual exploitation by a lawyer in the course of a professional representation [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-120, Discussion].

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-120 states that a State Bar member must not do any of the following [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-120(B)]:

- Require or demand sexual relations with a client incident to or as a condition of any professional representation.

- Employ coercion, intimidation, or undue influence in entering into sexual relations with a client.

- Continue representation of a client with whom the member has sexual relations if the sexual relations cause the member to perform legal services incompetently in violation of Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-110.

For purposes of Rule 3-120, "sexual relations" means sexual intercourse or the touching of an intimate part of another person for the purpose of sexual arousal, gratification, or abuse [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-120(A)].

Rule 3-120 does not apply to [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-120(C)]:

- Sexual relations between attorneys and their spouses.

- Ongoing consensual sexual relationships that predate the initiation of the attorney-client relationship.

Although Rule 3-120 does not apply to these types of clients, their exclusion does not preclude the applicability of other disciplinary rules to the representations, such as the lawyer's duty to practice competently under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-110 [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-120, Discussion].

If a lawyer in a firm has sexual relations with a client but does not participate in the representation of that client, the lawyers in the firm are not subject to discipline under Rule 3-120 solely because of that sexual relationship [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-120(D)].

For purposes of Rule 3-120, if the client is an organization, any individual overseeing the representation is be deemed to be the client [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-120, Discussion].

7-72 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 72.172

§ 72.172 Statutory Prohibition

In 1992, the California Legislature added Bus. & Prof. Code § 6106.9 to the State Bar Act. Section 6106.9 provides that the following conduct constitutes cause for attorney discipline under the Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6106.9(a)]:

- Expressly or impliedly conditioning the performance of legal services for a current or prospective client on the client's willingness to engage in sexual relations with the attorney.

- Employing coercion, intimidation, or undue influence in entering into sexual relations with a client.

- Continuing representation of a client with whom the attorney has sexual relations if either of the following is true:

  - The sexual relations cause the attorney to perform legal services incompetently in violation of Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-110.

  - The sexual relations would, or would be likely to, damage or prejudice the client's case.

Any complaint made to the State Bar alleging a violation of the statute must be verified under oath by the person making the complaint [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6106.9(e)].

For purposes of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6106.9, "sexual relations" means sexual intercourse or the touching of an intimate part of another person for the purpose of sexual arousal, gratification, or abuse [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6106.9(d)].

Section 6106.9 does not apply to [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6106.9(b)]:

- Sexual relations between attorneys and their spouses or persons in an equivalent domestic relationship.

- Ongoing consensual sexual relationships that predate the initiation of the attorney-client relationship.

If a lawyer in a firm has sexual relations with a client but does not participate in the representation of that client, the lawyers in the firm are not subject to discipline under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6106.9 solely because of the occurrence of the sexual relations [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6106.9(c)].

Bus. & Prof. Code § 6106.9, to a great extent, tracks the language of Rule 3-120 [compare Bus. & Prof. Code § 6106.9 with Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-120]. The key differences are:

- Section 6106.9 requires a complaining party to lodge a verified complaint [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6106.9(e)].

- Section 6106.9 explicitly covers relationships with "prospective" clients, while Rule 3-120 does not [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6106.9(a)(1); Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-120(A)(1)].

- Section 6106.9 provides an explicit exception for relationships with nonspousal domestic partners, not found in Rule 3-120 [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6106.9(b); Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-120(C)].

An attorney may be subject to discipline, including disbarment or suspension, for violating Rule 3-120, Section 6106.9, or both [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6106.9(a); Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-100 (willful breach of rule of professional conduct is cause for attorney discipline); see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 6103 (any violation of attorney's duties constitutes cause for disbarment or suspension)].

C. Creation And Scope Of Attorney-Client Relationship
1. Drafting The Representation Agreement And Fee Arrangements

7-72 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 72.190

§ 72.190 Creation of Attorney-Client Relationship

[1] By Contract

With the exception of a court appointment, the relationship of attorney and client generally is created by contract [Neel v. Magana, Olney, Levy, Cathcart & Gelfand (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 176, 181, 98 Cal. Rptr. 837, 491 P.2d 421 ; Kim v. Orellana (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 1024, 1028, 193 Cal. Rptr. 827 ; but see § 72.190[2]]. The contract may be express or implied, and the general rules of agency apply [Houston Gen. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 958, 964, 166 Cal. Rptr. 904 ; see also Strasbourger Pearson Tulcin Wolff Inc. v. Wiz Technology, Inc. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1399, 1404, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 326 ; American Mut. Liab. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 579, 590-591, 113 Cal. Rptr. 561 ; Fidelity & Casualty Co. v. Abraham (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 776, 783, 161 P.2d 689 and discussion in § 72.220)].

Under agency law, it is sufficient for the creation of an agency relationship that the conduct of the alleged principal (the client) and agent (attorney) manifests acceptance of a relationship in which the agent acts for the principal [see Malloy v. Fong (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 356, 372, 232 P.2d 241 ; see also Civ. Code § 1550 (consent as essential element of contract)]. Although the existence of a contract is generally a question of law [see Houston Gen. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 958, 964, 166 Cal. Rptr. 904] , whether or not the facts that would create an attorney-client relationship have been established is an issue of fact [see Miller v. Metzinger (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 31, 39, 154 Cal. Rptr. 22] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Clarifying Your Obligation to Perform Services. Consider adding a clause in your written fee agreement that makes it clear to the prospective client that unless and until the client executes the fee agreement no obligation is undertaken to proceed or render services to the client. It is important to make clear to the client that you have not agreed to perform services until you are formally retained. By Joel M. Simon.

[2] By Other Methods

In the typical case an attorney enters into a contract or retainer agreement with a client to perform services for a specific purpose. However, neither a retainer nor other formal agreement is required to establish the attorney-client relationship [Farnham v. State Bar (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 605, 612, 131 Cal. Rptr. 661, 552 P.2d 445 ; Kane, Kane & Kritzer, Inc. v. Altagen (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 36, 40, 165 Cal. Rptr. 534 ; Brandlin v. Belcher (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 997, 1001, 134 Cal. Rptr. 1 ; see also Strasbourger Pearson Tulcin Wolff Inc. v. Wiz Technology (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1399, 1404, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 326 (in determining whether attorney-client relationship has been created, courts should consider whether totality of circumstances, including parties' conduct, implies agreement by attorney not to accept other representations adverse to putative client's personal interests); Fox v. Pollack (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 954, 959, 226 Cal. Rptr. 532 (although formation of attorney-client relationship may be informal, relationship does not exist merely because party believes that attorney is representing his or her interests)].

For example, an attorney-client relationship may be established when:

- An attorney volunteers his or her services [see Miller v. Metzinger (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 31, 39, 154 Cal. Rptr. 22] .

- An attorney is appointed by the court to represent a given client [see Houston Gen. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 958, 964, 166 Cal. Rptr. 904] .

- An attorney makes a single, special appearance for a litigant [see Streit v. Covington & Crowe (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 441, 447, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 193 ; see also State Bar Formal Opinion No. 2004-165 (outside contract attorney must comply with ethical rules)].

- An attorney agrees to investigate a case or provides legal advice to a prospective client, even if there is no fee arrangement [Beery v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 802, 811-812, 239 Cal. Rptr. 121, 739 P.2d 1289 ; Miller v. Metzinger (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 31, 39, 154 Cal. Rptr. 22 (fact that attorney had agreed only to investigate plaintiff's wrongful death claim and did not charge fee for his services did not suffice to eliminate existence of attorney-client relationship as a matter of law); see also § 72.50].

The attorney-client relationship can also arise from a pattern of custom and practice between the attorney and client [see Kane, Kane & Kritzer, Inc. v. Altagen (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 36, 40-42, 165 Cal. Rptr. 534 (longstanding relationship between attorney and client, during which pattern of handling collection cases evolved, sufficient to establish limited employment undertaken by attorney with regard to specific collection matter)].

If an attorney serves a single client both as an attorney and as one who renders nonlegal services, he or she must conform to the Rules of Professional Conduct in the provision of all services [Kelly v. State Bar (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 509, 517, 280 Cal. Rptr. 298, 808 P.2d 808 ; see Layton v. State Bar (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 889, 904, 268 Cal. Rptr. 845, 789 P.2d 1026 (attorney who was both executor and attorney for estate may be disciplined for misconduct in capacity as executor)].

[3] Prohibited Discrimination When Accepting Client

An attorney shall not unlawfully discriminate or knowingly permit unlawful discrimination when accepting representation of a client on the basis of race, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, religion, age or disability [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 2-400(B)]. There is no basis for disciplinary action under this rule absent a finding of civil unlawfulness under applicable state or federal law [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 2-400(B), Discussion].

[4] Limitation to Specific Matter

[a] Limited Scope Representation

When the attorney-client relationship is limited to a specific matter, the attorney's duty to represent the client extends only to that matter [see Sullivan v. Dunne (1926) 198 Cal. 183, 190, 244 P. 343 (representation of incompetent client in one action as not constituting authorization for representation in unrelated action)].

Effective January 1, 2007, the Judicial Council established "limited scope representation" [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.35]. "Limited scope representation" is a relationship between an attorney and a person seeking legal services in which they have agreed that the scope of the legal services will be limited to specific tasks that the attorney will perform for the person [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.35(a)].

The rules recognize two types of limited scope representation: noticed representation in which the attorney and party notify the court and the other parties of the limited scope representation [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.36] and undisclosed representation, in which the limited scope representation is not disclosed [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.37].

PRACTICE TIP:

Delineate Scope of Representation. In an initial consultation, before any formal representation agreement, counsel should make clear the limited scope of the attorney-client relationship at this stage, explaining the limited nature of his or her advice or comments, e.g., that counsel has not conducted an independent investigation, reviewed pertinent documents, or carefully researched the applicable law, and that the comments are preliminary and subject to modification based on information the attorney may not yet have. Even when there is a more formal attorney-client relationship, counsel should always carefully delineate the nature and scope of his or her representation, with as much detail as possible, to avoid later misunderstandings with the client regarding the representation.

[b] Notice of Limited Scope Representation

A party and an attorney may provide notice of their agreement to limited scope representation by serving and filing a Notice of Limited Scope Representation (Judicial Council form MC-950) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.36(a)]. After the notice is received and until either a substitution of attorney or an order to be relieved as attorney is filed and served, papers in the case must be served on both the attorney providing the limited scope representation and the client.

For an illustrative version of Judicial Council Form Notice of Limited Scope Representation--MC-950, see § 72.770.

[c] Nondisclosure of Attorney Assistance in Preparation of Court Documents

An attorney who contracts with a client to draft or assist in drafting legal documents, but not to make an appearance in the case, is not required to disclose within the text of the documents that he or she was involved in preparing the documents [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.37(a)]. If a litigant seeks a court order for attorney's fees incurred as a result of document preparation, the litigant must disclose to the court information required for a proper determination of the attorney's fees, including [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.37(b)]:

- The name of the attorney who assisted in preparing the documents.
- The time involved or other basis for billing.
- The tasks performed.
- The amount billed.

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.37 does not apply to an attorney who has made a general appearance in a case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.37(c)].

[5] Representation of Member Organizations

An attorney who is handling a labor grievance on behalf of a union has not entered into an "attorney-client" relationship in the ordinary sense with the particular union member who is asserting the underlying grievance. In such a case, although the attorney may have certain ethical obligations to the member, his or her principal client is the union [Peterson v. Kennedy (9th Cir. 1985) 771 F.2d 1244, 1258-1259 ; see also Aragon v. Pappy, Kaplon, Vogel & Phillips (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 451, 463-464, 262 Cal.Rptr. 646 (retained counsel functioning as union agent in collective bargaining process held to be immune from malpractice suit by individual labor union member)]. This same principle would apply to an attorney's obligations to a corporate employee when his or her principal client is the corporation.

C. Creation And Scope Of Attorney-Client Relationship
1. Drafting The Representation Agreement And Fee Arrangements

7-72 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 72.191

§ 72.191 Agreement to Matters Other Than Fees

A lawyer and client may agree at the outset of the relationship or during its course about the allocation of payment of sanctions resulting from civil discovery disputes sought against them by the opposing party. Such an agreement may be unethical, however, if the agreement requires the client to pay sanctions ordered as a result of the lawyer's misconduct or which the court intends the lawyer to bear alone. Enforcement of the agreement under these circumstances could violate the lawyer's ethical duties arising from the fiduciary relationship with the client and could also constitute contempt of court of ignoring the court's order as to against whom the court imposed the sanctions [State Bar Formal Opinion 1997-151; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6103 (wilful disobedience of court order requiring attorney to do or forebear from act in connection with profession constitutes cause for disbarment or suspension)]. The client may also not be able to give fully informed consent to future sanctions when their nature and amount are unknown at the time of the original agreement. However, the lawyer may be able to include sufficient disclosure to cover the most likely instances in which civil discovery sanctions will arise and the procedures or methods for allocating payment responsibility to which the lawyer and client agree in advance. As an alternative, the lawyer and client could include a provision in the retainer agreement or a later agreement in which they agree that if sanctions are awarded against both of them during the course of the representation, they will defer resolution of a dispute regarding responsibility for the sanctions until termination of the litigation, at which time they will submit their dispute to, for example, mediation or arbitration [State Bar Formal Opinion 1997-151].

Chapter 72 ATTORNEY PRACTICE AND ETHICS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Creation And Scope Of Attorney-Client Relationship
1. Drafting The Representation Agreement And Fee Arrangements

7-72 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 72.192

§ 72.192 Overview of Contractual Fee Arrangements

[1] Fee Agreement Desirable and Often Mandatory

The fee agreement is in most situations required by statute to be in writing [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6147, 6147.5, 6148; see also further discussion under § 72.192[4]].

Even when a written agreement is not required, a clear understanding between the attorney and client about the fee arrangement will foster a good professional relationship and prevent later misunderstandings. Failure to reach a clear understanding about the fee arrangement is a major cause of disputes between clients and attorneys [see Steele & Nimmer, Lawyers, Clients, and Professional Regulation, Am. B. Found. Res. J. 917, 952-954 (1976)]. To prevent such misunderstandings, the attorney should clearly explain his or her fee policies to the client as soon as possible after the formation of the professional relationship, as well as the reasons for the proposed fee arrangement [see Model Code of Professional Responsibility EC 2-19 (1980); see also §§ 72.670 -72.676].

