In a private civil action based on a design-and-construction claim under the Fair Housing Act, the two-year statute of limitations begins to run at the conclusion of the design-and-construction phase, which occurs on the date the last certificate of occupancy is issued [Garcia v. Brockway (9th Cir. 2007) 503 F.3d 1092, 1095-1101] .

No action may be commenced once a hearing has commenced on a charge issued by HUD [42 U.S.C. § 3613(a)(3)].

On application by either party, the court may appoint an attorney for that party or authorize the commencement or continuation of an action without the payment of fees, costs, or security, if in the opinion of the court that person is unable to bear the costs of that action [42 U.S.C. § 3613(b)].

[ii] Relief Available

In a civil action under 42 U.S.C. § 3613, if the court finds that a discriminatory housing practice has occurred or is about to occur, the court may award actual damages and punitive damages [42 U.S.C. § 3613(c)(1)]. The court may also award, as it deems appropriate, any permanent or temporary injunction, temporary restraining order, or other order (including an order enjoining the defendant from engaging in that practice or ordering appropriate affirmative action) [42 U.S.C. § 3613(c)(1)]. If a violation of the Fair Housing Act is established, it will be presumed that the plaintiff has suffered irreparable injury from the fact of the violation; the plaintiff does not have the burden of establishing a reasonable likelihood that the defendant will continue to violate the Act [Silver Sage Partners v. City of Desert Hot Springs (9th Cir. 2001) 251 F.3d 814, 827] . The court is not permitted to grant relief that will interfere with any contract, sale, encumbrance, or lease consummated before the issuance of any court order and involving a bona fide purchaser, encumbrancer, or tenant, without actual notice of the existence of the filing of a complaint or civil action [42 U.S.C. § 3613(d)].

The court may award the prevailing party, other than the United States, reasonable attorney's fees and costs. The United States is liable for such fees and costs to the same extent as a private person [42 U.S.C. § 3613(c)(2)]. However, the plaintiff is not entitled to attorney's fees if the defendant voluntarily changes its conduct before plaintiff obtains judicial relief [see Buckhannon Board & Care Home, Inc. v. West Virginia Dep't of Health & Human Resources (2001) 532 U.S. 598, 121 S. Ct. 1835, 1841-1843, 149 L. Ed. 2d 855] .

[iii] Jury Trial

When an action for damages is brought in federal courts, U.S. Const., amend. VII requires the availability of a jury trial. If equitable remedies are also sought, the jury will decide issues common to both sets of claims. If only equitable relief is requested, a jury is not required [Curtis v. Loether (1974) 415 U.S. 189, 195-196, 94 S. Ct. 1005, 39 L. Ed. 2d 260 (decided under former 42 U.S.C. § 3612)].

[e] Standing

The only requirement for standing to sue under the FHA is the U.S. Const., art. III requirement of injury in fact. As long as the plaintiff alleges distinct and palpable injuries that are fairly traceable to the defendant's actions, the injury in fact requirement is satisfied [Havens Realty Corp. v. Coleman (1982) 455 U.S. 363, 375-376, 102 S. Ct. 1114, 71 L. Ed. 2d 214 ; see Walker v. City of Lakewood (9th Cir. 2001) 263 F.3d 1005, 1012 (independent fair housing services provider engaged in advocacy efforts had standing to bring retaliation claims under FHA and FEHA, when it met minimal requirements of U.S. Const., art. III)]. Courts do not have the authority to create and apply new standing requirements [Walker v. City of Lakewood (9th Cir. 2001) 263 F.3d 1005, 1012 (court erroneously applied "rule of reason" barring FHA suits between parties to contract)]. There are three requirements for standing under Article III [Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife (1992) 504 U.S. 555, 560, 112 S. Ct. 2130, 119 L. Ed. 2d 351 ; Walker v. City of Lakewood (9th Cir. 2001) 263 F.3d 1005, 1013] :

- The plaintiff must have suffered an "injury in fact," that is, an invasion of a legally protected interest that is concrete and particularized, and actual or imminent;

- There must be a causal connection between the injury and the conduct of which the plaintiff complains; and

- It must be likely, as opposed to merely speculative, that the injury will be redressed by a favorable decision.

Pursuit of litigation alone does not constitute an injury sufficient to establish standing under Article III. Thus, standing must be established independent of the lawsuit filed by the plaintiff [Walker v. City of Lakewood (9th Cir. 2001) 263 F.3d 1005, 1013 n.3].

Claims brought under the FHA are to be judged under a very liberal standing requirement; unlike actions brought under other provisions of civil rights law, the plaintiff need not allege that he or she was a victim of discrimination [San Pedro Hotel Co. v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir. 1998) 159 F.3d 470, 475 ; see Gladstone Realtors v. Village of Bellwood (1979) 441 U.S. 91, 115, 99 S. Ct. 1601, 60 L. Ed. 2d 66 (caucasian residents have standing under FHA to challenge racial discrimination against African-Americans in their neighborhood)]. A plaintiff need only allege that as a result of the defendant's discriminatory conduct, the plaintiff suffered a distinct and palpable injury [Havens Realty Corp. v. Coleman (1982) 455 U.S. 363, 375-376, 102 S. Ct. 1114, 71 L. Ed. 2d 214 ; San Pedro Hotel Co. v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir. 1998) 159 F.3d 470, 475] .

Under the FHA, any person harmed by discrimination, whether or not the target of the discrimination, can sue to recover for his or her own injury, even when no housing has actually been denied to persons protected under the Act [San Pedro Hotel Co. v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir. 1998) 159 F.3d 470, 475 ; see Walker v. City of Lakewood (9th Cir. 2001) 263 F.3d 1005 (independent fair housing services provider engaged in advocacy efforts had standing to bring retaliation claims for injury in its ability to carry out its purposes to eliminate housing discrimination); Smith v. Stechel (9th Cir. 1975) 510 F.2d 1162, 1164 (real estate agent fired for renting apartments to minorities); Trafficante v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. (1972) 409 U.S. 205, 212, 93 S. Ct. 364, 34 L. Ed. 2d 415] .

Standing to sue under the FHA is not restricted to persons in protected classes who are the direct victims of discrimination. For example, when nonminority plaintiffs reside in a neighborhood from which racial minorities are steered, they may successfully allege that those steering practices have deprived them of the right to important social, professional, business and economic, political, and aesthetic benefits of interracial associations that arise from living in integrated communities free from discriminatory housing practices. Standing under this concept, however, has been upheld only within a relatively compact neighborhood [Havens Realty Corp. v. Coleman (1982) 455 U.S. 363, 376-378, 102 S. Ct. 1114, 71 L. Ed. 2d 214 ; Gladstone, Realtors v. Bellwood (1979) 441 U.S. 91, 112-115, 99 S. Ct. 1601, 60 L. Ed. 2d 66 ; see also TOPIC v. Circle Realty (9th Cir. 1976) 532 F.2d 1273, 1275 , cert. denied, 429 U.S. 859 (purported plaintiffs were spread out over such a wide metropolitan area that role played by racial steering was so attenuated as to negate existence of any injury in fact)].

Similarly, a minority person can maintain an action based solely on an indirect injury if he or she alleges a distinct and palpable injury resulting from the differential treatment [Harris v. Itzhaki (9th Cir. 1999) 183 F.3d 1043, 1050] .

In the case of discrimination against the disabled, the FHA does not restrict the right to bring an action to persons "associated" with a disabled persons. It allows anyone sustaining an actual injury from an alleged discriminatory housing practice to file suit [San Pedro Hotel Co. v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir. 1998) 159 F.3d 470, 475 ; Growth Horizons, Inc. v. Delaware County, Pa. (3d Cir. 1993) 983 F.2d 1277, 1282 n.7 (corporation providing community living arrangements for mentally ill had standing to bring suit under FHA for county's alleged discriminatory refusal to assume its leases)]. All the plaintiff need show is that the defendant interfered with the housing rights of the disabled and that, as a result, the plaintiff suffered an actual injury [San Pedro Hotel Co. v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir. 1998) 159 F.3d 470, 475-476 (plaintiffs who were potential sellers of property and were unable to sell their property because of City's allegedly improper interference with HUD loan had standing to sue under FHA); see Dirden v. HUD (8th Cir. 1996) 86 F.3d 112, 114 (landowner attempting to sell property allowed to state claim under FHA alleging discriminatory intent in city housing authority's refusal to negotiate); Oak Ridge Care Ctr. v. Racine County (E.D. Wis. 1995) 896 F. Supp. 867, 873 (seller of elderly care facility under existing nonconforming use agreement had standing under FHA); United States v. Scott (D. Kan. 1992) 788 F. Supp. 1555, 1561 (sellers of property who lost sale because of discriminatory practices had standing)].

If a plaintiff has suffered an actual injury, he or she may be permitted to prove that the rights of another are also infringed [Halet v. Wend Inv. Co. (9th Cir. 1982) 672 F.2d 1305, 1309 (white male with child denied housing at "no children" apartment complex had standing and could allege that apartment's policy discriminated against Hispanics and blacks, who tend to have more children)].

Sufficient injury for standing under the FHA may be shown through discriminatory acts excluding low-income persons of a minority race from a specified housing project. This is not a generalized grievance if it focuses on a particular project and is not dependent on speculation about possible actions of third parties not before the court, and when if relief were granted there would be a substantial probability that the plaintiff would be provided the housing sought [Arlington Heights v. Metro. Housing Corp. (1977) 429 U.S. 252, 264, 97 S. Ct. 555, 50 L. Ed. 2d 450 ; Keith v. Volpe (9th Cir. 1988) 858 F.2d 467, 483 , cert. denied, 493 U.S. 813 (1989)].

A district court's conclusion that a party does not have standing to sue under the FHA is reviewed de novo on appeal [Walker v. City of Lakewood (9th Cir. 2001) 263 F.3d 1005, 1012 ; San Pedro Hotel Co. v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir. 1998) 159 F.3d 470, 474-475] .

[f] Proof

To establish a prima facie case of withholding of housing for an unlawful reason under the FHA, a plaintiff must show at least that the defendant's actions had a discriminatory effect. Discriminatory effect means that the conduct of the defendant actually or predictably results in prohibited discrimination. The plaintiff need not make any showing that the action resulting in racial discrimination was racially motivated. The Ninth Circuit has not decided whether discriminatory effect alone is sufficient to establish a prima facie case [Keith v. Volpe (9th Cir. 1988) 858 F.2d 467, 482 , cert. denied, 493 U.S. 813 (1989) ; see Halet v. Wend Inv. Co. (9th Cir. 1982) 672 F.2d 1305, 1311 (showing of discriminatory effects may be sufficient to state cause of action)].

[8] Prevention of Intimidation

42 U.S.C. § 3631 sets forth penalties in the form of fines and imprisonment to prevent persons from intimidating other persons from exercising specified rights. Those penalties apply to whoever, whether or not acting under color of state law, by force or threat of force, attempts to or does willfully injure, intimidate, or interfere with any of the following persons [see 42 U.S.C. § 3631 (handicap as additional protected characteristic)]:

- Any person because of a protected characteristic and because he or she is or has been selling, purchasing, renting, financing, occupying, contracting, or negotiating for the sale, purchase, rental, financing, or occupation of any dwelling, or applying for or participating in any service, organization, or facility relating to the business of selling or renting dwellings.

- Any person because he or she is or has been, or in order to intimidate that person or any other person or any class of persons from, participating, without discrimination on account of a protected characteristic in any of the activities, services, organizations, or facilities described above; or affording another person or class of persons opportunity or protection to so participate.

- Any citizen because he or she is or has been, or in order to discourage that citizen or any other citizen from, lawfully aiding or encouraging other persons to participate, without discrimination on account of a protected characteristic in any of the activities, services, organizations, or facilities described above, or participating lawfully in speech or peaceful assembly opposing any denial of the opportunity to so participate.

"Threats" under 42 U.S.C. § 3631 are considered in light of the entire factual context, including the surrounding events and the reaction of the listeners. The fact that a threat is subtle does not make it less of a threat. If a threat is a "true threat," an individual may be convicted under 42 U.S.C. § 3631, even if he or she did not actually intend to carry out the threat [United States v. Gilbert (9th Cir. 1989) 884 F.2d 454, 457-458 , cert. denied, 493 U.S. 1082 (1990) (provisions of 42 U.S.C. § 3631 are applicable to work of adoption agencies)].

The penalties take the form of a fine, or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both. If bodily injury results, or if the violation includes the use or attempted use of a dangerous weapon, explosives, or fire, the penalty is a fine, or imprisonment for not more than 10 years, or both. If death results, or if the violation includes kidnapping, attempted kidnapping, aggravated sexual abuse, attempted aggravated sexual abuse, or any attempt to kill, the violator will be subject to a fine, or imprisonment for any term of years or for life, or both [see 42 U.S.C. § 3631].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMediationsCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsAge DiscriminationCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsExemptionsCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsLeasing & SalesCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsRacial Discrimination

171 of 195 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Federal Laws Relating to Housing Discrimination

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117.52

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

§ 117.52 Actions Under 42 U.S.C. § 1982

[1] Generally

42 U.S.C. § 1982 provides that all citizens of the United States have the same right, in every state and territory, as is enjoyed by white citizens thereof to inherit, purchase, lease, sell, hold, and convey real and personal property.

The federal Fair Housing Act (FHA) (42 U.S.C. §§ 3601-3631) and 42 U.S.C. § 1982 are separate housing laws, and the significance of each is in no way diminished by the existence of the other [see Sullivan v. Little Hunting Park (1969) 396 U.S. 229, 237, 90 S. Ct. 400, 24 L. Ed. 2d 386 ; Jones v. Mayer Co. (1968) 392 U.S. 409, 415, 88 S. Ct. 2186, 20 L. Ed. 2d 1189] .

42 U.S.C. § 1982 is not a comprehensive open housing law. It deals only with racial discrimination and does not address discrimination on grounds of religion or national origin, nor does it deal specifically with discrimination in the provision of services or facilities in connection with the sale or rental of a dwelling [Jones v. Mayer Co. (1968) 392 U.S. 409, 413-414, 88 S. Ct. 2186, 20 L. Ed. 2d 1189] .

For coverage of 42 U.S.C. § 1982 actions generally, see Chapter 113, Civil Rights: The Post-Civil War Civil Rights Statutes .

[2] Broadly Construed

42 U.S.C. § 1982 bars all racial discrimination, private as well as public, in the sale or rental of property [Memphis v. Greene (1981) 451 U.S. 100, 120-121, 101 S. Ct. 1584, 67 L. Ed. 2d 769 ; Jones v. Mayer Co. (1968) 392 U.S. 409, 413, 88 S. Ct. 2186, 20 L. Ed. 2d 1189] .

Section 1982 was intended to protect from discrimination identifiable classes of persons who are subjected to intentional discrimination solely because of their ancestry or ethnic characteristics. Although the definition of race and the identification of various racial groups have changed since the time of the enactment of § 1982, it is the definition of the racial groups in effect at that time that governs the application of § 1982 today [Shaare Tefila Congregation v. Cobb (1987) 481 U.S. 615, 617, 107 S. Ct. 2019, 95 L. Ed. 2d 594 (Jews and Arabs are protected races)].

To effectuate its remedial purposes, the language of 42 U.S.C. § 1982 has been broadly construed to protect not merely the enforceability of property interests acquired by black citizens, but also their right to acquire and use property on an equal basis with white citizens. Thus, private covenants imposing racial restrictions on the sale of property have been held unenforceable. 42 U.S.C. § 1982 encompasses every racially motivated refusal to sell or rent [Memphis v. Greene (1981) 451 U.S. 100, 120-122, 101 S. Ct. 1584, 67 L. Ed. 2d 769] .

Additionally, the property rights protected by § 1982 have been broadly defined. When an organization, such as a swim club, links membership benefits to residency in a narrow geographical area, those benefits are part of the rights for which an individual pays when buying or leasing within the area. Thus, § 1982 guarantees a nonwhite resident, who purchases, leases, or holds that property, the same rights as are enjoyed by a white resident [Memphis v. Greene (1981) 451 U.S. 100, 120-122, 101 S. Ct. 1584, 67 L. Ed. 2d 769 ; Tillman v. Wheaton- Tillman (1973) 410 U.S. 431, 437, 93 S. Ct. 1090, 35 L. Ed. 2d 403] . It is immaterial whether that membership is considered realty or personal property, as § 1982 covers both [Sullivan v. Little Hunting Park (1969) 396 U.S. 229, 236, 90 S. Ct. 400, 24 L. Ed. 2d 386] .

[3] Order and Burden of Proof

The elements of a prima facie case under 42 U.S.C. § 1982 require that a plaintiff prove all of the following [Phiffer v. Proud Parrot Motor Hotel (9th Cir. 1980) 648 F.2d 548, 551 ; Barber v. Rancho Mortgage & Inv. Corp. (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1819, 1833, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 906] :

- That he or she is a member of a racial minority;
- That he or she applied for and was qualified to rent or purchase certain real property or housing;
- That he or she was rejected; and
- That the housing or rental opportunity remained available thereafter.

One California court of appeal has applied the rules governing proof of "disparate treatment" in employment discrimination cases [see Ch. 115, Civil Rights: Employment Discrimination] to actions for racial discrimination in housing under 42 U.S.C. § 1982 [see Barber v. Rancho Mortgage & Inv. Corp. (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1819, 1833-1835, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 906] . Thus, the court held that once a plaintiff establishes a prima facie case of racial discrimination, a presumption of discrimination is created, and the burden shifts to the defendant to rebut the presumption by producing evidence of a legitimate, nondiscriminatory reason for its actions. The defendant's burden is only one of producing evidence; the burden of persuasion remains on the plaintiff. If the defendant rebuts the presumption by introducing admissible evidence that is sufficient to raise a genuine issue of fact as to whether the defendant discriminated against the plaintiff, the plaintiff may then attempt to demonstrate that the defendant's proffered reason was not the true reason for the defendant's decision. Plaintiff may succeed in this either (1) directly by persuading the trier of fact that a discriminatory reason more likely motivated the defendant or (2) indirectly by showing that the defendant's proffered explanation is unworthy of credence [Barber v. Rancho Mortgage & Inv. Corp. (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1819, 1834-1835, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 906 (relying on Texas Dep't of Community Affairs v. Burdine (1981) 450 U.S. 248, 254-256, 101 S. Ct. 1089, 67 L. Ed. 2d 207); see Green v. Rancho Santa Margarita Mortgage Co. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 686, 694, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706] . However, the mere fact that the jury disbelieves the defendant's explanation does not compel a verdict in the plaintiffs favor. In other words, the plaintiff retains the burden of proving actual discrimination [see Green v. Rancho Santa Margarita Mortgage Co. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 686, 694-695, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706 (relying on St. Mary's Honor Center v. Hicks (1993) 509 U.S. 502, 514-515, 113 S. Ct. 2742, 125 L. Ed. 2d 407)].

The extent to which a racially discriminatory motive need be shown is unclear. One Ninth Circuit decision has stated that racial motivation is not an element of the prima facie case; only a racial impact need be shown. The court reasoned that § 1982 represents an exercise of the power of Congress to eliminate the badges and incidents of slavery under the Thirteenth Amendment; it is not an attempt to effectuate the equal protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. Thus, courts may not analogize to equal protection cases [see Phiffer v. Proud Parrot Motor Hotel (9th Cir. 1980) 648 F.2d 548, 551-552] . Although it may be true that proof of racial motivation is not needed to establish a prima facie case, it is not clear that intent to discriminate is entirely irrelevant, or that discriminatory impact alone is sufficient to establish the right to relief under 42 U.S.C. § 1982. Under the Title VII "disparate treatment" cases to which the courts have analogized actions under § 1982, the plaintiff must ultimately establish an intent to discriminate, although such intent may be established by circumstantial evidence [see, e.g., American Federation of State, etc. v. Washington (9th Cir. 1985) 770 F.2d 1401, 1406] .

[4] Owner's Liability for Acts of Rental Agent

Discriminatory conduct on the part of a rental agent is attributable to the owner of a motel, apartment complex, or other housing facility. The duty of an owner to obey the laws relating to racial discrimination has been held to be nondelegable [Phiffer v. Proud Parrot Motor Hotel (9th Cir. 1980) 648 F.2d 548, 552] .

[5] Remedies

Federal courts have jurisdiction to award damages or equitable relief under any act of Congress providing for the protection of civil rights [see 28 U.S.C. § 1343(a)(4)]. Thus, although 42 U.S.C. § 1982 is couched in declaratory terms, and provides no explicit method of enforcement, a federal court has the power to fashion an effective equitable remedy. Moreover, that federal remedy for the protection of a federal right is available in a state court, if the state court is empowered to grant injunctive relief generally [Sullivan v. Little Hunting Park (1969) 396 U.S. 229, 238, 90 S. Ct. 400, 24 L. Ed. 2d 386] .

Further, the existence of a statutory right implies the existence of all necessary and appropriate remedies. The choice of law regarding compensatory damages for deprivation of federal civil rights is governed by federal standards, as provided in 42 U.S.C. § 1988(a). Federal or state rules regarding damages may be utilized, whichever better serves the policies expressed in the federal statutes [Sullivan v. Little Hunting Park (1969) 396 U.S. 229, 239-240, 90 S. Ct. 400, 24 L. Ed. 2d 386] .

In awarding compensatory damages based on racial discrimination, the plaintiff's humiliation and emotional distress should be the basis for the award; the defendant's "politeness" does not justify a minimal award [see Johnson v. Hale (9th Cir. 1994) 13 F.3d 1351, 1354 ($250 compensatory damages award remanded with orders to award at least $3,500 plus costs and attorney's fees)].

When an individual is wrongfully denied commercial office space, the damages available include damages from wages lost while arranging different office space, as well as damages for emotional distress and humiliation [Phiffer v. Proud Parrot Motor Hotel (9th Cir. 1980) 648 F.2d 548, 552-553] .

Punitive damages are also available for violations of 42 U.S.C. § 1982. Actual malice is unnecessary to support such an award; rather, it need only be shown that the defendant acted "with such conscious and deliberate disregard of the consequences of his or her actions to others that his or her conduct is wanton" [Phiffer v. Proud Parrot Motor Hotel (9th Cir. 1980) 648 F.2d 548, 553 (repeated refusal to rent available office space was sufficient to establish wanton nature of defendant's conduct when coupled with proof that the space was offered to white applicant); but see Fountila v. Carter (9th Cir. 1978) 571 F.2d 487, 495 (award of $5,000 in punitive damages could not stand when award of actual damages was only $1); see also Jones v. Mayer Co. (1968) 392 U.S. 409, 414 n.14, 88 S. Ct. 2186, 20 L. Ed. 2d 1189 (plaintiff not entitled to punitive damages when injunctive relief enabled him to buy home at market price at time of wrongful refusal, which was substantially less than current market value)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesDamagesCompensatory DamagesCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingProperty Rights (sec. 1982)Private DiscriminationCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingProperty Rights (sec. 1982)Protected RightsCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingProperty Rights (sec. 1982)Remedies

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Federal Laws Relating to Housing Discrimination

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 117.53-117.59

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

[Reserved]

§§ 117.53[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117.60

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

§ 117.60 Related Matthew Bender Publications

For thorough discussion of federal civil rights legislation and actions, see J. Cook & J. Sobieski, Civil Rights Actions (Matthew Bender)

For related jury instructions regarding FEHA and civil rights generally, see Judicial Council Of California Civil Jury Instructions (CACI), Series 2500 and 3000 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender, Official Publisher), also available in LexisNexis Automated Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsJury InstructionsGeneral OverviewCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117.61

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

§ 117.61 Federal Constitution

Due process clause, applicable to federal government. U.S. Const., amend. V

Sovereign immunity of states. U.S. Const., amend. XI

Privileges and immunities, due process, and equal protection clauses, applicable to states. U.S. Const., amend. XIV

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Constitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessGeneral OverviewConstitutional LawEqual ProtectionScope of ProtectionConstitutional LawPrivileges & Immunities

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117.62

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

§ 117.62 State Constitution

Prohibition against restrictions on entry into vocation, trade, profession, business, or employment based on sex, race, creed, color, or national or ethnic origin. Cal. Const., art. I, § 8

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117.63

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

§ 117.63 Federal Statutes

Home Owners' Loan Act. 12 U.S.C. § 1461 et seq.

Home Mortgage Disclosure Act of 1975. 12 U.S.C. § 2801 et seq.

Equal Credit Opportunity Act. 15 U.S.C. § 1691 et seq.

Jurisdiction of United States District Courts in civil rights cases. 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331, 1343, 1344

Equal rights under law. 42 U.S.C. § 1981

Property rights of citizens. 42 U.S.C. § 1982

Civil action for deprivation of civil rights under color of state law. 42 U.S.C. § 1983

Conspiracy to interfere with civil rights. 42 U.S.C. § 1985

Neglect to prevent conspiracy to interfere with civil rights. 42 U.S.C. § 1986

State law applicable in federal civil rights actions. 42 U.S.C. § 1988(a)

Recovery of attorney's fees in civil rights actions. 42 U.S.C. § 1988(b)

Discrimination prohibited in federally assisted programs. 42 U.S.C. §§ 2000d-2000d-6 (Title VI of Civil Rights Act of 1964)

Federal Fair Housing Act. 42 U.S.C. §§ 3601-3631 (Titles VIII and IX of Civil Rights Act of 1968)

Discrimination prohibited in programs and activities receiving community development funds. 42 U.S.C. § 5309

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Banking LawFederal ActsHome Mortgage Disclosure ActCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingEqual Rights Under the Law (sec. 1981)General OverviewCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsGeneral OverviewCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingProperty Rights (sec. 1982)General OverviewCivil Rights LawSection 1983 ActionsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117.64

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

§ 117.64 State Statutes

Unruh Civil Rights Act. Civ. Code § 51

Housing discrimination based on age prohibited. Civ. Code § 51.2

Housing for senior citizens. Civ. Code §§ 51.3, 51.4

Freedom from violence or threat of violence because of protected characteristics. Civ. Code § 51.7

Remedies for discrimination. Civ. Code § 52

Action for injunctive relief from interference with rights by threats, intimidation, coercion, or violence. Civ. Code § 52.1

Discriminatory restrictions on ownership or use of real property void. Civ. Code § 53

Right of disabled persons to full and equal access to housing accommodations. Civ. Code § 54.1(b)

Restrictions in deeds based on characteristic listed in Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA) are void. Civ. Code § 782

Restrictions in deeds or other documents based on characteristic listed in FEHA are deemed omitted by law. Civ. Code § 782.5

Mobilehome Residency Law. Civ. Code § 798 et seq.

Refusal to rent to tenant with waterbed in conformance with standards prohibited. Civ. Code § 1940.5

California Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA). Gov. Code § 12900 et seq.

Discrimination prohibited in local planning and zoning. Gov. Code § 65008

Licensed foster family home may not be prohibited from family portion of mobilehome park. Health & Safety Code § 1566.8

Discrimination prohibited in community redevelopment projects. Health & Safety Code § 33050

Leases pertaining to community redevelopment projects must contain nondiscrimination clauses. Health & Safety Code §§ 33337, 33435, 33436

Prohibition of discrimination in financing of housing. Health & Safety Code § 35800 et seq.

Allocation of portion of state-financed low-income housing for occupancy by elderly. Health & Safety Code § 51230

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesDamagesCompensatory DamagesCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsGeneral OverviewCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsAge DiscriminationCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsDisability Discrimination

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117.65

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

§ 117.65 Federal Regulations

Fair Housing Home Loan Data System. 12 C.F.R. § 27.1 et seq.

Fair housing loans by banks. 12 C.F.R. § 338.1 et seq.

Equal housing lending by savings and loan associations. 12 C.F.R. § 528.1 et seq.

Discrimination prohibited in federally assisted programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development under Title VI. 24 C.F.R. § 1.1 et seq.

Accessibility standards for publicly owned residential structures. 24 C.F.R. §§ 40.1-40.7

Policies and procedures for enforcement of accessibility requirements. 24 C.F.R. §§ 41.1-41.6

Discriminatory conduct under Fair Housing Act. 24 C.F.R. § 100.1 et seq.

Complaint processing under Fair Housing Act. 24 C.F.R. § 103.1 et seq.

Nondiscrimination and equal opportunity in housing under Executive Order 11063. 24 C.F.R. § 107.10 et seq.

Compliance procedures for affirmative fair housing marketing. 24 C.F.R. § 108.1 et seq.

Fair housing posters. 24 C.F.R. § 110.1 et seq.

Certification and funding of state and local fair housing enforcement agencies. 24 C.F.R. § 115.100 et seq.

Fair housing initiatives program. 24 C.F.R. § 125.103 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Banking LawDepository InstitutionsFederal Savings AssociationsCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsGeneral OverviewCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsEnforcementCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsFair Housing ActCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsLeasing & Sales

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117.66

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

§ 117.66 State Regulations

Real estate licensees prohibited from engaging in discrimination and panic selling. 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 2780-2782

Discrimination in providing financing for housing. 21 Cal. Code Reg. § 7100 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117.66A

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

§ 117.66A California Civil Jury Instructions (CACI)

For related jury instructions in cases involving the Fair Employment and Housing Act, see Judicial Council Of California Civil Jury Instructions (CACI), Series 2500 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender, Official Publisher), also available in LexisNexis Automated Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions

For related jury instructions regarding civil rights actions generally, see Judicial Council Of California Civil Jury Instructions (CACI), Series 3000 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender, Official Publisher), also available in LexisNexis Automated Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsJury InstructionsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117.67

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

§ 117.67 Decisions

[1] California Fair Employment and Housing Act

African-American home buyer and her real estate agent, who was also African-American, failed to make prima facie case of housing discrimination under FEHA based on race or disability against Caucasian home seller and Caucasian listing agents, where seller refused to engage in seller carryback provision, and, because neither plaintiff attempted to meet seller's terms, they could not be considered qualified for purposes of establishing prima facie case; where, because offer included seller carryback provision notwithstanding purchase price 10 percent above list price, buyer could not say she was similarly situated to Caucasian who eventually purchased house for just under list price amount; and where, despite allegations of awkwardness or lack of enthusiasm, neither plaintiff produced evidence that listing agents disparaged buyer or agent on account of their race or treated only African-American or disabled individuals as they treated buyer, and there was no evidence that ultimate buyer was aided by or customer of listing agents. Fact that ultimate buyer and plaintiff were of different races was not enough to establish prima facie case of discrimination where there was no evidence both of them were clients of same listing agents. McDonald v. Coldwell Banker (9th Cir. 2008) 543 F.3d 498, 503-505

Independent fair housing services provider engaged in advocacy efforts, which had standing to bring retaliation claim against city under FHA, had standing to bring retaliation claim under FEHA. Walker v. City of Lakewood (9th Cir. 2001) 263 F.3d 1005

Amendments to Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA), in particular judicial option provision which gives both sides in FEHA administrative proceeding choice to adjudicate matter in court [Gov. Code § 12989], give Commission authority to award emotional distress damages under Gov. Code § 12987(a)(4). Konig v. Fair Employment and Housing Commission (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 743, 747-758, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 50 P.3d 718

Unmarried cohabiting couples protected from housing discrimination by Smith v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 1143, 1160, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 700, 913 P.2d 909

Allegation that mortgage lender refused to lend on homes operating day care centers stated claim under FEHA for intentional discrimination on basis of source of income, and claim for violation of FEHA on disparate impact theory under Gov. Code § 12955.8 by alleging that mortgage lender's policies disproportionately affected women and families with children, because those two protected classes comprised higher percentage of daycare home operators in relevant county than percentages of those groups found generally in county. Nonprofit housing corporation had standing to sue as "aggrieved person" under FEHA because it alleged it was required to divert scarce resources to address lender's alleged wrongful conduct. Sisemore v. Master Financial, Inc. (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1386, 1402-1426, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 719

Condominium homeowners association failed to make reasonable accommodation of disabilities of condominium owners by not making exception to rule prohibiting dogs as companion animals, when owners were disabled within meaning of FEHA, including suffering from depression, their disabilities interfered with use and enjoyment of their home and having companion dog improved situation, and conclusion that companion dog in this case constituted reasonable accommodation for disabilities was supported by substantial evidence. Further, if homeowners association needed additional information about medical condition or need to keep companion dog, association was obligated to request it, and it could not simply sit back and deny request for reasonable accommodation because it did not think sufficient information had been presented or that condominium owners had spoken magic words required to claim protections of FEHA. Auburn Woods I Homeowners Ass'n v. Fair Employment & Housing Comm. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1578, 1590-1599, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 669

Trial court erred in denying petition by DFEH for order compelling compliance with investigative discovery seeking rental applications and rental agreements from landlord's agent accused of discrimination on basis of race and marital status; subpoena was properly served, information was sought with sufficient particularity to permit response, information was reasonably relevant to complaint, and Department's interest in prohibiting housing discrimination outweighed any privacy interest of applicants denied housing or accepted as renters. Department of Fair Employment and Housing v. Superior Court (Keller) (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 896, 904-905, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615

FEHA prohibits sexual harassment. Brown v. Smith (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 767, 782, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 301

County ordinance prohibiting discrimination against persons who test positive for HIV not preempted by FEHA, at least in part because purpose of two laws is different. Citizens for Uniform Laws v. County of Contra Costa (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1468, 1473-1475, 285 Cal. Rptr. 456 (decided before FEHA applied to disability)

Refusal to rent to unmarried couple impermissible discrimination on basis of marital status. Hess v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 232, 234-237, 187 Cal. Rptr. 712

[2] Unruh Civil Rights Act

Condominium owners' association is a business establishment that may not discriminate against children by imposition of age restriction. O'Connor v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 790, 795-797, 191 Cal. Rptr. 320, 662 P.2d 427

Apartment complex is a business establishment that may not discriminate against children by imposition of age restriction. Marina Point, Ltd. v. Wolfson (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 721, 731, 180 Cal. Rptr. 496, 640 P.2d 115 , cert. denied, 459 U.S. 858

Person aggrieved by violation of Unruh Act entitled to injunctive relief, and may bring action for such relief on behalf of all persons similarly situated. Vargas v. Hampson (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 479, 481, 20 Cal. Rptr. 618, 370 P.2d 322

Liability of real estate brokers for refusal to rent to plaintiff on basis of race. Lee v. O'Hara (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 476, 478, 20 Cal. Rptr. 617, 370 P.2d 321

Allegation that mortgage lender rejected mortgage application because it did not lend on homes operating day care for profit stated claim under Unruh Act, because arbitrary occupational discrimination is prohibited under Act. Sisemore v. Master Financial, Inc. (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1386, 1402-1409, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 719

Enforcement of restrictive covenant, which limited use of property to single family residences, against residential care facility for elderly, which, through operation of Health & Safety Code § 1566.5, was not inconsistent with single family residential use, did not constitute age discrimination under Unruh Act, when thrust of restrictions was prohibition of multiple family dwellings and nonresidential use, not prohibition of residence of elderly. Barrett v. Lipscomb (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1524, 1533-1534, 240 Cal. Rptr. 336

Division of condominium complex into "adult" and "family" regions, and exclusion of children under 16 years of age from residing in adult region and from using adult pools, was not unreasonable or arbitrary age discrimination, but was reasonable differential treatment based on differences in needs of users. Sunrise Country Club Assn. v. Proud (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 377, 380-382, 235 Cal. Rptr. 404

Real estate broker did not have cause of action under Unruh Act against real estate developer who refused to do business with him when broker was speculator who had previously tried to profit at developer's expense despite signed contract to contrary; developer's action was personal, based on individual conduct of broker, rather than arbitrary. Frantz v. Blackwell (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 91, 95, 234 Cal. Rptr. 178

Restrictive covenant limiting residents of housing development to those aged 45 years and over was invalid. Park Redlands Covenant Control Comm. v. Simon (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 87, 93, 226 Cal. Rptr. 199

County ordinance prohibiting discrimination in rental housing on basis of age, parenthood, pregnancy, or presence of minor child was not preempted by Unruh Act; Civ. Code § 52(e) expressly provides that actions under Unruh Act are independent of any other remedies or procedures that may be available to aggrieved party. San Jose Country Club Apartments v. County of Santa Clara (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 948, 951-952, 187 Cal. Rptr. 493

"Business establishment" includes rental housing. Hubert v. Williams (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 3 , 184 Cal. Rptr. 161

Unruh Act prohibits owners of mobile home park from discriminating against tenants for associating with and subrenting their mobile home space to blacks. Winchell v. English (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 125, 129, 133 Cal. Rptr. 20

Civ. Code § 52 imposes liability on anyone who aids or incites denial of equal privileges protected by Civ. Code § 51; if realty board was party to agreement or concerted action to deny rights under Unruh Act, common law rules applicable to joint tortfeasors apply to impose liability on it. Wagner v. O'Bannon (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 121, 132, 79 Cal. Rptr. 44

Unruh Act is applicable to builders and sellers of houses in housing tract. Don Wilson Builders v. Superior Court (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 77, 78-82, 33 Cal. Rptr. 621

Renting triplex is "business enterprise" under Unruh Act. Swann v. Burkett (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 685, 694-695, 26 Cal. Rptr. 286

[3] Senior Citizen Housing

Blanket exclusion of all families with minor children from apartment complex is violation of Unruh Act; however, age qualifications in housing facility reserved for older citizens is permissible. Marina Point, Ltd. v. Wolfson (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 721, 741-743, 180 Cal. Rptr. 496, 640 P.2d 115 , cert. denied, 459 U.S. 858

Factors that suggest housing designed with senior citizens in mind include individual units that are small in size, one story, and require no yard work, and the grouping of such units around extensive communal recreational and educational facilities. Huntington Landmark Adult Community Assn. v. Ross (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 1012, 1018-1019, 261 Cal. Rptr. 875

If housing development was constructed before Civ. Code § 51.3 came into effect and its design is already suited to seniors, rehabilitation or renovation of existing structures will not be required. Bliler v. Covenant Control Com. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 18, 26-27, 252 Cal. Rptr. 50

[4] Discriminatory Restrictive Covenants Regarding Real Property

Civ. Code § 53 was enacted to effectuate same general goals as Unruh Act. Park Redlands Covenant Control Comm. v. Simon (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 87, 93, 226 Cal. Rptr. 199

Restrictive reading of prohibited bases of discrimination in Civ. Code § 53 would be at odds with all-inclusive scope of its coverage; nonprofit organization violated § 53 by establishing retirement community for Theosophists and restricting ownership and occupancy to persons who had been members of their society for three years, or had been approved by board of trustees. Taormina Theosophical Community, Inc. v. Silver (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 964, 975, 190 Cal. Rptr. 38

[5] Financing for Housing

If state-conferred rights granted by Holden Act are to be enforced against federal savings and loan associations by any regulatory body, enforcement must be by Bank Board. Conference of Federal Sav. & Loan Ass'ns v. Stein (9th Cir. 1979) 604 F.2d 1256, 1260 , aff'd, 445 U.S. 921, 100 S. Ct. 1304, 63 L. Ed. 2d 754 (1980)

[6] State Promotion of Discrimination

Proposition enacted with clear intent to overturn state laws that prohibited discrimination by private sellers and lessors of real property, and to forestall future state action that might circumscribe such discrimination, held unconstitutional as violation of equal protection clause of federal constitution. Mulkey v. Reitman (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 529, 534-535, 50 Cal. Rptr. 881, 413 P.2d 825 , aff'd, 387 U.S. 369, 87 S. Ct. 1627, 18 L. Ed. 2d 830 (1967)

[7] Federal Fair Housing Act

Fair Housing Act (FHA) is governed by traditional vicarious liability rules and tort principles and did not create non-delegable duty not to discriminate based on race. Thus, sole owner and president of realty company could not be held liable for discriminatory actions of broker in his office based on FHA-derived non-delegable duty or as designated officer/broker of realty company based solely on his right to control broker. Meyer v. Holley (2003) 537 U.S. 280, 285-290, 123 S. Ct. 824, 154 L. Ed. 2d 753

When state Legislature eliminated former requirement of "self-preservation" for residents of care homes providing assisted living after filing of lawsuit under Fair Housing Amendments Act of 1988, 42 U.S.C. § 3600 et seq. and Americans with Disabilities Act, plaintiffs were not entitled to attorney's fees award under "catalyst theory," under which plaintiff is prevailing party if it achieves desired result because lawsuit brought about voluntary change in defendant's conduct, since state's voluntary change lacked necessary judicial imprimatur. Buckhannon Board & Care Home, Inc. v. West Virginia Dep't of Health & Human Resources (2001) 532 U.S. 598, 121 S. Ct. 1835, 1841-1843, 149 L. Ed. 2d 855

District court's imposition of contempt sanction against two city council members for failing to vote in favor of legislation implementing consent decree earlier approved by city after it had been found liable for intentionally enhancing racial segregation in housing in violation of Fair Housing Act was abuse of discretion. Spallone v. United States (1990) 493 U.S. 265, 273-280, 110 S. Ct. 625, 107 L. Ed. 2d 644

Fair Housing Act requires town to strike zoning provision that restricts private multifamily housing projects to urban renewal area with cluster of minority population. Town of Huntington v. NAACP (1988) 488 U.S. 15, 16-18, 109 S. Ct. 276, 102 L. Ed. 2d 180

Nonprofit housing corporation has standing under Fair Housing Act when defendant's steering practices have perceptibly impaired its ability to provide counseling and referral services for low and moderate income homeseekers; concrete and demonstrable injury to organization's activities with resultant drain on its resources constitutes more than simple setback to its abstract social interests. Havens Realty Corp. v. Coleman (1982) 455 U.S. 363, 378-379, 102 S. Ct. 1114, 71 L. Ed. 2d 214

Caucasian residents have standing under FHA to challenge racial discrimination against African-Americans in their neighborhood. Gladstone Realtors v. Village of Bellwood (1979) 441 U.S. 91, 115, 99 S. Ct. 1601, 60 L. Ed. 2d 66

FHA applied to post-acquisition discrimination, and district court erred in dismissing in its entirety claim under FHA against city alleging discrimination in provision of services to existing homeowners and renters in specific neighborhoods on basis of race or ethnicity. However, to extent complaint alleged violations related to certain municipal services, plaintiffs were bound by agreement limiting their claims regarding services to areas of sewer access, police services, and bilingual assistance, and plaintiffs failed to put forth evidence of disparate impact with regard to provision of sewer services or infrastructure, so that remanding those claims would have been futile because evidence of FHA violations would have been same statistical evidence rejected in course of resolving equal protection claims, and reinstatement of FHA claims was thus limited to those regarding timely provision of law-enforcement personnel. Committee Concerning Community Improvement v. City of Modesto (9th Cir. 2009) 583 F.3d 690, 713-715

District court erred in dismissing class action by African-American homeowners' insurance policy owner against homeowners' insurance company alleging that he and other minorities received less favorable pricing than Caucasians as result of discriminatory credit evaluative and scoring system developed and administered by insurer in violation of FHA, where court read complaint as challenging credit scoring per se, when in fact it challenged only use of undisclosed factors in credit scoring and disparate impact that resulted, so that district court erroneously concluded that claim "impaired" state law because it challenged credit scoring per se. Court also erred in interpreting state's credit scoring law as permitting disparate impact race discrimination despite evidence state legislature intended to prohibit insurers from engaging in unfair discrimination so that federal FHA claim was not reverse-preempted by McCarran-Ferguson Act. Ojo v. Farmers Group, Inc. (9th Cir. 2009) 565 F.3d 1175, 1183

African-American home buyer and her real estate agent, who was also African-American, failed to make prima facie case of housing discrimination under FHA based on race or disability against Caucasian home seller and Caucasian listing agents, where seller refused to engage in seller carryback provision, and, because neither plaintiff attempted to meet seller's terms, they could not be considered qualified for purposes of establishing prima facie case; and where, because offer included seller carryback provision notwithstanding purchase price 10 percent above list price, buyer could not say she was similarly situated to Caucasian who eventually purchased house for just under list price amount. McDonald v. Coldwell Banker (9th Cir. 2008) 543 F.3d 498, 505-506

Town did not violate Federal Fair Housing Act by refusing to grant special use permit to develop to build senior retirement community that did not comply with the applicable zoning ordinances, where developer failed to raise genuine dispute of fact with respect to first element of prima facie case of disparate treatment as to whether community would house individuals with disabilities, because potential residents did not presently qualify as disabled under FHAA simply because some of them would become disabled as they aged, and developer did not set forth evidence to create triable issue of fact fourth element, i.e., whether town approved special use permit for similarly situated party during period relatively near time it denied developer special use permit; where developer failed to present prima facie case of disparate impact, because developer set forth no evidence from which the court could conclude that the town's permit practices had disproportionate impact on disabled or there was triable issue of fact as to impact of town's permit practices on disabled; and where developer failed to present triable issue of fact as to town's failure to make reasonable accommodation, because undisputed facts did not support that potential residents suffered from handicap as defined by FHAA and there was insufficient evidence to establish that community's amenities were necessary to house disabled seniors. Budnick v. Town of Carefree (9th Cir. 2008) 518 F.3d 1109, 1113-1120

In private civil actions based on design-and-construction claim under Fair Housing Act, district court properly granted defendants summary judgment, where two-year statute of limitations began to run at conclusion of design-and-construction phase, which occurred on date last certificate of occupancy was issued, which occurred long before plaintiffs brought suit. Garcia v. Brockway (9th Cir. 2007) 503 F.3d 1092, 1095-1101

City's men-only policy at homeless shelter was facially discriminatory regarding women and families, and plaintiffs raised serious questions regarding merits of city's proffered justifications for men-only policy, so that there was no dispute balance of hardships tipped in plaintiffs' favor. District court abused its discretion by denying plaintiffs' request under Fair Housing Act for preliminary injunction requiring reinstatement of shelter residents excluded by men-only policy. However, plaintiffs did not raise prima facie case of disparate treatment based on disability, where record showed both former residents of shelter who were moved out and former residents of other shelter who were moved in had substantial numbers of disabled individuals in their ranks. While there may be lower percentage of disabled persons among new residents, factual finding was not clearly erroneous and there was no evidence any plaintiffs were treated differently because of their disability. District court did not abuse its discretion by denying preliminary injunction regarding disability discrimination claims. Community House, Inc. v. City of Boise (9th Cir. 2006) 468 F.3d 1118, 1123-1128

District court properly dismissed action under FHA by condominium owner against condominium association for failure to accommodate disability based on association's alleged failure to allow service dog to help alleviate owner's roommate's depression. Association granted owner and roommate temporary exemption from bylaw precluding animals and never required dog to leave and thus never refused to make requested accommodation. Dubois v. Association of Apartment Owners (9th Cir. 2006) 453 F.3d 1175, 1178-1179

By proving that city's decision to deny approval for low income housing project disparately impacted minorities and families with children, housing corporation still failed to establish liability for discrimination under FHA. Although it made prima facie showing of discrimination, city rebutted showing by demonstrating that it executed its congressionally mandated duties under Tax Equity and Financial Responsibility Act in denying bond financing approval by holding public hearing and vote on bond financing approval question and deciding after considering local residents' views, city priorities and housing needs, wisdom of preferential financing for project, and other relevant considerations to which elected representatives normally give weight in executing their office. Further, jury found that city's decision was not motivated by hostility to race, ethnicity, or family size, city had legitimate nondiscriminatory reasons, and housing corporation did not demonstrate that reasons were sham or pretextual. Affordable Housing Dev. Corp. v. City of Fresno (9th Cir. 2006) 433 F.3d 1182, 1193-1196

Because California law makes designated real estate broker of real estate corporation personally responsible for supervision of corporation's salespersons, real estate office's designated real estate broker was personally responsible for supervision of salespersons, and when broker delegated responsibility to sales agent, he created agency relationship between himself and agent, which made broker vicariously liable as principal for discriminatory actions of agent under Fair Housing Act. Further, agent acted within scope of agency when he committed act of discrimination, because alleged discrimination occurred when agent was supervising another agent, which was broker's duty under California law and therefore within scope of duty broker delegated to agent. Holley v. Crank (9th Cir. 2005) 400 F.3d 667, 671-674

Given broad remedial scope of Fair Housing Act and liberal pleading requirements for housing discrimination claims, plaintiff with AIDS made out claim under Fair Housing Amendments Act for failure to accommodate his disability by denying his request for additional time to clean up his yard to comply with city's nuisance abatement ordinance. McGary v. City of Portland (9th Cir. 2004) 386 F.3d 1259, 1261-1264

History and language of FHA and FHAA make clear that testers fall within protected group of persons that may enforce rights created by 42 U.S.C. § 3604(f)(2) when they are violated by discriminatory housing conditions, so that district court's denial of reconsideration and leave to amend to tester who had no actual rental or purchase interest in property was abuse of discretion. Disability rights organization also made sufficient showing to support its claim of organizational standing to withstand dismissal. Smith v. Pacific Properties & Dev. Corp. (9th Cir. 2004) 358 F.3d 1097, 1101-1106

Standards for pleading housing discrimination claims under FHA are no higher than relaxed notice pleading standard of Fed. R. Civ. Proc. 8(a), i.e., short and plain statement of claim showing pleader is entitled to relief. Trial court erred in dismissing complaint under FHA which, on fair reading, alleged that plaintiff put mobile home park on notice that she believed it attempted to intimidate, threaten, or interfere with her for having aided or encouraged women tenants to complain about discrimination in terms, conditions, or privileges of sale or rental of dwelling because of sex, alleged that all other tenants in her section of park were offered long-term leases at time she was denied one, i.e., that mobile home park took action directed specifically towards her, hoping to coerce her into ceasing her activism on behalf of women tenants claiming sex discrimination, thus adequately setting forth gravamen of plaintiff's claim under 42 U.S.C. § 3617. Edwards v. Marin Park, Inc. (9th Cir. 2004) 356 F.3d 1058, 1061-1063

Fair Housing Amendments Act (FHAA) [42 U.S.C. § 3601 et seq.] required apartment owners reasonably to accommodate disability of man with AIDS by assessing individually risk of non-payment created by his specific proposed financial arrangement, i.e., having his mother pay rent for him, rather than inflexibly applying rental policy that forbids cosigners, because direct causal link existed between man's impairment, his inability to work, and his inability to comply with defendants' minimum income requirement relying solely on his individual income, and accommodation requirement reaches adjustments in means of proving financial responsibility. Giebeler v. M&B Assocs. (9th Cir. 2003) 343 F.3d 1143, 1146-1159

Community fair housing organization had standing to sue landlord for racial discrimination under federal Fair Housing Act after receiving complaints that landlord was racially discriminating against black tenants and black potential tenants and conducting two sets of controlled tests which indicated landlord discriminated against black applicants, when organization showed drain on its resources from both diversion of its resources and frustration of its mission. Fair Housing of Marin v. Combs (9th Cir. 2002) 285 F.3d 899

Independent fair housing services provider engaged in advocacy efforts had standing to bring retaliation claims against city by showing direct and immediate injuries at least indirectly attributable to city's actions, when provider alleged facts showing that city delayed payments under contract, attempted to interfere with investigation of fair housing complaints, failed to renew contract, filed retaliatory and frivolous third-party complaint against provider and its executive director, and made negative comments to at least one city administrator from another city regarding provider's performance under its contract so as to attempt to interfere with provider's attempt to renew its contract with that city; provider stated cognizable claim against city for retaliation under FHA, when provider alleged that in response to protected advocacy, city engaged in series of actions designed to coerce and intimidate provider into changing or ceasing their activities; because FHA explicitly preempts any state law purporting to require or permit action that would be discriminatory housing practice, court could not defer to state contract law principles. Trial court erroneously granted summary judgment to city, when provider presented prima facie case of retaliation, city met its burden of articulating legitimate, nondiscriminatory reasons for its actions, and provider presented sufficient evidence to show disputed issue of material fact as to whether city's articulated reasons were pretextual. Walker v. City of Lakewood (9th Cir. 2001) 263 F.3d 1005

Nothing in Housing and Community Development Act (HCDA) suggests that aggrieved party may not proceed under FHA, which explicitly provides for private right of action [42 U.S.C. § 3613], if defendant's use of HCDA funds violates FHA; because HCDA was enacted after FHA, to hold otherwise would be to work highly-disfavored repeal by implication. Walker v. City of Lakewood (9th Cir. 2001) 263 F.3d 1005

In action by partnership organized to purchase and develop low-income housing at mobilehome park against city, alleging violation of 42 U.S.C. § 3604 of Federal Fair Housing Act for city's refusal to consent to partnership's development of low-income housing at mobilehome park, trial court erroneously conditioned denial of city's motion for new trial after jury verdict awarding damages in amount of $3,040,439 on partnership's acceptance of remittitur to $388,146.20, when jury verdict was not against clear weight of evidence; further, trial court erroneously excluded amount of damages based on partnership's failure to mitigate, when there is no legal authority to support proposition that party harmed by another's violation of Fair Housing Act has duty to mitigate, and, even assuming partnership had duty to mitigate, purchasing park without benefit of state housing program mortgage, which city refused to approve, was not reasonable option; finally, trial court abused its discretion in denying permanent injunction from further violation of Fair Housing Act by shifting burden of proving irreparable injury to partnership, when because partnership established city's violation of Act, future violation should be presumed. Silver Sage Partners v. City of Desert Hot Springs (9th Cir. 2001) 251 F.3d 814

African-American was aggrieved person within meaning of Fair Housing Act, and had standing to sue former landlords for damages based on both indirect and direct injuries, when she alleged she suffered distinct and palpable injury resulting from differential treatment of African-Americans, and when she claimed she was injured directly by eviction notices given contrary to established policy and claimed injury from manager's discriminatory statements. Harris v. Itzhaki (9th Cir. 1999) 183 F.3d 1043, 1051-1055

To state claim for retaliation under FHA, plaintiff must show (1) that he/she engaged in "protected activity," (2) that defendant's subsequent activities were causally linked with plaintiff's exercise of protected activity, and (3) that plaintiff suffered some resulting damage. San Pedro Hotel Co. v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir. 1998) 159 F.3d 470, 477

Courts apply Title VII discrimination analysis in examining claims of discrimination brought under FHA. Gamble v.

City of Escondido (9th Cir. 1997) 104 F.3d 300, 304

Award of compensatory damages under 42 U.S.C. § 3614(d)(1)(B) is mandatory, not discretionary, if party has proven unlawful discrimination and actual damages. United States v. City of Hayward (9th Cir. 1994) 36 F.3d 832, 839-840 , cert. denied, 516 U.S. 813 (1995)

Fair Housing Act is applicable to municipalities. Keith v. Volpe (9th Cir. 1988) 858 F.2d 467, 482 , cert. denied, 493 U.S. 813 (1989)

Consent decree establishing affirmative action plan specific to blacks who had been discriminated against, without joining as necessary parties nonblack minorities who had also been discriminated against, was inequitable. Shimkus v. Gersten Cos. (9th Cir. 1987) 816 F.2d 1318, 1320-1322

Action brought under 42 U.S.C. § 3617 has different limitation period than action brought under 42 U.S.C. § 3610 or 3612; importance of unusual promptness in resolving disputes concerning rights to housing does not exist if grievance is not loss or lack of housing but is, instead, injury resulting from wrongful interference or retaliation. Smith v. Stechel (9th Cir. 1975) 510 F.2d 1162, 1164

[8] Actions Under 42 U.S.C. § 1982

Definition of racial groups in effect at time of enactment of 42 U.S.C. § 1982 governs its application today. Shaare Tefila Congregation v. Cobb (1987) 481 U.S. 615, 617, 107 S. Ct. 2019, 95 L. Ed. 2d 594

42 U.S.C. § 1982 bars all racial discrimination, private as well as public, in sale or rental of property. Memphis v. Greene (1981) 451 U.S. 100, 120-121, 101 S. Ct. 1584, 67 L. Ed. 2d 769

Fair Housing Act (42 U.S.C. § 3601 et seq.) and 42 U.S.C. § 1982 are separate housing laws, and significance of each is in no way diminished by existence of other. Sullivan v. Little Hunting Park (1969) 396 U.S. 229, 237, 90 S. Ct. 400, 24 L. Ed. 2d 386

42 U.S.C. § 1982, barring racial discrimination with regard to citizens' property rights, properly read together with Fair Housing Act (FHA) (42 U.S.C. § 3601 et seq.) so as not to preempt local housing legislation that more detailed FHA explicitly preserves. Hunter v. Erickson (1969) 393 U.S. 385, 388, 89 S. Ct. 557, 21 L. Ed. 2d 616

42 U.S.C. § 1982 deals only with racial discrimination and does not address discrimination on grounds of religion or national origin; nor does § 1982 deal specifically with discrimination in provision of services or facilities in connection with sale or rental of a dwelling. Jones v. Mayer Co. (1968) 392 U.S. 409, 413-414, 88 S. Ct. 2186, 20 L. Ed. 2d 1189

In awarding compensatory damages based on racial discrimination, plaintiff's humiliation and emotional distress should be basis for award; defendant's "politeness" does not justify minimal award. Johnson v. Hale (9th Cir. 1994) 13 F.3d 1351, 1354

Elements of prima facie case under 42 U.S.C. § 1982 require that plaintiff prove (1) that he or she is a member of a racial minority, (2) that he or she applied for and was qualified to rent or purchase certain real property or housing, (3) that he or she was rejected, and (4) that housing or rental opportunity remained available thereafter. Phiffer v. Proud Parrot Motor Hotel (9th Cir. 1980) 648 F.2d 548, 551 ; Barber v. Rancho Mortgage & Inv. Corp. (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1819, 1833, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 906

Award of $5,000 in punitive damages could not stand in 42 U.S.C. § 1982 case, when award of actual damages was only $1. Fountila v. Carter (9th Cir. 1978) 571 F.2d 487, 495

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJusticiabilityStandingGeneral OverviewCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsAge DiscriminationCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsDisability DiscriminationCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsFamily Status DiscriminationCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsGender & Sex DiscriminationCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsLeasing & Sales

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117.68

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

§ 117.68 Attorney General Opinions

Prohibition against unauthorized use for housing of registered sex offender identifying information obtained from California "Megan's Law" web site [Pen Code § 290.46(k)] does not in itself qualify registered sex offenders as "protected class" for purposes of housing discrimination under Fair Employment and Housing Act. 05 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 301 (2006)

Notwithstanding prohibition against age discrimination in Planning and Zoning Law [Gov. Code § 65000 et seq.], a city may adopt zoning ordinance or issue conditional use permit that limits specified parcel of land to use as mobilehome park for senior citizens pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 18300(g)(1). 87 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 148 (2004)

City may not prohibit "adults only" mobilehome parks. 65 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 559 (1982)

Refusal to rent or termination of tenancy based solely on tenant's receipt of welfare benefits prohibited arbitrary discrimination. 59 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 223 (1976)

Discrimination in provision of housing on basis of occupation, marital status, or number of children prohibited by Unruh Act. 58 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 608 (1975)

Real estate broker's response to inquiry from prospective buyer regarding ethnic composition of neighborhood permitted if response is factual and given in good faith. 58 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 155 (1975)

Unruh Act is applicable to persons who sell, rent, or lease housing accommodations. 56 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 546 (1973)

Real estate broker's response to inquiry from owner regarding ethnic background of prospective buyer prohibited. 53 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 196 (1970)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsEconomic DiscriminationCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsFamily Status DiscriminationCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsGender & Sex DiscriminationCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsLeasing & SalesCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsNational Origin Discrimination

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117.69

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

§ 117.69 Law Reviews

Godschalk, Protected Petitioning or Unlawful Retaliation? The Limits of First Amendment Immunity for Lawsuits Under the Fair Housing Act, 27 Pepp. L. Rev. 477 (2000)

Comment, Rethinking Conciliation Under the Fair Housing Act, 67 Tenn. L. Rev. 425 (2000)

Selmi, Public vs. Private Enforcement of Civil Rights: The Case of Housing and Employment, 45 UCLA L. Rev. 1401 (1998)

Comment, Residential Zoning Regulations and the Perpetuation of Apartheid, 43 UCLA L. Rev. 1689 (1996)

Note, The Religious Landlord and the Conflict Between Free Exercise Rights and Housing Discrimination Laws--Which Interest Prevails?, 47 Hastings L.J. 1669 (1996)

Symposium, A Fair Housing Enforcement Symposium: A Focus on Special Issues Affecting the Disabled, Families with Children, and the First Amendment , 29 J. Marshall L. Rev. 315 (1996)

Williams, Can Government Limit Tenant Blacklisting?, 24 Sw. U. L. Rev. 1077 (1995)

Field, Why Our Fair Share Housing Laws Fail, 34 Santa Clara L. Rev. 35 (1993)

Comment, When the Medium Becomes the Message: A Proposal for Principal Media Liability for the Publication of Racially Exclusionary Real Estate Advertisements, 40 UCLA L. Rev. 199 (1992)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsGeneral OverviewCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsEnforcementCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsFair Housing ActPublic Health & Welfare LawHousing & Public BuildingsFair HousingReal Property LawZoning & Land UseBuilding & Housing Codes

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117.70

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

§ 117.70 Text References

California Residential Landlord-Tenant Practice, ch. 2, Selection of Tenants; ch. 8, Mobilehome Tenancies (Cal. C.E.B. 1986)

Miller and Starr, California Real Estate, vol. 5, Estates; Restraints; Discrimination (2d ed. 1989)

Witkin, Summary of California Law, vol. 8, Constitutional Law (10th ed. 2005)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 117.71-117.79

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

[Reserved]

§§ 117.71[Reserved]

186 of 195 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART IV. FORMS
A. Complaint and Allegations in State Court

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117.80

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

§ 117.80 Complaint in State Court for Damages and Preliminary and Permanent Injunction for Violation of California Fair Employment and Housing Act--Refusal to Rent or Sell [Gov. Code §§ 12927(c), 12955(a), 12980(h)]

[1] FORM Complaint in State Court for Damages and Preliminary and Permanent Injunction for Violation of California Fair Employment and Housing Act--Refusal to Rent or Sell [Gov. Code §§ 12927(c), 12955(a), 12980(h)]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff, vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES AND PRELIMIN-
[and DOES I through _____,]	)	ARY AND PERMANENT INJUNCTION
Defendant(s).	)	(California Fair Employment and Housing Act)
	)
	)

_____

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [state capacity and residence of defendant, e.g., a resident of _____ County, California, or a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of California with its principal place of business in _____ (city), _____ County, California].

[2. _____ (Allege facts establishing venue; otherwise, venue will be based on defendant's residence as alleged in Paragraph 1, e.g., Defendant denied accommodations to plaintiff in _____ County, in violation of the California Fair Employment and Housing Act, as alleged below or The relevant records pertaining to defendant's violation of the California Fair Employment and Housing Act, as alleged below, are maintained and administered in _____ County).]

3. _____ [Specify facts showing how defendants are subject to the California Fair Employment and Housing Act, e.g., Defendant _____ (name) is the owner of the housing accommodation located at _____ (address), _____ (city), California, and defendant _____ (name) is the managing agent with authority to _____ (rent or sell) this housing accommodation.]

[4. Defendants Doe I through Doe _____, inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names. Their true names and capacities are unknown to plaintiff. When their true names and capacities are ascertained, plaintiff will amend this complaint by inserting their true names and capacities herein. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those defendants.)]

5. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that,] [A]t all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [name] was the managing agent of defendant _____ [name] and defendants _____ [names] were employees of the managing agent, and the managing agent and these employees [in doing the things hereinafter alleged] were acting within the course and scope of such agency and with the permission and consent of defendant _____ [name].

6. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff _____ [made an offer or offered to negotiate] to _____ [rent or buy] the housing accommodation at _____ [street address], _____ [city], California.

[EITHER]

7. Plaintiff's offer was refused by defendants, and defendants made the dwelling unavailable to plaintiff and denied plaintiff all opportunity to _____ [rent or buy] the housing accommodation.

[OR]

7. Defendants responded to plaintiff's offer to negotiate by refusing to negotiate for the _____ [rental or sale] of the housing accommodation.

[OR]

7. Defendant _____ [name] represented that the housing accommodation was not available for _____ [rental or sale] when in fact it was so available.

[OR]

7. Defendants agreed to _____ [rent or sell] the housing accommodation, but, on or about _____ [date], defendants _____ [canceled or terminated] the _____ [rental or sale] agreement.

[OR]

7. Defendants' response to plaintiff's offer was _____ [to impose on the transaction the following _____ (terms or conditions) or to provide in connection with the transaction the following _____ (privileges or facilities or services)] that were inferior to the _____ [terms or conditions or privileges or facilities or services] offered to other members of the public, that is: _____ [specify terms, conditions, privileges, facilities, or services].

[OR]

7. Defendant's response to plaintiff's offer was to deny or withhold housing accommodations by _____ [specify method of denial or withholding, e.g., referring plaintiff to a financial institution that would delay the transaction until past the date when plaintiff was expected to obtain financial assistance or the use of an income-to-rent ratio that unrealistically required the rent to be no more than one fourth of plaintiff's income].

[OR]

7. Defendant agreed to rent the housing accommodation, but denied plaintiff's request for permission _____ [specify reasonable modification of existing premises necessary to afford plaintiff full enjoyment of the premises, e.g., to remove all doors from the interior of the house to enable plaintiff, who uses a wheelchair, easier access to the rooms], even though plaintiff intended to make this accommodation at his/her own expense and _____ [include facts indicating agreement to restore the premises to the premodification condition on vacating the premises, e.g., agreed to rehang all doors when she moved].

[OR]

7. Defendant agreed to rent the housing accommodation, but denied plaintiff's request for _____ [specify reasonable accommodation in rules, policies, practices, or services necessary to afford plaintiff full enjoyment of the premises, e.g., permission to park a van in the parking spot assigned to his unit, because of a rule prohibiting vans in the covered parking structure, even though plaintiff, who uses a wheelchair, must drive a van to accommodate his wheelchair].

[CONTINUE]

8. Plaintiff filed a complaint with the Department of Fair Employment and Housing pursuant to Government Code

Section 12980(a) on _____ [date], but _____ [after 100 days, plaintiff's complaint had not been resolved and the Department had not issued a written accusation against defendants or within 100 days, the Department determined not to issue a formal complaint against defendants].

9. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff was [a person of] _____ [specify characteristic protected from discrimination, e.g., the black race or Chinese ancestry or the female sex or unmarried].

10. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that] [D]efendants' actions in response to plaintiff's _____ [offer or offer to negotiate] was because of plaintiff's _____ [race or color or religion or sex or sexual orientation, or marital status or national origin or ancestry or familial status or source of income or disability].

11. Defendant's wrongful conduct is continuing in that defendants _____ [specify actions constituting continuing wrongful conduct as alleged above].

12. Unless defendant _____ [name] is restrained by a preliminary and permanent injunction of this court, plaintiff's injury will be great and irreparable. Plaintiff has no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy at law because the housing accommodations at _____ [street address], _____ [city], California, that plaintiff offered to _____ [rent or purchase] from defendants and that defendants refused and still refuse to _____ [rent or sell] to plaintiff will be _____ [rented or sold] to others to the exclusion of plaintiff.

13. _____ [Set forth any actual damages sustained as a proximate result of defendants' action.]

[14. The above-recited actions of defendant(s) were done with malice, fraud, or oppression, and in reckless disregard of the plaintiff's rights. Specifically, _____ (set forth facts showing malice, fraud, or oppression, within the meaning of Civ. Code § 3294).]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment [against defendants, and each of them,] as follows:

1. For general damages [in the sum of $_____];

[2. For special damages _____ (in the sum of $_____ or according to proof);]

3. For attorney's fees pursuant to Government Code Section 12980(h);

[4. For punitive damages;]

5. For a preliminary injunction and a permanent injunction enjoining defendants and defendants' agents, servants, and employees and all persons acting under, in concert with, or for defendants, from _____ [specify, e.g., disposing of the housing accommodation to any other person];

6. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

7. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [date]

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by a plaintiff in an action for damages and preliminary and permanent injunctive relief for violation of the California Fair Employment and Housing Act based on refusal to rent or sell a housing accommodation [see Gov. Code §§ 12927(c), 12955(a), 12980(h)]. The complaint is for use after the Department of Fair Employment and Housing (DFEH) declines to issue an accusation [see Gov. Code § 12980(h)].

With appropriate modifications, this form may be used in either of the following circumstances [see Gov. Code §§ 12989, 12989.1]:

- When the action is the result of the complainant's election to have the complaint judicially adjudicated rather than resolved through the administrative proceeding; or

- When the action is filed in lieu of filing a complaint with the Department of Fair Employment and Housing (DFEH).

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges all of the following:

- The defendant's capacity and basis for venue (Paragraph 1 and Optional Paragraph 2) [see Gov. Code § 12980(h)].

- Facts showing that the defendant is subject to the Fair Employment and Housing Act (Paragraph 3) [see Gov. Code § 12927(d), (e)].

- An optional fictitious name ("DOE") allegation (Optional Paragraph 4) [see Civ. Code § 474; see also Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used].

- An agency allegation (Paragraph 5) [see Ch. 427, Principal and Agent].

- Facts showing the nature of the defendants' wrongful conduct (Paragraph 6 and alternative versions of Paragraph 7) [see Gov. Code §§ 12927(c), 12955(a)].

- Facts showing the plaintiff's compliance with jurisdictional requirements (Paragraph 8) [see Gov. Code § 12980(a), (h)].

- Any characteristics of the plaintiff that are protected (Paragraph 9) [see Gov. Code § 12955(a)].

- The relationship between the defendants' wrongful conduct and the plaintiff's protected characteristics (Paragraph 10).

- The continuing nature of the defendants' wrongful conduct (Paragraph 11).

- Facts showing why the plaintiff lacks an adequate remedy at law and that the plaintiff will suffer great and irreparable injury (Paragraph 12) [Civ. Code § 3422(1)-(3); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(2)-(6); see Wind v. Herbert (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 276, 285, 8 Cal. Rptr. 817] .

- Any damages incurred by the plaintiff (Paragraph 13) [see Civ. Code § 3333].

- An optional allegation that the actions of the defendants were done with malice, fraud, or oppression, and in reckless disregard of the plaintiff's rights (Optional Paragraph 14). This optional allegation, if appropriate under the circumstances, would support recovery of punitive damages [see Civ. Code § 3294].

[4] Prayer

Other than an award of attorney's fees, Gov. Code § 12980(h) does not state what remedies the court may provide. The complaint in [1], above, assumes that damages provided by Civ. Code §§ 3294 and 3333 for breach of an obligation not arising from contract apply to this cause of action. If, however, the court is limited to the remedial powers of the Fair Employment and Housing Commission stated in Gov. Code § 12987, then recovery is limited to actual damages, a civil penalty, and reasonable attorney's fees and costs.

[5] Temporary Restraining Order

If a temporary restraining order is sought without notice, it must be shown either by verified complaint or by affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) that great or irreparable injury would result to the applicant before the matter can be heard on notice. The plaintiff's attorney is also required to certify under oath that certain steps were taken and reasons existed for the lack of formal notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204(b)]. If a temporary restraining order is granted, it will issue with an order to show cause, on the hearing of which the court will determine whether to grant a preliminary injunction [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. For further discussion and forms regarding temporary restraining orders, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[6] Verification

Verification [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction on a complaint instead of on an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . Otherwise, verification is not required.

For discussion, a procedural checklist, and forms necessary to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

Verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer in a superior court action other than a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446] and precludes a general denial in superior court and some limited civil cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[7] Statute of Limitations

An aggrieved person may bring a civil action against the respondent when DFEH declines to issue an accusation. The action must be brought within the time period specified in Gov. Code § 12989.1 [Gov. Code § 12980(h); for discussion of Gov. Code § 12989.1, see § 117.17[3]].

[8] Cross References

For alternative allegations as to agency, capacity, and residence of parties, and fictitious name allegations, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used

For discussion and forms relating to amendment of pleadings for use when an unknown defendant is sued under a fictitious name, see Ch. 21, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings

For alternative forms of captions and introductions, see Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions

For discussion and forms relating to the format of complaints, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints

For discussion and forms relating to damages, see Ch. 177, Damages

For discussion and forms relating to temporary restraining orders, preliminary injunctions, and permanent injunctions, see Ch. 303, Injunctions

For discussion of jurisdiction in California courts, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal , and Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter

For forms of allegations of infliction of emotional distress, see Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress

For alternative forms of prayers, see Ch. 420, Prayers

For discussion and forms relating to service of summons, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers

For forms of allegations establishing venue, see Ch. 571, Venue

For alternative forms of verification, see Ch. 572, Verification

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART IV. FORMS
A. Complaint and Allegations in State Court

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117.81

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

§ 117.81 Allegations for Use in Complaints for Violation of Unruh Civil Rights Act [Civ. Code § 51]--Refusal of Realtors, and Contractors or Condominium Association, to Rent or Sell

[1] FORM Allegations for Use in Complaints for Violation of Unruh Civil Rights Act [Civ. Code § 51]--Refusal of Realtors, and Contractors or Condominium Association, to Rent or Sell

1. At all times herein mentioned, defendants _____ [names] were real estate brokers with offices at _____ [street address], _____ [city], California, and their services as real estate brokers were retained to _____ [rent or sell] the premises at _____ [street address], _____ [city], California.

[2. At all times herein mentioned, defendants _____ (names of contractors or condominium association) maintained, operated, and controlled a business establishment within California for the (rental or sale) of housing accommodations in a _____ (tract or development) known as _____ (name) in _____ (city), California, and offered _____ (houses or condominiums) for _____ (rent or sale) to the public.]

[EITHER, if alleging discrimination by brokers only]

3. Defendants _____ [names of real estate brokers], as real estate brokers, were authorized and empowered to render their services to plaintiff and all members of the public in connection with the _____ [rental or sale or offering for rent or sale] of the above-specified premises. Prior to and on _____ [date], plaintiff sought and requested the services of defendants to procure for plaintiff the possession of those premises as _____ [tenant or purchaser] on the terms and conditions on which those premises were offered for _____ [occupancy or sale]. On _____ [date], defendants, and each of them, refused plaintiff their services and refused to _____ [rent or sell] to plaintiff or to arrange for plaintiff to _____ [rent or buy] those premises _____ [if the discriminatory act was not the refusal to rent or sell to plaintiff, but the imposition of additional conditions or requirements, specify, e.g., unless plaintiff paid a security deposit of 10 times the amount of the monthly rent].

[OR, if alleging discrimination by brokers as agents]

3. Defendants _____ [names of real estate brokers], as real estate brokers, at all times herein mentioned, were engaged in the business of real estate brokers, were the agents and employees of defendants _____ [names of contractors or condominium association], and were acting in the course and scope of their authority as such and pursuant to the instructions given to them. On _____ [date], defendants, and each of them, refused plaintiff their services and refused to _____ [rent or sell] to plaintiff or to arrange for plaintiff to _____ [rent or buy] those premises _____ [if the discriminatory act was not the refusal to rent or sell to plaintiff, but the imposition of additional conditions or requirements, specify, e.g., unless plaintiff paid a security deposit of 10 times the amount of the monthly rent].

[2] Use of Form

The allegations in [1], above, are for use by a plaintiff in an action for damages for violation of the Unruh Civil Rights Act because of discrimination by a real estate broker in refusing to rent or sell [Civ. Code § 51]. These allegations may be used in conjunction with the form complaint in Ch. 116, Civil Rights: Discrimination in Business Establishments, § 116.80 (Complaint for Damages and Preliminary and Permanent Injunction for Violation of Unruh Civil Rights Act--General Form).

Optional Paragraph 2 is for use when the real estate broker is acting as the agent of a contractor or condominium association. The alternative forms of Paragraph 3 are for use to allege discrimination by brokers only or by brokers who are acting as agents.

[3] Application of Unruh Civil Rights Act

Although the California Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA) (Gov. Code § 12900 et seq.) prohibits housing discrimination and provides for proceedings before the Fair Employment and Housing Commission in cases of alleged housing violations, nothing contained in FEHA is construed to limit or restrict, in any manner or way, the application of the Unruh Civil Rights Act [Gov. Code § 12993(c)].

Although Civ. Code § 51(b) prohibits discrimination on the basis of disability, the Unruh Civil Rights Act does not require construction, alteration, repair (structural or otherwise), or modification of any sort whatsoever to any new or existing establishment, facility, building, improvement, or any other structure, beyond construction, alteration, repair, or modification that is otherwise required by other provisions of law [Civ. Code § 51(d)].

[4] Cross References

For a general form of complaint under the Unruh Act, see Ch. 116, Civil Rights: Discrimination in Business Establishments, § 116.80

For discussion and forms relating to the format of complaints, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART IV. FORMS
A. Complaint and Allegations in State Court

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117.82

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

§ 117.82 Allegations for Use in Complaints for Violation of Unruh Civil Rights Act [Civ. Code § 51]--Exclusion or Expulsion From Apartment Complex or Condominium Association

[1] FORM Allegations for Use in Complaints for Violation of Unruh Civil Rights Act [Civ. Code § 51]--Exclusion or Expulsion From Apartment Complex or Condominium Association

1. At all times herein mentioned, defendant was the _____ [owner or association of owners] of _____ [name of apartment complex or description of real property, or name of condominium association], a business establishment engaged in the business of _____ [renting and managing apartments to or maintaining and managing condominium units for] members of the public.

[EITHER]

2. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff made application with defendant to _____ [rent or buy] a(n) _____ [apartment or condominium unit] located at _____ [street address], _____ [city], California.

3. _____ [Tenancy or Ownership] in defendant's [apartments or condominium units] at _____ [street address], _____ [city], California, is restricted _____ [describe discriminatory restriction in contravention of Unruh Act, e.g., to persons 21 years of age or older].

[OR]

2. From _____ [date] until _____ [date], plaintiff lived in the _____ [apartment or condominium units] located at _____ [street address], _____ [city], California.

3. On _____ [date], defendant _____ [name of owner or association of owners] placed a restriction on all _____ [apartments or condominium units] at _____ [street address], _____ [city], California, restricting the _____ [rental or ownership] of all _____ [apartments or condominium units] to _____ [describe discriminatory restriction in contravention of Unruh Act, e.g., all persons 21 years of age or older].

[CONTINUE]

4. The restriction placed on the above-mentioned _____ [apartments or condominium units] discriminated against plaintiff in that _____ [specify, e.g., plaintiff has children aged seven and nine], causing plaintiff to be _____ [excluded or expelled] from living in the above-mentioned _____ [apartment or condominium unit].

[2] Use of Form

The allegations in [1], above, are for use by a plaintiff in an action for damages for violation of the Unruh Civil Rights Act based on prohibited discrimination by an apartment owner or condominium owners' association [see Civ. Code § 51; O'Connor v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 790, 795-797, 191 Cal. Rptr. 320, 662 P.2d 427 ; Marina Point, Ltd. v. Wolfson (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 721, 731, 180 Cal. Rptr. 496, 640 P.2d 115 , cert. denied, 459 U.S. 858] .

The allegations set forth that the defendant is a business establishment within the meaning of the Unruh Act (Paragraph 1), and that the plaintiff was expelled or excluded from the apartment complex or condominium because of defendant's imposition of an arbitrary and discriminatory restriction (Paragraphs 2-4).

These allegations may be used in conjunction with the form in Ch. 116, Civil Rights: Discrimination in Business Establishments, § 116.80 (Complaint for Damages and Preliminary and Permanent Injunction for Violation of Unruh Civil Rights Act--General Form).

[3] Cross References

For a general form of complaint under the Unruh Act, see Ch. 116, Civil Rights: Discrimination in Business Establishments, § 116.80

For discussion and forms relating to the format of complaints, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART IV. FORMS
A. Complaint and Allegations in State Court

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 117.83-117.89

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

[Reserved]

§§ 117.83[Reserved]

190 of 195 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART IV. FORMS
B. Complaint and Allegations in Federal Court

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117.90

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

§ 117.90 Complaint in United States District Court for Damages and Injunction for Violation of Federal Fair Housing Act--Discrimination in Sale or Rental of Housing [42 U.S.C. § 3604(a), (b)]

[1] FORM Complaint in United States District Court for Damages and Injunction for Violation of Federal Fair Housing Act--Discrimination in Sale or Rental of Housing [42 U.S.C. § 3604(a), (b)]

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,
_____ DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

_____ [name], Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name], Defendant(s).	)	COMPLAINT AND DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL
	)	(Federal Fair Housing Act) [42 U.S.C. §§ 3604(a), (b), 3613(a), (c)]
	)

_____

DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL

Plaintiff alleges:

[1. This is an action for racial discrimination in housing brought pursuant to Title VIII of the Civil Rights Act of 1968, as amended and set forth in 42 United States Code Section 3604, for remedies for housing discrimination against plaintiff because of plaintiff's _____ (allege prohibited basis for discrimination under Title VIII, e.g., race) by defendant(s) _____ (name(s)). Plaintiff _____ (name) alleges that defendant(s) _____ (has or have) (allege adverse housing action, e.g., denied housing) to plaintiff because of _____ (specify protected characteristic, e.g., her race). By this action plaintiff seeks all legal and equitable relief to which he/she may be entitled, including, but not limited to compensatory and punitive damages, attorney's fees and costs, prejudgment interest, and injunctive relief against defendant(s) _____ (name(s)).]

2. Plaintiff _____ [name] is _____ [specify race, color, religion, sex, familial status, or national origin, e.g., a member of the black race].

3. Plaintiff is an adult person who resides in the County of _____, State of California.

4. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [specify capacity, e.g., a corporation], engaged in the business of _____ [specify, e.g., constructing and selling homes]. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [specify, e.g., vice-president and sales manager] of defendant _____ [name].

5. On or about _____ [date], defendant _____ [name] had possession, as _____ [specify, e.g., owner], of the dwelling located at _____ [street address], _____ [city], California. The dwelling was vacant and was being offered for _____ [sale or rental] on the following terms and conditions: _____ [specify terms].

6. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff _____ [made a bona fide offer or offered to negotiate] to _____ [buy or rent] the above-described dwelling. The offer was made to defendant _____ [name] in the following manner: _____ [specify].

7. Jurisdiction of the subject matter of this action is established in this court under Title VIII of the Civil Rights Act of 1968, as amended and set forth in 42 United States Code Section 3613(a).

[EITHER]

8. Plaintiff's offer was refused by defendants and defendants made the dwelling unavailable to plaintiff and denied plaintiff all opportunity to _____ [buy or rent] the dwelling.

[OR]

8. Defendants responded to plaintiff's offer by imposing the following terms and conditions on, and by restricting the following privileges in, the transaction: _____ [specify].

[OR]

8. Defendants responded to plaintiff's offer by restricting and denying the following services and facilities in connection with residing in that dwelling as _____ [an owner or a tenant]: _____ [specify].

[CONTINUE]

9. Defendants' treatment of plaintiff in _____ [refusing to deal with him/her or imposing additional terms and conditions in the transaction or denying services and facilities related to the residence] was discriminatory because it was based on plaintiff's _____ [specify protected characteristic, e.g., race].

10. As a proximate result of defendants' action against plaintiff, as alleged above, plaintiff has been harmed in that plaintiff _____ [specify damages incurred, e.g., has been forced to reside in a city 50 miles from where she works, and has been forced to pay a higher rent and suffered commuting costs]. As a result of such discrimination and consequent harm, plaintiff has suffered damages _____ [in the amount of $_____ or in an amount according to proof].

[11. As a further proximate result of defendant's discriminatory action against plaintiff, as alleged above, plaintiff has been harmed in that plaintiff has suffered _____ (specify any special damages incurred). As a result of such discrimination and consequent harm, plaintiff has suffered damages _____ (in the amount of $_____ or in an amount according to proof).]

[12. As a further proximate result of defendant's discriminatory action against plaintiff, as alleged above, plaintiff has been harmed in that plaintiff has suffered humiliation, mental anguish, and emotional and physical distress, and has been injured in mind (and body) as follows: _____ (describe injury). As a result of such discrimination and consequent harm, plaintiff has suffered damages _____ (in the amount of $_____ or in an amount according to proof).]

[13. The above-recited action of defendant in _____ (specify e.g., denying plaintiff housing) was done with malice, fraud, oppression, or in reckless disregard of the rights of plaintiff under 42 United States Code Section 3604. Specifically, _____ (set forth all facts on which the claim of malice, fraud, oppression, or reckless disregard is based).]

[14. No adequate remedy exists at law for the injuries suffered by plaintiff herein, insofar as the housing opportunity that defendant has denied to plaintiff cannot be secured absent injunctive relief. If this court does not grant injunctive relief of the type and for the purpose specified below, plaintiff will suffer irreparable injury. Therefore, plaintiff requests the following injunctive relief: _____ (specify nature and extent of injunctive relief sought, e.g., that defendant be restrained from selling the above described dwelling to anyone other than plaintiff, and be ordered to accept plaintiff's offer, which complies with all of the defendants' requirements and on which plaintiff remains ready, willing, and able to perform).]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff requests judgment as follows:

1. For general damages _____ [in the amount of $_____ or in an amount according to proof];

[2. For special damages _____ (in the amount of $_____ or in an amount according to proof);]

[3. For punitive damages in an amount appropriate to punish defendants for their wrongful conduct and set an example for others;]

[4. For injunctive relief as specified in Paragraph 14, above;]

5. For reasonable attorney's fees pursuant to 42 United States Code Section 3613(c);

6. For costs of suit herein incurred pursuant to 42 United States Code Section 3613(c); and

7. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

_____ [date]

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL

Plaintiff _____ [name] hereby demands a jury trial.

_____ [date]

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by a plaintiff in an action for damages and preliminary and permanent injunction for violation of the federal Fair Housing Act (FHA) (42 U.S.C. § 3601 et seq.) based on discrimination in the sale or rental of housing [see 42 U.S.C. § 3604(a), (b)].

No action may be commenced once a hearing has commenced on a charge issued by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) [42 U.S.C. § 3613(a)(3)].

Although actual and punitive damages, as well as permanent and temporary injunctive relief, are available, any relief granted will not affect any contract, sale, encumbrance, or lease consummated before the granting of that relief and involving a bona fide purchaser, encumbrancer, or tenant, without actual notice of the filing of an administrative complaint or a civil action [42 U.S.C. § 3613(c)(1), (d)].

[3] Allegations

The form of complaint in [1], above, contains all of the following:

- An introductory paragraph stating generally the substance of the complaint (Paragraph 1).

- The identity, protected characteristic, and residence of the plaintiff (Paragraphs 2 and 3), and the identity and capacity of the defendant (Paragraph 4) [see 42 U.S.C. § 3604(a), (b)].

- The factual background of the discrimination (Paragraphs 5 and 6) [see 42 U.S.C. §§ 3603(a)(2), 3604(a), (b)].

- The federal court's jurisdiction (Paragraph 7) [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 8(a)].

- The defendant's discriminatory conduct (alternative forms of Paragraphs 8) [see 42 U.S.C. § 3604(a), (b)].

- The relationship between the conduct and the plaintiff's protected characteristics (Paragraph 9).

- Actual damages incurred by the plaintiff (Paragraph 10) [see 42 U.S.C. § 3613(c)(1)].

- Optional paragraphs to allege special damages, emotional distress, and physical injury (Optional Paragraphs 11 and 12) [see 42 U.S.C. § 3613(c)(1)].

- The plaintiff's right to punitive damages (Optional Paragraph 13) [see 42 U.S.C. § 3613(c)(1)].

- Facts showing that the plaintiff is entitled to injunctive relief (Optional Paragraph 14) [see 42 U.S.C. § 3613(c)(1)].

[4] Prayer

The prayer in the form complaint in [1], above, seeks preliminary and permanent injunctive relief. The prayer also seeks recovery of compensatory damages, including special damages, and damages for emotional distress and physical injury.

The complaint in [1], above, also includes an optional prayer for punitive damages. In a case when the violation of plaintiff's rights was motivated by evil motive or intent, or involved reckless or callous indifference to the plaintiff's federally protected rights [see Smith v. Wade (1983) 461 U.S. 30, 56, 103 S. Ct. 1625, 75 L. Ed. 2d 632 (42 U.S.C. § 1983 case)], punitive damages would be recoverable. If the facts do not involve evil motive or intent, or reckless or callous indifference to the plaintiff's federally protected rights, the optional punitive damages allegation (Optional Paragraph 13) and the optional prayer for punitive damages should not be used.

Moreover, the prayer includes a prayer for attorney's fees. 42 U.S.C. § 3613(c) specifically provides for the recovery of attorney's fees in FHA cases.

[5] Statute of Limitations

When based on an alleged discriminatory housing practice, an action based on the FHA must be brought no later than two years after the occurrence or the termination of that practice [42 U.S.C. § 3613(a)(1)(A)]. The two-year period does not include any time during which a related administrative proceeding is pending [42 U.S.C. § 3613(a)(1)(B) (not applicable to action arising from breach of conciliation agreement)].

If the action is based on breach of a conciliation agreement, the action must be filed no later than two years after the breach [42 U.S.C. § 3613(a)(1)(A)]. In that case, the purpose of the action must be to enforce the terms of that agreement [42 U.S.C. § 3613(a)(2)].

[6] Jurisdiction and Venue

The action may be brought in an appropriate federal district court or state court [42 U.S.C. § 3613(a)(1)(A)].

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use in a federal district court; if the complaint is filed in a state court, the caption must be modified, and Paragraph 7 and the demand for a jury trial should be deleted.

[7] Cross References

For alternative forms of allegations for use in Fair Housing Act complaints, see §§ 117.91 -117.95

For alternative forms of captions and introductions, see Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions

For discussion and forms relating to the format of complaints, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints

For discussion and forms relating to damages and pleading damages, see Ch. 177, Damages

For discussion and forms of jurisdictional allegations for use in federal court, and for discussion and forms relating to removal of actions to federal court, see Ch. 265, Federal Courts: Jurisdiction and Removal

For alternative forms of prayers, see Ch. 420, Prayers

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART IV. FORMS
B. Complaint and Allegations in Federal Court

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117.91

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

§ 117.91 Allegations for Use in Complaints for Violation of Federal Fair Housing Act [42 U.S.C. §§ 3604-3606]--Discrimination in Advertising [42 U.S.C. § 3604(c)]

[1] FORM Allegations for Use in Complaints for Violation of the Federal Fair Housing Act [42 U.S.C. §§ 3604-3606]--Discrimination in Advertising [42 U.S.C. § 3604(c)]

1. On or about _____ [date], defendant _____ [name] [caused to be] _____ [made or printed or published] a _____ [notice or statement or advertisement] with respect to the _____ [sale or rental] of the above-described dwelling that indicated [an intention to make] a _____ [preference or limitation or discrimination] based on _____ [race or color or religion or sex or handicap or familial status or national origin]. A copy of the _____ [notice or statement or advertisement] is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.

2. The _____ [preference or limitation or discrimination] is applicable only to persons of plaintiff's _____ [race or color or religion or sex or handicap or familial status or national origin] in that _____ [specify].

[2] Use of Form

The form allegations in [1], above, are for use by a plaintiff in an action for damages and injunctive relief for violation of the federal Fair Housing Act (FHA) (42 U.S.C. § 3601 et seq.) based on discrimination in advertising [42 U.S.C. § 3604(c)]. These allegations may be substituted for Paragraphs 6 and 8 in the form complaint at § 117.90.

If the allegations include someone other than the owner as committing the unlawful discrimination (for example, a newspaper company), an additional paragraph identifying that defendant should be added.

The scope of 42 U.S.C. § 3604(c) is wider than 42 U.S.C. § 3604(a) and (b) in that it includes handicap as a protected characteristic. "Handicap" is defined in 42 U.S.C. § 3602(h). If the complaint alleges discrimination on the basis of handicap, Paragraphs 2 and 9 in the form of complaint in § 117.90 should specify that as the protected characteristic.

[3] Cross References

For a general form of complaint under the Fair Housing Act, see § 117.90

For alternative forms of allegations for use in Fair Housing Act complaints, see §§ 117.92 -117.95

For discussion and forms relating to the format of complaints, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints

192 of 195 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART IV. FORMS
B. Complaint and Allegations in Federal Court

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117.92

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

§ 117.92 Allegations for Use in Complaints for Violation of the Federal Fair Housing Act [42 U.S.C. §§ 3604-3606]--Discrimination by False Representation That Building Is Not Available [42 U.S.C. § 3604(d)]

[1] FORM Allegations for Use in Complaints for Violation of Federal Fair Housing Act [42 U.S.C. §§ 3604-3606]--Discrimination by False Representation That Building Is Not Available [42 U.S.C. § 3604(d)]

1. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff _____ [specify action of plaintiff that led to false representation, e.g., went to defendant's office, stated an interest in _____ (renting or purchasing) the dwelling, and requested that he/she be allowed to inspect it].

2. Defendant _____ [name] then stated and represented to plaintiff that the dwelling was not available for inspection and _____ [rental or sale] when in fact the dwelling was then available.

[2] Use of Form

The form allegations in [1], above, are for use by a plaintiff in an action for damages and injunctive relief for violation of the federal Fair Housing Act (FHA) (42 U.S.C. § 3601 et seq.) based on discrimination by false representations that a dwelling is not available for inspection, sale, or rental. These allegations may be substituted for Paragraphs 6 and 8 in the form of complaint in § 117.90.

The scope of 42 U.S.C. § 3604(d) is wider than 42 U.S.C. § 3604(a) and (b) in that it includes handicap as a protected characteristic. "Handicap" is defined in 42 U.S.C. § 3602(h). If the complaint alleges discrimination on the basis of handicap, Paragraphs 2 and 9 in the form of complaint in § 117.90 should specify that as the protected characteristic.

[3] Cross References

For a general form of complaint under the Fair Housing Act, see § 117.90

For alternative forms of allegations for use in Fair Housing Act complaints, see §§ 117.91, 117.93 -117.95

For discussion and forms relating to the format of complaints, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints

193 of 195 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART IV. FORMS
B. Complaint and Allegations in Federal Court

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117.93

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

§ 117.93 Allegations for Use in Complaints for Violation of Federal Fair Housing Act [42 U.S.C. §§ 3604-3606]--Discrimination by Inducing Sale or Rental Based on Representation That Persons of Particular Characteristic Moving Into Neighborhood [42 U.S.C. § 3604(e)]

[1] FORM Allegations for Use in Complaints for Violation of the Federal Fair Housing Act [42 U.S.C. §§ 3604-3606]--Discrimination by Inducing Sale or Rental Based on Representation That Persons of Particular Characteristic Moving Into Neighborhood [42 U.S.C. § 3604(e)]

1. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [specify capacity, e.g., a corporation] engaged in the business of _____ [specify, e.g., real estate brokerage]. Defendant _____ [name] is, and all times herein mentioned was, _____ [specify, e.g., vice-president and sales manager] of defendant _____ [name].

2. Plaintiff is _____ [specify plaintiff's interest in property, e.g., the owner] of _____ [specify neighborhood, e.g., the residence at _____ (street address), within the neighborhood commonly known as Bernal Heights] in _____ [city], California.

3. From about _____ [date] to the present, defendant _____ [name], for profit, has repeatedly [attempted to] induce[d] _____ [specify third person, e.g., homeowner or real estate broker or real estate agent] to _____ [sell or rent] dwellings in the aforementioned neighborhood by representations regarding the [prospective] entry of persons _____ [specify particular characteristic protected from discrimination, e.g., of the black race or of the Jewish religion or of the female sex or confined to a wheelchair or who are unmarried or of Chinese ancestry] into that neighborhood.

4. The aforementioned representations made by defendant to _____ [specify third persons, e.g., homeowners or real estate brokers or real estate agents] are discriminatory because the representations pertain only to persons of a particular _____ [specify, e.g., race or color or religion or sex or handicap or familial status or national origin], and because _____ [specify, e.g., when the _____ (specify third person to whom the representation is made, e.g., homeowner) is of the white race, defendant represents that persons of _____ (specify protected characteristic of persons is different, e.g., the black race) are entering the neighborhood].

[2] Use of Form

The form allegations in [1], above, are for use by a plaintiff in an action for damages and injunctive relief for violation of the federal Fair Housing Act (FHA) (42 U.S.C. § 3601 et seq.) based on discrimination by inducing individuals, for profit, to sell or rent their dwellings through representations regarding the entry into the neighborhood of persons with protected characteristics [42 U.S.C. § 3604(e)]. These allegations may be substituted for Paragraphs 2-6, 8, and 9 in the form of complaint in § 117.90.

The scope of 42 U.S.C. § 3604(e) is wider than 42 U.S.C. § 3604(a) and (b) in that it includes handicap as a protected characteristic. "Handicap" is defined in 42 U.S.C. § 3602(h).

[3] Cross References

For a general form of complaint under the Fair Housing Act, see § 117.90

For alternative forms of allegations for use in Fair Housing Act complaints, see §§ 117.91, 117.92, 117.94, 117.95

For discussion and forms relating to the format of complaints, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints

194 of 195 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART IV. FORMS
B. Complaint and Allegations in Federal Court

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117.94

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

§ 117.94 Allegations for Use in Complaints for Violation of Federal Fair Housing Act [42 U.S.C. §§ 3604-3606]--Discrimination in Residential Real Estate-Related Transactions [42 U.S.C. § 3605]

[1] FORM Allegations for Use in Complaints for Violation of the Federal Fair Housing Act [42 U.S.C. §§ 3604-3606]--Discrimination in Residential Real Estate-Related Transactions [42 U.S.C. § 3605]

1. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [specify capacity, e.g., a corporation] engaged in the business of making residential real estate-related transactions. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [specify, e.g., vice-president and sales manager] of defendant _____ [name].

2. On or about _____ [date], _____ [name] had possession, as _____ [specify interest in property, e.g., owner] of a dwelling located at _____ [street address], _____ [city], California. The dwelling was vacant and was offered for sale on the following terms and conditions: _____ [specify terms and conditions].

3. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff made application to defendant _____ [name] for _____ [specify residential real estate-related transaction, e.g., a loan for purchasing the dwelling offered for sale by _____ (name)].

[EITHER]

4. Plaintiff's application for _____ [specify residential real estate-related transaction, e.g., financial assistance in the form of a loan] was refused by defendants and plaintiff was _____ [specify result of defendants' refusal, e.g., denied all opportunity to purchase the dwelling].

[OR]

4. Defendants responded to plaintiff's application by imposing the following terms and conditions on the _____ [specify residential real estate-related transaction, e.g., loan]: _____ [specify].

[CONTINUE]

5. Defendants' treatment of plaintiff in _____ [refusing to deal with him/her or imposing additional terms and conditions in the transaction] was discriminatory because it was based on plaintiff's _____ [specify protected characteristic, e.g., handicap].

[2] Use of Form

The form allegations in [1], above, are for use by a plaintiff in an action for damages and injunctive relief for violation of the federal Fair Housing Act (FHA) (42 U.S.C. § 3601 et seq.) based on discrimination in a residential real estate-related transaction [42 U.S.C. § 3605; see 42 U.S.C. § 3605(b) ("residential real estate-related transaction" defined)]. These allegations may be substituted for Paragraphs 4-6, 8, and 9 in the form of complaint in § 117.90.

The scope of 42 U.S.C. § 3605 is wider than 42 U.S.C. § 3604(a) and (b) in that it includes handicap as a protected characteristic. "Handicap" is defined in 42 U.S.C. § 3602(h).

[3] Cross References

For a general form of complaint under the Fair Housing Act, see § 117.90

For alternative forms of allegations for use in Fair Housing Act complaints, see §§ 117.91 -117.93, 117.95

For discussion and forms relating to the format of complaints, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints

195 of 195 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117 CIVIL RIGHTS: HOUSING DISCRIMINATION
PART IV. FORMS
B. Complaint and Allegations in Federal Court

11-117 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117.95

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases. John H. Scott Editorial Consultant John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976. Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

§ 117.95 Allegations for Use in Complaints for Violation of Federal Fair Housing Act [42 U.S.C. §§ 3604-3606]--Discrimination in Brokerage Services [42 U.S.C. § 3606]

[1] FORM Allegations for Use in Complaints for Violation of the Federal Fair Housing Act [42 U.S.C. §§ 3604-3606]--Discrimination in Brokerage Services [42 U.S.C. § 3606]

1. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [specify capacity, e.g., a corporation] engaged in the business of _____ [specify service relating to the business of selling or renting dwellings, e.g., multiple listing services or real estate brokerage]. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [specify, e.g., vice-president and sales manager of defendant (name)].

2. On or about _____ [date], defendant _____ [name] operated _____ [specify service, e.g., a multiple listing service that included dwellings for sale or rental in the city of Elderwood, California].

3. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff made application for _____ [access to or membership in or participation in] defendant's _____ [specify service, e.g., multiple listing service] for the purpose of seeking information concerning the _____ [specify, e.g., possible _____ (sale or rental) of a home].

[EITHER]

4. Plaintiff's application for _____ [access to or membership in or participation in] defendant's _____ [specify service, e.g., multiple listing service] was refused in that _____ [specify acts of defendant refusing plaintiff access to the service].

[OR]

4. Plaintiff's application for _____ [access to or membership in or participation in] defendant's _____ [specify service, e.g., multiple listing service] was accepted with the following restrictions in connection with the service: _____ [specify terms or conditions of such access, membership, or participation].

[2] Use of Form

The form allegations in [1], above, are for use by a plaintiff in an action for damages and injunctive relief for violation of the federal Fair Housing Act (FHA) (42 U.S.C. § 3601 et seq.) based on discrimination in the provision of brokerage services [42 U.S.C. § 3606]. These allegations may be substituted for Paragraphs 3-6 and 8 in the form of complaint in § 117.90.

The scope of 42 U.S.C. § 3606 is wider than 42 U.S.C. § 3604(a) and (b) in that it includes handicap as a protected characteristic. "Handicap" is defined in 42 U.S.C. § 3602(h).

[3] Cross References

For a general form of complaint under the Fair Housing Act, see § 117.90

For alternative forms of allegations for use in Fair Housing Act complaints, see §§ 117.91 -117.94

For discussion and forms relating to the format of complaints, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117A CIVIL RIGHTS: INTERFERENCE WITH CIVIL RIGHTS BY THREATS, INTIMIDATION, COERCION, OR VIOLENCE

11-117A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 117A.syn

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author John H. Scott Editorial Consultant

§ 117A.syn Synopsis to Chapter 117A: CIVIL RIGHTS: INTERFERENCE WITH CIVIL RIGHTS BY THREATS, INTIMIDATION, COERCION, OR VIOLENCE

§ 117A.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 117A.02 Cross References

§§ 117A.03-117A.09 [Reserved]

§ 117A.10 Governing Statutes

§ 117A.11 Interference with Civil Rights By Threats, Intimidation, or Coercion

[1] Civil Remedies

[a] Statutory Provisions

[b] Protected Classes

[c] Damages

[d] State Action Requirement

[e] Elements of Cause of Action

[f] Defenses

[2] Speech as Basis for Action

[3] Injunctions Prohibiting Violation of Civil Code § 52.1

§ 117A.12 Freedom From Intimidation or Violence Because of Protected Characteristics

[1] Civil Remedies

[2] Criminal Penalties

[a] Force or Threat of Force, or Damage to Property, to Intimidate or Interfere with Rights, Because of Protected Characteristics

[b] Other Crimes Committed to Intimidate or Interfere with Rights Because of Protected Characteristics

[i] Application of Penal Code § 422.7

[ii] Proof of Specific Intent to Deprive Individual of Right

[c] Hate Crimes Generally

[d] Penalty Enhancements for Crimes Committed Because of Protected Characteristics

[e] Penalty Enhancements Are Constitutional

§ 117A.13 Standing in Bane Act Cases

§§ 117A.14-117A.29 [Reserved]

§ 117A.30 Related Matthew Bender Publications

§ 117A.31 Federal Constitution

§ 117A.32 State Constitution

§ 117A.33 Federal Statutes

§ 117A.34 State Statutes

§ 117A.34A California Civil Jury Instructions (CACI)

§ 117A.35 Decisions

§ 117A.35A Attorney General Opinions

§ 117A.36 Law Reviews

§ 117A.37 Text References

§§ 117A.38-117A.49 [Reserved]

§ 117A.50 Complaint for Damages and Temporary Restraining Order, Preliminary Injunction, and Permanent Injunction for Interference with Exercise of Civil Rights [Civ. Code § 52.1]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Prayer

[5] Verification

[6] Jurisdiction and Venue

[7] Cross References

§ 117A.51 Order Granting Preliminary Injunction Enjoining Interference with Exercise of Civil Rights [Civ. Code § 52.1]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Service of Order

[4] Cross References

Dennis M. Farias
Revision Author n*
John H. Scott
Editorial Consultant n*

FOOTNOTES:
(n31)Footnote *. Dennis M. Farias is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, and an attorney licensed in California, Colorado, and Nevada. He has practiced extensively in the field of civil rights law. Mr. Farias is a staff attorney for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, assisting the court primarily with civil rights and habeas corpus cases.

(n32)Footnote *. John Houston Scott graduated from Suffield Academy, Suffield, Connecticut in 1966. In 1970 he received a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Santa Barbara, majoring in Religious Studies. He graduated from Golden Gate University School of Law in 1976.

Mr. Scott has been in private practice in San Francisco since 1977 specializing in civil rights litigation with an emphasis on police misconduct, prisoner and patient rights issues, and employment discrimination. He is currently a partner in the law firm of Prentice & Scott, 433 Turk Street, San Francisco, California, 94102. He has tried in excess of 100 cases to verdict throughout the State of California. In addition, he has been attorney of record in a variety of published decisions in both state and federal courts.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117A CIVIL RIGHTS: INTERFERENCE WITH CIVIL RIGHTS BY THREATS, INTIMIDATION, COERCION, OR VIOLENCE
PART I. SCOPE

11-117A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117A.01

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author John H. Scott Editorial Consultant

§ 117A.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the interference or threatened interference with the constitutional or statutory rights of another through the use of threats, intimidation, coercion, or violence. This subject is governed by the Tom Bane Civil Rights Act which, in 1987, amended Civ. Code § 51.7, and added Civ. Code § 52.1 and Penal Code § 422.6 et seq.

This chapter contains the following forms:

- A form of complaint for damages and temporary restraining order, preliminary injunction, and permanent injunction, for interference with the exercise of civil rights in violation of Civ. Code § 52.1 [see § 117A.50].

- A form of order granting a preliminary injunction enjoining interference with the exercise of civil rights in violation of Civ. Code § 52.1 [see § 117A.51].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary InjunctionsCivil Rights LawPractice & ProcedureCriminal PenaltiesCriminal Law & ProcedureCriminal OffensesCrimes Against PersonsCoercionGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117A CIVIL RIGHTS: INTERFERENCE WITH CIVIL RIGHTS BY THREATS, INTIMIDATION, COERCION, OR VIOLENCE
PART I. SCOPE

11-117A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117A.02

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author John H. Scott Editorial Consultant

§ 117A.02 Cross References

- For a comprehensive procedural guide that chronologically outlines the procedures in a typical civil action brought in a California state court, see Ch. 2, Procedural Guide for Civil Actions .

- For discussion and forms relating to discrimination in government-funded programs and activities, see Ch. 112, Civil Rights: Government-Funded Programs and Activities .

- For discussion and forms relating to actions under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, and the other post-Civil War civil rights statutes (42 U.S.C. §§ 1981, 1982, 1985, 1986, and 1988), see Ch. 113, Civil Rights: The Post-Civil War Civil Rights Statutes .

- For discussion and forms relating to prisoners' rights, see Ch. 114, Civil Rights: Prisoners' Rights .

- For discussion and forms relating to employment discrimination, see Ch. 115, Civil Rights: Employment Discrimination .

- For discussion and forms relating to discrimination in business establishments, see Ch. 116, Civil Rights: Discrimination in Business Establishments .

- For discussion and forms relating to housing discrimination, see Ch. 117, Civil Rights: Housing Discrimination .

- For discussion and forms relating to injunctions, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

- For discussion and forms relating to civil rights actions arising from illegal searches and seizures, see Ch. 429, Privacy, § 429.310 et seq.

- For discussion of deprivation of civil rights during an administrative investigation, see Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil Rights LawConspiracyGeneral OverviewCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingFair Housing RightsGeneral OverviewCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingProperty Rights (sec. 1982)General OverviewCivil Rights LawContractual Relations & HousingProperty Rights (sec. 1982)Public DiscriminationCivil Rights LawSection 1983 ActionsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117A CIVIL RIGHTS: INTERFERENCE WITH CIVIL RIGHTS BY THREATS, INTIMIDATION, COERCION, OR VIOLENCE
PART I. SCOPE

11-117A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 117A.03-117A.09

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author John H. Scott Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 117A.03[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117A CIVIL RIGHTS: INTERFERENCE WITH CIVIL RIGHTS BY THREATS, INTIMIDATION, COERCION, OR VIOLENCE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

11-117A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117A.10

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author John H. Scott Editorial Consultant

§ 117A.10 Governing Statutes

Interference with the constitutional or statutory rights of another through the use of threats, intimidation, coercion, or violence is governed by the Tom Bane Civil Rights Act ("Bane Act"), which is codified at Civ. Code §§ 51.7 and 52.1, and Penal Code § 422.6 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil Rights LawCivil Rights ActsGeneral OverviewCivil Rights LawPractice & ProcedureCriminal PenaltiesCriminal Law & ProcedureCriminal OffensesCrimes Against PersonsCoercionGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117A CIVIL RIGHTS: INTERFERENCE WITH CIVIL RIGHTS BY THREATS, INTIMIDATION, COERCION, OR VIOLENCE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

11-117A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117A.11

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author John H. Scott Editorial Consultant

§ 117A.11 Interference with Civil Rights By Threats, Intimidation, or Coercion

[1] Civil Remedies

[a] Statutory Provisions

If a person or persons, whether or not acting under color of law, interferes or attempts to interfere by threats, intimidation, or coercion, with the exercise or enjoyment by any individual or individuals of rights secured by the Constitution or laws of the United States, or rights secured by the Constitution or laws of California, the state Attorney General or any district attorney or city attorney may bring a civil action for injunctive and other appropriate equitable relief, in the name of the people of the state of California, to protect the peaceable exercise or enjoyment of those rights [Civ. Code § 52.1(a); see Olympic Club v. Superior Court (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 358, 360-361, 282 Cal. Rptr. 1 (authorization of public attorneys to bring action under Civ. Code § 52.1 on behalf of people of state of California is indication that enforcement of law should not depend on willingness of individual victims to come forward; victims are often reluctant to become involved for reasons that spring from the very practice of discrimination)]. An action by the Attorney General, a district attorney, or a city attorney may also seek a civil penalty of $25,000, which, if requested, must be assessed individually against each person determined to have violated Civ. Code § 52.1. The penalty will be awarded to each individual whose rights under § 52.1 are determined to have been violated [Civ. Code § 52.1(a)].

Any individual whose rights are so threatened may institute and prosecute in his or her own name and on his or her own behalf a civil action for damages, including, but not limited to, damages under Civ. Code § 52, injunctive relief, and other appropriate equitable relief to protect the peaceable exercise and enjoyment of the rights secured [Civ. Code § 52.1(b)]. Nothing in Civ. Code § 52.1 requires any showing of actual intent to discriminate [Venegas v. County of Los Angeles (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 820, 841, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 692, 87 P.3d 1] .

An action brought under Civ. Code § 52.1 is independent of any other action, remedy, or procedure that may be available to an aggrieved individual under any other provision of law, including, but not limited to, an action, remedy, orprocedure brought pursuant to Civ. Code § 51.7 (regarding freedom from violence) [Civ. Code § 52.1(g)].

In addition to any damages, injunction, or other equitable relief awarded in an action under Civ. Code § 52.1(b), the court may award the petitioner or plaintiff reasonable attorney's fees [Civ. Code § 52.1(h)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Definitions. Surprisingly, there have been few, if any, decisions defining what constitutes "threats, intimidation, or coercion." Speech alone may often be protected by the First Amendment. However, there have been a number of recent decisions involving criminal cases where individuals have been prosecuted for unlawful "threats." I suspect that if the courts broadly define "threats" under parallel criminal statutes that these definitions will be applicable to Civ. Code § 52.1. By John H. Scott

PRACTICE TIP:

Excessive Force and False-Arrest Cases. Section 52.1 may often be applicable to the garden-variety excessive force and false-arrest cases. It remains to be seen to what extent the courts will hold that certain conduct (as opposed to "speech") constitutes "intimidation or coercion" within the meaning of § 52.1. Arguably, in many cases involving excessive force and/or false-arrest there is an element of "intimidation or coercion." By John H. Scott

For a form of complaint seeking damages and injunctive relief based on interference with the exercise of civil rights, under Civ. Code § 52.1, and a form of order granting such relief, see §§ 117A.50 and 117A.51. For a related jury instruction, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 3025 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender, Official Publisher), also available in LexisNexis Automated Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions.

[b] Protected Classes

Civ. Code § 52.1 does not include any language limiting its protection to plaintiffs in protected classes. Nonetheless, California Courts of Appeal, in the mid and late 1990's, held that § 52.1 must be read in conjunction with Civ. Code § 51.7, and that an action brought under § 52.1 must allege that the interference with the plaintiff's rights that is the subject of the action was due to the plaintiff's race, color, religion, ancestry, national origin, political affiliation, sex, sexual orientation, age, disability, or position in a labor dispute [see Cabesuela v. Browning-Ferris Indus. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 101, 110-111, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 60 ; Boccato v. City of Hermosa Beach (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1797, 1808-1809, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 282] .

However, in 2000, the California Legislature declared as follows [Stats. 2000, ch. 98, § 1]:

> "Section 1. (a) The Legislature hereby finds and declares all of the following:
>
> (1) Section 52.1 of the Civil Code guarantees the exercise or enjoyment by any individual or individuals of rights secured by the Constitution or laws of the United States, or of the rights secured by the Constitution or laws of this state without regard to his or her membership in a protected class identified by its race, color, religion, or sex, among other things.
>
> (2) The decision in Boccato v. City of Hermosa Beach (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1797 misconstrued Section 52.1 of the Civil Code to require that an individual who brings an action, or on whose behalf an action is brought, pursuant to that section, be a member of one of those specified protected classes.
>
> (b) It is the intent of the Legislature in enacting this act to clarify that an action brought pursuant to Section 52.1 of the Civil Code does not require the individual whose rights are secured by the Constituion or laws of the United States, or of the rights secured by the Constitution or laws of California to be a member of a protected class identified by its race, color, religion, or sex, among other things."

It appears, then, that Civ. Code § 52.1 will no longer be construed to require that a plaintiff must be a member of a protected class.

PRACTICE TIP:

Protected Classes. Anyone can now bring an action under § 52.1 regardless of race, color, religion, ancestry, political affiliation, sex, sexual orientation, age, etc. The sole issue under § 52.1 is whether someone's civil rights were violated and the deprivation involved "threats, intimidation, or coercion." Thus, this section can be applied against any public or private defendant for a violation of civil rights so long as the deprivation involves "threats, intimidation, or coercion." A prevailing plaintiff will be entitled to statutory damages of $25,000 in many cases, attorneys' fees, injunctive relief, etc. and there is no defense of "qualified immunity" and no right to an interlocutory appeal. By John H. Scott

[c] Damages

The reference in Civ. Code § 52.1(b) to damages under Civ. Code § 52 is somewhat ambiguous. Civ. Code § 52 contains two different damage provisions [see Civ. Code § 52(a) and (b)]. Apparently, Civ. Code § 52.1(b) refers to Civ. Code § 52(b), which permits a larger award of damages [for discussion of the damages available under Civ. Code § 52(b), see § 117A.12[1]]. Civ. Code § 52(a) applies to the denial of rights under Civ. Code §§ 51 and 51.5. Civ. Code § 52(b) applies to the denial of rights under Civ. Code §§ 51.7 and 51.9. Civ. Code § 51.7, like Civ. Code § 52.1, is part of the Tom Bane Civil Rights Act. The interests protected by Civ. Code § 52.1 are more closely aligned with the interests protected by Civ. Code § 51.7 than those protected by Civ. Code § 51 or 51.5 [see generally Legis. Counsel's Dig., Sen. Bill No. 98, Stats. 1992, ch. 607 (Reg. Sess.)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Damages. The damages available under Civ. Code § 52.1 require careful analysis in that § 52.1 provides that damages are available as specified under Civ. Code § 52. Civ. Code § 52(b)(2) provides for damages that include a statutory penalty of $25,000 for denials of rights secured by Civ. Code § 51.7. The question then becomes whether this statutory penalty is available in all cases brought under § 52.1 or just those cases brought on behalf of a class of persons identified in Civ. Code § 51.7. By John H. Scott

Although a public entity is not liable for damages imposed primarily for the sake of example and by way of punishing the defendant [Gov. Code § 818], a public entity can be liable for the $25,000 statutory penalty for denial of rights under Civ. Code §§ 51.7, 52(b)(2) [Los Angeles County Metro. Transp. Auth. v. Superior Court (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 261, 266-276, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 92] .

[d] State Action Requirement

Although Civ. Code § 52.1 does not require state action on the part of the defendant to state a claim, it does require an attempted or completed act of interference with a legal right, accompanied by coercion. Therefore, if the right at issue is one that may only be violated by state action, it may be that there can only be a § 52.1 claim if state actors are somehow involved in the facts of the case [Jones v. Kmart Corp. (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 329, 333-334, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844, 949 P.2d 941] . Thus, for example, a plaintiff suing a private defendant for interfering with the plaintiff's right to be free from unreasonable government search and seizure must assert and prove that the private defendant's conduct somehow interfered with the plaintiff's ability to assert rights under that constitutional guaranty [see Jones v. Kmart Corp. (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 329, 334, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844, 949 P.2d 941] .

[e] Elements of Cause of Action

The elements of a cause of action under Civil Code section 52.1 are [CACI No. 3025; Austin B. v. Escondido Union Sch. Dist. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 860, 882, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 454] :

- The defendant interfered with or attempted to interfere with the plaintiff's constitutional or statutory right by threatening or committing violent acts.

- The plaintiff reasonably believed that if he or she exercised his or her constitutional right, the defendant would commit violence against him or her or his or her property.

- The defendant injured the plaintiff or the plaintiff's property to prevent the plaintiff from exercising his or her constitutional right or to retaliate against the plaintiff for having exercised his or her constitutional right.

- The plaintiff was harmed.

- The defendant's conduct was a substantial factor in causing the plaintiff's harm.

Civil Code § 52.1 requires an attempted or completed act of interference with a legal right, accompanied by a form of coercion [Jones v. Kmart Corp. (1998) 17 Cal.4th 329, 334, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844, 949 P.2d 941 ; Austin B. v. Escondido Union Sch. Dist. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 860, 882, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 454] . To obtain relief under Civ. Code § 52.1, a plaintiff need not allege the defendant acted with discriminatory animus or intent. A defendant is liable if the defendant interfered with the plaintiff's constitutional rights by the requisite threats, intimidation, or coercion [Venegas v. County of Los Angeles (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 820, 841-843, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 692, 87 P.3d 1 ; Austin B. v. Escondido Union Sch. Dist. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 860, 882, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 454] .

The word "interferes" as used in the Bane Act means "violates" [Austin B. v. Escondido Union Sch. Dist. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 860, 883, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 454 ; see Jones v. Kmart Corp. (1998) 17 Cal.4th 329, 338, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844, 949 P.2d 941 ; City of Simi Valley v. Superior Court (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1077, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 468] . The essence of a Bane Act claim is that the defendant, by the specified improper means, i.e., threats, intimidation or coercion, tried to or did prevent the plaintiff from doing something the plaintiff had the right to do under the law or to force the plaintiff to do something the plaintiff was not required to do under the law [Jones v. Kmart Corp. (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 329, 334, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844, 949 P.2d 941 ; Austin B. v. Escondido Union Sch. Dist. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 860, 883, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 454] .

The constitutional right with which the defendant interferes can include the right to a free public education embodied in Cal. Const., art. IX, § 5 [Austin B. v. Escondido Union Sch. Dist. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 860, 882, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 454] .

[f] Defenses

The doctrine of qualified immunity which applies to federal civil rights actions under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 does not apply to California civil rights actions under Civil Code § 52.1 [Venegas v. County of Los Angeles (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1230, 1239-1247, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 741 (because county and law enforcement officer argued no other grounds for immunity, summary adjudication in their favor reversed because there were triable issues of fact as to whether officer interfered by threats, intimidation or coercion with plaintiffs' exercise or enjoyment of their rights under Fourth Amendment to United States Constitution and Cal. Const., art. I, § 13)].

Statutory immunity for governmental entities and employees, such as prosecutorial immunity, can apply to bar actions against public employees and entities brought under Civ. Code § 52.1 [see County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (2009) 181 Cal. App. 4th 218, 227-232, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 230 (district attorney and county were entitled to summary adjudication because district attorney's investigatory staff, district attorney himself, and county were immune to claims of violation of Civ. Code § 52.1 under Gov. Code §§ 821.6 [establishing that public employee is not liable for injury caused by instituting or prosecuting judicial or administrative proceeding within scope of employment, even if employee acts maliciously and without probable cause], 820.8 [immunizing public employees from liability for injuries caused by another], 815.2(b) [providing that, except as otherwise provided by statute, public entity is not liable for injury resulting from act or omission of employee of public entity when employee is immune from liability], 815.6, 820.2 [providing general immunity from liability for acts of public employees in exercise of discretion vested in them])]. For discussion of statutory immunity for governmental entities and employees generally, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

[2] Speech as Basis for Action

Speech alone is not sufficient to support an action under Civ. Code § 52.1, except on a showing (1) that the speech itself threatens violence against a specific person or group of persons, (2) that the persons against whom the threat is directed reasonably fear that, because of the speech, violence will be committed against them or their property, and (3) that the person threatening violence had the apparent ability to carry out the threat [Civ. Code § 52.1(j)].

No order issued in a case brought under Civ. Code § 52.1 will restrict the content of any person's speech. An order restricting the time, place, or manner of any person's speech will do so only to the extent reasonably necessary to protect the peaceable exercise or enjoyment of constitutional or statutory rights, consistent with the constitutional rights of the person sought to be enjoined [Civ. Code § 52.1(k); see Ch. 59, Assemblies, Meetings, and Demonstrations , for discussion of restrictions on time, place, and manner regulations].

[3] Injunctions Prohibiting Violation of Civil Code § 52.1

If a court issues a temporary restraining order or a preliminary or permanent injunction in an action brought pursuant to Civ. Code § 52.1(a) or (b), ordering a defendant to refrain from conduct or activities, the order issued must include the following statement [Civ. Code § 52.1(d); see § 117A.51 for form of order]:

> VIOLATION OF THIS ORDER IS A CRIME PUNISHABLE UNDER SECTION 422.77 OF THE PENAL CODE.

An order or injunction may not be issued under Civ. Code § 52.1 if the order or injunction would be prohibited under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.3 (regarding specified acts in labor disputes)[Civ. Code § 52.1(f)].

Violation of a temporary restraining order or a preliminary or permanent injunction ordering the defendant to refrain from conduct or activities may be punished either by prosecution under Penal Code § 422.77, or by a proceeding for contempt brought pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1209 et seq.

In a contempt proceeding, if it is determined that the person proceeded against is guilty of the contempt charged, in addition to any other relief, a fine may be imposed in an amount not to exceed $1,000, or the person may be imprisoned in the county jail for a period not to exceed six months, or both a fine and imprisonment may be imposed [Civ. Code § 52.1(i)]. For discussion and forms relating to contempt proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 1209 et seq., see Ch. 135, Contempt .

Any willful and knowing violation of an order issued under Civ. Code § 52.1 is a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not more than $1,000, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than six months, or by both the fine and imprisonment [Penal Code § 422.77(a)]. Repeat violations on charges separately brought and tried are punishable by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than one year [Penal Code § 422.77(b)]. Subject to the court's discretion, the prosecution may present witnesses and relevant evidence at the time of the sentencing [Penal Code § 422.77(b)]. The prosecuting agency of each county has the primary responsibility for the enforcement of orders issued pursuant to Civ. Code § 52.1[Penal Code §§ 422.77(c), 422.78]. The court may order a defendant convicted of a hate crime to perform a minimum of community service, not to exceed 400 hours, to be performed over a period not to exceed 350 days, during a time other than his or her hours of employment or school attendance [Penal Code § 422.77(d)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewCivil Rights LawCivil Rights ActsGeneral OverviewCivil Rights LawPractice & ProcedureCriminal PenaltiesCriminal Law & ProcedureCriminal OffensesCrimes Against PersonsCoercionGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117A CIVIL RIGHTS: INTERFERENCE WITH CIVIL RIGHTS BY THREATS, INTIMIDATION, COERCION, OR VIOLENCE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

11-117A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117A.12

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author John H. Scott Editorial Consultant

§ 117A.12 Freedom From Intimidation or Violence Because of Protected Characteristics

[1] Civil Remedies

All persons within the jurisdiction of California have the right to be free from any violence, or intimidation by threat of violence, committed against their persons or property because of their political affiliation, or on account of any characteristic listed or defined in Civ. Code § 51(b) or (e), or position in a labor dispute, or because another person perceives them to have one or more of those characteristics [Civ. Code § 51.7(a); for discussion of Civ. Code § 51(b), (e), see Ch. 116, Civil Rights: Discrimination in Business Establishments, § 116.12]. The identification of these particular bases of discrimination is illustrative rather than restrictive [Civ. Code § 51.7(a); see McCalden v. California Library Ass'n (9th Cir. 1992) 955 F.2d 1214, 1221 , cert. denied, 504 U.S. 957 ("holocaust revisionist" protected under statute)].

Civ. Code § 51.7 does not apply to statements concerning positions in a labor dispute that are made during otherwise lawful labor picketing [Civ. Code § 51.7(b)].

The proscription on intimidation by threat of violence has survived a First Amendment challenge [see McCalden v. California Library Ass'n (9th Cir. 1992) 955 F.2d 1214, 1222 , cert. denied, 504 U.S. 957] .

Whoever denies, or aids, incites, or conspires in a denial of, rights provided by Civ. Code § 51.7 is liable for each and every such offense for the actual damages suffered by any person denied such rights [Civ. Code § 52(b)]. For purposes of Civ. Code § 52, "actual damages" means special and general damages [Civ. Code § 52(h)]. In addition to actual damages, the wrongdoer is liable in an amount as may be determined by a jury, or by a court sitting without a jury, for exemplary damages, plus a civil penalty of $25,000, to be awarded to the person denied the rights, in any action brought by that person or by the Attorney General, a district attorney, or a city attorney [Civ. Code § 52(b)].

Injunctive relief is also available in an action brought under Civ. Code § 51.7 if there is reasonable cause to believe that any person or persons are engaged in conduct of resistance to the full enjoyment of a person's rights under Civ. Code § 51.7[see Civ. Code § 52(c); see also Stats. 1991, ch. 839, § 3 (Legislature intended to modify prerequisite for injunctive relief in 1991 amendment to Civ. Code § 52(c); by providing civil remedy for classes of persons specifically identified in Civ. Code §§ 51.7 and 52, Legislature did not intend to limit availability of injunctive relief for any other form of discrimination prohibited by Civ. Code §§ 51.7 and 52)].

Attorney's fees in an amount determined by the court are also recoverable [Civ. Code § 52(b)].

An action under Civ. Code § 51.7, including an action for the civil penalty provided in Civ. Code § 52(b)(2) to be awarded to the person denied the right provided by Civ. Code § 51.7 in an action brought by the person denied the right or by the Attorney General, a district attorney, or a city attorney, must be commenced within three years of the alleged practice [Civ. Code § 52(b)(2); Code Civ. Proc. § 338(n)].

A civil damages action under Civ. Code § 52 for violation of Civ. Code § 51.7 is barred by the discretionary immunity of Gov. Code § 845 to the extent that the action is premised on an alleged failure to provide sufficient police protective services [see Gates v. Superior Court (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 481, 508-513, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 489] . For full discussion of liabilities and immunities of public entities and employees, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

Any person claiming to be aggrieved by an alleged unlawful practice in violation of Civ. Code § 51.7 may also file a verified complaint with the Department of Fair Employment and Housing (DFEH) pursuant to Gov. Code § 12948[Civ. Code § 52(f)].

For a general form of complaint for damages and injunctive relief for violation of the Unruh Civil Rights Act, which may be adapted for use to allege a cause of action pursuant to Civ. Code § 51.7, see Ch. 116, Civil Rights: Discrimination in Business Establishments, § 116.80. For a related jury instruction, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 3023 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender, Official Publisher), also available in LexisNexis Automated Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions.

[2] Criminal Penalties

[a] Force or Threat of Force, or Damage to Property, to Intimidate or Interfere with Rights, Because of Protected Characteristics

No person, whether or not acting under color of law, may by force or threat of force willfully injure, intimidate, interfere with, oppress, or threaten any other person in the free exercise or enjoyment of any right or privilege secured by the Constitution or laws of the United States or of California because of the other person's disability, gender, nationality, race or ethnicity, religion, sexual orientation, or association with a person or group with one or more of these actual or perceived characteristics, or because the first person perceives the other person to have one or more of those characteristics [Penal Code § 422.6(a); see Penal Code § 422.55(a) (listing protected characteristics)]. No person may be convicted of violating Penal Code § 422.6(a) based on speech alone, except on a showing that the speech itself threatened violence against a specific person or group of persons and that the defendant had the apparent ability to carry out the threat [Penal Code § 422.6(c)].

If a perpetrator commits a sexual assault wholly or partly because of the victim's gender, a hate crime has not been committed unless the perpetrator also acts on some animosity or other bias motivation toward the victim's gender. If a perpetrator commits a crime wholly or partly because the perpetrator perceives that the victim's disability, gender, or other protected characteristic makes the victim more vulnerable to the commission of the crime, a hate crime has not been committed unless the perpetrator also acts on some animosity or other bias motivation toward the victim's disability, gender, or other protected characteristic. If a perpetrator commits a crime wholly or partly because the victim is under the care of the perpetrator for a disability, a hate crime has not been committed unless the perpetrator also acts on some animosity or other bias motivation toward the victim's disability [04 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 1104 (2005)] .

The definition of "hate crime" to be applied by a local law enforcement agency in reporting hate crimes to the Department of Justice is the same as the definition contained in Pen. Code § 422.55, as further clarified by Pen. Code § 422.56(d), namely, a criminal offense committed in part due to the perpetrator's bias motivation against the victim's actual or perceived disability, gender, nationality, race or ethnicity, religion, sexual orientation, or association with a person or group with one or more of such actual or perceived characteristics [04 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 1104 (2005)] .

No person, whether or not acting under color of law, may knowingly deface, damage, or destroy the real or personal property of another person for the purpose of intimidating or interfering with the free exercise or enjoyment of any right or privilege secured by the Constitution or laws of the United States or of California, in whole or in part, because of the person's disability, gender, nationality, race or ethnicity, religion, sexual orientation, or association with a person or group with one or more of these actual or perceived characteristics, or because the first person perceives the other person to have one or more of those characteristics [Penal Code § 422.6(b); see Penal Code § 422.55(a) (listing protected characteristics)].

Violation of Penal Code § 422.6(a) or (b) is punishable by imprisonment in the county jail for a period not to exceed one year, by a fine not to exceed $5,000, or by both the fine and imprisonment [Penal Code § 422.6(c)]. In addition, the court must order the defendant to perform community service, not to exceed 400 hours, to be performed over a period not to exceed 350 days, at a time other than during the defendant's hours of employment or school attendance [Penal Code § 422.6(c)]. Conduct that violates Penal Code § 422.6 and any other provision of law, including, but not limited to, an offense described in Penal Code § 11410 et seq. relating to terrorizing, may be charged under all applicable provisions. However, an act or omission punishable in different ways by Penal Code § 422.6 and other provisions of law may not be punished under more than one provision, and the penalty to be imposed is determined under Penal Code § 654[Penal Code § 422.6(d)].

Except as otherwise required by law, nothing in Penal Code § 422.6 et seq. may be construed to prevent or limit the prosecution of any person pursuant to any provision of law [Penal Code § 422.8].

[b] Other Crimes Committed to Intimidate or Interfere with Rights Because of Protected Characteristics

[i] Application of Penal Code § 422.7

Penal Code § 422.7 applies in cases other than those involving persons punished under Penal Code § 422.6. It provides that, except in the case of a person punished under Penal Code § 422.6, any hate crime not made punishable by imprisonment in the state prison is punishable by imprisonment in the state prison or in a county jail not to exceed one year, by a fine not to exceed $10,000, or by both imprisonment and fine. The crime must be committed against the person or property of another for the purpose of intimidating or interfering with that other person's free exercise or enjoyment of any right secured to that person by the California Constitution or laws or by the federal Constitution or laws under any of the following circumstances, which must be charged in the accusatory pleading [Penal Code § 422.7]:

- The crime against the person of another either includes the present ability to commit a violent injury or causes actual physical injury.

- The crime against property causes damage in excess of $950.

- The person charged with a crime under Penal Code § 422.7 has been convicted previously of a violation of Penal Code § 422.6(a) or (b) or of a conspiracy to commit a crime described in Penal Code

§ 422.6(a) or (b).

[ii] Proof of Specific Intent to Deprive Individual of Right

Both Penal Code §§ 422.6 and 422.7 require proof of a specific intent to deprive an individual of a right secured by federal or state law. The mere reckless use of force, even if motivated by ill will, is not sufficient. The defendant must act with the specific purpose of depriving another of his or her civil rights. Knowledge of particular provisions of state or federal law is not necessary, however; it is sufficient if the right is clearly defined and that the defendant intended to invade interests protected by constitutional or statutory authority [People v. Lashley (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 938, 947-951, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 629 , cert. denied, 506 U.S. 842 (1992)] .

[c] Hate Crimes Generally

All state and local agencies must use the definition of "hate crime" in Penal Code § 422.55(a) exclusively, except as other explicit provisions of state or federal law may require otherwise [Penal Code § 422.9]. Penal Code § 422.55(a) defines "hate crime" as a criminal act committed, in whole or in part, because of one or more of the following actual or perceived characteristics of the victim:

- Disability.
- Gender.
- Nationality.
- Race or ethnicity.
- Religion.
- Sexual orientation.
- Association with a person or group with one or more of these actual or perceived characteristics.

"Hate crime" includes, but is not limited to, a violation of Penal Code § 422.6 [Penal Code § 422.55(b); see [a], above]. Penal Code § 422.56 defines each of the terms in the bulleted list above, as well as the terms "in whole or in part because of" and "victim."

The court in which a criminal proceeding stemming from a hate crime or alleged hate crime is filed must take all actions reasonably required, including granting restraining orders, to safeguard the health, safety, or privacy of the alleged victim, or of a person who is a victim of, or at risk of becoming a victim of, a hate crime [Penal Code § 422.88(a)]. Restraining orders may include provisions prohibiting or restricting the photographing of a person who is a victim of, or at risk of becoming a victim of, a hate crime when reasonably required to safeguard the health, safety, or privacy of that person [Penal Code § 422.88(b)].

It is California public policy that the principal goals of sentencing for hate crimes are the following [Penal Code § 422.86(a)]:

- Punishment for the hate crimes committed.
- Crime and violence prevention, including prevention of recidivism and prevention of crimes and violence in prisons and jails.

- Restorative justice for the immediate victims of the hate crimes and for the classes of persons terrorized by the hate crimes.

[d] Penalty Enhancements for Crimes Committed Because of Protected Characteristics

Except in the case of a person punished under Penal Code § 422.7 [see [b], above], a person who commits a felony that is a hate crime or attempts to commit a felony that is a hate crime, may receive an additional term of imprisonment at the court's discretion [Penal Code § 422.75(a)]. In addition, except in the case of a person punished under Penal Code § 422.7 or Penal Code § 422.75(a), any person who commits a felony that is a hate crime, or attempts to commit a felony that is a hate crime, and who voluntarily acted in concert with another person, either personally or by aiding and abetting another person, may receive an additional term of imprisonment at the court's discretion [Penal Code § 422.75(b)]. For the purpose of imposing the additional term, it is a factor in aggravation that the defendant personally used a firearm in the commission of the offense, and nothing in Penal Code § 422.75(c) precludes a court from also imposing a sentence enhancement under Penal Code § 12022.5, 12022.53, or 12022.55, or any other law [Penal Code § 422.75(c)]. Any additional term imposed pursuant to Penal Code § 422.75 is in addition to any other punishment provided by law [Penal Code § 422.75(f)].

A person punished in accordance with Penal Code § 422.75 will also receive an additional term of one year in state prison for each prior felony conviction on charges brought and tried separately in which it was found by the trier of fact or admitted by the defendant that the crime was a hate crime. This additional term only applies when a sentence enhancement is not imposed pursuant to Penal Code § 667 or 667.5[Penal Code § 422.75(d)].

The court may not impose any additional term authorized by Penal Code § 422.75 unless the allegation is charged in the accusatory pleading and admitted by the defendant or found to be true by the trier of fact [Penal Code § 422.75(e)].

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the court may strike any additional term imposed by Penal Code § 422.75 if the court (1) determines that there are mitigating circumstances, and (2) states on the record the reasons for striking the additional punishment [Penal Code § 422.75(g)].

Except when the court imposes additional punishment under Penal Code § 422.75 or in a case involving a person convicted of an offense subject to Penal Code § 1170.8 (activity within or against church), the fact that a person committed a felony, or attempted to commit a felony, that is a hate crime, must be considered a circumstance in aggravation of the crime in imposing a term of imprisonment [Penal Code § 422.76; see Penal Code § 1170(b) (determination of term of imprisonment)].

As used in Penal Code § 422.75, "because of" means the bias motivation must be a cause in fact of the offense, regardless of whether other causes also exist. When multiple concurrent motives exist, the prohibited bias must be a substantial factor in bringing about the particular result [Penal Code § 422.75(i)(1)]. The Legislature expressly stated that the definition of "because of" in Penal Code § 422.75(i)(1) does not constitute a change in existing law, but rather is declaratory of the law as interpreted by the California Supreme Court in In re M.S. (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 698, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 355, 896 P.2d 1365 and People v. Superior Court (Aishman) (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 735, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 377, 896 P.2d 1387 [Penal Code § 422.75(i)(2)].

For purposes of Penal Code §§ 422.6, 422.7, 422.75, and 422.76, "gender" means the victim's sex and includes a person's gender identity and gender related appearance and behavior whether or not stereotypically associated with the person's assigned sex at birth, unless an explicit provision of law or the context clearly requires a different meaning [Penal Code §§ 422.56(c), 422.57].

In the case of a person convicted of any offense against the person or property of another individual, private institution, or public agency, committed because of the victim's actual or perceived race, color, ethnicity, religion, nationality, country of origin, ancestry, disability, gender, or sexual orientation, including, but not limited to, offenses defined in Penal Code § 302, 423.2, 594.3, 11411, 11412, or 11413, or for any hate crime, the court, absent compelling circumstances stated on the record, must make an order protecting the victim, or known immediate family or domestic partner of the victim, from further acts of violence, threats, stalking, or harassment by the defendant, including any stay-away conditions the court deems appropriate, and make obedience of that order a condition of the defendant's probation [Penal Code § 422.85(a)]. The court may also order that the defendant be required to do one or more of the following as a condition of probation [Penal Code § 422.85(a)]:

- Complete a class or program on racial or ethnic sensitivity, or other similar training in the area of civil rights, or a one-year counseling program intended to reduce the tendency toward violent and antisocial behavior if that class, program, or training is available and was developed or authorized by the court or local agencies in cooperation with organizations serving the affected community.

- Make payments or other compensation to a community-based program or local agency that provides services to victims of hate violence.

- Reimburse the victim for reasonable costs of counseling and other reasonable expenses that the court finds are the direct result of the defendant's acts.

Any payments or other compensation ordered under Penal Code § 422.85 are in addition to restitution payments required under Penal Code § 1203.04, and must be made only after that restitution is paid in full [Penal Code § 422.85(b)].

For discussion of criminal law generally, see Erwin, Millman, Monroe, Sevilla, Tarlow, California Criminal Defense Practice (Matthew Bender).

[e] Penalty Enhancements Are Constitutional

The constitutionality of penalty enhancements when the perpetrator is motivated by a specific protected characteristic of the victim has been upheld by the United States Supreme Court [Wisconsin v. Mitchell (1993) 508 U.S. 476, 488-490, 113 S. Ct. 2194, 124 L. Ed. 2d 436 (considered Wisconsin statute similar to California's)], as well as California courts [see In re M.S. (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 698, 709-726 ; People v. MacKenzie (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1256, 1267-1272, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 793 ; In re Joshua H. (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1734, 1742-1753, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 291] .

The contention that the enhancement statutes violate the perpetrator's First Amendment free speech rights has been rejected [see Wisconsin v. Mitchell (1993) 508 U.S. 476, 483-490, 113 S. Ct. 2194, 124 L. Ed. 2d 436 ; In re Joshua H. (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1734, 1742-1753, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 291] . The First Amendment does not protect acts of violence [In re Joshua H. (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1734, 1743, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 291] . Although some conduct is expressive, and entitled to protection under the First Amendment, to be protected the activity must be sufficiently imbued with elements of communication. The violent conduct proscribed by the enhancement statutes is not so imbued with elements of communication. What these statutes punish is acting on bigoted thoughts [In re Joshua H. (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1734, 1746-1747, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 291] . The enhancement statutes are narrowly drawn to protect a compelling state interest and are not likely to chill protected speech [In re Joshua H. (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1734, 1742-1753, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 291 ; cf. R.A.V. v. St. Paul (1992) 505 U.S. 377, 391-396, 112 S. Ct. 2538, 120 L. Ed. 2d 305 (ordinance that made display of symbols that arouse anger in others on basis of race, color, creed, religion, or gender a misdemeanor was facially unconstitutional)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewCivil Rights LawCivil Rights ActsGeneral OverviewCivil Rights LawPractice & ProcedureCriminal PenaltiesCriminal Law & ProcedureCriminal OffensesCrimes Against PersonsCoercionGeneral OverviewCriminal Law & ProcedureSentencingGuidelinesAdjustments & EnhancementsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117A CIVIL RIGHTS: INTERFERENCE WITH CIVIL RIGHTS BY THREATS, INTIMIDATION, COERCION, OR VIOLENCE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

11-117A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117A.13

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author John H. Scott Editorial Consultant

§ 117A.13 Standing in Bane Act Cases

The Bane Act provides for a personal cause of action for the victim of a hate crime [Civ. Code §§ 51.7, 52.1]. Its remedies are limited to those who themselves have been the subject of threats, intimidation, coercion, or violence.

Thus, for example, parents of a child who was allegedly killed because of his race had no standing to sue on their own behalf under Civ. Code § 52.1[see Bay Area Rapid Transit Dist. v. Superior Court (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 141, 144-145, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 887] . Similarly, a plaintiff who was a witness to an assault of his intimate male friend did not have standing to bring his own action under Civ. Code § 51.7[Coon v. Joseph (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1269, 1277, 237 Cal. Rptr. 873] .

PRACTICE TIP:

"Hate Crimes." Although these statutes are designed, in part, to give a remedy for persons who are victims of "hate crimes," in many of those instances the private wrongdoer is without assets and judgment proof. In general, it is the criminal law that must often be relied on to prosecute the people who commit violent crimes or property damage. On the other hand, Civ. Code § 52.1 may well become an important option to 42 U.S.C. § 1983 in many instances involving excessive force or other types of police misconduct. Practitioners should thus bring a § 52.1 claim, whenever possible, instead of or in addition to a § 1983 cause of action to avoid qualified immunity and the foreseeable interlocutory appeal. By John H. Scott

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJusticiabilityStandingGeneral OverviewCivil Rights LawCivil Rights ActsGeneral OverviewConstitutional LawThe JudiciaryCase or ControversyStandingThird Party Standing

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117A CIVIL RIGHTS: INTERFERENCE WITH CIVIL RIGHTS BY THREATS, INTIMIDATION, COERCION, OR VIOLENCE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

11-117A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 117A.14-117A.29

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author John H. Scott Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 117A.14[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117A CIVIL RIGHTS: INTERFERENCE WITH CIVIL RIGHTS BY THREATS, INTIMIDATION, COERCION, OR VIOLENCE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-117A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117A.30

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author John H. Scott Editorial Consultant

§ 117A.30 Related Matthew Bender Publications

For thorough discussion of federal civil rights legislation and actions, see J. Cook & J. Sobieski, Civil Rights Actions (Matthew Bender)

For related jury instructions, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, Series 3000 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender, Official Publisher), also available in LexisNexis Automated Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsJury InstructionsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117A CIVIL RIGHTS: INTERFERENCE WITH CIVIL RIGHTS BY THREATS, INTIMIDATION, COERCION, OR VIOLENCE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-117A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117A.31

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author John H. Scott Editorial Consultant

§ 117A.31 Federal Constitution

Freedom of speech and religion. U.S. Const., amend. I

Due process clause, applicable to federal government. U.S. Const., amend. V

Sovereign immunity of states. U.S. Const., amend. XI

Privileges and immunities, due process, and equal protection clauses, applicable to states. U.S. Const., amend. XIV

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Constitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental FreedomsFreedom of ReligionGeneral OverviewConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental FreedomsFreedom of SpeechGeneral OverviewConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessGeneral OverviewConstitutional LawEqual ProtectionScope of ProtectionConstitutional LawPrivileges & Immunities

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117A CIVIL RIGHTS: INTERFERENCE WITH CIVIL RIGHTS BY THREATS, INTIMIDATION, COERCION, OR VIOLENCE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-117A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117A.32

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author John H. Scott Editorial Consultant

§ 117A.32 State Constitution

Freedom of speech. Cal. Const., art. I, § 2

Freedom of religion. Cal. Const., art. I, § 4

Due process and equal protection. Cal. Const., art. I, § 7

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Constitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental FreedomsFreedom of ReligionGeneral OverviewConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental FreedomsFreedom of SpeechScope of FreedomConstitutional LawEqual ProtectionScope of Protection

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117A CIVIL RIGHTS: INTERFERENCE WITH CIVIL RIGHTS BY THREATS, INTIMIDATION, COERCION, OR VIOLENCE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-117A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117A.33

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author John H. Scott Editorial Consultant

§ 117A.33 Federal Statutes

Criminal sanctions for interference with civil rights of another. 18 U.S.C. § 241 et seq.

Jurisdiction of United States District Courts in civil rights cases. 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331, 1343, 1344

Equal rights under law. 42 U.S.C. § 1981

Property rights of citizens. 42 U.S.C. § 1982

Civil action for deprivation of civil rights under color of state law. 42 U.S.C. § 1983

Conspiracy to interfere with civil rights. 42 U.S.C. § 1985

Neglect to prevent conspiracy to interfere with civil rights. 42 U.S.C. § 1986

State law applicable in federal civil rights actions. 42 U.S.C. § 1988(a)

Recovery of attorney's fees in civil rights actions. 42 U.S.C. § 1988(b)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil Rights LawGeneral OverviewCivil Rights LawPractice & ProcedureCriminal PenaltiesCriminal Law & ProcedureCriminal OffensesCrimes Against PersonsCoercionGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117A CIVIL RIGHTS: INTERFERENCE WITH CIVIL RIGHTS BY THREATS, INTIMIDATION, COERCION, OR VIOLENCE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-117A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117A.34

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author John H. Scott Editorial Consultant

§ 117A.34 State Statutes

Freedom from intimidation or violence because of protected characteristics. Civ. Code § 51.7

Damages for denial of rights provided by Civ. Code § 51.7. Civ. Code § 52(b)

Statute of limitations for action under Civ. Code § 51.7 is three years. Civ. Code § 52(b)(2); Code Civ. Proc. § 338(n)

Protection from interference with constitutional or statutory rights by threats, intimidation, or coercion. Civ. Code § 52.1

Crimes against civil rights of another. Penal Code § 422.6 et seq.

Sentencing for crimes committed because of specified beliefs or characteristics of victim. Penal Code § 1107.75

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesDamagesCompensatory DamagesCivil Rights LawGeneral OverviewCivil Rights LawPractice & ProcedureCriminal PenaltiesCriminal Law & ProcedureCriminal OffensesCrimes Against PersonsCoercionGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime Limitations

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117A CIVIL RIGHTS: INTERFERENCE WITH CIVIL RIGHTS BY THREATS, INTIMIDATION, COERCION, OR VIOLENCE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-117A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117A.34A

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author John H. Scott Editorial Consultant

§ 117A.34A California Civil Jury Instructions (CACI)

For related jury instructions regarding civil rights, including instructions on, for example, the essential factual elements in Ralph Act and Bane Act cases, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, Series 3000 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender, Official Publisher), also available in LexisNexis Automated Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsJury InstructionsGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117A CIVIL RIGHTS: INTERFERENCE WITH CIVIL RIGHTS BY THREATS, INTIMIDATION, COERCION, OR VIOLENCE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-117A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117A.35

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author John H. Scott Editorial Consultant

§ 117A.35 Decisions

Plaintiff in action under Civ. Code § 52.1 must allege that defendant interfered with his or her legal rights because of plaintiff's race, color, religion, ancestry, national origin, political affiliation, sex, sexual orientation, age, disability, or position in a labor dispute. Nelson v. City of Irvine (9th Cir. 1998) 143 F.3d 1196, 1206-1207 , cert. denied, 525 U.S. 981

"Holocaust revisionist," who questioned historical accuracy of accepted portrayal of holocaust, stated claim under Civ. Code § 51.7 by alleging that defendants intended to disrupt his presentation at library association's annual conference by creating demonstration that would produce reasonable probability of property damage and violence against him. McCalden v. California Library Ass'n (9th Cir. 1992) 955 F.2d 1214, 1220-1222 , cert. denied, 504 U.S. 957

Cause of action under Civ. Code § 51.7 is not preempted by state Fair Employment and Housing Act. Diem v. City and County of San Francisco (N.D. Cal. 1988) 686 F. Supp. 806, 812

Plaintiffs adequately stated cause of action under Civ. Code § 52.1 for unconstitutional search and seizure violations extending far beyond ordinary tort claims, where plaintiffs were not required to allege defendants acted with discriminatory animus or intent, so long as acts were accompanied by requisite threats, intimidation, or coercion. Venegas v. County of Los Angeles (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 820, 841-843, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 692, 87 P.3d 1

Plaintiff suing private defendant under Civ. Code § 52.1 for interfering with plaintiff's right to be free from unreasonable government search and seizure must assert and prove that private defendant's conduct somehow interfered with plaintiff's ability to assert rights under that constitutional guaranty. Jones v. Kmart Corp. (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 329, 334, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844, 949 P.2d 941

Hate crime sentencing statutes (Penal Code §§ 422.6 and 422.7) are not unconstitutionally overbroad or vague. In re

M.S. (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 698, 709-726, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 355, 896 P.2d 1365

In action against county and district attorney alleging civil rights violations under Civ. Code, § 52.1, breach of involuntary bailment, civil rights violations under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, and waste of taxpayer funds arising from a seizure of property, based on seizure of property after criminal investigation, trial court erred in denying defendants' motion for summary adjudication on grounds of prosecutorial immunity under Gov. Code §§ 821.6, 820.8, 815.2(b), 815.6, 820.2, on ground that prosecutorial immunity applied only to actions taken in preparation for formal proceedings, where prosecutorial immunity applied more broadly to acts causally connected to investigation and prosecution, even after decision not to file charges, because all acts of which property owners complained were triggered by allegations of criminal activity and were part of investigation and prosecution process; by operation of Gov. Code §§ 820.2, 820.8, district attorney also was immune. County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (2009) 181 Cal. App. 4th 218, 227-232, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 230

Doctrine of qualified immunity which applies to federal civil rights actions under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 does not apply to California civil rights actions under Civ. Code § 52.1, so that because county and county sheriff's deputy argued no other grounds for immunity, summary adjudication in their favor was reversed because there were triable issues of fact as to whether deputy interfered by threats, intimidation or coercion with plaintiffs' exercise or enjoyment of their rights under Fourth Amendment and Cal. Const., art. I, § 13. However, city and city police officer were entitled to summary adjudication on Civ. Code § 52.1 cause of action because undisputed evidence showed officer did not violate any of plaintiffs' constitutional rights. Venegas v. County of Los Angeles (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1230, 1239-1248, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 741

In action brought under Bane Act based on arrest and detention of high school basketball coach for allegedly sexually molesting member of basketball team, there was no probable cause to arrest coach, where based on totality of circumstances, information known to police at time of detention was not sufficiently consistent, specific, or reliable to cause reasonable person to believe accusations of sexual molestation, particularly in light of exculpatory nature of coach's statements in recordings and comments by vice principal, and accuser's strong antipathy toward coach based on his treatment of her as player on basketball team. Gov. Code § 821.6 does not provide defense to Bane Act claim based on arrest without probable cause, and Gov. Code § 820.2 did not provide defense, because decision to arrest coach was not basic policy decision, but only operational decision by police purporting to apply law. Gillan v. City of San Marino (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 1033, 1044-1047, 1050-1051, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 158

Trial court did not err in granting nonsuit on Ralph Act claim that preschool teacher abused autistic students, where there was no evidence creating even inference that teacher's motivation in allegedly abusing students was fact that they were disabled children or that he took alleged actions because he was biased against or had animus against disabled children. Further, trial court did not err in granting motion for nonsuit on Bane Act claim that teacher's acts constituted intimidation or coercion, he need not have had discriminatory motivation, and he interfered with students' exercise and enjoyment of going to school, where there was no evidence teacher's actions caused students not to attend school or that he attempted to achieve this result, and there was no evidence of acts that could be construed as threats, violence or intimidation that actually caused loss of their right to education or that attempted to do so. Austin B. v. Escondido Union Schl. Dist. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 860, 880-883, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 454

There was no basis for reinstatement of claim for violation of Civ. Code § 52.1, alleging excessive force by police in use of dog on plaintiff, who was criminal suspect, after trial court had dismissed claim based on plaintiff's failure to allege discriminatory animus. Jury concluded that plaintiff's rights were not violated, and without violation, there was no conduct on which to base claim under Civ. Code § 52.1. Thompson v. County of Los Angeles (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 154, 172-173, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 702

In action against community college district and district law enforcement officers, alleging violation of constitutional rights of free speech and assembly by requiring plaintiffs to obtain permit before speaking and distributing literature on campus concerning plaintiffs' opposition to abortion, whether or not officers' conduct in demanding that plaintiffs leave campus and arresting one plaintiff after he refused to discontinue his activities constituted "coercion" under Bane Act, and whether or not permit policy imposed unconstitutional restraint on plaintiffs' free speech rights, defendants were entitled to immunity from liability under Bane Act (Gov. Code § 820.6). Immunity applied to action under Bane Act and district's permit policy was "enactment" within meaning of § 820.6. Further, evidence established officers acted in good faith in enforcing permit requirement and did not act with malice. Action against district was also without merit, when district, as public entity, was not liable under Gov. Code § 815.2(b) for employees' acts because employees were immune from liability under state law. O'Toole v. Superior Court (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 488, 501-509, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 531

Despite Gov. Code § 818, providing that public entity is not liable for damages imposed primarily for sake of example and by way of punishing defendant, county transportation authority could be liable for $25,000 penalty under Civ. Code §§ 51.7, 52(b)(2) based on attack by bus driver on passenger under circumstances showing discrimination based on sexual orientation, when statutory penalty under Civ. Code § 52(b)(2) established separate remedial category distinct from exemplary damages provided for in Civ. Code § 52(b)(1), when because of important nonpunitive remedial functions served by Civ. Code § 52(b)(2), it does not fall within scope of government immunity under Gov. Code § 818, and when statutory penalty imposed by Civ. Code § 52(b)(2) is not primarily punitive, since it was designed to insure plaintiff would receive at least minimum amount of compensation, even though there were little or no actual damages sustained. Los Angeles County Metro. Transp. Auth. v. Superior Court (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 261, 266-276, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 92

Arrest for disruption of school board meeting held in school cafeteria by dumping trash on floor did not violate Constitution and was beyond scope of Civ. Code §§ 52 and 52.1, which along with other statutes, were enacted in coordinated effort to combat hate crimes. Arrest and subsequent brief confinement was not hate crime, and was no crime at all. Further, insofar as plaintiff equated adjournment of public meeting with infringement on his First Amendment right of free speech, plaintiff's own conduct in dumping trash in school cafeteria caused adjournment of meeting, not expression of his views. McMahon v. Albany Unif. Schl. Dist. (2003) 104 Cal. App. 4th 1275, 1293-1294, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 184

To state claim under Civ. Code § 52.1 there must be violence or threat of violence, which is due to plaintiff's membership in protected class within meaning of Civ. Code § 51.7. Cabesuela v. Browning-Ferris Indus. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 101, 110-111, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 60

Parents of child who was allegedly killed because of his race had no standing to sue on their own behalf under Civ. Code § 52.1. Bay Area Rapid Transit Dist. v. Superior Court (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 141, 144-145, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 887

Civ. Code § 52.1 must be read in conjunction with Civ. Code § 51.7; plaintiff in action under § 52.1 must allege that interference with right was because of plaintiff's membership in protected class within meaning of § 51.7. Boccato v. City of Hermosa Beach (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1797, 1808-1809, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 282

Bane Act and related statutes dealing with discriminatory threats and violence are California's response to alarming increase in hate crimes. In re Joshua H. (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1734, 1748 n.9, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 291

Penal Code §§ 422.6 and 422.7 require proof of specific intent to deprive individual of right secured by federal or state law; knowledge of particular provisions of state or federal law is not necessary, however; it is sufficient if right is clearly defined and defendant intended to invade interests protected by constitutional or statutory authority. People v. Lashley (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 938, 947-951, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 629 , cert. denied, 506 U.S. 842 (1992)

Authorization of public attorneys to bring action under Civ. Code § 52.1 on behalf of people of state of California is indication that enforcement of lawshould notdepend on willingness of individual victims of discrimination to come forward; individual victims are often reluctant to become involved for reasons that spring from the very practice of discrimination. Olympic Club v. Superior Court (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 358, 363-364, 282 Cal. Rptr. 1

No cause of action is stated under Civ. Code § 51.7 if no violence or intimidation was committed or threatened toward plaintiff, who witnessed abuse of intimate and exclusive life-partner. Coon v. Joseph (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1269, 1277-1278, 237 Cal. Rptr. 873

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJusticiabilityStandingThird Party StandingCivil Rights LawGeneral OverviewConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental FreedomsFreedom of SpeechScope of FreedomConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsCriminal ProcessRight to Jury TrialTortsDamagesPunitive DamagesConduct Supporting Awards

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118

Chapter 117A CIVIL RIGHTS: INTERFERENCE WITH CIVIL RIGHTS BY THREATS, INTIMIDATION, COERCION, OR VIOLENCE

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-117A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117A.35A

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author John H. Scott Editorial Consultant

§ 117A.35A Attorney General Opinions

If perpetrator commits sexual assault wholly or partly because of victim's gender, hate crime has not been committed unless perpetrator also acts on some animosity or other bias motivation toward victim's gender. If perpetrator commits crime wholly or partly because perpetrator perceives that victim's disability, gender, or other protected characteristic makes victim more vulnerable to commission of crime, hate crime has not been committed unless perpetrator also acts on some animosity or other bias motivation toward victim's disability, gender, or other protected characteristic. If perpetrator commits crime wholly or partly because victim is under perpetrator's care for a disability, hate crime has not been committed unless perpetrator also acts on some animosity or other bias motivation toward victim's disability. Definition of "hate crime" to be applied by local law enforcement agency in reporting hate crimes to Department of Justice is same as definition contained in Pen. Code § 422.55, as further clarified by Pen. Code § 422.56(d), namely, a criminal offense committed in part due to perpetrator's bias motivation against victim's actual or perceived disability, gender, nationality, race or ethnicity, religion, sexual orientation, or association with person or group with one or more of such actual or perceived characteristics. 04 Ops. Cal. Atty Gen. 1104 (2005)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117A CIVIL RIGHTS: INTERFERENCE WITH CIVIL RIGHTS BY THREATS, INTIMIDATION, COERCION, OR VIOLENCE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-117A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117A.36

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author John H. Scott Editorial Consultant

§ 117A.36 Law Reviews

Minow, Regulating Hatred: Whose Speech, Whose Crimes, Whose Power? An Essay for Kenneth Karst, 47 UCLA L. Rev. 1253 (2000)

Harel and Parchomovsky, On Hate and Equality, 109 Yale L.J. 507 (1999)

Taslitz, Condemning the Racist Personality: Why the Critics of Hate Crimes Legislation are Wrong, 40 B.C. L. Rev. 739 (1999)

Wang, The Transforming Power of "Hate": Social Cognition Theory and the Harms of Bias-Related Crime, 71 S. Cal. L. Rev. 47 (1997)

Ward, Hate Crimes, 32 Gonz. L. Rev. 511 (1997)

Note, Treating Male Violence Against Women as a Bias Crime, 76 B.U. L. Rev. 575 (1996)

Adelman and Moorshead, Bad Laws Make Hard Cases: Hate Crime Laws and the Supreme Court's Opinion in Wisconsin v. Mitchell, 30 Gonz. L. Rev. 1 (1994)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117A CIVIL RIGHTS: INTERFERENCE WITH CIVIL RIGHTS BY THREATS, INTIMIDATION, COERCION, OR VIOLENCE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-117A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117A.37

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author John H. Scott Editorial Consultant

§ 117A.37 Text References

Witkin, Summary of California Law, vol. 8, Constitutional Law, § 895 (10th ed. 2005)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117A CIVIL RIGHTS: INTERFERENCE WITH CIVIL RIGHTS BY THREATS, INTIMIDATION, COERCION, OR VIOLENCE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-117A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 117A.38-117A.49

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author John H. Scott Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 117A.38[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117A CIVIL RIGHTS: INTERFERENCE WITH CIVIL RIGHTS BY THREATS, INTIMIDATION, COERCION, OR VIOLENCE
PART IV. FORMS

11-117A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117A.50

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author John H. Scott Editorial Consultant

§ 117A.50 Complaint for Damages and Temporary Restraining Order, Preliminary Injunction, and Permanent Injunction for Interference with Exercise of Civil Rights [Civ. Code § 52.1]

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages and Temporary Restraining Order, Preliminary Injunction, and Permanent Injunction for Interference with Exercise of Civil Rights [Civ. Code § 52.1]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff, vs.	)	NO. _____
	)	COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES AND TEMPOR-
_____ [name],	)	ARY RESTRAINING ORDER, AND PRELIMIN-
[and DOES I through _____,]	)	ARY AND PERMANENT INJUNCTIONS Defendant(s).	)	(Tom Bane Civil Rights Act)
	)

_____

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [state capacity and residence of defendant or other basis of venue, e.g., a resident of _____ County, California or a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of California with its principal place of business in _____ (city), _____ County, California].

[2. Defendants Doe I through Doe _____, inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names. Their true names and capacities are unknown to plaintiff. When their true names and capacities are ascertained, plaintiff will amend this complaint by inserting their true names and capacities herein. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged.)]

[3. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that) (A)t all times herein mentioned defendant _____ (name) was the agent of defendant _____ (name), and (in doing the things hereinafter alleged) was acting within the course and scope of such agency and with the permission and consent of his/her codefendant.]

4. _____ [Allege act(s), involving violence or threats of violence, that interfered with, or were attempts to interfere with, plaintiff's exercise of his or her rights, e.g., Defendant _____ (name), a grocery store owner, has refused and continues to refuse to allow plaintiff, a member of the Hare Krishna religion, to enter his/her store, and has posted signs in his/her store window and made comments and gestures to plaintiff threatening violence against plaintiff and other persons belonging to the Hare Krishna religion].

5. _____ [Set forth nature of right(s) secured to plaintiff by Constitution or laws of the United States or Constitution or laws of California, e.g., Under Civ. Code § 51, plaintiff has the right to full and equal accommodation and service in all business establishments within the state, and may not be refused entry or service because of his/her religion].

6. _____ [Allege that the plaintiff's race, color, religion, ancestry, national origin, political affiliation, sex, sexual orientation, age, disability, or position in a labor dispute, was the reason for the defendant's actions, e.g., While barring plaintiff from entering his/her grocery store, defendant held up a wooden club, and yelled at plaintiff, "I will use this club to keep you Hare Krishnas out of my store!"].

7. As a proximate result of the _____ [allege prohibited conduct by defendant, e.g., interference with plaintiff's right to full and equal accommodations and service in defendant's business establishment] by defendant[s, and each of them,] plaintiff has suffered damages [in the sum of $_____ and/or continue with any other allegations of general or special damages, as appropriate].

8. As a proximate result of the wrongful act of defendants, plaintiff is in addition entitled to recover a statutory civil penalty of $25,000, as provided in Civ. Code § 52(b).

[9. The above-recited actions of defendants were done with malice, fraud, or oppression, and in reckless disregard of the plaintiff's rights. Specifically, _____ (set forth facts showing malice, fraud, or oppression, within the meaning of Civ. Code § 3294).]

10. Defendant's [threatened] wrongful conduct, unless and until enjoined and restrained by order of this court, will cause great and irreparable injury to plaintiff in that _____ [specify particular facts that will constitute great and irreparable injury, e.g., defendant's grocery store is the only grocery store within five miles of plaintiff's house, and traveling the distance to the next closest store for groceries on a regular basis would cause great hardship to plaintiff].

11. Plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law for the injuries _____ [currently being suffered or that are threatened] in that _____ [specify facts in addition to those previously alleged that tend to show the inadequacy of any legal remedy, e.g., plaintiff will be forced to institute a multiplicity of suits to protect himself/herself against the ongoing interference with his/her legal rights].

12. Plaintiff has incurred attorney's fees in the amount of $_____ for _____ [describe nature of fees, e.g., retention of counsel to advise him/her of his/her rights and prepare this complaint]. [Plaintiff expects to incur additional attorney's fees in the amount of $_____ by the conclusion of this action for _____ [describe nature of attorney's fees anticipated, e.g., the preparation and conduct of trial.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant[s, and each of them,] as follows:

1. For actual damages in the amount of $_____;

2. For a statutory civil penalty in the sum of $25,000, pursuant to Civ. Code § 52(b);

[3. For exemplary and punitive damages;]

4. For an order requiring defendant[s, and each of them,] to show cause why he/she/they should not be enjoined as hereinafter set forth, during the pendency of this action;

5. For a temporary restraining order, preliminary injunction, and permanent injunction, all enjoining defendant[s, and each of them,] [and his/her/their agents, servants, and employees, and all persons acting under, in concert with, or for him/her/them]:

a. From _____ [specify each of the acts, courses of conduct, and conditions defendant(s) are to be prohibited from doing, commencing, continuing, or maintaining, e.g., continuing to prohibit plaintiff from entering and purchasing items in defendant's grocery store];

b. To _____ [specify each of the acts, courses of conduct, and conditions defendant(s) are to be commanded to do or undertake, e.g., remove signs posted in defendant's store window that are threatening towards persons belonging to the Hare Krishna religion];

6. For attorney's fees in the amount of $_____;

7. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

8. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Plaintiff

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.
Dated: _____

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by a plaintiff to bring an action for damages and for a temporary restraining order and preliminary and permanent injunctions to protect his or her peaceable exercise or enjoyment of any right secured by the Constitution or laws of the United States or of California [see Civ. Code § 52.1(b)].

Civ. Code § 52.1(b) allows an individual to institute a civil action for damages, including, but not limited to, damages under Civ. Code § 52, injunction, and other appropriate equitable relief [Civ. Code § 52.1(b)].

An action brought in accordance with Civ. Code § 52.1 is independent of any other action, remedy, or procedure that may be available to an aggrieved individual under any other provision of law, including, but not limited to, an action, remedy, or procedure brought under Civ. Code § 51.7[Civ. Code § 52.1(g)]. Thus, for example, counsel might combine an action under Civ. Code § 52.1 with an action alleging deprivation of rights under color of state law or an action alleging violation of the Unruh Civil Rights Act [see Ch. 113, Civil Rights: The Post-Civil War Civil Rights Statutes and Ch. 116, Civil Rights: Discrimination in Business Establishments].

PRACTICE TIP:

Proving Claim May Be Difficult. Civ. Code § 52.1 should always be considered as an option, instead of a claim under 42 U.S.C. § 1983[see Ch. 113, Civil Rights: The Post-Civil War Civil Rights Statutes], if there is a factual basis on which to prove that the constitutional deprivation included "threats, intimidation or coercion." It is one thing to plead it--it may be another to prove it. I suspect that this issue will arise in motions for summary judgment, special verdicts, and appeal. In most cases it should be left to the jury to decide whether a constitutional violation occurred and whether it was accompanied by "threats, intimidation or coercion." Notably, BAJI 7.90 specifically deals with violations of Civ. Code § 52.1. By John H. Scott

[3] Allegations

The form of complaint in [1], above, alleges all of the following:

- The defendant's capacity and basis for venue (Paragraph 1).

- An optional fictitious name ("DOE") allegation (Optional Paragraph 2)[see Civ. Code § 474; see also Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used].

- An optional agency allegation (Optional Paragraph 3)[see Ch. 427, Principal and Agent].

- Acts on the part of the defendant, involving violence or threats of violence, that interfered with, or were attempts to interfere with, the plaintiff's exercise of his or her rights (Paragraph 4)[see Cabesuela v. Browning-Ferris Indus. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 101, 110-111, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 60 (to state claim under Civ. Code § 52.1 there must be violence or threat of violence)].

- That the defendant's wrongful conduct interfered with or attempted to interfere with a right of the plaintiff secured by the Constitution or laws of the United States or of California (Paragraph 5)[see Civ. Code § 52.1(b)].

- That the defendant interfered, or attempted to interfere, with the plaintiff's rights because of the plaintiff's race, color, religion, ancestry, national origin, political affiliation, sex, sexual orientation, age, disability, or position in a labor dispute (Paragraph 6)[see Cabesuela v. Browning-Ferris Indus. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 101, 110-111, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 60 ; Boccato v. City of Hermosa Beach (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1797, 1808-1809, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 282] .

- Damages proximately caused by the defendant's conduct (Paragraph 7)[see Civ. Code §§ 52.1(b), 3333].

- The plaintiff's right to recover a statutory civil penalty (Paragraph 8)[see Civ. Code § 52(b); see also § 117A.11[1]].

- An optional allegation that the actions of the defendant were done with malice, fraud, or oppression, and in reckless disregard of the plaintiff's rights (Optional Paragraph 9). This optional allegation, if appropriate under the circumstances, would support recovery of punitive damages [see Civ. Code § 3294].

- Facts showing why the defendant's conduct will constitute great and irreparable injury (Paragraph 10)[see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 526, 527(a); E. H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1] .

- Facts showing why the plaintiff lacks an adequate remedy at law (Paragraph 11)[see Civ. Code § 3422; Code Civ. Proc. § 526].

- The basis for an award of attorney's fees (Paragraph 12)[see Civ. Code § 52.1(h)].

[4] Prayer

The prayer in the form of complaint in [1], above, seeks recovery of actual damages and a statutory civil penalty in the sum of $25,000 pursuant to Civ. Code § 52(b). The prayer also includes an optional claim for punitive damages. If the facts of the case do not support this claim, this paragraph of the prayer, and Optional Paragraph 9 in the body of the form complaint, should not be used.

In addition, the prayer seeks a temporary restraining order, a preliminary injunction, and a permanent injunction.

Lastly, the prayer seeks attorney's fees. Recovery of attorney's fees is authorized in a case such as this by Civ. Code § 52.1(h).

[5] Verification

Verification [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction on a complaint instead of on an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5)[see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . Otherwise, verification is not required.

For discussion, a procedural checklist, and forms necessary to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

Verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer in a superior court action other than a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446] and precludes a general denial in superior court and some limited civil cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Jurisdiction and Venue

A Civ. Code § 52.1(b) action must be filed in superior court. Such an action may be brought in either the county in which the conduct occurred or in the county in which the defendant resides or has his or her place of business [see Civ. Code § 52.1(c) (includes provision governing venue in action by Attorney General under Civ. Code § 52.1(a))].

[7] Cross References

For a court order granting injunctive relief preventing interference with exercise of civil rights under Civ. Code § 52.1, see § 117A.51

For alternative allegations as to agency, capacity, and residence of parties, and fictitious name allegations, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used

For discussion and forms relating to amendment of pleadings for use when an unknown defendant is sued under a fictitious name, see Ch. 21, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings

For alternative forms of captions and introductions, see Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions

For discussion and forms relating to the format of complaints, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints

For discussion and forms relating to damages, see Ch. 177, Damages

For discussion and forms relating to temporary restraining orders, preliminary injunctions, and permanent injunctions, see Ch. 303, Injunctions

For discussion of jurisdiction in California courts, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal , and Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter

For forms of allegations of infliction of emotional distress, see Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress

For alternative forms of prayers, see Ch. 420, Prayers

For discussion and forms relating to service of summons, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers

For forms of allegations establishing venue, see Ch. 571, Venue

For alternative forms of verification, see Ch. 572, Verification

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 117A CIVIL RIGHTS: INTERFERENCE WITH CIVIL RIGHTS BY THREATS, INTIMIDATION, COERCION, OR VIOLENCE
PART IV. FORMS

11-117A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 117A.51

AUTHOR: Dennis M. Farias Revision Author John H. Scott Editorial Consultant

§ 117A.51 Order Granting Preliminary Injunction Enjoining Interference with Exercise of Civil Rights [Civ. Code § 52.1]

[1] FORM Order Granting Preliminary Injunction Enjoining Interference with Exercise of Civil Rights [Civ. Code § 52.1]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name], Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name], [and DOES I	)	ORDER through _____,] Defendant(s).	)
	)

_____

The _____ [application or motion] of plaintiff for the preliminary injunction made herewith came on regularly for hearing by the court this date pursuant to _____ [an order to show cause issued by this court on _____ (date) or plaintiff's motion for a preliminary injunction]. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____ [name]; defendant[s, and each of them,] appeared by counsel _____ [name(s)].

On proof made to the satisfaction of the court, and good cause appearing therefor,

IT IS ORDERED that during the pendency of this action the above-named defendant[s, and each of them,] [and their officers, agents, employees, representatives, and all persons acting in concert or participating with them], shall be and _____ [he is or she is or they are] hereby enjoined and restrained from engaging in, committing, or performing, directly or indirectly, by any means whatsoever, any of the following acts:

1. _____ [Specify the various acts and lines of conduct that are prohibited with sufficient clarity to apprise all of the persons enjoined of what they are prohibited from doing, e.g., Continuing to prohibit plaintiff from entering defendant _____'s (name) grocery store at _____ (address of store) and continuing to threaten plaintiff through the use of threatening signs];

2. _____ [Continue with specifications as needed].

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that before the above order shall take effect, plaintiff herein shall file a written undertaking in the sum of $_____, as required by Code of Civil Procedure Section 529, for the purpose of indemnifying defendant[s, and each of them,] for such damages as he/she/they may sustain by reason of this preliminary injunction if the court finally decides that plaintiff is not entitled thereto.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the preliminary injunction as set forth above shall issue on plaintiff's filing a written undertaking in the sum specified above.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the _____ [plaintiff or plaintiff's attorney deliver or clerk of the court mail] two copies of this order to _____ [specify local law enforcement agency with jurisdiction over plaintiff's residence and any other local law enforcement agencies with jurisdiction over any other locations where violence against plaintiff is likely to occur] by the close of the business day today.

The court reserves jurisdiction to modify this injunction as the ends of justice may require.

VIOLATION OF THIS ORDER IS A CRIME PUNISHABLE UNDER SECTION 422.77 OF THE PENAL CODE.
Dated: _____

_____ [signature]

Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

The form of order in [1], above, should be prepared by counsel for a plaintiff when counsel has persuaded the court to issue a preliminary injunction in an action brought under Civ. Code § 52.1(b). The order contains both prohibitory and mandatory allegations. It may be modified for use when the court has granted a temporary restraining order.

The language warning that violation of the order is a crime is mandatory [Civ. Code § 52.1(d)].

For general discussion of the requirements and procedures controlling preliminary injunctions, and additional forms, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[3] Service of Order

The court will order that two copies of any order, extension, modification, or termination thereof granted pursuant to Civ. Code § 52.1 be delivered by the plaintiff or the plaintiff's attorney, or be mailed by the county clerk, to each local law enforcement agency having jurisdiction over the plaintiff's residence and any other locations in which the court determines that acts of violence against the plaintiff are likely to occur. The plaintiff or the plaintiff's attorney designates those law enforcement agencies that are to receive copies of the order. The order, extension, modification, or termination must be delivered or mailed by the close of the business day on which it was granted [Civ. Code § 52.1(e)].

Each appropriate law enforcement agency receiving an order, extension, or modification of an order issued pursuant to Civ. Code § 52.1 is required to serve forthwith a copy thereof on the defendant [Civ. Code § 52.1(e)]. The law enforcement agencies are also required to provide to any law enforcement officer responding to the scene of reported violence information regarding the existence of, terms, and current status of, any order issued pursuant to Civ. Code § 52.1[Civ. Code § 52.1(e)].

[4] Cross References

For form of complaint seeking injunctive relief preventing interference with exercise of civil rights under Civ. Code § 52.1, see § 117A.50

For discussion and forms relating to temporary restraining orders, preliminary injunctions, and permanent injunctions, see Ch. 303, Injunctions

For discussion of jurisdiction in California courts, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal , and Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 118.syn

§ 118.syn Synopsis to Chapter 118: CIVIL SERVICE

§ 118.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 118.02 Cross References

§§ 118.03-118.09 [Reserved]

§ 118.10 Governing Law

§ 118.11 Nature and Purpose of Civil Service Systems

[1] State System

[2] City and County Civil Service Systems

[3] Public Employment Determined by Law and Not by Contract

§ 118.12 Persons Covered by Civil Service Systems

[1] State Officers and Employees

[2] County Officers and Employees

[3] City Officers and Employees

§ 118.13 Due Process Rights

[1] Based on Property Interest in Employment

[2] When Property Interest in Employment Exists

[3] Preremoval Procedural Safeguards

[4] Posttermination Hearing; Right to Reinstatement and Back Pay

[5] Suspensions

§ 118.14 Appointments in General

§ 118.15 Qualifications for Positions

§ 118.16 Psychological Screening for Peace Officer Positions

[1] Psychological Standards

[2] Screening Procedures

[3] Disqualification Based on Screening

[4] Confidentiality

§ 118.17 Examinations

[1] Requirement

[2] Open Examinations

[3] Types of Examinations

[4] Age Limitations

[5] Announcement of Examination

[6] Application for Examination

[7] Conduct of Examination

[8] Results of Examination; Employment List

[9] Certificates of Competence

[10] Continuous Examinations

[11] Veterans' Preference

[12] Appeal From Written Examination

[13] Confidentiality; Inspection Rights

[14] Qualifications Appraisal Interview

[15] Ineligibility or Disqualification

§ 118.18 City and County Civil Service Examinations

§ 118.19 Filling Vacant Positions

[1] Certification of Eligible Persons

[2] Response by Eligible Person

[3] Waiver of Certification and Appointment

[4] Promotions

[a] Promotional Lists

[b] Employee Development Appraisal

§ 118.20 Probationary Status

[1] State Employees

[a] Performance Reviews

[b] Rejection During Probationary Period

[c] Investigation of Reasons for Rejection

[d] Hearings

[e] Back Pay

[f] Cancellation or Withdrawal of Notice of Rejection

[2] County and City Employees

§ 118.21 Limited-Term Appointments

§ 118.22 Transfers

[1] Voluntary and Involuntary

[2] Transfer of Agency Function

§ 118.23 Temporary Assignments

§ 118.24 Qualification for Changed Position

§ 118.25 Layoffs

[1] State Employees

[2] City Employees

§ 118.26 Reinstatement

[1] In General

[2] County Employees After Election to Office

§ 118.27 Appointment

[1] Good Faith Requirements

[2] Appointment Contrary to Law

[3] Entitlement to Compensation

[4] Notice and Appeal Rights

§ 118.28 Prohibited Acts and Offenses

§ 118.29 Ethnicity, Sex, and Disability Information

§ 118.30 Grievance Procedures

§ 118.31 Reasonable Accommodation Requirements

§ 118.32 Affirmative Action Plan

§ 118.33 Correction of Underrepresentation

§ 118.34 Limited Examination and Appointment Program

[1] Alternative to Traditional Processes

[2] Appeal Rights

§ 118.35 Discriminatory Acts

§ 118.36 Cease and Desist Orders

§ 118.37 Procedure

[1] Written Complaint

[2] Filing With Agency

[3] Filing With State Personnel Board

[4] Time Limitation for Filing Complaint

[5] Assistance From State Personnel Board

§ 118.38 Prohibited Testing or Evaluation Methods

§ 118.39 Family Care Leave Rights

§ 118.40 Authority to Take Adverse Action

§ 118.41 Causes for Discipline

§ 118.42 Forced Leave of Absence Pending Investigation

§ 118.43 Limitation Period

§ 118.44 Notice of Adverse Action

§ 118.45 Discovery

[1] Inspection of Documents and Interview of Other Employees

[2] Compelling Discovery

[a] Administrative Proceeding

[b] Review in Superior Court

[c] Appellate Review

§ 118.46 Answer to Notice of Adverse Action

§ 118.47 Amended or Supplemental Notice of Adverse Action

§ 118.48 Investigation and Hearing

[1] By State Personnel Board

[2] Hearing Requirement

[3] Notice and Conduct of Hearing

[4] Failure to Proceed at Hearing

[5] Settlement Conference

[6] Motion for Dismissal

[7] Decision

[a] Requirements

[b] Proposed Decision by Representative

[c] Standards of Proof and Review

[8] Remedy if Action Is Revoked or Modified

[9] Petition for Rehearing

[10] Right to Pursue Judicial Remedy

§ 118.49 Effect of Employee's Dismissal From Civil Service

§ 118.50 Filing of Charges by Third Party

§ 118.51 Action Against Tenured Managerial Employees

§ 118.52 Local Public Employees

[1] In General

[2] Required Provisions of County Ordinance

[3] Effect of Collective Bargaining Agreement

§ 118.53 Failure to Pass Required Medical Examination

[1] Basis for Transfer, Demotion, or Termination

[2] Notice; Appeal Rights

[3] Right to Reinstatement

§ 118.54 Failure to Meet Requirements for Continuing Employment

[1] Nondisciplinary Termination, Demotion, or Transfer

[2] Permissible Requirements

§ 118.55 Prohibited Retaliation

§ 118.56 Grounds for Adverse Action and Other Penalties

§ 118.57 Administrative Procedure

[1] Complaint

[2] Board Investigation or Hearing of Complaint

[3] Remedy

§ 118.58 Civil Action

§ 118.59 Authority to Hold Hearings and Make Investigations

§ 118.60 Proceedings Initiated by Petition or Appeal

§ 118.61 Time for Investigation or Hearing

§ 118.62 Conduct of Hearing or Investigation

§ 118.63 Reference to Laws and Decisions

§ 118.64 Findings

§ 118.65 Transcript of Hearing

§ 118.66 Settlement or Adjustment of Dispute

§ 118.67 Orders and Decisions of Board

[1] Binding Effect

[2] Enforcement

§ 118.68 Writ of Review or Mandate

[1] Available Procedures

[2] Standard of Review

[3] Limitation Periods

[4] Service on Board or Member or Employee of Board

[5] Judgment

§ 118.69 Local Civil Service Commission Decisions

§ 118.70 Public Safety Officers Procedural Bill of Rights Act

§ 118.71 Punitive Actions to Which Act Applies

§ 118.72 Limitation Period and Deadline for Notice of Decision

§ 118.73 Investigations and Interrogations

[1] Rights if Punitive Action May Result

[2] Time of Interrogation

[3] Interrogating Officers

[4] Right to Be Informed About Investigation

[5] Conduct of Interrogation

[6] Miranda Warning and Related Information

[7] Representation

[8] Record of Interrogation

§ 118.74 Insubordination

§ 118.75 Temporary Reassignments

§ 118.76 Adverse Comments in Personnel File

§ 118.77 Lie Detector Tests

§ 118.78 Financial Disclosures

§ 118.79 Searches

§ 118.80 Administrative Appeal

§ 118.81 Judicial Enforcement of Rights

§§ 118.82-118.89 [Reserved]

§ 118.90 Firefighters Procedural Bill of Rights Act

§ 118.91 Investigation and Interrogation of Firefighter

§ 118.92 Punitive Action

[1] Restrictions on Punitive Action

[2] Limitation Period for Imposing Punitive Action

[3] Administrative Appeal

§ 118.93 Personnel Records

§ 118.94 Judicial Enforcement of Firefighter's Rights

§§ 118.95-118.99 [Reserved]

§ 118.100 California Points and Authorities

§ 118.101 Forms of Discovery

§ 118.102 State Constitution

§ 118.103 State Statutes

[1] Local Civil Service Systems

[2] State Civil Service System

§ 118.104 Administrative Regulations

§ 118.105 Decisions

[1] Administrative Procedure

[a] City Employment

[b] County Employment

[c] Due Process Rights

[d] Evidence

[e] Hearing Officer

[2] Arbitration of Wage Dispute

[3] Damages

[4] Disabilities

[5] Discrimination

[6] Eligibility Lists

[7] Examinations

[8] Exhaustion of Administrative Remedies

[9] Grounds for Discipline

[a] Absence Without Leave

[b] Discourteous Treatment of Public or Other Employees

[c] Dishonesty

[d] Felony or Misdemeanor Involving Moral Turpitude

[e] Inefficiency

[f] Inexcusable Neglect of Duty

[g] Insubordination

[h] Other Failure of Good Behavior

[i] Physical Inability

[j] Willful Disobedience

[10] Judicial Review

[11] Layoff

[12] Penalties

[13] Persons Covered

[14] Persons Authorized to Take Adverse Action

[15] Probationary Period

[16] Procedural Rights of Peace Officers

[17] Public Employment

[18] Reinstatement and Payment of Back Salary

[19] Resignation

[20] State Personnel Board

[21] Transfers

§ 118.106 Attorney General Opinions

§ 118.107 Law Reviews

§ 118.108 Text References

§§ 118.109-118.119 [Reserved]

§ 118.120 Contesting State Civil Service System Actions and Decisions

[1] Oral Civil Service Examination

[2] Written Civil Service Examination

[3] Qualifications Appraisal Panel Rating

[4] Ineligibility to Take Examination or Be Certified

[5] Disadvantaged Employee

[6] Rejection During Probationary Period

[7] Corrective Action on Unlawful Appointment

[8] Request for Reasonable Accommodation

[9] Discrimination

[10] Adverse Action

[11] Failure to Pass Employer-Required Medical Examination

[12] Protection of Whistle-Blowers

§§ 118.121-118.139 [Reserved]

§ 118.140 Answer and Appeal From Notice of Adverse Action [Gov. Code § 19575; 2 Cal. Code Reg § 51.2]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Contents

[4] Time Limits

[5] Copy to Agency

[6] Cross References

[7] State Statutes

[8] Administrative Regulations

§ 118.141 Appeal, Application, Petition, Protest--Action Other Than Adverse Action--General Form [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 51.2]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Time Limits

[4] Cross Reference

§ 118.142 Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] of State Personnel Board Imposing Adverse Action on Employee [Gov. Code § 19583] and to Compel Reinstatement and Compensation [Gov. Code § 19584]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Verification

[5] Attorney's Fees

[6] Enforcement of Judgment

[7] Cross References

[8] California Points and Authorities

[9] State Statutes

[10] Decisions

§ 118.143 Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086, 1094.5, 1094.6] to Review Administrative Decision of Local Civil Service Commission Imposing Adverse Action on Employee and Compel Reinstatement and Payment of Back Salary

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Identity of Respondent

[4] State Statutes

[5] Decisions

[6] Cross Reference

§ 118.144 Allegations--For Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086]--To Review Decision of State Personnel Board or Local Civil Service Commission and to Compel Board or Commission to Permit Petitioner to Take Examination

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Examination Standards

[4] California Points and Authorities

[5] State Statutes

[6] Decisions

[7] Cross Reference

§ 118.145 Allegations--For Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086]--To Review Decision of State Personnel Board or Local Civil Service Commission and to Compel Board or Commission to Certify for Appointment for Eligible List to Civil Service Position

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] California Points and Authorities

[4] State Statutes

[5] Decisions

§ 118.146 Allegations--For Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086]--To Review Decision of State Personnel Board or Local Civil Service Commission and to Compel Board or Commission to Conduct Promotional Examination

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] California Points and Authorities

[4] State Statutes

[5] Decisions

§ 118.147 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333; Gov. Code § 8547.8(c)] for Retaliation Against State Employee or Applicant for State Employment for Disclosure Protected by California Whistleblower Protection Act [Gov. Code § 8547.8(c)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Reimbursement of Defense Costs

[5] Related Liabilities

[a] State Civil Service System

[b] Local Civil Service Systems

[6] Venue

[7] Verification

[8] Cross References

[9] California Employment Law

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART I. SCOPE

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.01

§ 118.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the state civil service system and proceedings involving civil service employees in state civil service agencies, including the following topics:

- The appointment process.
- Special rules regarding the hiring of disabled persons.
- Prohibited discrimination in state employment.
- Promotional rights.
- Layoff procedures.
- Demotions and transfers.
- Disciplinary proceedings.
- Protection against retaliation for disclosing improper government activities (whistle-blowing).
- Reinstatement rights.
- Grievance procedures within a department or agency.
- Investigations and hearings by the State Personnel Board.
- Judicial review of the Board's decisions.
- Special rights and remedies afforded to peace officers.

City and county civil service systems are discussed in general terms by way of comparison with or contrast to the state system.

This chapter contains a procedural checklist of administrative appeal procedures for attacking actions against employees in the state civil service system.

This chapter contains a form of appeal from a notice of adverse action [§ 118.140] and a general form of appeal from an agency action [§ 118.141], which are to be filed with the State Personnel Board.

The chapter also includes forms of petition for a writ of mandate to review a decision of the State Personnel Board [§ 118.142] or of a local civil service agency [§ 118.143] imposing adverse action on an employee. Allegations for the following purposes, which may be used in either of those forms, are also provided:

- To permit the petitioner to take an examination [§ 118.144].
- To certify the petitioner for appointment from eligible lists [§ 118.145].
- To require a promotional examination to be held [§ 118.146].

In addition, the chapter contains a form of complaint for damages for use by a whistle-blowing state employee or applicant for state employment who has been retaliated against for disclosing improper government activities [§ 118.147].

For discussion of administrative adjudication and judicial review of administrative action, see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication , et seq., and Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq. However, that discussion emphasizes the Administrative Procedure Act [Gov. Code § 11370 et seq.], which is not generally applicable to proceedings before the State Personnel Board.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART I. SCOPE

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.02

§ 118.02 Cross References

For discussion and forms relating to mandate proceedings for review of or relief from administrative decisions, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition , and Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq.

For discussion and forms relating to proceedings before administrative agencies generally, see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjucication , et seq.

For discussion and forms relating to mandate proceedings to compel public officers to act, see Ch. 467, Public Entities and Officers: Enforcement of Judgments Against Public Enemies .

For discussion and forms relating to petitions for writs of review (certiorari), see Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART I. SCOPE

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 118.03-118.09

[Reserved]

§§ 118.03[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Principles

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.10

§ 118.10 Governing Law

The civil service system of the State of California is authorized by the constitution [Cal. Const., art. VII, § 1] and implemented by the State Civil Service Act [Gov. Code § 18500 et seq.] and regulations under the Act [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1 et seq.]. The State Personnel Board is created and empowered by the constitution to enforce the State Civil Service Act [Cal. Const., art. VII, §§ 2, 3]. Nothing in the constitution requires that all civil service rules apply to all public employees, and nothing prohibits the Legislature from experimenting to treat certain employees under different rules, provided the merit principle is not infringed [Alexander v. State Personnel Board (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 526, 536-537, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324 ; see Gov. Code § 19600 et seq. (authorizing State Personnel Board to conduct and evaluate demonstration projects to determine whether changes in policies or procedures would result in improved state personnel management)].

County civil service systems are authorized by the constitution [Cal. Const., art. XI, §§ 1, 3, 4] and implemented by the County Civil Service Enabling Law [Gov. Code § 31100 et seq.].

City civil service systems are authorized by the constitution [Cal. Const., art. XI, §§ 2, 3, 5] and implemented by statute [Gov. Code § 45000 et seq.]. Local civil service regulations are contained in local charters and ordinances.

City and county civil service laws are generally enforced by a local civil service commission appointed by the city council or county board of supervisors [see Gov. Code §§ 31110, 45004].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Principles

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.11

§ 118.11 Nature and Purpose of Civil Service Systems

[1] State System

The state civil service system is intended to promote and increase economy and efficiency in state service [Gov. Code § 18500(b)]. It has the following characteristics:

- Positions involving comparable duties and responsibilities are similarly classified and compensated [Gov. Code § 18500(c)(1)].

- Appointments are based on merit, and fitness is ascertained through practical and competitive examinations [Gov. Code § 18500(c)(2); see § 118.17].

- State civil service employment is made a career by providing for security of tenure and the advancement of employees within the service insofar as this is consistent with the best interests of the state [Gov. Code § 18500(c)(3)].

- The rights of state civil service employees are given consideration insofar as this is consistent with the best interests of the state [Gov. Code § 18500(c)(4)].

- Applicants and employees are treated in an equitable manner without regard to political affiliation, race, color, sex, religious creed, national origin, ancestry, marital status, age, sexual orientation, disability, political or religious opinions, or non-job-related factors [Gov. Code § 18500(c)(5)].

- The tenure of civil service employment is subject to good behavior, efficiency, the necessity of the performance of the work, and the appropriation of sufficient funds [Gov. Code § 18500(c)(6)].

[2] City and County Civil Service Systems

Counties and cities may adopt a civil service system, by ordinance, that is adaptable to their size and type and that covers any or all appointed officers and employees [see Gov. Code §§ 31102, 31104, 45000, 45001].

[3] Public Employment Determined by Law and Not by Contract

In California, the terms and conditions of public employment are determined by law, not contract [Miller v. State of California (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 808, 813-814, 135 Cal. Rptr. 386, 557 P. 2d 970] . Because public employment is held by statute, rather than by contract, a public employee who has been discharged cannot state a cause of action for breach of contract or for breach of an implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing [Shoemaker v. Myers (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 1, 23-24, 276 Cal. Rptr. 303, 801 P.2d 1054 ; Kim v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 160, 164-165, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 10] . In cases of public employment by counties, cities, and the like, where a civil service system is created by ordinance, certain "unclassified" employees may be terminated at will [Hill v. City of Long Beach (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1684, 1692-1694, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 125 ; see also Portman v. County of Santa Clara (9th Cir. 1993) 995 F.2d 898, 905 (there can be no implied contract to defeat the statutory terms of public employment)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Principles

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.12

§ 118.12 Persons Covered by Civil Service Systems

[1] State Officers and Employees

The state civil service includes every officer and employee of the state except officers and employees that are excluded by the constitution or statutes [Cal. Const., art. VII, § 1(a)]. The constitution excludes the following officers and employees from civil service coverage [Cal. Const., art. VII, § 4]:

- Officers and employees appointed or employed by the legislature or the judiciary.
- Officers elected by the people and a deputy and employee selected by each elected officer.
- Members of boards and commissions.
- A deputy or employee selected by each board or commission appointed by the governor or authorized by statute.
- State officers appointed by the governor, employees of the governor's office, and employees of the lieutenant governor's office directly appointed or employed by the lieutenant governor.
- A deputy or employee selected by each officer, except members of boards and commissions.
- Officers and employees of the University of California and the California State Colleges.
- The teaching staff of schools under the jurisdiction of the Department of Education or the superintendent of public instruction.
- Member, inmate, and patient help in state homes, charitable, or correctional institutions, and state facilities for mentally retarded persons.

- Members of the militia while engaged in military service.
- Deputies of the attorney general.
- Certain employees of district agricultural associations.

In addition, the governor may designate exempt managerial positions in the executive agencies over which the governor has line responsibility and that have civil service exempt officers and employees [Gov. Code § 12010.6].

In general, a person who is employed by a department that is exempt from civil service coverage is also exempt from coverage, while a person who is employed by a department within the civil service system whose services are of such a nature that they could be performed by an employee selected under civil service provisions is covered by those provisions [State Compensation Ins. Fund v. Riley (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 126, 135, 69 P.2d 985 ; California State Employees Asso. v. Trustees of California State Colleges (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 541, 543, 47 Cal. Rptr. 81] .

[2] County Officers and Employees

A county civil service system may cover any or all county officers and employees, except elective officers [Gov. Code § 31104]. The ordinance creating the civil service system must designate the appointive officers and employees who are covered by the system [Gov. Code § 31106].

[3] City Officers and Employees

A city civil service system may cover any or all appointive officers and employees [Gov. Code § 45001], including library officers and employees [Gov. Code § 45002]. The ordinance creating the civil service system must designate the departments, and the officers and employees, who are covered by the system [Gov. Code § 45005]. By subsequent ordinance, a city may add departments, officers, and employees to the original list [Gov. Code § 45006]. Departments, officers, and employees may not be withdrawn from the system, by repeal of the civil service ordinance or otherwise, unless the withdrawal is approved by a two-thirds vote of the electors voting on the proposition [Gov. Code § 45007]. There is an exception to this rule for regular full-time city department heads, who may withdraw from the system on a majority vote of the city council [Gov. Code § 45007].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Principles

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.13

§ 118.13 Due Process Rights

[1] Based on Property Interest in Employment

The Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment protects a public employee's right to a property interest in employment [see Board of Regents v. Roth (1972) 408 U.S. 564, 576-577, 92 S. Ct. 2701, 33 L. Ed. 2d 548] . The California Constitution provides similar protection [see Cal. Const., art. I, § 7]. Public employees may not waive their due process rights in a collective bargaining agreement [Phillips v. State Personnel Bd. (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 651, 660, 229 Cal. Rptr. 502 (disapproved on other grounds in Coleman v. Department of Personnel Administration (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 1102, 1123, 278 Cal. Rptr. 346, 805 P.2d 300)].

[2] When Property Interest in Employment Exists

A statutory scheme that confers on an individual the status of permanent employee gives that employee an enforceable right to continued employment and, thereby, grants the employee a property interest in his or her employment [Skelly v. State Personnel Bd. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 194, 206-208, 124 Cal. Rptr. 14, 539 P.2d 774] . In contrast, a scheme that gives an employee's superiors full freedom to take away an assigned position creates no property interest and, accordingly, makes due-process standards inapplicable [Campbell v. State Personnel Bd. (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 281, 293-294, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 722 (no procedural protections against loss of high-level state "career executive assignment" established under Gov. Code § 18547)]. The Government Code grants permanent status to any state civil service employee who satisfactorily completes the statutory probationary period [Gov. Code § 18528; Skelly v. State Personnel Bd. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 194, 197, 124 Cal. Rptr. 14, 539 P.2d 774] . A public agency's rules that classify an employee as a permanent or career employee, as distinguished from a temporary or probationary employee, is another example of a scheme that entitles an employee to due process protection [Mendoza v. Regents of University of California (1978) 78 Cal. App. 3d 168, 173-175, 144 Cal. Rptr. 117] . Even seasonal employees, if entitled to be considered for employment for the same season the next year, have a protected property interest [Williams v. County of Los Angeles (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 731, 735-736, 150 Cal. Rptr. 475, 586 P.2d 956] .

A probationary employee is entitled to have the applicable statutory procedures for dismissal strictly followed. For example, a city must strictly comply with its own charter provision that automatically grants an employee tenure unless a termination notice is delivered to the civil service commission prior to the expiration of the employee's probationary period. If the city fails to deliver such a notice concerning a particular employee, that failure results in the employee becoming a permanent employee with a property interest in continued employment. Accordingly, the subsequent termination of that employee without a full hearing would be a denial of due process [Zeron v. City of Los Angeles (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 639, 643-646, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130] . On the other hand, if a city charter provision allows an employee's probationary period to be extended to reflect sick time taken by the employee, an employee on such extended probation is not entitled to a property interest in continued employment, even if the city has failed through inadvertence to uniformly apply such extensions to all probationary employees who take sick time [Cilderman v. City of Los Angeles (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1466, 1470-1471, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20 (in absence of evidence of intentional or purposeful discrimination, mere laxity of enforcement does not amount to denial of equal protection); but see Winter v. City of Los Angeles (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1058, 1062-1066, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 679 (under terms of city charter, officer's placement on inactive duty did not qualify as "absence" that would extend probationary period; hence, inactive officer became tenured at expiration of initial probationary period)].

In the absence of a statutory scheme giving an employee a protected property interest, a mutually explicit understanding between the employee and the public employer can support the employee's claim of entitlement to the position [Perry v. Sindermann (1972) 408 U.S. 593, 601-602, 92 S. Ct. 2694, 33 L. Ed. 2d 570] .

An at-will employee has no property interest entitling him or her to due process protections [Bogacki v. Board of Supervisors (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 771, 782-783, 97 Cal. Rptr. 657, 489 P.2d 537 , cert. denied, 405 U.S. 1030 ; Hill v. California State University, San Diego (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1081, 1088, 238 Cal. Rptr. 799] . However, an at-will employee does have a right to a hearing before being discharged based on charges of dishonesty, because those charges would affect the employee's liberty interests by damaging his or her reputation and limiting his or her ability to obtain future employment. However, an at-will employee whose liberty interests are at stake is entitled only to a hearing at which he or she can personally present his or her side of the story; there is no requirement that such a hearing include live witnesses or the opportunity to cross-examine adverse witnesses [Holmes v. Hallinan (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1523, 1530-1533, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174] .

If an employee is subject to discharge only for cause, he or she has a property interest that is entitled to constitutional protection [Williams v. County of Los Angeles (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 731, 736, 150 Cal. Rptr. 475, 586 P.2d 956 ; Figueroa v. Housing Authority (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 528, 533, 182 Cal. Rptr. 497] .

In determining whether an employee has a protected property interest, the courts look to the totality of the pertinent statutes, rules, and express or implied contracts [Bush v. California Conservation Corps (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 194, 200-202, 185 Cal. Rptr. 892 ; see Seidler v. Municipal Court (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 1229, 1233-1238, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 90] .

Local public employees have property rights in their employment going beyond mere expectation. An employee is entitled to due process on termination if (1) the legislature has required the employing agency to adopt procedures for the removal of employees, (2) the employee has permanent status, and (3) the agency's personnel policy is that all employment relationships are based on merit [Figueroa v. Housing Authority (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 528, 533, 182 Cal. Rptr. 497] . Local public employees who are not subject to discharge except for cause have a property interest in their employment, which is entitled to constitutional protection [Davis v. Civil Service Com. (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 417, 421, 155 Cal. Rptr. 650] .

Minimal standards of due process require that local public employees receive, before the imposition of discipline, (1) notice of the proposed action, (2) notice of the grounds for the action, (3) notice of the charges and materials on which the action is based, and (4) an opportunity to respond in opposition to the proposed action. To be meaningful, the right to respond must afford the employee the opportunity to present his or her side of the controversy before a reasonably impartial and uninvolved reviewer having authority to recommend final disposition of the matter [Titus v. Civil Service Com. (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 357, 362, 181 Cal. Rptr. 699] .

Although a tenured civil service employee's actual job is property, the prospect or expectancy of a promotion is not in the same category. Until the employee actually receives a promotion, or at least a binding assurance of a forthcoming promotion, he or she cannot claim a property interest in that promotion. Therefore, constitutional substantive due process standards are inapplicable to protect a civil service employee's expectation of a promotion [Nunez v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir. 1998) 147 F.3d 867, 871-873] .

Even if an individual is not a tenured public employee, a state must afford due process when it seeks to bar that individual forever from public employment, makes a charge of "dishonesty," or attaches a "stigma" to an employment decision concerning that individual [Board of Regents v. Roth (1972) 408 U.S. 564, 573, 92 S. Ct. 2701, 33 L. Ed. 2d 548] . However, this right to due process is not triggered by a ban on employment with a specific public employer, so long as the individual remains free to seek employment with other public entities [Llamas v. Butte County Cmty. Coll. Dist. (9th Cir. 2001) 238 F.3d 1123, 1128] .

[3] Preremoval Procedural Safeguards

Civil service employees having a statute-based property interest in continued employment may not be deprived of their employment without due process [Cleveland Bd. of Educ. v. Loudermill (1985) 470 U.S. 532, 538-541, 105 S. Ct. 1487, 84 L. Ed. 2d 494] . Before a state civil service employee can be deprived of employment, the employee must be given prior notice of any proposed disciplinary action and the reasons for it, a copy of the charges and materials on which the action is based, and the right to respond either orally or in writing to the official imposing the discipline [Skelly v. State Personnel Bd. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 194, 215, 124 Cal. Rptr. 14, 539 P.2d 774] . These requirements have given rise to an administrative procedure known as a Skelly hearing, in which an employee has the opportunity to respond to the charges on which the proposed discipline is based [Flippin v. Los Angeles City Bd. of Civil Serv. Comm'rs (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 272, 280, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 458] . The Skelly hearing and related rights are preremoval safeguards that are required even if the employer provides a full evidentiary hearing after imposing the discipline [Kirkpatrick v. Civil Serv. Comm'n (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 940, 945, 144 Cal. Rptr. 51 ; see Flippin v. Los Angeles City Bd. of Civil Serv. Comm'rs (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 272, 281-283, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 458 (at least when additional levels of administrative review are present, conduct of Skelly hearing by manager who initially recommended discharge does not violate employee's due-process rights)]. These procedures also apply to public employees other than state civil service employees, if they have a property interest in their continued employment [Davis v. Civil Service Com. (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 417, 421-422, 155 Cal. Rptr. 650 (county employee)].

Each of these safeguards must be given at a meaningful time and in a meaningful manner [Kempland v. Regents of University of California (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 644, 649-650, 202 Cal. Rptr. 275] . An employee must be given an effective opportunity to rebut the reasons for the discipline sought to be imposed, and informal procedures will not validate a disciplinary action if there was insufficient advance notice of a predisciplinary hearing [Barber v. State Personnel Bd. (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 395, 403, 134 Cal. Rptr. 206, 556 P.2d 306] .

When a public agency determines that it must lay off employees because of a fiscal crisis, with the layoffs based on seniority, a permanent employee who accepts a demotion in lieu of being laid off does not have a due-process right to a predemotion hearing. In that instance, a postdemotion right to appeal the layoff decision is sufficient to meet the requirements of due process [Duncan v. Department of Personnel Admin. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1166, 1175-1183, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257] .

[4] Posttermination Hearing; Right to Reinstatement and Back Pay

When an employee having a property interest in continued public employment is being discharged, due process requires that a posttermination, evidentiary hearing must be held within a reasonable time after the discharge, and the employee must have the right to reinstatement with back pay when the discharge is without good cause [Townsel v. San Diego Metro. Transit Dev. Board (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 940, 949-950, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 231 (due process requirement of evidentiary hearing applies to any public employee who has constitutionally protected property interest in continued employment, regardless of whether employee is in civil service system or is subject to statutory scheme that specifically provides required evidentiary hearing); Kristal v. State Personnel Bd. (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 230, 240, 123 Cal. Rptr. 512 (disapproved on other grounds in Barber v. State Personnel Bd. (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 395, 405, 134 Cal. Rptr. 206, 556 P.2d 306)]. When a full evidentiary hearing is held and a factual issue is in dispute, due process requires that both the burden of producing evidence and the burden of proof must rest on the employer [Curia v. Civil Service Com. (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 994, 1008-1009, 179 Cal. Rptr. 476 (disapproved on other grounds in Coleman v. Department of Personnel Administration (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 1102, 1123, 278 Cal. Rptr. 346, 805 P.2d 300)].

The remedy for denial of due process is back pay for the period during which discipline was improperly imposed [Barber v. State Personnel Bd. (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 395, 402, 134 Cal. Rptr. 206, 556 P.2d 306 ; San Diego County Sheriffs Assn. v. San Diego County Civil Service Com. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1084, 1086, 1094-1096, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 712 (award of wrongly withheld backpay must include interest under Civ. Code § 3287(a)); Summers v. City of Cathedral City (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1047, 1060-1061, 275 Cal. Rptr. 594] . If the employee is provided due process at a hearing after the discharge, and good cause is found for the discharge, the employee is not entitled to reinstatement based on the employer's denial of due process at the predisciplinary stage [Kirkpatrick v. Civil Service Com. (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 940, 945, 144 Cal. Rptr. 51] .

[5] Suspensions

A suspension from employment is generally considered a relatively minor deprivation of property necessitating fewer procedural safeguards than are required for a discharge. However, by statute, any permanent state civil service employee is entitled to the predisciplinary safeguards outlined in § 118.13[3], before the effective date of any adverse action, including suspension [see Gov. Code §§ 19574, 19590 (nonmanagerial employees; managerial employees)]. When an employer imposes a short disciplinary suspension on any other employee, the employer need not comply with those predisciplinary requirements; however, the employer must provide similar procedures during the suspension period or within a reasonable time after it [Gilbert v. Homar (1997) 520 U.S. 924, 117 S. Ct. 1807, 138 L. Ed. 2d 120, 129-130 ; Civil Service Asso. v. San Francisco (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 552, 564, 150 Cal. Rptr. 129, 586 P.2d 162] .

Because a permanent, classified employee of a school district cannot be suspended without reasonable cause [Educ. Code §§ 45302, 45304(a)], the district must comply with procedural due process before imposing a short-term suspension on the employee. Generally, procedural due process requires that the employee be given a presuspension hearing, although a balancing of the employee's interest, the district's interest, and the risk of an erroneous suspension and probable value of the hearing may justify proceeding without a presuspension hearing in some cases [Bostean v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 95, 112-118, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 523 (court treated seven-month involuntary, unpaid illness leave as suspension because of its effect on employee's receipt of salary and benefits)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Appointment Process

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.14

§ 118.14 Appointments in General

Positions in the state civil service are filled by appointment [Cal. Const., art. VII, § 1(b); Gov. Code § 19050; see Gov. Code § 18525 ("appointment" defined)]. In general, appointments to vacant positions must be made from employment lists established as a result of competitive written or oral examinations [Gov. Code § 19050; see Gov. Code § 18900; see also Gov. Code §§ 18532-18537, 18902-18906 (various types of employment lists)]. All appointments, transfers, reinstatements, promotions, and demotions must be made in strict accordance with the State Civil Service Act and regulations under the Act [Gov. Code § 19050].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Appointment Process

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.15

§ 118.15 Qualifications for Positions

The State Personnel Board has authority to establish minimum criteria for determining the fitness and qualifications of employees for each class of position in the state civil service [Gov. Code § 18931; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 171.1-172.1]. The board may require an applicant to provide documentary evidence of citizenship, honorable discharge from the U.S. armed forces, possession of a valid license for the position (if required), or other evidence of identification, fitness, and qualification [Gov. Code § 18931]. The board also may require certificates of physicians, public officers, or other persons having knowledge of the applicant [Gov. Code § 18931]. An applicant may be required to furnish certain medical information [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 173].

For the purpose of making an appointment to the state civil service, the agency having the power to make the appointment may investigate the character, personality, education, and experience of an applicant [Gov. Code § 18930].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Appointment Process

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.16

§ 118.16 Psychological Screening for Peace Officer Positions

[1] Psychological Standards

Candidates for peace officer positions in the state civil service must undergo mandatory psychological screening as part of the application process [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 172.4]. To be certified as a peace officer, a candidate must be found to be free from any job-relevant psychological, emotional, or mental traits, characteristics, or conditions that might adversely affect the performance of the duties and powers of a peace officer [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 172.7(1)].

[2] Screening Procedures

The State Personnel Board has the responsibility of psychologically screening candidates, although it may delegate authority to an appointing department or agency [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 172.6]. Except as otherwise authorized by law, no appointing department or agency may conduct any psychological screenings without prior Board approval [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 172.6]. Any psychological screening by an appointing department or agency must be conducted in accordance with the procedures prescribed for screenings conducted by the Board [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 172.6; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 172.7-172.10].

As part of the psychological screening, each candidate must take a minimum of two written psychological tests (sometimes called "inventories") consistent with the requirements of the California Commission on Peace Officer Standards and Training (POST) [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 172.7(2)]. In addition, each candidate must have a face-to-face evaluation interview conducted by a qualified professional selected by the Board's Psychological Officer. The interviewing qualified professional must have prior access to [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 172.7(3)]:

- All psychological screening tests and questionnaire data;
- Summaries of available prior screening reports;
- Summaries of any available prior mental health evaluation and treatment records and salient medical records; and

- A summary of the appointing department or agency's background investigation report.

The interviewing qualified professional must submit to the Board's Psychological Officer a recommendation as to whether the candidate meets the minimum psychological standards for appointment as a peace officer, together with a detailed report of findings and opinions that explain and support the recommended decision [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 172.7(4)].

A "qualified professional" in this context is either of the following [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 172.5; see Gov. Code § 1-31(f)(2)]:

- ☐ A physician and surgeon who:
  - ☐ Holds a valid California license to practice medicine;
  - ☐ Has successfully completed a postgraduate medical residency education program in psychiatry accredited by the Accreditation Council for Graduate Medical Education;
  - ☐ Has at least the equivalent of five full-time years of experience in the diagnosis and treatment of emotional and mental disorders, including the equivalent of three full-time years accrued after completion of the psychiatric residency program; and
  - ☐ Has met any applicable education and training procedures set forth by the POST Commission for the conduct of preemployment psychological screening of peace officers.
- ☐ A psychologist licensed by the California Board of Psychology who has at least the equivalent of five full-time years of experience in the diagnosis and treatment of emotional and mental disorders, including the equivalent of three full-time years accrued postdoctorate, and who has met any applicable education and training procedures set forth by the POST Commission for the conduct of preemployment psychological screening of peace officers.

The Board's Psychological Officer must determine whether candidates should be certified as meeting the psychological standards for appointment as peace officers, subject to the right of appeal to the Board. In determining whether a candidate meets the psychological standards for appointment as a peace officer, the Board's Psychological Officer must consider the qualified professional's report of findings, written psychological test data, and substantiating behavioral evidence derived from one or more of the following sources: prior evaluation and treatment records, background investigation or other information collected by the appointing power or the board, the candidate's self-report of personal history, and behavior manifested in the evaluation interview [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 172.7(5)].

[3] Disqualification Based on Screening

The State Personnel Board may withhold or withdraw from certification, before appointment, any candidate who does not meet these minimum psychological standards [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 172.8; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 172.7(1) (minimum psychological standards); see also [1], above].

A candidate who is withheld or withdrawn from certification based on the psychological screening may appeal to the State Personnel Board. An appeal must be in writing, filed within 30 days after the candidate is notified that he or she had been withheld or withdrawn from certification. On receipt of the written appeal, the Board's Appeals Division will forward to the candidate instructions for obtaining an evaluation from an outside qualified professional selected by the candidate, including a release form to be signed by the candidate authorizing the release of psychological screening records to the qualified outside professional. The appeal may be dismissed if the candidate fails to return the signed authorization prior to obtaining an evaluation from the outside professional. The qualified outside professional selected by the candidate must, within 90 days of the date that the appeal is filed, submit a signed written report stating an opinion as to whether the candidate meets the minimum psychological standards for appointment as a peace officer, together with the documentation of findings that explain and support that opinion. The appeal may be dismissed if the selected outside professional does not submit the requisite report within the 90-day period. The appeal must be dismissed if the qualified professional selected by the candidate does not submit an evaluation report recommending that the candidate meets the minimum psychological standards for appointment as a peace officer. On timely receipt of a positive evaluation opinion and report from the selected outside professional, the appeal will be scheduled for review [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 172.9].

[4] Confidentiality

All psychological screening testing materials, written reports, and related records are the exclusive property of the State Personnel Board, which must retain them for a minimum of five years [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 172.10]. The confidentiality of these materials and related information must be maintained, consistent with the Information Practices Act of 1977 [see Civ. Code § 1798 et seq.], the Confidentiality of Medical Information Act [see Civ. Code § 56 et seq.], and all other laws governing the collection, maintenance, and release of medical and psychological information [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 172.10].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Appointment Process

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.17

§ 118.17 Examinations

[1] Requirement

Permanent employment and promotion in the state civil service are obtained through a general merit system based on employment lists established as a result of competitive examinations [Cal. Const., art. VII, § 1(b)]. The examinations test qualifications, fitness, and ability to perform the duties of the various classes of positions in the state civil service [Gov. Code § 18930].

Nothing in the constitution requires that all civil service rules apply to all public employees, and nothing prohibits the Legislature from experimenting to treat certain employees under different rules [Alexander v. State Personnel Board (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 526, 536-537, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324 ; see Gov. Code § 19600 et seq. (authorizing State Personnel Board to conduct and evaluate demonstration projects to determine whether changes in policies or procedures would result in improved state personnel management)]. However, in any such experiment or demonstration project, the merit principle must not be infringed. Therefore, the examination process, including the grading of the test and the ranking and comparing of applicants based on test scores, must be retained [Alexander v. State Personnel Board (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 526, 540-544, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324 ; see Professional Eng'rs in Cal. Gov't v. State Personnel Bd. (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 678, 689-706 (career executive assignment program does not violate constitutional merit principle, but regulations allowing employees to transfer into program without competitive examination are invalid); see also Gov. Code § 19889].

[2] Open Examinations

In general, examinations are open to all persons who meet the minimum qualifications for the pertinent position, as prescribed by the specifications for the class or by rule of the State Personnel Board, and who may lawfully be appointed to the position; however, the board may limit the size of candidate groups in entry-level and nonpromotional examinations when doing so would be in the best interest of the state and effective competition can occur among a smaller number of applicants [Gov. Code § 18900]. Examinations for peace officers and for many types of managerial positions must be held on an open basis unless the agency having the power to make the appointments determines otherwise [Gov. Code § 18930].

[3] Types of Examinations

Examinations may be written or oral, or in the form of a demonstration of skill, or any combination of these [Gov. Code § 18930; see discussion § 118.17[14]]. In addition, any tests that the State Personnel Board deems appropriate may be used for testing intelligence, capacity, technical knowledge, manual skill, or physical fitness [Gov. Code § 18930].

[4] Age Limitations

Minimum and maximum age limits for civil service examinations are prohibited, except for trainee positions and for positions involving public health or safety or having the powers and duties of a peace officer [Gov. Code § 18932].

[5] Announcement of Examination

An examination must be announced or advertised for a reasonable period before the scheduled date [Gov. Code § 18933]. The announcement must state (1) the date and place of the examination, (2) the minimum qualifications, (3) the general scope of the examination, and (4) the relative weights of the several parts if more than one type of test will be used [Gov. Code § 18933]. The announcement also must state (1) the title, salary range, and where appropriate, the duties of the class of position, (2) the method of evaluating the education, experience, and personal qualifications of the competitors and (3) any additional information the State Personnel Board may deem proper [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 171].

The State Personnel Board may cancel any examination at any time before the establishment of the employment list [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 171].

[6] Application for Examination

Every applicant for an examination must file a formal, signed application at the place, within the time, in the manner, and on the form specified in the examination announcement [Gov. Code § 18934; 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 174]. Blank application forms are available, without charge, to all persons requesting them [Gov. Code § 18934]. A separate application must be filed for each examination unless the announcement states otherwise [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 174]. There is no examination fee [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 173].

An application is filed within the time specified in the examination announcement if it is postmarked by the postal service, or date-stamped at one of the offices of the State Personnel Board or the appropriate office of the agency administering the examination, by the date specified. Under certain conditions, specified by board rule, a late application may be accepted [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 174].

Each applicant must be notified of the approval or disapproval of his or her application, and of his or her authorization to take the examination [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 175].

All applications will remain on file for at least two years. Applications for examinations in progress will not be returned to applicants under any circumstances [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 174].

[7] Conduct of Examination

Written examinations must be managed so that the identity of any applicant is concealed from the persons responsible for determining a passing score, except in examinations in which the papers are scored objectively and both the key answers and the passing score have been predetermined [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 179]. Any applicant who places any identifying mark on an examination paper, except as instructed by the examination proctor, may be deprived of all benefits under the examination [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 180]. Evidence of copying or collusion by an applicant may result in the cancellation of his or her examination and debarment from future state civil service examinations of any kind [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 178].

[8] Results of Examination; Employment List

All examination papers must be marked and graded in accordance with the examination announcement. When, in the course of grading, it becomes apparent that an applicant would receive less than the minimum percentage required for eligibility on all or any portion of the examination, the grading of the examination need not be completed, and the applicant is considered as having been disqualified [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 185].

When the employment list resulting from an examination has been established, each competitor must be notified in writing of the results of the examination [Gov. Code § 18938.5; 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 209; see Gov. Code § 18575(a)]. Competitors who are unsuccessful in an oral examination are entitled to a specification of the reasons why they were unsuccessful, if they request it in writing [Gov. Code § 18938.5].

Each competitor's final earned rating must be determined by the weighted average of the earned ratings on all parts of the examination, according to the weights for each part established in advance of the examination and published in the announcement. Minimum qualifying ratings may be set for each part of an examination, and competitors who fail to achieve the minimum rating in any part are disqualified from any further participation in the examination [Gov. Code § 18936].

The passing mark for an examination may be other than the true percentage or average published as a part of the announcement of the examination when this is justified to provide an adequate employment list or to adjust for the apparent difficulty of an examination [Gov. Code § 18937].

The names of the persons who attained the passing mark for the examination must be placed on the employment list in the order of their final earned ratings, except that the order may be modified by the application of veterans' preferences [see § 118.17[11]]. When the order of names has been determined, the number of names to be placed on the employment list may be limited to suit the needs of the state civil service [Gov. Code § 18937].

[9] Certificates of Competence

Candidates who demonstrate a particular knowledge, ability, or skill that is to be tested by a part of an examination may be issued a certificate of competence, which will be accepted as evidence of the candidate's competence in lieu of participation in that part of the examination [Gov. Code § 18938].

[10] Continuous Examinations

For certain classes of positions, applications may be received, examinations may be conducted, and employment lists may be created continuously. The names of competitors who took the same or a comparable examination on different dates may be ranked in the order of their final earned ratings, except that this order may be modified by the application of veterans' preferences [see § 118.17[11]]. Eligibility based on a continuous examination may be deemed established as of the date of the examination [Gov. Code § 18939].

[11] Veterans' Preference

Veterans, widows or widowers of veterans, and spouses of 100-percent disabled veterans, who attain a passing mark on an entrance examination are entitled to an additional 10 points [Gov. Code § 18973(b)]. Disabled veterans whom the Veterans Administration has determined to be 10-percent or more disabled as a result of their service are entitled to an additional 15 points [Gov. Code § 18973(a)]. These credits are added to the percentage attained by the applicant in the examination, in order to determine his or her ranking on the employment list [Gov. Code § 18974; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 210 (veterans' preference in case of tie)]. The veterans' preference must be requested, and proof of eligibility must be submitted to the department conducting the examination [Gov. Code § 18976].

Veterans with more than three months' service who attain a passing mark on an entrance examination for police officers are entitled to be placed ahead of all nonveterans on the employment list [Gov. Code § 18971].

General or individual preference in ratings may be allowed to permanently disabled veterans for specific state civil service positions [Gov. Code § 18972].

[12] Appeal From Written Examination

Within seven days after a written examination has been held, an applicant may file a written appeal that the State Personnel Board review items in the examination and determine whether they are incorrectly or improperly keyed on the scoring key. The examination may not be scored until all disputed items have been reviewed and any necessary adjustments have been made either by correcting the scoring key or eliminating the disputed items [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 190].

An applicant also may file a written appeal charging fraud or clerical error in the scoring of the examination. The appeal must be filed within 60 days after notice of the result of the examination was mailed to the applicant [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 190].

[13] Confidentiality; Inspection Rights

All filed applications for an examination and all other examination materials, including examination questions and booklets, belong to the State Personnel Board and are confidential records open to inspection only if and as provided by board rule [Gov. Code § 18934].

An applicant's examination papers are open to inspection only by the applicant, the applicant's attorney authorized in writing by the applicant, and the appointing agency to which the applicant has been certified [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 188; see Gov. Code § 18938.6]. An applicant is entitled to compare his or her answer sheets with the scoring key for the examination, upon written request filed with the board within 60 days after notice of the result of the examination [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 187].

Copying questions or answers contained in written examination papers, making erasures or alterations in the markings on the papers, and mutilating the papers are forbidden. Evidence that an applicant or his or her attorney has engaged in any of these actions may result in the applicant's debarment from competition in future examinations and the cancellation of the applicant's eligibility for employment in state civil service [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 189].

Candidates for civil service employment are not entitled to review the interviewers' worksheets prepared during oral examinations and are not entitled to obtain a verbatim transcription of interviewers' comments. The appointing agency has a legitimate interest in protecting the privacy of the interviewers. Therefore, candidates are entitled to know only the substance of interviewers' comments in summary form [Brutsch v. City of Los Angeles (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 354, 359-360, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 456] .

All applications for state civil service employment must remain on file for at least two years but then may be destroyed by order of the board's executive officer. In no circumstances will applications for examinations in progress or examinations be returned to applicants. The names of applicants for state civil service employment may not be made public [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 174].

[14] Qualifications Appraisal Interview

An applicant's eligibility for state civil service employment may be determined on the basis of a qualifications appraisal interview in lieu of an examination. The applicant's education, experience, and personal qualifications are rated after the interview and any investigations that may be necessary [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 194]. Ratings of education, experience, and personal qualifications must be made on a competitive basis. Each applicant must be rated in relation to the minimum qualifications for the class of position in question and in relation to the comparable qualifications of other competitors. Personal qualifications include all personality traits and personal, moral, and physical characteristics necessarily comprehended by the minimum qualifications established for the class. When rating an applicant's education and experience, interviewers must consider the quality, length, and pertinence of, and the degree to which, the applicant's total education and work histories represent suitable preparation for the work of the class [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 198].

An applicant must receive a minimum rating of 70 percent in order to be eligible for appointment [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 199]. An applicant who receives a disqualifying rating after a qualifications appraisal interview may appeal to the State Personnel Board to review his or her rating within 30 days after notice of the rating. The appeal must be based on the ground that the rating was the result of a failure to follow prescribed rating standards or procedures, or the result of an erroneous interpretation or application of the minimum qualifications prescribed for the class, or the result of fraud, discrimination, or other improper acts or circumstances [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 202(c)].

In considering an appeal, the board has four options [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 202(d)]:

- Sustain the rating.

- Grant the appeal and give a rating equal to that of the lowest eligible on the list.

- If the rating was the result of fraud or discrimination, give the applicant a passing rating; or cancel part or all of the interview ratings given, arrange for reexamination of the applicant and other affected competitors, and withhold part or all of the eligible list from certification until the reexamination is completed.

- Make a referral of the request for review of the rating either to the original panel or to a new qualifications appraisal panel, with instructions appropriate for reconsideration of the applicant's rating; then, following the panel's recommendation, either sustain the original rating, or give the applicant the revised recommended rating, or give the applicant a rating equal to that of the lowest eligible person on the list.

[15] Ineligibility or Disqualification

The State Personnel Board may refuse to examine an applicant or, after examination, may refuse to declare an applicant eligible for appointment to a position in the state civil service, if the applicant satisfies any of the following conditions [Gov. Code § 18935; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 211 (following factors may be considered in board's review of dismissed employee's request to participate in examination)]:

(1) Lacks any of the requirements established by the board for the examination or the position for which the applicant applied.

(2) At the time of the examination, has permanent status in a position equal to or higher than the class of the examination or position for which he or she has applied.

(3) Is physically or mentally disabled to perform the duties of the position to which he or she seeks appointment.

(4) Is addicted to the use of intoxicating beverages to excess or to the use of controlled substances.

(5) Has been convicted of a felony or convicted of a misdemeanor involving moral turpitude.

(6) Has been guilty of infamous or notoriously disgraceful conduct.

(7) Has been dismissed from any position for any cause that would be a cause for dismissal from state service.

(8) Has resigned from any position not in good standing or in order to avoid dismissal.

(9) Has intentionally attempted to practice any deception or fraud in his or her application or examination or in obtaining his or her eligibility.

(10) Has waived appointment three times after certification from the same employment list.

(11) Has failed to reply within a reasonable time, as specified by the board, to communications concerning his or her availability for employment.

(12) Has made himself or herself unavailable for employment by requesting that his or her name be withheld from certification.

(13) Is found to be unsuited or not qualified for employment, in accordance with board rule.

(14) Has engaged in unlawful reprisal or retaliation against a state employee or other person in violation of the California Whistleblower Protection Act [see Gov. Code § 8547 et seq.], as determined by the State Personnel Board or a court.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Appointment Process

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.18

§ 118.18 City and County Civil Service Examinations

Examinations may be given for appointment and promotion in county and city civil service systems [see Gov. Code §§ 31103, 31114, 31115, 45008, 45200, 45201]. Minimum qualifications and standards for these examinations are established by statutes and county and city charters. Charters generally determine the conditions and the scope of the examinations [see Gov. Code § 31007; Terry v. Civil Service Commission (1952) 108 Cal. App. 2d 861, 868, 240 P.2d 691] . If authorized by the charter, a civil service commission may establish a screening committee to select a group of individuals who will undergo a civil service examination. The screening committee may consider the education, training, and work experience of a group of individuals meeting certain minimum qualifications, then select a number of individuals from that group to undergo testing [Social Services Union v. City and County of San Francisco (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1093, 1101-1102, 285 Cal. Rptr. 905] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Appointment Process

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.19

§ 118.19 Filling Vacant Positions

[1] Certification of Eligible Persons

When a vacancy in any position is to be filled otherwise than by transfer, demotion, or reinstatement, the employing agency must submit to the State Personnel Board a statement of the duties of the position, the necessary and desired qualifications of the person to be appointed, and the salary and location of the position, along with a request that the names of persons eligible for appointment to the position be certified by the board [Gov. Code § 19052; 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 251].

The order of preference in certifying the names of persons eligible for appointment depends on the type of employment list on which the names appear. In general, the order of preference in certifying persons eligible for appointment is as follows [Gov. Code § 19054]:

(1) The person whose name is highest on one of the following lists, in this order [Gov. Code § 19056]:

(a) Subdivisional reemployment list.

(b) Departmental reemployment list.

(2) The three persons whose names are highest on a general reemployment list [Gov. Code § 19056.5].

(3) The three persons with the highest standing on the list for the class in which the position belongs and who have indicated their willingness to accept appointment under the conditions of employment specified, drawn from the following lists in this order [Gov. Code § 19057]:

(a) Subdivisional promotional list.

(b) Departmental promotional list.

(c) Multidepartmental promotional list.

(d) Service-wide promotional list.

(4) The person whose name is highest on the departmental eligible list.

(5) The person whose name is highest on the general eligible list.

Special certification procedures apply in the case of professional, scientific, or administrative positions [see Gov. Code § 19057.1; 2 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 254-254.2], management positions [see Gov. Code § 19057.2], positions in the Department of Corrections [see Gov. Code § 19057.3], and supervisory positions [see Gov. Code § 19057.4].

In making a hiring decision, the employing agency must select one of the persons certified, but it generally need not select the one with the highest ranked score [see Gov. Code § 19057; see, e.g., 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 254]. However, the merit principle underlying the state civil-service system [see Cal. Const. art. VII, § 1(b)] remains applicable at the hiring stage. Accordingly, the Legislature may not adopt or approve a program that imposes an absolute seniority-based preference at the hiring phase [California State Personnel Bd. v. California State Employees Assn., Local 1000, SEIU, AFL-CIO (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 758, 768-776, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 201, 115 P.3d 506 (collective-bargaining agreements approved by Legislature impermissibly required hiring decisions to be made solely on basis of seniority)].

Statutory provisions require each state agency to establish an equal opportunity program to ensure the implementation of California's policy of providing equal access to state jobs, work assignments, training, and other employment-related opportunities for all qualified job applicants and employees, based on merit and nondiscrimination in every aspect of personnel policies and employment practices [see Gov. Code § 19790 et seq.]. Former provisions that required state agencies to develop affirmative action programs were held unconstitutional and have been repealed [see Connerly v. State Pers. Bd. (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 16, 53-57, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 5 ; see also former Gov. Code § 19790 et seq. (repealed by 2005 Stats., ch. 644)].

[2] Response by Eligible Person

A person who is eligible for appointment is required to respond within a reasonable time to an inquiry about his or her interest in appointment to a particular position [see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 258 (what constitutes reasonable response time)]. If he or she fails to do so, or fails to appear for a job interview or for work, his or her name must be placed on inactive status for the class of position involved, and he or she is deemed to have waived certification [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 260].

[3] Waiver of Certification and Appointment

The State Personnel Board may ascertain from each person eligible for appointment the salary, tenure, location, and other pertinent conditions of employment under which he or she will accept appointment. Such a statement constitutes an automatic waiver of certification to positions having other conditions of employment. The person may change his or her statement at any time, but in that event, the person is not entitled to be considered for appointment to any position for which certification has already been forwarded to the employing agency [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 261].

After three waivers of certification to positions in any given class and under the conditions of employment acceptable to the person eligible for appointment, that person's name will not be certified to future vacancies for that class except in the case of a promotional or reemployment list [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 262].

[4] Promotions

[a] Promotional Lists

Vacancies in positions must be filled insofar as consistent with the best interests of the state from among employees holding positions in appropriate classes, and appropriate promotional lists must be established to facilitate this purpose [Gov. Code § 18950; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 154 (transfer of promotional list eligibility); see also 2 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 231-241 (promotional lists and examinations in general)]. Any employee who feels aggrieved at any action taken by any superior or fellow employee in discouraging or in any manner hindering or preventing the employee from taking any examination or any other action that the employee deems beneficial to himself or herself may appeal to the State Personnel Board, in writing [Gov. Code § 18952; 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 548.61]. Any appeal or communication in connection with an appeal is confidential and may not be disclosed without the employee's consent [Gov. Code § 18952]. Immediately after receiving an appeal, the board must investigate and take any action it deems necessary [Gov. Code § 18952].

[b] Employee Development Appraisal

In promotional examinations, the development and fitness of a competitor for performance of the duties of the promotional class may be rated through a process known as employee development appraisal. Appraisal reports on each competitor must be made by persons who know the competitor's work and development [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 203]. An employee development appraisal rating must be expressed as a percentage, with 70 percent being the minimum qualifying rating [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 203.3].

A competitor whose employment development appraisal rating was "not qualified" may request a revision of the rating on the ground that it was the result of failure to follow the prescribed rating standards or procedures, or the result of an erroneous interpretation or application of the minimum qualifications prescribed for the class, or the result of fraud, discrimination, or other improper acts or circumstances [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 203.5(a)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Appointment Process

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.20

§ 118.20 Probationary Status

[1] State Employees

[a] Performance Reviews

Employees in the state civil service serve a probationary period of between six months and one year following most appointments, promotions, and reinstatements after permanent separation [Gov. Code §§ 19170, 19171; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 321, 322]. During the probationary period, the employee's work and efficiency are evaluated [Gov. Code § 19172]. The employee must receive periodic reports of his or her performance, which must be sufficient to keep the employee adequately informed of his or her progress on the job. A written appraisal of the employee's performance must be made to the director of the Department of Personnel Administration within 10 days after the end of each third of the probationary period [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 599.795].

[b] Rejection During Probationary Period

An employee may be rejected by the appointing power during the probationary period for reasons relating to the employee's qualifications, the good of the service, or the employee's failure to demonstrate merit, efficiency, fitness, and moral responsibility [Gov. Code § 19173; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 324, 325]. An employee may not be rejected, however, for any cause constituting prohibited discrimination under the State Civil Service Act [Gov. Code § 19173; see § 118.45 et seq.]. An employee who is rejected on this basis may file a complaint of discrimination in accordance with the procedures for seeking State Personnel Board review of the reasons for rejection [see Gov. Code § 19702(f); see also § 118.37].

A rejection during the probationary period is effected by service on the employee of a written notice of rejection, which must include an effective date for the rejection, which may not be later than the last day of the probationary period, and a statement of the reasons for the rejection. Service of the final notice must be made at least five working days before the effective date of the rejection and the conclusion of the probationary period, and service must be in compliance with the rules of the State Personnel Board governing service of notices in adverse actions [Gov. Code § 19173; 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 52.3; see § 118.44]. The probationary period may be extended when necessary to provide the required period of notice [Gov. Code § 19173]. Dismissal of a probationary employee is invalid if the rejection is not completed within the probationary period [Wiles v. State Personnel Board (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 344, 351-352, 121 P.2d 673] or if the notice of rejection states no reasons [Nilsson v. State Personnel Board (1938) 25 Cal. App. 2d 699, 705, 78 P.2d 467] or insufficient reasons as the grounds for the rejection [Bryant v. State Personnel Board (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 423, 426, 215 P.2d 512] .

[c] Investigation of Reasons for Rejection

A rejected employee may file a written request with the State Personnel Board to investigate the reasons for the rejection. The request must be filed within 15 days after the effective date of the rejection. The board may investigate the reasons for the rejection, with or without a hearing, and then may take any of the following four steps [Gov. Code § 19175; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 52(a)(3) (assignment of appeal of rejection to hearing office for hearing); but see Gov. Code § 19175(e) (appeal procedures inapplicable to employees in State Bargaining Unit 5)]:

(1) Affirm the action of the appointing power.

(2) Modify the action of the appointing power.

(3) Restore the employee's name to the employment list for certification to any position within the class, except that the employee's name may not be certified to the rejecting agency unless it concurs in the certification [see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 326].

(4) Appoint the employee to the position from which he or she was rejected.

The employee may be appointed only if the board determines, after hearing, that there is no substantial evidence to support the reasons for rejection, or that the rejection was made in fraud or bad faith. The employee has the burden of proof at the hearing. Subject to rebuttal by the employee, it will be presumed that the rejection was free from fraud and bad faith and that the statement of reasons for the rejection in the notice of rejection is true [Gov. Code § 19175(d)].

[d] Hearings

A probationary employee does not have a constitutional right to a hearing, but the right may be granted or denied by statute [Jean v. Civil Service Commission (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 101, 109, 139 Cal. Rptr. 303 ; § 118.20[2][b]]. If a probationary employee receives a notice of termination during his or her probationary period, but the notice states that the termination is to take effect on a date after the employee acquires permanent status, the employee is entitled to the procedural protections afforded to permanent employees, including the right to a hearing [Birdsall v. Carrillo (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1426, 1431-1433, 282 Cal. Rptr. 504 ; see § 118.13]. In addition, an employee is entitled to a hearing in which to answer charges if the rejection is based on alleged misconduct that stigmatizes the employee's reputation, impairs the employee's opportunity to earn a living, or damages the employee's standing in the community [Wilkerson v. City of Placentia (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 435, 441-442, 173 Cal. Rptr. 294] .

Before scheduling a hearing on the rejection, the board may require, or any party may request, a prehearing or settlement conference. The administrative law judge presiding at the settlement conference may not preside at any subsequent hearing on the rejection unless both parties agree on the matter [Gov. Code § 19581.5].

[e] Back Pay

If the board appoints the employee to the position for which he or she was rejected, it must direct the payment of salary to the employee for the period the rejection was improperly in effect. Any amount that the employee earned or might reasonably have earned in private or public employment during the period must be deducted from the amount of salary to be paid, and salary may not be authorized or paid for any portion of a period of rejection when the employee was not ready, able, and willing to perform the duties of the position for which the employee was rejected [Gov. Code § 19180].

[f] Cancellation or Withdrawal of Notice of Rejection

An agency may cancel or withdraw a notice of rejection by filing with the State Personnel Board a written notice of cancellation or withdrawal up to 30 days after the effective date of rejection [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 327; see Gov. Code § 19175.1]. The notice must state the reasons for the cancellation or withdrawal and may be filed only with the concurrence of the board's executive officer. An employee whose rejection is cancelled or withdrawn is entitled to payment of salary less legal offsets, if any, and to credit for seniority, sick leave, vacation, and merit salary adjustment for such time as the executive officer determines is necessary to prevent injustice to the employee. A cancellation or withdrawal is without prejudice to further rejection, adverse action, or disciplinary proceedings for the same or other reasons [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 327].

[2] County and City Employees

Although local civil service systems generally follow the state system of probation, municipal and county charters or ordinances may designate shorter or longer periods of probation or review or may provide for appeal rights not available to state probationary employees [see Jean v. Civil Service Commission (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 101, 106-110, 139 Cal. Rptr. 303 ; see § 118.20[1]]. A probationary employee has no vested rights with respect to the terms of employment stated at the date of hiring. Terms of employment created by local provisions are not vested rights, and are not immune from modification by the electorate [Hinchliffe v. City of San Diego (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 722, 725-727, 211 Cal. Rptr. 560] .

Although a probationary employee has no vested rights in continued employment, he or she is entitled to have the applicable local procedures for dismissal strictly followed [Zeron v. City of Los Angeles (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 639, 643, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130] . For example, a city must strictly comply with its own charter provision that automatically grants an employee tenure unless a termination notice is delivered to the civil service commission prior to the expiration of the employee's probationary period. If the city fails to deliver such a notice concerning a particular employee, that failure results in the employee becoming a permanent employee with a property interest in continued employment. Accordingly, the subsequent termination of that employee without a full hearing would be a denial of due process [Zeron v. City of Los Angeles (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 639, 643-646, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130] . On the other hand, if a city charter provision allows an employee's probationary period to be extended to reflect sick time taken by the employee, an employee on such extended probation is not entitled to a property interest in continued employment, even if the city has failed through inadvertence to uniformly apply such extensions to all probationary employees who take sick time [Cilderman v. City of Los Angeles (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1466, 1470-1471, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20 (in absence of evidence of intentional or purposeful discrimination, mere laxity of enforcement does not amount to denial of equal protection); but see Winter v. City of Los Angeles (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1058, 1062-1066, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 679 (under terms of city charter, officer's placement on inactive duty did not qualify as "absence" that would extend probationary period; hence, inactive officer became tenured at expiration of initial probationary period)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Appointment Process

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.21

§ 118.21 Limited-Term Appointments

State agencies may make limited-term appointments for temporary staffing needs [Gov. Code §§ 19080, 19080.3; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 151-152 (limited term appointment lists)]. In general, these appointments are limited to a period of one year, but the period may be extended by the State Personnel Board [see Gov. Code §§ 19080.3-19080.5]. The time served in a limited-term appointment is not counted toward the acquisition of permanent status in any position [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 281].

A limited-term employee may be terminated at any time before expiration of the term. The termination may be effected by telling the employee, either orally or in writing, of the termination. A limited-term employee may not be terminated except for cause if emergency or temporary employees in limited-term positions remain employed in the same class and the same layoff subdivision. Cause includes failure to demonstrate merit, efficiency, fitness, and moral responsibility. When an employee is terminated for cause, the agency must give the employee written notice of the termination, stating the reasons for the termination, on or before the termination date. The only ground for appeal of the termination is that temporary or emergency employees remain employed in the same class in the same layoff subdivision, and the employee was not terminated for cause. The State Personnel Board may not again certify for limited-term employment in the same class the name of a person who has been terminated for cause unless, after investigation, the board determines that the reason for the termination should not bar the person from further employment [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 282].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Appointment Process

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.22

§ 118.22 Transfers

[1] Voluntary and Involuntary

In general, state civil service employees are permitted to transfer voluntarily from a position in one agency to a position in another agency if the transfer is to a position in the same class or in another class with substantially the same salary range [see Gov. Code § 19050.3; 2 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 425, 430-433.1]. An employee may be required to demonstrate in an examination that he or she has additional or different qualifications that are included in the minimum qualifications of the class to which he or she is transferring [Gov. Code § 19050.4]. When an employee's transfer between classes is not voluntary, the transfer must be approved by the State Personnel Board [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 434].

[2] Transfer of Agency Function

Whenever a function or the administration of a law is transferred between state agencies, all persons serving in the state civil service and engaged in the performance of the function or the administration of the law must be transferred to the receiving agency; however, the agency is not required to retain any unnecessary officers or employees. A transferred person retains his or her status, position, and rights [Gov. Code § 19050.9].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Appointment Process

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.23

§ 118.23 Temporary Assignments

Temporary assignments or loans of state civil service employees within an agency or between agencies may be made for up to two years, or up to four years between jurisdictions, in order to provide training to employees, enable an agency to obtain expertise needed to meet a compelling program or management need, or facilitate the return of injured employees to work [Gov. Code § 19050.8; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 426, 427]. Employees under temporary assignment or loan are limited to duties consistent with their class of position. Time served on a temporary assignment or loan may be used to meet minimum requirements for promotional examinations [Gov. Code § 19050.8].

An employee who participates in a temporary assignment or loan has an absolute right to return to his or her former position, and any temporary assignment or loan made to enable an agency to obtain expertise needed to meet a compelling program or management need may be made only with the employee's voluntary consent [Gov. Code § 19050.8]. Any participating agency or employee may terminate the assignment at any time for any reason. An employee on temporary assignment is considered as an employee of the agency from which he or she is assigned, except that the employee's salary may be paid in the manner agreed on by the participating agencies [2 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 426, 427].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Appointment Process

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.24

§ 118.24 Qualification for Changed Position

Whenever any position is changed by the adoption of new, different, or additional machines or processes, while the purpose or product is the same or similar in nature, any state civil service employee affected must be given reasonable opportunity, without change in class, status, or salary, to learn to do the work with the new machine or process and to qualify for status in the different class of position required for the work. An employee is not entitled, however, to be promoted to a higher class of position by virtue of this provision. An employee who qualifies for appointment in the different class is deemed to have the education, experience, and other qualifications for that class and must be appointed to the different class with the same status and seniority that he or she last had in his or her previous class [Gov. Code § 19050.7].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Appointment Process

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.25

§ 118.25 Layoffs

[1] State Employees

An agency may lay off employees whenever it is necessary because of lack of funds or work or whenever it is advisable in the interests of state economy to reduce the staff of the agency [Gov. Code § 19997]. Layoffs of state employees who are compensated on a monthly basis are made by notifying the affected employee in writing at least 30 days before the date of layoff, stating the reason for the layoff [Gov. Code § 19997.13(a)]. Layoffs are generally made in accordance with the relative seniority of the employees in the laid-off class, although layoffs of professional, scientific, administrative, management, and executive classes are determined by combining efficiency with seniority [Gov. Code § 19997.3].

An employee who is laid off because the agency adopted new, different, or additional machines or processes must be given the same opportunity to qualify for appointment to any vacancy in the same class or any new class created because of the change as any other employee affected by the change who was not laid off [Gov. Code § 19050.7].

When a public agency determines that it must lay off employees because of a fiscal crisis, with the layoffs based on seniority, a permanent employee who accepts a demotion in lieu of being laid off does not have a due-process right to a predemotion hearing. A postdemotion right to appeal the layoff decision is sufficient to meet the requirements of due process [Duncan v. Department of Personnel Admin. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1166, 1175-1183, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257 ; see discussion in § 118.13].

[2] City Employees

If a city's civil service commission determines that a reduction in personnel is necessary for economy reasons, it must observe the seniority rule in putting the reduction into effect [Gov. Code § 45100].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Appointment Process

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.26

§ 118.26 Reinstatement

[1] In General

An agency may, in its discretion, reinstate any person having probationary or permanent status who was separated from his or her position in any of the following manners [Gov. Code § 19140(a)]:

- By resignation.
- By retirement.
- By termination from limited-term, temporary, career-executive, or exempt appointment.
- Under Gov. Code § 19996.2 for having been absent without leave.
- Without a break in continuity of state service to accept another civil service or exempt appointment.

Reinstatement may be made to the class vacated or from which the employee was separated, or to a lower class in the same series, or to another class to which the employee could transfer or demote [Gov. Code § 19140(f)]. Special reinstatement rights are afforded to permanent employees or employees who previously had permanent status and who, since receiving that status, have had no break in continuity of service due to a permanent separation. They may be entitled to reinstatement if terminated from a temporary or limited-term appointment, rejected during probation, or demoted from a managerial position [Gov. Code § 19140.5; see Hulings v. State Dep't of Health Care Servs. (2008)159 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1120-1125, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 81 (reinstatement to peace officer position pursuant to Gov. Code § 19140.5 may not be conditioned on employee's submission to background investigation under Gov. Code § 1031(d)] or if they vacated a civil service position to accept an appointment to an exempt position [Gov. Code §§ 19141, 19141.1].

Every person accepts and holds his or her position in the state civil service subject to the mandatory reinstatement of another person. On reinstatement of a person, any necessary separations are to be made under the provisions of law governing layoff and demotion [see Gov. Code § 19997.3], except that an employee who is not to be separated from state service need not receive advance notification [see Gov. Code § 19997.13 (advance notification of separation)], and seniority may not be counted when this would result in the layoff of the person who has the reinstatement right. In that case, qualifying service in classes at substantially the same or a higher salary level is the only state service that may be counted for purposes of determining who is to be separated [Gov. Code § 19142].

Unless some other reinstatement right is specified for a particular separation by the Civil Service Act or by State Personnel Board Regulations, an employee is entitled to be reinstated to his or her former position, as defined in Gov. Code § 18522, at the termination of any temporary separation, except termination of a permanent or probationary employee by layoff, or termination by displacement, as defined in board regulation [Gov. Code § 19143].

[2] County Employees After Election to Office

Any person who previously had permanent status in a civil service system of any county and who vacated his or her position to accept appointment to an elective position must be reinstated to his or her former position in the same county, if he or she so desires, at the termination of the elective appointment or term of office [Gov. Code § 31117].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Appointment Process

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.27

§ 118.27 Appointment

[1] Good Faith Requirements

To be valid, a civil service appointment must be made and accepted in good faith under the civil service statutes and regulations of the State Personnel Board [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 8; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 548.123 (applicability of good faith provisions to career executive positions)]. To make an appointment in good faith, an agency and all officers or employees to whom it delegates appointment authority must meet the following requirements [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 8(a)]:

- Intend to observe the spirit and intent of the law.
- Make a reasonable and serious attempt to determine how the law should be applied.
- Ensure that positions are properly classified.
- Ensure that appointees have appropriate civil service appointment eligibility.
- Intend to employ the appointee in the class, tenure, and location to which appointed under the conditions reflected by the appointment document.
- Make a reasonable and serious attempt to provide the reference materials, training, and supervision necessary to avoid any mistakes of law or fact by the persons responsible for the personnel transactions.
- Act in a manner that does not improperly diminish the rights and privileges of other persons affected by the appointment, including other eligible persons.

Any officer or employee who fails to meet these requirements, or any officer or employee in a position of authority who directs another officer or employee to disregard these requirements, is subject to civil or criminal sanctions as well as adverse action [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 8(a)].

To accept an appointment in good faith, an employee must [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 8(b)]:

- Intend to serve in the class to which the employee is being appointed under the tenure, location, and other elements of the appointment as reflected by the appointment document.

- Provide the agency with complete, factual, and truthful information necessary for a proper appointment.

- Make a reasonable attempt to seek correction of any aspects of the appointment that the employee knows are illegal.

An employee's violation of any of these provisions is cause for adverse action [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 8(b); see § 118.40 et seq.].

[2] Appointment Contrary to Law

When the appointment of an employee has been made and accepted in good faith, and the appointment would not have been made but for some mistake of law or fact that, if known to the parties, would have rendered the appointment unlawful when made, the State Personnel Board must take corrective action up to and including voiding the appointment [Gov. Code § 19257.5; 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 266(a); see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 548.124 (applicability to career executive positions)]. The board may not take corrective action on any appointment that has been in effect one year if both the agency and the employee acted in good faith [Gov. Code § 19257.5; 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 266(a)]. The board may not take corrective action on any appointment that has been in effect five years unless the employee did not act in good faith or the board determines that the rights of another employee are significantly endangered by the appointment in question [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 266(b)].

An employee who acted in good faith is entitled to retain the compensation as provided in § 118.27[3]. An employee who did not act in good faith must reimburse all compensation resulting from the appointment, unless the board provides otherwise [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 266].

[3] Entitlement to Compensation

Even if an appointment was contrary to the State Civil Service Act or the regulations under the Act, a person who acted in good faith in accepting an appointment or employment must be paid by the agency the compensation the agency promised (or if no compensation was promised, the actual value of any service rendered and expense incurred in good faith under the attempted appointment or employment) [Gov. Code § 19257; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 9 ("compensation" defined); see also 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 548.121 (applicability to career executive positions)]. The person has a cause of action against the agency for this compensation [Gov. Code § 19257].

[4] Notice and Appeal Rights

At least 15 days before the board takes corrective action on an unlawful appointment, the board must notify the employee and the agency of the proposed action. The notice must state the reasons for the proposed action and notify the employee and the agency of their rights to respond to the notice within 15 days, either orally or in writing [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 266.2].

When corrective action is taken, the employee and the agency may file a written appeal with the board within 30 days after the date of notification of the board's final decision to take the corrective action [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 266.3].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Appointment Process

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.28

§ 118.28 Prohibited Acts and Offenses

Every person who violates any provision of the State Civil Service Act is guilty of a misdemeanor. In addition, adverse action may be taken by an agency, or the State Personnel Board may file charges, against any state employee who violates any of the provisions of the Act [Gov. Code § 19682; see § 118.40 et seq.]. It is unlawful for any person to do any of the following:

- Defeat, deceive, or obstruct any person with respect to that person's right of examination, application, or employment under the Act or rules of the board [Gov. Code § 19680(a)].

- Willfully and falsely mark, grade, estimate, or report on the examination or proper standing of any person examined or certified under the Act or board rule, or make any false representation concerning the same or the person examined [Gov. Code § 19680(b)].

- Willfully furnish to any person any special or secret information for the purpose of either improving or injuring the prospects or chances of any person examined, certified, or to be examined or certified under the Act or rules of the board [Gov. Code § 19680(c)].

- Practice any deception or fraud with regard to his or her identity in connection with any examination, application, or request to be examined [Gov. Code § 19681(a)].

- Obtain examination questions or other examination materials, except by specific authorization, either before or during or after an examination, or use or purport to use any examination questions or materials for the purpose of preparing candidates for examinations [Gov. Code § 19681(b)].

- Use any unfair means to cause or attempt to cause any eligible person to waive any rights obtained under the Act [Gov. Code § 19681(c)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Appointment Process

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.29

§ 118.29 Ethnicity, Sex, and Disability Information

The State Personnel Board may gather and maintain information regarding the success or failure in state civil service examinations of applicants for employment by ethnic group, disability, and sex [Gov. Code § 19705; 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 174.6]. This information may be voluntarily provided by an applicant on a detachable section of the application [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 174.6].

Ethnicity, sex, and disability information may not be used in a discriminatory manner in the selection process but may be used (1) for research and statistical analysis, in order to assess the fairness of the selection process, (2) to provide a basis for corrective action, and (3) to evaluate the state's affirmative action programs [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 174.7].

Ethnicity, sex, and disability information is accessible only to authorized persons, and ethnicity and disability information on an individual applicant may not be made available to any member of an oral interview panel or performance testing panel, or to the agency before an offer of an appointment [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 174.8].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Appointment Process

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.30

§ 118.30 Grievance Procedures

The Department of Personnel Administration has provided by rule for a system of adjusting employee grievances, which is to be administered within state departments and agencies before recourse is had to any remedy provided by the State Civil Service Act [see Gov. Code § 18714(a); 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 599.859]. To file a grievance with a particular state department or agency, the rules of that department or agency should be consulted.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Hiring Disabled Persons

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.31

§ 118.31 Reasonable Accommodation Requirements

Disabled persons must be employed in state service on the same terms and conditions as the nondisabled, except when it is shown that a particular disability is job-related [Gov. Code § 19230(b); see, e.g., Quinn v. City of Los Angeles (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 472, 480-484, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 914 (plaintiff police officer could not establish prima facie cause of action for failure to accommodate hearing disability because that disability disqualified plaintiff for employment as police officer)]. State agencies are required to make reasonable accommodation to the known physical or mental limitations of an otherwise qualified applicant or employee with a disability, unless the agency can demonstrate that the accommodation would impose an undue hardship on the operation of its program [see Raine v. City of Burbank (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 1215, 1227-1228, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 899 (requirement of "reasonable accommodation," as defined by Gov. Code § 12926(n) for purposes of Fair Employment and Housing Act, does not obligate city to reclassify light-duty front-desk position from civilian position to sworn-officer position to accommodate police officer whose disability has become permanent, because such reclassification would not be reasonable accommodation)]. An agency may not deny any employment opportunity to a qualified applicant or employee with a disability if the basis for the denial is the need to make reasonable accommodation to the applicant's or employee's physical or mental limitations [Gov. Code § 19230(c)].

A "disability" for these purposes is a physical or mental disability as defined in the Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA) [Gov. Code § 19231; see Gov. Code § 12926(i), (k) (FEHA definitions)]. For detailed discussion of the FEHA, see Ch. 115, Civil Rights: Employment Discrimination .

An agency must respond to a request for accommodation within 20 days after receiving it. The response must be in writing and must state that there is a right of appeal to the State Personnel Board within 30 days after receipt of the agency's response. An agency's failure to respond within 20 days is deemed a denial of the request, and an appeal may be filed directly with the board. Any appeal must be filed within 30 days after expiration of the 20-day period [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 53.2].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Hiring Disabled Persons

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.32

§ 118.32 Affirmative Action Plan

Each state agency is required to establish an effective affirmative action plan to ensure that disabled individuals have access to positions in state service on an equal and competitive basis with the general population. Each agency must develop and implement an affirmative action plan for the disabled, which must include specific goals and timetables. The goals and timetables must be made available to the public on request [Gov. Code § 19232].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Hiring Disabled Persons

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.33

§ 118.33 Correction of Underrepresentation

The State Personnel Board is required to establish guidelines, by job category, for state agencies to set goals and timetables to improve the representation of disabled individuals in the state work force [Gov. Code § 19233(c)]. Each state agency is required to review, on an annual basis, its hiring activities designed to achieve the employment objectives of the board's guidelines, in order to determine whether any category of disabled individuals has been disproportionately excluded from employment on a non-job-related basis. If any category has been so excluded, the agency must correct the underrepresentation [Gov. Code § 19234].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Hiring Disabled Persons

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.34

§ 118.34 Limited Examination and Appointment Program

[1] Alternative to Traditional Processes

Persons with disabilities may be appointed to positions in state civil service under the limited examination and appointment program, as an alternative to the traditional civil service examination and appointment process [see Gov. Code § 19240; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 547.50 et seq.]. Examination appointments may be made to a particular position for the purpose of completing a job performance evaluation in lieu of an examination [see Gov. Code §§ 19242, 19242.1]. Examination appointments are made on a temporary, provisional basis, to allow candidates to demonstrate their ability to perform the duties of the position [Gov. Code § 19242.4]. Candidates serving in positions under the program do not acquire permanent civil service status but receive the same salary and benefits to which other state employees in temporary positions are entitled [Gov. Code § 19242.6].

The agency making the appointment must prepare written evaluations of the candidate's performance during the job examination period. The final evaluation must contain a recommendation as to whether the candidate should be appointed to an appropriate position where civil service status may accumulate [Gov. Code § 19242.8]. If the agency making the appointment fails to terminate the candidate's appointment within 30 days after the end of the job examination period, it is presumed that the candidate has qualified in the examination [Gov. Code § 19242.9].

[2] Appeal Rights

Applicants for and candidates in the limited examination and appointment program may appeal any of the following actions [Gov. Code § 19244]:

- Refusal to certify eligibility to participate in the program.
- Rejection of an application to participate in an examination.
- Disqualification by an interview panel or by any other selection method used.

- Denial of a request for reasonable accommodation during the job examination period.
- Termination of a candidate's appointment during a job examination period.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Prohibited Discrimination

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.35

§ 118.35 Discriminatory Acts

Discrimination in violation of state or federal law is prohibited in state employment practices [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 547; see Gov. Code § 19702.1 (hiring and promotion in state civil service must conform to federal Civil Rights Act)]. The State Civil Service Act prohibits discrimination against any person on the basis of race, religious creed, color, national origin, ancestry, physical disability, mental disability, medical condition, marital status, sex, age, or sexual orientation [Gov. Code § 19702(a); see Gov. Code §§ 12926, 12926.1, 12940(a)]. It also prohibits discrimination against any person because of his or her age [Gov. Code § 19700] but provides that minimum and maximum age limits may be established for trainee positions and in cases of positions involving public health or safety or having the powers and duties of a peace officer [Gov. Code § 18932]. A person may not be discriminated against because of total or partial blindness unless normal eyesight is absolutely indispensable to do the physical acts to be performed [Gov. Code § 19701]. In addition, a person may not be retaliated against because he or she has opposed any unlawful employment practice or made a charge, testified, assisted, or participated in any manner in an investigation, proceeding, or hearing under the State Civil Service Act [Gov. Code § 19702(a); see § 118.40 et seq.].

For purposes of the antidiscrimination provisions of the State Civil Service Act, discrimination includes harassment [Gov. Code § 19702(b)].

Courts will require an administrative agency evaluating a claim of discrimination to apply the same standards of proof that are applicable in actions brought in court [see Los Angeles County Office of the Dist. Attorney v. Civil Service Com. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 187, 200-202, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 661] . For a discussion of those standards, see Ch. 115, Civil Rights: Employment Discrimination .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Prohibited Discrimination

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.36

§ 118.36 Cease and Desist Orders

If the State Personnel Board finds that discrimination has occurred in violation of the State Civil Service Act, the board must issue and cause to be served on the agency an order requiring it to cause the discrimination to cease and desist and to take any action (including, but not limited to, hiring, reinstatement, or upgrading of employees, with or without back pay, and compensatory damages) that, in the board's judgment, will effectuate the purposes of the Act. The order must also include requirements for the agency to report the manner of its compliance [Gov. Code § 19702(d)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Prohibited Discrimination

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.37

§ 118.37 Procedure

[1] Written Complaint

Any person who claims discrimination within the state civil service may submit a written complaint stating the particulars, the name of the agency, the persons alleged to have committed the unlawful discrimination, and any other information that may be required by the State Personnel Board [Gov. Code § 19702(e)]. Alternatively, if the discrimination violates the Fair Employment and Housing Act [Gov. Code § 12900 et seq.] the employee may seek redress through the Department of Fair Employment and Housing [Ruiz v. Department of Corrections (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 891, 896-900, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 139 ; see Ch. 115, Civil Rights: Employment Discrimination].

[2] Filing With Agency

A complaint about an agency's action, decision, policy, or condition must be filed with the agency if the agency has authority to consider the complaint and resolve the issues [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 547.1]. The agency's complaint review process must conform to the following standards [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 54.2]:

(1) Provide for a minimum of formal procedural requirements, by having the complaint handled at an organizational level closest to the employee concerned.

(2) Give the employee an opportunity to receive counseling on a confidential basis by another employee who is qualified to give counseling in matters pertaining to discrimination.

(3) Ensure that no influence will be used to dissuade an employee from airing a complaint, that no complaint will be suppressed, and that no employee will be subject to reprisal for voicing a complaint or participating in the complaint procedure.

(4) Ensure that an employee's complaint will receive preferred, timely, and full consideration at each level of review, that investigation into the circumstances surrounding the complaint will be performed by qualified and impartial persons, and that the employee will be informed of all rights at each step of the process, including the right of appeal to the State Personnel Board and the right to proceed in the appropriate state or federal agency or court having jurisdiction.

[3] Filing With State Personnel Board

A complaint of discrimination that the agency cannot resolve or has no authority to resolve must be filed with the State Personnel Board as an appeal [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 547.1; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 54]. The executive officer of the board may attempt to resolve a complaint informally or may refer it to the board for hearing [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 547.1; see § 118.59 et seq.].

[4] Time Limitation for Filing Complaint

Complaints generally must be filed within one year after the alleged unlawful discrimination occurred. This period may be extended up to 90 days if the employee first knew of the facts more than one year after the occurrence of the alleged discrimination [Gov. Code § 19702(f)(1)]. A much shorter period is prescribed when an employee receives a notice of adverse action [see Gov. Code § 19575; see § 118.46], or a probationary employee is rejected [see Gov. Code § 19175; see § 118.20[1][c]], and the employee charges unlawful discrimination [Gov. Code § 19702(f)(1)].

[5] Assistance From State Personnel Board

When any employee of the agency refuses, or threatens to refuse, to cooperate in the investigation of a complaint of discrimination, the agency may seek assistance from the State Personnel Board, which may provide for direct investigation or hearing of the complaint, the use of subpoenas, or any other action that will effect the purposes of the State Civil Service Act [Gov. Code § 19702(g)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Prohibited Discrimination

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.38

§ 118.38 Prohibited Testing or Evaluation Methods

Educational prerequisites, or testing or evaluation methods, that are not job-related may not be used as part of the hiring or promotional practices in state civil service employment unless there is no adverse effect [Gov. Code § 19702.2]. This does not limit the authority of the State Personnel Board regarding the state merit selection and examining program under the constitution [see Cal. Const., art. VII] and the State Civil Service Act [Gov. Code § 19702.2].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Prohibited Discrimination

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.39

§ 118.39 Family Care Leave Rights

An agency may not refuse to hire, and may not discharge, suspend, expel, or discriminate against, any individual because that individual exercised the right to family care leave [see Gov. Code § 12945.2(a)] or gave information or testimony as to his or her own family care leave or that of another person in any inquiry or proceeding related to these rights [Gov. Code §§ 12942.5(l), 19702.3(a)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Disciplinary Proceedings

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.40

§ 118.40 Authority to Take Adverse Action

An agency may take adverse action, against any employee or person whose name appears on any employment list, for any cause for discipline specified in the State Civil Service Act [Gov. Code § 19571; see § 118.41]. Adverse action may be dismissal, demotion, suspension, or other disciplinary action [Gov. Code § 19570]. Special procedures apply to adverse action taken against managerial employees [Gov. Code § 19570; see Gov. Code § 19590 et seq.; see also § 118.51].

The State Civil Service Act merely restricts state agencies' authority to discharge or take other adverse action against an employee. Agencies have absolute authority to take adverse action except as specifically restricted by law [Department of Parks & Recreation v. State Personnel Bd. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 813, 824-825, 284 Cal. Rptr. 839] . Under the Act, employees have the substantive right to continued employment during good behavior and the guarantee that no adverse action will be taken without cause [see Gov. Code §§ 19571, 19572, 19996]. Employees have as well specified procedural rights in order to vindicate their substantive employment rights, and the procedural requirements for the imposition of discipline must afford employees due process of law [Skelly v. State Personnel Bd. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 194, 208, 124 Cal. Rptr. 14, 539 P.2d 774 ; Department of Parks & Recreation v. State Personnel Bd. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 813, 825, 284 Cal. Rptr. 839 ; see § 118.13[1]].

Under the State Civil Service Act's scheme for employee discipline, the employing agency has the initial authority to determine and impose appropriate discipline [Gov. Code § 19574], and the State Personnel Board has the authority to review the agency's action [Gov. Code §§ 19576, 19578; Department of Parks & Recreation v. State Personnel Bd. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 813, 827, 284 Cal. Rptr. 839 ; see § 118.48[1]].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Disciplinary Proceedings

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.41

§ 118.41 Causes for Discipline

Each of the following constitutes cause for discipline of an employee or of a person whose name appears on an employment list [Gov. Code § 19572]:

(1) Fraud in obtaining appointment.

(2) Incompetency.

(3) Inefficiency.

(4) Inexcusable neglect of duty.

(5) Insubordination.

(6) Dishonesty.

(7) Drunkenness on duty.

(8) Intemperance.

(9) Addiction to the use of controlled substances.

(10) Inexcusable absence without leave.

(11) Conviction of a felony or of a misdemeanor involving moral turpitude (a plea or verdict of guilty, or a conviction following a plea of nolo contendere, being deemed a conviction).

(12) Immorality.

(13) Discourteous treatment of the public or other employees.

(14) Improper political activity.

(15) Willful disobedience.

(16) Misuse of state property.

(17) Violation of the State Civil Service Act or a rule of the State Personnel Board.

(18) Engagement in any employment, activity, or enterprise that is clearly inconsistent, incompatible, or in conflict with, or inimical to, the employee's duties [see Gov. Code § 19990].

(19) Refusal to take and subscribe any oath or affirmation required by law in connection with the employment.

(20) Other failure of good behavior, either during or outside duty hours, of such a nature that it causes discredit to the agency or the person's employment.

(21) Any negligence, recklessness, or intentional act that results in the death of a patient of a state hospital serving the mentally or developmentally disabled.

(22) Use during duty hours, for training or target practice, of any material that is not authorized for that use by the agency.

(23) Unlawful discrimination, including harassment, on the basis of race, religious creed, color, national origin, ancestry, physical disability, mental disability, medical condition, marital status, sex, age, or sexual orientation, against the public or other employees while acting in the capacity of a state employee [see Gov. Code § 12940(a) (prohibited bases of discrimination); see also Gov. Code §§ 12926, 12926.1 (definitions)].

(24) Unlawful retaliation against any state officer or other state employee or member of the public who, in good faith, reports, discloses, divulges, or otherwise brings to the attention of the attorney general, or any other appropriate authority, any facts or information relative to actual or suspected violation of any state or federal law occurring on the job or directly related to the job [see § 118.55 et seq.].

The same instance of conduct can serve as the basis for more than one disciplinary action. For example, in one case a probationary police officer fled the scene of a collision and lied about it; as a result, he was released from his probationary appointment. After being reinstated, the officer failed to meet the conditions of his reinstatement and was eventually terminated, in part because of the original hit-and-run incident. The court of appeal held that the fact that the officer had already been disciplined for the incident did not preclude his subsequent termination for the same incident; the police department was free to determine that its earlier disciplinary action had been too lenient [Ziegler v. City of South Pasadena (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 391, 397-398, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 424 (constitutional concept of double jeopardy does not apply to employment decisions)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Disciplinary Proceedings

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.42

§ 118.42 Forced Leave of Absence Pending Investigation

Pending the agency's investigation of accusations of an employee's misappropriation of public funds or property, drug addiction, mistreatment of persons in a state institution, immorality, or acts that would constitute a felony or misdemeanor involving moral turpitude, the agency may order the employee on a leave of absence for up to 15 days. The agency may terminate the leave by giving 48 hours' notice, in writing, to the employee. If adverse action is not taken on or before the date the leave is terminated, the leave must be with pay. If adverse action is taken on or before the date the leave is terminated, it may be made retroactive to any date on or after the date the employee went on leave. The adverse action is valid if written notice is served on the employee and filed with the State Personnel Board within 15 days after the employee is notified of the action [Gov. Code § 19574.5].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Disciplinary Proceedings

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.43

§ 118.43 Limitation Period

No adverse action is valid against any state employee for any cause for discipline based on any civil service law of this state unless notice of the adverse action is served within three years after the cause for discipline first arose on which the notice is based. Adverse action based on fraud, embezzlement, or the falsification of records is valid if notice of the action is served within three years after discovery of the fraud, embezzlement, or falsification [Gov. Code § 19635; for discussion of the notice, see § 118.44].

Even if the three-year limitations period for imposing discipline for the underlying misconduct has expired, a state employee may be disciplined based on a dishonest denial of the underlying misconduct if the denial occurred within the limitations period [California Dept. of Corrections v. California State Personnel Bd. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 797, 806-809, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 665 (dishonesty is separate act that does not merge with underlying offense)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Disciplinary Proceedings

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.44

§ 118.44 Notice of Adverse Action

Adverse action is valid only if a written final notice is served on and received by the employee at least five working days before the effective date of the action and filed with the State Personnel Board within 15 days after the effective date of the action [Gov. Code § 19574; 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 52.3; Coburn v. State Personnel Bd. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 801, 805, 148 Cal. Rptr. 134 (employee must actually receive notice five days before hearing; merely serving notice five days before hearing is not sufficient)]. The notice must be served either (1) on the employee personally; (2) by the United States mail, using either certified mail with return receipt requested or Express Mail; or (3) by overnight delivery by an express service carrier, with the employee or the employee's representative required to acknowledge receipt at the time of delivery [Gov. Code § 18575(b)(2)]. The notice must state the following [Gov. Code § 19574(a)]:

- Nature of the adverse action.
- Effective date of the action.
- Reasons for the action, in ordinary language.
- Employee's right to answer the notice, orally or in writing.
- Time within which an appeal must be filed.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Disciplinary Proceedings

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.45

§ 118.45 Discovery

[1] Inspection of Documents and Interview of Other Employees

An employee who has been served with notice of adverse action, or a representative designated by the employee, has the right to inspect any documents in the possession or under the control of the agency, that are relevant to the adverse action or could constitute relevant evidence [Gov. Code § 19574.1(a); see Evid. Code § 210 (relevant evidence)]. The employee, or a designated representative, also has the right to interview other employees having knowledge of the acts or omissions on which the adverse action is based. These interviews and inspections must be at times and places reasonable for the employee and the agency [Gov. Code § 19574.1(a)]. The agency must make all reasonable efforts necessary to ensure the cooperation of any interviewed employees [Gov. Code § 19574.1(b)].

[2] Compelling Discovery

[a] Administrative Proceeding

Any party claiming that a request for discovery pursuant to Gov. Code § 19574.1(b) [see § 118.45[1]] has not been complied with may serve and file an administrative petition to compel discovery, naming as a respondent the party refusing or failing to comply with the discovery request. The petition is filed in the hearing office of the State Personnel Board [Gov. Code § 19574.2(a)]. The petition must state facts showing that the respondent failed or refused to comply with the request for discovery, a description of the matters sought to be discovered, the reasons why these matters are discoverable [see Gov. Code § 19574.1], and the grounds of respondent's refusal in so far as the petitioner knows [Gov. Code § 19574.2(a)].

The petition must be served on the respondent and filed within 14 days after the respondent first evidenced a failure or refusal to comply with the discovery request, or within 30 days after the request was made and the respondent failed to reply, whichever period is longer. No petition may be filed within 15 days of the date set for commencement of the administrative hearing on the adverse action, except on leave granted by the administrative law judge for good cause. In determining good cause, the administrative law judge must consider the necessity and reasons for the discovery, the moving party's diligence or lack of diligence, whether granting the petition will delay the commencement of the administrative hearing on the date set, and the possible prejudice to any party [Gov. Code § 19574.2(b)].

The respondent may file a written response to the petition, in the hearing office of the State Personnel Board, and serve the response on the petitioner, within 15 days after service of the petition [Gov. Code § 19574.2(b)].

Unless otherwise stipulated by the parties, the administrative law judge will review the petition and response and issue a decision within 20 days. If the administrative law judge orders an evidentiary hearing, the decision must be issued within 20 days after the close of the hearing [Gov. Code § 19574.2(b)].

[b] Review in Superior Court

A party aggrieved by the decision of the administrative law judge may, within 30 days of service of the decision, file a petition to compel discovery in the superior court for the county in which the administrative hearing will be held or in the county in which the headquarters of the appointing power is located. The petition must be filed within 30 days after service of the decision and must be served on the respondent [Gov. Code § 19574.2(b)]. If the court is satisfied that the petition states good cause for relief, the court must issue an order to show cause directed to the respondent; otherwise, the court must deny the petition. The order to show cause must be served on the respondent and the respondent's attorney of record in the administrative proceeding by personal delivery or certified mail. The order must be returnable no earlier than 10 days after the date it was issued and no later than 30 days after the petition was filed. The respondent may serve and file a written answer or other response to the petition and order to show cause [Gov. Code § 19574.2(c)].

The court may, in its discretion, order the administrative proceeding stayed until the show-cause hearing and, if necessary, for a reasonable time after the hearing, in order to afford the parties time to comply with the court's order [Gov. Code § 19574.2(d)]. When the respondent asserts that the petitioner seeks to discover what is not discoverable or is privileged against disclosure, the court may conduct an examination in chambers [Gov. Code § 19574.2(e); see Evid. Code § 915]. The court must decide the case on the basis of any examination in chambers, the papers filed by the parties, and any oral argument and additional evidence allowed by the court [Gov. Code § 19574.2(f)].

The court must file an order denying or granting the petition within 45 days after the petition is filed, unless the parties stipulate otherwise. For good cause, the court may extend this time an additional 45 days. The order granting or denying the petition must be in writing and state what the petitioner is entitled to discover [Gov. Code § 19574.2(g)]. The court may award court costs and reasonable attorney's fees to a party if it finds that the opposing party or the opposing party's attorney, without substantial justification, failed or refused to comply with the statutory discovery requirements, filed a petition to compel discovery, or failed to comply with any order of the court concerning discovery [Gov. Code § 19574.2(i)]. The clerk must serve a copy of the order on the parties, by mail. When the order grants the petition, in whole or in part, the order is not effective until 10 days after the date it is served. When the order denies the petition, it is effective on the date of service [Gov. Code § 19574.2(g)]. The court may compel compliance with the order by contempt proceedings [Gov. Code § 19574.2(i)].

[c] Appellate Review

The order is appealable by a petition for a writ of mandate filed in the court of appeal within 30 days after service of the order. When the order allows discovery, the order and the administrative proceedings are stayed by the filing of the mandate petition. The appellate court may, however, dissolve or modify the stay. When the order denies discovery, neither the order nor the administrative proceedings may be stayed by the court of appeal except on a clear showing of probable error [Gov. Code § 19574.2(h)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Disciplinary Proceedings

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.46

§ 118.46 Answer to Notice of Adverse Action

Within 30 days after the effective date of the adverse action, the employee may file with the State Personnel Board a written answer to the notice of adverse action [Gov. Code § 19575; see § 118.140]. The answer is deemed to be a denial of all allegations in the notice that are not expressly admitted, as well as a request for a hearing or investigation by the board. An employee may file an amended answer with the board's consent. The board must promptly give a copy of the answer and any amended answer to the agency [Gov. Code § 19575].

By filing an answer, the employee triggers a review by the board of the adverse action [see Gov. Code §§ 19576, 19578; Department of Parks & Recreation v. State Personnel Bd. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 813, 827, 284 Cal. Rptr. 839 ; see § 118.48[1] et seq.]. If the employee fails to answer within the time specified, or withdraws his or her appeal after answering, the adverse action is considered final [Gov. Code § 19575].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Disciplinary Proceedings

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.47

§ 118.47 Amended or Supplemental Notice of Adverse Action

At any time before an employee's appeal is submitted to the State Personnel Board for decision, the agency may, with the board's consent, serve on the employee and file with the board an amended or supplemental notice of adverse action. If the amended or supplemental notice presents new causes or allegations, the employee must be afforded a reasonable opportunity to prepare a defense but is not entitled to file a further answer without leave from the board. Any new causes or allegations are deemed to be controverted, and any objections may be made orally at the hearing or investigation and must be noted in the record [Gov. Code § 19575.5].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Disciplinary Proceedings

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.48

§ 118.48 Investigation and Hearing

[1] By State Personnel Board

The State Personnel Board is empowered by the constitution to review disciplinary actions by agencies [Cal. Const., art. VII, § 3(a)]. This provision of the Constitution precludes the Legislature from authorizing an entity other than State Personnel Board (such as a "board of adjustment" created as part of a grievance procedure specified in a memorandum of understanding for a particular state employee bargaining unit) to review disciplinary actions taken against state civil-service employees [State Personnel Bd. v. Department of Personnel Admin. (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 512, 523, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 142, 123 P.3d 169) (holding former Gov. Code § 18670(c)-(e) unconstitutional); see Cal. Const., art. VII, § 3(a) (board "shall ... review disciplinary actions")].

In reviewing disciplinary action, the board acts in an adjudicatory capacity, much as a trial court would in an ordinary judicial proceeding. The board is entitled to make factual findings and to exercise its discretion on matters within its jurisdiction. It may weigh the evidence and exercise discretion in determining the sufficiency of the charges [Department of Parks & Recreation v. State Personnel Bd. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 813, 823, 824, 827, 284 Cal. Rptr. 839] .

[2] Hearing Requirement

When an answer to an adverse action is filed by an employee who has been suspended without pay for up to five days or who has received a formal reprimand or reduction in pay up to one step for up to four months, the board must make an investigation, with or without a hearing as it deems necessary [Gov. Code § 19576]. In all other cases in which an employee files an answer, the board must hold a hearing within a reasonable time [Gov. Code §§ 19576, 19578; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 52(a)(2) (appeal of adverse action must be assigned to hearing office of board for hearing)]. If these statutory provisions concerning whether a hearing should be held are in conflict with the provisions of a memorandum of understanding reached under the State Employer-Employee Relations Act [see Gov. Code § 3512 et seq.], the memorandum of understanding is controlling without further legislative action unless the expenditure of funds is required [Gov. Code § 19576].

[3] Notice and Conduct of Hearing

When a hearing is required, the board must notify the parties of the time and place of the hearing [Gov. Code § 19578]. Although the Administrative Procedure Act [Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.] is not generally applicable to hearings before the State Personnel Board, the evidence rules of the act [see Gov. Code § 11513] are incorporated by reference in the State Civil Service Act [Gov. Code § 19578; for discussion of those rules, see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication , et seq.]. The hearing before the board must be conducted in accordance with those evidence rules, except that the employee and other persons may be examined in accordance with the provisions of the Evidence Code governing the examination of adverse witnesses [see Evid. Code § 776], and the parties may submit all proper and competent evidence against or in support of the causes [see Gov. Code §§ 19578, 19580]. The board must issue subpoenas for the employee's witnesses on his or her written request and at his or her cost [Gov. Code § 19581]. The board may require the costs to be prepaid [Gov. Code § 19581].

In an administrative disciplinary proceeding, the employing agency ordinarily is not barred from considering evidence that was illegally obtained by another agency in an unrelated investigation [Department of Transp. v. State Pers. Bd. (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 568, 575-579, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 516 (exclusionary rule did not bar Caltrans and State Personnel Board from considering, in administrative disciplinary proceeding, evidence that had been illegally seized by California Highway Patrol in separate criminal investigation)]. The exclusionary rule does apply, however, to prevent the consideration of evidence unconstitutionally seized by an employee of the agency imposing discipline. In such a case, a judicial determination in a related criminal proceeding that evidence was seized unconstitutionally is binding on the board under the doctrine of collateral estoppel [Dyson v. State Personnel Bd. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 711, 722, 727-728, 262 Cal. Rptr. 112] .

The board may consider postdismissal evidence of a disciplined employee's rehabilitation for the purposes of determining whether the penalty assessed by the agency was appropriate under all of the circumstances. This does not mean, however, that the board may modify a dismissal or other disciplinary action solely on a consideration of the postdismissal evidence; rather, the board may consider this evidence along with all other circumstances of the case in determining whether the penalty is just and proper. The fact that the penalty was appropriate at the time it was imposed does not prevent the board from finding that the penalty is now excessive when all of the circumstances of the case are considered [Department of Parks & Recreation v. State Personnel Bd. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 813, 828-829, 284 Cal. Rptr. 839] .

All state employees have the right to communicate with members and employees of the legislature. A state employee may raise this right as a defense at the hearing when he or she believes that the basis for the adverse action is retaliation for that communication [Gov. Code § 19251.5].

[4] Failure to Proceed at Hearing

The failure of either party, or either party's representatives, to proceed at the hearing will be deemed a withdrawal of the action or appeal unless the hearing is continued by the parties' mutual agreement or on a showing of good cause [Gov. Code § 19579].

[5] Settlement Conference

Before scheduling a contested adverse action for hearing, the State Personnel Board may require, or any party may request, a prehearing or settlement conference. The administrative law judge who presides over the settlement conference may not preside over any subsequent hearing on the contested adverse action except by agreement of the parties [Gov. Code § 19581.5].

[6] Motion for Dismissal

During a hearing, after the agency has completed its opening statement or presentation of evidence, the employee may move for a dismissal of the charges, without waiving his or her right to offer evidence if the motion is not granted. If it appears that the evidence presented supports the granting of the motion as to some but not all of the issues involved, the State Personnel Board must grant the motion as to those issues, and the action must proceed as to the remaining issues. A judgment may not be entered before a final determination of the action on the remaining issues, and this judgment is subject to final review and approval by the board [Gov. Code § 19582(a)].

[7] Decision

[a] Requirements

The hearing on an adverse action may be held by the State Personnel Board or by any authorized representative, but the board must render the decision that in its judgment is just and proper [Gov. Code § 19582(a); for discussion of the procedure if a representative hears the case, see § 118.48[7][b]]. The decision must be rendered within a reasonable time after the hearing or investigation [Gov. Code § 19583].

In arriving at a decision or a proposed decision, the board or its representative may consider any prior suspension of the employee by authority of any agency, or any prior disciplinary proceedings against the employee under the State Civil Service Act [Gov. Code § 19582(d)].

The board's decision must be in writing and must contain findings of fact and the adverse action, if any. The findings may be stated in the language of the pleadings or by reference to them [Gov. Code § 19582(e)]. The findings must explicitly or implicitly rest on a cause of discipline set forth in the notice of adverse action [see Negrete v. State Personnel Bd. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 1160, 1170, 262 Cal. Rptr. 72] . Copies of the decision must be served on the parties personally or by mail [Gov. Code § 19582(e)].

The board may designate certain of its decisions as precedents [Gov. Code § 19582.5].

[b] Proposed Decision by Representative

If the case is heard by an authorized representative, he or she must prepare a proposed decision in a form that may be adopted by the board as the decision in the case. Within 10 days after a proposed decision is filed, the board must file a copy of the proposed decision as a public record and must furnish a copy to each party. The board may adopt the proposed decision in its entirety, may remand the proposed decision, or may reduce the adverse action in the proposed decision and adopt the balance of the decision [Gov. Code § 19582(b)].

If the proposed decision is not remanded or adopted, each party must be so notified, and the board may decide the case on the record, including the transcript, with or without taking any additional evidence. The board may refer the case to the same or another authorized representative for the purpose of taking additional evidence. The representative to whom the case is assigned must prepare a proposed decision on the additional evidence, and the transcript and other papers that are part of the record of the prior hearing. A copy of the proposed decision must be furnished to each party. The board may not decide a case without affording the parties the opportunity to present oral and written argument before the board. When additional oral evidence is introduced before the board, aboard member may vote on the matter only if he or she heard the additional oral evidence [Gov. Code § 19582(c)].

[c] Standards of Proof and Review

An adverse action must be supported by a preponderance of the evidence to be sustained by the board [Pereyda v. State Personnel Board (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 47, 52, 92 Cal. Rptr. 746] . In its review of that action, the board has broad authority to consider mitigating factors in determining the sufficiency of the cause for discipline. However, the board has no discretion to impose any disciplinary punishment on a public employee unless it finds, on the basis of substantial evidence, that grounds for adverse action have been established [Department of Parks & Recreation v. State Personnel Bd. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 813, 829, 831, 284 Cal. Rptr. 839] .

If the board finds that the causes for which the adverse action was imposed were insufficient or not sustained, or that the employee was justified in the course of conduct on which the causes were based, the board may modify or revoke the adverse action and may order the employee returned to his or her position with appropriate restoration of back pay and lost benefits either as of the date of the adverse action or as of a later date specified by the board [Gov. Code § 19583]. Thus, there are three bases for modification or revocation of an agency's imposition of discipline: (1) the evidence does not establish the fact of the alleged cause for discipline; (2) the employee was justified; or (3) the cause for discipline is proved but is insufficient to support the level of adverse action taken. Unless one of these factors is present, the agency's action must stand [Department of Parks & Recreation v. State Personnel Bd. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 813, 827, 284 Cal. Rptr. 839] .

[8] Remedy if Action Is Revoked or Modified

If the board revokes or modifies the adverse action and orders the employee returned to his or her position, it must direct the payment of salary, with accrued interest, and the reinstatement of all benefits that otherwise would have normally accrued, for the period of time that the board finds the adverse action was improperly in effect [Gov. Code § 19584]. These benefits include, but are not limited to, retirement, medical, dental, and seniority benefits under a memorandum of understanding for that classification of employee [Gov. Code § 19584; see Lowe v. California Resources Agency (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 1140, 1144 n.3, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 558] . However, compensation is not payable for overtime pay that a reinstated employee would have earned during the period of involuntary discharge [Swepston v. State Personnel Bd. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 92, 97-98, 240 Cal. Rptr. 470] . Moreover, salary may not be authorized or paid for any portion of a period of adverse action during which the employee was not ready, able, and willing to perform the duties of his other position, whether or not the adverse action is valid or the facts on which it is based are sufficient to constitute cause for discipline. Any compensation that the employee earned, or might reasonably have earned, during any period commencing more than six months after the initial date of the suspension must be deducted from the amount of any salary that is due [Gov. Code § 19584].

[9] Petition for Rehearing

Within 30 days after service of a copy of the State Personnel Board's decision, either party may apply for a rehearing by filing a written petition with the board [Gov. Code § 19586; 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 51.7]. Within 30 days after the petition for rehearing is filed, the board must serve notice of the petition on the other parties to the proceeding by mailing to each party a copy of the petition [Gov. Code § 19586]. Within 60 days after service of notice of the petition, the board must either grant or deny the petition, in whole or in part [Gov. Code § 19586; 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 51.7]. Failure to act on a petition for rehearing within the 60-day period constitutes a denial of the petition [Gov. Code § 19586].

If the petition for rehearing is granted, the matter must be set for hearing by the board or its authorized representative. If the matter is set for hearing before an authorized representative, the hearing must be conducted as to the matters on which the petition was granted in substantially the same manner and under like rules of procedure as an original hearing on the adverse action. If the matter is set for hearing before the board, the board may give the parties an opportunity to provide written or oral argument and may decide the case on the record, including the transcript, with or without taking additional evidence [Gov. Code § 19587].

If a petition for rehearing is not duly filed, the decision of the board becomes final 30 days after service of a copy of the decision on the parties [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 51.6].

[10] Right to Pursue Judicial Remedy

The right to petition a court for a writ of mandate, or to bring or maintain any action or proceeding based on or related to any state civil service law, is not affected by the failure to file a petition for rehearing with the board [Gov. Code § 19588]. As an alternative or in addition to filing a petition for rehearing, an employee may seek judicial review of the board's decision [Skelly v. State Personnel Bd. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 194, 204-205, 124 Cal. Rptr. 14, 539 P.2d 774 ; see § 118.68 et seq.].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Disciplinary Proceedings

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.49

§ 118.49 Effect of Employee's Dismissal From Civil Service

Unless the State Personnel Board orders otherwise, an employee's dismissal from state civil service (1) constitutes a dismissal as of the same date from any and all positions that the employee holds in the state civil service, (2) results in automatic removal of the employee's name from any and all employment lists on which it appears, and (3) terminates the employee's salary as of the date of dismissal, except that the employee must be paid any due and unpaid salary and must be paid for any unused and accumulated vacation and any accumulated compensating time off or overtime credited to the employee as of the dismissal date [Gov. Code § 19583.1]. An employee who is dismissed from state employment by adverse action or as the result of disciplinary proceedings generally may not take any state civil service examination or be certified from an eligible list to any position in the state service without the prior consent of the executive officer of the State Personnel Board [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 211]. However, the board may grant a blanket waiver of this requirement that would allow a dismissed employee who meets standards set by the board to apply for any civil service examination, so that he or she would not need a separate waiver for each examination [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 211; see Gov. Code § 18941(b)(1)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Disciplinary Proceedings

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.50

§ 118.50 Filing of Charges by Third Party

Any person, except a current inmate of the Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation [see Penal Code § 5055], a ward of the Division of Juvenile Facilities of the Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation [see Penal Code § 6001], or a current patient of a facility operated by the State Department of Mental Health, may file charges against a state civil service employee requesting that adverse action be taken against the employee for one or more causes for discipline specified in the State Civil Service Act. These charges may be filed only with the consent of the State Personnel Board or the agency, and any request to file charges must be filed within one year of the event or events that led to the filing [Gov. Code § 19583.5(a)].

The request must be in writing and must be accompanied by the proposed charges in the form of a sworn statement. The statement must clearly state the facts constituting the causes for adverse action in such detail as is reasonably necessary to enable the accused employee to prepare a defense to the charges. When it does not appear that the material facts alleged are within the complainant's personal knowledge, the board may require the complainant to present supporting affidavits of persons having actual knowledge of the facts. Once the board has approved the request to file charges, any alleged failure to follow the prescribed procedure will not invalidate subsequent proceedings [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 51.9].

The employee against whom the charges are filed has the right to answer the charges, as in the case of a notice of adverse action served on the employee by the agency [Gov. Code § 19583.5(a); see § 118.46]. A hearing must be conducted by the hearing office of the board [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 52(a)(1)], as in the case of an appeal of any adverse action taken by an agency [see § 118.48[1]]. If the board finds that the charges are true, it may take any adverse action that in its judgment is just and proper [Gov. Code § 19583.5(a); see Department of Parks & Recreation v. State Personnel Bd. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 813, 824 , 284 Cal. Rptr. 839 (board in this situation has original jurisdiction rather than appellate jurisdiction)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Disciplinary Proceedings

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.51

§ 118.51 Action Against Tenured Managerial Employees

Special requirements apply to adverse action taken against a tenured managerial employee [see Gov. Code § 19590 et seq.; see also Gov. Code §§ 3513(e), 19592 (persons designated as managerial employees; applicability of general provisions concerning adverse action)]. Such an employee may be demoted, dismissed, or otherwise disciplined for any of the causes for discipline that are applicable to state civil service employees generally [see § 118.41] but may not be disciplined for any cause constituting prohibited discrimination [Gov. Code § 19590(a); see § 118.35].

At least 20 days before the effective date of the disciplinary action, the agency must give the employee written notice of the proposed action setting forth the reasons for the action, the effective date of the action, the employee's right to answer the notice orally or in writing within 10 days after receipt of the notice, and the employee's appeal rights [Gov. Code § 19590(b)]. The agency must file a copy of the disciplinary action with the State Personnel Board within 15 days after the effective date of the action [Gov. Code § 19590(b)].

At the written request of the employee filed within 30 days after the employee's receipt of the notice of disciplinary action, the board may investigate the reasons for the action, with or without a hearing [Gov. Code § 19590(c)]. If the adverse action taken was a disciplinary action other than demotion or dismissal, the board must, after investigation or hearing, affirm, reduce, or overturn the action [Gov. Code § 19590(c)]. If the adverse action taken was a demotion or dismissal, the board must, after investigation or hearing, affirm or reduce the action, restore the employee to the position from which he or she was demoted, or reinstate the employee to the position from which he or she was dismissed or to a position to which he or she could have transferred [Gov. Code § 19590(c); see Gov. Code § 19592.5].

The board may modify the agency's action only if the board determines that there is no substantial evidence to support the reasons for the action, or that the action was made in fraud or bad faith. The employee has the burden of proof, and, subject to rebuttal by the employee, it is presumed that the action was free from fraud and bad faith and that the statement of reasons in the notice of disciplinary action is true [Gov. Code § 19590(c)].

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Disciplinary Proceedings

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.52

§ 118.52 Local Public Employees

[1] In General

Cities and counties are obligated to follow their own rules and regulations when imposing discipline [Birdsall v. Carrillo (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1426, 1431, 282 Cal. Rptr. 504 ; Vollstedt v. City of Stockton (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 265, 272, 269 Cal. Rptr. 404 ; see Zeron v. City of Los Angeles (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 639, 643-646, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130 (city's failure to follow its own procedure for termination of probationary employee results in employee becoming permanent employee with property interest in continued employment); but see Cilderman v. City of Los Angeles (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1466, 1470-1471, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20 (in absence of evidence of intentional or purposeful discrimination, city's inconsistent enforcement of city charter provision allowing extension of employee's probationary period to reflect sick time taken by employee does not amount to denial of equal protection)]. Unless an ordinance or charter provision requires a hearing before suspension, a short-term suspension may be imposed for disciplinary reasons without a prior hearing. The suspended employee is entitled, however, to notice of the charges on which the suspension is based, must be afforded an opportunity to respond orally or in writing to the charges, and is entitled to a hearing during or after the suspension period [Civil Service Asso. v. San Francisco (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 552, 558-565, 150 Cal. Rptr.129, 586 P.2d 162] . The right to be represented at disciplinary proceedings by a recognized union [see Gov. Code § 3503] extends to this type of hearing [Civil Service Asso. v. San Francisco (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 552, 565-568, 150 Cal. Rptr. 129, 586 P.2d 162] . When the late filing of an appeal from an agency decision to terminate an employee is not specifically addressed by an ordinance, the local civil service commission must exercise its discretion to grant an extension of time for good cause shown when the employee has a fundamental and vested right of employment [Civil Service Com. v. Velez (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 115, 121, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 490] .

Many California city and county charters require the reinstatement of and payment of back pay to wrongfully discharged employees [see Currieri v. City of Roseville (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 499, 502, 123 Cal. Rptr. 314 ; Carroll v. Civil Service Com. (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 561, 566, 107 Cal. Rptr. 557] . A wrongfully discharged employee has a duty to mitigate damages, however, by making a reasonable effort to seek other employment [Currieri v. City of Roseville (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 499, 505, 123 Cal. Rptr. 314] . Also, an employer is not liable for back pay during a period that a wrongfully discharged employee is unavailable for work due to a disability that is not the result of the employer's wrongful conduct [Davis v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. Pers. Comm'n (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1122, 1134-1135, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 69] . The burden of proof on questions of mitigation and unavailability of the employee rests with the employer [Davis v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. Pers. Comm'n (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1122, 1140-1141, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 69 ; Carroll v. Civil Service Com. (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 561, 565, 107 Cal. Rptr. 557] .

When a local ordinance provides that the civil service commission may modify an order of discipline, the commission is not authorized to change an order of suspension, which merely interrupts employment, to one of termination, which is the most extreme penalty that can be imposed in the employment context. Moreover, such an action by a local civil service commission violates due process when the employee, after receiving notice of and an opportunity to respond to the proposed suspension, receives no opportunity to respond to the proposed termination [Paoli v. Civil Service Com. (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 1073, 1076-1078, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 874] .

[2] Required Provisions of County Ordinance

Any county ordinance adopted pursuant to the County Civil Service Enabling Law must include certain provisions relating to dismissal, suspension, or reduction in rank of county civil service employees [see Gov. Code § 31108]. In general, the ordinance must provide that an employee must be given notice of any order of dismissal, suspension, or reduction in rank, an opportunity to reply to the order in writing, and the right to appeal the order to the county civil service commission and to have the matter heard by the commission [see Gov. Code § 31108(a)]. Alternatively, the ordinance may provide that an employee who is dismissed, suspended, or reduced in rank or compensation may elect to appeal under the terms of any grievance procedure established pursuant to any legally binding memorandum of understanding between the local agency governing board and an employee organization recognized under applicable law [Gov. Code § 31108(b)].

[3] Effect of Collective Bargaining Agreement

The Meyers-Milias-Brown Act [Gov. Code § 3500 et seq.] generally requires local governments to "meet and confer in good faith" with employee representatives about matters that fall within the "scope of representation," including wages, hours, and other terms and conditions of employment [Gov. Code §§ 3504, 3505]. Thus, an employer ordinarily must bargain with employee representatives if its action or policy has a significant and adverse effect on the wages, hours, or working conditions of the bargaining-unit employees [Building Material & Constr. Teamsters' Union v. Farrell (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 651, 659-660, 224 Cal. Rptr. 688, 715 P.2d 648] . For example, a local government's procedures for disciplining its employees are a mandatory subject of collective bargaining [see Cerini v. City of Cloverdale (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1471, 1480-1481, 237 Cal. Rptr. 116 ; Vernon Fire Fighters v. City of Vernon (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 802, 816 n.14, 817, 165 Cal. Rptr. 908] .

However, the "scope of representation" for purposes of the Meyers-Milias-Brown Act does not include consideration of the "merits, necessity, or organization of any service or activity provided by law or executive order" [Gov. Code § 3504]. Thus, even if a local government's action or policy has a significant and adverse effect on the bargaining unit's wages, hours, and working conditions, the employer may be excepted from bargaining requirements if its action or policy amounts to a fundamental managerial or policy decision [Building Material & Constr. Teamsters' Union v. Farrell (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 651, 660, 224 Cal. Rptr. 688, 715 P.2d 648] . Examples of such fundamental managerial or policy decisions include changing the policy regarding a police officer's use of deadly force [see San Jose Peace Officer's Ass'n v. City of San Jose (1978) 78 Cal. App. 3d 935, 947, 144 Cal. Rptr. 638], and permitting a member of the citizen's police review commission to attend police department hearings regarding citizen complaints and sending a department member to review commission meetings [Berkeley Police Ass'n. v. City of Berkeley (1977) 76 Cal. App. 3d 931, 937, 143 Cal. Rptr. 255].

In this context, the California Supreme Court has drawn a distinction between an employer's fundamental managerial or policy decision and the implementation and effects of that decision. For example, a city's decision to take measures against racial profiling by its police [see Penal Code § 13519.4(e) ("racial profiling" is practice of detaining suspect based on broad set of criteria that casts suspicion on entire class of people without any individualized suspicion of particular person being stopped)] is a fundamental managerial or policy decision that is not required to be the subject of bargaining [Claremont Police Officers Ass'n v. City of Claremont (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 623, 632, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 69]. Depending on the circumstances, however, the implementation and effects of that policy might be the subject of mandatory bargaining. If the action taken to implement the policy does not have a significant and adverse effect on the wages, hours, or working conditions of the employees, bargaining is not required. But if the implementation action does have a significant and adverse effect, whether the action must be the subject of bargaining depends on the outcome of a balancing test: bargaining is required if the employer's need for unencumbered decision-making in managing its operations is outweighed by the benefit to employer-employee relations of bargaining about the action in question [Claremont Police Officers Ass'n v. City of Claremont (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 623, 637, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 69]. For example, a city's implementation of a study to determine whether its police were engaging in racial profiling was found by the Supreme Court not to be a mandatory subject of bargaining, where the study's only impact on working conditions--requiring police officers to spend an additional 8 to 12 minutes per shift filling out forms--was de minimis [Claremont Police Officers Ass'n v. City of Claremont (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 623, 634, 637-638, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 69] (different result might follow if implementation of city's study gives rise to issues regarding officer discipline, privacy rights, and other potential effects, which were not before Court in this case)].

A union may agree to the applicability of disciplinary rules that are different from the civil service rules that would ordinarily apply, as long as the agreed-on rules do not deprive the union members of their right to a hearing on the charges against them or otherwise waive the members' rights of due process [McMillen v. Civil Service Com. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 125, 132, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548] . For full discussion of bargaining rights of public employees and their unions, see California Public Sector Labor Relations (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Disciplinary Proceedings

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.53

§ 118.53 Failure to Pass Required Medical Examination

[1] Basis for Transfer, Demotion, or Termination

A state agency may require an employee to submit to a medical examination by a physician designated by the agency to evaluate the employee's capacity to perform the work of his or her position [Gov. Code § 19253.5(a); 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 172.3; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 548.122 (applicability to career executive positions)]. The agency must pay the fees for the examination and for the services of medical specialists or technicians, if necessary. The employee may submit medical or other evidence to the examining physician or to the agency. The examining physician must make a written report of the examination to the agency, which must provide a copy to the physician designated by the employee [Gov. Code § 19253.5(b)].

If, after considering the results of the medical examination and other pertinent information, the agency concludes that the employee is unable to perform the work of his or her present position but is able to perform the work of another position, including one of less than full time, the agency may demote or transfer the employee to that position [Gov. Code § 19253.5(c)]. If the agency concludes that the employee is unable to perform the work of any position in the agency, it may terminate the employee [Gov. Code § 19253.5(d)]. In such a case, if the employee is eligible and does not waive the right to retire for disability, the agency must file an application for disability retirement on behalf of the employee [Gov. Code § 19253.5(i) (on agency's filing of application for disability retirement, agency may place employee on involuntary leave status)].

The agency may demote, transfer, or terminate an employee without requiring the employee to submit to a medical examination, when the agency relies on a written statement submitted by the employee as to his or her condition or on medical reports submitted by the employee [Gov. Code § 19253.5(e)].

[2] Notice; Appeal Rights

The employee must be given written final notice of any demotion, transfer, termination, or decision to file for disability retirement based on a medical examination, at least 15 days before the effective date of the demotion, transfer, or termination, or 15 days before the filing date of the application for disability retirement [Gov. Code § 19253.5(f), (i)(1);

2 Cal. Code Reg. § 52.3(a); see Newman v. State Personnel Bd. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 41, 48, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 601 (notice must be sent to proper address to be effective)].

The agency's decision to file for disability retirement is not appealable to State Personnel Board, although the agency must provide the employee with an opportunity to respond to the agency regarding the decision to file for retirement [Gov. Code § 19253.5(i)(1)].

The employee has the right to appeal a demotion, transfer, or termination to the State Personnel Board within 15 days after service of the notice. The board is required to hold a hearing and may sustain, disapprove, or modify the demotion, transfer, or termination [Gov. Code § 19253.5(f)]. In the proceedings before the board, the agency has the burden of proving the employee's inability to perform the work of his or her position or any other available position [Newman v. State Personnel Bd. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 41, 49, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 601] . If the board revokes or modifies the agency's action, it must direct the agency to pay to the employee all accrued salary with interest and to reinstate to the employee all benefits that otherwise would have normally accrued [Gov. Code §§ 19253.5(g), 19584].

Information about the employee's medical fitness for work that the agency receives after proper service of a notice of termination but before the effective date of the termination does not affect the its decision to terminate but is relevant to the question of reinstatement only [Newman v. State Personnel Bd. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 41, 48, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 601] .

[3] Right to Reinstatement

On the request of an agency or the petition of the employee who was terminated, demoted, or transferred for medical reasons under Gov. Code § 19253.5, the State Personnel Board must reinstate the employee to an appropriate vacant position in the same class, in a comparable class, or in a lower-related class, if the board determines that the employee is no longer incapacitated for duty. Reinstatement to a position in a different agency may be made only with the concurrence of that agency. In approving or ordering reinstatement, the board may require the employee to complete satisfactorily a new probationary period. If there is no vacant position to which the employee can be appointed, the employee's name must be placed on any appropriate reemployment lists [Gov. Code § 19253.5(h)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Disciplinary Proceedings

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.54

§ 118.54 Failure to Meet Requirements for Continuing Employment

[1] Nondisciplinary Termination, Demotion, or Transfer

An agency may terminate, demote, or transfer an employee who fails to meet requirements for continuing employment in the class of position to which the employee is appointed. Alternatively, the agency may grant the employee a leave of absence [Gov. Code § 19585(b);§ 118.54[2]].

The employee must receive at least five days' written notice of termination, demotion, or transfer, and has the right to appeal the action to the State Personnel Board [Gov. Code § 19585(f)]. Any action taken is considered nondisciplinary for the purposes of the State Civil Service Act and the board's rules [Gov. Code § 19585(h)]. If the employee subsequently meets the requirements for continuing employment, he or she must be reinstated [Gov. Code § 19585(g); see Gov. Code § 19140(a)].

[2] Permissible Requirements

Requirements for continuing employment must be limited to the acquisition or retention of specified licenses, certificates, registrations, or other professional qualifications, education, or eligibility for continuing employment or advancement to the fully qualified level within a particular class or series. Such requirements may not include medical, physical ability, work, or academy performance standards [Gov. Code § 19585(d)]. An employee who has filed a proper and timely application for renewal of a required license, registration, or certificate must be considered as having maintained the license, registration, or certificate, unless it is subsequently denied, revoked, or suspended [Gov. Code § 19585(e)].

An employee may be terminated if he or she fails to meet the employment eligibility requirements of the federal Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 [Gov. Code § 19585(c)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
F. Protection of Whistle-Blowers

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.55

§ 118.55 Prohibited Retaliation

A state employee [see Gov. Code § 8547.2(a)] may not directly or indirectly use, or attempt to use, his or her official authority or influence for the purpose of intimidating, threatening, coercing, commanding, or attempting to intimidate, threaten, coerce, or command any person for the purpose of interfering with that person's right to make a protected disclosure under the California Whistleblower Protection Act [Gov. Code § 8547.3(a); see Gov. Code § 8547 et seq.].

A "protected disclosure" under the Act is any good-faith communication, including any communication based on, or when carrying out, job duties, that discloses or demonstrates an intention to disclose information that may evidence (1) improper governmental activity or (2) any condition that may significantly threaten the health or safety of employees or the public if the disclosure or intention to disclose is made for the purpose of remedying that condition [Gov. Code § 8547.2(d)]. "Protected disclosure" specifically includes any good faith communication to the Bureau of State Audits alleging an improper governmental activity and any evidence delivered to the Bureau of State Audits in support of the allegation [Gov. Code § 8547.2(d)]. "Improper governmental activity" is any activity by a state agency or employee that is undertaken in the performance of the employee's duties, undertaken inside a state office, or, if undertaken outside a state office by the employee, directly relates to state government, regardless of whether the activity is within the scope of his or her employment, and that (1) violates any state or federal law or regulation or (2) is economically wasteful or involves gross misconduct, incompetency, or inefficiency. Activity in violation of a state or federal law or regulation includes, but is not limited to, corruption, malfeasance, bribery, theft of government property, fraudulent claims, fraud, coercion, conversion, malicious prosecution, misuse of government property, and willful omission to perform duty [Gov. Code § 8547.2(b)].

Use of official authority or influence includes (1) conferring a benefit or effecting a reprisal, or promising to do either; and (2) taking, or directing others to take, recommending, processing, or approving any personnel action, including, but not limited to, appointment, promotion, transfer, assignment, performance evaluation, suspension, or other disciplinary action [Gov. Code § 8547.3(b)].

The statutory prohibition against the use or attempted use of an employee's official authority or influence to interfere with a person's right to make a protected disclosure does not authorize an individual to disclose information otherwise prohibited by or under law [Gov. Code § 8547.3(d)].

Special provisions are applicable in cases involving retaliation against employees of the University of California and of California State University who make protected disclosures [Gov. Code §§ 8547.10-8547.12].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
F. Protection of Whistle-Blowers

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.56

§ 118.56 Grounds for Adverse Action and Other Penalties

A state civil service employee who intentionally engages in acts of reprisal, retaliation, threats, coercion, or similar acts, against another state employee or an applicant for state employment for making a protected disclosure is subject to discipline by adverse action [Gov. Code § 8547.8(b); see Gov. Code § 19683(d); see also Gov. Code § 19572(x)]. If the agency does not take adverse action against the employee, the State Personnel Board may do so [Gov. Code §§ 8547.8(b), 19683(e); see Gov. Code § 19583.5 (procedure for filing charges); see also § 118.50].

In addition, any person who intentionally engages in prohibited retaliatory acts is subject to a fine and incarceration in the county jail [Gov. Code § 8547.8(b)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
F. Protection of Whistle-Blowers

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.57

§ 118.57 Administrative Procedure

[1] Complaint

A state employee or applicant for state employment who files a written complaint with his or her supervisor or manager or the agency, alleging actual or attempted acts of reprisal, retaliation, threats, coercion, or similar acts prohibited by statute, may file a copy of the complaint with the State Personnel Board [Gov. Code § 8547.8(a)].

The complaint filed with the board must be accompanied by a sworn statement, under penalty of perjury, that the contents of the complaint are true or are believed by the affiant to be true. The complaint must be filed with the board within 12 months after the most recent act of reprisal described in the complaint [Gov. Code § 8547.8(a)].

[2] Board Investigation or Hearing of Complaint

The State Personnel Board must conduct a hearing or investigation of a complaint of reprisal or retaliation within 10 working days after the filing date. The board's executive officer must complete findings of the hearing or investigation within 60 working days and must provide a copy of the findings to the complainant and to his or her supervisor or manager or the agency. When the allegations of a complaint are the same as, or similar to, those contained in another appeal, the executive officer may consolidate the appeals into the most appropriate format, and the time limitations described in this paragraph do not apply [Gov. Code § 19683(a)].

If the executive officer finds that there were acts of misconduct by the supervisor, manager, or agency, the supervisor, manager, or agency may request a hearing before the board regarding the findings [Gov. Code § 19683(b)]. The request for a hearing, and any subsequent determination by the board, must be made in accordance with the board's normal rules governing appeals, hearings, and investigations [see § 118.55 et seq.], and disciplinary proceedings [Gov. Code § 19683(b); see § 118.40 et seq.].

In any administrative proceeding under the California Whistleblower Protection Act, once it has been demonstrated by a preponderance of the evidence that an activity protected by the Act was a contributing factor in the alleged retaliation against the complainant, the burden of proof will be on the supervisor, manager, or state agency to demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence that the action allegedly constituting retaliation would have occurred for legitimate, independent reasons even if the complainant had not engaged in protected activity [Gov. Code § 8547.8(e) (if supervisor, manager, or state agency fails to meet this burden of proof, complainant has complete affirmative defense to any adverse action based on protected disclosure); see Gov. Code §§ 8547.10(e), 8547.12(e) (similar burden of proof in proceedings brought by employees of University of California and California State University)].

[3] Remedy

If, after the hearing, the board determines that prohibited retaliation occurred, or if no hearing is requested and the executive officer finds that improper activity occurred, the board may order any appropriate relief, including, but not limited to, reinstatement, back pay, restoration of lost service credit, compensatory damages, and the expungement of any adverse records about the complainant [Gov. Code § 19683(c)]. If the board determines that a manager, supervisor, or employee named in the complaint was guilty of prohibited retaliation, and that violation constitutes legal cause for discipline under Gov. Code § 19572, it must impose a just and proper penalty and cause an entry to that effect to be made in the manager's, supervisor's, or employee's official personnel records [Gov. Code § 19683(d); see § 118.56, see also § 118.40 et seq.]. If the board determines that a manager, supervisor, or employee who is not named a party in the retaliation complaint may have engaged in or participated in prohibited retaliation, the board must notify the manager's, supervisor's, or employee's employing agency, which may then impose an adverse action on that manager, supervisor, or employee [Gov. Code § 19683(e)].

An employee who prevails before the board on his or her complaint must be reimbursed for all costs incurred [Gov. Code § 19683.5].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
F. Protection of Whistle-Blowers

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.58

§ 118.58 Civil Action

Any person who intentionally engaged in acts of reprisal, retaliation, threats, coercion, or similar acts against a state employee or applicant for state employment for having made a protected disclosure is liable to the injured party for damages [Gov. Code § 8547.8(c); see Gov. Code §§ 8547.10(c), 8547.12(c) (damages recoverable by employees of University of California and California State University); see also § 118.147]. A "person" includes the state, an individual, corporation, trust, association, local government, or an agency or instrumentality of any of the foregoing [Gov. Code § 8547.2(c)].

An employee complaining of whistleblower retaliation may bring an action for damages in superior court, but only after the employee files a complaint with the State Personnel Board and the board has issued or failed to issue findings [Gov. Code § 8547.8(c); State Bd. of Chiropractic Examiners v. Superior Court (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 963, 978, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 576, 201 P.3d 457]. If the plaintiff is a California State University employee, an action for damages may not be brought unless the state university has failed to reach a decision on the employee's administrative complaint within the time limits established for that purpose by the trustees or has failed to address the complaint to the employee's satisfaction within 18 months [Gov. Code § 8547.12(c) ("Nothing in this section is intended to prohibit the injured party from seeking a remedy if the university has not satisfactorily addressed the complaint within 18 months."); Runyon v. Board of Trs. of Cal. State Univ. (2010) 48 Cal. 4th 760, 767-773, 108 Cal. Rptr. 3d 557, 229 P.3d 985 ("satisfactorily addressed" in Gov. Code § 8547.12(c) refers to satisfaction of complaining employee, rather than satisfaction of good-faith standard for investigation of complaint)]. If the plaintiff is an employee of the University of California, an action for damages may be brought only if the university's administrative remedy failed to result in a timely decision; if the university reached a timely decision, even one in its own favor, the employee has no cause of action for damages [Gov. Code § 8547.10(c); Miklosy v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 876, 888-898, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 690, 188 P.3d 629].

The plaintiff's failure to exhaust his or her administrative remedy is a jurisdictional defect that may be raised by the parties or the court at any time [Hood v. Hacienda La Puente Unified School District (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 435, 439-441, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 448] . As long as the Board has issued findings, however, or the deadline for issuing findings has passed, the employee may proceed with a damages action in superior court regardless of whether the Board's findings are favorable or unfavorable to the employee. Once the Board has issued findings, the employee need not pursue additional administrative remedies and need not challenge the findings by way of a petition for a writ of administrative mandate [State Bd. of Chiropractic Examiners v. Superior Court (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 963, 978, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 576, 201 P.3d 457 , disapproving California Pub. Employees' Ret. Sys. v. Superior Court (2008)160 Cal. App. 4th 174, 180-185, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 561]. Similarly, if a California State University employee has complied with the university's internal complaint and investigation requirements and received an adverse decision from the university, the employee need not seek to overturn the university's decision through a petition for a writ of administrative mandate before filing a civil action [Runyon v. Board of Trs. of Cal. State Univ. (2010) 48 Cal. 4th 760, 773-775, 108 Cal. Rptr. 3d 557, 229 P.3d 985] .

In a civil damages action, once it has been demonstrated by a preponderance of the evidence that an activity protected by the California Whistleblower Protection Act was a contributing factor in the alleged retaliation against the plaintiff, the burden of proof will be on the supervisor, manager, or state agency to demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence that the action allegedly constituting retaliation would have occurred for legitimate, independent reasons even if the plaintiff had not engaged in protected activity [Gov. Code § 8547.8(e); see Gov. Code §§ 8547.10(e), 8547.12(e) (similar burden of proof in actions brought by employees of University of California and California State University)].

The plaintiff may recover punitive damages if the defendant acted maliciously. If the plaintiff prevails, the plaintiff also may recover reasonable attorney's fees, as provided by law. The remedy of a civil action is in addition to all other penalties provided by law [Gov. Code § 8547.8(c)].

The fact that an employee or applicant may have a cause of action as described here does not prevent an agency, manager, or supervisor from taking, directing others to take, recommending, or approving any personnel action, or from taking or failing to take a personnel action, regarding the employee or applicant if the agency, manager, or supervisor reasonably believes that the action or inaction is justified by evidence separate and apart from the fact that the employee or applicant has disclosed improper governmental activities [Gov. Code § 8547.8(d)].

The immunity of public employees from malicious prosecution actions [see Gov. Code § 821.6] does not shield an agency and its officers from civil liability to an employee who was discharged in retaliation for disclosing improper governmental activities [Shoemaker v. Myers (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 1407, 1423-1425, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 203] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
G. State Investigations and Hearings

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.59

§ 118.59 Authority to Hold Hearings and Make Investigations

The State Personnel Board derives adjudicatory power from the constitution [Cal. Const., art. VII, §§ 2, 3; Department of Parks & Recreation v. State Personnel Bd. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 813, 823, 284 Cal. Rptr. 839] . The board is authorized to hold hearings and make investigations concerning all matters relating to the enforcement and effect of the State Civil Service Act and the board's rules under that Act [Gov. Code § 18670; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 51 et seq. (regulations applicable to hearings and appeals before board)].

The Constitution precludes the Legislature from authorizing an entity other than State Personnel Board (such as a "board of adjustment" created as part of a grievance procedure specified in a memorandum of understanding for a particular state employee bargaining unit) to review disciplinary actions taken against state civil-service employees [State Personnel Bd. v. Department of Personnel Admin. (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 512, 523, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 142, 123 P.3d 169) (holding former Gov. Code § 18670(c)-(e) unconstitutional); see Cal. Const., art. VII, § 3(a) (board "shall ... review disciplinary actions")].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
G. State Investigations and Hearings

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.60

§ 118.60 Proceedings Initiated by Petition or Appeal

The State Personnel Board is required to make investigations and hold hearings on the petition or appeal of an employee or a citizen concerning the enforcement and effect of the State Civil Service Act, and to enforce the observance of the Act and the rules made under the Act [Gov. Code § 18670; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 51.1(c) ("appeal" means any written request for relief or review and includes "application," "petition," "protest," and "complaint")]. All appeals filed with the board must be in writing and must clearly state the facts that form the basis for the appeal and identify all known respondents [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 51.2(a), (b); see § 118.141]. Except as otherwise provided in the Act or the board's rules, an appeal must be filed with the board within 30 days after the appellant has been served with the notice, report, or document from which the appeal is taken, or within 30 days after the event on which the appeal is based [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 51.2(e); see Gov. Code § 19575 (appeal from adverse action must be filed 30 days after effective date of adverse action)]. The executive officer of the board may grant a 30-day extension for good cause [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 51.2(e)(3)]. The board's filing requirements are subject to the rule of strict compliance, which means that an appeal may be disregarded if it is not timely filed [Sheehy v. State Personnel Bd. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 907, 912, 148 Cal. Rptr. 230] .

The appeals division of the board will mail a copy of the appeal to, or serve a copy of the appeal on, the respondent [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 51.2(d)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
G. State Investigations and Hearings

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.61

§ 118.61 Time for Investigation or Hearing

A hearing or investigation in regard to an employee's appeal must be commenced within a reasonable time after the petition or appeal is filed, and the board must render a decision within a reasonable time after the conclusion of the hearing or investigation. The period from the filing of the appeal to the decision by the board may not exceed six months or 90 days from the time of the submission, whichever period is shorter, except that the board may extend the six-month period up to 45 days. The board must publish substantial reasons for any extension in its calendar before the conclusion of the six-month period. Submission occurs on the last day of the hearing when no other documents are to be filed, or on the last day designated for the filing of briefs or other evidence necessary to complete the record [Gov. Code § 18671.1].

The employee may waive the six-month and 90-day periods for a decision, but absent a waiver, the board failure to render a timely decision is an exhaustion of all available administrative remedies [Gov. Code § 18671.1].

In cases involving complaints of discrimination, harassment, or retaliation, when the executive officer of the board renders a decision, the decision must be rendered within four months after the filing of the appeal [Gov. Code § 18671.1].

In any case, an appeal assigned for hearing will be dismissed if it is not brought to hearing within three years after it was filed with the board, unless the parties have filed a written stipulation specifically extending the three-year period [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 52.2].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
G. State Investigations and Hearings

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.62

§ 118.62 Conduct of Hearing or Investigation

The hearing or investigation may be conducted by the board or by any member or authorized representative of the board [Gov. Code § 18671]. The following types of appeals must be assigned to the hearing office of the board for hearing [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 52(a)]:

(1) Approved requests to file charges against a state civil service employee [see § 118.50].

(2) Appeal of an adverse action [see § 118.40 et seq.].

(3) Appeal of rejection during probationary period [see § 118.20[1][a]].

(4) Any other appeal deemed appropriate by the board or its executive officer or president.

In any case in which the proceeding has been assigned to the hearing office, that office is the authorized representative of the board and is fully authorized and empowered to grant or refuse extensions of time, to set the proceedings for hearing, to conduct a hearing, and to perform all other acts in connection with the proceedings that are authorized by the State Civil Service Act or the board's regulations [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 52(b)].

The person conducting the hearing or investigation may administer oaths, subpoena and require the attendance of witnesses and the production of books or papers, and cause the depositions of witnesses to be taken in the manner prescribed by law for depositions in civil cases in the superior court [Gov. Code § 18671; see Gov. Code §§ 18672-18674 (subpoena of witnesses, depositions, witness fees)]. When ordered to testify or produce a book or paper, a person is not excused from testifying or producing any book or paper in the investigation or hearing on the ground of self-incrimination if the person is granted immunity [Gov. Code § 18676]. Immunity from prosecution may be granted in an appropriate case [see Gov. Code § 18677]. However, a public employer need not provide a formal grant of criminal-use immunity before it can discipline and even dismiss a public employee for refusing to answer the employer's job-related questions on grounds of the constitutional privilege against self-incrimination, so long as the employee is not required to waive or surrender his or her constitutional protection against criminal use of the statements thus obtained, at least where the employee is specifically advised that he or she retains that protection [Spielbauer v. County of Santa Clara (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 704, 725-730, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 590, 199 P.3d 1125].

The person conducting the hearing has the authority to exclude witnesses from the hearing room on the motion of any party [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 52.1].

In conducting the hearing or investigation, any informality in the proceedings or in the manner of taking testimony will not invalidate any order, decision, or rule made, approved, or confirmed by the board [Gov. Code § 18675(a)].

Any party is entitled to be represented by counsel or any other person or organization of the party's choice in any hearing or investigation conducted by the board [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 51.5].

The board's assignment of a case for hearing to the hearing office does not preclude the board from recalling the proceedings for hearing by the board [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 52(c)].

Within 10 days after filing an appeal from a dismissal, an appellant may file with the board and serve on the respondent a written request that the hearing on the appeal be expedited for good cause. The appellant's request must be supported by documentary evidence or sworn declarations. Within seven days after service of the appellant's request, the respondent must file and serve a written response to the request. The appellant's request may be granted if either the respondent concurs in the request or the administrative law judge determines that good cause exists. The administrative law judge may impose any orders for expedited discovery that the administrative law judge deems necessary or appropriate. If the appellant's request is granted, the matter will be set for hearing within 15 days, and the administrative law judge must prepare the proposed decision within five working days of the hearing for submittal to the board at its next meeting [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 52.4].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
G. State Investigations and Hearings

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.63

§ 118.63 Reference to Laws and Decisions

During the investigation or hearing of an employee's complaint of discrimination, harassment, or retaliation, and in arriving at a recommended decision, the hearing officer or investigator must give due consideration to current laws and decisions applicable to the state civil service. The recommended decision of the hearing officer and the board must include references to the laws and decisions applied [Gov. Code § 18675(b)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
G. State Investigations and Hearings

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.64

§ 118.64 Findings

Whenever any employee, department, or other person is actively interested in a matter before the board, in connection with which the board is holding a hearing, the employee, department, or other person may request that the board make findings. The board must do so if the request is made at any time before the board takes the matter under submission [Gov. Code § 18682].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
G. State Investigations and Hearings

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.65

§ 118.65 Transcript of Hearing

An employee, department, or other person, actively interested in the matter may request the board to prepare a transcript of the hearing [see Gov. Code § 18683(a)]. The board may charge a fee for the preparation, production, and dissemination of the transcript, not exceeding actual cost [Gov. Code § 18683].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
G. State Investigations and Hearings

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.66

§ 118.66 Settlement or Adjustment of Dispute

When the parties to the dispute agree on a settlement or adjustment of the matter, the terms of the settlement or adjustment may be submitted to the board. On approval by the board, the disposition of the matter in accordance with those terms is final and binding on the parties [Gov. Code § 18681].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
G. State Investigations and Hearings

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.67

§ 118.67 Orders and Decisions of Board

[1] Binding Effect

All orders and decisions of the State Personnel Board made pursuant to the State Civil Service Act must be obeyed by and are binding on state civil service agencies and their employees, regardless of whether the agency agrees or disagrees with the order or decision. All orders and decisions, other than orders or decisions of the board itself, must be reviewed by the board's executive officer or an employee of the board designated by the executive officer [Gov. Code § 18710].

[2] Enforcement

If a state civil service agency refuses or neglects to comply with an order or decision of the board, the board may, after investigation with or without a hearing, do any of the following [Gov. Code § 18710]:

- Issue further findings interpreting or clarifying the decision.
- Issue further findings as to whether the agency has or has not complied with the order or decision.
- Issue an order, directed to the agency, to show cause why the board should not seek a writ of mandate to compel the agency to comply with the order or decision.

If the board finds that no good cause exists for the refusal or neglect to comply with the order or decision, it may either issue a further order or decision consistent with its findings, or file a petition for a writ of mandate. This procedure for the enforcement of the board's orders and decisions is in addition to any other means or procedure provided by law, and it does not prevent any party to the board proceeding from seeking judicial enforcement of the board's order or decision [Gov. Code § 18710].

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
H. Judicial Review of Personnel Boards

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.68

§ 118.68 Writ of Review or Mandate

[1] Available Procedures

Because the State Personnel Board's adjudicatory power is derived directly from the constitution [Cal. Const., art. VII, § 3; Bodenschatz v. State Personnel Board (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 775, 778, 93 Cal. Rptr. 471] , either a writ of review (certiorari) or a writ of mandate may be issued to review the board's decisions after administrative remedies are exhausted [Boren v. State Personnel Board (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 634, 637-638, 234 P.2d 981 ; see Morton v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 977, 982, 88 Cal. Rptr. 533 (exhaustion of administrative remedies); but see Glendale City Employees' Assn., Inc. v. City of Glendale (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 328, 343, 124 Cal. Rptr. 513, 540 P.2d 609 (no requirement to exhaust administrative remedies that would be ineffective)]. A writ of review may be issued when the board exceeded its jurisdiction [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1068(a), 1074]. A writ of mandate may be issued when (1) the board exceeded its jurisdiction, (2) an employee was denied a fair trial, or (3) there was a prejudicial abuse of discretion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b)].

A proceeding in administrative mandate [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] is the preferred remedy since more issues can be raised in a mandate proceeding than in a review (certiorari) proceeding [see Comments and References to § 118.142]. Administrative mandate is available to review administrative proceedings involving a statutorily required hearing concerning discipline or discharge of a state civil service employee [Taylor v. State Personnel Bd. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 498, 505, 161 Cal. Rptr. 677] . In certain cases administrative mandate is unavailable because the board is not required to hold an evidentiary hearing, such as in cases of suspension of up to five days [see Gov. Code § 19576]. In those cases, the employee may seek review by traditional mandate [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1085] if the board's action constituted an abuse of discretion [Coelho v. State Personnel Bd. (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 968, 971, 257 Cal. Rptr. 557] .

An employee's failure to seek available judicial review of adverse administrative findings will result in those findings having issue-preclusive effect in subsequent litigation involving a wrongful-termination claim or a claim under the Fair Employment and Housing Act [see Risam v. County of Los Angeles (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 412, 419-420, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 267 ; Castillo v. City of Los Angeles (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 477, 481-486, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 870] .

[2] Standard of Review

In a proceeding for a writ of review, the court exercises its independent judgment to determine whether the board has regularly pursued its authority [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1074]. In a proceeding for a writ of mandate, the court determines questions of law, such as the construction of a statute, by exercising its independent judgment and using a weight-of-the-evidence test [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(c); Bodinson Mfg. Co. v. California E. Com. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 321, 325-327, 109 P.2d 935 ; IBEW, Local 889 v. International Bhd. of Electrical Workers (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 861, 868-870, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1] .

As to other issues, the standard of review by the trial court differ greatly depending on the issues involved. If the administrative decision substantially affects a fundamental vested right, the trial court must exercise its independent judgment on the evidence, determining whether the weight of the evidence supports the administrative findings. If, on the other hand, the administrative decision neither involves nor substantially affects a fundamental vested right, the trial court's review is limited to determining whether the administrative findings are supported by substantial evidence [Strumsky v. San Diego County Employees Retirement Ass'n (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 28, 32, 112 Cal. Rptr. 805, 520 P.2d 29 ; Wences v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 305, 313-316, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 199 (independent-judgment standard of judicial review applied when challenged discipline was reprimand of police officer, as opposed to more severe penalty, because presence of reprimand could hinder officer's future career advancement)].

Generally, with respect to culpability (that is, whether the employee in fact committed the misconduct alleged), the trial court has extensive powers to review the administrative record and may exercise its independent judgment on the evidence [see Deegan v. City of Mountain View (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 37, 45, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(c)]. On appeal from the trial court's judgment, the court of appeal will not disturb the trial court's determination of culpability if it is supported by substantial evidence [Barber v. State Personnel Bd. (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 395, 404, 134 Cal. Rptr. 206, 556 P.2d 306 ; see Deegan v. City of Mountain View (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 37, 45, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690 ; Strumsky v. San Diego County Employees Retirement Ass'n (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 28, 35, 112 Cal. Rptr. 805, 520 P.2d 29 (substantial evidence review even if fundamental vested right is involved)].

With respect to the penalty imposed by the board, the powers of review of the trial court (and later, of the court of appeal) are limited and are exercised only with great deference to the board's findings. Thus, the court is required to uphold the penalty imposed by the board if there is any reasonable basis for it; the penalty will not be disturbed unless a manifest abuse of discretion is shown. An abuse of discretion exists only if reasonable minds cannot disagree that the penalty is excessive [Barber v. State Personnel Bd. (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 395, 404, 134 Cal. Rptr. 206, 556 P.2d 306 ; see Deegan v. City of Mountain View (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 37, 46-47, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690 ; see also Pegues v. Civil Service Comm'n (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 95, 106, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705 (there is no requirement that public agency impose identical penalties for similar charges; therefore, the mere fact that agency imposes different punishments in similar cases does not establish reversible abuse of discretion)].

[3] Limitation Periods

No action or proceeding may be brought by any person having or claiming to have a cause of action or complaint or ground for issuance of any complaint or legal remedy for wrongs or grievances based on or related to any civil service law in California, unless the action or proceeding is commenced and service is made within one year after the cause of action or complaint or ground for issuance of any writ or legal remedy first arose. The plaintiff or petitioner may not be compensated for the period after the date the cause or ground arose unless the action or proceeding is filed and service is made within 90 days after the cause or ground arose [Gov. Code § 19630].

When an appeal is taken from a decision of the board, the cause of action does not arise until the final decision of the board [Gov. Code § 19630]. The time for commencing an action or proceeding does not run while the matter is before the board, pursuant to the petition of the person involved, and final action has yet to be taken by the board [Gov. Code §

19631].

Laches may bar review of a personnel decision of a public agency if that review is not sought promptly. For example, if an employee unreasonably delays seeking administrative mandate, and the delay prejudices the employer, the petition for mandate will be barred by laches. Such prejudice might exist if during the delay the employer divided the employee's former duties among several other employees and would incur double payments (back wages to the employee and salaries to the other employees) if the requested relief were granted [see Johnson v. City of Loma Linda (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 61, 68-69, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 316, 5 P.3d 874] .

[4] Service on Board or Member or Employee of Board

Process directed to any officer or employee of the board, or to the board itself or its members, in any action or proceeding, must be served on the office of the chief counsel of the board [Gov. Code § 19632].

[5] Judgment

The judgment in a review (certiorari) proceeding may affirm, annul, or modify the board's action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1075]. The judgment in a mandate proceeding may deny the writ or order the board to set aside its order or decision. When the judgment commands the board to set aside its order or decision, the judgment may order reconsideration of the case in light of the court's opinion and judgment and may order the board to take such further action as is specifically enjoined on the board by law. The judgment may not, however, limit or control the discretion legally vested in the board [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(f)]. In a mandate proceeding, any award of costs or attorney's fees or both to the petitioner must be borne by the real party in interest and may not be assessed against the board, unless there is no real party in interest [Gov. Code § 19633 (not to be construed as authority for award of attorney's fees)].

A party dissatisfied with the judgment in a review or mandate proceeding may seek a new trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 1110; see Pollak v. State Personnel Bd. (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 1394, 1405-1408, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 39 (supplemental petition for mandate not sufficient to require court to readjudicate issues because petitioner did not comply with procedures for seeking new trial under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 655-663.2)]. For discussion of the procedures for seeking a new trial, see Chapter 371, Motions After Trial .

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
H. Judicial Review of Personnel Boards

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.69

§ 118.69 Local Civil Service Commission Decisions

A petition for a writ of mandate is the appropriate remedy to challenge a final decision of a city or county civil service commission [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6; Strumsky v. San Diego County Employees Retirement Ass'n (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 28, 42, 112 Cal. Rptr. 805, 520 P.2d 29 ; see also § 118.143]. In such a case, a civil suit challenging the civil service decision is not an available remedy, unless the employee or job applicant is making a claim of unlawful discrimination (for example, under Title VII of the Federal Civil Rights Act or the California Fair Employment and Housing Act) [DeCuir v. Los Angeles County (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 75, 80-83, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 102 (commission's discretionary denial of hearing is reviewable on petition for writ of mandate); see 42 U.S.C. § 2000e et seq. (Title VII); Gov. Code § 12900 et seq. (Fair Employment and Housing Act)]. Even in an unlawful discrimination case, the employee should seek direct judicial review of an adverse civil service decision by petitioning for a writ of mandate. A failure to exhaust judicial remedies for the adverse civil service decision will result in the civil service decision having an issue-preclusive effect in any subsequent litigation alleging unlawful discrimination [Castillo v. City of Los Angeles (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 477, 481-486, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 870] .

Administrative mandate [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] is available to review administrative proceedings involving a statutorily required evidentiary hearing concerning discipline or discharge of a local public employee [Chavez v. Civil Service Com. (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 324, 331-332, 150 Cal. Rptr. 197] . Ordinary mandate [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1085(a)] is available to correct an abuse of discretion when an evidentiary hearing is not required. The fact that an administrative hearing has not been held does not preclude review by administrative mandate if a hearing is required by law. Likewise, when a hearing is not explicitly required by law but is compelled by due process considerations, administrative mandate is an appropriate remedy [Civil Service Com. v. Velez (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 115, 118, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 490 ; see § 118.13[1]].

Where it is contended that an administrative agency's order is not supported by substantial evidence, and a fundamental vested right of the petitioner was affected, the trial court independently reviews the agency's factual findings [Davis v. Civil Service Com. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 677, 686, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 121 (termination of permanent employee); Lake v. Civil Service Commission (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 224, 227, 120 Cal. Rptr. 452 (termination of employee entitled to not be terminated without cause)], determining whether the party challenging the administrative determination of culpability (that is, whether employee in fact committed misconduct alleged) has met the burden of showing that the evidence preponderates in his or her favor [Deegan v. City of Mountain View (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 37, 45, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690 (trial court has extensive powers to review administrative agency's determination of culpability and may exercise its independent judgment on evidence); Chamberlain v. Ventura County Civil Service Com. (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 362, 371, 138 Cal. Rptr. 155 (demotion of county employee)].

Where the question is not substantiality of the evidence to support the factual findings, but whether those findings justify the agency's order imposing punishment, the issue is whether there was an abuse of discretion [Deegan v. City of Mountain View (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 37, 46-47, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690 (with respect to penalty, trial court's powers of review are limited and are exercised only with great deference to agency's findings); Davis v. Civil Service Com. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 677, 686, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 121] . The mere fact that an agency imposes different punishments in similar cases does not establish an abuse of discretion; there is no requirement that a public agency impose identical penalties for similar charges [Pegues v. Civil Service Comm'n (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 95, 106, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705] . If the agency is challenging an administrative decision in favor of an employee whom the agency has attempted to discipline, the agency does not have a substantial vested interest in the discipline of the employee. The standard of review is the substantial-evidence test [Lowe v. Civil Service Com. (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 667, 674-676, 210 Cal. Rptr. 673] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
I. Procedural Rights of Peace Officers

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.70

§ 118.70 Public Safety Officers Procedural Bill of Rights Act

Public safety officers are afforded certain additional rights and remedies under the Public Safety Officers Procedural Bill of Rights Act [Gov. Code § 3300 et seq.]. For purposes of the Act, any peace officer specified in particular Penal Code sections [see Pen. Code §§ 830.1-830.5]--that is, virtually any peace officer--with two exceptions [see Pen. Code §§ 830.33(e), 830.35(c) (railroad policeman; coroner or deputy coroner)], is a public safety officer [Gov. Code § 3301]. Probationary and at-will peace officers, including police chiefs who serve at the pleasure of the appointing agency, are public safety officers and therefore are entitled to the protection of the Act [Gray v. City of Gustine (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 621, 627, 273 Cal. Rptr. 730 ; Browning v. Block (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 423, 428, 220 Cal. Rptr. 763] , as well as public safety officers employed by charter cities [Baggett v. Gates (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 128, 140, 185 Cal. Rptr. 232, 649 P.2d 874] . However, probationary peace officers do not enjoy the same level of protection as tenured peace officers under the Act [Riveros v. City of Los Angeles (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1342, 1357-1360 (probationary police officers not entitled to pre-termination hearing or to be fired only for cause); but see Winter v. City of Los Angeles (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1058, 1062-1066, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 679 (under terms of city charter, officer's placement on inactive duty did not qualify as "absence" that would extend probationary period; hence, inactive officer became tenured at expiration of initial probationary period)]. Police academy recruits generally are not considered public safety officers [Burden v. Snowden (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 556, 569-570, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 531, 828 P.2d 672] . A fire chief who sometimes works on arson investigations, but whose primary duty is not law enforcement, is not a public safety officer [Gauthier v. City of Red Bluff (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1441, 1445-1447, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35] .

It is unlawful for any public safety department to deny or refuse any public safety officer the rights and protections guaranteed to the officer under the Act [Gov. Code § 3309.5(a)]. However, any public agency that has adopted, through the governing body or an official designee, any procedure that, at a minimum, provides to peace officers the same rights or protections provided by the Act, is not subject to the Act with regard to such a procedure [Gov. Code § 3310].

Protections similar to those of the Public Safety Officers Procedural Bill of Rights Act extend to police employees [Gov. Code § 3508.1]. For this purpose, the term "police employee" includes the civilian employees of the police department of any city, but it does not include any public safety officer within the meaning of Gov. Code § 3301 [Gov. Code § 3508.1(a)].

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
I. Procedural Rights of Peace Officers

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.71

§ 118.71 Punitive Actions to Which Act Applies

A public safety officer may not be subjected to punitive action, denied promotion, or threatened with any such treatment because of the officer's lawful exercise of the rights granted under the Act or the exercise of any rights under an administrative grievance procedure [Gov. Code § 3304(a)]. For purposes of the Act, a punitive action is any action that may lead to dismissal, demotion, suspension, reduction in salary, written reprimand, or transfer for purposes of punishment [Gov. Code § 3303]. It includes any reduction in salary, even one occasioned by a transfer or reassignment that is not for the purposes of punishment [Baggett v. Gates (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 128, 141, 185 Cal. Rptr. 232, 649 P.2d 874 ; White v. County of Sacramento (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 676, 680-684, 183 Cal. Rptr. 520, 646 P.2d 191 ("reassign[ment of] a peace officer to a lower paying position is per se disciplinary, or punitive in nature")], and any loss of skill pay or hazard pay [McManigal v. City of Seal Beach (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 975, 979-980, 212 Cal. Rptr. 733] . It encompasses rejection from promotional probation that results in a return to a previously held position [Henneberque v. City of Culver City (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 250, 254, 194 Cal. Rptr. 869] .

A report issued by a county citizens' law enforcement review board may constitute punitive action for these purposes, even if the report results in no immediate disciplinary measures and the board has no power to establish policy or impose any disciplinary measures. For example, in one case a county citizens' law enforcement review board issued a report containing findings of serious misconduct on the part of certain deputy sheriffs, but the report made no recommendation concerning discipline of the deputies. The sheriff's department made its own investigation of the incidents involved, finding that no misconduct had occurred. The citizens' law enforcement review board had been established by the county charter as an advisory body, with no power to establish policy or impose any disciplinary measures. After the civil service commission denied the deputies' request for an administrative appeal of the board report, they petitioned for mandamus. The trial court denied the petition, ruling that the deputies were not entitled to an administrative appeal because they had suffered no injury. The court of appeal reversed, holding that the report of the citizens' law enforcement review board itself constituted punitive action, entitling the deputies to an administrative appeal [see Gov. Code §§ 3303, 3304(b)]. Although the deputies had been subjected to no disciplinary measures as a result of the board report or the incidents involved, the testimony of sheriff's department's head of human resources established that the existence of the negative report could have an adverse effect on the deputies' career advancement. Gov. Code § 3303 defines "punitive action" that triggers a right to an administrative appeal as any action that may lead to dismissal, demotion, or other adverse employment consequences. Therefore, even though the deputies had suffered no immediate punishment from the report, the court of appeal concluded that they were entitled to an administrative appeal because the report could lead to adverse employment consequences in the future [Caloca v. County of San Diego (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1209, 1220-1223, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 660] .

Similarly, a "summary of conference" memorandum, memorializing a meeting between an officer and a supervisor, may come within the definition of a "punitive action" if it contains adverse comments that could lead to punitive action in the future. For example, such a memorandum qualifies as a punitive action if it contains a warning that "continued failure [to follow a particular departmental policy] could lead to future disciplinary action." On the other hand, if the tenor and contents of the memorandum indicate that its mention of shortcomings in an officer's performance is not a criticism for fault, but rather an educational reminder, the memorandum is not a punitive action [Otto v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 985, 998-999, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 664] .