An attorney has a professional responsibility to make sure the client understands the billing procedures and rates. This responsibility logically precludes any changes in agreed-on rates without notification [Severson & Werson v. Bolinger (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1569, 1573, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 531] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Written Agreement Preferred. Even when the agreement is not legally required to be in writing, a written explanation of the fee arrangement is preferred [Model Rules of Professional Conduct, Rule 1.5(b) (1994)]. At a minimum, the attorney should provide a written explanation concerning whether the rate is on an hourly, fixed, or estimated basis, or will be based on other factors. Furnishing the client with a memorandum about the attorney's fee policies or a copy of the attorney's customary fee schedules stating the basis or rate of his or fee charges is one way of accomplishing this [Model Rules of Professional Conduct, Rule 1.5 cmt. (1994)]. When developments occur that make an earlier estimate inaccurate, the client should be provided with a revised estimate [Model Rules of Professional Conduct, Rule 1.5, cmt. (1994)].

PRACTICE TIP: Clarify Fee Provisions. Be as detailed in possible in drafting and explaining fee provisions to the client. If appropriate, for example, clearly provide for and disclose annual rate changes, charges on delinquent payments, and the possibility of fees of additional personnel not specified in the original agreement.

[2] Format of Fee Agreement

In California, the mode and amount of compensation for attorneys, unless provided for by statute, is determined by the express or implied agreement of the client and attorney [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021]. The express contract can be:

- Formal, such as a detailed contract, [see Preston v. Herminghaus (1930) 211 Cal. 1, 5, 292 P. 953] .

- Informal, such as by letter [see Goldberg v. City of Santa Clara (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 857, 861, 98 Cal. Rptr. 862] or memorandum [see Model Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 1.5, cmt. (1994)].

PRACTICE TIP:
Choosing Format of Fee Agreement. Whether to use a letteror memorandum, a simple contract and an explanatory brochure, or a lengthy formal contract is largely a matter of personal preference for the attorney. Some attorneys use a letter agreement, accompanied by an explanatory brochure, because it allows the attorney-client relationship to begin in an informal and friendly way. A simple contract is more likely to be read and easily understood by the client than a lengthy formal contract. The client can refer to the explanatory brochure for more detailed information. Other attorneys like to use a formal contract because it is more traditional and lawyer-like and also perhaps more precise and less subject to dispute. Regardless of the form of written agreement used, the attorney must ensure that the agreement contains any information or other provisions required by law [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6147, 6148; see also § 72.192[4], and see §§ 72.670 -72.683].

[3] Implied Agreement

When an attorney is retained by a client without an express agreement about compensation, one part of the consideration for the contract is the client's implied promise to pay the reasonable value of the attorney's services [see Elconin v. Yalen (1929) 208 Cal. 546, 549, 282 P. 791 ; Trafton v. Youngblood (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 17, 26, 69 Cal. Rptr. 568, 442 P.2d 648] . The parties may also expressly agree that the attorney will be compensated for the reasonable value of his or her services [see Hannon v. Goucher (1931) 117 Cal. App. 455, 457, 4 P.2d 239] . For discussion of actions to recover the reasonable value of an attorney's services when no express fee is provided for, see § 72.451.

PRACTICE TIP:
Fees for Uncontemplated Services. When the attorney, after execution of the fee agreement, provides uncontemplated services that were not mentioned in the contract, the attorney risks not being compensated for the extra services. In some circumstances, it is advisable to indicate clearly in the contract what services are not included. If an uncontemplated matter arises, the contract can be amended to provide for compensation for the additional services.

[4] When Written Fee Agreement Is Mandatory

[a] Contingency Fee Agreements

A contract by which an attorney agrees to represent a client on a contingency fee basis is required by statute to be in writing and to contain certain information [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147]. This applies generally to all such contingency fee contracts except those for the recovery of workers' compensation benefits and those involving certain claims between merchants [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6147(c), 6147.5]. Failure to complywith the requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147 may entitle the client to avoid the agreement. For further discussion of requirements relating to contingency fee agreements, see discussion under § 72.196. For State Bar sample contingent fee agreements, see §§ 72.675 and 72.676.

[b] Non-Contingency Fee Agreements

[i] Contents

When a non-contingency case involves a matter in which it is reasonably foreseeable that the total fees and expenses will exceed $1,000, and the client is not a corporation, Bus. & Prof. Code § 6148 also generally requires a written agreement [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6148(a)]. Bus. & Prof. Code § 6148 prescribes the contents of these mandatory written agreements and lists situations in which such agreements are not required [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6148(a), (d)]. A fee agreement pursuant to the statute must contain the following:

- Any basis of compensation, including, but not limited to, hourly rates, statutory or flat fees, and other standard rates, fees, and charges applicable to the case [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6148(a)(1)].

- The general nature of the legal services to be provided [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6148(a)(2)].

- The respective responsibilities of the attorney and the client as to the performance of the contract [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6148(a)(3)].

- If the attorney does not meet any of the following criteria, a statement disclosing that fact [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6148(a)(4); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6148(f) (this disclosure requirement expires January 1, 1997, unless the legislature changes or deletes that date)]:

  - Maintains errors and omissions insurance coverage;

  - Has filed with the State Bar an executed copy of a written agreement guaranteeing payment of all claims established against the attorney by his or her clients for errors or omissions arising out of the practice of law by the attorney in the amount specified in State Bar Law Corp. Rules, Rule IV(B)(1)(c);

  - If a law corporation, has filed with the State Bar an executed copy of the written agreement required pursuant to State Bar Law Corp. Rules, Rule IV(B)(1)(a), (b), or (c).

For State Bar sample noncontingent fee agreements, see §§ 72.670 -72.674.

At the time the agreement is entered into, the attorney must provide a duplicate copy of the agreement, signed by both the attorney and the client (or the client's guardian or representative), to the client (or the client's guardian or representative) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6148(a)].

If the attorney does not comply with the requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6148, the fee agreement is voidable at the option of the client, and the attorney is then entitled to collect only a reasonable fee [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6148(c)].

[ii] Billing

All bills rendered by an attorney to a client must clearly state the basis thereof. Bills for the fee portion of the bill must include the amount, rate, basis for calculation, or other method of determination of the attorney's fees and costs. Bills for the costs and expense portion of the bill must clearly identify the costs and expenses incurred and the amount of the costs and expenses [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6148(b)].

On the client's request, the attorney must provide a bill to the client no later than 10 days following the request unless the attorney has provided a bill to the client within 31 days prior to the request, in which case the attorney may provide a bill to the client no later than 31 days following the date the most recent bill was provided. After this initial request, the client is entitled to make similar requests at intervals of no less than 30 days. In providing responses to client requests for billing information, the attorney may use billing data that is currently effective on the date of the request, or, if any fees or costs to that date cannot be accurately determined, they must be described and estimated [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6148(b)].

[5] Organization as Client

Cal Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-600(A) provides that in representing an organization the attorney must conform the representation to the concept that the client is the organization itself, acting through its highest authorized officer, employee, body or constituent overseeing the particular engagement.

PRACTICE TIP:

Delineation of Authorized Person. The fee arrangement should specify a single authorized person on behalf of the entity that the attorney is to take instructions in the event of conflicts between the principals with respect to the subject matter of the engagement. This will avoid the situation where the attorney may be given conflicting instructions with respect to the engagement. By Joel M. Simon.

[a] Exceptions to Written Fee Agreement Requirement

Under the following circumstances, Bus. & Prof. Code § 6148 does not apply:

- When the attorney must render services in an emergency to avoid foreseeable prejudice to the rights or interests of the client or when a writing is otherwise impractical [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6148(d)(1)].

- When the attorney's services are of the same general kind as previously rendered to and paid for by the client, thus implying an arrangement as to the fee [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6148(d)(2)].

- When the client knowingly states in writing, after full disclosure of his or her entitlement to a written agreement under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6148, that a writing concerning fees is not required [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6148(d)(3)].

- When the client is a corporation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6148(d)(4)].

[b] Fee Contract Is Confidential Communication

A written fee contract is deemed to be a confidential communication within the meaning of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) (relating to attorney's duty to preserve client confidences) and Evid. Code § 952 (relating to the attorney-client privilege) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6149]. For discussion of other law regarding the attorney's duty to preserve client confidences, see § 72.33.

[6] Types of Fees

The basis for computing an attorney's compensation can take a variety of forms. Two of the most common types of fees charged are fees based on payments at hourly rates and contingency fees, which provide for the attorney to receive a fee only if a certain contingency occurs, such as the client's recovery after trial or settlement of a lawsuit.

In addition to these two types of fee arrangements, some other common types of fee arrangements include:

- Retainer fee, or earned-on-receipt, agreements [see § 72.195[1]].

- Exploratory or diagnostic fee provisions, providing for a set fee to explore the potential cost of a fixed-fee transaction [see § 72.195[3]].

- Per diem fee provisions, based on a specified charge for certain tasks done by the attorney [see § 72.195[4]].

- Transaction or lump sum provisions, providing for payment for the performance of a complete transaction.

- Incentive fee provisions, to be paid in the event that the attorney achieves a certain result for which the parties agree that an extra fee should be paid.

[7] Construction of Fee Agreements

[a] Contract Construed in Favor of Client

The attorney's fee contract ordinarily is construed in favor of the client. The attorney has a duty to ensure that the contract is "clearly and definitely stated and understood" in its language, "spirit, legal consequences, andpractical results" [Reynolds v. Sorosis Fruit Company (1901) 133 Cal. 625, 630, 66 P. 21] .

An attorney should seek to minimize any ambiguities in the fee agreement and to review the agreement with the client to insure that the client fully understands its provisions. Insuring the client's understanding is particularly important on points that are ambiguous in the agreement or on points that involved substantial discussion and negotiation between the attorney and client. When the attorney seeks to enforce the contract, he or she must show that the client "fully understood" it [Reynolds v. Sorosis Fruit Company (1901) 133 Cal. 625, 630, 66 P. 21] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Construction of Fee Agreement Against Attorney. Attorneys representing a plaintiff in a wrongful death case include a clause in the fee contract providing the attorneys with a percentage of "any money recovered." The contract does not contemplate a monthly annuity for life. As part of the settlement of the wrongful death case, plaintiff receives an annuity to be paid monthly during her lifetime. Plaintiff's attorneys contend that they are entitled to receive a flat percentage of the present cash value of the annuity portion of the settlement. Should the contract be construed against the attorneys who drafted the agreement, so that the attorneys share in the monthly annuity payments as received by the client, rather than receiving the full amount of their fee at the time that the case is settled? Yes. Since the attorneys prepared the contract, and in light of the oppressive nature of the attorneys' interpretation of the clause at issue, and even if it can be argued that the contract is ambiguous, the court must resolve any uncertainties in favor of a fair and reasonable interpretation and against the inflexible construction urged by the attorneys [see Sayble v. Feinman (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 509, 514-515, 142 Cal. Rptr. 895] .

[b] Rule of "Reasonable Construction" Applicable

The rule requiring reasonable construction of a contract in light of all the circumstances when a term of the contract is ambiguous applies to attorney's fees contracts [see Setzer v. Moore (1927) 202 Cal. 333, 338, 260 P. 550] .

ILLUSTRATIONS:

Reasonable Construction of Fee Agreements. A client agrees to pay the remaining half of a fee either on the date the trial began or on the date the action was settled. The client dismisses the action without prejudice and refuses to pay the balance of the fee because the case has not been tried or settled. May the client avoid paying the balance of the fee? No. The word "settled" has no universal definition, and it is appropriate to construe the contract as requiring payment of the second installment when the case was terminated, either by trial or dismissal without trial [see Setzer v. Moore (1927) 202 Cal. 333, 339-340, 260 P. 550] .

A client retains an attorney to obtain a rezoning of some real property. Under the fee agreement, the attorney is to be paid $7,500 only if he is successful. The attorney succeeds in obtaining the rezoning. The client congratulates the attorney and pays him $5,000. The client promises several times to pay the balance, knowing at the time that attempts were being made to repeal the rezoning. (The client had originally insisted that the attorney perform within a time period that was not long enough to include the attorney's protection against a repeal of the rezoning.) The zoning ordinance is repealed. The client refuses to pay the balance, and demands return of the $5,000. Is the attorney entitled to recover the full $7,500? Yes. Applying the rule of reasonable construction, the attorney is entitled to recover since both parties had acted as if the objective of the agreement had been obtained [Crestview Cemetery Assn. v. Dieden (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 744, 751-752, 8 Cal. Rptr. 427, 356 P.2d 171] .

[c] Terms of Arrangement Must Be Reasonably Certain

An attorney's fee arrangement must be reasonably certain in order to be enforceable. In one case, the attorney by letter specified his hourly rate and an estimated fee range. He also indicated that he would expect additional compensation if his efforts resulted in a significant savings to the client. What would constitute a significant savings was not specified. The amount of the additional compensation was to be left to the client's judgment. The court distinguished between two kinds of uncertainty. Uncertainty about the amount of compensation was not fatal to the agreement because if one contracting party allows the other to determine the amount of compensation, and that party acts in bad faith by setting an unreasonable amount, the trier of fact may determine a reasonable amount. On the other hand, uncertainty about what would constitute a saving to the client sufficiently significant to require additional compensation is fatally uncertain because an objective standard is lacking for the amount of savings and for the time period for computation of the savings. The court stated that when a contract is too vague to permit a true meeting of the minds it cannot be upheld [Goldberg v. City of Santa Clara (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 857, 861-863, 98 Cal. Rptr. 862] .

[8] Spanish Translation of Fee Agreement

When an attorney negotiates a fee arrangement primarily in Spanish, he or she must furnish a Spanish translation of the contract before it is executed [see Civ. Code § 1632(b)(6)]. This requirement does not apply if the client negotiates the terms of the agreement through his or her own interpreter, as defined by statute [see Civ. Code § 1632(h)]. If the attorney does not comply with this requirement, the client may rescind the contract [see Civ. Code § 1632(k)].

[9] Court Approval of Agreement Required in Specific Cases

[a] Minors

A contract made by or on behalf of a minor for attorney's fees for services in litigation is void unless the contract is approved by the court in which the litigation is pending or by the court having jurisdiction of the guardianship estate of the minor [Fam. Code § 6602]. Judicial approval of the fee contract may be obtained by petition of any interested person [Fam. Code § 6602]. If no such contract is approved and a judgment is recovered by or on behalf of a minor, the attorney's fees chargeable against the minor are fixed by the court rendering the judgment [Fam. Code § 6602].

For discussion and forms, see Ch. 280, Guardianship and Conservatorship: Appointment of Guardians , through Ch. 290H, Guardianship and Conservatorship:Termination of Guardianships and Conservatorships .

[b] Contingency Fee Contract Involving Ward or Conservatee

When it is to the advantage, benefit, and best interest of a ward or conservatee (or that person's estate), the guardian or conservator of the estate may contract with an attorney for a contingency fee for the attorney's services in representing the ward, conservatee, or estate in connection with a matter that is of a type that is customarily the subject of a contingency fee contract [Prob. Code § 2644(a); see also discussion regarding contingency fee agreements generally in § 72.192[4][a], above , and § 72.196, below].