The following actions do not constitute punitive action:

(1) A routine performance evaluation containing a comment that the officer needs to raise his or her performance to a satisfactory level, otherwise he or she will be disciplined [Turturici v. City of Redwood City (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1447, 1449-1451, 236 Cal. Rptr. 53] .

(2) Temporary assignment to a desk job while an internal affairs investigation of the officer is pending [Crupi v. City of Los Angeles (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1111, 1119, 268 Cal. Rptr. 875] .

(3) A transfer to compensate for performance deficiencies [Orange County Employees Assn. v. County of Orange (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1289, 1294-1295, 253 Cal. Rptr. 584] .

(4) Denial of a merit step increase [Howitt v. County of Imperial (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 312, 314, 258 Cal. Rptr. 384 ; but see Sanchez v. City of Santa Ana Police Department (9th Cir. 1990) 915 F.2d 424, 429-430 , cert. denied, 502 U.S. 815 (retraction of previously granted merit increase as punitive action)].

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
I. Procedural Rights of Peace Officers

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.72

§ 118.72 Limitation Period and Deadline for Notice of Decision

For alleged misconduct occurring on or after January 1, 1998, there is a one-year limitation period for deciding to take punitive action against an officer (or denying promotion on grounds other than merit) because of an act, omission, or other allegation of misconduct. The period commences with the discovery, by the disciplining public agency through a person authorized to initiate an investigation, of the pertinent allegation [Gov. Code § 3304(d)(1); see Benefield v. California Department of Corrections Rehabilitation (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 469, 476477, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 608 (discovery by agency employee who is not authorized to initiate investigation does not constitute "discovery" by agency so as to trigger running of one-year period under Gov. Code § 3304(d)); Haney v. City of Los Angeles (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1, 8-11, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 411 (knowledge of officer's acts does not trigger limitations period until discovery of information that those acts constitute misconduct)]. If the agency determines that discipline may be taken, it must complete its investigation and notify the officer of its proposed discipline within the one-year limitation period [Gov. Code § 3304(d)(1); see Crawford v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 249, 256-258, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 550 (officer's false statement during investigation constitutes separate wrongful act that triggers its own one-year period for investigation and notification of proposed discipline); Alameida v. State Pers. Bd. (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 46, 62, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 383 (alleged dishonesty of officer in denying original charge, after expiration of limitation period for original charge, does not start new one-year limitation period)]. The notification of proposed discipline must be made in a Letter of Intent or Notice of Adverse Action articulating the proposed discipline [Gov. Code § 3304(d)(1)]. The notice need not identify the person who made the decision to take disciplinary action [Benefield v. California Department of Corrections Rehabilitation (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 469, 477, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 608]. The agency is not required to impose the discipline within the one-year period [Gov. Code § 3304(d)(1)].

In addition, if the agency decides to impose discipline, the agency must, within 30 days of that decision, formally notify the officer in a writing that specifies the date that the discipline will be imposed, unless the officer is unavailable for discipline [Gov. Code § 3304(f)]. The time for any predisciplinary response or grievance procedure is not affected by the limitation period [Gov. Code § 3304(e)].

The one-year period is tolled during the time of a criminal investigation or prosecution of the act, omission, or other allegation of misconduct on the part of an officer [Gov. Code § 3304(d)(2)(A)]. If the alleged misconduct involves more than one officer, this tolling applies during the investigation and any ensuing prosecution, even as to an officer whose conduct is investigated but who is not prosecuted [Parra v. City & County of S.F. (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 977, 993-994, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 822] . The one-year period is also tolled during the period specified in any written waiver of time by the officer [Gov. Code § 3304(d)(2)(B)], and during the pendency of any civil action against the officer that arises out of the matter being investigated [Gov. Code § 3304(d)(2)(F); see Bettencourt v. City & County of San Francisco (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1090, 1098-1101, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 402 (civil action against peace officer has tolling effect even if it does not impede public agency's investigation, so long as investigation and civil action involve same incident); Breslin v. City & County of San Francisco (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1064, 1081, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 14 (civil action has no tolling effect as to officer who is not named as defendant)]. Additionally, if the alleged misconduct involves a matter in criminal litigation in which the complainant is a criminal defendant, the one-year period is tolled during the period of that defendant's criminal investigation and prosecution [Gov. Code § 3304(d)(2)(G)]. The one-year period is also tolled during any time that the officer is discharged from service as a public safety officer [Melkonians v. Los Angeles County Civil Serv. Comm'n (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1159, 1174, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 415 (officer who had been discharged for previous violation and then reinstated was not entitled to protections of Public Safety Officers Bill or Rights Act while he was not public safety officer, so one-year period under Gov. Code § 3304(d) was tolled during period of his discharge)]..

The one-year period is extended for a reasonable time if the investigation involves more than one employee or is a multijurisdictional investigation requiring coordination of the involved agencies, and additional time is required for that reason [Gov. Code § 3304(d)(2)(C), (D), (4); see, e.g., Parra v. City & County of S.F. (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 977, 995-998, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 822 (extension of up to eight months was reasonable in complex case involving investigation of numerous officers, including at one point or another chief of police, chief's assistant, various deputy chiefs, and many other ranking officers); but see Breslin v. City & County of San Francisco (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1064, 1083-1085, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 14 (that two city agencies--police department and office of citizen complaints--were investigating incident did not render investigation "multijurisdictional" under former Gov. Code § 3304(d)(3) [now see Gov. Code § 3304(d)(2)(C)], since city's police commission had power to control and coordinate both agencies' investigative activities)]. Furthermore, the one-year period is inapplicable altogether if the investigation involves an employee who is incapacitated or otherwise unavailable, or if it involves an allegation of workers' compensation fraud on the part of the officer [Gov. Code § 3304(d)(2)(E), (H), (8)].

An investigation may be reopened notwithstanding the one-year limitation period if significant new evidence that is likely to affect the outcome of the investigation is discovered and either (1) the evidence could not reasonably have been discovered in the normal course of investigation without the agency's resorting to extraordinary measures, or (2) the evidence resulted from the officer's predisciplinary response or procedure [Gov. Code § 3304(g)].

The statute of limitations defense is forfeited if the officer raises it for the first time by way of petition for administrative writ of mandate, and the issue was not raised at the administrative hearing and was not the subject of a separate proceeding under Gov. Code § 3309.5 to enjoin the violation of the officer's rights under the Public Safety Officers Procedural Bill of Rights Act [Moore v. City of Los Angeles (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 373, 384-385, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 218].

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
I. Procedural Rights of Peace Officers

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.73

§ 118.73 Investigations and Interrogations

[1] Rights if Punitive Action May Result

When any public safety officer is under investigation and subjected to interrogation by his or her commanding officer or any other member of the public safety agency, and the result could be punitive action, the interrogation must be conducted under the conditions prescribed in the Public Safety Officers Procedural Bill of Rights Act [Gov. Code § 3303]. The protections of the Act apply, for example, when an officer is required by his or her employer to appear for interrogation or a fact-finding hearing before a municipal commission charged with investigating citizen complaints [Berkeley Police Assn. v. City of Berkeley (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 385, 406, 410, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 130 (commission also must maintain confidentiality of officer's personnel records pursuant to Penal Code § 832.7)].

The protections of the Act do not apply, however, to any interrogation of an officer in the normal course of duty, counseling, instruction, or informal verbal admonishment by, or other routine or unplanned contact with, a supervisor or any other public safety officer [Gov. Code § 3303(i); see Steinert v. City of Covina (2006) 146 Cal. App. 4th 458, 461-466, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 (routine communication between supervisor and subordinate officer regarding minor mistake did not trigger officer's rights under Gov. Code § 3303(c), since supervisor had no intent to reprimand officer at that time and had no information that officer had committed any misconduct that would warrant punitive action)]. The protections of the Act are also inapplicable to an investigation concerned solely and directly with alleged criminal activities [Gov. Code § 3303(i); Van Winkle v. County of Ventura (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 492, 497-498, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 809 (Act's protections do not apply to officer subject to bona fide criminal investigation conducted by employing agency)].

The protections of the Act do not apply if an officer is interviewed by an outside agency in the course of that agency's criminal investigation of another officer [Alhambra Police Officers Assn. v. City of Alhambra Police Dept. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1413, 1421-1422, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 432] .

[2] Time of Interrogation

An interrogation must be conducted at a reasonable hour, preferably at a time when the officer is on duty or during the officer's normal waking hours, unless the seriousness of the investigation requires otherwise. If the interrogation is conducted during the officer's off-duty time, he or she must be compensated for this time in accordance with regular department procedures and may not be released from employment for any work missed [Gov. Code § 3303(a)].

The interrogating session must be for a reasonable period, taking into consideration the gravity and complexity of the issue being investigated. The officer being interrogated must be allowed to attend to his or her own personal physical necessities [Gov. Code § 3303(d)].

[3] Interrogating Officers

The officer must be informed, before the interrogation, of the rank, name, and command of the officer in charge of the interrogation, each interrogating officer, and any other person who will be present during the interrogation [Gov. Code § 3303(b)].

[4] Right to Be Informed About Investigation

The officer must be informed of the nature of the investigation before any interrogation [Gov. Code § 3303(c)].

[5] Conduct of Interrogation

The officer may not be subjected to offensive language or threatened with punitive action. However, the officer may be informed that any failure to answer questions directly related to the investigation or interrogation may result in punitive action [Gov. Code § 3303(e)]. Administrative discipline of an officer who refuses to cooperate in an investigatory interrogation is not precluded, even though the officer is not compelled to respond to potentially incriminating questions, and even though his or her refusal to speak cannot be used against him or her in a criminal proceeding. However, any administrative disciplinary action must be set aside if the officer is not advised that any statements he or she makes cannot be used against him or her in any subsequent criminal proceedings [Lybarger v. City of Los Angeles (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 822, 825-828, 221 Cal. Rptr. 529, 710 P.2d 329 ; see Spielbauer v. County of Santa Clara (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 704, 725-730, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 590, 199 P.3d 1125 (public employer need not provide formal grant of criminal-use immunity before it can discipline or dismiss public employee for refusal to answer job-related questions on grounds of constitutional privilege against self-incrimination, so long as employee is not required to waive or surrender his or her constitutional protection against criminal use of statements thus obtained, at least where employee is specifically advised that he or she retains that protection)].

No promise of reward may be made as an inducement to answering any question [Gov. Code § 3303(e)]. All questions directed to the officer must be asked by and through no more than two interrogators at a time [Gov. Code § 3303(b)].

The agency may not cause the officer to be subjected to visits by the press or news media without the officer's express consent and may not give the press or news media the officer's home address or photograph without his or her express consent [Gov. Code § 3303(e)].

No statement made during interrogation by a public safety officer under duress, coercion, or threat of punitive action is admissible in any subsequent civil proceeding [Gov. Code § 3303(f)]. However, this limitation is subject to specific qualifications [Gov. Code § 3303(f)(1)-(4)]:

> (1) It does not limit the use of statements made by a public safety officer when the employing public safety department is seeking civil sanctions against any public safety officer, including disciplinary action brought under Section 19572.
>
> (2) It does not prevent the admissibility of statements made by the public safety officer under interrogation in any civil action, including administrative actions, brought by that public safety officer, or that officer's exclusive representative, arising out of a disciplinary action.

(3) It does not prevent statements made by a public safety officer under interrogation from being used to impeach the testimony of that officer after an in camera review to determine whether the statements serve to impeach the testimony of the officer.

(4) It does not otherwise prevent the admissibility of statements made by a public safety officer under interrogation if that officer subsequently is deceased.

[6] Miranda Warning and Related Information

If, before or during the interrogation, it is deemed that the officer may be charged with a criminal offense, the officer must be immediately informed of his or her constitutional rights [Gov. Code § 3303(h)]. The officer must be informed of his or her Miranda rights [see Miranda v. Arizona (1966) 384 U.S. 436, 467-468], including the right to remain silent, the right to presence and assistance of counsel, and an admonition that any statements the officer makes may be used against him or her in a court of law. The officer must be informed further that his or her silence could be deemed insubordination leading to administrative discipline [see § 118.74] and that any statement made under compulsion of threat or administrative discipline cannot be used against the officer in any subsequent criminal proceeding [Williams v. City of Los Angeles (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 195, 199-200, 252 Cal. Rptr. 817 ; Lybarger v. City of Los Angeles (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 822, 829, 221 Cal. Rptr. 529, 710 P.2d 329 ; but see Gwillim v. City of San Jose (9th Cir. 1991) 929 F.2d 465, 468 (officer's immunized statement to departmental investigators may be made available to district attorney)].

An officer must be informed of these rights whenever [Lybarger v. City of Los Angeles (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 822, 828-829, 221 Cal. Rptr. 529, 710 P.2d 329] :

(1) A criminal investigation of the officer's unit is pending,

(2) The number of officers conducting the investigation suggests that the agency has focused on the officer as a likely criminal suspect, and

(3) The officer's attorney characterizes, and the interrogating officers do not correct the attorney's view of, the purpose of the proceeding as investigating criminal charges against the officer.

An officer who has not been adequately advised of his or her constitutional rights cannot be discharged for failing to answer the questions [Lybarger v. City of Los Angeles (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 822, 829-830, 221 Cal. Rptr. 529, 710 P.2d 329] . However, although an officer must be advised of his or her right to be informed concerning the effects of answering potentially incriminating questions during the interrogation, an officer who chooses to answer these questions without being informed of his or her rights, and who is discharged on the basis of the information provided, is not entitled to reinstatement or the exclusion of his or her statements at any disciplinary hearing [Williams v. City of Los Angeles (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 195, 203-204, 252 Cal. Rptr. 817, 763 P.2d 480] .

[7] Representation

On the filing of a formal written statement of charges, or whenever an interrogation focuses on matters that are likely to result in punitive action, the officer, at his or her request, has the right to be represented by any person of the officer's choice, who may be present at all times during the interrogation. The representative may not be a person who is a subject of the same investigation, however. The representative may not be required to disclose, and may not be subjected to any punitive action for refusing to disclose, any information received from the officer under investigation for noncriminal matters [Gov. Code § 3303(i)]. This provision protecting the officer's representative does not apply, however, if the officer is under investigation for a criminal matter [Alhambra Police Officers Assn. v. City of Alhambra Police Dept. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1413, 1422 , 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 432] . Further, even in an investigation of noncriminal misconduct, the provision protecting the officer's representative does not immunize the representative from being disciplined for disturbing or removing documentary evidence pertaining to the alleged misconduct of the represented officer [Alhambra Police Officers Assn. v. City of Alhambra Police Dept. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1413, 1422-1424, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 432] .

This right to have representation does not extend to any investigation of an officer in the normal course of duty, counseling, instruction, or informal verbal admonishment by, or other routine or unplanned contact with, a supervisor or any other public safety officer. The right also does not extend to an investigation concerned solely and directly with alleged criminal activities [Gov. Code § 3303(i)].

An officer who is denied this right to representation and is discharged has a cause of action against the agency for wrongful discharge in violation of public policy [Shoemaker v. Myers (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 1407, 1421, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 203] .

[8] Record of Interrogation

The complete interrogation may be recorded. If a tape recording is made, the officer must be given access to the tape if any further proceedings are contemplated or before any further interrogation at a subsequent time. The officer is entitled to a transcribed copy of any notes made by a stenographer and to copies of any reports or complaints made by investigators or other persons, except those that are deemed to be confidential by the investigating agency [Gov. Code § 3303(g)]. The officer's right to disclosure applies even if the discipline imposed is no greater than a written reprimand [Hinrichs v. County of Orange (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 921, 929, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 186] . The material to be disclosed includes documents created prior to the formal interrogation of the officer [Hinrichs v. County of Orange (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 921, 929-930, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 186] . However, the disclosure need not be made until after the officer is interrogated [Pasadena Police Officers Assn. v. City of Pasadena (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 564, 579, 273 Cal. Rptr. 584, 797 P.2d 608] . No notes or reports that are deemed to be confidential may be entered in the officer's personnel file [Gov. Code § 3303(g)].

The officer has the right to use his or her own recording device to record any and all aspects of the interrogation [Gov. Code § 3303(g)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
I. Procedural Rights of Peace Officers

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.74

§ 118.74 Insubordination

The head of the employing agency may order a public safety officer to cooperate with other agencies involved in criminal investigations. If an officer fails to comply with such an order, the agency may charge the officer with insubordination [Gov. Code § 3304(a)].

An officer's refusal to respond to questions asked during a lawful interrogation, after the appropriate admonitions have been given [see § 118.73[6]], may be deemed insubordination warranting disciplinary action by the agency [Lybarger v. City of Los Angeles (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 822, 827, 221 Cal. Rptr. 529, 710 P.2d 329] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
I. Procedural Rights of Peace Officers

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.75

§ 118.75 Temporary Reassignments

A public safety officer may not be lent or temporarily reassigned to a location or duty assignment if a sworn member of the officer's agency would not normally be sent to that location or be given that duty assignment under similar circumstances [Gov. Code § 3303(j)]. To establish a violation of this proscription, the officer must document a statistically significant number of incidents in which agency members in similar circumstances were not reassigned [Crupi v. City of Los Angeles (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1111, 1119-1120, 268 Cal. Rptr. 875] . The transfer of an officer to a different position is not in itself punitive and does not warrant an administrative hearing when the transfer is made to compensate for a deficiency in the officer's performance [Orange County Employees Assn. v. County of Orange (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1289, 1294, 253 Cal. Rptr. 584] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
I. Procedural Rights of Peace Officers

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.76

§ 118.76 Adverse Comments in Personnel File

No comment adverse to a public safety officer's interest may be entered in his or her personnel file, or any other file used for any personnel purposes by the agency, unless the officer first read and signed the instrument containing the adverse comment, to indicate that he or she is aware of the comment. Such an entry may be made if, after reading the instrument, the officer refuses to sign it. The officer's refusal to sign must be noted on the instrument, and the officer must sign or initial that notation [Gov. Code § 3305]. In this context, a file "used for personnel purposes" includes an internal affairs file pertaining to an officer, since the internal affairs section of the agency investigates complaints and incidents to determine officers' fitness to continue to serve [Sacramento Police Officers Assn. v. Venegas (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 916, 928-930, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 666] .

Adverse comment includes a citizen's complaint alleging police brutality. The placement of such a complaint in a separate "citizen complaint" file does not excuse noncompliance with the required procedures [Aguilar v. Johnson (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 241, 249-251, 247 Cal. Rptr. 909] . Similarly, a law enforcement agency's background investigation of a peace officer during probationary employment, even if it involves a matter that occurred prior to the commencement of employment, is a personnel matter subject to the procedures mandated by the Bill of Rights Act [County of Riverside v. Superior Court (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 793, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 167, 174, 42 P.3d 1034 (question remains open whether pre-employment background investigation subject to requirements of Bill of Rights Act)]. An officer's right to read an adverse comment applies as long as the comment is entered in a file used for a personnel purpose, whether or not it resulted in any personnel action against the officer [Sacramento Police Officers Assn. v. Venegas (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 916, 925-926, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 666 (even if it does not directly result in punitive action, adverse comment has potential of creating adverse impression that could influence future personnel decisions concerning officer)].

An officer may file a written response to any adverse comment entered in the officer's personnel file, within 30 days. This written response must be attached to and accompany the adverse comment [Gov. Code § 3306]. An officer who has voluntarily resigned, however, has no right to challenge a negative separation report placed in his or her personnel file following the resignation [Haight v. City of San Diego (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 413, 417-418, 278 Cal. Rptr. 334] .

To help effectuate an officer's right to respond to adverse comments, the employing agency must, at reasonable times and at reasonable intervals, permit the officer to inspect personnel files that are used or have been used to determine that officer's qualifications for employment, promotion, additional compensation, or termination or other disciplinary action [Gov. Code § 3306.5(a), (b); see McMahon v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 172 Cl. App. 4th 1324, 1332-1338, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 68 (agency not required to disclose materials not used for personnel purposes listed in Gov. Code § 3306.5(a))]. If, after examination of the personnel file, the officer believes that any portion of the material is mistakenly or unlawfully placed in the file, the officer may request in writing that the mistaken or unlawful portion be corrected or deleted; the request must include a statement by the officer describing the requested corrections or deletions and the reasons supporting those corrections or deletions [Gov. Code § 3306.5(c) (statement describing requested corrections or deletions and reasons therefor will become part of officer's personnel file)]. Within 30 calendar days of receipt of the officer's request for corrections or deletions, the agency must either grant the request or notify the officer of the decision to refuse to grant the request. If the agency refuses to grant the request, in whole or in part, the employer must state in writing the reasons for refusing the request [Gov. Code § 3306.5(d) (statement describing reasons for refusing officer's request will become part of officer's personnel file)].

The adverse-comment procedure need not be followed if there is a different and more protective procedure in place, such as placement in an officer's personnel file of material that is part of the notice for another disciplinary action for which an appeal is available [Crupi v. City of Los Angeles (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1111, 1120-1121, 268 Cal. Rptr. 875] . Also, the procedure does not apply to unfavorable comments made in connection with a promotional examination [Brutsch v. City of Los Angeles (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 354, 360, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 456] .

A law enforcement agency cannot routinely require, as a condition of employment, that all applicants prospectively waive the foregoing requirements of the Bill of Rights Act. However, the California Supreme Court has approved a waiver in very limited circumstances: an officer who is already employed as a peace officer and is merely applying to transfer from one agency to another may make a waiver if (1) the waiver applies only to material generated by an investigation of matters that arose prior to employment with the new employer, (2) the waiver expires after one year, and (3) the waiver was made with full awareness of its consequences (e.g., that other prospective employers might see the officer's personnel file under Gov. Code § 1031.1, even though the subject officer would be barred from seeing it) [County of Riverside v. Superior Court (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 793, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 167, 176-178, 42 P.3d 1034 (leaving open question whether limited waiver may also be made by officer seeking transfer to another department within same agency)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
I. Procedural Rights of Peace Officers

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.77

§ 118.77 Lie Detector Tests

No public safety officer may be compelled to submit to a lie detector test against his or her will [Gov. Code § 3307(a); see Civil Service Assn. v. Civil Service Com. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 449, 458, 188 Cal. Rptr. 806 (disapproved on other grounds in Long Beach City Employees Assn. v. City of Long Beach (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 937, 951 n.18, 227 Cal. Rptr. 90, 719 P.2d 660 ; rational basis exists for protecting only peace officers and not other public employees from agency-administered polygraph tests)]. For this purpose, a "lie detector" is a polygraph, deceptograph, voice stress analyzer, psychological stress evaluator, or any other similar device, whether mechanical or electrical, that is used, or the results of which are used, for the purpose of rendering a diagnostic opinion regarding the honesty or dishonesty of an individual [Gov. Code § 3307(b)]. No disciplinary action or other recrimination may be taken against the officer, and no comment may be entered anywhere in the investigator's notes or anywhere else that the officer refused to take a lie detector test. No testimony or evidence to the effect that the officer refused to take a lie detector test is admissible at any subsequent judicial or administrative hearing, trial, or proceeding [Gov. Code § 3307(a)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
I. Procedural Rights of Peace Officers

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.78

§ 118.78 Financial Disclosures

No public safety officer may be required or requested, for purposes of job assignment or other personnel action, to disclose any item of his or her property, income, assets, source of income, debts, or personal or domestic expenditures, unless this information either is obtained or required under state law or proper legal procedure, or tends to indicate a conflict of interest with respect to the performance of the officer's duties, or is necessary for the employing agency to ascertain the desirability of assigning the officer to a specialized unit in which there is a strong possibility that bribes or other improper inducements may be offered [Gov. Code § 3308].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
I. Procedural Rights of Peace Officers

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.79

§ 118.79 Searches

No public safety officer's locker, or other space for storage that may be assigned to him or her, may be searched except in his or her presence or with his or her consent, unless a valid search warrant has been obtained or the officer has been notified that a search will be conducted. This prohibition applies only to lockers or storage spaces that are owned or leased by the employing agency [Gov. Code § 3309].

When an officer's refusal to consent to a search of his or her person or property is cited as a ground for discipline, the validity of the discipline depends on the validity of the search. For example, an officer may not be disciplined for refusing to allow an unconstitutional search of his or her home [Los Angeles Police Protective League v. Gates (9th Cir. 1990) 907 F.2d 879, 886] . An officer may not be disciplined for refusing to submit to drug testing unless there is a factual basis for a reasonable suspicion of drug abuse [Jackson v. Gates (9th Cir. 1992) 975 F.2d 648, 653 , cert. denied, 125 L. Ed. 2d 690] .

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
I. Procedural Rights of Peace Officers

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.80

§ 118.80 Administrative Appeal

No punitive action or denial of promotion on grounds other than merit may be undertaken in the case of a public safety officer by the employing agency after the officer's successful completion of any probationary period that the agency required, unless the officer has been afforded an opportunity for an administrative appeal [Gov. Code § 3304(b)]. For example, a transfer to a lower-paying position is a punitive action, and the officer is entitled to an administrative appeal [Runyan v. Ellis (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 961, 964-967, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 356 (meeting with city manager not sufficient to meet administrative appeal requirements of Gov. Code § 3304); Baggett v. Gates (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 128, 141, 185 Cal. Rptr. 232, 649 P.2d 874 ; McManigal v. City of Seal Beach (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 975, 980, 212 Cal. Rptr. 733] , even if the action was taken for alleged deficiency of performance rather than for punitive reasons [White v. County of Sacramento (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 676, 682-683, 183 Cal. Rptr. 520, 646 P.2d 191] . An officer is not entitled to an administrative appeal of the agency's failure to give the officer a merit increase because of an unfavorable evaluation [Howitt v. County of Imperial (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 312, 314-315, 258 Cal. Rptr. 384] . An officer is not entitled to an administrative appeal when the officer is terminated during a probationary period [Swift v. County of Placer (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 209, 215-216, 200 Cal. Rptr. 181] .

No chief of police may be removed by a public agency or appointing authority, without providing the chief with written notice and the reasons for removal and an opportunity for administrative appeal. For purposes of this provision, the removal of a chief of police for the purpose of implementing the goals or policies of the public agency or appointing authority, for reasons such as incompatibility of management styles or as a result of a change in administration, is sufficient to constitute "reason or reasons." This provision is not to be construed to create a property interest, if one does not exist by rule or law, in the job of chief of police [Gov. Code § 3304(c)].

The employing agency is generally required to set up the procedural requirements for implementing the obligation to provide an administrative appeal [see Hunter v. Los Angeles County Civil Serv. Comm'n (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 191, 194, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 924 (remedy for absence of procedure is writ compelling agency to create procedure); Binkley v. City of Long Beach (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1795, 1806, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 903 ; Browning v. Block (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 423, 429, 220 Cal. Rptr. 763] . As long as the procedures are constitutional, they may be enforced [see Binkley v. City of Long Beach (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1795, 1806, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 903 ; Burrell v. City of Los Angeles (1989)

209 Cal. App. 3d 568, 584-585, 257 Cal. Rptr. 427 , cert. denied, 493 U.S. 1043] . The particular administrative appeal procedures may be tailored to the due-process need in the particular case. For example, an officer need not be afforded the right to confront and cross-examine witnesses during a hearing on the officer's challenge to a memorandum placed in his or her personnel file that has not resulted in any demotion, transfer, pay reduction, or other adverse consequence [James v. City of Coronado (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 905, 910-913, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 85 (placement of written memorandum in officer's personnel file for consideration in future performance review is lowest level of discipline employer can impose, triggering minimal due-process requirements)].

On the other hand, if the administrative appeal concerns more serious disciplinary measures, due process requires that an officer be accorded the following: written notice of the grounds for the disciplinary measures, disclosure of the evidence supporting the disciplinary grounds, the right to present witnesses and to confront adverse witnesses, the right to be represented by counsel, a fair and impartial decision-maker, and a written statement from the fact-finder listing the evidence relied upon and the reasons for the determination made. Also, if the administrative appeal hearing is the first evidentiary inquiry into the facts giving rise to the punitive action, the burden of proving the charges must be placed on the employing agency that is making the charges [Brown v. City of Los Angeles (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 155, 174-175, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474] .

If the employing agency has not performed its duty to establish a forum for administrative appeals [see Gov. Code §§ 3304(b), 3304.5, 3309.5], writ relief is available to compel the agency to do so [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1095; Hunter v. Los Angeles County Civil Serv. Comm'n (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 191, 194-198, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 924 (when no administrative appeal procedure was provided for peace officers employed by county, and county civil service commission lacked jurisdiction to hear appeal, officer's appropriate remedy was to seek writ compelling county to adopt procedures for administrative appeals); see also § 118.81].

Whether the administrative appeal is provided through the employing agency or through a separate appeal commission, the records of the appeal are treated as confidential employment records pursuant to the California Public Records Act and Penal Code provisions protecting peace-officer personnel records [Copley Press, Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 1272, 1287 Cal. Rptr. 3d 183; see Gov. Code § 6254(c),(k); Penal Code §§ 832.7, 832.8]. For detailed coverage of the confidentiality of personnel records of peace officers and other public employees, see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act .

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
I. Procedural Rights of Peace Officers

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.81

§ 118.81 Judicial Enforcement of Rights

The superior court has initial jurisdiction of any proceeding brought by any public safety officer against a public agency for alleged violations of the Public Safety Officers Procedural Bill of Rights Act [Gov. Code § 3309.5(c)]. A peace officer who elects to proceed to binding arbitration under an employees' association memorandum of understanding, rather than to pursue administrative remedies under civil service system procedures, waives the right to seek judicial relief for alleged violations of Gov. Code § 3309.5 [Zazueta v. County of San Benito (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 106, 112-113, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 678] . Similarly, an officer may not agree to discipline as part of a negotiated settlement and then seek judicial relief from it [Alhambra Police Officers Assn. v. City of Alhambra Police Dept. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1413, 1420-1421, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 432] .

In any case in which the superior court finds that an agency has violated any provisions of the Act, the court must render appropriate injunctive or other extraordinary relief to remedy the violation and to prevent future violations of a like or similar nature, including, but not limited to, the granting of a temporary restraining order or a preliminary or permanent injunction prohibiting the agency from taking any punitive action against the officer [Gov. Proc. § 3309.5(d)(1); see Williams v. City of Los Angeles (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 195, 203, 252 Cal. Rptr. 817, 763 P.2d 480] .

An officer may obtain injunctive or extraordinary relief by filing a petition for a writ of mandate [Henneberque v. City of Culver City (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 837, 843-844, 218 Cal. Rptr. 704 (writ of mandate to award back pay for period during which officer was unlawfully demoted)]. In addition, he or she may seek to file a concurrent action for injunctive relief, under Gov. Code § 3309.5, separate from a petition for a writ of mandate, for a judicial determination of whether the public employer violated the officer's rights under the act [Gales v. Superior Court (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 1596, 1602-1603, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 460] . A mandamus action, by contrast, is brought pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 and involves inquiry into the validity of the final administrative decision made by the employer [Gales v. Superior Court (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 1596, 1602-1603, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 460] . The petition will also be considered as one seeking a mandatory injunction [Aguilar v. Johnson (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 241, 253-254, 247 Cal. Rptr. 909] . An officer is not required to exhaust administrative remedies before seeking relief in the superior court from alleged violations of the Act [Aguilar v. Johnson (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 241, 251-252, 247 Cal. Rptr. 909 ; Mounger v. Gates (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1248, 1257, 239 Cal. Rptr. 18] .

If the court finds that the public agency or its agents maliciously violated the Act with the intent to injure the officer, the officer may recover actual damages, and a civil penalty of up to $25,000 for each violation, plus reasonable attorney's fees [Gov. Code § 3309.5(e)]. If money damages and the civil penalty are the primary relief sought, and not merely incidental to a claim for injunctive or other extraordinary relief, the officer must comply with the claim-filing requirements of the Government Claims Act (also called the Tort Claims Act) [Lozada v. City & County of San Francisco (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 1139, 1153-1173, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 209 ; see Gov. Code §§ 905, 911.2, 945.4 (claim-filing requirements under Government Claims Act); see also Ch. 464 Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act].

Even if the public agency or its agents did not act maliciously, an officer may be entitled to receive attorney's fees under the "private attorney general statute" [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5]. That statute authorizes an award of fees if (1) a significant benefit, whether pecuniary or nonpecuniary, has been conferred on the general public or a large class of persons; (2) the necessity and financial burden of private enforcement are such as to make the award appropriate; and (c) the fees should not in the interest of justice be paid out of the recovery, if any [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5; see Henneberque v. City of Culver City (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 837, 846-847, 218 Cal. Rptr. 704 (fee award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 is appropriate when public benefit resulting from officer's prosecution of writ proceeding is out of proportion to his or her personal stake in case)]. The fee-shifting provision of the Public Safety Officers Bill of Rights Act [Gov. Code § 3309.5(e)] does not supplant the private attorney general statute, and the two are not mutually exclusive. Rather, the two statutes afford different grounds for an award of fees, and either or both may be applicable under the circumstances of a particular case [Riverside Sheriff's Assn. v. County of Riverside (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 414, 420, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 295] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
I. Procedural Rights of Peace Officers

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 118.82-118.89

[Reserved]

§§ 118.82[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
J. Procedural Rights of Firefighters

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.90

§ 118.90 Firefighters Procedural Bill of Rights Act

The Firefighters Procedural Bill of Rights Act prescribes rights of firefighters related to, among other things, interrogation, punitive action, and administrative appeals [Gov. Code § 3250 et seq.]. It is unlawful for any employing department or licensing or certifying agency to deny or refuse to any firefighter the rights and protections guaranteed by the Act [Gov. Code § 3260(a)].

For purposes of the Act, a "firefighter" is any firefighter employed by a public agency, including any firefighter who is a paramedic or emergency medical technician, irrespective of rank. "Firefighter" does not include any public safety officer subject to the Public Safety Officers Procedural Rights Act [Gov. Code § 3300 et seq.; see §§ 118.70 -118.81], or any inmate of a state or local correctional agency who performs firefighting or related duties [Gov. Code § 3251(a)]. The rights and protections of the Act apply only to a firefighter during events and circumstances involving the performance of his or her official duties [Gov. Code § 3262].

A "punitive action" under the Firefighters Procedural Bill of Rights Act is any action that may lead to dismissal, demotion, suspension, reduction in salary, written reprimand, or transfer for purposes of punishment [Gov. Code § 3251(c)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
J. Procedural Rights of Firefighters

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.91

§ 118.91 Investigation and Interrogation of Firefighter

When any firefighter is under investigation and subjected to interrogation by his or her commanding officer, or any other member designated by the employing department or licensing or certifying agency, that could lead to punitive action, the interrogation must be conducted under the following conditions [Gov. Code § 3253]:

- The interrogation must be conducted at a reasonable hour, at a time when the firefighter is on duty, unless an imminent threat to the safety of the public requires otherwise. If the interrogation does occur during off-duty time of the firefighter being interrogated, the firefighter must be compensated for any off-duty time in accordance with regular department procedures. The firefighter's compensation may not be reduced as a result of any work missed while being interrogated [Gov. Code § 3253(a)].

- The firefighter under investigation must be informed, prior to the interrogation, of the rank, name, and command of the officer or other person in charge of the interrogation, the interrogating officer, and all other persons to be present during the interrogation. All questions directed to the firefighter under interrogation must be asked by and through no more than two interrogators at one time [Gov. Code § 3253(b)].

- The firefighter under investigation must be informed of the nature of the investigation prior to any interrogation [Gov. Code § 3253(c)].

- The interrogating session must be for a reasonable period, taking into consideration the gravity and complexity of the issue being investigated. The firefighter under interrogation must be allowed reasonable breaks to attend to his or her own personal physical necessities [Gov. Code § 3253(d)].

- The firefighter under interrogation must not be subjected to offensive language or threatened with punitive action. A promise of reward may not be made as an inducement to answering any question. The employer must provide to, and obtain from, an employee a formal grant of immunity from criminal prosecution, in writing, before the employee may be compelled to respond to incriminating questions in an interrogation. Subject to that grant of immunity, a firefighter refusing to respond to questions or submit to interrogations must be informed that the failure to answer questions directly related to the investigation or interrogation may result in punitive action [Gov. Code § 3253(e)(1)].

- The employer must not cause the firefighter under interrogation to be subjected to visits by the press or news media without his or her express written consent free of duress, and the firefighter's photograph, home address, telephone number, or other contact information must not be given to the press or news media without his or her express written consent [Gov. Code § 3253(e)(2)].

- A statement made during interrogation by a firefighter under duress, coercion, or threat of punitive action is not admissible in any subsequent judicial proceeding, subject to the following qualifications [Gov. Code § 3253(f)]:

- This limitation does not apply to the use of statements otherwise made by a firefighter when the employing fire department is seeking civil-service sanctions against any firefighter, including disciplinary action brought under Gov. Code § 19572.

- This limitation does not prevent the admissibility of statements otherwise made by the firefighter under interrogation in any civil action, including administrative actions, brought by that firefighter, or that firefighter's exclusive representative, arising out of a disciplinary action.

- The complete interrogation of a firefighter may be recorded. If a recording is made of the interrogation, the firefighter must have access to the recording if any further proceedings are contemplated or prior to any further interrogation at a subsequent time. The firefighter is entitled to a transcribed copy of any notes made by a stenographer and to any reports or complaints made by investigators or other persons, except those portions that are otherwise required by law to be kept confidential. Notes or reports that are deemed to be confidential must not be entered in the firefighter's personnel file. The firefighter being interrogated has the right to bring his or her own recording device and record any and all aspects of the interrogation [Gov. Code § 3253(g)].

- If, prior to or during the interrogation of a firefighter, it is contemplated that he or she may be charged with a criminal offense, he or she must be immediately informed of his or her constitutional rights [Gov. Code § 3253(h)].

- On the filing of a formal written statement of charges, or whenever an interrogation focuses on matters that may result in punitive action against any firefighter, that firefighter, at his or her request, has the right to be represented by a representative of his or her choice, who may be present at all times during the interrogation. The representative must not be a person subject to the same investigation. The representative must not be required to disclose, or be subject to any punitive action for refusing to disclose, any information received from the firefighter under investigation for noncriminal matters. This provision does not apply to counseling, instruction, or informal verbal admonishment by, or other routine or unplanned contact with, a supervisor or any other firefighter [Gov. Code § 3253(i)].

- A firefighter must not be loaned or temporarily reassigned to a location or duty assignment if a firefighter in his or her department would not normally be sent to that location or would not normally be given that duty assignment under similar circumstances [Gov. Code § 3253(j)].

A firefighter may not be compelled to submit to a lie detector test against his or her will [Gov. Code § 3257(a)]. Disciplinary action or other recrimination may not be taken against a firefighter for refusing to submit to a lie detector test [Gov. Code § 3257(a)(1)], and no comment may be entered anywhere in the investigator's notes or anywhere else that the firefighter refused to take, or did not take, a lie detector test [Gov. Code § 3257(a)(2)]. Testimony or evidence to the effect that the firefighter refused to take, or was subjected to, a lie detector test is not admissible at a subsequent hearing, trial, or proceeding, judicial or administrative [Gov. Code § 3257(a)(3)]. For these purposes, a "lie detector" means a polygraph, deceptograph, voice stress analyzer, psychological stress evaluator, or any other similar device, whether mechanical or electrical, that is used, or the results of which are used, for the purpose of rendering a diagnostic opinion regarding the honesty or dishonesty of an individual [Gov. Code § 3257(b)].

A firefighter may not be required or requested for purposes of job assignment or other personnel action to disclose any item of his or her property, income, assets, source of income, debts, or personal or domestic expenditures, including those of any member of his or her family or household, unless that information is otherwise required to be furnished under state law or obtained pursuant to court order [Gov. Code § 3258].

A firefighter may not have his or her locker or other space for storage that may be assigned to him or her searched except in his or her presence, or with his or her consent, or unless a valid search warrant has been obtained or unless he or she has been notified that a search will be conducted. This requirement applies only to lockers or other space for storage that are owned or leased by the employing department or licensing or certifying agency [Gov. Code § 3259].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
J. Procedural Rights of Firefighters

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.92

§ 118.92 Punitive Action

[1] Restrictions on Punitive Action

A firefighter must not be subjected to punitive action, or denied promotion, or be threatened with that treatment, because of the lawful exercise of the rights granted under the Firefighters Procedural Bill of Rights Act, or the exercise of any rights under any existing administrative grievance procedure [Gov. Code § 3254(a)].

Punitive action or denial of promotion on grounds other than merit must not be undertaken by any employing department or licensing or certifying agency against any firefighter who has successfully completed the probationary period, without providing the firefighter with an opportunity for administrative appeal [Gov. Code § 3254(b)].

A fire chief may not be removed by a public agency or appointing authority without providing that person with written notice, the reason or reasons for removal, and an opportunity for administrative appeal. In this context, the purpose of implementing the goals or policies, or both, of the public agency or appointing authority, or reasons including, but not limited to, incompatibility of management styles or as a result of a change in administration, are sufficient reasons. This provision does not create a property interest, if one does not otherwise exist by rule or law, in the job of fire chief [Gov. Code § 3254(c)].

[2] Limitation Period for Imposing Punitive Action

Punitive action or denial of promotion on grounds other than merit may not be undertaken for any act, omission, or other allegation of misconduct if the investigation of the allegation is not completed within one year of discovery by the employing fire department or licensing or certifying agency [Gov. Code § 3254(d) (one-year limitation period applies only if discovery of act, omission, or other misconduct occurred on or after January 1, 2008)]. If the employing department or licensing or certifying agency determines that discipline may be taken, it must complete its investigation and notify the firefighter of its proposed disciplinary action within that year, except in any of the following circumstances [Gov. Code § 3254(d)]:

- If the firefighter voluntarily waives the one-year time period in writing, the time period will be tolled for the period of time specified in the written waiver.

- If the act, omission, or other allegation of misconduct is also the subject of a criminal investigation or criminal prosecution, the time during which the criminal investigation or criminal prosecution is pending will toll the one-year time period.

- If the investigation is a multijurisdictional investigation that requires a reasonable extension for coordination of the involved agencies.

- If the investigation involves an employee who is incapacitated or otherwise unavailable.

- If the investigation involves a matter in civil litigation in which the firefighter is named as a party defendant, the one-year time period will be tolled while that civil action is pending.

- If the investigation involves a matter in criminal litigation in which the complainant is a criminal defendant, the one-year time period will be tolled during the period of that defendant's criminal investigation and prosecution.

- If the investigation involves an allegation of workers' compensation fraud on the part of the firefighter.

If a predisciplinary response or grievance procedure is required or utilized, the time for that response or procedure is not governed by the one-year limitation described above [Gov. Code § 3254(e)].

If, after investigation and any predisciplinary response or procedure, the employing department or licensing or certifying agency decides to impose discipline, that agency must notify the firefighter in writing of its decision to impose discipline within 30 days of its decision, but not less than 48 hours prior to imposing the discipline [Gov. Code § 3254(f)].

Notwithstanding this one-year time period, an investigation may be reopened against a firefighter if both of the following circumstances exist [Gov. Code § 3254(g)]:

- Significant new evidence has been discovered that is likely to affect the outcome of the investigation.

- Either (1) the evidence could not reasonably have been discovered in the normal course of investigation without resorting to extraordinary measures by the agency, or (2) the evidence resulted from the firefighter's predisciplinary response or procedure.

[3] Administrative Appeal

An administrative appeal instituted by a firefighter under the Firefighters Procedural Bill of Rights Act must shall be conducted in conformance with rules and procedures adopted by the employing department or licensing or certifying agency that are in accordance with Gov. Code § 11500 et seq. [Gov. Code § 3254.5].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
J. Procedural Rights of Firefighters

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.93

§ 118.93 Personnel Records

No comment adverse to a firefighter's interest may be entered in his or her personnel file, or any other file used for any personnel purposes by his or her employer, without the firefighter having first read and signed the instrument containing the adverse comment, indicating he or she is aware of the comment [Gov. Code § 3255]. However, the entry may be made if after reading the instrument the firefighter refuses to sign it. That fact must be noted on that document, and signed or initialed by the firefighter [Gov. Code § 3255].

A firefighter has 30 days within which to file a written response to any adverse comment entered in his or her personnel file. The written response must be attached to, and must accompany, the adverse comment [Gov. Code § 3256].

Every employer must, at reasonable times and at reasonable intervals, on the request of a firefighter, permit that firefighter to inspect personnel files that are used or have been used to determine that firefighter's qualifications for employment, promotion, additional compensation, or termination or other disciplinary action. The inspection must be permitted during usual business hours and with no loss of compensation to the firefighter, [Gov. Code § 3256.5(a)]. The employer must keep each firefighter's personnel file, or a true and correct copy of it, and must make the file or copy available within a reasonable period of time after a request by the firefighter [Gov. Code § 3256.5(b)].

If, after examination of his or her personnel file, the firefighter believes that any portion of the material is mistakenly or unlawfully placed in the file, the firefighter may request, in writing, that the mistaken or unlawful portion be corrected or deleted. The request must include a statement by the firefighter describing the corrections or deletions from the personnel file requested and the reasons supporting those corrections or deletions. The statement will become part of the personnel file of the firefighter [Gov. Code § 3256.5(c)]. Within 30 calendar days of receipt of the firefighter's request to correct or delete a portion of the file, the employer must either grant the firefighter's request or notify the firefighter of the decision not to grant the request. If the employer refuses to grant the request, in whole or in part, the employer must state in writing the reasons for denying the request, and that written statement will become part of the personnel file of the firefighter [Gov. Code § 3256.5(c)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
J. Procedural Rights of Firefighters

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.94

§ 118.94 Judicial Enforcement of Firefighter's Rights

The superior court has initial jurisdiction over any proceeding brought by any firefighter against any employing department or licensing or certifying agency for alleged violations of the Public Safety Officers Procedural Rights Act [Gov. Code § 3260(b)]. If the court finds that the employing department or licensing or certifying agency has violated any of the provisions of the Act, the court must render appropriate injunctive or other extraordinary relief to remedy the violation and to prevent future violations of a like or similar nature. Such relief may include the granting of a temporary restraining order or preliminary or permanent injunction prohibiting the employing department or licensing or certifying agency from taking any punitive action against the firefighter [Gov. Code § 3260(c)(1)].

If the court finds that a bad faith or frivolous action or a filing for an improper purpose has been brought pursuant to the Act, the court may order sanctions against the party filing the action, the party's attorney, or both [Gov. Code § 3260(c)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 128.6, 128.7]. Those sanctions may include reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, incurred by a fire department as the court deems appropriate [Gov. Code § 3260(c)(2)].

In addition, on a finding by a superior court that a fire department, its employees, agents, or assigns, with respect to acts taken within the scope of employment, maliciously violated any provision of the Act with the intent to injure the firefighter, the fire department will, for each and every violation, be liable for a civil penalty of up to $25,000, to be awarded to the firefighter whose right or protection was denied, and for reasonable attorney's fees as may be determined by the court. If the court so finds, and there is sufficient evidence to establish actual damages suffered by the firefighter whose right or protection was denied, the fire department will also be liable for the amount of the actual damages [Gov. Code § 3260(d)]. Notwithstanding these provisions, a fire department may not be required to indemnify a contractor for the contractor's liability pursuant to this subdivision if there is, within the contract between the fire department and the contractor, a "hold harmless" or similar provision that protects the fire department from liability for the actions of the contractor [Gov. Code § 3260(d)].

An individual may not be held liable for any act for which a fire department is liable under the Public Safety Officers Procedural Rights Act [Gov. Code § 3260(d)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
J. Procedural Rights of Firefighters

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 118.95-118.99

[Reserved]

§§ 118.95[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.100

§ 118.100 California Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities relating to issues affecting civil service, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 36, Civil Service (Matthew Bender)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.101

§ 118.101 Forms of Discovery

For forms of interrogatories for use in actions by civil service employees concerning their rights under civil service laws, see Bender's Forms Of Discovery, Civil Service (Matthew Bender)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.102

§ 118.102 State Constitution

State civil service system authorized. Cal. Const., art. VII

County civil service system authorized. Cal. Const., art. XI, §§ 1, 3, 4

City civil service system authorized. Cal. Const., art. XI, §§ 2, 3, 5

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.103

§ 118.103 State Statutes

[1] Local Civil Service Systems

County Civil Service Enabling Law. Gov. Code § 31100 et seq.

City Civil Service Enabling Law. Gov. Code § 45000 et seq.

Local civil service systems required to implement veterans' preference system. Gov. Code § 50088

Disclosure of improper local agency activities. Gov. Code §§ 53296-53299

[2] State Civil Service System

Civil Service Act. Gov. Code § 18500 et seq.

Definitions. Gov. Code § 18520 et seq.

Inspection of records of State Personnel Board. Gov. Code § 18573

Service of notices, papers, and documents. Gov. Code § 18575

State Personnel Board. Gov. Code § 18650 et seq.

Investigations and hearings. Gov. Code § 18670 et seq.

Employment forms. Gov. Code § 18720 et seq.

Classification of civil service positions. Gov. Code § 18800 et seq.

Employment lists. Gov. Code § 18900 et seq.

Examinations. Gov. Code § 18930 et seq.

Promotions. Gov. Code § 18950 et seq.

Veterans' preference. Gov. Code §§ 18971-18979

Legislative employees' eligibility to apply for promotional civil service examinations. Gov. Code § 18990

Executive branch employees' eligibility to apply for promotional civil service examinations. Gov. Code § 18992

Transfers. Gov. Code §§ 19050.2-19050.9

Temporary appointments. Gov. Code §§ 19058, 19059

Public assistance recipients' entitlement to priority consideration for seasonal class positions. Gov. Code §§ 19063-19063.8

Reinstatement. Gov. Code § 19140 et seq.

Probationary status. Gov. Code § 19170 et seq.

Disciplinary proceedings. Gov. Code § 19570 et seq.

Letters of reprimand. Gov. Code § 19589

Tenure of managerial employees. Gov. Code § 19590 et seq.

Actions. Gov. Code § 19630 et seq.

Discrimination. Gov. Code § 19700 et seq.

Department of Personnel Administration. Gov. Code § 19815 et seq.

Layoffs and demotions. Gov. Code §§ 19997-19997.14

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.104

§ 118.104 Administrative Regulations

Definitions. 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1 et seq.

State Personnel Board administration. 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 31 et seq.

Hearings. 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 51 et seq.

Employment lists. 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 151 et seq.

Examinations. 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 171 et seq.

Drug testing. 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 213 et seq.

Promotions. 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 231 et seq.

Appointments. 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 251 et seq.

Limited-term appointments. 2 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 281, 282

Probationary period. 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 321 et seq.

Transfers. 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 425 et seq.

Temporary assignments. 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 438 et seq.

Layoffs and demotions. 2 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 450 et seq., 599.840 et seq.

Discrimination. 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 547 et seq.

Limited examination and appointment program. 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 547.50 et seq.

Career executive assignment rules. 2 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 548 et seq., 599.978 et seq.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.105

§ 118.105 Decisions

[1] Administrative Procedure

[a] City Employment

City council of general law city as empowered by statute to terminate appointed officials or employees, or to delegate that power to civil service commission. Cerini v. City of Cloverdale (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1471, 1477-1478, 237 Cal. Rptr. 116

Provisions of San Francisco charter as superseding civil service commission rule restricting period during which civil service candidates may protest examination ratings. Stuart v. Civil Service Com. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 201, 206, 219 Cal. Rptr. 770

City as empowered to dismiss employees only in conformity with procedures it adopted, and dismissed police chief as entitled to arbitration hearing when arbitration was part of adopted grievance procedure. Santos v. City of Brawley (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 203, 207, 208 Cal. Rptr. 297

Failure to exhaust administrative remedies as not precluding discharged city employee's petition for writ of mandate to compel civil service hearing, when administrative remedies are unavailable or inadequate. Farmer v. City of Inglewood (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 130, 137, 185 Cal. Rptr. 9

Administrative mandate as available to review commission's decision regarding probationary employee when commission's rules require informal hearing and that requirement is reasonable interpretation of city charter. Jean v. Civil Service Commission (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 101, 105-110, 139 Cal. Rptr. 303

Right to appeal dismissal from employment as conferred solely by San Francisco charter, and designated procedure as required to be followed. Smith v. City & County of San Francisco (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 606, 610, 89 Cal. Rptr. 878

Civil service employee as having right to review by courts when commission acted arbitrarily, even though city charter provided that finding of civil service commission is final and conclusive. Austin v. Board of Civil Service Comrs. (1942) 50 Cal. App. 2d 436, 438, 123 P.2d 119

[b] County Employment

In appeal by employee of sheriff's department from transfer and suspension without pay, county counsel's office as not precluded from representing both the department and the appeals board, where county counsel can demonstrate adequate screening of lawyers advising board from lawyers advising department. Howitt v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 1575, 1579-1587, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 196 (county counsel as required to screen lawyers who advise board from lawyers performing advocacy functions of office)

[c] Due Process Rights

Requirement of postseverance evidentiary hearing as not applicable if employee is discharged under statute that treats employee's unexcused absence from work for specified number of consecutive days as automatic resignation. Coleman v. Department of Personnel Administration (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 1102, 1119, 278 Cal. Rptr. 346, 805 P.2d 300

Due process requires that at-will public employee have hearing before being discharged based on charges of dishonesty, because those charges would affect employee's liberty interests by damaging employee's reputation and limiting his or her ability to obtain future employment; however, there is no requirement that such hearing include live witnesses or opportunity to cross-examine adverse witnesses. Holmes v. Hallinan (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1523, 1530-1533, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174

Due process principle that one who decides must hear as requiring that, once local civil service commission holds hearing at employee's request and recommends action, city manager cannot take contrary action based on evidence that was not introduced at hearing or without reviewing record to sufficient extent to enable him or her to make informed judgment. Vollstedt v. City of Stockton (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 265, 269, 276, 269 Cal. Rptr. 404

Public employee subject to short-term suspension as required to be afforded right to respond either during suspension or within reasonable time thereafter; administrative appeal to county civil service commission after suspension by sheriff as sufficient; indefinite suspension as short-term when employee had power to end it by showing he had recovered from post-traumatic-stress disorder. Sienkiewicz v. County of Santa Cruz (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 134, 139-141, 240 Cal. Rptr. 451

Dismissal as unlawful when employee was not given minimal predismissal due process, because employer failed to allow reasonable time for employee to respond orally to charges in notice of intention to dismiss and did not consider employee's written response to charges. Kempland v. Regents of University of California (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 644, 648-650, 202 Cal. Rptr. 275

Employee's termination for medical reasons as complying with preremoval due process requirements when, before termination, employee had discussions with supervisors and received several written warnings regarding absences and was advised of opportunity to respond. Broussard v. Regents of University of California (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 636, 640, 184 Cal. Rptr. 460

Agency's failure to require witnesses to be sworn at grievance hearing as not denying employee right to fair hearing, when evidence was undisputed, and witnesses had no motive to testify untruthfully. Broussard v. Regents of University of California (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 636, 640-642, 184 Cal. Rptr. 460

Constitutional requirements and preremoval safeguards as met by report of performance evaluation and plan of improvement, which rated job performance, specified improvement that was required, warned of possible discharge in event of failure to improve, and provided for conferences to discuss report and progress. Bussey v. Los Angeles County Civil Service Com. (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 912, 920-922, 140 Cal. Rptr. 394

County civil service commission's consideration of employee's promotional examination score appeal, by reviewing written materials submitted rather than holding hearing, as not unconstitutional denial of due process. Fuchs v. Los Angeles County Civil Service Com. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 709, 715, 110 Cal. Rptr. 311

[d] Evidence

Employee as denied fair hearing concerning discharge from civil service when board's determination was based on investigation report in board's files but not introduced into evidence at hearing. La Prade v. Department of Water & Power (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 47, 51-53, 162 P.2d 13

Penal Code § 1016, which prevents use of nolo contendere plea to misdemeanor charge to be used in any civil suit, extends to administrative actions and thus cannot be used against civil service employee in subsequent disciplinary hearing. County of Los Angeles v. Civil Service Commission (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 620, 632, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 256

Evidence obtained by government employer in search of employee's private briefcase as not required to be excluded from disciplinary hearing, because search was not predicated on employee misconduct but arose from need to prepare office for move, and application of exclusionary rule would not deter such searches in future. Finkelstein v. State Personnel Bd. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 264, 268-272, 267 Cal. Rptr. 133

Letter of reprimand to employee as properly introduced in evidence at hearing to show that employee was forewarned that certain types of behavior were inappropriate and would not be tolerated; statutory requirement that letter of reprimand be removed from employee's personnel file and destroyed within three years after written as not precluding evidence of reprimand at hearing. Anderson v. State Personnel Bd. (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 761, 770-771, 239 Cal. Rptr. 824

Evidence of misdemeanor conviction as admissible at disciplinary hearing if relevant on issue of credibility or as tending to prove or disprove material fact in issue. Coburn v. State Personnel Bd. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 801, 809, 148 Cal. Rptr. 134

[e] Hearing Officer

Mere fact that at-will employee's pretermination hearing was before representative of employer is insufficient to establish existence of bias that would constitute denial of due process. Holmes v. Hallinan (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1523, 1533, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174

In absence of evidence of bias, due process held not violated simply because employer selected and paid hearing officer who presided over dismissal hearing of police officer who had been suspended for lying to superior. Linney v. Turpen (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 763, 775-776, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 813

Hearing by executive director of agency on appeal from dismissal, required by agency's personnel policy, as nondelegable exercise of authority, and later ratification of assistant director's action by executive director as impermissible and void. Civil Service Assn. v. Redevelopment Agency (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1222, 1226-1227, 213 Cal. Rptr. 1

[2] Arbitration of Wage Dispute

Police officer was not entitled to arbitrate department's decision to transfer officer to different assignment with reduced pay scale because city ordinance and memorandum of understanding between city and police union provided that transfers were not subject to arbitration. Los Angeles Police Protective League v. City of Los Angeles (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 77, 80-85, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 909

Union employees of municipal public works department may compel arbitration of employee grievances claiming entitlement to "premium pay" under Administrative Code for employees working in high-noise areas, where agreement between city and union provided for arbitration of disputes over departmental rules, personnel policies, and working conditions, with doubts to be resolved in favor of arbitration. SEIU, Local 347 v. City of Los Angeles (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1546, 1551-1553, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 216

Private settlement of pending dispute providing for withdrawal of adverse action without State Personnel Board's approval is permissible under Gov. Code §§ 18681, 19549. Larson v. State Personnel Board (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 265, 280-281, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 412

[3] Damages

Damages for violation of civil service employee's right to notice and opportunity to respond before dismissal as not punitive but as compensatory, for wages lost during period when discharge was invalid, and evidence on issue of mitigation of damages as admissible. Coleman v. Regents of University of California (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 521, 526-527, 155 Cal. Rptr. 589

[4] Disabilities

Conduct of alcoholic employee who knowingly drove state car while driver's license had been suspended (for lapses of consciousness) and who abandoned state vehicle with keys in ignition was so egregious as to render employee not "otherwise qualified" within meaning of Gov. Code § 19230(c) and hence not entitled to receive "reasonable accommodation" for disability. Gonzalez v. State Personnel Board (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 422, 434-435, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 282

[5] Discrimination

"Class-of-one" equal-protection theory--under which employee alleges that he or she was arbitrarily treated differently from other similarly situated employees, with no assertion that differential treatment was based on employee's membership in any protected class--is inapplicable in public-employment context. Engquist v. Oregon Dep't of Agric. (2008) 553 U.S. 591, 128 S. Ct. 2146, 170 L. Ed. 2d 975, 981, 983-990

Public employee who is not member of protected class has standing under 42 U.S.C. §§ 1983, 1985 to sue for retaliation for asserting rights of members of protected class. Maynard v. City of San Jose (9th Cir. 1994) 37 F.3d 1396, 1403

Fair Employment and Housing Act as applicable to civil service employees and as intended to supplement, not supplant, existing antidiscrimination remedies to provide employees with maximum opportunity to vindicate their civil rights against discrimination. State Personnel Bd. v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 422, 429-431, 217 Cal. Rptr. 16, 703 P.2d 354 (relying on definition of "employer" in Gov. Code § 12926, and record keeping exception for State Personnel Board in Gov. Code § 12946); MacPhail v. Court of Appeal (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 454, 457, 217 Cal. Rptr. 36, 703 P.2d 374

Antidiscrimination provision of False Claims Act, Gov. Code § 12653(b), applies to prevent governmental agencies from discharging or otherwise discriminating against their employees who engage in lawful activity to assist in enforcement of False Claims Act. LeVine v. Weis (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 758, 763-766, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 439

[6] Eligibility Lists

Legislature may not adopt program, or approve collectively bargained program, that violates merit principle by requiring application of absolute seniority-based preference when employing agency chooses among persons certified as eligible. California State Personnel Bd. v. California State Employees Assn., Local 1000, SEIU, AFL-CIO (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 758, 768-776, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 201, 115 P.3d 506

Former statutory provisions authorizing State Personnel Board to implement affirmative action programs [see former Gov. Code § 19790 et seq., repealed by 2005 Stats., ch. 644] were generally unconstitutional as violative of equal protection principles and Proposition 209. Connerly v. State Pers. Bd. (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 16, 53-57, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 5

State Personnel Board's supplemental certification policy (which would add to list of eligible applicants members of underutilized class, such as minorities and women who would not otherwise merit placement on list) violates constitutional and statutory requirements that appointment and promotion be based on merit. Kidd v. State of California (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 386, 400-411, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 758

Los Angeles commission's rule as following classic "rule of three," which permits appointing authority to choose any one of top three candidates from certified eligibility list to fill civil service vacancy. Sharp v. Civil Service Com. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1507, 1511, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407

When individuals on eligibility list are found by their superiors to be of equal ability, appointing authority as having clear right to choose from among them without respect to their ranking. Sharp v. Civil Service Com. (1993) 14 Cal.

App. 4th 1507, 1511, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407

In filling civil service vacancy from eligible list, appointing authority as not required to justify or explain choice to candidates not chosen. Sharp v. Civil Service Com. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1507, 1510-1512, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407

County civil service commission as having implied power to invalidate promotional eligibility list that was based on examination tainted by unidentifiable cheating by examinees. Cox v. Kern County Civil Service Com. (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 867, 871-876, 203 Cal. Rptr. 94

All persons on current eligibility lists as being preferred for appointments. Fair Employment Practice Com. v. State Personnel Bd. (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 322, 332, 172 Cal. Rptr. 739

[7] Examinations

Oral interview as satisfying charter requirement for open, competitive civil service examinations. Almassy v. L.A. County Civil Service Com. (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 387, 398, 210 P.2d 503

State Personnel Board as within statutory discretion to limit promotional examinations to employees within the department. Paule v. State Personnel Board (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 32, 36, 113 Cal. Rptr. 38

[8] Exhaustion of Administrative Remedies

Provision of Gov. Code § 8547.12(c) authorizing California State University employee to file suit on whistleblower retaliation claim if university has not "satisfactorily addressed" employee's administrative complaint within 18 months refers to satisfaction of complaining employee; employee need not seek to overturn adverse administrative decision through petition for writ of administrative mandate before filing civil action. Runyon v. Board of Trs. of Cal. State Univ. (2010) 48 Cal. 4th 760, 767-775, 108 Cal. Rptr. 3d 557, 229 P.3d 985

Once State Personnel Board has issued findings on state employee's claim under California Whistleblower Protection Act [see Gov. Code § 8547.8(c)] (or deadline for issuing findings has passed), employee may proceed with damages action whether board's findings are favorable or unfavorable, and employee need not pursue additional administrative remedies or challenge findings by way of petition for writ of administrative mandate. State Bd. of Chiropractic Examiners v. Superior Court (2009)45 Cal. 4th 963, 971-978, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 576, 201 P.3d 457

Public employer is equitably estopped from asserting defense of failure to exhaust administrative remedies if employer's actions negligently led terminated employee to believe that no administrative recourse was available. Shuer v. County of San Diego (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 476, 486-487, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 776

Employee's failure to exhaust judicial remedies for adverse civil service decision by seeking writ of mandate will result in civil service decision having issue-preclusive effect in any subsequent litigation alleging unlawful discrimination. Castillo v. City of Los Angeles (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 477, 481-486, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 870

County employee as having exhausted administrative remedies when she filed appeal of her termination with county civil service commission, and commission determined that appeal was not timely. Civil Service Com. v. Velez (1993)

14 Cal. App. 4th 115, 118-119, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 490

Aggrieved civil service employee having claim for breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing under civil service administrative procedures as required to pursue it administratively before resorting to courts. Watson v. Department of Rehabilitation (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1271, 1287-1288, 261 Cal. Rptr. 204

State civil service system as requiring good faith and fair dealing in resolution of conflicts in employment relationship and as providing remedies to aggrieved employee for redress of wrongs; aggrieved civil service employee as required to use all agency administrative procedures, including available appellate review, before resorting to courts. Valenzuela v. State of California (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 916, 919-920, 240 Cal. Rptr. 45 .

Administrative remedies as required to be exhausted before resorting to the judicial process. Morton v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 977, 982, 88 Cal. Rptr. 533

[9] Grounds for Discipline

[a] Absence Without Leave

Employee, discharged under statutory rule that absence without leave for five consecutive working days is deemed automatic resignation, as entitled to pretermination notice and opportunity to respond but, unlike employee discharged for cause, not entitled to posttermination evidentiary hearing. Coleman v. Department of Personnel Administration (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 1102, 1108-1109, 278 Cal. Rptr. 346, 805 P.2d 300

City employee as terminated under civil service commission rule providing for abandonment or constructive resignation of position; sole issue in hearing as whether employee's unauthorized absence was excusable or justified; burden of proof as on employee, who knows reason for absence. Baker v. Wadsworth (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 253, 263, 85 Cal. Rptr. 880

Absence without leave as sufficient cause for discharge by appointing officer when public employees having no right to strike went on "strike," and county charter and rules of civil service commission authorized discharge for absence without leave. Almond v. County of Sacramento (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 32, 35-36, 80 Cal. Rptr. 518

[b] Discourteous Treatment of Public or Other Employees

Charge of discourteous treatment of public and other failure of good behavior, based on correctional officer assaulting man at former girlfriend's house and breaking into girlfriend's house and brandishing gun, as having rational relationship to employment and as of character that can reasonably result in impairment or disruption of public service, because ability to make calm, reasoned judgments under pressure is required of correctional officers. Gray v. State Personnel Bd. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1229, 1232-1233, 213 Cal. Rptr. 5

Off-duty conduct as constituting discourteous treatment of public or other employees if it bears rational relationship to employment and is of such character that it can reasonably result in impairment or disruption of public service. Blake v. State Personnel Board (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 541, 550, 102 Cal. Rptr. 50

Oral threats and gun-pointing by supervising deputy labor commissioner, against two state employed attorneys attending state bar convention on state per diem, concerning their association with female state attorney with whom commissioner had romantic attachment, as involving sufficient nexus between misconduct and employment to support inference that misconduct had deleterious effect on public service. Blake v. State Personnel Bd. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 541, 551, 102 Cal. Rptr. 50

Industrial Accident Commission referee's conduct in threatening attorney for applicant as conduct constituting discourteous treatment of public. Neely v. California State Personnel Bd. (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 487, 490-491, 47 Cal. Rptr. 64

[c] Dishonesty

Dismissal of California Highway Patrol motorcycle officer, for misappropriation of state-owned motorcycle parts, use of dealer's name to order wholesale parts without dealer's consent, and later denial of acts, as not abuse of discretion because CHP officers are held to highest standard of credibility, and honesty of officer is essence of function. Ackerman v. State Personnel Bd. (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 395, 400-401, 193 Cal. Rptr. 190

Dismissal of person employed as "General Auditor III" in Department of Justice, for dishonesty before state employment, as within power of attorney general and State Personnel Board. Gee v. California State Personnel Bd. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 713, 720, 85 Cal. Rptr. 762

[d] Felony or Misdemeanor Involving Moral Turpitude

Misdemeanor involving moral turpitude as meaning any misdemeanor that by the manner of its commission involves moral turpitude. Padilla v. State Personnel Bd. (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1136, 1140, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 849

Order granting probation on plea of nolo contendere as constituting a conviction following plea of nolo contendere, whether or not sentence is imposed. Padilla v. State Personnel Bd. (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1136, 1142-1145, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 849

Dismissal of police officer for child molestation and refusal to cooperate in investigation of molestation charges as not abuse of discretion. Fout v. State Personnel Bd. (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 817, 821-822, 186 Cal. Rptr. 452

Nexus between ground for discipline and duties of employment as not required to be shown when reason for discipline is conviction of crime involving moral turpitude. Wilson v. State Personnel Bd. (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 218, 221-222, 114 Cal. Rptr. 134

[e] Inefficiency

Excessive delay in performing duties of office as sufficient to show inefficiency, and agency as not required to prove that employee's behavior violated specific agency rule. Wilson v. State Personnel Bd. (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 865, 880-881, 130 Cal. Rptr. 292

Low level of enforcement activity as sufficient to show inefficiency of highway patrol officer. Bodenschatz v. State Personnel Board (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 775, 781-783, 93 Cal. Rptr. 471

Small work output of attorney as sufficient to show inefficiency. Sweeney v. State Personnel Board (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 246, 250-252, 53 Cal. Rptr. 766

[f] Inexcusable Neglect of Duty

Physician on call in prison who was informed that inmate exhibited symptoms and signs of heart attack as properly dismissed for leaving inmate in prison infirmary with inadequate instructions and equipment, when physician should have either gone to prison to view patient personally or had him transported immediately to hospital. Pan v. State Personnel Bd. (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 351, 361-362, 225 Cal. Rptr. 682

Injury to psychiatric patient caused by restraints as insufficient to establish neglect of duty by hospital technician who applied the restraints; regulation did not prohibit restraints, which were examined and approved by staff doctors. Peters v. Mitchell (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 852, 861-862, 35 Cal. Rptr. 535

[g] Insubordination

Public employee as properly disciplined for insubordination because of refusal to cooperate with investigation into whether he should be disciplined for other cause. Kelly v. State Personnel Bd. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 905, 911, 156 Cal. Rptr. 795

Conduct of dismissed police officer, including verbal altercation with assistant district attorney, disparaging comments about new commander, negative attitude about work, frequent absences and schedule changes, failure to keep accurate records, and complaints and derogatory remarks about immediate commanding officer, as constituting inefficiency, inexcusable neglect of duty, insubordination, or willful disobedience. Hosford v. State Personnel Bd. (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 302, 312, 141 Cal. Rptr. 354

Insubordination as being general course of mutinous, disrespectful, or contumacious conduct by employee who knows and intends to do what he or she is doing. Coomes v. State Personnel Board (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 770, 775, 30 Cal. Rptr. 639

[h] Other Failure of Good Behavior

City personnel rule prohibiting "conduct unbecoming an employee of the City Service" as sufficiently specific to warrant discharge of off-duty city police officer who engaged in patently unlawful and reckless conduct by leading other officers on a late-night, non-duty-related automobile chase at high speed over wet and slippery streets, in mechanically and structurally unsound car. Cranston v. City of Richmond (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 755, 769-772, 221 Cal. Rptr. 779, 710 P.2d 845

Failure of good behavior as constituting conduct that may cause discredit to employee or employment, whether or not known to any portion of the public. Nightingale v. State Personnel Board (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 507, 513-514, 102 Cal.

Rptr. 758, 498 P.2d 1006

Referee's attempts to expedite friend's workers' compensation case by contacting assistant referee in charge of case and deputy attorney general in charge of fund from which compensation was sought as conduct constituting failure of good behavior likely to bring discredit to employer. Nightingale v. State Personnel Board (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 507, 512-513, 102 Cal. Rptr.758, 498 P.2d 1006

Deputy sheriff's discharge for failing to report meeting with individual seeking unlawful access to department records in violation of department rules was proper, despite claims by deputy that disputed rules were overbroad and thus violated First Amendment right to free association, where meeting did not contain "significant 'expressive' component." Arellanes v. Los Angeles County Civil Service Commission (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1208, 1217-1218, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73

Sheriff's employee's remarks to press criticizing sheriff's management of department, although arguably addressing matters of public concern, were unduly disruptive to efficient management of department and therefore not protected speech under First Amendment. Gray v. County of Tulare (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1079, 1094-1096, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 317

State Personnel Board as authorized to reduce discipline of employee (who admitted he had sexually molested his stepdaughter) from dismissal to suspension without pay for two-and-a-half years, based on posttermination evidence of employee's rehabilitation. Department of Parks & Recreation v. State Personnel Bd. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 813, 833-834, 284 Cal. Rptr. 839

Police department rule prohibiting officers from "continuous association with felons" as not unconstitutionally vague as applied to police officer who continued associating with felon despite knowledge of this rule and in violation of supervisor's direct and specific order. Bailey v. City of National City (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1319, 1328-1330, 277 Cal. Rptr. 427

Public act of masturbation by Department of Youth Authority counselor while off-duty as misconduct establishing sufficient nexus with counselor's employment to justify termination, and State Personnel Board as authorized to order termination despite counselor's discipline-free service record. Ramirez v. State Personnel Bd. (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 288, 293-294, 251 Cal. Rptr. 9

Conviction of crime or performance of illegal activity as not required for failure of good behavior; highway patrol officer's appearing nude within sight of neighbors, including children, as failure of good behavior in that such behavior was offensive to neighbors and brought embarrassment and discredit to highway patrol by harming its reputation and undermining effectiveness of relations of that officer with fellow officers. Anderson v. State Personnel Bd. (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 761, 768-770, 239 Cal. Rptr. 824

Rule that employee could be dismissed for conduct causing discredit on public service as not unconstitutionally vague when employee worked at county welfare office and was convicted of misdemeanor welfare fraud. Martinez v. County of Tulare (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1430, 1435-1436, 235 Cal. Rptr. 851

Evidence that male officer of correctional facility had been observed near his residence wearing female undergarments on off-duty hours as insufficient to justify dismissal, when that conduct was not criminal, officer was cooperative and had otherwise good record, and there was no evidence that his continued employment would impair or disrupt public service. Yancey v. State Personnel Bd. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 478, 487, 213 Cal. Rptr. 634

County civil service employee as properly discharged for participation in primary election as candidate for state senate because candidacy violated statutory prohibition against civil service employees running for political office. Lee v. Civil Service Com. (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 9, 14, 180 Cal. Rptr. 822

Possession of large quantity of marijuana as sufficient justification for termination on ground of failure of good behavior when employee worked as group supervisor at vocational training institution for rehabilitation of youthful offenders. Parker v. State Personnel Bd. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 84, 86-87, 174 Cal. Rptr. 333

Possession of marijuana as failure of good behavior rationally related to employee's job as correctional officer, justifying disciplinary action. Hooks v. State Personnel Bd. (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 572, 577, 168 Cal. Rptr. 822

Threatening to jeopardize job of subordinate who reported incident in which supervisor was brutal to mental patient as properly punishable even though threats were within range of behavior protected by First Amendment. Stanton v. State Personnel Bd. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 729, 743, 164 Cal. Rptr. 557

Highway patrol officer's dismissal as not based solely on his transvestite homosexual preferences; critical question as not whether officer's conduct violated mores of public or of California Highway Patrol but as whether conduct indicated unfitness for employment as CHP officer. Warren v. State Personnel Bd. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 95, 104, 156 Cal. Rptr. 351

Failure of good behavior as required to bear rational relationship to employment and be of such character that it can easily result in impairment or disruption of public service. Warren v. State Personnel Bd. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 95, 104, 156 Cal. Rptr. 351

Failure of good behavior as being catchall phrase intended to include situations and acts that do not easily fit into specifically described causes; failure of good behavior as required to be of such nature that it reflects on employee's job; behavior as not violating this prohibition merely because agency considers it improper. Vielehr v. State Personnel Bd. (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 187, 191-192, 107 Cal. Rptr. 852

Possession of marijuana in off-duty hours as not establishing sufficient probative nexus between failure of good behavior and finding of discredit to agency or employment to justify disciplinary action when convicted employee was tax representative trainee. Vielehr v. State Personnel Bd. (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 187, 194-195, 107 Cal. Rptr. 852

Dismissal of public employee for exercise of constitutional rights as not permissible without showing that restraint on rights was justified by compelling public necessity; discipline of public employee based on private life as not permissible unless conduct impairs public service or discredits employer. Blake v. State Personnel Board (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 541, 552, 102 Cal. Rptr. 50

Statutory provision authorizing discipline of state employees for failure of good behavior as not unconstitutionally void for uncertainty. Gee v. California State Personnel Bd. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 713, 720-721, 85 Cal. Rptr. 762

[i] Physical Inability

Physical inability to perform duties of position as firefighter as sufficient cause for discharge under city charter provision. Hostetter v. Alderson (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 499, 503-505, 241 P.2d 230

[j] Willful Disobedience

Willful disobedience as connoting specific violation of particular command or prohibition. Peters v. Mitchell (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 852, 862, 35 Cal. Rptr. 535

[10] Judicial Review

Laches may bar judicial review of personnel decision of public agency, if unreasonable delay in seeking review causes prejudice to adverse party. Johnson v. City of Loma Linda (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 61, 68-69, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 316, 5 P.3d 874

Delay of almost 11 months in filing petition for writ of mandate and scheduling it for hearing as not sufficient to support defense of laches without proof of prejudice to public agency that had discharged employee who was seeking reinstatement. Conti v. Board of Civil Service Commissioners (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 351, 362, 82 Cal. Rptr. 337, 461 P.2d 617

Community college governing board has discretion under Educ. Code § 88013 to impose more severe penalty than that recommended by hearing officer, and abuse of that discretion must appear very clearly before courts will interfere. Spanner v. Rancho Santiago Cmty. Coll. Dist. (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 584, 589-591, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1

If local agency's decision imposing adverse action on employee is required to be in writing by applicable statute, charter, or rule, employee's 90-day period to petition for writ of mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(b) will not begin to run until agency mails its decision to employee, together with copy of affidavit or certificate of mailing; omission of affidavit or certificate of mailing means 90-day period will not begin to run. Donnellan v. City of Novato (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1097, 1102-1107, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 882

Standards of trial court's review of agency's disciplinary action differ greatly depending on issues involved: as to culpability (that is, whether employee in fact committed misconduct alleged), trial court has extensive powers to review agency's determination and may exercise its independent judgment on evidence; as to penalty, however, trial court's powers of review are limited and are exercised only with great deference to agency's findings, which will not be disturbed unless manifest abuse of discretion is shown. Deegan v. City of Mountain View (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 37, 45-47, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690

If local agency's written decision imposing adverse action on employee is required by applicable statute, charter, or rule to be in writing, employee's 90-day period to petition for writ of mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(b) will not begin to run until agency's written decision is mailed to employee; mailing decision to employee's attorney will not suffice to trigger running of time to petition for writ of mandate. Herman v. Los Angeles County Metro. Transp. Auth. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 819, 824-830, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144 .

Civil service commission's finding of racial discrimination against employee is subject to reversal by mandamus if not supported by substantial evidence, using tests evolved in federal civil-rights cases. Los Angeles County Office of Dist. Attorney v. Civil Service Comm'n (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 187, 200-202, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 661

Public employer is free to impose more severe penalty than that recommended by hearing officer, and employer's decision cannot be disturbed absent manifest abuse of discretion. Boctor v. Los Angeles County MTA (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 560, 574-575, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 861

New trial may be ordered on petition for writ of administrative mandate if superior court failed to fulfill its duty to independently review credibility of conflicting testimony presented before civil service commission. Barber v. Long Beach Civil Service Commission (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 652, 658-659, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 4

Trial court reviewing administrative agency decision determines whether agency's factual findings are supported by substantial evidence in light of entire record; however, conclusions of law are reviewed by court independently. IBEW, Local 889 v. International Bhd. of Electrical Workers (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 861, 868-870, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1

On review of civil service commission's discharge or discipline of probation officer, neither appellate court nor trial court may substitute its discretion for that of administrative agency concerning degree of punishment imposed on public employee, and absent abuse of discretion, penalty will not be disturbed in mandamus proceeding. Cummings v. Civil Service Commission (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1643, 1652, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 775

Terminated police officer reinstated by civil service commission pursuant to administrative hearing, after shooting and almost killing motorist following minor driving incident while off duty, held to be abuse of agency discretion, manifesting indifference to public safety and welfare. Hankla v. Long Beach Civil Service Commission (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1216, 1222-1223, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 583

Under both California law and federal common law, factual and legal preclusion obtains, preventing assertion of new and different legal theories, if public employee does not seek superior court mandamus review of administrative adjudications. Miller v. County of Santa Cruz (9th Cir. 1994) 39 F.3d 1030, 1032-1034

Trial court, in granting county civil service employee's petition for writ of administrative mandate to compel county civil service commission to hear late-filed appeal of termination, as properly reconciling employee's right to have appeal heard on merits with commission's concern for orderly process, since employee had property interest in continued permanent employment, delay in filing was short and caused by inadvertence, and commission asserted no prejudice. Civil Service Com. v. Velez (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 115, 119-123, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 490

When decision of State Personnel Board is reviewed on petition for writ of administrative mandate, reviewing court and trial court as applying same standard of review, that is, substantial evidence rule; factual determination of board as upheld if supported by substantial evidence, and all reasonable and legitimate inferences as required to be drawn in support of board's findings. Newman v. State Personnel Bd. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 41, 46, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 601 ; Pan v. State Personnel Bd. (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 351, 357, 225 Cal. Rptr. 682

On review, decisions of State Personnel Board as entitled to judicial deference; record as required to be viewed in light most favorable to board's decision; factual findings of board as required to be upheld if supported by substantial evidence; and board's exercise of discretion as required to be upheld unless it abuses that discretion. Department of Parks & Recreation v. State Personnel Bd. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 813, 823, 284 Cal. Rptr. 839

Decisions of State Personnel Board as entitled to judicial deference only if board acts within its legal jurisdiction. Department of Parks & Recreation v. State Personnel Bd. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 813, 824, 284 Cal. Rptr. 839

Appellate court as not interfering with civil service commission's imposition of penalty of dismissal merely because court's evaluation of circumstances indicates penalty may be too harsh; court as properly interfering with commission's imposition of penalty only when penalty exceeds bounds of reason. Paulino v. Civil Service Com. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 962, 970, 221 Cal. Rptr. 90

In mandate proceeding to review administrative order of State Personnel Board, determination of penalty imposed by board as not disturbed on appeal in absence of manifest abuse of discretion, which, in context of public employee discipline, involves assessment of factors such as risk of repeated harm to public service, circumstances of misconduct, and likelihood of recurrence. Flowers v. State Personnel Bd. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 753, 761, 220 Cal. Rptr. 139 ; Ackerman v. State Personnel Bd. (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 395, 399, 193 Cal. Rptr. 190

Trial court as abusing discretion in refusing to issue writ of mandate ordering city to grant administrative appeal when police officer who was demoted claimed that he was discriminated against for exercising statutory rights by being president of police officers' employee organization. Henneberque v. City of Culver City (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 250, 253-255, 194 Cal. Rptr. 869

Use of administrative mandate to review discharge of public employee as condition precedent to filing complaint for damages based on substance of discharge hearing. Logan v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 116, 123-124, 185 Cal. Rptr. 878

State Personnel Board's interpretation of State Civil Service Act as accorded great weight and to be followed unless clearly erroneous. Fowler v. State Personnel Bd. (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 964, 972, 185 Cal. Rptr. 292 ; overruled on other grounds by Madera Police Officers Assn. v. City of Madera (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 403, 204 Cal. Rptr. 422, 682 P.2d 1087

On writ of mandate to review State Personnel Board's findings, court's function as drawing all reasonable and legitimate inferences in support of findings, not to reweigh evidence. Fair Employment Practice Com. v. State Personnel Bd. (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 322, 333, 172 Cal. Rptr. 739

Judicial review by administrative mandate as not available for review of highway patrol officer's suspension for 10 days or less, even though hearing before suspension may have been required by due process. Taylor v. State Personnel Bd. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 498, 505, 161 Cal. Rptr. 677

[11] Layoff

When employee terminated "in the interest of economy," specific facts as not required to be outlined in notice of layoff. Peradotto v. State Personnel Board (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 30, 37, 101 Cal. Rptr. 595

[12] Penalties

Propriety of penalty imposed by administrative agency as resting in sound discretion of agency, which may not be disturbed on appeal in absence of abuse of discretion. Cranston v. City of Richmond (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 755, 772, 221 Cal. Rptr. 779, 710 P.2d 845

Dismissal of doctor having status of permanent civil service employee as excessive penalty when based on his numerous 5-to-15-minute extensions of one-hour lunch break and twice leaving his office for several hours without permission; petitioner's minor deviations from prescribed time schedule as not adversely affecting the public service. Skelly v. State Personnel Bd. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 194, 218, 124 Cal. Rptr. 14, 539 P.2d 774

There is no requirement that public agency impose identical penalties for similar charges; mere fact that agency imposes different punishments in similar cases does not establish reversible abuse of discretion. Pegues v. Civil Service Comm'n (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 95, 106, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705

Factors to be considered in determining whether penalty is excessive as including nature of profession in issue, extent to which employee's conduct resulted in, or if repeated is likely to result in, harm to public service, circumstances surrounding misconduct, and likelihood of recurrence; absence of past discipline problems as not sufficient to overturn dismissal of correctional officer who committed serious offense when officer had been employed for less than two years at time of incident. Thompson v. State Personnel Bd. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 423, 429-430, 247 Cal. Rptr. 210 ; Anderson v. State Personnel Bd. (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 761, 771-772, 239 Cal. Rptr. 824

Dismissal of county welfare aide convicted of committing welfare fraud was not excessive penalty because there was more than rational connection between employee's conduct and her employment, and her conduct cast discredit on employer. Martinez v. County of Tulare (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1430, 1438-1440, 235 Cal. Rptr. 851

[13] Persons Covered

Attorney engaged by agency in civil service system as included in civil service coverage even though called an independent contractor, when services contracted for could be performed by person selected under civil service provisions. State Compensation Ins. Fund v. Riley (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 126, 69 P.2d 985

Corps members in California Conservation Corps as not civil service employees. Bush v. California Conservation Corps (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 194, 201, 185 Cal. Rptr. 892

Public employee on leave of absence as not thereby ceasing to be public employee. Crowley v. City and County of San Francisco (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 776, 779, 146 Cal. Rptr. 264

Architect as not civil service employee when employed by state college that was exempt from civil service system. California State Employees Asso. v. Trustees of California State Colleges (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 541, 543, 47 Cal. Rptr. 81

[14] Persons Authorized to Take Adverse Action

State agency may delegate power to take adverse action against its employee to managerial agent outside agency; power of delegation is limited only if there are express statutory prohibitions. Camarena v. State Personnel Board (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 698, 702, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 775

[15] Probationary Period

Probationary municipal employee is entitled to have applicable local procedures for dismissal strictly followed; city's failure to follow its own procedure for termination of probationary employee results in employee becoming permanent employee with property interest in continued employment. Zeron v. City of Los Angeles (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 639, 643-646, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130

In absence of evidence of intentional or purposeful discrimination, city's uneven of enforcement of city charter provision allowing extension of employee's probationary period to reflect sick time taken by employee does not amount to denial of equal protection. Cilderman v. City of Los Angeles (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1466, 1470-1471, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20

Extension of employee's probationary period by personnel director as authorized by charter and not improper even if extension means that employee may be terminated during extension without same rights as permanent employee. Cox v. County of San Diego (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 300, 309-310, 284 Cal. Rptr. 266

Discharge of probationary employee with consent of county civil service commission as final unless employee alleges extrinsic fraud in procurement of commission's consent. Oppenheimer v. Arnold (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 872, 873-874, 222 P.2d 940

[16] Procedural Rights of Peace Officers

Probationary police officer as having no property interest entitling him to due process hearing before being denied permanent position on ground that he failed to complete probation satisfactorily, when no charge of misconduct was made against him. Fleisher v. City of Signal Hill (9th Cir. 1987) 829 F.2d 1491, 1494-1495 , cert. denied, 485 U.S. 961

Peace officer who is already employed and is merely applying to transfer from one agency to another may waive right to see personnel file if (1) waiver applies only to material generated by investigation of matters that arose prior to employment with new employer, (2) waiver expires after one year, and (3) waiver was made with full awareness of its consequences. County of Riverside v. Superior Court (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 793, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 167, 176-178, 42 P.3d 1034

If county does not provide administrative appeal procedure for its peace officers under Gov. Code § 3304(b), and county civil service commission lacks jurisdiction to hear appeal, officer's appropriate remedy is to seek writ compelling county to adopt procedures for administrative appeals. Hunter v. Los Angeles County Civil Serv. Comm'n (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 191, 194-198, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 924

To meet minimum constitutional due-process standards, administrative appeal for disciplined peace officer under Gov. Code § 3304(b) must require that officer be accorded written notice of grounds for disciplinary measures, disclosure of evidence supporting disciplinary grounds, right to present witnesses and to confront adverse witnesses, right to be represented by counsel, fair and impartial decision-maker, and written statement from fact-finder listing evidence relied upon and reasons for determination made; also, if administrative appeal hearing is first evidentiary inquiry into facts giving rise to disciplinary action, burden of proving charges must be placed on employing agency that is making those charges. Brown v. City of Los Angeles (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 155, 174-175, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474

Officer has right under Gov. Code §§ 3305 and 3306 to read and respond to adverse comment entered in file used for personnel purpose, including internal-affairs file, even if comment did not directly result in any personnel action against officer. Sacramento Police Officers Assn. v. Venegas (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 916, 925-930, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 666

Report of citizens' review board containing findings of misconduct by peace officer may constitute punitive action that entitles officer to administrative appeal under Gov. Code §§ 3303, 3304(b), even if board has no power to establish policy or impose any disciplinary measures, if existence of negative report could have adverse effect on officer's career advancement. Caloca v. County of San Diego (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1209, 1220-1223, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 660

Officers voluntarily seeking transfer or promotion to sensitive assignments may be required to take polygraph examinations focused on work performed in prospective reassignment. Los Angeles Police Protective League v. City of Los Angeles (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 1535, 1544, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 23

In case involving police chief who was terminable at will, Gov. Code § 3304(b) (Public Safety Officers Procedural Bill of Rights) and constitutional due process require only notice and opportunity to respond to charges at post-termination "name-clearing" hearing before neutral fact-finder; due process is not violated by denial opportunity for police chief to confront and cross-examine adverse witnesses at hearing or by city manager's retention of final decision-making authority. Binkley v. City of Long Beach (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1795, 1807-1811, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 903

Appeal of written reprimand in meeting with police chief as sufficient administrative appeal, when officer was given time to consult counsel, present evidence, and make argument. Stanton v. City of West Sacramento (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1438, 1443, 277 Cal. Rptr. 478

Due process as requiring that person or agency hearing officer's administrative appeal must not be one that originally imposed discipline. Gray v. City of Gustine (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 621, 631-632, 273 Cal. Rptr. 730

Suppression of officer's statements as appropriate when violation of officer's procedural rights potentially affected content of officer's statements to investigators, as well as investigators' version of officer's statements. Hanna v. City of Los Angeles (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 363, 375, 260 Cal. Rptr. 782

Police department's failure to investigate citizen's complaint against police officer as violation of written police department manual; department's delay in providing officer with notice and opportunity to respond to complaint as violation of governing statute. Aguilar v. Johnson (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 241, 247-251, 247 Cal. Rptr. 909

Civil service rule that notice of appeal from probationary dismissal must be in writing and contain specific, detailed information on which appeal is based as inherently reasonable. Browning v. Block (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 423, 429, 220 Cal. Rptr. 763

In administrative hearing in which city manager upheld police chief's decision to terminate police officer on ground that officer used excessive force during arrest, city as denying police officer procedural due process when city never assumed burden of proving charges; burden as not devolving on police officer because no evidence was produced at previous hearing before police chief. Parker v. City of Fountain Valley (1981) 127 Cal. App. 3d 99, 113, 179 Cal. Rptr. 351

Tenured city police officer as denied procedural due process when, subsequent to hearing, police chief considered new witness statements and written materials that had not been provided to officer and to which officer had no opportunity to respond. Parker v. City of Fountain Valley (1981) 127 Cal. App. 3d 99, 107, 179 Cal. Rptr. 351

Although police chief was wrongfully discharged without notice and hearing, statutory right to opportunity for administrative appeal as not entitling chief to reinstatement pending hearing; chief's failure to attend hearing before city council on ground of lack of reinstatement and alleged bias of council as failure to exhaust administrative remedies so that discharge was upheld with sole remedy being back pay for wrongful termination. Doyle v. City of Chino (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 673, 677-681, 172 Cal. Rptr. 844

County as required to make administrative appeal available to public safety officers as vehicle by which review of punitive actions may be had, but appeal need not be completed before implementation of punitive action. Butler v. County of Los Angeles (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 633, 640, 172 Cal. Rptr. 244

[17] Public Employment

Public employer need not provide formal grant of criminal-use immunity before it can discipline and even dismiss public employee for refusing to answer employer's job-related questions on grounds of constitutional privilege against self-incrimination, so long as employee is not required to waive or surrender constitutional protection against criminal use of statements thus obtained, at least where employee is specifically advised that he or she retains that protection. Spielbauer v. County of Santa Clara (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 704, 725-730, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 590, 199 P.3d 1125

Names and salaries of public employees are not exempt from public disclosure under California Public Records Act, Gov. Code § 6250 et seq., and names and salaries of peace officers do not qualify as "personal data" exempt from disclosure under Penal Code §§ 832.7, 832.8, unless in particular case disclosure would endanger officer's safety. International Fed'n of Prof'l & Technical Eng'rs, Local 21 v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 319, 343

Names, employing departments, and hiring and termination dates of California peace officers included in database of Commission on Peace Officer Standards and Training are not exempt from public disclosure under California Public Records Act, Gov. Code § 6250 et seq., unless safety or efficacy of particular officer would be jeopardized by disclosure; such information does not constitute confidential "personnel records" protected from disclosure under Penal

Code §§ 832.7, 832.8. Commission on Peace Officer Standards & Training v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 278, 294

Public employee of civil service system created by ordinance may be "unclassified" and therefore have neither property interest in continued employment nor contractual right to employment. Hill v. City of Long Beach (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1684, 1692-1694, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 125

Civil service employee as having no vested contractual right to continue in employment beyond time or contrary to terms and conditions fixed by law. Shoemaker v. Myers (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 1, 23-24, 276 Cal. Rptr. 303, 801 P.2d 1054 ; Seidler v. Municipal Court (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 1229, 1233, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 90

Workers' compensation act as not preempting tort action for wrongful termination of civil service employee under "whistleblowing" statute. Shoemaker v. Myers (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 1, 21-23, 276 Cal. Rptr. 303, 801 P.2d 1054

Public employee as not deprived of fundamental privacy rights by virtue of his or her public employment. Long Beach City Employees Ass'n v. City of Long Beach (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 937, 951, 227 Cal. Rptr. 90, 719 P.2d 660 .

Public employee as having no absolute right to refuse to answer potentially incriminating question posed by agency; self-incrimination rights as deemed adequately protected by precluding any use of employee's statements at subsequent criminal proceedings. Lybarger v. City of Los Angeles (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 822, 827, 221 Cal. Rptr. 529, 710 P.2d 329

Public employment as held under statute rather than by contract. Sharp v. Civil Service Com. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1507, 1510, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407 ; Seidler v. Municipal Court (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 1229, 1233, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 90

No contractual right as conferred on public employee; statutory provisions controlling terms and conditions of civil service employment as not to be circumvented by purported contracts in conflict with statutes. Kemmerer v. County of Fresno (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1426, 1432, 246 Cal. Rptr. 609

Factors unconnected with responsibilities of employment as invalid reason for denial of government employment. Burdick v. Board of Retirement (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1248, 1253, 246 Cal. Rptr. 555

Individuals as not having constitutional right, express or implied, to public employment. Civil Service Assn. v. Civil Service Com. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 449, 456, 188 Cal. Rptr. 806

Terms and conditions of public employment, including term of service, as fixed by statute, rules, or regulations creating it, not by contract, even if one is involved. Williams v. Department of Water & Power (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 677, 680, 181 Cal. Rptr. 868

Public employee serving at pleasure of appointing authority as subject to removal without judicially recognized good cause. Williams v. Department of Water & Power (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 677, 681, 181 Cal. Rptr. 868

[18] Reinstatement and Payment of Back Salary

Period for measuring amount of back pay due as beginning at time discipline was actually imposed and ending on date State Personnel Board filed its decision, if employee was not given earlier opportunity to present arguments to agency initially imposing discipline. Barber v. State Personnel Bd. (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 395, 403, 134 Cal. Rptr. 206, 556 P.2d 306

Reinstatement and payment of salary relating back to time of dismissal as subjecting employee to discipline for behavior during time between dismissal and reinstatement. Hooks v. State Personnel Bd. (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 572, 576-577, 168 Cal. Rptr. 822

[19] Resignation

Unless valid enactment provides otherwise, civil service employee as entitled to withdraw resignation if he or she does so before its effective date, before it has been accepted, and before agency acts in reliance on resignation. Armistead v. State Personnel Board (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 198, 206, 149 Cal. Rptr. 1, 583 P.2d 744

Statutory requirement that petition to set aside resignation must be submitted within 30 days as mandatory and as subject neither to tolling on ground of incapacity nor to defense of estoppel. Bidwell v. State of California ex rel. Dep't of Youth Authority (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 213, 218-220, 210 Cal. Rptr. 381

[20] State Personnel Board

Cal. Const., art. VII, § 3(a) precludes Legislature from authorizing entity other than State Personnel Board (such as "board of adjustment" created as part of grievance procedure specified in memorandum of understanding for state employee bargaining unit) to review disciplinary actions taken against state civil-service employees; therefore, former Gov. Code § 18670(c)-(e) [repealed eff. Jan. 1, 2009, by 2008 Stats., ch. 150, § 4] was unconstitutional. State Personnel Bd. v. Department of Personnel Admin. (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 512, 523

State Employer-Employee Relations Act, which established collective bargaining process, as not conflicting with general merit principle of civil service employment embodied in constitution or with powers assigned exclusively to State Personnel Board. Pacific Legal Foundation v. Brown (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 168, 174-175, 172 Cal. Rptr. 487, 624 P.2d 1215

While CHP has supervisory authority over traffic officers, State Personnel Board as having ultimate decision about appropriate punitive sanctions in employee disciplinary actions if CHP's determination is disputed by employee. Colombo v. State of California (1991) 3 Cal. App. 4th 594, 598, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 567

State Personnel Board as created by, and deriving adjudicatory power from, constitution. Department of Parks & Recreation v. State Personnel Bd. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 813, 823, 284 Cal. Rptr. 839 ; Kristal v. State Personnel Bd. (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 230, 236-237, 123 Cal. Rptr. 512 ; Gee v. California State Personnel Bd. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 713, 717, 85 Cal. Rptr. 762

State Personnel Board as body of special and limited jurisdiction deriving its powers from constitution and implementing statutory law. Department of Parks & Recreation v. State Personnel Bd. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 813, 824, 284 Cal. Rptr. 839

State Personnel Board as enjoined from exercising discretion in arbitrary, capricious, or fraudulent manner and from making decisions with no reasonable basis in law or substantial basis in fact. Power v. State Personnel Bd. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 274, 276, 110 Cal. Rptr. 698

Statutory time limit for administrative decision is directory rather than mandatory, and agency maintains jurisdiction over matter in which it has failed to render timely decision; however, statutory consequence of delay is that employee will be deemed to have exhausted administrative remedies. California Correctional Peace Officers Ass'n v. State Personnel Board (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1133, 1145-1146, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693, 899 P.2d 79

[21] Transfers

Civil service employee as entitled by statute to administrative hearing on whether transfer was made to discipline or harass her, despite fact that transfer did not involve change in residence. Johnston v. Department of Personnel Administration (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1218, 1226, 236 Cal. Rptr. 853

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.106

§ 118.106 Attorney General Opinions

1999 addition of Lab. Code § 96(k), which requires Labor Commissioner to take assignments of claims for loss of wages resulting from demotion, suspension, or discharge from employment for lawful conduct occurring during nonworking hours, did not abrogate existing law that permits disciplining of peace officers for off-duty conduct occurring away from place of employment that is otherwise lawful but that conflicts with their duties as police officers. 83 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 226 (2000)

California law enforcement agency may destroy peace office internal investigation files after five-year retention period and peace officer personnel records five years after officer has terminated employment if destruction is solely matter of administrative routine and no other factors are present that would establish "bad faith." 83 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 103 (2000)

Employees serving in office of chancellor of California Community Colleges under interjurisdictional exchange program as eligible to serve on qualifications appraisal panels for hiring and promotion of state civil service employees. 75 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 251 (1992)

Charter city as allowed to prohibit former and retired city employees from serving on civil service commission without violating equal protection, due process, and freedom of expression provisions of constitution. 74 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 181 (1991)

County affirmative action officer as prohibited from furnishing copy of completed investigation report to complainant who is not peace officer, with respect to employment discrimination complaint filed against county employee who is peace officer. 73 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 90 (1990)

City manager and citizens' review board as having right to inspect citizens' complaints against city police officers on file in internal affairs division of police department. 71 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 1 (1988)

Officers in student affairs class series at California Maritime Academy as included in state civil service system. 70 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 139 (1987)

Public Safety Officers Procedural Bill of Rights Act as applying to police chiefs and sheriffs. 63 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 829 (1980)

State employee subject to layoff as permitted to elect demotion to previously held class with same or higher (but not substantially higher) salary than class of layoff. 63 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 521 (1980)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.107

§ 118.107 Law Reviews

Jaffe et al, Public Entities, Officers, and Employees (Review of Selected 1989 California Legislation), 21 Pac. L.J. 545 (1990)

Note, Will the War on Drugs Abrogate Constitutional Guarantees? 17 Pepp. L. Rev. 793 (1990)

Comment, California Wrongful Discharge Law and the Public Employee, 23 U.C. Davis L. Rev. 117 (1989)

Comment, The California Dignitary Interest: Procedural Due Process and the Probationary Employee, 15 Pac. L.J. 321 (1984)

Note, Constitutional Law: Due Process for Public Employees--Bogacki v. Board of Supervisors, 12 Santa Clara Law. 599 (1972)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.108

§ 118.108 Text References

K. Wilcox, ed., California Employment Law, Division IV, Equal Employment Opportunity (Matthew Bender)

California Public Sector Labor Relations, ch. 16, Discipline and Discharge of Public Employees, (Matthew Bender)

California Civil Writ Practice (Cal. C.E.B. 1987, 1993 Supp.)

Witkin, California Procedure, vol. 8, Extraordinary Writs (4th ed. 1997)

Witkin, Summary of California Law, vol. 3, Agency and Employment, §§ 278-2283, 285-305, 307-313 (10th ed. 2005)

115 of 185 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 118.109-118.119

[Reserved]

§§ 118.109[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.120

§ 118.120 Contesting State Civil Service System Actions and Decisions

NOTE:
This checklist is a general outline of administrative procedures for contesting actions and decisions in the state civil service system.

[1] Oral Civil Service Examination

1. NOTICE: Written notice of results of examination are required to be given as soon as scoring of examination is completed and eligible list is established [Gov. Code § 18938.5; 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 209].

2. REQUEST: Unsuccessful competitor is entitled to specification of reasons for lack of success, on written request [Gov. Code § 18938.5].

3. APPEAL: Written appeal must be filed with State Personnel Board within 30 days after competitor is served with notice of results [Gov. Code § 18938.5; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 51.2(e)(1), (3) (30-day extension may be allowed for good cause)].

[2] Written Civil Service Examination

1. Appeal from scope of examination (range of subjects covered) or scoring of keyed copy (sample answers) [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 190].

a. INSPECTION: Within 7 days after the examination is held, any competitor has the right to inspect a keyed copy of examination questions for the purpose of requesting review of items the competitor believes were incorrectly or improperly keyed [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 190].

b. APPEAL: Within this 7-day period, the competitor may file a written appeal with the State Personnel Board from any part of the examination, citing the items against which appeal is directed and reasons for the appeal [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 190].

2. Appeal from scoring of individual examination [2 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 187, 190].

a. NOTICE: Written notice of the results of an examination are required to be given as soon as scoring of the examination is completed and the list of eligible persons is established [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 209].

b. INSPECTION: On written request filed with the State Personnel Board within 60 days after notice of the results of an examination is mailed, any competitor may compare his or her answer sheets with the scoring key to determine whether his or her answers have been accurately scored [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 187].

c. APPEAL: Within this 60-day period, the competitor may file a written appeal with the State Personnel Board, from the results of the examination, on the ground of fraud or clerical error in scoring [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 190].

[3] Qualifications Appraisal Panel Rating

NOTE:

A qualifications appraisal panel rating is a rating of education, experience, and personal qualifications established through an interview process [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1942 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 203, 203.5

1. NOTICE: Written notice of the results of an examination are required to be given as soon as scoring of the examination is completed and the list of eligible persons is established [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 209].

2. APPEAL: Written appeal for review of a competitor's appraisal panel rating must be filed with the State Personnel Board within 30 days after notice of the results of the examination have been mailed, stating the facts, information, or circumstances on which the appeal is based [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 202(a)].

3. GROUNDS [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 202(a)]:

a. Failure to follow prescribed rating standards or procedures.

b. Erroneous interpretation or application of minimum qualifications prescribed for the class.

c. Fraud.

d. Discrimination on the basis of sex, race, religious creed, color, national origin, ancestry, marital status, or political opinion or affiliation.

e. Other improper acts or circumstances.

4. BOARD ACTION [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 202(b)]:

a. Sustain rating.

b. Grant the appeal and give a rating of 70 percent on education, experience, and personal qualifications.

c. If the rating resulted from fraud or discrimination, give the competitor a passing rating, or cancel part or all of the interview ratings given by the panel, arrange for reexamination of the appellant and other affected competitors by a different panel, and withhold all or part of the list of eligible persons from certification until reexamination is completed.

d. Refer the request for review to the original or a new qualifications appraisal panel for reconsideration of the competitor's rating, then sustain the original rating or give the competitor a 70-percent rating or the revised rating recommended by the qualifications appraisal panel.

[4] Ineligibility to Take Examination or Be Certified

ELIGIBILITY: The State Personnel Board may refuse to examine or, after examination, may refuse to declare as eligible or may withhold or withdraw from certification, prior to appointment, any person who fits any of the following descriptions [Gov. Code § 18935]:

1. Lacks any of the requirements established by the board for the examination or position for which he or she applies.

2. At the time of examination has permanent status in a position of equal or higher class than the examination or position for which he or she applies.

3. Is physically or mentally so disabled as to be rendered unfit to perform the duties of the position to which he or she seeks appointment.

4. Is addicted to the use of intoxicating beverages to excess.

5. Is addicted to the use of controlled substances.

6. Has been convicted of a felony, or convicted of a misdemeanor involving moral turpitude.

7. Has been guilty of infamous or notoriously disgraceful conduct.

8. Has been dismissed from any position for any cause which would be a cause for dismissal from the state service.

9. Has resigned from any position not in good standing or in order to avoid dismissal.

10. Has intentionally attempted to practice any deception or fraud in his or her application, in his or her examination, or in securing his or her eligibility.

11. Has waived appointment three times after certification from the same employment list.

12. Has failed to reply within a reasonable time, as specified by the board, to communications concerning his or her availability for employment.

13. Has made himself or herself unavailable for employment by requesting that his or her name be withheld from certification.

14. Is, in accordance with rule of the board, found to be unsuited or not qualified for employment.

15. Has engaged in unlawful reprisal or retaliation against a state employee or other person in violation of the California Whistleblower Protection Act [see Gov. Code § 8547 et seq.], as determined by the board or a court.

[5] Disadvantaged Employee

1. APPEAL: Employee disadvantaged by any action taken by a superior or fellow employee in discouraging, hindering, or preventing the employee from taking any examination, or who alleges discrimination in state employ ment, may appeal to the State Personnel Board in writing [Gov. Code § 18952; 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 548.61].

2. BOARD ACTION: The board must investigate an appeal immediately after receipt and take necessary action [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 548.61].

[6] Rejection During Probationary Period

1. NOTICE: Written final notice of rejection must be served on or before the effective date of rejection, stating [Gov. Code § 19173; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 52.3]:

a. Effective date of rejection (not later than last day of probationary period).

b. Reasons for rejection.

2. APPEAL: Written request to the State Personnel Board to investigate reasons for rejection may be filed within 15 days after the effective date of the rejection [Gov. Code § 19175].

NOTE:
The appeal procedures specified in Gov. Code § 19175 do not apply to employees in State Bargaining Unit 5 [Gov. Code § 19175(e)].

3. GROUNDS [Gov. Code §§ 19173, 19175]:

a. Improper rejection procedure.

b. Reasons stated in the notice of rejection are untrue.

c. Discrimination on the basis of age, blindness, color blindness, sex, race, religious creed, color, national origin, ancestry, marital status, or physical handicap.

d. Fraud or bad faith.

4. BOARD ACTION:

a. State Personnel Board may require, or any party may request, a prehearing or settlement conference [Gov. Code § 19581.5].

b. Following an investigation, with or without a hearing, the board may [Gov. Code § 19175]:

(1) Affirm the rejection.

(2) Modify agency action.

(3) Restore the name of the rejected probationer to the employment list.

(4) Restore the rejected probationer to the position from which rejected, if no substantial evidence supports rejection or rejection was made as a result of bad faith or fraud (and the board must direct payment of salary to the employee for the period rejection was in effect) [Gov. Code § 19180].

[7] Corrective Action on Unlawful Appointment

1. NOTICE: State Personnel Board must give the employee and employing agency at least 15 days' notice of proposed corrective action [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 266.2]:

a. Stating reasons for the proposed action.

b. Notifying the employee and agency of the right to respond to the notice within 15 days, either orally or in writing.

2. APPEAL: Employee and agency may file written appeals with the board within 30 days after the date of notification of the board's final decision to take corrective action [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 266.3].

3. BOARD ACTION: Board may take corrective action up to and including voiding the appointment, and may require an employee not acting in good faith to reimburse compensation resulting from appointment [Gov. Code § 19257.5; 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 266].

[8] Request for Reasonable Accommodation

1. REQUEST: Disabled individual may file a request for reasonable accommodation, with the employing agency, to obtain, retain, or advance to a position in state civil service employment [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 53.2].

2. RESPONSE: Agency must respond, in writing, to the request within 20 days after receipt, and inform the complainant of the right to appeal to the board [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 53.2].

3. APPEAL: Individual may file an appeal with the board within 30 days [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 53.2]:

a. After receipt of the agency's response.

b. After expiration of the 20-day response period, if the agency does not respond.

[9] Discrimination

1. COMPLAINT: Any person claiming discrimination in state civil service may file a written complaint with [Gov. Code § 19702(g); 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 547.1]:

a. Employing agency, if the agency has authority to resolve the matter.

b. State Personnel Board if the agency cannot resolve the matter.

2. TIME LIMITATIONS: Complaint generally must be filed within one year after alleged discrimination [Gov. Code § 19702(f)].

3. BOARD ACTION: State Personnel Board's executive officer may attempt to resolve the complaint informally or may refer the complaint to the board for hearing [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 547.1].

[10] Adverse Action

1. NOTICE: Employing agency must give an employee written final notice at least 5 working days before the effective date of adverse action [Gov. Code § 19574(a); 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 52.3]:

a. By one of following methods [Gov. Code § 18575(b)(2)]:
(1) Personal delivery.

(2) United States mail, either:
(a) Certified mail with return receipt requested.

(b) Express Mail.

(3) Overnight delivery by express service carrier, with employee or employee's representative required to acknowledge receipt at time of delivery.

b. Stating:

(1) Nature of the adverse action.

(2) Reasons for the action.

(3) Employee's right to respond to the notice.

(4) Employee's right to be represented in proceedings.

(5) Time for filing appeal.

2. INSPECTION: After service of a notice, the employee has the right to [Gov. Code § 19574.1(a)]:

a. Inspect documents in the possession of or under the control of the agency that are relevant to the adverse action or could constitute relevant evidence.

b. Interview other employees having knowledge of acts or omissions on which the adverse action is based.

3. COMPEL COMPLIANCE WITH INSPECTION:

a. Petition to compel discovery may be filed with the State Personnel Board's hearing office within 14 days after a failure to comply with a discovery request, or within 30 days after a request and failure to respond, whichever period is longer [Gov. Code § 19574.2(a), (b)].

b. Petition may not be filed within 15 days of the date set for commencement of the administrative hearing, except for good cause [Gov. Code § 19574.2(b)].

c. Written answer to the petition may be filed within 15 days after service of the petition [Gov. Code § 19574.2(b)].

d. Administrative law judge may [Gov. Code § 19574.2(b)]:

(1) Review the petition and response and issue a decision within 20 days after the petition was filed.

(2) Order a hearing and issue a decision within 20 days after the hearing.

e. Party aggrieved by the administrative law judge's decision may file a petition in the superior court within 30 days after service of the decision [Gov. Code § 19574.2(b)].

f. Court may issue an order to show cause directed to the agency or enter an order denying petition [Gov. Code § 19574.2(c)].

g. Court may order the administrative proceeding stayed during the pendency of judicial proceedings [Gov. Code § 19574.2(d)].

h. Court must file an order within 45 days after the petition was filed [Gov. Code § 19574.2(g)].

i. Party aggrieved by the court's order may file a petition with the court of appeal within 30 days after service of the order [Gov. Code § 19574.2(h)].

4. ANSWER: Employee may file a written answer to a notice with the State Personnel Board within 30 days after the effective date of the adverse action [Gov. Code § 19575].

5. BOARD ACTION:

a. In general, the State Personnel Board must hold a hearing within a reasonable time [Gov. Code §§ 19576, 19578].

b. Board may require, or any party may request, a prehearing or settlement conference [Gov. Code § 19581.5].

c. Board may sustain, modify, or revoke the adverse action [Gov. Code § 19583].

d. When the adverse action is modified or revoked, the board may order restoration of the employee's position, with back pay and lost benefits [Gov. Code §§ 19583, 19584].

e. Board's decision must be served on the parties personally or by mail [Gov. Code § 19582(e)].

6. REHEARING: Party may file a written petition with the board for a rehearing within 30 days after receipt of the board's decision [Gov. Code § 19586; 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 51.7].

[11] Failure to Pass Employer-Required Medical Examination

1. NOTICE: Employee must be given a written notice of demotion, transfer, or termination at least 15 days before the effective date of the action [Gov. Code § 19253.5(f); 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 52.3(a); see Gov. Code § 19253.5(i)(1) (agency's decision to file for disability retirement on employee's behalf is not appealable to State Personnel Board, although agency must provide employee with 15 days' notice of intent to file application and opportunity to respond to agency)].

2. APPEAL: Employee may appeal to the State Personnel Board within 15 days after service of the notice [Gov. Code § 19253.5(f)].

3. BOARD ACTION:

a. State Personnel Board must hold a hearing and may sustain, disapprove, or modify the action [Gov. Code § 19253.5(f)].

b. If the action is modified or revoked, the board must order restoration of the employee's position, with back pay and lost benefits [Gov. Code §§ 19253.5(g), 19584].

c. Board must order reinstatement of the employee to a vacant position in the same, a comparable, or a lower-rated class if the employee is no longer incapacitated for duty [Gov. Code § 19253.5(h)].

[12] Protection of Whistle-Blowers

1. COMPLAINT: State employee or an applicant for state employment may file a written complaint [Gov. Code § 8547.8(a)]:

a. Within 12 months after the most recent act of reprisal complained of.

b. With his or her supervisor, manager, or the employing agency, and with the State Personnel Board.

c. Containing a sworn statement, under penalty of perjury, that the contents of the complaint are true or believed by the affiant to be true.

2. BOARD ACTION:

a. State Personnel Board must initiate a hearing or investigation of the complaint within 10 working days after its submission [Gov. Code § 19683(a)].

b. Board's findings must be provided to the complainant and his or her supervisor or manager, or the employing agency, within 60 working days thereafter [Gov. Code § 19683(a)].

c. If the findings show misconduct, the supervisor or manager, or the employing agency, may request a hearing by the board regarding the findings [Gov. Code § 19683(b)].

d. Board may order reinstatement and back pay if improper activity occurred [Gov. Code § 19683(c)].

117 of 185 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 118.121-118.139

[Reserved]

§§ 118.121[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART V. FORMS

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.140

§ 118.140 Answer and Appeal From Notice of Adverse Action [Gov. Code § 19575; 2 Cal. Code Reg § 51.2]

[1] FORM Answer and Appeal From Notice of Adverse Action [Gov. Code § 19575; 2 Cal. Code Reg § 51.2]

BEFORE THE STATE PERSONNEL BOARD OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA

In the matter of _____ [name of appellant] in answer to and appeal from _____ [adverse action appealed from]	))))))	NO. _____ ANSWER AND APPEAL AND REQUEST FOR HEARING

_____ [Name of employee] appeals from the adverse action taken against appellant by _____ [name of person or agency taking action] in appellant's position as _____ [title of position] with the _____ [name of employing agency] located at _____ [address].
[If appropriate: Appellant admits the following allegations contained in the notice of adverse action: _____ (list admitted allegations)]. Appellant denies _____ [all or all other] allegations of the notice of adverse action, alleges that the _____ [specify adverse action, e.g., discharge] is improper, and requests a hearing.
[DESCRIBE specific objections to the notice of adverse action, e.g.:]

1. Appellant objects to the notice of adverse action on the ground that it does not state acts or omissions on which adverse action may be based.

2. Appellant objects to the form of the notice of adverse action on the ground that it is so indefinite and uncertain that appellant cannot identify the basis for the action and prepare an appeal.

[CONTINUE]
Appellant's mailing address is _____ [address].
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
[typed name]
Appellant
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Appellant _____ [name]

[2] Use of Form

This form of answer to and appeal from a notice of adverse action is for use by an aggrieved state civil service employee, to obtain review of and a hearing regarding adverse action taken against the employee by the employing agency.

[3] Contents

The answer and appeal must be in writing. Although an answer is deemed to be a denial of all allegations in the notice of adverse action not expressly admitted and deemed to be a request for an investigation and hearing [see Gov. Code § 19575], this form makes this explicit, as a precautionary measure. The appeal must clearly identify the facts that form the basis for the appeal and identify all respondents known to the appellant [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 51.2(b)]. Unless the appeal names some other respondent, the appellant's employing agency will be considered the only respondent [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 51.2(c)].

[4] Time Limits

The employee has 30 calendar days after the effective date of the adverse action to file with the board a written answer to the notice of adverse action [Gov. Code § 19575].

[5] Copy to Agency

The State Personnel Board must promptly give a copy of the answer to the employing agency [Gov. Code § 19575; 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 51.2(d)].

[6] Cross References

For general discussion of forms for use in administrative trials, see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication , et seq.

[7] State Statutes

Answer to notice of adverse action. Gov. Code § 19575

Amendment of answer. Gov. Code § 19575

Finality of adverse action if employee fails to answer or withdraws answer. Gov. Code § 19575

Investigation and hearing by State Personnel Board. Gov. Code §§ 19576, 19578

[8] Administrative Regulations

Requirements for filing appeal with State Personnel Board. 2 Cal. Code Reg § 51.2

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART V. FORMS

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.141

§ 118.141 Appeal, Application, Petition, Protest--Action Other Than Adverse Action--General Form [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 51.2]

[1] FORM Appeal, Application, Petition, Protest--Action Other Than Adverse Action--General Form [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 51.2]

BEFORE THE STATE PERSONNEL BOARD OF THE
STATE OF CALIFORNIA

In the matter of	)	NO. _____
_____ [name of appellant]	)	APPEAL AND in appeal from	)	REQUEST FOR _____ [adverse action appealed from]	)	HEARING
	)

_____ [Name of employee] is employed in the position of _____ [title of position] with the _____ [name of employing agency] located at _____ [address], and appeals from _____ [action appealed from, e.g., a layoff notice effective _____ (date)] and requests a hearing.

_____ [Describe specific objections or assertions, e.g., Appellant asserts that his/her layoff did not follow the proper procedure in that the layoff was not made according to seniority as required by Government Code Section 19997.3].

Appellant's mailing address is _____ [address].

Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By:_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Appellant_____[name]

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form of appeal is for use by an aggrieved state civil service employee, to obtain review of and a hearing regarding action taken by the employing agency. This is a general form for use in appealing nonadverse actions. It may be modified for use as an application, a petition, or a protest, by making minor changes in the wording of the form [see 2 Cal. Code Reg §§ 51.1(c), 51.2(a), (b)]. For descriptions of specific situations in which the form could be used, see the Procedural Checklist at § 118.120.

[3] Time Limits

Generally, appeals must be filed with the State Personnel Board, or with the employing agency in some cases [see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 53.1], within 30 days after the appellant has been served with the notice, report, or document from which the appeal is taken [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 51.2(e)(1)]. If there has been no service and none is required, the appeal must be filed within 30 days after the event on which the appeal is based [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 51.2(e)(2)]. For good cause, the executive officer of the board may allow an appeal to be filed within 30 days after the end of the period within which the appeal should have been filed, unless the period for filing is otherwise limited by statute [2 Cal. Code Reg. § 51.2(e)(3)].

[4] Cross Reference

For a form of answer and appeal from a notice of adverse action, see § 118.140.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART V. FORMS

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.142

§ 118.142 Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] of State Personnel Board Imposing Adverse Action on Employee [Gov. Code § 19583] and to Compel Reinstatement and Compensation [Gov. Code § 19584]

[1] FORM Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] of State Personnel Board Imposing Adverse Action on Employee [Gov. Code § 19583] and to Compel Reinstatement and Compensation [Gov. Code § 19584]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)
	)
vs.	)
	)	NO. _____
STATE PERSONNEL	)	PETITION FOR WRIT OF [ADMINISTRATIVE]
BOARD OF	)	MANDATE
CALIFORNIA and	)
_____ [name],	)
Respondents.	)
	)
	)

_____

Petitioner respectfully represents:

1. At all times mentioned in this petition, petitioner was a permanent civil service employee of the _____ [name of employing agency, e.g., Department of Public Works] of the State of California, classified as a _____ [specify title of position], regularly engaged in the performance of the duties of this position at a salary duly fixed and payable in accordance with the salary schedule adopted by the State Personnel

Board for this position.

2. Respondent State Personnel Board (hereinafter "the Board") is a board created, organized, and existing under and by virtue of the constitution and statutes of the State of California for the purpose of carrying out the constitutional and statutory provisions of the State of California with reference to classified civil service employees of the state.
3. Respondent _____ [name of employing agency, e.g., Department of Public Works] of the State of California is an agency of the state government.

4. The Board has discretion to determine whether a ground exists for the adverse action taken by an agency against an employee. The Board is required to hold a hearing and take evidence in its proceedings for the determination of those facts.
5. On _____ [date], at _____ [specify meeting place], a hearing was held _____ [state facts regarding holding of hearing, e.g., to receive evidence on the issue of whether a ground exists for _____ (specify adverse action taken against petitioner, e.g., the discharge of petitioner)]. The hearing was held by a duly appointed hearing officer, and evidence was introduced at the hearing by _____ [name of employing agency, e.g., the Department of Public Works] and by petitioner, and the matter was submitted for decision. The transcript of the hearing is attached as Exhibit _____ and made a part hereof.
6. On _____ [date] petitioner received the Board's decision and order _____ [specify effect of decision and order, e.g., affirming petitioner's discharge] on the grounds that _____ [specify, e.g., petitioner was guilty of insubordination]. A copy of the notice of decision is attached as Exhibit _____ and made a part hereof.
[7. _____ (If request for rehearing was filed, allege facts of petition for rehearing and either denial of petition by board or holding of rehearing by board and adverse result).]

8. The Board's decision and order are invalid for the following reasons:

a. The hearing officer found that _____[state all findings]. The Board does not have authority to impose adverse action based on any of these findings, in that the findings do not constitute _____ [specify statutory ground, e.g., insubordination].

b. At the hearing, petitioner tried to offer evidence to show that _____ [specify facts to which evidence relates]. This evidence is in the form of _____ [specify, e.g., the testimony of _____ (name)]. The hearing officer ruled that this evidence was not admissible, and it was not received. The evidence was admissible and should have been received.

c. The hearing officer found that _____[state specific findings]. The evidence received at the hearing does not support these findings, as petitioner alleges more particularly hereinafter.
9. The evidence does not support the findings for the following reasons: _____ [specify].
10. Petitioner has the following relevant evidence that was not presented at the hearing: _____ [describe evidence]. This evidence could not be produced at the hearing because _____ [specify why, in the exercise of reasonable diligence, petitioner could not produce evidence and why, if appropriate, evidence could not be produced on rehearing]. This evidence tends to show that _____ [state what evidence will prove].
11. As an incident of bringing and maintaining this proceeding, petitioner has become and is obligated personally to pay to petitioner's counsel, _____[name], attorney's fees _____ [exceeding $7,500 or in the sum of $_____].

12. Petitioner has exhausted all administrative remedies, and the decision of the Board has become final.

13. Petitioner has no plain, speedy, or adequate remedy at law because the law provides no cause of action by which petitioner can require respondents to reinstate petitioner in petitioner's civil service position and reimburse petitioner for the pay lost during the period of petitioner's unlawful discharge.

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays judgment as follows:
[1. For an alternative writ of mandate directing the Board to set aside its order of _____ (date), _____(specify effect of order, e.g., discharging petitioner), or in the alternative to show cause why a peremptory writ of mandate to the same effect should not be issued.]
2. For judgment setting aside and vacating the Board's _____ [disciplinary order or affirmance of the disciplinary order] and directing the issuance of a peremptory writ of mandate commanding respondents to reinstate petitioner in petitioner's position as _____ [specify title of position] and to order that petitioner be paid petitioner's salary from _____[date] to the date of reinstatement, together with interest on this amount, and that all benefits that otherwise would have accrued to petitioner be reinstated.

3. For reasonable attorney's fees, in addition to any other relief granted or other costs awarded.
4. For costs of suit herein incurred _____ [add, if appropriate: including $_____ for preparation of the administrative record].

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form of petition for a writ of administrative mandate is for use by an aggrieved state civil service employee, to obtain judicial review of a decision and resulting order of the State Personnel Board imposing adverse action on the employee and to compel reinstatement of the employee and payment of back salary, plus interest, as well as the reinstatement of all benefits that would have normally accrued. The form may not be used to review a decision resulting from a proceeding in which an evidentiary hearing is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5; see, e.g., Gov. Code § 19576 (no hearing for suspension of up to five days)]. In such cases, an employee may seek judicial review in a traditional mandate proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1085(a); Coelho v. State Personnel Bd. (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 968, 971 n.2, 257 Cal. Rptr. 557] . This form can be modified for use in seeking a traditional writ if mandate by removing the allegations regarding the State Personnel Board's authority to conduct an evidentiary hearing (Paragraphs 4 and 5). If the petition states a ground for issuance of a traditional writ of mandate, the court has the power to grant the petition, even if the petition erroneously seeks a writ if administrative mandate [see Coelho v. State Personnel Bd. (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 968, 971, 257 Cal. Rptr. 557] .

[3] Allegations

The petition must state facts tending to show the following:

(1) Discretion to determine certain relevant facts is vested in the State Personnel Board (Paragraph 4) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a)].

(2) By law a hearing is required to be held for the purpose of determining those facts (Paragraph 4) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a)].

(3) Evidence is required to be taken at the hearing (Paragraph 4) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a)].

(4) A final administrative decision was made as a result of that hearing and the determination of those facts (Paragraph 6) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a)]. The form includes optional language for use to state the board's denial of or action on rehearing if rehearing was requested (Paragraph 7).

(5) The petitioner is beneficially interested in the writ, that is, he or she has standing to sue (Paragraph 6) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086].

(6) The decision is invalid for stated reasons (Paragraphs 8-10) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b)].

(7) The petitioner has exhausted his or her administrative remedies (Paragraph 12) [see Morton v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 977, 982, 88 Cal. Rptr. 533] .

(8) The petitioner has no plain and speedy remedy in the ordinary course of law (Paragraph 13) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086].

[4] Verification

A petition for a writ of mandate must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086]. Proof of service on each respondent and real party in interest of a copy of a petition that seeks an alternative writ must accompany the petition when it is offered for filing except when, in its discretion and for good cause, the court has granted the application for the writ ex parte [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; for discussion of serving the petition, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition]. Points and authorities also customarily accompany a petition filed in a superior court, although they do not appear to be expressly required by statute. When no alternative writ is sought, proof of service of a copy of the petition need not accompany the application, but proof of service of a copy of the filed petition must be lodged with the court prior to a hearing or any action by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5].

[5] Attorney's Fees

In a civil action to appeal or review a determination of the State Personnel Board, when it is shown that the determination was the result of arbitrary or capricious action or conduct by a public entity or by an officer of a public entity in his or her official capacity, the complainant, if he or she prevails in the civil action, may collect reasonable attorney's fees not exceeding $7,500, if he or she is personally obligated to pay these fees, from the public entity, in addition to any other relief granted or other costs awarded [Gov. Code § 800; see Olson v. Hickman (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 920, 922-924, 102 Cal. Rptr. 248 (attorney's fees allowed in successful appeal from arbitrary and capricious discharge from local civil service)].

[6] Enforcement of Judgment

For discussion of the enforcement of judgments against the state [see Gov. Code § 965 et seq.], see Ch. 467, Public Entities and Officers: Enforcement of Judgments Against Public Entities .

[7] Cross References

For additional forms for use in administrative mandate proceedings and for a more complete discussion of forms used in administrative mandate proceedings, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq.

[8] California Points and Authorities

For a memorandum in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to compel reinstatement of a civil service employee and payment of back salary, see California Points And Authoritites Ch. 36, Civil Service (Matthew Bender)

[9] State Statutes

Procedure for review of administrative decision by mandate proceedings. Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5

Disciplinary proceedings. Gov. Code § 19570 et seq.

[10] Decisions

Due process requirements for discharge of tenured government employee. Skelly v. State Personnel Bd. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 194, 215, 124 Cal. Rptr. 14, 539 P.2d 774

Attorney's fees as awardable in case involving appeal from finding or award or other determination of administrative proceeding but not in case of appeal from superior court judgment denying petition for writ of mandate to compel reinstatement of temporary, part-time employee (not in civil service) who was discharged from employment without hearing. Williams v. Department of Water & Power (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 677, 685, 181 Cal. Rptr. 868

Writ of mandate to review administrative proceeding involving statutorily required hearing concerning discipline or discharge of state civil service employee. Taylor v. State Personnel Bd. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 498, 505, 161 Cal. Rptr. 677

Administrative remedies as required to be exhausted before judicial review of State Personnel Board decision is sought. Morton v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 977, 982, 88 Cal. Rptr. 533

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART V. FORMS

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.143

§ 118.143 Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086, 1094.5, 1094.6] to Review Administrative Decision of Local Civil Service Commission Imposing Adverse Action on Employee and Compel Reinstatement and Payment of Back Salary

[1] FORM Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086, 1094.5, 1094.6] to Review Administrative Decision of Local Civil Service Commission Imposing Adverse Action on Employee and Compel Reinstatement and Payment of Back Salary

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)
	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
	)	PETITION FOR WRIT OF [ADMINISTRATIVE]
_____ [names],	)	MANDATE
Respondents.	)
	)
	)

Petitioner respectfully represents:

1. At all times mentioned in this petition, petitioner was a permanent civil service employee of _____ [name of employing agency, e.g., the Board of Public Works] of the _____ [City or County or City and County] of _____ [name] in the position of _____ [specify title of position]. Petitioner was continuously and regularly employed by _____ [name of employing agency, e.g., the Board of Public Works] from _____[date] to _____ [date]. Petitioner's position as _____ [specify title of position] was, at all times mentioned in this petition, a position in the classified civil service of the _____ [City or County or City and County] of _____ [name], with a salary of $_____ a month.

2. Respondent _____ [name, e.g., Board of Civil Service Commissioners of the _____ (City or County or City and County) of _____ (name)] is authorized and exists under and by virtue of the provisions of the _____[specify, e.g., charter] of the _____ [City or County or City and County] of _____ [name]. Respondent _____ [name of employing agency, e.g., Board of Public Works] is authorized and exists under and by virtue of the provisions of the _____ [charter or an ordinances] of the _____[City or County or City and County] of _____[name].
3. Under _____ [specify charter provision or ordinance], respondent _____ [e.g., Board of Civil Service Commissioners] has discretion to determine whether a ground exists for the adverse action taken by an agency against an employee. Pursuant to _____[specify charter provision or ordinance] respondent _____ [e.g., Board of Civil Service Commissioners] is required to hold a hearing and take evidence in its proceedings for the determination of those facts.

4. [Facts regarding holding of hearing. See § 118.142, Paragraph 5.]

5. [Facts regarding decision, notification of petitioner, and effect of decision on petitioner (petitioner's standing to sue). See § 118.142, Paragraph 6.]

6. [If request for rehearing was filed, facts concerning rehearing. See § 118.142, Paragraph 7.]

7. [Reasons for invalidity of decision. See § 118.142, Paragraphs 8-10.]

8. [If attorney's fees are claimed, facts of claim. See § 118.142, Paragraph 11.]

9. [Facts concerning exhaustion of administrative remedies and finality of decision affecting petitioner. See § 118.142, Paragraph 12.]
10. The governing board of _____ [name of employing agency] adopted a resolution making Government Code Section 1094.6 applicable, and petitioner filed this petition within the time limits specified in that code provision. The petition was filed _____[date], within the 90-day period ending _____[date].
10. Petitioner filed this petition _____[date], within the period established by _____[specify charter provision, ordinance, or statute], which ended _____ [date].

11. Petitioner has no plain, speedy, or adequate remedy at law because the law provides no cause of action by which petitioner can require respondents to reinstate petitioner in petitioner's civil service position and reimburse petitioner for the pay lost during the period of the unlawful discharge.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form of petition for a writ of administrative mandate is for use by an aggrieved local civil service employee, to obtain judicial review of a decision and order of a local civil service commission imposing adverse action on the employee and to compel reinstatement of the employee and payment of back salary [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1094.5, 1094.6]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6 imposes special requirements, including a time limit, when a local agency decision is to be reviewed under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5. For discussion, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq.

[3] Identity of Respondent

If the local civil service board or commission does not have authority over the claim being advanced, the petition should include as parties the local officials who have this authority (such as the city treasurer or comptroller) [see Goldsmith v. Board of Education (1923) 63 Cal. App. 141, 147, 148, 218 P. 296 (trial court could direct local board of education to issue warrant for unpaid salary on reinstatement of petitioner when board, rather than local agency, had authority to do so)].

A public official cannot be compelled to draw a warrant to pay any monetary judgment that may be won unless the petition alleges and proof is made that sufficient funds are available to pay it. Counsel may wish to add such an allegation to the foregoing petition, but this may not be necessary given the statutory provisions for the payment of judgments. Indeed, it might be premature to allege this until the public official refuses to pay the judgment [see Gov. Code §§ 970.2 (mandate available), 970.4, 970.5 (payment when sufficient funds available); Tevis v. City & County of San Francisco (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 190, 200, 272 P.2d 757 (judgment properly directed city officials to certify and approve payrolls showing employees' right to payment, but officials could not be compelled to draw warrant for payment because petition did not allege, and proof was not made, that money was available)]. For discussion of the enforcement of judgments against public entities, see Ch. 467, Public Entities and Officers: Enforcement of Judgments Against Public Entities .

[4] State Statutes

Mandate proceedings appropriate to review local agency decision. Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6

Dismissal from county civil service. Gov. Code § 31108

[5] Decisions

If local agency's decision imposing adverse action on employee is required to be in writing by applicable statute, charter, or rule, employee's 90-day period to petition for writ of mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(b) will not begin to run until agency mails its decision to employee, together with copy of affidavit or certificate of mailing; omission of affidavit or certificate of mailing means 90-day period will not begin to run. Donnellan v. City of Novato (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1097, 1102-1107, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 882

If local agency's written decision imposing adverse action on employee is required by applicable statute, charter, or rule to be in writing, employee's 90-day period to petition for writ of mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(b) will not begin to run until agency's written decision is mailed to employee; mailing decision to employee's attorney will not suffice to trigger running of time to petition for writ of mandate. Herman v. Los Angeles County Metro. Transp. Auth. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 819, 824-830, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144

Local agency's award of wrongly withheld backpay must include interest under Civ. Code § 3287(a). San Diego County Sheriffs Assn. v. San Diego County Civil Service Com. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1084, 1086, 1094-1096, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 712

Cities and counties as required to follow own rules and regulations when imposing discipline. Birdsall v. Carrillo (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1426, 1431, 282 Cal. Rptr. 504

Writ of mandate as proper to review local civil service order. Chavez v. Civil Service Com. (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d

324, 331-332, 150 Cal. Rptr. 197

[6] Cross Reference

For a form of petition for writ of mandate, see § 118.142.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART V. FORMS

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.144

§ 118.144 Allegations--For Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086]--To Review Decision of State Personnel Board or Local Civil Service Commission and to Compel Board or Commission to Permit Petitioner to Take Examination

[1] FORM Allegations--For Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086]--To Review Decision of State Personnel Board or Local Civil Service Commission and to Compel Board or Commission to Permit Petitioner to Take Examination

1. On or about _____ [date], respondents published an official examination announcement for the civil service position of _____ [specify], an exact copy of which is attached as Exhibit _____ and made a part of hereof. The minimum requirements listed in this announcement are as follows: _____ [describe].

2. After the announcement and before the closing date for filing applications, petitioner filed an application with respondents to take the examination and submitted with the application _____ [list required credentials].

3. Petitioner's application to take the examination was rejected by respondents for the following reasons: _____ [describe].

4. The minimum requirements for the examination for the position of _____ [specify] are arbitrary, unreasonable, discriminatory, and harsh in the limitations imposed, when considered in relation to the duties of the position of _____ [specify], as set forth in the examination announcement, and the limitations are contrary to the standards established in _____ [specify relevant Government Code or city or county charter section, e.g., Government Code Section 18930].

5. In refusing to allow petitioner to take the examination on _____ [date] respondents have unreasonably discriminated against petitioner by denying petitioner the equal rights guaranteed by the state and federal constitutions, by adopting a regulation that resorts to favoritism, and by making civil service positions available otherwise than equally and alike to all citizens, beyond the discretion given to respondents under civil service provisions set forth in _____ [the State Civil Service Act or the charter of the _____ (City or County or City and County) of _____ (name)].

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing allegations are for use in a petition for a writ of mandate by an aggrieved applicant for civil service employment, to compel the State Personnel Board or a local civil service commission to allow the applicant to take a civil service examination [see Terry v. Civil Service Commission (1952) 108 Cal. App. 2d 861, 870, 240 P.2d 691 (San Francisco civil service commission requirement limiting right to take examination to graduates of colleges accredited by either of only two associations as arbitrary and discriminatory when other accrediting associations use same standards; affirming issuance of writ to compel commission to allow applicants to take test)].

[3] Examination Standards

Examinations in the state civil service system are competitive and of such character as to fairly test and determine the qualifications, fitness, and ability of competitors to perform the duties of the positions for which they seek appointment [Gov. Code §§ 18900, 18930].

[4] California Points and Authorities

For a memorandum of points and authorities for use in a mandate proceeding to compel a civil service commission to permit the petitioner to take an examination, see Clifornia Points And Authorities Ch. 36, Civil Service (Matthew Bender)

[5] State Statutes

Administration of state civil service examinations. Gov. Code § 18930 et seq.

Right of appeal by state civil service employee hindered from taking examination. Gov. Code § 18952

Discrimination in employment in state civil service. Gov. Code § 19700 et seq.

Establishment of minimum standards for entrance into county civil service. Gov. Code §§ 31005-31009, 31107

Establishment of minimum standards for entrance into city civil service. Gov. Code §§ 45050-45054, 45200

[6] Decisions

Rules of civil service boards as not interfered with as long as they are reasonable and not arbitrary and capricious; time in grade requirement when city charter calls for board to provide for promotion on basis of merit, experience, and record as valid; reversing grant of writ to compel board to accept application of employee with less time in grade to take promotional examination. Waters v. Civil Service Board (1955) 133 Cal.App. 2d 733, 736, 284 P.2d 919

Under city charter making civil service commission sole judge of adequacy of tests for rating applicants, commission as empowered to impose additional requirements for positions beyond minimum requirements set in charter. Cotter v. Wolff (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 376, 378, 198 P.2d 950

Charter allowing civil service board to make rules regulating method of examination as not empowering board to make rules setting qualifications to take examinations. Bruce v. Civil Service Board (1935) 6 Cal. App. 2d 633, 637, 45 P.2d 419

[7] Cross Reference

For forms of petitions for writ of mandate, see § 118.142 and 118.143.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART V. FORMS

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.145

§ 118.145 Allegations--For Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086]--To Review Decision of State Personnel Board or Local Civil Service Commission and to Compel Board or Commission to Certify for Appointment for Eligible List to Civil Service Position

[1] FORM Allegations--For Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086]--To Review Decision of State Personnel Board or Local Civil Service Commission and to Compel Board or Commission to Certify for Appointment for Eligible List to Civil Service Position

1. On _____ [date] petitioner was _____ [specify position, e.g., at the head of the promotional employment list of eligible persons] for appointment to the position of _____ [specify] in the civil service system of the _____ [State of California or _____ (City or County or City and County) of _____(name)]. The list of eligible persons had been adopted regularly by respondent _____ [Board or Commission] pursuant to the provisions of _____ [the State Civil Service Act or the charter of the _____ (City or County or City and County) of _____ (name)].

2. On or about _____ [date] a vacancy occurred in the position of employment designated as _____[specify], and the _____ [Board or Commission] certified _____ [name] to the position. By virtue of petitioner's position _____ [specify position, e.g., at the head of the promotional employment list], petitioner was entitled to notice of this vacancy and to be certified by respondent _____ [Board or Commission] for appointment to the position.

3. _____ [Allege statutory or charter requirement for certification of person in petitioner's position on the eligible list, e.g., Under Government Code Section 19057, respondent Board is required to certify to the agency the names and addresses of the three persons standing highest on the promotional employment list for the class in which the position belongs who have indicated their willingness to accept appointment under the conditions of employment specified].

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing allegations are for use in a petition for writ of mandate by an aggrieved employee to compel the State Personnel Board or a local civil service commission to certify the employee for appointment to a civil service position. The form may be used whether the case is one of original appointment, transfer, reinstatement, promotion, or demotion [see Gov. Code § 19050; Ballf v. Civil Service Commission (1941) 43 Cal. App. 2d 211, 215, 110 P.2d 478 (writ of mandate affirmed to extent it compelled certification for employment)].

[3] California Points and Authorities

For a memorandum of points and authorities for use in a mandate proceeding to compel appointment of the petitioner from a list of eligible persons to civil service position, see Clifornia Points And Authorities Ch. 36, Civil Service (Matthew Bender)

[4] State Statutes

Certification and appointment from list of eligible persons in state civil service. Gov. Code § 19050 et seq.

[5] Decisions

Appointment of highest ranking eligible person as mandatory when charter so states. Ballf v. Civil Service Commission (1941) 43 Cal. App. 2d 211, 215, 110 P.2d 478

In mandate proceeding to compel appointment from list of eligible persons, petitioner as not entitled to retroactive salary increase for new position, but petitioner as entitled to rights of seniority as of date his name should have been certified for appointment. Ballf v. Civil Service Commission (1941) 43 Cal. App. 2d 211, 216, 110 P.2d 478

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART V. FORMS

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.146

§ 118.146 Allegations--For Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086]--To Review Decision of State Personnel Board or Local Civil Service Commission and to Compel Board or Commission to Conduct Promotional Examination

[1] FORM Allegations--For Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086]--To Review Decision of State Personnel Board or Local Civil Service Commission and to Compel Board or Commission to Conduct Promotional Examination

1. Petitioner is now and has been since _____[date] employed in _____ [name of employing agency].
2. Since _____ [date] the position of _____ [specify] has been unfilled [except by temporary appointment]. This position is subject to the civil service provisions of _____ [Government Code Section 18950 or specify relevant provision of charter or ordinance], which requires that vacant civil service positions be filled by means of a promotional examination when practicable [and in the best interests of the state].
3. Petitioner desires to take a promotional examination for the position of _____ [specify]. Petitioner is fully competent and qualified to perform all of the duties of that position and is fully qualified to take a promotional examination on the basis of ascertained merit and records of service, and also on the basis of any other qualification that may reasonably be required by respondent as a prerequisite for taking a promotional examination for the position.

4. It is practicable [and in the interests of the state] to create a list of eligible persons for this position by holding a promotional examination and to fill the position as the result of that promotional examination.
5. On _____ [date] respondent _____ [Commission or Board] gave notice that commencing on _____ [date] an examination would be held for the position of _____ [specify], and contrary to law, respondent did not make the examination promotional but provided that the examination would be open and competitive as follows: _____ [specify requirements for taking examination].
6. In failing to make the examination promotional from the next lowest rank, respondent violated the rights of petitioner under _____ [Government Code Section 18950 or specify relevant provision of charter or ordinance].

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing allegations are for use in a petition for writ of mandate by a state or local civil service employee, to review a decision of a state or local civil service agency and to compel the agency to conduct a promotional examination.

Managerial positions are excepted from the rule that vacancies in civil service positions must be filled from promotional lists of civil service employees holding positions in appropriate classes. Managerial positions are filled from a list of applicants who have taken an open examination and are ranked in accordance with the score received [Gov. Code § 18950; see Gov. Code §§ 18930, 19054.1].

[3] California Points and Authorities

For a memorandum in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to compel a civil service agency to hold a promotional examination rather than an open examination, see Clifornia Points And Authorities, Ch. 36, Civil Service (Matthew Bender)

[4] State Statutes

Conditions for promotional examination in state civil service. Gov. Code §§ 18950-18955

[5] Decisions

When charter provision requires promotional examinations when practicable, discretion of local civil service boards as limited in determining practicability. Rhodehamel v. Civil Service Board (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 709, 712, 117 P.2d 349 ; Allen v. McKinley (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 697, 700, 117 P.2d 342

City charter provision that all vacancies be filled by promotion on competitive examination unless approved by personnel board for exceptional circumstances as proper until legislature decides otherwise or supreme court rejects determination that city employees can be given preference for vacancies. Santa Monica Mun. Employees Assn. v. City of Santa Monica (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1538, 1546, 237 Cal. Rptr. 185

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 11: Carriers thru Civil Service-Chs.109-118
Chapter 118 CIVIL SERVICE
PART V. FORMS

11-118 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 118.147

§ 118.147 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333; Gov. Code § 8547.8(c)] for Retaliation Against State Employee or Applicant for State Employment for Disclosure Protected by California Whistleblower Protection Act [Gov. Code § 8547.8(c)]

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333; Gov. Code § 8547.8(c)] for Retaliation Against State Employee or Applicant for State Employment for Disclosure Protected by California Whistleblower Protection Act [Gov. Code § 8547.8(c)]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES
_____ [name],	)	(Retaliation for Disclosure Protected by California
[and DOES I through _____,]	)	Whistleblower Protection Act)
Defendants.	)	[Amount demanded _____
	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

_____

Plaintiff alleges:
1. Plaintiff is, and at all times mentioned in this complaint was, an _____ [employee of or applicant for employment with] _____ [specify state agency] [located in _____ (city), _____ County, California].
2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times mentioned in this complaint was, _____ [allege identity and capacity of defendant, e.g., plaintiff's immediate supervisor and] a resident of _____ County, California.
[3. Defendants Doe I through Doe _____, inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names. Their true names and capacities are unknown to plaintiff. When their true names and capacities are ascertained, plaintiff will amend this complaint by inserting their true names and capacities herein. Plaintiff is informed and believes, and thereon alleges, that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those defendants.]

4. _____ [Describe plaintiff's disclosure of improper governmental activity or other protected disclosure, e.g., On _____ (date) plaintiff filed a complaint with the State Auditor alleging that several employees in the Department of _____ (specify) were appropriating motor vehicles owned by the State of California to their own personal uses without permission or authorization to do so].
5. On _____ [date], in retaliation for plaintiff's disclosures, defendant intentionally _____ [allege defendant's intentional acts of retaliation against plaintiff, e.g., caused plaintiff to be transferred from his/her supervisory position to a clerical position at a substantially reduced rate of pay].
6. On _____ [date], plaintiff filed a written complaint with _____ [specify manager, supervisor, or agency, e.g., defendant], alleging defendant's retaliatory acts as described above. On _____ [date], plaintiff filed _____ [a copy of the complaint filed with defendant or a written complaint] with the State Personnel Board, alleging defendant's retaliatory acts as described above.
7. On or about _____ [date], the State Personnel Board commenced an investigation of plaintiff's complaint. The Board _____ [has issued findings or has failed to issue findings] pursuant to Government Code Section 19683.
8. As a proximate result of defendant's retaliatory acts, as described above, plaintiff _____ [specify detriment suffered by plaintiff and resulting damages, e.g., has been unable to support himself/herself and his/her family because of his/her inability to obtain employment of a kind and at a salary level comparable to the position from which he/she was transferred, all to plaintiff's damage in the sum of $_____].
[9. As a further proximate result of defendant's retaliatory acts, _____ (describe any further detriment and resulting damages, e.g., plaintiff has become emotionally distressed and physically ill, all to plaintiff's damage in the sum of $_____).]

[10. Defendant's retaliatory acts, as described above, were done maliciously and willfully and were intended to cause injury to plaintiff. Plaintiff therefore requests an award of punitive damages in an amount appropriate to punish defendant for his/her/its misconduct and to deter others from engaging in similar misconduct.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant[s, and each of them,] as follows:
1. For compensatory damages in the sum of $_____;

[2. For punitive damages in an amount appropriate to punish defendant for his/her/its misconduct and to deter others from engaging in similar misconduct;]

3. For plaintiff's reasonable attorney's fees expended in this action.

4. For costs of suit incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use by a state employee or applicant for state employment, to bring an action for damages against any person who intentionally engaged in acts of reprisal, retaliation, threats, coercion, or similar acts, against the employee or applicant for having made a protected disclosure under the California Whistleblower Protection Act [Gov. Code § 8547.3(a); see Gov. Code § 8547 et seq.]. A "protected disclosure" under the Act is any good-faith communication, including any communication based on, or when carrying out, job duties, that discloses or demonstrates an intention to disclose information that may evidence (1) improper governmental activity or (2) any condition that may significantly threaten the health or safety of employees or the public if the disclosure or intention to disclose is made for the purpose of remedying that condition [Gov. Code § 8547.2(d); see Gov. Code § 8547.2(b) ("improper governmental activity" defined)]. As a prerequisite to bringing the action, the injured party must have first filed a complaint with the State Personnel Board [see Gov. Code § 8547.8(a)], and the board must have issued, or failed to issue, findings pursuant to Gov. Code § 19683 [Gov. Code § 8547.8(c)].

The form may be modified to allege retaliation against an employee of the University of California or the California State University who makes protected disclosures [Gov. Code §§ 8547.10-8547.12]. Paragraph 6 should specify the university supervisor, manager, or designated officer with whom the administrative complaint was filed. If the defendant is the California State University, Paragraph 7 should allege that the university failed to reach a decision on the plaintiff's administrative complaint within the time established for that purpose by the trustees, or did not within 18 months address the administrative complaint to the plaintiff's satisfaction [see Gov. Code § 8547.12(a), (c); Runyon v. Board of Trs. of Cal. State Univ. (2010) 48 Cal. 4th 760, 767-773, 108 Cal. Rptr. 3d 557, 229 P.3d 985] . If the defendant is the University of California, Paragraph 7 should allege that the university failed to reach a decision on the plaintiff's administrative complaint within the time established for that purpose by the regents [see Gov. Code § 8547.10(a), (c)]. In the case of a claim against the University of California, any timely decision by the university on the administrative claim--even a decision in its own favor--bars an action for damages [Gov. Code § 8547.10(c); Miklosy v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 876, 888-898, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 690, 188 P.3d 629].

[3] Allegations

This form alleges the following:

- Plaintiff's status as a state employee or applicant for state employment (Paragraph 1) [Gov. Code § 8547.8(c)];

- Plaintiff's protected disclosure of improper governmental activities (Paragraph 4) [Gov. Code § 19683(e); see Gov. Code §§ 8547.3(a), 8547.8(c)];

- Defendant's acts of reprisal, retaliation, threats, coercion, or similar acts against plaintiff for having made the disclosure (Paragraph 5) [Gov. Code § 8547.8(c)];

- Plaintiff's filing of a complaint with his or her manager, supervisor, or agency, and with the State Personnel Board, alleging defendant's retaliatory acts (Paragraph 6) [Gov. Code § 8547.8(a), (c)];

- The board's issuance of, or failure to issue, findings regarding that complaint pursuant to Gov. Code § 19683 (Paragraph 7) [Gov. Code § 8547.8(c)];

- Detriment to the plaintiff proximately caused by defendant's acts, together with resulting damages (Paragraphs 8 and, 9) [see Gov. Code § 8547.8(c)].

The form includes an optional allegation to obtain punitive damages (Paragraph 10) [Gov. Code § 8547.8(c)].

[4] Reimbursement of Defense Costs

A state employee who provides his or her own defense in an action brought for retaliation against a whistle-blower must be reimbursed by the public entity for any costs incurred in the defense if it is established that no violation of the governing law [see Gov. Code §§ 8547.3, 8547.8] occurred. Conversely, if the public entity provides the defense, and a violation is found, the public employee must reimburse the public entity [Gov. Code § 995.3].

[5] Related Liabilities

[a] State Civil Service System

In addition to the liability alleged in this complaint, any state employee who uses, or attempts to use, his or her official authority or influence to, or to attempt to, intimidate, threaten, coerce, or command any person for the purpose interfering with that person's right to disclose improper governmental activities to the State Auditor, may be liable in an action for civil damages brought against the employee by the injured person [Gov. Code § 8547.3(c)].

[b] Local Civil Service Systems

Any local officer, manager, or supervisor [see Gov. Code § 53296] who has been found by a court to have taken a reprisal action [see Gov. Code § 53296(j)], with malicious intent, against any local agency employee or applicant for employment for disclosing improper governmental activities [see Gov. Code § 53296(c)] is individually liable for damages in an action by the injured employee [Gov. Code § 53298.5(b)].

[6] Venue

The county in which the cause of action arose is the proper venue for an action against either (a) a public officer or person especially appointed to execute his or her duties for an act done by him or her in virtue of his office or (b) a person who, by his or her command or in his or her aid, does anything touching the duties of the public officer [Code Civ. Proc. § 393(b)].

[7] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

A public entity need not verify its answer even though the complaint is verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. The verification of a complaint against a public entity does, however, preclude a general denial in superior court cases of unlimited jurisdiction and in some limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)].

[8] Cross References

For alternative allegations as to agency, capacity, and residence of parties, and fictitious name allegations, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used

For alternative forms of captions and introductions, see Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions

For discussion and forms relating to the format of complaints, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints

For discussion and forms relating to damages and pleading damages, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq.

For discussion and forms relating to fax service and filing of papers, see Ch. 264, Fax Filing and Service of Papers

For discussion of jurisdiction in California courts in general, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal , and Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter

For discussion and forms for use in actions against public employees and public entities generally, see Ch. 467, Public Entities and Officers: Enforcement of Judgments Against Public Entities

For alternative forms of prayers, see Ch. 420, Prayers

For discussion and forms relating to service of summons generally, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers

For forms of allegations showing proper venue, see Ch. 571, Venue , Pt. I

For alternative forms of verification, see Ch. 572, Verification

[9] California Employment Law

For discussion of other statutory and common-law protections against wrongful termination of employment, see Wilcox, California Employment Law, Ch. 60 (Matthew Bender)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 119.syn

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.syn Synopsis to Chapter 119: CLAIM AND DELIVERY

§ 119.01 Scope

§ 119.02 Cross References

[1] Generally Related Topics

[2] Action for Possession of Personal Property

[3] Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

§§ 119.03through 119.09 [Reserved]

§ 119.10 Action and Remedy

[1] Distinguished

[2] Action for Possession of Personal Property

[3] Claim and Delivery as Auxiliary Remedy

[4] Claim and Delivery as Provisional Remedy

§ 119.11 Stay of Proceedings Under Servicemembers Civil Relief Act

§§ 119.12through 119.19 [Reserved]

§ 119.20 Scope of Subpart

§ 119.21 Governing Statutes

§ 119.22 Purpose and Nature of Action

[1] To Obtain Possession

[2] Distinguished From Conversion

[3] Distinguished From Consumer Protection Statutes

§ 119.23 Who May Bring Action

§ 119.24 Property Recoverable

[1] Some Tangible Form Required

[2] Recovery From Law Enforcement Officers

§ 119.25 Possession by Defendant Required

§ 119.26 Demand

[1] Required When Possession Originally Lawful

[2] When Demand Not Required

§ 119.27 Deposit or Delivery Pending Suit

§ 119.28 Jury Finding of Value of Property

[1] Requirement

[2] Value of Special Interest in Property

[3] Time of Valuation

§ 119.29 Alternative Judgment

[1] Possession of Property or Payment of its Value

[2] When Alternative Judgment Not Required

§ 119.30 Damages for Taking or Detention of Property

[1] Recoverable

[2] Interest or Rental Value

[3] Depreciation

[4] Deterioration and Business Loss

[5] Award of Exemplary Damages

[6] Attorney's Fees Not Recoverable

§§ 119.31through 119.39 [Reserved]

§ 119.40 Scope

§ 119.41 Governing Statutes

§ 119.42 Claim and Delivery of Personal Property

§ 119.43 Obtaining Writ of Possession

[1] Time Requirement

[2] Notice of Application

[a] Notice Generally Required

[b] Contents of Notice

[3] Contents of Application

[4] Supporting Declarations or Affidavits

[5] Service

[6] Filing

[7] Opposing Papers

[8] Hearing on Application for Writ

[a] Evidence Considered

[b] Failure to Oppose Application

[c] Conditions for Issuing Writ

[9] Contents of Writ

[10] Turnover Order

§ 119.44 Obtaining Temporary Restraining Order

[1] Available to Prevent Transfer of Property

[2] Grounds Justifying Ex Parte Issuance

[3] Acts That May Be Restrained

[4] Period of Effectiveness

§ 119.45 Execution of Writ

[1] Levy of Property by Levying Officer

[2] Search of Private Place Not Specified in Writ

[3] Delivery or Service of Copy of Writ

[4] Disposition of Property by Levying Officer

[5] Return of Writ

§ 119.46 Ex Parte Application for Writ

[1] Conditions for Ex Parte Issuance of Writ

[2] Requirements

[3] Issuance

[4] Service of Papers

[5] Motion to Quash Writ

§ 119.47 Undertakings

[1] Required Undertaking by Plaintiff

[2] Optional Undertaking by Defendant

§ 119.48 Third-Party Claims

§ 119.49 Redelivery by Plaintiff on Failure to Obtain Judgment

§ 119.50 Relevance of Court's Determinations to Other Actions

§§ 119.51through 119.59 [Reserved]

§ 119.60 Federal Statutes

§§ 119.61through 119.69 [Reserved]

§ 119.70 State Statutes

[1] Right of Possession

[2] Judgment for Recovery

[3] Statement of Decision

[4] Damages

[5] Statute of Limitations

§ 119.71 Decisions

[1] Who May Bring Action

[2] Action for Possession of Personal Property

[3] Action by Lienholder

[4] Property Recoverable

[5] Description of Property

[6] Damages For Taking or Retention of Property

[7] Judgment for Posession of Personal Property

[8] Statute of Limitations

§ 119.72 Text References

[1] Claim and Delivery

[2] Conversion

[3] Judgment and Recovery

§§ 119.73through 119.79 [Reserved]

§ 119.80 State Statutes

[1] Definitions

[2] Writ of Possession

[3] Temporary Restraining Order

[4] Application for Writ of Possession

[5] Hearing on Application

[6] Affidavits

[7] Undertaking

[8] Levy and Custody

§ 119.81 Decisions

§ 119.82 Law Reviews

§ 119.83 Text References

§§ 119.84through 119.89 [Reserved]

§ 119.90 Plaintiff's Checklist for Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

[1] Obtain Necessary Facts and Documents

[2] Determine Whether to Proceed by Noticed Hearing or Ex Parte

[3] Prepare Application for Writ and Supporting Papers

[4] Noticed Hearing Procedure

[5] Ex Parte Procedure for Issuance of Writ

[6] Endorsement of Writ to Seize Property in Place Not Specified in Writ

[7] Objection to Defendant's Undertaking

§ 119.91 Defendant's Checklist for Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

[1] Appearance to Oppose Application for Writ

[2] Noticed Hearing to Quash Ex Parte Writ of Possession

[3] Undertaking to Stay Delivery of Property

[4] Objection to Plaintiff's Undertaking

§§ 119.92through 119.99 [Reserved]

§ 119.100 Complaint for Possession of Personal Property or Its Value and for Damages for Its Wrongful Detention [Civ. Code §§ 667, 3379, 3380; Code Civ. Proc. § 667]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Venue

[a] In General

[b] Action Based on Certain Obligations

[5] Statute of Limitations

[6] Verification

[7] Cross References

§ 119.101 Allegations For Use in Complaint for Possession of Personal Property By Owner Against Lienholder Refusing Tender [Civ. Code §§ 3379, 3380]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 119.102 Demurrer to Complaint for Possession of Personal Property for Insufficient Description of Property Sought to Be Recovered [Civ. Code §§ 3379, 3380; Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 119.103 Answer to Complaint for Possession of Personal Property Denying Plaintiff's Right to Possession and Asserting Defendant's Right to Possession [Civ. Code §§ 3379, 3380]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Affirmative Relief

[4] Cross References

§ 119.104 Judgment for Plaintiff After Nonjury Trial for Possession of Personal Property or Its Value and for Damages for Its Detention [Civ. Code §§ 3379, 3380; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 664, 667]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] When Judgment Entered

[4] Cross References

§§ 119.105-119.109 [Reserved]

§ 119.110 Notice of Application for Writ of Possession and Hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.040]--Judicial Council Form CD-110

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Service of Notice

[4] Cross References

§ 119.111 Application for Writ of Possession and for Temporary Restraining Order [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 512.010, 513.010]--Judicial Council Form CD-100

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Application for Writ of Possession

[4] Ex Parte Application

[5] Notice Requirements for Ex Parte Application

[6] Temporary Restraining Order

[7] Oath or Declaration Under Penalty of Perjury

[8] Accompanying Papers

[9] Cross References

§ 119.112 Order for Writ of Possession [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 512.060, 512.070]--Judicial Council Form CD-120

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Issuance of Writ

§ 119.113 Writ of Possession [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 512.080, 512.090]--Judicial Council Form CD-130

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Requirements for Writ

§ 119.114 Declaration for Temporary Restraining Order [Code Civ. Proc. § 513.020]--Judicial Council Form

CD-190

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Affidavits and Declarations

[4] Cross References

§ 119.115 Temporary Restraining Order [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 513.010, 513.020]--Judicial Council Form CD-200

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 119.116 Declaration for Ex Parte Writ of Possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)]--Judicial Council Form CD-180

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Ex Parte Writ of Possession

[4] Affidavits and Declarations

[5] Declaration Regarding Notice of Ex Parte Application

[6] Cross References

§ 119.117 Application and Notice of Application and Hearing for Order to Quash Ex Parte Writ of Possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)]--Judicial Council Form CD-160

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Motion to Quash

§ 119.118 Order for Release and Redelivery of Property [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)]--Judicial Council Form CD-170

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Order

Edythe L. Bronston, Esq.

Alan M. Mirman, Esq.

David J. Pasternak, Esq.
Contributing Editors n*

FOOTNOTES:
(n34)Footnote *.
Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART I. SCOPE

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.01

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.01 Scope

This chapter discusses [see § 119.20 et seq.] and includes forms [see § 119.100 et seq.] relating to the action for possession of personal property.

The chapter also discusses [see § 119.40 et seq.] and provides forms [see § 119.110 et seq.] relating to the provisional remedy of claim and delivery. It also contains a procedural checklist for plaintiff [see § 119.90] and defendant [see § 119.91] for the provisional remedy of claim and delivery.

The chapter also discusses the distinction between the action and the remedy [see § 119.10 et seq.].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevins

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART I. SCOPE

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.02

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.02 Cross References

[1] Generally Related Topics

For related topics, see the following chapters:

- For discussion and forms relating to actions involving conditional sales of motor vehicles, see Ch. 89, Automobiles: Sales and Financing Under the Rees-Levering Act .

- For discussion and forms relating to bailments of personal property, see Ch. 93, Bailments .

- For discussion, procedures, and forms for use in seeking damages for conversion, see Ch. 150, Conversion .

- For discussion and forms relating to the obligation, created by negotiable and nonnegotiable documents of title, to deliver goods covered by the documents, see Ch. 213, Documents of Title .

- For discussion, procedures, and forms relating to the transfer of escheated property to its rightful owner, see Ch. 252, Escheat (Unclaimed Property).

- For discussion and forms relating to setting aside fraudulent transfers of personal property, see Ch. 270, Fraudulent Conveyances .

- For discussion and forms relating to the garnishment of deposit accounts and personal property in safe deposit boxes, see Ch. 276, Garnishment .

- For discussion and a form relating to the recovery of a gift made in contemplation of marriage, see Ch. 278, Gifts .

- For discussion and forms relating to disposition of personal property remaining on landlord's premises, see Ch. 332, Landlord and Tenant: The Tenancy .

- For discussion and forms relating to the enforcement of liens generally, see Ch. 342, Liens and Wage Preferences .

- For discussion and forms relating to lost and unclaimed property, see Ch. 355, Lost and Unclaimed Property .

- For discussion and forms relating to actions arising from sales or contracts to sell goods under Division 2 of the Commercial Code [Com. Code § 2101 et seq.], see Ch. 500, Sales: Sales Under the Commercial Code .

- For discussion and forms relating to remedies under the Unruh Act [Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.], which governs retail installment sales transactions, see Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales .

- For discussion and forms relating to actions arising out of transactions secured by personal property or fixtures, see Ch. 503, Sales: Secured Transactions .

[2] Action for Possession of Personal Property

For discussion and forms relating to deposits in court, see Ch. 211, Deposit in Court .

[3] Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

For other provisional remedies, see the following chapters:

- For discussion and forms relating to the provisional remedy of attachment, see Ch. 62, Attachment .

- For discussion and forms relating to third party claims under Enforcement of Judgments Law (Code Civ. Proc. § 720.010 et seq.), see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.310 et seq.

- For discussion, procedures, and forms relating to temporary restraining orders, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

For procedures relating to claim and delivery, see the following chapters:

- For discussion and forms relating to motions and orders generally, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

- For discussion and forms relating to sureties' rights and liabilities and to actions on bonds and undertakings, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGarnishmentsContracts LawTypes of ContractsBailmentsEstate, Gift & Trust LawPersonal GiftsGeneral OverviewTortsBusiness TortsFraud & MisrepresentationConstructive FraudGeneral OverviewTortsIntentional TortsConversionGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART I. SCOPE

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 119.03through 119.09

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

[Reserved]

§§ 119.03[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Distinction Between Action and Remedy

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.10

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.10 Action and Remedy

[1] Distinguished

Although courts and attorneys often and confusingly use the term "claim and delivery" with respect to both an action for specific recovery of property and the provisional remedy of claim and delivery, the two are fundamentally different [McFaddin v. H.S. Crocker Co. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 585, 590, 33 Cal. Rptr. 389 ; see Goldie v. Bauchet Properties (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 307, 320 n.9, 124 Cal. Rptr. 161, 540 P.2d 1 (defendants erred in arguing that plaintiff was barred from recovering under certain provisions of claim and delivery law that had been held unconstitutional when plaintiff's action was substantive action for recovery of specific property and not provisional remedy of claim and delivery)].

[2] Action for Possession of Personal Property

A person who is entitled to the possession of personal property held by another may bring an action for the specific recovery of that property [McFaddin v. H.S. Crocker Co. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 585, 590, 33 Cal. Rptr. 389] . This action for the recovery of specific personal property is the equivalent of the common law writ of replevin [Berry v. Bank of Bakersfield (1918) 177 Cal. 206, 209, 170 P. 415] .

[3] Claim and Delivery as Auxiliary Remedy

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 511.010-516.050 (claim and delivery of personal property) provide an auxiliary remedy by which a person bringing an action to recover personal property may claim the property and have it immediately delivered to him or her upon or at any time after the commencement of the action without waiting for trial [see Faulkner v. First National Bank (1900) 130 Cal. 258, 263, 62 P. 463 (discussing former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 509-521, now Code Civ. Proc. §§ 511.010-516.050)]. The remedy is available in any action in which a plaintiff asserts a present right to the possession of personal property [Ananda Church of Self-Realization v. Massachusetts Bay Insurance Co. (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1273, 1281-1282, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370] , if immediate possession of the personal property is important to the plaintiff [McFaddin v. H.S. Crocker Co. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 585, 590, 33 Cal. Rptr. 389] . The remedy cannot be employed independently (McFaddin v. H.S. Crocker Co. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 585, 590, 33 Cal. Rptr. 389] .

[4] Claim and Delivery as Provisional Remedy

The remedy of claim and delivery gives only temporary possession to a plaintiff. The title and right to possession are determined by the final judgment in the independent action from which the remedy of claim and delivery arose [McFaddin v. H.S. Crocker Co. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 585, 590, 33 Cal. Rptr. 389] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevins

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Distinction Between Action and Remedy

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.11

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.11 Stay of Proceedings Under Servicemembers Civil Relief Act

In proceedings for either an action for possession or the provisional remedy of claim and delivery, if the defendant is in military service, the court may have the discretion to stay the proceedings under the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.) [50 U.S.C. App. §§ 522, 524]. Additionally, if the action for claim and delivery is based on nonpayment of an installment or other breach of an installment contract to purchase property, the court may order repayment of prior installments or deposits, or any part thereof, as a condition of terminating the contract and resuming possession of the property [see 50 U.S.C. App. §§ 532, 534; see also 50 U.S.C. App. §§ 511 (definitions), 514, 516, 538 (additional persons protected by act)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsContracts LawTypes of ContractsInstallment ContractsMilitary & Veterans LawServicemembersGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Distinction Between Action and Remedy

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 119.12through 119.19

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

[Reserved]

§§ 119.12[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Action for Possession of Personal Property

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.20

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.20 Scope of Subpart

This part discusses the action for possession of personal property. Part V includes the following forms for use in an action for possession of personal property:

- Complaint for the possession of personal property [§ 119.100[1]].
- An allegation for use in such a complaint [§ 119.101[1]].
- Demurrer [§ 119.102[1]].
- Answer [§ 119.103[1]].
- Judgment for plaintiff after a nonjury trial [§ 119.104]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevins

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Action for Possession of Personal Property

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.21

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.21 Governing Statutes

Civ. Code § 3379 gives statutory recognition to the action for possession of personal property and Civ. Code § 3380 provides specific relief in the form of compelling the delivery of personal property to the person entitled to immediate possession of it. Court orders for the deposit in court or delivery to the owner of personal property pending suit are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 572 and Code Civ. Proc. § 574. The requirements of a verdict and a judgment in an action for the possession of personal property are provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 627 and Code Civ. Proc. § 667, respectively; the enforcement of such a judgment is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 712.010-712.070, 714.010-714.030.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevins

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Action for Possession of Personal Property

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.22

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.22 Purpose and Nature of Action

[1] To Obtain Possession

The purpose of an action for possession of personal property is to enforce a plaintiff's right to the present possession of a chattel against a defendant who detains the chattel without right [Commercial & Sav. Bk. v. Foster (1930) 210 Cal. 76, 79, 290 P. 583 ; Simms v. NPCK Enterprises, Inc. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 233, 243, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 557 (claim and delivery is proper remedy to recover possession of collateral)].

The action, thus, is a possessory action [Feigin v. Kutchor (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 744, 747, 234 P.2d 264] that specifically compels any person having the possession or control of a particular article of personal property of which he or she is not the owner to deliver it to the person entitled to its immediate possession [Civ. Code § 3380].