PRACTICE TIP:

Limitations on Contingency Fees For Representing Minors. Local court rules may limit the amount of fees that can be charged on a contingency basis for minors. For example, Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.187(e) provides in connection with a minor's compromises, that except for good cause, attorney's fees shall not exceed an amount equal to 25 percent of the gross proceeds of a settlement. By Joel M. Simon.

A contingency fee contract involving a ward or conservatee is valid only if one or both of the following is true [Prob. Code § 2644(a)]:

- The contract is made pursuant to a court order authorizing the guardian or conservator to execute the contract.

- The contract is approved by court order.

To obtain an order authorizing execution of such a contract or approving the contract, the guardian or conservator must file a petition showing the advantage, benefit, and best interest of the contingency fee contract to the ward, conservatee, or estate [Prob. Code § 2644(b)].

The petition must be filed with either the court in which the guardianship or conservatorship proceeding is pending, or if the contract is in connection with a matter in litigation, the court in which the litigation is pending [Prob. Code § 2644(b), (d)].

Notice of the hearing on the petition must be given for the period and in the manner provided for guardianship and conservatorship proceedings generally [Prob. Code § 2644(c); see Prob. Code § 1460 et seq. (rules relating to notice in guardianship and conservatorship proceedings)].

[c] Unemployment Insurance Appeal

Fee agreements in cases in which an attorney brings an appeal before the California Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board must be approved by the Board [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1957]. For discussion, see Ch. 564, Unemployment and Disability Insurance .

[10] Effect of Illegal Fee Contract

[a] Invalidity

As in the case of any contract, a fee contract in which the object or consideration is illegal and against public policy is void [see Civ. Code §§ 1596, 1598, 1607, 1667], and the attorney cannot collect his or her fee on the contract [see Kallen v. Delug (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 940, 949-951, 203 Cal. Rptr. 879 (fee-splitting agreement for which sole consideration was attorney's agreement to execute substitution and return client's files); Academy of California Optometrists, Inc. v. Superior Court (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 999, 1005-1006, 124 Cal. Rptr. 668 (retaining lien used only to extort disputed fee from client)].

Some cases recognize, however, that the existence of an illegal provision that is against public policy does not necessarily invalidate the entire contract nor affect the attorney's compensation for the reasonable value of services performed [see, e.g., Calvert v. Stoner (1948) 33 Cal. 2d 97, 104-105, 199 P.2d 297] . Some cases have allowed recovery of the reasonable value of services performed even when the entire contract is invalidated [see, e.g., Rosenberg v. Lawrence (1938) 10 Cal. 2d 590, 592-595, 75 P.2d 1082 (express contract that was invalid because of provision providing that portion of payment should be made to broker did not preclude recovery by attorneys for reasonable value of services)].

It can be argued that an attorney should not be able to recover in quasi-contract for attorney's fees when the contract is prohibited by statute or public policy. When a contract has an illegal objective or is in some other way contrary to public policy, such as a fee splitting contract with a nonattorney, one commentator believes that certain California cases are incorrect in allowing attorneys to recover the reasonable value of their services [Witkin, California Procedure, vol. 1, Attorneys, § 224, (4th ed. 1996); see, e.g., Theisen v. Keough (1931) 115 Cal. App. 353, 359, 1 P.2d 1015 (contract for contingent fee in divorce action is against public policy); Wiley v. Silsbee (1934) 1 Cal. App. 2d 520, 522, 36 P.2d 854 (same)]. The rationale for this position is that if an attorney can recover in quantum meruit on an illegal contract, the policy of the law is undermined and attorneys are not deterred from entering into illegal contracts [see Rosenberg v. Lawrence (1938) 10 Cal. 2d 590, 602, 75 P.2d 1082 (Houser, J., Seawell, J., and Curtis, J., dissenting)].

A California attorney is subject to discipline for entering into an agreement for charging or collecting an illegal fee [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-200(A)].

A fee is illegal if it is in violation of:

- A statute [see, e.g., Estate of Hastings (1952) 108 Cal. App. 2d 713, 716, 239 P.2d 684 (violation of former Prob. Code § 910 by charging of indefinite contingency fee rather than statutory fixed fee); Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. v. Small Claims Court (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 643, 646, 111 Cal. Rptr. 6 (violation of Lab Code §§ 4903, 4906 for charging fees in excess of those allowed by board); see also Civ. Code §§ 1607, 1667 (consideration for contract must not be illegal; consideration is illegal if contrary to express provision of law)].

- Public policy [cf. Calvert v. Stoner (1948) 33 Cal. 2d 97, 103, 199 P.2d 297 (illegal provision in contingency fee contract preventing client from settling case); Kallen v. Delug (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 940, 949-951, 203 Cal. Rptr. 879 (discharged attorney's refusal to forward client's case files and substitute attorneys without first obtaining fee-splitting contract from second attorney as violation of ethical duty to client)].

- The Rules of Professional Conduct [cf. Goldstein v. Lees (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 614, 618-619, 120 Cal. Rptr. 253 (acceptance of employment adverse to client in violation of confidentiality of client under former Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct Rule 5); see also Civ. Code §§ 1607, 1667 (consideration for contract must not be illegal; consideration is illegal if contrary to express provision of law)].

Examples of illegal fees include:

- Certain types of contingency fee agreements in marital dissolution actions, which may in some circumstances be considered promotive of divorce [see Theisen v. Keough (1931) 115 Cal. App. 353, 358-359, 1 P.2d 1015 ; see also § 72.196[7][d]].

- Agreements that allow billing and receiving payment for work not actually performed by the attorney [see Goldstone v. The State Bar of California (1931) 214 Cal. 490, 497, 6 P.2d 513] .

- Fee agreements with attorneys not licensed to practice in California for work performed in California in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6125 (unauthorized practice of law) [see Birbrower, Montalbano,Condon & Frank v. Superior Court (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 119, 124, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 304, 949 P.2d 1 ; see § 72.192[10][b]].

[b] Fee Agreement With Out-of-State Attorney or Law Firm

The practice of law in California by out-of-state attorneys not licensed to practice in California or by an out-of-state law firm, none of whose attorneys are licensed in California at the time of performing work in California, constitutes the unauthorized practice of law under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6125, and precludes the collection of attorney fees under fee agreements by those attorneys for work performed in California [Birbrower, Montalbano, Condon & Frank v. Superior Court (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 119, 124, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 304, 949 P.2d 1 (practice of "substantial law" in California in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6125 precluded compensation under fee agreement for any services performed in California)]. For further discussion of unauthorized practice of law, see § 72.13.

Physical presence in California is only one factor to consider in determining a violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6125. A person may be found to have practiced law in California when that person practices California law elsewhere or "virtually" enters California by technological means, with each case to be determined on its individual facts. Exceptions to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6125 are narrowly drawn and strictly interpreted and generally limited to allowing out-of-state attorneys to make brief appearances before a state court or tribunal [Birbrower, Montalbano, Condon & Frank v. Superior Court (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 119, 128-129, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 304, 949 P.2d 1] .

However, a fee agreement with an out-of-state attorney not licensed to practice in California will be enforceable to extent it is possible to sever the portions of the consideration attributable to services illegally rendered in California from those attributable to services performed outside the state [Birbrower, Montalbano, Condon & Frank v. Superior Court (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 119, 124, 139, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 304, 949 P.2d 1] . Although the fee agreement becomes illegal when an out-of-state attorney or firm performs legal services in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6125, the law of contract severability [Civ. Code § 1599] allows courts to enforce the valid parts of contracts that are only partially void when the contract has several distinct objects, of which one at least is lawful. The object of a fee agreement with an out-of-state attorney or law firm may not be entirely illegal, assuming the client was to pay compensation based in part on work that does not amount to the practice of law in California [Birbrower, Montalbano, Condon & Frank v. Superior Court (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 119, 137-139, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 304, 949 P.2d 1] .

[11] Mandatory Disclosure Regarding Lack of Professional Liability Insurance

Effective January 1, 2010, an attorney who knows or should know that he or she does not have professional liability insurance must inform a client in writing, at the time of the client's engagement of the attorney, that the attorney does not have professional liability insurance whenever it is reasonably foreseeable that the total amount of the attorney's legal representation of the client in the matter will exceed four hours [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-410(A)]. If an attorney does not provide this notice at the time of a client's engagement of the attorney, and the attorney subsequently knows or should know that he or she no longer has professional liability insurance during the representation of the client, the attorney must inform the client in writing within 30 days of the date that the attorney knows or should know that he or she no longer has professional liability insurance [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-410(B)].

7-72 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 72.193

§ 72.193 Amount of Fee

[1] Standards for Fees

Generally the law favors allowing the attorney and client to determine what is an appropriate fee. In light of the attorney's duty not to charge an unconscionable fee [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-200(A) and discussion under § 72.193[2]], however, an attorney must make an initial determination, after investigation if appropriate, of what constitutes a reasonable fee to negotiate with the client under the circumstances of a particular attorney-client relationship.

This determination depends on a variety of factors, such as the attorney's level of expertise and reputation in the legal community, the "going rate" or the range that is generally accepted in the legal community for the particular type of fee to be charged, and the particular type of work to be done [see also discussion under §§ 72.193[2][b], 72.193[2][c] and 72.193[3]].

There are also numerous statutes and rules that impose specific restrictions on contingency and fixed rate fees in particular cases, such as medical malpractice, workers' compensation, probate matters, and claims under the Federal Torts Claims Act [see discussion under § 72.196[7]]. These are in addition to common local restrictions on the recovery of attorney's fees as costs when this is permitted under contract or statute [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 9.47]. The attorney must familize himself or herself with those provisions that may apply in a particular case.

[2] Unconscionable Fees

[a] Ethical Prohibition

A California attorney is subject to discipline for entering into an agreement for, charging, or collecting an unconscionable fee [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-200(A)]. Usually, fraud or overreaching by the attorney is involved in an unconscionable fee arrangement such that the fee constitutes an appropriation of the client's funds [see Warner v. State Bar (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 36, 43, 192 Cal. Rptr. 244, 664 P.2d 148 ; Herrscher v. State Bar (1935) 4 Cal.

2d 399, 403, 49 P.2d 832] .

In addition to the attorney being disciplined for an unconscionable fee arrangement, the contract may be held unenforceable [see Baron v. Mare (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 304, 312, 120 Cal. Rptr. 675] .

The determination of a proper fee involves the interests of both the client and the attorney. An excessive charge abuses the relationship between them. Ultimately, it is advantageous to the legal profession for an attorney to charge reasonable fees; improper fees will deter laypersons from using attorneys to protect their legal rights [see Model Code of Professional Responsibility EC 2-17 (1980)]. Attorneys, however, are ethically entitled to adequate compensation and should charge reasonable fees in appropriate circumstances to clients financially able to pay them [Model Code of Professional Responsibility EC 2-16 (1980)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Charging Reasonable Fee. To avoid disputes regarding fees, the attorney should, and in many instances must, explain the fees to be charged clearly and in writing, with advance disclosure of any changes in the charges. For example, when a different attorney or additional personnel are needed to work on the client's case, the attorney should advise the client of this in advance and disclose any significant changes in the representation [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-500 (duty to communicate with client promptly regarding developments relating to employment or representation); LACBA Formal Opinion No. 473 (1990); see also § 72.192 et seq.].

Absent an objection by the client, courts normally do not inquire into a fee's reasonableness. In cases in which the court is required by statute to approve the payment of reasonable costs and fees, however, the court may decline to approve a fee it views as unreasonable [Ojeda v. Sharp Cabrillo Hospital (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1, 17, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 230 ; see, e.g., Prob. Code §§ 3600, 3601 (when lawyer represents minor or incompetent person and recovers fees by way of judgment or settlement, court must approve payment of reasonable costs and fees)].

The following are examples of fees that have been held to be unconscionable:

- Charging $2,800 and taking a $5,000 promissory note to defend a simple divorce action [Bushman v. State Bar (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 558, 563-564, 113 Cal. Rptr. 904, 522 P.2d 312] .

- Entering into a 70% contingency fee contract [Jackson v. Campbell (1932) 215 Cal. 103, 106, 8 P.2d 845] .

- Entering into a 50% contingency fee when recovery was reasonably sure [see Swanson v. Hempstead (1944) 64 Cal. App. 2d 681, 688-689, 149 P.2d 404] .

- Taking 45% of the total judgment plus statutory "reasonable attorney's fees" awarded by the court in a civil rights action [In the Matter of Yagman (Review Dept. 1997) 3 Cal. State Bar Ct. Rptr. 788, 807].

For discussion of fee collection, see § 72.430 et seq. through 72.470 et seq.

[b] Determining Whether Fee Is Reasonable

[i] Conscionability

The question of the conscionability of the fees charged is significant for two reasons:

First, the California Rules of Professional Conduct prohibit an attorney from charging unconscionable fees, and if an attorney enters into an unconscionable contract with a client, the contract may be unenforceable [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-200(A); Baron v. Mare (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 304, 312, 120 Cal. Rptr. 675 ; see also § 72.199[3][a]].

Also, the issue arises in the context of the collection of fees in quantum meruit when the attorney is allowed to recover reasonable (that is, conscionable) fees. This may arise when a lawyer has been discharged or justifiably withdrew from the case [see Fracasse v. Brent (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 784, 792, 100 Cal. Rptr. 385, 494 P.2d 9 (discharge by client); Pearlmutter v. Alexander (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 16, 20 (justifiable withdrawal by attorney)]. It also may arise when the lawyer cannot recover on the contract because of the invalidity or illegality of the contract but is still entitled to reasonable fees for work performed [see, e.g., Calvert v. Stoner (1948) 33 Cal. 2d 97, 104, 199 P.2d 297] . For discussion regarding recovery in quantum meruit, see § 72.430 et seq. through § 72.470 et seq.

[ii] Factors Affecting Conscionability under California Rules of Professional Conduct

Unconscionability of a fee is determined on the basis of all the facts and circumstances existing at the time the agreement is entered into except when the parties contemplate that the fee will be affected by later events [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-200(B)]. The California Rules of Professional Conduct set forth the following factors to be considered in determining whether or not a fee is conscionable [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-200(B)]:

- The amount of the fee in proportion to the value of the services performed.
- The relative sophistication of the lawyer and the client.
- The novelty and difficulty of the questions involved and the skill requisite to perform the legal service properly.
- The likelihood, if apparent to the client, that the acceptance of the particular employment will preclude other employment by the lawyer.
- The amount involved and the results obtained [see § 72.193[2][c]].
- The time limitations imposed by the client or by the circumstances.
- The nature and length of the professional relationship with the client [see § 72.193[2][c][ii]].
- The experience, reputation, and ability of the lawyer or lawyers performing the services [see § 72.193[2][c][iii]].
- Whether the fee is fixed or contingent [see § 72.193[2][c][iv]].
- The time and labor required [see § 72.193[2][c][v]].
- The informed consent of the client to the fee.

The decisions differ according to the circumstances of each case with respect to the importance of the various factors in determining the reasonableness of a fee [see, e.g., Glendora Community Redevelopment Agency v. Demeter (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 465, 474-481, 202 Cal. Rptr. 389] .

[iii] Additional Factors

In addition to the factors listed in the Rules of Professional Conduct, courts have also considered:

- The amount of out-of-pocket expenses advanced by the attorney [Tasker v. Cochrane (1928) 94 Cal. App. 361, 368, 271 P. 503] .

- The delay expected in payment and the hours worked without guarantee of payment [Elser v. I.A.M. Nat. Pension Fund (C.D. Cal. 1984) 579 F. Supp. 1375, 1378] .

- The financial risk taken by the attorney [see Cline v. Zappettini (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 723, 728, 281 P.2d 35] .

- The difficulty of proving the case [Hurst v. Hurst (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 859, 871-872, 39 Cal. Rptr. 162] .

- The client's financial status [In re Marriage of Cueva (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 290, 296, 149 Cal. Rptr. 918 ; Hurst v. Hurst (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 859, 872, 39 Cal. Rptr. 162] .

[c] Specific Factors

[i] Amount Involved

The "amount involved" factor is important because it determines the risk to which the client is exposed and the commensurate responsibility that the attorney assumes [see Los Angeles v. Los Angeles-Inyo Farms Co. (1933) 134 Cal. App. 268, 277, 25 P.2d 224] . Likewise, the result obtained is an important factor because it determines the real benefit to the client [see Cline v. Zappettini (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 723, 728, 281 P.2d 35] . It is generally presumed that the benefit to the client is directly due to the attorney's services [see Berry v. Chaplin (1946) 74 Cal. App. 2d 669, 681, 169 P.2d 453] .

[ii] Nature and Length of Professional Relationship

The nature of the professional relationship is relevant, for example, when a history of dealing has generated a high level of client trust or confidence in the attorney. In such a case, the attorney's advice may be more valuable to the client than advice from someone less trustworthy. The length of the professional relationship may be relevant, for example, when long service gives an attorney more knowledge about the client's needs or problems than a new attorney would have. Of course, an attorney's greater familiarity with a client may permit him or her to handle a problem more quickly. In turn, less time spent could militate for a lower fee [see § 72.193[2][c][v]]. Nevertheless, other things being equal, an attorney' with longer service or greater client trust will command a higher fee.

[iii] Attorney's Status or Reputation

The attorney's status or reputation may justify a higher hourly rate [see Glendora Community Redevelopment Agency v. Demeter (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 465, 477, 202 Cal. Rptr. 389] . Whether the attorney is a partner or an associate is another relevant factor [see Glendora Community Redevelopment Agency v. Demeter (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 465, 476-477, 202 Cal. Rptr. 389] . However, the fact that an attorney has special experience cannot be considered as a factor in evaluating the reasonableness of the fee if it gave the attorney no special advantage in handling a particular matter [see Smith v. Smith (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 952, 959, 82 Cal. Rptr. 282] .

In a lawsuit filed by a client against a law firm, alleging unconscionable fees, the client sought to discover the hourly rate the firm paid a contract staff attorney for work done on his case. The court found that a determination of whether a fee is unconscionable should not be based on an attorney's cost or profit margin [Shaffer v. Superior Court (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 993, 1001-1002, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 506] .

[iv] Flat or Contingent Fee

One commentator has interpreted the factor of whether the fee is fixed or contingent to mean that a higher contingency fee dependent on the case result is more likely to be held reasonable than a high fixed fee not dependent on the case result [see Attorneys' Fees: Practical and Ethical Considerations, Program Materials 14 (Cal. C.E.B. March 1984)]. Because contingency fee contracts provide for substantially greater compensation than fixed fee arrangements because of the risk involved, one federal court has stated that contingency fee arrangements should not be used to determine a comparable reasonable fee in a non-contingency fee case [see Elser v. I.A.M. Nat. Pension Fund (C.D. Cal. 1984) 579 F. Supp. 1375, 1378] .

[v] Actual Time Spent on Case

The actual time spent by the attorney on the matter is a baseline for the determination of a reasonable fee. One federal court has called the hours spent and the value per hour of the attorney's service the "core" of fee calculation [Lockheed Min. Sol. Coalition v. Lockheed M. & S. Co. (N.D. Cal. 1976) 406 F. Supp. 828, 832] . However, the skilled completion of a legal task that is completed more quickly by an attorney due to his or her expertise than it could have by other attorneys lacking this expertise may warrant a higher fee than only the actual time spent would justify [see Boller v. Signal Oil & Gas Co. (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 648, 656, 41 Cal. Rptr. 206] . Otherwise, determining the fee on an actual time basis would penalize expertise and reward incompetence and inexperience [see In re Marriage of Cueva (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 290, 302-303, 149 Cal. Rptr. 918] . A federal case has held that although an attorney can charge more per hour because of his or her expertise, accumulated over the course of several cases sharing the same issues, an attorney cannot charge multiple clients for work that has only been done once [Lockheed Min. Sol. Coalition v. Lockheed M. & S. Co. (N.D. Cal. 1976) 406 F. Supp. 828, 832] .

An attorney may not bill a full hourly rate for work done on more than one matter for the same time period. For instance, if a lawyer appears in court on two separate matters in one four-hour period, he or she may not bill four hours for each matter, unless the attorney has made full disclosure and obtained client consent for this billing practice, and such billing does not result in an unconscionable fee [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1996-147].

[3] Minimum Fee Schedules and Antitrust Considerations

Although California county bar associations formerly promulgated minimum fee schedules, this type of guide is no longer a viable means of gauging acceptable fees in a geographic area. In 1975, the United States Supreme Court, in Goldfarb v. Virginia State Bar, held that minimum fee schedules that provide a fixed, rigid price floor enforced by threat of professional discipline violate the Sherman Antitrust Act [Goldfarb v. Virginia State Bar (1975) 421 U.S. 773, 791-792, 95 S. Ct. 2004, 44 L. Ed. 2d 572 ; see also 15 U.S.C. § 1 et seq. (Sherman Act)]. In Goldfarb, Mr. and Mrs. Goldfarb contracted to buy a residence in Fairfax County, Virginia. The lender required title insurance. In Virginia, only members of the state bar performed title examinations. Mr. and Mrs. Goldfarb were unable to find an attorney who would examine title for a fee of less than the 1% of the property value, the minimum fee specified in the schedule published by the county bar association.

The Supreme Court held that the state and county bars' activities constituted a classic illustration of price fixing [Goldfarb v. Virginia State Bar (1975) 421 U.S. 773, 783, 95 S. Ct. 2004, 44 L. Ed. 2d 572] . Instead of being purely advisory, the fee schedule operated as a fixed price floor. It was enforced through the possibility of state bar discipline, the desire of attorneys to conform with professional norms, and the assurance that other attorneys would not charge less than the recommended minimum fee [Goldfarb v. Virginia State Bar (1975) 421 U.S. 773, 781-782, 95 S. Ct. 2004, 44 L. Ed. 2d 572] .

The Court found that the fee schedule sufficiently affected interstate commerce because a significant amount of financing for home purchases in Fairfax County was obtained from out-of-state sources and title examinations were a prerequisite to securing this financing. The Court held that no "learned profession" exclusion from the Sherman Act applied, that the title examination is a service, and that payment for the service constituted commerce. The Court also held that neither the state nor county bar were exempted from the Sherman Act under the state action exemption. Neither the Virginia Supreme Court nor Legislature required a minimum fee schedule. The Virginia Supreme Court did not approve the state bar's ethics opinions that indicated failure to conform with minimum fee schedules might result in professional discipline. Thus, the state and county bars' activities were not compelled by the state acting as a sovereign, but were essentially private in nature and anticompetitive [Goldfarb v. Virginia State Bar (1975) 421 U.S. 773, 787-791, 95 S. Ct. 2004, 44 L. Ed. 2d 572] .

The Court left undecided the issue of whether a purely advisory fee schedule issued to provide guidelines or an exchange of price information that does not result in an actual restraint of trade violates the Sherman Act [Goldfarb v. Virginia State Bar (1975) 421 U.S. 773, 781, 95 S. Ct. 2004, 44 L. Ed. 2d 572] . Apparently no California case has expressly addressed this issue. The Fifth Circuit has held that the Texas State Bar real estate note and builder's and mechanic's lien note forms that include attorney's fees provisions for 10% of the unpaid balance do not constitute the fixing of attorney's fees in violation of the Sherman Act [Guzik v. State Bar of Texas (5th Cir 1981) 659 F.2d 528, 530-531] . The Texas State Bar does not require that its members use the forms, does not discipline members who do not use the forms, does not take a public position on the attorney's fees provision, and does not prohibit modification of the fee percentage. The attorney's fee provision in the note form is also negotiable between the lender and the borrower [Guzik v. State Bar of Texas (5th Cir 1981) 659 F.2d 528, 531] .

[4] Incentive Fee Provisions

An incentive fee provision may be used in a fee agreement if the client and attorney agree that the attorney should be paid an extra fee if the attorney's efforts achieve an excellent result for the client. If they agree, the provision set forth in § 72.681 may be added as an additional paragraph to a general fee agreement, such as the hourly fee agreements set forth in §§ 72.670-72.674. The provision should specifically set forth the circumstances under which additional compensation is justified as well as how much additional compensation should be paid. The basis for payment of additional compensation should not be a general declaration that the attorney will be paid additional compensation if, in the parties' opinion, additional payment is warranted because there would be no objective standard to determine whether liability for payment existed, and the contract would thus be unenforceable because of the uncertainty [see Goldberg v. City of Santa Clara (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 857, 860-861, 98 Cal. Rptr. 862] .

For example, a fee arrangement may be devised that will provide for a defense attorney to receive an additional fee as a percentage of the amount of savings to the client. Similarly, a fee arrangement may be devised to provide that an attorney for a plaintiff will receive a bonus based on a percentage of any recovery that exceeds the expected recovery.

§ 72.194 Costs and Expenses

[1] Payment for Costs of Litigation or Other Legal Services

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-210(A) provides that an attorney is not prohibited from "advancing" the costs of prosecuting or defending a claim or action, the repayment of which may be contingent on the outcome of the matter, or otherwise protecting or promoting the client's interests [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-210(A)(3)]. The costs that the attorney may advance are limited to the reasonable expenses of litigation, as well as the reasonable expenses of preparing for litigation or providing any other legal services to the client [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-210(A)(3)]. An attorney may also act as a surety for the client and guarantee the client's obligation on a litigation cost bond [see State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1981-55]. However, Code Civ. Proc. § 995.510(a) precludes an attorney from acting as a personal surety in connection with an undertaking directly to the court.

The State Bar Standing Committee on Professional Responsibility and Conduct, interpreting former Rule 5-104(A), the immediate predecessor of Rule 4-210, has taken the position that a client must be obligated to repay any advanced costs and that the attorney must inform the client of his or her ultimate liability for such costs [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1976-38; but see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 495 (1998) (attorney may advance litigation costs notwithstanding client's stated refusal to pay costs)]. The Committee reasoned that the concept of "advancing" costs necessarily implies that the client is ultimately responsible for the costs [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1976-38]. Of course, the Committee's opinion is advisory only and is not binding on the courts or the members of the State Bar [see State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1976-38].

The Committee's interpretation of former Rule 5-104 is consistent with the former provisions of the American Bar Association Model Code of Professional Responsibility, which provided that an attorney may advance litigation costs and expenses as long as the client remains ultimately responsible for those costs [see Model Code of Professional Responsibility DR 5-103(B) (1980); Model Code of Professional Responsibility EC 5-8 (1980)]. The rationale for this rule was that an attorney's payment of such expenses, absent an obligation on the part of the client to repay them, would give the attorney a personal financial interest in the outcome of the litigation, which might impair his or her independent judgment on behalf of the client [see Model Code of Professional Responsibility EC 5-7, 5-8 (1980)].

In one case, the California Supreme Court, relying on the public policy ground of making legal services available to indigents who cannot afford to pay costs, expressed approval of an attorney's subsidization of litigation through the advance of costs in a contingency fee case, even though repayment by the client was unlikely [see Isrin v. Superior Court (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 153, 164, 45 Cal. Rptr. 320, 403 P.2d 728 ; see also; LACBA Formal Opinion No. 495 (1998) (attorney may advance litigation costs notwithstanding client's stated refusal to pay costs) LACBA Formal Opinion No. 379 (1979) (pro bono attorney can advance costs when there is substantial likelihood that client will not be able to repay absent a recovery in action)]. The ABA Model Rules of Professional Conduct expressly states that an attorney representing an indigent client may pay court costs and litigation expenses on the client's behalf [Model Rules of Professional Conduct, Rule 1.8(e)(2)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Include Agreement for Repayment of Costs in Fee Agreement. An attorney should include in the fee agreement an express provision for repayment of costs advanced by the attorney.

Although the client must be responsible for repaying any litigation costs that are advanced, the attorney is nevertheless not required at the time of entering into a fee contract to evaluate a client's ability to pay in the event that the litigation is unsuccessful or to decide whether to sue the client if the attorney is not reimbursed [see State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1976-38; LACBA Formal Opinion No. 495 (1998)]. Furthermore, there is no Rule of Professional Conduct expressly requiring an attorney to try to collect costs previously advanced to a client--so long as the subsequent forgiveness does not imply or evince an earlier agreement by the attorney to pay the costs.

[2] Client's Liability for Costs Under Fee Agreement

If the attorney and client do, in fact, agree that the client will be liable for costs and expenses, the attorney is, of course, entitled to be reimbursed for any costs actually advanced [see Cooley v. Miller & Lux (1909) 156 Cal. 510, 525-526, 105 P. 981] . Recoverable costs would normally include litigation expenses such as filing, witness, and jury fees [see Cooley v. Miller & Lux (1909) 156 Cal. 510, 525-526, 105 P. 981] . Travel expenses may be recovered if specified in the agreement or if such expenses are otherwise contemplated by the parties [see Darnell v. Woodruff (1936) 14 Cal. App. 2d 628, 634, 58 P.2d 975] . Unless specifically mentioned in the agreement as an expense to be reimbursed by the client, the attorney is responsible for general office overhead expenses [Tasker v. Cochrane (1928) 94 Cal. App. 361, 368, 271 P. 503] .