[2] Distinguished From Conversion

An action for possession of personal property should be distinguished from an action for conversion [Commercial & Sav. Bk. v. Foster (1930) 210 Cal. 76, 79, 290 P. 583] . In an action for possession of personal property, a plaintiff never ceases to claim the property as his or her own. Instead, the plaintiff seeks to obtain the property rather than its value and may also seek the value of the property's use while he or she is unlawfully deprived of it. In an action for conversion, however, a plaintiff concedes a change in title, recognizes the defendant's ownership, and seeks damages for the value of the property at the time of its taking by defendant [Tucker v. Hagerty (1918) 37 Cal. App. 789, 792-793, 174 P. 908 ; see Civ. Code § 3336 (damages for conversion of personalty)]. Thus, an action for possession of personal property seeks recovery of the property itself while an action for conversion seeks recovery of damages for the alleged conversion [Commercial & Sav. Bk. v. Foster (1930) 210 Cal. 76, 79, 290 P. 583] . For discussion and forms relating to actions for conversion, see Ch. 150, Conversion .

[3] Distinguished From Consumer Protection Statutes

Almost all of the cases involving an action for possession of personal property predate various consumer protection statutes and other legislation (identified below) that regulate personal property transactions andinclude provisions governing disputes. In many cases, the statutory schemes provide for repossession and other remedies and impose related notice, venue, and verification requirements. The statutes and the cases decided under them do not expressly indicate whether the statutory provisions, when applicable, supplant the traditional claim and delivery cause of action, or whether these two sets of remedies may coexist in some way. However, most of the statutory requirements are mandatory when applicable. Thus, as a practical matter, the statutory remedies will be pursued when available, and the traditional cause of action will be utilized only in relatively simple transactions when the dispute is outside the statutory schemes. Examples of these simple transactions may include disputes between or among housemates or relatives, and a sales transaction that does not involve a "transaction in goods" [see Com. Code § 2102; see also Com. Code § 2101 et seq.] or an installment contract or a lien. The scope of this chapter is limited to coverage of the traditional cause of action. For comprehensive coverage of potentially applicable statutory remedies, the reader should refer to the chapters identified below.

The following is a list of significant statutory provisions that may apply to a dispute involving the possession of personal property:

(1) Division 2 of the Commercial Code [Com. Code § 2101 et seq.], which governs sales or contracts to sell goods [for coverage of actions arising from these sales or contracts, see Chapter 500, Sales: Sales Under the Commercial Code].

(2) Division 9 of the Commercial Code [Com. Code § 9101 et seq.], which regulates transactions secured by personal property (including fixtures) [see Ch. 503, Sales: Secured Transactions].

(3) The Unruh Act [Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.], also known as the Retail Installment Sales Act, which governs retail installment sales transactions and includes provisions governing repossession and resale [see Civ. Code §§ 1812.2-1812.5; Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales].

(4) The Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act [Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.], which regulates sales of motor vehicles under conditional sale contracts [see Ch. 89, Automobiles: Sales and Financing Under the Rees-Levering Act .

Other statutes that may relate to disputes governing the possession of personal property include (1) Civ. Code § 1590, which covers the recovery of gifts made in contemplation of marriage [see Ch. 278, Gifts] (2) statutory provisions governing various miscellaneous liens, including artisans' and jewelers' liens [see Civ. Code § 3046 et seq.; see also Ch. 342, Liens and Wage Preferences]; (3) Division 10 of the Commercial Code [Com. Code § 10101 et seq.], regulating personal property leases [see Ch. 413, Personal Property Leases ; see also Civ. Code §§ 1925-1935, 1955-1959 (regulating bailments for hire, which generally are personal property leases made or first effective before 1990)]; and Civ. Code § 1965, providing for the return of a tenant's personal property left on the premises after the tenant has vacated the premises [see Ch. 332, Landlord and Tenant: The Tenancy].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Antitrust & Trade LawConsumer ProtectionDeceptive Acts & PracticesState RegulationCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsTortsIntentional TortsConversionGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Action for Possession of Personal Property

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.23

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.23 Who May Bring Action

An action for possession of personal property can be brought only by a person who is entitled to immediate possession of the property [see Civ. Code § 3379]. The person need not be the absolute owner of the property [Commercial & Sav. Bk. v. Foster (1930) 210 Cal. 76, 79-80, 290 P. 583] , or be vested with legal title [Feigin v. Kutchor (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 744, 747, 234 P.2d 264] so long as the person holds some qualified interest in the property that entitles him or her to its possession [International Airports, Inc. v. Finn (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 293, 297, 282 P.2d 102 (possessory aircraft lien [Code Civ. Proc. § 1208.61] on plane for value of work and materials furnished)].

However, an owner in common of a chattel cannot bring an action for the possession of personal property against his or her co-owner in possession when the property was not lost or destroyed, nor removed from the state, and the interests of plaintiff and defendant are indivisible. Thus, for example, a person deprived of the use and control of a tractor by his co-owner was entitled to only a pro rata share of the tractor's rental value during the period of his ouster, but was not entitled to bring an action for its possession [Estergren v. Sager (1940) 39 Cal. App. 2d 401, 403, 103 P.2d 177] . Similarly, a person in possession of a chattel cannot bring the action while continuing in possession of it [Ramacciotti v. Galiano (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 8, 12, 137 P.2d 722 (plaintiffs not entitled to bring action for possession of personal property when they were in possession of the property on their ranch, although defendants refused to permit them to remove property from ranch)].

In addition, the action cannot be brought if there is any preliminary act or condition precedent to be performed before the unqualified right to possession attaches. Thus, an action for possession cannot be maintained by the holder of a possessory interest in the property that is acquired after the commencement of the action [see Teater v. Good Hope Dev. Corp. (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 196, 209, 93 P.2d 112] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevins

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Action for Possession of Personal Property

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.24

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.24 Property Recoverable

[1] Some Tangible Form Required

Property that may be recovered in an action for possession of personal property must exist in some concrete or tangible form that is capable of identification and seizure [Ashton v. Heydenfeldt (1899) 124 Cal. 14, 16, 56 P. 624 ; Lamus v. Engwicht (1919) 39 Cal. App. 523, 528-529, 179 P. 435] .

Shares of corporate stock are recoverable only if the action seeks to recover the certificates that represent the shares [Ashton v. Heydenfeldt (1899) 124 Cal. 14, 16, 56 P. 624 ; Lamus v. Engwicht (1919) 39 Cal. App. 523, 529, 179 P. 435] . Similarly, money cannot be the subject of an action for possession of personal property unless it is marked or designated in some way so as to make it specifically identifiable [Hillyer v. Eggers (1917) 32 Cal. App. 764, 766, 164 P. 27] .

[2] Recovery From Law Enforcement Officers

If property seized by law enforcement officers is not returned but a criminal action is not commenced, the owner of the property can obtain possession of the property by a civil action for possession of the property against the law enforcement officers [Ligda v. Edmunds (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 715, 718, 94 Cal. Rptr. 234] . If such an action is filed, the claim and other requirements of the Tort Claims Act [Gov. Code § 810 et seq.] must be met. For a discussion of this act, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

If a criminal action is filed, the owner of the property can obtain possession of the property by a motion in that action for return of the seized property, even if the seized property was not introduced in evidence [see Penal Code §§ 1536, 1538.5, 1540; People v. Superior Court (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 600, 607-612, 104 Cal. Rptr. 876 ; see Ligda v. Edmunds (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 715, 716-717, 94 Cal. Rptr. 234 (motion not proper if no action filed)]. For discussion, see California Criminal Defense Practice, § 23.04 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityState Tort Claims ActsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Action for Possession of Personal Property

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.25

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.25 Possession by Defendant Required

An action for possession of personal property may be maintained only if a defendant has the possession of the property or the power to deliver it to the plaintiff in satisfaction of a judgment for its return [Stockton M.P. Co. v. Mariposa County (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 210, 215, 221 P.2d 232 ; see Lueter v. State of California (2002) 94 Cal. App. 4th 1285, 1300, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 68] . The requirement of possession may be satisfied by either actual or constructive possession of the property [Lamus v. Engwicht (1919) 39 Cal. App. 523, 529, 179 P. 435] . Thus, an action is proper against a defendant who has control over the property or is able to deliver the property to the plaintiff even if the defendant does not have actual physical possession of it [Taylor v. Bernheim (1922) 58 Cal. App. 404, 408, 209 P. 55] .

In addition, a defendant must be in possession at the time the action is commenced, even if the defendant does not have possession of the property after commencement of the suit [Law v. Heiniger (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 898, 901 , 282 P.2d 607 (finding that defendant did not have possession of disputed property after commencement of suit as immaterial)]. However, when the original taking by a defendant is lawful and its subsequent detention wrongful, possession of the property by the defendant at the time of the commencement of the action is not required [Faulkner v. First National Bank (1900) 130 Cal. 258, 264-266, 62 P. 463] . Subject to this exception, wrongful possession by a defendant at the time of commencement of an action for possession of personal property is an ultimate fact to be pleaded and proved if a plaintiff is to recover the property. Therefore, nonpossession of the property by a defendant constitutes a complete defense to the action [Stockton M.P. Co. v. Mariposa County (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 210, 213, 215, 221 P.2d 232 ; but see Faulkner v. First National Bank (1900) 130Cal. 258, 264-266, 62 P. 463 (nonpossession not a defense when bailee wrongfully disposed of property)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevins

139 of 185 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Action for Possession of Personal Property

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.26

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.26 Demand

[1] Required When Possession Originally Lawful

When a person obtains possession of personal property rightfully or lawfully, he or she cannot be sued for possession of the property until a demand is made on him or her for delivery of the property [Commercial & Sav. Bk. v. Foster (1930) 210 Cal. 76, 82, 290 P. 583 ; Home Payment Jewelry Co. v. Smith (1914) 24 Cal. App. 486, 488, 141 P. 933] . When demand is required it is a condition precedent to the accrual of the cause of action for possession of personal property [First Nat'l Bank v. Thompson (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 79, 82, 140 P.2d 75 ; see Commercial & Sav. Bk. v. Foster (1930) 210 Cal. 76, 82, 290 P. 583] that is wrongfully detained by a person originally coming into possession lawfully [see Latta v. Tutton (1898) 122 Cal. 279, 283, 54 P. 844 (lienor becoming purchaser under void sale)].

Ordinarily, some formal demand is required [see Commercial & Sav. Bk. v. Foster (1930) 210 Cal. 76, 82, 290 P. 583] . It may be oral, such as in the form of conversations [Rathbun v. Hill (1933) 129 Cal. App. 601, 605, 19 P.2d 64] , or it may be by letter, telegram [Law v. Heiniger (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 898, 900 , 282 P.2d 607] , or a valid tender of the amount due to the person in possession of the property [Bogue v. Roeth (1929) 98 Cal. App. 257, 261, 276 P. 1071] . However, a mere notice of default or notice of sale does not constitute a legal demand for return of the property [Commercial & Sav. Bk. v. Foster (1930) 210 Cal. 76, 82, 290 P. 583] .

[2] When Demand Not Required

Demand is not required when a defendant's possession is wrongful from the outset [First Nat'l Bank v. Thompson (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 79, 82, 140 P.2d 75 (tortious taking)] or when a formal demand would be useless or unavailing [Commercial & Sav. Bk. v. Foster (1930) 210 Cal. 76, 82, 290 P. 583] , for example, when the defendants deny the right of a plaintiff to the possession of the property [Rathbun v. Hill (1933) 129 Cal. App. 601, 605, 19 P.2d 64] , assert their own ownership or right to possession [Drinkhouse v. Van Ness (1927) 202 Cal. 359, 373, 260 P. 869 ; Cline v. Smith (1929) 96 Cal. App. 703, 704, 274 P. 763 (erroneous refusal by trial court to instruct that demand unnecessary when defendant asserts title and right to possession in himself or herself)], or stipulate that the plaintiff is entitled to possession [Fran-Well Heater Co. v. Robinson (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 125, 128, 5 Cal. Rptr. 900] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevins

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Action for Possession of Personal Property

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.27

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.27 Deposit or Delivery Pending Suit

When it is admitted by the pleading or shown on examination of a party to the action that the person has in his or her possession or under his or her control any money or other thing capable of delivery that, being the subject of the litigation, is held by the person as trustee for another person, belongs to another person, or is due to another person, or that should, under the circumstances of the case, be held by the court pending final disposition of the action, the court may order the property to be deposited in court or delivered to the other person pending suit on the motion of a party to the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 572]. For discussion and forms for use in seeking a deposit in court pending suit, see Ch. 211, Deposit in Court .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevins

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Action for Possession of Personal Property

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.28

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.28 Jury Finding of Value of Property

[1] Requirement

In an action for the recovery of specific personal property, if the property has not been delivered to the plaintiff and the jury's verdict is in the plaintiff's favor, the jury must find the value of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 627; see Webster v. Mountain Monarch G.M. Co. (1935) 6 Cal. App. 2d 450, 454, 44 P.2d 646] . Similarly, if the defendant claims a return of the property in his or her answer and the jury's verdict is in defendant's favor and finds that he or she is entitled to a return of the property, the jury must find the value of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 627]. The finding of the value of the property is not a finding of damages sustained by the prevailing party. Rather, it is a substitute for, or a precise equivalent of, the property itself in the event the property cannot be returned [Nelson v. Yonge (1925) 73 Cal. App. 704, 710, 239 P. 67 ; see Drinkhouse v. Van Ness (1927) 202 Cal. 359, 374, 260 P. 869] , and forms the basis on which to render an alternative judgment for its value [Webster v. Mountain Monarch G.M. Co. (1935) 6 Cal. App. 2d 450, 454, 44 P.2d 646 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 667; see also the discussions under §§ 119.29, 119.30].

Because the finding of value is solely for the benefit of the prevailing party in the action [Griffith v. Reddick (1919) 41 Cal. App. 458, 461, 182 P. 984] , only the prevailing party cancomplain of the omission to find the value of the property [see Peterson v. First Nat. Bank (1929) 101 Cal. App. 532, 540, 281 P. 1104] .

[2] Value of Special Interest in Property

In an action by a general owner of property against a defendant holding a special interest in the property, the value to be recovered by the defendant when the verdict is in his or her favor is the value of his or her special, or limited, interest [Rathbun v. Hill (1933) 129 Cal. App. 601, 608, 19 P.2d 64] , and if so instructed, the jury must find the value of the specific portions of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 667].

[3] Time of Valuation

The value found is ordinarily the value of the property at the commencement of the trial [Nelson v. Yonge (1925) 73 Cal. App. 704, 710-711, 239 P. 67] . However, if the property is not in existence at the time of trial, the jury may return a verdict finding the value of the property at the time it was taken. For instance, when a horse died after it was taken by a defendant, the jury properly returned a verdict which found the value of the animal at the time of its detention [Drinkhouse v. Van Ness (1927) 202 Cal. 359, 375-376, 260 P. 869] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsProvince of Court & JuryCivil ProcedureRemediesDamagesCompensatory DamagesCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevins

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Action for Possession of Personal Property

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.29

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.29 Alternative Judgment

[1] Possession of Property or Payment of its Value

In an action to recover the possession of personal property, judgment for the plaintiff may be for the possession of the property or its value, in case it cannot be returned, and damages for the detention. Similarly, if the property has been delivered to the plaintiff and defendant claims return of the property, judgment for the defendant may be for return of the property or its value, if it cannot be returned, and damages for the detention [Code Civ. Proc. § 667; for discussion of damages, see § 119.30]. An alternative judgment does not give the prevailing party the privilege of either redelivery or payment of the value of the property at the other party's option. Rather, the other party is required to return the property if it is within his or her power to do so [Griffith v. Reddick (1919) 41 Cal. App. 458, 462, 182 P. 984] .

[2] When Alternative Judgment Not Required

A judgment that is not in the alternative pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 667 is not necessarily void. For example, if a prevailing plaintiff has already obtained possession of the property in dispute, a judgment for its value is not required [Erreca v. Meyer (1904) 142 Cal. 308, 310, 75 P. 826] because the question of value is immaterial to the plaintiff, and a finding of value would be surplusage [Webster v. Mountain Monarch G.M. Co. (1935) 6 Cal. App. 2d 450, 454, 44 P.2d 646] . Similarly, if a prevailing defendant has retained possession of the property in dispute, a judgment for its value is not required. Conversely, a judgment for the return of property is not required when it is shown that judgment for delivery of the property will be unavailing [Erreca v. Meyer (1904) 142 Cal. 308, 310, 75 P. 826] , such as when it appears that the property in dispute has been destroyed [De Thomas v. Witherby (1882) 61 Cal. 92, 97] or sold [Moskovitz v. Le Francois (1932) 121 Cal. App. 310, 314, 8 P.2d 1049 (plaintiff sold furniture obtained with writ of possession to son pending trial); Peterson v. First Nat. Bank (1929) 101 Cal. App. 532, 540, 281 P. 1104 (defendant sold disputed bonds)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesDamagesCompensatory DamagesCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevins

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Action for Possession of Personal Property

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.30

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.30 Damages for Taking or Detention of Property

[1] Recoverable

At the same time the jury finds the value of the property, the jury may assess the damages claimed in the complaint or answer that the prevailing party has sustained because of the taking or detention of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 627]. Similarly, judgment for the plaintiff may include damages for the detention of the property, and judgment for the defendant may include damages for taking and withholding the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 667].

The damages for detention or taking and withholding are the same whether the prevailing party recovers the property itself or its value [Nelson v. Yonge (1925) 73 Cal. App. 704, 710, 239 P. 67] . The prevailing party is entitled to such damages as will compensate him or her for all the detriment proximately caused [Livestock G.P. Co. v. Union etc. Co. (1896) 114 Cal. 447, 450, 46 P. 286 ; Ruzanoff v. Retailers Credit Asso. (1929) 97 Cal. App. 682, 686, 276 P. 156 ; see Civ. Code § 3333 (damages for torts or wrongs as proximately caused detriment)]. Damages, therefore, must be reasonable [see Civ. Code § 3359]. The damages allowed in the action must approach the actual, usable, orreasonable value of the property to its owner while it was detained [Bonestell v. Automotive F. Corp. (1924) 69 Cal. App. 719, 727, 232 P. 734] .

[2] Interest or Rental Value

Ordinarily, loss of use and other injuries resulting from the taking and withholding of personal property may be fully compensated for by allowing the successful party to recover interest [Civ. Code § 1915 (interest defined)] on the value of the property from the time of its taking [Drinkhouse v. Van Ness (1927) 202 Cal. 359, 379, 260 P. 869] or of demand to the date of the verdict [Brandenburger v. Hanner (1929) 96 Cal. App. 396, 399, 274 P. 390] .

However, if the value for the use of the detained property exceeds the interest computed for the deprivation of the property, the successful party is not limited to recovering interest. Rather, he or she may recover the reasonable value of the use of the property during the time he or she was wrongfully deprived of it up to the time of judgment [Drinkhouse v. Van Ness (1927) 202 Cal. 359, 379, 260 P. 869] , provided the value is not disproportionate to the gross value of the property itself [Bonestell v. Automotive F. Corp. (1924) 69 Cal. App. 719, 727, 232 P. 734] . However, damages for detention should not be computed at a flat rate based solely on the gross rental value of a chattel; rather, the correct measure of damages is the net usable value of the property less the expenses of keeping the property up [Fran-Well Heater Co. v. Robinson (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 125, 132-133, 5 Cal. Rptr. 900] .

[3] Depreciation

When property sought to be recovered diminishes in value while it is wrongfully detained, the depreciation in the value of the property is a proper element of damages [Morris v. Allen (1911) 17 Cal. App. 684, 688, 121 P. 690 ; Anglo-California Trust Co. v. Collins (1923) 192 Cal. 315, 317, 219 P. 982] . Damages for depreciation are general damages because depreciation can be anticipated by the detaining party [Berry v. Bank of Bakersfield (1918) 177 Cal. 206, 210, 170 P. 415] . Morris v. Allen (1911) 17 Cal. App. 684, 688, 121 P. 690] , and, thus, they need not be specially pleaded in order to be recovered [Morris v. Allen (1911) 17 Cal. App. 684, 688, 121 P. 690] .

[4] Deterioration and Business Loss

Deterioration is a proper element of damages for the detention of personal property [Anglo-California Trust Co. v. Collins (1923) 192 Cal. 315, 317, 219 P. 982 ; McFaddin v. H.S. Crocker Co. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 585, 589, 33 Cal. Rptr. 389] , as are business losses under the appropriate circumstances. For instance, a prevailing party is entitled to recover for the damage to and destruction of greeting cards during the course of their detention [see McFaddin v. H.S. Crocker Co. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 585, 589-591, 33 Cal. Rptr. 389] or for damages for the loss of provisions, merchandise, profits, and salary while store fixtures and groceries were wrongfully detained [Ruzanoff v. Retailers Credit Asso. (1929) 97 Cal. App. 682, 686-687, 276 P. 156] .

[5] Award of Exemplary Damages

When there is clear and convincing proof of oppression, fraud, or malice, the prevailing party may be awarded exemplary damages [see Civ. Code § 3294] in an action for possession of personal property [Livestock G.P. Co. v. Union etc. Co. (1896) 114 Cal. 447, 450, 46 P. 286 ; Tucker v. Hagerty (1918) 37 Cal. App. 789, 795, 174 P. 908] . For discussion of exemplary damages, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq.

[6] Attorney's Fees Not Recoverable

Attorney's fees are not recoverable in an action for possession of personal property, in the absence of express contractual authority, because there is no express statutory authority for their allowance [Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 233, 317 P.2d 613 ; LeFave v. Dimond (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 868, 870, 299 P.2d 858] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesDamagesCompensatory DamagesCivil ProcedureRemediesDamagesPunitive DamagesCivil

ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevins

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Action for Possession of Personal Property

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 119.31through 119.39

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

[Reserved]

§§ 119.31[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.40

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.40 Scope

This part discusses the provisional remedy of claim and delivery of personal property and the procedures required to obtain that remedy. Part IV provides procedural checklists for plaintiff [§ 119.90] and defendant [§ 119.90]. Part V includes following forms for use in relation to the provisional remedy of claim and delivery:

- Notice of application [see § 119.110], application [see § 119.111], and order for a writ of possession [see § 119.112], and a writ [see § 119.113].

- Application for a temporary restraining order [see § 119.111], supporting declaration [see § 119.114], and an order [see § 119.115].

- Application [see § 119.111] and declaration for obtaining an ex parte writ of possession [see § 119.116].

- Application and notice of hearing for quashing an ex parte writ of possession [see § 119.117].

- Order for release and redelivery of property when an ex parte writ is quashed [see § 119.118].

For discussion, procedures, and forms relating to this part, see Ch. 62, Attachment and Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.41

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.41 Governing Statutes

The provisional remedy of claim and delivery is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 511.010-516.050. Although it has not done so, the Judicial Council may provide rules for practice and procedure in claim and delivery proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 516.010]. In addition, the Judicial Council must prescribe the form for applications, notices, orders, and other documents required in claim and delivery proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 516.020; see § 119.110 et seq., Judicial Council forms for use in claim and delivery proceedings].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.42

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.42 Claim and Delivery of Personal Property

The provisional remedy of claim and delivery may be asserted to secure possession of personal property pending the outcome of an action [see Sea Rail Truckloads, Inc. v. Pullman, Inc. (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 511, 514-515, 182 Cal. Rptr. 560 ; Code Civ. Proc. § 512.010(a)]. Courts and practitioners commonly refer to this remedy as one for a writ of possession.

To obtain provisional possession of personal property, the plaintiff must generally provide an undertaking and establish the probable validity of his or her claim to that property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 512.060; for further discussion, see § 119.43[8][c]].

Possession of the property is obtained by levying execution of a writ of possession [see § 119.43, below]. California courts may issue writs only if they are to be executed by a levying officer within California [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 17(b)(6) (defining "process"), 71 (process of superior court extends through state) and discussion under § 119.43[9]].

PRACTICE TIP:

Advising Client of Costs. Before proceeding with the remedy, plaintiff's counsel should advise his or her client of the costs involved, which include not only the costs of obtaining the writ of possession, but of executing it [see Code Civ. Proc. § 514.030(a)(1) and discussion under § 119.45[1]]. The costs of levy, installing a keeper, or storage of the property are expensive and may in some cases be prohibitive.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.43

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.43 Obtaining Writ of Possession

[1] Time Requirement

A plaintiff may apply for a writ of possession by filing a written application at the following times [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.010(a)]:

- At the time the complaint is filed.
- At any later time.

For the purposes of this provision, "plaintiff " includes a cross complainant and "complaint" includes a cross complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 511.020, 511.080].

[2] Notice of Application

[a] Notice Generally Required

With specified exceptions, a plaintiff generally may not apply for a writ of possession ex parte; usually the writ will issue only after a noticed motion and hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(a)]. Because the remedy of claim and delivery is essentially a prejudgment seizure of personal property, the notice and hearing are necessary to satisfy constitutional due process requirements [see Blair v. Pitchess (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 258, 283, 96 Cal. Rptr. 42, 486 P.2d 1242] .

[b] Contents of Notice

The notice of application and hearing must inform the defendant of the following:

- That a hearing will be held on plaintiff's application at a time and place specified in the notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.040(a); see also discussion regarding hearing date under § 119.43[5]].

- That the writ will be issued if the court finds that the plaintiff's claim is probably valid and the other requirements for issuing the writ are established. The hearing is not for the purpose of determining whether the claim is actually valid. The determination of the actual validity of the claim will be made in subsequent proceedings in the action andwill not be affected by the decision at the hearing on the application for the writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.040(b)].

- That, if the defendant desires to oppose the issuance of the writ, he or she must file either (1) an affidavit (or declaration) providing evidence sufficient to defeat the plaintiff's right to issuance of the writ or (2) an undertaking to stay the delivery of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.040(c); for discussion regarding opposing affidavits and undertakings, see § 119.43[7]].

The notice of application and hearing must also include the following statement [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.040(d)]:

> "If you believe the plaintiff may not be entitled to possession of the property claimed, you may wish to seek the advice of an attorney. Such attorney should be consulted promptly so that he or she may assist you before the time set for the hearing."

The Judicial Council form of Notice of Application for Writ of Possession and Hearing complies with these requirements. Although the Judicial Council forms for claim and delivery were approved for optional use, their use is standard.

For an illustration of the Judicial Council form of Notice of Application for Writ of Possession and Hearing, see § 119.110. For discussion regarding service and filing of the notice and other moving papers, see § 119.43[5].

[3] Contents of Application

The application for a writ of possession must include all of the following:

- A showing of the basis of the plaintiff's claim and that the plaintiff is entitled to possession of the property claimed. If the basis of the plaintiff's claim is a written instrument, a copy of the instrument must be attached to the application [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.010(b)(1)].

- A showing that the property is wrongfully detained by the defendant and of the manner in which the defendant came into possession of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.010(b)(2)].

- The reason for the detention according to the plaintiff's best knowledge, information, and belief [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.010(b)(2)].

- A particular description of the property and a statement of its value [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.010(b)(3)]. This description and statement must be completed with specificity.

- A statement of the location of the property according to the plaintiff's best knowledge, information, and belief. If the property or some part of it is within a private place, which may have to be entered to take possession, the application must include a showing that there is probable cause to believe that the property is located there [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.010(b)(4); see also Blair v. Pitchess (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 258, 274, 96 Cal. Rptr. 42, 486 P.2d 1242] .

- A statement that the property has not been taken for a tax, assessment, or fine pursuant to a statute, and that it has not been seized under execution against plaintiff's property. If the property has been seized under an execution against plaintiff's property, the application must include a statement that the property is statutorily exempt from the seizure [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.010(b)(5)].

The application for a writ of possession must be executed under oath [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.010(b); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (use of declaration in lieu of oath)].

These requirements may be satisfied by affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) filed with the application [see Code Civ. Proc. § 512.010(c) and discussion under § 119.43[4]].

The Judicial Council form of Application for Writ of Possession complies with these requirements. Although the Judicial Council forms for claim and delivery were approved for optional use, their use is standard.

For an illustration of the Judicial Council form of Application for Writ of Possession, see § 119.111. For discussion regarding service and filing of the application, see § 119.43[5].

[4] Supporting Declarations or Affidavits

The showing required to be included in an application for writ of possession (discussed under § 119.43[3]) may be satisfied by one or more affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) filed with the application [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.010(c)].

Any affidavit or declaration must set out facts with particularity. Except when matters are specifically permitted to be stated on information and belief, each affidavit or declaration in a claim and delivery proceeding must affirmatively show that the affiant or declarant, if sworn as a witness, can testify competently to the facts stated in the affidavit or declaration. The affiant or declarant may be any person who has knowledge of the facts whether or not he or she is a party to the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 516.030].

A verified complaint that meets the foregoing requirements may be used in lieu of or in addition to an ordinary affidavit or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 516.030].

PRACTICE TIP:

Avoid Reliance on Verified Complaint. Counsel for plaintiff should avoid relying on a verified complaint and whenever possible should use declarations instead, which set out the proper foundation and admissible evidence. A verified complaint is more likely to fall short of the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 516.030, for example, when the complaint has been verified by an officer on behalf of a corporate plaintiff or by plaintiff's attorney [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446].

[5] Service

Prior to the hearing on the application for a writ of possession, the plaintiff must serve the defendant with the following:

- A copy of the summons and complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.030(a)(1)].

- A Notice of Application and Hearing (discussed under § 119.43[2]) [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.030(a)(2)].

- A copy of the application (discussed under § 119.43[3]) [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.030(a)(3)].

- A copy of any supporting affidavits or declarations (discussed under § 119.43[4]) [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.030(a)(3)].

- A copy of any supporting memorandum [see Code Civ. Proc. § 512.050 (service required "within the time prescribed by rule")].

The Notice of Application and Hearing must be served on the defendant and filed within the notice period prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a)(2)].

NOTE:

Service of Application and Other Papers. Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a)(2) refers only to the Notice of Application and Hearing. However, it is recommended that the application and any supporting declarations and supporting memorandum of points and authorities also be served with the notice. They must be served before the hearing in any event, and the time periods of Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) apply generally to "all moving and supporting papers."

If the defendant has not already been served with the a copy of the summons and complaint, the summons and complaint, together with the notice, application, and all other moving papers, should be served on defendant in the manner required for service of summons and complaint under Code Civ. Proc. § 413.10 et seq.].

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b), all moving and supporting papers must be served and filed at least 16 court days before the hearing date [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300].

If service is by mail, the 16-day notice period is increased as follows [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)]:

- By five calendar days if the place of mailing and the place of address are within the State of California.

- By 10 calendar days if either the place of mailing or the place of address is outside the State of California but within the United States.

- By 20 calendar days if either the place of mailing or the place of address is outside the United States.

If service is by facsimile transmission (fax), Express Mail, or overnight delivery, the 16-day period is increased by two calendar days [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)]. An extension of two court days, as opposed to two calendar days, may apply in case of electronic service [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6); for discussion, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers, § 518.41[8]].

The court, or a judge of the court, may prescribe a shorter time for notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Selecting Hearing Date. When selecting a hearing date for the application, counsel must allow sufficient time to comply with the foregoing notice requirements, but should also consult local practice. Some courts require that the hearing date be cleared with the clerk.

[6] Filing

The application and related papers are filed with the court in which the action is brought [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.010(a)]. Filing must be accomplished at least 21 calendar days before the hearing date, and possibly earlier depending on the manner of service [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010.6(a)(6); see also discussions under § 119.43[1], [5]].

Proof of service of the moving papers must be filed no later than five court days before the hearing date [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(c)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Consult Local Practice. Counsel should consult local rule or practice, which may specify where proof of service is to be filed.

[7] Opposing Papers

The defendant must file with the court and serve on the plaintiff any opposing affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) and memorandum that he or she intends to be relied on at the hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 512.050]. Service and filing must be accomplished no later than 9 court days before the hearing date [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(a); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6) (extension of time to respond in case of electronic service; for discussion, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers, § 518.41[8])].

PRACTICE TIP:

Service by Overnight, Fax, or Personal Delivery. Somelocal rules require that service be completed in a manner that ensures receipt by other parties in sufficient time to submit a reply or prepare for the hearing, e.g., by personal service or overnight mail within 24 hours of filing. Opposing counsel should therefore consider sending papers by messenger service (or sending a courtesy copy by fax transmission) to avoid a continuance on ground that opposing papers were not received before the hearing [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.12(b) (service on opposing counsel should be by personal delivery or fax when service by mail will prejudice the opposing party)].

For discussion of the requirements applicable to affidavits under Code Civ. Proc. § 516.030, see § 119.43[4].

[8] Hearing on Application for Writ

[a] Evidence Considered

At the hearing, the court makes its determination on the basis of the pleadings and other papers in the record (i.e., the application and the supporting and opposing declarations, points and authorities, etc.) [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.050].

On a showing of good cause, however, the court may do the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.050]:

- Receive and consider additional evidence and authority produced at the hearing.

- Continue the hearing either for the production of additional oral or documentary evidence or for the filing of additional affidavits or points and authorities.

[b] Failure to Oppose Application

A defendant's failure to oppose the issuance of a writ of possession or to rebut any evidence produced by the plaintiff in proceedings to obtain the writ does not constitute a waiver of any defense to plaintiff's claim in the action or any other action and does not have any effect on the defendant's right to produce or exclude evidence at the trial of any action [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.100].

[c] Conditions for Issuing Writ

A writ of possession is issued at the hearing only if the following are found:

- The plaintiff has established the probable validity of his or her claim to possession of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.060(a)(1)]. A claim has probable validity when it is more likely than not that the plaintiff will obtain a judgment against the defendant on that claim [Code Civ. Proc. § 511.090].

- The plaintiff has provided an undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.060(a)(2); see Code Civ. Proc. § 515.010; for discussion, see § 119.47].

- In the case of a writ directing the levying officer to enter a private place to take possession of property, the plaintiff has established that there is probable cause to believe that the property is located there [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.060(b)].

[9] Contents of Writ

A writ of possession must do all the following:

- Be directed to a levying officer in the jurisdiction where the property is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.080(a)].

- Describe the specific property to be seized [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.080(b)].

- Specify any private place that may be entered to take possession of part or all of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.080(c)].

- Direct the levying officer to levy on the property if the property is found and to retain it in his or her custody until released or sold [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.080(d)].

- Inform the defendant that he or she has the right to object to the plaintiff's undertaking, a copy of which must be attached to the writ, or to obtain redelivery of the property by filing an undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.080(e); see Code Civ. Proc. § 515.020 and discussion under § 119.47].

For discussion regarding execution of the writ, see § 119.45.

[10] Turnover Order

If a writ of possession is issued, the court may also issue an order directing the defendant to transfer possession of the property to the plaintiff. Such an order must include a notice to the defendant that failure to turn over possession of the property to plaintiff may subject the defendant to contempt [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.070].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAnswersCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirementsCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeService of ProcessGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.44

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.44 Obtaining Temporary Restraining Order

[1] Available to Prevent Transfer of Property

At or after the time a plaintiff files his or her application for a writ of possession, the plaintiff may also apply for a temporary restraining order to prevent the defendant from transferring any interest in the property or from otherwise disposing of or encumbering the property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 513.010]. The law governing temporary restraining orders ingeneral (see Code Civ. Proc. § 525 et seq.) applies, unless otherwise provided in the claim and delivery provisions discussed below [Code Civ. Proc. § 513.010(a)]. For discussion of the general provisions governing temporary restraining orders, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[2] Grounds Justifying Ex Parte Issuance

The plaintiff must set forth in the application a statement of the grounds justifying the ex parte order [Code Civ. Proc. § 513.010(a)]. A court may issue a temporary restraining order ex parte if the plaintiff does the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 513.010(b)]:

- Establishes the probable validity of his or her claim to possession of the property (see discussion under § 119.43[8][c]).

- Provides an undertaking (see discussion under § 119.43[8][c] and § 119.47).

  PRACTICE TIP:
  Prior Arrangement for Bond. Plaintiff's counsel should make prior arrangements with a bonding company for the immediate issuance of a bond.

- Establishes the probability that there is an immediate danger that the property claimed may be transferred, concealed, removed, or substantially impaired in value, and thus, unavailable to levy.

The Judicial Council form of Application for Writ of Possession, which includes an application for a temporary restraining order, and the Judicial Council form of Declaration for Temporary Restraining Order comply with these requirements. Although the Judicial Council forms for claim and delivery were approved for optional use, their use is standard.

For illustrations of the Judicial Council forms of Application for Writ of Possession and Declaration for Temporary Restraining Order, see §§ 119.111, 119.114

[3] Acts That May Be Restrained

A temporary restraining order may prohibit the defendant from doing any of the following:

- Transferring any interest in the property by sale, pledge, or grant of security interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 513.020(a)].

- Otherwise disposing of, or encumbering, the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 513.020(a)].

- Concealing or otherwise removing the property in a manner likely to make it less available to seizure by the levying officer [Code Civ. Proc. § 513.020(b)].

- Impairing the value of the property by destroying it or by failing to care for it in a reasonable manner [Code Civ. Proc. § 513.020(c)].

If the property is farm products held for sale or lease or is inventory, the temporary restraining order may not prohibit the defendant from transferring the property in the ordinary course of business. The order may instead impose appropriate restrictions on the disposition of the proceeds from any such transfer [Code Civ. Proc. § 513.020(a)]. For the purposes of this provision, the following definitions apply:

- "Farm products" mean crops, livestock, supplies used or produced in farming operations, or products of crops or livestock in their unmanufactured state (such as ginned cotton, wool clip, maple syrup, honey, milk, and eggs) while in the possession of a defendant engaged in raising, fattening, grazing, or other farming operations [Code Civ. Proc. § 511.040].

- "Inventory" means tangible personal property in the possession of a defendant who holds it for sale or lease or to be furnished under contracts of service [Code Civ. Proc. § 511.050].

[4] Period of Effectiveness

At the hearing on the application, the court must dissolve the temporary restraining order if the court finds that the plaintiff is not entitled to the writ. If the court finds that the plaintiff is entitled to the writ, it may issue a preliminary injunction to take the place of the temporary restraining order, which may remain in effect until the property claimed is seized under the writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 513.010(c)].

Thus, the temporary restraining order is generally effective only until the hearing on the application. The hearing must generally be set within 15 days of issuance of the TRO, unless the courts sets the hearing up to 20 days after issuance for good cause, or the parties stipulate to a later date [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining OrdersCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.45

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.45 Execution of Writ

[1] Levy of Property by Levying Officer

On receipt of a writ of possession, the levying officer must search for and take custody of the specified property in the possession of the defendantor the defendant's agent by removing the property to a place of safekeeping or by installing a keeper [Code Civ. Proc. § 514.010(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 511.060 (defining levying officer)].

If the specified property is used as a dwelling, such as a mobilehome or boat, levy is made by placing a keeper in charge of the property for two days at the plaintiff's expense. After two days, the levying officers must remove the occupants and any contents not specified in the writ and take exclusive possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 514.010(b)].

If the specified property or any part of it is in a private place, the levying officer must announce his or her identity, purpose, and authority at the time he or she demands possession of the property. If the property is not voluntarily delivered, the levying officer may cause any building or enclosure where the property may be located to be broken open in a manner he or she reasonably believes will cause the least damage. The levying officer may call on the power of the county to aid and protect him or her in entering and seizing the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 514.010(c)]. However, if the levying officer reasonably believes that entry and seizure of the property will involve a substantial risk of death or serious bodily harm to any person, he or she must refrain from seizing the property and promptly make a return to the court from which the writ issued. The return must set forth the reasons for his or her belief that the risk exists, and the court may make any appropriate orders [Code Civ. Proc. § 514.010(c)].

[2] Search of Private Place Not Specified in Writ

A levying officer is not authorized to enter or search any private place not specified in the writ of possession or other court order [Code Civ. Proc. § 514.010(d)]. However, the plaintiff may apply ex parte in writing for an endorsement on the writ directing the levying officer to seize the property at a private place not specified in the writ. The court is required to make such an endorsement if the plaintiff establishes by affidavit that there is probable cause to believe that some or all or the property may be found at that place [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.090].

[3] Delivery or Service of Copy of Writ

At the time of levy, the levying officer must deliver to the person in possession of the property a copy of the writ of possession with a copy of the plaintiff's undertaking attached, if any, and a copy of the order for issuance of the writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 514.020(a)]. If no one is in possession of the property at the time of levy, the levying officer must serve the writ and attached undertaking on the defendant. If the defendant has appeared in the action, service may be made in the manner of notices or other papers [Code Civ. Proc. § 514.020(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 et seq.]. If the defendant has not yet appeared (i.e., if the writ was issued ex parte) service must be in the manner of a summons and complaint [Code*Civ. Proc. § 514.020(b)*; see Code Civ. Proc. § 415.10 et seq.]. For discussion of these manners of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[4] Disposition of Property by Levying Officer

After taking possession of property under a writ of possession, the levying officer must keep the property in a secure place. Except as provided under Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020 (discussed under § 119.46[4]) and Code Civ. Proc. § 514.050 (discussed under § 119.49), the property held by the levying officer is disposed of as follows:

- If the levying officer does not receive, within 10 days after levy of the writ of possession, a notice from defendant of either the filing of an undertaking for redelivery or an objection to plaintiff's undertaking, the levying officer must deliver the property to the plaintiff on receiving his or her fees for taking and necessary expenses for keeping the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 514.030(a)(1); see Security Pacific Nat. Bank v. Goodman (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 131, 134, 100 Cal. Rptr. 763] .

- If the levying officer receives, within 10 days after levy of the writ of possession, a notice from defendant of the filing of an undertaking for redelivery, and the defendant's undertaking is not objected to, the levying officer must redeliver the property to the defendant on the expiration of the time for plaintiff's objection, on receiving from defendant any additional fees for taking and keeping the property that have not already been paid or advanced by the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 514.030(a)(2)].

- If the levying officer receives, within 10 days after levy of the writ of possession, a notice from defendant of objection to plaintiff's undertaking or of the filing of an undertaking for redelivery, and the plaintiff makes a timely objection to the defendant's undertaking, the levying officer must not deliver or redeliver the property until the court has determined the sufficiency of the defendant's undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 514.030(a)(3); see Code Civ. Proc. § 515.030].

For further discussion regarding the filing and determination of sufficiency of undertakings by the plaintiff and defendant, see § 119.48.

Notwithstanding these provisions, the court may order that the property be sold and the proceeds deposited in the court to abide the judgment in the action, when the property is perishable or will greatly deteriorate or depreciate in value or, for some other reason, the interests of the parties will be best served by the sale [Code Civ. Proc. § 514.030(b)]. An order to sell may not issue, however, if a contract provides otherwise or if an undertaking for redelivery has been filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 514.030(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Sale of Property. If plaintiff obtains delivery of the property,and its sale is permitted under contract, plaintiff's counsel should nonetheless apply for an order permitting sale under Code Civ. Proc. § 514.030(b), particularly if the property is nonperishable. If sold, the plaintiff will be unable to return the property to defendant in the event that plaintiff fails to obtain judgment [see discussion under § 119.49].

[5] Return of Writ

The levying officer must return the writ of possession, together with his or her proceedings on the writ, to the court in which the action is pending within 30 days after the levy but not more than 60 days after the writ is issued [Code Civ. Proc. § 514.040].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeService of ProcessMethodsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.46

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.46 Ex Parte Application for Writ

[1] Conditions for Ex Parte Issuance of Writ

Although a defendant must generally be afforded notice and an opportunity for a hearing before he or she is deprived of any significant property interest, a writ of possession may be issued ex parte if probable cause appears that any of the following conditions exist:

- The defendant has gained possession of the property by feloniously taking it from the plaintiff, except when the defendant has fraudulently appropriated property entrusted to him or her or has obtained possession of it by false or fraudulent representation, pretense, or embezzlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)(1)].

- The property is a credit card [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)(2)].

- The defendant acquired possession of the property in the ordinary course of his or her trade or business and all the following are shown [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)(3); see Blair v. Pitchess (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 258, 278-279, 96 Cal. Rptr. 42, 486 P.2d 1242 (due process limitations on claim and delivery; former California statute held unconstitutional)]:

- The property is not necessary for the support of defendant or his or her family.

- There is an immediate danger that the property will become unavailable to levy because it will be transferred, concealed, or removed from California or that the property will become substantially impaired in value because of acts of destruction or the failure to take care of the property in a reasonable manner.

- The ex parte issuance of a writ of possession is necessary to protect the property.

[2] Requirements

The plaintiff's application for an ex parte writ of possession must satisfy the requirements for applications for writs of possession under Code Civ. Proc. § 512.010 [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b); for discussion regarding Code Civ. Proc. § 512.010, see § 119.43[3] and § 119.43[4]].

The application must, in addition, satisfy the requirements warranting ex parte issuance [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b); see discussion under § 119.46[1]].

The Judicial Council form of Application for Writ of Possession and the Judicial Council form of Declaration for Ex Parte Writ of Possession comply with these requirements. Although the Judicial Council forms for claim and delivery were approved for optional use, their use is standard.

For illustrations of the Judicial Council forms of an Application for Writ of Posession and a Declaration for Ex Parte Writ of Possession, see §§ 119.111, 119.116.

[3] Issuance

A court may issue a writ of possession on ex parte application only if it finds the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)]:

- Conditions warranting ex parte relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b) exist (discussed under § 119.46[1]).

- The other requirements for issuance under Code Civ. Proc. § 512.060 are met (discussed under § 119.43[8][c]).

PRACTICE TIP:
Issuance on Ex Parte Application Is Not Routine. Supporting evidence must clearly show the need for ex parte relief. In many courts such relief is rarely issued, as the issuance of a temporary restraining order is deemed to provide adequate protection pending a noticed hearing.

[4] Service of Papers

When an ex parte writ is issued, the plaintiff must serve the following on the defendant or any other person required to be served under Code Civ. Proc. § 514.020 (discussed under § 119.45[3]) [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)]:

- A copy of the summons and complaint.

- A copy of the application for the writ.

- Any supporting affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5).

- A notice that satisfies the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 512.040(c) and (d) (discussed under § 119.43[2][b]).

[5] Motion to Quash Writ

Any defendant whose property has been taken under an ex parte writ of possession may apply for an order to quash the writ and release the property levied on. The application must be made by noticed motion, and the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 512.050 apply [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 512.050 requires each party to serve and file, within the time prescribed by rule, supporting or opposing affidavits and points and authorities [see also discussion under § 119.43[5]]. Pending the hearing on the motion, the court may order that delivery of any property previously levied on be stayed [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)].

The Judicial Council form of Application and Notice of Application and Hearing for Order to Quash Ex Parte Writ of Possession complies with these requirements. Although the Judicial Council forms for claim and delivery were approved for optional use, their use is standard. For an illustration of the Judicial Council form of Application and Notice of Application and Hearing for an Order to Quash an Ex Parte Writ of Possession, see § 119.117. If the court determines that the plaintiff is not entitled to a writ of possession, it must quash the ex parte writ and order the release and redelivery of any property previously levied on. The court also must award the defendant any damages sustained by him or her which were proximately caused by the levy of the writ of possession and the loss of possession of the property under the levy [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeService of ProcessMethodsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsGeneral OverviewConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.47

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.47 Undertakings

[1] Required Undertaking by Plaintiff

A court may not issue a temporary restraining order or a writ of possession until the plaintiff has filed a written undertaking with the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 515.010]. The primary purpose of the undertaking is to indemnify the defendant against the consequence of a taking that may later be adjudged to be wrongful [see Symes Cadillac, Inc. v. Insurance Co. of North America (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 905, 909, 136 Cal. Rptr. 356 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 512)].

The undertaking must provide that the sureties are bound to the defendant for the return of the property to the defendant if return of the property is ordered, and for payment to the defendant of any sum recovered against plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 515.010].

The undertaking must be in an amount not less than twice the value of defendant's interest in the property. The value of the defendant's interest in the property is determined by the market value of the property less the amount due and owing on any conditional sales contract or security agreement and all liens and encumbrances of the property, and such other factors as may be necessary to determine the defendant's interest in the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 515.010].

CAUTION:

Avoid Minimal Undertakings. If the debt owed exceeds the fair market value of the property, a "zero" undertaking theoretically complies with Code Civ. Proc. § 515.010. Plaintiffs should, however, avoid a minimal undertaking, because in such a case the defendant may obtain redelivery by filing an undertaking equal to plaintiff's undertaking [see discussion under § 119.47[2]]. Plaintiff must therefore post a substantial bond or be prepared to seek an order requiring a higher redelivery bond.

The defendant may object to the plaintiff's undertaking not later than 10 days after levy of the writ of possession by mailing notice of objection to the levying officer [Code Civ. Proc. § 515.030(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.910 et seq.].

If the court determines that the plaintiff's undertaking is insufficient and a sufficient undertaking is not filed within the time required by statute (see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.960(b)(1)), the court must vacate the temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, if any, and the writ of possession. If levy has occurred, the court must also order the levying officer or the plaintiff to return the property to the defendant. If the court determines that the plaintiff's undertaking is sufficient, the court must order the levying officer to deliver the property to the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 515.030(c)].

If the defendant does not object to the undertaking, he or she waives all objections except on a showing of good cause for failure to make the objection within the time required by statute or of changed circumstances [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.930(c)].

[2] Optional Undertaking by Defendant

The defendant may prevent the plaintiff from taking possession of property under a writ of possession or may regain possession of property so taken by filing with the court in which the action was brought an undertaking in an amount equal to the plaintiff's undertaking or in an amount determined by the court pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 515.010(b) [Code Civ. Proc. § 515.020(a); see discussion under § 119.47[1]]. The undertaking must state that if the plaintiff recovers judgment on the action, the defendant will pay all costs awarded to the plaintiff and all damages that the plaintiff may sustain by reason of the loss of possession of the property. The damages recoverable by the plaintiff include all damages proximately caused by the plaintiff's failure to gain or retain possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 515.020(a)].

The defendant may file the undertaking at any time before or after the levy of the writ of possession. The defendant must mail a copy of the undertaking to the levying officer and to the plaintiff and must prepare anaffidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) stating that these copies have been mailed. The affidavit or declaration is filed with the court at the time the undertaking is filed [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 515.020(b), 995.340, 995.370].

If an undertaking for redelivery is filed and the defendant's undertaking is not objected to, the levying officer must deliver the property to the defendant, or, if the plaintiff has previously been given possession of the property, the plaintiff must deliver the property to the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 515.020(d)].

The plaintiff may object to the defendant's undertaking not later than 10 days after the defendant's undertaking is filed, by mailing notice of objection to the levying officer [Code Civ. Proc. § 515.030(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.910 et seq.].

If the court determines that the defendant's undertaking is insufficient and a sufficient undertaking is not filed within the time required by statute (see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.960(b)(1)), the court must order the levying officer to deliver the property to plaintiff, or if the plaintiff has previously been given possession of the property, the plaintiff may retain possession. If the court determines that the defendant's undertaking is sufficient, the court must order the levying officer or the plaintiff to deliver the property to the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 515.030(d)].

If the plaintiff does not object to the undertaking, he or she waives all objections except on a showing of good cause for failure to make the objection within the time required by statute or of changed circumstances [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.930(c)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesBondsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining OrdersCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.48

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.48 Third-Party Claims

When the property taken pursuant to a writ of possession is claimed by a third person, the rules and proceedings applicable in cases of third-party claims (Code Civ. Proc. § 720.010 et seq.) apply [Code Civ. Proc. § 514.050]. For discussion of third-party claims under Code Civ. Proc. § 720.010 et seq., see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePartiesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.49

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.49 Redelivery by Plaintiff on Failure to Obtain Judgment

A plaintiff failing to recover judgment in an action must redeliver the property to the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.120]. In addition, the plaintiff is liable for all damages sustained by the defendant which are proximately caused by any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.120]:

- The operation of the temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction, if any.
- The levy of the writ of possession.
- The loss of possession of the property under the levy of the writ of possession or an order directing transfer of the property to the plaintiff.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesDamagesCompensatory DamagesCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.50

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.50 Relevance of Court's Determinations to Other Actions

The court's determinations in claim and delivery proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 511.010 et seq. have no effect on the determination of any issues other than issues relevant to the claim and delivery proceedings. In addition, the court's determinations in claim and delivery proceedings do not affect the rights of any party in any other action arising out of the same claim. Indeed, the court's determinations cannot be given in evidence and cannot be referred to in the trial of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.110].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsPreclusion & Effect of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 119.51through 119.59

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

[Reserved]

§§ 119.51[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
A. Distinction Between Action and Remedy

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.60

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.60 Federal Statutes

Definitions under Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.). 50 U.S.C. App. § 511

Application of act to states. 50 U.S.C. App. § 512

Additional persons protected. 50 U.S.C. App. §§ 514, 516, 538

Stays. 50 U.S.C. App. §§ 522, 525

Restrictions on repossession under installment sales contract. 50 U.S.C. App. §§ 532, 534

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsContracts LawTypes of ContractsInstallment ContractsMilitary & Veterans LawServicemembersGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
A. Distinction Between Action and Remedy

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 119.61through 119.69

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

[Reserved]

§§ 119.61[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
B. Action for Possession of Personal Property

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.70

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.70 State Statutes

[1] Right of Possession

Right of person entitled to immediate possession of personal property to recover it. Civ. Code § 3379

Compelling delivery of personal property to person entitled to its immediate possession. Civ. Code § 3380

[2] Judgment for Recovery

Verdict in action for possession of personal property as required to find value of property. Code Civ. Proc. § 627

Entry of judgment in conformity with court's decision. Code Civ. Proc. § 664

Judgment in action for possession of personal property in alternative for possession or value. Code Civ. Proc. § 667

[3] Statement of Decision

Request for statement of decision. Code Civ. Proc. § 632

[4] Damages

Damages for taking or detention. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 627, 667

Interest on awarded damages. Civ. Code § 3287

Interest as damages. Civ. Code § 3288

Exemplary and punitive damages. Civ. Code § 3294

Damages as proximately caused detriment. Civ. Code § 3333

[5] Statute of Limitations

Actions for specific recovery of personal property and for taking, detaining, or injuring of goods or chattels as required to be brought within three years. Code Civ. Proc. § 338(c)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsBench TrialsCivil ProcedureRemediesDamagesCompensatory DamagesCivil ProcedureRemediesDamagesPunitive DamagesCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime Limitations

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
B. Action for Possession of Personal Property

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.71

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.71 Decisions

[1] Who May Bring Action

Plaintiff as not having right to bring action to recover possession of personal property against defendant when property at issue is in possession of defendant's adult daughter. Simonian v. Patterson (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 773, 783, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 722

If contract gives mortgagee right to take possession of property in event of default, mortgagee as entitled to use action for possession of personal property on default to secure its possession. Podrat v. Oberndorff (1929) 207 Cal. 457, 459, 278 P. 1035 ; Elmore Jameson Co. v. Smith (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d 609, 613, 93 P.2d 1063

Plaintiff as not having right to bring action for possession of personal property against defendant who has lien on property that is dependent on possession. Sutton v. Stephan (1894) 101 Cal. 545, 548, 36 P. 106

[2] Action for Possession of Personal Property

Complaint in action for possession of personal property as insufficient if it does not allege plaintiff's ownership and right to possession at time of commencement of action. Vanalstine v. Whelan (1901) 135 Cal. 232, 233, 67 P. 125 ; Harris v. Smith (1901) 132 Cal. 316, 317, 64 P. 409 ; Bane v. Peerman (1899) 125 Cal. 220, 221, 57 P. 885 ; Truman v. Young (1898) 121 Cal. 490, 491, 53 P. 1073

Allegation that demand was made by plaintiff as not showing either general or special ownership or any right to possession in plaintiff. Truman v. Young (1898) 121 Cal. 490, 491, 53 P. 1073

Writ of possession, not injunction, is appropriate remedy for a secured party to obtain possession of collateral. Simms v. NPCK Enterprises, Inc. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 233, 243, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 557

Defendant as required to deny that plaintiff is entitled to immediate possession of personal property or plaintiff is entitled to judgment on the pleadings. Feigin v. Kutchor (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 744, 747, 234 P.2d 264 (holding, however, that plaintiff was not entitled to reversal of judgment when plaintiff failed to raise issue of defect of defendant's answer)

Essential allegations in complaint for possession of personal property as (1) title in plaintiff to property demanded; (2) right to possession in plaintiff when action commenced; (3) actual possession of property by defendant; and (4) demand for possession and refusal to deliver when defendant's possessioninitially lawful. Stockton M.P. Co. v. Mariposa County (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 210, 213, 221 P.2d 232

Complaint as not required to state grounds forming basis for allegations of ultimate facts of plaintiff's ownership of chattel, plaintiff's right to possession when action commenced, and defendant's wrongful possession of chattel. Stockton M.P. Co. v. Mariposa County (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 210, 213, 221 P.2d 232

[3] Action by Lienholder

Lien on property as extinguished when pledgee, while making no objection to amount of tender, refuses to accept it and does not surrender the pledge. Latta v. Tutton (1898) 122 Cal. 279, 283, 54 P. 844

Duly made tender of amount of obligation discharging lien given as collateral security for it. Wagner v. Shoemaker (1938) 29 Cal. App. 2d 654, 657, 85 P.2d 229

Valid tender of full amount due to defendants as discharging lien and entitling plaintiff to prompt delivery of property. Bogue v. Roeth (1929) 98 Cal. App. 257, 261, 276 P. 1071

Failure to comply with demand for delivery as creating liability against defendants for all damages accruing as a result. Bogue v. Roeth (1929) 98 Cal. App. 257, 261, 276 P. 1071

Specific allegation of tender of money as sufficient against answer or demurrer which merely denies plaintiff's right to possession. Bogue v. Roeth (1929) 98 Cal. App. 257, 262, 276 P. 1071

[4] Property Recoverable

Former corporate employee's complaint alleging that specific stock certificates held as pledge for debt had been wrongfully withheld by defendant corporation after plaintiff had offered to repay debt and seeking their redelivery as stating claim for recovery of personal property [Civ. Code § 3380] and not for specific performance [Civ. Code § 3384] of employment contract. Englert v. IVAC Corp. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 178, 185, 154 Cal. Rptr. 804

[5] Description of Property

Rules that personal property be described with reasonable degree of certainty in actions involving personal property as especially applicable to actions for possession of personal property because property is to be specifically returned to plaintiff. Hawley v. Kocher (1898) 123 Cal. 77, 82, 55 P. 696 ; Hillyer v. Eggers (1917) 32 Cal. App. 764, 766, 164 P. 27

Description of personal property claimed by plaintiff as "sundries," without averment of quality, quantity, value, or price and without lump description of property as situated in a certain building or at a certain place, as insufficient. Hawley v. Kocher (1898) 123 Cal. 77, 83, 55 P. 696

Objection to complaint on ground of defects in describing 110 paintings alleged to be held wrongfully by defendant as required to be raised by demurrer for uncertainty and not by appeal from judgment for plaintiff. Orchardson v. Christie (1916) 30 Cal. App. 8, 9, 157 P. 547

[6] Damages For Taking or Retention of Property

Compensatory damages based on value of reasonable use of wrongfully detained automobile as valid when those damages were reasonable and provable even though in excess of value of automobile. Harris v. Dixon Cadillac Co. (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 485, 492, 183 Cal. Rptr. 299

[7] Judgment for Posession of Personal Property

Code Civ. Proc. § 667 as providing for judgment for recovery of personal property to be in alternative. Brandenburger v. Hanner (1929) 96 Cal. App. 396, 399, 274 P. 390

Code Civ. Proc. § 664 as requiring that, when jury's verdict is in alternative, judgment is also to be in alternative. Benson v. Olender (1926) 77 Cal. App. 287, 289, 246 P. 345

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 667, value of property to be delivered and damages for its detention as constituting separate and independent items. Morris v. Allen (1911) 17 Cal. App. 684, 688, 121 P. 690

[8] Statute of Limitations

Former Code Civ. Proc. § 338(3) (now Code Civ. Proc. § 338(c)) requiring actions for specific recovery of personal property or for detention of personal property to be brought within three years as applicable to actions for possesion of personal property. Latta v. Tutton (1898) 122 Cal. 279, 284, 54 P. 844

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsBench TrialsCivil ProcedureRemediesDamagesCompensatory DamagesCivil ProcedureRemediesDamagesPunitive DamagesCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime Limitations

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
B. Action for Possession of Personal Property

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.72

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.72 Text References

[1] Claim and Delivery

Witkin, California Procedure, Vol. 5, Pleading, §§ 651-659 (4th ed. 1997)

[2] Conversion

Witkin, California Procedure, Vol. 3, Actions, §§ 567-573 (4th ed. 1996)

[3] Judgment and Recovery

Witkin, California Procedure, Vol. 7, Judgment, §§ 32, 89 (4th ed. 1997)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
B. Action for Possession of Personal Property

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 119.73through 119.79

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

[Reserved]

§§ 119.73[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
C. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.80

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.80 State Statutes

[1] Definitions

Complaint. Code Civ. Proc. § 511.020

Defendant. Code Civ. Proc. § 511.030

Farm products. Code Civ. Proc. § 511.040

Inventory. Code Civ. Proc. § 511.050

Levying officer. Code Civ. Proc. § 511.060

Person. Code Civ. Proc. § 511.070

Plaintiff. Code Civ. Proc. § 511.080

Probable validity. Code Civ. Proc. § 511.090

Public entity. Code Civ. Proc. § 511.100

[2] Writ of Possession

Conditions for issuance of ex parte writ. Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)

Conditions for issuance of writ generally. Code Civ. Proc. § 512.060

Issuance of order directing transfer of property to plaintiff. Code Civ. Proc. § 512.070

Direction and contents of writ. Code Civ. Proc. § 512.080

Ex parte application for endorsement on writ. Code Civ. Proc. § 512.090

Writ as issuing in name of people of state. Gov. Code § 100

[3] Temporary Restraining Order

Grounds for issuance. Code Civ. Proc. § 513.010

Ex parte issuance of temporary restraining order. Code Civ. Proc. § 513.010(b)

Period of effectiveness of temporary restraining order. Code Civ. Proc. § 513.010(c)

Acts prohibited. Code Civ. Proc. § 513.020

Other injunctive relief as not precluded. Code Civ. Proc. § 516.050

Procedure to obtain temporary restraining order. Code Civ. Proc. § 527

[4] Application for Writ of Possession

Contents of application for writ. Code Civ. Proc. § 512.010

Necessity for hearing on noticed motion for issuance of writ. Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(a)

Ex parte application for writ. Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)

Documents to be served prior to hearing. Code Civ. Proc. § 512.030

Notice of application and hearing. Code Civ. Proc. § 512.040

Service of affidavits and points and authorities prior to hearing. Code Civ. Proc. § 512.050

[5] Hearing on Application

Necessity for hearing on application for writ. Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(a)

Production of evidence at hearing and continuances. Code Civ. Proc. § 512.050

Effect of defendant's failure to oppose issuance of writ or to rebut evidence. Code Civ. Proc. § 512.100

Effect of court's determination on action. Code Civ. Proc. § 512.110

Effect of plaintiff's failure to recover judgment in action. Code Civ. Proc. § 512.120

[6] Affidavits

Contents of affidavits. Code Civ. Proc. § 516.030

Affidavits to verify papers on motions. Code Civ. Proc. § 2009

[7] Undertaking

Provisions to be included in plaintiff's undertaking. Code Civ. Proc. § 515.010

Provisions to be included in defendant's undertaking. Code Civ. Proc. § 515.020

Exception to and justification of sureties. Code Civ. Proc. § 515.030

[8] Levy and Custody

Removal of property by levying officer. Code Civ. Proc. § 514.010

Service of writ of possession by levying officer. Code Civ. Proc. § 514.020

Disposition of property after levy. Code Civ. Proc. § 514.030

Return of writ to court by levying officer. Code Civ. Proc. § 514.040

Property claimed by third party. Code Civ. Proc. § 514.050

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirementsCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary InjunctionsCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining OrdersCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
C. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.81

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.81 Decisions

Hearing prior to seizure of chattels as required to provide real test aimed at establishing probable validity of underlying claim against alleged debtor before debtor deprived of property. Fuentes v. Shevin (1972) 407 U.S. 67, 97, 92 S. Ct. 1983, 32 L. Ed. 2d 556

Where danger exists that debtor may abscond with property or that property will be destroyed, summary procedure as recognized as being consonant with constitutional principles. Blair v. Pitchess (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 258, 278, 96 Cal. Rptr. 42, 486 P.2d 1242

Exceptional situations as possibly existing in which creditor or state interest justifies summary claim and delivery procedure. Blair v. Pitchess (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 258, 282, 96 Cal. Rptr. 42, 486 P.2d 1242

Prejudgment remedy as required to provide for determination of probable cause by magistrate and for hearing prior to seizure of personal property in order to be constitutional. Blair v. Pitchess (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 258, 283, 96 Cal. Rptr. 42, 486 P.2d 1242

Individual as required to be afforded notice and opportunity for hearing before being deprived of any significant property interest and exceptions to this requirement as justified only in extraordinary circumstances. Damazo v. MacIntyre (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 18, 24, 102 Cal. Rptr. 609

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesHearingsCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral OverviewConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
C. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.82

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.82 Law Reviews

Trost, Revival of Pre-Judgment Remedies in California: The New Attachment and Claim and Delivery Statutes, 48 State BJ 26 (1973)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsRevival of Judgments

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
C. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.83

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.83 Text References

California Civil Actions: Pleading And Practice, Chs. 40, 78, Pt. H (Matthew Bender)

Witkin, California Procedure, vol. 6, Provisional Remedies, §§ 247-248, 275 (4th ed. 1997)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
C. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 119.84through 119.89

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

[Reserved]

§§ 119.84[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.90

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.90 Plaintiff's Checklist for Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

NOTE:

Common Procedures Illustrated. This checklist is for use by a plaintiff in seeking the provisional remedy of claim and delivery. It is illustrative of procedures commonly used and is not intended to be exhaustive. Procedures not mentioned in this checklist may be required in a given action.

[1] Obtain Necessary Facts and Documents

NOTE:

Collection of Facts. Not all of the following facts will be ascertainable from the client in the initial interview. Subsequent interviews may be required, or it may be necessary to ascertain the facts from others, including potential defendants, by use of discovery proceedings.

☐ Obtain facts relating to plaintiff:

☐ Name, address, and telephone number of plaintiff.

☐ Capacity of plaintiff to sue.

☐ Additional facts, as desired, relating to plaintiff's stability, financial status and solvency, employment status, prior residences, credit, banks, and personal references.

☐ Obtain facts relating to each potential defendant:

☐ Name, address, and telephone number of each potential defendant.

☐ Capacity of each potential defendant, i.e., whether individual or legal entity (e.g., corporation).

☐ Occupation, including name and address of employer, of each individual defendant.

☐ Status of each individual defendant, such as agent, officer of corporation, etc.

☐ Obtain facts relating to property sought to be recovered:

☐ Specific description of personal property sought to be recovered, including type, nature, and physical appearance of property.

☐ Plaintiff's interest in property, giving plaintiff right to immediate possession of property.

☐ Date, place, and time at which defendant obtained possession of property and date, place, and time at which such possession became wrongful.

☐ Value of property for purpose of assessing damages in event property is not capable of delivery to plaintiff.

☐ Location of property and whether any of it is kept in a private place.

☐ Whether defendant gained possession of the property by feloniously taking it from plaintiff.

☐ Whether the defendant acquired possession of the property in ordinary course of trade or business for commercial purposes.

☐ Obtain Necessary Documents:

☐ Written statements, if any, of parties or witnesses.

☐ Diagrams, photographs, or other descriptions of personal property involved.

☐ If claim is based on written instrument, the written instrument itself or a copy of it.

[2] Determine Whether to Proceed by Noticed Hearing or Ex Parte

☐ Ex parte proceeding is available in following cases:

☐ Defendant gained property feloniously, other than by fraud or embezzlement.

☐ Property is credit card.

☐ Defendant acquired property in ordinary course of trade or business for commercial purposes and all the following apply:

☐ Property not needed for support of defendant or his or her family.

☐ Immediate danger of loss of property.

☐ Ex parte issuance necessary to protect property.

[3] Prepare Application for Writ and Supporting Papers

☐ If complaint has not been filed, prepare complaint and summons [see Code Civ. Proc. § 512.010(a)].

☐ Prepare application for writ of possession [see § 119.111, Judicial Council form of application for writ of possession].

☐ Prepare affidavits or declarations, if desired.

☐ Obtain statements from and then prepare affidavits or declarations supporting plaintiff's claim to the property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 512.010(b)].

☐ Obtain signatures on affidavits or declarations. If affidavits are used, have them notarized.

☐ Prepare memorandum.

☐ If proceeding by noticed hearing, prepare a notice of application and hearing [see § 119.110, Judicial Council form of notice of application for writ of possession and hearing].

☐ If proceeding ex parte, prepare the following papers:

☐ Declaration for ex parte writ of possession [see § 119.116, Judicial Council form of declaration for ex parte writ of possession].

☐ Notice that satisfies Code Civ. Proc. § 512.040(c)-(d) and that informs defendant of his or her rights under Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)].

☐ Declaration showing notification, attempt to notify, or reason for not notifying opposing party or opposing counsel [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204; see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders].

☐ If seeking temporary restraining order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 513.010], prepare the following papers:

☐ Application for temporary restraining order along with application for writ of possession [see § 119.111, Judicial Council form of application for writ of possession and for temporary restraining order].

☐ Declaration for temporary restraining order [see § 119.114, Judicial Council form of declaration for temporary restraining order].

☐ Temporary restraining order [see § 119.115, Judicial Council form of temporary restraining order].

☐ Prepare proposed order for writ of possession [see § 119.112, Judicial Council form of order for writ of possession].

☐ Prepare writ of possession [see § 119.113, Judicial Council form of writ of possession].

☐ Make prior arrangements to have undertaking issue promptly if courtgrants motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 515.010; see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.320]. For Judicial Council form of undertaking by personal sureties that may be used in claim and delivery proceeding, see Ch. 62, Attachment ; for additional forms, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings, § 538.40 et seq.

[4] Noticed Hearing Procedure

☐ If circumstances do not justify ex parte application [see (D), below], comply with the procedure for a noticed hearing on the application.

☐ If not done so previously, file complaint, pay filing fees, and have summons issued.

☐ Serve on defendant and file with court following papers at least 16 court days before the hearing or any longer or shorter period required or allowed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010.6 [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 512.030, 512.050, 1005(a)(2)]:

☐ Copy of summons and complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.030(a)(1)].

☐ Notice of Application and Hearing [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 512.030(a)(2), 1005(a)(2)].

☐ Copy of application [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.030(a)(3)].

☐ Copies of any supporting affidavits or declarations [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.030(a)(3)].

☐ Copy of any supporting memorandum of points and authorities.

☐ Prepare proof of service [see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

☐ File original of notice of application and hearing and proof of service with the court.

☐ Appear at hearing.

☐ On prevailing, present order for writ of possession.

NOTE:

Notice of Order or Decision Required. When a motion is granted or denied, unless the court otherwise orders, notice of the court's decision or order must be given by the prevailing party to all other parties or their attorneys, in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 et seq. (see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers), unless notice is waived by all parties in open court and is entered in the minutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 1019.5(a)]. For a form of notice, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

☐ Obtain and present undertaking.

☐ Present writ of possession.

☐ Attach copy of undertaking to each copy of writ of possession for levying officer to serve on defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.080(e)] or any other person in possession of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 514.020].

[5] Ex Parte Procedure for Issuance of Writ

☐ If not done so previously, file complaint, pay filing fees, and have summons issued.

☐ Ascertain in which department, if relevant, and at what time of day, if restricted, applications for writs of possession are considered.

☐ Present the following papers to the court:

☐ Summons and complaint.

☐ Application for writ of possession.

☐ Declaration for an ex parte writ of possession.

☐ Affidavit or declaration showing notification, attempt to notify, or reason for not notifying opposing party or opposing counsel.

☐ Any additional supporting affidavits or declarations.

☐ Any supporting memorandum of points and authorities.

☐ Notice that meets the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 512.040(c) and (d) and informs the defendant of his or her rights under Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b).

☐ Make oral argument to the appropriate court.

☐ Present order for writ of possession.

☐ Obtain and present undertaking.

☐ Present writ of possession.

☐ Serve defendant with the following papers [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)]:

☐ Copy of summons and complaint.

☐ Copy of application.

☐ Copies of supporting affidavits or declarations.

☐ Copy of any supporting memorandum of points and authorities.

☐ Notice which meets the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 514.040(c), (d) and informs the defendant of his or her rights under Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b).

☐ Copy of writ of possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)] with copy of undertaking attached [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.080(e)].

☐ Attach copy of undertaking to each copy of writ of possession for levying officer to serve on defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.080(e)] or any other person in possession of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 514.020].

[6] Endorsement of Writ to Seize Property in Place Not Specified in Writ

☐ Determine whether probable cause exists to believe property or part of it is in private place not specified in writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.090(a)].

☐ Prepare written ex parte application for endorsement on writ specifying that private place [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.090(a); for a skeletal form of ex parte application, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders].

☐ Prepare affidavits or declarations which establish Section 512.090(a) probable cause requirement [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.090(b)].

☐ Ascertain in which department, if relevant, and at what time of day, if restricted, ex parte applications are considered.

☐ Present ex parte application and affidavits or declarations to court.

[7] Objection to Defendant's Undertaking

☐ Determine whether to object to defendant's undertaking.

NOTE:
Time for Objecting. The plaintiff may object to the defendant's undertaking not later than 10 days after the defendant's undertaking is filed [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 515.030(b), 995.930(b)].

☐ Prepare notice of exception to undertaking [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 515.030(b), 995.930(a)].

☐ Prepare affidavit or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 stating that copies of notice of motion objecting to undertaking have been mailed to levying officer and to defendant at address set out in his or her undertaking [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 515.030(b), 995.030, 1013a].

☐ File notice of motion objecting to undertaking and affidavit or declaration of mailing with court [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 515.030(b), 995.930-995.950, 1010-1013a].

☐ Mail copies of notice of objection to the undertaking and affidavit or declaration to following:

☐ Levying officer [Code Civ. Proc. § 515.030(b)].

☐ Each defendant at the address set out in defendant's undertaking [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 515.030(b), 995.030, 995.320(a)(2), 1010-1013a].

☐ Be prepared for hearing not less than two nor more than five days after service of notice of motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.950(a)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirementsCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesHearingsCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.91

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.91 Defendant's Checklist for Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

NOTE:

Consult Local Rules and Practice. This checklist is for use to defend against an application for the provisional remedy of claim and delivery. It is, however, illustrative only of the basic procedural steps which counsel should follow. Counsel defending against an application for the provisional remedy of claim and delivery should investigate local practice and local court rules for further particular requirements.

[1] Appearance to Oppose Application for Writ

☐ Prepare opposing papers:

☐ Any affidavits or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 intended to be relied on at the hearing to defeat plaintiff's right to issuance of writ [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 512.040(c), 512.050].

☐ Any memorandum of points and authorities intended to be relied on at the hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 512.050].

☐ Serve opposing papers on plaintiff and file with court at least 9 court days before the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 512.050, 1005(a)(2), (b); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6) (extension of time to respond in case of electronic service; for discussion, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers, § 518.41[8])].

☐ Appear at hearing of application.

[2] Noticed Hearing to Quash Ex Parte Writ of Possession

NOTE:

Order May Be Quashed and Property Released. Any defendant whose property is taken pursuant to an ex parte writ of possession may apply for an order that the writ be quashed and any property levied on pursuant to the writ be released [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)].

☐ Prepare moving papers:

☐ Application and notice of application and hearing for order to quash ex parte writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b); see § 119.117, Judicial Council form of application and notice of application and hearing for order to quash ex parte writ of possession].

☐ Any affidavits or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 intended to be relied on at the hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 512.020(b), 512.050].

☐ Any memorandum of points and authorities intended to be relied on at the hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 512.020(b), 512.050].

☐ Prepare order for release and redelivery of property [see § 119.118, Judicial Council form of order for release and redelivery of property].

☐ Serve on plaintiff and file with court moving papers at least 16 court days before the hearing or any longer or shorter period required or allowed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010.6(a)(6) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 512.020(b), 512.050, 1005(a)(13)].

☐ Appear at hearing of application.

☐ On prevailing, present order for release and redelivery of property.

NOTE:

Notice of Order or Decision Required. When a motion is granted or denied, unless the court otherwise orders, notice of the court's decision or order must be given by the prevailing party to all other parties or their attorneys, in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 et seq. (see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers), unless notice is waived by all parties in open court and is entered in the minutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 1019.5(a)]. For a form of notice, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[3] Undertaking to Stay Delivery of Property

☐ Prepare undertaking [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 515.020, 995.310-995.330]. For form of undertaking by personal sureties that may be used in claim and delivery proceeding, see Ch. 62, Attachment . For additional forms relating to undertakings, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

☐ Prepare affidavit or declaration Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 stating that copies of undertaking have been mailed to levying officer and to plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 515.020(c), 995.370].

☐ Mail copies of the undertaking and affidavit or declaration to the following:

☐ The levying officer [Code Civ. Proc. § 515.020(c)].

☐ Each plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 515.020(c), 995.370].

☐ File undertaking and affidavit or declaration of mailing with court [Code Civ. Proc. § 515.020(a)].

NOTE:
Time to File Undertaking. The defendant's undertaking may be filed at any time before or after levy of the writ of possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 515.020(c)].

[4] Objection to Plaintiff's Undertaking

☐ Determine whether to object to plaintiff's undertaking.

NOTE:
Time for Objecting. The defendant may object to the plaintiff's undertaking not later than 10 days after the plaintiff's undertaking is filed [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 515.030(a), 995.930(b)].

☐ Prepare notice of exception to undertaking [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 515.030(a), 995.930(a)].

☐ Prepare affidavit or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 stating that copies of notice of motion objecting to undertaking have been mailed to levying officer and to plaintiff at address set out in his or her undertaking [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 515.030(a), 995.030, 1013a].

☐ File notice of motion objecting to undertaking and affidavit or declaration of mailing with court [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 515.030(a), 995.930-995.950, 1010-1013a].

☐ Mail copies of notice of objection to the undertaking and affidavit or declaration to following:

☐ Levying officer [Code Civ. Proc. § 515.030(a)].

☐ Each plaintiff at the address set out in defendant's undertaking [see Code Civ. Proc.

§§ 515.030(a), 995.030, 995.320(a)(2), 1010-1013a].

☐ Be prepared for hearing not less than two nor more than five days after service of notice of motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.950(a)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAnswersCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesHearingsCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 119.92through 119.99

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

[Reserved]

§§ 119.92[Reserved]

171 of 185 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART V. FORMS
A. Action For Possession of Personal Property

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.100

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.100 Complaint for Possession of Personal Property or Its Value and for Damages for Its Wrongful Detention [Civ. Code §§ 667, 3379, 3380; Code Civ. Proc. § 667]--General Form

[1] FORM Complaint for Possession of Personal Property or Its Value and for Damages for Its Wrongful Detention [Civ. Code §§ 667, 3379, 3380; Code Civ. Proc. § 667]--General Form

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

[or other as appropriate]

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR POSSESSION OF PERSONAL
_____ [name], [and DOES I	)	PROPERTY AND FOR DAMAGES

through _____,]	)	[Amount demanded _____
Defendant(s).	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

_____

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ County, California [, in the _____ (name) _____ (Municipal Court or Judicial) District] [or allege other basis of venue as appropriate].

[2. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as DOES I-_____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of these fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the acts or omissions herein alleged, and that plaintiff's injuries as herein alleged were proximately caused by the acts or omissions.)]

3. Plaintiff is, and at all times herein mentioned was, the _____ [owner of or describe plaintiff's other qualified interest in personal property that entitles plaintiff to its immediate possession] personal property described and valued as follows: _____ [describe, or list, each item of personal property claimed by plaintiff and its value or the value of plaintiff's qualified interest in it].

4. Plaintiff is, and at all times herein mentioned was, entitled to the immediate [and exclusive] possession of the personal property described above.

[EITHER, if original taking of property was unlawful]

5. On or about _____ [date], defendant wrongfully and without plaintiff's consent took possession of the personal property described above. Since that time defendant has been, and now is, in wrongful possession of the property in violation of plaintiff's right to immediate [and exclusive] possession.

[OR, if original taking of property was lawful, allege plaintiff's demand and defendant's wrongful detention after demand]

5. On or about _____ [date], _____ [describe manner in which defendant lawfully obtained possession, e.g., plaintiff deposited with defendant the personal property described above so that defendant, pursuant to an oral agreement between the parties, could store the property for plaintiff until _____ (date)]. On _____ [date], plaintiff demanded that defendant return the property to him/her. Defendant _____ [refused or failed] to return the property after plaintiff's demand and continues to withhold possession of it from plaintiff in violation of plaintiff's right to immediate [and exclusive] possession of it.

[CONTINUE]

6. During, and as a proximate result of, defendant's wrongful possession and detention of the personal property described above, plaintiff suffered the loss of the use and enjoyment of his/her personal property.

_____ [State basis for computing damages for loss of use, e.g., The reasonable value of use of the property is (approximately) $_____ per _____(specify, e.g., day), which constitutes _____ (specify, e.g., interest at the rate of _____ percent per annum on the value of or reasonable rental value on) the property]. Therefore, plaintiff has suffered damages _____ [in the sum of $_____ or according to proof].

[7. During, and as a further proximate result of, defendant's wrongful possession and detention of the personal property described above, plaintiff suffered the loss of the depreciation of his/her personal property to his/her damage _____ (in the sum of $_____ or according to proof).]

[8. During, and as a (further) proximate result of, defendant's wrongful possession and detention of the personal property described above, plaintiff suffered _____ (specify, e.g., deterioration or business loss) of his/her personal property to his/her damage _____ (in the sum of $_____ or according to proof).]

[9. In taking, wrongfully possessing, and detaining the property described above, defendant's conduct was willful and was intended to cause injury to the plaintiff (in that _____ (state facts showing oppression, fraud, or malice)). Plaintiff is therefore entitled to an award of exemplary or punitive damages.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For possession of the personal property described above or, if the property cannot be delivered, for its value [in the sum of $_____];

2. For damages _____ [in the sum of $_____ or according to proof];

[3. For damages for depreciation _____ (in the sum of $_____ or according to proof);]

[4. For damages for _____ (specify, e.g., deterioration or business loss) _____ (in the sum of $_____ or according to proof);]

[5. For exemplary and punitive damages;]

6. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

7. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By:_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[ADD Verification, if desired or required. See [6], below]

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

The general form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by a plaintiff who is entitled to the immediate possession of personal property in an action to recover that property or its value and damages for its detention from a defendant who is wrongfully withholding possession of the property. For a discussion of the elements of a cause of action to recover personal property from a person wrongfully withholding it, see Part II, Subpart B, § 119.20 et seq.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- Defendant's capacity and residence (Paragraph 1);

- Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate (Paragraph 2);

- Plaintiff's interest in the personal property (Paragraph 3) [see Rathbun v. Hill (1933) 129 Cal. App. 601, 604, 19 P.2d 64 (although better practice, complaint is not required to allege plaintiff's interest and the value of it)];

- A description of the property with a reasonable degree of certainty (Paragraph 3) [Hawley v. Kocher (1898) 123 Cal. 77, 82, 55 P. 696 (affirming sustaining of demurrer for uncertainty by trial court based on insufficient description of property)];

- The value of plaintiff's property (Paragraph 3) [Murphy v. Kelly (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 21, 30, 289 P.2d 565 (to enable plaintiff's damages to be assessed if restoration of the property proves impossible); see Code Civ. Proc. § 627 (verdict for property or its value), Code Civ. Proc. § 667 (judgment for property or its value)];

- Plaintiff's right to immediate possession of the property (Paragraph 4) [Truman v. Young (1898) 121 Cal. 490, 53 P. 1073 (demurrer erroneously overruled when complaint failed to allege plaintiff was owner or entitled to possession of property); Stockton M.P. Co. v. Mariposa County (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 210, 213, 221 P.2d 232 (plaintiff's right to immediate possession of property as essential allegation)];

- Defendant's unlawful taking and detention of the property (Paragraph 5) [see First Nat'l Bank v. Thompson (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 79, 82, 140 P.2d 75 (tortious taking)] or defendant's lawful taking and unlawful detention after demand by the plaintiff (Paragraph 5) [Home Payment Jewelry Co. v. Smith (1914) 24 Cal. App. 486, 488, 141 P. 933 (allegation of demand required when original possession by defendant lawful); see also Faulkner v. First National Bank (1900) 130 Cal. 258, 262-263, 62 P. 463 (allegation of plaintiff's deposit of notes with defendant, plaintiff's demand for their return, and defendant's refusal to return them found sufficient)];

- Defendant's wrongful possession of the property at the time of commencement of the action (Paragraph 5) [Stockton M.P. Co. v. Mariposa County (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 210, 213, 221 P.2d 232 (defendant's wrongful possession at time of commencement of action is essential allegation); Lamus v. Engwicht (1919) 39 Cal. App. 523, 529, 179 P. 435 (allegation of defendant's adverse claim to property insufficient absent allegation of defendant's actual or constructive possession of property); see Faulkner v. First Nat'l Bank (1900) 130 Cal. 258,264-266, 130 Cal. 258, 266, 62 P. 463 (possession of property by defendant at time action commenced where possession originally lawful and subsequent detention and disposition wrongful)];

- General damages caused by defendant's wrongful detention of the property (Paragraph 6) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 627, 667];

- Special damages caused by the detention, such as depreciation (Paragraph 7) [see Morris v. Allen (1911) 17 Cal. App. 684, 688, 121 P. 690 (holding, however, that depreciation may be proved as element of general damages)] and deterioration or business loss (Paragraph 8); and

- Exemplary and punitive damages (Paragraph 9) [see Civ. Code § 3294], if appropriate. If facts showing oppression, fraud, and malice are not included in the earlier allegations in the complaint, they should be included in this paragraph.

[4] Venue

[a] In General

Venue for an action for possession of personal property is not specifically provided for and, therefore, is governed generally by Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a). Thus, generally, the county in which the defendants or some of them reside at the commencement of the action is the proper county for the trial of the action except as discussed below. If, in addition to seeking possession of the property, an action seeks recovery for actual physical injury to the property, either the county where the injury occurred or the county in which the defendants or some of them reside at the commencement of the action is the proper county for the trial of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a); see Spangenberg v. Spangenberg (1932) 123 Cal. App. 387, 391, 11 P.2d 408 ; see also Haurat v. Superior Court (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 330, 333, 50 Cal. Rptr. 520 (residence of defendant as proper county for trial for personal torts not involving physical injury, such as conversion)].

[b] Action Based on Certain Obligations

If the action for possession of personal property is founded on a contractual obligation, the action may be brought in the county in which the obligation is to be performed, in which it was entered, or in which a defendant resides at the commencement of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)].

If the action for possession of personal property is founded on an obligation for goods, services, loans, or extension of credit intended primarily for personal, family, or household use, other than an obligation described in Civ. Code § 1812.10 (Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act) or*Civ. Code § 2984.4* (Rees-Levering Motor Vehicles Sales and Finance Act), or an action arising from a transaction consummated as a proximate result of an unsolicited telephone call made by a seller engaged in the business of consummating transactions of that kind or a telephone call or electronic transmission made by the buyer or lessee in response to a seller's solicitation, the county in which the defendant signed the contract, in which he or she resided at the time the contract was entered, or in which he or she resided at the commencement of the action is the proper county for the trial of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b)]. If the action is subject to the Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act [Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.] or the Rees-Levering Automotive Sales Act [Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.], or is a limited civil case that is subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) (discussed above), additional and/or alternative venue requirements apply [see Code Civ. Proc. § 396a]. For coverage of those requirements, which will not apply in most claim and delivery actions, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used , Chapter 83, Automobiles: Bringing the Action, and Chapter 510, Sales: Retail Installment Sales.

If the defendant is a corporation or association, it may be sued in the county in which the contract was made or is to be performed, in which the obligation or liability arises, in which the breach occurs, or in which its principal place of business is situated [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395.2, 395.5].

[5] Statute of Limitations

Actions for possession of personal property must be commenced within three years of the accrual of the cause of action, such as when the defendant first wrongfully claims ownership of the plaintiff's property [Latta v. Tutton (1898) 122 Cal. 279, 284, 54 P. 844 (applying three-year limitation of Code Civ. Proc. § 338(c) to actions for possession of personal property)] or refuses to surrender the property on demand by the rightful owner [see Rose v. Dunk-Harbison Co. (1935) 7 Cal. App. 2d 502, 506, 46 P.2d 242] .

[6] Verification

Verification of the complaint is not required except when the action is subject to Civ. Code §§ 1812.10 (retail installment sales), 2984.4 (motor vehicle sales), or Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) (other consumer obligations) [for discussion, see [4][b], above]. However, verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer in a superior court action unless the action is a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(a), 446] and precludes a general denial in superior court and in some limited civil cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[7] Cross References

For alternative allegations as to agency, capacity, and residence of parties, and fictitious name allegations, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used

For alternative forms of captions and introductions, see Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions

For discussion, procedures, and forms relating to conversion actions, see Ch. 150, Conversion

For discussion and forms relating to the format of complaints, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints

For discussion and forms relating to damages and pleading damages, see Ch. 177, Damages

For discussion and forms relating to the deposit of property with the court pending trial, see Ch. 211, Deposit in Court

For discussion and forms relating to fax service and filing of papers, see Ch. 264, Fax Service nd Filing of Papers

For discussion of jurisdiction in California courts in general, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances , and Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter

For alternative forms of prayers, see Ch. 420, Prayers

For discussion and forms relating to service of summons generally, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers

For forms of allegations showing proper venue, see Ch. 571, Venue

For alternative forms of verification, see Ch. 572, Verification

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART V. FORMS
A. Action For Possession of Personal Property

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.101

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.101 Allegations For Use in Complaint for Possession of Personal Property By Owner Against Lienholder Refusing Tender [Civ. Code §§ 3379, 3380]

[1] FORM Allegations For Use in Complaint for Possession of Personal Property By Owner Against Lienholder Refusing Tender [Civ. Code §§ 3379, 3380]

1. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff transferred possession of the personal property described above to defendant as _____ [specify terms of lien, e.g., collateral security for defendant's loan of $_____ (at an interest rate of _____ percent per annum) to plaintiff].

2. On _____ [date], plaintiff tendered $_____ as the full amount [of principal and interest] due to defendant and demanded possession of the personal property described above. Defendant refused to accept the tender by plaintiff and refused to return the property to plaintiff.

3. Since that time defendant has been, and now is, in wrongful possession of the property in violation of plaintiff's right to immediate [and exclusive] possession.

[2] Use of Form

The allegations in [1], above, are for use in a complaint for possession of personal property by a plaintiff owning personal property which is in the defendant's possession and subject to the defendant's liens when the defendant refuses to accept the plaintiff's tender or to return the property to the plaintiff. These allegations may be substituted for Paragraphs 4 and 5 of § 119.100[1], complaint for possession of personal property or its value and damages for its wrongful detention.

173 of 185 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART V. FORMS
A. Action For Possession of Personal Property

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.102

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.102 Demurrer to Complaint for Possession of Personal Property for Insufficient Description of Property Sought to Be Recovered [Civ. Code §§ 3379, 3380; Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)]

[1] FORM Demurrer to Complaint for Possession of Personal Property for Insufficient Description of Property Sought to Be Recovered [Civ. Code §§ 3379, 3380; Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	DEMURRER TO COMPLAINT FOR POSSES-
Plaintiff,	)	SION OF PERSONAL PROPERTY
vs.	)	Date: _____
_____ [name],	)	Time: _____
Defendant.	)	Dept: _____

) Trial Date: None Set
) [Amount demanded _____
) (exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

_____

Defendant demurs to the complaint herein on the ground that the complaint is uncertain in that it fails to provide a sufficient description of the property sought to be recovered by plaintiff from defendant.

WHEREFORE, defendant prays that this demurrer be sustained [without leave to amend], that plaintiff take nothing by his/her complaint, that defendant have judgment for his/her costs, and for all other relief the court may deem proper.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By:_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Use of Form

The form of demurrer in [1], above, is for use by a defendant in an action for possession of personal property to object to the complaint's failure to describe with reasonable certainty the personal property sought to be recovered [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)]. The form may be adapted for use by a cross defendant when the cause of action for possession of personal property is raised by a cross complaint.

A memorandum in support of each ground of the demurrer must be served and filed with the demurrer. The court may construe the absence of a memorandum as an admission that the special demurrer is not meritorious and as a waiver of all grounds not supported by the memorandum [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[3] Cross References

For discussion, procedures, and forms relating to demurrers generally, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART V. FORMS
A. Action For Possession of Personal Property

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.103

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.103 Answer to Complaint for Possession of Personal Property Denying Plaintiff's Right to Possession and Asserting Defendant's Right to Possession [Civ. Code §§ 3379, 3380]

[1] FORM Answer to Complaint for Possession of Personal Property Denying Plaintiff's Right to Possession and Asserting Defendant's Right to Possession [Civ. Code §§ 3379, 3380]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	ANSWER TO COMPLAINT FOR POSSESSION
_____ [name],	)	OF PERSONAL PROPERTY
Defendant.	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]
	)
	)

_____

Defendant answers the complaint herein as follows;

1. Admits _____ [set forth admissions].

2. Denies, generally and specifically, each and every allegation of Paragraph _____ [specify number of paragraph in complaint alleging plaintiff's right to immediate possession of personal property, e.g., 4] and alleges that defendant is, and at all times mentioned in the complaint was, entitled to the immediate [and exclusive] possession of the personal property described in the complaint.

WHEREFORE, defendant prays that plaintiff take nothing by his/her complaint, and that defendant have judgment for his/her costs, and for all other relief the court may deem proper.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By:_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Use of Form

The form of answer in [1], above, is for use by a defendant in an action for possession of personal property to deny the plaintiff's asserted right to possession and to allege the defendant's right to possession of the property in dispute. The form may be adapted for use by a cross defendant when the cause of action for possession of personal property is raised by a cross complaint.

[3] Affirmative Relief

Although a defendant does not ordinarily pray for affirmative relief in his or her answer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(b)], it appears that affirmative relief is also available to a prevailing defendant. There is express statutory authority that a verdict or judgment in favor of a defendant not in possession of the property may be for a return of the property or its value and damages for its taking and withholding [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 627, 667].

[4] Cross References

For discussion, procedures, and forms relating to answers generally, see Ch. 26, Answers

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART V. FORMS
A. Action For Possession of Personal Property

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.104

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.104 Judgment for Plaintiff After Nonjury Trial for Possession of Personal Property or Its Value and for Damages for Its Detention [Civ. Code §§ 3379, 3380; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 664, 667]

[1] FORM Judgment for Plaintiff After Nonjury Trial for Possession of Personal Property or Its Value and for Damages for Its Detention [Civ. Code §§ 3379, 3380; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 664, 667]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	JUDGMENT
Defendant.	)
	)
	)

_____

This cause came on regularly for trial on _____ [date], in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] the above-entitled court, the Honorable _____ [name], Judge, presiding, sitting without a jury. Plaintiff appeared by his/her attorney _____ [name] and defendant appeared by his/her attorney _____ [name]. Evidence, both oral and documentary, having been presented by both parties, the cause having been submitted for decision, and _____ [the court having caused to be made and filed its written statement of decision or a statement of decision not having been requested];

NOW, THEREFORE, IT IS HEREBY ADJUDGED, ORDERED, AND DECREED that plaintiff _____ [name] recover from defendant [name] possession of the following personal property: _____ [describe or list each item of personal property to which plaintiff is found entitled].

IT IS FURTHER ADJUDGED, ORDERED, AND DECREED that, in the event that a delivery of this property cannot be had, plaintiff recover from defendant the value of the property. The value of the property is [fixed at] $_____ [, which constitutes the aggregate of the value of the following property: _____ (list each item of personal property and its value or the value of plaintiff's qualified interest in it)].

IT IS FURTHER ADJUDGED, ORDERED, AND DECREED that plaintiff recover from defendant the sum of $_____ damages for detention of the property together with $_____ interest to the date of this judgment and $_____ costs.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

The form of judgment in [1], above, is for use in a nonjury trial in an action for possession of personal property when the decision is for the plaintiff.

[3] When Judgment Entered

When a trial has been had by court, judgment must be entered by the clerk in conformity to the decision of the court immediately on the filing of the decision. A judgment is not effective for any purpose until entered [Code Civ. Proc. § 664].

[4] Cross References

For discussion, procedures, and forms for use in recovering costs, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees

For discussion and forms for use in requesting a statement of decision, see Ch. 529, Statement of Decision

For discussion and forms for use in obtaining and entering judgments, see Ch. 318, Judgments

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART V. FORMS
A. Action For Possession of Personal Property

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 119.105-119.109

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

[Reserved]

§§ 119.105[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART V. FORMS
B. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.110

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.110 Notice of Application for Writ of Possession and Hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.040]--Judicial Council Form CD-110

[1] FORM Notice of Application for Writ of Possession and Hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.040]--Judicial Council Form CD-110

Click here to view image.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustration of Judicial Council Form CD-110, Notice of Application For Writ of Possession and Hearing. The notice is for use by a plaintiff to notify a defendant of a hearing on an application for a writ of possession [see Code Civ. Proc. § 512.040]. This form is adopted for mandatory use [Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 1.31]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The notice of application and hearing must provide the defendant with all the information required by Code Civ. Proc. § 512.040 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 512.040; for discussion, see § 119.43[2][b]].

For a list of the papers that must accompany the notice, see § 119.111[8].

[3] Service of Notice

A notice of application and hearing is required to be served on the defendant prior to the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.030(b)(2)]. This notice is required to be given as prescribed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a)(2)]. For discussion, see § 119.43[5].

[4] Cross References

For the judicial council form of an application for writ of possession and a temporary restraining order and a discussion of its use see § 119.111

For discussion, procedures, and forms relating to serving papers, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers

For discussion, procedures, and forms relating to shortening time for notice, see Ch. 524, Shortening and Extension of Time

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART V. FORMS
B. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.111

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.111 Application for Writ of Possession and for Temporary Restraining Order [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 512.010, 513.010]--Judicial Council Form CD-100

[1] FORM Application for Writ of Possession and for Temporary Restraining Order [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 512.010, 513.010]--Judicial Council Form CD-100

Click here to view image.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustration of Judicial Council Form CD-100, Application for Writ of Possession. The application is for use by a plaintiff to apply for a writ of possession, either after a hearing or ex parte. It may also be used to request a temporary restraining order.

This form is adopted for mandatory use [Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 1.31]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Application for Writ of Possession

The plaintiff may apply for a writ of possession by filing a written application for the writ in the court in which the action is brought. The application may be made when the complaint is filed or at any time thereafter [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.010(a)]. The application must include a showing of all the elements required by Code Civ. Proc. § 512.010(b) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 512.010(b); see also discussion in § 119.43[3]].

[4] Ex Parte Application

If an ex parte writ is sought, the application must also include a showing of all of the elements required by Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b); see also discussion in § 119.46[1]]. These requirements may be satisfied by one or more affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) filed with the application [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 512.010(c), 516.030; see also discussion in § 119.43[4]]. For an illustration of the Judicial Council form of declaration, see § 119.116[1].

[5] Notice Requirements for Ex Parte Application

If an application for an order is made ex parte, an affidavit or declaration must be prepared showing (1) that within a reasonable time before the application was made the opposing party or the opposing party's attorney was informed of when and where it would be made; (2) that there was a good faith attempt to inform the opposing party and the opposing party's attorney but the party was unable to do so, specifying the efforts made to inform them; or (3) that for reasons specified the party should not be required to inform the opposing party or the opposing party's attorney [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204]. The party seeking the ex parte order must notify all parties no later than 10:00 a.m. the court day before the ex parte appearance, absent exceptional circumstances [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1203].

For further discussion or the declaration requirement and a form of ex parte application including this declaration, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders, §§ 372.19 and 372.68.

[6] Temporary Restraining Order

At or after the time he or she files an application for a writ of possession, the plaintiff may apply for a temporary restraining order [Code Civ. Proc. § 513.010(a); see discussion in § 119.44[2], and § 119.115].

[7] Oath or Declaration Under Penalty of Perjury

The application is executed under oath or penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.010(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]. The declaration printed on the form is adequate only if the form is signed in California. If the form is signed outside the state, the declaration must be modified to read as follows [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]:

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

[8] Accompanying Papers

Prior to the hearing required by Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(a), the defendant must be served with all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.030]:

- A copy of the summons and complaint,
- A notice of application and hearing, and

- A copy of the application and any affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) in its support.

If the basis of the plaintiff's claim is a written instrument, a copy of the instrument must be attached to the application for a writ of possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.010(b)(1)].

The person filing the application is also required to file and serve any affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) intended to be relied on at the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.050].

Any paper on which the application is to be based which has not been previously served on the person to be notified and was not filed by him or her must accompany the notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 1010].

A memorandum of points and authorities must also accompany the notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.050; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1113(a)].

NOTE:

Points and Authorities Required Under Rules. Under the statutes governing claim and delivery, each party is permitted, but not required, to file and serve points and authorities prior to the hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 512.050]. However, because an application is a motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 1003], the California Rules of Court appear to require the plaintiff to serve and file a memorandum of supporting points and authorities with the notice of application [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1113(a)].

[9] Cross References

For a Judicial Council form of notice of application for writ of possession and hearing and a discussion of its use see § 119.110

For discussion, procedures, and forms relating to temporary restraining orders generally, see Ch. 303, Injunctions

For discussion, procedures, and forms relating to motions generally, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART V. FORMS
B. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.112

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.112 Order for Writ of Possession [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 512.060, 512.070]--Judicial Council Form CD-120

[1] FORM Order for Writ of Possession [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 512.060, 512.070]--Judicial Council Form CD-120

Click here to view image.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustration of Judicial Council Form CD-120, Order for Writ of Possession. The order is for use when the court grants an application for the issuance of a writ of possession either after a hearing or ex parte [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 512.020(b), 512.060].

This form is adopted for mandatory use [Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 1.31]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

For Judicial Council forms of a notice of application for a writ of possession and an application for a writ of possession and discussions of their uses see §§ 119.110, 119.111.

[3] Issuance of Writ

For discussion of when a writ of possession is issued, see the discussion in § 119.43[8][c].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART V. FORMS
B. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.113

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.113 Writ of Possession [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 512.080, 512.090]--Judicial Council Form CD-130

[1] FORM Writ of Possession [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 512.080, 512.090]--Judicial Council Form CD-130

Click here to view image.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustration of Judicial Council Form CD-130, Writ of Possession. The writ is for use to direct a levying officer to levy on and retain in his or her custody specified property until the property is either released or sold and to enter specified private places to take possession of the property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 512.080].

This form is adopted for mandatory use [Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 1.31]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

For Judicial Council forms of a notice of application, an application, and an order for a writ of possession and discussions of their uses, see § 119.110.

[3] Requirements for Writ

The writ of possession must meet all of the requirements specified by Code Civ. Proc. § 512.080 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 512.080; see also discussion in § 119.43].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART V. FORMS
B. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.114

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.114 Declaration for Temporary Restraining Order [Code Civ. Proc. § 513.020]--Judicial Council Form CD-190

[1] FORM Declaration for Temporary Restraining Order [Code Civ. Proc. § 513.020]--Judicial Council Form CD-190

Click here to view image.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustration of Judicial Council Form CD-190, Declaration for Temporary Restraining Order. The declaration is for use by a plaintiff to support an application for a temporary restraining order [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 513.010, 513.020; for discussion, see § 119.44; for an illustration of the form of application, see § 119.110[1]].

This form is adopted for mandatory use [Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 1.31]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Affidavits and Declarations

For a discussion of the use of affidavits and declarations in claim and delivery proceedings, see the discussion in § 119.43[4].

[4] Cross References

For a Judicial Council form of application for writ of possession and for temporary restraining order and a discussion of its use see § 119.111

For forms of affidavits and declarations generally, see Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART V. FORMS
B. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.115

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.115 Temporary Restraining Order [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 513.010, 513.020]--Judicial Council Form CD-200

[1] FORM Temporary Restraining Order [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 513.010, 513.020]--Judicial Council Form CD-200

Click here to view image.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustration of Judicial Council Form CD-200, Temporary Restraining Order. The order is for use when the court grants an application for an order temporarily restraining a defendant from taking certain actions with respect to the personal property which is the subject of the suit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 513.020; for discussion, see § 119.44[3]].

This form is adopted for mandatory use [Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 1.31]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

For Judicial Council forms of an application for writ of possession and for temporary restraining order and a declaration for temporary restraining order and discussions of their uses see §§ 119.111, 119.114.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART V. FORMS
B. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.116

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.116 Declaration for Ex Parte Writ of Possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)]--Judicial Council Form CD-180

[1] FORM Declaration for Ex Parte Writ of Possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)]--Judicial Council Form CD-180

Click here to view image.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustration of Judicial Council Form CD-180, Declaration for Ex Parte Writ of Possession. The declaration is for use by a plaintiff to support an application for an ex parte writ of possession [see Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b); for an illustration of the form of application, see § 119.110].

This form is adopted for mandatory use [Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 1.31]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Ex Parte Writ of Possession

For discussion of the circumstances required for ex parte issuance of a writ of possession, see the discussions in § 119.46.

[4] Affidavits and Declarations

For a discussion of the use of affidavits and declarations in claim and delivery proceedings, see the discussion in § 119.43[4].

[5] Declaration Regarding Notice of Ex Parte Application

The applicant for an ex parte order is required to provide an additional declaration regarding notice of the application to the opposing party [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204; for discussion of the notice requirements for an ex parte application, see § 119.111[5]].

[6] Cross References

For Judicial Council forms of a notice of application for a writ of possession, an application for a writ of possession, an order for a writ of possession, and a writ of possession and discussions of their uses see §§ 119.110 -119.113

For forms of affidavits and declarations generally, see Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART V. FORMS
B. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.117

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.117 Application and Notice of Application and Hearing for Order to Quash Ex Parte Writ of Possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)]--Judicial Council Form CD-160

[1] FORM Application and Notice of Application and Hearing for Order to Quash Ex Parte Writ of Possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)]--Judicial Council Form CD-160

Click here to view image.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustration of Judicial Council Form CD-160, Application and Notice of Application and Hearing for Order to Quash Ex Parte Writ of Possession. The form is for use by a defendant to apply for an order to quash an ex parte writ of possession and to notify a plaintiff of a hearing on the application [see Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)].

This form is adopted for mandatory use [Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 1.31]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Motion to Quash

A defendant whose property has been taken pursuant to an ex parte writ of possession may apply for an order that the writ be quashed and any property levied on pursuant to the writ be released [see Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b); see also discussion in § 119.46[5]].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 119 CLAIM AND DELIVERY
PART V. FORMS
B. Provisional Remedy of Claim and Delivery

12-119 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 119.118

AUTHOR: Hon. Robert H. O'BrienEdythe L. Bronston, Esq.Alan M. Mirman, Esq.David J. Pasternak, Esq. Contributing Editors Part II of this chapter was adapted from California Practice Handbook: Provisional Remedies (Matthew Bender), Litigation Section, Los Angeles County Bar Association, Handbook Editor; Hon. Robert H. O'Brien, Edythe L. Bronston, Alan M Mirman, David J. Pasternak, Contributing Editors. Judge O'Brien is a judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, conducting both civil and criminal trials. Ms. Bronston is a partner with Fierstein & Sturman in Los Angeles, practicing mainly in the area of creditors' rights. Mr. Mirman is a partner in Horgan, Rosen, Beckham & Coren, located in the Toluca Lake area of Los Angeles, and specializes in the representation of financial institutions. Mr. Pasternak is a partner with the firm of Appleton, Pasternak & Pasternak in Los Angeles, practicing in all aspects of business litigation, including appointments as a receiver, referee, and corporate appraiser.

§ 119.118 Order for Release and Redelivery of Property [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)]--Judicial Council Form CD-170

[1] FORM Order for Release and Redelivery of Property [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)]--Judicial Council Form CD-170

Click here to view image.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustration of Judicial Council Form CD-170, Order for Release and Redelivery of Property. The form is for use when the court grants a motion to quash an ex parte writ of possession and to release and redeliver the personal property described in the writ [see Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)].

This form is adopted for mandatory use [Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 1.31]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Order

If the court determines that the plaintiff is not entitled to a writ of possession, the court quashes the writ of possession orders the release and redelivery of any property previously levied on, and awards the defendant any damages sustained by him or her which were proximately caused by the levy of the writ of possession and the loss of possession of the property pursuant to the levy [Code Civ. Proc. § 512.020(b)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 120.syn

§ 120.syn Synopsis to Chapter 120: CLASS ACTIONS *

§ 120.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 120.02 Cross References

§§ 120.03-120.09 [Reserved]

§ 120.10 Governing Law

[1] California Law

[2] Federal Law

§ 120.11 Nature of Class Action

[1] Virtual Representation

[2] Class Action Distinguished From Other Representative Actions

[3] Class Action Distinguished From Coordinated Actions

§ 120.12 Requirements for Maintenance of Class Action

[1] Predominance of Common Issues

[2] Community of Interest

[a] Factors to Be Considered

[b] Predominant Questions

[c] Typicality of Claims

[d] Lack of Community Interest in Mass Tort Actions

[e] Examples of Community of Interest Determinations

[3] Ascertainable Class

[4] Use of Subclasses

[5] Superiority of Class Action as Method of Adjudicating Dispute

[a] Basis of Requirement in Federal Rule

[b] Relevant Factors

[6] Enforceability of Contractual Waiver of Class Action

§ 120.13 Federal Jurisdiction Over Interstate Class Actions

[1] Class Action Fairness Act of 2005

[a] Importance of Act

[b] Purposes of Act

[2] Removal to Federal Court

[3] Minimal-Diversity Jurisdiction of Federal Court

[a] Federal Jurisdiction Generally May Be Based on Minimal Diversity

[b] Exceptions to Minimal Diversity

[c] When Federal Court Must or May Decline to Exercise Minimal-Diversity Jurisdiction

[4] Diversity Jurisdiction Over "Mass Actions"

[5] Federal Appellate Review of Remand Orders

§ 120.14 Interstate Class Actions in California Courts

[1] Importance of Choice of Law

[2] Effect of Choice-of-Law Agreement

[a] Scope of Agreement

[b] Enforceability of Agreement

[3] Choice of Law in Absence of Enforceable Agreement

[a] Significant-Contacts Test

[b] Governmental-Interest Test

[i] General Rule Favoring Forum Law

[ii] Three-Step Analysis

[4] Suitability of Class Action If Laws of Other States Apply

§ 120.15 Class Representative and Unnamed Class Members

[1] Representative Must Be Member of Class

[2] Representative Must Adequately Represent Class

[3] Fiduciary Duty of Representative Toward Class

[4] Association's Standing to Represent Class

[5] Replacement of Representative

[6] Individual Representation

§ 120.16 Special Concerns for Defendant Classes

§ 120.17 General Procedural Issues in Class Actions

[1] Applicability of Consumer Legal Remedies Act and Federal Procedures

[2] Statute of Limitations

[3] Personal Jurisdiction Over Nonresidents

[4] Dismissal of Action

§ 120.18 Procedure to Certify Class Action

[1] Burden on Party Seeking Class Certification

[2] Timing of Certification

[3] Altering or Amending Certification

[4] Certification Decision Does Not Address Substantive Merits

[5] Appellate Review of Certification Decision

[a] Final-Judgment Rule

[b] Mandate Review of Interlocutory Orders

[c] Standard of Review

[6] Decertification of Class

§ 120.19 Notice Requirements

[1] When Notice Is Required

[2] Content of Notice

[3] Method of Giving Notice

§ 120.20 Attacking Class Actions

[1] Motions for Pretrial Disposition

[2] Appellate Review

§ 120.21 Settlement of Class Actions

[1] Settlement in California Court

[2] Consumer Protection in Federal Court

[a] Consumer Class Action Bill of Rights and Improved Procedures for Interstate Class Actions

[b] Judicial Approval of Coupon Settlements

[c] Attorney's Fees in Coupon Settlements

[d] Judicial Approval of Other Settlements

[e] Notice to Government Officials of Proposed Settlement

[i] General Notice Requirement

[ii] Notice Requirement If Defendant Is Depository Institution or Related Entity

[iii] Contents of Notice to Appropriate Officials

§ 120.22 Assessment and Payment of Damages

[1] Fluid Recovery Method

[2] Procedures for Distribution of Residue

§ 120.23 Judgment

[1] Content and Notice of Judgment

[2] Effect on Class Members' Individual Claims

[3] Appeals by Unnamed Class Members

§ 120.24 Attorney's Fees

[1] In General

[2] "Common Fund" Theory

[3] "Private Attorney General" Theory

[4] "Substantial Benefit" Theory

§§ 120.25-120.29 [Reserved]

§ 120.30 Related Matthew Bender Publications

§ 120.31 Statutes

[1] Federal

[2] State

§ 120.32 Rules of Court

[1] Federal

[2] State

§ 120.33 Decisions

[1] Access to Potential Class Members

[2] Arbitration

[3] Attorney's Fees

[4] Certification of Class

[5] Class Representatives

[6] Costs

[7] Damages

[8] Discovery

[9] Dismissal

[10] Notice

[11] Procedure

[12] Res Judicata

[13] Review

§ 120.34 Law Reviews

§ 120.35 Text References

§§ 120.36-120.39 [Reserved]

§ 120.40 Preliminary Determinations

[1] Suitability of Class Action

[2] Suitability of Class Representative

[3] Federal Jurisdiction

§ 120.41 Pleadings and Procedure

[1] Complaint

[2] Case Conference

[3] Motion for Class Certification or for Determination of Other Issues

[4] Motion for Decertification of Class

[5] Motion for Removal of Class Representative

[6] Notice to Potential Class Members

[7] Settlement of Class Action

[8] Dismissal of Class Action

[9] Petition for Writ of Mandate to Review Certification Order or Other Interlocutory Order

§§ 120.42-120.49 [Reserved]

§ 120.50 Class Action Complaint--Skeletal Form

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Class Action Allegations

[4] Caption

[5] Verification

[6] Attorney's Fees

[7] Cross References

§ 120.51 Notice of Motion to Determine Issues for Class Action

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 120.52 Order Determining Issues for Class Action

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 120.53 Notice of Motion to Approve Notice to Class Members

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 120.54 Order on Motion to Approve Notice to Class Members

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Determination of Necessity of Notice

[4] Cross References

§ 120.55 Notice of Pendency of Class Action

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Contents of Notice

§ 120.56 Petition for Writ of Mandate to Review Certification Order or Other Interlocutory Order

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Contents of Petition

[4] Alternative Writ

§ 120.57 Declaration in Support of Motion to Dismiss Class Action--Settlement of Underlying Dispute

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Contents of Declaration

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART I. SCOPE

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.01

§ 120.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses and contains forms for use in class actions brought in California courts. It covers the basic requirements for the maintenance of a class action [see §§ 120.12, 120.41[1]]; special requirements for interstate class actions [see § 120.14]; the requirements applicable to the named class representatives [see §§ 120.15, 120.40[2]]; the unique procedural requirements of class actions [see §§ 120.17 -120.20, 120.41], including procedures for settlement [see § 120.21]; and the recovery of attorney's fees in class actions [see § 120.24].

This chapter also includes coverage of relevant provisions of the federal Class Action Fairness Act of 2005, which facilitates the removal of class actions from state court to federal court [see §§ 120.13, 120.21[2], 120.40[3]].

This chapter includes a basic form of complaint for use in a class action [see § 120.50]; a notice of motion for an order [see § 120.51] and an order [see § 120.52] determining class issues such as the satisfaction of the basic requirements for maintenance of the action as a class action or the ability of the named plaintiffs to represent the class; a notice of motion for an order [see § 120.53] and an order [see § 120.54] to notify potential class members of the pending action; a notice of the pendency of a class action [see § 120.55]; a petition for a writ of mandate to review nonappealable determinations of class issues [see § 120.56]; and a request for dismissal of a class action [see § 120.57].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass CounselFeesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersNamed MembersCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCompromises

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART I. SCOPE

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.02

§ 120.02 Cross References

- For a form of class action complaint for declaratory relief by members of an association against the association and its officer-members, see Ch. 61, Associations and Clubs .

- For discussion and forms relating to consolidation of action, see Ch. 125, Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions .

- For allegations establishing jurisdiction in federal district court, see Ch. 265, Federal Courts: Jurisdiction and Removal .

- For procedures and forms for use in the joinder of parties and intervention, see Ch. 395, Parties .

- For a discussion of the applicability of class actions to environmental actions, see Ch. 418, Pollution and Environmental Matter .

- For discussion of class actions under the Consumers Legal Remedies Act [Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.], see Ch. 504, Sales: Consumers Legal Remedies Act .

- For a form of class action complaint for declaratory relief to have a welfare regulation declared invalid and petition for writ of mandate to compel payment of benefits, see Ch. 527, Social Services .

- For discussion of certification issues in the context of restraints of trade and fluid class recovery, see Ch. 565, Unfair Competition .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawUnincorporated AssociationsCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePartiesJoinderGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil

ProceduresPretrial MattersConsolidation of Actions

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART I. SCOPE

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 120.03-120.09

[Reserved]

§§ 120.03[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.10

§ 120.10 Governing Law

[1] California Law

Class actions are governed generally by Code Civ. Proc. § 382, which provides that if the question is one of a common or general interest or of many persons, or if the parties are numerous, and it is impracticable to bring them all before the court, one or more may sue or defend for the benefit of all. Class actions brought under the Consumers Legal Remedies Act [Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.] are governed by Civ. Code §§ 1780-1784. Special procedures for the management of class actions in California trial courts are set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.760 et seq.

State or local laws may restrict the availability of class actions in certain contexts. For example, state law does not authorize class actions for the refund of vehicle license fees [Woosley v. State (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 758, 790, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 30, 838 P.2d 758 (Veh. Code § 42231 requires that any "person" seeking refund of license fee must file application for refund before filing suit, and "person" does not include class)]. Similarly, a local ordinance may disallow the use of class actions to claim refunds of local taxes [see, e.g., Batt v. City & County of San Francisco (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 65, 74-79, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 716 (trial court properly sustained demurrer to class action seeking refund of local hotel tax, based on local ordinance that expressly disallowed class claims for tax refunds)].

The Judicial Council has preempted local rules relating to pleadings, demurrers, ex parte applications, motions, discovery, provisional remedies, and the form and format of papers. Thus, all local rules concerning these procedures are null and void unless otherwise permitted or required by statute or Judicial Council rule [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.20(a)]. There are some exceptions, most significantly for local rules enacted under the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.20(b); see Gov. Code § 68600 et seq.].

[2] Federal Law

Procedures in class actions brought in federal district courts are governed by Fed. R. Civ. P. 23 [see Shady Grove Orthopedic Assocs. v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2010) -- U.S. --, 130 S. Ct. 1431, 176 L. Ed. 2d 311, 317-325 (diversity suit that meets requirements of Fed. R. Civ. P. 23 may proceed as class action in federal court, even though state law prohibits class actions on kinds of claims asserted in case)]. A California superior court may look to the federal rule for guidance as to procedural matters not covered by California law [see Richmond v. Dart Industries, Inc. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 462, 469-470 n.7, 174 Cal. Rptr. 515, 629 P.2d 23 ; see also § 120.17[1]].

The Class Action Fairness Act of 2005 provides special rules for federal courts' exercise of diversity jurisdiction over interstate class actions, adds new provisions to facilitate the removal of class actions from state court, and imposes new consumer-protection requirements for the settlement of class actions [see Pub. L. No. 109-2, 119 Stat. 4]. These provisions should be considered in deciding whether to file an interstate class action in California superior court and whether to remove a superior court action to federal district court [see §§ 120.13, 120.21[2]].

Federal law may prevent California courts from adjudicating certain class claims, even if asserted solely on the basis of state law. For example, the Securities Litigation Uniform Standards Act of 1998 (SLUSA) provides that no "covered class action" based on the statutory or common law of any state may be maintained in any state or federal court by any private party alleging fraud in connection with the purchase, sale, or holding of a "covered security" [15 U.S.C. § 78bb(f)(1); Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. v. Dabit (2006) 547 U.S. 71, 126 S. Ct. 1503, 164 L. Ed. 2d 179, 190-194 (SLUSA's preemption of state-law class actions alleging fraud "in connection with the purchase or sale" of securities bars state-law claims not just by purchasers and sellers of securities, but also by holders of securities, even though holders lack standing to pursue private securities-fraud claims under federal law)]. A "covered class action" for SLUSA purposes is a lawsuit in which damages are sought on behalf of more than 50 people [15 U.S.C. § 78bb(f)(5)(B)]. A "covered security" is a security traded nationally and listed on a regulated national exchange [15 U.S.C. § 78bb(f)(5)(E)]. SLUSA exempts from its operation certain class actions based on the law of the state in which the issuer of the covered security is incorporated, actions brought by a state agency or state pension plan, actions under contracts between issuers and indenture trustees, and derivative actions brought by shareholders on behalf of a corporation [15 U.S.C. § 78bb(f)(3)(A)-(C), (5)(C)]. SLUSA also expressly preserves state jurisdiction over state agency enforcement proceedings [15 U.S.C. § 78bb(f)(4)]. After SLUSA is found applicable, the court may allow the plaintiffs to amend the complaint to assert state-law claims for a group of fewer than 50 plaintiffs or to exclude allegations that trigger SLUSA preclusion [Wells Fargo Bank, N.A. v. Superior Court (2008)159 Cal. App. 4th 381, 394, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 506].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Antitrust & Trade LawConsumer ProtectionDeceptive Acts & PracticesState RegulationCivil ProcedureJurisdictionDiversity JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesGeneral OverviewSecurities LawLiabilityPrivate Securities LitigationFederal Preemption

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.11

§ 120.11 Nature of Class Action

[1] Virtual Representation

A class action is an action that is prosecuted or defended by one or more representative plaintiffs or defendants on behalf of themselves and a specified group of persons similarly situated who have agreed to be bound by the result of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 382]. The class action device is designed to serve the interests of necessity, convenience, and justice [City of San Jose v. Superior Court (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 447, 458, 115 Cal. Rptr. 797, 525 P.2d 701] by providing an economical and effective group remedy [Diamond v. General Motors Corp. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 374, 381, 97 Cal. Rptr. 639].

Class actions are a means of preventing a failure of justice in the judicial system. By permitting the simultaneous resolution of the claims of many individuals, such actions eliminate the possibility of repetitious litigation and provide a method of obtaining redress for small claims. Generally, a class action is proper if numerous parties suffer injury of insufficient size to warrant individual action and if denial of class relief would result in unjust advantage to the wrongdoer. However, a class action also has the potential to create injustice, and trial courts must carefully weigh respective benefits and burdens and allow class actions only if substantial benefits accrue to both litigants and the courts [Linder v. Thrifty Oil Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 429, 434-435, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179, 2 P.3d 27].

The statutory provisions authorizing class actions [Civ. Code § 1781; Code Civ. Proc. § 382; Fed. R. Civ. P. 23] are based on the equitable doctrine of virtual representation [Daar v. Yellow Cab Co. (1976) 67 Cal. 2d 695, 703-704, 63 Cal. Rptr. 724, 433 P.2d 732 ; see Salton City Etc. Owners Assn. v. M. Penn Phillips Co. (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 184, 189, 141 Cal. Rptr. 895].

[2] Class Action Distinguished From Other Representative Actions

One court suggested that although all class suits are representative in nature, not all representative suits are class actions [Tenants Assn. of Park Santa Anita v. Southers (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1293, 1299 n.5, 272 Cal. Rptr. 361 ; Residents of Beverly Glen, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 117, 129, 109 Cal. Rptr. 724]. Nevertheless, courts have not clearly defined the nature of the distinction between class actions and other representative actions [see Residents of Beverly Glen, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 117, 129, 109 Cal. Rptr. 724

]. One type of action that is frequently referred to as a representative action rather than a class action is an action brought by an association, such as a tenants' or owners' association, on behalf of its members. These actions, which have also been called "class actions on behalf of a self-defined class" [Salton City Etc. Owners Assn. v. M. Penn Phillips Co. (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 184, 188, 141 Cal. Rptr. 895], differ from ordinary class actions in that the association is not a representative member of the class [see § 120.15[1]], but an entity specifically formed to represent the interests of the class. Because the association is not a member of the represented class, these cases often give rise to issues of the association's standing to sue [see, e.g., National Solar Equipment Owners' Assn. v. Grumman Corp. (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1273, 1278, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 325 ; Tenants Assn. of Park Santa Anita v. Southers (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1293, 1299-1304, 272 Cal. Rptr. 361 ; Twain Harte Homeowners Assn. v. Patterson (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 184, 186-188, 239 Cal. Rptr. 316]. For further discussion of association standing issues, see § 120.15[4].

Another example of a representative action that is not a class action is a suit brought under the Labor Code Private Attorneys General Act of 2004 [see Lab. Code § 2698 et seq.]. Under the Act, an aggrieved employee may bring a civil action personally and on behalf of other current or former employees to recover civil penalties for Labor Code violations [Lab. Code § 2699(a); see Lab. Code § 2699(c) ("aggrieved employee" is "any person who was employed by the alleged violator and against whom one or more of the alleged violations was committed"); Amalgamated Transit Union, Local 1756, AFL-CIO v. Superior Court (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 993, 1001-1005, 195 Cal. Rptr. 3d 605, 209 P.3d 937 (plaintiff has standing to bring action under Labor Code Private Attorneys General Act of 2004 only if plaintiff suffered injury from unlawful action, so labor union lacks standing to sue as assignee or association of injured members)]. Of the civil penalties recovered, 75 percent goes to the Labor and Workforce Development Agency and 25 percent goes to the aggrieved employees [Lab. Code § 2699(i)]. The Act imposes special procedural requirements before an employee can bring an action to recover civil penalties. The employee must provide written notice of the alleged Labor Code violation to the employer and the Labor and Workforce Development Agency, and the employee may not sue unless the agency decides not to investigate, fails to respond to the notice within 33 days after notice, decides not to issue a citation, or fails to issue a citation within 158 days after the postmark date of the employee's notice [Lab. Code § 2699.3(a)]. An aggrieved employee's action under the Act functions as a substitute for an enforcement action brought by the government and need not satisfy generally applicable class action requirements [Arias v. Superior Court (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 969, 975, 980-987, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 588, 209 P.3d 923].

[3] Class Action Distinguished From Coordinated Actions

If two or more civil actions sharing a common question of fact or law are pending in different courts, the actions may be coordinated provided certain standards are met [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 404, 404.1; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.501 et seq.]. Coordinated actions are similar to class actions because they seek to promote justice and convenience; efficient utilization of judicial facilities and personnel; and avoidance of duplicative and inconsistent rulings, orders, and judgments [Code Civ. Proc. § 404.1]. Nevertheless, coordinated actions do not involve virtual representation. The parties generally participate in the litigation to the same extent as parties in ordinary civil litigation and are represented by their own counsel.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesGeneral Overview

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.12

§ 120.12 Requirements for Maintenance of Class Action

[1] Predominance of Common Issues

The ultimate question concerning the propriety of maintaining a class action, given an ascertainable class [see [3], below], is whether the issues that may be jointly tried, compared to those requiring separate adjudication, are so numerous or substantial that maintenance of the action as a class action would be advantageous to the judicial process and the litigants [Collins v. Rocha (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 232, 238, 102 Cal. Rptr. 1, 497 P.2d 225 ; Brown v. Regents of University of California (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 982, 989, 198 Cal. Rptr. 916]. The specific requirements for maintaining a class action are discussed in [2]-[4], below.

For further coverage of the requirements for maintaining a class action, see Cabraser, California Class Actions and Coordinated Proceedings (Second Edition), Ch. 3, California's Class Action Statute (Matthew Bender).

[2] Community of Interest

[a] Factors to Be Considered

A class action may be sustained only if the class members have a well-defined community of interest in questions of law and fact involved in action [Daar v. Yellow Cab Co. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 695, 704, 63 Cal. Rptr. 724, 433 P.2d 732 ; see Stephens v. Montgomery Ward & Co. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 411, 421, 238 Cal. Rptr. 602] . The community of interest requirement embodies three factors [Richmond v. Dart Industries, Inc. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 462, 470, 174 Cal. Rptr. 515, 629 P.2d 23 ; Baltimore Football Club, Inc. v. Superior Court (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 352, 358, 215 Cal. Rptr. 323] :

(1) Predominant common questions of law or fact;

(2) Class representatives with claims or defenses typical of the class; and

(3) Class representatives who can adequately represent the class.

The requirement will not be satisfied if the common questions are not the predominant questions in the case [see Classen v. Weller (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 27, 46, 192 Cal. Rptr. 914] .

A common recovery may be one way to satisfy the community of interest requirement, but it is not a necessary element of the requirement [Daar v. Yellow Cab Co. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 695, 707-709, 63 Cal. Rptr. 724, 433 P.2d 732].

Antagonism among members of the potential class is not, by itself, inconsistent with a finding of community of interest. The California Supreme Court has noted that, in such a case, dissidents' views may be asserted within the lawsuit by intervening or creating subclasses [Richmond v. Dart Industries, Inc. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 462, 479, 174 Cal. Rptr. 515, 629 P.2d 23]. Nevertheless, community of interest will be found to be lacking if the enforcement of a right in favor of some members of the class would adversely affect the substantial interests of others [Knox v. Streatfield (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 565, 571, 145 Cal. Rptr. 39].

[b] Predominant Questions

The "predominant common questions" factor does not require that all class members have uniform or identical claims. Rather, determining whether common questions predominate in any given case requires the court to compare the costs and benefits of adjudicating the plaintiffs' claims in a class action with the costs and benefits of proceeding by numerous separate actions [Sav-on Drug Stores, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 319, 339 n.10, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 906, 96 P.3d 194]. Thus, a class action is not inappropriate simply because each member of the class may at some point be required to make an individual showing of eligibility for recovery or the amount of each individual's damages [Sav-on Drug Stores, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 319, 332-333, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 906, 96 P.3d 194 (in action to recover overtime compensation based on alleged misclassification of class of nonexempt employees, trial court did not abuse its discretion in finding that common issues predominated, even though each class member would have to offer individual proof of damages); see also Parra v. Bashas', Inc. (9th Cir. 2008) 536 F.3d 975, 979 ("[T]he Plaintiffs here establish commonality even though their individual fact situations differ because they all seek a common legal remedy for a common wrong. ... The claimed difficulties in the calculations of damages, as they affected the various class members, do not preclude class certification."); Gattuso v. Harte-Hanks Shoppers, Inc. (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 554, 575-576, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 468, 169 P.3d 889 (in putative class action seeking reimbursement for employees' business expenses, lower courts abused their discretion in framing class-certification issue as whether each employee had agreement with employer regarding manner of reimbursement, since employer contended that it had adopted reimbursement policy applicable to all employees who would be members of putative class); Lee v. Dynamex, Inc. (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1325, 1334, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 241 ("A class is not inappropriate merely because each member at some point may be required to make an individual showing as to eligibility for recovery")].

Similarly, the fact that the court may fashion different remedies for individual class members based on equitable defenses such as fraud and unclean hands does not prevent class certification on the question of the defendant's liability, if those equitable defenses are not relevant to liability. For example, in an action alleging that an insurer had unlawfully engaged in postclaims underwriting [see Ins. Code § 10384], the insurer was barred from asserting class members' alleged misrepresentations in their insurance applications as a defense to liability, because the applications were not endorsed on or attached to the policies as required by law [see Ins. Code §§ 10113, 10381.5 (insured not bound by statements made in application that has not been attached to or endorsed on policy)]. Therefore, even though equitable defenses of fraud or unclean hands on the part of individual class members could be considered by the court in fashioning class members' remedies, those defenses did not outweigh the common issues of liability [Ticconi v. Blue Shield of Cal. Life & Health Ins. Co. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 528, 543-547, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 888].

The use of "anecdotal" evidence about particular class members does not mean that individual facts predominate over common issues if the anecdotal evidence is relevant to establish a matter that relates to the class as a whole [see, e.g., Estrada v. FedEx Ground Package System, Inc. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 1, 13-14, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 327 (anecdotal evidence of employer's treatment of class members was relevant to common issues--whether class members were employees, and whether their expenditures were therefore reimbursable under Lab. Code § 2802)]. For example, a plaintiff may show that the defendant's conduct relates to the class as a whole by presenting anecdotal evidence of particular instances of the defendant's conduct, as well as pattern-and-practice evidence such as statistics, sampling, policies, and administrative practices [Dukes v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (9th Cir. 2010) 603 F.3d 571, 612 (en banc); Capitol People First v. Department of Developmental Servs. (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 676, 695-696, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 300].

The fact that separate transactions are involved does not in itself preclude a finding of the required predominance of common questions, as long as each member of the class would not be required to litigate numerous and substantial questions determining his or her individual right to recovery following a judgment determining issues common to the class [City of San Jose v. Superior Court (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 447, 460, 115 Cal. Rptr. 797, 525 P.2d 701 ; Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 809, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964]. For example, in government-benefits cases in which class members had to make individual showings as to eligibility for benefits and amount of damages, there nevertheless was a sufficient predominance of common issues among persons alleging wrongful denial of benefits [Employment Development Dept. v. Superior Court (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 256, 265-266, 178 Cal. Rptr. 612, 636 P.2d 575 ; Reyes v. Board of Supervisors (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1263, 1270, 242 Cal. Rptr. 339 (class action is "peculiarly appropriate vehicle" for trying cases concerning denial of government benefits)]. In another case, the claim was that, in reliance on the defendant's deceptive conduct, consumers purchased an illegal product they would not otherwise have purchased. The action did not seek actual damages, but instead sought restitution. The court of appeal concluded that common questions predominated: if the plaintiff could show that material misrepresentations about the legality of the product were made to the class members, at least an inference of reliance--i.e., causation and injury--would arise as to the entire class [Steroid Hormone Prod. Cases (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 145, 156-157, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 329] .

Nevertheless, the requirement of predominant common questions generally will not be satisfied if each class member's right to recover is based on a separate set of facts applicable only to that person [City of San Jose v. Superior Court (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 447, 459, 115 Cal. Rptr. 797, 525 P.2d 701 ; Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 809, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964 ; Kavruck v. Blue Cross of Cal. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 773, 786, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 152 (common questions did not predominate in insurance-fraud action because plaintiffs' reliance on oral representations by defendant's agents would have required proof on subscriber-by-subscriber basis, rather than common set of facts for entire class)]. In one case, for example, the trial court denied class treatment of an action seeking overtime compensation based on a claim that a putative class of grocery managers had been misclassified as executive employees exempt from the overtime wage laws. The court of appeal affirmed, noting that the trial court's decision was based not on the mere presence of individual liability issues (i.e., the need to establish that each manager had been misclassified as an executive), but on the nature of those issues. Specifically, the significant variation in the managers' work from store to store, and from week to week, required particularized individual liability determinations that predominated over common issues [Dunbar v. Albertson's, Inc. (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 1422, 1431-1432, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 83] . Another case involved claims of actual damages suffered by class members who had purchased a certain medication believing it to be safe and more effective than a less expensive generic medication, based on misleading information from the defendant. The court of appeal held that common issues did not predominate, because each class member's claim--including the materiality of, and the class member's reliance on, the alleged misrepresentations--was dependent on a showing of the class member's specific medical needs and history [In re Vioxx Class Cases (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 116, 133-134, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 83] .

Even if a case presents many common questions of law, it may not proceed as a class action if the individual issues are too complex, numerous, diverse, or substantial [Osborne v. Subaru of America, Inc. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 646, 653-654, 243 Cal. Rptr. 815 ; Bozaich v. State (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 688, 694-695, 108 Cal. Rptr. 392]. For example, in a negligence action seeking medical monitoring of persons affected by the defendants' discharge of toxic chemicals that allegedly contaminated drinking water, the Supreme Court found that individual questions predominated, making class certification inappropriate. The Court reasoned that although questions of duty and breach could be determined on the basis of common proof, the issues of proximate causation and damage would require individual proof for each potential claimant. Given that the putative class consisted of an estimated 50,000 to 100,000 people, the Supreme Court concluded that individual questions were clearly predominant [Lockheed Martin Corp. v. Superior Court (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1096, 1108-1111, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 63 P.3d 913].

[c] Typicality of Claims

In a class action against multiple defendants, the action may be maintained as to defendants against whom the class representative has a cause of action. Without such a personal cause of action, the prerequisite that the claims of the representative party be typical of the class cannot be met [Hart v. County of Alameda (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 766, 775-776, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386]. If the plaintiff class representative has a personal cause of action against only one defendant and never had a claim of any kind against the remaining defendants, the representative's claim is not typical of the class. The typicality requirement is not fulfilled merely because the plaintiff alleges injuries similar to those suffered by other parties at the hands of other defendants [Hart v. County of Alameda (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 766, 775-776, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386].

An exception to this rule occurs, however, if a plaintiff, as class representative, alleges that multiple defendants acted in a conspiracy or that multiple defendants are jointly responsible for the plaintiffs' injuries [Hart v. County of Alameda (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 766, 775-776, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386].

A named plaintiff who is vulnerable to defenses not generally applicable to class members may fail to satisfy the typicality requirement, particularly if those defenses are likely to become the focus of the litigation [Seastrom v. Neways, Inc. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 1496, 1502-1503, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 903 (in action against manufacturer of product allegedly sold illegally without prescription, upper-level distributors of product did not meet typicality test to represent class of purchasers, since distributors were subject to defenses based on their probable knowledge that product could not be sold without prescription)].

[d] Lack of Community Interest in Mass Tort Actions

Personal injury tort actions generally are not maintainable as class actions. The very personal nature of tort injuries, the wide variety of theories of liability and causation, the disparities in damages, and the fact that most tort plaintiffs prefer to be represented by counsel of their own choice make these actions inappropriate for class action treatment [Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 1123, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923 (action by "DES baby" against drug manufacturers); Brown v. Regents of University of California (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 982, 991, 198 Cal. Rptr. 916 (medical malpractice action concerning standard of coronary care provided at particular hospital); Rose v. Medtronics, Inc. (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 150, 155, 166 Cal. Rptr. 16 (action by persons having had defective pacemakers implanted)]. The policy of reluctance to extend class-action treatment to personal-injury tort actions governs even those types of claims that contain many common questions of law [Brown v. Regents of University of California (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 982, 991, 198 Cal. Rptr. 916].

Under the federal Class Action Fairness Act of 2005, a "mass action" may be treated as a class action for purposes of removal to federal court [see 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(11)]. For further discussion, see § 120.13[4].

[e] Examples of Community of Interest Determinations

A sufficient community of interest to support a class action was found to exist in the following actions:

- An action seeking construction of standard contract provisions [MacManus v. A. E. Realty Partners (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1106, 1115-1116, 241 Cal. Rptr. 315].

- An action alleging company-wide discriminatory policies and practices in hiring and promotions, even though the company contended that each store hired and promoted its own personnel [Stephens v. Montgomery Ward & Co. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 411, 421, 238 Cal. Rptr. 602].

- An action by limited partners against a general partner, alleging the use of written materials containing fraudulent misrepresentations and nondisclosures to induce investment, even though disparate oral representations as well as the common written representations were made to the various plaintiffs [Danzig v. Jack Grynberg & Associates (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 1128, 1137 n.5, 208 Cal. Rptr. 336].

- An action by prisoners challenging conditions at a county jail, even though the complaint revealed some questions of fact and law inapplicable to the class as a whole [Mendoza v. County of Tulare (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 403, 418, 180 Cal. Rptr. 347].

- An action alleging price-fixing, even if not every class member has purchased every product whose price was fixed [In re Cipro Cases I & II (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 402, 410-411, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 (class treatment is usually appropriate if defendants are alleged to have engaged in collusive, anti-competitive conduct resulting in artificially high market-wide prices for product, since existence of conspiracy and its legality generally present common questions of law and fact that predominate over any questions affecting only individual class members); B.W.I. Custom Kitchen v. Owens-Illinois, Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1341, 1348-1355, 235 Cal. Rptr. 228 (price-fixing by glass manufacturers and distributors); Rosack v. Volvo of America Corp. (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 741, 763, 182 Cal. Rptr. 800 (price-fixing by automobile manufacturer and distributors)].

- An action by former limited partners of six real estate limited partnerships that consolidated into a single corporate entity, alleging fraudulently induced approval of the consolidation and the dissemination of false and misleading information [Daniels v. Centennial Group, Inc. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 467, 472-473, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1 (no strict requirement that named plaintiff have interest in each individual partnership)].

An insufficient community of interest to support a class action was found in the following actions:

- An action alleging concealment and misrepresentation in the course of medical treatment, comprised of numerous and substantial individual questions of fact based on particular medical conditions and methods of treatment [Brown v. Regents of University of California (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 982, 989, 198 Cal. Rptr. 916].

- An action by passengers of a cruise ship against the cruise corporation, seeking damages for physical illness and emotional distress, in which each passenger's individual testimony would be required to establish liability as to him or her [D'Amico v. Sitmar Cruises, Inc. (1980) 109 Cal.App. 3d 323, 326, 167 Cal. Rptr. 254].

- An action by a nationwide class of purchasers of a certain model of automobile, alleging defective design of the automobile, requiring numerous individual adjudications of fact and the trial court's need to apply numerous different rules of law from several states [Osborne v. Subaru of America, Inc. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 646, 654-656, 243 Cal. Rptr. 815].

- An action filed by two persons alleging they represented a class consisting of people wrongly and unjustifiably attacked by police dogs used by a sheriff's department, in which issues requiring separate adjudication predominated over common questions because the reasonableness of a particular use of force is judged by examining the totality of the circumstances [Silva v. Block (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 345, 351, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613].

[3] Ascertainable Class

A definitely ascertainable class is necessary to the maintenance of any class action [Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 809, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964 ; Daar v. Yellow Cab Co. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 695, 704, 63 Cal. Rptr. 724, 433 P.2d 732]. Generally, a class is considered ascertainable if both of the following requirements are satisfied [Reyes v. Board of Supervisors (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1263, 1274-1275, 1280, 242 Cal. Rptr. 339]:

- Under the criteria for class membership, the members are clearly identifiable and the size of the class reasonably controlled.

- The members can be located and notified of the action through a reasonable expenditure of time and money.

For example, a class consisting of all county welfare recipients whose benefits were terminated under a challenged workfare program was deemed to be an ascertainable class because sufficient records existed to identify the class members at the remedial stage of the proceeding, and the defendant county failed to show that the administrative costs of managing the action would be disproportionate to the potential benefits of the action to class members individually and to the class as a whole [Reyes v. Board of Supervisors (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1263, 1274-1275, 1280, 242 Cal. Rptr. 339]. Similarly, in an action alleging unlawful discrimination in hiring and promoting employees, a class consisting of one segment of the defendant employer's workforce was held to be an ascertainable class [Stephens v. Montgomery Ward & Co. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 411, 420, 238 Cal. Rptr. 602].

Conversely, a class defined as all state residents who, during a specified period, purchased eggs from a particular grocery store chain was determined not to be an ascertainable class, because no single member of the class could prove he or she purchased a carton of eggs containing one or more contaminated eggs during the specified period [Collins v. Safeway Stores, Inc. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 62, 71, 231 Cal. Rptr. 638].

A class is not ascertainable unless the class definition is precise and objective. Thus, class certification is not appropriate when the proposed class definition is not based on objective criteria, but instead requires a merits-based determination in order to establish whether a particular person is a member of the class. When the class definition is framed as a legal conclusion, the trial court has no way of ascertaining whether a given person is a member of the class until after a determination of ultimate liability as to that person is made. The members of such a class are not readily identifiable so as to permit appropriate notice to be given [Sony Elecs. Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 1086, 1094-1097, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 139 (class definition was not objective, since proposed class consisted not of all purchasers of defendant's product, but only of those purchasers who received defective products)].

Although the class must be ascertainable, there is no requirement that every member of the class be identified from the outset of the case [Estrada v. FedEx Ground Package System, Inc. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 1, 14, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 327 (citing Daar v. Yellow Cab Co. (1976) 67 Cal. 2d 695, 706, 63 Cal. Rptr. 724, 433 P.2d 732)].

Ordinarily, the plaintiff has the burden of identifying class members and establishing their number. However, circumstances may be presented in which a court may find it equitable to require the defendant to share the costs of notification with plaintiff for the purposes of identifying potential class members [State of California ex rel. Dept. of Motor Vehicles v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 421, 438, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 88].

[4] Use of Subclasses

A party may propose the use of subclasses and other innovative procedural tools to obtain certification of a manageable class [Occidental Land, Inc. v. Superior Court (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 355, 364 n.3, 134 Cal. Rptr. 388, 556 P.2d 750 (trial court has obligation to consider proposal); La Sala v. American Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 864, 875 n.10, 97 Cal. Rptr. 849, 489 P.2d 1113 ; see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(c)(4)]. A trial court may decline to adopt a proposal to use subclasses, however, if the parties who seek certification fail "to provide the trial court with a concrete proposal describing how such subclasses would be defined, how they would be administered, or how they would help the court deal with the complexities inherent in the proposed class" [Block v. Major League Baseball (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 538, 546 ; see Dunbar v. Albertson's, Inc. (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 1422, 1431-1432, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 83 (it is not sufficient simply to mention procedural tool--such as use of subclasses, exemplar plaintiffs, or survey results to manage individual issues--party seeking class certification must explain how the procedure will effectively manage issues in question)].

[5] Superiority of Class Action as Method of Adjudicating Dispute

[a] Basis of Requirement in Federal Rule

To sustain an action as a class action, the plaintiff must show that the class action method is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of the controversy [Sav-on Drug Stores, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 319, 332, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 906, 96 P.3d 194]. This requirement, which is expressly set forth in Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3), has been held to apply to class actions brought under Code Civ. Proc. § 382, as well as to federal actions brought under Rule 23 [Schneider v. Vennard (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1340, 1345, 228 Cal. Rptr. 800 ; see § 120.17[1]].

[b] Relevant Factors

In determining whether a class action is superior to other methods of adjudicating a case, the trial court must consider various interests, including those of (1) the judicial system, (2) potential class members, (3) the present plaintiff, (4) the attorneys for the litigants, (5) the public at large, and (6) the defendant. The legal and practical issues presented by the case must also be considered for their bearing on the superiority of the class action method [Sav-on Drug Stores, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 319, 327, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 906, 96 P.3d 194 (to determine whether maintenance of class action would be advantageous to judicial process and litigants, court must consider whether theory of recovery advanced by proponents of certification is, as analytical matter, likely to prove amenable to class treatment)]. For example, in a case involving the allegedly wrongful termination of government benefits, the practical consideration that the proposed class members would be unlikely to seek or obtain redress through individual suits because they were too poor, their claims were too small, and the legal issues involved were too arcane for them to obtain private counsel was relevant to the determination of the superiority of the class action method for adjudicating the dispute [see Reyes v. Board of Supervisors (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1263, 1279-1280, 1280, 242 Cal. Rptr. 339].

The extent and nature of other litigation already commenced by members of the class may be a factor in determining the superiority of the class action method. For example, when a class action between the same parties for the same cause was already pending in federal court and would have provided the plaintiffs with all the remedies available in a state court, the trial court properly determined that a state-court class action was not the superior method of adjudicating the controversy and that permitting the state court action to proceed would not serve the interests of judicial economy and efficiency [Schneider v. Vennard (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1340, 1345, 1347, 228 Cal. Rptr. 800].

Practical difficulties, such as the administrative cost of the action, difficulties associated with the size of the class, and the fact that not all the class members purchased the same defective product or sustained the same amount of damages, do not necessarily preclude a finding that a class action is the superior method for fairly and efficiently adjudicating the controversy. The court should consider the availability of procedures such as bifurcation and subclassing prior to determining that the difficulties make a fair and efficient class action impracticable [Rosack v. Volvo of America Corp. (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 741, 762, 182 Cal. Rptr. 800]. In general, unless the unmanageability of the class action is essentially without dispute or clearly established, class certification should not be foreclosed based on such concerns [see Reyes v. Board of Supervisors (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1263, 1275, 242 Cal. Rptr. 339].

[6] Enforceability of Contractual Waiver of Class Action

A contractual provision waiving the right to pursue a class remedy for disputes arising under the contract is not necessarily unenforceable. However, at least some class-action waivers in consumer contracts are unconscionable and unenforceable. The doctrine of unconscionability has both a procedural element, which generally takes the form of a contract of adhesion and focuses on oppression or surprise, and a substantive element, which focuses on overly harsh or one-sided results [Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 148, 160-161, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 76, 85, 113 P.3d 1100]. For example, an amendment to a credit-card agreement waiving cardholders' right to pursue class remedies presents an element of procedural unconscionability if it is presented to cardholders as a "bill-stuffer" to be deemed accepted by cardholders who do not close their accounts. Such a waiver is also substantively unconscionable if it operates as an exculpatory provision, effectively insulating the card issuer from liability by virtue of the fact that individual claims would be too small to pursue [see Civ. Code § 1688 (exculpatory contract clauses are contrary to public policy)]. Under the circumstances, such a waiver of class remedies is unconscionable and unenforceable [Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 148, 160-163, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 76, 85-87, 113 P.3d 1100].

As another example, a class-action waiver contained in an agreement between a provider of internet service and its customers is procedurally unconscionable if it is presented on a "take it or leave it" basis, either through installation of the software or through materials included in the package mailed with the software, with no opportunity to opt out. This kind of waiver is also substantively unconscionable if it is combined with a scheme to cheat numerous consumers out of small sums of money through deliberate behavior, such as by charging customers for the internet service as soon as they ordered it, even though the provider knows that the service would not be available until after the necessary equipment is delivered, some weeks later [Aral v. Earthlink, Inc. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 544, 556-557, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229].

Similarly, a class-action waiver was held procedurally unconscionable in a case in which the waiver was presented as a "bill-stuffer" to satellite-television customers, who could reject the amendment only by closing their accounts, an act that could incur termination fees. The waiver in that case was also substantively unconscionable, since it involved a scheme to cheat numerous customers out of small sums of money. Even though the sums involved might have been as much as $1,000 per customer, the court of appeal in that case found the amounts were still sufficiently small that the class action was likely the only effective way to redress the defendant's alleged conduct in depriving the customers of the full high-definition television services for which they were paying. The court also noted that, for this purpose, there is no conceptual difference between a case in which the defendant overcharges customers for services provided and a case in which the defendant noticeably reduces the quality of the services in relation to the quality for which customers have paid [Cohen v. DirecTV, Inc. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1442, 1451-1455, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 813 (scheme to deprive customers of small amounts of money or services need not be "hidden" or "secret" to be proper subject of class action)].

As noted above, if a consumer contract contains a mandatory arbitration provision that includes a waiver of the right to pursue class arbitration, the waiver may be found unconscionable and unenforceable if it operates to insulate a party from liability that otherwise would be imposed under California law [Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 148, 162-163, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 76, 85-87, 113 P.3d 1100]. Such a finding is not preempted by Section 2 of the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA), which provides that arbitration agreements are valid and enforceable "save upon such grounds as exist at law or in equity for the revocation of any contract" [9 U.S.C. § 2]. The principle that class-action waivers are, under certain circumstances, unconscionable as unlawfully exculpatory is a principle of California law that does not specifically apply to arbitration agreements, but to contracts generally. Thus, application of the principle is not preempted by the FAA, since the principle applies equally to class action waivers in contracts without arbitration agreements as it does to class arbitration waivers in contracts with such agreements [Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 148, 163-167, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 76, 87-95, 113 P.3d 1100].

Similar principles apply when an employer relies on a class-arbitration waiver in an employment arbitration agreement to preclude class arbitration by employees whose unwaivable statutory rights to overtime pay [see Lab. Code §§ 500 et seq., 1194] have allegedly been violated. A class-arbitration waiver in such an agreement will not be enforced if the trial court determines that class arbitration would be a significantly more effective way of vindicating the unwaivable statutory rights of affected employees than individual arbitration. To make this determination, the court must consider (1) the modest size of the potential individual recovery; (2) the potential for retaliation by the employer against class members who bring individual arbitration claims; (3) the fact that absent members of the class may be ill-informed about their rights; and (4) other real-world obstacles to the vindication of class members' right to overtime pay through individual arbitration. If the court concludes, based on those factors, that a class arbitration is likely to be a significantly more effective practical means of vindicating the rights of the affected employees than individual litigation or arbitration, and finds that the disallowance of the class arbitration will likely lead to a less comprehensive enforcement of overtime laws for the affected employees, the court must invalidate the class-arbitration waiver to ensure that the employees can vindicate their unwaivable rights in an arbitration forum [Gentry v. Superior Court (Aug. 30, 2007) 42 Cal. 4th 443, 456-463, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 773, 165 P.3d 556 (depending on circumstances, class-arbitration waiver can have exculpatory effect by making it very difficult for injured employees to pursue their remedies, thereby undermining enforcement of statutory right to overtime pay)].

The trial court may rely on declarations of counsel to support factual findings in determining whether a class-action waiver is unconscionable and unenforceable. In one case, for example, the court of appeal held that declarations of plaintiff's counsel stating that class members would have difficulty securing legal representation for individual cases because of the relatively small sums involved, and that class actions were necessary to deter employers like the defendant from misclassifying employees so as to avoid paying overtime, constituted substantial evidence supporting the trial court's factual finding that a class-action waiver had an exculpatory effect and was therefore substantively unconscionable [Murphy v. Check 'N Go of Cal., Inc. (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 138, 148, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 120 (class-action waiver was exculpatory and therefore substantively unconscionable under Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 148, 161, 163, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 76, 113 P.3d 1100)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersNamed MembersCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesCommonalityCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesTypicalityTortsNegligenceGeneral Overview

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.13

§ 120.13 Federal Jurisdiction Over Interstate Class Actions

[1] Class Action Fairness Act of 2005

[a] Importance of Act

The Class Action Fairness Act of 2005 (CAFA) provides special rules for federal courts' exercise of diversity jurisdiction over class actions, adds new provisions to facilitate the removal of class actions from state court, and imposes new consumer-protection requirements for the settlement of class actions [see Class Action Fairness Act of 2005, Pub. L. No. 109-2, 119 Stat. 4]. CAFA was signed into law on February 18, 2005, and it applies to all class actions commenced in any court on or after that date [Pub L. No. 109-2, § 9]. Thus, CAFA does not apply to a case commenced in state court before February 18, 2005 [see Pritchett v. Office Depot, Inc. (10th Cir. 2005) 404 F.3d 1232, 1235-1238 (class action is "commenced" for CAFA purposes when it is filed in state court, not when it is removed to federal court); see also McAtee v. Capital One (9th Cir. 2007) 479 F.3d 1143, 1146 (action filed in California state court is commenced for purposes of CAFA when complaint is filed, irrespective of any later amendment to add new causes of action or to add or replace plaintiffs or defendants, including substitution of named defendant for fictitiously sued defendant)].

Under CAFA, a class action filed in superior court may be removed to, and ultimately adjudicated in, federal district court, even if the complaint asserts only state-law claims and complete diversity of citizenship among the parties is lacking [see 28 U.S.C. §§ 1332(d), 1453]. For discussion of the removal of class actions to federal court, see [2], [3], below. For discussion of CAFA's consumer-protection requirements, see § 120.21[2].

For thorough coverage of the removal of class actions under CAFA, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Ch. 11, Removal and Remand of Class Actions Filed in State Court (Matthew Bender).

[b] Purposes of Act

The Class Action Fairness Act of 2005 is designed to address abuses of the class action device that have arisen in the past decade. As identified by Congress, those abuses include large fees received by plaintiffs' lawyers, while class members are left with coupons or other awards of little or no value; unjustified awards being made to some plaintiffs at the expense of other class members; and the publication of confusing notices that prevent class members from being able to fully understand and effectively exercise their rights [Pub L. No. 109-2, § 2(a)(2), (3)]. Congress noted that these abuses, and the handling of interstate class actions by state courts, undermine the national judicial system because state courts are keeping cases of national importance out of federal court, making judgments that impose their view of the law on other states, and sometimes acting in ways that demonstrate bias against out-of-state defendants [Pub L. No. 109-2, § 2(a)(4)].

In response to these abuses, CAFA includes measures intended to assure fair and prompt recoveries for class members with legitimate claims; to restore the intent of the framers of the Constitution by providing for federal-court consideration of interstate cases of national importance under diversity jurisdiction; and to benefit society by encouraging innovation and lowering consumer prices [Pub L. No. 109-2, § 2(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:

The Congressional findings and statement of the purposes accompanying CAFA should be taken into account in every class certification decision. Congress has now publicly endorsed the utility of class certification, making the certification of classes a matter of national policy. Given the multistate provisions of CAFA, this national policy includes the certification of appropriate multistate classes. Therefore, even state courts should consider the national policy when exercising their discretion in making class certification decisions. Commentary from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

For further discussion, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Ch. 1, History and Overview , and Ch. 11, Removal and Remand of Class Actions Filed in State Court (Matthew Bender).

[2] Removal to Federal Court

The Class Action Fairness Act of 2005 authorizes the removal of a class action to federal court by any defendant, without regard to whether any defendant is a citizen of the state in which the action was filed, and without the consent of other defendants [28 U.S.C. § 1453(b); see United Steel, Paper & Forestry, Rubber Mfg. Energy, Allied Indus. & Serv. Workers Int'l Union v. Shell Oil Co. (9th Cir. 2008) 549 F.3d 1204, 1208-1209 (one defendant's timely notice of removal pursuant to CAFA accomplishes removal of entire case and is not vitiated by another defendant's untimely notice of removal)]. Removal of a case from California superior court under this provision generally must be made within 30 days after the defendant's receipt, through service or otherwise, of a copy of the initial pleading setting forth the claim for relief. If the case stated by the initial pleading is not removable, removal may be accomplished within 30 days after the defendant's receipt of a copy of an amended pleading, motion, order or other paper from which it may first be ascertained that the case is or has become removable [28 U.S.C. § 1446(b)].

CAFA makes the usual one-year limit on removal inapplicable to the removal of a class action [28 U.S.C. § 1453(b); see 28 U.S.C. § 1446(b)]. Also, CAFA eliminates the need for unanimous consent of all defendants for the removal of a class action [28 U.S.C. § 1453(b)]; unanimous consent continues to be required for the removal of other actions [see 28 U.S.C. § 1441(a)].

CAFA does not change the long-standing general rule that a removing defendant has the burden of establishing federal jurisdiction [Abrego Abrego v. Dow Chem. Co. (9th Cir. 2006) 443 F.3d 676, 685-686 (per curiam) (plaintiff is not required to establish lack of federal jurisdiction); see also Guglielmino v. McKee Foods Corp. (9th Cir. 2007) 506 F.3d 696, 699 (if state-court complaint is unclear or ambiguous about amount in controversy, removing defendant must show by preponderance of evidence that amount in controversy exceeds jurisdictional threshold); Lowdermilk v. United States Bank Nat'l Ass'n (9th Cir. 2007) 479 F.3d 994, 1000 (if state-court complaint affirmatively alleges that amount in controversy is less than jurisdictional threshold, removing defendant has burden to prove with legal certainty that jurisdictional amount is met)].

However, once the removing defendant has met its initial burden of establishing federal jurisdiction under CAFA's minimal-diversity provision [see 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(2); see [3][a], below], a plaintiff seeking remand has the burden of showing that a statutory exception to minimal-diversity jurisdiction applies [Serrano v. 180 Connect, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007) 478 F.3d 1018, 1021-1024 (party seeking remand has burden of proving applicability of "local controversy" and "home-state controversy" exceptions to minimal-diversity jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(4); see also [3][c], below].

The CAFA removal provision does not apply to any class action that solely involves [28 U.S.C. § 1453(d)]:

> (1) A claim concerning a covered security as defined under Section 16(f)(3) of the Securities Act of 1933 15 U.S.C. § 78p(f)(3) and Section 28(f)(5)(E) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 [15 U.S.C. § 78bb(f)(5)(E)];
>
> (2) A claim that relates to the internal affairs or governance of a corporation or other form of business enterprise and that arises under or by virtue of the laws of the state in which the corporation or business enterprise is incorporated or organized; or
>
> (3) A claim that relates to the rights, duties (including fiduciary duties), and obligations relating to or created by or pursuant to any security, as defined under Section 2(a)(1) of the Securities Act of 1933 [15 U.S.C. § 77b(a)(1)] and the regulations issued under that provision.

PRACTICE TIP:

The ability of any defendant to remove a class action against the wishes of other defendants certainly protects the defendants with the most at stake, but it also places great disruptive power in the hands of any defendant, even one with little to lose. CAFA does not require that the defendant removing the case have much at stake, let alone that it be a primary defendant [see 28 U.S.C. § 1453(b)]. All defendants with significant stakes in the controversy may be content with the state court, but any defendant with a lesser stake can demand whatever the market will bear from co-defendants as the price of not removing the action to federal court. Commentary from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

For further discussion of removal of class actions under CAFA, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Ch. 11, Removal and Remand of Class Actions Filed in State Court (Matthew Bender).

[3] Minimal-Diversity Jurisdiction of Federal Court

[a] Federal Jurisdiction Generally May Be Based on Minimal Diversity

Facilitated removal under the Class Action Fairness Act of 2005 is available only if the federal court would have original subject-matter jurisdiction of the action [see 28 U.S.C. §§ 1441(a), 1446(a), (b), 1453(b)]. The federal court's jurisdiction generally may be based either on the presence of a federal question or on the diversity of citizenship of the parties [see 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331, 1332]. If the claims asserted in a case are all based on state law, therefore, the case can be removed to federal court only if the case satisfies the requirements of diversity jurisdiction.

In most cases, a federal court may exercise subject-matter jurisdiction based on diversity of citizenship only if there is complete diversity (that is, only if no plaintiff and defendant are citizens of same state) and if the amount in controversy exceeds $75,000, exclusive of costs [28 U.S.C. § 1332(a), (c); Ruhrgas AG v. Marathon Oil Co. (1999) 526 U.S. 574, 580 n.2, 119 S. Ct. 1563, 143 L. Ed. 2d 760]. Prior to the enactment of CAFA, therefore, diversity jurisdiction over a class action did not exist unless there was complete diversity of citizenship between all named representatives of the plaintiff class and all defendants [see Exxon Mobil Corp. v. Allapattah Servs., Inc. (2005) 545 U.S. 546, 125 S. Ct. 2611, 2619, 162 L. Ed. 2d 502 ; State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. v. Tashire (1967) 386 U.S. 523, 530-531, 87 S. Ct. 1199, 18 L. Ed. 2d 270].

CAFA added a new subsection to the federal diversity jurisdiction statute, allowing federal courts to exercise jurisdiction over certain class actions based on minimal diversity [see 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)]. Under the new provision, federal district courts generally have original jurisdiction over any class action in which [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(2)]:

(1) The matter in controversy exceeds $5 million, exclusive of interest and costs; and

(2) Either:

(a) Any member of a plaintiff class and any defendant are citizens of different states;

(b) Any member of a plaintiff class is a foreign state, or a citizen or subject of a foreign state, and any defendant is a citizen of a state; or

(c) Any member of a plaintiff class is a citizen of a state and any defendant is a foreign state or a citizen or subject of a foreign state.

For purposes of minimal-diversity jurisdiction, citizenship of the members of the proposed plaintiff classes is determined as of the date of filing of the complaint or amended complaint, or, if the case stated by the initial pleading is not subject to federal jurisdiction, as of the date of service by the plaintiffs of an amended pleading, motion, or other paper that indicates the existence of federal jurisdiction [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(7)]. CAFA does not specify a time for determining the citizenship of defendants; thus, it appears that the citizenship of a defendant will be ascertained at the time the lawsuit is commenced and again at the time of removal, in accordance with the general rule applicable in non-class actions [see Pullman Co. v. Jenkins (1939) 305 U.S. 534, 537, 59 S. Ct. 347, 83 L. Ed. 334 ; Thiel v. Southern Pac. Co. (9th Cir. 1942) 126 F.2d 710, 712].

For purposes of minimal-diversity jurisdiction, an unincorporated association is deemed a citizen of the state where it has its principal place of business and the state under whose laws it is organized [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(10)]. Outside the context of a class action, an unincorporated association is deemed to have the citizenship of each of its members [United Steel Workers v. R.H. Bouligny, Inc. (1965) 382 U.S. 145, 146-150].

If otherwise applicable, minimal-diversity jurisdiction can be exercised before or after the entry of a class-certification order [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(8)].

Class members' claims may be aggregated for purposes of determining whether the $5 million threshold is met [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(6)]. Before the enactment of CAFA, in cases in which the class members' rights were not joint in nature, plaintiff class members could not aggregate their claims to meet the generally applicable $75,000 amount-in-controversy threshold [Snyder v. Harris (1969) 394 U.S. 332, 339-340, 89 S. Ct. 1053, 22 L. Ed. 2d 319 ; see 28 U.S.C. § 1332(a) (generally applicable amount-in-controversy requirement)]. Shortly after the enactment of CAFA, the United States Supreme Court clarified that, under pre-CAFA law, if at least one named plaintiff satisfied the $75,000 amount-in-controversy requirement, a federal court could exercise supplemental jurisdiction over other plaintiffs (including unnamed class members) whose claims were for less than the jurisdictional minimum [Exxon Mobil Corp. v. Allapattah Servs., Inc. (2005) 545 U.S. 546, 125 S. Ct. 2611, 2620, 162 L. Ed. 2d 502 (resolving circuit split); see 28 U.S.C. § 1367 (supplemental jurisdiction)]. The availability of supplemental jurisdiction remains relevant in smaller class actions (i.e., those in which the aggregate claims of the class do not exceed $5 million) in which there is complete diversity of citizenship [see Exxon Mobil Corp. v. Allapattah Servs., Inc. (2005) 545 U.S. 546, 125 S. Ct. 2611, 2628, 162 L. Ed. 2d 502 (many future instances of supplemental jurisdiction, even in class-action context, will be outside scope of CAFA)].

PRACTICE TIP:

By allowing diversity jurisdiction based on the citizenship of any unnamed class member prior to class certification [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(1)(b), (2)], CAFA significantly departs from the traditional understanding of Article III of the Constitution [see State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. v. Tashire (1967) 386 U.S. 523, 531, 87 S. Ct. 1199, 18 L. Ed. 2d 270 (approving minimal-diversity for statutory interpleader actions based on citizenship of formal parties)].

CAFA does not allocate the burden of persuasion on the issue of federal-court jurisdiction. Ordinarily, a party asserting federal jurisdiction has the burden of establishing the facts necessary to jurisdiction [Prize Frize, Inc. v. Matrix (U.S.) Inc., 167 F.3d 1261, 1265 (9th Cir. 1999)] . Commentary from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

For further discussion federal diversity jurisdiction in class actions, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Ch. 11, Removal and Remand of Class Actions Filed in State Court (Matthew Bender).

[b] Exceptions to Minimal Diversity

Minimal-diversity jurisdiction pursuant to CAFA is inapplicable under several circumstances. For example, minimal-diversity jurisdiction is not available in any class action in which (1) the primary defendants are states, state officials, or other governmental entities against which the federal district court may be foreclosed from ordering relief (i.e., because of Eleventh Amendment immunity); or (2) there are fewer than 100 members of all proposed plaintiff classes in the aggregate [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(5)].

PRACTICE TIP:

CAFA does not define the term "primary defendants" [see 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(5)], although it may be that the category of "primary defendants" includes those defendants from which "significant" relief is sought and whose alleged conduct forms a "significant" basis for the class claims [see 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(4)(A)(i)(II); see also [c], below]. Commentary from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

For further discussion of minimal diversity, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, and Ch. 11, Removal and Remand of Class Actions Filed in State Court (Matthew Bender).

Minimal-diversity jurisdiction is also inapplicable to any class action that solely involves a claim (1) concerning a covered security as defined under Section 16(f)(3) of the Securities Act of 1933 [15 U.S.C. § 78p(f)(3)] and Section 28(f)(5)(E) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 [15 U.S.C. § 78bb(f)(5)(E)]; (2) that relates to the internal affairs or governance of a corporation or other form of business enterprise and that arises under or by virtue of the laws of the state in which the corporation or business enterprise is incorporated or organized; or (3) that relates to the rights, duties (including fiduciary duties), and obligations relating to or created by or pursuant to any security, as defined under Section 2(a)(1) of the Securities Act of 1933 [15 U.S.C. § 77b(a)(1)] and the regulations issued under that provision [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(9)].

[c] When Federal Court Must or May Decline to Exercise Minimal-Diversity Jurisdiction

A federal district court must decline to exercise minimal-diversity jurisdiction if two thirds or more of the members of all proposed plaintiff classes in the aggregate, and the primary defendants, are citizens of the state in which the action was originally filed [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(4)(B); see Serrano v. 180 Connect, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007) 478 F.3d 1018, 1021-1024 (party seeking remand to state court has burden of proving applicability of "home-state controversy" exception to minimal-diversity jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(4)(B))]. The court must also decline to exercise minimal-diversity jurisdiction if (1) more than two thirds of the members of all proposed plaintiff classes in the aggregate are citizens of the state in which the action was originally filed; (2) at least one defendant from whom significant relief is sought and whose alleged conduct forms a significant basis for the claims asserted by the proposed plaintiff class is a citizen of the state in which the action was originally filed; (3) principal injuries resulting from the alleged conduct or any related conduct of each defendant were incurred in the state in which the action was originally filed; and (4) during the three years preceding the filing of the class action, no other class action has been filed asserting the same or similar factual allegations against any of the defendants on behalf of the same or other persons [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(4)(A); see Serrano v. 180 Connect, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007) 478 F.3d 1018, 1021-1024 (party seeking remand to state court has burden of proving applicability of "local controversy" exception to minimal-diversity jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(4)(A))]. In this context, it is not clear from the text of the Class Action Fairness Act whether a "primary" defendant [see 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(4)(B)] is the same as a defendant "from whom significant relief is sought" and "whose alleged conduct forms a significant basis for the claims asserted by the proposed plaintiff class" [see 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(4)(A)].

A federal district court has discretion, in the interests of justice and looking at the totality of the circumstances, to decline to exercise minimal-diversity jurisdiction if more than a third but less than two thirds of the members of all proposed plaintiff classes in the aggregate, and the primary defendants, are citizens of the state in which the action was originally filed [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(2)]. In deciding whether to decline to exercise jurisdiction, the court must consider [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(3)]:

> (1) Whether the claims asserted involve matters of national or interstate interest;
>
> (2) Whether the claims asserted will be governed by the laws of the state in which the action was originally filed or by the laws of other states;
>
> (3) Whether the class action has been pleaded in a manner that seeks to avoid federal jurisdiction;
>
> (4) Whether the action was brought in a forum with a distinct nexus with the class members, the alleged harm, or the defendants;
>
> (5) Whether the number of citizens of the state in which the action was originally filed in all proposed plaintiff classes in the aggregate is substantially larger than the number of citizens from any other state, and the citizenship of the other members of the proposed class is dispersed among a substantial number of states; and
>
> (6) Whether, during the three years preceding the filing of the class action, one or more other class actions asserting the same or similar claims on behalf of the same or other persons have been filed.

In ascertaining whether the one-third or two-thirds threshold is met, the court will count the number of class members, without regard to the amount of damages claimed by each class member [see 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(3), (4)].

[4] Diversity Jurisdiction Over "Mass Actions"

Special rules apply to a "mass action," which is any civil action, other than a class action [see 28 U.S.C. § 1711(2)], in which monetary relief claims of 100 or more persons are proposed to be tried jointly on the ground that the plaintiffs' claims involve common questions of law or fact [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(11)(B)(i)]. For purposes of minimal-diversity jurisdiction and removal to federal court, a mass action is treated as a class action, except that in a mass action minimal-diversity jurisdiction does not exist over any plaintiff whose individual claim does not satisfy the generally applicable $75,000 jurisdictional minimum for diversity jurisdiction [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(11)(A), (B)(i)]. A "mass action" for this purpose does not include any civil action in which (1) all of the claims arise from an alleged event or occurrence in the state in which the action was filed, with the allegedly resulting injuries in that state or in states contiguous to that state; (2) the claims are joined on motion of a defendant; (3) all claims in the action are asserted on behalf of the general public, and not on behalf of individual claimants or members of a purported class, pursuant to a state statute specifically authorizing such an action [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 17204]; or (4) the claims have been consolidated or coordinated solely for pretrial proceedings [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(11)(B)(ii)].