For examples of provisions of costs and expenses, see the State Bar Sample Fee Agreements, see §§ 72.670-72.676.

[3] Payment for Client's Business or Personal Expenses

Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-210 provides that a California attorney may not, directly or indirectly, pay or agree to pay, guarantee, or represent or sanction the representation that he or she will pay, an existing or prospective client's personal or business expenses. Rule 4-210 does not prohibit an attorney from doing the following:

- Paying or agreeing to pay third parties for business or personal expenses with the client's consent from funds collected or to be collected on the client's behalf as a result of the representation [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-210(A)(1)].

- Lending money to the client after the attorney's employment if the client promises in writing to repay the loan [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-210(A)(2)].

Note, however, that any loan transaction between the attorney and client must comply with the requirements of Cal.

Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-300, governing business transactions between attorneys and clients [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-210(B)]. For further discussion of this rule as well as of restrictions on adverse business relations with clients, generally, see § 72.30 et seq. through § 72.170 et seq.

Chapter 72 ATTORNEY PRACTICE AND ETHICS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Creation And Scope Of Attorney-Client Relationship
1. Drafting The Representation Agreement And Fee Arrangements

7-72 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 72.195

§ 72.195 Compensation Arrangements Not Involving Contingent Fees

[1] Retainer Fee Agreements

It is important to distinguish between a true retainer, advance fee payment, and fixed fees. A true retainer fee is a sum of money paid by a client to secure an attorney's availability over a given period of time [Baranowski v. State Bar (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 153, 164 n.4, 154 Cal. Rptr. 752, 593 P.2d 613] . The client paying the retainer fee essentially has an option to be able to hire the attorney within the stated duration. The retainer is not a payment for the performance of any particular legal services [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-700(D)(2)], and thus does not, like a fixed fee, necessarily limit the amount of compensation the attorney may ultimately charge for actual representation of the client. The purpose of a retainer is to compensate the attorney for the loss of an opportunity to represent another client [Knight v. Russ (1888) 77 Cal. 410, 412, 19 P. 698] . Thus, a retainer is earned by the attorney when paid because the attorney is entitled to the money whether or not he or she actually performs any services for the client [Baranowski v. State Bar (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 153, 164 n.4, 154 Cal. Rptr. 752, 593 P.2d 613] .

The true retainer should be distinguished from an advance fee payment, with which the retainer is often confused. An advance fee payment, which is required by some attorneys before commencing work on a case, is distinguishable from a retainer because it is a payment for the performance of a particular service in advance of the work being done, for example, the incorporation of a business or the preparation of a will [see Baranowski v. State Bar (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 153, 164 n.4, 154 Cal. Rptr. 752, 593 P.2d 613] . The fee is not actually earned until the service is performed and if it is never performed, the fee must be returned. For discussion of advance fee payments, see § 72.197[1]]. An advance fee payment, as opposed to a retainer payment, should probably be kept in a trust account for the benefit of the client until the fee, or portion thereof, is earned [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-100(A); Baranowski v. State Bar (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 153, 164 n.4, 154 Cal. Rptr. 752, 593 P.2d 613 (case discussed requirement of trust account without resolving issue); see also, § 72.197[1][a] below]. A fixed fee payment is also distinguishable from a true retainer in that it is paid to the attorney to perform certain services for a specified fee, which generally cannot be increased [see § 72.324[4][d]].

The retainer agreement set out in § 72.677 is a standard retainer agreement to secure an attorney's availability to a client for a certain time period. The agreement should specify the amount of the retainer, whether the retainer has been paid or the date on which payment is due, and the length of time that the attorney's availability will be assured. The agreement should indicate whether or not the attorney will be available at his or her regular fee for additional or extraordinary services. It is a good idea to keep time records to determine what would be a fair basis for a similar retainer fee arrangement in the future.

[2] Fixed or Flat Fee

In a "flat" or "fixed" fee agreement the lawyer charges a fixed fee for a particular matter. For example, a criminal attorney may charge a fixed fee to take the matter through a preliminary examination, a business lawyer may charge a fixed fee to provide the client with a corporation, or a family law practitioner may charge a fixed fee in an adoption proceeding. Bankruptcy attorneys also generally charge flat fees. Often, though not invariably, the flat fee includes the out-of-pocket costs the attorney will incur (for example, filing fees) that are not separately itemized.

Although the lawyer who enters into this type of agreement takes the risk that unforeseen complications may require an unusually large expenditure of time, the slight risk may be more than compensated for by the obviation of the need to keep accurate time records and make periodic billings.

PRACTICE TIP:

"Value Billing." "Value billing" is an increasingly popular concept, under which attorneys who work under a flat fee agreement become entitled to additional compensation when the client obtains a "good" or beneficial (and usually prompt) result, a device that theoretically is intended not only to reduce the risk of uncompensated effort but also reduce "padding" by the flat fee attorney. For discussion, see § 72.193[4].

In some instances a flat fee may become excessive, giving rise to a duty on the attorney's part to arrive at some equitable settlement based on the reasonable value of his or her services. For further discussion regarding excessive fees, see § 72.193.

Lawyers entering into this kind of agreement should be extremely careful in drafting the fee agreement. Specifically, the lawyer should clearly specify exactly what the fee is intended to cover. For example, in the formation of a corporation the agreement should specify that the fee does or does not include the issuance of securities, preparation of a shareholders agreement, election of Subchapter S status, etc. In the case of an adoption, it should be made clear whether the fee includes handling contested matters if the adoption is opposed. For a form adapted from the State Bar Sample Form of Short Fixed Fee Agreement, see § 72.672.

The agreement should also clearly state that the client agrees that the lawyer may place the entire fee in his or her personal account. For discussion of how to handle a fixed fee, see § 72.324[4][d][ii].

[3] Exploratory or Diagnostic Fee Agreements

The exploratory or diagnostic fee agreement form set out in § 72.678 is for use if the client wants a fixed fee arrangement, and if the attorney does not know enough about the facts and/or applicable law to quote a fixed fee. Prior to the parties making a fee arrangement, the attorney and client can agree that the attorney will work a certain number of hours at a set rate and then provide the client with an estimate of the necessary legal work and the fixed fee. If the attorney and client agree to go forward with the case after the attorney has done the exploratory work, they can use whatever subsequent fee agreement they desire.

[4] Per Diem Fee Provisions

The per diem fee provision set out in § 72.679, which is for use in a fee agreement, provides for a set rate based on the type of legal service performed, such as preparing, filing, serving, and appearing on a particular type of motion or for a trial day. In criminal actions, for example, each court appearance may be made for a specified charge.

[5] Attorney's Fee Provisions

The attorney's fee provision set out in § 72.680 may be incorporated into a fee agreement. It is an optional provision stating that the prevailing party in an action to enforce the terms of the agreement is entitled to attorney's fees.

This provision would have the effect of allowing an attorney to collect attorney's fees in an action to collect the debt owed by a client who did not pay for the attorney's services. Of course, the client will also be entitled to collect any attorney's fees he or she incurred in defending an action to collect the fees due under the contract if the client prevails in that action [see Civ. Code § 1717(a)].

Some attorneys may feel that the provision will have a negative impact on the dealings between the attorney and client at the inception of the relationship.

Moreover, an attorney who is planning to include such a provision should keep in mind that he or she may not recover an award of fees pursuant to that provision and Civ. Code § 1717 unless he or she actually incurs the expense of attorney's fees. In particular, an attorney who acts pro se, representing himself or herself in an action on a fee agreement, does not incur any actual expense and therefore may not recover an award of fees under Civ. Code § 1717 [Trope v. Katz (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 274, 282, 292, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 241, 902 P.2d 259 ; see also Musaelian v. Adams (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 512, 516-520, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 475, 198 P.3d 560 (self-represented attorney could not recover sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c)(1))].

For detailed discussion and forms relating to the recovery of attorney's fees as an element of costs pursuant to Civ. Code § 1717, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.50 et seq.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Creation And Scope Of Attorney-Client Relationship
1. Drafting The Representation Agreement And Fee Arrangements

7-72 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 72.196

§ 72.196 Compensation Arrangements Involving Contingent Fees

[1] Use of Contingency Fee Agreement

Under a contingency fee agreement, the attorney's right to receive his or her fee is conditioned on obtaining a successful outcome for the client. Typically the attorney agrees to provide legal services in return for a percentage of the client's recovery. If no recovery is made, the attorney does not receive a fee [see Black's Law Dictionary 320, 614 (6th ed. 1990)]. The justification for the contingency fee arrangement is that it allows individuals who might not otherwise be able to afford legal representation an opportunity to protect their legal rights [Newman v. Freitas (1900) 129 Cal. 283, 292, 61 P. 907 ; see Model Code of Professional Responsibility EC 2-20 (1980)]. A contingency fee contract is considered to be a normal arrangement for the payment of attorney's fees in various types of cases [see Eaton v. Thieme (1936) 15 Cal. App. 2d 458, 463, 59 P.2d 638] . Usually, it is used in litigation matters such as personal injury actions. The American Bar Association Model Rules of Professional Conduct suggest that if it is doubtful that a contingency fee is in the client's best interest, the attorney should offer the client alternative bases for the fee and explain their implications [Model Rules of Professional Conduct Rule 1.5, cmt. (1994)].

[2] State Bar Act Requirements

In most types of actions, an attorney who contracts to represent a client on a contingency fee basis must comply with the requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147 in a written agreement [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147(a), (c)]. Two types of contingency fee agreements excepted from these requirements by statute are:

- Those for the recovery of workers' compensation benefits [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147(c) and discussion in § 72.196[7][g][iii]].

- Those involving certain claims between merchants [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147.5 and discussion in § 72.196[7][g][i]].

At least one appellate court has held that the Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147 requirements apply only to contingency fee agreements involving plaintiffs in damages actions [Franklin v. Appel (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 875, 879, 891, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 759 (Second Dist., Div. Three)] . However, another court has read the statute as encompassing all contingency fee agreements [see Alderman v. Hamilton (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1033, 1037, 252 Cal. Rptr. 845 (Second Dist., Div. Five)] .

Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147 requires that the contract be in writing and that the attorney provide to the client, or to the client's guardian or representative, a duplicate copy of the contract at the time the contract is entered into, signed by both the attorney and the client or his or her guardian or representative [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147(a)]. The statute also requires certain information to be contained in the contract, as set forth in § 72.196[3] [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147(a)].

If the attorney does not comply with the requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147, the agreement is voidable at the option of the client, and the attorney is then only entitled to collect a reasonable fee [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147(b); Alderman v. Hamilton (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1033, 1037-1038, 252 Cal. Rptr. 845 (clients voided part, but not all, of contingency fee contract that failed to meet statutory requirements)]. An attorney may also be subject to disciplinary action for violating these requirements. Modifications to a contingency fee contract also must comply with Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147 [Stroud v. Tunzi (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 377, 382-383, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 756].

For State Bar sample contingent fee agreement forms, see §§ 72.675 and 72.676.

[3] Mandatory Statements Required Under State Bar Act

[a] Contents of Contract

Under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147, a contingency fee contract must include, but is not limited to, statements of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147(a)(1)-(3), (6)]:

- The contingency fee rate on which the client and attorney have agreed.

- The manner in which disbursements and costs incurred in connection with the prosecution or settlement of the claim will affect the contingency fee and the client's recovery.

- The extent, if any, to which the plaintiff could be required to pay any compensation to the attorney for related matters that arise out of their relationship but are not covered by the contingency fee agreement, including any amounts collected by the attorney for the client.

- If the attorney does not meet any of the following criteria, a statement disclosing that fact (this disclosure requirement expires January 1, 1997, unless the legislature changes or deletes that date [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147(d)]):

  - Maintains errors and omissions insurance coverage;

  - Has filed with the State Bar an executed copy of a written agreement guaranteeing payment of all claims established against the attorney by his or her clients for errors or omissions arising out of the practice of law by the attorney in the amount specified in State Bar Law Corp. Rules, Rule IV(B)(1)(c);

  - If a law corporation, has filed with the State Bar an executed copy of the written agreement required pursuant to State Bar Law Corp. Rules, Rule IV(B)(1)(a), (b), or (c).

The contingency fee agreement must be in writing [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147(a)]. In addition, the agreement must contain a statement that the fee is not set by law but is negotiable between the attorney and client, unless the claim is one against a health care provider for professional negligence and is governed by Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147(a)(4)]. If the agreement involves a claim against a health care provider for professional negligence, and is thus governed by Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146, the agreement must contain a statement that the rates set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146 are the maximum limits for the contingency fee agreement, and that the attorney and client may negotiate a lower rate [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147(a)(5)]. For discussion of contingency fee agreements governed by Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146, see § 72.196[7]; see also §§ 72.675 and 72.676.

PRACTICE TIP:

Determining Contingency Fees. There are several ways to fix the basis for determining the contingency fee. The percentage of recovery owed to the attorney may remain the same throughout the matter, or the percentage may vary depending on the stage of the proceeding at which the recovery is obtained. For example, the agreement may call for the recovery of different percentages, depending on whether the matter is resolved prior to filing suit, after filing suit, during or on completion of trial, or after appeal. The fee can also be based on a sliding scale so that, as the amount of the potential recovery increases, the percentage of fee pertaining to the higher levels of recovery decreases. For example, the fee might be 40% of the first $10,000, 33 1/3 of the next $15,000, 25% of the next $25,000, 20% of the next $50,000, and 10% of any part of the recovery over $100,000.

[b] Fees

[i] Conscionability

Like other types of fee contracts, contingency fee agreements are subject to the general prohibition against unconscionable fee agreements [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-200]. Several factors are involved in determining the conscionability of a contingency fee, including the novelty and difficulty of the questions involved, the amounts involved, and the time and labor required [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-200(B)(3), (5), (10)]. For discussion of other factors involved in determination of reasonableness of fees generally, see discussion under § 72.193.

[ii] Fees Based on Gross Recovery

A contingent fee agreement that calculates the attorney's fees based on the gross recovery rather than the net recovery after costs is not unfair to the client, unless the fee is so exorbitant and wholly disproportionate to the services performed by the attorney as to shock the conscience [Ramirez v. Sturdevant (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 904, 913, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 554] .

[iii] Fees Payable Apart From Damages

A provision in a contingent fee agreement entitling the attorney to any fees payable apart from damages is not unfair to the client. Pursuant to such a provision, an attorney may be entitled to any award or payment of attorney's fees made in addition to, or separate from, any award or payment of damages to the plaintiff [Ramirez v. Sturdevant (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 904, 913-914, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 554] .