A mass action may be removed to federal court based on minimal diversity [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(11)(A)], but thereafter it may not ordinarily be transferred to any other court for consolidated or coordinated pretrial proceedings [see 28 U.S.C. § 1407], unless a majority of the plaintiffs in the action request transfer for that purpose [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(11)(C)(i)]. This apparently would prevent the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation from transferring such a mass action for consolidated treatment with other similar cases. However, this restriction on transfer does not apply if the mass action has been certified as a class action under Fed. R. Civ. P. 23, or if the plaintiffs propose that the action proceed as a class action under Rule 23 [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(11)(C)(ii)]. The limitations periods on any claims asserted in a mass action that is removed to federal court based on minimal diversity are tolled while the action is pending in federal court [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(11)(D)].

PRACTICE TIP:

A "mass action" is a broader concept than a "mass tort action," although the two could overlap. For example, the state-law claims of sex discrimination in promotions of 100 or more female employees in California and noncontiguous states could be filed and tried together, without any effort to certify the claims as a class action. The joint trial may be an appropriate means of amassing stakes high enough to show a pattern of discrimination, making it easier for each plaintiff to prove her claim. Under 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(11), such a consolidated set of claims would fit within the expanded federal-court jurisdiction for original filings and removals. Commentary from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

For further discussion of mass actions, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Ch. 11, Removal and Remand of Class Actions Filed in State Court and Ch. 18, Class Certification of Mass Tort Actions (Matthew Bender).

PRACTICE TIP:

Careful pleading may prevent a state-court action from qualifying as a mass action and being removed to federal court. For example, a case does not qualify as a mass action if there are fewer than 100 plaintiffs or if all of the claims arise from an event or occurrence in the forum state, resulting in injuries in that state or contiguous states [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(11)(B)(i), (ii)(I)]. Thus, if a hamburger stand at a highway rest stop sold tainted meat that sickened or killed hundreds of consumers, a consolidated case could remain in California superior court if there are fewer than 100 plaintiffs, or if the plaintiffs are limited to residents of California and adjoining states. Other actions could be filed for residents of noncontiguous states. If the defendant then moved to consolidate the cases, they would not be removable to federal court [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(11)(B)(ii)(II)]. Commentary from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

For further discussion of mass actions, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Ch. 11, Removal and Remand of Class Actions Filed in State Court , and Ch. 18, Class Certification of Mass Tort Actions (Matthew Bender).

[5] Federal Appellate Review of Remand Orders

If a removed class action is remanded to state court, the general prohibition against appellate review of remand orders [see 28 U.S.C. § 1447(d)] does not apply. Thus, the federal court of appeals has discretion to hear an appeal from the grant or denial of a remand order, if an application is made to the court of appeals not more than 10 days after the entry of the order [28 U.S.C. § 1453(c)(1), as amended eff. Dec. 1, 2009)].

If the court accepts the appeal, it is ordinarily required to complete its review and enter judgment within 60 days after the date of the order granting leave to appeal [28 U.S.C. § 1453(c)(2) (requiring court of appeals to render judgment no later than 60 days after "appeal was filed"); see Amalgamated Transit Union Local 1309 v. Laidlaw Transit Servs., Inc. (9th Cir. 2006) 435 F.3d 1140, 1144-1145 (petition for permission to appeal under 28 U.S.C. § 1453(c) is subject to Fed. R. App. P. 5(d)(2), which provides that entry of order granting permission to appeal serves as filing of appeal for all timing issues)]. The court may extend the 60-day period for an additional 10 days if good cause is shown and the extension is in the interests of justice, or for any additional period if all parties agree to the extension [28 U.S.C. § 1453(c)(3)]. If the court of appeals fails to enter a final judgment on the appeal within the 60 days, plus any extensions, the appeal will be deemed denied [28 U.S.C. § 1453(c)(4)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionDiversity JurisdictionCitizenshipGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemovalGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsAppellate ReviewEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsBurdens of ProofGeneral Overview

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.14

§ 120.14 Interstate Class Actions in California Courts

[1] Importance of Choice of Law

The choice-of-law determination is of "central importance to issues of predominance and manageability if certification of a nationwide class is sought" [Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 906, 915, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320, 15 P.3d 1071].

If claims of nonresident class members will require adjudication under the laws of the members' home states, the trial court must ascertain the degree of complexity arising from the need to apply those laws, in order to make an informed decision on certification [Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 906, 915, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320, 15 P.3d 1071 ; Clothesrigger, Inc. v. GTE Corp. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 605, 619, 236 Cal. Rptr. 605]. The trial court should deny certification if it determines that such complexity results in common legal questions not predominating or makes nationwide class litigation unmanageable [Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 906, 915, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320, 15 P.3d 1071 ; see Canon U.S.A., Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1, 7, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 897 (permitting resolution at pleading stage)]. Conversely, the court may certify a nationwide class despite such complexity if it determines the legal questions are sufficiently similar to be manageable and all other requirements for certification are satisfied [Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 906, 915, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320, 15 P.3d 1071 ; Clothesrigger, Inc. v. GTE Corp. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 605, 619, 236 Cal. Rptr. 605].

As discussed in [2] and [3], below, different tests are applied depending whether the dispute involves an enforceable choice-of-law clause. For further coverage of choice of law in interstate class actions, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Ch. 7, Choice of Law (Matthew Bender).

[2] Effect of Choice-of-Law Agreement

[a] Scope of Agreement

If the parties have an agreement that another jurisdiction's law will govern their disputes, the trial court must undertake a two-part inquiry regarding the scope of the choice-of-law clause and its enforceability [see [b], below].

The trial court should first examine the choice-of-law clause and ascertain whether the advocate of the clause has met its burden of establishing that the various claims of putative class members fall within its scope [Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 906, 916, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320, 15 P.3d 1071 ; see Nedlloyd Lines B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 459, 468-470, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 330, 834 P.2d 1148]. Generally, if a rational businessperson enters into an agreement establishing a transaction or relationship and provides that disputes arising from the agreement will be governed by the law of an identified jurisdiction, the logical conclusion is that he or she intended that law to apply to all disputes arising out of the transaction or relationship [Nedlloyd Lines B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 459, 469, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 330, 834 P.2d 1148 (clause negotiated by sophisticated business entities was phrased broadly enough to encompass plaintiff's fiduciary duty claim)].

[b] Enforceability of Agreement

If the trial court finds that the class claims fall within the scope of a choice-of-law clause [see [a], above], it must next evaluate the clause's enforceability according to the approach reflected in Restatement Second of Conflict of Laws, § 187(2).

The court must first consider the following [Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 906, 916, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320, 15 P.3d 1071 ; see Nedlloyd Lines B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 459, 468-470, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 330, 834 P.2d 1148]:

- Whether the chosen state has a substantial relationship to the parties or their transaction; or
- Whether there is any other reasonable basis for the parties' choice of law.

If neither of these tests is met, that is the end of the inquiry, and the court need not enforce the parties' choice of law. If, however, either test is met, the court must next determine whether the chosen state's law is contrary to a fundamental policy of California. If there is no such conflict, the court must enforce the parties' choice of law [Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 906, 916, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320, 15 P.3d 1071 ; see Nedlloyd Lines B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 459, 468-470, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 330, 834 P.2d 1148].

If there is a fundamental conflict with California law, the court must then determine whether California has a materially greater interest than the chosen state in the determination of the particular issue. If California has a materially greater interest than the chosen state, the choice of law will not be enforced [Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 906, 916-917, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320, 15 P.3d 1071 ; see Nedlloyd Lines B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 459, 468-470, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 330, 834 P.2d 1148]. For example, one court of appeal found a fundamental conflict between Delaware law, which generally permits the enforcement of class-action waivers, and California law, which holds a class-action waiver unconscionable and unenforceable when it is alleged that a bank with superior bargaining power has carried out a scheme to deliberately cheat large numbers of consumers out of individually small sums of money. In that case, the court of appeals found that California had a materially greater interest in the litigation than did Delaware, because the putative class was composed solely of California residents with California statutory claims, while Delaware's interest lay in more general matters of corporate regulation. Accordingly, the court of appeal declined to enforce the parties' choice of Delaware law [Klussman v. Cross Country Bank (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1283, 1292-1300, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 728].

On the other hand, if California does not have a materially greater interest than the chosen state, the choice-of-law agreement will be enforced. In one case, for example, although the named plaintiff was a California resident, he asserted claims only under Delaware law, on behalf of a putative nationwide class, against a bank that was domiciled in Delaware. Under the circumstances, the court of appeal found that Delaware's interest in the case was demonstrably greater than California's. Therefore, the court enforced the parties' contractual choice of Delaware law and the parties' class-action waiver, which was enforceable under Delaware law. The court explained that Delaware's demonstrably greater interest in the case required the enforcement of the class-action waiver, even if that result would be contrary to a fundamental policy of California [Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 886, 894-895, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 456].

[3] Choice of Law in Absence of Enforceable Agreement

[a] Significant-Contacts Test

A forum state may apply its own substantive law to the claims of a nationwide class without violating the federal Due Process Clause [U.S. Const., amend. XIV] or Full Faith and Credit Clause [U.S. Const., art. IV, § 1] if the state has a significant contact or significant aggregation of contacts to the claims of each class member such that application of the forum law is not arbitrary or unfair [Phillips Petroleum Co. v. Shutts (1985) 472 U.S. 797, 821-822, 105 S. Ct. 2965, 86 L. Ed. 2d 628 ; see Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 906, 917, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320, 15 P.3d 1071].

Even if its own law may be constitutionally applied, however, California follows a governmental interest analysis [Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 906, 919, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320, 15 P.3d 1071 ; see [b], below], to address conflict-of-laws claims and ascertain the most appropriate law applicable to the issues if there is no effective choice-of-law agreement.

[b] Governmental-Interest Test

[i] General Rule Favoring Forum Law

In the absence of an effective choice-of-law agreement to the contrary, California law may be used on a classwide basis as long as its application is not arbitrary or unfair with respect to nonresident class members [Phillips Petroleum Co. v. Shutts (1985) 472 U.S. 797, 821-822, 105 S. Ct. 2965, 86 L. Ed. 2d 628]. In addition, the interests of other states may not outweigh California's interest in having its law applied [Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 906, 922, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320, 15 P.3d 1071].

Generally speaking, the forum will apply its own rule of decision unless a litigant timely invokes the law of a foreign state. In that event, the litigant must demonstrate that the foreign state's rule of decision will further the interest of the foreign state and therefore that it is an appropriate one for the forum to apply to the case before it [Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 906, 919, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320, 15 P.3d 1071 ; Bernhard v. Harrah's Club (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 313, 317-318, 128 Cal. Rptr, 215, 546 P.2d 719].

[ii] Three-Step Analysis

Under the first step of the governmental-interest approach, the proponent of foreign law must identify the applicable rule of law in each potentially concerned state and must show it materially differs from the law of California [Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 906, 919, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320, 15 P.3d 1071].

The fact that two or more states are involved does not in itself indicate there is a conflict-of-laws problem [Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 906, 919-920, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320, 15 P.3d 1071]. Indeed, if the laws of the relevant states are identical, there is no problem and the trial court may apply California law to class claims [Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 906, 920, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320, 15 P.3d 1071].

If, however, the trial court finds the laws of the relevant states are materially different, it must proceed to the second step and determine what interest, if any, each state has in having its own law applied to the case. Even if the laws are materially different, there is still no problem in choosing the applicable rule of law if only one of the states has an interest in having its law applied. This means the trial court may properly find California law applicable without proceeding to the third step in the analysis if the proponent of foreign law fails to identify any actual conflict or to establish the other state's interest in having its own law applied [Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 906, 920, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320, 15 P.3d 1071]. Even if the fundamental purpose of the other state's law would not be furthered by applying it to the particular circumstances of the case, the other state may still have an interest in having its law apply. One case, for example, involved alleged privacy violations resulting from a Georgia business's recording of its telephone conversations with California residents. A Georgia statute prohibited such recording without the consent of at least one party to the conversation. The California Supreme Court held that, although the case did not implicate any privacy interests protected by Georgia's statute (the only persons whose privacy rights were allegedly violated were California residents), Georgia nevertheless had an interest in having its law applied. The Court reasoned that Georgia had a legitimate interest in not having liability imposed on Georgia persons or businesses that had acted in reasonable reliance on the Georgia statute [Kearney v. Salomon Smith Barney, Inc. (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 95, 123, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 730, 137 P.3d 914].

Only if the trial court determines that the laws are materially different and that each state has an interest in having its own law applied, thus reflecting an actual conflict, must the court take the final step and select the law of the state whose interests would be more impaired if its law were not applied. In making this comparative-impairment analysis, the trial court must determine the relative commitment of the respective states to the laws involved and consider the history and current status of the states' laws and the function and purpose of those laws. These rules apply whether the dispute arises out of contract or tort, and a separate conflict-of-laws inquiry must be made with respect to each issue in the case [Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 906, 920, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320, 15 P.3d 1071].

In conducting the third step of this analysis--the evaluation of comparative impairment--the court does not weigh the conflicting governmental interests in the sense of determining which conflicting law manifests the "better" or the "worthier" social policy on the specific issue. Such an attempted balancing of conflicting state policies in that sense would conflict with the principle of federalism that, within constitutional limits, states are empowered to establish their own public policies. Instead, the comparative impairment analysis is better described as an accommodation of conflicting state policies that attempts to achieve the maximum attainment of underlying purpose by all governmental entities. Thus, true conflicts between states' interests are resolved by applying the law of the state whose interest would be the more impaired if its law were not applied [Kearney v. Salomon Smith Barney, Inc. (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 95, 123-124, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 730, 137 P.3d 914].

In an appropriate case, the comparative-impairment analysis might result in the application of one state's law to past conduct and another state's law to future conduct. For example, in a case involving alleged privacy violations resulting from a Georgia business's recording of its telephone conversations with California residents, the California Supreme Court concluded that California law (which prohibits recording without the consent of all participants [see Penal Code §§ 632-632.7]), rather than Georgia law (which allowed recording with the consent of one participant), generally should apply to determine whether injunctive relief should issue. However, the Court found that Georgia law should be applied to determine the defendant's liability for past conduct. The Court reasoned that, particularly since no previous decision had held California law applicable to the circumstances of this case, the application of California law to establish liability for past conduct would unduly impair Georgia's interest in protecting persons who acted in Georgia in reasonable reliance on Georgia law from being subjected to liability on the basis of such action [Kearney v. Salomon Smith Barney, Inc. (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 95, 128-131, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 730, 137 P.3d 914 (after Supreme Court's decision in this case, out-of-state companies are on notice that, with regard to future conduct, they are subject to California law with regard to recording of telephone conversations made to or received from California, and that full range of civil sanctions afforded by California law may be imposed for future violations)].

[4] Suitability of Class Action If Laws of Other States Apply

A class action proponent must make a thorough analysis of the applicable state laws and credibly demonstrate that variations in state law will not swamp common issues and defeat predominance [Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 906, 926, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320, 15 P.3d 1071].

Additionally, the proponent's presentation must be sufficient to permit the trial court, at the time of certification, to make a detailed assessment of how any state law differences could be managed fairly and efficiently at trial, for example, through the creation of a manageable number of subclasses [Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 906, 926, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320, 15 P.3d 1071].

Trial courts, in assessing the propriety of nationwide class certification, must consider these factors, as well as all the other factors relevant to certification, including the potential recovery of each individual claimant and whether theproposed class suit is the only effective way to redress the alleged wrongdoing or to prevent unjust advantage to the defendant [Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 906, 926, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320, 15 P.3d 1071].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsChoice of LawGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsChoice of LawGovernmental InterestsCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesCommonalityContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsForum Selection Clauses

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.15

§ 120.15 Class Representative and Unnamed Class Members

[1] Representative Must Be Member of Class

A plaintiff seeking to maintain a class action is required to be a member of the alleged class, at least at the time the action is commenced [Anthony v. General Motors Corp. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 699, 704, 109 Cal. Rptr. 254 ; see La Sala v. American Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 864, 875, 97 Cal. Rptr. 849, 489 P.2d 1113 (plaintiffs not members of class alleged in complaint must have opportunity to amend pleading); Ticconi v. Blue Shield of Cal. Life & Health Ins. Co. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 528, 548, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 888 (defendant's payment of plaintiff's damages after suit is filed does not necessarily prevent plaintiff from adequately representing class in seeking equitable relief); LaLiberte v. Pacific Mercantile Bank (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 1, 6-8, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 745 (if named plaintiff is not within class definition but shares community of interest in the law and facts involved in case, court should permit amendment of class allegations to include plaintiff)]. The trial court has discretion to allow a named plaintiff to act in the dual roles of class representative and attorney for the class [McGhee v. Bank of America (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 442, 451, 131 Cal. Rptr. 482]. However, most courts find an insurmountable conflict of interests in such an arrangement, because of the temptation for the attorney for the class to recommend settlement on terms less favorable to class members when a large fee is part of the bargain, particularly when the potential recovery for each class member (including the named plaintiff) is small [Apple Computer, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1253, 1264-1279, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 818; see Best Buy Stores, L.P. v. Superior Court (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 772, 776-779, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 575 (if conflict of interest prevents lawyer from serving as class representative and counsel for class, court may allow precertification discovery for purpose of seeking new class representative)]. For further discussion, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Ch. 6, Class Certification Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

To have standing to bring a class action under the Consumers Legal Remedies Act, a representative plaintiff must be a consumer and must have suffered "any damage" as a result of the defendant's violation of the Act [Civ. Code § 1780(a)]. The statutory reference to "any damage" in this context indicates a category that includes, but is greater than, actual pecuniary damages. Thus, a representative plaintiff who has not suffered pecuniary damages may nevertheless have standing to sue if he or she has incurred transaction costs or opportunity costs as a result of an alleged violation of the Act [Meyer v. Sprint Spectrum L.P. (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 634, 640 & n.1, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 859, 200 P.3d 295 (transaction costs are costs associated with forming, maintaining, and enforcing contracts; opportunity costs are benefits forgone by entering contract, such as forgone opportunity to make contract with third party)]. However, the existence of a violation of the Act (e.g., the inclusion of an unconscionable term in a consumer contract [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 1770(a)(14), (19)]) does not by itself constitute a form of damage. Therefore, the existence of a violation, without more, will not confer standing on a consumer exposed to the violation (e.g., a consumer who enters into a contract that includes an unconscionable term), unless some kind of damage has resulted [Meyer v. Sprint Spectrum L.P. (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 634, 641-643, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 859, 200 P.3d 295 (plaintiff suffered no damage because defendant had not attempted to enforce allegedly unconscionable contract term)]. For further discussion of the Consumers Legal Remedies Act, see Ch. 504, Sales: Consumers Legal Remedies Act .

To have standing to bring a class action under California's statutory unfair competition and false advertising laws [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200 et seq., 17500 et seq.], a private plaintiff must have suffered injury in fact and have lost money or property as a result of the alleged unfair competition or false advertising [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17203, 17204, 17535; see Californians for Disability Rights v. Mervyn's, LLC (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 223, 227, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 57, 138 P.3d 207 (standing requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17203, 17204, and 17535, which took effect with passage of Proposition 64 on November 2, 2004, apply to cases pending on that date); see also Branick v. Downey Savings & Loan Assn. (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 235, 239, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 66, 138 P.3d 214 (amendment of class-action complaint to add representative plaintiff who meets standing requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17203, 17204, and 17535 is subject to ordinary rules governing pleading amendments and their relation back)].

For example, a labor union that has not suffered actual injury under the Unfair Competition Law lacks standing to bring a representative action as the assignee of employees who suffered injuries or as an association whose members have suffered injuries [Amalgamated Transit Union, Local 1756, AFL-CIO v. Superior Court (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 993, 1002, 195 Cal. Rptr. 3d 605, 209 P.3d 937]. The requirement that a class representative have suffered injury in fact and have lost money or property "as a result of" alleged unfair competition [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17204] means, in the context of an alleged fraudulent business practice, that the class representative must demonstrate actual reliance on the allegedly deceptive or misleading statements of the defendant, in accordance with settled principles regarding the element of reliance in ordinary fraud actions. Thus, the representative plaintiff need not plead or prove with an unrealistic degree of specificity that the plaintiff relied on particular misrepresentations or false statements when the alleged unfair practice is an extensive and long-term advertising campaign [In re Tobacco II Cases (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 298, 306, 324-328, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 559, 207 P.3d 20 (if named plaintiff lacks standing, proper procedure is not to decertify class but to grant leave to amend to redefine class or add new class representative)]. These standing requirements apply only to the class representative, and unnamed class members need not show injury in fact or actual loss of money or property [In re Tobacco II Cases (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 298, 306, 314-324, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 559, 207 P.3d 20 ; see also Arias v. Superior Court (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 969, 975, 977-980, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 588, 209 P.3d 923 (employee who sues employer on behalf of self and other employees under unfair competition law, Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq., must satisfy class-action requirements)].

An involuntary disposition of a named plaintiff's individual claim--such as when the defendant offers the named plaintiff all of the individual relief claimed--does not prevent the named plaintiff from continuing as class representative if he or she retains an economic interest in the case [Deposit Guaranty Nat'l Bank v. Roper (1980) 445 U.S. 326, 332-333, 100 S. Ct. 1166, 63 L. Ed. 2d 427 ; Watkins v. Wachovia Corp. (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 1576, 1590-1592, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 409]. Such an interest may exist, for example, if the named plaintiff seeks to shift the cost of the litigation to the class [Deposit Guaranty Nat'l Bank v. Roper (1980) 445 U.S. 326, 336, 338 & n.9, 100 S. Ct. 1166, 63 L. Ed. 2d 427]. In contrast, a class representative who voluntarily settles his or her individual claim no longer retains an economic interest in the case. If the class ultimately obtains a recovery, the voluntarily settling plaintiff cannot share in it, having released his or her claim and having already received a complete recovery. Thus, a voluntarily settling plaintiff lacks standing to proceed as class representative, even if the settlement purports to reserve a right to pursue a "class claim" [Watkins v. Wachovia Corp. (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 1576, 1589, 1592, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 409 ("That the plaintiff has undertaken to also sue 'for the benefit of all' does not mean that the plaintiff has somehow obtained a 'class claim' for relief that can be asserted independent of the plaintiff's own claim. ... Thus, a class representative's voluntary settlement of her individual claim constitutes a voluntary settlement of her only claim, and moots her right to proceed on appeal."); cf. Larner v. Los Angeles Doctors Hosp. Assocs., LP v. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1291, 1300-1304, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 324 (dismissing appeal of voluntarily settling plaintiff as moot despite express reservation of right to appeal, because plaintiff had retained no continuing interest in case, such as interest in shifting attorney's fees to class members)].

[2] Representative Must Adequately Represent Class

The named plaintiffs in a class action must fairly and adequately represent and protect the interests of the class [La Sala v. American Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 864, 871, 97 Cal. Rptr. 849, 489 P.2d 1113 ; Classen v. Weller (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 27, 46, 192 Cal. Rptr. 914 ; see Civ. Code § 1781(b)(4) (requirement under Consumers Legal Remedies Act, Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.)]. To represent the class fairly and adequately, the named plaintiffs must have claims or defenses that are typical of the claims or defenses of the class [Stephens v. Montgomery Ward & Co. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 411, 422, 238 Cal. Rptr. 602 ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a) (requirement under federal rule)].

The ability to provide adequate class representation is not necessarily precluded if the named plaintiffs have not personally incurred all of the damages suffered by each class member [Wershba v. Apple Computer, Inc. (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 224, 238, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 145]. However, an individual cannot fairly and adequately represent a class if there is a conflict of interest between the individual and the class; for example, a conflict may exist if the defendants offer the named plaintiff special treatment not offered to the unnamed class members [see La Sala v. American Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 864, 872-874, 97 Cal. Rptr. 849, 489 P.2d 1113]. Similarly, fair and adequate representation does not exist if the vast majority of the class members perceive their interests to be diametrically opposed to that of the named representatives [Richmond v. Dart Industries, Inc. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 462, 471, 174 Cal. Rptr. 515, 629 P.2d 23]. Generally, if the named plaintiffs are members of the class they seek to represent [see [1], above] and have claims typical of the claims of the class, they will be considered adequate class representatives unless, within the class, there is a conflict of interest or an overwhelming disapproval of the lawsuit that would defeat the purpose of the class action [see Richmond v. Dart Industries, Inc. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 462, 474, 475, 174 Cal. Rptr. 515, 629 P.2d 23 ; Seastrom v. Neways, Inc. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 1496, 1502, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 903 (named representatives will not fairly and adequately protect interests of class if they are potential defendants in action)].

Denial of class certification may be an inappropriate remedy to resolve a potential conflict between the class representatives and the class. For example, in one case, class-action plaintiffs sought money damages and, in the alternative, rescission of a consolidation of various partnerships. Although most putative class members could no longer seek rescission, the appropriate remedy was to certify a damages class, not dismiss the whole action. In such a case, if conflicts arise, the trial court can create subclasses or exclude any members seeking the conflicting relief [Daniels v. Centennial Group, Inc. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 467, 471-472, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1].

The party seeking class certification has the burden of proving that its named representative can fairly and adequately represent and protect the interests of the class [Richmond v. Dart Industries, Inc. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 462, 470, 174 Cal. Rptr. 515, 629 P.2d 23].

A trial court properly denies class certification if it finds that the proposed class representative is a "professional plaintiff," meaning one whose name is lent to a suit that is controlled entirely by the attorney for the putative class [Howard Gunty Profit Sharing Plan v. Superior Court (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 572, 577-580, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 896 (remanding with instructions that trial court determine propriety of class certification and whether, and under what conditions, to allow precertification communication with potential class members)].

For further discussion of adequate representation, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Ch. 6, Class Certification Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

[3] Fiduciary Duty of Representative Toward Class

The named plaintiff in a class action suit assumes a fiduciary obligation to the members of the plaintiff class and surrenders any right to compromise the groupaction in return for an individual gain [La Sala v. American Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 864, 871, 97 Cal. Rptr. 849, 489 P.2d 1113].

For further discussion, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Ch. 6, Class Certification Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

[4] Association's Standing to Represent Class

Actions by associations on behalf of their members are representative actions similar to class actions but with the essential difference that the party bringing the suit is not a representative member of the class with claims typical to those of the class [see § 120.11[2]]. Associations are usually found to have standing to bring representative actions on behalf of their membership despite their lack of these qualities, which are required for individual class representatives [see, e.g., National Solar Equipment Owners' Assn. v. Grumman Corp. (1992) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1273, 1278, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 325 ; Tenants Assn. of Park Santa Anita v. Southers (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1293, 1299-1304, 272 Cal. Rptr. 361 ; Twain Harte Homeowners Assn. v. Patterson (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 184, 186-188, 239 Cal. Rptr. 316]. The problems inherent in allowing a class action to be maintained by an individual who is not a representative member of the class are not typically present in association actions because an association ordinarily does not purport to represent anyone but its own membership and does not have interests of its own that are antithetical to the interests of its members. The fact that the association is not a representative member of the class does not create difficulty in identifying the class or its community of interest because membership in the association and the nature of the rights and interests secured by such membership are easily determinable [Twain Harte Homeowners Assn. v. Patterson (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 184, 187, 239 Cal. Rptr. 316].

A representative plaintiff in an action under the unfair competition law must have suffered injury in fact and have lost money or property as a result of the alleged unfair competition [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17204]. Therefore, a labor union that has not suffered actual injury under the unfair competition law lacks standing to bring a representative action as the assignee of employees who suffered injuries or as an association whose members have suffered injuries [Amalgamated Transit Union, Local 1756, AFL-CIO v. Superior Court (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 993, 1002, 195 Cal. Rptr. 3d 605, 209 P.3d 937]. For further discussion of standing requirements under the Unfair Competition Law, see [1], above.

At least one court has held that an association does not have standing to sue for tort damages on behalf of its members. The court found that such injuries are too intangible and too inherently personal reasonably to constitute a community of interest among the association's members [Tenants Assn. of Park Santa Anita v. Southers (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1293, 1304, 272 Cal. Rptr. 361].

For further discussion, see Ch. 61, Associations and Clubs , and Ch. 124, Condominiums and Other Common Interest Developments . Detailed coverage of associational standing may be found in Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Ch. 6, Class Certification Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

[5] Replacement of Representative

It is within the trial court's discretion to determine, based on the facts and circumstances of the case, that an action should not be continued as a class action with the named party representatives [Daar v. Yellow Cab Co. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 695, 710, 63 Cal. Rptr. 724, 433 P.2d 732]. If the trial court determines that the named plaintiffs can no longer suitably represent the class, it should afford the plaintiff class the opportunity to amend the complaint to redefine the class or to add new individual plaintiffs, or both, in order to establish a suitable representative [La Sala v. American Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 864, 872, 97 Cal. Rptr. 849, 489 P.2d 1113 ; Scott v. City of Indian Wells (1972)

6 Cal. 3d 541, 550, 99 Cal. Rptr. 745, 492 P.2d 1137]. If the class is unable to redefine the class or to name a suitable representative, the court may dismiss the action [La Sala v. American Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 864, 872-873, 97 Cal. Rptr. 849, 489 P.2d 1113 ; see § 120.17[4]].

Once the court has determined that the named representative may not represent the class, the court has discretion to allow discovery to ascertain a suitable class representative. This discovery may include precertification communication with potential class members, provided that the court acts to protect the privacy rights of the potential class members (for example, by having a third person contact the potential class members and by informing them that those who do not affirmatively respond will not have their names disclosed to the parties) [Best Buy Stores, L.P. v. Superior Court (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 772, 778-779, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 575]. The court may authorize precertification discovery designed to ascertain a suitable class representative even if the original named plaintiffs lack standing to prosecute the action [CashCall, Inc. v. Superior Court (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 273, 284-291, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 441 ; see Safeco Ins. Co. of Am. v. Superior Court (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 814, 828-833, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 814 (in ruling on motion to compel precertification discovery for purposes of identifying class representative, court must identify any potential abuses of class action procedure that may be created if discovery is permitted, and must weigh danger of such abuses against rights of parties under circumstances)].

The pendency of an appeal does not deprive the trial court of its authority to determine whether the named plaintiff is a suitable representative of the class and to substitute a new named plaintiff if necessary [Mallick v. Superior Court (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 434, 437, 152 Cal. Rptr. 503].

For further discussion, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Ch. 6, Class Certification Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

[6] Individual Representation

Both Fed. R. Civ. P. 23 and the Consumers Legal Remedies Act [Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.] provide that any class member who does not request exclusion from the class on receiving notice of the pendency of the class action may enter an appearance in the action through his or her counsel [Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(c)(2)(B); Civ. Code § 1781(e); see also § 120.17[1]].

For further discussion, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Ch. 6, Class Certification Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJusticiabilityStandingGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass CounselGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersNamed MembersContracts LawContract InterpretationFiduciary Responsibilities

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.16

§ 120.16 Special Concerns for Defendant Classes

Although plaintiff class actions are more common, a court may also certify a defendant class action if the procedure will save time and minimize costs [see Kaye v. Mount La Jolla Homeowners Assn. (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1476, 1489-1490, 1494-1495, 252 Cal. Rptr. 67 (denial of certification of proposed class of vicariously liable defendants because primarily liable defendant had sufficient insurance to satisfy liability)]. Because defendant class actions involve the serious danger of fraudulent or calculated selection of defendants who might not fully and fairly represent the interests of the class, a defendant class should be certified and a defendant class action tried only after the most careful scrutiny is given to preserving the safeguards of adequate representation, notice, and standing. Failure to ensure any one of these essentials will require reversal of a judgment against the defendant class [Simons v. Horowitz (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 834, 844-845, 199 Cal. Rptr. 134]. To use the class action procedure to sue a group of defendants, a plaintiff must have actually been injured by each defendant in the class [Simons v. Horowitz (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 834, 845, 199 Cal. Rptr. 134].

A class action against a class of defendants for declaratory relief is improper if no affirmative relief is sought against the class members, and the class members have no power to grant any affirmative relief. In one case, for example, a landlord that had unsuccessfully sought authority for a rent increase from a county rent control board brought a proceeding for mandate and for declaratory relief against the rent control board. In the declaratory relief action, the plaintiff landlord also sought to join as defendants four tenants who had spoken in opposition to the proposed rent increase during proceedings before the board. The four tenants were named both as individual defendants and as representatives of a class consisting of all of the plaintiff's tenants. The court of appeal affirmed the dismissal of the action as to the tenants following the trial court's sustaining of their demurrers. The court held that the tenants could not be made parties to the action because they had no power to grant plaintiff the relief it sought (i.e., approval for the rent increase). The court further reasoned that to permit the plaintiff to make the tenants unwilling parties to an action in which no affirmative relief was sought against them and to require them to represent the interests of all similarly situated tenants would have a chilling effect on the provision of the rent control ordinance that permitted interested parties to participate in rent increase hearings [see Pinnacle Holdings, Inc. v. Simon (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1430, 1436-1437, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 778].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersDefendantsCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsGeneral Overview

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.17

§ 120.17 General Procedural Issues in Class Actions

[1] Applicability of Consumer Legal Remedies Act and Federal Procedures

Procedural rules for the management of class actions in California trial courts are set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.760 et seq. The rules apply in class actions brought under Code Civ. Proc. § 382 (authorizing class actions generally) and in class actions brought under the Consumers Legal Remedies Act [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.760(a); see Civ. Code § 1750 et seq. (Consumers Legal Remedies Act)].

As to matters not covered by the California Rules of Court, the statutory procedures for class actions under the Consumers Legal Remedies Act [see Civ. Code § 1781] and the rule governing class actions in federal courts, Fed. R. Civ. P. 23, may be used as procedural guidelines to ensure fairness in class action suits generally [see Richmond v. Dart Industries, Inc. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 462, 469-470 n.7, 174 Cal. Rptr. 515, 629 P.2d 23 ; see also B.W.I. Custom Kitchen v. Owens-Illinois, Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1341, 1347, 235 Cal. Rptr. 228 ; for discussion of procedure under the Consumers Legal Remedies Act, see Ch. 504, Sales: Consumers Legal Remedies Act]. Absent controlling California authority, federal cases construing Fed. R. Civ. P. 23 are particularly persuasive authority if the California rule involved is identical to the rule construed in the federal case [Danzig v. Superior Court (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 604, 610, 151 Cal. Rptr. 185].

For thorough coverage of certification procedure, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Ch. 6, Class Certification Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

[2] Statute of Limitations

Under Fed. R. Civ. P. 23, the timely filing of a class action suit tolls the statute of limitations for all members of the purported class until the final determination regarding the propriety of class certification is made [American Pipe & Construction Co. v. Utah (1974) 414 U.S. 538, 553-554, 94 S. Ct. 756, 38 L. Ed. 2d 713].This rule has been held to apply to class actions filed under Code Civ. Proc. § 382 [Bangert v. Narmco Materials, Inc. (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 207, 210-212, 209 Cal. Rptr. 438 ; but see Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 1125-1126, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923 (questioning application of rule)].

One court of appeal has held that the federal rule regarding tolling of the statute of limitations applies to a class member who opts out of a previously filed federal class action. Thus, the statute of limitations on the former class member's individual state-law cause of action is tolled from the date of filing until the date that the class member opts out of the class action, whether the class member opts out before or after the class is certified [see San Francisco Unified School Dist. v. W.R. Grace & Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1318, 1336-1340, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305].

For thorough coverage of the effect of a class action on statutes of limitation, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Ch. 10, Effect of Class Action on Statutes of Limitation (Matthew Bender).

Under the Class Action Fairness Act of 2005 (CAFA), the limitations periods on any claims asserted in a "mass action" that is removed to federal court based on minimal diversity are tolled while the action is pending in federal court [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(11)(D)].

For discussion of the treatment of "mass actions" under CAFA, see § 120.13[4].

[3] Personal Jurisdiction Over Nonresidents

A forum state may exercise jurisdiction over the claim of an absent class action plaintiff, even though the plaintiff may not possess the minimum contacts with the forum that would support personal jurisdiction over a defendant. This is because the Due Process Clause [U.S. Const., amend. XIV] does not afford absent class plaintiffs as much protection from state-court jurisdiction as it does absent defendants in nonclass actions. Nevertheless, if the forum state wishes to bind an absent plaintiff concerning a claim for money damages or similar relief at law, it must provide minimal procedural due process protection. The plaintiff must receive notice and an opportunity either to be heard and participate in the litigation or to remove himself or herself from the class [Phillips Petroleum Co. v. Shutts (1985) 472 U.S. 797, 811-812, 105 S. Ct. 2965, 86 L. Ed. 2d 628]. For discussion of the broad principles of jurisdiction, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances .

A stricter rule applies if the case involves out-of-state defendants and events governed by the laws of another state. Thus, a trial court's assumption of jurisdiction over a class action brought by season ticket holders against the National Football League franchises and involving out-of-state claimants, out-of-state defendants, and a dispute governed by foreign law and about which California had no interest was held to be an abuse of discretion [Baltimore Football Club, Inc. v. Superior Court (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 352, 364-365, 215 Cal. Rptr. 323] .

[4] Dismissal of Action

A dismissal of an entire class action, or of any party or cause of action in a class action, requires court approval. The court may not grant a request to dismiss a class action if the court has entered judgment following final approval of a settlement. A request for dismissal must be accompanied by a declaration setting forth the facts on which the party relies. The declaration must clearly state whether consideration, direct or indirect, is being given for the dismissal and must describe the consideration in detail [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.770(a); see § 120.57 (form of declaration)].

The court may grant the request without a hearing. If the request is disapproved, notice of tentative disapproval must be sent to the attorneys of record. Within 15 calendar days of the service of the notice, any party may seek a hearing on the request. If no hearing is sought within that period, the request for dismissal will be deemed denied [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.770(b)].

If the court dismisses an action after certifying a class, and notice of the pendency of the action has been provided to class members, notice of the dismissal must be given to the class in the manner specified by the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.770(c); see La Sala v. American Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 864, 872-873, 97 Cal. Rptr. 849, 489 P.2d 1113 (if class action is dismissed because named plaintiffs are not suitable representatives and plaintiff class has not redefined class or added new and suitable named plaintiffs, dismissal requires prior notice to class; decided before adoption of predecessor of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.770(c)); see also Simons v. Horowitz (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 834, 841-843, 199 Cal. Rptr. 134]. If the court has not ruled on class certification, or if notice of the pendency of the action has not been provided to class members in a case in which such notice was required, notice of the proposed dismissal may be given in the manner and to those class members specified by the court, or the action may be dismissed without notice to the class members if the court finds that the dismissal will not prejudice them [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.770(c)].

For further discussion of the dismissal of class actions, see Cabraser, California Class Actions and Coordinated Proceedings (Second Edition), Ch. 6, Class Certification Procedure (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Antitrust & Trade LawConsumer ProtectionDeceptive Acts & PracticesState RegulationCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsMinimum ContactsCivil ProcedureClass ActionsJudicial DiscretionCivil ProcedureDismissalsInvoluntary DismissalsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTolling

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.18

§ 120.18 Procedure to Certify Class Action

[1] Burden on Party Seeking Class Certification

A determination that an action may proceed as a class action is ordinarily made early in the proceedings, pursuant to the plaintiff's motion to certify the class action or the defendant's motion to declare the class action inappropriate [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764; but see In re BCBG Overtime Cases (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1293, 1299, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 257 (that either party may initiate class-certification process); see also § 120.51]. At the certification hearing, the named plaintiff has the burden of proving that the requirements for maintenance of a class action are satisfied [Occidental Land, Inc. v. Superior Court (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 355, 360, 134 Cal. Rptr. 388, 556 P.2d 750 ; see Stephens v. Montgomery Ward & Co. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 411, 418, 238 Cal. Rptr. 602].

The plaintiff's motion to certify the class action [see § 120.51], or a sua sponte motion of the court to certify the class action, must be a noticed motion, subject to the right of an opposing party to submit evidence in opposition [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764(c) (format and filing of motion and opposition)]. Each party should have an opportunity to conduct discovery for purposes of the motion [Carabini v. Superior Court (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 239, 241-244, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 520 (evidence presumably would be presented in form of declarations or affidavits; court indicated it was not suggesting that trial court is required to hear testimony)].

To obtain certification of a class action, a party must establish the existence of both an ascertainable class and a well-defined community of interest among the class members [Linder v. Thrifty Oil Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 429, 435, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179, 2 P.3d 27 ; see § 120.12]. The showing required in a plaintiff's motion to certify a class action is within the discretion of the trial court, provided that the court applies the correct criteria [Occidental Land, Inc. v. Superior Court (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 355, 361, 134 Cal. Rptr. 388, 556 P.2d 750 ; Stephens v. Montgomery Ward & Co. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 411, 418, 238 Cal. Rptr. 602]. Expert evidence may be offered to establish that the requirements for class treatment are met, provided that the expert opinion is based on relevant, probative facts, as opposed to mere guess work, surmise, or conjecture [In re Cipro Cases I & II (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 402, 411-412, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1].

The party seeking class certification need only present substantial evidence that the class requirements are met.

However, there is no rule that conflicting evidence or inferences must be disregarded. Thus, the trial court may consider the totality of the evidence offered by both sides in making its discretionary determination of whether substantial evidence supports class certification [Quacchia v. DaimlerChrysler Corp. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1442, 1447-1448, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 508].

The plaintiff is not required to prove the existence and identity of the members of the class at the certification stage of the proceedings [Stephens v. Montgomery Ward & Co. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 411, 419, 238 Cal. Rptr. 602].

For thorough coverage of certification procedure, see Cabraser, California Class Actions and Coordinated Proceedings (Second Edition), Ch. 6, Class Certification Procedure (Matthew Bender).

[2] Timing of Certification

A motion for class certification should be filed when practicable [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764(b)], and the propriety of permitting the action to proceed as a class action should be decided at an early stage of the proceedings [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.762, 3.763 (case conference)]. Any such deadline must take into account discovery proceedings that may be necessary to the filing of the motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764(b)]. Indeed, it is an abuse of discretion for the court to decide whether class action treatment is appropriate without giving the parties a full opportunity to conduct discovery on class-certification issues and to brief the issues and present evidence [Stern v. Superior Court (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 223, 232-233, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 275 ; see In re BCBG Overtime Cases (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1293, 1300-1301, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 257 (trial court did not err in granting motion to strike class allegations 22 months after filing of plaintiffs' coordinated complaint, since discovery on class-certification issues "had been going on for some time, although plaintiffs' efforts had apparently been thwarted by adverse rulings from the court"); but see Dukes v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (9th Cir. 2010) 603 F.3d 571, 600 (en banc) (trial court has discretion to cut off discovery to avoid mini-trial on merits at certification stage)].

Ordinarily, certification of the class action must occur before trial of the substantive issues in the case [Home Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Superior Court (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 1006, 1014, 117 Cal. Rptr. 485 ; see Civ. Code § 1781(c)(1) (provision for certification determination under Consumers Legal Remedies Act); see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(c)(1)(A) (certification determination to be made "at an early practicable time" in federal case)]. The purpose of resolving procedural class-certification issues first is to protect the defendant from "one-way intervention," under which potential class members could elect to stay in the class after a favorable merits ruling but opt out after an unfavorable merits ruling [see Fireside Bank v. Superior Court (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 1069, 1074, 1081, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 861, 155 P.3d 268] . It has even been said that the defendant has a due-process right to avoid one-way intervention [Fireside Bank v. Superior Court (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 1069, 1083, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 861, 155 P.3d 268 ; Home Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Superior Court (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 208, 214, 126 Cal. Rptr. 511] . The general requirement that procedural class-certification issues be resolved first is not rigid, however, and is subject to the following rules [Fireside Bank v. Superior Court (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 1069, 1083, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 861, 155 P.3d 268] :

- First, a defendant must actively preserve its protection against one-way intervention by objecting to any adjudication of the merits before class certification. If the defendant fails to timely object, or affirmatively seeks resolution of the merits before certification, it will be deemed to have waived its rights [see, e.g., Employment Development Dept. v. Superior Court (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 256, 262, 262-265, 178 Cal. Rptr. 612, 636 P.2d 575 ; Civil Service Employees Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 362, 373-374, 149 Cal. Rptr. 360, 584 P.2d 497 ; Colwell Co. v. Superior Court (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 32, 34-35, 123 Cal. Rptr. 228] .

- Second, plaintiffs should seek certification before moving for any resolution of the merits [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764(b) ("A motion for class certification should be filed when practicable")]. If the plaintiffs seek certification after seeking resolution of the merits, then in the absence of a waiver by the defendant, they must demonstrate changed circumstances or other good cause justifying the belated motion before the trial court may consider it.

- Third, in the absence of a waiver by the defendant, the trial court should not resolve the merits in a putative class action before resolving class certification and notice issues, absent a compelling justification for doing so (such as when the plaintiff makes a belated motion for class certification based on a change in circumstances occurring after a merits determination).

For further discussion of the timing of class certification, see Cabraser, California Class Actions and Coordinated Proceedings (Second Edition), Ch. 6, Class Certification Procedure (Matthew Bender).

[3] Altering or Amending Certification

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(c)(1)(C) provides that certification orders may be altered or amended before final judgment. This rule is applicable to class actions brought in state court under Code Civ. Proc. § 382 [Occidental Land, Inc. v. Superior Court (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 355, 360, 134 Cal. Rptr. 388, 556 P.2d 750].

[4] Certification Decision Does Not Address Substantive Merits

The question of certification is essentially a procedural one that does not ask whether an action is legally or factually meritorious [Linder v. Thrifty Oil Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 429, 439-440, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179, 2 P.3d 27]. However, determining whether the requirements for class certification are met will sometimes require looking behind the pleadings to issues overlapping with the merits of the underlying claims [Dukes v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (9th Cir. 2010) 603 F.3d 571, 594 (en banc) (determinations made at class certification stage do not bind court on merits as litigation progresses)].

Certification of a class generally should not be conditioned on a showing that the class claims for relief are likely to prevail [Linder v. Thrifty Oil Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 429, 442-443, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179, 2 P.3d 27]. The rule against evaluating the merits of the plaintiff's claims in deciding whether class treatment is appropriate does not mean that a trial court must deny certification because it cannot reach the merits; rather, the court must evaluate whether the theory of recovery advanced by the plaintiff is likely to prove amenable to class treatment [Ghazaryan v. Diva Limousine, Ltd. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 1524, 1531, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 518].

Early disposition on the merits should, if possible, be accomplished by means of proceedings designed for that purpose, such as proceedings on demurrer or dispositive pretrial motions [see Linder v. Thrifty Oil Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 429, 443, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179, 2 P.3d 27 ; see also § 120.20[1]].

Trial courts do retain flexibility in class action proceedings, and a court may consider the merits of an action in a certification proceeding in an exceptional case, if the defense has no other reasonable pretrial means to challenge the merits of a claim to be asserted by a proposed class. In such a situation the trial court must first give the parties notice and an opportunity to brief the merits, and after doing so the court may deny class certification because the claim lacks merit as a matter of law. The court may also consider the merits in a certification proceeding if the parties jointly request that it do so [Linder v. Thrifty Oil Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 429, 443, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179, 2 P.3d 27 ; see, e.g., Conley v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 260, 268, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 719 (on appeal from denial of class certification, court of appeal addressed merits of putative class's claim "because the parties have requested that we do so for their further guidance, and because the issue raised is one of continuing importance")].

[5] Appellate Review of Certification Decision

[a] Final-Judgment Rule

To prevent piecemeal litigation through appeals from orders that dispose of less than an entire action, the "final judgment rule," as codified in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1 and 904.2, generally allows an appeal only from a final judgment or from an order that has been expressly made appealable by statute [see Stephen v. Enterprise Rent-A-Car (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 806, 811, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130]. An order denying certification is not made appealable by statute. It is, however, appealable if it is deemed by the courts to be equivalent to a final judgment. Thus, the denial of certification to an entire class is an appealable order [Linder v. Thrifty Oil Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 429, 435, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179, 2 P.3d 27 (citing Richmond v. Dart Industries, Inc. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 462, 470, 174 Cal. Rptr. 515 and Daar v. Yellow Cab Co. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 695, 698-699, 63 Cal. Rptr. 724, 433 P.2d 732)]. An appeal is allowed in such a case under the "death knell" doctrine, because the denial of class certification is "tantamount to a dismissal of the action as to all members of the class other than plaintiff," effectively sounding the "death knell" of the action as to the putative class members [Farwell v. Sunset Mesa Property Owners Assn., Inc. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1545, 1547, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 666 (quoting Daar); Stephen v. Enterprise Rent-A-Car (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 806, 811, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130 (quoting Daar); but see Haro v. City of Rosemead (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1067, 1078, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 874 (denial of class certification in action for wages under Fair Labor Standards Act is not appealable because such action must proceed as collective opt-in action under 29 U.S.C. § 216(b) and rules specifically applicable to such actions; as matter of law such action cannot proceed as class action)].

In contrast, an order denying class certification that does not dispose of all the causes of action between the parties is not appealable until final judgment. For example, an order sustaining a demurrer but granting leave to amend is not appealable under the "death knell" doctrine, because it does not have the effect of terminating the class action, since the complaint can be amended in a way that would permit class certification [Farwell v. Sunset Mesa Property Owners Assn., Inc. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1545, 1551-1552, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 666]. In these cases, however, review by writ of mandate has generally been available [see Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 820-821, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964 ; Rosack v. Volvo of America Corp. (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 741, 748-749, 182 Cal. Rptr. 800 ; see also [b], below]. Similarly, an order granting class certification but limiting or restricting the class is not immediately appealable, because it can be fully reviewed on appeal from a final judgment on the class claims [Estrada v. RPS, Inc. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 976, 985-986, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 261 (order dismissing putative class members who failed to respond to questionnaires designed to help ascertain class is class-certification decision that is not appealable until final judgment)].

An order certifying a statewide, rather than a national, class has also been held to be not appealable in that this type of order does not have a "death knell" effect of making further proceedings in the action impractical because of the denial of class action status [In re Cipro Cases I & II (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 402, 409, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 (order certifying class is interlocutory and not appealable except after final judgment, but order is reviewable by petition for writ of mandate); General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 247, 250-251, 244 Cal. Rptr. 776 ; but see Van de Kamp v. Bank of America (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 819, 866-867, 251 Cal. Rptr. 530 (order sustaining demurrer to complaint held to be appealable to extent that it alleged statewide rather than nationwide class); Clothesrigger, Inc. v. GTE Corp. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 605, 609-611, 619, 236 Cal. Rptr. 605 (refusal to certify nationwide class reversed on appeal without discussion of whether order was appealable)].

For further discussion of appellate review of class certification decisions, see Cabraser, California Class Actions and Coordinated Proceedings (Second Edition), Ch. 6, Class Certification Procedure (Matthew Bender).

[b] Mandate Review of Interlocutory Orders

Interlocutory (i.e., nonfinal) orders concerning class certification that do not dispose of the entire action or have the effect of a "death knell," are reviewable by mandate and prohibition proceedings [Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. v. Superior Court (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 758, 763, 259 Cal. Rptr. 789]. Generally, if the trial court's order permits the class action to proceed, that order is reviewable by mandate and prohibition proceedings [see Chance v. Superior Court (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 275, 278, 23 Cal. Rptr. 761, 373 P.2d 849]. For example, a mandate proceeding is appropriate to review an order that dismisses one of several class causes of action but allows the others to stand [Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 806-807, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964].

For a form of a mandate petition, see § 120.56.

[c] Standard of Review

Because trial courts are ideally situated to evaluate the efficiencies and practicalities of permitting group action, they are afforded great discretion in granting or denying certification. In the absence of other error, a trial court order ruling on certification, if supported by substantial evidence, will not be disturbed unless the trial court used improper criteria or erroneous legal assumptions [Sav-on Drug Stores, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 319, 339 n.10, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 906, 96 P.3d 194 (reviewing court is not authorized to overturn certification order merely because it finds record evidence of predominance of common issues less than determinative or conclusive; relevant question on review is whether such evidence is substantial)]. Conversely, if such an order is based on improper criteria or incorrect assumptions, it is subject to reversal even though there may otherwise be substantial evidence to support it. In examining the trial court's reasons for denying certification, any valid pertinent reason stated by the trial court will be sufficient for the reviewing court to uphold the order [Linder v. Thrifty Oil Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 429, 435-436, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179, 2 P.3d 27 ; see also Schneider v. Vennard (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1340, 1345, 228 Cal. Rptr. 800]. The appellate court will not consider the merits of the case but will restrict its inquiry to whether the plaintiff met his or her burden of establishing the requirements for a class action [Stephens v. Montgomery Ward & Co. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 411, 418, 238 Cal. Rptr. 602].

[6] Decertification of Class

If a change of circumstances occurring after a class has been certified calls into question the appropriateness of continuing the action as a class action, a motion to decertify the class action may be brought [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764(a)(4); Danzig v. Jack Grynberg & Associates (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 1128, 1136, 208 Cal. Rptr. 336]. The trial court has the power to decertify a class if it appears individual issues dominate in the action or that a class action is otherwise not an appropriate vehicle for adjudicating the controversy [see MacManus v. A. E. Realty Partners (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1106, 1117, 241 Cal. Rptr. 315]. The showing required for a decertification order is within the trial court's discretion, if the court applies the proper certification criteria [see § 120.12] and its action has a rational basis [Grogan-Beall v. Ferdinand Roten Galleries, Inc. (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 969, 975, 184 Cal. Rptr. 411].

Ordinarily, a decertification motion must be brought before a decision is rendered on the merits of the action [Danzig v. Jack Grynberg & Associates (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 1128, 1136, 208 Cal. Rptr. 336]. A decertification motion may be entertained after a decision on the merits, however, if the motion is based on changed circumstances and the moving party adduces new evidence that became available only after the merits of the case were decided [Green v. Obledo (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 126, 148, 172 Cal. Rptr. 206, 624 P.2d 256].

The court should afford the plaintiff class the opportunity to amend the complaint to redefine the class or to add new individual plaintiffs, or both, prior to decertifying the class and dismissing the class action [La Sala v. American Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 864, 872, 97 Cal. Rptr. 849, 489 P.2d 1113 ; see § 120.15[5]].

A mandate proceeding, rather than an appeal, is the appropriate proceeding to review an order denying a motion to decertify a class [see Occidental Land, Inc. v. Superior Court (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 355, 359, 134 Cal. Rptr. 388, 556 P.2d 750 ; see also Green v. Obledo (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 126, 149 n.18, 172 Cal. Rptr. 206, 624 P.2d 256 (order for partial decertification as not appealable if portion of class that was decertified was not separate and distinct from portion that remained in case, and, therefore, cross appeal from final judgment on that issue was both proper and timely); see also [5][a], above].

For further coverage of decertification, see Cabraser, California Class Actions and Coordinated Proceedings (Second Edition), Ch. 6, Class Certification Procedure (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersNamed MembersCivil ProcedureClass ActionsJudicial DiscretionCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesCommonalityEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsBurdens of ProofGeneral Overview

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.19

§ 120.19 Notice Requirements

[1] When Notice Is Required

If a class is certified, the court may require either party to notify the class of the action in the manner specified by the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766(a); see Civ. Code § 1781(d), (e) (notice requirements under Consumers Legal Remedies Act)]. On certification of the class, or as soon thereafter as practicable, the court must make an order determining whether notice is necessary, and if so, the time, manner, and content of the notice, and the parties responsible for the cost of notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766(c); see Hernandez v. Vitamin Shoppe Indus. Inc. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1441, 1454-1461, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 734 (trial court did not abuse its discretion by enjoining class member's attorney from unilaterally contacting other class members, after attorney sent argumentative letters to class members urging them to opt out of class, after court had reviewed proposed settlement and counsel's arguments, preliminarily approved settlement and conditionally certified class, and ordered claims administrator to send notice to class)]. By requiring the court to determine whether notice to class members is necessary, Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766(c)(1) implies that the court may decide not to require class notice. Before the adoption of the predecessor of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766, which applies to all class actions, the California Supreme Court had held that Civ. Code § 1781(d), (e), which requires class notice in class actions under the Consumers Legal Remedies Act, was generally applicable to other class actions in California [Civil Service Employees Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 362, 376, 149 Cal. Rptr. 360, 584 P.2d 497]. Presumably, that holding has been superseded by the subsequent adoption of Rule 3.766, and the trial court may now decide to forgo class notice in an appropriate case.

In deciding whether notice is necessary, the court may look to the rule governing class actions in federal courts for guidance [see Richmond v. Dart Industries, Inc. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 462, 469-470 n.7, 174 Cal. Rptr. 515, 629 P.2d 23]. Under Fed. Rule Civ. P., Rule 23, notice is required if the class action is based on predominant common questions of law or fact, but not if the action seeks injunctive or declaratory relief or is based on the need to avoid inconsistent or varying adjudications, incompatible standards of conduct for the party opposing the class, or adjudications that would as a practical matter dispose of or impair the interests of nonparties [Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b), (c)(2)]. Doubts as to whether an action should be classified under the federal rule as requiring mandatory notice or permitting discretionary notice should be resolved in favor of discretionary notice [Frazier v. City of Richmond (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1491, 1501, 228 Cal. Rptr. 376].

For forms relating to approval of the notice, and a form of notice, see §§ 120.53 -120.55. For thorough coverage of notice requirements, see Cabraser, California Class Actions And Coordinated Proceedings (Second Edition), Ch. 8, Class Action Notice (Matthew Bender).

There is no general authorization for, or requirement of, pre-certification notice to prospective class members. However, if prospective class members' identifying information is disclosed in pre-certification discovery, it may be appropriate for the court to order that notice be provided to prospective class members so that they may take steps to protect their privacy [see, e.g., Pioneer Elecs. (USA) Inc. v. Superior Court (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 360, 373-375, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 513, 150 P.3d 198 (approving trial court's order to notify defendant's customers and giving them opportunity to object to transmission of their identifying information in discovery); Belaire-West Landscape, Inc., v. Superior Court (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 554, 561-562, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 197 (in employees' putative class action alleging wage violations, trial court properly conditioned discovery of potential class members' names and contact information on pre-certification notice that gave potential class members chance to prevent disclosure of their information by opting out of class action)].

If class certification has been denied, the trial court cannot order notification of former potential class members of their possible legal claims. After a class-certification motion has been denied, the plaintiff represents himself or herself only, not putative class members; moreover, in non-class litigation, it is not the court's role to order notification to third parties of their possible legal claims [Experian Info. Solutions, Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 122, 131-132, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 219].

[2] Content of Notice

The format and content of the notice are to be regulated by the trial court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766(d); Gainey v. Occidental Land Research (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1051, 1057-1058, 231 Cal. Rptr. 249 ; Frazier v. City of Richmond (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1491, 1499-1503, 228 Cal. Rptr. 376]. One of the purposes of the court's supervisory role is to assure that the notice be "neutral and objective in tone, neither promoting nor discouraging the assertion of claims" [Gainey v. Occidental Land Research (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1051, 1057-1058, 231 Cal. Rptr. 249].

If the court decides that class members are to be given the right to request exclusion from the class [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766(c)(2) (on certification of class, as soon thereafter as practicable, court must determine whether class members may exclude themselves)], the notice must include all of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766(d)]:

- A brief explanation of the case, including the basic contentions or denials of the parties;
- A statement that the court will exclude the member from the class if the member so requests by a specified date;
- A procedure for the member to follow in requesting exclusion from the class;
- A statement that the judgment, whether favorable or not, will bind all members who do not request exclusion; and
- A statement that any member who does not request exclusion may, if the member so desires, enter an appearance through counsel.

For forms relating to approval of the notice, and a form of notice, see §§ 120.53 -120.55.

[3] Method of Giving Notice

In determining the manner of the notice, the court must consider all of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766(e)]:

- The interests of the class;
- The type of relief requested;
- The stake of the individual class members;
- The cost of notifying class members;
- The resources of the parties;
- The possible prejudice to class members who do not receive notice; and
- The res judicata effect on class members.

If personal notification is unreasonably expensive or the stake of individual class members is insubstantial, or if it appears that all members of the class cannot be notified personally, the court may order a means of notice reasonably calculated to apprise the class members of the pendency of the action. In such a case, for example, appropriate means of notice may consist of publication in a newspaper or magazine; broadcasting on television, radio, or the Internet; or posting or distribution through a trade or professional association, union, or public interest group [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766(d)].

The foregoing list of possibilities is not exclusive; the court has substantial room for creativity in designing an effective means of notifying class members. For example, although it is ordinarily the plaintiff's responsibility to provide the notice and bear the expense of doing so, the court has discretion to require the defendant to provide or pay for notice if the defendant's conduct has unnecessarily complicated the problems of identifying and notifying the class, or if the defendant possesses the ability to provide class notice easily and at little cost [Hypertouch, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 1551-1555, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 839].

The difficulty of notifying individual class members does not authorize the court to require that class members--even those with a substantial stake in the case--acknowledge personal notification by affirmatively requesting inclusion in the class. Such an "opt-in" procedure is permitted only after liability has been determined, as a means of apportioning the class's recovery [Hypertouch, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 1542 n.5, 1546-1547 nn.9, 10 (after liability is determined, court may require class members to establish their entitlement to portions of recovery by filing proofs of claim)]. However, before the determination of liability, an "opt-in" procedure is not required by constitutional due-process principles [Hypertouch, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 1537-1543, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 839 (difficulty of providing notice may be reason to deny class certification, but once class is certified, due process does not require use of opt-in procedure to limit class to those who have received actual notice)], and it is not permitted by the applicable federal or California court rules, which require only the best notice practicable under the circumstances [Hypertouch, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 1544-1550, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 839 ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(c)(2); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766(f)].

In contrast, the federal Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) expressly requires that additional plaintiffs may opt into an action seeking unpaid minimum wages or overtime compensation [29 U.S.C. § 216(b)]. Such an action is termed a "collective action," as opposed to a class action, and it is governed by rules specifically applicable to such actions, rather than by federal or state statutes and rules that govern true class actions [Haro v. City of Rosemead (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1067, 1074-1077, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 874 (FLSA actions, which are predicated on additional plaintiffs opting in, are not class actions and, in California courts, are not governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 382 or Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.760 et seq.)].

For forms relating to approval of the notice, and a form of notice, see §§ 120.53 -120.55.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Antitrust & Trade LawConsumer ProtectionDeceptive Acts & PracticesState RegulationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsNotices

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.20

§ 120.20 Attacking Class Actions

[1] Motions for Pretrial Disposition

The California Supreme Court has indicated that it is appropriate to weed out meritless class action claims at the pretrial stage through the use of demurrer proceedings or pretrial dispositive motions [Linder v. Thrifty Oil Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 429, 440-441, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179, 2 P.3d 27].

A class action may properly be disposed of by demurrer if the complaint on its face fails to allege facts sufficient to establish a community of interest in the elements of the class claims. An evidentiary hearing on the issue of certification under these circumstances would be a waste of time and judicial resources [Clausing v. San Francisco Unified School Dist. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1224, 1234, 271 Cal. Rptr. 72 ; see also Linder v. Thrifty Oil Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 429, 440-441, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179, 2 P.3d 27 (may be more appropriate to mount pretrial challenge to merits of class action by demurrer or dispositive motion than by challenge on the merits in pretrial certification proceeding); Alvarez v. May Dept. Stores Co. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1231, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 892 (it is generally proper at pleading stage to strike class allegations if face of complaint and other matters subject to judicial notice reveal invalidity of class allegations)].

Some courts have indicated that demurrers to class actions are disfavored in California [see Arce v. Kaiser Found. Health Plan, Inc. (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 471, 487, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 545 ("It is often premature for a trial court to make determinations pertaining to class suitability on demurrer"); Prince v. CLS Transp., Inc. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1320, 1325-1328, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 725 (apparently inconsistent cases can be reconciled if facts reveal that only in mass tort actions, or other actions equally unsuited to class-action treatment, should class suitability be determined at pleading stage; in other cases, e.g., wage and hour claims, class suitability should not be determined by demurrer)]. California's judicial policy is to allow potential class-action plaintiffs to have their actions measured on their merits to determine whether trying their suits as class actions will bestow the required benefits on litigants and the judicial process to justify class action litigation.

Absent a strong factual showing that negates the possibility of amending the complaint to plead a class action that will survive a demurrer [see, e.g., Newell v. State Farm General Ins. Co. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1101-1106, 13

Cal. Rptr. 3d 343 (in action against homeowners' insurance carriers regarding claims for policy benefits for earthquake damage, plaintiffs could not possibly satisfy requirements for class treatment because ability of each member of putative class to recover clearly depended on individual and separate sets of facts)], all that is normally required for a complaint to survive a demurrer to the propriety of class litigation is that the complaint allege facts that tend to show an ascertainable class of plaintiffs and questions of law and fact that are common to the class [Prince v. CLS Transp., Inc. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1320, 1325-1326, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 725 ; Beckstead v. Superior Court (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 780, 783-784, 98 Cal. Rptr. 779]. If there is a reasonable possibility that the named plaintiff can establish the requisite community of interest among the members of the class, the preferred course is to defer a decision on the propriety of the class action until an evidentiary hearing has been held [Arce v. Kaiser Found. Health Plan, Inc. (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 471, 487, 496, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 545 (because there was reasonable possibility that plaintiff could demonstrate predominance of common issues, trial court erred in sustaining demurrer); Brown v. Regents of University of California (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 982, 988, 198 Cal. Rptr. 916]. If there is a real and genuine dispute over whether the complaint alleges facts sufficient to establish the elements necessary for maintenance of a class action, the trial court may not summarily dispose of the demurrer. Instead, before the court makes a ruling, the parties are entitled to an oral hearing [TJX Cos., Inc. v. Superior Court (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 747, 749-754, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810 (party who demurs to complaint is entitled to oral hearing unless issues are so obvious and well-settled that oral argument would amount to empty gesture)].

Other dispositive motions would include, for example, motions for summary judgment and motions to strike. Such proceedings, the California Supreme Court has held, are generally the preferred way to raise merit-based challenges to class actions, as distinguished from raising such challenges in a pretrial certification proceeding [Linder v. Thrifty Oil Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 429, 440-441, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179, 2 P.3d 27]. For discussion of exceptional cases in which it may be proper to address merit-based challenges in certification proceedings, see § 120.18[4]. For example, a motion to strike is proper to have class suit allegations stricken from the complaint [see Stilson v. Reader's Digest Assn. (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 270, 273-275, 104 Cal. Rptr. 581]. A motion to strike may be combined with a demurrer [see Weaver v. Pasadena Tournament of Roses (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 833, 835, 198 P.2d 514 ; see also Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings . Ch. 375, Motions to Strike: Pleadings].

Important interests of fairness and efficiency sometimes may be served better if class causes of action are screened for legal sufficiency, via demurrer or pretrial dispositive motion, before the matter of certification is decided [Linder v. Thrifty Oil Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 429, 440, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179, 2 P.3d 27]. This does mean, however, that a trial court is required to hear merit-based challenges prior to certification; it retains the discretion to determine whether it is more appropriate in a given case to allow pretrial challenges on the merits before, or after, class certification proceedings [Linder v. Thrifty Oil Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 429, 443, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179, 2 P.3d 27].

[2] Appellate Review

An order sustaining a demurrer to the class action allegations of a complaint, without leave to amend, may be appealed. Such an order is tantamount to a dismissal of the action as to the unnamed class members. As such, it is in legal effect a final judgment [Prince v. CLS Transp., Inc. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1320, 1322 n.2, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 725 ; Brown v. Regents of University of California (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 982, 986 n.1, 198 Cal. Rptr. 916 ; see Van de Kamp v. Bank of America (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 819, 866-867, 251 Cal. Rptr. 530 (order sustaining demurrer to complaint to extent that it alleged statewide rather than nationwide class held to be appealable)]. For further coverage of the application of the final-judgment rule to rulings in class actions, see § 120.18[5][a].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to StrikeGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresClass ActionsAppellate

ReviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesCommonality

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.21

§ 120.21 Settlement of Class Actions

[1] Settlement in California Court

A settlement or compromise of an entire class action, or of a cause of action in a class action, or as to a party, requires the approval of the superior court after a hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.769(a); see Marcarelli v. Cabell (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 51, 53, 129 Cal. Rptr. 509 (named plaintiff in class action is not permitted to settle action without court approval)]. If the court has certified the action as a class action, notice of the final approval hearing must be given to the class members in the manner specified by the court [see Martorana v. Marlin & Saltzman (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 685, 694-698, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 172 (once court's order approving settlement notice procedure becomes final, class member may not maintain malpractice action against class counsel for failure to negotiate different settlement notice procedure or failure to give class member more notice than that required by judicially approved notice procedure)]. The notice must contain an explanation of the proposed settlement and procedures for class members to follow in filing written objections to it and in arranging to appear at the settlement hearing to state any objections to the proposed settlement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.769(f)]. The notice must include an unambiguous class definition, so that persons receiving the notice will be able to determine whether they are members of the class [Cho v. Seagate Tech. Holdings, Inc. (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 734, 745-748, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 436 (vacating order approving settlement so that trial court could provide unambiguous definition of class and renotice settlement)].

The trial court has broad discretion to determine whether a proposed settlement is fair and just [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.769(g) (before final approval, court must conduct inquiry into fairness of proposed settlement)]. In making this determination, the court should consider the following factors [7- Eleven Owners for Fair Franchising v. Southland Corp. (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1135, 1146, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777]:

- The strength of the plaintiffs' case;
- The risk, expense, complexity, and likely duration of further litigation;
- The risk of maintaining class-action status through the trial;

- The amount offered in settlement;
- The extent of discovery completed and the stage of the proceedings;
- The experience and views of counsel; and
- The reaction of the class members to the proposed settlement.

This list of factors is not exhaustive and should be tailored to each case. A presumption of fairness applies if the settlement has been reached under the following conditions [7- Eleven Owners for Fair Franchising v. Southland Corp. (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1135, 1146, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777]:

- There has been arm's-length bargaining;
- Investigation and discovery have been sufficient to allow counsel and the court to act intelligently;
- Counsel is experienced in similar litigation; and
- The percentage of class members who object to the settlement is small.

A class-action settlement should be scrutinized more carefully if the settlement has been proposed prior to an adversarial class-certification determination. This heightened scrutiny is required to adequately protect unnamed class members against fraud and collusion [Wershba v. Apple Computer, Inc. (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 224, 240, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 145].

As a general rule, settlements including broad general releases should be avoided [see Trotsky v. Los Angeles Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 134, 149, 121 Cal. Rptr. 637].

A "coupon" settlement (in which class members would receive a coupon, voucher, or discount that would partly defray the cost of making a new purchase of goods or services from the defendant) is not inherently suspect or improper. Thus, if the factors supporting a presumption of fairness are present, the fact that the settlement might be classified as a coupon settlement does not, by itself, overcome the presumption [see Chavez v. Netflix, Inc. (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 43, 53-55, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 413 (settlement in this case did not meet classic definition of coupon settlement, since class members were offered discount that did not require them to make new purchases)]. For discussion of the treatment of coupon settlements under the federal Class Action Fairness Act of 2005, see [2], below.

A person who opted out of the class action before the specified deadline is not barred by a settlement in that action from pursuing his or her own remedies against the class action defendant [Lemer v. Boise Cascade, Inc. (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 1, 7-9, 165 Cal. Rptr. 555].

For thorough coverage of class action settlements, see Cabraser, California Class Actions and Coordinated Proceedings (Second Edition), Ch. 14, Class Action Settlements (Matthew Bender).

[2] Consumer Protection in Federal Court

[a] Consumer Class Action Bill of Rights and Improved Procedures for Interstate Class Actions

The Class Action Fairness Act of 2005 (CAFA) includes the Consumer Class Action Bill of Rights and Improved Procedures for Interstate Class Actions [see 28 U.S.C. §§ 1711-1715]. This portion of CAFA, which applies to class actions filed in or removed to federal district court [see 28 U.S.C. § 1711(2); see also § 120.13 (federal jurisdiction over interstate class actions to federal court)], contains special requirements for attorney's fees and court approval of "coupon settlements," in which the class recovery consists of an award of coupons to class members [28 U.S.C. § 1712; see [b], [c], below], as well as other provisions designed to protect individual class members when a class action is settled [28 U.S.C. §§ 1713-1715; see [d], [e], below].

The Consumer Class Action Bill of Rights and Improved Procedures for Interstate Class Actions applies to any "proposed settlement," which is defined as an agreement regarding a class action that is subject to federal-court approval and that, if approved, would be binding on some or all class members [28 U.S.C. § 1711(6)]. Therefore, since court approval of a settlement is required only after class certification [Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(e)], these requirements are inapplicable to pre-certification settlements.

[b] Judicial Approval of Coupon Settlements

In a proposed settlement of a federal class action under which class members would be awarded coupons, the federal court may approve the settlement only after a hearing to determine whether, and making a written finding that, the settlement is fair, reasonable, and adequate for class members [28 U.S.C. § 1712(e)]. The court has discretion, on the motion of a party, to receive expert testimony on the actual value to the class members of the coupons that are redeemed [28 U.S.C. § 1712(d)]. The court, in its discretion, may also require that a proposed settlement agreement provide for the distribution of a portion of the value of unclaimed coupons to charitable or governmental organizations, as agreed to by the parties. The distribution and redemption of any proceeds to such organizations may not be used to calculate attorney's fees under the settlement [28 U.S.C. § 1712(e)].

PRACTICE TIP:

28 U.S.C. § 1712 does not define the term "coupon," but presumably it uses the term in its ordinary sense of offering a discount on a future purchase of an item or services from the entity offering the coupon [see Chavez v. Netflix, Inc. (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 43, 53, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 413 ("In a pure coupon settlement, the class members would receive a coupon, voucher, or discount that would partly defray the cost of making a new purchase of goods or services from the defendant.")]. There are also settlements that provide class members with certificates, sometimes for substantial amounts, that are redeemable for cash at face value. Indeed, there can be consumer class actions arising from the failure to honor coupons, in which complete relief is provided by requiring the defendant to honor the previously rejected coupons. Whether the latter two situations fit within this provision is a matter for future litigation.

28 U.S.C. § 1712(e) does not make clear whether it refers only to the grant of final approval, or whether it also refers to the grant of preliminary approval. It requires a hearing whether or not there are any objections to the proposed settlement, but its standard for approval does not represent any change in existing law. Section 1712(e) will discourage cy pres awards of unclaimed coupons by providing that cy pres awards will not be considered in calculating attorney's fees. However, this provision will encourage cy pres awards of unclaimed funds in all other settlements and judgments, because by implication the cy pres awards in non-coupon cases will bear their proportionate shares of the fees and expenses that made the awards possible. Commentary from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

For discussion of cy pres awards in general, see § 120.22. For further discussion of coupon settlements under CAFA, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Ch. 14, Class Action Settlements (Matthew Bender).

[c] Attorney's Fees in Coupon Settlements

If a tentative settlement in a federal class action provides for an award of coupons to class members, the portion of any attorney's fee award to class counsel that is attributable to the award of coupons must be based on the value to class members of the coupons that are actually redeemed [28 U.S.C. § 1712(a), (c)].

If a proposed settlement provides for an award of coupons to class members, and a portion of the award of coupons is not used to determine the attorney's fee to be paid to class counsel, any fee award must be based on the amount of time class counsel reasonably expended working on the action. Any fee under this provision is subject to court approval and must include an appropriate attorney's fee, if any, for obtaining equitable relief, including an injunction, if applicable. This provision does not prohibit the application of a lodestar with a multiplier method of determining attorney's fees [28 U.S.C. § 1712(b), (c)].

PRACTICE TIP:

28 U.S.C. § 1712(a) bases the fee award in a coupon settlement "on the value to class members of the coupons that are redeemed." One means of complying with this provision is to use some system to track the redemption of coupons by class members, to postpone the fee award until the end of the period in which class members can exercise coupons or to make the award in stages based on partial redemptions, and to award fees based on actual redemptions to date. Because 28 U.S.C. § 1712(d) expressly allows expert testimony "on the actual value to class members of the coupons that are redeemed," the statute also contemplates fee awards at the time of settlement, based on estimated redemption rates.

28 U.S.C. § 1712(b) and (c) explicitly recognize that different forms of relief may justify different approaches in the award of fees. A court is required to award fees for prospective relief that does not create a common fund, and the court may award a multiplier of the lodestar if such prospective relief is obtained. These provisions encourage plaintiffs' attorneys to seek such relief. Commentary from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

For further discussion of coupon settlements and attorney's fees under CAFA, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Ch. 14, Class Action Settlements (Matthew Bender).

[d] Judicial Approval of Other Settlements

The Consumer Class Action Bill of Rights and Improved Procedures for Interstate Class Actions contains two additional provisions that limit the federal court's power to approve settlements. If a proposed settlement would obligate any class member to pay sums to class counsel that would result in a net loss to the class member, the court may approve the settlement only if the court makes a written finding that nonmonetary benefits to the class member substantially outweigh the monetary loss [28 U.S.C. § 1713].

PRACTICE TIP:

By implication, 28 U.S.C. § 1713 may lend support to injunctive class actions for abatement of nuisances, particularly those injurious to health or that diminish the value of property, in which the court assesses class members for an appropriate amount to pay their shares of reasonable fees and costs in abating the nuisance. Commentary from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

For further discussion, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Ch. 14, Class Action Settlements (Matthew Bender).

Also, the federal court lacks authority to approve any proposed settlement that provides for the payment of greater sums to some class members than to others solely on the basis that the class members to whom the greater sums are to be paid are located in closer geographic proximity to the court [28 U.S.C. § 1714].

PRACTICE TIP:

Class-action practitioners are hard-pressed to think of cases in which awards were based on geographic proximity to the court. The legislative history does not identify a single case. Commentary from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

For further discussion, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Ch. 14, Class Action Settlements (Matthew Bender).

[e] Notice to Government Officials of Proposed Settlement

[i] General Notice Requirement

The Consumer Class Action Bill of Rights and Improved Procedures for Interstate Class Actions imposes special notice requirements for the settlement of federal class actions. Not later than 10 days after a proposed settlement of a class action is filed in federal court, each defendant that is participating in the proposed settlement must serve on the appropriate state official of each state in which a class member resides, and on the appropriate federal official, a notice of the proposed settlement [28 U.S.C. § 1715(b)]. For this purpose, the "appropriate state official" is the person in the state who has primary regulatory or supervisory responsibility with respect to the defendant, or who licenses or otherwise authorizes the defendant to conduct business in the state, if some or all of the matters alleged in the class action are subject to regulation by that person. If there is no primary regulator, supervisor, or licensing authority, or the matters alleged in the class action are not subject to regulation or supervision by that person, then the "appropriate state official" is the state's attorney general [28 U.S.C. § 1715(a)(2)]. The "appropriate federal official" in a case in which the defendant is a federal or state depository institution, a depository institution holding company, a foreign bank, or a nondepository institution subsidiary of the foregoing [see 12 U.S.C. § 1813], is the person who has the primary federal regulatory or supervisory responsibility with respect to the defendant, if some or all of the matters alleged in the class action are subject to regulation or supervision by that person [28 U.S.C. § 1715(a)(1)(B)]. In all other cases, the "appropriate federal official" is the Attorney General of the United States [28 U.S.C. § 1715(a)(1)(A)].

An order giving final approval of a proposed settlement may not be issued earlier than 90 days after the later of the dates on which the appropriate federal official and the appropriate state official are served with the required notice [28 U.S.C. § 1715(d)].

A class member generally may refuse to comply with, and may choose not to be bound by, a settlement agreement or consent decree, if the class member demonstrates that the required notice to the appropriate federal and state officials was not given [28 U.S.C. § 1715(e)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Defendants bear the workload burden of 28 U.S.C. § 1715, which requires them to identify the appropriate officials, gather the necessary papers and other information, determine the residence of class members, perform state-by-state calculations of the relief for class members, and make duplicate reports to the officials. Defendants also suffer the penalty for any mistakes in providing such notice: "opt outs" by any or all class members long after the time for normal "opt outs" has expired. The new provision governing coupon settlements does not impose any outer time limit on such "opt outs," and it does not expressly require a class member "opting out" to return the member's share of the settlement proceeds [see 28 U.S.C. § 1712(e); see also [b], above].

Section 1715 does not state what the notified officials are to do with this information. It creates no express statutory right of objection or intervention, but officials may feel that they are entitled to do something with the information and the 90-day stay, and they may seek to object or intervene in any case in which they see something they do not like, or in which it seems politically advantageous to do so. The real parties in interest may suffer from Section 1715's turning every settlement into a potential political football. Commentary from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

For further discussion, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Ch. 14, Class Action Settlements (Matthew Bender).

PRACTICE TIP:

Because final approval of a settlement is delayed until 90 days after the required notices have been given [see 28 U.S.C. § 1715(d)], plaintiffs' attorneys should negotiate for the proceeds to be placed in a trust account if that would not trigger adverse tax consequences for the fund, or to be held by the defendants if they are fiscally stable, with interest on the settlement fund to be paid to the class. Commentary from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

For further discussion, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Ch. 14, Class Action Settlements (Matthew Bender).

[ii] Notice Requirement If Defendant Is Depository Institution or Related Entity

If the defendant is a federal depository institution, a depository institution holding company, a foreign bank, or a non-depository institution subsidiary of the foregoing, the notice requirement is satisfied by serving the notice on the person who has the primary federal regulatory or supervisory responsibility with respect to the defendant, if some or all of the matters alleged in the class action are subject to regulation or supervision by that person. In such a case, notice need not be served on a state official [28 U.S.C. § 1715(c)(1)].

If the defendant is a state depository institution [see 12 U.S.C. § 1813(c)(5) ("state depository institution" defined)], the notice requirement is satisfied by serving the notice on the state bank supervisor [see 12 U.S.C. § 1813(r) ("state bank supervisor" defined)] of the state in which the defendant is incorporated or chartered, if some or all of the matters alleged in the class action are subject to regulation or supervision by that person, and on the appropriate Federal official [28 U.S.C. § 1715(c)(2)].

[iii] Contents of Notice to Appropriate Officials

The notice sent to the appropriate state and federal officials must include all of the following [28 U.S.C. § 1715(b)]:

- A copy of the complaint, any materials filed with the complaint, and any amended complaints (except these materials need not be served if they materials are made electronically available through the Internet and the notice explains how to get electronic access to the materials);

- Notice of any scheduled judicial hearing in the class action;

- Any proposed or final notification to class members of the proposed settlement and of class members' rights to request exclusion from the class action, or a statement that no such right exists;

- Any proposed or final class action settlement;

- Any settlement or other agreement contemporaneously made between class counsel and counsel for the defendants;

- Any final judgment or notice of dismissal;

- Any written judicial opinion relating to the settlement or hearing on the settlement; and

- In a notice sent to a state official, the names of class members (or, if providing names is not feasible, a reasonable estimate of the number of class members) who reside in that state, and the estimated proportionate share of the claims of those members to the entire settlement.

PRACTICE TIP:

The requirement that the notice include contemporaneous side agreements between class counsel and defense counsel [see 28 U.S.C. § 1715(b)(5)] might result in public disclosure of such agreements. There is no confidentiality provision in the statute, and it is not at all clear that the court has the power to impose confidentiality constraints on nonparties.

Ascertaining the class members who live in a state [see 28 U.S.C. § 1715(b)(7)] may be difficult to perform in advance of the filing of proof-of-claim forms. Mailed notices to class members are frequently returned undelivered, and their current addresses then must be researched and identified. Commentary from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

For further discussion, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Ch. 14, Class Action Settlements (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass CounselFeesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCompromisesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsJudicial DiscretionCivil ProcedureClass ActionsOpt-Out Provisions

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.22

§ 120.22 Assessment and Payment of Damages

[1] Fluid Recovery Method

In many class actions, particularly those involving consumer lawsuits, individual damages are too small to make traditional methods of proof worthwhile or feasible. Because it would be inequitable in such cases to permit defendants to retain their gains simply because their conduct harmed large numbers of people in small amounts instead of small numbers of people in large amounts, courts frequently use the cy pres or "fluid recovery" method to assess and distribute damages. The implementation of fluid recovery involves three steps [State v. Levi Strauss & Co. (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 460, 472-473, 479, 490, 224 Cal. Rptr. 605, 715 P.2d 564]:

(1) Payment of the defendant's total damage liability into a class fund;

(2) An opportunity for individual class members to collect their individual shares by proving their particular damages, usually under a lowered standard of proof; and

(3) Distribution of the residue [see [2], below].

Another acceptable manner of calculating damages that may be used in the trial court's sound discretion is to apply reliable statistical sampling methods to arrive at an average damage figure that can then be applied to each class member [Bell v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 715, 746-751, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 544 (reliable statistical inference may be basis for determining class damages for unpaid overtime compensation)].

Alternative methods of distributing damages in consumer class actions established by case law include (1) rollbacks of the defendant's prices, (2) escheat to a governmental body for either specified or general purposes, (3) establishment of a consumer trust fund, and (4) claimant fund sharing. In determining which method to employ, a court should consider all of the following [State v. Levi Strauss & Co. (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 460, 473, 224 Cal. Rptr. 605, 715 P.2d 564]:

- The amount of compensation provided to class members, including nonclaiming members;

- The proportion of class members sharing in the recovery;

- The extent to which benefits will "spill over" to nonclass members and the degree to which the spillover benefits will effectuate the purposes of the underlying substantive law; and

- The costs of administration.

Under appropriate circumstances, fluid recovery may result in the entire recovery being distributed to charitable, governmental, and nonprofit organizations, with no direct payments to any class member. Distribution of the recovery in this manner may be appropriate, for example, if the distribution and administration costs for class members' claims will exceed the recovery [In re Vitamin Cases (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 820, 826-832, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 425].

[2] Procedures for Distribution of Residue

Generally, before the entry of any judgment in a class action established pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 382, the court must determine the total amount that will be payable to all class members, if all class members are paid the amount to which they are entitled pursuant to the judgment. The court must then set a date on which the parties must report to the court the total amount that was actually paid to the class members [Code Civ. Proc. § 384(b)].

After the report is received, the court must amend the judgment to direct the defendant to pay the sum of the unpaid residue, plus interest on that sum at the legal rate of interest from the date of entry of the initial judgment, to one or more of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 384(b)]:

- Nonprofit organizations or foundations to support projects that will benefit the class or similarly situated persons, or that promote the law consistent with the objectives and purposes of the underlying cause of action;

- Child advocacy programs; and

- Nonprofit organizations providing civil legal services to the indigent.

The court must ensure that the distribution of any unpaid residue derived from multistate or national cases brought under California law provides substantial or commensurate benefit to California consumers [Code Civ. Proc. § 384(b)].

The foregoing statutory procedures for the distribution of the residue do not apply to any class action brought against any "public entity" or "public employee," as these terms are defined by statute [see Gov. Code §§ 811.2, 811.4]. Also, the statutory procedures for distribution of the residue do not abrogate any equitable cy pres remedy that may be available in any class action with regard to all or part of the residue [Code Civ. Proc. § 384(c)].

In enacting the statutory procedures for distribution of the residue, the Legislature intended to ensure that the unpaid residuals in class action litigation are distributed, to the extent possible, in a manner designed either to further the purposes of the underlying causes of action, or to promote justice for all Californians. The use of funds collected by the State Bar pursuant to this statutory procedure for these purposes has been declared by the Legislature to be in the public interest, a proper use of funds, and consistent with essential public and governmental purposes [Code Civ. Proc. § 384(a)].

These statutory distribution-of-residue procedures address only a situation in which a "residue" of a class settlement fund remains after the distribution to class members is completed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 384(b); see Cundiff v. Verizon Cal., Inc. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 718, 726-729, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 377 ("residue" subject to distribution under Code Civ. Proc. § 384(b) includes undeliverable or uncashed checks issued pursuant to "claims-made" settlement); see also [1], above]. Therefore, the procedures need not be followed in a case in which the court approves a settlement that provides for the distribution of the entire settlement fund to charitable, governmental, and nonprofit organizations. Such a settlement might be approved, for example, in a case in which the distribution and administration costs for class members' claims would exceed the recovery. In a case in which there is no direct distribution to class members, there would be no residue whose distribution was not disclosed in advance to the class, and the statutory residue-distribution procedures would have no application [In re Vitamin Cases (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 820, 826-832, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 425 (declining to interpret Code Civ. Proc. § 384 as requiring individual payments to class members in every case)].

Similarly, the foregoing statutory procedures are inapplicable to a judgment approving a settlement agreement that includes its own provisions for distribution of any unpaid residue. However, in such a case the trial court must scrutinize the agreement and approve it only after determining that it is fair, adequate, and reasonable. In making this determination, the court must further consider whether the proposed distribution of unpaid residue is useful in fulfilling the purposes of the underlying cause of action [In re Microsoft I--V Cases (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 706, 716-722 (Code Civ. Proc. § 384(b) is limited to judgment that awards some form of direct compensation to plaintiff class members yet requires subsequent amendment because it does not itself provide for calculation and distribution of any unpaid residue of that direct compensation)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCompromisesCivil ProcedureRemediesDamagesCompensatory Damages

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.23

§ 120.23 Judgment

[1] Content and Notice of Judgment

The judgment in an action maintained as a class action must include and describe those whom the court finds to be members of the class [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.771(a)]. If the judgment is the result of a court-approved settlement agreement, the judgment must also include a provision for the retention of the court's jurisdiction over the parties to enforce the terms of the judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.769(h)]. The court may not enter an order dismissing the action at the same time as, or after, entry of judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.769(h)].

Notice of any judgment in a class action must be given to the class in the manner specified by the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.771(b)].

[2] Effect on Class Members' Individual Claims

The judgment in a class action binds all class members who were properly notified of the action [see [1], above] and did not opt out of the action before the specified deadline [see Long Beach Police Officers Assn. v. City of Long Beach (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 317, 319, 217 Cal. Rptr. 207]. The judgment is also res judicata as to claims of persons in privity with members of the class [Frazier v. City of Richmond (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1491, 1497-1499, 1503, 228 Cal. Rptr. 376]. The doctrine of res judicata does not preclude subsequent actions by persons whose rights to recover are based on different facts from those on which the class action was based [Daar v. Yellow Cab Co. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 695, 704-705, 63 Cal. Rptr. 724, 433 P.2d 732].

A judgment denying class certification in one action will preclude relitigation of the class-certification issue in a subsequent action brought by a different plaintiff, if (1) the issue is identical to the one decided in the earlier case, (2) the issue was actually litigated in the earlier case, (3) the issue was necessarily decided in the earlier case, (4) the earlier decision is final and was rendered on the merits, and (5) the plaintiff in the current was in privity with or virtually represented by the plaintiff in the earlier case [Alvarez v. May Dept. Stores Co. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1233, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 892] .

Thus, if the elements of issue preclusion are satisfied, the fact that the prior judgment did not result in certification of a class does not prevent that judgment from binding absent putative class members on the issue actually litigated and decided in that prior action--whether class treatment is appropriate [Alvarez v. May Dept. Stores Co. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1233-1239, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 892 (plaintiffs in prior action were "virtual representatives" of plaintiffs in present case: interested parties, their claims, and their counsel were same in both cases, and plaintiffs in prior action had same interest and motive as plaintiffs in present case to present same claims)].

A judgment denying class certification in one action will not preclude litigation of the class-certification issue in a subsequent action in which the class-certification issues are not identical to those presented in the earlier action [Johnson v. GlaxoSmithKline, Inc. (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1497, 1512-1517, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 607] . For example, a denial of class certification will not preclude litigation of the class-certification issue in a subsequent action involving a narrower class, if the narrowed class definition attempts to correct flaws identified in the earlier action, with the result that the issues presented on class certification are different [Bufil v. Dollar Fin. Group, Inc. (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1193, 1202-1204, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 804].

[3] Appeals by Unnamed Class Members

Any class member who is bound by the judgment [see [2], above] has standing to appeal it on behalf of the class. An unnamed class member need not obtain permission to intervene or be designated a named plaintiff prior to pursuing an appeal [Simons v. Horowitz (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 834, 842-843, 199 Cal. Rptr. 134 ; see Wershba v. Apple Computer, Inc. (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 224, 235, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 145 (unnamed class members who appear at final fairness hearing and object to proposed settlement have standing to appeal)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJusticiabilityStandingGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersNonnamed MembersCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCompromisesCivil ProcedureJudgmentsPreclusion & Effect of JudgmentsRes Judicata

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.24

§ 120.24 Attorney's Fees

[1] In General

If the parties have entered into any express or implied agreement concerning the payment of attorney's fees or the submission of an application for the approval of attorney's fees, that agreement must be set forth in full in any application for approval of the dismissal or settlement of an action that has been certified as a class action [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.769(b); see Mark v. Spencer (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 219, 228-229, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 569 (failure to disclose attorneys' fee-splitting agreement in conjunction with class-action settlement bars later action to enforce that agreement)]. In the absence of an agreement concerning attorney's fees, there is no basis for an award of fees in a class action if no determination of composition of class has been made and the action has not been pursued to judgment or settled as far as the class is concerned [Anthony v. Superior Court (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 760, 771, 130 Cal. Rptr. 758].

Common theories on which attorney's fees may be awarded in class actions are discussed in [2]-[4], below. For discussion of limitations on attorney's fee awards in coupon settlements of class actions in federal court, see § 120.21[2][c]. For discussion of attorney's fees in actions based on contract, see Ch. 140, Contracts . Recovery of attorney's fees is discussed generally in Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees .

For thorough coverage of attorney's fees in class actions, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Ch. 15, Attorney's Fees (Matthew Bender).

[2] "Common Fund" Theory

If a number of persons are entitled in common to a specific fund and an action brought by a plaintiff or plaintiffs for the benefit of all results in the creation or preservation of that fund, the plaintiff or plaintiffs may be awarded attorney's fees out of the fund under the "common fund" principle [Serrano v. Priest (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 25, 34-38, 141 Cal. Rptr. 315, 569 P.2d 1303 (holding theory inapplicable in case before it)].

[3] "Private Attorney General" Theory

An award of attorney's fees to class action plaintiffs is proper under a "private attorney general" theory. On motion, a court may award attorney's fees to a successful party against one or more opposing parties in any action that has resulted in the enforcement of an important right affecting the public interest, if all of the following requirements are satisfied [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5; see Serrano v. Priest (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 25, 46-47, 141 Cal. Rptr. 315, 569 P.2d 1303 (applying common-law private attorney general theory before enactment of Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5)]:

- A significant benefit, whether pecuniary or nonpecuniary, has been conferred on the general public or a large class of persons;

- The necessity and financial burden of private enforcement, or of enforcement by one public entity against another public entity, are such as to make the award appropriate; and

- The fees should not in the interest of justice be paid out of the recovery, if any.

A class representative may recover fees under the "private attorney general statute" [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5] even if the representative was primarily motivated by his or her own financial interests. Such personal motivation does not preclude a fee award as long as the class action affected the public interest and resulted in a significant benefit to a large class of persons [Estrada v. FedEx Ground Package System, Inc. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 1, 16-17, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 327 (class action vindicated 209 employees' right to reimbursement for business expenses under Lab. Code § 2802)].

Prelitigation efforts to resolve a dispute may inform the court's inquiry into whether the necessity of litigation makes a fee award appropriate [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5]. However, a prelitigation settlement demand is not a prerequisite to an award under the "private attorney general statute" unless the award is made pursuant to the catalyst theory [Vasquez v. State (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 243, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 466, 195 P.3d 1049].

Under the "catalyst" theory, attorney's fees may be awarded to a plaintiff class under the "private attorney general" statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5] even if the class action does not result in a judicial resolution or a judicially recognized change in the parties' legal relationship, such as when the action is dismissed after the defendant voluntarily ceases the complained-of conduct [see Vasquez v. State (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 243, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 466, 195 P.3d 1049] (action is not catalyst case if parties stipulate to injunction that is entered as judgment, thereby bringing about judicially recognized change in parties' legal relationship)].. In such a case, attorney's fees may be awarded if (1) the class action was a catalyst motivating the defendant to provide the primary relief sought; (2) the class action had merit and achieved its catalytic effect by threat of victory, not by dint of nuisance and threat of expense; and (3) the plaintiffs reasonably attempted to settle the litigation before filing the class action [Tipton-Whittingham v. City of Los Angeles (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 604, 608, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371, 101 P. 3d 174 ; Graham v. DaimlerChrysler Corp. (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 553, 561, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 331 ; but see Buckhannon Bd. & Care Home, Inc. v. West Virginia Dep't of Health & Human Res. (2001) 532 U.S. 598, 603-604, 121 S. Ct. 1835, 149 L. Ed. 2d 855 (to qualify as prevailing party under federal fee-shifting statutes, plaintiff must obtain judgment on merits, court-ordered consent decree, or other judicial recognition of change in legal relationship between parties; that action was catalyst in causing voluntary change in defendant's conduct is not sufficient)]. If the defendant is a government agency, however, this "catalyst" theory will not be applied to allow the recovery of attorney's fees by a plaintiff whose lawsuit merely caused the acceleration of the issuance of government regulations or remedial measures, if the process of issuing those regulations or undertaking those measures was ongoing at the time the lawsuit was filed [Tipton-Whittingham v. City of Los Angeles (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 604, 609, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371, 101 P.3d 174 (if government agency is given discretion as to timing of performing some action, mere fact that lawsuit may accelerate that performance does not establish eligibility for attorney fees); Westside Cmty. for Indep. Living, Inc. v. Obledo (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 348, 354, 188 Cal. Rptr. 873, 657 P.2d 365].

With respect to class actions involving public entities, the "private attorney general" statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5] generally applies to allowances against, but not in favor of, public entities [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5].

An unnamed member of a putative class who successfully objects to class certification and approval of a proposed classwide settlement agreement is not entitled to an award of attorney fees under the "private attorney general" statute. The statute makes fees available only if the action results in the enforcement of an important public right [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5], and the purpose of the statute is to create an incentive for private citizens to bring lawsuits enforcing important public rights. An objector's success in defeating class certification and a proposed classwide settlement does not meet this requirement; it is the objective of the lawsuit that is critical to recovering fees, not the success of an ancillary part of the action [Consumer Cause, Inc. v. Mrs. Gooch's Natural Food Markets, Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 387, 401-403, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 514]. Further, if the proposed settlement would afford class members the right to "opt out" of the settlement, the objector's success in defeating the proposed settlement does not qualify as the enforcement or protection of an important public right, since class members could have achieved the same result simply by choosing not to be bound by the settlement [Consumer Cause, Inc. v. Mrs. Gooch's Natural Food Markets, Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 387, 403-404, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 514].

[4] "Substantial Benefit" Theory

The "substantial benefit" theory is an extension of the "common fund" theory [see [2], above]. It applies when no common fund has been created, but a concrete and significant benefit has nonetheless been conferred on an ascertainable class [Consumer Cause, Inc. v. Mrs. Gooch's Natural Food Markets, Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 387, 397-398, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 514].

Under the "substantial benefit theory," if a litigant proceeding in a representative capacity obtains a decision that has the result of conferring a substantial benefit (usually of a pecuniary nature) on others, the court may decree that those receiving the benefit should be required to yield some of those benefits in the form of an award of attorney's fees [Serrano v. Priest (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 25, 34, 38-42, 141 Cal. Rptr. 315, 569 P.2d 1303 (declining to apply theory to case before it)]. The theory rests on the principle that those who have been unjustly enriched at another's expense should under some circumstances bear their fair share of the attorney's fees entailed in producing the benefits they have obtained [Woodland Hills Residents Assn., Inc. v. City Council of Los Angeles (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 917, 943, 154 Cal. Rptr. 503, 593 P.2d 200]. Accordingly, the substantial benefit theory may be applied if the litigation generates a substantial benefit in favor of an ascertainable class of persons (for example, the citizens of a city), and the defendant (for example, the city) is in a position to spread the cost of obtaining the benefit among the members of the class [see Woodland Hills Residents Assn., Inc. v. City Council of Los Angeles (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 917, 944 ; Serrano v. Priest (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 25, 34, 40 n.10, 141 Cal. Rptr. 315, 569 P.2d 1303]. For thorough coverage of the substantial benefit theory, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees .

An unnamed member of a putative class who objects to a proposed classwide settlement agreement and persuades the court not to approve the settlement may be entitled to attorney's fees under the equitable "common fund" theory or "substantial benefit" theory, but only if the objector subsequently demonstrates that he or she has actually benefited the class (i.e., if the ultimate class recovery exceeds what would have been achieved under the proposed settlement). However, if the objector simply defeats class certification, even if he or she thereby confers some concrete benefit on absent members of the putative class, the objector cannot be awarded attorney's fees under these equitable theories, because there is no one before the court from whom such fees can properly be recovered [Consumer Cause, Inc. v. Mrs. Gooch's Natural Food Markets, Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 387, 396-400, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 514].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass CounselFeesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersNonnamed MembersCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCompromises

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

20 of 165 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 120.25-120.29

[Reserved]

§§ 120.25[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.30

§ 120.30 Related Matthew Bender Publications

For forms of memoranda related to class and representative actions, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 41, Class and Representative Actions (Matthew Bender)

For thorough coverage of California class actions, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsGeneral Overview

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.31

§ 120.31 Statutes

[1] Federal

Federal diversity jurisdiction over interstate class actions and mass actions. 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)

Removal of interstate class actions from state court to federal court. 28 U.S.C. § 1453

Consumer Class Action Bill of Rights and Improved Procedures for Interstate Class Actions. 28 U.S.C. § 1711 et seq.

[2] State

Class actions under Consumers Legal Remedies Act (Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.). Civ. Code §§ 1752, 1780-1784

Availability of punitive damages award in class action involving violations of Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act (Civ. Code § 1785.1 et seq.). Civ. Code § 1785.31(c)

Damages in class actions for violations of provisions governing credit transactions regarding married and unmarried women (Civ. Code §§ 1812.30-1812.35). Civ. Code § 1812.31(c)

Relevant factors for court to consider in determining amount of award in class action involving violations of Vehicle Leasing Act (Civ. Code § 2985.7 et seq.). Civ. Code § 2988.5(b)

Limited civil cases. Code Civ. Proc. § 86

Class actions generally. Code Civ. Proc. § 382

Distribution of unpaid residuals in class action litigation. Code Civ. Proc. § 384

Coordination of civil actions that share common question of fact or law. Code Civ. Proc. § 404 et seq.

Availability of precertification restraining orders and injunctions in class actions. Code Civ. Proc. § 527(b)

Appeal from superior court judgment, other than in limited civil case. Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1

Attorney's fees in class actions resulting in enforcement of important rights affecting the public interest. Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5

Consolidation of actions or issues involving common questions of fact or law. Code Civ. Proc. § 1048(a)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionDiversity JurisdictionCitizenshipGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemovalGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass CounselFeesCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConsolidation of ActionsCivil ProcedureRemediesDamagesPunitive Damages

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.32

§ 120.32 Rules of Court

[1] Federal

Class actions. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23

[2] State

Management of class actions. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.760 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsGeneral Overview

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.33

§ 120.33 Decisions

[1] Access to Potential Class Members

Precertification communication with potential class members, like pre-filing communication, is constitutionally protected speech, and blanket requirement of judicial approval for such communications would constitute impermissible prior restraint on speech; however, court may issue protective order limiting precertification communications based on specific showing of abuse of class action procedure. Parris v. Superior Court (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 285, 292-300, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 90

Defendant corporation in class action as having right of access to potential, but as yet unapproached, class members, and such communication as not constituting violation of Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, former Rule 7-103 (now see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 2-100), which prohibits communication with party known to be represented by counsel, without counsel's consent. Atari, Inc. v. Superior Court (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 867, 872-873, 212 Cal. Rptr. 773

[2] Arbitration

Party may not be compelled to submit to class arbitration unless there is contractual basis for concluding that party agreed to do so. Stolt-Nielsen S.A. v. AnimalFeeds Intl Corp. (2010) 130 S. Ct. 1758, 176 L. Ed. 2d 605

Under Federal Arbitration Act, whether contractual arbitration provision includes agreement on availability of class arbitration is for arbitrator, not court, to decide, at least if contract provides for arbitration of all disputes arising from or relating to contract. Green Tree v. Bazzle (2003) 539 U.S. 444, 449-454, 123 S. Ct. 2402, 156 L. Ed. 2d 414 (plurality opinion)

If parties' contract mandates arbitration but does not mention class arbitration, whether arbitration may proceed on classwide basis is for arbitrator to decide. Cable Connection, Inc. v. DIRECTV, Inc. (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 1334, 1364-1366, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229, 190 P.3d 586

Class-arbitration waiver in employment arbitration agreement is not enforceable to preclude class arbitration by employees whose unwaivable statutory rights to overtime pay [see Lab. Code §§ 500 et seq., 1194] have allegedly been violated, if trial court determines that class arbitration would be significantly more effective way of vindicating employees' rights than individual arbitration. Gentry v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 443, 456-463, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 773, 165 P.3d 556

Section 2 of Federal Arbitration Act [9 U.S.C. § 2] does not prevent California court from refusing to enforce waiver of class arbitration if circumstances are such that waiver operates as unlawful exculpatory provision [see Civ. Code § 1688], since principle that class-action waivers are, under certain circumstances, unconscionable as unlawfully exculpatory is principle of California law that does not specifically apply to arbitration agreements, but to contracts generally. Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 148, 163-167, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 76, 87-95, 113 P.3d 1100

Class claims for damages under Consumers Legal Remedies Act [see Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.], Unfair Competition Law [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq.], and False Advertising Law [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq.], including equitable claims for restitution or disgorgement, as well as common-law claims for unjust enrichment, are subject to arbitration under otherwise valid arbitration agreement. Cruz v. PacifiCare Health Sys., Inc. (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 303, 320, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 58, 66 P.3d 1157

Classwide arbitration is available in class action involving adhesion contract containing arbitration provision. Keating v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 584, 594-595, 183 Cal. Rptr. 360, 645 P.2d 1192

Arbitration agreement in credit card holder agreement prohibiting classwide arbitration is unconscionable, and therefore unenforceable, because it was offered by card issuer to customers on "take-it-or-leave-it" basis and unfairly deprived customers of remedy for small amounts they might be owed, while card issuer suffered no similar detriment to its rights. Szetela v. Discover Bank (2003) 97 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1099-1102, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 862

[3] Attorney's Fees

Although prelitigation efforts to resolve dispute may inform court's inquiry into whether necessity of litigation make a fee award appropriate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5, prelitigation settlement demand is not prerequisite to fee award unless award is made pursuant to catalyst theory. Vasquez v. State (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 243, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 466, 195 P.3d 1049

Fees pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 may be awarded to plaintiff class despite lack of favorable judgment, if (1) action was catalyst motivating defendant to provide primary relief sought; (2) action had merit and achieved its catalytic effect by threat of victory, not by dint of nuisance and threat of expense; and (3) plaintiffs reasonably attempted to settle litigation before filing action. Tipton-Whittingham v. City of Los Angeles (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 604, 608, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371, 101 P.3d 174 ; Graham v. DaimlerChrysler Corp. (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 553, 561, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 331, 101 P.3d 140

Fees pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 as properly awarded if plaintiff obtained partial summary judgment in class action against State for failure to provide required transportation plan for Medi-Cal recipients, because issue involved important right affecting substantial number of people. Bingham v. Obledo (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 401, 407, 195 Cal. Rptr. 142

Attorney whose client is plaintiff in class action suit is entitled to attorney's fees from all members of class benefited if fund is obtained, protected, and brought into court. Melendres v. City of Los Angeles (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 267, 272, 119 Cal. Rptr. 713

[4] Certification of Class

General rule that class-certification issues should be decided before substantive issues is subject to following qualifications: (1) defendant must object to any adjudication of merits before class certification, or be deemed to have waived right to have class certification decided first; (2) in absence of waiver by defendant, plaintiffs may seek class certification after seeking resolution of merits only if there are changed circumstances or other good cause; and (3) in absence of waiver by defendant, court should not resolve merits before resolving class certification and notice issues, unless there is compelling justification for doing so. Fireside Bank v. Superior Court (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 1069, 1083, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 861, 155 P.3d 268

Class action is not inappropriate simply because each class member may at some point be required to make individual showing of eligibility for recovery or amount of damages; rather, determining whether common questions predominate requires court to compare costs and benefits of adjudicating plaintiffs' claims in class action with costs and benefits of proceeding by numerous separate actions. Sav-on Drug Stores, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 319, 339 n.10, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 906, 96 P.3d 194

Class certification was inappropriate in negligence action seeking medical monitoring of persons affected by defendants' discharge of toxic chemicals that allegedly contaminated drinking water, even though questions of duty and breach could be determined on basis of common proof, because individual questions of proximate causation and damage predominated for putative class of estimated 50,000 to 100,000 people. Lockheed Martin Corp. v. Superior Court (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1096, 1108-1111, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 63 P.3d 913

Generally, certification should not be conditioned upon a showing that class claims for relief are likely to prevail on the merits; merit-based challenges should be considered in certification proceedings only in an exceptional case, if the defense has no other reasonable pretrial means to challenge the merits of a claim to be asserted by a proposed class, and the trial court has given the parties notice and an opportunity to brief the merits question. Linder v. Thrifty Oil Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 429, 443, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179, 2 P.3d 27

Showing required for certification of class is within trial court's discretion provided correct criteria are employed. Occidental Land, Inc. v. Superior Court of Orange County (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 355, 361, 134 Cal. Rptr. 388, 556 P.2d 750

Although party seeking class certification need only present substantial evidence that class requirements are met, trial court may consider totality of evidence offered by both sides deciding whether substantial evidence supports class certification. Quacchia v. DaimlerChrysler Corp. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1442, 1447-1448, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 508

Trial court did not abuse discretion in denying class certification if damages would have been insignificant, defendant's practices had ceased, persons with claims would have been too numerous and difficult to find, individual remedies for statutory violations were available, and class treatment would have clogged courts; further, plaintiff failed to demonstrate that his claims were typical of class members' claims given that under facts, he was not misled in manner that class was allegedly deceived; thus, individual issues involving existence and nature of any material misrepresentation would have predominated over common issues. Caro v. Procter & Gamble Co. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 644, 657-669, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 419

Trial court's denial of motion to modify certified class definition was reversible if court bases denial on erroneous legal assumptions or uses improper criteria. Clothesrigger, Inc. v. GTE Corp. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 605, 612, 236 Cal. Rptr. 605

Rejection of motion to increase class from statewide to nationwide was improper if trial court apparently based its denial solely on conclusion that plaintiffs from other 49 states might become involved in lawsuit, thus making lawsuit unmanageable; trial court was required to determine whether California law may constitutionally apply to claims of proposed nonresident class members and, if it may apply, whether it will likely apply under California choice of law rules. Clothesrigger, Inc. v. GTE Corp. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 605, 613, 619, 236 Cal. Rptr. 605

[5] Class Representatives

Representative plaintiff who has not suffered pecuniary damages may nevertheless have standing to sue under Consumers Legal Remedies Act, Civ. Code § 1750 et seq., if he or she has incurred some damage, such as transaction costs or opportunity costs, as result of alleged violation of Act; however, existence of violation of Act is not itself "damage" and will not, by itself, confer standing on consumer exposed to violation (such as consumer who enters into contract that includes unconscionable term that is never enforced). Meyer v. Sprint Spectrum L.P. (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 634, 640-643, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 859, 200 P.3d 295

Trial court properly denies class certification if proposed class representative is "professional plaintiff," who is simply lending his or her name to suit controlled entirely by attorney for putative class. Howard Gunty Profit Sharing Plan v. Superior Court (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 572, 577-580, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 896

Association whose members purchased solar equipment for investment purposes was adequate class representative even though some of its members helped sell program as financial planners as well as investing in equipment. National Solar Equipment Owners' Assn. v. Grumman Corp. (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1273, 1285, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 325

Absent conspiracy between all defendants, class action was able to be maintained only against defendants as to whom class representative has cause of action; typicality requirement was not fulfilled merely because plaintiffs allege they suffered injuries similar to those of other parties caused by other defendants. Baltimore Football Club, Inc. v. Superior Court (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 352, 359, 215 Cal. Rptr. 323

Fact that members of plaintiff class purchased automobiles at widely variant prices had bearing on plaintiff's burden of proving existence of price-fixing scheme but had no bearing on named plaintiff's ability to represent class. Rosack v. Volvo of America Corp. (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 741, 763, 182 Cal. Rptr. 800

Requirement that class representatives adequately represent class was met by two retired city employees and widows of two former city employees who petitioned for writ of mandate to compel defendants to include certain fringe benefits in salary base from which retirement pension allowances were computed. Rose v. City of Hayward (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 926, 932-935, 179 Cal. Rptr. 287

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 382, homeowners' association has standing to bring representative action on behalf of individual members against developer for damages caused by defects in individually owned units. Raven's Cove Townhomes, Inc. v. Knuppe Development Co., Inc. (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 783, 793-796, 171 Cal. Rptr. 334

[6] Costs

Court order in class action imposing costs on pro rata basis on entire class of plaintiffs, named and unnamed, was abuse of discretion. Van de Kamp v. Bank of America (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 819, 869, 251 Cal. Rptr. 530

[7] Damages

Fact that class action involves cost of maintaining real property was no obstacle to determination of damages on class basis if class seeks compensation for diminution in value of homes resulting from overall reduction and increased cost of maintenance services. Occidental Land, Inc. v. Superior Court (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 355, 364, 134 Cal. Rptr. 388, 556 P.2d 750

Variance in purchase prices paid by class members was no obstacle to certification; court was empowered to divide class into subclasses. MacManus v. A. E. Realty Partners (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1106, 1117, 241 Cal. Rptr. 315

No ascertainable class exists if no class member can prove damages; fluid class recovery is used to fulfill purposes of underlying cause of action and not as substitute for proof of damage element of cause of action. Collins v. Safeway Stores, Inc. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 62, 71-72, 74, 231 Cal. Rptr. 638

Fluid class recovery or cy pres method of distributing damages to class members after individual claims filed is not per se improper in class actions, but specific law underlying substantive claim may preclude use of damage distribution device. Bruno v. Superior Court (1981) 127 Cal. App. 3d 120, 130, 179 Cal. Rptr. 342

[8] Discovery

In putative class action alleging violations of wage and hour laws, defendant was not entitled to discovery of names of putative class members who contacted plaintiffs' counsel; class members' privacy rights outweighed defendant's interest in learning their names, because (1) class members contacted plaintiffs' counsel in response to letter from neutral third party that did not ask if recipients had relevant information, but simply advised them they could contact counsel for more information; (2) defendant already knew identity of all class members, who were its current and former employees; and (3) defendant already knew relevant facts in case, which involved compensation paid by defendant and whether defendant allowed its employees proper meal and rest breaks. Tien v. Superior Court (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 528, 539-540, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 121

If conflict of interest prevents lawyer from serving as class representative and counsel for class, court may allow precertification discovery for purpose of seeking new class representative as long as court acts to protect privacy rights of potential class members. Best Buy Stores, L.P. v. Superior Court (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 772, 778-779, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 575

When ruling on motion of potential class representative to compel discovery of names and addresses of potential class members, in addition to applying normal rules governing discovery motions, trial court must also expressly identify any potential abuses of class-action procedure that may be created if discovery is permitted, and court must weigh danger of such abuses against rights of parties under circumstances. Parris v. Superior Court (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 285, 300-301, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 90

Defendant in class action has due process statutory right to reasonable discovery; right is not subject to being totally diminished by granting blanket immunity to unnamed class members to be free of obligation to respond to proper interrogatories; such interrogatories, however, are subject to limitation and protective orders in appropriate cases. Spoon v. Superior Court (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 735, 746, 182 Cal. Rptr. 44

[9] Dismissal

Dismissal of class action, without prejudice, at class members' request is not required but is equitable in order to protect class from having suit dismissed for failure to bring it to trial within five years of filing date. Malibu Outrigger Bd. of Governors v. Superior Court (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 573, 579, 165 Cal. Rptr. 1

[10] Notice

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23 requires plaintiff initially to bear cost of notice to all class members who can be identified through reasonable effort. Eisen v. Carlisle & Jacquelin (1974) 417 U.S. 156, 177, 94 S. Ct. 2140, 40 L. Ed. 2d 732

Refusal by Postal Service to mail class action refund notices at special class bulk mailing rates is proper. Deukmejian v. United States Postal Service (9th Cir. 1984) 734 F.2d 460, 462-463

Although pre-certification notice to prospective class members is not generally authorized or required, if prospective class members' identifying information is disclosed in precertification discovery, it may be appropriate for court to order that notice be provided to prospective class members so that they may take steps to protect their privacy. Pioneer Elecs. (USA) Inc. v. Superior Court (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 360, 373-375, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 513, 150 P.3d 198

Difficulty of notifying individual class members does not authorize court to require that class members acknowledge personal notification by affirmatively requesting inclusion in class; such "opt-in" procedure is neither required by constitutional due-process principles nor permitted by Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(c)(2) or applicable California rule [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766(f)]. Hypertouch, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 1537-1550, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 839

Motion to certify class, whether by plaintiff or by court on own motion, is required to be noticed motion; parties entitled to discovery for purposes of motion, and to present evidence at hearing, presumably in form of declarations and affidavits rather than live testimony. Carabini v. Superior Court (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 239, 241-244, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 520

Defendant's right to communicate with class members is restricted once content of notice has been approved by court. Gainey v. Occidental Land Research (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1051, 1058, 231 Cal. Rptr. 249

Class action judgment determining that holiday pay and uniform allowances were not "salary" is res judicata as to that issue in subsequent class action even if plaintiffs in second action were not given notice prior to determination on merits in first action; notice is not required in first action under Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(2), (c)(2), (3) since action was primarily one for declaratory relief. Frazier v. City of Richmond (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1491, 1499-1502, 228 Cal. Rptr. 376

[11] Procedure

Trial court should, at pleading stage, consider factors set forth in Osborne v. Subaru of America, Inc. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 646, 243 Cal. Rptr. 815 , whether certification of nationwide class would require trial court to adjudicate issues by application of numerous different rules of law from various states, and whether California has "special obligation" to undertake litigation. Canon U.S.A., Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1, 8, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 897

Representatives' declarations under former Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct., Man. for Pretrial Proceedings in Class Actions, § 427.4 (now see Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 15.18), are useless to the extent representatives were expected to know how their claims differed legally from other class members. Daniels v. Centennial Group, Inc. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 467, 472 n.6, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1

Trial court is not required to make findings in denial of class action, even if motion for certification is based on evidence and resulting order is appealable. Stephens v. Montgomery Ward & Co. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 411, 418, 238 Cal. Rptr. 602

Court as improperly sustaining demurrer on basis that class action was not proper if defendants did not raise any class action issues in demurrer; determination of whether proper class alleged as required to be made at hearing as provided by class action manual adopted by Los Angeles Superior Court. Wechsler v. Laskey-Weil, Inc. (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 728, 730-731, 117 Cal. Rptr. 237

Demurrer is proper if plaintiff failed to allege facts showing he or she was member of class he or she purported to represent. Phillips v. Crocker-Citizens Nat. Bank (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 901, 910, 113 Cal. Rptr. 688

[12] Res Judicata

Order denying certification of class action as independently appealable and not reviewable on appeal from subsequent judgments on individual causes of action; failure to appeal certification decision at time made as rendering decision final and binding. Reich v. Club Universe (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 965, 970, 178 Cal. Rptr. 473

[13] Review

Trial court's discretion as to whether class action should be mandatory or permissive as considerable and not subject to reversal absent abuse of discretion. Bell v. American Title Ins. Co. (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1589, 1603, 277 Cal. Rptr. 583

Defendant in class action who is voluntarily dismissed ex parte as having standing to appeal judgment on own behalf because ex parte dismissal would effectively frustrate defendant class's right to appeal adverse judgment. Simons v. Horowitz (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 834, 841-842, 199 Cal. Rptr. 134

Petition for writ of mandate as proper procedure to compel review of interlocutory class certification order; appeal from interlocutory order as violating "final judgment rule" of Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1 unless order disposes of entire action. Rosack v. Volvo of America Corp. (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 741, 749, 182 Cal. Rptr. 800

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass CounselFeesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersNamed MembersCivil ProcedureClass ActionsNoticesCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral Overview

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.34

§ 120.34 Law Reviews

Karas, The Role of Fluid Recovery in Consumer Protection Litigation: Kraus v. Trinity Management Services, 90 Calif. L. Rev. 959 (2002)

Cabraser, Life After Achem: The Class Struggle Continues, 31 Loy. L.A.L. Rev. 373 (1998)

Note, In-Kind Class Action Settlement, 109 Harv. L. Rev. 810 (1996)

Mullenix, Class Actions, Personal Jurisdiction, and Plaintiffs' Due Process: Implications for Mass Tort Litigation, 28 U.C. Davis L. Rev. 871 (1995)

Mishkind, Sexual Harassment Hostile Work Environment Class Actions: Is There Cause for Concern? 18 Empl. Rel. L.J. 141 (Summer 1992)

Williams, A Class Act? Representative Proceedings in the Federal Court, 66 Law Inst. J. 376 (May 1992)

Burns, Decorative Figureheads: Eliminating Class Representatives in Class Actions, 42 Hastings L.J. 165 (1990)

Comment, Defendant Class Actions: The Failure of Rule 23 and a Proposed Solution, 38 UCLA L. Rev. 223 (1990)

Note, Constrained Individualism in Group Litigation: Requiring Class Members to Make a Good Cause Showing Before Opting Out of a Federal Class Action, 100 Yale L.J. 745 (1990)

Burns, Standing and Mootness in Class Actions: A Search for Consistency, 22 U.C. Davis L. Rev. 1239 (1989)

Schuster, Precertification Settlement of Class Actions: Will California Follow the Federal Lead? 40 Hastings L.J. 863 (1989)

Hillebrand and Torrence, Claims Procedures in Large Consumer Class Actions and Equitable Distribution of Benefits, 28 Santa Clara L. Rev. 747 (1988)

Comment, United States Class Actions in Private International Law Decisions, 23 Cal. W.L. Rev. 342 (1987)

Note, The Consumer Trust Fund: A Cy Pres Solution to Undistributed Funds in Consumer Class Actions, 38 Hastings L.J. 729 (1987)

Note, Equitable Trusts: An Effective Remedy in Mass Consumer Class Actions, 96 Yale L.J. 1591 (1987)

Miller and Crump, Jurisdiction and Choice of Law in Multistate Class Actions After Phillips Petroleum Co. v. Shutts, 96 Yale L.J. 1 (1986)

Comment, Homeowner Association Standing in California: A Proposal to Expand the Role of the Unit Owner, 26 Santa Clara L. Rev. 619 (1986)

Winters, Jurisdiction Over Unnamed Plaintiffs in Multistate Class Actions, 73 Calif. L. Rev. 181 (1985)

Comment, Attorneys' Fees Awards to Prevailing Defendants in Consumer Class Action Litigation in California: A Dual Standard Restricting Awards to Prevailing Defendants is Necessary, 24 Santa Clara L. Rev. 467 (1984)

Note, The Attorney-Client Privilege in Class Actions: Fashioning an Exception to Promote Adequacy of Representation, 97 Harv. L. Rev. 947 (1984)

McGonigle, The Class Action: A Solution to the Dilemma of Certification After Judgment, 18 Bev. Hills B.J. 18 (1983-1984)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Antitrust & Trade LawConsumer ProtectionDeceptive Acts & PracticesState RegulationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass CounselFeesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersNamed MembersCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCompromisesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsOpt-Out Provisions

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.35

§ 120.35 Text References

Witkin, California Procedure, vol. 4, Pleadings, § 246 et seq. (4th ed. 1997)

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 120.36-120.39

[Reserved]

§§ 120.36[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.40

§ 120.40 Preliminary Determinations

[1] Suitability of Class Action

1. Determine whether ascertainable class exists [see Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 810-811, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964 ; see also § 120.12[3]].

a. Identify characteristics on which class membership will be based, such as following:
(1) Purchase of certain consumer articles or services.

(2) Ownership of home or land in affected area.

(3) Membership in protected class.

(4) Entitlement to government benefits.

(5) Status as job applicant, employee, or pensioner.

(6) Status as patient.

(7) Status as inmate.

(8) Ownership of stock.

b. Verify that class members can be clearly identified.

NOTE:
In appropriate cases, the trial court may order the defendant to identify potential class members through its business records or to disclose to the plaintiff those portions of such records necessary to identify potential class members [see, e.g., Reyes v. Board of Supervisors (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1263, 1274-1275, 1280, 242 Cal. Rptr. 339].

c. Determine that size of class can be reasonably controlled, considering factors that may be used to limit class to manageable size, such as following:

(1) Geographic boundaries.

NOTE:
The need to apply numerous different rules of law from various states or other political subdivisions may be a factor in determining that a class action is not a suitable vehicle for adjudicating a particular dispute [Osborne v. Subaru of America, Inc. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 646, 654-656, 243 Cal. Rptr. 815].

(2) Dates.

(3) Specific article purchased, contract signed, treatment received, etc.

d. Determine that class members can be located and notified of action through reasonable expenditure of time and money.

2. Determine whether well-defined community of interest in questions of law and fact exists among potential class members, considering following factors [see Daar v. Yellow Cab Co. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 695, 704, 63 Cal. Rptr. 724, 433 P.2d 732 ; see also § 120.12[2]]:

a. Whether common questions of law and fact predominate.

b. Whether claims or defenses of class representatives are typical of those of class members.

c. Whether class representative can adequately represent class.

3. Determine whether class action is superior method of adjudicating dispute, considering the following factors [see § 120.12[4]]:

a. Interests of those affected, including following [Schneider v. Vennard (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1340, 1347, 228 Cal. Rptr. 800]:

(1) Judicial system.

(2) Potential class members.

(3) Present named plaintiff.

(4) Attorneys for litigants.

(5) Public at large.

(6) Defendant.

b. Desirability of establishing single standard of conduct for defendant class.

c. Likelihood and practicality of individual suits to obtain redress [see Reyes v. Board of Supervisors

(1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1263, 1280, 242 Cal. Rptr. 339].

d. Extent and nature of other litigation already commenced by potential class members [see Schneider v. Vennard (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1340, 1347, 228 Cal. Rptr. 800].

e. Availability of procedures such as bifurcation and subclassing to make class action manageable [see Rosack v. Volvo of America Corp. (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 741, 762, 182 Cal. Rptr. 800].

4. Consider whether action is of type typically suited to class action treatment, such as any of following:

a. Action for wrongfully withheld or terminated government benefits [see, e.g., Employment Development Dept. v. Superior Court (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 256, 178 Cal. Rptr. 612, 636 P.2d 575 ; Reyes v. Board of Supervisors (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1263, 1276-1279, 242 Cal. Rptr. 339].

b. Action alleging price-fixing [see B.W.I. Custom Kitchen v. Owens-Illinois, Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1341, 235 Cal. Rptr. 228 ; Rosack v. Volvo of America Corp. (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 741, 763, 182 Cal. Rptr. 800].

c. Action involving legality or interpretation of standard contract or contract provisions [see MacManus v. A. E. Realty Partners (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1106, 1115-1116, 241 Cal. Rptr. 315].

d. Land ownership rights [see, e.g., Twain Harte Homeowners Assn. v. Patterson (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 184, 239 Cal. Rptr. 316].

e. Unlawful discrimination [see, e.g., Stephens v. Montgomery Ward & Co. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 411, 238 Cal. Rptr. 602].

f. Unlawful contract activities [see, e.g., McConnell v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 816, 191 Cal. Rptr. 458, 662 P.2d 916].

g. Unlawful activities by an employer.

h. Fraudulent dealings [see, e.g., Danzig v. Jack Grynberg & Associates (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 1128, 208 Cal. Rptr. 336].

i. Violations of specific act or statutory scheme, such as:

(1) Consumers Legal Remedies Act [Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.; see § 120.17[1]].

(2) Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act [Civ. Code § 1785.1 et seq.].

(3) Provisions governing credit transactions involving married and unmarried women [Civ. Code § 1812.30 et seq.].

(4) Vehicle Leasing Act [Civ. Code § 2985.7 et seq.].

(5) Unfair Competition Law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq.; see Cruz v. PacifiCare Health Sys., Inc. (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 303, 320, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 58, 66 P.3d 1157].

(6) False Advertising Law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq.; see Cruz v. PacifiCare Health Sys., Inc. (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 303, 320, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 58, 66 P.3d 1157].

NOTE:
Tort actions to recover for personal injuries are not ordinarily permitted to proceed as class actions [see, e.g., Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923]. Thus, if a tort action for personal injuries is involved, consider how to distinguish it from the line of cases disallowing class actions for tort personal injuries [see § 120.12[2][d]].

5. If action involves defendant class rather than plaintiff class, determine whether following special requirements for defendant class actions are met:

a. Procedure will save time and minimize costs [Kaye v. Mount La Jolla Homeowners Assn. (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1476, 1489-1490, 1495-1496, 252 Cal. Rptr. 67].

b. Judgment will be protected from due process challenges, in that [see Simons v. Horowitz (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 834, 844-847, 199 Cal. Rptr. 134]:

(1) Sufficient information and resources are available to provide timely and adequate notice to all class members;

(2) Named party defendant truly represents interests of class; and

(3) Attorney for named party defendant will provide adequate representation for class.

c. Plaintiff was actually injured by each defendant in class [Simons v. Horowitz (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 834, 845, 199 Cal. Rptr. 134].

d. Affirmative relief is sought against, or can be granted by, defendant class members [see Pinnacle Holdings, Inc. v. Simon (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1430, 1436-1437, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 778 ; see also § 120.16].

6. If class action is not suitable method of adjudicating dispute, consider following alternatives:

a. Action by association [see §§ 120.11[2], 120.15[4]].

b. Other type of representative action, combining suitable elements of class action and suitable elements of individual action.

c. Coordinated action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 404 et seq.; see also § 120.11[3]].

[2] Suitability of Class Representative

1. Ascertain that class representative satisfies all of following criteria [see § 120.15[1] -[3]]:

a. Is actual member of class [La Sala v. American Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 864, 875, 97 Cal. Rptr. 849, 489 P.2d 1113].

b. Can fairly and adequately represent and protect interests of class [La Sala v. American Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 864, 871, 97 Cal. Rptr. 849, 489 P.2d 1113].

c. Has claims or defenses that are typical of those of class [Stephens v. Montgomery Ward & Co. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 411, 422, 238 Cal. Rptr. 602].

d. Has no conflict of interest or potential conflict of interest with class [see La Sala v. American Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 864, 872-874, 97 Cal. Rptr. 849, 489 P.2d 1113].

e. Is not perceived by many class members to have interests incompatible with those of class [Richmond v. Dart Industries, Inc. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 462, 470, 174 Cal. Rptr. 515, 629 P.2d 23].

f. Has not received special consideration from opposing party that does not accrue to class as whole [see La Sala v. American Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 864, 872-874, 97 Cal. Rptr. 849, 489 P.2d 1113].

2. Prepare for possibility that named representative will be determined to be unsuitable [see § 120.15[5]] or will become unable to continue with suit by:

a. Choosing alternate or replacement representative; or

b. Considering criteria to be used to choose replacement representative.

[3] Federal Jurisdiction

1. Determine whether interstate class action will be within subject-matter jurisdiction of federal district court.

NOTE:

For purposes of federal jurisdiction, a mass action will be treated as a class action. A "mass action" is any civil action, other than a class action [see 28 U.S.C. § 1711(2)], in which monetary relief claims of 100 or more persons are proposed to be tried jointly on the ground that the plaintiffs' claims involve common questions of law or fact [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(11)(B)(i)]. For purposes of minimal-diversity jurisdiction and removal to federal court, a mass action is treated as a class action, except that in a mass action minimal-diversity jurisdiction does not exist over any plaintiff whose individual claim does not satisfy the generally applicable $75,000 jurisdictional minimum for diversity jurisdiction [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(11)(A),(B)(i)]. For further discussion of mass actions, see § 120.13[4].

a. Determine whether class action presents federal question [28 U.S.C. § 1332].

b. If action does not present federal question, determine whether class action generally meets requirements for federal "minimal-diversity" jurisdiction, with more than $5 million in controversy (exclusive of interest and costs) and either [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(2); see § 120.13[3][a]]:

(1) Any member of plaintiff class and any defendant are citizens of different states.

(2) Any member of plaintiff class is foreign state, or citizen or subject of foreign state, and any defendant is citizen of state.

(3) Any member of plaintiff class is citizen of state and any defendant is a foreign state or citizen or subject of foreign state.

c. Verify that class action is not within any of following exceptions to minimal-diversity jurisdiction [see § 120.13[3][b]]:

(1) Class action in which primary defendants are states, state officials, or other governmental entities against which federal district court may be foreclosed from ordering relief (i.e., because of Eleventh Amendment immunity) [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(5)].

(2) Class action in which there are fewer than 100 members of all proposed plaintiff classes in the aggregate [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(5)].

(3) Class action that solely involves claim concerning covered security as defined under 15 U.S.C. §§ 78p(f)(3) and 78bb(f)(5)(E) [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(9)(A)].

(4) Class action that solely involves claim relating to internal affairs or governance of corporation or other form of business enterprise and that arises under or by virtue of laws of state in which corporation or business enterprise is incorporated or organized [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(9)(B)].

(5) Class action that solely involves claim relating to rights, duties (including fiduciary duties), and obligations relating to or created by or pursuant to any security, as defined under 15 U.S.C. § 77b(a)(1) and regulations issued under that provision [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(9)(C)].

d. Verify that class action is not one of following kinds of cases, of which federal court would be required to decline jurisdiction [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(4); see § 120.13[3][c]]:

NOTE:

If the class action fits in one of the following categories, the federal district court must decline to exercise minimal-diversity jurisdiction [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(4)]. Even if the case does not fit in one of the following categories, the federal court may have discretion to decline to exercise its minimal-diversity jurisdiction [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(3)]. For discussion, see § 120.13[3][c].

(1) Class action in which two thirds or more of the members of all proposed plaintiff classes in aggregate, and primary defendants, are citizens of California [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(4)(B)].

(2) Class action in which more than two thirds of members of all proposed plaintiff classes in aggregate are citizens of California; at least one defendant from whom significant relief is sought and whose alleged conduct forms significant basis for class claims is citizen of California; principal injuries resulting from alleged conduct or any related conduct of each defendant were incurred in California; and during three years preceding filing of class action, no other class action has been filed asserting same or similar factual allegations against any of defendants on behalf of any persons [28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(4)(A)].

2. If class action is within federal district court's original jurisdiction, determine whether action, if filed in California superior court, is likely to be removed to federal court.

NOTE:

The Class Action Fairness Act of 2005 authorizes the removal of a class action to federal court by any defendant, without regard to whether any defendant is a citizen of the state in which the action was filed, and without the consent of other defendants [28 U.S.C. § 1453(b)]. For further discussion, see § 120.13[2].

3. If class action is likely to be removed to federal district court, consider commencing class action in federal district.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Antitrust & Trade LawConsumer ProtectionDeceptive Acts & PracticesState RegulationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersDefendantsCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersNamed MembersCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesAdequacy of RepresentationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesCommonality

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.41

§ 120.41 Pleadings and Procedure

[1] Complaint

NOTE:
For a skeletal form of complaint containing allegations for use in a class action, see § 120.50.

1. If action is for or against class party, designate action as class action in caption, by placing words "CLASS ACTION," in capital letters on first page of complaint, immediately below case number but above description of nature of complaint [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.761(a)].

2. Under separate heading entitled "CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS," include following allegations describing how requirements for class certification are met [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.761(b); see § 120.40[1]]:

a. Stating that plaintiff brings action on behalf of self and all other persons similarly situated.

b. Describing class or specifying facts from which class can be ascertained.

c. Showing well-defined community of interest in questions of law and fact among potential class members, specifying any common issues to be litigated.

d. Specifying facts that illustrate the superiority of class action as method for fair and efficient adjudication of controversy, such as:
(1) Class is so numerous that joinder is impracticable.

(2) Individual damages are so small that individual actions or other individual remedies are impracticable.

(3) Class members are too poor to initiate individual suits.

(4) Legal issues posed by case are so arcane that obtaining private counsel is impracticable.

(5) Burden imposed on judicial system by multiple actions would outweigh any burdens imposed on system by class action.

(6) Multiple actions would result in inconsistent standards of conduct for defendant.

(7) Individual action would have practical effect of disposing of or impairing interests of other members of class.

(8) Public interest would be served by obtaining definitive answers to questions posed by case.

e. Specifying facts to show suitability of each named plaintiff or defendant to represent class [see § 120.40[2]]:

(1) Plaintiff or defendant has claims or defenses typical of class members.

(2) Plaintiff or defendant will fairly and adequately represent interests of class.

[2] Case Conference

NOTE:

One or more conferences between the court and counsel for the parties may be held to discuss class issues, the conduct and scheduling of discovery, scheduling of hearings, and other matters. No evidence may be presented at the conference, but counsel must be fully prepared to discuss class issues and must possess authority to enter into stipulations [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.762(a)]. Any party or the court may give notice of a conference [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.762(b), (c)].

1. If conference is desired:

a. Select date for conference [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.762(e)]:

(1) Select date after first defendant has entered appearance in case.

(2) Obtain prior approval of date from clerk of department assigned to hear case.

(3) Make reasonable efforts to accommodate schedules of all parties entitled to receive notice [see P b, below].

b. File and serve notice of conference at least 20 calendar days before scheduled date of conference [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.762(d)].

(1) If conference is called by a named plaintiff, serve notice on all named parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.762(b)].

(2) If conference is called by defendant, serve notice on all parties who have appeared in case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.762(b)].

NOTE:
If a defendant serves notice of the conference, within 10 calendar days after receiving notice the named plaintiff must serve a copy on each named party who has not appeared in the action and must submit a declaration of service. If the plaintiff is unable to serve any party, the plaintiff must submit a declaration stating the reasons for the failure of service [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.762(b)].

2. If representing named plaintiff, and conference is called by court, serve copy of notice on other parties as follows [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.762(c)]:

a. Within 10 calendar days after receipt of court's notice, serve copy of notice on all parties who have been served in action, whether they have appeared or not.

b. Submit either declaration of service or, if unable to serve any party, declaration stating reasons for failure of service.

3. Attend conference.

NOTE:
At the conclusion of the conference, the court may make an order (1) approving any stipulations of the parties, (2) establishing a schedule for discovery, (3) setting the date for the hearing on class certification, (4) setting the dates for any subsequent conferences, and (5) addressing any other matters related to management of the case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.763].

[3] Motion for Class Certification or for Determination of Other Issues

1. Identify class issues to be determined, such as:

a. Whether class should be certified [see §§ 120.12, 120.18, 120.40[1]].

b. Whether named plaintiff or defendant is suitable class representative [see §§ 120.15, 120.40[2]].

c. Identities or identifying characteristics of class members [see § 120.12[3]].

2. Prepare moving papers [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764(c)(3)]:

NOTE:
A party opposing the motion may submit a responding memorandum, evidentiary materials, and requests for judicial notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764(c)(3)].

a. Notice of motion [see § 120.51].

b. Memorandum in support of motion.

NOTE:
The opening memorandum on a motion for class certification may not exceed 20 pages. Otherwise, the memorandum is subject to the requirements that generally apply to memoranda [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764(c)(2); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113 (general requirements)]. For memoranda supporting motions relating to class issues, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 41, Class and Representative Actions (Matthew Bender).

c. Evidence in support of motion, in form of declarations of counsel, class representatives, or other appropriate declarants.

d. If applicable, any request for judicial notice.

e. If available, statement regarding class notice and proposed notice [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766(b); see also [6], below].

f. Proof of service.

NOTE:

For forms of proof of service of papers [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013], see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

g. Proposed order, including [see § 120.52].

(1) Description of class and any subclasses [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.765].

(2) If appropriate, specification of particular issues as to which class is certified [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.765(b)].

(3) If appropriate, provisions for notice to class members [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766(c); see also [6], below].

3. Serve and file papers at least 28 calendar days prior to date appointed for hearing [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764(c)(1); see also Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

NOTE:

A motion for class certification should be filed when practicable [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764(b)], and ordinarily must be decided before the court makes any decision on the substantive merits of the case [Fireside Bank v. Superior Court (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 1069, 1083, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 861, 155 P.3d 268 ; see § 120.18[2]]. In its discretion, the court may establish a deadline for the filing of the motion, as part of the case conference or as part of other case management proceedings [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.762, 3.763 (case conference); see also [2], above]. Any such deadline must take into account discovery proceedings that may be necessary to the filing of the motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764(b)]. It is an abuse of discretion for the court to make a class-certification decision without giving the parties a full opportunity to conduct discovery on class-certification issues and to brief the issues and present evidence [Stern v. Superior Court (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 223, 232-233, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 275] .

4. Review papers filed in opposition to motion, and file reply if desired.

NOTE:

A responding memorandum on a motion for class certification must not exceed 20 pages and must be served and filed at least 14 calendar days before the noticed or continued hearing, unless the court for good cause orders otherwise [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764(c)(1), (2)]. A reply memorandum must not exceed 15 pages and must be served and filed at least 5 calendar days before the noticed or continued date of the hearing, unless the court for good cause orders otherwise [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764(c)(1), (2)]. For memoranda relating to class issues, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 41, Class and Representative Actions (Matthew Bender).

5. Prior to hearing, confer with opposing counsel to try to resolve any uncontroverted issues by written stipulation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764(e)].

NOTE:
If all class issues are resolved by stipulation of the named parties and approved by the court before the hearing, no hearing on class certification is necessary [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764(e)].

6. Attend hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764(d); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1306(b) (procedures to obtain permission to present oral testimony at hearing)].

[4] Motion for Decertification of Class

1. Identify changed circumstances or new information constituting grounds for decertifying action, such as any of following:

a. Community of interest no longer exists among class members, because of any of following:
(1) Discovery or information disclosed at trial has shown that common questions of law and fact do not predominate.

(2) Individual questions of law and fact now predominate because circumstances have changed.

(3) Claims or defenses of class representatives are no longer typical of those of class members.

(4) Class representative is no longer able to represent class adequately.

b. Potential class has become too large to be manageable by court.

c. Plaintiff has not succeeded in defining ascertainable class.

d. Barriers to individual suits have been disproved or removed.

2. Follow procedures applicable to preparing, filing, and serving motion for class certification [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764(a)(4), (c)-(e); see also [3], above].

[5] Motion for Removal of Class Representative

1. Identify change in circumstances or new information that makes class representative unsuitable, such as any of following:

a. Class representative is no longer member of class.

b. Claims or defenses of class representative are no longer typical of those of class.

c. Class representative can no longer fairly and adequately represent class because either:
(1) Class representative has received special consideration from opposing party that does not accrue to class as whole.

(2) Conflict of interest between class representative and class has been discovered.

(3) Majority of class views class representative's interests as incompatible with those of class.

2. Prepare, file, and serve papers [see [3], above].

NOTE:
Although there are no specific procedures prescribed for a motion to remove a class representative, the procedures for the various motions concerning class certification may serve as a guideline [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764; see also [3], above].

[6] Notice to Potential Class Members

1. Determine whether notice of pending class action is necessary, considering following:

NOTE:
Although pre-certification notice to prospective class members is not generally authorized or required, if prospective class members' identifying information is disclosed in precertification discovery, it may be appropriate for court to order that notice be provided to prospective class members so that they may take steps to protect their privacy [Pioneer Elecs. (USA) Inc. v. Superior Court (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 360, 373-375, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 513, 150 P.3d 198] .

a. Notice generally will be required in any case in which class members will be given right to request exclusion from class [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766(d)].

NOTE:
By requiring the court to determine whether notice to class members is necessary, Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766(c)(1) implies that the court may decide not to require class notice. Before the adoption of the predecessor of Rule 3.766, which applies to all class actions, the California Supreme Court had held that Civ. Code § 1781(d), (e), which requires class notice in class actions under the Consumers Legal Remedies Act, was generally applicable to other class actions in California [Civil Service Employees Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 362, 376, 149 Cal. Rptr. 360, 584 P.2d 497] . Presumably, that holding has been superseded by the subsequent adoption of Rule 3.766, and the trial court may now decide to forgo class notice in an appropriate case.

b. In federal court, notice would be mandatory if class action is based on predominant common questions of law or fact, but not if action seeks injunctive or declaratory relief or is based on need to avoid inconsistent or varying adjudications, incompatible standards of conduct for party opposing class, or adjudications that would as practical matter dispose of or impair interests of nonparties [see Fed. Rule Civ. P., Rule 23(b), (c)(2)].

2. Determine how class members should be identified and located, such as:

a. Through defendant's business records.

b. Through news releases concerning class action.

c. Through private investigative efforts.

3. Determine appropriate method of giving notice of class action, considering following factors [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766(e)]:

NOTE:

If personal notification is unreasonably expensive or the stake of individual class members is insubstantial, or if it appears that all members of the class cannot be notified personally, the court may order a means of notice reasonably calculated to apprise the class members of the pendency of the action. In such a case, for example, appropriate means of notice may consist of publication in a newspaper or magazine; broadcasting on television, radio, or the Internet; or posting or distribution through a trade or professional association, union, or public interest group [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766(f)]. The difficulty of notifying individual class members does not, however, authorize the court to require that class members--even those with a substantial stake in the case--acknowledge personal notification by affirmatively requesting inclusion in the class. Such an "opt-in" procedure is neither required by constitutional due-process principles nor permitted by the applicable court rules [Hypertouch, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 1537-1550, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 839 ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(c)(2), Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766(e)]. For further discussion of the court's options when personal notice is impracticable, see § 120.19[3].

a. Interests of class.

b. Type of relief requested.

c. Stake of individual class members [see Cooper v. American Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 274, 285, 127 Cal. Rptr. 579].

d. Cost of notifying class members.

e. Resources of parties.

f. Possible prejudice to class members who do not receive notice.

g. Res judicata effect on class members.

4. Prepare necessary papers:

a. If representing class proponent, prepare statement regarding class notice, including all of following items [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766(b)]:

(1) Whether notice is necessary.

(2) Whether class members may exclude themselves from action.

(3) Time and manner in which notice should be given.

(4) Proposal for which parties should bear costs of notice.

(5) If cost shifting or sharing is proposed, estimate of cost involved in giving notice.

b. If representing class proponent, prepare proposed class notice, including following items [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766(d)]:

(1) Brief explanation of case, including basic contentions or denials of parties.

(2) Statement that court will exclude member from class if member so requests by specified date.

(3) Procedure for member to follow in requesting exclusion from class.

(4) Statement that judgment, whether favorable or not, will bind all members who do not request exclusion.

(5) Statement that any member who does not request exclusion may, if member so desires, enter appearance through counsel.

c. Prepare proposed order, including all of following items [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766(c)]:

(1) Whether notice to class members is necessary.

(2) Whether class members may exclude themselves from action.

(3) Time and manner of notice.

(4) Content of notice.

(5) Parties responsible for cost of notice.

d. If not part of motion to certify class, prepare motion for order approving proposed notice, along with supporting documentation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766(c), (d)].

5. File and serve papers, either as part of motion for class certification, or as separate motion.

NOTE:

Although there are no specific procedures prescribed for filing and serving a separate motion to approve a class notice, the procedures for the various motions concerning class certification may serve as a guideline [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764; see also [3], above].

[7] Settlement of Class Action

NOTE:

A settlement or compromise of an entire class action, or of a cause of action in a class action, or as to a party, requires the approval of the court after a hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.769(a)].

1. Prepare, file, and serve notice of motion and motion for preliminary approval of settlement, including all of following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.769(c)]:

a. Settlement agreement.

b. Any agreement, express or implied, that has been entered into with respect to payment of attorney's fees or submission of application for approval of attorney's fees [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.769(b)].

c. Proposed notice to class members of final approval hearing, including both of following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.769(f)]:

NOTE:
If the court has certified the action as a class action, notice of the final approval hearing must be given to the class members in the manner specified by the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.769(f)].

(1) Explanation of proposed settlement.

(2) Procedures for class members to follow in filing written objections to proposed settlement and in arranging to appear at settlement hearing and state any objections to proposed settlement.

d. If applicable, proposed order certifying provisional settlement class [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.769(d)].

e. Proposed order granting preliminary approval of settlement, including all of following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.769(e)]:

NOTE:
The proposed order must be lodged with the motion, rather than filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.769(c)].

(1) Time, date, and place of final approval hearing.

(2) Notice to be given to class.

(3) Any other matters deemed necessary for proper conduct of final settlement hearing.

2. If court grants preliminary approval:

a. If ordered to do so by court, notify class of final settlement approval hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.769(e)].

b. Attend final settlement approval hearing.

NOTE:

If the court approves the settlement agreement after the final approval hearing, the court must issue and enter judgment. The judgment must include a provision for the retention of the court's jurisdiction over the parties to enforce the terms of the judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.769(h)]. The court may not enter an order dismissing the action at the same time as, or after, entry of judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.769(h)].

[8] Dismissal of Class Action

1. File request with court to obtain dismissal of either [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.770(a)]:

NOTE:

A dismissal of an entire class action, or of a party or cause of action in a class action, requires court approval. The court may not grant a request to dismiss a class action if the court has entered judgment following final approval of a settlement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.770(a)].

a. Entire action.

b. Any party.

c. Any cause of action.

2. Include declaration setting forth following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.770(a)]:

a. Facts on which petitioner relies.

b. Whether consideration, direct or indirect, is being given for dismissal.

c. If consideration is being given for dismissal, detailed description of consideration.

3. If court issues notice of tentative disapproval, seek hearing within 15 calendar days after service of notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.770(b)].

NOTE:

If no hearing is requested within 15 days of service of the notice of tentative disapproval, the request for dismissal will be deemed denied [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.770(b)].

4. If ordered to do so by court, notify class members of dismissal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.770(c).

NOTE:

If the court dismisses an action after certifying a class, and notice of the pendency of the action has been provided to class members, notice of the dismissal must be given to the class in the manner specified by the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.770(c). If the court has not ruled on class certification, or if notice of the pendency of the action has not been provided to class members in a case in which such notice was required, notice of the proposed dismissal may be given in the manner and to those class members specified by the court, or the action may be dismissed without notice to the class members if the court finds that the dismissal will not prejudice them [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.770(c)].

[9] Petition for Writ of Mandate to Review Certification Order or Other Interlocutory Order

1. Choose appropriate review proceeding [see § 120.18[5]].

NOTE:
For a form of petition for a writ of mandate, see § 120.56. For a checklist for bringing a petition for a writ of mandate, see the procedural guide in Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition, for a checklist for procedure on appeal, see Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview .

a. Seek writ of mandate if review is sought for interlocutory orders that do not dispose of entire action, such as:
(1) Denial of class certification that operates only against class and not against named plaintiff [Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 820-821, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964 ; Rosack v. Volvo of America Corp. (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 741, 748-749, 182 Cal. Rptr. 800].

(2) Order certifying statewide rather than nationwide class [General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 247, 249, 250-252, 244 Cal. Rptr. 776].

(3) Order dismissing fewer than all class causes of action [Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 806-807, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964].

(4) Order denying motion to decertify class [see Occidental Land, Inc. v. Superior Court (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 355, 359-360, 134 Cal. Rptr. 388, 556 P.2d 750].

b. Pursue appeal rather than writ of mandate if order is denial of class certification that sounds "death knell" of class action, effectively dismissing action as to all members of class other than plaintiff [see Farwell v. Sunset Mesa Property Owners Assn., Inc. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1545, 1547, 1551-1552, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 666 ("death knell" doctrine does not authorize appeal of order sustaining demurrer with leave to amend complaint); Stephen v. Enterprise Rent-A-Car (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 806, 811, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130 ; see also § 120.18[5][a]].

2. If uncertain whether writ of mandate or appeal is appropriate, take following steps:

a. File both appeal and petition for writ of mandate.

b. Include following information in mandate petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(3)]:

(1) Notation "Related Appeal Pending" in title of petition.

(2) Title, superior court docket number, and appellate court docket number, if any, of pending appeal in first paragraph.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionDiversity JurisdictionCitizenshipGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemovalGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersNamed MembersCivil ProcedureClass ActionsDecertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesAdequacy of Representation

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 120.42-120.49

[Reserved]

§§ 120.42[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART V. FORMS

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.50

§ 120.50 Class Action Complaint--Skeletal Form

[1] FORM Class Action Complaint--Skeletal Form

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Individually and on behalf of all others similarly situated,	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	CLASS ACTION COMPLAINT FOR
vs.	)	_____ [specify, e.g., DAMAGES]
_____ [name],	)	[Amount demanded _____
[and DOES I through _____,]	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
Defendant[s].	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]
	)

_____

Plaintiff alleges:

CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

1. Plaintiff brings this action on his/her own behalf and on behalf of all persons similarly situated. The class that plaintiff represents is composed of _____ [specify facts from which class can be ascertained]. The persons in the class are so numerous[, consisting of approximately _____ individuals,] that the joinder of all such persons is impracticable and that the disposition of their claims in a class action rather than in individual actions will benefit the parties and the court.

2. There is a well-defined community of interest in the questions of law and fact involved affecting the plaintiff class in that _____ [specify common questions of law and fact to be litigated]. These questions of law and fact predominate over questions that affect only individual class members. [Proof of a common or single state of facts will establish the right of each member of the class to recover.] The claims of the plaintiff are typical of those of the class and plaintiff will fairly and adequately represent the interests of the class.

[3. There is no plain, speedy, or adequate remedy other than by maintenance of this class action since plaintiff is informed and believes that the damage to each plaintiff is relatively small (, in that _____ [specify type and amount of damages]), making it economically unfeasible to pursue remedies other than a class action. Consequently, there would be a failure of justice but for the maintenance of the present class action.]

[4. The prosecution of individual remedies by members of the plaintiff class would tend to establish inconsistent standards of conduct for the defendant and to result in the impairment of class members' rights and the disposition of their interests through actions to which they were not parties.]

[FIRST] CAUSE OF ACTION

5. [In this and subsequent paragraphs, identify defendants and their capacity, including fictitious defendants, and allege their acts and other facts, including performance of conditions precedent, that give rise to plaintiff's cause of action.]

6. Plaintiff has incurred and, during the pendency of this action, will incur expenses for attorney's fees and costs herein. Such attorney's fees and costs are necessary for the prosecution of this action and will result in a benefit to each of the members of the class. The sum of $_____ is a reasonable amount for attorney's fees herein.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For damages _____ in the sum of $_____;

[2. For interest from and after _____ [date], at the legal rate;]

[3. For exemplary and punitive damages in the sum of $_____;]

4. For the payment of plaintiff's attorney's fees out of the moneys recovered for the joint benefit of the members of the class;

5. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the individual plaintiff in this action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know its contents. The complaint is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a general form of complaint for use in a class action involving a plaintiff class [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 382, 425.10]. It includes allegations relating to the class action aspects of a complaint and excludes substantive allegations of a cause or causes of action. The allegations of this complaint should be combined with a form of complaint for a specific cause of action. For such forms, see the chapter relating to the subject of the complaint.

[3] Class Action Allegations

A complaint in a class action must contain a separate heading, entitled "CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS," under which the plaintiff describes how the requirements for class certification are met [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.761(b)]. The complaint form in [1], above, contains allegations establishing the necessary prerequisites to the maintenance of a class action under Code Civ. Proc. § 382:

- An ascertainable class (Paragraph 1).
- A community of interest (Paragraph 2).
- The superiority of the class action method for adjudicating the dispute (Paragraphs 1, 3, 4) [Daar v. Yellow Cab Co. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 695, 704, 63 Cal. Rptr. 724, 433 P.2d 732 ; Schneider v. Vennard (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1340, 1345, 228 Cal. Rptr. 800] .

Paragraph 1 establishes the superiority of the class action method by stating that the class is so large that both joinder and individual actions are impracticable.

Optional Paragraph 3 may be included in the complaint if the damage to each plaintiff is so small that the only remedy available to class members is a class action [see Reyes v. Board of Supervisors (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1263, 1274-1275, 1280, 242 Cal. Rptr. 339].

Optional Paragraph 4 may be included if the prosecution of individual actions would impair the rights of class members who were not parties to such actions and would establish inconsistent standards of conduct for the defendant.

The complaint also alleges that the named plaintiff's claims are typical of those of the class and that the named plaintiff will fairly and adequately represent the plaintiff class (Paragraph 2).

[4] Caption

A complaint for or against a class party must include in the caption the designation "CLASS ACTION," in capital letters on the first page of the complaint, immediately below the case number but above the description of the nature of the complaint [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.761(a)].

[5] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and it will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Attorney's Fees

An award of attorney's fees to class action plaintiffs may be proper under several theories, including the "private attorney general" theory [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5; see also Serrano v. Priest (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 25, 46-47, 141 Cal. Rptr. 315, 569 P.2d 1303]. For further discussion, see § 120.24.

[7] Cross References

For alternative allegations as to agency, capacity, and residence of parties, and fictitious name allegations, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used

For a form of class action complaint for declaratory relief by members of an association against the association and its officer-members, see Ch. 61, Associations and Clubs

For alternative forms of captions and introductions, see Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions

For discussion and forms relating to the format of complaints, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints

For discussion and forms relating to damages and pleading damages, see Ch. 177, Damages

For discussion of jurisdiction in California courts in general, see Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter

For alternative forms of prayers, see Ch. 420, Prayers

For a form of class action complaint for use in an action for damages under the Consumers Legal Remedies Act [Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.], based on an unlawful practice in the sale of consumer goods or services, see Ch. 504, Sales: Consumers Legal Remedies Act

For discussion and forms relating to service of summons generally, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers

For a form of class action complaint for declaratory relief to have a welfare regulation declared invalid and petition for writ of mandate to compel payment of benefits, see Ch. 527, Social Services

For forms of allegations showing proper venue, see Ch. 571, Venue

For alternative forms of verification, see Ch. 572, Verification

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART V. FORMS

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.51

§ 120.51 Notice of Motion to Determine Issues for Class Action

[1] FORM Notice of Motion to Determine Issues for Class Action

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
individually and on behalf of all others similarly situated,	)	NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION TO DETERMINE ISSUES FOR CLASS ACTION
Plaintiff,	)	Date: _____
vs.	)	Time: _____
_____ [name], [et al.,]	)	Location: _____
Defendant[s].	)	Judge: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	Trial Date: _____

_____

To each party and to the attorney of record for each party herein:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that, on _____ [date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court, located at _____ [street address], _____ [city], _____ [specify party, e.g., plaintiff _____ (name)] will, and hereby does, move for an order that _____ [specify issues to be determined, e.g., the action be certified as a class action and that _____ (name) be determined to be a suitable class representative]. The motion will be made on the grounds that _____ [specify, e.g., there is an ascertainable class, there are common, similar, and unique questions of fact and law, the class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of the controversy, and the class representative is a member of the class and is able fairly and adequately to protect the interest of the class].

The motion will be based on this notice of motion, on the declaration(s) of _____ [name(s)] and the supporting memorandum served and filed herewith, on the records and file herein, and on such evidence as may be presented at the hearing of the motion.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Use of Form

This notice of motion is for use by a class action plaintiff or defendant to establish certain issues concerning the class action, such as [see Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 820, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964 ; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.767]:

- The existence and constitution of an ascertainable class.
- The existence of common, similar, and unique questions of fact and law.
- The superiority of the class action to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of the controversy.
- The membership of the class representative in the class.
- The ability of the class representative fairly and adequately to protect the interest of the class.

This form may be used to notice a motion for a class certification order [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764; see also § 120.18[1]]. A motion for class certification should be filed when practicable [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764(b)], and ordinarily must be decided before the court makes any decision on the substantive merits of the case [Fireside Bank v. Superior Court (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 1069, 1083, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 861, 155 P.3d 268 ; see § 120.18[2]]. For detailed coverage of the procedure for making motions for class certification and related orders, see § 120.41[3].

This form may be modified for use as a notice of a case conference [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.762(b)]. For detailed coverage of the procedure for calling case conferences, see § 120.41[2].

A memorandum in support of the motion must be served and filed with this notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764(c)(2), (3); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005, 1010; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113].

[3] Cross References

For procedures and forms for use in making motions generally, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART V. FORMS

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.52

§ 120.52 Order Determining Issues for Class Action

[1] FORM Order Determining Issues for Class Action

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
individually and on behalf of all others similarly situated,	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	ORDER
vs.	)
_____ [name], [et al.,]	)
Defendant[s].	)
	)

The motion of _____ [identify party, e.g., plaintiff] for an order came on regularly for hearing by the court on _____ [date]. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____ [name]; defendant appeared by counsel _____ [name].

On proof made to the satisfaction of the court that the motion ought to be granted,

IT IS ORDERED as follows:

1. _____ [Specify, e.g., An ascertainable class exists composed of _____ (specify facts identifying the constitution of the class)].

2. _____ [Specify, e.g., The issues of fact and law that are common to all class members in this action are _____ (specify)].

3. _____ [Specify, e.g., The issues of fact and law that are similar for all class members in this action are _____ (specify)].

4. _____ [Specify, e.g., The issues of fact and law that are unique to each class member in this action are _____ (specify)].

5. A class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of the controversy.

6. The class _____ [representative is a member or representatives are members] of the class and is/are able fairly and adequately to protect the interests of the class.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use with a motion for determination of class issues [see § 120.51]. If the issues are not all considered at the same hearing, the form may be modified to address only those issues addressed at one hearing [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.767].

If the form is used for an order denying certification or otherwise determining that the action cannot proceed as a class action, it may include an order dismissing the action if certain requirements have been met [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.770; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 581]. For discussion of issues pertaining to the dismissal of class actions, see § 120.17[4]. For detailed coverage of the procedure for dismissal of a class action, see § 120.41[8].

[3] Cross References

For alternative forms of orders, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders

For a selection of orders actually entered in class actions, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Appendix (Matthew Bender)

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART V. FORMS

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.53

§ 120.53 Notice of Motion to Approve Notice to Class Members

[1] FORM Notice of Motion to Approve Notice to Class Members

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
individually and on behalf of all others similarly situated,	)	NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION FOR ORDER TO NOTIFY CLASS MEMBERS OF PENDING ACTION
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	Date: _____
_____ [name], [et al.,]	)	Time: _____
Defendant[s].	)	Location: _____
	)	Judge: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		Trial Date: _____

_____

To each party and to the attorney of record for each party herein:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that, on _____ [date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court, located at _____ [street address], _____ [city], _____ [specify party, e.g., plaintiff _____ (name)] will, and hereby does, move for an order requiring _____ [defendant or plaintiff] to notify each member of the class of the pendency of this action. The motion will be made on the ground that _____ [personal or published] notice of the pendency of this action is necessary to adjudicate the claims of the class.

The motion will be based on this notice of motion, on the declaration(s) of _____ [name(s)] and the supporting memorandum served and filed herewith, on the records and file herein, and on such evidence as may be presented at the hearing of the motion.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Use of Form

This notice of motion is for use by a class action plaintiff or defendant to obtain an order requiring one of the parties to give notice to the members of the class of the pendency of the action [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766]. For detailed coverage of the procedure for class notice, see § 120.41[6].

This form may be combined with a notice of a case conference or a notice of motion for a class certification order [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.762(b), 3.764; see also § 120.51]. For detailed coverage of the procedure for calling case conferences, see § 120.41[2]. For detailed coverage of the procedure for making motions for class certification and related orders, see § 120.41[3].

A statement regarding class notice, as well as a memorandum in support of the motion, must be served and filed with this notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.764(c)(2), (3); see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005, 1010; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113].

[3] Cross References

For procedures and forms for use in making motions generally, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART V. FORMS

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.54

§ 120.54 Order on Motion to Approve Notice to Class Members

[1] FORM Order on Motion to Approve Notice to Class Members

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
individually and on behalf of all others similarly situated,	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	ORDER
vs.	)
_____ [name], [et al.,]	)
Defendant[s].	)
	)

The motion of _____ [identify party, e.g., plaintiff] for an order came on regularly for hearing by the court on _____ [date]. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____ [name]; defendant appeared by counsel _____ [name].

On proof made to the satisfaction of the court that the motion ought to be granted,

THE COURT FINDS the following:

1. Notice to class members is necessary, and

2. Class members _____ [may or may not] exclude themselves from this action.

ACCORDINGLY, IT IS ORDERED as follows:

1. Notice shall be given to the class members identified herein by _____ [specify manner of notice, e.g., personal service of the notice on each class member or mailing a copy of the notice by first-class mail, postage prepaid, to each class member at his or her last known address (as supplied by defendant's business records) or publication of the notice as specified in Government Code Section 6064]. _____ [Plaintiff or Defendant] shall be responsible for providing notice as specified herein and shall file an affidavit with the court on compliance with this order, setting forth the manner in which notice was provided and _____ [showing proof of service for each class member or giving the names and addresses of those notified or giving the name of the newspaper in which the notice was published and the dates of publication, and showing proof of publication]. The cost of providing the notice shall be borne by _____ [specify, e.g., plaintiff and defendant in equal portions].

2. The notice of pendency of class action shall be in the form of the notice attached to this order.

3. The date specified in the notice relating to a request for exclusion will be a date specified by plaintiff which shall be not less than _____ or more than _____ days from the date of _____ [service or mailing or publication] of the notice.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use with a motion to approve notice of a class action to class members [see § 120.53]. A copy of the approved notice [see § 120.55] should be attached.

[3] Determination of Necessity of Notice

On certification of the class, or as soon thereafter as practicable, the court must make an order determining whether notice is necessary, and whether class members may exclude themselves from the action. If notice is necessary, the court's order must also determine the time, manner, and content of the notice, and the parties responsible for the cost of notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766(c)]. For detailed coverage of the procedure for class notice, see § 120.41[6].

[4] Cross References

For alternative forms of orders, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders

For a selection of orders actually entered in class actions, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Appendix (Matthew Bender)

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART V. FORMS

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.55

§ 120.55 Notice of Pendency of Class Action

[1] FORM Notice of Pendency of Class Action

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
individually and on behalf of all others similarly situated,	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	NOTICE OF PENDENCY OF CLASS ACTION
vs.	)
_____ [name], [et al.,]	)
Defendant[s].	)
	)

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT:

1. The plaintiffs named below have brought an action in this court against the following defendant(s): _____ [names].

The plaintiffs who are named in this action are as follows: _____ [names].

2. The named plaintiffs allege that this action is brought not only on behalf of themselves but on behalf of all _____ [identify class].

3. On _____ (date), this court certified this action to proceed as a class action.

4. The named plaintiffs allege that _____ [set forth allegations and contentions of plaintiff in narrative form]. The plaintiffs' action therefore requests _____ [specify relief sought].

Defendant(s) contends/contend _____ [set forth contentions of defendant(s), including denials, in narrative form].

5. If you do not wish to be considered a member of this class and to be represented by the plaintiffs named above, you may be excluded from the action by mailing a letter requesting exclusion from the class to _____ [name, title, and address of court clerk], which must be postmarked on or before _____ [date]. The letter should include the name and number of the case (_____ [case name and number]), your name and address, and a clear statement that you do not wish to be considered a member of the class and do not wish to be bound by the judgment in the action.

Under the rule of res judicata, also known as claim preclusion, the judgment--whether favorable or not--will include all class members who do not request exclusion by a letter, as described above, postmarked on or before _____ [date].

6. If you do not request exclusion from the class, you may be subjected to a cross complaint or to some other affirmative action by defendants.

7. You are further notified that, although this action is pending, defendants are not prevented in any way from exercising all remedies available by contract and law.

8. If you do not request exclusion, this action will be maintained on your behalf by the attorney(s) mentioned above. If you wish, you may enter an appearance in the case through counsel. In addition, you may move the court for permission to appear as a named class corepresentative. You may also move to associate additional counsel to represent the class.

9. The estimated total amount of recovery in the action is $_____. The anticipated fee that will be sought by counsel for the class is $_____, and the anticipated other expenses and costs to the class that will be paid from the funds recovered before distribution of the net proceeds to class members are $_____. The estimated net amount to be recovered by each member if the action is successful is _____ [specify dollar amount or formula to be used to determine amount of individual recovery]. No fees or costs will be assessed against class members if the plaintiffs do not prevail in the action.

10. Further information concerning this action may be obtained by contacting the attorneys for the parties in this action who are as follows:

1. Attorney for Plaintiffs:

_____ [name]

_____ [firm name, if any]

_____ [address]

_____ [telephone]

2. Attorney for Defendants:

_____ [name]

_____ [firm name, if any]

_____ [address]

_____ [telephone]

You are also encouraged to consult your own attorney concerning this action, particularly if there is any part of this notice you do not understand.

11. It should be understood that the court in this action does not at present express any opinion as to the merits of the action.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use in a class action to notify the members of the class of the pendency of the action. For a form of notice of motion and order approving the notice, see §§ 120.53, 120.54.

[3] Contents of Notice

The content of the class notice is subject to court approval. If the court decides that class members are to be given the right to request exclusion from the class, the notice must include the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.766(d)]:

- A brief explanation of the case, including the basic contentions or denials of the parties;
- A statement that the court will exclude the member from the class if the member so requests by a specified date;
- A procedure for the member to follow in requesting exclusion from the class;
- A statement that the judgment, whether favorable or not, will bind all members who do not request exclusion; and
- A statement that any member who does not request exclusion may, if the member so desires, enter an appearance through counsel.

The foregoing form of notice identifies the parties to the action (Paragraph 1) and their attorneys (Paragraph 10), states that the action is being brought by named plaintiffs on behalf of all members of the class (Paragraph 2), and describes the cause of action and the relief requested (Paragraph 4). The notice states that the court will exclude the member notified from the class if he or she so requests by a specified date (Paragraph 5), that other consequences may follow as a result of being a member (Paragraphs 6, 7), and that any member who does not request exclusion may enter an appearance through counsel and may move the court for permission to appear as a named class corepresentative and to associate additional counsel to represent the class (Paragraph 8). Additionally, the notice states the estimated total recovery in the action; the net amount to be recovered by each member of the class; and the anticipated attorney's fees, other expenses, and costs (Paragraph 9). It also states that the court does not express any opinion as to the merits of the action (Paragraph 11).

For further discussion of notice requirements, see § 120.19. For detailed coverage of the procedure for class notice, see § 120.41[6].

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART V. FORMS

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.56

§ 120.56 Petition for Writ of Mandate to Review Certification Order or Other Interlocutory Order

[1] FORM Petition for Writ of Mandate to Review Certification Order or Other Interlocutory Order

COURT OF APPEAL,
_____ APPELLATE DISTRICT
STATE OF CALIFORNIA
[or other as appropriate]

_____ [name],	)
individually and on behalf of all others similarly situated,	)
Petitioner,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE [if related appeal is pending, add: RELATED APPEAL PENDING]
THE SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF _____,	)
Respondent.	)
_____ [name],	)
Real Party in Interest.	)

TO _____ [specify, e.g., THE HONORABLE PRESIDING JUSTICE AND THE ASSOCIATE JUSTICES OF THE COURT OF APPEAL OF THE _____ APPELLATE DISTRICT, DIVISION _____ (number)], STATE OF CALIFORNIA:

Petitioner alleges:

[1. A related appeal is pending in the case entitled _____ (title of case), No. _____ in the Superior Court of _____ County and No. _____ in the _____ (specify appellate court and appellate court docket number, if any).]

2. This is an action brought to compel the respondent court _____ [specify nature of writ sought, e.g., to allow petitioners to continue a class cause of action for _____ (specify, e.g., damages) alleging _____ (specify, e.g., discriminatory employment practices by _____ (name), real party in interest)].

3. The class action was brought by _____ [petitioners or _____ (name), real party in interest], on behalf of themselves and other _____ [specify facts constituting class, e.g., women employed by _____ (name) between the dates of _____, and _____, who were wrongfully and illegally denied promotional opportunities].

4. On _____ [date], respondent court _____ [describe order giving rise to writ petition, e.g., decertified the class action and dismissed the action as to the unnamed class members, because _____ (summarize grounds for respondent court's order)]. A copy of that order is attached as Exhibit A and made a part hereof. Copies of all documents and exhibits submitted to respondent court supporting and opposing petitioners' position, copies of other documents submitted to respondent court, and a transcript of the proceedings leading to the respondent court's order are attached as Exhibits B--D and made a part hereof.

5. Petitioners are beneficially interested in the issuance of a writ by virtue of the fact that _____ [specify, e.g., each petitioner will have to litigate his/her damages action against _____ (defendant's name) individually if a class action is not allowed].

[ALLEGE facts showing petitioner's entitlement to requested relief in as many paragraphs as necessary, for example:]

6. Petitioners are entitled to maintain the action as a class action because of the following:

a. There is a community of interest among the class members in that (1) the following common questions of law and fact predominate in the action: _____ [specify common questions]; (2) the _____ [claims or defenses] of _____ and _____ [names of class representatives] are typical of the class in that _____ [set forth facts showing typicality of claims or defenses of representatives]; and (3) _____ [name of class representative] can therefore adequately represent the class.

b. There is an ascertainable class consisting of _____ [specify facts constituting class, e.g., women employed by _____ (name) between the dates of _____, and _____, who were wrongfully and illegally denied promotional opportunities]. The names and addresses of all the members of the class can be definitely ascertained from the books and records of _____ [defendant's name].

7. There are also important policy reasons for allowing the action to proceed as a class action, as follows:

a. Individual class members lack the economic resources to mount individual lawsuits.

b. Allowance of a class suit will deter _____ [name] from continuing its illegal and discriminatory employment practices.

c. The issues that may be jointly tried, when compared with those requiring separate adjudication, are so numerous or substantial that maintenance of the action as a class action would be advantageous to the judicial process and the litigants.

[CONTINUE]

8. Petitioners have no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy at law by appeal from the _____ [date], order of respondent court because _____ [specify, e.g., the order of the court is not a final judgment and therefore is not appealable within the terms of Code of Civil Procedure Section 904.1, which allows appeal from final judgments and certain interlocutory orders of the Superior Court].

9. Respondent court has a duty _____ [specify nature of duty, e.g., to allow a class action to proceed if there is an ascertainable class with a community of interest in predominant questions of law and fact, and adjudication of the controversy by way of a class action will substantially benefit the litigants and the court]. At all times herein mentioned, respondent court could perform its duty. Nevertheless, respondent court will not _____ [specify, e.g., allow petitioners to continue their class cause of action for _____ (specify, e.g., damages) until this court rules that such an action is permissible and in fact required in California under the circumstances pleaded in petitioner's complaint].

WHEREFORE, petitioners pray judgment as follows:

1. That this court issue its alternative writ of mandate commanding respondent

a. To vacate [that portion of] its order of _____ [date] that _____ [specify, e.g., decertified action No. _____ as a class action and dismissed the action as to the unnamed class members]; and

b. To order respondent _____ [specify, e.g., to allow petitioners to continue to maintain action No. _____ as a class action on behalf of women employed by _____ (defendant's name) between the dates of _____, and _____, who were wrongfully and illegally denied promotional opportunities] or to show cause before this court at a specified time and place why it has not done so and why a peremptory writ should not issue;

2. That, on the hearing of this petition and the return thereto, if any, this court issue its peremptory writ of mandate commanding respondent

a. To vacate [that portion of] its order of _____ [date] that _____ [specify, e.g., decertified action No. _____ as a class action and dismissed the action as to the unnamed class members]; and

b. _____ [Specify, e.g., To allow petitioners to continue to maintain action No. _____ as a class action on behalf of women employed by _____ (defendant's name) between the dates of _____, and _____, who were wrongfully and illegally denied promotional opportunities].

3. For costs incurred in this proceeding; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the petitioner in the above-entitled proceeding. I have read the foregoing petition and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]
_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

This form of petition for a writ of mandate is for use to obtain review of an nonappealable (for example, nonfinal) order of the trial court in a class action. It may be used by the plaintiff, for example, to obtain an order compelling the trial court to allow the action to proceed as a class action. It may also be used by the defendant to obtain an order compelling the court to decertify the class or remove the named class representatives.

A petition for a writ of mandate must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086]. Generally, proof of service on each respondent and real party in interest of a copy of a petition that seeks an alternative writ must accompany the petition when it is offered for filing. However, the court may, in its discretion and for good cause, grant the application for the writ ex parte [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition]. If no alternative writ is sought, proof of service of a copy of the petition need not accompany the application, but proof of service of a copy of the filed petition must be lodged with the court before a hearing or any action by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5].

Because the petition seeks review of a trial court ruling, it must also be accompanied by a record adequate to permit review, including (1) copies of the ruling from which the petition seeks relief, (2) copies of all documents and exhibits submitted to the trial court supporting and opposing the petitioner's position, and (3) any other documents or portions of documents submitted to the trial court that are necessary for a complete understanding of the case and the ruling under review [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b)(1)(A)-(C); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(c) (form of supporting documents)]. In exigent circumstances, these documents may be omitted if counsel (or the petitioner, if unrepresented) files a declaration explaining the urgency and the circumstances making the documents unavailable and fairly summarizing their substance [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b)(2)].

The record must also include a reporter's transcript of the oral proceedings that resulted in the ruling under review [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b)(1)(D)]. If a reporter's transcript is unavailable, the record must include a declaration by counsel (or the petitioner, if unrepresented) stating that a transcript has been ordered and is expected to be filed on a certain date, or if no transcript is available, explaining its unavailability and fairly summarizing the proceedings, including the parties' arguments and any statement by the court supporting its ruling [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b)(3)]. If the petitioner does not submit the required record or explanations, or does not present facts sufficient to excuse the failure to submit them, the court may summarily deny the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b)(4)].

The petition must also be accompanied by a Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208]. Generally, if the petitioner knows of any other person or entity that has a financial or other interest in the outcome of the proceeding that the petitioner reasonably believes the justices of the appellate court should consider in determining whether to disqualify themselves under the Code of Judicial Ethics, the petitioner's certificate must list that entity or person and identify the nature of the interest of the person or entity [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(e)(2); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(e)(1) (if party is entity as defined by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(c)(2), that party's certificate must list any other entity or person that party knows has ownership interest of 10 percent or more in that party)]. If the petitioner knows of no entity or person that must be listed, the petitioner must so state in the certificate [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(e)(3)].

[3] Contents of Petition

A petition for a writ of mandate should allege facts showing (1) that the petitioner is a beneficially interested party (Paragraph 5) [Funeral Directors Asso. v. Board of Funeral Directors & Embalmers (1944) 67 Cal. App. 2d 311, 313, 154 P.2d 39] ; (2) that proper grounds exist (Paragraphs 6-9) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1085] compelling performance of an act that the law specially enjoins; and (3) that the petitioner has no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law (Paragraph 8) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086].

If the petition seeks review of trial court proceedings that are also the subject of a pending appeal, the title of the petition must include the notation "Related Appeal Pending," and the first paragraph must set forth the title, superior court docket number, and appellate court docket number, if any, of the pending appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(3)]. This information is provided in Paragraph 1 of this form.

[4] Alternative Writ

The wording of the alternative writ of mandate is dictated by the court and the writ is usually prepared by the court. For a form of alternative writ of mandate, if counsel is requested to prepare the writ, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 120 CLASS ACTIONS *
PART V. FORMS

12-120 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 120.57

§ 120.57 Declaration in Support of Motion to Dismiss Class Action--Settlement of Underlying Dispute

[1] FORM Declaration in Support of Motion to Dismiss Class Action--Settlement of Underlying Dispute

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
individually and on behalf of all others similarly situated,	)	DECLARATION OF _____ [name] IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR DISMISSAL OF CLASS ACTION
Plaintiff,	)	Date: _____
vs.	)	Time: _____
_____ [name],	)	Location: _____
[et al.,]	)	Judge: _____
Defendant[s].	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	Trial Date: _____

_____

I, _____ [name], declare:

1. I am _____ [identify declarant, e.g., an attorney at law duly admitted to practice before all the courts of the State of California and the attorney of record herein for _____ [identify moving party or make other statement as appropriate].

2. _____ [Set forth facts of settlement, e.g., On _____ (date), plaintiff and defendant in the above-entitled action reached agreement under which defendant will pay to plaintiff $_____ as a class fund for distribution to class members as shall be determined by the Court. In consideration of this amount, plaintiff agreed to dismiss the above-entitled action against defendant (with prejudice). A copy of the settlement agreement is attached to this declaration and incorporated by reference as though fully set forth herein.]

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use to support a motion requesting dismissal of a class action on the grounds that the parties have settled the underlying dispute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (format for declaration under penalty of perjury)]. The declaration is intended to accompany the mandatory Judicial Council form of a request for voluntary dismissal [see Code Civ. Proc. § 581]. For an illustration of that form and discussion of dismissal generally, see Ch. 212, Dismissal .

[3] Contents of Declaration

The declaration must clearly state whether consideration, direct or indirect, is being given for the dismissal and must describe the consideration in detail [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.770(a)]. The court may grant the request without a hearing. If the request is disapproved, notice of tentative disapproval must be sent to the attorneys of record, and any party may seek a hearing on the request within 15 calendar days of the service of the notice of tentative disapproval. If no hearing is sought within that period, the request for dismissal is deemed denied [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.770(b)].

* Portions of this chapter have been adapted from Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 121.syn

§ 121.syn Synopsis to Chapter 121: COMMON COUNTS

§ 121.01 Scope

§ 121.02 Cross References

§§ 121.03-121.09 [Reserved]

§ 121.10 Governing Law

§ 121.11 History and Definition

§ 121.12 Generic Types of Common Counts

§ 121.13 Effect of Express Contract

[1] When Common Counts May be Pleaded

[2] When Common Counts May Not be Pleaded

[3] When Defendant's Obligation Is Conditional

[4] When Plaintiff's Obligation Is to Fulfill Condition Precedent Before Pleading

§ 121.14 Waiver of Tort and Use of Common Counts to Sue on Implied Contract

[1] In General

[2] Particular Count Elected Affects Amount of Recovery

§ 121.15 Statute of Limitations

§ 121.16 Allegations in Complaint

[1] In General

[2] Demand

[3] Consideration and Promise

[4] Date of Indebtedness

[5] When Fraud Is Pleaded as Common Count

[6] When Claim Is Based on Express Contract

§ 121.17 Answer

[1] When General Denial Is Sufficient

[2] When Special Pleading Is Required

§ 121.18 Consolidation of Actions

§ 121.19 Joinder of Common and Specifically Pleaded Counts

§ 121.20 Demurrers to Common Counts

§ 121.21 Evidence

[1] Implied Contract as Evidence

[2] Special Contract as Evidence

§ 121.22 Burden of Proof; Defenses

§ 121.23 Particular Counts Generally

§ 121.24 Indebitatus Counts (Counts for Fixed Amount)

[1] Money Had and Received

[a] In General

[b] When Action Is Available

[c] Allegations When Pleading Money Had and Received; When Demand Is Required

[d] Defenses

[2] Money Lent

[3] Money Paid

[4] Money Lent and Money Paid Distinguished

[5] Work and Labor (Services)

[a] In General

[b] Allegations When Pleading Work and Labor (Services)

[6] Goods Sold and Delivered

§ 121.25 Quantum Counts (Counts for Reasonable Value)

[1] In General

[2] Quantum Meruit (Services)

[a] In General

[b] When Action Is Available

[c] Allegations When Pleading Quantum Meruit (Services)

[d] Defenses

[3] Quantum Valebant (Goods Sold)

§ 121.26 Bill of Particulars

[1] In General

[2] When Procedure Is Available

[3] Distinguished From Discovery

[4] Effect of Bill

[5] Procedure to Obtain Bill

[a] Defendant's Demand

[b] Form and Contents

[c] Delivery of Account by Plaintiff

[6] Motion for Further Bill of Particulars

[7] Motion to Preclude Introduction of Evidence at Trial for Failure to Deliver Bill

§§ 121.27-121.39 [Reserved]

§ 121.40 California Points and Authorities

§ 121.41 State Statutes

§ 121.42 Decisions

[1] Governing Law

[2] Nature of Common Count Action

[3] Effect of Express Contract

[a] When Common Counts May Be Pleaded

[b] When Common Counts May Not Be Pleaded

[c] When Defendant's Obligation Is Conditional

[4] Waiver of Tort and Use of Common Counts to Sue on Implied Contract

[5] Mistake of Fact

[6] Statute of Limitations

[7] Allegations in Complaint

[8] Answer

[9] Consolidation of Actions

[10] Joinder of Common and Specifically Pleaded Counts

[11] Demurrers

[12] Evidence

[13] Burden of Proof

[14] Measure of Damages

[15] Defenses

[a] In General

[b] Statute of Limitations

[16] Indebitatus Counts (Counts for Fixed Amount)

[a] Goods Sold and Delivered

[b] Money Had and Received

[c] Money Lent

[d] Money Paid

[e] Work and Labor (Services)

[17] Quantum Counts (Counts for Reasonable Value)

[a] Quantum Meruit

[b] Quantum Valebant

[18] Book Account

[19] Bill of Particulars

§ 121.43 Law Reviews

§ 121.44 Text References

§§ 121.45-121.49 [Reserved]

§ 121.50 Judicial Council Trial Court Pleading Form [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(a)]

[1] FORMS

[a] Complaint Based on Contract [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(a), (b); Judicial Council Form PLD-C-001]

[b] Common Counts Cause of Action (Attachment to Complaint on Contract) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(a), (b); Judicial Council Form PLD-C-001(2)]

[2] Use of Forms

[3] Use of Judicial Council Form Optional

[4] Attachment of Common Counts Cause of Action to Complaint

[5] Prayer

[6] Statutes of Limitations in Common Counts Attachment

[7] Appropriate Count on Common Counts Attachment

[8] Amount Due and Prejudgment Interest

[9] Attorney's Fees

[10] Other Allegations

[11] Verification

[12] Cross References

§ 121.51 Complaint for Money Had and Received (Indebitatus Assumpsit)

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Joinder of Counts

[5] Jurisdiction

[6] Verification

[7] Venue

[8] Special Rules for Actions Involving Installment Sales, Automotive Sales, and Other Consumer Obligations

§ 121.52 Complaint to Recover Amount of Overpayment Made Under Mistake of Fact; First Count Based on Implied Contract, Second Count Based on Common Count for Money Had and Received [Civ. Code § 1577]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Cross References

§ 121.53 Complaint for Money Lent (Indebitatus Assumpsit)

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

§ 121.54 Complaint for Money Paid (Indebitatus Assumpsit)

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

§ 121.55 Complaint for Work, Labor, Services and Materials at Agreed Price (Indebitatus Assumpsit)

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Amount of Recovery

§ 121.56 Complaint for Goods Sold and Delivered at Agreed Price (Indebitatus Assumpsit)

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

§ 121.57 Complaint for Reasonable Value of Work, Labor, and Services (Quantum Meruit)

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Recovery under Quantum Meruit

§ 121.58 Complaint for Reasonable Value of Goods Sold and Delivered (Quantum Valebant)

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

§ 121.59 Demand for Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Availability of Bill of Particulars

[4] Time for Making Demand for Bill of Particulars

[5] Form of Demand

[6] Demand Generally Not Filed With Court

§ 121.60 Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Considerations in Furnishing Bill of Particulars

[4] Verification

[5] Bill Generally Not Filed With Court

§ 121.61 Notice of Motion for Further Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 121.62 Declaration Under Penalty of Perjury in Support of Notice of Motion for Further Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 121.63 Order for Further Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 121.64 Notice of Motion to Preclude Introduction of Evidence for Failure to Provide Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 121.65 Declaration Under Penalty of Perjury in Support of Notice of Motion for Order to Preclude Introduction of Evidence for Failure to Furnish Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 121.66 Declaration Under Penalty of Perjury in Opposition to Notice of Motion for Order to Preclude

Introduction of Evidence for Failure to Provide Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 121.67 Order to Preclude Introduction of Evidence for Failure to Provide Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125

Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS

PART I. SCOPE

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.01

§ 121.01 Scope

This chapter discusses the various forms for use in actions pleaded on the common counts. The chapter focuses on the common counts for money lent, money paid, money had and received, goods sold and delivered, and recovery of an agreed sum or of the reasonable value of work, labor, services, and materials. In addition to those common counts discussed in this chapter, the common counts also include counts for account stated and on open account. These counts are covered in Ch. 8, Accounts Stated and Open Accounts .

This chapter includes illustrations of the Judicial Council forms for a complaint based on contract and for a cause of action based on the common counts, to be attached to that complaint [§ 121.50]. It also includes the following drafted forms:

- Complaint for money had and received (indebitatus assumpsit) [§ 121.51].
- Complaint to recover money paid by mistake [§ 121.52].
- Complaints for money lent and money paid (indebitatus assumpsit) [§§ 121.53, 121.54].
- Complaint for work, labor, services, and materials at an agreed price (indebitatus assumpsit) [§ 121.55].
- Complaint for goods sold and delivered at an agreed price (indebitatus assumpsit) [§ 121.56].
- Complaint for the reasonable value of services (quantum meruit) [§ 121.57].
- Complaint for the reasonable value of goods sold and delivered (quantum valebant) [§ 121.58].

Other forms include the following:

- Demand of a bill of particulars [§ 121.59].

- Bill of particulars [§ 121.60].

- Notice of motion [§ 121.61] and supporting declaration [§ 121.62] for an order requiring a further bill of particulars.

- Order to provide, or denying the motion for, a further bill of particulars [§ 121.63].

- Notice of motion to preclude the introduction of evidence at trial for failure to furnish a bill or further bill of particulars [§ 121.64] and supporting [§ 121.65] and opposing [§ 121.65] declarations.

- Order to preclude the introduction of evidence at trial for failure to furnish a bill of particulars [§ 121.67].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesEquitable AccountingsGeneral OverviewContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionAssumpsitContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionMoney Had & Received

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART I. SCOPE

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.02

§ 121.02 Cross References

For discussion of the common count of account stated and open book account, see Ch. 8, Accounts Stated and Open Accounts

For alternative allegations of the parties' capacity, residence, fictitious name, and agency relationships, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used

For discussion of the effect of verification of a complaint on the answer, refer to Ch. 26, Answers

For alternative forms of captions and introductions, see Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions

For general information relating to the use of Judicial Council complaint forms, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

For discussion of the Judicial Council form Complaint--Contract, and instructions on how to complete the form, see Ch. 140, Contracts

For discussion of attorney's fees awards pursuant to a contract and forms for their recovery, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.50 et seq.

For alternative forms of prayers, see Ch. 420, Prayers

For coverage of burden of proof, see Ch. 551, Trial

For alternative forms of verification, see Ch. 572, Verification

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAnswersCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesEquitable AccountingsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART I. SCOPE

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 121.03-121.09

[Reserved]

§§ 121.03[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.10

§ 121.10 Governing Law

As an exception to the principles of modern code pleading [see § 121.11], common counts are pleadings generally governed by case law [Pike v. Zadig (1915) 171 Cal. 273, 276, 152 P. 923] . Many of the precedent decisions on common count pleadings are quite old. However, caution should be exercised in relying on older authorities, even if a particular case has not been overruled, because there may have been developments in the law, or in public policy, that would cause a modern court to find the implications of the case to be obsolete [see, e.g., Earhart v. William Low Co. (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 503, 506, 514, 158 Cal. Rptr. 887, 600 P.2d 1344] (rejecting notion that compliance with defendant's request, when defendant is not direct beneficiary, is insufficient to support recovery on quantum meruit)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral OverviewContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionAssumpsitContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionMoney Had & Received

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.11

§ 121.11 History and Definition

The common counts were historically used in the common law action of assumpsit (or promise) to plead an indebtedness. An action of assumpsit was brought on a contract implied by law, rather than on an express contract, to require a defendant to pay to a plaintiff what was in good conscience owed the plaintiff [see Corbin on Contracts, vol. 1, § 20].

A "common count" is an abbreviated, stereotyped statement to the effect that the defendant is indebted to the plaintiff for a particular sum, for a particular reason, such as "money had and received," "goods sold and delivered," "work and labor done," or "materials furnished" [see Philpott v. Superior Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 512, 518, 36 P.2d 635] . Thus, a common count claim alleges the indebtedness not by stating the specific facts of the case, but by stating generalized facts that imply a legal conclusion.

Courts generally use the terms "assumpsit" and "common counts" interchangeably [see Corbin on Contracts, vol. 1, §§ 19, 20; vol. 2, § 330].

The form of the common count does not appear to conform to the requirements of code pleading [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(1) (requirements that facts constituting cause of action be stated in ordinary and concise language)]. Nevertheless, California courts, recognizing the familiarity of lawyers with this abbreviated form of pleading, have expressly sanctioned its continued use [see, e.g., Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 778, 793, 256 P.2d 947 ; Pike v. Zadig (1915) 171 Cal. 273, 276, 152 P. 923] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts LawBreachCauses of ActionAssumpsitContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionMoney Had & ReceivedContracts LawTypes of ContractsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.12

§ 121.12 Generic Types of Common Counts

There are two generic types of counts: (1) indebitatus counts, or counts for fixed amounts; and (2) quantum counts, or counts for the reasonable value of services or materials. Indebitatus counts include money had and received, money lent or paid, work and labor, and goods sold and delivered. Indebitatus counts also include counts for account stated and on open account. These counts are detailed in Ch. 8, Accounts Stated and Open Accounts and are not discussed here. Quantum counts include quantum meruit ("as much as he deserves") and quantum valebant ("as much as they were worth") [see Black's Law Dictionary 1119 (5th ed. 1979)].

The particular types of common counts in general use are discussed under §§ 121.23 -121.25.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesEquitable AccountingsGeneral OverviewContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionAssumpsitContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionMoney Had & ReceivedContracts LawRemediesEquitable ReliefQuantum Meruit

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.13

§ 121.13 Effect of Express Contract

[1] When Common Counts May be Pleaded

The general rule that a common count ordinarily cannot be used in an action on an express contract is misleading. The extensive use of common counts in actions for strict quasi-contractual recovery confirms a more realistic rule that a common count is proper whenever the plaintiff has performed an obligation to an express contract and what remains is the defendant's obligation to pay a sum of money due (as an indebtedness in a certain sum or for the reasonable value of services or goods furnished). It is immaterial whether the proof shows the original transaction to be an express contract, a contract implied in fact, or a quasi-contract [Kawasho Internat. (U.S.A.), Inc. v. Lakewood Pipe Service, Inc. (1983) 152 Cal. App. 3d 785, 793, 201 Cal. Rptr. 640 ; see Castagnino v. Balletta (1889) 82 Cal. 250, 258, 23 P. 127 (express contracts); see also Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 778, 793, 256 P.2d 947 (implied-in-fact contracts)].

The use of a common count pleading is appropriate with an express contract when the contract is no longer executory (that is, it has been fully performed) and the only remaining obligation is the defendant's duty to pay a sum certain [Ferro v. Citizens Nat. Trust & Sav. Bank (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 401, 282 P.2d 849 ; see, generally, King, The Use of the Common Counts in California, 14 S. Cal. L. Rev. 288 (1941)].

A common count also may be used when complete performance has been prevented by the defendant, or when the contract has been modified or deviated from by consent of the parties, and the plaintiff has fully performed [Rains v. Arnett (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 337, 343-344, 11 Cal. Rptr. 299] . A common count is also used in an action for restitution based on rescission for innocent misrepresentation [Crocker-Anglo Nat. Bank v. Kuchman (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 490, 496, 36 Cal. Rptr. 806] .

In California, contrary to the general rule that common counts may be used only for the recovery of money [see § 121.13[2]], when property has been converted, the plaintiff may elect to waive the tort and sue in assumpsit, even if the defendant has not sold or converted the property into money [Los Angeles Drug Co. v. Superior Court (1936) 8 Cal. 2d 71, 74, 63 P.2d 1124 ; see § 121.14[1]].

[2] When Common Counts May Not be Pleaded

Common counts may not be used in an action based on an express contract when the contract remains "executory," that is, when the contract has not been fully performed by the plaintiff [Castagnino v. Balletta (1889) 82 Cal. 250, 258, 23 P. 127] . Similarly, common counts may not be used when the recovery sought is something other than the payment of money [Allen v. Merchants Elec. Co. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 67, 69, 4 Cal. Rptr. 527, 351 P.2d 799 ; see Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 778, 793, 256 P.2d 947 (plaintiff sought specific performance); King v. San Jose Pacific Bldg. & Loan Asso. (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 705, 708, 107 P.2d 442 (plaintiff sought damages for breach)].

When the relief sought varies as slightly as delivery of a promissory note instead of money, use of the common counts also is improper [Willett & Burr v. Alpert (1919) 181 Cal. 652, 659-660, 185 P. 976 ; but see Los Angeles Drug Co. v. Superior Court (1936) 8 Cal. 2d 71, 74, 63 P.2d 1124 ; see also § 121.13[1]].

Further, even though an express contract was fraudulently procured, no action in implied contract will lie until the express contract is disaffirmed [Bechtel v. Chase (1909) 156 Cal. 707, 712, 106 P. 81 (plaintiff induced by fraud to part with personal property in exchange for worthless stock may not proceed on common count for goods sold and delivered for agreed sum of money); see Lloyd v. Williams (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 646, 649, 38 Cal. Rptr. 849 (discussion of fraud as basis for disaffirmation of contract and action in assumpsit on implied promise in return for consideration)].

When a contract is illegal and unenforceable, the guilty party generally may not recover the consideration due it on a quasi-contract or common count [see, e.g., Donaldson v. Abot (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 817, 820-821, 239 Cal. Rptr. 801 (failure to comply with Automotive Repair Act requirement for written estimate); Bennett v. Hayes (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 700, 703-704, 125 Cal. Rptr. 825 (failure to comply with Automotive Repair Act requirement for written estimate)]. However, when services are rendered under a contract that is unenforceable as against public policy, but those services are not themselves prohibited, quantum meruit may be allowed [Huskinson & Brown v. Wolf (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 453, 463, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 693, 84 P.3d 379] . For example, although an action for breach of contract was unavailing because it was based on a contract that was partly illegal and consequently wholly unenforceable (specifically, plaintiff was operating as an unregistered attorney referral service in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6155), the plaintiff could recover quantum meruit for lawful services (that is, services other than attorney referrals) performed pursuant to that contract [Selten v. Hyon (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 463, 471-472, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 896 (recovery could not exceed amount that plaintiff would have recovered under contract if it had been enforceable, and since contract entitled plaintiff to fee only if referred lawyer won other party's case, plaintiff's quantum meruit recovery could be paid only from whatever judgment or settlement proceeds that lawyer obtained for other party)].

[3] When Defendant's Obligation Is Conditional

Some early authority suggests that a common count cannot be used when the defendant's obligation is conditional [see Davisson v. East Whittier Land Etc. Co. (1908) 153 Cal. 81, 84-85, 96 P. 88 (failure to initiate arbitration as required by specific contract clause held to be failure of condition precedent, thereby preventing action on common counts for work performed); Roche v. Baldwin (1902) 135 Cal. 522, 528, 65 P. 459 (action in quantum meruit to recover for legal services rendered dismissed when defendant's fixing compensation due plaintiff was found to be condition precedent to contract)]. Other early decisions also upheld the use of common counts in actions when the defendant's obligation to perform was conditioned on third party approval, such as architect's or engineer's certificates, even when the plaintiff failed to aver waiver or compliance of the conditions [Castagnino v. Balletta (1889) 82 Cal. 250, 260-261, 23 P. 127 ; Donegan v. Houston (1907) 5 Cal. App. 626, 631, 90 P. 1073] .

More recent decisions are also divided. Certain decisions have criticized the necessity of pleading any special facts in an action on the common counts, including satisfaction of condition precedents [see Oliver v. Campbell (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 298, 305, 273 P.2d 15 (cases enumerated); Brooks v. Van Winkle (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 734, 739-740, 327 P.2d 151 (criticizing Roche v. Baldwin (1902) 135 Cal. 522, 528, 65 P. 459)]. Other decisions have upheld the requirement that the plaintiff allege and prove compliance with a condition precedent [Draper v. Patterson (1958) 156 Cal. App. 2d 606, 608-609, 319 P.2d 694 see Sunniland Fruit, Inc. v. Verni (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 892, 899, 284 Cal. Rptr. 824 ; Jeschke v. Lamarr (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 506, 511, 44 Cal. Rptr. 416 (if agreement expressly states that existence of fund is condition precedent to obligation of repayment, and if, through no fault of promisor, fund does not materialize, promisor is not obligated to pay)].

[4] When Plaintiff's Obligation Is to Fulfill Condition Precedent Before Pleading

A special situation that requires pleading the condition precedent in an action brought on the common counts arises in actions against governmental agencies when the filing of a claim is a statutory condition precedent to an action. In a suit against a county, it has been held that although an action for money had and received would otherwise be sufficient, the typical common count would not suffice in this situation because the filing of the claim is an essential element of the cause of action [Union Bk. & Tr. Co. v. Los Angeles Co. (1934) 2 Cal. App. 2d 600, 606, 38 P.2d 442] . The same reasoning applies to an action against an estate when the filing of the claim is a statutory prerequisite [Parker v. Solomon (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 125, 136-137, 340 P.2d 353 (filing of proper creditor's claim is prerequisite to action in quantum meruit seeking to recover reasonable value of services allegedly rendered decedent)]. Thus, if the relevant statute specifies the filing of a claim before bringing suit against the government, the condition precedent should be pleaded in an action brought on the common counts. For general evidentiary and proof considerations in pleading the common counts, see §§ 121.21, 121.22.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsHeightened Pleading RequirementsConditions PrecedentContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionAssumpsitContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionMoney Had & ReceivedContracts LawTypes of ContractsExpress ContractsGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsClaims By & Against

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.14

§ 121.14 Waiver of Tort and Use of Common Counts to Sue on Implied Contract

[1] In General

In some circumstances, a plaintiff may elect to waive a cause of action in tort and instead proceed on a contract implied by law on the part of the tortfeasor to pay a just remuneration for damages sustained by the plaintiff [Gold v. Los Angeles Democratic League (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 365, 376, 122 Cal. Rptr. 732 (common count is defective if it does not allege any consideration moving from plaintiff to defendant)].

Although there has been some opposition to the use of common counts in waiver of tort cases, the right seems firmly established in California [see, e.g., McCall v. Superior Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 527, 530-531, 36 P.2d 642 (plaintiff may waive tort and sue on common counts of indebitatus assumpsit or quantum valebant for return of consideration paid as result of fraudulent representations); Philpott v. Superior Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 512, 525, 36 P.2d 635 (plaintiff may waive action in tort for fraud and sue in assumpsit on promise implied by law for return of consideration paid)].

Which common count is appropriate depends on the nature of the defendant's act. For example, the common count for money had and received is appropriate when there is fraud [Minor v. Baldridge (1898) 123 Cal. 187, 189-190, 55 P. 783] . It is also proper if money has been paid under a mistake of fact or constructive fraud [County of Santa Cruz v. McLeod (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 222, 228, 11 Cal. Rptr. 249] . The count for goods sold and delivered may be used when the defendant has converted goods and the plaintiff elects to treat the theft as a contract of sale and sue on a fictitious promise to pay the value of the property [Bank of America Nat'l Trust & Sav. Asso. v. Hill (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 495, 498-499, 71 P.2d 258 ; Hallidie v. Enginger (1917) 175 Cal. 505, 508, 166 P. 1] . However, the common count may not be used if there is no basis for restitution [Gold v. Los Angeles Democratic League (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 365, 376-377, 122 Cal. Rptr. 732 (no repayment could be implied in tortious interference with prospective advantage)].

[2] Particular Count Elected Affects Amount of Recovery

If the plaintiff elects to proceed using common counts, it is essential to determine which count affords the maximum recovery. For example, in a case of conversion in which the plaintiff relies on the count for goods sold and delivered, the plaintiff may recover the value of the property [Chittenden v. Pratt (1891) 89 Cal. 178, 184, 26 P. 626] .

However, if the plaintiff elects the count for money had and received, recovery is limited to the defendant's actual proceeds from the sale of the property [French v. Robbins (1916) 172 Cal. 670, 679, 158 P. 188] , after deducting necessary charges and commissions [Lubert v. Chauviteau (1853) 3 Cal. 458, 463 ; Shahood v. Cavin (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 745, 750, 316 P.2d 700 (in action in assumpsit for proceeds of sale of converted property, it was error to award plaintiff present value of balance due on sale contract, in addition to amount collected by defendant from buyer)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts LawBreachCauses of ActionAssumpsitContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionMoney Had & ReceivedContracts LawRemediesElection of RemediesContracts LawTypes of ContractsImplied-in-Law ContractsTortsProcedureGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.15

§ 121.15 Statute of Limitations

The statute of limitations relating to actions of assumpsit, rather than tort, generally applies when there is a waiver of tort and an action in assumpsit [Ponti v. Farrell (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 676, 682-683, 15 Cal. Rptr. 500] . However, a determination of the appropriate limitation period may depend on the substance of the action and the nature of the right violated, rather than on the form of the action [Ponti v. Farrell (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 676, 683, 15 Cal. Rptr. 500] .

A four-year statute of limitations applies to an open book account and to an account stated based on an account in a writing, between the plaintiff and defendant, in which it was agreed that the defendant was indebted to plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 337; see Code Civ. Proc. § 337a (book account defined)].

The indebitatus counts for money had and received, work and labor (services and materials), goods sold and delivered, money lent, money paid, and the quantum counts for the reasonable value of services or goods sold are subject to a four-year statute of limitations if the obligation is founded on a writing [Code Civ. Proc. § 337]. They are subject to a two-year statute of limitations if the obligation is oral or implied in fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 339; see Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 442, 452-454, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101 (claim of unmarried cohabitant who sought to recover reasonable value of services rendered to business solely owned by other cohabitant was held not to accrue until relationship ended for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 337)].

The statute of limitations for an action in assumpsit generally begins to run when the defendant receives the money from the plaintiff [Tabata v. Murane (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 221, 226, 148 P.2d 605] . However, if a demand is necessary [see § 121.16[2]], the statute begins to run when the demand is made [Rose v. Foord (1892) 96 Cal. 152, 154 , see Thomas v. Pacific Beach Co. (1896) 115 Cal. 136, 142-143, 46 P. 899 (requiring that demand be made within reasonable time)]. Further, in an action based on the right to recover money under an executory contract because the other party failed to perform, the statute of limitations does not begin to run until the injured party elects to no longer rely on the contract and to sue for the money paid under it [Richter v. Union Land and Stock Co. (1900) 129 Cal. 367, 375, 62 P. 39] . In cases involving fraud or mistake, the statute of limitations does not begin to run until the aggrieved party discovers the facts constituting the fraud or mistake [Code of Civ. Proc. § 338(d)], although when failure to discover fraud is due to lack of diligence, the statute begins to run from the time the fraud should have been discovered [Snow v. A.H. Robins Co. (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 120, 129, 211 Cal. Rptr. 271 ; see Graham v. Hansen (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 965, 972-973, 180 Cal. Rptr. 604] .

For discussion of the statute of limitations as a defense to an action on the common counts, see § 121.22.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts LawBreachCauses of ActionAssumpsitContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionMoney Had & ReceivedGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsTortsProcedureGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.16

§ 121.16 Allegations in Complaint

[1] In General

Under current law there are three essential allegations for a common count [First Interstate Bank v. State of California (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 627, 635, 243 Cal. Rptr. 8 ; Allen v. Powell (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 502, 510, 56 Cal. Rptr. 715] :

- A statement of indebtedness in a certain sum.
- Consideration given (that is, goods sold or services provided).
- Nonpayment.

Under some circumstances, nonpayment need not be directly alleged. For example, if the allegation of nonpayment is implied, or alleged in the form of a conclusion, it is sufficient absent a special demurrer that specifically points out the defect [Fancher v. Brunger (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 727, 730-731, 211 P.2d 633] . A complaint that alleges that no part of the amount sued for has been paid by the defendant also is sufficient [Arocena v. Sawyer (1923) 60 Cal. App. 581, 585, 213 P. 523] .

Although the courts have upheld common count pleadings that allege only indebtedness, consideration, and nonpayment, it is recommended that the allegations include the additional elements discussed in § 121.16[2] et seq. Specific allegations required in particular counts are detailed in the discussions of those counts, under §§ 121.23-121.25.

The California Judicial Council has approved a pleading form for a common count cause of action [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(a), (b); Judicial Council Form PLD-C-001(2); see § 121.50 (judicial council pleading form)].

[2] Demand

Although customarily alleged, a demand for payment is not required in the ordinary case; the complaint itself is the demand [Quimby v. Lyon (1883) 63 Cal. 394, 395 (money had and received); Samuels v. Larrimore (1909) 11 Cal. App. 337, 339, 104 P. 1001 (money lent)]. When a demand for payment is required, the following demand was held to be sufficient: "[A]lthough often requested to do so, the defendant has neglected, failed, and refused to pay the plaintiff" [Thresher v. Lopez (1921) 52 Cal. App. 219, 221, 198 P. 419] . For discussion of when a demand is required, see § 121.24[1][c].

[3] Consideration and Promise

Under the code system of pleading, it is necessary only to allege the facts that constitute the cause of action. It is not necessary to allege either the consideration or the promise if either is implied as a legal conclusion from the facts pleaded [McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 Cal. 84, 86, 55 P. 761 ; see Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 778, 793, 256 P.2d 947 (allegation of promise to pay unnecessary as part of common count under code system of pleading); but see Smith v. Bentson (1932) (promise must be alleged if the facts do not justify implication of promise)]. Thus, allegations of goods sold and delivered to the defendant, services performed for the defendant, or money paid at the defendant's request, are sufficient for code pleading [Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 778, 793, 256 P. 2d 947] .

However, a common count must directly state the legal relationship or principleon which the defendant's promise to pay to plaintiff is based when it cannot be implied from the facts or when the consideration was given to someone other than the defendant [Vaughn v. Certified Life Ins. Co. (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 177, 181, 47 Cal. Rptr. 619] .

In addition, when the plaintiff, having an action in tort, elects to waive the tort and sue in assumpsit [see § 121.14[1]], a common count must allege the consideration given by the plaintiff to the defendant on which to base an implied promise to repay, or the complaint will be defective [Gold v. Los Angeles Democratic League (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 365, 376-377, 122 Cal. Rptr. 732 (common count may not be used if there is no basis for restitution, as in case of interference with prospective advantage); see Enterprise Leasing Corp. v. Shugart Corp. (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 737, 748-749, 282 Cal. Rptr. 620 (common count based on unjust enrichment must show something moving to defendant)].

[4] Date of Indebtedness

It is not necessary to specify the times at which the indebtedness accrued [Pleasant v. Samuels (1896) 114 Cal. 34, 38, 45 P. 998 ; see Pike v. Zadig (1915) 171 Cal. 273, 277 (money had and received); Moya v. Northrup (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 276, 280, 88 Cal. Rptr. 783 (money lent and money paid)]. In addition, it is not necessary to specify the date when services were rendered in an action to recover their reasonable value. Nevertheless, it is customary to specify the date or periods of indebtedness to establish the timeliness of the action under the statute of limitation [Evans v. Zeigler (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 226, 230, 204 P.2d 902 ; see § 121.15]. However, any uncertainty or ambiguity in such an allegation may be attacked by demurrer [Miller v. Brown (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 304, 307, 237 P.2d 320 ; but see Moya v. Northrup (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 276, 283-284, 88 Cal. Rptr. 783 (special demurrer will not be sustained if there is no patent ambiguity; Miller distinguished on its facts)].

For discussion of allegations of other items of indebtedness, including receipt of money or value of services, see §§ 121.24[1][c], 121.25[2][c].

[5] When Fraud Is Pleaded as Common Count

When a cause of action based on fraud or misrepresentation is pleaded as a common count, a complaint is sufficient when it pleads only the common count. However, this practice is contrary to the principle that the facts constituting an alleged fraud must be set forth with particularity [J. C. Peacock, Inc. V. Hasko (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 353, 361-362, 16 Cal. Rptr. 518 (fraud may be proved under complaint for common count)].

[6] When Claim Is Based on Express Contract

When a cause of action under a common count is based on an express contract, the allegations must specify whether the contract was written or oral [Moya v. Northrup (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 276, 283-284, 88 Cal. Rptr.783] . However, former Code Civ. Proc. § 430 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(g) (subjecting complaint to demurrer for failure to state whether contract on which action is based is oral or written)] was held not to apply to an action based on the common counts when the complaint was without ambiguity on its face [Moya v. Northrup (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 276, 284, 88 Cal. Rptr. 783] .

Apparently, an action brought under a common count as a result of deviation from the terms of the express contract should allege the contract, the modifications, and the plaintiff's performance under the contract, as modified [see, e.g., Daley v. Russ (1890) 86 Cal. 114, 116-117, 24 P. 867] . However, the complaint is not subject to demurrer for uncertainty if it shows clearly and with certainty the terms of the contract as modified [White v. Soto (1890) 82 Cal. 654, 657, 23 P. 210] .

Further, a complaint that does not show whether the plaintiff relies on an express contract for specified compensation or on an implied contract for the reasonable value of services is subject to demurrer for uncertainty [Shade v. Sisson M. & L. Co. (1896) 115 Cal. 357, 367, 47 P. 135] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirementsContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionAssumpsitContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionMoney Had & ReceivedContracts LawDefensesFraud & MisrepresentationGeneral OverviewContracts LawTypes of ContractsExpress Contracts

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.17

§ 121.17 Answer

[1] When General Denial Is Sufficient

If the complaint is in the form of a common count, the defendant need not deny the allegations in the answer in any more specific language than that used by the plaintiff [McDonald v. Pacific Debenture Co. (1905) 146 Cal. 667, 669, 80 P. 1090] . Thus, for example, an answer may, but is not required to, specifically take issue with the indebtedness alleged by the plaintiff [McDonald v. Pacific Debenture Co. (1905) 146 Cal. 667, 669, 80 P. 1090] . Moreover, a general denial is sufficient to raise almost any defense, including some defenses that customarily require special pleading [Interstate Group Administrators, Inc. v. Cravens, Dargan & Co. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 700, 706, 220 Cal. Rptr. 250 (setoff)].

[2] When Special Pleading Is Required

Certain affirmative defenses must be specially pleaded. These include, for example, the defense of the statute of limitations [McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 Cal. 84, 87, 55 P. 761] or estoppel and lack of capacity to sue [Grove v. Charles W. Barrett Co. (1927) 87 Cal. App. 165, 168, 261 P. 739] , as well as any new matter relied on by the defendant that was not put in issue by the plaintiff [see Interstate Group Administrators, Inc. v. Cravens, Dargan & Co. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 700, 706-707, 220 Cal. Rptr. 250] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsAffirmative DefensesGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticePleadingsAnswersContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionAssumpsitContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionMoney Had & ReceivedGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.18

§ 121.18 Consolidation of Actions

The plaintiff may unite in the same complaint a cause of action for the breach of an express contract and a cause of action on a common count [see Olmstead v. Dauphiny (1894) 104 Cal. 635, 640, 38 P. 505 (action to recover money under mistake of fact united with action on express contract for recovery of rent)]. However, only damages may be sought as a remedy under common counts.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePretrial MattersConsolidation of ActionsContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionAssumpsitContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionMoney Had & ReceivedContracts LawTypes of ContractsExpress Contracts

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.19

§ 121.19 Joinder of Common and Specifically Pleaded Counts

The plaintiff may elect to plead a single cause of action specifically on the facts or generally on the common counts [Castagnino v. Balletta (1889) 82 Cal. 250, 258, 23 P. 127] . Alternatively, the plaintiff may plead a cause of action as both a common count and a count on an express contract, without having to elect between them [Philpott v. Superior Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 512, 518, 36 P.2d 635 ; Leoni v. Delany (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 303, 308-309, 189 P.2d 517 (separately pleading both express agreement to compensate and common count for services rendered); see Carnation Co. v. Marcevich (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 618, 620, 9 Cal. Rptr. 80 (plaintiff may plead count expressly facts, joined with common count based on same facts and seeking same recovery)]. When a common count is joined with one on the contract, it is up to the trier of fact to determine which count (if any) is supported by the evidence [Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 468, 474-475, 252 P.2d 373] .

Diverse common counts alleging different causes of action cannot be united in one count [Buckingham v. Waters (1859) 14 Cal. 146, 147-148] . However, a single cause of action may be pleaded in alternative counts [Leeke v. Hancock (1888) 76 Cal. 127, 130, 17 P. 937 ; see Hirschberg v. Rose (1934) 136 Cal. App. 653, 656, 29 P.2d 785 (when pleaded as separate counts, plaintiff may allege as many counts as desired to meet any possible phase of the evidence)]. Further, when the same cause of action is pleaded on several common counts, findings for the plaintiff on one count, without finding on the others, are sufficient to support a judgment for the plaintiff [Leeke v. Hancock (1888) 76 Cal. 127, 130, 17 P. 937] .

If a plaintiff pleads a specific count and a common count in the same action, and the specific count is defective, it is proper to sustain a demurrer to the common count as well [Zumbrun v. University of Southern California (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 1, 14, 101 Cal. Rptr. 499 ; see Hays v. Temple (1937) 23 Cal. App. 2d 690, 695, 73 P.2d 1248] .

On the other hand, the plaintiff may seek recovery of more than one debt in a single common count [see, e.g., Farwell v. Murray (1894) 104 Cal. 464, 466, 38 P. 199 (complaint to recover specified sum for work done and goods sold not demurrable for uncertainty for failure to distinguish amounts attributable to work and to goods); McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 Cal. 84, 86-87, 55 P. 761 (complaint on single cause of action for various services not demurrable for failure to state how much was due for each service)]. A defendant's remedy, if more particularity is desired, is to demand a bill of particulars [Pike v. Zadig (1915) 171 Cal. 273, 277 ; Lewin v. Merck & Co. (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 131, 25 Cal. Rptr. 619 ; see § 121.26].

Although the practice of seeking recovery of more than one debt in a single common count is apparently permissible, it is not recommended. In one case, the court of appeals sustained the special demurrers of the defendants, stating that while the common count for work and labor had been properly pleaded, it should have been pleaded separately from the common count of money had and received [Zumbrun v. University of Southern California (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 1, 9, 101 Cal. Rptr. 499 (interests of justice and its orderly administration required plaintiff to set forth separate theories in separate counts to facilitate their adjudication); see § 121.20].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConsolidation of ActionsContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionAssumpsitContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionMoney Had & ReceivedContracts LawTypes of ContractsExpress Contracts

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.20

§ 121.20 Demurrers to Common Counts

Generally, a common count is not subject to demurrer [McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 Cal. 84, 87, 55 P. 761 (common counts good against general and special demurrers as to uncertainty, ambiguity, or failure to specify services rendered, times of performance, or amounts claimed)]. Thus, a common count for indebtedness for work done and material furnished defendant is sufficient against a demurrer even when it is not ascertainable which part of the claim is for labor and which part is for materials [Jensen v. Dorr (1911) 159 Cal. 742, 746, 116 P. 553] .

However, if the common count clearly appears to be based on the same cause of action as an insufficient specific count in an alternative pleading, the entire complaint is demurrable [Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 778, 793, 256 P.2d 947 ; see also § 121.19].

This exception to the general rule does not apply, however, to a demurrer on a common count based on the same facts as the specific count if the general demurrer to the specific count is on the ground of the statute of frauds [White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 346, 438 P.2d 345] . The common counts in violation of statute of frauds are permitted on the basis of the courts' distinction between counts that fail to establish the existence of valid contract and those that are unenforceable because they are not in writing [see White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 346, 438 P.2d 345] . That is, although the plaintiff's remedy on the contract is barred by the statute of frauds, the plaintiff's alternative remedy is distinct and unaffected by the statute [Leoni v. Delany (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 303, 306-307, 188 P.2d 765] . Thus, for example, if a specially pleaded count and a count in quantum meruit, based on the same facts, are stricken for failure to comply with the statute of frauds, amendment is permitted to allow the plaintiff to state facts showing that services were actually rendered and that there is a basis for recovery, despite the deficiency of the special count [see Shabrick v. Moore (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 56, 63, 15 Cal. Rptr. 310] .

Further, a common count is not subject to demurrer when it merely incorporates by reference certain preliminary allegations of a defective count [Auckland v. Conlin (1928) 203 Cal. 776, 778, 265 P. 946] , or when the facts in the common count (although similar to those in a defective special count) are substantially identical to those alleged in another count sufficiently stating a cause of action [see, e.g., Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 778, 793, 256 P.2d 947] .

Thus, although the joinder of common and specially pleaded counts based on the same facts is permitted, caution should be exercised in using this practice, since the risk of this joinder (except when the special count is barred by the statute of frauds) is that a defective specific count will render the entire complaint demurrable [Hays v. Temple (1937) 23 Cal. App. 2d 690, 695, 73 P.2d 1248] . Applying this principle, an entire complaint has been found demurrable when a common count was set forth on the same facts as a defective specially pleaded count, even after the specific count was excluded by subsequent amendment [Neal v. Bank of America (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 678, 681-682, 209 P.2d 825 ; see Henderson v. Superior Court (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 583, 590, 142 Cal. Rptr. 478 (citing Neal v. Bank of America); see also Filmservice Laboratories, Inc. v. Harvey Bernhard Enterprises, Inc. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1297, 1307-1308, 256 Cal. Rptr. 735 (amended common count is defective if insufficiencies in specific count not corrected)]. Mere withdrawal of the original complaint, once alleged, does not preclude the court from considering the original complaint in ruling on the sufficiency of the amended pleading [see Neal v. Bank of America National Trust & Savings Assn. (1949) 209 P.2d 825] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionAssumpsitContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionMoney Had & ReceivedContracts LawStatutes of FraudsGeneral OverviewContracts LawTypes of ContractsExpress Contracts

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.21

§ 121.21 Evidence

[1] Implied Contract as Evidence

Because an action based on a common count is quasi-contractual, recovery of compensation does not require proof of an express promise [see Pacific Fruit Exch. v. F. E. Booth Co. (1930) 103 Cal. App. 54, 55, 283 P. 944] .

In cases in which the recovery of compensation depends on an implied contract that arises and is inferrable from the situation and relation of the parties, evidence is admissible to prove any fact that would throw light on the relation and tend to show the intention of the parties [McCarthy v. Mt. Tecarte L. & W. Co. (1896) 111 Cal. 328, 338-339, 43 P. 956] . Thus, for example, any facts, circumstances, or dealings from which it appears that the defendant is in possession of the plaintiff's money that the defendant should, in justice, pay to the plaintiff are admissible evidence to support an action for money had and received [County of San Bernardino v. Sapp (1958) 156 Cal. App. 2d 550, 556, 319 P.2d 649 ; see § 121.24[1]]. Similarly, while the facts that a couple live together, hold themselves out as married, and act as companions and confidants toward each other do not by themselves show an implied agreement to share property, those facts, when taken together and in conjunction with other facts bearing more directly on the alleged arrangement to share property, can show an implied agreement to share property [Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 442, 454-457, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101 (error to not to instruct jury accordingly)].

[2] Special Contract as Evidence

When a contract has been fully performed and only payment by the defendant remains, the special contract is admissible as evidence of the standard of value or any other fact necessary to recovery, and should be allowed to go to the jury whenever it can aid the jury in reaching a sound conclusion [Castagnino v. Balletta (1889) 82 Cal. 250, 259, 23 P. 127 ; see Tsarnas v. Bailey (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 332, 338, 3 Cal. Rptr. 629 ; Foye v. Board of Trade (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 734, 738, 54 P.2d 761] . Thus, in actions to recover in quantum meruit, for example, evidence of the written contract is admissible as evidence of the reasonable value of services rendered [Hermann v. Littlefield (1895) 109 Cal. 430, 432, 42 P. 443 ; see § 121.24[1][d]].

Further, an agreed price set forth in an unenforceable or invalid contract is relevant as evidence of the reasonable value of services rendered [George v. Double-D Foods, Inc. (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 36, 42, 201 Cal. Rptr. 870] . However, to qualify as an "agreed price," a promise that does not state a sum of money must assign a dollar value to the property with which the performing party is to be compensated, or provide a formula by which an ultimate, agreed on sum is ascertainable [George v. Double-D Foods, Inc. (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 36, 42, 201 Cal. Rptr. 870] . Moreover, a contract price that reflects the reasonable value of services performed under the contract may be used as evidence for figuring the reasonable basis of additional work [Ferrier v. Commercial Steel Corp. (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 424, 426-427, 298 P.2d 555] . If the services rendered are not those specified in the contract, however, the contract price is not admissible as evidence of reasonable value [H.F. Fites Co. v. Harris Mfg. Co. (1928) 89 Cal. App. 427, 434-435, 264 P. 799] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts LawBreachCauses of ActionAssumpsitContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionMoney Had & ReceivedEvidenceRelevanceGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.22

§ 121.22 Burden of Proof; Defenses

A plaintiff pleading on the common counts has the same burden of proof as a plaintiff pleading on the facts. That is, a plaintiff pleading a common count has the burden to prove each of the elements of the cause of action [Foye v. Board of Trade (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 734, 738, 54 P.2d 761] . For further discussion of burden of proof, see Ch. 551, Trial .

Defendants under a general denial to an action pleaded on the common counts may present any defense tending to show that the plaintiff has no right to recover [Aetna Carpet Co. v. Penzner (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 859, 228 P.2d 347] . Refusal to allow a defendant to introduce evidence regarding alleged offsets or counterclaims is proper, however, when that matter is not placed in issue by the pleadings [Carranza v. Noroian (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 481, 487-488 , 49 Cal. Rtpr. 629].

Although the statute of frauds is not a defense in an action on the common counts [see § 121.20], the statute of limitations does constitute a valid defense [McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 Cal. 84, 87, 55 P. 761] . The defense of the statute of limitations is properly raised by demurrer to an action on the common counts when it affirmatively appears on the face of the complaint that the action is barred [see Evans v. Zeigler (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 226, 230, 204 P.2d 902] . Further, if the bar of the statute of limitations does not affirmatively appear on the face of the complaint, it is still proper to demur specially on the basis of ambiguity or uncertainty to ascertain true dates [Miller v. Brown (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 304, 307, 237 P.2d 320] . Amendment to conform the pleadings to the proof after the statute of limitations has run may be permitted, for example, when a common count for money had and received is pleaded originally and one for goods sold and delivered is more appropriate and the two causes are similar with common origins [see Ben-Hur Mfg. Co. v. Empire Factors (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 123, 129, 5 Cal. Rptr. 181] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionAssumpsitContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionMoney Had & ReceivedEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsBurdens of ProofGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsPleading & Proof

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.23

§ 121.23 Particular Counts Generally

As noted in § 121.12, there are two basic types of counts: indebitatus counts (counts for fixed amounts), and quantum counts (counts for the reasonable value of services or materials). The indebitatus counts of money had and received, money lent or paid, work and labor, and goods sold and delivered are discussed under § 121.24. The quantum counts of quantum meruit and quantum valebant are discussed under § 121.25.

Specific allegations required in particular counts are detailed in the discussions of those counts in specific subsections. Otherwise, for a discussion of allegations generally required in a complaint on any common count, refer to § 121.16.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirementsContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionAssumpsitContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionMoney Had & ReceivedContracts LawRemediesEquitable ReliefQuantum Meruit

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.24

§ 121.24 Indebitatus Counts (Counts for Fixed Amount)

[1] Money Had and Received

[a] In General

A count for money had and received states that the defendant is indebted to the plaintiff for money had and received by the defendant for the use of the plaintiff [Pike v. Zadig (1915) 171 Cal. 273, 276, 152 P. 923] . The count is not appropriate when the defendant never received any part of the money or equivalent thing sued for [Rains v. Arnett (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 337, 344, 11 Cal. Rptr. 299 ; but see Strutzel v. Williams (1952)109 Cal. App. 2d 512, 514-515, 240 P.2d 988 (defendant's direct receipt of money not necessary; action will lie if money is expended for defendant's benefit, with defendant's knowledge)]. Rather, the count is used when one party has in its possession money which in equity and good conscience belongs to another [Rains v. Arnett (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 337, 344, 11 Cal. Rptr. 299 ; for forms of common count complaints for money had and received see §§ 121.50 -121.52]. Since the action is equitable in nature, no privity of contract is necessary, other than that resulting from operation by law from one party having the money of another that he or she has no right to retain [Coombs v. Minor (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 645, 649, 141 P.2d 491] .

[b] When Action Is Available

Money had and received is the most widely pleaded of the common counts and is appropriate in a variety of situations, the most important of which are enumerated below.

An action in the form of the count for money had and received is an appropriate pleading to recover money from the defendant on an express contract when the plaintiff has fully performed and nothing remains to be done except payment of money by the defendant [Ferro v. Citizens Nat. Trust & Sav. Bank (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 401, 409, 282 P.2d 849] . Similarly, a count for money had and received is available when an express contract is voidable for mistake or fraud and has been rescinded by the plaintiff or is void [Crocker-Anglo Nat. Bank v. Kuchman (1964) 224 Cal. App.2d 490, 496-497, 36 Cal. Rptr. 806 (contract voidable for innocent misrepresentation or fraud); Smith v. Randall (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 195, 197-198, 124 P.2d 334 (contract void)]. The count is also appropriate if no contractual relationship exists but equity requires that the plaintiff receive payment on a quasi-contractual theory [Minor v. Baldridge (1898)

123 Cal. 187, 190-191, 55 P. 783 ; see Weiss v. Marcus (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d. 590, 599, 124 Cal. Rptr. 297 (settlement proceeds paid to defendants belonged to plaintiff under attorney's lien); Coombs v. Minor (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 645, 649, 141 P.2d 491 (action against administrator to recover money delivered to defendant for safekeeping)].

[c] Allegations When Pleading Money Had and Received; When Demand Is Required

As with other common counts, the indebtedness need not be set out with specificity [Pike v. Zadig (1915) 171 Cal. 273, 277 ; see § 121.16[4]]. The defendant's remedy, if he or she desires more particularity, is to demand a bill of particulars [Pike v. Zadig (1915) 171 Cal. 273, 277 ; Lewin v. Merck & Co. (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 131, 133, 25 Cal. Rptr. 619 ; see also § 121.26].

Although a count for money had and received should allege that the money sued for was received for the use of the plaintiff, that fact need not be alleged directly; it may be shown by necessary implication [see, e.g., Shahabian v. Najarian (1936) 14 Cal. App. 2d 435, 440-441, 58 P.2d 396] . However, the allegation that the defendant is or became indebted to the plaintiff is a conclusion of law and is insufficient to state a cause of action in the absence of supporting facts [Smith v. Bentson (1932) 127 Cal. App. Supp. 789, 793, 15 P.2d 910] .

Ordinarily, it is not necessary to allege (or to prove) the making of a demand in an action for money had and received before suit [Quimby v. Lyons (1883) 63 Cal. 394, 395 ; Twining v. Thompson (1945) 68 Cal. App. 2d 104, 113-114, 156 P.2d 29 see § 121.16[2]]. In an action to recover money the defendant allegedly agreed to pay the plaintiff at any time on demand, the suit itself is a sufficient demand [Ex parte Horwitz (1906) 2 Cal. App. 752, 754, 84 P. 229] .

A demand, however, is required where the debtor does not know that he or she owes the creditor money [see Twining v. Thompson (1945) 68 Cal. App. 2d 104, 114, 156 P.2d 29 ; Thresher v. Lopez (1921) 52 Cal. App. 219, 221, 198 P. 419] . A demand is also required when, until the demand is made, the payee's retention of the money is lawful [see Rose v. Foord (1892) 96 Cal. 152, 154, 30 P. 1114 (demand required when money was paid on account to purchase stock to be issued in future and stock was not issued within reasonable time)].

Although the courts have upheld common count pleadings that do not allege a demand, it is recommended that the allegations include a demand even when it is not required.

[d] Defenses

Defenses to an action for money had and received include proving that the defendant does not have money that in equity and good conscience belongs to the plaintiff [see § 121.24[1][a]]; that the defendant is legally or equitably entitled to retain the money received from the plaintiff [Weiner v. Roof (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 748, 752-753, 122 P.2d 896 (receipt of money as bona fide purchaser is defense to action for money had and received); Lavaysse v. Superior Court of San Francisco (1944) 63 Cal. App. 2d 223, 228-229, 146 P.2d 686 (it is defense that defendant has no money that in equity and good conscience belongs to plaintiff)]; that the plaintiff has no interest in the money sought to be recovered [Wilhelm v. Rush (1937) 18 Cal. App. 2d 366, 367-368, 63 P.2d 1158] ; or that the money sued for has been paid to the plaintiff [Whyte v. Rosencrantz (1899) 123 Cal. 634, 639-640, 56 P. 436 ; see Bastanchury v. Times-Mirror Co. (1945) 68 Cal. App. 2d 217, 236, 156 P.2d 488 (disbursement of money in regular course of business between plaintiff and defendant deemed defense)]. Further, if the right of the defendant to retain the money is equal to that of the plaintiff, the defendant will prevail [Bastanchury v. Times-Mirror Co. (1945) 68 Cal. App. 2d 217, 236, 156 P.2d 488] .

The statute of limitations is also a defense to an action for money had and received [see § 121.15].

[2] Money Lent

The count of money lent alleges indebtedness for money lent by the plaintiff to the defendant [Pleasant v. Samuels (1896) 114 Cal. 34, 36-37, 45 P. 998 ; Moya v. Northrup (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 276, 278, 88 Cal. Rptr. 783 ; for form of complaint for money lent see § 121.53]. However, payment voluntarily made to a third party for use of another cannot be recovered from the latter as money lent [see Deicher v. Corkery (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d. 654, 657, 23 Cal. Rptr. 270 (co-venturers accepting benefits of sale of real estate with no attempt to rescind contract liable for money advanced by joint venturer on behalf of venture)]. The distinction between the common counts of money lent and money paid is discussed under § 121.24[4].

[3] Money Paid

The common count for money paid, expended, or laid out lies when one expends money at the request of another [Deicher v. Corkery (1962) 205 Cal. App 2d. 654, 661, 23 Cal. Rptr. 270] . When money is paid out for the benefit of another, the law implies a promise and the legal liability of the defendant to repay on demand [Rains v. Arnett (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 337, 344, 11 Cal. Rptr. 299 ; for form of complaint for money paid see § 121.54].

An action for money paid may be brought by one who is legally compelled to pay money that another is obliged to pay, or by one who pays money, not officiously, that another person should have paid to save himself or herself from damage [Langford v. Eckert (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 439, 443, 88 Cal. Rptr. 429 ; see Pioneer Title Ins. Co. v. Guttman (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 116, 120, 345 P.2d 577 (mere existence of legal liability is sufficient to prompt payment; payment need not be coerced by legal action)].

Conversely, a party who voluntarily pays out money for the use and benefit of another, without receiving any promise to repay, cannot recover in an action for money paid [McGlew v. McDade (1905) 146 Cal. 553, 554, 80 P. 695] . In addition, to recover in an action for money paid, there must be proof, either directly or presumptively from the circumstances, that the defendant requested that the plaintiff pay out the money for the defendant's use [Moulton v. Loux (1877) 52 Cal. 81, 83] .

[4] Money Lent and Money Paid Distinguished

Courts appear to make a distinction with respect to the sufficiency of a common count that should have been pleaded as a count for money lent but was instead pleaded as one for money had and received. If the trial court determines that the variance in pleading is not prejudicial, judgment is not reversed simply because a count for money lent would have been more appropriate than one for money had and received [Rains v. Arnett (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 337, 344, 11 Cal. Rptr. 299] . If, however, the trial court finds for the defendant on the grounds that the plaintiff failed to plead the proper common count, there is authority that the appellate court will refuse to reverse the judgment [see Jones v. Re-Mine Oil Co. (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 832, 843, 119 P.2d 219 (dictum that count for money had and received improper form when money was lent)].

[5] Work and Labor (Services)

[a] In General

The count for work and labor (services) states that the defendant is indebted to the plaintiff for a certain sum for work and labor done or services performed for the defendant, or at the defendant's request [see Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 468, 475, 252 P.2d 373] .

An action in the form of the count for work and labor is an appropriate pleading to recover money from the defendant on an express contract when the plaintiff has fully performed work and labor, including personal services, and nothing remains to be done except payment of money by the defendant [Higgins v. Desert Braemar, Inc. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 744, 751, 33 Cal. Rptr. 527 (recovery is limited to amount agreed to be paid); see § 121.55, form of complaint for work, labor, services, and materials at agreed price]. However, if the plaintiff seeks the reasonable value of his or her services, rather than a fixed sum, an action in quantum meruit is appropriate [see § 121.25[2][a]; for a form of complaint for reasonable value of work, labor, and services].

[b] Allegations When Pleading Work and Labor (Services)

A common count seeking recovery for various services performed need not itemize either the time or the particular services [McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 Cal. 84, 87, 55 P. 761] . Moreover, a common count for work done and material plaintiff furnished defendant is sufficient even though it fails to specify which of the liquidated debt sums are for labor and which are for materials [Jensen v. Dorr (1911) 159 Cal. 742, 746-747, 116 P. 553] . However, such a complaint may be attacked for uncertainty or ambiguity, in which case the plaintiff will need to amendment the complaint to show specifics [Evans v. Zeigler (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 226, 229, 204 P.2d 902] .

Although it is customary to allege that the work and labor (or services) was performed at the defendant's request, such an allegation is not required, since the request is implied from the allegation of the service performed [McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 Cal. 84, 86, 55 P. 761] . Further, although it is not necessary to specify the work done or the agreed price, courts generally allow some elaboration on the typical work and labor count [Donegan v. Houston (1907) 5 Cal. App. 626, 629, 90 P. 1073] . For discussion of allegations in general, refer to § 121.16.

[6] Goods Sold and Delivered

The count of goods sold and delivered alleges the indebtedness, in a certain sum, for goods sold and delivered by the plaintiff to the defendant [Abadie v. Carrillo (1867) 32 Cal. 172, 175-176 ; for form of complaint for goods sold and delivered at agreed price see § 121.56]. However, if the plaintiff seeks the reasonable value of goods sold and delivered, rather than a specific sum, an action in quantum valebant is appropriate [see § 121.25[3]].

It is not necessary to allege a promise to pay or that the goods delivered were of any particular value [Abadie v. Carrillo (1867) 32 Cal. 172, 173-175] or even that the goods were delivered [Johnson v. Dixon Farms Co. (1915) 29 Cal. App. 52, 56, 155 P. 134] . Moreover, an original complaint stating a count for money had and received may be amended to state one for goods sold and delivered [see Ben-Hur Mfg. Co. v. Empire Factors (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 123, 131, 5 Cal. Rptr. 181 (amendment after statute of limitations ran permitted due to similarity of counts and consequent lack of elements of prejudice or surprise to defendant)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirementsContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionAssumpsitContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionMoney Had & Received

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.25

§ 121.25 Quantum Counts (Counts for Reasonable Value)

[1] In General

If the defendant is not liable in a fixed sum, or the plaintiff is permitted to elect to sue for the reasonable value of services or materials, the quantum counts may be used [see § 121.25[2]].

[2] Quantum Meruit (Services)

[a] In General

The count in quantum meruit alleges the performance of work and labor or services by the plaintiff for the defendant, at the defendant's request, and is used to recover the reasonable value of the services rendered when the defendant is not liable in a fixed sum [McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 Cal. 84, 86-87 55 P. 761 ; for complaint for reasonable value of work, labor, and services, see § 121.57], or when the plaintiff has the election of suing for the reasonable value of services [see, e.g., Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 468, 475, 252 P.2d 373 (when plaintiff renders personal services to defendant at defendant's request, plaintiff may elect to plead either on express contract or in quantum meruit for reasonable value of services); see also § 121.25[2][b]].

Quantum meruit refers to the well-established principle that the law infers a promise to pay for services received in circumstances disclosing that the services were not gratuitously rendered. To recover in quantum meruit, a claimant must show that the services were rendered under an understanding or expectation, by both parties, that compensation was to be paid [Huskinson & Brown v. Wolf (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 453, 458, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 693, 84 P.3d 379 ; Miller v. Campbell, Warburton, Fitzsimmons, Smith, Mendel & Pastore (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1331, 1344, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 649].

Quantum meruit also may be the basis for an action to recover the reasonable value of the plaintiff's services when a statutory scheme (1) requires the plaintiff to provide the services without regard to the recipient's ability to pay, and (2) requires the defendant to "reimburse" the plaintiff for providing the services. For example, in California an emergency room physician generally is required, by law, to provide medical treatment to anyone in a public emergency room, regardless of the person's ability to pay, up to the point of rendering the person medically stable [see Health & Safety

Code §§ 1317, 1317.1, 1371.4], and a for-profit health care service plan is required, by law, to reimburse emergency health care providers for the mandated emergency services rendered to the plan's enrollees [see Health & Safety Code §§ 1317, 1371.4]. Under this arrangement, a service plan is bound to pay a reasonable and customary amount (instead of whatever amount the plan determines it will pay) for the services rendered. An emergency room physician may sue in quantum meruit to enforce that obligation [Bell v. Blue Cross of California (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 211, 216-221, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 688] .

Recovery under quantum meruit is quasi-contractual; it is based on an implied contract for the payment of services to satisfy the ends of justice [see Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 442, 449-450, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101 (underlying basis for quantum meruit is policy against unjust enrichment); Lazzarevich v. Lazzarevich (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 708, 721, 200 P.2d 49 (defendant's promise and obligation imposed by law, regardless of any agreement); Estate of O'Donnell (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 1, 6-7, 192 P.2d 94 (contract implied in law for payment by incompetent for reasonable value of services rendered, even without express contract)]. Quantum meruit allows recovery for the value of beneficial services, not the value by which someone benefits from those services [Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 442, 449-452, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101 (holding that court erred in allowing jury to measure recovery on basis of impact of unmarried cohabitant's services on business of other cohabitant)]. In order to recover under a quantum meruit theory, a plaintiff must establish both (1) that he or she was acting pursuant to either an express or implied request for those services from the defendant, and (2) that the services rendered were intended to and did benefit the defendant [Day v. Alta Bates (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 243, 248-249, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 606 (holding that plaintiff's attorney in medical malpractice action was not requested to and did not perform legal services on behalf of hospital that filed hospital lien; malpractice action never went past liability phase and thus hospital received nothing by virtue of lien or action)].

Quantum meruit was recognized as a form of the common law writ of assumpsit--that is, an action at law--long before 1850, and the parties to a quantum meruit action consequently have a right to a jury trial [Jogani v. Superior Court (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 901, 907, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 503].

[b] When Action Is Available

The count of quantum meruit is one of the most frequently (and successfully) used forms of the common counts. It is proper in a variety of situations, the most important of which are discussed below.

When services are rendered under a contract that does not specify the compensation to be paid, an action in quantum meruit is appropriate [Meredith v. Marks (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 265, 272-273, 27 Cal. Rptr. 737] . The plaintiff may also recover the reasonable value of services rendered when the express contract includes a method for calculating the compensation that cannot be followed under the circumstances [Miller v. San Francisco Church Exten. Soc. (1932) 125 Cal. App. 85, 94, 13 P.2d 824] . However, if the plaintiff has fully performed under a contract and the defendant's debt is liquidated or calculable, the plaintiff is limited to the liquidated debt sum and cannot alternatively seek the reasonable value of the services [see Higgins v. Desert Braemar, Inc. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 744, 751, 33 Cal. Rptr. 527] .

When the terms of a contract have been modified by mutual agreement, the action for the amount due for work and labor should be in the form of a common count in quantum meruit, for the reasonable value of the benefit conferred on the defendant, rather than on the express contract [Castagnino v. Balletta (1889) 82 Cal. 250, 258, 23 P. 127 ; see Dodge v. Harbor Boat Bldg. Co. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 782, 791, 222 P.2d 697 (work agreed on could not be separated from work ultimately required); Cooney v. Glide (1929) 97 Cal. App. 77, 83-84, 275 P. 257 (express contract abandoned by mutual consent after part performance by plaintiff)].

An action in quantum meruit also is appropriate when a plaintiff, working under an express contract, performs additional work, at the defendant's request, that is not specified in the contract [Combs v. California Cotton Mills Co.

(1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 781, 786-787, 247 P.2d 382 ; but see Katsura v. City of San Buenaventura (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 104, 109-110, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 762 (public entity generally cannot be liable on quantum meruit theory to pay for contractor's additional work done in connection with performing express contract)].

If services rendered by a party to a void contract are not illegal, the plaintiff may recover in quantum meruit, although he or she could not recover on the contract [Sims v. Petaluma Gas Light Co. (1901) 131 Cal. 656, 660, 63 P. 1011] . Thus, when one party to a void contract has rendered services and the other party has failed to perform, the party who rendered the services may recover their reasonable value even though the illegality of the promised consideration precludes an action for breach of the express contract [Lawn v. Camino Heights, Inc. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 973, 980-983, 93 Cal. Rptr. 621 (even though employment contract called for illegal payment in stock of employer corporation, plaintiff may recover on value of contract when object of contract not illegal)]. Likewise, a law firm that is barred from dividing legal fees with another law firm pursuant to a fee-sharing agreement, due to the absence of written client consent to the agreement required by Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 2-200, may recover from the other firm in quantum meruit for the reasonable value of services it rendered on the client's behalf [Huskinson & Brown, LLP v. Wolf (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 453, 464, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 693, 84 P.3d 379 (court emphasized holding did not increase attorney fees paid or owed by client)].

The plaintiff may also be entitled to recover the reasonable value of services after part performance on an express contract [see Oliver v. Campbell (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 298, 302, 273 P.2d 15 (party injured by breach may rescind and recover in quantum meruit for part performance); Jennings v. Azhderian (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 374, 377-378, 295 P.2d 40 (work abandoned, with defendant's consent, due to unexpected contingencies); see also Roseleaf Corp. v. Radis (1953) 122 Cal. App. 2d 196, 207, 264 P.2d 964 (perfect performance not required if plaintiff renders services in good faith and defendant accepts them)]. However, full performance does not make restitution unavailable if any part of the consideration due from the defendant is something other than a liquidated debt. Thus, in a case in which a legal publisher breached an author agreement by rejecting a completed manuscript solely for commercial reasons and not because of any defect, the author was entitled to sue for restitution for the time and effort he reasonably invested in writing the manuscript [Chodos v. West Publishing Co, Inc. (9th Cir. 2002) 292 F.3d 992, 1001-1002 (entitlement to percentage of revenues from book was not "liquidated debt" under California law)].

[c] Allegations When Pleading Quantum Meruit (Services)

A count in quantum meruit is sufficiently pleaded if the complaint alleges that the plaintiff performed certain services for the defendant, their reasonable value, that they were rendered at the request of the defendant, and that they are unpaid [Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 468, 475, 252 P.2d 373 , citing Brown v. Crown Gold Milling Co. (1907) 150 Cal. 376, 382, 89 P. 86] . A count in quantum meruit is sufficiently pleaded even though the plaintiff fails to state when the defendant became indebted to him or her, or the nature of the services rendered [Evans v. Zeigler (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 226, 230, 204 P.2d 902] . Moreover, although a count on quantum meruit usually alleges that the work was performed at the defendant's request and that the defendant promised to pay reasonable value, these allegations are not necessary, since the request and the promise to pay are implied from the allegation of the service performed [see McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 Cal. 84, 86, 55 P. 761] . Finally, no demand for payment before instituting the action is required [McDonald v. Filice (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 613, 623, 60 Cal. Rptr. 832 (action itself is only demand necessary when it is defendant's unconditional duty to perform act or pay sum of money)].

[d] Defenses

A count is defective if the action in quantum meruit is not premised on any services actually rendered to the defendant that might serve as a basis of recovery for the plaintiff [Parker v. Solomon (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 125, 135, 340 P.2d 353] . Further, a plaintiff cannot recover the reasonable value of services if there is no evidence of their value [Hocker v. Glover (1931) 113 Cal. App. 152, 156]. However, it is not required that a specific sum be stated in the testimony as being the reasonable value [Kimes v. Davidson Inv. Co. (1929) 101 Cal. App. 382, 388, 281 P. 639] .

When the defendant neither accepts services nor derives a benefit from them, there is nothing from which a contract may be implied [Spurgeon v. Buchter (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 198, 206, 207, 13 Cal Rptr. 354] . It is not a defense, however, that the defendant received no benefit if the failure to benefit was caused by the defendant's negligence [Boyd v. Bargagliotti (1909) 12 Cal. App. 228, 237, 107 P. 150] . Moreover, although an early case held that recovery on quantum meruit is available only when the defendant has received a direct benefit and that compliance with the defendant's request was insufficient to support recovery [see Rotea v. Izuel (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 605, 611, 95 P.2d 927] , a later case held that compensation for performance should be paid by the person whose request induced the performance, and proof that the defendant requested the plaintiff to perform services and furnish materials and that the plaintiff reasonably believed the defendant would pay for the services would support recovery on quantum meruit [Earhart v. William Low Co. (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 503, 507, 158 Cal. Rptr. 887, 600 P.2d 1344] .

Additional defenses to an implied promise to pay for services rendered include [Gjurich v. Fieg (1913) 164 Cal. 429, 431, 129 P. 464 ; Miller v. Campbell, Warburton, Fitzsimmons, Smith, Mendel & Pastore (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1331, 1344, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 649 (affirmative defenses as to which recipient of services has burden of proof)]:

- Proof of a special agreement to pay a particular amount or in a particular manner;
- Proof that the services were intended to be gratuitous; or
- Proof that particular circumstances exist from which the law will raise a counter presumption that the services were not intended to be a charge against the person benefited.

The statute of frauds, however, does not render defective a common count for the reasonable value of services even though the contract itself may be unenforceable [Leoni v. Delany (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 303, 307, 188 P.2d 765] .

[3] Quantum Valebant (Goods Sold)

The common count in quantum valebant is similar to the count in quantum meruit [see § 121.25[2]], except that it is used to recover the reasonable value of goods sold and delivered [Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 778, 792-794, 256 P.2d 947] . The count is based on the legal fiction that when goods are delivered by one to another, at the latter's request, there is an implied promise to pay (even if the latter never intended to pay for them) [Hallidie v. Enginger (1917) 175 Cal. 505, 508, 166 P. 1] . However, there is no action in quantum valebant for goods sold and delivered when the defendant refuses to accept the goods [Hallidie v. Sutter S. R. Co. (1883) 63 Cal. 575, 577] , or when the defendant has not used the property for his or her benefit in a manner and under circumstances such that the law will impose a duty of compensation for that use [Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 778, 794, 256 P.2d 947] .

Recovery in quantum valebant is limited to the reasonable value of an item, or the portion of it that is used [Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 778, 792-793, 256 P.2d 947] .

A complaint in quantum valebant is not subject to special demurrer for uncertainty when the plaintiff does not clearly specify whether the action is based on an express contract or for the reasonable value of the goods [Preston v. Central Cal. etc. Irr. Co. (1909) 11 Cal. App. 190, 196-197, 104 P. 462] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirementsContracts LawDefensesIllegal BargainsContracts LawRemediesEquitable ReliefQuantum Meruit

59 of 165 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.26

§ 121.26 Bill of Particulars

[1] In General

When pleading on the common counts, a plaintiff need not specify the items of the account alleged in the pleadings [McFarland v. Holcomb (1889) 123 Cal. 84, 87, 55 P. 761] . However, under Code Civ. Proc. § 454, the defendant has the right to demand a bill of particulars in order to be apprised of the specific claim against him or her [Auzerais v. Naglee (1887) 74 Cal. 60, 64, 15 P. 371 ; see § 121.60, (form for bill of particulars)]. This is so that the defendant will not be taken by surprise and can intelligently present defenses [Halagan v. Ohanesian (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 14, 17, 64 Cal. Rptr. 792] . This procedure, known as a bill of particulars, forces the plaintiff to itemize the total amount on which the complaint is based. Under the statute, the term "bill of particulars" is apparently used interchangeably with the terms "account" and "copy of the account" [see Burton v. Santa Barbara Nat. Bank (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 427, 432, 55 Cal. Rptr. 529 ; Code Civ. Proc. § 454].

[2] When Procedure Is Available

A demand for a bill of particulars is apparently restricted to an action on "an account" [see Code Civ. Proc. § 454]. An action on account has been interpreted broadly to cover almost any kind of contract action for a claim of money that consists of more than one item [see Long Beach City School Dist. v. Dodge (1902) 135 Cal. 401, 407, 67 P. 499 (term "account" applied to almost every claim on contract consisting of several items); Distefano v. Hall (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 657, 677, 32 Cal. Rptr. 770] .

In addition to actions on a book account [see Code Civ. Proc. § 337a ("book account" defined); see also Ch. 8, Accounts Stated and Open Accounts], a bill of particulars is demanded most frequently in an action on the common counts [see Kawasho Internat., U.S.A., Inc. v. Lakewood Pipe Service, Inc. (1983) 152 Cal. App. 3d 785, 793, 201 Cal. Rptr. 640] . The procedure is used most often in actions for services and materials under a contract [see, e.g., Jensen v. Dorr (1911) 159 Cal. 742, 746-747 . 553], or in actions in quantum meruit (seeking quasi-contractual recovery for services rendered at the request of the defendant) [see, e.g., McFarland v. Holcomb (1893) 123 Cal. 84, 87, 55 P. 761 ; Caruso v. Snap-Tite, Inc. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 211, 212-213, 79 Cal. Rptr. 642] . Actions for money had and received [Firpo v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1926) 80 Cal. App. 122, 251 P. 657] , money lent or money paid [Moya v. Northrup (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 276, 88 Cal. Rptr. 783] , and goods sold and delivered [Ben-Hur Mfg. Co. v. Empire Factors

(1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 123, 132, 5 Cal. Rptr. 181] are also within the bill of particulars statute.

A bill of particulars may be requested in a variety of situations in actions on the common counts, including, for example, when the defendant seeks an itemization of services rendered [see Baroni v. Musick (1934) 3 Cal.App. 2d 419, 421, 39 P.2d 435] or a differentiation of services rendered and materials furnished [see Jensen v. Dorr (1911) 159 Cal. 742, 746-747, 116 P. 553] .

It has been held, however, that no bill of particulars may be demanded in an action on an account stated Distefano v. Hall (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 657, 677, 32 Cal. Rptr. 770 ; see Jones v. Wilton (1938) 10 Cal. 2d 493, 498, 75 P.2d 593 ("account stated" is new agreement that supersedes original contract and account)]. Nor may a bill of particulars be requested to itemize damages in action based on negligent failure to perform duties according to the contract [Distefano v. Hall (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 657, 677-678, 32 Cal. Rptr. 770] .

[3] Distinguished From Discovery

Discovery proceedings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.010 et seq.] serve the same general objectives of a bill of particulars: to provide information about a claim and to protect against surprise. However, discovery, which is available to both the plaintiff and the defendant, is designed to produce evidence for use at trial, while a bill of particulars is designed to clarify or amplify the complaint to make it easier for the defendant to prepare a responsive pleading [Dobbins v. Hardister (1966) 51 Cal. Rptr. 866] .

Although it has been contended that modern discovery devices make the bill of particulars an obsolete procedure, as a practical matter, a demand for a bill of particulars is usually less costly than discovery proceedings, because formal discovery takes more of counsel's time and may require, in the case of depositions, the payment of a court reporter fee.

[4] Effect of Bill

Although the bill of particulars is not a pleading and cannot be answered [Chamberlain v. Loewenthal (1902) 138 Cal. 47, 49, 70 P. 932 ; Weiner v. Davies (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 387, 391, 56 Cal. Rptr. 546] , the bill is an amplification of the complaint and is to be considered as incorporated into the complaint, as originally filed, for the purpose of determining the plaintiff's right of recovery and the admissibility of evidence in support of the claim [Kurokawa v. Saroyan (1928) 95 Cal. App. 772, 775, 273 P. 613] . Accordingly, the items specified in the bill limit the nature and amount of the recovery that might otherwise be permissible under the allegations of the original complaint [Abbott v. Limited Mut. Comp. Ins. Co. (1938) 30 Cal. App. 2d 157, 161, 85 P.2d 961] and the plaintiff's evidence at trial [Gough v. Security Trust & Sav. Bank (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 90, 94, 327 P.2d 555] .

[5] Procedure to Obtain Bill

[a] Defendant's Demand

The bill of particulars statute does not specify that the demand take any particular form, other than that the demand be made to the plaintiff in writing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 454; see § 121.59, form of demand for bill of particulars]. It should, however, be signed by the party making the demand, or contain some other indication that the party making the demand is the party against whom the account is pleaded [see Elmore v. Tingley (1926) 78 Cal. App. 460, 467, 248 P. 706] .

Further, the statute does not require that the demand be made at any particular time [see Code Civ. Proc. § 454]. However, since the making of a demand does not extend the defendant's time to answer the complaint [Dobbins v. Hardister (1966) 51 Cal. Rptr. 866] , if the defendant needs the additional information provided by a bill of particulars to answer the complaint, the defendant should request additional time by stipulation or court order, unless so doing would violate local court rules.

The statute does not mandate that the bill be served; therefore, ordinary delivery or mailing appears to be sufficient [see Code Civ. Proc. § 454]. However, the usual (and recommended) practice is to serve the bill with proof of service, to establish the commencement of the plaintiff's 10-day period to furnish the bill [see Code Civ. Proc. § 454].

[b] Form and Contents

The statute does not specify the level of detail required in a bill of particulars [see Code Civ. Proc. § 454]. Items in a bill must be set forth, in good faith, as precisely and as definitely as possible [Meredith v. Marks (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 265, 270, 27 Cal. Rptr. 737] . The court determines whether the plaintiff's response to a demand for a bill of particulars is sufficient [Butler Bros. v. Connolly (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 22, 26, 22 Cal. Rptr. 175 ; see § 121.26[6]].

The bill must be verified if the complaint is verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 454].

[c] Delivery of Account by Plaintiff

When a defendant makes a demand in writing, the plaintiff must deliver a copy of the account to the defendant within ten days of the request [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]. As a practical matter, it seems that the bill must be delivered to the defendant within 10 days after the date of service of the demand [see Edelman v. McDonell (1899) 126 Cal. 210, 213, 58 P. 528] .

[6] Motion for Further Bill of Particulars

If the account delivered is too general, or in any way defective, the court may order a further account to be delivered [Code Civ. Proc. § 454; see § 121.63, form of order for further bill of particulars]. A demand for a further bill of particulars is made on a notice of motion [Burton v. Santa Barbara Nat. Bank (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 427, 433, 55 Cal. Rptr. 529 ; see §§ 121.61, 121.62 (forms for notice of motion for further bill of particulars and declaration in support of notice of motion for further bill of particulars)]. If the defendant fails to demand a further account by the motion, the defendant is deemed to have waived the insufficiency of the bill and may not later at trial make this motion [Burton v. Santa Barbara Nat'l Bank (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 427, 433] . In response to the notice of motion or a court order based on the noticed motion, the plaintiff may deliver a further bill, or amended bill, or both [see Ames v. Bell (1907) 5 Cal. App. 1, 3-4, 89 P. 619] .

[7] Motion to Preclude Introduction of Evidence at Trial for Failure to Deliver Bill

The adverse party must deliver a bill of particulars within 10 days after a demand in writing or be precluded from giving evidence with respect to the account [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]. This penalty, however, has not been strictly applied by the courts [see McCarthy v. Tecarte L. & W. Co. (1896) 110 Cal. 687, 692-693, 43 P. 391 (interpreting 10-day time frame as discretionary when bill is delivered shortly thereafter, without defendant's being prejudiced)].

To obtain a ruling to preclude the introduction of evidence, the defendant must bring a noticed motion [Burton v. Santa Barbara Nat. Bank (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d, 427, 433 , 55 Cal. Rptr. 529] . Moreover, even when the plaintiff fails to furnish a bill of particulars and the information requested by the defendant is not within the defendant's knowledge, the defendant must move to and obtain an order before trial to preclude the introduction of evidence by the plaintiff [see Burton v. Santa Barbara Nat. Bank (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d, 427, 433 , 55 Cal. Rptr. 529 ; see also §§ 121.64 -121.67 (forms relating to notice of motion and order to preclude introduction of evidence for failure to provide bill of particulars)]. The court may properly deny a motion to preclude evidence when it is made for the first time at trial [Conner v. Hutchinson (1861) 17 Cal. 279, 282] . Although the statute does not specify a time to bring the motion, the court may deny "eleventh-hour" motions, particularly if the defendant waits until the time of trial [see, e.g., Banchero v. Coffis (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 717, 721, 216 P.2d 151] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsBills of ParticularsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryDisclosuresSanctionsContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionAssumpsitContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionMoney Had & Received

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 121.27-121.39

[Reserved]

§§ 121.27[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.40

§ 121.40 California Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities supporting and opposing general and special demurrers to complaints pleaded on common counts; supporting and opposing motions for orders related to bills of particulars; and supporting and opposing motions for summary judgments related to actions on common counts, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 43, Common Counts and Bills of Particulars (Matthew Bender)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersCivil ProceduresSummary JudgmentOppositionGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.41

§ 121.41 State Statutes

"Book account" defined. Code Civ. Proc. § 337a

"Detriment" defined. Civ. Code § 3282

"Mistake of fact" defined. Civ. Code § 1577

"Motion" defined. Code Civ. Proc. § 1003

"Order" defined. Code Civ. Proc. § 1003

Provision for attorney's fees and costs in action on contract. Civ. Code § 1717

Attorney's fees and costs recoverable in action on book account. Civ. Code § 1717.5

Jurisdiction and venue in actions involving retail installment sales. Civ. Code § 1812.10

Jurisdiction and venue in actions involving motor vehicle sales. Civ. Code § 2984.4

Interest on awarded damages. Civ. Code § 3287(b)

Measure of damages for breach of contract. Civ. Code § 3300

Money due with interest. Civ. Code § 3302

Statute of limitations on obligation founded on an instrument in writing. Code Civ. Proc. § 337

Statute of limitations on open book account and account stated in a writing. Code Civ. Proc. § 337(2)

Statute of limitations in cases involving fraud or mistake. Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)

Statute of limitations on oral obligations. Code Civ. Proc. § 339

Venue in certain cases involving consumer obligations. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395(b), 396a

Contents of complaint. Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10

Judicial Council approved forms for complaint. Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12

Effect of verification of complaint on answer. Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)

Verification of pleadings. Code Civ. Proc. § 446

Bill of particulars. Code Civ. Proc. § 454

Application for order or motion. Code Civ. Proc. § 1003

Notices and papers: form, contents, service on party. Code Civ. Proc. § 1010

Measure and mode of attorney compensation. Code Civ. Proc. § 1021

Unsworn statements. Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5

Discovery proceedings. Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.010 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesEquitable AccountingsGeneral OverviewContracts LawDefensesStatutes of Limitations

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.42

§ 121.42 Decisions

[1] Governing Law

As exception to modern principles of code pleading, common counts are generally governed by case law. Pike v. Zadig (1915) 171 Cal. 273, 276, 152 P. 923

[2] Nature of Common Count Action

Plaintiff's right to recover in assumpsit is governed by principles of equity, although action is one at law. Philpott v. Superior Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 512, 521-522, 36 P.2d 635

Assumpsit, as modern day quasi-contractual relief, is available when money is paid by mistake, when consideration fails, or when imposition, extortion, oppression, or undue advantage is taken of plaintiff. Philpott v. Superior Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 512, 519, 36 P.2d 635

Common counts are proper whenever plaintiff claims sum of money due, either as indebtedness in sum certain or for reasonable value of services or goods furnished, whether original transaction is express contract, contract implied in fact, or quasi-contract. Kawasho Internat. (U.S.A.), Inc. v. Lakewood Pipe Service, Inc. (1983) 152 Cal. App. 3d 785, 793, 201 Cal. Rptr. 640

[3] Effect of Express Contract

[a] When Common Counts May Be Pleaded

Common count for money had and received is proper if plaintiff owes no further performance under contract, and nothing remains to be done except payment of money by defendant. Ferro v. Citizens Nat. Trust & Sav. Bank (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 401, 282 P.2d 849 ; Rains v. Arnett (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 337, 343-344, 11 Cal. Rptr. 299

Common count is proper whenever plaintiff claims sum of money due (as indebtedness in certain sum or for reasonable value of services or goods furnished), regardless of whether original transaction is express contract, implied-in-fact contract, or quasi-contract. Castagnino v. Balletta (1889) 82 Cal. 250, 258, 23 P. 127 (express contract); Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 778, 793, 256 P.2d 947 (implied-in-fact contract)

Common count is proper when services rendered by one party under void contract are not intrinsically illegal and other party fails to perform. Lawn v. Camino Heights, Inc. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 973, 982, 93 Cal. Rptr. 621

Action for work and labor is appropriate when entire performance of special contract is prevented by one party or when terms of express contract have been varied by agreement of both parties. Overland Machined Products, Inc. v. Swingline, Inc. (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 642, 646, 69 Cal. Rptr. 852

Common count is proper in action for restitution based on rescission for innocent misrepresentation. Crocker-Anglo Nat. Bank v. Kuchman (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 490, 496, 36 Cal. Rptr. 806

Action for work and labor is appropriate to recover money from defendant on express contract when the plaintiff has fully performed work and labor, including personal services, and nothing remains to be done except payment of money by defendant. Higgins v. Desert Braemar, Inc. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 744, 751, 33 Cal. Rptr. 527 .

Common count is proper when complete performance has been prevented by defendant, or when contract has been modified or deviated from by consent of parties, and plaintiff has fully performed. Rains v. Arnett (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 337, 343-344, 11 Cal. Rptr. 299

In action on rejected claim against estate for work and labor performed and services rendered to decedent, plaintiff is entitled to declare specially on contract or generally on common count when plaintiff has fully executed his or her part of agreement. Lucy v. Lucy (1937) 22 Cal. App. 2d 629, 631-632, 71 P.2d 949

[b] When Common Counts May Not Be Pleaded

Common count is improper in action seeking refund of taxes; such action is specific statutory claim. Title Ins. Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 715, 731, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 822, 842 P.2d 121

Common count is improper in action based on express contract when recovery sought is something other than payment of money. Allen v. Merchants Elec. Co. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 67, 69, 4 Cal. Rptr. 527, 351 P.2d 799 ; Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 778, 793, 256 P.2d 947 (plaintiff sought specific performance); Willett & Burr v. Alpert (1919) 181 Cal. 652, 659, 185 P. 976 ; King v. San Jose Pacific B. & L. Assn. (1940) 41Cal. App. 2d 705, 708, 107 P.2d 442 (plaintiff sought damages for breach)

Common count is improper when relief sought varies as slightly as delivery of promissory note instead of money. Willett & Burr v. Alpert (1919) 181 Cal. 652, 659-660, 185 P. 976

Even if express contract were fraudulently procured, no action in implied contract will lie until express contract is disaffirmed. Bechtel v. Chase (1909) 156 Cal. 707, 712, 106 P. 81

Common count is improper when contract remains "executory," that is, not fully performed by plaintiff. Castagnino v. Balletta (1889) 82 Cal. 250, 258, 23 P. 127

When contract is illegal and unenforceable, guilty party generally may not recover consideration due on quasi-contract or common count. Donaldson v. Abot (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 817, 820-821, 239 Cal. Rptr. 801 ; Bennett v. Hayes

(1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 700, 703-704, 125 Cal. Rptr. 825

[c] When Defendant's Obligation Is Conditional

Criticism of necessity of pleading any special facts, including satisfaction of condition precedent, in action on common counts. Oliver v. Campbell (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 298, 305, 273 P.2d 15 ; Brooks v. Van Winkle (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 734, 739-740, 327 P.2d 151 (criticizing Roche v. Baldwin (1902) 135 Cal. 522, 528, 65 P. 459

When contract contains arbitration clause to determine true value of work performed in case of dispute, arbitration is condition precedent to any action on common counts for work performed. Davisson v. East Whittier Land Etc. Co. (1908) 153 Cal. 81, 84-85, 96 P. 88

Common count may not be used when defendant's obligation is conditional. Roche v. Baldwin (1902) 135 Cal. 522, 528, 65 P. 459

Where defendant's obligation to pay plaintiff is conditioned on third party approval, action on common count is appropriate even though satisfaction of condition precedent is not specifically alleged. Castagnino v. Balletta (1889) 82 Cal. 250, 258-261, 23 P. 127

If parties' agreement expressly limits obligation to pay monies out of specific fund or source, existence of fund is condition precedent to obligation of repayment; and if, through no fault of promisor, fund does not materialize, promisor is not obligated to pay. Sunniland Fruit, Inc. v. Verni (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 892, 899, 284 Cal. Rptr. 824 ; Jeschke v. Lamarr (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 506, 511, 44 Cal. Rptr. 416

When filing proper creditor's claim is statutory condition precedent to action against decedent's estate, condition precedent must be pleaded in action brought on common counts. Parker v. Solomon (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 125, 136-137,340 P.2d 353

When duty to pay is conditioned on existence of specific fund, plaintiff is required to allege and prove that condition has been complied with. Draper v. Patterson (1958) 156 Cal. App. 2d 606, 608-609, 319 P.2d 694

When filing claim is statutory condition precedent to action brought against governmental agency, condition precedent must be pleaded in action brought on common counts. Union Bk. & Tr. Co. v. Los Angeles Co. (1934) 2 Cal. App. 2d 600, 606, 38 P.2d 442

[4] Waiver of Tort and Use of Common Counts to Sue on Implied Contract

Waiver of tort and suit on count for goods sold and delivered based on conversion is proper. Bank of America N.T. & S. Assn. v. Hill (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 495, 498-499, 71 P.2d 258 ; Hallidie v. Enginger (1917) 175 Cal. 505, 508, 166 P. 1

Contrary to general rule that common counts may be used only for recovery of money, waiver of tort and suit in assumpsit for conversion of property is proper even if defendant has not sold or converted property into money. Los Angeles Drug Co. v. Superior Court (1936) 8 Cal. 2d 71, 74, 63 P.2d 1124 ; Glantz v. Freedman (1929) 100 Cal. App. 611, 614, 280 P. 704

Plaintiff may generally waive cause of action in tort and sue in assumpsit. Philpott v. Superior Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 512, 524-525, 36 P.2d 635 ; Gold v. Los Angeles Democratic League (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 365, 376, 122 Cal. Rptr. 732

Waiver of tort and use of common count of indebitatus assumpsit or quantum valebant is proper when basis of complaint is fraud. McCall v. Superior Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 527, 530-531, 36 P.2d 642

In action for money had and received based on conversion of property, recovery is limited to defendant's actual proceeds from sale of property. French v. Robbins (1916) 172 Cal. 670, 679, 158 P. 188

In action for goods sold and delivered based on conversion, recovery is limited to value of property. Chittenden v. Pratt (1891) 89 Cal. 178, 184, 26 P. 626

Waiver of tort and use of common count for money had and received is proper when basis of complaint is fraud. Minor v. Baldridge (1898) 123 Cal. 187, 189-190, 55 P. 783

In action for money had and received based on conversion of property, recovery is limited to defendant's actual proceeds from sale of property less necessary charges and commissions. Lubert v. Chauviteau (1853) 3 Cal. 458, 463

Waiver of tort and suit in assumpsit is improper when there is no basis for restitution. Gold v. Los Angeles Democratic League (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 365, 376-377, 122 Cal. Rptr. 732

Waiver of tort and use of common count for money had and received is proper when basis of complaint is constructive fraud or mistake of fact. County of Santa Cruz v. McLeod (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 222, 228, 11 Cal. Rptr. 249

Waiver of tort and action in assumpsit is proper when profit is wrongfully obtained. Adams v. Harrison (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d 288, 299-300, 93 P.2d 237

[5] Mistake of Fact

Failure of bank customer to examine account statements, although this duty is imposed by statute [see Com. Code § 4406(c)], is not neglect of legal duty barring recovery for mistake. Sun'N Sand, Inc. v. United California Bank (l978) 21 Cal. 3d 671, 700, 148 Cal. Rptr. 329

Money paid by mistake may be recoverable, no matter how negligent plaintiff was, as long as defendant/payee has not changed position in reliance on payment. National Bank of California v. Miner (1914) 167 Cal. 532, 537, 140 P. 27 ; Frontier Refining Co. v. Home Bank (l969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 630, 636, 77 Cal. Rptr. 641

Action for recovery of payments made under mistake of fact may be based on implied contract. Olmstead v. Dauphiny (1894) 104 Cal. 635, 640, 38 P. 505

Common count for money had and received is proper remedy for recovery of money paid by mistake. Firpo v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1926) 80 Cal. App. 122, 125, 251 P. 657

[6] Statute of Limitations

Statute of limitations for action in assumpsit generally begins to run when defendant receives money from plaintiff. Tabata v. Murane (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 221, 226, 148 P.2d 605

In action based on right to recover money under executory contract based on defendant's failure to perform, statute of limitations does not begin to run until injured party elects to no longer rely on contract and to sue for money paid under it. Richter v. Union Land and Stock Co. (1900) 129 Cal. 367, 375, 62 P. 39

If demand is necessary, statute of limitations begins to run when demand is made. Rose v. Foord (1892) 96 Cal. 152, 154

Statute of limitations relating to actions of assumpsit (rather than tort) generally applies when there is waiver of tort and suit in assumpsit. Ponti v. Farrell (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 676, 682-683, 15 Cal. Rptr. 500

Determination of appropriate statute of limitations when there is waiver of tort and suit in assumpsit may depend on substance of action and nature of right violated, rather than on form of action. Ponti v. Farrell (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 676, 683, 15 Cal. Rptr. 500

[7] Allegations in Complaint

Allegations of consideration or promise to pay are not required when implied as legal conclusion from facts pleaded. Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 778, 793, 256 P. 2d 947 ; McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 Cal. 84, 86, 55 P. 761

Failure to set forth date of indebtedness in action for money had and received is remedied by demand for bill of particulars. Pike v. Zadig (1915) 171 Cal. 273, 278, 152 P. 923

Allegation of demand for payment is not ordinarily required. Samuels v. Larrimore (1909) 11 Cal. App. 337, 339, 104 P. 1001 (money lent); Quimby v. Lyon (1883) 63 Cal. 394, 395 (money had and received)

Essential allegations of a common count are statement of indebtedness in certain sum, consideration, and nonpayment. First Interstate Bank v. State of California (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 627, 635, 243 Cal. Rptr. 8 ; Allen v. Powell (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 502, 510, 56 Cal. Rptr. 715

When cause of action on common count is based on express contract, allegations must specify whether contract was written or oral, unless complaint is without ambiguity on its face. Moya v. Northrup (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 276, 283-284, 88 Cal. Rptr. 783

Failure to allege facts that would estop defendant from pleading statute of frauds renders allegation demurrable, even if plaintiff has pleaded essential allegations of common count. Allen v. Powell (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 502, 512, 56 Cal. Rptr. 715

Direct statement of legal relationship or principle on which defendant's promise to pay is predicated is required when it cannot be implied from facts or when consideration was given to someone other than defendant. Vaughn v. Certified Life Ins. Co. (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 177, 181, 47 Cal. Rptr. 619

In action in assumpsit, two essential elements in pleading indebtedness are allegations of nonpayment and that services were rendered at defendant's request. Division of Labor Law Enforcement v. Barnes (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 337, 349, 23 Cal. Rptr. 55 , disapproved in part on other grounds in White Lightning Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 351 n.9, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345

Allegation of promise to pay must be alleged if the facts do not justify implication of promise. Smith v. Bentson (1932) 127 Cal. App. Supp. 789, 793, 15 P.2d 910

In action in indebitatus assumpsit, allegations of indebtedness and that services were performed at defendant's request are unnecessary when consideration and promise to pay are implied from nature of transaction. Donegan v. Houston (1907) 5 Cal. App. 626, 629-630, 90 P. 1073

[8] Answer

General denial is sufficient to raise most defenses to action on common counts, except defendant's answer must raise any new matter relied on that is not put in issue by plaintiff. Title Ins. Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 715, 731, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 822, 842 P.2d 121 (dicta, as action for refund was not common count); McDonald v. Pacific Debenture Co. (1905) 146 Cal. 667, 669, 80 P. 1090

Special pleading is required for certain affirmative defenses. McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 Cal. 84, 87, 55 P. 761 (statute of limitations); Interstate Group Administrators, Inc. v. Cravens, Dargan & Co. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 700, 706-707, 220 Cal. Rptr. 250 (any new matter relied on by defendant not put in issue by plaintiff); Grove v. Charles W. Barrett Co. (1927) 87 Cal. App. 165, 168, 261 P. 739 (estoppel and lack of capacity to sue)

General denial is sufficient to raise almost any defense, including some defenses that customarily require special pleading. Interstate Group Administrators, Inc. v. Cravens, Dargan & Co. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 700, 706, 220 Cal. Rptr. 250 (setoff)

[9] Consolidation of Actions

Plaintiff may unite in one complaint cause of action for the breach of an express contract and cause of action on common count. Olmstead v. Dauphiny (1894) 104 Cal. 635, 640, 38 P. 505

[10] Joinder of Common and Specifically Pleaded Counts

Plaintiff may plead cause of action as both common count and count on express contract, without having to elect between them. Philpott v. Superior Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 512, 518, 36 P.2d 635 ; Carnation Co. v. Marcevich (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 618, 620, 9 Cal. Rptr. 80 ; Leoni v. Delany (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 303, 308-309, 188 P.2d 765

Plaintiff may seek recovery of more than one debt in single common count. McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 Cal. 84, 86-87, 55 P. 761 ; Farwell v. Murray (1894) 104 Cal. 464, 466, 38 P. 199

Plaintiff may elect to plead single cause of action specifically on facts or generally on common counts. Castagnino v. Balletta (1889) 82 Cal. 250, 258, 23 P. 127 ; Higgins v. Desert Braemar, Inc. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 744, 751, 33 Cal. Rptr. 527

Single cause of action may be pleaded in alternative counts. Leeke v. Hancock (1888) 76 Cal. 127, 130, 17 P. 937 ; Hirschberg v. Rose (1934) 136 Cal. App. 653, 656, 29 P.2d 785

When same cause of action is pleaded on several common counts, findings for plaintiff on one count, without finding on others, are sufficient to support judgment for plaintiff. Leeke v. Hancock (1888) 76 Cal. 127, 130, 17 P. 937

Diverse common counts alleging different causes of action cannot be united in one count. Buckingham v. Waters (1859) 14 Cal. 146, 147-148

Common count for work and labor should be pleaded separately from common count of money had and received; interests of justice and its orderly administration required plaintiff to set forth separate theories in separate counts to facilitate their adjudication. Zumbrun v. University of Southern California (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 1, 9, 101 Cal. Rptr. 499

When common count is joined with one on the contract, trier of fact will determine which count (if any) is supported by evidence. Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 468, 474-475, 252 P.2d 373

Count for money had and received does not depend on showing of express privity of contract. Coombs v. Minor (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 645, 649, 141 P.2d 491

Action for money had and received is properly joinable with other common counts. Hirschberg v. Rose (1934) 136 Cal. App. 653, 656, 29 P.2d 785

[11] Demurrers

When specifically pleaded count in contract is unenforceable due to statute of frauds, action on common counts is still permitted. White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 346, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345 ; Leoni v. Delany (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 303, 307, 188 P.2d 765

Common count is not subject to demurrer when its facts, although similar to those in defective special count, are substantially identical to those alleged in another count that sufficiently states cause of action. Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 778, 793, 256 P.2d 947

If common count clearly appears to be based on same cause of action as insufficient specific count in alternative pleading, entire complaint is demurrable Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 778, 793, 256 P.2d 947 ; Del E. Webb Corp. v. Structural Materials Co. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 593, 601, 176 Cal. Rptr. 824

When original specific complaint is defective, amended common count is sufficient when amendment, though based on same facts, obviates defect of original specific count by alleging different theory of recovery. Overholser v. Glynn (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 800, 806-807, 73 Cal. Rptr. 628

Entire complaint is demurrable when common count is set forth on same facts as defective specially pleaded count, even if specific count is excluded by subsequent amendment. Henderson v. Superior Court (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 583, 590 al. Rptr. 478; Neal v. Bank of America National Trust & Savings Assn. (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 678, 681-682, 209 P.2d 825

Mere withdrawal of original complaint, once alleged, does not preclude court from considering it in ruling on sufficiency of amended pleading. Neal v. Bank of America National Trust & Savings Assn. (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 678

Common count is not subject to demurrer when it merely incorporates by reference certain preliminary allegations of a defective specific count. Auckland v. Conlin (1928) 203 Cal. 776, 778, 265 P. 946

Cause of action pleaded in form of common count is sufficient against general or special demurrer on grounds of uncertainty. Pike v. Zadig (1915) 171 Cal. 273, 276-277, 152 P. 923

Action on common counts for work done and materials furnished is sufficient against demurrer even though it cannot be ascertained which part of claim is for labor and which part for materials. Jensen v. Dorr (1911) 159 Cal. 742, 746, 116 P. 553

Action on common counts is not demurrable for uncertainty or ambiguity for failure to specify services rendered, times of performance, or amounts claimed for different services when these items may be obtained by demanding bill of particulars. McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 Cal. 84, 87, 55 P. 761

Action on common counts is not subject to demurrer pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 430 (see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(g)) for failure to state whether contract on which action is based is oral or written when complaint unambiguous on face. Moya v. Northrup (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 276, 285, 88 Cal. Rptr. 783

[12] Evidence

In action in assumpsit to recover reasonable value of services, evidence of written contract is admissible. Hermann v. Littlefield (1895) 109 Cal. 430, 432, 42 P. 443

Although general rule forbids admitting special contract in evidence in action pleaded on common count, special contract is admissible as evidence when nothing remains to be done except payment by defendant. Castagnino v. Balletta (1889) 82 Cal. 250, 259, 23 P. 127 ; Tsarnas v. Bailey (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 332, 338, 3 Cal. Rptr. 629

Agreed price set forth in unenforceable or invalid contract is relevant as evidence of reasonable value of services rendered if agreed price assigns dollar value to promised performance or provides formula by which ultimate sum is readily ascertainable. LuMetta v. U.S. Robotics, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 824 F.2d 768, 770 (diversity case applying California law); George v. Double-D Foods, Inc. (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 36, 42, 201 Cal. Rptr. 870

Value of benefit conferred is evidence of reasonable value of services rendered under implied contract. Lu Metta v. United States Robotics, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 824 F.2d 768, 770 (diversity case applying California law); Ferrier v. Commercial Steel Corp. (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 424, 426-427, 298 P.2d 555

Declaration in support of motion to preclude evidence should show that plaintiff's failure to provide adequate bill has prejudiced defense. Ernest W. Hahn, Inc. v. Nort-Cet Corp. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 171, 172-173, 109 Cal. Rptr. 709

Value of benefit conferred is evidence of reasonable value of services rendered under quantum meruit count, as is agreed price under terminated express agreement of parties. Watson v. Wood Dimension, Inc. (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1359, 1365-1366, 257 Cal. Rptr. 816

In action on common counts for balance due for labor done, defendant may not introduce evidence regarding alleged offset or counterclaim on subsequent contract with plaintiff when that evidence was not pleaded in defendant's answer. Carranza v. Noroian (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 481, 487-488, 49 Cal. Rptr. 629

Facts alleged in verified original complaint on common counts are not withdrawn from court consideration simply by omitting facts from amended pleading without explanation. Parker v. Solomon (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 125, 135, 340 P.2d 353

Contract price reflecting reasonable value of services performed under contract may be used as evidence for determining reasonable basis of additional work. Ferrier v. Commercial Steel Corp. (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 424, 426-427, 298 P.2d 555

Defendants under general denial to action pleaded on common counts may present any defense tending to show that plaintiff has no right to recover, including any matter at issue in pleadings. Aetna Carpet Co. v. Penzner (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 859, 860 , P.2d 347

Pleading on common counts does not alter plaintiff's burden of proof. Foye v. Board of Trade (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 734, 738, 54 P.2d 761

Plaintiff may plead as many different common counts as he or she chooses to meet any possible phase of evidence. Hirschberg v. Rose (1934) 136 Cal. App. 653, 656 , P.2d 785

Recovery in assumpsit does not require proof of express promise. Pacific Fruit Exch. v. F. E. Booth Co. (1930) 103 Cal. App. 54, 55, 283 P. 944

Good faith effort to obtain records needed to prepare adequate bill, including use of discovery, required by plaintiff. Burton v. Santa Barbara Nat. Bank (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 427, 433, 55 Cal. Rptr. 529

Exclusion of evidence is inappropriate when plaintiff prevented by defendant from having access to written records needed to prepare bill. Butler Bros. v. Connolly (1962) 204 Cal. App.2d 22, 25-26, 22 Cal. Rptr. 175

No prejudice is shown, and evidence should, thus, not be excluded, if information demanded is within defendant's knowledge or is available to defendant. Sadik v. Wallberg Mining Corp. (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 379, 381, 53 P.2d 981

[13] Burden of Proof

Plaintiff pleading on common counts has same burden of proof as plaintiff pleading on facts. Foye v. Board of Trade (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 734, 738, 54 P.2d 761

[14] Measure of Damages

Recovery on count in quantum valebant as limited solely to reasonable value of item or portion of item that is used. Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 778, 794, 256 P.2d 947

In action for money had and received based on conversion of property, recovery is limited to defendant's actual proceeds from sale of property. French v. Robbins (1916) 172 Cal. 670, 679, 158 P. 188

In action for goods sold and delivered based on conversion, recovery is limited to value of property. Chittenden v. Pratt (1891) 89 Cal. 178, 184, 26 P. 626

In action for money had and received based on conversion of property, recovery is limited to defendant's actual proceeds from sale of property less necessary charges and commissions. Lubert v. Chauviteau (1853) 3 Cal. 458, 463

In action in quantum meruit, recovery is based on agreed rate of compensation under terminated express agreement of parties and on value of benefit conferred on defendant. Watson v. Wood Dimension, Inc. (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1359, 1363-1366, 257 Cal. Rptr. 816

In action on common counts, tort damages and damages for breach of express contract are excluded. Zumbrun v. University of Southern California (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 1, 14, 101 Cal. Rptr. 499

Rule that party pleading on common count is limited to contract price as measure of damages does not apply to plaintiff seeking reasonable value of extra services rendered on implied contract when express contract is shown to be inapplicable. Benson Elec. Co. v. Hale Bros. Assoc., Inc. (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 686, 697 , 55 Cal. Rtpr 73

In action on common counts to recover value of services rendered by plaintiff pursuant to express contract, recovery is limited to contract price when plaintiff's services were fully rendered and debt liquidated. Higgins v. Desert Braemar, Inc. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 744, 752, 33 Cal. Rptr. 527

In action on common counts for proceeds of sale of converted property, recovery is limited to money in defendant's possession that rightfully belongs to plaintiff; plaintiff is not entitled to present value of balance due on sale contract, in addition to amount collected by defendant from buyer. Shahood v. Cavin (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 745, 750, 316 P.2d 700

[15] Defenses

[a] In General

Statute of frauds is not defense in action on common counts. McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 Cal. 84, 87, 55 P. 761

Guilty party cannot recover consideration due it under common count if contract is illegal and unenforceable. Donaldson v. Abot (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 817, 820-821, 239 Cal. Rptr. 801 ; Bennett v. Hayes (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 700, 703-704, 125 Cal. Rptr. 825

Setoff must ordinarily be affirmatively pleaded as defense; however, in response to common count, setoff is raised by general denial. Interstate Group Administrators, Inc. v. Cravens, Dargan & Co. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 700, 706-709, 220 Cal. Rptr. 250

Common count is defective if it does not allege any consideration moving from plaintiff to defendant. Gold v. Los Angeles Democratic League (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 365, 376-377, 122 Cal. Rptr. 732

Defendants under general denial to action on common counts may present any defense tending to show that plaintiff has no right to recover, including any matter at issue in pleadings. Carranza v. Noroian (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 481, 487-488 , 49 Cal. Rtpr. 629; Aetna Carpet Co. v. Penzner (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 859, 860 , P.2d 347

[b] Statute of Limitations

Statute of limitations is defense in action on common counts. McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 Cal. 84, 87, 55 P. 761

Amendment to conform pleadings to proof after statute of limitations has run may be permitted, for example, when common count for money had and received is pleaded originally and one for goods sold and delivered is more appropriate and two causes are similar with common origins. Ben-Hur Mfg. Co. v. Empire Factors (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 123, 129, 5 Cal. Rptr. 181

If bar of statute of limitations does not affirmatively appear on face of complaint, it is still proper to demur specially based on ambiguity or uncertainty to ascertain true dates. Miller v. Brown (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 304, 307, 237 P.2d 320

Defense of statute of limitations is properly raised by demurrer to action on common counts when it affirmatively appears on face of complaint that action is barred. Evans v. Zeigler (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 226, 230, 204 P.2d 902

[16] Indebitatus Counts (Counts for Fixed Amount)

[a] Goods Sold and Delivered

Common count for goods sold and delivered is used when defendant is indebted, in certain sum, for goods sold and delivered by plaintiff to defendant. Abadie v. Carrillo (1867) 32 Cal. 172, 175-176

Count for goods sold and delivered is sufficient even if plaintiff fails to allege promise to pay by defendant or particular value of goods delivered. Abadie v. Carrillo (1867) 32 Cal. 172, 173-175

Count for goods sold and delivered is sufficient even if it fails to state that goods were delivered. Johnson v. Dixon Farms Co. (1915) 29 Cal. App. 52, 56, 155 P. 134

Original complaint stating count for money had and received may be amended to state one for goods sold and delivered, due to similarity of counts and consequent lack of elements of prejudice or surprise to defendant. Ben-Hur Mfg. Co. v. Empire Factors (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 123, 131, 5 Cal. Rptr. 181

Count for goods sold and delivered is not demurrable for uncertainty even if plaintiff fails to clearly specify in pleadings whether action is expressly on contract or for reasonable value of goods. Preston v. Central Cal. etc. Irr. Co. (1909) 11 Cal. App. 190, 196-197, 104 P. 462

[b] Money Had and Received

Action for money had and received is appropriate when money was paid by mistake, extortion, oppression, undue advantage, or when consideration fails. Minor v. Baldridge (1898) 123 Cal. 187, 191, 55 P. 783

Common count for money had and received is proper when no contractual relationship exists, but equity requires that plaintiff receive payment on quasi-contractual theory. Minor v. Baldridge (1898) 123 Cal. 187, 190-191, 55 P. 783

Demand is required when, until demand is made, payee's retention of money is lawful. Rose v. Foord (1892) 96 Cal. 152, 154, 30 P. 1114

Allegation of making of demand ordinarily not necessary in action for money had and received. Quimby v. Lyon (1883) 63 Cal. 394, 395 ; Twining v. Thompson (1945) 68 Cal. App. 2d 104, 113-114, 156 P.2d 29

Action for money had and received is appropriate to recover money obtained by fraud, misrepresentation, duress, undue influence, or mistake of fact. City Bank of San Diego v. Ramage (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 570, 585, 72 Cal. Rptr. 273

Action for money had and received is appropriate when express contract is voidable due to innocent misrepresentation or fraud. Crocker-Anglo Nat. Bank v. Kuchman (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 490, 496-497, 36 Cal. Rptr. 806

Action for money had and received is not appropriate when defendant never received any part of money or equivalent thing being sued for. Rains v. Arnett (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 337, 344, 11 Cal. Rptr. 299

Action for money had and received is appropriate when one party possesses money that in equity and good conscience belongs to another. Rains v. Arnett (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 337, 344, 11 Cal. Rptr. 299

When count is pleaded as count for money had and received, but should have been pleaded as count for money lent, reversal of judgment is not required if variance is not prejudicial. Rains v. Arnett (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 337, 344, 11 Cal. Rptr. 299

Action for money had and received based on express contract is proper if plaintiff has fully performed and nothing remains to be done, except payment of money by defendant. Ferro v. Citizens Nat. Trust & Sav. Bank (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 401, 409, 282 P.2d 849

Action for money had and received is generally limited to money or article treated as or converted to money. Canepa v. Sun Pacific, Inc. (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 706, 712, 272 P.2d 860

Demand is required when debtor does not know that he or she owes creditor money. Twining v. Thompson (1945) 68 Cal. App. 2d 104, 114, 156 P.2d 29 ; Thresher v. Lopez (1921) 52 Cal. App. 219, 221, 198 P. 419

Action for money had and received does not depend on showing express privity of contract. Coombs v. Minor (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 645, 649, 141 P.2d 491

Action for money had and received is appropriate when express contract is void. Smith v. Randall (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 195, 197-198, 124 P.2d 334

Allegation that the money sued for was received for use of plaintiff may be shown by necessary implication. Shahabian v. Najarian (1936) 14 Cal. App. 2d 435, 440-441, 58 P.2d 396

[c] Money Lent

Count for money lent is appropriate to allege indebtedness for money lent by plaintiff to defendant. Pleasant v. Samuels (1896) 114 Cal. 34, 36-37, 45 P. 998 ; Moya v. Northrup (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 276, 278, 88 Cal. Rptr. 783

In common count for money lent, allegation specifying times at which indebtedness accrued or when items were lent are not necessary. Moya v. Northrup (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 276, 280, 88 Cal. Rptr. 783

When count is pleaded as count for money had and received, but should have been pleaded as count for money lent, reversal of judgment is not required if variance is nonprejudicial. Rains v. Arnett (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 337, 344, 11 Cal. Rptr. 299 ; Jones v. Re-Mine Oil Co. (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 832, 843, 119 P.2d 219

Action for money lent is appropriate when joint venture is terminated and one associate seeks to recover advances made in excess of his or her share from other associates. Barlin v. Barlin (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 390, 393, 302 P.2d 457

Count for money lent is inappropriate when payment was voluntarily made to third party for benefit of another. Curtin v. Black Oak Development Co. (1917) 35 Cal. App. 1, 5, 168 P. 1157 ; Deicher v. Corkery (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d. 654, 657, 23 Cal. Rptr. 270

[d] Money Paid

Action for money paid may not be brought by party who voluntarily pays out money for use of another without receiving any promise to repay. McGlew v. McDade (1905) 146 Cal. 553, 554, 80 P. 695

In common count for money paid, allegation of when plaintiff loaned money to and for defendant, date of indebtedness, items of account, or when defendant requested advance are not necessary. Pleasant v. Samuels (1896) 114 Cal. 34, 38, 45 P. 998

Recovery in action for money paid requires proof, either directly or impliedly from circumstances, that defendant requested that plaintiff pay out money for defendant's use. Moulton v. Loux (1877) 52 Cal. 81, 83

Action for money paid may be brought by one legally compelled to pay money that another is obliged to pay, or by one who pays money, not officiously, that another person should have paid to save himself or herself from damage. Langford v. Eckert (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 439, 443, 88 Cal. Rptr. 429 ; Pioneer Title Ins. Co. v. Guttman (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 116, 120, 345 P.2d 577

Common count for money paid is appropriate when one expends money at request of another. Deicher v. Corkery (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d. 654, 661, 23 Cal. Rptr. 270

Count for money paid, not count for money lent, is appropriate when one person voluntarily pays out money for use by third person. Deicher v. Corkery (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 654, 661, 23 Cal. Rptr. 270

When money is paid out for another's benefit at his or her request, law implies promise and legal liability of defendant to repay plaintiff on demand. Rains v. Arnett (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 337, 344, 11 Cal. Rptr. 299

[e] Work and Labor (Services)

In action for reasonable value of services, plaintiff is not entitled to interest before verdict or judgment. Swinnerton v. Argonaut L. & D. Co. (1896) 112 Cal. 375, 379, 44 P. 719

Allegation that work and labor were performed at defendant's request is not required, since request is implied from allegation of service performed. McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 Cal. 84, 86, 55 P. 761

Common count for work done and materials furnished is sufficient even if it fails to specify which of liquidated debt sums are for labor and which are for materials. Jensen v. Dorr (1911) 159 Cal. 742, 746-747, 116 P. 553

Action for work and labor is appropriate when entire performance of special contract is prevented by one party, or when terms of express contract have been varied by agreement of both parties. Overland Machined Products, Inc. v. Swingline, Inc. (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 642, 646, 69 Cal. Rptr. 852

Action for work and labor is appropriate to recover money from defendant on express contract when plaintiff has fully performed work and labor, including personal services, and nothing remains to be done except payment of money by defendant. Higgins v. Desert Braemar, Inc. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 744, 751, 33 Cal. Rptr. 527

Recovery under count for work and labor on express contract is limited to amount agreed to be paid. Higgins v. Desert Braemar, Inc. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 744, 751, 33 Cal. Rptr. 527

Count for services rendered is sufficiently pleaded if it alleges that services were performed at defendant's request and that defendant promised but failed to pay for services. Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 468, 475

In common count for services rendered, allegations that services were performed at defendant's request and that defendant promised to pay for services but failed to do so are sufficient. Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 468, 475

Count for work and labor performed and materials furnished is not demurrable on special grounds by reason of inclusion of allegation that defendant agreed to pay for work and labor "on special contract." Lehner v. McLennan (1921) 54 Cal. App. 491, 492-493, 202 P. 41

[17] Quantum Counts (Counts for Reasonable Value)

[a] Quantum Meruit

Full performance does not make restitution unavailable if any part of consideration due from defendant is something other than a liquidated debt; when legal publisher breached author agreement by rejecting completed manuscript solely for commercial reasons and not because of any defect, author was entitled to sue for restitution for time and effort he reasonably invested in writing the manuscript; entitlement to percentage of revenues from book was not "liquidated debt" under California law. Chodos v. West Publishing Co, Inc. (9th Cir. 2002) 292 F.3d 992, 1001-1002

Law firm that was barred from recovering under fee-sharing agreement with another firm, due to absence of written client consent to agreement required by Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 2-200, held entitled to recover from other firm in quantum meruit for reasonable value of services it rendered on client's behalf. Huskinson & Brown, LLP v. Wolf (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 453, 464, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 693, 84 P.3d 379

Action in quantum meruit is appropriate when party expends funds and performs services at another's request, under reasonable belief that requesting party will compensate him or her for those services, even if expenditures and services do not directly benefit requesting party. Earhart v. William Low Co. (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 503, 505, 510-515, 158 Cal. Rptr. 887, 600 P.2d 1344 (disapproving Rotea v. Izuel (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 605, 611, 95 P.2d 927)

Lawyer who was barred from recovering under fee-sharing agreement with firm, due to absence of written client consent to agreement required by Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 2-200, could not recover in quantum meruit from client but could recover from firm under rule of Huskinson & Brown, LLP v. Wolf, above. Strong v. Beydoun (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1398, 1404, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 632

Count in quantum meruit is sufficient if it alleges that plaintiff performed certain services for defendant, their reasonable value, that they were rendered at defendant's request, and that they are unpaid. Brown v. Crown Gold Milling Co. (1907) 150 Cal. 376, 382, 89 P. 86 ; Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 468, 475, 252 P.2d 373

Action in quantum meruit is appropriate if services rendered by one party to void contract are not illegal. Sims v. Petaluma Gas Light Co. (1901) 131 Cal. 656, 660, 63 P. 1011 ; Lawn v. Camino Heights, Inc. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 973, 980-983, 93 Cal. Rptr. 621

Action in quantum meruit is appropriate to recover reasonable value of services rendered when defendant is not liable in a fixed sum. McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 Cal. 84, 86-87 55 P. 761 ; Meredith v. Marks (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 265, 272-273, 27 Cal. Rptr. 737

Action in quantum meruit is appropriate when terms of a contract have been modified by mutual agreement. Castagnino v. Balletta (1889) 82 Cal. 250, 258, 23 P. 127 (action on express contract inappropriate in this case); Dodge v. Harbor Boat Bldg. Co. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 782, 791, 222 P.2d 697

In matters regarding written agreements or licensure, a party may not recover in quantum meruit for that which cannot be recovered on contract. Castillo v. Barrera (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1317, 1328, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 494 (denying recovery to unlicensed boxing manager, following cases with same result for unlicensed talent agents and unlicensed contractors)

Claim in quantum meruit is appropriate to recover reasonable value of services rendered by unmarried cohabitant to business solely owned by other cohabitant; recovery is for value of beneficial services, not value by which someone benefits from those services; claim did not accrue until relationship ended for purposes of statute of limitations. Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 442, 452-454, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101

County is not liable for quantum meruit claim absent statute authorizing or requiring payment. Union of American Physicians & Dentists v. County of Santa Clara (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 45, 49-52, 196 Cal. Rptr. 602

Action in quantum meruit is appropriate to recover reasonable value of services after part performance on express contract. Mayo v. Pacific Project Consultants, Inc. (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1013, 1018-1019, 82 Cal. Rptr. 117 ; Oliver v. Campbell (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 298, 302, 273 P.2d 15

Action in quantum meruit is inappropriate when plaintiff has fully performed under contract and defendant's debt is liquidated or calculable; plaintiff limited to liquidated debt sum and cannot alternatively seek reasonable value of services. Higgins v. Desert Braemar, Inc. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 744, 751, 33 Cal. Rptr. 527

Count in quantum meruit is improper when action is not premised on any services rendered defendant that serve as basis of recovery for plaintiff. Parker v. Solomon (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 125, 135, 340 P.2d 353

Action in quantum meruit is appropriate to recover reasonable value of services after imperfect performance if services are rendered in good faith and defendant accepts them. Roseleaf Corp. v. Radis (1953) 122 Cal. App. 2d 196, 207, 264 P.2d 964

Action in quantum meruit is appropriate when plaintiff, under express contract, performs other work not specified in contract at defendant's request. Combs v. California Cotton Mills Co. (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 781, 786-787, 247 P.2d 382

Action in quantum meruit is appropriate when express contract provides method for calculating compensation that cannot be followed under circumstances. Miller v. San Francisco Church Exten. Soc. (1932) 125 Cal. App. 85, 94, 13 P.2d 824

[b] Quantum Valebant

Action in quantum valebant is improper when defendant has not used property for his or her benefit such that the law will impose duty of compensation for that use. Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 778, 794, 256 P.2d 947

Count in quantum valebant is proper to recover reasonable value of goods sold and delivered. Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 778, 792-794, 256 P.2d 947

Recovery in quantum valebant is limited to reasonable value of item, or portion used. Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 778, 792-793, 256 P.2d 947

Action in quantum valebant for goods sold and delivered is improper when defendant refuses to accept goods. Hallidie v. Sutter S. R. Co. (1883) 63 Cal. 575, 577

[18] Book Account

Open book account may be pleaded in alternative along with other common counts. Biltmore Press v. Usadel (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 896, 898, 86 Cal. Rptr. 233

Open book account is detailed statement kept in book, in nature of debit and credit, that arises out of contract or some fiduciary relationship, and shows against whom and in favor of whom charges are made. Block v. D.W. Nicholson Corp. (1947) 77 Cal. App. 2d 739, 746, 176 P.2d 739

Pleading open book account does not avoid two-year statute of limitations on oral contract when there is insufficient evidence to establish existence of that account. Biltmore Press v. Usadel (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 896, 900, 86 Cal. Rptr. 233

Loose pages and records kept in other than book form are sufficient to constitute book account and are binding on appeal if evidence supports trial judge's finding. Foothill D. Co. v. Wallace Ranch W. Co. (1938) 25 Cal. App. 2d 555, 566-567, 78 P.2d 215

[19] Bill of Particulars

"Account stated" is defined as new agreement by parties that supersedes original contract and account. Jones v. Wilton (1938) 10 Cal. 2d 493, 498, 75 P.2d 593

Bill of particulars is not a pleading and cannot be answered. Chamberlain v. Loewenthal (1902) 138 Cal. 47, 49, 70 P. 932 ; Weiner v. Davies (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 387, 391, 56 Cal. Rptr. 546

Action on account covers almost any kind of contract action for money consisting of more than one item. Long Beach City School Dist. v. Dodge (1902) 135 Cal. 401, 407, 67 P. 499 ; Distefano v. Hall (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 657, 677, 32 Cal. Rptr. 770

Bill must be delivered to defendant within 10 days after date of service of demand. Edelman v. McDonell (1899) 126 Cal. 210, 213, 58 P. 528

"Account" within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 454 includes services alleged in seeking quasi-contractual recovery. McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 Cal. 84, 87, 55 P. 761 ; Caruso v. Snap-Tite, Inc. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 211, 213, 79 Cal. Rptr. 642

Plaintiff in action for services is not required to specify items of account in pleadings. McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 Cal. 84, 87, 55 P. 761

Provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 454 regarding time period within which bill of particulars must be delivered to defendant on proper written request is liberally construed by court when delivery beyond statutory deadline is not prejudicial to defendant. McCarthy v. Tecarte L. & W. Co. (1896) 110 Cal. 687, 692-693, 43 P. 391

Defendant desiring more specificity in common count is required to make demand for bill of particulars. Farwell v. Murray (1894) 104 Cal. 464, 465-466, 38 P. 199

Demand for bill of particulars is appropriate in action for goods sold and delivered when complaint does not set out items of account. Farwell v. Murray (1894) 104 Cal. 464, 466-467, 38 P. 199

Demand for bill of particulars is appropriate in action for work and labor performed when complaint does not set out items of account. Farwell v. Murray (1894) 104 Cal. 464, 466-467, 38 P. 199

Party who intends to preclude evidence of adversary on grounds that latter failed to meet demand for bill of particulars must apply for motion to exclude evidence before trial. Conner v. Hutchinson (1861) 17 Cal. 279, 282 ; Burton v. Santa Barbara Nat. Bank (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d, 427, 433 , 55 Cal. Rptr. 529

"Account" within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 454 includes money lent or money paid. Moya v. Northrup (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 276, 88 Cal. Rptr. 783

Purpose of bill of particulars is to provide information so that defendant will not be taken by surprise and can intelligently present defenses. Halagan v. Ohanesian (1967) 64 Cal. Rptr. 792

If furnished bill of particulars is too general, defendant's remedy is further bill of particulars. Burton v. Santa Barbara Nat. Bank (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 427, 433, 55 Cal. Rptr. 529

Motion to exclude on failure to provide bill of particulars must be made before trial. Burton v. Santa Barbara Nat. Bank (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 427, 433, 55 Cal. Rptr. 529

Terminology "bill of particulars," "account," and "copy of account" are apparently used interchangeably by courts within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 454. Burton v. Santa Barbara Nat. Bank (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 427, 432, 55 Cal. Rptr. 529

When plaintiff furnishes inadequate bill of particulars, defendant must demand further account by noticed motion or be deemed to have waived insufficiency of bill. Burton v. Santa Barbara Nat. Bank (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 427, 433, 55 Cal. Rptr. 529

Demand for bill of particulars does not extend time in which to answer. Dobbins v. Hardister (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 787, 794, 51 Cal. Rptr. 866

Primary purpose of bill of particulars is to amplify complaint to help defendant prepare pleading. Dobbins v. Hardister (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 787, 794-795, 51 Cal. Rptr. 866

No bill of particulars may be demanded in action on account stated. Distefano v. Hall (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 657, 677, 32 Cal. Rptr. 770

Items in bill of particulars must be set forth, in good faith, as precisely and as definitely as possible. Meredith v. Marks (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 265, 270, 27 Cal. Rptr. 737

Court determines whether plaintiff's response to demand for bill of particulars is sufficient. Butler Bros. v. Connolly (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 22, 26, 22 Cal. Rptr. 175 ; Glogau v. Hagan (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 313, 321, 237 P.2d 329

"Account" within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 454 includes goods sold and delivered. Ben-Hur Mfg. Co. v. Empire Factors (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 123, 132, 5 Cal. Rptr. 181

Motion to exclude on failure to provide sufficient bill of particulars will be denied if motion was not made before trial. Glogau v. Hagan (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 313, 321, 237 P.2d 329

Items specified in bill of particulars limits nature and amount of recovery that might otherwise be permissible under allegations of original complaint. Abbott v. Limited Mut. Comp. Ins. Co. (1938) 30 Cal. App. 2d 157, 161, 85 P.2d 961

Bill of particulars for legal services rendered is deemed incorporated into complaint. Baroni v. Musick (1934) 3 Cal. App. 2d 419, 421 39 P.2d 435

Bill of particulars is regarded as amplification of complaint and considered incorporated into complaint as originally filed for purpose of determining plaintiff's right of recovery or admissibility of evidence in support of claim. Kurokawa v. Saroyan (1928) 95 Cal. App. 772, 774, 273 P. 613

"Account" within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 454 includes money had and received. Firpo v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins.

Co. (1926) 80 Cal. App. 122, 251 P. 657

Code Civ. Proc. § 454 does not require any specific form of demand, other than writing requirement, but demand should be signed by party requesting bill of particulars or contain clear indication of party's entitlement to account. Elmore v. Tingley (1926) 78 Cal. App. 460, 468, 248 P. 706

"Account" within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 454 includes services or materials furnished defendant pursuant to contract. Jensen v. Dorr (1911) 159 Cal. 742, 746, 116 P. 553

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral OverviewContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionAssumpsitContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionMoney Had & ReceivedContracts LawTypes of ContractsExpress ContractsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime Limitations

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.43

§ 121.43 Law Reviews

Note, Restitution for Money Paid Under Mistake of Law, 19 Hastings L.J. 1225 (1968)

Note, Restitution: Mistake of Fact: Recovery of Insurance Payments, 2 UCLA L. Rev. 285 (1955)

Notes and Recent Decisions, Conversion: Waiver of Tort; Effect of Statute of Limitations, 31 Calif. L. Rev. 584 (1943)

King, The Use of the Common Counts in California, 14 S. Calif. L. Rev. 288 (1941)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
GovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsWaiversTortsIntentional TortsConversionDefensesTortsIntentional TortsConversionRemedies

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.44

§ 121.44 Text References

Corbin on Contracts, vol. 1, §§ 19, 20; vol. 2, § 330

Witkin, California Procedure, vol. 4, Pleading §§ 460-471, 514-532 (4th ed. 1997)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 121.45-121.49

[Reserved]

§§ 121.45[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART IV. FORMS

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.50

§ 121.50 Judicial Council Trial Court Pleading Form [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(a)]

[1] FORMS

[a] Complaint Based on Contract [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(a), (b); Judicial Council Form PLD-C-001] Complaint Based on Contract [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(a), (b); Judicial Council Form PLD-C-001]

Click here to view image.

[b] Common Counts Cause of Action (Attachment to Complaint on Contract) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(a), (b); Judicial Council Form PLD-C-001(2)] Common Counts Cause of Action (Attachment to Complaint on Contract) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(a), (b); Judicial Council Form PLD-C-001(2)]

Click here to view image.

[2] Use of Forms

The forms in [1][a] and [b], above, are illustrations of two Judicial Council forms for use in an action based on a common count. The first form is the Judicial Council form for a complaint on a contract (Form PLD-C-001); the second form is an attachment to the first and indicates that the cause of action is based on a common count (Form PLD-C-001(2)); These forms are for use in any action based on a common count [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(a), (b); Judicial Council Forms PLD-C-001, PLD-C-001(2)].

A complete set of Judicial Council trial court pleading forms is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

For general information relating to the use of Judicial Council complaint forms, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints . For discussion of the Judicial Council form for a complaint on a contract, and instructions on completing that form, see Ch. 140, Contracts . Additional information specifically related to the common counts needed to complete the complaint for contract actions/contract complaint form is discussed in [4] and [5], below. Information required to complete the common count attachment is discussed in [6]-[11], below.

[3] Use of Judicial Council Form Optional

These Judicial Council forms have been approved for optional use [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(a), (b)].

[4] Attachment of Common Counts Cause of Action to Complaint

The Common Counts box is Paragraph 9 of this form, and should be checked to indicate that the Common Counts Cause of Action (Judicial Council Form PLD-C-001(2), reproduced in [1][b], above, is attached.

[5] Prayer

The prayer in Paragraph 10 of the complaint contains several alternatives relating to the type of relief requested, including damages, interest on damages, attorney's fees, and other relief.

If requesting interest, this paragraph must indicate whether interest is sought according to proof or at a certain rate, which must be specified. The date from which interest is requested must also be stated. For further discussion of interest, see [8], below.

If attorney's fees are requested, this paragraph must indicate whether attorney's fees are sought according to proof or in a specified amount. Except as provided by statute, the measure and mode of compensation of attorneys is based on the express or implied agreement of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021]. Thus, attorney's fees ordinarily are unavailable in an action based on a common count unless the party requesting fees presents proof of an implied agreement providing for these fees. However, attorney's fees may be recovered by the prevailing party in certain contract actions based on a book account as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 337a, entered into on or after January 1, 1987 [Civ. Code § 1717.5; see Civ. Code § 1717]. For further discussion, see Ch. 8, Accounts Stated and Open Accounts and Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees , § 174.50 et seq.

[6] Statutes of Limitations in Common Counts Attachment

This attachment groups the common counts according to the governing statute of limitations. A four-year statute of limitations applies to an open book account and to an account stated in a writing, between the plaintiff and defendant, in which it was agreed that the defendant was indebted to plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 337; see Code Civ. Proc. § 337a ("book account" defined)].

The indebitatus counts for money had and received, work and labor (services and materials), goods sold and delivered, money lent, money paid, and the quantum counts for the reasonable value of services or goods sold are subject to a four-year statute of limitations if the obligation is founded on a writing [Code Civ. Proc. § 337] and to a two-year statute of limitations if the obligation is oral or implied in fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 339].

[7] Appropriate Count on Common Counts Attachment

The appropriate common count must be selected from among the counts enumerated in Paragraph CC-1.b:

- Money had and received by defendant for the use and benefit of plaintiff [see § 121.24[1][b]; see also §§ 121.51, 121.52 (forms for complaints for money had and received)];

- Work, labor, services, and materials rendered at the special instance and request of defendant and for which defendant promised to pay plaintiff either a specific sum or the reasonable value [see §§ 121.24[5], 121.25[2]; see §§ 121.55 (form for complaint for work, labor, services, and materials at agreed price), 121.57 (form for complaint for reasonable value of work, labor, and services)];

- Goods, wares, and merchandise sold and delivered to defendant and for which defendant promised to pay plaintiff either a specific sum or the reasonable value [see §§ 121.24[6], 121.25[3]; see also §§ 121.56 (form for complaint for goods sold and delivered at agreed price), § 121.58 (form for complaint for reasonable value of goods sold and delivered)];

- Money lent by plaintiff to defendant at defendant's request [see § 121.24[2]; see also § 121.53 (form for complaint for money lent)];

- Money paid, laid out, and expended to or for defendant at defendant's special instance and request see § 121.24[3]; see also § 121.54 (form for complaint for money paid)]; and

- Any other common count not described above.

[8] Amount Due and Prejudgment Interest

The detriment caused by the breach of an obligation to pay money only is deemed to be the amount due under the terms of the obligation, with interest on the principal amount due [Civ. Code § 3302; see Civ. Code § 3287(a) (interest on damages certain or capable of being made certain by calculation)]. Accordingly, the plaintiff in an action based on an indebitatus count would generally be able to recover prejudgment interest since the amount owed was certain at the time plaintiff's right became vested. In contrast, when a claim is unliquidated, as in an action on the quantum counts, interest from the date the principal became due is not permitted. However, a court, in its discretion, may award interest on the principal amount, but no earlier than the date the action was filed [see Civ. Code § 3287(b); see also Lewis C. Nelson & Sons, Inc. v. Clovis Unified School District (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 64, 73, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 715 (holding that Civ. Code § 3287(b) is applicable to the public entities described in Civ. Code § 3287(a))].

[9] Attorney's Fees

Attorney's fees may be available based on a provision in the contract on which the action is predicated [Civ. Code § 1717], or in certain contract actions based on a book account [Civ. Code § 1717.5; see Code Civ. Proc. § 337a ("book account" defined)]. For further discussion of attorney's fees in an action on the common counts, see [5], above. For further discussion of attorney's fees based on book accounts, see Ch. 8, Accounts Stated and Open Accounts , and Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees , § 174.50 et seq.

[10] Other Allegations

The space marked "Other" in Paragraph CC-4 may be used to allege facts for which no other space has been provided. For example, the form might state on information and belief that the fictitiously named defendants are liable for the occurrences alleged in the complaint.

[11] Verification

Counsel may attach a verification to this complaint, if desired or if necessary [for form of verification attached to form of complaint for money had and received, see § 121.51]. Verification of the complaint is not required except when the action is subject to Civ. Code § 1812.10 (retail installment sales), Civ. Code § 2984.4 (motor vehicle sales), or Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) (other consumer obligations). However, verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[12] Cross References

For complaints on specific common counts and discussion of those common counts see §§ 121.51 -121.58

For discussion of the common count of account stated and open book account, see Ch. 8, Accounts Stated and Opens Accounts

For alternative allegations of the parties' capacity, residence, fictitious name, and agency relationships, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used

For discussion of the effect of verification of a complaint on the answer, refer to Ch. 26, Answers

For alternative forms for captions and introductions, see Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions

For alternative forms for prayers, see Ch. 420, Prayers

For alternative forms for verification, see Ch. 572, Verification

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART IV. FORMS

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.51

§ 121.51 Complaint for Money Had and Received (Indebitatus Assumpsit)

[1] FORM Complaint for Money Had and Received (Indebitatus Assumpsit)

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR MONEY HAD AND RE-
_____ [name],	)	CEIVED
Defendant.	)	(COMMON COUNT)
	)	[Amount demanded _____
	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
		[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

_____

Plaintiff alleges:

[EITHER, if defendant is a domestic corporation]

1. Defendant _____ [name] is now, and at all times mentioned in this complaint was, a corporation duly organized under the laws of California, with its principal executive office located in _____ County, California.

[OR, if defendant is a foreign corporation governed by Corp. Code § 2115]

1. Defendant _____ [name] is now, and at all times mentioned in this complaint was, a foreign _____ [corporation transacting intrastate business in California or parent corporation], subject to Section 2115 of the California Corporations Code and to which Section _____ [specify relevant statutory sections] of the Corporations Code is applicable to the exclusion of law of the jurisdiction of its incorporation.

[OR, if defendant is a natural person]

1. Defendant _____ [name] is an individual and is now, and at all times mentioned in this complaint was, a resident of _____ [city], _____ [county], California [or continue with other basis of venue, e.g., county where contract was made].

[CONTINUE with fictitious name allegation, if appropriate]

[2. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued in this complaint as DOES I-_____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by these fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. (Plaintiff believes that each of the fictitiously named defendants is indebted to plaintiff as alleged in this complaint, and that plaintiff's rights against the fictitiously named defendants arise from this indebtedness.)]

[ADD, if action is subject to Civ. Code § 1812.10 (retail installment sales) or Civ. Code § 2984.4 (motor vehicle sales), or Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) (other consumer obligations), allegation of facts showing proper venue, unless these facts are stated in an affidavit filed with complaint]

3. This action is subject to the provisions of Section _____ [1812.10 of the Civil Code or 2984.4 of the Civil Code or 395(b) of the Code of Civil Procedure] because _____ [state facts].

[CONTINUE]

4. _____ [Within the last _____ (two or four) years or On or about _____ (date)], at _____ [city], California, defendant became indebted to plaintiff in the sum of $_____ for money had and received by defendant for the use and benefit of plaintiff.

5. Plaintiff has repeatedly demanded payment from defendant. The last demand was made on _____ [date].

[EITHER, if no payment has been made]

6. No payment has been made by defendant to plaintiff, and there is now owing the sum of $_____, with interest on that amount at the rate of _____ percent per year from _____ [date].

[OR, if partial payment has been made]

6. Defendant has paid only the sum of $_____ to the plaintiff, leaving a balance due of $_____, with interest on that amount at the rate of _____ percent per year from

_____ [date].

[CONTINUE, if requesting attorney's fees based on contract provision]

7. The contract on which this action is based provides that in the event legal action is taken to enforce collection, the prevailing party is entitled to recover reasonable attorney's fees. Plaintiff believes that the amount of $_____ constitutes a reasonable attorney's fee for the prosecution of this action.

[OR, if requesting attorney's fees based on contract on a book account as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 337a]

7. The contract on which this action is based is a contract on a book account. Section 337a of the Code of Civil Procedure provides that in the event legal action is taken to enforce collection, the prevailing party on the contract is entitled to recover reasonable attorney's fees. Plaintiff believes that the amount of $_____ constitutes a reasonable attorney's fee for the prosecution of this action.

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant[s and each of them,] as follows:

1. For the [principal] sum of $_____;

2. For interest [on the (principle) sum at _____ percent per year from _____ (date) or as allowed by law];

3. For costs of suit incurred; and

4. For any further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is on the common count for money had and received. In general, the count is used to recover either on an express contract when the plaintiff has fully performed and nothing remains to be done except payment by the defendant, or when the defendant has in his or her possession money that in equity and good conscience belongs to the plaintiff [see Ferro v. Citizens Nat. Trust & Sav. Bank (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 401, 409, 282 P.2d 849 ; Rains v. Arnett (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 337, 344, 11 Cal. Rptr. 299] .

For general discussion of a complaint based on contract with a common counts cause of action attached see § 121.50.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- The capacity and principal office of the corporation [see Corp. Code § 1304(a) (venue of action in superior court of proper county); see also Corp. Code § 177], or the capacity and residence of the individual defendant, as appropriate (Paragraph 1);

- The existence of fictitious defendants (Optional Paragraph 2);

- Proper venue if the action is subject to Civ. Code § 1812.10 (retail installment sales) or Civ. Code § 2984.4 (motor vehicle sales), or Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) (other consumer obligations) (Optional Paragraph 3);

- The date of the indebtedness, or the time within which the indebtedness arose (Paragraph 4) [see §§ 121.15, 121.16[4]];

- The amount of the plaintiff's consideration (Paragraph 4) [see Allen v. Powell (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 502, 510, 56 Cal. Rptr. 715 ; see also § 121.16[3]];

- That the plaintiff has demanded payment (Paragraph 5), (although no longer deemed essential by courts addressing the issue, a demand has been alleged in seminal cases [see, e.g., Division of Labor Law Enforcement v. Barnes (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 337, 349, 23 Cal. Rptr. 55 , disapproved in part on other grounds in White Lightning Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 335, 351 n.9, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345 ; see also § 121.16[2], 121.24[1][c]];

- Nonpayment or part payment and amount owing (Paragraph 6) [see First Interstate Bank v. State of California (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 627, 635, 243 Cal. Rptr. 8 ; see also § 121.16[1]; Allen v. Powell (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 502, 510, 56 Cal. Rptr. 715 (although traditional form of pleading money had and received required allegation that no part of sum owed has been paid, allegation of nonpayment of part apparently is sufficient)];

- Interest due on the unpaid sum (Paragraph 6) [see Civ. Code § 3287(a) (interest from date principal became due permitted in action on the agreed price, but not in an action on the quantum counts, except as provided in Civ. Code § 3287(b); for form of complaint based on contract with common counts attachment see § 121.50]; and

- The existence of an attorney's fee provision, or that the action is based on a book account, and the reasonable value of the attorney's services (Optional Paragraph 7) [see Civ. Code §§ 1717 (attorney's fees available based on provision in contract on which action is based), 1717.5 (attorney's fees available in certain contract actions based on book account); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 337a ("book account" defined)].

This last allegation is not strictly necessary [see Civ. Code § 1717(a) (attorney's fees pursuant to contract provision as element of costs); see also Ganey v. Doran (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 901, 911,912, 236 Cal. Rptr. 787 (contract provision for attorney's fees need not be pleaded if contract is made part of complaint)]. Reasonable attorney's fees are fixed by the court on notice and motion of a party [Civ. Code § 1717(a)]. For discussion of attorney's fees awards pursuant to a contract provision, and forms and procedures for their recovery, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees . For additional discussion of attorney's fees in actions on the common counts, see § 121.50.

A promise by the defendant to pay the plaintiff is necessary when the promise cannot be implied from the alleged facts, or when the defendant is one other than person to whom the consideration was given [Vaughn v. Certified Life Ins. Co. (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 177, 181, 47 Cal. Rptr. 619 ; see § 121.16[3]].

For a detailed discussion of the necessary and recommended allegations when pleading on the common counts, see §§ 121.16, 121.24[1][c].

[4] Joinder of Counts

When the basis of the action is that the defendant obtained the benefit of goods or services furnished by the plaintiff, a count for money had and received is often joined with a count on an open book account and with one for goods sold and delivered or for work and labor, as appropriate. If the transaction involved an account stated, a count on an account stated may also be joined [see Hirschberg v. Rose (1934) 136 Cal. App. 653, 656 ; see also Ch. 8, Accounts Stated and Open Accounts].

Further, a common count for money had and received may be joined with a specially pleaded count based on the same facts and seeking the same recovery [Philpott v. Superior Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 512, 518, 36 P.2d 635 ; Leoni v. Delany (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 303, 308-309, 188 P.2d 765 (separately pleading both express agreement to compensate and common count for services rendered); see Carnation Co. v. Marcevich (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 618, 620, 9 Cal. Rptr. 80 (plaintiff may plead count expressly on facts, joined with common count based on same facts and seeking same recovery)]. This practice is common, particularly if the express contract may prove to be unenforceable or if the recovery on the express contract may fail for lack of proof or another defect that would not preclude recovery based on the common count. For further discussion of joinder, see § 121.19.

[5] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of the paper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 70613(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "below the character of the action or proceeding")].

[6] Verification

Verification of this complaint is not required, except when the action is subject to Civ. Code § 1812.10 (retail installment sales) or Civ. Code § 2984.4 (motor vehicle sales), or Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) (other consumer obligations). However, verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer in a superior court action other than a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)].

For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, refer to Ch. 26, Answers. For discussion of the verification requirements in actions involving installment, automotive sales, or consumer obligations, see [8], below.

[7] Venue

In actions on the common counts not subject to the special venue provisions discussed in [8], below [see Civ. Code §§ 1801 et seq., 2981 et seq.; Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b)], the regular provisions governing venue apply [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. Thus, in an action on a common count based on contract, venue would properly lie in the county in which the obligation is to be performed or the contract was entered into, or in the county in which any defendant resides at the time of commencement of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. However, if one of two common counts pleaded in the same cause of action entitles a defendant to a change of venue, it is immaterial that the other count is sufficient for venue in the county in which the action was originally filed [see Tringali v. Vest (1951) 106 Cal. App. 2d 720, 721, 236 P.2d 171 (permitting change of venue in action alleging two counts, one of which was on account stated, when plaintiff's failure to allege county in which agreement was made provided grounds for change of venue to county of defendant's residence)].

[8] Special Rules for Actions Involving Installment Sales, Automotive Sales, and Other Consumer Obligations

In any action or proceeding that is subject to the Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act [Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.] or the Rees-Levering Automotive Sales Act [Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.], and in cases subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) (other consumer obligations), the plaintiff must state facts in the complaint, or in an affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury filed with the complaint, showing that the action has been commenced in the proper court and that the action is subject to the provisions of the Civ. Code § 1812.10 or 2984.4 (proper courts for commencing actions under Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act or Rees-Levering Automotive Sales Act), or to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) (proper courts for commencing actions related to other consumer obligations). If the facts are stated in the complaint, it must be verified by the oath of the plaintiff or the plaintiff's attorney. If an affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury is used, it similarly may be by either the plaintiff or the plaintiff's attorney [Civ. Code §§ 1812.10(c), 2984.4(c); Code Civ. Proc. § 396a(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (use of unsworn statements)].

When the affidavit (or declaration) is filed with the complaint, a copy must be served with the summons [Civ. Code §§ 1812.10(c), 2984.4(c); Code Civ. Proc. § 396a(a)]. If the plaintiff fails to file the affidavit (or declaration) or to state facts in a verified complaint, as required by statute, the action must be dismissed without prejudice, unless the court, on terms as may be just, permits the affidavit (or declaration) to be filed after the complaint is filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 396a(a); see Civ. Code §§ 1812.10(c), 2984.4(c); Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b); see also Ch. 20, Allegation Commonly Used].

For more detailed discussion of the Rees-Levering Act and Unruh Act, see Ch. 89, Automobiles: Sales and Financing Under the Rees-Levering Act , and Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales , respectively.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART IV. FORMS

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.52

§ 121.52 Complaint to Recover Amount of Overpayment Made Under Mistake of Fact; First Count Based on Implied Contract, Second Count Based on Common Count for Money Had and Received [Civ. Code § 1577]

[1] FORM Complaint to Recover Amount of Overpayment Made Under Mistake of Fact; First Count Based on Implied Contract, Second Count Based on Common Count for Money Had and Received [Civ. Code § 1577]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT TO RECOVER MONEY PAID BY
_____ [name],	)	MISTAKE
Defendant.	)	(COMMON COUNT)
	)	[Amount demanded _____
	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
		[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

_____

FIRST COUNT
(Implied Contract)

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 1.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 2.]

[3. Allegation that action is subject to Civ. Code § 1812.10 or 2984.4 or to Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b), if appropriate.

See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 3.]

4. On or about _____ [date], defendant rendered to plaintiff an account in writing based on _____ [former transactions between the parties or describe particular transaction out of which account arose]; that statement of account showed a balance due from plaintiff to defendant in the sum of $_____.

5. Plaintiff, reasonably relying on the statement of account [by reason of the long-standing business relationship existing between the parties], and believing the statement to be correct, on or about _____ [date], paid to defendant the full amount stated in the account.

6. After making this payment, and on or about _____ [date], plaintiff discovered that the account was overstated by the sum of $_____, resulting in an overpayment by plaintiff of that amount.

7. [Demand allegation. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 5.]

8. [Allegation of nonpayment and amount owing. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 6.]

SECOND COUNT
(Common Count)

1. Plaintiff incorporates _____ [Paragraph 1 or Paragraphs 1 and _____ (2 or 3) or Paragraphs 1, 2, and 3] of his/her first cause of action by reference.

2. [Money had and received allegation. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 4.].

3. [Demand allegation. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 5.]

4. [Allegation of nonpayment and amount owing. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 6.]

[Prayer. See § 121.51[1].]

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[Verification, if desired. See § 121.51[1]. For discussion, see § 121.51[6].]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use by a payor to recover money paid by mistake as a result of an incorrect statement of account rendered by the payee/defendant. It contains one count based on the implied contract and a second count stating a common count for money had and received.

If the account is a retail installment account or credit card account, other damages, including attorney's fees and in some cases treble damages for willful violations, may be authorized by both state and federal statutes, if the claim of error was first asserted in accordance with statutory billing error procedures and the defendant card issuer or retailer did not correct the error [see Civ. Code §§ 1747.50 (Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971), 1811.1, 1812.7, 1812.9 (Unruh Act); 15 U.S.C. § 1640(a) (federal Truth in Lending Act)].

For discussion and forms relating to California's Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 [Civ. Code §§ 1747-1748.7], refer to Ch. 127, Consumer Contracts and Loans. For discussion and forms relating to Unruh or Act [Civ. Code §§ 1801-1812.20] and the federal Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. §§ 1601-1667e], refer to Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales.

[3] Allegations

When a claim based on fraud or misrepresentation is pleaded as a common count, it is sufficient to plead only the common count [J. C. Peacock, Inc. v. Hasko (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 353, 16 Cal. Rptr. 518] , even though this practice of pleading on the common counts runs counter to the principle that facts constituting the alleged fraud must be set forth with particularity [Minor v. Baldridge (1898) 123 Cal. 187, 190-191, 55 P. 783] .

For further discussion of necessary and recommended allegations in a count for money had and received, see § 121.51 (form of complaint for money had and received. For discussion of the joinder of counts, refer to § 121.19, and to § 121.51. For discussion of admissible evidence in cases in which recovery depends on an implied contract, see § 121.21[1].

[4] Cross References

For further discussion of the requirements of a complaint on common counts, see § 121.51

See, generally, Ch. 140, Contracts

See, generally, Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART IV. FORMS

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.53

§ 121.53 Complaint for Money Lent (Indebitatus Assumpsit)

[1] FORM Complaint for Money Lent (Indebitatus Assumpsit)

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR MONEY LENT
_____ [name],	)	(COMMON COUNT)
Defendant.	)	[Amount demanded _____
	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

_____

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 1.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 2.]

[3. Allegation that action is subject to Civ. Code § 1812.10 or 2984.4 or to Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b), if appropriate. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 3.]

4. _____ [Within the last _____ (two or four) years or On or about _____ (date)], at _____ [city], California, defendant became indebted to plaintiff in the sum of $_____ for money lent by plaintiff to defendant at his/her request.

5. [Demand allegation. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 5.]

6. [Allegation of nonpayment and amount owing. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 6.]

[7. Request for attorney's fees, if appropriate. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 7.].

[Prayer. See § 121.51[1].]

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[Verification, if desired. See § 121.51[1]. For discussion, see § 121.51[6].]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is on the common count for money lent to defendant. For a discussion of the distinctions between the counts of money lent and money paid, see § 121.24[4].

For a more detailed discussion of the requirements of a complaint on common counts see § 121.51.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- The capacity and defendants' residences or other allegations for venue (Paragraph 1);

- The existence of fictitious defendants (Optional Paragraph 2);

- Proper venue if the action is subject to Civ. Code § 1812.10 (retail installment sales) or 2984.4 (motor vehicle sales), or Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) (other consumer obligations) (Optional Paragraph 3);

- The date of the indebtedness, or the time within which the indebtedness arose (Paragraph 4) [see §§ 121.15, 121.16[4]];

- The plaintiff's consideration (Paragraph 4) [see Allen v. Powell (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 502, 510, 56 Cal. Rptr. 715 ; see also § 121.16[3]];

- A demand for payment (Paragraph 5), (although no longer deemed essential by courts addressing the issue [see Samuels v. Larrimore (1909) 11 Cal. App. 337, 339, 104 P. 1001 (no demand required in action for money lent)], a demand has been alleged in seminal cases [see, e.g., Division of Labor Law Enforcement v. Barnes (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 337, 349, 23 Cal. Rptr. 55,] ;

- Nonpayment and amount owing (Paragraph 6) [see First Interstate Bank v. State of California (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 627, 635, 243 Cal. Rptr. 8 ; Allen v. Powell (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 502, 510, 56 Cal. Rptr. 715 ; see also § 121.16[1]];

- The existence of an attorney's fee provision and the reasonable value of the attorney's services

(Paragraph 7) [see Civ. Code §§ 1717 (attorney's fees available based on provision in contract on which action is based), 1717.5 (attorney's fees available in certain contract actions based on book account); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 337a ("book account" defined)].

For further discussion of necessary and recommended allegations when pleading on the common counts, see § 121.16[1] and § 121.51 (complaint for money had and received).

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART IV. FORMS

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.54

§ 121.54 Complaint for Money Paid (Indebitatus Assumpsit)

[1] FORM Complaint for Money Paid (Indebitatus Assumpsit)

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR MONEY PAID
_____ [name],	)	(COMMON COUNT)
Defendant.	)	[Amount demanded _____
	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

_____

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 1.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 2.]

[3. Allegation that action is subject to Civ. Code § 1812.10 or 2984.4, or to Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b), if appropriate. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 3.]

4. _____ [Within the last _____ (two or four) years or On or about _____ (date)], at _____ [city], California, defendant became indebted to plaintiff in the sum of $_____ for money paid by plaintiff for defendant at his/her request.

5. [Demand allegation. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 5.]

6. [Allegation of nonpayment and amount owing. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 6.]

[7. Request for attorney's fees, if appropriate. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 7.].

[Prayer. See § 121.51[1].]

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[Verification, if desired. See § 121.51[1]. For discussion, see § 121.51[6].]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, on the common count for money paid is appropriate when one expends money at the request of another [Deicher v. Corkery (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 654, 661, 23 Cal. Rptr. 270] . For a discussion of the distinctions between the counts of money lent and money paid, refer to § 121.24[4].

For further discussion of the requirements of a complaint on common counts see § 121.51.

[3] Allegations

For discussion of necessary and recommended allegations when pleading on the common counts, refer to § 121.16[1], and to § 121.51, complaint for money had and received.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART IV. FORMS

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.55

§ 121.55 Complaint for Work, Labor, Services and Materials at Agreed Price (Indebitatus Assumpsit)

[1] FORM Complaint for Work, Labor, Services and Materials at Agreed Price (Indebitatus Assumpsit)

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

[or other as appropriate]

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR WORK, LABOR, SERVICES
_____ [name],	)	[AND MATERIALS]
Defendant.	)	(COMMON COUNT)
	)	[Amount demanded _____
	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
		[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

_____

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 1.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 2.]

[3. Allegation that action is subject to Civ. Code § 1812.10 or 2984.4, or to Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b), if appropriate. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 3.]

[EITHER, if action is based on work, labor, and services provided by plaintiff to defendant]

4. _____ [Within the last _____ (two or four) years or On or about _____ (date)], at _____ [city], California, defendant became indebted to plaintiff in the agreed sum of $_____ for work,labor, and services performed by the plaintiff _____ [for defendant or at the special request of defendant].

[OR, if action is based on work, labor, and materials furnished by plaintiff to defendant]

4. _____ [Within the last _____ (two or four) years or On or about _____ (date)], at _____ [city], California, defendant became indebted to plaintiff in the agreed sum of $_____ for services and materials provided by plaintiff _____ [to defendant or at the special request of defendant].

[CONTINUE]

5. [Demand allegation. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 5.]

6. [Allegation of nonpayment and amount owing. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 6.]

[7. Request for attorney's fees, if appropriate. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 7.].

[Prayer. See § 121.51[1].]

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[Verification, if desired. See § 121.51[1]. For discussion, see § 121.51[6].]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is to be used when services, or services and materials, are furnished for an agreed price by the plaintiff to the defendant or at the defendant's special request. This count in indebitatus assumpsit should not be confused with the count in quantum meruit, for the reasonable value of services [see § 121.57, form of complaint for reasonable value of work labor and services (quantum meruit)].

For further discussion of the requirements of a complaint on common counts see § 121.51.

[3] Allegations

Older cases hold that a complaint on the common count of work and labor (or services) is sufficient to state a cause of action even if it does not itemize either the time (Paragraph 4) or the particular services, if more than one type of service was provided [see McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 Cal. 84, 87, 55 P. 761] . Further, although it is customary to allege that the work and labor (or services) were performed at the defendant's request (Paragraph 4), such an allegation is not required, since the request is implied from the allegation of the service performed [McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 Cal. 84, 86, 55 P. 761] . Moreover, a common count for work done and materials that plaintiff furnished defendant has been held to be sufficient even though it fails to specify which of the liquidated debt sums are for labor and which are for materials [Jensen v. Dorr (1911) 159 Cal. 742, 746-747, 116 P. 553] .

Although it is not necessary to specify the work done or the agreed price, courts generally allow some elaboration on the typical work and labor count [Donegan v. Houston (1907) 5 Cal. App. 626, 629, 90 P. 1073 ; see Math v. Crescent Hill Gold Mines Co. (1916) 31 Cal. App. 636, 640, 161 P. 140 (in count for work and labor, terms of express contract under which work was performed need not be set forth)].

However, despite the holdings mentioned above, the additional allegations in this form are both customary and recommended [see § 121.51, form of complaint for money had and received; see also § 121.16].

[4] Amount of Recovery

If the action is to recover for work and labor rendered by the plaintiff pursuant to a contract, the plaintiff has fully performed, and the amount owed is calculable, the amount of recovery is limited to the liquidated debt and not the reasonable value of services [Higgins v. Desert Braemar, Inc. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 744, 751-754, 33 Cal. Rptr. 527] .

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART IV. FORMS

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.56

§ 121.56 Complaint for Goods Sold and Delivered at Agreed Price (Indebitatus Assumpsit)

[1] FORM Complaint for Goods Sold and Delivered at Agreed Price (Indebitatus Assumpsit)

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

[or other as appropriate]

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR GOODS SOLD AND DE-
_____ [name],	)	LIVERED AT AGREED PRICE
Defendant.	)	(COMMON COUNT)
	)	[Amount demanded _____
	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
		[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

_____

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 1.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 2.]

[3. Allegation that action is subject to Civ. Code § 1812.10 or 2984.4, or to Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b), if appropriate. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 3.]

4. _____ [Within the last _____ (two or four) years or On or about _____ (date)], at _____ [city], California, defendant became indebted to plaintiff in the sum of $_____ for goods sold and delivered to defendant.

5. [Demand allegation. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 5.]

6. [Allegation of nonpayment and amount owing. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 6.]

[7. Request for attorney's fees, if appropriate. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 7.].

[Prayer. See § 121.51[1].]

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[Verification, if desired. See § 121.51[1]. For discussion, see § 121.51[6].]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is to be used when the goods sold and delivered, but not paid for, were for a fixed price. The complaint alleges the indebtedness, in a certain sum, for goods sold and delivered by the plaintiff to the defendant [see Abadie v. Carrillo (1867) 32 Cal. 172, 175-176] . However, if the plaintiff seeks the reasonable value of goods sold and delivered, rather than a specific sum, an action in quantum valebant is appropriate [see § 121.58, form of complaint for reasonable value of goods sold and delivered].

For further discussion of the requirements of a complaint on common counts see § 121.51.

[3] Allegations

A common count for goods sold and delivered is sufficient when it avers defendant's indebtedness to plaintiff in a certain sum (Paragraph 4), delivery at the request of the defendant (Paragraph 4), and nonpayment (Paragraph 6), even when the plaintiff fails to allege a promise by the defendant to pay or the particular value of the goods [Abadie v. Carrillo (1867) 32 Cal. 172, 173-175] , or even that the goods were delivered [Johnson v. Dixon Farms Co. (1915) 29 Cal. App. 52, 56, 155 P. 134] .

The additional allegations in this form are both customary and recommended [see § 121.51[3]; see also § 121.16].

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART IV. FORMS

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.57

§ 121.57 Complaint for Reasonable Value of Work, Labor, and Services (Quantum Meruit)

[1] FORM Complaint for Reasonable Value of Work, Labor, and Services (Quantum Meruit)

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR REASONABLE VALUE OF
_____ [name],	)	WORK, LABOR, AND SERVICES
Defendant.	)	(COMMON COUNT IN QUANTUM MERUIT)
	)	[Amount demanded _____
	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
		[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

_____

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 1.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 2.]

[3. Allegation that action is subject to Civ. Code § 1812.10 or 2984.4, or to Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b), if appropriate. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 3.]

[EITHER]

4. _____ [Within the last _____ (two or four) years or On or about

_____ (date)], at _____ [city], California, plaintiff performed _____ [type of services performed] services [for defendant or at the special request of defendant]. [Defendant knew that these services were being provided and promised to pay their reasonable value or defendant accepted, used, and enjoyed the services provided by plaintiff].

[OR, if quantum meruit recovery is being sought under statutory scheme by which defendant is required to pay reasonable value of defendant's services, allege ultimate facts under statutory scheme by which plaintiff is entitled to claim, and defendant is obligated to pay, reasonable value of services rendered by plaintiff, e.g.]

4. Plaintiff is an emergency-room physician. Defendant is a for-profit health care service plan. By law, plaintiff is required to provide medical treatment to anyone in a public emergency room, regardless of the person's ability to pay, up to the point of rendering the person medically stable. Also by law, defendant is required to reimburse emergency health-care providers for the mandated emergency services rendered to the plan's enrollees. As described in detail in Exhibit A attached to this complaint, during the period from _____ (date) through _____ (date), plaintiff provided emergency services, as mandated by law, to numerous persons who were enrolled in defendant's service plan. Plaintiff is entitled to be paid the reasonable and customary fees for those services, without regard to the amounts that defendant's service plan would otherwise reimburse to those services.]

[CONTINUE]

5. [Demand allegation. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 5.]

6. The fair and reasonable value of the services provided to the defendant is at least $_____.

[EITHER, if no payment has been made]

7. No payment has been made by defendant to plaintiff, and there is now owing the sum of [at least] $_____.

[OR, if partial payment has been made]

7. Defendant has paid only the sum of $_____ to the plaintiff, leaving a balance due of [at least] $_____.

[OR, if quantum meruit recovery is being sought under statutory scheme by which defendant is required to pay reasonable value of defendant's services]

7. Defendant has failed and refused, and continues to fail and refuse, to reimburse defendant for the reasonable and customary value of defendant's services as required by law, but instead has maintained, and continues to maintain, that it is obligated to reimburse defendant only for _____ [specify, e.g., the amounts that defendant's health care service plan specifies will be reimbursed for the types of services provided by defendant]. [A copy of defendant's plan, containing its reimbursement schedule, is attached as Exhibit B to this complaint.]