[iv] Actions Against Health Care Providers

There are statutory limits on the amount of contingency fees that may be charged in actions against health care providers for professional negligence [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146]. For discussion of these statutory limits, see § 72.196[7][a].

[v] Case-Related Disbursements and Costs

The contingency fee contract must state how case-related disbursements and costs will affect the client's net recovery and the attorney's total fee [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147(a)(2); see also § 72.194]. Two of the principal accounting methods for the client's reimbursement of costs advanced by the attorney under a contingency fee contract are:

- The gross fee or recovery method: Under this method, the contingency fee is calculated on the gross recovery, costs and expenses are deducted from the remainder, and the client receives the balance. For example, if the recovery is $10,000, the contingency fee is 40%, and the costs advanced are $1,000, the attorney's fee is $4,000 and the client receives $5,000 (the remaining $6,000 less $1,000 in costs).

- The net fee or recovery method: Under this method, the costs and expenses are deducted from the gross recovery, the contingency is calculated on the remainder, and the client receives the balance. Under the net fee or recovery method, using the example above, the $1,000 in costs is subtracted from the $10,000 recovery, the attorney's fee is then calculated as 40% of $9,000, which is $3,600, and the client's recovery is $5,400. The medical malpractice contingency fee statute, Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146, requires a net recovery method [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146(c)(1); see § 72.196[7][a]; see also §§ 72.675 and 72.676].

[4] Potential Conflict of Interest When Attorney Has Discretion to Negotiate Lump-Sum or Bifurcated Settlement

A provision of a contingent fee agreement that gives the attorney the discretion to negotiate either a lump-sum settlement or a bifurcated (or trifurcated) settlement, one part of which would be his or her attorney fee, creates a potential conflict of interest. Under such a provision, the attorney could determine which approach might lead to the greatest amount of attorney's fees, and could maximize these fees at the client's expense [Ramirez v. Sturdevant (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 904, 916-917, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 554] .

A court may conclude, however, that the attorney did not breach a fiduciary duty to the client by including such a provision in the fee agreement if the evidence shows that the transaction was conducted at arm's length with an intelligent, experienced, and sophisticated client, and that no undue influence was involved [Ramirez v. Sturdevant (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 904, 917, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 554] .

The parties may negotiate a separate settlement of damages and attorney's fees, but this settlement should be subject to review and approval by the court at a settlement conference or on motion of a party, to determine whether a fair and reasonable balancing of the interests of the attorney and the client was reflected in the negotiations. The court may presume that the conflict prejudiced in the client in the absence of any evidence to the contrary [Ramirez v. Sturdevant (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 904, 923-925, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 554] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Use of an Example Calculation to Reduce Fee Disputes. Consider setting forth an example of how the fees on a hypothetical recovery would be calculated, showing how the fees and costs would be paid under the fee agreement, especially if the gross recovery method is used. This may reduce disputes between the attorney and the client that the client did not understand how the attorney's fees and reimbursement were to be handled. By Joel M. Simon.

[5] Other Recommended Statements

[a] Provision Regarding Attorney's Lien

Because the client has the absolute right to discharge the attorney with or without cause [Fracasse v. Brent (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 784, 790, 100 Cal. Rptr. 385, 494 P.2d 9] , the attorney should, for self protection, include lien and discharge provisions in the contract. A fee agreement may expressly provide an attorney's lien, or a lien may be implied if the agreement limits the attorney's recovery of a fee to the proceeds of a settlement or judgment [Cetenko v. United California Bank (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 528, 531, 179 Cal. Rptr. 902, 638 P.2d 1299] .

An attorney's charging lien [see § 72.198[1][a]] survives the discharge of the attorney by the client [Siciliano v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 745, 752, 133 Cal. Rptr. 376 ; Weiss v. Marcus (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 590, 598, 124 Cal. Rptr. 297] . In addition, when the client's conduct makes it unreasonably difficult to perform, the attorney can voluntarily withdraw and recover on the lien [Pearlmutter v. Alexander (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 16, 20 ; see also discussion regarding attorney withdrawal and recovery of fees in § 72.350 et seq. through § 72.470 et seq.]. Furthermore, a contractual lien may provide the basis for a cause of action for interference with a prospective economic advantage if the successor counsel disburses the recovery proceeds without satisfying the lien [Pearlmutter v. Alexander (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 16, 19-20].

For forms of lien provision, see §§ 72.675 and 72.676.

[b] Provision Regarding Compensation in Event of Discharge

If the client discharges the attorney before the attorney completes performance of the agreement, the attorney may not recover the full contingency fee, but is limited to recovery of the reasonable value of his or her services rendered prior to the discharge [Fracasse v. Brent (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 784, 792, 100 Cal. Rptr. 385, 494 P.2d 9 ; see §§ 72.675 and 72.676; see also § 72.451 et seq.].

PRACTICE TIP:

Reasonable Value Clause. The attorney may wish to consider including a clause in a contingency fee contract to provide the basis for determining the reasonable value of an attorney's services on discharge. One method is to provide that the attorney will be compensated at an hourly rate for services actually rendered. The attorney should maintain records of the actual time spent on the action if this method is chosen.

[c] Provision Regarding Payment of Fee in Case of Structured Settlement

If the recovery may involve periodic future payments in lieu of or in addition to a lump sum recovery (for example, in a structured settlement providing for an annuity), the contract should specifically provide for the manner of compensation to the attorney in that eventuality. Without a specific provision regarding the attorney's entitlement to payment out of the lump sum portion of the recovery based on the present value of the annuity amount, payment of any percentage of the annuity to the attorney may not be allowed until the payments are actually received on a periodic basis by the client [see Sayble v. Feinman (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 509, 514-515, 142 Cal. Rptr. 895] .

[6] Provision Regarding Billing Statements and Objections

A statement in the fee agreement may provide that the client will be billed monthly and is required to pay the statement within a prescribed period of time. The provision should explain that one reason for monthly billing is to provide the client the opportunity to bring any problems to the attention of the attorney. The client should agree to read the statements carefully and to bring any objections the client may have to the attorney in writing within a prescribed period of time otherwise the objections will be deemed waived.

ILLUSTRATION:

Sample Billing Statement. We will bill you monthly. you agree to pay each statement in full within twenty (20) days after billing. If in any month you do not receive a bill, please let us know. One reason for billing monthly is to give you an opportunity to bring any problems promptly to our attention. REVIEW YOUR BILLS CAREFULLY, immediately upon receipt. Any objections you may have to our billing must be communicated to us in writing within sixty (60) days of the date on each statement; otherwise, all objections to our charges will be deemed waived.

[7] Limitations on Contingency Fee Agreements in Specific Substantive Areas

[a] Medical Malpractice Actions--Monetary Limits

An attorney must not contract for or collect a contingency fee for representing any person seeking damages in connection with an action for injury or damages against a health care provider based on that person's alleged professional negligence in excess of the following limits [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146(a)]:

- 40 percent of the first $50,000 recovered.
- 331/3 percent of the next $50,000 recovered.
- 25 percent of the next $500,000 recovered.
- 15 percent of any amount on which the recovery exceeds $600,000.

The original 1975 version of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146, and not its 1987 amendment, sets the maximum fee in cases in which the contingency fee agreement was entered into before the effective date of the 1987 amendment (January 1, 1988), even if settlement and fee distribution took place after the effective date of the amendment [Wienholz v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1989) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1501, 1503, 267 Cal. Rptr. 1 (also holding that 1987 amendment increasing maximum contingency fee in recoveries greater than $200,000 is prospective only)].

[b] Limits Strictly Applied

The limitations in Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146 apply whether the recovery is by settlement, arbitration, or judgment, or whether the person for whom the recovery is made is a responsible adult, an infant, or a person of unsound mind [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146(a)]. A trial court does not have the power to award extraordinary attorney's fees under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146 [Hathaway v. Baldwin Park Community Hospital (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1247, 1251-1253, 231 Cal. Rptr. 334] . Furthermore, a client may not waive the provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146 by agreeing to pay fees in excess of the statutory limits [Fineberg v. Harney & Moore (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1049, 1055, 255 Cal. Rptr. 299 (client's action to recover already-paid contingent fees that exceeded statutory limits); see also Civ. Code § 3513 (law established for public reason as not contravenable by private agreement)].

For purposes of calculating the maximum attorney fees allowable under MICRA (Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146) the "total value" of the settlement or award is the present value of the periodic payments [Nguyen v. Los Angeles County Harbor/UCLA Medical Center (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1433, 1453-1454, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 301] .

PRACTICE TIP:

"Safe Harbor" Provision. Consider including a MICRA limitation clause in the fee agreement providing that the client will be charged the lesser of either the fee stated or the maximum fee allowed under MICRA.

An attorney representing several plaintiffs in a wrongful death case based on professional negligence must apply the fee scale in Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146(a) to the judgment as a whole. The attorney may not compute fees separately on each plaintiff's share of the award [Yates v. Law Offices of Samuel Shore (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 583, 588-590, 280 Cal. Rptr. 316] .

Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146 fixes the maximum allowable contingent fee for a medical malpractice action as a whole, including an appeal, and the limitation may not be avoided by charging separate fees for segments of the case or by charging both contingent and hourly fees [see Yates v. Law Offices of Samuel Shore (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 583, 591-592, 280 Cal. Rptr. 316 (attorney is prohibited from charging in excess of statutory formula for hourly fees of attorney he associated to handle appeal)].

[i] Constitutionality of Fee Limitations

The constitutionality of the Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146 contingency fee limitations has been upheld by the California Supreme Court, which rejected the contentions that the limitations constituted a denial of due process, violation of equal protection, or violation of the separation of powers doctrine [Roa v. Lodi Medical Group, Inc. (1985) 37 Cal. 3d 920, 925-934, 211 Cal. Rptr. 77, 695 P.2d 164 ; see also Fineberg v. Harney & Moore (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1049, 1054-1055, 255 Cal. Rptr. 299 (Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146 does not deprive client of right to counsel)].

[ii] Application of Limitations to Actions for "Professional Negligence"

Like other provisions of the Medical Injury Compensation Reform Act (MICRA), Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146 does not apply to all types of actions against doctors or other "health care providers"--it applies only to actions that are based on the provider's alleged professional negligence [Waters v. Bourhis (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 424, 431, 220 Cal. Rptr. 666, 709 P.2d 469] . "Professional negligence" is defined as a negligent act or omission to act by a health care provider in the rendering of professional services, which act or omission is the proximate cause of a personal injury or wrongful death, provided that the services are within the scope of services for which the provider is licensed and are not within any restriction imposed by the licensing agency or licensed hospital [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146(c)(3)].

Within the meaning of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146(c)(3), "professional negligence" may include conduct that is an intentional departure from professional standards. In addition to an action for professional malpractice or negligence, that conduct might be the basis of a tort action not within the scope of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146. For example, when a psychiatrist purposefully abuses the therapist-patient relationship to satisfy his or her own personal desires, the patient may maintain both an action for professional malpractice or negligence and an action for an intentional tort [see Waters v. Bourhis (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 424, 433-435, 220 Cal. Rptr. 666, 709 P.2d 469] .

When a plaintiff knowingly brings a "hybrid" action against a health care provider, that is, an action partially based on professional negligence as defined by MICRA and partially based on another, non-MICRA cause of action, and obtains a recovery that may be based on a non-MICRA theory, the attorney's fee limitations of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146 do not apply [Waters v. Bourhis (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 424, 437, 220 Cal. Rptr. 666, 709 P.2d 469] . However, an attorney may not collect fees in excess of the maximum amount authorized by MICRA unless he or she specifically advised the client of the advantages and disadvantages of alternative litigation strategies, including potential attorney's fees, and obtained the client's consent to pursue the non-MICRA action as well as the MICRA claim [Waters v. Bourhis (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 424, 437-438, 220 Cal. Rptr. 666, 709 P.2d 469] .

An additional problem may arise if a hybrid action is resolved by settlement rather than by trial, so that the basis of liability is not adjudicated by the court. In that case, a potential conflict of interest arises between the plaintiff and his or her attorney, who would wish to settle the case on the basis of a non-MICRA theory so as to avoid the limitations on the amount of the contingency fee. Of course, the conflict may be avoided if the attorney agrees to waive any fee in excess of the MICRA limits. In the Waters case, the Supreme Court did not specify exactly when the client's consent to pursue the hybrid action must be obtained, but it appears that to be effective, the consent should be obtained as soon as possible in the representation, preferably before the fee agreement is signed. Consent obtained after a settlement or judgment is recovered is probably not sufficient to permit recovery of a fee in excess of the MICRA limits. Also, even if the client does consent to pursuit of a non-MICRA cause of action and a higher contingency fee, the fee will nevertheless be subject to the MICRA limits if the plaintiff thereafter obtains a recovery based solely on a MICRA cause of action [

Waters v. Bourhis (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 424, 439 n.15, 220 Cal. Rptr. 666, 709 P.2d 469 (dictum)].

[iii] Effect of Contingent Consulting Agreements

A plaintiff may contract with a consulting firm on a contingent basis to assist the plaintiff's attorney in reviewing medical records and locating medical expert witnesses [see Ojeda v. Sharp Cabrillo Hospital (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1, 4-5, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 230] . Although such consulting agreements are not invalid per se as against public policy, in medical malpractice cases, the trial court must determine that the total of the attorney's and consultant's fees are reasonable under the MICRA guidelines. The amount that a plaintiff agrees to pay in attorney's fees, consultant's fees, and separately identified costs must not exceed the maximum attorney's fees under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146(a) plus all allowable disbursements and costs under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146(c) [Ojeda v. Sharp Cabrillo Hospital (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1, 17-19, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 230] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Calculating Attorney's Fee. In a medical malpractice case, an attorney contracts with a consulting service for expert assistance. Under the contract, compensation for the consulting service is to be provided on a contingent fee basis, with the service to receive 10% of the gross recovery. The service spends a total of 170.5 hours on the case, and 150 of the total hours constitute legitimate "disbursements or costs" that a reasonable attorney could charge to the client above and beyond the attorney's fee. During the case, the lawyers advance $27,528 in costs. The case settles for $1.1 million. What is the maximum the attorneys may receive under MICRA? $126,034.