[CONTINUE]

[8. Request for attorney's fees, if appropriate. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 7.].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant[s and each of them,] as follows:

1. For compensatory damages according to the proof;

2. For interest as allowed by law;

3. For costs of suit incurred; and

4. For any further relief the court deems proper.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[Verification, if desired. See § 121.51[1]. For discussion, see § 121.51[6].]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in quantum meruit in [1], above, alleges the performance of work and labor or services by the plaintiff for the defendant, at the defendant's request, and may be used to recover the reasonable value of the services rendered when the defendant is not liable in a fixed sum [McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 Cal. 84, 86-87, 55 P. 761] , or when the plaintiff has the election of suing for the reasonable value of services [see, e.g., Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 468, 475, 252 P.2d 373 (when plaintiff renders personal services to defendant at defendant's request, plaintiff may elect to plead either on express contract or in quantum meruit for reasonable value services); see also § 121.25[2][b]]. This count in quantum meruit should not be confused with the count in indebitatus assumpsit [see § 121.55, complaint for work, labor, services, and materials at agreed price (indebitatus assumpsit)].

The second optional Paragraph 4 and the third optional Paragraph 7 in this complaint may be used when the quantum meruit claim arises from a statutory scheme that (1) requires the plaintiff to provide the services without regard to the recipient's ability to pay, and (2) requires the defendant to "reimburse" the plaintiff for providing the services [see, e.g., Bell v. Blue Cross of California (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 211, 216-221, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 688 (by statute, emergency-room physicians generally must provide medical care to anyone in public emergency room, without regard to person's ability to pay, and for-profit health-care service plan must reimburse emergency health-care providers for mandated services rendered to plan enrollees); see also § 121.25[2][a]].

For further discussion of the requirements of a complaint on common counts see § 121.51.

[3] Allegations

Older cases hold that a complaint in quantum meruit is sufficient to state a cause of action if it alleges that [see Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 468, 475, 252 P.2d 373 , citing Brown v. Crown Gold Milling Co. (1907) 150 Cal. 376, 382, 89 P. 86] :

- The plaintiff performed certain services for the defendant (Paragraph 4).

- The reasonable value of those services (Paragraph 6).

- That the services were rendered at the request of the defendant (Paragraph 6).
- That the services are unpaid (Paragraph 7).

Other cases also hold that a count in quantum meruit is sufficiently pleaded even though the plaintiff fails to state when the defendant became indebted to him or her (Paragraph 4), or the nature of the services rendered (Paragraph 4) [see Evans v. Zeigler (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 226, 230, 204 P.2d 902] . Moreover, although a count on quantum meruit usually alleges that the work was performed at the defendant's request (Paragraph 4) and that the defendant promised to pay reasonable value (Paragraph 4), older cases hold that these allegation are not necessary, since the request and the promise to pay are implied from the allegation of the service performed [see McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 Cal. 84, 86, 55 P. 761] . It has also been held that no demand for payment before instituting the action (Paragraph 5) is required [see McDonald v. Filice (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 613, 623, 60 Cal. Rptr. 832 (action itself is only demand necessary when it is defendant's unconditional duty to perform act or pay sum of money)].

Interest from the date that the principal sum became due is not permitted in an action in quantum meruit, except at the court's discretion, but in no event earlier than the date the action was filed [see Civ. Code § 3287(b); see Lewis C. Nelson & Sons, Inc. v. Clovis Unified School District (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 64, 73, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 715 (holding that Civ. Code § 3287(b) is applicable to the public entities described in Civ. Code § 3287(a))].

Although the additional allegations in this form appear to be unnecessary, their use is both customary and recommended [see § 121.51[3]; see also § 121.16].

[4] Recovery under Quantum Meruit

Recovery under quantum meruit is quasi-contractual; it is based on an implied contract for the payment of services, to meet the ends of justice [see Lazzarevich v. Lazzarevich (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 708, 721, 200 P.2d 49 (defendant's promise and obligation imposed by law, regardless of any agreement); Estate of O'Donnell (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 1, 6-7, 192 P.2d 94 (contract implied in law for payment by incompetent for reasonable value of services rendered, even without express contract)]. In a case in which an unmarried cohabitant sought to recover the reasonable value of services rendered to a business solely owned by the other cohabitant, quantum meruit allowed recovery for the value of beneficial services, not the value by which the business owner benefitted from those services [Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 442, 449-452 (holding that court erred in allowing jury to measure recovery on basis of impact of unmarried cohabitant's services on business of other cohabitant)]. In that situation, the claim was held not to accrue until the relationship ended for purposes of the statute of limitations [Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 442, 452-454, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 339 (two-year statute of limitations)].

In order to recover under a quantum meruit theory, a plaintiff must establish both that (1) he or she was acting pursuant to either an express or implied request for those services from the defendant, and (2) that the services rendered were intended to and did benefit the defendant [Day v. Alta Bates (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 243, 248-249, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 606 (holding that plaintiff's attorney in medical malpractice action was not requested to and did not perform legal services on behalf of hospital that filed hospital lien; malpractice action never went past liability phase and thus hospital received nothing by virtue of lien or action)].

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART IV. FORMS

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.58

§ 121.58 Complaint for Reasonable Value of Goods Sold and Delivered (Quantum Valebant)

[1] FORM Complaint for Reasonable Value of Goods Sold and Delivered (Quantum Valebant)

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR REASONABLE VALUE OF
_____ [name],	)	GOODS SOLD AND DELIVERED
Defendant.	)	(COMMON COUNT IN QUANTUM VALEBANT)
	)	[Amount demanded _____
	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
		[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

_____

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 1.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 2.]

[3. Allegation that action is subject to Civ. Code § 1812.10 or 2984.4, or to Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b), if appropriate. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 3.]

4. _____ [Within the last _____ (two or four) years or On or about _____ (date)], at _____ [city], California, plaintiff sold and delivered certain goods at the special request of defendant; and defendant agreed to pay plaintiff the reasonable value of those goods.

5. [Demand allegation. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 5.]

6. At the time of the sale and delivery, the fair and reasonable value of the goods was at least _____ [amount].

7. [Allegations of nonpayment (or partial payment) and amount owing. See § 121.57[1], Paragraph 7.]

[8. Request for attorney's fees, if appropriate. See § 121.51[1], Paragraph 7.].

[Prayer. See § 121.57[1].]

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[Verification, if desired. See § 121.51[1]. For discussion, see § 121.51[6].]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint on the common count of quantum valebant in [1], above, is for use when the plaintiff seeks the reasonable value of goods sold and delivered. However, if the plaintiff seeks to recover a specific sum, rather than the reasonable value of goods sold and delivered, an action on the common count of goods sold and delivered (indebitatus assumpsit) is appropriate [see § 121.56, complaint for goods sold and delivered at agreed upon price (indebitatus assumpsit)].

For further discussion of the requirements of a complaint on common counts see § 121.51. For a discussion of recovery under quantum meruit see § 121.57[4].

[3] Allegations

A complaint in quantum valebant is not subject to special demurrer for uncertainty when the plaintiff does not clearly specify whether the action was on the express contract or for the reasonable value of the goods [Preston v. Central Cal. etc. Irr. Co. (1909) 11 Cal. App. 190, 196-197, 104 P. 462] .

For discussion of necessary and recommended allegations when pleading on the common counts, see §§ 121.16 and 121.51.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART IV. FORMS

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.59

§ 121.59 Demand for Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

[1] FORM Demand for Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	DEMAND FOR BILL OF PARTICULARS
Defendant.	)
	)
	)

_____

To plaintiff and to _____ [name], plaintiff's attorney of record:

PLEASE BE ADVISED that, pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 454, defendant demands that you provide a bill of particulars, setting forth _____ [specify, e.g., the items of account or the type of services rendered by plaintiff to defendant] on which _____ [this action or the cause of action alleged in Paragraph _____ of plaintiff's complaint] is based. The bill of particulars must be delivered to defendant within 10 days after service of this demand.

[INCLUDE, if more specific information is sought]

In particular, demand is made on you to provide _____ [specify, e.g., the dates when the services were rendered and the specific charges for the services or the date and place of the performance of the services alleged in the complaint; the date when each item is claimed to have been delivered; and the sale price of each item].

[CONTINUE]

Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[INCLUDE verification, if desired]

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the defendant in the above entitled action. I have read the foregoing demand for bill of particulars and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a demand for use by the defendant to require the plaintiff to furnish a copy of the account (a "bill of particulars") on which the complaint is based [see Code Civ. Proc. § 454]. Although it is not necessary for the plaintiff to specify the items of account when pleading on the common counts, the defendant, nevertheless, has the right to demand in writing a copy of the account [Code Civ. Proc. § 454].

[3] Availability of Bill of Particulars

In demanding a bill of particulars, the defendant should consider whether or not the bill is available. A bill of particulars is available in an action on any of the following:

- "An account" [Code Civ. Proc. § 454], including an action on a book account [see Code Civ. Proc. § 337a ("book account" defined)];

- The common counts [see Kawasho Internat., U.S.A., Inc. v. Lakewood Pipe Service, Inc. (1983) 152 Cal. App. 3d 785, 793, 201 Cal. Rptr. 640] ;

- A quasi-contract [McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 Cal. 84, 87, 55 P. 761 ; Caruso v. Snap-Tite, Inc. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 211, 212-213, 79 Cal. Rptr. 642] ;

- A contract [see Long Beach City School Dist. v. Dodge (1902) 135 Cal. 401, 407, 67 P. 499] ; or

- A money claim made up of more than one item [see Firpo v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1926) 80

Cal. App. 122, 251 P. 657] .

A bill of particulars is not available in an action on an account stated [Distefano v. Hall (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 657, 677, 32 Cal. Rptr. 770 ; see Jones v. Wilton (1938) 10 Cal. 2d 493, 498, 75 P.2d 593 ("account stated" defined as new agreement superseding old agreement)], or in an action based on negligent failure to perform duties according to the contract [Distefano v. Hall (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 657, 677-678, 32 Cal. Rptr. 770] .

For further discussion of the availability of a bill of particulars, see § 121.26. For a discussion of alternative procedures, see § 121.26[3].

[4] Time for Making Demand for Bill of Particulars

A demand for a bill of particulars may be made at any time [see Code Civ. Proc. § 454]. However, the making of a demand does not extend the defendant's time to answer [Dobbins v. Hardister (1966) 51 Cal. Rptr. 866] . For further discussion of timing, see § 121.26[5][a].

[5] Form of Demand

A demand for a bill of particulars must be in writing [Code Civ. Proc. § 454] and signed by the party making the demand. In lieu of signature, the demand may contain some other indication that the party making the demand is the party against whom the account is pleaded [see Elmore v. Tingley (1926) 78 Cal. App. 460, 467, 248 P. 706] .

[6] Demand Generally Not Filed With Court

The demand for a bill of particulars is not filed with the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.250(a)(19)], unless it is relevant to the determination of an issue in a law and motion proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.250(a)].

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART IV. FORMS

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.60

§ 121.60 Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

[1] FORM Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	BILL OF PARTICULARS
Defendant.	)
	)
	)

To defendant and to _____ [name], defendant's attorney of record:

[EITHER, if action is on a book account]

In compliance with defendant's demand for a bill of particulars, plaintiff, _____ [name] submits the following copy of the account on which this action is based. [Attach copy of book or ledger account.]

[OR, if action is on a common count, use:]

In compliance with defendant's demand for a bill of particulars, plaintiff, _____ [name] sets forth the following items on which this action is based: _____ [set out individual items of account in separately numbered statements, e.g., dates, services or materials provided, or value or cost].

[CONTINUE]

Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[INCLUDE, if demand was verified]

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing bill of particulars and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a bill of particulars for use by a plaintiff, in compliance with a defendant's demand for a written account itemizing the total amount on which the complaint is based [Code Civ. Proc. § 454].

For discussion of a demand for a bill of particulars see § 121.59.

[3] Considerations in Furnishing Bill of Particulars

In furnishing a bill of particulars, the plaintiff must note that the information in a bill must be itemized, in good faith, as precisely and as definitely as possible [see Meredith v. Marks (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 265, 270, 27 Cal. Rptr. 737] . The plaintiff must deliver a copy to the defendant within 10 days after the demand [Code Civ. Proc. § 454], which, as a practical matter, is apparently within 10 days after the date of service of the demand [Edelman v. McDonell (1899) 126 Cal. 210, 213, 58 P. 528] . For discussion of the consequences of a failure to deliver the bill, see §§ 121.26[7], 121.64.

[4] Verification

If the complaint is verified, the bill of particulars must be verified by affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury) [Code Civ. Proc. § 454; see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5].

[5] Bill Generally Not Filed With Court

The bill of particulars is not filed with the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.250(a)(19)], unless it is relevant to the determination of an issue in a law and motion proceeding or is ordered filed for good cause [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.250(a)].

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART IV. FORMS

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.61

§ 121.61 Notice of Motion for Further Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

[1] FORM Notice of Motion for Further Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION FOR FUR-Plaintiff,	)	THER BILL OF PARTICULARS
vs.	)	Date: _____
_____ [name],	)	Time: _____
Defendant.	)	Location: _____
	)	Judge: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	Trial Date: _____
_____

To plaintiff and to _____ [name], plaintiff's attorney of record:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on _____ [date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in _____ [Department or Division) _____ (number)] of this court, located at _____ [address], defendant will, and hereby does, move for an order requiring plaintiff to furnish a further bill of particulars in response to the defendant's demand made on _____ [date]. This motion is made under Section 454 of the Code of Civil Procedure on the grounds that the bill provided by the plaintiff is _____ [specify, e.g., too general to inform the defendant of the items of account on which the complaint is allegedly based or is defective in that it does not specify _____ (describe specific items of account required)].

The motion will be based on this notice of motion, the demand for a further bill of particulars served with this notice, on the declaration(s) of _____ [name(s)] and the memorandum served and filed herewith, on the records and file herein, and on such evidence as may be presented at the hearing of the motion.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a notice of motion for a further bill of particulars on the ground that the information supplied in the bill of particulars is too general or is otherwise defective [see Code Civ. Proc. § 454], and states the time and place the motion will be made and the grounds on which it is based [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010]. A supporting memorandum must be served and filed with the motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113; for discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities].

If the defendant fails to demand a further account by noticed motion, the defendant is deemed to have waived the insufficiency of the bill. The defendant is thus precluded from making this motion at trial [Burton v. Santa Barbara Nat'l Bank (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 427, 433] .

It has been suggested that the better practice, instead of requesting a further bill of particulars on noticed motion, is to come to an agreement, if possible, with opposing counsel about further particulars [see Ernest W. Hahn, Inc. v. Nort-Cet Corp. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 171, 173-174, 109 Cal. Rptr. 709 (describing conflicts over further bills of particular as outdated "procedural punctilio")].

[3] Cross References

For a form for a demand for a bill of particulars, see § 121.59

For discussion of law and motion practice and general requirements, see Ch. 372 Motions and Orders

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART IV. FORMS

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.62

§ 121.62 Declaration Under Penalty of Perjury in Support of Notice of Motion for Further Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

[1] FORM Declaration Under Penalty of Perjury in Support of Notice of Motion for Further Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	DECLARATION OF _____ [name]
vs.	)	IN SUPPORT OF NOTICE OF MOTION FOR
_____ [name],	)	FURTHER BILL OF PARTICULARS
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	Trial Date: _____

_____

I, _____ [name], declare:

[EITHER, if defendant is making this declaration, use:]

1. I am the defendant in this action and have personal knowledge of the facts stated in this declaration.

[OR, if attorney of record is making this declaration, use:]

1. I am an attorney at law, duly licensed to practice in the state of California, and am the attorney of record for defendant _____ [name] in this action.

[CONTINUE]

2. On _____ [date], I served on plaintiff a written demand for a bill of particulars in this action. A copy of that demand is attached to this declaration as Exhibit _____ and is made a part hereof.

[EITHER, iIf plaintiff has failed to provide a bill]

3. Although required to do so by Code of Civil Procedure Section 454, plaintiff has failed to provide a bill of particulars in response to my written demand.

[OR, if plaintiff has delivered a defective bill, use:]

3. On _____ [date], plaintiff delivered a bill of particulars that is defective for the following reason(s): _____[specify reasons]. A copy of that bill is attached as Exhibit _____.

[CONTINUE]

4. Plaintiff's failure to provide a _____ [bill of particulars or sufficient bill of particulars] has prejudiced my ability to prepare an adequate defense because: _____ [specify reasons].

[INCLUDE, if plaintiff or plaintiff's attorney was notified by letter that no bill or a defective bill had been received]

5. On _____ [date], I sent a letter to _____ [plaintiff or plaintiff's attorney], stating that _____ [no bill or a defective bill] had been received, and that I would seek a motion for a further bill, if _____ [no bill or no sufficient bill] was provided by _____ [date]. No bill has been provided in response to that letter.

[CONTINUE]

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use as a declaration in support of a notice of motion for a further bill of particulars. It alleges that a bill of particulars has not been provided or that the bill of particulars provided by the plaintiff is so defective and insufficient that it does not permit defendant to properly prepare a defense.

The caption of the declaration or affidavit must state the name of the declarant or affiant and must specifically identify the motion or other proceeding that it supports or opposes [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1115].

[3] Cross References

For a form and discussion of a notice of motion for a further bill of particulars, see § 121.61.

For discussion and general forms for declarations, see Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations .

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART IV. FORMS

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.63

§ 121.63 Order for Further Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

[1] FORM Order for Further Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	ORDER
Defendant.	)
	)
	)

The motion of defendant _____ [name] for an order for a further bill of particulars in this action came on for hearing before me on _____ [date].

[EITHER, if requesting that the motion be granted]

On proof being made to the satisfaction of the court, I find that the bill of particulars provided by the plaintiff to the defendant is insufficient to allow the defendant to prepare an adequate defense.

IT IS ORDERED, therefore, that the motion be granted and that plaintiff provide, within _____ [ number] days from this date, a further bill of particulars, setting forth in detail the following matters: _____ [specify].

[OR, if requesting that the motion be denied]

On proof being made to the satisfaction of the court, I find that the bill of particulars provided by the plaintiff to the defendant is sufficient to allow the defendant to prepare an adequate defense.

IT IS ORDERED, therefore, that the defendant's motion for a further bill of particulars be denied.

[CONTINUE]

Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the _____ Court

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a proposed order for use to grant or deny the defendant's request for a further bill of particulars [see Code Civ. Proc. § 454]. If the plaintiff is ordered to provide a more complete bill of particulars, the order specifies the matters to be set forth in greater detail and the number of days within which the plaintiff must provide a further bill. For a form and discussion of the notice of motion for a further bill of particulars see § 121.61.

If the plaintiff fails to comply within the allotted time for making a response, the defendant may move to preclude the introduction of evidence at trial relating to the account to which the demand for a bill of particulars was directed [Code Civ. Proc. § 454; see § 121.64, form for notice of motion to preclude introduction of evidence for failure to provide a bill of particulars].

[3] Cross References

For discussion and general forms for orders, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART IV. FORMS

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.64

§ 121.64 Notice of Motion to Preclude Introduction of Evidence for Failure to Provide Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

[1] FORM Notice of Motion to Preclude Introduction of Evidence for Failure to Provide Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	NOTICE OF MOTION TO PRECLUDE INTRO-
vs.	)	DUCTION OF EVIDENCE
_____ [name],	)	Date: _____
Defendant.	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	Trial Date: _____

_____

To plaintiff and to _____ [name], plaintiff's attorney of record:

[EITHER, if plaintiff has failed to provide a bill]

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on _____ [date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in _____ [Department or Division) _____ ( number)] of this court, located at _____ [address], defendant will move for an order precluding the plaintiff from introducing at trial any evidence concerning the _____ [account or indebtedness] alleged in the [_____ cause of action of the] complaint on file in this case. This motion is made under Code of Civil Procedure Section 454 on the grounds that plaintiff failed to deliver a bill of particulars in response to defendant's written demand. A copy of defendant's demand is attached as Exhibit _____ to the declaration that accompanies this motion.

[OR, if plaintiff has delivered a defective bill]

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on _____ [date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in _____ [Department or Division) _____ (number)] of this court, located at _____ [address], defendant will move for an order precluding the plaintiff from introducing at trial any evidence concerning the _____ [account or indebtedness] alleged in the [_____ cause of action of the]complaint on file in this case. This motion is made under Code of Civil Procedure Section 454 on the grounds that plaintiff failed to provide a further bill of particulars, as ordered by the court on _____ [date], in response to defendant's written demand. A copy of the court's order requiring a further bill of particulars is attached as Exhibit _____ to the declaration that accompanies this motion.

[CONTINUE]

The motion will be based on this notice of motion, on the declaration(s) of _____ [name(s)] and the memorandum served and filed herewith, on the records and file herein, and on such evidence as may be presented at the hearing of the motion.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Use of Form

The notice of motion in [1], above, is for use by the defendant to secure an order precluding the introduction of evidence at trial. It states (1) either plaintiff's failure to provide a bill of particulars or a further bill, as ordered [see Code Civ. Proc. § 454]; (2) the time and place the motion will be made; and (3) the grounds on which the motion is based [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010].

When the plaintiff fails to provide an adequate bill of particulars, the trial court is authorized to enter an order precluding the plaintiff's introduction at trial of any evidence relating to the account at which the bill of particulars was directed [Code Civ. Proc. § 454].

Failure to demand an adequate account subsequent to plaintiff's furnishing a bill of particulars is deemed a waiver of the insufficiency or inadequacy [see Burton v. Santa Barbara Nat. Bank (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 427, 433, 55 Cal. Rptr. 529] .

A supporting memorandum must be served and filed. The court may construe the absence of a memorandum as an admission that the motion is not meritorious and cause for its denial [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)].

[3] Cross References

For a form for a demand for a bill of particulars, see § 121.59.

For a form for a notice of motion for a further bill of particulars, see § 121.61.

For discussion of law and motion practice and general requirements, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

82 of 165 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART IV. FORMS

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.65

§ 121.65 Declaration Under Penalty of Perjury in Support of Notice of Motion for Order to Preclude Introduction of Evidence for Failure to Furnish Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

[1] FORM Declaration Under Penalty of Perjury in Support of Notice of Motion for Order to Preclude Introduction of Evidence for Failure to Furnish Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	DECLARATION OF _____ [name]
Plaintiff,	)	IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR ORDER TO PRE-
vs.	)	CLUDE INTRODUCTION OF EVIDENCE
_____ [name],	)	(Failure to Provide [Further] Bill of Particulars)
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	Trial Date: _____

_____

I, _____ [name], declare:

[EITHER, if defendant is making this declaration, use:]

1. I am the defendant in this action and have personal knowledge of the facts stated in this declaration.

[OR, if attorney of record is making this declaration, use:]

1. I am an attorney at law, duly licensed to practice in the state of California, and am the attorney of record for defendant _____ [name] in this action.

[CONTINUE]

2. On _____ [date], I served on plaintiff a written demand for a bill of particulars in this action. A copy of that demand is attached to this declaration as Exhibit _____ and incorporated by reference.

[EITHER, if plaintiff has failed to provide a bill]

3. Although required to do so by Code of Civil Procedure Section 454, plaintiff has failed to provide a bill of particulars in response to my written demand.

[OR, if plaintiff has failed to provide a further bill]

3. On _____ [date], plaintiff delivered a bill of particulars that is defective for the following reason(s): _____ [specify reasons]. A copy of that bill is attached as Exhibit _____. On _____ [date], on a duly noticed motion, this court ordered plaintiff to provide a further bill of particulars. A copy of that order is attached to this declaration as Exhibit _____ and is incorporated by this reference. Plaintiff has failed to provide a further bill of particulars in response to that order.

[CONTINUE]

4. Plaintiff's failure to provide a _____ [bill or further bill] has prejudiced my ability to prepare an adequate defense because: _____ [specify reasons].

[INCLUDE, if plaintiff or plaintiff's attorney was notified by letter that defendant would seek this motion to preclude evidence, if no (further) bill were provided]

5. On _____ [date], I sent a letter to _____ [plaintiff or plaintiff's attorney], stating that no [further] bill had been provided, as required, and that I would seek a motion to preclude evidence if no [further] bill was provided by _____ [date]. No [further] bill has been provided in response to that letter.

[CONTINUE]

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use as a declaration in support of a notice of motion for an order to preclude evidence for plaintiff's failure to furnish a bill of particulars subsequent to a proper demand [see Code Civ. Proc. § 454]. This declaration should show that the plaintiff's failure to provide either a bill of particulars or a further bill has prejudiced the defendant's ability to provide an adequate defense [see Ernest W. Hahn, Inc.v. Nort-Cet Corp. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 171, 172-173, 109 Cal. Rptr. 709] .

Although a demand for a bill of particulars and the bill provided in response are normally not permitted to be filed with the court, they may be attached to the declarations or the memorandum in support of the motion to preclude introduction of evidence [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.250(a)].

[3] Cross References

For a form and discussion of the notice of motion to preclude introduction of evidence for failure to furnish a bill of particulars, see § 121.64.

For discussion and general forms for declarations, see Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations .

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART IV. FORMS

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.66

§ 121.66 Declaration Under Penalty of Perjury in Opposition to Notice of Motion for Order to Preclude Introduction of Evidence for Failure to Provide Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

[1] FORM Declaration Under Penalty of Perjury in Opposition to Notice of Motion for Order to Preclude Introduction of Evidence for Failure to Provide Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	DECLARATION OF _____ [name]
Plaintiff,	)	IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION FOR ORDER TO vs.	)	PRECLUDE INTRODUCTION OF EVIDENCE
_____ [name],	)	(Failure to Provide [Further] Bill of Particulars)
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	Judge: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		Trial Date: _____

_____

I, _____ [name], declare:

[EITHER, if plaintiff is making this declaration, use:]

1. I am the plaintiff in this action and have personal knowledge of the facts stated in this declaration.

[OR, if attorney of record is making this declaration, use:]

1. I am an attorney at law, duly licensed to practice in the state of California, and am the attorney of record for plaintiff _____ [name] in this action.

[CONTINUE]

2. On _____ [date], defendant served on me a written demand for a bill of particulars in this action.

3. _____ [Specify reasons for failure to provide bill, e.g., Plaintiff possesses no written copy of the account on which this action is based because defendant has retained all invoices].

4. Plaintiff's failure to provide a _____ [bill or further bill] has not prejudiced defendant's ability to prepare an adequate defense because: _____ [specify reasons].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use as a declaration in opposition to a notice of motion for an order to preclude the introduction of evidence at trial as a result of the plaintiff's failure to furnish a bill of particulars subsequent to a proper demand [see Code Civ. Proc. § 454]. This declaration should allege a justification for the plaintiff's failure to provide either a bill of particulars or a sufficient bill of particulars [see, e.g., Butler Bros. v. Connolly (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 22, 25-26, 22 Cal. Rptr. 175 (exclusion of evidence inappropriate when plaintiff prevented by defendant from having access to written records needed to prepare bill); see also Burton v. Santa Barbara Nat. Bank (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 427, 433, 55 Cal. Rptr. 529 (good faith effort to obtain records needed to prepare adequate bill required by plaintiff)]. The declaration should also allege the reasons that the defendant's ability to provide an adequate defense is not prejudiced by the plaintiff's failure to provide a bill of particulars [see Sadik v. Wallberg Mining Corp. (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 379, 381-382, 53 P.2d 981 (no prejudice shown, and evidence not excludable, if information demanded is within defendant's knowledge or is available to defendant)].

[3] Cross References

For a form and discussion of the notice of motion to preclude introduction of evidence for failure to furnish a bill of particulars, see § 121.64.

For a form and discussion of a declaration in support of the motion, see § 121.65.

For discussion and general forms of declaration, see Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations .

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 121 COMMON COUNTS
PART IV. FORMS

12-121 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 121.67

§ 121.67 Order to Preclude Introduction of Evidence for Failure to Provide Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

[1] FORM Order to Preclude Introduction of Evidence for Failure to Provide Bill of Particulars [Code Civ. Proc. § 454]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

[or other as appropriate]

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	ORDER
Defendant.	)
	)
	)

The motion of defendant _____ [name] for an order precluding plaintiff from introducing evidence of the account on which _____ [the _____ (number) cause of action of plaintiff's complaint or this action] is based came up on hearing before me on _____ [date].

On proof being made to the satisfaction of the court that the motion ought to be granted,

IT IS ORDERED that the plaintiff be precluded from introducing any evidence at trial relating to the _____ [account or indebtedness] on which the [_____ (number)] cause of action of plaintiff's complaint is based.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the_____ Court

[2] Use of Form

The form of order in [1], above, is used to grant the defendant's request to preclude the introduction of evidence related to the account on which the plaintiff's complaint is based. The order is based on the plaintiff's failure to furnish an adequate bill of particulars. In order for evidence of the account to be excluded, the defendant must present a motion to preclude the introduction of evidence on failure to provide a bill of particulars before trial [see Burton v. Santa Barbara Nat. Bank (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 427, 433, 55 Cal. Rptr. 529 ; § 121.64, form of notice of motion to preclude introduction of evidence for failure to provide a bill of particulars].

For a discussion of a notice of motion to preclude the introduction of evidence for failure to provide a bill of particulars see § 121.64. For discussion of a declaration in support of the notice of motion see § 121.65. For a form of declaration opposing the notice of motion see § 121.66.

[3] Cross References

For discussion and general forms of order, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 122.syn

§ 122.syn Synopsis to Chapter 122: COMMUNITY PROPERTY

§ 122.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 122.02 Cross References

§§ 122.03-122.09 [Reserved]

§ 122.10 Governing Statutes

§§ 122.11-122.29 [Reserved]

§ 122.30 Importance of Characterization

[1] When Characterization Issues Arise

[2] Summary of Characterization Factors

§ 122.31 Nature of Community and Separate Property

[1] "Community Property" Defined

[a] General Definition

[b] As Extending to Out-of-State Real Property

[c] "Community Estate" Distinguished

[d] Incidents of Community Property

[e] "Quasi-Community Property" Distinguished

[f] "Quasi-Marital Property" Distinguished

[2] "Separate Property" Defined

[a] In General

[b] Incidents of Separate Property

[c] Inventory of Separate Property Under Prior Law

[d] Right of Spouses to Hold Property as Joint Tenants and Tenants in Common

[i] Joint Tenancy

[ii] Tenancy in Common

[3] Spouses' Date of Separation and Property

[a] Significance of Date of Separation

[b] Determining Date of Separation

[i] Concept of "Living Separate and Apart"

[ii] Multiple Separation Periods

§ 122.32 Effect of Time of Acquisition

[1] Overview of Acquisition Issues

[a] General Considerations

[b] Determining Time of Acquisition

[i] Equitable Versus Legal Right to Property

[ii] Leasehold Interests Renewed or Extended During Marriage

[iii] Future or Contingent Rights

[iv] Nonpension Employment Rights

[c] Apportionment

[2] Scope of Community Presumption From Acquisitions During Marriage

[a] General Rule

[b] Exceptions Resulting in Separate Characterization

[c] Acquisitions by Wife Before January 1, 1975

[d] Property Held at Death and Acquired During Previous Marriage

[3] Application to Salaries, Wages, and Other Earnings

[a] Earnings While Parties Living Together

[b] Earnings While Parties Separated

[i] Controlling Principles

[ii] Earnings and Accumulations

[iii] Living Separate and Apart

[iv] Parties Legally Separated

§ 122.33 Effect of Form of Title

[1] Relevance of Title to Characterization

[a] An Overview

[b] Common-Law Presumption That Title Reflects Ownership

[2] Effect of Sole Title

[a] Resolving Potential Conflict in Presumptions

[b] Gift in Sole Title

[c] Rule for Wife's Pre-1975 Acquisitions

[3] Community Presumption From "Husband and Wife" Title

[4] Community Presumption From Joint Title Form

[a] Overview of Statutory Presumption

[i] Nature of Presumption

[ii] Relationship to Reimbursement Statute

[iii] Operative Dates and Retroactivity

[iv] Effect of Spouse's Death During Proceeding

[b] Operation of Presumption in General

[c] Application to Joint Tenancy Property

[i] Effect of Prior Law

[ii] Application of Current Statutory Presumption

[5] Community Property With Right of Survivorship

§ 122.34 Transmutation of Property

[1] Nature of Transmutation

[2] Transmutations Prior to January 1, 1985

[a] Written or Oral Agreement Permitted

[b] Transmutation Based on Circumstances

[c] Oral Transmutations of Real Property in General

[d] Effect of Joint Title Presumption

[e] Statements in Wills

[3] Transmutations on or After January 1, 1985

[a] General Requirement of Writing

[b] Express Declaration Requirement

[c] Effect on Third Parties

[d] Statements in Wills

§ 122.35 Commingling and Tracing

[1] Effect of Commingling on Characterization

[2] Tracing Methods

[a] Direct Tracing

[b] Family Expense Tracing

[3] Exceptions to Tracing

[a] Form of Title Presumptions

[b] Increase in Property's Value Due to Spouse's Efforts

§ 122.36 Credit Purchases and Borrowed Money

[1] Overview

[2] Use of "Intent of Lender" Analysis

[a] When Needed

[b] Unsecured Transactions

[c] Credit Secured by One Type of Property

[d] Credit Secured by Both Separate and Community Property

[e] Evidence in Particular Cases

[3] Wife's Pre-January 1, 1975, Property

§ 122.37 Community Property Transferred to Trust

§§ 122.38-122.49 [Reserved]

§ 122.50 Management and Control of Separate Property

[1] Sole Province of Owner Spouse

[2] Separate Interests Held by Spouses as Joint Tenants or Tenants-in-Common

[3] Management and Control by Nonowner Spouse

[a] Applicability of Agency and Trust Principles

[b] Standard of Care When Separate Property Character is Clear

[c] Standard of Care When Separate Property Character is Unclear

§ 122.51 Management and Control of Community Personal Property

[1] Equal Management and Control Rule

[2] Prior Law and Retroactive Application of Rule

[3] Exceptions and Qualifications to Rule

[4] Good Faith Requirements

[a] Fiduciary Duty

[b] Applicability to Postseparation Activities

[c] Questions Regarding Current Statutes

[5] Good Faith Requirements Under Prior Law

[a] Changing Nature of Good Faith Duty

[b] Pre-1975 Law

[c] Post-1974 Law

[6] Gifts of Community Personal Property

[a] Consent Requirements

[b] Determining Fair and Reasonable Value

[c] Valuable-Consideration Requirement of Prior Law

[d] Ratification of Previous Gift

[e] Consent by Conservator of Nondonor Spouse

[7] Setting Aside of Improper Gifts by Nondonor Spouse

[a] Showing Required

[b] Survival of Right to Set Aside Gift

[c] Relief From Estate of Deceased Donor Spouse

[d] Estoppel to Set Aside Gift

[e] Nondonor Spouse as One of Donees

[8] Life and Other Insurance Proceeds

[a] Policy Purchased With Community Funds

[b] Policy Purchased With Separate Property Funds

[c] Fair and Reasonable Value Given for Beneficiary Designation

[d] Spouse Named as One of Beneficiaries

[9] Household Furnishings and Clothes

[a] Prohibition on Unilateral Conveyance

[b] Remedy for Violation of Prohibition

[c] Criminal Penalties for Destruction of Household Property

[10] Management and Control of Community Property Business

[11] Court Order Dispensing With Consent Requirements

§ 122.52 Management and Control of Community Real Property

[1] Equal Management and Control Rule

[2] Relevance of Prior Law

[3] Joint Execution Rule

[4] Exceptions to Joint Execution Rule

[a] Short-Term Leases and General Management Decisions

[b] Encumbrance for Attorney's Fees in Marital Termination Proceeding

[c] Court Order Dispensing With Joint Execution Requirement

[5] Presumptions of Validity of Instruments

[a] Instrument Executed by Either Spouse on or After January 1, 1975

[b] Instrument Executed by Husband Before January 1, 1975

[c] Evidence to Rebut Presumptions of Validity of Instruments

§ 122.53 Remedies for Breach of Management and Control Duties

[1] Statutory Action

[a] Scope of Action

[b] Transactions Affected

[c] Nature and Types of Remedies

[d] Statute of Limitations and Related Defenses

[2] Action to Set Aside Unauthorized Transfer of Community Real Property

[a] Right of Action in Nonconsenting Spouse

[b] Statute of Limitations

[c] Limitations on Relief

[d] Effect of Consideration

[e] Estoppel to Assert Invalidity of Conveyance

[3] Remedies of Transferee of Community Real Property

§ 122.54 Criminal Penalties for Transferor of Community Real Property

§ 122.55 Alternatives to Equal Management and Control

[1] Revocable Power of Attorney

[2] Revocable Trust

[3] Written Management and Control Agreement

§ 122.56 Nonprobate Transfers of Community Property

[1] Overview

[2] Effective Date of Transfer Provisions

[3] Matters Affecting Parties' Rights

[4] Effect of Provisions on "Holders" of Property

[5] Effect of Lack of Consent to Transfer

[6] Consent to Transfer and Transmutation Distinguished

[7] Effect of Modified Transfer on Spousal Consent and Interests

[8] Revocation of Consent

§§ 122.57-122.69 [Reserved]

§ 122.70 State Statutes

[1] Alternatives to Equal Management and Control

[2] Credit Rating Based on Management and Control of Property

[3] Gifts of Community Property to Third Parties

[4] Good Faith Required of Spouses

[5] Interest of Each Spouse in Community Property

[6] Management and Control of Community Personal Property

[7] Management and Control of Community Real Property

[8] Management and Control of Separate Property

[9] Management and Disposition of Community Property When Spouse or Spouses Incompetent

[10] Remedies for Violations of Management and Control Rules

[11] Spouses as Joint Tenants

[12] Statutes of Limitations

§ 122.71 Decisions

[1] Community Property Transferred to Trust

[2] Fiduciary Duty

[3] Gifts of Community Property

[4] Good Faith Required of Spouses

[5] Management and Control of Community Business

[6] Management and Control of Pension Plan

[7] Prohibition on Unilateral Transfers of Community Real Property

[8] Separate Property of Non-Debtor Spouse

[9] Statutes of Limitation

[10] Transmutation of Community Property

§ 122.72 Law Reviews

§ 122.73 Text References

§§ 122.74-122.89 [Reserved]

§ 122.90 Petition to Establish Spousal Claim to Community Estate [Fam. Code § 1101]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Governing Law

[4] Tacking of Allegations and Consolidation of Actions

[5] Verification

[6] Cross References

[7] State Statutes

§ 122.91 Complaint to Recover Personal Property and Damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 667; Fam. Code § 1100(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Claim and Delivery Actions

[4] Extent of Recovery

[5] Verification

[6] Cross References

[7] State Statutes

§ 122.92 Complaint to Cancel Instrument and to Quiet Title to Community Real Property [Civ. Code § 3412; Fam. Code § 1102(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Parties to Action

[5] Lis Pendens

[6] Cross References

[7] State Statutes

§ 122.93 Complaint to Recover One-Half of Proceeds of Life Insurance Policy When Premiums Paid Out of Community Property [Fam. Code § 1100(b); Prob. Code §§ 100, 6101, 6103]--By Surviving Spouse Against Insurance Company and Designated Beneficiary

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Joinder of Designated Beneficiary

[4] Consideration for Transfer

[5] Notice to Insurer

[6] Verification

[7] Cross References

[8] State Statutes

[9] Decisions

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART I. SCOPE

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.01

§ 122.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the characterization of property as separate or community property and the day-to-day management and control of property held by married persons, including separate property, community personal property, and community real property. The discussion covers basic characterization rules, transmutation, and tracing of commingled property. It also covers liability and remedies for mismanagement of community property and other violations of the fiduciary duty owed by spouses toward each other in the management of their property. The forms in this chapter include a petition to establish a spouse's claim to community property assets [see § 122.90], as well as complaints to recover community personal property and community real property conveyed by one spouse without the other's consent [see §§ 122.91 -122.92].

For discussion of the division of property on termination of marriage, and the effect of the death of one spouse on the surviving spouse's property rights, see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation . For discussion of the effect of premarital agreements on the property rights and management and control rights of spouses, see Kirkland, Lurvey & Richmond, California Family Law Practice and Procedure, 2nd ed., Chs. 200- 216 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawCommunity PropertyGeneral OverviewFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationCommunity PropertyFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationSeparate PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesCommunity Property

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART I. SCOPE

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.02

§ 122.02 Cross References

For discussion, procedures, and forms for use in a spouse's action against the other spouse for an accounting of profits from separate property, see Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for

For discussion, procedures, and forms relating to the setting aside of unauthorized conveyances of community real property, Ch. 107, Cancellation of Instruments, and Ch. 482, Quieting Title

For discussion, procedures, and forms to be used by a spouse seeking the return of community personal property transferred to a third person without his or her consent, see Ch. 119, Claim and Delivery

For discussion, procedures, and forms relating to property of the community at dissolution, see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure .

For discussion and forms for use in recovering community personal property transferred by spouse to satisfy a gambling debt, see Ch. 272, Gambling

For discussion, procedures, and forms relating to managing the property of an incompetent spouse, see Ch. 281, Guardianship and Conservatorship: Appointment of Conservators , and Ch. 289, Guardianship and Conservatorship: Management of Community Property

For discussion and forms for use in declaring or abandoning a homestead, see Ch. 294, Homesteads

For discussion and forms relating to spouses holding property as joint tenants, see Ch. 316, Joint Tenancy and Tenancy in Common

For discussion, procedures, and forms relating to property rights in putative marriages, nonmarital relationships, and cohabitation, see Ch. 387, Nonmarital Cohabitation

For discussion and forms relating to private voluntary trusts, see Ch. 560, Trusts: Express, Public, Charitable, and Totten Trusts

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesEquitable AccountingsGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawTrustsGeneral OverviewFamily LawGuardiansGeneral OverviewReal Property LawEstatesConcurrent OwnershipJoint TenanciesReal Property LawEstatesConcurrent OwnershipTenancies in Common

88 of 165 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART I. SCOPE

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 122.03-122.09

[Reserved]

§§ 122.03[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.10

§ 122.10 Governing Statutes

The characterization of property is governed by Fam. Code § 760 et seq. Transmutation of property is governed by Fam. Code § 850 et seq. Nonprobate transfer of community property at death is governed by Prob. Code § 5010 et seq., and by the general provisions of Prob. Code § 5000 et seq.

Rules governing the management and control of community property are set out in Fam. Code §§ 1100-1103. The fiduciary standards to which spouses must adhere in their property dealings with each another are set out in Fam. Code § 721(b) and Corp. Code §§ 15019-15022 [Fam. Code § 721(b)]. Fam. Code § 770(b) and Prob. Code § 6101, respectively, govern the rights of married persons to dispose of separate property and community property by will, except that the right of testators who died before January 1, 1985, to dispose of community property by will is governed by former Prob. Code § 220 [Prob. Code § 6103]. Special rules contained in Prob. Code §§ 5010-5032 govern nonprobate transfers of community property intended to become effective on the transferor's death.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawCommunity PropertyGeneral OverviewFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationMarital PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesCommunity Property

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 122.11-122.29

[Reserved]

§§ 122.11[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. General Characterization Principles

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.30

§ 122.30 Importance of Characterization

[1] When Characterization Issues Arise

"Characterization" of property, for the purpose of community property law, refers to the process of classifying property as separate, community, or quasi-community, or as having attributes of some combination of these kinds. Characterization is required in order to determine the rights and liabilities of the parties with respect to a particular asset or obligation [In re Marriage of Haines (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 277, 291, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 673] . Problems involving characterization generally arise in the context of:

- Determining interspousal rights of management and control of property during marriage, as discussed in § 122.50 et seq.;

- Dividing property on marital dissolution, legal separation, or annulment (nullity) of marriage, as discussed in this part;

- Distributing property on the death of one or both spouses, as discussed in Ch. 441, Probate: Disposition Without Administration ; or

- Determining the rights of third party creditors with respect to property, either during marriage or on the termination of marriage, as discussed in Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

[2] Summary of Characterization Factors

The four major factors affecting property characterization are the following:

- Time of the property's acquisition [see § 122.32];

- Operation of various presumptions, particularly presumptions arising from the form of title [see §

122.33];

- Transmutation agreements [see § 122.34]; and

- Actions of the parties, including the commingling of separate and community property [see § 122.35].

Although the foregoing factors are discussed separately in this subpart, they do not necessarily operate independently. In a particular case, it may be necessary to apply two or more factors to determine the correct characterization of the property involved. Other specialized rules also affect characterization, such as the "intent of the lender" analysis in regard to credit transactions, which is discussed in § 122.36.

For discussion of specialized principles applicable in apportioning interests in real property and discussion of characterizing specific personal property interests, see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation . For discussion of property agreements between spouses, see Kirkland, Lurvey & Richmond, California Family Law Practice and Procedure, Chs. 200- 216 (Matthew Bender 2d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawCommunity PropertyGeneral OverviewFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationMarital PropertyFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationSeparate PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesCommunity PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesSeparate Property

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. General Characterization Principles

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.31

§ 122.31 Nature of Community and Separate Property

[1] "Community Property" Defined

[a] General Definition

Community property is generally defined under current law as "all property, real or personal, wherever situated, acquired by a married person during the marriage while domiciled in [California]," except as otherwise provided by statute [Fam. Code § 760; see Civ. Code § 687; Fam. Code § 65; see also Fam. Code § 761]. This definition supersedes both a prior statutory definition and the first paragraph of the prior statutory presumption regarding community property [see Civ. Code § 687 (prior version); former Civ. Code § 5110]. It is not an exclusive statement that describes all property that is classified as community property, but rather is a general statement of the basic rule that all property acquired during marriage is community property unless it comes within a specified exception [see Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to Fam. Code § 760], such as that for separate property [Fam Code §§ 130, 770].

The concept of community property includes both assets and obligations [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.10(d); see also Fam. Code § 902]. This is of particular significance in characterizing debts incurred by the parties, both from the standpoint of third party creditors' rights, and from the standpoint of dividing debts on marital dissolution or legal separation, as discussed in Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

[b] As Extending to Out-of-State Real Property

This general definition also differs somewhat from the law that existed before enactment of the Family Code as it pertains to community real property. It embraces not only the substance of the long-standing community presumption of former Civ. Code § 5110, which referred to community real property in terms of "all real property situated in this state," but also includes real property situated outside California [Fam. Code § 760]. The effect of defining community property in this manner, according to the California Law Revision Commission, is that California courts will treat out-of-state real property as community property for all purposes, including management and control, as well as for the purposes of liability for debts and division on dissolution or legal separation (as under former law) [see Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to Fam. Code § 760; see also Fam. Code § 2660 (division of out-of-state real property)]. Note that the Probate Code sets forth another definition of community property for the purpose of property disposition on the death of a spouse [see Prob. Code § 28; cf. Prob. Code § 3002 (definition of community property for purposes of management or disposition when one spouse lacks legal capacity)].

[c] "Community Estate" Distinguished

The term "community estate" is defined by statute to include both community property and quasi-community property [Fam. Code § 63]. It is used primarily with reference to dividing property (assets and obligations) on dissolution of marriage or on legal separation, as discussed in Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation [see Fam. Code §§ 2550, 2551; see also former Civ. Code § 4800(a)]. For discussion of quasi-community property, see § 122.31[1][e].

[d] Incidents of Community Property

Community property has special characteristics or "incidents" that distinguish it from other types of property interests. The most important incidents include the following:

- Only spouses may acquire and hold property as community property, and their interests in such property during marriage are "present, existing, and equal" [Fam. Code § 751; see Fam. Code §§ 750, 760; see, e.g., State Board of Equalization v. Woo (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 481, 485, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 206 (husband had present community property interest in wife's potential future earnings)];

- Community interests may be shown to exist in property even if title is held in another form, or if the property originally was the separate property of a spouse, assuming that sufficient evidence is presented to overcome any special presumption raised by the form of title or to establish an effective transmutation, respectively [see Fam. Code §§ 850, 2580];

- Community interests may exist in both tangible and intangible property [see In re Fietz (9th Cir. 1988) 852 F.2d 455, 458 (right to bring suit; cause of action in context of bankruptcy proceeding); In re Marriage of Worth (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 768, 774-775, 241 Cal. Rptr. 135 (copyright)];

- With limited exception, community real and personal property is subject to equal management and control by both spouses during marriage [Fam. Code §§ 1100 (personal property), 1102 (real property); see § 122.51 et seq.];

- Except as otherwise expressly provided by statute, the community estate is liable for a debt incurred by either spouse before or during marriage, keeping in mind that this does not include debts incurred in the period during which spouses are living separate and apart prior to a judgment of marital dissolution or legal separation [Fam. Code § 910; see Fam. Code § 902];

- Community property is either primarily or secondarily liable for the torts of either spouse during marriage, depending on the circumstances [Fam. Code § 1000]

- The community estate is subject to equal division between the spouses on dissolution of marriage or legal separation [Fam. Code § 2550];

- A surviving spouse is entitled to one-half of the community (or quasi-community) property if one spouse dies testate [see Prob. Code §§ 100, 101, 6101(b), (c)];

- A surviving spouse is entitled to all of the community (quasi-community) property if one spouse dies intestate [see Prob. Code §§ 100, 101, 6401]; and

- Each spouse has testamentary power over one half of the community property [see Prob. Code §§ 100, 101, 6101(b), (c); Estate of Murphy (1976) 15 Cal. 3d 907, 912, 126 Cal. Rptr. 820, 544 P.2d 956 (decided under former Prob. Code § 201)].

A married person's right to dispose of his or her community property interest in specified property may be restricted. For example, anti-alienation provisions in an employee spouse's pension plan may prohibit the non-employee spouse who predeceases the employee spouse from bequeathing his or her community property interest in the plan [see Regents of University of California v. Benford (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 867, 875-877, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 441] .

In addition, note that special statutory provisions affect the disposition on death of community funds held in bank, savings, and similar accounts [see Prob. Code § 5100 et seq.] and other provisions govern certain nonprobate transfers of community property on the death of the transferor spouse [see Prob. Code § 5100 et seq.]. For discussion of spouses holding title as "community property with right of survivorship," see § 122.33[5]. For discussion, see § 122.56 and Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

[e] "Quasi-Community Property" Distinguished

For the purpose of family law proceedings, the term "quasi-community property" refers to all real or personal property, wherever situated, acquired before or after January 1, 1994, in the following ways [Fam. Code § 125]:

- By either spouse while domiciled elsewhere that would have been community property if the spouse who acquired the property had been domiciled in California at the time of its acquisition; or

- In exchange for real or personal property, wherever situated, that would have been community property if the spouse who acquired the property so exchanged had been domiciled in California at the time of its acquisition.

The quasi-community property concept permits treatment of certain types of property as community property for purposes of its disposition on death [see Prob. Code § 66] and, as set forth in the foregoing definition, on marital dissolution or legal separation [see Fam. Code § 125]. Current law also treats quasi-community property as community property for the purpose of determining liability of marital property for debts, as discussed in Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation . [see Fam. Code § 912].

Although the quasi-community property concept is an established part of California family law, it has posed constitutional issues. Prior to the enactment of the current statute that defines quasi-community property [see Fam. Code § 125], which continues the substance of the definition under former law [see Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to Fam. Code § 125], certain of its predecessor statutes were upheld as constitutional [see Addison v. Addison (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 558, 563-570, 43 Cal. Rptr. 97, 399 P.2d 897 ; In re Miller (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 191, 187 P.2d 722 ; see also Comment, Marital Property and the Conflict of Laws: The Constitutionality of the "Quasi-Community Property" Legislation, 54 Cal. L. Rev. 252 (1966)]. However, based on prior decisional law, in order constitutionally to apply the Fam. Code § 125 definition of quasi-community property to the property of out-of-state domicilaries who have moved to California, the following requirements must be met [In re Marriage of Roesch (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 96, 103-104, 147 Cal. Rptr. 586 (construing former Civ. Code § 4803)]:

- Both parties to the marriage must have changed their domiciles to California; and

- After the change of domicile, the spouses must seek legal alteration of their marital status in a California court.

Unless both of these conditions exist, the interest of California in the status of the spouses' property is insufficient to justify its reclassification as quasi-community property without violating the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment [U.S. Const., amend. XIV] and the privileges and immunities clause of U.S. Const., art. IV, § 2 [In re Marriage of Roesch (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 96, 103-104, 147 Cal. Rptr. 586] . Nevertheless, as noted above, quasi-community property is currently treated as community, and not separate, property for purposes of debt liability, even in the absence of proceedings to alter the spouse's marital status [see Fam. Code § 912], leaving open a possible challenge to such treatment on constitutional grounds.

For purposes of this chapter, unless otherwise stated, discussion of community property is intended to include quasi-community property.

[f] "Quasi-Marital Property" Distinguished

"Quasi-marital" property is property acquired by parties to a void or voidable marriage that at least one of the parties entered into in the good faith belief that the marriage was valid [see Fam. Code § 2251(a); see also In re Marriage of Liu (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 143, 156-157, 242 Cal. Rptr. 649 ; Patillo v. Norris (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 209, 217 n.4, 135 Cal. Rptr. 210 ; Estate of Vargas (1975) 36 Cal. App. 3d 714, 717, 111 Cal. Rptr. 779] . Property acquired during such a union that would have been community or quasi-community property if the union had been a valid marriage is divided in the proceeding to terminate the marriage as if it were community property [see Fam. Code §§ 2251, 2550 et seq.]. The property so divided is liable for debts of the parties to the same extent as if the property had been community or quasi-community property [Fam. Code § 2252].

For discussion of property rights arising out of a nonmarital relationship, see Ch. 387, Nonmarital Cohabitation . For discussion of property rights in a putative marriage, and of grounds for terminating void and voidable marriages through nullity proceedings, see Ch. 25, Annulment (Nullity) of Marriage and Related Spousal Rights . Property rights arising from nonmarital family relationships are discussed in Kirkland, Lurvey & Richmond, California Family Law Practice and Procedure, 2nd ed., Chs. 1, 2 (Matthew Bender).

[2] "Separate Property" Defined

[a] In General

In general, all property owned by a spouse that is not classifiable as community property is considered to be that spouse's separate property [see Siberell v. Siberell (1932) 214 Cal. 767, 770, 7 P.2d 1003] , except in the circumstances in which it is appropriate to classify particular property as "quasi-community property." More specifically, separate property of a married person includes the following, as provided by statute [Fam. Code §§ 130, 770(a); Cal. Const., art. I, § 21; see, e.g., California Maryland Funding, Inc. v. Lowe (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1798, 1803, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 784] :

- All property owned by the person before marriage;
- All property acquired by the person after marriage by gift, bequest, devise, or descent; and
- The rents, issues, and profits of the foregoing property.

Other statutory provisions also classify particular property as separate property. For example, the earnings and accumulations of a spouse and the minor children living with, or in the custody of, the spouse, while living separate and apart from the other spouse, are the separate property of the spouse [Fam. Code § 771]. Similarly, after entry of a judgment of legal separation, the earnings and accumulations of each party are the separate property of the acquiring party [Fam. Code § 772]. A special statutory provision also sets forth the circumstances under which personal injury damages can be considered separate property, as discussed in Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation . [see Fam. Code § 781].

In addition, statutes specify the manner by which interests in community property or one spouse's separate property can be changed, or "transmuted," into the separate property of the other spouse, as discussed in § 122.34 [see Fam. Code § 850 et seq.]. Moreover, in some cases, the form of title to property will give rise to a common law presumption that the parties each hold a separate property interest in it [see § 122.33]. Thus, in a particular case, the characterization of property as separate property may require considerable analysis.

[b] Incidents of Separate Property

Separate property has special characteristics or "incidents" that distinguish it from other types of property. These generally include the following:

(1) Each spouse may, without the consent of the other, convey or otherwise transfer his or her separate property, whether inter vivos, or by will [see Fam. Code § 770(b); Prob. Code § 6101(a); California Maryland Funding, Inc. v. Lowe (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1798, 1803, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 784 (husband had right, during marriage, to transfer his premarital separate property residence to himself and children of former marriage); but c.f. Fam. Code § 754 (on recording of lis pendens regarding pending family law proceeding, real property may not be transferred, encumbered, or otherwise disposed of for three months without court order)];

(2) The interest, if any, of a surviving spouse in the separate property of a deceased spouse who died leaving a will executed after marriage is limited to that set forth in the will [see Fam. Code § 770(b); Prob. Code § 6101(a)];

(3) The separate property of a married person is subject to special statutory provisions governing liability for debts incurred before or during marriage, as discussed in Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation . [see, e.g., Fam. Code § 913(a) (married person's separate property is liable for debt incurred by that person before or during marriage); see generally Fam. Code § 910 et seq.]; and

(4) The separate property of a married person may be "transmuted" to community property or to the other spouse's separate property by a qualifying agreement [see Fam. Code § 850 et seq.; see also, § 122.34].

In general, neither spouse has any interest in the other's separate property, except as otherwise provided by statute [Fam. Code § 752]. However, despite this rule, neither spouse ordinarily may be excluded from the other's dwelling, subject to special statutory provisions for restraining orders, including dwelling exclusion orders [Fam. Code §§ 753, 2045 et seq., 6218(b), 6321], as discussed in Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure , and Ch. 293, Harassment and Domestic Violence .

Moreover, when marital dissolution, legal separation, or nullity proceedings have been commenced and a notice of the pendency of these proceedings (lis pendens) is recorded in any county in which a husband or wife resides on real property that is the separate property of the other, that property must not afterwards be transferred, encumbered, or otherwise disposed of voluntarily or involuntarily for a period of three months without the joinder of both spouses, unless a court otherwise orders [Fam. Code § 754; see Code Civ. Proc. § 405.20].

[c] Inventory of Separate Property Under Prior Law

Former Civil Code Section 5114 permitted the recording of an inventory of either spouse's separate personal property in the office of the recorder of the county in which the spouses resided [former Civ. Code § 5114]. Pursuant to former Civil Code Section 5115, the filing of such an inventory was notice and prima facie evidence of the title of the party filing the inventory.

Operative January 1, 1994, however, Sections 5114 and 5115 were repealed and not replaced in the Family Code, apparently on the ground that they were obsolescent. Nevertheless, it would appear that any inventory recorded prior to that date would be valid for the purpose stated in the former statute [see former Civ. Code § 5115].

[d] Right of Spouses to Hold Property as Joint Tenants and Tenants in Common

[i] Joint Tenancy

Spouses may hold property between themselves as joint tenants [Fam. Code § 750; cf. Civ. Code § 682 (describing general forms of multiple ownership of property)], and many married persons, in fact, hold title to both real and personal property in joint tenancy. The interest of each spouse in true joint tenancy property is that of an undivided, one-half, separate property interest [see Fry v. Bihr (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 248, 252, 85 Cal. Rptr. 742 ; Kaupe v. Kaupe (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 511, 513, 280 P.2d 856 ; see also Civ. Code § 683; In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 219, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891 (discussing effect of joint tenancy title before enactment of special presumption for purposes of marital dissolution)].

Traditionally, spouses have chosen to place title to property in joint tenancy for two principle reasons: probate avoidance and limitation of liability. The probate avoidance feature arises because the major incident of joint tenancy is the right of survivorship [see Siberell v. Siberell (1932) 214 Cal. 767, 771, 7 P.2d 1003 ; see also Estate of Wilson (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 786, 797, 134 Cal. Rptr. 749] , under which ownership of the entire property vests on the death of one joint tenant in the surviving joint tenant by operation of law, and without the necessity of probate administration [Goldberg v. Goldberg (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 623, 628, 32 Cal. Rptr. 93] . Because, under current law, community property willed by one spouse to the other is not required to be administered in probate [see Prob. Code §§ 13500, 13502, 13503], probate avoidance is no longer a compelling reason for spouses to choose joint tenancy ownership over community property ownership. Furthermore, because different "basis" rules generally apply on the death of a spouse with respect to joint tenancy property as opposed to property held as community property, there may be significant tax consequences connected with the manner in which the spouses take title [see I.R.C. § 1014(b)(6)]. Spouses may now also hold property as community property with a right of survivorship, as discussed in § 122.33[6] [Civ. Code § 682.1; Fam. Code § 750].

The limitation of liability aspect of true joint tenancy title derives from the fact that the interest of each joint tenant is that of a separate property half interest. Thus, unlike a levy on community property, which may subject the entire property to execution for a spouse's debt, a levy on true joint tenancy property subjects to execution only the interest of the spouse whose separate property is liable for payment of the debt involved [see Abbett Electric Corp. v. Storek (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1460, 1466-1467, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 845 ; Kane v. Huntley Financial (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 1092, 1097, 1097 n.2, 194 Cal. Rptr. 880 ; Schoenfeld v. Norberg (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 755, 764, 90 Cal. Rptr. 47 ; but see Dieden v. Schmidt (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 645, 651-652, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 365 (judgment lien was placed on real property when it was held as tenancy in common and survived both title change to joint tenancy and death of debtor joint tenant; therefore, lien was enforceable against surviving joint tenant-spouse)]. In bankruptcy, only the debtor's separate property half interest in joint tenancy property is included in the bankruptcy estate [see In re Summers (9th Cir. 2003) 332 F.3d 1240, 1242-1244 (true joint tenancy property acquired during marriage with community funds)].

In addition to the foregoing considerations, a general community property presumption concerning property acquired during marriage in joint form, including joint tenancy, may apply for purposes of dividing property on dissolution of marriage or legal separation, as discussed in § 122.33[4] [see Fam. Code §§ 2580, 2581; In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 1217-1218, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349 ; In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 221-224, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891] . Moreover, special characterization rules apply with respect to accounts held by married persons in joint tenancy in banks and similar financial institutions. These rules provide for a community presumption in certain cases, as discussed in Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation [see Prob. Code §§ 5203, 5305-5307; see also Estate of Fisher (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 418, 427-429, 244 Cal. Rptr. 5 (discussing creation of "Totten trust" accounts under prior law)]. Finally, because of the public policy that favors community property as the form of ownership between spouses [see Fam. Code § 760 (general presumption regarding community property)], the requirements for creation of a joint tenancy between spouses are strictly construed.

For a general discussion and forms of action related to joint tenancy titles, see Ch. 316, Joint Tenancy and Tenancy in Common .

[ii] Tenancy in Common

As in the case of joint tenancy, spouses are expressly permitted by statute to hold property between themselves as tenants in common [Fam. Code § 750; cf. Civ. Code §§ 682, (describing general forms of multiple ownership of property), 686 (general effect of tenancy among several persons)]. The interest of each spouse in true tenancy in common property is that of an undivided separate property interest [see In re Marriage of Rico (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 706, 710, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 659 ; Estate ofAdams (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 264, 266, 39 Cal. Rptr. 522 ; see also Siberell v. Siberell (1932) 214 Cal. 767, 771, 7 P.2d 1003 ; Estate of Horn (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 635, 640, 228 P.2d 99 ; see, e.g., In re McFall (Bankr. 9th Cir. 1990) 112 Bankr. 336, 338-341 (spouses held title to residence as tenants in common)].

The only requirement for the creation and continued existence of a tenancy in common is the so-called "unity of possession" [Estate of Horn (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 635, 639, 228 P.2d 99] , under which each tenant in common is equally entitled to share in the possession of the entire property, and no cotenant may exclude any other from any part of the property [Zaslow v. Kroenert (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 541, 548, 176 P.2d 1] . Tenants in common need not have equal ownership interests in the property, although the existence of a tenancy in common raises a presumption of equal ownership [see In re Marriage of Rico (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 706, 710, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 659 (parties purchased property as tenants in common before marriage, and converted to joint tenancy on refinancing during marriage)]. Note that many, if not most, spousal tenancies in common are composed of equal interests.

A tenancy in common may result from the severance of, or failure to meet the requirements for, a joint tenancy. For example, a conveyance of the interest of one joint tenant to a third party, followed by a reconveyance of the interest from the third party to the original tenant, severs the original joint tenancy and results in a tenancy in common [Estate of Baglione (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 192, 195, 53 Cal. Rptr. 139, 417 P.2d 683 ; see Estate of Baumann (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 927, 936, 247 Cal. Rptr. 532] . Furthermore, if the interest of one joint tenant is purchased at an execution sale, the joint tenancy is severed and the purchaser and the other joint tenant or tenants become tenants in common [Russell v. Lescalet (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 310, 312, 56 Cal. Rptr. 399] .

Like property held in joint tenancy, property held in a true tenancy in common is subject to division, at the request of a party, in proceedings to divide property on marital dissolution or legal separation [see Fam. Code § 2650]. However, for the purpose of dividing property on dissolution of marriage or legal separation, property acquired by the spouses during marriage in joint form, including tenancy in common, is rebuttably presumed to be community property [see Fam. Code §§ 2580, 2581], as discussed in § 122.33[4].

Furthermore, special rules governing accounts in banks and similar financial institutions affect the characterization of tenancies in common involving such accounts [see Prob. Code §§ 5100 et seq., 5203(a)(6), 5306]. For a discussion of multiple-party accounts, see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division . For discussion of former spouses holding unadjudicated community assets as tenants in common following a marital dissolution [see In re Marriage of Graves (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1047, 1050, 1052, 244 Cal.Rptr. 110] , see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property

Division . For a general discussion of tenancies in common, see Ch. 316, Joint Tenancy and Tenancy in Common .

[3] Spouses' Date of Separation and Property

[a] Significance of Date of Separation

Married persons are subject to special rules concerning the characterization of assets they acquire and debts they incur throughout the period of marriage, including the principle that assets (including earnings) they acquire and debts they incur after a marital separation generally are the separate property and responsibility, respectively, of the spouse making the acquisition or incurring the debt [see Fam. Code §§ 771, 910(b); see also Fam. Code § 772 (acquisitions after entry of judgment of legal separation)]. As a result, the parties' date of separation has critical significance in characterizing property as separate or community. A full discussion of property characterization principles is included in this part, below. Debt liability is discussed in Ch. 222, Property Division and Valuation .

[b] Determining Date of Separation

[i] Concept of "Living Separate and Apart"

Courts have traditionally determined the date of separation of spouses by establishing when the spouses commenced living "separate and apart." Framing the inquiry in these terms is essential given the provision of Fam. Code § 771, declaring "earnings and accumulations of a spouse and the minor children living with, or in the custody of, the spouse, while living separate and apart from the other spouse" to be the acquiring spouse's separate property [see Fam. Code § 910(b) (for purposes of community property liability for debts incurred "during marriage," term "during marriage" does not include period during which spouses are living separate and apart before judgment of dissolution of marriage or legal separation of the parties"); see also § 122.32[3][b]; but see Fam. Code § 771(b) (preserving minor's earnings under certain entertainment and sports contracts as property of minor)].

However, "living separate and apart" is a term of art, and means that the parties' physical separation is the result of a breakdown in the marital relationship. Courts have held that, in the context of Fam. Code § 771, "living separate and apart" refers not to a case in which spouses are residing temporarily in different places because of economic or social reasons [In re Marriage of Marsden (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 426, 434-436, 181 Cal. Rptr. 910 ; Kerr v. Kerr (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 12, 17-18, 5 Cal. Rptr. 630] , but only to that condition in which spouses have come to a parting of the ways with no present intention of resuming marital relations [In re Marriage of Imperato (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 432, 435-436, 119 Cal. Rptr. 590 , , and in which there is conduct evidencing a complete and final break in the marital relationship [In re Marriage of von der Nuell (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 730, 732, 734-736, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 447] .

The threshold requirement of "living separate and apart" is not satisfied until two conditions are present simultaneously: at least one spouse must have the subjective intent to end the marriage, and there must be objective evidence of conduct furthering that intent [In re Marriage of Norviel (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 1152, 1158-1159, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148] . Therefore, living apart physically in different places is an indispensable threshold requirement to separation [In re Marriage of Norviel (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 1152, 1162, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148] . However, the fact that the spouses may live in separate residences is not determinative. As the courts have noted, under modern conditions many married couples work in different places for economic reasons, seeing each other only on weekends, and yet they are not "living apart" within the meaning of the statute because there has been no marital rupture [Kerr v. Kerr (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 12, 18, 5 Cal. Rptr. 630] .

The critical inquiry is whether the parties' conduct evidences a complete and final break in the marital relationship [In re Marriage of von der Nuell (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 730, 732, 734-736, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 447 (citing In re Marriage of Baragry (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 444, 448, 140 Cal. Rptr. 779)]. "Separation" occurs when "either spouse does not intend to resume the marriage and his or her actions bespeak the finality of the marital relationship"; or, phrased another way, when either party perceives (or both parties perceive) the rift in their relationship as being final [In re Marriage of Hardin (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 448, 451, 453, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 308] . Proof of the separation date by a preponderance of the evidence is sufficient, given that the parties have identical economic interests at risk in ruling on the issue [In re Marriage of Peters (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1487, 1489, 1491, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 493] .

All factors bearing on either party's intentions "to return or not to return to the other spouse" are to be considered, and no particular facts are per se determinative. The ultimate test is the parties' subjective intent, the best evidence of which is revealed by their words and actions. Accordingly, the parties' respective subjective intents are to be objectively determined from all of the evidence reflecting their words and actions during the time period at issue, in order to ascertain when during that period the rift in their relationship became final [In re Marriage of Hardin (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 448, 452-453, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 308] .

Leading cases illustrate the type of fact analysis required to determine whether "separation" has occurred. In one case, the only evidence of a final break in the marital relationship was the absence of an active sexual relationship between the parties, and the husband's cohabitation elsewhere with another woman. The husband continued to eat dinner with his family, take his wife on vacations, file joint tax returns, bring his laundry home, and otherwise participate in family life. During the four years that this state of affairs continued, the husband and wife were not considered to be living separate and apart within the meaning of the statute [In re Marriage of Baragry (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 444, 448, 140 Cal. Rptr. 779] . Similarly, another court found that "separation" had not occurred as of the time a wife first asked her husband to move out of the family home when, during the nearly four years thereafter in which they lived apart, the husband voluntarily paid the wife monthly support, the couple maintained joint checking accounts, credit cards, filed joint tax returns, acquired joint title in a vehicle, engaged in sexual relations, went out socially, and made some attempts at reconciliation. Their ongoing economic, emotional, sexual, and social ties demonstrated that a complete and final break in their marital relationship had not yet occurred [In re Marriage of von der Nuell (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 730, 732, 734-736, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 447] . Yet another court found that "separation" did not occur on the day that a husband informed his wife that their marriage was ended and they agreed he would move into a rental house they were buying, but on the day when the rental house was ready for occupancy and he finally moved out of the family residence. The husband and wife had been living together as "roommates" for some time, so the husband's actual move was the only conduct demonstrating a physical separation contemporaneous with his intent to separate [In re Marriage of Norviel (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 1152, 1164-1165, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148] .

The issue of the date of separation can be bifurcated for trial apart from other issues in a proceeding for marital dissolution or legal separation, if resolution of that issue is likely to simplify the determination of other issues [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1269(b); see, e.g., In re Marriage of von der Nuell (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 730, 733, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 447] .

[ii] Multiple Separation Periods

In common parlance, "separation" is typically regarded as a single event in which the spouses physically live apart and do not resume living together in the marital household. However, in a given instance, parties may actually separate and resume living together a number of times, either with or without completely reconciling. This situation complicates determining the date of separation because, as discussed in § 122.31[3][b][i], living "separate and apart" within the statutory meaning essentially requires a complete and final break in the marital relationship with no intention of resuming that relationship [In re Marriage of von der Nuell (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 730, 732, 734-736, 28 Cal Rptr. 2d 447] . Whether any particular period of physical sensation before a "final separation" can amount to "living separate and apart" is problematic from the standpoint of characterizing assets acquired or debts incurred [see Fam. Code § 771 (successor to former Civ. Code § 5118); Fam. code § 910(b) (for purposes of community property liability for debts incurred "during marriage," term "during marriage" does not include period during which spouses are living separate and apart before a judgment of dissolution of marriage or legal separation of the parties)] during the separation period.

Even if more than one period of separation is recognized, the parties' conduct during a reconciliation must also be examined to determine whether, following the reconciliation, any agreements were made respecting property acquired during the separation period, or actual transfers of such property were made that would negate a separate property claim. For discussion of transmuting the character of property from separate to community, or otherwise, see § 122.34.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawCommunity PropertyGeneral OverviewFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationMarital PropertyFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationSeparate PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesCommunity PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesSeparate Property

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. General Characterization Principles

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.32

§ 122.32 Effect of Time of Acquisition

[1] Overview of Acquisition Issues

[a] General Considerations

The time at which property is acquired is significant for characterization purposes primarily because classification of property as separate or community is ordinarily determined as of its acquisition date [see In re Marriage of Fabian (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 440, 445, 224 Cal. Rptr. 333, 715 P.2d 253 ; see also Grappo v. Coventry Financial Corp. (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 496, 505, 286 Cal. Rptr. 714] by applying the various characterization principles established by statute and case law then in force, although some enactments or amendments may apply retroactively [see In re Marriage of Fabian (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 440, 448-449, 224 Cal. Rptr. 333, 715 P.2d 253 ; In re Marriage of Bouquet (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 583, 591-594, 128 Cal. Rptr. 427, 546 P.2d 1371 ; Trimble v. Trimble (1933) 219 Cal. 340, 343, 26 P.2d 477] . "Time of acquisition" issues generally involve consideration of when property was acquired in relation to the commencement or termination of marriage, or to the spouses' cohabitation during marriage.

In characterizing property by reference to the time of acquisition, it is useful to first ascertain the relationship between the acquisition time and the status of the parties as husband and wife, as discussed below, and then to apply the relevant legal principles in force as of that time. This is perhaps the most basic factor to consider, given the general presumption that property acquired during marriage by a person domiciled in California is community property, except as otherwise provided by statute [see Fam. Code § 760; In re Marriage of Haines (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 277, 291, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 673] . The philosophy of the community property system is that a community interest can be acquired only during the time of the marriage [In re Marriage of Fortier (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 384, 388, 109 Cal. Rptr. 915 ; see Fam. Code § 760].

Accordingly, property acquired by either spouse before marriage [see Fam. Code § 770; In re Marriage of Jafeman (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 244, 255, 105 Cal. Rptr. 483] , or while the spouses are still married but living separate and apart with no present intention of resuming marital relations [see Fam. Code § 771; In re Marriage of Marsden (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 426, 434, 181 Cal. Rptr. 910] , or after a judgment of legal separation or marital dissolution, or after a spouse's death [see Fam. Code § 772; In re Estate of Nelson (1930) 104 Cal. App. 613, 619-620, 286 P. 439 ; In re

Spencer (1889) 82 Cal. 110, 113, 23 P. 37] is ordinarily the separate property of the acquiring spouse unless the property was acquired with community funds or with funds traceable to community property [see Estate of Rattray (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 702, 707, 91 P.2d 1042] .

Nevertheless, the "time of acquisition" factor does not operate in isolation from other characterization principles. Therefore, counsel must examine the nature of the property, the transaction by which it was acquired, and any other actions taken by the parties in relation to the property to determine whether any other applicable characterization principles apply.

For discussion of special considerations in determining when property was acquired, see § 122.32[1][b]. For discussion of the general presumption that property acquired during marriage is community property, including a summary of exceptions to that presumption, see § 122.32[2].

[b] Determining Time of Acquisition

[i] Equitable Versus Legal Right to Property

In determining when property was acquired for characterization purposes, courts generally look to when an equitable interest in the property was acquired, not to when formal legal title passed. For example, if an equitable right in property, such as the right to purchase real property, is acquired by a spouse before marriage, the property is considered to be that spouse's separate property [Vieux v. Vieux (1926) 80 Cal. App. 222, 226-230, 251 P. 640] , although the community may be entitled to reimbursement for any nongift improvements made on the property with community funds, or to an apportioned interest when nongift community funds are used to help purchase the property [see In re Marriage of Jafeman (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 244, 254-256, 105 Cal. Rptr. 483] . For discussion of apportioning real property interests, see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

If acquisition of property is begun during marriage but not completed until after the marriage has been terminated, the property generally is considered community property [see Waters v. Waters (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 265, 269-270, 170 P.2d 494] . However, in some instances, such as when an acquisition that was begun during marriage has been completed after termination of the marriage using separate property, an apportionment between community and separate property may be required, as discussed in § 122.32[1][c].

[ii] Leasehold Interests Renewed or Extended During Marriage

Leaseholds are subject to the general presumption of community property if acquired during marriage [see Fam. Code § 760], but characterization questions may arise if the leasehold is extended or renewed during marriage. For example, a lease that is one spouse's separate property may remain separate property if the lease is merely extended during marriage. However, renewal during marriage of a leasehold gives rise to a new tenancy in which the community may acquire an interest if, for example, a new lease agreement is executed. In one case, when a separate property leasehold was merely extended during marriage the community acquired no interest, even though the extension was pursuant to an option to renew, because the extension related back to the date the option was given [In re Marriage of Joaquin (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1529, 1534, 239 Cal. Rptr. 175] .

Note that for characterization purposes, a leasehold interest in real property is considered real property and not personal property [Fam. Code § 700 (applying its definition of leasehold to all of Division 4 of Family Code, Fam. Code § 700 et seq.)].

[iii] Future or Contingent Rights

Time of acquisition may be at issue if a party acquires only a "contingent" or future interest in a right to property during marriage. The issue might arise, for example, in the context of dividing rights to contingent fees, work in progress in a professional practice, royalties, or qui tam actions, as well as in the employment contract and similar contexts. In general, the fact that an interest is contingent, nonvested, or nonmatured, or involves intangible property, will not preclude it from characterization as community property if the right to the interest was acquired during marriage and before separation [see generally In re Marriage of Brown (1976) 15 Cal. 3d 838, 844-847, 126 Cal. Rptr. 633, 544 P.2d 561 ; Biddle v. Biddle (In re Biddle) 52 Cal. App. 4th 396, 398, 400, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 569] .

[iv] Nonpension Employment Rights

Rights derived from a contract between an employer and employee to receive certain benefits are not considered mere expectancies. They may be subject to community property laws when the employee's right to receive contract benefits is subject only to conditions within the employee's control [see In re Marriage of Skaden (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 679, 685-688, 139 Cal. Rptr. 615, 566 P.2d 249 (right of insurance agent to receive benefits based on amount of policies sold); In re Marriage of Fonstein (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 738, 745-746, 131 Cal. Rptr. 873, 552 P.2d 1169 (law partner's contractual right to receive payments on voluntary withdrawal from firm); In re Marriage of Horn (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 540, 547-548, 226 Cal. Rptr. 666 (right of football player to receive severance pay); In re Marriage of Wicks (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 329, 333-334, 145 Cal. Rptr. 496 (military incentive pay received during marriage related to services to be performed after marriage)]. For further discussion of such contractual rights, see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

[c] Apportionment

Property may have to be apportioned between separate and community interests if acquisition occurred during overlapping periods in which the parties' marital status and living arrangements changed, such as, for example, when acquisition began before the parties married and concluded during marriage, or after the parties separated [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Marsden (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 426, 436-440, 181 Cal. Rptr. 910] .

If the property in question is a business or professional practice, the court may choose between the apportionment rules established by the Pereira and Van Camp cases, as appropriate to the facts [see Pereira v. Pereira (1909) 156 Cal. 1, 7-8, 103 P. 488 ; Van Camp v. Van Camp (1921) 53 Cal. App. 17, 27-29, 199 P. 885] . If a business or practice was commenced during marriage and continued after separation, a reverse application of the Pereira/Van Camp rules may be required [see In re Marriage of Imperato (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 432, 438-439, 119 Cal. Rptr. 590] . Division of small businesses and professional practices is fully discussed in Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

Similarly, special rules concerning apportionment apply to acquisitions of real property, particularly the family residence. Community improvements to a spouse's separate real property, down payments from separate property on community property, or separate property improvements to community property all will require application of specialized apportionment or reimbursement principles [see, e.g., Fam. Code § 2640 (reimbursement for separate property contributions to acquisition of community property)]. In addition, valuation of real property is frequently made more complex because this property is subject to market fluctuations and other changes that are not directly attributable to the parties' contributions. Apportionment of interests in real property is discussed in Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

Furthermore, contingent rights that are acquired partially during marriage and partially before or after marriage, such as pensions, bonuses, and stock options, may be at issue. Courts generally apportion these rights using time-based formulas [see In re Marriage of Walker (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 644, 648, 650-651, 265 Cal. Rptr. 32 ; In re Marriage of Nelson (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 150, 154-155, 222 Cal. Rptr. 790 ; In re Marriage of Adams (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 181, 186-187, 134 Cal. Rptr. 298] . Income tax issues may be raised by a particular apportionment, and counsel should be prepared to demonstrate any "immediate and specific" consequences to the court [see In re Marriage of Fonstein (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 738,747-751, 17 Cal. 3d 738, 751, 131 Cal. Rptr. 873, 552 P.2d 1169 ; In re

Marriage of Nelson (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 150, 156 , 222 Cal. Rtptr. 790]. Finally, contingent fees, such as those obtained in a professional practice may be at issue [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Kilbourne (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1518, 1522, 1524 n.5, 284 Cal. Rptr. 201] . Apportionment of such fees is discussed in Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation , along with discussion of dividing pension, retirement, and disability benefits.

[2] Scope of Community Presumption From Acquisitions During Marriage

[a] General Rule

One of the basic principles of the community property system is recognition of the contribution of both spouses to the marriage. The system gives both spouses rights in the property accumulated during marriage, although both may not have been directly responsible for acquisition of the property. Thus, all property acquired during marriage by either husband or wife or both while domiciled in California is presumed to be community property, except as otherwise provided by statute [see Fam. Code § 760].

Although the community presumption applies regardless of the duration of a marriage, at least one older decision has suggested that the presumption has "greater force" if the marriage has been of long duration [see Estate of Ney (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 891, 895, 28 Cal. Rptr. 442 (presumption applied to property acquired during 14-year marriage)]. This does not mean that a different characterization standard applies to long, as opposed to short, marriages, and in fact there is no modern authority for a court to apply a different standard. However, as a practical matter, some courts may simply scrutinize more closely claims of purported separate property acquired during marriage when the parties have developed a pattern of community property acquisitions over a long period of time.

The presumption that property acquired during marriage is community property may be overcome by evidence that the disputed property is actually separate property [In re Marriage of Mix (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 604, 611-612, 122 Cal. Rptr. 79, 536 P.2d 479 ; See v. See (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 778, 783, 51 Cal. Rptr. 888, 415 P.2d 776 ; see also In re Marriage of Joaquin (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1529, 1534, 239 Cal. Rptr. 175] . In general, overcoming the community presumption may be accomplished by the following [see generally In re Marriage of Wall (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 1042, 1047-1048, 106 Cal. Rptr. 690] :

- Evidence of an agreement between the parties that the property is separate despite the time of acquisition or form of title (see Kirkland, Lurvey & Richmond, California Family Law Practice and Procedure, chs. 200- 216 (Matthew Bender 2d ed.)), or evidence of an agreement actually changing ("transmuting") community to separate property (see § 122.34);

- Tracing the property to a separate property source, except when this is inappropriate, such as with respect to property held in joint title form (see the discussions in §§ 122.33 and 122.35);

- Applying presumptions relating to the form of title by which the property is held, as discussed in § 122.33; or, by

- Evidence that the acquisition was by gift, will, or inheritance, or that it was made after the parties separated, or that it otherwise comes within one or more of the exceptions to community characterization discussed in § 122.32[2][b].

In addition, other statutory provisions control the liability of property for debts incurred during marriage and the assignment of responsibility for payment of debts on dissolution of marriage [see Fam. Code § 910 et seq., § 2620 et seq.], as discussed in Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

[b] Exceptions Resulting in Separate Characterization

The general presumption that property acquired during marriage is community property is inapplicable to certain property, as set forth by statute [see Fam. Code § 760; see also Estate of Jolly (1925) 196 Cal. 547, 553, 238 P. 353 (construing former Civ. Code § 164)]. Accordingly, as discussed further below, the following property acquired during marriage is separate property because of statutory exceptions to the general presumption:

- Property acquired by either spouse by gift, bequest, devise, or descent [Fam. Code § 770(a)(2)].

- The rents, issues, and profits of a spouse's separate property [Fam. Code § 770(a)(3)].

- Money or other property received in satisfaction of a claim for personal injury: (a) by one spouse against the other for a cause of action that arose during marriage, and (b) by one spouse against a third party if the cause of action arose after the rendition of a judgment of legal separation or of marital dissolution, or while either spouse, if he or she is the injured person, is living separate and apart from the other spouse [see Fam. Code § 781]. For example, a wife's recovery in her settlement of her legal malpractice action against the couple's former attorney was held to be her separate property, even though two necessary elements of her cause of action--duty and breach--occurred during marriage, when she did not suffer any loss or injury until after separation, and when it was the husband's actions, with the attorney's aid, in transferring funds offshore that resulted in the injury the wife claimed in the malpractice action. Although the attorney was negligent in representing the wife, it was the husband who benefited from that negligence. Under these circumstances, it would be inequitable for the husband to benefit by sharing in the wife's settlement proceeds [see In re Marriage of Klug (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1389, 1393-1403, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 327] .

- Property to which legal or equitable title is held by a person at the time of his or her death, if the marriage during which the property was acquired was terminated by dissolution more than four years before that death [Fam. Code § 802].

- Any real or personal property interest acquired by a wife by written instrument before January 1, 1975, subject to other special presumptions [Fam. Code § 803].

- Earnings and accumulations of a spouse and the minor children living with, or in the custody of, the spouse, while living separate and apart from the other spouse [Fam. Code § 771].

- Earnings and accumulations of a party after the rendition of a judgment of legal separation [Fam. Code § 772].

- In general, debts incurred while spouses are living separate and apart prior to a judgment of marital dissolution or legal separation [Fam. Code § 910; see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation].

In addition to these statutory exceptions, case law has established that property acquired by a sale on credit or by a loan should be characterized as separate property, despite acquisition of the property during marriage, when the intent of the lender or seller is to rely on the separate property of the purchaser [see Bank of California v. Connolly (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 350, 375, 111 Cal. Rptr. 468] , as discussed in § 122.36. Furthermore, parties may choose to designate property acquired during marriage as separate property by agreement, as discussed in § 122.34 and in Kirkland, Lurvey & Richmond, California Family Law Practice and Procedure, chs. 200- 216 (Matther Bender).

[c] Acquisitions by Wife Before January 1, 1975

The presumption in favor of characterizing property acquired during marriage as community property does not apply to any real property (including leaseholds) [see Fam. Code § 700], personal property, or interest in or encumbrance on such property acquired by a married woman by written instrument executed before January 1, 1975. The property or interest so acquired is presumed to be the woman's separate property [Fam. Code § 803(a); see, e.g., In re Marriage of Ashodian (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 43, 46-47, 157 Cal. Rptr. 555 (properties acquired in connection with wife's real estate business and proceeds from their sale)]. If the property was acquired with any person other than her spouse, she is presumed to take her interest as a tenant in common unless a different intention is expressed in the written instrument [Fam. Code § 803(b)]. This separate property presumption does not apply to property acquired on or after January 1, 1975, because on that date wives acquired joint management and control of all community property [see generally In re Marriage of Mix (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 604, 610 fn. 6, 611, 122 Cal. Rptr. 79, 536 P.2d 479] .

To rebut the presumption that property purchased by a married woman by written instrument prior to 1975 is her separate property, it is sufficient to trace the source of the purchase to community funds, if the husband did not acquiesce in the form of title in the instrument of purchase. If the husband consented to the form of title, it is presumed that he intended a gift to the wife. It then becomes necessary to rebut the presumption of a gift in addition to tracing the source of the purchase. The husband's testimony that he did not intend a gift has been held sufficient to rebut the presumption of a gift [In re Marriage of Rives (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 138, 162-163, 181 Cal. Rptr. 572] .

The presumption that any interest in property acquired by a married woman in writing before January 1, 1975, is her separate property does not apply if the wife acquired the property with her husband and the instrument of transfer described them as husband and wife. In this situation, unless the instrument of transfer expresses a different intention, the property acquired is presumed to be community property [Fam. Code § 803(c)]. This presumption in favor of community property is not rebuttable by merely tracing separate property used in the purchase, but can only be rebutted by evidence of an agreement or understanding regarding the retention of a separate property interest [In re Marriage of Cademartori (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 970, 973-976, 174 Cal. Rptr. 292] . For further discussion of this "husband and wife" presumption, see § 122.33[3].

The foregoing presumptions are conclusive in favor of any person dealing in good faith and for valuable consideration with a wife or with her legal representatives or successors in interest, notwithstanding any change in her marital status after acquisition of the property [Fam. Code § 803]. A conclusive presumption may not be rebutted by other evidence [see Williams v. Moon (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 214, 217, 219 P.2d 902] .

[d] Property Held at Death and Acquired During Previous Marriage

The presumption that property acquired during marriage is community property (§ 122.32[3][a]) does not apply to any property to which a person holds legal or equitable title at the time of his or her death if the property was acquired during a marriage that was terminated by dissolution more than four years before the death [Fam. Code § 802].

[3] Application to Salaries, Wages, and Other Earnings

[a] Earnings While Parties Living Together

Under the general rule that the time of acquisition of property governs its character (§ 122.32[3]), the earnings of each spouse before marriage are separate property and the earnings of both spouses during marriage while living together are community property [Fam. Code §§ 760, 770; Odone v. Marzocchi (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 431, 437-438, 211 P.2d 297 ; but see Fam. Code § 911 (prescribing conditions under which married person's earnings will not be liable for spouse's premarital debts, as discussed in Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation)]. Thus, money earned before, but collected after, marriage is separate property of the spouse earning it [Thomasset v. Thomasset (1953) 122 Cal. App. 2d 116, 123, 264 P.2d 626] . Fringe benefits of employment, such as veteran's education benefits, are also separate property if they are earned entirely by employment before marriage, even if they are received after marriage [In re Marriage of Shea (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 713, 716-717, 169 Cal. Rptr. 490] . Similarly, money earned during marriage and represented by accounts receivable at the time of separation constitutes community property and is subject to division on dissolution [In re Marriage of House (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 578, 579-580, 123 Cal. Rptr. 451 ; Winn v. Winn (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 184, 189, 299 P.2d 721 ; for discussion of dividing businesses and professional practices, see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation].

The character of earnings as community property is not controlled by their form. Thus, for example, stock given in lieu of salary [Pope v. Pope (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 353, 365, 227 P.2d 867] , as well as more traditional forms, such as salary or wages, constitute community property when earned during marriage.

The parties to a marriage may contract to treat the earnings of either or both as separate property of the earning spouse [see Fam. Code §§ 721, 850, 1500, 1620, 3580; see generally § 122.34[1], for discussion of factors affecting validity of transmutation of community to separate property]. Such an agreement may be evidenced by a formal written premarital contract, by a formal interspousal contract, by a marital termination agreement in contemplation of marital dissolution or legal separation, or, at least before January 1, 1985, by acts or conduct of a spouse relinquishing his or her community property right in the other spouse's earnings and indicating that the spouse does not regard the earnings of the other as community property [In re Marriage of Jafeman (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 244, 260, 105 Cal. Rptr. 483 ; Sbarbaro v. Rosa (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 584, 587, 120 P.2d 151 ; see Fam. Code § 852]. For discussion of agreements respecting property, see Kirkland, Lurvey & Richmond, California Family Law Practice and Procedure, chs. 200- 216 (Matthew Bender).

[b] Earnings While Parties Separated

[i] Controlling Principles

The earnings and accumulations of a spouse and the minor children living with, or in the custody of, the spouse, while living separate and apart from the other spouse, are separate property [Fam. Code § 771; see In re Marriage of Bouquet (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 583, 591-594, 128 Cal. Rptr. 427, 546 P.2d 1371 (holding former Civ. Code § 5118 retroactive); but see Fam. Code § 771(b) (preserving minor's earnings under certain entertainment and sports contracts as property of minor)]. Thus, for example, when a wife's contract with her employer called for seven yearly payments, the payments made for the years after the parties separated were the wife's separate property [Garfein v. Garfein (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 155, 159, 93 Cal. Rptr. 714] . Similarly, variable incentive pay awarded to a husband in exchange for his promise to remain in the Army constituted his separate property because it was paid after the parties separated as compensation for services to be performed in the future [In re Marriage of Wicks (1978) (80 Cal. App. 3d 329, 333-334, 145 Cal. Rptr. 496] . However, income generated after separation as the result of a spouse's skill, efforts, and industry during marriage is not a spouse's separate property, but is equitably apportioned to the community [see In re Marriage of Zaentz (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 154, 164-167, 267 Cal. Rptr. 31 ; for further discussion, see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation].

Nevertheless, although the earnings of a separated spouse are generally treated as that spouse's separate property, the court, in enforcing an order for spousal support is required by statute to resort first to the earnings, income, or accumulations of either spouse, while living separate and apart from the other spouse, which would have been community property if the spouses were living together [Fam. Code § 4338(a); cf. Fam. Code § 4008 (property that may be subject to satisfaction for child support obligation)]. This rule became effective January 1, 1975, and support payments for which a spouse is obligated after that date are chargeable first to that spouse's separate earnings, income, or accumulations [In re Marriage of Tammen (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 927, 933, 134 Cal. Rptr. 161] .

[ii] Earnings and Accumulations

"Earnings" is broader in scope than wages and salary. It can include income derived from carrying on a business as a sole proprietor when the income is the fruit or reward for the spouse's labor and services without the aid of capital [In re Marriage of Imperato (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 432, 437, 119 Cal. Rptr. 590 ; see Sukoff v. Lemkin (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 740, 746, 249 Cal. Rptr. 42] . It also has been held that payments due a spouse under a "play or pay" contract, under which the spouse was paid to refrain from performing for anyone except his or her employer during the period of the contract, constituted earnings [Garfein v. Garfein (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 155, 159, 93 Cal. Rptr. 714] .

If the parties own community property shares in a corporation and the corporation increases in value due to the efforts of a spouse and other employees in the corporation, ordinarily any increase in the value of the shares after separation will be considered to be earnings of the corporation and not the spouse. Thus, the postseparation increase in the value of the shares will be divided as community property at trial [In re Marriage of Aufmuth (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 446, 463-464, 152 Cal. Rptr. 668 , disapproved in part, In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 815, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285] .

If, however, one spouse is the sole shareholder of a community property corporation and there is evidence that the corporation had not been treated by the parties as a separate entity, the court may disregard the corporate entity and treat the business as a sole proprietorship. Thus, the increase in the corporation's net worth from the time of separation to the time of trial would be treated as the shareholder spouse's separate property [In re Marriage of Imperato (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 432, 437-440, 119 Cal. Rptr. 590] . For discussion of small businesses and professional practices, including closely held corporations, see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

"Accumulations" means any property that a person acquires and retains, without regard to the means by which it is obtained [Union Oil Co. v. Stewart (1910) 158 Cal. 149, 156, 110 P. 313] . The term "accumulation" includes proceeds of a postseparation loan, unless the loan is obtained in exchange for community property. For example, proceeds of a postseparation loan obtained from a community corporation and secured by a community pension trust were held not to be a postseparation accumulation. The court ruled that the proceeds were sufficiently related to community assets to be community property. In addition, the promissory note for the loan did not limit recourse by the creditor to the debtor's separate property [In re Marriage of Stephenson (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1057, 1084-1085, 209 Cal. Rptr. 383] .

[iii] Living Separate and Apart

As contemplated by Family Code Section 771, "living separate and apart" refers not to a case in which spouses are residing temporarily in different places because of economic or social reasons [In re Marriage of Marsden (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 426, 434-436, 181 Cal. Rptr. 910 ; Kerr v. Kerr (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 12, 17-18, 5 Cal. Rptr. 630] , but only to that condition in which spouses have come to a parting of the ways with no present intention of resuming marital relations, and in which there is conduct evidencing a complete and final break in the marital relationship [In re Marriage of von der Nuell (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 730, 732, 734-736, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 447 ; In re Marriage of Imperato (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 432, 435-436, 119 Cal. Rptr. 590] .

For further discussion of this concept, see § 122.21[3][b][i].

[iv] Parties Legally Separated

After entry of a judgment of legal separation of the parties, the earnings or accumulations of each spouse are the separate property of the spouse acquiring the earnings or accumulations [Fam. Code § 772]. However, this rule apparently does not apply when the spouses reconcile instead of living separate and apart after the judgment [see Cochran v. Cochran (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 339, 352, 91 Cal. Rptr. 630 (spouses reconciled after then-applicable interlocutory judgment was entered)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawCommunity PropertyGeneral OverviewFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationMarital PropertyFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationSeparate PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesCommunity PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesSeparate Property

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. General Characterization Principles

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.33

§ 122.33 Effect of Form of Title

[1] Relevance of Title to Characterization

[a] An Overview

Title, or record ownership, of property is a relevant consideration in its characterization. However, the significance of title is evaluated in the context of other applicable characterization principles, as well as in the context of actions the spouses may have taken to alter the property's character [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Grinius (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1179, 1189-1190, 212 Cal. Rptr. 803 (presumption from sole title was superseded by general community presumption after premarital agreement lapsed)]. The characterization issues concerning title that are most frequently disputed include the following:

(1) The extent to which the common law presumption that title reflects actual ownership should apply in the face of another applicable characterization principle, such as the community presumption arising from acquisition of property during marriage [see Fam. Code § 760; for discussion, see § 122.33[1][b]];

(2) The presumption of undue influence that arises between persons--such as spouses--who share a confidential relationship, when one person gains an advantage over the other in a transaction [see In re Marriage of Delaney (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 991, 995, 998-999, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 378 ; In re Marriage of Haines (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 277, 287, 293-294, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 673] .

(3) The "joint form-community property" presumption set forth by statute [see Fam. Code §§ 2580, 2581], as discussed in § 122.33[4]; and

(4) The "joint tenancy residence-community property" presumption set forth under prior law, as discussed in § 122.35[4][c][i] et seq. [see former Civ. Code § 5110].

Because many of the rules governing title have developed in the context of, and been applied specifically to, real property transactions, the discussion hereafter frequently makes reference to real property. However, unless otherwise indicated, the discussion should also apply to personal property, to the extent that ownership of such property is evidenced by written title.

Special statutory provisions generally govern accounts of married persons in bank, savings, and similar accounts in financial institutions [see Prob. Code § 5100 et. seq.; Prob. Code § 5305; see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation]. Other provisions may affect property titles and ownership concern nonprobate transfers of community property on the death of a married person [see generally Fam. Code § 853; Prob. Code § 5014(a); see also Prob. Code § 5010 et seq.; see § 122.56].

[b] Common-Law Presumption That Title Reflects Ownership

A common-law presumption that may affect property characterization is that title to property reflects its actual ownership; or, stated conversely, that the ownership interest is as stated in the title [see In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 813, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285 ; see also Evid. Code § 662; In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 222-224, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891 ; In re Marriage of Brooks & Robinson (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 176, 184-192, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 624 ; In re Marriage of Haines (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 277, 291-292, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 673 ; cf. Estate of Petersen (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1742, 1747, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449 ; Estate of England (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1, 5, 284 Cal. Rptr. 361 (application of presumption on death of spouse)]. Before the enactment of statutory presumptions regarding the ownership of property in jointly held title, which apply only for the purpose of marital dissolution or legal separation [see former Civ. Code § 5110 (regarding joint tenancy residence); Fam. Code §§ 2580, 2581], a "common law form of title" presumption was raised when title to property specified a form of coownership, such as joint tenancy, between the spouses. Courts said that the "affirmative act of specifying a form of ownership in the conveyance of title" removes the property from the more general community presumption [see Fam. Code § 760] that arises from acquisition of property during marriage [see In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 813-815, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285] .

Accordingly, when dissolution or legal separation proceedings are not involved, such as in proceedings on the death of a spouse or with respect to third party creditors during an ongoing marriage, this "common law form of title" presumption may be raised [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Brooks & Robinson (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 176, 184-192, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 624 (proceeding to set aside conveyance to third party); Estate of Gallio (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 592, 596, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 470 (probate proceeding); Estate of Petersen (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1742, 1747, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449 (probate proceeding); Estate of Blair (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 161, 167, 244 Cal. Rptr. 627 (probate proceeding)]. For discussion of possible application of this presumption to property acquired during marriage in sole title, see § 122.33[2][a] et seq.

[2] Effect of Sole Title

[a] Resolving Potential Conflict in Presumptions

A spouse's acquisition of property in sole title during marriage presents a potential conflict in legal presumptions [see In re Marriage of Haines (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 277, 287, 292, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 673] . The "common law form of title" presumption raises a presumption of separate ownership in the titleholder [see In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 813, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285 ; see also Evid. Code § 662 (owner of legal title is presumed to be owner of full beneficial title); In re Marriage of Brooks & Robinson (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 176, 184-192, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 624 (proceeding to set aside conveyance to third party); Estate of Gallio (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 592, 597, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 470 (probate proceeding)]. Conversely, the general statutory presumption applicable to property acquired during marriage provides that this property is presumed to be community property [see Fam. Code § 760].

The act of taking title to property in the name of one spouse during marriage with the other spouse's consent effectively removes that property from the general community property presumption, and the property is presumably the separate property of the spouse in whose name title is taken [In re Marriage of Brooks & Robinson (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 176, 186-187, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 624 (form-of-title presumption does not apply when spouse who is not record title holder was unaware that title was taken solely in other spouse's name)]. The party asserting that title is other than as stated in the deed has the burden of proving that fact by clear and convincing evidence. The form-of-title presumption can be overcome only by clear and convincing evidence of an agreement or understanding between the parties that the title specified in the deed is not what the parties intended [In re Marriage of Brooks & Robinson (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 176, 189-190, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 624] . The presumption is not overcome by tracing the source of the funds used to purchase the property to community earnings, by the fact that the parties were married at the time one spouse acquired the property, by the other spouse's unilateral belief that the property belonged to both of them, or by an assertion that title was taken in one spouse's name only to facilitate financing of the property [In re Marriage of Brooks & Robinson (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 176, 190-192, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 624] .

However, when one spouse gains an advantage over the other in a property transaction--thereby raising a presumption of undue influence--it is improper to apply the common-law form of title presumption in order to characterize the property. For example, when a husband refused to cosign an automobile loan until his wife deeded to him (in sole title) her share of the parties' jointly held real property, the common law form of title presumption was held inapplicable and the deed transferring the real property was ordered set aside. Such a purported transmutation is subject to the fiduciary standards to which spouses are bound as a matter of law, and public policy dictates that the common-law form of title presumption, and its "clear and convincing" standard of proof [see Evid. Code § 662], not be applied when it conflicts with the presumption that the parties must deal fairly with each other [In re Marriage of Haines (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 277, 287, 301, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 673] .

In the absence of undue influence, some courts have used the common-law form of title presumption to characterize property conveyed in sole title between the spouses during marriage [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Broderick (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 489, 496-497, 257 Cal. Rptr. 397 (quitclaim deed from wife raised presumption from form of title that husband owned home as separate property); In re Marriage of Stitt (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 579, 585, 195 Cal. Rptr. 172 (deed to wife "as an unmarried woman" raised rebuttable presumption that spouses intended property to be held as of record title, but presumption was overcome by understanding about reconveyance)]. The common-law title presumption may also apply in actions between a spouse and a third party, such as a creditor, assuming that the property has not been placed in sole title to defraud that party [cf. Hansford v. Lassar (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 364, 371-375, 125 Cal. Rptr. 804 (joint tenancy presumption raised by title was overcome by evidence that property was actually community; whether husband's quitclaim to wife effectively transferred his interest depended on his intention to defraud third party creditor); see § 122.34[1] et seq.].

In addition, if one spouse has acquired legal title under circumstances that otherwise make the acquisition separate property, the "common-law form of title presumption" may apply. For example, the presumption that title reflects ownership was raised when title to a residence that a spouse acquired before marriage in joint tenancy with her parents ripened into sole title after both parents died [see In re Marriage of Weaver (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 478, 486, 273 Cal. Rptr. 696 (court applied Evid. Code § 662 presumption that legal titleholder is full beneficial owner and its rebuttal standard to determine whether marital transmutation occurred); but see In re Marriage of Haines (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 277, 300, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 673 (disagreeing with Weaver's implied holding that Evid. Code § 662 applies to marital proceedings regardless of any conflict with statutes imposing fiduciary duty in spousal transactions)]. Similar treatment of gift property is discussed in § 122.33[2][b].

For a general discussion of property transmutation [see generally Fam. Code § 850 et seq. (applicable to transmutations on and after January 1, 1985)], see § 122.34.

[b] Gift in Sole Title

If, during marriage, a "gift, devise, or bequest" of property is made to one spouse in sole title, the recipient may assert the separate nature of that interest [Fam. Code § 770(a)(2)]. In that situation, the donative nature of the transfer confers separate ownership [see Fam. Code § 770(a)(2)]. The recipient's form of title is also consistent with separate ownership to the extent that the "common-law form of title" presumption would otherwise apply. When the transferor is someone other than a spouse, such as a parent of the transferee, donative intent often is not disputed, particularly if the transfer is by will.

However, when the transferor is a spouse, the issue of whether a transfer in sole title during marriage was actually intended to be a gift may be more problematic. Courts have held that when a spouse uses either community property or his or her own separate property to purchase property in the name of the other spouse alone, this gives rise to a rebuttable presumption of a gift to that spouse. However, the form of the instrument of title is not conclusive and rebuttal evidence may be introduced to establish a gift was not intended [see In re Marriage of Frapwell (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 597, 600-601 , appeal after remand 53 Cal. App. 3d 479 ; see also In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 818, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285 (discussing motor home); De Boer v. De Boer (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 500, 505, 244 P.2d 953] .

While this view of presumptive donative intent appears to remain valid, the underlying case law was established before the enactment of the current statutes governing property transmutations (see § 122.34[1] et seq.), and the effect of these statutes on the gift presumption discussed above is presently unclear. If the transmutation statutes are held applicable, evidence of a qualifying written declaration by a transferor spouse may need to be presented to raise the gift presumption when a spouse uses community property or his or her own separate property to purchase property in the other spouse's name alone. For example, an automobile that the wife purchased during the marriage with her separate property funds, which she gifted to her husband, was not transmuted to the husband's separate property by virtue of the gift. It was not made in writing as required by Fam. Code § 852(a) for a valid transmutation, and it did not come within the exception to the writing requirement provided by Fam. Code § 852(c) for gifts that are tangible articles of a personal nature and are not substantial in value [In re Marriage of Buie & Neighbors (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 1170, 1173-1174, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 387] .

[c] Rule for Wife's Pre-1975 Acquisitions

When property has been acquired by a married woman before January 1, 1975, in her own name by an instrument in writing, a statutory presumption exists that the property is her separate property, unless a different intention was expressed in the instrument, or other exceptions apply [see Fam. Code § 803; In re Marriage of Ashodian (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 43, 46-47, 157 Cal. Rptr. 555] . For discussion of this presumption, see § 122.32[3][c].

[3] Community Presumption From "Husband and Wife" Title

Pursuant to statute, property acquired by spouses during marriage by an instrument in which the spouses are described as husband and wife is presumed to be community property, unless a different intention is expressed in the instrument [Fam. Code § 803(c); see Estate of Petersen (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1742, 1747, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449 (in probate case, when title was held in spouses' names as "husband and wife, as joint tenants," community presumption arising from "husband and wife" title was rebutted by joint tenancy form of title); cf. Fam. Code § 11 (stating, in general, effect of references to husbands and wives)]. This "husband and wife" presumption applies both as between the spouses in domestic relations proceedings, and as between either or both spouses and a third party creditor [see Abbett Electric Corp. v. Storek (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1460, 1466-1467, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 845 (designation of parties as joint tenants, in addition to designation as husband and wife, showed "different intention," in action by third party creditor)]. The presumption is set forth in the statute following language that concerns property acquired by a married woman in her own name before January 1, 1975. It is one of three express presumptions pertaining to such property [see Fam. Code § 803], as discussed in § 122.32[3][c].

However, courts have not strictly limited the application of the "husband and wife" presumption to pre-January 1, 1975, property. Therefore, it appears to provide an independent basis for raising a community presumption with respect to a particular acquisition during marriage, in the absence of another controlling presumption [see In re Marriage of Cairo (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1255, 1260, 251 Cal. Rptr. 731 ; In re Marriage of Witt (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 103, 105, 108, 242 Cal. Rptr. 646 ; see also In re Marriage of Fabian (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 440, 446, 224 Cal. Rptr. 333, 715 P.2d 253] .

Before the enactment of the statutory "joint form-community property" presumption [see Fam. Code §§ 2580, 2581], courts held that the "husband and wife" presumption could be rebutted by evidence of a contrary written or oral understanding or agreement of the parties [see In re Marriage of Fabian (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 440, 446, 224 Cal. Rptr. 333, 715 P.2d 253 ; In re Marriage of Buol (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 751, 762, 218 Cal. Rptr. 31, 705 P.2d 354 ; In re Marriage of Cademartori (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 970, 975-976, 174 Cal. Rptr. 292] . Currently, the "joint form-community property" presumption applies in proceedings to divide property on marital dissolution or legal separation when title is held in tenancy in common, joint tenancy, tenancy by the entirety, or as community property [see Fam. Code §§ 2580, 2581]. Arguably, this "joint form-community property" presumption may subsume transfers in which the parties are described only as "husband and wife" without any other expression of co-ownership, although this has not been addressed in the reported cases. If the "joint form-community property" presumption in fact applies, it must be rebutted by proof either that the parties made a written agreement that the property is separate property, or that there is a clear statement in the deed or other documentary evidence of title that the property is separate [see Fam. Code § 2581].

However, even if this argument is accepted, there are circumstances in which the "joint form-community property presumption" of Fam. Code § 2581] is not otherwise applicable, either because of decisional law or its own statutory limitations [see Fam. Code §§ 2580, 2581; In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 222-223, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891] , or because the proceedings do not involve dissolution--such as the proceeding involving spouses and a third party creditor, or the death of a spouse during marriage--in which the community presumption from title simply as "husband and wife" may still be subject to rebuttal by evidence of a common understanding or agreement. The reported cases have not yet ruled definitively on this issue.

In any event, many spouses may have acquired property with respect to which the "joint form-community property" presumption applies, and who have taken title that specifies both one of the enumerated "joint forms" and describes the titleholders as "husband and wife." For example, title may have been taken during marriage as "husband and wife, as joint tenants." Arguably, in such cases, the "joint form-community property" presumption [see Fam. Code §§ 2580, 2581] will apply on dissolution or legal separation, irrespective of the presence of the "husband and wife" designation, or of whether this designation alone is a "joint form" under the statute [see Fam. Code §§ 2580, 2581; In re Marriage of Cairo (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1255, 1260, 251 Cal. Rptr. 731 ; see also Estate of Petersen (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1742, 1747, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449 (in probate case, when title was held in spouses' names as "husband and wife, as joint tenants," community presumption arising from "husband and wife" title was rebutted by joint tenancy form of title)].

[4] Community Presumption From Joint Title Form

[a] Overview of Statutory Presumption

[i] Nature of Presumption

Current law establishes a presumption for the purpose of dividing property on dissolution of marriage or legal separation that property acquired by the spouses during marriage in joint form, including any of the joint titles specified below, is community property. The presumption is one affecting the burden of proof and may be rebutted by either: (1) a clear statement in the deed or other documentary evidence of title by which the property is acquired that the property is separate, and not community, property; or (2) proof that the parties have made a written agreement that the property is separate property [see Fam. Code § 2581; see also former Civ. Code § 4800.1; In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10

Cal. 4th 1211, 1216-1217, 1221 n.8, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349] . Neither tracing, nor an oral or implied agreement, is sufficient to rebut the presumption [In re Marriage of Weaver (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 858, 865, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 121 ; In re Marriage of Haines (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 277, 291, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 673 ; see In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 1217, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349 (discussing trial court's finding that there was no agreement that joint tenancy realty in dispute was husband's separate property)].

This presumption is raised by acquisition of property by the spouses during marriage in any of the following joint title forms [see Fam. Code § 2581; see also former Civ. Code § 4800.1; In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 1225 n.10, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349] :

- Joint tenancy, as discussed in § 122.33[4][d];
- Tenancy in common;
- Community property;
- Community property with a right of survivorship; or
- Tenancy by the entirety, a common law title form that is not available in California, but one that may have been included in the statutory presumption to account for ownership of out-of-state property in that form [see Civ. Code § 682; Swan v. Walden (1909) 156 Cal. 195, 196-197, 103 P. 931 ; accord, Delanoy v. Delanoy (1932) 216 Cal. 23, 26, 13 P.2d 513 ; Tischhauser v. Tischhauser (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 252, 256, 298 P.2d 551] .

The "joint form-community property" presumption does not preclude spouses from holding property as true joint tenants or tenants in common [see Fam. Code § 750]. In fact, when division of the property in family law litigation is not in issue, the "joint form-community property" presumption does not apply [see Fam. Code § 2581], and, in general, the law rebuttably presumes that the parties' interests are as set forth in the title. This affects the ability of third party creditors to reach the property, and has implications for probate proceedings on the death of a spouse [see generally Estate of Blair (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 161, 167, 244 Cal. Rptr. 627 ; see also Dorn v. Solomon (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 650, 652-653, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 311 ; Abbett Electric Corp. v. Storek (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1460, 1466-1467, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 845 (in third party creditor's action, fact that residence held in joint tenancy was previously listed as community property in "status" only dissolution, did not preclude finding that residence was joint tenancy of parties, with each party having one-half separate property interest); Hansford v. Lassar (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 364, 372, 125 Cal. Rptr. 804] .

However, in litigating the division of such jointly titled property, a spouse who claims that the property is entirely his or her own separate property, or that he or she has a separate half interest in true joint tenancy or tenancy in common property, must overcome the "joint form-community property" presumption [see Fam. Code § 2581]. Even if any community presumption is overcome, courts have jurisdiction to divide true joint tenancy or tenancy in common property, on a party's request, in marital dissolution or legal separation proceedings [see Fam. Code § 2650], as discussed in Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

Note additionally that, apart from the foregoing general presumption regarding property held in joint form, a special community presumption may apply to bank, savings, and similar accounts held by spouses in various forms of common ownership [see Prob. Code §§ 5203(a)(4), (6), 5305], which is discussed in Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

For discussion of the applicability of the "joint form-community property" presumption, including circumstances under which prior law may apply and other limitations, see § 122.33[4][a][iii]. Operation of the presumption is generally discussed in § 122.33[4][b], and application of the presumption specifically to joint tenancy property is discussed in § 122.33[4][c]. For discussion of statutory provisions for separate property reimbursement for contributions to the acquisition of community property, see § 122.33[4][a][ii], and Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation , [see Fam. Code § 2640]. For discussion of the effect of a spouse's death during dissolution or legal separation proceedings on the application of the presumption, § 122.33[4][a][iv].

[ii] Relationship to Reimbursement Statute

In dividing the parties' community property on marital dissolution or legal separation, a court is required to order reimbursement for separate property contributions to the acquisition of the community property at issue, unless the contributing party has made a written waiver of the reimbursement right or signed a writing that has the effect of a waiver [see Fam. Code § 2640(a), (b); former Civ. Code § 4800.2]. This reimbursement right arises regardless of whether the court determines that the property is community on the basis of the "joint form-community property" presumption [see Fam. Code §§ 2580, 2581] or by applying some other characterization principle [see Fam. Code § 2640(a), (b); former Civ. Code § 4800.2]. In other words, it applies to all community property on division [In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 1225, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349 ; In re Marriage of Weaver (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 858, 865, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 121 (even if property held in joint tenancy loses its separate property characterization under Fam. Code § 2581, spouse who contributed separate property to acquisition of property held in joint title has right to reimbursement on dissolution, absent written waiver of right to reimbursement); but see In re Marriage of Koester (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1032, 1036-1037, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 76 (Fam. Code § 2640 was not meant to apply to separate property businesses incorporated during marriage)].

For example, when a husband contributes his separate property interest in real property, which he acquired by gift during the marriage, to the parties' acquisition of their community property, joint tenancy interest in the property, the husband is entitled to reimbursement for the equity value of his separate property contribution on dissolution of the marriage. The husband and wife are each entitled to one-half of the value of the remaining community property interest in the property [In re Marriage of Weaver (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 858, 861, 869, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 121] . In Weaver, the appellate court noted that by adding his wife's name to the deed for the property, the husband indicated his intent to waive his separate property interest and to transmute the separate interest to community property. Allowing reimbursement in these circumstances makes the community property presumption of Fam. Code § 2581 meaningless, because the effect of allowing reimbursement under Fam. Code § 2640 is to negate the transfer of title to joint tenancy and the Section 2581 community property presumption. In effect, the joint tenancy deed becomes illusory in the event of dissolution of the marriage. Nevertheless, the court determined that it was compelled to construe Fam. Code § 2640 broadly to allow for real property contributions, unless there is a written statement, apart from a joint tenancy deed, which specifically waives the right to reimbursement [In re Marriage of Weaver (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 858, 870, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 121] .

However, the statute requiring reimbursement for contributions to acquisition of community property [Fam. Code § 2640(a), (b)] was first enacted as part of legislation [see Stats. 1983, ch. 342] that also included a "joint tenancy/community property" presumption [see former Civ. Code § 4800.1 (as originally enacted)], which became the predecessor of the current "joint form-community property" presumption [see Fam. Code § 2581]. The original legislation was popularly known as "anti-Lucas" legislation, because it was enacted primarily in response to the Supreme Court's Lucas decision [see In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285] , and it became the subject of numerous constitutional challenges to provisions it contained for retroactive application. Because of this common history and extensive litigation over the application of both statutes, they are frequently referred to together by courts and commentators. The proceedings to which both statutes apply and the circumstances under which prior law may apply are fully discussed in § 122.33[4][iii]. For discussion of the substantive requirements for application of the reimbursement provisions, see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

[iii] Operative Dates and Retroactivity

Subject to the limitations discussed below, the current versions of both the "joint form-community property" presumption [Fam. Code §§ 2580, 2581] and the statute requiring reimbursement for separate property contributions to acquisitions of community property [Fam. Code § 2640(b)] apply to all proceedings for marital dissolution or legal separation commenced on or after January 1, 1984 [Fam. Code § 2580(c)]. Conversely, neither applies with respect to property settlement agreements executed before January 1, 1987, or to proceedings in which judgments were rendered before January 1, 1987, regardless of whether those judgments have become final [Fam. Code § 2580(c); see also In re Marriage of Fabian (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 440, 450, 224 Cal. Rptr. 333, 715 P.2d 253 ; In re Marriage of Buol (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 751, 757, 218 Cal. Rptr. 31, 705 P.2d 354] . In addition, the separate property reimbursement statute [Fam. Code § 2640(b); see former Civ. Code § 4800.2.] may not be applied with respect to property acquired before January 1, 1984 [In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 1225, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349] .

However, as discussed hereafter, the "joint form-community property" presumption [Fam. Code §§ 2580, 2581] may be applied with respect to property acquired before January 1, 1984, so long as such retroactive application involves only an unvested right of survivorship [see In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 222-223, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891] .

These and other limitations [see Fam. Code § 2580(c)] on retroactive application of the statutory provisions developed following their original enactment. To facilitate understanding of these limitations, a brief examination of their chronological development is presented below.

The current "joint form-community property" presumption [Fam. Code §§ 2580, 2581] and the separate property reimbursement statute [Fam. Code § 2640(a), (b)] were first enacted in 1983 as Civ. Code §§ 4800.1 and 4800.2, respectively. At that time, former Civ. Code § 4800.1 only addressed joint tenancy property. It was later amended, operative January 1, 1987, to apply not only to joint tenancies, but to other jointly titled property acquired during marriage, and this "joint form" aspect of the presumption was continued in the Family Code version [see Fam. Code § 2581].

As originally enacted, both former Civ. Code §§ 4800.1 and 4800.2 applied to proceedings commenced on or after January 1, 1984, but the enacting legislation also provided that they applied to proceedings commenced before January 1, 1984, to the extent that proceedings on the division of property were not yet final on that date [see Stats. 1983, ch. 342, § 4]. However, the California Supreme Court held that retroactive application of both sections to proceedings commenced before January 1,1984, unconstitutionally impaired vested property rights without due process of law [see In re Marriage of Fabian (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 440, 450, 224 Cal. Rptr. 333, 715 P.2d 253 ; In re Marriage of Buol (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 751, 757, 218 Cal. Rptr. 31, 705 P.2d 354 ; see also In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 1213, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349 ; In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 222-223, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891] .

The Legislature then enacted urgency legislation, operative April 10, 1986, providing that (now former) Civ. Code §§ 4800.1 and 4800.2 applied "to proceedings commenced on or after January 1, 1984, regardless of the date of acquisition of property subject to the proceedings or the date of any agreement affecting the property" [Stats. 1986, ch. 49, § 1]. This legislation was also held unconstitutional when retroactively applied to property acquired before January 1, 1984 [see In re Marriage of Griffis (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 156, 166, 231 Cal. Rptr. 510 ; see In re Marriage of Hopkins & Axene (1987) 199 Cal. App. 3d 288, 289, 245 Cal. Rptr. 433] .

In August 1986, the Legislature again amended former Civ. Code § 4800.1 to provide that Civ. Code §§ 4800.1 and 4800.2, in the forms operative on January 1, 1987, "shall apply to all property held in joint title regardless of the date of acquisition of the property or the date of any agreement affecting the character of the property," and that the sections would apply to proceedings begun after January 1, 1984, unless property settlements or judgments had already been executed before January 1, 1987 [former Civ. Code § 4800.1(a)(3), as amended by Stats. 1986, ch. 539]. In 1988, appellate courts held this legislation unconstitutional as applied to property acquired before January 1, 1984 [In re Marriage of Bankovich (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 49, 54-56, 249 Cal. Rptr. 713 ; see also In re Marriage of Lockman (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 782, 786-787, 251 Cal. Rptr. 434 ; In re Marriage of Cairo (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1255, 1262-1266, 251 Cal. Rptr. 731] . Moreover, in 1990, former Civ. Code § 4800.2 was held unconstitutional as applied to quasi-community property acquired before January 1, 1984 [In re Marriage of Craig (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 683, 686-687, 268 Cal. Rptr. 396 (reimbursement for separate property contributions to out-of-state residence denied)].

However, the California Supreme Court, in In re Marriage of Hilke [In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891] , later upheld the retroactive application of former Civ. Code § 4800.1 to property acquired before January 1, 1984, in a proceeding involving joint tenancy property that was commenced after that date. The Court rejected the claim that such a retroactive application impairs a vested property right without due process of law. It reasoned that a vested property right is one not subject to a condition precedent, and a joint tenant's survivorship interest is subject to the condition precedent that he or she survive the other joint tenant. It concluded that a joint tenant has no present vested interest in being a surviving joint tenant [see In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal.4th 215, 222-223, 223 n.4, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891 ; see also In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 1217-1218, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349] .

Thus, it appears that so long as the retroactive application of the "joint form-community property" presumption only affects an unvested right, such as a right of survivorship, it may be applied to property acquired before January 1, 1984 [see In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 222-223, 223 n.4, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891] .

The Court in Hilke did not address former Civ. Code § 4800.2's applicability to property acquired before January 1, 1984 [see In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 222-224, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371 ,, 841 P.2d 891] . However, in In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349 , the Court held that former Civ. Code § 4800.2 and its Family Code successor [Fam. Code § 2640(a), (b)] may not constitutionally be applied to property acquired before January 1, 1984 [In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 1225, 44 Cal.Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349] , thereby validating a number of prior appellate decisions that had forbidden retroactive application of the reimbursement statute [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Bankovich (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 49, 54-56, 249 Cal. Rptr. 713] . Thus, a spouse who made a separate property contribution to the acquisition of community property before 1984 may not seek reimbursement for the contribution unless there was a qualifying reimbursement agreement, as provided under pre-1984 law [see In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 1218, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349 ; In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 816, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285] .

Note that the current Family Code provision purporting to govern retroactivity of the "joint-form-community property presumption" and the reimbursement statute [see Fam. Code §§ 2581, 2640(a), (b)] retains language from its (repealed) Civil Code predecessor that the California Supreme Court has now partially invalidated, as discussed above [see Fam. Code § 2580(c) (purporting to apply to all property held in joint title regardless of the date of acquisition of the property); see generally, In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 1225, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349] . Accordingly, counsel should apply the Family Code version with the above limitations in mind.

The Family Code also continues the substance of the former Civil Code provision, operative January 1, 1987, that the "joint form-community property" presumption and reimbursement statute apply to all property held in joint title "regardless of the date of any agreement affecting the character of the property"; except that these sections do not apply to property settlement agreements executed before January 1, 1987, or proceedings in which judgments were rendered before January 1, 1987, regardless of whether those judgments have become final [see Fam. Code § 2580(c); former Civ. Code § 4800.1(a)(3) (containing somewhat different language); In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 1221 n.8, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349 (noting existence of provision, but not ruling on it)].

[iv] Effect of Spouse's Death During Proceeding

The death of a spouse during a family law proceeding abates a cause of action for marital dissolution, but the court generally retains jurisdiction to take action to enforce rights actually adjudicated before the party's death [see McClenny v. Superior Court (1962) 62 Cal. 2d 140, 145, 41 Cal. Rptr. 460, 396 P.2d 916 ; In re Marriage of Lisi (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 1573, 1575, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 623] . Thus, for example, a party's death after a court has rendered a judgment of marital dissolution and retained jurisdiction to determine collateral property rights does not deprive the court of the power to divide the parties' property [see In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 220, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891 ; Kinsler v. Superior Court (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 808, 811-812, 175 Cal. Rptr. 564 ; see also Fam. Code § 2337(c)]. Thus, if a spouse dies while the proceeding is pending, the court will nevertheless be required to apply the "joint form-community property" presumption [Fam. Code §§ 2580, 2581] to qualifying jointly titled property if both of the conditions set forth below are met [see In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 220-221, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891 ; In re Marriage of Allen (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1225, 1226-1227, 1230-1231, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 916 ; cf. Fam. Code § 2040(c)]:

(1) The proceeding has been bifurcated, as discussed in Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure , and the parties' marital status has already been dissolved; and

(2) The court has reserved jurisdiction over the matter of dividing the property [see Fam. Code § 2337(c) (judgment dissolving marriage must expressly reserve jurisdiction for later determination of other pending issues)].

On the other hand, if a spouse dies after the filing of a petition for marital dissolution but before the parties' marital status has been terminated and the court's jurisdiction to decide collateral property rights reserved, the proceeding abates. In that instance, if the property at issue was held in joint tenancy title between the spouses, the interest of the deceased spouse would pass by operation of law to the survivor, absent an effective transmutation [In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 220, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891 ; see Estate of Blair (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 161, 167, 244 Cal. Rptr. 627 (wife died before entry of judgment respecting parties' marital status)].

One reported decision has held that even if marital status has been terminated and the court's jursidiction reserved to determine property rights, a probate court may determine that property titled in joint tenancy passes by operation of law under survivorship principles, because a "status-only dissolution" does not sever a joint tenancy title. However, that case involved parties who left their property in joint tenancy title for many years after their marital status was terminated and both parties had died before probate proceedings were brought to adjudicate rights in the property. No attempt had been made to substitute estate representatives as parties into the underlying family law case [Estate of Layton (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 1337, 1342-1344, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 251] . Although its ruling that a status-only dissolution judgment does not sever joint tenancy title seems uncontrovertible, commentators have criticized the case for its anomalous result in the light of In re Marriage of Hilke [see 1996 Cal.Fam.Law Monthly 147-148 (commentary of Prof. Grace Ganz Blumberg and Hon. James H. Libbey); see also In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 220-221, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891] , and it does not presently appear to be a strong basis for deviating from the analysis otherwise set forth above.

In view of these considerations, counsel may wish to advise his or her client to sever any joint tenancies, particularly in real property [see Civ. Code § 683.2], on commencing a family law proceeding to avoid the possible unintended passage of the client's interest to the other spouse.

Accounts held in joint tenancy in banks and similar financial institutions have additional specialized presumptions and rules that should be considered in relation to passage of title on death, as discussed in Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation [see Prob. Code §§ 5203(a)(4), (6), 5305].

[b] Operation of Presumption in General

The "joint form-community property presumption [Fam. Code §§ 2580, 2581] applies only for the purpose of dividing property on marital dissolution or legal separation. In general, it will apply for that purpose to property that was originally acquired during marriage in one of the qualifying joint title forms, as well as to property that was converted to joint title during marriage from another form, such as sole title [see In re Marriage of Rico (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 706, 710, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 659 ; In re Marriage of Taylor (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 471, 473-474, 206 Cal. Rptr. 557 ; In re Marriage of Anderson (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 572, 577, 579, 201 Cal. Rptr. 498 (both Taylor and Anderson disapproved on other grounds in In re Marriage of Buol (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 751, 764 n.10, 218 Cal. Rptr. 31, 705 P.2d 354 , and In re Marriage of Fabian (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 440, 451 n.13, 224 Cal. Rptr. 333, 715 P.2d 253)]. The presumption will not arise, however, with respect to property that was acquired before marriage in one of the non-community property joint title forms, such as joint tenancy [see In re Marriage of Leversee (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 891, 896-897, 203 Cal. Rptr. 481] . In other words, the taking of a qualifying joint title, whether as part of an original property transfer or a conversion of title, must have occurred during marriage in order for the transaction to constitute an acquisition during marriage that raises the presumption.

The motive for changing title to one of the joint title forms will not prevent the presumption from arising [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Martinez (1984)156 Cal. App. 3d 20, 29-31, 202 Cal. Rptr. 646 (joint tenancy created to obtain construction loan; disapproved on other grounds in In re Marriage of Buol (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 751, 764 n.10, 218 Cal. Rptr. 31, 705 P.2d 354 , and In re Marriage of Fabian (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 440, 451 n.13, 224 Cal. Rptr. 333, 715 P.2d 253); cf. In re Marriage of Perkal (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 1198, 1201, 250 Cal. Rptr. 296 (conversion to joint tenancy "for a gift" was not a waiver of separate property reimbursement right)], nor will the fact that one spouse's separate property was used to finance the purchase of the property [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Taylor (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 471, 473-474, 206 Cal. Rptr. 557 (disapproved on other grounds in In re Marriage of Buol (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 751, 764 n.10, 218 Cal. Rptr. 31, 705 P.2d 354 , and In re Marriage of Fabian (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 440, 451 n.13, 224 Cal. Rptr. 333, 715 P.2d 253)]. For discussion of apportioning separate and community interests in the family home, see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

[c] Application to Joint Tenancy Property

[i] Effect of Prior Law

The presumptions that have applied on marital dissolution or legal separation to property held in joint tenancy title have changed since the 1960's, when the first specialized presumption pertaining to such property was enacted [compare Fam. Code §§ 2580, 2581 with former Civ. Code §§ 164, 4800.1, 5110]. Because there are circumstances under which prior law may still apply, as discussed hereafter, an understanding of this law remains important.

Before mid-1965, based on the "common law presumption that title reflects ownership," courts had held that joint tenancy title in real or personal property raised a rebuttable presumption for all purposes, including divorce, that the parties intended a true joint tenancy form of ownership, even if the property had been purchased with community funds. Joint tenancy title thus raised a presumption that each spouse had a one-half interest in separate property. The form of title could be rebutted by evidence that the parties had a common understanding or agreement (written or oral) that their interests were other than as stated in the instrument of title. This presumption created characterization problems on divorce or legal separation, because a court could not award a house so held to one spouse for use as a family residence for that spouse and children, unless the presumption from joint tenancy title could be rebutted by evidence of an agreement or understanding [see In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 1215-1216, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349 ; In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 219, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891 ; In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 813-814, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285 ; see also Socol v. King (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 342, 346, 223 P.2d 627 ; Hansford v. Lassar (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 364, 373, 125 Cal. Rptr. 804] .

Accordingly, in 1965, legislation created a statutory presumption that single family residences acquired in joint tenancy during marriage were community property, for the "purpose of division of such property upon divorce or separate maintenance only" [Former Civ. Code § 164]. After passage of the Family Law Act [former Civ. Code § 4000 et seq.], this "joint tenancy residence-community property" presumption was set forth substantially unaltered in another Civil Code provision [see former Civ. Code § 5110]. The California Supreme Court has noted that the effect of this legislation was to change the presumptive form of ownership to that more closely matching the intent and assumptions of most spouses who acquire and hold their residences in joint tenancy. However, there was no indication that the Legislature intended to change the rules regarding the strength and type of evidence necessary to overcome the presumption arising from the form of title, namely, an agreement or understanding [In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 813-814, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285] .

Therefore, the "joint tenancy residence-community property presumption" of former law [former Civ. Code § 5110] was rebuttable by what came to be known as a "Lucas agreement," that is, by evidence that the parties had an express or implied oral or written understanding or agreement to the contrary. It was not rebuttable by merely tracing the source of funds used to acquire the property [see In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 814-815, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285] .

Conversely, if the parties did have an agreement or understanding that the contributing party would retain a separate interest in the property, the courts developed a formula that allowed the contributing party to receive a portion of any appreciation in the property's value. Under a formula derived from In re Marriage of Aufmuth [In re Marriage of Aufmuth (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 446, 456-457, 152 Cal. Rptr. 668 (disapproved in part in In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 815, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285] , a spouse who made a separate property down payment on a residence, for example, would receive a separate property interest in the property in the proportion that the down payment bore to the purchase price; the community would acquire that percentage interest that the community loan bore to the purchase price [see In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 816, 816 n.3, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285 (applying formula of In re Marriage of Aufmuth (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 446, 456-457, 152 Cal. Rptr. 668)]. For further discussion of Aufmuth apportionment, see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

In applying the joint tenancy presumption under this prior law, at least one court of appeal has noted that the law is unclear whether "property acquired by the parties during marriage" includes property to which only title was changed to joint tenancy for survivorship purposes, as opposed to an outright purchase during marriage. It appeared to imply that mere record title change does not constitute "acquisition" for purposes of this former statute, but it did not hold definitively on this issue [In re Marriage of Scherr (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 314, 318, 318 n.5, 222 Cal. Rptr. 872] . By contrast, courts interpreting the current "joint form-community property presumption" have generally found a change of record ownership during marriage to be an "acquisition," as discussed in § 122.33[4][b].

In 1983, primarily in response to In re Marriage of Lucas [In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285] , the Legislature enacted (now former) Civ. Code § 4800.1, which expanded the joint tenancy/community property presumption from single family residences to all property held in joint tenancy, for purposes of its division on dissolution of marriage or legal separation; but it required specified written evidence to overcome the presumption. This section was amended in 1986 to apply to all property acquired in "joint form," as discussed in § 122.33[4][iii] [see Fam. Code §§ 2580, 2581]. The 1983 legislation also enacted (now former) Civ. Code § 4800.2, which provided for reimbursement for separate property contributions to the acquisition of community property [see Fam. Code § 2640(a), (b)]. Both statutes were generally applicable to proceedings commenced on or after January 1, 1984, and case law indicated that neither could be applied retro 1996 Cal.Fam.Law Monthly 147-148 In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 220-221, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891] Civ. Code § 683.2 Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation Prob. Code §§ 5203(a)(4) Fam. Code §§ 2580 In re Marriage of Rico (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 706, 710, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 659 In re Marriage of Taylor (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 471, 473-474, 206 Cal. Rptr. 557 In re Marriage of Anderson (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 572, 577, 579, 201 Cal. Rptr. 498 In re Marriage of Buol (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 751, 764 n.10, 218 Cal. Rptr. 31, 705 P.2d 354 In re Marriage of Fabian (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 440, 451 n.13, 224 Cal. Rptr. 333, 715 P.2d 253 In re Marriage of Leversee (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 891,

896-897, 203 Cal. Rptr. 481] In re Marriage of Martinez (1984)156 Cal. App. 3d 20, 29-31, 202 Cal. Rptr. 646 In re Marriage of Buol (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 751, 764 n.10, 218 Cal. Rptr. 31, 705 P.2d 354 In re Marriage of Fabian (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 440, 451 n.13, 224 Cal. Rptr. 333, 715 P.2d 253 In re Marriage of Perkal (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 1198, 1201, 250 Cal. Rptr. 296 In re Marriage of Taylor (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 471, 473-474, 206 Cal. Rptr. 557 In re Marriage of Buol (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 751, 764 n.10, 218 Cal. Rptr. 31, 705 P.2d 354 In re Marriage of Fabian (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 440, 451 n.13, 224 Cal. Rptr. 333, 715 P.2d 253 Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation Fam. Code §§ 2580 In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 1215-1216, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349 In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 219, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891 In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 813-814, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285 Socol v. King (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 342, 346, 223 P.2d 627 Hansford v. Lassar (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 364, 373, 125 Cal. Rptr. 804] In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 813-814, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285] In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 814-815, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285] In re Marriage of Aufmuth (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 446, 456-457, 152 Cal. Rptr. 668 In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 803, 815, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285] In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 816, 816 n.3, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285 In re Marriage of Aufmuth (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 446, 456-457, 152 Cal. Rptr. 668 Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation In re Marriage of Scherr (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 314, 318, 318 n.5, 222 Cal. Rptr. 872] § 122.33[4][b] In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285] Civ. Code § 4800.1 § 122.33[4][iii] Fam. Code §§ 2580 Civ. Code § 4800.2 Fam. Code § 2640(a) (b) 1996 Cal.Fam.Law Monthly 147-148 In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 220-221, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891] Civ. Code § 683.2 Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation Prob. Code §§ 5203(a)(4) Fam. Code §§ 2580 In re Marriage of Rico (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 706, 710, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 659 In re Marriage of Taylor (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 471, 473-474, 206 Cal. Rptr. 557 In re Marriage of Anderson (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 572, 577, 579, 201 Cal. Rptr. 498 In re Marriage of Buol (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 751, 764 n.10, 218 Cal. Rptr. 31, 705 P.2d 354 In re Marriage of Fabian (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 440, 451 n.13, 224 Cal. Rptr. 333, 715 P.2d 253 In re Marriage of Leversee (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 891, 896-897, 203 Cal. Rptr. 481] In re Marriage of Martinez (1984)156 Cal. App. 3d 20, 29-31, 202 Cal. Rptr. 646 In re Marriage of Buol (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 751, 764 n.10, 218 Cal. Rptr. 31, 705 P.2d 354 In re Marriage of Fabian (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 440, 451 n.13, 224 Cal. Rptr. 333, 715 P.2d 253 In re Marriage of Perkal (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 1198, 1201, 250 Cal. Rptr. 296 In re Marriage of Taylor (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 471, 473-474, 206 Cal. Rptr. 557 In re Marriage of Buol (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 751, 764 n.10, 218 Cal. Rptr. 31, 705 P.2d 354 In re Marriage of Fabian (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 440, 451 n.13, 224 Cal. Rptr. 333, 715 P.2d 253 Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation Fam. Code §§ 2580 In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 1215-1216, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349 In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 219, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891 In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 813-814, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285 Socol v. King (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 342, 346, 223 P.2d 627 Hansford v. Lassar (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 364, 373, 125 Cal. Rptr. 804] In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 813-814, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285] In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 814-815, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285] In re Marriage of Aufmuth (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 446, 456-457, 152 Cal. Rptr. 668 In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 803, 815, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285] In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 816, 816 n.3, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285 In re Marriage of Aufmuth (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 446, 456-457, 152 Cal. Rptr. 668 Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation In re Marriage of Scherr (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 314, 318, 318 n.5, 222 Cal. Rptr. 872] § 122.33[4][b] In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285] Civ. Code § 4800.1 § 122.33[4][iii] Fam. Code §§ 2580 Civ. Code § 4800.2 Fam. Code § 2640(a) (b) 1996 Cal.Fam.Law Monthly 147-148 In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 220-221, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891] Civ. Code § 683.2 Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation Prob. Code §§ 5203(a)(4) Fam. Code §§ 2580 In re Marriage of Rico (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 706, 710, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 659 In re Marriage of Taylor (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 471, 473-474, 206 Cal. Rptr. 557 In re Marriage of Anderson (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 572, 577, 579, 201 Cal. Rptr. 498 In re Marriage of Buol (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 751, 764 n.10, 218 Cal. Rptr. 31, 705 P.2d 354 In re Marriage of Fabian (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 440, 451 n.13, 224 Cal. Rptr. 333, 715 P.2d 253 In re Marriage of Leversee (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 891, 896-897, 203 Cal. Rptr. 481] In re Marriage of Martinez (1984)156 Cal. App. 3d 20, 29-31, 202 Cal. Rptr. 646 In re Marriage of Buol (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 751, 764 n.10, 218 Cal. Rptr. 31, 705 P.2d 354 In re Marriage of Fabian (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 440, 451 n.13, 224 Cal. Rptr. 333, 715 P.2d 253 In re Marriage of Perkal (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 1198, 1201, 250 Cal. Rptr. 296 In re Marriage of Taylor (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 471, 473-474, 206 Cal. Rptr. 557 In re Marriage of Buol (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 751, 764 n.10, 218 Cal. Rptr. 31, 705 P.2d 354 In re Marriage of Fabian (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 440, 451 n.13, 224 Cal. Rptr. 333, 715 P.2d 253 Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation Fam. Code §§ 2580 In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 1215-1216, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349 In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 219, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891 In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 813-814, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285 Socol v. King (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 342, 346, 223 P.2d 627 Hansford v. Lassar (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 364, 373, 125 Cal. Rptr. 804] In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 813-814, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285] In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 814-815, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285] In re Marriage of Aufmuth (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 446, 456-457, 152 Cal. Rptr. 668 In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 803, 815, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285] In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 816, 816 n.3, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285 In re Marriage of Aufmuth (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 446, 456-457, 152 Cal. Rptr. 668 Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation In re Marriage of Scherr (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 314, 318, 318 n.5, 222 Cal. Rptr. 872] § 122.33[4][b] In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285] Civ. Code § 4800.1 § 122.33[4][iii] Fam. Code §§ 2580 Civ. Code § 4800.2 Fam. Code § 2640(a) (b)actively to proceedings commenced before that date. Some courts additionally suggested that these statutes could not be applied with respect to property acquired before that date [see In re Marriage of Bankovich (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 49, 54-56, 249 Cal. Rptr. 713] .

However, the California Supreme Court has applied (now former) Civ. Code § 4800.1 retroactively to joint tenancy property acquired before January 1, 1984. The Court found that such an application did not deprive a spouse of a vested property interest, because the spouse had a contingent survivorship interest as a joint tenant [see In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 222-224, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891] . Thus, if a proceeding is commenced on or after January 1, 1984, the current "joint form-community property presumption" that superseded Civ. Code § 4800.1 will generally apply, even if the joint tenancy property was acquired before that date, so long as such retroactive application affects only an unvested right of survivorship.

Nevertheless, because the Supreme Court has held that the separate property reimbursement statute [see Fam. Code § 2640(a), (b); former Civ. Code § 4800.2], may not be applied with respect to property acquired before January 1, 1984, the Aufmuth apportionment method discussed above may apply in a particular case to property acquired before that date. In addition, if the current "joint form-community property presumption" is applied, proof of a writing that meets the requirements of that statute would first have to be presented to overcome the community presumption raised by the joint tenancy title, rather than an "oral agreement or understanding" [In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 813, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285] as determined under former law.

[ii] Application of Current Statutory Presumption

The current "joint form-community property presumption" that applies in dividing property on dissolution of marriage or legal separation is an "umbrella" statute that applies not only to property held in joint tenancy, but also to property held in other joint forms, including community property, tenancy in common, and tenancy by the entirety, as discussed in § 122.33[4][a][i]. This community presumption may only be rebutted by either (1) a clear statement in the deed or other documentary evidence of title by which the property is acquired that the property is separate, and not community property, or (2) proof that the parties have made a written agreement that the property is separate property [Fam. Code § 2581].

With respect to real property, the current presumption applies without regard to whether the property is a single family residence, is unimproved, or otherwise [see In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 1215-1218, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349] . Of primary concern to counsel has been the long-term controversy over the retroactivity of this statutory presumption and its companion separate property reimbursement statute [see Fam. Code § 2640(a), (b); former Civ. Code § 4800.2] which resulted in amendments to the presumption and in many court decisions [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 1225, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349 ; In re Marriage of Fabian (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 440, 450, 224 Cal. Rptr. 333, 715 P.2d 253 ; In re Marriage of Buol (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 751, 757, 218 Cal. Rptr. 31, 705 P.2d 354 ; In re Marriage of Bankovich (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 49, 54-56, 249 Cal. Rptr. 713] . For a complete discussion of the resolution to date of the retroactivity issue, see § 122.33[4][a][iii].

For discussion of additional statutory limitations on the application of the "joint form-community property presumption, see § 122.33[4][a]. For discussion of the effect of a spouse's death during proceedings for marital dissolution on the application of the presumption, see § 122.33[4][a][iv].

Accounts held in joint tenancy in banks and similar financial institutions have additional specialized presumptions and rules that should be considered, as discussed in Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation , [see Prob. Code §§ 5203(a)(4), (6), 5305].

[5] Community Property With Right of Survivorship

As of July 1, 2001, spouses may hold title as "community property with right of survivorship," by a written instrument made on or after that date [Civ. Code § 682.1(c); Fam. Code § 750]. Community property, when expressly declared in a transfer document to be community property with a right of survivorship, and which may be accepted in writing on the face of the document by a statement signed or initialed by the grantees, passes to the survivor on death of one of the spouses without administration under the terms of the instrument, subject to the same procedures that apply to property held in joint tenancy [Civ. Code § 682.1(a)]. Before the death of either spouse, the right of survivorship may be terminated under the same procedures by which a joint tenancy may be severed [Civ. Code § 682.1(a)].

The passage of community property with a right of survivorship without administration is subject to Probate Code provisions regarding (1) nonprobate tranfers, (2) the right of the surviving spouse to dispose of community property, (3) liability for the debts of the deceased spouse, and (4) liability for the decedent's property [Civ. Code § 682.1(a); see Prob. Code §§ 5000 et seq., 13540 et seq., 13550 et seq., 13560 et seq.]. The provisions regarding community property with a right of survivorship do not apply to joint accounts in financial institutions governed by Prob. Code § 5100 et seq. [Civ. Code § 682.1(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawCommunity PropertyGeneral OverviewFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationMarital PropertyFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationSeparate PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesCommunity PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesSeparate Property

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. General Characterization Principles

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.34

§ 122.34 Transmutation of Property

[1] Nature of Transmutation

"Transmutation" denotes a conversion of the character of property from separate to community, or vice versa, or from one spouse's separate property to the other spouse's separate property, by means of transfer or agreement of the spouses [see Fam. Code § 850]. Transmutation requirements apply to interspousal transactions or agreements, rather than to spousal acquisitions of property from third parties [In re Summers (9th Cir. 2003) 332 F.3d 1240, 1244-1245 (federal bankruptcy decision)].

Subject to the limitations imposed by statute and case law discussed in §§ 122.34[2] and 122.34[3], married persons may transmute the character of their property in any of the following ways:

(1) From community to separate property of either spouse [Fam. Code § 850(a); see also Fam. Code § 852 (rules applicable to transmutations made on or after January 1, 1985); See v. See (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 778, 783, 51 Cal. Rptr. 888, 415 P.2d 776 (applying law prior to January 1, 1985); In re Marriage of Broderick (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 489, 496-497, 257 Cal. Rptr. 397 (transfer of family residence by quitclaim deed); In re Marriage of Stoner (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 858, 864, 195 Cal. Rptr. 351 (applying law prior to January 1, 1985)];

(2) From separate property of either spouse to community property [Fam. Code § 850(b); see also Fam. Code § 852 (rules applicable to transmutations made on or after January 1, 1985); In re Marriage of Holtemann (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1166, 1172-1175, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 385 ; Buzgheia v. Leasco Sierra Group (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 766, 770-771, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144 ; In re Marriage of Jafeman (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 244, 255, 105 Cal. Rptr. 483 (decided under law prior to January 1, 1985)];

(3) From separate property of one spouse to separate property of the other spouse [Fam. Code § 850(c); see also Fam. Code § 852 (rules applicable to transmutations made on or after January 1, 1985)].

The validity of a transmutation depends on a number of general factors. First, for most transmutations made on or after January 1, 1985, a writing is required by statute, along with other restrictions [see Fam. Code § 850 et seq. (discussed in § 122.34[3])], but transmutations made before then continue to be governed by former law [Fam. Code § 852(e) (discussed in § 122.34[2])]. Second, spouses are subject to special standards of disclosure towards one another with respect to property, which derive from the confidential and fiduciary relationship spouses occupy, and these standards apply in determining whether a transmutation has occurred [see Fam. Code §§ 721, 1100(e); In re Marriage of Delaney (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 991, 995-1000, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 378 (court may set aside purported gift of spouse's separate property to other spouse if transfer resulted from undue influence); In re Marriage of Barneson (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 583, 588, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 ; In re Marriage of Haines (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 277, 293, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 673 (competence of spouses to engage in transactions with each other is subject to the circumstances "being pleasing to the fiduciary standard"); for general discussion of spousal fiduciary duties, see § 122.51[4]]. Third, spouses are not permitted to transmute property to defraud creditors [see Fam. Code § 851; see Civ. Code § 3439.04(a); cf. State Board of Equalization v. Woo (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 481, 485, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 206 (wife's attempt to transmute her community property earnings to separate property after tax assessment against her husband was fraudulent transfer); Bailey v. Leeper (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 460, 465-466, 298 P.2d 684 (transfer of property from husband to wife)]. Fourth, the transmuting spouse must have an immediately enforceable interest in the property at the time of transmutation [see United States v. Chavez (9th Cir. 2003) 323 F.3d 1216, 1219 (property forfeiture divested spouse of ownership before transmutation took effect under terms of express declaration)]. Finally, under current law, a transmutation of real property, unless it is recorded, is not effective with respect to third parties who do not have notice of the transmutation, as discussed in § 122.34[3] [Fam. Code § 852(b) (applicable to transmutations made on or after January 1, 1985)].

Transmutations accomplished to qualify one or both spouses for certain state benefits, such as health care benefits, may be subject to special statutes. These must be consulted before a transmutation agreement is drafted to determine the effect of the agreement on eligibility for benefits [see, e.g., Welf. & Inst. Code § 14006.2 et seq. (eligibility for Medi-Cal benefits)]. In addition, special rules that apply generally to nonprobate transfers of community property made before, on, or after January 1, 1993, on the death of a married person, may also need to be considered in determining whether a transmutation has occurred, as discussed in § 122.56 [see Fam. Code § 853(c); Prob. Code § 5014(a); see also Prob. Code § 5010 et seq.].

For discussion of written agreements that may include provisions for transmutations of property during marriage, see Kirkland, Lurvey & Richmond, California Family Law Practice and Procedure, 2nd ed., Chs. 200-216 (Matthew Bender).

[2] Transmutations Prior to January 1, 1985

[a] Written or Oral Agreement Permitted

Transmutations of property made before January 1, 1985, are still governed by the law that existed before that date [Fam. Code § 852(e)]. Under that former law, a transmutation could be made by written or oral agreement [Estate of Wieling (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 106, 108, 230 P.2d 808 ; see Woods v. Security-First Nat. Bank (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 697, 701, 299 P.2d 657 ; Grappo v. Coventry Financial Corp. (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 496, 508, 286 Cal. Rptr. 714 (parties had express oral agreement that property purchased during marriage in own names would be separate property of spouse in whose name it was purchased); In re Marriage of Vanderbeek (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 224, 230, 222 Cal. Rptr. 832 (agreement to "share and share alike" all property, including husband's stock and stock options acquired before marriage); but see In re Marriage of Shaban (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 398, 406-407, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 863 (statute of frauds provisions existed for premarital agreements regardless of whether they were made before or after January 1, 1985, and parol evidence could not be received to provide material terms omitted in written agreement)]. No particular formalities were required for an effective transmutation agreement, except that the agreement must have been fair and based on full disclosure of the relevant facts [see Fam. Code § 721; Estate of Wilson (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 786, 798, 134 Cal. Rptr. 749] . The mutual consent of the spouses constituted sufficient consideration to support the transmutation [Estate of Wilson (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 786, 798, 134 Cal. Rptr. 749] .

[b] Transmutation Based on Circumstances

Even in the absence of an express written or oral agreement, a court may find that a transmutation of property occurred under pre-January 1, 1985, law if the circumstances clearly demonstrate that one spouse intended to effect a change in the status of his or her property [Beam v. Bank of America (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 12, 25, 98 Cal. Rptr. 137, 490 P.2d 257 ; In re Marriage of Jafeman (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 244, 255, 105 Cal. Rptr. 483 ; see In re Marriage of Broderick (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 489, 496-497, 257 Cal. Rptr. 397 (transfer of family residence by quitclaim deed)]. Conversely, when no intention to transmute the character of particular property has been established by the declarations or conduct of the parties, the property retains its original character [see In re Marriage of Jafeman (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 244, 257, 105 Cal. Rptr. 483 ; In re Marriage of Sparks (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 353, 356, 158 Cal. Rptr. 638] .

[c] Oral Transmutations of Real Property in General

Under prior law, despite the general requirement that transfers of interests in real property be made by written instrument [Civ. Code § 1091], an apparent "judicial exception to the statute of frauds" permitted spouses to orally transmute interests in real property [In re Marriage of Schoettgen (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1, 5-9, 227 Cal. Rptr. 748, 227 Cal. Rptr. 758 ; Branca and Steinberg, Antenuptial Agreements Under California Law: An Examination of Current Law and In re Marriage of Dawley, 11 U.S.F. L. Rev. 317, 323 n.25 (1977)]. An oral transmutation agreement was not effective to create a joint tenancy between the spouses in either community property or in the separate property of one spouse [see California Trust Co. v. Bennett (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 694, 697-698, 204 P.2d 324] , because the creation of a joint tenancy in either real or personal property requires a writing [see Civ. Code § 683]. A party could, however, orally transmute his or her separate real property into community property [In re Marriage of Schoettgen (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1, 5-9, 227 Cal. Rptr. 748, 227 Cal. Rptr. 758] .

For example, under prior law, one court held that substantial evidence supported a trial court's finding that a husband orally transmuted his interest in his deceased parents' real property from separate to community property. The parties had referred to the property as "ours," lived on it for many years, treated it as jointly owned property, and had gone to a county office in an aborted attempt to place title in both names [In re Marriage of Schoettgen (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1, 5-9, 227 Cal. Rptr. 748, 227 Cal. Rptr. 758] .

However, if one party holds legal title to property as his or her separate property and the other party claims that the property was orally transmuted to community property before 1985, the party claiming oral transmutation must prove it by "clear and convincing" evidence, as opposed to a "preponderance of the evidence" [In re Marriage of Weaver (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 478, 485-487, 273 Cal. Rptr. 696 ; see Evid. Code § 662 (owner of legal title rebuttably presumed to be owner of full beneficial title to property)]

[d] Effect of Joint Title Presumption

The writing requirement imposed by former Civ. Code § 4800.1 and its Family Code successor [Fam. Code §§ 2580, 2581] to rebut the community presumption raised by acquisition of property during marriage in joint title form may affect the law regarding transmutation of property, at least for purposes of proceedings for marital dissolution or legal separation. This writing requirement [§ 122.33[4]], which was first operative January 1, 1984, but applied in certain cases to property acquired before that date [see In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 222-223, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891] , may preclude a claim that property acquired during marriage in joint title form was orally transmuted before January 1, 1985, to another character.

However, if no family law proceeding for division of the property is involved, and a third-party creditor during marriage is seeking to attach or enforce a judgment against the property, the "joint form-community property" presumption raised by former Civ. Code § 4800.1 and its successor [Fam. Code §§ 2580, 2581] would not apply. Arguably, therefore, a purported oral transmutation prior to January 1, 1985, could be effective with regard to a third-party creditor if it was not undertaken to defraud the creditor. Similarly, the "joint form-community property presumption" ordinarily would not apply if a spouse died before dissolution of the parties' marital status [see In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 221, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891 (former Civ. Code § 4800.1 applied when, in bifurcated proceedings, court had terminated parties' marital status and reserved jurisdiction to determine property rights); Estate of Blair (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 161, 169-170, 244 Cal. Rptr. 627] . Thus, a purported pre-January 1, 1985, oral transmutation of jointly held property might be given effect in a probate proceeding [cf. In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 220, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891 (noting that if former Civ. Code § 4800.1 had not applied to the proceeding, the presumption arising from form of title was that parties were joint tenants and surviving husband would succeed to property by right of survivorship, absent a transmutation)].

[e] Statements in Wills

Prior to January 1, 1985, courts had held that a statement in a joint or companion will executed by a spouse, declaring all of the couple's property to be community, was effective to transmute the spouse's separate property to community [see In re Marriage of Lotz (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 379, 174 Cal. Rptr. 618 ; Estate of Wilson (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 786, 794, 134 Cal. Rptr. 749] . However, in 1990, a court of appeal ruled such a statement inadmissible as proof of transmutation in any proceeding commenced before the testator's death [In re Marriage of Weaver (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 478, 489-490, 273 Cal. Rptr. 696 (retroactively applying former Civ. Code § 5110.740, effective Jan. 1, 1985)]. This rule is now set forth by statute for transmutations, operative January 1, 1985 [see Fam. Code § 853(a) (continuing former Civ. Code § 5110.740(a)); Estate of Gallio (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 592, 598, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 470] , as discussed in § 122.34[3].

[3] Transmutations on or After January 1, 1985

[a] General Requirement of Writing

With limited exception, transmutations of real or personal property on or after January 1, 1985, must be made in writing by an express declaration [Fam. Code § 852(a) (discussed in § 122.34[3][b]); see, e.g., In re Marriage of Cross (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 1143, 1147-1148, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839 (no transmutation of wife's separate property residence to which husband made improvements)]. A transmutation may be made by the parties' agreement or transfer, with or without consideration [Fam. Code § 850].

However, an exception to the writing requirement exists for some interspousal gifts. Under the exception, the writing requirement does not apply to a gift between the spouses of clothing, wearing apparel, jewelry, or other tangible articles of a personal nature that are used solely or principally by the spouse to whom the gift is made and that are not substantial in value, taking into account the circumstances of the marriage [Fam. Code § 852(c); see In re Marriage of Steinberger (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1449, 1456, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 521 (diamond ring purchased with community funds was found to be substantial in value and was not the wife's separate property absent written transmutation)].

Furthermore, the writing does not affect the law governing characterization of property in which separate property and community property are commingled or otherwise combined [Fam. Code § 852(d)]. For discussion of commingling, see § 122.35. For further discussion of the writing requirement in the context of making an "express written declaration," see § 122.34[3][b].

[b] Express Declaration Requirement

To satisfy the statutory requirements for a transmutation made on or after January 1, 1985, the required writing must be in the form of an "express declaration that is made, joined in, consented to, or accepted by the spouse whose interest in the property is adversely affected" [Fam. Code § 852(a); see Estate of Bibb (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 461, 470, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 415 (DMV printout showing vehicle registered in names of husband and wife lacked any signatures of parties and did not meet statutory requirements for transmutation)]. The California Supreme Court, in Estate of MacDonald (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 262, 264, 272 Cal. Rptr. 153, 794 P.2d 911 , held that to be an "express declaration", the writing must contain language that expressly states that a change in the characterization or ownership of the property is being made. Although this does not require use of the term "transmutation" or any other particular term, it must be clear, without resort to extrinsic evidence, that the characterization or ownership of property is being changed [see Estate of MacDonald (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 262, 264, 272-273, 272 Cal. Rptr. 153, 794 P.2d 911 ; In re Marriage of Holtemann (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1166, 1172-1173, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 385 (word "transmutation" was stated repeatedly and pointedly in parties' agreement, leaving no doubt that, with advice of counsel, parties chose this unique and specific term of art); see, e.g., Estate of Bibb (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 461, 468-470, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 415 (deed by husband of "grant" of separate property interest in real property to himself and wife as joint tenants was valid transmutation, but unsigned DMV printout showing that vehicle previously registered in husband's name alone was reregistered in names of husband and wife was not valid transmutation); In re Marriage of Campbell (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1058, 1062-1065, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 580 (extrinsic evidence not admissible to establish oral transmutation; doctrine of equitable estoppel may not be invoked to circumvent writing requirement); In re Marriage of Barneson (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 583, 588, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 (husband's direction to "transfer" stock into wife's name and "journal" stock into wife's account were not transmutations); Estate of Petersen (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1742, 1749, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449 (account designation failed to satisfy "express declaration" requirement for transmutation of property)].

The California Supreme Court recently reaffirmed its decision in MacDonald, and held that there is no exception from the "express declaration" requirement of Fam. Code § 852(a) for partial performance of an agreement to transmute property [In re Marriage of Benson (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 1096, 1104-1111, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 471, 116 P.3d 1152] . It noted that Fam. Code § 852(a) is stated in the negative--i.e., an agreement to change the character of marital property is not valid unless it is in writing, contains an express declaration by which the transmutation is made, and is accepted in some fashion by the adversely affected spouse--as though all intendments weigh against finding compliance with the requirements for transmutation in the usual case. It also noted that no exception to the requirement of an "express" written declaration appears in Fam. Code § 852(a). Viewed as a whole, the Court concluded that these features suggest the legislature envisioned a standard for transmutations from which married couples could not freely depart [In re Marriage of Benson (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 1096, 1109-1110, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 471, 116 P.3d 1152] . The Court also concluded the writing requirement of Fam. Code § 852(a) cannot be satisfied when there is no writing at all about the subject property, and when a transmutation would have to be inferred from acts surrounding the parties' purported agreement [In re Marriage of Benson (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 1096, 1110-1111, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 471, 116 P.3d 1152] .

Nonprobate community property transfers that are to be effective on the transferor spouse's death are governed by Prob. Code §§ 5010-5023, which operate independently of the Family Code transmutation statutes. Under these Probate Code sections:

> (1) A spouse's written consent to a provision for a nonprobate transfer of community property on death generally is not a transmutation of the consenting spouse's interest in the property [see Prob. Code § 5022(a); see Estate of Petersen (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1742, 1752-1753, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449 (language in certain annuity contracts sufficed to establish nonprobate transfer, and not transmutation; but money market account description met neither "express declaration" requirement for transmutation, nor did it establish effective nonprobate transfer)];
>
> (2) A waiver of a right to a joint and survivor annuity or survivor's benefits under the federal Retirement Equity Act of 1984 [Pub. L. 98-397] is not a transmutation of the community property rights of the person executing the waiver [Fam. Code § 853(b)].

However, the legislation further provides that a written joinder or written consent to a nonprobate transfer of community property on death that satisfies the statute setting forth the transmutation writing requirements [see Fam. Code § 852] is a transmutation, and is governed by the law applicable to transmutations and not by the Probate Code sections that govern nonprobate transfers [see Fam. Code § 853(c); Prob. Code § 5022(b)]. For further discussion of nonprobate transfers on death, see § 122.56.

In determining whether a writing is a valid transmutation of property under MacDonald, an examination must be made of whether the rules governing fiduciary relationships between spouses have been complied with. Thus, although the requirements of Fam. Code § 852 are prerequisites to a valid transmutation, they do not alone necessarily determine whether a valid transmutation has occurred. The court must consider any issues relating to undue influence [In re Marriage of Barneson (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 583, 588, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 ; In re Marriage of Haines (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 277, 293-294, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 673] . In one court's view, for example, the MacDonald interpretation of the "express declaration" requirement "can be viewed as effectively creating a 'presumption' that transactions between spouses are not 'transmutations,' rebuttable by evidence the transaction was documented with a writing containing the requisite language [of Fam. Code § 852(a)]." Under this view, when the writing involves a transfer of an asset, such as stock, into a different name the transfer does not necessarily connote an intention to change beneficial ownership; there must be a clear indication in the writing of an intention to change ownership or characterization of the property. This could be done, that court concluded, by language "indicating [the transferor] was giving his interest in the [property (here, stocks)] to [the transferee]; ... even [by directing that the property be] transferred into [the transferee's] name 'as [the transferee's] sole and separate property' " [In re Marriage of Barneson (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 583, 593-594, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726] .

Similarly, it was held in another case that a DMV printout reflecting that a vehicle previously registered in a husband's name alone and reregistered in the names of husband and wife, did not contain a "clear and unambiguous expression of [the transferor's] intent to transfer his interest in the subject property." Therefore, it was not a valid transmutation [Estate of Bibb (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 461, 470, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 415] .

Likewise in In re Marriage of Starkman, the court held that a clause in a trust agreement, which provided that the property transferred to the trust was community property unless the transferor spouse identified it as separate property, was insufficient to create a transmutation to community property of the husband's separate property which he transferred to the trust and did not identify as separate property [In re Marriage of Starkman (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 659, 663-665, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 639] . Neither this provision, nor any other provision of the trust agreement, unambiguously established that the husband was effecting a change of ownership of his separate property by transferring it to the trust without designating it has his separate property. A transmutation might have been held to occur if the trust agreement had provided that any property a spouse transferred to the trust "becomes" or is "changed into" community property or if the trust agreement had provided that a purpose of the trust was to effect the transmutation of the parties' separate estates to community property [In re Marriage of Starkman (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 659, 665, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 639] .

Similarly, incorporation of a separate property business during marriage, does not, alone, transmute it into a community asset, because incorporation is a mere change in the legal form of the business [In re Marriage of Koester (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1032, 1036-1038, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 76 ; Kenney v. Kenney (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 60, 65, 217 P.2d 151] .

In In re Marriage of Holtemann, however, the court found that the Transmutation Agreement and Trust at issue established that the husband intended to, and did, transmute from separate to community property the property that was identified in an incorporated exhibit. The agreement unambiguously stated that "Husband agrees that the character of the property described in Exhibit A (including any future rents, issues, profits, and proceeds of that property) is hereby transmuted from his separate property to the community property of both parties. The attached exhibit repeated the term "transmutation" numerous times, and the court aptly noted that "[a] clearer statement of a transmutation is difficult to imagine" [In re Marriage of Holtemann (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1166, 1172-1173, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 385]. The court concluded that regardless of the motivations underlying the documents, they contain the requisite express, unequivocal declarations of a present transmutation and reflect that the husband was fully informed of the legal consequences of his actions [In re Marriage of Holtemann (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1166, 1173, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 385]. The court rejected the husband's contention that a transmutation, once effected, can be limited in purpose or otherwise rendered conditional or temporary. It held that once the character of the property has been changed, a "retransmutation" can only be effected by an express agreement to that effect that independently satisfies the requirements of Fam. Code § 852(a) [In re Marriage of Holtemann (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1166, 1174, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 385].

Whether there can be any exception to the general writing requirement for a transmutation (apart from the interspousal gifts of personalty permitted by statute discussed in § 122.34[3][a]) is somewhat unclear. Thus, for example, although the doctrine of equitable estoppel is an exception to the statute of frauds, a spouse who asserts an interest in the other spouse's separate property may not similarly invoke the doctrine of equitable estoppel to circumvent the requirement that there be an express written declaration of the other spouse's intent to transmute the property. To do so would require the consideration of extrinsic evidence, which is inadmissible to prove a transmutation [In re Marriage of Campbell (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1058, 1063-1064, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 580 (wife who loaned husband substantial sums to improve his separate property home, allegedly in reliance on his unfulfilled promise to place her name on property title, could not prove transmutation)]. Similarly, although parol evidence may be received to interpret a term of art found in a contract, it cannot be used to supply essential terms that were omitted in the written document, thereby circumventing the statute of frauds requirement that the writing must state with reasonable certainty what the terms and conditions of the contract are [In re Marriage of Shaban (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 398, 399-401, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 863 (one-page document written in Arabic was "hopelessly uncertain" as to its terms and conditions, and husband's expert witness was not allowed to testify that it indicated the couple's intention to have their property relations at divorce governed by "Islamic law")].

[c] Effect on Third Parties

The statutes governing transmutations that take place on or after January 1, 1985, make reference to third party rights in the following contexts:

> (1) A transmutation is subject to the laws governing fraudulent transfers [Fam. Code § 851; see Civ. Code § 3439 et seq.]; thus, spouses cannot utilize the device of transmuting property in order to defraud creditors [see Civ. Code § 3439.04; Fam. Code § 851; see, e.g., Mejia v. Reed (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 657, 661, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 390, 74 P.3d 166 (Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act applied to marital settlement agreement involving transfer of husband's interest in real estate to wife in return for wife's interest in medical practice); State Board of Equalization v. Woo (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 481, 485, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 206 (wife's attempt to transmute her community earnings to separate property after knowing of creditor's intent to garnish her wages to satisfy husband's tax debt was fraudulent transfer)]; and
>
> (2) A transmutation of real property is not effective with respect to third parties who do not have notice of the transmutation unless it is recorded [Fam. Code § 852(b)].

For related discussion of transmutations involving fraudulent transfers, see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation . For discussion of fraudulent transfer law [Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act-- Civil Code § 3439 et seq.], see Ch. 270, Fraudulent Conveyances .

[d] Statements in Wills

By legislation operative January 1, 1985, a statement in a will of the character of property is inadmissible as evidence of a transmutation of the property in any proceeding commenced before the testator's death [Fam. Code § 853(a) (continuing former Civ. Code § 5110.740(a)); Estate of Gallio (1995) 33 Cal.App. 4th 592, 598, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 470] . This statute has been applied retroactively in at least one instance [see In re Marriage of Weaver (1990) 224 Cal.

App. 3d 478, 489-490, 273 Cal. Rptr. 696 (applying former Civ. Code § 5110.740, as discussed in § 122.34[2][e])].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawCommunity PropertyGeneral OverviewFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationCommunity PropertyFamily LawMarital Termination & Spousal SupportDissolution & DivorceProperty DistributionClassificationTransmutationReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesCommunity PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesSeparate Property

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. General Characterization Principles

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.35

§ 122.35 Commingling and Tracing

[1] Effect of Commingling on Characterization

In general, the "commingling"--mixing or combining--of separate and community property into one whole does not destroy the character of its respective components if their amounts can be ascertained [In re Marriage of Mix (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 604, 611, 122 Cal. Rptr. 79 ; Hicks v. Hicks (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 144, 154, 27 Cal. Rptr. 307] . However, when property is so commingled that the separate and community components cannot be traced and identified, the general presumption in favor of community property [see Fam. Code § 760] requires that all of the commingled property be characterized as community [see In re Marriage of Mix (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 604, 611, 122 Cal. Rptr. 79 ; see In re Marriage of Weaver (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 858, 870-871, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 121 (property that spouses purchased before marriage, which was therefore their separate property, was transmuted to community property due to commingling of their separate property interest with community property used to pay for mortgage and improvements during marriage)].

If a community presumption thus arises, the burden is on the spouse asserting that the property is separate to overcome the community presumption by tracing the funds to a separate source, assuming that tracing is permissible in a particular case [In re Marriage of Mix (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 604, 611, 122 Cal. Rptr. 79 ; In re Marriage of Higinbotham (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 322, 328, 249 Cal. Rptr. 798] .

There are two independent methods of tracing that generally may be used to establish that commingled, presumptively community property is actually separate property, as discussed in § 122.35[2]. They are "direct tracing"and "family expense" tracing [In re Marriage of Mix (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 604, 612, 122 Cal. Rptr. 79 ; See v. See (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 778, 783, 51 Cal. Rptr. 888, 415 P.2d 776 ; In re Marriage of Higinbotham (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 322, 329, 249 Cal. Rptr. 798 ; In re Marriage of Frick (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 997, 1010, 1011, 226 Cal. Rptr. 766] . Exceptions to the use of tracing to establish characterization are discussed in § 122.35[3].

Family Code Section 852(a), which provides that a transmutation of property is not valid unless it is made in writing by an express declaration [see § 122.34[3][b]], does not apply to the commingling of separate and community property [

Fam. Code § 852(d)].