- To make the fee calculation:
    - Determine the total amount of the "off the top" costs for services that fall into the "disbursements or costs" category:
    - The consulting service's fee is 10% of 1.1 million, or $110,000. Of the actual hours spent on the case by the service 150 out of 170.5, or 88% (150/170.5) are legitimate charges, and 88% of $110,000 is 96,800.
    - To this figure, add the costs advanced by plaintiff's laywers ($27,528) for a total costs of $124,328.
- Deduct the total costs of $124,328 from the total settlement ($1.1 million) leaving an amount of $975,672 from which to calculate the attorneys' fee under MICRA.
- Using the appropriate percentages [see § 72.196[7][a][i], the maximum attorney's fee under MICRA would be approximately $139,234.
- Of the $139,234, $13,200 must be subtracted, leaving a fee of $126,034. (The $13,200 represents the 12% of the consultant's fee that exceeded the "reasonable" amount that could be charged as costs.)
- Thus, the attorneys could receive a maximum fee of $126,034. The consulting firm would be paid its fee of $110,000 [see Ojeda v. Sharp Cabrillo Hospital (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1, 20-21 n.21, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 230] .

[iv] Determination of Amount Recovered

The recovery from which the percentages are to be calculated is the net sum recovered, after deduction of disbursements or costs incurred in the prosecution of the action [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146(c)(1)]. The client's medical care costs and the attorney's office overhead costs are not deductible for this purpose [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146(c)(1)].

[v] Fee Recovery if Award of Periodic Payments Made

If the client receives a damage award of periodic future payments, the basis for the computation of the fee is a total value placed on the payments based on the client's projected life expectancy [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146(b)]. If the recovery may involve periodic future payments in lieu of or in addition to a lump sum recovery, the agreement should specify whether the total fee will be payable from the lump sum or periodically out of the client's payments [see Sayble v. Feinman (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 509, 514, 142 Cal. Rptr. 895] .

The appropriate measure of the recovery is the present value of the periodic payments, not the arithmetic sum of all future payments required by the award (present value being the present, discounted value of future payments) [Schneider v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1311, 1314, 1320, 264 Cal. Rptr. 227] . If the future periodic payments are to be made from an annuity purchased by the defendant from a third party insurance company, the cost of this annuity may be used to determine present value [see Schneider v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1311, 1314, 1319-1320, 264 Cal. Rptr. 227] .

An attorney representing a plaintiff on a contingency fee basis who is discharged shortly before the conclusion of a case, and before the court has an opportunity to determine the present value of an award of periodic payments, has standing to participate at a hearing to determine the present value of the payments [Schneider v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1311, 1314, 1316-1317, 264 Cal. Rptr. 227] .

[vi] Contents of Agreement

Like other types of contingency fee contracts, the medical malpractice contingency fee contract must be written, a copy must be presented to the client at the time of execution, and the contract must state if the client is required to reimburse the attorney for related matters not covered in the contract [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147(a)]. For discussion of the statutory requirements for contingency fee contracts, see § 72.196[1], [3], and [5].

[c] Condemnation Proceedings

Contingency fee contracts in condemnation cases differ from contingency fee arrangements in other types of cases because of the nature of the condemnation process. Generally, the condemning agency makes an initial offer to the property owner [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410(a)].

Unless the condemning agency is relying on an improper appraisal theory or an unrealistically low appraisal, the attorney's efforts the property owner' behalf in condemnation litigation probably will not attain a court award significantly higher than the offer. The fee can be calculated several different ways in order to deal with this reality:

- One basis is a substantial percentage of the "betterment," that is, the difference between the condemnor's last offer prior to execution of the attorney's fees contract and the actual recovery by settlement or trial.

- Another method is to calculate the fee as a smaller percentage of the total recovery.

- Still another approach is for the contract to contain alternative "betterment" and percentage of total recovery provisions with the actual fee being determined by whichever method produces the larger fee.

Some courts have looked more closely at contingency fee agreements, to determine if they are reasonable under the particular circumstances of the case. This scrutiny has been justified in cases where the taxpayers, through the public entity involved, ultimately pay the attorney's fee [People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Yuki (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1754, 1769-1771, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 616] .

If the attorney successfully contests the agency's condemnation power, however, the client will not recover any award on which a contingency fee can be based. In this situation, the fee agreement should allow for another type of appropriate compensation, e.g., by fixed hourly rate.

For discussion of eminent domain, including the limited circumstances under which the property owner may recover attorney's fees [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1235.140, 1250.410], see Ch. 247, Eminent Domain, § 247.10 et seq.

[d] Domestic Relations Proceedings

California case law has held that, if a contingency fee contract promotes divorce because the attorney has an interest in discouraging reconciliation of the spouses, the contract is against public policy and void [see Newman v. Freitas (1900) 129 Cal. 283, 289, 61 P. 907] . However, if the marriage is "moribund," without any possibility of reconciliation, a contingency fee arrangement may be proper [Krieger v. Bulpitt (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 97, 100-101, 251 P.2d 673] .

The California Supreme Court has held that the validity of a contingency fee agreement should be determined in light of the factual circumstances of the case and the appropriate public policy considerations [Krieger v. Bulpitt (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 97, 100, 251 P.2d 673] . For example, the Court upheld a contingency fee agreement between an attorney and a husband who was defending a suit involving his property rights, who otherwise would not have had funds available with which to pay attorney's fees. The Court stated that a contract entered into under those circumstances does not involve considerations contrary to public policy or promotive of divorce [Krieger v. Bulpitt (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 97, 100-101, 251 P.2d 673] .

The Standing Committee on Professional Responsibility and Conduct of the California State Bar has issued an advisory opinion stating that it is not per se improper for an attorney to enter into a contingency fee contract in a domestic relations case based on a percentage of the property or support arrearage awarded to the client, provided that the contract does not violate public policy by promoting divorce or involving the attorney in a conflict of interest [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1983-72]. The Committee stated that a contingency fee agreement may not be proper in a case in which an attorney must prove valuation of the marital property. For example, a conflict of interest could exist between the attorney and client when the client wants a community property item valued low for the client's advantage in the property division and the attorney wants the property valued high as a basis for calculating the contingency fee [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1983-72]. Another conflict of interest may occur when the client wants more support and less property in a settlement, while the attorney wants more property awarded to increase the fee basis. One possible way to reduce these problems is to insert provisions in the contract that exclude an asset as a basis for a fee, provide for a higher proportional fee the lower the valuation placed on the asset, or provide for a present cash value for the entire settlement as a basis for calculation of the fee [see Adams, 1985 Cal. Fam. L. Rep. 2687].

Although the Committee has stated that a contingency fee contract for past due child support and spousal support arrearages is proper, it has not determined the propriety of a contingency fee contract for an award of future child support and spousal support [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1983-72].

[e] Criminal Defense

California has no express prohibition against contingency fee contracts in criminal defense matters. However, it would appear that in some situations such an agreement could violate Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-310, concerning conflicts with the client's interests [see generally discussion in § 72.30 et seq.].

Such contracts have been prohibited in other jurisdictions [see United States ex rel. Simon v. Murphy (E.D. Pa. 1972) 349 F. Supp. 818, 823-824 ; Matter of Fasig (Ind. 1983) 444 N.E.2d 849, 850 ; Schoonover v. State (1975) 218 Kan. 377, 384-385, 543 P.2d 881 , cert. denied, (1976) 424 U.S. 944, 96 S. Ct. 1412, 47 L. Ed. 2d 349 ; In re Steere (1975) 217 Kan. 276, 276, 536 P.2d 54] . The reason for the prohibition is that there may be an inherent conflict of interest between the attorney's interests and those of the client. For example, if the contingency that triggers the basis for the fee is an acquittal, and an opportunity to plead guilty to a lesser offense is offered, the client's best interest may be to accept a guilty plea. The attorney, however, will be denied a fee if a plea is entered and an acquittal is not obtained; therefore, the attorney may be tempted to advise the client not to accept the plea.

Other jurisdictions also have held that the client may be denied his or her constitutional right to effective assistance of counsel by a conflict of interest with the attorney caused by the contingency fee contract [see, e.g., United States ex rel. Simon v. Murphy (E.D. Pa. 1972) 349 F. Supp. 818, 823-824 (based on federal constitution); Schoonover v. State (1975) 218 Kan. 377 , cert. denied (1976) 424 U.S. 944 (totality of circumstances determine whether right to effective counsel violated)].

Contingency fee contracts in the representation of criminal defendants are generally considered unethical [see Model Rules of Professional Conduct, Rule 1.5(d)(2) (1994); Model Code of Professional Responsibility DR 2-106(C) (1980); A.B.A. Standards for Criminal Justice (2nd ed. 1986), § 4-3.3(e)].

[f] Representation of Government Entity

The California Supreme Court has held that at least in certain cases it is not appropriate for a government attorney, or a private attorney representing a governmental entity, to represent the government on a contingency fee basis [People ex rel. Clancy v. Superior Court (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 740, 748, 218 Cal. Rptr. 24, 705 P.2d 347] . In People ex rel. Clancy v. Superior Court, a private attorney entered into an agreement to represent a city in an action to abate a public nuisance. The agreement provided that the attorney's hourly fee would double if the city prevailed in the action. The Supreme Court held that such an agreement was improper and issued a writ of mandate ordering that the attorney be disqualified from representing the city in the action [People ex rel. Clancy v. Superior Court (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 740, 750, 218 Cal. Rptr. 24, 705 P.2d 347] . The Court reasoned that prosecutors and other government attorneys involved in law enforcement have a duty to see to it that the laws are enforced impartially. This duty of neutrality is violated if the attorney has a personal interest or financial stake in the litigation [People ex rel. Clancy v. Superior Court (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 740, 746, 218 Cal. Rptr. 24, 705 P.2d 347] . The Court held that the attorney in this case had essentially assumed the duties of a city attorney and was therefore governed by the same standards of neutrality [People ex rel. Clancy v. Superior Court (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 740, 747, 218 Cal. Rptr. 24, 705 P.2d 347] . Because the contract gave the attorney a personal financial interest in the outcome of the case, the contract violated the duty of neutrality [People ex rel. Clancy v. Superior Court (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 740, 746-748, 750, 218 Cal. Rptr. 24, 705 P.2d 347] .

In Clancy, the Court noted in dictum that, although there was no law on the subject, contingency fee agreements for criminal prosecutors were generally recognized to be unethical and potentially unconstitutional [People ex rel. Clancy v. Superior Court (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 740, 748, 218 Cal. Rptr. 24, 705 P.2d 347] . The Court observed that a public nuisance action, like a criminal prosecution, involves a delicate balancing of interests. For example, the case before the Court required a balancing of the public's interest in ridding their city of an obnoxious or dangerous condition versus that of a property owner in using his or her property as he or she wishes [People ex rel. Clancy v. Superior Court (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 740, 749, 218 Cal. Rptr. 24, 705 P.2d 347] . The Court concluded that any financial arrangement that would tempt a government attorney to tip the scales cannot be tolerated [People ex rel. Clancy v. Superior Court (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 740, 749, 218 Cal. Rptr. 24, 705 P.2d 347] . The Court did observe, however, that there may be some classes of cases in which absolute neutrality is not required of the government attorney and in which a contingency fee agreement may be proper [People ex rel. Clancy v. Superior Court (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 740, 748, 218

Cal. Rptr. 24, 705 P.2d 347 , citing Denio v. City of Huntington Beach (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 580, 140 P.2d 392 (city hired law firm on contingency fee basis to represent city in all matters relating to protection of oil rights)]. For example, one court of appeal held that Clancy does not bar public entities from engaging private counsel under a contingent fee arrangement to assist in public nuisance abatement litigation, as long as the public entities' in-house counsel retains control over all decision making [County of Santa Clara v. Superior Court (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 1140, 1148-1155, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 842]. In addition, Clancy does not bar contingency fee lawyers from assisting government lawyers as co-counsel in ordinary civil litigation [Priceline.com Inc. v. City of Anaheim (2010) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1130, 1138-1148, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 521 (tax assessment proceeding)].

[g] Other Statutory Restrictions

[i] Claims Between Merchants

Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6147 and 6148, requiring fee agreements to be in writing, do not apply to contingency fee contracts for the recovery of claims between merchants arising from the sale or lease of goods or services rendered, or money loaned for use, in the conduct of a business or profession if the merchant contracting for legal services employs 10 or more individuals [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147.5(a)].

When no written contract for legal services exists, however, an attorney may not collect a contingency fee in excess of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147.5(b)(1)]:

- 20 percent of the first $300 collected.
- 18 percent of the next $1,700 collected.
- 13 percent of sums collected in excess of $2,000.

Notwithstanding these limits, the following minimum charges may be charged and collected [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147.5(b)(2)]:

- $25 in collections of $75 to $125.
- 331/3 percent of collections less than $75.

For purposes of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147.5, the term "merchant" means a person who deals in goods of the kind or otherwise by his or her occupation holds himself or herself out as having knowledge or skill peculiar to the practices or goods involved in the transaction or to whom such knowledge or skill may be attributed by his employment of an agent or broker or other intermediary who by his or her occupation holds himself or herself out as having such knowledge or skill [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147.5(a); Comm. Code § 2104(1)].

[ii] Worker's Compensation Matters

The Worker's Compensation Appeals Board establishes reasonable attorney's fees in worker's compensation matters at the hearing and appellate levels [see Lab. Code § 4906; see also Lab. Code § 3856 (attorney's fees in actions against third parties)]. The usual award is 10% of the recovery [see Robert G. Beloud, Inc. v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 729, 736, 123 Cal. Rptr. 750] . For further discussion and the required form for the attorney's fee disclosure statement, see Ch. 577, Workers' Compensation .

The Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147 requirements for contingency fee agreements do not apply in actions to recover workers' compensation benefits [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147(c)].

[iii] Claims Before State Board of Control

Under the "Good Samaritan" law [see Gov. Code § 13970 et seq.], attorneys who assist clients in obtaining awards from the State Board of Control cannot charge or receive any fee other than that included in the award. The awarded fee should reflect the reasonable value of the legal services, but cannot exceed 10% of the award [Gov. Code § 13973(e)].

Similarly, when an attorney assists a victim of criminal violence in processing a claim before the State Board of Control, the attorney is prohibited from charging or receiving any fee in addition to that included in the award. The fee is limited to 10% of the award, or $500, whichever is less [Gov. Code § 13965(d)].

[8] Invalidity of Provision Prohibiting Client's Settlement of Case

A provision that prevents the client from settling the claim without the attorney's consent is void because it interferes with the client's ownership of the cause of action and control over the suit, and it contravenes the policy of permitting parties to settle their differences amicably without the intervention of attorneys [Calvert v. Stoner (1948) 33 Cal. 2d 97, 103, 199 P.2d 297 (void clause was severable from otherwise valid contract); Hall v. Orloff (1920) 49 Cal. App. 745, 748-750, 194 P. 296] . In one case, the contract provided for no settlement without the mutual consent of the client and attorney. The contract also stated that the client would pay the attorney 50% of any settlement, but not less than $1,000. The court held that the $1,000 minimum was a penalty and indicated that an express agreement by a client to pay a penalty for settling a matter without the attorney's consent would be against public policy and void [Hall v. Orloff (1920) 49 Cal. App. 745, 748-750, 194 P. 296] .