Commingling and tracing issues typically arise with respect to characterization and division of separate and community funds combined in a single account, such as a bank account, or of property purchased with such commingled funds. As with other characterization matters, commingling and tracing issues may require resolution in the following contexts:

(1) Proceedings for marital dissolution or legal separation [see In re Marriage of Mix (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 604, 612, 122 Cal. Rptr. 79] ;

(2) Actions involving the claims of third party creditors [see Fam. Code § 910 et seq.; see also Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation]; and

(3) Probate proceedings on the death of one or both spouses [see Estate of Murphy (1976) 15 Cal. 3d 907, 918, 126 Cal. Rptr. 820, 544 P.2d 956 ; Estate of Luke (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1006, 1019-1020, 240 Cal. Rptr. 84] .

The tracing discussion in this part focuses on proceedings for marital dissolution or legal separation. For discussion of property transmutation, which also may be at issue in a particular case, see § 122.34[1].

[2] Tracing Methods

[a] Direct Tracing

Under the method known as "direct tracing," the separate property status of money withdrawn from a commingled fund, such as an account, may be established in the following circumstances [In re Marriage of Mix (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 604, 612, 122 Cal. Rptr. 79 ; In re Marriage of Frick (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 997, 1010, 1011, 226 Cal. Rptr. 766] :

(1) Separate funds deposited with community funds continue to be on deposit when the withdrawal is made; and

(2) The drawer intends to withdraw separate funds.

The party claiming a separate interest in the funds withdrawn or in property purchased with those funds bears the burden of establishing that the interest is separate. The burden of establishing a separate interest in presumptive community property is not simply that of presenting proof at the time of litigation, but also of keeping adequate records [see In re Marriage of Frick (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 997, 1010-1011, 226 Cal. Rptr. 766] . Furthermore, evidence that merely establishes the availability of separate funds on particular dates without also showing any disposition of the funds is not sufficient proof of tracing to overcome the presumption in favor of community property [Estate of Murphy (1976) 15 Cal. 3d 907, 918, 126 Cal. Rptr. 820, 544 P.2d 956 ; In re Marriage of Johnson (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 57, 61, 191 Cal. Rptr. 545] .

Chronological records showing every deposit and every expenditure must be presented. A party's oral testimony of intent combined with evidence that separate property expenditures did not exceed separate property deposits during a particular time period are insufficient to directly trace the property to a separate source [In re Marriage of Frick (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 997, 1011, 226 Cal. Rptr. 766 ; In re Marriage of Stoll (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 837, 841-843, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 506 (distinguishing tracing requirements for bank accounts and valuing separate property ownership in realty transmuted to community property); but see In re Marriage of Mix (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 604, 614-615, 122 Cal. Rptr. 79, 536 P.2d 479 (while wife's itemized schedule, prepared by herself and accountant, would ordinarily have been inadequate to establish her claim, when coupled with her testimony trial court was warranted in finding she directly traced certain properties to separate funds)]. If periodic payments have been made, the evidence must show that each payment was made when separate property funds were present in the account and each withdrawal was accompanied by an intent to use separate funds [In re Marriage of Higinbotham (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 322, 329, 249 Cal. Rptr. 798] . It is not sufficient to present specific excerpts from the accounts [In re Marriage of Frick (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 997, 1011, 226 Cal. Rptr. 766] , summaries of the accounts [In re Marriage of Mix (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 604, 612, 122 Cal. Rptr. 79] , or evidence that separate funds were available in a separate account when purchases were made but the purchase money is not specifically traced to that account rather than to a community account [In re Marriage of Marsden (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 426, 442-443, 181 Cal. Rptr. 910] .

At least one commentator has suggested that an additional element of a successful tracing is that the intent to acquire separate property has been communicated to the other spouse [see Wagner, To Disclose or Not to Disclose? That Is the Question, 5 Cal.Fam. Law Monthly 1 (August 1988) (Matthew Bender)]. The premise behind this suggestion is that during marriage each spouse owes to the other a fiduciary duty analogous to that of a business partner [see Fam. Code § 721(b); see also Weinberg v. Weinberg (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 557, 563, 63 Cal. Rptr. 13, 432 P.2d 709 ; Vai v. Bank of America (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 329, 339, 15 Cal. Rptr. 71, 364 P.2d 247] . Although this view has not specifically been adopted in the tracing context since the enactment of legislation imposing broad disclosure requirements on spouses [see Fam. Code §§ 721(b), 1100(e)], counsel may wish to raise the issue in opposition to a separate property claim.

[b] Family Expense Tracing

The method known as "family expense tracing," or "recapitulation," is based on the presumption that family expenses are paid from community funds before they are paid from separate funds. If at the time of acquisition of the property, it can be shown that all community income in the commingled account has been exhausted by family expenses, then all funds remaining in the account at the time the property was purchased were necessarily separate funds. However, the recapitulation method may be employed only when, through no fault of the spouse asserting a separate property interest, it is impossible to ascertain the balance of income and expenditures at the time the property was acquired [See v. See (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 778, 783, 51 Cal. Rptr. 888, 415 P.2d 776 ; In re Marriage of Higinbotham (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 322, 329, 249 Cal. Rptr. 798] .

The evidence must be sufficient to establish the actual amounts of community income and expenses over the course of the marriage. Evidence that only establishes the availability of separate funds on particular dates without also showing any disposition of the funds is not sufficient proof of tracing to overcome the presumption in favor of community property [In re Marriage of Higinbotham (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 322, 330, 249 Cal. Rptr. 798] .

[3] Exceptions to Tracing

[a] Form of Title Presumptions

The form of title to property that has been commingled, such as an account, or to property purchased with commingled funds, may significantly affect whether tracing principles may be used in characterizing the property. In general, if title or record ownership of an account or other property is acquired in the name of only one spouse during marriage, and no other special circumstances exist or characterization principles apply [see, e.g., Fam. Code § 770(a)(2) (property acquired by gift as separate property); see also In re Marriage of Weaver (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 478, 486, 273 Cal. Rptr. 696] , the broad community presumption that arises from acquisition of property during marriage [Fam. Code § 760] will apply in property disputes between spouses, as discussed in § 122.33[3], and this more general presumption may be overcome by tracing [see See v. See (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 778, 783, 51 Cal. Rptr. 888, 415 P.2d 776 ; cf. In re Marriage of Higinbotham (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 322, 327-329, 249 Cal. Rptr. 798 (each party had separate account containing commingled funds; tracing principles were applicable, though husband failed to successfully trace disputed amounts to separate property); but see In re Marriage of Broderick (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 489, 496-497, 257 Cal. Rptr. 397 (quitclaim deed from wife raised presumption from title that husband owned home as separate property; this presumption could not be overcome solely by tracing)].

By contrast, if the disputed property was acquired during marriage in joint title, a community presumption arises from the title for purposes of dividing the property on marital dissolution or legal separation, and this presumption cannot be overcome by mere tracing. The presumption can only be overcome by a writing that meets statutory requirements [see Fam. Code §§ 2580, 2581; In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 223-224, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891] . However, whether this "joint form-community property" presumption, or any other title presumption, is applicable to the proceeding depends on a number of factors, as discussed in § 122.33[4].

Nevertheless, if the "joint form-community property" presumption applies and is not rebutted, or the property is otherwise found to be community property, the court must apply a special reimbursement rule, at least if the property was acquired on or after January 1, 1984, and the family law proceeding was commenced on or after that date [see In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 1216-1217, 1221 n.8, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349 ; In re Marriage of Bankovich (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 49, 54-56, 249 Cal. Rptr. 713 ; see also Fam. Code §§ 2580, 2581, 2640(a), (b)]. Under this rule, the court is required to order reimbursement to any party who has made separate property contributions to the acquisition of the community property to the extent that he or she can trace these to a separate source, unless this reimbursement right has been waived in writing [Fam. Code § 2640(b)]. For further discussion of this rule, see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

Furthermore, special statutory provisions now generally govern accounts of married persons in bank, savings, and similar accounts in financial institutions [see Prob. Code §§ 5100 et seq., 5201]. Although the application of these statutes to marital dissolution proceedings is presently unclear (see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation), they should at least control for purposes of ownership in proceedings between the spouses and a third party creditor, or in probate proceedings [see Prob. Code § 5201; see also Estate of Petersen (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1742, 1750-1751, 1754, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449 (probate case)]. Among these is Prob. Code Section 5305. It provides, in part, that if parties to an account are married to one another, their net contribution to the account is generally presumed to be community property [Prob. Code Section 5305(a)]. However, notwithstanding Fam. Code §§ 2581 and 2640, this presumption is one affecting the burden of proof and may be rebutted by proof of either of the following [see Prob. Code § 5305(b); see, e.g., Estate of Castiglioni (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 367, 383-385, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 288 (construing statute in context of murder of joint tenant-spouse). Estate of Petersen (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1742, 1754, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449 (mere designation of account as "joint tenants," without unambiguous statement of right of survivorship, did not, as matter of law, overcome community presumption raised by account statute, but reference to joint tenancy in account statement raised triable issue of fact on form of ownership and control of funds)]:

> (1) The sums on deposit that are claimed to be separate property can be traced from separate property, unless it is proved that the spouses made a written agreement expressing their clear intent that such sums be their community property; or
>
> (2) The spouses made a written agreement, separate from the deposit agreement, expressly providing that the sums on deposit, which are claimed not to be community property, were not to be community property.

Other related statutes describe "joint accounts of husband and wife" and "community property accounts of husband and wife" [see Prob. Code § 5203(a)(4), (5)]. For further discussion of these provisions, see the discussion in Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

[b] Increase in Property's Value Due to Spouse's Efforts

Through a particular application of tracing principles, the general rule has developed that the "rents, issues, and profits" of separate property are separate property [see Fam. Code § 770(a)(3)], and the "rents, issues, and profits" of community property are community property [Beam v. Bank of America (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 12, 17, 98 Cal. Rptr. 137, 490 P.2d 257 ; see Boyd v. Oser (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 613, 621, 145 P.2d 312 ; see also Estate of Rattray (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 702, 707, 91 P.2d 1042] . However, when a spouse's skills and effort, a community asset, are invested in his or her separate property, such as a business, the community may be entitled to an interest in the resulting increased value and profits [see Beam v. Bank of America (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 12, 17, 98 Cal. Rptr. 137, 490 P.2d 257] . Accordingly, this possible entitlement to an apportioned interest forms the basis for another "exception" to tracing rules concerning commingled property.

Under this exception, a portion of the increased value and profits of a spouse's separate property due to that spouse's expenditure of skill, efforts, and industry during marriage will be allocated as community property, and divided in the family law proceeding [See Beam v. Bank of America (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 12, 17, 98 Cal. Rptr. 137, 490 P.2d 257 ; Weinberg v. Weinberg (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 557, 567-568, 63 Cal. Rptr. 13, 432 P.2d 709 ; In re Marriage of House (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 434, 438, 165 Cal. Rptr. 145] . Two alternative formulas have been developed by the courts to divide separate and community interests in a separate property interest on dissolution, and are referred to as the Pereira and Van Camp approaches. Application of these formulas do not require tracing of the commingled property, but involve an apportionment formula [Pereira v. Pereira (1909) 156 Cal. 1, 103 P. 488 ; Van Camp v. Van Camp (1921) 53 Cal. App. 17, 199 P. 885] . For further discussion, see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawCommunity PropertyGeneral OverviewFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationMarital PropertyFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationSeparate PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesCommunity PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesSeparate Property

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. General Characterization Principles

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.36

§ 122.36 Credit Purchases and Borrowed Money

[1] Overview

Characterization of property acquired through a seller's extension of credit or by the use of loan proceeds requires consideration of the seller's or lender's intention to rely on separate or community property in satisfying the debt. Although the property, if acquired during marriage, otherwise is subject to the general community presumption of Fam. Code § 760, the "intent of the lender" must be analyzed because case law has established this as a more specific characterization principle with respect to credit or loan acquisitions [see Gudelj v. Gudelj (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 202, 210-211, 259 P.2d 656 ; but see In re Marriage of Grinius (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1179, 1186-1187, 212 Cal. Rptr. 803 (discussing application of intent of lender test)].

However, a showing of lender intent will not conclusively characterize the property if, for example, the parties have otherwise agreed to hold the property in a particular way. Accordingly, use of the lender's intent analysis does not preclude the application of other relevant characterization principles [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Dawley (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 342, 357-358, 131 Cal. Rptr. 3, 551 P.2d 323 (the--now former--Family Law Act presumptions do not govern status of marital property if there is prenuptial agreement containing stipulations to the contrary)]. Moreover, characterization of a debt that results from acquiring property through a loan or on credit may require the application of further specialized rules, because in some instances the asset might be of one character and the debt, another, such as in the context of a gift. For a general discussion of characterizing debts, see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

[2] Use of "Intent of Lender" Analysis

[a] When Needed

Analysis of the "intent of the lender" is essential when (1) credit is extended or a loan is made without other property as security; (2) credit or a loan is secured only by separate or only by community property; or (3) credit or a loan is secured by both separate and community property.

[b] Unsecured Transactions

In the case of an unsecured transaction, a seller or lender is presumed to have relied on the personal credit of the spouse who obtained the credit or loan; thus, characterization of that personal credit as separate or community raises a similar presumption with respect to the property acquired. Case law has established that the personal credit of a spouse is a community asset if the transaction occurred during marriage [see In re Marriage of Stitt (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 579, 585, 195 Cal. Rptr. 172 ; Ford v. Ford (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 9, 13, 80 Cal. Rptr. 435] . Conversely, a spouse's personal credit would be a separate asset if the transaction took place before marriage [see generally Bank of California v. Connolly (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 350, 375-376, 111 Cal. Rptr. 468 ; see also Fam. Code §§ 770, 771].

[c] Credit Secured by One Type of Property

In the case of a credit or loan transaction secured by property of one type only (separate or community), a presumption is raised that the seller or lender relied on the property secured in extending credit or in loaning funds. Thus, for example, funds borrowed by a hypothecation (pledge) of a spouse's separate property, even if carried out during marriage, are presumed to be separate property [see Bank of California v. Connolly (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 350, 375-376, 111 Cal. Rptr. 468] . If it were not for the "intent of the lender" analysis, the general community presumption for property acquired during marriage would apply [see Fam. Code § 760].

[d] Credit Secured by Both Separate and Community Property

If the credit or loan transaction occurs during marriage and involves both separate and community property, a more complex analysis must be made to determine the creditor's or lender's intent. Generally, absent evidence tending to prove that the seller or lender primarily relied on the purchaser's separate property in extending credit or granting the loan, the property purchased or money borrowed is presumed to be community property, when it was acquired during marriage. With regard to the rebuttable presumption that property acquired on credit during marriage is community property, the California Supreme Court in one case held that in the absence of evidence tending to prove that the seller primarily relied on the purchaser's separate property in extending credit, the trial court must find in accordance with the presumption [Gudelj v. Gudelj (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 202, 210-211, 259 P.2d 656] . However, if a loan is secured by a specific separate property asset, this generally implies that the lender intended to look mainly to that asset as security for the loan. Funds borrowed by hypothecation of a spouse's separate property generally are separate property [see Estate of Abdale (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 587, 592, 170 P. 2d 918] .

However, at least one reported decision has questioned this formulation of the rule, as set forth in Gudelj. An appellate court has noted that earlier cases had examined whether separate property was solely relied on as the basis for extending credit. Later cases, while nominally following the "primary reliance" analysis, had not made a separate property finding unless there was evidence of sole reliance. Accordingly, this appellate court restated the applicable rule as follows: loan proceeds acquired during marriage are presumptively community property; however, this presumption may be overcome by showing that the lender intended to rely solely on a spouse's separate property and did in fact do so. Without satisfactory evidence of the lender's intent, the general presumption prevails [see In re Marriage of Grinius (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1179, 1186-1187, 212 Cal. Rptr. 803] . Nevertheless, long-standing Supreme Court authority favors the Gudelj rule that looks to the lender's or creditor's "primary" intent [Gudelj v. Gudelj (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 202, 210-211, 259 P.2d 656 ; cf. Auto Equity Sales, Inc. v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 450, 455, 20 Cal. Rptr. 321, 369 P.2d 937 (application of stare decisis to inferior tribunals)].

[e] Evidence in Particular Cases

When a general community presumption regarding property has been raised, the presumption may be overcome by evidence that the property or funds were obtained by the hypothecation of a spouse's separate property. This requires a showing that the property hypothecated was in fact separate property, and the fact that the borrowing spouse holds record title to the hypothecated property may not be enough to rebut the community presumption [see Guerin v. Guerin (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 696, 708, 313 P.2d 902] .

Conversely, the fact that both spouses join in signing notes and security instruments to obtain a loan does not automatically mean that the funds obtained are community property [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Dawley (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 342, 357-358, 131 Cal. Rptr. 3, 551 P.2d 323 (parties' premarital agreement controlled characterization)]. The signature of either or both spouses during marriage is evidence the lender intended to rely on the personal credit of one or both spouses. Such personal credit is community property [see In re Marriage of Stitt (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 579, 585-586, 195 Cal. Rptr. 172] . The most important factor is the character of the property on the faith and credit of which the loan is made, rather than who signed the loan documents [Kenney v. Kenney (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 128, 137-139, 274 P.2d 951 , disapproved on other grounds, (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 778, 785, 51 Cal. Rptr. 888, 415 P.2d 776)].

However, when a loan is secured by separate property of one spouse, and both spouses have signed the loan documents, the parties' signatures may imply the use of community credit. It is the lender's predominant intent that determines the characterization of loan proceeds. The mere fact that the other spouse signed the loan documents does not change the separate property character of the loan proceeds when funds are secured by giving the other spouse's separate property as security [see Ford v. Ford (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 9, 13, 80 Cal. Rptr. 435] . Another appellate court upheld a trial court's finding that a loan made to a husband shortly after marriage was based on his separate property credit, when the husband's community earnings were not of paramount importance, and his separate property estate exceeded $500,000 [see Hicks v. Hicks (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 144, 27 Cal. Rptr. 307] .

Similarly, when a residence is purchased during marriage with a separate property down payment of one spouse and a loan for the balance of the purchase price, the balance paid by the loan is community property when the lender clearly relied on the other spouse's earnings in approving the loan [see In re Marriage of Aufmuth (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 446, 455-456, 152 Cal. Rptr. 668 (disapproved in part, in In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 815, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285] . For discussion of special rules on the apportionment of interests in a family residence and discussion of reimbursement for separate property contributions to the acquisition of community property [see Fam. Code § 2640], see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

[3] Wife's Pre-January 1, 1975, Property

In determining the character of property acquired with borrowed funds or purchased on credit, an additional factor to be considered is the presumption contained in Fam. Code § 803 concerning property acquired by a married woman before January 1, 1975. Under that statute, any real or personal property, or interest therein or encumbrance thereon, acquired before January 1, 1975, by a married woman by a written instrument is presumed to be her separate property. An additional presumption concerns such property acquired by a married woman and any other person. These presumptions are exceptions to the general presumption that property acquired during marriage is community property [see Fam. Code § 760].

Case law has established that if a wife borrowed funds before January 1, 1975, taking title in her own name, but using community property as security, the presumption that the funds are her separate property may be overcome by a showing that (1) the loan was made on the security of the community property, and (2) there was no intent on the part of the husband to make a gift of his community property interest in the funds obtained [Hogevoll v. Hogevoll (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 188, 196, 138 P.2d 693] . For a related discussion of pre-January 1, 1975, property of a married woman, see § 122.32[2][c]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Estate, Gift & Trust LawCommunity PropertyGeneral OverviewFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationMarital PropertyFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationSeparate PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesCommunity PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesSeparate Property

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. General Characterization Principles

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.37

§ 122.37 Community Property Transferred to Trust

Fam. Code § 761 sets forth provisions governing the treatment of community property that is transferred to a trust. Fam. Code § 761(a) provides that, unless the trust instrument or instrument of transfer expressly provides otherwise, community property that is transferred in trust remains community property during the marriage, regardless of the identity of the trustee, in the following circumstances:

> (1) The trust, originally or as amended before or after the transfer, provides that the trust is revocable with respect to that property during the marriage; and
>
> (2) The power, if any, to modify the trust with respect to the rights and interests in that property during the marriage may be exercised only with the joinder or consent of both spouses.

According to the California Law Revision Commission, this provision is intended to be consistent with Rev. Rul. 66-283 in order to obtain community property income tax treatment for the trust property under the Internal Revenue Code [see I.R.C. § 1014(b)(6)], but whether the terms of a particular trust are sufficient to obtain such treatment is ultimately a matter of federal law [Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to Fam. Code § 761].

The statute further states that, unless the trust instrument expressly provides otherwise, a power to revoke with respect to community property may be exercised by either spouse acting alone [see Estate of Powell (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1434, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 501 (revocation of trust by one spouse is effective as to entire community property trust corpus; but revocation is effective only as to revoking party's share in separate property in trust)]. Community property, including any income or appreciation, that is distributed or withdrawn from a trust by revocation, power of withdrawal, or otherwise, remains community property unless there is a valid transmutation of the property at or before the time of distribution or withdrawal [Fam. Code § 761(b); see Estate of Powell (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1434, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 501 (under Probate Code, spouse's death transmutes community property interests in trust to separate property; therefore, revocation of trust by surviving spouse was only effective as to his half of trust corpus, which was his separate property)].

Furthermore, the trustee may convey and otherwise manage and control the trust property in accordance with the provisions of the trust without the joinder or consent of the husband or wife unless the trust expressly requires the joinder or consent of one or both spouses [Fam. Code § 761(c)]. In other words, the trustee may manage the trust community property in the same manner as other trust assets, free from the general limitations on disposition of community property imposed on spouses, unless the trust expressly provides such limitations [Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to Fam. Code § 761].

The foregoing rules, which were first established by the predecessor to Fam. Code § 761 [see former Civ. Code § 5110.150], apply with respect to a transfer made before, on, or after July 1, 1987. Note that nothing in Fam. Code § 761 affects the community character of property that is transferred before, on, or after July 1, 1987, in any manner or to a trust other than described in that section [Fam. Code § 761(d), (e)]. In other words, according to the California Law Revision Commission, Fam. Code § 761 "does not provide the exclusive means by which community property may be held in trust without loss of its community character" [Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to Fam. Code § 761].

Further comments by the Commission indicate the following additional points about this statute [see Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to Fam. Code § 761]:

> (1) A transfer in trust by a married person is not exempt from the general limitations on transfers and transmutations by married persons acting alone [see Fam. Code §§ 850-853, 1100, 1102];
>
> (2) One consequence of retention of its community character is that the trust property is subject to the claims of creditors and to division at dissolution to the same extent as any other community property [see Fam. Code § 910 et seq. (general liability rules); Prob. Code § 18200 (creditor's rights against revocable trust during settlor's lifetime); and
>
> (3) The interest of the decedent in the community property is subject to testamentary disposition at death, unless a contrary method of disposition is provided in the trust instrument, "as is typically the case" [see Prob. Code § 104]. In that situation, the spouses' traditional community property right of testamentary disposition is substantially preserved by the unilateral power of revocation [see Fam. Code § 761(b)]; and when the trust requires joint action for revocation, the trust "could preserve the power of testamentary disposition by granting the first spouse to die a testamentary power of modification, appointment, or disposition as to the spouse's share of the community property."

In addition, note that a transfer of community and quasi-community property to a revocable trust is presumed to be an agreement that those assets retain their character in the aggregate for purposes of any division provided by the trust [Prob. Code § 104.5]. There may also be collateral consequences to title being held by a trust [cf. Heaps v. Heaps (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 286, 288, 290-292, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 239 (overly broad clause of revocable living trust caused proceeds of sale of spouses' residence to remain in trust that became irrevocable upon spouse's death); Fisch, Spiegler, Ginsburg & Ladner v. Appel (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1810, 1813, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 471 (placing title in revocable living trust did not preclude homeowners from availing themselves of homestead exemption)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawCommunity PropertyGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawTrustsGeneral OverviewFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationMarital PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesCommunity Property

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. General Characterization Principles

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 122.38-122.49

[Reserved]

§§ 122.38[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Management And Control

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.50

§ 122.50 Management and Control of Separate Property

[1] Sole Province of Owner Spouse

The management and control of separate property is the sole province of the owning spouse, and the nonowner-spouse has no inherent authority to deal in any way with the separate property of the owner. This principle is evidenced by statutes which declare that the owner-spouse may, without consent of the other spouse, convey his or her separate property [Fam. Code § 770(b)] and that, except as otherwise provided by statute, neither husband nor wife has any interest in the separate property of the other [Fam. Code § 752; see Foote v. Foote (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 435, 439, 339 P.2d 188 (citing former Civ. Code § 157)]. The owner of separate property cannot be prevented by the other spouse from dealing with his or her separate property as he or she sees fit, including resorting to whatever legal process is necessary to protect his or her interest in the property [Foote v. Foote (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 435, 439, 339 P.2d 188] .

[2] Separate Interests Held by Spouses as Joint Tenants or Tenants-in-Common

Consistent with the general rule cited in § 122.50, if husband and wife own property as true tenants in common or as true joint tenants [see Fam. Code § 750 (husband and wife may hold property as joint tenants or tenants in common), Fam. Code § 2580(c) (property acquired by married persons after specified dates in joint tenancy form or other joint form presumed to be community property)], each has sole control of his or her interest in the property, subject to the duties imposed on all tenants in common and joint tenants [see Code Civ. Proc. § 732 (action against joint tenant or tenant in common for waste)]. For discussion of these duties, see California Real Estate Law And Practice, Ch. 345 (Matthew Bender).

As with all joint tenants or tenants in common, neither spouse can convey the interest of the other without the other's consent. Such consent cannot be implied from the manner in which the property is used, nor from the relationship of the spouses. Thus, when a third party buyer deals solely with one spouse and is on notice of the other spouse's interest in property held by the spouses as tenants in common, the buyer cannot take any interest in the property greater than that of the dealer-spouse without the other spouse's consent [see Williams v. Tam (1900) 131 Cal. 64, 66-67, 63 P. 133] . Conversely, either spouse can convey his or her own interest without consent of the other.

As with any other joint tenancy, if a spouse holding property with the other spouse as joint tenants conveys his or her interest in the property, the conveyance destroys the joint tenancy. The resulting relationship between the remaining owner-spouse and the grantee of the transferring spouse is a tenancy in common [see Estate of Baglione (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 192, 195, 53 Cal. Rptr. 139, 417 P.2d 683] .

[3] Management and Control by Nonowner Spouse

[a] Applicability of Agency and Trust Principles

By express or implied agreement, one spouse may grant the other power to manage and control his or her separate property. When this occurs, the relationship between the spouses is governed either by principles of agency [Estate of Nelson (1930) 104 Cal. App. 613, 621, 286 P. 439] or by the presumption that the managing spouse holds the property in trust for the owner-spouse as a fiduciary [Dyment v. Nelson (1913) 166 Cal. 38, 40, 134 P. 988] , depending on the certainty with which the subject property can be characterized as the separate property of the nonmanaging spouse.

[b] Standard of Care When Separate Property Character is Clear

An agency relationship between the owning spouse and the managing spouse will be found when title to the subject property is in the name of the owning spouse. In such a case, the character of the property as separate property is clear, and the role of the nonowner-spouse as manager is apparent [see Estate of Nelson (1930) 104 Cal. App. 613, 621, 286 P. 439] .

[c] Standard of Care When Separate Property Character is Unclear

When the character of the subject property as the separate property of the nonmanaging spouse is not clear, the managing spouse is bound to the higher standard of care required of a fiduciary in a trust relationship. This situation may arise, for example, when the bare legal title is in the name of the nonowner-spouse, or when the property's character can be determined only through tracing the source of the funds used to acquire it. The greater risk of mismanagement in this situation justifies the higher standard of care imposed on the managing spouse [see Dyment v. Nelson (1913) 166 Cal. 38, 40, 134 P. 988] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Family LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationSeparate PropertyReal Property LawEstatesConcurrent OwnershipJoint TenanciesReal Property LawEstatesConcurrent OwnershipTenancies in CommonReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesSeparate Property

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Management And Control

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.51

§ 122.51 Management and Control of Community Personal Property

[1] Equal Management and Control Rule

With certain exceptions (§ 122.51[3]), either spouse has management and control of community personal property [Fam. Code § 1100(a)]. This rule applies regardless of whether the property was acquired before, on, or after January 1, 1975, the effective date of the equal management and control statute [Fam. Code § 1100(a); Stats. 1973, ch. 987]. The grant of equal management and control gives each spouse the same power of disposition, other than testamentary, as he or she has of his or her separate property [Fam. Code § 1100(a)]. As a corollary to equal management and control, the community property is generally liable for the debts and torts of both spouses [Fam. Code § 910(a) (debts), 1000(b) (torts); for further discussion, see Ch. 359, Marriage].

The equal management and control rule makes husbands and wives true economic partners in the eye of the law [see Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 35, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931 (equal management and control called "a radical and significant change in community property law" and "a landmark step toward recognizing equality of the spouses")]. A related statute recognizes this equality by providing that a married woman is entitled to obtain credit in her own name based on the assets of the community to the same extent that a married man managing and controlling the same amount of property would be entitled to obtain credit [see Civ. Code § 1812.30].

One problem with equal management and control is the potential for conflicting independent decisions made by each spouse concerning specific community property. The exceptions to and qualifications of the equal management and control rule (§ 122.51[3]) may mitigate this potential problem. Alternatives to equal management and control are set forth in § 122.55.

[2] Prior Law and Retroactive Application of Rule

The equal management and control rule was effective January 1, 1975 [Stats. 1973, ch. 987], and applies to all community personal property whether acquired before, on, or after that date [Fam. Code § 1100(a)]. However, this is the extent of its retroactivity. The rule of equal management and control does not extend to property transactions or management and control decisions which occurred before January 1, 1975. The validity of these transactions and decisions is governed by the law in effect at the time the transaction or decision occurred [In re Marriage of Coffin (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 154-155, 133 Cal. Rptr. 583] . Therefore, the former management and control statutes and cases decided under them still have direct relevance to management and control decisions made before January 1, 1975.

Before January 1, 1975, the husband had primary responsibility for the management and control of community personal property [former Civ. Code § 5125]. The wife had only limited management and control of community personal property earned by her or received by her in satisfaction of a judgment for damages for personal injuries suffered by her [former Civ. Code § 5124]. The only restrictions on the husband's management and control powers were his responsibilities as a fiduciary vis-a-vis the wife when negotiating a marital termination agreement [see In re Marriage of Coffin (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 154-155, 133 Cal. Rptr. 583] , and the provision that he could not, without his wife's written consent [former Civ. Code § 5125],

(1) Make a gift of community personal property;

(2) Dispose of community personal property without a valuable consideration; or

(3) Sell, convey, or encumber the furniture, furnishings or fittings of the home, or the clothing or wearing apparel of the wife or minor children.

Under the equal management and control rule, the restrictions listed above are carried over from the prior law and made applicable to both spouses [see Fam. Code § 1100(b), (c)]. Therefore, decisions concerning the application of these restrictions in transactions occurring before January 1, 1975 are relevant to the validity of transactions occurring after January 1, 1975.

[3] Exceptions and Qualifications to Rule

The major qualification to the equal management and control rule is the rule that each spouse must act with respect to the other spouse in the management and control of the community property in accordance with the general rules governing fiduciary relationships which control the actions of persons having relationships of personal confidence [Fam. Code § 1100(e); see Fam. Code § 721]. This rule is discussed in § 122.51[4].

To limit potential conflicts stemming from the equal right to manage and control community personal property, the Legislature has also established these specific exceptions to the equal management and control rule:

(1) A spouse may not make a gift of community personal property or dispose of such property for less than fair and reasonable value without the written consent of the other spouse, subject to special nonprobate transfer rules [Fam. Code § 1100(b); see Prob. Code § 5010 et seq.]. This exception is discussed in § 122.51[6].

(2) A spouse may not sell, convey, or encumber community personal property used as the family dwelling, or the furniture, furnishings, or fittings of the home, or the clothing or wearing apparel of the other spouse or minor children which is community personal property, without the written consent of the other spouse [Fam. Code § 1100(c)]. This exception is discussed in § 122.51[9].

(3) Subject to the restrictions set out in (1) and (2), above, a spouse who is operating or managing a business or an interest in a business that is all or substantially all community personal property has the primary management and control of the business or interest [Fam. Code § 1100(d)]. This exception is discussed in § 122.51[10].

(4) Community property transferred to a revocable trust that conforms to statutory requirements is exempt from equal management and control [see Fam. Code § 761].

(5) Equal management and control is not applicable when one or both spouses are incompetent [see Fam. Code § 1103; see also Prob. Code § 3000 et seq.]. Generally, a spouse's right to manage and control community property is not affected by the lack or alleged lack of legal capacity [see Prob. Code § 3012] of the other spouse [Prob. Code § 3051(a)]. Moreover, when one spouse has a conservator of the estate and thus lacks legal capacity [see Civ. Code § 40; Prob. Code § 3012], the spouse who has legal capacity has the exclusive management and control of the community property, and the community property is not included in the conservatorship estate unless the competent spouse consents in writing to such inclusion [Prob. Code § 3051(b), (c)]. However, if an act of management and control normally requires the consent of both spouses under Family Code Section 1100, for example to validate a gift of community property, the spouse with legal capacity must obtain the joinder or consent of the conservator of the other spouse [Prob. Code § 3071(a), (b)].

[4] Good Faith Requirements

[a] Fiduciary Duty

As of January 1, 1991, each spouse must act with respect to the other spouse in the management and control of the community property in accordance with the general rules that govern fiduciary relationships between persons who have confidential relations with each other [Fam. Code §§ 721(b), 1100(e); Stats. 1991, ch. 1026]. The statement of legislative intent concerning this directive declares that spouses occupy a confidential and fiduciary relationship with each other in which each spouse places trust and confidence in the integrity, honesty, and fairness of the other [see Stats. 1991, ch. 1026, § 2].

In transactions between themselves, spouses have a duty to act with the highest good faith and fair dealing, and neither spouse may take any unfair advantage of the other [Fam. Code § 721(b)]. The fiduciary relationship between spouses is subject to the same rights and duties as those applicable to nonmarital business partners [see Fam. Code § 721(b); Corp. Code §§ 16403, 16404, 16503; see also In re Marriage of Walker (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1408, 1427-1428, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 325 (2002 amendment to Fam. Code § 721, which based scope of spousal fiduciary duty on duties that did not exist before 2002 amendment, makes Fam. Code § 721 retroactive, to extent that Corp. Code §§ 16403, 16404, and 16503 impose greater duties on partners than did former Corp. Code §§ 15019-15022)] which include but are not limited to the following:

(1) Providing each spouse access at all times to any books kept regarding a transaction for the purposes of inspection and copying [Fam. Code § 721(b)(1)];

(2) Rendering, on request, true and full information of all things affecting any transaction that concerns the community property, although no duty is imposed on either spouse to keep detailed books and records of community property transactions [Fam. Code § 721(b)(2)]; and

(3) Accounting to the spouse, and holding as a trustee, any benefit or profit derived from any transaction that concerns community property and that is made by one spouse without the consent of the other spouse [Fam. Code § 721(b)(3)].

A spouse can be subject to a statutory breach of fiduciary duty under Fam. Code § 721(b) for mismanagement of separate property, as well as community property. No distinction is made between a spouse's duty to deal fairly and in good faith with separate property and a spouse's duty to deal fairly and in good faith with community property [In re Marriage of Walker (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1408, 1419, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 325] .

With respect to management and control of community property, the fiduciary relationship is presumed to exist until the property is divided by the parties or a court, and is subject to the standards set forth in Fam. Code § 721 [Fam. Code § 1100(e); see Worton v. Worton (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1638, 1648, 286 Cal. Rptr. 410 ; see also In re Marriage of Varner (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 128, 144, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 894 ; cf. In re Stanifer (9th Cir. B.A.P. 1999) 236 B.R. 709 (former husband had fiduciary duty to disclose receipt of pension benefits to former wife and his debt to her for pension benefits received by him before court-ordered division of benefits was nondischargeable in bankruptcy)]. Accordingly, even after the parties separate a spouse can be held accountable for breach of fiduciary duty in managing community assets [see In re Marriage of Quay (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 961, 972-973, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537 (risky loan assigned to husband who violated fiduciary duty while managing community assets)].

The fiduciary duties of a spouse are not limited to those enumerated in Family Code Section 721(b). When a court, relying on the absence of the words "but not limited to," construed the statute as excluding duties not specifically included [see In re Marriage of Duffy (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 923, 940, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 160 (spouse did not breach any fiduciary duty by investing community assets in risky stocks)], the legislature promptly added the missing phrase and stated its intent to abrogate the court's ruling and to clarify that the fiduciary relationship between spouses includes all of the same rights and duties in the management of community property as the rights and duties of unmarried business partners managing partnership property [Stats. 2002, ch. 310].

The fiduciary duty regarding management and control includes the obligation to disclose fully all material facts and information regarding the existence, characterization, and valuation of all assets in which the community has or may have an interest and all debts for which the community is or may be liable. Each spouse must also provide the other, on request, with equal access to all information, records, and books that pertain to the value and character of those assets and debts [Fam. Code § 1100(e); In re Marriage of Walker (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1408, 1421, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 325 (on request, spouse must make full disclosure of all material facts regarding valuation of community assets and must provide access to all records pertaining to those values); see Schnabel v. Superior Court (1994) 5 Cal. 4th 704, 715, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 200, 854 P.2d 1117 ; but see In re Marriage of Duffy (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 923, 937-939, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 160 (husband he did not breach duty of full disclosure on certain investments); In re Marriage of Reuling (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1428, 1435-1437, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 (husband had no duty under Fam. Code § 1100(e) to disclose "insider" information about stock value, because federal laws governing insider trading preempt state disclosure laws)].

Finally, because spouses occupy confidential relations with one another, when an interspousal transaction creates an advantage for one spouse over the other, a presumption of undue influence arises, and the burden of overcoming this presumption rests with the spouse who has obtained the advantage [In re Marriage of Haines (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 277, 297, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 673 ; see In re Marriage of Balcof (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 1509, 1519-1522, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 183 (presumption of undue influence was not rebutted when wife secured husband's agreement to transfer 20 percent of his separate property corporation and his share of marital residence to her as result of her threats and numerous instances of verbal and physical abuse directed at husband); In re Marriage of Delaney (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 991, 996, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 378 (deed transfer of separate property home to joint tenancy in conjunction with bank loan gave rise to presumption of undue influence by wife); In re Marriage of Lange (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 360, 364-365, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 379 (husband's promissory note giving wife advantage in community property transaction was unenforceable); In re Marriage of Friedman (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 65, 72-73, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 412 (postnuptial agreement was "free of taint by fraud or compulsion"); but cf. In re Marriage of Burkle (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 712, 717, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 181 (presumption of undue influence does not arise in interspousal transaction unless one spouse obtains unfair advantage or obtains property for which no or clearly inadequate consideration has been given, and does not apply to postmarital agreement in which both spouses obtain advantages, both are represented by counsel, each is offered full access to other's records relating to marital assets, and both acknowledge in agreement that neither has obtained unfair advantage from agreement); In re Marriage of Kieturakis (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 56, 84-85, 87, 90, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 119 (presumption of undue influence applies to unequal marital settlement agreements, but not to marital settlement agreements reached through mediation, agreements in which parties acknowledge that no undue influence was exercised, or when undue influence is alleged with respect to judgment that has long been final); In re Marriage of Campbell (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1058, 1065, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 580 (declining to apply presumption of undue influence when validity of transmutation had not first been established, in case involving spouse's premarital property held in that spouse's name alone)]. If applicable presumptions conflict, the presumption of undue influence prevails over the presumption based on record title and the presumption that property acquired in joint tenancy by a married couple is community property [In re Marriage of Delaney (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 991, 997-999, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 378 ; see Evid. Code § 662; Fam. Code § 2581].

Generally, a spouse obtains an advantage if that spouse's position is improved, he or she obtains a favorable opportunity, or he or she otherwise gains, benefits, or profits [In re Marriage of Mathews (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 624, 629, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1] . For example, a husband receives an advantage or benefit from his wife's execution of a quitclaim deed to real property in his favor, so that the property becomes his separate property. The husband has the burden of establishing that the wife's execution of the quitclaim deed was freely and voluntarily made, with full knowledge of all the facts, and with a complete understanding of its effect of making the property the husband's separate property [In re Marriage of Mathews (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 624, 630, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1] . The evidentiary standard required to rebut a presumption of undue influence is a preponderance of the evidence, not clear and convincing evidence [In re Marriage of Mathews (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 624, 630-632, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1] .

For a detailed discussion of the fiduciary duty between spouses, see Gray & Wagner, Complex Issues in California Family Law, Vol. A: Fiduciary Duties--Nature and Effect: Understanding Interspousal Fiduciary Duties in Current Family Law Practice; Vol. B: Fiduciary Duties--A Practical Approach: Handling Fiduciary Duty Issues in the Day-to-Day Practice of Family Law (Matthew Bender).

[b] Applicability to Postseparation Activities

In addition to their general fiduciary duty toward one another, which applies until "the property is divided by the parties or by a court" [Fam. Code § 1100(e)], separated spouses have a specific duty of disclosure imposed by statute [Fam. Code §§ 2102, 2113 (operative January 1, 1993, and applicable to any proceeding commenced on or after that date)]. The statutory requirements reflect a strong public policy in favor of full disclosure between the spouses of community, quasi-community, and separate assets and liabilities, and the related policy that protects a spouse's interest on dissolution in obtaining a fair division of assets, fair attorney's fees, and fair child and spousal support awards [see Schnabel v. Superior Court (1994) 5 Cal. 4th 704, 711, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 200, 854 P.2d 1117 (discussing requirement of disclosure of information between spouses].

From the date of separation to the date of the distribution of the community or quasi-community asset or liability in question, each party is subject to the standards set forth in Fam. Code § 721, concerning all activities that affect the property rights of the other party, including, but not limited to, the following activities [Fam. Code § 2102]:

> (1) The accurate and complete disclosure of all assets and liabilities in which the party has or may have an interest or obligation and all current earnings, accumulations, and expenses, including an immediate, full, and accurate update or augmentation to the extent there have been any material changes;
>
> (2) The accurate and complete written disclosure of any investment opportunity, business opportunity, or other income-producing opportunity that presents itself after the date of separation, but that results from any investment, significant business activity outside the ordinary course of business, or other income-producing opportunity of either spouse from the date of marriage to the date of separation, inclusive. The written disclosure must be made in sufficient time for the other spouse to make an informed decision as to whether he or she desires to participate in the investment opportunity, business, or other potential income-producing opportunity, and for the court to resolve any dispute regarding the right of the other spouse to participate in the opportunity; and

(3) The operation or management of a business or an interest in a business in which the community may have an interest.

These standards may compel the disclosure of information in which third parties have a privacy interest, such as financial and tax documents of a closely-held corporation, if on balance a spouse's need for the information is determined to outweigh the third party's privacy interests [Schnabel v. Superior Court (1992) 5 Cal. 4th 704, 715-723, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 200, 854 P.2d 1117] .

With respect to an investment, business, or other income-producing opportunity, as described above, in the event of its nondisclosure, the division of any gain resulting from that investment opportunity will be governed by the standard set forth in Fam. Code § 2556 [Fam. Code § 2102(a)(2)]. That section authorizes a postjudgment motion or order to show cause to divide a previously unadjudicated community asset or debt, and requires a court to equally divide the asset or debt unless the court finds on good cause shown that the interests of justice require an unequal division [see Fam. Code § 2556].

With regard to all activities that affect the assets or liabilities of the other party, each party continues to be subject to the standards provided in Fam. Code § 721 from the date that a valid, enforceable, and binding resolution of the disposition of the asset or liability in question is reached, until the asset or liability has actually been distributed. Once a particular asset or liability has been distributed, the duties and standards set forth in Section 721 ends [Fam. Code § 2102(b); see In re Marriage of Hixson (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1125, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 483 (former husband's duty to share investment opportunities expired when community's existing investments were distributed)].

With regard to all issues relating to child or spousal support and professional fees, each party is subject to the standards provided in Fam. Code § 721, including immediate, full, and accurate disclosure of all material facts and information regarding the income and expenses of the party from the date of separation to the date of a valid, enforceable, and binding resolution of the issues [Fam. Code § 2102(c)].

Notwithstanding these statutory disclosure requirements, the spousal duty of "good faith" does not require parties to expose themselves to criminal prosecution through the violation of a penal statute, or to incur the civil liability attendant to a violation of the securities laws. Thus, for example, even though a spouse may acquire information as a corporate "insider" about stock in which the community has an interest, state disclosure laws cannot require that spouse to violate federal securities laws that prohibit the release of information about the stock from the "insider" [see In re Marriage of Reuling (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1428, 1435-1437 , 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 (husband had no duty under Fam. Code § 1100(e) to disclose "insider" information about stock value, because federal laws governing insider trading preempt state disclosure laws)]. Furthermore, after separation, although one party may not prevent the other from discovering the true value of a community asset, he or she can apparently take a position on the value of that asset that is favorable to that party [see In re Marriage of Melton (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 931, 938, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 761 (court distinguished "sharp practice" from extrinsic fraud)].

Finally, the disclosure statutes provide for the payment of reasonable attorney's fees or costs incurred, or both, as a result of "the failure to comply with any provision of this chapter [of the Family Code]," unless a court finds that the noncomplying party acted with substantial justification or that other circumstances make the imposition of the sanction unjust [Fam. Code § 2107(c)]. This language appears to apply to the above disclosure provisions, though it follows a provision dealing with specific property disclosure procedures during family law proceedings. For discussion of these special procedures, which apply in proceedings commenced on or after January 1, 1993 [see Fam. Code §§ 2100 et seq., 2113], see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure .

[c] Questions Regarding Current Statutes

As with previous versions of the "good faith" statutes (discussed in § 122.51[5]), the current versions of Fam. Code §§ 721 and 1100 raise several questions concerning the fiduciary or confidential duty between spouses.

First, the amendments setting forth the current versions of Fam. Code §§ 721 and 1100 became operative January 1, 1992, but the extent to which they may apply retroactively to transactions occurring before that date is unclear, especially in light of the stated legislative intent to "clarify" existing law [see Stats. 1991, ch. 1026, § 2; Stats. 1992, ch. 162 (repealing former Civ. Code §§ 5103 and 5125 and reenacting them, without substantive changes, as Fam. Code §§ 721 and 1100, effective January 1, 1994); In re Marriage of Reuling (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1428, 1435-1437, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 (dicta discussing meaning of intent "to clarify" management standards of Fam. Code §§ 721, 1100); see also In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 91, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403 (1986 amendments to former Civ. Code § 5125(e) were considered retroactive)]. One court has suggested, in dicta, however, that the statutes are not retroactive, because they impose new obligations and thus do more than simply reiterate or "clarify" existing law [In re Marriage of Reuling (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1428, 1438-1441, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 ; but cf. In re Marriage of Quay (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 961, 972-973, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537 (newer fiduciary standard, which became effective during parties' dissolution proceedings, held to apply, given particular circumstances of case)].

Second, the statutes refer to "fiduciary relationship" and "confidential relationship" interchangeably [see Fam. Code § 721(b) ("[t]his confidential relationship is a fiduciary relationship"), Fam. Code § 1100(e) ("Each spouse shall act ... in accordance with the general rules governing fiduciary relationships which control ... persons having relationships of personal confidence")]. However, case law has distinguished between these two relationships. The courts have defined a "confidential relationship" as the reposing of trust and confidence by one person in another who is aware thereof [see, e.g., Vai v. Bank of America (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 329, 337-338, 15 Cal. Rptr. 71, 364 P.2d 247] . A confidential relationship ends when the party who trusted and confided in the other withdraws that reliance [see, e.g., Vai v. Bank of America (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 329, 338, 15 Cal. Rptr. 71, 364 P.2d 247] . In contrast, a "fiduciary relationship" exists when one person controls another's property, and the relationship continues so long as the fiduciary may exercise that control [Vai v. Bank of America (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 329, 338, 15 Cal. Rptr. 71, 364 P.2d 247 ; In re Marriage of Coffin (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 150-155, 133 Cal. Rptr. 583] . These two relationships may exist simultaneously or separately [Vai v. Bank of America (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 329, 337-338, 15 Cal. Rptr. 71, 364 P.2d 247 ; see Estate of Cover (1922) 188 Cal. 133, 143, 204 P. 583 (confidential relationship existed without fiduciary one); In re Marriage of Coffin (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 150-155, 133 Cal. Rptr. 583 (confidential relationship ceased but fiduciary duties continued)]. Under the current statutes, the standard to apply to the relationship between spouses remains unclear because of the failure to recognize the legal distinction between confidential and fiduciary relationships.

Third, the current statutes have completely eliminated references to trust law contained in previous versions [see former Civ. Code §§ 5103, 5125], but they have continued the reference to spouses as trustees. Fam. Code § 721(b)(3) provides that a spouse holds as trustee any benefit or profit derived from any transaction concerning community property made without the consent of the other spouse. This provision is similar to the partnership statute on accounting for benefits and profits [see Corp. Code § 15021 (repealed, operative January 1, 1999); cf. Corp. Code § 16404], and therefore may be interpreted accordingly to the duties owed by partners [see, e.g., Leff v. Gunter (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 508, 514-518, 189 Cal. Rptr. 377, 658 P.2d 740] . However, it could also create confusion in light of the uncertainties expressed in prior case law over application of trust laws to the marital relationship.

Fourth, the current statutes do not define the parameters of fiduciary or confidential relationships, but merely specify some of the obligations that are included. Thus, a spouse must fully disclose information on any transaction that concerns community property on request [see Fam. Code § 721(b)(2)], but the spouse may still dispose of certain community property without the other's consent, subject to the trustee provisions discussed in § 122.51[4][a] [see Fam. Code § 721(b)(3)], unless otherwise prohibited by statute [see Fam. Code §§ 1100(b), (c) (personal property), Fam. Code § 1102(a) (real property)]. Although a spouse's disposal of community property is limited by the requirement that he or she act with the highest good faith and to avoid taking unfair advantage of the other spouse, along with other statutory limitations, the extent of these duties remains undefined [see Fam. Code § 721(b)]. For example, a spouse who receives inadequate but legal consideration for community property may have acted with the highest good faith, and therefore may not be liable for a breach of the statutory fiduciary duty even if the other spouse were harmed. Similarly, a spouse who negligently mismanages community property may nevertheless have acted with the highest good faith and without taking unfair advantage of the other spouse.

A final concern with the interpretation of Fam. Code §§ 721 and 1100 is the connection between partnership laws and marital rights and duties. Fam. Code § 721(b) sets forth rights and duties that are included within the fiduciary or confidential relationship, suggesting that there are others not mentioned. The specified rights and duties closely follow the partnership statutes referred to in Fam. Code § 721(b), with changes that reflect the status of the parties as spouses instead of business partners. Fam. Code § 721(b)(3) includes among the rights and duties (of nonmarital business partners) imposed on spouses an accounting of benefits or profits derived from a transaction lacking consent that concerns community property, though an accounting is also available as one of the more general remedies authorized under Fam. Code § 1101. In light of the repetition of these rights and duties in Fam. Code § 721(b), the legislative intent in also making the partnership laws applicable is unclear. The effect, however, may be to make case law related to the rights and duties of partners applicable to the relationship between spouses.

[5] Good Faith Requirements Under Prior Law

[a] Changing Nature of Good Faith Duty

The general principle that a duty of good faith is presumed to exist between spouses is of long standing. However, the nature of that duty has been variously interpreted by the courts in light of different legislative enactments [see In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 90-91, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403 (historical review of good-faith duty); In re Marriage of Alexander (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 677, 682-684, 261 Cal. Rptr. 9] . The current standards for managing and controlling community property, discussed in § 122.51[4][a], do not extend to management and control activities that occurred while different statutory standards were in effect [In re Marriage of Coffin (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 154-155, 133 Cal. Rptr. 583] .

[b] Pre-1975 Law

The validity of pre-1975 management and control activities is governed by the pre-1975 version of former Civ. Code § 5103, which provided that in transactions between themselves, spouses occupied confidential relations with each other, as defined by the laws governing trustees [see former Civ. Code § 5103; Stats. 1969, ch. 1608 (reenacting without substantive change former Civ. Code § 158, enacted 1872); see also former Civ. Code § 2215 et seq. (now see Prob. Code § 15000 et seq.)]. The courts interpreted the confidential relationship between spouses as imposing fiduciary duties with respect to each other in the management and control of community property [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Modnick (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 897, 905, 191 Cal. Rptr. 629, 663 P.2d 187 (discussing pre-1975 transaction); Vai v. Bank of America (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 329, 337, 15 Cal. Rptr. 71, 364 P.2d 247 ; Estate of Cover (1922) 188 Cal. 133, 143, 204 P. 583] . For example, the managing spouse was required to make full disclosure to the other spouse regarding the existence and use of community property [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Modnick (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 897, 905-906, 191 Cal. Rptr. 629, 663 P.2d 187 (discussing pre-1975 transaction); Williams v. Williams (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 560, 566-568, 92 Cal. Rptr. 385] .

The courts tended to reject strict application in a community property context of the trustee statutes that required prudent business practices in the management of trust property and absolute loyalty to the beneficiary's interests [see former Civ. Code § 2215 et seq.; see, e.g., Marsh v. Home Fed. Sav. & Loan Assn. (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 674, 684, 136 Cal. Rptr. 180 ; MacIsaac v. Pozzo (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 278, 285, 183 P.2d 910] . These standards were found inappropriate because a spouse, unlike a trustee, may use the property for his or her own advantage, as well as that of the other spouse, and should be free to transfer personal property without the burden of ensuring prudent management. Thus, the courts generally refused to hold the managing spouse liable as a fiduciary for negligent mismanagement of community funds, provided no unfair advantage was taken of the other spouse [see Bank of California v. Connolly (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 350, 377-378, 111 Cal. Rptr. 468 ; Williams v. Williams (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 560, 567, 92 Cal. Rptr. 385] . The managing spouse also had no fiduciary duty while dissolution proceedings were pending to provide the other spouse with information that was readily accessible through discovery or public sources [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Connolly (1979) 153 Cal. Rptr. 423, 591 P.2d 911 (value of stock); Boeseke v. Boeseke (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 844, 849-850, 112 Cal. Rptr. 401, 519 P.2d 161 (value of property)]. This case law remains applicable to management and control decisions made before 1975 [see Stats. 1973, ch. 987; see also In re Marriage of Coffin (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 154-155, 133 Cal. Rptr. 583] .

[c] Post-1974 Law

Effective January 1, 1975, former Civ. Code § 5125 was amended to give spouses equal rights in the management and control of community property and to impose a duty of good faith on the spouses in that regard. The amendment was not retroactive, and therefore it affected management and control decisions made only after that date [see Stats. 1973, ch. 987]. The amendment did not indicate whether the good-faith duty it imposed was connected with the confidential relations presumed to exist under former Civ. Code § 5103 [see former Civ. Code § 5125(e), as amended by Stats 1973, ch. 987; see also In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 90, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403] .

The courts of appeal conflicted in their interpretation of the 1975 amendment to former Civ. Code § 5125(e). In 1983, one appellate court declared that a husband, who had sole management and control of community property since 1980, had a good-faith duty as a fiduciary under Civ. Code § 5125(e). The court analogized to the fiduciary duties owed by business partners [see In re Marriage of Munguia (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 853, 859, 195 Cal. Rptr. 199 (citing Leff v. Gunter (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 508, 514-518, 189 Cal. Rptr. 377, 658 P.2d 740)]. However, in 1984, another appellate court determined that the good-faith duty imposed by former Civ. Code § 5125(e) with respect to management and control decisions was less than the fiduciary duty developed in the case law related to former Civ. Code § 5103 [In re Marriage of Stevenot (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 1051, 1068,202 Cal. Rptr. 116 ; see In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 90, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403 ; see also In re Marriage of Cairo (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1255, 1261, 251 Cal. Rptr. 731 (following Stevenot)].

The Legislature subsequently amended former Civ. Code § 5125(e), effective July 1, 1987, to provide that spouses were subject to the rules that control persons who have confidential relationships, as specified in former Civ. Code § 5103. This duty included an obligation to fully disclose the existence of community assets and debts [see former Civ. Code § 5125(e), as amended by Stats. 1986, ch. 1091; now see Fam. Code § 721(b)]. Certain remedies were available for transactions or events that occurred in breach of the duty on or after July 1, 1987 [see former Civ. Code § 5125.1(d)(4); now see Fam. Code § 1101(a), (d)(4)].

This amendment resulted in further confusion over whether to apply trust law to interpret the extent of the confidential relations between spouses [compare In re Marriage of Alexander (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 677, 682-684, 261 Cal. Rptr. 9 , with In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 91, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403] . Effective July 1, 1987, the provisions of the Civil Code governing trustees [see former Civ. Code § 2215 et seq.] were repealed when the Trust Law was enacted as part of the Probate Code [see Prob. Code § 15000 et seq.]. To conform to the repeal, former Civ. Code § 5103 was amended to delete the reference to the former trustee statutes. Because the California Law Revision's comments regarding this amendment stated that the amendment was not intended to affect the law substantively [see Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to former Civ. Code § 5103], it was arguable that the statutory duties of trustees under the new Trust Law would apply to relations between spouses [see, e.g., Prob. Code §§ 16002 (loyalty), 16004 (conflicts of interest)]. However, the 1986 amendment to former Civ. Code § 5125(e), also effective July 1, 1987, specifically provided that the confidential relations between spouses in management and control of community property were to be interpreted in accordance with the case law related to former Civ. Code § 5103, but not with case law applicable to the former trustee statutes. Moreover, the standard of care was to be interpreted as not less than that of good faith in confidential relations, but not as high as that established by the former trustee statutes [see In re

Marriage of Czapar (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1308, 1318, 285 Cal. Rptr. 479 ; former Civ. Code § 5125(e), as amended by Stats. 1986, ch. 1091].

The 1986 amendment did not increase the good-faith obligation to any large extent [see In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 89-91, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403 ; see also In re Marriage of Alexander (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 677, 682-684, 261 Cal. Rptr. 9] . The amendment merely extended the good-faith duty between spouses to post-separation management and control until the parties or the court divided the community property [see In re Marriage of Alexander (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 677, 682-684, 261 Cal. Rptr. 9] .

[6] Gifts of Community Personal Property

[a] Consent Requirements

A spouse may not make a gift of community personal property, or otherwise dispose of community personal property for less than fair and reasonable value, without the written consent of the other spouse. However, neither fair and reasonable value nor written consent is required if the gift is mutually given by both spouses to third parties. Moreover, these restrictions do not apply to gifts of community personal property given by one spouse to the other [Fam. Code § 1100(b)].

In addition, the fact that a statute permits a person to designate someone other than his or her surviving spouse as the recipient on death of property in which that spouse may have a community interest, such as unpaid wages earned during marriage, does not necessarily preclude the surviving spouse from asserting an otherwise valid community claim to the property [see Willis v. State of California (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 287, 292, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 413 (right to last wages of deceased state employee)].

If the gift involves a nonprobate transfer of community property that is intended to become effective on the death of the donor spouse, special rules concerning the nondonor spouse's consent may also be applicable in a particular case [see Prob. Code § 5010 et seq.; for discussion, see § 122.56].

Before January 1, 1992, a spouse could not give away or otherwise dispose of community personal property without a valuable consideration, as discussed in § 122.51[6][c], unless the consent of the other spouse was obtained [see former Civ. Code § 5125(b); see also In re Marriage of Stephenson (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1057, 1071, 209 Cal. Rptr. 383] .

[b] Determining Fair and Reasonable Value

The appellate courts have not yet construed the term "fair and reasonable value" in the context of the requirement of Fam. Code § 1100(b) that a spouse disposing of community personal property obtain either fair and reasonable value for the property or the other spouse's consent to the disposition. Apparently, the 1991 legislative amendment substituting "fair and reasonable value" for "valuable consideration" was intended to prevent a spouse from incurring a loss to the marital community from which the nondonor spouse would have no recourse by unilaterally disposing of community personal property for valuable but inadequate consideration [see Bank of California v. Connolly (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 350, 377, 111 Cal. Rptr. 468 ("valuable consideration" requirement of former Civ. Code § 5127 as not requiring adequate consideration)].

[c] Valuable-Consideration Requirement of Prior Law

Before January 1, 1992, a spouse making a unilateral disposition of personal property was required to obtain either the other spouse's consent to the disposition or "valuable consideration" for the property [former Civ. Code § 5125(b), prior to amendment by Stats. 1991, ch. 1026]. The case law interpreting the pre-1992 statute should remain applicable to transfers made before 1992.

"Valuable consideration" has been consistently equated with "good consideration," which is defined by Civil Code Section 1605 as any benefit conferred, or agreed to be conferred, on the promisor, by any other person, to which the promisor is not lawfully entitled, or any prejudice suffered, or agreed to be suffered, by such person, other than such as he or she is at the time of consent lawfully bound to suffer, as an inducement to the promisor [Gantner v. Johnson (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 869, 877, 79 Cal. Rptr. 381] . Thus, "valuable consideration" does not mean "adequate consideration," that is, consideration substantially equal in value, measured in terms of money, to the value of the property allegedly given [Bank of California v. Connolly (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 350, 377, 111 Cal. Rptr. 468 ; see Willis v. Board of Administration (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 779, 782-783, 226 Cal. Rptr. 567 (husband's election to increase lifetime disability retirement benefits with resulting decrease in survivor benefits was made for valuable consideration in that husband received more income for his family during his lifetime)]. Apparently, the statutory amendment replacing "valuable consideration" with "fair and reasonable value" was intended to prevent spouses from unilaterally disposing of community personal property for inadequate consideration.

Valuable consideration may include the discharge of a legal obligation, such as the discharge of a premarital debt of one of the spouses [see, e.g., Burgart v. Burgart (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 409, 412-413, 85 Cal. Rptr. 122] . For example, in one case, the husband used community property to pay debts and to discharge liabilities incurred in connection with the property settlement agreement which accompanied the termination of his first marriage. The court of appeal rejected the second wife's contention that in using community property to pay his premarital debt to his first wife the husband was making an unauthorized gift of community property of the second marriage [Burgart v. Burgart (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 409, 412-413, 85 Cal. Rptr. 122] .

A contrary result is reached, however, if community funds are used to discharge an illegal, and thus unenforceable, obligation incurred by one of the spouses, such as a gambling debt. Such a transfer is entirely without valuable consideration and may be set aside in its entirety during the transferor-spouse's lifetime [Novo v. Hotel Del Rio (1956) 141 Cal. App. 2d 304, 307-308, 295 P.2d 576] .

Receipt of tax benefits by the nondonor-spouse as the result of a gift does not alone constitute valuable consideration. In a decision involving savings accounts for minors under the former Uniform Gifts to Minors Act [former Civ. Code § 1154 et seq.; now see Prob. Code § 3900 et seq. (Uniform Transfers to Minors Act)], one court of appeal held that receipt of tax benefits attributable to the accounts did not destroy their status as gifts. The court permitted the nondonor-spouse to void transfers of community property made to the accounts without her written consent [In re Marriage of Stephenson (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1057, 1073, 209 Cal. Rptr. 383] .

[d] Ratification of Previous Gift

A spouse may give written consent to a gift of community property after the gift has been made as well as before [see Spreckels v. Spreckels (1916) 172 Cal. 775, 787-788, 158 P. 537] . Consent given after the gift was made is referred to as "ratification."

In one instance, ratification occurred when a husband made substantial gifts of community assets to three of five children, and the wife subsequently provided in her will that the remainder of the estate was to go to the other two children because their father had already provided for the three donee-children. This will clause was construed as ratification of the husband's prior gift of community property [Spreckels v. Spreckels (1916) 172 Cal. 775, 787-788, 158 P. 537] .

[e] Consent by Conservator of Nondonor Spouse

If one spouse has legal capacity and the other spouse has a conservator of the estate, the consent requirement is satisfied if the court-approved joinder and consent of the conservator [see Prob. Code § 3072] and the joinder or consent of the spouse with legal capacity are obtained [Prob. Code § 3071(a), (b)]. A somewhat different situation is presented when a spouse is incapable of giving consent to a gift of community property because of incompetency, and the donor-spouse is the conservator of the incompetent spouse. As conservator he or she has some power to deal with the property of the conservatee, although the general rule is that a conservator does not have the power to dispose of the conservatee's property by way of gift. To overcome this rule, the conservator-donor must show either that court permission has sanctioned the gift of the incompetent's community interest or that the incompetent spouse would have approved the gifts had he or she been competent at the time [Harris v. Harris (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 367, 370-371, 19 Cal. Rptr. 793, 369 P.2d 481 (decided under prior law); see Prob. Code § 2580 et seq. (substituted judgment doctrine), 3072 (consent of conservator of estate)].

[7] Setting Aside of Improper Gifts by Nondonor Spouse

[a] Showing Required

If one spouse gives community personal property to third parties, the other spouse must show both of the following to have the gift set aside [see Fam. Code § 1100(b); see also Metzger v. Vestal (1935) 2 Cal. 2d 517, 522, 42 P.2d 67 ; Gantner v. Johnson (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 869, 877, 79 Cal. Rptr. 381] :

(1) A lack of written or mutual consent to the gift; and

(2) A lack of fair and reasonable value in exchange for the property.

[b] Survival of Right to Set Aside Gift

The present interest of a spouse in the community property [see Fam. Code § 751] and his or her right to dispose of one half of the community property by will [see Prob. Code § 6101] are property rights that are invaded by the other spouse's gift of community property without his or her consent. The cause of action for the violation of a property right survives the death of the owner of the right [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 366.1, 377.20; Prob. Code §§ 7000, 7001]. Thus, the right to set aside unilateral gifts of community property survives the death of the nonconsenting spouse and may be exercised by his or her personal representative [Harris v. Harris (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 367, 370, 19 Cal. Rptr. 793, 369 P.2d 481 ; cf. Prob. Code § 5010 et seq. (nonprobate transfers of community property intended to be effective on death)].

[c] Relief From Estate of Deceased Donor Spouse

It appears that under certain circumstances a surviving spouse seeking relief from an unauthorized gift of community property made during the decedent's lifetime may proceed directly against the donor-spouse's estate, rather than bringing an action against the donee. In a case involving suit by a surviving spouse against the estate of her husband, the court, in holding that a cause of action was stated, drew an analogy to the right of a beneficiary of a trust to elect to hold the trustee personally liable for dissipation of trust funds [Fields v. Michael (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 443, 447, 205 P.2d 402] . The court said that a spouse whose community property rights have been violated is entitled to pursue whatever course is best calculated to give effective relief. When the amount of the gifts and the identity of the donees are known and the property can be readily reached, suit against the donees to recover the plaintiff's community share of the gift may be more advantageous to the plaintiff-spouse than an action against the estate of the donor-spouse, because the assets of the latter may be insufficient to satisfy a judgment. On the other hand, when recourse against the donees would be ineffective--as when donees are no longer living, are living in diverse places, or have dissipated the gifts--a denial of a right to proceed against the donor's estate would amount to a concession that the law is powerless to accord to the plaintiff's community interest the full protection that Fam. Code § 1100(b) was designed to ensure [see Fields v. Michael (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 443, 448-449, 205 P.2d 402 (construing former Civ. Code § 172)].

The court expressly found it unnecessary to decide whether the plaintiff spouse had a direct cause of action against the decedent spouse before his death, but indicated its belief that such a cause of action did in fact exist, based on a tort theory that the decedent spouse was guilty of wrongful acts for which the plaintiff spouse was entitled to redress [Fields v. Michael (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 443, 451, 205 P.2d 402 ; see Wilcox v. Wilcox (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 457, 459, 98 Cal. Rptr. 319 (husband as stating cause of action against wife for purposely secreting $30,000 worth of community property)]. Factors that may have justified barring an action during the decedent spouse's lifetime when the case was decided in 1949 (the public policy to forbid vexatious and unnecessary litigation between spouses, and the fact that during the marriage the husband had control and management of the community property, of which he could be divested only by statutory procedure) are less compelling today, because statutory changes have provided for equal management and control of community property [see Stats. 1973, ch. 987].

The general principles discussed above are subject to special rules governing nonprobate transfers of community property that are intended to become effective on the death of the donor spouse [see Prob. Code § 5010 et seq.; for discussion, see § 122.56[1]].

[d] Estoppel to Set Aside Gift

A spouse may be estopped from challenging a gift of community property made by the other spouse without his or her consent if the nondonor spouse would be unjustly enriched by an order voiding the gift, or if the donee has changed position because of the gift so as to be unconscionably injured if the gift is voided [In re Marriage of Stephenson (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1057, 1072, 209 Cal. Rptr. 383 ; see In re Marriage of Stallworth (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 742, 753, 237 Cal. Rptr. 829 (evidence that spouse knew of or participated in opening of savings account for minor was insufficient as basis for waiver or estoppel)].

[e] Nondonor Spouse as One of Donees

Cases in which the nondonor-spouse is one of the recipients of the gift pose special problems. It has been unsuccessfully argued that in such a case, the donee-spouse is entitled to that portion of the property given to him or her and is further entitled to one-half of the property given to the other donees. Courts analyzing this situation have held that the donee-spouse must elect at the time of the gift either to accept the offered portion of the gift, thereby precluding further objection, or to attack the entire gift and assert his or her lack of consent as a basis for the attack. If the latter course is chosen, the rule applies that if the gift is made during the lifetime of the donor-spouse, the entire gift is set aside, and the community property which was the subject of the gift is restored to its community status. If the gift is made after death of the donor-spouse, the gift is avoided to the extent of the donee-spouse's community interest [see Lahaney v. Lahaney (1929) 208 Cal. 323, 327-328, 281 P. 67 ; see also Mazman v. Brown (1936) 12 Cal. App. 2d 272, 273-277, 55 P.2d 539] .

[8] Life and Other Insurance Proceeds

[a] Policy Purchased With Community Funds

If the premiums on a life insurance policy are paid with community funds, the proceeds from the policy after the death of the insured are community property [Grimm v. Grimm (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 173, 175, 157 P.2d 841] .

If a married person designates someone other than his or her spouse as the named beneficiary of a life insurance policy paid for with community funds, without receiving fair and reasonable value (or, for transactions before January 1, 1992, valuable consideration (former Civ. Code § 5125(b), prior to amendment by Stats. 1991, ch. 1026)) or the spouse's consent, on the death of the insured spouse the other spouse is entitled to set aside the gift of proceeds to the named beneficiary to the extent of one half of the community interest in the proceeds [Tyre v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 399, 404, 6 Cal. Rptr. 13, 353 P.2d 725 ; Patillo v. Norris (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 209, 217, 135 Cal. Rptr. 210 ; see Fam. Code § 1100(b); see § 122.93]. The theory is that the insured spouse has the power to give his or her half of the community property proceeds to the named beneficiary, but not the other spouse's half. However, a change in life insurance beneficiaries to fulfill existing support obligations is not a gift, particularly when ordered by a court [

Burgart v. Burgart (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 409, 412-413, 85 Cal. Rptr. 122 ; In re Marriage of O'Connell (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 565, 580, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334] . Thus, in a case in which the court ordered a spouse to name his former wife and a minor child of that marriage as beneficiaries of a life insurance policy purchased with community property of his second marriage, his second wife could not have the designation set aside as an unauthorized gift of community property [In re Marriage of O'Connell (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 565, 580, 10 Cal. Rptr 2d 334] .

The rule that the surviving spouse has a right to set aside one half of an unauthorized gift of the proceeds of a community property life insurance policy applies to policies issued under the Federal Employees' Group Life Insurance Program [Carlson v. Carlson (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 474, 476, 113 Cal. Rptr. 722, 521 P.2d 1114 , cert. denied, 419 U.S. 1105] . In addition, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals has held that the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA-- 29 U.S.C. § 1001 et seq.) does not preempt the portion of California community property law that requires distribution of insurance proceeds from a community property-funded insurance policy to a person other than the beneficiary named by the insured (ERISA plan participant), and does not preempt California's law of constructive trusts. Thus, the Court upheld the right of a surviving spouse to seek at least one-half of the proceeds of a term life insurance policy (under an ERISA-regulated employee welfare benefit plan) maintained during marriage through payment of premiums from community funds, even though the decedent's former spouse remained the named beneficiary of the policy [Emard v. Hughes Aircraft Co. (9th Cir. 1998) 153 F.3d 949, 952, 957 , cert. denied, 142 L. Ed. 2d 902 (1999)] .

However, the set aside rule does not apply to National Service Life Insurance policies, even if the premiums are paid with community property [Wissner v. Wissner (1950) 338 U.S. 655, 658-659, 70 S. Ct. 398, 94 L. Ed. 424 ; In re Marriage of Milhan (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 129, 131-133, 117 Cal. Rptr. 809, 528 P.2d 1145 , cert. denied, 421 U.S. 976] .

The foregoing principles are also subject to special rules governing nonprobate transfers of community property that are intended to become effective on the death of the donor spouse [see Prob. Code § 5010 et seq.; for discussion, see § 122.56[1]].

[b] Policy Purchased With Separate Property Funds

To the extent that the premiums were paid with the insured's separate property, the insured is free to name the beneficiary without regard to the other spouse's wishes. If the proceeds are attributable in part to community property and in part to separate property, it is the duty of the trial court, in an action to set aside the gift, to make an appropriate allocation of the proceeds [Biltoft v. Wootten (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 58, 62, 157 Cal. Rptr. 581 ; Patillo v. Norris (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 209, 217, 135 Cal. Rptr. 210] .

[c] Fair and Reasonable Value Given for Beneficiary Designation

If fair and reasonable value (or, for transactions before January 1, 1992, valuable consideration (former Civ. Code § 5125(b), prior to amendment by Stats. 1991, ch. 1026)) was paid for the designation of a beneficiary on a policy purchased with community funds, the surviving spouse has no cause of action, even though he or she did not consent to the designation. In one case, a husband agreed to designate his former wife as the beneficiary of life insurance policies as part of their marital termination agreement. The policies were paid for with community property from his second marriage. The designation of the former wife as beneficiary was pursuant to a legal obligation incurred by the husband in the marital termination agreement that he signed with his former wife. Discharging this legal obligation constituted valuable consideration. Thus, the second wife could not recover any of the proceeds after the husband's death on the theory that they constituted an unauthorized gift of community property [Burgart v. Burgart (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 409, 412-413, 85 Cal. Rptr. 122 (decided under former Civ. Code § 5125(b)); see In re Marriage of O'Connell (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 565, 576-580, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334 (no unauthorized gift of community property and no requirement of prior notice to current wife when former wife and minor child were added as beneficiaries on husband's life insurance policy pursuant to court order)].

[d] Spouse Named as One of Beneficiaries

When the donor-spouse attempts to dispose of his or her spouse's share of the insurance proceeds as well as his or her own share, and names the surviving spouse as one of the takers, the survivor must elect between community property rights and the donor's gift. If the gift is chosen, all inconsistent claims must be relinquished. Conversely, if the survivor elects to stand on community rights, he or she is disqualified as the beneficiary of the gift of insurance proceeds [Tyre v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 399, 406, 6 Cal. Rptr. 13, 353 P.2d 725] .

If the surviving spouse elects to stand on community property rights, the claim for proceeds of the policy should be filed with the insurer before it pays the designated beneficiary. Ins. Code § 10172 specifically discharges the insurer from liability for claims filed under the policy once the designated beneficiary has been paid unless the insurer receives written notice at its home office of any inconsistent claims before making payment. The insurer has no duty to give notice to potential claimants other than the named beneficiary or even to allow a reasonable time for the assertion of opposing claims to the proceeds of a policy. This is not a denial of due process [Leonard v. Occidental Life Ins. Co. (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 117, 120-124, 106 Cal. Rptr. 899] .

[9] Household Furnishings and Clothes

[a] Prohibition on Unilateral Conveyance

A spouse is prohibited from selling, conveying, or encumbering community personal property used as the family dwelling, or the furniture, furnishings, or fittings of the home, or the clothing or wearing apparel of the other spouse or minor children that is community personal property, without the written consent of the other spouse [Fam. Code § 1100(c)]. If one spouse has legal capacity and the other spouse has a conservator of the estate, the consent requirement is satisfied if both the court-approved [see Prob. Code § 3072] joinder or consent of the conservator of the estate and the joinder or consent of the spouse having legal capacity are obtained [Prob. Code § 3071(a), (b); see Prob. Code § 2580 et seq. (substituted judgment doctrine)]. Furthermore, unlike the rule respecting unilateral transfers of other types of community property [see Fam. Code § 1100(b); discussion in § 122.51[6][a]], payment of fair and reasonable value (or, for transactions before January 1, 1992, valuable consideration (former Civ. Code § 5125(b), prior to amendment by Stats. 1991, ch. 1026)) will not validate a unilateral transfer of household furnishings and clothes [see Fam. Code § 1100(b), (c)]. This limitation on a spouse's power to manage and control community personal property was carried over from former Civ. Code § 5125(c).

In the case of household furniture, there is no requirement that the furniture be located in any particular place. The test is whether it is furniture of the home as distinguished from furniture that might be used in commercial pursuits. Thus, even though household furniture is temporarily stored in a warehouse, its status as household furniture is not changed [Matthews v. Hamburger (1939) 36 Cal. App. 2d 182, 184, 97 P.2d 465] .

[b] Remedy for Violation of Prohibition

When a unilateral transfer of household furnishings or clothes that are community personal property takes place, the nonconsenting spouse has a right to have the property or its value restored to the community by the transferee [see Dynan v. Gallinatti (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 553, 556-557, 197 P.2d 391] . Ordinarily, the appropriate remedy would be a claim and delivery action under Code Civ. Proc. § 667 [see Civ. Code § 3379]. A form of petition for such an action is set forth in see § 122.91. For additional forms and procedure, see Ch. 119, Claim and Delivery .

In a case involving an action by a wife whose husband had deserted her and sold household furnishings stored in a warehouse, the court held the wife was entitled to recover the full value of the property from the defendant-transferee. The holding was based on the rule that a gift of community property without the consent of the nonmanaging spouse may be set aside in its entirety during the lifetime of the managing spouse and as to one-half after his or her death [

Matthews v. Hamburger (1939) 36 Cal. App. 2d 182, 184-185, 97 P.2d 465] . The application of this rule was erroneous in this case since a sale and not a gift of community property was involved. However, the holding was correct.

A preferable rationale for this result was suggested in a case involving the encumbrance of household furnishings by a husband who forged his wife's signature on both the note and mortgage, and had both signatures acknowledged before a notary public. The wife became aware of the encumbrance only when the mortgage was recorded after the husband's death. The mortgage holder subsequently filed a claim against the husband's estate, which the executrix wife rejected as a secured claim but accepted as an unsecured claim. The mortgagee then filed an action to foreclose the mortgage. In holding that the mortgage was void, the court rejected the mortgagee's contention that the rule for recovery for unauthorized gifts of community property should apply in this case and the wife should be permitted to set aside only half of the furnishings used to secure the loan. The court held that the clear purpose of the statutory limitation on the husband's power to control and manage community property is to render the furnishings of the home and the wearing apparel of the wife and minor children completely immune from execution or sale. The court also found that the property protected by this limitation was necessary for the maintenance of the surviving family--more necessary, in fact, after the death of the husband than during his lifetime when he would have been able to make proper provision for the support of the family [Dynan v. Gallinatti (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 553, 556-557, 197 P.2d 391] .

[c] Criminal Penalties for Destruction of Household Property

A husband or wife may be held criminally liable for intentionally causing harm to property in which the other spouse has an interest, whether the property is individual or marital, and whether the harm occurs inside or outside the marital home [People v. Wallace (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 144, 149, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 790] .

In one case [People v. Wallace (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 144, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 790] , a husband received a 25-to-life sentence for felony vandalism [see Penal Code § 594] after he caused more than $9,000 damage to his wife's house, in which he had acquired a small community property interest, and more than $6,000 damage to his wife's furniture and furnishings. The husband argued that a cohabiting spouse could not be guilty of vandalizing community or separate property inside the marital home. In affirming the husband's conviction, the appellate court broadened the holding of an earlier case [People v. Kahanic (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 461, 466, 241 Cal. Rptr. 722] that the vandalism statute applied to community property because "the essence of the crime is in the physical acts against the ownership interest of another" [People v. Wallace (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 144, 147-151, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 790] .

[10] Management and Control of Community Property Business

A spouse who is operating or managing a business or an interest in a business that is all or substantially all community personal property has the primary management and control of the business or interest [Fam. Code § 1100(d)]. The term "primary management and control" means that the managing spouse may act alone in all transactions but must give prior written notice to the other spouse of any sale, lease, exchange, encumbrance, or other disposition of all or substantially all of the personal property used in the operation of the business (including personal property used for agricultural purposes), whether or not title to that property is held in the name of one spouse only [Fam. Code § 1100(d)]. Written notice is not required, however, when prohibited by the law otherwise applicable to the transaction [Fam. Code § 1100(d)]. In addition, a change in the form of a business is not subject to the notice requirement [see Fam. Code § 1100(d)]. The rules regarding primary management and control of a community business are subordinate to the rules regarding the sale or leasing of community real property [see Fam. Code § 1102, discussed in § 122.52[3]], gifts of community property [see Fam. Code § 1100(b), discussed in § 122.51[6]], and disposition of household furnishings and clothes [Fam. Code § 1100(d); see Fam. Code § 1100(c), discussed in § 122.51[9][a]].

Before July 1, 1987, a spouse who was managing or operating a business or an interest in a business that was community personal property had "sole" powers of management and control of the business or interest [former Civ. Code § 5125(d) (prior to amendment by Stats. 1986, ch. 1091)]. The sole management and control rule continues to apply to management and control decisions made before July 1, 1987 [see Stats. 1986, ch. 1091, § 4].

Remedies for the failure of a managing spouse to give prior written notice to the other spouse as required by Fam. Code § 1100(d) are limited to those remedies specified in Fam. Code § 1101 [Fam. Code § 1100(d); see Fam. Code § 1101]. The failure to give prior written notice does not adversely affect the validity of a transaction nor of any interest transferred [Fam. Code § 1100(d)].

The above rules do not appear to change the character of the business as community personal property for purposes of division on dissolution. However, they do express a policy in favor of preventing community ownership rights from interfering with the efficient conduct of the business by the spouse who originated or developed it. Thus, in one case, relying in part on the pre-July 1, 1987, version of former Civ. Code § 5125(d) (now see Fam. Code § 1100(d)), the court of appeal refused to permit a former wife to revoke a voting trust agreement that allowed the former husband to continue in sole control of a business that he had developed during the marriage, even after ownership of stock in the company was divided between the parties on dissolution [Goss v. Edwards (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 264, 270, 137 Cal. Rptr. 252] . Nevertheless, a court is not necessarily required to award a community property business to the operating spouse [see In re Marriage of Kozen (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 1258, 1263, 230 Cal. Rptr. 304 (awarding more profitable of two fast-food franchises to nonoperating spouse and distinguishing Goss v. Edwards (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 264, 137 Cal. Rptr. 252)].

A spouse who is actually managing a community business has a duty to act in good faith towards the other spouse in the management and control of the business, just as with respect to any other community personal property being managed and controlled by a spouse [Fam. Code § 1100(e), discussed in § 122.71[2]]. A spouse who, for example, wastes community assets in the management of a community business may be required to reimburse the community for abusing the exercise of the right to management and control [see In re Marriage of Czapar (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1308, 1318, 285 Cal. Rptr. 479 (managing husband had business purchase car, make charitable contributions without wife's consent, and hire his girlfriend; decided under a prior good-faith standard, but holding on reimbursement apparently not abrogated by 1991 legislation concerning standard of care); see also In re Marriage of Quay (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 961, 972-973, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537 (risky loan assigned to husband who violated fiduciary duty while managing community assets)].

Furthermore, even after spouses separate, there is a continuing duty imposed by statute. From the date of separation to the date of the distribution of the community or quasi-community asset or liability in question, each party is subject to the standards set forth in Fam. Code § 721(b) with respect to all activities that affect the assets and liabilities, as well as issues relating to child or spousal support and professional fees of the other party, including the operation or management of a business, or an interest in a business, in which the community may have an interest [Fam. Code §§ 2102, 2113 (operative January 1, 1993, and applicable to any proceeding commenced on or after that date); see Schnabel v. Superior Court (1992) 5 Cal. 4th 704, 715-723, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 200, 854 P.2d 1117 (closely held corporation in which community has an interest may be required to disclose financial and tax information, notwithstanding privacy considerations, if spouse's need for the information outweighs corporation's privacy concerns)]. For further discussion, see § 122.51[4][b].

[11] Court Order Dispensing With Consent Requirements

In any transaction affecting community property in which the consent of both spouses is required, one spouse may move to dispense with the requirement of the other's consent [Fam. Code § 1101(e)]. The court may grant such a motion if both of the following requirements are met:

(1) The proposed transaction is in the best interest of the community [Fam Code § 1101(e)(1)]; and

(2) Consent has been arbitrarily refused or cannot be obtained due to the physical incapacity, mental incapacity, or prolonged absence of the nonconsenting spouse [Fam. Code § 1101(e)(2)].

A proceeding to dispense with consent may be brought in conjunction with an action for dissolution of marriage, legal separation, or nullity, or without filing such an action [Fam. Code § 1101(f)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Criminal Law & ProcedureCriminal OffensesFraudGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawCommunity PropertyGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawCommunity PropertyGiftsFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationCommunity Property

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Management And Control

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.52

§ 122.52 Management and Control of Community Real Property

[1] Equal Management and Control Rule

With the exception of property held in trust [see Fam. Code § 761; see also § 122.55[2]] or belonging to spouses one or both of whom are incompetent [see Fam. Code § 1103], either spouse has management and control of the community real property [Fam. Code § 1102(a)]. This rule applies regardless of whether the property was acquired before, on, or after January 1, 1975, the effective date of the equal management and control statute [Fam. Code § 1102(a); Stats. 1973, ch. 987].

A major qualification to the equal management and control rule for community real property requires that both spouses, either personally or by duly authorized agent, must join in executing any instrument by which community real property or any interest in it is sold, conveyed, encumbered, or leased for more than one year [Fam. Code § 1102(a); see Andrade Development Co. v. Martin (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 330, 333, 187 Cal. Rptr. 863 ; but see Fam. Code § 2033 (authorizing unilateral encumbrance of community realty to secure payment of attorney's fees in dissolution, nullity, or legal separation proceeding)]. This qualification is discussed in § 122.52[3].

Perhaps even more than with community personal property, problems are likely to arise when both spouses take an active role in the management and control of their community real property. It is conceivable, for example, that each spouse could lease the same community realty for less than a one year term without consulting the other spouse. These types of problems could adversely affect third persons such as a tenant on a short-term lease, or a person who has been hired to repair or improve the property. Practical alternatives to equal management and control, which may be utilized to prevent these problems, are discussed in § 122.70[1].

[2] Relevance of Prior Law

The equal management and control rule applies to all community real property whether acquired before, on, or after the January 1, 1975, effective date of the equal management and control statue [Fam. Code § 1102(a); see Stats. 1973, ch. 987]. However, this is the extent of its retroactivity. The rule of equal management and control does not extend to property transactions which occurred before January 1, 1975. The validity of these transactions is governed by the law in effect at the time the transaction occurred [In re Marriage of Coffin (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 154-155, 133 Cal. Rptr. 583] . Therefore, the former management and control statutes and cases decided under them still have direct relevance to pre-1975 property transactions.

The statutory requirement that both spouses join in sales, conveyances, encumbrances, or leases for more than one year (see § 122.52[3]) [see Fam. Code § 1102(a)] is a continuation of the restrictions placed on the husband's management and control under prior law [see former Civ. Code § 5127, before amendment by Stats. 1973, ch. 987]. Therefore, decisions concerning the application of these restrictions in transactions occurring before January 1, 1975, are relevant to the validity of transactions occurring after January 1, 1975.

[3] Joint Execution Rule

Subject to two rebuttable presumptions (see § 122.52[5]) and certain exceptions (see § 122.52[4]), both spouses, either personally or by a duly authorized agent, must execute any instrument by which community real property or any interest in that property is sold, encumbered, conveyed, or leased for more than one year [Fam. Code § 1102(a); see Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 30, 38, 46, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931 ; In re Marriage of Brooks & Robinson (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 176, 183, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 624 ; Andrade Development Co. v. Martin (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 330, 333, 187 Cal. Rptr. 863 ; see also Wolfe v. Lipsy (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 633, 642-643, 209 Cal. Rptr. 801 (under former Civ. Code § 1242, if a spouse attempted to encumber community realty that was jointly homesteaded before passage of Enforcement of Judgments Law, the encumbrance would be void; other portions of case may have been impliedly abrogated by Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 36, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931)]. Consequently, when a spouse, during the marriage, makes a timely challenge to the other spouse's unilateral sale, encumbrance, conveyance, or lease for more than one year of any community real property or real property interests, the transaction is voidable in its entirety [Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 30, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931 ; In re Marriage of Brooks & Robinson (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 176, 183, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 624] . Limitations on voidability after a marital dissolution or a transferor spouse's death are discussed in § 122.53[2][c].

Because such a unilateral transaction is voidable rather than void, and may be invalidated only by the nonconsenting spouse or his or her personal representative, a violation of Fam. Code § 1102(a) does not provide a means by which a third party creditor may challenge and void instruments signed by only one of the spouses [see Clar v. Cacciola (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1032, 1036-1037, 238 Cal. Rptr. 726 (former Civil Code § 5127, now see Fam. Code § 1102(a), was designed to protect spouse from unauthorized alienation or encumbering of community property by other spouse)]. However, the spousal right to set aside the transfer does not extinguish an underlying debt, change its character, or necessarily preclude execution against community property by a judgment creditor who has a lien against the property [Lezine v. Security Pacific Financial Services, Inc. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 56, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 76, 925 P.2d 1002 ; see § 122.53[2][c]]. Apart from the voidability of the transaction in whole or in part, as discussed in § 122.53[2][c], remedies for a nonconsensual transfer of community real property may include, for example, reimbursment to the community at the time of dissolution of the marriage [see In re Marriage of Lister (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 411, 417, 199 Cal. Rptr. 321] . Alternatively, if the transfer is discovered after the dissolution the nonconsenting spouse may seek modification of the dissolution judgment to equalize the community property division in light of the transfer, on equitable grounds or otherwise when the court has reserved its jurisdiction to make orders concerning that property [see Hyatt v. Mabie (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 541, 545-546, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 447 ; see generally Fam. Code § 2120 et seq.; In re Marriage of Ols (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1702, 1706-1707, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 306] . For discussion of significant, related statutory remedies for breach of the spousal fiduciary duty regarding joint execution of instruments of transfer under Fam. Code § 1102, which results in impairment of a spouse's one-half interest in the community estate, see § 122.53[1] [see Fam. Code § 1101]. For discussion of setting aside an unconsented to transfer, see § 122.53[2].

If one spouse has legal capacity and the other spouse has a conservator of the estate, the joinder requirement is satisfied if both the court-approved [see Prob. Code § 3072] joinder of the conservator of the estate and the joinder of the spouse having legal capacity are obtained [Prob. Code § 3071(a), (b)].

The joint execution requirement does not apply to leases, mortgages, conveyances, or transfers of community real property between husband and wife [Fam. Code § 1102(b)]. Therefore, a spouse can convey his or her interest in community real property to the other spouse in a deed signed by himself or herself alone [see MacKay v. Darusmont (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d 21, 26, 115 P.2d 221] , or, for that matter, by an agreement or other transfer meeting transmutation requirements [see Beam v. Bank of America (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 12, 25, 98 Cal. Rptr. 137, 490 P.2d 257] .

The joint execution requirement also does not apply when one spouse does not have an interest in the property as a matter of law [In re Marriage of Brooks & Robinson (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 176, 184, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 624] . For example, a husband is not required to join in a conveyance of real property when the wife took title to the property solely in her name. As a result, a presumption arose that the property was her separate property. The fact that the property was acquired during marriage does not rebut the form-of-title presumption. The act of taking title to property in the name of one spouse during marriage with the other spouse's consent effectively removes that property from the general community property presumption, and the property is presumably the separate property of the spouse in whose name title is taken [In re Marriage of Brooks & Robinson (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 176, 186-187, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 624] . The party asserting that title is other than as stated in the deed has the burden of proving that fact by clear and convincing evidence. The form-of-title presumption can be overcome only by clear and convincing evidence of an agreement or understanding between the parties that the title specified in the deed is not what the parties intended [In re Marriage of Brooks & Robinson (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 176, 189-190, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 624] . The presumption is not overcome by tracing the source of the funds used to purchase the property to community earnings, by the fact that the parties were married at the time one spouse acquired the property, by the other spouse's unilateral belief that the property belonged to both of them, or by an assertion that title was taken in one spouse's name only to facilitate financing of the property [In re Marriage of Brooks & Robinson (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 176, 190-192, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 624] .

Special rules govern nonprobate transfers of community real property intended to be effective on death [see Prob. Code § 5010 et seq.; for discussion, see § 122.56[1]].

[4] Exceptions to Joint Execution Rule

[a] Short-Term Leases and General Management Decisions

The joint execution requirement of Fam. Code § 1102(a) does not apply to leases of community realty for a term of less than one year. Similarly, the joint execution requirement does not apply to management and control decisions which do not involve a sale, conveyance, or encumbrance of community realty [see Fam. Code § 1102(a)]. Such decisions might include the following:

(1) Contracts with third parties to manage community income property;

(2) Contracts with third parties for the upkeep of community realty;

(3) Agreements to settle disputes with third parties not involving title to the property (e.g., a boundary dispute with a neighboring landowner) [see Janes v. Le Deit (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 474, 487, 39 Cal. Rptr. 559] ; and

(4) Listing agreements with real estate brokers to sell community realty [see Tamimi v. Bettencourt (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 377, 378-380, 52 Cal. Rptr. 273] .

Even though both spouses need not execute a written listing agreement to sell the property, a broker seeking to recover a commission under the listing agreement may be limited to recourse against the spouse who executed the agreement [see McDonald v. Bernard (1927) 87 Cal. App. 717, 718-719, 262 P. 430 ; see also Schurz v. Gelber (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 681, 685, 256 P.2d 634] because the statute of frauds makes enforceability of a listing agreement conditioned on the signature of the party to be charged [Civ. Code § 1624(d)].

[b] Encumbrance for Attorney's Fees in Marital Termination Proceeding

There is a special exception to the joint execution rule for encumbrances made to pay attorneys' fees in a proceeding to terminate the parties' marriage. Either spouse may, without the consent of the other spouse, encumber his or her interest in community real property for the purpose of paying reasonable attorney's fees to retain or maintain legal counsel in a proceeding for dissolution of marriage, nullity of marriage, or legal separation [Fam. Code § 2033(a) (abrogating Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931 , with respect to its holding on encumbrances to pay attorney's fees, but apparently leaving intact its general analysis of consent issues); see Fam. Code § 1102(e); see Fam. Code § 2040(a)(2) (providing for restraining order in family law summons on property transfers, and advising that party who uses community property or quasi-community property, or property that turns out to be other party's separate property, to pay attorney's retainer for fees and costs must account to community for use of such property)]. The encumbrance, which is known as a "family law attorney's real property lien," attaches only to the encumbering party's interest in the community real property [Fam. Code § 2033(a)]. An attorney who obtains a family law attorney's real property lien must comply with the provisions of the California Rules of Professional Conduct pertaining to adverse interests [Fam. Code § 2033(e); see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-300 (prohibiting attorney from acquiring interest adverse to client unless specified disclosures made and client's written consent obtained)].

Specific statutory requirements for giving notice of the lien to the nonencumbering party must be met before the lien is recorded. These include a declaration that addresses matters set forth by statute regarding the property and lien, as well as a notice period within which service of the notice on the other party or his or her attorney of record must occur at least 15 days before the lien's recordation [Fam. Code § 2033(b)].

The nonencumbering party may file an ex parte objection to the lien. The objection must contain a declaration that addresses matters set forth by statute regarding the property and lien and must include, among other things, a request to stay recordation until further notice from the court as well as a copy of the lien notice received [Fam. Code § 2033(c)].

In addition, on the application of either party, the court may deny a family law attorney's real property lien. The court may base the denial on a finding that the encumbrance would likely result in an unequal division of property because it would impair the encumbering party's ability to meet his or her fair share of the community obligations or would otherwise be unjust under the circumstances. The court may also for good cause limit the amount of the lien, but such a limitation is not to be construed as a determination of reasonable attorney's fees [Fam. Code § 2034(a)].

Furthermore, if the court receives an objection to establishment of a family law attorney's real property lien, it may on its own motion determine whether the case involves complex or substantial issues of fact or law related to property rights, visitation, custody, or support [Fam. Code § 2034(b)]. If such issues are found by the court to be involved, it may direct the implementation of a case management plan [Fam. Code § 2034(b); see Fam. Code § 2032(d)]. Finally, the court has jurisdiction to resolve any dispute arising from the existence of a family law attorney's real property lien [Fam. Code § 2034(c)].

[c] Court Order Dispensing With Joint Execution Requirement

As discussed in § 122.51[11], either spouse may file a motion to dispense with the requirement that both spouses join in the sale, conveyance, encumbrance, or lease for more than one year of a parcel of community real property or a community interest in real property [Fam. Code § 1101(e); see Gantner v. Johnson (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 869, 876, 79 Cal. Rptr. 381] . Although Fam. Code § 1101(e) applies to "any transaction affecting community property in which the consent of both spouses is required," and Fam. Code § 1102(a) requires that both spouses "join in executing" rather than consent to certain instruments affecting community real property, Fam. Code § 1101(e) can apparently be used to force a spouse to join in executing such an instrument. When a spouse joins in executing a conveyance of real property, the legal effect is an expression of consent to the transfer by the other spouse [Gantner v. Johnson (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 869, 876, 79 Cal. Rptr. 381] . Arguably, a spouse seeking to dispense with the joint execution requirement should be required to make a more persuasive showing that the proposed transaction is in the best interests of the community and that the nonjoining spouse's refusal to participate in the transaction is arbitrary, given the unique nature of realty and the traditional importance of real property rights.

[5] Presumptions of Validity of Instruments

[a] Instrument Executed by Either Spouse on or After January 1, 1975

If either spouse holds record title to community real property in his or her name alone, any of the following conveyances executed by that spouse alone on or after January 1, 1975, is presumed valid if the transferee acts in good faith and without knowledge of the marriage relationship [Fam. Code § 1102(c)(2)]:

(1) A lease;

(2) A contract of sale;

(3) A mortgage; or

(4) A deed [In re Marriage of Brooks & Robinson (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 176, 183, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 624 (bona fide purchaser for value that acquires its interest in real property without notice of other spouse's asserted rights in that property takes it free of these unknown rights)].

For discussion of the limitations period for bringing an action to avoid one of the foregoing transfers, see § 122.53[2][b].

[b] Instrument Executed by Husband Before January 1, 1975

If, before January 1, 1975, the husband held record title to community real property in his name alone, and executed a lease, contract, mortgage, or deed to the property without joining the wife, the lease, contract, deed, or encumbrance is presumed to be valid if the lessee, purchaser, or encumbrancer acted in good faith without knowledge of the marriage relation [Fam. Code § 1102(c)(1)]. For discussion of the limitations period for bringing an action to avoid one of the foregoing transfers, see § 122.54[2][b].

[c] Evidence to Rebut Presumptions of Validity of Instruments

The presumptions described above are not conclusive in favor of a transferee acting in good faith without knowledge of the marriage. They are rebuttable, and thus will not always prevent the nonconsenting spouse from recovering the transferred property. To overcome the presumptions, the nonconsenting spouse must present evidence showing that he or she [Mark v. Title Guar. & Trust Co. (1932) 122 Cal. App. 301, 309, 9 P.2d 839 (construing former Civ. Code § 172a)]

(1) Did not join in the execution of the instrument of transfer; and

(2) Did not consent to, or acquiesce in, the execution of the instrument.

To prevent injustice to a good faith transferee with no knowledge of the marriage, the transferee should be entitled to be restored to his or her former position if the community property unilaterally transferred or the value thereof is returned to the community [see Mark v. Title Guar. & Trust Co. (1932) 122 Cal. App. 301, 312-313, 9 P.2d 839] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawCommunity PropertyGeneral OverviewFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationCommunity PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesCommunity PropertyReal Property LawLandlord & TenantLease AgreementsGeneral OverviewReal Property LawPurchase & SaleGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Management And Control

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.53

§ 122.53 Remedies for Breach of Management and Control Duties

[1] Statutory Action

[a] Scope of Action

Under Fam. Code § 1101(a), a spouse has a claim against the other spouse for breach of a fiduciary duty that results in impairment to the claimant spouse's present undivided one-half interest in the community estate. The claim may involve, but is not limited to, a single transaction or a pattern or series of transactions that have caused or will cause a detrimental impact to the claimant spouse's undivided one-half interest in the community estate [Fam. Code § 1101(a)]. It may be brought without filing an action for dissolution of marriage, legal separation, or nullity, in conjunction with such an action, or on the death of a spouse [Fam. Code § 1101(f)].

The remedies provided by Fam. Code § 1101(a) are in addition to other remedies provided by law, rather than exclusive [Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 39-40 n.10, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931 (decided under former Civ. Code § 5127.1 (now see Fam. Code § 1101))].

For a petition to establish a claim to community property under Fam. Code § 1101, see § 122.90.

[b] Transactions Affected

Remedies provided under Fam. Code § 1101(a) apply only to transactions or events occurring on or after July 1, 1987, except with respect to actions authorized by Fam. Code § 1100(d)(2) [Fam. Code § 1101(d)(4)]. Fam. Code § 1101(d)(2) provides that an action may be commenced on the death of a spouse or in conjunction with an action for legal separation, dissolution of marriage, or nullity without regard to certain time limitations. These time limitations are discussed in § 122.53[2][b].

[c] Nature and Types of Remedies

In connection with a spouse's claim concerning the other spouse's breach of fiduciary duties in the management and control of community property, the court may order an accounting of the property and obligations of the parties to the marriage. The court may determine the rights of ownership in, the beneficial enjoyment of, or access to, community property, and the classification of all property of the parties [Fam. Code § 1101(b)]. Furthermore, a court may order the name of a spouse added to community property that was originally in the name of the other spouse alone [Fam. Code § 1101(c)]. It may also order that title to community property held in some other form of title be reformed to reflect its community character, except with respect to any of the following [Fam. Code § 1101(c)]:

(1) A partnership interest held by the other spouse as a general partner;

(2) An interest in a professional corporation or professional association;

(3) An asset of an unincorporated business if the other spouse is the only spouse involved in operating and managing the business; or

(4) Any other property, if the revision would adversely affect the rights of a third person.

The court may also award a percentage of the asset at issue to the claimant spouse. If the cause of action arises from a breach of fiduciary duty imposed by Fam. Code §§ 721 and 1100, the claimant spouse must be awarded 50 percent, or an amount equal to 50 percent, of any asset undisclosed or transferred in breach of the fiduciary duty, plus attorney's fees and court costs. The value of the asset must be determined to be its highest value at the date of the breach of the fiduciary duty, the date of the sale or disposition of the asset, or the date of the award by the court [Fam. Code § 1101(g); see In re Marriage of Hokanson (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 987, 993, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 699] . If the breach is within the scope of Civ. Code § 3294 (exemplary damages for oppression, fraud, or malice), the claimant spouse must at least be awarded 100 percent, or an amount equal to 100 percent, of any asset undisclosed or transferred in breach of the fiduciary duty, but the court may make an additional award over that of the entire asset at issue [Fam. Code § 1101(h); In re Marriage of Murray (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 581, 601-604, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 342 (sufficiency of evidence under "clear and convincing" standard); see In re Marriage of Hokanson (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 987, 993, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 699] .

In one case, a wife intentionally concealed lottery winnings that were a significant community asset, by consulting with the Lottery Commission on how to deprive her husband of a share of the prize, using her mother's address for all communications with the lottery, and failing to disclose the winnings in the dissolution proceedings. The court held that this supported a finding of fraud within the meaning of Civ. Code § 3294, and the husband was entitled to 100 percent of the lottery winnings under Fam. Code § 1101(h) [In re Marriage of Rossi (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 34, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 270] .

The language of Fam. Code § 1101(g) requiring a fee award is mandatory and unambiguous. Thus, if the court finds a breach of the fiduciary duty imposed by Fam. Code § 721 (but not falling within the scope of Civ. Code § 3294), the court does not have discretion to deny an award of fees and costs. By contrast, when the breach falls within the reach of Civ. Code § 3294 (requiring exemplary damages), language in *Fam. Code § 1101(h)*providing that the remedies "shall include, but not be limited to" 100 percent, or amount equal to 100 percent, of the asset involved, means that an award of fees is discretionary in that instance, over and above the mandatory award of the entire asset [In re Marriage of Hokanson (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 987, 993, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 699 (emphasis added); see also In re Marriage of Rossi (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 34, 42, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 270 (trial court had discretion not to award attorney's fees in addition to penalty of 100 percent of undisclosed asset)].

[d] Statute of Limitations and Related Defenses

Any action under Fam. Code § 1101(a) must normally be commenced within three years after the petitioning spouse acquires actual knowledge that the transaction or event for which the remedy is being sought occurred [Fam. Code §

1101(d)(1)]. However, an action may be commenced under this section on the death of a spouse or in conjunction with an action for legal separation, dissolution of marriage, or nullity without regard to this time limitation [Fam. Code § 1101(d)(2)].

The defense of laches may be raised in any action brought under Fam. Code § 1101 [Fam. Code § 1101(d)(3); see § 122.53[3][e]].

[2] Action to Set Aside Unauthorized Transfer of Community Real Property

[a] Right of Action in Nonconsenting Spouse

A nonconsenting spouse may bring an action to avoid a unilateral transfer of community realty by his or her spouse [see Fam. Code § 1102(d); Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 30, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931] . Only the nonconsenting spouse has this right. A third party creditor, for example, has no right under Fam. Code § 1102(d) to challenge an instrument conveying real property interests. The joint execution statute was designed to protect nonconsenting spouses from unauthorized alienation or encumbering of community property, and the rights established under the statute are personal to the nonconsenting spouse [see Clar v. Cacciola (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1032, 1036-1037, 238 Cal. Rptr. 726 ; Jack v. Wong Shee (1939) 33 Cal. App. 2d 402, 415, 92 P.2d 449] .

Because an unauthorized transfer of community real property by one spouse without the consent of the other is voidable rather than void [see Trimble v. Trimble (1933) 219 Cal. 340, 344, 26 P.2d 477 ; Gantner v. Johnson (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 869, 877, 79 Cal. Rptr. 381] , any conveyance of such property is regarded as valid (unless otherwise void) until a successful action to set aside the conveyance is brought by the nonconsenting spouse [see Jack v. Wong Shee (1939) 33 Cal. App. 2d 402, 415, 92 P.2d 449] .

Special limitation periods for bringing an action to avoid a unilateral transfer apply if title to the real property involved was held in the name of one spouse alone [see Fam. Code § 1102(d)]. In addition, whether the transfer may be set aside entirely or, only with respect to the nonconsenting spouse's one-half community interest, is affected by when the action is brought in relation to the termination of the marriage by dissolution or the death of the transferor spouse [see Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 35, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931 ; Hyatt v. Mabie (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 541, 545-547, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 447] . A nonconsenting spouse may have significant additional remedies under Fam. Code § 1101 for a breach of the fiduciary duty that results in impairment to the nonconsenting spouse's one-half community interest [see Fam. Code § 1101(a); see also Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 39 n.10, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931] . For discussion of remedies under Fam. Code § 1101, see § 122.53[1].

A complaint to set aside an unauthorized conveyance of community real property is set forth in see § 122.92.

[b] Statute of Limitations

An action to avoid any instrument affecting real property standing of record in the name of either spouse alone, which was executed on or after January 1, 1975, must be commenced within one year from the filing for record of the instrument in the recorder's office in the county in which the land is located [Fam. Code § 1102(d)].

An action to avoid any instrument mentioned in Fam. Code § 1102(a) affecting any property standing of record in the name of the husband alone, which was executed by the husband alone and filed for record before January 1, 1975, in the recorder's office in the county in which the land is located, was required to have been commenced before January 1, 1976. Thus, if the instrument was executed by the husband before January 1, 1975, and filed for record before that date, any cause of action to set aside the conveyance was barred as of January 1, 1976 [see former Civ. Code § 5127]. The one-year limitation period of former Civ. Code § 5127 only protects bona fide transferees with no knowledge of the marriage relation who have no reason to suspect that another signature is required on an instrument. The limitation period is not a bar to assertion of a community property interest in transferred property when the transfer takes place without the knowledge or consent of the nonsigning spouse and the transferee has knowledge of the marital relationship [Byrd v Blanton (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 987, 990, 993, 197 Cal. Rptr. 190] .

The statute of limitations starts to run when the deed or other instrument of conveyance is properly recorded, rather than when the nonconsenting spouse receives actual notice that the unauthorized conveyance has taken place [Fam. Code § 1102(d)]. However, actual knowledge of the unauthorized transfer and failure to act promptly to set it aside may estop the nonconsenting spouse from setting aside the conveyance even if the statute of limitations has not run, as discussed in § 122.53[3][e].

The right to contest an unauthorized transfer of community property can be waived either by an agreement not to contest, or by failure to bring an action within the limitations period [see Rice v. McCarthy (1925) 73 Cal. App. 655, 664-665, 239 P. 56] . If the nonconsenting spouse fails to take steps to avoid the conveyance within the one-year period, it ripens into an effective conveyance of that spouse's one-half interest in the property [Gantner v. Johnson (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 869, 877, 79 Cal. Rptr. 381] .

[c] Limitations on Relief

The time at which an action to avoid a unilateral transfer of community real property is brought affects the degree to which the transfer may be set aside by the nonconsenting spouse. When a nonconsenting spouse during the marriage timely challenges a transfer made in violation of Fam. Code § 1102(a), the transfer may be invalidated in its entirety. However, if the action to avoid the transfer is brought after the transferor-spouse's death or after dissolution of the marriage, the set-aside normally is limited to the nonconsenting spouse's one-half community interest, as discussed further hereafter [see Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 30, 35, 46, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931 ; Hyatt v. Mabie (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 541, 545-547, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 447] .

Following the 1975 Civil Code amendments that created equal rights of management and control between the spouses [see Stats. 1974, ch. 1206, § 5], a split of appellate court authority developed on the extent of relief available when a nonconsenting spouse brought an action to avoid a unilateral transfer of community real property during the marriage. One line of decisions held that unilateral transfers were voidable to the extent of the nonconsenting spouse's one-half interest, regardless of when the action was brought [see Mitchell v. American Reserve Ins. Co. (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 220, 223, 167 Cal. Rptr. 760 ; Head v. Crawford (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 11, 17-18, 202 Cal. Rptr. 534] . Other decisions held that if relief were sought during marriage, the entire transfer should be set aside [see Andrade Development Co. v. Martin (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 330, 336-337, 187 Cal. Rptr. 863 ; see also In re Jones (C.D. Cal. 1985) 51 Bankr. 834, 839] .

The California Supreme Court resolved this conflict in Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan & Ross [Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931] . Droeger held that such an unconsented transfer may be invalidated in its entirety by a timely action brought during the marriage by the nonconsenting spouse [Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 30, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931] . The Droeger Court's specific application of this holding to a unilateral encumbrance of community realty to secure attorney's fees in a dissolution action [see Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan, & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 30, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931] has since been abrogated by legislation permitting such an encumbrance, as discussed in § 122.52[4][b] [see Fam. Code §§ 2033-2034]. However, the Court's underlying analysis of the consent required under former Civ. Code § 5127 (now see Fam. Code § 1102) and its holding concerning the ability of a nonconsenting spouse, in general, to void an unconsented transfer in its entirety by a timely action during marriage appears to remain valid. In addition, the principle remains valid that if the nonconsenting spouse fails to discover the transfer and take legal action until after the marriage and community have been terminated by dissolution or death, he or she may seek to void the transfer to the extent of only his or her one-half interest [see Hyatt v. Mabie (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 541, 545-547, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 447] . To obtain relief, the nonconsenting spouse must not have otherwise waived his or her right to seek relief, whether he or she is seeking a complete or partial set aside of the transfer, or some other remedy [see Hyatt v. Mabie (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 541, 545-547, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 447 (plaintiff former wife waived rights)].

Despite the broad implications of Droeger, the California Supreme Court, in Lezine v. Security Pacific Financial Services, Inc. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 56,58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 76, 925 P.2d 1002 , subsequently clarified that the set aside remedy available to a spouse who does not join in a transfer of community property does not extinguish an underlying debt created by the transferring spouse, and does not change the character of that debt, or necessarily preclude execution against community property by a judgment creditor who has a lien against the property. Thus, even if a nonconsenting (nontransferring) spouse succeeds in having a unilateral transfer, such as an encumbrance, of community property set aside, if the underlying debt is a community debt and the creditor obtains a judgment for the debt, the creditor may still record a lien and potentially execute against the property, because a creditor who loses its security interest (by the set aside) retains the rights of any other unsecured creditor to resort to the community property to satisfy the underlying debt. Accordingly, in Lezine, the Supreme Court upheld the right of a creditor with a money judgment against a husband who had obtained a loan by unilaterally encumbering community realty to maintain its judgment lien against the property, even though the nonconsenting wife had obtained a civil judgment setting aside the encumbrance in its entirety, as well as a later family court judgment awarding her the property as her sole and separate property and assigning the underlying debt to the husband. Construing both former Civ. Code § 5127 (now Fam. Code § 1102) and provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure governing liens, the Court reasoned that neither Droeger nor former Civ. Code § 5127 carve out an exception to rules governing the liability of community real property for enforcement of a money judgment against a debtor spouse, or the enforceability of a judgment lien that has attached to community realty for satisfaction of a money judgment. A creditor who has previously forfeited a security interest in community realty under former Civ. Code § 5127 is placed in the position of any other unsecured creditor entitled to seek a judgment against the debtor spouse, and to enforce its judgment against the community estate. The creditor's recordation of an abstract of judgment creates a judgment lien that attaches to the community realty and may be enforced to satisfy the lien [Lezine v. Security Pacific Financial Services, Inc. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 56, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 76, 925 P.2d 1002] .

The ability of the creditor in Lezine to reach the property by way of execution on a judgment lien might have differed had the wife been awarded the property in the dissolution action before the creditor recorded an abstract of judgment, because of the operation of the debt liability statutes [see Fam. Code § 916 (liability of property after division of assets and assignment of debts in dissolution); Lezine v. Security Pacific Financial Services, Inc. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 56, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 76, 925 P.2d 1002] . However, such a result is problematic because the dissolution court, theoretically, could also have taken the creditor's interests into consideration in dividing the underlying debt. Also, a nonconsenting spouse is not left completely without a remedy because, according to the Court, he or she could still seek reimbursement against the debtor spouse to the extent the property is applied in satisfaction of the lien; and in the Lezine case, the Court said its holding was "without prejudice to the [wife's right] to seek a reallocation of the community property concerning as to which the [dissolution] court retained jurisdiction" [Lezine v. Security Pacific Financial Services, Inc. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 56, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 76, 925 P.2d 1002 ; see Fam. Code § 916(b)]. For a related discussion of estoppel principles, see § 122.53[2][e].

[d] Effect of Consideration

Neither the applicable statute [Fam. Code § 1102] nor its predecessor [former Civ. Code §§ 172a, 5127] make any mention of the effect of consideration on the conveyance of community real property by one spouse without consent of the other. Under the former law, which gave the husband sole management and control of community real property [former Civ. Code § 172a], it was held that a deed of community real property for valuable consideration, executed without the wife's consent, was ineffective as to her interest, but was valid and binding as to the husband's half interest [Gantner v. Johnson (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 869, 876-877, 79 Cal. Rptr. 381 ; see Heuer v. Heuer (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 268, 271, 201 P.2d 385] .

However, in other cases under former law in which the transferee paid substantial consideration in good faith for the conveyance of community real property by the husband without the wife's consent, the relief granted to the nonconsenting spouse was return of the entire property to the community, not merely return of her half interest [see Mark v. Title Guar. & Trust Co. (1932) 122 Cal. App. 301, 310-311, 9 P.2d 839] . In Mark v. Title Guar. & Trust Co., return of the property in its entirety to the community was conditioned on the refund of the amount paid for it by the innocent purchasers.

Modernly, if a spouse's unilateral transfer is set aside, a return of amounts paid by an innocent purchaser may still be required in a particular case, with the refund amount dependent at least in part on the degree to which the transaction is set aside [cf. Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 30, 35, 46, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931 (abrogated by Fam. Code § 2033(a), regarding its holding on encumbrances to pay attorney's fees, but apparently still controlling on its general analysis of consent issues and ability to invalidate other unilateral transfers made without a spouse's consent); accord Hyatt v. Mabie (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 541, 546-547, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 447] . In addition, as discussed in § 122.53[3][c], the spousal right to set aside the transfer does not extinguish the underlying debt, change its character, or necessarily preclude execution against community property by a judgment creditor who has a lien against the property [Lezine v. Security Pacific Financial Services, Inc. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 56, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 76, 925 P.2d 1002] .

As discussed in § 122.53[3][c], the relevant analysis of the parties' rights with respect to setting aside a unilateral transfer of community real property appears to turn on the time, in relation to the existence of the marital community, when an action is brought to avoid the transfer, rather than on the existence of consideration for the transfer. Thus, under Droeger, when a nonconsenting spouse, during the marriage, timely challenges a transfer made in violation of Fam. Code § 1102(a), the transfer may be invalidated in its entirety. Conversely, if the action to avoid the transfer is brought after the transferor-spouse's death or after dissolution of the marriage, the long-standing rule that the set-aside is limited to the nonconsenting spouse's one-half community interest still appears valid [see Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 30, 35, 46, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931 (abrogated by Fam. Code § 2033(a), regarding its holding on encumbrances to pay attorney's fees, but apparently still controlling on its general analysis of consent issues and ability to invalidate other unilateral transfers made without a spouse's consent); accord Hyatt v. Mabie (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 541, 546-547, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 447] .

When alternative remedies are sought under Fam. Code § 1101(a) for a violation of Fam. Code § 1102(a), additional factors may need to be considered, as discussed in § 122.53[1]

[e] Estoppel to Assert Invalidity of Conveyance

If the nonconsenting spouse does not come into court with clean hands, he or she may be estopped from asserting the invalidity of the other spouse's unilateral transfer of community real property [see MacKay v. Darusmont (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d 21, 26, 115 P.2d 221 (wife estopped under former Civ. Code § 172a)]. Evidence that has led courts to find that the nonconsenting spouse was estopped from setting aside a conveyance of community real property by the other spouse has included the following:

(1) Knowledge of the transaction on the part of the nonconsenting spouse and failure to assert a community interest in the property [see MacKay v. Darusmont (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d 21, 27, 115 P.2d 221] ;

(2) Participation in, and apparent approval of, the negotiations leading up to the transfer [see Bush v. Rogers (1941) 42 Cal. App. 2d 477, 480-481, 109 P.2d 379] ; and

(3) Receipt, acceptance, and use of payments of consideration from the sale or transfer of interest [see Rice v. McCarthy (1925)73 Cal. App. 655, 658, 239 P. 56 ; cf. Hyatt v. Mabie (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th

541, 546-547, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 447 (nonconsenting spouse permitted escrowee to pay off holder of unconsented to encumbrance on real property from property's sales proceeds, thereby waiving her postdissolution remedies regarding property)].

[3] Remedies of Transferee of Community Real Property

If a prohibited unilateral transfer is contracted for, but is not consummated, the transferee is not entitled to specific enforcement of the contract [Janssen v. Davis (1934) 219 Cal. 783, 790, 29 P.2d 196] , even as to the interest owned by the contracting spouse [see Waldeck v. Hedden (1928) 89 Cal. App. 485, 492-493, 265 P. 340 ; see also Harper v. Raya (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 908, 911, 201 Cal. Rptr. 563 (spouse's oral agreement to convey life estate in community realty without other spouse's consent did not entitle donee with knowledge of marital relationship to specific performance or damages); Andrade Development Co. v. Martin (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 330, 334, 187 Cal. Rptr. 863] . However, the contracting spouse may be liable for damages, especially where it is found he or she acted in bad faith [see Wilson v. Bidwell (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 832, 837-838, 199 P.2d 439] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawCommunity PropertyGeneral OverviewFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationCommunity PropertyGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesCommunity PropertyTortsIntentional TortsBreach of Fiduciary DutyGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Management And Control

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.54

§ 122.54 Criminal Penalties for Transferor of Community Real Property

A married person who falsely and fraudulently represents himself or herself as competent to sell or mortgage community real property, and does in fact willfully convey or mortgage the same, is guilty of a felony when the validity of the sale or mortgage requires the assent or concurrence of the other spouse [Penal Code § 534]. A person convicted of the felony is subject to imprisonment in state prison for 16 months or two or three years [Penal Code §§ 18, 534].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Criminal Law & ProcedureCriminal OffensesFraudGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawCommunity PropertyGeneral OverviewFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationCommunity PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesCommunity Property

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Management And Control

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.55

§ 122.55 Alternatives to Equal Management and Control

[1] Revocable Power of Attorney

A married couple who find that equal responsibility for management and control, as prescribed by Fam. Code §§ 1100 and 1102, does not suit their situation may make other arrangements between themselves for the management and control of their community real and personal property [see Kahn & Frimmer, Management, Probate and Estate Planning Under California's New Community Property Laws, 49 Cal. St. B.J. 516, 519-521 (1974)]. One possible method of handling management and control is the execution of a revocable power of attorney by one spouse giving the other authority to deal with community property on his or her behalf. A uniform statutory power of attorney form, which may be used for this purpose, is set forth in Prob. Code § 4401. For further discussion, see Ch. 427, Principal and Agent .

[2] Revocable Trust

A husband and wife may also handle the management and control of their community real and/or personal property by establishing a revocable trust funded with community property. Unless the trust instrument or the instrument of transfer expressly provides otherwise, community property that is transferred in trust remains community property during the marriage, regardless of the identity of the trustee, if the trust, originally or as amended before or after the transfer, provides the following [Fam. Code § 761(a)]:

(1) The trust is revocable as to that property during the marriage; and

(2) The power, if any, to modify the trusts as to the rights and interests in that property during the marriage may be exercised only with the joinder or consent of both spouses.

Unless the trust instrument expressly provides otherwise, a power to revoke as to community property may be exercised by either spouse acting alone. Community property, including any income or appreciation, that is distributed or withdrawn from a trust by revocation, power of withdrawal, or otherwise, remains community property unless there is a valid transmutation of the property at the time of distribution or withdrawal [Fam. Code § 761(b)]. The trustee may convey and otherwise manage and control the trust property in accordance with the provisions of the trust without the joinder or consent of the husband or wife unless the trust expressly requires the joinder or consent of one or both spouses [Fam. Code § 761(c)].

[3] Written Management and Control Agreement

A husband and wife may execute a written agreement allocating management and control responsibilities between the spouses. When spouses contract between themselves concerning their community and separate property, they stand in a confidential and fiduciary relationship to one another with respect to their agreement [Fam. Code § 721(b); see § 122.51[4], for discussion of the specific rights and duties imposed by this confidential and fiduciary relationship]. Thus, the spouse who yields management and control responsibilities to the other pursuant to such an agreement is entitled to protection from improper self-dealing by the other spouse.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Criminal Law & ProcedureCriminal OffensesFraudGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawPowers of AttorneyRevocation & TerminationEstate, Gift & Trust LawTrustsRevocable Living TrustsFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationCommunity PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesCommunity Property

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Management And Control

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.56

§ 122.56 Nonprobate Transfers of Community Property

[1] Overview

Nonprobate transfers of community property by a spouse to a third party that are intended to become effective on the death of the transferor spouse are subject to special Probate Code provisions governing the effect of consent, or lack of consent, to the transfer by the other spouse, including the circumstances under which consent is revocable. The Probate Code confers authority for these transfers, pursuant to a written instrument, despite a lack of compliance with the formalities required for execution of a will [see Prob. Code §§ 5000(a), 5010 et seq.].

However, the issue of the nontransferor spouse's consent to the transfer must be addressed in determining the transfer's legal effect [cf. Fam. Code §§ 1100, 1102 (spousal duties in connection with management and control of community property)]. At stake is whether some portion of the property transferred will have to be set aside in favor of the nontransfering spouse (§ 122.56[5]) [see Prob. Code § 5021]. A related question is whether a transfer to which consent is given amounts to a transmutation of community property, which is discussed in § 122.56[6] [see Prob. Code § 5022].

Legislation operative January 1, 1993, clarifies these issues with respect to nonprobate transfers of community property, taking into consideration the question of whether a nontransferor spouse has given or revoked consent. It also specifies the rights of "holders" of property under nonprobate transfer instruments. "Holders" are those persons or entities having the obligation of holding, receiving, or transferring the property (see § 122.56[4]) [see Prob. Code § 5010 et seq.; see also Prob. Code §§ 5002-5003].

For discussion of specialized rules pertaining to bank and savings accounts [see Prob. Code § 5100 et seq.], see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

[2] Effective Date of Transfer Provisions

In general, the legislation applies to a provision for a nonprobate transfer of community property on the death of a married person, regardless of whether the provision for transfer was executed by the person, or written consent was given by the person's spouse, before, on, or after January 1, 1993. However, revocation of a written consent given by a spouse who died before January 1, 1993, is not governed by Prob. Code§ 5030(c), which provides for irrevocability of written consent on the death of either spouse, but is governed by the applicable law in effect on the date of death [Prob. Code § 5014].

[3] Matters Affecting Parties' Rights

The parties' rights in a nonprobate transfer of community property on death are subject to the following [see Prob. Code § 5011]:

(1) The terms of the instrument under which the transfer is made;

(2) Any contrary state statute specifically applicable to the instrument under which the transfer is made; and

(3) Any "written expression of intent of a party" in a property transfer provision or in a written consent [see Prob. Code § 5010 ("written consent" includes written joinder in nonprobate transfer)] to the provision.

The Probate Code provisions governing spousal rights relating to nonprobate transfers of community property on death apply only to controversies between the spouses and their successors. They do not affect the obligation of a holder of community property under an instrument of a type described in Prob. Code § 5000 (insurance policies, employment contracts, bonds, mortgages, promissory notes, securities, account agreements, custodial or deposit agreements, compensation, pension, or individual retirement plans, employee benefit plans, trusts, conveyances, deeds of gift, and marital property agreements) to hold, receive, or transfer the property in compliance with a provision for a nonprobate transfer on death, or the protection provided to the holder by Prob. Code § 5003 (§ 122.56[4]) [see Prob. Code § 5012]. The above itemization is an illustrative, rather than exclusive, listing of instruments subject to the nonprobate transfer rules. Note that certain instruments that come within the definition of "account agreements," for purposes of Prob. Code § 5000, include accounts that are also subject to the Multiple-Party-Accounts Law. Instruments subject to both the nonprobate transfer rules and the Multiple-Party-Accounts Law [Prob. Code § 5100 et seq.; see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation] could include, for example, annuity contracts or money market fund accounts if these involve a deposit of funds between a depositor and "financial institution"--as that term is broadly construed [see Estate of Petersen (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1742, 1751, 1754 . 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449 (language in certain annuity contracts sufficed to establi nonprobate transfer, and not transmutation; but money market account description met neither "express declaration" requirement for transmutation, nor did it establish effective nonprobate transfer)].

None of the nonprobate transfer provisions limit the effect of a surviving spouse's waiver of rights in community property or under some other instrument or agreement that affects a married person's interest in community property [see Prob. Code § 5013; see also Prob. Code § 141(a)(10) (waiver of rights in community property)].

Finally, nothing in the special provisions limits the application of principles of fraud, undue influence, duress, mistake, or other invalidating cause to a written consent to a provision for a nonprobate transfer of community property on death [Prob. Code § 5015].

[4] Effect of Provisions on "Holders" of Property

Persons or entities designated to receive, hold, or transfer property under the terms of a nonprobate transfer instrument are provided with statutory guidelines concerning whether they need to comply with the transfer provisions. These "holders" are relieved from the obligation of making the transfer under certain conditions. Specifically, holders of property under instruments described in Prob. Code § 5000 (§ 122.56[3]) are not required to receive, hold, or transfer property in compliance with a provision for a nonprobate transfer on death executed by a person having an interest in the property, if either [Prob. Code § 5002]:

(1) The person is not authorized by the terms of the instrument to execute a provision for transfer of the property, or

(2) The provision for transfer of the property does not otherwise satisfy the terms of the instrument.

A holder may comply with a nonprobate transfer provision that satisfies the terms of the instrument, regardless of whether the transfer is consistent with the beneficial ownership of the property as between the person who executed the provision for transfer and other persons having an interest in the property or their successors, and whether or not the transfer is consistent with the rights of the person named as beneficiary [Prob. Code § 5003(a)]. In that situation, the holder's transfer does not affect the rights of the transferor and other persons having an interest in the property or their successors in disputes among themselves concerning the beneficial ownership of the property [Prob. Code § 5003(c)].

The protection provided to holders of property by the foregoing rules does not extend to a transfer made after either (1) the holder has been served with a contrary court order, or (2) the holder has been served with a written notice of a person claiming an adverse interest in the property, but this second provision does not apply to a pension plan to the extent that the transfer is a periodic payment pursuant to the plan [see Prob. Code § 5003(b)]. Otherwise, no notice or other information shown to have been available to the holder affects the rights of the holder to the protection discussed above [see Prob. Code § 5003(b); see also Prob. Code § 5003(d) (protection of that section is not exclusive of any protection provided the holder by any other provision of law)]. A person must not serve notice of adverse interest in bad faith. If the court in an action relating to the right of the parties determines that a person has served a notice in bad faith, the court must award against the person the cost of the action, including a reasonable attorney's fee, and the damages caused by the service [Fam. Code § 5003(e)].

[5] Effect of Lack of Consent to Transfer

A nonprobate transfer of community property on death that is executed by a married person without the written consent of that person's spouse (1) is not effective with regard to the nonconsenting spouse's interest in the property, and (2) does not affect a nonconsenting spouse's disposition on death of his or her interest by will, intestate succession, or nonprobate transfer [Prob. Code § 5020].

Accordingly, in proceedings to set aside transfers lacking the requisite consent, trial courts are required to set the transfers aside with regard to the nonconsenting spouse's interest in the property, subject to terms and conditions or other remedies that appear equitable under the circumstances of the case, taking into account the rights of all interested persons [Prob. Code § 5021(a); Estate of Miramontes-Najera (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 750, 758-759, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 240] . This does not affect any additional remedy the nonconsenting spouse may have against the transferor's estate for a nonprobate transfer made without written spousal consent [Prob. Code § 5021(b)].

[6] Consent to Transfer and Transmutation Distinguished

In general, a spouse's written consent to a provision for a nonprobate transfer of community property on death is not a transmutation of the consenting spouse's interest in the property [Prob. Code § 5022(a); Estate of Petersen (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1742, 1752-1753, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449] . However, a written consent to a nonprobate transfer of community property on death that satisfies Fam. Code § 852 is a transmutation and is governed by the law applicable to transmutations, rather than by Prob. Code § 5010 et seq. [see Prob. Code § 5022(b); see also Fam. Code § 853(c)].

"Written consent" in this context includes a written joinder in a provision for a nonprobate transfer [see Prob. Code § 5010]. For discussion of transmutations of community property, see § 122.34.

[7] Effect of Modified Transfer on Spousal Consent and Interests

If a married person executes a provision for a nonprobate transfer of community property on death with his or her spouse's written consent, but later executes a modification of the transfer provision without the spouse's written consent, the modified transfer is effective with respect to the transferor's community property. However, the modified transfer has the following effect on the other spouse's interest in the community property [Prob. Code § 5023(b)(1), (2)]:

(1) If the modification is executed during the spouse's lifetime, the modification revokes the spouse's previous written consent to the provision for transfer of the property; or

(2) If the modification is executed after the spouse's death, the modification does not affect the spouse's previous written consent to the provision for transfer of the property, and the spouse's interest in the community property is subject to the nonprobate transfer on death as consented to by the spouse.

Despite these modification rules, if a written expression of a party's intent in an original transfer provision or spouse's written consent to a transfer provision authorizes a transferor spouse to execute a modification after the consenting spouse's death, then the consenting spouse's community property interest is deemed transferred to the transferor spouse on the consenting spouse's death, and the modification is effective as to both spouses' interests in the community property [Prob. Code § 5023(b)(3)].

The term "modification," as used above, means revocation of a provision for a nonprobate transfer on death in whole or part, designation of a different beneficiary, or election of a different benefit or payment option. It does not include the exercise of a power of appointment under a trust [Prob. Code § 5023(a)]. Special provisions governing revocation are discussed in § 122.56[8].

[8] Revocation of Consent

A spouse's written consent to a nonprobate transfer of community property on death is revocable during marriage [Prob. Code § 5030(a)]. It is also revocable on termination of the marriage by dissolution, or on legal separation, and the community property is then subject to division under Fam. Code § 2500 et seq., or to other disposition on order within the court's jurisdiction [Prob. Code § 5030(b)]. However, the written consent is irrevocable on the death of either spouse [Prob. Code § 5030(c); see Prob. Code § 5014(b) (if consenting spouse died before January 1, 1993, revocation is governed by applicable law at time of death, not by Prob. Code § 5030(c))].

Revocation of written consent may be accomplished by a writing, including a will, that identifies the provision for transfer of the property being revoked, and that is served on the transferor before his or her death [Prob. Code § 5031(a)].

However, revocation of consent does not affect a holder's authority under Prob. Code § 5003 (§ 122.56[4]) to transfer property in compliance with the nonprobate transfer provision [Prob. Code § 5031(b)].

Once a spouse revokes consent to the nonprobate transfer of community property on death, the property passes as if consent were never given [Prob. Code § 5032].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawCommunity PropertyGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawNonprobate TransfersJointly Held PropertyGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawPowers of AttorneyGeneral OverviewFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationCommunity PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital

EstatesCommunity Property

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Management And Control

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 122.57-122.69

[Reserved]

§§ 122.57[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.70

§ 122.70 State Statutes

[1] Alternatives to Equal Management and Control

Agency and powers of attorney. Prob. Code § 4000 et seq.

Community property placed in trust as remaining community property. Fam. Code § 761

Motion for order dispensing with requirement of spousal consent to community property transaction. Fam. Code § 1101(e)

[2] Credit Rating Based on Management and Control of Property

Prohibition against denying credit to woman when man managing and controlling same property would be entitled to credit. Civ. Code § 1812.30

[3] Gifts of Community Property to Third Parties

Survival of action to set aside unauthorized gift of community property. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 366.1-366.2, 377.20; Prob. Code §§ 7000-7001

Prohibition against one spouse's gift of community personal property without other spouse's written consent. Fam. Code § 1100(b)

Requirement that both spouses execute instrument by which gift of community realty to third party is made. Fam. Code § 1102(a)

Nonliability of insurer for payment of community property proceeds of life insurance policy to named beneficiary rather than to insured's spouse. Ins. Code § 10172

California Uniform Transfers to Minors Act. Prob. Code §§ 3900-3925

Nonprobate transfers of community property intended to become effective on transferor's death. Prob. Code §§ 5010-5132

[4] Good Faith Required of Spouses

Rules governing fiduciary relationships of persons occupying confidential relations with each other. Corp. Code §§ 16403, 16404, 16503; Fam. Code § 721(b)

Husband and wife as required to adhere to rules governing fiduciary relationships of persons occupying confidential relations with each other in managing and controlling community property. Fam. Code §§ 721(b), 1100(e)

Disclosure duties of separated spouses. Fam. Code §§ 2100-2113

[5] Interest of Each Spouse in Community Property

Present, existing, and equal interest of each spouse in community property during marriage. Fam. Code § 751

Right of each spouse to dispose of one half of community property by will. Prob. Code § 6101

[6] Management and Control of Community Personal Property

Equal management and control of community personal property by spouses. Fam. Code § 1100(a)

Requirement that spouse transferring community personal property to third party without other spouse's consent obtain fair and reasonable value for property. Fam. Code § 1100(b)

Prohibition against selling, conveying, or encumbering family dwelling, furniture or furnishings of home, or clothing of other spouse or spouses' minor children without written consent of other spouse. Fam. Code § 1100(c)

Management and control of community property business. Fam. Code § 1100(d)

[7] Management and Control of Community Real Property

Equal management and control of community real property by spouses; prohibition against unilateral sale, conveyance, encumbrance, or lease for term longer than one year. Fam. Code § 1102(a)

Presumptions affecting validity of leases, contracts, mortgages, and deeds executed by one spouse alone. Fam. Code § 1102(c)

Spouse's unilateral right to encumber community real property to pay attorney's fees in dissolution, nullity, or legal separation proceeding. Fam. Code §§ 2033-2034

[8] Management and Control of Separate Property

Spouse as having no interest in separate property of other spouse. Fam. Code § 752

Right to convey separate property without spouse's consent. Fam. Code § 770(b)

[9] Management and Disposition of Community Property When Spouse or Spouses Incompetent

Judicial determination of unsound mind as precluding conveyances, contracts, delegations of power, and waivers of rights by person so adjudged; establishment of conservatorship as constituting such judicial determination. Civ. Code § 40

Management and disposition of community property when one or both spouses has conservator of estate or lacks capacity to manage property. Fam. Code § 1103

Substituted judgment doctrine. Prob. Code §§ 2580-2586

Procedure for managing and disposing of community property when spouse lacks legal capacity. Prob. Code §§ 3000-3154

[10] Remedies for Violations of Management and Control Rules

Exemplary damages for breach of fiduciary duty that involves oppression, fraud, or malice. Civ. Code § 3294; Fam. Code § 1101(h)

Requirement that plaintiff seeking to recover real property or possession of real property be seised or possessed of property within five years before commencement of action. Code Civ. Proc. § 318

Judgment for value of personal property when possession cannot be had. Code Civ. Proc. § 667

Quiet title actions. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 761.010(b), 761.020

Exclusivity of statutory remedies for failure to give prior written notice of disposition of community personal property used in operation of community property business. Fam. Code § 1100(d)

Claim against other spouse for breach of fiduciary duty in managing and controlling community property. Fam. Code § 1101(a), (g)

Court-ordered accounting of property and obligations of parties to marriage. Fam. Code § 1101(b)

Court order requiring that title to community property be reformed or that name of spouse to be added to property. Fam. Code § 1101(c)

Statutory remedy as available either in conjunction with dissolution, legal separation, or nullity action, or not in conjunction with such action. Fam. Code § 1101(f)

Award of portion of assets undisclosed or transferred in breach of fiduciary duty to spouse harmed by nondisclosure or transfer. Fam. Code § 1101(g)

Criminal penalties for fraudulently conveying or encumbering community real property without consent or joinder of spouse. Penal Code §§ 18, 534

[11] Spouses as Joint Tenants

Spouses as permitted to hold property as joint tenants. Fam. Code § 750

Spouses as permitted to hold property as community property with right of survivorship. Civ. Code § 682.1; Fam. Code § 750

Presumption that property held by spouses as joint tenants is community property. Fam. Code §§ 2581, 2580(c)

[12] Statutes of Limitations

Three-year statute for claim against spouse for breach of fiduciary duty that results in impairment to claimant's present, undivided one-half interest in community estate. Fam. Code § 1101(d)

One-year statute for action to avoid spouse's unilateral sale, conveyance, encumbrance, or lease for more than one year of community realty. Fam. Code § 1102(d)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawCommunity PropertyGeneral OverviewFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationCommunity PropertyFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationSeparate PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesCommunity PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesSeparate Property

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.71

§ 122.71 Decisions

[1] Community Property Transferred to Trust

Unilateral revocation of community property trust agreements as ineffective because, based on trust terms, settlors (spouses) intended that revocation be mutual. Estate of Khan (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 270, 273-274, 214 Cal. Rptr. 109

[2] Fiduciary Duty

Close corporation as required to produce certain tax and financial documents relevant to shareholder's marital dissolution action when marital community had interest in corporation and, on balance, spouse's need for information outweighed corporation's privacy interests. Schnabel v. Superior Court (1992) 5 Cal. 4th 704, 715-723, 854 P.2d 1117

Spouse can be subject to statutory breach of fiduciary duty under Fam. Code § 721(b) for mismanagement of separate property, as well as community property; no distinction is made between spouse's duty to deal fairly and in good faith with separate property and spouse's duty to deal fairly and in good faith with community property. In re Marriage of Walker (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1408, 1419, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 325

[3] Gifts of Community Property

Court-ordered change of beneficiary designation on husband's community property life insurance policy to include former wife and minor child as not constituting unauthorized gift of community property. In re Marriage of O'Connell (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 565, 579-580, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334

Husband's election to receive maximum disability retirement income at expense of survivor benefits as not gift or transfer of community property without consideration within meaning of former Civ. Code § 5125(b) (now see Fam. Code § 1100(b)) despite wife's lack of consent, because election did not defeat wife's community interest and actually provided community with increased income during husband's lifetime. Willis v. Board of Administration (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 779, 782-783, 226 Cal. Rptr. 567

[4] Good Faith Required of Spouses

Trial court as properly finding that wife used undue influence in causing mentally disabled husband to transfer insurance and other funds to her as her separate property. In re Marriage of Saslow (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 848, 862-865, 221 Cal. Rptr. 546, 710 P.2d 346

To support showing of undue influence, spouse must show existence of marital relationship and such unfairness of transaction as will tend to establish that spouse made wrongful use of confidence reposed for purpose of gaining unreasonable advantage over mate. In re Marriage of Saslow (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 848, 864-865, 221 Cal. Rptr. 546, 710 P.2d 346

Transactions between spouses as subject to general rules that control actions of persons occupying confidential relation to each other. In re Marriage of Saslow (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 848, 864, 221 Cal. Rptr. 546, 710 P.2d 346

Presumption of undue influence does not arise in interspousal transaction unless one spouse obtains unfair advantage or obtains property for which no or clearly inadequate consideration has been given, and does not apply to postmarital agreement in which both spouses obtain advantages, both are represented by counsel, each is offered full access to other's records relating to marital assets, and both acknowledge in agreement that neither has obtained unfair advantage from agreement. In re Marriage of Burkle (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 712, 717, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 181

Presumption of undue influence applies to unequal marital settlement agreements, but not to marital settlement agreements reached through mediation, agreements in which parties acknowledge that no undue influence was exercised, or when undue influence is alleged with respect to judgment that has long been final. In re Marriage of Kieturakis (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 56, 84-85, 87, 90, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 119

Each spouse as having duty to inform the other spouse of existence of community assets, and duty of disclosure as continuing until marriage dissolved and community property divided. Worton v. Worton (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1638, 1648, 286 Cal. Rptr. 410 (decided before enactment of Fam. Code §§ 2100-2113, which codified post-separation disclosure duties)

Historical review of statutory duty of good faith as supporting conclusion that obligations of confidential relationship are not terminated by separation when one party exerts continued control over another. In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 89-91, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403 (decided before enactment of Fam. Code §§ 2100-2113, which codified post-separation disclosure duties)

Conveyance of community real property in consideration for cancellation of one spouse's premarital debts without knowledge of other spouse as breach of marital fiduciary obligation and abuse of power of management and control, entitling community to reimbursement at time of dissolution. In re Marriage of Lister (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 411, 416, 199 Cal. Rptr. 321

Husband with management and control of community business as having fiduciary duty (former Civ. Code § 5125(e) (now see Fam. Code § 1100(e)) to maximize value of business; duty as not terminating on separation of parties. In re Marriage of Munguia (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 853, 859, 195 Cal. Rptr. 199

[5] Management and Control of Community Business

Trial court as permitted to award more profitable of two community businesses (fast-food franchises) to nonoperating spouse because of evidence that she had equal operating ability after initial training, she needed business income for benefit of children, and there was no way to "cash her out" in overall property division. In re Marriage of Kozen (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 1258, 1263, 230 Cal. Rptr. 304

[6] Management and Control of Pension Plan

Wife as not continuing to accrue community property interest in husband's pension after couple moved to common law state. In re Marriage of Moore & Ferrie (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1472, 1482-1483, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 543

[7] Prohibition on Unilateral Transfers of Community Real Property

Instrument transferring community real property to third party executed by one spouse alone as voidable in its entirety by other spouse during marriage. Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 47, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931 , abrogated on other grounds by enactment of Fam. Code § 2033(a)

In action to avoid transfer of community real property by one spouse acting alone brought after death of transferor-spouse or dissolution of marriage, transfer as voidable only as to nonconsenting spouse's one-half community interest. Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 46, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931 , abrogated on other grounds by enactment of Fam. Code § 2033(a)

Applying rationale of former Civ. Code § 5127 (now see Fam. Code § 1102) even though that section is not directly applicable to oral agreements, oral agreement by one spouse to convey life estate in community real property without other spouse's consent is not specifically enforceable by donee who knew of marriage relationship, and damages are not recoverable for breach of agreement. Harper v. Raya (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 908, 911-913, 201 Cal. Rptr. 563

Wife's joinder in conveyance of community real property as nonconsensual when husband misrepresented purpose of conveyance and misappropriated asset to satisfy obligations incurred before marriage. In re Marriage of Lister (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 411, 416, 199 Cal. Rptr. 321

In action by buyer against husband and wife for breach of contract to sell community real property in which buyer sought specific performance or damages, trial court as properly entering judgment in favor of defendants when contract not signed by wife, husband did not represent himself as wife's agent, and buyer was aware that property was owned by defendants as husband and wife. Andrade Development Co. v. Martin (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 330, 334-339, 187 Cal. Rptr. 863

[8] Separate Property of Non-Debtor Spouse

Judgment creditor of husband as not permitted to levy against wife's wages which were designated as her separate property by valid premarital agreement, even though such wages were sole income of family and debt was incurred during marriage. Leasefirst v. Borrelli (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 28, 30-31, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 114 , 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 114

[9] Statutes of Limitation

One-year limitation period of former Civ. Code § 5127 (now see Fam. Code § 1102(d)] as not barring assertion of community property interest in transferred property when transfer took place without knowledge or consent of nonsigning spouse and transferee has knowledge of marital relationship. Byrd v. Blanton (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 987, 990, 993, 197 Cal. Rptr. 190

[10] Transmutation of Community Property

Parties may not execute a conditional transmutation. In re Marriage of Lund (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 40, 55, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 84

Transmutation, once effected, cannot be limited in purpose or otherwise rendered conditional or temporary. In re Marriage of Holtemann (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1166, 1174, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 385

Express declaration must unambiguously indicate change in character of ownership of property, and transmutation cannot occur by accident. In re Marriage of Starkman (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 659, 664, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 639

Wife's scheduling of community personal property as exempt in bankruptcy petition as not transmuting property from community to separate property, and wife's discharge in bankruptcy as not depriving family law court of jurisdiction to divide exempted property at dissolution. In re Marriage of Seligman (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 300, 307-310

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawCommunity PropertyGeneral OverviewFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationCommunity PropertyFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationSeparate PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesCommunity PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesSeparate Property

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.72

§ 122.72 Law Reviews

Bruch, Management Powers and Duties Under California's Community Property Laws: Recommendations for Reform, 34 Hast. L.J. 229 (1982)

Mennell, Survivorship Rights in Community Property, 1 Community Prop. J. 5 (1984)

Comment, Survey: Women and California Law--Community Property, 16 Golden Gate U.L. Rev. 574 (1986)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawCommunity PropertyGeneral OverviewFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationCommunity PropertyReal Property LawEstatesConcurrent OwnershipJoint TenanciesReal Property LawEstatesConcurrent OwnershipTenancies in CommonReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesCommunity Property

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.73

§ 122.73 Text References

California Community Property With Tax Analysis, chs. 2-4 (Matthew Bender)

Gray & Wagner, Complex Issues in California Family Law, Vol. A: Fiduciary Duties--Nature and Effect: Understanding Interspousal Fiduciary Duties in Current Family Law Practice; Vol. B: Fiduciary Duties--A Practical Approach: Handling Fiduciary Duty Issues in the Day-to-Day Practice of Family Law (Matthew Bender)

Powell on Real Property, Ch. 53 (Matthew Bender)

Witkin, Summary of California Law, vol. 11, Community Property (10th ed. 2005)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawCommunity PropertyGeneral OverviewFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationCommunity PropertyReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesMarital EstatesCommunity PropertyTortsIntentional TortsBreach of Fiduciary DutyGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 122.74-122.89

[Reserved]

§§ 122.74[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART IV. FORMS

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.90

§ 122.90 Petition to Establish Spousal Claim to Community Estate [Fam. Code § 1101]

[1] FORM Petition to Establish Spousal Claim to Community Estate [Fam. Code § 1101]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____[name],	)	PETITION TO ESTABLISH SPOUSAL CLAIM TO Respondent.	)	COMMUNITY ESTATE, OBTAIN ACCOUNTING
	)	OF COMMUNITY PROPERTY, AND RECOVER
	)	DAMAGES FOR BREACH OF FIDUCIARY DUTY

_____

Petitioner alleges:

1. Petitioner is now and at all times herein mentioned was a resident of _____ County, California [or allege other basis for venue].

2. Respondent is now and at all times herein mentioned was a resident of _____ County, California [or allege other basis for venue].

3. Petitioner and respondent were married to each other on _____ [date], in _____ [city], _____ [state], and are presently living together as a married couple.

4. Since _____ [date], petitioner and respondent have owned a _____ [describe general nature of business] business, known as _____ [name of business] ("the business"). The business is located at _____ [complete address of business]. [The business is, and at all times mentioned herein was, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of California].

5. Since _____ [date], the business has been primarily managed and controlled by respondent.

6. On or about _____ [date], respondent sold substantially all of the personal property used in the operation of the business to _____ [name of transferee], located at _____ [complete address of transferee], for $_____. The property sold consisted of _____ [describe property].

7. Respondent sold all of the above-described property without prior written notice to petitioner, in violation of Family Code Section 1100(d).

8. Petitioner had no knowledge of the sale of the above-described property until after the property had been sold and delivered to _____ [name of transferee].

9. Petitioner did not consent to the sale of the above-described property, either at the time of sale or thereafter.

10. Petitioner did not ratify the sale of the above-described property and has not waived any right to claim any interest in the proceeds of sale, or any other rights to community property.

11. All of the above-described property sold by respondent was purchased in _____ [year] with community property funds and was community property.

12. On or about _____ [date], respondent placed the above-described $_____ sale proceeds in an account in his/her name alone, at _____ [name of financial institution], located at _____ [complete address of financial institution].

13. On or about _____ [date], petitioner asked respondent to place the above-described $_____ sale proceeds in a joint savings account with her/him. On that same date, respondent refused, and thereafter has continued to refuse, to comply with this request.

14. Respondent's actions as described above constitute a violation of his/her fiduciary duty imposed by Family Code Sections 721(b) and 1100(d) and (e) to give prior written notice to petitioner of any sale or disposition of the community personal property used in the operation of the business and to act with the highest good faith and fair dealing and to avoid taking any unfair advantage of petitioner in the management and control of community property.

15. As a result of respondent's conduct, petitioner's present undivided one-half interest in the parties' community estate has been impaired.

16. Petitioner has the right, pursuant to Family Code Section 1101(a), to establish a claim for his/her community interest in the above-described $_____ sale proceeds and to be awarded her/his court costs and attorney's fees.

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays that this court grant the following relief:

1. Declare that the above-described business and related assets were the community property of petitioner and respondent.

2. Determine petitioner's community property interest in the $ _____ proceeds of the above-described sale of community property assets by respondent.

3. Order respondent to add petitioner's name to the account containing the $_____ proceeds of the above-described sale of community property assets by respondent.

4. Order respondent to change the title of the above-described account to reflect that funds held within it are community property.

5. Award to petitioner 50 percent, or an amount equal to 50 percent, of any asset of the above-described community property business that the court finds was transferred by respondent in breach of his/her fiduciary duty, as authorized by Family Code Section 1101(g).

6. Award to petitioner court costs and reasonable attorney's fees incurred in this action, as authorized by Family Code Section 1101(g).

7. Such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner_____[name]

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name of petitioner], am the petitioner in the above-entitled matter. I have read the foregoing petition to establish a spousal claim to the community estate, and know the contents thereof. The same are true of my own knowledge.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date and place]

_____[signature]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a petition that may be used by one spouse to assert a claim through an independent action against the other for breach of one or more of the duties imposed by Fam. Code § 1100 or 1102. The petition is brought pursuant to Fam. Code § 1101(a) and alleges that the breach of duty has resulted in impairment to the claimant's present undivided one-half interest in the community estate. For illustration only, the petition recites that a spouse managing a community business has breached the duty to give written notice to the other spouse of a sale of substantially all of the personal property used in the business [see Fam. Code § 1100(d), discussed in § 122.51[10]].

If the alleged breach involved oppression, malice, or fraud [see Civ. Code § 3294], the petition should be amended to state the facts supporting such claims and the prayer for relief should be amended to request an award of 100 percent, or an amount equal to 100 percent, of the undisclosed or transferred assets [see Fam. Code § 1101(h), discussed in § 122.53[1][c]].

Pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.22, the pleading is designated as a petition and the parties as petitioner and respondent.

[3] Governing Law

The superior court has jurisdiction over this action [Fam. Code § 200], and the action is governed by the provisions of law applicable to civil actions generally [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1207].

[4] Tacking of Allegations and Consolidation of Actions

If a Fam. Code § 1101(a) action is brought in conjunction with an action for dissolution of marriage, legal separation, or nullity of marriage, it is unclear whether the Fam. Code § 1101(a) action must be filed separately or may be included among the allegations of the petition in the family law proceeding by "tacking." Local rules of court should be carefully considered to determine whether there is a preferred procedure. If the local rules permit "tacking," that is, adding allegations to the existing Judicial Council form, it is suggested that the claim under Fam. Code § 1101(a) be "tacked" when the dissolution or other action is filed or, if it already has been filed, by amending the filed pleading. If the local rules require a separate action, however, the separate action should be brought and then consolidated with the family law action [see Fam. Code § 1101(f); Code Civ. Proc. § 1048(a)].

If a Fam. Code § 1101(a) action is brought in conjunction with a dissolution, nullity, or legal separation proceeding and a party dies during the pendency of the underlying proceeding, it appears that the family law court would lose jurisdiction over the proceeding [see Estate of Blair (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 161, 167, 244 Cal. Rptr. 627 ; In re Marriage of Shayman (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 648, 651, 111 Cal. Rptr. 11 (death of party to dissolution generally abates proceeding)], and the Fam. Code § 1101(a) claim would come under the jurisdiction of the probate court [see Fam. Code § 1101(f) (§ 1101(a) action may be brought on death of spouse); see generally Prob. Code §§ 7000, 7001]. However, in a bifurcated proceeding for dissolution, nullity, or legal separation, the death of a party does not deprive the family law court of its retained jurisdiction to determine collateral property rights if the judgment terminating the marriage was entered before the party's death [In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 220, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891] .

[5] Verification

The petition must be verified [Fam. Code § 212]. The response, if any, must be filed within 30 days after service upon the respondent of the summons and a copy of the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.22], and must also be verified [Fam. Code § 212].

[6] Cross References

For discussion of actions for accounting in general, see Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for

For discussion of the rules for filing and service of pleadings generally, see Ch. 26, Answers ; Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints ; and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers

[7] State Statutes

Exemplary damages for breach of fiduciary duty involving oppression, malice, or fraud. Civ. Code § 3294; Fam. Code

§ 1101(h)

Consolidation of actions. Code Civ. Proc. § 1048(a)

Jurisdiction of superior court over family law actions. Fam. Code § 200

Fiduciary duties of spouses toward one another. Fam. Code §§ 721(b), 1100(e)

Requirement that spouse managing community business give prior written notice to other spouse of disposition of all or substantially all personal property used in operation of business. Fam. Code § 1100(d)

Action against spouse for breach of fiduciary duties that results in impairment to claimant spouse's interest in community estate. Fam. Code § 1101(a)

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART IV. FORMS

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.91

§ 122.91 Complaint to Recover Personal Property and Damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 667; Fam. Code § 1100(b)]

[1] FORM Complaint to Recover Personal Property and Damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 667; Fam. Code § 1100(b)]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [names of donor-spouse	)	COMPLAINT TO RECOVER PERSONAL PROP-and donee],	)	ERTY AND DAMAGES
Defendants.	)
	)
	)

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____ [name of donor-spouse] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ County, California [or allege other basis of venue as appropriate].

2. Defendant _____ [name of donee] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ County, California [or allege other basis of venue as appropriate].

3. Plaintiff and defendant _____ [name of donor-spouse] are, and at all times herein mentioned were, a married couple.

4. During their marriage plaintiff and defendant _____ [name of donor-spouse] acquired as community property certain personal property described as follows: _____.

5. The value of the above-described property is now, and at all times herein mentioned was, $_____.

6. On or about _____ [date], defendant _____ [name of donor-spouse] transferred the above-described property to defendant _____[name of donee] for less than fair and reasonable value and without the express or implied consent of plaintiff. Defendant _____ [name of donee] now has possession of the property.

7. As a proximate result of the wrongful transfer of the property by defendant _____ [name of donor-spouse] and the wrongful possession of the property by defendant _____ [name of donee], plaintiff has suffered damages in the sum of $_____, as follows: _____ [describe connection between damages and loss of described property].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. _____ [If action is commenced during lifetime of donor-spouse, For possession of the above-described property in its entirety or, if action is commenced after death of donor-spouse, For possession of plaintiff's one-half interest in the above-described property] or for its value in the sum of $_____ if possession cannot be obtained.

2. For damages in the sum of $_____.

3. For costs of suit herein incurred.

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[Verification. See § 122.90.]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint by a spouse seeking to recover community personal property given by his or her spouse to a third party for less than fair and reasonable value and without the plaintiff's written consent. The right to such an action is established in Fam. Code § 1100(b), which provides that a spouse may not make a gift of community personal property or dispose of community personal property for less than fair and reasonable value, unless the other spouse consents in writing.

The complaint names the donor-spouse and the donee of the property as defendants.

Gifts of community personal property are discussed in § 122.51[6].

[3] Claim and Delivery Actions

The procedural format of the form is an action for claim and delivery pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 667, which allows a plaintiff to recover possession of personal property, or its value in case possession cannot be returned, and damages for the detention. Section 667 applies to unauthorized gifts of community personal property under Civ. Code § 3379, which states that a person entitled to the immediate possession of specific personal property may recover it in the manner provided by the Code of Civil Procedure.

The essential allegations for a claim and delivery action are the following:

(1) The plaintiff is the spouse of the donor (Paragraph 3).

(2) The property is community property (Paragraph 4).

(3) The property was given or transferred to the donee-defendant for less than fair and reasonable value (Paragraph 6).

(4) The plaintiff did not consent to the gift or transfer (Paragraph 6).

(5) The donee-defendant is in possession of the property (Paragraph 6).

(6) The property has a specified value (to allow an alternative judgment in the event possession cannot be recovered) (Paragraph 5).

[4] Extent of Recovery

The plaintiff is entitled to recover the gift or its value if both spouses are living [see In re Marriage of Stephenson (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1057, 1071-1073, 209 Cal. Rptr. 383] . However, if the community has been dissolved by death of the donor, the plaintiff may only recover a one-half interest in the property or the equivalent value [see Odone v. Marzocchi (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 431, 439, 211 P.2d 297] .

[5] Verification

Verification of this complaint is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer in a superior court action other than a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446] and precludes a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)].

[6] Cross References

For discussion and forms relating to claim and delivery actions generally, see Ch. 119, Claim and Delivery

For a related form, see § 122.90.

[7] State Statutes

Claim and delivery actions. Civ. Code § 3379; Code Civ. Proc. § 667

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART IV. FORMS

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.92

§ 122.92 Complaint to Cancel Instrument and to Quiet Title to Community Real Property [Civ. Code § 3412; Fam. Code § 1102(a)]

[1] FORM Complaint to Cancel Instrument and to Quiet Title to Community Real Property [Civ. Code § 3412; Fam. Code § 1102(a)]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [names of grantor spouse	)	COMPLAINT TO CANCEL INSTRUMENT AND and grantee], and all persons unknown, claiming any	)	TO QUIET TITLE TO COMMUNITY REAL PROP-
legal or equitable right, title, estate, lien, or interest in	)	ERTY
the property described in the complaint adverse to	) plaintiff's title, or any cloud on plaintiff's title thereto, named as DOES I-X, inclusive,
Defendants.

_____

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendants are, and at all times herein mentioned were, residents of _____ County, California.

2. Defendants DOES I-X, inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names. Their true names and capacities are unknown to plaintiff. When their true names and capacities are ascertained, plaintiff will amend this complaint by inserting their true names and capacities herein. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of these fictitiously named defendants claims some legal or equitable right, title, estate, lien, or interest in the property described in the complaint adverse to plaintiff's title. These claims constitute a cloud on plaintiff's title to that property and are without any right whatever.

3. Plaintiff and defendant _____ [name of grantor spouse] are, and at all times herein mentioned were, a married couple.

4. On or about _____ [date], during the existence of their marriage, plaintiff and defendant _____ [name of grantor spouse] acquired as community property certain real property situated in _____ County, California, known and described as _____ [legal description of property]. The street address of the property is _____ [address, including city], California.

5. The basis of plaintiff's title is _____[describe basis of plaintiff's title, e.g., a deed from _____ (name of grantor) granting the above-described property in fee simple to plaintiff and to defendant _____ (name of grantor spouse) dated _____, and recorded in the Official Records of the County of _____, Book _____, page _____].

6. Plaintiff was seized and possessed of the above-described property within five years of the commencement of this action.

7. On or about _____ [date], in _____ County, California, defendant _____ [name of grantor spouse] _____ [specify, e.g., leased for a longer period than one year or sold or conveyed or encumbered] [an interest in] the above-described property to defendant _____ [name of grantee], by an instrument executed by defendant _____ [name of grantor spouse]. This instrument, though it appears to be valid on its face, is invalid and voidable as to plaintiff, in that it was executed by defendant _____ [name of grantor spouse] alone without the knowledge or consent of plaintiff and without joining him/her therein.

[8. On or about _____ [date] and within one year of the commencement of this action, the above-described instrument was recorded in the Official Records of the County of _____, Book _____, page _____.]

9. By virtue of the above-described instrument, defendant _____ [name of grantee] claims an interest in the above-described property adverse to plaintiff. Defendant _____ [name of grantor spouse] claims, adversely to plaintiff, that the property was and is her/his sole and separate property. These claims are without any right whatever.

10. The above-described instrument and defendants' claims constitute a cloud on plaintiff's interest in the above-described property and cause plaintiff to be deprived of his/her community property rights in the property.

11. Plaintiff seeks to quiet title to the above-described property, against the claims of the defendants as described above, as of _____ [date]. [If the date is a date other than the date the complaint is filed, allege why a determination as of that date is sought.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendants, and each of them, as follows:

1. That defendants, and each of them, be made to set forth the nature of their claims, if any.

2. That defendants' claims be adjudged to be of no effect and void.

3. That the property be declared to be the community property of plaintiff and defendant _____ [name of grantor spouse].

4. That defendant _____ [name of grantee] be declared to have no interest in the property, and that the instrument executed by defendant _____ [name of grantor spouse] to defendant _____ [name of grantee] be ordered delivered up and canceled by this court.

5. For costs of suit herein incurred.

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff_____[name]

[Verification. See § 122.90.]

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form is a complaint by one spouse to avoid his or her spouse's sale, conveyance, encumbrance, or lease for more than one year of community real property when the plaintiff was not joined in and did not consent to the transaction as required by Fam. Code § 1102(a). The purpose of the action is to restore and quiet title to the property in the community, and to procure cancellation of the transaction. For discussion of Fam. Code § 1102(a) and the limited exceptions to its prohibition on unilateral sales, conveyances, encumbrances, and leases for more than one year of community realty, see § 122.52[3], [4].

[3] Allegations

To state a cause of action for a violation of Fam. Code § 1102(a), the complaint must allege the following:

(1) The marriage between plaintiff and defendant spouse (Paragraph 3);

(2) The status of the real property as community property (Paragraph 4);

(3) The defendant-spouse's execution of the instrument conveying, leasing, or encumbering the property without plaintiff's knowledge, consent, or joinder (Paragraph 7); and

(4) Defendants' adverse claim and the resulting cloud on the title of the property jeopardizing plaintiff's community interest and entitling him or her to have the instrument canceled pursuant to Civil Code Section 3412 (Paragraphs 9, 10).

A complaint to quiet title must be verified and must include the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020]:

(1) A description of the property that is the subject of the action. In the case of real property, the description must include both its legal description and its street address or common designation, if any (Paragraph 4);

(2) The plaintiff's title, as to which a determination is sought, and the basis of the title (Paragraph 5);

(3) The adverse claims to the title of the defendant against whom a determination is sought (Paragraph 9);

(4) The date as of which the determination is sought (Paragraph 11); and

(5) A prayer for the determination of the title of the plaintiff against the adverse claims.

If a quiet title action is one for the recovery of real property or its possession, it is subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 318, which requires the plaintiff to have been seized or possessed of the property within five years prior to the commencement of the action (Paragraph 6). This limitation period does not run against a party in possession [Muktarian v. Barmby (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 558, 560, 47 Cal. Rptr. 483, 407 P.2d 659] .

[4] Parties to Action

To bind the transferor-spouse to the judgment as to the character of the property and to facilitate a complete determination of the controversy, the transferor-spouse should be joined as a necessary party to the plaintiff-spouse's action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 389; Vanasek v. Pokorny (1925) 73 Cal. App. 312, 319-321, 238 P. 798] . To make the judgment binding against all the world, unknown defendants should be joined in the manner set forth in the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 762.020, 762.060, 764.030]. If such defendants are named, service must be made by publication and posting [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 763.010(b), 763.020, 763.030].

[5] Lis Pendens

A lis pendens must be filed when the complaint to cancel the instrument and quiet title is filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.010(b)].

[6] Cross References

For a related form, see § 122.90.

For further discussion and forms relevant to setting aside unauthorized conveyances of community real property, see Ch. 107, Cancellation of Instruments , and Ch. 482, Quieting Title

For the requirements and procedure for service by publication and posting, see Ch. 482, Quieting Title , and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers

[7] State Statutes

Quiet title actions. Civ. Code § 3412; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 761.010(b), 761.020

Necessary parties. Code Civ. Proc. § 389

Joinder of unknown defendants. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 762.020, 762.060, 762.030

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12: Claim and Delivery thru Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions-Chs. 119-125
Chapter 122 COMMUNITY PROPERTY
PART IV. FORMS

12-122 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 122.93

§ 122.93 Complaint to Recover One-Half of Proceeds of Life Insurance Policy When Premiums Paid Out of Community Property [Fam. Code § 1100(b); Prob. Code §§ 100, 6101, 6103]--By Surviving Spouse Against Insurance Company and Designated Beneficiary

[1] FORM Complaint to Recover One-Half of Proceeds of Life Insurance Policy When Premiums Paid Out of Community Property [Fam. Code § 1100(b); Prob. Code §§ 100, 6101, 6103]--By Surviving Spouse Against Insurance Company and Designated Beneficiary

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____
[or other as appropriate]

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name(s) of known defendant(s)], [and DOES I through_____,]	)	COMPLAINT TO RECOVER PROCEEDS OF COMMUNITY PROPERTY LIFE INSURANCE POLICY
	)	[Amount demanded _____
Defendant(s).	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

_____

Plaintiff alleges:

1. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff and _____ [name of insured] married and at all times herein mentioned were husband and wife.

[EITHER]

2. [Capacity and residence of individual defendant named as beneficiary of life insurance policy. See § 122.91, Paragraph 2.]

[AND/OR]

2. _____ [Allege capacity and authority of insurer, e.g., Defendant _____ (name of insurer) is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of California (, with its principal place of business in this state situated in _____ County,) and authorized (by the California Insurance Commissioner) to transact, and is transacting, business in this state as a life insurer].

[3. Defendants DOES I-_____, inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names. Their true names and capacities are unknown to plaintiff. When their true names and capacities are ascertained, plaintiff will amend this complaint by inserting their true names and capacities herein. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of these fictitiously named defendants claims some right, title, or other interest in the hereinafter-described property adverse to plaintiff's title; and that each of them is responsible in some manner for the wrongful conduct herein alleged.]

4. On or about _____ [date], in consideration of the payment and agreement to pay specified premiums, [defendant] _____ [name of insurer], by its duly authorized agents, executed and delivered to _____ [name of insured] in _____ [city, county, and state] a written policy of insurance, number _____, under which the life of _____ [name of insured] was insured in the amount of $ _____ [, payable to plaintiff as the beneficiary]. A copy of the insurance policy is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.

5. Premiums on the policy were fully paid with community funds of plaintiff and _____ [name of insured]. The policy became community property of plaintiff and _____ [name of insured] at the time it was executed and delivered.

[EITHER]

6. At the time the policy was executed and delivered, _____ [name of insured] designated defendant _____ [name of designated beneficiary] as beneficiary under the policy, for less than fair and reasonable value and without obtaining plaintiff's written consent.

[OR]

6. Subsequent to execution and delivery of the policy, _____ [name of insured] changed the designation of beneficiary from plaintiff to defendant _____ [name of designated beneficiary], for less than fair and reasonable value and without obtaining plaintiff's written consent.

[CONTINUE]

7. On or about _____ [date], while the policy was in full force and effect, _____ [name of insured] died in _____ [city, county, and state].

[EITHER, if insurer is a defendant and payment of proceeds has not been made]

8. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff gave written notice of a claim in the proceeds of the policy to defendant _____ [name of insurer] at its home office, _____ [specify address of insurer]. Payment under the policy has not been made.

[OR, if insurer is a defendant and payment has been made or if designated beneficiary is sole defendant]

8. On or about _____ [date], [defendant] _____ [name of insurer] paid the amount of $_____[, the entire proceeds of the policy,] to defendant _____ [name of designated beneficiary]. [Prior to payment, plaintiff gave written notice of a claim in the proceeds to the defendant _____ (name of insurer) at its home office, _____ (specify address of insurer).]

[CONTINUE]

9. Plaintiff [and _____ (name of insured)] performed all conditions of the policy required on his/her/their part to be performed, and, in accordance with the terms of the policy, plaintiff gave [defendant] _____ [name of insurer] due and timely notice and proof of death.

10. Plaintiff has demanded from defendant(s) _____ [name(s) of insurer or designated beneficiary or both] payment of $_____, one-half the amount for which the life of _____ [name of insured] was insured, but defendant(s) _____ [name(s) of insurer or designated beneficiary or both] [has or have] failed and refused, and continue(s) to fail and refuse, to pay the whole [or any part] of that amount. The amount of $_____ is now due and owing from defendant(s) _____ [name(s) of insurer or designated beneficiary or both] to plaintiff because of plaintiff's community property interest in the proceeds of the policy.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant[s, and each of them,] as follows:

1. For the sum of $_____, representing the amount of plaintiff's one-half interest in the proceeds of the policy, with interest thereon at the legal rate from and after _____ [date];

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff_____[name]

[Verification. See § 122.90.]

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint may be used by a surviving spouse to recover one-half of the proceeds of a community property life insurance policy when the decedent designated a third person as beneficiary for less than fair and reasonable value and without the plaintiff's written consent [see Fam. Code § 1100(b); Tyre v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 399, 402, 404, 6 Cal. Rptr. 13, 353 P.2d 725 ; see also Prob. Code §§ 100, 6101, 6103; for related discussion, see § 122.51[8]].

If the spouse also desires to sue the estate of the decedent for damages arising from the decedent's breach of fiduciary duty [see Fam. Code § 1101], this form may be adapted for use as one of the causes of action in the complaint [see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints]. For a form stating a cause of action for breach of fiduciary duty, see § 122.90.

[3] Joinder of Designated Beneficiary

It is recommended that counsel always include any designated beneficiaries under the policy as defendants in the action, even if the insurer has not paid the policy proceeds. A designated beneficiary is a person who claims an interest relating to the subject of the action and should be joined as a party under Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a)(2). See additional discussion of compulsory joinder in Ch. 395, Parties.

[4] Consideration for Transfer