§ 72.197 Modes of Payment

[1] Advance Payment

[a] Use of Advance Payment Before Commencing Work

Many attorneys, especially in the family law and criminal law fields, require an advance payment for fees and costs before commencing any legal work for the client. The advance payment makes economic sense because the attorney avoids the risk of doing the work and not being paid. When an advance payment is desirable, the agreement should specify whether, and in what amounts, the payment is to be allocated to fees and costs, and should specify that the attorney will periodically bill against the advance as the fees are earned. Absent express agreement to the contrary, an advance payment retainer does not vest the attorney with an immediate right to the funds. Rather, the funds remain the property of the client until the attorney has earned fees or incurred costs on the client's behalf. An attorney who fails to deposit the advance payment retainer funds in a trust account is liable for negligence and breach of fiduciary duty [T. & R. Foods, Inc. v. Rose (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1, 7-8]. For a form of an advance payment provision to include in a fee agreement, see § 72.682.

PRACTICE TIP:

Periodic Accounting. It is recommended that the attorney provide the client with a periodic accounting of the advance payment. If the attorney wishes to apply any unexpended balance of the advance payment to a different matter, the provision should specifically provide for this situation.

For discussion regarding the handling of advance fees, and the currently controversial issue of whether they must be placed in the client's trust account, see § 72.430 et seq. through § 72.470 et seq.

[b] Advance Insufficient to Cover Fees

If the advance is insufficient to cover fees and expenses incurred, the client is billed for the additional fees and costs. The client's failure to pay additional funds may not allow the attorney to withdraw from the representation. An attorney may withdraw if the client breaches an agreement or obligation as to expenses or fees [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-700(C)(1)(f)], but the attorney may not withdraw in any event until he or she has taken reasonable steps to avoid foreseeable prejudice to the client [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-700(A)(2)]. For further discussion, see § 72.371.

The attorney may also wish to include a provision requiring additional advances as the fees are depleted by earned charges [see § 72.673].

[2] Installment Payment

When an attorney enters into an agreement with an individual client to provide legal services for personal or household purposes and for the fee to be paid in installments with finance charges, the attorney may be required to comply with the California Unruh Act [Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.] and the federal Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.], as interpreted in Regulation Z [12 C.F.R. § 226].

Under the Unruh Act, attorneys' services rendered primarily for personal purposes, as opposed to commercial or business purposes, may be the subject of a retail installment sale [see Civ. Code §§ 1802.2 (definition of services as excluding those for commercial or business use; excluding services of physicians and dentists, but not excluding attorneys), 1802.5 ("retail installment sale" defined as furnishing of services by retail seller to retail buyer for deferred payment price payable in installments)]. An agreement that provides for repayment in installments with finance charges or for payment in more than four installments is a "retail installment contract" [see Civ. Code § 1802.6]. Finance charge rates for transactions subject to the Unruh Act are limited by statute [see Civ. Code §§ 1805.1 (limitations on finance charges in retail installment contracts), 1810.2 (limitations on finance charges in retail installment accounts)].

The federal Truth in Lending Act applies to each individual or business that offers or extends credit when the following four conditions are met [12 C.F.R. § 226.1(c)(1)]:

- The credit is offered or extended to consumers.
- The offering or extension of credit is done regularly [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(17) (defining "regularly")].
- The credit is subject to a finance charge or is payable by a written agreement in more than four installments.
- The credit is primarily for personal, family, or household purposes.

The Unruh Act and Truth in Lending Act should be consulted to determine any disclosure requirements when an attorney extends consumer credit [Civ. Code §§ 1803.1-1803.7, 1810.1; 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.17, 226.18]. In open-end credit plans, or retail installment accounts, the debtor must be furnished with an initial disclosure statement before the first transaction is made [Civ. Code § 1810.1; 12 C.F.R. § 226.5(b)(1)]. Additionally, the debtor is entitled to a periodic statement at the end of each billing cycle [Civ. Code § 1810.3; 12 C.F.R. § 226.5(b)(2)(i)]. The periodic statement must include, among other things, the amount and date of each transaction, and a brief identification of the services rendered [Civ. Code § 1810.3(a)(2); 12 C.F.R. § 226.8(a)(2)]. Also, under Regulation Z, the creditor must provide a long or short form billing error rights statement annually or with each periodic statement [12 C.F.R. § 226.9(a); see Bardet, "Ethics Advisory: Charging Your Clients 'Interest'," 2 Cal. Law. 29 (July/Aug. 1982); see also § 72.197[5]].

For further discussion, see Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales .

[3] Credit Card Payment

The State Bar Board of Governors' official position is not to oppose the use of credit cards for payment of legal fees and costs so long as the attorney complies with the State Bar Act and the Rules of Professional Conduct [Cal. State Bar Bd. of Governors, Policy Statement on Use of Credit Cards for the Payment of Legal Services and Expenses (Feb. 11, 1975)]. In particular, the Board requires that attorneys who participate in credit card finance plans not increase their fees to a client for using a credit card, not pay a client's personal or business expenses unless permitted under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, former Rule 5-104 (now see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-210), and not permit improper advertising by the credit card issuer on behalf of the attorney. In addition, the Board of Governors' policy statement specifically requires attorneys using credit card plans to comply with the State Bar Act provisions and Rules of Professional Conduct dealing with client confidences, illegal or unconscionable fee agreements, and trust accounts involving the client's money paid in advance [Cal. State Bar Bd. of Governors, Policy Statement on Use of Credit Cards for the Payment of Legal Services and Expenses (Feb. 11, 1975); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e); Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rules 4-100, 4-200].

For discussion of credit card transactions, see Ch. 127, Consumer Contracts and Loans .

[4] Charging of Interest and Penalties

California attorneys can ethically charge interest, or impose late charges, provided that they obtain the client's informed consent and comply with applicable law [see Southwest Concrete Products v. Gosh Construction Corp. (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 701, 709, 274 Cal. Rptr. 404, 798 P.2d 1247 (approving 1.5 percent monthly late charge fee); see also LACBA Formal Opinion No. 499 (1999) (attorney-client fee contract may include clause charging interest on costs advanced by attorney covering time period from when attorney advances costs to period when attorney bills client for costs)]. The client must be advised that the attorney intends to charge interest and agree to payment of interest on the account if it is delinquent for more than a specified time period [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1980-53; A.B.A. Comm. on Ethics and Professional Responsibility, Formal Opinion 74-388 (1974)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Example of Clause Providing Late Charge. Your unpaid balances of fees and costs are subject to a LATE CHARGE at the annual percentage rate of 10 percent per annum, which corresponds to a monthly rate of 0.83 percent. Late charges will be imposed on your unpaid balance of fees and costs from the date of our billing only if the unpaid balance is not paid within twenty (20) days after the date of our billing. You may pay the balance within the twenty (20) days and you will not incur a late charge. Your unpaid balance of fees and costs is determined by taking the beginning balance of your account during each month, adding any new charges for fees and costs and subtracting any payments or credits made to your account. We will then multiply this amount by the applicable periodic rate above to compute the late charge for your account.

The interest rate charged must be reasonable at the time that the attorney and client make the agreement [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-200(B); see also Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-300(A) (business transactions with clients required to be fair and reasonable)]. The usury provisions of the California Constitution [see Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1] do not apply to interest on past-due receivables [see Verbeck v. Clymer (1927) 202 Cal. 557, 563, 261 P. 1017 (credit sale may be for higher price than cash sale, and credit sale will not constitute usury unless buying and selling was mere pretense)]. A bona fide credit sale of services, which is not subject to the usury law, is distinguishable from a loan of money, which is subject to the usury law [Boerner v. Colwell Co. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 37, 45, 145 Cal. Rptr. 380, 577 P.2d 200] . Interest rates on credit sales of legal services for personal, family, or household purposes, however, may be subject to the limitations of the Unruh Act [see Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.]. For a discussion of the applicability of the Unruh Act and the federal Truth in Lending Act, see § 72.197[3].

1. Drafting The Representation Agreement And Fee Arrangements

7-72 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 72.198

§ 72.198 Security for Payment

[1] Permissible Sources--Nonpossessory Lien Against Client's Recovery

An enforceable contractual attorney's charging or nonpossessory lien, which enables the attorney to satisfy his or her fees and expenses from the client's recovery, may be created by an express agreement between the client and attorney [see Fletcher v. Davis (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 61, 68-70, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 58, 90 P.3d 1216 (charging lien must comply with Cal. Rules of Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-300); Haupt v. Charlie's Kosher Market (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 843, 845, 112 P.2d 627 ; see also Waltrip v. Kimberlin (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 517, 524-525, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 460 (discussing priority of attorney's lien); Epstein v. Abrams (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 1159, 1169, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 555 (valid contractual attorney lien against prospective recovery may be created to secure payment of attorney's contingency fee); see also LACBA Formal Opinion No. 496 (1998) (attorney-client fee agreement may include lien on anticipated recovery in amount sufficient to pay for attorney's representation of client in unrelated matter)]. The common law attorney's charging or non-possessory lien, however, has not been judicially recognized in California. Note that even if a lien is invalid or otherwise unenforceable, the underlying obligation remains valid [Shopoff & Cavallo LLP v. Hyon (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1489, 1522-1524, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 268] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Requirements Governing Security Agreements. The California Supreme Court has held that an agreement to create a charging lien must comply with the requirements of Cal. Rules of Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-300 [Fletcher v. Davis (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 61, 68-70, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 58, 90 P.3d 1216] . The Court held that such a lien may be adverse to the client and therefore must comply with Rule 3-300. The Court expressly did not decide whether Rule 3-300 applies to a contingency-fee arrangement coupled with a lien on the client's prospective recovery in the same proceeding [Fletcher v. Davis (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 61, 70 n.3, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 58, 90 P.3d 1216] . For further discussion of these requirements see discussion under §§ 72.198[2][b] and 72.198.

The attorneys' lien contract may be made prior to provision of the legal services and the client's recovery [Wagner v. Sariotti (1943) 56 Cal. App. 2d 693, 697, 133 P.2d 430] . Although it is not absolutely necessary that the word "lien" be stated in the contract provision, the intent to create a lien should be indicated in specific language [Gelfand, Greer, Popko, & Miller v. Shivener (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 364, 371, 105 Cal. Rptr. 445 ; cf. Trimble v. Steinfeldt (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 646, 651, 224 Cal. Rptr. 195 (no basis for imposing a lien when no express or implied agreement between recovering plaintiff and attorney exists)].

[2] Advantages and Priority of Lien

A valid contractual charging or non-possessory lien has several advantages:

- The lien protects the attorney's fee on discharge by the client [Siciliano v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 745, 752, 133 Cal. Rptr. 376 ; Weiss v. Marcus (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 590, 598, 124 Cal. Rptr. 297] or on the attorney's justifiable withdrawal from the case [Pearlmutter v. Alexander (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 16, 19-20].

- The lien may provide a basis for a cause of action for interference with prospective economic advantage if substituted counsel disburses the client's recovery proceeds without satisfying the lien [Pearlmutter v. Alexander (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 16, 19-20].

- Attorneys' liens have priority over several other types of claims, including:

  - A subsequent attachment [Haupt v. Charlie's Kosher Market (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 843, 846, 112 P.2d 627] .

  - A subsequent judgment creditor's lien [Cetenko v. United California Bank (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 528, 534, 179 Cal. Rptr. 902, 638 P.2d 1299 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 688.1); Waltrip v. Kimberlin (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 517, 527-531, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 460 (priority over bank's judgment lien); Cappa v. F & K Rock & Sand, Inc. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 172, 174, 249 Cal. Rptr. 718 (judgment creditor's lien for child support arrearages)].

  - A federal tax lien [Bree v. Beall (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 650, 657-658, 171 Cal. Rptr. 73] .

  - A medical lien, regardless of which lien was first in time [Gilman v. Dalby (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 606, 616-620, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 231].

I.R.C. § 6323(b)(8) creates a super-priority for attorney's liens against previously filed federal tax liens. The rationale is that the attorney's fees should be protected because the attorney's efforts resulted in the collection of the judgment by the taxpayer. The attorney's services are regarded as similar to a repairperson's services by increasing the value of the taxpayer's property [Bree v. Beall (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 650, 657-658 n.2, 171 Cal. Rptr. 73] . Another public policy consideration supporting the priority of attorney's liens is that persons with meritorious claims, including creditors, might not be able to secure legal representation if attorneys were not assured of their liens [see Cetenko v. United California Bank (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 528, 535-536, 179 Cal. Rptr. 902, 638 P.2d 1299] .

[a] Enforcement of Lien From Funds Paid Directly to Attorney

If the client's recovery has been paid directly to the attorney and the attorney wishes to assert his or her lien on the recovery, the attorney must first deposit the proceeds in a client trust account, not the attorney's own business account [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-100(A)(2)]. If the client disputes the attorney's entitlement to any or all of the fee, the attorney may not withdraw the disputed portion until the dispute is finally resolved [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 4-100(A)(2); Trafton v. Youngblood (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 17, 26, 69 Cal. Rptr. 568, 442 P.2d 648 (attorney may not unilaterally determine fee and deduct it from client's funds)]. For discussion of trust accounts and the attorney's obligation with regard to client funds, see § 72.320 et seq.

[b] Promissory Notes and Deeds of Trust

A California attorney can take a promissory note from a client as a method of protecting a fee [Law Offices of Dixon R. Howell v. Valley (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 1076, 1104, 29 Cal. Rptr.3d 499 (unsecured promissory note executed by client does not give attorney present interest in client's property required to trigger Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-300)]. One court has upheld the enforceability of a promissory note signed by the clients midway through the representation [see Walton v. Broglio (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 400, 403-404, 125 Cal. Rptr. 123] .

In taking a promissory note, the attorney must comply with Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-300 [State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1981-62 (decided under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, former Rule 5-101)]:

- The transaction and the terms must be fair and reasonable, and must be disclosed to the client in writing in a manner and in terms which are reasonably understandable to the client.

- The client must be allowed a reasonable opportunity to obtain independent advice from another attorney of the client's own choice.

- The client must consent in writing to use of the promissory note.

In Hawk v. State Bar, the California Supreme Court held that an attorney using a deed of trust must comply with the requirements of a fair and reasonable transaction, written disclosure, opportunity for the client to consult independent counsel, and written consent [see Hawk v. State Bar (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 589, 601, 247 Cal. Rptr. 599, 754 P.2d 1096 (decided under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, former Rule 5-101); see also State Bar Formal Opinion No. 1981-62 (decided under Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, former Rule 5-101; stating that a California attorney can take a promissory note secured by a deed of trust as a method of protecting a fee)].
